The Prince of Wales acted as "back," and the Duke of York was "forward" in the Sandringram team. Both showed good skating powers and had several heavy falls, but neither was any the worse for his shaking up. Among the House of Com-mons team falls were numerous, but none of the players were injured. The match was won by the Sandringham team by a score of 8 goals to 5. ### NOT REMARKABLY ROSEATE.

The Complexion of Canada's Business Situation

Commented Upon in Dun & Co.'s Weekly

TORONTO, Feb. 14.-R. G. Dun & Co.'s weekly statement of business in Canada says: The week has been a quiet one in Montreal wholesale circles. owing to the abnormal atmospheric conditions that have prevailed. Trade at interior points is badly demoralized by the impassable roads. Railway freight traffic has been seriously interfered with. Remittances have been affected from the same cause, and are generally described as poor.

Wholesale trade at Toronto is with-out special feature. The more moderate weather tends to improve the general feeling and the distribution of merchanwill be facilitated. Merchants speak with more confidence regarding the outlook for spring trade, but there are no indications of enhanced prices leading staples.

Manufacturers still complain of heavy stocks, with a limited demand from the trade. The movement of country produce has been restricted by the heavy fall of snow in many sections of the Province, and in consequence high-er prices are quoted for barley, oats and peas. There is practically no wheat coming out, which gives rise to the feeling that there is no more of this cereal in the country than will supply domestic requirements. This accounts for the relatively higher prices in Ontario than in the United States and Britain. Flour is less strong than wheat, and the mills throughout the country being run only on part time accounts for the scarcity and higher prices of bran and shorts. Business on the stock exchange has een quiet this week, with some irregularity in prices. The earnings of railways continue poor, those of the C. P. R. showing a decrease of $53,000 for the first week in February, as compared with the corresponding week of last year, and those of the G. T. R. a de-crease of $43,000 for the same week. The fallures for the week are 51, as against 60 for the corresponding week

Claimed for a Young Man's Lacerated Heart.

A Breach of Promise of Marriage Case in Elgin County in Which a Young Farmer Is the Plaintiff.

(St. Thomas Journal, Feb. 14.) Breach of promise cases in which the one who asks for a golden balm to oothe the pangs of a lacerated heart s a member of the sterner sex are so rare that when one does occur the sufferer from the pangs of unrequited love at once becomes an object of general interest, and the public want to know all about him and the other parties con-cerned, as well as of all the interesting details. Such a case is likely to come up for trial at the aproaching spring assizes, but the Journal, out of regard for the feelings of the parties concerned, will refrain from mentioning names or giving anything more than a brief outline of the alleged facts until the case comes up for trial.

The party with the lacerated heart, and the plaintiff in the action is a young Bayham farmer. The defendant s a charming young married lady living in the city, who is the fortunate, or unfortunate, possessor, as you will, in her own right of cash and property amounting to about $8,000. The plaintiff oaid attentions to the young lady, and alleges that he proposed and was accepted, and that the date was fixed for their marriage. Moreover, he says he was preparing the cage to put his little birdle in, but he never got the little birdie. His hated rival—there is always a rival in these love affairs, and he generally plays the winning card—got in ahead of him and married the young lady, leaving him to repine, while, as the story books put it, his rival and the lady he lost live happily together ever afterwards. The alleged jilted lover could not overcome his sorrows unaided, and consulted his solicitors, Messrs. Stevens & McIntosh, of Aylmer, and the result was that an action was entered against the young lady, claiming $5,000 damages for breach of promise of marriage. The action was entered on Dec. 3, 1894, and should come up in the ordinary run of things for trial at the coming

The defendant, who, by the way, was married only a short time before the writ was issued, denies that she ever promised to marry the plaintiff, or was ever engaged to him.

OF ALL KINDS.

A wondrous meaning is conveyed in this phrase. As sugar is to 3 grocer, so are cottons to a drygoods house. They are the staple of staples; always on call, day in and day out. This means carrying large stocks and watching the market closely. Nothing more important than a well-equipped staple department-nothing so important to a first-class house as having all these household necessities at lowest possible prices. You get them here. The finest cottons, both bleached and unbleached, within the ability of Canadian and American mills, have been turned in here within the past three weeks at the lowest mark ever reached for the best goods. To heads of families and housekeepers, we would say, study our stocks, you will not find them wanting. The prices will surprise. It's a good way to size up the capacity of a general drygoods store to serve your wants by its staple department. We're not afraid of your opinion.

MUSIC AND DRAMA.

RICE AND BARTON TOMORROW. Manager Roote offers as the bill at the Grand for tomorrow, Saturday, beginning with a matinee, the musical success, "Mc-Doodle and Poodle." The piece is said to be very funny and has drawn big houses wherever it has been presented. It is produced by Rice and Barton, comedians. The piece affords ample room for the introduction of specialties, in fact it is little more than a happy vehicle for carrying along and unloading, in a systematic manner, the acts of a lot of bright variety people in new roles, with new music and the wittiest of sayings.

DAVENPORT BROTHERS AND FAY. Tuesday and Wednesday of next week the celebrated Davenport Brothers and Fay will give two of their marvelous spiritualistic seances at the Grand. An exchange says: We never had faith in the truth of supernatural manifestations from the dead by mediums, table-rappings, etc., but having witnessed the extraordinary feats of the Davenport Brothers and Fay at the Cooper Institute, on three different occasions last week, we are constrained to say that we are completely mystified, and find, in spite of ourselves, that our skepticism is falling away, and giving place to a con-viction that there is something more than mere trick and sleight of hand required to produce such results.

Yet the "half-century old official with all the resulting complications of the opera. The Seabrooke Opera Company will appear at the Grand next Monday with their own orchestra.

THE REQUEST GRANTED.

Dundas Center School Children Will Meet in the Collegiate Institute.

Arrangements Made Between the Board of Education and the Church Trustees-The Evening Services.

