Dr. Crippen to be Hanged

End of Celebrated Murder Trial Came on Saturday, Miss Le-Neve's Trial to Follow

London, Oct. 22—Dr. Hawley H. Crippen was today found guilty of having murdered his wife known on the stage as Belle Elmore. The case was given to the jury at 2.17 o'clock and the deliberations were brief. The jury was out just thirty minutes. Addressing the condemned man Lord Chief Justice Alverstone said: "You have been convicted on evidence which can leave no doubt in the mind of any reasonable man that you cruelly murdered your wife and then mutilated her body. I advise you to entertain no hope that you will escape the consequence of your crime. I implore you to make your peace with Almighty God."

A GRUESOME FIND BY SMALL BOY IN SUBURB OF MONTREAL

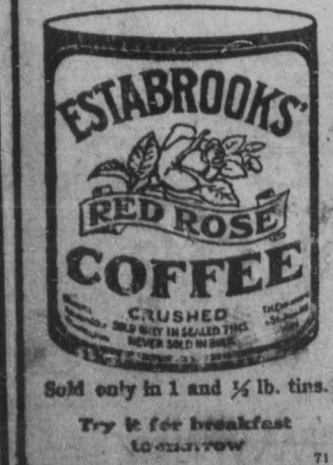

Montreal, Oct. 24—Yesterday afternoon the body of a girl was found by a small boy lying in some bushes in a vacant lot in the suburb of Westmount. The body had evidently been there for some time for the bones had been denuded of flesh by dogs or rats with the exception of the feet, which were protected by the boots. This morning the remains were identified by means of the clothing as those of Cecile Michaud, thirteen years of age. Following the identification the police immediately arrested Ludger Perriault, a saloon keeper, and Albert Chevrier, a bartender, out on bail, to stand their trial before the court of King's bench on a charge of abducting the girl. The charge against the two men is now murder. According to the evidence adduced at the preliminary hearing, Perriault and Chevrier on August 30th took the Michaud girl and her friend named Dagenais on an automobile trip, the party finally finding their way to a road house in Cote, St. Paul. The Dagenais girl returned home late that night, but Cecile Michaud was never seen again. On the story told by the Dagenais girl, her father swore out a warrant. The men claim that the Michaud girl left them at the road house and that they never saw her again. How she got from the road house to the place where the remains were found, a distance of over two miles, is a mystery yet to be solved. The police theory is that the men took the girl to the place and left her there.

FUNERAL OF GAVIN COPELAND.

The funeral of the late Gavin Copeland took place Thursday afternoon in St. James' cemetery. Rev. S. J. McArthur officiated. The pall bearers were Ex-Mayor Patrick Hennessy, Donald McGruar, David Creighton, James Falconer, John Brander and Wm. Ashford, Sr. There was a very large attendance. The Orangermen turned out in a body and the Orange ritual was read at the grave by Thos. Russell, W. M. of L. O. L. No. 47.

SCOTT ACT LID ON TIGHTER

Since the 15th instant—the day after the Sons of Temperance public meeting in the Temperance Hall at which the words of the speakers were unusually vigorous and pointed—it has been much harder to obtain a drink of the ardent at the places where it was so easily got for the last few months. Whatever moved the individual or individuals who were obstructing the enforcement of the Scott Act, the lid is now down pretty tight.

COUNTY COURT.

County Court closed on Thursday. In case of Thomas Daughave, accused was acquitted on one count and jury disagreed on the other. He was released on his own recognizance. Henry McKay was a defendant in a case of assault. He was acquitted on his own recognizance.

Big Blaze On Thursday Night

Three Buildings Burned with Loss of $2600. Prompt Arrival of Firemen Preventing An Appalling Disaster

