INQUEST IS UNFINISHED

Four Hour Session Fails to Close Evidence.

Mother and Daughter In Witness Box For Two Hours Each.

No Startling Developments In Evening's Testimony-Old Ground Being Gone Over.

Still another session of the longdrawn-out Kilbourne inquest was held last night at the police station. The inquiry lasted four hours, and only two witnesses were called. They were the unfortunate girl who is the primary cause of the investigation, and her foster-mother, Mrs. Julia Kilbourne. Nothing startling was elicited from either of them. Mr. Magee had it all his own way, as the lawyers present in the interest of Dr. Graham and Miss Kilbourne did not ask any questions, but contented themselves with taking notes of the evidence. Half a dozen medical men were in the courtroom during the evening. On the reopening of the inquest last night, Emma Agnes Kilbourne, the mother of the dead child, took the stand for the third time. Before Mr. Magee started his examination, Mr. H. R. Morwood, who appeared for Miss Kilbourne, asked that her previous evidence be read over to Mr. Magee opposed the suggestion, and the coroner decided that it was not necessary.

Miss Kilbourne stated that in addition to the lifting of a boiler hearly full of water, which she believed to have caused her miscarriage, she had the same day lifted a small, round coal stove out from the wall in order to polish it. She was alone in the room at the time. She also lifted a small stove at Clark's the day after her second visit to Dr. Graham. Witness said Dr. Graham was not at her house on Thursday, the day after her second visit to his office. She did not see him till Saturday. Witness did ot tell Dr. Piper that her illness had been caused by lifting the stove at Clark's. Witness did not remember telling Dr. Piper that she was not at Dr. Graham's office at all. Witness could not remember telling Dr. Piper past four days. Witness went to Mrs. Clark's house not moan and say she was sick, nor was she sick. Witness did not tell her mother that she had paid Dr. Graham

Bayly and Dr. Wilson. Witness did not tell her mother that to say she caused it herself.

Witness did not tell Mrs. Clark on the Thursday that she was sorry it had been done, as she was sick and was afraid she was going to die-Witness admitted that her object in going to different doctors had been the desire for them to help her out of her trouble.

Witness would not give any reason for saying that her refusal to answer certain questions was in order that her answers might not incriminate

This ended Miss Kilbourne's evidence. Miss Kilbourne's evidence was in great part confined to either contra-dicting parts of Mrs. Clark's story, or to answering that she did not remember whether or not she had made certain statements. Mrs. Kilbourne, foster mother of the previous witness, was called to the stand, and was under examination for two hours. Like her foster daughter, she seemed possessed of a hazy recollection of things, and she also contradicted Mrs. Clark in many de-tails, while corroborating in the main Miss Kilbourne's story. Once she contradicted herself badly, saying first that the first knowledge she had of Mayo giving her daughter money was by reading it in the paper on Tuesday last. Later she acknowledged that she knew all along that Mayo had given $25 to Miss Kilbourne. At midnight the inquest adjourned, to meet again on Friday night at 8

Described.

Washington, Nov. 27 .- When Mrs. Bonine entered the court in which she is being tried for the murder of James S. Ayres, jun., today, three or four letters were handed to her, and she was busily engaged for the next fifteen minutes in reading them.

The first witness of the day was Johnson J. Hooper, a clerk in the census office, who was out with Ayres during the first part of the night on which he was killed. He said that Ayres took three glasses of beer, and that when he finally returned to the Kenmore about 12:30 o'clock on the morning of May 15, he was perfectly soher. He also testified that the entire party was sober, but that all were

Dr. Martin W. Glazenbrook, assistant coroner, who performed the autopsy on Ayres' body, was called. The face was, he said, almost unrecognizable, on account of the mass of blood which covered it, and the arms were half flexed in front of the chest. Dr. Glazenbrook described the three wounds in the body of the victim, One was in the left arm and in the left thigh, and one in the breast, all except the thigh wound showing powder burns and indicating that the weapon had been in close proximity to the body when at least two shots

Supposed to Have Caused the Death of Five Children

By Setting Fire to His Dwelling-Verdict of Willful Murder in the Case of J. Asling's Death.

Parry Sound, Ont., Nov. 27 .- The assize court appointed for the hearing of the Party case was held here this morning. Ron. Mr. Justice Robertson was the presiding judge. There were no other cases, civil or criminal. The charge against the accused Parton was that of muider. The Parton family lived in the township of McKellar near Broadbent postoffice, about fourteer miles from Parry Sound. In April last the Parton farmhouse was destroyed by fire and five members of the family lost their lives, those escaping from the house being Mr. and Mrs. Parton and two boys. The five children burned occupied a room upstairs in the house. The case against Parton was based on the fact that all fires were out in the house when the family retired, also that both the farmhouse and outbuildings, though semi-detached, were found to be on fire at the same time. A coroner's inquest resulted in Parton being committed for trial on a charge of murder.

The judge's charge to the grand jury today was strongly against the presentment of a true bill owing to the insufficiency of the evidence. The judge said, however, that he thought under the circumstances the crown attorney was justified in proceeding in the matter.

After an hour's deliberation the grand jury returned no bill. The court was then dismissed, Parton being set

The Quick Pace of Declining Health.

Wasted Nerves and Weakened Bodies Give Way to Suffering and Disease-The Action of

There are hosts of people wno are susceptible to attack of various kinds of illness. Their systems are ever ready to take on disease. They bend under the slightest trial, and their health is jeopardized by every trivial exposure. They lack resisting power, and health declines because there is no herve force to make good the waste by disease.

At first slight weakness, stomach annoyance, headache, heart fluttering, trembling of the hands and limbs, restless sleep, indicate something is lacking—that something is nerve force. Until the stock of nerve force is replenished the pace of declin-ing health will increase, until lost vitality is expressed in every move.

Pale, languid, nerve-shattered people find exactly what they require in Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. It supplies the wants of wasted nerves, rebuilds the wasted cells, and renews the blood. Its wonderful cures are due to the fact that it restores natural nerve force. and it is lack of nerve force that causes most suffering these days. GOOD RECORD OF THE LIFE SAVING SERVICE

Great Reduction in Lives Lost Per Casualty in United States Waters.

Washington, Nov. 28.—The annual report of the general superintendent of the life-saving service for the year 1901 shows the smallest loss of life from documented vessels suffering disaster since the general extension of the service, and also with respect to vessels of all classes, including the undocumented, with the exception of the years 1880, 1882, 1885 and 1888. The average number of lives lost annually during the entire period (25 years) was 37, one life having been lost in every 13 casualties, while the number lost during the past year was 17, or one in every 43 casualties. From documented vessels alone the number lost was only 7—one to every 54 casualties. The number of casualties to documented vessels was 377. There were on board these vessels 2,848 persons. The estimated value of the vessels involved in disaster was $5,263,420, and of their cargoes $2,090,580. Of this amount $6,403,035 were saved, and $948,965 lost. The number of vessels totally lost was 42. $948,965 lost. The number of vessels to-tally lost was 43. In addition to the foregoing there were during the year 393 casualties to the small craft (undocumented), on board of which were 927 persons, of whom 10 were lost. The crews saved or assisted to save 422 vessels, valued with their cargoes at $3,139,010, and rendered assistance of minor importance to 548 other vessels in distress, besides warning from danger 231 vessels. The cost of the maintainance of the service was $1,640,013 74.

No. 2 committee met last night at the city hall, when some important business was transacted. Those present were Ald. Winnett (chairman), Campbell, Olmsted, Parnell and the city engineer. Mr. Thomas Lewis asked for permission to hang a lamp in front of the Hotel Normandy, and his request was granted on recommendation of the engineer.

Mr. Chas. Stevens applied for damages for injuries received by his little girl by falling on the sidewalk on Horton street. This matter was given to a committee composed of the city engineer, Ald. Campbell and the chairman, Ald. Winnett.

A communication was received from the city clerk, who had been asked to recommend that 50 street scrapers, three feet wide, and run by steam, be purchased for cleaning snow from sidewalks. The present system was thought to be the best, if shafts were put on the plows. The engineer was ordered to report on the best system snowplow which would cost about $25. It was moved that the engineer look into the scheme and report at the next meeting. The London Floral Company was allowed its claim for payment for wreaths purchased at the time of the reception here and costing $12.

The Christie-Douglass proposition was not brought before the committee. With reference to this matter, Dr. Campbell said that the land in question, together with other land that could be purchased could be used for the building of a city hall and police court. Dr. Campbell said that he did not think any council would see its way clear to give away so much valuable property.

