The Conservative Counsel Still Trying

Friday Morning.

Judges Ferguson and Robertson took their seats promptly at 10 o'clock. The court room was well filled.

Justice Ferguson gave his judgment in regard to the application by the petitioner's rounsel yesterday to add certain particulars to those already in. The learned judges held that the case was not sufficiently made out to grant the request.

Hon. S. H. Blake to Mr. Osler—I presume you were handicapped with the quantity you have.

JOHN W. LITTLE. Mr. J. W. Little was the first witness Mr. J. W. Little was the first witness called upon. He was shown a copy of the London Advertiser with the report of the public meeting, at which Mr. C. S. Hyman was nominated, and was asked to name those whom he remembered were on the platform at the time. Mr. Little recollected M. Masuret, Fred Saunders, George Belton, J. W. Jones, George M. Reid, J. B. McKillop, Frank E. Leonard, Charles W. Leonard, J. D. LeBel, Fred Harper and John Macpherson as being present.

Mr. Osler produced another copy of the

Mr. Osler produced another copy of the ADVERTISER, dated Feb. 19, with report of another public meeting and containing the names of those on the platform. Mr. Little was only there a short time, however, and could not remember any of those who were there excepting Col. Lewis.

Hon. S. H. Blake at this juncture informed the court that if the petitioners would make out a list of those names they required, he would facilitate the matter by going over the list and furnishing the names of these committeemen. He, Mr. Blake, was sorry the books could not be produced and would do his best to repair the omission.

Mr. Osler then questioned Mr. Little about shir. Osier then questioned Mr. Little about the finances of the election. Witness said he had subscribed himself, but did not know how much had been put up. Mr. George Reid had the book.

Q.—Did you pay out any money? A.—About 82 75.

Q .- Cheap class of voters, weren't they? Q.—Cheap class of voters, weren't they?

A.—I bought no votes, sir.

Mr. Blake objected against the imputation and Mr. Osier said it was a joke.

Mr. Osier—Did you have anything to do with the bringing in of voters? A.—Nc; I only prepared a list of absentees for the Central Committee.

A.—I bought no votes, sir.

Mr. Blake objected against the imputation and Mr. Osier said it was a joke.

Mr. Osler—Did you have anything to do with the bringing in of voters? A.—No; I only prepared a list of absences for the Central Committee.

Q.—Did you know about the special train? A.—I heard nothing about it until it was mentioned in court yesterday.

Mr. Little was then examined as to his connection with the appointment of scrutineers. He said he appointed the outside scrutineers in six divisions of No.1 ward. He remembered some of their names as follows: Charles Elliott, George Ward, John A. Campbell, James Fairbairn, Alex. Macfie, John I. Anderson, Fred. Robinson, Dan. McLeod, derson.

Q.—Did Fred. T. Trebilcook act as one of the day of the election saying that the voters there wanted tickets. Witness wrote back that he could not do and not let the matter drop. Mr. Little was questioned as to the construction of the hall. There was a large central hall and committee rooms off this.

Mr. Blake—Then it does not follow that any person seen in that place is a committeeman, a messenger or a worker at all?

Mr. Little—No; the enemy might come in teo.

Mr. Little—Aro; the enemy might come in, too.

Mr. Blake—You had no tylers or masters of the gold stick? A.—No.
Q.—Were there any illegal or improper acts in your work? A.—No.
Q.—Did you warn your people not to do anything that would not be right?. A.—I did so upon every opportunity.

did so upon every opportunity.
Q.—As far as you believe, your instructions were carried out? A.—Yes.
Mr. Osler—I object.
Mr. Blake—Why?
Mr. Osler—It's a blind belief.
Mr. Blake—It's better than you, with no belief at all. (Laughter.)
Mr. Blake (to witness)—Does it follow that the men on the platform in these publie meeting were Liberal workers?
Mr. Little—No; I have often seen Conservatives in the wings.

servatives in the wings.

Mr. Blake—You hold out the lamp to the last. (Laughter.)

Mr. Blake—Who is this Trebilcock you were asked about? A.—A wholesale jeweler. He said he would not work on a committee, but he was anxious for free trade, as he could make more money by putting his goods in the American market.

Mr. Blake—He seems like a sensible man. You know nothing of what he did in the election, then? A.—No.

Q.—Did you ever see that box spoken about yesterday in the rooms? A.—Occasionally; I took some blank voters' lists out of it. I was not aware of anything else being in the box.

Mr. Blake then asked Mr. Little about Mr. Blake then asked Mr. Little about charge 65, which alleged that Daniel Regan, Frank Leonard, George M. Reid and J. W. Little, license commissioners, and Robert Henderson, Heense inspector, practiced intimidation on hotel-keepers and other license-holders with a view to making them not vote for Hon. John Carling.

Mr. Little said he had not been a license commissioner for three wars. The present

Q.—Did Fred. T. Trebilcock act as one?

A.—I do not know.

Q.—Had you a conversation with him about the election? A.—Yes, I asked him to act on a committee.

Q.—What did he say? A.—He said he would not work on a committee; that he was not a politician, but he was working for free trade.

Q.—Did he work? A.—I have redeath.

Q.—Did you know John P. Evans in the election? A.—No.
Mr. Blake admitted that all whom Mr. Little had said were committeemen were on committees.

Mr. Blake—Do you know anything of this? A.—I did not enther directly.

Justice Ferguson remarked that Mr. Little's evidence could not be more positive.

Mr. Blake then examined Mr. Little on charge 242, charging that several people, amongst them Mr. Little, had subscribed large sums of money for the purpose of influencing electors to vote for Mr. Hyman.

Mr. Blake—Do you know anything of this? A.—I did not enther the properties.

Charge 100 dealt with the bringing in outside voters, and charged that the expenses of non-resident voters in Toronto, Brantford and Chicago were paid to come to London on election day and vote for Mr. Hyman, or that they were given free ridge.

Mr. Hyman, or that they were given rides.

Mr. Blake, to witness—Did you pay the expenses of Wm. Hewitt, a Brantford manufacturer, to bring him here, or did you pay him any money in that election? A.—I did not.

Mr. Blake said that these charges in-lined ashers living in Chicago, Brantford

Q.—With Daniel Mackenzie? A.—Never spoke to him.

Q.—Did you have any talk about the election with Robert Henderson, license Q.—Whom did you sand to see him? A.—Nobody; I don't know of any talk with him connected with the election.

Mr. District of this election?

Mr. Little—I did not.

Mr. Blake—Do you know of any arrangements whereby tickets were to be given to master during the election?

Mr. Little—I are to deal of work to be done.

Mr. Blake—Are you aware of any. In the past few days.

Cross-examined by Mr. Osler—I heard possible for the rigs?

Q.—What arrangements did your committee make for meeting outside voters coming in? A.—I don't know. All we had to do was to send the names of absentees to the secretaries and they attended to them, yourself? A.—Very little.

Q.—Did you do personal canvassing yourself? A.—Very little.

Q.—Did you arrange for any volunteer rigs in No. 1 ward? A.—No.
Q.—Who did? A.—My ward committee did nothing in regard to that. A list was called for in the newspapers.

Mr. Osler said that as Mr. Little desired to be relieved from attending the court, he would consent to go on with the personal charges against him.

Mr. Little, examined by Mr. Blake—My work was simply to organize and superintend the canvassing in most of the cutside vote would be attended to by others. He could not say who told him. The arrangements for the rigs to be used on election day were not discussed in his committee.

Court adjourned at 12:50 p.m. for an in question.

Mr. Reid said the box came to his premises after the election about the middle of March. It was locked at the time and had not been broken into as described. Witness went away in July, and when he returned it was gone. He opened it before he went away as he wanted something in the box, and having no key unloosened the screws to secure admittance. He got a list of the committees from the box and gave it to Mr. Hyman. His warehouse was a convenient place to put the box, as it was next door to the rooms. He had destroyed the subscription list. The total amount was about $2,000. He could not say whether the book was destroyed before the protest was filed or not. He paid money out when it was required, but kept no account. More money was collected afterwards and deposited in the bank in the name of James Magee, the financial agent.

Mr. Blake offered to get the checks if a desired.

Witness continuing said he sent the list of Toronto voters to Thomas Reid, his brother, a barrister in Toronto, asking him to see them and try to get them to come up. He remembered the names of John C. Campbell, Fred. J. Keast, J. B. Laing, G. S. T. Bryce, John Rhodes, John E. Chester, L. K. Cameron, Colin Noble, Charles and H. Hunter, H. H. Job, J. J. McPhillips, N. T. Wilson, H. G. Cook and Joseph Gordon as being on the list. Witness wrote to H. M. Elliott, of Chicago, and about a dozen more in that city. J. W. McIntoch, Thomas McGoey and H. Schabacker wree the only names he remembered on the list, which was prepared by Fred Saunders. The list was sent to Mr. Elliott, who wrote saying that the voters there wanted tickets. Witness wrote back that he could not do that, and to let the matter drop. He got a telegram the day of the election saying that the voters were coming, and he met some of them at the station.

Q.—Did you correspond with Mr. Press.

