POETRY.

Gentleman Jim.

In the Diamond shaft worked Gentleman Jim,
Handsome of face and stout of limb,
Came in dress; but something in him,
Whether down in the coal mine, soiled
and grim,
Or wandering alone in holiday time
Won the love and respect of all in that clime.

He had no sweetheart, he had no wife,
Some mighty sorrow had dimmed his life.
His earnings, hardly won and small,
Were sent to the orphan and the widow's call.
Of those who had perished in shaft or mine,
He was the friend of all living things,
And moving along in those toilsome
ways,
He wore the demerol of gentler days.
In April, when the mine fell in,
Beneath the timbers stood Gentleman
Jim;
With a giant grasp he flung two of the logs
Clear of the danger. With defensing noise
The shaft gave way on every side;
The boys were safe but Jim—he died;
Died as men die, and will die again,
Giving their lives for their fellow men.

When rocks and timbers were cleared away
And Jim borne up on light of day,
They took from his bosom, stained with blood,
Two withered leaves of a withered bud,
Pinned on a card, "Toute a toi—Marie."
Was written beneath them; beneath it stood
On this rolls his heart for years had worn, Had written "All withered except the thorn."
What life romance, what story of wrong
This man had locked up in his soul so long,
None who loved him may ever know,
But the tale of his glorious chivalric deed Shall not perish as long as men hold this creed—
That the hero whose blood for his kind is shed
Wins a deathless fame and an honored bed;
A monument grander than the sculptor ever gave,
In the glory that follows the martyr's grave.

SELECT STORY.

GOOD BYE!

BY JOHN STRANGE WINTER.

Five years had gone by—most people had long, long ago forgotten all about what in its time had been called the Adair scandal, and the second Mrs. Adair had been mistress of the house in Grosvenor Street the same length of time as the first one had so resigned.

"What is the story about Adair," a man asked of a friend one day in the Park, after having stood for ten minutes talking to Mrs. Adair, whose carriage was drawn up by the rails.

"The story—oh! he divorced his first wife, that's all," the other man answered.

"Divorced his wife! Oh! he divorced her then?"

"Oh, yes! that was so."
"Did you know her?"

"Oh, yes! I know her well. She was a pretty creature. Never could tell myself how he could stand this one after the first."

"Well, poor devil, he doesn't try to stand anything—he seems to me to let things slide anyhow," said the seeker after knowledge carelessly. "Who was the other?"

"A Miss Deering—parson's daughter of course. Odd thing," said Le Marchant in a musing tone, "that parson's daughters are very much like parson's sons, always the wildest rickets out. Not that Mrs. Adair was wild—not a bit of it; on the contrary, she was one of the gentlest, best-mannered women I ever knew; you might—as far as outside appearances went—have staked your life on her being all right, and yet—she had to divorce her."

"It will cure you."

get a dinner party.

said Le Marchant "and for the rest I dare say he gives her quite as much of his company as she cares about."

They had not gone much further before they met Adair coming slowly along by himself, not seeing or looking for anyone. He nodded to them but passed on, evidently without thinking for a moment of stopping—they were not his friends, but intimates of his wife's, and was quite another matter.

He walked slowly up the path, past the rows and rows of chairs, a man so proudly changed from what Adair had been in the old days before the dark trouble had fallen upon him. Two ladies stopped and spoke to him, just a word or two.

"What a handsome man," said one to the other when they had parted.

"Yes, that is Mr. Adair—poor fellow," answered the elder one.

"Why poor?"

"Oh! you remember 'the Adair case' surely," the elder one exclaimed.

"Ah, yes! to be sure. But he married again."

"Yes, and fairly soon, but he never got over it; he was never the same thereafter. I never believed a word against her, poor girl, but of course all the men were down upon her like a load of bricks—they always are."

"Yes, I believe you are right," said the young lady in a thoughtful tone.

"About the men—oh! my dear, the beautiful virtue with which a man who is as black as night, midnight, himself, will descend on the sanctity of the marriage tie, really is very often astounding. Ah, yes! the men make the laws and the poor women have to keep them and suffer by them."

And Adair, keeping quietly on his way, met one and another of his acquaintances, and then suddenly found himself face to face with St. John, who looked at him with cold eyes that seemed to see nothing. Even after five years the sight of St. John was enough to set his heart beating hard, to blanch his face to the lips, and to send his mind back with all the old agony to the tragedy with which his happy days had ended. He wondered, as he walked slowly through the throng of gay folks that brilliant summer day, where Hope was now, where could she be? Why, he did not even know if she was alive or dead, whether she was or had been with St. John or not! And he—had filled her place with a gay little woman who had not heart enough ever to go wrong—he could trust her, yes, as he would be able to trust a stone. Well—he could not grumble—he had not asked for bread, he had but offered a stone himself and Flossie Tempest had duly paid him in kind.

For he had been quite honest with her when he had asked her to fill Hope's place. He had pretended no thing, made believe nothing. After the season came to an end he had gone to several country houses, or rather he had gone to Homburg first and thence to several English country houses. At two out of the first three houses he went to, he found Flossie Tempest, and as they got on excellently well together, they had been, naturally enough, thrown a good deal into one another's society, and the end of it was that he asked her to marry him.

"And I will be quite honest," he said, with pathetic wretchedness—"I have no love to offer you—I gave Hope all my love, all, and I shall never love anyone again as I loved her, but I will love you, and I will give you your own way in everything, and I am very fondly and miserably—What do you say?"

