THE MINSTRELS.

Bordwell & Judge's minstrels gave their first entertainment last night in the Town Hall to a crowded house. The troupe is a very superior one. Miss Bordwell's singing is superb. Her rendering of the "Macgregor's Gathering" was splendid, and elicited unbounded applause. Miss Hayward is a first class dancer. Her Highland Fling brought down the house. The singing, dancing and acting of the other members are far ahead of what are usually got at such entertainments. The audience were delighted with the whole performance. They appear again to night, when there will be an entire change of programme.

Parliament of Canada.

THE INFLUENCE OF THE GENERAL GOVERNMENT ON THE LOCAL.

OTTAWA, Nov. 21st.

Dr. Parker moved an address for copies of instructions, correspondence and despatches from the Government of the Dominion to the Lieutenant-Governor of Ontario. He commented on the facts connected with the formation of the combination Government for the Province of Ontario, and contended that there had been improper interference by the Government of the Dominion. The member for Cornwall had been called on to form a Government at the request of the Premier of the Dominion, who gave him advice and assistance in the work he had in hand. After the formation of the government, these two hon. gentlemen travelled through the country like men desirous to influence the elections then pending, and it was evidently an understanding between them that the powerful interests of both Governments should be turned into the same channel, and that the Local Government should be made subservient to the success of the honorable and gallant knight at the head of the Government. This is the more extraordinary when it is remembered how hostile the relations of these hon. gentlemen had been prior to the consummation of Confederation—how bitterly the member for Cornwall had opposed the gallant knight and how the latter had made charges against the member for Cornwall, which affected even his honor as a public man. Now, he (Dr. Parker) referred to these facts and moved for this correspondence, because he believed the precedent was a dangerous one, and if carried out by future governments, would tend to destroy and overthrow the Government of the Dominion. In the Province of Quebec a majority was allowed for that Government according to its own wishes; but in Ontario, a different course was pursued for the purpose of depriving the majority of its just rights. He protested against the application of one system in one Province and a different one in another. If the system of intrigue which characterized the formation of the Government and the recent elections in Ontario were to be pursued by future Governments of the Dominion, and like endeavors made to subvert the rights of majorities in the provinces, there would be a blow given to the constitution which would go far to overthrow it.

Sir J. A. Macdonald replied humorously that the request of the honorable gentleman could be easily complied with, for the correspondence relative to the formation of the Government of Ontario was covered by a word of three letters—W. L. There were no instructions to the Lieutenant-Governor—no despatches—no correspondence—and the only thing issued on the advice of the Government of the Dominion was the commission to General Stisted, appointing him Lieut.-Governor. But the hon. gentleman (Dr. Parker) desired to have a fling at the member for Cornwall and himself (Sir John A.), and had therefore brought this motion before the House. What right, however, had he, who complained of interference with the Local Government of Ontario, to bring a subject of this kind before the House of Commons, which had nothing to do with it? That government was independent of this Parliament, and he (Sir John) did not doubt that it was capable of maintaining its rights. He glanced at the circumstances connected with the formation of the Government of Ontario, and justified the course pursued by the member for Cornwall in forming a government in harmony with the Privy Council, pointing to the result of the elections as satisfactory proof that that course met the approval of the people. He reflected rather severely on the fickle support the member for Centre Wellington had formerly given the member for Cornwall, and on his generally erratic and inconsistent course. He (Sir John) had gone before the electors to explain the conduct and views of the Government, and said he was proud to have the opportunity of standing before his fellow-countrymen to give account of what he had done, and ask renewed confidence at their hands. He would do it again when occasion arose; and he was told by his friends that if he had done it before, he would have had a stronger party in the House in former years. Because, by appearing before the people, he was enabled to refute many calumnies, and remove many misrepresentations regarding his political course.

Mr Mackenzie said the Minister of Justice had made a most unprovoked attack on the member for Centre Wellington.—He had spoken in a strong manner of the inconsistency of that gentleman's course in Parliament, and of the fitful support he had given the administration of the member for Cornwall. He (Mr Mackenzie) ventured to assert that the adherence of that gentleman to that government was unwavering. The Coalition Government of 1864, of which the learned knight was a member, received the unwavering, the almost unwavering, support of his honorable friend. So anxious was he to maintain good faith with that government that he voted with them last session on occasions when he (Mr Mackenzie) thought his duty to his party and to his country might have dictated a different course. However they might speak of him now, they had not thought it beneath them to make special journeys to obtain the adhesion of his honorable friend. The Minister of Public Works went to Hamilton to convene recently some members of the party, and a special invitation, he understood, was sent to the member for Centre Wellington. They thought they had him in their net, but finding that they were mistaken, another Minister went specially afterwards to Guelph to bring out opposition against him. The motion, he presumed, would not bring out any information of importance. The House could not ask for verbal communications which passed between Ministers of the Dominion and General Stisted, or the member for Cornwall; but it was well known that the member for Cornwall came to Ottawa, and that the whole programme was arranged between him and the Premier of the Dominion. The hon. gentleman would not deny that.

