Japanese Foreign Minister Forecasts Removal of German Danger to Peace in Far East--Japan Would Be Friendly With Russia

By Courier Leased Wire. Tokio, June 23.—Viscount Ichiro Motono, foreign minister, in his address to the Diet Tuesday, discussed the government's foreign policy voicing the conviction that measures taken to assure Japan's rights and interests in the South Sea Islands and Shantung, were bearing fruitful results.

Kazuo Hoda, Minister of Finance, in an address, said Japan's war business had resulted in the growing accumulation of specie abroad, the transfer of which to Japan would disturb the money markets and injure Japan's trade.

Ex-Convict in the Russian Army Led The Charge Against Enemy Lines

By Courier Leased Wire. Petrograd, June 23.—The hero of the army in the wooded Carpathians, is a former convict from Siberia, who, by his example, inspired an attack by forces which heretofore had obstinately refused to charge. The ex-convict, whose rank is sergeant, led fifty volunteers in a rush on a German blindage.

LANDING OF U. S. ARMY IN FRANCE ACCLAIMED

Omen Full of Hope and Promise, Signal for Democratic Peace, to be Wrung From Defeated Germany, Says London Times This Morning

By Courier Leased Wire. London, June 23.—Arrival of an advance force of the American army in France is the predominant feature in the news columns of the morning newspapers which display under big headlines such details as are allowed to be published. The Times comments on the arrival as an omen full of hope and promise to friends of ordered freedom, a sure prestige of an allied victory and the signal of a democratic peace to be wrung from defeated Germany, while the moral effect will be unmeasurable.

London, June 23.—The Daily Express says it has information that the allies are taking important steps which will end the exportation of agricultural and other products of neutrals to Germany. The newspaper adds that the entry of the United States into the war has simplified the situation and means of pressure now at the disposal of the Allies while allowing fair treatment for neutral consumption, will convince them it will be to their interest to cease supplying Germany and Austria.

American Loyalty to Russia in War Pledged by John R. Mott to Cossack Congress--Entered in Interests of Justice

By Courier Leased Wire. Petrograd, June 27.—The Cossack Congress today listened to a speech by John R. Mott, member of the American commission, whose appearance on the platform brought prolonged applause. Mr. Mott, described America's war preparations, complimented the Cossacks on their unity and strength, and declared America would never abandon Russia and her other Allies.

Replying, President Dutof of the Congress said he had the conviction that America had entered the war in the interests of Justice. Thereafter the congress passed, unanimously, a congratulatory resolution in favor of a vigorous prosecution of the war.

The resolution demands an "immediate and decisive attack from various parts of Russia, concluded by appealing for support of the 'Liberty Loan,' and demanding stern measures against deserters and traitorous propagandists."

HEAVY ATTACKS MADE BY ENEMY ON FRENCH FRONT

Assault of Huns is Also Repulsed With Heavy Losses Last Night

By Courier Leased Wire. Paris, June 23.—The Germans last night attacked the salient of Watt-weller, northeast of Thann in Alsace, according to the war office announce-ment to-day. They were repulsed, leaving a number of dead.

The statement follows: "The artillery fighting was particularly active last night in the regions of the Hurte-bise Monument and Mount Carnillet."

"A German attack against the salient of Watteller, northeast of Thann, was repulsed. The enemy left behind several dead, including the body of an officer."

"Patrol engagements near Flirey, and Bezenvaux, enabled us to take prisoners."

"It has now been established that an albatross attacked by one of our airplanes on Monday, fell within the enemy lines east of Gratreuil. Yesterday an albatross was brought down southeast of Moronvilliers."

Coal Price Reduced

By Courier Leased Wire. Washington, June 23.—An immediate general reduction of $1 to $1.50 in the price of coal at the London, was agreed upon here today by representatives of the coal opera-tors.

This reduction is expected to be followed by a still further decrease in price after investigation into the costs of mining coal and it is prob-able that the Government will be given a still lower price than that given to the general public. Hundreds of millions of dollars will be saved to the American people through this decision.

CO-OPERATION OF EMPLOYERS AND OPERATIVES REQUIRED

Serious Concern Through Cotton Trade Caused by Recent Jump in Prices—Sir Charles Macara Would Bring Owners and Workmen Together as Done in 1904, to Ex-tricate Country From Precarious Situation

Manchester, June 15.—(By Mail) —The extraordinary rise in cotton prices during the past few days has caused serious concern throughout the cotton trade. Liverpool attrib-utes the rise to the tied-up condi-tion of the market, owing to the absence of "hedge" and speculative selling (the latter being prohibited) plus free buying of futures and price fixing of all cotton by home consuming interests and, of course, the big rise in America. Manches-ter and trade buying orders have largely contributed to the spectac-ular upward movement.

The Manchester Guardian, has obtained the opinion of several ex-perts on the present position and quotes Sir Charles Macara as fol-lows: "I have been away about a fortnight," he said, "and on my re-turn I find American cotton has gone up three pence per pound, which is equal to six pounds ster-ling per bale. There is now only about seven weeks supply of Amer-ican cotton in stock in Liverpool."

"I must confess to a feeling of in-terense disappointment that what I have advocated for so many years, namely, that those engaged in the cotton industry, the greatest textile industry in the world—should try to regulate their own affairs, and not meet prices as they arise, has not been acted upon. Notwithstanding the difficulties the trade has always succeeded in its efforts in this di-rection in the past. As regards both employers and operatives, it has been noted for self-reliance and re-sources in the face of physical dif-ficulties and by the exercise of these qualities the trouble has been sur-mounted. This, indeed, is all that is necessary now."

"I have always contended that what was so successfully accom-plished in 1904 when employers and operatives came together and decided to co-operate and face the then existing crisis, which would other-wise have had disastrous results, could be repeated in 1917. It ap-pears to me that if the thing is taken in hand energetically and the intervention of the Govern-ment, which, otherwise seems inevitable, would be prevented. If the Government interposed employ-ment plus free buying of their own dictation.

"Those engaged in the cotton in-dustry in Lancashire have been asked for their capacity to handle large quantities and deal with them successfully. Why this cannot be done in the present instance is to me inconceivable. It is a question that affects in an equal degree both employers and employed and concerns every one who is depend-ent on the trade."

"I have advocated the methods adopted in 1904 but the policy of procrastination has now gone so far that even more drastic methods will be necessary than at that time. The Government has had to step in. The organization on neither side has reached the eficiency that it has attained in Lan-cashire, and it will be imperative for the Government to act in Lan-cashire, if as it would appear, peo-ple are not able to do it for them-selves."

"At the present time there are many mills that would gladly close down and work on a forty hour week or half time, but there will always be a certain number who would take advantage of a move-ment to safeguard the interests of the industry as a whole."

"If the crisis is to be overcome successfully, there must be no ex-ceptions. All mills must run on the same basis and if the operatives organizations as well as those of the employers will act loyally to-gether, the thing can be done."

OFFICER KILLED, CADET INJURED, IN AIRPLANE SMASH

Capt. Dan Callaghan Met Death in an Air Flight to Toronto

Camp Borden, Ont., June 23.—The comparative immunity of the Royal Flying Corps at Camp Hoare from serious accidents, was broken last night by a crash which resulted in the death of Captain Dan Callaghan and severe injuries to Cadet Francis.

Captain Callaghan, who had been at the front since the beginning of the war and won distinction as an expert on wireless from aeroplanes, was attached to the headquarters of R. F. C. in Toronto, and had only come up to Camp Hoare a few days ago, in connection with the wireless installations there. Though his work at the front has been primarily as an observer, he was a flier also.

Instead of returning to Toronto by rail, for which he had a return ticket, he decided to accompany Cadet Francis, who was intending to fly down.

The machine had not gained the safety of height, when the engine stalled and the plane started to side-slip. In the ravine of Bear Creek a wing struck a tree and was snapped off, when the whole machine buckled and crashed down, the engine strik-ing Captain Callaghan on the back of the head and pinning him to the earth.

Cadet Francis, who was considered one of the most promising of the aviators in training, had previously flown for 56 hours without an accident. His left leg was broken and he sustained other minor injuries. His home is in Victoria, B.C.

Captain Callaghan, lived for about three quarters of an hour after the accident, but never regained consciousness. Rev. Father Kelly, the Camp Borden Roman Catholic Chap-lain, was on hand in time to adminis-ter the last sacraments.

By Courier Leased Wire. London, June 23.—The Copen-hagen correspondent of the Ex-change Telegraph Company re-ports that the Norwegian police continuing their investigation of the German plot to destroy Norwegian steamships by means of explosives brought into the country by a courier of the German Foreign Office, conduct-ed a seven hour examination of Aron Rautenfels, who was ar-rested in connection with the conspiracy, and his assistant, Rautenfels showed great nervou-ness while undergoing an ex-amination of two hours by the chief of the Norwegian detec-tive force. According to the Social Demokrat, of Copen-hagen, Rautenfels probably will be handed over to the German authorities on Friday. The committee of the Norwegian Storting has decided to exercise stricter control over foreigners. It is proposed that all foreign-ers must possess passports, and that they be prohibited from settling in certain districts.

Iron Cross Won on Field Coming to Mr. R. Edmonds

Simcoe, June 28.—(From our own Correspondent)—The Relief Committee of the County Patriotic Association met last night to pass accounts and discuss matters relative to proposed or requested drafts on the reserve fund. Much ground was covered in a session which lasted till nearly eleven o'clock. Sec. Geo. J. McKie, read an audited report of the disposition of the Patriotic Fund in respect to Norfolk county. At present Norfolk is contributing $60,000 annually and received back during the year covered in the report, something less than $40,000.

Last month's cheques distributed here or held in reserve to the credit of dependents, amounted to $3,500 approximately. We shall endeavor to get a copy of the report in detail.