And Flossie said yes. She pretended no love on her side, she spoke gravely, even tenderly of Hope; she told him that for her part she had never quite believed in what the world had said against her, she expressed a doubt as to whether it would be actually right to marry him—but she said yes.

So they were married, and after a few weeks spent happily enough in the Riviera, they came back to the house in Grosvenor Street to begin life together.

And also, and alas for the mutability of human hopes! He found only too soon that he had bound himself in adamantine chains for nothing! As Mrs. Adair, Flossie was not half as much his friend as she had been as Flossie

Tempus, who had comforted him by her very carelessness and unconsciousness of manner! The new life to him was a series of shocks.

It cost him for many months a bitter pang to see her in the dainty boudoir, which had been Hope's favorite sitting-room, until indeed she had gradually cleared the little room out of all likeness to its former self.

"Dick," she said to him a few days after they had returned to Grosvenor Street—"I don't want to pain you, but I must ask you one question. Would you like me to make the house look different at all, or would you like me to leave all poor Hope's things just as they are?"

"It is your house to do just as you like with," he answered, his face darkening. "Whatever was scored about it has been violated for me, until you sanctify it afresh. Make what alterations you like—you need not consider the past at all."

"Thanks, that was all I wanted to ask," she said quietly.

She felt instinctively that he would rather that she did make such alterations as would remind him less of Hope than the house would do if left precisely as she had left it.

"Poor Hope," she said, "how hard he is on her yet—and how she must have suffered, for she was fond of him. Oh, yes! she was fond of him. Well, I begin differently—I begin as I mean to do on. Dick can never make me suffer in that way—nothing would make me risk it."

And as she had begun, so she had gone on. She was perfectly friendly, but she was quite indifferent—she was always pleasant to him, but she was thoroughly independent of him. She was altogether different to what Hope had been—and Hope had been for five years the impersonation of all feminine charms and graces to him.

And Flossie was as she had always been, a flirt of the very first water! First she could and did with everyone, even with him until she grew tired of trying to flirt with a being so unresponsive and icy. And once when he demonstrated with her for flirting with other men, she turned upon him and fairly scorched him with her scorn.

"Flirt—I?" she cried. "Why how long have you known me, Dick? Ten years? and have I not flirted all that time? Have I ever been injudicious, unbecoming, sneaky over my flirtations? No, a thousand times, no. You thought because I married you that I was going to change my whole nature and become a tame pussy cat. Then, my dear, let me advise you to lose no time in getting any such idea out of your mind, for a flirt I was when you married me and a flirt I shall be to the end of the chapter. You are jaundiced, Dick, my friend, simply jaundiced."

And Dick knew that it was true, and Flossie went on her gay and careless way, making an admirable mistress for the pretty house, an admirable hostess; a charming gay volatile figure headed for his dinner-table.

But as a wife—well he might sigh and sigh for the irrevocable past, for the tender grace of a day that was dead, but that day was dead, and all that had filled his heart and life with tenderness and love had slipped from his grasp, like a fragile globe of glass, may fall from your hands to the floor and be shattered in an instant into a thousand pieces, never to be put together again for ever.

His mind went back over it all as he walked through the Park, and when he reached that point of the railings at which you may cross to the corner, he suddenly became aware that his wife's carriage was drawn up beside the railings and that two young men were standing there chatting to her. They were very young and very familiar—they least the arms upon the side of the carriage with all the assurance imaginable—"Oh! there's Dick," he heard her say.

He felt that he was not wanted there, that he was only a wet blanket, a kill-joy; yet he could not pass his wife in public without stopping and saying something or other to her, so he took off his hat to her and saluted the two men, one of whom he knew and one whom he had never seen before.

"Fancy your being in the Park, Dick," Mrs. Adair said with a laugh, and it was just the same inconsequent ### foolish laugh that she had had as a girl. "You'd better get in and take a turn with me—I shall be quite proud to be seen with you. I believe heaps of people think you haven't a wife at all, or rather that I haven't got a husband."

"Certainly, I am at your service," said he readily; and so they remained talking together for a few minutes.

Just as Adair was about to get into the carriage, however, a big bronzed soldierly-looking man came sauntering along, looked at him curiously, then keenly, then stopped short—"Why, Adair, old fellow, I'm delighted to see you," he burst out—"I haven't seen you for seven years, old chap, seven years have I been fringed up in Alapora, not seeing a white face except in the looking glass once in three months."

"Geoff!" cried Adair incredulously.

"Yes," returned the big man heartily. "Geoff Trevor—and it's very evident to me, my friend, that you've never given Geoff Trevor a thought since we parted seven years ago. Well, well, I'll forgive you. And your wife, how is she? Is she in the Park to-day?"

"My wife?" repeated Adair, feeling himself going dead faint. "Oh! yes, to be sure—let me introduce you," with an uncertain gesture towards Flossie. "You've not met Mrs. Adair before."

It was an intensely awkward moment for them all—Major Trevor stared at Flossie, then perceived Adair's ghastly face and guessed that something serious had happened of which he was ignorant. Flossie, however, came gallantly to the rescue—"I am the second Mrs. Adair," she said in an undertone. "You remember Hope, I see. I hope you will come to see us—you will dine with us, of course, one evening soon. You are quite wrong in thinking that Dick had forgotten you—he has spoken of you very often to me."

Adair breathed freely once more. He was astonished at Flossie's nerve and equally so at her inventive qualities, for to the best of his remembrance he had never uttered Major Trevor's name to her in his life. However, she had successfully bridged over an awkwardness, and he was profoundly thankful to her for it.

