LITERATURE

BY UNCLE'S SON.

If I do not marry according to my uncle's wishes I receive only the interest of the property until I am twenty-five. I repeated mechanically, as the lawyer read my father's will in his measured tones.

Do you, yourself, Claire, and hear the handsome provision your father has made for you, whispered my uncle. And do stop this everlasting crying, and try to look a trifle animated.

I diverted as if I had received a blow under these hard words.

The guests were scarcely gone when I was summoned to the library.

You are eighteen, I believe, Claire, began Uncle Harding.

Yes, understood the conditions of your father's will, grimly.

I bowed again.

With it is no use to mince matters—I have a husband picked out for you.

Indeed! You might have spoken to the clergyman to perform the ceremony as soon as he had finished the burial service, I retorted, bitterly.

A dull red leaped to his thin face, as he said, coldly:

We will not discuss the question, if you please. My son will finish his European tour by the time you will enter society.

He rose as if tired of the interview. My regard came short and hard, as I staided my tongue.

Then I am to have no voice in the matter, sir? It is for your good, and—his, he said, slowly.

I had never seen my Cousin Marcus since I was a child, but my recollections of him were not pleasant. He was ten years my senior, and distinguished to me, because it made me "smart," he said.

And a good many whippings I got on account of this very smartness, in consequence.

I don't marry any one I hate, if my uncle does say I shall, I sobbed, as I gained my chamber.

I fell asleep last evening after exhaustion, and awoke quite happy the next morning. A year was to elapse before the forest wedding began, and no one could tell what might happen in that time.

It is no use to borrow trouble, especially as I have a heavy burden already. I thought as the tears fell fast.

Marcus will be here to-night, Claire, so look your prettiest, said my uncle, about fifteen months after my father's death.

As for marrying Mark Harding or any one else I hate, I exclaimed, as I gained my room.

It is no use to fret, Claire Stuart; perhaps his mightiness won't stoop to look at your pretty face. I won't look like a fright any more.

So I put on my most becoming dress, pink tissue with snowy Swiss overskirt, and waited nervously for the summons to the parlor. It came at last, and I went with a beating heart and cheeks aflame.

A pleasant-faced gentleman standing by the window turned as I entered. His puzzled look gave place to an admiring recognition, as he came forward and took my hand, saying in a musical voice:

It must be my Cousin Claire!

And you are Mark! I exclaimed, involuntarily.

The same old Mark who teased you so unmercifully, he laughed, for my sake, you fair warning that I haven't forgotten that naughty trick, even yet. I claim a cousin's privilege after my long absence, he went on, smiling, as his mustache brushed my cheek.

Half angry, and wholly confused, I stammered painfully, as he led me to a seat and leaned over my chair.

Where is your pet Rocinante? he asked, his eyes on my shining face. She isn't dead, I hope?

No. She is old and gray, but she hasn't forgotten how to use her claws when she is teased, I retorted, laughingly.

You naughty little cousin to remember my best qualities and forget the innumerable good ones, he exclaimed, playfully pinching my cheek.

Wait till I see the last-named ones, I answered, saucily.

He made a laughing reply, and before I was aware, I was laughing merrily with him. I was going to hate. But somehow I could not hate this merry debonair gentleman, with his flashing eyes and pleasant ways.

I thought it all over after I retired, and was heartily ashamed of myself. All the heroines I had ever read of—and their names was legion—would have hated him with the concentrated hate of a dozen like your humble servant. I wasn't a heroine, to be sure, but I would be cool and laugity, and let Mark Harding know I wasn't going to drop into his arms like a ripe peach, I thought, and then went to sleep, and never once thought of my resolution for several days.

As the summer advanced the old house was filled with company, but somehow I was happier when Cousin Mark was the only guest. I never thought Lily Westbrook was so bold and forward until then. She openly admired Mark, and wore her prettiest dresses and most bewitching ways. Then Miss Burns was even worse than Lily.

Miss was a sparkling, little blonde, with long floppy hair filled with shimmering lights, and her jolly-colored eyes were soft and beseeching as a child's. She appeared quite fond of me, and was full of Mark's praises, but they didn't sound a bit pleasant to me, although I scolded myself soundly for it.

Lily talked poetry and travels, and Miss played the guitar and sang passionate love ballads. I could not make up my mind, while he did like best, although I watched him closely.

He is my cousin, and I feel a cousinly regard for him, I told myself frequently.