Mr. Hardy was present in court. He did not have the list, but produced a receipt for his ticket made out by the G. T. R.

T. R.

Q.—Did you write to Buffalo? A.—
Yes; wa sent a printed circular to all within reasonable distance. He did not ascertain that there were any tickets.
Q.—Where did you get the special train?
A.—I know nothing about it, except that I got a letter from my brother saying the London voters would arrive about noon.
Mr. Osler, along the line of agency.

London voters would arrive about noon.

Mr. Osler, along the line of agency establishment, began the examination of George M. Reid. Several names were mentioned, but witness could not say whether they were agents or not.

To Mr. Blake—Did not know what was in that box placed in my warehouse excepting the books that were required. There was one general fund, and witness was the first surer. The financial agent's statement of expenses amounted to $1,907,30, besides a check of $37 paid by Mr. Hyman, and a small balance remained in the bank. The sub-committees were instructed to send in the names of the outside votes in their respective divisions. Witness was at the station when the Chicago train came in. Only three or four voters came; he supposed those who could better afford it did so.

Q.—Are you aware of any money being expended corruptly, or of any persons being repaid for money they expended corruptly?

Q.—Have you any reason to suppose they did not pay their own fares? A.—No.

Mr. Reid gave the same answer to questions regarding voters from other places.
Q.—Who was responsible for the carriage of voters from trains to the polling boths? A.—I was.
Q.—Then it is not surprising that Mr. A.—I was.
Q.—Then it is not surprising that Mr. A.—I was.
Q.—Was this box discussed in the committee rooms? A.—I heard nothing about this? A.—Certainly not; it was no part of his duty.

Witness explained that people would have to pass through the rooms below in the Albert Hall to get into the larger room upstairs, where entertainments were frequently held. It would not follow that persons passing through were committees.

Witness—In every instance I wrote them Witness explained that people would have to pass through the rooms below in the Albert Hall to get into the larger room upstairs, where entertainments were frequently held. It would not follow that persons passing through were committeemen; they might be either Conservatives or Reformers. The lower room was partitioned off into committee rooms.

Questioned about assistants, Mr. Reid said that no one was employed unless his service was needed. There was a good deal of work to be done.

Mr. Blake—Are you aware of any sorrupt or illegal acts in connection with this election. A.—I am not aware of any. I endeavored to conduct it honeatly and properly.

Mr. Blake desired to read a simple would have worked whether I was paid or not.

day.
Mr. Osler—The Hamilton way was to sign them by the scrutineers at the booths.
Mr. Blake—My honorable friend introduced it there. It has not got so far west

At this stage the bank account of the Liberal party at last election was produced. Mr. Blake made it out to be $1.882 50 paid in; $1.752 82 paid by checks; balance in bank, $159 67.

ALEX. D. HARDY,
barrister, Brantford—I formerly practiced law here, and interested myself in promoting Liberal principles; I got a list of voters from the last witness, and visited those mentioned, and requested them strongly to go to London; I urged them with nothing else but words; got no tickets, and did not know of any tickets being given; I produce a receipt from the ticket agent at Brantford; I asked him if it was true they were carrying voters free; he said he did not know, but perhaps it was so, and I had better take a receipt.

To Judge Robertson—This is simply a receipt for my own ticket.

To Mr. Osler—Some of the voters could ill afford to come, I think, but I did not see them get free ticket; I know nothing whatever of any arrangement for free riding; it was a rumor.

Mr. Osler—It was in the air.

ing; it was a rumor.
Mr. Osler—It was in the air.
Mr. Blake—It came from the C. P. R. (Laughter.)
To Mr. Justice Ferguson-The ticket agent suggested I should take a receipt, and I took a ticket and a receipt; the and a tooke and a receipt; the ticket agent offered me a receipt.

To Mr. Osler—You did not learn to file away a receipt in London?

Witness—Why not in London?

Mr. Osler—Well, they don't do it in London. (Lauphter.)

London. (Laughter.)
To Mr. Blake—I took a receipt to show this, chiefly, that I wished to come at my own expense; the agent said he knew nothing about free tickets; some of the voters came upon the train; never heard of anyone coming upon free tickets.

Mr. Hardy—So far as I know the agent gave the same reply to others. There were ten came from Brantford, but they came on a telegram the day of the election saying that the voters were coming, and he met some of them at the station.

Q.—Did you send a telegram to Elliott?
A.—No. Fred Saunders might have sent one.
Q.—Did you correspond with Mr. Preston about that Chicago vote? A.—No; I did not correspond with him about any voters.
Q.—What did you do about the Brant-was running them. (Laughter.)

trains. He must have known the C. F. R. was running them. (Laughter.)
FRED W. SAUNDERS.
Fred W. Saunders was examined by E. Meredith, Q.C. Witness said he was appointed one of the Liberal secretaries. He heard nothing about his remuneration until after the election; he might have expected it and compared to the contraction.

after the election; he might have expected to get some remuneration.
Q.—You are a voter? A.—Yes.
Q.—Was your vote talked about before you undertock this work? A.—No.
Mr. Blake objected to the line of questioning. The examination was upon agency only and not upon a particular charge.

Justice Ferguson sustained the objection.
Witness, continuing—I wrote letters to outside voters; the letters were put in a drawer; never saw them since the night before the election; did not hear any of these letter being discussed in the committee rooms; witness never saw any letters from Mr. Preston, although he saw a telegram; it contained nothing about the letters from Mr. Preston, although he saw a telegram; it contained nothing about the outside vote. Witness never wrote out any telegrams to Mr. Preston, and had nothing to do with him. He understood letters were received about the outside vote from Brantford, Toronto, Buffalo, Hamilton and other places.

Q.—Was anything said about funds in these letters to outside voters? A.—When they mentioned that I always wrote and told them that we would not furnish money.—

and told them that we would not furnish money—

Mr. Meredith—Never mind what you wrote. Did you hear anything about tickets being issued? A.—No.
Q.—Do you know anything about the Chicago vote? A.—No.
Q.—Do you know anything about this box? A.—No.
Q.—Was this box discussed in the committee rooms? A.—I heard nothing about it.

said, was only on agency grounds, and not criminal.

Mr. Blake admitted that Mr. Osler's contention would be correct it his learned friend had confined himself to agency.

Justice Ferguson said the presumption was that the election so far had been an honest one and therefore the evidence was not needed. When it was required he would admit it.

To Mr. Osler—I directed the rigs at the station; they were there when I got there, but I don't know who sent them; the subdiarman sent in the list; believe D. Ferguson had something to do with it.

Judge Ferguson—Is the word rig a correct one.

Mr. Osler—I think it is; it includes the whips.

Mr. Osler—I think it is; it includes the whips.

Mr. Blake—Oh, yes, my lord it's in webster's dictionary.

Mr. Osler—Yes, and it's in every election trial. (Laughter.)

Witness continued—Know not what rigs were got; did not get Hueston's.

To Mr. Blake—We advertised for teams; a mong others Mr. McGuffin, of Thorndale, came in in answer to the advertisement.

To Judge Robertson—The teamster when he went to the voter presented a ticket, announcing that he was working for Mr. Hyman.

Judge Robertson—Are there any tickets left?

Witness—I have seen more since election day

Mr. Blake—If this evidence prove another charges it is not sufficient for this.

The charges were that W. T. R. Preston and the majority of the leading Liberals in London, carned appenied Special C. T. R.

The charges were that W. T. R. Preston and the majority of the leading Liberals in London charges were that W. T. R. Preston and the majority of the leading Liberals in London charging to demonst a presumption of the sampler train to bring voters from Toronto to London, and also that these apenied Sp. T. R.

The charges were that W. T. R. Preston and the majority of the leading Liberals in London corrupt hirde a special G. T. R.

The hadden and the rection to London charge expenses of these men.

Mr. Blake—If the majority of the leading Liberals in London charge in the majority of the leading Liberals in London charg to Windsor; they took the bill for the London train off. I came to no terms with Mr. Whyte about the train, but told him it was for the London voters; it was well understood we were not to pay for it.

To Mr. Justice Ferguson—I meant the Globe Company when I said "we."

To Mr. Blake—I simply arranged that the G. T. R. would send up a special train leaving between 8 and 9. No arrangement was to be made as to whether we were to pay or not to pay. For anything I knew they were to pay their own tickets; on the day following we sent out several special trains; in rendering the account I imagined they charged me with an election train; they returned a bill corrected, but I still think we owe them for the train from train; they returned a bill corrected, but I still think we owe them for the train from London to Windsor; my contention was that the original bill was correct, but that they took out the train from Toronto to London, instead of charging it as for the train from London to Windsor on the 6th. To Judge Ferguson—They did not bill the Globe Company for this train.

Mr. Osler—The auditor is nere; you can pay him for it now.

