Coacine Ballucinations.

MM. Magnan and Saury report three cases of hallucination due to the cocaine habit. One patient was always soraping in its tongue, and thought he was extraoring from in little black worms; and the other made his skin raw in the endeavor to draw, out cholers microbes; and a third, a physician, is perpetually looking for coacine crystals under his skin. Two patients suffered from epiteptic attacks and a third from cramps. It is important to notice that two of these patients were persons who had resorted to coacine in the hope of being able to cure themselves thereby of the morphine habit, an expectation which had been disappointed. For more than a year they had injected from one to two grains of coacine under the skin, without, however, giving up the morphine injections, which were only reduced in quantity. The possibility of substituting cocainism in the endeavor to cure morphinomania is a danger, therefore, which must be carefully held in view.—British Medical Journal.

In a reading class which met in New York the other day the question was propounded:
"What are the ten elements necessary to happiness in a woman's life?" The answers were coviously varied, and the two here selected show how differently two women can regard a given subject: 1, no nerves; 2, a good digestion; 3, money galore; 4, self-satisfaction; 6, independent widowhood; 6, a capability for enjoyment; 7, the faculty of forgstring; 8, the knack of always saying the right thing in the right place, instead of thinking of its afterward; 9, to expect little from one's friends; 10, to die at 40. 1, a clear conscience; 2, perfect health; 3, congenial work; 4, some measure of success 5, a few tried friends; 6, to be considered attractive; 7, to retain forever a few illusions; 8, to be able to relieve soque of the misery one meets; 9, to be philosophical; 10, and keep from falling desperately in love.

To call and get what little's left. SOME OF THE " LET GO'S."

Words of Wisdom for Women

Household.

It is rather strange, when you came to think of it, how many little things are "let go" in the house, that really fret the inmates and add friction to the household machinery, which should run smoothly. Most of these "let go's" are in the kitchen. I might philosophize about that fact, but I will not, just now. A dull vegetable knife is one of these. The kitchen which contains a sharp one is the exception, yet it is very exasperating to perl potatoes or apples; out up beans, or slice turnips, with a knife as dull as a "hoe."

dippers, dripping-pans and sance-pans. Bits of rag drawn through the tiny holes, or flour-paste rubbed on the bostom te form a patch, are common devices for getting along with these let-go tins, instead of carrying them to the nearest inshop some morning and gesting them back whole and strong in the afternoon for a very small outlay of time and money. There is for eals, and I doubt not it is quite commonly mad, a certain kind of solder that the dealers claim can easily be used at home. I think I bought some once, but was not very successful in using it, probably from lack of skill. It in no way lessened my coavisition that tins should not be allowed to continue leaky, when time or service has made them so.

A clothes wringer that will not wring is another annoyance. Perhaps one of the rollers will not turn. We oil the gearing and fuse with it week after week, on washiday, and forget it the other days, all the time vaguely hoping it is only a "conniption fit," and the matter will "right itself," if only we wait long enough. It does not "right itself," and so the annoyance continues, the clothes are half-wrung or wrung by hand, when it would be, so easy to drop a postal to the man who tepairs wringers, and then have this cease to be a "let-go."

Dull soissors—who does not know them? Day after day some people "saw away" with such a pair, working their jaws meanwhile, and getting a "pain in their tempers," all because this is one of the "let-go." that has grown to be chronic. Inn't it queer? Why is its o? I only know it it queer? Why is its o? I only know it while, and getting a "pain in their tempers," all bocause this is one of the "let-go's" that has grown to be obronic. Isn't it queer? Why nit so? I only know it is, and that I rarely have a friend who visits me and uses my scissors fail to say, "Why, how nice and sharp your scissors are!" Also, I never go anywhere, taking my work, without being very sure my scissors are with it, because I know what I will meet, nine times out of sen, if I borrow scissors.

will meet, nine times out of sen, if I borrow soissors.

Another "let go" has a connection with tidies. Now, tidies are very nice things, and very saving to the furniture, if they are properly made and adjusted; but how few are! Most of them are "everlastingly falling off," and all because we fail to sew on little tapes for tying, or little tapes for tying, or little tapes for mining undamenth. We mean to each one of the fifty times we pick them up and lay them on the soft or chair; but somehow we let it go, and fret ourselves and others by so doing.

The weekly repairing of garments is almost a religious duty in some few homes; but in how many are the little rents and rips, the lest bustoms and hoots, the broken buttomholes and thin places in hosiery let go from time to time until nothing remains to be done but three waside the garments. "The settoh in time save nine" remark may be trite, but it is just as good as ever, and done but throw aside the garments. "The stitch in time saves nine" remark may be trite, but it is just as good as ever, and when I find a home where mending is one of the "let-go's" I feel very sure there is a sad lack of thrift, and so of certain moral qualities that go with it.—Good Housekeeping.

