Mr. MACLEAN (Halifax): I was saying, when interrupted, that in this country the tariff question will be an issue for years to come. There will be exponents of high tariffs and of moderate tariffs, and there will be those who believe in the application of the principle of free trade in our fiscal life; but one thing is clear, that with the diversified interests which we have, with the lack of community of interest which we have in the extremities of this country and as between different sections of the country, it is necessary that in working out the true policy to be applied to the whole country there must be a spirit of compromise on the part of all the provinces. I would say to hon. members of the Progressive party that the present budget presented by the Minister of Finance, whilst not presenting any radical reductions in the tariff, still moves in the direction in which they desire and would have him move. In my judgment, it is a little unreasonable to have expected any greater variations in the tariff at the present time. I do not think that they are justified in reaching the conclusion that the opinions, or principles of the Minister of Finance in the direction of lower tariffs have been absolutely exhausted upon this occasion, and that there is nothing more to be hoped from him in the future. I believe the tendency the world over is in the direction of lower tariffs. Certainly, Europe will never recover her economic strength unless the countries there cease their foolish policies of the last year or two in their efforts to prevent international trading, and the economic recuperation of the most of Europe. If I am correct in my judgment of the future of other countries, namely that the tendency is in the direction of lower tariffs, and greater freedom of trade, as between the peoples of different countries, then I am justified in saying that in this country the people who believe in lower taxation upon commodities will look to the future with hope that public policy will continue to move in that direction in the future, regardless of what government is in office in this country.

I did not intend that my remarks should run to such a length. I feel that I am in the position of a man who said he did not have time to write a short letter. Unfortunately, I did not have much time to make preparation for my remarks this afternoon, and I offer that as an apology for the undue length of time I occupied addressing hon. members of this House.

Hon. HUGH GUTHRIE (South Wellington): Mr. Speaker, I rise at this late hour of the debate for the purpose of addressing the House for a few moments on some of the new features of the debate which have been placed before the House since last evening, by the amendments, or new proposals, which my hon. friend the Finance Minister (Mr. Fielding) has now laid on the Table of the House. The question, as originally presented to Parliament by the Finance Minister, has already been pretty fully discussed, and I will not attempt to add anything to that discussion, but will content myself with a few brief references to the matters which have arisen out of the remarks of my hon. friend last evening. The views of the official Opposition, who sit on your left, Mr. Speaker, in regard to the question of the budget in general, have been very fully and very ably placed before the House, and the line of action which it was proposed to take by those who constitute the official Opposition was clearly laid before the House in the speech of my right hon. friend and leader, the hon. member from Grenville (Mr. Meighen). The pronouncement of the leader of the Opposition that the Opposition felt it was its duty to oppose the budget was made after full consideration, after due deliberation, and after consultation with the members of the party sitting upon your left. However, I think we all realize that since the pronouncement was made some new and radical proposals have been made by my hon friend the Minister of Finance; and while my hon friend received many well-meant and well-deserved congratulations on the fact that he presented to this House his sixteenth budget, I think, now, perhaps, he is entitled to be congratulated on having brought down his seventeenth budget. I do not say that the course of the Finance Minister in this respect is unprecedented. I cannot speak as to that, but I do say that it is very unusual, and never before do I remember a single occasion when a Finance Minister, in the course of the budget debate, has revised practically his whole tariff proposals, or a very large proportion of them, and some of the most important questions which he originally submitted to Parliament by way of fresh resolutions.

I believe the House will agree with me that the chief criticism which has heretofore been levelled against the budget, as originally introduced, by the official Opposition, was in respect of three particular items. Certainly there has been much general criticism and much detailed criticism, but the most pointed criticism and the main objections have been directed towards three particular items in the proposals of my hon. friend the Finance Minister. First, we criticised his proposal in regard to what is known as the question of depreciated currency of foreign nations. Secondly, we criticised the proposal of the minister in regard to the question which has been referred to as the "anti-dumping" clause. Thirdly, we criticised the proposal dealing with the question known as the "marking" clause, or the regulation which requires the marking of goods imported into Canada with the name of the country of origin. These formed the main subjects of discussion, of criticism, and of opposition by those who constitute the official Opposition of this House. In regard to one of those subjects the Finance Minister has made a further pronouncement of a novel and important nature. It will be remembered that this session opened on the 8th March last, and from that date till the 23rd May, when the Finance Minister made his budget speech in this House, he had abundant time fully to consider and weigh the whole situation before presenting his proposals to Parliament. I assume he did so. I assume he was advised by his friends, and by experts competent to advise him, as to what course should be adopted in each particular instance, and he came down to Parliament on the 23rd of May, and boldly announced, amidst the acclamation of his own supporters and the very strongest manifestations of approval by hon. members of the Progressive group in this House, that the Government had decided to wipe out the provisions of the act which was passed during the last session of this House, in 1921, viz., section 8 of the Customs and Excise Act, which provided against the admission into this country of goods from countries where there was a depreciated currency, except upon a special valuation as prescribed by that section. That announcement by the Finance Minister was, I think, ill-considered. I doubt if he had made himself fully familiar with the trade situation throughout European countries when he made the announcement. It was evident that the announcement pleased a great many hon. members on his own side of the House. It was more than evident that it also pleased the Progressive party on this side of the House, indeed, I think, the hon. leader of the Progressive party, the hon. member for Marquette (Mr. Crerar), took special pains to congratulate the Finance Minister upon that aspect of his budget speech. Just how did he announce it? His language will be found at page 2188 of unrevised Hansard. He highly condemned the proposal of the former Government, contained in the statute of 1921, and then went on to say:

> So, while you keep up the pretence of a duty of 35 per cent, you are actually taxing those goods 1,000 per cent. If you want to say that German goods shall be prohibited, say so; if you shrink from saying that in such a direct way, then put on the 1,000 per cent duty; but do not humbug the world at large by pretending that we have a duty of 35 per cent when the real duty is about 1,000 per cent.

What does the Minister of Finance (Mr. Fielding) propose to do now? Does he propose to humbug the world by letting the world believe that we have a duty of only 35 per cent, when his own proposal, as I hope to show in a moment, is that we impose a duty of about 200 per cent? Why, he asks, did the former government a year ago seek to humbug the world? Why, he says, did the government in 1921 not impose a duty of 1,000 per cent? To-day I put the same question to my hon. friend the Finance Minister; I ask him: Why seek to humbug the world? Why not impose a duty of 200 per cent? Because that is practically what the Finance Minister's new proposal means. The provision of last year to which I refer is section 8 of the Customs Act of 1921, which reads:

> Notwithstanding any of the provisions of this section, in computing the value for duty of the currency of an invoice, no reduction shall be allowed in excess of 50 per cent of the value of the standard or proclaimed currency of the country from whence the goods are invoiced to Canada, irrespective of the rate of exchange existing between such country and Canada on date of the shipment of the goods; and in respect of goods shipped to Canada from a country where the rate of exchange is adverse to Canada, the value for duty of the currency of the invoice shall be computed at the rate of exchange existing between such country and Canada at the date of the shipment of the goods.

Such was the provision which Parliament passed last year. Such is the provision which the Minister of Finance in his budget of this year, proposes to annul and to repeal, and for which he last evening proposed to substitute the following—this is the resolution of which my hon. friend gave notice last night:

> 1. Resolved, That it is expedient to amend section forty of the Customs Act by providing that in the case of importations from a foreign country, the value for duty shall not be less than the value that would be placed on similar goods produced in the United Kingdom and imported from that country, if such similar goods are produced there. If similar goods are not produced in the United Kingdom, the value for duty shall not be less than the value of similar goods imported from any European country in which the currency is not substantially depreciated.

The minister may determine the value for duty of such goods, and the value so determined shall, until otherwise provided, be the value upon which the duty on such goods shall be computed and levied under regulation prescribed by the minister.

I am reading from the resolution as printed on page 2955 of unrevised Hansard. If the resolution has been correctly printed in Hansard, it goes much further than any one supposed, because it applies to every country in the world, whether the currency is depreciated or not. I fancy there is an omission or a clerical error in the print, or the resolution will have to be amended. The question is: How would this proposal work out, if adopted? We are agreed, I believe, in this House that, at the present time, currency conditions in Germany are such that the mark which, in normal times, is worth 23 cents, is to-day worth approximately only one-third of one cent. Last year, when Parliament passed the amendment to the Customs Act which I have quoted to the House, it provided that, under conditions such as these, the value of foreign currency for customs purposes upon goods imported into Canada should be not less than 50 per cent of the normal value of such foreign currency. The normal value of the mark is about 23 cents, the 50 per cent value imposed by the statute would make the mark equal to 11½ cents, whereas, to-day the mark, as I said, is actually of a value of about one-third of one cent. In order to give an illustration to the House of how the act of last session operates in regard to the duty upon imports from countries where the currency is depreciated and also how the proposal now made by the Minister of Finance will operate in regard to such duty, I am going to cite the case already cited so ably and so thoroughly by the hon. member for Centre Vancouver (Mr. Stevens) in regard to imported pocket-knives, and which will be found on the pages of Hansard. The facts given and the prices stated by the hon. member for Centre Vancouver are from reliable sources, and they represent actual transactions in the sale and purchase of pocket cutlery. I take the case of the pocket-knife merely as a single example. The same principles and the same reasoning will apply with equal force to all the other hundreds, yes thousands, of articles which Germany is now exporting and will continue to export to the Dominion of Canada if the act of 1921 be repealed. The instance of the pocket-knife will serve my purpose. Pocket-knives are manufactured and sold in Germany to-day, or they were six weeks ago, at 55 cents per dozen in Canadian money or 165 marks in German money, because 165 marks is equal to 55 cents at the present rate of exchange. The duty on such knives, before the act of 1921 came into operation, was 30 per cent. Thirty per cent on 55 cents is 16 cents, so that the duty and the cost added together would make the price of these knives 71 cents per dozen landed in the Dominion of Canada. This was the condition which Parliament had to face a year ago when it amended the Customs Act. What effect had the amendment, you ask? The amendment established a value of the German mark for customs purposes of 11½ cents. 165 German marks valued at 11½ cents are equal to $18.98 in Canadian money, and on that amount duty was calculated at the rate of 30 per cent, so that the duty in that case would be $5.69. The price of the knives in Germany was 55 cents, so that if we add the duty, the total cost laid down in Canada, duty paid, would be $6.24 per dozen, and generally speaking, the Minister of Finance was about right when he said that this would prove to be a duty of about 1,000 per cent. Such is the law as it stands to-day. It was enacted to afford protection to the workmen and the industries of Canada. The minister proposes to repeal that law and to substitute the resolution which I have just read, whereby German goods shall be valued, not according to German values or standards, but according to the value of such goods in Great Britain. Let us proceed a step further in our inquiry. The value of that identical pocket knife in Great Britain at that date was $3.65 per dozen in Canadian money. If the present resolution passes, that price, the British price, will be the established value for customs purposes of German knives. Upon that valuation duty will be computed at the rate of 30 per cent amounting to about $1.09. The cost of the dozen knives is 55 cents and the duty $1.09, so that the total cost of the knives, with the duty added, would be but $1.64 per dozen, as against the former price, including cost and duty, of $6.24 per dozen. The cost of production alone in Great Britain is $3.65 per dozen. The cost of production in Germany is only 55 cents, and with duty the whole price of the German article will be only $1.65 per dozen, or less than one-half of the actual cost of producing the knife in Great Britain. What a tremendous advantage such a measure will give Germany over Great Britain! The cost of producing the knife in Canada, I am told by gentlemen who, I believe, are good authorities, is about $4 per dozen, and the knife is sold to wholesalers at $4.75 or thereabouts per dozen. If the proposal of the Finance Minister be adopted, the result will be that Germany can sell and deliver in Canada, duty paid, not only pocket knives, but almost every other line of manufacture at prices below half the actual cost of manufacture in Canada.

Mr. CRERAR: The House will be interested to have an explanation from my hon. friend, if he can give it, as to how the Germans can produce knives at 55 cents per dozen that can be produced in Great Britain only at as low as $3.60 a dozen.

Mr. GUTHRIE: I am afraid I must ask my hon. friend to put that question to the Germans themselves, but I think it is by reason of the fact that the German mark is depreciated to the extent I mentioned,—and I got the figure which I have given from the Minister of Finance's statement —of one-third of one cent per mark; and the German mark has been stabilized within Germany by artificial means through legislation of their own. But I am not so much concerned about the causes; I am concerned now with the result. I believe, in regard to this question, in the force of the statement of the late Grover Cleveland in another connection, namely that it is a condition which confronts us and not a theory. There is an abnormal condition and we know it; and must deal with. Britain knows it; Australia knows it. They are dealing with it. How are we to meet it, or are we to meet it at all? That is the question we have to solve in this House. The former government applied a remedy by the act of 1921. But under this proposed amendment these knives will be landed here at $1.64 or $1.65 a dozen, duty paid, British knives being $3.65 without the duty added. You must add two-thirds of the duty in the case of British knives to the price I have just quoted. The British knives are identically the same. And in Canada the very same knives are manufactured at $4. They also come in from the United States at about $4.75, duty paid, as I am informed. It is the standard pocket-knife and precisely the same principle as applied to knives will apply to all other goods.

Now, how can we expect goods to be made in Canada if Germany is permitted to utilize our market under abnormal and ruinous conditions? We realized this condition as it existed last year and we promptly provided against it. It was pointed out at that time more forcibly and completely than I can point it out, and Parliament took prompt action, with little discussion. There was some objection, but I do not think the House even divided upon the question. We are still confronted with this abnormal condition, and how are we to remedy it? My hon. friend, the Finance Minister, proposes to wipe out the act of 1921 and substitute merely a half measure which will not stop the inroads of these German goods. In his first budget speech when he made the announcement that he was going to repeal the act of 1921, an announcement that was received with so much acclaim by his supporters and also by the Progressives, the Finance Minister said that these goods will come to Canada through Holland, through the United States, through Great Britain and other places. That may be; but we must try, if we can, to find the real country of origin and stop them in the way provided by the act of 1921 and by the Marking Act both of which it is proposed to repeal. As an auxiliary to our depreciated currency legislation we passed the Marking Act, the one to help the other, so that we might successfully keep track of these goods if we possibly could. Examine for a moment the effect the repeal of these acts will have upon the workmen of Canada. A telegram was shown me a short while ago in connection with the importation of aluminium goods. Germany is turning out and shipping to Canada to-day aluminium goods produced in that country at one-tenth of the cost of production in Canada. Can our factories go on in the face of such facts? What will become of our workmen? My hon. friend from Halifax (Mr. Maclean) in his able address this afternoon intimated that even free traders were generally fair traders, and that in cases of abnormal trade conditions he would see that such conditions were remedied. Well, if we are to remedy the present adverse condition which faces us we shall do it not by any half measure such as that proposed last night by the Finance Minister. A half measure is utterly worthless in such a case. The stream is flowing, these goods are coming in in great volume, and the volume will increase day by day. Last year we tried to stop it by damming the stream and raising the dam to a certain height. My hon. friend, however, proposes to destroy the dam which we erected and to build a dam only half way across the stream. What good will that do? You cannot stop the stream by building the dam half way across the channel; you must go all the way across as we did by the act of 1921. The hon. member for Vancouver Centre (Mr. Stevens) in his speech the other day suggested that if the 50 per cent valuation of foreign currency was too high it might be reduced to 35 per cent, and I thought that the Minister of Finance (Mr. Fielding) would favourably receive that suggestion. And, indeed, twice last night he rather commended the idea. But he did not adopt it. Instead, he has adopted a measure which I am afraid will give no relief at all, but which will allow German goods to come into Canada in the future at these ridiculously low prices, and Canadian factories which now manufacture any one of the thousand and one lines that will pour into this country from Germany at these absurd rates will eventually have to close down. Take the textile trades; the encroachment of the German goods in this line is increasing. Take the metal trades, in these also there is strong evidence that Germany is making a most determined effort. Last week a deputation of cigar manufacturers were in the city and interviewed my hon. friend the Finance Minister with regard to the cigar duties. Incidentally, I may remark, they saw me and some friends. They told me that many German agents are in Canada to-day seeking orders in almost every trade. They approached the cigar men and said: "Tell us the lowest prices, you pay for labels, bands, etc., and we will cut those prices by at least 25 per cent if you will give us your order."

Mr. JOHNSON (Moosejaw): Has the hon. member any information as to whether the German manufacturers import their raw material, or is it produced in Germany?

Mr. GUTHRIE: I suppose that some of the raw material they use must be imported, but I think a large part of it is produced in Germany.

Mr. JOHNSON (Moosejaw): For the raw material they import, would they not have to pay prices comparable with the valuation of the mark in the country from which they get that material?

Mr. GUTHRIE: Yes, I think they would have to, in the case of articles imported. I am free to confess that I cannot fathom their methods but the fact is that they are doing it, and I know what Australia did to meet the unfair competition. My hon. friend from Vancouver gave instances of goods, made in Germany, selling in Australia at ridiculously low prices, and the Australian government took prompt steps, deciding to admit those goods but to value them for customs purposes according to the Australian standard of values. Why should we not adopt the Canadian valuation in this instance? I ask my hon. friend that question. Why take the British standard? Why not take the Canadian standard? There is a bill now before Congress at Washington—it has not yet passed, but it is a part of the tariff proposals, or at least it is proposed by somebody—to adopt the American valuation for customs purposes in the United States. I repeat, why should we take the English valuation in this case and not the Canadian? Or why not simply readjust, if you like, the act of last session, which was absolutely fair in principle? It might possibly have been too high, but if 50 per cent is considered unreasonable it might be reduced to 35 or 30 per cent, or whatever might be thought proper. Why not amend the Act of 1921. By doing so you would absolutely control abnormal trade conditions and give industries of this country a fair chance to compete. This danger is only incipient. The tide has only just started to flow. The year before last our imports from Germany were about $1,500,000, and last year up to the 31st of March last, I see by the trade reports, they passed the $2,000,000 mark. This is the year they are expected to climb, and I believe that under the halfway measure proposed by the Minister of Finance they certainly will climb to a very large amount. I doubt very much whether German goods are coming in to Canada from Holland. The most recent trade figures would not warrant that assumption. The year before the Act of 1921 came into operation our importations from Holland were larger than they were last year. I am informed that German goods may and do come into Canada from Great Britain, and they come also from the United States. Let us consider for a moment the exceptionally favourable position the German mnaufacturer is in. If my hon.

friend's proposal should pass this House, these pocket-knives to which I have referred can be landed in Canada, in round figures, at $1.65 a dozen, as against $3.65 a dozen, with duty added, for British knives, and $4 a dozen for Canadian-made knives. Why, the German can undersell us by $1 or $1.50 a dozen and still make 100 per cent to 200 per cent profit clear and aboveboard for himself.

Mr. CANNON: Is the value of the German mark fixed by any Canadian authority? If not, by whom is it fixed at one-third of one-cent?

Mr. GUTHRIE: I believe that is the international scale, but I have taken the values which I have given from the statement given to the House by the Minister of Finance, and it is the value accepted by all banks. Now, I have enlarged somewhat upon this point, in the hope that I might explain it as fully as possible, and I leave the House to deal with a feeling in my own mind that a very grave trade situation may arise in the near future in Canada if the Government persists in repealing the Act of 1921 without providing other adequate means for dealing with the situation. The resolution proposed by the Finance Minister last night in my judgment utterly fails to meet the situation. It is not even a partial remedy. Under its operation German goods will flow into Canada, Canadian industry will suffer, and Canadian workmen will be thrown more and more out of employment. I have indicated as clearly as I can a way out of the trouble. The way suggested by my hon. friend in his amended resolution does not meet the difficulty. Certain it is that the Finance Minister was entirely wrong when he came to the House on the 23rd May last with his original proposal. Certain it is that when he announced with so much acclaim that the late government were humbugging the people by the legislation of 1921 and suggested that we should have put on a duty of 1000 per cent if we had been candid, surely at that time he did not understand the situation himself. The Finance Minister now proposes what is equivalent to a duty of about 200 per cent against German goods. I would not ask him if in so doing he merely intends to humbug the people, but I do ask him most sincerely to adopt the present law as the best method of dealing with the situation and, if 50 per cent is too high, reduce it and put on what percentage is considerd proper.

Let me pass to the next point namely the anti-dumping clause. That particular law was originally introduced by my hon. friend the Minister of Finance in the year 1907. I well remember the occasion. I thought at the time, and I still think, that the principle embodied therein was a wise one; but the difficulty was to apply the law. It is the same difficulty which confronts my hon. friend in regard to Germany's depreciated currency. He admits that the principle of last year's legislation was good; that he realizes that a difficult and abnormal trade condition exists but he fails to apply a proper remedy. That was the trouble with the anti-dumping clause of 1907. The object of the law was good but the machinery for its enforcement was defective. The act provided that goods entering Canada were to be valued at the fair market value in the country of origin; but the difficulty was to get at that fair market value. I do not know how many cases were actually traced and tested of goods imported from the United States or any other country into Canada but I am informed that they were very few and very far between, and the reason given was the difficulty of ascertaining the correct value of the goods in the foreign markets. Men would make a few wash or fictitious sales of their goods, one, two, or three sales at ridiculously low prices, and by such means establish the market value. Then they would ship tremendous quantities of the goods into Canada invoiced at those ridiculous and fictitious prices and ask to pay duty on such prices, and when investigators were sent out to ascertain the fair market value, those fictitious sales would be pointed to as establishing it. That was where the law was defective.

A critical situation arose in Canada last year, more critical, I think, in regard to the fruit trade than to any other industry. It was found by the fruit men and the vegetable men all along the shores of lake Ontario and lake Erie from Toronto to Windsor—probably also by the fruit men of British Columbia, although I do not know very much about the situation out there—that by reason of the fact that the American crop ripens two or three weeks ahead of the Canadian crop tremendous quantities of fruit and vegetables became piled up at the peak load period in the United States markets—at Buffalo and other fruit points the express company's stations, sheds and warehouses were full and overflowing, and the question was to find a market. The price had dropped to next to nothing, there was a great slump, and the fruit was shipped into Canada just at a period when the Canadian crop was at its best and should command the highest price. As it was in fruit, so it was in vegetables. Under all the circumstances the government thought well to introduce an amendment, which is known as Section 7 of the Customs Act of 1921, and which provides as follows:

> Provided that the value for duty of used or unused goods shall in no case be less than the actual cost of production of similar goods at the date of shipment direct to Canada, plus a reasonable profit thereon; and the Minister of Customs and Excise shall be the sole judge of what shall constitute a reasonable profit in the circumstances.

Instead of the anti-dumping clause contained in the act of 1907, which provided that the value for customs purposes should be the fair market value, the new act of 1921 provided that it should be the cost of production plus a fair margin of profit. I had never heard any complaint as to the efficacy of that act until the Minister of Finance on the 23rd May last complained that it was unworkable. I had never heard it charged that the act was unworkable or not working; in fact, I had always heard it commended by fruit men as having been of enormous benefit to them, for it stopped the shipment of fruit into this country from the United States at slump prices at a time when the market in the United States was glutted. When the United States growers find themselves with large quantities of fruit on hand at the middle or end of their season and prices have gone down to rock bottom, they ship it over to Canada just when our new fruit is coming on to the market. Is it a great hardship that such fruit shall be valued at its real cost of production in the United States rather than at slump prices? Is not that a reasonable basis for customs valuation in this country? That is all which the law of last session provided. That is all we ask to have maintained in the present law. But my hon. friend the Finance Minister has disregarded our plea; he has brushed it aside merely stating that the enactment was unworkable and that the Minister of Customs cannot apply it. I feel sure that the Customs officials will find a satisfactory way to apply this law if they are permitted to do so. Therefore we ask that this act be not repealed. But in his amended resolutions given to the House last night I am sorry to see that the Finance Minister has given no indication that the anti-dumping clause is to be continued.

[Mr. Guthrie.]

My third point is practically in conjunction with the first point. The law of 1921 which provides for the marking of goods with the country of origin must be read and taken in connection with the other questions of importation from countries where a depreciated currency prevails. I do not contend, neither did the Minister of Finance (Sir Henry Drayton) contend last year, nor will anyone else on this side of the House contend that all goods imported can be so marked. It is impossible to do so in some instances. But in the vast majority of cases these goods can be marked with the country of origin. This was just an additional safeguard to the workmen and to the industries of this country. Now my hon. friend the Minister of Finance seeks with a wave of the hand to remove this safeguard. I thought he was going to reconsider his decision on this point after the matter had been so ably discussed during the debate, but evidently he is not inclined to do so. We look upon the Marking Act as a most important factor in regard to the regulation of trade from these countries of Central Europe where on account of depreciation of currency ruinous competition can be set up against the Dominion. It would help Canada very much if all our citizens could know the country of origin of the goods which they buy. Who objects? Only the importer, only the wholesaler, only the jobber, only the shopkeeper. The purchaser does not object; he would like to know. Why not let him know in all cases where it is practicable? But my hon. friend brushes this provision aside also. It would not perhaps be so bad if he proposed to repeal the whole enactment. But what has he done? Virtually he says, "No, this is not a matter upon which Parliament should deliberate. The Government will keep a string on this marking requirement, and do it by Order in Council. The Government will retain power to act by Order in Council and require the marking of goods as the government may see fit. The Government will now do the very thing which we have condemned during the last five years in Parliament and out of Parliament on the part of the former government. The government will govern by Order in Council. Why should not Parliament decide that, and not the Government? Parliament is perfectly competent to do so—the only competent body, in fact. Look at the opportunity which the Order in Council method offers for wrong-doing

No one suggests that the Government would do wrong. Far it be from me to make such a suggestion. But governments and members of governments are only human; under the proposed Order in Council system there will be an opportunity to favour your friends and to penalize your opponents. Should any government have that power, that privilege, or that right? I submit that is a matter upon which Parliament alone should exercise control, and it would be far better and far more in the interests of the country, if my hon. friend is determined to repeal the Marking Act, to wipe out the whole of it and not to retain in the hands of the Government the power to put the provisions of the act into operation by Order in Council.

These are the only three points which I desire to discuss. Having given these three proposals the very best consideration which I can give to them, and having discussed them and considered them with my friends, and particularly with my leader, I can only say—and I think I can speak for those who sit in the official Opposition in this House—that these budget proposals are not satisfactory; that they are thoroughly unsatisfactory, and also unbusinesslike. In my judgment the Government proposals cannot be viewed as measures either for the general or particular advantage of Canada, if carried into effect these proposals will result in a direct discrimination against the trade of Canada, against the workingmen in the shops of Canada and likewise against the established industries of Canada. For these and other reasons, I cannot support the budget.

At six o'clock the House took recess.

After Recess

The House resumed at eight o'clock.

Mr. ALFRED SPEAKMAN (Red Deer): Mr. Speaker, I do not know whether it is altogether incumbent upon me or any other member of the House to speak now on the budget as the subject has been so thoroughly covered, and viewed from almost every angle; yet there is always some point which may have escaped notice, perhaps always some slightly different slant which may be taken at some of the proposals presented.

I come here, as you all know, a man from the prairies. I am not ashamed of that fact. In fact, I am rather proud to say that I come from the province known as Sunny Alberta. It is natural that I should to a large extent express the sentiments of the people of that province and of the people living in the constituency which sent me here, but, Sir, since coming here I have endeavoured to learn a little more of the country in which I live. I have endeavoured to take as broad a view as possible of the country, so that I may not only serve the interests of my own constituents, those whose interests I know, but that I may as far as I can take part in the government of a great and united Canada. I have endeavoured in my own mind to understand the problems of other sections of the country, so that I might take a comprehensive view of the country as a whole and speak or work, or both, for the interests of the country as a whole.

For some time, from different sides of the House, we have heard the accusation hurled at us that the prairies are somewhat selfish. I am frank to admit that perhaps that accusation has some foundation in truth. I am less ashamed of that fact because I have not found an absolutely unselfish feeling pervading the rest of the House from other parts of Canada. I have not noticed when matters relating, say, to the maritime provinces, are under discussion, that members from that part of the country are inclined to take an absolutely unprejudiced view of those things, and so with British Columbia and the other provinces. As a matter of right, hon. members think in the terms of the country which they understand. Why, on hearing from the city of Toronto, you might almost say that the atmosphere was slightly Torontonian. So I am beginning to think it is not a matter to be ashamed of, not a matter for regret, that any one should express first, and perhaps most firmly, the opinions and the attitude of the people whom he represents. He can, besides, I think, speak with more authority, with more knowledge, and with more intelligence, when he confines himself to some extent to the interests of the country in which he lives and the pursuit which he follows.

I must, of course, discuss this budget somewhat from the point of view of how it affects the prairie provinces. I shall try, however, not to confine my ideas entirely to the prairie provinces, and shall do my best to be fair in my own mind to the interests of other parts of Canada. In the prairie provinces we feel that any budget which is based upon the principle of protection, or which largely involves that principle, is bad for us. Perhaps that is a selfish view, but it is an absolute fact.

More than that, I think this House recognizes that it is a fact which should be taken into consideration, because I believe that on the development and prosperity of those prairie provinces depends to quite an extent the future of this fair Dominion. I think that is a fact which will bear repetition. It is a fact which has not been contradicted. It is a fact which has been stated from all parts of the House that at some time in the future the majority of the population of this country will lie in the West, and that the future of this country will lie in the hands of the West. That being the case, there are two aspects which must be considered in dealing with the West.

The first is that, compatible with the interests of Canada as a whole, the prairie provinces should be given the opportunity of the fullest possible development. They should be given the opportunity of becoming prosperous, of attracting the best class of population, and of securing so far as possible the success and prosperity of that population when it gets there. Secondly, I believe that in the interests of Canada it would be a fatal mistake in any way to antagonize that western country by unthinking, unfair treatment.

How does the protective tariff affect the province in which I live? In the first place —I am not going into this argument at any length, but shall only give a resume—the protective tariff does without a doubt, even in the opinion of those who most favour that policy, increase to some extent the cost of living. It increases, also, to a large extent the cost of production. Now, that is an undoubted fact. The only question is whether that is balanced by benefits accruing to the country from that system. Why does it increase the cost of living? Simply because, whenever a tariff is put on any article entering into any country, it is put on for the purpose of allowing the manufacturers of the same article within that country to increase their price. It seems to me that is the object of protection. I was somewhat interested by a statement made by an hon. member on the opposite side of the House, that in one branch of the textile industry, I think it was, the manufacturers of the particular article did not take advantage of the tariff: that is, they sold on an average, due to internal competition, at about the same level of prices as obtained in the great country to the south of us. That statement interested me very much. I am not going to challenge the truth of it, because, no doubt, he is in a position to know much better than I whether it is true or not, and, in all likelihood, he made the statement in good faith. But, if the manufacturers of those articles at the present time are not taking advantage of the tariff, are not raising their prices to the level of the tariff, and are not depending upon that protection, why, in the name of common sense, do they raise this cry that the removal of a part of the protection which they are not using, according to their statement, would ruin their industry? I cannot understand that. Looking at it from the point of view of common sense and ordinary logic, if the one statement is correct, the other cannot be; and if the statement that it would ruin their industry is correct, then they must be taking advantage of it, in order to get high prices. As a matter of fact, I believe that great apostle of protection, that fine man and eminent public statesman—although I do not agree with all his opinions—Sir George Foster, made that statement in the House. When the statement that the manufacturers raised the prices of their goods because the tariff was discussed, he said "Why, of course, they do. The protective tariff is for the purpose of raising the price, and that is what they have it there for." It goes without saying that that protection raises the cost of living.

What corresponding benefit accrues to us, to offset these disadvantages? It is well known the price of everything we sell is set by the export market. It is not assisted, or altered in any form whatever, by that tariff. Therefore it follows—and I think it has been admitted by some of the previous speakers—that, in the prairie provinces, at least, protection is practically an unmixed evil—that we suffer under the disadvantages of protection, and also under the disadvantages of free trade. That, Mr. Speaker, is our point of view. But since coming here—and I will say to some extent before coming here—I have recognized that, in a country of this great extent, containing as it does, such a diversity of interests and such a diversity of opinions, any government must be a government of compromise. I do not mean a compromise of principle. I do not suggest that any individual must compromise his principles, or his feelings of what is right or wrong, but I say if people come together from all parts, with different opinions, the only way they can get on any common ground, and the only way they can arrive at any sane method of government, is by some policy of give and take—some compromise. I intend to go into that a little further a little later on.

I want to speak, for a moment, upon the principle of the tariff, as a means of taxation. I have begun to think that I must be one of those cranks who believe that a tariff, as a means of raising taxes any further than is necessary—for instance, the sales tax as a means of raising revenue, if you carry it further than absolutely necessary,—is a wrong system. I believe a commodity taxation of any kind is founded essentially and fundamentally upon a wrong conception of taxation altogether. I know that that is a very broad statement to be made by a man as inexperienced as I am, but I have looked upon it from, perhaps, only one point of view,—the point of view of the poor man in this country. I have looked upon it, not only from the point of view of the struggling farmer, but, since coming east, I have been in some of the great factories of the country, and have seen the women and girls working steadily in the factories on a very uninteresting job—for what? The means of a poor living. That is what it amounts to, and it is because of having seen those people, and the fact that the protection of, the commodity means that they are compelled to pay more for the means of subsistence, more for their clothing and boots and shoes to keep the wet from their feet, that I have come to the conclusion it is wrong. I believe I touched once before upon the commodity tax, as it affected the population of this country—the immigration to this country, if you like to call it that. I believe I said that, in my opinion, and in the opinion of most people in the House, the most desirable class of population in this country, or in any country, was the native born population; that, in fact, we should follow, as far as we could, our friends of the fair province of Quebec, and build up a vigorous and numerous population by our own efforts, and any fiscal policy to my mind should be framed with the idea of encouraging the creation of such population.

But does a commodity tax do that? Why, Mr. Speaker, the commodity tax acts as a great deterrent against such increase of population. It places an absolute premium upon bachelors and old maids, for the very obvious reason that people are taxed as a penalty for having children. That sounds like a strong statement, but I believe it is absolutely true. I do not think it is intentional, but it is absolutely incidental to any commodity tax. As I said before, the father and mother of a family know that from the moment the baby is born they have to buy boots and shoes, clothes and everything else for it. Under our system of commodity taxation they are taxed on those articles, and that, simply, means that, for every additional child in the family, they have to pay an additional tax, and, if that is not a baby tax, what is it? I am not a protectionist, and, I think, perhaps hon. members have gathered that fact already; but there is one industry in this country that deserves protection and should receive it, and that is our own infant industry. I shall stand—and I hope I always shall—for the protection of that industry, and for the encouragement of large families.

There is another point of view from which the farmers at least look upon the tariff as possibly an unmixed evil. The hon. member from Halifax (Mr. Maclean) made one of the finest and most statesmanlike speeches for three quarters of the time during which he spoke that has been heard since the House met, and in the course of his remarks he made the absolutely true statement that, in regard to international commerce between countries, goods must be paid for with goods; in other words, we must import in order that we can export. We, in our market, depend absolutely upon our export market. We know that a protective tariff, by restricting the importation of goods from the countries to which we would sell our produce, restricts our possibility of selling. So, not only does a protective tariff increase the cost of our production, but it restricts our market and reduces our price for what we have produced. That is another reason why we object to it from the point of view of the prairie. I have noticed with some interest, a disposition from different parts of this House to look upon the West as a market placed there by Divine Providence for their goods. We are willing to buy their goods; we need their goods; the mutual trade and commerce between provinces is just as beneficial as that between nations; but we cannot see that that is the only reason why we were placed in the world. We cannot see that our only object in life is to provide a carefully conserved market for any of our friends, however pleasant gentlemen they may be and however unselfish may be their views, and we rather protest against being looked upon from that point of view.

An hon. MEMBER: Louder.

Mr. SPEAKMAN: I will speak louder presently. We have been accused of selfishness—and speaking of their unselfishness has reminded me of this—and why? Because we object to having to live indefinitely under a policy from which we receive no benefit and for which we have to pay the price. That is why we are looked upon as being selfish. May I ask those other hon. gentlemen: Is it any more selfish to wish that as we have to stand on our feet, they should have to stand on their feet, than to wish that any particular interest should be bonused in order that it might be able to carry on successfully? I am not accusing them of selfishness; but if there was a question between the selfishness of free and fair trade and the selfishness of those who prefer a protective policy, I think any honest, impartial jury would say that, if there was any choice, those who favoured a protective policy would be a little the more selfish of the two. As I say, however, I do not intend to throw any slurs at any one else; I am simply answering what we consider to be rather an unfair insinuation or assertion against ourselves.

Since I have come here and during this debate, I have been endeavouring, in order to be fair, to imagine myself for a moment in the place of the Minister of Finance (Mr. Fielding). I am quite aware that this is rather a presumptuous flight of imagination; but if we are going to try to get anything at all, we must endeavour to put ourselves into the other fellow's place and to look at things for a little while through his eyes. I considered what I would do, were I by some peculiar freak, placed in a position where I would have to carry a policy into effect and to impose that most unpopular thing, taxation, upon the people. I quite agree with the Minister of Finance that any one who taxes other people is a most unpopular gentleman, and more than that I quite agree that, in the opinion of most people, there is only one fair method of taxation in the world, and that is the method that leaves us alone and makes the other fellow pay it all. This makes me more moderate in my statements. Looking at this matter from the point of view of revenue alone, if I believed that protection was not a right principle, as the present Minister of Finance has stated in his opinion, and if I were endeavouring to raise revenue and at the same time endeavouring to go against the principle of protection, I would see if I could not balance these two things, and my suggestion would be that instead of a sales tax, an excise duty be placed upon those articles within our country that were protected by too high a tariff. That is not a very popular sentiment; but I believe it is absolutely just. We have heard it stated that, had it not been for the attitude of the United States, in all probability our tariff against the United States would be lower. That means that it could be lower without damaging our own interests. If it could be lower and if the present attitude of the United States makes it unprofitable or unwise to lower the tariff, why not, to some extent, do away with some of that protection on the Canadian side by imposing an excise tax and thus take off some of the surplus profits that may accrue? I believe that is sound. Although I am a free trader in principle, I am not one of those who believe that we can step in at a moment's notice and change the fiscal policy of this country right around. I believe, however, that we could make a very material advance in that direction and that we could serve notice upon those interests that are protected at the present time, that they must put their house in order, because, bit by bit, inevitably, just as sure as death and taxation, the tariff is going gradually to come down and they are going to be thrown on their feet to fight out their own salvation.

In connection with that and in connection with another matter, I was very much interested in following the debate regarding depreciated currency in other countries. I am not an expert in depreciated currency, and I am not going to discuss the matter from that aspect. But one thing struck me very forcibly during the debate and during the remarks of some of our speakers to the right, and that was this. According to their statements, manufactures in Germany, which was singled out as the shining example, were apparently able to manufacture and deliver goods at from one-quarter to one-tenth of the cost of manufacture in this country. I cannot quite understand that, when we consider that a large quantity of their raw material must be imported. But if that be a fact, I have this suggestion to throw out to hon. gentlemen to my right, in return for many suggestions that we have received in the past as regards better methods of farming, that the Government should send a commission to Germany to find out how they do those things, or that the Government should establish a school of manufacturing in this country and bring over a German professor or two to instruct our manufacturers. If the Germans can produce manufactured articles at so much less than the cost of manufacture in Canada, and live happily, cheaply and apparently comfortably while they are doing that, their methods are well worth studying; some of our manufacturers might well take advice from them, might study their methods, and then they would not need a protective tariff at all. That is only a suggestion, because I always hesitate to advise another man how to conduct his business, although I notice other men are not always so reticent about advising us.

There are two other matters I want to touch on very briefly, not so much in connection with the tariff itself, as in connection with other matters which come up under the budget. In the Speech from the Throne, part of which I admired very much, whatever I may have thought of it since, in referring to agriculture, His Excellency, speaking, I presume, as the mouthpiece of the Government, said that in order to encourage agriculture, they must necessarily proceed along three lines: better marketing facilities; lower transportation costs and lower costs of production. In our opinion, lower costs of production, to a large extent, lie in the hands of the fiscal policy. We may, to some extent, be wrong in that view; but I believe lower costs of production can only be brought about by permitting us to buy our means of production more cheaply. The subject of transportation has been so thoroughly touched upon that I do not intend to go into it at any length at all. I can only say this, that I wish all success to the efforts of the Government in that respect. I believe, not only is their policy sound, but it will eventually prove to be the right policy. I am speaking of the official policy of the Government, that is the policy of absolutely co-ordinating their lines, of cutting out unnecessary competing lines, of cutting down expenditure as far as possible and of making the shortest haul with the heaviest tonnage possible. I think that can be done; and when the time comes—as I trust it will be soon—I hope they will have branch lines built as active feeders so that the products of the West may be carried to this end of Canada. As the matter of marketing is one that is of great significance in view of some work that is going on in this House at the present time, we most sincerely hope that when the proper time comes the Government will be prepared to implement that suggestion in the Speech from the Throne and support us in our efforts to bring about a better system of collective marketing.

Now, I think I have covered all I intended to say to-night. I had no intention of speaking for more than twenty minutes, but I shall say a word or two as to the manner in which the budget meets my views, personally, at least. I have said that I believe the government of this country can only be a government of compromise. That is my opinion. But what is compromise? Compromise is a matter of give and take, is it not? It is a matter of one man going part of the way and the other man going the other part to meet him. It is the balance of opinions between two adverse views, meeting on common ground somewhere near the centre. And in that respect I very much regret to say that the budget does not constitute, to my mind, one of fair compromise; because I believe that it calls upon us who are opposed to the principle of protection to take about ten minutes' walk to meet what has been aptly termed a mere footstep or a shuffle in our direction. I do not feel that that can fairly be called a compromise. I am well aware that what steps have been taken have been taken in the right direction. I am well aware of that. But I do not think for one moment that it can properly be said that these reductions have changed the previous budget from a protectionist budget into one for revenue only. In other respects, I found myself in perfect harmony and agreement with the statement of the Minister of Finance (Mr. Fielding). With his efforts towards reciprocity, I had, and I think we all had, the fullest and most complete sympathy, and I can tell hon. gentlemen on the other side of the House that the one outstanding, saving grace in the history of the Liberal party in the last twenty years, at any rate in my opinion, was the fact that they went down honourably to defeat in what was the greatest move that had been made up to that time towards free trade. During our campaign in the West, where we fought about as hard with the Liberals as we did with Conservatives, and where practically every contest was a three-cornered fight, I was asked what I thought of the Liberal party. That is a hard question to ask me, especially as asked by a Conservative. However, I said that as far as I could judge, taking their past record into account, the only difference between that party and the Conservative party consisted in their stand in the 1911 election; and that, as a matter of fact, the worst thing I had ever heard said against them—and I have heard some mighty hard things—was that they were nearly as bad as the Conservatives.

Mr. GRAHAM: That was going far enough.

Mr. LAPOINTE: Not guilty.

Mr. SPEAKMAN: That, at all events, was the point of view of those whose opinions I had learned; and whether it will be greatly altered for the better by the present budget I cannot say. But from my own feelings in the matter, and from the messages I have received from the West, I should judge it has not altered greatly. No one, of course, is wholly black or wholly white, and there were varying shades of opinion with regard to the Liberal party. Some thought that it was a little lighter shade of grey than the Conservative party.

An hon. MEMBER: Muddier.

Mr. SPEAKMAN: Perhaps muddier. And speaking of mud, that reminds me of something that happened a few days ago. An hon. member to our right made an attack on our organization as a whole, and on our leader (Mr. Crerar) in particular. I was sorry the hon. member for Marquette was not present at the time to answer for himself. The attack had reference to the fact that when in private life he was engaged in the commercial pursuit of handling a large grain company, a most heinous offence indeed. I thought at the time that the statements that were made in the House bore a strange similarity to the contents of a number of pamphlets that used to flood the western country during the election. Why, we waded knee deep in them. Of course, they were anonymous pamphlets; like illegitimate children, whom no man would own, they were laid at our doorsteps. But there was a strange similarity between the utterances of one or two hon. gentlemen on our right and the contents of these pamphlets, which invariably wound up with the entreaty to "Vote for Meighen and save the country". And I began to wonder whether those hon. gentlemen had anything to do with those pamphlets. There is a homely adage that when you see shells you suspect the presence of eggs. Perhaps my suspicions are unfounded, and I hope they are; but I have suspicions. Well, there was one answer to those pamphlets that flooded the West, and that answer was emphatic. From the whole West, which was interested particularly in the grain trade, and which knew more exactly the untruth of the assertions contained in those pamphlets, not one single member of the party supposed to be responsible for those pamphlets was returned to this Parliament. On the other hand, almost a solid delegation of men came in support of the leader whom hon. gentlemen have attempted to malign. That was the answer given by the prairie provinces to those allegations, and it shall continue to be the answer which those provinces shall give in the future to allegations of that nature, from whatsoever source they come.

Now, I have stated rather briefly that I do not altogether admire the budget, and I may say even more briefly that I have absolutely no use for the amendment that has been offered. It is all very well for any party to climb to the mountain tops of morality and therefrom deliver sermons directed towards their political opponents, and to offer advice on public morality to members of this group. I can say quite safely that I am not particularly seeking inspiration on questions of political morals from hon. gentlemen to my right. Mind you, I do not say that they are much worse than other gentlemen, but we are not seeking advice there. An hon. gentleman suggests that we are not seeking it at all. Well, perhaps we are not; we have not been in public life long enough to have lost our own morality. However, that is simply a passing jest; it is merely by the way. I have no intention, I can assure you, Mr. Speaker, to cast any slurs on men in this House, because there is one thing that I have learned, if nothing else, that will be useful to me since coming to this Parliament, and that is that the average decency, morality and common sense in this House is at least equal to the average decency, morality and commonsense outside. And that remark I mean to apply to all three corners of this House. As I have got more acquainted with the men who compose this Parliament, I have come to the conclusion that even the devil is not as black as he is painted; and you will find a sense of public duty and a desire to do what is right all over the House. But I also think that that sense and that desire have become somewhat perverted and distorted by the unfamiliarity of some hon. gentlemen with the whole of Canada. At least, they are not as familiar with Canada as they would lead us to think they are. I believe that half of the trouble and the differences of opinion in this House could be adjusted if we could only know one another better; and that is one reason why I enjoyed my trip to Montreal and Quebec city, because I believe that if we could get to know one another better and understand our problems better we would have more sympathy one for the other, and I believe that with greater sympathy would come closer co-operation, and in that closer co-operation of honest, decent-thinking men lies the salvation of the country.

Since coming here I have been working somewhat intensively on the soldier's special committee, and I am going to speak of that committee from one standpoint only. Over the door of our committee room is the inscription, "Abandon politics all ye who enter here."—metaphorically speaking of course. And we have abandoned politics absolutely. Conservatives, Liberals and Progressives—we all mix with one another there. No man is regarded from the party standpoint, but we all meet there on common ground, each anxious to distinguish between right and wrong, to contribute his quota to the common stock of knowledge, and so reach a conclusion as to what is best to do under all the circumstances. My experience on that committee has often made me think that what has happened there is very much like a fulfilment of my dream of Parliament in the days gone by.

Now, Mr. Speaker, you will say that that is the dream of an idealist, and although I know I shall be looked down upon by some gentlemen here, I will admit that I am an idealist. And I will go a step further than that: I believe that no man has much business in our public life who is not to some extent at least an idealist. Because when all is said and done, what is an idealist? Is not he the man who has an ideal of conditions which shall be a little better, a little fairer, a little cleaner, a little juster than existing conditions? I say, God help the man who has no such ideal, who thinks that everything in this world is right just exactly as it is at the present moment, because that man is past all human help.

I am sorry in more ways than one not to be able to approve or to support the budget of the hon. Minister of Finance. As I sit here in my place and look across the floor at that honourable gray head, and think of the years of honest, clean public service which he has given to his country—as many years as I have numbered during my whole life—I can assure you, Mr. Speaker, that it is very difficult for me to criticize the owner of that head. And I am not now criticizing that man, at least I try not to speak unfairly or harshly. I cannot approve of his ideas or of the budget he has brought down, but so far as he himself is concerned, I respect and honour him.

Mr. JEAN J. DENIS (Joliette): Mr. Speaker, at the outset of my remarks it is a duty as well as a pleasure for me to join those who have preceded me in offering my tribute of homage to the hon. Minister of Finance (Mr. Fielding). Perhaps all hon. members are not aware that the hon. gentleman has been a Minister of the Crown for about thirty years either in the province of Nova Scotia or in the Dominion. I am told that this record is unequalled in the British Empire to-day.

Coming down to the budget, in my opinion it is, generally speaking, satisfactory. We must not forget that the good old days have passed, and I am sure the hon. Minister of Finance has had more worry and more labour preparing this budget than perhaps he had in preparing the fifteen other budgets which he has had the distinction and honour of presenting to this House. In 1911, a new government came into power, the government of our Conservative friends, and later this country joined the Allied powers in that world-wide war which cost so much in life and treasure. The expenses of that war increased our national debt eight times beyond what it amounted to when the Liberal party left office in 1911, and unfortunately our successors did not take the care they should have taken in looking after our national expenditure so that to-day our financial burden is very heavy indeed.

The old Liberal chieftain of 1911 is no more, but the man who was his right arm, who was his Finance Minister for fifteen years, is still with us, and representing in himself the genius of the man who is gone as well as his own, and he is to-day presenting the most satisfactory budget that can be presented under the circumstances.

I have every sympathy for my hon. friends obliquely opposite. Unfortunately they are not satisfied with the budget. But, Mr. Speaker, after listening to various speeches from that quarter of the House I have asked myself several times: What is it that would satisfy them? These hon. gentlemen have come here with theories; they do not grasp the facts—at least, they do not as far as national events are concerned. They are interested in whatever may concern their own respective provinces, but in my humble opinion they have failed to comprehend the situation from a national standpoint.

Coming back to the old Tory party, it was unfortunate for the country that the unavoidable increase of our national debt should have been aggravated by the extravagance, I might even say the foolishness, which characterized their administration of the affairs of the Dominion. Of course, we all acknowledge, as I have just said, that a great proportion of our expenses incurred during the war was unavoidable. But could they not have avoided buying the Canadian Northern and the Grand Trunk and placing on the shoulders of the people annual deficits of from $70,000,000 to $100,000,000? I assert that they could have avoided that course, and they must bear the responsibility of their action. Could they not have avoided building the Canadian Government Merchant Marine that they are so proud of? And they are the only ones that are proud of it, for I have never known any one outside the late government and their followers to take any pride in that exhibition of government folly. They gave contracts to the amount of $70,000,000, without tenders, for the construction of the ships comprised in the merchant marine. It looks suspicious, Mr. Speaker, to see a government build a merchant marine at a cost double the amount at which the ships comprising it could be bought in England or in other countries. We all know that the Canadian merchant marine is hardly worth fifty cents on the dollar, if it is worth that. The Canadian people, after all the sacrifices they have made in blood and money, could not reasonably be expected under the circumstances to bear the burden involved in this project; so I say on that score again the late administration was faulty.

Then, the late government lent money to the Balkan States. I will not go into the details, but as hon. gentlemen know, this transaction also was a disastrous one. For all these reasons, Mr. Speaker, and many others which I will not now mention, the old Tory party, which for so many years had the confidence of the people, has fallen to a depth never experienced by any other party in this Dominion since Confederation. For a party which in the last Parliament had about one hundred and fifty followers it has, since the last electior fallen into very great depths indeed. It is unfortunate for the party; it is unfortunate, to a certain extent, for the country itself, because if the people lose faith in politics; if they lose faith in those who represent them and those who administer the country's affairs, we come to a very serious condition indeed. Here was a party that was in power for ten years, and during that time they ruined the country; they lost all that had been accumulated during generations by the old Tory party, all that had remained in the way of tradition. This, Sir, should be a lesson to the Conservative party and should serve as an example to any other party in this country.

9 p.m

The Liberals are now in power, and they have to face the music; they have to impose taxes to meet the necessary expenses of the country. Last session and the session before, the Tory party had to acknowledge to the House a deficit of some $70,000,000—in reality it was a deficit of over $100,000,000. From the way matters were going at that time, it is evident that if the Tory party had remained in power these deficits of $100,000,000 or more each year would have been continued. But the people awakened to the seriousness of the situation, they placed the control of the country's affairs in the hands of a new administration, and they expect it to make both ends meet. No matter what government is in power, whether it be Liberal, Progressive or Tory, it must at least make an earnest effort to meet the expenses of the country. We cannot indefinitely go on borrowing money; we cannot indefinitely add to our debt. There must come a time, and that very soon, when receipts will meet expenditures. Look at England; though she was so sorely tried by the war, she has during the last three years been paying off annually a considerable amount of her public debt. She has had a surplus every year. We in Canada, a young country with vast natural resources, have done nothing in that respect. I hope we shall be able to do something in the future. I can hardly hope that this year the expenditures will be met by the revenue, but I am confident that very soon the Liberal party will be able to accomplish that end. If it does nothing else, I am sure that on that score it will deserve credit and will meet the commendation of the people of this country.

This is the first time since Confederation that we have had in this House three parties aligned. The new party, the Progressive party, have their ideals and their programme, as is their right. I may point out that since I have been in this House the Progressive party have changed their name about as many times as the Tory party changed theirs during the same period. First it was known as the "Farmers' party;" then the word "Agrarian" replaced the word "Farmer," and to-day they call it the Progressive party. Whether they be farmers, agrarians or progressives, there is one thing they must not forget, namely, that they must adjust their policies to the conditions which exist throughout the country. They must acknowledge the facts and they must frame their policies accordingly. As the name of a party, the word "Progressive," is a peculiar one. Progressive, I suppose, implies progress, and when a party takes the name of "Progressive," it might appear on the face of it that other parties were not progressive; that other parties were reactionary; that they did not know, perhaps, what they were talking about; that they did not know much about politics or were far behind the new party which, under the name of "Progressive," had come to save the country. If the word "Progressive" is supposed to refer to a party which favours progress, I acknowledge that the word is well chosen. Our friends obliquely opposite certainly favour progress, but they favour it so far as it affects their own group; they favour it accordingly as it is expedient for them to do so. They favour progress as long as we are willing to give them what suits their purpose, what suits their own particular progress. But I have yet to hear one of them favour national progress, and that is what we want in this country. No party can exist very long in this Dominion if it does not keep steadily in view the progress of the nation as a whole. We must look to the interests not of one province, not of two or three provinces only, but of the country generally. I ask my hon. friends to look to the welfare and the benefit of the country generally, not to the welfare and the benefit simply of their own provinces.

The science of government is a very difficult one; it entails moderation, broad-mindedness, co-operation, compromise, and self-sacrifice. I was glad to hear the hon. gentleman who preceded me (Mr. Speakman) speak of compromise and co-operation. I believe that no government in this country can govern unless it governs on the principles which I have enunciated. Why, Mr. Speaker, this is news to no one in a country like this, extending as it does from one ocean to the other, and with multifarious races and creeds and opinions and a great diversity of interests, and with people who do not know one another. Certainly this country is a hard one to govern. It cannot be compared to any of the European countries, to France or England, for instance, where you have a homogeneity of race, of character, of sentiment and aspirations. Our aspirations are different, our characters are different, our sentiments are different. But if only we will look at the interests of this country from a broad national point of view, if we are broad-minded and willing to co-operate with one another, we can do a lot, and we can govern this country properly. I am afraid that some of my friends on the other side have not yet learned the first chapter of the book which might contain these teachings. Our friends opposite, for instance, want the Wheat Board. The Wheat Board to them is the best thing in the world, but they forget one thing, and that is that we in the East have no use for the Wheat Board. We in the East will not suffer a bit whether the Wheat Board is established or not, and if we chose to be narrow-minded, if we lost sight of the fact that we must co-operate with one another and compromise, surely none of us in the East would ever vote for the Wheat Board. But I do not look at it in that way. I say to my friends from the West: If the Wheat Board is a good thing for you, and if I feel it will not injure the East to any great extent, so far as I am concerned I am willing to take the risk and give it to you, because my policy is a policy of broad-mindedness and co-operation.

Our friends from the West also want a reduction in freight rates. They do not ignore the fact, I am sure, that while reduction in freight rates would be of direct benefit to them, it would be detrimental to the provinces of Ontario and Quebec. Do they ignore that? Certainly they do not. When the freight rates are reduced, the deficits on the railways will be increased, and when the deficits on the railways are increased, the whole of Canada will have to make up those deficits, and the share that the East will pay will be very much larger than the share paid by our friends from the West. A calculation would prove that for every dollar that we reduce the freight rates our friends from the West are making a profit of 50 cents, and the provinces in the East are making a loss of 50 cents. Oh, our friends know that. They have started this agitation for a reduction in freight rates, although they know it will be giving them advantages to the detriment of the East. Shall we reduce the freight rates? We might do that. I am not ready to say that I shall not vote for a reduction in freight rates. Why? Because I want to co-operate with them, I want to compromise.

There is something else my friends from the West want. They want free trade. Do our friends from the West forget that fifty years ago, as was said this afternoon by the senior member for Halifax (Mr. Maclean), there were very few people in the West? Do they forget that the West has been opened up with money taken from the eastern provinces? Do they forget that their railroads have been built by money taken from the eastern provinces? Do they forget that the old province of Quebec was inhabited more than three hundred years ago?

Mr. BROWN: Has my hon. friend ever examined the customs returns from the port of Winnipeg, and ascertained the amount of customs paid by the people of the West to help Canada?

Mr. DENIS (Joliette): I have not examined those figures particularly, but I would ask my hon. friend to examine the customs returns for Montreal, and he will find there is no comparison between those figures and Winnipeg's figures.

Mr. BROWN: How much that goes through the port of Montreal goes to the prairies and is paid for by us?

Mr. DENIS (Joliette): It is not fair to ask offhand a question like that. I do not possess in my head all the figures that are in the public books, but I know one thing which cannot be controverted, and it is that there is no comparison whatever between the customs receipts of the port of Montreal and the port of Winnipeg. But that is not the question.

[Mr. J. J. Denis.]

Mr. SPENCER: The hon. member has informed the House that the railroads in the West have been paid for by the people in the East. Does he realize that half the country in the West has been given away to the railways to put those railways through, and given free of taxation, and the taxation has been paid by the people in the West for forty years.

Mr. DENIS (Joliette): If much of the land in the West was given to the railways, the people in the West certainly never paid for it. It never cost them anything. But that is not the point. My point is this: It matters little whether land was given to the railways or not. These transcontinentals, leaving out the Canadian Pacific, have been built with the money of this country, and subsequently they have been bought by this country to the great detriment of the country as a whole, and for the benefit of our friends from the West, and now that these railroads have been built and are in our possession our friends from the West say: We want reduced freight rates. They want the deficit on the railways to be increased. I do not blame them. It is to their advantage, but again I say, do not forget the principle of co-operation. That is what my friends from the West are forgetting.

I have said that they also want free trade. Do our friends forget for a minute that free trade would spell disaster for the eastern provinces? No one can ignore that, but just the same our friends from the West are in favour of free trade. They do not care what happens to Quebec and Ontario and the rest of the country. They want free trade because free trade might be good for them. After they have asked for all these things, after they have come to this House and expounded all their principles, they plead with the Minister of Finance in a pitiful voice and say: It is too bad we did not have a better budget. If you had given us something that we had expected, we would have been so glad to vote for you, but we cannot accept these reductions. Well, Mr. Speaker, I should like to hear my hon. friends propose something better than the Minister of Finance has proposed for this country. I hope I shall give no offence to any one when I tell the House that in my estimation there is no man in Canada who is more capable, more learned, and of greater experience and fitness to prepare a budget and submit it to the country than the present hon. Minister of Finance. My friends on the other side want free trade. Did they expect for a moment that this Government was going to give them free trade or anything like it? They did not. Some concessions have been made. These concessions, of course, might be open to criticism. The high protectionists say: These concessions are too great; you have gone too far; you should not have given them. Then the free traders say: The concessions do not go far enough. Again, we see the necessity for compromise. What is the best that can be done under the circumstances? I say that the Minister of Finance and the Government have done the best that they possibly could under the circumstances to satisfy, not one group or one province, but the people of this country at large.

I now propose going into a subject which is not very interesting to the House generally, but which is particularly interesting to the constituency which I represent, and the district of Joliette. I refer to the tobacco question. Perhaps, very few people know of the importance of the tobacco industry in this country. In the last twenty years it has developed to such an extent that to-day the government of Canada is deriving $29,000,000 from that industry alone. The government receives from tobacco the largest revenue obtained from any one article. The tobacco that we use is partly produced in Canada, and partly imported from the United States. Figures are wearisome, but I cannot help placing before the House the figures indicating the quantity of tobacco we are now importing into Canada. The quantity and value of unmanufactured tobacco imported into Canada from all countries during the ten years ending March 31, 1922, are as follows:

Year	Pounds	Value
1913..	22,153,588	$5,719,755
1914..	17,598,449	5,109,641
1915..	18,593,959	4,718,488
1916..	20,834,772	4,624,767
1917..	17,702,637	5,029,355
1918..	17,824,947	6,634,948
1919..	25,103,080	10,910,010
1920..	24,345,295	13,604,757
1921..	20,007,411	13,083,293
1922..	20,870,509	8,867,469

The total quantity imported for the last 10 years, ending March 31st, 1922, is 205,036,545 pounds, having a value of $78,302,323. That is the total quantity from all countries. From the United States the total quantity is 192,503,253 pounds; value $71,666,631. Therefore, Mr. Speaker, for the last ten years we have imported into Canada over 200,000,000 pounds of tobacco, and we have paid foreign countries over $78,000,000 for that tobacco. We have imported from the United States alone over 192,000,000 pounds and paid a total sum of over $71,000,000. These facts are rather startling. Since Canada has become a tobacco growing country, since the best methods for producing tobacco have been adopted, and the province of Ontario is producing certain grades of tobacco, and the province is producing other grades the growers have asked themselves more than once if it would not be possible to adopt some policy that would give them more protection, or, at all events, whether it be called protection or anything else, something that would prevent this importation of some 20,000,000 pounds of tobacco each year from the United States. A couple of years ago, Quebec and Ontario organized and began sending delegations to Ottawa. The Conservative party was then in power. The organizations met the government session after session, and between sessions, perhaps, but the result was that nothing was done. Those organizations asked, above all, two things. First, they asked that the duty of 5 cents a pound on the raw leaf be abolished. Secondly, they asked that the excise duty of 40 cents a pound on raw leaf imported from the United States, or other foreign countries, be raised in order to prevent tobacco being imported in such immense quantities from foreign countries. Tobacco comes free into Canada from foreign countries, but there is an excise duty on raw leaf tobacco of 40 cents a pound when it is unstemmed, and 60 cents a pound when it is stemmed. It might just as well be a customs duty, because it would work out just as well, but, at the present time, it is an excise duty, and if you will look at the statute you will see that raw leaf tobacco is free when brought into Canada, but subject to an excise duty of 40 cents a pound.

This tobacco question, which interests certain localities in the provinces of Ontario and Quebec, has become very acute. I must say that although delegation after delegation came to Ottawa, no remedy, no relief, no help was ever offered by the late administration. To-day we are in a position to say to the tobacco growers of Canada that the present Government has given them relief, and the tobacco growers of Canada owe a debt of gratitude to the present Administration for having given them the relief which they requested. When the budget was delivered on May 23, the Minister of Finance (Mr. Fielding) announced that this duty of 5 cents a pound, which was bearing heavily on the planters or growers, was to be taken off when tobacco was sold to a manufacturer, but when tobacco was sold to the public the duty was not to be removed. Yesterday, I was delighted to hear the Minister of Finance, in his exposition of the amendments which he made to the budget, declare to the House that he had decided to abolish the tax of 5 cents a pound altogether, and that, in the future, raw leaf tobacco grown in Canada would be free of duty. I make myself the echo of my constituents and of the people generally of the district of Joliette, in offering our best thanks and congratulations to the Minister of Finance and the Government for what they have given us on this particular occasion. Last night, the Minister of Finance said:

> Canadian raw leaf tobacco has a tax now of 5 cents a pound upon it. We did propose to remove that tax, as respects the portion of the raw leaf sold to the Canadian factory, because when it goes in there and later on comes out, we get the tax on the manufactured article. There remained a tax on that portion which was not to be sold to the factory. It has been represented to us that there is a very large quantity of raw leaf tobacco on hand almost unsaleable, and that where they get sale for it, it does not command more than 6 to 10 cents a pound at the most. It would mean a tax of 5 cents on goods which, in some cases, had to be sold at 7 or 8. Therefore, we have concluded to abolish the tax altogether.

I must say to the Minister of Finance that the case was even worse than what was supposed. Raw leaf tobacco to-day, or yesterday, at least, was selling in Quebec at 5 cents a pound and less. It was high time that the Government should give some relief to the tobacco growers of Quebec and Ontario also; they have given that relief, and for the support and encouragement which they have given to the tobacco growers of Canada, I wish to offer my best and most sincere thanks. The minister said yesterday that recommendations had been made to them. This is true. I made strong recommendations to the Cabinet, and so did other hon. members. Especially did I make those recommendations in my statements dated June 8 and 10; but the difference between this Government and the late government is this, that when recommendations are made to this Government and a request is made for support or help or assistance to a certain class of the community, they are ready and willing to give it, while the late administration always refused to give the help and support which we are now receiving from this Government.

Taking conditions as they are now, we have three categories of tobacco in Canada. We have first of all what I might call free tobacco, that is tobacco free of duty. That is the poor man's smoke. Then we have Canadian manufactured tobacco which should sell in the neighbourhood of about 75 cents a pound. In the third instance, we have imported manufactured tobacco, which sells at from $1.25 to $1.50 a pound. Is it not right and proper that when tobacco has become a necessity of life, different grades of tobacco should be offered to the public at different prices suitable to the different means of the public? It has been said many a time that tobacco is a luxury. It is and it is not. Tobacco is a necessary of life for the poor man. It is a necessity of life when 90 per cent of the men of this country have to use it. We all know that the poor man would very often rather go without a meal than without his tobacco. Therefore, I say that tobacco has become a necessary of life. For the rich man, for the man who wants to buy imported tobacco, for the man who wants to smoke manufactured tobacco, it might become a luxury. Therefore, the new provisions give the poor man a necessity of life in giving him a free smoke, and they give the rich man the luxury which he wishes, for, of course, the price is not the same. There is a price for the poor man and a price for the rich man. But is it not reasonable that, at least, something should be given free to the poor man? The taxes of this country have been increased. The situation could not be otherwise: they had to be increased. The sales tax and many other taxes have been increased. If taxes, of necessity, had to be increased all around, I say: At least give the poor man a free smoke, and to-day the poor man has been given a free smoke by this Government. This, Sir, is a Liberal policy; this is a policy which looks for the poor man and tries to alleviate as much as possible the burdens of the poor. I was saying a minute ago that many delegations for the last three years came to Ottawa, but they received no support from the government of the day. We asked that the duty of 5 cents a pound on raw leaf tobacco be removed, and it has now been removed by the present administration. I would ask something else from the Government, not this session perhaps but later on. There is another improvement which might be made that would benefit both the Gov ernment and the people of this country, and it is this. I do not think we should let this state of things continue whereby we have to buy 20,000,000 pounds of tobacco each year from the United States. I do not think the government of the United States would stand very long for a condition of affairs by which Canada would sell yearly to the United States 20,000,000 pounds of tobacco, or, say $10,000,000 worth of any other commodity which could be produced in that country. We all know of the Fordney emergency tariff bill. When the United States wanted to protect their produce against that of foreign countries and especially against Canada, they, not very long ago, passed a bill called the Fordney emergency tariff bill. That bill was far-reaching; but the government of the United States were not satisfied with it, and now they are passing a new bill which enlarges on the Fordney bill. Therefore, I say this is again a matter of co-operation and compromise. If the United States will not admit the natural products of this country within their borders or territory, if they will not permit the cultivators and farmers of this country to sell their produce there, then I would say, not that we should close our doors to them, but that we should take every possible means to prevent the United States from flooding this country with 20,000,000 pounds worth of tobacco which Canadian can produce in this country in as good quality as the United States can export into Canada.

Now, I have already spoken too long. I ask to be excused, and I will resume my seat immediately. Before doing so, however, I desire once more to congratulate the Minister of Finance on his health, on his courage and on his ability in submitting to this House the splendid budget which he has prepared together with the other members of the Cabinet. I wish to thank him again, and the Cabinet generally, for the assistance they have given to the tobacco growers of my constituency, and to tell them right now that what they did on May 23rd, and again yesterday, will not be forgotten by the people of the district of Joliette, who, when the day of reckoning comes, will not fail to stand by those who have proven themselves their friends and have helped them in their hour of need.

Mr. J. W. FINDLAY (South Bruce): It is neither from any desire to prolong the debate nor from any wish to hear the sound of my own voice that I rise to take part in the debate; nor have I any great hope that I shall be able to introduce anything particularly new into the discussion. As the debate has been in progress three weeks and has been contributed to by a great many experienced parliamentarians, I have very little hope of being able to add any new features to it; and I would not rise to-night if it were not for the fact that I feel it my duty to myself and to my constituency to state clearly to this House and to the country my position with regard to the budget. The old historic constituency of South Bruce which I have the honour to represent in this House, sent me here as a protest against the protective principle and, as well, as a protest against blind and bigoted partyism. I feel it my duty, therefore, having been elected under those circumstances, to state the reasons why I cannot see my way clear to support the budget brought down by the Minister of Finance (Mr. Fielding). I have for years had a great deal of respect for the Minister of Finance, and I want to state that fact right here. I have watched his career and have admired his ability, and I want to join my voice in words of congratulation to him on his preserved strength and vigour. I trust that he will continue to give his services to the country for many years to come, and I hope that before he brings down his next budget he will have seen his way clear to going a great deal further in the way of reducing tariff taxation on the people than he has seen fit to do at the present time. It is not my intention to take up the time of the House at any length to-night. A weekly newspaper published in the constituency I represent, making some personal remarks about myself during the campaign, said I would never tire an audience with a long speech, as some of my predecessors had done; neither would it be necessary, after I had stated my position on any question, to call around the next day to see where I stood, as was the case with another gentleman who preceded me in the representation of that constituency. And I think that if these two policies, of brevity in speech and constancy in principle, were more largely practised in this House, the business of Parliament would be conducted with more expedition and with greater satisfaction.

I want to refer for a moment to something that may be regarded in a way as ancient history. In 1911, we had an election on the reciprocity agreement which had been negotiated by the present Minister of Finance, and his colleague the late Hon. William Paterson; and whenever the political machine which calls itself the Liberal party at the present time is charged with insincerity in its attempt to lower the duties in this country, its members have always instanced their endeavour in 1911 to gain free access to American markets for Canadian products. I was willing then, I have always been willing, and I am willing now to give them credit for the effort they made at that time; and I may say that I myself did all I could to help elect the Liberal candidate in South Bruce during that campaign, because he stood on the reciprocity platform. I have debated the question with myself many times as to what were the causes that led to the defeat of that agreement, and I have been forced to the conclusion, very much against my will, that one of the chief causes was the fact that there was within the Liberal party itself a large element that was opposed to reciprocity, as it is opposed to the principle to-day, and that is the protective element. That is one of the chief reasons why the reciprocity agreement was defeated.

Now, Ontario farmers are charged with being protectionists because they did not support the agreement in 1911 as they should have done. Let me say that the Ontario farmer is not a protectionist. Whenever any hon. gentlemen in this House refer to the Progressive party they always speak of that party as though it consisted exclusively of men from the western prairies. I take exception to that view; the Progressive element is not by any means confined to the prairies. The Ontario farmer's ideas are just as progressive as those of the western farmer. But the Ontario farmer has been in the past a very strong party man, and it was largely because of his party affiliations and the fact that he was tied up to party in 1911 that he did not vote according to his convictions. I am thankful to say that a very great change has come over the Ontario farmer since 1911. He has had his eyes opened to the folly of allowing party to stand in the way of principle and firm belief. We had a very candid confession the other evening from the member for Portage la Prairie (Mr. Leader) that he voted against the pact in 1911 because he had always been voting Conservative, and could not bring himself to vote Grit, as he would have to do if he wanted to support the agreement. That confession of the hon. member can be multiplied by thousands of others in the province of Ontario.

There was one other circumstance which I believe had a great deal to do with the Ontario farmer not supporting the reciprocity pact of 1911, and that was the coupling up with it of the Laurier naval policy, which was not popular in the rural sections. Another factor which helped to defeat the reciprocity pact was the very general suspicion that the Liberal party in going to the country on that issue was really desirous of securing a new lease of power on what they naturally considered was a popular issue rather than the American market for the products of Canadian farms.

It has been stated that this is not a protectionist budget because the tariff changes are all in a downward direction. Well, it depends on what we understand by the term "protectionist budget". The reductions are very slight, and they are not on the necessaries of life. With all due respect to the Minister of Finance, I think that the 2½ per cent reduction on certain farm implements will be looked upon by the farmers as a sop to gain their support.