Up till now the counsel for the petitioner had taken up the time of the court endeavoring to establish a groundwork of agency. They now began the trial of the individual charges on the list. The first witness called was

ROBERT A. CARROTHERS. Robert A. Carrothers, sworn-I am hotel-keeper at the corner of Waterloo and Horton streets. Was not an active worker for Mr. Hyman. Went out once with David Sare, who was canvassing in my district to show him places he desired to go to; witness canvassed no man alive committee. rassed no man alive; committee meeting vassed no man alive; committee meetings were not held at his hotel, although canvassers sometimes met there. He recollected that John Clark, Charles Stevens, Finlay McNeill, Peter McVean, David Sare, A. Talbot and F. E. Leonard were there at different times. After they had been canvassing they would meet there to mark over their books.

Q.—Was Frank Leonard a license commissioner then? A.—He was not.

Q.—Was liquor brought to your establishment to distribute? A.—Yes.

Q.—What time? A.—The day before drinking the beer in the room. Ed. Fountain, James Butts and J. Innes helped him missioner then? A.—He was not.

Q.—Was liquor brought to your stablishment to distribute? A.—Yes.
Q.—What time? A.—The day before the election.
Q.—Who mordered it? A.—Ed. Halpin, a young man who lived near me.
Q.—How much? A.—Three small kegs.
Q.—Who did you give it to? A.—Halpin, Fountain and Phoenix.
Q.—Who may as t going to? A.—I don't know. I was told it was going to the Waterloo street school house.
Q.—Who was at your tavern when the liquor left? A.—There were about 50 there.
Q.—Name some of them? A.—Among of there who bought drinks were Wm. J. Reid, J. R. Minhinnick, George Priddis and F. T. Trebilcock. There was no all-round treat. Don't think there was $\frac{1}{2}$ spent at one time. Would not swear, whether Thos. Hobbs treated or not. Mr. Leonard did not treat; I don to think was the colored band room; Frank Halpin ordered that liquor; one keg of lager went was not at my hotel to a band room—the colored band room; Frank Halpin ordered that liquor; one keg of lager went was working for Hyman; supposed Halpin was working for Hyman; supposed Hyman was used to the supposed Hyman was used to the supposed Hyman was used to th sume.

Mr. Meredith-What is your presumption?

Mr. Blake—Presumption is not evidence.
Mr. Justice Ferguson—It is not.
Examination continued—It was not arranged to go to that meeting. I heard there was to be a time up there. It was not discussed who was to be at the meeting, Maurice Baldwin took the liquor in a hack to the rooms; the bandroom was a small place, but it was pretty well filled; most of those present were colored; the white people embraced Wm. Niles; Mr. Hyman was not there; speeches were made about the election. D wm. Niles; Mr. Hyman was not there; speeches were made about the election; D. Sare made a speech—(laughter)—Chas. Stovens spoke, Williams, a colored barber, spoke; saw the barrel, but it was exhausted before weegot there (laughter); did not see Niles at it; saw no bottles of whisky or taste it there or anything of that nature; saw no bottled ale; some biscuits were left; think I walked home; did not talk to anybody there; didn't feel I had anything to do with the election, though it smelt pretty strong in there. home; did not talk to anybody there; didn't feel I had anything to do with the election, though it smelt pretty strong in there. (Laughter.) Only on these two occasions did liquors go to my place. A bottle of whisky was sold to Halpin as he went to the school house. There was not a subscription taken up for the band that night; did not see a Mr. Harper, barrister, there that night; got home that night about 20 minutes to 12 o'clock; left the company there; did not attend a meeting at Jennings' Hotel to talk elections in all my life. Can't tell exactly what Halpin's first name is; I paid for the beer that went there; Halpin asked me for the bill, and that was the last of it; I understood he would settle with me; did not know where he was to get the money. To Justice Ferguson—Nobody has paid for the liquor.

Q.—How much lager beer is there in a keg? A.—Eight gallons in a quarter and sixteen in a half. Lager is pretty weak. A quarter keg is $1 75. The lager cost $12 25. The whisky cost 40 cents or 50 cents. It was not Carling's lager (laughter), but Walkerville.

Justice Robertson—That is the worse or Mr. Carling; you treated his friends with another man's beer. (Renewed laughter. Mr. Blake—Yes, that is the reason for this charge. (More laughter.)

Witness—I can produce the bill if you want it.

speeches. There was more fun than politics going on.

Q.—Was Mr. Judd at your hotel the night before the election? A.—Yes.
Q.—Mr. Priddis, Mr. Minhinnick, Mr. W. J. Reid were there treating? A.—Treating themselves. A great many people were out in my hotel and all over the city the night before the election.

Alexander Irvine, local agent of the Walkerville Brewing Company, sworn—I sold the beer for the colored band meeting; Robert Carrothers ordered it; I sold thirteen imperial gallons, which I deflivered at the band-room about 3 p.m. on March 2—I think. Another half-barrel went to Carrothers' house on March 3. On March 4 he ordered a half-barrel and a two-

Fred Phoenix sworn—I am not a voter;
I helped clean the school house the morning of the meeting and was at the meeting.
Q.—Did you leave the school house?
A.—Yes; I left for supper and on a couple of errands to Mr. Carrothers'; I took some beer down to the school house from Mr.
Carrothers', place on Feash Halpin's order. Carrothers' place on Frank Halpin's order; I had a nap in the avening, and on waking up found the room full; went over for the beer about an hour after the meeting commenced; witness saw people drinking the beer in the room. Ed. Foun-tain, James Butts and J. Innes helped him bring the beer. He knew of nothing done

"The Advertiser" advocates Contiand as early as possible after, free trade with the whole world.

"The Advertiser" looks forward with hope to Canada's future as that of an Independent Canadian Nationality, in equally friendly alliance with the United States and with Great Britain, believing that such a status would be best for Canada, best for Great Britain, and promotive of the best attainable relawith the United States. As to Imperial Federation, sometimes spoken of, the ADVERTISER as yet has seen nothing proposed that bears any stamp of practicability, and in any case infinitely prefers the grander and more really hopeful scheme a federation of the English-speaking peoples of the world.

"The Advertiser" advocates prohibition of the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquor; and all expedient general legislation and persuasion in the meantime.

"The Advertiser" is an advocate of rights for Women, whether as regards the franchise, or equal wages for equal work.

"The Advertiser" is a believer in Christian Union, and considers the time has come when the various Christian denominations should come closer together. Those bodies which are now nearest should unite first. Under the present system there is an unjustifiable waste of men, means and effort. The ADVERTISER will endeavor to promote the movement for Christian union not alone by direct appeal and argument, but by seeking to present the best rather than the worst side of each

The next trial on the rolls in this Prov ence is that in East Elgin, where Mr. Ingram's claim to the seat is strongly contested by the Liberals. It is asserted that he will be unseated. In Nova Scotia, some half a dozen Conservative members tried to prevent the petitions rich man's son can have a vote, though he against them being heard on a legal quibble, but the judges have ruled that they cannot escape investigation on any such plea, and days of trial have been fixed. The result meanwhile is to throw the large majority of the trials of Jonservative cases over for a few weeks, rials that have taken place.

If the Tuppers, the Fosters, and the Dickeys had been as ready to face the election courts as their fellow M. P.s on the other side of the House, the little tables pould not have been drawn up; but before Christmas there will be another story PREMATURE CHUCKLING.

allooing before it is out of the thicket. It gloats over the fact that there was a partial failure of justice in disposing of the London Liberal objections to bad names on the city voters' lists, and it adds that "the notices have been declared invalid by the judge and the appeals don't go! Ha!" Like others of its kind, the Planet was a trifle too previous. If it had waited to exclaim "Ho!" it would have found that the Court of Appeal, composed of Chief Justice Armour, Judges Falconbridge and Street, have unanimously decided that the appeals do go. And why should they not? our contemporary rejoice when it knows that a gross injustice has been attempted?

IT HURTS US ALL How the high tax policy has helped the farming industry of Ontario, enabled the farming community to buy more city manufactures, kept our factories humming and increased the pay of the workingmen, is seen by the following specimen sale of farm land in the fine old farming region of the Bay of Quinte. The Picton Times vouches for the truthfulness of the incident:

or the truthfulness of the incident:

"The John Young farm in Hillier was sold at auction on Saturday. The price was $2,270. There are 100 acres and good buildings. Some seven years ago $6,700 was refused for this farm. The property was sold to satisfy a mortgage to John Waring and the amount realized just covered this claim. There was a second mortgage on the premises amounting with interest to $3,500 in favor of James Porter, of Picton."

Apart from the combines few men are Apart from the combines, few men are benefited by the so-called N.P. It takes money from every consumer of products in every part of the country, and gives it to a few wealthy millionaires in Montreal and Toronto, to the serious loss of the legitimate industries in cities like London. the chief employers of labor in London if

BACHELOR'S OPPOSITION TO WOMAN SHEERAGE

The St. Thomas Journal takes strong ground against admitting woman to vote. This is how our contemporary reasons it

"She already has the power of influence "She already has the power of influencing legislation. She may not exercise it directly, but it is none the less real. She is represented at the ballot box by her husband or her father, just as that husband or father is represented in the halls of legislation by the man he helps to send to them. The power that is exercised direct is not the only, nor the most potent, power. All authority exercised in public affairs in Canada to-day is delegated, and though the hand may appear gated, and though the hand may appear the hand of the man, the voice is often that of the woman. Conscious of this, strong in the knowledge that she is part and parcel of the state, as her husband is part and parcel of the home, appreciating the fact that her influence, subtily exerted working through agencies other than the caucus and the polling-booth, is writing large and deep upon the pages of the nation's history, woman is not prepared to cry for the shadow when she has the substance."

