

CHAMPION SPENDTHRIFT OF SPENDTHRIFT GOVERNMENT HELD UP TO PUBLIC VIEW

Leader of Provincial Opposition Reviews Stewardship of Foster Government, Delving into Its Mismanagement of the People's Affairs—Accuses Minister of Public Works With Wrecking Finances of Province, Twice Bringing That Gentleman to His Feet in Effort to Camouflage the Issue by His Bluster.

Fredericton, March 3.—At the re-opening of the Legislature this afternoon, C. D. Richards, of Fredericton, leader of the Conservative Opposition in the House, resumed the debate on the address. The Opposition leader, in a logical, telling manner reviewed the blunders of a misfit Government, delving deeply into the oratory of extravaganzas conducted by one Hon. Peter Vealot. The points brought out by Mr. Richards and the array of facts presented in substantiation of his claim that the Minister of Public Works was the champion spendthrift of a spendthrift Government, had the honorable member from Blouin on the uneasy seat.

Mr. Richards on the order of the day being called, said that, owing to changes made in the constitution of the House since last session, he had been chosen to act as House leader to the Opposition. The present session was his second as a member, and while last year with some difficulty he had taken part in the budget debate, he felt that the responsibility for the would rest upon him this year would be very much greater. While his duties were important he would endeavor to perform them not only in the interests of the party he represented, but in the interests of the Province as a whole. In this connection he wished to express his appreciation of the kindly reference which had been made to him by the honorable member for Gloucester, who had spoken in a language not his own.

He wished to extend his congratulations to the mover and seconder of the address, particularly to the honorable member for Gloucester, who had spoken in a language not his own. He congratulated those honorable members, he did not wish it to be understood that he was in agreement in any great measure with the sentiments he expressed. The honorable member of the address had referred to the fact that the House had passed away during the recess, he had, by his geniality and close attention to his duties, endeavored himself to all, and had, he thought, spared no effort to do his duty. He was glad to welcome his son as his successor, and perhaps the welcome would be a little more cheerful, he was on his (Richard's) side of the House. Reference had also been made to the absence of Hon. Dr. Baxter and Mr. Jones of Kings. The members of the Opposition realized that they had suffered a great loss in the retirement of Dr. Baxter, and that his place would be difficult to fill. He was sure that all honorable members would agree with him that the House had gained a very severe loss. Mr. Baxter was a good representative, possessed of a well trained legal mind, and was thoroughly qualified to deal with all questions coming before the House. He felt that he was a man well able to take his place alongside of the ablest men who had held seats in the Legislature. While he was not now a member of the House, all recognized that his valuable services were not lost to the Province, and that in his new field of labor his talents would be available for the benefit not only of New Brunswick but for the Dominion as a whole. In regard to Mr. Jones, he was a man of large business experience, who had been long in public life, and was well qualified to deal with public matters. While the party which he had been called upon to lead had lost the two members to whom he had referred, it had gained two others who, for reasons well known, had been unable to occupy their seats at the last session. He had referred to the honorable member for Restigouche, and took great pleasure in welcoming them to the House. These honorable members, at the previous session had been prevented from taking the seats which rightly belonged to them, and the fact that they were present today as the results of a decision of the court was a well merited rebuke to the honorable Premier.

Refer to Vacancies. While on this subject it might not be out of place for him to make reference to the vacancies in the House which had occurred since last session. The vacancy in Northumberland occurred in June and the by-election was called in October. At that election they had the spectacle of three candidates, not one of whom was officially named, endorsed by the Government. Such a condition of affairs certainly does not indicate courage on the part of the administration, nor did it display very much confidence in the administration of public affairs. While there was no official endorsement, it was understood that there was an endorsement of a candidate who was not elected. In addition to Northumberland, vacancies had also occurred in the counties of St. John, Kings and Madawaska. There might be some excuse for the vacancy in Madawaska, but none could be put forward in the cases of St. John and Kings, as the vacancies had occurred in ample time for new representatives to be chosen by the people. He was aware that similar conditions had arisen in the past, and that there had been criticism from his side of the House. The only attempt at justification had been made by the honorable Premier, who, at a justification in St. John county, had stated that the resignation of Mr. Baxter had not been received in time to allow the vacancy to be filled. While in the past seats had been held open by both parties, it was wrong in principle and should not be continued.

Speech From Throne Weak. With regard to the Speech of His Honor, he did not intend to apply the stereotyped statement that it was remarkable for what it did not contain, but he had no hesitation in saying that never before had the House listened to a speech so barren of a constructive program. Apart from a few remarks on co-operative marketing of farm produce, there was absolutely no reference to proposed legislation. A most remarkable feature of the speech was the all-prevailing spirit of depression and pessimism which characterized it from beginning to end. It was certainly a most harrowing picture to paint of conditions in the Province at the present time. It almost seemed as if His Honor was delivering a funeral oration on the present administration, and if he intended to do so, he was certainly doing so in a most effective manner. He believed the people would enjoy an opportunity of taking part in the obsequies.

Refer to the Speech. In His Honor's speech, he said that there were some paragraphs in which he could most heartily concur. The recent Disarmament Conference at Washington was an outstanding event in international politics. After the disastrous experience of European war, he thought that any measure that might be taken to prevent a recurrence of that great calamity would be heartily welcomed by all civilized people. He heartily endorsed the reference which had been made to the Duke of Devonshire and his worthy successor, Lord Byng. The Duke of Devonshire had travelled over Canada, had made himself familiar with its various industries, and on his departure carried with him the best wishes of the people. Lord Byng was no stranger to many Canadians and his association with our boys overseas gave him an intimate knowledge of Canadian manhood. All heartily welcomed him to Canada, as the representative of the sovereign. The speech from the Throne made reference to our basic industries, lumbering and agriculture. He did not profess to be an expert on those matters, but some of his Hon. colleagues, he doubt would deal with the matter more fully. However, he had been struck by the fact that the Government had claimed credit for what had been done in connection with those industries; in fact, the Government was disposed to claim credit for everything.