"I should like to take a turn," she went on—"open the door, one of you, please."

In two minutes more she had stepped out of the carriage and was gaily walking down towards Albert Gate with Major Trevor beside her. And gaily she talked on the light and trivial topics of the town until she saw by glancing sideways that they had gained a little on Adair and the two young men.

"Major Trevor," she said sharply then "don't look surprised or anything—but you mustn't mention Hope to my husband. He can't bear it."

"I had no idea that she was dead," he said contritely.

Mrs. Adair hesitated. "Well, Major Trevor," she said at last—"so far as I know Hope is not dead; but the marriage was dissolved, and—and Dick doesn't like to hear her mentioned. You understand."

"Perfectly—perfectly," he replied; yet, all the same, he only understood that a divorce had taken place, nothing more.

CHAPTER X.
The following evening Major Trevor dined at the house of his old friend in Grosvenor Street! Mrs. Adair had gone to a good deal of trouble in order to make as pleasant an evening as possible—she had three of her own special "boys"—she called all her men-friends her boys—there, whether for Major Trevor's edification or her own it would be difficult to determine. And she had two of the prettiest girls of her acquaintance, which made up a pleasant little party of eight.

THE ACADIAN

WOLFVILLE, N. S., FEB. 23, 1894.

The Plebiscite.

As the readers of the ACADIAN are aware the local legislature, yielding to the requests of the temperance associations of the Province, passed an act during the session just closed, providing for the taking of a vote on the great subject of Prohibition. This vote is to be taken by ballot on the day of the ensuing general election, and the short time intervening before such election makes it of the utmost importance that immediate steps be taken by the friends of the temperance cause to secure a hearty rally to the polls of that large majority of the electorate known to be in favor of the measure. Nova Scotia has long been deemed foremost in favor of this advance step in legislation, and now the opportunity has arrived to show in clear and unmistakable terms to what extent the opinion has been justified. The results of a half century of temperance agitation and education will declare themselves as soon as the ballots are counted. Every friend of Prohibition ought to feel himself a committee of one to persuade his friends and neighbors to take the time and trouble necessary to record his opinion upon the question. A small vote will be held to show public indifference, while a generous one, with a highly preponderating majority in favor of Prohibition, will indicate the strength and intensity of the movement. Let the friends of temperance rally; and let each lodge and division and church in the land organize and prepare for effective work. The time is short! Let every effort be put forth that our Province may be seen side by side with Ontario and Prince Edward Island in its progress in this matter. Possibly the efficient declaration may prove that we are in advance in proportion to our population; but to attain this distinction much work must be done in perfecting organization and arousing increased interest in the question. We would suggest that a convention of the temperance people of the county be held at once, and representative men appointed in each polling district to have a general oversight of the plebiscite work.

Town Council.

A special meeting of the Town Council was held on Tuesday evening. Present: Couns. Thomson (in the chair) Sawyer, G. W. Borden, Starr, C. H. Borden.

Resolved that the minutes of Feb. 10th be amended by inserting words "for the future" in the motion relating to pay of assessors.

Resolved that the Council refuse to consider itself bound by the terms of the agreement entered into with the County Council: that the Council holds itself responsible for only such share of the county expense as is required by the provisions of statute law, and it will resist the payment of any sum in excess of such justly required proportion; that a copy of this resolution be sent to the clerk of the municipality.

Accounts of J. E. Eagles, W. Brown, J. W. Caldwell, George Lynch, Acadia Edison Light Co., J. W. Vaughn, A. E. Caldwell, L. J. Webster, J. H. Bishop, G. W. Munro, J. W. Caldwell, James West, were read and ordered paid.

Resolved that the Mayor and Couns. Thomson, Starr, Davidson and C. H. Borden, be appointed arbitration committee for the current year.

Letter was read from Rev. J. Denovan re water assessment.

Resolved that the Mayor be requested to reply to Rev. Mr. Denovan's letter and explain that the town clerk was only carrying out his instructions from the Council and in compliance with the law in sending the notice complained of; and that the amount of $1.40 is due from assessment on personal property and not for the use of water; would seem to be Mr. Denovan's impression.

Resolved that Couns. C. R. H. Starr, G. W. Borden and Sawyer be a committee to suggest names for the streets of the town of Wolfville.

W. C. T. U. Mass Meeting.

The mass meeting under the auspices of the W. C. T. U., as previously announced was held in the Baptist church on Thursday evening. Considering the unfavorable weather the house was well filled. The exercises which were of a deeply interesting character were intended to commemorate the second anniversary of the formation of the Wolfville branch of this rapidly growing society. Prof. Tufts officiated as chairman and in a neat address touched briefly on the general subjects which had been chosen as themes for the speakers of the evening.

A portion of scripture was read by Rev. Mr. Fraser. Rev. Mr. Huestis, so well and favorably known by his able and earnest labors in the temperance cause, was the first speaker. The subject selected by him was "The Religious Element in Temperance Work." The point which he made most prominent was that no practical or permanent success has been or ever will be achieved by any Temperance organization unless the absolute necessity of God's blessing is recognized and sought by persistent, earnest prayer; and the measure of success has always been in ratio to the measure of dependence upon divine help. In the earlier Temperance societies this principle was not adopted; so they soon ceased to exist. But in the more modern Sons of Temperance, Good Templars, and especially the W. C. T. U., this principle is made their main platform. The careful study of the Temperance work for the last twenty-five years, will satisfy anyone that those prayers, accompanied as they have been and always should be by earnest effort, have brought down large blessings; and never before in the history of the world has public sentiment in favor of Temperance been so strong as today, nor ever such pressure been brought to bear on the governments of the various countries upon this subject.

