MABEL HOWARD, OF THE LYRIC.

"It had been always an understood thing that Beverley at least should pass on to the Coverdales; that had been a bargain in consequence of some chopping and changing of land between them, hadn't it?"

"It had been," said Mr. Barrington, "but Mr. Godfrey Knighton denies it, and declines to admit any such claims."

"I know, and I for one wouldn't press it! Let him take them, all I know, Beverley and every other here! I wouldn't accept a rood from the man who declared that the name of Coverdale stuck in his nostrils. (Stop!) and he stopped in his pacing up and down, and colored. 'I'm going too fast! I don't like him, but I've nothing against him. I suppose it is because I was brought up to dislike him. But, as I say, I have nothing against him. I saw him once, a stern, hard man with a frown, and a harsh voice. I've heard that his daughter takes after him."

Mr. Barrington looked up with surprise. "Indeed!" he said. "Who told you that, my lord?"

Lord Coverdale frowned with self-denial. "You're quite right, Mr. Barrington," he said. "I ought not to have spoken of a lady in that way, especially of a lady whom I don't know. But, at any rate, I have not heard the most brilliant account of her, and my informant was one whom I could trust—would trust with every inch of confidence I've got!"

He spoke so emphatically that the lawyer looked up curiously. "I can't imagine where you got that idea of Miss Knighton," he said thoughtfully. "She always struck me as being a most charming young lady."

Lord Coverdale laughed. "Never mind," he said, "don't let us discuss it. Poor girl! I pity her with such a father! I suppose she will be very rich?"

"Very rich, indeed," assented Mr. Barrington. "The Knighton and Beverley estates are large, and Godfrey Knighton has not lived up to half his income. It would be impossible for him to have done so, seeing the quiet and retired life he has been leading for the last fifteen years. I am afraid he is not a happy man."

Lord Coverdale shrugged his shoulders. "Most unhappy, I should think, from all I have heard. But the poor fellow lost his wife soon after his marriage, did he not?"

"Yes; and she died giving birth to Miss Knighton," said the lawyer. "At least, I believe so. I do not know; indeed, I don't think any one knows anything about her or their married life."

"Poor woman!" said Lord Coverdale.

CHAPTER VII. A SILKEN SCARE.

Iris's worst enemy could not, with justice, have called her sentimental. She had lovers by the score, but she had never bestowed a thought upon them; even Clarence Montacute she would have liked much better if he hadn't been so devotedly attached to her. She was perfectly happy and content; she was a first-rate musician, she could paint tolerably well, could ride and swim, and knew more about books than ninety-nine out of a hundred of her sex.

In a word, she was a clever—as well as a beautiful—girl, and clever girls are not sentimental.

And yet she could not get the remembrance of her adventure with the bull in the Holt fields out of her head.

All the morning, while Signor Ricardo was listening to the conversation between Lord Coverdale and his lawyer, Iris was thinking of the handsome young stranger she had met the previous day. She tried not to think of him, to efface the whole business from her mind, but the effect was a vain one.

There was some excuse for thinking of him, for, after all, young ladies are not in the habit of saving a man's life every day in the week. But he haunted her in a way she could not understand, and in a fashion that annoyed her.

She found herself recalling even the features of his face, the golden-brown hair, the frank and really handsome eyes, the tone of his voice, and the short laugh which had accompanied some of his speeches.

Once during the morning she went to the writing-table, and, unbuttoning a drawer, took out the scarf she had hidden back for. It was only an ordinary necktie, but it seemed to possess a strange value in her eyes, for though she determined to throw it away, and even opened the window, she ended by replacing the scarf in the drawer, and locking it away again carefully, as if it were a treasure or a relic.

It was certainly the first thing belonging to a man she had treasured in this way. Men had given her costly bouquets, in the fond hope that she might preserve them, and she had thrown them aside, and left them to be swept away by Felice. But this plain and very ordinary blue silk scarf she locked away in her drawer.

She had spoken to no one of her adventure, not even to her father, though she had twice begun to tell him and been interrupted by him, and the fact that she had not done so made the thing more important and secret than it would otherwise have been.

All the morning she tried hard to efface the affair from her mind; she sang and played, but his voice, his face, floated between her and the music, and insinuated themselves in the harmony.

So thoroughly did the memory of the young man she had saved absorb her that she almost forgot the strange visitor, Signor Ricardo. She did write to her friends, the Coverdales, but it was with an effort, and even so she wrote, the handsome eyes of the stranger got between her and the note paper and confused her.

Felice, as was her custom, hovered about the rooms, and her sharp eyes noticed her young mistress's abstraction.

"Is the signorina not well?" she said once, as Iris lay back in a specially luxurious chair, and with hands clasped before her, and Iris had started and colored faintly as she replied: "Well? Of course I am well. Why did you ask, Felice?"

"I thought you looked pale and distressed, miss Iris," said Felice.

Iris got up and drew her dark brows together, still more annoyed with herself.

"I think I am bored this afternoon, Felice," she said.

"Yes, miss," was the answer. "You seem as if you could not settle to anything. Why does not the signorina go out? It is a lovely afternoon."

"I think I will," said Iris. "Tell Fenn I will have Snow. He need not come with me."

"Is it safe for the signorina to ride alone so much?" said Felice, pausing at the door.

The question was put in the most respectful tone, in the manner of a servant who loved as well as served, and the dash which mounted to Iris's brow was not that of resentment or anger.

"What nonsense, Felice!" she said, with a laugh. "Do you think Snow will throw me off, or run away with me? Why, I have ridden ever since I was able to sit upright on a pony, and Snow is the best-tempered horse in the world."

"It is not that. I know the signorina rides well," said Felice; "but it is not usual for ladies to ride unattended, is it, Miss Iris?"

Iris smiled and raised her head, with the touch of Knighton pride in her eyes.

"In the parks, in London, it certainly is not," she said; "but here—why, however far I go, I seem to be at home. There is not a man or woman for miles around who does not know me. It is just like being in the Revels grounds. Why should I drag Fenn after me?"

Felice said not a word more, but, inclining her head, glided out.

Nearly One Hundred Million Short in six months--Curzon Writes French Premier--Canadian Anglican Synod Approves Church Union--Conference on Irish Affairs Adjourned.

HUGE TRADE DECLINE.
OTTAWA, Oct. 14. During September as compared with September a year ago, the total value of Canadian trade declined over ninety two million of dollars. For the six months ending September in comparison with the corresponding period of the previous year the decline was over half a billion dollars.

CREDIT GUARANTEES INCREASED.
LONDON, Oct. 14. Britain's unemployment crisis has been responsible for notable demonstrations in London, Sheffield and Manchester. More than twenty thousand unemployed participated in the London demonstration, which lasted from mid-afternoon until after dark yesterday, but which, owing to exceptional preparatory measures by the police passed off with only a few hands broken and some windows smashed. Proposals for improving Great Britain's Export Trade by a credit system have been approved by the Cabinet Committee on unemployment, including the allocation of twelve million pounds to banks, which will act as Government agents, says the Evening Standard. The guarantees to Traders, exporting to certain countries, will be raised from fifty per cent. of the value of the goods exported to seventy-five per cent.

CANARDS AND CONFERENCE.
LONDON, Oct. 14. Adjournment to-day of the Irish conference until next Monday afternoon had no political significance, it was understood to-night. Postponement of the sittings of the conference, which aims at the solution of the Irish Question, was attributed by Sinn Fein delegates to the "Englishmen's passion for week ending." Considerable currency was given here to-day to a sensational report of the ordering of uniforms for the Irish Republican Army and the formation of a company to come to London to escort the Daily delegation back to Ireland upon the conclusion of peace. The story, however, was ridiculed by Sinn Fein leaders, who say no uniforming of the army is going on and that there is no question of any detachment coming to London at any time.

AN IMPROBABLE STORY.
LONDON, Oct. 14. The diplomatic correspondent of the Daily Herald claims to have heard on "very good authority," that Lord Curzon has written the last few days to Premier Briand advising the French Government on no account to enter into any relations with the Russian Government, and declaring that there is a good possibility of a new concerted effort being made to overthrow the Soviet Government.

ANGELICAN SYNOD AND UNION.
HAMILTON, Oct. 14. The lower house of the Anglican General Synod last night followed up its acceptance of the Lambeth Appeal by appointing its section of a Joint Union Committee which is to arrange for a conference with other communions in Canada on the question of Church Union.

IRISH CONFERENCE TILL MONDAY.
LONDON, Oct. 14. Conference of the British Cabinet convened at eleven o'clock this morning in Lloyd George's official residence, with the view of reaching an agreement for a settlement of the Irish Question, and adjourned at 10 o'clock this afternoon until 3:30 on Monday.