A great deal has been said in this debate about public morality and political honour, having particular regard to the failure of the Liberal party to redeem the promises they made during the election campaign. Well, people who live in glass houses should not throw stones, and as between the Conservative party and the Liberal party I cannot decide which is the more guilty. We all know that both parties have made election promises and broken them. I well remember that when the Liberal party was returned to power in 1896 they were elected not only on their platform of a tariff for revenue but also on their promise of Senate reform. I can readily understand that when people talk of reforming the Senate they are not taken seriously. But at any rate the Liberal party appealed to the people in 1896 on a platform of which Senate reform was a prominent plank, and yet after fifteen years of power that branch of our legislative machinery, which a great many people look upon as unnecessary or at least as not at all democratic, remained unreformed. It appears to me that those who appeal to the support of the electors should realize that when they make promises of what they will do if returned to power they are supposed to be speaking in earnest, and they must realize that no longer will the people tolerate hollow promises. Therefore I would counsel our statesmen and politicians to mend their ways in that respect.

We all realize that we have an enormous debt to take care of. But is there no other way of meeting our obligations than by increased taxation? When a sensible business man finds his income is less than his expenditure, he at once attempts to curtail his expenditure. Why is it that the business of the country cannot be run on the same principle that applies to private business? Surely there are many ways in which our national expenditure might be curtailed. I was glad to hear the hon. member for Cumberland (Mr. Logan) suggest that economy might be practised by reducing the sessional indemnities. Of course, this is not a very popular subject to bring forward in this House, and it may be suggested that any one who discusses it is playing to the gallery. But I do not refer to it from any such motive. I do believe that it is time to practise what we preach, and while it might entail some considerable sacrifice on many members, I feel that all who are sincere in advocating economy should support a bill to reduce the sessional indemnities of both Houses and the salaries of ministers.

It was stated last night by the Minister of Finance that when raw material is imported by the manufacturer and the finished product is exported, he receives a refund of about 99 per cent on the duty paid on his raw material. It appears to me that there is something in that feature of our tariff which is not fair. If on account of a scarcity of domestic feed for his stock a farmer is compelled to buy feed in a foreign country, he has to pay duty on that feed, but after he has manufactured it into beef or pork and exported this finished product he does not get any drawback on the duty so paid. He pays duty the same as the manufacturer does, but when he exports his finished product, which is his fattened beef, he receives no drawback. Why does the manufacturer get a privilege which is not extended to people in other lines of business?

I want, in just a few words, to make my position clear with regard to this budget. I have given the matter considerable thought, and I have tried to do what I believe my constituents would expect me to do. As I said in the beginning, I was sent here as a protest against a protective tariff. In spite of the fact that speakers on the Government side claim that this budget is not a protective budget, I cannot see it in any other light. It is a protective budget. In fact, it is admitted by the official Opposition, as well as by a great many Government supporters, to be a protective budget, and under those conditions I feel it my duty to oppose it. It is a disagreeable duty, I may say, because my affiliations in the past have always been with the Liberal party, and I should have been glad if the budget brought down by the Minister of Finance had been of such a character as to enable me to support it. But under the conditions to which I have referred, and having regard to the purpose for which the people of South Bruce sent me here, I feel it my duty to register my protest against the action of the protective element in the Liberal party in bringing about the introduction of a budget which, in my opinion, is not in the best interests of this country.

10 p.m.

Mr. N. K. LAFLAMME (Drummond and Arthabaska) (Translation): Mr. Speaker, I feel certain that you will, in all justice, recall that since the opening of this Parliament, I have in no way overtaxed your patience. I have endeavoured to put into practice an economy very seldom found, that of speech. I have, on the contrary, sought to become somewhat acquainted with my new, and, I may add, interesting surroundings on more than one score. I have made some progress, but I fear very much that I have, at present stumbled against an insurmountable obstacle. What has occupied the House's attention ever since May 23rd? A main motion and an amendment to this motion. I think there is no better means to elucidate the discussion than to examine again the question, as Webster said, to discover how far the ship has drifted from port. The main motion which the hon. Minister of Finance (Mr. Fielding) made, is that the House resolves itself into Committee of the Whole to consider and pass upon the principal business of this session, that is to say, using parliamentary language, to provide ways and means so as to allow the Minister of Finance to carry through his budget. That is without doubt the question. It would only be repeating things said a thousand times, to discuss the disastrous consequences of the world wide war; it has baffled the financial world, changed the conditions of living, burdened us with debts which, ten years ago, would have frightened us. All these events were commented upon both by word and writing and all were sadly deplored. What credit has the Minister of Finance been given? The hon. leader of the Opposition (Mr. Meighen) who has, in this House, no greater admirer than myself and who commands a prestige far in advance of what his age would entitle him to—I say it openly; I stated it in private, I may do so in public—and who is a powerful debator almost without any rival in this House—merely told us in picturesque language which I shall condense into a simile after the Latin mind, by saying: that the hon. Minister of Finance's head was as white as winter. He forgot to add this: that time had not impaired his vigour, which recalls a spring day. What was the answer to this proposal? A motion was put forth, which parliamentary practice enjoins me to call a motion in amendment, but which amends nothing, which is placed along with the main motion but nevertheless has no connection with it. Taking up this question with the reserve characteristic of a new member, I should say: that the so-called motion interposed by those who in the past were known as the loyal opposition, but who have rechristened themselves by taking the name of official Opposition, ask that the House do not resolve itself into Committee of the Whole and that Parliament refuse the Ways and Means, which would permit the Minister of Finance, as I mentioned a few minutes ago, to carry through the House his annual budget. In fact if not in its wording at least in its effect, this motion, if adopted, would entail the fall of the Government, because it amounts to a motion of lack of confidence. It is a great responsibility to assume under the circumstances; however, as far as I am concerned, I would rather have the question put in clear-cut fashion—the people understand simple and plain questions, only because they solve them by a yes or no—it is better that the test should take place now.

What arguments are brought to bear in favour of this counter proposal? Do they affect public interest or do they come under the scope of party reasons? Let us examine these arguments which I have heard and read. They must weigh heavily upon the lips of those who have public duties to carry out, and particularly upon the lips of those who wish to uplift Parliament. What was said? The right hon. leader of the Opposition and my hon. friend from Vancouver (Mr. Stevens), asserted and reasserted that the policy introduced in 1878 had been the salvation of the country, that under the shadow of this protective policy our industries, then in their infancy, had developed, that the country had grown with them, and that the policy, which was necessary at that time had become essential to-day. That is clearly the summary of what the representatives of the official opposition have submitted to us. What is the second reason invoked by them? They argued, with a subtlety of mind, which I am not inclined to imitate.

We perceive in this, they said, our way of looking at things, we find the imprint of our principles, we see the protective policy reproduced almost word for word in the speech of the Minister of Finance delivered in this House on May 23rd. In a word, they tell us: The policy we have held forth since 1878, you carry out, and you follow in our footsteps. Anyone who is not familiar with the versatility of parliamentary life—and I am one—might be led to conclude that these two reasons would militate in favour of the main motion. But we are in the midst of parliamentary surroundings: we are not allowed to draw such conclusions, we must perform some special feat the ingenuity of which I admire, but nevertheless a feat, to conclude that these two reasons justify an adverse vote on the motion brought down in the House by the Minister of Finance.

Accordingly an excuse was offered. What is the plea? We were told: The Liberal party—I may speak of the Liberal party with an open mind; being one if its musketeers, a free lance and outspoken—we were told: The Liberal party held, in 1919, at Ottawa, a convention which it seems the Prime Minister (Mr. Mackenzie King) had thought imbued with a democratic spirit. At this convention, you discussed what is termed a platform with definite leanings. This platform was well threshed out by the right hon. leader of the official Opposition, who is at present listening to me; I shall not dwell upon it. He came to the conclusion that the ministerial party of to-day, with duplicity—that is the expression he used—had thrown overboard the pledges given and promises made. In other words the gentleman sitting opposite to us stated: Your policy is a poor one, but you are wrong in not having followed it. On the contrary, they add, the principles we have been preaching for the last half century are the only true ones; by applying them, you are wrong. This is, Mr. Speaker, one of the things that I have not yet understood, during my short experience in this House. I hope that public life will impart sufficient suppleness of mind to enable me to understand that this distinguished political leader and statesman was right when one day he endeavoured to reassure me in these words: My friend, logic and politics in Canada are two grand ladies who have never met in the same drawing room.

I shall but add one remark in reference to the hon. members who hail from the prairie provinces. They are dear to me on more than one score, because I come from a county where were recruited and where they hold in the highest esteem the farmer's party: the county of Drummond and Arthabaska. I was anxious to know if, on the actual field of operations, the enthusiastic statements which I heard in December last, would come up to expectations. The trial is not over, it is on; it would be untimely therefore to pass a judgment. For the moment and I speak for myself alone, I understand the responsibility which weighs upon those who speak here, and I take the full responsibility, I do not acknowledge that a country like ours begins at Fort William and ends at the foot of the Rockies, and I do not wish to hear utterances which, after all, reminds one of "l'Internationale," and tell you—it is useless to hide the truth of what is brought out by the discussion that has taken place here for the last four months—which tells you: Toilers of the soil, you are small because you are on your bended knees; rise and you shall become their equals! I leave it to you, Sir, is that not the theme which served for more than one remark made since March 8th, last?

I think the time has come for one who, to-day, enters public life to shoulder his responsibilities, but I must, casually, remind the very able and estimable leader of the Agrarian party (Mr. Crerar) that to-night or in the wee hours of morn he will meet at the cross roads that lady of which I spoke a few seconds ago, and by name—cold logic.

If I remember well, a sub-amendment was moved. Why? Because our friends who hail from the prairies, apparently, were not satisfied with the amendment moved by the former Minister of Finance (Sir Henry Drayton). Their sub-amendment was declared out of order.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON (Translation): Oh! oh.

Mr. LAFLAMME: My hon. friend sees the point at once.

Therefore there are no longer three roads open, there are but two. By their sub-amendment they have implicitly condemned the terms, the purpose of the amendment. I would not be astonished that a great number of them would realize the difficult situation into which the windings of the discussion have led them and would lean towards the main motion.

One last word: I do not know why some of the most brilliant leaders in this House have thought it proper in a debate which had no relation whatsoever to the general topic of our parliamentary customs, to point out the necessity of mending our ways. It is a rather cold reception for an ordinary layman who comes with illusions and who sees men of experience that have fought against one another for twenty years and hear them say: The time has come when we must raise the standard of public life. Others thought that public men should have been the first to give the example rather than follow it. These things were said and repeated, why? In my opinion so as to find a reason more plausible than true, to attack the main question which is before the House. Mr. Speaker, the hon. member for Wellington (Mr. Guthrie) asserted this afternoon that, when the Minister of Finance, clearly admitting the forcefulness of the argument set forth by the member for Vancouver, surrendered on the question of foreign exchange fluctuations, there only remained to criticize the question of the dumping of foreign overproduction and that of the marking of foreign goods. These two subjects that are capable of being openly discussed, serve to-day as a last theme for criticism on the part of the Opposition, and would suffice to induce the Canadian Parliament, under the grave circumstances we are placed in, to decide that there is no necessity for the House to resolve itself into committee of the whole so as to dispose of the budget. Three reasons, which I shall sum up, are given to uphold this contention; in my opinion, these are not sufficient to make much of an impression on my mind: first you promised, in 1919, something that circumstances prevent you from carrying out; secondly, you give an example of public men who promise things they are unwilling or unable to carry out; and, lastly, because you want to strike out clause 7 of the Customs Act

December, 1921, and because you want to cut out clause 8, we are called upon to obtain from the Parliament elected in December, 1921, a vote which will mean: the Government's defeat. So far as I am concerned, this threat will have no effect,—and the view I express is that of many who sit on this side of the House—we are backed by something that will comfort us and by a power able to uphold us. I submit, Sir, that these three reasons are not worth much. I am sorry to say so—because the right hon. leader of the Opposition, who does me the courtesy of listening just now, will not find in this House a greater admirer than me—I find with regret that the exigencies of politics have induced him, in his anxiety to defeat the main motion which is before Parliament, to take a stand giving the impression that there comes a time when the image of his country is dimmed by the clash of party interests, to the point of preventing him from taking a broader and more lofty view of the question.

Mr. T. H. McCONICA (Battleford): Mr. Speaker, it was my intention to discuss the budget, but certain things that have occurred during the debate impel me to beg the indulgence of the House for a few moments. I regret that my duties on one of the special committees have prevented me from studying the budget and following this debate as closely and carefully as I should have liked. I have given very considerable thought to the subject, however, and I must confess that I have been more or less perplexed by the subjects that have been presented.

The first question that comes before us is the amendment of the ex-Minister of Finance (Sir Henry Drayton). What is the purpose of that amendment? What would be the effect if it were carried? Why is it presented for consideration? I apprehend that it is very clear to the mind of every hon. gentleman present that if by a vote of this House that amendment could be engrafted upon the budget now before us, the most decided vote against that amendment would come from the hon. member who has presented it for our consideration. He would run like a turkey if he thought it would pass; there is no question about that. It is not presented for the purpose of securing the benefits, as we conceive it, of the planks that are presented in the platform of the Liberal party. The hon. ex-Minister of Finance would under no consideration cast a vote which would engraft those planks upon the fiscal policy of this country at this particular time or at any other time. For that reason we are not to understand that a vote for the amendment is a vote in favour of all the policies set forth in the platform recited in the amendment. That is very evident. Then what is the purpose of the amendment? It recites that the present budget is not guided by the planks of the Liberal platform, and I apprehend that that is very substantially true. I have failed to recognize in the budget that has been presented for our consideration any resemblance to the planks recited in the amendment.

On the other hand, it is urged that these planks were adopted with certain mental reservations, that they were not very fluently proclaimed, that they were not in fact and in truth a proper expression of the intention of that convention. As to that I am not advised.

There is another defence, and that is that the mover of the amendment and his associates have also violated tariff promises. That has been proclaimed in this debate. I recall that on certain occasions there were certain promises, and I think on one occasion we had it promised with all the sanction and authority of His Excellency the Governor General in the Speech from the Throne that the tariff was to be revised last session. We have heard a good deal said about the revision of the tariff by hon. gentlemen to my right. We had their promise, but what it means no man on this earth can tell. It is one of those convenient tariff declarations which is supposed to look in all directions and be in favour of all things. The tariff was to be revised. It was an easy promise to make. It was a Janus-faced arrangement. To the protectionist it meant revision upwards, and to the free trader revision downwards. It was a promise that could easily be made and as easily be fulfilled. Any change could be called by the man who made the promise, a revision of the tariff, in his opinion, but even that small tribute was not paid to the promises which the right hon. gentleman to my right made, as I understand it. He could easily have made some change in the tariff, and he failed to make any. Hon. gentlemen opposite do not keep their promises, it is alleged, and hon. gentlemen to my right do not keep their promises, it is alleged. We in this corner are willing to agree that both of you are guilty, and if you want to find a political party in Canada that has never violated a tariff pledge, here it is—the only party of its kind. Now, gentlemen, if you are all of the opinion that we should have a purification of political life in this country present yourselves in due form, and if you are found worthy and well qualified you may be admitted over here on approbation.

What is the matter with the amendment? It does not amend. That is the trouble. It does not even amend the political morals of either party, and I am willing to agree that both of you need it pretty badly. What is the matter with the budget? It does not budge. That is what we complain of in this part of the House. It is much too stationary to be much of a budget, and it follows too closely the lines which were followed by the leader of the Opposition. I want to say here and now that I have the most profound respect for the Minister of Finance (Mr. Fielding), and I want to join in all that has been said, and said so well on that subject by hon. gentlemen who have preceded me. I congratulate him most heartily on the splendid patriotic courage he displayed when he assumed the onerous duties of the very important position in which he now so ably presides. I want to congratulate this House and the country and the Empire on the fact that we are favoured with the great ability, the wide experience, and the sound judgment of so able a financier.

There is much in this budget with which I am not particularly pleased. In fact, I have a theory that a tax is a good deal like a pain. It is never where you want it, unless it is on the other fellow. It was said by one of old time that any old tax is a good tax, and any new tax is a bad tax, and I apprehend there is much truth in that. An old tax is established. It conforms to business conditions, and contracts are made with reference to it. It is settled as a part of business policy. An old tax is therefore a good tax. It may bear heavily, but rights are fixed with reference to that. Contracts are made with that in view. Any new tax must disturb, to an extent, business conditions, must, to some extent, interfere with values, and call for a readjustment of the conditions in which the world finds itself. Therefore, it is a bad tax in that respect. I am not in favour at this time in our history of sudden changes in our taxing system. I do not think it would be advisable, and, for that reason, there is something in this budget that commends itself to me. It, surely, is not a very radical change in the system which has prevailed, but there is something in it that I do not like, and which I will discuss later.

I was pleased to hear the hon. member reaffirm his allegiance to the principle of reciprocity. I certainly was in favour of reciprocity when it was before the country, and I have never seen a reason for changing my view. I honour the minister for the attempt he made to bring about a reciprocity treaty with the great republic to the south. I noticed, with a good deal of interest, the very able argument of the hon. leader of the Opposition (Mr. Meighen) against reciprocity. It was a cleverly conceived, clearly stated, and forcible presentation, of all the arguments, I think, that could be marshalled against the proposition. Now what were they? He is in favour of reciprocity as an abstract principle. But he is not in favour of reciprocity with the United States. The government that succeeded Sir Wilfrid Laurier's government was in favour of reciprocity everywhere, excepting where they could get it. We had rumours out in the prairie provinces of the blessings of reciprocity that were to come to us. Sir George Foster, Minister of Trade and Commerce at that time, went to Australia, seeking a reciprocity treaty with that distant island continent. He was gone for some time, and made a diligent effort, as I am advised, and, I think as I recall, all that country could offer, in regard to which we could enter into a reciprocity agreement, was prunes. That substantially exhausted the list, and we were not particularly in need of prunes, and, as we had not anything we cared to trade for prunes, and, I think, we were pretty well supplied with prunes, nothing came of that effort. But Sir George Foster stopped in China to look up our trade relations there, and we, in the West, thought we were going to have an opportunity of shipping our wheat over the highest mountains on the continent, across the widest ocean on the globe, and selling our products to that great nation of Chinamen who live on rice and rats. Nine-tenths of them could not tell the difference between a biscuit and a balloon. That is the place where we were to find a market for our wheat and other products. He was going to persuade them to abandon their rice lands, to sell their rat-traps, beat their chop-sticks into bread-knives, and buy our wheat, but that did not work very well. Now, what was the effect of the reciprocity arrangements that were entered into by that government? Well, I believe they did, after a long time, make some trade treaty with the West Indian islands. That was the end of it. Here was the great country to the south of us ready to enter into trade relations with us and anxious to take our products. That market stood open for years, and what was the result? Why was it not arranged? The hon member tells us that the public men decided that that was not a proper proceeding, and that it was a dangerous thing to enter into a reciprocity treaty with the United States. When I try to discuss a question, it is always my specialty to do most of it from a book, and I have here a book entitled, "Makers of Canada," volume XXI, and on page 319 I find the following:

Reciprocity

Efforts were made from time to time by Canada, between the years 1847 and 1854, to secure the free admission of goods between Canada and the United States, but without success, until the latter year, when Lord Elgin negotiated a treaty. It came into force in 1855 and was abrogated in 1866, at the instance of the United States.

Now, mark this—

The renewal of the treaty was urged by Canada in 1866, 1869, 1871, 1874, 1879, 1887, 1892 and 1896, but in every instance the American authorities failed to respond.

Many public men had a good deal to do with the affairs of Canada during that period, and they evidently were in favour of reciprocity. I have here a list of names of illustrious men who favoured reciprocity, but I will not bother to read them. Hon. members know who they were. Yet the hon. member said that, in the opinion of Canadian statesmen, it was an unwise policy. But in 1896 the efforts on Canada's part stopped until there was a proposition from the other side of the line, and then the eminent Canadian statesmen of that time embraced that opportunity, and a reciprocity treaty was negotiated, which afterwards failed in Canada. When that treaty was first proclaimed Liberal and Conservative statesmen alike uttered shouts of delight, and said that it was a marvellously clever thing, it was just what Canada needed. After some little time, a change came over the spirit of their dream, and some of these gentlemen concluded that it would be dangerous to have business relations with the United States. Why? They said they are too big, that it would be unsafe for us to sell them our stuff or to buy their stuff. I cannot conceive that that is a proper objection. The bigger the market the better; we will not buy anything from them, unless we want it, and we will not sell them anything unless it is to our advantage to sell it. That is the effect of the reciprocity treaty, and the larger the market for us down there, in my opinion, the better for us. They say it is a dangerous thing to establish trade relations with the United States, yet in this last year 52 per cent of our foreign trade was with the United States, and the year before 58 per cent was with the United States. What is the matter with that kind of trade, if reciprocity is dangerous? They say it might be abrogated, and we could not trade with them. Our arrangements might be disturbed and we could not deal with them. Well, when that calamity comes it will be met as our difficulties have always been met. "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof."

[Mr. McConica.]

But hon. gentlemen tell us that we send our trade east and west, and if we entered into such an agreement with the United States, there would be a danger of our trade routes being destroyed. Are not many of our trade routes now running down into the United States? I am advised that more than 60 per cent of our wheat goes to the ocean by way of Buffalo and is shipped from United States ports. I am advised that a large quantity of the merchandise that comes to Canada is landed at United States ports and is shipped from there into this country. I am advised that a large part of the grain that goes through the port of Montreal is United States grain. Our trade relations are, therefore, at the present time a good deal mixed up. I recollect that when my right hon. friend (Mr. Meighen) was in power, he took over 1,700 miles of railway, and as near as I can remember, both ends of it were in the United States. He also took over an ocean port down in the United States. We are doing more and more business every day with the United States, and, in my opinion, that is a good thing. What is the trouble? I have heard hon. gentlemen suggest that we should not improve the St. Lawrence because there would be danger of trade complications. By the way, my recollection is that while hon. gentlemen were in power, they proposed to improve the St. Lawrence; they were not afraid at that time of our trade relations getting mixed up, of our trade routes becoming contaminated. I do not think there is anything in that argument.

What trade complications are liable to arise between us? If you visit the city of Windsor and look out over the Detroit river, you will see more tons of freight shipped past a given point on that little river than were ever before seen on the bosom of any inland waterway on the face of the globe, more tons of freight by far than pass through the Suez canal, or through the Panama canal, or through the Kiel canal, double the quantity of freight that passes through all those great artificial waterways together. You will see boats of all kinds, large and small, of every colour and of every shape, moving up and down, across and through and around, mingling in perfect harmony without a jar, some bearing the Stars and Stripes and some the Union Jack, in absolute unity of understanding, a tribute to the good sense, amicable business relations and the mutual confidence that exists between these two great nations.

We have our St. Lawrence river. It has been there for some time, I understand, and I apprehend that it will be there for some time to come. It is the great natural gateway to this continent. There is nothing like it anywhere else on the face of the globe. It is navigable for a thousand miles; it is a source of power, an inlet to the nation. It bears between its banks the surplus water from more than one-half the fresh water lake surface of the globe, and it will remain with us until the end of time. We cannot well get that confused if we should enter into a reciprocity arrangement with the United States.

I am in favour of sendng our wheat to the United States every time we have an opportunity to do so, and why? Oh, we are told, the United States export wheat. Secretary Hoover has, however, recently stated that within ten years the United States will be importing foodstuffs. Ten years hence the farmers of western Canada will be needing an outlet for their wheat. Russia to-day is out of the market. Russia in the future, will be our competitor. Russia has entered into some sort of relationship with Germany. Russia, herself, is not so formidable; but when German energy, industry and business sagacity penetrate that great empire, we shall be compelled to seek diligently for a market for the wheat of the western provinces. We can put the wheat fields of the United States out of business with our cheaper land, our higher production, our better quality of grain. The day will not be far distant when we can turn their wheatfields into corn fields, tobacco fields, alfalfa fields and cotton fields, and in time, there must be our outlet for the surplus grain of the western prairie.

But, say hon. gentlemen, we are going to build up manufacturing industries in the East and have a home market for our western products. Western Canada produces 300,000,000 bushels of wheat a year, and as about six bushels of wheat will feed a man, that means 50,000,000 people. Supposing we have 50,000,000 people in Canada and not a single one of them engages in producing wheat, then we have a possibility of consuming the wheat of western Canada in the home markets of Canada. But what will the 50,000,000 people do? Will they engage in manufacture? It is a laudible business, and apparently in the past it has been a profitable business; but where will they sell their products? That is the question. Where will you find an outlet for your commodities? You can manufacture goods in abundance in eastern Canada. I know of no place on the face of the globe that appeals to me more strongly than the great St. Lawrence valley as a hive of manufacturing industry, and nothing will please me more, nothing will please the people of western Canada more, than to see that the busiest place on the face of the globe. You have the power. My esteemed friend has often told us of the great electrical power that is capable of development in the St. Lawrence and in Canada. It is a power unequalled anywhere else, a power easily controlled, constant in its application, cheap to produce, and susceptible of being distributed in every direction at an exceedingly moderate cost. We have here an abundance of raw material. Why then, cannot Canada manufacture as cheaply as any other place on the face of the globe? What is the trouble between the East and the West? What is the matter with our economic situation? The trouble is that it is not balanced properly. We in the West are buying in a highly protected market; we are paying railway freight rates to support workmen whose cost of living is fixed by highly protected markets; we are buying our implements of production from firms that are highly protected, and we are selling our products in a free trade market. That is what is the matter; and when we come to cast the balance at the close of the year we find it on the wrong side.

Now what is eastern Canada going to do about it? Why do they not sell their goods now? Why are they not shipping trainloads of commodities into the West these days? We need everything out there that the human imagination can conceive, and we need them in large quantities. We want fencing, lumber, hardware, paint, glass, and everything that the East can produce; and we want these things in abundance. Why do we not buy them? We do not, simply because the purchasing power of the West is exhausted; it is gone. We cannot buy because we have not that with which to pay; and it seems to me that the prospect for the future is dark indeed. I listened with attention to the hon. member for St. John (Mr. Baxter) the other day, who challenged the statements of the hon. member for Springfield (Mr. Hoey), with regard to the farmers. which he said were overdrawn. He implied that those statements were not entirely reliable. Now, I have great confidence in the hon. member's judgment on some things. I consider him the greatest living expert on morganatic political alliances; in that matter he is an expert in practice as well as in theory; and I was pleased when I saw the smile that spread over his countenance when he rose the last time in his place to foregather with his friends across the way with whom he was so tenderly, and touchingly, and ticklishly united on that occasion. He seemed to enjoy it immensely. But when it comes to conditions in the West, I fancy he does not know as much as I do. I am a farmer; I do not do anything else; I have no other means of support; I do not know what we should do with reference to the budget and all that sort of thing.

But, Mr. Speaker, that is not the pressing question with me. The question with me just now is, what I am going to do with my holdings in the West, the farming enterprise that I have on my hands, I paid the Canadian Pacific Railway Company last year over $4,000 in freight, and I have bought $23,000 of eastern made farm implements and vehicles in the last eleven years. My business has come to the point now where I cannot make it pay, and the problem with me is, how am I going to save myself. I see no light in the future. And that is the problem that all of our farmer friends here, and people in the West, have to face. We do not know what to do. We are paying too much freight; we are paying too much for our supplies. Our help we employ in competition with railway men and men employed in factories at exhorbitant wages, and we also must pay high wages. Now, the budget does not balance with us; I hope it may balance here. But what are we going to do? We must have cheaper freight rates; we must have a better system of marketing grain; and we must have cheaper supplies; otherwise we cannot succeed. And what will be the effect if we do not? Where do the manufacturers sell their goods? Where will hon. gentlemen's manufacturing friends find a market? what is the matter with the market now? You have all the protection you need, I think. Protection has been the order of the day in this country for fifty years. Well, what is the trouble with the manufacturing interests? Why do not the wheels of industry start if protection is the remedy? These men should call on their god Baal, the god of protection, and ask him to come down and start the fires in the furnaces. Perhaps he may be asleep. It is going to take a miracle to start things in the West under present conditions, and if our industrial enterprise in this country is to keep going we must begin by improving conditions in the West. You are ready to start your factories; your workmen are standing idle; your warehouses are piled high with unclaimed goods. Where is the trouble? You have no outlet for your products. The time has come when Canda must take her position in the world.

I listened with interest to the address of the Minister of Justice (Sir Lomer Gouin) for whose ability I have great respect; and I can see his viewpoint. But that viewpoint will not stand in western Canada. I say to him, in all candour, "We cannot buy your stuff". I listened to his recital of history with reference to Hon. Edward Blake and other eminent statesmen of the past. I did not know whether his citations were correct or not, and I do not care very much whether they are. I think those gentlemen have been out of business for some time, and the conditions that prevailed then are not the conditions that exist now. In those days Canada was a little, unknown colony and her commerce consisted in loading a ship and sending it somewhere to trade and sell goods and bring back something we needed here. Today the world is one great industrial manufacturing centre. Conditions are entirely different. The means of transportation are so rapid and so universal, and the means of communication are so instantaneous, that every man in any particular line of business knows exactly what the world status is every day of the year. He knows where he can find the best market for his goods and where he can supply his wants at the lowest price. So that the conditions that existed in those days no longer prevail; and Canada must do one of two things; either decide to live within herself, or determine to become a world power and one of the world's commercial nations. We must seek an outlet in the markets of the world for all our products. I am a wheat grower. I am getting up in years, but I can go on a farm and with a fair chance stand up against any wheat producer on the face of the globe. And so can any of us in that country. But we want a fair show; we want reasonable means of marketing our produce; we want reasonable freight rates. Give us these and we ask for no better opportunity than to meet all the producers of the world and sell our commodities to the nations on such terms as they choose and at such prices as they can afford to pay. Why is it that Canada cannot manufacture as cheaply as the United States? Oh, say my hon. friends, the factories there are large; the United States has a population of 110,000,000 whereas we have a little less than 9,000,000. Do hon. gentlemen know any one down in the United States that is supplying the wants of 9,000,000 people? It is not necessary to have an enormous factory in order to produce at a profit. Better management is usually found in the more moderate sized factories. No factory in the United States has a monopoly of any line of business, never has had, and those factories succeed because the moderate sized factory is the most successful. Many of our factories here in eastern Canada are big enough to produce as cheaply as the American factories. We are told by the hon. gentleman from Halifax (Mr. Maclean) that this is a young country. It is in some parts, and in other parts it is pretty old. Our industries are young we are told. Why, we have had protection for fifty years, and we have industries with whiskers as long as your arm—but they are infants still. Mr. Speaker, none of them is of age yet. The hot-house plant is very beautiful, but it is not very robust and soon languishes. So it is with our hot-house industries. If they cannot stand alone after forty or fifty years of nursing, the sooner you tell them to get down to, or out of, business the better in my opinion. Protection! Infants! Those infants are grown so big that they cannot move themselves, and yet they want us to protect them!

The way to put industrial business on a substantial basis in eastern Canada is to take such industries as can properly be conducted here, and say to them, "Root, hog, or die." If they need protection, let them show how much—that is our platform—let them show why they need protection, and then if it is worth while to nurse them along, all right, we will consider the question. The proposition that in this country where the raw material comes in free we cannot manufacture woollen goods without 30 or 40 per cent of a protective tariff is to my mind exceedingly strange. Why, my friend from Yale (Mr. McKelvie) tells us that an Okanagan apple tree cannot compete with a Yankee apple tree; that the apple trees down there are highly specialized. Now, I cannot understand the philosophy of that statement. Our peach trees blush when they think of competing with the peach trees across the line. The gentleman says: "Why, the Yankee fruit is earlier, and the Yankee growers have a chance to supply the prairies before our fruit is ripe." Let me tell the House that the farmers of the West do not buy early apples. They do not buy them until they have marketed their crop, paid their threshing bills, their hands, their grocery bills; they do not buy them until they have laid in a little supply of coal which they hope may carry them through the long winter; they do not buy them until they have bought boots and shoes and clothes for their children; they do not buy them until they have paid the interest on the mortgage and their taxes—and when that time comes they do not have any money left. That is what is the trouble with the apple market of the prairies. It is not that we want Yankee apples, but we cannot afford to pay $4 a box for Canadian apples. That is all there is to it. And what have we done? We are planting rhubarb. We send the children down along the edge of the coulees to pick choke cherries and Saskatoon berries, and we get along without your $4 apples; and we will continue to do so. We would like to buy them, and our children need them, but we cannot afford the price

My hon. friend from Halifax says that the prairies are prosperous, and he has a peculiar way of estimating that prosperity. "Why," he said, "you had so many population in 1912, and you have so many more in 1921." Well, let me tell you that in 1912 there were just four McConicas out there; now there are thirteen.

We believe in some kinds of protection, and we want immigrants under certain conditions, but, sir, we first want to take care of—

> The immigrants that come across the unknown sea,
> The unknown sea that reels and rolls,
> Specked with the barques of baby souls;
> Barques that were launched on the farther side,
> Slipped from heaven on an ebbing tide.

They are the immigrants that have the first claim upon our affections, our diligence and our earnest solicitations, and it is for them that we are most concerned. I believe I am talking too long.

Some hon. MEMBERS: No, no. Go on.

Mr. McCONICA: I want to get in Hansard. Now, Mr. Speaker, I was interested in the address of the hon. member from East Calgary (Mr. Irvine) which he delivered in the course of this debate. I followed him as best I could with my poor ears, and I have since read a portion of that address. I do not think I understand it now, and I am not sure that I ever will be able to.

An hon. MEMBER: There are others.

Mr. McCONICA: I thought when he started out that he was going to catch the rainbow and coin it into drachmas, Spanish pieces of eight and doubloons. But I was satisfied with his description of the vast wealth of Canada, of our man power, and of the resources at our disposal to pay our national debt. Mr. Speaker, I remember the debt of the United States after the Civil War. I am not so old but I remember as a lad the condition which then confronted that country. The nation owed more than $2,000,000,000, and in those days that was a fabulous sum. Not only was that a stupendous national debt, but the land was rent by civil feuds, devastated of its man power, and many of its cities in ruins. In a word, conditions were deplorable, and it was then that I first heard the word, "repudiation". I remember my mother used to read in the evenings from the great newspapers of New York that we would have to repudiate our national debt, that it was impossible for us even to meet the interest upon that vast obligation. The State of Virginia did attempt to repudiate its debt, but finally some readjustment was made as a result of the efforts of a political party known as the Readjusters. But the country was distressed beyond measure. What did the people do? They called in immigrants, they started to produce and to ship their products into the markets of the world; they forgot their differences, they forgot their little state troubles; they started in to meet their obligations manfully, and that great debt just melted away and no one ever knew when it was paid. Now, that is a thing that we can do here in Canada, and we can do it only by getting together, only by getting to work. We must do that thing by producing the commodities which we can best produce and by putting them in the markets of this country and of the world at prices that people can afford to pay.

The Great Architect of this universe prescribed a remedy for human ills away back in the days of the Garden of Eden, and that remedy was work. He has seen to it, Mr. Speaker, that there has always been a job. There are one hundred times the number of opportunities available to-day that were available one hundred years ago. We are engaged in lines of industry that were undreamed of fifty years ago, even twenty-five years ago. Take the automobile business. I remember when I first heard of a horseless carriage; to-day I suppose the automobile business employs more men than any other manufacturing business carried on in this hemisphere. In the manufacture, in the sale, in the repair, in the use of these machines, I apprehend we are employing more people than are employed in any other line of manufacture. And so it will be in the years to come. We shall have plenty to do; every man will have a job if we adjust our industrial affairs properly; and we shall be able to pay him an ample price for what he does. We shall have no trouble to develop the West. We shall be able to take care of immigrants, and we will welcome them to our shores, but you must put us in such a position that we can live, for if we cannot live, they cannot. We have no bread lines in the West; we have no soup kitchen on the prairies; with us it is "root, hog, or die." But we cannot take care of men who cannot earn a living there. First, I repeat, put us in such shape that we can live; then they will be able to live.

Now, I do not object so much to this budget, but I do not believe that Canada should be a high protection country. I do not believe that the principles advocated by Hon. Edward Blake stand good to-day. I am not a free trader; none of us in this country are free traders. We are not in favour of throwing down the tariff entirely, but we are in favour of a substantial and continuous reduction of the tariff. I listened and waited for some hon. gentleman on the other side to say: "We propose to continue this fight. We pledged ourselves to give freer trade in certain commodities, and we are going to keep on until we achieve that end." But as yet I have not heard anybody say that. I would be glad to hear it. I would be glad to support a budget that contained such a statement. I do not exactly like the kind of budget that has been brought down, but I am not particularly fussy about that; I will stand for almost anythng, provided that it is going to sweep us on to the goal which I believe it is necessary we should attain if we are to have industrial prosperity in this great Dominion. I see no reason why we should not put our commodities into the markets of the world. Put us where we can compete fairly with any wheat growers on the face of the globe and we will compete with them; we will buy your manufactured goods and pay you for them. We want to encourage the industry of eastern Canada. We want no sectional strife, no differences between the East and the West. But I had sincerely hoped to see a much more substantial reduction in the tariff than we have seen.

Another thing: I was not pleased with the address of the Minister of Justice (Sir Lomer Gouin), and I was not pleased with the addresses of some of his associates. I want to be perfectly frank; they do not reflect my views. I want to tell you squarely and candidly that the sticking point with me is not so much the budget as what has been said in favour of it on both sides of the House. That is what I do not want to endorse, and I am sorry that that is the position.

Now, I have talked longer than I should. I extend to the Minister of Finance my congratulations upon his eminent service and I extend to the Prime Minister (Mr. Mackenzie King) my very best wishes. I hope that his administration may be exceedingly prosperous. I did not come down here to try to settle political differences. I had a theory when I came here that this was a time in the history of the country when men who had some idea of public questions should get together and agree on a solution of our difficulties, not merely try to solve political troubles. But I have failed to see anything advanced so far which is destined to put Canada on the return road to prosperity and that is something which I deplore. We are in debt; our fixed charges are very great. But we cannot tax ourselves rich; we cannot adjust our problems by levying taxes. We must adopt some remedy that will go to the root of the evil, and I contend,—and I think I am unselfish in the contention—that the place to begin this business is at the foundation, and that the foundation is the agricultural industry of the country. The agriculturists of the East can find their market here; we must find ours abroad. I have so far failed to see—and I sincerely hope I may see—the proposal of something of a remedial character that will put this great country back in the path of prosperity, that will open up our great resources, that will result in the development of our mines, the tilling of our fields, the operation of our factories, and bring peace and contentment to all our people.

Hon. CHARLES MARCIL (Bonaventure): Mr. Speaker, it is not my intention at this late hour to inflict a speech upon the House. During the twenty-two years that I have had the honour, owing to the confidence placed in me by my constituents, of sitting in this House, I have listened to too many speeches to inflict a lengthy speech upon others; for I know how I have felt myself under similar circumstances. In those twenty-two years more than two hundred members have left this House and I am practically addressing a new House. When I first came to the House I seconded the motion made by the member for South Wellington (Mr. Guthrie) for an address in reply to the speech from the Throne. I have had the good fortune of listening to thirteeen out of the sixteen budget speeches delivered by the Minister of Finance (Mr. Fielding). I am glad to say that I supported them all, and I intend to support the present budget with the same fervour with which I supported those in the past. In those twenty-two years it has been my good fortune to do many things for the West, in my humble way. In the name of my constituency down on the Atlantic coast I have voted many charters for the construction of railways in the West; I have put through money votes by the millions. As deputy speaker of the House it was my good fortune to place my name on the two bills which raised Alberta and Saskatchewan to the rank of provinces. What I have done for the western country is what all the old inhabitants of Quebec, the maritime provinces and Ontario have done. We have heard to-night an eloquent, conscientious speech from a new Canadian. The hon. member for Battleford (Mr. McConica) delivered a speech to-night which should give us food for thought. He represents, as I believe, the feeling of the West at the present moment. That party at the present time practically represents western Canada, and the Liberal party represents more particularly eastern Canada. East of the Ottawa river, with the exception of half a dozen constituencies, perhaps less, all representatives of eastern Canada sit on this side of the House. We are met here on the borders of the Ottawa river, which is the dividing line between the East and the West. I have sat here a long time, Mr. Speaker, and I wish to remain as long as Providence will allow me, but I do not want to leave this House before being able to say that I have been as sincerely devoted to the interests of the West as I am to the interests of the East. We do not know each other, unfortunately. I have never been west of Winnipeg, and many members from the West have never visited the part of the country I represent, though it is older than Quebec itself, because Jacques Cartier landed here before he went up the St. Lawrence. There was a time in 1867 when one of the lieutenant governors of the province of Quebec, who was then representative of my constituency, won the gold medal at the Paris exhibition for the best wheat grown in Canada at that time. It was grown at New Carlisle, in the county of Bonaventure. The West at that time was a howling wilderness.

The Liberal party has done what it could to build up the West since 1896, and it has done so with signal success. From 1896 to 1911 the West went forward by leaps and bounds which attracted the attention of the world. In those days immigrants came into the West by a thousand a day. They came there from all climes, carried by the steamers sailing towards Canada, the promised land. The vigorous immigration policy inaugurated at that time by a western man, an ideal western representative, was heartily supported by the representatives of the province of Quebec and by the representatives of the maritime provinces. We intended in those days to build up a united Canada and I am glad to hear to-night from the West through the hon. member for Battleford, for whom I have the greatest respect, that that feeling exists in the West to-day. Canada must be united and must be one. Otherwise, Canada will fail in its mission. We have been providentially situated as to our geographical position. We occupy practically the centre of the British Empire. As Quebec is the keystone of Confederation, so Canada is the keystone of the British Empire. As we extend our hand of good-fellowship towards the Mother Country, we extend our hand of progress towards the West, because progress is intended westward, and the great problems to-day are to be found in the western country for us, and beyond the Pacific ocean for the world at large. It is not my intention, Mr. Speaker, to go into these details to-night, but I should like the hon. member for Battleford, before he casts his vote, to feel that the Liberal party is striving at the present moment, under its young and gifted leader, to take up the work which the great statesman who fell prematurely in 1919 had so deeply at heart. Sir Wilfrid Laurier had called upon us repeatedly to do for the West what he wanted himself to do. In his early career he had declared that the citizens of Quebec should not confine their fatherland to the borders of the St. Lawrence, but that the fatherland of the Canadian extended to the shores of the Pacific ocean, and with Sir George Etienne Cartier, who had been instrumental in establishing the province of Manitoba, he was instrumental in giving the West a great rush forward, just as Cartier had done some thirty years before.

We find ourselves to-day in office through the will, largely, of the people in eastern Canada. The Government of the day has but commenced its work. A great deal lies before it. It is blamed on one side for not going far enough, and blamed on the other side for going too far. The men of the West are reasonable men. The case they have submitted to the hearing of this House is a reasonable one. They want a living, and they deserve to earn a living, and to be rewarded for their labour. They have to contend with many difficulties which are unknown to us in eastern Canada, but which were not unknown to those who came before us, because the pioneers of eastern Canada went through hardships that those in the West may never know. Those who settled the province of Quebec in the early days and the province of Ontario, and those who are to-day invading the northern lands of Ontario and Quebec, have gone through hardships which will be unknown to the West. The West has conditions and advantages that eastern Canada never had. We have given the West railways by the thousands of miles. I heard when I was in that chair, Mr. Speaker, the cry of every member for the West asking for the Hudson Bay railway. I have heard every member from western Canada for the last twenty years ask for the Grand Trunk Pacific, ask for subsidies for the Canadian Northern, ask for branch lines for the Canadian Pacific railway. We could not build railways fast enough for them. We needed then, according to the people of the West, three, four or five transcontinental railways. Eastern Canada responded to the appeal without grudging the expense. We bore the brunt of the load and burden of the debt of Canada by our population, and we are bearing it still to-day, but we felt that if Canada was to fulfil its mission, if Canada was to become a great country, the West must be developed, so we gave to the West and we put it on the high road to prosperity.

We are accused to-day because we have not done all that is required for the West. There are two things Canada needs at the present time. The western farmer needs a market, and the working man in the city needs employment. Find a market for the farmer, a market for the producer, and find employment for the working man who earns his living in a factory, and your difficulties will be solved.

When I was elected in 1911 to this House, I was elected to support reciprocity. I see by the figures given of the general election of 1911 that those sentiments were also shared by the people of the West. We were united for reciprocity in Quebec, because Quebec voted for reciprocity in 1911. Western members who are not as familiar with the conditions of 1911 as they are with conditions to-day will do well to remember that the twenty-seven members who were elected in the province of Quebec in 1911 and who brought about the downfall of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, were not elected in opposition to reciprocity, because reciprocity was no issue in the province of Quebec in 1911. The fight in Quebec in 1911 was on the navy, and on that alone, and those twenty-seven members from the province of Quebec secured their election by co-operation between the Nationalist element and the Conservative party. The maritime provinces divided on the question of reciprocity, the West voted for it, and Ontario went dead against it, but there were other issues at that time raised in Ontario against Sir Wilfrid Laurier and his government, and I think many constituencies in Ontario were not wholly carried away against reciprocity. I remember well the day I occupied your Chair, Mr. Speaker, when the distinguished Minister of Finance of that day and his late distinguished colleague, the Hon. William Paterson, then representative of Brant, came into this House and the Minister of Finance rose to make the announcement of the success of the negotiations at Washington. The applause was general throughout the House, even from the front benches of the Opposition, and many of the old veteran Conservative members of Ontario, walking past the Chair would remark, en passant, what a fortunate man he was to have been able to achieve success because Sir Charles Tupper, Sir John A. Macdonald, Sir George Etienne Cartier, Sir Leonard Tilley and all the other statemen had failed. They regarded reciprocity as a Godsend to Canada. We had been wishing for it for years, and it was delayed. But, reciprocity being delayed, enabled Canada to fall back upon its own resources, and to start building the Canadian Pacific and developing its resources in an effort to try and eke out its own existence. But when reciprocity came, it came through the instrumentality of the Liberal party, in the fullness of time, and through the instrumentality of the Finance Minister, who has lived long enough to be able to know that, although he was accused at that time of having made a mistake, it was not a mistake, and that Canada is still longing for reciprocity. The reciprocity agreement, when laid before this House, did not receive fair treatment. I remember, from day to day, for weeks and months, I rose from the place where you, Mr. Speaker, stand to-day to put the question to the House, but obstruction of the most determined character was raised, and the vote could not be secured in this House on the question of reciprocity. Objections of all kinds were raised. Then the coronation of the late sovereign of Great Britain was to take place shortly, and Sir Wilfrid Laurier was urged to go to England to attend the event, as representing the premier dominion of the Empire. He went, and during his absence, a campaign was organized against reciprocity, and we know the result. Those who organized that campaign realized that if reciprocity in natural products with the United States were permitted to go into effect, it would be so popular, and would have such an effect on the public mind that, within a very short time, the people of Canada would ask for reciprocity in manufactured articles. It was in Montreal, and also in Toronto, where there were many manufacturers, that the money was raised to fight reciprocity, because the manufacturers realized that reciprocity in natural products was the first step towards reciprocity in manufactured articles.

The measure was rejected, and then we went on without it. But our trade with the United States continued. Notwithstanding our fiscal policy our relations with the United States continued. The natural tendency is to trade with the United States, because they are our nearest neighbours, and they furnish the greatest market that we have. It is the policy of this Government to bring about a better understanding with the United States and to bring about a reciprocity agreement as soon as possible, and, I think, that the hon. members from the West would be well advised if, on the main motion, which will be submitted to them in a few moments, they give the Government, at least, a fair opportunity to give effect to what every Liberal in this country desires, namely, fuller, broader and more complete relations with the United States. In my own constituency we have been a unit in favour of dealing with the United States, because it is our natural market for lumber, fish, agricultural products and other things, and the United States will be the market for many districts throughout the whole of Canada. I hope, therefore, that when the vote is taken, the hon. member who has delivered such an eloquent oration to-night will give the Liberal party another opportunity of implementing what we know to be their policy.

In the meantime, we know the tariff has been reduced substantially on many articles, and the Minister of Finance has taken another step forward with the preference which he granted to Great Britain before the reciprocity agreement was made. I remember well when that matter was introduced in this House, and I remember all the objections that were raised to it. The Opposition contested it and spoke against it, but never dared to challenge it on the floor of the House, and nobody sought to bring about a change in the British preference. It increased our trade with Great Britain, and the St. Lawrence became the natural highway for the commerce of the Mother Country to Canada.

That route was transformed into a national highway. In the old days, when the Liberal administration came into office, the St. Lawrence was an ordinary waterway, the steamers having to drop anchor at sundown in the lower regions of the St. Lawrence. In the course of a few years, we found the St. Lawrence transformed into a river with a channel 30 feet deep, and well lighted, so that the steamers were able to reach Montreal as easily at midnight as in the noonday sun. Montreal has become one of the leading ports in North America, the leading port in Canada, surely, and in the course of time, in the development of Canada, with the increase in our population and the development in our facilities of al kinds, Montreal will become the centre of this country, because it occupies a geographical position.

Montreal has progressed, and eastern Canada will progress, in time, as the West progresses, but the western and eastern people must get together and come to an understanding. No question of a paltry few dollars on the tariff, or a few paltry changes here and there, should keep Canadians apart, and I hope, before this session is finally closed, a better understanding will be brought about. When this session was called on the 8th of March there were a hundred new members in the House. We have hardly had time to become acquainted with their names, much less with their views. I have learned more in the present session about conditions in western Canada than I ever learned in the past. New ideas have sprung up, new conditions have developed, and a new state of things has arisen. The statesmen of Canada must deal with these issues, because in their solution lies the safety of this country.

I will vote against the amendment, because I feel that I will be carrying out my mandate, and I will vote for the budget, because I think it is the best that could be presented. The Minister of Finance has been placed in the most difficult position in which any statesman could be placed, because he has to find revenue to meet our war indebtedness, which is eight times larger than the public debt of Canada was a few years ago. But Canada is now on the map of the world. Canada is in the council of nations, and has plenipotentiaries, and representatives in Europe. Canada is a nation, Canada that has been the home land for those who came from all countries, regardless of their creed.

origin or nationality, only asking them one thing,—loyalty to the flag. There is among the citizens enough patriotism, enough enlightenment to solve the puny difficulties which now present themselves in matters of dollars and cents, to avoid a greater difficulty, which later on, may break Canada asunder, but which, I hope, will never occur, because to-day with our means of communications, with our newspapers, with our facilities, we ought to be able to get together and stand on common ground. I claim enough intelligence in the Canadian people to know that the moment we would get together, those difficulties would be solved.

Mr. LUCIEN CANNON (Dorchester): Mr. Speaker, in the fall of 1921, the then Prime Minister of Canada, (Mr. Meighen) announced that a public meeting was to be held in the province of Ontario, and that he would take occasion at that meeting to make a pronouncement of great moment and interest to the people of Canada. The then Prime Minister, who had been leading the destinies of this country for quite a long while, had disappointed the people of Canada in many ways; but that evening when he spoke at that great meeting, after having announced that the government of Canada would go to the people, a unanimous feeling of rejoicing went through all our country from the Pacific to the Atlantic, because the people of Canada thought the Prime Minister had at last realized his responsibility and a ray of hope could be seen in our darkened political sky. The government went to the people of Canada; the administration which had led Canadian affairs from 1911 to 1921 went before their judges, and we see the result of the trial which lasted for several months. We have in this House before our eyes, in the decreased number of representatives of the Tory party, the real feeling, the real meaning of the elections held in December, 1921.

If on the one hand the people of Canada are happy to-day to be rid of the administration of 1921, on the other hand, the rulers of Canada are to-day facing a situation which is so serious, they have to solve problems which are so momentous that the time has come for every public-spirited citizen in Canada to lay aside party spirit and partisan division in order to endeavour to find national remedies for the grave and weighty problems that we have before us. One result of the election which ought to open the eyes of every patriotic citizen of Canada, is the peculiar, the new situation created in this House. Formerly, in the House of Commons two great parties with old traditions used to fight over the affairs of Canada and used to devise the best means to administer the government. To-day, instead of these two old parties, we have three parties, the third, a younger party called the Progressive party. But there is something that adds to the seriousness of the situation, and it is this: Not only have we three parties in this House; but one of these parties, the Progressive party, the third party, is recruited almost exclusively in one section of our country. If we wish to have national unity, to have real harmony in this country, to have a government that will meet the needs of every section of Canada, we must have a government that will bring forth a policy that will not only obtain the support of the eastern section of our country, but receive the support and approval of the western section of Canada.

Mr. SPENCER: We have continually heard of the western viewpoint and what the West wants. I should like to ask the hon. member if he realizes that one-third of the Progressives on this side are from eastern Canada?

Mr. CANNON: That one-third of the Progressives are from eastern Canada, I do not deny. I realize fully that some of the members of the Progressive party come from Ontario; but I repeat that most of the Progressive party comes from the western provinces, and that the peculiar feature in this House is that three of the western provinces sent practically exclusively Progressive members to this House.

When the hon. gentleman asked me a question, I was saying that, after the election, the Liberal party was called upon to form an administration. What were the causes of the Liberal victory at the polls in December last? The causes were two-fold: First, the people of Canada had confidence in the leader of the Liberal party (Mr. Mackenzie King) and, second, the people of Canada approved the Liberal programme. It does not belong to me to pay a eulogy to the leader of my party. Our leader, in the last election, held meetings in practically every constituency in Canada. His eloquence is well known; his sincerity is admitted everywhere, and in every home in Canada hopes, and high hopes, are formed that the leader of the Liberal party, on account of his youth, his training, his political experience, will give to Canada one of the most brilliant administrations that Canada has ever had. It is true that the role of our leader is a hard one to fill. His predecessor, the Right Hon. Sir Wilfrid Laurier, was one of the brightest men who ever lived in Canada, and probably he has left the finest record of any man in the history of Canada. Sir Wilfrid Laurier stood for great principles; he fought in Canadian politics the greatest battles for principle that were ever fought by any statesman, and I may say to the right hon. leader of this House: If you wish to give to Canada a great administration, if you wish to give to this country satisfaction and prosperity, follow the footsteps of the former leader of the party, and I may be sure, and you may be sure that that Canada will continue, under the regime under which Canada is now, the great strides which Canada took under the late Sir Wilfrid Laurier. Not only had the personality of our leader great importance at the last election, but so had the political programme of the Liberal party. In 1919, a Liberal convention was held in the city of Ottawa. Liberals from all parts of the country were convened in order to adopt a programme and in order to elect a leader. The leader was chosen. I have spoken of him, and I may here but repeat that I have full and complete confidence in him. As to the programme of 1919, that programme stands as being the charter of the Liberal party. We adopted that programme in convention, and so far as I am concerned I may say that I fought for that programme at the convention and have fought for it before my people; and by that programme I will stand.

Mr. DUFF: That is the way to talk.

Mr. CANNON: The great reproach which we adressed to the then government while we were on the opposite side was that constitutional liberty and freedom was not properly safeguarded by them. During the election, pledges were given and promises were made that should a Liberal administration preside over our national affairs constitutional liberty would be restored and Parliament would again enjoy all its privileges. I have full confidence in the Government to restore that liberty in Canada, and in the course of this session the administration has given many evidences of its willingness to give to the House of Commons all the privileges to which it is entitled. But I take the liberty of calling the attention of the Government to certain facts of great importance, and I say that the Government will have to bring down some legislation that will show to the people of Canada that when the Liberal party gives pledges or makes promises, those pledges are redeemed and those promises are respected. In Canada our forefathers fought on many battlefields to obtain the liberties of which we are so proud to-day, and we, their children, have one solemn duty to perform. That duty is to safeguard those liberties to the very utmost of our ability. The basis of constitutional and responsible government is that every minister in the government shall be answerable to the representatives of the people for acts done by the government in the administration of public affairs. If we wish to have constitutional liberty in its completeness, if we wish to have governmental responsibility in its integrity, we must have every department of public affairs responsible to the House of Commons.

I call the attention of the members of the Government to one fact. To-day, as a representative of the people I am responsible to my constituents for the conduct of public officials in my constituency. If the administration of public affairs in that constituency is not what it should be, the responsibility rests upon my shoulders, and on no other man's. But although I am charged with the responsibility for the administration of public affairs in my constituency, I have no control over the appointment of those officials. Now, Mr. Speaker, I say, not in the hope of being in a position to distribute favours, not in the desire to take revenge—no, sir, my object is very much higher than that—I say, to the Government that if we wish to have responsible government in this country civil servants must be responsible to Parliament. We should have responsible government in Canada and have it in its entirety. But can we have that government, as it is understood in England, as it has always been understood in Canada, and as it should be understood everywhere where British institutions exist, if, for instance, we have the immense system of railways, owned by the people in this country, controlled by a commission altogether independent of Parliament, and when the Minister of Railways has absolutely nothing to do with their management? We should have in connection with our railways a policy that would put that immense system beyond the range of patronage. But, on the other hand, no minister should be able to get up in this House and say that he is not responsible for that policy. Mr. Hanna, the President of the Canadian National Railways, is not elected of the people. He has never been elected by any constituency; he has never even been chosen by this Government. Why then, should he be a czar, in absolute control of this immense system, in such a way that my hon. friend the Minister of Railways (Mr. Kennedy) should have nothing to do with them? If we want to have responsible government in the real sense, if we want to have that constitutional liberty which is so lauded, and rightly, by the leader of this Government, (Mr. Mackenzie King) let us have a responsible system in connection with the civil service and with the Government Railways. Before I leave the subject of the Canadian National Railways I wish to express one hope, and that is that the Government will very soon appoint another board. We cannot have at the head of the Canadian National board a man who said that the Prime Minister of Canada did not tell the truth to the people of this country. We cannot have at the head of the Grand Trunk board a man whose scandalous profits during the war brought upon his shoulders the opprobium of the whole population of Canada. If these boards are to be maintained, let the personnel be changed; and the sooner it is changed the better.

Before resuming my seat I want to say a few words to my Western friends. I come from the province of Quebec. That province, in 1921, when the call came to choose representatives, sent to this House 65 Liberals out of 65 constituencies. Why? The province of Quebec elected those 65 members because it wanted to send to Parliament liberal, broad-minded men who desired to work in harmony with every other section of the country for the common good of the Dominion at large. Unfortunately, in this House, the representatives of one section do not know the representatives of another section as well as they should. Another great evil is that public men in Canada are prone to forget past history and look only to recent events for their guidance. I wish to tell our western friends that we members of the Liberal party in Quebec have fought since 1896 the fights of western Canada before our electorate. When in 1896 the great question came before the Canadian people as to whether provincial autonomy was to be maintained, or if the small, weak province of Manitoba was to be crushed, the man who got up before the people of Canada and asked that liberty be given to Manitoba and used the slogan "Hands off Manitoba!" was a man from Quebec who wanted political and religious liberty to prevail. In 1896 we in the province of Quebec battled for the rights of western Canada. Did western Canada forget, or was she grateful? In 1904 we fought again for western Canada when we wanted the great transcontinental railway to be constructed through the West. Again in 1911 Laurier fought for the western farmers of Canada. There was no Progressive party at that time, and those who fought for western ideals were again the Liberals of the East, the Liberals of Quebec. And a fact not to be forgotten by our friends on the other side is that while Laurier was battling for his life, while he was putting up probably the greatest battle of all his career, part of the West went back on him. The Liberal party in the East never went back on the principles underlying the development of western Canada and western trade. Those principles were always carried by us in the East; but unfortunately when we were fighting the battles of the west, the West was not united with us.

Those are the battles of the past. We have now to face the future. The eloquent member for Battleford (Mr. McConica) said, "We want our condition improved, we want remedies applied to our hurts." I ask my Progressive friends, is there one among them who, putting his hand on his heart, will say that he can hope to obtain any remedy or any improvement of condition from the Tory party? Is there one member of the Progressive party, be he from Ontario, from the prairies, or from British Columbia, who will say that the Tory party, whose basis is selfishness, ever thinks of the ills of others? The hope of the West, the hope of Canada as a whole, is founded in the Liberal ideas of her citizens. If we want to reconstruct Canada, if we want to pay our immense debt, if we want to continue the era of prosperity begun under Sir Wilfrid Laurier, but interrupted by the Tory party in 1911, the time has come for every man, be he Liberal or be he Progressive, if he is sincere in his desire to put into practice the principles for which he fought, to take the common road that lies ahead of us—the road of Liberalism and Progressive ideas.

Nothing would please our Tory friends better than to see the Progressive forces of Canada divide. Why should they divide? The amendment brought by the right hon. leader of the Opposition will certainly not be supported by this House. There remains the budget. The Tory party tell the Minister of Finance, "We cannot support your budget because you go too far in the way of reductions." If the Tories cannot support our budget, the Progressives ought to sustain it.

Mr. DUFF: Nothing else will do.

Mr. CANNON: I said, Mr. Speaker, that we eastern members of the Liberal party have fought the battles of the western farmers for twenty years, and in doing so we have simply continued the traditions of those French pioneers who opened up the West. We are not strangers in the West. The first white men who travelled up those great western rivers were men in whose veins flowed French blood. The West has been peopled by French pioneers, and the descendants of our people from Quebec are still living out there. The interests of the West and the interests of the East could very easily be united; and let us hope, Sir, that all our forces, Liberal and Progressive, uniting, we will be able in a certain measure to repair the blunders and incompetency of the past administration.

The House divided on the proposed amendment (Sir Henry Drayton) which was negatived on the following division:

YEAS

Messrs.

Anderson,
Arthurs,
Baxter,
Black (Yukon),
Bowen,
Chaplin,
Charters,
Church,
Clark,
Dickie,
Drayton (Sir Henry),
Garland (Bow River),
Garland (Carleton),
Grimmer,
Guthrie,
Harris,
Hocken,
Hubbs,
Irvine,
Kennedy (Edmonton),
Ladner,
LeSueur,
MacKelvie,
MacLaren,
Maclean (York),
Macphail,
McKillop,
McQuarrie,
McTaggart,
Manion,
Maybee,
Meighen,
Mewburn,
Ross (Kingston),
Ryckman,
Senn,
Sheard,
Simpson,
Spence,
Spencer,
Stansell,
Stevens,
Stewart (Hamilton),
Stewart (Lanark),
Stewart (Leeds),
Sutherland,
Thompson,
Tolmie,
White,
Wilson,
Woodsworth—51.

NAYS

Messrs.

Archambault,
Baldwin,
Bancroft,
Beaubien,
Béland,
Binette,
Bird,
Black (Huron),
Blackadder,
Boivin,
Bouchard,
Boucher,
Bourassa,
Brethen,
Brown,
Bureau,
Cahill,
Caldwell,
Campbell,
Cannon,
Cardin,
Carmichael,
Carroll,
Carruthers,
Casgrain,
Chevrier,
Chew,
Chisholm,
Clifford,
Coote,
Copp,
Crerar,
d'Anjou,
Davis,
Déchêne,
Delisle,
Demers,
Denis (Joliette),
Denis (St. Denis),
Desaulniers,
Deslauriers,
Desrochers,
Drummond,
Duff,
Elliott (Dundas),
Elliott (Waterloo),
Ethier,
Euler,
Evans,
Fafard,
Fansher,
Fielding,
Findlay,
Fontaine,
Forke,
Forrester,
Fortier,
Fournier,
Gauvreau,
Gendron,
Good,
Gordon,
Gouin (Sir Lomer),
Gould,
Graham,
Halbert,
Hammell,
Hatfield,
Hodgins,
Hoey,
Hudson,
Hughes,
Humphrey,
Hunt,
Jelliff,
Johnson (Moosejaw),
Johnston (Last Mountain),
Kay,
Kellner
Kennedy (Essex),
Kennedy (Glengarry and Stormont),
Kennedy (Port Arthur and Kenora),
King (Huron),
King (Kootenay),
King, Mackenzie (York),
Knox,
Laflamme,
Lafortune,
Lanctôt,
Lapierre,
Lapointe,
Lavigueur,
Leader,
Lewis,
Logan,
Lovett,
Lovie,
Low,
Lucas,
Macdonald (Pictou),
Mackinnon,
Maclean (Halifax),
Maclean (Prince, P.E.I.),
McBride,
McConica,
McCrea,
McDonald (Timiskaming),
McGiverin,
McIsaac,
McKay,
McKenzie,
McMurray,
Marcil (Bonaventure),
Marcile (Bagot),
Marler,
Martell,
Mercier,
Michaud,
Millar,
Milne,
Mitchell,
Morin,
Morrison,
Morrissy,
Motherwell,
Munro,
Murdock,
Murphy,
Neill,
Ouimet,
Pacaud,
Papineau,
Parent,
Pelletier,
Power
Prevost,
Pritchard,
Putnam,
Rankin,
Raymond,
Reed,
Rinfret,
Robb,
Robinson,
Robitaille,
Ross (Simcoe),
St. Père,

Sales,	Stork,
Savard,	Thurston,
Séguin,	Tobin,
Sexsmith,	Trahan,
Shaw,	Turgeon,
Sinclair (Oxford),	Vien,
Sinclair (Queens, P.E.I.),	Wallace,
Speakman,	Walsh,
Steedsman,	Ward,
Stewart (Argenteuil),	Warner,
Stewart (Humboldt),	Woods—169.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Before you make any pronouncement on the vote, Mr. Speaker, I call attention to the fact that several hon. members whose names do not appear on the records of the Whips as being paired have not, in this division, voted. This, as Your Honour knows, is contrary to the rules of the House. I could not state with any finality all the hon. members, but I call your attention to the hon. members for for East Calgary, West Calgary, Centre Winnipeg, Macleod and some others.

An hon. MEMBER: Southeast Grey.

Mr. SPEAKER: Am I to understand that hon. members who are in their seats have not voted?

Mr. MEIGHEN: The hon. members I refer to, and others, are in their seats and have not voted?

Mr. SPEAKER: And are not paired?

Mr. MEIGHEN: And are not on the records of the Whips as paired.

Mr. SPEAKER: The rule of the House and the custom in Parliament is that members who are in their seats and are not paired are obliged to vote.

Mr. MURDOCK: No loafing on the job.

Mr. SPEAKER: I would ask the hon. members whose constituencies have been mentioned—

An hon. MEMBER: And others.

Mr. SPEAKER: Order. I would ask the hon. member for West Calgary to declare if he intends to vote.

Mr. SHAW: If I must vote, I shall vote against the amendment.

Mr. KENNEDY (Edmonton): If I had voted I would have voted against the amendment.

Mr. SPENCER: If I had voted I would have voted against the amendment.

Mr. MEIGHEN: I would call your attention, Mr. Speaker, to the fact that the hon. gentlemen are not voting.

Mr. IRVINE: I vote for the amendment.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: I vote in favour of the amendment.

Mr. GARDINER: I vote for the amendment.

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): I also vote for the amendment.

Miss MACPHAIL: Mr. Speaker, I vote for the amendment.

Mr. COOTE: Mr. Speaker, under compulsion I vote against the amendment.

Mr. McTAGGART: I vote for the amendment.

Mr. SPEAKER: On the question of casting a vote when a division takes place, Bourinot, fourth edition, page 381, says:

> If a member of the Commons who has heard the question put does not vote, and the attention of the Speaker is directed to the fact, the latter will call upon him to declare on which side he votes; and his name will be recorded accordingly.

As there seems to be misunderstanding, the request is made to the hon. member for East Calgary and the hon. member for Centre Winnipeg kindly to declare again which way they vote. So many hon. members rose at the same time that the Clerk did not get their votes.

Mr. IRVINE: For the amendment.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: For the amendment.

The House divided on the main motion, which was agreed to on the following division:

YEAS

Messrs.

Archambault,	Desaulniers,
Baldwin,	Deslauriers,
Béland,	Desrochers,
Binette,	Duff,
Blackadder,	Elliott (Dundas),
Boivin,	Elliott (Waterloo),
Bouchard,	Ethier,
Boucher,	Euler,
Bourassa,	Fafard,
Bureau,	Fielding,
Cahill,	Fontaine,
Cannon,	Forrester,
Cardin,	Fortier,
Carroll,	Fournier,
Carruthers,	Gauvreau,
Casgrain,	Gendron,
Chevrier,	Gordon,
Chew,	Gouin (Sir Lomer),
Chisholm,	Graham,
Clifford,	Hammell,
Copp,	Hatfield,
d'Anjou,	Hodgins,
Déchêne,	Hudson,
Délisle,	Hughes,
Demers,	Humphrey,
Denis (Joliette),	Hunt,
Denis (St. Denis),	Kay,

Kennedy (Essex),
King (Kootenay),
King, Mackenzie (York),
Laflamme,
Lafortune,
Lanctôt,
Lapierre,
Lapointe,
Lavigueur,
Logan,
Lovett,
Low,
Macdonald (Pictou),
Mackinnon,
Maclean (Halifax),
MacLean (Prince, P.E.I.),
McBride,
McCrea,
McGiverin,
McIsaac,
McKay,
McKenzie,
McMurray,
Marcil (Bonaventure),
Marcile (Bagot),
Marler,
Martell,
Mercier,
Michaud,
Mitchell,
Morin,
Morrissy,
Motherwell,
Munro,
Murdock,
Murphy,
Neill,
Ouimet,
Pacaud,
Papineau,
Parent,
Pelletier,
Power,
Prevost,
Putnam,
Rankin,
Raymond,
Reed,
Rinfret,
Robb,
Robinson,
Robitaille,
St. Père,
Savard,
Séguin,
Sexsmith,
Sinclair (Oxford),
Sinclair (Queens, P.E.I.),
Stewart (Argenteuil),
Stork,
Tobin,
Trahan,
Turgeon,
Vien,
Walsh—119.

NAYS

Messrs.

Anderson,
Arthurs,
Bancroft,
Baxter,
Beaubien,
Bird,
Black (Huron),
Black (Yukon),
Bowen,
Brethen,
Brown,
Caldwell,
Campbell,
Carmichael,
Charters,
Church,
Clark,
Coote,
Crerar,
Davies,
Dickie,
Drayton (Sir Henry),
Drummond,
Evans,
Fansher,
Findlay,
Forke,
Gardiner,
Garland (Bow River),
Garland (Carleton),
Good,
Gould,
Grimmer,
Guthrie,
Halbert,
Harris,
Hocken,
Hoey,
Hubbs,
Irvine,
Jelliff,
Johnson (Moosejaw),
Johnston (Last Mountain),
Kellner,
Kennedy (Edmonton),
Kennedy (Glengarry and Stormont),
Kennedy (Port Arthur and Kenora),
King (Huron),
Knox,
Ladner,
Leader,
LeSueur,
Lewis,
Lovie,
Lucas,
MacKelvie,
MacLaren,
Maclean (York),
Macphail,
McConica,
McDonald (Timiskaming),
McKillop,
McQuarrie,
McTaggart,
Manion,
Maybee,
Meighen,
Mewburn,
Millar,
Milne,
Morrison,
Pritchard,
Ross (Kingston),
Ross (Simcoe),
Ryckman,
Sales,
Senn,
Shaw,
Sheard,
Simpson,
Speakman,
Spence,
Spencer,
Stansell,
Steedsman,
Stevens,
Stewart (Hamilton)
Stewart (Humboldt),
Stewart (Lanark),
Stewart (Leeds),
Sutherland,
Thompson,
Thurston,
Tolmie,
Wallace,
Ward,
Warner,
White,
Wilson,
Woods,
Woodsworth—101.

PAIRS

The list of pairs as supplied by the Chief Whips is as follows:

Government.	Opposition.
Messrs.
Malcolm,	Duncan,
Kyte,	Boys,
Gervais,	Jones,
Léger,	Hanson,
German,	Chaplin,
McMaster,	Porter,
Jacobs.	Bristol.

Mr. HANSON: I was paired with the hon. member for Kent, N.B. (Mr. Leger). Had I voted I would have voted for the amendment and against the budget.

Mr. CHAPLIN: I was paired with the hon. member for Welland (Mr. German). Had I voted I would have voted against the main motion.

Mr. McMASTER: I was paired with the hon. member for West Hastings (Mr. Porter). Had I not been paired I would have voted against the amendment and for the main motion.

Mr. DUNCAN: I was paired with the hon. member for North Bruce (Mr. Malcolm). Otherwise I would have voted for the amendment, and against the main motion.

Mr. KYTE: I was paired with the hon. member for South Simcoe (Mr. Boys). Otherwise I would have voted for the main motion and against the amendment.

Mr. JACOBS: I was paired with the hon. member for Centre Toronto (Mr. Bristol). Otherwise I would have voted for the main motion and against the amendment.

Mr. GERVAIS (Translation): Mr. Speaker, I was paired with the hon. member for Royal (Mr. Jones). Otherwise I would have voted against the amendment and for the main motion.

Mr. SPEAKER: In order to avoid confusion as regards the result of the vote on the amendment, I may say that the tellers have sent me the figures which are as follows: Yeas, 51; nays, 169.

Motion (Mr. Fielding) agreed to, and the House went into Committee of Ways and Means.

Progress reported.

PRIVATE BILL

SECOND READING

Bill No. 135 (from the Senate), for the relief of James Henry Boyd.—Mr. Boys.

On motion of Mr. Mackenzie King, the House adjourned at 1.20 a.m. Wednesday.

Wednesday, June 14, 1922.

The House met at three o'clock.

WHEAT MARKETING

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON AGRICULTURE AND COLONIZATION

Mr. W. F. KAY (Missisquoi): With the consent of the House I beg to move that the fifth report of the select standing committee on Agriculture and Colonization be concurred in.

Mr. SPEAKER: Under rule 41, this motion may be made only by unanimous consent. Is the House of opinion that the motion should be put?