After the big fire on Wednesday morning a deputation from Dundas Street Methodist trustee board visited several churches and institutions in the city to ascertain if any would be suitable for the church services. Among the places inspected was the Collegiate Institute, and it impressed the trustees as suitable for Sunday school exercises. Chairman Blackwell, of the Board of Education, was consulted, and he then called a special meeting of the school trustees for 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon. Mr. Blackwell presided, and the other members present were Trustees other members present were Trustees Sanders, Logan, Murphy, Buchner, Griffin, Turner, Wilkins, Johnston, Greenlees, Keenleyside, Dr. Wilson, Jeffery, Hunt, Martyn, Stephenson, Dr. Campbell, Craig, Principal Merchant, and Secretary McElheran. The depu-tation from the church included Messrs. Robert Lewis, C. J. Beale and Isaac

Chairman Blackwell, in stating the object of the meeting, expressed sympathy with the congregation in their heavy loss.

COL. LEWIS EXPLAINS.
"Unfortunately," said Col. Lewis,
"we have been turned out of our church and into the cold. We therefore want to see if we could get one flat of the institute for the use of the Sunday school. We have a very large school—over 600 scholars—and we would like to know on what terms we can have the institute on Sunday afternoons at 3 o'clock. It may be some time—possibly seven or eight months—before we get our new church up, but we are going to rebuild as soon as the bricks are cold. We would prefer the first flat, because there are several class rooms in it. We would like to know what it would cost for fuel. I thought—of course I have a pretty good 'cheek'—that we might get it

A GREAT CALAMITY. Trustee T. J. Murphy said the trustees regretted very much the loss the church had sustained, which was also a loss to the city at large. "In a case of this kind it is proper," he said, "that the school board should do all they can to assist the congregation in their trouble. As far as I am concerned I feel that I am free to extend to the fullest extent my sympathy, and to include my neighbors in the bond of charity, and aid, if necessary. I would therefore move that the request of the deputation be granted, and that a committee of the chairmen of the board of No. 1 and 2 and the audit committee meet the trustees of the church and arange terms. I mention terms because some citizens might complain if the use of the institute was granted without any charge for fuel or light. If the board sees its way clear to make these items free also, I will readily agree to it."

Trustee Logan seconded the motion. THE INSURANCE QUESTION. Trustee Jeffery said the board should first secure the sanction of the insurance companies to the proposition.

Trustee Craig mentioned the case of the Talbot street school. When it was burned, four different churches were used, and their occupation by the scholars did not affect the insurance.

Mr. Jeffery suggested the addition of Principal Merchant to the committee. A little misunderstanding arose as to whether the institute was to be used for church and school purposes, or for school only. "We do not want the board to think that we are asking the institute for one thing and using it for another," said Mr. Beal. "We want it merely for the use of the school."

Mr. Greenlees expressed his hearty sympathy with the proposal. He thought if the institute was required for an evening service, the church people should have it. Mr. Murphy said his motion included the use of the building for any services

-whether preaching or teaching. He also wanted Mr. Jeffery on the com-

The motion was carried unanimously, and Col. Lewis expresed thanks for the courtesy extended them by the trustees. THE ARRANGEMENTS. The deputation and the committee appointed met after the board adjourn-ed. It was agreed that the use of the first flat should be granted on payment of $7 per Sunday, which will go towards payment for fuel. The church will have to arrange with the janitor for his services, and will be expected to leave the rooms in an A1 condition. It has not yet been decided whether an evening service will be held.

HEALTH! DISEASE! DEATH! THESE THREE.

Health is the normal working of the human system in all its parts. Disease is the obstructive and defective working. Death is the final cessation of the functions of life. "When one member suffers all the members suffer." When the throat or lungs are sick the whole body is sick. Just here all past treatment has been based on irrational and unscientific lines, as regards colds, coughs, throat, bronchial and all lung ailments. No account was taken of the general system, and hence very simple cases were allowed to develop into deep-seated disease, to end in death. In many in-stances the remedies employed to combat the local disease did more harm reliables" are still palmed off on the suffering as great "medical discov-eries." Pine Malt is based on new lines. It recognizes the law of systemic sympathy in disease. It is a unique and perfect local and constitutional remedy. Pine Malt is not a half a century in the rear of medical progress. ago have been proven worthless in many instances and brushed aside as ancient cobwebs. Pine Malt is abreast newest, most palatable and best. Mr. Nathaniel Hillman, builder, Alvinston, Ont., relates his experience with la grippe and Pine Malt as follows:

HAD GOOD REASONS FOR SPEAK-ING WELL OF IT. "Early last winter I was laid up with a severe attack of la grippe. The cough was very bad and my lungs became affected. I lost my appetite, had night sweats and could not gleep. I wasted away to a mere skeleton. Nothing seemed to do me good, although I had good medical attendance all the time. My family and friends almost gave me up. At last I commenced to take Pine-Malt and Hypophosphites. That was the first thing to help me. It helped the cough wonderfully from the start. I began to rest better at nights, and gradually the night sweats left me. I kept getting better all along, and in a few weeks' time was able to return to my work. I have had no return of the lung trouble since. I have good reason for speaking a good word for

Pine-Malt and Hypophosphites.

JOHN CAMERON, Pres't and Managing Director.

London, Friday, February 15.

THE GENERAL ELECTION.

The London "Advertiser" is at variance with most of the other Grit organs. They clamor for immediate dissolution; the "'Tiser," with withering scorn, accuse the Tory Government of still contemplating a "dash for the country," and it demands another session. "'Tiser" had better get into line .-Hamilton Spectator.

Is it possible for a high tax organ ever to fairly represent those who disagree with it? The "Advertiser" has clamored neither for a dissolution nor for another session of Parliament. What we have contended for has been for a treatment of the people, no matter what their political creed, that shall be fair. We have contended:

(1.) That the elections should not be held on antiquated lists, as in 1891.

(2.) That the elections should not be held when the roads are bad. If they cannot be held before the break-up of the roads they should not be held till June or September.

Is there anything unreasonable in these contentions?

As to another session, the "Advertiser" has known for some time that the men at Ottawa are averse to facing the deficit of five or ix million dollars, and providing extra taxation to make it good, before going to the country. We have known that a large section of their following in Quebec and elsewhere are clamoring for delay, and for another session, so that they may avoid facing all difficult investigation, and at the same time get one more sessional allowance, as they know they will be defeated. This divided, shivery-shaky condition is not calculated to put spirit into the rank and file in the high tax party, but that is none of our business. All we ask is for a fair election, when the full vote can be polled, and we do not fear the result.