The next speaker, Rev. Mr. Vincent, had for his subject "Prohibition, why we want it; and how to get it." He advocated strongly less theory and more earnest and practical work; and he has the courage of his conviction as many of the rum sellers know to their cost. We want Prohibition because intemperance is to-day the giant curse; the devil's strongest ally in every country where it has obtained a foothold. India and Africa, heathen though they are, were in a far better state before the English creed of gain introduced this evil among them. Licenses high or low is simply giving the sanction of the law to the breaking of the law; or in other words throwing a protecting arm around the rum-seller, while he robs the innocent and slays the strength of the nation. Does Prohibition prohibit? Certainly not; no law does; high license, public sentiment and moral suasion have all had their time and largely proved a failure. We must get Prohibition by sending men to Parliament who will put principles first and party second. Hindrances to Prohibition—First, liping hypocrites falsely called temperance men; second, weak-kneed voters who pray that Christ's kingdom may come but who do not vote in the spirit of his prayer; third, false political economy. Mr. Gladstone when asked "if a prohibitory law were passed and put into operation where would you get revenue to carry on the Government?" gave this pertinent answer: "Give me a sober nation and I shall easily know where to get my revenue."

In order to gain our end we must educate, agitate, and organize. We must educate the young thoroughly, keep this matter before the public by means of the Pulpit, Press and Platform, and at the same time fall not to crave the blessing of God, without which, all our efforts must fail. The last speaker, Rev. Mr. Groulx, although a young man and a comparative stranger among us, has already shown his earnest sympathy and practical co-operation in every undertaking which has for its aim the uplifting of his fellow citizens of every class and creed. His subject was "The Approaching Plebiscite." He felt he was laboring under some disadvantage from being the last speaker, and having some of his thunder stolen. He was glad to be able to tell his audience that Canada to-day stood second in Temperance statistics—Norway alone making a better record. He hoped no uncertain sound would be given but that every lover of his country would vote "yes." One very encouraging thing about prayer as a power in this cause is the fact that no one ever prays for the liquor traffic; although many false professors wish in their heart success to the rum power; yet none can be found so hardened that he dare offer a petition to the Almighty in their behalf. The success of the liquor cause means filling our jails and poor houses, demoralizing society, degrading our manhood, and entailing untold misery on future generations. We Wolfville people are so conservative, so moral, upright and cultured he was afraid it would be difficult to arouse us to a sense of the danger which threatens even this quiet town. In closing he spoke of visiting his native country and receiving a new impetus to work for the cause when he heard of many of his early companions who were ruined by this curse.

The W. C. T. U. choir were kindly assisted by a number of good voices and by Messrs. G. H. Borden and Reginald Gillmore, who, with their band instruments, accompanied the singing—furnishing excellent music.

The accomplished organist of the evening, Miss Amanda Caldwell, who is taking a musical course at the Sackville Conservatory, gives promise of being a credit to her native town.

The Prohibition Plebiscite.

This vote on this matter is to be taken at the ensuing general local elections. Each voter will be handed (at the polling place), in addition to the usual ballot for candidates to the Assembly, a blue paper printed as follows:

Are you in favor of the immediate prohibition by law of the importation, manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors as a beverage, in the Dominion of Canada?

YES NO

The voter may take this or decline it, as he chooses—that is, he may vote on the subject or not. All the details will be followed with this, as with the other ballot, but the prohibition ballot shall be deposited in a separate box.

If there is no election in any county by virtue of candidates being returned by acclamation, the vote will be taken in the same way, on the prohibition question alone, on the same lists, etc.

One accredited agent for and against prohibition may be admitted to the polling place, after an affidavit respectively that they are in favor of obtaining either an affirmative or negative answer on the subject.

All the other conditions are exactly the same as for the election of members of the Assembly.

Letter of Sympathy.

The following letter of sympathy was sent by the members of Wolfville Division, S. of T., to Mrs. Thomas Wallace, on the death of her son Walter, who was a valued member of that society:

Wolfville, January 8th, 1894. Mrs. Wallace:

Dear Friend.—The news of the death of your son Walter was received by the members of this Division with universal regret. In the last meeting of our society feeling remarks were made by several concerning the grief which you and your family have been called upon to bear, and it was unanimously resolved that some token of our sympathy be extended to you. Upon us has this duty devolved. We feel that your loss has been ours and in your grief we join. Our late brother was a faithful member of Wolfville Division. Enthusiastic, energetic, ever ready at the call of duty, his presence was a help and a strength. When sickness laid him aside and prevented his meeting with us, his assistance was missed. Now, realizing that we shall no longer see his form in our weekly gatherings, the loss which we have sustained we feel deeply. But it is comforting to know that our loss is his gain. He has not left us without the assurance of an inheritance to better things. Remembering this, joy is mingled with our sorrow. What a death! It is as if a gem had been beautifully expressed it, but going from one room into another. In a few years at the best we shall all be called upon to depart. Your home will be lonely for the bright which death has made, but as those whom we love pass into the realms beyond, they link as a chain of gold our earth to heaven. Heaven will be nearer and brighter to you for the change. Accept our sincere sympathy in this your bereavement.

On behalf of the members of Wolfville Division.

Gasperau.

There are several cases of grippe in the valley. School has been closed two days on account of the illness of the teacher, Miss Lindsay.