Mapping out the Good Roads System

The Reeves of the rural municipalities were in town yesterday as a committee of County Council appointed to map out the county's system of good roads. Morning and afternoon sessions were held and the work will be continued and possibly completed today. Guy R. Marston, C.E., County Engineer, is a member of the committee.

It has been learned that it is necessary for the council to designate the roads to be improved before the legislature will make any allowance for interim permanent improvement, so that a special meeting of the county council may be held as soon as the committee is ready to report, in order that the formalities of designation may be completed.

Will Get the Military Cross.

Mr. R. Edmonds has received a second letter from the officer commanding a Whiffle in which Lt. Edmonds was serving when mortally wounded, containing a piece of the regimental ribbon for the Military Cross and requesting Mr. Edmonds to write the war office asking that the cross be forwarded to him as next of kin. We presume our townsman will not decline accepting the necessary letter despatched, "striving on up."

S. B. McCready, B.S.A., of the Resources Committee of the Legislature is in the county organizing local committees. He was in Simcoe yesterday interviewing members of the Volunteer Production club formed here a month or so ago. From members of the club he learned that practically nothing has been done here. Mr. Reid states that he gets many inquiries for help but none are offering to give farmers assistance. Today, Thursday afternoon, being a business holiday some few may go to the country to help with the crop but there is no organized effort. Mr. McCready is still endeavoring to impress upon people everywhere that the pinch will be felt more in 1918 than in 1917, for men at home will be still more scarce. He intends to stir up Port Dover, Waterloo, Delhi, St. Williams and Port Rowan, but of course this term was not used by him. He is the same man who working from Guelph, took what was practical in the nature study fad and used the opportunity to link up the Agricultural College at Guelph with the educational system of the province. He proved to be the man for the job.

Odd Ends of News.

E. E. Collins will move the Port Ryerse Summer Dairy back to the lake front tomorrow.

It is expected that the beach bridge at the port will be completed today.

The granolithic sidewalk along the beach row, which was considerably shifted by last November's violent storm, has been set to rights. Several residents of the town who have changed the business or social status since the assessor was around, are objecting to being served with a notice to pay poll tax, and it is quite possible that a number of these will make the necessary explanations to council before next Tuesday's meeting.

Members of the council will quite probably visit the Lynedoch Gas Wells this afternoon.

Were Conveyed Across the Ocean on Armada of Transports

Washington, June 28.—The advance guard of the mighty army of the United States is preparing to send against Germany in on French soil. In defiance of the German submarines, thousands of seasoned regulars and marines, trained fighting men with the tan of long service on the Mexican border, or in Haiti or Santo Domingo still on their faces, have been hastened overseas to fight beside the French, the British, the Belgian, the Russian, the Portuguese and the Italian troops on the western front.

News of the safe arrival of the troops sent a new thrill through Washington. No formal announcement came from the War Department. News will come, probably, until Major-General Pershing's official report has been received. Then there may be a statement as to the numbers and composition of the advance guard.

Press despatches from France, possibly sent forward with the approval of General Pershing's staff, show that Major Shobert, one of the now major-generals of the first force sent abroad, under Gen. Pershing, as commander-in-chief of the expedition. Carry Their Own Supplies.

FARMERS WANT DIRECT TAXING

Strong Demand for New System Made Yesterday Afternoon

Interesting addresses were delivered before a well attended district convention of the United Farmers of Ontario, held in the Y.M.C.A. auditorium yesterday afternoon. The principal address of the afternoon was given by John Kennedy, Vice-President of the Grain Growers Grain Company, while Prof. Soissons, Mr. O'Brien and John Morrison delivered brief addresses.

The chairman for the afternoon was Col. Fraser, who had been actively interested in problems affecting rural life. John Morrison, the first speaker, outlined the organization of the United Farmers of Ontario and told of the work that was being accomplished by them and the resultant benefit to the members.

Mr. John Kennedy spoke considerably strongly advocating the introduction of a system of direct taxation on property with the exception of local improvements. The means by which this object might be attained was by direct legislation and if this connection he declared, "It makes no difference what party you place in power, be it the Conservative, Liberal Farmers' or Independent, it will be no good unless it embraces the system of direct taxation. Let us put our shoulders to the wheel and bring democracy into effect and we will solve the problem that is causing suffering and starvation of millions of people throughout the world, far greater in the total than that caused by war." He referred to the deplorable conditions that existed in our larger cities as well as in the West-ern prairie where wealth was supreme and the poorer classes suffered.

POOR BLOOD AND WEAK NERVES (By F. Raymond Ward, M. D.) Lack of strength is about the first symptom of debility of the laws of health. There comes nervousness, unsteady hands and limbs, skin eruptions, dizziness, sleeplessness, heart palpitation, and with the feeling that the life blood is being sapped—comes complete prostration. In the sufferer is the sufferer is indifferent to all things and looks upon life with a gloomy, melancholic view. It is given as a statistical fact that seven out of every ten people in the United States are suffering from debility, and of this number less than half realize it. They know that they have gloomy thoughts, depression of mind, an impaired memory, dizziness and headache, watery nights and spells of extreme exhaustion, but they attribute it to any other cause but the right one. They feel languid, irritable, and they cannot explain. They are suffering from nerve exhaustion, a condition which is undoubtedly the means of causing more misery and crushing more hopes than any other trouble that flesh is heir to. Nervous exhaustion will not cure itself. The sufferer who thinks that nature alone will bring about a restoration of health is simply deluded by a false hope. He will realize that if the power of realizing is given to one of the many diseases which follow in its path. Those of energy as a result of overwork, or loss of strength by violation of nature's laws, are quickly restored to sound health by Dr. Ward's special treatment. Dr. Ward's office hours are: Buffalo, N. Y., which is right opposite the McKinley Monument. His office hours are: Monday, Wednesday and Saturday 9 A. M. to 9 P. M., and Tuesday, Thursday and Friday 9 A. M. to 5 P. M. Sundays 9 A. M. to 1 P. M. Consultation and examination is always without charge.

THE SITUATION

A second contingent of United States troops are landed on French soil. It has been known for some time but not used by the newspapers, that they constitute the first division ordered over by President Wilson as the forerunners of a large army which will ultimately follow. They are regulars and it is understood that the entire U. S. quota under General Pershing will constitute an independent force acting with the allies in accordance with French plans. Their advent on the scene is another case of history repeating itself for the French helped Uncle Sam in the war of Independence.

The enemy is holding desperately to the village of Avion, the last defence of Lens. He has given up his trenches leading to the village only after fierce fighting, and has retired to a new line immediately in front of the coal centre. Canadian guns are now pounding these trenches which scouts report to be strongly held by the foe.

The official report for last week shows that the loss to British shipping by submarines was slightly less than the previous record, four representing the net falling off. The number of vessels sunk of over 1,600 tons totalled twenty-one and under that seven.

Yesterday in Serbia by order of the allies, army officers and others were shot in connection with a conspiracy to overthrow the present regime.

STREET RAILWAY SETTLEMENT.

It is satisfactory to know that matters have been amicably settled between the Municipal Street Railway Commissioners and the employees.

For their part, the members of the Board naturally feel that as trustees of the people, they have to keep an eye on expenses, and so far the earnings have shown a very narrow margin indeed. In fact, without necessary care, the enterprise might easily cause an increase in taxation.

On the other hand, the men have contended that, owing to the all round increase in the cost of living, their remuneration has not been adequate. The Courier considers that the point was well taken, and the Commissioners have recognized the reasonableness of the demand by a second increase within a few months.

It is the public who own the Grand Valley and the city lines, and they may as well realize that sooner or later there will have to be a lengthening of pay and a shortening of hours. The present street railway day is altogether too long.

Meanwhile, the men and the Commissioners alike are to be congratulated upon having dealt with matters thus far without any walk out or creation of ill-feeling.

A GREAT JOKER

Mr. H. Fowler, of the London Advertiser, must be an unconscious humorist.

He recently addressed a Liberal meeting in St. Thomas on the best way in which to help win the war and pacify Quebec, and his remedy of all things was to place Sir Wilfrid Laurier at the head of a "National Government."

This in face of the fact that right now the hesitant referendum course of Sir Wilfrid with regard to Quebec help for the Canadians in the trenches, has driven man after man of his best supporters to declare that they cannot follow his leadership in this matter.

Head of a "National Government," forsooth. The proposal, in view of the facts, is ludicrous in the extreme. Laurier admittedly keeps his ear to the ground on the Quebec section of this Dominion, where the people have refused to bear their share of voluntary enlistment, where threats have been heard of violence if conscription is attempted, and where expressions have openly been made that Canada has already done too much for England.

In the name of all that is reasonable, how could a truly "national government" be formed by a leader who, for one section of the country, has given his own present party in swain?

FOOD CONTROLLER STARTS IN WELL.

Food control was earnestly urged in the House of Commons two years ago by Mr. W. F. Cocksbutt, member for Brantford, and at an early stage of this session he also took occasion to reiterate that necessity. In neither case did he mince his words and his plain speaking without any doubt helped to bring home the great need for such an appointment.

Hon. Mr. Hanna, the man selected, had already proved his great energy and worth in the post of Provincial Secretary of both the Whitney and Hearst administrations, and he has tackled the job with characteristic vim.

His appointment took place on June 29th. Three days later he had arrived in Washington where he spent some time in conference with Mr. Hoover the U. S. food controller, and several officials, with regard to co-operation in food matters and supplies for the Allies.

Returning to the Dominion he held a conference on June 26th with representatives of the various institutes of agriculture, the I. O. D. E., the Y. M. C. A. and other interests. After the confab he left for Ottawa where he proposes to make his headquarters.

Mr. Hanna not only hopes to help to regulate food prices but also to speed up production on behalf of the Allies.