A FUTURE OF PROMISE

Our Era of Progress Has But Begun.

The Premier, Hon. George W. Ross, at Welland, Gives an Able Exposition of the Forward Policy of the Government.

Welland, Nov. 26.-At a crowded and enthuisastic meeting of Liberals from all parts of this county yesterday af-ternoon, Hon. George W. Ross, premier of Ontario, delivered a stimulating and comprehensive address, setting forth the record and policy of his govern-ment, and appealing for a fair opportunity to bring to fruition its great plans for the building up of the prov-The meeting was held in the opera house immediately after the close of a thoroughly unanimous convention, at which Mr. J. F. Gross, M. P. P., was again chosen to lead the Liberals in the fight.

The chair was occupied by Lieut. Cruickshanks, Fort Erie, who opened the meeting very briefly, calling at once on Mr. German, who complimented the party on the selection of Mr. Gross. He warned them against underrating the strength of Mr. Gross' opponents. The contest would involve the question whether the government of the province should be intrusted to Mr. Ross and his able government, or to Mr. Whitney and his somewhat erratic It was a matter of general knowledge that one of Mr. Whitney's chief supporters, Mr. Marter, had practically deserted Mr. Whitney, and Mr. Marter probably knew Mr. Whitney better than any other man. contrasted the strong forward policy of the government with Mr. Whitney's attempt to belittle new Ontario. Mr. Whitney were returned to power he would take a retrograde step by repealing the act taxing financial corpor-

THE MAN FROM LINCOLN. Mr. D. J. Mackinnon, who was introduced as the man who would undoubtedly represent Lincoln in the next legislature, said that he came before them as a most loyal and earnest supporter of Mr. Ross. Mr. Ross was premier of Ontario not in name alone, but in fact. In talent, honesty, capacity to rule and understand the needs of the people of this province, Mr. Ross was premier, the first man should rule over the lower; the principle underlying the policy of the Liberal party was the rule of the people for the people. The rights of the people must be sustained, and everything done by the people's representatives the wealthy or any that were above us and belong not to us. He believed that so long as the premier carried out his principles, so long he would stand. There was no need for a change; there would be need for a change so soon as the government ceased to do as they had in the past.

THE PREMIER.

The premier was received with ringing cheers. After referring to the fact Welland has sent to parliament such able men as Hon. Mr. Harcourt. Mr. German and Mr. Gross, he spoke of Mr. Gross in the highest terms as a man who had done good work in the one session during which he had sat in the house, and would undoubtedly do greater things in the future. much greater things in the future. Welland was an old Liberal center, and on account of this double distinction he felt some timidity in speaking in this town. He pointed to the unique posi-tion of the Liberal party, which, after thirty years of power, stood with no substantial grievance against it on the part of any considerable number of

MR. WHITNEY AS A SCOLD. Mr. German had said that Mr. Whitney had no alternative policy to offer in place of the policy of the Libsral party. He had adopted the policy of criticising with some irritability the government in matters of little importance. His manner was that of a common scold. For instance, he scolded the government for remaining so long in power. They had been in power because the intelligent people of the province believed in progressive legislation and that was the only reason. If Mr. Whitney could show a policy more beneficial for Ontario than that of the government, then Mr. Whitney would come into power, and he ought to come into power. The government did not expect to stay in power any longer than they could show that they served in the Klondike. They heard much the people well, honestly and usefully, talk against the Canadian Governand the moment the Liberal party ceased to do that they ought to go out of ONTARIO'S FINANCIAL POSITION. He did not know what might have occurred had Mr. Whitney been in power, but he contrasted the financial position of Ontario with its surplus of revolutionists would destroy the rail-road, and thus throw a fortune into ed by a Conservative municipal council, with a debt of $17,000,000 to $18,-000,000.

A COMPARISON.

In speaking of the Conserva-tive criticism of election irregularities, Mr. Ross contrasted the attitudes of the two parties towards persons who had been found guilty of frauds at elec-tions. The Conservatives had never punished a man for such offenses; the Liberals had punished everyone they could put their hands on, had convicted and imposed fines amounting to $7,500, doing all that was within their power by legal and proper means to bring the offenders to justice.

Having spoken of the text-book and cold-storage questions, paying particular atention to cold-storage for fruit, Mr. Ross showed his hearers, clearly and concisely, the utter falsity of the impression sought to be conveyed by opposition speakers that the government had favored corporations in matters of legislation, pointing to the revenue act as a conclusive evidence that the government were anxious and determined to compel all corporations to bear their full share of the expense of governing the country by imposing just taxation upon them. With this attitude he contrasted the position taken at New Hamburg by Mr. Whitney, when he said that he would repeal the act imposing taxation upon these com-

A FUTURE OF PROMISE. Having spoken of the great elements in the Canadian people, English, Irish and Scotch, Teutonic and French, each of which, we were proud to believe, vied with the others in loyalty to the empire and his majesty. Mr. Ross said: "We are proud to be-lieve that the energy which has made the Saxon stock the most masterful in the world will make that same Saxon stock in Canada fill as large a place on this North American continent as it fills in the councils of the British Empire, and we are proud to believe that that artisan skill and enterprise, and industry and integrity, which has made England the market as well as the banking center and the clearing-house of the world, will add to the wealth of Canada year by year, and I, as premier of the Province of Ontarit, am proud to be able to put my hand in measure on the latent resources of this country, and say to them, 'Come forth and be developed,' and to say to the people of this country:

'QUIT YOURSELVES LIKE MEN.' Ye who guide the plow, guide it more skillfully; ye who gather the harvests from your fruit trees, let there be more abundant fruit for the marin the province. The great principle kets of the world; ye who have herds of the Tory party was that the upper and flocks on a thousand hills, see that these flocks are of the finest quality, that they may be bought by the merchantmen of foreign lands; ye who attend to the intellectual development of our youth, laying the foundation of done by the people's representatives should be in the interest of the people, not in the interest of the corporations or 'Here is a man; here is a woman!"' And I am proud to be able to say that in no period of my 30 years of public live have I put an obstacle in the way of any man who sought to improve his miership I have seen an immense impetus given to the enterprise and energy of the people of Ontario, and we, who as a government have had our hands to the plow, say, 'Let us alone; let us plow our furrow; do not take this out of our hands when such immense consequences are likely to folow; do not change the captains amids: the seas, even if there be a gale; do not change the steward that has accounted for every dollar of his mas-ter's goods and has developed his masestates by his energy and enterprise; but leave him a few years longer to work out with the same fidelity and the same ability the problems which in a measure he has already solved, and the complete solution of which will be reached in the early future.'

"DEAL GENTLY WITH THE ERR-ING."

"Do not let us think harshly of our opponents. We have no use for them at the head of our public affairs at the present moment. The time may come when the Liberal party will become so decrepid, so neglectful of the public interest, that a change will be desirable, but I say with all modesty and with the utmost confidence that the time has, I believe, not yet come, that you cannot place your hand upon any substantial reason that a jury of twelve men would say should convict the Liberal party of dereliction of duty misfeasance in the discharge of their public functions, and that being the case there is no reason why we should not win in the next contest, because the best mind of Ontario is with us, the best interests of Ontario are bound up in our success, because the policy that we have advocated in regard to Ontario is right and sound:

And right is right since God is God, And right will surely win; To doubt would be disloyalty, To falter would be sin."

THE CANDIDATE. It was nearly 5 o'clock when Mr Gross was called on to address the meeting. He again expressed his thanks for the nomination, and spoke of the necessity of having a man to represent them in parliament who could fully grasp the situation and was alive to the nterests of the community. He said that the people of Ontario did not fully recognize all the advantages they en-They could travel the world over and not find a rural meeting more prosperous, more happy, better educated, than those who sat be-fore him. COAL SCUTTLES AND HUMANITY.

The Black Utensil's Apparent Antipathy For Man.

Its True Character Displayed by One Whose Experiences Are but the Reflection of His Brothers'.

