Aldermen's Sympathy For Street Railway Company Vanishes After Yesterday's Conference-Council May Insist Tonight on Lower Fares and Accept Fight.

CITY'S RIGHTS TO SERVICE NOW INVOLVED

Condemning the obstinate and dictatorial attitude taken by Manager Tait of the London Street Railway Company at yesterday's conference, city aldermen today veered over from a conciliatory policy to the lower fares faction. Tonight's council meeting is now quite likely to favor fighting the company to the last ditch. Sharp reaction was evident in council circles today, following the demands made by the street railway company yesterday afternoon. Aldermen who have been included in the "doubtful" column came out emphatically in favor of making no concessions to the Carswell, Smith, Bottrill, Linnell and Neely favor sticking to the requirements of bylaw 916 and demanding a fares rate of seven and nine tickets for a quarter. Ald. Doig's sympathy with the street railway company has waned considerably and he is not in favor of a five-cent fare unless the company promises to improve service

A vote against the five-cent fareproposal of the street railway is expected, and seems assured, unless a last-minute proposal comes from the company. Such a possibility was suggested by several members of the council today. Ald. Bottrill thinks a new sale price may still be presented by the road at the last moment. Ald.
McKay is confident that an attitude in favor of reversal to the old rate of fares will be adopted.

Ald. Clift's plain-spoken attitude sets at rest some doubt concerning his attitude. He points out that the company's defiance has been too high-handed and that the present issue is not one of five-cent fares but of the city's rights in the matter.

Carswell Feels the Same.

"I'm inclined to think that the company is demanding too much al-together, from what I hear today," Robert Carswell commented and placed another vote in the seven and nine ticket column. If New Beer Intoxicates Vendor Will Face Arrest

Toronto, March 4 .- Premier Ferguson today made his first important announcement on the sale of the new beer. "The beer will be sold by permission," he said. "It will be sold by those who get permits to sell it in places which we approve at a nominal charge. It will not be sold to boys under 18 years of age, and it will not be sold in candy booths or dressmaking establishments as certain people try to tell you."

The premier intimated that if anyone became intoxicated on 4.4 per cent beer, the person selling it could be prosecuted under the O. T. A. on temperance. In the meantime a new generation has grown up.

The prohibitionists failed to do their duty, and I undertook to tell them so the other day, and let me tell you that the small deputation agreed with me and the attorney-general. But what happened when they went back to the convention? Mr. Austin told them that while he did not agree with the government he that while he does not agree. with the government he thought they with the government he thought they were sincere. That was choked down his throat and the convention had not the tolerance to allow the man to express his view. "Then, the president of that association is our old friend, R. J. Mr. Ferguson argued that a man who held such a position should not allow himself to be chosen head of the prohibition forces.

Charges Intolerance.

He said that the prohibitionists should not make the outstanding feature of their organization intolerance. What he had told the deputation, he said, was in hopes of making them tolerant, but the convention wound up with a resolution to coerce members to their views. "Is coercion to present a proposition to present a proposition to pr members to their views. "Is coercion to prevail?" asked the premier, who contended that moral suasion, not coercion, education, not autocratic action, was the best means of convincing people. He declared that the government would take full responsibility for its action, and would refuse to be coerced.

Going into history again, the premier said that it was not the first time that a Conservative premier had been accused of violating his word. He referred to attacks on Sir James Whitney, and declared that he would follow the course of Sir James follow the course of Sir James. Looking at the "bedraggled, tattered rem-anyone who sold a drink which in toxicated was subjected to penalty under the act. He said this phase of the act remained unchanged, as the government simply submitted an amendment that two and half per cent alcholoic content was presumed to be non-intoxicating by the law. Because Mr. Raney said that two and half alcoholic content was intoxicating the public should not accept it. He pointed out that in 1916 there was doubt about the question as to whether 2½ alcohlic content

As other reasons for the new measure he pointed to the falling off in support of the O. T. A., increased sales in the dispensaries from $3,500,-000 in 1920 to $5,250,000 in 1924; that at the border said that pensary sales were only a part of the real sale of liquor to Ontario citizens.

On Brewing Permits. "Do you think that we ought to go on deluding ourselves, or is this thing to be a farce?" asked the premier, who pointed out that there were 28,000 home brew permits in Ontario, against 10,000 for the rest of Canada. He also pointed out that drunkenness from the police reports ad increased in Ontario. The premier pointed out that if the government had not taken its action that the O. T. A. would have been

In conclusion, he said that as the lominion government refused to folow shipments from breweries or distilleries that it was impossible to stop short-circuiting of shipments

The amendment, he said, was to preserve the principle of the O. T. A. prime minister "put across" in the house this evening, when he requested Karl Homuth, Labor member of the government. All that he asked was the tolerance of the he asked was the tolerance of the people and co-operation of all in the temperance movement. He thought he would be subject only to the opposition of those who were out to de eat the government. His idea was to carry on and conserve the principles of Conservatism and hand them to his successors unsullied.