We were having an impromptu picnic one lovely golden afternoon, when, becoming weary of the gossip conversation, I wandered down where the grand old woods grew close to the musical river.

I had been there but a few moments when I heard voices, and peeping from my leafy bower, I saw Lily Westbrook and Cousin Mark conversing earnestly.

Are you quite sure? he asked, eagerly, and there was a strained set look on his face.

Certainly. You know she was here several weeks. It does not take long to fall in love—sometimes, softly.

They walked away as I stole quietly out of my hiding-place. In doing so, however, my foot slipped, and I was precipitated into the water. My head struck a rock as I fell, and I knew no more until I felt Mark's arms around me, and heard the cry of—"My darling, my darling!"

I was conscious of being borne rapidly away, and then all was dark around me.

It was three weeks before I left my room, but Mark never came near me. He sent me flowers and fruit, and I could hear him whispering the nurse about me, but I did not see him until I was able to leave my room, and then he avoided me. His charming pleasant ways were gone, and he was haughty and stern.

And as I turned to go, I felt a sympathy and appreciation, I would say, a strange sympathy on his face, and sometimes he would be absent for days. Hugo was an old play-fellow of mine, and he was engaged to one of my dearest friends, so we always went play to talk about.

The summer guests were gone at last, and Mark and Lily were left alone at home. I was quite sure they were engaged, and many were the bitter tears I shed. Yes, it had come to that at last. Pride could not keep me up when I was alone, although I would have died before I would have owned it.

It was a dreary rainy day and the wind sobbed mournfully as it whirled the changing leaves and rain. I had wandered into the library, and fallen asleep over a book of poems, when I was aroused by hearing Mark's voice. My heart throbbbed heavily, for I thought he was far away.

Yes, he was, he said, bitterly. "I hate you, I love her better than life."

I think it very improbable that Claire would become engaged clandestinely, but I can easily see certain, touching the bell as he spoke.

For Heaven's sake, father, don't say anything about it, exclaimed Mark, his face flushed with excitement.

If the shades to keep it secret a while, she is all liberty to do so.

I am her legal guardian, was the calm reply, and I shall positively forbid it.

I will leave the house if you do, cried my cousin.

You forget Claire is very wealthy, and unless my control until she is twenty-five, or, I might insist on her marriage coolly. Now I shall not give it unless she marries you!

I would die a thousand deaths before I would marry for money, or take an unwilling bride, Mark burst out, impetuously. Money is far enough from my thoughts, thank Heaven!

When you reach my age, you will lose your romantic notions, and find that the money you scorn now is the end and aim of existence, with a score of other things.

Send Miss Claire here, his lady, as the servant answered the bell.

In a few moments she returned, saying I was not to be found.

Very well, said my uncle, quietly, as he left the room.

Mark bowed his handsome head and groaned bitterly. Now was my time to leave, I thought, and I stole noiselessly to the door. Just as I turned the knob, Mark raised his head, and our eyes met. In an instant his arms were around me, and I was crying.

"I heard it all, and I'm not engaged!"

It was sometime before we could talk coherently, and then Mark said Lily Westbrook told him I was betrothed to Hugo Bernly.

Well, you all know the rest, but I will say, there is not a happier couple in the world than Mr. and Mrs. Marcus Harding.

KATIE'S EXPERIMENT.

My most lovely girl! said I, the sad case is just this: It costs more money to marry than I can afford just now. I wish I had more, but I have not, and you and I must put up with the disagreeable circumstances just as we find them for the present.

She looked at me and sighed.

Well, well, I'm sorry, but I will stand by you, dear boy, until you are tired of me, or get rich.

It may not be so long, after all, I replied. As for being tired of you, that is absurd, my dear, too silly. Don't say so again, it makes me miserable.

You told me you were going to C—. Why, Dick?

Business for the infernal firm. Jewels to carry to a lady whose daughter is about to do what you will one of these blessed days—marry.

And don't you wish to go?

No; frankly, Katie. I'm strongly impressed with the safety of home, when I go about with some thousands of dollars in my care. Our man was robbed last time, you know, and got his discharge.

He was above you?

Yes, he had three thousand a year, and I have just half.

You are as good a judge of jewels and setting as he?

Yes, quite—perhaps a better.

Then carry these safely, and they will give you his place. Then we can be married—if you like.