I see that a Toronto policeman is laid up with a broken wrist as the result of falling over a coal scuttle, writes H. Dean Carman in the Toronto Star, of yesterday. That is how the item was worded in the papers, but I believe it would be more correct to say that the coal scuttle tripped him deliberately. I believe this because I have made a study of the coal scuttle's habits and know it to be capable of any crime. It has always been a mystery to me why there are no safe-guards thrown by law around the sale of coal scuttles. To me it seems that coal scuttles ought to be classed with carbolic acid and dynamite. No coal scuttle should be sold to a mino or a woman, and each one should be compelled to wear a lamp or a bell. My eyes were first opened to the coal scuttle's true character by a little experience I had one night. I home before daylight, and came fortunately found my wife asleep. Without lighting the gas, I went out to the kitchen to get a drink, purposing to retire noiselessly thereafter. All would have been well but for the family coal scuttle, which lay in wait for me in the darkened kitchen, crept from its place, tripped me up, and landed me with my face against the edge of a stick of firewood. I am not sure, but I think while I was down the coal scuttle kicked me in the face. Furious at this assault, I rose and made a vicious kick at my tormentor, It was a foolish move, for the scuttle deftly caught my foot in its mouth and twisted my ankle so that I had to use crutches for two weeks

I have known a coal scuttle when going down stairs with a lady to trip her, and throw her headlong to the bottom, and jump on her prostrate form. I have known them to fly up and strike the baby in the face. I have known them to ruin prosperous business men, drive wives insane, and break up happy homes. War slays its thousands and ruins its tens of thousands, but the maimed and mangled victims of the coal scuttle cannot be numbered.

There is no use arguing with a coal scuttle, either. Just look at one. Did you ever see anything more victous than a coal scuttle's face? As well expect reason from a ham sandwich as consideration from that iron-faced coal pot.

And they are so sly about it, too. You can sit down and watch a coal scuttle for hours, and it will be to all intents and purposes motionless and devoid of guile, but turn your back and the trouble starts at once.

It is as impossible to keep a coal scuttle filled with coal as it is to keep a small boy full of pie. You may heap it full of dusky diamonds and retire to bed in triumph, but just as sure as position, socially or morally, and that during the two years of my prescuttle is empty, and that you've got to make a trip to the coal cellar to your stocking feet. I never knew it to fail. I could go on for hours narrating evidences of the coal scuttle's depravity, but I feel that I have said bowels. Persons who for twenty years have not enjoyed a natural stool, and have been compelled to use injections, have been cured by a few doses of Radway's Pills.

True comfort for the aged and others afflicted with Costiveness and Paralysis of the Bowels.

Persons advanced in life often suffer from indigestion and from paralysis or inability to evacuate from the bowels, likewise from urinary difficulties. We have the evidence of a large number of aged persons from 60 to 80 years of age who had daily been compelled to resort to injections to empty the bowels, have been cured by the use of Radway's Pills. Two or three pills every night in all Two or three pills every night in all cases insure a natural evacuation from the bowels and the regular flow of urine. In cases where there is irritation of the bladder, Radway's Resolvent should be used with the Pills. If these organs are kept regular, life may be extended to a much longer period. By keeping the Liver kept regular, life may be extended to a much longer period. By keeping the Liver, Stomach, Bowels and Kidneys in a healthy condition the blood will continue pure and dissolution checked. If Radway's Fills and Resolvent are used by the aged, life will be prolonged to the full measure of time. Another great end is secured by nourishing the body with these remedies—the faculties will remain in a healthy condition. A weak, feeble and decaying body enfeebles the intellect and clouds the brain.

Thanksgiving.

Thanksgiving Day comes late in the season this year; it causes the holiday to fall within four weeks of the Christmas festival. But we must make the best of the present arrangement, and we shall not attempt to celebrate the a long-drawn-out grumble date, though still holding that a Sunday date, rather than that of a week day, would best promote the object professedly desired, namely, the united public rendering of thanks for the blessings, public and personal, that have been received during the year. It is appropriate that in a Christian country there should for sincere gratitude. True, the war tality and persistency of the British people have been displayed. One inde- is "The Man From Glengarry." pendent witness declared that many nations would have collapsed under such a terrible strain. Britain will come out of the ordeal, and we hope someness of modern wars will not fail to be a warning to other nations.

Turning to the Dominion, we find peace and comparative prosperity within our borders. If the census did not show rapid numerical growth, it showed healthy development, and there are some reasons for thankfulness that increase of population is not too rapid. Our neighbors to the south know that quick increase brings with it its own difficulties. There has been an abundant harvest, and this means a stimulous to business in many directions. Our own Province is also looking forward to healthy growth in all departments, as well as to the opening up of its newer territories. The success of the royal visit is also a matter for congratulation. It evoksober, steady manifestation of loyalty, and tended to strengthen the tie between the daughter nation and the motherland. The long journey by sea and land is now happily over, and factory. This is a national festival, and from the national point of view there are many reasons to look back upon the past with gratitude, and forward to the future with courage and

There is one place, at any rate, where the Colonial Secretary holds his own and where the attacks upon him elsewhere only seem to intensify the loyalty of the people. That place is the city of Birmingham, with which the right honorable gentleman is specially identified. Recently a new mingham, and the local-champion of unionism and imperialism was, of course, the man to preside over the interesting ceremony. Years ago, Mr. Chamberlain, when he was much more of a revolutionist and reformer, gave some very flery temperance speeches. The papers now quote extracts from these, but such reminders are not likely to trouble their author. He has probably convinced himself that he has now reached the wise, sober stage, and that there is no need to trouble about being consistent with the sayings of his youth. This statesman's present position on an important subject is what we are concerned with just now. Mr. Chamberlain rejoices in the great improvements that have taken place in the past 70 years in the drinking habits of the people. "I do not wish you to believe-I do not think you would be likely to believe-that I am at all inclined to depreciate political agitation as a means for securing social reform; but in this case, and in the review which you may permit me to take of the 70 years during which this society has been in existence, it must be evident that any improvement in the habits of the people, any diminution of intemperance, has been due to the devoted work and labor of individuals, and not to the work of the politician; not to statutory compulsion, or to enactments of parliament." He then goes on to warn extremists, and to show what in his opinion can and ought to be done. We cannot follow the rule that he lays down for those who refer to him or criticise him, namely, to quote the whole speech. The words we have quoted represent fairly the spirit of this particular speech. While admitting that more ought to be done by legislation, its tendency is on the whole to undervalue legislative action. Some will trace this to the growing age and wisdom of the speaker; others to the fact that his own scheme was rejected, and in his view received scant justice; while others will say that when Mr. Chamberlain is busy defending the Empire against the Boers and the Irish, temperance and education and other things equally important | ayen" folk is the same that flowed in

"The Man From Glengarry."

The Man From Glengarry, by Ralph Connor, 12 mo., cloth. The West-Connor, 12 mo., cloth. The minster Company, Toronto.

The Rev. Charles W. Gordon, pastor of a young church in Winnipeg, betrays much of himself in his novels. "The Man of Glengarry," is a legitimate successor to "The Sky Pilot" and Black Rock," which secured him, under the nom de plume of Ralph Connor, the swift fame that leaps to the author of today who strikes a new and effective note. Mr. Gordon does be a day for national thanksgiving. this by his fresh portraiture of men Each citizen is at liberty to worship and women of that eastern peninsula in his own way, and to support the of Ontario known as the Indian Land church of his choice, but there is also and comprising Glengary county. In the evolution of this stalwart youth's careeer, Ralph Connor handles with somewhat varying success the tenacious virility of the Scotch and that the livid example of the burden- Scotch Presbyterianism transplanted to the aboriginal roughness of life, the isolation of virgin forest and stream, and the fisticuffs of shanty men in Canada. At times simple, at other times weak and commonplace

The opening of the story is Homeric and of fine quality. There is nothing in this book comparable to the fights They are spirited and physical; and if the former are closer to Mr. Gordon's heart, the latter are pictured by his pen with a more passionate intensity. Macdonald's gang, drifting down the river chanting their Gaelic boat-song, find three solid miles of logs blocking their way, driven there by Dan Murphy's gang. They repair to an adjoining river tavern and are soon embroiled in the loveliest fight in the world, the Glengarry men outnumbered by the "Irish Papishes" six to one. A great bully of a French-Canadian, who aspires to the position of "boss of the river," deals the fierce the memory will be lasting and satis- father of Ranald a crushing blow by leaping into the air and lashing out with his feet. Then he stamps with ecstasy on his prostrate foe. Macdonald Dubh and his 17-year-old stripling swear vengeance. But before Macdonald dies, a year later, from the effects of this maltreatment, the ad-Mr. Chamberlain and Temperance mirable wife of the minister, Mrs. Murray, has procured his conversion. and that he may say the Lord's Prayer without turning it into a curse. he forgives, as he hopes to be forgiven. Ranald is also converted through Mrs Murray's influence and later saves Lenoir's life in lieu of avenging his father by taking it. The life in the woods of these shanty-men affords the most delectable reading in "The Man from Glengarry." The author handles men and manners in the raw. Mrs. Murray, an admirable figure, undoubtedly has her prototype in the author's mother. Mary Robertson Gordon taught philosophy at Mount Holyoke when she was twenty, and declined the principalship later to marry a young Scotch clergyman and retire with him to the wild isolation of the backwoods.