Board Takes Offensive In New High Plan: Chamberlain Silent On New Pact

COUNCIL ASKED TO RESCIND BYLAW

Education Board Moves To Insure Money For New High School.

CALLED INVALID

Choosing the line of least resis tance, the board of education yesterday decided to request the council to rescind the bylaw passed in 1914 which created a second high school district in the south end of the city The action was taken by the board so that no obstacle would be allowed to stand in the council's way toward granting the necessary funds to provide for the erection of a new coilegiate institute in the east end of the city.

No discussion took place at the meeting and the motion that the request be forwarded to the council proposed by Trustees Mrs. John I. A. Hunt and A. Roy Cairneross, vicechairman of the board, was adopted casting what by the unanimous vote of the board. Briefly, the history of the case is that in June, 1914, acting, it is under stood, at the request of the board of education, the city council passed bylaw creating a second high school district in the city.

As far as can be learned from City Clerk Sam Baker, the bylaw was never presented by either the council Prominent Minister Will Be or the board to the minister of education for his approval, which action is necessary prior to the formation of any high school district. Thus no ction was taken upon the bylaw as passed by the council at that time. Action in 1919.

This resolution was never confirmed by the necessary bylaw being passed by the necessary bylaw being passed by e council.

Primarily, the reason the board is morning, Harmon Westland, promi-

The board does not now wish to question as well as the meet-

New York, March 4.- The sportswomen of this continent are the best dressed in the world. They have more than a little to do with setting the styles. In New York the boyish cut of the new tailored costumes is being accentuated by the mannequins showing them, who wear monocles. Designers discourage the practice since ost mannequins cannot be entirely divorced from a roguish wink, while a monocle, to be truly effective, de-mands a blank stare.

Step Out and Hold In.

For years step-ins have been popular in lingerie and other garments.

Now the overhead step-out is attracting all the attention. It is a corset which has not a lacing to mar its contours, and since the parts of the torso it is meant to repress are of greater circumference than the shoulders it is easily donned and doffed over the head.

For Warm Spring Days There Are Ensembles With Georgette Wraps to Match.

There are some women who still feel not quite properly clad for the street unless they are wearing some sort of wrap. Perhaps this is a relic of Victorian prudery, but it persists none the less. There wust be something at least to suggest a wrap in the street costume to make it seem really suitable outdoors. That is the prejudiced point of view.

To many other women, of course, there never seems to be any reason at all for wearing a wrap save for the purpose of providing warmth.

And for such women there can be little excuse for the filmy little wraps of georgette and other diaphanous material that have been produced for spring. There are evening wraps of lace, white lace, black lace, or lace dyed to match the frock with which they are to be worn. There are georgette coats.
Often the georgette wrap is part of an ensemble. Sometimes the frock is likewise of georgette and sometimes of one of the silk crepes. The sketch shows something of this sort—the coat of crepe georgette edged. —the coat of crepe georgette edged with fur about the hem and worn over a frock of crepe dechine, which is trimmed with crepe de chine—both is trimmed with crepe de chine—both georgette and crepe de chine being of a soft shade of gray.

The same model might well be developed in one of the new so-called natural tones, which are of course the tawny shades of unbleached and undyed silken or woolen fabrics. The band of fur is gray to match the gray frock and should be chosen to match the georgette as nearly as possible, since the effect would be rather marred by a striking contrast in the tone of this fur and the frock. It is this desire to maintain the It is this desire to maintain the monotone in certain frocks that has indoubtedly prompted the French dressmakers who have been using the Miss Agnes Duffield is visiting with riends in Peterboro.

Probably that is one of those thoroughly satisfactory questions that can be answered by "either" or "both." Sometimes the husband wastes, sometimes the husband wastes, sometimes the wife. And perhaps the proportion is just about lifty-fifty. As many men as women are wasteful of the family income.

But times change and the attitude nowadays toward wastefulness is modern women are both the product. But times change and the attitude nowadays toward wastefulness is different, perhaps, from what it used to be. Years ago a man married to a wasteful wife, even, we imagine if he had a good deal of money, would have laid down the law to her regarding her wastefulness. Now-adays the husband of a wasteful

By PATRICIA WENTWORTH.