A GHASTLY JOKE.
TORONTO, Oct. 14. Rev. Ben Spence of the Dominion Alliance says that liquor legislation in Ontario regarding the granting of prescriptions by a doctor is "a ghastly joke," and that the license commissioners are helpless before the law. He says the alliance will press to have the law changed at the next session of the Legislature.

THE BATTLE OF PICCADILLY.
LONDON, Oct. 14. Information obtained by police emissaries several weeks ago that noon yesterday had been fixed for the beginning of "revolution" under the Communist banner, accounted for the unprecedented preparations for dealing with any emergency by Scotland Yard, it was learned to-day. After what the Daily Herald, the Laborite organ terms, the "Battle of Piccadilly" yesterday, when hundreds of mounted and foot police charged into crowds of unemployed demonstrators and bruised a few heads, all was quiet to-day. There were only a few idlers in Trafalgar Square which yesterday was rimmed by hundreds of police. Scotland Yard authorities expressed the belief that there is little danger of an early recurrence of yesterday's scenes. Inquiry to-day elicited the fact that yesterday's police preparations included commandeering of the Metropolitan underground railways and omnibus lines if found necessary, which would have enabled the conscription of 15,000 at any trouble centre within half an hour. Last Wednesday on the eve of the monster demonstration, the unemployed of one of the London suburbs were addressed by a leader who told them, "you must not break your lines to get drinks. Take a bottle of water with you." When asked by one of his hearers what should be done with the bottles the leader winked and said, "I don't care how you get rid of the bottles." He then added, "You probably will have a long walk and will be on your feet a long time so take with you a good stout stick it may be useful." After the clash with the police yesterday in Shaftsbury Avenue a number of pieces of iron bars with sharpened ends, made into the form of a pocket weapon, many bits of lead and other missiles were found on the pavement and inside of the shops where windows were smashed. The police quietly kept "an ear in," at all of the meetings held by the unemployed. Throughout the Metropolis are these listeners frequently dressed carelessly in the guise of unemployed.

MCGILL'S CENTENNIAL.
MONTREAL, Oct. 14. Completion of its first hundred years as an educational institution was fittingly celebrated yesterday by McGill University in the conferring fifty-five honorary degrees, and addresses by four distinguished recipients including Baron Byng of Vimy, Governor General of Canada and Sir Auckland Geddes, British ambassador to Washington, speaking by arrangement for the whole at a convocation held in St. James Methodist Church.

Shipwrecked Crew Arrives.
SPENT ONE NIGHT IN OPEN BOAT. Upon the arrival of the tug Ingraham yesterday afternoon with Capt. Anderson and crew of the Norwegian steamer "Royal," wrecked at Chance Cove on Tuesday night, they were met by Consul Tasker Cook and conveyed to King George V. Institute. According to members of the crew, the Royal struck the rocks at 9 p.m. Tuesday in a dense fog, whilst steaming at half speed. Although the engines were reversed the ship did not move, and as a heavy sea was breaking on the land it was seen that she was doomed. Within an hour the holds became flooded. Preparations were then made to leave the wreck, the boats were provisioned, and at 11:30 p.m. the crew got away. Capt. Anderson being the last to leave. The crew were unable to save any of their belongings, and the weather being cold and damp the shipwrecked mariners spent an uncomfortable time as they drifted about in the open boats waiting for daylight in order to make a landing, which was made near Cappahayden. New Rector Arrives.

Induction Service To-morrow Morning

Rev. E. C. Barr, the new Rector of St. Thomas's Church, who arrived from England yesterday by the Digby, will be inducted on to-morrow Sunday by His Lordship Bishop White. The induction service will be at 11 a.m., and Rev. Canon Jeeves will be the preacher. At the evening service the new Rector will preach. Anthems will be rendered during both services, and the soloists will be Mrs. S. Churchhill and Miss E. Stirling. A reception will be held in the Canon Wood Hall on Tuesday evening when the members of St. Thomas's congregation will be given an opportunity of meeting Rev. Mr. Barr.

School Football.

The first game of the Inter-Collegiate football series for 1921 was played on St. George's Field this afternoon, but up to press-hour had not been concluded. The competing teams are the Pelicans and the Methodist College. Both sides are very evenly matched and the contest should be spirited. St. Bon's has won the championship for several years, and the other two colleges intend to attempt to spoil their record this season.

Another Lame Duck.

The Norwegian steamer "Otta," which is being towed to this port by the "Canadian Trooper," reported yesterday at noon that she was 240 miles east of St. John's, and was making fair progress. The ships should, under the circumstances, arrive here tomorrow. The Furness Withy Co. are agents for the "Otta" and also for the American steamer "Dixiano" which is in port for repairs to her propeller.

Comparison in Prices.

We all think it a terrible hardship to pay twelve dollars a barrel for flour and so it is compared with pre-war prices, but our people here have no adequate conception what a struggle it is for our customers in Italy and Greece to pay for our fish.

Take shore fish at seven dollars a quintal here and add the cost of the freight and charges to take it there. It means at the very least about ten dollars delivered there. Our customers have to pay for it by remitting money to London.

In Italy the lire is reckoned at a little less value than a shilling or in normal times twenty-five lire to make one pound sterling in London. At the present time the Italian Exchange costs over seventy lire to make one pound sterling in London.

In Greece the drachma is in normal times 25 to one pound sterling, but to-day the Greek Exchange requires over 90 to make one pound sterling.

It can be readily seen that it takes three to four shillings in Italian or Greek money to make one shilling to-day in English money at London, so that $10 fish costs them $30 to $40 per quintal.

We think it a terrible hardship to pay $12.00 per barrel for flour but if we had to remit $3 to $4 for every one dollar in payment it would mean that our flour would cost us here $36 to $48 for every barrel we import.

That is what the Greeks and Italians are up against, and no wonder they complain of the hard times.—Trade Review.

"Ladies" and Cigarettes.

Common rumour now hath it that the habit of cigarette smoking has become very common among ladies in this Halifax town of ours. We are sorry to hear it. Somehow when we see the cigarette between the lips of some unkept, unwashed little street urchin, the idea of harmony between the article and its surroundings is always present. When we see the same thing projecting from the demure mouth of a pretty girl the picture is so inharmonious as to nauseate. The greatest charm of womanhood is that of being different from men, not in being like them; different in garb, different in voice, different in the finer points of etiquette; and in a thousand other ways. The nearer the fair sex come to sensible men in any custom, habit or appearance, the further they are from that ideal of womanhood which all good and true men worship or admire; for men admire women not because they are like them, but because they are different from them. Nothing that is masculine about women has any attraction for the opposite sex, but rather inspires repulsion. Men desire women to be different from themselves, to be gentler, finer, daintier, better, and it is safe to say that, if the women of the race should fall to the level of men in habit and behaviour, the future generations of the race will suffer as a consequence. Smoking is no refined accomplishment even in man. In women it is coarse to the point of repulsion.—Acadian Recorder.

"Dhual Ayran."

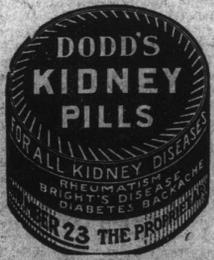

Many people are unable to pronounce correctly the familiar words "Dall Eireann," the sittings of which are now of universal interest. To gain a helpful phonetic rendering, a Daily Mail reporter made many inquiries recently.

Mr. Art O'Brien, the president of the London Committee of the Irish Self-Determination League, said the task was impossible of a satisfactory solution by the aid of English characters. He would not attempt it. Referring to the word "Dall," he said that the "d" was soft, "a" was sounded like the "a" in awn, the "l" being slender. In "Eireann" he compared the first letter to "ay."

After some hesitation a second Gaelic speaker said that "Dhual Ayran"—the "an" being pronounced like "aw" in awe—was the nearest approach to an English rendering he could suggest.

The meaning of the word "Dall" in Gaelic is a gathering or council, and Eireann is the genitive of Eire (Ireland.)

Salmon Shoot Rapids.

Salmon became very timid when they are going up the river at "spawning" time, and it is quite easy to get near to them.

The fish swim very close to one another. If one of them happens to get too much in advance, another will chase after it, grab it by the tail, and haul it back.

During the spawning there is a good deal of fighting amongst the males, and it is a curious fact that the male fish grows, at this time, a large hook-like projection on the lower jaw.

When a hen salmon is spawning she turns on her side, from time to time, scooping up the gravel of the river bed with her tail, thus covering the spawn as it is dropped. The cock fish, meanwhile remains beside her and fertilizes the spawn.

Another interesting fact is that when salmon are going up a river, they nearly all have a white patch on their noses, where they have hit themselves against rocks, when attempting to leap some rapid or small waterfall.

Professor Seton in "Wanderings of a Naturalist," points out that the fish must hurt themselves a good deal when attempting these leaps, as they sometimes lose direction and fall with a thud on to a rock.

