Economizing Resources Sugar Refinery, St. John

This matter is deserving of the special attention of the commission recently appointed at Ottawa to consider what should be done for conserving the country's natural resources. The industrial and commercial utilization of enormous tracts of new useless Canadian ore, the application thereof to numerous Canadian water-powers now going to waste, and the overcoming of the great drawback of want of coal are among the grand objects to be accomplished by perfecting and largely applying electrical processes for the manufacture of iron and steel.

If those American explorers continue to find poles with the regularity which they have within the last few days, there will be a meeting of the American committee to have another talk with the

The Rival Claimants

To The Pole

Having discovered the North Pole, which, by the way, was never lost, but only difficult of access--both Cook and Peary now return to civilization to face tasks perhaps more difficult and exacting, although less dangerous, than those which they encountered in the Arctic region. They have to establish their stories and "make good" their claims that they stood at the end of the earth beneath the polar star. Beneath the claims of the two explorers there does not necessarily mean any conflict, and if conflict exists it is because it has been interjected by the men themselves or by their zealous friends. The doing of the thing each claims to have done is not exhausted by its having been done once, for the going of one man to the North Pole does not prevent another man doing otherwise, so that the claim of one to have been there does not necessarily clash with a like claim by another. But to one only can belong the halo of glory of having been the first to reach the long sought spot. It is over that that the conflict arises it is here that the terrain is the really that each of the heroes wear. If Cook's story is true it does not mean that Peary's is false, but it means that at the best Peary held only second place. If Cook's story is false then Peary has the field to himself, and he is not only first, but the only one in the case.

Accepting Peary's story does not necessarily reject Cook's; but, unless it is rejected, Cook, and not Peary, is the discoverer. And so the matter shifts from side to side, and in the meantime the entertained public is enjoying itself behind its two frost-bitten polar leaders. Peary vs. Cook is likely to become one of the famous controversies of the age, and to reach a popularity quite equal to that enjoyed a few years ago by the problem respecting the age of Anne, or that other hardy perennial--who pays the duty, the importer or the consumer?

It is to be remembered that the claim of Cook or Peary can, on the whole, be established only by what may be called human testimony, unless some admission can be extracted from the dogs that survived the trip, and some evidence made out of the bones of those that were transferred from the transport service to the bled. There seems to have been nothing at the Pole which those who had been there could bring away as proof positive of their claim. There were only ice, silence, and ninety degrees of latitude. Now, ice is a pretty common thing in this northern hemisphere; silence, of course, cannot be expected to make itself heard in a case of this kind; and as for the latitude, any mathematician could work it out in his study without as much as poking the grate-fire.

About all the evidence there men have to offer is their own testimony, corroborated by the testimony of their companions; but some of these companions, the Eskimos, for instance, although of unimpeachable honesty, are not competent to give expert testimony. An Eskimo could watch a man making observations and making entries on a sheet of paper, but he would not know whether the result arrived at meant ninety degrees of latitude or the price of fish-brooks in Iceland. Expert testimony respecting the essential facts can be given only by the explorers themselves and their scientifically-trained companions, and if the rival claims are to be decided by such testimony, the claimant who can produce the most certainly have the best chance of winning a verdict from the public.

Becoming Aggressive

The Japs who have been welcomed as cheap workers and material for the open shop have closed the shop in a western country by refusing to work with some white men. The next move may be to supplant the proprietors with Japanese captives of industry.

Empire Cavalry Can be Recruited From Canada

Almost simultaneously with the news cabled from England that the Army Council signs an alarming scarcity of cavalry horses, comes the National Bureau returns from western Canada showing that the farmers and breeders from Winnipeg to the coast are co-operating to raise remounts by means of the thorough-bred class.

These returns give facts regarding number of mares mated with bureau stallions and show that the pure-blooded horses sent out have been patronized in a most encouraging manner, and that the crop for a first year effort will be amazingly large.

Such a quick success was scarcely expected, for these horses were, many of them, sent to districts where the thorough-bred was practically unknown and where Clydes and Shires were in abundance. It was thought that a campaign of education would be necessary to convince farmers and breeders of the value of pure blood, and the bureau was spending considerable money on this part of the work, but the figures show that the situation has not once been grasped, and instead of soliciting patronage, the bureau is now advising more caution in the handling of sires.

The success is due to the activity of War Office representatives, who travelled through the West and also to the fact that there are many retired military men now on western farms and ranches, mostly English and Irish, who, in addition to the great natural love of the thorough-bred, have considerable knowledge of remounts.