After his father's death Ranald goes to Quebec, and like the good boy of Sabbath school literature is so faithful to his employer as to be offered a partnership in the concern, which he declines because he has discovered a questionable strain in that employer's business methods. He falls in love with his employer's daughter, and although he loses her, gets a far finer girl.

In one or two places predestination rears its grisly head, notably at Cameron's funeral, when a Scotch elder insists on the mourners not forgetting that, by all the rules they recognize. the departed, who had lost his life in saving a drunken river-man's, and who was singularly clean and kindly, is forever damned.

Book of Canadian Poems.

POEMS, by William Henry Drummond. Published by G. P. Putnam's Sons, New York and London. A book of Canadian-or, as the dialect has it. "Canayen"-poems has at

I say "Canadian" advisedly, for not one verse could have been sung of any other country under the skies, but the Province of Quebec, the fatherland of Jean Bateese, Trois Rivieres, and the Loup Garou. The poet adjures us:

Remember, when these tales you read, Of rude but honest "Canayen," That Joliet, La Verandrye, La Salle, Marquette and Hennepin, Were all true "Canayen" themselves—And in their veins the same red stream: The conquering blood of Normandie Flowed strong, and gave America Coureurs de bois and voyageurs, Whose trail extends from sea to sea!

Yes; and at the same time one remembers that the blood flowing in the veins of these rude but honest "Canthe veins of one of France's greatest singers-Beranger, the people's poet, whose lyrics have brought joy to millions of hearts, and are familiar even to the working classes of France.

Are we thought presumptuous to claim a place, not far below the elder bard, for the Canadian Beranger, Dr. William Henry Drummond, whose ringhearts of the true Canadian, born on Canadian soil?

So well has Mr. Drummond caught the atmosphere, half-French, yet true Canadian, of our neighbors in the Lower Province, that all that is Canadian in us responds with a creep and thrill to the quaint, tuneful prosody which chants of the Wendigo Spirit, the Hill of St. Sebastien and the old corduroy road.

At the same time, there is a flash now and again of the spirit of Beranger, in the lines of Mr. Drummond's versetors of these "rude" French folk, over a hundred years ago, in far-off France. We are not sufficiently acquainted with Mr. Drummond's personality to know how he comes by this touch of the older master, but there it is, so that he who runs may read.

A trace of this resemblance I see in the poem entitled "The Cure of Calu-Dere's no hunter man on de prairie, never wear w'at you call racquette, Can beat leetle Fader O'Hara, de Cure of Calumette.

Hees fader is full-blooded Irish, an' hees strong and incisively graphic, he is at other times weak and commonplace

To de Irish he's full of de devil, an' de Franch dev got gavelr faire. French dey got savoir faire, Dat's mak' it de very good balance an'
tak' you mos' ev'rywhere.

Delicious, boyish and full of fun are "humble poet, whose songs gush from his heart."

I could quote you a dosen that would delight you, did space but permit: but this book demands an evening to itself than the limitations of a newspaper

De cloud is hide de moon, but dere's plaintee light above; Steady, Johnnie, steady—kip your head down low, Move de paddle leetle quicker, an' de ole canoe we'll shove Troo de water nice and quiet,

For de place we're goin' try it Is beyond de silver birch dere, You can see it lak a church dere, W'en we're passing on de corner w'ere de lily flower grow.

You ready for de call? Here goes for number wan! Steady, Johnnie, steady-kip your head down low.

Did you hear how nice I do it, an' how it travel on, Fill it reach across de reever

Dat'll geev' some moose de fever! Wait now, Johnnie, don't you worry, No use bein' on de hurry, But lissen for de answer, it'll come before

One of the gems of the collection is 'Ma Leetle Cabane," and has a subtle charm that is its very own; but for a typical Canadian poem that is equally fine, I prefer to give a few stanzas of "The Canadian Country Doctor":

O! le bon Dieu help de doctor w'en de message come to call heem

From hees warm bed on de night-tam for visit some poor man
Lyin' sick across de hill side on noder side de reever, An' he hear de mountain roarin' lak de beeg Shawinigan.

Ah! well he know de warning, but he An: Well he know de warning, but he can't stay till de morning,
So he's hitchin' up hees leetle horse an' put heem on burleau;
Den w'en he feex de buffalo, an' wissle to hees pony, Away t'roo storm an' hurricane de countree doctor go.

O! de small Canadian pony; dat's de horse can walk on snowdreef, Dat's de horse can fin' de road too he's never been before Kip your heart up, leetle feller, for dere's many mile before you,

An' it's purty hard job tellin' w'en you see your stable door.

The Gradual Development of the Ancient Custom-Some Older Thanksgivings.

Thursday of this week is the day we all celebrate, each in his own way. Some may choose religious exercises, some football, and some may golf from morning till night, but the turkey is a common feature in all observances. Why, other than because of natural fitness the turkey should be sacrifued on the national altar is not apparent, these French-Canadian poems of a although tradition now marks him as "humble poet, whose songs gush from the victim. We set the last spring some twenty acres of Indian corn and spread some six acres of barley and pease, and, according to the manner of the Indians, we manured our ground with herrings, or rather shads, which we have in great abundance, and take with great ease at our doors. Our corn did prove well, and, God be praised, we had a good increase of Indian corn, and our barley indifferent good, but our pease not worth the gathering, for we feared they were too late sown. They came up very well and blossomed, but the sun parched them in the blossom. From this feast, which has been called an evolution of the old English harvest festivals, the presentday custom of gorging one's self on Thanksgiving Day may very well have sprung, but the appointment of a special day for thanksgiving is a custom of longer standing than that. From time immemorial the gods have been thanked for success in battle, and even after the Pilgrims thanked the Lord that they were alive many of the set erance of that city from siege.

days of thanksgiving in America were for the favorable issue of combat. A close parallel of our Thanksgiving Day is the old Hebrew feast of tabernacles, or the feast of ingathering at the end of the year. Moreover, before the Pilgrims landed in America, the civil authorities recommended the observance of a day of thanksgiving such as that of Leyden, Holland, on Oct. 3, 1575, the first anniversary of the deliv-For many years after the first Plymouth Thanksgiving, the day was observed in America only at irregular intervals and for special reasons. Among the famous early observances was that of 1623. In July of that year a day of fasting and prayer was appointed because of a drought, and rain coming during prayer, the governor proclaimed a day of thanksgiving, which was observed with religious exercises. The arrival of supplies from Ireland in 1631 changed a fast day in Charlestown into thanksgiving in a similar way. In 1632 Gov. Winthrop of the Massachusetts Bay Colony recommended a day of thanksgiving on account of the action of the British Privy Council favorable to the colonies. Many other special observances might be noted, but it was not until 1680 that the appointment of a thanksgiving day became an annual custom. The later of these appear to have been more nearly related to the New England Thanksgiving Day of after years in that they were given for ution a day of thanksgiving was annually recommended by congress, and in 1784 there was a general thanksgiving for the adoption of the constitution. In 1795 and 1815, Thanksgiving days were appointed by proclamation of the president, the first by Washington for the suppression of insurrection, and the other by Madison for peace, but for nany years the observance remained largely a New England custom annual proclamations being issued by the governors. THE BRAVE STORIES OF OTHER DAYS

How the History of Western Ontario Will Be Told.

The Records of the Early Days Are Fast Disappearing.

Interesting Paper By Dr. Cl. T. Campbell On the Aims and Work of the Historical Society.