He was surprised no reference had been made to the fact that the Province had won prizes for fruit at a horticultural show in London, and as he did in the St. John Valley, he knew something of its capabilities in the way of fruit growing, and felt that the development of horticulture was a matter which should engage the attention of the Government. The Government had not taken credit for the prizes won in London, probably because they felt that it was due to the policy inaugurated by their predecessors and carried on by them. In looking over the statement of expenditures, he found that the only current account last year was in the Department of Agriculture, yet the Government was taking credit for having encouraged that industry.

Saskatoon, Sask., March 3.—An exhibit of the street car left the tracks at the foot of the long hill on the Nutana side of the Saskatchewan river at 1 o'clock today, ran off the bridge with twenty passengers, turned a complete somersault and landed on the bank thirty feet below. Three of the passengers were quite seriously injured, the others escaping with bruises. The car collapsed completely as it struck, but the momentum of the fall carried the heavy trucks over the heads of the passengers. Most of the passengers were able to clamber up the bank without assistance. "My brakes would not hold," is the motorman's explanation. "She got away on me."

BRITISH PREMIER'S THREAT TO RESIGN SUSPENDED AT REQUEST OF COLLEAGUES

ATTACK MADE ON ROYAL IRISH CONSTABULARY

London, March 3.—Premier Lloyd George's threat to resign has been suspended at the urgent solicitation of his Unionist colleagues in the Cabinet, according to an authoritative statement tonight, but no justification for its withdrawal is said to exist as yet. Official denial is made that any such time limit has been fixed for receiving assurances of loyalty to the Premier from the adherents of Sir George Younger, the Unionist leader, although it is added that obviously the tension cannot be extended indefinitely. Meanwhile, there is no indication of any move on the part of the Unionist party to depose Younger or to take the reins of the Government. The whole Unionist party has been called, and the general opinion is that the only happening will be that the Unionist Ministers in the Cabinet—Arthur J. Balfour and Austen Chamberlain—may publicly reprove Younger for his tactics, as Lord Birkenhead has already done.

They would be the opinion that it would be impossible to find men to take the engineers' places.

The trap fell just four minutes after court action in his behalf had been completed. Church's head dropped on his chest as he was carried to the gallows and the deputy sheriff had to raise his head to adjust the noose. Sheriff Peters asked the usual question: whether the condemned man had any statement to make, but received no response and the chair carrying the slayer, crashed through the spring trap.

CHAMPION SPENDTHRIFT OF SPENDTHRIFT GOVERNMENT HELD UP TO PUBLIC VIEW

All recognized that there were no more efficient public servants than the teachers and that they were deserving of every support and consideration. The suggestion had been made last year by the hon. member for Westmorland (Magee) that the time had arrived when a general survey might be made of the educational system of the Province. His (Richardson) thought very favorably of the hon. member's suggestion, and believed that before long such a survey would be more done in the way of who felt that more attention should be given to vocational training, while others thought that there should be more done in the way of providing a scholastic education. The present system was not altogether satisfactory and some changes might be made in the public interest. While on the subject of education he wished to refer to the action of the Government during recess in increasing the price of school books. By doing that the Government had added to the burdens of the taxpayers at a time of depression, when it was most severely felt. In some cases the increase was as high as three hundred per cent and while the Government might say that even yet the price charged hardly met the cost of the books, he felt that it was a most inopportune time for making the increase.

Freight Rates

In regard to the subject of freight rates, it would be recalled that at the last session a resolution calling for a reduction had been unanimously adopted by the House. He regretted that the hon. mover of the address had seen fit to introduce party politics while discussing the matter. There had been no politics when the matter was under discussion on a former occasion, and it was wrong to introduce it now. No political party was responsible for the increase as it was a matter over which the Government had no control. He held that the people of the Maritime Provinces should be united on this subject, and he could promise that hon. members on his side of the House would be glad to give their support to any measures which the Government might take with a view of having the matter adjusted.

Ashamed of Health Act

He noticed by His Honor's speech that an amendment was to be made to the Public Health Act, and he also noticed that the subject was not given as much importance as was the case last year. Did that indicate a change of heart on behalf of the administration, or did it show disposition to give heed to public feeling in the Province on the question? He could say that there was a feeling of indignation from one end of the Province to the other with respect to the Public Health Service. People felt that the burden was too heavy and could not be supported any longer. It looked as if the Government had found it necessary to make some effort to curtail the desires of the hon. Minister of Health. He knew of no measure placed upon the statute books for years that had called forth so much public condemnation. He recognized that the matter was an important one, but he did not believe that the act was suitable for this Province. There were too many officials and the expense was out of all proportion to the results achieved. Under the legislation of last session the Government had been compelled to take legal proceedings against several municipalities in order to enforce payment. That was true of the Counties of Sunbury, Queens, Kings, Kent and perhaps Northumberland. He could not say that from a legislative point of view the municipalities were justified in refusing payment but they were probably taking that means to give voice to their indignation against the act. Possibly the Government might take steps to give more control to the municipalities but that would not be sufficient. There should be a thorough reorganization of the act as it stands was unsuitable to the Province of New Brunswick.

Foolhardy Job

Perhaps it might not be out of place for him to refer to the hydro-electric development undertaken by the government, particularly at Musquash in the County of St. John. His Honor's speech referred to it as a most important undertaking and stated that the work was practically completed and that current would soon be available. He had doubts as to whether or not the Government knew of the present time what disposition it was going to make of the current. Last year the Government had expressed round some two million dollars, and was not yet in a position to know what quantity of power would be available and what use was to be made of it.

Negotiations had been going on with the City of St. John for several months, but nothing had been accomplished. The Government was now near where they were when they started. They have been unable to make a proposal to the city that is acceptable. The survey made to the city by the Commission of the Government was not able to generate any certain quantity of power, and unable to guarantee any price at which it could be sold in competition with the New Brunswick Power Company. The expenditure of public money had been made and it was not yet known what

Philadelphia, March 3.—The girl in a white dress, chosen to represent the girl of the modern age. GERMANY CUTS ITS DOMESTIC OBLIGATIONS

Berlin, March 3.—Germany, despite the difficulties of reparations, has managed to pay off one-third of her domestic war debt since the war. She will have raised about 400,000,000 marks of war loans at the end of November, leaving 60,000,000,000 marks in circulation, an achievement which surpasses the debt redemption of any of the victor nations, including the United States. It was due largely to questions whereby war bonds are accepted for taxes and in payment for old war supplies. Plutocrats, promoters and big industrial corporations, who were loaded up with bonds acquired by semi-compulsory subscription during the war, hastened to take advantage thereof, with the result that 15,000,000,000 marks were surrendered for taxation alone without providing for new revenue.