The fish which seem to be most successful in gaining the high and calm waters are those which bore their way through rapids, instead of making many and often fruitless attempts to leap them.

Useless Wine Glasses.

New York, Oct. 9. (Associated Press)—Thin, glistening wine glasses, hundreds of dozens of them worth thousands of dollars, are stored away in the big hotels of New York, and the stewards don't know what to do about it. Some few have been sold and others given to friends of the hotels, who, it was asserted, were able to employ the gay glassware as it was intended it should be used. But prohibition made the glassware useless for the hotels, most stewards feeling it dishonorable to past memories, to serve ginger ale and impotent grape juice in the fine old wine glasses. A Fifth Avenue hotel announced it had written off $109,000 on glassware at its after-prohibition inventory, and others estimated their idle drinking accessories at sums almost as high.

French Competition.

Other sealing masters think of it. Catching seals on trawls set from dories has nothing on the new method, which proved so successful (?) last Spring:
AIR HUNT FOR SEALS.
NEWFOUNDLANDERS TO BE HELPED BY A BIRD'S EYE VIEW.
Mr. F. Sidney Cotton, an ex-officer of the Australian Flying Corps, leaves England to-day for Newfoundland to help the seal fishermen locate the seal herds with the aid of aeroplanes, says The Evening News Air Correspondent.
Last year, in experiments on his own account, he enabled the sealers to find the herds as precisely as the last day it was possible to do so. But for his aid the sealers would have had a blank year.
"This year," Mr. Cotton said to-day, "I shall get to work early, and I expect to be very successful, for an aeroplane makes all the difference in the world when it is a matter of searching miles of ice and water."
Society United Fishermen.
Club Entertains Grand League Executive.
A very pleasant and enjoyable function took place at the Rooms of the Society of United Fishermen, Water Street West, last night, when the officers of the Club entertained the Grand League deputation which instituted "Maple Leaf" Lodge, No. 77 at Whitney Pier, Cape Breton, on Tuesday, October 4th. The guests of honor were: R.W.G.M., Bro. J. E. Curnew; D.G.M., Bro. C. T. James; G.C.O., Bro. James Rendell; G.S., Bro. A. B. Withycombe, and P.M. Bro. J. L. Oke, of Buckland Lodge, Harbor Grace. Past Grand Chief Officer Bro. A. Edgecombe was also included amongst the guests. At 9 o'clock the chair was taken by Bro. R. Ledrew, P.M. St. John's Lodge, No. 5, and the following toast list gone through. The proceedings on the whole were interesting, which added to the enjoyment. Speeches were made reminiscent of the old days, by Bros. Oke, Edgecombe, Thistle, Whitten, Burridge and others, while songs and recitations interspersed the regular toasts, the order of which was:
The King—Prop. The Chairman; National Anthem.
Report by R.W.G.M. on official visit.
"Maple Leaf" Lodge, No. 77—Prop. R.W.G.M. Curnew; Resp. D.G.M. James; Support, G.C.O. Rendell, W.G.S. Whitycombe.
St. John's Lodge, No. 5—Prop. Bro. James Rendell; Resp. Bro. H. Hyman. The Grand Lodge—Prop. Bro. H. Pike; Resp. R.W.G.M.
The Club—Prop. Bro. A. Edgecombe; Resp. Bro. Jas. Rendell; Support, Bros. W. McGillivray and A. Whitten.
The Chairman—Prop. Bro. C. T. James; Resp. Bro. R. Ledrew. God Save the King.
Pleasing Presentation.
At the home of the president, Mrs. Crawford, the Ladies' Auxiliary of St. Andrew's Society, last night, presented their retiring secretary, Mrs. J. Irvine with a gold wrist watch in appreciation of the valuable service rendered by her during her term of office. Mrs. Irvine, who is leaving shortly for Scotland, made an appropriate reply and a pleasant social hour was afterwards spent.

Calling for Charts.
A message to Hon. Tasker Cook, Norwegian Consul, from Capt. Meldell of the steamer Jacob Christiansen, stated that the ship, which is bound to Montreal, would call off this port for charts. Capt. Konrad Meldell is well known here, as he paid us frequent visits when in command of the steamer Fridtjof Nansen.
Fish Prices.
There was a fair amount of fish handled on the waterfront to-day, prices remaining unchanged. The average for shore fish is $8.50 per quintal (a), and many are selling that way, although $7.10 is being paid for No. 1. West India is being bought at $3. hadhook at from $2 to $4 according to quality. Labrador fish is selling at from $4.50 to $4.80, several firms paying the latter figure.

Bell Runs McAulay Close

Halifax, Oct. 15.
McAulay first, time 55.30; Bell second, 58.28. McAulay broke record.

Bell and Harvey All Ready.

Whether Bell wins or loses, there is one thing certain and that is that no stone has been left unturned by his trainer and manager, Harvey Thomas, to ensure victory. A night letter from him received this morning, states that he has been successful in having himself appointed as one of the five official judges. This gives him the advantage of being in the only car allowed ahead of the runners. It therefore looks as if Bell's chance are to take the lead right at the start and keep it. Mr. Thomas further states that he has organized a committee of Newfoundland residents of Halifax who will be stationed along the route at regular intervals for picket duty and to give whatever assistance Bell may require in the nature of sponging, etc.

Misguided Humour.

Shortly after noon to-day some poor misguided individual with what he evidently presumed to be humorous intent, caused a message purporting to contain first news of the 10 mile road race at Halifax to be sent to the President of the N. A. A. A., with the natural sequence that the contents were soon all over town. The practical joker is always the first to resent an attempt to be humorous at his own expense, but he is ever ready to vent his extraordinary wit on others. If the person who was responsible for the faked message is discovered, he will find out in a very painful manner what the public thinks of his wretched attempt to be funny.

Yesterday's Obsequies.

The funeral of the late Mr. John Valentine took place from his residence in the West End yesterday afternoon and was attended by a large concourse of citizens, which included representatives of the Grand Lodge of the English and Scotch Jurisdiction and Shannon Chapter of Free Masons, the employees of George Knowling, Ltd., and many friends of the deceased. Interment was in the Church of England Cemetery. At the grave-side the officiating clergy were His Lordship Bishop White and Rev. Canon Jones and Bolt.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

NEXT WEEK.
LONDON, Oct. 15.
The Parliamentary correspondent of the London Times says he understands that Mr. Lloyd George expects to be able to decide early next week whether prospects for a satisfactory outcome of Irish negotiations are sufficiently good to warrant his going to Washington.

BRITAIN ACCEPTS.

PARIS, Oct. 15.
Great Britain has accepted the Upper Silesian decision of the League of Nations' Council, according to the Havas Agency. It is said the Allies, after an exchange of views, are in accord with the procedure to be adopted for carrying out the decision.

U.F.O. PREDICTION.

TORONTO, Oct. 15.
J. J. Morrison, Secretary of the United Farmers of Ontario, who returned yesterday from a hurried trip to the Maritime Provinces, predicted that at least twelve Progressive candidates would be elected in the Maritime Provinces: five in New Brunswick, five in Nova Scotia and two in Prince Edward Island.

Rev. E. C. Earp, B.A.

The Rev. Ernest C. Earp, B.A., who to-morrow will be inducted by the Bishop of Newfoundland as Rector of St. Thomas's Church, was ordained about eighteen years ago. An Englishman, with a keen attraction for Colonial life, he commenced his ministry as Curate to Rev. Canon Cody, D.D., D.C.L., of Dunwell, in the Diocese of Niagara, and later of Regina, in the North West of Canada. When war broke out he applied for and was given a commission as Chaplain in the Canadian Expeditionary Force, and served for some time at the front in Belgium and France. After the Armistice he was appointed Rector of Holy Trinity Church, Hull, which claims to be the largest parish church in the old land, dating from the year 1309. Mr. Earp was quite recently appointed Vicar of St. Barnabas, York, but resigned that appointment to accept the invitation to become Rector of St. Thomas's Parish in his city. He is accompanied by his wife and two children. A large number of St. Thomas's congregation were at the landing pier last evening to greet the reverent gentleman and his family and to welcome them to Newfoundland.

Eavesdropping.

While having tea at a restaurant the other afternoon, my attention was held by the conversation of some ladies at a neighbouring table. These ladies had evidently been shopping and were discussing the incidents of the day, talking over the results, and detailing the pleasures or difficulties of shopping and their general inclination towards this, that or the other store. The subject provided plenty of material for discussion until one of the ladies finally brought the argument to a close by saying, "I always feel that if I cannot get it at the Royal Stores, I shall be unable to get it anywhere."
This remark left an impression on my mind and aroused a train of thought which seems to me, perhaps, worth mentioning.
In every part of this country of ours there are hundreds of women who are, so to say, the buyers for their families and households, those to whom the rest of the family look for the selection of the daily or weekly requirements.
It is not unreasonable to suppose that of this great number of shoppers quite a lot of them feel just as the positive lady at the tea table felt when she made the remark I overheard.
Indeed, one of the chief aims of this store is to be as disappointing proof as possible. It is one of our axioms that "If it is obtainable at all you can get it at the Royal Stores," which means that this store is nothing more or less than a distributing centre for goods from every part of the world.