I plucked up. I confess I had been despairing. Katie had always been bright and cheerful, but I had been downcast, in consequence of my failure to attain the position I wished, and the consequent deferring of my marriage to her.

I hastened my departure; I took my jewels, eight diamonds and one large ruby, and carried them to my lodgings. On my way I called and got a handling of leather, the handle of which was hollow. Tied to this I thrust the gem-stones, and my plan before I left for the town, and I noticed the examined everything carefully, and she asked me my intentions regarding my movements with particular minuteness. This I did not at first notice, nor, in fact, until two days after.

The jewels are in the handle, did you say, Dick? How did you get them in there?

O, by merely unscrewing the rivet, in this way; that exposes the leather tube, and the gems go in easily.

You will look at them occasionally?

O no, I can feel them. That is the advantage of my plan; and they are constantly under my touch, and I need never expose them in order to assure myself that they are there.

And what is in the bag itself?

Nothing but rubbish; paper, rags, a book or two.

I suppose the firm would value your services all the more, if you were attacked, or if an attempt was made to rob you?

Certainly; then I should have all manner of praise and commendation. Then I should be rich, and I could have all I wished, and both of us would then get the benefit of our misfortune.

When do you go—what hour?

At five tonight. It is now three. You see I take an unfrequent route. It is disagreeable to meet people when you have a secret.

Shall I come to see you off?

Do, Katie. I will have something to think of. I hope I may get through safely, but I feel anxious.

She looked at me, shook her head, laughed, and went away.

At five she was there, blooming and smiling as usual, and I imagined she was a little nervous; but that might have been because I was going away.

As the train left she stood waving her handkerchief, and I carried the sight of her handsome face all the rest of journey.

I had told her everything respecting my plans, I was to stop at Warwick, a station half way to my destination, and go on from there in the morning at four o'clock. I was to stop at a hotel. I noticed that she seemed to pay the most extraordinary attention to what I said, and even asked me over and over again in order to impress it upon her mind. I put my bag by my side, and passed my arm through the handle, and composed myself to my ride. Seven hours later I arrived at my stopping place.

I looked about me before dismounting from the cars. I could see no suspicious person. All were ordinary travellers, none wore muffled, none eyed me suspiciously, and no one followed me.

I went to a retired hotel, carrying my travelling bag, and the one containing the diamonds. I called for my room, and after supper I prepared to retire. My apartment contained ordinary furniture. I examined the doors, and placed a pistol by the side of my bed, so that I might be ready at a moment's warning. I fell asleep, with my precious bag beneath the clothing, and my arm still through the handle.

I was partially aroused by hearing a heavy church clock in the neighborhood strike twelve. I just remembered it and no more. I next felt a bandage passed over my head, mouth, and nostrils, and snuff-d a stifling perfume then became unconscious.

I awoke at daylight. I was in agony. My head was fit to burst. I looked about with half opened eyes. I was alone; the furniture was undisturbed, the door was closed and locked. I smelt ether. I instantly looked for my bag. It was gone.

I cannot explain my distress. I flew to the door, in order to arouse the house, when I was met by the porter, who, without noticing my distracted condition, handed me a telegram, which had at that moment arrived. I opened it with trembling fingers. It was signed by the firm.

"HENRY,—If you should meet any disaster, go to C—, direct, and await instructions at the Adelphi Hotel.

S— & Co."

The telegram was correct, the stamped paper bore the mark of the proper officer, and was regular. I was puzzled, but I had no option. I asked for the train. I was in time. I had not a moment to spare. I called the landlord, and told him that I had been robbed, or that a robbery had been attempted, and bade him inform the police, and have all efforts made for the recovery of the value. I didn't say what it contained; for I felt positive that the robbers could not have known of my possession of the diamonds, and I did not care to advertise them and their hiding place. I felt that theft was merely by the tempting appearance of the article.

In a perfect torture of mind, I went on to C—. I was nearly crazy. I was not exactly culpable, yet I bitterly reproached myself for having stayed at Warwick at all. I have gone on. I arrived at C— at noon. I was nearly sick. I went to the Adelphi Hotel. The clerk told me that a lady awaited me in the drawing room.

She took the lady. However, I went and peeped in. It was Katie. She was pale. She heard my step, and she jumped to her feet.

O Henry! Henry! did you meet with a disaster? I could not speak. I bowed my head. I saw utter ruin for her and myself in what had happened.

But here are your diamonds!