It looks now as though nothing can prevent a great yearly crop of good horses suitable for cavalry purposes, and as, in addition to all the other demands, the new territorial army, on a war-footing, would require 84,000 horses, the Canadian crop will arrive at about the right time. And, apart from cavalry work, the crossing of such good sires with cold blooded mares will immensely increase the value of the utility type of horse in Canada, just as similar methods have improved the breed in Germany, Russia, France, Austria-Hungary, and England.

Alberta promises to be one of the greatest horse-breeding provinces of Canada. The bureau has sent some fine stallions there, and many more are required. The last shipment sent over the Canadian Pacific a few weeks ago arrived safely, the horses being distributed at Elkwater, Calgary, High River, Nanston and Innisfail. The Alberta climate and grazing lands produce horses of iron constitutions and good size.

And the West is getting on almost as well as the East. Here in Quebec, the National Bureau has placed its best stallions, including Rosemount, Masterman, Sea Horse II, Bokant and Vajjean. These are thoroughbreds of the highest type, and are meeting with the greatest success.

The Maritime Provinces are also doing remarkably well. New Brunswick making the best showing. Mr. W. W. Hubbard, Secretary of Agriculture for that province is also provincial secretary of the National Bureau and the Government has assisted financially and in other ways to help along the work.

Too Soon for Opinions The Attorney-General of the United States says that the discovery of the North Pole gives the United States territorial rights there. It is just a little soon to express opinions on that point. It is all very well to talk of the constitution following, but no one should say that if some explorer post the Stars and Stripes in the centre of Labrador, where no one had been before, he would thereby give the country to United States. Until we know whether the North Pole is on an island or not, there is no use in speculating as to its ownership.

Charlotte County Teachers' Institute

The twenty-seventh session of the Charlotte County Teachers' Institute was opened Thursday morning in Heston's hall, Milltown, by the president, Mrs. W. J. Graham. On the platform were Chief Superintendent W. S. Carter, Chancellor Jones, Inspector William McLean, and W. W. Graham, of the Milltown school board. There were also present James Vroom, secretary of the St. Stephen school board, and R. H. Armstrong, of the St. Andrews school board.

There was a large number of teachers present. The enrolment fee was fixed at fifty cents for males and twenty-five cents for females.

Miss Rena Gleason was elected assistant secretary. The president delivered an interesting address. She congratulated Chief Superintendent Carter upon his promotion and assured that gentlemen although the teachers and officers agreed that he had left this county as inspector, that he had the best wishes of them all in his higher position of chief superintendent.

Mrs. Graham extended a cordial welcome to Inspector McLean and also assured him that he would be warmly welcomed by the teachers and officers of the county.

Mrs. Graham, in continuing, said that the object of the institute was to further the interests of the profession. It was of great benefit to the teachers to come together and exchange ideas and compare methods. It made the teachers strong and self-reliant.

Inspector McLean, who then addressed the institute, was warmly received. He spoke of the kindly feeling he found existing throughout the county for Chief Superintendent Carter, and trusted that the teachers and officers would still have a kindly feeling for their new inspector.

Mr. McLean said that he had always great friendship for the teacher, for he had been one of their number for many years. He hoped that the teachers would consider him their friend, for he would be pleased to help them in every possible way.

Chief Superintendent Carter, Chancellor Jones and W. W. Graham also addressed the institute.

Miss Rena Gleason taught a class of nine pupils an interesting lesson, showing the method of teaching perspective drawing.

A successful public meeting in connection with the institute was held this evening in Heston's hall, Milltown, Dr. W. H. Laughlin of the Milltown school board, as chairman. Graham's orchestra was in attendance, and solos were given by Messrs. Dewar and Drinos. Interesting addresses were delivered by Inspector McLean, Chancellor Jones, Surveyor Oesrael Grimmer and Chief Supt. Carter. At the close of the meeting the Milltown teachers furnished ice cream and cake for the visitors.

St. Stephen, N. B. Sept. 24.--This morning's session of the Charlotte County Teachers' Institute, in Milltown, opened with a paper on "Nature Study and Agriculture in the Schools," by Mr. James Vroom, secretary of the St. Stephen school board. The writer referred to the authorized course in the subject as admirably adapted to interest pupils in the country schools in the business of agriculture, and valuable also to those who would take up other business in life.

The chief superintendent took occasion to condemn much of the reading offered by public libraries and by Sunday school libraries, as trashy and more injurious to pupils than anything else except cigarettes and moving pictures. He recommended that each teacher find a daily paper, a good magazine and at least one educational paper.

At the afternoon session Dr. E. V. Sullivan, of St. Stephen, will read a paper on "Tuberculosis." The next session will probably be held at St. Andrews.