Sir John A. Macdonald—I do deny that.

Mr Mackenzie—Do you deny that you had a conversation with him on the subject, before he was Premier?

Sir John A. Macdonald—Yes.

Mr Mackenzie said that the member for Cornwall had himself admitted it in his (Mr Mackenzie's) county, and also when he occupied a platform beside the Minister of Justice in London. He admitted

Parliament of Canada.

OTTAWA, Nov. 21st.

Mr Mackenzie said the hon member for Cornwall had admitted it to himself, and all that he denied in London was that he had accepted office on condition of forming a Coalition Government. Of course there was no regular contract which could have been brought before this House. But there could be no doubt that the hon. gentleman did enter into a bargain, the design of which was to destroy his own party.

Mr McDougall said that he had listened with as much complacency as he could command to the references which had been made to himself; but since the gentleman opposite had taken so much notice of him on this occasion, he thought it well to say a word or two; he would like to know at the outset which of the gentlemen opposite he could look upon as leader of that great party which was organized as the Toronto Convention. The member for Lambton complained of his (Mr McDougall's) course throughout the election. As the Minister of Justice had remarked, if the position of the Government was right, it was their duty to the country as well as to themselves, to take every opportunity to defend their policy before the people in opposition to the assaults that were made upon it; he had visited as many counties addressed as many meetings as he could; he had a visit from his friend the member for Lambton, but that that gentleman had found his efforts fruitless, and he (Mr McDougall) was returned for that radical county by acclamation. In other places they had fought the battle, and what was the result. At the Toronto convention, to which he and his friend, the Minister of Inland Revenue, received an shabby invitation, they were told that sixty, at the very least, would be elected in opposition to the Government; but our opinion after consulting the members of the Reform party—the member for Wellington Centre among the rest—was different. They laid their case before the county, and the result was, that instead of sixty opposed to the Government, there were how many. Could they count 16? As to his personal following, he did not desire any; but he would ask the member for Lambton, where was his following. The Government had a large majority of the present House, should have so long as their policy was approved of by the House. So far as himself was concerned, he believed a large majority of the Liberal party in Ontario approved of the course which he, the Minister of Inland Revenue, and the President of the Council had taken, when they agreed to act with the members of the Cabinet.

Dr. Parker said the minister of public works had done all he could to overthrow his Liberal friends at the last elections. He admitted that Sir John A. Macdonald had a majority in the House, but the Minister of Public Works and the minister of inland revenue had not even a corporal's guard of followers. What he objected to was that there was a compact and arrangement between the two Premiers in regard to the formation of the local governments. The proceedings during the late elections in Ontario were without precedent, except it might be in the border countries in the States. He denied that the member for Cornwall ever used any unfair means to secure his support. He repeated that the Ontario cabinet was brought about by intrigue.

Hon. Sanfield Macdonald thought that his hon. friend, Mr. McKenzie, should have come to him and found whether his statements were correct, before making them in the House. He (Mr Macdonald) still stood by the declaration he made last session, that Confederation being an accomplished fact, he was prepared to give it a fair support. The member for Wellington knew perfectly well that there was no intrigue, but an honest understanding between parties. He (Sanfield Macdonald) was simply asked whether he would accept his present position. If he went to Upper Canada it was simply to defend himself from the photographing of The Globe, and that he was successful was, he thought, shown by the small following of the member for Lambton. He had undertaken to form a Government for Ontario, and there he would defend himself. He never had defended the minister of justice in his peregrinations through the country. When asked as to the conduct of the Conservatives he referred the people to the journals of the House. When enquired of respecting the Reformers he defended them. He could show as clear a record as any one on this side of the Atlantic. He was always in favor of liberal views and was so still.

Sir John A. Macdonald corroborated Sanfield's statement respecting the formation of the Local Government. He (Sanfield Macdonald) would accept of no interference.

Hon. Mr. Howe thought the wisest way was to bury past party differences. Let them press the Ministry to bring down their measures as fast as they can. If, upon a fair trial, they were found wanting, an Opposition would soon spring up. (Hear, Hear.)

Mr. Mackenzie the hon. member for Hants had adopted the policy on Ontario which he would repudiate for himself, but that he would now bury the past and accept the situation. He proceeded to reply to the speech of the member of Cornwall. He was, he must say, with all his experience of that hon. gentleman, astonished to hear him denounce the Coalition of 1864 as unholy. When he had formed a Coalition with the same parties himself in 1867, the gentleman had had allied himself with were the most devoted followers of the hon. gentleman opposite. The House adjourned at a quarter to one o'clock.

House of Commons.

OTTAWA, Nov. 22.