The usual crosses to the States has begun. Last Wednesday Mrs. Martha Caldwell, Miss Ethel Davidson, Miss Mary Miner and Mr. Roscoe Miner left for Boston.

Last Friday, Mr. Everett Caldwell, while splitting wood, cut his foot. Dr. Bowles had to be called in to sew up the wound.

Mr. D. W. Benjamin is laid up with a broken rib. He fell from a beam in his barn, pitch-fork in hand. The handle of the fork was broken in the fall and penetrated his clothing to the skin.

On account of the storm last Sunday night the missionary concert has been postponed till the first Sunday in March.

These burdens of life, palpitation of the heart, nervousness, headache, and gloomy forebodings, will quickly disappear if you use E. D. C. The Greatest Cure of the Age for all forms of Indigestion.

evening, his theme being, "Character Building."
Prof. Keirstead will lecture under the auspices of the B. Y. P. U. on Tuesday interesting and instructive.

will speak in the Methodist Church Wednesday evening, Feb. 23rd. The Mission Band will furnish music. The Baptist and Presbyterian auxiliaries are cordially invited. A silver collection will be taken.

An interesting game of Hockey is promised to take place at the rink next Tuesday evening, between the "Chebuctos" of Halifax, and the Wolfville Hockey Club. The game will begin at 8.30 o'clock, and will last an hour. There will be skating before and after the match. The game will no doubt be an exciting one and should draw a large number of spectators.

Died at his late residence in Upper Canada, on the 15th of February, Deacon William Thomas, aged 80 years. It is sufficient to say of him that he was a good man. He was made a deacon of the first Cornwallis Baptist church some forty years ago. He faithfully discharged his duties in that capacity to the end, always ready with his counsel and with his means to help on the cause of the church which he loved so well. He has left a sorrowing widow, four daughters and one son to mourn the loss of a kind husband and an affectionate father.

Owing to the severe storm on Tuesday morning and a misunderstanding in connection with the delivery of a telephone message in the afternoon, Rev. Mr. Fisher did not come over in the evening and the lecture was consequently postponed.
The Baptist church was well filled at the appointed hour, and the audience was much disappointed. The members of the Lodge while regretting very much the disappointment, wish to thank those who by their presence manifested their interest in the cause of temperance, and trust that at no distant date they may be repaid by hearing Mr. Fisher's able lecture.

The second carnival of the season at the Wolfville rink, last Friday evening, was quite a successful affair. The ice was in good condition, the music was excellent, and the attendance of skaters and spectators was creditable, considering other attractions in town on that evening.
Those who were appointed to award the prizes for hand-made costumes had no more task to perform. The gentlemen's prize was given to Mr. Chas. Stewart, and the ladies' to Miss Cora Dwyer.
Special prizes were awarded to Miss Es-tie Abbott and Master Ralph Borden.

Horton Collegiate Academy.
The literary societies of Horton Collegiate Academy, viz, the Castalian and Lycæum are in a flourishing condition this winter. On Saturday evening, Feb.
17th, the Castalian entertained the Lycæum. As the Castalian had no suitable room for the meeting "Lycæum Hall" was generously offered for the evening and rendered attractive by the addition of pictures, curtains, etc. Shortly after seven o'clock the president of the Castalian, Miss Keirstead, took the chair, with the secretary Miss J. Blanche Burgess, beside her. The meeting was opened by singing "Coronation" after which the necessary business was transacted. Mr. F. L. Cann, president of the Lycæum was invited to a chair on the platform.

The following programme was then carried out:
1. Chorus in Latin, "Gaudamus," Castalian Society.
2. Reading, "Bride of Jenny M'Neal," Miss Lina D. Burgess.
3. Vocal Solo, "No Sir,"
Miss J. Blanche Burgess.
4. Reading, "Paradise Blossom," Miss E. Irene Burgess.
5. Interview between Mark Twain and Interviewer,
Misses Lina and Irene Burgess.
6. Reading, "My Mother's Prayer,"
Miss Margaret F. Vanderpool.
7. Reading of "Castalian," by St. Editor,
"Home, Sweet Home,"
8. Chorus,
Castalian Society.

Miss Lina D. Burgess' reading was delivered in a highly creditable manner and well merited the hearty cheers it received. The vocal solo by Miss J.
Blanche Burgess, was received with shouts of applause to which she responded very prettily. The touching recitation by Miss Vanderpool was well delivered. This issue of the "Castalian" was one of the best since the formation of the society and much credit is due to the editors, Misses Blanche and Lina D.
Burgess, for the admirable execution of their work. After the conclusion of the programme Professor Oakes, Moore and Macdonald addressed the meeting. The speeches were excellent and were enjoyed and appreciated by both societies. Mr.
Cann's remarks were short and appropriate. After the closing of the meeting both societies adjourned to the dining-room by the kind invitation of Mrs.
Oakes and partook of refreshments.
Toasts were drunk, that to the Professors being responded to by Prof. Macdonald; to Mrs. Oakes and the Matron by Prin-cepal Oakes; the Castalian, by the president and senior editor; the Lycæum by Mr. Cann; New Brunswick by Mr. W. H.
Muirhead; Halifax by Mr. W. F. Wallpayzant. After the pleasant intercourses of an hour and a half the evening was ended by singing "Auld Lang Syne." Both the Lycæum and Castalian are very much indebted to Principal and Mrs. Oakes for the interest evinced by them for the welfare of both societies and the refrain of the chorus "Gaudamus" is echoed by every member, "Vivat Academiis, Vivat Professores."