Miles of Wheat Cars

It will take 500 miles of freight cars to move the western crop this year. A procession of cars extending from Vancouver to Field would do the business. Sir Charles Tepper once predicted that the west would produce 100,000,000 bushels of wheat, whereupon the pessimist pursued him with figures showing that if it did anything of the kind the number of freight cars needed to remove the crop would be so great as to make one continuous train hundreds of miles in length.

Sir Charles was, however, a good prophet for his prediction has already been verified.--Vancouver Province.

Make a Difference It is Dr. Cook telling the truth when he reports that he discovered the North Pole and proves his discovery by the evidence of a couple of Esquimaux wives? Assuredly. But what is the laugh that would greet the vacant mind of the United States press if an explorer of some other country, English preferred, asked an Esquimaux to take his word for what he had discovered the Pole, and if they did not believe him to ask the unstarved Esquimaux who accompanied him and who would not know the North Pole if they met it.--Toronto Telegram.

CALLED FOR IN PERSON

Mrs. Thompson was the soul of happy hospitality, shoeing chickens, flapping flies and talking to the cats as she poured out coffee and handed fried potatoes and meat and great soda biscuits.

Primus sat on the refrigerator between two plates of freshly churned butter, and once a great calf stuck its head in at the door.

"I don't think I can stand it nine months," thought Elizabeth as she drank her coffee. "Maybe I'll let him come for me in two." Then she felt more cheerful.

"You can see the school house from the first turn in the road," said Mrs. Thompson at the gate, as she squinted her eyes in the sunlight. "It's right beyond the depot, and down the bayou a little ways is the graveyard where Buddy is buried. We'll walk there some pretty evening."

Elizabeth squeezed her fat hands gently. It was impossible not to like her, and yet—how could the material part of her stand it? She went along heedless of the morning sunlight on the flat fields where the cotton stalks were standing. She did not feel that she could teach school. She was no longer the capable, well-poised female that she had imagined herself to be. She was only a little homesick girl, longing with all her heart for the sight of a big, clean man who smelled of good cigars.

Then suddenly she stopped short. In front of her was a little red-roofed depot, with some freight cars on a siding, and telephone and telegraph wires ran into it. She could, if she would, send a message that minute—and he would come. In his new character—new, and delightful—she felt sure that he would be capable of anything. She need never sleep on that feather bed or eat after Primus. Neither need she starve or die of insomnia. Almost before she realized it she was startling the young agent with a vision of youth and beauty seldom seen there. Then her voice failed her, and she seemed to wait interminable minutes until he came into his office—and his voice travelled over a thousand miles of sunlight space and reached her happy ear.

"It is I!" she said, at her end of the wire, and the young man in the office listened eagerly as he wrote meaningless things with a stub pen. Yes—No, not ill, but so horribly lonesome, and the cats fight all night and I miss you—Yes I read it. I found it last night—No not angry—No, not—but I wish I had read it—or you had said it—before I bought my ticket.

Then, heedless of the agent's surprise, she laid down a quarter and fled from the office, with flamed colored cheeks.

Elizabeth could never remember afterward, when she tried to recall the details of that one day of her vacation, how she found the school-house or got through the morning. In after years it was always a vague dinky, ink-spattered room filled with girls and boys and amazingly freckled. At 12 o'clock she sent them home, and, still in a happy dream she went to Mrs. Thompsons and sat down to soup and turnips and dried apple pie untroubled even by the sight of Primus which sat in the window washing red tomato soup from his whiskers.

"I'm not going back to school," she said, with a flush on her happy little face. "I've classed them and I'm going for a long walk."

She put on a soft, lace trimmed white dress that made her look like a big baby, and a hat trimmed with pink roses, and strolled past the depot again and down the old bayou by whose banks the dead away. It was a quiet peaceful spot. Masses of honeysuckle and golden rod hid the sunken graves. No new mound struck a note of pain. The sadness was gone, and only the peace of death remained. A little farther on she found Mrs. Thompsons little freckled boy, who had been buried in his "first long pants." There was a marble slab with his name and age and, We Shall Meet in the Sweet By-and-By.

Steel Oven Heats Quicker Saves Fuel

Pandora has a sheet steel oven, because steel is more sensitive to heat—absorbs it faster—than cast iron does. Pandora oven thus heats quicker—less time required to get oven ready for the baking—which also means less fuel-expense.

Make sure your new range has a steel oven, and "Pandora" name-plate on the door. Go, at once, to nearest McClary Agency and pick out size desired.

Elizabeth looked at it with misty eyes.

"A hope they will," she thought, "and that he will be just a little freckled face boy."