For the Industrious Needlewoman

By ADELAIDE BYRD

A JAPANESE BLOSSOM DESIGN

I remember the exclamations of delight that were made when a friend of mine unveiled a luncheon set which she had bought in Japan. It was an exquisite linen, and was the favorite cherry-blossom design that the Japanese love and we Americans try to adopt. It was on the linen and worked in dark blue. Cannot you see the blue-and-white colors of the dainty luncheon set on it?

I have had designed for you this luncheon set, of which one-third is shown. Next week I shall show two dollars in complete the blue, and I am sure that your Japanese set without the long strip will be just as attractive as the pieces from the band of the cherry blossom.

In tracing the design, you will keep the same center and swing the portion around so that the branches forming the central ring are continuous. The outer edge will help you in this work.

An all-white treatment is always good because it harmonizes with any color scheme in the room or the china. It washes well, too. But the china blue shade of maroonish thread is very fresh and offers a change. Take your choice. Pad the petals and work in either a straight over-and-over stitch across the petals, giving a flat Japanese effect, or in soft Kensington stitch, working in straight long-and-short stitches from the outer edge of each petal.

Fill in the center with French knots in different sizes. The stray points that are so gracefully scattered over the design should be worked in stitches similar to those used in the white blossoms.

Outline the heavy stems with coarse thread and suggest the lines on the branch by outlining. Another effect is good if you use short stem stitches, worked in from the outline. There will not be an entirely solid effect, yet a heavy appearance will be given. The stems showing through the blossoms can be worked in stem stitch to give a good relief.

Pad the edges with darning cotton, using either chain stitches or long irregular ones, and work in flat button-hole stitches the pretty curves. The straight bands connecting the scallops should be worked the same way. Finish the edge by padding the little oval and working in a "cover" effect by using a wide stitch and an outline.

There, the designer is done. It is fascinating, and I am sure that you will welcome the pretty design that I am hoping for your next week's work.

The Lace-Trimmed Hat

EVERY girl wants to freshen up the millinery supply some time during the midsummer, and if she does not wish to buy new hats she can very readily take the trimming of the old ones and refit them so that they will look fresh and new, almost as if they had just been imported from Paris.

I am going to tell you about five pretty hats that were seen on the boulevards of that fashion center. All of them can be copied and every one is trimmed either with lace or fine embroidery.

One, a black cloth, with a moderately wide brim and a high crown, has three rolls of shadow lace covering the crown, the edge of each roll overlapping that of the one below it so that the lace stitching is completely hidden. The lower roll is sewed on first with the long-and-short stitch, then the middle roll in the same manner, while the top roll is gathered into a very narrow heading, that is, a suspension of a head, and attached to the hat's crown about one inch above the top of the crown's top. A fancy black feather is placed directly in front as the only other trimming. You could freshen up your old black hat in this same way, perhaps using a high-standing bunch of flowers instead of the feather.

Hat No. 2 is a medium-sized one of mill straw, having a rather low rounding crown, and a wide brim that flares away from the face. Here blonde, a fine net has been chosen to adorn this model. A wide, white, ribbon is sewed to the very edge of the brim, then the crown and upper brim are covered with it and in the front is an upstanding military looking ornament made of the blonde. This is simply a twelve-inch piece of heavy silk-covered milliner's wire covered with the net and having two very soft curls sewed to each side of it so that they will stand out from the center wire like the fronds of a sea fan. The curls are three inches wide, made of double thickness of net cut on the straight and whipped to the wire so that the stitches will be on the under side. This is held in place at the base of the crown with a flat row of black velvet.

A large hat of black hemp, with the wide brim rolling away from the face and a low crown, looks extremely well with a ruff of white netting laid around the upper brim and headed about halfway up the crown with a box-plaited quilting of the same fluffy material. In the center of the quilting is a band of the narrowest black velvet ribbon that can be bought—just a line of black, but giving an effective touch. A little to the left of the front is laid a big pink satin rose, with a spray of foliage fastened to the stem. That's all. It would take such a short time to remodel a hat in this way, would it not?

The fourth model is a broad-brimmed hat of white straw with a ruffling crown. Point d'esprit is folded around the crown when it meets on the left side a large, multi-looped bow of the same white net. A narrow, white, ribbon is attached to a fine wire and sewed to the edge of the brim, charming, girlish hat and very little trouble to make.

The last model has a thin-of-quantity crown of eyelid embroidery and a rolled brim of natural straw. At the joining point is a soft fold of dark blue satin and on the side a wide ribbon's edge of the same kind is placed with a large knot. The crown is made by cutting a circle of embroidery, several inches wider than the circumference of the crown and gathering it to that line with a draw-thread, sew in place and cover with the fold of satin. This would be a fine way to renovate a hat that has become discolored with the sun or dust.

All of them, you see, are simple in trimming and easy to make, and best of all, they sound the very latest note in the song of summer millinery.

How to Transfer

HERE are suggestions for transferring the pattern before you cut to any material before working. Perhaps the easiest way is the "copy-down" method. This is successful when the material is thin, like muslin, tulle, etc. Pin the sheet of paper and the material together and hold them up against the piece of a window. With a sharp pencil draw on the material the design, which can be easily seen through the paper. In some cases of the design only be given, just the white and the lines of the design will show. The second light design will show.

You may prefer to use a transfer paper. This is done by using a pencil to draw the design on a sheet of paper, then placing the paper on the material and rubbing it over the design with a heavy, smooth-edged object, like a bone or a piece of wood. This will transfer the design to the material. Another method is to use a transfer paper that has been treated with a special solution, which will allow the design to be transferred to the material without the need of a pencil or bone.