Sir John A. Macdonald intimated that the Intercolonial Railway resolutions would be introduced on Thursday next.

On motion of Sir John A. Macdonald the second reading of the Bill relating to the indemnity of Members and Salaries of the Speakers of both Houses of Parliament was taken up, and after some discussion carried.

Mr. Chauveau insisted on everything being printed in both languages, and Mr. Speaker Cockburn promised to attend to the matter.

On motion of Sir J. A. Macdonald, the Bill to amend the Act of Incorporation of the Commercial Bank, to authorize its amalgamation with any other bank or banks, or to provide for its winding up, was read a second time.

RESULTS OF SLAVERY.—This is a translation of a French work whose author is Cochin, and who has already distinguished himself somewhat by another book entitled the "Results of Emancipation." It is comprehensive in its plan, and takes a view of slavery, not merely in the United States, but in other countries where its baneful effects have been experienced. The conception is carefully worked out, and evinces much ability. A full supply is on hand at DAY'S Bookstore.

CASSELL'S ILLUSTRATED ALMANAC FOR 1867.—This harbinger of the Christmas tide, we think we may safely say, is one of the handsomest Almanacs that has been issued from the English press for some years. The very cover is a study. Each monthly calendar is surrounded by a floral wreath, and illustrated with the birds of the month. Besides a vast amount of useful statistical information, and a number of original engravings, there are many fac-similes of rare old paintings, one of which, "A Roman Sketch," is especially fine. For sale at DAY'S Bookstore.

ACCIDENTAL DROWNING.—The Stratford Beacon records the following case.—Early on Wednesday morning at Mr A. E. Argo was proceeding to his mills he discovered on the ice near the mouth of the mill-dam, a man's hat, and a closer inspection of the spot evidenced a hole in the ice which had frozen over. This led to an examination, and the body of a man was found in the water. The victim proved to be an old man named Edw. Scott, residing in Ellice. It is supposed he was returning home from town and thinking the ice strong enough attempted to cross

COL. ROBERT LAND.—The Hamilton Spectator has an obituary of this veteran who died in the ninety-fifth year of his age. In early life he was appointed a Justice of the Peace (a very important office in those days), and was an active administrator of justice for many years. He joined Capt. Hatt's company of Flankers, as Lieutenant, in 1812, and took part in the battle of Lundy's Lane, and also rendered very important aid in capturing the entire American force at Stoney Creek. On the breaking out of the rebellion in 1837, Col. Land (for he was by that time promoted) was put in command, but his health suffered so much in consequence that he was obliged to retire from active

Hon. Sanfield Macdonald thought that his hon. friend, Mr. McKenzie, should have come to him and found whether his statements were correct, before making them in the House. He (Mr Macdonald) still stood by the declaration he made last session, that Confederation being an accomplished fact, he was prepared to give it a fair support. The member for Wellington knew perfectly well that there was no intrigue, but an honest understanding between parties. He (Sanfield Macdonald) was simply asked whether he would accept his present position. If he went to Upper Canada it was simply to defend himself from the photographing of The Globe, and that he was successful was, he thought, shown by the small following of the member for Lambton. He had undertaken to form a Government for Ontario, and there he would defend himself. He never had defended the minister of justice in his peregrinations through the country. When asked as to the conduct of the Conservatives he referred the people to the journals of the House. When enquired of respecting the Reformers he defended them. He could show as clear a record as any one on this side of the Atlantic. He was always in favor of liberal views and was so still.

Sir John A. Macdonald corroborated Sanfield's statement respecting the formation of the Local Government. He (Sanfield Macdonald) would accept of no interference.

Hon. Mr. Howe thought the wisest way was to bury past party differences. Let them press the Ministry to bring down their measures as fast as they can. If, upon a fair trial, they were found wanting, an Opposition would soon spring up. (Hear, Hear.)

Mr. Mackenzie the hon. member for Hants had adopted the policy on Ontario which he would repudiate for himself, but that he would now bury the past and accept the situation. He proceeded to reply to the speech of the member of Cornwall. He was, he must say, with all his experience of that hon. gentleman, astonished to hear him denounce the Coalition of 1864 as unholy. When he had formed a Coalition with the same parties himself in 1867, the gentleman had had allied himself with were the most devoted followers of the hon. gentleman opposite. The House adjourned at a quarter to one o'clock.

House of Commons.

OTTAWA, Nov. 22.

Sir John A. Macdonald intimated that the Intercolonial Railway resolutions would be introduced on Thursday next.

On motion of Sir John A. Macdonald the second reading of the Bill relating to the indemnity of Members and Salaries of the Speakers of both Houses of Parliament was taken up, and after some discussion carried.

Mr. Chauveau insisted on everything being printed in both languages, and Mr. Speaker Cockburn promised to attend to the matter.