Plans for a social to be held at the home of Mrs. Fred White on Monday night, to take the form of an apronishower, were made at last night's meeting of the Women's Labor party. Mrs. F. Wells, the president, occupied the chair. Mrs. A. Ferguson was named treasurer in place of Mrs. Charles Shibley, who has resigned. CHILDREN'S HOSPITAL BOARD. The annual meeting of the Children's hospital committee has been called for tomorrow afternoon at the CY. W. C. A., King street, at 3 o'clock. Mrs. A. E. Miller will preside.

By some deflected line of reasoning "everyone" meant Henry.

Jane folded up the pale blue sash and shut it sharply into a drawer. Then she put on Renata's dressing gown. It was made of crimson flannel, very thick and soft, with sealloped edges to the collar and cuffs—"exactly like one's grandmother's petticoat."

She rumpled the bedclothes and

When Jane sat down to wait, she told herself that she would not listen and strain; she would not listen and strain; she would just sit there quite peacefully and if anything was going to happen—well, let it happen. But as she sat there, she became afraia against her will, aware once more of that sense of pressure which had come upon her in the drawing-room. It was as if something was steadily approaching not her alone, but all of them—as if their thoughts and actions were being, at one and the same time, dictated by an outside force and scrutinized—watched—spied upon.

When the rapping came, it brought the oddest sense of interruption. Jane sprang to her feet, stood for a moment catching at her self-control, and then went noiselessly to the door. She listened before opening it, and could hear nothing; and, as she listened, the knocking came again, but from behind her.

Jane crossed the floor very slowly; put both hands on the cupboard doors, and flung them wide. For a moment everything was quite black, then, with a most unpleasant suddenness, a narrow white ray cut the dark, and Henry's voice said. "It's only me."

Jane's hand went to her lips, pressing them firmly. She would not have admitted that this action alone saved her from screaming. result that he topped his shot, and the rubber went through his feet. One run, no hits, one error.

In two minutes, however, the pill-pounders had tied it up when Charlebois went the whole route alone to fool the C. N. R. defence and beat Smith with a hot volley.

Just before the period closed Mc-Geoch shoved in what proved the winning goal. The Standard center man stopped a C. N. R. rush at center lee and then broke fast, with Monohan and McMillan supporting him. Monohan took McGeoch's pass and then returned it to Pete, who scooped it in backhand, after sprawling.

The second stanza was marked by the stellar scio excursions of Leamy and the airtight work of Herb Smith in the C. N. R. net. The latter stopped surv tallies time after time when the Standard speedsters had worked past his defence. McMillan missed out on several real chances by shooting wide after going up with Leamy.

To start the last canto the railroaders threw everything they had into the fray in a desperate attempt to secure the tying counter, but it failed to materialize. At two minutes Ziegler. Pigeon and Burgess cut loose on a fast combined dash. Ziegler's shot hit the post, and then an argument cusued when the goal judge asserted the dishad rebounded, but not into the twine. After this play roughened up considerably, with the losers playing a fourman front line and the tired drugglist gasping out a dogged resistance. About half way the yellow Jackets lost out again on what locked like a sure goal when, with only one defence man confronting them. McMillan and Monohan were fooled when Smith came out to meet them and turn back the latter's shot hit.

in the course of a long speech. But it is almost impossible for him to misquote an entire speech. That's almost beyond the law of averages. But whether Mr. Makins, K.C., of Stratford was misquoted or not is quite beside the fact that his speech or its distorted version has created what all creators of drammer seek-a plot, a situation. The plot has been there, of course, all along, but so far it's never been put into so many printed words-even misquoted words.

It's intriguing to say the least. Mr. Makins, whom it seemed, was speaking the prologue to what might prove the biggest sport drama written since the Spartans provided a food for the dramatic in athletics, was misunderstood. It is too bad Fandora was tuning in to hear the greatest bust-up ever heard. Is there no budding Bard of Avon, who will fashion this drama, yet to be written, give point, substance and climax to the skeleton of plot already uncovered?

THE HIGHER LEVEL.

As a sequel to a story appearing in a national magazine last month outlining the history of hockey, old followers of the game and all sporting editors have answered a questionnaire, asking for an all-star hockey team of all time, which collection of choices is to be published in the next issue.

Capt. Sutherland, who was at the bedside of his son in Detroit, received a telegraphic request, but found it an impossible task to choose one all-star team from stars both past and present. The veteran Kingston enthusiast thereupon divided hockey into two periods and submitted a team for each. It seems the only logical thing to do.