Already she seemed to have learned something of the everlasting joy and the everlasting sorrow of wifehood and motherhood, and so she dreamed on until the shrill whistle of the evening train broke the silence.

"It is too soon to expect even a letter," she told herself, but with a movement like a flower when it trembles on its stem she arose and with quick, happy little feet and a rose flush on her face she went down the grassy path.

As she went, a tall fair man, who looked dear and familiar, and yet delightfully strange came hurrying to her, and so—and so they met in the sunset glory of the autumn evening and, forgetful of all else, he lifted her little face with his strong hands and pressed his eager loving lips to hers.

Mrs. Thompson was loud with lamentations when she found that a bold Lochinvar had come to rob her of her boarder and Seven Oaks Hollow school of its teacher of a day; but there was a delightful thrill of excitement over it all. It was almost as if a bride was going away. She hastily stirred up a cake for supper and tied a blue ribbon on Primus neck.

"It's hard to give you up so soon," she said tearfully as Elizabeth stood ready to go away, "but I'm glad you got one good sleep in my feather bed."

You must come back some day, dear and see us and the cats again. "I'll never forget you," said Elizabeth. "Some day we will come back and see you."

So she passed out clinging to her lovers' hand, with a parting back view of Primus on the hall table drinking out of the bucket of water.

"And to think that you really loved me all the time," said her lover ecstatically, almost unbelieving, as the night train rushed through the darkness of field and swamp, like some enchanted dragon, carrying them away to the fairyland of love and happiness.

"Yet," she said softly, as she nestled by his side, "I think I really loved you all the time, but I would never have told you half so soon if it had not been for Mrs. Thompson's cat."—New Orleans Time Democrat.

The so-called briar pipe is not made of briar at all, but from the root of particular kind of heather, called in French bruyere, which grows on the hillsides of the Tuscan Alps in north Italy and on the mountains of Corsica. English tradesmen, finding the correct word bruyere somewhat difficult for the British tongue, reduced it to briar and in this way the corruption crept in and was established by popular usage. Originally Swiss peasants usually made snuff boxes out of this wood, and when snuff-taking became unfashionable, the peasants turned their attention to manufacturing the root into pipes, for which a ready market was at once offered.

What the Barber Did

The next time that Peter Toews, of Winnipeg, enters a barber's chair he will make certain he won't take a nap. He wandered into the tonsorial parlors of a Leonold Violette recently. When he came to he had the following little bill presented him:

Hair Cut	25c
Shave	15c
Singe	25c
Electric Shampoo	50c
Scalp Massage	50c
Face Massage	35c
Eye-brows Dyed	75c
Moustache Dyed	1.00
Total	$3.75

To this was added $1 for good measure. Toews looked at himself in the glass. It was not the same Peter Toews he knew before he went to sleep in the barber's chair. He pinched himself to be sure he was not still sleeping. There was an altercation which wound up in the police court. Magistrate Daly was called upon to adjudicate as to the bill. Peter seriously considered bringing in a charge of assault when he viewed his countenance, but was finally appeased by having his bill cut down to forty cents, which he duly paid.

A Misplaced Adverb

It is not even the most grown up of us who can avoid an occasional defeat at the hands of an adverb that will go in its right place in the sentence, but a lad in one of the city schools has produced chef d'oeuvre which the teachers are still telling with great glee.

Inspector Hughes had arrived at the school and was conducting a cheerful little quiz throughout the school.

He walked into a very junior room and in his breezy, cheerful way, began to pry into the souls of the children before him. Kindness was his topic, and he laid his ground by securing a few examples out of the experiences of the children themselves. Would anyone give him an example of kindness?

One little boy would. His father often took him to a five cent show. Then every youngster in the room would. All the changes were rung on the subject of parental indulgence with examples, but still one little fellow remained unheard. He got his chance, and bursting with eagerness, he stated, but his excitement was fatal.

"My father—my father nearly gives me a cent every morning."

IMPORTANT SPORT

Our big game is one of the greatest assets we have in the province. It not only brings in a very considerable revenue to the government and the transportation companies, but it brings thousands of dollars to our guides and farmers as well. This sport is as important as any well. This sport is as important as any well. This sport is as important as any well.