It is a large order which he has undertaken and people must not expect the impossible. With millions of producers and purveyors employed in the business of fighting and with field labor more or less scarce and wages higher than ever before, there is bound to exist a condition of charges much above the normal, but in so far as beneficial regulation can be made there can be no doubt that Hanna is just the man to get results. In the vernacular of the street he is a live wire and the whole record of his life is one of accomplishment with regard to anything he has undertaken. He assumes his latest task, at his own stipulation, without salary and at much additional personal sacrifice for his exceptional legal abilities are in constant demand.

Mr. Cocksbutt has certainly every reason to feel much personal satisfaction over the circumstances that his ideas have found concrete form, and the people generally are to be heartily congratulated upon the choice made by Premier Borden.

NOTES AND COMMENTS

The Expositor is not altogether satisfied with a recent speech which Mr. W. F. Cocksbutt, M.P., made in the Dominion House. The charges are that the gentleman in question will manage to survive the attack. The main trouble with the organ is that it hates to see a Conservative representing this Riding, and the majority of 719, which Mr. Cocksbutt secured in the last contest, still sticks in the organ's crop.

Mr. Carvell, the most bitter Liberal critic of the Borden Government, has announced that he will take the word of the Premier that conscription is necessary, and will vote for the bill. Thus each day, Laurier sees more and more of his followers lined up against him on the conscription issue.

In Detroit, a husband sued for a divorce on the ground that his wife chewed tobacco. The Judge dismissed the case on the basis that a woman had as much right to do that as a man. Thus the fair sex are coming into their own all over, heaven bless 'em.

Fearing that he could not sell all the coffins he had on hand, a St. Louis undertaker shot himself. That was one way at any rate of using up another of them.

The United States Senate has passed a daylight saving bill, to go into force next year. The idea is to move clock hands forward one hour on the last Sunday in April, and have them stay that way until the end of September. The idea that under such a plan, the people will lose an hour's sleep, does not seem to have penetrated the Senatorial minds.

Laurier is realizing his idea of a solid Quebec all right, but it will be at the expense of a large part of the rest of his following.

VENIZELOS
Athens, June 28.—Several alterations have been made in the Venizelos cabinet. M. Negropontes assumes the finance portfolio instead of agriculture as announced yesterday. M. Spirites is now minister of communications instead of M. Papanastasiou, who becomes minister of National economy. The ministers of agriculture and refugees have not been appointed.

CANADIANS ONCE MORE

Show Their Mettle in the Lens Operations

Capture the Hun Front Line Protecting Avion

(By Stewart Lyon, Special Correspondent of the Canadian Press in France). Canadian Army Headquarters, June 28.—A further phase of the long struggle for the recovery of Lens, the center of the richest coal mining region of France, from the German invader, was reached early this (Thursday) morning when the enemy's front line protecting Avion, a suburb of the city, was captured by storming waves, which went forward under the protection of a concentration of artillery fire of that part of Avion immediately behind the German line. The assaulting troops were composed of men from British Columbia, Manitoba, Ontario, and New Brunswick.

POINTS TO CONSIDER WHEN PURCHASING A RAILWAY TICKET

A Canadian Pacific Railway ticket does not represent merely a means of transportation between given points. It, in addition, provides the traveller with every comfort and convenience developed by modern railway science. "Safety First," with aptitude equipment, unexcelled dining service, palatial sleeping cars, in a word everything that a railway can provide for the comfortable transportation of its passengers, including courtesy.

The JULY Issue of MUNSEY'S MAGAZINE

contains a collection of special articles of expressive timeliness and special interest to every progressive thinking man and woman.

Woman's Part in the Russian Revolution

By Stephen Bonsal
is a story describing woman's part in the long fight for the freedom of Russia; the comparison by the Government of the Russian girl student with public women of the lowest category; the prohibition of the latter from the study of medicine on the theory that they were doing so for purposes of birth control. Their unwelcome persecution in other ways, and a graphic description of how, for more than a hundred years, the women of Russia have fought and worked for the liberation of their country.

The Aeroplane—The Vital Part It Plays in War

By Willis J. Abbot
This article is of most timely interest and describes the uses of aircraft and its indispensable services as the eyes of a modern army.

A Mine Sweeping Cruise in the Submarine Zone

By Judson C. Welliver
Mr. Welliver is the special correspondent in Europe for the New York Sun and Munsey's Magazine, and this is a thrilling narration of a voyage with men whose daily work is to clear the engine of destruction from the highways of the sea.

Our New Possessions, The American Virgin Islands

By James Luby
while geographical changes are a matter of comparatively small note in the daily life of Europeans, an acquisition of growing importance to all Americans is the purchase by the United States of the beautiful, yet strategically significant Danish West Indies. Leading facts about these islands, condensed in a very fascinating style, form an article of extreme interest and information.

The Story of "The Sun"

By Frank M. O'Brien
The third of a series of articles narrating the history of the New York Sun. The introduction of independent journalism, and the very open use of the press for attacks based on personal grievances form a very amusing and effective record of the journalistic methods of earlier days.

These are other special articles, three serial stories, four short stories, editorials, personalities and the stage.

MUNSEY'S Magazine is jammed full of good things well worth reading, and sells for 10¢ a copy.

LOCAL NEWS ITEMS

PLUMBERS' LICENSE

Engineer Hoover of the Highways Department of the Province, was in the city yesterday and went over a portion of the county roads system for the purpose of making an examination. He was apparently quite well satisfied with the improvement made thus far, and departed for Toronto last evening.

FLAGS FOR CHILDREN

The executive of the Semi-Centennial Association have decided to secure Canadian flags for every child participating in the pageant during the celebration. The flags will be given to the children before they leave the schools.

FINANCE COMMITTEE

A final meeting of the finance committee of the semi-centennial association will be held this evening for the purpose of perfecting arrangements for the big two day celebration.

BASEBALL

Two close games are promised in the city league on Saturday afternoon when the Holmedale Cubs vs. the Motor Trucks, and the Cordage vs. the Dominion Steel Products will be the contending teams. The umpires selected are Legacy and Hamburg. The games will commence sharply at half past two. On account of the Semi-Centennial celebration on Monday, no games will be staged on the holiday.

RAILROAD CONTROL

The following letter has been sent by Mayor Bowley: Lieut.-Col. W. F. Cockshutt, M. P., House of Commons,

A meeting of the Railway Committee will report to Council for adoption that it is in the public interest for Dominion Government to assume control of the Grand Trunk, Pacific and Canadian Northern and under no circumstances grant any further aid to these enterprises. My letter will follow this telegram. J. W. BOWLEY, Mayor of Brantford.

COMPENSATION LAWS

The city clerk is in receipt of a communication from the Workingmen's Compensation Board, drawing attention to the fact that the medical aid provisions passed at the last session of the Legislature come into effect on the first of July. The new regulations provide that on and after seven days or not, the employee is to be entitled for one month to such medical and surgical aid and hospital and skilled nursing services as may be necessary as a result of the accident. This is to be furnished and paid for by the employer individually.

COUNTY ROADS

Engineer Hoover of the Highways Department of the Province, was in the city yesterday and went over a portion of the county roads system for the purpose of making an examination. He was apparently quite well satisfied with the improvement made thus far, and departed for Toronto last evening.

NATIONALIZE RAILWAYS

The city council of Peterborough have passed a resolution protesting against the proposed Dominion government grant to the Grand Trunk and Canadian Northern railways of $24,000,000. The resolution advocates the nationalizing of the C.N. and the Grand Trunk. A copy has been forwarded to the city clerk for the endorsement of the Brantford city council.

DRESS REHEARSAL

A private dress rehearsal of the school children to participate in the semi-centennial celebration on Monday next was held this afternoon in Agricultural Park, a most satisfactory showing being made. Immense credit for the state of perfection to which the kiddies have attained in their respective parts is according to Miss Whitney and Mr. Clifford Higgin, under whose able supervision the rehearsals have been carried out painstakingly and thoroughly.

SAFE ROBBERY

The police are still working on the robbery that took place at the Kerby House on Saturday night when $150 was taken from the safe while the clerk was absent from the office for a few minutes. Some success has been met with by the police department, but the exact nature of the developments will not be disclosed by those working on the case.

APPRECIATE Y. M. C. A.

The attitude of the soldiers towards the Y. M. C. A. can be fairly well gauged from a letter that has been received by officers of the local institution from the mother of a member of the 54th battalion who is proceeding overseas, and who last fall died as the result of wounds. The letter reads in part: "I have great pleasure in knowing that my son was a member of the Young Men's Christian Association, for I have just received a thing which was found on him in France, for I am sorry to say that he was wounded on November 18th last and passed away on November 29th. He was with the 54th battalion that wintered in Brantford, and he was very proud of the Association and all the kindness he received there. Wishing the Association every success."

RAILWAY GRANTS

A copy of a resolution recently passed at a joint meeting of the executives of the Hydro Electric Railway Association, and the Ontario Municipal Electric Association, protesting to the Dominion Government against the further financing of the two privately owned corporations, the Grand Trunk Railway and the Canadian Northern Railway has been addressed to the Mayor and city council with the request that it be endorsed and forwarded to the Premier, the Hon. Frank Cochrane, Minister of Railways and Canals, and to Sir Thomas White, Minister of Finance. It is pointed out that last year the Canadian Northern Railway received $15,000,000 and that this year is now asking for a grant of $1,000,000 in excess of that sum. There is also a well founded rumor that the government is contemplating making a grant to the two railways of $24,000,000. The resolution strongly urges that the obligations resting on the two recipients of former favors be enforced, and makes special mention of the mortgage on the C. N. R. TRENCH WORKERS

The secretary of the Trench Workers' Union, an organization with headquarters at Hamilton, having as its object the providing of employment for returned soldiers partially disabled, has replied to the refusal of Mayor Bowley to allow the promotion of a lottery in this city to provide funds for the establishment of a factory in Hamilton. The letter reads: "You are mistaken if you think that we intend to lower the standard or violate the law or do anything offensive in the name of patriotism and therefore, we wish to, either." The epistle concludes, "However, you are evidently patriotic, although you state that you are not a Saint. Saints do not always subscribe patriotic funds. Will you subscribe to ours. We want to help partly disabled soldiers who will have to earn their living. Will you help us to make a start?"