On motion of Sir J. A. Macdonald, the Bill to amend the Act of Incorporation of the Commercial Bank, to authorize its amalgamation with any other bank or banks, or to provide for its winding up, was read a second time.

NEW BOOKS.

RESULTS OF SLAVERY.—This is a translation of a French work whose author is Cochin, and who has already distinguished himself somewhat by another book entitled the "Results of Emancipation." It is comprehensive in its plan, and takes a view of slavery, not merely in the United States, but in other countries where its baneful effects have been experienced. The conception is carefully worked out, and evinces much ability. A full supply is on hand at DAY'S Bookstore.

CASSELL'S ILLUSTRATED ALMANAC FOR 1867.—This harbinger of the Christmas tide, we think we may safely say, is one of the handsomest Almanacs that has been issued from the English press for some years. The very cover is a study. Each monthly calendar is surrounded by a floral wreath, and illustrated with the birds of the month. Besides a vast amount of useful statistical information, and a number of original engravings, there are many fac-similes of rare old paintings, one of which, "A Roman Sketch," is especially fine. For sale at DAY'S Bookstore.

HARPER'S MONTHLY MAGAZINE.—We have to acknowledge the receipt from Messrs. E. T. Tunis & Co., Clifton, of this excellent monthly magazine. It always abounds in interesting matter, and the present is an excellent number. The illustrations are elaborate. For sale at the bookstores.

ACCIDENTAL DROWNING.—The Stratford Beacon records the following case.—Early on Wednesday morning at Mr A. E. Argo was proceeding to his mills he discovered on the ice near the mouth of the mill-dam, a man's hat, and a closer inspection of the spot evidenced a hole in the ice which had frozen over. This led to an examination, and the body of a man was found in the water. The victim proved to be an old man named Edw. Scott, residing in Ellice. It is supposed he was returning home from town and thinking the ice strong enough attempted to cross

COL. ROBERT LAND.—The Hamilton Spectator has an obituary of this veteran who died in the ninety-fifth year of his age. In early life he was appointed a Justice of the Peace (a very important office in those days), and was an active administrator of justice for many years. He joined Capt. Hatt's company of Flankers, as Lieutenant, in 1812, and took part in the battle of Lundy's Lane, and also rendered very important aid in capturing the entire American force at Stoney Creek. On the breaking out of the rebellion in 1837, Col. Land (for he was by that time promoted) was put in command, but his health suffered so much in consequence that he was obliged to retire from active

Parliament of Canada.

OTTAWA, Nov. 21st.

Mr Mackenzie said the hon member for Cornwall had admitted it to himself, and all that he denied in London was that he had accepted office on condition of forming a Coalition Government. Of course there was no regular contract which could have been brought before this House. But there could be no doubt that the hon. gentleman did enter into a bargain, the design of which was to destroy his own party.

Mr McDougall said that he had listened with as much complacency as he could command to the references which had been made to himself; but since the gentleman opposite had taken so much notice of him on this occasion, he thought it well to say a word or two; he would like to know at the outset which of the gentlemen opposite he could look upon as leader of that great party which was organized as the Toronto Convention. The member for Lambton complained of his (Mr McDougall's) course throughout the election. As the Minister of Justice had remarked, if the position of the Government was right, it was their duty to the country as well as to themselves, to take every opportunity to defend their policy before the people in opposition to the assaults that were made upon it; he had visited as many counties addressed as many meetings as he could; he had a visit from his friend the member for Lambton, but that that gentleman had found his efforts fruitless, and he (Mr McDougall) was returned for that radical county by acclamation. In other places they had fought the battle, and what was the result. At the Toronto convention, to which he and his friend, the Minister of Inland Revenue, received an shabby invitation, they were told that sixty, at the very least, would be elected in opposition to the Government; but our opinion after consulting the members of the Reform party—the member for Wellington Centre among the rest—was different. They laid their case before the county, and the result was, that instead of sixty opposed to the Government, there were how many. Could they count 16? As to his personal following, he did not desire any; but he would ask the member for Lambton, where was his following. The Government had a large majority of the present House, should have so long as their policy was approved of by the House. So far as himself was concerned, he believed a large majority of the Liberal party in Ontario approved of the course which he, the Minister of Inland Revenue, and the President of the Council had taken, when they agreed to act with the members of the Cabinet.

Dr. Parker said the minister of public works had done all he could to overthrow his Liberal friends at the last elections. He admitted that Sir John A. Macdonald had a majority in the House, but the Minister of Public Works and the minister of inland revenue had not even a corporal's guard of followers. What he objected to was that there was a compact and arrangement between the two Premiers in regard to the formation of the local governments. The proceedings during the late elections in Ontario were without precedent, except it might be in the border countries in the States. He denied that the member for Cornwall ever used any unfair means to secure his support. He repeated that the Ontario cabinet was brought about by intrigue.