She produced my bag, and thrust the handle into my hand. I was stupefied, tongue-tied, astounded. I almost fainted with the rush of thoughts. She took my hand and led me to a seat.

I was afraid, Henry dear. I knew you were running a risk, and I don't know what made me do it. But I bought another bag, like yours, then I stuffed the handle full of beads, and exchanged them while we were waiting for the cars to start; then I telegraphed in the name of the firm to Warwick, and then I came direct to C—; and here are the diamonds.

I was overpowered. I could not speak. What a girl this was for a wife! The robbery appeared in all the papers, together with a large amount of praise for the shrewdness of the clerk. Katie and I kept the secret; and the firm, full of admiration for me, at once promoted me, and Katie and I were married in a month. I did a service for them two weeks after, which was as valuable as the one Katie did; so we shall never tell what we know.

Mr. P. Dewdrop kept a barber shop. He was of an inventive turn, and it occurred to him one day that he might construct a shampooing machine which would perform the work more quickly and effectively than the human hand. So he fixed up a contrivance with a kind of an iron stand, from which two jointed arms with steel claws protruded. These claws were covered with champion skin, and the arms were moved in any direction by a series of cranks and levers. Steam-power was obtained by means of pulleys from the factory next door, and Mr. Dewdrop, being all ready, invited a couple of friends in to see how the concern worked. Mr. Dewdrop thought he would take the first shampoo himself. So he instructed the shop boy how to start the machine, and then, seating himself in a chair, he placed a claw on each side of his head, and told the boy to begin. We never knew how it was exactly, but that boy must have pulled the throttle-valve out about a foot too far; for in about a minute the steel claws clutched Dewdrop's head so that he thought his skull would crack, and the machine began to rear and plunge and tear around the room, lifting Dewdrop from his chair with a jerk, and braining one of the bystanders with one leg, while it jammed the other leg through a looking-glass and scooped Dewdrop around among the jugs of hair dye and beat him against the ceiling and scudded him into the wash-

VISIBLE SPEECH.

A new Method of Teaching Deaf Mutes to Talk.

A most interesting lecture was delivered at the Boston Institute of Technology, a few evenings since by Prof. A. Graham Bell, and presenting an unusual subject. The science is one which it was proved will enable persons to pronounce at sight with perfect accuracy the words of any language whatever, when written in the characters of this alphabet. These characters represent positions of the lips, tongue and throat. Every sound is produced in a mechanical way by a combination of these positions. These positions being learned, and presented to the eye of the experimenter placing his vocal organs in the positions indicated by the character, will inevitably give vent to the precise sound which that character indicates, and no other. A language, even the German or Chinese, being written in these characters can be pronounced with perfect accuracy by one who understands these characters, even though he never in his life heard a word of either of those languages, and did not understand a word of what he was saying. The application of this system of alphabetic to learning languages was shown, and it was said of the Chinese language that it would be especially valuable to the missionaries in China. The Chinese language is exceedingly difficult to learn; the learned natives pass years in learning to read, only a few thousands of the hundreds of millions of people in China are ever able to read; teach them these characters, and a Chinaman will read his own language in six months perfectly. This would lead to the abolition of the Chinese system in the end and the adoption of a new one. Already a missionary in China has taken up the subject, and is making arrangements to teach his flock, what otherwise they could not learn, to read and write the Scriptures in their own tongue. The system is now being taught at the Boston Institute, in one of the departments at 13 Beacon street.

This system, however important it may be to come in its application to all the languages of the earth, was originated only ten years ago by Prof. A. Melville Bell, for the purpose of teaching the dumb to speak. There are only ten elementary symbols, and by the combination of these, all sounds are represented. Before entering into an explanation of his system in detail, Mr. Bell proposed to give some practical results. Deaf mutes, he said, are only dumb because no sounds have entered the closed portals of their ears. The reason they do not talk is because they do not know what to do to form the sounds. There are now between thirty and forty teachers of the deaf and dumb by this method in Massachusetts.

Mr. Bell introduced to the audience Mr. Goldsmith, one of his pupils; who was born deaf and dumb, and who had received only thirty or forty lessons in this system. Mr. Goldsmith then read the following lines: "A short time ago I was not able to speak; you see how I can talk now. I hope I may be able to speak fast and by. I am happy to see you all. Good-bye." Every sound was uttered with the utmost distinctness, and the chief points noticeable were the labored utterance, the prolongation of the vowels and the peculiar quality of the voice. A young lady was then presented who had gone a step farther, and learned to modulate the voice, and the accuracy with which she followed the hour what she was saying she followed the sense of modulation, was wonderful. Mr. Bell mentioned as a remarkable fact that in a recent visit to the institution for the deaf in Northampton, where this system is in vogue, he heard a class in instruction discussing the rules for emphasis and other arts of elocution.