THE TREK FROM THE STATES TO THIS COUNTRY

The American trek to the Canadian West this summer is assuming unprecedented proportions, and the total number of immigrants may reach 80,000 for the current year. Canadian officials are incessantly advertising the virgin farm lands of their prairie Provinces in our North-Western States, and they look for a movement in the immediate future that will overshadow that in the past. There are 200 firms in Minneapolis dealing in Canadian lands, and last year the same city had but 50. The big crop now being harvested in Manitoba will still further advertise the country among other Western farmers, who cannot visit a State fair or a country cattle show without facing the alluring Canadian posters and hearing the paid lecturer grow eloquent over the wonders of the far North, where "Old Glory" is never seen. The Superintendent of Canadian Immigration, who spends his time campaigning on this side of the boundary evidently reports that he finds no opposition to his efforts in this country. The Washington Government show no unfriendly feeling, and the only competition encountered is that from the Southern States. We are losing to Canada thousands of our best Western population, and the void is filled by the torrent that flows in at Ellis Island.—Springfield Republican.

THE COOK-PERRY CONTROVERSY

Even defective creatures have their large moments, and a person by the name of Smith may, on the sublime occasion, hitch his wagon to a star, but it is a little humbug to reflect upon the alterations of greatness and fitness which mark human conduct and relations.

Whether Dr. Cook found the pole or not, he made a heroic dash for it. He took his life in his hand. He denied himself the comforts of civilization. He lived through the long Arctic night. He set a high example in an age which has been encouraged to love its ease through the inventive aids which deny the individual initiative.

Commander Peary, similarly, upon whom the eyes of the world have been fastened for many years, as the heroic figure, inured to hardship, dauntless in determination, full of resource,—did his deed, endured and suffered.

Both these men return, and instantly, there is a wrangle between them. Mr. Peary says that Dr. Cook, has handed the public a "gold brick" never having been near the pole. Dr. Cook does not say exactly that Peary is "another," but he hints broadly that if Peary really disputes his claim, he is closely related to Ananias.

You have, then, on the instant, the sense of belittlement. The heroic is dwarfed. The splendid explorer, crowned with bays, is reduced to the size of the man on the street, who calls his neighbor a liar, and threatens to bring him to the local court for defamation of character.

The conflict is bound to go on; but it will be difficult to adduce, on either side, such indisputable evidence as will silence all doubt. For here are distance and inaccessibility which militate against the production of convincing testimony. In the disputed claims, Peary and Cook show nothing more serious than the ordinary defects of human nature; but it would have been a splendid addition to the annals of heroism if the men could have remained at the moral height to which the public interest and affection had assigned them.

The Democratic Party has lost its most promising leader by the untimely death of Governor Johnson of Minnesota.

The Directors of the St. Stephen Fair have made every arrangement to attend to the comfort of visitors. Be sure and attend on Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

There are things which tend to throw doubt on both the Cook and Peary stories. For instance neither of them make any mention of Santa Claus or of Captain Bernier who are both understood to move in the most exclusive of Arctic circles.

At a country fair out in Kansas a man went up to a tent where some elk were on exhibition and stared wistfully at the sign. "I'd like to go in there," he said to the keeper, but it would be mean to go in without your wife and family, and I can't afford to pay for my wife and 17 children." The keeper started at him in astonishment. "Are all those your children," he asked. "Every one," said the man. "You wait a minute," said the keeper. "I'm going to bring the elk out and let them see you."

The Canadian Railway Commission directs all Dominion railroads doing an international business to prevent undue interference with passengers in Canada by United States immigration officials. It is stated that the commission has received some fifty complaints against American officers alleged to have made themselves obnoxious, not only to passengers bound for the United States but to passengers going from one Canadian port to another. The frenzy of enforcement observed in our customs service also breaks out in the immigration bureau. It is apparently necessary to show certain over-zealous officials how virtue may become a vice.

An American explorer claims to have reached the North Pole. Let us hope it is true. To one person at least the feat will be profitable, for the explorer will no doubt be able to make up a "drawing" lecture about his four years experience. The public will get entertainment from hearing and reading his adventures. Science may in some degree or in some way be benefitted because human eye has at last rested on the long-sought goal, though it is likely the ice at that particular spot looks like the ice anywhere else in the polar regions. But the chief gain will be that the pole will no longer be the goal of intrepid men.—Edmonton Bulletin.

A native born American member of a party of four business men who often lunched together, took great delight in joking the others on their foreign birth. "It's all very well for you fellows to talk about what we need in this country," he said, "but when you come to think of it you're really only intruders." Not one of you was born here. You're welcome to this country, of course, but you really oughtn't to forget what you owe us natives who open our doors to you." "Maybe," said an Irishman in the crowd thoughtfully. "Maybe. But there's one thing you seem to forget. I came into this country with me face paid an' me clothes on me back. Can you say the same?"—Tit-Bits.

The Man Who Wins

The man who wins is an average man. Not built on any particular plan. Not blessed with any particular luck. Just starchy and earnest and full of pluck. When asked a question he does not "guess"—

He knows and answers "No" or "Yes" When set a task that the rest can't do, He buckles down till he puts it through.