The following is the address delivered by Dr. Cl. T. Campbell before the London and Middlesex Historical Society at its recent meeting:

A member of this association, trying to interest one of our citizens in the objects we have in view, was met with the answer: "London has no history." Now, if he used the word "history" in its primary sense, meaning a record of the events of the past, then the as-sertion he made was true. But if, as I rather expect, he used it in one of its secondary meanings, as an eventful past deserving of record, then it is certain that the members of this society will not agree with him. To us it appears that in our past there were events of vast importance, which would crowd the pages of any record, could they be gathered from out the depths of the ages gone by. Many centuries ago, a great mass of ice, probably thousands of feet in thickness, spread all over Canada, reaching down to the great lake. As the water receded, a mighty torrent rushed down the course through which now trickles our own little Thames. These were great events in the history of our earth's crust, in which this section of land, where are now fruitful fields and smiling towns, had its share. And the records have been left behind in lines cords have been left behind in lines more durable than histories written by men—in the mountains that mark the glacial limits; in the hills and valleys that diversify the surface of the country; in the strata of sand and clay and gravel that make in the crum-of rock ground soil: fragments 1 om their parent bed by the moving masses of ice, and polished by the raging torrents that swept them onward

Then, when the ice had been dissolved, and the lakes had subsided, and vegetation had covered the new earth verdure and bloom, animal life appeared: wild beasts roamed the plains tramped the forests, as wild beasts do today in other lands. And only the faintest traces of the history of this period are to be found in fossil beds, and the fragments of mammoth skeletons sometimes unearthed from swamps and bogs. Then man from whence we can only comjecture; and humanity, with all its passions and desires, its love and hate, took up the struggle for existence. Many an Indian tribe doubtless wandered over the site of our town and encamped on the banks of our river many a battle was fought in this vicinity, possibly for the same reasons that battles have been fought in later days, with weapons more primitive than our modern guns, but with the same results to both victors and vanquished-disaster and death. And of all these eventful days no records now remain, save the glimpses we get of prehistoric life in the fire-heaps of Indian relics uncovered by chance as the farmer runs his plow through some to the sea.

Only within the past three centuries do written records appear, Till then, "time's effacing fingers" traced a few lines in the soil to give us a ception of what had passed before. But in the beginning of the sevencentury, among the early French explorers of the new continent came Samuel Champlain, who sailed up the Ottawa and crossed the shores of the Georgian Bay. He came little nearer to London than the site of the present town of Orillia, turning southward through the Trent valley to New York State. But he opened the way for the hardy voyageur and trapper, and for the enthusiastic self-denying priest, who were the pioneers of commerce and religion in our country. A few indirect references in the earlier archives tell us what little we know of the first explorers and traders; while in the "Relations of the Jesuits" and other ecclesiastical reports we get some idea of the labors and sufferings of the priests who planted their little missions throughout Western Ontario.

THE COMING OF SIMCOE. So the years passed away, till Governor Simcoe, in 1793, crossed the penor the Thames, as it had then been re-named, viewing the spot with great admiration, and full of expectations for its future as the capital of even though the record is incomplete; its public events—the founding and surveying of the town, the settlement of the county, the tramp of armed men through the valley of the Thames in the war of 1812, the struggles in 1837 between men who took up arms to secure needed reforms and men equally sincere who rallied to the defense of the established government, the aftermath of the rebellion in the bitter political contests of the day when some of us were very young, and many of us had not been born. The chief outlines of all these events can be found in official documents in Ottawa, Toronto, Washington and old London. they were little more than eddles in the great political whirlpool of Canadian life-only types we may say, of the events that mark Canada's history. Adventure, religion, war, politics-of everything which the records of the Dominion take note-we have had our

And this is one of the main purposes for which this society has been organized; to gather up the fast disappear-ing facts which make our history; to collect the relics of our fathers' life labors; to record ere it be too late the words and acts of those who in this section helped to found our fair Do-working policy the Cartesian doctrine of scientific doubt. The average reader accepts everything on record as true, unless it has been successfully contradicted; the historian doubts every statement until it has been proven true. G.der historians seldom adopted this policy; their books are filled with hearsay evidence of the kind which jurists would rule out of court. I can remember, as some of you can, the interesting classical history of our school days. To us, Hector and Achilles, Paris and Helen, were intensely real, and the Trojan war was an event whose very date we knew with certainty. Of Romulus and Remus and their immediate successors we knew the period at which they lived, the exact number of years they reigned. Now, under the cold and chilling influence of modern historic science, we are sure of nothing beyond this: that many centuries beyond this: that many centuries tageous to the government agreement ago tradition said such people lived, but whether these traditions had their origin in actual facts or in a poet's lizing and unprincipled trader." all over Canada, reaching down to the southerly border of the State of Ohio. LONDON'S HISTORY STILL UN-

WRITTEN. The history of London has not yet been written. The nearest approach has been the compilation called "The History of Middlesex County," published by Goodspeed, of Toronto, in 1889. It contains a quantity of historical data, copies of judicial and ecclesiastical records, recollections of pioneers, quotations from old writers, and similar material. The compiler seems to have inserted everything he could corral, and while much is valuable, some is of doubtful credibility. It will, however, supply material for verification; and thus render valuable assistance.

Let us see what the intending his-everything having reference, direct or indirect, to this locality. These references would have to be classified, and arranged in chronological order. Then he would consult all books that could supply any material for his purpose. Of these there are a large number. For example, he will find in Col. Bouchette's "British Dominions," published in 1838, an account of some of the transactions of the Canada Company in this vicinity. The statements are probably correct, but he would make no use of them if he could get access to the books of the company itself. Works of travel and personal experience in the early part of last century would be examined, such as Talbot's "Five Years' Residence in Insula from Niagara to Detroit, and Canada," published in 1824; Bonny-halted at the forks of La Tranche, castle's "Canada," 1849; Alexander's "L'Acadie." 1849-in which, by the way, there is a very quaint picture of Dundas street in the forties; Mrs. Moodie's "Roughing It," his new province-expectations which others. The entire book must be read in order to judge of the writer's character. Is he a close observer? Does he state facts with precision? Does he seem impartial, or is he prejudiced? Does he let his imagination run riot, and paint his pictures in exaggerated tones? Are his statements in harmony with the recorded obser-And certainly they are of interest to vations of others? Only thus can we all students of history, even though judge of the safety of the writer as a guide in revealing the past. The same line has to be followed in regard to books of a later date, espe-

It has yet to be sought in old manuscripts, in old letters, in old documents; hidden, unnoted, forgotten. Much of it will be found only in the memory of the few pioneers who are still living but whose memories crow misstatements; he belonged to a branch of the service where close observation is necessary; he was recording an important event—the gover-nor's selection of his capital. It might be assumed, therefore, that the record, even though brief, would be clear and precise. Here is what he writes:

Among many other essensome aspects of the work the task bettals, it possesses the following advantages: Command of territory, infore us is no light one. Interesting as may be the collection of historical ternal situation; central position, facts, there is nothing more wearying and unsatisfactory than sorting, verifying and utilizing these facts. The true historian has to adopt for his for boats to near its source, and for small craft to probably near the Moby a small portage to the waters flow-ing into Lake Huron; to the southeast by a carrying place into Lake Ontario and the River St. Lawrence; the soil luxuriantly fertile; the land rich and capable of being easily cleared, and soon put into a state of agriculture; a pinery upon the adjacent high knoll, and other timber on the heights, well calculated for the erection of public buildings; a climate not inferior to any part of Canada. To these natural advantages, an object of great consideration is to be added: that the enormous expense of the Indian department would be greatly di-minished, if not abolished. The In-dians would, in all probability, be induced to become the carriers of their

During a heavy flood its waters had cut across the neck of the peninsula, turning it into an island. Going south, in order to strike the trail by which he had passed to Detroit, the month before, he found a plain with clumps of white oak, then a swampy wood, and finally came on the site of his former encampment, on the site of his former encampment, on the 14th of February, which, as we learn from the diary, was at an Indian village, some four miles distant from two little lakes, presumably in the southern part of the township of Westminster. It is not that we appropriate too much given points, his course after he left the Forks until he reached the old trail is now largely a matter of speculation. Another inference we might draw is that the river at the time of the governor's visit was much larger than it is now. But, then, it was in the early spring; it had been raining heavily, and it is possible that it was only a spring flood that gave volume to the river; and that on a dry summer's day a hundred years ago the

How much harder his task when he comes to sifting personal statements of old pioneers, whose memories have become defective with time; and letters and private documents written years ago, and which the writers never expected to be read by any but their own immediate associates, and in regard to which they did not feel any pressing obligations to be precise and accurate.