Port Williams.
There are such a number of correspondents for the Port, that it must appear as though one were not competent to write its small stock of news. Just now, like Dickens' character, "Wilkins Micawber," we have been "waiting for something to turn up." Everything seems to be at low ebb. As soon, however, as spring arrives, we hope that "the cloud will pass from the dreary scene," and vessels will once more ride the muddy waters of the Cornwallis. "The then that the pleasures of winter will be left behind, and we will again turn to the sterner side of life.
These notes would of course be more interesting if we had any casualties to relate, but we are a quiet going people and each seems contented to live and let live!

Perhaps it would be interesting to some of your readers to know that last Sunday a southerly wind and rain destroyed our good sleighing, but on the morning of the 20th,
"Oh! wondrous was the transformation
there,
It was a dazzling scene of virgin snows," making as good if not better sleighing than before. Considering this fact, the able and well delivered lecture on "The Bible and the Spade," by Mr. Vincent, deserved a much larger audience.
Why is it that some people seem to have a terror for the word "science?"

Tuesday evening about twenty-five ladies and gentlemen from Canard, came to Wolfville en route to Acadia Villa, Horton Landing, to a surprise party. They found the sleighing so poor, they remained here and put up at the Village House.
A few of the town folks were present,
and everybody had a jolly time. Mr.
Witter's singing was much enjoyed.

Among the Horsemen.
Mayor Bowles has "Little Hope" keyed up this winter and we are all waiting to see her start in company. She has been used for a brood-mare for the past five years and is the dam of four very promising colts. The first, "Adrian," a "Allie Clay," took a half-mile record when 16 months old of 1.36 1/2 over the Kentville Driving Park; and then she was sold for $250.00 to J. C. Mahon, of Turro, who has been breeding her. Second was "Champa," by "Bronze Chief."
This one won first money in the yearling Provincial Colts Stake Race at Halifax in the fall of '92. The third is the filly
"Bookmark," a pacer by "Bronze Chief."
She won first money in the two-year-old colt race at Kentville, August 2d, '93.
She was then only 14 months old; and on August 10th, she was started to beat the yearling track record for half mile, held by "Adrian," which she just equalled by going the race in 1.24 1/2. The fourth is "Post-mark," now seven months old.
She is also a pacer, but is bred by "Allright." The Dr. is driving her faster than every day, and he thinks her faster than any of the others were at the same age.

B. H. Armstrong enjoys a speedy drive after his fast mare, "Nellie D." E. A. Brown, of the firm of Brown Munro & Co., owns a pretty black yearling filly, sire "Rampart," 2.36 1/2; dam by "Allright." Trainer James Fraser has been giving her kindergarten lessons, and now Mr. Brown can drive the little "Fairy" anywhere.

The Doctor wants to sell some "Almont" blood to make room in his stable.
He has lately been struck with the "Lamberts."
Abrey Gray takes solid comfort behind his gray mare, and she is right at home in the fastest company.
Mt. John W. Harris, of American Horse fame, has been training his two-year-old filly, "Lady Brenton" by "Sir Brenton," 2.36. She is a fine, large animal and should make a very serviceable horse.

The silver mare mare "Maids," is owned by Mr. Fred Crane, of Grand Pré, and so far seems to be the champion on the ice. Mr. Crane was doing up the trotting at Upper Dyke last week.
W. J. Balcom appears on the street occasionally with a little bay mare that sets the trotter at quite a wiggle to keep up with her.

Red Crane, of Grand Pré, has bought from Dr. Chipman a yearling filly that is standard bred and registered, sire
"Rampart," 2.36 1/2; dam, "Maids," by
"Prince Lambert."
"Marion C." that won the 2.50 trotting race at the stake in Halifax on the 15th, is the "Rampart" mare that Dr. W. A.
Payzant did up the flyers with here last winter.

Mr. Geo. Wood, the noted horse-thief, says that "Young Snow," by "Rampart jr." owned by Mr. Gertridge, of Gaspe-ron, will surprise.
We have daily been expecting to see
E. J. Porter out with that beautiful pair of black mares. Mr. Porter can boast of having the best matched pair of carriage horses in this vicinity, "Scalotin" by
"Zenith," five years old, weighs 1710 lb.;
"Gkoda," five years old, by "Zulu King," weighs 970 lb. Both are black, and each have a little white on the left hind foot.

The beautiful black mare "Maud C."
2.36 1/2, owned by John E. Gertridge, Esq., of Gaspeyron, takes her exercises
over our streets every morning each week;
and if there is anything to be done Frank is always willing to take part in the sport and "Maud C." can show the best of them the way.
Known.

Test this statement, a trial will convince you that K. D. C. brings immediate relief to the dyspeptic, and if followed according to directions, a complete cure.

Bible Wines.

That more than one kind of wine is recognized in the Bible is plainly shown.

By the fact that the Bible makes sharp distinctions between different kinds of wine.

One is spoken of as the cause of intoxication, violence and war.

Prov. 23: 29, 31, 32; the other as the cause of comfort and peace.

Ps. 104: 15. The one, the symbol of wrath.

Rev. 14: 10; the other as the type of spiritual blessing.

Ps. 55: 1. The use of the one is positively forbidden.

Prov. 23: 31; 32; Eph. 5: 18; the use of the other is allowed.

and is ranked with corn and oil.

Deut. 11: 14. This strong contrast in language indicates unmistakably a marked difference in the things to which it is applied.