The argument is plausible, but it is not certain extent, woman influences legislation through husband or father, we in where women have not trusted to husbands and fathers, but have supplemented their persuasive powers with their ballots, they have effected greater changes for good than could possibly have been accomplished without the agency of the polling booth, May we ask the editor of our contem porary who, if we mistake not, is not yet nimself a husband or father, how he is so confident that all men are subject to the influence of women when they go to the ot, either directly or indirectly, in by either wife, daughter or sister?

Then is it not equally true that there are an increasingly large number of women in Canada dependent upon their own exertions for earning their livelihood, who are compolled to leave home and seek employment elsewhere? These women are just as intelligent as the majority of men in similar walks of life. They are abler to decide between right and wrong than many men who now have opportunity to be heard at the polls. They have to earn the money with which to buy heavily-taxed goods to wear and te eat, yet they have no share in the selection of the men who make the laws that enforce the collection of these taxes. Then there are widows with young families, struggling to make the next, and handicapped by the bad laws that take so much more money from them in taxes than is necessary to sustain an economical government. They may wish to aid in bringing about that better era of lower taxation and greater general prosperity that will enable them tokeep their boys around them, to be husbands to other propole's girls, but they are debarred from the reading farmished, while the propole's girls, but they are debarred from the reading farmished, while the propole's girls, but they are debarred from the reading farmished, while the propole's girls, but they are debarred from the reading farmished, while the propole's girls, but they are debarred from the reading farmished, while the propole's girls, but they are debarred from the reading farmished, while the propole's girls, but they are debarred from the reading farmished, while the propole's girls, but they are debarred from the reading farmished, while the propole's girls, but they are debarred from the reading farmished, while the propole's girls, but they are debarred from the reading farmished, while the propole of the farming farmished, while the propole of the farming farmished and completeness the ablest essent and criticisms, the choicest stories, the most interesting sketches of travel and criticisms, the choicest the collection a by either wife, daughter or sister? Could anything be more unjust? They are thus distranchised, merely because they are women, and there is a hazy idea that, probably by some spiritualistic influence, their male relations, mayhap living in faroff lands, perhaps dead, are having all the influence at the polls which they desire or

TOPICS OF THE DAY.

THE St. Catharines Standard gravely tells its readers that the civic battle is already raging furiously in London. We certainly have to go from home for news. The first gun has yet to be fired on the outposts.

A FEATURE of the induction of Rev. J. A. Brown, late of Belmont, into the pastor-ate of Knox Presbyterian Church, Scarboro, a few days ago, was the excellent music furnished by the Markham Methodist choir. This is a truly advancing

MR. TARTE, M.P., was counted a Conserva tive till it was found that he could not be twisted round the little finger of Mr. Abbott. He is now classed as a Liberal. The independent men these days are coming over to the side of trade freedom and economical government. It is a good

ONE of the oddest charges lodged in an election protest so far is the accusation that the agent for the Liberal M.P. in West Northumberland treated that gen tleman to refreshment with the object of influencing his vote! Mr. Hargraft would surely have enough of confidence in himself to vote for Mr. Hargraft! 111

LE CANADIEN announces that O. E. Mur-phy and R. H. McGreevy are in posses sion of important documents incriminat-ing various leading men in the Conservative ranks. No attempt has been made to extradite these men, though they are indicted for grave charges. Perhaps the Quebec paper explains the reason for inaction on the part of the Dominion au thorities.

A Cobourg, Ont., dispatch says:

"Mr. John Platt, of this town, has shipped 33,000 dozen eggs to Newark, N. J., this season. He says were it not for the duty he could afford to give 5 cents more per dozen for all the eggs he buys in this district. On his Newark shipments the tariff tax amounted to $1,650, which he was obliged to pay before the eggs left the station."

No matter how many eggs are sent to Great Britain, it still remains true that the nearest market is the best for this and all kindred products.

The London ADVERTISER says "it fa asserted by a high tax contemporary that the young men are the backbone of the Liberal party. We think all the more of the Liberal party for that. The side which has the young men with it must succeed," The Liberal young men and the old "war horses" in South Perth are working most harmoniously and will show the kind of timber they are made of whenever the Government choose to bring on the election.

tion, remarks on this latter point: "I have studied much that has been written by Colenso, by Ewald, by Kuenen and by Wellhausen, and the tone of those authors, who write without practical and long experience of the East, at once betrays their deficiency. Their criticism smells of the lamp, not of the desert; and the arguments which seem so strong in their eyes have often little force in those of an Oriental traveler." This may not be decisive, but it is indicative of the fact that the Pentateuch question is not clossed, and that after a little further investigation a very brilliant scholarship may find itself, and not for the first time, mistaken.

A Huge Magnet.

A Huge Magnet.

According to the recent investigations of Prof. Frank H. Bigelow, the vast field of sunlight through which the earth careers in its annual motion around the center of the solar system is also a field of magnetic force radiated from the sun, and the effects arising from the motion of the earth through it suffice to account not only for the variations of the magnetic needle, but also tor the permanent magnetic condition of the globe.

This discovery—for it comes was a superior of the sun and the sun and of the globe.

This discovery—for it seems most probable that further investigation will confirm it as a genuine discovery—is in accordance with the recent conclusions of Professor Hertz as to the intimate relations of light and electricity.

It is a very impressive picture which science is thus beginning to present to us of the solar system—the sun and its family of planets—acting as a great magnetic system, wherein the impulses arising at the center are communicated outward in every direction to bodies hundreds of millions of miles away.

The Decay of Home-Life.

[From December Lippincott's.]

"Pou't tell me that a house which is given over to the servants half the time, father, mother, children, all going separate ways, and always on the rush, a house with gas fires and unopened books, a house in which there is no evening lamp, no morning prayer, no time for music, for talk, for all the cocupations and interests and pleasures that link each to each day by day, year by year, 'in natural piety,'—don't tell me that is a home! I am not sure that most of us want one, we have survived home, perhaps, and prefor a thousand roofs to one nest. The decay of home-life, in our cities at least, is the most striking of all the changes that lotserve after a long absence from my own country. We were once the most domestic of all the nations—drearily so, foreigners said; but that can no longer be made a ground of complaining. I am not complaining. My own idea is to march with the times and look facts in the face. I am for making our houses as plain as possible, containing only the ordinary conveniences provided at trifling cost. Let us furnish our streets and public places of every kind sumptuously, I say—Fifth avenue or Broadway inclosed in glass from November to May, adorned with statusry, bric-a-brac, pictures, easy chairs, comfortable sofas, meals to be served a la carte; from May to November, awnings, ices, cane furniture, paim-leaf fans—in short, modern comforts where we moderns most need them, and that is emphatically abroad and not at home. As an asylum for poor relations, for the temporary screening of intending absconding bank cashiers, for the insane, cases of infectious disease and a few similar purposes, a private house may still be a useful thing to have in the illustration. The Hydrographic Bureau at Washington The Hydrographic Bureau at Washington for two years has been trying to learn something of the characteristics of the Atlantic Ocean as a great moving body of water by means of bottles, containing papers, which have been dropped overboard from vessels in many places, to drift at the mercy of the winds and waves.

Many of these bottles have been found and water highest many citizent its entered.

Many of these bottles have been found and picked up again, either in the open sea or on shores where they had stranded.

Knowing from its records where the bottles had been thrown overboard, the Bureau has been able to trace, in a general way, the path they must have followed in order to reach the places where they were found. In a report published on the 1st of July, this year, and accompanied by a map of the Atlantic, the adventures of 113 bottles are recorded.

our public public variety seat a distinct abuflet attachment, every seat a distinct easychair, a Corot opposite, instead of Epps' eccoa, grateful and comforting, a library of select fiction, cut flowers, good stained glass—no more straw, draughts, banging doors, squeezing and pushing and trampling—discomfort, in short. I am in them on an average two hours daily, and I will give the 'Corot' to the first one set up on these lines. He is my favorite artist, and I shall see a good deal more of him there than where he now hangs—in my wife's Louis Quinze boudoir; and so will she and all her friends: so that I shall not be a selfish brute, but a public benefactor. Our waiting-rooms, are all susceptible of vast the Atlantic, the adventures of 113 bottles are recorded.

Being partially filled with air and then securely corked, the bottles float on the surface of the water and go wherever the wind and the currents of the sea carry them. Each bottle contains a record of the place and the date of its starting. Some of those found have floated for many months on the bosom of the Atlantic and traveled thousands of miles.