Three things he learned. That the man who tries

Finds favor in his employer's eyes; That it pays to know more than one thing well; That it doesn't pay all he knows to tell.

So he works and waits, till one fine day There's a better job with bigger pay. And the men who shirked whenever they could

Are bossed by the man whose work made good

For the man who wins is the man who works, Who neither labor nor trouble shirks, Who uses his hands, his head, his eyes, The man who wins is the man who tries.

—Charles R. Barrett.

There are three bases, die, plinth and pedestal, the bottom base is 11-0 square by 11-0 in thickness. The die is 4-2x4-6 and has a wreath carved on one side. The whole job is axed, and shows some fine carving requiring artistic workmanship. The statue will be in bronze.

Gov. John A. Johnson, three times elected governor of Minnesota, a candidate for the Democratic nomination for President of the United States in 1908 and looked upon by many throughout the country as the probable Democratic national standard bearer in 1912, died at St. Mary's hospital, Rochester, Minn., at 3:25 o'clock Tuesday morning, following an operation last Wednesday. He was born in St. Peter Minn., July 28, 1861.

Advertiser.—The following, taken from an exchange, is unfortunately too often a truthful remark: "The man who grows up in his native town is regarded as a boy by his elders until he is well started down the declivity of life that ends in a hole. The stranger who comes into a place is more often pushed to the front than the young man who has grown up with the town. This is the reason why so many young men become dissatisfied with their home surroundings and long to cast their lot in other quarters."

Rev. George W. Titus, who has for the greater part of the past year occupied the pulpit of the Coburg St. Christian church, has tendered his resignation to that pastorate and has accepted the charge of the Christian church and congregation at Port William, N. S. His resignation was tendered last week and he will cease his work at the local church late in October. Rev. Mr. Titus' connection with the Coburg street church has been productive of splendid results. The attendance has practically doubled and there has been a most gratifying stimulus in all branches of the church work. While one of the youngest clergymen to be in charge of a city church, Rev. Mr. Titus accepted the responsibilities and carried out the obligations of the position in a most commendable manner.—Sun.

Rub It In
And The Pain Comes Out

Pains and aches will come to every household, and the prudent mother keeps a bottle of Father Morriscy's Liniment on hand to meet them.

Whether it cuts or bruises, burns or frost-bites, chapped hands or chilblains, sprains or sore muscles, back ache, tooth-ache, ear ache, rheumatism, sore throat or pain in the chest,

Father Morriscy's Liniment

It gives prompt relief. It "rubs in" quickly and thoroughly, going right to the seat of the pain. Scarcely a trace of it stays on the skin. That is one reason why it is so effective.

With a bottle of Father Morriscy's Liniment in the house you can save yourself and your family hours and hours of needless pain.

"There's ease in every drop."

King Herring

Of the whole tribe of fishes none contributes so largely to the support of the human race as the herring. It is more extensively preyed upon by marine enemies than probably any other fish. It is absolutely without means of defence. Wherever it is found, in the North Atlantic as well as in the Pacific, it is caught by the hundreds of millions for commerce. For over two centuries the fisheries of the east coast of North America and for a much longer period those of the North Sea have maintained an immense food producing industry, and they show no signs of exhaustion.

If every herring lays 25,000 eggs, a very conservative estimate, and more than two of the progeny escape destruction and spawn, says Hugh M. Smith, United States deputy commissioner of fisheries, in the National Geographic Magazine, more fish will be produced than are necessary for maintaining the schools. The destruction done by man is really insignificant, possibly not five per cent of the annual losses due to whales, porpoises, seals and other mammals, cod, haddock, mackerel, sharks and other fishes, and gulls and other birds and natural enemies they prey on the herring while still in the egg.

Huxley held that the entire annual take of the herring in Europe did not number more fish than a single one of many schools contains. Putting the world's annual production at about 7,495,000,000 pound, with a value of $36,000,000 at first hands, Mr. Smith estimates that the annual destruction of herring by man exceeds 10,000,000 fish or seven fish to every person in the world.

Crowley's Rooster Now

The recent municipal edict which may spell the banishment of the insomnia producing rooster within Washington's city limits, has aroused the inventive genius of a man who has decided a rooster muzzle. His idea is to kill the crow, but save the rooster.

This advocate of a noiseless chanicle believes that if the authorities will sanction the use of the device, which consists of a simple collar of leather with a small cotton pad fastened around the rooster's neck, sufficient tight to throttle the vocal organ, both the community and the rooster can live in peace and quiet.