Hon. Sanfield Macdonald thought that his hon. friend, Mr. McKenzie, should have come to him and found whether his statements were correct, before making them in the House. He (Mr Macdonald) still stood by the declaration he made last session, that Confederation being an accomplished fact, he was prepared to give it a fair support. The member for Wellington knew perfectly well that there was no intrigue, but an honest understanding between parties. He (Sanfield Macdonald) was simply asked whether he would accept his present position. Sir John A. Macdonald corroborated Sanfield's statement respecting the formation of the Local Government. He (Sanfield Macdonald) would accept of no interference.

Hon. Mr. Howe thought the wisest way was to bury past party differences. Let them press ing and Commerce. The 62nd rule of the House was suspended in reference to the said Bill.

Mr. Masson moved an address for correspondence, Orders in Council, &c., in relation to the power of appointing Justices of the Peace.

Sir John A. Macdonald said there was no correspondence or Orders in Council between the Federal and the Local Governments respecting the appointing of Justices of the Peace. He was satisfied that the intention of Her Majesty's Government was that such appointments belonged to the Local Governments. If there were any doubts upon the subject, they could be at once removed by an Act of the Local Parliaments authorizing the Governments to issue commissions appointing magistrates.

THE MAYORALTY.

Time was when the election of Mayor for our own good town was looked forward to, and often regarded, with nearly as much interest as an anticipated Parliamentary contest. There was first as the avant couriers to the contest itself a plentiful crop of rumours in regard to the coming men. The knowing ones, who are old hands at the business, who generally get the credit of bringing out and starting the candidates, and who, of course, are thoroughly posted in all the preliminary movements, would hint darkly at, or whisper with bated breath, the names of the coming men. The younger ward politicians, who generally wish to get the credit of being deep in the confidence of these old manipulators, would affect a knowledge about these matters which when communicated confidentially, (of course) to those outside the pale of the charmed circle would excite their admiration at the statesmanship displayed, and also would quicken their curiosity to know every movement on the part of the candidates or their friends. The information thus gained would spread in a sort of under current for a few days, but gradually it would get to the surface, and soon become the common property of the ratepayers. Then the excitement would begin. The invariable canvass would be entered upon, the usual meetings would be held, when all questions pertaining to the welfare of the municipality—from impounding of pigs up to the payment of the Municipal Loan Fund—would be thoroughly ventilated. Then the hurry-burry of the election would follow, and that anxiously looked for climax being reached, the winning man would receive a temporary apothecosis, and then all parties concerned would settle down to their peaceful avocations till again called forth to enter on another election contest.

So it was in old times. But matters seem to be managed in a more decorous fashion now-a-days. The bland and smiling countenance of Mr. Palmer is no longer seen in his canvassing peregrinations. Mr. Peterson's ceaseless activity is directed to other subjects. Dr. Parker's portly corporation looms no more on the war path. For two years we have had no contest for the mayoralty. During that period Mr. Gow has proved a most efficient Chief Magistrate. He has discharged all the duties pertaining to the office in a manner which compels even the approval of those who opposed him, while it has greatly raised him in the estimation of his friends. But having been elected to represent the Riding in the Local Legislature, he has made up his mind to retire with his well-earned honours, leaving the field clear to new man. Even had he not been returned to Parliament we would have been in favour of his retiring, for we believe in giving every deserving public man a chance of filling the Mayor's chair. We have had a mechanic holding the position for the past two years, and for the two anterior to these a professional man (Dr. Clarke) performed the duties of the office. It seems now, therefore, by natural rotation, to revert to a merchant or business man. Within the past week or two we have heard several names mentioned, but it seems to be the almost universal wish of the ratepayers that Mr. N. Higginbotham should be our Mayor for next year. He is exceedingly popular with all classes of the people. He served the town for many years at the Council Board, and at the Board of School Trustees, and is therefore intimately acquainted with municipal business and every duty pertaining to the office of Mayor. To elect Mr. Higginbotham would only be to recognize his past services, and confer on him an honor which he well deserves. Although his military duties and his own extensive business fully occupy all his time, still we trust he will consent to be a candidate, and spare a little time (for it is only a little that is now required) for the interests of the Municipality. If he consents, as we earnestly trust he will, we have little doubt but that he will be elected by acclamation.

EARTHQUAKE AT PORTO RICO.

London, Nov. 22 evening.—The Italian Parliament convenes on the 5th prox. Baron Ratazzi will be made President of the popular branch. The Prime Minister, Menabrea, has issued another note, it is said, wherein the invasion of the Papal territory by France is severely denounced. The Colonial Office is informed that the disaster at Tortola has been greatly exaggerated.

Despatches announcing the safety of Dr. Livingston, the African explorer, have been received to day. In April last he was exploring the wastes of Africa, hundreds of miles from the sea coast. The Annual Supply Bill was passed by the Commons this evening.