It has been found that bottles dropped waiting-rooms, are all susceptible of vast mprovement, and the benevolent millionaire, instead of building public libraries which are used by 500 people in the course of the year—50 of them students, the remainder idlers, loungers and cranks—can make 500,000—millions, in fact—of his fellow-citizens rise up and call him a good fellow and a sensible man, by taking this hint." It has been found that bottles dropped overboard between the shores of the United States and England or France generally travel toward the northeast, following the course of that great river in the ocean called the Gulf Stream. Bottles started off the the Gulf Stream. Bottles started off the coasts of Spain or Africa travel westward until they arrive among the West India Islands. Along the European side of the ocean the bettles take a southerly course, and along the American side a northerly Tobacco smoking in the presence of non-topacco smooting in the presence of non-mokers is unquestionably an invasion of the rights of others, and the Evening Post has done good service in a good cause by publishing some complaints from corre-spondents about this great tobacco smoke Thus, as a result of winds and currents, the whole Atlantic is shown to be slowly circulating round and round, like an enor-mous pool. This accounts for the stories unisance. It is an outrage on the minority that the majority should be permitted to pollute the air we breaths with tobacco make in the way that custom sanctions; there is a more deadly acid in the smoke of tobacco. that were current telunis for the stories that were current in Europe, hundreds of years ago, of strange objects of human manufacture having floated from the new to the old world, thus giving a clue to the existence of undiscovered lands beyond the

there is a more deadly acid in the smoke of tobacco than nicotine itself. Therefore the smoke is not merely unpleasant, but a rank poison, highly deleterious to health. Why this disgusting and injurious nuisance is tolerated by civilized beings is thus correctly accounted for by one of these protesting correspondents: "The cause seems to be two-fold; first, the moral cowardice of the average American. He will allow the filthy nuisance to be perpetrated almost everywhere and as any time without remonstrance, may be cause he is afraid of abuse, or worse yet, of ridicule. Another cause is the entire want of will among the ladies in this matter." The time will come, however, when the tobacco smoke nuisance will be no longer tolerated, and the vile habit of smoking is really a disgrace to our civilization, hesides being a gross injustice to non-timekers. General Thomas was greatly beloved among the private soldiers. As Napoleon became the Little Corporal of his army, so was this man affectionately remembered as "Old Pap Thomas" by the Army of the Cumberland. He was always ready to do the "little kladnesses" which go straight to the propular heart, and once, when he among these the discovery, if established, as it seems to be, that water is an anæsthetic, certainly has a place. The discoverer is Dr. C. L. Sleich, of Berlin. He was conducting experiments with a view of "Well," said the soldier, "that may be, general, but me and my wife ain't that kind!"

thetic, certainly has a place. The discoverer is Dr. C. L. Sleich, of Berlin. He was conducting experiments with a view of determining how weak a solution of cocaine would prove efficacious as a local anesthetic in minor surgical operations, when he stumbled upon the fact that simple water injected under the skin with a syringe rendered the flesh at that point insensible to pain. The method of procedure is very simple. The skin at the point where the injection is to be made is first made perfectly aseptic, then the point of a Pravaz syringe filled with distilled water is inserted. The syringe is slowly emptied, and a white blister appears, similar to that caused by a gnat's sting. The size of the swelling will depend upon the amount of water used. A half minute after the syringe is withdrawn the space distinctly marked by the blister is insensible, and can be cut into without causing pain. The pain caused by the insertion of the syringe can be at once allayed by spraying with ether. To what extent this novel discovery will prove of practical worth in surgery cannot yet be determined, though Dr. Sleich has made use of it successfully in the case of a huge carbuncle on the upper thigh. But it would seem that it will be a great gain to fail the part of the part of the second that it will be a great gain to had, and no less a gain to humanity than to science. Likeness comes from liking. We grow to be like that which we like, and which we reach out after with longing. If we like the pure, we grow in inpurity. If we like the impure, we grow in impurity. Therefore it is that in the end we have what we want, and are as we would like to be "Blessed are they that hunger and thirst: for they shall be filled."

What pretty feet they must have been,
When Cœsar Augustus was Egypt's lord! Somebody graceful and fair you were! Not many girls could dance in these; When did the shoemaker make you dear

Such a nice pair of Egyptian "threes"?

Where were you measured? In Sais, or O. Memphis, or Thebes, or Pelusium? Fitting them featly your brown toes upon, Lacing them deftly with finger and thum! I seem to see you!—so long ago—Twenty centuries—less or more! And here are the sandals; yet none of us know What name, or fortune, or face you bore!

Were you she whom I met at dinner last week With eyes and hair of the Ptolemy black, Who still of this "find" in the Fayoum would And to scarabs and Pharaohs would carry

And seent of lotus around her hung,
She had such a far-away, wistful air
As to somebody born when the earth young, And wore of gilt slippers a lovely pair.

Perchance you were married, These might have been Part of your trousseau—the wedding-shoes;
And you laid them aside with lote-leaves green,
And painted clay-gods which a bride did use;
And maybe to-day, by Nile's bright waters,
Damyels of Egynt in cowns of blue. Damsels of Egypt in gowns of blu Great-great-great-very-great granddaughters Owe their shapely insteps to you?

But vainly I knock at the bars of the past,
Little green slippers with golden strings!
For all you can tell is that leather will last
When love and delights and beautiful things Have vanished, forgotten! Nay! not quite that! I catch some light of the grace you wore

When you finished with Life's daily pit-a-pat,
And left your shoes at Time's bedroomdoor!

TWO MEN. I'wo men toiled side by side from sun to sun, And both were poor; Both sat with children, when the day was

About their door. One saw the beautiful in crimson cloud
And shining moon;
The other, with his head in sadness bowed, Made night of noon.

One loved each tree and flower and singing On mount or plain;
No music in the soul of one was stirred
By leaf or rain.

One saw the good in every fellow-man. And hoped the best;
The other marveled at his Master's plan,
And doubt confessed.

Africa. The New York Evangelist gives the following account of the Living-stonia mission of the Free Church of Sectland. The first-fruits were seven young men and two young women: "These were men and two young women: "These were recently followed by nine others, and these recently followed by nine others, and these more recently by 34, making a native church of 52 members, besides hundreds of hopeful catechamens and inquirers of both sexes. All the converts are missionaries to their countrymen. Including these 52, the number of natives teaching in the mission schools at the close of the year was 120, of whom seven were women; and the number of pupils on the roll was 3,080, of whom 2,422 were in attendance on a given day, besides the children in three schools at the north end of Lake Nyassa."

The Idea of God

The Minong has an interesting article, read at Oxford by Archdoxon Maples, on "The Belation of the Moral Law to the Idea of God to the popular heart, and once, when had refused a boon, was reproved in a way which decidedly amused him.

A private soldier who was very homesick went to headquarters to obtain leave of absence. The general asked him why he wanted a furlough, and the poor fellow replied, in the most dejected manner: themselves as standing in no moral relation to him. They have also a distinct, though neither deep nor wide, apprehension of the moral law, but "as human, not divine." Therefore they have properly no sense of sin. Their belief in God and their belief sin. Their belief in God and their belief in right, having originated independently, have both remained stagnant. But when God, being personal, is presented to them as necessarily standing in a supreme moral relation to them as personal, their consciences, the archdeacon declares, never fail to respond affirmatively. And this awakening apprehension of right and wrong as being also holiness and ain is that which first gives fruitfulness and progressiveness to the previous immemorial stagnancy of their whole spiritual development. whole spiritual development.

For ignorant hopes that were Broken to our blind prayer; For pain, death, sorrow sent Unto eur chastisement; For all loss of seeming good, Quicken our gratitude. W. D. Howells.

Prayer is more than an asking; it is a receiving, a waiting, a learning of God, a converse and communion, in which he has much to say, and we have much to learn.

Christianity, if it means anything, means sixteen ounces to the pound, three feet to the yard, a just weight and just measure. It means honesty in all dealings, purity in all conversation, a charity as broad as the race, unflinching integrity, sympathy, humanity to man, loyalty to God.

Likeness comes from liking. We grow to be like that which we like, and which we reach out after with longing. If we like the pure, we grow in purity. If we like the pure, we grow in purity. If we like the pure, we grow in purity. If we like the pure, we grow in purity. If we like the winted development.

The letter encourages him to forbid the sale of this ruinous traffic, and urges him, in conclusion, in these carnest words: "Keep it out of your country of Gazaland entirely; it is a deadly enemy alike to the chief, to the head men and to the common people." Reports from abroad and by personal testimony unite in exposing the spread of this fearful evil. From Africa the whole we like, and which we reach out after whith land west—from Madagascar, from India, from the South Seas and from Alaska there is a great outery against the white white man's drink, which has recently been introduced there, and assurting him that the Governments of Europe have agreed that strong drink shall not be Atthe 25th anniversary of the China inland mission, a full letter in lieu of a report was read from Mr. Hudson Taylor. In this letter he spoke especially of the new headquarters of an Australasian branch of the society. In giving statements in regard to the work he showed that the number of baptisms reported was 407, as against 536 last year, but the number of unbaptized converts reported is much larger than the year before, more than making up the deficiency. The total number of communicants is over 3,000, more than 4,500 having been baptized from the commencement of the work 26 years ago. The death is announced of the Rev. Dr. Bissell, of the Marathi mission of the Ameri-Bissell, of the Marathi mission of the American Board. Dr. Bissell had spent 40 years in India, and was one of the most able missionaries in that country. His departure was sudden, as he was in his usual health until about two hours before his death. He

The field of operations includes not only the British Isles, but Germany, Austria, Turkey and Russia as well. In Wilna hospital 24,000 were treated last year. And in all, as the report states, "thousands of Jews have been drawn to the cross and throne of Jesus." the world's metropolis who are absolutely confronted by starvation, and whom want and privation render so impaired in vitality that hundreds die yearly from disease arising from this cause. Tickets are given or sold to the children, and when they present them they are furnished with a good, wholesome dinner.