The last illustration of the evening was by a lady who was deaf and dumb, and was a good voice. She is learning the system with a view of becoming a teacher. She was requested to leave the hall, and the door was closed. Gentlemen in the audience dictated different odd sounds, and words difficult to pronounce from the French, German and Spanish languages, to Mr. Bell, and called, cawing, etc., who were then symbolically in his alphabetic upon the blackboard; the young lady then returned and gave the sound correctly, the attempt to whistle being alone imperfect.

The multiplicity of lawn mowers that are advertised gives rise to the suspicion that the manufacturers, like horse-car conductors, always think there is room for one more.

THE INHABITANTS of this part of the world are likely, before long, to enjoy the evening entertainment of a brilliant comet, which is now barely visible in the western sky; but it is approaching the earth and sun with great velocity, and will soon be a conspicuous object in the heavens. This comet was first seen on the 17th of April, at Mar-sailles, France. It was discovered in New York June 8th, by Professor Lewis Swift, of Rochester, N. Y., who gives the following particulars: "It is approaching both the sun and the earth with a constantly accelerated velocity, arriving at perihelion (nearest the sun) and perigee (nearest the earth) about the 1st of August. I see nothing, therefore, to prevent its being a very conspicuous and beautiful object in the western sky during the months of July and August. It is now situated, at 1 o'clock in the morning, directly beneath the polar star, about twenty-five degrees from it, and is just visible to the naked eye. With an opera glass it can be easily seen as a hazy nebulous mass, with a bright point a little to one side. Through my telescope of four and one half inches aperture, six feet focus, it presents a tall filling the whole field, with a low power of thirty-six. So directly towards us it moving it seems almost to stand still, its slight deviation from an apparent motion toward 'B. Ursa Majoris.' It is now visible all night, but will soon be so only in the early hours of evening, setting in the northwest.

THE ELECTIONS will all be over by to-morrow, all but two Counties, (Gloucester and Kent), have sent Free School men, and Victoria is the only place to be heard from. King's looked forward to with confidence by the Sectarian advocates to return men favorable to their views, but were doomed to disappointment. The Province will now settle down, after the excitement of the past few weeks, as the great question is now settled so far as the voice of the constituencies can determine it; and the journals of the country, will be in a position to devote their attention to other important interests.

The Commissioner of roads, Mr. Hipwell, has taken time by the forelock, and is having the streets repaired. The system he has adopted will be a great saving of labor and put the streets in good order.

Mr. Magee, the British Vice Consul in Guatemala, who was so outrageously flouted by Gonzalez, has refused to accept the $50,000 offered him by that government as an atonement for the beating received, as he considers the matter out of his hands, and he is settled between Guatemala and the British government. Gonzalez fortunately did not die of his wounds as was reported, but is recovering, and as soon as he is able to be dealt with, he will receive a severe scourging and then be shot. The example, though savage, may have a good effect on such rascals in the future.

Prince Arthur, the newly created Duke of Connaught, is the first royal prince whose chief title has been an Irish one. The Prince of Wales is Earl of Dublin, and Prince Alfred is Duke of Ulster as well as Duke of Edinburgh, but in both cases the Irish titles are subordinate. Although bearing an Irish title, Prince Arthur is not an Irish peer, but a peer of the United Kingdom. The Act of Union has the prerogative of the crown in the creation of Irish peers. Three Irish peerages must become extinct to authorize the creation of a new one. Even if the Queen had been desirous of conferring an Irish peerage on Prince Arthur, she has not at present the power.

The views of Mr. Charles Randolph Secretary of the U. S. National Board of Trade, on the condition of the crops are as follows: "The average under cultivation this year is considerably larger than ever before. The facilities for getting in crops were as good as ever. The prospective prices are higher than last year, a fact which has induced the increase of acreage. Everything indicates much larger crops of all cereals than were gathered in previous seasons. The farmers will market all their surplus grain."