AUTO SMASHUP

Last night two young men, Messrs. Livingston and Wankin, while driving down Brant Avenue at a considerable speed, struck a street car opposite the Armouries, and the force of the impact threw the automobile over toward the curb into a Hydro pole. The two men were hurled from the car, one having his head thrust through the windshield and suffering severe cuts about the face and neck as a result. The car was badly damaged, particularly the fenders, but was able to proceed under its own power to a garage for repairs. It is understood that the Keeton Motor Truck Company, and live at the New American hotel.

A LONG WAR, SAYS CAPT. HENDERSON

Present Style of Fighting Does Not Permit of Speedy Victory IS A SLOW PROCESS

Canadians Equal to Best Soldiers in World Today

"The situation is good, but there is a long fight ahead of us. The war is far from over yet, on the contrary, it seems to me that it must run for several years yet. Modern warfare does not permit of an army sweeping through a country, but has proven that an advance must be preceded by smashing the enemy's ground, then the advance, and a repetition of the same tactics."

Thus does Capt. W. T. Henderson, home from the front a few months ago, sum up the situation. "The Canadians," he says, "are splendid fighters, probably the best at the front to-day. The German army has a marvellous staff, equipment and organization, but man for man Fritz is not in it with the British. And he has no stomach for the fight, particularly when he is facing the Canadians."

Crossing from England to France with the 54th battery, Capt. Henderson was drafted with his unit to the first division, and there given charge of a battery from Shorncliffe, employed as an ammunition column. The guns of the 54th were firing the night the unit landed in France, and the artillerymen went through the thick of the battle for Vimy Ridge, where they lost some of their best men. Capt. Henderson is high in his appreciation of such men as Serg. George Houlson and Gunner Earl Pitchee, who were among the first to make the supreme sacrifice and who received a funeral at the hands of their fellows. The 54th went through the thick of the fighting, sustaining heavy losses, and "every man making good," as the commanding officer declares. Touching upon the situation in England, Capt. Henderson does not look for serious trouble arising from the food question, considering the difficulty arises from lack of administration, there being plenty of food only awaiting proper distribution. The rations supplied to the men at the front, he states, are all that could be desired, save in the case of such a "big show" as Vimy, when lack of communication prevents the maintenance of systematic transportation. TEDDY WILSON.

The funeral of Teddy, the second son of Mr. and Mrs. Angus Wilson, took place yesterday afternoon from the family residence, 71 Balfour St., to Mt. Hope Cemetery. It was very largely attended by friends and relations of the deceased. Impressive services at the house and grave were conducted by the Rev. Mr. Campbell. The pallbearers were members of the Sunday School class of which Teddy had been a member and were Harry Hewson, George McConnell, Clarence Patterson, Alex Fraser, Elmer Davis and George Calbeck. The floral tributes were: From the family, gates a jar; cross, Teddy's classmates and teachers of Balfour Street Sunday School, West Brant Boys, sprays, Uncle Art and Aunt Maggie and family, Aunt Leiby and Clarence, Aunt Annie Dickenson, Harry Hewson, Harold Reantree, Elmer Davis, George Calbeck, Mrs. Williams, Mrs. A. and W. RETURNED SOLDIERS

Messrs C. S. Vansickle, J. R. Cornellius and Lorne Watson, of the Great War Veterans' Association, conferred with a committee representing the Soldiers' Aid Commission consisting of Messrs J. H. Spence, W. L. Lane and Logan Waterhouse, for the purpose of discussing a common basis on which the two organizations could unite in their efforts toward looking after the interests of the returned soldier. An understanding was arrived at, and the result will be reported at a meeting of representatives of various patriotic organizations at a joint meeting to be held in the Y. M. C. A. to-morrow afternoon.

SMALLPOX.

During the past few weeks there have been four cases of smallpox receiving treatment at the "pest house" near Mt. Hope cemetery. The disease was distributed among the members of three families and was originally brought to the city by a man who had returned from a trip to Quebec. Immediate steps were taken by Medical Health Officer Dr. Pearson and a recovery has been achieved in every case.

CARS WANTED.

Although a gratifying response has been made by many car owners throughout the city to the appeal of the semi-centennial association, still more automobiles are needed to convey the school children to the park for the occasion, and all motorists able to do so will aid in the success of the celebration by allowing the use of their cars. Any offers should be made to Chief Lewis or to Mr. J. P. Powell of The Courier.

PICNIC PARTY

A fairly large number of excursionists arrived in the city this morning from Trinity in the Brantford and Hamilton radial, with Mohawk Park as the location for their picnic.

SUICIDE WHILE INSANE VERDICT OF CORONER'S JURY

Inquest into Death of Mrs. James O'Dell of Hamilton Held

STARTLING EVIDENCE Woman While in City Expressed Fears of a "Frame-Up"

A verdict of "suicide while temporarily insane," was returned last evening at the inquest into the death of the late Mrs. James O'Dell, of Hamilton. While the jury reached an unanimous decision without retiring from the court room, the evidence presented was not lacking in startling and significant features, and the element of mystery is not removed from the affair.

Following testimony by Mr. Jesse Usher and Fire Chief Lewis as to the finding of the woman's clothes and body respectively, Mr. John Mills, residing very near the Cockshutt bridge, gave evidence of having seen a woman clothed as Mrs. O'Dell had been, cross the bridge early Friday morning, and after going into the river. The sensation of the evening was created by Mrs. Smith, wife of the proprietor of the Beavell hotel, who testified that Mrs. O'Dell had registered there on Tuesday morning of last week. She was assigned a room, and later in the day complained to Mrs. Smith that there were several articles of men's clothing hanging in the room, asking that they be removed, and stated that she feared "there might be a frame-up to make trouble for her," as she alleged had occurred on one occasion previously. Early Friday morning she left the hotel and did not return.

Mr. O'Dell, called to the stand, could assign no reason for such a charge as that made by his wife, regarding it rather as conclusive evidence that she was temporarily out of her mind, as their married life had always been of the happiest, with no troubles between them. His wife had left home upon Wednesday evening of last week, leaving his supper prepared for him, and since that time he had heard nothing until receiving word on Saturday of the finding of her clothes here. Mr. O'Dell could not account for the package of safety razor blades which had been found in her pocket, as he had not used a safety razor for some years, nor had he any blades of such an article in his possession. To the best of his knowledge, he testified that his wife had had no money with her when she left home.

At the conclusion of his evidence the jury at once returned their verdict of suicide while temporarily insane. The members of the jury were Louis Stander, Fred Unger, Edward James, H. S. Peirce, Charles Coulson, James Morrison and W. A. Taylor. Coroner Cole officiated, while S. A. Jones, acting Crown Attorney, conducted the examination.

French front in France, June 27.—A French military chaplain figured prominently with the French troops in a brilliantly successful attack on the Cavern of the Dragon, on the Chemin-de-Dames, in the neighborhood of Hurtlebale. While advancing a stretcher-bearer to the front, the chaplain was confronted by the fearsome figure of a German officer, whose clothing was white. The chaplain raised a crucifix and offered religious comfort to the burning man, who pointed to the rear, where another German officer was creeping out of a hole.

The captain, still holding the crucifix aloft, advanced, shouting to the Germans to surrender. The officer replied: "We are ready, but will only surrender to an officer."

150 Surrendered

A French officer approached and entered the cavern, where 150 Germans, including three officers, laid down their arms.

Where the action occurred was the scene of an ambush of the French in the beginning of 1915, which resulted in considerable French losses. When the French attacked on this occasion the position was a peculiar one. The southern entrance of the enormous cavern, between Grotto Farm and the monument commemorative of a Napoleonic victory was held by the French forces. The northern entrance was held by the Germans. The cavern was 500 feet long and 300 feet broad. Across it the Germans had built a brick wall. Above, on the ridge, the French and German trenches were separated by only a few yards. The French objective was to drive the Germans from the cavern and gain the observation points on the surface.

Won a Flank Attack.

The German trenches were won in a flank attack. While the southern entrance was filled with gas, which penetrated to the German section, the northern exit was shelled and shrapnel rained down on the Germans. The operation succeeded beyond all expectation and resulted in the capture of 317 prisoners, including a number of officers. The French now hold all the dominating points on this part of the Chemin-de-Dames.

The prisoners came in batches, with hands held high in the air, and shouting: "The war is over."

The entire French casualties during the operation were fewer than the number of German prisoners taken, while everywhere evidences were found that the Germans had suffered heavy losses in killed.

AN ARRANGEMENT REACHED

Between the Men and the Municipal Railway Commissioners

Matters have been satisfactorily arranged for the time being between the Street Railway Commissioners and the employees.

It will be remembered that a short while ago, the men requested an arbitration committee, or in lieu of that said that they would feel compelled to walk out in order to secure recognition of their demands. As the result of some negotiation, the Commissioners finally offered an advance of another 1 1/2 cents an hour, in addition to the 2 cents not long ago conceded. The result of this was that a minimum wage commencing at 23 cents an hour, then to 25 cents an hour, and finally to 26 cents an hour.

The men have taken a vote on the proposition, and the acceptance of it carried by a majority of four or five.

The matter of shorter hours, with time and a half for over-time, will be left in abeyance for a while.

The delegate meeting of the Alford and Park Road Women's Institute was held at the home of Mrs. N. Edmondson, on Friday, June 22nd, with forty-five in attendance.

The meeting was opened by the President, Mrs. W. Turnbull. After singing the opening ode and repeating the motto, the minutes of the last meeting were read and adopted. Letters were read from soldiers thanking the Institute for boxes received.

On Thursday, June 14th, several of the women met at the home of Mrs. I. Gilbert to pack boxes for soldiers on active service.