The difference between these wines is due to the presence or absence of the noxious ingredient in fermented fruit-juices.

This the Hebrews called "chemah," venom. Moses in Deut. 32: 33, 34, and Solomon in Prov. 23: 31, 32, indicate its character by comparing it with the poison of the asp; the Greeks called it "pharmakon"; the Romans called it "venenum"; from which comes our word venom; the Arab who first extracted and concentrated it, called it al-kooh, which being the sulphuret of antimony, the most deadly of mineral poisons, and we call it with a slight change in spelling and sound, alcohol.

Both Hebrew and Greek have several words to designate what the English Scriptures term, indiscriminately, "wine," and generally the use of these various words determines whether the drink referred to did or did not contain this "venom of serpents." The term commonly used among the Hebrews to designate intoxicating wine is "tirah." It is the wine that Jacob blessed, Gen. 27: 28, 29; it is the fresh unfermented wine which in Leviticus 23: 13 was to be offered to the Lord in sacrifice. It was this, as the early commentators declare which Melchizedek gave Abraham, Gen. 14: 18; this, David, both as Shepherd and King, drank in the valley of Jerah, Ps. 23: 5 it was this—a different thing from the king's wine which he would not touch at any time, Dan. 1: 8,—of which Daniel denied himself during his fast, Dan. 10: 3, and it was this used at the feast of tabernacles, Neh. 8: 18. This word occurs thirty-eight times in the Old Testament, in most instances in connection with corn and the fruit of the orchard; it is translated twenty-six times by "wine," eleven times by "new wine," and once by "sweet wine." Kito's Cyclopaedia defines "tirah" as "vintage fruit," Lee's Bible Commentary says "tirah is a collective name for the natural produce of the vine—the fruit of the vineyard in its natural condition."

upon forbids our giving here, the assertion is sustained that our modern restriction of the word wine to designate a fermented alcoholic liquid, was utterly unknown to the ancients.

That in Bible times methods of preserving the juice of the grape unfermented were understood and practiced, is equally susceptible of proof.

Smith's Bible Diet, page 1202 gives the following account of one method, and refers to Piny and Ozo as authority.

When it was desired to preserve a quantity of pure grape juice in a sweet state, an ampohra was taken, and coated with pitch within and without; it was filled with "mustum livitum" (wine expressed before the grapes were fully trodden) and corked so as to be perfectly air-tight, etc. * * * Fermentation was also prevented by boiling.

Filtration of the unfermented juice, by which it was deprived of albuminous ferment was another method. Piny says: "The most useful wine is that which has had its strength broken, by the access of water."

Horece, (Liber I. Ode 2) directs: "Be careful to prepare for yourself wine percolated and sweetened by the filter, and thus rendered sweet and more in accordance with nature and the female taste." Several other methods are clearly defined by ancient writers.

That these methods were understood and in common use at the time of Christ is a fact established by unimpeachable authority.

Add to this the other fact, equally well established, that in Palestine fresh grapes can be procured at all seasons of the year, and all theories concerning the impossibility of obtaining unfermented wine there vanish.

"But Christ made alcoholic wine, and sanctified its use" is the assertion not only of ignorant men, but of some of his professed followers. In this they are but reiterating the blasphemous charges made in the second century by Marston.

He had been expelled from the Christian church for dissolute habits. In retaliation, and to excuse his own drunkenness, he began an assault upon Christ and the Christian faith. He urged especially that Christ made and drank intoxicating wine at the marriage in Cana, and that He appointed its use at the sacrament.

Of course he found adherents, and through four centuries we can trace the trail of his sophistries. But they were not allowed to go unmaneuvered. All the leading Christian writers of those early centuries, familiar with the facts, united in declaring that the wine made, drunk, and appointed for the sacrament, in Christ, was the fresh "fruit of the vine."

Then it is said that in this miracle Jesus "Christ manifested forth His glory," which would be more likely to produce this result, making by a miracle a variety of intoxicating wine, to make drunk the whole company, thus prefiguring the curse alcoholic wine has become, or, by a word doing the work of turning water into grape juice, a work which through nature He is continually doing, and which none but the Creator can do.

No wonder that when the charge of making alcoholic wine was first brought against our Saviour, by the drunken Marston, the Christian fathers considered it blasphemous, and repelled it with scorn.

An investigation of all similar charges against our blessed Jesus will prove them as utterly without foundation.—Condensed from National Leaflet by Mary Allen West.

Deeper and Deeper.

There is only one way out of dishonesty, and that is to tell the truth. The process of "lying out of it," so called in only a sure way of getting more deeply misled. This is well illustrated by a story borrowed from the "Christiana Secretary":

"A man of doubtful reputation was on his way home one night and came across a pile of planks which for some reason had been unloaded upon the roadside. He couldn't—or thought he couldn't— resist the temptation to steal one of them. He could not go through the village with it, so took a short cut across the fields. By and by in the gathering dusk he wandered into a bog-hole and sank in the mire. The more he struggled, the deeper he sank; until getting alarmed, he called lustily for help. His shouts brought a neighbor with a lantern.

"Why, Jones, what does this mean?" asked the good Samaritan. "How in the world came you here?"

"I was in a hurry to get home," said the thief, "and so I cut across. Then I got into the bog. The more I tried to pull myself out, the deeper I got in, and finally I went back to the road and got this plank to see if I couldn't get myself out with that."

All Three Cured.

Neil McKeehan, with his wife and Mother-in-law Cured of Constipation by Dodd's Kidney Pills.