During the ten years ending with 1872, while England reduced her debt $175,000,000 and Holland hers by about $30,000,000, there was an increase in some cases exceedingly large, in the debts of the United States, France, Italy, Spain, Russia, Turkey, Austria, Hungary, Egypt, Brazil, Portugal and Peru, to say nothing of other nations which are comparatively small debtors.

A slave ship with 225 negroes aboard, from Mozambique bound for Madagascar, was captured by the English man-of-war Dolphin, March 13. The slaves were put aboard with only two days' provisions. The voyage was prolonged to eight days, and their sufferings were indescribable. Many died before they returned to Africa.

SAINT ANDREWS, JUNE 24, 1874

The Reciprocity Treaty.

From the latest and most reliable sources we learn that the Reciprocity Treaty between the United States and the Dominion of Canada, has received the assent of Her Majesty Queen Victoria, the General Government of the Dominion, and the President of the United States. It does not come into operation until July 1875, and is also to be submitted to the Canadian Parliament at its next Session.

A FIRE broke out on Sunday morning last between 12 and 1 o'clock, in the Fryer barn, in rear of the premises occupied by Mrs. E. Hatch, Water Street. When first discovered by Mr. Frank Bradley, flames were seen issuing from the north-west end of the barn, which quickly communicated with Mr. Bradley's slaughter house in the rear, and Mr. Bradley's barn. The engines were early on the ground, and the firemen and hose companies justly merit the thanks and applause of the community, for the timely and effective manner in which they performed their several duties, in preventing the fire from spreading. We trust that the people, particularly those benefitted by the provision of coffee, crackers, &c., for the gallant fellows on such occasions. Had there been any wind from the west, it is impossible to estimate the amount of property which would have been destroyed. Fryer's barn was insured for $200, but the horse, wagon, telegraph repair tools, owned by the W. U. Telegraph Co., was a total loss. Mr. Bradley's loss in building, hides, &c., is about $200. Mr. Bradley lost his barn, a ton of hay, and farming implements valued at upwards of $200. Neither of the latter were insured. The cause of the fire is unknown.

Education in the States.

We received by mail, two interesting Pamphlets on the Educational Question. The one, a Report of the Committee on Education of the New York City Council of Political Reform upon "Compulsory Education: the other, "An Address to the Citizens of King's County, New York, on the necessity of defending our Common School System against the aggressions of Roman Catholic Priests." We have not had time to examine these Pamphlets, but as no subject can be presented to the people for their consideration more important than the education of the youth, we will occasionally give extracts from these pamphlets. It appears from a glance at these works that they are having trouble there with reference to the Common Schools, with this difference, that the Catholics do not insist upon religious instruction of any kind during school hours, that the teachers shall be Catholics, and paid by the School Board under whose control the teachers shall be, during school hours; and for these concessions they ask, that either before or after school hours they shall be permitted in their own way to instruct their children in their religion. They further agree to build their own school houses, and collect into them their children. All these privileges the Catholics in New Brunswick enjoy under our School law, but it appears that nothing less will satisfy their leaders but imparting religious instruction during school hours, or in other words that the State should endow their churches. The voice of the country has, however, settled that question in New Brunswick.

SUMMER VISITORS have begun to arrive in St. Andrews; several houses have been taken for the summer months, private families have also engaged to take visitors for a few weeks, and the hotels will likewise afford accommodation. It would be a good speculation to build a few Bathing houses, which should be commenced at once, as those at present in use are not sufficiently large, nor well appointed. The yachts will be in requisition, and can be made ready in a short time. The Governor General, who was to have visited this Town last season, and deferred coming until this year, it is reported will visit Manitoba with his family in July, so that it is improbable His Excellency will come this way. Governor Tilly and family will be here in a few days.

HIS EXCELLENCY THE GOVERNOR GENERAL
IN COUNCIL.
On the recommendation of the Hon. the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, and under the provisions of the 19th clause of the "Fisheries Act," His Excellency has been pleased to make the following regulations:—
"In the Provinces of Quebec, Nova Scotia and New Brunswick no person shall, during the months of July and August, fish for, catch, kill, buy, sell or have in possession any soft-shell lobsters or female lobsters with eggs attached, nor shall lobsters of a less size than nine inches in length, measuring from head to tail, exclusive of claws or feelers, be at any time fished for, caught, killed, bought, sold or had in possession, but when caught by accident in nets or other fishing apparatus lawfully used for other fish, lobsters with eggs attached, soft-shell and young lobsters of a less size than nine inches shall be liberated alive, at the risk and cost of the owner of the net or apparatus, or by the occupier of the fishery, on whom in every case shall devolve the proof of such actual liberation.
His Excellency has been pleased to cancel the fishery regulation established by Order in Council of the 7th day of July, 1873, having reference to the lobster fishery, and the same is hereby cancelled accordingly.
W. A. HIMS WORTH,
Clerk Privy Council.