-Finance Minister Foster has fled from King's, N. B. A Liberal will take his place. He knew that, and in one of his "moments of weakness" had the good sense to look for a seat elsewhere. Mr. Patterson, it is believed, will follow suit with regard to West Huron.

HOW THE MONEY HAS GONE. Speaking in Wellington county the other day, Mr. Paterson, M. P. for South Brant, pointed out that during the present high tax regime the taxpayers had been compelled to pay, to the Dominion Government alone, no less than $60,000,000 more than was required by Hon. Alex. Mackenzie's Administration to run the country. Just think of the good times there would be in Canada to-day if the people had that $60,000,000 in their pockets, with which to pay their debts and buy the products of our industries. There would be such a genuine boom as would put new life and hope and joy into every one of us. The money has been spent-has been largely squandered-and this year the expenditures are greater than ever, while the revenue is short millions of dollars. Are we to continue this sort of thing? Is it not time for a change of both men and methods?

-Lady Henry Somerset has been laid up with the grip, but is now recovering, and will not likely have to break any of her engagements.

A GREAT CITY THREATENED.

There may be sensational developments in the war between China and Japan before hostilities are brought to a close. Japan very properly refused to treat with the Chinese peace emissaries, because they were not empowered to make final arrangements, and it was possible that their mission was simply one to delay the onward march of the Japanese until such time as the Chinamen could strengthen their position. At present Corea's autonomy is assured, Manchuria is virtually in Japanese hands, and they are already building a railway at Port Arthur to turn it into a Japanese Gibraltar. Now that Wei Hai Wei is captured and the Chinese fleet is destroyed, nothing remains except to advance upon Pekin. This will certainly be done by way of Shan Hai Kwan. It is curious that nothing has yet been said about the Chinese works and forces there, where the next great engagement must be. All talk of peace now is nonsense. The Japanese will not talk about it till they are in Pekin. Otherwise the vast bulk of the Chinese people would never know that there had been a war and the Japanese would have, in a few years or decades, to do their work all over again: Von Hanneken has been toiling to fortify Shan Hai Kwan for months, but there is no doubt that the Japanese will take it.

The great Chinese city which the Japanese generals will capture, and at which they will dictate terms, if something now unforeseen does not happen, stands on an extensive sandy plain, and consists of Kin Ching, the prohibited city, containing only the palaces of the Emperor and the dwellings friendliness. The fleet v

The Tartar To the Editor of the "Advertiser": city is surrounded by a wall 60 feet high and 40 feet at the top, and the Chinese city by one 30 feet high, 25 feet thick at the base and 12 at the top. They are built of earth or rubble, faced with stone or brick, laid in cement, with sloping embankments at intervals to enable horsemen to ascend to the top, and square buttresses at distances of about 60 yards. Outside the walls the suburbs include, with the cities, an area of nearly 25 miles in circumference. There is a population in the city of between 1,500,000 and 2,000,000, but the Christian population only numbers 30,-000. In the Chinese metropolis are some of the finest places of worship in the world. They are appropriated to Protestant, Roman Catholic and Greek Churches, Islamism, Buddhism in its principal forms, rationalism, ancestral worship and state worship, while there are temples dedicated to Confucius and other deified mortals, besides a great number in which the popular idols of the country are adored. Among them is the temple where the tablets of the kings and emperors of former dynasties are collectively worshiped, with the exception of a few who have been excluded on account of their wickedness. In a magnificent park, twelve miles square, lying eight miles north of the city, are magnificent residences, to the number of 30, for the Emperor and his Ministers. When the French and English forces advanced on Pekin in October, 1860, the summer palace and principal hall of audience, the most extensive and by far the most splendid of these residences, was looted to the extent of several million dollars, and in revenge for the cruelty with which some French and British prisoners had Pekin has been the capital of China, with a short interregnum, since 1279, It was not till 1860 that the British established moderately satisfactory trade and other relations with the Chinese. The doggedness with which the average Chinaman responds to the demands of modern civilization was then exemplified. The French and British forces, numbering 25,000 in all-a much smaller force than Japan has now on the move toward Pekin-marched to Pekin, and encamped within the earthwork about a mile outside of the north wall. The Emperor escaped to an ancient palace beyond the great wall and left his brother to treat with the visitors. He showed great reluctance in complying with some of the demands of Lord Elgin and Baron Gros, but finally yielded when the destruction of the city was threatened. One of the gates was placed in the hands of the British and another in those of the French, and the treaty of Tien Tsin was ratifled. The treaty set forth, among other things, regret for past misunderstandings by the Chinese Emperor, acknowledged the right of the Queen of Great Britain to keep a resident Minister at Pekin; £3,100,000 was to be paid by the Chinese Government as indemnity; Tien Tsin was opened to trade; the interdict upon the emigration of Chinese to the British colonies was removed; a portion of the mainland opposite Hong Kong was ceded to the British. The French also received a large indemnity, and Tien Tsin was occupied by the allies till their claims were satisfied. Since March, 1861, Pekin has been the residence of all foreign Ministers.

There has been some talk of intervention to stop the present war, at the intimation of Great Britain and old world powers. But if that were attempted, before the Japanese are given ample indemnity and guarantees for the future that can be absolutely relied upon, they could fairly point to the example set by Britain and France in 1860, when Pekin had practically to be taken possession of, and had to be threatened with destruction before the vanquished would come to terms. A victor with the record of Japan can be relied on to insist on going to Pekin if most satisfactory terms are not forthcoming before the forces can arrive there.

-The Toronto Mail and Empire suppressed Minister Patterson's fiery speech, in which he breathed forth the determination of his friends to hold power by ballots, and if not, by bullets, It now tries to explain away the threat. A better way would have been to print the speech and let its readers judge for themselves. By this time the warrior is probably ashamed of his attitude.

THE COMING POPULAR VOTE. Half a dozen members of the Dominion Government, the Finance Minister included, are trying to convince the people of Ontario that Canada is prosperous and business fairly good. In his annual address the other day the president of the Toronto Board of Tade said that for purely trading concerns the past year "may be regarded as the most unsatisfactory, if not the most disas-trous, since Confederation," and that looking to the future "the best that can be said is that business can hardly be worse than it is now, and that any change must therefore be in the direc-tion of an improvement." How would it do to appoint a royal commission to find out if the country is prosperous or not? Failing that we might have a plebiscite and ask the people to say if they are prosperous or hard up.-Canada Presbyterian. Speaking of plebiscites, there really is to be a plebiscite in the near future in the shape of a Dominion General Election. Unless all signs mislead, that plebiscite will result not only in effecting a change, but a change much for the better.