Some hon. MEMBERS: Yes.

Mr. KAY: Mr. Speaker, in rising to move concurrence in the fifth report of the select standing committee on Agriculture and Colonization, I have only a few remarks to make. The question was first brought up on a memorandum presented to the Government by the Canadian Council of Agriculture, asking for the re-establishment of the Wheat Board of 1919. This memorandum was, on the 27th of March, referred to the select standing committee on Agriculture and Colonization. That committee proceeded to hear expert witnesses both for and against the re-establishment of the Wheat Board, amongst those witnesses being representatives of councils of agriculture, elevator companies, millers, grain dealers, the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, boards of trade, and also Messrs. Stewart and Riddell, members of the former Wheat Board. The committee also received telegrams, letters and petitions from various sources, both for and against the re-establishment of the board. The question of the constitutionality of the re-establishment of the Wheat Board having been raised, the matter was referred to the law officers of the Crown for their opinion. Their opinion was laid on the Table of the House on the 19th of April last; it will be found in Hansard of that date. The recommendation of the committee for concurrent legislation by this Parliament and the provincial legislatures is based on procedure adopted in Australia. It was also suggested in the committee that if legislation were passed by this Parliament, it should be provided that any province taking advantage of a wheat board, should become responsible for any loss sustained by the board and should become possessed of any profits made therein. As the minutes of the proceedings of this committee contain all the evidence taken, and as these have been distributed amongst members of the House, who, I am sure, have read them all, I leave the matter for the consideration of the House.

Mr. MACLEAN (York): Will the hon. member explain briefly to the House just what the report of the committee is?

Mr. KAY: The recommendation of the committee was presented to the House on the 26th of May. I can read it to the House, but it will be found in the Votes and Proceedings of that date. It reads:

> The select standing committee on Agriculture and Colonization beg leave to present the following as their fifth report:
>
> Your Committee, having held twenty-two meetings and heard the evidence of nineteen witnesses and having given full consideration to the whole matter referred to them, beg leave to submit the following Resolution as a recommendation, viz.:—
>
> 1. That it is desirable in the National interests that the Government immediately create a National wheat marketing agency for the marketing of the wheat crop of 1922.
>
> 2. That this agency be given all the powers of the Wheat Board of 1919 as are within the jurisdiction of Parliament to grant except as they include the direct marketing of flour and other mill products.
>
> 3. That an act be passed based on this resolution, to become effective by Proclamation, as soon as two or more of the provinces have conferred upon this agency such powers possessed by the Wheat Board of 1919 as come within provincial jurisdiction.
>
> Your Committee also submit herewith the Minutes of their Proceedings and the Evidence taken by them.

Mr. SPEAKER: Is the House ready for the question?

Right Hon. ARTHUR MEIGHEN (Leader of the Opposition): Mr. Speaker, it seems to me incredible that the Government should permit this motion to be submitted to the House without any statement whatever of its position with regard thereto. Apparently, however, that was the state of mental paralysis the Government was in, and the House was about to vote on the resolution without any statement whatever.

The resolution that has just been read by the hon. member apparently constitutes the sole report of the Committee on Agriculture and Colonization on this question. The House will recall that some time ago, in the month of April, shortly after this question was submitted to the committee, on the occasion of an interim report requesting the submission to the Supreme Court of some question that had been raised as to jurisdiction, I took the opportunity of reviewing briefly the history of governmental handling of wheat, and, as regards such interim report, urged that the long delay involved in litigation was perilous—yes, fatal—to all wheat board prospects and was totally unnecessary. The House accepted the view I then presented and the matter of the determination of jurisdiction was left to the ordinary course, that is, reference to the law officers of the Crown. Such having been done, there appears to have been very little difficulty in determining where the line dividing jurisdictions lay. Indeed, there appears to have been on the part of the law officers of the federal government no pretence or claim that there was, under present conditions, the power to re-establish the board with its old compulsory features. Consequently, litigation would have been futile, because, even on the part of those contending for federal powers, there was no belief that those powers could be sustained.

The committee set to work to determine what should be recommended to Parliament, it having been decided that certain of the accompaniments and duties of the old board could not exist in a board constituted purely by this Parliament. They have taken a long while at the task; indeed, they have had something of a chequered career in coming to the point reached to-day. But now we have their recommendations. Why the matter should have been delayed so long it is hard for any one to comprehend who really wants a solution of the question. It is weeks since this decision was arrived at. Between this decision and a previous decision, there were one or two weeks intervening; and all the while time has been speeding, time that was exceedingly precious if there was to be the least prospect of action such as might be taken advantage of for the season of 1922. Hon. members should keep in mind that all that has apparently been under review in this committee is the question of handling of the crop of this year. That is all that is contemplated by the resolution which now constitutes the report. To take care of that crop, final action must be taken at least during the month of July. The original wheat board was established towards the end of July, 1919. Then we had none of the advantages of previous experience. We had a novel situation from every aspect, and it took us two or three weeks of consideration, such time being devoted to it as we were able to give to the subject, other matters intervening. Even then it was a little later in being established than would have been best, had it been possible to come to a decision earlier. But this year, knowing as we do that federal action alone is incompetent, that provincial action must follow, and that for that purpose, provincial legislatures must be called and must hold special sessions before they can act, as contemplated by the report of the committee, what is the excuse for waiting until the 14th day of June to bring before Parliament the recommendations of the committee, which involve all the subsequent proceedings that are indispensable before final action can be taken?

Even were this report just as it should be, even were we in a position now to decide, I question whether it would be possible for such final action as this report contemplates to be taken in time to be of any value whatever for the crop this year. It really would appear that the whole project of the Wheat Board has been submitted to a long, cruel process of strangulation and that now we are asked to give it the final and fatal turn. Let me read from the report:

> 1. That it is desirable in the national interests that the Government immediately create a national wheat marketing agency for the marketing of the wheat crop of 1922.
>
> 2. That this agency be given all the powers of the Wheat Board of 1919 as are within the jurisdiction of Parliament to grant, except as they include the direct marketing of flour and other mill products.

The agency is to be given all the powers within federal jurisdiction, except that one. I ask hon. members, of the legal profession particularly, to reflect for a moment whether that one is a federal power at all.

> 3. That an act be passed based on this Resolution, to become effective by Proclamation, as soon as two or more of the provinces have conferred upon this agency such powers possessed by the Wheat Board of 1919 as come within provincial jurisdiction.

When analyzed, what is that report? A wheat board is to be established, by legislation yet to be introduced, to take care of the crop of 1922, and that alone. That board is to be given all the powers conferred in 1919 upon the old board, whether by Order in Council or by subsequent statute. It is to have all the powers that are vested in the federal Parliament, save one, which is assumed to be a federal power. But the board, so constituted and empowered, shall sit silent and inactive and never come into real existence at all until at least two provinces meet in special session and do—what? Grant them such further powers as the provinces think wise? No; not at all but —grant them all such powers within the provincial jurisdiction as the old board had. The only option left to the provinces is to confer upon the board all powers of provincial origin possessed by the old wheat board. Two provinces must do that, and after they have done it, it rests with the Government by proclamation to call this act into effect.

Now, was I too strong in my language when I stated that this is merely the last step of the tragedy in the long process of strangulation of the whole prospect of wheat board?

First of all, what is made necessary under this proposal? I do not think anyone suggests that Ontario would act; we must be practical. So far as the resolution goes, Ontario could, of course, so could Nova Scotia and Prince Edward Island; but everyone knows that we have not those provinces in mind,—there is virtually no possibility of their considering the matter at all. Hardly anyone would suggest that Manitoba could. That province is now in the throes of an election, so how could a special session of the legislature be called now? There remain only two—Saskatchewan and Alberta; they might do so, for their people are doubtless very much interested in this project. Their people and the people of Manitoba are, I believe, sincerely desirous that we establish a wheat board as near the old Wheat Board as this Parliament can establish it. I think that is the prevailing opinion; whether we agree with its soundness or not.

Those provinces, then, might possibly induce their legislators to meet and pass this special legislation. But why should we make it a condition that they must not only give the board such powers as they think wise, but they must give it every power the old Wheat Board possessed in so far as those powers are compulsory—that is, provincial? The placing of that obligation upon them leaves them no discretion whatever, and reduces to a minimum the likehood that they ever would comply with these restrictions.

I want to inquire into the question from another angle. The provinces must grant the board, what powers? They must grant the following powers that have been held not to be within federal jurisdiction—I refer to the complusory powers:

> To require each applicant for a license to give a bond in such form and in such amount as may be satisfactory to the board;

That is, a license to buy and sell wheat. So that, if Saskatchewan acts, she would impose those restraints and restrictions upon the whole wheat-buying and wheat-selling structure of the province at a time when there were no such restraints and restrictions in Manitoba at all, probably none in Alberta, and certainly none in Ontario. Alberta would have to do the same and put the whole of the wheat-buying and wheat-selling instrumentality of that province under all those restraints when competitors in other provinces were not so restricted. It would be putting them in a position where they could not compete, and it would be putting them in a position where the system would be half compulsory and half voluntary and would not work at all.

Let me pass to another power:

> To provide that no person, firm or corporation other than the board, shall buy wheat, operate any elevator or warehouse where wheat is received, or handle wheat on commission or otherwise unless licensed by the board.

My remarks as to the previous power apply here. All those things they must impose upon their wheat-buying and wheat-selling agencies while other provinces have no such restraints, and while, indeed, other provinces will be operating under a different system altogether. But let us go a little further. They will be compelled to give the board this power:

> To order any person holding wheat stored in any elevator or warehouse or on railway cars or Canadian boats to sell and dispose of the same to any purchaser named by the board on such terms as the board may direct, and any such order of the board shall pass to the purchaser the title in the wheat mentioned in any such order.

That is to say, there cannot be any buying and selling at all save by such person as the board names in those provinces. The last power is:

> To prohibit the export out of Canada—

I do not suppose the provinces would have that power; that would be within the jurisdistion of the federal government. But here is another power which such a board would have to be given:

> To require every licensee of the board to whom delivery of wheat is made to pay the producer by way of advance or cash payment, such sum or sums as may be directed by the board.

That sum, of course, must be a sum guaranteed federally, the federal guarantee having behind it the security of the grain itself and therefore being limited in liability by that consideration. The guarantee, nevertheless, applies only to such provinces as chose to obey the injunctions of this House.

One might refer to further powers conferred and duties imposed by subsequent orders, but that is unnecessary. It is not hard to apprehend that unless you are going to have powers so limited as to territory as would make the whole thing an utter monstrosity — something in one province that would not operate in connection with the same facilities in another at all—unless we are going to have a system such as that, we cannot have anything done under this legislation.

Now, there might be some things that the provinces could do by way of supplementary powers to assist the functions of what would be fundamentally a voluntary wheat board, powers that would not put the system in one province into a position of incongruity with the system in another province with which it actually must work if there is to be any workable system at all. But those powers would be very, very restricted and would not correspond to the wide, sweeping powers which the old wheat board had. Those cannot be given piecemeal, some in one province, none in another. They must be given and exist through all the provinces, or not at all.

Now, let us contemplate what this resolution states, namely, that we must give federally all the powers of the old board, save the powers as to sale of flour and mill products. I question very much if that is a power that would be ours to confer, for it affects civil rights and more probably would be a provincial power. If so, of course, this resolution is meaningless. But let us assume, for the sake of argument, that such power is within the jurisdiction of the federal government, what is going to be the result? You give a wheat board powers which in at least two provinces will clothe it with all the jurisdiction of the old wheat board—in a word, full monopolistic control of the buying and selling of the grain of those two provinces, and then you say to that wheat board, "You shall have no control whatever in relation to the sale of flour." Is that feasible? Where are the consumers of this country going to land? Where is the miller in one province going to be as related to the miller in another province with whom he competes? The subject hardly admits of argument. It can scarcely be presented in a sufficiently plausible manner to convince the House that it really is seriously proposed.

Here is a board, we will say, in Saskatchewan and in Alberta. It has control of all the wheat of those provinces; no man can sell any wheat save through them, no man can buy any wheat save for them. In these provinces, indeed in all the Dominion, if you are going to do that, must not your action be acompanied by a ban upon imports into those provinces? If not, what are they going to do with imports, say, from across the line? Will they not have to take care of them too? The old wheat board had to be armed with those powers, or rather the exercise of its powers had to be accompanied by an embargo upon imports both of wheat and flour. You cannot arm a wheat board with those compulsory powers even as to two provinces and not give them that acompaniment of an embargo upon imports of wheat and flour; otherwise you are going to put them in a position where they will have to take care not only of the products of those provinces, but of imports as well; and that cannot be acomplished.

Mr. ROBB: May I interrupt my right hon. friend? Does he argue in favour of a compulsory wheat board?

Mr. MEIGHEN: What is my hon. friend afraid of?

Mr. ROBB: I am not afraid of anything; I would just like to follow my right hon. friend's ideas.

Mr. MEIGHEN: I have not argued in favour of a compulsory wheat board. I will say what I am in favour of very shortly. Indeed, I have said it already; I said it in the campaign of last fall, but I was denounced by my political foes—some of whom, by the way, now appear to be my best friends on this subject. I have no curves to take on this subject or on any other. It is suggested that I might reply to my hon. friend in the classic words of the Minister of Finance (Mr. Fielding) of yesterday; he cannot shake his gory locks at me. I am trying to show the House that it cannot possibly accept this report as a definition of the policy of this Parliament. It would land us in a quagmire. Imagine a wheat board with power to handle the whole crop and to fix the prices at which it should be sold to the miller in Alberta or in Saskatchewan; to fix the prices of grain to those people and then to say to them: "Here is a market; charge just whatever you like; we won't let any flour in; we won't let any wheat in; you have a closed market here to yourselves." That is the position we are asked to put the Wheat Board in by this resolution. And that is the position they will be put in if we adopt the motion; because if you permit the importations into these provinces then you put it out of their power to operate altogether.

Take the position of the eastern miller—for example the miller in Montreal. The miller who is alongside the stream of grain, who has it at his door all the time, passing by, does not need to put in a stock; he can get it at any time. The miller in Montreal, though, can do that only during the period of navigation. Through that period he must stock up; he must get his grain and have his supply for production of flour later. He gets it and he protects himself by a system of hedging. Now, under the old Wheat Board and under the Board of Grain Supervisors, that situation was taken care of in this way: the Wheat Board sold to the miller the wheat—sold it first at $2.30—and allowed him to lay in a supply at that price. They also fixed the price of the flour for sale in Canada; they had to do so. You cannot fix the price to the miller and give him his market and not fix the price of selling; if you do, you give him a virtual monopoly under which he can do what he likes. So they fixed the price and said: "Within Canada you sell at that price." And what did they say with regard to selling outside of Canada? They said: "We will sell beyond Canada ourselves, and the balance over and above what we let you sell for here, over and above the margin of profit we fix, goes into the pool, is reflected in the participation certificates, and returns to the producer." That was a fair arrangement. In that way they kept the prices down fairly well to the consumer in Canada and they secured the whole benefit for the producer; it did not go to the miller. If the price went up, then the wheat pool behind was simply expanded by that amount; if the price went down, then there could at least be no sale beyond the price or the margin of profit fixed by the Wheat Board itself.

What is going to result if this resolution goes through?

Mr. CRERAR: Would my right hon. friend permit a question there, for information? In his opinion, has this Parliament the power to clothe any board or authority with the power to state the price at which the mills, say, of any of the provinces of Canada, shall sell their flour to their customers?

Mr. MEIGHEN: That has already been decided by the Justice Department. I do not seek to impose my opinions as legal opinions on the House, but the Justice Department has held in the negative. The provinces could give that power. What this resolution contemplates is that two provinces shall in western Canada. They give these and all these compulsory powers to a board to be applied in western Canada alone; in eastern Canada, the millers of which depend on that very wheat, there shall be no such powers at all. Such an arrangement simply will not work. For example, they would be compelled to sell at a certain price to the miller in Montreal. We will say that after that the wheat price goes up. Of course, the market here must be surrounded, so the miller is going to get the whole advantage. If, however, the wheat goes down, and they have bought at a certain price dictated to them, why, the milling industry of Canada will be ruined. In a word, you cannot operate a board half compulsory and half voluntary. You cannot give it all those powers, provincial and federal, those monopolistic powers that the old board had, and give it to them only in a part of Canada. You cannot so geographically limit it, while in the rest of Canada, where the same industries are carried on, no such conditions exist at all. Surely it is manifest to the House that no such system as that would work.

Under the conditions of 1919 the wheat board policy was the correct policy. I do not hear very many expressions of dissent at this time. I heard a great many at that time, but let those things pass; they are incidental to politics. Under those conditions, differing wholly from the conditions to-day, the wheat board policy was the right course to pursue, and it resulted in tremendous advantage, certainly to the people of western Canada, to the people of the whole of Canada. When hon. members recite, as one did yesterday in the House, that all that has ever been done for the West has been done by the enemies of hon. gentlemen here, I venture to suggest that by the wise handling of the crop of 1919 more was done for the farmers of western Canada than has ever been done by any government or by all governments together in this country.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Hear, hear.

Mr. McMASTER: A large statement.

Mr. MEIGHEN: But very well received, I notice, by those who come from that part of Canada. Now, what were the conditions there? The United States had a closed market. The United States had a guaranteed price, and they had an embargo on grain going over. Europe, on the other hand, had virtually a closed buying agency. They were buying through one channel, and consequently, if they were not met by a similar situation at the selling end, then the selling end would have been helpless in the hands of the purchasing power. With the United States in that position, it was possible for us to operate this system. Europe is in no such situation to-day, neither is the United States. In the latter country, a free market exists, and with a free market in the United States you cannot, in my humble judgment, operate successfully a closed market in Canada. I offer that opinion for whatever it is worth. I make no pretensions to such familiarity with the grain trade as would lend any excessive weight to the opinion I have just expressed, but let me say that it is buttressed by the judgment of many who have had very active and long experience in the grain trade of this country. And in Europe there is competitive buying.

There has been very serious complaint with regard to our wheat marketing system, our whole grain marketing system. I do not think all the complaints are justified; I do not think the grievance is nearly as large as it has been represented to be. But I believe there are substantial grievances, and I believe as well that in this year, 1922, that western country suffers more than any other part of Canada from the pains of deflated currency, from the effects of the premature deflation of the values of farm products and of manufactured and other goods. Such has been the experience in this and other countries of the world. Naturally this result would be particularly felt on the prairies. The West is so situated geographically that the task of overcoming its freight and transportation difficulties is the biggest of any wheat or grain-producing country in the world. It may not be as great as Rusia's to-day, but ordinarily it is the biggest mountain to get over in the way of transportation cost, just on account of its geography, that confronts any grain-growing country. Therefore, the West to-day is in the position, described, I think, though, in terms of some exaggeration by representatives from the West in this House. Nevertheless, they are in general right.

A rather serious position exists in western Canada just because of the two causes I have named. Therefore, it is the part of Parliament to render special assistance there, if special assistance can be rendered, to tide them over the present position, and Parliament should address itself to that task, and if to some extent the credit of this country is essential to do it, I do not think it will be the will of the majority of this House to withhold that credit for this purpose. If by the extension of federal facilities of credit and federal facilities of organization we can at least give a trial to another system of marketing, I for my part would like to see that system of marketing established. In that state of mind, and not unmindful as well of the necessary restrictions in point of jurisdiction of the federal Parliament—in the state of mind I have described I stated last fall that if it was the wish of the western people, that should be done. I was prepared to commit myself to the establishment of a voluntary grain buying and grain selling system, or the establishment of a board by the federal Parliament, which board would have power to receive, to purchase, and to sell through its agency by the same system as the old wheat board, all grain committed to its charge in the year 1922. I also held out the hope that if that succeeded, if it proved feasible, it could be made the basis of a permanent system of marketing for that country. Undoubtedly it was to be in essence a voluntary system. It would not have the powers of the old board, and it would not have from some angles many of the advantages of the old board. That I well knew then; that I well know now; but I do not think in the light of conditions of to-day we could justify, even if the federal powers existed, the monopolization of the whole wheat handling of this country and virtually of the whole milling and flour disposal of this country.

It might be better and I would be prepared to do everything in my power to bring it about, that certain limited compulsory power be given. I do not think it would be of real value to have them given by two provinces alone. There might be certain compulsory powers, as to storage and disposition particularly, that could be given, and as to the giving of which this Government should not withhold its assent. Consequently, it seems to me the right course to take now is the course suggested there. I would be prepared to admit of some modification, of any modification that can be advanced in this House as feasible and of public advantage.

I suggest, then—I have not an amendment ready, but if the Government, particularly, has no opinions on this question I shall go to the trouble of getting an amendment and having it ready—I would suggest that we decide here and now on the establishment of a board upon the voluntary principle, and that we provide as well that if any province sees fit to repose in that board compulsory powers, the board can exercise those powers provided they are first reviewed by the federal government and receive its approval. I do not like Order in Council government. I never have.

Mr. McMASTER: By others.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Hon. gentlemen are a little slow in laughing because I expect they were thinking of some startling legislation introduced by them that is now ir committee of this House. But here we are in the place where if there is to be any co-operative action at all as between provincial legislatures and this House, this House can act by Order in Council and in no other way whatever. There is no other way in which it can act; there is no opportunity to act otherwise. This is the only way it can be done. I therefore suggest that we decide upon the establishment of a board with the powers we are able to give it—we cannot do any more than that—and that if any province decides to give it more, then it be within the power of the Government of this country to review that additional power to ascertain if it will work in consonance with the whole grain handling system of this country, to inquire if it has been adopted by sufficient provinces to enable the board to operate to see that it is such that it does not impose undue responsibility federally; and, if in the wisdom of the Government it is a power that can properly be exercised, this government can empower the board to exercise that power so provincially conferred.

When I have said that, let me impress this as well. What I propose is going the full length that this Parliament by any means whatever can go to meet the wishes of western Canada in regard to this Wheat Board. There is no step in the world that we can take beyond that. There is nothing we can do beyond that.

Mr. McMASTER: Would the right hon. member be prepared to have this Government take action which would open the door to compulsory action by the provinces?

Mr. MEIGHEN: Yes, so long as the power of review is in the government of Canada. I know of no other way now to work this problem out. I would have it all done here if that could be done, but it cannot be done. The delay, the procrastination in this matter, has prevented it. We are now at the very end. We have either to stop and do nothing, we either have to kill the whole project by this resolution or some other means, or we must take the line I suggest. There is nothing else that can be done. That is why I suggest this course.

Let me repeat, my submission to the House is this, that we decide upon the establishment of a body with such powers as Parliament can give it, and that that body be enabled to exercise further powers such as can only be given by provincial legislation if in the opinion of the federal government such powers are right and proper and practically exercisable in connection with the functions of that body, if in the opinion of the Government it is wise that that body should have those additional powers beyond the powers vested in it by this House. Let me ask again, can any hon. member of this House suggest anything else, can any hon. member advance one single word or sentence that this Parliament can do to meet the wishes of his constituents, to meet the wishes, say, of western Canada beyond what I have suggested to-day? Beyond that we cannot go. Such is the extreme limit of our power. I know it places a wide discretion in the hands of the administration, but the exigency is such and the demand is such that I for one am ready to meet it, and, at some risk, to repose that measure of confidence for this time.

Right Hon. W. L. MACKENZIE KING (Prime Minister): The action the Government may take with respect to the report of the committee will necessarily depend on the action which the House takes in regard to the report. Should the committee's report be approved, the Government will immediately introduce a bill based on the report. The bill, I might say, has already been drafted. Naturally the Government wishes to have the benefit of the discussion in the House before bringing the bill down and submitting it for consideration here.

Speaking in a broad way, I might say of the scope of the bill that it creates a marketing agency endowed with such powers as it is within the jurisdiction of this Parliament to confer, with the further provision that as regards compulsory powers, these may be conferred on the board by provincial governments, which alone have jurisdiction in the matter of conferring such powers. I think that discussion on the subject matter involved might well be left over until the bill itself is presented to the House. What I have said will be sufficient to indicate the attitude of the Government on the report.

Mr. MEIGHEN: We are now deciding on this report. Does the right hon. gentleman say that the Government's measure complies fully with the provisions of this report, that is to say for example, that its legislation only goes into effect when two provinces act, as this report enjoins they must act?

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: The Government's proposed legislation is based upon this report; it complies with its recommendation. Of course, if this report is not accepted the Government will not proceed any further with its proposed legislation.

Mr. MEIGHEN: That is the Government's policy?

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: That is the Government's policy.

Mr. MACLEAN (York): Does not the proposed legislation involve the credit of the nation being put behind this wheat board so as to finance its operation?

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: The Government will assume responsibility for such agency as it creates. With respect to any additional liability that may grow out of additional powers conferred by the provinces, that is a matter for which the provincial legislatures will have to make provision.

Hon. T. A. CRERAR (Marquette): With a portion, at any rate, of the remarks of my right hon. friend the leader of the Opposition I agree--that portion of them which relates to the difficulties that have been encountered by the farmers of western Canada in the past year, and the need of this Parliament taking what action it can to relieve those conditions in the coming year. I do not wish to follow at any great length the remarks made by my right hon. friend, but I do think that if the House were to accept his remarks at their full face value—which I think is very doubtful—the House would gather a wrong impression as to some aspects of this question. I regret the delay that has existed in connection with this report, although I must say this--that the Agriculture Committee that were hearing evidence in the matter desired to give the fullest opportunity possible to all who wished to make representations to it, and consequently the report was not in a position to be submitted to the House until the budget was brought down and the debate thereon was concluded. But while my right hon. friend regrets the delay and thinks that that will prevent suitable action being taken I cannot agree with him. I think that probably this Government, in a matter of this kind, can move as rapidly as did the government of my right hon. friend in 1919, and I recall this fact: That while strong representations had been made to the government in the early part of the summer of 1919 that action should then be taken looking to the creation of a board with compulsory powers for the handling of grain, that action was not taken by the government of the day until July 27 in that year. It was not until July 27 that an Order in Council was passed providing for the creation of a board, and endowing that board with all the powers that were necessary for its work. After that date the board met. It created its organization; it laid down its rules and regulations, and had everything in shape for the handling of grain when it started to move in the early part of September. I quite realize that on account of the legal position of the matter, as revealed in the opinion offered to the committee by the law officers of the Crown, that this Parliament has not the power to create a board endowed with the powers that the board created in 1919 exercised, so that it is necessary for co-ordinate legislation on the part of the provinces desiring to take it, in order that the agency created may function, as far as possible, along the lines of the wheat board of 1919. But if this Parliament now takes action along the lines indicated in the report that we have now under consideration, it will be quite competent for the provinces who desire to supplement that legislation to do so, and to have the whole thing in working effect weeks before this year's crop 4 p.m. starts to move, and whatever agency is created has the advantage of the experience gained by the previous board. It can utilize the regulations that the previous board had, it can adopt such of the orders that the previous board promulgated as it may think necessary; and I see no reason whatever why action along this line cannot be successfully taken.

My right hon. friend argues, with a good deal of force, that this recommendation provides that the provinces must pass supplemental legislation containing all the powers that the old Wheat Board had which this Parliament cannot give. I do not so interpret, necessarily, the resolution. The recommendation that the House is at present considering is a guide, or an indication, of the lines along which this legislation should proceed; and if it is necessary to vary slightly in that respect when the proposed bill is in committee why I certainly think this House is at complete liberty to take such action, and it is not bound in that respect in the castiron manner that my right hon. friend indicates.

The leader of the Opposition also states that the whole thing is impossible of operation because all the provinces in Canada may not take action. When this report was under consideration in the Agriculture Committee, the committee were fully seized of the fact that there were only three provinces in Canada to which this matter was of vital interest. That is, it is in the prairie provinces in western Canada where practically all the grain of this Dominion is produced. We know the situation that exists in the province of Manitoba. An election is pending, a new legislature will shortly—perhaps in the course of a month or two months—come into existence. Possibly there may be a new government. It is necessary for this government to get organized, and to have a session of the legislature before the supplemental power that is necesary on the part of the provinces can be passed by Manitoba. It was for that reason that the recommendation was placed in the report of the Agriculture Committee that as soon as two provinces took action the matter could proceed, and the committee had very definitely in mind the provinces of Saskatchewan and Alberta when that recommendation was placed in the report.

Now it seems quite clear that what authority the federal government may lack to endow the agency with the powers possessed by the Wheat Board of 1919 rests in the provinces; and the whole purpose, the whole idea of this report—adopted after very careful thought and discussion in the Agriculture Committee—is that by mutual arrangement, by supplemental legislation on the part of the federal authority and the provinces, an agency can be created having, in the main, the powers enjoyed by the Wheat Board of 1919. It is quite true, as far as the compulsory features are concerned, that that will obtain only in the provinces that pass supplemental legislation. I am not a lawyer but I believe it is competent for a provincial legislature—say Saskatchewan or Alberta, or both of them working together —to pass legislation that will invest in a board the control of the wheat produced in those provinces. After all, what is the central idea back of a wheat marketing scheme such as proposed, such as has been asked for by the Council of Agriculture? It is this: To regulate the flow of wheat to the market so that 75 per cent of our crop is not dumped on the market in three months of the year. That is the purpose of this marketing agency. If such an agency is created it can store the wheat in elevator storage. If there is a surplus in Europe at any particular time, if the export demand is weak or absent, then such a board can regulate the flow of the grain to the market by holding it back until that demand again resumes. We have seen the experience in this connection in the sale of grain. I need only point to the conditions that obtained last autumn when our wheat went down steadily day by day, and week by week until it dropped from around $1.40 a bushel to around $1.02 a bushel.

When those heavy deliveries of wheat in the autumn months were over, and they had been absorbed, the market immediately came back again. Whether the hopes of those who wish for a wheat board are well founded or not, at any rate those hopes rest mainly on the fact that those disabilities can be overcome. Such a board as is created under the proposals of this report would, at any rate, as regards the two main wheat producing provinces of the West, be endowed with power to regulate the flow of grain to market. My right hon. friend brings up the difficulties that millers may be in. There may possibly be some practical difficulties in that respect. At the moment, I must confess that I see no reason why such a board could not sell to the millers anywhere in Canada such quantities as the millers might require. They can buy their wheat; they can make contracts for it with the board, and as regards preventing the importation of wheat and flour from the United States into Canada, what has that to do with the question in the provinces concerned? Supposing some person did import wheat from the United States into Alberta and Saskatchewan, immediately that wheat came into those provinces it could, under the legislation, come under the control of the board that was created.

Mr. MEIGHEN: That is to say, that the Government of Canada would finance any wheat that was imported into Saskatchewan or Alberta from the United States, the same as it finances wheat for our own people.

Mr. CRERAR: My right hon. friend is not so dense as to think that is the point I am trying to make.

Mr. MEIGHEN: I am trying to make it clear.

Mr. CRERAR: I understood my right hon. friend to argue that wheat would be imported from the United States into Canada, and that because it might be imported into Canada, this board could not efficiently function. That was the argument my right hon. friend made.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Yes.

Mr. CRERAR: Well, I say to my right hon. friend that if such wheat is imported into Alberta or Saskatchewan, that wheat can immediately come under the control of the board that is created.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Then the board will have to finance it.

Mr. CRERAR: That is all right. They have the wheat if they have to finance it.

Mr. MEIGHEN: And the credit of the Government of Canada will be buying American wheat.

Mr. CRERAR: That was not the point of my right hon. friend's argument at all.

Mr. MEIGHEN: That is the result of it.

[Mr. Crerar.]

Mr. CRERAR: In any case there is not the slightest possibility of that. Why on earth should wheat come in from the United States? The board which is created will have to sell its wheat and fix its price according to the markets of the world.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Why was an embargo put on in 1919?

Mr. ROBB: The embargo was put on to prevent wheat from going out.

Mr. CRERAR: I think the Wheat Board in 1919 would have functioned just as successfully if no embargo had been put on, and my right hon. friend knows that, if he has studied the markets in the United States, because, in 1919, the markets in Minneapolis were above the price the American farmer would get for his wheat if it were brought into Canada.

Mr. MEIGHEN: It was stated that the Canadian farmer got an average price considerably higher than that which the American farmer received, and I should like the hon. gentleman to get an opinion from the Chairman of the Wheat Board to the effect that he could have functioned for one week without an embargo against importations of wheat.

Mr. CRERAR: I shall take the earliest opportunity I can to consult my friend Mr. Stewart, who was Chairman of the Wheat Board at that time; but if my right hon. friend can explain why an American farmer or dealer would send wheat into Canada at that time and take $2.23 a bushel advance on it while he could get $2.50 in Minneapolis, then he can explain the situation.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Just for the reason that the Wheat Board themselves gave, that that advance, with the participation certificates, represented a very substantially higher average price to the Canadian producer than the American price. The American producer is just as anxious for a higher price as is ours.

Mr. CRERAR: That is very true as it turned out in the final analysis.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Yes, and as was expected to be got.

Mr. CRERAR: But no one expected that in the early months of the crop year of 1919, or in the early months of 1920, and the best evidence of that is that scores and hundreds and probably thousands of Canadian farmers sold their participation certificates for two or three cents a bushel.

Mr. MEIGHEN: That was because of the campaign waged by enemies of the Wheat Board.

Mr. CRERAR: My right hon. friend is a little sensitive about the enemies of the Wheat Board. The fact of the matter was that the initial advance given by the Wheat Board in 1919 was away below the prevailing prices of Minneapolis, and farmers of western Canada had not the experience of the thing or the confidence in it that finally, they would realize the prices which they could have obtained had their grain gone to Minneapolis. That was the position.

Mr. STEVENS: Did they realize those prices?

Mr. CRERAR: Of course, they realized the prices they got.

Mr. STEVENS: Where is my hon. friend's argument of a moment ago that the reason they did not import was because prices were higher in the United States.

Mr. CRERAR: I would suggest to my hon. friends that they study the history of this thing; and if they study the history of it a little, they will not fall into such grievous errors as they are falling into now. The reason why the Wheat Board secured such a large final price for the crop of that year was due to conditions that arose months after the crop started to move.

Mr. STEVENS: Was it not an average price?

Mr. CRERAR: It was an average price.

Mr. STEVENS: Is it not fair to take an average price for one's argument?

Mr. CRERAR: That has nothing to do with the point which I am discussing. I asserted that, practically from the beginning of January, 1920, until that crop was finally sold, the prices secured were very much greater than any member of the Wheat Board or any person connected with it expected to get—higher than the initial price. And why? Because of conditions that existed in Europe. One fact that contributed more than anything else to the success of the Wheat Board in 1919, was the threatened coal strike in Great Britain in the summer of 1920, because it is a well known fact that the British Government at the time bought grain at every place which they could buy it, stored it in every warehouse in Great Britain and paid any price that was asked for it, in order that the United Kingdom might be provided with food reserves against a possible tie-up of transportation.

This is, however, slightly off the line of argument that I wish to take. I say that it is not necessary in the first place that all the provinces take action to implement legislation based on the report submitted now to the House. The whole idea behind this is that through co-operation of federal and provincial legislation, the wheat producing provinces that are directly affected can have created, a board that will largely, if not altogether, function along the lines of the board of 1919. My right hon. friend argues against this. He states that there are many obstacles and difficulties of a legal character in the way. That may be. I am not a lawyer and I cannot say.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Of a practical character, I said.

Mr. CRERAR: They may be of a practical character; but I do not think they are of a practical character. If the legal difficulties can be smoothed away, I see no reason why the thing would not work. I may be wrong; but my right hon. friend suggests that this is all impossible. He suggests first that it will be impossible to get legislation passed in time to function for this crop; and yet, if a voluntary system is created along the line of his own argument, provincial legislation is necessary, so that as regards the question of time, the one scheme is on all fours with the other.

Mr. MEIGHEN: I did not say that it was necessary at all. The board could function without any provincial legislation whatever; but they might assist, and I would give the Government power to utilize it if it was available.

Mr. CRERAR: Very good. I am very glad to have that point cleared up; but I would like to examine for a moment the voluntary scheme suggested by my right hon. friend, and I do not think it will be of any value whatever. Let me tell the House why I think so. What does my right hon. friend suggest? He suggests that another agency be set up to market grain. Well, suppose you pass legislation creating your voluntary agency. That agency opens an office in Winnipeg to do business. Now, whom is it going to do business with? In the first place, the voluntary board or agency created under the plan suggested by my right hon. friend has not a single elevator in the prairies between Winnipeg and Calgary, and therefore it cannot do business of an elevator character. The only business such a board could do would largely be confined to a small commission business in the handling of grain from farmers loading grain over loading platforms. And that would not meet, in any degree whatever, the demand or the wishes of the producers of grain in this country. Such a voluntary board could handle grain on commission; it could have the use of the government elevator at Port Arthur, could enter into the exporting business in competition with other exporting firms, and could sell grain abroad in the markets of the world. But it would have no grain to commence with, except such slight quantities as would come to it on a commision basis from farmers who might load over the loading platforms.

Mr. MEIGHEN: What is the proportion of western grain loaded on cars over platforms?

Mr. CRERAR: The proportion of western grain loaded on the cars over platforms is growing less every year.

Mr. MEIGHEN: What is it?

Mr. CRERAR: I cannot say at the moment what it is, but I may remark that since the advent of the farmers' co-operative companies, who now have between 700 and 800 elevators operating on the prairies, the shipment of grain from the loading platforms has considerably decreased. Speaking of the company, with whose business I am familiar, I know that a very small percentage indeed of the grain reaching the markets in Winnipeg and Fort William through our agency comes over the loading platforms.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Could not the farmers' co-operative companies utilize the government agency?

Mr. CRERAR: It is very true they could. But I will venture this assertion, that the farmers' co-operative companies can handle the business better, under these conditions, than could any agency such as is suggested by my right hon. friend. That is the simple truth of the matter. But what advantage would there be in utilizing the government agency? None. The whole purpose and argument behind the compulsory wheat board is that it regulates the flow of grain to market. To what extent would the voluntary board suggested by my right hon. friend achieve that purpose?

[Mr. Crerar.]

Mr. MEIGHEN: If the grain shipped over the loading platforms and the grain handled by the farmers' co-operative organizations were entrusted to a board that had government finance behind it, it would certainly have a control over the disposition of grain and would be enabled to spread the flow over the year, taking the best advantage of marketing conditions.

Mr. CRERAR: I am afraid that the advantage that would come from such an arrangement would be very slight indeed. However, we need not argue the point. I have indicated the practical difficulty that exists in the way of the scheme propounded by my right hon. friend. I give him credit for sincerity in the matter, but his proposal is not practicable. The marketing of western grain is one of the great problems of the day; and after the most serious consideration I cannot bring myself to believe that any great measure of relief would come from the plan he suggests. I think that undoubtedly the best thing for the House to do is to adopt the report. Let us get legislation passed, based on the report before the House, and let us approach that legislation with the view of earnestly working out a scheme that will give the benefits that are expected. If that is done in the near future, there is no reason, in my judgment, why the provincial legislatures of Alberta and Saskatchewan could not meet and pass supplementary legislation. At any rate, the scheme should have an honest trial, and that is all that is asked for by those who are supporting it.

Mr. RENÉ MORIN (St. Hyacinthe-Rouville): Mr. Speaker, fate has willed that I, a mere professional man should have been appointed a member of the select standing committee on Agriculture. In my particular case, however, the anomaly is not so pronounced as it may appear, since, in my riding of St. Hyacinthe-Rouville, I have been for over fifteen years secretary of the agricultural society, of the local, fair, and of the municipal council of the county. You will understand that, occupying these positions, my daily dealings are with farmers and my interests are so mixed up with theirs that their prosperity is essential to mine. On account of these relations with them, I may state that all my life I have been profoundly interested in their work and in their prosperity, and that I am here in this House to defend their interests, claim all their rights, and support any policy which will tend to improve their condition.

The question that has come up before the Committee, the re-establishment of the Wheat Board, is of no direct interest to my constituents, but inasmuch as it relates to farmers, though they are of another part of the country, and as there is, and must be, a spirit of solidarity between the farmers of the whole country, I followed as assiduously as possible the sittings of the committee and the evidence that was brought before it. The wheat growing industry is one of the most important industries in Canada; it is one of those in which our exports are the largest; and, inasmuch as it brings into our country foreign wealth, it is one of those which has to be nursed the most tenderly. During the past two years this industry has gone through a very critical period. It has been asserted that for the last two years wheat growers have had to sell their product at a price far below the cost of its production, that in most cases the financial reserves accumulated during the years of plenty have been exhausted, and that such a state of things can no longer continue without grave consequences. This period of depression has followed the years of plenty which prevailed during the war, when Canada had to carry on the task of providing the warring nations on the allied side with bread.

Now, if we recall the principles and laws of economics, we should not wonder at such a situation, because these laws and history, since the time of Joseph of Egypt, teach us that, inevitably, periods of increased production, of intensified activity, of inflation of prices, are followed by times of depression, of stagnation, of deflation of prices, entailing monetary losses and all kinds of difficulties and troubles. But economic laws also teach us that the bottom of such a depression is reached one day, and then the reverse and upward march starts again and brings us back to normal times. In this sphere, as in many others, it is merely the operation of the law of averages which regulates the trade. Some will say that this crisis is the outcome of the war. I do not deny it; the war was the cause of abnormally high prices. But this does not in any way affect the operation of the economic laws which I have alluded to; given the abnormal increase of activity for any reason whatsoever, a depression was bound to follow. However deplorable and heart-rending may be the condition of the wheat grower, there is yet no reason to despair, because, according to the inexorable operation of these laws, we shall slowly and gradually come back to the time of normal and reasonable profits in this industry, as in others which are established on a solid foundation. The wheat growing industry is not a war industry; it grew and prospered before the war under normal conditions and in competition with the wheat growing nations of the world; and there is no reason why it should not, after this crisis, be in a position to resume successfully this competition. The question is, what can be done to hasten this revival? What are the ways and means of bringing some relief to the actual situation?

One of the remedies suggested is the improvement of the marketing conditions of wheat through the creation of a central agency called the Wheat Board, which would market or control the marketing of the greatest part of the wheat crop of Canada. The advantages claimed for such a system may be put under three heads: 1. The regulation of the flow of wheat; 2. the possibility of increasing its price; 3. the elimination of the profits of some of the middlemen.

As to the regulation of the flow of wheat, it is asserted, that right after the harvest, the farmers, on account of their financial obligations are compelled to realize on their crop, and as a result seventy-five per cent of the wheat crop of Canada is thrown on the market during a period of three months. This glutting of the market causes a drop in the price, so that, at the time when the farmer has to sell his crop, prices are the lowest of the year, and he has to stand the loss, represented by the difference between this low price and the average higher prices prevailing during the remainder of the year; and when, as now, prices are below the cost of production, the consequences are disastrous. But, if on the one hand, these abnormal offerings of wheat have a tendency to decrease the price, this to a certain extent is counterbalanced by another element—the desire of the dealers and exporters to buy at the same time, in order to be able to take advantage of the lower cost of water transportation before the end of the season. So, if we go over the statistics, based on the Fort William prices, we find that if there is often a sagging of the price in the fall, it is not always the case and that sometimes prices have been as low or lower in the spring than in the fall. Assuming that, more often than otherwise—and I think this is the case—there is a decrease in price during the fall, this disadvantage would be overcome by the operation of the Wheat Board, which would permit the wheat-grower to realize immediately after the harvest, by getting from the board, on delivery of his wheat, an initial payment not very much below the value of his crop, and receiving the benefits of the later higher prices, which the board, by holding his wheat to dispose of it at the best time and at the higher price, so far as human foresight can be relied upon, would procure for him. Another advantage which may be put under this heading, is that the handling of wheat by a single agency would also permit a better, more effective and more economical use of our transportation systems, and by disposing first of the wheat which may be liable to deteriorate would prevent losses which sometimes occur.

As to control of the price, by this we mean control of the foreign price, for the board would absolutely control the domestic price, but no advantage would be received from that control since these advantages would be at the expense of the local consumers, and this is not what is being sought. The local price would have to be based on the foreign price. The control of the price is an advantage which can only be claimed for a compulsory wheat board controlling the whole of the Canadian crop, or as near to it as possible. The question is whether an agency controlling the wheat export trade of Canada could pretend to influence to a certain extent the price of wheat in the European markets.

On this question we have the evidence given by Mr. H. W. Wood, president of the Canadian Council of Agriculture. I give the question put by Mr. Stevens and Mr. Wood's answer. This is extracted from the minutes of proceedings and evidence of the select standing committee on Agriculture and Colonization:

Hon. Mr. Stevens: Do you expect by the constitution of compulsory selling agency or wheat board to so influence this relation between the seller, the Canadian market and the purchasing market, the European market, so as to increase the price in the foreign market?

Mr. Wood: Yes, I think so. I am not certain, but I think I can risk that answer.

Then we have this evidence by Mr. James Stewart, formerly chairman of the Canada Wheat Board of 1919-20, and now a grain merchant in Winnipeg:

[Mr. Morin.]

Q. Would it be possible for a selling agency controlling the marketing of the whole of the Wheat in Canada to increase or to affect in any way the Liverpool price?—A. It stands to reason that one seller as against many buyers has a better chance in the merchandising of any commodity. I would accept that principle unquestionably.

Q. Would that be to a very large extent or only to a very small extent?—A. That would depend very largely upon circumstances.

Q. Then we might conclude that the operation of the Wheat Board would affect the foreign wheat price and increase it to a certain extent for the benefit of the Canadian producers?—A. Conditionally upon the crop not being a very large one, such as we had in 1915, I would say that possibly the price which a Board would receive might be better than could be secured under the present system.

I have much respect for the opinion of both these gentlemen, but I have much reluctance in concluding from these statements that a wheat board would be in a position to materially affect the foreign price of wheat. British imports do not come only from Canada. We have to compete in the British market with the Argentine, Australia, Egypt and India, perhaps we shall soon be competing with Russia; and it cannot be conceived that Britain would buy very much wheat from Canada if she could buy it elsewhere cheaper. Truly, the principle set forth by Mr. Stewart that one seller as against many buyers has a better chance in the merchandizing of any commodity, can hardly be challenged. But does it apply here, when we are competing with so many nations? Even granting that the withholding of the Canadian crop might raise the price of wheat, there would be an advantage, but I claim that this advantage would only be temporary and that in the long run the harm that it would do to our trade would more than offset all advantages secured.

If he had to pay more for Canadian wheat than general market conditions seemed to warrant, and if this rise could be imputed to a government agency, the British importer, who would think that he was being held up for higher prices by such an agency, would, when the other markets of the world are free, inevitably feel inclined to leave aside, as far as possible, the Canadian product, and deal only with the products of our competitors, and I am afraid that the reaction which would follow might hurt our trade with that country to a much larger extent than the benefit which would have resulted from such a rise.

As to elimination of the profits of the middlemen, each step made in the marketing of a form of merchandise increases the difference between the price the consumer pays for it and the price which the producer receives. If the producer could sell directly to the consumer, such difference, less the cost of necessary services, would disappear altogether. It was acknowledged that in this particular trade no unfair charges for services are made by the middlemen, but it is also claimed that, as shrewd business men, they turn to their advantage the variations in prices which occur daily, the speculative element which this variation entails, and this explains why there is sometimes such a large difference between the "street" price, the "track" price and the Fort William price of wheat, a difference which was much smaller under the operation of the Wheat Board. There is no doubt that the operation of the Wheat Board would there effect a saving in favour of the producer.

This wheat board may be constituted either with all the powers which the old one possessed of taking and selling the whole of the wheat crop of Canada; or it may be only a commission appointed by the Government, financed by it and going into the trade in competition with other dealers for the purpose of taking the wheat of only those of the farmers who would elect to dispose of their crop through this agency, handling it with as much economy as possible, selling it at the best time of the year, and after having made an initial payment at the time of its delivery, distributing the profits between the farmers having dealt with it. The first would be a compulsory wheat board and the other what may be called a voluntary wheat board. The board which it is proposed to establish by the resolution before the House, is a compulsory one, to deal with the crop of two or more of the prairie provinces. No doubt some of its most dangerous features have been removed by the restriction of its scope to wheat in its natural state, or by the elimination of flour and wheat products from its control. But if the principle of the compulsory feature of the wheat board is wrong, it cannot be made right, by being made subject to certain limitations in its application. And I claim that the compulsory feature is wrong in principle and dangerous in its effects.

The ground on which the law officers of the Crown laid their argument that the constitution of a compulsory wheat board was outside the jurisdiction of this Parliament was that it was an interference with property. The fact that the provincial legislatures have control over property and can legally make that interference is immaterial to my argument. I have always been taught, and I have always believed, that in a free country the right to private property, the right to ownership, is sacred; that this right is the basis of our whole economic system, and that the State can lay a hand on private property only in very special circumstances, when it is obviously in the public interest, and on payment of adequate compensation. My appreciation of the evidence before the committee and of the advantages to be derived from the constitution of a compulsory wheat board, leads me to believe that such a board is not necessary to the maintenance of the wheat industry and that such an infringement of liberty could not, in this particular case, be based on the public interest.

Moreover, the operations of such a board would be dangerous in their effects. Statistics have been produced to show that it is nearly impossible to forecast the price of wheat much in advance, and that on many occasions the price of wheat in the spring has been lower than in the fall. If a Government agency, operating under the compulsory principle, took the wheat of the farmer right after the harvest, held it over until the spring in the hope of a better price, and by an unfortunate chance had then to sell at a lower price that the fall price, thus causing a loss to the farmer, who would pretend that the farmer would not object to such a board and would not raise a hue and cry against the Government and rightly claim compensation for his loss? The experience of the farmer with the compulsory wheat board has been a profitable one, but the conditions under which the old board operated during the war, when the whole of Europe had ceased to produce and was destroying and consuming wheat on a larger scale than ever, no longer exist. It is rather the reverse; the production of wheat is gradually increasing, and we are justified in fearing, under actual circumstances, a different trend of prices.

Our wheat export business has been done so far by dealers who, by years of toil and good service, have built up trade connections, have made for themselves a name and a reputation and have built up a good-will, all of which constitute a valuable asset yielding considerable revenue. The operation of the wheat board would, as by the stroke of a pen, end these business connections and wipe out the asset represented by the good-will, thus entailing considerable losses, which, to my mind, should not be imposed on any one in this country without due compensation. This objection did not arise during the war, because all individual or private importers in Europe were replaced by a single government purchasing agency and ordinary business transactions were temporarily suspended everywhere. But this is no longer the case, and I see no way of avoiding responsibility for these losses.

A compulsory wheat board involves the creation of a monopoly by the government in favour of one particular industry. Such special treatment or privilege, once granted to one industry, could not long be refused to others. It is the first step toward the adoption of a policy which would be no more severely condemned by any section of the people than by the farmers themselves. It behooves them not to urge the government to embark upon a policy from which they may, perhaps, draw some benefits today but which will operate to their detriment to-morrow.

The establishment of a compulsory wheat board is an intereference with the normal operation of the laws of supply and demand, or rather, an attempt at interference with these laws. The price of an object is normally based on the cost of its production and its distribution, but there are two elements which affect it: the intensity of the demand for it may increase the price, or a lack of demand at a particular moment may decrease it. The quantity or supply available has also an effect on it, either way. The proposal is an attempt to control the supply. If this control were limited to the home market, it would surely be effective, but the control of the supply is intended to affect the foreign market, and as such is necessarily limited to that portion of import into the foreign market that comes from Canada. The supply from the other countries will remain free, and under these conditions our control of the Canadian wheat can have only one effect, an effect detrimental to our trade. It will lead the foreign trade, the foreign consumers, to curtail their purchase and use of Canadian wheat; it will tend to open new channels of import, to increase the use and consumption of foreign wheat, and so decrease the value of Canadian wheat.

These reasons and others are, to my mind, unsurmountable obstacles to the establishment of a compulsory wheat board. Truly, some of the advantages claimed for a wheat board can only be secured by the use of the coercive feature, but having regard to the problems, difficulties and responsibilities which the compulsory feature entails, we are forced to conclude that a compulsory wheat board is not practical and would not be in the general interest.

In my mind, what is needed to help the wheat growers—and in this I am of the opinion of the leader of the Opposition (Mr. Meighen)—is the constitution of an organization, under the co-operative system, and of a permanent character, to market Canadian wheat. Such a co-operative society would permit the regulation of the flow of wheat, would secure all the benefits arising therefrom, and would eliminate unnecessary middlemen. These are the two great advantages to be derived from the constitution of a wheat board, and I claim that the establishment of a voluntary wheat board would procure both these advantages—perhaps not for the present, to the same extent as in the case of a compulsory wheat board, but still in a way to benefit the wheat growers; and that it would lead the way toward the establishment of a system which would secure these advantages permanently.

A voluntary wheat board would be in a position to regulate the flow of wheat to a certain extent and to get the benefits resulting from such regulation. The extent of these benefits would be proportionate to the volume of wheat which the board handled; it would measure up to the degree of trust and confidence which the farmers put in it, and if they did not patronize the wheat board and did not get to the full extent the benefits to be derived therefrom, they would have only themselves to blame.

Some work may be necessary to bring farmers to patronize the Wheat Board, but the farmers' organizations in the prairie provinces are now perfected to a point where they can no longer fear lack of co-operation and I cannot believe that they would not be able to bring their members to support and patronize an agency which would secure as many advantages as they claim for it.

As I have been told that one of the effects of the establishment of co-operative elevators was to raise the price of wheat in the localities where such elevators were in existence, the dealers when in competition with these elevators being forced to pay a higher price, I claim that the mere existence of such a board, by creating an acute competition between the board and independent dealers, would have a tendency to raise the price of wheat and to decrease the difference between the "street" price and the "track" price. The establishment of a voluntary wheat board with a view of securing these advantages is, to my mind, the largest and most efficient measure of relief which a government can safely and reasonably concede. I have heard the assertion that the farmers want a compulsory wheat board or none at all. There is nothing in the evidence to justify such a stand and I fail to understand it. Some will say that this attitude on my part is due to my ignorance of the matter. There may be points which I am liable to overlook in a matter of that kind but I find some comfort in the report of Messrs. Stewart and Riddell to the government of Saskatchewan. Having analyzed the different kinds of pools which may be formed for the marketing of wheat, and speaking of plan "E", which is exactly a voluntary wheat board, in its simplest form, they say this:

> The success or failure of any form of pool depends entirely upon the degree of support to be given by producers. But is is perhaps worth mentioning, that assuming a voluntary pool or a non-minimum contract pool were successfully operated with a comparatively limited patronage, the existence of such an organization might be able to exercise sufficient regulative influence over trade practices to reduce to a minimum any disadvantages which the present system may have developed. That is to say, it might increase the tendency on the part of the trade, which exists even now in a measurable degree, to regard the farmer in the light of a partner in a mutual enterprise.

Therefore, Mr. Speaker—and this is my concluding remark—I believe that there are insurmountable obstacles opposing the constitution of a compulsory wheat board, objections which are removed by the elimination of the coercive feature; and even if a voluntary wheat board must be less efficient and less beneficial than a compulsory one, yet it is worth while to attempt to establish it first with a view of securing the advantages to be obtained therefrom, even if they are limited compared with those which would accrue under a compulsory wheat board; and, second, as a first step toward the establishment of a permanent co-operative system for the marketing of Canadian wheat. The constitution by legislation of even such a board as this would confer great and particular benefits upon the wheat growing industry and would help to put the wheat grower of Canada in a better position to compete successfully with the other wheat growing countries in the markets of the world. To proceed along this line is the best and the only thing that a democratic government can do.

Hon. H. H. STEVENS (Vancouver Centre): Mr. Speaker, this report has been before us for some weeks, standing on the Order Paper. My hon. friend from Marquette (Mr. Crerar) a moment ago used the expression, "When this report was under consideration by the committee," and a little later on he used the words, "adopted after careful study," and so forth. What I wish to submit to the House and more particularly to the Prime Minister, the Minister of Justice and the ministers of the Crown who will have the drafting of this legislation is this, that this report never was before the committee except for a very brief moment at a meeting called without any notice that such a report was to be drafted, and at which I was personally informed no action of this character would be taken. The clerk of the committee himself told me that the meeting was being called for one purpose, and one purpose only, and that was for the purpose of presenting to the House a report that had been carefully drafted after weeks of consideration, and approved by the committee at a previous meeting. I submit, Mr. Speaker, and it was for that reason I asked some weeks ago why the report was not then moved, that I would have been justified in raising the point of order—I am not doing so, however, at this late stage of the session—that this report is not in order, is not properly before the House, that it is the product of the private and individual opinion of particularly two or three hon. gentlemen on the committee, and as to which hon. gentlemen in this particular group had no opportunity of expressing an opinion.

I want the House to give me their attention for a few minutes while we consider the history of this committee— "history" was the word used by my hon. friend, (Mr. Crerar) a moment ago in speaking of the Wheat Board.

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): Did not the members of the hon. gentleman's party who were members of that committee receive notice to attend the meeting to which he refers?

Mr. STEVENS: I will deal with that in a moment, Mr. Speaker. I am not going to go into all the details of the history of that committee through all its meetings other than to say that the committee certainly did give a great deal of consideration to this problem and, I think, very sympathetic consideration. There was a difference of opinion on the part of some hon. gentlemen on many points raised, but the committee made what might be termed, Sir, an exhaustive inquiry. That exhaustive inquiry found culmination in a resolution presented by the hon. member for Moosejaw (Mr. Johnson) on May 9, which was adopted on May 17, after having been before the committee in the intervening period. I wish very briefly to quote from my hon. friend who presented that resolution on May 9, because his words will bear out exactly the point I desire to make, namely that the resolution which he presented on that occasion was accepted by the committee as the findings of the committee. I have not his exact words under my hand, I am afraid, but I remember that he stated that now the evidence was all in he desired to place some concrete proposals before the committee, and after consultation with his friends he had carefully prepared a resolution. Although I have not his exact words, I do not think anybody will dispute that I have given the substance of what he said. He presented his resolution to the committee as a basis for a report, and it was so accepted. It was before the committee from May 9th until May 17th, I think it was, and was adopted on the latter date, according to the report of the committee, after a resolution in amendment moved by my hon. friend from Brome (Mr. McMaster) had been rejected. I have before me the vote. Immediately following that, and this is very important, a motion was made that a sub-committee be appointed consisting of the Chairman, with Messieurs Forke, Johnson, Stevens, Tolmie, McKay, McMaster, Morin and Malcolm, to prepare a draft report to be submitted to the main committee as the report of said main committee to the House. That was the intention of that sub-commitee. The sub-committee met and drafted a report after several meetings. I shall not read the report presented by the sub-committee. It gave a very excellent resume of the proceedings of the committee, the difficulties faced, the judicial opinions of Government counsel, and it included the resolution to which I have referred and which I shall now read as the substantive part of their report.

[Mr. Stevens.]

On the 9th of May, 1922, the following resolution was moved by the hon. member for Moosejaw:

1. It is desirable in the National interests that the Government immediately create a national wheat marketing agency similar to the Canada Wheat Board of 1919, for the marketing of the wheat crop of 1922, and that

2. This agency be given all the powers of the Wheat Board of 1919 as are within the jurisdiction of Parliament to grant, and that

3. An Act be passed based on this Resolution, to become effective by Proclamation as soon as two or more of the Provinces have conferred upon this agency such powers possessed by the Wheat Board of 1919 as come within Provincial jurisdiction.

This report was submitted by the sub-committee to the main committee, and the main committee after very considerable discussion adopted this report on May 23rd. I shall just read the resolution.

Moved by Mr. McConica, seconded by Mr. Sales:

That the report as read—

That is the one to which I have just referred, and which is incorporated in the official report of the sub-committee.

That the report as read be adopted as a correct statement of the record and proceedings of the committee.

There was an attempt made at that time, Mr. Speaker—and to this I desire to draw your attention as the supreme authority in this House on questions of procedure—an attempt was made to alter and change, or modify, the resolution which I have just read, and which was incorporated in this report. On that occasion I produced May's Parliamentary Procedure, and Bourinot, and from these authorities I showed—as I can show now if it is necessary—that such action was out of order; that, according to one of the well-founded rules of parliamentary procedure, when a resolution or a bill has been disposed of it is not in order to re-open discussion on it or, what is more important, change it. That is a rule which has been recognized for many years.

Mr. CRERAR: May I ask my hon. friend from Vancouver if he is arguing that this report is not properly before the House?

Mr. STEVENS: Well, my hon. friend when I asked him a question a moment ago answered me by suggesting that I brighten up a little mentally. Let me say to him that if he will just cast his memory back about five minutes he will recall that I stated I had no desire to raise a point of order at this late stage of the session.

Mr. CRERAR: If my hon. friend will permit me I caught his remark at that time but I could not quite associate his argument with what he stated then?

Mr. STEVENS: Unfortunately I am not bound to suit my argument to my hon. friend. I have the unfortunate habit of proceeding with my argument in my own way, which may not quite suit the scintillating intellect of my hon. friend, but after all it is my way, and, for some reason or other, I am stubborn enough to follow it. Now, Mr. Speaker, Bourinot, referring to reports of committees, and so on, says this at page 479:

> A report may be referred back to a committee for further consideration (f), or with instructions giving them power to amend the same in any respect (g). In this way a committee may regularly reconsider and even reverse a decision it has previously arrived at. As the rules of the house govern the procedure of committees generally, a committee cannot strictly speaking renew a question on which its judgment has been already expressed.

And then at the foot of the page there is this comment:

> Every question by voice in committee bindeth, and cannot be altered by themselves, but by the house it may.

I shall not read the various other authorities but I have them here. The point is this: On that day—and that is what I wish to emphasize—on that day, the last, as I call it, legal day, this report which I hold in my hands, as reported in the proceedings of Tuesday, May 23, was adopted. The point of order which I raised on that occasion was sustained. I will admit that the Chairman did say that my point of order was not well taken "at the present moment," but later in the day, after the report had been adopted, one of my hon. friends to my left sought to re-open the matter and the Chairman ruled that it was not in order. That was on Tuesday and, I think it was the same afternoon, the chief clerk of committees, Mr. Todd, intimated to me that there had been some technical oversight, that the Chairman of the committee had forgotten to say these magic words "Shall I present the report to the House?", and that, because he had forgotten to use those magic words, it was impossible to present the report to the House. Mr. Todd informed me that afternoon that the Chairman had instructed him that a meeting would be called on Friday for the purpose of securing that authority. I asked the Clerk if there was any intention of reopening the question; because every member of the committee knew perfectly well the stand I had takn on the matter, and also knew of my objection to the question being opened, and that the ruling had been given—

Mr. McKENZIE: I rise to a point of order. My hon. friend is discussing a former decision of this committee whose report we are now discussing, and saying there were some irregularities in connection with the former finding of the committee, whether it was reported or not. I submit to you, Sir, on the question of procedure, that if my hon. friend—or any member of the committee or any member of the House—was dissatisfied with that finding of the committee at that time, that there should have been an appeal to the House at once and the will of the House ascertained upon that point. But that was not done, the committee went on with other proceedings, and, I submit, Sir, upon the discussion, for ratification or otherwise, of the second report, it is not open to a member of the committee, or a member of the House, to discuss a point as to irregularity or as to proper procedure in connection with that report. I submit that the discussion upon this question as to a former irregularity is not in order, and it is not competent for the House to deal with it.

5 p.m.

Mr. STEVENS: May I, Mr. Speaker, speak to the point of order in just one sentence? My hon. friend says that there existed a right of appeal to the House at the time of the first report. Let me tell him that, being absent in the flesh at the time referred to, I was unable to make that appeal.

Mr. SPEAKER: I understand that the hon. member for Centre Vancouver is simply reciting the facts which took place in the committee, and that he does not intend to move that the report be referred back.

Mr. McKENZIE: In further argument in support of the point of order, I understand from the arguments advanced by the hon. member that he considers the report in question to be irregular and bad, and that while he may not move to refer it back at the present time, he may perhaps do so later on.

Mr. SPEAKER: The hon. member for Centre Vancouver has waived that right by his admission of a few minutes ago.

Mr. STEVENS: I am seeking to lay the foundation for an argument which I propose to make in a moment. As I say, another meeting of the committee was held on Friday. Of that meeting certain notice was given, and in this I answer my hon. friend's question of a moment ago. I was asked if I received notice of that meeting. I did. I received this notice:

The Select Standing Committee on Agriculture and Colonization, of which you are a member, will meet in room No. 271 at eleven o'clock, tomorrow, Friday.

No notice whatever was given that it was intended to change the original report. I also had the assurance of the Chief Clerk of Committees that it was the intention of the committee merely to ask for leave to present the original report. Now, I come to the last meeting. At that last meeting—based upon this call that I mentioned a moment ago, in which no intimation was given that there was to be a very vital and important change in the report—this resolution was proposed:

It was moved by Mr. Forke, seconded by Mr. Lovett; that

"The resolution proposed by Mr. Johnson (Moosejaw), on the 11th day of May and adopted on the 17th day of May be rescinded."

That was done. Now I submit to the House that was an extraordinary action, especially in view of the facts which I have referred to. But that is not the chief significance of it. All the committee did was to rescind a resolution which formed a part, a very small part, of the volume of a report which had been adopted. However, on the same day a new report was drafted and presented to the House, and I learned of it when I returned to the city the next day. I feel, sir, that it was perhaps the most flagrant breach of parliamentary etiquette which obtains, and has obtained for so many years, the only case that I remember where members were deliberately—perhaps, I am putting that too strongly—where members were led to believe that no new or important action would be taken; but when they knew that he was away and was not there, and when they knew perfectly well the position he had taken on previous occasions, they deliberately changed the report which had been previously adopted;—yes, and I am advised, after the Chairman had stated at the previous meeting that it could not be changed. The fifth report of the committee was moved in this way:

Moved by Mr. Garland, seconded by Mr. McConica, that the following be the report of the committee.

[Mr. Stevens.]

And so forth. What I am referring to is a statement by the hon. member for Marquette (Mr. Crerar), who told the House, in his discussion of the matter, that the report now before the House had been carefully considered by the committee. That portion of the report which exempts the flour milling industry from the control of the Wheat Board was never considered by the committee. Furthermore, when that committee was called on May 26, there was a caucus of the members of this section of the House, and only two members, the hon. member for Victoria city (Mr. Tolmie) and the hon. member for Peel (Mr. Charters) attended that meeting of the committee. These hon. gentlemen attended the committee at eleven o'clock. The committee was not called to order. There were little groups of members standing around talking. The Minister of Agriculture (Mr. Motherwell), the hon. member for Marquette (Mr. Crerar), the hon. member for Moosejaw Mr. Johnson) and a few others had their heads together concocting the report that is now before the House. Then my hon. friend says that this report was considered by the committee. There was absolutely no notice given of the changes in the report. There was absolutely no consideration given to this vital change in the original report, namely, the part "except as they include the direct marketing of flour and other mill products", and this is a vital part of the report now before the House.

Mr. CRERAR: If my hon. friend states that I was a party to concocting any scheme to deprive him of his right of appearing before the committee, he is stating what is entirely incorrect. The committee on the occasion in question met in the regular way after notice to members had been given, and the fact that my hon. friend was absent was not noted by myself. A discussion took place for an hour and a half and a decision was reached. When my hon. friend imputes motives that are altogether wrong to myself and other members of the committee in the manner he has done, he is transgressing the bounds of what is actual fact.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: Might I set my hon. friend right in one respect? I remember the occasion to which he has referred and also that as I had to attend a council meeting, I had to leave the committee before any decision was reached.

Mr. STEVENS: That was the first meeting. My hon. friend is not going to divert me from my argument one particle. My hon. friend is referring to the meeting of May 23, and he gives me the very material which I was going to use. On that occasion my hon. friend violently differed from the resolution of my hon. friend from Moosejaw. He stated on that occasion that he was absolutely opposed to a compulsory wheat board or a wheat board with compulsory powers and he threw out some suggestions which my hon. friend from Moosejaw, after his resolution had been adopted, intimated that he might be prepared to accept. It is these facts that lead me to the conclusion that, in the interim between May 23 and May 26, these hon. gentlemen, in some mysterious way —maybe spiritual, psychological, but in some way or another—brought their minds into harmony, and they produced a report changing vitally the report that had been adopted.

Mr. TOLMIE: If the hon. member is referring to the last meeting when the report was adopted, I may say that the hon. member for Peel (Mr. Charters) and myself attended it. We waited for twenty-five minutes. No business had been commenced at that time, and the Minister of Agriculture (Mr. Motherwell) left before any business was done at that meeting.

Mr. STEVENS: The meeting was not called to order until long after that hour—eleven o'clock. If this practice is adopted in connection with Parliament, that, after a committee have given weeks of consideration to an important matter and have arrived at a conclusion, and after members of the committee have accepted that conclusion as definite and final, one wing of the committee may get together and say: "We will have another meeting on Friday; we will send an ordinary notice around with absolutely no intimation of a vital change, and then we can meet and reverse or vitally change the previous decision"—if that can be done, a hopeless condition faces committees of this House in the future. The situation is absolutely appalling, and I intend to protest now and at any other time against procedures of that kind. It is not, in my estimation, in the slightest measure in keeping with the ethics of Parliament. It is a violation of all the decencies of business procedure. How can we have confidence, if we attend a committee and pass a bill, that at some future meeting of which we have no notice of intention to vary that bill, those who favour the particular bill will not meet and change, modify or amend it? Or, how can we have confidence that a vital resolution may not be changed in this way? Every member who was present in the committee from among my hon. friends to the left supported the resolution of the hon. member for Moosejaw. Yet after weeks of consideration and a vital decision, at a meeting at which I was officially informed that no business of that kind would be taken up, a vital change was made, moreover, I say, in face of a lengthy debate at a previous meeting where I raised a point of order that this could not be done and a ruling was made accordingly. The report is now before the House. I submit that this report has not received the consideration of the Committee on Agriculture; I submit to the Government that this report does not represent a considered opinion of the Committee on Agriculture as regards that portion which exempts the flour milling industry from control of the board.

Mr. McCONICA: I rise to a point of order.

Mr. SPEAKER: I understand the hon. member rises to a point of order.

Mr. McCONICA: My point of order is that this report is regularly before the House and that the discussion of the hon. gentleman is not germane to the substance of the report and, therefore, is out of order. This is not a proceedings at which we can review what took place in the committee.

Mr. SPEAKER: The Solicitor General (Mr. McKenzie) raised the same point a moment ago; but I understood from the beginning of the remarks of the hon. member for Centre Vancouver (Mr. Stevens) that he waived the point of order which he might have raised, but he was only reciting facts in order to reach certain conclusions, which conclusions he is reaching just now. I understand he has left the question of order and that he does not protest the validity of the report of the committee now that it is before the House.

Mr. STEVENS: I close that portion of my remarks with this observation, that when the hon. member for Marquette in this debate states that this report was under consideration by the committee and was adopted after study, that is not an accurate statement of fact.

Mr. CRERAR: If my hon. friend will permit me, I have just this to say in that respect, that I was present in the committee and apparently my hon. friend was not; that this report that is now before this House was considered in that committee, if my recollection is right, for an hour and a half and discussed and agreed upon. If my hon. friend, after he received the notice for the committee, was not present, that is no fault of any other hon. member of this house.

Mr. STEVENS: In the way described by the hon. member for Victoria (Mr. Tolmie), exactly. But if they persist in the argument I submit this. We have the report of the previous committee, arrived at after a period of about six or eight weeks' sitting; and in an hour and a half, my hon. friend says, they reversed the principle of that report by exempting from the operation of the Wheat Board the flour and milling industry of Canada. That is a vital change. Now, my hon. friends to my left have asked this Parliament for a wheat board. I have never taken a stand in favour of a compulsory wheat board; they have. Their leader (Mr. Crerar), the member for Moosejaw (Mr. Johnson), who consented to the changing of his motion, and the Minister of Agriculture (Mr. Motherwell), by their tactics at the last meeting have completely vitiated any useful purpose that would have been served by the resolution of the member for Moosejaw. That is my point. I am not in favour of a compulsory wheat board, I repeat; but it does look mighty funny to me that hon. gentlemen should come into the House with an emaciated resolution such as this and support it as meeting their requirements. As I told the committee on more than one occasion, we stand clearly on the principle of a voluntary pool for the handling of the products of the West.