One terribly bleak day last winter, a little half-frozen child presented her ticket, value 2 cents, which made her the owner of a seat at the dinner-table. The little one looked famished, weird; but the plate of appetizing roast mutton remained untouched before her. Observing this, a lady went up to her and asked in tones of kindly accent if she could not eat a little. "You lock so hungry, dear," she said; "don't you like the roast mutton?"

The little one raised a pair of blue eyes to her face, and said, "Oh, yes, ma'am, but"—

"Well, dear, what?"
"But, please, ma'am, the new baby's come, and mother's so dreadful weak, and I"—

The child hesitated, then, gathering con fidence from the kindly smile that met her glance, added—

"I thought it would do her good." "I thought it would do her good."
Tears came into the eyes of the kindhearted woman, to whom the little waif made known her anxiety to provide something for the comfort of her mother, and in less time than it takes to tell it the unselfish child had a promise of a "dinner for

And then, after a little while, silence reigned in the chilly north bedroom where the moonlight struggled in through the boughs of the old walnut trees outside.

The same autumnal moonlight lay white and clear on the roofs and wall of the sleeping town when Ann Edwards laid down her knitting and began to make ready for bed. She was in the way of sitting up lateover her work, for it was by the sale of coarse mittens and socks that she carned the money for daily needs, and she liked the quite of the evening hours, when there was no danger of any one's dropping in. Street lamps were unknown at this time, and the town-folk made their social calls by daylight.

Ann Edwards prided herself upon her courage, and a timid neighbor often related how, on that awful day when Du Pont's powder wagons exploded, and the streets were filled with a frightened, surging crowd, "Ann, she jest set a knittin', and never dropped a stitch."

But to-night she started nevously when The same autumnal moonlight lay white

"Ann, she jest set a knittin', and never dropped a stitch."

But to-night she started nevously when a stick of wood snapped in two, and again when the yellow cat rubbed against her chair. Perhaps it was the talk with her brother, perhaps she was not quite well—at any rate, the ghosts of past Thanksgivings walked before her, and the light of her little fire seemed to shine on faces long since hidden from her view.

Just before the nine-o'clock bell rang, as she was closing the shutters of a back window she was almost sure she saw the shadowy figure of a man glide across the yard toward the well, and—was that a scream?

LONDON, Nov. 12, 1891.

DEAR AUNT PRUDENCE:
For some time I have been reading the interesting little letters of your nieces in the ADVERTISER, and I thought I, too, would like to become a niece. I am 12 years old; I go to a convent school. You asked us to tell you how we spent our vacation. I spent a week down at Fort Stanley berrypicking, bathing, boating, riding, picnicking and gathering stones and shells on the beach. I went to Toronto and did not stay very long, but I had a delightful time. I passed some days there boating and looking at the beautiful buildings. I went to evening garden parties and picnics in London. I had to spend some time to study my lessons for the opening of school on the following Monday, after having spent a pleasant vacation. As my letter is getting rather long, I will close. From your loving niece,

DEAR AUNT PRUDENCE:
Although I wrote to you before, I am going to write to you again. It is a dull, rainy day, so I thought I would employ myself in some way. I had a very pleasant summer, especially in holidays, when I was feeding chickens, picking fruit, skipping or awinging, and also I was in London a couple of times. I had a small flower bed this summer, with some very pretty flowers in it. I will close now, Aunt Prudence. From your loving niece, Minnie Neal.

"Nonsense, Ann Edwards! You'll take a good dose of hot ginger tea and go straight to bed. Such foolishness ain't for lone women like you," she sternly said to herself. Having stirred up the fire, she was about to hang the kettle over it when she suddenly remembered that there was she eopened the door, and came over her as she opened the door, she wrapped her head in her shawl, took a tin dipper, and went fout to the well.

Would any one of her neighbors have known that white-faced woman who, a moment later, rushed across the yard into the house, belted the door, and cowered what she had seen as she bent over the well!—a dark figure, rising from its depths, that stretched shadowy arms toward her and cried, "Mother! mother! help! help!"

Now go home, Amos, and enjoy your Thankgiving dinner with your family. You mean well, but you don't know what trouble is."

The whole story had been so characteristic of her easy-going, affectionate husband and his sharp, stern sister that Mrs. Edwards had smiled once or twice as she lay listening in the darkness. But the last words rouse a feeling that lies dormant in us all and she hastened to say:

FOREST, NOV. 13, 1891.

DEAR AUNT PRUDENCE:

I am going to describe to you the way in which I spent my holidays. Well, I cannot boast of having seen a great deal, but as you said that did not matter, I take courboast of having seen a great deal, but as you said shat did not matter, I take courage and write. I spent the greater part of my holidays at home. There was an old lady visiting at our place nearly all summer and she was not well at all. She liked to have somebody sit beside her and talk and read to her. I stayed beside her a good deal and fanned her, for those bot days were very hard on her, as her breath is very short. Thea, of course, my friends came to see me and I returned their visits, and altogether had a very happy time. Then my little sister—she is just 3 years old and as cute as can be—and I had great fun in the hammock. The hammock is in the orchard under a tree, and it was nice and shady. Oh, I think anybody cun have as much fun at home as when traveling, as traveling is very tiring. One day we all went to the pinery to pick berries. I did not pick many berries, but as there was quite a number of us we got quite a few. This is all I can think of now. So goodbye,

DEAR AUNT PRILENCE:

As I have been reading the letters in the Advertiser for a long time I thought I would try and write, too. We have taken the Advertiser for a long time and we like it very well. I am 13 years old on the 15th of this month. I spent my summer holidays in picking berries, and I went to the berry patch nearly every day except Sundays. I will close now. From your loving niece, Among the pains and aches cured with marvelous rapidity with Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil, is ear-ache. The young are especially subject to it, and the desirability of this Oil as a family remedy is enhanced by the fact that it is admirably adapted not only to the above ailment, but also to the hurts, disorders of the bowels, and affections of the throat, to which the young are specially subject.

BRENER BROS.' NEW LEADER

The National Melodrama Brand, PATROL, Is Sure to Be a Winner.

Messrs. Brener Bros., the successful manufacturers of Nos. 182-190 Horton street, London, are in the field with a new leader, which has been happily named THEE DATROL. 23 They intend to make this cigar popular wherever the Union Jack and Stars and Stripes float. It is a Cuban hand-made cigar, of which the filler is all Havana, mild and fragrant. The label, which is the design of the Patrol Co., is strikingly original. The words in which the names of the manufacturers occur at appropriate intervals. Nothing in the way of at label that is so simple, and at the same time so rich and attractive, has been originated, and it would be impossible to present to the trade a more elegant package. "The Patrol." cigar is certain to win instant recognition, and to increase largely the annual output of its manufacturers.

For sale at 182-190 Horton street, London; 63 College street, Montreal; 92 Woodward avenue, Detroit, Mich.; 206 Lasalle street, Chicago.

VOID MARRIAGE.—A man here.

These two on one farm, to say nothing of Manette, are enough to make the Palo Alto folks a trifle proud.

Horses of any age should not be left out in the chilly rains which we will have from now on, for when colts are shivering in the open air, with their backs bowed and their heads down, such negligence is costly, to say nothing of the cruelty of it. Young horse are especially liable to colds from such causes, coupled with the sudden charge in temperature which accompanies these fail rains, and if a severe cold is contacted, it may take a great deal of care and dectoring to bring them round in good shape sgain. A two days' cold rain followedly cold weather will take more of the "starch" out of the young horse than several days' good care will restore, and perhaps do him permanent damage. In most case there is no need of taking this fisk, and there should not be in any case.

As truly as there is a forest concealed in the lowly accomplists there is a forest concealed in the lowly accomplists to the care a thousand and one integresting malities in the lows and the concease of my farm to a loan company for the cellence in them that others fail to discover that he repeatedly refuses fair offers, and keeps horses for which he has little or no use, which eat up all the profits they should have brought, and more too, on which he has to pay taxes, take the risk of their being lessened in value by fnjury or loss by death, and which are taking the feed and care that should be given to young stock growing into money. The men who are most successful with horses are those who like them, it is true; but they raise horses to sell, and when they can get a fair price for an animal trey let him go, and devote their energy and means to raise a better one."

This, however, is not absolutely the facts, although it is admitted that his legs are in although it is admitted that his legs are in the facts and they're always crowded on Eabbath. This is indeed distressing; sometimes when I think how much farther away heaven is shan the church, and that there are no conveyances on the road of any description, I wonder how some of us are going to get there.