A very pleasing violin solo "Humpoquet," by Mrs. Simpson was very much enjoyed by all.

As the wool supply is getting low it was decided to send for more.

Miss Agnew, our representative, gave an excellent report of the Annual Convention held at Echo Place.

A letter was read asking for assistance from the Institute with the booths at the Annual Flowering Match to be held at Oak Park Park. The matter was discussed and it was decided that help would be given.

A selection of the Victrola was then given.

Miss Sutherland, the delegate, gave an exceedingly interesting and inspiring address on the following subjects:

"The increasing success of our Institutes in the Red Cross Work"; "Different Foods and their Food Values"; "Advantages of Medical Inspection in the Rural Schools"; "Economy in the Home"; "The books which should be read."

A piano duet by the Misses Alice Edmondson and Mary Sage was much appreciated by all.

Mrs. Simpson then figured with another splendid violin solo.

On Monday June 25th, boxes for soldiers will be packed at Mrs. J. Mordue's.

The meeting was brought to a close by singing God Save the King.

The July meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. H. Storey, on Thursday the 19th.

LEE FOHL VERY PATIENT WITH YOUNG PLAYERS

Cleveland Manager Gives Kookies Every Opportunity to Make Good

Few players ever will be able to Lee Fohl released them without giving them a fair chance to show their ability to hold down a seat in the Indian wigwam, writes Edward in the Cleveland Leader. No manager in the American League is more painstaking with his men than the chief of the Cleveland tribe.

He hung on to Bill Mitchell until the management received scores of letters and telephone calls from fans, who announced they wanted it advertised when Mitchell was going to pitch so they could remain away. Fohl knew Mitchell had pitching ability, and possibly would have kept him through the season had it not been for the rebellion of the patrons.

He was the first one to see the possibilities of Bill Wambans as a player, and practically the only one who could see Wambans until a year ago. With the fans gambling about the continuance of Wambans in the frame, Lee kept telling the newspapermen Bill would come through some day. He kept him in the face of popular disapproval.

Hundreds of fans could not see Elmer Smith with a spyglass, but Fohl retained him, believing Elmer could be improved in fielding and hitting. The fans who roared Fohl for sticking to the Milan slugger now are kicking because Lee let him go. It is any mistake has been made by Fohl as far as releasing players is concerned, it was in letting Smith go, but that was part of a deal in which it was thought the tribe would be strengthened. Cleveland has more to gain than Washington than Boehling has done for Cleveland, but Boehling has plenty of time in which to cause Clevelanders to approve the trade.

Leonard Not Delivering.

Joe Leonard was with Cleveland only a few days. He clamored for a trial at third and protested when he was sent to Washington without having been given a real chance to show his value. He flashed brilliantly for a time with the Nationals, but his work this year has sustained Fohl's contention that he could not hit.

Fohl gave far longer trials to Rip Hagerman and Grover Lounders than their efforts in the box warranted. Right up to the last he continued he could make them valuable pitchers, and it was not until he was convinced in his own mind that he allowed them to go.

He was told Fred Combs was too light for big league duty, but he manipulated Fred a year ago through the little southerner came through with a fifty-fifty record, winning five games from the two clubs that finished one-two, and has won three out of four this season.

When the 1917 campaign began, numbered among the Indians was Pop Boy Smith, a player Cleveland could turn back prior to May 15 without digging down in the treasury. "I'll make good if I get a chance," said Smith.

FRENCH RETALIATE, DESTROYING GERMAN MONUMENT ERECTED ON FRENCH SOIL.
The Germans have been alone in the destruction of things sacred, but their arrogance and spitefulness have reached such a stage that the French retaliated. The Germans in their retreat destroyed or robbed French cemeteries and graves and the French in retaliation dynamited a huge monument erected to German dead in a cemetery at Channy in French territory.

"You will get a chance," replied Fohl, who thought Smith had the necessary stuff and wanted to keep the Southerner because of his relationship to Jim Bagby.

Fohl used Smith as a relief pitcher in six games. In two Smith acquitted himself fairly well. In two he was batted hard. In another he just got by, while in the sixth he received the blame for losing because of his errors, mental and mechanical. Now he has gone back to New Orleans. Fohl finally being convinced he is not quite up to the big league standard.

TOM LONGBOAT IS A COMEBACK

Indian Runner Beats British Athletes in Sports at Front

Canadian Headquarters in France, June 27.—Sports held by the army with which the Canadian Corps is connected resulted in the re-discovery of Tom Longboat, the famous Canadian Indian runner. In a three-mile cross-country race Longboat romped home well in advance of some of the most famous British and Canadian runners without even exerting himself. He had a great reception from his regimental comrades.

The tug-of-war competitions were won by a British Columbia battalion and the Canadian heavy artillery with the English infantry and artillery teams in second place. The British won the artillery drive easily, a Canadian battery taking second.

He declared that loans to the Allies and the contemplated purchase of Entente securities held in the United States would tend to check the outflow of gold from the United States to Japan which appeared to be causing some apprehension in the United States. The contemplated purchase of securities was not to be an official operation. It was being arranged by a group of important banks, including the Yokohama Specie Bank, the Industrial Bank of Japan, and leading financiers of Osaka.

"You must remember," remarked Mr. Shoda, referring to the amount of gold from the United States to Japan, which appeared to be causing some apprehension in the United States, "that the importation of specie is generally regarded as a disadvantageous operation."

Minister Shoda, in an address before the prefectural governors referring to Japan's financial part in the war, said:

"Our own people may sometimes forget the fact that our country is a party to the war, for our military operations are not conspicuous on the surface. But the Emperor, in giving the allies every assistance at its command, and the special fund needed for that purpose reaches no small amount. Fortunately at the outbreak of the war, our national treasury was in such a fine condition that we did not have to seek a special revenue source in defraying those expenses. But what the close of the war will bring no one knows except the prospect that the expenses will increase. The government, therefore is at present considering the ways and means to solidify the foundation of our war-time finance."

That Japan was continuing to enjoy great material prosperity was shown, he said, by the fact that up to the middle of May, the excess of exports over imports had reached the total of about $110,000,000, or about three times as great as the previous year for the same period. This had brought about an over-supply of money, which constituted a great problem. The way of disposing of this surplus money could not be definitely outlined in days like these when the world finance is full of sudden changes.

"The investment of our capital in China," he went on, "is indispensable in realizing the economic co-operation between Japan and China. For that purpose the financial organs must be unified and readjusted and co-operative enterprises of Japanese and Chinese must be encouraged. It should be remembered, however, that the interests of the two peoples should be promoted for their common good, and conflicts should be avoided as far as possible."

"We must be prepared to respond unflinchingly to orders for war supplies in order to help the Allies win the war. I feel it is our duty to give the allies every convenience in paying for the war supplies from our country."

FINANCING ENTENTE

Tokio, June 28.—(Correspondence)—Japan was negotiating with Russia to make a war loan to that country when the revolution interrupted the purporters, said Kazuyi Shoda, Japan's Minister of Finance, to the correspondent of the Associated Press while discussing Japan's proposed financial assistance to the Entente powers. The minister did not say whether the interrupted negotiations would be resumed.

The minister previously stated that his country was negotiating to make loans to Great Britain and France. He could not fix the amounts but he expressed the opinion that the financial aid to the entente, supplementing Japan's dispatch of a fleet of warships to the Mediterranean Sea, showed that Japan was doing everything in her power to help the Allies successfully prosecute the war.

He declared that loans to the Allies and the contemplated purchase of Entente securities held in the United States would tend to check the outflow of gold from the United States to Japan which appeared to be causing some apprehension in the United States. The contemplated purchase of securities was not to be an official operation. It was being arranged by a group of important banks, including the Yokohama Specie Bank, the Industrial Bank of Japan, and leading financiers of Osaka.

"THE FALL OF BAPAUME"

The general public on seeing such a picture as the "Fall of Bapaume," showing at the Rex theatre the last three days of this week, wonder at cameras up in the front line, for it would seem that these men and their cameras work in as exposed positions as the soldiers themselves. A machine gun, for example, is protected, where as frequently the camera operator and his machine have to get out in front without any protection at all.

Stories are told of narrow escapes without number of the daredevils who are attached to the British army to take pictures. One man wanted to get a good picture of a bombardment, and he carried his machine away out to a shell hole in "No Man's Land" between the British and the German lines. He set his camera up and took several yards of film when he became aware that the Germans were dropping shells in his neighborhood altogether too close to be pleasant.

Gathering up his camera he climbed out of the shell hole, and along came another German shell and obliterated the spot where his camera had been standing just a moment before. The aim and ambition of a moving picture operator at the front is to get "action," and to get action they have often been seen turning the cranks on the parapet of the trench when the soldiers themselves were lying low under cover.

Although the operators take as many chances and blind themselves to everything but the necessity of getting a good picture, there have been no fatalities among them reported, and few real accidents. One of the operators of a British official picture had the leg of his camera smashed by a piece of shell; another had a bullet go through his hat.

Made Many Pictures
The "Fall of Bapaume" consists of the assembled films of no less than six military motion picture operators. When it was produced in England it measured 10,000 ft. Owing to the advisability of reducing the time of showing to a convenient limit, the film was shortened by judicious condensation to 6,000 feet, with an extreme devoted to the British army. Accordingly the action of the picture is swift and varied. You see everything on the British front in France, and see it all in an hour and a quarter.

RECRUITING HALTED

No More Troops Can Be Secured by Voluntary System

Ottawa, June 28.—Perhaps no man has so consistently and persistently criticized the Government for its management of its war work as has Mr. Frank B. Carvell, the Liberal member for Carleton, N.B. Yet Mr. Carvell found himself compelled during the debate upon the Government's Military Service Bill in the Commons yesterday a supporter of that measure and an opponent of the proposal of his leader, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, that the principle of conscription be submitted to the people at a referendum.