In our work here, the main object should be to secure such documentary evidence as may be useful for the future historian. Its value he will have to test by scientific methods, selecting only what is good-rejecting the chaff, retaining the wheat. Not for us, the anter task of the collector of data. And in the accomplishment of this purpose we can try to develop in all of us knowledge of correct methods of historical research, which may fit some of our younger citizens to fill the place the coming historian. We can cultivate also a deeper love for our country, as we note her progress from the forest primeval to national maturity. And as we review the unwearied energy, the patient endurance; the selfdenial and the courage of those who struggled in adversity that Canada might become great and prosperous, wa may learn from it the lesson of devotion to present duty; we may learn that success is not to be measured by attempting great feats, which, if acwill make one famous, but

Y. W. C. A. BUILDING FUND. To the Editor of The Advertiser: An offer has been made to me by one who was present at the last meeting of our Local Council of Women of $25, on condition that five similar amounts be given or collected, as a Christmas box of $150 towards the fund for providing a sultable building in which to carry on with full efficiency the admirable work to which the Young Women's Associa-tion of our city has dedicated itself. We are proud of our Young Men's Christian Association, and are thankful that it has such splendid scope for its development; but we also want some such provision for the 8,000 young women engaged in various business pursuits in our midst. Other progressive cities, some of less import-ance than London, have a full equipment for the social and educational needs of the young girls who have "to stand side by side with their brothers in the business life of today," who have come to reside amongst them. The Y. W. C. A. building in each of these places provides a boarding home, rest room, library and comfortable luncheons at very moderate charges. The London Y. W. C. A., in charges. The London Y. W. C. A., in spite of narrow quarters and many difficulties, has already done much along these lines. Its members have often been disheartened and discouraged, but have never swerved from their purpose. Is it not time that a helping hand should be extended to them? This offer of $25 is not intended to interfere with any organized canvass which may be made, but I would appeal to voluntary givers to enable me to obtain that $150 Christmas box for the building fund of the Y. C. A. of our Forest City. H. A. BOOMER, SUGAR BEETS. As to the good quality of sugar beets grown in Ontario, there can be no question, for samples enough have been grown in most of the counties to establish the, fact that all the southwestern section of this province can grow beets of as high a percent of sugar and purity as any other country in the world. Thousands of tons of beets have been shipped from counties west of London to Michigan, simply because our farmers have pluck and energy enough to grow them and our moneyed men have not been possessed with enough of the spirit of enterprise to erect sugar factories. Our American cousins are coming to our rescue and offering to supply one-half of the capital required to build and equip sugar factories. Several offers have been made to the citizens London, but their offers have not been accepted. Ten years ago there were only three beet sugar factories in the United States, now there are thirtysix. Dodd's Kidney Pills Are Doing Their Usual Good Work on the Island.

Southern Harbor, Nfld., Nov. 25 .-For over six years Maurice Best has suffered greatly with Kidney and Stomach trouble. He has been gradually growing worse, although he has been under the doctor's treatment all the time.

At last he read in an advertisement how Dodd's Kidney Pills were curing men and women all over the island of trouble similar to his own, and he commenced to use them.

They have cured him completely, and restored to him his old-time strength and vigor. He says he will always recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills, and in proof of his earnestness he has already got his brother and several others to use them, and all with the most happy results. Kidney Pills are the only remedy that has ever cured Bright's Disease, Diabetes, or Dropsy.

can Chicken Feed That Is Looking For a Buyer.

Toronto, Nov. 27 .- Though there is a penalty attached to the acceptance of Canadian coins or bills across the line, a Buffalo bank has $15,000 worth of Canadian silver in its possession which shows that the side-show people on the Pan-American Midway as wel as several thousand other people did not fear the law relating to this particular misdemeanor. It is a thousand to one shot that no prosecutions followed the acceptance of the coin, either. In fact, it is whispered that the exposition authorities were anxious to get another million and a half of any kind of coin to prevent a deficit The Buffalo bank is so anxious to get rid of this collection of Canadian 'chicken feed" that they are willing to sell it at a discount, and pay the express charges to the purchaser Yesterday the head office of the Dominion Bank received a letter from this Buffalo monetary institution inviting the Canadian bank to purchase the collection at a liberal discount.

But not so with Dominion Bank. "We have no room to store it," was the manager's reason. Then, again, it would take a man a couple of days to sort it out and check it over. Then we might find some bad pieces, too.' "Wouldn't the government redeem tt?" he was asked. "No," he said. "Silver you get over

BRIDEGROOM MISSING

Was to Have Been Married on Thanksgiving

Day and Has Disappeared. Middletown, N. Y., Nov. 27 .- James J. McNulty, of New York, who was to have been married on Thanksgiving Day to Miss Lillian Herrick, has disappeared, and grave apprehensions are felt by his friends for his safety. McNulty is said to have had a rival for the hand of Miss Herrick, whose mother is the owner of a hotel, and it is hinted that he has beer done up and his body secreted. McNulty was a fine planist, and his first appearance in Middletown was when he accepted the terms of Mrs. Herrick to be the "professor" of music at the dance nail attached to her hostelry. The young man's musical qualities, combined with his handsome face and figure, soon captivated the landlady's daughter, and they fell so desperately in love that they received the mother's blessing to be wedded on Thursday. SAD DEATH AT SEA

Wife of Dr. H. McNeal Swept Overboard

Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 27 .- No more sorrowful story was ever recorded than that told by the officers and passengers of the American Line steamship Belgen-land, which reached here yesterday from Liverpool.

Among the cabin passengers one had been washed overboard and among the steerage passengers one had died.

The cabin passenger who so swiftly found death in the ocean was Mrs. (Dr.) McNeal, the wife of Dr. Harry McNeal, of Ann Arbor, Mich., who was also aboard the sales.

Dr. McNeal pointed out an approaching steamer to his wife. A big wave struck the Belgenland, which gave a sudden lurch. Mrs. McNeal lost her footing and pitched head foremost over the side of the ship.

Lifebuoys were at once thrown overboard—three of them. The ship was hove to, but Mrs. McNeal was never seen again.

For some hours both steamers circled about the spot, in the hope that the body of Mrs. McNeal might be sighted, but in

MUSIC AND DRAMA

"THE LITTLE RED SCHOOL-HOUSE."

"The Little Red Schoolhouse," the holiday attraction at the Grand Opera House today, is the latest play from the pen of Hal Reid, and is the greatest success of this young American author, who personally appears in the title role. Hal Reid has never written a prettier story. It tells a love story which is beautiful, and full of heart interest and devoid of sensational claptrap. Tears, laughter, excitement and all those necessary elements to make a play a success are embodied in "The Little Red Schoolhouse." A most elaborate setting for this dramatic gem has been provided by Mr. F. C. Whitney. Mr. Reid has personally selected each member of his company for his or her especial fitness for the roles assigned them. The press of other cities where "The Little Red Schoolhouse" has appeared are unanimous in their praise of play and company. A special holiday matinee is announced, for which seats may be reserved.

"KERRY GOW" NEXT MONDAY. Joseph Murphy, the eminent Irish comedian, first established his reputation as an actor by his creation of the part of Dan O'Hara in his play of "Kerry Gow." It is his habit to sur-round himself with superor actresses and actors, and it is his policy to give them all a chance, and thus he proves himself a man. In return, "Kerry Gow" has won a high place in the esteem of the American people, and is still and easily a "winner." Joseph Murphy will appear in "Kerry Gow" at the New Grand next Monday night.

"THE PENITENT."

"The Penitent," W. E. Nankeville's production of Hall Caine's story, will make its initial bow to this city next Wednesday night. The beauty of the production has created quite a furore during its long runs, depicting as it does many of the wild, charmed and rugged spots in the heart of the famed Cumberland Mountains of England. The company is headed by a gifted actor, Louis Leon Hall, who has the able support of Myles McCarthy, David Hanchett, Will Thompson Davis, Maud Claire Shaw, Minnie Bowen, Bessie Marlowe, Edith Domby and other players equally well known in the proof Kandahar & "The Dead Magpie. By Jones." Such was its description in the catalogue. And, in fact, it represented an ill-drkwn bird, in a conventional position, with its feathers looking as though they had been carved out of wood, lying upon a dirty white tablecloth. In size it was about eighteen inches by ten. Its surface was cracked and scratched all over and the frame was mouldy and fly-blown. On the whole, zero would have represented its artistic value more accurately than even fifteen shillings. Rubbish such as this will somehow find its way into the best collections. Perhaps Jones had been a poor drawing-master, with a starving wife and family, and this particular piece of rubbish had been bought out of charity.

Still, there are people who speculate in dead magpies rather than not speculate at all.
"A 'arf-crown," suggested one dealer, after a pause.

Mr. Grode, as if to continue his occasional pastime, nodded. If he chose to give three-and-sixpence for a memento of this great sale, why should he not indulge his whim? It would admirably suit the dust of his front parlor.

The pale sherry in which some of the purchasers had been indulging at discretion, or at indiscretion, during the day made a joke not unseasonable after the serious business was over.

"Where's Sir C— E— ?" said one of the dealers. "Blessed if this here oughtn't to go to the National. Four-nd-six—there! and tell the R. A.'s to ive me a call in Wardour street. I won't be hard on 'em."