Now, let me turn for a moment to a brief consideration of this resolution. My hon. friend from Marquette a moment ago, in his address, ridiculed the questions that my right hon. leader (Mr. Meighen) and I asked regarding the practical working out of this proposal. I ask whatever hon. gentlemen on the treasury benches may have charge of the drafting of the bill to consider one feature,—I am not going into very many phases of the subject, but I want to take this one. By this resolution, upon which, it is stated, the House is to base the legislation that is to be passed, you will control, if it is to be effective at all, by subsequent provincial legislation, the compulsory acquisition of wheat in two provinces. I should like the Minister of Trade and Commerce (Mr. Robb) to note this in particular: In this resolution we are saying to the milling industry, "We are not going to touch you; we are exempting you from the compulsory features of this board." Am I wrong in that view of the matter? Is that a mis-statement of fact? I submit it is in the resolution and you cannot escape it. Now, how are we going to exempt the milling industry? Take the millers of Alberta and Saskatchewan. They are to be exempted from the compulsory features of the board by the legislation which this resolution proposes, and that is the price of the consent of the Minister of Agriculture and of the Government to this proposal,—at least, that remark applies to the Minister of Agriculture, for I have heard him express his views. But you will commandeer or acquire under compulsion all the wheat in these two provinces. Where will the millers get their wheat? My hon. friend from Marquette says, from the wheat board. But how can the millers operate under normal conditions—as you assure them you intend them to do, by exempting them from the compulsory action of the board—, if the only place they can get their wheat is from the board, which will have absolute control? They are compelled to go to the board for their wheat. Some one will say, of course, and it occurred to me myself, that perhaps, Manitoba being unable to come under this system this year, the millers can buy their wheat there from the Wheat Exchange in Winnipeg, which will be in full operation. But my hon. friend from Marquette (Mr. Crerar), who sneered at my questions a moment ago regarding imports, laid down as a doctrine in regard to importations, that the moment the wheat entered the provinces that were under the wheat board it would immediately come under the control and into the possession of the board. That is what the hon. member said; it is his interpretation of the proposal; and I presume that he is right. Now, I ask, where will the millers get their wheat? From one source only, and that is the wheat board. I appeal to the Minister of Trade and Commerce, who is a business man of broad experience and sound common sense. He is experienced in the milling business and I defy any hon. gentleman to besmirch his character with any of the terms of opprobrium they heap on millers generally. When you single a man out and look him in the face, general denunciations vanish into thin air; and so I will address myself, through you, Mr. Speaker, to the hon. minister. If he were operating a mill in Alberta, like the Maple Leaf, or Robin Hood in Saskatchewan, knowing that he had to compete in the world's market with his products—knowing that he had to compete in British Columbia, in Ontario, in Europe, in the West Indies, in China, in Japan with his products—does he for a moment think that he could operate if he could not buy his wheat on the open market? Will my hon. friend intimate whether he thinks that would be possible?

Mr. ROBB: If they created embarrassments in Alberta, I might have to move to Ontario or Quebec.

Mr. STEVENS: Certainly; my hon. friend unquestionably agrees with my view. He could not operate under such a condition, and that is the crux of the whole business. So that my hon. friend from Marquette has handed to the farmers of the prairies a huge lemon in connection with this resolution. I see the Minister of Agriculture shakes his head. Possibly, however, he is thinking of this advertisement which he had in the Regina Leader a few months ago: "Vote for Motherwell and the Wheat Board." Let me read this advertisement to my hon. friend from Marquette; I think it will be interesting to him.

Mr. CRERAR: I know it all by heart.

Mr. STEVENS: Then my hon. friend must have experienced a great wave of compassion for the Minister of Agriculture to forgive him and co-operate and collaborate with him in the drafting of the report. This advertisement, published on the 24th of November, and bearing the picture and autograph of the Hon. W. R. Motherwell, says:

> Up to November 11th the farmers of Western Canada had shipped 23,000,000 more bushels of wheat than at the same time last year and received $107,000,000 less money than they received last year.
>
> This tremendous loss might have been averted but for the action of the Meighen government in abolishing the Wheat Board and Hon. T. A. Crerar's support of that action.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: Where did you get that?

Mr. STEVENS: I am reading from the published advertisement of my hon. friend when he ran his election in November.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: I never made any such statement.

Mr. STEVENS: Well, that is the hon. member's advertisement. Let me read what the Regina Leader says with regard to the minister's denial:

> The statement of the Hon. W. R. Motherwell, Federal Minister of Agriculture, that he has always been opposed to the compulsory wheat board is rather surprising, when it is remembered that Mr. Motherwell owes his election in this constituency very largely to the fact that the people were given to understand that he favoured the constitution of the Canadian Wheat Board of 1919, with its powers unimpaired. Sixty odd days elapsed between the date of Mr. Motherwell's nomination and that of his election and very few of them passed without his appearing before an audience in some part of his constituency. Surely he does not now intend to plead that he had no opportunity of making his position on grain marketing clear before election day.

Further down it says:

> And not only did Mr. Motherwell accept responsibility for that slogan—

That is, the one I have just read to the House, "Vote for Motherwell and the Wheat Board."

> —and all it implied, but on platform after platform he criticised the Right Hon. Mr. Meighen for not reviving the compulsory Canadian wheat board,—

What has my hon. friend to say to that now? He is silent.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Struck dumb.

Mr. STEVENS (reading):

> —and the Hon. Mr. Crerar for the latter's opposition to national marketing.
>
> At the convention at which he was nominated on September 30th Mr. Motherwell stated in his speech of acceptance: "By taking this grain pool stand"—

The position of the right hon. leader of the Opposition:

> —"now, on the eve of an election, Mr. Meighen admits that the suspension of the Wheat Board for the past two years against the almost united voice of agriculture was a grave injustice that he hopes to have us forget".

And so forth. But I have some other interesting lines to recite to the House. During the study of this problem in the Committee of Agriculture, Mr. Maharg and, I think, Mr. Wood of Alberta, made the statement that about $25,000,000 had been lost to the farmers because the Wheat Board was not in existence last year, and that figure was frequently used. Now, let us see what the Minister of Agriculture thinks about that. This quotation is from the Regina Leader of November 15, 1921:

Millions of dollars lost to Saskatchewan.

The loss to Saskatchewan farmers in marketing this year's crop, through the Meighen Government's callous refusal to continue the Canada Wheat Board, is variously estimated at forty to seventy-five millions, a loss which for thousands of farmers this fall means real suffering and want.

My. hon. friend the Minister of Agriculture in arguing against a compulsory Wheat Board stated before the committee that comparatively little of the $25,000,000 was due to the lack of marketing facilities, most of the loss occurring in shrinkage here and there and other incidentals. He used these words:

The introduction of the compulsory wheat board would make but a very little saving of that $25,000,000.

When he was seeking election, however, he made this statement:

That from $40,000,000,000 to $75,000,000 was lost to Saskatchewan alone.

If you include Manitoba and Alberta the loss would be about twice as much at least, say $150,000,000. Before election that is the appalling loss to the western farmers through the discontinuance of the Wheat Board: but it is only a fraction of $25,000,000 after he assumes office. I suppose he will say, "Oh, then I spoke as a private citizen; now I speak as a minister." And he has told us, "You know, we often get into a corner that we must get out of." Then did he not use this classical language the other day?—"We have got to save our faces." Now my hon. friend saves his face by securing the presentation to the House of an absolutely abortive resolution—abortive as far as any possible beneficial effect is concerned.

Then my hon. friend has this to say:

Unfortunately the Government was assisted in its action by the attitude of the Progressive leader, Hon. T. A. Crerar, who from his seat in the House of Commons opposed the continuance of the Wheat Board in the following words:

"Personally, I am opposed entirely to any permanent policy that means the control of the marketing of grain in this country."

Further on he states:

Meighen and Crerar are on record at the present time as opposed to the re-establishment of the Wheat Board, and every vote for Meighen and Crerar candidates is a vote in support of the stand taken by these leaders on the question of the Wheat Board.

Every Liberal candidate in Saskatchewan is pledged to support the re-establishment of the Canada Wheat Board, as successfully operated under Stewart and Riddell.

Was my hon. friend a Liberal candidate?

[Mr. Stevens.]

Mr. MOTHERWELL: Who is reported as having said that?

Mr. STEVENS: This is my hon. friend's paid advertisement in the Regina Leader. I should like the owners of the Regina Leader to be here to see him as he says, "Oh, poof!" and waves this aside. How lightly he deals with the Regina Leader! I wonder if the hon. gentleman spurned the editor and publisher of the Regina Leader a few months ago. I wonder if my hon. friend paid the bill;—that would be the supreme test. But perhaps the bill was paid for him by generous subscriptions from the outside. However, we will not bore too deeply into these secrets.

An hon. MEMBER: Perhaps Big Business.

Mr. STEVENS: Yes, Big Business may have had to do with that. I wonder if any of the money from Montreal leaked out to the West to pay the Regina Leader. But, anyway, my hon. friend made the statement in the committee that he was absolutely opposed to the wheat board; before the public, he stated that if they elected him and other Liberal candidates they might rest assured that the wheat board would be the result of their faithful support.

Now I wish to return for a minute or two to the argument on this flour question. Supposing these mills in Alberta and Saskatchewan—the Robin Hood Milling Company, the Maple Leaf Milling Company, and the other companies having flour mills in Moosejaw, Yorkton, Calgary, Edmonton, and other places—were to attempt to import wheat from the free market of Manitoba, would they be debarred by the wheat board under this resolution? My hon. friend (Mr. Crerar) said a moment ago that any wheat which entered the confines of the province would immediately come under the control of the wheat board. Now, can you imagine a more preposterous situation? And that is our complaint, Mr. Speaker. This is an ill-digested, ill-conceived proposition. And, further, it is a proposition which was not before the committee. My hon. friend from Marquette to the contrary notwithstanding, this resolution was not before the committee except for a very, very brief space of time at one meeting. It is quite a change from the original resolution dealing with an economic problem affecting the milling industry which I presume is of very considerable importance.

Mr. CRERAR: Perhaps my hon. friend will permit me another question. He has been very courteous in that respect, and I appreciate it. Does he suggest that mills located in Moosejaw or Calgary, for instance, would be unable to secure from this agency all the supplies of wheat they require?

Mr. STEVENS: My hon. friend knows the answer before I give it; the answer is in his own mind at this moment. When a mill operates it looks ahead and makes contracts for the sale of its products in the markets of the world, and it may sell flour three, four or five months ahead. The moment a big order for flour is secured, what do the management do? They do not sit down and twiddle their thumbs until the time comes for delivery. They go out on the market and buy the wheat for future delivery so they can get it at the price upon which they figure for that order. Am I wrong or right?

Mr. CRERAR: My hon. friend is quite correct.

Mr. STEVENS: Certainly.

Mr. CRERAR: But my hon. friend—

Mr. STEVENS: Let me finish my argument. If the mill must go on the market and secure wheat against that order, does my hon. friend contend for a moment that they can go to this board, operated as the wheat board of 1919 was operated, and secure that wheat?

Mr. CRERAR: Certainly.

Mr. STEVENS: Well, there is absolutely no provision in the old regulations of 1919, and I venture to say that you would find it exceedingly difficult to frame any regulation that would help them. But that is not all; the board fixes the price on the sale of the flour—fixes the spread, if you like. My hon. friend shakes his head.

Mr. STEWART (Argenteuil): May I be permitted to ask a question? Is my hon. friend arguing that the board will hold all the wheat that comes into their possession until the end of the year?

Mr. STEVENS: My hon. friend need not ask me such an absurd question, because he knows, and every one knows, better. The question is ridiculous on the face of it. The board will acquire the wheat, and, according to my hon. friends who are advocating this most strongly, they will market the wheat as they consider the market will absorb it.

Mr. STEWART (Argenteuil): Exactly.

Mr. STEVENS: That is the underlying idea back of this whole business.

Mr. STEWART (Argenteuil): Are the mills prohibited from getting that wheat?

Mr. STEVENS: But for my hon. friend to say that wheat will go immediately into the control of the board as it enters the province, and that notwithstanding a mill could operate under conditions of that kind, I think is answered completely by the statement of the hon. Minister of Trade and Commerce (Mr. Robb).

Mr. BROWN: Is the hon. gentleman arguing that the mills are in a worse condition because of the change that was made in that report of the committee? Or is it an argument that would have applied equally had the change not been made?

Mr. STEVENS: I think the change that was made in the committee would put the miller in those provinces out of business. And I am sure that as a result it would be impossible for the mills in Montreal, in Ontario, on the Pacific coast, the mills in the two provinces where they are controlled, to operate in anything like a fair way in competition one with the other. I think it would be hopeless to attempt to harmonize the position in which they would find themselves.

Mr. JOHNSON (Moosejaw): Why could they not get the wheat in the same way that they got it in 1919?

Mr. STEVENS: How did they get it in 1919? I do not wish to go into a detailed discussion of that, but here is the way they got it in 1919: The wheat board supplied the mill with the wheat at a fixed figure—to all mills alike, throughout the whole of Canada. Well, my hon. friend sat in the committee and listened to the evidence of all the millers to the effect that even under those conditions, when there was an equitable condition throughout Canada, their difficulties were great. Then, when they got the wheat at that figure, the price of flour was fixed as well. If the price of wheat increased on the foreign market and the board raised the price of wheat to the mills, then the board exacted from the mills for their stocks in hand the difference between the lower price at which they had already secured the wheat and the higher price which was then fixed. My point is this. If you apply that principle to the mills in Alberta and Saskatchewan while the mills of the rest of the country are without restriction or control, how on earth can they operate? There is one thing the milling industry wants, namely, the liberty to finance and to acquire its supplies on the open market. But that is not all. Under this resolution there is no possible chance of Manitoba, as my right hon. leader has intimated, coming under the regulations; the legislature of that province could not possibly meet and pass the legislation this year. I would point out in this connection that the plan is designed to apply to this year only.

The hon. member for Marquette (Mr. Crerar) opposes the voluntary pool suggestion, because, he says, it will be an agency competing with other agencies or institutions. Well, that is perfectly true, but I do not think it is a valid objection to an attempt to assist the growers or producers of wheat on the prairies, if they so desire.

In the committee, Mr. Maharg, Mr. Robinson, Mr. Hamilton—the Minister of Agriculture of Saskatchewan—and many others gave what I thought was exceptionally intelligent evidence. But there was one thing they all assured us of—I must say I was not quite convinced of it—namely, that the people of the prairies were a unit in this matter. Well, if the people are a unit and the government brought in a voluntary pool sysem, offering them the facilities of a wheat board if they chose to take advantage of them, surely there would be sufficient support of the voluntary pool to make it a success. Some of my hon. friends shake their heads, but that does seem to me to be common sense. It may not appeal to my hon. friends to my left, but it strikes me as a fair argument. If, as they say, the people of the prairies are a unit on this thing, and if the Government of Canada with its credit will offer to them the advantage of facilities for handling of their wheat crop by way of a voluntary pool, surely the two combined would insure the success of the movement.

I wish to say, in conclusion, that I consider the method of presenting this report to the House as being wholly unfair to the committee. The exemption of the flour milling industry as represented here was never properly before the committee, and was not given fair consideration. I doubt very much whether any legislation which would be workable can be designed on the basis of this resolution.

[Mr. Charles Stewart.]

Hon. W. R. MOTHERWELL (Minister of Agriculture): Mr. Speaker, it was not my intention to go into this matter very extensively, had it not been for some remarks made and some extracts read by the hon. member who has just taken his seat (Mr. Stevens). Had this been the first occasion of the making of these statements I would have let them go by, as I have done on former occasions. But this is not the first, or the second, or the fourth, or even the tenth time that they have been presented. In fact, I am unable to tell how many times statements and allegations have been made misrepresenting my attitude on the question of a wheat board not only last fall during the election, but more recently as well.

I have in my hand extracts taken from the Regina Leader of remarks made by me during the election. With regard to the advertising portions of the remarks read by the hon. member for Vancouver, it is the first time I have heard of them. I never knew they were there and am in no way responsible for them, and I say that knowing the consequences of my remark. Here are some of my statements during that campaign; they were handed to the reporter in typewritten form so that there could be no mistake through their being misreported. The very first extract my hon. friend read from the Regina Leader is only part of my statement; here is the first part of it:

> Mr. Meighen's voluntarily grain pool proprosal is merely carrying out a Liberal policy with respect to grain that the Saskatchewan government inaugurated with respect to butter, wool and poultry and other farm produce many years ago.

And then follows the extract read by my hon. friend.

Mr. STEVENS: What is the date of that?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: The last day of September, on the occasion of my nomination in Regina. That portion of my remarks in regard to the wheat board is not to be found in the extract read by my hon. friend, and the result is that the meaning is entirely different.

Mr. STEVENS: I was quoting from the Regina Leader.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: I know my hon. friend did not eliminate it.

Mr. STEVENS: The Regina Leader did.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: My hon. friend will have to settle with the Regina Leader the question of who eliminated the context. Then later, in order that my attitude on the question of a wheat board should not be misunderstood through any advertising campaign on the part of any person or paper, eight days before the election I issued a letter to some three thousand families in the rural portions of my constituency, outlining specifically my attitude on the wheat board question. I did this in order that there should be no misunderstanding as to where I stood in the matter. There are 5,000 voters in the rural portion of my riding, and the following letter went out to 3,000 families:

I, like many of you, have no revenue from any source except the farm and I suffer with you as a result of the high tariff, higher freight rates, and the absence of a national wheat board. Provincial marketing of farm produce, such as butter, wool and poultry, was introduced into Saskatchewan in 1906 by the Department of Agriculture over which I had the honour to preside at that time as minister, and this was the first effort of its kind in all Canada. I naturally, therefore, favour at the present time the extension of this principle into the national arena.

That is plain enough.

This same principle should be applied to all cereals. If these features of my record and platform commend themselves to you, I shall feel honoured by your support and influence.

"If these features as set out in the letter commend themselves to you, I should feel honoured by your support and influence." Now, is that not plain enough, Mr. Speaker? Does that not indicate where I stand? I repeat that I have nothing to do with the advertising campaign in the Leader or any other newspaper, and that in order that there should be no misunderstanding as to my attitude on the question, I sent this letter to practically every farm home in the rural portion of my riding.

Mr. STEVENS: If the hon. gentleman will permit me, I do not myself wish to misrepresent him, but we are certainly faced with these reports in the newspapers. Would he tell me what he means by "national wheat board" in the letter which he has just read?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: My hon. friend knows what system was in vogue in Saskatchewan with respect to butter and wool and poultry. Everybody in that district knew what that system was. I did not anticipate having to take it up here; but it meant voluntary. For eleven years in our province while I was at the head of the department, we had provincial marketing with respect to butter, eggs, wool and poultry, and it was the most natural thing in the world that I should make the statement that that principle should be extended to the federal arena.

Mr. MEIGHEN: The hon. member says he meant voluntary, though he did not say so. Now will he explain why he bewailed the cessation of the old compulsory Wheat Board?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: My hon. friend stopped it and he did not introduce anything else to take its place in the years 1920 and 1921 when grain was on the toboggan slide.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Why did the hon. gentleman himself oppose my proposal and denounce me for ever making it?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: I never did.

Mr. MEIGHEN: I have his speech.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: All right. Get it out. I have a number of extracts here, Mr. Speaker, that I might read. I was told by my friends that I was making a mistake in coming out as I did because the old government was so unpopular that if I stood up for its wheat board I would go down to defeat with the right hon. gentleman, but I could not stultify myself and my record of eleven years in provincial marketing. What are the hon. gentlemen laughing about? I said in my speech at Lumsden:

That the farmers of the West were so situated geographically, and so hemmed in by paralyzing freight rates, a short growing season and long accounts to settle, that they are driven by necessity to throw large quantities of their crop on the first market every season. This so gluts and depresses the market that our very penury is conducive to even greater penury, and makes some form of national marketing an imperative and permanent necessity.

When the late Conservative government first proposed the wheat board idea it was in lieu of a guaranteed minimum price for wheat such as had been made in the United States in the early autumn of 1918, so as to encourage a large acreage of winter wheat. Before it was necessary for Canada to act in the matter, the war was over and a guaranteed minimum was refused, and the wheat board finally substituted therefor. Very few farmers took kindly to the idea. Chiefly because they had no faith in the Government itself. With a rapidly rising market the wheat board idea worked out fine and demonstrated that the participation certificates, looked upon by many as worthless to be worth about 48 cents per bushel. Then the government dropped out of it apparently satisfied that they might be in that kind of business for many another year and not have such a favourable opportunity for making good. Then came the desperate slump of all cereals in the fall of 1920 with no wheat board to steady up the decline, when a general cry went up throughout the land for the restoration of this board. But the Government even though they had passed enabling legislation empowering them to do so, was inexorable and refused to touch it. In the meantime farmers suffered and were bled till they were white. Time passed and the 1921 crop, up till about August, gave great promise. Then came the rust followed by the wettest harvest ever known here with farm machinery and labour higher than ever, and all cereals, live stock and other farm produce again on the toboggan slide till the bottom seemed to be clean shot out of everything rural. And yet the Meighen government still looked on and apparently without a conscience or even a latent desire to hold out a helping hand. Then when much of the wheat had left the farmers' hands at sacrifice prices, Premier Meighen unfolds his wheat board plans at Portage la Prairie, dangles them mockingly before the furious farmer and then blandly suggests that if we vote the bunch back again, the wheat board is ours. But the price is too high for the average elector, even though the prospects of the scheme if properly managed will work out all right.

The Saskatchewan government 16 years ago, and since, has in a smaller way proven the workability of provincial marketing of butter, eggs, poultry and wool on a co-operative plan, to the great advantage of the producers of these farm products and without the loss of one cent to the Government. Mr. Meighen's plan is merely an enlargement of our provincial activities into a larger arena of national marketing of our cereals, and therefore is no experiment at all and should work out all right.

Mr. MEIGHEN: When was that speech made, and where?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: At Lumsden. At the opening of my campaign in Lumsden on November 9th, I said in part as follows—

Mr. MEIGHEN: What is the paper the hon. member is reading from?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: The Regina Leader.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Of what date?

Mr. STEVENS: That is the same paper that printed the advertisements.

Mr. MEIGHEN: The hon. member has not told me the date of the paper.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: If my hon. friend would just stop jumping around like a weasel in a cage and let me get through and make a proper presentation of the case, I should be obliged. In order to make quite sure that that was the interpretation that was put on those statements, and lest my right hon. friend will be jumping up again, I will read an extract from a comment written by Mr. J. A. Aikin, of whom he has no doubt heard. He was formerly editor of the Saskatoon Phœnix and wrote the advertising for my hon. friend's campaign in the western press, and wrote it pretty well from my hon. friend's standpoint. It was pointed out to me once more that I was making a mistake by playing into the hands of the old government over the Wheat Board. They said "Look what Aikin is writing about you in his two-column advertisement in the Regina Leader." I asked what it was he was saying, and they said "Aikin is taking your statement on the Wheat Board to back up Meighen's government." I said, "I cannot help that. Because Meighen happens to be on my side for once, it is no reason why I should run away." I looked up the issue in question, and this is what Mr. Aikin said in the Regina Leader in a two-column advertisement that appeared on a certain page every week. I am sure the Progressive members from Saskatchewan will remember those two columns on the right hand page, because they did not think very much of them, and I do not know whether anybody else did, except possibly the writer and a few others. I do not know that even the writer did for before that Aikin was a good Liberal, and is yet, but he fell into bad hands for the time being. This is what Mr. J. A. Aikin wrote in the Regina Leader of November 17th, regarding the interpretation Conservatives gave to the paid advertisement:

It would be a pretty difficult task for a practical man like the Hon. W. R. Motherwell—

This is a rather difficult thing for me to read Mr. Speaker:

—to condemn the Grain Board proposal of Premier Meighen. He does not attempt to do it, though, as one would expect, he is critical of the Meighen administration. Speaking at Lumsden, November 9, as reported in the Morning Leader, of November 10, Mr. Motherwell said: said:

"Mr. Meighen's plan is merely an enlargement of our provincial activities into a larger arena of national marketing of our cereals and therefore, is no experiment at all, and should work out all right."

Now, if my hon. friends do not choose to interpret what was said then in the way in which I interpreted it, and in the way in which Mr. Aikin interpreted it, I cannot help it; if it did not mean that it did not mean anything. I do not take a whole lot of pride in allying myself with my right hon. friend (Mr. Meighen) because I think, possibly, it had a detrimental effect on my campaign. But I could not help it; it was what I believed in and it was what I have tried myself for eleven years—

An hon. MEMBER: And still believe?

Mr. MOTHERWELL:—and have proven. But the issue between the compulsory and voluntary idea ceased the moment the law officers of the Crown decided that this Parliament could not create a compulsory board.

Mr. MEIGHEN: I did not propose the creation of a compulsory board.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: The law officers of the Crown, if I understand their opinion, took the ground that it was not within the prerogative of this Parliament to create a board like the board of 1919 because of the compulsory features involved. If that is so, and that is my understanding of their opinion, then the question of compulsory legislation ceases to be an issue. While I am on that point I would like to draw the attention of the House to the discussion which took place in the Committee on Agriculture. When the farmers expressed a desire to have a compulsory board it was apparent that it was not from this Parliament they were going to be able to get it. The system most likely for them was a system similar to the one Australia brought into effect over five years ago. At that time they did have a compulsory board in Australia, but later on it was continued as a voluntary board. I took the ground in the committee that if the farmers of the West wanted a compulsory board it must be of some such nature as that, in view of the opinion of the law officers of the Crown, and that they must be prepared to accept it. In order to bring the exact situation before the committee I came before them armed with the Australian legislation—the New South Wales Act and the Queensland Act—my hon. friend from Vancouver (Mr. Stevens) has not referred to that in his remarks— and I read extracts from the Australian statutes, a whole page of them, setting forth exactly what could be done. It is on the Australian legislation that the resolution of the hon. member for Moosejaw is largely based. I am not going to enter upon a consideration of the discussion at the meetings of the committee, or the evidence given before them except to say this: There was some informal discussion among the members arising out of the quotations I had given with respect to the Australian legislation. In discussing the matter with Hon. Mr. Hamilton he took the ground that unless some scheme was evolved that would make it possible to handle all the wheat, we would not get the maximum results desired. Then I asked Mr. Hamilton what he thought about the Australian scheme. I said first of all: These respective acts can be made either voluntary or compulsory by the provinces. That is the acts of New South Wales and Queensland, that was the beauty of the Australian scheme. Then the provinces would be able to exercise their sovereign right to say how their wheat should be marketed. That is the principle embodied in the Australian legislation, and that is the principle we propose to embody in the act to be passed upon the report of the committee. This Parliament not having authority to create a compulsory board, the only thing then to do, according to the law officers of the Crown, is to leave the problem to the provinces concerned. Consequently, I am absolutely right when I take the ground that the question of whether the board shall be compulsory or voluntary is not an issue here at this time. To further quote from the discussion in the committee, Mr. McMaster said:

Mr. Hamilton might give us his views.

I then interjected the remark that it was optional on the part of the provinces to say whether the action taken should be voluntary or compulsory. That is my attitude, Mr. Speaker, with regard to this question.

As six o'clock the House took recess.

After Recess

The House resumed at eight o'clock.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: Mr. Speaker, when you left the Chair before dinner, I had just completed reading some extracts indicating what my attitude towards the Wheat Board was prior to the election. I am now going to read a short extract to show what my attitude was after the election. This is what I stated at a complimentary banquet given to me in the city of Regina, and I am sure the House must realize that giving that opinion at that time, could not possibly have any influence on an election that had been over for more than a month. This is what I said as reported in the Regina Post. I did not give it to that paper in typewritten form; it is just as the reporter reported it. As was the case with the other extracts, it is approximately correct:

The national marketing of wheat is a problem in which we find three separate schools of thought. One desires a compulsory pool, another a voluntary pool and a third no pool at all, but rather the utilization of co-operative systems. Personally I am inclined to believe that the voluntary pool proposal advanced by Hon. Arthur Meighen at the time of the recent federal election campaign, to be the best outstanding plan yet suggested. I have been unable to think of any better.

I do not think I made the statement just in those words, but we will take it in that way.

In any event, there is room for improvement here. The losses to the farmer through marketing which we believed we had eliminated a few years back by the inauguration of new methods, still exist and, in the interests of the agriculturists, we must thoroughly probe the question.

That probing has been going on for the last two or three months, and that is what that refers to.

Let me get back to some of the remarks made at the beginning of the discussion this afternoon. The leader of the Opposition (Mr. Meighen), in his supercritical style, if we did not know something about this matter ourselves, would have laughed the whole proposition off the board. It was a somewhat alarming picture, a sort of a political scarecrow that he made with regard to this report of the Committee on Agriculture. He started out, however, on a wrong premise. He took the ground that this wheat board that was contemplated was required for only one year. Some of the witnesses said that; that has been said on more than one occasion in a sort of persuasive way to induce those who had a little objection to try it for one year. But what does the Council of Agriculture say in respect to this matter, and after all, that is the say that has to go? The Canadian Council of Agriculture is the responsible body that brought this matter to the attention of the Government, and the Government, in turn, brought it to the attention of this House. This is the opening paragraph of the memorandum of that body:

Resolved that this council favours the reinstatement of the Canada Wheat Board for the handling of the 1922 wheat crop, and until such time as world conditions again become normal.

Does that mean one year only? I rather surmise that if the board that we have in contemplation proves successful, it will run for more than one year. I know that what many farmers have ultimately in view, is some form of co-operative activity amongst themselves, and that is the reason why I took the attitude I did. Having tried a government system myself for eleven years and having then handed it over to the farmers who are now running it as the Saskatchewan Co-operative Creamery Company, I anticipated that this would run probably the same course. I anticipated that it would be run by the Government for a few years until it got upon its feet, and it had established confidence in itself on the part of the banking institutions, because that is essential. For a few years, the Government would handle it as a demonstration of what could be done, and then when confidence was established in it, the farmers would take it over and handle it themselves according to their requirements and their ideas of carrying it on. It is entirely problematical how many years it would be necessary to continue government direction and assistance, in co-operation with provincial governments, or how long a time would elapse until the farmers would be able to handle the system themselves. My right hon. friend, in starting out, said that it is only for this year that it would be required and that there is very little chance of getting it for this year, because we had dallied so long with it. I think he said we were indulging in a species of slow strangulation of the idea of the wheat board. When a certain other report came down about six weeks ago with respect to referring this matter to the Supreme Court, my right hon. friend, in rather dramatic style, said: "If this report goes through, this whole proposition will be ditched." That was the term he used, and he scared some members in this House into thinking that probably it would have been ditched had that action been taken. May I draw the attention of the House to the fact that if that report had been allowed to go through, we would long ago have had a decision by the Supreme Court? In the estimation of the average man on the street and on the prairies that decision would have been more satisfactory than any decision by law officers. It would have been a legal decision, whereas the other would be merely an opinion. My right hon. friend probably had some other idea in mind in wanting the matter referred back to the committee. But, as a lawyer, judging by the decision of the Privy Council on the Board of Commerce Act, judging by a more recent decision in Manitoba on the Manitoba Grain Act, judging by the decision in connection with certain injunction proceedings in Winnipeg last fall, and from his own undoubted knowledge of constitutional law, he must have known, as any lawyer of any prominence I have ever spoken to knows, that a decision by the Supreme Court of Canada would have been just exactly along the same lines as an opinion of the law officers of the Crown. Well, slow strangulation is the process now as against ditching six weeks ago.

But we are not going to be alarmed, Mr. Speaker, for this report I have no doubt will go through. As the Prime Minister (Mr. Mackenzie King) has intimated, the bill is not yet quite completed, although it is practically ready, and it will no doubt in due course become law. And time alone will tell how it will work out. In the course of his remarks my right hon. friend said that the act should not become effective unless three provinces at least acted under it. There is one prairie province that will not be able to take advantage of it, and that is Manitoba; and if we stipulated that three provinces must be ready to invoke the act, that would to all intents and purposes preclude any action this fall. But by providing that the act shall go into operation as soon as two or more of the provinces have fulfilled the requirements, we make it possible to take action at once and wait for Manitoba to come in later. The member for Marquette (Mr. Crerar) expressed the view that I have stated, that in the last analysis the way to handle wheat on the prairies is through the farmers' own co-operative systems. That is my opinion, and it is equally my opinion that to bring that about there must first be a demonstration by the Government that this can be done, in order to establish the confidence of the financial institutions in the undertaking. They must take hold of it, and when that confidence is secured the farmers can then carry on their operations.

Now, the member for Vancouver Centre (Mr. Stevens) thought he had one on your humble servant when he got off those extracts this afternoon. Well, I hope he has had time to cogitate on the matter since then and to realise that in reading from that editorial of the Leader he was inextricably involved as to the true situation. I have stated the situation, as it existed both before and after the election, and my position in either case is consistent. I am afraid that someone else will have to explain the matter to the hon. gentleman if he does not understand it. I wish I could explain the editorial in the Leader, to which he referred.

Mr. STEVENS: I read the advertisements and the article in question this afternoon. Now, if my hon. friend on his responsibility as a member of this House, says that those advertisements and the statements I quoted are not true, why, of course, we have to accept his statement.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: I did not say that. What I said was that the Regina Leader held strong views with regard to the advisability of a compulsory board, and not only its editorial column but its advertising columns as well were conducted with that idea in view. I, too, held strong views on the question of a voluntary board; and recognising that there was a danger of misunderstanding I sought another channel, through a circular letter, to get my real views straight before the electors of Regina. That is what I did. You could not have anything fairer could you? What does the hon. member suggest that I could do further in the hurry of an election?

Some hon. MEMBERS: Oh, oh.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: Oh, I know that I have spoilt a nice little mare's nest over there.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Oh, oh.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: Yes, I have been waiting for this hour for some days, for some weeks, for some months, in fact ever since the address, and I want to thank my hon. friend from Vanocuver Centre (Mr. Stevens) for having brought the matter up, because I did not want to interjet it into the debates without provocation. My hon. friend says that the committee deliberately changed the first resolution without giving notice. He forgets that the last two meetings of that committee I was unfortunately obliged to leave prematurely; but on each occasion I left a memorandum indicating some of the changes which I thought should be made in the resolution. In the first occasion I elaborated on the subject in the memorandum I left with the chairman. I do not happen to have that memorandum with me, but it is not of such great importance. However, the point is this, that my hon. friend, who objected to the change at the second last meeting, knew, as I knew and everybody else knew, that the committee had in contemplation changing the resolution. What was all the talk about if they did not contemplate changing it? I think my hon. friend is simply creating a grievance. Surely the committee was superior to its own resolution and had a right to remould it. There was nothing "put over" in the last meeting. My understanding was that the members were there for the purpose of trying to crystallize various opinions into one resolution, and my hon. friend seems to be very much concerned about the harmony that existed between the member for Moosejaw (Mr.

Johnson), the member for Marquette (Mr. Crerar), the Chairman (Mr. Kay) and myself. We got together and concluded something that brought about harmony. Ah, that is the trouble! Where a certain amount of confusion existed before, eating up a lot of time and giving a lot of nonsensical copy sometimes to the newspapers about divisions in the committee, instead of continuing that, the members who were most interested—we are all interested in the matter, of course, but probably some of us were particularly so—got together before the meeting was convened and agreed that certain things which were not necessary might be omitted.

Mr. STEVENS: We are getting the real truth.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: I took this ground, that the Government of Canada should not have any surpluses. It was thought proper that any surpluses such as existed in 1919 should belong on a pro rata basis to the respective provinces in which they were generated. I further took the ground that if we carried that out, the respective provinces interested in the wheat board should also bear any possible deficit that might arise. The hon. member for Vanouver Centre no doubt remembers, that because he was sitting beside me.

Mr. MEIGHEN: Who were present?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: My hon. friend tried to get me tangled up in my extracts before dinner, and if he will keep his seat warm for a minute I will finish the statement I am making.

Mr. MEIGHEN: I rise for the second time to ask the minister a question. Of course, if he persists in curt and unmannerly refusals I will not ask it again. I merely rose to ask him, who were present at this preliminary confab at which the details of the meeting of the committee were pre-arranged?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: According to the report there were twenty-nine present.

Mr. MEIGHEN: There is no report at all. The minister said it was a preliminary confab before the meeting was held.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: No. My right hon. friend is full of cynical suspicion. There were twenty-nine members waiting around for the meeting to be called to order. I think there were very few present but the Progressives themselves; they had it all their own way. The Chairman was wondering whether it was time to call the meeting to order, and the members of the committee were sitting around the table as close to me as my friends to my right here, in addition to the four members I have mentioned. We did not go off to some secluded corner before the meeting was convened, we did everything right there in front of the table. I left because I had to go to a council meeting of equal importance. The whole stock in trade of my right hon. friend is that no one can do anything right, and he mutters about broken pledges, broken promises, prostituted honour—everybody is wrong but himself. I hope I have answered my right hon. friend's question. He remarked in a profound manner, and I made a note of it at the time, that—something might be done by the provinces to assist in organizing a voluntary board.

We do not need any assistance in organizing a voluntary board. So if the whole thing was left to my right hon. friend he would so bamboozle us that he would send us back to the committee again.

He referred to the millers. What is to hinder the millers from getting their supplies of wheat? As a matter of fact, every miller to a man wants to be left outside the jurisdiction of this board. Have not the millers a right to go to the board and get their requirements filled? Do you think the board is going to boycott our millers? Of course not. And will not the export price of flour determine the price of what is consumed at home? Most assuredly that principle is sound. So all this bewailing and mourning the fate of the millers is wasted breath. It will be the duty of the board to sell wheat to the best advantage wherever they can find a purchaser, and if they start to boycott our millers their action will have to be attended to, that is all. This talk about the control of flour is so nonsensical that it is not worth while regarding it seriously. We are told that our millers are going to be ruined somehow or other, but I do not know how the right hon. gentleman made that out.

I do not think there is anything further to add, except to say that the promise which the first minister made in the West and in this House has been carried out, and as a member of that committee present at all but two or three of the sittings, and knowing something of the heart's desire of practically every member to find a solution of the problem placed before them, I know that they have done their best to that end. Although they may have taken longer than my right hon. friend thought was necessary, of course no one but he expected that the committee would bring in a report that would satisfy him; but as far as was consistent with presenting a scheme that was workable we hurried our work as much as we possibly could. There is no sense in trying to leave an impression to the contrary, because I know that I am stating the facts. My right hon. friend was not there, but his colleagues were, and the hon. member for Vancouver Centre (Mr. Stevens) has already stated that we did counsel with each other long and earnestly to reach a solution of this question. If this proposal does not work out as satisfactorily as some of us expect, there will be opportunities to amend it later on; but in the meantime, although I should like to see that report a little different in some respects, I believe that on the whole the proposal it contains is sufficiently workable to justify the Government in drafting a bill based upon it that will be reasonably satisfactory not only to this House but to the men on the prairies whom we are endeavouring to serve.

Mr. DONALD SUTHERLAND (South Oxford): Being a member of the committee to which this question of a wheat board was referred early in the session, perhaps I may be pardoned for taking part in the discussion. I know warning has been given that this concerns the three western provinces exclusively, but at the risk of being considered as venturing into a field where I have no business to be I am going to offer a few remarks. I can assure you, Mr. Speaker, that I shall not attempt to follow the course pursued by the Minister of Agriculture (Mr. Motherwell), however much I may admire the agility with which he skated around and doubled back on the same course in an attempt to confuse those who were endeavouring to arrive at an understanding as to what he really meant.

This proposal contains a principle which, if adopted all the provinces must be called upon to bear and to see that it is given effect to. The Prime Minister this afternoon stated that the attitude of the Government would depend upon the action of this House, which action was likely to be influenced to a very great degree by the report of the special committee to which this matter was referred, and is now before the House. We have heard a good deal about democracy during the present session, I wish to point out that the spirit of democracy, about which our hon. friends opposite express so much solicitude, is being sadly violated by the powers that be in this connection.

It is true that the committee devoted themselves diligently to the task of endeavouring to arrive at some understanding as to the best methods to be pursued for the creation of a wheat board, because we all realize and appreciate the difficulties with which our friends in the western provinces in particular are confronted at this time. A series of poor crops, together with the deflation of the prices of farm products in advance of the deflation of the prices of those commidities which they have to purchase, has placed many of them in a very awkward position, and consequently I believe it was the earnest desire of every member of the committee that Parliament should go to the limit in helping to improve the condition of our wheat growers. I know that was the feeling which I entertained, and I endeavoured to follow the proceedings of the committee as well as I could during its early sessions. But I happened to be on two other committees and unfortunately all three met at the same hour; consequently I could not attend the meetings of the Agriculture Committee as regularly as I would like to have done.

There appears to be a tendency on the part of some hon. gentlemen to argue that the report which is now before the House is the result of the mature deliberation of the Agriculture Committee with regard to this question. I want to refer to that matter for a few moments. It has already been dealt with by the hon. member for Centre Vancouver (Mr. Stevens) and also by the leader of Opposition (Mr. Meighen), but in view of the statements which have been made since, I ask the indulgence of the House while I refer to it again.

It is true that a report was drafted and submitted to the committee, to which the hon. member for Brome (Mr. McMaster) offered an amendment which was voted down in committee. This report passed the committee, and notwithstanding the fact that the Minister of Agriculture (Mr. Motherwell) appeared before the committee and outlined what the views of the government were with regard to the matter, no change was made in the report. Those who were present will remember that the 23rd of May was the date on which this matter was dealt with. The 24th and the 25th of May were public holidays. There was a small attendance of members in the House on the 26th of May, which was a Friday; consequently there were only twenty-nine members present at the meeting of the committee. It is somewhat significant that when the original resolution was passed, seventy-eight members were present, and they voted down the amendment moved by the hon. member for Brome. The Minister of Agriculture has intimated that when the committee resumed a few days later there was a good deal of difficulty in opening the committee at all and that this matter was discussed before the committee met and a conclusion arrived at. They immediately set about to rescind the resolution which had been adopted when seventy-eight members of the committee were present. The twenty-nine members who gathered there, without any knowledge on the part of the rest of the committee that this matter was to be dealt with, rescinded the former resolution, and we have before us today as the report of the Agriculture Committee, a report of the twenty-nine members who were present on that occasion, not of the full committee which passed this resolution in the first instance. I wonder if you consider this to be the democracy that has been so much lauded and that was to prevail in this Parliament should hon. gentlemen opposite occupy the treasury benches. It is acknowledged that a great deal of unnecessary delay has taken place. Who is responsible for that? It is pointed out that dissolution of the Manitoba legislature has taken place and that it will be impossible for that province to avail themselves of the provisions of any enactment with respect to this matter, even if it should go into effect at the earliest possible moment. One-third of the western country, therefore, is debarred from the operations of this act, for the present year, should it be passed—and it is contended that the crop of 1922 is the important one to be dealt with by the regulations which are asked for. I ask, why all this delay? If the Minister of Agriculture and the Government were satisfied in their minds as to what the proper policy should be, why should this matter have been delegated to a committee of the House at all, and, the committee having made a finding upon it, why all this intrigue and trickery? Why the resorting to tactics whereby—

Mr. SPEAKER: Order. I am sure the hon. member will realize that he is employing an unparliamentary expression.

[Mr. Sutherland.]

The word "trickery" should not be used in this assembly as the hon. member has used it.

Mr. SUTHERLAND: I leave it to hon. members of this House to characterize in any way they see fit the course that was pursued. If the words that I have used are a little too strong, Mr. Speaker, I bow to your ruling.

Mr. GAUVREAU: Take them back.

Mr. SUTHERLAND: The first witness we had before the committee was the President of the Council of Agriculture, Mr Wood. Mr. Wood made it very clear to the committee and to the country that he considered that the Wheat Board of 1919 had saved the farmers of this country an immense sum of money—practically $50,000,000 during the operations of the board for that year. You will find reference to that on page 6 of the proceedings of the first meeting of the committee, and a little further on, page 17, he becomes even more emphatic and says:

> It was estimated by men who were in the best position to give intelligent information of any men I know that the saving to the farmer in the sale of that crop, on a very conservative basis, was $50,000,000. From what information I had in regard to that matter, I was satisfied, even before I heard that estimate of the expert's, that that was a very low estimate.

Now this was the opinion of the president of the Canadian Council of Agriculture. Yet in the face of that we have the Minister of Agriculture coming before the committee at a later date,—I am not going to go over the whole of the questions which he submitted to Mr. Riddell, who was then being examined, because the question is very voluminous—but he endeavoured to leave the impression in the minds of the committee and of the witness that the opinion prevailed that the Wheat Board of 1919 had been appointed in order to keep down the price of wheat. Well, Mr. Wood had very clearly and emphatically explained what the situation was some time before. In view of these conflicting reports and statements, it is rather difficult for some hon. members who are not members of the special committee to realize what has been going on. I scarcely understand what the Minister of Agriculture meant when he said that members of the committee had got together and discussed this matter even before the committee met and had arrived at a satisfactory solution; that they were anxious to do something that would facilitate matters and get things done as smoothly as possible. There are many old members of the House in this Chamber to-day; I would ask them whether they ever experienced anything similar to this in connection with any question submitted to a committee in the past? I know I never have. In the face of the attitude in the committee taken by the hon. member for Vancouver in opposition to the stand taken by the Minister of Agriculture that the committee could not rescind that resolution, already passed, I scarcely knew what to think when I came back here and found that a few members of the committee had met together and had rescinded the resolution. The report of these twenty-nine members is now before the House, and we are asked to adopt it. I think we are entitled to hear from these twenty-nine members who were present on that occasion regarding this matter. I think it is only fair to the House that we should have some explanation why in defiance of the attitude of the seventy-eight members who were present on the former occasion, they undertook, in the absence of the other members of the committee to change the report and bring in the one that is now before the House.

Mr. MORRISON: Will the hon. member allow me to ask a question?

Mr. SUTHERLAND: The hon. member will have an opportunity to speak later. I notice that some hon. members are very good at asking questions which are only intended to disconcert the speaker, and not for the purpose of bringing information before the House. I say that it is a duty these twenty-nine members owe to the House to explain why they brought in this report in the absence of the other members of the committee, when they knew very well that those other members had not an opportunity of knowing what was being done.

Mr. LOVETT: Did not the hon. member receive notice of the meeting at which he says this action was taken by those twenty-nine members?

Mr. SUTHERLAND: We have heard the Minister of Agriculture say in the House to-night that they met before the committee met, and arrived at a conclusion.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: Nothing of the kind.

Mr. SUTHERLAND: Consequently, I say it is due to the House that we should have some explanation of their action in this matter. We have also had the statement of the hon. member for Victoria City (Mr. Tolmie) that he attended the committee on the 26th for about half an hour, that there was nothing doing, but after he left this action was taken.

Mr. BROWN: I rise to a point of order. The hon. member for Vancouver Centre (Mr. Stevens) expressed his intention not to raise a point of order with regard to this report being properly before the House. Is it in order for the hon. member for South Oxford (Mr. Sutherland) to raise that point now? Is it not irrelevant to the report itself?

Mr. SPEAKER: I do not think there is a point of order raised. The hon. member for South Oxford in a passing reference gives his opinion as to the manner in which the proceedings of the committee were conducted, but that is not the gist of his argument, as I understand it.

Mr. SUTHERLAND: During the early sessions of the committee, it was somewhat difficult for some of us to understand why they were asking to have the Wheat Board established for another year. If it was going to be such a splendid thing, why did they not want it to be permanent? It was the hon. member for Lisgar (Mr. Brown) who stated that it would be easier to get it through for one year than if it was proposed to be made permanent. I ask: Was it fair to ask for the Wheat Board for one year if that was the intention?

This matter also came up in the House after 1919. In 1920 we undertook to provide against a similar contingency, and we have the statements made by a number of hon. members on that occasion. Hansard of June 24, 1920, will show that even the leader of the Progressive party (Hon. Mr. Crerar) stated on that occasion:

> I think the Minister of the Interior furnished the only argument that constituted a real reason why the board should be continued for another year, and that is the possibility of unified buying again in Europe.

That was the only argument which appealed to him as justifying the appointment of the board for another year. I would ask, Mr. Speaker, if there has been any evidence of unified buying on the part of Europe since that time. We all know that when the Wheat Board was in existence in 1919, there was a commission purchasing for Great Britain and the allied countries which made it easier to deal with those countries than it is under present conditions. To-day, to my amazement, the hon. member for Marquette stated that the farmers' co-operative companies could handle this matter just as well as any voluntary pool. The only redeeming feature to-day, apparently, is the compulsory feature, while in 1920 he argued very strongly against the compulsory feature, which he ranked with the Marxian idea of socialism. Evidently he has changed his views on this matter, and to-day we find that the Minister of Agriculture and the leader of the Progressive party have arrived at the same conclusion with regard to the benefits to be derived from the continuance of this board.

We were also told by the Prime Minister this afternoon that a bill was now being prepared based on this report of the Agriculture Committee—this report which was arrived at in the manner I have indicated by a small representation of the committee after they had discussed the matter, according to the Minister of Agriculture himself, among themselves previously and arrived at an understanding as to what they would do. I would ask hon. gentlemen to explain to this House how it was they considered it advisable to change the report of the Agriculture Committee which had been adopted when there was a large representation present, and why the report of twenty-nine members of the committee who undertook to bring in this report upon which the bill is to be prepared, should be considered rather than the report of the seventy-eight who were present on May 23.

There are a number of other features in the report to which I should like to refer, but I shall not take up the time of the House. During the last election this question was a real live issue even outside the three western provinces. The leader of the Progressive party intimated that this question did not affect any other provinces, that the western provinces were the ones mostly concerned, but I have here a Canadian Press report of a meeting held at Walkerton, Ontario, on October 21, 1921:

> Government speakers, Mr. Crerar accused, were engaging in a "campaign of misrepresentation," and, in passing, Mr. Crerar took occasion to put a few questions in regard to the voluntary wheat pool formation of which, if it were returned to power, was indicated by Mr. Meighen in his opening speech at Portage la Prairie. If a wheat pool, Mr. Crerar queried, why should the government not furnish farm implements or market Ontario cheese? Why should the government not go into the business of marketing cattle? There should, Mr. Crerar urged, be a definite pronouncement whether or not the business of marketing was to be a permanent feature of government policy.

So, Mr. Speaker, you will see that this question has invaded even the province of Ontario, and the leader of the Progressive party is the one who was responsible for that. I might say a good deal more about things which the hon. member for Marquette dealt with during the election in the province of Ontario, but I am not going to do so.

Now, unified control has not been resumed in the Old Land and wheat must follow the usual course in the matter of finding a market. It is argued that the appointment of a wheat board would regulate the flow of wheat in Canada and stabilize prices in this country. Before the Agriculture Committee Mr. Wood was asked why not have the Wheat Board made permanent, and what do you suppose was his answer? I quote from the evidence:

> Mr. McKay: If the Wheat Board is all that you claim it to be, why do you not ask for its re-establishment on a permanent basis?
>
> Mr. Wood: Well, there are several reasons. There is a great deal of objection everywhere to that method of trading. I am not convinced that it would be a good thing to re-establish it on a permanent basis if there were no objections. Furthermore, a bad wheat board would be a bad institution. That is the reason we lay emphasis on the re-establishment of the old Wheat Board including largely the personnel of that board. That was an efficient body, and an efficient wheat board is a very satisfactory institution; but I do not think that anything could be worse than a wheat board that was inefficient and mixed up with politics.

This was the opinion of the president of the Dominion Council of Agriculture with regard to the Wheat Board: There was a possibility, a great possibility of a wheat board getting the country into no end of a tangle, and consequently he is opposed to it being made permanent; but he had faith in the men who were on the old board and if they could be secured he thought we ought to try the system for another year.

Now, as to the compulsory feature of this agency, I do not like the word "compulsion" in any case. I believe that if we desired to promote business in this country we would have a much better result if we depended more on competition than on compulsion. I do not believe in the idea that some people have in this age, that it is the duty of the state to nurse people along, take care of them, think for them and do things for them that they should do for themselves. I do not believe that it is a sound doctrine to preach or to practice, and furthermore I do not think such to be in the interest of this country. If anything of value can be done to assist the grain growers in the West in regard to the marketing of their wheat I contend that it can only be done on a voluntary basis; and if you resort to compulsion I do not know where you are going to draw the line or where you are going to end up. Yet we are told in this debate that the compulsory features are the only advantages in the methods which can now be employed. I say, Mr. Speaker, that the fact that compulsion is necessary is the most objectionable feature of the proposals now before the House, and consequently in order to bring the matter to an issue in a concrete form—because I do not consider that the report which has been presented voices the opinion of the majority of the committee—I desire to move, seconded by Mr. Arthurs:

The said report be referred back to the select standing committee on Agriculture and Colonization with instructions to amend same to read as follows:

It is desirable in the national interests that the Government immediately create a national wheat marketing agency similar to the Canada Wheat Board of 1919, but on a voluntary basis fully in accordance with the powers of Parliament, for the marketing of the wheat crop of 1922, and that to this end federal legislation be introduced immediately, such legislation to provide further that the said board may, with the approval of the Governor in Council exercise such further powers or duties as may be competently conferred upon it by the legislature of any province.

Mr. R. M. JOHNSON (Moosejaw): I had not intended until just within the last half hour to speak on this subject to-night. It is, however, true that I have been intensely interested in it. I have worked as I could in the Agriculture Committee for the adoption of this action—to bring before the House the report which it is at present considering. The report was laid before the House some weeks ago and, speaking personally, I was quite content after the Prime Minister (Mr. Mackenzie King) had made his speech this afternoon and had told us that the policy of the Government was to let the matter rest there until the bill to be founded on the report had been submitted to us. I want to bear this tribute to the Prime Minister at least —that while we do not always see eye to eye with him or his Government, I think that in this measure, at least, he has redeemed his promises to the letter. The right hon. gentleman promised during the election campaign to submit this question to a committee for investigation and, when that committee had agreed upon its report, to lay it before Parliament. In the exchange of political courtesies across the floor of the House I fear I can take little or no part. I will own myself vanquished before I start out, I am a novice at that kind of thing; and if hon. gentlemen derive any enlightenment from that sort of discussion, or if they think it advances their ideas to any extent whatever, they are entirely welcome to the belief.

Before proceeding further with what I intend to say I must refer to a few of the remarks that have been made during this debate. The last speaker (Mr. Sutherland), if I correctly understood him, wanted an explanation as to action taken at the last meeting of the Agriculture Committee. I may say that I interested myself in every meeting that was held, I was present at every one of the sittings from beginning to end, and I had no intimation with respect to that particular meeting other than the ordinary notification given in the case of all meetings. I believe that the meeting in question was called in the regular order, and if anything of an irregular character was done, or anything in a corner, I have no knowledge whatever of it. I knew, of course, of the suggested alterations in the report which has been brought before the House and which went back to the committee. The suggestion has been made that the report was not acceptable to certain elements of the community. The only change in the wording of the resolution—though others may have been suggested—was by adding these words at the end of the second paragraph.

9 p.m.

Except as they include the direct marketing of flour and other mill products.

There seems to be some difference of opinion as to how or why that was inserted. I think the discussion took place, as all hon. members discuss these things, perhaps not in a formal committee. If that is an offence, I am guilty. I have discussed the merits of this case, in different places around the House of Commons and on the streets, with private members from all groups in this House, and I did not hold myself guilty for that, because I was looking for light. Let me say candidly that I did not wish to see this amendment made. I wish to put myself on record to this effect, that the resolution as first introduced and passed at the first meeting more nearly met my views than anything else that could have been done.

Mr. STEVENS: Does my hon. friend recall refusing in the sub-committee to accept any amendment to his own resolution which is incorporated in the first report to the House?

Mr. JOHNSON (Moosejaw): If I am correct, I think the hon. member refers to the sub-committee appointed to draft the report. Certainly I objected to that.

Mr. STEVENS: My hon. friend does not catch my question. Does he recall refusing in the sub-committee to accept any amendment to his resolution which is incorporated in the first report?

Mr. JOHNSON (Moosejaw): Absolutely. But when it went back to the committee, it was out of my hands and out of the hands of the sub-committee. I would have preferred it if the amendment had not been made; but I am going to tell the House why it was made. As to whether the procedure was in order or not in order, I am not an authority. The hon. member for Centre Vancouver (Mr. Stevens) will remember that, in the meeting of which he speaks, I took the same side as himself; I did not believe the procedure was in order; but I was no authority and I referred it to officers whom I do not like to name, but whom I regard as higher authorities than either the hon. member for Centre Vancouver or myself. That, however, has nothing to do with the matter. The fact is that the report was returned to the committee, and so far as I know the motion was rescinded in regular parliamentary order, and the amendment made.

Why was the amendment made? Accusation has been made in this debate that it was made at the instigation of the Minister of Agriculture (Mr. Motherwell) or myself, or the hon. member for Marquette (Mr. Crerar) or others, I know not whom. so far as I know, the alteration was made at the request of certain friends of the milling interests. They objected—and this was the ground of their argument—that it interfered with selling connections which they had already made in European and other foreign countries, or other places where they were marketing their products. That was the gist of their objection. I do not see yet how it should injure the farmers to allow the millers to retain those connections if they wish to retain them, provided that we have control of the wheat, and there is no question in the resolution that that should be yielded. It is a singular thing, however, that this was yielded at the request and so far as I know, only at the request of the friends of the milling interests. When they made this request I said: You are conducting an honest and legitimate business in the country and I am perfectly willing that you or any one else shall be guarded as much as is possible. But a singular thing has happened; since this change has been made, representatives of the milling interests have come to me and said that they wished it had been left alone. I am not an authority on milling, and if those gentlemen who represent the milling interests cannot make up their minds just what it is they want, we are absolutely certain what we want embodied in the resolution and we have so passed it.

The hon. member for South Oxford (Mr. Sutherland) said something about compulsion. He did not like a thing of this sort being compulsory. There may be some merit in that contention; but I would refer him to the remarks made a few minutes ago by the Minister of Agriculture. It is compulsory, of course; but, although the term may seem anomalous, it is voluntary compulsion. The duty of this Parliament, as I see it, and the thing which we wish, is to pass an act giving to the Wheat Board all powers, compulsory or otherwise, which it is within the jurisdiction of this Parliament to grant; then if the people want that, they shall say to the local legislature whether this shall be compulsory or not. If they do not want it, it will go by the board, and nothing more will be heard of it.

I wish to refer to some remarks made by the right hon. leader of the Opposition (Mr. Meighen). I am not a lawyer; I believe he is, and as no doubt he is an able, clever lawyer, I shall not enter into a controversy with him. He raised certain questions and legal criticisms, and argued that the thing could not legally be enacted: that, if enacted, it could not function, and various other things. I will not contend with him in regard to these points; but knowing my lack of knowledge of this sort of thing, I had conferred with others. On two or three different occasions we have had the opinion of the law officers of the Crown on this subject, and I need not enumerate the occasions nor yet read the reports. I will, however, read an extract from the last report submitted after various consultations with the Deputy Minister of Justice and his written opinion on certain features of the matter, supported by conclusions of the Minister of Justice (Sir Lomer Gouin) and the Solicitor General (Mr. McKenzie) in some respects. This is the conclusion arrived at, and so far as I know, it stands as the opinion of those gentlemen to-day.

Mr. MEIGHEN: The hon. gentleman has misunderstood my argument. I do not see legal objections at all. There is no doubt, within the two jurisdictions, the provincial legislature and the federal Parliament, everything can be done that the people of Canada or of those provinces wish. The difficulties I see are not legal at all; they are difficulties in practical operation where certain compulsory powers are conferred in one province that do not exist in the province immediately beside it.

Mr. JOHNSON (Moosejaw): I am glad to have the correction. I did not so understand my right hon. friend; nevertheless, I should like, now that I am on the subject, to give to the House the decision arrived at by the sub-committee, based on the report from the law officers of the Crown. It is very brief:

> In conclusion, the deputy minister expressed the view that by legislation passed partly by the Dominion and partly by the provinces, it was legally possible to control:
> (a) The acquisition of all wheat raised in any provinces passing such legislation;
> (b) The storing of the wheat so acquired in country elevators;
> (c) The storing of such wheat in terminal elevators even though those elevators be situated in provinces other than those passing laws for the compulsory acquisition of wheat.
> (d) All export and import trade in wheat and wheat products.

There is only one other question that was asked of the law officers of the Crown, and it is in reference to terminal facilities. While I have the report open at the page, I will also read that short extract for the benefit of the House, because terminal facilities are essential to the carrying on of this business. This is an extract from the report of the sub-committee:

> That in conference concerning this question we intimated that the "use" referred to in the first line of this question—

That is in reference to the elevators.

> —was to be interpreted as exclusive use. The view verbally expressed to us by the deputy minister was that the use of elevators owned by the Dominion could be exercised in any manner by the Dominion government; that as to privately owned elevators such could be declared works for the general advantage of Canada, and when so declared would fall under federal jurisdiction.

I had other references to support my contention. Seeing that the leader of the Opposition has concurred in that as well, it is no longer a matter of contention, and I will not repeat them. We can see that there is, within the various parliaments, provincial and federal, the power to enact this legislation and, in my opinion, all the things we asked for as regards the Wheat Board can be granted to us in that way.

I will now proceed to deal with a few thoughts and notes which I had prepared on this subject, things which I have considered in connection with it. It may seem a political matter, but I want to refer first to the attitude of the three parties within this House on the question now under consideration. I believe that all three have consistently lived up to their platform in this respect. I have no criticism to offer and no political slams to make at any one. The Progressives have stood from the beginning for a compulsory wheat board, in other words, for the re-establishment of the board as it was in 1919. I regret that the leader of the Opposition (Mr. Meighen) has not taken a better stand than he has. I did not expect that at this stage he would have been so emphatically in favour of a voluntary system. While I believe he was perfectly sincere in advocating it, I cannot conceive how an hon. gentleman of his intelligence, and men like those around him, can longer hold the view they express in spite of the decision rendered in the recent election. I know of no propaganda—I will not say that it was purely for political purposes, because I believe he was sincere in it—that ever fell so flat and struck so unresponsive a chord as did that proposition in western Canada. And there was a reason for it. Men who had made a lifelong study of this thing, having worked on it for years and made it their sole business, from the middle of July, 1920, for eighteen months, concentrated their efforts towards a solution of the problem, and they came to the conclusion that the system advocated by my right hon. friend was not practical. As I proceed I shall deal to some extent with the voluntary pool system and state why, in my opinion, it is not practical. The matter was dealt with by the leader of this party (Mr. Crerar) this afternoon. The Liberal party's policy on the question I described at the outset, and they too have been consistent. I do not think that they have gone as far as they should. They have a responsibility as a government to solve this problem and to solve it right, in view of the circumstances in which we are placed.

Before I go further I shall anticipate some of the objections that may be offered, one of which was mentioned this evening.

Some hon. member, I do not know just who, said that while this board was being asked for as a temporary measure, possibly, with mental reservations, it might be made permanent. Well, if by permanency hon. gentlemen mean a permanent, satisfactory solution of the wheat marketing problem, I hope it will be permanent. But I have yet to hear any one advocating that this measure with regard to the compulsory wheat board should be made permanent. I do not believe that any one seriously thinks so. In case some hon. gentlemen may think that this is a new opinion on my part, I may say that at the very first meeting in the recent campaign, when I addressed my own nominating convention, I was asked the question whether I would favour a compulsory wheat board, and I replied, for this year only until readjustment is achieved, but not as a permanent policy, because I believed in the co-operative system of a wheat marketing agency operated and controlled by the producers of wheat. I still stand by that opinion, and I think that the ultimate solution will have to be found there. From the very nature of the product, which is so widespread and of such magnitude, it is impossible for us at the present time, facing the critical situation in which we are placed, to solve the problem without assistance, and we have come to the federal Parliament to ask their aid. And it is my hope and belief that out of this measure, if it is made effective this year, will be organized that voluntary co-operative system which we hold as our ideal.

It has been stated, not in this debate, but frequently in the debate that was concluded last night, and the matter has been made the subject of some gibes at our expense, that we are asking for protection. Well, we are asking for protection, but it is the sort of protection I believe in. I believe in police protection. But the protection, as I understand it, which hon. gentlemen to my right have been advocating during the last few weeks is a form of protection that I cannot tolerate. It is a restriction, misnamed protection, that is imposed on others; some one else has to pay for the protection that is afforded. But I have yet to hear any one claim or prove that anybody will pay for this protection. Nor do I ask for our own industry protection. I believe also in protecting the public from the depredations of the Canadian Manufacturers' Association and of the Canadian manufacturers. I believe in protecting the wheat producers from exploitation at the hands of the grain merchants. But if it were proposed that some one else should be made to suffer in consequence I would not advocate such protection. Nor do I ask for our own industry. any form of protection that I am not willing to grant to others.

It has also been stated, and this can be proved, that we are creating a monopoly. Well, I ask you, Mr. Speaker, and hon. gentlemen in this Chamber, to consider this fact. The figures furnished me by the Bureau of Statistics shows that the Canadian production of wheat is about 300,000,000 bushels per anum. Now, can anyone conceive, even by the wildest stretch of imagination, how the Canadian wheat producers, with 300,000,000 bushels of wheat, can have a monopoly in the world market where the annual production is over 3,000,000,000 bushels? Our product is sold in the markets of the world in open competition with wheat from all parts of the globe.

This House, I think, is weary of the hard luck tale from the western prairies; it is perhaps tired of the story of poverty and hardship. Having pioneered in the western country twenty-five or thirty years ago, I should not care, with the personal recollection of those hardships, to rehearse the story now. I want to deal briefly with the matter, however, from another angle; I want to take it up from the business point of view, and I hope it will appeal to hon. gentlemen. It is granted, readily, I think, that all, or at least most businesses were unprofitable during the past year; and certainly that is true in regard to the agricultural industry of the West, particularly in the growing of wheat, which has not been done at a profit. But that condition is not confined to last year, and I will submit a few brief statements to show you the cost of producing wheat. Let me quote from the evidence of the Hon. C. M. Hamilton, Minister of Agriculture in the province of Saskatchewan. He is a man who is in a position to know, and he found that on the average farm in that province the total expenditures were $4,107.10 while the revenue amounted to $2,221.40, leaving an annual deficit of $1,885.70. Do hon. gentlemen think that it is in the national interest that such a condition should longer prevail? I want to quote from another authority, Superintendent McKillican of the Brandon Experimental Farm. His annual report shows that the cost of producing wheat on a selected patch of land on the experimental farm is $1.30 per bushel, making no allowance whatever for freight to take it to the markets of the world. If you add freight you will find that the cost is something like $1.45 a bushel, while we know that the average price of wheat during the past year has been much below that figure.

Mr. SUTHERLAND: Mr. Hamilton's evidence was with regard to the average farm of 320 acres. I notice that the returns he gives are confined entirely to wheat and oats. Surely those figures do not represent the total returns from the whole farm.

Mr. JOHNSON (Moosejaw): Mr. Hamilton was speaking of a grain farm, and if my hon. friend knows Saskatchewan as I know it, he will agree that in the vast majority of cases the growing of grain is the only occupation that can be carried on satisfactorily. There are sections where mixed farming can be carried on, but even that is done at an equally great loss.

I want to make one other reference, and it should appeal to business men. Recently in conversation with an hon. member from the Maritime provinces he gave me a secondhand scolding because certain municipalities in western Canada had defaulted on their bonds, and he stated the East had supplied the money for those bonds. That condition is only a reflection of the difficulties and handicaps under which our greatest commodity is produced. Let me give another conversation—this time with a banker in Moosejaw about a year ago. He told me that his headquarters had been protesting against his having valued farms in that district too high for credit purposes. I think he had, for although they were selling there at from $100 to $125 an acre, he had valued them at $100 an acre. I was able to show him a farm which had actually paid a 5 per cent dividend on a $100 per acre valuation, and he felt elated. But last spring in a conversation with him he told me that he had been instructed to cut the valuation of farm lands absolutely in two, and that a $100 an acre farm for credit purposes is now worth only $50 an acre.

Various factors might help the situation, and the wheat board is one. I do not wish to introduce anything irrelevant to this discussion, but I might refer to two subjects which we have heard something about and which will come before us again. Dealing first with freight rates, I find that the average farmer in the province of Saskatchewan had to pay $206.61 more for freight on grain alone in 1922 than in 1917, or if you take the peak, $270.39. The other item is tariff regulations. When the tariff commission was wandering through western Canada a year or two ago I made a very careful statement covering eight years close bookkeeping on a farm, and I found that that farm was paying $300 per year more than it should pay on account of the customs tariff.

Now I come more particularly to the wheat board. There are several classes of the community who it is said, would be vitally affected if this wheat board is brought into operation. The first class is the consumers, and in this connection I am going to quote from the evidence given before the Agriculture Committee. Dr. Magill, Secretary of the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, in answer to the question, "Was the consumer sacrificed?" said:

> Well, there is no consumer in the world that I know of who was better treated—none, in my judgment, better treated, so far as most of our consumers are concerned. There was one class of them not protected, but that was not the fault of the Wheat Board.

And he goes on to say that there were certain people living in cities who bought their bread ready made. I will also quote from the evidence of Mr. Stewart, chairman of the old wheat board, who of all others should know the effect that the wheat board of 1919 had on the consuming public. The hon. member for Victoria and Carleton (Mr. Caldwell) asked:

> Q. The statement has been made that due to the action of the Wheat Board the price of flour was enhanced to the Canadian consumer, and that if the Wheat Board were reconstituted now it would mean an advance in the price of flour to the consumer in Canada?—A. As a matter of fact, the Canadian Wheat Board have never stated it before, but the price at which the Canadian consumer got his flour was relatively less than that received for the wheat which was exported as raw material; so that the Canadian consumer paid less than the world's price.

Another class that might be affected by the creation of this wheat board is the millers. I have already dealt with them. It has been amply proved in the evidence before the Agricultural Committee that the big millers are well able to take care of themselves, as is apparent in the facts and figures of the dividends they have paid.

As to the dealers, we have been told that it would practically put them out of business. Let us hear what the Secretary of the Grain Exchange, Dr. Magill, has to say on that point:

We appreciate very deeply the fact that the representations of the farmers before this committee took a very high level. The farmers argued their case on what they believed to be genuine economic grounds and we desire to do the same. The next remark I wish to make is this: judging from some reports one would imagine that the Winnipeg grain trade and the Wheat Board, the old Wheat Board, stood in the relation of mortal enemies. Now, what were the facts? When the Wheat Board got together under the Defence of the Realm Act what did they do? They negatiated with the Winnipeg grain trade, and the negotiation resulted in the employment by the Canada Wheat Board of nearly the whole of the trade. The Wheat Board when it met had no elevators, and the Government had no elevators to give it. They had no elevator managers or staff. The Wheat Board called in and employed the companies that manager what the farmer members themselves have described before this committee as the splendid, the almost unsurpassed machinery for the handling of grain that we possess in Canada. The Wheat Board called in the grain trade. The Wheat Board used the elevators. The Wheat Board used the managers. The Wheat Board used the staffs and the elevators from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The Wheat Board employed the lake shippers for the loading of boats. They employed the clearing houses. They employed the brokers. They employed the commission men, and they employed the freight shippers and the exporters to take the grain at Fort William and place it at the seaboard for them. The Wheat Board employed, I suppose, 75 per cent or perhaps 80 per cent of the existing grain trade at Winnipeg. Not only did they employ them; they paid them. They paid them a fair and reasonable return for their services, and if we at the present time object to the recreation of the Wheat Board, it is not because of any specific deal; it is not because they did not treat us fairly and reasonably; it is not because we have any belief that they failed in their services—they rendered splendid service,—I am speaking of the Wheat Board—not merely to the producers of this Dominion, but to the whole of this Dominion. It is not for such reasons as that that we appear here to-day to make a case on the other side.

I have never been able to discover what case they did make out, but on the authority of the secretary of the Grain Exchange they were willing to offer their services, and they were employed. It has been said that the operation of a wheat board would have some effect on the transportation companies. Before the Agriculture Committee I made this statement, and I make it again. It was given to me by an official of one of our railways. He said that if they were permitted to handle the wheat crop of western Canada, spreading it out over nine months, instead of rushing it on in the early part of the season, it would save to that company alone 22,000 cars. Surely that is a consideration worth while.

For that reason, Mr. Speaker, I believe that no section of the community would be injuriously affected by the reinstatement of the Canadian Wheat Board, but that on the contrary many of those who produce wheat would be saved from absolute destruction. Some one said to-night that if we are so unanimous in favour of a voluntary pool, why, we could have the whole thing anyway. Well, this may sound somewhat harsh, but I know there are hundreds and thousands of farmers in western Canada whose creditors would not allow them to take advantage of a voluntary pool. The statement which I am going to make may sound like a hard one, but it has been given to me in good faith and I believe it to be true. There are farmers in western Canada to-day to whom a big crop this year would be a positive disaster. That may seem unbelievable, but here is the reason: there are farmers in that country who are so much in debt owing to lack of crops and depreciated values during the past few years that one good crop would not relieve them. If they have a good crop their creditors would come after them, and even if 90 per cent of their creditors would wish to be lenient and the rest did not, the others would be forced in self-defence to come in and make their claim, and that farmer would be sold out.

I will not deal further with the voluntary pool. The hon. member for Marquette (Mr. Crerar) dealt with it this afternoon. If we want a voluntary pool, any few of us can get together for that purpose, if we can afford to do so; we do not require legislation for that. But it would not relieve the situation; far from doing so, it would be a positive menace to the farmers of western Canada.

Reference has been made, I believe by the hon. Minister of Agriculture (Mr. Motherwell), to the question of financial responsibility. In my opinion there is only one logical place to put the financial responsibility, the financial risk, in this connection, and that is right on the people who produce the wheat. I do not know of a single farmer who wants to shirk in any degree his share of responsibility for any loss which may be incurred. But is a loss possible? As a result of the operations in 1919—and that is a pretty good criterion—so far from having a loss the board actually turned back to the government $560,000 and had over $200,000 in their hands besides in the way of participation certificates. It might be all right to put the financial responsibility on the provinces, to let them take care of any deficits that might occur and, of course, share also in any surpluses. We have no objection to that, provided the control of the board is safeguarded—that there is to be no divided control. The experience of 1919 taught us one thing more than anything else, namely, that it is essential that there be unified or, practically, one-man control of this institution if it is to be successful. We were satisfied with the 1919 board, Mr. Speaker, and we ask the Government to come as near to it as they possibly can. Then, if the provinces see fit to come in and take advantage of it, that is all we can ask.