Obituary.

MRS. ROBERT FRENCH.
Yesterday the sad intelligence of the almost unexpected passing of Mrs. Robert French (nee Mary Horwood), at her late home, Harbor Grace, was conveyed in a message to Mr. John French of the Telegram staff, brother-in-law of the deceased lady. During August month an only daughter died and the bereavement undermined the health of the mother. Though given the best medical attendance she failed to rally. Left to mourn are a husband, two sons, Alexander, who served with the 5th Royal Highlanders, Montreal; Woodley at home, and one brother Mr. Wm. Horwood, Leslie Street (this city). The deceased was a daughter of the late Wm. Horwood, Lighthouse keeper at Briggs. To the bereaved husband, family and relatives, the Telegram extends sympathy.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

NEXT WEEK.
LONDON, Oct. 15.
The Parliamentary correspondent of the London Times says he understands that Mr. Lloyd George expects to be able to decide early next week whether prospects for a satisfactory outcome of Irish negotiations are sufficiently good to warrant his going to Washington.

BRITAIN ACCEPTS.

PARIS, Oct. 15.
Great Britain has accepted the Upper Silesian decision of the League of Nations' Council, according to the Havas Agency. It is said the Allies, after an exchange of views, are in accord with the procedure to be adopted for carrying out the decision.

U.F.O. PREDICTION.

TORONTO, Oct. 15.
J. J. Morrison, Secretary of the United Farmers of Ontario, who returned yesterday from a hurried trip to the Maritime Provinces, predicted that at least twelve Progressive candidates would be elected in the Maritime Provinces: five in New Brunswick, five in Nova Scotia and two in Prince Edward Island.

Rev. E. C. Earp, B.A.

The Rev. Ernest C. Earp, B.A., who to-morrow will be inducted by the Bishop of Newfoundland as Rector of St. Thomas's Church, was ordained about eighteen years ago. An Englishman, with a keen attraction for Colonial life, he commenced his ministry as Curate to Rev. Canon Cody, D.D., D.C.L., of Dunwell, in the Diocese of Niagara, and later of Regina, in the North West of Canada. When war broke out he applied for and was given a commission as Chaplain in the Canadian Expeditionary Force, and served for some time at the front in Belgium and France. After the Armistice he was appointed Rector of Holy Trinity Church, Hull, which claims to be the largest parish church in the old land, dating from the year 1309. Mr. Earp was quite recently appointed Vicar of St. Barnabas, York, but resigned that appointment to accept the invitation to become Rector of St. Thomas's Parish in his city. He is accompanied by his wife and two children. A large number of St. Thomas's congregation were at the landing pier last evening to greet the reverent gentleman and his family and to welcome them to Newfoundland.

"Columbus."

At the auditorium of the K. of C. Memorial School, the pupils of the Academy of Our Lady of Mercy presented His Grace the Archbishop, the officers and members of Terra Nova Council, K. of C. and the Columbus Ladies' Association with a beautiful playlet in four acts entitled, "Columbus." The programme was divided into two parts, part 1 being the play and part 2 "A Spanish Carnival." Part 1 opened with a chorus, Mozart's Gloria, by the massed choir, which was beautifully rendered. Then followed an address by Miss Madeline McGrath, which we give below. While the stage was being set orchestral selections were rendered, which were received with great applause by the large audience. The story of how hard Columbus worked and prayed before his dreams of the new world materialized was then unfolded by the talented young artists. It would be invidious to mention any names, but the work of the principals, Miss A. McGrath as "Columbus," Miss B. Prim as "Diego," his son, Miss R. Berrigan as "Garcia" and Misses K. Howley and A. Walsh as "King Ferdinand" and "Queen Isabella" respectively deserves more than passing note. Each of these young ladies acquitted themselves in an admirable manner. It speaks volumes for the work of the good sisters when productions of this nature are given with such advantage as this. At the close of part 1 little Miss Rosemary Cahill, daughter of Mr. C. J. Cahill, State Deputy K. of C. who was beautifully dressed representing Newfoundland, attended by two little maids of honor, presented a beautiful bouquet of flowers to His Grace the Archbishop. Part 2 was then presented and was opened with a chorus "Carmena" by the pupils. A pastoral scene, in which particularly gorgeous costumes were used, by the audience. Miss Fortune's interpretation of "Little Boy Blue" was very pleasing. Miss Molly Kelly received quite an ovation at the close of her dance "Bow and Arrow" and had to respond to an encore. The perfect rhythm of her movements excited delighted ejaculations from those present. A Spanish dance in which six young ladies took part was also pleasingly rendered. Then followed a chorus "Habanera," after which came a minuet by Misses M. Wyncombe and D. Ellis, in which these two young ladies excelled themselves, and a solo "Toreador" with chorus brought to an end a most enjoyable entertainment. The hope has been expressed that last night's performance will be repeated, and it really should so that the public generally would have an opportunity of seeing it. Below we give the address of presentation to His Grace:

To His Grace the Archbishop, the Officers and Members of the Terra Nova Council of the Knights of Columbus, and the Ladies' Association, the Sisters and Pupils of the Academy of Our Lady of Mercy, extend a hearty welcome.

This occasion affords us an opportunity of tendering to this great and distinguished body, our deep-felt gratitude, for this Memorial School—a magnificent gift bestowed on the Order of Mercy.

It is a pleasure to commemorate your heroic deed, which made the Supreme Sacrifice, in the Great War, and the valiant boys, who with them answered the "Call to Arms"; but who have happily returned to home and country, it will be an imperishable monument to their memory, and a practical proof of the generosity and self-sacrifice of your grand Catholic organization.

The educational achievements as well as the charitable activities of the Knights of Columbus during the recent war have merited the admiration of the world; and they are confidently depended upon to combat the evil influences that are at work to undermine religion and morality.

With a small membership our Terra Nova Council has given great evidence of earnestness in the cause of education, having undertaken and successfully accomplished the erection of an edifice worthy alike in structure and equipment of its noble objects.

The spacious class-rooms of the Memorial School will stimulate us, and all, to greater energy and devotedness in our work. Be assured it is our desire to justify its acceptance—our ambition to make it the equal of any educational establishment of its kind, and that our generous benefactors will be prayerfully remembered.

We are especially grateful to His Grace the Archbishop, who suggested that the Memorial should take this form and be attached to our Academy. It is further evidence of his great interest in all that pertains to successful educational endeavor, and of his efforts to provide the accommodation necessary for its accomplishment. That he may be long spared to guide the destinies of the Archdiocese is the sincere prayer of all.

Fish Market.

(Trade Review.)
The news from abroad is none too good, and exporters are worried. SPAIN—There are no buyers in Spain as that country has been flooded with consignments even to the smallest retail store all over the country during the past two years. They have not yet forgotten that telegram calling of all for "furious competition," and expect to see large shipments sent there as usual. Buyers who would like to take hold, write, that if they were to place an order, they would be surrounded at once on all quarters by consignments to make it unprofitable for them to do any business.

ITALY—One steamer with Labrador codfish has arrived there, and the quality has been reported as very satisfactory.

The first steamer with Shore fish is due there now, and orders have already been placed for more, but reports are very general that French fish is offered at very much cheaper price for early delivery.

There has been an advance of the Lire from 70 to nearly 90 to the one pound sterling, and this makes business all the harder as prices are almost prohibitive.

GREECE—Reports regarding the Nystrand's cargo were only too true. We have seen a telegram stating that this fish was unsuitable for that market, and it has been sold for next to nothing, and has "spoiled the market."

War conditions in Greece have advanced exchange to over 90 Drachmas to the one pound sterling, which makes business bad. Heavy competition from St. Pierre of French Lave is also reported at very much lower prices than Labrador can be sold.

Icebergs Spoil Fishing.

Not for many years has there been so much ice on the Atlantic as during this hot summer. Of course it is the unusually warm weather which has started all these bergs on their travels.

Some of them are very big, and it must be remembered that an iceberg that rises 100 feet above the water stretches 700 feet below it.

Icebergs—true icebergs as apart from ice floes—are simply the broken-off ends of the great ice rivers which flow slowly of Greenland and other Arctic lands. Consequently the lower part of an iceberg is full of rocks and boulders, which sink to the bottom. Most of these are dropped in the comparatively shallow water near the coast, and so in the course of years accumulate so as to foul the whole of the sea bottom, and thus make trawling impossible.