"Five-and-six." said Mr. Grode, care-

"Five-and-six," said Mr. Grode, carelessly, scarcely raising his eyes for a moment from the catalogue which he was studying intently.

"Ha! ha! ha!" laughed the last bidder, who seemed to be the comic man among his brotherhood. "So I'm not to make my fortune this time. Well, I've saved a 'arf-crown, anyway, for I'm blessed if I could have got two bob for it."

The auctioneer was just about to get rid of so unprofitable a piece of rubbish as quickly as possible, when one of the most active bidders in the room, who had fought freely, and not unsuccessfully, for 'Itians and Rembrandts, said suddenly,
in a sharp Hebrew voice, "Sheven!"

in a sharp Hebrew voice, "Sheven!"

It was like an electric shock. All turned round and stared, and then a laugh ran round the room at such a triumph But the provoker of the mirth deserves

-nay, demands-some further description. He was very short in stature, almost dwarfish, with a pot-bely, and with shoulders so round as to make him almost a hunchback, one of them being rather higher than the other. His chin, adorn-ed with a coarse beard of grizzled red, hung down upon his breast, which was hung down upon his breast, which was formed something like that of a pigeon. His arms, considering his height, were of a prodigious length, reaching almost to his knee when he stood as upright as his figure would allow—at least, that which belonged to the lower shoulder; and while his legs were short in contrary proportion, his flat feet and his coarse, red hands, of which the dirt was half concealed by a cartload of valuable rings, were large enough for a man seven feet high. His head, bald at the poll, but were large enough for a man seven feet high. His head, bald at the poll, but otherwise covered with shock, uncombed hair of the same color as the beard, was also gigantic; so large, in fact, that it seemed to hang down over the breast by reason of its own weight rather than be-cause of the malformation of the shoul-ders, and to have crushed what ought to have been neck into nothingness, so that ders, and to have crushed what ought to have been neck into nothingness, so that the lobes of the huge ears touched the shoulders. But the face, which thus seemed to be in the mathematical center of all this deformity, was the most remarkable part of it all. I do not think anything more unutterably hideous was according to the course of ever seen; it required a skillful artist to describe it, and even Pauson himself, the great precursor of all painters of the hideous, would scarcely have done it stice. There was absolutely no fore-ead; a scarlet line instead of eyebrows filled up the entire space between the eyes and the limit of th hair. Beneath this scarlet line gleamed two obliquely set eyes, like those of a cat in all respects. save that while in certain lights one of them became yellow, the other invariably remained of a dull green color, and that they squinted towards one another as if the point of their owner's nose was the the point of their owner's nose was the only thing in creation worth regarding. Nor, if they thought so, were they altogether without justification for their belief. The nose in question was of vast size, seeming to project in its bold curve beyond the pigeon breast; its form was that of the segment of a circle, of which the most advanced point, instead of being at the tip, was the bridge, while the tip itself was so depressed that it would have interfered with the upper lip were it not that the whole cumbrous machine bere so much to the right hand as to leave the mouth as much master of the situation as if there had been no nose at situation as if there had been no nose at all. In color, it was that of raw flesh, and it seemed to tremble like calves'-foot all. In color, it was that of raw flesh, and it seemed to tremble like calves'-foot jelly when its wearer moved. The mouth was large and grotesquely shaped, with immense and monstrously thick lips, always wide apart, of which the upper was unshaved, and the lower excessively pendulous; and both, in their separation. displayed two broken rows of huge yellow, jagged teeth, one eye-tooth resembling a tusk that stuck out horribly, and as if intended for a formidable weapon of offense. The whiskers upon the broad, puckered cheeks were thin and sparse, thus revealing, in all their leaden-hued loathsomeness, the pits, or rather the caverns, with which the smallock had covered the whole face, and the pimples, for, rather, hillocks, with which the caverns were relieved. The long finger-nails like talons, were grimed with black, as though they had not been cut or trinmed for many a Sabbath eve. But in other respects his person was not ill-cared for the had plastered his head with half the contents of a barber's shop, to judge from the greasiness of its appearance and from the mingled odors, not of the most refined kind, which it seemed to exhale. His coat was of the finest blue cloth, lashionably cut; his waistcoat of seal-skin, over which two large golden watch-guards meandered in massy folds; his

But, however remarkable his appearance might be, it did not appear to call forth the amount of personal remarks that might have been expected. In fact, it seemed to be familiar to most who were there, and he himself was treated with a sort of chaffing respect by the professional buyers different to the more with a sort of chaffing respect by the pro-fessional buyers different to the more distant respect that was paid to Mr. Grode. The only special attention that he attracted to himself seemed to be provoked by the single word, "Sheven!" Mr. Grode looked up almost angrily. He did not like to be made a butt of. "Half a guinea!" he said, decisively. The auctioneer looked surprised and in-terested, and began to find imaginary merits in the picture that had hitherto escaped his practiced eye.

The new bidder also looked interested. He turned his squinting eyes apparently towards the door, but in reality full upon the dead magpie. Mr. Grode was not the man, as he well knew, to throw away shillings for nothing and yet for nothing. hillings for nothing, and yet for nothing

"Twenty!

"Five-and-twenty!"
The outside value of the picture had ong been passed. But the manner of Mr. Grode had become just a little anxious—imperceptibly to those who had the power of looking straight, but not to those squinting eyes, which could see readily enough what was to their owner's dyantage.

At last, as the bids increased, even the bystanders could perceive that this was not a mere joke on the part of the dwarf, any more than that it was any longer a mere pastime on that of his rival.

'Grode means to have that picture." "Grode means to have that picture, said one.
"And old Levi sees that, and doesn't mean to let him." said another. "Do you remember that sale at Lord St. Kenelm's? Levi's a cute customer in some things, but don't know a Hetty from a Wandyke. I noticed he always followed Grode's lead."

A little crowd collected around the daub, but only to shake its many heads.
"Hany way this 'll be a bad bargain," said one great art critic. "Hi wouldn't give a bad tanner for it."
The last bid had been ten pounds on the part of Mr. Grode. The hunchback capped it by fifteen.

That's the personal question a woman asks herself when she reads of the cures of womanly diseases by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. Why shouldn't it cure her?

Is it a complicated case? Thousands of such cases have been cured by "Favorite Prescription." Is it a condition which local doctors have declared incurable? Among the hundreds of thousands of sick women cured by the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription there are a great many who were pronounced incurable by local doctors. Wonders have been worked by "Favorite Prescription" in the cure of irregularity, weakening drains, inflammation, ulceration and female weakness. It always helps. It almost always cures.

helps. It almost always cures.

"Three years ago," writes Mrs. John Graham, of 2018 Plumb Street, (Frankford) Philadelphia, Pa., "I had a very bad attack of dropsy which left me with heart trouble, and also a very weak back. At times I was so bad that I did not know what so do with myself. My children advised me to take your 'Favorite Prescription,' but I had been taking so much medicine from the doctor that I was discouraged with everything. I came to Philadelphia two years ago, and picking up one of your little books one day began to read what your medicine had done for others, I determined to try it myself. I took seven bottles, and to-day I am a strong, well woman, weighing 162 pounds. Have gamed 29 pounds since I started to use 'Favorite Prescription.'"

London, Nov. 27.-Truth, discussing the effects of the decision of the stewards of the Henley regatta to permit foreigners to compete in the Henley contests, which was reached last Saturday, declares that the old Henley is gone, and a new Henley reigns in its stead. It must be recognized once and for all, says Truth, that it is the business of the English oarsmen to defend the Grand Challenge and the Stewards' cups from foreign competition. Henceforth the jealousies between these English clubs must be ended, and these clubs must give up their best men, adopt the best appliances, and train for one event, instead of rowing in