At midnight Thursday fire broke out in the upper end of the barn of the Royal Hotel, owned by the Misses Gladys and Elsie Whitney and occupied by their uncle, Moses Whitney. In a few minutes the whole barn was in flames, which spread rapidly into a barn belonging to the McEvoy Hotel property and occupied as a livery stable by Edward Dalton. Policeman Hill noticed the blaze and gave the alarm about five or ten minutes after twelve, and the fire brigade, led in the absence of Chief Dickinson from town, by Frank Mason, were promptly on the ground and with most commendable presence of mind and swiftness poured streams of water on the burning buildings from all directions. Policeman Dickinson was early on the spot and gave valuable assistance, and many of the large crowd, which quickly gathered, lent their assistance to the firemen. In spite of all efforts the fire caught in the adjoining dwelling house, owned by Ex-Mayor Hennessy and occupied upstairs by James Murray and on the ground floor by John Fraser. The two barns were destroyed and the house badly gutted, the two families, however, saving their furniture. Mrs. Murray, who was thus suddenly compelled to vacate her premises, has been in very poor health for some time past. Had any wind been blowing, the two hotels, the residences of Mrs. McLean, Mrs. McNeil and doubtless many others would have been destroyed but the night was fortunately calm and the area of the fire was restrained within very narrow limits. On their barn which was worth $400, the Misses Whitney had no insurance. Moses Whitney lost a cow, three pigs, 150 bushels of oats, 4 or 5 tons of hay and much miscellaneous property, totalling some $300 or $400. The livery stable was worth about $300 and insured for $200. Mr. Dalton had no insurance on his personal property. He lost 200 bushels of oats, two tons of hay and about all his livery equipment except his twelve horses. He figures his loss, on which there was no insurance, at $1000. Mr. Hennessy's loss was $500; no insurance. There is no clue as to what started the fire. Mr. Whitney, on inspecting his property at about 10.30 p. m., noticed nothing wrong. When the firemen arrived, the water system worked splendidly. No one should begrudge paying his water rates to the town.

A SWORD FISHING CRUISE

Here we are stepping on board a New England fishing craft of from 30 to 60 tons registered, that has just hauled out of spring trawling. All the paraphernalia has to be changed. Warps of 100 fathoms in length attached to strongly built half barrels or put on board, together with a supply of poles and darts. Then a pulpit or stand is fitted firmly to the extreme end of the bowsprit and look-out stands built aloft. A month's provision is taken aboard and all remains to be done is to fill every available space in the hold with ice and we are ready for sea. It is well along toward the middle of June and time for going. Our course is shaped for the South Eastern part of the dreaded Georges, some two hundred miles to sea. It is on the edge of the bank, between 40.50 N. Lat. and 41.10. About all the ocean liners come on the bank at this point and many the sword fishing craft has been destroyed by these leviathans during a fog. Well, here we are coming on soundings and every man takes his station, for, although we are yet 60 miles from the fleet, a straggler may be sighted at any moment. At last the fleet is sighted and it is not long before our first fish is sighted sailing along with back fin and part of tail out of water. The mast-head man shouts his orders to the helmsman and as he comes under the pulpit receives a dart through his body. The warp goes spinning out of the tub and the cook throws this half barrel over which is taken hold of by a man in a dory, who is left to worry out his fish as best he can, while the vessel proceeds in search of more.

Aha! Here is a fellow that has been scared by another craft and is rather nervous, but there is a smashing breeze going and we get near enough to take a chance at him. He receives the dart in the head and then comes excitement 'to burn' for the doryman. The fish is crazy and rushes about in all directions, never leaving the surface, the doryman takes the buoy but just stands by the oars, ready to avoid being punched by his three feet sword in his mad rushes toward the dory, but he soon dies and if he is no too large is taken into the dory and the doryman looks around for another buoy. The fish are bunching up and the fleet are also. They go jibbing and tacking around each other and every little while you can hear the shouts of the crew, that imagines they have been taken advantage of by another craft. Well! Our day's fishing is over and we have a fair day's average, a dozen fish, weighing in the vicinity of 2500 lbs. As soon as our dories are taken in the fish are trimmed of their heads, fins and tail, scraped and scrubbed out, stowed away on top of the lower tier of ice, where they are filled up with chopped ice and this popular luxury with an ever increasing demand is ready for the retailer's knife. Our craft is then put under short sail, the watch of two men set and the rest turns in to "catch a kink," preparatory to begin another exciting day's fishing on the morrow. Yours for a fair wind home, A. J. A.

NEWCASTLE CHORAL SOCIETY'S SEASON OF 1910 1911

We are pleased to learn that the Newcastle Choral Society is about to begin the season's rehearsals. The date set for the first meeting has not yet been set, but will probably be some evening next week. The music for the coming winter's work is of a high grade, comprising the well known chorus, "The Song of the Vikings," by Eaton Fanning; Molloy's "Song of the Frijon" and the late Dudley Buck's beautiful arrangement of "Robin Adair." The program also includes Julius Becker's attractive Cantata, "The Gypsy." We understand that an effort will be made to organize a swell orchestra to accompany the cantata, and we sincerely trust this idea will be carried out. An orchestra in connection with the Choral Society will add immensely to the general interest. Now it is up to all the musical people of Newcastle to take hold and work hard to make our society a success. We have heard a great many good words for the work that was done last winter and we anticipate that the coming season will show a long stride forward. The society was somewhat handicapped last winter by a lack of male voices, but it is thought that this year will see a decided improvement in this respect. It will do no harm, however, if we urge on our male citizens, who can sing, the desirability of their joining the society. To those who have never taken part in an enterprise of this kind, we confidently predict that they, if they join early in the season, will be amazed at the progress that will result from regular attendance and a reasonable measure of devotion to the work. On behalf of the cause of the music, we bespeak the active interest of all the citizens.