Mr. A. R. McMASTER (Brome): Mr. Speaker, I do not wish unduly to delay the House at this late hour in the discussion of this report. But I have spent a great deal of time on this question and have given it a good deal of study, and after listening to the evidence I have come to the conclusion, which has beeen fortified and deepened by the study I have since made of the subject, that the proposed wheat board, whether it gets its power entirely from this jurisdiction or partly from this and partly from another jurisdiction, is an unwise proposal, and I am going to ask the indulgence of hon. members while I place before them the reasons why I will vote against the adoption of this report. I will not vote in favour of the amendment proposed by the hon. member for South Oxford (Mr. Sutherland), because he wishes to put the whole grain trade of this country in the hands of a couple of men, in the hands of a board, and I am opposed to that as well. Let me as briefly and as succinctly as I can give to hon. members the reasons which have led me to this conclusion.

Now what is the proposal? It is that the old Canada Wheat Board of 1919 be reconstituted; that part of its powers be drawn from this House and part from the legislatures of any of the provinces—which cannot be other than the prairie provinces —that desire to invest it with such authority. Now, what were these powers? Let us examine them for a moment. They had the right—I will not say, to purchase the wheat, but to expropriate it without the consent of the owner. They had the power to order any person holding wheat stored in any elevator or warehouse or railway cars or Canadian boats to sell and dispose of the same to any purchaser named by the board on such terms as the board might direct; and it was provided that any such order of the board should pass to the purchaser the title in the wheat mentioned in any such order. They had the right to require that any wheat sold or purchased in Canada should be delivered to the board or to its order in accordance with such regulations as the board might from time to time make. I know of no other occasion on which such power has been conferred on any one person or group of persons since Pharoah gave Joseph the right to gather up all the corn in Egypt and make the greatest corner in history. But not only is that the fact; they were to have the right to prohibit the export out of or importation into Canada of any wheat or wheat products otherwise than in accordance with the regulations and orders of the board.

Mr. MACLEAN (York): May I ask the hon. gentleman a question? Did not Joseph save Egypt under those circumstances?

Mr. McMASTER: Yes, Joseph saved Egypt, but at the cost of bringing all the people into bondage. If my hon. friend wants that, perhaps he will vote for the reconstitution of the Wheat Board. Now, the power to prohibit importation into or export from a country is a power which this board will have to derive from this House; it can come only from this jurisdiction. By an Order in Council of the 31st of July the board had the right, notwithstanding anything in the Railway Act, notwithstanding anything in the Grain Act, to compel railway companies to provide cars for transportation; and finally, so that nothing should be wanting in the powers which were given, they had the right to legislate criminally and to create offences dealing with any infraction of the regulations of the board. The fact that any persons in this country should at this time seriously propose the reconstitution of a wheat board of this sort is a sad reflection on the value placed on liberty for its own sake, and also a very high compliment to the wisdom and the moderation of the gentlemen who in the past had such great powers vested in them. They must have used those powers with care, wisdom and moderation.

Now, I might anticipate an objection which will be raised. Gentlemen who advocate this wheat board will say: "You are borrowing trouble; we are not asking from this House the right to expropriate; we will get that from one of the prairie provinces." Well, to my mind the man who boldly does a thing that is wrong is to be preferred to the man, who, knowing a thing is wrong, steps aside to let another man do it. As a matter of fact, under our criminal law an accessory before the fact is held to be just as guilty as the man who himself commits the crime. It reminds me of the tales we have heard of the past when white civilized races were fighting each other on this continent in the eighteenth century: one would charge against the other that they had abandoned prisoners to their Indian allies to deal with them as they wished. I do not propose, if by my feeble voice I can prevent it that principles I have cherished for years shall be bound to the stake and burnt up by a wheat board.

Now let me say as succinctly as I can, and I trust with perfect accuracy, and I will invite members opposite to correct me if I am not perfectly accurate, what I understand to be the case for the wheat board. As I understand it, the advocates for the wheat board say this: They say that they harvest their crops in the latter part of August and perhaps all through September; that they are obliged through the economic pressure of their creditors to bring that crop to market in the months of September, October, November and December, when they really should be doing their fall ploughing, and when the cost of threshing is high; that by this fact they are obliged to throw such an amount of wheat upon the market that it is glutted and the price pushed down; and that after they have disposed of their wheat the price rises. That, I understand, is the statement of the case made by the advocates of the Wheat Board.

Now my contention is, and I propose to submit to the House, and to you, Mr. Speaker, figures to prove it, that such is not the case; that if you take one special year you may find that the price is lower in the autumn months than in the months of March, April and May succeeding, but that if you take any considerable number of years and compare the prices realized in the fall months of the crop year with the prices paid in the spring months of the crop year, you will find precisely the reverse. I state that the figures will show that taking one year with another it is good business for the farmer to sell his wheat in the fall months. I know I have to prove this to many members of the House who entertain a different notion, and whose business should enable them to have much more accurate information than I have, but I have endeavoured to examine the figures with care and to collate them in such a way that I believe I can show to those who will give ear to me that I am right.

There is no use, Mr. Speaker, taking the few past years as the years on which to base your argument, because the few last years have either been war years or years immediately succeeding the war, when the ordinary markets of the world were disturbed. The proposal that I make, Mr. Speaker, is that in fairness to our argument we take the six crop years which ended on the 31st of August, 1914—the crop years 1908-1909, 1909-1910, 1910-1911, 1911-1912, 1912-1913 and 1913-1914. I shall have to cite a good many figures, but I hope the House will bear with me. I have made two comparisons. First I have compared the highest figure in the month of September with the highest figure in the month of March.

Mr. SPEAKMAN: Does the hon. gentleman think it is quite fair to make that comparison? Because the basis of our desire to have a wheat board is the fact that we have not yet reached normal marketing conditions and that we are still suffering from the after effects of the war? Therefore, it should be the later years, and not the years before the war, that should be taken into account.

Mr. McMASTER: When the board was formed in 1919, there was collective buying in Europe, and therefore good grounds for urging collective selling in Canada. When the suggestion was made, I think, in the session of 1920, that we should have a reconstitution of the Wheat Board it was held then that as there was decontrol to a large extent in Europe there should be de-control in Canada, and my belief is that we are getting back to normal. It is true that getting back to normal has been largely at the expense of the primary producer, but as there is no control in Europe now, practically speaking, as there is no collective buying in Europe, I cannot see any reason for collective selling on this side of the Atlantic, and that being the case I think it is fair to take the normal years prior to the war rather than the abnormal years during or since the war. That is my contention. What do the six normal years prove? I do not know whether I need to go over these figures. I shall be glad to do so if hon. members will not be wearied with them, but let me perhaps first take the results of my investigation, and then if anyone doubts the correctness of those results I shall be glad to give the figures themselves.

I have taken the highest figure in September of 1908 and compared it with the highest figure in March, 1909, compared the highest figure in October, 1908, with the highest figure in April, 1909, and the highest figure in November, 1908, with the highest figure in May, 1909, and I do find in connection with that crop year that it would have paid farmers, though not to any great extent, to have held on to their wheat until the spring.

Mr. FORKE: If it is the year 1908 my hon. friend is taking, the price goes up from $1 to $1.35 in June.

Mr. McMASTER: I say that that is the one striking year of these six years when it would have paid the wheat grower to have hung on.

Mr. SPENCER: Has the hon. member the quantity of grain sold in September? September is not the heavy selling month. Has he also the average selling price?

Mr. McMASTER: I think I can deal with that afterwards. I propose, first of all, to give these figures, and then treat them in relation to the visible supply, which I think will answer to a certain extent, at least, the desires of my hon. friend who has just put the question. With his permission, let me proceed along the line I have indicated.

I have also taken for this crop year the average price for the month. I think perhaps it makes a better comparison to take the average price during the month of September and compare it with the average price for March, and compare October with April, and November with May. In order to make the comparison equal, I have added 9 cents a bushel for the six months, representing 1½ cents a bushel per month, so that the price in September of $1 would be just as good to the grain grower as the price of $1.09 in March. I think that is fair. On that basis of comparison during 1908-1909, if the grain grower had held on to his grain until March instead of selling it in September, he would have made 2.7 cents a bushel; if he had held on until April instead of selling in October, he would have made 12.5 cents a bushel, and if he had held on until May instead of selling in December, he would have made 14 cents a bushel. If you took that year by itself, I would say that the protagonists of the Wheat Board had gone a long way to prove their case, but that would be merely another case of the fallacy of arguing from the particular to the general.

If we take the other five years we will find a very different result. I would imagine from the expression on the faces of hon. gentlemen opposite that they believe that the average price gives a truer comparison than the highest point in the months for which I am making my comparison. Therefore to facilitate my argument and save time I will deal with the average prices merely, though I have worked the matter out by comparing highest prices with highest prices as well as average prices. Now, if we take the year 1909-10 we will find that if the grain-grower sold in September rather than holding on till March he would have made 2.2 cents more per bushel; that if he had sold in October rather than holding on till April he would have made 4.3 cents per bushel; that if he had sold in November rather than holding on till May he would have made 11.9 cents per bushel. That year is a strong piece of evidence that it does not pay the farmer—it certainly did not pay the farmer in that year—to hold his wheat, but rather to sell in the autumn months. Let me take the next year, 1910-11. If the grain-grower had sold in September rather than holding on till March in that year he would have made 20.9 cents per bushel; if he had sold in October instead of holding on till April he would have made 14.5 cents per bushel; and if he had sold in November rather than holding on till May he would have made 6 cents per bushel. That certainly is even a stronger year for my contention that the autumn months are the months in which it is wise for the agriculturist to sell his wheat. Now let us take 1911-12. We find that the grain-grower who sold in September rather than holding on till March made 11 cents per bushel; that he who sold in October rather than holding on till April made 6.4 cents per bushel, and that he who sold in November rather than holding on till May made 3.5 cents per bushel; another year in which it was more advisable for the farmers to sell in the autumn months. Then if we take 1912-13 we find that the grain-grower who sold in September rather than holding on till March made 19 cents per bushel; that he who sold in October rather than holding on till April made 8.7 cents; that he who sold in November rather than holding on till May lost 1.2 cents per bushel. Then if we take the next year, 1913-14, we find that the grain-grower who sold in September rather than holding till March made 5 cents per bushel; that he who sold in October rather than holding till April lost .6 cents per bushel; and that he who sold in November rather than holding till May lost 1.5 cents per bushel. I say, Mr. Speaker, that if these figures are correct there is no reasonable deduction to be drawn from them other than the fact that the three autumn months which I have compared are better marketing months than the three spring months I have mentioned.

I now come to deal with the point raised by my hon. friend who asked me the question as to quantity. In the committee, Mr. Speaker, I produced certain figures showing the average yearly price in Winnipeg, and the average yearly price in London for these six years on which I base my argument. I found, on these figures prepared for me by the Bureau of Statistics, that, taking one year with another, the carrying charges and profits made on the wheat, established on the difference between Winnipeg and London prices, amounted to 8½ cents per bushel over the six years. One of the hon. members challenged the soundness of my conclusion. His statement was that these average prices mean very little because they are often obliged in a month to sell at the lower prices, and therefore the average price does not give a true reflection of the real situation. In an endeavour to see whether there was anything in this contention I obtained the figures for the visible supply from week to week during these six years. Now I think hon. members will agree with me in my argument, that if it is the placing of Canadian wheat in large quantities on the Canadian market which forces prices down, then when there is least Canadian wheat in sight the prices should go up. That would be a fair deduction to draw. If it is the Canadian wheat which establishes the price we would expect to find, therefore, that where the visible supply increased, prices tended to fall; that where the visible supply decreased, prices tended to rise. That is not shown to be true by an examination of the figures. There is no apparent direct and constant reflection in the price of wheat of the smallness or the largeness of the visible supply. I had prepared a statement taking 296 weeks—that would be the six years, 296 weeks, or at least if that is not quite the six years it would be the weeks in which reports of the visible supply are made. There were 296 occasions on which visible supply was compared with decrease or increase in price, and what did I find? Increase in visible supply was accompanied not by decrease in price, as we would expect, but by increase in price 67 times; that increase in supply was accompanied by what we would expect—namely decrease in price—only 61 times; and that increase in visible supply on 6 occasions made no difference in the price at all. Now let us look at what happened in relation to decrease in visible supply. Decrease in visible supply was accompanied by an increase in price—and that is what we would expect—92 times; by a decrease in price, which we would not expect, 66 times; and by no change in price at all 4 times, making in all 162 times. That covers the whole 296 comparisons of visible supply with increase or decrease in price; and my argument is that it does show that there is no constant or necessary relation between the increase or decrease of visible supply and the price.

The conclusion that I am driven to is that we must seek other factors in the situation to explain the variations of price in wheat in Canada, because the decrease or increase of visible supply will not explain the situation. Do the figures on other grain exchanges bear out the contention of hon. gentlemen opposite that there is a glut in the market in the fall months? I have discovered; in fact, it was placed before the Agriculture Committee that, taking the years 1895 to 1914, the supply of No. 1 Northern wheat in Minneapolis averaged in October for those nineteen years 85.3 cents per bushel while the average price in April was 88.3 cents per bushel. If we take the cost of carrying in Minneapolis at the same figure as in Winnipeg,—and I do not think that would be unfair—the grain grower who sold his wheat in October was six cents better off than the man who held his wheat until April; that is, as a general thing, taking into consideration the whole nineteen years. If we take the Chicago grain market, and if we take a period of fifty years,—and that should be a long enough period to give us reliable figures—if the arguments of the advocates of the Wheat Board are right, we should find that in the large majority of the years contained within those fifty years the lowest price would occur in the three autumn months, because that is when the grain comes upon the market. But what do we find? We find that the highest point on cash wheat was reached four times in September and five times in December; that is to say, nine times in fifty years this has happened. When was the lowest price found? We would expect to find the lowest price generally in those four months but it happened four times in September and five times in December, not the lowest price, but the highest price was reached. I thank hon. gentlemen for having paid such attention to those dry figures and I will now pass to another consideration of the matter.

10 p.m.

In the Agriculture Committee, I asked Mr. Riddell who appeared as a witness before that committee, this question. I said: "You were fortunate in your administration of the Wheat Board of 1919. You were able to realise handsome figures for the wheat which passed through your hands and the names of Stewart and Riddell are blessed throughout western Canada. What would have happened if the market had gone the other way?" And Mr. Riddell answered, with perfect frankness and western freshness, that they would have been damned just as much as they had been blessed. The western folk who wish to have the Wheat Board are very anxious that it should be a Stewart and Riddell Wheat Board. They want Mr. Riddell; they want Mr. Stewart, and they do not seem to have any great confidence in other people. That, of course, is a sign of weakness in itself, because any legislation which must depend on the personality of two persons who are open to the vicissitudes of humanity is dangerous legislation. They might both be carried off by an epidemic; they might both be sick or be obliged to leave the country for one reason or another. But the strange feature of the matter is that neither Mr. Riddell nor Mr. Stewart are really enthusiastic protagonists of the Wheat Board. Mr. Stewart hails from Scotland. Not only has he the ability of mind which appertains to the Scottish race, but he is also endowed with no small degree of that nation's caution and prudence. He was asked the question in plain language: Are you in favour of a Wheat Board? And, if you will turn to page 273 of the evidence, you will see his answer which reads:

> Q. Mr. Stewart of Humboldt read from the evidence of Dr. Magill in which he maintained that the consumer was well treated under the operations of the old Wheat Board under the conditions that existed at that time. Do you consider that the consumer would be well treated under present conditions if a compulsory Wheat Board were put into operation, and would it reflect to the general benefit of the Dominion of Canada?—A. If I expressed an opinion on that would it not really amount to contempt of court? This committee must determine that. I can only talk from practical experience, and tell you exactly what happened during the regime of the old Wheat Board.
>
> Q. I do not think it involves contempt of court. We call witnesses to obtain their opinion, and there are in this committee a great many men who are very anxious to do the best thing with regard to the question of a Wheat Board. I think we have the right to ask your opinion, because you were a member of the old Wheat Board?—A. Well, the Wheat Board as an economic proposition is a good one; but, on the other hand, the measure of public opinion which would be in favour of such a project would be a matter that would have to be taken into consideration by this committee.

Answers largely couched in the terms of the subjunctive mood. Then we have another question:

> It is quite evident that there is a very large body of public opinion strongly in favour of the Wheat Board, and a unanimous body of public opinion strongly in favour of whatever finding is going to be the most beneficial to this Dominion. I am in no way opposed to the wheat pool, compulsory or voluntary. I am looking for information from the witnesses as to which method would reflect the greatest benefit to this Dominion. If it reflects benefit on the wheat grower and is indirectly reflected beneficially on the rest of the Dominion, that is a good thing, and that is the point we would like decided.

Now, listen, Mr. Speaker, to the answer:

> I am afraid, Sir, that I have not a sufficiently decided opinion to advise you one way or the other.

This was the star witness brought by the protagonists of the Wheat Board before the Agricultural Committee. Let us now listen to what his partner, Mr. Riddell, said:

Mr. FORKE: Does the hon. member think that Mr. Stewart was very anxious to give the decisive opinion when he made that reply? Did he not act rather with Scotch caution that he would not be caught?

Mr. McMASTER: That is the remark I made, and no doubt the hon. member and myself can appreciate the caution; but after all, when people who are advocating a cause bring a cautious, respectable and even a Scotch witness before a committee or a court, and when that expert witness when brought to the trough, refuses to drink, surely we are entitled to draw a conclusion.

Mr. FORKE: I was there and I heard the witness give that evidence. I think one could not determine from his reply whether he was in favour of a wheat board or against it. He simply evaded the question.

Mr. McMASTER: I think that is perfectly true, and the point I want to drive home to the members of this House is that if the man who made a great success of the Wheat Board, and whose name was blessed from many housetops in western Canada, refuses to come out and say that it is a good thing to have a wheat board, I think it is unwise for the country to undertake an adventure of that sort.

Mr. BROWN: Might not that attitude be attributable to Mr. Stewart's modesty?

Mr. McMASTER: I have heard the statement that the devil's "darling sin" is "the pride that apes humility." It may be modesty; but I think he had a very good opinion, as most Scotch people have, of his own opinion, no matter how carefully they may conceal it with modesty. Let us now deal with Mr. Riddell. Mr Riddell is not Scotch, and therefore he is not affected with that degree of modesty which affects people of that race. You will forgive me, Sir, if I read a good deal; but this is, after all, I think, of value to the committee. I asked this question myself:

By Mr. McMaster:

Q. It would strike me that if a voluntary wheat board got contracts for, let us say, 95 per cent of the acreage of Saskatchewan in wheat, they would know that they were going to control pretty nearly the whole crop of Saskatchewan, would they not?—A. If you had a voluntary wheat board, with 95 per cent signed up, then I would say that you would be getting very close, so far as selling is concerned, to a complete compulsory system in so far as selling is concerned.

Q. May I ask you one or two questions just arising out of that? Do you or do you not consider it necessary in order to have the beneficial effect that you claim for the proposed measure, do you or do you not require to control flour?—A. In regard to the first portion of your question, Mr. McMaster, I do not know that I have made any claims about the beneficial effects of this system by comparison with what they are doing now.

I would draw the attention of the House to this statement again:

In regard to the first portion of your question, Mr. McMaster, I do not know that I have made any claims about the beneficial effect of this system by comparison with what they are doing now.

"What they are doing now" being to sell wheat by the organizations which now handle it.

Mr. FORKE: From what page are you quoting?

[Mr. Forke.]

Mr. McMASTER: Page 375.

Q. Well, I will ask you that question directly? Do you consider it would be wise to have this proposed compulsory Wheat Board?—A. Well, sir, I have strictly avoided answering that question. We have been discusing the Wheat Board in relation to voluntary pools. We would open up an entirely new field if we were going to discuss the Wheat Board in relation to existing conditions. I want to make that clear.

Q. Have you any objection to answering the question? It seems to me a very pertinent one.—A. I stated at the outset, sir, that representations so far as the organization with which I am concerned have already been made to this committee by Mr. Robinson, representing the Canadian Council of Agriculture. This morning you have heard resolutions passed three successive years by the shareholders of our company asking for the reinstatement of the Wheat Board. I occupy a position as a servant of those gentlemen who want that service.

Q. I was thinking that you were here as a citizen of Canada?—A. Yes, sir.

Q. To give us the advice that you could give us by reason of the special knowledge you had of this matter?—A. I am perfectly willing to do that. I have been trying to do that to the best of my ability all the morning.

Q. I am putting you up against this question; of course if you feel that it would be disloyal to the organization with which you are connected, to answer it, I am not going to insist.—A. Now, Mr. McMaster, that is the lawyer's way of putting it. The suggestion immediately in your remark is that I believe differently from them. I do not admit it.

Q. You neither admit it nor deny it?—A. No sir.

Mr. Sales: Mr. McMaster, that is not fair.

Mr. McMaster: I think it is very fair.

The Chairman: I think, Mr. Sales, you will have to let Mr. McMaster deal with Mr. Riddell.

Mr. McMaster: I do not want to interfere. If Mr. Riddell does not want to give his personal views on this matter that we have been discussing now for about six weeks, I do not know whether or not the chairman has the right to put him in a tower as a witness who won't answer questions. At one time a witness who refused to answer questions before a Parliamentary Committee was committed to the tower.

The Witness: I am not so sure but what I would rather be there than here just now.

Mr. McMaster: I will try, Mr. Chairman, in my questions to avoid any expression or to infer any expression from the witness as to the advisability or the inadvisability of the proposed Wheat Board.

By Mr. McMaster:

Q. But if a wheat board is reconstituted, would it to be effective require to have powers of controlling flour as well as wheat?—A. Yes, sir.

Now, I infer from these citations that neither Mr. Riddell, nor Mr. Stewart is really in favour of the wheat board. Both believe that such a board as is proposed, that is to say, one that will not have the right to control flour, is not effective; and I ask those hon. gentlemen in the House who wish to have a wheat board, is it wise to urge the country to adopt a measure that will establish a wheat board which those who know more about the matter than any one else say will be ineffective?

I feel, Mr. Speaker, not false but real modesty in talking to western grain growers about wheat. But I ask myself the question, why is it that the visible supply in Canada is not the sole determining factor in Canadian prices? The answer is found in the fact that Canada is not the only country in the world that grows wheat to fill the world's bread basket. During the months of January, February and March wheat from Australia and the Argentine republic goes on the world's markets, and that is one reason why it may be wise for the Canadian grain grower of the West not to withhold his wheat from sale during, say, September and October, because if the crops are very abundant in Australia and the Argentine that may tend to depress the price in Canada during the months of the early winter. They also ship in smaller quantities during the summer months. In May, June and July India and Egypt ship wheat, and in Texas the harvest comes on in June. I suppose that the harvest there is commencing shortly. Then it comes northward at the rate of about 20 miles a day up to and through Canada. Kansas wheat is harvested in June. In looking at the grain reports the other day in the paper I saw a statement to the effect that the prices in Canada had dropped because it was expected that there would be a very excellent crop in Kansas. If you will remember, only a few weeks ago Mr. Watts, one of the witnesses, told us—I thought he took a certain unholy pleasure in the fact—that prospects in Kansas were bad and we might expect higher prices for Canadian wheat. The harvest in Kansas is substantial, amounting in 1921 to 128,000,000. Then Nebraska reaps her harvest after Kansas; Minnesota in August, then South Dakota, North Dakota, and so on into Canada. The world does not get its supplies all in a few months. The world gets its supplies not from hand to mouth, but from month to month throughout the year, and contracts months before for the supplies it is going to use. When a great deal of wheat in western Canada goes on the market in the early autumn months, much of it must have been sold before it was more than three or four inches from the ground. I would say that, although supply and demand is the ultimate determining factor in the establishment of price, the demand is immensely influenced, not merely by the supply that is in sight, but by the judgment of buyers as to what the supply will be, not alone at the time in question but in the months that lie ahead. Hon. gentlemen who belong to the Agricultural Committee will remember how one witness, I think Mr. Richardson, stated that he might be buying wheat and paying certain prices for it on the exchange in the morning that at noon he might take up his paper and find that there had been abundant showers in Australia, and by reason of that fact change his attitude to the market during the afternoon. Is such a business as that is it wise that it should be under the control of a government? I do not think so. I think it is one in which personal initiative and insight should have full scope and play.

Mr. GOULD: My hon. friend says that wheat is often sold when it is only three or four inches out of the ground and that this is one of the factors that go to determine the price. It is also well known that in the past a lot of wheat has been thrown on the market in October or November. If that feature were eliminated would it have some effect in raising the price?

Mr. McMASTER: I do not quite understand my hon. friend's question, but I think I can answer him. I am groping for just what I think he means. If he means that dealing in futures depresses the price, I tell him that I do not think it does. I believe that if you compare the prices of primary products which are dealt with in any country in future markets with the prices of primary products in which markets in futures do not exist, you will find that dealing in futures tends to give a better price to the producer and a less cost to the consumer, and that the middleman can, by careful hedging, protect himself in such a way as not to be obliged to demand as wide a margin as he would if the trading in futures was not practised.

Mr. GOULD: Perhaps I can make my question a little clearer. Our being obliged to put 150,000,000 or 200,000,000 bushels of wheat on the market for export in the months of October and November is one of the factors which depresses the price to us, and a wheat board is supposed to spread the sales over a longer period and so eliminate that adverse factor at least.

Mr. McMASTER: I think Mr. Richardson dealt pretty thoroughly with the question which my hon. friend has just brought to my attention. Mr. Richardson said:

> Considerable wheat has been sold to the British buyer during the month of March.

He was giving his evidence on the 26th April.

> Recently he has bought grain at values very much higher than he could have bought it last fall. He could have bought wheat for May and June shipment last fall just as readily as he can now, and he could have bought it for a great deal less money.
>
> But what are the facts of the case? The English and foreign buyer does not appear to think that we give our wheat away in the fall of the year because he only buys his current requirements. Now, how can we account for this? It must be that he expected to buy cheaper from the Argentine after Christmas, or he does not want to load up with our wheat in the fall of the year and run the risk of having his Canadian purchases show him a sharp loss should the Australian and Argentine crop be bountiful and come on the market early in the New Year at lower prices.

Of course, it is quite possible that with Russia out of the market, if the Canadian crop was a very light one the prices would rise. I do not pretend for a moment that our wheat crop is not a big factor in the situation as far as determining prices is concerned, but I do give as my considered opinion to the members of this House that my study of this question has led me to the conclusion that although the wheat crop of Canada does come on the market in very large quantities during the months of September, October and November, the consequence is not to bear down the price, but that the prices realized during those fall months as a rule, taking one year with another and eliminating those abnormal years through which we have gone in the immediate past, pay the Canadian wheat grower to sell his wheat during those months. That is the conclusion to which I have come, and therefore when I am told that the banker to whom the grain grower owes money urges him to sell his wheat in September or October, I cannot blame the banker because I think he is asking his debtor to realize his property at the best price.

Mr. GARDINER: Is it your contention that the wheat comes on the world's market with regularity from almost every quarter of the globe?

Mr. McMASTER: No. I would say that wheat is largely grown in temperate climes, and that the North American continent and Russia being in the northern temperate clime have a larger production of wheat than similar countries to the south in a southern temperate clime. I do not pretend that wheat is not a northern as opposed to a southern product. But the figures which I have studied lead me to the conclusion that the price of wheat is not determined merely by the Canadian supply coming on the market in September, October and November, and that the prices realized during those months, comparing them with a similar period six months thereafter are better prices than in the latter period.

Mr. GARDINER: Could you explain the newspaper quotations of to-day as to cash price and futures? The Winnipeg price quoted yesterday for No. 1 Northern was $1.29⅛ cents. I notice the July quotations for futures are $1.22½, but for October they are $1.14, and for December $1.12. Can you explain that situation?

Mr. McMASTER: No, I cannot. I think a man to give an adequate explanation of that situation would have to be far more familiar with the grain trade than I am. But my point is that the present system of competitive buying—for I believe the buying in Canada is competitive—is a good system. I believe the answer of Mr. James Richardson. I listened with interest to what he said, and I noticed the effect he made on my fellow-members in the committee. He said that he knows of no business which is conducted on as keenly a competitive basis as the export business of wheat, and that his company, which has been established for two generations, is in the closest and keenest competition with great houses in London, Paris and Rotterdam. You will remember he cited an instance where he had been competing with a rival for an order, and finally found that his competitor had got the order by having shaved his price a quarter of a cent per bushel. He did not understand how that could happen until he found there had been just that reduction in the freight rate, and that some one in the office of the shipping company had tipped off his competitor as to the probable reduction, which enabled that competitor to underbid him to that extent. I came to this matter with very little knowledge of the wheat business indeed and, I grant you, with a strong bent of mind against paternalism and paternal legislation, but I trust that did not prevent me dealing fairly and honestly with the evidence. It does seem to me that the way wheat is handled on the Winnipeg grain exchange by competitive buyers and competitive sellers does give as good results as would be given by pooling, though I am not opposed to pooling on the voluntary system, which I will deal with in a moment.

There have been many investigations into the wheat business. Mr. Richardson quoted an extract from a report made by a royal commission appointed by the Saskatchewan government, the closing words of the report being:

> No doubt some bold and fortunate speculative exporters, and some large operators having the best of financial and shipping connections and favourable contracts for lake and ocean space make very good profits, but the commission has no evidence to indicate that the usual margin on which the exporting of wheat is conducted exceeds from one-half to one cent a bushel.

And Mr. Richardson told us that the profit of his business for the six months ending the 31st January was a slight fraction over ⅝ cent a bushel, or just about what this royal commission found.

Now, will the co-operative pool be of real advantage? That is something on which I do not wish to offer any advice; it is a matter which has to be decided by the western agriculturists themselves. But I would point out that co-operation in the past, so far as I know, never asked the State to come in to aid it in forming the co-operating body. It does seem to me that when the protagonists of the wheat board say: "We are not in favour of a co-operative pool because we do not believe there is enough co-operative sentiment in western Canada to form such a pool or to keep the members of such a co-operative society in it once it is formed; therefore we must invoke state aid to bring that desideratum about,"—I say that is the strongest argument against the interference of the state in that regard.

Mr. JOHNSON (Moosejaw): I do not know whether I understood my hon. friend aright, but did he say that he knew of no co-operative enterprise which had had government assistance to establish it?

Mr. McMASTER: No, I did not say that. What I did say was that I knew of no co-operative institution which had called upon the powers of the state to force people into the co-operation. That is the point I make, and if I may be allowed to say so—being, like most people of Scotch descent, a modest man—I think it is a strong one.

Mr. WOODSWORTH: May I ask what are all our municipal enterprises if they are not co-operative enterprises by which the state has to come in to give effect to this desire for extensive co-operation?

Mr. McMASTER: I was rather expecting that suggestion. I would point out that there is an essential difference between the power of the state for public purposes and the attempt to ask the state to interfere to form a co-operation for private purposes. The municipality has been given the right to tax its people, but I say this, if you want to apply the canons of expropriation; if you expropriate a piece of land which yields me $100 a year you will have to give me a capital sum which will represent that $100 a year. If you expropriate from my neighbour a piece of land that yields him only $50 a year, you will give him just half the amount. But the proposal in this case is that the wheat board shall expropriate all the wheat—it may be worth a dollar to some and only eighty cents to others, but it shall go into one common pot and say ninety cents shall be divided among all the co-partners. If you are going to invoke expropriation then you must invoke the ethical and legal and just rules which govern expropriation in connection with municipal matters. I see a great difference, and I think hon. gentlemen will see a great difference between the power of the state to do something for public purposes and the invoking of the power of the state to force certain people in a line of business to conduct that business along the lines which the majority want and which they themselves do not want. I will cite Mr. Manning Doherty, who may be an authority to some and not an authority to others. At a meeting at Ridgetown the other day which had for its purpose the fostering of co-operation in Ontario, a meeting at which a gentleman from California with a biblical name spoke, Mr. Manning Doherty, speaking of the obtaining of certain markets, said:

> It can be done not by governments, but it can be done by you and you alone. The Government can help and assist and direct, but anything that goes from the top down and you shove down the farmer's throat will never amount to that, but something that the farmers build themselves will stand. The farmers have got to organize themselves.

There is no place in Canada where the farmers have organized themselves so well as they have on the western prairies. The people who believe in co-operation are proud to think of the names of such persons as the hon. member for Marquette (Mr. Crerar) and the hon member for Regina (Mr. Motherwell), who are leaders in a co-operative movement which took a strong stand against the great abuses which in the past had throttled the economic life of the western prairies.

I think it is dangerous to give the grain trade of a country into the hands of two or three men. If they deal rightly, if they judge rightly; if, I might almost say, they guess rightly, they may make a great deal of money for the country. If their judgment is wrong, if they make a mistake, then that mistake may result in great loss to the country.

Mr. EVANS: Does the hon. member not realize that it is in the hands of two or three men now?

Mr. McMASTER: No; if hon. members can show that the grain trade of this country is in the hands of two or three men now they will not convert me to their proposal for compulsion—I do not think anything will do that—but they will make out a strong case for a voluntary pool. I do not, however, think that the grain trade is in the hands of two or three persons. I believe that the grain trade is subject to competition; if I am wrong, that part of my argument falls. But I would point out that under present circumstances one man may think that the market is going up; another man may think it is going down; and the net result will be much more on a level than if you put the whole grain trade of the country in the hands of two or three men. If you do that; if you put it in the hands of two or three men, you will get a dominant mind and that dominant mind will direct the whole trade of the country. I do not think it is reasonable or right; I do not think it is a fair risk to run, to put the whole grain trade of this country, which is our greatest individual trade, in the hands of one man. I think it is unfair to the present organization. Those who advocate a wheat board advocate it not as a permanent measure but as a temporary expedient; but even as a temporary expedient the upsetting of present organizations will result. I think it is unfair, or may prove to be unfair, to eastern Canada,—and this is the only note of a personal character that I will sound. I try in this House not to consider public matters from the mere point of view of the little county in the Eastern Townships which I represent, because I hold that we are here to consider the interests of Canada as a whole; we are here, elected from certain parts of Canada, but our first duty is to the whole country. That was discussed in the English House of Commons as early as 1571; it was then laid down as the proper principle, and I believe it is the proper principle. Let me say this concerning eastern Canada; it is our desire to have as much of the wheat of this country as possible go out in the form of flour. It will be the duty of any wheat board that is doing anything of value to the west to try to put that wheat out just in the way in which it will give the greatest return to the western grower, irrespective of whether it goes out in wheat or in flour.

Mr. COOTE: Is there anyone who is more entitled to all the returns that can be got from the wheat than the man who raised it?

Mr. McMASTER: No, there is not; if my hon. friend had waited just a moment I would have dealt with that aspect of the question. I am prepared to see the grower get whatever economic laws will give him. But I say it is not right for the state to interfere with economic law in order that certain wheat which otherwise would have gone out of this country in the form of flour shall go out in the form of wheat. To the extent that that is done the eastern dairy farmer suffers.

I would say also that the adoption of such a proposal as this would create an enormously bad precedent. If it is right to have a wheat board, why not a potato board, why not a butter board? I know there are some men in this House who are so obsessed with the injustice and the ugliness of our present competitive individualistic system that they say, "Away with it; we can have no hope under it." I do not blame such men; I do not wonder at their advocacy of a wheat board. But men who follow the business of farming, men whose business is built up on personal initiative and on personal thrift—how they could advocate a wheat board which says to certain farmers who do not wish to enter it: "Whether you wish to enter this wheat board or not; whether you wish to pool the results of your labour and your capital with us or not, you have got to do it and the state will see that every avenue for the sale of your wheat except that which the state has created is closed to you,"—how they could advocate such a proposal as that, I cannot understand for it is striking at the very foundation of everything they hold dear.

I would like to close with just one appeal to the protagonists of the wheat board. They all come from the West, and they, Mr. Speaker, and myself have for many years held in common certain great economic principles.

We have held these economic principles, we have been called idealists and impractical folk and we have suffered all sorts of things, if not at the hands, at least at the tongues of our fellow citizens; but those of us in the East who have held these principles have always looked to the West for hope and encouragement. The people of the West believe in fiscal freedom; they wish it for themselves; they wish it for their children. Let them not by the advocacy of this proposal, which is an interference with trade—it is not protection, but it is an interference with and an infraction of free trade—weaken their efforts to get what I believe will help them in the struggle for economic justice in which all the plain and common people of this country should be united as one man.

Mr. W. F. MACLEAN (South York): I shall only take up the time of the House for a few minutes. I asked a question of the pundit from Brome as to Joseph, and he could not answer my argument that Joseph had saved Egypt and the world at that time through his foresight, because of his violation of economic truths according to the hon. gentleman.

Mr. McMASTER: The hon. member forgets that we have now public ownership of railways and of ships, and if there was a famine we could bring wheat in from abroad.

Mr. MACLEAN (York): The hon. gentleman's argument was that this proposal would put the farmers in bondage, just as Joseph put the people of his day in bondage. Joseph saved Egypt and Moses saved the Israelites, and if there is any argument to be drawn from what these two great leaders did, it is that the foresight of Joseph and the patriotism of Moses saved humanity at these two stages of the world's history.

I am rather surprised that no reference has been made in this discussion to what is going on at Washington at the present time. The most powerful political organization that has been found anywhere in the world is operating to-day at Washington to secure some measure of relief from the farming conditions that exist in the western states of the American Republic, and they are coming to the same conclusion that the Progressives are reaching in connection with their economic problems in the West. They are finding out in Washington that what is essential is that the credit of the nation, through the federal reserve banking system, shall be put behind some central organization for the purchase and the control and the sale, if necessary, of farm products, especially of wheat. We have come to it. We made a success of it in the late war, just as Joseph did. I think it would be a good thing to continue it; I believe in that; I believe in the credit of the nation being behind it. I believe in what the hon. member for Brome (Mr. McMaster) said about getting back to normal. The grievance of the farmers in the West is with the conditions they have encountered in normal times. Their experience in connection with the production of farm products in this country is such that they are prepared to try something else, and there will have to be a wheat board, with the credit of the nation behind it. There will have to be an elaborate system of storage in order to stabilize or valorize prices, and it may be necessary, in order that the farmer may get what is coming to him, that a crop like wheat may have to be stored for two or three years in order to equalize the price and to keep the farmer in the meantime from being exploited by the gambler. The gambler in wheat, more than anything else, is the menace to farmers getting a fair price for their wheat, and the greatest gamblers in wheat are the millers and the banks which are associated with them in that proposition. That is what they are finding out in the states, and my hon. friend from Brome had better read the evidence that is being presented to-day in Washington if he wishes to see to what conclusions the farmers in the United States are coming. They are going to try something new. We have had two or three years' experience with the wheat board, and I say it is worth a continued trial. The president and the majority of the Senate in the United States are now in favour of rather extensive legislation in the direction of market control and the public control of the price of wheat, and are favouring putting the credit of the whole nation behind it.

When I addressed the House on the budget the other day I brought out this fact, that the coming thing for the improvement of agriculture in this country is improved transportation, improved national banking, improved marketing, and the introduction of the new principle of democracy and of economics, and that is collectivism. If the men in politics to-day go into the next election, when it comes, ignoring the principle of collectivism, or collective bargaining, call it what you will, by people who are dissatisfied with their present conditions and are going to try and help themselves by co-operation, collective bargaining, collective judgment, or a collective policy, they do not see the signs of the times.

There is just one other thing I want to say. We have the best wheat in the world grown in this country. There is no wheat like the Canadian wheat, and no wheat ought to command a higher price in the markets of the world. But the business has to be well handled. The gambler has to be eliminated, the high rate of interest has to be eliminated, and cheap transportation must be provided. When my hon. friend from Brome says, "Do not offend the East," my answer is, who to-day in the East is standing at the door and telling not only the farmers of western Canada, but all the people of Canada, that they shall not have improved transportation by means of waterways so that steamships crossing the Atlantic may sail right up to the ports on the Great Lakes? The attitude of these grain speculators is: You shall not even have the advantage of the competition of sea-going ships. You farmers of the West must depend hereafter on the railroads, although water transport is cheaper.

In conclusion, I would ask the Prime Minister when he is drafting his bill to read the evidence that is now being presented to that committee in Washington. I have looked through it, and it deals with the question of marketing, with the question of financing crops, and with the question of storage. Storage is the real point, the strength of the farmers case. It does not cost much to store or to carry grain. There must be more storehouse capacity and the nation has to provide especially for the farmers of the West. We must have more storehouses, and the farmers must have granaries at home; they must have more local elevators and storehouses, and there may have to be great storehouses established at the seaports. I am quite convinced that the people of the United States, and especially the farmers of that country, hope to get a solution of the troubles that afflict the farmer over there, because they have troubles in the States just as we have them here. Over there they are trying to remove them, and trying to do so by co-operation. The best thought in Congress, the best thought in the Senate is being devoted to this question, and the President of the United States is deeply concerned with it. They propose a great national movement over there to improve the price of farm products, to remove all kinds of gambling chances in them, and to provide storage for farm products—not only of wheat but of all grain, cotton and things of that kind. They are in favour of these things, and most of all they are in favour of making experiments. Now the greatest thing in politics is not to respect so-called economic laws but to make experiments. An experiment in politics is a great thing to try out; and as far as I am concerned I am willing to vote in favour of our Government establishing a wheat board, of giving it all the assistance it can, and of having a real experiment made for a few years; especially in view of the fact that the Americans are going to make the same experiment. I believe that if we do make the experiment, having the best wheat in the world, we will be able, by some system of co-operation so to store and finance this good wheat of ours, that we can sell it at the highest price provided we exercise good judgment in that direction.

Mr. SPEAKER: Is the House ready for the question?

Mr. GUTHRIE: Before the question is put I rise simply to say that the amendment moved by my hon. friend from South Oxford (Mr. Sutherland) expresses the policy of those who sit to your left, Mr. Speaker, and who regard themselves as the official Opposition in this House. I do not know that it is necessary to press that amendment to a division. The object in moving it was to acquaint the House and the country with the position that the Opposition take upon the question. However, having heard the discussion which has taken place in the House, and which has continued throughout the greater part of the day, I do feel: that if the bill which was promised this afternoon by the Prime Minister is drafted more in keeping with the terms and spirit of the amendment than of the report it will prove to be a better piece of legislation.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: Will my hon. friend state to the House wherein the amendment differs from the report?

Mr. GUTHRIE: The amendment, if I understand it aright, provides for something in the nature of a voluntary wheat board with such powers as this Parliament has the constitutional right to confer upon it; and if the bill when presented to this House follows more closely the spirit of the amendment, and less closely the spirit of the committee's report, I think it will be found in the end that we will bring forth a more useful piece of legislation than by following the strict letter of the committee's report. I merely cast forth that suggestion as one of my own. It is a prediction I make, that more good will be accomplished in the end if the bill conforms to the amendment rather than to the report. I propose, Mr. Speaker, to let the motion pass until—

Mr. VIEN: Is it not a fact that the report of the committee has exactly the same effect insofar as it is based on the contention that Parliament has not the right to give compulsory powers to the wheat board, and that such powers must be implemented by the provincial legislature?

Mr. GUTHRIE: Well, in the latter part of my hon. friend's question lies the weakness of the whole case—supplementary legislation.

Mr. SPEAKER: I understand that the amendment is withdrawn by leave of the House.

Mr. GUTHRIE: No, Mr. Speaker, not withdrawn, lost on division.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: Just before the amendment is put, I fail really to see the essential difference between the report and the amendment. My hon. friend has claimed that there is a difference between the two but he has not made it very clear. The report asked the Government to establish:

> A national wheat marketing agency for the marketing of the wheat crop of 1922.

It also asked to give this agency:

> —all the powers of the Wheat Board of 1919 as are within the jurisdiction of Parliament to grant except as they include the direct marketing of flour and other mill products.

That is a voluntary wheat board, and that is what is suggested in the amendment of my hon. friend from South Oxford. I would like to say further, Mr. Speaker, that the members who were in the House and heard the beginning of this discussion will recall that I stated on behalf of the Government that it was our intention, in the legislation which we were bringing in, to establish a board and to give it such powers as this Parliament has a right to endow it with, but to leave it to the provinces to add further powers in accordance with the scope of their jurisdiction. Now there is nothing in the amendment which has been proposed on the other side which adds or takes away anything from what the Government has suggested as its proposal. So I think the amendment is wholly unnecessary, it tries to make a distinction where there is no room for one.

Amendment (Mr. Sutherland) negatived on division.

Motion (Mr. Kay) agreed to.

ST. LAWRENCE WATERWAY

Mr. SPEAKER: I have the honour to inform the House that I have received a copy of Progress Report No. 3 of the New York State Commission in opposition to the St. Lawrence ship canal and power project.

QUESTIONS

(Questions answered orally are indicated by an asterisk.)

BLOOD INDIAN RESERVE

Mr. COOTE:

1. What amount of land is leased on the Blood Indian Reserve?
2. To whom is this land under lease, for what period, and what is the annual payment under each lease?

Hon. Mr. STEWART (Argenteuil):

1. 40,037 acres.
2. Answered by statement hereunder.

Lessee	Area	Term	Rental per Annum
	acres		$ cts.
George Stringham	7,040	1 year., April 1, 1921	1,408 00
C. Jensen	3,520	1 " " 1, 1921	704 00
J. Neilson	3,840	1 " " 1, 1921	768 00
H. Blackmore	320	1 " " 1, 1921	64 00
T. Duce	560	1 " " 1, 1921	112 00
A. J. Stoddard	320	1 " " 1, 1921	64 00
W. Pitcher	320	1 " " 1, 1921	64 00
J. & S. Low	640	1 " " 1, 1921	128 00
J. P. Low	80	1 " " 1, 1921	16 00
J. W. Low	320	1 " " 1, 1921	64 00
Wood & Parish	130	1 " " 1, 1921	26 00
Horace Eldredge	480	3 " May 1, 1921	3,600 00
Cardston Farming Co. Ltd	1,440	3 " April 1, 1921	3,600 00
Maroni Allen	240	3 " May 1, 1921	508 00
Town of Cardston	2,500	1 " April 1, 1922	400 00
McNab and Bell	960	1 " Aug. 1, 1921	192 00
J. Hadfield	140	1 " April 1, 1921	28 00
W. McNab	320	1 " Aug. 1, 1921	64 00
A. Norton	2,560	1 " April 1, 1921	512 00
W. Smith	3,840	1 " " 1, 1921	768 00
L. Jensen	3,840	1 " " 1, 1921	768 00
Cardston Wool Growers Assn	640	1 " Aug. 1, 1921	128 00
C. G. Jarman	300	1 " " 1, 1921	50 00
J. McNab	1,280	1 " " 1, 1921	256 00
A. Whitney	1,280	1 " " 1, 1921	256 00
Davis & Nelson	1,280	1 " Sept. 1, 1921	256 00
V. Sanderson	320	1 " " 1, 1921	64 00
F. Leblond	160	1 " " 1, 1921	32 00
Ives Ranching Co	320	1 " " 1, 1921	64 00
E. Russell	960	1 " " 1, 1921	192 00
J. Hadfield	87	2 " May 22, 1921	217 50

LAKE OF THE WOODS CONTROL BOARD

Mr. CHURCH:

1. Has the Government of Canada agreed with the government of Ontario to appoint a joint Board consisting of four members to regulate and control the outflow of the waters of the Lake of the Woods so as to maintain the level of the lake and also of the waters of Lac Seul and of the Winnipeg river?

2. Has the Government decided to introduce legislation this session to repeal an Act of the Parliament of Canada, "The Lake of the Woods Regulation Act, 1921", being chapter 38, R.S.C., 1921, and at whose request?

3. Will the Government lay on the table all documents, letters, correspondence, and any other material dealing with this matter with the government of Ontario, or any other person or persons?

4. Why has the Government agreed to a settlement of this question which should be settled by engineers?

5. What International Treaty, if any, is there covering this question?

6. What interprovincial and international legislation is there in existence on this subject?

Hon. Mr. MACKENZIE KING: The Government have given notice of a bill to repeal the Lake of the Woods Regulation Act, 1921.

11 p.m.

[Mr. Charles Stewart.]

The several matters referred to by the honourable member can be considered when the measure comes before the House.

IMMIGRATION OFFICIALS

Mr. JACOBS:

1. Who is the Deputy Minister of Immigration, when was he appointed, and what is his salary?

2. Who performed the duties prior to the appointment of the present deputy minister, and what was his salary?

3. Has the work in the Department of Immigration increased so largely as to justify the appointment of a deputy minister?

4. Who is the present Superintendent of Immigration, what are his duties, and in what respect do his duties differ from that of the Deputy Minister of Immigration?

5. What experience, if any, did the present deputy minister have in immigration matters before his appointment to his present post?

Hon. Mr. STEWART (Argenteuil):

1. Mr. W. J. Black, appointed on September 7, 1921; salary $6,000.

2. Mr. W. W. Cory, C.M.G., Deputy Minister of Interior, was appointed Acting Deputy Minister of Immigration and Colonization in October, 1917, without extra re muneration, but during the re-organization of the Department of Immigration and Colonization in the fiscal year 1918-1919 he was paid $1,000 by special Vote of Parliament.

3. Matter being investigated.

4. At present there is no Superintendent of Immigration. The former Superintendent of Immigration is at present designated as "Assistant Deputy Minister".

5. The Deputy Minister of Immigration has held the following positions:—

(a) Deputy Minister of Agriculture and Immigration for Manitoba.

(b) President, Manitoba Agricultural College.

(c) Dominion Commissioner under Agricultural Instruction Act.

(d) Chairman, Soldier Settlement Board of Canada.

MEALS TO IMMIGRANTS

Mr. JACOBS:

1. What rate per diem is charged by the Government at the port of Quebec for meals to immigrants, pending appeals from rulings of the Board of Immigration?

2. What is the rate per diem which the Government pays to the caterer for such food?

3. What sum has been received by the Government from immigrants for meals during the year 1921 at the port of Quebec?

4. What sum has been paid to the caterer at the port of Quebec for meals supplied during the year 1921?

Hon. Mr. STEWART (Argenteuil):

1. (a) Civil Detentions.—Adults, 75 cents per diem for meals, plus $1.00 per diem for overhead expenses, or a total of $1.75 per diem. Children between 1 and 10 years of age, 40 cents per diem for meals, plus 50 cents per diem for overhead expenses, or a total of 90 cents per diem. Infants under one year of age, free.

Medical Detentions.—Adults, 75 cents per diem for meals, plus $1.25 per diem for overhead expenses, or a total of $2 per diem. Children between 1 and 10 years of age, 40 cents per diem for meals, plus 60 cents per diem for overhead expenses, or a total of $1.00 per diem. Infants under one year of age, free.

2. Rate per diem 75 cents for the season of 1922.

3. $20,637.94.

4. $28,313.80 including meals at Detention Hospital and meals to members of the staff.

GOLD IN CANADA

Mr. IRVINE:

What amount of gold was in the treasury—Central Gold Reserve—and in the chartered banks of Canada during the years from 1914 to 1921?

Hon. Mr. FIELDING:

As of Dec. 31	Gold in Central Gold Reserves	*Current gold and subsidiary coin held by Canadian chartered banks
1914	$4,500,000	$62,569,688
1915	6,210,000	67,995,610
1916	11,960,000	71,172,169
1917	19,680,000	82,032,863
1918	8,500,000	79,315,616
1919	10,500,000	80,088,103
1920	11,502,533	82,687,559
1921	10,502,533	78,851,283

*Monthly returns of the banks as prescribed by the Bank Act do not show gold and subsidiary coin separately.

NON-TAXABLE BONDS

Mr. IRVINE:

What is the total amount of non-taxable bonds issued between the years 1915 and 1921, inclusive?

Hon. Mr. FIELDING:

$1,284,291,150 are outstanding as of this date of bonds of domestic issues (issued between 1915 and 1921) exempt from Dominion taxation. In addition there are outstanding of New York issues—(issued between 1915 and 1921) exempt from Doamount of $110,934,000. Of this amount $50,934,000 are exempt from Dominion taxation; and $60,000,000 are exempt except when beneficially owned by persons residing or ordinarily resident in Canada.

UNOPPOSED MOTION FOR PAPERS

Mr. MARTELL:

For a return showing a statement of all moneys paid by the Government of Canada or any department thereof, to barristers and solicitors of the various provinces of Canada for legal services in connection with the arbitration concerning the Canadian Northern Railway and the Dominion of Canada, and the Grand Trunk Railway and the Dominion of Canada, said statement to set forth retainers, per diem pay, expense allowances, number of days employed and the names of the barristers and solicitors so engaged.

CORRECTION OF DIVISION LIST

On the Orders of the Day:

Mr. H. E. SPENCER (Battle River): Mr. Speaker, I wish to draw the attention of the House to the fact that, on page 2912 of Hansard I am reported as having voted for the amendment. That is not correct. On the following page 2913, a correct statement is made of how I intended to vote.

Mr. D. M. KENNEDY (West Edmonton): Mr. Speaker, I wish to call the attention of the House to the fact that my name is also inserted as one of those who voted for the amendment proposed by the ex-Minister of Finance (Sir Henry Drayton), and what I said in connection with the vote when asked to vote is correctly reported on page 2913 of Hansard.

Mr. SPEAKER: I am informed that the report of the division is correct in the Votes and Proceedings.

Mr. LAPOINTE: Even in the Votes and Proceedings, the vote is wrongly recorded.

Mr. SPEAKER: If the hon. gentlemen have not been properly reported, I will give instructions that the correction be made in the Votes and Proceedings accordingly, as the hon. gentlemen are entitled to that.

The corrected Division List is as follows:

YEAS

Messrs.

Anderson,
Arthurs,
Baxter,
Black (Yukon),
Bowen,
Chaplin,
Charters,
Church,
Clark,
Dickie,
Drayton (Sir Henry),
Garland (Bow River),
Garland (Carleton),
Grimmer,
Guthrie,
Harris,
Hocken,
Hubbs,
Irvine,
Ladner,
LeSueur,
MacKelvie,
MacLaren,
Maclean (York),
Macphail,
McKillop,
McQuarrie,
McTaggart,
Manion,
Maybee,
Meighen,
Mewburn,
Ross (Kingston),
Ryckman,
Senn,
Sheard,
Simpson,
Spence,
Stansell,
Stevens,
Stewart (Hamilton),
Stewart (Lanark),
Stewart (Leeds),
Sutherland,
Thompson,
Tolmie,
Whtie,
Wilson,
Woodsworth—49.

NAYS

Messrs.

Archambault,
Baldwin,
Bancroft,
Beaubien,
Béland,
Binette,
Binette,
Bird,
Black (Huron),
Blackadder,
Boivin,
Bouchard,
Boucher,
Bourassa,
Brethen,
Brown,
Bureau,
Cahill,
Caldwell,
Campbell,
Cannon,
Cardin,
Carmichael,
Carroll,
Carruthers,
Casgrain,
Chevrier,
Chew,
Chisholm,
Clifford,
Coote,
Copp,
Crerar,
d'Anjou,
Davis,
Déchêne,
Delisle,
Demers,
Denis (Joliette),
Denis (St. Denis),
Desaulniers,
Deslauriers,
Desrochers,
Drummond,
Duff,
Elliott (Dundas),
Elliott (Waterloo),
Ethier,
Euler,
Evans,
Fafard,
Fansher,
Fielding,
Findlay,
Fontaine,
Forke,
Forrester,
Fortier,
Fournier,
Gauvreau,
Gendron,
Good,
Gordon,
Gouin (Sir Lomer),
Gould,
Graham,
Halbert,
Hammell,
Hatfield,
Hodgins,
Hoey,
Hudson,
Hughes,
Humphrey,
Hunt,
Jelliff,
Johnson (Moosejaw),
Johnston (Last Mountain),
Kay,
Kellner,
Kennedy (Edmonton),
Kennedy (Essex),
Kennedy (Glengarry and Stormont),
Kennedy (Port Arthur and Kenora),
King (Huron),
King (Kootenay),
King, Mackenzie (York),
Knox,
Laflamme,
Lafortune,
Lanctôt,
Lapierre,
Lapointe,
Lavigueur,
Leader,
Lewis,
Logan,
Lovett,
Lovie,
Low,
Lucas,
Macdonald (Pictou),
Mackinnon,
Maclean (Halifax),
Maclean (Prince, P.E.I.),
McBride,
McConica,
McCrea,
McDonald (Timiskaming),
McGiverin,
McIsaac,
McKay,
McKenzie,
McMurray,
Marcil (Bonaventure),
Marcile (Bagot),
Marler,
Martell,
Mercier,
Michaud,
Millar,
Milne,
Mitchell,
Morin,
Morrison,
Morrissy,
Motherwell,
Munro,
Murdock,
Murphy,
Neill,
Ouimet,
Pacaud,
Papineau,
Parent,
Pelletier,
Power,
Prévost,
Pritchard,
Putnam,
Rankin,
Raymond,
Reed,
Rinfret,
Robb,
Robinson,
Robitaille,
Ross (Simcoe),
St. Père,
Sales,
Savard,
Séguin,
Sexwsmith,
Shaw,
Sinclair (Oxford),
Sinclair (Queens, P.E.I.),
Speakman,
Spencer,
Steedsman,
Stewart (Argenteuil),
Stewart (Humboldt),
Stork,
Thurston,
Tobin,
Trahan,
Turgeon,
Vien,
Wallace,
Walsh,
Ward,
Warner,
Woods—171.

SALE AND INSPECTION OF ROOT VEGETABLES

On motion of Hon. W. R. Motherwell (Minister of Agriculture) Bill No. 33, to regulate the Sale and Inspection of Root Vegetables, was read the second time.

On motion of Mr. Motherwell, the bill was referred to the select standing committee on Agriculture and Colonization.

CRIMINAL CODE AMENDMENT

The House again in committee on Bill No. 93, to amend the Criminal Code, Mr. Gordon in the chair.

Sir LOMER GOUIN: I beg to move the following amendment:

(1) Section 2 of the said act is amended by inserting the following paragraph immediately after paragraph (14):

"(14A) 'Feeble-minded person' means a person in whose case there exists from birth or from an early age, mental defectiveness not amounting to imbecility, yet so pronounced that he or she requires care, supervision and control for his or her protection and for the protection of others."

This is a definition of a feeble-minded person. I also beg to move this further amendment:

(2) Section 219 is amended by inserting the word "feeble-minded" after the word "dumb" in the fourth line thereof, and the words, "or imbecile" after the word "dumb" at the end of the said section.

Section 219 reads as follows:

Every one is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to four years' imprisonment who unlawfully and carnally knows, or attempts to have unlawful carnal knowledge of, any female idiot or imbecile, insane or deaf and dumb woman or girl, under circumstances which do not amount to rape but where the offender knew or had good reason to believe, at the time of the offence, that the woman or girl was an idiot, or imbecile, or insane or deaf and dumb.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: Is the change one of limitation or extension?

Sir LOMER GOUIN: Extension.

Amendments agreed to.

Sir LOMER GOUIN: I beg to move the following amendment. Section 236 reads:

Every one is guilty of an indictable offence and liable to two years' imprisonment and to a fine not exceeding two thousand dollars who,—

And so forth. We propose to add two subsections, and I beg to move the following amendment:

Subsection one of section two hundred and thirty-six of the said act is amended by inserting the following paragraphs immediately after paragraph (c) thereof:

"or (d) disposes of any goods, wares or merchandise by any game or mode of chance or mixed chance and skill; or

"(e) induces any person to stake or hazard any money or other valuable property or thing on the result of any dice game, shell game, punch board, coin table or other game of chance or mixed chance and skill or on the operation of any wheel of fortune."

Amendment agreed to.

Mr. GOOD: I move a further amendment to the Criminal Code, as follows:

3. Subsection (e) and (f) of section 1 of section 235 of the Criminal Code, Revised Statutes of Canada chapter 146 are repealed and the following substituted therefor;

(e) Engages in pool-selling or bookmaking or in the business or occupation of betting or wagering or in supplying information to any person engaged in bookmaking or pool selling or in the business of betting or wagering which would be of assistance therein, or makes any agreement for the purchase or sale of betting or gaming privileges.

(f) Advertises, prints, publishes, exhibits, posts up, sells or supplies or offers to sell or supply any information to any person engaged in bookmaking or pool selling or in the business of betting or wagering which is afterwards used by such person in book making, pool selling, or in the business of betting or wagering upon any horse race or other race, fight, game or sport, whether at the time of advertising, printing, publishing, exhibiting, posting up or supplying such information, such horse race or other race, fight, game or sport has or has not taken place.

Mr. CHURCH: I would draw the attention of the committee to the fact that the hon. member (Mr. Good) has on the Order Paper, at page 16, a motion, No. 11, with reference to the subject of his proposed amendment. Under the rules of the House he cannot, with such a motion on the Order Paper dealing with the same subject, move the amendment he now submits.

Mr. GOOD: This amendment does not cover the matter which my proposed motion deals with.

Mr. BAXTER: I do not know what the proposed amendment is. It was utterly impossible to hear it, and one cannot properly discuss the point of order without knowing just what the subject is. However, the amendment is long enough to fall within Rule No. 112, which says:

No important amendment may be proposed to any private bill in a Committee of the Whole House—

The CHAIRMAN: Order. This is not a private bill. With regard to the point of order raised by the hon. member for Toronto North (Mr. Church), there is a Notice of Motion No. 11, on the Order Paper dealing substantially with the same matter treated in the proposed amendment. May at page 248 says:

A motion must not anticipate a matter already appointed for consideration by the House whether it be a bill or an adjourned debate upon a motion. A motion is equally out of order, if it anticipates a notice of motion for leave to bring in a bill that includes the subject proposed to be dealt with by the motion. A matter already appointed for consideration by the House cannot be anticipated by an amendment, while a notice of motion as long as it remains upon the paper, whether for a specified day or not, prevents its subject-matter being discussed by means of an amendment to a motion.

And Bourinot at page 320, states:

An amendment cannot anticipate a notice of motion on the order paper.

Under the circumstances I rule that this amendment is anticipated by Notice of Motion, No. 11, on the Order Paper and is therefore out of order.

Mr. GOOD: Will you allow me to speak to your ruling, Mr. Chairman? I simply wish to say—

The CHAIRMAN: The hon. member is out of order in discussing the ruling of the Chair. Had I known that he desired to discuss the point of order I would have given him an opportunity to do so before ruling upon it. I did not see him rise, however.

Mr. CRERAR: My hon. friend (Mr. Good) was on his feet when the member for North Toronto (Mr. Church) sat down. I think that he intended to speak to the point of order, and I submit that he should be given the opportunity to do so.

The CHAIRMAN: I regret that the hon. member did not more vigorously draw my attention to the fact that he desired to discuss the point of order.

Mr. GOOD: But I did say something, Mr. Chairman, and I intended to proceed.

The CHAIRMAN: I am afraid the hon. member did not sufficiently press his desire in the matter. I did not hear him, and having given my ruling I do not think he can discuss it.

Mr. JACOBS: Bring it up next year.

Bill as amended, reported, read the third time and passed.

SUPREME COURT ACT AMENDMENT

On motion of Hon. Sir Lomer Gouin (Minister of Justice) Bill No. 125 to amend the Supreme Court Act was read the second time, and the House went into committee thereon, Mr. Gordon in the Chair.

Sir LOMER GOUIN: Most of the provinces have legislation to authorise references on legal questions to be made to their courts. There is no provision in the Supreme Court Act authorizing an appeal on such decision from the highest courts of the provinces. We were requested by the Attorney-General of Ontario to prepare the amendment we now introduce. I would ask permission to make some changes in the amendment as drafted. I propose to replace in the first section, subsection 42 (a), for the words "Divisional Court of the Supreme Court of any province, (or by the final court of appeal of any province)", the words "The highest Court of final resort in any province." This is in conformity with the amendments made to the Supreme Court Act in 1920. For the same reason I move to strike out the words "Divisional Court (or of the said final court of appeal)", and to substitute therefor the words "the highest Court of final resort." This will apply to all the provinces of Confederation and I think it will be generally satisfactory.

Mr. CRERAR: What is the purpose of the amendment?

Sir LOMER GOUIN: To afford an appeal from the highest court of the province on any reference made in virtue of provincial legislation on questions of law. On federal matters we have references to the Supreme Court. The provincial governments have similar references to their provincial courts, but they have no appeal to the Supreme Court unless we amend the Supreme Court Act, and that is what we propose to do.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: At their request?

Sir LOMER GOUIN: At their request.

Mr. JACOBS: I notice it is intended by subsection 2 to make this bill retroactive to the 16th June, 1920.

Sir LOMER GOUIN: That subsection is dropped.

Bill reported as amended, read the third time, and passed.

SUPPLY

House again in Committee of Supply.—Mr. Gordon in the Chair.

MILITIA AND DEFENCE

Adjustment of War Claims—Militia and Defence, $7,380,000.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: Mr. Chairman, I had hoped, in common with most members of the late government, that we were getting near the end of these extraordinary payments. There is only a very small decrease this year, and I would ask the minister to be good enough to give the committee details of how this amount of $7,000,000 odd is made up.

Hon. GEORGE P. GRAHAM (Minister of Militia and Defence): We all shared my hon. friend's hope, but there does not seem much prospect that this item will be very materially diminished this year. Last year the vote was approximately $7,000,000, but about $8,000,000 was spent, the reason being that the Militia Department had several credits, and the Finance Department allowed that over-expenditure on account of those credits. It was really a matter of bookkeeping.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: I suppose that extraordinary large claim of $3,000,000 was charged up to the demobilization vote last year?

Mr. GRAHAM: Yes.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: Then do you not think this is too great a vote this year?

Mr. GRAHAM: Since these estimates were prepared a credit of approximately $1,000,000 has been made by the British Shipping Board to the Naval Department, so this vote can be reduced to that extent.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: Does the minister mean that because Great Britain has paid us $1,000,000 in connection with war matters it can be used by the department without being covered by a vote?

Mr. GRAHAM. As a matter of fact, the British Shipping Board owed us $1,000,-079, and gave us credit for it. Last year the Militia Department expended $1,000,-000 more than the total voted by Parliament through credit given by that contra account. I will read the items that make up this total. One large item is that referred to by the ex-Minister of Militia last week, being the claim made by the British Shipping Board against the Canadian government, amounting to about $4,000,000, on account of the hospital ship that was sunk while being used by this government. The former Minister of Militia had some negotiations with the British government, but no final settlement was reached. I may say frankly that I have not had time to go into the merits or demerits of the case, but the $1,000,000 is credited against that claim. These are the items included in this vote: British Ministry of Shipping account, $3,007,105; private steamship accounts, $427,895; unforseen railway-steamship accounts, $200; other transportation claims, $40,000; separation allowances, $158,000; pay and allowances, $192,000; war service gratuities, $346,000; printing and stationery, $26,000; postage on medals, records, etc., $60,000; ordnance service repairs to rifles, $6,000. Then there is an item for engineer services and works, $30,-000. There is a large amount for medals, $535,000. These medals are made by the British government and are paid for by the Canadian government. I may say to hon. members whose friends may be asking why their medals or other decorations have not reached them that they are coming into the department by thousands every month and we are distributing them as rapidly as they are received. There are items for difference in exchange redeemed at par, $86,500, and miscellaneous, unforeseen, $470,000, making a total of $6,880,-000. We add to that the $500,000 we discussed the other night, for battlefields memorials, making a total of $7,380,000. As I pointed out a moment ago we wish to drop $1,000,000 from that, leaving the amount to be voted $6,380,000.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: The amount of $470,000 for miscellaneous unforseen expenses strikes me to be rather a large item, and I would like the minister to give us some particulars concerning it.

Mr. GRAHAM: It is to cover any items not otherwise provided for which may be authorized by the Governor in Council. There is also a balance in dispute, a claim of Vickers Limited, of $219,000. Then, a committee is sitting at present the recommendations of which may necessitate some expenditure. There were upwards of 6,000 soldiers who took their discharge from the Canadian forces in England, many of whom have since come to Canada. The question of refunding the cost of their transportation to Canada has been before the special committee on pensions and soldiers' re-establishment. The amount involved is estimated at $330,000. Provision is made to cover these two items. In fact, in connection with the committee which is sitting, my fear is that I may have to ask for a supplementary vote to cover any provision the committee may make for payments, and so on.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: I agree that my hon. friend has not allowed very much to cover the recommendations of the committee; the amount would appear to be $231,000. I would like to ask how the claim of the Vickers Company stands at present.

Mr. GRAHAM: It has not yet been settled. There have been some negotiations; I have gone over the file of figures once or twice, and I think my predecessor discussed the claim with the Vickers people when he was in England. The claim must, of course, be paid in some amount, but a definite decision has not been arrived at.

Mr. GUTHRIE: I do know something about this claim. I went into the matter fully when I was in the department and I was not able to effect a settlement with the Vickers people. They made an offer to accept a certain sum of money to clean up the whole claim. I at one time thought the figure was not an unfair one, but my hon. friend the then Minister of Finance (Sir Henry Drayton) thought it was much too high. I am satisfied that the company have a bona fide claim. We cancelled certain contracts which we had awarded to them at the beginning of the war and they claim to have sustained losses. Some substantial amount will have to be paid in settlement of this claim. But the large item which the minister has given is the one that I would like a little more information about, that is, the one in connection with the shipping claim of the British government against the Canadian government. I was under the impression that last summer, with the able assistance of accountants from the Militia Department and after about three weeks' hard work, we reached a settlement with the British government. of their claims against Canada in regard to all shipping items save one. We succeeded in reducing the account which had been rendered to us by $750,000. But there was still a very large item in regard to a hospital ship that had been torpedoed and in respect of which the British government claimed they had the right to recover from Canada the amount found to be due to the owners by a board of arbitration which sat in England and was made up of three or four prominent ship owners. Upon that board Canada was not represented. In the early stage of the submarine warfare the damages paid by the British government to British ship owners were based on the actual cost of the ship. But as the war proceeded and more and more ships were sunk every month, the cost of shipbuilding rapidly went up and in the later years of the war the boards of arbitration awarded the replacement value of the ships. The British ship in question was in the service of Canada at the time she was lost. Marine insurance rates had become so great that no government could carry them; a few months' insurance would eat up the whole value of the ship. Canada, having assumed the risk while the vessel was under charter to her, has been called upon to make good the loss occasioned through the vessel having been torpedoed. My recollection is that the cost of the ship is about $1,000,000 and that the finding of the board of arbitration was that we should pay a replacement value of something like $3,000,000, I think—an enormous figure, at all events. These figures will be found in the department. Last summer we were not able to arrive at an agreement in regard to that item. In reply to my objection that Canada was not represented on the arbitration board, the officials of the Ministry of Shipping said that men had been appointed whom they thought would represent us; that the same board had acted in reference to British, Australian and Canadian ships, ships of every nation, and they were under the impression that Canada was virtually bound by the arrangement. I took the other ground, so the matter stood. But all other outstanding items in regard to shipping were settled, and the document setting forth the settlement must be in the department. I have the impression that the amount was not nearly so great as that stated by my hon. friend to-night.

Mr. GRAHAM: My hon. friend is right; I have the figures here. Settlement was made of all the other claims, but the amount has not been paid, so it comes under this vote. We have to take $2,243,000 from this item for that purpose. That comes out of this amount to begin with.

Mr. GUTHRIE: The claim, I think, was three and a quarter million, and they reduce it to about two and a half million.

Mr. GRAHAM: To $2,243,000.

Mr. GUTHRIE: In addition, there is still outstanding the claim for the lost ship?

Mr. GRAHAM: That is the situation.

Mr. SHAW: I would like to urge upon the minister the desirability of having these war medals distributed to those entitled to them at the earliest possible date. The men who are entitled to them value them very highly, but if they do not get them soon, they will probably care very little about them. The war is over now almost four years, and I think it is desirable that the distribution of medals should be speeded up. I have received many requests about them, as no doubt have other hon. members, and I would suggest that if it is a question of manufacture, that the manufacture be speeded up. If it is simply a question of distribution, an effort should be made to get the medals out as soon as possible.

Mr. GRAHAM: The department receives a great many requests too. For a time the department was sending out as many as 25,000 medals a month. We are sending them out now just as rapidly as we get them. We are in communication with the British authorities urging them to speed up production. Just as fast as we get them, we distribute them. The young men and their relatives are naturally getting very anxious to get the medals. Our list is all ready, and we have quite a large staff that is being retained largely for the purpose of distributing these medals. I can assure my hon. friend that we are doing everything possible to speed up the manufacture at the other end.

Mr. GUTHRIE: I think the record of the department in regard to the distribution of medals is pretty good, when you consider the millions of medals that have to be made for all the men who served in the army and navy of Great Britain and the Dominions. I enquired into this matter last summer and found that they were speeding up in every possible way, but I suppose there must be eight or ten million medals altogether to be made and distributed.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: With regard to the Vickers Limited claim, my recollection was that the amount the company were willing to settle for was £40,000. We thought that too high. I was going to ask whether the matter is now in the Exchequer Court.

Mr. GRAHAM: No. It is a question of just how we can get the matter settled. The correspondence shows that £45,000 was the amount. I cabled to England the other day, and suggested that I understood they had agreed to settle for £40,000, but they repudiated that suggestion.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: There is no doubt about the £45,000.