George James, a laborer in the G. T. R. coal sheds, Stratford, left his work as usual Monday night at 6 o'clock. An hour later he was taken to the general nospital maimed for life. In order that hospital maimed for life. In order that he might reach home quickly, Mr. James had resolved to cut across the yards. When he had gone but a short distance he was stopped by a line of freight cars, but, sooner than go around, he stooped down to crawl underneath. Just as he was drawing himself over the first rail. the cars began to move, and although he immediately tried to scramble out from his dangerous position, his right leg was caught, and the wheels passed over it just below the knee. Unperceived James, a yard engine had been coupled to the cars, and started to shunt them down the yard, with the above result. The unfortunate min called out, and willing hands carried him to the ound-house. A doctor was called, and ifter bandaging the injured limb, order-d that the ambulance be called to re-nove him to the hospital. Mr. James is not a young man, by any means, and he has received a severe shock. Mr. Justice Britton has handed down the following decision in the action of Carpenter vs. Judd, tried at Sarnia. It was brought to set aside a chattel mort-gage and for an account. Letters of ad-ministration of estate of Joseph Carpen-ter, her husband, were granted to plain-tiff by the surrogate court of Lambton, on Sept. 26, 1898, and she advertised sub-sequently for creditors. Defendent did sequently for creditors. Defendant did not prove his claim, alleging now that plaintiff requested him not to do so. The defendant obtained from plaintiff thereafter three promissory notes for $125 15, $58 60 and $22 50, the first two representing claims against her husband accruing in 1889 and 1891, with interest added, and In 1889 and 1891, with interest added, and the third for an indebtedness of plaintiff herself as surety for her son. Defendant then paid off a chattel mortgage for $75 held by one Correy on certain of plaintiff's goods, but without her knowledge, and subsequently obtained from her a chattel mortgage for $296.25, including the amount of the notes, the Correy mort-gage and other small items, and subsequently sold the goods under his own mortgage, realizing $483 69. Held, that the plaintiff, at the time of the giving of the notes and at the time of giving the chattel mortgage, did not understand the transactions owing to her mental condi-tion; that defendant, after paying cer-tain claims against plaintiff, was liable to account for $400 69, and that there was due to him thereout of $234 99, leaving a balance of $165 70 and $12 42 for interest due to plaintiff, for whom judgment is to be entered for $178 12 and costs on county court scale, without sef-off, Statement of claim may be amended if process. ment of claim may be amended if necessary. PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S TURKEY.

Mr. Roosevelt will carve his own turkey, which will be a Rhode Island bird of the finest breed. Each year, at Thanksgiving time, the noblest gobbler in all that little state is sent to the President of the United States, being selected with utmost care by an old gentleman named Horace Vose, of Westerly, who for more than a quarter of a century has taken pride in making this annual contribution to the table of the White House. Mr. Vose is a sort of likeness of David Harum in real life, with gray hair and heavy gray eyebrows. He does not raise poultry himself, but is a dealer in fowls and horses on a wholesale scale. In response to his gift Mr. Vose will receive from Secretary Cortelyou a pleasant little note of acceptance; inscribed in neat typescript on the notepaper of the executive mansion. The missive will be sealed with the presidetn's own seal in red wax bearing the eagle for the coat of arms of the United States. Mr. Vose has a number of such letters, one for every year since 1873, which he has carefully preserved. In 1873 Mr. Vose sent his first Thanksgiving turkey to the White House, addressed to President Grant. It was a magnificent bird, tipping the scales at 32 pounds, after being dress-ed. Before it was dressed it welghed over 40 pounds—a large, but extraordinary, weight for a Rhode Island gobbler. The Rhode Island turkeys are the finest in the world, being fed on white corn and buckwheat, sweet apples and such huckleberries and chestnuts as they pick up for themselves, with the addition of the toothsome, though occasional grass-One side of the breast of Mr. Roose velt's turkey will bear the inscription:

THANKSGIVING

The words will be surrounded with a framework of small stars, these and the letters being made by pricking the flesh with hot needles, after the bird has been killed. The idea is that the inscription shall be legible when the fowl is placed steaming on the table before the president.

Of course, anybody who wishes to do so may send a turkey to the president, and the reasonable expectation is that it shall not be refused. while gifts of extensive value offered chief executive or , to any member of his family are invariably declined, such things as choice edibles or drinkables, or even smokables are accepted as a rule. It is always the policy of the occupant of the White House in such matters to be courteous while avoiding embarrassing obliga-

Ordinarily, from half a dozen to twenty gobblers are received at the White House every Thanksgiving, and likewise at Christmastide, so that the giver of such a fowl can by no means take it for granted that his own bird will appear on the presidential table. There would not even be room for them all in the great twostory oaken ice-chest in the basement, which holds the family supply of provisions. On the other hand there is no danger of their going to waste, inasmuch as they are distributed among the clerks employed in the establishment.

THE TURKEY SUPPLY. It is estimated that at least 6,000,000 turkeys will be required this year for the Thanksgiving festival. Accepting nine pounds, it appears that the peo-ple of the United States will consume cars, as they are ordinarily transported, 1,000 birds to the car, this number of turkeys would make about 9,000 carloads, and would require for be taken up this year. Practically all of these turkeys are raised in small flocks by farmers in various parts of the country, from whom they are purchased by buyers. The finest varieties are the Narragansett and the genuine bronze, the latter having a decided streak of wild

Of late young turkeys of two or six pounds have come into fashion, and large numbers of them are consumed at that age early in the year, being hatched in May. The finest turkeys in the United States are raised in Rhode Island, hear the Connecticut line, and they fetch 35 cents a pound in the market. Every year the wild turkeys are becoming more scarce, though formerly exceedingly plentiful in this country—so much so, in fact, that Audubon, the naturalist, found them selling in Kentucky in year. RE BILL-POSTING. At the next meeting of No. 3 committee, Engineer Graydon will recommend in regard to bill posters that licenses be issued giving only certain persons the right to post bills. This he considered would be a great benefit, as at present anyone and everyone may paste or tack up signs and posters on fences, trees and telegraph poles, and so disfigure the city. By granting licenses, the matter can be easily regulated.

During the supper many popular toasts were drunk, and afterwards an interesting programme was rendered. The members voted the evening as one of the most enjoyable in the club's history. Thanksgiving Day had almost dawned when the affair teminated.

CITY ENGINEER MAKES A REPORT

Considers Street Watering Question in Detail.

Recommends a Five-Year Contract With the Street Railway Company for Cars and Water.

Engineer Graydon has prepared the following report on street watering, as instructed by the city council. It contains the following recommendations: The present area should be continued, but certain streets might be struck out, although in so doing the contracts would not be made lower, but the property owners would be re-lieved of the rate. Streets outside of the area should be watered in accordance with a petition of a majority of the ratepayers, as provided by the municipal act. The provi-sion of the act should be adhered to, and in case of a minority requiring the block watered, they should be made to pay for the frontage of those opposing This would overcome the difficulty where a street is watered against the wish of the owners representing a majority of the frontage, and again where a majority of the owners cannot have a street watered because a majority of the frontage is opposed to them. No portion of a block should watered, the whole block or none should be done. The cost of watering the market square, Victoria Park and portions of streets in front of city property should be taken out of the general fund, the cost to be reckoned by frontage. The stores fronting on the market

should be charged frontage. The board of education should pay for the frontage of the schools, the same as an ordinary citizen.

In assessing frontage of corner lots in the residential portions, the total frontage should be assessed, and 120 feet on the side should be exempted, the same as in sewer construction. If used as a lawn the entire frontage should be assessed. Broken frontages entirely unsuitable for building purposes should be exempt entirely. The engineer could not suggest or think of any method that would not leave to the discretion of the officer whose duty it is to enter the rates upon the tax rolls, the charging of half the total frontage of corner lots only in outlying or residential parts of the

The cost of inspection and repairs to carts, and the buying of new carts, should be paid out of the general funds, as all ratepayers enjoy the benefit, and it would not be equitable to charge the cost upon those who pay to have their streets watered. The amount charged for water by the commissioners is unreasonable, but the engineer did not think better terms could be secured by making a five or ten years' contract with them. Each year's street watering account should be closed at the end of the year, the same as other accounts. One year's deficits should not be part of the following year's account, nor should the surplus of one year be set apart to reduce the cost of street watering for the succeeding year.

report closed with mendation that the committee and city council endeavor to make a contract with the London Street Railway Company for watering the streets traversed by the cars, and provide the water for the same. By entering into a five or seven years' contract the street railway company would probably be inclined to deal favorably with the city, but not for a shorter period, on account of having to purchase suitable tank-

Thanksgiving Time.

Thanksgiving Day is bully fun, o' course.
I'm glad it's near,
'Cause all my cousins, uncles, aunts, they comes to dinner here. An' say, we have the finest time! An' when the turkey's carved, Me an' the other kids, ma says, acts like we most was starved. But, say! We ain't starved, really, but the table looks so good, Us little chaps each wants to eat the most, an' if we could, We'd pick out all the white meat an' the dressin', an' we might—

But, shucks! Course, we don't say so, for that wouldn't be polite.

Then, after dinner's over, we all try to reckon out.

The awful lot of things we should feel full of thanks about.

We're full of turkey; that's one thing that we give thanks for first,

An' pa says he'll be thankful if we young ones doesn't burst.