Union of N. B. Municipalities

Discuss Tax Reform, Water Powers, Highways, etc. Mayor McMurdo Vice-President

The fifth annual meeting of the Union of N. B. Municipalities was held in Woodstock Wednesday and Thursday Oct. 19 and 20th. Newcastle Town Council was represented by Mayor McMurdo, Gloucester, by Councillor Henry Scott of Stonehaven and County Secretary Narcisse La-dry. Kent and Northumberland Counties and Chatham town sent no representatives. The rest of the province was well represented.

TAX REFORMS

A valuable feature of the convention was a paper by Mr. A. B. Farmer, Secretary of the Ontario Tax Reform League. He advocated legislation giving to municipalities the right to increase assessment values on land and lower values on improvements. The discussion which followed brought out the fact that in a number of Canadian cities the land or single tax system only is in force, while in a number of others the system is generally approaching the single tax idea. The subject had been finally referred to the Ontario Union for consideration. In Mr. Farmer's opinion, this is a question well worthy of consideration by N. B. Personally he was not in sympathy with our present system, and had for some time been of the opinion that our assessment laws retarded rather than encouraged our civic growth and development.

TOWN PLANNING

Town Planning and Embellishment was the subject of a most instructive address by Mr. Vivian, M. P., for Birkenhead, England. Among other things he strongly advocated that streets and town lots should be carefully laid out and water and sewerage systems put down in advance of buildings.

EXECUTIVE APPOINTED

Wednesday afternoon the following were appointed as Executive committee — Mayor McMurdo, Newcastle; Mayor Thomas Frederick; Mayor Jones, Woodstock; Coun. Siddall, Port Elgin; Coun. Henry Scott, Gloucester; Ald. Polleys, St. Stephen. Two hours were given to the discussion of the following resolution, moved by Ald. Potts, of St. John, seconded by Coun. Donovan, of St. John Co. Resolved that the government of New Brunswick be requested to pass a law in regard to taxation based on the principle of the raising of taxes in cities, towns and municipalities in the said province upon land and business licenses with a poll tax, provided however, that such law shall not be in force in any city, town or municipality until adopted by a popular vote or by a two-thirds vote of the members of the council of any such city, town or municipality. Coun. M. G. Siddall moved, seconded by Coun. Flewelling, the following amendment: Resolved, that this convention recommend to the government of this province the advisability of appointing a commission to inquire into and report upon an improved system of taxation in this province. Moved in amendment to the amendment by Dr. Sterling, of York, seconded by Mayor Armstrong, of St. Andrews, and carried, that the matter be referred to the executive for further consideration. $100 FOR CAMPBELLTON On Wednesday evening the Meeting endorsed Campbellton's application for federal and provincial assistance, and voted $100 to Campbellton relief fund. DETECTIVE BUREAU. On motion Coun. Siddall of Westmorland and Mayor McMurdo of Newcastle, the following carried unanimously: Resolved that this convention recommend to the Provincial Government the passing of an act for the establishment of a detective bureau, with police powers, for the province. ELECTION OF OFFICERS. The first business taken up Thursday afternoon was the election of officers, which resulted as follows: President, Dr. Sterling, of Stanley; vice-president, Mayor McMurdo, of Newcastle; secretary-treasurer, J. W. McCready, of Fredericton; executive, Mayor R. E. Armstrong, of St. Andrews; Coun. Henry Scott, of Stonehaven; Ald. F. L. Potts, of St. John; Coun. J. E. Williams, of Lakeville; Warden C. C. Campbell, of Sackville; Mayor C. H. Thomas, of Fredericton; Mayor D. Murray, of Campbellton; S. H. Flewelling, of Hampton; Dr. L. N. Bourque, of Moncton. It was voted that all ex-presidents by virtue of their office be members of the executive. Adjourned sine die.

"Very likely he didn't know we were coming," said his wife lily.