The corporation counsel has been asked to determine the unique point whether to muzzle roosters is legal.

Shooting Pains in Side, Arms, Back

Prove the Presence of Rheumatic Virus, Which is Cured Quickest by Nerviline-- Rub It In

Pains in the muscles, in the sides, the back, the neck or the chest—they always carry with them great discomfort. If the inflammation is severe the pain will be intense. If allowed to continue they are dangerous. Nothing so quickly cures inflammation and drives away pain as Nerviline. Nerviline does this because it penetrates so deeply. Nerviline is not only powerful but soothing. By relieving congestion it cures pain. It does this always. It cannot fail because it is a true antidote for pain. You can scarcely find anybody that can not tell you things about the pain-curing power of Nerviline. Remember, that there is not an ache or pain that Nerviline will not cure immediately. Nerviline is an anchor of health in every household.

The Country Editor

In the country the editor lives near to nature's heart. He is part and parcel of the community life. Everybody knows him. When he chronicles the arrival of the "bouncing boy" or when he extends condolences to the bereaved family, those interested feel the touch of a friendly hand. He records triumphs and successes in the spirit of participation; his chronicle of vicissitudes and struggles, has the element of personal sympathy.

In its general aspect the country town is not different from the large city. Here are the same divisions and strata of society; the same social and political problems; the same surges of ambition; the same world-old combat of greed and power with chivalry and self-restraint. But in the country town a common bond of sympathy runs through all the elements of social life. In the last analysis the newspaper is a mirror, reflecting the hopes and aspirations, the trials and tribulations of the people it serves. The country community is bound with a closer intimacy and for that reason the attitude of its newspapers is necessarily more provincial.

The environment and the duties of the country editor tend to make him a fair critic and a safe judge of men and measures, for the nature of his work accustoms him to weigh opinions in the even balance. Unlike the lawyer always a special pleader, or other professional men confined by a narrow outlook on a single phase of life, the editor is the impartial recorder and reviewer, seeking only the truth.

The lawyer has an easy road to fame compared with that of the editor. The exigencies of the profession require the lawyer to be a ready and fluent speaker, and his power is an aid to prominence in public affairs.

There is nothing mysterious about the country editor—unless it be the source of his income! The school teacher, the minister, the young college graduate, and numerous other people know; or the town know, or think they know how to run a newspaper better than does the editor. He is not always given the opportunity for training as a public speaker and the nature of his work in a measure unfits him for quick thinking and clear expression before people. His composition is of slower process and is done in the quiet of the sanctum, where only the rhythmic throb of the type are heard.

The degree of success in either case is, of course, largely a matter of ability, but frequently when a community finds itself in position to confer the mark of greatness upon one of its number, it will lay the laureled crown at the feet of the editor—provided the lawyers are all busy, or do not happen to be looking when the call comes.

But, after all, prominence and applause are not always a just measure of the success which men attain; there are victories along "the cool sequestered vale" no less important than the victories achieved in "the maddening crowd's ignoble strife."

Both political parties have recognized the capability of the country editor for official position from the earliest history of the state, and he has always been an active force in legislative councils and in the minor places under the national and state governments.

Then too, there is glory enough in just being an editor. What young journalist has not held up to his flushed and eager eye the editorial page of his first issue and gazed proudly upon the name next preceding the words "editor and proprietor."

When the years roll by, and the struggles of adversity are not always sweetened by the plums of fame and fortune, he may lose the elasticity of youthful pride and vain glory, but through the shadows there beams still the same belief in the loftiness of his profession.

What says C. H. Purdy of Bear River, Warren of Digby County. I was a complete cripple with rheumatism, saw

EMPIRE LINIMENT advertised and tried it, after every known ointment and rheumatic cure. Here I am today sound and well after using only a few bottles. I recommend it to all sufferers. Don't be without it. C. H. PURDY, Bear River, Dec. 27, 1908

The House That Cook Built

This is the house that Cook built. This is the grub that lay in the house that Cook built.

This is the man who gave out on the way and was sent back by Cook to the shack to stay and make free use of the grub that lay in the house that Cook built.

This is the sailor all savage and grim, who replaced the man with a crippled limb and was given a note from Peary that said, "This man is in charge because Cook is dead," and gobbled the grub that lay in the house that Cook built.

This is the sportsman all jaunty and gay, who strolled up into the arctic to play and dropped in at the shack of his friend on the way, and encountered a sailor all savage and grim, who replaced the man with a crippled limb and had a note from Peary which said, "This man is in charge because Cook is dead," and gobbled the grub that lay in the house that Cook built.