London, Nov. 22nd.—In the House of Commons last night an effort was made to save the lives of the Manchester rioters. Mr. Maguire, the member for Cork, moved that the House interfere for a stay in the sentence of the Fenian prisoners at Manchester, and that meanwhile the points of law upon which he based his resolution be referred to the twelve highest judicial authorities of the realm. The motion gave rise to a long and exciting discussion. Mr. Maguire was supported by Henry Foxwell, member for Brighton, and Sir Geo. Bowyer, but Messrs. Hardy, Gladstone, and Kinglake made strong speeches against the motion, and it was finally withdrawn, the opinion of the House being manifestly against further consideration of the subject.

Manchester, Nov. 22.—Shore, one of the condemned Fenians, has been granted a reprieve. A public meeting was held yesterday by persons opposed to the execution of the Fenians, and resolutions to that effect were passed.

London, Nov. 22.—An orderly demonstration against the execution of the Fenians took place here last night. A large number of persons assembled at one of the public halls and passed resolutions urging the government to grant a stay of proceedings. A committee was appointed to draw up and present a petition for mercy to the Queen.

Birmingham, Nov. 22.—A large public meeting was held here yesterday to protest against the hanging of the Manchester Fenians. Some disorder occurred and riotous demonstrations were made at the conclusion of the meeting.

Manchester, Nov. 22.—The city has the appearance of being in a state of siege.—Most extraordinary precautions are taken by the government. Barricades have been erected in the streets for the protection of the troops. Regular infantry are stationed at different points in the city, and troops of cavalry which lately arrived here, are patrolling the streets. Two or three thousand special policemen are distributed among the police stations.—Clergymen have been ejected with the condemned prisoners the greater part of the day. Everything indicates beyond a doubt that the government is determined not to pardon or commute the sentences of the unfortunate men, and intends to make their execution an imposing demonstration of firmness and rigor in order to put a stop to Fenian violence and outrage.

London, Nov. 22.—To-day the committee appointed by the meeting of last night presented to the Queen, at Windsor, a petition for the postponement of the executions at Manchester. Her Majesty declined to grant the petition.

Paris, Nov. 22nd.—The official or blue book, published by the French government, has appeared. The following paragraphs are extracted.—The government will soon fix the time for the return of the French troops from Italy. The Sultan of Turkey, though he has declined to adopt the course advised by France, is endeavoring to restore tranquility and peace to the Island of Candia. The relations of France with the U. S. have regained their usual warmth. France following her old traditions, beholds with true sympathy the efforts made in America to efface the traces of civil war. Regret is expressed that the efforts of France and England to pacify the quarrel between Spain and the Republics of Chili and Peru, were made in vain. It is hoped peace will soon be restored between Paraguay and the South American powers allied against her.

Rome, Nov. 22.—Some fresh eruptions have lately been made across the Papal frontiers by small bands of Garibaldians. They were promptly met by the Pontifical troops, and in all cases speedily suppressed.

London, 22.—In the House of Commons this evening, Lord Stanley, Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, stated that the English Government had not promised, nor was it in any way bound to guarantee the bonds of the Inter-oceanic Railway Company and Honduras.

Preparations are being made in the city to observe in a peaceful manner the obsequies of the Fenians who are to suffer the death penalty to-morrow. On Sunday a funeral procession, with hearse and all the usual mourning devices, will be organized and marched to Hyde Park, where a solemn meeting will be held.

Reports that propositions have been received from the United States for the Hudson's Bay property had caused a rise in the shares of the Company.

Kingston, Jamaica, 13th.—Serious disturbances have occurred between the blacks at Falmouth on the north side of the island and the soldiers. The blacks are on trial. This is the first measure of the Government towards establishing a military force.

Havana, 22.—Two appalling shocks of earthquake had been felt at St. Johns, Porto Rico, on the 16th. The consternation among the people was terrible. Whether any damage was done by the earthquake was not ascertained. When the quake was felt, the whole island of Porto Rico was washed by a heavy sea during the hurricane.

sive privileges for twenty-five years. Naples, 21.—The eruption of Mount Vesuvius, which continued with fearful grandeur on the 14th instant, continues. The mountain is still sending forth pillars of fire from the old and newly formed craters, and the display is magnificent. There are seven streams of lava in full flow.

Execution of Fenians To-Day!

3:50 P. M. Despatches!

Manchester, 23rd.—The condemned Fenians, Allen, Larken and Gould, suffered the extreme penalty of the law in this city, at 10 o'clock this morning. The precautions taken by the Government to guard against an outbreak were effectual. Notwithstanding the prevalence of a dense fog and a drizzling rain, the crowd that witnessed the execution was very large. The city is now perfectly quiet.