"Well, we'll look him up. Come along, everybody. Oh, I say, we can't leave this luggage unguarded. They say these fellows are the worst robbers east of London."

It was finally decided, after a rather subdued discussion, that Mr. Saunders should proceed to the bank and rout out the military representative of the British government. Saunders looked down the sullen line of faces and blanched to his toes.

"Tell him we'll wait for him," pursued his lordship. "But remind him, — him, that it's inexpressibly hot down here in the sun."

They stood and watched the miserable Saunders tread gingerly up the filthy street, his knees crooking outwardly from time to time, very much as if he were contemplating an instantaneous sprint in any direction but the one he was taking. Even the placid Deppingham was somewhat disturbed by the significant glances that followed their emissary as he passed by each separate knot of natives.

"I do hope Mr. Saunders will come back alive," murmured Bromley, her ladyship's maid. The others started, for she had voiced the general thought.

"He won't come back at all, Bromley, unless he comes back alive," said his lordship, with a smile. It was a well known fact that he never smiled except when his mind was troubled.

"Goodness, Deppy," said his wife, recognizing the symptom, "do you really think there is danger?"

"My dear Agnes, who said there was any danger?" he exclaimed and quickly looked out to sea. "I rather think we'll enjoy it here," he added after a moment's pause, in which he saw that the steamer was getting under way.

The Japa's company's tug was returning to the pier. Lord Deppingham sighed and then drew forth his cigarette case. "There," he went on, peering intently up the street. "Saunders is gone."

"Gone?" half shrieked her ladyship. "Into the bank," he added, scratching a match.

"Deppy," she said after a moment. "I hope I was not too hard on the poor fellow."

"Perhaps you won't be so nervous if you sit down and look at the sea," he said gently, and she immediately knew that he suggested it because he expected a tragedy in the opposite direction.

They expected every minute to hear the shouts of assassins and the screams of the brave Mr. Saunders. Their apprehensions were sensibly increased by the mysterious actions of the half naked loiterers. They made off in various directions, more than one of them handling his ugly creese in an ominous manner. Bromley was not slow to acquaint his lordship with these movements. Deppingham felt a cold chill shoot up his spine, but he refused to encourage the maid's fears by turning around.

"Your lordship," said Mr. Saunders three minutes later, "this is Mr. Bowles, his majesty's agent here. He is come with me to —"

It was then and not until then that his lordship turned his stare from the sea to the clerk and his companion.

"Aw," he interrupted, "glad to see you, I'm sure. Would you be good enough to tell us how we are to reach the — chateau and why the devil we can't get anybody to move our luggage?"

Mr. Bowles, who had lived in Japan for sixteen years, was a fortunately slow Englishman, with the curse of the clime still growing upon him. He was half asleep quite a good bit of the time and wholly asleep during the remainder.

"Everything is transferred by hand, my lord, and the chateau is two miles farther up the side of the mountain. It's quite a walk, sir."

"Do you mean to say we are to walk?"

"Yes, my lord, if you expect to go there."

"Of course we expect to go there. Are there no horses on the beastly island?"

"Hundreds, my lord, but they belong to the people, and no one but their owners ride them. The servants at the chateau turned Mr. Skaggs' horses out to pasture before they left."

"The servants, my lord."

Lady Deppingham's eyes grew wide with understanding. "You don't mean to say that the servants have left the place?" she cried.

"Yes, my lady. They were natives, you know."

"What's that got to do with it?" demanded Deppingham.

"I'm afraid you don't understand the situation," said Mr. Bowles patiently. "You see, it's really a triangular controversy, if I may be so bold as to say so. Lady Deppingham is one of the angles; Mr. Browne, the American gentleman, is another; the native population is the last. Each wants to be the hypotenuse. While the interests of all three are merged in the real issue, there is nevertheless a decided disposition all around to make it an entirely one-sided affair."

"I don't believe I grasp," muttered Deppingham blankly.

"I see perfectly," exclaimed his wife. "The natives are allied against us, just as we are, in a way, against them and Mr. Browne. Really, it seems quite natural, doesn't it, dear?" turning to her husband.

"Very likely, but very unfortunate. It leaves us to broil our brains out down here on this pier. I say, Mr. — er — old chap, can't you possibly engage some sort of transportation for us? Really, you know, we can't stand here all day."

"I've no doubt I can arrange it, my lord. If you will just wait here until I run back to the bank, I can say I'll find a way. I'm sure you'd prefer standing under the sun to —"

It was fully five minutes before he returned. "I'm sorry, my lord, but I can't do it. The bank is closed. I'll have to try and find a way to get you to the chateau."