These Pills Better than Ordinary Cathartics.

Toronto, Feb. 19.—Neil McKeehan, a popular barber of this city, has been a sufferer from chronic constipation for years.

He used Dodd's Kidney Pills and not only obtained immediate relief, but a permanent cure.

His wife and mother-in-law were similarly afflicted, and used these pills with the same good results.

Ordinary cathartics give only temporary relief and leave the patient worse than before using them.

While Dodd's Kidney Pills are not cathartics, their peculiar action on the liver and kidneys is such that the causes of constipation are permanently removed.

These pills are manufactured by Dr. J. A. Smith & Co., Toronto, and are sold by all dealers, and will be mailed on receipt of price; fifty cents per box, or six boxes for $2.50.

Scraps for Old Moments.

The man who is standing up for you soon gets tired and sits down.

Minard's Liniment is the Best. A girl may be almost pardoned for laughing herself at a man if he is a good catch.

Garfield Tea is sold by all druggists. It takes the moon two weeks to get full and two weeks to get over it. Where's the fun in that?

Garfield Tea cures sick-headaches. A temptation is about the only place where the average man doesn't really care to have his name in print.

Minard's Liniment Cures LaGrippe. A man desires himself pleasures, when he is young that he may have money to pay out to the doctor, when he is old.

Minard's Liniment for Rheumatism. It won't do any good to pray for the South Sea islander as long as you won't speak to the man who lives in the next house.

USE SKODA'S DISCOVERY. The great Blood and Nerve Remedy. Mrs. Hicks—The girl broke only one dish today.

Hicks—How did that happen? Mrs. Hicks—It was the only one left.

His Downfall—Isenheimer—So your son Isaac has turned poet since his failure? Goldsagar—Yes, by jimmie! He's gone from bad to worse.

Cancers and cancerous tumors are cured by the purifying effects of Ayer's Sarsaparilla.

What's the best thing you ever got off? asked the proof-reader, addressing the humorist.

I got off two weeks once with full pay. Premature baldness may be prevented and the hair made to grow on heads already bald, by the use of Hall's Vegetable Sulfur Hair Renewer.

You didn't be hard on Jimmy, said Aunt Jennima. Boys will be boys. They will, they snorted Uncle Gabriel. All the boys I know are breaking their blasted necks to become men.

If you do not know how good a remedy Garfield Tea really is for constipation and sick headache, send a postal card to D. Densmore & Co., 271 Queen Street, East, Toronto, for a free, trial package.

Kind sir, may give me a shilling for six hungry children? "A wally sorry but I'm not buying hungry children just now; fact is, I've got nine of my own at home already."

VERY A YOUNG MAN. When from overwork, possibly assisted by an inherited weakness, the health fails and rest or medical treatment must be resorted to, then no medicine can be employed with the same beneficial results as Scott's Emulsion.

Patrol, that $150 note of yours has been running three years now—can't you let me have something on account? Certainly, my dear fellow. Lend me $10, and I'll reduce it to $145.

E. Jardine, North Sydney, C. B. says: "I have used your Dr. Williams' Pink Pills with decided success, and would recommend them to anyone suffering as I did from weakness and impoverished blood. Your pills have afforded wonderful relief and I believe them to be unequalled. All dealers or by mail, postpaid, at 50c. a box or six boxes for $2.50. Dr. Williams' Med. Co., Brockville, Ont."

Dignified Demeanor—You see before you, minister, a rejected gentleman. Wait—if I don't guess wrong, that's just the way you want to be.

Want to be wot way? Rejected.

PAIN-KILLER.—The testimonials borne to the efficacy of this valuable medicine are sufficient to warrant its introduction into every home. Our own opinion is that no family should be without a bottle of it for a single hour. In both wounds, aches, pains, &c., it is the most effectual remedy we know of. A 2c. bottle will last for a long time, and its low price places it within the reach of all.—New, St. John, Que.

Patrick McQuinn was brought up before the justice in the morning, and when asked his occupation by the clerk, said he was a sinner.

"A sinner," retorted the judge, "as I don't believe you were ever at sea in your life."

"Well," replied the disgraced Irishman, "how does yer honor think I came over from Oireland in a wagon?"

The tramp went into the house to get something, while his pal waited on the sidewalk. When he returned he had a generous load of food and some old clothes.

"Get onto this layout, will you?" he said triumphantly to his friend. "Willie," responded the other cautiously, "you must be careful if you strike many faces like this, as the authorities will be chasing us down for our income tax."

The Grocer Dyspepsia Cure Co.

GENTLEMEN—I am 71 years of age. Have been afflicted with sick headache most all my life, which developed into Dyspepsia of a mild type about twenty years ago, and has continued to grow worse until during the past seven or eight years I have not been able to take a drink of cold water or milk, as they would produce severe pains and sometimes vomiting. I have been subject to severe pains in the chest, with dizziness, which have been more frequent during the past three or four years. My mouth was filled up with the mucus, accompanied with bad breath. My eyes were yearly growing worse.

During this long period I have tried many popular medicines, as well as prescriptions from the regular medical practitioners, but without producing any improvement.

In the fall of '92 I concluded to try a bottle or two of your medicine and such were its effects that I continued it until now I can drink cold water or milk without any inconvenience. These daily pains are all gone and my mouth is as sweet as a baby's. In short your medicine has cured me and I am sure that all Dyspepsics can be cured by its use.

(Signed) W. H. ROEMERS, Late Inspector of Fisheries, for Nova Scotia.