To Render a Cellar Dry.

A problem which the builder, owner and architect has to deal with every day is to render a cellar dry. This may be done in a variety of ways, which will depend fipon the circumstances currounding the case. One of the most effective means of keeping a cellar dry is so build an area wall around the whole of the site, so that earth does not rest directly against the walls of the house. To form such area a four-inch wall is built parallel to the main walls, and about two inches from them. The bottom of the inclosed space is formed into a guiter, so that any water that finds its way through the outer casing may have an opportunity of running away to the drains. The top of the cavity is usually covered in just above the ground line with a row of ornamental bricks, or sometimes with brioks laid on edge. When these means are adopted it is desirable that opening in the main wall should be provided for ventilation.—

Most of these "let go?" are in the kitchen I might philosophize about that fact, but I will not, just now. A dull vegetable knife is one of these. The kitchen which contains a charp one is the exception, yet it is very exasperating to perl potatoes or apples. In the first place, one begrudges the money for a fine steel knife "just to pare potatoes with," never stopping to think that the better the knife the cheaper it is for this sort of work. A sharp knife will pare thinner and waste less than a dull one, and will last longer. A good, small whet-stone should accompany it, with instructions to use it, and not the stovepipe, stove-edge or sole of the cooks aboo. There is an old saying that one of the few questions the devil cannot answer is: "What is a woman's whet-stone?"

Another annoyance is leaking tims of various kinds, notably, quart measures, dippers, dripping pans and sance pans. Oare of the Teeth.

At the meeting in Berlin last spring of the German Association of American Dentists, the best means of preserving the teeth were discussed, and Dr. Richter, of Breslau, said: "We know that the whole method of correctly caring for the teeth can be expressed in two words—brush, soap. In these two things we have all that is needful for the preservation of the teeth. All the preparations not containing soap are not to be recommended, and if they contain soap all other ingredients are useless except for the purpose of making their taste agreeable. Among the soaps the white castile soap of the English market is especially to be recommended. A shower of tooth preparations has been thrown on the market, but very few of which are to be recommended. Testing the composition of them, we find that about 90 per cent. are not only unsuitable for their purpos, but that the greater part are actually harmful. All the preparations containing salicylic acid are, as the investigations of Fernier have shown, destructive of the teeth. He who will uncessingly preach to his patients to brush their teeth carefully shortly before bedtime, as a cleansing material to use castile soap, as a mouth wash a solution of oil of peppermint in water, and to cleanse the spaces between the teeth by careful ase of a silken thread, will help them in preserving their teeth, and will win the gratitude and good words of the public."

The Length of the Day.

At London, England, and Bremen, Prussia, the longest day has sixteen and one-half hours. At Stockholm, Sweden, it is sighteen and one-half hours in length. At Hamburg, in Germany, and Danutio, in Prussia, the longest day has seventeen hours. At St. Petersburg, Russia, and Tobolak, Biberia, the longest is nineteen and the shortest five hours. At Tornes, Finland, June 21 brings aday nearly twenty two hours in length. At Chrismas one less than three hours long. At Warbury, Norway, the longest day lasts from May 21 to July 22, without interruption, that is to say the sun is never set in that time, and in Spitzbergen the longest day is three and a half months.

Do the Dying Suffer Pain?

The rule is that unconsciousness, not pain, attends the final act. A natural death is not more painful than birth. Painlessly we come; whence we know not. Nature kindly provides an anesthetic for the body when the spirit leaves it. Previous to that moment, and in preparation for it, respiration becomes feeble, generally slow and short, often accompanied by long impirations, and short, sudden expirations, so that the blood is steadily less and less slow and short, often accompanies of your inspirations, and short, sudden expirations, so that the blood is steadily less and less oxygenated. At the same time the heart acts with corresponding debility, producing a slow, feeble, and often irregular pulse. As this process goes on the blood is not only driven to the head in diminished force and in less quantity, but what flows there is loaded with carbonic acid gas, a powerful amesthetic, the same as derived from charcoal. Subjected to the influence of this gas the nerve centres loss consciousness and sensibility, apparent sleep creeps over the system; then comes suppor and then the end.—St. Louis Republic.