"I'm sorry, my lord, but I can't do it. The bank is closed. I'll have to try and find a way to get you to the chateau."

"I'm sorry, my lord, but I can't do it. The bank is closed. I'll have to try and find a way to get you to the chateau."

anything I tell 'em to do when I represent the British army. This is the only uniform on the island, but they've been taught that there are more where this one came from. These fellows will carry your boxes up to the chateau, sir, and I've sent for two carts to draw your party up the slope. They'll be here in a jiffy, my lady."

Then, turning majestically to the huddled natives, he waved his slender stick and said: "Lively now! No loitering! Lively!"

Whereupon the entire collection of boxes, bags and bundles figuratively picked itself up and walked off in the direction of the chateau.

CHAPTER VI. THE CHATEAU.

THE road to the chateau took its devious way through the little town out into the green foothill beyond. Two lumbering wooden wheeled carts, none too clean, each drawn by four perspiring men, served as conveyances by which the arrivals were to make the journey to their new home.

Lady Deppingham's pert little nose lifted itself in disgust as she was joggled through the town behind the grunting substitutes for horseflesh. She sat beside her husband in the foremost cart. Mr. Bowles, very tired, but quite resplendent, walked dutifully beside one wheel; Mr. Saunders took his post at the other. The servants came along behind in the second cart. Far ahead, like hounds in full cry, tolled the unwilling luggage bearers. From the windows and doorways of every house, from the bazars and cafes, from the side streets and mosque approaches, the gaze of the sullen populace fastened itself upon the little procession. The town seemed ominously silent.

Most of the islanders have got three or four axes already.

At last they came to the end of the sunlit street and plunged into the shady road that ascended the slope through what seemed to be an absolutely unbroken though gorgeous jungle. The cool green depths looked most alluring to the sun-baked travelers. They could almost imagine that they heard the dripping of fountains, the gurgling of rivulets, no like paradise was the prospect ahead. Lady Agnes could not restrain her cries of delighted amazement.

"It's like this all over the island, your ladyship," volunteered Mr. Bowles, nipping his brow in a most unmillitary way, "except at the mines and back there in the town."

"Where are the mines?" asked Deppingham.

"The company's biggest mines are seven or eight miles eastward as the crow flies, quite at the other side of the island. It's very rocky over there, and there's no place for a landing from the sea. Everything is brought overland to Ararat and placed in the vaults of the bank. Four times a year the rubies and sapphires are shipped to the brokers in London and Paris and Vienna. It's quite a neat and regular arrangement, sir."

"But I should think the confounded natives would steal everything they got their hands on."

"What would be the use, sir? They couldn't dispose of a single gem on the island, and nothing is taken away from here except in the company's chests. Besides, my lord, these people are not thieves. They may kill people occasionally, but they are quite honest, believe me. And, in any event, are they not a part of the great corporation? They have their share in the working of the mines and to the profits. Mr. Wyckholme and Mr. Skaggs were honest with them, and they have been just as honest in return."

"I should think they'd be terribly poor," said Lady Agnes. "They look so wretchedly poor."

"My lady," said Bowles, "there are four poor men on the island — my lord, the three —"

"The three?"

"The three who oppose the bank — a poor fellow who has been driven out of the mines and the work he does, and —"

Besides these the party heard, but did not see, 13 bull moose and 5 cows. Mr. Holmes was sick most of his time in the woods. This shows that there is lots of sport awaiting the hunter in the vicinity of Bald Mountain. R-v. George Wood and William Weldon of Chatham returned Wednesday afternoon from a two days' hunting trip to St. Margarets. Mr. Wood brought down a fine moose with an antler spread of 63 inches from tip to tip. The head is a magnificent one and has 25 points with a pan measuring 15 inches. Mr. Weldon got a fox and both secured partridges. Dr. Willard and W. L. Watson of New York came out from the same region a few days ago. They had the same guide. They report seeing 27 moose, 4 deer and 90 caribou. Dr. Willard brought out a moose head with antlers spreading 56 inches, while Mr. Watson, who shot the first moose he saw and got only a small spread, got a very large caribou head with horns having 27 points. While visiting the lumber camps the other day, Ernest Sinclair shot from the hay shed at Cains Camp an old bear. This bear was a frequent forager at the camp on Mullins Stream, and the boys called him "Ben Stub" from the fact that his left fore paw had been taken off in a trap some years ago. He measured 7 feet 4 inches. He had no teeth, which testified to his great age. Ernest shot him through the breast and he went 200 yards before he dropped. Ernest took out lanterns and proudly brought the prey into camp. Dr. S. W. Dougherty and Mr. W. W. Wagner, of Philadelphia, returned from the woods a few days ago. They brought out a large bear, two buck deer, both having handsome heads and a number of grouse. Messrs. Dougherty and Wagner are enthusiastic over our woods as a fine hunting ground. They will return next season to hunt big game while Mr. Wagner will also include Miramichi in his fishing trip in June next. On their late expedition they hunted on the South Branch Renous with Duane Manderville and Howard Manderville as guides and Mark Ham-brook as cook for the party. All the foreign hunters register at Hotel Miramichi.