The Carleton member pointed out that the call of the leading statesmen in both Britain and France has been for "men and more men." Sir Robert Borden had visited the battlefield and on his return had announced that more troops were required, and that the only way to secure them was by a system of compulsory enlistment.

"When a man" in his position makes that statement," asserted Mr. Carvell, "I have not the nerve to say that he is wrong and that I am right, and I am willing to stand by him as far as it is possible for me to do, to see that he gets all the men he wants." He brushed aside the argument that a moribund Parliament should not pass such legislation without a special mandate from the people. Parliament's term had been extended and under the circumstances the member who was not prepared to go ahead and do his duty was, the Carleton member asserted, not fit to be a member of Parliament. He suggested another trial of the voluntary system after the passage of the conscription bill and before its enforcement.

Support of Government's Course
Sir Herbert Ames, on the other hand intimated that personally he would prefer to have the measure laid before the people at a general election, rather than have its enforcement attempted by the present Parliament.

"I believe," he said, "that if its provisions are carefully examined, the necessities of the case made clear and the people of Canada honestly dealt with, this act will be accepted and its provisions obeyed."

Sir Herbert made a carefully reasoned argument in support of the Government's course. He concluded from an examination of the numbers and the character of the troops, now under arms in England and Canada, and a consideration of the relative rates of wastage and enlistment that unless recruiting was greatly accelerated the Dominion reserves of fighting men would be exhausted by Christmas. Reinforcements had to be sent by the divisions at the front and by the one method elsewhere found effective, by conscription.

"It only to make clear the purpose the destination and the method of military service in this war, the present bill should become law," declared the member for Ste. Antenne. Dr. J. W. Edwards, of Frontenac, was the only other speaker of the session who addressed the House, during the sitting, to support the Government proposal. He made a vigorous speech in which he traced to Sir Wilfrid Laurier the origin of the doctrine now being preached by Tancred Marshall, Henri Bourassa and the Nationalist party in Quebec. With the Nationalists he asserted, Sir Wilfrid had aligned himself in his speech on the bill.

The object of the test provided by the Advertisers of this page to Courier Readers was not alone for the purpose of giving prizes, it may be assumed. Behind the prize idea was the aim to make citizens generally better acquainted with these merchants, their locations, the service rendered the public, and their phone numbers, and to extend to all a cordial invitation to use the phone, not only to order the service, but for the purpose of securing information regarding the service or goods advertised. In a word these merchants are keen to give "service"—and therefore invite you to call on them—phone or otherwise—whenever they can serve you.

(From Wednesday's Daily.) There was just the right touch of expectation in his voice and manner as though he took it for granted that Hallett intended to continue his explanation. But Jimmie had no intention of doing so. He had been surprised into half an admission, but he was to be drawn no further. It might be that nothing he could reveal could affect the course of events, but having given his word to Peggy he intended to remain silent. He was scarcely prepared to admit even what the lawyers call common ground.

"You're doing very well by yourself," he commented. "You don't need my help." There had been little serious intention behind Weir Menzies's threat of arrest. On the face of things, as he had explained, he could have justified the action. Nor would he have hesitated had he believed that any real good would come of it. He would have been as ruthless as Jimmie Hallett's feelings as he was of his own energies if thereby he could have gained a step.

But events were developing too quickly to permit of too much thought. Of course, Hallett's intention that he should receive a private word for it had been a stimulating shock, and it would be still advisable to look after him. But to put him under lock and key would be to seal his lips utterly—Menzies had indeed treated in another fashion he might yet be useful. Nevertheless, the threat was a bludgeon to be used if necessary.

He put the revolver aside and went on with his inspection. He hesitated over the letters and then, with a muttered apology, opened one. There were four all told, and he steadily plowed through them. "Ling must be very fond of you," he observed with heavy irony. "Not only have you the pistol, but some of his personal letters. Lord!" he burst out, "what game were you playing last night? I'd give a lot to know. You certainly have the knack of dropping into the thick of things."

"Yes, there were some letters," agreed Jimmie coolly. "I haven't had time to read them. Anything of importance in them?" "There are no addresses," evaded Menzies, "and he doesn't seem to have saved the envelopes, so we can't tell where he received them." A knock at the door heralded the appearance of Royal, who nodded a genial good morning to Hallett and then glided unobtrusively to a seat.

—saw also that the chief inspector was determined at any cost to keep him out of the game. Inwardly he writhed at his own impotence. If he could only have got one word to Peggy Grey-Stratton. Outwardly he was philosophic. "No cell for me," he said cheerfully. "You've got the drop on me and I've got to do what you say. I will pass my word, though I'd take it kindly if you'd send on what news you can. . . . Do you play piquet, Mr. Royal?"

CHAPTER XXII. An Addition to the Dossier. Unless circumstances dictated haste Weir Menzies was never in a hurry. In essentials he was a business man. He was always ready to seize a fleeting opportunity—but for choice he preferred method and exactitude rather than gambling on luck. There was nothing he could do at Hallowell for the time being that could not be done equally well by the men already on duty there. The tactics of the moment were quite clear in his mind. Peggy Grey-Stratton, by herself, was of minor importance compared with the possibility of laying down the line and Ling by the heels. The direct route to that objective seemed to lay through her. Moreover—though he would not admit it, even to himself—he felt a certain personal animosity both Ling and the woman had been tried to incite his professional ally. He wanted to locate them—and then—

He was pre-occupied on a high stool before his desk in the chief inspector's office. The dossier of the recent letters had been gathered together by the elaborate machinery of the C. I. D. neatly typed and carefully indexed. Also in his own Greek notes and several scraps not yet incorporated in the dossier.

He rubbed his hands through his hair and chewed at the end of a quill pen. For five minutes he allowed his thoughts uninterrupted flow and then there came to him Foye, spruce and alert with twinkling blue eyes. "Quite a dust-up last night, I hear," he observed.

"Some," agreed Menzies. He got down off his stool, reached for a tobacco jar and filled his pipe. "I was coming in to see you, sir. I'd like to arrange to have fifty men on tap. It's likely I'll want 'em to-night."

Foye polished his pipe-neck. "As close up as that? I heard that you'd not an address. But fifty men! That's a lot of men to be used to get together and settle a Home Rule plan. Now look out for an answer."

HOPE FOR SETTLEMENT. Continued from Page One satisfactory issue for the situation. The Daily Mail expresses the belief that the probabilities are the convention will meet and add: "It will put Ireland very definitely on trial before the British Empire and the world and test most thoroughly whatever capacity for constructive statesmanship she possesses."

The ultra-Conservative Morning Post says that asking Ireland to devise a plan for her own government may seem reasonable from the first view, but that it must never be forgotten that a Government for Ireland is not purely an Irish question, because the security of Great Britain largely depends on Ireland, which holds a position through which every enemy who ever fought England has tried to enter. Elaborating the view that what in fundamentals is a British question cannot be settled by Irishmen alone, this newspaper contends that the British cannot carry into effect a convention's decision unless they do not injure the interests and security of the Kingdom.

BTISH OFFICIAL. By Courier Leased Wire. London, May 22.—"We made successful raids last night northeast of Epeby and during the night east of Bullecourt, south of the Arras, Cambrai road and west of Lena," says today's war official report. "Yesterday afternoon we destroyed a large German ammunition dump on the Arras-Cambrai road northeast of Queant. The shock of the explosion was felt at great distance behind our lines."

English Plum Pudding. One-half pound suet, chopped fine. 1 quart flour, 1 pound raisins, 1-2 pound currants, small pieces lemon peel, chopped; 1 teaspoon soda, 1 teaspoon allspice, 1 teaspoon cinnamon, 1 teaspoon ginger, 2 cups sugar, 1 cup molasses. Mix with milk enough to moisten like fruit cake. Tie in a square of cloth, which has been floured, and put in a kettle of boiling water 4 hours. Care should be taken to keep the kettle filled with water and not stop boiling. Serve with hard sauce.

Apple Pie. One cup tapioca, soaked over night, in the morning put it on the stove and when boiling hot add 1 cup of sugar and boil till clear; chop 1 pineapple, pour the tapioca over it, mix together and put into moulds, then cold serve with sugar and 1 cream. Frozen Peaches. Two quarts peaches, peeled and sliced; sprinkle with 1 pound of sugar and let stand two hours. Mash fine, add 1 quart cold milk and freeze the same as ice cream.

Ice Cream Without Eggs. Take equal parts of cream and milk, sweeten very sweet; flavor as desired, pour in freezer, let stand 15 minutes before stirring, then stir for 15 minutes. It will be very nice. Pineapple Sherbet. One can pineapple, 2 quarts milk, 2-2 cups sugar.

"That's an" agreed Menzies. "You'll remember when we went over to the terrace garden, we didn't see Lind and Grey-Stratton's pistol? I saw across it this morning. In fact, I have it here."

"Facing up the threat of the war, the speaker delivered a sermon to the men, from a board on the summit of a manure pile, while frantic efforts were made by the officers to suppress the laughter of the men, as the fall incongruity of the position became apparent to them. Capt. Cornelius related the incident in which the first man of the 58th had been wounded while with a working party in the trenches. The bullets resemble hail as the men approach the front line, and whistle overhead incessantly.

While in the trenches however, there was no lack of "company" chiefly in the form of rats. From babies to great great grandfathers, and while there was a dearth of moving pictures, there were other things quite as lively, which the speaker described as having sixteen legs. The food was brought up in bags, and the water in gasoline cans. Capt. Cornelius for a few minutes then entertained his audience with an expression of his opinion of people who sit at home in comfortable surroundings, and reflect on the fate of the "Tommy" who is going to purgatory overseas. He laid special emphasis on the necessity of a ra-

What Difference Did it Make. The circumstance which brought this particularly before my mind was meeting a newly engaged couple. The man had wanted the girl for years and had finally secured his wish. And unlike most men, he wanted the world to know the odds he had been up against. He told us his mind to marry her in spite of the other's hesitancy, and now he had beat his whole existence for two years to the task of getting her.

face, and a cigarette in his mouth. As to their moral character, the speaker was quite willing to take thirty-five thousand boys from the front, and compare them with the same number of civilians, and he was quite sure that 95 per cent. of them would be better than the men clad in mufti, and furthermore declared that his statement was upheld by statistics. The sympathetic care given to comrades in the trenches, was touching, and although with practically no medical skill or knowledge, the best of care was always received by the wounded soldier from his comrades.