PROSECUTION FOR CRUELTY TO ANIMALS.

As I sat in the Police Court yester-day listening to the trial of the driver, alias the London Street Railway Company, charged with maltreating horse No. 10 by working it while in an unfit condition, the somewhat humorous but very satirical words of Tom Hood came to my mind:

"Rattle his bones over the stones, He is only a pauper whom nobody and I really felt pleasure in thinking that we were living in an age when the inhuman treatment often meeted out to human beings in ages gone by would not be tolerated towards the poor dumb brutes. The revelations of cruelty that made at this trial were most heart-rending, and would, there is no doubt, have been a most useful object lesson to the inspector and members of the Humane Society if they had been present, and their attendance would have been beneficial all round. The horse in question was shown to be between 20 and 30 years of age, and of no value whatever, only for its hide, except to the street car company, and to them only because they could squeeze work out of the old brute, when no one else either could or would.

At the time of arrest it was bleeding from different sores on its body, particularly on the legs. The evidence for the defense, as given by their own dependants and employes, was not only very contradictory, but most conflicting, and of itself ample in my mind for a conviction. The penalty of $10 and costs with which they were mulcted is remarkably small for such a charge and for such a large and wealthy company, especially in view of the fact that there were other charges against them of a simlar character withdrawn We cannot expect that such a penalty will deter the company from committing the same offense, and, in fact, they cannot possibly avoid this if they are permitted to run their road with their present inadequate stock of miserable brutes. Such horses, sir, are not fit for the work to which they are put, and have not got the necessary strength, being too old. The company, therefore, been massacred, the building was burn- should not be allowed to use them for street car purposes. The horses that I saw this morning hobbling along Dundas and Richmond streets with street cars are simply a disgrace to our city and an outrage to every good feeling. "To be or not to be?" that is the question for the citizens to decide. Yours BART COTTAM. respectfully,

METHODIST YOUNG PEOPLE.

A Great Rally of the Societies to be Held

One of the greatest gatherings yet held in Canadian Methodism will take place in Toronto, Feb. 25, 26 and 27, in connection with the annual convention of the Methodist Young People's Association of Ontario. A movement has been on foot for some time looking to the organization of the young people of the entire church into an association, with a view of holding quadrenconventions. By a committee, called into existence to carry out this purpose, it was decided that such gathering for the Dominion and Newfoundland should be held in connec-tion with the Ontario Methodist Young People's Convention of 1895. Young people's societies of any kind in connection with a local Methodist Church are entitled to send delegates from any Province. who will be welcome to the enjoyment and privileges of the convention. An interesting feature in connection with this gathering is that the delegates from the six central conferences will organize into conference associations and elect representatives to the Epworth League Board. It is expected that every Province in the Dominion will be represented by large delegations at the convention. Reduced railway rates are secured, and, as over 300 delegates are sure to be present, it will be single fare, i.e., pay full fare going and get a convention certificate from the station agent, by which to return free. The names of regularly appointed delegates should be sent to Mr. D. Scott, City Hall, Toronto, who is secretary of the billeting committee. A. M. PHILLIPS, Chairman of Committee.

BUFFALO, Feb. 14.-State Board of Railroad Commissioners held a meeting in this city today to consider the application made by stockholders of the International and Oak Orchard Harbor and the Batavia and Northern Railroad Companies for a certificate that a railroad between Batavia and Oak Orchard is a public necessity. The promoters of the road expect to do a large business in transporting coal to Canadian con-

In 1893 and 1894 1,500,000 tons of anthracite coal were shipped into Canada. Most of this was taken to Oswego by the Delaware, Lackawanna and West ern to Fairhaven by the Lehigh Valley and there transhipped by boat to different Canadian ports on Lake Ontario. The shipments of bituminus coal to Canada during the same time amounted to $1,600,000. Oak Orchard harbor would offer a shorter route to all the Canadian lake ports than any other route. The harbor is surrounded by high banks, which offer natural advantages for handling coal and other freights. It is said that ferries can be built to navigate Lake Ontario at any time of the year with a carrying capacity sufficient to load cars of freight without breaking bulk from and to the docks at Port Hope, Cobourg, or any of the other lake ports. The distance from Oak Orchard harbor to Port Hope is about 38 miles; to To-ronto about 63.

ONTARIO WORSTED

In the Decisions of the Court of Arbi-

QUEBEC, Feb. 14 .- The Court of Arbitration; this morning decided that the Province of Ontario alone was responsible for the increased subsidies to Indian tribes according to the Robinson treaties. These claims amount to several hundred thousand dollars. The arbitrators based their udgment upon the fact that the lands belonging to the Indians were situated in the Province of Ontario. The Province of Ontario will pay the claim without interest, except on account paid by the Do-minion Government since 1874. Chanceller

Boyd dissented from this latter judgment. The Province of Quebec scored another victory on the question of immigration accounte, and the Government of Canada and of the Province of Ontario will have to shoulder these accounts, which are pretty heavy. Another claim of the Province of Ontario against Quebec was dismissed. The Government of Upper Canada claimed $5,755 from Quebec for the municipal fund, which dates also from Confederation. The arbitrators decided that Quebec was not bound in any way to that fund.

CURLING FOR THE TANKARD. The winning clubs in the various West-ern Ontario groups of curlers arrived in the city yesterday to play off the finals in the Western Ontario Tankard. The two city teams—Forest City and London—were in the field for the finals, and the visiting teams were from Wroxeter, Paris, St. Marys and Thamesville. Each team was represented by two rinks. The play commenced in the Simcoe Street Rink sharp at 1 o'clock on a magnificent sheet of ice. In the draw-Wroxeter, Forest City, St. Marys and Paris won the ice, and London and Thamesville were given the bye. The last two will play the winners of yesterday afternoon's matches-Wroxeter and Paris-this morning, and the two winners of the morning matches will play off for the tankard in the afternoon. The play consumed the whole of the afternoon and lasted until after 7 o'clock in the evening. A large crowd of spectators watched the proceedings and took almost as much interest in the matches as the players themselves, although they were naturally cooler and not quite as excited. A number of ladies viewed the roarin' game from behind the office windows, and watched that none of their patent methods of using the broom were infringed by the men. The proceedings were a trifle mysterious to two young misses, and after watching a couple of ends they gave it up and concluded they

"You know," one was explaining to the stand them wanting to sweep the ice to make it nice and clean, but I don't see the object in showing those spittoons from one end of the rink to the other."