Economical Corset Covers

WHAT are you going to do with the lingerie blouses that have gone out of style, or are worn out at the collar and sleeves so that they cannot be patched up to do service again? Throw them in the ragbag or send them to the rummage sale, I suppose.

Why not make them into corset covers that will serve you for several months to come for everyday wear and save the buying of new ones?

To convert a blouse into a corset cover is an easy matter, and can be accomplished by any girl or woman who can sew. All that is necessary is to rip out the sleeves, cut out the neck in a deep rounding curve, leaving one inch of material over the shoulders, and stitch beading with a lace edge around the top of the cover and the armholes, run a ribbon through it, and your corset cover is ready to wear.

If the blouse happens to open at the back, it is best to cut off the bottom or hooks, as the case may be, and close that opening by stitching it firmly on the machine, then making a new opening in the center of the front, but if you wish to make a one-piece slip, in which the blouse forms the back, the opening in the back, and make sure the corset cover at the waist line, make the opening in the cover.

Another thing to be remembered is that if the blouse has a pocket, it is best to cut it off and use the material for another purpose. If the blouse has a pocket, it is best to cut it off and use the material for another purpose. If the blouse has a pocket, it is best to cut it off and use the material for another purpose.

Neckwear From Paris

IF YOU have ever been to Paris, you will understand what I mean when I say, "it came from a little shop." You will also know that what I mean is, it will bear the mark of refinement, and also a personal touch that is not found in these accessories that are found in the larger stores of Paris. For does not "the little shop" spell exclusiveness?

For this reason, I am sure, you will be interested to know just what I mean when I say, "it came from a little shop." You will also know that what I mean is, it will bear the mark of refinement, and also a personal touch that is not found in these accessories that are found in the larger stores of Paris.

The collarless gown is the thing for the weather wear, and nearly all of them are made with a V-shaped neck, rather shallow, but low enough to reveal that pretty part of the throat just below its base. Collars and jackets are, therefore, made accordingly.

ONE of the girls in the graduating class of a fashionable school wore at the class-day exercises a dainty white tulle sash, and with it one of the most charming dresses I have seen. Slips for Table Mats

MANY women prefer to use tulle or cotton slips and dusters on their dining tables, especially during the hot weather, and with this method of decorating the table it is necessary to have a good slip to protect the table from damage by hot dishes.

Some women place their table under the table cloth by them on top and over that the tablecloth is made of a material that will not be damaged by hot dishes. This is a very good idea, and it is one that you should consider. The tablecloth should be made of a material that will not be damaged by hot dishes.

BUILDING GUILDS SHOW REMARKABLE GROWTH

London Guild, Started With Completed 100 Houses, Subsidiary and Allied Trades.

London, March 1.—The Guild movement in the building industry is still in its infancy, in various ways, but it is securely established, but its growth during the last year justifies the claims made by its promoters that it is working toward self-government in the building industry and organization of that industry for services rather than gain.

Mr. Malcolm Sparke, of whose energy and initiative the London Guild of Builders undoubtedly owes its present position, recently told a correspondent of The Christian Science Monitor that the movement is spreading to subsidiary and allied trades. The London Guild has organized a temporary joinery shop and commenced the building of a first-class joinery works and depot at Paddington. This building will have a total floor area of 40,000 square feet and a frontage on the Grand Junction Canal. The machinery will be electrically driven. It is expected that these works will be capable of supplying guild-made woodwork of every description for the Guild building contracts. A further development is a Furniture and Furnishing Guild, which has already commenced operations.

The progress of the guilds movement in London is shown by the increase of its weekly pay bill from £4 in September, 1920, to £4000 in September, 1921. At the latter date there had been more than 100 houses completed in the London district nearly £10,000 worth of plant purchased, and contracts secured amounting to $500,000. These figures are not in themselves so remarkable until it is remembered that the London Guild of Builders started without a penny of capital, from plans prepared by a group of operatives in a room for convenience, in the words of the

Legislators at Washington Rely on a Voice R

Washington, March 3.—Are the new women voters of whom so much was expected sufficiently concerned with Congress?

The situation in Congress is distinctly bad. Every one agrees by women voters do not seem to take much interest. Yet where else could they use their influence to more advantage than in transmuting Congress into a body of provincial, narrow minded men who are largely so because they justly have a low opinion of the voters?

It seems preposterous that certain senators should be upsetting the whole again by making a mockery of America's second attempt to adjust the peace instead of war. Yet what is the protest from women voters, the women voters of whom was expected so much?

That they were largely instrumental through women's organizations in bringing about the conference to be known as the "Conference of Women." There will be no advantage of women's work in the conference, and the delegates themselves. And during the conference, the consciousness of women's determination to obtain tangible results in the peace-making of the women through their bombardment of letters, resolutions and petitions gave America the nerve to stand unflinchingly against their baseless "that shall not fail."

HARVARD BIOLOGIST MEASURING LIFE AND DEATH AS THEY APPEAR IN PLANTS

Experiments Already Made May Throw Light on Certain Phenomena of Injury and Recovery in Human Beings, Which Up to Now Has Not Been Entirely Clear.

Cambridge, Mar. 3.—Harvard biologist has succeeded in measuring for the first time with scientific precision the processes of life and death as they appear in plants, the university announced today. It was said experiments already made may throw light on certain phenomena of injury and recovery in human beings which up to this time has not been entirely clear.

These experiments, made by Prof. W. J. V. Cotterman of the department of botany, show it is possible to study the behavior of living organisms with the same mathematical exactness with which chemists and physicists study that of inanimate matter, thus taking two of the vaguest biological conceptions, life and death, and giving them quantitative significance which can be expressed in figures.

The experiments have been made upon salutarina, one of the common brown algae of the Atlantic coast. It has been found that the resistance of this plant to a current of electricity is an excellent index of its normal condition of vitality.

Resistance Decreases.

When the plant is alive it resists the current. When dead, it does not. If the plant is injured, the electrical resistance at once decreases.

By measuring the exact amount of electrical resistance under various circumstances, the Harvard biologist is able to plot curves which show precisely the effect of various kinds of injuries, the extent of recovery, and the manner in which the plant dies.