All along the southern part of the Greenland coast there are quantities of fish on a great natural fishing bank, yet owing to the icebergs these fish remain unmolested. Should a trawler drop her trawl there it is bound to catch in the boulders, in which case as much as a thousand pounds' worth of "gear" may be lost.

Southern icebergs run large than those of the Arctic. One was seen a few years ago in the South Atlantic which was forty miles in length.—Pearsons Weekly.

Great Respect for British Law.

EDMONTON (Canadian Press).—Law and order in the north country is on a high plane, and not in one instance has it been necessary to prosecute any person who has entered under the clearance certificate, states Major G. L. Jennings, Superintendent of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, who recently returned here after an inspection trip to all the police detachments in the far north. Major Jennings' tour occupied three months, during which he travelled more than 4,000 miles and he visited as far north as Herschel Island. The residents of the great stretches of territory, lying between Edmonton and the Arctic, have the greatest respect for British justice and the orderly traditions of the British race, he said, and the general conditions could not be more satisfactory. The major was present at the trial of the Slavey Indian Lebeaux, who has been sentenced to death on a charge of murder. The trial, he said, with the the impressions of a court of British justice, was an eye-opener to the natives. Major Jennings says, and the Indians from now on will have a greater respect for British law than ever before.

St. Pierre & Miquelon.

Some Facts Regarding the Administration of the French Islands.

(By COLIN MCKAY, in the Canadian Fisherman.)

St. Pierre and Miquelon have again been raised to the dignity of a French possession entitled to a governor. An announcement to this effect was recently made by Albert Saurant, Colonial Minister of France.

For years prior to 1906 France sent out a governor to these islands in the Gulf of St. Lawrence, and the governor had considerable powers and invested his office with some pomp and circumstance. In February, 1906 the French Government decided to abolish the office of governor, and appointed a functionary called an administrator who was charged with the exercise of the powers formerly vested in the governor. This change in the French political establishment was dictated by the financial crisis which visited the islands following several continued to make St. Pierre a base of operations, and the native fishing industry recovered from the depression and began to extend its proportions. In the five years from 1907 to 1912, 800 vessels a year on the average used the port of St. Pierre. These vessels, metropolitan and colonial, carried crews of about 12,000 who received in the form of bounties 600,000 francs annually on account of the cod taken. In 1912 France exported nearly 25,000,000 kilos of fish, mostly cod taken by vessels making St. Pierre a base of operations and in this exportation the government of France paid vessel owners and merchants bounties amounting to about 4,000,000 francs. In addition France imported from St. Pierre nearly 600,000 kilos of codfish, on which a bounty of over 100,000 francs was paid.

Before the war the French Government was showing a new interest in the fisheries, and projects to augment the usefulness of St. Pierre as a fishing station were under consideration. But when the Kaiser's legions took the path to war, France had other matters to occupy her attention.

After the war the French Government faced the fact that the cattle herds had diminished, and attention was perforce directed to the problem of developing the fisheries and thus assuring the aliment of the people. The government was authorized to spend 200,000,000 francs, and some rather grandiose projects to help the fisheries were formulated on paper. But the government was unable to find the money which the Chamber of Deputies voted, and many of the projects are still in abeyance. However, St. Pierre and Miquelon have been provided with large cold-storage plants, and other equipment essential to the efficient exploitation of the fisheries, and an improved transport service between St. Pierre and France has also been in operation during the fishing season. With the improvement in the technical and economic affairs of the islands, it has been deemed advisable to add an improved political order, and appoint a functionary of high rank to take charge of the local administration. The re-establishment of a governor at St. Pierre may not of itself be of capital importance, but it is significant as an indication of the French government's interest in the development of fisheries, and of its determination to make the most of the strategic position of St. Pierre and Miquelon, which are in close proximity to St. Pierre and Quere banks and within 48 hours sail of the Grand Banks of Newfoundland.

Household Notes.

Stuff Spanish onions with mashed potatoes and sausage meat mixed with well-beaten egg.

A delicious breakfast food is swi-back dipped in egg and milk and fried. Serve with marmalade.

Broiled shad is oftentimes served with egg sauce or mushroom sauce, and bluefish with lemon sauce.

Add sugar to the cocoa after the cocoa and water have been cooked together. This insures better blending.

An attractive dessert is strips of fig newtons piled around a centre of whipped cream garnished with jelly.

For flavoring soups, it is well to have on hand a bottle of Worcester-sauce and one of tomato catsup.

Wilted and decayed vegetables are a bad bargain at any price, for there is too much waste in preparation.

Cut thick slices of tomato into strips, dip in beaten egg, roll in crumbs, fry and serve in a clear bouillon.

Sponge cake may be baked in a round pudding pan, in the center of which is placed a cup. Fill the cavity with sugared fruit and garnish with whipped cream.

GEVE THEM BAKER'S COCOA TO DRINK

The almost unceasing activity with which children work off their surplus energy makes good and nutritious food a continual necessity. Of all the food drinks Baker's Cocoa is the most perfect, supplying as it does much valuable material for the upbuilding of their growing bodies. Just as good for older people. It is delicious, too, of fine flavor and aroma.

A baby's future depends largely upon sleep. Rashies and the habits of babies destroy it. Cleanliness safeguards it—the warm bath and then the dusting of Mennen's Borated Talcum Powder—the original borated talcum—into all chubby folds of that flower-soft skin!

The little limbs are relaxed and comforted. Sleep comes—storing up health and energy. Mennen's is safe.

Adults enjoy it also—after the bath, before shaving, after shaving, between the sheets on a hot night, and on the whole family. In all trials and tests, many Mennen varieties are of reliable quality.

Freight Rates Reduced.

A ten per cent. reduction on all freight both inward and outward, was announced yesterday by Messrs. Harvey & Co., local agents of the Red Cross Line. The new rates take effect immediately. Passenger fares have already been considerably reduced and the cost of a first class passage to New York, irrespective of what part of the season section of the ship, is now quite reasonable.

Aids to Recovery.

A certain hospital was well-known for not giving its patients sufficient to eat. Mealtime came and went and convalescent Tommy found himself just as hungry as ever. One day the commanding officer was visiting the wards. He came up to the bedside of a patient and asked him what was his complaint. This patient was particularly "fed up," so his reply was very curt. "Trench fever."

"What's the diet?" asked the commanding officer, in solicitous tones. The man looked up with a sad smile, and replied: "Two tastes of the thermometer daily!"

Personal.

Capt. A. Kean, who has been on a business visit to Italy, returned home by the Digby.

Hon. R. K. Bishop, who has been abroad on a business trip, returned yesterday by the Digby.

Misses Clara and Stella Perlin, daughters of Mr. I. F. Perlin, who have been attending school in England, returned home yesterday by the Digby.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Marshall and Master Walter Marshall, who is progressing favorably after a serious illness, arrived from England yesterday by the Digby.

Rev. E. C. Earp, B.A., the new Rector of St. Thomas's, arrived from England yesterday, accompanied by his wife and two children. He was met on arrival by the Select Vestry of St. Thomas's. For the present, Mr. Earp and his family will be the guests of Hon. M. G. and Mrs. Winter, at "Winterholme," Rennie's Mill Road.

Things I'd Tell a Man —If I Dared!

A MODERN MAID CRITICIZES THE "MASTERFUL MALE."

Oh, I would tell him such a heap of things—if I dared!

I am not very old, but I have always had the reputation of being observant. I have made a point of using my faculties in observing the opposite sex.

Men, as all women know, are big lumbering babies, who think they understand us, but by their clumsy blunders prove they do not. Because I happen to be rather critical, there are many things I want to tell them.

First of all, my men friends, there is the matter of your general attitude towards us. Poets and playwrights have told you that women adore "masterful" men and men of the world, and you have come to believe these things. You adopt the "masterful" pose whenever possible; some of you make the additional mistake of taking bad manners for masterfulness.

Believe me when I tell you that most of the talk about the irresistible fascination of the "masterful" man is utter nonsense.

Sensible girls laugh at you when you adopt the braggart, masterful manner towards them. And when trying to show thoroughly the "man of the world" you are, you season your conversation with half-relied allusions to your "dogfishness" when out with "the boys," they shake with suppressed laughter.

It is the protective man who is the most fascinating to the average woman. But there is a tremendous difference between the protective nature and the masterful one.

We love you when you give us the impression of protecting us, even though there is probably nothing for which we need protection!

It is only girls with very little strength of mind who submit to the domineering masterful male. The average level-headed girl has no use for him at all. But be protective, and the strongest-minded girl will be attracted.

Remember, too, that most of us like to "mother" the man we love. But how could one "mother" a clumsy, rough, masterful person?

Few girls admire a dissipated man, the sort of man who forces unwelcome attentions on bar-maids. Usually girls can recognize this type of individual the moment they meet him.