"Yes," assented the other. "I don't like it a bit. I don't see why that old fellow always hollered for soup every time the other fellows started to sweep."

"I just think Charley put up a game on us when he told us it was interesting," added the first speaker. And the door banged after them.

The sight of the curlers on the ice certainly was a queer one to the uniniated, but it had a great deal of attraction to those who know the game. No curler seems too old or dignified to use the broom vigorously, and "soop! soop!" comes from every part of the rink. "Let her die!" somebody else shouts, and the sweepers desist. Nobody is killed, however, the intention only being to stop the progress of the stone.

Only to think of it! Forest City defeated by a little country club. How the spectators lamented it, and the players ac-counted for it. The "ifs" that were used after the game!

"They played a splendid game and earned their victory," said Mr. Strong. St. Marys lost by only two shots. It was simply a case of lack of judgment at a critical time, or the game would have been theirs instead of Paris'.

Perhaps the pleasantest portion of the day's programme was the "beef and greens" to which the London curlers treated their visiting brethren at the Tecumseh House after the work of the day was over. It was a very jolly evening; the Londoners were splendid entertainers and the strangers were capital fellows.

In front of the president stood the magnificent silver tankard that the teams are competing for. It was London's once again for competition and—alas—lost it, as they were defeated in the afternoon.

Robt. Ferguson, M.P.P., Thamesville, responded to the toast of "The Royal Curler's Association," of which he is an expresident. He made a very humorous speech and referred to the thing nearest to the heart of all present at that timecurling. He spoke of the game in Scotland and in Canada, and made everybody laugh with his witty stories.

Mr. Harry Beaton sang "Then You Will Remember Me."

"Sister Clubs" brought replies from Messrs. Andrews, Moore and Robson (St. Marys) and Mr. Robinson (Wroxeter) and others. The visitors all praised London's hospitality, and while all disclaimed being public speakers, many wished they were in order that they could do honor to the occasion. They were all sorry that St. Marys had been defeated, and spoke well of their exceeding generosity in keeping the tankard in competition.

Mr. Wray, of Wroxeter, sang a Scotch dialect song entitled "Cronies of Mine," and Mr. W. J. McIntosh sang a couple of Irish songs. The gathering dispersed about midnight.

NO RELIEF FROM CONCRESS.

Financial Schemes of the Government Voted Down.

Talk of Jebbery and of Impeaching the President.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 14.-An-WASHINGTON, D. C., Feb. 14.—Another day's debate on the financial question but serves to emphasize the fact that no legislation affecting the financial situation is to be expected from the 53rd Congress. Today, by the decisive vote of 167 to 120 the House declined to authorize the issue of $65,000,000 three per cent gold bonds with which to reper cent gold bonds with which to reupon a time, but St. Marys won it three times in succession, and were entitled to keep it. However they kindly put it up again for competition and—alas—lost it, of the joint resolutions for this purallel of the session of 61-2 pose occupied all of the session of 61-2 hours, and the discussion attracted an attendance of spectators which over-flowed the public galleries and encroached upon that reserved for the dip-lomatic corps and other distinguished visitors. The debate followed in a general way the lines of that on the Springer bill debate last week, but the opposition today was much more aggressive than on that occasion.

Mr. Hopkins asserted that the President was not animated by patriotic motives in sending his last message to Congress, but by a desire to unload upon that body the responsibility for a transaction, negotiated by his former law partner, that would net the syndicate represented by him $25,000,000.

Mr. Bryan declared the scheme proposed in the joint resolution to be but another step in the accomplishment of the conspiracy to strangle silver, and solemnly assured the House that so serious did he consider it to be that were there any probability of its passing, and the forfeiture of his life would prevent it, he would gladly lay down his life in that behalf. Mr. Cannom (Republican, Illinois), hinted at an impeachment, and Mr. Hepburn (Republican, Iowa), said that the Republicans who favored the measure proposed a new policy—a repudia-tion of all the declarations of the party in the past and the institution of a new policy that called for a new following. The vote was taken at 5 o'clock upon the question: "Shall the joint resolution be engrossed and read a third time?" the result being as stated—yeas 120, nays 167. "The bill is dead," officially declared the Speaker, and the House adjourned.

In the course of his speech in the House today Representative Hatch (Missouri) said: "Now, mark what I say, if the inexorable law of cause and effect has not been expunged from the statute book of the Almighty, unless a halt is called very soon you may expect to see the horrors of the French revolution put on the American stage with all the modern improvements, and that within the next decade. Nor am I alone. That gentleman, Astor, who went to England some time ago, bought him a place on the island and became a British subject, saw what is coming as plainly as I do, so he took time by the as there will be after awhile. He knew very well that if things would keep on as you and I have seen them for some ass of people hurrying every outgoing steamer he might be shoved off the gangplank."

TWO SHIPWRECKED CREWS. Brought Into Port at Baltimore by British Steamer.

BALTIMORE, Md., Feb. 14.-Two shipwrecked crews were brought into port this afternoon by the British steamship Queensmore, from Liverpool The men had suffered terribly, and two died from exposure before the rescuers

On Monday night at 10 o'clock Capt. Howkett, of the Queensmore, when within about 190 miles of Cape Charles, saw signals of distress, and running alongside found the schooner Alma Cummings, from Port Royal, S. C., for Boston in command of Capt. Cummings with a crew of seven men. The boat was leaking badly, and had been kept afloat for two days only through the unceasing efforts of the crew at the pumps. They had gone without food, and most of the men had their hands and feet badly frostbitten. They were completely exhausted when taken from the sinking vessel.

On the following morning the Queensmore found 100 miles from Cape Charles a small boat in which were six men and two corpses, the crew of the schooner Marion F. Sprigg. The Sprigg was bound from Lambert Point for Boston, with a cargo of coal, in charge of Capt. Ira W. Hatch. The heavy ice cut her through, and she sank at the mouth of the Chesapeake Bay almost before the small boat could be launched. There was no time to provision her, or to LARKIN VS. CANNON.