The Trade of Royalty. No advertisement is more valuable to a British tradesman than the royal warrant which allows him to place the royal arms over his place of business and describe himself as "purveyor by appointment to His Majesty the King." Each tradesman who has the royal custom must send in his bill at the end of the month. It is compared with his ledger account kept at Marlborough House and if correct is paid in the first week of the month. No discount is asked on any of the royal accounts, a tradesman who receives the royal custom is informed that he must supply goods at the lowest reasonable prices and there is never any attempt at bargaining by the official of the royal household. If a tradesman is thought to be making extortionate charges he simply loses the royal custom. Coal is supplied to Marlborough House by contract, the contracts being made for three years and the contractors paid in equal half yearly payments. Window cleaning, carpet cleaning and chimney sweeping are all done by contract and the glass frames of large pictures are also kept clean by contract. Servants' wages are paid monthly, the upper servants being paid by check sent to each from the Treasurer's Department. The King's accounts for clothes, cigars, brushes, gloves, hats, books and other personal articles are sent to his secretary, not the Treasurer, and are also paid monthly. King George always likes to see these accounts before they are paid and it was once a rule that they should be tallied by him before they were discharged.

UNIFORMITY

WHAT do we mean by uniformity in flour? We mean stability and dependability, every barrel like every other barrel, every baking like every other. Now, uniformity in flour comes only from eternal vigilance. It is the result of everlasting care and watchfulness at the mill. It can only be produced by the most advanced methods of milling and the most expensive up-to-date equipment. One of the many great virtues of is its absolute uniformity. It never varies. It is the same yesterday, today, to-morrow. Year in and year out it is always uniform, always the best, always invariable in results whether for Bread or Pastry. Royal Household Flour has to be uniform. It cannot be anything else. It is surrounded at every stage of production with the utmost care and watchfulness. The Ogilvie Mills are models of up-to-date equipment—the machinery is the most advanced and most expensive—the inspection laboratory and test baking departments are the most complete and scientific in the world. It has taken enormous Capital and the experience of a life time to achieve the absolute uniformity of Royal Household Flour. The watch, watch, watch and test, test, test which have made ROYAL HOUSEHOLD FLOUR the world's finest flour are your permanent safeguard as to quality. Royal Household Flour is best for bread, best for cakes, best for pies, best for all household baking. To be sure of uniform results in baking whether for bread or pastry—use Royal Household Flour and stick to it. Write for "Ogilvie's Book for a Cook." This book contains 125 pages of excellent recipes many of which have never before been published and will be sent free if you mention the name of your dealer.

Although the two hundred and fifty stories cost so little, they are not cheap stories. In variety of scene, diversity of incident, skill and truth in character-depicting, they cannot be excelled. The Announcement for 1911, beautifully illustrated, giving more detailed particulars of these stories and other new features which greatly enlarge the paper, will be sent to any address in Canada free with sample copies of current issues. ### TOWN CLOCK.

Some years ago considerable agitation was started with a view to having something in the way of uniform time on the Miramichi. The result was very beneficial, but conditions in this respect are not yet ideal by any means. We believe the time has come when Newcastle should have a town clock. Mostly every other town of any size in the Maritime provinces have something in the way of a public time-piece by which all its citizens are guided as to the correct hour, here we are entirely dependent on private clocks and watches, the Catholic Church bell three times a day, and an occasional telephone message from the I. R. C. Have the town people public spirit enough to get a town clock? Who'll head the agitation? There are at least three sources that might be tapped, Private Subscription, The Town Council, and the Dominion Government. We understand the late Conservative Government supplied one for Bathurst's Custom and Post Office. Why not the present Liberal Government do as much for Chatham and Newcastle? Where is the Board of Trade?