The pacer Guy, that won as many races any horse out this year, and who beat such horses as Roy Wilkes, Grant's Abdallah and Telegram, will go through the Grand Circuit next year. He is a gray gelding by Shiloh, and has a record of 2:11½.

There is a true ring to a race record. It is one of the kind that carries with it the stamp of merit, and paves! the way to inture success. When a horse has a race record, and carries it as a winner and not by a scratch, he can be considered one of the right kind.

If you drive hard and warm up the horses, let them col gently and without exposure. Teach this to the boys. If they know it is needful to care for a horse at some expense and trouble to preserve his usefulness and value after a hard push, they will be more careful about driving. More horses are hurt after being stopped than on the road.

DENMARK VS. CANADA.

Comparison of the Two Countries in Dairying Possibilities. Pointers on Feeding Lambs-The Poul try Yard-Care of Cows and Steers. The Canadian Farmer Thirty Years

Behind the Danes in Dairying.

We clip the following from Hoard's Dairy-man: "It is becoming very apparent that dairy education is at the bottom of all advancement in dairy prosperity either in the individual farmer, the community or the State. A study of the history of dairying in Denmark points clearly to this conclu-

"Denmark sent to England alone in 1889 butter to the enormous value of $18,700,000, as against $526,000 worth of butter from Canada, mostly from Quebec, to all the world. Mr. John Andrew, to whom is en-trusted the responsibility of purchasing butter and like products for the English trusted the responsibility of purchasing butter and like products for the English and Scotch co-operative wholesals societies, is permanently resident at Copenhagen, and hits purchases for his clients alone of butter in Denmark and Sweden have steadily grown in importance until they now amount to between $3,000,000 and $4,000,000. As to the quality of the butter, he declares that every cask of this was absolutely pure butter, the quality being never excelled, and rery seldom equality being never excelled, and rery seldom equaled, by the production of, any other country."

Thirty years ago the quality of Danish butter was very low. A peculiar feature, which indicates the use and growth of brains among the Danish dairymen, is the fact that the number of cows has increased scarcely at all in many years, yet the export of butter has grown from 130,000 cwt. What does this mean? Simply this, that by the application of brains to the problem of creating a better cow through breeding, feeding and care, the Danes are producing nearly three times the butter they were a few years ago, and that, too, with about the same number of cows. By the same use of dairy education the cost of producing 100 pounds of milk has been reduced from 6.37 kroners to 3.79 kroners. A kroner equals about 28 cents Canadian money.

Canadian money.

Here again brains get in their profitable work, yet there are thousands of Canadian farmers, full of Canadian conceit, calling these Danes ignorant foreigners, who have no faith in the value of dairy education.

One great factor which has led to this development of dairy education is the operation.

development of dairy education is the organization of the Danish farmers into co-operative associations. In 1888 the British consul at Copenhagen reported that ish consul at Copenhagen reported that there were 200 dairies so associated dealing with the produce of 5,000 cows. Last year he found that the number continued to increase. The co-operative carts drive only along the high roads and collect the milk, which is brought to the nearest point by the farmers themselves. These undertake to deliver the milk perfect in quality, the payment for it being determined in proportion as it is capable of producing from each 28 pounds more or less than one pound of butter. Each contracting farmer must keep his milk cool with ies, and two milkings must not be mingled until both have been cooled.

Another thing, the Danish dalrymen cooperated together on a sound, honest basis.
Mark the system by which they pooled milk together—on the basis of the quality of the milk, not quantity, just in proportion as 28 pounds of milk would produce more or less of butter. The moment they adopted that cantiment there was every incentive for the of butter. The moment they adopted that sentiment there was every incentive for the Danish farmer to make every 28 pounds produce more butter, not less. Hence he bred and fed and cared for his cows for production, not reduction. The Danish farmer depended upon himself to put the butter fat into his milk, not on his neighbor.

The rules further provide that the milking must be done with clean, dry hands, the cow's udder carefully wiped, the pails and every appliance kept perfectly pure, the every appliance kept perfectly pure, the milk immediately strained and not allowed to remain in the cow sheds. Then follow injunctions as to the nature of winter feeding, as to the withholding of the produce of sick cows, or in the case of infectious diseases among the authors in the house diseases among the cattle or in the house hold. The strict observance of these inattructions is enforced by professional ex-perts and by periodical and surprise visits of inspection. The milk is then dealt with in the co-operative establishment by centrifugal separators, of which there are probably nearly 3,000 in daily use in the country.

The farmers receive back the skim milk at an agreed price. This system of paying at an agreed price. This system of paying for milk according to the cream contained in it has proved to be an excellent means of stimulating interest and effort in the im-provement of quality. The merits of oil, seed and sunflower cakes, of bran and of carrots are deduced from varied experience and observation carefully recorded and tabu-lated. The Government inspectors report that there is a steady advance in the art of making cows yield a larger quantity of rich milk in proportion to the amount of food consumed, and the result has been, as shown above, the growth of butter-making into one of the great industries of the country.

There you have it, Mr. Canadian farmer, right in a nutshell. If you expect to arrive at the same profitable success as the Danish dairyman has, or the most successful among dairyman has, or the most successful among dairyman has, or the most successful among dairyman has been seen some most fairly and your own countrymen, you must fairly and squarely tread the same road. It is thought, study—in short, dairy education—that does the work.

Feeding Shorn and Unshorn Lambs in Winter.

in Winter.

After a series of experiments at the Ontario Agricultural College the following conclusions were deduced:

1. That good grade lambs when being fatened in winter will make satisfactory gains on a daily ration of 1.90 pounds of grain and bran, 1.91 pounds of hay and 5 pounds of roots, or a total of 8.81 pounds.

2. That lambs when properly fed and cared for in the winter, the ration being the same as that used in this experiment, will make an average gain per day of .38 or nearly 2-5 of a pound.

made an average gain per day of .35 of mearly 2-5 of a pound.

3. That good grade lambs may be made to gain .38 offa pound per day at an outlay of 2.78 cents per day for food, when the prices are the same as those charged in this

4. That there is some advantage to be derived from shearing lambs in autumn for winter feeding, although the extent of the advantage was not very marked in the experiment.

5. That about 12 per cent. represents the shorn bears to that of the animal under conerally prevailed among farmers that lambs cannot be fattened in the winter at a profit, in view of the above this opinion should be carefully reconsidered.

Poultry Pickings.

If you are making a specialty of eggs for table use, keep all the early pullets you have room for and then bring them into laying condition in winter. There is more money than marketing them.

The interest in market poultry is growing every year. Poultry for profit, rather than for pleasure, is the object of the average amateur as he steps into the ranks. "What breeds pay the best?" means more in a commercial way than any other. People want eggs and meat.

want eggs and meat.

Pullets and two-year old hens are the most profitable. After a hen is three years old she becomes unprofitable as an egg progueer, and rather tough for table use. Our plan is to get rid of all hens after they do us service for two years. We rely mainly upon our pullets and two-year hens.

One of the best rules to adopt is that only such steek must be on the farm that will bring the desired effect the quickest. For instance, if running an egg farm, only the noved heavy layers; if raising bollers, the noted heavy leyers; if raising bollers, only such breeds or crosses that will grow a pound the quickest. In marketing, eggs should be clean and attractive; fowls well fattened and well dressed. There is a great deal in a preservores.

leal in appearances.

It seems hard for the beginner in poultry matters to start small. His ambit matters to start small. His ambition is to have a large farm at once. Before he is able to properly care for a dozen hens he wants a hundred. Is it any wonder that we have failures? Is it not a surprise that we have not more of them? Twelve hens will teach a man the rudiments of the business: ness; a hundred will give him the practical experience; and then three hundred will make the successful farm. He that goes beyond that mark may succeed, but there are nine chances out of ten that he will fail. "Large oaks from little acorns grow."

Let There be Light. Last summer we wrote up some exper-ience on the importance of keepings owe in thoroughly well lighted stables. Those who read the article will remember that in the case referred to the cows were stabled on the south and east side of the barn and that fully double the usual supply of windows were used, the sun shining in upon the cows every clear day. Also that the effect was to greatly increase the color in the butter to greatly increase the color in the butter and cause a decided saving in food. In commenting upon the article the American Cultivator brings out the following additional testimony to the value of light in stables.

Another took two calves 60 days old, weighing 180 and 182 pounds, and both deep red in color, and placed the heavier one in a dark room where the feed could be delivered by a growt. The other he placed one in a dark room where the feed could be delivered by a spout. The other he placed in a similar room, where it had plenty of sunlight, and both had the same feed for three months. At the end of that time the one in the light room weighed 430 pounds, and was apparently healthy. The other weighed only 360 pounds, and had faded in color to a dull, dirty red, and for a week or two after restoration to the light kept its eyes closed most of the time. It never its eyes closed most of the time. It never recovered its former bright color, or from the other effects of its three months in darkness. Neither animals nor vegetables can thrive without sunlight.