LONDON, Feb. 14.—The Australian wrestler, Larkin, defeated the Englishman, Cannon, in two bouts out of three at Bradford this evening. The match was referred by Ross, of America, who subsequently challenged the winner.

Creates Anxiety.

NEW YORK, Feb. 14.—Considerable anxiety prevails in shipping circles concerning the British steamer Salisbury which left Gibraltar on Jan. 17 for this city. The average time for the Salisbury to make the run from Gibraltar is about seventeen days, taking into consideration the winter weather, and she has now been 29 days out. The Salisbury is quite an old steamer of 1,200 tons burden, and is commanded by Capt. Charles Holderf.

New York, Feb. 14.—The steamer City of St. Augustine, from Jacksonville, Fla., lumber laden, for New York, is now ten days overdue. She has not been heard from since she was seen by the schooner Ida Lawrence, on Feb. 5, off the coast of North Carolina. The captain of the St. Augustine is J. H. Gaskill and the Chief engineer Peter Murphy. Her crew numbers eighteen men, including officers.

A NOVEL and beautiful winter charity festival took place in Brussels a few days ago. Several sculptors got up in the public park an exhibition of works of art executed in snow. There were scenes and groups and single statues forelock and skipped out when there in the greatest variety, from portrait was not such a rush for state rooms statues of well-known persons to the figure of a sleeping drunkard. Every possible combination to command admiration or excite mirth was wrought, years past the time was not far off and bands of music, colored fountains when there would be such a crowd of and skating matches added zest to the snowy exhibition.

Mullholland Sentenced.

John Mullholland, the local wood dealer, who admitted obtaining money under false pretenses from three wellknown residents, was brought before Judge Edward Elliott this morning for sentence. Judge Elliott gave Mullholland a severe reprimand, and instanced his previous six months' term in prison for stealing a load of wood from a Westminster farmer. The judge was inclined to send Mullholland to the penitentiary, but in so doing the prisoner's family would have to suffer, too He was warned never to appear again, and was sentenced to ten days in jail at hard labor. The Queen's Avenue people will rebuild at once. A joint conference of the Trustee and Quarterly boards was held Thursday afternoon to take measures looking towards rebuilding. It was unanimously decided to build on the old site a church and lecture hall or school room which will be an ornament to the locality and a credit to the city. Leading members of the joint boards sub-scribed at once from $16,000 to $20,000 to-wards that object, and this action was supplemented by the appointment of a committee who will make all necessary arrangements for building, and also raising funds to meet the exigency. The members exhibit much unity of spirit and an enterprise that augurs well for the success of the undertaking. Mr. A. Durand, the insurance appraiser, com-

UP IN THE HEAVENS. Wonderful Many-Storied Buildings

in New York.

The Structures Will Go Higher and May Reach 50 Stories Yet!

New York is only beginning to consider seriously the high building problem which has been forced upon her by Chicago. If it had not been for the invention of the western method of building, steel cages on massive foundations, a device which is rapidly giving the principal streets of Chicago the appearance of gloomy canyons, the ques-tion would have settled itself, for the rapid increase in the size of the piers involved for building over twenty stories in height would have taken up the greater part of the room in the ground loor, upon which the commercial value of the building largely depends. But the invention of the cantilever steel cage has changed all that, and there is no reason why the streets should not be lined with blocks as high as the tower of Babel, unless some restriction is applied from outside. Until recently Chicago has been easily the first among all the cities in the world in respect to high buildings, a fact which has helped to preserve the self-respect of its citizens abroad when contemplating such mediocre works of sky-scraping architecture as St. Peter's. But in the last few years New York has been rapidly overhauling its western rival, and each new office building that goes up has climbed so far beyond its predecessors that men with foresight are beginning to feel not a little anxiety for the future.

The streets of New York are not wide, and even Broadway, if it ran be-tween two solid cliffs of buildings 300 or 350 or 400 feet high, would be as dark and damp and unwholesome as an eight foot alley in the slums. Moreover, the safety of the new style architecture has not been fully demonstrated as yet. The extreme strength of the steel cage is undeniable, but metal is a treacherous material, liable to dangerous and unforeseen corrosion. No steel bridge, for instance, would be regarded as safe unless it were subjected to minute and frequent inspection. But many of the steel frame work buildings have been put up in such a way that inspection is impossible, and it is to be feared that in many cases the precautions taken to protect the metal from atmospheric take such chances. The matter of wind pressure also requires further study. The paper read by Guy B. Waite before the American Society of Civil Engineers at a recent meeting showed forcibly the enormous horizontal load of air pressure that may come upon one of these sky-scraping towers, and to build without reference to a possible of the control of the sky-scraping towers, and to build without reference to a possible of the control of the sky-scraping towers. influence have been inadequate. No inal negligence.

Unquestionably the matter of high building in our largest cities has now reached a point where it can no longer be left to take care of itself. The only obstacle to its exaggerated development hitherto has been the doubtfulness of financial profit, and now that this has been removed by the invention of the steel cage, and the development of express elevators, so that tenants prefer to take the highest and bestlighted floors, there is no apprehensible limit to the increase in height, unless state or municipal control, he exercised. A number of New York architects, who were recently interviewed on tects, who were recently interviewed on the question, expressed their minds with great freedom, one taking the view that it should be contrary to law to put up a building more than two and a half times as high as the street was wide, and even that proportion he thought would darken the street unduly. It is noticeable that all the architects consulted expressed a conviction that an even more rapid increase in height than has yet been seen is imminent, one putting the possibility as high as 50 stories.—Springfield Republi-

Toronto, Feb. 15.—The report of the chief of police for 1894 was issued this morning. It shows a serious increase in the number of felonies registered over those of 1893, the increase being 1,772. The committels for felony in 1894 were 352 against 771 in 1893. The most serious increase in registered felonies is in pocket-picking, which increased from 28 in 1893 to 111 in 1894, Toronto being. during part of the year, the headquarters for a gang of pick-pockets. Burglaries increased from 31 to 33; larcenies from 1,523 to 1,624, and highway robbery from 13 to 18. The serious crime of murder remains stationary, only once case being reported during the year. "Dull? How could I be? I was only thinking. "I have been thinking, too; only I would not tell you till I was quite sure of myself, said he, as he sat down beside her. Silence, I do really believe your husband is not such a goose as he seems. Black says so; and Black, though an oddity, is by no means a bad fellow."