UNION OF N. B. MUNICIPALITIES.

That the Union of Canadian Municipalities and its branch the Union of New Brunswick Municipalities are doing excellent work and thoroughly justifying their existence and the trifling expense entailed in keeping them up will be evident to all who take the trouble to read the reports of their annual conventions and follow the doings of their executives between times. While each of the four annual gatherings of our provincial Union were full of interest, the fifth, held on the 19th and 20th instant, grappled with several of the important questions of the day and discussed them in a business-like and statesmanlike manner that cannot fail to have good results. The report of this Convention, which appears elsewhere in this issue, should be most carefully read.

The Union's decision upon expropriation of private lands for certain purposes, and in favor of the government retaining titles of water powers, was good. A provincial detective bureau should be of service. The declaration that highway roads have as much claim upon governmental subsidy as have railways was a sound one. The motion re sinking funds being made compulsory should have passed. Like the taxation question it may come up later. The question of pay for jurors is a live one and will likely come to a head at next meeting.

Most important of all the discussions was that on Taxation. Much good will come out of this. The Union took hold of the Assessment and taxation problem in a way that showed that its members had been doing some thinking. Though nothing definite was decided upon in the matter of legislation, the question will be warmly discussed between now and next meeting and will figure largely in next year's program.

The Northumberland and Chatham Councils are not to be commended for their refusal or neglect to send delegates. They should be as interested in the affairs of the Union as is the rest of the province.

The Town of Newcastle will greatly appreciate the honor of having the vice-presidency of the Union brought home by Mr. J. H. Worship, who attended the annual meeting and took part and sympathized in the proceedings, having recently earned his laurels.

THE SPLIT IN QUEBEC.

The so-called Nationalist Party of Quebec, led by Henri Bourassa, seems to have definitely gone into opposition to the Liberal Party led by Sir Wilfrid Laurier. The Nationalists have put a candidate of their own in Drummond and Arthabaska against the Liberal nominee.

F. D. Monk the Conservative leader in Quec, who, like Mr Bourassa, agrees with his English speaking associates only when it suits him and cannot be depended upon by them in any emergency, is campaigning for Bourassa's Candidate. Messrs. Bourassa and Monk are bitterly opposed to the organization of a Canadian Navy, on which question they agree neither with Sir Wilfrid nor Hon. R. L. Borden. Mr. Bourassa also assails Sir Wilfrid because, in his estimation, Sir Wilfrid has not sufficiently favored the French speaking people of Canada. And Mr. Monk, in a recent speech, declared that a war between Germany and Great Britain would have no practical interest for Canadians. It seems that the purpose of the two leaders is to separate both Liberal and Conservative Frenchmen from their fellows of other Nationalities and form a new political party that will be solidly French and opposed to any closer relations with Britain than those we have at present. Although the French number but thirty per cent. of our population, such a party could in the event of the English speaking peoples being equally divided exert a great influence. Such a revival of extreme sectionalism would be a great obstacle to Canadian progress. It is to be hoped that wiser counsels will prevail and that Canada will not permit herself to be divided into hostile French and British camps.

TAXATION IN NEWCASTLE.

Reform in the system of taxation has been a live question in Newcastle for more than three years. The UNION ADVOCATE (then edited and managed by H. H. Stuart) editorially demanded in its issue of March 6th, 1907, such changes in the methods of assessment as would ensure that "Those who will not build upon their land, but persist in holding it for a rise in price, should be so heavily taxed that they would be compelled to improve their property at once or sell it to those who would do so. On the other hand, an improved property should be taxed much lighter than at present—no penalty should be attached to honest industry."

The above idea being evidently new in Newcastle, although much to the front in Australasia, Great Britain and Western Canada, no action was taken upon it for nearly a year. But on January 16th, 1908, Aldermen Belyea and Morrissey gave notice of, and on the 19th of the following March introduced, a motion which read as follows:

"That at the next session of the Provincial Legislature this Council apply to have a special act passed to regulate taxation in the Town of Newcastle, as follows:

"Incomes up to $400 to be exempt.

"Buildings and other improvements on Real Estate to be assessed at one-third their actual value.

"All personal property, incomes above $400, and all real estate, with the above named exceptions, to be assessed at full value as the law as present directs."

to the Legislature. Ald. Belyea however, to whose care the preparation of the bill was entrusted, did not have it ready to submit to the Council until the meeting of May 21, 1908. By that time there had been a new town election, and several of those who favored the bill had been defeated. In the new Council the radical change in taxation was defeated by the casting vote of Mayor Miller who had always been opposed to the idea, but whose opposition in the previous Council had been ineffectual. So the measure failed to reach the Legislature at Fredericton. For some reason or other Ald. Belyea did not reintroduce the question in last year's Council, and none of the Aldermen have brought it up in the present Council.