"Not so many years ago," said Capt. Jim, "it wasn't hard to pick out the stars. They stood out. But nowadays, the general average of hockey is the highest since the game began."

Maybe it's more systematic play that seems to be reducing players to more of a general level of effectiveness. But there are plenty of old players and fans to say that in seven-man hockey there was more "system" than there is today, although the word was not in vogue then.

The "Y" boys have been playing together for two seasons and have stacked up against the strongest teams in Western Ontario in their own group. They are going into the game Saturday with the utmost confidence that they can put a crimp in the O. A. C. aspirations. Curious Cross-Currents Range

Curious Cross-Currents Range
Through Morning's Trading—Rails Stronger.

Associated Press Despatch.
Nek York, March 5.—Curious cross-currents of prices characterized the morning's trading on the New York stock exchange. Most of the pools had their specialties well in hand, but profit-taking sales and sporadic bear selling cut into the quoted values of other stocks.
Raising of the American Locomotive's annual dividend rate to 8, and the disbursement of an extra dividend of $10, payable quarterly, brought about a temporary rally in the industrial list. A secondary reaction developed later, American Car and Foundry dropping 4 points from its high. American Locomotive and Ludum Steel 3 each, and American Car and Foundry dropping 4 points from its high. American Locomotive and Ludum Steel 3 each, and American Can Texas-Gulf Sulphur and Baldwin 2 each.

The rails offered better resistance to pressure, independent strength being shown by Baltimore and Ohio and Delaware and Hudson, each of which advanced 235 points. Federal Light and Traction soared 6 points to a record too at 144.

INDUSTRIALS DOING BETTER.

Craig, Luther & Irvine say in their monthly review: "At this time of the year many of our leading corporations are issuing statements of their operations for 1924, and it is worthy of special notice that the great majority of them show considerable improvement in revenue and income over 1923. This is all the more gratifying considering the leanness of the period through which they have passed, and it augurs well for the current year in view of the probability that further improvement will take place. Moreover most of the representative companies have maintained themselves in a strong liquid position. There has been a steady growth in the business reported by large financial corporations as well as public utility concerns, particularly those operating in the larger centres of population, so that taking last year's business conditions into consideration there are excellent reasons for taking an optimistic view of the situation as a whole."

PRESSED METALS. Pressed Metals, Limited, which came into prominence several years ago, in connection with the invention of a rapid method of making bushings for motor method of making pushings for motor cars, have, it appears, developed a new bushing, known as the "shackle bushing." This improved bushing has already been adopted by thirty-three automobile companies in the United States, including Studebaker and Dodge companies. As a result of this new departure, Pressed Metals, Limited, which suffered from the loss of its business with the Ford Company, is regaining its earning-power. Froduction to date is carrying overhead entirely, and has been doubled within the last three months. The affairs of the company appear to be would have to be disrupted, though not until the close of the present school year next June. At that date the pupils would be distributed amongst the old two-room Quebec street school, two rooms in the present kindergarten house on the Rectory street site, other rooms in Lorne avenue and Alexandra schools, and probably two rooms in some house to be secured for the purpose. Secure House.

The board has admitted that the Pottersburg district has not adequate and proper public school accommodation at the present time and anticipates also the securing of additional room in a house in the district next September in which to provide accommodation for the overflow in school and provide for a kindergarten as well.

The intention of the board is further to set aside the $50,000 placed coe, and T. L. Kennedy of Peel or to the credit of the public school department as the purchase price of the Rectory school site as the nucleu of the building fund for a new publi school to be erected probably in 1927 and so situated as to serve both Pot tersburg and Rectory school district In this connection the board bas suitable site already under option and, it is understood, that the purchase of that property is to pleted for approximately $20,000 about three months' time, leaving $30,000 in reserve and drawing inter est to apply on the new Pottersburg Rectory public school.

Thus the arrangement suggested for Rectory school pupils and additional room for Pottersburg pupils next September would be temporary and only for a period of a year or so. The board decided that it was jus tified in tearing down the Rectory school because of the double facts that the district as at present constituted is fast becoming depleted and that the building would not be fit for use after a period of three or five years.

Large Expenditure.

Further than this, to purchase additional property on King street, upon which to erect the proposed new collegiate, leaving the Rectory school standing for a few years, would require an expenditure, estimated by the board in securing a valuation the several properties involved to be in the neighborhood of $70,000.