Coacine Ball MM. Magnan and Saury report three cases of hallucination due to the cocaine habit. One patient was always scraping his tongue, and thought he was extracting from it little black worms; and the other made his skin raw in the endeavor to draw out cholera microbes; and a third, a physician, is percetually looking for coacine out cholors microbes; and a third, a physician, is perpetually looking for coscine orystals under his skin. Two patients suffered from epileptic attacks and a third from cramps. It is important to notice that two of these patients were persons who had resorted to coacine in the hope of being able to cure themselves thereby of the morphine habit, an expectation which had been disappointed. For more than a year they had injected from one to two grains of coacine under the skin, without, however, giving up the morphine injections, which were only reduced in quantity. Contracts With Book Agents.

A Montreal despatch says: The value of printed condition contract forms, such as used by agents soliciting subscriptions for books, pictures, etc., has been established in the Circuit Court by Mr. Justice Gill. A number of people along the Ottawa Valley subscribed to "Picturesque Canada." The plan adopted by the agent was to obtain the signature of the subscriber to a printed form. In many cases the subscribers learned for the first time what the purport of that agreement was when they received a letter from the firm of Belden Bros., the proprietors of that publication, that suit would be entered to collect $21.60 from them unless they paid the amount at once. The publishers had inserted among the conditions one to the effect that the city of Montreal was the place of making the contract, and that therefore all the legal proceedings for the breach of the same were to be taken here. Messrs. Trenholme, Taylor & Buohan, for a number of subscribers, consested such a proceeding and saked Messrs. Belden Bros. to take a test case. After hearing the evidence the Court held that a condition such as shat in question in the present case was governed by the same principles as the conditions on the back of a railway ticket or bill of lading, that it did not bind without absolute proof being made by the plaintiff that the condition had been pointed out to the subscriber, and the latter had expressly agreed to the conditions.

The Human Bar.

Few people realize what a wonderfully idelicate structure the human ear really is that which we ordinarily designate so is, after all, only the mere outer porch of a series of winding passages, which, like the lobbies of a great building, lead from the world without to the world within. Certain of these passages are full of liquid, and their membranes are stretched like parchment curtains across the corridor as different places, and can be made to tremble like the head of a drum or the surface of a tambourine does when struck with a stick or with the fingers. Between two of these parchment-like curtains a chain of very small bones extends, which serves to tighten or relax these membranes, and to communicate vibrations to them. In the innermost place of all a row of white threads called nerves stretch like the strings of a plano from the last point to which threads inward to the brain. Dr. Cronin's Long-Delayed Funeral. Dr. Oronin's Long-Belayed Funeral.

A Chicago paper says: The mutilated remains of Dr. Cronin still repose in the black coffin in the dismal vault of Calyary semetery. No date has yet been decided upon for the final interment, but it will probably take place early in the spring. There will be a demonstration on the geossion that will probably exceed in magnitude the great outpouring on the day of the funeral. Delegations of prominent Irishmen from the leading otties in the gountry will participate in the proceedings.

He was addicted to the use of luqur, and in all probability was under its influence when the crimes were committed. The boy was instantly killed; the girl will die.

Investigating the West End Scandal.
A London cable says: The trial of Arthur Newton, the solicitor, Frederick Taylorson, his clerk, and Adolphus DeGalla, the interpreter, charged with conspiring to defeat justice in connection with the West End scandal, was continued yesterday. An ex postal messenger named Perkins testified that after he gave testimony to the police against Newlove, who took the witness to the house in Cleveland streets, and against Veck, who assisted in the management of the honese. Newton fried to induce him to go to Australis. Newton gaid he knew somebody who would give £20 down and a pound a week each for three years to Perkins, and the other poys, Wrighs, Swinscow and Barber, who had also given information to the police, if they would all emigrate together.

exoruciating pain, and last evening John Dall breathed his last. The physicians called in could not determine the character of the poison. A white powder was noticed in the first pot of coffee. John Schafer, a former employee of Dall, and a rival suitor for the hand of the servantmaid, was suspected as the guilty person. When the sheriff arrested him at Mokena to-day he tried to commit suicide with a razor.

Contracts with Book Agents.

A Montreal despatch says: The value of printed condition contract forms, such as used by agents soliciting subscriptions for books, pictures, etc., has been established in the Circuit Court by Mr. Justice Gill. A number of people along the Ottaws Valley subscribed to "Pictures of the subscriber to a printed form. In many cases the subscriber to a printed form. In many cases the subscriber to a printed form. In many cases the subscribers learned for the first time what the purport of that agreement was when they received a letter from the firm of Belden Bros., the propriestors of that publication, that suit would be entered to collect $21.60 from them unless they paid the amount at once. The publishers had inserted among the conditions one to the effect that the city of Montreal was the place of making the contract, and that therefore all the legal proceedings for the breach of the same were to be taken here. Messrs. Trenholme, Taylor & Buohan, for a number of subscribers, contested such a proceeding and asked Messrs. Belden Bros. to take a test case. After hearing the evidence the Court held that a condition such as that in question in the present case was shall in destination in the present case was bill of lading, that it did not bind without absolute proof being made by the plaintiff that the condition had been pointed out to the subscriber, and the latter had expressly agreed to the conditions. Disease Has Many Shapes.