Silence smiled. She had oftentimes battled against her husband's dislike to the honest man, whose roughness 'rubbed him up the wrong way," as he said, even worse than Mrs. Maclagan. Now under the rough rind he had discovered the pleasant kernal. Things had evidently righted themselves.
"He objected to me strongly at first because I was a gentleman, which was as great a delusion in his way as my setting him down a boor because he wore a rough coat, and had manners to match. Now, we both understand one another better. I have been working with him at the mill for fourteen days, and what do you think is the result?" He spoke with a buoyancy of tone and manner such as Silence had not seen in him

"Something is going to happen—that is, if my wife does not object, which, being a very sensible woman, I don't think she I am actually going to earn my daily

She turned around-her lips quivering. "Now, don't begin to cry about it, Mrs. Jardine, my dear; it isn't breaking stones upon the road, or anything very dreadful: and the bread I shall earn will not be too luxurious-only two pounds a week-one hundred pounds a year, which is my precise value just at present, Flattering?—but it is something. I am rather proud of my position as a bread-winner-I, that never earned a half-penny in all my days."
He spoke a little fast, and with a flushed cheek. She put her hand upon his and held it, with a soft firm hold.

"Tell me all."

"There is not very much to tell. You know how fond I always was of machinery —indeed, once I begged to be made an engineer, but my—they at home (he never named his mother now) thought the profession was not genteel enough, and it is too late now, Black says. But he also says, as a mill owner I might find my turn for mechanics extremely useful. I could watch, examine, perhaps even invent; indeed, suggestion or two which he is pleased to consider admirable 'Mr. Jardine,' he said to me this morning, 'if you were a capitalist and could start a mill, or a working-man who required to earn your bread as overseer or foreman—you'd do.' And I startled him by telling him I was a working-man, and I did require to earn my bread; and if he thought I deserved foreman's wages, I would take them gratefully, and- Why, Silence, my darling! Not crying?"

But she was, though she dried her tears at once. "Oh, Roderick! and this is done "For you and—it," he whispered, and then there was a long pause of speechless

"I don't wish to make myself out a martyr, not the least in the world," said Roderick at last. "I like my work—I like all work, indeed, but this especially. And Black is by no means a bad fellow to work with when you only know him. There is that great difference in our ages which prevents jarring-and then, he has such a veneration for the family."

"Yes, that is it. But there, too, lies the difficulty. To be foreman at a cotton mill! You, a gentleman and a Jardine! Have you considered?"

"It is because I am a gentleman and a Jardine, that I do not need to consider," he answered, with that slight air of hauteur which, whether it was right or wrong, his wife loved, could not help loving, for it was a bit of himself. "No, dear; in my worst, that is my idlest days, Inever was so foolish as to think there was any disgrace in work, any dignity in idleness; and now, when I have to earn my bread by the sweat of my brow, like old Adam and all the rest, down to poor Grandfather Paterson, I'll do it, and not be ashamed of it either."

"Nor I. Nothing that my husband did could make me ashamed of him, except his doing something wrong. But now—"
She stopped, her voice choking; and again weak-minded little woman that she was, the cried—they both cried. Then they yathered up their courage for the new life which began the next Monday morning.

It might have been—possibly any person nore worldly wise than these young folks would have said it was—that this two pounds a week, so important to them, came out of the softest bit in old Black's heart, rather than his full and usually tightly shut ourse; seeing it would be some months before an ignorant 'gentleman,' however capable, could be equal in value to an ex-capable, could be equal in value to an experienced working man, even as foreman at a mill. But they did not know this, and without another word both cheerfully accepted the new life which was to begin the next Monday morning.

The hardest bit of it was the long hours—the separation from the dusk of the morning till after nightfall. Sometimes Roderick came in so tired that, instead of talking, he would just throw dimself down—not on the came in so tired that, instead of talking, he would just throw dimself down—not on the sofa, that he always left for her, but on the rug at her feet—and fall asleep till bed time; while she anxious to use her busy fingers to the last available minute, sewed silently, watching him the while. If he had seen that watch! Does a man thoroughly comprehend how a woman loves him? But, the working days done, there were the blessed Sundays, he never knew how blessed, he said, till he became a working man. Church over, his wife sent him to take a long stroll over the hills, while she gathered round her for an hour the little class of mill girls, taught for so many years by Miss Jardine, Roderick sometimes grumbled at this, but she said, gently, "We each do our work. I think this is mine; let me do it." And by the time he came to tea it was done, and the jealous fellow had his wife to himself for the evening.

Those sweet Sunday evenings, when, "the rain was on the roof"—for winter set in early that year—how comfortable they were! The two, shut in together, had to learn the great two, shut in together, had to learn the great secret, and go through the hardest test of married life—even such young married life as theirs—constant companionship; not love, not passion, scarcely even affection—for all these even sometimes exist without it. for all these can sometimes exist without it, at least for a long time—but simple companionship, that priceless friendship which panionship, that priceless friendship which is "love without his wings."

"Suppose you had been a goose, Silence," he said one day. "Suppose you had expected me to be always making love to you, instead of talking to you like a sensible woman: suppose you had not cared for the things I care for, but wanted something totally different—say dressing and dancing and going out of evenings—what in the world would have become of me?"

She laughed merrily. "And suppose you had been a man of the world, who liked good dinners and brilliant society, and was ashamed of his poor little wife because she ashamed of his poor little wife because she was not clever-

"Nonsense!"

"Not clever," she repeated, with a sweet decision "after the fashion that is called clever; nor beautiful, nor grand; had brought him no money and given him no nosition—I don't speak often of this, but I know it all. Suppose, Roderick, you had been different from what you are; I wonder what would have become of me! No, no!" and her gayety melted into an almost sad seriousness. "Whatever the future brings we have the present. Let us rejoice in it, and—let us thank God."