No; the men who win our admiration are the clean-living straightforward, strong-minded, "mummy" men. Why do so many men forget that they can still possess all the straight man's high ideals of womanhood, and yet be men of the world? For goodness sake, abandon that "devil-may-care" pose that you think impresses us so much!

There is another thing I would tell some of the men I know—if I dared. Girls do not like men whose chief ambition seems to be to look like musical-comedy heroes. We like the men we know to be simply, but neatly, dressed; we laugh at the "kaut."

Don't Be Mean.

We do not like men when they are mean in small matters, though no girl wants the man she loves to be extravagant, especially if she knows he cannot afford to be free with money. But she does not like him to behave as if he begrudged the spending of a few shillings when he is with her.

Why don't you take the trouble to study our moods, my men friends? Give us credit for thinking sometimes of other things besides dancing, flirting, and kissing!

ENTERPRISE.

A week ago I changed to my new car, a 1921 Buick. I had no thought that it would reach the cars of passing gents. But when I reached my dwelling place, nine salesmen waited there, each with a glad and beaming face, and eloquence to spare. Along the curb their cars were parked, nine wagons, fair to see; and as one man these gents remarked, "Come, take a drive with me." And all the long, long sunny day car dealers worked my phone, and each one had a grand coupe I really ought to own. And I grew wobbly in the knees, and my despair was tense, for salesmen roosted in the trees and sat upon the fence; they lifted up the window sash, and said, with nerve sublime, "In case you cannot spare the cash, we'll sell a car on time." By mail they flooded me with junk, instructed me by wire, that I could trade in any junk, my shotgun or my lyre. For days they came upon the jump, each with his fetching yarn; they got me when I went to jump, they ragged me in the "barn." Hereafter when few things to tell, all by myself I'll go, and whisper them down in a well—the deepest one I know.

Mr. J. C. H. Macbeth, the London manager of the Marconi Wireless Telegraph Co., started a luncheon assembly in New York by the description of the recent wireless experiments aboard the Marconi yacht Electra, in the Mediterranean, which led Mr. Marconi and other experts to believe that Mars, or some other planet, was seeking to communicate with the world.

Mr. Macbeth said the apparatus intercepted wireless wave lengths of 150,000 metres, whereas the maximum wave length produced in the world to-day is 14,000 metres. He added that the regularity of the wave lengths disproved the belief that it was due to electrical disturbances.

A Message From Mars.

Rev. R. J. Campbell in America.

"The most striking difference to a visitor between the United States and Great Britain is that people here expect the Government to do everything for them, while the Americans expect no help, and get none," says Rev. R. J. Campbell in the Star. "They have thereby preserved the spirit of independence—and perhaps a larger self-respect."

"Everyone is in a fever to become rich. Ambition stands out as the most noticeable trait in these energetic, vigorous, hard-working people. From the newsboy at the street corner to the company director and factory owner, there is but one essential driving power, one common motive—the desire to 'progress,' i.e., earn more money. They start work earlier than we do in England, and they carry on farther into the night. The forty-eight hour week is a system unknown on the Pacific Coast."

The Strangest Navy.

BATTLE FLEET OF THREE ARMED TUGBOATS. What is probably the strangest Navy in history has just sprung up into being. The little Baltic State of Latvia recently decided that it must have some warships to protect its long coastline and prevent smuggling, and so it has now put into commission a battle fleet of three armed tugboats.

Not content with this armada, Latvia has decided to have a flagship for it. Her first "battleship," the Virsaitis, will be launched this month, and will be a vessel of 535 tons with a speed of 17 knots. The Virsaitis has had an interesting, if inglorious, career already. She is nothing less than the old German guardship E.M. 68, which was sunk in Latvian waters in 1917, and has now been raised and renovated. She is certainly the only guardship that has risen from the depths of the sea to the dizzy heights of becoming the flagship of a battle fleet.

Strong Bill Prohibited.

On October 16, 1914, a letter was addressed to the Lord Mayor of London, the Council, requiring them to interfere into the progress of an evil of alarming description. It had reached the ears of the Government, that brewers of London were in the habit of brewing exceedingly strong beer, and thereby breaking the laws which had been made for the purpose of preventing the unnecessary consumption of barley. The Lord Mayor was to examine the facts, and to report to the Council. This, however, was not the only point on which the Government was brought into collision with the brewers. They owed for two thousand casks which had been taken for the King's household was still unpaid, and it was rumored that there was an intention of laying an imposition of twopenny per barrel upon beer. In these straits, the brewers discovered in the Charter of the City of London, a clause by which they were—as they fancied—exempted from purveyance, and on the strength of this they demanded immediate payment of the debt owing to them. The Council sent Bacon to prove to them that the King was not bound to pay money for any article above the value of forty shillings, and at the same time declared explicitly that the rumour of the intended imposition was a mere fabrication. The money owed should be paid immediately, and similar debts should in future be met at the close of the year. With this the brewers were obliged to be content, and they were also forced to enter into bonds of £100 each, that they would in future brew beer sufficiently diluted to please the Lords of the Council.

VACATIONS FOR WIVES.

How Many Women Would Rejoice to Have One Meal Off.

Half a dozen girls who were having difficulty getting work in a factory even with small pay, were asked by a social worker why they didn't take some of the plentiful positions as housework girls at double the money.

Some of them spoke of the social stigma (they did not use that phrase), but one and all said in substance that they didn't like to give up that precious breathing space Saturday afternoon (Saturday noon in Summer) to Monday morning, which made life seem worth while.

They were reminded that they would have at least one afternoon off a week at housework, but they said that half the time they didn't get off until the middle of the afternoon, and it wasn't like a whole day to themselves.

When the social worker told me that I fell to thinking of the hundreds of thousands of wives who would regard even a single afternoon a week perfectly free with no supper to get as a wonderful luxury. As for a day a week, well that I think would approximate their idea of Heaven!

If the world could be made over by passing laws, as so many people seem to think, I'd be almost willing to give the rest of my life to working for a law that every mother should have the six day week the law insists upon for men in most occupations—few of them as nerve racking as mother of brood.

But alas, customs alter laws instead of laws altering customs, else we could bring the millennium at once by the right legislation.

By the by, to-morrow happens to be Sunday.

Maybe That Isn't Possible But— Plainly a day a week even for mothers in moderate circumstances isn't possible, but it does seem as if a day now and then, and some kind of a vacation of a few days once a year would not be impossible, if it were regarded as necessary.

Twenty-five or 30 years ago the two weeks' vacation for workers in shops and offices was far from the matter of course that it is to-day. Even 15 years ago vacations for housework girls were a novelty granted by a few advanced mistresses. If we once established the fact that hard working mothers and wives need such a vacation just as much, might not some way to give it them gradually be found?

I heard the other day of a husband whose vacation fell in a very hot spell. He wandered about in his pyjamas declaring "No one ought to do a stroke of work this weather." Meanwhile his wife was cooking for seven in a tiny kitchen, putting up with the usual inconveniences of a Summer cottage. She hasn't had a vacation for years. Wouldn't you think the inequality of that might strike him?

The Gift of a Day Now and Then.

In a certain family, whose friend I am proud to be, the father insists that the mother shall have a complete vacation from him and the children every year, and he takes charge of the house for a few days while she goes exactly where she chooses—each year some new and interesting trip that sends her back refreshed to her job.

I know there are many homes where that might not be possible but surely any husband who has every Sunday to himself might now and then take charge of house and children and give his wife the gift of the day.

Man Raced a Horse.

Yards of a Record-Breaking Runner.

One of the most novel races of recent times was that between Alfred Shrubbs, the famous runner, and a horse specially trained for the purpose.

This race took place near Winnipeg. The runner had found it hard to get competitors, so when someone suggested he might race a horse he took up the idea immediately.

The original intention was that one horse should compete. But as the race was a ten-mile, it was thought the animal could not last the distance. So the race was conducted in relays, a second animal taking up the task at the end of the five miles.

Although both animals were drawing buggies, they gave the runner a hard race. Shrubbs succeeded in winning just on the post.

Inspired by the Bagpipes.

It was Shrubbs who was successful in lowering the ten-mile record in 1904.

The affair was staged at Glasgow. The runner had read of the valiant deeds done by Scots inspired by the music of the bagpipes. So he arranged to get a piper to play at intervals.

From the start Shrubbs ran well. He reeled off mile after mile, each one being punctuated by roars of delight from the crowd. But at the seventh mile he had fallen behind schedule to the extent of about fifteen seconds.

In answer to frantic appeals, he managed to pull himself together, making up the leeway. Then, as he entered upon the last mile, he caught up and passed the limit-handicap man.

On the last lap he put in a gigantic spurt, and breasted the tape in the record time of 50 min., 40 3-5 secs.