THE HUDSON BAY TERRITORY.—In the Senate on Thursday, an address was passed for copies of the correspondence which had taken place between Her Majesty's Government of the late Province of Canada, the Government of the Dominion, and the Hudson's Bay Company, relative to the North West territory, and transfer of such claims, and also, copies of reports of explanations made under instructions from either of the said Governments, with the view of opening up communication with the said territory or the Red River Settlement.

The Going of my Bride.

By the brink of the river our parting was fond, But I whispered the words soft and low...

Was to go from our shore, with its headlands of years, On a water whose depths were untold...

Our farewell was brief as the fall of a tear— The minutes like winged spirits flew...

Then I spoke in one kiss all the passion of years, For I knew that our parting was nigh...

But I caught the faint gleam of an outstriving sail, And the dip of a silver-tipped oar...

All alone in my grief I now sit on the sand, Where so often she sat by my side...

NORAH CUSHALEEN

OR THE HAUNTED CASTLE.

CHAPTER XXXIV.—THE MYSTERIOUS DISAPPEARANCE OF HARGREAVE AND MARY KENDAL.

The only information to be had regarding the disappearance of Mary Kendal was of the vaguest kind. One of the men, as he sat opposite the great door of the chapel...

With frantic gesticulations the Squire commanded every one to go in search of the abductors, as he called them...

'Where's Mike?' said O'Brady, who had followed the Squire outside. 'Ay, to be sure, where's Mike?'

But no Mike responded. The fact was that as soon as Hargreave made his unexpected appearance in the chapel, he saw that the dodge about the ransom had exploded...

'The scoundrel,' said the Squire grinding his teeth. 'He's very right,' muttered O'Brady to himself.

'This is a turn up and no mistake. Not a farthing of my mortgage will I ever recover now that the marriage with Mary Kendal is impossible.'

Bad as Blantire is, he's been worse than I thought him; and a fool, too, an utter idiot to go and get really married to the peasant girl.

By the powers this is a collapse. I may as well walk away home, for it doesn't matter a straw to me who marries the Squire's daughter.

The painter fellow may have her for anything I care. He's rather clever though—he managed the surprise very well but all your beggarly adventures are clever.

though, I owe him something for his insolence to me (had I'll advise the Squire to make a will and cut the girl off without a shilling, and that will take the money cleanly out from between the fellow's teeth.

Instead of catching an heiress he'll find he's got a penniless wife to support.

Terry and Norah were as much surprised as the others at the absence of Mary and Hargreave but they at once concluded that Mary had been induced to fly with her lover, and now they would be on their way to the ruin.

As soon therefore, as the confusion in the chapel somewhat subsided, they departed, intending to proceed thither likewise.

But when they gained the high road, Norah became utterly exhausted, and could scarcely totter forward.

The fatigue, anxiety, and excitement she had undergone had given a shock to her nervous system, which utterly prostrated her, and but for Terry's strong supporting arm she would have fallen to the ground.

'Oh! let me rest awhile, Terry,' she murmured, as her trembling frame leaned heavily against his bosom.

'Och, sure and I will, Norah, darlin',' responded Terry, seating her by the side of the road.

'It's just a bit o' weakness that has come over ye. And no wonder at all, at all, for haven't ye had enough to do this blessed night.

But don't be ather botherin' yer head or yer heart either wid that thief o' a blackguard that had only to look on ye to be frightened out o' his senses.'

'I do not think of him, Terry,' she answered. 'I love him no longer. The Malvrin Blantire I loved is not the Malvrin Blantire that now is.'

Ever since that awful night when he doomed me to die, my love for him has been crushed out of my heart. But he has acknowledged me for his wife—you heard him, Terry?'

'I did, indeed, Norah, dear, but he couldn't get over it. His bad conscience wouldn't let him say no. And my boy is the heir of Blantire, she murmured, with a mother's pardonable pride.

want your head broken, ye'll just go back where he came from.

'Och, murder, don't eat me,' said the groom. 'One can't tell a colleen from a lady in the dark. Come, Barney, let us go and leave them to their sweethearts.'

'Is the strength coming back to ye, Norah alana?' asked Terry, after they had departed.

In answer to this, Norah tried to rise, but the shaking of her limbs continued unabated, and it became evident that she could not reach the ruin that night.

'But what will become of little Malvrin?' she plaintively asked. 'Oh, he will die of hunger. Isn't the cold man wid him? returned Terry, and isn't he the tender nurse?'

Sure the brave broth uv a boy won't miss you much. Lane on me, asthore, and we'll try and get down to Dundarra together.'