This concluded Capt. Cornelius' story of his experiences overseas, and he then outlined what he called national service and urged those present to work and sacrifice in every way possible to assist in the winning of the war. Whatever could be done by those at home could compare but poorly with the men who had gladly gone overseas and gallantly laid down their lives in a sacrifice that liberty might prevail.

Proceeding to a description of the "Tommy" himself, Capt. Cornelius stated that his optimism at all times, and under all circumstances was remarkable. Whether going into the trenches, or fighting, or coming out wounded and perhaps maimed for life, there was always a smile on his

Late Superintendent of the Criminal Investigation Department of New Scotland Yard. (Copyright)

(From Wednesday's Daily.)

There was just the right touch of expectation in his voice and manner as though he took it for granted that Hallett intended to continue his explanation. But Jimmie had no intention of doing so. He had been surprised into half an admission, but he was to be drawn no further.

It might be that nothing he could reveal could affect the course of events, but having given his word to Peggy he intended to remain silent. He was scarcely prepared to admit even what the lawyers call common ground.

"You're doing very well by your self," he commented. "You don't need my help."

There had been little serious intention behind Weir Menzies's threat of arrest. On the face of things, as he had explained, he could have justified the action. Nor would he have hesitated had he believed that any real good would come of it. He would have been as ruthless as Jimmie Hallett's feelings as he was of his own energies if thereby he could have gained a step.

But events were developing too quickly to permit of too much finesse. Of course, Hallett's intuition—that was Menzies's private word for it—had been a stumbling block, and it would be still advisable to look after him. But to put him under lock and key would be to seal his lips utterly—Menzies had judged his character aright in that—and if treated in another fashion he might yet be useful. Nevertheless, the threat was a bludgeon to be used if necessary.

He put the revolver aside and went on with his inspection. He hesitated over the letters and then, with a muttered apology, opened one. There were four all told, and he steadily plowed through them.

"Ling must be very fond of you," he observed with heavy irony. "Not only have you the pistol, but some of his personal letters. Lord!" he burst out, "what game were you playing last night? I'd give a lot to know. You certainly have the knack of dropping into the thick of things."

"Yes, there were some letters," agreed Jimmie coolly. "I haven't had time to read them. Anything of importance in them?"

"There are no addresses," evaded Menzies, "and he doesn't seem to have saved the envelopes, so we can't tell where he received them." A knock at the door heralded the appearance of Royal, who nodded a genial good morning to Hallett and then glided unobtrusively to a seat. Menzies twisted the letter in his hand with an air of uncertainty.

"I've got two courses open to me," he explained to Hallett. "One, as I said just now, is to arrest you. The other is to take your word that you won't attempt to leave your rooms here nor to send any message to any one until I see you again. In that case I should leave Royal here with you."

"You've got an everlastingly cool nerve," observed Jimmie. "Hang it, man, what do you expect?" said the other impatiently. "The alternative is more than ninety-nine men out of a hundred would offer you."

Jimmie shrugged his shoulders resignedly. He saw Menzies's difficulty saw also that the chief inspector was determined at any cost to keep him out of the game. Inwardly he writhed at his own impotence. If he could only have got one word to Peggy Greye-Straton.

Outwardly he was philosophic. "No cell for mine," he said cheerfully, "You've got the drop on me and I've got to do what you say. I will pass my word, though I'd take it kindly if you'd send on what news you can. Do you play piquet, Mr. Royal?"

CHAPTER XXII.

An Addition to the Dossier. Unless circumstances dictated haste Weir Menzies was never in a hurry. In essentials he was a business man. He was always ready to seize a fleeting opportunity—but for choice he preferred method and exactitude rather than gambling on luck. There was nothing he could do at Shadwell for the time being that could not be done equally well by the men already on duty there.

The tactics of the moment were quite clear in his mind. Peggy Greye-Straton, by herself, was of minor importance compared with the possibility of laying Gwendie Lyne and Ling by the heels. The direct route to that objective seemed to lay through her. Moreover—though he would not admit it, even to himself—he felt a certain personal animosity. Both Ling and the woman had con- tributed to humiliate him professionally. He wanted to locate them—and then—

He was perched on a high stool before his desk in the chief inspector's room. The dossier of the case lay in front of him; reports, statements, photographs, everything that had been gathered together by the elaborate machinery of the C. I. D. neatly typed and carefully indexed. Also his own Greek notes and several facts not yet incorporated in the dossier.

He rubbed his hands through his hair and chewed at the end of a quill pen. For five minutes he allowed his thoughts uninterrupted flow and then there came to him: Foyle, spruce and alert with twinkling blue eyes.

"Quite a dust-up last night, I hear," he observed.

"Some," agreed Menzies. He got down off his stool, reached for a tobacco jar and filled his pipe. "I was coming in to see you, sir. I'd like to arrange to have fifty men on tap. It's likely I'll want 'em to-night."

Foyle polished his plume-nose. "As close up as that? I heard that you'd got an address. But fifty men! That means a raid. You'll have the newspaper men there."

The superintendent hated unnecessary limelight on the operations of the C. I. D., and he was not blind to the effects of human nature. Among fifty men, however carefully picked, there was sure to be some who had been carefully cultivated by journalists and he knew that a friendly hint would be passed on to Fleet Street before many hours were over.

"I only want them available," explained Menzies. "I don't know that I'll use 'em. We may be able to do things quietly, but if a house-to-house search is necessary and there should be any more gun-play—"

"Right you are. I'll see they're at hand for a call. Now about things in general—"I was just thinking it out," said Menzies. "I can't just place things, though I've got more than enough to act on."

The other removed his glasses. "What you mean," he smiled, "is that you don't want to commit yourself to anything till you're sure."

"That's so," agreed Menzies. "You'll remember when we went over Ling's garden, we couldn't find Grege-Straton's pistol? I came across it this morning. In fact, I have it here."

"Hallett?" ejaculated Foyle with a lift of his eyebrows. "Hallett it is. I've just come from him. I did think he was safe last night. He was out of my sight for less than three minutes, and I'm almost sure he was on his waypath on his own hook again—or rather wit' the girl. She's got that young man absolutely dazzled. It seems that they must have met Ling after he dodged me."

"Now where she's concerned you couldn't make him talk if you used a—"

"—an open-ener. And he now knows a deuce of a lot, too. I could draw it out of him if I had the case pretty complete or I'm a fool. Look here." He ran through the papers on his desk and picked out two. "I picked these papers of him just now. He read:

Dear Stewart: I was right pleased to get your letter and shall be glad when you come over again. Teddy is just fine and says he would like to see his dad again. It would be fine if only we could settle down and you didn't have to be sent on those long business journeys any more. As I wrote you last time the show has gone bust and I am resting. So if you can spare a little money I would be glad of a little check. Come on, I'll be worrying you, especially when you are so full up with business. I wish sometimes you had a regular berth here. Of course, the money would not be so big, but it would be certain and we could all be together. But I won't worry you, old boy. Much love from Teddy and from CHRIS.

"A woman," commented Foyle. "You'd better burn up the wires, Menzies."

"That's seen to. This is the other—"The bulls have tumbled to me. Have just dropped one in the cellar along with J. H., and am clearing in case his pals turn up. Am coming straight you know where and am sending this by messenger in case you are out. Come along and see me."

"There's no signature to that. It doesn't need one. I'm wondering how Hallett got these things and the pistol."

"I'm wondering," said Foyle, "how you got them from Hallett. Have you arrested him?"

Menzies met his chief's gaze steadily. "No, sir," he said over Foyle's face. "I can't do that. It's not advisable that he, as head of the department, should know exactly the methods by which a result has been obtained. Men with the experience and sagacity of Weir Menzies could be trusted not to endanger the reputation of the C.I.D. He ignored his lack of candor."

"Well, I suppose he'll keep. If the evidence doesn't crop up elsewhere we'll have to see what can be squeezed out of him in the witness-box. Don't you wish this was France, Menzies?"

FALLING IN LOVE

Of all the many strange and wonderful things in the world that we have ceased to realize are strange and wonderful just because they happen every day, I think there is no one more incomprehensible and more fascinatingly mysterious than the fact that a certain man falls in love with a certain woman (or vice versa) and cannot be happy (or thinks he can't) with any other person in the world.

But take some particular case of two engaged people and ask yourself why either should feel that the sunshine would be blotted out of his life if he or she couldn't have that perfectly nice but perfectly ordinary person for a mate, and you will perhaps get my angle on this.

What Difference Did it Make. The circumstances which brought this particularly before my mind was meeting a newly engaged couple. The man had wanted the girl for six months, and the woman had had been up against. He told us all about it, how he had made up his mind to marry her in spite of the other's headstart, and now he had bent his whole existence for two years to the task of getting her.

And all the time he talked I just couldn't help wondering—but why did it make such a difference to him, why couldn't he have taken someone else?

The Woods Are Full of Them. You see, although she was a perfectly nice, rather pretty girl, there are hundreds right in this town just as nice and just as pretty as she. Stevenson tells in his "Virginibus Puerisque" of a husband who "hears after marriage that some poor fellow is dying of his wife's love." What could so easily have got another. And yet that is a very happy union. But I'll wager the husband didn't think that way before marriage. One Can See How The Exceptional Person Does It.

One can understand how a surpassing beautiful or fascinating woman could arouse such a passion but how can a perfectly ordinary woman accomplish it?