But Shrubbs wasn't finished. Encouraged by the spectators' calls to "go for the hour record," he continued for the few minutes that remained to complete the hour.

He was suffering from reaction, however. The strain was beginning to tell. But just at the right moment he heard the skirl of the pipes.

Spurred on to greater efforts, he completed the task, and laid low the world's amateur record for the hour. He completed eleven miles 1,137 yards.

Although Shrubbs does not believe in marathon races, he once competed with Tom Longboat, the Indian, at Madison Square Garden, New York.

Straight away Shrubbs made the pace, steadily increasing his lead until at the end of twenty miles he was nine laps ahead.

The Indian Wins.

But Longboat was a most imperturbable runner, and, as he said after the race, he was certain his opponent could not last it out. He was right. At the twenty-third mile Shrubbs became sick and collapsed. The Indian finished the distance, and won.

Training Cats and Dogs.

Those who consider only the history and origin of words and phrases, overlooking the folk-lore which lies behind many of them, maintain that the expression, "raining cats and dogs," is derived from the French catadoupe, meaning a waterfall; and that it was distorted into "cats and dogs" by persons who caught only a part of the sound of the word.

As a matter of fact, the phrase has its origin in the custom of referring to the male blossoms of the willow tree, used on Palm Sunday in many parts to represent palm, as "cats and dogs." These increase in size rapidly after a few warm April showers, the belief prevailed that the rain brought them. Hence the saying, "raining cats and dogs."

Too Sudden.

(From the Central Western Star) Little Mary came into the house bedraggled and weeping. "My goodness," cried her mother, "what a sight you are! How did it happen?"

"I am s-sorry, mamma, but I fell into a mud-puddle."

"What! with your best new dress on?"

"Yes, yes, I didn't have time to change."

Forty-Two Years in the Public Service—The Evening Telegram

Railway Affairs.

Sir Joseph Flavelle, who is high up in Government and commercial affairs in Canada gave a very interesting speech to several House in the Board of Trade at Toronto this past week. Sir Joseph is the Chairman of the Board of Directors now looking after the Grand Trunk Railway, and told his audience that he had been asked to become a Director to re-organize the Canadian Government Railway affairs.

He was sorry for the Grand Trunk shareholders, but they had themselves to blame in trying to manage this Railway from London, and not selecting men who knew local conditions.

The "Canadian Northern" he said came to Parliament so often for money that their welcome was worn out. Sir Joseph gave further facts and figures showing what an immense problem these Railway matters are for Canada at the present time. We mention this as these two remarks are so appropriate to our own Railway problems.

The Reids have many friends in Newfoundland, as they have been generous with their own money in many ways. If reports are true, they are far too generous with politicians, and it is these surmises which make the people sore. They want to see every dollar of their money utilized to the best advantage for the benefit of the Railway and the country in general. These loans are a matter of business, and must be treated in a business like manner. The country must know how every dollar of it is spent, and keep a tight purse string.

We would gladly back up Mr. R. C. Morgan as new General Manager, if it was only to bring new blood into our Railway affairs, but how can we expect to get an ideal man from Winnipeg. He is coming here for six months this time, and will have a chance to see something of steamship connections with our Railway, that he never saw in Winnipeg. It looks to us as if we were making a far greater mistake than ever the "Grand Trunk" made in the selection of their Manager.

There is a good story told about Captain Delaney in the S.S. "Bruce" years ago. Reids had just taken over the Railway, and were determined to have everything going on schedule time. Capt. Delaney had just arrived at Port aux Basques several hours late having passed the night in a terrific gale for which the Cabot Straits are noted.

Reid's despatch clerk wired Capt. Delaney to give good reasons why he was not up to time, but the reply he got was: they had been berry picking in the Gulf.

A Railway Manager must know his men thoroughly, and be well acquainted with local conditions before he can think of running a Railway successfully, and we know of no place where this is more applicable than here.—Trade Review.

Busy Week Ahead.

More Work for Longshorem.

Eight steamers with large inward freight will arrive here next week and will be leaving here with big outward cargoes. Pending their arrival fish in casks is being hurried to the various steamship sheds and the busy season to be perceived there are very reminders of the old prosperous times which appearing to be looming once more on the horizon. S.S. Sackem is due Monday from Halifax and after discharging a big inward cargo will load up with fish and fishery products. The Canadian-Sapper will arrive on Tuesday and will have full freight, going and coming. S.S. Birks III, Hop and Goddard will all three arrive during the week with coal cargoes and will load up with fish for Mediterranean ports. S.S. Manca with a big four cargo, and S.S. Sabie I, with a full general cargo, will arrive on Monday, and the Rosalind, which is due on Thursday next will complete the busiest week along the waterfront for many months.

Mother, Quick! Give California Fig Syrup for Child's Bowels

Even a sick child loves the "fruity" taste of California Fig Syrup. If the little tongue is coated, or if your child is listless, cross, feverish, full of cold, or has colic, a teaspoonful will never fail to open the bowels. In a few hours you can see for yourself how thoroughly it works all the constipation poison, sour bile and waste from the tender, little bowels and gives you a well, playful child again. Millions of mothers keep California Fig Syrup handy. They know a teaspoonful to-day saves a sick child to-morrow. Ask your druggist for genuine California Fig Syrup which has directions for babies and children of all ages printed on bottle. Mother! You must say "California" or you may get an imitation fig syrup.

ICEBERG REPORTED.—S.S. Digby reports that yesterday morning she was in communication with several ships, which reported passing an iceberg and several "growlers."

Digby Reaches Port.

After a splendid run of 7 days from Liverpool, s.s. Digby, Capt. W. F. Chambers, D.S.C., arrived in port at 9 p.m. yesterday. She brought a small 350 tons of general cargo, and the following passengers: Hon. R. K. Bishop, J. Deid, Rev. E. C. and Mrs. Barr, Miss E. M. E. Barr, Master J. G. Barr, G. M. Johnson, Capt. A. Kean, Mrs. Weston March and infant, J. C. and Mrs. Marshall, Mrs. A. Miller, Miss D. C. Morgan, Mrs. D. H. Murray, Miss J. M. Murray, Miss E. R. Murray, C. Neave, Miss P. D. Parsons, Miss C. Peplin, Miss S. Perlin, M. J. Taylor, W. A. Taylor, Mrs. Taylor, T. W. Tyson, H. D. Whideler. The Digby will be taking a small outward freight and sails for Halifax and Boston at daylight to-morrow.

Inadvertent Omission.

In our report of the opening of the Knights of Columbus Memorial School published in the Telegram on Thursday, the name of Mr. William Payne, who with his son did the plastering, was omitted. The magnificent work of Mr. Payne, and the cheerfulness and beauty of the ceilings completed by him in the school rooms have been most favorably commented upon by all who have had the pleasure of seeing it, and the taste, care and painstaking used in the finish bear ample testimony to the ability of Mr. Payne in his chosen work.

Trinity Bay Cement.

The Company being formed to work the cement areas near Heart's Delight and Heart's Desire, Trinity Bay, will we understand, be registered very shortly at a capitalization of $500,000. The quality of the cement taken from the deposit has been pronounced by experts to be as good as any in the world. Several Americans who visited the property were perfectly satisfied both with quality and quantity. It is estimated that there are millions of tons in sight, with good shipping facilities. The opening up of such an industry will mean that hundreds of men will be employed and a great impetus given to trade.

TO-DAY'S MESSAGES.

TO FACILITATE DISCUSSION.
LONDON, Oct. 14.

Reuter's correspondent in Melbourne reports that Hon. James Page, leader of the Country Party, has announced that he will move, in the house of representatives that Australia's estimates be reduced by one pound. The Country Party leader had already given notice in the house of a motion to reduce the estimates by an amount equal to the estimated deficit of 2,800,000 pounds, as a vote of censure on the Government. In order to facilitate discussion, he announced to-day, he proposed to move a reduction of the estimates by one pound.

Macklin, Minister of Soldier's Civil Establishment, made a statement last night denying the assertion of William Duff of Lunenburg that he had claimed that the Tariff was not an issue in the forthcoming election. THE end of September discloses signs of improvement in the business situation, and while for the most part they relate to seasonal conditions, some of the changes are indicative of a gradual restoration of the industrial equilibrium which is necessary to permanent prosperity.

The shoe industry and the cotton and woolen goods industries are now generally active. Raw cotton has advanced in a little over a month from about 11 cents per pound to about 20 cents, and this has put strength into the goods market and encouraged buying.

Cotton goods, however, have not advanced to correspond with raw cotton, and although the mills have stocks of 11 and 12 cent raw material on hand are able to work them up and sell the goods, the pinch will come when they have to buy cotton at the new quotations.

The price of goods is advancing, and the price of goods surplus there next year, it would seem to be good policy to sow a little more wheat in the United States this fall.