Mr. GRAHAM: The claim was much higher than that in the first place, but they have gradually reduced it. They even dispute that the correspondence would show that they offered to take £45,000. We contend that they at least offered to take that, and we are in correspondence with them still. I agree with the ex-Minister of Militia that they have a substantial claim under the rulings that were made by the British Shipping Board for the settling of all claims. It is one of those things that are not easy to work out, but we hope to get the matter in shape before another session.

Item agreed to.

SECRETARY OF STATE

Adjustment of war claims—Secretary of State, $75,000.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: What is the explanation of the increase?

Hon. A. B. COPP (Secretary of State): This amount is required largely for the carrying on of the operations of the clearing house that was established last year. The salaries and expenses last year amounted to a trifle over $60,000, and the vote was only $50,000. Owing to the fact that there is a large increase of the work, and will be during the present year, we find it necessary to ask for this amount.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: There were some extraordinary expenses last year in connection with this item. There were difficulties, for instance, which arose in England necessitating our sending the deputy over, not only to England, but also to Germany, with a view to speeding up matters and bringing them to a satisfactory conclusion. The vote last year was probably not sufficient, as the minister says. I would have thought, however, that last year was the high water mark and that we would be reducing the item now. I do not know whether anything new has turned up, but I thought that we had finished with excursions to Germany.

Mr. COPP: Unfortunately, I am afraid that we shall have to send a delegation to Germany again this year.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: It is very unfortunate.

Mr. COPP: The information I received from my deputy, who has had this matter in charge, is that our clearing office is not in direct connection with the German clearing office. The claims all have to pass through the central clearing office in England, which causes a great deal of delay in getting the claims adjusted. We have been following up these claims just as closely as we could, but it has been impossible during the last few months to get them adjusted satisfactorily. If we could possibly come to any arrangement for getting the returns back and forth direct and settling with our Canadians, it would facilitate matters. Something must be done, because from the information I have received from the officials it has been almost impossible to get these matters closed up in the last few months. Greater energy must be put into the work. I have no desire to ask for any more than is absolutely necessary, I can assure my hon. friend, but my information is that we shall require this amount to make us absolutely safe this year.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: I know there has been a great deal of difficulty in the past. We had to work through the British clearing office, which has a great deal of work to do, and it was pretty hard to get these claims adjusted with proper business alacrity, but we looked after that in the autumn of last year by leaving a man there who was familiar with the business of the British office. I hope there are not going to be any more expeditions.

Mr. COPP: That officer is still there, and has been working there ever since that time, but we have not been able to get action. The time has arrived, judging by the number of letters and telegrams we receive, and by the number of hon. members making representations, when the work of adjusting these claims should be speeded up, and that is what we are endeavouring to do.

Item agreed to.

TRADE AND COMMERCE

Trade and Commerce Department. Maintenance of terminal elevators and necessary equipment, $95,000.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: What is the reason for the increase there?

Hon. J. A. ROBB (Minister of Trade and Commerce): It is to provide for cleaning machinery in the elevator at Vancouver so as to put that elevator in a position to handle grain, more particularly the grain coming in over the Canadian National Railways. Considerable grain was shipped there during the winter, I think around eight million bushels, and it may be interesting to the committee to know that from the province of Alberta it is cheaper to ship grain to England via Vancouver than via the Atlantic ports.

[Mr. Copp.]

Mr. CHURCH: May I ask the minister what has been done to meet the need for terminal elevators in the province of Ontario? About three years ago there waited upon the government a large deputation composed of the following representatives: City of Toronto, Minister of Agriculture for Ontario, United Farmers' of Ontario, United Farmers' Co-operative Company, Limited, representatives of the Grain section, Toronto Board of Trade, representatives of the Toronto Harbour Commission. The deputation introduced asked that an interior elevator be built in Ontario and we presented a very elaborate memorandum to the government showing the necessity for it. I would like to ask the minister if the time has not come to consider the policy of building one or more of these elevators in the province of Ontario? The government told us in 1918 they would build one when the war was over. At present there are no such facilities in central and western Ontario for the storage of the farmer's crop. It was pointed out that in some cities a large expenditure is being made on harbour improvements. In my own city we used to have these elevators some years ago but now we have not got any. $26,000,000 is being spent rebuilding the port. The urgent need of an elevator at some place on lake Ontario, has been pointed out. I would like to know if anything is going to be done in this direction for the province of Ontario because the government has established elevators in other parts of the country and I think they should do the same for the province from which I come?

Mr. ROBB: As my hon. friend is surely aware there is a greater storage capacity in the province of Ontario than in any of the other provinces. He must be cognizant of the immense storage capacity we have at Fort William and Port Arthur, and I suppose the province of Ontario will claim that those two enterprising towns are within its boundaries. At Port Colborne there is also a large elevator, and there are likewise elevators at Georgian Bay ports. So far as I am aware no complaint has been received of the shortage of storage capacity on the lakes.

Mr. CHURCH: I am going to read from the memorandum presented by the deputation referred to, a few paragraphs with respect to the need of terminal elevators in Ontario, because I am satisfied the minister is not seized of the very important facts embodied therein: The purpose of the deputation was thus stated:

The purpose of the deputation is to ask the government of Canada to erect and operate an interior terminal elevator for the service of Ontario, particularly central and western Ontario. It is assumed that such an elevator would be included as one of the chain of elevators at present operated by the Board of Grain Commissioners of the Department of Trade and Commerce. The type of elevator should, it is submitted, follow the lines of those at present in operation at Calgary, Saskatoon and Moosejaw in the western provinces, and be modern and well equipped in every particular. Its capacity should be sufficient to meet the needs of central and western Ontario as determined after examination by the experts of your departments. Such an elevator, it is submitted, should be located where convenient transportation facilities are available by road, by rail and by water. While we realize that the selection of the exact location would be contingent on the investigation of the experts of your departments, we are glad to have associated with us in this deputation representatives of the Toronto Harbour Commission Board.

Ontario produces annually approximately 200,000,000 bushels of grain of various kinds. In 1918 the total aggregated nearly 225,000,000 bushels, but this was an exceptionally favourable year for grain crops. It will be seen that in the average year Ontario produces enormous quantities of grain. Very considerable of this grain is used for live stock feeding as the live stock industry is a prominent one in the province of Ontario. At the same time there is no doubt but that millions of bushels change hands each year as grain, being sold either in the local trade, in inter-provincial trade, or for export. At the present time there is no Government interior terminal elevator in the province at which grain may be officially weighed and graded, as is done in the other provinces. At the present time the Grain Commission is endeavouring to purchase over 500,000 bushels of oats in Ontario, but there is no central point at which this grain can be officially asembled, weighed and graded. The absence of these facilities in Ontario has proven a loss to the farmers, a great inconvenience to those engaged in the grain trade, and a handicap to the Province in competing in these lines with other provinces which have the benefit of such facilities.

This deputation, therefore, desires to lay special emphasis on the public service functions which such an elevator would perform to the agricultural and commercial interests of the province.

Then follows a summary of the functions alluded to among which appear the following:

It would provide accommodation for the weighing, cleaning, drying, storing and grading of all kinds of grain in the province.

It would be an advantage to individual farmers, by enabling them to ship carload lots of grain which would be officially weighed and stored, and for which there would be issued an official certificate which would be recognized by the bank at once, thus broadening the farmers' market.

It would provide facilities for the storing, cleaning and grading of different kinds of seed and in this regard would be of great advantage to the farmers of the province, particularly with reference to grass and clover seeds.

It would be of much advantage to the live stock industry of the province by facilitating the distribution of feeding stuffs from one section to another in the case of short crops in the local districts or in the province as a whole.

It would be able to perform a distinct service in preventing the deterioration of certain crops in the province in the years of too much moisture, as is illustrated in the bean crop in recent years. The crop of buckwheat this year has had to be dried because of the wet weather which prevailed at the time of harvsting.

Special emphasis is laid on the fact that such an elevator would be a public elevator and certificates issued would be official government certificates, both of which are advantages affording great protection to the public and not available in the same sense from private enterprise.

Then the commercial side of the question is dwelt upon in the memorandum and the great advantages that would result from the carrying out of the enterprise are effectively pointed out.

I may say that the minister some time ago brought down a return showing the number of elevators there are in Canada, and the original cost of each. Among those are enumerated the following:

12 m.

Consolidated	$ 594,081
Empire	556,611
Thunder Bay	532,383
Fort William	651,089
Ogilvie	554,823
Western Terminal	762,737
Canadian Government	1,315,767
C.N.R. A & B	1,961,000
G.T.P.	1,949,000
C.P.R. D	2,156,942
C.P.R. A & C	605,720
C.P.R. B & E	855,849

I hope the minister will look into this matter, because I have in my possession a very elaborate brief which has been carefully prepared by the interests that I have named. I know the late Lieutenant-Governor Clark was a man who took a great deal of interest in the farming and grain interests of Ontario, and he was very much seized with the importance of having proper terminal elevators, because the steam railways are not treating the farmers of the province as they should and the fact is that the farmers have no place to take their crop in western and central Ontario. I have a large number of petitions signed by men interested in farming exhibitions, fairs and so on. We have been told that the financial situation has been such that public works could not be built except where absolutely necessary; but for the last year or two the financial situation has been improving, and I hope the minister will give us some relief. I have petitions signed by county councils and various other public bodies that I have named. It is too bad that, in the old province of Ontario, we are not getting the relief that we should get even as regards elevator transportation facilities. On account of the fact that we could not get proper transportation facilities from the steam roads, 368 municipalities became so disgusted with the way they were being treated by the steam roads that they passed bylaws for a large system of hydro-electric railways in Ontario. We are quite agreeable that more elevators should be built throughout the country; but in Ontario they seem to have been eliminated. True it is, that there is one at Fort William and another at Port Colborne; but they are for through waterborne traffic largely, and western Ontario and central Ontario are absolutely lacking in elevator facilities to take care of the farmers' grain crops. We have a very active and aggressive minister; I hope he will take this matter up and give us some relief in central and western Ontario. I do not wish to detain the committee, and I would like to see these estimates go through quickly. I hope the minister will go into this very important matter, meet this deputation again and see if something cannot be done to give the farmers of western and central Ontario a place to store their crop. Why should Ontario not have at the country's expense what every other province has now?

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: I am sure the minister will give us a proper undertaking to this effect.

Mr. ROBB: I shall be very glad to look over the representations made by my hon. friend. Perhaps he might tell me where he would like me to locate this elevator, should we decide to erect one.

Mr. CHURCH: I cannot say that. The memo refers to the site at length. They say that they will leave that to the minister. The Grain Commissioners have certain views in this respect; they presented them to Sir Thomas White, the then Minister of Finance and to the then Minister of Trade and Commerce, and they made a recommendation as to location. I am not prepared to say where the elevator should be located. This deputation of the United Farmers said that it should be located in Toronto. I do not care where it is located so long as central and western Ontario get some relief from the intolerable conditions under which they are suffering at the present time. I am not asking where it be erected, but central and western Ontario should have some relief, and Toronto is the logical place from the economic and transportation standpoints.

Mr. CRERAR: I should like to offer a suggestion to the minister regarding the administration of these terminal elevators, and I think my suggestion might appropriately come under this item. At present the administration of terminal elevators owned by the Government, both at the head of the lakes and at points further west, lies in the hands of the Grain Commission. One of the commissioners, indeed, has active charge of the administration of these elevators. I have always thought that was a mistake as regards administration. The Grain Commission is a judicial body created by act of this Parliament for settling disputes that may arise in the conduct of the grain business. It was never intended to be an administrative board in the sense of administering the operation of these elevators. My suggestion to the Government and to the minister—and I am sure it will receive his usual careful consideration—is that his department might well give consideration to the matter of separating the administration of these terminal elevators from the Board of Grain Commissioners altogether and putting the administration in charge of a competent official for that purpose. That would relieve the Board of Grain Commissioners of that duty; it would place them more clearly in the judicial capacity which they are supposed and intended under the act to occupy. As a matter of fact, the Government is operating terminal elevators in competition with private concerns. I have no fault to find with that. I have advocated in the past and I still adhere to the view that it might be better, in the interest of the whole trade of Canada, if all these terminal elevators were operated as Government utilities the same as the Government elevator at Port Arthur is. But in any case, so long as they are operating an elevator, it should be an administrative function directly responsible to the minister and should not be involved with the conduct of a body that should be entirely judicial in its operations and character.

Mr. McBRIDE: As regards the elevator at Vancouver, if there is in Canada any place that requires additional elevator facilities, it is Vancouver. I do not represent Vancouver, and if some hon. members from that city were present, they could go more fully into the matter than I. But when I state that the Canadian Pacific yards at Vancouver were last winter blocked to such an extent that they had to leave 500 cars at Kamloops that they could not take down to the coast until some steamers came in to relieve the elevators, it will be realized that, under such conditions, a much larger sum than $95,000 should be appropriated to extend the elevator systems at Vancouver. This, however, is a step in the right direction.

Mr. ROBB: I quite agree with the hon. member for Marquette (Mr. Crerar) that there is room for improvement in the administration and management of government-operated elevators, and we shall consider those representations during the summer and see what can be done towards improving conditions. As regards the observations of the hon. member for Cariboo (Mr. McBride), we hope to relieve in a measure the congestion of last year when we have the cleaning machinery installed in that elevator, so that it will be able to handle the grain more quickly.

Mr. LUCAS: When we were discussing the Canada Grain Act the other night, I understood the minister to say that we would be allowed to discuss it again under this item.

Mr. ROBB: Yes.

Mr. LUCAS: I should like to call the minister's attention to a matter regarding the car demurrage rule, which provides for forty eight hours' free time exclusive of Sundays for loading and unloading commodities. The exception to that rule is that, in that portion of Canada, Port Arthur and the West, in which the Grain Act applies, twenty hours' free time only is allowed for loading grain. I understand this legislation was enacted with a view to speeding up the loading and prompt handling of grain in the short time available for handling the crop. This legislation hits directly at the farmer; in fact, he is the only one hit, as the elevators have no limit to the number of cars they can load provided that they can get the cars. The farmer, on the other hand, unless he lives very close to an elevator, is unable to load a car in twenty-four hours, and as help is very hard to get at this time, he usually has to take an extra day to load his car. As a result, the handling of grain is not speeded up; in fact, in 95 cases out of 100 the farmer has to take 48 hours to load a car, and the object for which the rule was passed is not attained. For that reason, it has occurred to me that an amendment to the Grain Act might be submitted, allowing 48 hours for loading grain from loading platforms only. As I said before, the elevators do not need this, and I see no reason why the farmer with his grain should be allowed only 24 hours when all other commodities are allowed 48 hours. I call this to the attention of the minister and trust that he will see his way clear to bring in an amendment in this direction. It would be a great advantage.

Mr. ROBB: I shall look into the representations of my hon. friend. My impression is that this is really a matter that is regulated by the Railway Commissioners, although I am not sure. In passing, may I suggest to my hon. friend that the longer he ties up a car the greater will be the dearth of cars during the season when they are most required. These limited times were provided in order to aid the shippers, because the faster they can load the cars and keep them moving the better it is for all Western Canada. However, I shall consider the representations that have been made.

Mr. SALES: Do I understand the minister to say that the grain trade generally can be discussed under this item?

Mr. ROBB: That was the understanding on the last occasion.

Mr. SALES: The other evening I raised a question in regard to the private elevators and the Order in Council that was passed in connection with the subject. I do not know whether the minister has had time to look into the matter, or is prepared to state whether he intends to allow that business to be carried on. I think that the Order in Council should be revoked and the private elevators confined to the business they are intended to do. Furthermore, if the depreciating of the grain to No. 3 grade is to continue, I contend that the certificates for the grain passing through the private terminal elevators should bear the word "sample" or the words "mixed grade". The minister said the other night that we should preserve the fair name of Canada. I agree with him; and in order that our grain may continue to bear the good reputation that it has enjoyed up to this time in the British market I think that this mixed grade should have a different certificate from that given for the straight grade grain from the public terminal elevators. I presume the minister is going to allow us to discuss item No. 374 a little later on. It provides for salaries and expenses of the Grain Inquiry Commission.

Mr. ROBB: We shall take that matter up when we come to it.

Item agreed on.

To provide for salaries and expenses of the Grain Inquiry Commission, $40,000.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: Before we proceed, may I ask, merely for information, how many more votes the minister intends to get through? What is his intention as to the length of the sitting to-night?

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: It is advisable that we should endeavour to bring the session to a close, and if hon. members opposite are agreeable we may sit until possibly one o'clock.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: I was not complaining.

Mr. SALES: Will the minister explain this item?

Mr. ROBB: This amount is provided to meet any demand that may be made for a grain inquiry by those interested in the trade. There has been a limited demand for grain inquiry. I shall be glad to have representations from those representing the trade of Western Canada as to whether they desire any investigation into the grain trade.

Mr. CRERAR: Has this any reference to the resumption of the work of the body known as the Hyndman Commission?

Mr. ROBB: It is not exactly a resumption of that work, but as a result of that inquiry and what was brought out it was represented to us from some sources that there still existed some degree of unfairness, that the matter had not been all cleaned up to the satisfaction of the trade, and we therefore put in this vote to provide for any inquiry, should one be demanded. I may say at once that if there is a reasonable request from the growers for an investigation the Government will be disposed to consider it. Of course, we must bear in mind that there is no trade in this country that has been so often investigated as the grain trade of western Canada. I have been looking into the matter and I find that there have been thirteen different inquiries, royal commissions, and departmental investigations, into the trade of western Canada, and I suppose that an investigation is looked upon as an annual affair. I repeat, we are open to suggestions from our friends who are interested in western Canada, and the Government will be guided by the representations that are submitted to them.

Mr. CRERAR: So far as the work of the Hyndman Commission is concerned, and the causes that led to the appointment of that body, I think it is pretty well within the knowledge of every one who knew anything of the circumstances, that there was no widespread demand,—indeed, as far as I know, there was no demand from any reasonable body of opinion—for the institution of that inquiry at the time it was started. I do not wish to-night to enter upon any extensive discussion of the work of the Hyndman Commission, so called, further than to make this observation, that it was very unfortunately constituted, in some of its personnel, for the work it had to do. I have stated publicly elsewhere, and I repeat here, that the late Commissioner Staples, of the Board of Grain Commissioners, should certainly never have been placed on any royal grain inquiry. There was no useful work that the royal grain inquiry, known as the Hyndman Commission, undertook to do that could not have been done by the Board of Grain Commissioners in the first instance. The Board of Grain Commisioners is expressly clothed under the law with all the powers of inquiry that are vested under part one of the Inquiries Act. I have stated before, and I will repeat here, that the main purpose of the Grain Enquiry Commission was political rather than to seek remedies for abuses in the grain business. However, that may pass now. So far as inquiries are concerned, I do think that the minister might well institute some investigation, departmental or otherwise, that would go fully and thoroughly into the operation of the terminal elevators at Fort William, covering the handling of grain from the time it enters those elevators until it leaves. The elevators at Fort William are under the direction and control of the Government in the matter of inspection and weighing. The supervision of the grain handled through these elevators is always under the eye of government officials, and consequently the certificate of weight or of grade issued on grain entering these elevators or leaving them is a government certificate. As has been pointed out by the hon. member for Saltcoats (Mr. Sales), there has been a good deal of dissatisfaction, particularly in the past year, with the outward inspection at some of the elevators at Fort William.

My own judgment is that the inspection work at Fort William has been weak, and not properly looked after. In that respect I have another suggestion to offer to the minister. It is that the whole work of grain inspection covered by the Canada Grain Act be placed in the hands of the chief grain inspector, who should be made responsible for the efficiency and character of this work throughout his jurisdiction. As a matter of fact, owing to conditions that existed in Fort William under the administration of the law—which I do not wish to enter into to-night to any extent—the inspection of the elevators was not as closely under the direction and control of the chief grain inspector as it should have been. Theoretically he may have been the official responsible for the efficiency of that inspection, but in actual practice a condition developed at the head of the lakes under which he did not have that control which he should have had. I think the causes for that condition probably do not now obtain, but in my judgment the minister would be well advised to place the whole inspection business under the chief grain inspector and make him responsible to the department instead of to the Board of Grain Commissioners, for the same reason that I urged a few moments ago that the administration of the terminal elevators should be taken out of the hands of the Board of Grain Commissioners. The business of grain inspection is an administrative function, and the best results will be obtained in the administration of this act if that function is disassociated from the judicial function which primarily rests, as it should rest, in the Board of Grain Commissioners.

There is another matter which I wish to make allusion to, because I find that throughout eastern Canada particularly there is a very widespread misunderstanding and misapprehension of the conditions existing in the terminal elevators, and especially in the elevator controlled by the company with which I have been associated. The Royal Grain Inquiry Commission early last June, when it was sitting in the province of Saskatchewan, by telegram authorized its secretary to hold a special session at Fort William, which was in the nature of a secret session. That session was held as was disclosed in evidence brought out in the injunction proceedings at Winnipeg, for the purpose of investigating certain charges against the Grain Growers' administration of their terminal elevator. The inquiry was held in camera, no notice was given to the parties concerned, and very serious charges were levelled against the United Grain Growers for what had happened eight years previous. I repeat that this evidence was received and published in the newspapers throughout the country without our having any chance to appear at the proceedings and question the witness who gave that evidence, in which serious reflections were made on that company. It was the most unfair and unjudicial inquiry under the guise of a commission that has ever taken place in the Dominion. I wish to place these facts before the House and the country in order that they may appreciate what really took place.

The impression exists, and it was fostered in every possible way during the last election campaign, that the United Grain Growers were afraid of an inquiry into their administration; in a word, that there was something dark and mysterious and sinister that they wished to conceal. Within a few weeks of the time that that inquiry took place at Fort William we asked the Board of Grain Commissioners—who have practically all the powers that the Royal Grain Inquiry Commission had—to investigate as thoroughly and completely as they could all the allegations that had been made against the company. That was not done, although we repeated our request several times. We took the opportunity to clear up as far as we were able these allegations, and, speaking for that responsible company that has been doing business and enjoys a good reputation, I hope that if an inquiry is made by the minister it will cover the particular transactions that I have referred to, because there is no foundation in fact for the allegations which were made at this particular sitting. And, let me say again that secretly arranged session was one of the most discreditable episodes that has occurred in any judicial inquiry in the history of this country.

I think some useful purpose could be served by an inquiry into the operation of the terminal elevators. I believe that all the legitimate terminal elevators—and I make no reflections on any of the operators of those elevators—would welcome such an inquiry. I believe that the inspection at Fort William last year was lax, particularly in regard to outward business, but that was the fault of the administration of the law, and has led to the criticism referred to by some hon. members here as to the quality of our grain not being up to the standard of inspection when it reaches the markets of the world. It is of the very greatest importance to the farmers and others engaged in the wheat business in western Canada that the high reputation our grain has hitherto enjoyed should be maintained by keeping up the high standard of our inspection, and I have every confidence that this will be done by the chief grain inspector in Winnipeg. I have known him for many years as a man well qualified for the post he holds, and I am quite certain that if he is given the necessary authority he will see that the inspection of western Canadian wheat is kept up to the proper standard and will not permit monkeying with it in any elevator. It should be borne in mind, let me repeat, that the inspection and weighing of grain into and out of these elevators is altogether in the hands of government officials, and I believe if the minister accepts and puts into effect the suggestions I have offered him to-night it will result in placing the administration of those houses on a basis where every person desires to see it placed and maintained.

So far as an inquiry into the handling of grain through country elevators is concerned, it could do no harm, but I frankly say that I do not think any very useful results would accrue from it. If, however, there is a widespread demand for such an inquiry it should be granted. But I would point out again that the Grain Act expressly clothes the Board of Grain Commissioners with all the powers necessary to inquire into any complaints of abuses that may exist in the handling of grain anywhere throughout the three prairie provinces, and I think that board could do the work, and do it to the satisfaction of all the producers who are interested in the handling of grain.

Mr. McBRIDE: I should like to add a word to what my hon. leader has said. I am more than pleased with the clear-cut statement he has made. I have not so far taken up the time of the House with electioneering matters, but I think this an appropriate occasion to refer to the insinuations which were cast against my leader from one end of my riding to the other during the last campaign. It was put up to me time and time again that it was hard to understand how I could come down here and support a man who was at the head of a system the purpose of which was to get away with grain, etc. There happened to come out from Manitoba at the time a gentleman who had known my hon. leader and I got him to come with me from place to place and to contradict the statements which had been made. He said he had known the hon. member for Marquette for years; that he was familiar with the system with which he was connected, and that he could give his word of honour that no one was more anxious to do what was right than the hon. member for Marquette. I am glad, I say, to hear his clear cut statement in respect to the investigation which has been asked for.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: I feel but ill prepared to talk about the grain business and the so-called iniquities of the grain inquiry, the impropriety of trying to find out whether or not allegations made are correct, especially at this late hour, and more particularly because I never was very intimately connected with these matters. However, I want to say one or two things. In the first place, let me tell my hon. friend (Mr. Crerar) that there were complaints and are complaints with regard to the manner in which the business is being carried on. It may be that as the operator of his terminal company these complaints are not heard by my hon. friend as they are by others. But I had complaints made to me to-day by one of his own followers with regard to the way the farmers are treated, True, he makes no specific complaint as against this elevator company or that, but the complaints are as to prices, as to treatments; they affect the farmer and the grower, particularly those at a distance from railways. He says that one day the price of wheat is so much; he is told he can get so much, but when he proceeds to try to get it he finds that the market has disappeared and he can find out nothing about it. If the leader of the third party, then, does not know that there were complaints, let me tell him that there were many complaints in western Canada as to grain handling, grain marketing, grain practices, and grain prices. There are complaints to-day, and he must know of them. I do not pretend for one minute to know anything about what was done by the Hyndman commission. But I want to say this: I have known my hon. friend for some time, and I was convinced when I saw that evidence that my hon. friend had nothing to do with it and knew nothing about it. But I thought he took the very worst step he could have taken in his own interests in saying that the lid had to be put on; that at all hazards, whether the grain law of Canada was upset or not, the injunction should go and that this country and the grain trade should be put in the position in which it now is. Sometimes mistakes are made. In this case I think a great mistake was made, but without the slightest thought as to the consequences entailed; without the slightest thought on my hon. friend's part that he had done anything wrong that he would have to cover up. But it is a mistake when you are one hundred per cent right to put yourself in a position where people can say you are one hundred per cent wrong.

An hon. MEMBER: They did not say that.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: He did not say it, no; but when a charge is made, when evidence is disclosed pertaining to it and many people look upon the person charged as entirely innocent, the very last thing that will cause them to hold to that view is an injunction. Well, the inquiry was stopped. If I recollect aright, the court, notwithstanding everything my hon. friend has said to-day, held that the Hyndman Commission had a right to go on; that nothing had been done in Fort William or anywhere else which would prevent the board from functioning as it ought to function. My hon. friend says he is going to wait for complaints. Surely he knows there are complaints; surely he knows there was dissatisfaction. I am very glad to hear the leader of the third party suggest that an inquiry should be held; in fact, I should have thought he would have been absolutely insistent upon it. He says he finds there are suspicions abroad. That is quite right; and I hope they will be allayed. There were suspicions, and they were made all the worse by reason of the newspaper defence that was put in by the Grain Growers' Company. The defence which dealt with the question of sleeves made the situation all the worse. I hope, I say, they will all be got rid of and that my hon. friends will be able to show that they have had nothing whatever to do with it.

Now, the hon. member for Marquette insinuates that the whole object behind this inquiry was a political one. Well, I know some people do make political footballs of grievances. But if in the carrying on of their business the farmers have had real difficulties, and if in that connection some one should try to find out what was wrong, the mere possibility of a political opponent being in a position, to use the words of one of my hon. friend's own late colleagues, to "farm the farmer"—that, I contend, does not make any inquiry into those grievances entirely political. I venture to suggest that that is an improper position for my hon. friend to take; it is an unfair insinuation. Whatever investigation is made, I am confident that the honour of my personal friend will remain just where I have always felt it was. But for the protection of that honour, the very best thing that can be done is to continue that investigation which the courts of the country have found to be properly constituted.

Mr. CRERAR: I have only a word to say in reply to what the hon. member for West York (Sir Henry Drayton) has just stated. I appreciate the reference he has made to myself; I could have wished that his political friends throughout Canada in the last election had entertained always the same opinion. So far as the work of the Hyndman Commission is concerned and its attitude in the particular instance that I mentioned, I want nothing more than the exposure of the whole facts to the fullest light of day so that they may be seen by every person in this country from the Atlantic to the Pacific. My hon. friend says that I was poorly advised when injunction proceedings were taken to restrain the commission; when the lid was put on. Why were the injunction proceedings taken? If my hon. friend were in similar circumstances and he believed and knew from all the facts of the case, as far as the facts of the case could inform him, that he could not get a fair judgment or a fair show from such a commission, what would he do? He would do precisely what was done in that case, and the best evidence of the fact that the United Grain Growers did not wish to put the lid on, but wished to have the full facts investigated, lies in this, that they asked the Board of Grain Commissioners who had all the powers necessary in the matter, to make a most thorough inquiry into the whole proceedings at Fort William. Instead of any desire to put on the lid, there was the fullest possible desire to have the whole thing exposed to the light of day, but exposed to the light of day in a fair manner, and not in a prejudiced manner. My hon. friend, whom I acquit at once—I am not in the slightest degree reflecting upon him—but let me remind him that not only did we ask that this question be investigated in the fullest possible manner by the Board of Grain Commissioners, who had, let me repeat, all the powers necessary to investigate it, but my hon. friend's friends in western Canada made this matter an issue in the recent election in the prairie provinces. I could take him to the country school-houses and show him literature that was sent out by the hundreds of pounds from the publicity offices of his party in Winnipeg, Regina, and Calgary. The one issue submitted to the people by my hon. friend's friends in western Canada was that Progressives should not be supported, that Crerar was a dangerous man, that he had refused to have his case investigated, that he was under a cloud. These were the statements made by my hon. friend's friends in western Canada. As a matter of fact, not only did we not seek to evade any inquiry, but I repeat, my hon. friend's friends made this an issue in western Canada, and, Mr. Chairman, they got their reply on December 6th.

I do not wish to burk any inquiry. As far as I personally am concerned, and so far as the farmers' companies are concerned, they court the fullest possible inquiry. But I would say this: there have been grievances in western Canada. I have never known a year when there were not grievances, and often legitimate grievances, on the part of the farmers in the handling of their grain, but I ask again, why was the Board of Grain Commissioners created by the late government? It was created for the specific and sole purpose of inquiring into these grievances, and it did inquire into them. If a farmer could not get cars to ship his grain, or was getting unfair treatment from a country elevator, he could report to the Board of Grain Commissioners and under the law they were required to investigate his case, and when the facts warranted they did investigate his case. I regret to say that there grew up a condition in western Canada where there was a great lack of faith in the Board of Grain Commissioners, and I believe the cause of that lack of faith has lately been removed from the board.

This business should be put on a fair basis. I repeat, I think an inquiry could usefully be made in respect to the operation of terminal elevators in the manner I indicated a little while ago and I think the minister would be well advised in undertaking it. If there is a substantial reason why such an inquiry should go further into the prairies and investigate conditions there, I have no objection, but that involves expense. I say, again, if your Board of Grain Commissioners is properly constituted, and I have a good deal of confidence in the board as it stands at present, they could inquire into all these things and settle them. The board was created for that purpose. The late government showed a great lack of faith in its own board when it did not entrust to them an inquiry into all these matters. I do not wish to make my language too strong. I try to be temperate and moderate in my statements in this House, but I will leave it to any reasonable man in this country whether the whole proceedings, the literature, disseminated by my hon. friend's party in western Canada during the election, literature that reached out into the far province of British Columbia, and the stories that I heard down in the maritime provinces, did not stamp the whole thing as largely political. My hon. friends to my right have certainly suffered a very great deal at the hands of some of their friends in the late contest.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: I would ask the minister who are the members of the Board of Grain Commissioners at present?

Mr. ROBB: Mr. Boyd, Chairman, Mr. Jones, and we have lately appointed Mr. Matthew Snow, who seems to enjoy in a very large degree the confidence not only of the growers but the handlers of grain in western Canada.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: I do not want to prolong this discussion at all. I want to be absolutely fair and frank. I think my hon. friend is sorry he ever got that injunction. I think he is sorry he upset the Grain Act of this country.

Mr. CRERAR: Not correct.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: After all the doubts and all the troubles we have had in connection with this recent legislation, which all flow from the work that was done in connection with these injunction proceedings, I am quite sure my hon. friend is sorry that he ever took that step. It strikes one as being so totally inconsistent that one should be so anxious to be tried by this same man when he is one-third of a court, and object to him when he is only one-fourth of the court. My hon. friend no doubt wants an investigation, and I agree that he should have it. I hope it will go on, and that it will be thorough, and I hope that the evidence that was given will be absolutely refuted to the full one hundred per cent that it is possible to refute it. If by any chance it be true that there was in the elevator there—it does not make a bit of difference whose elevator it was—any false bottoms, false weighing machines, sleeves or any other artificial dodge by which it would be possible for the grain grower to be cheated, I hope that fact will be established.

Mr. CRERAR: I have just one observation to make, and that is to point out to the committee that the validity of the Grain Act was questioned long before the injunction proceedings were taken in Winnipeg last summer. I do not want to detract in any way from whatever strength my hon. friend might bring to the support of a very weak case. But that is a fact that every one is well aware of: The validity of the Act was questioned before those injunction proceedings were taken.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: If that is so, I apologize; I did not know it.

Mr. GOULD: It is not my intention to enter into the debate that has interested the House seeing that the laurels rest upon my leader. He has made the statement that often times in the West conditions obtain with which the farmer is not satisfied. Now during the marketing season the whole country is filled with complaints. It is true that some have not proven to be well founded, and others again have not perhaps much weight; but I want to state this—and I have a concrete instance before me to prove it—that it seems to me the grain companies in western Canada frequently take liberties that are not warranted. I may state further that perhaps the individual growers of wheat do not always appreciate the fact that a Board of Grain Commissioners exists for the purpose of investigating such evils as may be existing in the grain trade. Now the particular instance which I wish to cite to the House has to do with a neighbour of mine who shipped a carload of grain down to the terminal elevator with instructions to store the grain, and upon instructions later on to sell that grain he received the return. He sent a copy of it down to me and it seems to me that the company concerned has taken a most unwarranted license with that man's grain. For instance in this case when the grain was stored a wire was sent him advising him that the price was $1.26. Before leaving the station he sent a reply "Accept that price". I can quite conceive that in the time occupied in the transmission of that wire from Winnipeg to his station and the transmission of the reply, there might be a drop in price; in fact the price did drop 1¼ cents. But this grain was in store for 93 days and I believe when it was put into the storage elevator it was cleaned. But the return shows that twenty-six bushels were cleaned out of that carload of grain and for those screenings this man was charged $2.29 storage. Now I do not believe that twenty-six bushels was stored because wheat is cleaned before storing, and yet we find that $2.29 is charged for storage alone for some twenty-six odd bushels cleaned out of that grain. Under the law screenings are sold as feed and computed by the ton and having paid $2.29 for storage my neighbour received just 33 cents for his twenty-six bushels. He absolutely lost the whole value of the screenings as feed, was charged $2.29 for the storage of cleanings which I believe never were stored, and he received only 33 cents. Now someone received that profit of $2.29; I believe that if the matter were pressed it can be proved that this is an unwarranted license and an injustice to the man who owned the wheat. There are many very similar cases which I might quote, but I thought the recitation of the one instance would be sufficient. It does seem to me that an occurrence of this kind needs to be rectified and possibly it would be a wholesome lesson for companies that in the past—and I can confirm this by my own personal experience for years—take liberties with the grain which they have received for care and keeping. I simply wished to placed this matter on record as one instance of the things that are complained of.

Mr. ROBB: If my hon. friend from Assiniboia will send the details of that particular instance to my office I will have it investigated.

Mr. CRERAR: That is what the Board of Grain Commissioners exists for.

Mr. ROBB: I may say, on behalf of the Government, that we have but one desire and that is to restore confidence in the administration of the grain trade of Canada —we admit there is want of confidence—and also to ensure that the wheat of Canada will maintain its splendid reputation. It is unfortunately too true that in recent times the reputation of our grain has suffered somewhat. I want to tell my hon. friends from the West that no later than to-day, I met the correspondent of a western newspaper, and the western grain grower has no better friend than the correspondent in question, who has recently returned from the British Isles. He informed me that there is a suspicion over there that our grain is not exactly what it should be, more particularly the grain going out from ports other than Canadian. The trade of the country can help us along these lines. If we wish to ensure that our grain shall go out maintaining its splendid reputation is it not reasonable that we should use our own ports, thus giving the earnings to our own transportation companies? In that way we shall help to maintain the reputation of our own products. I am not desirous of delaying the passage of my own estimates, but I just wished to give this assurance to my hon. friend that if we have an investigation—and both opposition parties seem to be desirous that there should be an inquiry—we will grant the fullest and plainest investigation in order that absolute confidence in the administration of the grain trade may exist on the part of all those engaged in this industry.

Mr. SALES: I am very pleased to hear the assurance of the minister with regard to this matter. He said that if there was any demand an inquiry would be granted. I can only assure him of this: That the largest farmers' association in the West, consisting of the Saskatchewan grain growers, that assembled in convention last February—representing between twenty-five and thirty thousand members—passed a resolution asking for an inquiry. I have also received a great many letters since I have been in Ottawa here from local associations urging me to ask for an inquiry, but they all agree that they do not want an inquiry by a commission composed of the same personnel as was the commission appointed by the late government.

Mr. ROBB: There is no use wasting time about that.

Mr. SALES: The minister says there is no use wasting time about it. I am very glad indeed to hear his statement. The minister made the remark that there had been many investigations into the grain trade. So there has; but I would point out that there is nothing in the world, within my knowledge, which is quite so easy to manipulate and mix as wheat. There is nothing that lends itself so readily to manipulation; and my experience has been that there is a new trick played every year, Just as fast as we get on to the old trick they adopt a new one the following year.

[Mr. Robb.]

Mr. ROBB: I shall have to go West and learn some of the tricks.

Mr. SALES: Yes, sir, go as far as Fort William and Port Arthur, and you will learn lots of them. It is pretty hard to quarrel with my hon. friend from West York (Sir Henry Drayton) when he adopts that benevolent go-to-Sunday-meeting-tone, but I have got to disagree with him just a little bit. I have here a sample of the literature which was strewn all over our country at election time. Every day three or four epistles of the kind would arrive at my house. They were addressed to my sons, not to me. I must have been on the black list, but of course, the boys used
1 a.m. to hand them to me, and wherever I went through the campaign I encountered bushels of them.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: I would like to see one.

Mr. SALES: There were bushels of them and every one contained some reference to "Voting for Meighen."

The CHAIRMAN: I should like to draw the attention of the hon. member to the fact that the discussion into which he has entered is not relevant to this particular item. The hon. member for Marquette (Mr. Crerar) had a reason, and a very good one, why he should have an opportunity of making a declaration and an explanation in regard to certain matters that had arisen, and that privilege was granted to him, I think, quite properly by the Chair. But I feel that a discussion of that particular matter is not relevant to the item which is before the committee at the present time.

Mr. SALES: Of course, sir, I will obey your ruling; but I want to point out that, with regard to this investigation, because after all, it is the grain inquiry—

The CHAIRMAN: What I meant was that anything that deals with any enquiries made by the Grain Enquiry Commission is relevant to this item and may be discussed; but there was a reason, as I stated, for the hon. member for Marquette being given an opportunity to make a statement regarding something which had happened which more or less reflected upon him and some of his business associates.

Mr. SALES: I am going to point out something which, I think, should be investigated. There was also a charge during the last campaign, but that is only incidental, and that is the selling of farmers' grain without permission. It was stated that there would not be any more of this if we elected our friends to the right. There never should have been any of it, if the commission had done its duty. The Grain Commission in the past has absolutely failed to do its duty in this respect. Let me point out how this works out. When a farmer sends his grain down to the head of the lakes and it is ordered to be held, he is paying storage on that grain until he sells it. When he has forwarded it, he has probably borrowed $1,000 on a car expecting that that grain will be held in the terminal elevator until he orders it to be sold. Immense quantities of grain have been sold without the farmer's permission, and he has been charged storage that he has not occupied. He has been charged interest on his money when his grain has been sold contrary to his orders and the firms have been using his money. His very object of withholding his grain from the market has been defeated because his grain has been sold contrary to his orders. That is a thing which would be a proper scope for an investigation. It has been proved over and over again. The attitude of our commission men who allow mills, contrary to the farmer's orders to draw grain which is passing those mills, is another matter which should be investigated. When wheat passes through Moosejaw, Kenora, through any of those places where those mills are grinding wheat, large quantities of it are stopped there without the farmer's permission or knowledge, and even cars which have been ordered to be sold are stopped and unloaded there without his permission. It is all this kind of thing which adds to the farmer's—I was going to say—contempt, for a commission which does not work as it ought to do. If the enquiry which is to be carried on, will have in view only one object, namely, the bettering of conditions in the grain trade, it will be welcomed by honest dealers. I am not here to assert that every man engaged in the grain business is a crook by any means. There are as many honest men in that trade as are to be found anywhere else; but there are a few others.

As regards my own company, my leader (Mr. Crerar) said that this investigation will be welcomed by the Farmers' companies. When the last commission was appointed we had no faith in either Mr. Staples, or Mr. Haslam who, in our western country, is considered a joke as regards the grain trade. Mr. Haslam is a man with a great deal of knowledge, but he does not seem to be able to apply it. When, however, we knew that that commission was appointed, our board passed a resolution instructing our officials to give the commission access to our books, documents, to give them all the information they had and all the assistance they possibly could. That was the attitude of the Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator company. We felt that we had nothing to fear from any investigation into the grain trade, and now that the minister has assured us that the personnel will be different, we shall welcome an investigation, and I am quite in favour of this amount or any other amount which is necessary in order that a thorough enquiry may be had.

Trade commissioners and commercial agents —salaries and contingencies thereof and miscellaneous expenditures in the development and extension of Canadian trade, $280,000.

Mr. SHAW: We should have some explanation from the minister as to the scope of this work, as to whether or not it is proposed to extend it in any particular, and the possibilities of the future as regards this particular work. It is a matter of the utmost importance and we should know something about it.

Mr. ROBB: I think the request of my hon. friend is quite reasonable; but I am quite sure neither of us desires to remain here too long. He will notice, as I am sure he has noticed from the commercial bulletin issued weekly, that the trade agents that we have in different parts of the world are advertising Canada and advising the department here, and that the department is spreading information throughout the country as to the requirements of different countries. In addition to the offices which we already have, it has been represented to us that there are possibilities of trade in Mexico, and the department looks favourably on that. We have a man in training now who understands that language, and it is proposed to send him to Mexico to look into the situation before we recommend a steamship subsidy which seems to be necessary to get much business. There are greater possibilities for the Mexican trade on the Pacific than on the Atlantic coast, because, as my hon. friends will understand, we do not, on the Pacific coast, come into such close competition with the southern States. The southern States have some advantage over Canada on the Atlantic coast; they are nearer to that country. Then it has been represented to us that there might be possibilities of extending trade down into other parts of the southern Pacific Dominions, and we have been looking into that as well as into trade with Scandinavian countries.

My hon. friends will observe that there are some increases in the estimated amount required. That is to provide for the additional services which may develop and also to provide for a little more money for our trade missionaries who are out in foreign countries, so that they can better represent Canada. It has been represented to us by Canadians returning from these different countries that Canada heretofore has been a little niggardly with its trade agents outside in the way of providing accommodation. Sometimes they are doing business on a back street when they should be in a more business part of the city. The additional estimates are to give the department an opportunity of helping them to spread out somewhat more and represent Canada as we wish to be represented, as a first class country. I hope hon. gentlemen will allow this to go through. We have had almost a month's debate on trade conditions, and while I do not desire to refuse anything, I see no good purpose to be served by attempting at this early hour in the morning to make a speech on trade conditions throughout the country.

Mr. CHURCH: I hope the Government will take this matter up and deal with it in a big way. The holding of a proper Canadian national exhibition in France would do a great deal to stimulate our trade with that country, and trade should always follow the flag and we should trade with France and our devoted Allies in the Great War and not with Germany. In view of our relations with France in the late war we should seek to develop as extensive a trade as possible with her. A French train was exhibited through Canada last summer, visiting the Canadian National Exhibition and many of the fall fairs. The government of France have for some time been considering erecting a trade building in connection with the Canadian National Exhibition. The French train that went through Canada excited much interest on the part of business men and was a demonstration of what could be done by the Government of Canada towards securing a proper exhibition in France. I hope that the Government will do everything possible to promote further trade with that country.

Item agreed to.

[Mr. Robb.]

To provide for Canada's contribution towards the maintenance of the permanent Secretariat at the League of Nations, $150,000.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: The matter of Canada's proper contribution towards the maintenance of the Secretariat of the League of Nations was the subject of correspondence between my hon. friend the ex-Minister of Finance (Sir Henry Drayton) and the former High Commissioner in London, and the sum suggested here is in accordance with their recommendation. The item is non-contentious.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: It is entirely non-contentious, but we should try to reduce it if possible. My hon. friend cannot properly do so now; but our contribution was fixed on the basis of the Postal Conference, which was unfair having regard to our population, etc. It was understood that the matter would be taken into consideration.

Mr. MACKENZIE KING: It is at present the subject of correspondence.

Item agreed to.

Canadian Representation in the United States, $60,000.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Carried.

Mr. CHURCH: I do not see why we should have any special Canadian representation in the United States. As far as I can see we have sufficient representation there now. Our representation through the British Ambassador at Washington is one of the few remaining things that bind Canada to the Mother Country. I am opposed to this vote, and I believe the people of the country will take the same view as I do. I do not think there is any special demand for a Canadian representative at Washington. I do not see what he could have to do that could not be done by the British Ambassador.

The CHAIRMAN: I would call the hon. member's attention to the fact that the item has been carried.

Mr. CHURCH: It is a large item and I do not think it is necessary. I object to it.

Item agreed to.

Progress reported.

On the motion of Mr. Mackenzie King the House adjourned at 1.17 a.m. Thursday.

Thursday, June 15, 1922

The House met at three o'clock.

LAKE OF THE WOODS REGULATION

Hon. D. D. McKENZIE (Solicitor General) moved for leave to introduce Bill No. 141, to repeal the Lake of the Woods Regulation Act, 1921.

Some hon. MEMBERS: Explain.

Mr. McKENZIE: Some time in 1921, before the opening of the session of that year, a certain agreement was arrived at between the Dominion of Canada, as represented by the right hon. the Prime Minister of that day, now leader of the Opposition (Mr. Meighen), and the province of Ontario, represented by the present Prime Minister of that province. I understand that the province of Manitoba also had something to do with the arrangement and was represented by its present Prime Minister. The agreement in question provided for the control of the Lake of the Woods and its water power by a board to be appointed jointly by the province of Ontario and the Dominion Government. To implement that agreement it was arranged that confirmatory legislation should be passed by this Parliament and by the legislation of Ontario. The then Prime Minister, the present right hon. leader of the Opposition, carried out his part of the arrangement and the act is known as Chapter 10 of the statutes of last year; but the Premier of Ontario was unable to carry a similar bill through the Ontario legislature. Upon his failure to do this he requested that no further steps should be taken until he was able to fulfil his part of the arrangement. However, as Chapter 10 was useless without joint legislation by Ontario, the right hon. gentleman introduced another bill under which the Dominion assumed absolute control of the Lake of the Woods, and this bill was passed by this Parliament and is now Chapter 38 of the statutes of last session. Section 10 of this act provides that if at any time the legislature of Ontario should enact the joint legislation agreed upon Chapter 38 should be repealed. The legislature of Ontario having recently passed the legislation contemplated in the agreement I have referred to. I am introducing this bill simply for the purpose of repealing Chapter 38.

Right Hon. ARTHUR MEIGHEN (Leader of the Opposition): Anent the explanation of the Solicitor General, I can only say that it affords a very good reason why there need be no such bill at all. He is quite right in stating that the second bill introduced last session contained a proviso that upon the government of Ontario implementing the agreement to which he refers, then the bill last introduced and passed here automatically is repealed, save as to one section which it is necessary to retain. If the act is repealed automatically when Mr. Drury carries out his promise, why does the Government introduce a special bill to effect the same purpose?

Motion agreed to and bill read the first time.

INDIAN ACT AMENDMENT

Hon. CHARLES STEWART (Minister of the Interior) moved for leave to introduce Bill No. 142, to amend the Indian Act.

He said: The first purpose of this bill is to repeal Section 7 dealing with the compulsory enfranchisement of Indians, which section was added to the act last session. I find that this feature meets with a great deal of opposition from the Indians themselves. Indeed, it is bitterly resented by the Six Nations Indians with whom we have had some little difficulty during the past month. This amendment simply repeals the section which gives the Deputy Superintendent General power to enfranchise an indian with or without his consent, and reverts to the former practice under which any indian desiring enfranchisement must make personal application.

The second section is intended to clarify the situation in regard to the ownership of land remaining in the control of the band, particularly land upon which returned indian soldiers have been re-established. I do not think there is really any legal doubt on the point, but inasmuch as an earlier amendment to the act has reference to the Soldiers' Settlement Act, which covers land taken as security by the Soldiers' Settlement Board, we are by this second section making it absolutely clear that the ownership of the land, whether occupied by a soldier settler or by any other indian, remains under the control of the band.

Motion agreed to and bill read the first time.

PRIVATE BILLS

FIRST READINGS

Bill No. 138 (from the Senate), for the relief of Frank Clifford Gennery.—Mr. Rankin.

Bill No. 139 (from the Senate), for the relief of Sarah Brackinreid.—Mr. Kay.

Bill No. 140 (from the Senate), for the relief of Mildred Catherine Touchbourne.—Mr. Kay.

QUESTIONS

(Questions answered orally are indicated by an asterisk.)

DISALLOWANCE OF ONTARIO LEGISLATION

Mr. CHURCH:

What action does the Government intend to take to disallow an act and schedule agreement of the province of Ontario for the alienation of 3,000 square miles of Ontario's resources to E. W. Backus?

Hon. Sir LOMER GOUIN: The act cannot be identified by the question. The time for disallowance of the 1921 legislation expired on the 4th June. The legislation of the session of 1922 has not been considered.

CANADIAN MERCHANT MARINE—MONTREAL EMPLOYEES

Mr. DESLAURIERS:

1. How many persons, residents of Halifax, Nova Scotia, are employed by the Canadian Merchant Marine at Montreal, Quebec?
2. Could not the positions occupied by the said persons be filled by residents of Montreal?

Hon. Mr. KENNEDY:

1. Employees of Canadian Government Merchant Marine are moved from point to point as required. At the close of inland navigation last year, 71 were transferred from Montreal to Halifax. On opening of inland navigation this year, 58 employees were moved from Halifax to Montreal for the summer season. The reduction in staff is accounted for by the laying up of some of the fleet.

2. Employees in question are residents of Montreal in summer, and of Halifax in winter.

MONTREAL HARBOUR COMMISSION—POLICEMAN

Mr. DESLAURIERS:

1. How many policemen are there employed by the Montreal Harbour Commission?
2. What are their names and nationality?
3. How long have they been in the service?
4. How many of the said employees were appointed during the period between December 1st, 1921, and June 1st, 1922?
5. What are the names of the said persons, their nationality, and how long have they resided in Canada?

Hon. Mr. LAPOINTE:

1. One chief, three captains, fifty-one constables.

2. See list below.

3. See list below.

4. All men in second portion of attached list have been appointed between December 1, 1921, and June 1, 1922. Constables Sanscartier, Brisebois, Raymond, Lacombe, Roger, Hebert and Lanctot are only new men appointed between above dates. Remainder on second list are men who have been employed as constables previous seasons of navigation since dates opposite their respective names.

5. See list below.

Name	Nationality	Started	Came to Canada
E. A. Williams, Chief	Scotch Canadian	Nov. 15, 1918.
N. Rondeau, Captain	French Canadian	April 20, 1915.
A. W. Evison, Captain	English	June 6, 1917.	April, 1913.
J. Cowley, Captain	English	April 16, 1914.	Sept., 1912.
Constables—
H. Barrett	English	Oct. 3, 1911.	Oct., 1911.
J. Cabara	French Canadian	Aug. 1, 1914.
J. D. Fogarty	Irish Canadian	July 6, 1915.
B. J. McDermott	Irish Canadian	April 12, 1918.
T. Pearson	English	May 3, 1918.	April, 1904.
H. Light	French Canadian	May 25, 1918.
T. Walsh	Irish Canadian	June 7, 1918.
O. Trudeau	French Canadian	July 11, 1918.
J. Garneau	French Canadian	July 19, 1918.
N. Millette	French Canadian	Aug. 20, 1918.
G. King	English	April 25, 1919.	Sept., 1907.
G. Lebeau	French Canadian	May 16, 1919.
D. Hayes	Irish	May 10, 1919.	March, 1910.
J. H. Dodd	Irish Canadian	Sept. 25, 1919.
A. Jackman	English	May 5, 1920.	July, 1909.
S. Timperley	English	June 23, 1920.	Aug., 1912.
J. St. Louis	French Canadian	May 15, 1918.
H. Arsenault	French Canadian	May 1, 1920.
J. Heaney	Irish Canadian	May 1, 1920.
T. Bennett (Constable and fireman)	Irish	June 2, 1921	June, 1905.
L. Ethier	French Canadian	April 15, 1917	(Died April 22, 1922

Name	Nationality	Started	Came to Canada
Constables Employed Season of Navigation, 1922—
J. Garnett	English Canadian	Sept. 4, 1918.
J. L. Walters	English	Nov. 1, 1918.	March, 1914.
J. Roberts	Irish	July 9, 1918.	May, 1906.
W. Parent	French Canadian	Sept. 18, 1920.
J. Pugh	English	July 14, 1920.	Oct., 1908.
J. Ouellette	French Canadian	July 22, 1920.
E. Copeman	English	May 1, 1920.	Nov. 1889.
E. Rolin	Belgian	May 1, 1920.	Nov., 1902.
J. Critchley	English	May 1, 1918.	Oct., 1917.
A. G. Ainslie	English Canadian	Sept. 30, 1920.
W. Royer	French Canadian	Oct. 4, 1920.
R. Eaton	English	Aug. 14, 1920.	May, 1910.
E. Vilbon	French Canadian	May 1, 1920.
F. W. Gillard	English	May 1, 1920.	May, 1906.
A. Danielson	Swede (Br. Subject)	July 21, 1920.	Sept., 1916.
W. Chambers Sr	Scotch	July 9, 1920.	Sept., 1913.
T. Brown	English	Aug. 29, 1920.	Aug., 1905.
J. Allen	English Canadian	May 3, 1920.
L. Tarrante	Irish Canadian	July 7, 1920.
P. Caron	French Canadian	Sept. 15, 1921.	Dismissed May 24, 1922.
E. Caron	French Canadian	Nov. 2, 1919.
W. Chambers jr	Scotch	June 3, 1921.
G. Boisjoli	French Canadian	Aug. 7, 1921.
H. Round	English	Aug. 1, 1921.	May, 1905.
J. D. Cooper	English	June 27, 1921.	May, 1914.
T. Sanscartier	French Canadian	May 1, 1922.
F. Brisebois	French Canadian	May 1, 1922.
L. Raymond	French Canadian	May 1, 1922.
A. Lacombe	French Canadian	May 2, 1922.
H. Roger	French Canadian	May 2, 1922.
F. Hebert	French Canadian	May 3, 1922.
A. Lanctot	French Canadian	May 3, 1922.

DEATH OF CAPTAIN HUESTON

Mr. CHURCH:

1. Will the Department of Civil Re-establishment, the Militia Department, the head of the military district in question, or other government authority proceed to open a military or other court of inquiry into the murder of one Captain Hueston, a returned soldier and veteran of the Great War, in the Fort Francis district, Ontario, as requested by some of his comrades in arms?

2. Will the Government, in view of the failure of the provincial authorities, try and bring the perpetrators of the murder of this returned man to justice, and make an inquiry into the murder as requested by the murdered man's comrades in arms, and see that justice is done in the premises to a returned man, and his family given some redress, protection and pension or compensation?

3. If not, why?

Hon. Sir LOMER GOUIN: The Department of Justice has no particulars or information concerning the case. The administration of justice in criminal matters is charged upon the provincial governments and the government of the Dominion has no constitutional power or function to conduct criminal prosecutions in the provinces.

DOMESTIC LOAN MATURITIES

Mr. IRVINE:

In the case of loan issues embracing maturities of five years and multiples of five years, what are the amounts represented by each five yearly denomination on all the war loans and Victory loans?

Hon. Mr. FIELDING: Bonds of domestic war and Victory loan issues become due as follows:

Year	Amount outstanding March 31, 1922
1922	$182,834,500
1923	172,459,650
1924	107,955,650
1925	42,014,500
1927	63,437,250
1931	52,931,600
1933	446,663,800
1934	511,910,650
1937	326,465,750

QUESTION PASSED AS ORDER FOR RETURN

Mr. VIEN:

1. What amounts have been paid by the Government, and to whom, for auditing public expenditure since the Civil Service Act of 1918 became effective?

2. What is the total amount of the claims of the Clarkson Commission for inquiry and audit in the Militia Department in respect of the sterling exchange payments to returned soldiers and others?

3. Were any or all of the sterling exchange payments made by the chief accountant, audited by the audit staff of the Militia Department?

4. What is the total amount it is computed or estimated has been fraudulently obtained in exchange transactions by or on behalf of returned soldiers or others?

5. Did any of the officials or employees of the Accounts Branch, Militia Department, who were connected with or responsible for handling sterling exchange payments to returned soldiers or others, receive any increase in pay or were they classified in a higher grade by the Civil Service Commission after undertaking this sterling exchange work?

6. If so, what are the names of such officials or employees?

7. At what rate of pay were Messrs. Allen, Lowe and Hubbell paid each fiscal year since their appointment, and on what dates did increases of pay by re-classification or otherwise become effective?

8. Before being permanently appointed, did these men pass any examination prescribed by the Civil Service Commission?

PENSIONS BOARD

On the Orders of the Day:

Mr. L. W. HUMPHREY (West Kootenay): Before the Orders of the Day are called, Mr. Speaker, I would like to direct the attention of the Government to an article appearing in the press this morning in which the head of the Pensions Board is charged with "concealment," and to ask the right hon. leader of the Government if any steps have been taken to have the charges thoroughly investigated?

Hon. H. S. BELAND (Minister of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment): I read this morning a statement published in one of the local newspapers in connection with the action of the Pensions Board with reference to certain applications for pensions. I asked the chairman of the board to supply me with a memorandum regarding the matter; I hold it in my hand, and with your permission, Mr. Speaker, I shall read it to the House. I may say that in the article referred to it was stated that this action of the Board of Pension Commissioners had relation to recent months. This is not a correct statement of the facts, as the House will see from the memorandum. The memorandum reads:

The minute made by the Board of Pension Commissioners under date of 29th September, 1921, was a statement in abbreviated form for the use of the board's medical advisors at headquarters.

[Mr. Vien.]

The medical advisors in question were perfectly familiar with the points under discussion, and the memorandum merely indicated and confirmed what had always been the interpretation of the policy of the board.

The board has always interpreted the intention of section 25 (3) of the act to mean that if an ex-member of the forces reached an actual theatre of war, and was found on discharge to have a physical condition which pre-existed enlistment, and which had progressed in any way on service, whether affected by service in any way or not—a simple progression having taken place on service—that although it were recognized that the condition must have preceded enlistment, and further recognized that in the ordinary course of events, in a sheltered existence, the condition would have progressed, no weight was to be given to such information, but the man would be pensionable, not only for the amount of progression, but for the total amount of the disability present.

Section 25 (3) of the act therefore would modify, to the extent outlined above, the qualifications for pension of any ex-member of the forces as defined by section (11) of the act. It was found, however, that there was a very occasional and rare case where a condition on discharge was found to exist and where it was established to the satisfaction of all concerned that there had been no progression of any kind on service; no cause or effect even remotely connected in any way with service; a condition present previous to enlistment, unchanged by, or on service. The further question then arose as to whether or not basically such a case would be pensionable if there had been service in an actual theatre of war. The Board interpreted the act to mean that section 24 (3) in such a case would be modified by section (11) and that there must be a service connection in some way, shape or form, before there would be pensionability.

The explanation of the Board in its interpretation is very plain to the effect that if there has been any progression of a condition on service, if the condition is shown to be in any way worse on discharge than on admission, the pensioner, if he reached an actual theatre of war, must be considered, under Section 25 (3) of the act, to be pensionable for the whole extent of such disability. Section 2b (3) of the act states plainly that—"No deduction shall be made from the pension of any member of the forces.....on account of any disability or disabling condition which existed in him previous to the time at which he became a member of the forces...." This has always been interpreted by the board to mean that before section 25 (3) of the act becomes applicable there must be presumed to be grounds for pension; and section 25 (3) taken in conjunction with section (11) of the act, does not mean that an ex-member of the forces having served in an actual theatre of war must be pensioned for a disability, unless it can be shown that there has been an increase in the disabling condition on service.

It was pointed out to the board by its medical advisors that those cases would be very rare where disability existed after service in an actual theatre of war, and where there would be, as a medical fact, no progression in the disabling condition. In this opinion, as advanced by its medical advisors, the board fully concurred.

An interpretation of the act which would permit of pensions being granted in cases where there was no claim on the part of any one that service had in any way affected the condition, or that there had been progression on service; or, in other words, that the man entered the service and left it in exactly the same condition, would be to change entirely the principle upon which pensions are granted, and would be contrary to the statutes.

This is the memorandum which was handed to me by the Chairman of the Board of Pension Commissioners. A memorandum setting forth the interpretation of the act was placed in the hands of the medical advisers of the board on the 29th of September, 1921, and has not since been changed in any way.

Mr. HUMPHREY: May I repeat my question and ask if it is the intention of the minister to have a full investigation of these charges?

Mr. BELAND: It is my intention to investigate further as to whether the regulations have been carried out according to that interpretation in all cases.

Hon. R. J. MANION (Fort William and Rainy River): In connection with the statement which the minister has just made, there certainly does seem to be an impression—I have obtained it myself both through letters and statements in the press—that certain changes have been made by the Board of Pension Commissioners making the regulations more strict. Is the minister in a position to make a statement in regard to that impression, which, judging from the number of letters I receive from soldiers in various parts of the country and from what I see in the press, seems to be pretty widespread.

Mr. BELAND: I am not in a position to make any statement in that regard. The board, I understand, considers a large number of cases every day which, of course, are never brought to the attention of the minister. I myself receive a number of—shall I say,—complaints from pensioners who claim that their pensions should not have been decreased or should have been increased, and in some cases that they should not have been cut off. In all such cases I have the file brought before me and go through it. Occasionally I discuss the case with the chairman of the board himself, and I may say that in most cases I have been able to give satisfaction to the complainant. The great majority of the cases which are submitted to the board never come before the minister. As the House is well aware, the Board of Pension Commissioners is a tribunal whose decisions are final.

Mr. MANION: I was not speaking of individual cases so much as of the general impression, which perhaps the minister himself has gained from the press, to the effect I stated. Rightly or wrongly many soldiers have the impression that the regulations or the rules regarding pensions have been made more strict. As the board is practically an independent body, and the minister the intermediary between the board and this House, would it not be possible for the board to have made the regulations more severe without the minister being aware of it?

Mr. BELAND: If the board has interpreted the provisions in any narrower way recently, it has certainly not been in consequence of any instructions or suggestions that have been made by myself. I have never attempted to interfere with the work of the board. Occasionally I have asked the board to reopen and reconsider a case, with a view to using all their discretionary powers in favour of the applicant.

Mr. MANION: I did not mean to suggest that the minister had interfered in any way. I was just giving him the impression that I have received from a number of letters and from statements in the press. I might say that personally I have had a good deal of satisfaction in cases I have taken up with the board, particularly recently.

Mr. L. H. MARTELL (Hants): I should like to ask the minister whether his department has under consideration the advisability of amending that section of the act which sets a limitation on the time within which application for a pension may be considered. I have a case in my constituency of a young man who was killed overseas. During the time he was overseas his mother was receiving separation allowance and assigned pay, and she managed to save something from that, and for some three years she did not deem it necessary to make application for a pension. She was absolutely ignorant of the fact that the law provided a limitation. I believe the provision is that the application must be made within three years from the death of the person on whose account a pension is requested.

Mr. SPEAKER: This whole discussion is out of order. The subject, I know, is a very important one, but I thought when the memorandum had been read by the minister the matter would rest there for the time being. Hon. members are naturally anxious to know of any new regulations that may have been passed by the board, but I think they should defer their questions until the minister's estimates are before the House. It is certainly stretching a point to allow questions of this nature at this stage. I am in the hands of the House, however, but we shall never pass on to the Orders of the Day, judging by my own experience in the House, if individual cases are to be brought up one after another. Perhaps the minister would state that at a later stage hon. members will have fully opportunity to bring up cases in which they are interested.

Mr. BELAND: I entirely agree with your suggestion, Mr. Speaker. At a later stage, when the Pension Act is being amended, all these questions would be in order. Perhaps, however, you would allow the hon. member for Hants, (Mr. Martell) to put his question now.

Mr. CALDWELL: I would point out that there is a report to be brought in by the Pensions Committee that may possibly cover some of these points, and I think the discussion might very well be deferred until that report is before the House. I think possibly it would be out of order to answer questions along this line until that report has been presented.

CIVIL SERVICE BONUS

On the Orders of the Day:

Hon. H. H. STEVENS (Vancouver Centre): I should like to ask the Prime Minister a brief question regarding the payment of bonus to the civil servants. I hold in my hand a most pathetic letter from the wife of a civil servant who is drawing $64 a month. This man has a family of several small children, and has had no bonus for two months. Would the Prime Minister state when the bonus will be paid under the proposals which he made to the House some time ago?

Right Hon. W. L. MACKENZIE KING (Prime Minister): The bonus proposals will come before the House when the Supplementary Estimates are brought in, and I hope we shall make sufficient progress to be able to bring them in next week.

BUSINESS OF THE HOUSE

On the Orders of the Day:

Right Hon. ARTHUR MEIGHEN (Leader of the Opposition): I suppose we are now within a couple of weeks of the end of the session. It is certainly time the Government had stated to Parliament its full programme for the session. Indeed, it is past the usual time. I should like to ask the Prime Minister what further legislation the Government have, and to express the hope that the indications, only too pronounced in to-day's Order Paper, that the end of the session is to be the only pregnant part of the session, will not be too closely lived up to.

Right Hon. W. L. MACKENZIE KING (Prime Minister): I think I shall be able to tell my right hon. friend in a day or two what further legislation the Government intends to bring down. I can promise that it will not be a very elaborate programme.

VANCOUVER HARBOUR

On the motion of Hon. Ernest Lapointe (Minister of Marine and Fisheries) for the third reading of Bill No. 106, to amend the Vancouver Harbour Commissioners' Act.

Hon. H. H. STEVENS (Vancouver Centre): With the indulgence of the House I should like to ask one question. The Board of Trade have certain rights in regard to port wardens. Will the new act interfere in any way with those rights?

Mr. LAPOINTE: No.

Mr. STEVENS: That is all I am concerned about.

Mr. LAPOINTE: The only change is that the two officers referred to in the bill will be under the control of the department.

Motion agreed to and bill read the third time.

FISHERIES ACT, 1914, AMENDMENT

House again in Committee on Bill No. 70 to amend the Fisheries Act, 1914, Mr. Gordon in the Chair.

On Section 2—Burden of proof.

Mr. LAPOINTE: When this bill was before the committee at the previous sitting, clause 1 was adopted, but there was some objection to clause 2 as being too drastic in placing the burden of proof upon the accused party, and my hon. friend from Hants (Mr. Martell), following the objection of my hon. friend from St. John city (Mr. Baxter), moved that the clause be struck out. Some discussion took place, and finally I agreed to re-draught the clause so as to meet the objections. I understand that my hon. friend from

Hants agrees to the new clause as I will now propose it:

Failure to produce a license issued pursuant to the provisions of the Fisheries Act, or any regulation made thereunder, shall be deemed prima facie evidence of intent or knowledge when intent or knowledge is necessary to constitute an offence under this section.

Section as amended agreed to.

Bill reported, read the third time, and passed.

CANADA TEMPERANCE ACT AMENDMENT

On motion of Hon. D. D. McKenzie (Solicitor General) Bill No. 132 to amend the Canada Temperance Act was read the second time and the House went into Committee thereon, Mr. Gordon in the Chair.

On Section 2—Upon receipt of an Order of Lieutenant-Governor in Council, the Governor in Council may issue proclamation.

Mr. GUTHRIE: I have just read over this section and I assume that it is intended to apply to those provinces where export houses are at present maintained under Dominion license. I do not think there are any export houses or bonded warehouses in the province of Ontario, but there are such in some of the western provinces—I think in the province of Saskatchewan, and perhaps in the province of British Columbia, too. This section in its present form provides that on receipt of a certified copy of an Order in Council from the Lieutenant-Governor of a province the Government of Canada may pass an Order in Council forbidding the further export from that province, or from Canada, of liquor now stored in bonded warehouses. I understand that in some of these bonded warehouses they have considerable stocks. If the section passes as it is now, confiscation of these stocks might result. I do not suppose it is the intention of the Government, or of the draughtsman of the bill, that liquor in any sense should be confiscated. What I would suggest is, that a reasonable time be given to the owners of liquor now in bonded warehouses for the disposal of their stocks—three months, or six months, or twelve months, whatever time the committee might think reasonable. I do not think it would be wise to pass the clause as it is now; it would be practically confiscation of property which is legally held by the present licensees in bonded warehouses under the authority of this Government.

Mr. McKENZIE: The real cause for the putting forward of this section, which came particularly from the province of Saskatchewan, is that a great deal of illegitimate selling and disposing of liquors is being done in some provinces because of the existence of warehouses where liquor is being kept. It has never been submitted to me, nor to any member of the Government that I am aware of, that any person in any province—at least, in the province of Saskatchewan—has any license for a bonded warehouse, or has a legally established warehouse, in which to keep liquor for the purpose of traffic. If there are such establishments, it has not been brought to my notice, except in a general way, such as the observations of the hon. member from South Wellington (Mr. Guthrie). If the hon. member, or any other hon. member, will satisfy this committee—he need not satisfy me more than anybody else—that the case which has been put forward is true, I would certainly not take any step that would confiscate any person's property. But, so far I am not aware, that neither the hon. member from South Wellington, or any other member of this House, has such definite information. However, the conditions in any province, with regard to this or any other matter, are better known to the members of the local government than to the members of the Government of Canada. This act cannot come into force in any province, it cannot have any effect, until the local government of the particular province in which it is asked for passes an Order in Council bringing it into force. If there is, in any province, a lawfully conducted business, and if the persons engaged in it have a right to carry it on, though it may be an unpopular business, if these people came before the government of that province, and said, "You have the power under a Dominion statute to call in force in this province a law that will confiscate my property and cause me to lose a large amount of money; I am asking you not to put that law in force in this province until I have an opportunity of disposing of that property; if you do otherwise, you are doing a great wrong, and forfeiting a great deal of that property",—it strikes me the premier, and government of that province, would very properly say, "Very good, we shall not do anything that will affect your property until you have an opportunity of disposing of it, providing you have it legally in stock". Now, if there is to be leniency of that kind shown, it is just as much the power of one government as of the other. All this parliament is doing is passing a law, and making it optional for any province to put it in force. That kind of legislation in regard to liquor has been gaining ground for the last ten years. Practically, nothing has been done in this House in regard to intoxicating liquor for a number of years anyhow unless it is first approved by the province. In this particular instance, the provinces are asking for ancillary legislation, or legislation to help to carry into effect local laws which they have themselves enacted. All we have done is to say "You can 4 p.m. bring this law into force, if you like, but you need not bring it into force unless it is the will of the province to do it. I am afraid I will be submitting this House to a great deal of criticism, if we recognize as legitimate, and protect by the voice of this parliament, business and property that is not held in possession, or owned according to the law of the province.

Mr. JACOBS: Where do they get the power to do it, if it is done legally?