But isn't it just splendid that they can? Think how such a feeling glorifies the whole world. No matter how poor they are, how pinched their existence, in each other's presence the lovers can find some magic that transforms the world—and that is the most beautiful.

Good Night N' Stories

LINDA AND KING SPIDER Linda sat on a stone eating a slice of bread and jelly. On the walk at her feet, little ants ran back and forth gathering up the crumbs as they fell.

One ant much smaller than the others ran from the edge of the walk. A big black spider jumped over to see what the spider would do. She felt tough on her cheek and at her side stood a brownie.

"Now you can hear what they say," he whispered, and Linda and King Spider listened. "The brownie became no larger than the spider's castle, and Linda and King Spider listened."

"So, I have you at last," said the spider, and he pulled the struggling Linda and the brownie pushed by him and entered the throne room. There sat King Spider on his golden chair with a silver crown on his ugly black head. Princess Ant lay at his feet.

"I don't want your crown! I want to go home!" she cried. The brownie whispered something in Linda's ear and Linda nodded her head.

"If you become my Queen you may live, but if you refuse, I'll send you to the castle ever gets out alive," said the King.

Linda shivered, but the brownie pulled her forward. "I heard, brave King, that your royal highness was in search of a Queen and I took the liberty of bringing the most beautiful maiden of Fairland for your approval."

Linda looked from Linda to the Princess. Then called his guards. "The Princess Ant into prison, for I have chosen this fairy maiden as my Queen," commanded the King, and the guards rushed in and would have carried the weeping princess away if the brownie hadn't touched Linda and changed her back into a little girl again.

Linda laughed to see King Spider and his attendants running for their lives, then she tore the spider castle from the grasses.

"Too bad we had to destroy his castle, but he was the worst enemy those little ants had and I'll probably teach him a lesson. One can't have everything one wants," said the brownie, and he disappeared.

Linda crumpled the bread and watched the little ants carry it away, for after the princess told them that the castle was torn down they no longer feared King Spider but came and went as they pleased.

WHAT DO YOU KNOW ABOUT THE MOON?

Neither Water, Air, Nor Any Life Can Exist Upon Luna. All the planets in the solar system with the exception of Mercury and Venus, are attended by satellites. Saturn has ten, in addition to his ring system, composed of a host of tiny moonlets. Jupiter has nine moons, Uranus four, Mars two and Neptune one, while our own planet, Earth, has a satellite which is in one respect comparable with those of the other planets. The ratio of its size to that of its primary far exceeds that of any other satellite. Its dimensions are quite comparable with those of the earth. Its diameter is about 2,160 miles. The earth's diameter is about 7,990 miles. Fifty moons would equal the earth in volume, although it would take eighty-one times the mass of the moon to equal the mass of our planet, as the lunar density is only six-tenths that of the earth. The entire surface of the moon about equals North and South America in area, though about 40 per cent of this surface we can never see, since our satellite always turns the same face toward us. Titan, the largest satellite of Saturn, has a diameter of 3,500 miles and is larger than the planet Mercury, but it would take 4,600 Titans to equal Saturn in mass. Anybody who has seen the planet Jupiter, is almost exactly the same size as Titan, but its mass must be increased 11,000 times to equal that of Jupiter. Neptune's moon about equals our own in size, but is a very tiny object compared with its primary, which has a diameter of 35,000 miles. The largest of the satellites of Uranus is only 1,000 miles in diameter and the two tiny moons of Mars are only about ten miles in diameter. Our own satellite is the most beautiful and interesting telescopic object and even when viewed with an opera glass, its apparent distance is reduced one half. With moderate instruments we may view it at an apparent distance of about 1,000 miles. The greatest telescopes make it appear sixty miles away, but we must remember such a view is by no means clear and distinct, for atmospheric imperfections are magnified as well. Even with moderate sized instruments, however, any lunar object a quarter of a mile in diameter is readily discernible, and with large instruments and a trained eye, and good atmospheric conditions, objects of the size of a large building could be detected. If large cities existed upon the moon very moderate instruments would show them. The question of life upon the moon is readily disposed of, for we know that there is neither air nor water there, though ice and snow may, and doubtless do exist in considerable quantities. The moon's period of rotation upon its axis is equal to its period of revolution around the earth. In other words it always turns the same face toward the earth and its days are a month long. Fourteen days of light are followed by fourteen days of darkness. During the lunar day the barren surface of the moon is exposed to the intensity of the solar rays, unmitigated by the protecting atmosphere. The temperature must rise during this scorching period as high as the boiling point, to fall during the long dark night, to the cold of the absolute zero of interplanetary space. Because of the absence of an atmosphere upon the moon there is no diffusion of light. Shadows are inky black and the stars above shine by day and by night in an inky sky. Stars that we need opera glasses to see upon the earth, may be readily seen with the naked eye upon the moon. The Milky Way, so dimly seen by us as a gorgeous spectacle in the lunar heavens. The solar corona and prominences are always visible as is also the zodiacal light. The planet Mercury, so elusive to our eyes, is easily observed from the moon. Both planets and stars shine far more brilliantly there against a perience for itself.—Isabel M.

THE TONG THAT BRINGS HEALTH

"Fruit-a-tives" Builds Up The Whole System. Those who take "Fruit-a-tives" for the first time, are often astonished at the way it builds them up and makes them feel better all over. They may be taking "Fruit-a-tives" for some specific disease, as Constipation, Indigestion, Chronic Headaches or Neuralgia, Kidney or Bladder Trouble, Rheumatism or Pain in the Back. And they find when "Fruit-a-tives" has been taken, that they feel better and stronger in every way. This is due to the wonderful tonic properties of these famous tablets, made from fruit juices. 50c a box, 6 for $2.50, trial size, 25c. At all dealers or sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa. Lewis. background that is always black. As regards the lunar landscape, even an opera glass shows us many features not visible to the naked eye. Extensive dark and light regions give our satellite its spotted appearance. The light portions are always rough and dark ones comparatively smooth. The latter surface has been termed maria or seas ever since the time of Galileo, who believed that grayish patches were really vast expanses of water. They are designated by such fanciful names as Sea of Clouds, Sea of Serenity, Lake of Dreams, etc. The most distinctive lunar features are the craters, numbered by the thousands and also incorrectly named for we naturally think of a crater as formed by volcanic origin, though this belief is still held by some astronomers. The larger craters which are often from fifty to 100 miles in diameter are usually comparatively shallow, about three miles or less in depth. Frequently a single mountain a mile or so in height rises from the centre of the crater, or the plain, as it is often called. It has been estimated that there must be fully 100,000 craters, ringed plains and craterlets of about 1,000 and 100,000 feet in diameter. These formations that make its face appear so pockmarked and scarred. A conspicuous crater, visible even to the naked eye, is Tycho, often called "the metropolitan crater of the moon." It lies near the south pole of the moon and has a diameter of over 2 1/2 miles and is nearly 17,000 feet deep. It has a central hill 6,000 feet high and is a typical lunar crater. It is also noted for its systems of rays or streaks. They extend over distances, nearly 2,000 miles in one case. Those surrounding Tycho emanate from its rim, and extend to the edge of the lunar landscape. They still remain one of the riddles of the moon, though according to those who believe in meteoric origin of the craters, they were caused by the splashing of some light colored material when an unusually large meteor struck the lunar surface. Supporters of this belief also point to the fact that large deposits of sulphur upon the moon's surface have been photographed in ultra-violet light. Several other craters are surrounded by these streaks. Copernicus, a crater a little northeast of the center of the moon, has a remarkable system of feathery streaks. Cliffs, or hills, as they are called, are also seen in large numbers upon the moon. They are often more than a hundred miles long, but are usually extremely narrow, often mere cracks in the surface, and are usually very high. Mountain chains also exist upon the moon, similar to mountain chains upon the earth, but much higher. The lunar Alps and Appalachians, with peaks running up to 20,000 feet in height. On the extreme southern edge of the moon, the two mountain ranges spoken of by the French Astronomer Flammarion as the "mountains of eternal light," for the sun never sets upon these peaks, one of which is 7,000 feet higher than Mount Everest. From the moon the earth appears about thirteen times as large as the moon does to us. From any point on the visible lunar disk it appears practically immovable in the sky, its attitude varying for different positions. The diurnal rotation of the earth would be clearly seen, as would also its continents and seas, polar caps, mountains and plains, its clouds and storms. It would exhibit all the phases that the moon does to us in the reverse order. Many theories of the origin of the moon have been advanced, but the most recent and most satisfactory one to present some difficulties. Our satellite furnishes us many unsolved problems. A belief in the meteoric origin of the moon is now quite general. According to this belief the earth was surrounded in the early stages of its existence by a ring of meteoric matter. The contracting force of the ring gradually gathered into one mass, our present moon, whose pitted face gives evidence of the bombardment it received from meteoric masses within the ring. According to this theory our satellite has always been a dead world, cold and lifeless mass of meteoric rock. It has never felt the pulse of life or undergone the mighty changes that have passed over its ruling planet. It has remained a cold and silent witness to vast evolutionary processes going on upon a neighboring world such as it could never experience.

SYNOPSIS OF CANADIAN NOVE

WEST LAND REGULATIONS

The sole head of a family, or any male over 18 years old, who was at the moment of the present war, and has since continued to be a British subject of an allied or neutral country, may homestead a quarter-section of available Dominion land in Manitoba,

Saskatchewan or Alberta. Applicant must appear in person at Dominion Lands

Agency or Sub-Agency for District. Entry

by proxy may be made on certain lands only. Must be 18 months residence upon and cultivation of land in each of three years. In certain districts a homesteader may secure an adjoining quarter-section of land. Price $200 per acre. Duties —reside six months in each of three years after entering homestead and cultivate 50 acres extra. May obtain pre-emption patent as soon as homesteaded land on certain conditions.

A settler after obtaining homestead gatting may take a purchased homestead in certains districts. Price $200 per acre. Must