W.M. STEWART'S

A PIECE OF SHARP PRACTICE THAT MISCARRIED.—A singular transaction has been brought to light in connection with the affairs of an insolvent in the city, which seems to over-reach the benefit of the insolvent who has been made the victim of misplaced confidence. A merchant who recently closed his establishment, state that previous to suspending he removed a quantity of goods from his store and deposited them together with a sum of money, in the hands of another merchant with whom he was on friendly terms, with the intention of saving something from the wreck of his business. Since the effects of the insolvent were taken in charge by his creditors, he waited upon his friend to draw a portion of the money made over, but that party refused to disgorge, and positively denied that he was in any way his debtor. The insolvent then made affidavit that he had deposited money and goods as stated, whereupon a counter statement was made that the insolvent had been paid for goods in question. The creditors of the insolvent having got hold of the affair, have also, it is reported, instituted an action to recover the goods made way with. Altogether the affairs of the defunct house are exceedingly mixed. The amount of property involved in the transaction is reported to be $3,500 worth of dry goods, and $350 in cash. The insolvent merchant charged at the betrayal of confidence on the part of his supposed friend, will now testify on half of his creditors.—Hamilton Times.

The business entrusted to the Irish Church Commission is comprised in the three particulars of inquiring into the revenues connected with the bishoprics, dignities, and benefices; the number of the members of the Church of England in the various parishes; and the means of reforming present evils. The Commission has power to summon witnesses and administer an oath, as well as to examine all records and documents. It will thus be seen that the duties and powers of the Commissioners are very extensive, and some useful fruit may be expected from their labors.

The Newmarket Evil, of the 15th, inst., records the death of Joseph Gould, Esq., of Uxbridge, at one time member for North Ontario. He met with an accident the previous week, having fallen from the top of a building he was assisting to erect, as an addition to his woolen factory, by which four of his ribs were broken, and other injuries sustained, which eventually resulted in his death.

New Cannon.—A Mr. Claxton, director of the Belgian Artillery, has constructed a sort of cannon-revolver, consisting of eight cannons, which will fire 80 to 100 shots in a minute. There are only two fired a time; and when they become too hot, two others, and so on. These cannon throw grape-shot from 1,000 to 3,000 feet, according to charge. The whole is mounted upon a frame protected with sheet-iron, so that the artillerymen are sheltered.

A petition is being signed among members, asking that the first part of the session may be considered a full session, with $800 pay, and the balance in the spring, at $6 a day while at last.

Great Cure of Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia in Canada.

Sworn before me at Concession, C. W., this 2nd day of March, 1867.
J. M. CADMAN, J. P.
A Commissioner in Q. B., in and for the Co. of Prince Edward, C. W.

[Messrs. Young & Chamberlain, Sirs—Having proved within my own person that there is at last a medicine that will indeed cure Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia, I am induced to make this statement, under oath, which is to certify that I have been sorely afflicted for the last three years, according to the Doctors' statements, with Liver Complaint and Dyspepsia. I had a feeling of sinking and vague uneasiness about the stomach, worse than pain, eructations of wind, occasional I pain, drowsiness, constipation, uneasiness in the right side, headache, a poor appetite, &c., and was greatly reduced in strength. Hearing your new Indian medicine, the Great Shoshonees Remedy, spoken of so highly, I tried a bottle with your Pills, from the time I must say I found but little change, but I took another and then found my health improving. I continued to use them until I have taken about ten bottles, using the Pills, and I find that I have quite recovered. I eat hearty without pain or uneasiness. I am well and have pleasure in attending to my business. The doctor remarked to me I was looking much better. I told him that the Great Shoshonees Remedy was doing it. I have recommended the Remedy in several cases, and it has invariably given relief. I am well and have pleasure in recommending it to all afflicted as I was.]

INDIA & CHINA TEA COY.

Home Depot at London and Liverpool, Canada Depot, 23 Hospital Street, Montreal.

THE India and China Tea Company beg to call the attention of the Canadian community to their directly imported Teas, which for Purity and EXCELLENCE will be found unequalled.

The Company have made arrangements whereby they have secured the entire produce of some of the best plantations in Assam and on the slopes of the Himalayas, and by judicious blending of these magnificent Teas with the best varieties of China produce, they are enabled to offer to the public Teas of quality and flavour hitherto unknown to the general consumer. These Teas are in high favour in England and France, and a single trial will prove their superiority.

The Company supply two qualities only, either Black, Green or Mixed. Their Black Teas will be found to possess great brightness and flavour, combined with colour and strength, and to be entirely different to the flat and rapid article usually sold as Black Tea; while their Green Teas are altogether free from the deleterious mineral powder so commonly used for coloring the leaf.

PRICES: Rich, full-flavoured Tea, for family use, a real genuine and fine article, 70 cents per lb. Finest quality procurable, one dollar per lb.

To be had in packets of Quarter Pound Half Pound, One Pound, and upwards, or in tin canisters of 5 lbs. and upwards from the Company's Agents in all the chief towns of Canada.—N.B. All the packages are lined with tin foil paper, and the Tea will consequently retain its flavour any length of time.

OSTRAVA.—All packages have the Company's trade-mark, without which none are genuine.