Mr. McKENZIE: I am satisfied that for the last year and a half no person, either in Nova Scotia, New Brunswick, Ontario, or Saskatchewan or Alberta, could import any intoxicating liquor legally, nor could they manufacture it legally. That provision is to be found in part IV. of the Canada Temperance Act. If I am asked to-day in this House by what right are you going to put a proviso in the act to protect people in Alberta or Saskatchewan who have those houses in which they hold liquor for import?—by what law do they get it in, or by what law are they holding it?—I cannot give any answer. If there is any hon. member who knows there is such a law, and who knows it is legitimate property and legitimate trade, he has the right, the power, and the privilege of presenting that authority to the House. I am unfortunate enough not to know there is any such law, and I am unfortunate enough not to know that there is, in that province, such legal business, recognized in Saskatchewan, and until it is brought home to me that legal business is affected, I do not feel called upon to ask this Parliament or committee to legalize, to protect, or safeguard, any business, however popular it might be under certain circumstances, carried on in this country. If anybody in the House will move such an amendment, I will certainly as representing the Government, not accept it. If it is the voice of this House that such an amendment is to be made to the Bill, I will not oppose it, but I assure hon. members I am not going to accept it, nor am I going to propose it myself as at present informed.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: Explaining the liquor business in Saskatchewan seems to be as difficult as explaining the wheat board. I may say that a situation grew up in Saskatchewan, as a result of the interim of four months between the vote taken on the referendum in November, 1920, and the enacting of the law. During that time a large number of export warehouses were established in Saskatchewan, containing from one to ten carloads of liquor. There was nothing illegal about it. They took advantage of the long period between the time the will of the people was expressed at the poll and the putting of the law into force. I do not know how many millions worth of property was stowed away during those four months. I know there were 59 export liquor houses—not bonded warehouses; the hon. member from South Wellington is mistaken in regard to that. None of these houses is either licensed or bonded; they are quite distinct from bonded warehouses; they are there, and the province cannot get rid of them. In 1917 the province of Saskatchewan passed an Act—and so did the province of Alberta—attempting to get rid of the export houses, and failed, because the Act was declared by the court to be ultra vires. The desire out there, no matter how foolish it may appear down here, is to get rid of the liquor in that province. We want to be dry, and we have not been dry largely because of the existence of these export houses. In order to carry out the will of the people, in so far as provincial law is ineffectual for the purpose, it is proposed to pass this supplementary legislation. The whole question is, how long shall we give these export houses to get rid of their wares? It is true that they got these supplies in legally in the first instance, but they have no real right to keep them in the province now. Now, I am not an authority on the question as to how long it takes to drink a million dollars' worth of liquor, which I understand is the estimated quantity in Saskatchewan. There was several million dollars' worth there, but it has all been consumed, presumably outside the province.

Mr. JACOBS: Are they not complaining about the dry season in Saskatchewan?

Mr. MOTHERWELL: Yes, but that is a different sort of dryness. Let me say that this is no joking matter in Saskatchewan, or in Alberta either. Like the Solicitor General (Mr. McKenzie), I have no desire whatever, and I do not think anybody has, to confiscate the property of any one whether it be liquor or anything else. We want to be fair to these men. They put one over on the province in getting the liquor in in the first place, although the law did not forbid them to do so; and I have no doubt that they reaped a substantial harvest thereby. Well, if they should happen to lose a little they must take the chance. Mind you, I do not take the ground that I want them to lose anything; I simply want them to get out, and that is why I desire to see the legislation go through. If it appeals to the committee, as I think it will, as a fair proposition that the will of the people out there be given expression to, then there should be no trouble about the matter. We do the same thing in the case of British Columbia or any other wet province. British Columbia wants to handle wet goods and we are facilitating the people there in carrying out their wishes. But in Saskatchewan and Alberta—at least I can speak for my own province—the people want the place to be dry and they feel that their wish in this regard cannot be carried out so long as these export houses remain there. I have suggested that these houses should be given three months to get rid of their liquor. As I say, they are presumably not doing an illegal business; they got the liquor in legally, and are shipping it out legally. But liquor leaks out, and it is impossible to observe the will of the people with these institutions carrying on business in this way. I have suggested three months to my colleague, but he apparently does not favour that suggestion at all, because he feels that these houses are there illegally. At any rate, that is how I interpret his attitude. My hon. friend to my right, on the other hand, thinks that they are there legally, and I am disposed to agree with him. And we cannot get rid of them because of our provincial limitations; only this Parliament can put them out. If a longer period than three months is requested in which to dispose of the liquor without risk of loss, then I take the ground that the law should be changed with regard to the time limit between votes. So far as I can recall—I have not had time to look into the law, but I think I am right—when we voted on the matter in November, 1920, we did so on the understanding that another vote could not be taken for three years; in other words, the will of the people could not be consulted again until the law had been given a fair trial. The intent of legislative bodies when they put a law on the statute book is that it shall be given a fair trial. That period of three years between votes was regarded as a fair term. One year and four months has passed of that period, but the law has not had what can be regarded as a fair trial simply because of the existence of these export houses and, as a matter of fact, the dry sentiment of this province has been prejudicially affected by the operation of this business. If you allow these houses eight months, say, in which to get rid of their liquor, it will be eight months added to the year and four months that has passed in which the law has had but a partial and unsatisfactory trial, that is to say, two years of the three, which was the period of trial, will have passed without affording anything like a proper test. I might put it this way: whatever time we allow these houses to get rid of their liquor will be added to the wet era, and correspondingly subtracted from the period of trial. My proposal is that if you extend the three months I have suggested to six months you should correspondingly extend the period between votes. As a matter of fact, there is no real prohibition in these provinces at all. The present condition is perhaps in some respects worse than legalized traffic. I am not by any means suggesting that there should be legalized traffic, but I say that the present state of things in some respects is worse than that, because there are a great many objectionable features in connection with it. I repeat, we do not want to confiscate property or do anything that is not fair, but we do want to carry out the people's wishes. The law applies to the other provinces as well, and whenever they so desire they can take advantage of it. The province of Saskatchewan has already sent down to my colleague two strongly worded petitions from the legislature during the past couple of sessions asking that the present condition in Saskatchewan be terminated. They have expressed themselves in a pronounced way on the matter.

Mr. JACOBS: The question before the committee is, shall we confiscate certain property which is now in Saskatchewan, or shall we not? I understand that the question has particular reference to that province. The Solicitor-General (Mr. McKenzie) declares that he is not in favour of making any amendment to this section, while the Minister of Agriculture (Mr. Motherwell), who comes from that province and probably knows something about the benefits of a little liquor there, suggests a period of three months in which the people who have this property stored in their warehouses shall get rid of it. The Solicitor-General has told us that this liquor is illegally in the province of Saskatchewan. I rather fancy that he did not look into the legal aspect of the case with the same care which he usually exercises when drafting bills that present some legal difficulties. This liquor is legally in the province of Saskatchewan; it came there legally. If it is not there legally, then, of course, the authorities should forthwith confiscate it. How is it that the Department of Customs has not confiscated these goods if they are illegally in Saskatchewan? They are there legally, and all that is asked now is that a reasonable time be given these people to get their goods out of the province. They are engaged in a traffic which, although it may be unpopular, is none the less legal. It must be borne in mind that the sale of spirituous liquor in the western hemisphere is somewhat restricted at present, in fact there is practically no market for it. A small quantity of these goods might possibly be sold in Mexico or the West Indies, but a million dollars' worth —and I am told that is the quantity they have there—cannot be sold in Europe, which is about the only market left, within a period of three months, for it takes a considerable time to dispose of such a large quantity. Therefore these people ask—and I think it is a reasonable request—that they should have a sufficient period of time within which to dispose of their property. I think that under the circumstances six months is not an unreasonable time to be given for the disposal of goods which cannot be offered for sale on the local market. If you fix a shorter time, say three months, it is practically equivalent to confiscation, and I am sure it is not the desire of this Parliament to take such harsh measures. In view of all the circumstances I am in favour of giving these people a reasonable time within which to dispose of their property, and therefore I beg leave to move, seconded by the hon. member for St. Antoine (Mr. Mitchell):

That at the end of section 157 there be added the following proviso: "Providing that such order-in-council shall not be passed prior to the 1st day of January, 1923"

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: You say that this business is now carried on legally. What is the practice followed? What licenses are granted and what are the restrictions on export business?

Mr. JACOBS: I am not familiar with the law of Saskatchewan, but the business would be legal even if the goods were merely kept in warehouses, and I fancy, that before this law comes into force the goods can be legally exported from the province. This section declares that "on and after the Lieutenant Governor in Council notifies the Secretary of State, the goods cannot be exported." Consequently there is nothing for these owners to do but to destroy their property, and it is for the purpose of enabling them to get it out of the province before prohibition against exportation is put into effect that I am moving this amendment.

Mr. LEWIS: I concur in the judgment of the Solicitor General. I think that the people of Saskatchewan themselves have the right to say whether there shall be an extended time of three months or otherwise, for they are in a better position to know what time is required to get rid of these liquors than hon. members down here. For that reason I am not in favour of the amendment. We are sufficiently familiar with the men who control the liquor stores in Saskatchewan to suspect that these liquors did not come into the province in a very legitimate manner. It did not take them very long to bring in their goods when they knew that Saskatchewan was against importation; and it does seem to me that when Saskatchewan has voted definitely against the sale of liquor within the province, it cannot be said that these liquors are there legitimately; they were forced upon the province against the expressed will of the electorate. Therefore, I think the bill should be passed without any amendment whatever. The government of Saskatchewan know the local conditions thoroughly, and they also know the men who own these liquor stores, and if the members of that government feel it is essential to grant the owners a three months' extension of time to get rid of their property, well and good. but in view of the expressed will of the people of the province the quicker we get rid of this menace the better. We in Saskatchewan do not believe that it is a legitimate business, we do not believe that those who engage in it have a right to bring their goods into the province against the expressed will of the people. For that reason I am heartily in favour of the bill being passed without amendment, leaving it to the provincial authorities who know the whole situation to grant any extension of time that may be necessary to enable the owners to get rid of this stuff that is destroying the moral fibre of our life.

Mr. MILLAR: I think this committee is wasting a lot of sympathy on the men who are engaged in this export liquor business. I am confident that if hon. members had an opportunity of becoming acquainted with the methods pursued by these liquor exporters they would not spend five minutes sympathizing with them. As the Minister of Agriculture has said, these people took advantage of the opportunity they had before the new law came into force to stock up. They are not exporting to Europe now, as has been suggested, but they are supplying bootleggers in the province and conveying the liquor across the international boundary line into the United States Now, every bottle of liquor carried across the line is carried across in defiance of the law. Recently I took a clipping from an American newspaper severely criticizing the Canadian Government for allowing the traffic to go on. I have not the clipping at hand, in fact I lent it to the Prime Minister to peruse. This is the way the business is carried on. Fast motor cars are loaded with liquor in the middle of the night, and the men engaged in this business make for the international boundary line, followed perhaps by a police automobile. The men in both cars are well armed, and in many cases a fight takes place on the road. Now, the people in the southern part of the province when they are out driving do not enjoy the prospect of being shot in the course of one of these running fights.

Mr. JACOBS: Is the hon. gentleman in favour of having these goods confiscated and destroyed by the government of Saskatchewan?

Mr. MILLAR: I am coming to that in a minute. The men who carry liquor to the United States in this way have boasted again and again that in one trip they make enough money to buy an expensive automobile such as a McLaughlin. Now, if they have been making that profit for about two years, I do not think we need worry very much about whether this liquor is confiscated or not. Those men do not want time to sell their goods in Europe. If they knew that in three months' time the law was going to be changed, they would get rid of this liquor very quickly. They have plenty of associates in the business, and with few exceptions they are a bad bunch. I have no hesitation in making that statement; it can be backed up by the men who live in the southern part of the province. I have been down there and have been told by the people: "This is the road on which the bootleggers carry on their traffic during the night; they pass our very doors." The business is carried on by the use of the fastest automobiles that can be got. A short time ago an automobile started from one of these export liquor houses and some twelve miles out the police stopped them and took charge of the liquor; yet under the law nothing could be done. I would like to read to you an extract from some remarks made by Chief Justice Brown when one of these cases was tried before him. I suggest that those hon. members who have sympathy for this people should listen to this:

> We have our own province in which there exists a prohibitory law and likewise we see liquor imported from our own province into neighbouring provinces, and we sit down practically helpless, doing nothing and apparently not wanting to do anything to help them enforce that law. The matter it seems to me could be largely remedied by a simple picce of legislation on the part of the Parliament of Canada, making it illegal to export liquor or sell liquor for export to any country or any province where prohibition is in force. As I have already indicated I cannot believe that the people of Canada generally realize the demoralizing condition of affairs that exists; otherwise, it seems to me the Parliament of Canada would have before this passed legislation to the effect I have already suggested. We can only hope that the matter of our responsibility in this matter and the true condition of affairs may be more fully realized by our people generally and if it is, then it seems to me we will get the legislation that is necessary to remedy the situation. Not only has this court been largely occupied with cases that have arisen as a result of this traffic, but the same has characterized all the courts that have been held in the southern part of this province during the last few years. It is a condition of affairs that certainly should not exist, and it seems to me fit and proper that I should call attention to the matter in this way at this particular time.

This is not a matter of prohibition or otherwise; it is a case of complying with the expressed wish of the province to be freed from this traffic. I can scarcely conceive of the people of Canada wishing to continue to force this sort of thing on the province of Saskatchewan when the people there have expressed themselves as they have. I entirely concur in the view of the Solicitor General: the people of Saskatchewan know the conditions even better than we in this House do; they know just about how much consideration should be extended to those affected by any change and I cannot conceive of their doing any injustice in that connection. In fact, they can say how long a time the persons affected shall have within which to dispose of his liquor. Personally I think six months is too long; I think the Solicitor General's view is the correct one.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: This legislation seems to be proceeding upon proper lines. In fact, it conforms to the policy of the late government, which was to give effect to the wishes of the different communities which had adopted laws dealing with this liquor question. We always held ourselves as desirous of implementing the legislation on the one hand and the desires on the other of the provincial governments. So far as this particular matter is concerned, if my recollection is correct the position taken by the Customs Department under the former government—and still maintained, I believe, under the present Administration—is that no bonded warehouse licences should be issued in any of the provinces except with the consent of the local administration. It seems to me that, carrying out the policy of implementing provincial legislation and the provincial desire wherever possible, it is the duty of this House to take the action proposed on this occasion. Now, we have to bear in mind the distinction between a business which may be inherently vicious and one which may simply have developed into the practice of rum-running, and the like. If the whole of this business is illegal; if the storing of liquor in these warehouses is against the law, why is section 163 drafted as it is in the bill? That is the section which is the prohibitory provision. It says:

[Mr. Millar.]

Subject to the provisions of subsection two of this section, and notwithstanding the provisions of this or any other act to the contrary, no person shall import, send, take or transport into any province in which the prohibitions of this subsection are in force any intoxicating liquor.

But I find an exception, as follows:

The importation of intoxicating liquor into a province by a person engaged in and carrying on the business of exporting intoxicating liquor from that province, where the intoxicating liquor so imported is imported solely for the purpose of his export business and while kept by him in the province, is kept in a liquor warehouse which conforms in all respects to the requirements of the law governing such warehouses, and when sold or disposed of by him is actually exported from that province:

Mr. McKENZIE: I may point out that the first part of this bill is an amendment of Part IV of the Canada Temperance Act, passed in 1919. The section to which my hon. friend refers may be regarded as new legislation; it has no connection with the section we are considering. It is an amendment of Part V.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: Then my hon. friend is now legalizing, under Part V, that business which he had previously looked upon as illegal.

Mr. McKENZIE: Part V has reference to provinces which have themselves undertaken the whole of the business of handling the liquor, as in the case of British Columbia and Quebec.

Mr. MITCHELL: I am inclined to agree with the ex-Minister of Finance that in any part of the Dominion where there is a desire to get rid of the liquor business, it should be within, entirely within, the jurisdiction of the province or section, as the case may be, to deal with the matter. Under the old Canada Temperance Act, as I understood it, any province or county could, by a vote, put that act into force. Under the old act, however, importation was allowed into all the provinces, notwithstanding the fact that the Canada Temperance Act was in force. I know that in the city of Quebec the Canada Temperance Act was in force, and in the rest of the province, with two exceptions, we had the Quebec Prohibition Act, under the provisions of which there could be no importation into any part of the province. But it was held that there could be importation into the city of Quebec under the provisions of the Canada Temperance Act. Subsequently the Doherty Act was passed, which was an endeavour to extend to the provinces the right to prohibit importation. But it was found, I believe, that it did not go that far —and, so far as that is concerned, the act was held to be unconstitutional. If I understand this legislation correctly, it is an endeavour to go a step further and to give to the provinces exactly what they want. I am entirely in accord with that. But under the provisions of the act as it has existed these people who do have stocks on hand had them there legally, and it is for this House to decide whether, if citizens holding stock there legally, no matter what they may have been doing with them heretofore—and the stocks held have been stated to be worth a million dollars—we should legislate here to-day and say that ipso facto on the passing of the Order in Council, all that merchandise shall be destroyed without warning. This is a question that has often been debated; it has been debated in England and almost every other country in the world, and I do not think a case can be found where the government of a country confiscated the goods of its citizens without giving them some time to dispose of the stocks on hand. If I have a suggestion to make to the mover, it would be that the government of Saskatchewan be authorized to pass their Order in Council at once, and that once the Order in Council is passed these people be given time—the six months that is spoken of—to ship their goods out. The goods will then remain in bond under the control of the government, and they cannot be bootlegged throughout the province, whereas if you leave these stocks there and give them this six months without passing the Order in Council, there will be a danger of spreading the stocks throughout the province in the meantime. If you allow the province to pass their Order in Council immediately, and give these people six months to dispose of their goods before confiscating, that would seem to me to be much more fair, and in accord with precedent in every country that I ever heard of.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: Just one further thought arising out of what my hon. friend has said: I do not think any one of us wants to do anything we ought not to do. I think we are all anxious to see that the wishes expressed by the province of Saskatchewan be carried out. Why cannot this act be passed just as it is without doing the slightest degree of harm? In the first instance, the local government have to act. They have a right to pass their Order in Council and to fix their day. In the second instance, their act by itself is nothing, as I read this section, until this Government gives effect to that Order in Council.

Mr. MITCHELL: If I may interrupt the hon. gentleman, I do not think he has quite understood the section. If we pass the act as it is, the local government would have absolutely no power to give the delay to which he refers. Otherwise, I would not have a word to say. But neither the local government, nor this Government without the necessary authority, could give one minute's delay.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: I would point out that this is the usual section, clothed in the ordinary language, giving jurisdiction to a government to act by Order in Council. We know the difficulties which always attend the administration of government, and I venture to say that if this act goes through just as it is, it will be some little time before it is put into final effect. The section reads:

> Upon receipt by the Secretary of State of Canada of a duly certified copy of an order in council passed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council of any province in which the importation of intoxicating liquors into the province has been prohibited under this part, and in which such prohibition is still in force, requesting that the keeping of intoxicating liquor in such province for export and the exportation of intoxicating liquor therefrom by persons other than brewers and distillers duly licensed by the Government of Canada, be forbidden—

Forbidden as and from when? Surely there is an effective date to be given in that Order in Council, and after that first Order in Council is passed, it is not effective until the Governor in Council by Order in Council declares—it says "may", not "shall"—that such prohibition shall come into force in such province on a day to be named in such order. It does not seem to me that the respective governments will know very much more, with the whole facts of the case before them, than this House can.

Mr. SHAW: I thoroughly agree with the sentiments that have been expressed by many hon. members who have spoken. I do think the province should have the say as to the time when these provisions are to come into effect. I would recommend to the minister that the wording be changed slightly to read something as follows:

> —requesting that the keeping of intoxicating liquor in such province for export and the exportation of intoxicating liquor therefrom by persons other than brewers and distillers duly licensed by the Government of Canada be forbidden on and after a date to be named, and the Governor in Council may by Order in Council declare that such prohibition shall come into force in such province on the day fixed by the Order in Council of the executive of the provincial government.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: The word "order" in that section surely refers to the federal order rather than to the provincial. Whenever a term like that is used, it always refers to the one nearest it.

Mr. SHAW: That is the difficulty that I see.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: One of them is the Governor in Council, and the other is the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

Mr. SHAW: That is quite right, as I understand it. The word "order" last mentioned in the paragraph refers to the order of the Governor in Council, not of the Lieutenant-Governor in Council.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: That is right.

Mr. SHAW: My suggestion is that the Lieutenant-Governor in Council not only ask that the exportation be forbidden, but also ask that it be forbidden as of a particular date, and that that date be adopted by the Governor in Council in the Order in Council which they propose. It may be that that is the intention of this act but on a casual reading I would say that it is not. It does seem to me that the provincial government should be the best judge as to when the Order in Council shall become effective.

There has been some misapprehension, I think, in connection with the operation of this particular amendment. The press have, to some extent, at least, circulated the idea that it is applicable only to the province of Saskatchewan. I may say that that has caused some concern in the province of Alberta, for I have received a telegram from the Attorney General of that province in which he requests that similar legislation be passed for the province of Alberta. He also points out in his telegram:

> The Alberta cabinet meeting to-day—

That is yesterday.

> —strongly urge this legislation be applied to the province of Alberta, as our greatest difficulty under Liquor Act results from the operation of liquor export houses.

Now we are anxious to give the province the fullest possible control in order that the existing laws may be made watertight, and may be effectively enforced. The greatest difficulty in the way of doing that has been the operations of these liquor exporting houses. I have only been able to consider casually the purposes of the bill, and I would like to receive an assurance from the Solicitor General that it contains nothing that would limit its operation to the province of Saskatchewan.

Mr. MITCHELL: It applies to all the provinces.

Mr. SHAW: I wanted an assurance from the Solicitor General that it applies also to the province of Alberta, if other provinces are going to get the benefit of it.

Mr. McKENZIE: That is the way I understand it.

Mr. WOODS: I want to express my approval of the bill, especially since we have been assured it covers all the provinces of the Dominion. The province of Ontario has gone to its limit in regard to temperance legislation; if not, it is endeavouring to do so. Any federal law which would strengthen its hands and enable it to fully carry out and enforce the provisions of the Ontario Temperance Act will be heartily received throughout the province. We are all aware of the bootlegging and the disorderly conduct which has occurred in western Ontario in the past, and especially the transportation of liquor from that part of this country to the United States. Any legislation prohibiting the transportation of liquor other than by steam railway or water will undoubtedly strengthen the hands of Ontario in its endeavours to put an end to that traffic. It will stop the carriage of liquors by motor vehicles along the public highways of the province, and will be of the utmost importance in strengthening the hands of the provincial authorities in their endeavours to carry out the provincial legislation to the fullest extent.

Mr. BLACK (Yukon): It is quite evident that the bill is intended in its application to prohibition provinces to increase the power of the local authorities so as to give effect to prohibitive legislation; and in provinces where the provincial governments are dealing in liquor to give them a further monopoly of the liquor business. Now it has been stated in the province of British Columbia, for instance by the Attorney General of the province, that the provincial authorities were unable to administer the local liquor law satisfactorily because of the operations of export houses, and that until he gets co-operation in the way of federal legislation he cannot improve his administration of the provincial liquor law. I would ask the Solicitor General if the views and requests of the Attorney General of British Columbia have been fully met in the present bill?

Mr. McKENZIE: When this bill was first drafted its general nature and applications had reference to British Columbia because the request for federal legislation came from there. The bill was drafted by the Attorney General of British Columbia with some assistance, I think, from the Department of Justice; I have every reason to believe that as it stands to-day it grants all that was asked for by the province of British Columbia through its Attorney General.

Mr. MORRISON: My constituency is in the southern part of Saskatchewan and there are several export houses established there, one of them being located in a horse livery barn only about twenty-five miles from the international boundary line. Just imagine, Mr. Speaker, an export house keeping its liquor in a horse livery barn! Four, five or half a dozen high-powered cars are used for the carriage of liquor across the boundary line, and these cars travel at the rate of about forty or fifty miles an hour on their nefarious mission. I consider these operations are a disgrace to any Canadian province. People in Saskatchewan have protested against such proceedings, and have expressed their wishes to see them abolished, but we find that the liquor interests are strong fighters; they have put up a fight worthy of a better cause, and when we nail them on one point they have recourse to some other. My hon. friend from St. Antoine (Mr. Mitchell) says it is not fair, in a sense, to close these liquor houses out in three months. I contend that the liquor interests have established these export houses to frustrate the laws of Saskatchewan, and they break not only the Canadian law but the law of the country to the south of us. While I do not want to be harsh or unreasonable in this matter, yet I think that men who have been deliberately and persistently frustrating the law cannot now claim very much leniency. In the past they have taken advantage of the leniency of the law right along. We do not want to confiscate their property, but we do want to place the responsibility for this traffic where it belongs. The provincial authorities have been saying that they have gone to the limit and have done all they could, and that it is now up to the federal authorities to act. In Saskatchewan we want to see this bill go through as it stands so that the wishes of the province with respect to prohibition of the liquor traffic may be carried out.

Mr. MITCHELL: When this bill was originally drafted it was prepared by the authorities for the province of British Columbia and the province of Quebec, and was not intended at all to apply to any of the provinces that have voted dry. It was only after the bill was introduced, or after it began to be studied by the officers of the Crown, that its provisions were extended to the dry provinces. Unfortunately I have seconded the motion of my hon. friend from George Etienne Cartier (Mr. Jacobs), but I am a little sorry for it now because he is asking that six months be allowed before the province should put this law into force. Now, I consulted with the Attorney General of Quebec, and discussed this matter with him. That province wants to get authority to control the transportation just as the province of Saskatchewan wishes to do, but I believe—although the Attorney General has not so informed me—that if he were consulted as regards giving the proprietors time to dispose of the stocks which they now legally hold, he would be willing to give them six months. At any rate, it is desired that the legislation come into effect at once so that control may be vested in the provincial government within two weeks or a month from the time the law goes into force. I would therefore suggest to the Solicitor General that the committee report progress and see if it is not possible to redraft this amendment in order to bring the act into force, with the understanding that the provincial governments be empowered to give these proprietors six months' notice.

Mr. KENNEDY (Glengarry): I quite agree with what has been said, that the whole trend of federal prohibitive legislation has been in the direction of placing the responsibility for enacting and enforcing prohibitory laws on the provinces. That is quite as it should be. The present bill proceeds along the same lines by supplementing acts that have been passed by the provincial legislatures. Although the traffic in Saskatchewan which has been discussed this afternoon is legal, it is quite obvious that it has been carried on contrary to the very emphatically expressed opinion of the people. If parties imported into Saskatchewan a few million dollars' worth of liquor between the time the people expressed their opinion, and the time the law went into effect, if they did not see fit to secure licenses from the federal authorities to conduct a bonded warehouse, I do not think this Parliament should regard them in any other light than as outlaws. They simply carried on this business, taking advantage of a loophole in the law, and have no right to expect the protection of Parliament. I think the provinces should have the absolute right to determine when this supplementing legislation shall go into effect. Although I am not a lawyer, I am a little doubtful whether this section, as it stands, gives them that right. I think, as pointed out by an hon. member, a little change in that wording is necessary. As I view it, this legislation is going to give the province the right to pass an Order in Council, and when that is done, the Dominion authority shall pass an Order in Council, naming the day on which the provincial Order in Council shall go into effect.

Mr. McKENZIE: That is not quite the procedure. The Lieutenant Governor's order in council has nothing to do with the question of the date when the law shall go into effect. He simply makes the request that this Government shall bring the law into effect; and this is following exactly the provisions of part IV of the Canada Temperance Act. I am quite familiar with the steps to be taken under Part IV of the Canada Temperance Act. That law was passed by this Parliament in 1919, and it contained a proviso that, if any province asked that this law should go into force within its bounds, the legislature of the province would pass a resolution asking the Government of Canada for an election, so that the people of the province could declare their will as to whether such a law should be enacted. When the Government received that resolution they called an election. The election would be held and then, by Order in Council, the Dominion government would bring the law into force. The province never had anything to say as to when the law should come into force, they were simply making the request, and every step in regard to it was taken by the Dominion government, except that the request for it, and the request for the preliminaries, came from the recognized authorities under the law. In draughting and providing for this bill, amending Part IV of the Canada Temperance Act, we are simply following the statute.

Mr. KENNEDY (Glengarry): Would it not be quite proper to give to the provinces the privilege of requesting that this section should come into effect upon a certain date?

Mr. McKENZIE: My hon. friend is an honest and well-meaning man, but, as he says he is not a lawyer. If he were a lawyer he would understand that we cannot delegate any power to the local legislature. They have powers given to them under the British North America Act which are exclusively theirs, and we cannot give them any of our powers—these powers we have to exercise ourselves. We cannot say to any province, "you shall on a certain date bring a certain act into force." They are absolute monarchs of all they survey within their own jurisdiction.

5 p.m.

Mr. McTAGGART: I am entirely in sympathy with the proposed bill, but, as I understand the discussion, the date when exportation from the various provinces shall cease depends entirely upon the federal government, and the proposal in the amendment, I believe, is that the date shall be extended until the first of January. I am very much opposed to that, for this reason: there are two export houses in the constituency which I represent. I was in that district last fall, and I will say, in all frankness, that the situation there is a discredit to the authority which allows it to go on. There would appear to be, in the province of Saskatchewan, some large stores of liquor, because almost every week, at the little town of Govenlock, in my constituency, liquor is unloaded by the carload. I do not think that anything is gained by extending the time for six months. I would not wish that the date should be set at, probably, less than three months. There must be in Saskatchewan somewhere large stores of liquor.

Amendment (Mr. Jacobs) negatived.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: We have voted down the suggestion that the time limit be six months. As it stands now, it might be six years or it might be sixty years.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: You have no faith in yourselves?

Mr. RYCKMAN: The time for bringing prohibition into force is plainly in the hands of the Governor General in Council, and, I think, my hon. friends can quite well leave it to them.

Mr. MOTHERWELL: I have suggested that the section stand until we understand what it means.

Mr. McKENZIE: I do not see what there is in this section that requires to stand. It is perfectly clear to every one. The amendment was voted down, and what is it that is going to stand? Is it a case of Micawber, waiting for something to turn up?

Mr. BAXTER: I think we should get some assurance from the Solicitor General (Mr. McKenzie) that he is really in earnest and really honest about it. The Minister of Agriculture is suspicious of the Solicitor General (Mr. McKenzie), and has no faith in him. He does not like to trust the act to him and other members of the Government. We may be getting a little sidelight as to why some great reforms promised during the last election have not been carried out. Perhaps, it is not because a certain minister was a private citizen at the time. It may be because he finds some wicked colleague will not allow him to carry his design into execution. The only thing this matter need stand for is the possibility of a reconciliation amongst the members of the Government, and the establishment of the mutual confidence that should exist.

Section agreed to.

On section 3—Importation of intoxicating liquor prohibited:

Mr. SHAW: The apparent anxiety of the Chairman to get the discussion over cannot well impress some of us. I want to suggest with regard to section 2, if I may be permitted to do so—

The CHAIRMAN: I must call the attention of the hon. member to the fact that section 2 has been carried. We are on section 3.

Mr. SHAW: I understood that the member for St. John was speaking to section 1.

The CHAIRMAN: There was nothing before the Chair when that hon. member was addressing it.

Mr. SHAW: Am I to understand that I am out of order in dealing with section 2?

The CHAIRMAN: Yes, section 2 has been passed; we are now on section 3, the marginal note of which has been read.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: Some hon. members seem to think that they have not had an opportunity to consider section 2, and I move, by consent of the committee, that we revert to that section.

Motion agreed to.

Mr. SHAW: I wanted to deal with the suggestion I made in regard to the date upon which the act is to come into effect. I am not asking that the provincial government be given power to fix the date. I merely suggest that it might request that the traffic be forbidden on and after a date to be named; if that were satisfactory the Governor in Council could by Order in Council declare that such prohibition should come into force in the province on that date. The Governor in Council would then know exactly when the province desired to have the act put into force. In order to ascertain the views of the committee I would move that after the word "forbidden," in the twenty-second line, the words "on a date therein named" be inserted, and that the last two lines be struck out and the following substituted therefor:

That such prohibition shall come into force in such province on the date named.

The CHAIRMAN: Rule 42 requires that amendments shall be in writing.

Mr. McKENZIE: I appeal to the committee for some consideration in this matter. I stated a little while ago that the bill was drafted partly by the Attorney-General of British Columbia, partly by the Attorney General of Quebec, and partly by some legal authorities in Saskatchewan; and with any assistance that I could secure, there fell to me the very hard task of so adjusting and welding together these different fragments as to produce the bill in its present form. I have put days and nights into the work, and have devoted to it all the energies I possess, and I do dislike to have it broken up. It is all right as it is, and should not be changed.

Mr. LEWIS: I have listened to the member for West Calgary (Mr. Shaw), and although there seems to be some point to his amendment, I think the power is already in the provinces. The section reads:

Upon receipt by the Secretary of State of Canada of a duly certified copy of an Order in Council passed by the Lieutenant-Governor in Council of any province, etc.

The Lieutenant Governor need not take action until he is satisfied that the time is ripe for it. He need not apply to the federal government until the province is ready to have the act put into force.

Mr. BAXTER: I am heartily in accord with the remarks of the Solicitor General. It does not require one line of legislation to enable the province to make a request, and even if there were some supererogation in the draughtsmanship of the bill conferring power in the matter, that power already exists. A province can come and ask for anything; it need not be empowered to do that. It would not vitiate the Order in Council contemplated if it did state a date and request that on that date the federal government should bring its legislation into effect; it would not hurt a bit. But from a very short experience of the work of government, I may suggest that it would be quite easy for a province, perhaps very zealous and well-intentioned, to name a date that would not possibly permit the consideration of their request in time to issue the proclamation to bring the law into force on that date. It is not possible to drop all other business of the Dominion and take up an isolated subject like this. The province might fix, for instance, one week from the date of the passing of legislation. I am not prepared to concur in the proposal that the province should fix the date. I am certainly not here in support of the present Government, but I am not here to raise fantastic objections to their mode of carrying on business, and I should have to assume that they intended, in a sense, to betray the province which made a request of this kind if I agreed to the proposal that the province should fix the date. I believe that when a province makes the request, the Order in Council will be granted just so soon as it can be passed in the ordinary course of business. I am not going to accuse the Government of intended bad faith, when I have not the slightest bit of evidence on which to base such an accusation. It will be quite time enough to deal with the Government when it is found acting in bad faith. I do not anticipate that that opportunity will ever occur in this matter. I am quite prepared to trust the Solicitor General and his confreres, in the perfect assurance that the request of any province will be met in proper time without the slightest attempt to do anything other than exactly what the province asks.

[Mr. Lewis.]

Mr. SHAW: The implicit trust of the member for St. John in the Government to-day is very amazing, and it does suggest the "morganatic alliance" of which we have heard before. I have also every confidence in the Government in this matter, but my intention was simply to give the provincial government an opportunity to convey to this Government their desire that the prohibition should come into force on a particular date. I am satisfied that the Governor in Council will see to it that the request of any province, regardless of its politics, will receive proper consideration. If the Solicitor General feels that he cannot accept this very simple amendment I am not going to press it.

Mr. MITCHELL: Subsection (b) of Section 158 provides:

> The carriage or transportation through such province of intoxicating liquor which may lawfully be exported therefrom shall only be by means of a common carrier by water or by railway and not otherwise,

It is pointed out to me that the prohibition might go so far as not to allow delivery from a brewery, distillery or warehouse, as the case may be, to the common carrier by water or by railway, when the brewery, distillery or warehouse was not situated on a railway siding. I would therefore suggest to the Solicitor General that after the word "otherwise" in the fourth line he add the words, "excepting for delivery to and from such common carrier." Without that amendment a brewer delivering to a train or steamboat might have his motor truck seized and confiscated.

Mr. MILLAR: In the event of this amendment being accepted, would there be anything to prevent those delivering liquor from travelling to any part of the province so long as later on they were going to deliver to a common carrier?

Mr. MITCHELL: The delivery must be from the warehouse to the common carrier, and I presume if those delivering are found several miles away from the point of delivery they would be presumed to be going somewhere else with the liquor.

Mr. MORRISON: The word "direct" would cover that point.

Mr. JOHNSON (Moosejaw): While the amendment offered at first glance looks very innocent, we who have seen the facility with which such provisions of the law can be violated are a little suspicious of its effect—not of the intention of the hon. member. For instance, on the prairies the points of delivery are frequently very many miles apart, and I know of one particular road between two towns some forty-two or forty-three miles apart which was kept open last winter for weeks after the ordinary automobile traffic ceased in order that this particular traffic might continue.

Mr. MITCHELL: This will apply only to British Columbia and Quebec, because you will not have any export houses in Saskatchewan after this law comes into effect.

Mr. JOHNSON (Moosejaw): If that is correct the hon. gentleman's amendment may be accepted. But we have warehouses there even if they are not used for export.

Mr. MITCHELL: I agree with the hon. gentleman for I had charge for several years of the enforcement of the probihition law in Quebec, and I know all the difficulties he speaks of. But this was pointed out to me as a defect which should be remedied.

Mr. JACOBS: Inasmuch as the Solicitor General thinks his bill should not be spoiled seeing he spent so much time on it, and as I am a supporter of the Government, I shall oppose the amendment.

Mr. LEWIS: I object to the words, "to and from the common carriers". That is to say, between common carriers themselves liquor can be transported, if I understand the amendment aright.

Mr. MITCHELL: No.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: Why not strike out the words, "and from"?

Mr. MITCHELL: That would not do. Supposing you take shipments from the province of Ontario, where most of the distilleries are, and bring them into the province of Quebec, you land them at the Bonaventure station, Montreal, and have to take them to the government warehouse.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: Quite right.

Amendment agreed to.

Section as amended agreed to.

Bill reported as amended, read the third time and passed.

CANADA SHIPPING ACT AMENDMENT

PUBLIC HARBOURS AND HARBOUR MASTERS

On motion of Hon. Ernest Lapointe (Minister of Marine and Fisheries) the House went into committee to consider the following proposed resolution, Mr. Gordon in the Chair:

Resolved, That it is expedient to amend sections 850 and 854 of Part XII of the Canada Shipping Act, chapter 113 of the Revised Statutes, 1906, relating to Public Harbours and Harbour Masters, and to provide:—

1. That section 850 be amended so as to provide that Part XII shall apply to such ports only as have been or may be hereafter designated for that purpose by proclamation, or have been or may be created public harbours by proclamation under that Part, but shall not apply to the ports of Quebec, Montreal and Three Rivers in the province of Quebec, to the ports of Toronto, Hamilton and Belleville in the province of Ontario, to the port of Halifax in the province of Nova Scotia, to the port of St. John in the province of New Brunswick, to the ports of Vancouver, North Fraser and New Westminster in the province of British Columbia, or to the port of Winnipeg and St. Boniface in the province of Manitoba, or to any harbour or port with respect to which there is or may be established under an act of the Parliament of Canada a harbour commission or other special authority having powers to enact special regulations for the government and control of the harbour placed under its charge, unless and until application from such harbour commission or special authority to have this Part so apply shall have been received and granted by the Governor in Council. If such harbour commission or special authority is abolished the harbour may thereafter be proclaimed a public harbour under the provisions of section 849 of the act.

2. That section 854 be amended so as to provide that the Governor in Council may make rules and regulations for the government of any public harbour or port in Canada, but in the case of any harbour or port to which Part XII does not apply under the provisions of section 850 as amended, any such rule or regulation as may be inconsistent with any rule or regulation in force in any such harbour or port shall not be held to apply to the said harbour or port until application therefor from the harbour commission or other special authority shall have been received and granted by the Governor in Council.

Mr. LAPOINTE: Part XII of the Canada Shipping Act gives power to the Governor in Council to appoint harbour masters and defines their duties. Section 850 states that certain ports are exempted from the provisions of Part XII, being the ports administered by harbour commissions. In such cases the harbour master is appointed by the harbour commissioners and is under their control, and the rules and regulations adopted by the Harbour Commission are followed. Since the passage of the Canada Shipping Act many new harbour commissions have been created by statute, and the purpose of the proposed legislation is to add to the exceptions stated in section 850 the additional harbours which are now under control of a harbour commission. It is proposed also to apply a similar exemption to ports which in the future may be placed under a harbour commission. Section 2 has practically the same purpose: when there is no harbour commission the rules and regulations adopted by the Governor in Council apply; when there is a harbour commission the regulations of the Governor in Council do not apply if they come in conflict with those of the commission. It is also provided that harbour commissions may at any time request that the general regulations of the Governor in Council should apply to their ports as well as to the others.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: As I understand it, the theory is to place the control and management of the harbours entirely in the hands of harbour commissions, where they exist?

Mr. LAPOINTE: So far as the harbour master is concerned.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: Subject only to the qualification that the port warden is to be appointed by the Government.

Mr. LAPOINTE: The duties of the port warden do not relate to any of the functions of the harbour commission. The duty of the port warden, as of the shipping master, is to see to the enforcement of the Canada Shipping Act and the regulations of the Department of Marine. He must be under the Department of Marine; but the functions of harbour master are directly connected with those of the harbour commissioners.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: The practice is then to leave the management of harbours to the harbour commissioners, aside from the offices referred to. Is any change made by this legislation from previous practice, and if so, to what extent?

Mr. LAPOINTE: The ports of Quebec, Montreal, Three Rivers, Toronto, Halifax, Pictou, and St. John were the only ports excepted from the provisions of Part XII of the Canada Shipping Act. We are adding to these the following ports now administered by a commission: Hamilton, Belleville, Vancouver, North Fraser, New Westminster, Winnipeg, St. Boniface. It is to give autonomy to these ports and place them on the same footing as the ports of Montreal, Quebec, St. John and Halifax.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: I understand that, but what I want to know is whether any change in practice is being made. I have understood that these ports are already autonomous. I suppose my hon. friend thinks the law is not quite right, and by this legislation he seeks to remedy that?

Mr. LAPOINTE: No; as it is, the harbour master is appointed by the Department of Marine and Fisheries; under the law as it will be, the harbour master will be appointed by and be under the control of the harbour commissioners.

Resolution reported, read the second time and concurred in. Mr. Lapointe thereupon moved for leave to introduce Bill No. 144, to amend the Canada Shipping Act (Public Harbours and Harbour Masters).

Motion agreed to and bill read the first and second times, considered in committee, reported, read the third time and passed.

FISHERIES ACT, 1914, AMENDMENT

On motion of Hon. Ernest Lapointe (Minister of Marine and Fisheries) the House went into committee to consider the following proposed resolution, Mr. Gordon in the Chair.

1. Resolved, That it is expedient to amend the Fisheries Act, 1914, by repealing paragraph (b) of subsection two of section 18 as enacted by chapter fifty-two of the statutes of 1919, and providing in lieu thereof that the annual fee for a salmon curing establishment shall be:—

Fifty cents on each ton or fraction thereof of dry-salted salmon put up in the establishment during the season, when the total quantity of dry-salted salmon put up in one season does not exceed ten tons;

Seventy-five cents on each ton or fraction thereof of dry-salted salmon put up in the establishment during the season, when the total quantity of dry-salted salmon put up in one season exceeds ten tons but is not more than twenty tons;

One dollar on each ton or fraction thereof of dry-salted salmon put up in the establishment during the season, when the total quantity of dry-salted salmon put up in one season exceeds twenty tons but is not more than fifty tons;

One dollar and twenty-five cents on each ton or fraction thereof of dry-salted salmon put up in the establishment during the season, when the total quantity of dry-salted salmon put up in one season exceeds fifty tons.

2. That the said act be amended by inserting the following provisions relating to Herring Dry-Salting Establishments:—

(1) In British Columbia no one shall operate an establishment for dry-salting herring for commercial purposes excepting under license from the minister.

(2) The annual fee on such license shall be:—

Fifty cents on each ton or fraction thereof of dry-salted herring put up in the establishment during the season, when the total quantity of dry-salted herring put up in one season does not exceed ten tons;

Seventy-five cents on each ton or fraction thereof of dry-salted herring put up in the establishment during the season, when the total quantity of dry-salted herring put up in one season exceeds ten tons but is not more than twenty tons;

One dollar on each ton or fraction thereof of dry-salted herring put up in the establishment during the season, when the total quantity of dry-salted herring put up in one season exceeds twenty tons but is not more than fifty tons;

One dollar and twenty-five cents on each ton or fraction thereof of dry-salted herring put up in the establishment during the season, when the total quantity of dry-salted herring put up in one season exceeds fifty tons.

Provided that these fees shall not apply to an establishment which is being used in a bona fide manner in the canned or pickled herring industry.

Mr. LAPOINTE: The purpose of this resolution is more especially to make more proportionate the fees paid for a cannery license and for a curing establishment license. It is also for the purpose of bringing about a better proportion between the fees paid by the smaller and the larger operators. The existing fee for a salmon curing establishment is $50. This is unfairly high for the small operator, and a very low fee for the big operator. For instance, the salmon cannery license is $500, plus four cents per case of 48 pounds of sockeye salmon put up, and three cents per case of all other varieties. Several salmon salteries in British Columbia put up over 100 tons of dry-salted salmon in a season, which would be equivalent to about 2,300 cases of canned salmon. Keeping in view the cost of operation involved, and the market for dry-salted salmon, it is considered that a fee of $1.25 per ton would compare fairly with the salmon cannery license.

The other change is to require a license for dry-salted herring. An important trade in dry-salted herring for the oriental market is now carried on in British Columbia. This business is largely in the hands of orientals. At the present time there is no license fee. It has been thought desirable that there should be a license, in order to allow the department to exercise proper supervision over these establishments. It is also considered that a fee similar to that required for salmon curing is reasonable, for while the product is worth less it costs very much less to produce and cure it. On the other hand we must do everything to encourage the pickling and canning of herring, as this means not only a much larger expenditure in the province, but a much better food product and a larger financial return for the country. It is therefore proposed to exempt from a fee, bona fide operators who are seeking to develop the pickled and canned herring industry and who are using the herring not fit for such purposes for dry salting. This canned and pickled herring industry in British Columbia is not in the hands of the people I have just mentioned, and there is not the same objection to exempting them from that fee. As I have already stated they use for the purpose only the herring that could not be canned in their industry. I know that this legislation has been asked for by almost everybody in British Columbia, and it has been represented that it is most unfair to the salmon canning industry that the salted salmon industry carried on by the orientals largely should not pay a fee at least equivalent to the fee paid by the salmon canners.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: I would like to ask the minister how the value of the dry salted salmon compares with that of the canned salmon?

Mr. LAPOINTE: I have not that information here but I can secure it for my hon. friend.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: Never mind. From what the minister says I would have thought that most of the business of putting down this dry salted salmon would be done in the smaller units but I see that he has fixed a tax of fifty cents a ton when the amount is only ten tons, and $1.25 when the production exceeds fifty tons. What is the idea of that?

Mr. LAPOINTE: I do not think anybody fears competition with the small operators. There are some people out there who really put up only a few tons of salmon, and under the present law they were paying $10 for their license. It was felt that that was really too high and that a smaller fee should be charged.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: I agree with that.

Mr. LAPOINTE: This provision is rather to hit the larger operators who export to other countries.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: But what is the underlying idea of this graduated scale? Is it merely to assist the canned salmon operators, or is it something that has been scientifically worked out?

Mr. LAPOINTE: The idea is not to make the burden heavy on the small operators, but to equalize it as between the larger operator in this industry and the operator in the canning industry.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: With a view of equalizing the cost of production?

Mr. LAPOINTE: Yes.

Mr. NEILL: I would just like to ask the minister about that last paragraph; I did not quite understand what he said. I gather that these fees will not apply to an establishment that is operating in the canned or pickled herring industry if it goes into the dry salting business. It does not pay any license in that case?

Mr. LAPOINTE: That is the meaning of it.

Mr. NEILL: Well then I would submit that is hardly just. That will allow a canner, for instance, who is operating a cannery, presumably on a profitable basis, to compete with a man who does not own a cannery in the dry salting of salmon business. Why should that man be exempt from this taxation because he happens to own a cannery somewhere. It puts a direct premium upon the operations of the man who owns a cannery as against the very people the minister has been undoubtedly trying to help with his previous resolution—I refer to the small operator. The man who puts up ten tons will have to pay a license of fifty cents a ton, and so on, up to $1.25 and his product will have to compete with that of the man who happens to own a cannery somewhere in the province and who does not pay any fee on the salted herring. Is that the situation?

Mr. LAPOINTE: Well, he pays a high fee for his license but he would not pay for that side line, as my hon. friend says. He only uses the herring that cannot go into the canning industry. He does so in order that the product may not be lost altogether. We want to encourage the industry of pickling and canning herring. This provision is not directed against the same people as the rest of the section, as my hon. friend knows.

Mr. NEILL: I do not know that there are many canners who can herring but here is the situation: We will say there are two men within twenty miles of each other. One is a canner and he makes money out of it or I suppose he would not run the establishment. He runs it for six months in the year and in the winter season uses the plant to put up dry salted salmon. He may put up 100 tons and yet pay no license fee for it whatever. His product competes with that of the man who is putting up solely this dry salted salmon. That does not appear to me to be equitable.

Mr. LAPOINTE: Of course a salmon canner has to pay a license; I do not think there is any cannery which specializes in the canning of herring.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: I do not understand this resolution either in the way my hon. friend from Comox-Alberni (Mr. Neill) understands it or in the way the minister understands it. I thought that this exception had nothing whatever to do with the canning or pickling of salmon but had to do with the canning or pickling of herring—

Mr. LAPOINTE: That is right.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: —and that in so far as dry salted salmon was concerned they would have to pay whether they had canneries or not.

Mr. LAPOINTE: No it relates to herring.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: So that the exception is for herring.

Mr. LAPOINTE: That is right.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: The minister gave us a fee as to the salmon but he did not mention the fee paid by the canned or pickled herring industry. Do they pay fees?

Mr. LAPOINTE: I do not think they do as such, but it is always the salmon cannery that goes into the business of canning herring; there is no herring cannery.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: Well, then, my hon. friend from Comox-Alberni was right in the point he was making because these pickled herring industries are really salmon industries.

Mr. LAPOINTE: Except that they are already paying a fee of $500 as salmon canners, and the others are not paying anything.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: Let us make this clear. The only exception is as to herring?

Mr. LAPOINTE: Yes.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: And there is no exception whatever as to the fees in the case of dry salted salmon whether it is a cannery or not; is that right?

Mr. LAPOINTE: Yes.

Mr. NEILL: We will take the example of a man who has a cannery up in the Naas district, away up in the north of British Columbia; it may be that he happens to own that cannery, or it is owned by a big company. Why should they be favoured as against the man who confines himself to putting up dry salted salmon? Will the minister explain that? It is a direct advantage to the man or the company having a number of canneries; I cannot see what is the purpose of the provision enabling him to escape this tax.

Mr. LAPOINTE: He does not escape on dry salted salmon.

Sir HENRY DRAYTON: As far as I can understand it the situation is that although the salmon packing plants are the ones that do go into this herring business, in so far as the herring pickling activities of those plants are concerned they are only small. The minister desires to advance the herring industry and therefore makes no charge, in so far as the dry salted herring are concerned, provided the cannery is in the canning and herring pickling business. That is as I understand it.

Resolution reported, read the second time and concurred in. Mr. Lapointe, thereupon, moved for leave to introduce Bill No. 145, to amend the Fisheries Act, 1914.

Motion agreed to, and bill read the first and second times and the House went into committee thereon.

On section 2—British Columbia herring curing establishments to have license; fees.

Mr. NEILL: There is nothing to be gained by railroading things through. I think we should have time to look through the bill. I have not yet seen a copy.

Mr. LAPOINTE: I am sorry. I was under the impression my hon. friend was agreeing to that legislation.

Mr. NEILL: Yes, I thoroughly agree with the whole bill, except the last paragraph. It is in the right direction, and I heartily approve of it, with that exception. It seems to me that will open the door to the evasion of the fee by an establishment that owns a cannery, to the detriment of the man solely engaged in the dry salted herring industry. Do I understand this only applies to an establishment actually engaged in canning herring and not salmon?

Mr. LAPOINTE: Absolutely.

Mr. NEILL: Well possibly it may work out all right, but I have my doubts.

Section agreed to.

Bill reported, read the third time and passed.

OPIUM AND NARCOTIC DRUG ACT AMENDMENT

On motion of Hon. H. S. BELAND (Minister of Health) Bill No. 137, to amend the Opium and Narcotic Drug Act was read the second time, and the House went into committee thereon, Mr. Gordon in the Chair.

At six o'clock the committee took recess.

After Recess

The committee resumed at eight o'clock.

House again in Committee on Bill No. 137, to amend the Opium and Narcotic Drug Act, Mr. Gordon in the Chair.

On section 1—Dealing in drugs. A written order required in connection with all sales of narcotics to druggists and others.

Mr. STORK: I am satisfied that in British Columbia the larger part of this traffic is carried on by foreigners; and in addition to the penalties provided for here I would suggest deportation in the case of aliens.

Mr. BELAND: Section 2 provides a more severe penalty than has heretofore been imposed. My hon. friend (Mr. Stork) suggests deportation in the case of aliens. That is a matter for the consideration of the committee. When we reach another section of the bill I shall submit an amendment which, I think, will meet this suggestion. I shall make a statement regarding the number of aliens who have been convicted during the last fiscal year, and the committee will see that if deportation of aliens were included among the penalties a very large number of the traffickers in this business would be affected. There is no particular change in section 1, except that it sets out more clearly the law regarding the traffic in drugs by licensees, by retail druggists who are not licensed, and by physicians, veterinary surgeons and dentists. The section is very clear and I see no objection to it. The fine of $500 has been reduced to $200, not because we want to make it easier for licensees or for physicians and dentists to evade the law, but because in the case of physicians and dentists, the association to which they belong, the various colleges of physicians and surgeons, have certain rules and regulations to which they are subject, and any physician who engages in the illicit sale of cocaine, morphine or opium is liable to suspension by his association. The maximum term of imprisonment has been placed at eighteen months. I think this clause is quite clear.

Mr. ANDERSON: Does this mean that a physician must give an order under his own signature?

Mr. BELAND: It must be a written order in every case.

Section agreed to.

On section 2.—Subsection 2—Penalty for importing, etc.

Mr. BELAND: It will be noticed that this is an important departure from the previous law. There is a very general desire that this traffic be suppressed if at all possible, and numerous requests have reached me not only from benevolent, charitable and religious bodies, but also from hon. members on both sides of the House, asking that in the case of the conviction of illicit dealers the magistrate should have no option to impose a fine. Heretofore these traffickers on conviction were subject to fine or imprisonment. This clause provides that upon summary conviction the illicit dealer will be liable "to a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars and costs and not less than two hundred dollars and costs, and to imprisonment for any term not exceeding eighteen months and not less than six months."

Mr. STEVENS: It says "or" here.

Mr. BELAND: If my hon. friend will read subsection 2 of section 2 he will find the following:

> Subsection two of section 5A of the said act, as enacted by chapter thirty-one of the statutes of 1920 and amended by chapter forty-two of the statutes of 1921, is amended by striking out all the words after the word "Minister" in the third line of paragraph (e) of the said subsection, and substituting therefor the following:—"shall be guilty of a criminal offence and shall be liable, upon indictment to imprisonment for any term not exceeding seven years,—

[Mr. Béland.]

That is in the case of minors.

> —or upon summary conviction to a fine not exceeding one thousand dollars and costs and not less than two hundred dollars and costs, and to imprisonment for any term not exceeding eighteen months and not less than six months;

I think this is a very wise provision.

Mr. LADNER: The proposed changes in the Opium and Narcotic Drug Act are, I believe, highly commendable, and as there is an evident desire to expedite business of the House, I do not propose to go into the subject at such length as I had originally intended to do.

Some hon MEMBERS: Hear, hear. Let us save time.

Mr. LADNER: Hon. gentlemen say "hear, hear." If they will concur in the suggestions which I am about to make, the passage of this bill will be greatly facilitated. The amendments which the minister has brought down have, I think, the support of our people generally throughout the country. On the Coast large numbers of organizations such as those mentioned by the minister, boards of trade, community service clubs, and other bodies recently conducted an investigation into the drug traffic, and the appalling disclosures made caused them to urge very strongly upon the Government the amendments which are now incorporated in this bill, and others which are not so incorporated, and to the latter I will address myself in a moment.

In order that the House may understand the idea behind the movement in western Canada and other parts of the Dominion, I propose to read a resolution passed by the Vancouver Board of Trade which contains practically my argument on this subject. The Vancouver Board of Trade is one of the largest in Canada, and at a meeting held on the 7th February last, it passed this resolution:

> "Whereas, the illegal sale and traffic in drugs or narcotics appears from an investigation by certain organizations in Greater Vancouver to have grown in this and other cities to an alarming extent, bringing in its wake degeneracy, crime and moral and physical ruin;
>
> And whereas, various service clubs and public bodies deem it expedient to arouse the public to the seriousness of the situation and necessity for remedial measures to prevent the existing illegal traffic and its increase;
>
> It is, therefore resolved that this meeting of the Vancouver Board of Trade, strongly urges the proper authorities to immediately amend or alter the existing laws pertaining to the illegal sale and traffic in drugs in order to provide for the enforcement of the following remedies:
>
> (a) The elimination of fines as a penalty for illegal selling of drugs or narcotics and the substitution therefore of a prison sentence of not less than one year and not more than ten years with lashes upon entering and in the discretion of the magistrate upon leaving, for all cases;

(b) And in addition to the prison sentence deportation for all aliens or those possible under the law; and in the case of those who under the law cannot be deported, they shall report periodically and for such time and to such person as the sentencing judge may determine; failure to report to incur further imprisonment or restraint in a proper public institution;

(c) In the case of a naturalized alien convicted of selling, cancellation of naturalization papers and deportation after prison sentence.

Some of those suggestions are not embodied in these proposed amendments. I believe the minister was willing to introduce the penalty of deportation, and I strongly urge upon the Government the wisdom of including it in the bill. I believe that if a foreigner is convicted of illegally selling a drug—and many of these traffickers are foreigners—he should be deported; he is no good in Canada. I beg to offer in amendment to subsection 2:

That after the word "summarily" in the fifteenth line of subsection 2 there shall be added the following words, "and shall at the discretion of the judge be liable to whipping."

Of course, I admit that that is a severe penalty. In the fifteenth line of this subsection there is the following proviso:

—provided that any person who unlawfully sells, gives away or distributes any drug to any minor shall be proceeded against by indictment and not summarily.

Now, Mr. Chairman, I contend that the man who induces a minor to indulge in the drug habit should not be relieved from such a penalty as whipping. The chief purpose of such an amendment will not be so much in its application as in its deterrent effect upon those men who contemplate engaging in this traffic, for when they know that the law contains a priviso of that kind the dread of being subjected to the lash will effectually deter them from incurring the risk. I have examples here of the most monstrous action on the part of men engaged in this traffic, involving young girls of fifteen and sixteen. I say that if a man is convicted for perhaps the third time of selling these drugs to a girl of sixteen whom he has seduced and brought into the traffic, there should be power in the hands of the magistrates to have the lash applied. Some hon. members may think it is too extreme a punishment, but for many other offences under the criminal code the application of the lash is provided, as, for instance, in the case of rape, hold-up with intent to wound, and burglary. The effect of the carrying on of the drug traffic upon the moral qualities of manhood and womanhood is to bring about diseases of the vilest kind and crimes of all sorts—theft, murder, hold-up. The court records disclose the interesting fact that in the majority of cases the people engaged in these criminal enterprises are followers of the drug traffic. I have here a number of cases which were investigated by a responsible body of citizens in Vancouver and other cities. Out of the forty or fifty cases which I have before me I will take just one. A young girl of sixteen was brought before the committee and examined—and I may say that other inquiries were made with a view to determining the correctness of this evidence, which was established beyond any doubt. This girl is a morphine or cocaine addict, is afflicted with venereal disease, prostitutes with Chinamen. She is a resident of Vancouver and has been during her whole life. She acquired the habit through mixing with men engaged in the traffic. On the morning of the investigation she was engaged in this unfortunate pursuit in order to earn sufficient money, $5.50, to buy drugs to last her for the day. This traffic is carried on in a cool and calculating way. The men who sell the drug do not themselves use it; they know its terrible effects, but they exercise all their resourcefulness and ingenuity to induce others to acquire the habit. They have what are called "snow parties", a kind of social entertainment in which they get the confidence of people and induce them to try the cocaine or whatever it may be. They dare them to try it, and by doing this again and again they ensure for themselves a market for their wares. I say it is not too much to ask that Parliament confer upon the judges trying these men the power to administer the lash, as is done in such other cases as I have mentioned. In fact, the effects of the drug traffic are even more serious than the consequences of the other crimes that I have referred to. I submit that the members of the committee should stand behind this amendment. It is sound in principle, and the result of its adoption would be to deter those who otherwise would be engaged in the traffic—in other words, to protect the young people of our country.

Mr. BELAND: By the bill which is now under consideration we provide more severe penalties than have hitherto been applied in the case of those who carry on illicit trade in narcotics. Besides it is my intention to move a little later that all aliens convicted under this act shall be deported. The committee will have an idea of the effect of a deportation clause upon the traffic when I say that for the year ended September 30, 1921, there were in Canada 1,864 convictions, and of that number 1,211 were Chinese. So that if the amendment I propose becomes law and that number of Chinamen are affected, there would be 1,211 deportations. Of course, there would still be a number at large, but hon. members will admit that the remedy would be an effective one.

Mr. NEILL: Is there any record of how many of these Chinese were not naturalized?

Mr. BELAND: I have not the figures before me, but I understand that only a limited number of Chinamen are naturalized; from information which I have received, I understand that most of them are aliens. So far as the proposal of my hon. friend (Mr. Ladner) is concerned, I know that the crime is a serious one. But the application of the lash has so far been confined to cases of physical crime, and it is a question whether it would be advisable to apply that punishment in the case of convictions in connection with traffic in narcotic drugs. Possibly we should not adopt the provision embodied in my hon. friend's amendment, at least until we have seen, in the course of the next twelve months what the result will be of the new provisions made for stricter punishment. Of course, I am in the hands of the committee in this respect, but I suggest that my hon. friend wait until next session before pressing his amendment.

Mr. McQUARRIE: What proportion of the 1,211 Chinese could have been deported if the amendment which is to be proposed by the minister had been in effect last year?

Mr. BELAND: My hon. friend from Comox-Alberni asked me the same question, and I replied that I was not in a position to say how many of these 1,211 were naturalized. I think that very few of them would be Canadians.

Mr. McQUARRIE: There might be others. A great many of our Chinese in British Columbia come from Hong Kong and other British possessions. What would you do in a case of that kind? I am extremely doubtful if we would be able to deport a great number of these persons if convicted.

Mr. BELAND: I am surprised to hear that statement, because I took it for granted that the deportation provision would hit at the very heart of the trade amongst the Chinese.

Mr. McQUARRIE: I think it is a good provision, but I do not know how it will work out.

Mr. NEILL: Would the minister go so far as to say "or naturalized aliens"? I think that would meet the situation.

Mr. BELAND: My hon. friend will realize that that would be a very unusual provision. The moment an alien becomes naturalized he is a Canadian, and I do not know but what it would be declared ultra vires.

Mr. LADNER: I would ask the minister, who is a medical man, if he does not consider that the extension of the drug traffic is a physical crime, because it brings about a physical disability that results in crime?

Mr. MANION: I should just like to say a few words on this question. I have looked up the Hansard of last year, because I remembered that when this same question came up then, the then hon. member for Red Deer, myself, and some other medical men in the House at that time, including the minister, I think, were opposed to using the lash in cases of this kind on the general ground that it was hardly called for. However, I believe that the hon. gentlemen who represent British Columbia in this House are more familiar with this question than perhaps the rest of us, even those of us who are in the medical profession. I do not see, after all, that there would be any great harm, in fact, there might be a great deal of good, in accepting the amendment moved by my hon. friend from Vancouver South. While what the minister says is true that lashing should be kept for certain crimes of physical violence, I think perhaps moral violence as in this case is a much more serious crime. No one, however, understands the deplorable effects of the use of these habit-forming drugs better than the minister and myself, who are both members of the medical profession. I would ask the minister, with no desire to be contrary at all, to reconsider this amendment. I can see no real reason why the clause as drafted by the hon. member for Vancouver South should not be accepted. It leaves it to the discretion of the judge to use this method of punishment. I believe that good would come of it. I cannot see how it would hurt the bill in any shape or form, and I therefore again appeal to the minister to reconsider, and insert this clause in the bill.

Mr. STEVENS: Before the minister replies, might I also point out to him one or two other matters? First, this extreme penalty of flogging is proposed to be applied to those traffickers who have been supplying drugs to minors. I wish the House could fully appreciate the horrible nature of this traffic. I know of no act that one human being could do to another more despicable and more fraught with utter depravity in its results than to supply these drugs to minors. We have seen so many, many cases that to us the traffic seems sickening, appalling. One would not dare to describe publicly the effects of these drugs. The minister gave the committee the number of convictions the other night. I think the two cities most seriously affected are Montreal and Vancouver, and perhaps Victoria, but Vancouver more particularly. Therefore, I say to the minister and to the House, that we might very well add this penalty of flogging in the case of traffickers convicted of selling drugs to minors. I might remind the House that I moved this amendment myself last year and the House very nearly accepted it. There was a pretty narrow division of opinion at that time, and I think it was my own inability to bring the matter strongly enough before the House that prevented the amendment from carrying.

Regarding the other point, I think that the clause the minister is adding providing for the deportation of aliens will very, very materially strengthen the bill and and the arm of the law. I also agree with him in his estimate that a very large proportion of these 1,200 Chinese would be aliens, and therefore subject to deportation. Comparatively few of these Chinamen would be naturalized. We may find it necessary in the working out of this provision, to strengthen it later on, but I wish to say to the minister with the utmost sincerity that we appreciate very much indeed his attempt to strengthen the bill, and we accord to him the highest commendation. I would ask him, however, and the House most earnestly to accept the amendment moved by my hon. friend from Vancouver South, and add this penalty of flogging in the case of those convicted of trafficking in drugs to minors.

Mr. GOULD: As the hon. member for Fort William (Mr. Manion) has stated, there was a debate in the House on this question last year. At that time I opposed the principle of applying the lash, not only in this but in other cases, and I think the House was well advised in taking the stand it did on that occasion. I have not changed my views on that point since. I sympathize with the sentiments expressed by the minister. I think that we should first exhaust all other means of punishment before resorting to the lash. It does seem to me that we are reverting to the dark ages when we ask for that punishment of this kind be administered. I am sure that science and the brains of individuals to-day are capable of devising ways and means whereby this traffic which we all admit is one of the greatest evils extant in the country, could be eliminated without the application of the lash. I have no desire in any way to save individuals who may be convicted of this heinous crime, but I would plead along the line suggested by the minister, that we at least try out for a time the penalties proposed in the resolution offered by the minister before we endorse the sentiments expressed in the amendment.

Mr. TOLMIE: I am sure we all very greatly appreciate the additions which the minister has made to the bill with regard to deportation. I quite understand, too, that it might be impossible to get rid of these orientals or foreigners who have become naturalized, but if we deport those who have been convicted of taking part in this traffic, I can readily see that we are moving in the direction of solving this oriental question.

There are certain points in discussing this matter which must not be overlooked. In the first place, very large profits are made out of this business, and consequently we have found in the past that these men will take almost any chance, and that they adopt the most ingenious methods for evading the law and carrying on this traffic. Again, we have another class of dealer who is himself subject to this habit, a man who take narcotics himself, and the strong desire to secure those narcotics and the high prices which they realize would induce that man to himself take any possible chances to obtain money to buy drugs for his own use. Now, I cannot understand any argument which proposes to give any quarter to a trafficker in narcotics, particularly to one who supplies narcotics to a minor. I have been shown through some of these opium dens in British Columbia and the sights are simply appalling. Take the effects of the narcotics as described by the hon. member for Vancouver South (Mr. Ladner). There are hundreds of these cases out there, the traffic is increasing very rapidly, and I feel that we are quite justified in adopting any measure whatever that will overcome this traffic before it gains any further headway. Even if by the application of the lash, in cases where the magistrate thinks it is necessary, we can save only one or two persons during the coming year I think we should adopt the required measures right now and not postpone the legislation for another year. I think it is generally acknowledged by those who have been keeping close tab on this traffic that fine and imprisonment have not been nearly so effective as we thought these penalties would be when the law was first applied.

Mr. McQUARRIE: I also would like to support the amendment, but before dealing with it I would say that I think the minister's action in providing for the deportation of aliens who are convicted of this crime, is most commendable and I congratulate him on having gone that far. At the same time deportation will not cover all the offenders. Even on the figures that were given, if all the Chinese could be deported, that would cover only 1,200 out of 1,800 and would leave some 600 not subject to deportation. Now, what is going to happen to them? These people will pay a fine without any hesitation; they can afford to do so because there is a very large profit made in this traffic. I have had a good deal of experience in connection with the administration of the criminal law and I know that there are men who will take imprisonment with a smile on their face—that imprisonment does not seem to have a great deal of effect in a great many cases. But where a man is faced with a sentence that will subject him to whipping I have seen the most hardened criminals cringe, and I say it is the greatest deterrent that could possibly be placed in the Criminal Code. This crime, to my mind, is even more serious than the crime of robbery with violence. To hold a man up at the point of a gun and take his money away from him is serious of course, but it is not so serious as to give drugs to a minor and take away his future. To render that minor an addict to the drug habit is the most terrible thing that could happen to him or to her. I would much rather have anyone hold me up, and shoot me for that matter, than sell me drugs and cause me to become a drug addict. I have seen the effects of this traffic; it is a terrible thing. We are not going too far when we give a judge discretion to order a lashing in what he considers to be an extreme case. I would press that view on the minister. I know he is trying to do his very best to meet the situation, I know that he appreciates its gravity, not only in places like Vancouver where investigations have been held, but elsewhere throughout Canada. In all the cities and towns of the Dominion this condition exists to a greater or lesser extent. Even here in the city of Ottawa the police could give information which would open the eyes of anyone who is not acquainted with the facts. If we knew what was happening, if we knew what the true conditions were here in Ottawa—and in every city in Canada for that matter—I do not think we would hesitate for a moment in supporting this amendment. I know what it means to have a provision of this kind in the act, and I am convinced that if these traffickers knew that they would be lashed if they were convicted the traffic would be stopped to a very great extent.

Mr. BROWN: I am not in a position to express very clear opinions based upon personal knowledge with regard to this traffic, but it is quite evident that the hon. members who represent our Pacific coast province have come into close contact with the trade, or into such close contact with it that we ought to be impressed by the representations they have made. In order that the committee may form some idea of the extent to which the traffic has gone I might give some figures that I saw this evening in the Literary Digest. The statement was there made that the United States was using ten times the amount of opium that European countries are using and the figures given were these: That 270 tons of crude opium, which would produce thirty-one tons of morphine, were imported into the United States, whereas one ton was sufficient to take care of the legitimate needs of the country. Now I do not know whether those figures are correct or not, but evidently the writer of the article knew something about the matter; and if the situation is anything like as serious as that writer contends then it seems to me that no steps that we can take can be too strong to put a stop to the traffic. I know the tendency of penal legislation in the present day, is, perhaps, towards more moderate methods than have been pursued in the past, and yet in this particular case it does seem to me that no steps which we can take can be too strong to prevent the degradation and the corruption of the young people of our land.

Mr. BELAND: I see that the amendment reads:

—and shall at the discretion of the judge, be liable to whipping.

I also understand that this amendment is to apply exclusively to traffickers who sell to minors. My impression at first was that the penalty of the lash was to be applied in every case coming under subsection 1 of section 5 which we are now considering. However, it is proposed to be applied only to traffickers who sell, or furnish, or give narcotics to minors, and the punishment is to be administered at the discretion of the judge. I have an open mind on the question. I know that the traffic must be suppressed if at all possible. My hon. friend a moment ago referred to the fact that perhaps the people of the East were not fully in possession of the facts, were not fully aware of how serious the situation was. But the traffic, as my hon. friend knows, is very large in the city of Montreal. I have received a personal letter from one of the most—eminent, I would call him—magistrates of the city stating that the traffic in Montreal has reached very large dimensions, and that the situation had to be met in the most severe manner. I call the attention of the House to the fact that, in the United States, the laws with regard to narcotic drugs do not provide for the application of the lash. They provide for very severe penalties in fines and imprisonment, and also for the deportation of aliens, but, as far as whipping is concerned, they do not inflict it. I am in the hands of the House, and if the committee decide the amendment should carry, I am willing to incorporate it in the bill.

Mr. GOOD: I desire to support the proposed amendment offered by the hon. member for Vancouver Sou h (Mr. Ladner). I think flogging is quite proper in a case of this kind, where the crime is coolly premeditated. I think it is entirely in order, and the provision will probably not be abused if it is left to the discretion of the judge.

Mr. MARCIL (Bonaventure): Referring to conditions in the city of Montreal for the last few years, I desire to concur in all that the minister has said. A recent report published a few weeks ago by the Chief of Police, Mr. Belanger, attributed to foreigners the responsibility for, perhaps, 75 per cent of the crime committed in the city of Montreal. On Lagauchetiere street, in that city, and in that district we have a Chinatown, many houses have been converted into Chinese dives, and raids on the opium dens are a daily occurrence. The illicit sale of opium, cocaine and other drugs has become a terrible nuisance, and must be put down. It is worse than a nuisance, it has become a crime. I remember one case, in particular, where $35,000 worth of opium was seized when a raid was made, and brought down to the police court, to be exhibited in court, if necessary It was left in the police station, but the station was broken into and the opium was stolen. The traffic is ten times worse than the liquor traffic. The people engaged in this drug business are in the worst business, and no penalty is too severe to fit the crime. I think the most severe punishment is absolutely necessary, because the paying of the money penalty is nothing to these people, who make large sums out of the traffic. I will strongly support the amendment.