Prospectus for 1874—Seventh Year.
The Aldine,
AN ILLUSTRATED MONTHLY JOURNAL, UNIFORM
BINDER, ADMITTED TO BE THE HANDSOMEST PERIODICAL IN THE WORLD, A REPRESENTATIVE AND CHAMPION OF AMERICAN TASTE.

Not for Sale in Book or News Stores.
THE ALDINE, while issued with all the regularity, has none of the temporary or timely interest characteristic of ordinary periodicals. It is an elegant miscellany of pure, light and graceful literature; and a collection of pictures, the rarest specimens of artistic skill, in black and white. Altho' each succeeding number affords a fresh pleasure to its friends, the real value and beauty of THE ALDINE will be most appreciated after it has been bound up at the close of the year. The possessor of a complete volume cannot duplicate the quantity of fine paper and engravings in any other shape or number of volumes for ten times its cost; and then, there are the chronic beauties!

ART DEPARTMENT, 1874.
The illustrations of THE ALDINE have won a world-wide reputation, and in the artistic circles of Europe it is admitted that its wood cuts are examples of the highest perfection ever attained. The common prejudice in favor of "steel plates," is rapidly yielding to a more educated and discriminating taste which recognizes the advantages of superior artistic quality with greater fidelity of production. The wood-cuts of THE ALDINE possess all the delicacy and elaborate finish of the most costly steel plate, while they afford a better rendering of the artist's original.

In addition to designs by the members of the National Academy, and other noted American artists, THE ALDINE will reproduce examples of the best foreign masters, selected with a view of the highest artistic success and greatest general interest. Thus the subscriber to THE ALDINE will, at a trifling cost, enjoy in his own home the pleasures and refining influences of true art.

The quarterly sintered plates for 1874 will be by Thos. Moran and J. D. Woodward.
The Christmas issue for 1874 will contain special designs appropriate to the season, by our best artists, and will surpass in attractions any of its predecessors.

PREMIUM FOR 1874.
Every subscriber to THE ALDINE for the year 1874 will receive a pair of chromos.
The original pictures were painted in oil for the publishers of THE ALDINE, by Thomas Moran, whose great Colorado picture was purchased by Congress for ten thousand dollars. The subjects were chosen to represent "The East" and "The West." One is a view in the White Mountains, New Hampshire; the other gives The Cliffs of Green River, Wyoming Territory. The difference in the nature of the scenes themselves is a glorious contrast, and affords a good display of the artist's scope and coloring. The chromos are each worked from thirty distinct plates, and are in size (12x16) and appear once exact fac similes of the originals. The presentation of a worthy example of American landscape painting to the subscribers of THE ALDINE was a bold but precisely happy idea, and its successful realization is attested by the following testimonial over the signature of Mr. Moran himself.

Newark, N. J., Sept. 29th, 1873.
Gentlemen,—I am delighted with the proofs in color of your chromos. They are wonderfully successful representations by mechanical process of the original paintings.
Very respectfully,
THOS. MORAN.

TERMS.
$5 per annum in advance, with Oil Chromos free.
For 50 CENTS EXTRA, the chromos will be sent mounted, varnished and prepaid by mail.

THE ALDINE will, hereafter, be obtainable only by subscription. There will be no reduced or club rate; cash for subscription must be sent to the publishers direct, or forwarded to the local canvasser, without responsibility to the publishers, except in case where the certificate is given, bearing the assimile signature of JAMES SUTTON & Co.

CANVASSERS WANTED.
Any person wishing to act permanently as a local canvasser will receive full and prompt information by applying to JAMES SUTTON & Co., Publishers,

Dr. J. Walker's California Vinegar Bitters are a purely vegetable preparation, made chiefly from the native herbs found on the lower ranges of the Sierra Nevada mountains of California, the medicinal properties of which are extracted therefrom without the use of Alcohol. The question is almost daily asked, "What is the cause of the unparalleled success of Walker's Bitters?" Our answer is that they remove the cause of disease, and the patient recovers his health. They are the great blood purifier and a life-giving principle, a perfect Renovator and Invigorator of the system. Never before in the history of the world has a medicine been compounded possessing the remarkable qualities of Walker's Bitters in healing the sick of every disease man is heir to. They are a gentle Purgative as well as a Tonic, relieving Congestion or Inflammation of the Liver and Visceral Organs, in Bilious Disorders.