Timely Care of Steers. Farmers feeding steers for export should aim to have them well fatted by the 1st of May. To do this it is important that they should be stabled early. Unless provided should be stabled early. Unless provided with an abundance of pasture, they should be in the stable not later than the middle of November. Never allow them to run down in flesh at this season, for besides taking a great deal of extra food to get them in good feeding condition, you will have to keep them so much longer in the spring, or else put an inferior animal on the market. Too Much of the Earth.

One of the greatest drawbacks that farmer can possibly have is the desire to procure more land than he can easily pay for or properly cultivate. Many a farmer has thus been kept "land poor" all his life.

The Tory M. P. for Prince Edward Admits Bribery by an Agent.

The Kingston Whig states that A. Gunn may be a candidate at the Dominion election.

At a meeting of the Liberals of Galt, held Wednesday evening, a unanimous invitation was passed to Hon. Wilfrid Laurier to pay the town a visit during the month of December.

Richardson, the defeated candidate for the Local Assembly for Assiniboia, is spoken of as Hon. Mr. Dewdney's successor should be leave the Cabinet.

should he leave the Cabinet.

The solicitors for A. C. Miller, M.P., have served a notice on C. H. Widdifield, solicitor for the petitioner in the matter of the Prince Edward election petition admitting bribery by an agent sufficient to void his election. A notice was also served abandoning the cross petition ageinst Dr. Platt, the defeated candidate. A large number of prominent Conservatives have been served with subpechas, and to save their own reputations they forced Mr. Miller to admit bribery.

New Y. Dek, Nov. 27.—At the conference of represe tative Irish-Americans held here yesterday in accordance with a resolution adopted by the council of the Irish National. League the report presented by the Committee on Platform was adopted. The report warns the people of Irish and that "they can receive to further support, moral or financial," this country until they call a balt in the war of factions and reunite the forces now engaged in the work of self-destruction, and formulate a union based upon a clearly-defined, moderate and reasonable expression of Ireland's demand for home rule and a policy of independence of all English parties; that such a definition should include a Pariiament with full power over all purely Irish affairs, and an executive responsible to the Irish Parliament, and having the appointment of the judges and magistrates and the control of police. and resolution were utaninously adopted and addressed to the Board of the Agricultural and Arts Association.

Whereas the members of the World's Columbian Exhibition to be held in Chicage in 1893 will in all probability fie the greatest aggregation of live stock and agricultural products that has ever been brought together on the American continent it is of the utmost importance to this Province that a good representation of its products should be made on that occasion. The selection of Chicago, the great live stock emporium of the world, as the place for holding the exhibition is one especially favorable to the interests of Canadian stockmen, as the demand for our improved stock is mainly from the great Western States and Territories, and in making preparations to exhibit at Chicago our stockmen will be taking their stock right into its natural market. Canada has long been, and is likely to be in the future, the principal breeding ground from which the farmers and breeders of the United States look for first-class animals to replenish their herds and flocks, and this exhibition will afford an opporanimals to replents their herds and flocks, and this exhibition will afford an opportunity which may not occur again in a century to demonstrate to the world the facilities of this country to produce animals of the highest merit as to breeding, quality and vigor of constitution, as well as our ability to exhibit in all departments products unexcelled for excellence; be it herefore resolved that in order to carry our efforts to a successful issue the following recommendations be adopted:

The petitidn in the Yarmouth, N.S., election case has been set down for trial on April 12, and the petition in the Shelburne case for trial on April 20.

In the Glengarry election petition, Judges Falconbridge and Street on Wednesday gave judgment on motion made by respondent, before the trial judges, to change the place of trial from Cornwall to Alexandria. The learned judges stated they could only enlarge the application formally to the opening of the court at Cornwall. If it be then renewed and consented to by the petitioner they would adjourn the trial to be opened at Alexandria the same afternoon if possible.

CURIOUS STORY

Regarding an Alleged Vatican Emissary in Salisbury's Household.

Regarding an Alloged Vatican Emissary in Salisbury's Household.

London, Nov. 27.—A curious story has just been made public to the effect that the Vatican has had an emissary in the household of the Marquis of Salisbury. This intelligence floomes from a lady who was recently a guest at Hatfield House, the residence in Hertfordshire of the Prime Minister. A letter written by the lady referred to says:

"The last time I was staying at Hatfield house I was struck by the face of the man who was employed in the capacity of major domo of the establishment. The features of this man haunted me as those of some one whom I had seen before. While trying to remember where and when I had seen him I looked at the man rather frequently. He noticed me observing him, and seemed somewhat disconcerted. Suddenly, I remembered where we had met before, and he instantly saw the recognition in my countenance. It was in the Vatican, over a part of which place, while on a visit, he had conducted me, garbed in the robes of an Italian priest. He used fluent English in describing to me the various things of inserest, which he pointed out daring our tour of the building, and appeared to me to be a most aliable man. When I had discovered the identity of my former guide, I at once resolved to tell the facts to Lord Salisbury at the first opportunity next morning, but found upon arising the following day that my quondam friend had decamped during the night, taking all his belongings with him. The news of the sudden disappearance of the major-domo caused considerable confusion in the Premier's household. I told the marquis all I knew about the matter and he appeared to be very much put out by the intelligence which I imparted to him, but had little to say in regard to the strange occurrence. The members of Lord Salisbury's family, however, thoroughly discussed all the facts of the case, and the conclusion arrived at by them after everything had been considered. ever, thoroughly discussed all the facts of the case, and the conclusion arrived at by them after everything had been considered, was that the missing—major domo was a Jesuiv agent, and that he had insinuated himself into the Premier's family for the purpose of discovering secret matters concerning the Vatican."

"By their fruits shall ye know them" is a truism of wide application, and as this elegant dress is the product of Mr. A. He has a large staff employed and orders are brickly coming in.

In the same window may be seen a charming display of evening goods artistically arranged, Faille silks, pongora, China silks, ombossed velvets, chilon trimmings, ginps, beaded fringes, evening gloves, silk and kid, in all shades and many other novelties to delight the eye and gratify the purchaser. Mr. Rolfe opened out in March and his trade has been steadily growing ever since. There are reasons for this. His stock is entirely new; he carries nothing but the best quality of goods; his assistants are experienced, efficient, courteous and obliging, so that customers who come once come again. come again.

THE LONDON ADVERTISER, SATURDAY, NOVEMBER 28. FILLED AND SANK.

Fatal Collision in the River

Schooner Sunk with All on Board-Disaster on the Tyne.

LIVERPOOL, Nov. 27.—A dense fog prevailed over the River Mersey last night. An unknown bark, supposed to be the Harmony, is anchored off the "Bar Light-ship" with her masts gone, and her hull seriously damaged. She had been in colsitions with an unknown schooner. The liston and sank. Her crew were drowned. THERE MEN INSTANTLY KILLED.

LONDON, Nov. 27.—A number of workmen on board a steam launch were crossing the River Type at Shields to-day, when a passenger steamer ran into them, cruching the launch to pieces. Three of the workmen were instantly killed.

McKinley's Victory and a Kell Store Causes a Democrat's Death.

WANNESUNG, Pa., Nov. 27.—John Dougherty, an oil well driller, died Wednesday night from pneumonia. Dougherty was a Democrat, and he made a bet with a Republican that Campbell would defeat McKinley for Governor of Onio. The loser was to climb to the top of an oil derrick, 72 feet high, and remain there from 6 in the morning until 6 in the evening. Dougherty mounted the derrick last Sunday morning, and although the rain poured down all day he did not flinch. When he came down at night he was cramped and weak. On the following day violent pneumonia, brought on by exposure, set in and his death resulted.

Mrs. Mantell.

New York, Nov. 28.—Howe & Hummell have been engaged by Mrs. Robert B. Mantell, whose stage name is Marie Sheldon, to secure her a legal separation from her had band. The lawyers say that Mr. Mantell's relations with well-known stage beauties will be exposed in the suit. The couple have three children.

LABOR MATTERS.

The miners employed in a large colliery in Lourches, France, impregnated with the general discentent prevailing in northern coal fields, struck yesterday. It is believed that unless the coal mine owners make some concessions the strike will assume enormous proportions.

A number of manufacturers in the Department of Pas-de-Calais, France, where the great miners' strike is in force, have succeeded in importing coal, despite the appeal recently issued by the strikers to the miners of Great Britain, Belgium and Germany, to limit their output to the actual requirements of their home trade.

The timplate manufactories of Wales are to shut down for a fortnight in December and a fortnight in January to check lower prices caused by the accumulation of stocks in the United States.

Mr. Huntingdon planned it all as he rode down to the great city that morning, and it never entered his mind what Nea would say to his choice. His child belonged to him. She was part of himself. Hitherto his will had been hers. True, he had denied her nothing; he had never demanded even a trifling sacrifice from her; there was no fear that she would cross his will if he told her seriously that he had set his heart on this marriage; and he felt no pity for the motherless young creature, who in her beauty and innocence appealed so strongly to his protection. In his strange nature love was only another form of pride; his gotism made him incapable of unselfish tenderness.