In his old life Roderick had seldom thought of this. Now, when every night he saw his wife kneel down by her bedside. he had come instinctively to kneel beside her, 'saying his prayers' as the children do; or

'saying his prayers' as the children do; or rather, since with her always near him there seemed nothing lelt to pray for, just whis-pering in his heart, "Thank God!" As he did now-ay, and many a time in the day, in the midst of his work, which was not too pleasant sometimes. But it grew pleasant and easy when their flashed across his mind the vision of the sweet face at home-no longer the ideal mistress of his dreams, but the dear wife of his bosom, always at hand to lighten his burdens and divide his

"Poor old Black!" he said one day-or "Foor old Black!" he said one day—or rather night—when, after toiling, soaked through, up the steep brae, he sat down a few minutes after, dry and warm, by the bright fire, holding the little hands which had served him so lovingly. "Poor Black, whom I left in his large, handsome, empty house! I am quite sorry for all old bachelors."

"Thank you, dear."
"Though he told me once, in a confidential moment, that his life had been so hard he was often glad there had been no one to share it."

"He was mistaken." "I think he was mistaken," Roderick said, pressing his ips to the smooth brow and grave eyes, that looked on life utterly without fear, so long as it was a life with love in it. "I cannot believe that any man is the weaker, but the stronger, for having a woman to help him. Only he must choose a woman who can help him—as 1 did."

The Grayness of Dust

In time will steal away the color and brightness from the most ex-pensive fabrics. Chenille Curtains are, above all, dust catchers. Don't despair as the color changes; maybe we can get it back by cleaning; if not, we'll give them a new color, a Cardinal, Garnet or Brown, by dye-ing.

A UNIQUE INDUSTRY.

Essex Supplying Gas to Detroit—Another Pipe Under the River.

WINDSOR, Feb. 14.—The lately formed Essex Standard Oil and Gas Company does not propose to let the Ontario Natural Gas Company have a monopoly in supplying gas to Detroit. This company has already made arrangements to lay a pipe across the Detroit River from Sandwich. The company now has the right of way through all the townships that lie between the gas region and Sandwich along the proposed route for laying a main. The Standard Company is negotiating with the company supplying Detroit for the sale of its South Essex gas.

The great lung healer is found in the excellent medicine sold as Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It soothes and diminishes the sensibility of the membrane of the throat and air passages, and is a sovereign remedy for all coughs, colds, hoarseness, etc. It has cured many when supposed to be far advanced in consumption.

When a gunpowder lighter comes alongside a war ship all lights are put out. Matches are carefully stowed away, the cook suspends operations, pipes are extinguished, and the heavy chests are carried on board by hand. Why will you allow a cough to lacerate your throat or lungs and run the risk of filling a consumptive's grave, when by the timely use of Bickle's Anti-Consumptive Syrup the pain can be allayed and the danger avoided?
This syrup is pleasant to the taste, and unsurpassed for relieving, healing and curing all affections of the throat and lungs, coughs, colds, bronchitis, etc.

Snazelle. Snazelle appeared before a large and well-pleased audience at the Grand Opera House last evening, and fully justified the numerous flattering comments that his entertainments have received on every hand. He is literally "a whole show in himself." Snazelle appears again tonight, and those who fail to see and hear him will miss an entertainment of rare and marvelous merit.

Arcanum "At Home." The "At Home," under the auspices of London Council, 233, Royal Arcanum, in Pythias, Hall last night, was a very enjoy-able and pleasant affair. The attendance was very large, but everyone was made comfortable around the large hall by means of upholstered chairs and settees. Mr. D. Spry, who presided, welcomed the guests and introduced the various contributors to the evening's programme. The latter included: Selection, harpers; song, Mr. Forsythe; song, Miss Allen; recitation, Miss Spry; song, Miss Retta Mutch; piano solo, Miss May O'Connor; song, Miss Fowler; song, Fred. A pleasing feature of the evening was the intermission, during which refreshments were served and a sociable time spent. After the programme had been completed dancing was indulged in in the rear hall, the Italian harpers supplying the music. The success of the evening was due in a large measure to the untiring efforts of the committee, consisting of: A. W. Fraser (chairman), J. L. Spry, T. Bland, W. H. Morgan, J. H. Ferguson, E. W. Greaves, W. Bartlett, T. G. Davis, R. K. Cowan, A. Gillean, J. Houston, J. B. McKillop and A. B. Munson (secretary.) Will Cost Nearly $4,000.

were laid over until the estimates are prepared. Thomas S. Wall's application for permission to build a switch from the C. P. R. to his premises came up again. Mr. Wall will be required to secure the consent of three ratepayers near whose property the switch will run. Ald. O'Meara spoke of a scheme which will meet with the approval of wheelmen and horsemen, but probably not of the council. He advocated the remodeling of the driveway in Victoria Park, believing that if it were kept as near the boulevard all round, as it is at present on the east side, oftizens would have better accommodation and more pleasure out of the resort than they have had in the past. Mr. O'Meara also thought provision in the shape of al smaller patch inside the horse track should be made for wheeling. He claimed the work would cost but a trifle, and so favorably did he impress the committeemen with the scheme that they decided to visit the park and report later. Complaints were made by the First Presbyterian and St. Peter's congregations against the action of the street -On Tuesday morning the barns and will investigate. Present: Ald. W. A Big Circle. The anniversary of Pride of the East Circle, Companions of the Forest, was marked by a concert and assembly in the East End Hall last night. The circle has just passed its sixth birthday, and since its institution has paid out $833 83 in sick and $250 in death benefits. The membership is 80, and the assets at Dec. 31 were $460. Ex-Mayor George Taylor, in his address as chairman, referred with pleasure to the growth of the circle and complimented the ladies on their good work. The programme was much appreciated by the large audience. It comprised piano selections by Mr. George Watts, songs by Messrs. J. A. Birmingham, M. McKeough, Henry Wright and Miss Nellie McLean; dancing, Chris Hogg, duets by Misses Mc-Dowell and Wright; duets by the Misses Rutherford, Templeton and Robertson, and Messrs. Birmingham, Connors and Mc-Keough in funny character sketches. Refreshments were served, and an assembly wound up the evening's entertainment. The committee in charge of the anniversary entertainment were Mesdames Ward, Gibling, Moore, Richards, Head, Misses Drew, McKenzie, Small and Hayman, and Messas, W. W. Clark and H. Porter.