It does not appear that the position of agriculture or any of the other primary industries has generally improved during recent months. The cotton producers have gained by the increased value of their carry-over, tobacco, and dairy products are bringing better prices, and what is on a remunerative basis, however, affording the normal stimulus, but hogs have suffered a heavy slump and are now with cattle and sheep down to about pre-war prices. Charges for transportation that the usual exchanges cannot be made, hence the state of unemployment in the industrial towns, to reduce wages, but are expected to secure advances rather than reductions. Leaders, however, dependent for their lasting influence upon the high cost of railroad operations and high industrial costs, placing their ability to lead wisely and to the same as for last year. About 133 million bushels were exported (either as whole grain or flour) between July 1 and October 1, and it has been recognized in well-informed quarters throughout the last two months that the price of wheat between now and the next harvest depends largely upon the crop in Argentina and Australia, two countries which have their harvests in our winter season. Neither of these countries ships wheat to the United States, but their surplus competes with our surplus in Europe and the price of the surplus what employment there is when all the production forces are in full action.

ating employment upon public works are at best effective only as a means of tiding over a temporary situation, and are chiefly objectionable because they actually postpone the readjustments that are necessary to the restoration of a normal state of industry. The natural course for an employer to pursue when reductions of force must be made is to retain the oldest and most worthy employees, and it is not likely that many will be persuaded to do otherwise.

There is no way to have prosperity except by self-supporting balanced industry—by the free and natural exchange of products and services—and this requires that the compensation of the people in the various industries shall be on such a basis that they will all absorb each other's products.

When a general state of confusion exists in which the real value of money is falling, production slows down. The individual employer cannot go on making goods unless he can sell them. When his outlet is closed he shuts down, and when he stops buying materials and paying wages an outlet for other products is closed. Employers and employees are alike affected; it is not a situation to quarrel over, but to investigate intelligently, to find the original cause. The existing situation presents a test of the quality of labor leadership. Has it the foresight, the wisdom and courage to act for the best interests of the whole body of wage-earners and of society as a whole?

Undoubtedly the responsible labor leaders are in a trying position. One of them is quoted as saying that "labor unions are not organized to reduce wages, but are expected to secure advances rather than reductions. Leaders, however, dependent for their lasting influence upon the high cost of railroad operations and high industrial costs, placing their ability to lead wisely and to the same as for last year. About 133 million bushels were exported (either as whole grain or flour) between July 1 and October 1, and it has been recognized in well-informed quarters throughout the last two months that the price of wheat between now and the next harvest depends largely upon the crop in Argentina and Australia, two countries which have their harvests in our winter season. Neither of these countries ships wheat to the United States, but their surplus competes with our surplus in Europe and the price of the surplus what employment there is when all the production forces are in full action.

"EXCEL" The Fishermen's Friend

All fishermen know from experience what happens to ordinary boots when used in fishing. You've seen how salt water seems to take the life out of rubber and how the uppers crack and the soles wear through in a surprisingly short time.

The "EXCEL" is a different and better kind of boot. It has been made especially to stand up under the unusually hard use a fisherman's boot gets.

The rubber and fabric in "EXCEL" boots are of the very highest quality. But it is the special method of curing, under tremendous pressure, that makes the "EXCEL" so wear-resisting. The pressure forces the layers of rubber and fabric together so that they are actually "one-piece", without losing the least bit of the life or resiliency of the rubber. Salt water has practically no effect on "EXCEL" boots. The UPPERS remain pliable and weatherproof, and resist the drying-out action of sun, heat and extreme cold far longer than other boots. Consequently they don't crack anywhere near so quickly. The SOLES are almost wear-proof, because they are made like an Auto Tire, with 3 plies of rubber and fabric, welded by tremendous pressure into a "fire-tread" sole that rivals an automobile tire for toughness and durability.

strain. There is not a single feature but what has been proved necessary and desirable by tests of severest use. Your own experience will tell you that a boot with these features simply must be a better boot.

Study this picture. Learn these features. Remember them when you compare "EXCEL" boots with ordinary boots. And remember, too, that very important point which the picture cannot show, namely, that "EXCEL" boots are cured under tremendous pressure, which leaves the rubber pliable, weatherproof and wear-resisting. It is only by the use of this tremendous pressure combined with highest quality materials that the best results are obtained.

Pliable Uppers. Weatherproof and Wear Resisting. Tough Tire Tread Soles. Made "All in One Piece."

"EXCEL" Boots are sold by all reliable dealers from Coast to Coast.

ARTICLE VIII.

"MOONLIGHT AT SEA."
Nearly everybody has an opportunity of seeing the glories of a sunset, but only a comparatively few people get a chance to behold the grandeur of the moonlight at sea. Both sights are full of silent splendour, and are profound in the depth of their stillness; and like all the heavenly bodies

"Ever proclaiming as they shine The hand that made us is divine."

The poet here gives expression to the only true interpretation of nature; for it is only in the light of divinity that creation can be understood. "The sun to rule by day and the moon to govern the night" is the record of Scripture, and amid all the disputes of the ages, and the doubts of sceptics, the daily course of these planets certify the truth of the sacred writer. Nature proclaims its own greatness, and its beauties are admired by mankind everywhere—and by a portion of the heathen world nature itself is adored. The ancient Egyptians in their sun-worship adored nature; and in the name of their King—Pharaoh—they paid homage to the sun-god Ra.

The sun is the fiery luminary of day, and the moon is the silver queen of night. In her splendour the latter travels her orbit, and sheds radiance over the night; this radiance creates many and diverse reflections both on land and sea; but especially so on the sea; because at sea there is a wide contrast between sky and water. There is the wide expanse of space, without limit or measurement; and only the distant horizon to denote a seeming boundary. The great waters swell and break, and their myriad wavelets sparkle like so many flickering tapers; and scintillate like so many crystals. There is the silence of the night; and yet the sigh of the sea; and from the ship's bow there leaps out the spray, which rushes by and sparkles like some flashing mirror. The sea itself is a study; but the moon seems the greater study of the two. The water is around us. We see its transparency. We catch its breath, and feel its spray, and behold its phosphorescence; but not so the moon; it is distinct, and its pale face but adds to its mystery. Our ship dashes on, and every sail is drawing at its best. The lookout is at his post. The helmsman's hand is on the wheel. The ship seems like a thing of life. It is midnight—the dead, solemn midnight—but the grandeur of the moonlight relieves all sense of fear, and removes the possibility of accident. On every side the scene is the same; and yet there are a thousand elements contributing to it—the mystery of the sea, the vastness of space, the night wind, the distant stars, and the majesty of the moon, all different, and yet, all as one—and all included in the words "moonlight at sea."

What a world of study moonlight at sea opens up to the traveller; and what profound reveries take possession of the soul under such conditions. How small one feels, and how mean our little daily bickerings appear. Only yesterday perchance we hurt some sensitive heart. Only yesterday we did some petty thing, and indulged some selfish whim. Only yesterday we withheld the kindly act we might have done. Ah yes! Only yesterday we were small. To-night we stand on the ship's quarter. To-night we pass the promenade deck of some floating castle. To-night we look up at the stars beyond us, and behold the moon, and see the constellations of the firmament. To-night we behold the sea and revel in the moonlight, and it all seems to say to us "go hide thy little self, and bury thy little whims." The moonlight at sea has shown us our own smallness, and revealed to us how really insignificant at best, the children of men are. It has made us feel cheap. The splendour of the night has shone like a silver spectre into the recesses of our soul, and we are wondering which course to take; whether to shrivel up in the light of our own littleness, or to bask in the grandeur of the midnight on the ocean and the moonlight overhead.

Our better selves seem to struggle for the light, for the higher, for the greater, and it reaches out for that which uplifts us, and is beyond us. In the moonlight we behold the splendour of the sky, and in the sea we had seen the same irresistible power. Every cloudlet that crossed the face of the moon, was as some spirit paying homage to the court of heaven; and every shape which these cloudlets assumed was like some dancing phantom. Cloud after cloud passed, and their recurrence was like some receding agency, all battling against the light, and endeavouring to shut it off from the world below. But their attempts were only temporary, and in turn they vanished, and the moon shone forth in all its glory. The moonlight conquered, the clear day prevailed, and the sea swishing against the ship's side, seemed to sing a requiem to the night, and a lullaby to the vessel.

To 1 cup grated carrot add 1 cup chopped seeded raisins, 1 cup dried bread crumbs, 1/2 cup flour, 1 cup beef suet, 1/2 cup sugar, salt, cinnamon, nutmeg and chopped candied fruit peel. Mix well, add a little water and steam in a buttered mold. Serve with lemon sauce.

What a world of study moonlight at sea opens up to the traveller; and what profound reveries take possession of the soul under such conditions. How small one feels, and how mean our little daily bickerings appear. Only yesterday perchance we