A Baltimore despatch of Thursday says A patient received this evening at Johns Hopkins Hospital has animals in the shape of snakes living in his blood. He is from Charleston, S.C.. and has suffered from his disease for twenty years. Many times his blood has been examined under the microscope and the snake-shaped parasites have always been found. The blood has generally been drawn from a finger tip. It is said that only 25 cases of this disease have been reported in this country.

The Human Ear.

Few people realize what a wonderfully delicate structure the human ear really is that which we ordinarily designate so is, after all, only the mere outer porch of a series of winding passages, which, like the lobbies of a great building, lead from the world without to the world within. Certain of these passages are full of liquid, and their membranes are stretched like parchment curtains across the corridor at different places, and can be made to tremble like the head of a drum or the surface of a tambourine does when struck with a stick or with the fingers. Between two of these parchment-like ourtains a chain of very small bones extends, which serves to tighten or relax these membranes, and to communicate vibrations to them. In the innermost place of all a row of white threads osiled nerves stretch like the strings of a plano from the last point to which the termbling or thrillings reach and pass inward to the brain. A wonderful piece of mechanism, indeed!—St Louis Republic. A Horse Joke.

"Ha?" whinnied the horse. "We ought to be able to get out even though the stable door is locked. We have a key ere.

THE LABOR WORLD.

Sir Walter Scott's Delight in the Antics of the New Year's Eve "Guisers."

Sir Walter Scott loved all the old customs of Scotland and sought to perpetuate them. Among those in which he took especial delight was that of having the "guisers," or maskers, perform before his family on New Year's Eve. The guisers were generally boys who were able to sing and act. They donned old shirts belonging to their fathers, put mitre-shaped caps of brown paper on their heads, with sheets of the same paper covering the whole face except the eyes and mounth. Each guiser, like a knight of old, was attended by a sort of squire, who assumed the dress of a girl, with an old woman's cap and broomstick, and was called "Bessie." Thus attired they went from house to house, singing, performing rude and grotesque dramss, and playing all sorts of antics, in return for which they expected a small gratuity. When they attempted anything in the theatrical line they were generally from three to six in number. The kitchen was usually chosen as the areas for their sports, and thinker the whole family would resorts to witness them. Bir Walter Scott made is a rule to have a set of these maskers evening, and he never thought it beneath his dignity to manifest his delight in their performances. The custom still prevails in some parts of Scotland.

One of the Household Duties in Which xoung Wives Are Deficient. The Lamb in a New Role.

Mary had a little lamb, its fleece was white as anow; it strayed away one summer day where lambs should never go. Then Mary sat her down and tears streamed from her eyes; she never found it have held because she did not advertise. And Mary had a brother John, who kepts a village store; he sat down and smoked his pipe and watched the open door. And as the people passed along and did not stop to buy, John still ast down and smoked his pipe and blinked his sleepy eye. And so the sheriff closed him out, but still he lingered near, and Mary came to drop with him a sympathetic tear. "How is its sister, can you tell why—the other merichants here sell all their goods and thrive from year to year?" Remembering now her own bad luck the little maid replies:

Last week Mr. G. H. Cornell, agent for the School Supply Co., of Toronto, showed us samples of the class of maps he is selling. In tone, finish and accuracy of detail they were faultless. The map of the world shows all the ocean currents, lines of steamship travel and in short, everything that the most searching examination paper would require a student to know. The smaller maps, that of Ontario for instance, are very complete. All the new railways of Ontario are shown and the smaller bodies of water are very correctly outlined. These maps are just what schools require, as is evidenced by the many commendatory testimonies from teachers which Mr. Cornell has received. Those desiring to obtain maps or globes should call on or address Mr. Cornell at Delta.

Tast week Mr. G. H. Cornell as absent friends. Amid a shower of slippers and good wishes, Mr. and Mrs. Redmond started for Bellamy's station: where at 3 p. m. they took the portion. May health, wealth and happiness be their portion.

Grip begins its thirty-fourth volume with the New Year, which means that this brave little journal has celevated its seventeenth birthday. When we say—as we can without hesitation—that its ability both literary and artistic has been kept up to a uniformly high standard throughout this long period, and that to-day it is as bright as ever, we mention the fact exceedingly creditable, not only to the conductors of Grip, but also to the Canadian people, without whose appreciation and support this phenomenon impossible. We call it phenomenon