The requested issue of $354,000 of debentures for school purposes is split up as follows: Public schools. $17,000; technical high school, $70,000, and collegiate institute, $267,000. The public school amount includes $2,000 for the purchase of additional land for Ealing public school; $4,500 to complete Empress public school construction account, and $10,500 for

Empress public school equipment. The technical high school amount of $70,000 is to cover the cost of the proposed new classroom addition to the school. Of this sum 50 per cent is borne by the province and 50 per

The collegiate institutes amount embraces $2,000 for the purchase of property in connection with the site already secured for the South London collegiate, $50,000 for the proposed purchase of the Rectory school site, and $215,000 for the proposed new east end collegiate building.

There is probably no better, safer or more reliable stomach antiacid than Bisurated Magnesia, and it is widely used for this purpose. It has no direct action on the stomach and is not a digestent. Officials Refuse Point Blank To Discuss Sale of Road.

Londoners will pay five-cent fare: on street railway cars on Monday morning, or walk. No attempt wil be made by the street railway company to operate under the old rate of seven and nine tickets for a quarter

Such was the virtual ultimatum of the company handed last night to a special committee that went to seek the latest sale price of the road. The new price, upon which the council company refused point blank to discuss sale of the road.

Viceroy's Leave of Absence Announcement Stirs Political Circles.

Delhi, India, March 4.—It is the belief here that the forthcoming departure of the Earl of Reading, viceroy of India, for a four months' leave Indian affairs with Lord Birkenhead secretary of state for India, concerns most important matters of Indian administration. Such a leave of absence is unprecedented in the annals of British rule in India, and it has set political circles here agog with

The universal opinion is that the object of the visit is a discussion with Lord Birkenhead of proposals of the committee which the government of India appointed in 1924 to inquire into the working of legislative reorms and make recommendations or Crediton Man Inclined To Give Promoter Chance To Make Good.

John Geiser of Crediton, a director of the Drury Oil and Petroleum Company, in which Middlesex and Huron county farmers invested some $300,-000, is inclined to give Mr. Cyrus Drury of Detroit a chance to make good on his promise to pay back the shareholders dollar for dollar plus interest from the profits he ex pects to make from the Common wealth Light and Power Company of Arizona within a year's time.

"I think that Mr. Drury is doing his best to make good," said Mr. Geiser in a telephone conversation with The Advertiser

"Do you think that the shareholders should go slow in court action through the attorney-general and give Mr. Drury time to pay the money back?" asked The Advertiser. "Well, that's a problem. It is not for me to say," replied Mr. Geiser. "I haven't been at a meeting for six weeks. I would be inclined to give him a chance.' "I don't know much about it," declared Matt. Doyle of Ailsa Craig. "It all depends on Drury's honesty and the famous African missionary and the famous African missionary and

Will the shareholders put up enough money to see the investiga-tion through?" asked The Advertiser. "If they lost $300,000, surely they would put up enough money to get it back," countered Mr. Doyle. "It is hard to say just what will happen."

"I wouldn't like to give my opinion at present," stated Angus Galbraith of Appin, who made the trip to the Texas oilfields with others of his neighbors. "It didn't look so good to us after we got there. I would prefer to discuss the matter, though, at some other time. We all got notices that Mr. Drury would do his best to pay us back after he got his power company under way."

SMART FASHION ALLIANCES EXPRESSED IN SPRING CLOTHES

In new costumes there has been an ardor for match-making — with results that are very pronounced.

Most prominent, of course, is the ensemble. Matching coat and dress—and incidentally a clever pairing which puts these partners at the very height of the mode.

Winter fur contracts an alliance with spring coats—and this proves very flattering to the latter. Important agreements, which have to do with very smart frocks and ensembles, are entered into by plain and printed silks.

And there are various entanglements among accessories which result in interesting combinations of matching gloves and hose-matching hat and handbags-matching handkerchief and scarf.

FORMAL FASHION OPENING

Notes of formal elegance enter into the new clothes. Elaborations of line and trimming detail trend definitely toward more subtle and more feminine effects.

They replace the boyish line for afternoon and evening wear-leaving it none the less important, though in the field of street and sport clothes.

Printed silks add a varied color interest. Lustrous satin crepes embody a fascinating range of high tones. Wool failles, bengalines and kasha-like fabrics of coat and ensemble afford the deep, rich background of the fashion picture.

Fashion displays tomorrow are not confined to the more formal type of costume. New sports clothes echo the first sounds of spring. Jacquard patterned golf skirts, for example, with hidden pleats of silk affording slim lines, yet the utmost freedom of movement.

New sweaters from New York. New hats for every occasion. New blouses for the tailored suit and jumper frock. Even new lingerie, varied and fascinating in its flower tints.