For example, the plant is taken from sea water and placed in a solution of pure sodium chloride. It is quickly injured, and if the exposure be sufficiently prolonged, it is killed. During the whole time of exposure to the solution of sodium chloride the electrical resistance falls steadily in a definite curve until the death point is reached, after which there is no further change.

Significant Discovery.

A significant discovery is that if the injury is only slight, the plant fully recovers, its electrical resistance returning to normal afterward, whereas if the injury is sufficiently severe, the plant only partially recovers its vitality, and for the rest of its life has a diminished electrical resistance. An exposure of two hours in the solution of sodium chloride will kill the plant. From an exposure of five minutes there is only partial recovery. Prof. Cotterman has found it possible to predict exactly the extent of recovery from any given injury.

This investigation of fundamental life processes, it was said at Harvard, shows that they appear to obey the laws of chemical dynamics, and illustrates a method of attack which may throw some light upon the underlying mechanism of these processes and assist materially in the analysis and control of life-phenomena. Ultimately it may be possible to predict certain aspects of the behavior of living matter, immensely complicated as it is, in some such exact way as it is now possible to predict the course of the tides, which are also immensely complicated because they depend upon many variables such as the movement of the moon, the temperature, and the configuration of the shores.

WHICH PREMIER GAVE GROUND AT CONFERENCE?

French Papers Gravely Discussing Problem—Condemn April 10, Date for Geneva Parley.

Paris, March 3.—There have been twenty-four hours of furious rejoicing over the "complete accord" established between Lloyd George and Poincare at Boulogne. Now, as Andre Tardieu prints it—France is beginning to ask whether it was Lloyd George who ceded by resigning to the Premier Poincare, or Poincare who capitulated by agreeing to talk with Lloyd George.

The newspapers are now gravely discussing the problem. Also a new thought has arisen in connection with the new date for the Geneva Conference. April 10—according to the French—is a bad date for two reasons. The first is that only the preliminary work can be accomplished before adjournment is taken for the Easter holidays. This much was considered at Boulogne, it appears, but unhappily a number two—which is far more important—was completely overlooked. This is that the conference, when it reconvenes after Easter, may be interrupted in its most important labors by Labor Day—May 1. Geneva has never been healthy on any May 1, and advice reaching Paris are that on next May 1, the Soviet delegation attending the conference will be accorded the greatest demonstration the Red ruler ever received outside Russia. All of which will naturally be annoying.

Railway Men May Strike.

Another disquieting item of rumor from Italy is that the day before the conference convenes the railway men will declare a strike and hold up the trains of all the delegations except that being the Soviet envoys, which will be escorted into the city in triumph. This also would be annoying, and so again agitation is aroused in favor of a change of venue.

On Wednesday at an official luncheon tendered him by the Anglo-American press association Premier Poincare may make a declaration approving the Boulogne meeting and the Geneva programme. It will be his first public appearance since he became Premier and is awaited with the greatest interest.

Meanwhile a strong position of the French press is beginning seriously to attack his policy by saying it is no different from that of Briand and that he has accomplished no more at Boulogne than Briand did at Cannes. For example, Robert De Jouvenel says in the Devoir:

"We said on the day of Briand's downfall the successor of Briand would be Briand. Now Poincare has justified this prophecy and we see now why he tried so hard to replace this statesman. Briand's policy seemed so excellent to him that he wanted to carry it out himself. Therefore we would have had grave to criticize the agreements of Boulogne since they reproduce for the most part the agreements of Cannes which we defended."

Result Purely Negative.

Berlin, March 2.—The agreement between Premier Poincare and Prime Minister Lloyd George to exclude discussion of the treaty of Versailles and reparations at the Geneva Economic Conference is displeasing to the German press, which had been hoping Germany would have an opportunity of seeking a reduction in her indemnities and perhaps a modification of the treaty.

The Allgemeine Zeitung says: "The result of the Boulogne conversation is purely negative. Nothing was done toward a programme of economic rehabilitation of Europe. Poincare simply proposed and Lloyd George accepted."

"Figuring that the discussion took three hours and twenty minutes," says the Morgen Post, "the number of subjects considered allowed Lloyd George and Poincare two minutes and thirty seconds for consideration of each subject—the exact time an upright and well-balanced man requires to cave in and back water."

The Telegraph says: "Naturally the conference loses its meaning if reparations are not to be discussed, since economic reconstruction hinges thereon. Germany's participation now be-

"An Soarstat" Strong For Acceptance Of Irish Treaty

Griffith-Collins Party Launches Election Campaign in Behalf of Pact.

Dublin, March 3.—The organ of the party led by Arthur Griffith and Michael Collins will be called "An Soarstat," which is Irish for "The Free State."

Its first issue will appear today. It will be a weekly publication, edited by the Free State Publicity Committee, and its appearance is regarded as marking the formal launching of the election campaign for acceptance of the Anglo-Irish treaty.

An advance copy of the issue was handed to the Associated Press correspondent today. The leading editorial, signed by Arthur Griffith, begins as follows:

"What the people of Ireland have sought for generations—Edward Bhean (Gaelic for a Free State)—is re-born. It is for them to see that the child of freedom is not strangled in its cradle." The editorial continues: "The Free State is here to make good the claim that the people of Ireland, invested with the power of self-government, are gifted and efficient enough to make Ireland the peer of any nation. . . . The world is watching to see whether we are going to make good our boast, or, by our failure, justify England's old-time contempt that we are incapable people."

The editorial concludes with the declaration that the Free State intends to make what Davis and Rooney strove to make for the Irish people—"an Irish Ireland."

Appealing to the people to support the Free State, the paper summarizes the case for acceptance of the treaty as follows:

"In 1915 you gave your representatives the mandate to secure independence for Ireland. The word republic was used to describe our political objective, not because there was any special preference for that form of government, but because it seemed that word best emphasized the completeness of the independence we desired. For three years we struggled for recognition of our independence by the nations of the world and Britain. We applied to the Paris Peace Conference. Denied a hearing, we sought recognition by the United States; it was not forthcoming. At home, we combined a system of non-cooperation and passive resistance to British rule by the civilian population with active guerrilla defensive warfare by the Irish Republican army."