This is the owner just back from the pole, who called at his house and found it quite droll that his guest, the sportsman so jaunty and gay who had strolled up into the arctic to play and had stopped at the shack of his friend on the way, should be slave to a sailor all savage and grim, who replaced the man with a crippled limb and showed him a note from Peary and said, "This man is in charge because Cook is dead," and gobbled the grub that lay in the house that Cook built.

It's a pity when sick ones drug the stomach or stimulate the heart and kidneys. That is all wrong! A weak stomach means weak stomach nerves, always. And this is also true of the heart and kidneys. The weak nerves are instead crying out for help. This explains why Dr. Shoop's Restorative is promptly helping Stomach, Heart and Kidney ailments. The Restorative reaches out for the actual cause of these ailments—the falling "inside nerves". Anyway, test the Restorative 48 hours. It won't cure so soon as that, but you will surely know that help is coming. Sold by all Dealers.

Cancer and Civilization

Spread out a map of the world and mark the countries that have progressed furthest in material well-being, in education, government, sanitation and other essentials of modern civilization; those are the countries that suffer most from the cancer plague. In the eastern world not Asia or Africa, but enlightened Europe; in the western not Mexico, Honduras or Panama, but the United States and Canada—these are the countries most grievously afflicted. No savage tribe is absolutely immune, but cancer assaults most violently those peoples that have reached the highest points in civilization. And not only this but apparently it bears heavily on the most sanitary and enlightened parts of these countries. In Europe the nations that suffer most are not Russia or Hungary or Italy or Spain, but Germany, France, Sweden, Norway, and above all, England. In London the greatest mortality is found, not in the East End, but in Harrogate, Marylebone and Chelsea including the city's rich parts. Similarly New York, the Russians Jews and Italians who so largely populate the crowded tenement sections are comparatively immune, whereas the more sanitary parts of the town are favorite breeding places. Where diseases of known contagiousness like tuberculosis, typhoid fever, diphtheria and pneumonia, most abound, cancer seems to find a less strong foothold than in other salubrious sections; as by some mysterious and inexorable law of compensation it finds its way mainly into the homes of the prosperous and enlightened.—Burton J. Hendrick, In McClure's.

Pink Pain Tablets—Dr. Shoop's—stop Headache, womanly pains, any pain anywhere, in 20 minutes sure. Formula on the Sec. box. Ask your Druggist or doctor about this formula—it's free.

Never distrust a man simply because he dresses and acts like a gentleman. He may do that and still be a man. But when you hear him talking about the importance of being a gentleman and the prerogatives of the higher classes and the advantage of birth, look out for him.

Are not immune
The important thing is that there is a noticeable development of the spirit of independence in the party press on both sides, and that the politicians are awakening to the fact. This is one of the hopeful signs of the political situation in this country. Perhaps no greater calamity could befall a party than to allow any group of politicians to harbor the delusion that because they hear the party name they are immune from criticism and are entitled to the thick and thin support of their party press. This is true of all parties, human nature is pretty much the same in all, and constant watchfulness is the price that must be paid for safety. -Sentinel Review, Woodstock.

No Lumber Waste
Some one in the States is calculating on the possibility of producing marketable alcohol from lumber waste. But as everyone in a lumber town knows, there is no such thing as lumber waste. A little of it reaches the incinerator. The rest goes down the river. -Journal, Ottawa.

Pulpwood
Those interested in the protection of the pulpwood industry in this Province will be gratified at the continued independent stand of the Premier, on the question of export duty on the raw material cut on the limits of the Crown. A certain section among the tariff agitators at Washington, dissatisfied at the attitude of Canada toward free pulpwood, introduced a retaliatory measure. This, however, can only injure their own interests. It does not promise to materially affect those of Canada. -Albertan Calgary.

When You Take Cold
One way is to pay no attention to it; at least not until it develops into pneumonia, or bronchitis, or pleurisy. Another way is to ask your doctor about Ayer's Cherry Pectoral. If he says, "The best thing for colds," then take it. Do as he says, anyway.

Ayer's

There is more catarrh in this section of the country than all other diseases put together, and until the last few years was supposed to be incurable. For a great many years doctors pronounced it a local disease and prescribed local remedies, and by constantly failing to with local treatment, pronounced it incurable. Science has proved catarrh to be a constitutional disease and therefore requires constitutional treatment. Halls Catarrh Cure, manufactured by F. J. Cheney & Co., Toledo, Ohio, is the only constitutional cure on the market. It is taken internally in doses from ten drops to a teaspoonful. It acts directly on the blood and mucous surfaces of the system. They offer one hundred dollars for any case it fails to cure. Sent for circulars and testimonials. Address: F. J.