If men will enjoy good health, let them use Walker's Bitters as a medicine, and avoid the use of alcoholic stimulants in every form.
H. H. McDONALD & CO.,
Druggists and General Agents, San Francisco, California, and cor. Washington and Charlton Sts., New York.

No person can take these Bitters according to directions, and remain long unwell, provided their bones are not destroyed by mineral poison or other means, and vital organs wasted beyond repair.
Grateful Thousands proclaim Walker's Bitters the most wonderful Invigorant that ever sustained the sinking system.
Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, which are so prevalent in the valleys of our great rivers throughout the United States, especially those of the Mississippi, Ohio, Missouri, Illinois, Tennessee, Cumberland, Arkansas, Red, Colorado, Brazos, Rio Grande, Pearl, Alabama, Mobile, Savannah, Roanoke, James, and many others, with their vast tributaries, throughout our entire country during the Summer and Autumn, and remarkably so during seasons of unusual heat and dryness, are invariably accompanied by extensive derangement of the stomach and liver, and other abdominal viscera. In their treatment, a Purgative, exerting a powerful influence upon these various organs, is essentially necessary. There is no cathartic for this purpose equal to Dr. J. WALKER'S Bitters, as they will speedily remove the dark-colored viscid matter which the bowels are loaded, at the same time stimulating the secretions of the Liver, and generally restoring the healthy functions of the digestive organs.

By Dyspepsia or Indigestion, Headache, Pain in the Shoulders, Coughs, Tightness of the Chest, Bizziness, Sour Eructations of the Stomach, Bad Taste in the Mouth, Bilious Attacks, Palpitation of the Heart, Inflammation of the Lungs, Pain in the region of the Kidneys, and a hundred other painful symptoms, are the offspring of Dyspepsia. One bottle will give a better guarantee of its merits than a lengthy advertisement.
Scrophulous, or King's Evil, White Swellings, Ulcers, Erysipelas, Scalded Neck, Gout, Scrofulous Inflammations, Inoculent Inflammations, Mercurial Affections, Old Sores, Eruptions of the Skin, Sore Eyes, etc., etc. In these, as in all other constitutional Diseases, WALKER'S VEGAN Bitters have shown their great curative powers in the most obstinate and intractable cases.
For Inflammatory and Chronic Rheumatism, Gout, Bilious, Remittent, and Intermittent Fevers, Diseases of the Blood, Liver, Kidneys, and Bladder, these Bitters have no equal. Such Diseases are caused by Vitiated Blood.
Mechanical Diseases.—Persons engaged in Paints and Minerals, such as Plumbers, Typo-setters, Gold-beaters, and Miners, as they advance in life, are subject to paralysis of the Bowels. To guard against this, take a dose of WALKER'S VEGAN Bitters occasionally.

For Skin Diseases, Eruptions, Tetter, Salt Rheum, Blotches, Spots, Pimples, Pus-tules, Boils, Carbuncles, Ringworms, Scald Head, Sore Eyes, Erysipelas, Itch, Scurvy, Discolorations of the Skin, Haemors and Diseases of the Sides of whatever name or nature, are literally dug up and carried out of the system in a short time by the use of these Bitters.
Pin, Tape, and other Worms, lurking in the system of so many thousands, are effectively destroyed and removed. No system of medicine, no vomitings, no cathartics, will free the system from worms like these Bitters.

For Female Complaints, in young or old, married or single, and the downy of menstruation or the turn of life, these Tonic Bitters display so decided an influence, that improvement is soon perceptible.
Jaundice.—In all cases of jaundice, rest assured that your liver is not doing its work. The only reliable treatment is to promote the secretion of the bile and favor its removal. For this purpose use Walker's Bitters.
Cleanse the Vitiated Blood whenever you find the impurities bursting through the skin in Pimples, Eruptions, or Scars; cleanse it when you find it obstructed, and sluggish in the veins; cleanse it when it is foul; your feelings will tell you when. Keep the blood pure, and the health of the system will follow.