"At the end of three years England agreed to an armed truce, formally negotiated by plenipotentiaries, and offered the terms now before you in the treaty. The plenipotentiaries influenced by the combination of motives arising from the military and economic aspect of the situation, signed the terms and recommended their acceptance to the Dail Eireann. The Dail, believing the alternative to be a British rule by the civilian population, which would lead you further than ever from realization of your hopes, and believing these are terms on which an honorable peace can be concluded, formally approved the treaty."

"If you decide on its rejection, taking your chance in war or otherwise securing your demands in full, or the alternative of non-cooperation, the terms embodied in Mr. De Valera's alternative document, nothing that has been done by the plenipotentiaries or the Dail is an obstacle to such a course."

"That if he had considered it bound him irrevocably to any particular form of settlement, he never would have agreed to take it."

The paper contains special articles by Desmond Fitzgerald and other prominent Free State party men.

Watched in Vain For Arrival of Rev. Fr. Delorme

Crowd of 500 Waited to See Priest Arrive at Court House.

Montreal, March 3.—A crowd estimated to have numbered five hundred, was disappointed yesterday morning in its efforts to see the Rev. Adelard Delorme as he entered the court house to appear before Judge Ousson on a charge of murdering his half-brother, Raoul Delorme. The report had gone abroad that the priest, would be brought to the city from Bordeaux jail in the prison car, and as the dark colored tram which serves as "Black Maria" neared the court house, the crowd made a general rush in its direction. They were repulsed by a cordon of policemen, but it was some time before they realized that the priest was not among the prisoners in the car. Later it was discovered that the priest had appeared before Judge Ousson and was on his way back to Bordeaux jail in an automobile before the prison car had arrived. The crowd then dispersed.

As had been predicted by the detectives and court officials, the pro-

It is a Urlic Acid Trouble.

It makes its presence known by local aches and pains, inflamed joints and stiff muscles—but cannot be permanently relieved by local applications. Its cause is constitutional and it must have constitutional treatment.

St. John High Won From Fredericton

Now Tie With Provincial Normal School in the Inter-scholastic Basketball Series.

Special to The Standard.
Fredericton, N. B., March 3.—(Special to The Standard.)—The St. John High School team with the Provincial Normal School in the inter-scholastic basketball series by defeating Fredericton High here this afternoon, 47 to 32. The match was well played and hard fought, but the superiority of the visiting team was apparent. At the end of the first period the score stood 35 to 18 in favor of St. John High, with Potter and Fraser for the visitors the heavy scorers. A goal from the centre floor by Davidson was a feature. Fredericton was very ragged in this period. In the second period Fredericton High sprang a surprise by scoring over the strong St. John team, but being unable to overcome the great lead of the first period. Fraser was so covered by Hickson that he could not score. St. John High excelled in combination. The play of Fredericton High was the best that they have shown this season. The teams were: Fredericton High, St. John High, Forwards.

When Jim Robinson Batted The Homer

Pitcher for St. John Nationals in 1887 Presented With Bat and Made Good.

The following article from the Toronto Telegram will no doubt prove interesting to the baseball followers of the St. John Nationals in 1887, and was written by a former St. John man:

(By Percy Robinson.)

There has been much talk recently over one of Babe Ruth's home run drives. From the home plate, to the spot where the ball connected with mother earth is declared to have been over 470 feet. This is no conceivable feat, but it probably stands nowhere near the record. Drives of this length must be comparatively common.

The Philadelphia Sporting Times, over thirty years ago, records a hit by a Southern League player which put the "bamboo" performance, if it be taken as a sample of his best, completely in the shade. "One of the long home run drives of Cartwright, the New Orleans slugger, has been measured," said that paper. "The ball fell in a swampy place, and from the spot where it lay to the home plate was found to be 187 yards six inches." This is nearly 100 feet further than Ruth's smash. Cartwright afterwards played first base for Washington. Someone may have been spoofing the Sporting Times, but drives of over 500 feet cannot have been infrequent in baseball, even before the days of the lively ball.

Cricket and Baseball.

It is conceded that a baseball can be hit farther and thrown farther than a cricket ball. A cricket ball thrown 120 yards is pretty near a record. W. A. Henry, of Halifax, in his time one of Canada's greatest cricketers, has a record of 119 yards six inches and it was considered noteworthy years ago that A. P. Cotterill, an English fast bowler, could throw 120 yards. But such old-time baseball players as Ed. Williamson, of Chicago, and Ed. Crane, of Toronto, and New York, could get nearer 120 yards.

As to long drives at cricket, F. N. Thurston, of Middlesex, is credited with having hit the pavilion, 187 yards (507 feet) from the wicket. It would be interesting to know what distance George Lyon, of Toronto, and W. A. Henry, of Halifax, who, of Toronto, were the fastest run-getters and greatest swipers in Canadian cricket, achieved in some of their big hits.

In every locality where baseball is played there is a tradition of phenomenal drives by favorite sons, but at the time those occurred no one had sufficient consideration for posterity to set tamely to work and measure them. There is one story of a tremendous swip, however, which, if it is accompanied by no affidavits, is well corroborated by circumstances.

Some Clue.

In 1887 a big fellow named Jim Robinson pitched for the Nationals, of St. John, N. B., in a game against the Halifax Societies in the last named city. On coming to the plate his first time up Robinson, who was very popular in Halifax, was presented with a bat by some of his admirers. He responded by sending the ball over the outfield, and very much in a skyward direction.

According to other members of the team who took the story for years afterwards, Robinson was a very slow runner, ambled to first base, and then stood on the sack and watched while the entire Halifax outfield was careered towards a distant point where it might be supposed it would finally descend. The St. John players, pitcher's naive actions, kept falling to him to go on, and he gently chuckled to second and took another rest. It should be explained that the game was being played on the polo grounds on the enclosure of a half-mile running track, and there were no bleachers or other obstacles. Robinson in very leisurely fashion made for third and home, and when he took his seat on the players' bench the ball had not been returned to the field.