Assessment reform was, however a prominent plank in Mr. Stuart's Aldermanic platform in the elections of 1909 and 1910, his vote substantially increasing each year, until in 1910 it was 48 per cent. of the total polled.

Since 1908 the British parliament have made very important changes in their system of assessing land values, and those changes, which were all along the lines indicated above, were endorsed in 1910 by the majority of the electorate at the general election. And the new government of Australia, with the apparent endorsement of the people, is now putting into effect all over that continent a system of assessment as drastic as that recommended by the UNION ADVOCATE in 1907. The taking up of the matter by the New Brunswick Union of Municipalities is a promising sign of the times, and by next year its executive will in all probability have given the matter thorough study and arrived at definite conclusions. The presence on the executive of Mayor McMURDO, who took a prominent part in the discussions of 1908 and whose voice was decidedly against the old system of assessment but in favor of caution in deciding upon a new plan, should ensure the thorough thrashing out of the matter. The old system has run its course, and let us hope, we have seen the dawning of a new and brighter day in Municipal government.

Anæmia is simply a lack of blood. It is one of the most common and at the same time most dangerous diseases with which growing girls suffer. It is common because the blood so often becomes impoverished during development, when girls are too frequently allowed to over-study, over-work and suffer from a lack of exercise. It is dangerous because of the stealthiness of its approach, often being well developed before its presence is recognized, and because of its tendency to grow so steadily worse, if not promptly checked, that it may run into consumption.

The value of the tonic treatment with Dr. Williams' Pink Pills should be known to every mother in the land. These Pills make new rich blood, tone the organs and nerves, bring a glow of health to pale, sallow cheeks, and drive away the weakness, headaches, faintness, heart palpitation and loss of energy so noticeable in young girls who are suffering from anæmia. To all such Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are an actual life saver. Miss Mabel McTavish, Prince Albert, Sask., says: "In my case I can only say that life had lost its magic; all work was a trial, and even pleasure only a task. When I went up a flight of stairs I was ready to drop from sheer weakness, and I had begun to think life would be a continued burden. But all this is now changed, thanks to Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. These were recommended to me, and after taking them for about a month I found my health renewed. I could sleep better, my appetite returned, and I was so strong and well that housework was no longer a burden to me. My sister seemed to be going the same way last summer and Dr. Williams' Pink Pills were at once sent for and two boxes made her as well as ever. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills are now the prized medicine in our home, and doctor bills have been fewer since we discovered the virtue of this great medicine."

Send for medicine doctors or send for $1.00 a box or six boxes for $2.50 from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

WELCOME WORDS TO WOMEN

Women who suffer with disorders peculiar to their sex should write to Dr. Pierce and receive free the advice of a physician of over 40 years' experience—a skilled and successful specialist in the diseases of women. Every letter of this sort has the most careful consideration and is regarded as sacredly confidential. Many sensitively modest women write fully to Dr. Pierce what they would shrink from telling to their local physician. The local physician is pretty sure to say that he cannot do anything without "an examination." Dr. Pierce holds that these distasteful examinations are generally needless, and that no woman, except in rare cases, should submit to them.

Dr. Pierce's treatment will cure you right in the privacy of your own home. His "Favorite Prescription" has cured hundreds of thousands, some of them the worst of cases.

It is the only medicine of its kind that is the product of a regularly graduated physician. The only one good enough that its makers dare to print its every ingredient on its outside wrapper. There's no secrecy. It will bear examination. No alcohol and no habit-forming drugs are found in it. Some unscrupulous medicine dealers may offer you a substitute. Don't take it. Don't trade with your health. Write to World's Dispensary Medical Association, Dr. R. V. Pierce, President, Buffalo, N. Y.,—take the advice received and be well.

NOT QUITE A RECORD Our contemporary, the Fredericton Gleaner, quoting from the Chatham Gazette, describes a moose head, secured by Rev. S. W. Wood, which had a spread of 63 inches, as a "record head." This is not quite a fact, as we showed in our issue of the 11th inst., Alfred Harquail of the Dalhousie Lumber Co., secured a head with a spread of 64 3/4 inches, which, so far as is known at present, is the record of the season.