There are today at least two living witnesses of this old-time sporting event, James Power, sporting editor of the Acadian Recorder, Halifax, and

Robinson Case Complicated One

Alderman Rubenstein of Skating Assn. Refused to Commit Himself Regarding Lady Skater.

Montreal, March 3.—In connection with the case of Gladys Robinson, the well known Toronto lady skater, who defied the Maritime Provinces amateur skating authorities in St. John, N. B., by giving exhibitions against their desire, Alderman Rubenstein, honorary secretary of the Amateur Skating Association of Canada, when asked what would be done, by the officials of the skating association, refused to commit himself. He said: "Judging by the various and varying newspaper reports the case seems to be a very complicated one, and I must be excused from expressing an opinion until I hear the official reports from our representatives in the Lower Province. As the case involves a lady, we will put the 'bamboo' carefully, the alderman gallantly added.

AROOSTOOK JCT.

Aroostook Jct., Feb. 28.—An important event in the social life of Aroostook Jct. was inaugurated, Wednesday, Feb. 22, when the Empress Rebekah Lodge of the I.O.O.F., was instituted at Aroostook by Mrs. M. H. Baker of Brunswick Lodge, No. 44 of Woodstock, N. B., accompanied by twenty-five members. The degree was conferred on 34 Charter Members, including 3 from Four Falls. The ceremonies commenced at 8 p. m. After conferring the degree a recess of one hour was given and lunch provided by the lady members, after which the election of officers and installation took place. The following officers were appointed: N. G. Mrs. W. Miller; V. G. Mrs. N. C. Turner; Fin. Sec. Mrs. H. Burt; Rec. Sec. Mrs. L. C. True; Treas. Mrs. J. L. Montell. After the installation of officers, a very able address was given by Mrs. C. A. Lindow, of Presque Isle, Me., Past President of Woodstock Lodge, whose sister, Mrs. Ellsworth, Past President of St. John, N. B., also gave an effective speech on Goodwillship. Bro. Stevens, a veteran of the Brunswick Lodge, also gave great pleasure to the members present, and an extremely successful installation came to an end about 4 a. m.

Mrs. C. S. Gains was called to her home at Lawrence Station on Tuesday last on account of the serious illness of her father, Mr. Fred. Dunn, who has to undergo a serious operation.

Mr. Aubrey Gains returned from Boston on Friday where he had been called on account of the death of his brother, Fred Gains, Mr. C. S. Gains being unable to leave Aroostook.

Mrs. W. F. Dea, who underwent an operation at Fort Fairfield recently, and who was recovering, has had a relapse owing to her weakened condition and is in a very serious state. Her father and mother, Mr. and Mrs. Elias Ketch of Bristol, her sister, Mrs. Dinae of Bristol, and brother, J. Ketch of Houlton, Me., were sent for, and two doctors are in attendance. Small hopes are entertained for Mrs. Dea's recovery, but it was reported yesterday, Sunday, that there was a slight improvement, and her friends sincerely hope she will recover.

Bruce Wagh of Five Fingers, Restigouche County, has completed his lumbering operation and returned home to Aroostook.

Mrs. G. McNally has returned home from Amherst, N. E.

Miss Thelma Scott of Andover, has organized a music class at Aroostook, and has 12 members.

Miss Zula Farnham and Miss Pearl Lawrence spent the week-end at Aroostook.

Mrs. Paul Wakem has been sick, but is much better.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Kelly and Mr. and Mrs. M. Holmes were guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. R. D. White on Sunday evening.

Thomas Bell, merchant of St. John, N. B., who played first base and captained the Nationals, in the calm light of thirty-five years after, these "rum-petent" judges may not recall it as such a wonderful performance, but at the time, and for a long time afterwards, it was talked of as a feat extraordinary.

Fast College Players To Meet Trojans

Trojans Expect to Take Scalp of Dalhousie Tiger in Tonight's Game — Outlaws and Y. M. C. A. Will Feature Fast Preliminary.

The Dalhousie University basketball squad will arrive in the city this morning, all ready for their game with the Trojans tonight.

The "Dal" players are one of the leading teams in the Halifax City League, and are eager to retrieve their defeat at the hands of U. N. B. in a close game played in Fredericton last evening.

The Trojans who have an enviable record in the games they have played with outside teams this season, are all for adding the scalp of the older Tiger to their string.

An interesting game will be featured as a preliminary between the Y. M. C. A. Outlaws and the Y. M. C. A. Intermediates, two of the fastest in the Intermediate section of the league, but who have never met before this season.

WORLD'S RECORD.

Chicago, March 3.—The Illinois Athletic Club swimming team set a world's swimming record in the Centennial A. A. U. championships here last night, when it covered 400 yards in a sixty yard tank in 3.42.5, clipping 1.5 of a second from the former record.

Thistles Will Play Carleton Next Week

The match which was to have been played between the Carleton and Thistle Curling Clubs last night was called off by the West 84th curlers and was postponed until the first of the week.

The Carleton curlers played Hampton Wednesday night and the St. Andrew's Club Thursday night. In view of the fact that they anticipated playing Moncton today, the general consensus of opinion amongst the club was that there was too much of the pace that kills.

London, Mar. 3.—Victims from the United States, Canada and many other parts of the globe are among those said to have "fallen for" the silver song of George Hunt, the Englishman who out-foxed Ponsi, and whose trial on a charge of not having accounted for $17,000,000 invested with him, opened yesterday. Hunt merely advertised he had a successful system for beating the races and he promised to pay $85 a week interest on $500 investments.

The prosecutor told the court the only office Hunt had was the bathroom in his home and the only system was the old one of paying interest out of capital. Nevertheless Hunt was able to operate from 1915 until the latter part of 1921. So plausible was his tongue and so ready his interest payments that professional bookmakers were among those who invested money with him. It was one of the latter who brought charges and caused the investigation that led to Hunt's arrest.

DECADE OF RAIL ADVANCE OF

Tonnage Handled and Progress in Traffic Service Progress in Railway Development

"If mileage is to be taken as a measure of progress in railway development in a country like Canada," says D. B. Hanna, President of Canadian National Railways, in "Canadian Monthly," "then an advance of 64 per cent, has been made in the last 10 years."

To manage handled and passenger car-miles are measures of progress in traffic sense, but the length of haul and journey must be considered as well as the mileage operated to get the real gauge of the density of traffic. Earnings and expenses must be considered. Earnings are affected by increases in freight rates and passenger fares; operating expenses by increases in wages and the cost of material. These in turn are all affected in an economic sense by the varying purchasing power of the dollar. Comparison of all these items, and some others, is however, necessarily a part of any analysis of the situation. Some comparative figures for 1911 and 1921 follow. This is only a nine-year period. The changing conditions of 1921 would make that an unrepresentative year for comparison, and of course it would be impossible to get returns for some time yet covering this year.

Summary of Canadian Statistics.

Item	1911	1920
Mileage	25,400	39,190
Tons Handled	79,854,863	127,838,455
Pass. Carried	37,097,718	51,306,071
Ops. Expend.	$118,731,494	$401,938,357
Net Earn.	$7,688,709	$2,808,000
Pay Roll	74,617,738	290,610,611
Oper. Ratio	69.4	97.179

From the above table those who wish to deduct some many points out that the railway were better off in 1911 than they are today, measured by the operating ratio. But this conclusion would ignore many features of the case which are important from the point of view of the national welfare. Nor should the very much lower percentage of the earnings available for a return on capital be regarded as a situation peculiar to Canada. In United States the return on capital which as recently as 1916 was 4.1 per cent, fell to 3.2 one-hundredths of 1 per cent in 1920.

The increase in Canadian railway mileage since 1911, or seven years before the formation of the Canadian National Railways has been distributed among the provinces of Canada as follows:

Prince Edward Island	8.64
Nova Scotia	77.78
New Brunswick	399.55
Quebec	278.28
Ontario	2,878.15
Manitoba	728.50
Saskatchewan	3,027.72
Alberta	2,791.09
British Columbia	2,494.11
	13,061.69

The statistics have been observed by the large systems as shown below:

Canadian Pacific	1,267.17
Can. Nat. Ry.—Canadian Northern, Grand Trunk Pacific, and Transcontinental	1,114.00
Ontario	1,680.52

It is seen from the two tables above that of the new mileage put into operation since 1911 63.3 per cent is in the Western Provinces, and 66.6 per cent of the total increase has gone into what is now Canadian National Railways. Therefore, on the lines now included in that system has fallen the greater part of the task of developing traffic for the new mileage. In the period under review there was four and a half years of actual world warfare, from which recovery to normal conditions has not yet taken place. That six years development has taken place in this time four periods is remarkable when it is considered that it includes only 3 1/2 years of pre-war development.

The Canadian National Railways as a system dated from the time the management of the Canadian Government Railways was placed under the control of the Board of Directors which the Government appointed for the Canadian Northern Railway Company. This was done in September, 1912, after the completion of the acquisition proceedings for the acquisition of the C.N.R.'s capital stock. The management of the Grand Trunk Pacific was not taken over by the Canadian National Railways until 1st October, 1920.

Of it, of course, impossible to say what greater progress could have been made since 1911 if the three railway systems had been under the management since that date. In fact, the feature, however, we can compare the traffic handled in 1911 by the three railways with that in 1920, which will give some idea of the development of the lines now included in the National System.

Death of Highly Respected Citizen

William Shaw Passed Away Yesterday.—Prominent in Business and Political Circles.

In the death of William Shaw which took place yesterday afternoon at his home, Waterloo street, there passed from active life one of the best known and most highly respected citizens of the city.

Mr. Shaw was born in the Parish of St. John, in the provincial district of the county of York, on September 19, 1858, and was therefore in the 63rd year of his age, in 1891 he moved into the city and in 1892 he was elected to the common council he was chairman of the Board of Public Works.

In the year 1898 he was persuaded to offer as a candidate for alderman for Wellington Ward and was elected. He served in this capacity for 10 years retiring in 1908. During the greater part of his period of service in the common council he was chairman of the Board of Public Works.

In 1890 he was offered and accepted a place on the Legislative Council for St. John, in the provincial election of that year. He was elected and served as a member of the local House until the year 1901, when the ticket was broken by a very close vote, the ticket that year being, William Shaw, George V. McInerney, W. Frank Hainaway and J. B. Wilson.

The popularity of Mr. Shaw is shown in the fact that at every election which he ran he stood at the head of his party and it was a matter of regret to all when he decided to quit the political arena.

Mr. Shaw was a member of the Knights of Pythias, in religion he was a Methodist, a member of St. John's street church, and for many years one of its active workers. Of late years he has not been able to take a very active part in community matters but never lost interest in them and any good cause could count on having his support.

He is survived by one daughter, Nellie, at home; four sons, William A., in the business with him; Edwin R., who conducts a hardware store at Sydney, N. B.; Leonard D., of Montreal; and Harrison B., of Washington D. C.; one grandchild and one great grandchild.

John E. Wilson, who was for many years associated with Mr. Shaw in the party, said last evening: "The passing of William Shaw is a distinct loss to the community. He was a man whose word was his bond; a faithful friend, a true and loyal citizen, and a most valuable asset to the community."

Entertainment Was Greatly Enjoyed

C. G. I. T. Girls of Main St. Baptist Church Presented Pageant, "Every Girl" to Large Audience.

The C. G. I. T. girls of the Main street Baptist Church gave a very successful entertainment last evening, presenting the pageant "Every Girl" before an audience which taxed the capacity of the vestry.

The camp scene, showing the girls at play, was especially good. The evening singing around the fire before retiring made a big hit.

The character of the story, however, is of paramount importance to the prospective customers. In this respect, Mr. Creary makes a clean-cut declaration of policy, which carries with it the assurance that men and women who buy at Creary's will be well satisfied with the transactions in which they take part.

His widow, Charlotte D., was sworn as executor of the last will of Wm. J. Macdonald, worth $600 and personalty $2,500. Dr. J. B. M. Baxter, K. C., was proctor.

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. Pugsley, accompanied by Lieut.-Colonel Alex. McMillan, J. E. O. A. D. C., will leave on Monday for Ottawa to attend the opening of the Federal Parliament.