Mr. McKENZIE: With regard to the application of the lash, I would like to bring before the committee the method of carrying out the sentence. If you say that a man has to pay $100 fine, we know exactly what it is. When we say he has to spend two years in penitentiary, we understand what it means. We have a trained judge to measure out the penalty, either imprisonment or fine, but when we say that a man shall receive ten, twenty of fifty lashes, who is going to administer them? We have no officials who are trained for that purpose and who understand what the lash means. The great country to the south of us has not adopted the principle of administering the lash.

An Hon. MEMBER: They have lynch law.

Mr. McKENZIE: Lynch law is an outrage on civilization. No country cares to adopt it, it has no statutory approval or sanction, and is only applied where the people take the law into their own hands. Now, who is going to apply the lash? There cannot be any uniformity about it. The lash depends upon the strength, the character and the nature of the man in whose hands it is operated. I bring this matter to the attention of the committee, so that they will know why there is such a reluctance in the country about imposing this penalty. Last year this matter was put before us in another shape, and we were asked by the Minister of Justice to pass a law by which young boys, instead of being imprisoned, should receive flogging or lashing, and the House was unanimously against it. It received no quarter at all. If deportation and fiines or imprisonment will meet the case, I am with hon. members at every turn, but I am opposed to the frightful brutality of the lash, when you put it in the hands of a man who has had no training in administering it. You know what a dollar is, and what imprisonment is, but you do not know what a lash is. It may have no appreciable effect at all. I hope that we shall be able to carry out criminal laws to the extreme, without using the lash.

Mr. LADNER: I am surprised at the Solicitor General (Mr. McKenzie)—although undoubtedly it was not done purposely—creating the impression that the lash would be indiscriminately used. The Criminal Code provides distinctly the method by which it shall be applied. It says that the convicted person shall, first, be examined by a doctor to ascertain whether he is in a condition to receive the lash. It shall be a cat o' nine tails. It shall be applied by a certain official of the penitentiary, and, if he is not available, by a man appointed by the Justice Department. The most careful provision is made in the law for the application of the lash. It is applied in many cases, and this would only be applying a principle of justice now in practice.

Mr. NEILL: I wish to add what small weight my local knowledge will furnish in favour of the amendment. While I understand all that can be said against the principle of flogging—people say it is out of date and brutalizing, and so it is—I fully believe the conditions justify its use, and no one who has not lived in the West can understand the conditions. While flogging may be unpleasant for the party, think of the living hell these young people are sentenced to by reason of the use of these drugs, not for an hour or two or a month or two, but for all their lives, and, perhaps, for eternity. Some 60 or 70 years ago there was an epidemic of garrotting in London, England, and it spread to a tremendous extent. It was easily done. A foot pad came behind a man and twisted a cord or shawl around the man's neck, and he was either rendered insensible or choked to death. It was difficult to detect, because it was so easily done, and no evidence was left. It went on to a remarkable extent, and people were terrified to go out after dark. Where the victims were not killed, and the garrotters were convicted, the judge gave the lash, and inside of three months the practice totally ceased. You will find in some of the treatises on criminal codes, how speedily that simple application of the lash absolutely caused that practice to cease. These men who are capable of committing these low, beastly crimes, are afraid of their own skin. Very often, when a man is going to be hanged, he asks, not in regard to his future, but "Will it hurt?" and they suffer perhaps more from the thought of being lashed than from the idea of being hanged. The situation in British Columbia fully justifies this amendment.

Amendment agreed to.

Mr. MANION: Subsection 2 (a) reads:

> Any person who manufactures, imports, exports, sells or distributes any drug and neglects or refuses to keep the record required, etc.

Does that apply to physicians in the country? Have they to keep records?

Mr. BELAND: No.

Mr. GARLAND (Carleton): Has the department a sample of the record that must be kept by druggists?

Mr. BELAND: This is a matter of regulation. The regulations are being authorized by Order in Council, and the department has no sample record.

Section agreed to.

Mr. BELAND: I move two amendments. The first has reference to the appeal that can be taken under the present law from a judgment of the inferior court to the higher court. I am prompted to submit this amendment by reason of a personal communication which has reached me from an important magistrate in the city of Montreal, and which convinces me that these appeals should be restricted to cases where legal points are in dispute. I do not want to delay the committee but I shall read a few paragraphs from this letter. The letter is personal and I shall not give the name of the writer:

> It was called upon to preside at the sessions of the Court of King's Bench in appeal against decisions of lower courts of criminal jurisdiction, and I think it is my duty to place before you certan suggestions which came to my mind in the course of the hearings of these cases.
>
> Out of 76 cases inscribed for appeal, 60 of them at least were cases where the appellant had been condemned by the lower court for having been found in possession of drugs, such as cocaine, morphine or opium, or for having sold or purchased drugs, or for having visited places where such drugs are supplied.
>
> In most cases the charge was upheld. The accused files an appeal, either in order to obtain sufficient delay to enable him to find the sum which he has to pay as a penalty, or in order to postpone his imprisonment in cases where he is condemned to serve a term in jail. In both cases the accused hopes that his solicitor will find irregularities in the wording of the charge, or in the sentence or in other procedures, through which he might obtain his discharge.
>
> I may state that I did not "fall" for the clever arguments of lawyers on technicalities.
>
> Abuse is being made of the right to appeal. If you knew, Sir, the shameful traffic of drugs which is carried on in Montreal! Young men and very young girls are enticed into supposed-to-be honest places of amusement, and, under the pretext of experimentation, drugs are served to them as wine would be. The law can never be too severe on the traffickers and distributors of drugs.

Further on the writer says:

> I believe, Sir, that you would render an immense service to the community if you were to make the law as severe as possible against those engaged in this ignominious trade.

He concludes by asking that appeals should be restricted. I therefore move, as section 5, the following:

> The said act is amended by inserting the following section immediately after section 10 thereof:
>
> (10a): Sections 749 to 760, inclusive, of the Criminal Code shall not apply to any conviction, order or proceeding in respect of any offence under this act.

I am informed by the Minister of Justice that these sections mentioned refer only to appeals from decisions of lower courts in criminal cases. Section 761 of the Criminal Code provides for an appeal on any stated case on a point of law. I do not think there can be objection to the proposed amendment.

Mr. BAXTER: I suppose the minister has carefully considered this matter, but it seems to me that it introduces a dangerous principle into our jurisprudence. I have every possible sympathy with this act and the way in which it has been amended to make the punishments for this crime as severe as possible. I have no sympathy with merely technical appeals; and yet the right to appeal, the right to have a sentence reviewed is, I think, inherent in the administration of justice as we know it. A man should not be wrongly punished. After all, the great feature of Magna Charta was that no man should be imprisoned or executed without the lawful judgment of his peers under the law of the land. And when you say that not merely an irregularity but something worse may exist and there shall be no remedy, I think you are going to a very dangerous length. Bad as may be the crime for which this act provides punishment, it cannot be worse than many other crimes that are punished by the law. Yet it has always been the boast of our jurisprudence that the meanest criminal has the right to be heard and the right to the punctual observance of all the forms of law. I do not contend for a moment that the form should override the substance, but there are so many formal errors that are now cured by the Criminal Code that nothing is left except matters of a rather substantial character. It seems to me therefore, that we ought not unduly to smooth the path for magistrates who will not prepare themselves or who are careless in the exercise of their jurisdiction. In the cities where this class of crime will be principally dealt with there is no excuse for slothfulness or bungling on the part of magistrates, and I have no sympathy with weak appeals from magistrates who either do not know their duty or are too careless to observe the sanctions which the law has framed, not for the purpose of allowing the guilty to escape, but of preventing the innocent from suffering. The old saying, "It is better that ninety-nine men should escape than that one innocent man should suffer" is outworn. But our Criminal Code has destroyed the great bulk of the old technical objections, and I would ask the minister to consider very carefully before he introduces this new principle into our law. It cannot be necessary if competent men are adequately discharging their functions. Once in a rare while you will have someone blundering, but it will not be so ordinarily. It is all very well to say that there may be an appeal by a reserved case, but why should the ordinary right of appeal be denied for this particular class of crime when it applies so generally to other classes? We do not want a man to be convicted except according to the law. The principle involved is a great deal wider than the mere scope of this act.

Mr. BELAND: I appreciate very much indeed the remarks made by the hon. member for St. John. I surmise that he was not in his seat when I read the letter which I received from one of the magistrates in the city of Montreal who lately sat in appeal there on several of these cases.

Mr. BAXTER: I saw the minister reading something, but the conversation going on in the Chamber prevented me from hearing him.

Mr. BELAND: The learned magistrate stated that out of 76 cases inscribed for appeal before him 60 were cases where the appellant had been condemned by a lower court for trafficking illegally in drugs. He contends, and I think he is justified, that appeal in most cases is taken in order to gain time and find the money wherewith to pay the fine and escape imprisonment. Wealthy traffickers come to the rescue of their poorer friends and supply the money. The magistrate also said: "In order to obtain satisfactory results from the severe sentences imposed, it would be necessary to take away the right of appeal as it has been done in the case of disorderly houses." The principle is not a new one, at least so far as the province of Quebec is concerned, where there is no appeal in the case of conviction for keeping a disorderly house. This provision, I think, is one more weapon in the hands of the Government in its efforts to suppress the drug traffic, and that was the object I had in view when I introduced the amendment.

Mr. SHAW: Strange as it may seem, Mr. Chairman, I find myself in agreement with the hon. member for St. John! I think there are two kinds of cases to be taken into consideration. My recollection is that if in the case of a disorderly house the conviction is by way of what is known technically as "summary conviction" there is a right of appeal; but there is no such right in the event of conviction by a police magistrate. Now, a police magistrate in most of our large cities has a jurisdiction which is substantially the same as that of a district or county court judge. But this bill gives the power of conviction to an ordinary justice of the peace, a man who is not specially trained, and who perhaps is not accustomed to weighing carefully the value of evidence; yet this justice of the peace is given the power to take away the liberty of the individual for a period of six months in addition to imposing a fine. I think it is highly desirable that in cases of this kind where the conviction is by way of summary proceedings there should be a right of appeal. The letter read by the minister indicates that even in the city of Montreal, where there is a trained judge trying the cases at the outset, some appeals were allowed. It seems to me that the appeal right should not be taken away where convictions under this Act are made by ordinary justices of the peace.

In the act as it stands I presume that no imprisonment can be imposed, because the Montreal judge suggested that those convicted commenced appeal proceedings for the purpose of gaining time to pay their fines; but under this bill it is obligatory on the court to impose imprisonment.

Mr. BELAND: I beg my hon. friend's pardon. It is not obligatory in all cases. Those licensed to sell drugs may upon conviction for breaches of the act be condemned either to pay a fine or go to gaol; but illicit traffickers must be condemned to imprisonment.

Mr. SHAW: I accept the minister's statement. In the event of appeal the minister is aware that the accused person must put up security to the satisfaction of a district court judge, and must take other steps in order to prosecute his appeal within a limited time. I see no objection to allowing an appeal. I do not see how any one is going to be prejudiced, and it may be that only in a few cases will the sentence be reversed, but it is important in those cases that justice be done, and therefore I think we should hesitate about taking away from any person his right of appeal. The minister suggests that the person convicted has a right to appeal by way of a case stated, so called; but in such an event there is no deliberation by the appellate body to consider the weight to be given to the evidence, the only matter under consideration is a point of law, and consequently even in that event injustice may be done to the accused.

Mr. MARTELL: I heartily concur in most that has been said by the hon. member for Calgary and the hon. member for St. John. I think it behooves us to be very careful in taking away from the citizen any right which will insure him justice. Many of the magistrates who try these cases by way of procedure known as summary conviction are absolutely unskilled in the law and do not know anything at all about the admissibility of evidence. There cannot be, as mentioned, an appeal by way of a case stated, where the ordinary right of appeal is taken away by the special statute under which the conviction is made. An examination of the Criminal Code will show that in cases of summary conviction Parliament has gone as far as it could go toward removing the defendant's right of certiorari except where there is a want of jurisdiction in the magistrate. It used to be the right of the accused—the right has now been almost entirely taken away —that a person could bring about a review of a magistrate's decision by a writ of certiorari. If the conviction was bad, and a person was confined to gaol he could obtain a writ of habeas corpus and a writ of certiorari in aid of habeas corpus in order that the evidence might be reviewed for the purpose of seeing whether the conviction was a proper one or whether there was sufficient evidence to support it. In the province of Nova Scotia it was held in the case of the Queen vs. Walsh that when a matter was brought up by way of certiorari it was not competent for the courts to go into the evidence; in fact, they were not permitted to look at the evidence at all if the conviction was complete and regular on its face. Other provinces, however, held that when a matter was brought up on certiorari, the court dealing with the writ of certiorari had a right to look at the evidence. There was, therefore, this conflict of decision. But a short time ago the Law Lords who are the judicial committee of the House of Lords held that the Nova Scotia court was right in the case of the Queen vs. Walsh; so that the law as regards certiorari was really established by the Nova Scotia decision in the case to which I have referred. So that now with the Criminal Code taking away as far as it can the right of certiorari, save where there is an absolute want of jurisdiction, and with the taking away of the right of appeal as now proposed, you are putting the defendant, in many cases, entirely in the hands of ignorant magistrates. I submit that the department is not running any risk by leaving where it is the right of appeal so that a man may have his case as tried by the magistrate determined de novo by a higher court. There should be no tendency in any way to derogate in any way from the rights of the individual. At any rate, in most of our laws we are putting upon the defendant the burden of proving himself innocent rather than letting the Crown prove him guilty. If we persist in amending our laws in such a way that these rights are taken from the people, we shall soon come to a condition under which a man who is accused of a crime, whether there is bona fide reason for the charge or not, will be obliged to prove his own innocence rather than have his guilt established by the prosecution. We should jealously guard the rights of the individual. We should be very cautious in taking away the right of appeal, the only protection the defendant has, particularly when he is tried by magistrates who, as happens in many cases, are incompetent. So long as I occupy a seat in this House I shall by my voice and vote uphold the principle that the defendant in an action shall not be deprived of any of his rights; that he shall at least have extended to him the old presumption of British law that he is innocent until proven guilty. When the department ask for an amendment to take away from the subject rights which he has always had, it seems to me that they are getting lazy and do not want to take the trouble of obtaining the proper evidence to make convictions; they rather wish to act as a sort of autocratic body.

Mr. LADNER: I would like to add a word in support of the minister on this question. I think that too much emphasis has been laid upon the innocent man being deprived of all his rights and privileges and being made the subject of czarism and autocracy. That is not the principle of the minister's suggestion. The man who is affected in this case has the right of appeal in law.

Mr. MARTELL: You are taking it away from him.

Mr. LADNER: No; we are taking it away in relation to the facts.

Mr. MARTELL: Is not the magistrate the judge of the facts as well as of the law? Has not the judge on appeal the right to treat the whole thing de novo?

Mr. LADNER: My hon. friend misses the point of my contention. The question of appeal relates to the right of appeal on a point of law, and that would necessarily involve the facts as brought out before the magistrate. In most cases the facts are brought out at the trial before the magistrate, and even if some facts are omitted there is always, under the Criminal Code, the right, in the case of error or the discovery of new evidence, to adduce the facts in question, so that there would really be no prejudice to the defendant. The amendment suggested by the minister would greatly aid in carrying out the spirit and purpose of this law, which is to down the traffic, not to give protection to those engaged in it.

Mr. CARROLL: I must protest against a government which is uplifting morals by legislation. My hon. friend (Mr. Ladner) says there is always the right of appeal under the Criminal Code, but if the legislation proposed by the minister becomes law, there is no appeal. I take the ground that every person is entitled to an appeal from the magistrate to a county or district or superior court judge, and if the legislation proposed by the minister goes through, that right is denied him. We have the same thing in liquor legislation; in our province a man who is convicted of an offence against the prohibition act may not take an appeal. It simply means that the magistrate may convict on very slender evidence or no evidence at all, and if he does, there is no appeal from the facts, no right to take the case to a superior court judge. There is always, of course, the right of certiorari, of which the hon. member for Hants (Mr. Martell) has spoken, and the right of habeas corpus. But if the Government or friends of the Government take the stand that a man should be prohibited from taking appeal, it looks to me like poor legislation. It looks to me as if the government were taking a stand on a question the soundness of which there were doubtful of. It looks to me as if they are putting the machinery of the law in this country into the hands of magistrates, who, as the hon. member for Hants has said, very often misconduct trials—I know it is so in my province. There should be no such thing as depriving a man of the right to appeal, a right which, my hon friend will perhaps say, is statutory—a right which is as old as the statutes themselves. I know that the minister is legislating in respect to a very serious matter, and I hope that through the legislation he is bringing in he will be able to put the traffic in drugs and intoxicating liquors and that of thing out of business. But I think he would be well advised to put that kind of illegal traffic out of business by means which are sanctioned under our constitution, and which have been handed down to us in the British system of law.

Mr. BELAND: Is my hon. friend aware that in the case of prosecutions for the sale of liquor in the province of Quebec, there have never been any appeals?

Mr. CARROLL: So much the worse for the province of Quebec, and so much the worse for the people who legislate in that direction. We have no appeals in the province of Nova Scotia, but two wrongs do not make a right, and I for my part protest, and protest most vigorously, against that sort of legislation, whether in the province of Quebec or any other province.

Mr. MARTELL: My hon. friend from St. John stated that there might be an appeal by way of a stated case, but I find that subsection 2 of section 769 of the Criminal Code provides:

> Where, by any special act, it is provided that there shall be no appeal from any conviction or order, no proceedings shall be taken to have a case stated or signed as aforesaid in any case to which such provision as to appeal in such special act applies.

So if there is no appeal provided for in this special act, there is no right to appeal by way of stated case.

Amendment agreed to.

Mr. BELAND: I move:

> That the said act be amended by inserting the following section immediately after section 10A thereof:
>
> Notwithstanding anything to the contrary in the Immigration Act, any alien who at any time after his entrance is convicted under subsection 2 of section 5A of this act shall upon the termination of the imprisonment imposed by the court upon such conviction be kept in custody and deported in accordance with section 43 of the Immigration Act.

Mr. BAXTER: In the last amendment I think the minister went too far, and I am wondering if in this one he is going as far as he may go. I am a little bit afraid that some of these people may not be aliens, and yet they may be persons who have come into Canada from somewhere else, in fact, be what we call Hong Kong British subjects. I would very much like to see the provision wide enough to bundle them out of the country too, and treat them just as aliens. I would be very glad if the minister would consider extending this provision to make it apply to anyone not a native of Canada, so that a man could be sent back to where he came from. We do not want that kind of people nor that kind of traffic in this country, and I think it would be well to turn them out.

Amendment agreed to.

Bill as amended reported, read the third time, and passed.

PUBLIC SERVICE RETIREMENT ACT

On the motion of Hon. A. B. Copp (Secretary of State) the House went into Committee to consider the following proposed resolution, Mr. Gordon in the Chair:

Resolved, That it is expedient to extend for one year the operation of the Public Service Retirement Act, chapter 67 of the statutes of 1920, as amended by chapter 49 of the statutes of 1921.

Resolution reported, read the second time and concurred in. Mr. Copp thereupon moved for leave to introduce Bill No. 146, to extend for one year the operation of the Public Service Retirement Act.

Motion agreed to, bill read the first and second time, and the House went into committee thereon, Mr. Gordon in the Chair.

Mr. GUTHRIE: Will the minister explain just what the amendment amounts to because we have no copies of the bill.

Mr. COPP: I did not intend that the bill should be considered in committee to-night, and I therefore propose that the committee rise and report progress.

Motion agreed to.

BANKRUPTCY ACT AMENDMENT

On motion of Sir Lomer Gouin (Minister of Justice) Bill No. 107 to amend the Bankruptcy Act was read the second time, and the House went into committee thereon, Mr. Gordon in the Chair.

On Section 2—Notice of Suspension of Payment.

Sir LOMER GOUIN: As I informed the House in introducing the bill the amendments proposed are not of a substantial character. This legislation is to dispose of certain doubts which have arisen as to the meaning of certain provisions and to provide for a more expeditious and satisfactory enforcement of the act. The first amendment seeks to add to the grounds on which a debtor may be adjudicated bankrupt. At present a creditor in order to force the debtor to turn over his assets to a trustee has first to take action against him, get judgment, and have an execution issued. After that lengthy, and sometimes expensive, course, if the execution is not satisfied, after a delay of fourteen days, application can be made to the judge on bankruptcy for a receiving order. Business men all over the country have represented to us that it is very difficult for them to prevent a debtor from disposing of assets during litigation. It appears to me that if a debtor gives notice to any of his creditors that he has suspended, or is about to suspend payment of his debts, the creditors should be entitled to petition the court for a receiving order. Similarly, if he ceases to meet his liabilities as they become due, he is to all intents and purposes insolvent, and the court should have jurisdiction to deal with his assets for the benefit of his creditors accordingly. That principle is already embodied in our Winding Up Act, and it was in the Insolvency Act of 1875. We have been requested as I have said, by the business men of Canada to adopt this amendment and I hope the House will consent to this being done.

Section agreed to.

On Section 3—Avoidance of general assignment of book debts:

Sir LOMER GOUIN: Section 30 of the statute, which it is proposed to amend, provides in effect for the avoiding of general assignments of book debts. It was the intention of Parliament to prevent a debtor from giving preference to certain creditors by means of a secret assignment of book debts. Different cases were brought to court and it was decided, especially in Ontario, that even in the provinces where there was no such registration provided by law assignments were not avoided. A contrary decision was rendered in Nova Scotia, and it is in order to dispose of that doubt that we propose to amend the law and ask to have the section read as it is found in the bill. We make it very clear that the principle is that assignments are to be avoided, and we make special exception only for provinces where they have legislation providing for registration.

Mr. GUTHRIE: If I understand the minister aright the effect of this amendment is that in provinces where there is no provision for the registration of an assignment of book debts, the assignment will not be permitted.

Sir LOMER GOUIN: That is it.

Section agreed to.

On Section 6—Courts of bankruptcy not now to be so called; Appeal Courts of Bankruptcy not now to be so called.

Sir LOMER GOUIN: I move to strike out the word "are" in the third line of subsection 2.

Section agreed to.

On Section 8.—Single judges to be assigned to bankruptcy work by Chief Justice instead of by Minister of Justice:

Mr. GUTHRIE: Would you explain this section?

Sir LOMER GOUIN: Under the law at present, fees are paid to the officer, and he is not required to account to the province. As the provinces have charge of the whole administration of this law—they give their court houses and their officers and so on—it is proposed that the fees paid to the registrar should be paid by the registrar to the province, and the province will pay a salary to the officers. The same obtains under the election law.

Section agreed to.

Sir LOMER GOUIN: I have an amendment to propose to paragraph "o" of section 2. The act authorizes the continuation of proceedings instituted under the Winding-up Act, before or after the coming into force of the Bankruptcy Act, after leave of the court is obtained. A decision was rendered by the Court of Appeal for Ontario, where it was decided that leave could not be granted by a judge in bankruptcy, in case of a corporation being insolvent, to bring the case from the Bankruptcy Act to the Winding-up Act, and it is to remove a doubt on that point that we propose that paragraph "o" of section 2 of the Bankruptc y Act, Chapter 36 of the Statutes of 1919, as enacted by Section 2 of Chapter 34 of the Statutes of 1920, be amended by ading thereto the following—

Moreover an order of the court, whether made heretofore or hereatfer, granting leave to extend or apply to any such corporation the Winding-up Act shall not be invalid or subject to any objection by reason only that the corporation had previously made an assignment under the provisions of this act, or that proceeding in bankruptcy under this act were at the time pending against the corporation, and in any such case the provisions of the Winding-up Act shall apply and prevail, and the bankruptcy proceedings shall abate subject to such disposition of the costs thereof, to be made in the winding-up proceedings as the justice of the case may require.

[Sir Lomer Gouin.]

This covers the cases which were instituted before and on which doubts have arisen.

Section, as amended, agreed to.

Bill, reported, and read the third time and passed.

ESCHEATS ACT AMENDMENT BILL

House again in committee on Bill No. 124, to amend the Escheats Act, Mr. Gordon in the Chair.

On Section 1.—Escheat extended to property of defunct corporations:

Mr. McKENZIE: We had a discussion of this bill a couple of days ago, and the hon. senior member for St. John (Mr. Baxter) took exception to the term of two years mentioned in the bill. After consulting my colleagues, I have agreed to change the time to five years, in order to meet the suggestion of my hon. friend.

Mr. GUTHRIE: Then the word "two" on page 2, line 3, should also be stricken out.

Mr. McKENZIE: Yes. I move that the word "two" in line 31, page 1 of the bill, be stricken out, and the word "five" be substituted therefore; and that the word "two", in the third line on page 2, be stricken out and the word "five" substituted therefor.

Section, as amended, agreed to.

Bill, reported, and read the third time and passed.

SUPPLY

TRADE AND COMMERCE

The House in Committee of Supply, Mr. Gordon in the Chair.

Trade and Commerce—Canada and the West Indies or South America or both, service or services between, $340,666.66.

Mr. STEVENS: I desire to bring to the attention of the minister a matter of great importance. I have reference to the establishment of a steamship service between the Atlantic and Pacific Canadian ports. There are certain classes of cargo which it does not pay at all to ship across the continent by rail. One of these is lumber. It is true we do ship by rail into Ontario a good deal of lumber of the more expensive kind, but the rate is so high that it is almost prohibitive. Large quantities of southern pine are also imported into that province. By the establishment of a steamship service we could ship cargoes of lumber around by the Panama canal route to Toronto. Indeed, I think we shipped twenty or thirty million feet to Toronto for harbour works within the last few years, which shows the feasibility of such a service. The difficulty is that we have not a regular steamship service. There is another matter that I would bring to the attention of the minister (Mr. Robb), and also to the attention of the Minister of Railways (Mr. Kennedy, Essex), under whose department the operation of the steamships no doubt comes. The service from the Atlantic to the Pacific ports would touch the West Indies and points in Mexico. It could take traffic from eastern Canada to those ports, picking up cargoes through the West Indies and in Mexico and carrying them to the Pacific coast, and the reverse on the return trip. We have a market in the West Indies for many of our commodities, such as fish of all classes, and canned goods, lumber, shingles and, when we can get space, hay and oats. And there are many classes of goods that we require from the West Indies and from Mexico. I believe our various commercial bodies are strongly of the opinion that a service of this kind is necessary. The difficulty up to about a year or so ago has been the lack of shipping facilities; there were not sufficient vessels. That is not the case to-day. Now there are more than we have use for. There was, I believe, a question in the mind of the management of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine that we ought to demonstrate beyond any doubt that the cargoes were there. That is not the way in which steamship services are to be established on new routes. I should like to see the minister put on a regular service for a while. He has some vessels of 5,000 ton register and he might give one or two of them a chance to prove their usefulness. I recall an objection that was raised to the effect that this would be taking traffic from the railways. I do not think this objection is sound. The freight on the railway from coast to coast is so exceedingly high that, except in the case of package freight, the railways would not be affected by such a steamship service at all. From the eastern states a great deal of freight is shipped into the Pacific province by the American railways. We get none of the haulage in Canada at all. A lot of that freight could be picked up by these vessels at New York, and that would not only be helping the marine but it would at the same time be extending the trade of the country. I would urge this matter very strongly upon the minister's attention.

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): Would the hon. member suggest that a subsidy be paid to the line he proposes?

Mr. STEVENS: At the moment I am not suggesting a subsidy. I suggest, however, that the Government might use one or two or more of their idle ships many of which are now lying, I understand, in the port of Montreal. If any hon. member thinks that the proposal is not a wise one, let me inform the committee that the Pacific end of the Government Merchant Marine has been fairly successful. We have had very excellent results from its operation on the Pacific and if we opened up the route I suggest I have no doubt it would be successful and would ultimately pay well.

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): Are there any vessels of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine calling at ports that are now being served by the steamships that are subsidized by the Government, or at neighbouring ports?

Mr. ROBB: Not regularly.

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): Do they sometimes call at those ports?

Mr. ROBB: They have done so occasionally.

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): In other words, I take it, we have a steamship line subsidized by the Government operating in competition with the Canadian Government Marine.

Mr. MACLEAN (Halifax): The reverse is right.

Mr. ROBB: My hon. friend (Mr. Garland), who is a new member of the House, is probably not aware that we entered into a trade arrangement with the West Indies which provided for a subsidized service with certain equipment for carrying the products of the West Indies to Canada and for the transportation of mails to and from the West Indies. If my hon. friend has looked into the question he must know that Canada enjoys a considerable percentage of customs preference with the West Indies, with which she is developing an increasing trade. It was because of that increasing trade that within the past year or so the Canadian Merchant Marine management put their boats on to get some of the business that had been worked up by subsidized lines—lines started many years before we had a merchant marine. Indeed, we have had complaints from this subsidized line that unless we call off the Canadian government service their boats would be unable to continue the service at the subsidy we were giving them. It is important that we should retain that subsidized service because of the trade we enjoy. We have made no attempt to interfere with the work of the Canadian Merchant Marine. Our vessels were not built for passenger service, and the service we have agreed to establish between the West Indies and Canada calls for reasonably good passenger accommodation.

Regarding the point raised by my hon. friend from Centre Vancouver (Mr. Stevens), I know that he has taken a great deal of interest in it, and has made representations to the Government, and we are alive to the importance of giving the project very careful consideration. The opening up of the Panama canal introduces new channels of trade as between the East and the West. I am not prepared to-night to say what the policy of the Government will be; it is more a matter for consideration by my hon. friend the Minister of Railways and Canals (Mr. Kennedy), but I think the Government will take into consideration the representations made by my hon. friend, and if the line should look profitable, something may result.

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): Being a new member, Mr. Chairman, I have not yet become accustomed to the delightful sarcasm of my hon. friend, the Minister of Trade and Commerce. I protest against the continuation of this subsidy of $340,000 odd to a steamship line between Canada and the West Indies when we have a merchant marine some of which are already engaged on this route. The minister mentioned that our boats cannot be used in this service because they are not equipped with passenger accommodation. I understand that when the matter came up in the House last year Sir George Foster, the then Minister of Trade and Commerce, stated that two of our boats had been equipped with passenger accommodation.

I might also call the attention of the minister to the fact that last year, when in opposition, the present Solicitor General (Mr. McKenzie) took exception to the continuation of this subsidy. The remarks he made on that occasion are not very long, and I shall quote them. After stating that he agreed very heartily with the point raised by Mr. Sinclair, he said:

> The point made by my hon. friend (Mr. Sinclair) is perfectly clear. We have an item of $340,366.60 for a line to the West Indies and South America. Now, we are told that we have our own boats serving a part of that route, so that we are in competition with the vessels running there. Yet the Government is so exceedingly generous that it gives to a company with whom it is competing for trade the sum of $340,000 odd. They give them that magnificent handicap and then boldly and proudly step up and say: We will get plenty of profit notwithstanding this handicap we are giving them. Does it strike my hon. friend as good business that we should be spending $75,000,000 of the people's money in the building of boats and in looking for trade and then when we find an old service established on this route which we intend to work, instead of trying to displace those competitors, give them a subsidy?

I sincerely trust that the Solicitor General has not altered his mind on this question, and I hope to get some support from him in my opposition to this particular item.

With regard to the contention raised by the minister that this subsidy was necessary because of the extent of our trade with the West Indies, I find that up to the end of the fiscal year, 1922, our import trade amounted to $8,113,000, while in 1917 it was $14,239,000. In fact, the figures received from the department indicate that there has been a falling off in our trade with the West Indies since 1917 to the extent of $6,125,000. If we take 1918 and compare the figures with this year we observe a falling off of $2,437,000. In the export trade there is a deficiency of about $4,000,000 over last year. I am not comparing the figures for this year alone with those for last year alone, because I agree with the contention—which no doubt will be raised—that last year was an exceptionally bad year, there being a great depression in the sugar industry and a consequent falling off in the value of the imports from the West Indies. But going back to 1917 and 1918, you find an appalling falling off of that business. There are reasons for that decline, Mr. Chairman. I believe that the British Under-Secretary for the Colonies, Mr. Wood, is about to pay a visit to the West Indies to endeavour to co-ordinate their trade relations with other countries. It seems that at the present time there are—I do not know how many governments down there, but there are quite a large number of them; for instance, the Leeward Islands, the Windward Islands, British Honduras, the Bahamas, and so on, are all under separate governments, have separate trade regulations and different tariffs—I am sorry to say, Mr. Chairman, that they have actually got tariffs down there. Mr. Wood is of the opinion that trade with the British West Indies is a matter of great difficulty, that it must be done in small parcels, in many cases hardly worth handling, particularly in view of the additional fact that as one of the direct results of this lack of co-operation no adequate shipping arrangements exist either between the United Kingdom and her Caribbean Colonies or between the Islands themselves. We are endeavouring to establish something in the way of shipping arrangements with the West Indies, but I would call the minister's attention to the fact that there are no adequate shipping arrangements between these different islands. In short, when a ship goes down to pick up a cargo it has to jump from one place three or four hundred miles to another place; there is no such thing as co-operation for trade purposes.

I might also call the minister's attention to the fact that the board of directors of the Canadian Government Merchant Marine in their report last year refer to the West Indies service on which they have boats and state:

> It must be remembered in connection with this service that the Canadian Government Merchant Marine are pioneers in opening up a new route with a view to developing and extending Canada's trade. As it has been the practice of many governments to supplement the earnings of companies engaged in this work, and as steamship subsidies are paid by the Dominion Government for services that are much more remunerative than this West Indies service, it would only be reasonable that your company should be guaranteed against loss when engaged as in this case, in opening up a new route at the request of the Government.

The Canadian Merchant Marine is now appealing for subsidies, Mr. Chairman! There might have been some excuse for granting subsidies in the old days before we had our own merchant marine, but I submit that the practice should now cease. The minister raises the point that our merchant marine cannot be equipped for passenger service, but Sir George Foster says it can, and that two of the boats are already so equipped. They can also be equipped for cold storage. At the present time our trade with the West Indies must only be a summer trade, for we have no warehousing facilities for a winter trade; but it has been recently suggested that there should be in South America, at a point of call on the way back from the West Indies, warehousing facilities established so you could take in your West Indian trade during the winter as well as summer. I call the minister's attention to one other remark made by Mr. Stollmeyer, speaking at a meeting of the Agricultural Society in Trinidad. He said:

> We have in the Canadian Government Merchant Marine a means of transport which needs encouragement.

I heartily agree with the statement of that gentleman; it needs encouragement, and we might encourage it. The attitude of the Canadian manufacturers has, unfortunately, a great deal to do with the difficulty of this trade. It seems to be very difficult to get return cargoes.

An hon. MEMBER: Carried.

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): My hon. friends seem to be in a hurry; they always are when we touch the manufacturers. Mr. Jones, president of the Canada Cement Company, whom the manufacturers will have a great deal of respect for, lately returned from South America. Discussing an address that had been made with regard to trade with South America and the West Indies, he sai:

> What struck me most forcibly was the one sided view Canadian business men took on thes questions of import and export.

You cannot expect the West Indies to accept your imports unless you accept her exports.

I think the time has come, Mr. Chairman when we might cut out this subsidy. I am sure that it would be of great assistance to the Minister of Finance (Mr. Fielding) if we did so.

Mr. MACLEAN (Halifax): My hon. friend (Mr. Garland) has stated that this country might well dispense with further subsidies to steamship services. That may be true as a general principle, but there are many cases in which it is quite proper and profitable for a country to subsidize a steamship service. At any rate, the reason my hon. friend gives for the abandonment of a subsidy to this service is not a sound one. He says the subsidies should not be further paid because we have a Canadian Merchant Marine. I say we should abandon our merchant marine and leave the carrying on of this service to private companies, even if we have to give them a subsidy; in the end it would be much cheaper for the country. I hope the Government will very shortly make an effort to get rid of the steamships which they own and which they are operating at a very heavy loss—a loss which this country cannot very long sustain. I should like to point out further that many years ago a trade convention was negotiated between Canada and the British West Indies; I think it was some time between 1904 and 1908. Under that convention the West Indies received preferential treatment from Canada and we received preferential treatment in the West Indian markets. It was a part of that convention that we should establish a regular steamship service between Canada and the West Indies, suitable for the carrying of passengers and of the mails. I think the West India Islands contribute some small amount to the cost of this service. Now, the Canadian Merchant Marine are not capable of carrying out this service ac cording to the terms of that trade convention. The service between Canada and the West Indies has been a good thing for Canada and a good thing for the West Indies; therefore, I say we cannot look upon the matter as one involving merely the question of subsidy; it is tied up with the convention treaty with the West Indies. I suppose some steamship service would be carried on between Canada and the West Indies by private interests if there was no subsidized service, but it would not be a regular service. Our trade with the West Indies has been built up largely because of the fact that on a certain day every two weeks of the year a steamship sails from a Canadian port to the West Indies and on a certain day a steamship leaves a port in the West Indies for Canada. The Canadian exporters rely upon the regularity of the service, and the result is that Canadian trade has been very much built up. In that respect, therefore, there is some advantage in having this subsidized service.

My hon. friend further stated that there had been a great diminution in export and import trade between the West Indies and Canada, and he compared the figures of last year with those of 1917-18. I have not studied the figures; I had not heard them until they were cited by my hon. friend. But I have no doubt that there were very good reasons for that decline in our trade with the West Indies when expressed in dollars. The products of the West Indies in 1917 were very high priced compared with those of to-day; Canadian products exported to the West Indies were very much higher in price than they are to-day. A statement of the tonnage of this year as compared with that of 1917 would be a truer reflection of the volume of trade being carried on to-day as compared with that carried on in 1917. The decrease in the prices of commodities would explain a great deal of the difference between the figures for this year and those for 1917-18. It may be said also that the decline in this trade is owing partly to the world-wide depression which has prevailed.

I should like to say just a few words to the minister. I understand that this subsidized service between the West Indies and Canada was renewed a few months ago for two years more Trade between Canada and the West Indies has developed so much in recent years that the present four steamers engaged in that service are hardly sufficient to meet the trade requirements, and in other respects the boats used are not equal to the demands for passenger service. The contract is with the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company. They are quite willing to build four new steamers. They realize that the present boats are hardly fitted for the business to-day, but they do not feel warranted in proceeding with the construction of new boats unless they are sure that they are to have a contract covering a considerable period of time. It would take some time to complete the construction of two or three boats, and I think it is only fair that they should be advised as soon as possible whether or not the contract is to be renewed for a definite and extended period.

As I have said, I do not think that this service could be carried on without a subsidy. The people of the West Indies insist upon a passenger service, and that could not be carried on except by subsidized boats.

Mr. SHAW: Does my hon. friend suggest that the Canadian Merchant Marine cannot come up to the requirements set out in the statute embodying the Canada-West Indies trade agreement?

Mr. MACLEAN (Halifax): No; they have no steamers suitable for carrying on the service. They are not fitted with passenger accommodation, and their deck construction is not fitted for the carrying on of trade in tropical countries. It is true that some of these steamers might be reconstructed to meet demands of that character.

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): I am afraid the hon. member is a little in error in this matter. Some of our merchant marine have already been equipped for passenger service.

Mr. MACLEAN (Halifax): A very limited service indeed. They would not be equal to the passenger demands that are made on the subsidized boats.

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): There is no reason why they should not be. They have been equipped for this very service to the West Indies. I would also submit to the minister that last year the then Minister of Trade and Commerce (Sir George Foster) stated definitely, as appears on page 1488 of Hansard, that this subsidy was simply being continued for another year in order to give an opportunity of getting an improved weekly service. The department has had a whole year in which to think it over, and I now move, Mr. Chairman, that this item be struck out.

Mr. DUFF: We are very glad indeed to hear the hon. member from Bow River discuss the service between Halifax and the West Indies. It seems to me that before moving to strike out this item, he should try and find out what he is talking about. In making his motion, he shows that he is entirely without knowledge of the facts concerning this service, and when he talks about the Canadian Government Merchant Marine vessels being able to carry on this service, he shows he knows absolutely nothing about the subject. Will my hon. friend believe me when I say that the Canadian Government Merchant Marine vessels can carry only eighteen passengers, while the Royal Mail steamers carry two hundred? During the winter months these subsidized boats are full to capacity with people from Montreal, Quebec, and other parts of Quebec, going south to winter in the Bahamas and other islands in the West Indies. Yet the hon. member from Bow River, three thousand miles from the coast, comes here and tells the committee that these boats are not required, and that the subsidy should be cut off.

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): I did not say that the service was not required, but that the subsidy was unjustifiable, and I still maintain that.

Mr. DUFF: What reason can you give for cutting off the subsidy?

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): I have given my reasons.

Mr. DUFF: The hon. member has given no sound reason whatever. He knows nothing about it. This service cannot be carried on without a subsidy. It is a very important service to the people of Canada, and just as important to the people living in the hon. member's province as it is to people in the East because these boats carry flour, cereals and other products of Western Canada to the West Indies. These boats leave Halifax fortnightly for the West Indies carrying passengers and mails and Canadian products, and bring back from the West Indies goods which are required in Canada. If the subsidy is cut off, these boats will not be able to carry on the service, and therefore I would ask the hon. member to withdraw his motion.

The CHAIRMAN (Mr. Marcil): The amendment of the hon. member for Bow River, being simply negative, is out of order. His remedy, if he is opposed to the item, is to vote against it.

Mr. ROBB: I should like to convince my hon. friend from Bow River that he should support the item as presented. It is quite true that the intimation was made that the contract was expiring and that new tenders were to be asked for, but the purpose in asking for new tenders was to provide an even better service, so as to carry out our obligations to the West Indies under the treaty that was made. As has already been intimated by the hon. member for Lunenburg (Mr. Duff) Canadians go down to the West Indies in the winter season, and West Indies come up to Canada in the summer season, and i is just possible when my hon. friend goes home he may run across some West Indians who have come to the foothills of the Rockies to escape the heat of the southern clime.

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): I will let the minister know if I find any.

Mr. ROBB: For the information of my hon. friend from Halifax (Mr. Maclean) the government in September last called for tenders, which were opened on the 31st of January. The only tender received was from the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company, which asked for a net return of 7½ per cent on the investment. That was more than the government would agree to, so to carry out our obligations to the people of the West Indies and continue the service, we have simply renewed the old agreement for a period of two years. In the meantime we shall see what will develop. My hon. friend from Vancouver Centre to-night has introduced another idea, which with other suggestions will be taken into consideration. I am sure that when the Minister of Railways takes up his estimates, he will satisfy the hon. member for Bow River that there are no vessels in the merchant marine equipped to carry out the promise we made to the West Indies when they gave us a preference in that market.

Mr. CRERAR: Has the minister reference to the treaty negotiated the year before last with the West Indies?

Mr. ROBB: Yes.

Mr. MACLEAN (Halifax): It was just a renewal of the old treaty.

Mr. CRERAR: In reference to the item before us, this subsidy is given, I understand, in view of the treaty. Of course, this Government must carry out the obligations that have been entered into with the West Indies. The question whether the subsidy is justified or not might be debatable, but I think that the carrying out of our obligations under the treaty is an aspect of the question that my hon. friend from Bow River did not take into account when he moved to strike out the item. Those obligations must be lived up to.

As to the Government Merchant Marine, my own view is that those vessels should be used wherever they can be used to carry on the trade of this country, but they were not built as passenger vessels. The Government Merchant Marine was built as a freight marine, and consequently the vessels are not equipped for the particular trade between Canada and the West Indies at the present time. The people of Nova Scotia and of eastern Canada generally who are prosperous can afford to spend a few months in the West Indies in the winter.

Mr. ROBB: I have met some Winnipegers down there too.

Mr. CRERAR: There may be also some from the remote West who can afford to go to the West Indies during our cold winter. I believe entirely in the development of trade with the West Indies and with the outside world wherever we can develop it. I hope to see that trade expand and grow. I might draw the attention of the committee to this fact, and I have mentioned it when this question was under consideration in preceding sessions, that it is rather inconsistent to subsidize steamships for the promotion of trade with other countries and at the same time maintain a system of tariffs that makes trade with those countries almost impossible. I think that when my hon. friend the Minister of Trade and Commerce gives this question that careful thought and study that he gives to problems that come before his deparment, he will realize the truth of what I say, and I am very hopeful that when another session comes round he will be among the ardent supporters in this House of a substantial reduction in the tariff.

Mr. MARTELL: A few days ago, when other matters were up, I drew to the attention of the Minister of Trade and Commerce the question of the freight rates that are being charged on the boats of the Royal Mail Steam Packet Company, particularly on turnips. I received several letters from my constituents in regard to the matter. I took it up with the department and they communicated with the steamship company. The latter submitted a statement to the effect that turnips were placed in barrels and occupied more room than potatoes and hence required a higher rate. As a matter of fact both potatoes and turnips are placed in standard barrels. A barrel which contains turnips is exactly the same size as a barrel which contains potatoes; the only difference is that the barrel containing potatoes weighs 30 pounds more than the barrel containing the turnips. Now these boats are not always loaded, so that the question of weight does not enter into consideration—it is a question of space. Nevertheless, although a barrel of turnips takes exactly the same space as a barrel of potatoes, and weighs 30 pounds less, the farmer is charged a good deal more freight on turnips than he is charged on potatoes. Furthermore, turnips do not command half the price in the West Indian market that potatoes do. I understand that when the Trade and Commerce Department enter into a contract to subsidize a steamship company it covenants that it shall have some say, at least, in regard to the rates that are charged on these boats. Now this matter is a vital one in the county of Hants, because from that county a great amount of turnips is shipped, by way of Halifax, on these very boats for which the minister is now endeavouring to get a subsidy through the committee. On behalf of my constituents I urge upon him that he put these facts before these steamship people and tell them what they must do. They are only indulging in special pleading when they argue that it costs more to transport turnips than it does potatoes. Moreover the steamship company's high charges are making the shipment of turnips an unprofitable business. If the Government is going to subsidize these people to carry freight as well as passengers it should give them to understand that when they receive public money they should act in return in such a manner as to promote rather than retard the development of public business.

Mr. ROBB: This is the first time the matter has been drawn to my attention; I will look into it.

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): It causes me great regret to realize that owing to my remarks I have incurred the contumely of the hon. member for Lunenburg (Mr. Duff). As a general rule his criticisms are directed at the leader of the Opposition (Mr. Meighen).

Mr. DUFF: That is a very smart observation on the part of the hon. gentleman.

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): I feel very flattered to know that the remarks directed at me also apply to the Solicitor General (Mr. McKenzie), because the latter last year raised the same point that I have raised to-night. On that occasion the Solicitor General protested against the continuance of this subsidy. He stated his reasons very clearly and I have read them to the committee, but I suppose the hon. member for Lunenburg was not in the House at the time. With regard to the point raised by the hon. member for Marquette (Mr. Crerar) the agreement between this country and the Canadian government does not call for a subsidized steamship line, it calls for a steamship freight and passenger service. On the other hand it is declared that if a subsidized service is arranged for, then something else will be required. What will be required is that the governments of the colonies in question shall arrange for bungalows, hotels, and other accommodation for the class of passengers that are carried on these vessels. I am sorry that unfortunately conditions in the West will prevent me from going to the West Indies and taking advantage of this kind of accommodation.

An hon. MEMBER: Why not go to California?

Mr. GARLAND (Bow River): Nor shall I be able to go even to that land of sunshine; I must remain in Canada under present conditions of agriculture. I repeat that all that is asked for in the agreement referred to is that the government of Canada shall use its best endeavours to arrange for a passenger and freight service to go into effect as soon as possible. It is not necessary to have this service subsidized.

Mr. MacLAREN (St. John): The vessels now subsidized by the Canadian government run from Halifax to the West Indies, and in return from the West Indies to St. John, and cater for freight and passengers. There is considerable freight, and also a very considerable number of passengers, carried by that line. I know this because the service comes under my observation regularly every year. The suggestion advanced by an hon. gentleman to my left is that this trade could be done by the vessels of the Government Merchant Marine. I would like to point out that those vessels were built for the carriage of freight not for the carriage of passengers. Now the accommodation for passengers on the service between the West Indies and St. John and Halifax must be suitable. It must also be comfortable; otherwise, it would not be used. I do not think it at all likely that the freight boats owned by the government could be made suitable for the comfort and convenience of passengers. I am therefore of the opinion that in this case the subsidies should be continued in order to provide a suitable and popular service between the West Indies and the ports of Halifax and St. John.

Mr. GOOD: How is the amount of this subsidy determined? Was there any competition before the amount was arrived at? I think we ought to know at least that we are protected in the matter of the amount of this subsidy.

Mr. ROBB: The contract was renewed at the same rate that had prevailed heretofore.

Mr. GOOD: How do we know that the subsidy is not five times too large?

Mr. ROBB: As a matter of fact the company demanded a higher rate. We advertised for tenders and their's was the lowest, indeed the only, tender that was received in public competition.

Mr. MACLEAN (Halifax): The contract was originally put up for tender?

Item agreed to.

Canada and Australian or New Zealand, or both, on the Pacific ocean, steam service between, $130,509.

Mr. SHAW: I notice that the imports from New Zealand have decreased very rapidly and are back to the figures of 1912. I would like to know if the minister has had this fact under his consideration in connection with the giving of this particular subsidy? As a matter of fact the imports into this country from New Zealand last year totalled only $783,500 as compared with something like over $7,000,000 worth at one time.

Mr. ROBB: I think your figures are incorrect. The figures appear to be—

1914..	$3,000,000
1920..	3,494,000
1921..	4,219,000

Mr. SHAW: For the year ending 31st March, 1922, according to the figures furnished by the department, the amount was $1,000,000 odd.

Mr. ROBB: Yes. Perhaps my hon. friend will agree with me that it may be more a shrinkage of value than of tonnage.

Mr. CRERAR: To whom were these subsidies paid for the Australian serivice?

Mr. ROBB: They were paid to the Union Steamship Company of New Zealand, and the agents of this company are the Canadian-Australian Royal Mail Line.

Mr. CRERAR: How long was the contract for?

Mr. ROBB: This contract expires on July 31st, 1922. The service is also subsidized by the postal authorities of England, who recently inquired if we would be willing to extend the contract until March 31st, 1924, so that our contract should run concurrently with theirs, and we agreed to that. This contract has been renewed until March 31st, 1924, and this service forms the only connection between Canada and New Zealand.

Mr. CRERAR: In respect to a great many of these subsidies, I think the Government would be well advised to take into consideration, if not the total abrogation, at any rate, a reduction, of some of them. I think there are cases where subsidies are justified, but it is a very easy matter, when you have developed the habit of giving subsidies, to continue giving them, whether the case merits it or not, and the services now between Australia, New Zealand and Canada are pretty well looked after by various steamship lines. There is competition in the service, and when you get competition of an active kind in a service, surely the need for subsidies must disappear. That does not exist in the case of a subsidy we were considering to the West Indies a few moments ago, but, in the case where, practically one continent is trading with another continent, there should be sufficient competition, so that subsidies should not be necessary to maintain the necessary services, and I trust the Government will take that fact into their careful consideration, as these subsidies expire.

Mr. ROBB: There is very much force in the argument of my hon. friend from Marquette (Mr. Crerar). Indeed this particular subsidy has been decreased. It was $180,000 and it has been reduced to $130,000. There is much farce in the argument that as trade develops they should be self-sustaining.

Mr. GOOD: For how many years will these contracts run as a rule? How long are we tied up by them?

Mr. ROBB: Some of these contracts are given for a period of years. This particular one extends for two years, until March 31st, 1924, but in all these contracts there is a clause stating that it is subject to a vote by Parliament, so that, if Parliament to-night refuses to vote the amount, it is cancelled.

Item agreed to.

Pelee Island and the mainland—steam service between, $11,000.

Mr. CRERAR: Where is Pelee Island?

Mr. ROBB: On Lake Erie.

Item agreed to.

Quebec, Natashquan and Harrington, and Bras d'Or and other ports on the north shore of the gulf of St. Lawrence, steam service between, $85,000.

Mr. CRERAR: There is an increase in that?

Mr. ROBB: That provides for an increased service. It is a considerably better service. Last year there was one steamer employed in the service. The contractors this year have put on two vessels, the North Shore and the Labrador, with which they are performing a weekly service, running the North Shore every two weeks to Natashquan, calling at Anticosti Island, and running the Labrador every two weeks to Harrington and other way ports between Harrington and Bras d'Or bay. This extension of this service to Bras d'Or bay is expected to divert the trade of that part of the coast which in the past has been going to Newfoundland, to Canada, and in view of the fact that this increase has been given to the North Shore service, the contractors have, although it is not so specified in the contract, much improved their south shore service, having put on a large new steamer, the Gaspesia, of about 1,200 tons.

Mr. CRERAR: What is the real need for this subsidy, or is there any? It seems to me rather a remarkable thing that steamships running up and down the gulf of St. Lawrence should require a subsidy.

Mr. ROBB: Yes, if there is one service in all the list that is needed, it is this service. It extends 626 miles east from Quebec city, down along the north shore of the St. Lawrence, where there is no railway. There are settlers established along there, and the service has developed industries along the coast.

Mr. DUFF: It is the only communication they have with the outside world.

Mr. CASGRAIN: Will the minister do something to extend and improve the service between Murray Bay and Tadoussac? On the 11th April last year I introduced a resolution, urging upon the Government the establishment of a steamboat service between Murray Bay and Tadoussac, especially for the winter months, or from November to May. Last year, when the late government was in office, we were refused the service because it was claimed it was not necessary. This year I have presented to the Government petitions from all the boards of trade in the county, but, up to the present time, I have not received any favourable answer. I think the hon. minister might give me an answer.

Mr. ROBB: It is only fair to say to my hon. friend from Charlevoix-Montmorency (Mr. Casgrain) that he has bombarded my office, I would not say every day, but, at least, once a week, since the opening of the session, and knowing, as you all know, what a nice pleasant chap he is, you can understand how hard it is to resist his demands. We have subsidized a small service from St. Catharine's bay to Tadoussac for the winter season. That was passed some time ago. I understand he wants a somewhat wider service, but I think he will have to exercise patience for, at least, this year. I will not commit myself to what will be done next year.

Mr. CASGRAIN: The people living between Muray Bay and Tadoussac have no good railway service, and no good roads, especially in the winter season; therefore, this steam service is very necessary for them and would serve a useful purpose.

Mr. ROBB: We will take it under consideration.

Item agreed to.

St. John and Digby, steam service between, $15,000.

Mr. CRERAR: That is across the bay of Fundy?

Mr. ROBB: Yes.

Mr. MANION: What is the explanation for the increase?

Mr. ROBB: The subsidy in 1920-21 was $20,000. Then it was reduced to $10,000. The company has submitted a statement showing a very heavy operating loss amounting to nearly $100,000 in three years, and it states that unless the subsidy is increased the service will be discontinued. It is the only service these people have.

Item agreed to.

Sydney and Whycocomagh, steam service between, $7,000.

Mr. MANION: What are the particulars of this item?

Mr. ROBB: This is one of the oldest services that we have subsidized. It was carried on by an old steamer, the Marion, and the directors have been endeavouring to secure a new boat. In consideration of a new and better steamer being put on the route we promised a subsidy of $7,000, but they have been unable so far to secure such a steamer. The Marion is being repaired, and in view of the expense involved in the work we have consented to pay them $5,000, and have also agreed that if they succeed in getting a better steamer we will pay them the $7,000.

Item agreed to.

RAILWAYS AND CANALS

Railways and Canals—Loan to the Canadian Government Merchant Marine, $4,360,720.

Hon. W. C. KENNEDY (Minister of Railways and Canals): The amount required for payment of bank advances, outstanding vouchers, and insurance premiums, payable as at the 31st December, 1921, was $3,000,000. The estimated amount required to meet deficit in operations, on the basis of operating thirty-seven vessels for the year ending 31st December, 1922, is $1,000,000, and to carry on to the end of the fiscal year ending March 31st, 1923, there is an additional estimate for the three months of $250,000, making a total of $1,250,000. The amount required for capital expenditure on the vessels is $110,720, making a total in all, as outlined in the estimates, of $4,360,720.

Mr. CRERAR: What is the nature of the capital expenditure of $110,000 odd?

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): I will read the particulars.

Mr. CRERAR: Is the amount properly chargeable to capital?

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): Yes, these items are: Two propellers at $5,500 each, $11,000; superheater, $11,500; steam driers, 20 at $150 each, $3,000; soot blowers, 20 at $1,366, $27,320; governors, 20 at $1,100, $22,000; intakes 4 at $600, $2,400; winches, 14 at $1,100, $15,400;—

Mr. CRERAR: That is quite enough.

The CHAIRMAN: Carried.

Mr. CRERAR: Before you write that "carried", Mr. Chairman, I want to ask another question. I do not recall any statement of the operations of the merchant marine having been submitted this session. Will such a statement be included in the annual report of the Canadian National Railways, which I understand has been published?

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): The report of the Canadian National Railways will be tabled in a day or two and, incorporated in it, a statement in regard to the merchant marine for the past year.

Mr. CRERAR: A statement showing profit and loss in operation?

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): Yes, and giving the report of the directors.

Mr. McBRIDE: I think we ought to have some information in connection with the merchant marine.

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): I shall be glad to give my hon. friend any information he requires to-night.

Mr. McBRIDE: I would like to know what you are going to do with the merchant marine? You have sixty-five boats and those of less than 5,000 tons, I think, will never pay. I do not think they will pay operating expenses. These boats are deteriorating in value all the time. I do not think they should be kept by the Government.

An hon. MEMBER: There is no doubt about that.

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): I may tell the hon. member that his views coincide with those of the board of directors of the National Railways. There are twenty-seven smaller vessels which they propose to lay up this year twenty of which are in fact laid up at the present time. It is the intention to dispose of them to the best possible advantage, retaining the larger ones for the time being. This matter, as in the past, will be dealt with by the board of directors.

Mr. MACLEAN (Halifax): The construction of these ships has been criticised by some people, but it was a policy initiated during the war, and might very well be looked upon as an insurance premium against national loss. The construction of the ships was undertaken at a time when it looked as though the German submarine warfare would be most disastrous to British shipping the world over. It was the desire of the British government as well that Canada should at that time construct ships, and the policy was supported by every member in Parliament as well as by the Canadian people at large. The policy had reference only to the construction of ships to bridge us over the imminent danger that existed at that time. It was never the settled policy of the government that they should continue the ownership and operation of these vessels, and I think that the Government should divest itself of that ownership. The vessels are being operated at a tremendous loss, and it is the experience and the judgment of those men who are best able to speak on such matters that government operation of ships must inevitably be carried on at a loss. The United States constructed about 1,500 ships for the same reasons that we built 60 or 70. About 1,000 of those ships are now laid up in the ports of the United States. The others are being operated at a net annual loss of $50,000,000. The policy of the United States is to get rid of these ships just as soon as they can, but they find it rather difficult to do so. The head of the United States Shipping Board, in an address delivered lately at Washington, stated that in his judgment it was not sound public policy for the people of the United States to further continue the operation of these ships by the government.

Now, I submit that it is not fair for us to have government-operated ships in competition with shipping services originated, developed and carried on by private companies which have devoted much time and money to the building up of their business. They find themselves in the position of facing the competition of government-owned boats operating at a loss, which loss they, the owners of these privately operated ships, have to help pay.

Last year I called attention to the fact that there were two or three steamship lines operating between Canada and Newfoundland, none of which are subsidized. These services were started many years ago and there is a great deal of Canadian money invested in them. The Canadian Merchant Marine saw fit to enter into competition with these long-established services when those services were quite capable of handling all the business that was offering. The result is that these privately owned services are being slowly destroyed, they cannot stand this one-sided competition much longer, and ultimately they will have to go out of business altogether. In a year or so our government-owned boats will be worn out, and we certainly will never embark on a construction policy again. Consequently we will have no service at all between our ports and Newfoundland, and the time, energy and money put into the development of these privately-established services will be absolutely lost and we shall not have gained anything in return. If we ever hope to establish a merchant marine our only chance is in encouraging private capital to embark in the enterprise.

Now, what should be done with our government-owned ships? I would suggest to the Minister of Railways that he immediately take into consideration the advisability of parting ownership with them. I would advise him to endeavour to sell the ships to Canadians so they may be under Canadian registry if possible. If proposing purchasers have not the money to pay down, I would advise him to take a mortgage for the full amount of the purchase price, asking the purchasers, of course, to insure the ships up to the amount of the mortgage. I think it would be preferable to get rid of these ships rather than operate them through government agencies. In the event of his not being able to sell them, I would suggest that he turn over their operation to Canadian shipping companies. It is not sound business to be operating these ships at a loss of $10,000,000 a year. And they never will pay their way. It is the one class of business that a government is absolutely unfitted to engage in. You can make an argument in favour of government ownership and operation of railways, because the railway business is in the nature of a monopoly, but in shipping free trade exists, and there is more than enough tonnage to-day to do the world's shipping business. Our shipping needs can be amply met if we dispense with our government-owned boats and depend on the service which the shipping of the world to-day affords.

I cannot conceive of any sound reason justifying further continuance of the operation of these ships by the Government. I am not entering any complaint against the management. I have no doubt they are doing the best they can and are zealous in the development of the service; but unfortunately there is the result, and it always will be that way. If there was any national interest being served by continuing our ownership and operation I might submit to the policy, I suppose, but in the circumstances I cannot see any justification whatever for such continuation, and I hope if the Minister of Railways has not already power to dispose of these ships, that he take steps before the session ends to secure the necessary enabling powers to deal with any possible situation that may develop in connection with their disposal.

Mr. CRERAR: With a great deal of what my hon. friend the senior member for Halifax (Mr. Maclean) has said, I agree. He has stated the reasons, whether they were good reasons or not at the time, that led to the building of this merchant marine. Unquestionably the country cannot go on facing the heavy losses that result in the operation of these ships. A suggestion has been made by one of my hon. friends from British Columbia that the smaller vessels will prove of no value and should be disposed of. My hon. friend from Halifax would go further and dispose of the whole lot. It occurs to me that the larger vesesls might be of some use as complementary to the railway system which the country has. I do not know how far that would be justified on sound, business principles, but I do know that other transportation companies have water connection in ocean-going vessels, and I would suggest to the minister not to display the eager haste which my hon. friend from Halifax counselled in disposing of these vessels, particularly the larger ones. I think the question of their disposition should be thoroughly inquired into.

Mr. MACLEAN (Halifax): If my hon. friend will allow me to interrupt a moment —I did intend to qualify my remarks somewhat in the direction indicated by him. It might be desirable, particularly if it be found difficult to dispose of the larger ships, to continue their operation in the ocean services. There is something to be said for that.

Mr. CRERAR: That is what I had in mind. The whole situation should be carefully canvassed and examined before these vessels are disposed of at bargain-counter prices or given away to the first person who will take them. The smaller vessels will not be of service in that respect. I do not know whether it would be possible to make use of them on the lakes where smaller boats can be used, but at any rate I agree with my hon. friend that this is a question which should receive the attention of the board of directors of the National Railways.

There is one other thought that I have to offer in that connection. Even if disposition of these vessels is made by sale, I do not know that the present time is best suited for the purpose. We know that trade has been depressed in the last few years greater than it has ever been in the memory of any within reach of my voice tonight. We believe that trade conditions are going to revive, and that in a few years' time the commercial world will be resuming operations on something like the old scale. Unquestionably at that time a greater demand for ships will arise. My suggestion to the minister would be not to act too hastily in this connection; it is possible that a year or two hence he would get a much better price for the vessels, or for those that the board of directors of the National Railways wished to sell, than could possibly be got at the present time.

Mr. CHURCH: Every country has to have a merchant marine in connection with the solution of its transportation problems. This matter was partly discussed in the debate on the naval estimates; the value of a merchant marine, not only for ordinary purposes of trade and commerce but in time of war, was brought out. One of the reasons why England is the great commercial country that she is to-day and has been for centuries is found in the operations of her merchant marine. Drake, Frobisher, Hawkins—all these men were men of the merchant marine; their activities were the foundation of the great trade and commerce of the Mother Country. Australia and New Zealand have taken a leaf out of the Mother Country's book. The Government have said that they are going to give the National Railways a chance. What kind of chance is it going to be? If some of the papers in the Montreal district had their way, the National Railways would be under the control of the Canadian Pacific, and so would Canada's merchant marine; and it would be a sorry day for Canada if that took place. Look at what the United States are doing in an effort to solve their transportation problems; they have turned all their war plants into peace plants. Government ships as well as ships for private concerns are being built with a view to holding the great trade that came to the United States as a result of the war. Canada also took a leading part in the war; is she to dispose of her merchant marine, as has been suggested by the hon. member for Halifax (Mr. Maclean)? It is true that these ships were built rather from the unemployment standpoint than from the economic standpoint; they cost a great deal more than the price at which they could have been purchased in the old land. But if we are to make a success of our National Railways we must provide feeders for them —ocean feeders as well as lake feeders. It is true that there have been deficits, and we may expect them for some time to come. But take a case of private ownership: the Canadian Pacific did not pay when it was first started; not until ocean services, lake services and hotel services were added to the rail system was success achieved. I say that if we are to fulfil the important part we should play in the Empire in the future we must go out on the seven seas and secure our share of the world's trade. The people of the United States have had deficits in connection with their merchant marine. The same criticisms were offered in Australia but both in that country and in New Zealand the operations were extended and large surpluses were subsequently obtained. I am surprised, Mr. Chairman, at the carping criticism which has been offered in respect to this item. The minister has been doing the best he could; he has made very substantial progress and I think the committee should give the merchant marine a chance. If they will not do that, then we may as well cut off the railways as well, because the two are interlocked. It has been established by evidence submitted to the Interstate Commerce Commission of the United States and by reports made to Congress and to the Senate at Washington that steam roads cannot operate profitably without feeders in the way of ocean and lake services. In my opinion this is a vote in the right direction; instead of being curtailed it ought to be increased. If these various services are operated on business lines there is no doubt in my mind that within a few years we shall have in them a great asset.

Mr. KENNEDY (Glengarry): Are any of the ships of the Canadian Merchant Marine engaged in carrying Canadian wheat and flour to the British market?

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): I am not in a position to give an answer at the moment, but I am inclined to think they are not at present; they are not suitable for it.

Mr. BAXTER: Is this the last railway item?

Mr. KENEDY (Essex): Yes.

Mr. BAXTER: May I be permitted to put a question to the minister under this head with regard to a railway matter?

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): Yes:

Mr. BAXTER: I would inquire whether the Government have had any proposal from the government of New Brunswick with reference to what is known as the Valley Railway? From answers to questions put some time ago in the House it appears that in the taking over of the Canadian Northern, Ontario was in effect relieved of obligations amounting to over $7,000,000; Manitoba of over $25,000,000; Saskatchewan, in connection with the Canadian Northern and the Grand Trunk Pacific, of over $28,000,000; Alberta, in connection with the same lines, of about $21,000,000; British Columbia of about $40,000,000. These obligations are being met by the federal government. The St. John Valley Railway was built for the purpose of connecting the Transcontinental with the port of St. John. It was not completed according to the original design, owing to the intervention of the war and to largely increased costs. But I notice that with some reductions which have been made it stands on the books of the province at something less than $7,000,000. It has cost the province $340,000 by way of interest, and it has also occasioned some loss to the federal government as well. It would seem to me that in fairness this road, which was constructed, as I say for the purpose of connecting the Transcontinental with the port of St. John, should be assumed by the federal government. It means the addition of a very considerable burden in proportion to the roads the liability for which has been removed from the other provinces. In fact, I think every province except Quebec and Prince Edward Island has shared in relief, and I trust the province of New Brunswick will not go without some measure of relief.

Mr. McBRIDE: Now I do not wish to be misunderstood in what I have suggested. I did not suggest that the Government dispose of the larger vessels of 10,000 tons and up. I see no reason why they cannot be made profitable to this country, but the smaller vessels will never be an asset to Canada, and I think the Government should dispose of them.

Mr. KENNEDY (Essex): There has, so far as I know, been no definite proposal from the government of New Brunswick with respect to the sale of the railway to which my hon. friend from St. John refers. I did have an interview with two of the ministers, and that suggestion was made. The matter is now under consideration, but the Government is not in a position to say anything definite at the present time.

Item agreed to.

On the motion of Mr. Fielding the House adjourned at 11.35 p.m.

INDEX

FIRST SESSION—FOURTEENTH PARLIAMENT, 1922

Abbreviations:—1r., 2r., 3r.,=first, second, third reading. Admn.=Administration. Amdt.=Amendment. Com.=Committee. Dept.=Department. Div.=Division. Govt.=Government. M.=Motion. Neg.=Negative. Qu.=Question. Ref.=Reference. Rep.=Report. Res.=Resolution. Sec.=Section.

Abattoirs. See also Cold Storage; Health of Animals; Meat and Canned Foods
Maritime provinces in, M. 992, 1023

Accountants. See House of Commons; Senate

Accounts. See Consolidated Revenue and Audit Act; Finance; Public Accounts

Accredited Herds. See Health of Animals

Acme Grain Company, default of, 2834

Acoustics. See House of Commons

Actions. See Escheats Act Amdt.

Active Militia. See Militia; National Defence

Adamson, Mr. Justice, appointment of, 1670

Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, 10, 15, 50, 98, 122, 173, 211, 260, 303, 326
Mover (Mr. McMurray) 10; Seconder (Mr. Mercier) 15
Speakers, Messrs: Baldwin, 60; Baxter, 98; Beaubien, 280; Brown, 332; Campbell, 356; Carmichael, 155; Church, 116; Crerar, 50; d'Anjou, 306; Denis (St. Denis), 348; Dickie, 341; Drayton, 195; Evans, 300; Forke, 76; Gouin, 140; Harris, 307; Hughes, 224; Irvine, 211; Johnson (Moosejaw), 112; Kennedy (Edmonton), 142; King (Mackenzie), 38; Ladner, 321, 326; Lewis, 149; Logan, 105; Macdonald (Pictou), 186; MacKelvie, 159; MacLaren, 353; MacLean (Prince), 335; Maclean (York), 63; McBride, 316; Manion, 263; Marler, 243; Meighen, 19; Neill, 169; Pritchard, 250; Putnam, 309; Raymond, 253; Robitaille, 320; Ross, 95; Ryckman, 284; St. Père, 281; Sexsmith, 293; Sheard, 294; Speakman, 80; Stansell, 359; Stevens, 230; Stork, 330; Turgeon; 273; Warner, 349; Woods, 92; Woodsworth, 84
Motion agreed to, 362; acknowledgment of address by Governor General, 746-7

Adjournments. See House of Commons

Adjustment of War Claims. See War Claims

Administration of Justice. See Justice

Administration of Oaths of Office bill, 1r., 6

Admiralty Act Amdt. bill (Deputy Registrar and Deputy Judge) 1r., 245-6; 2r., com., 2822; 3r., 2823

Admiralty Court vacancy at Quebec, 1275

Adulteration of Food. See Food; Health

Advertising. See American Magazines

Aerial Patrol. See Air Service

Aeronautics, control of. See Air Board Act

Aeroplanes. See Air Service

Age of consent. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Agents Provacateur. See National Defence; Royal Canadian Mounted Police

Ages, Population by. See Population

Agricultural bloc in United States, 69, 210, 988. See also Budget; Customs; United States

Agricultural Commodities. See Farm Products

Agricultural Fairs. See Exhibitions

Agricultural Fertilizers. See also Fertilizers
Inquiry as to legislation, 3041
Speaker's ruling, 1282

Agricultural Fertilizers, Regulation and Sale of, bill. Res. 3043; 1r., 3044; 2r., 3044; ref. to Com. on Agriculture, 3044; com., 3194; 3r., 3195. Senate amdts., 3607

Agricultural Implements, 2185, 2217, 2360, 2464, 2564, 2620
Brantford factories, closing of, 2375
Duties on, reduction, 2115, 2175, 2206, 2217, 2230, 2360, 2375, 2381, 2484, 2534, 2592, 2731, 3118-3120, 3141. See also speeches on Address; Budget; Customs Tariff
Drawbacks and refunds, 2175, 3122
Ploughs, 3121, 3229
M. (Mr. Johnston — Last Mountain) to reduce, 3121, 3229
Imported from United States, 2413-14, 2486
By United Grain Growers, 3118-19
International Harvester Company, 2382
Massey-Harris Company, 2175
Price of, 1476, 2188. See also Address; Budget
At home and abroad, 2452, 2620
Protection, 2697
Manufacturers, and, 2575
Raw Materials for, 302, 309, 766. See also Customs Tariff
Raymond, Mr., and, 254, 255, 2705. See also speeches on Budget
Repair parts, 1901
Standardization of parts, 2406
Tariff, and, See Address; Budget; Customs Tariff

Agricultural Institute, 657, 969

Agricultural Instruction Act, 651-2, 994, 1012
Marshall, Mr. Duncan, 1032

Agricultural Labourers. See Immigration; Labour; Unemployment

Agriculture. See also speeches on Address; Budget
Accredited herds, 995, 2556, 2734-43
Diseases, 968. See also under this title, Health of Animals
Valuation, 1000
Animal diseases. See Animal Contagious Diseases; Health of Animals
Bacon, production and marketing, 1025
Bounty to, 1698
Bovine Tuberculosis. See under this title. Health of Animals
Butter. See also Oleomargarine
Accumulation in England, 997
Colouring of, 1778
Imported, qu. 613, 803
New Zealand, from, qu. 614
Protection against oleomargarine, 177. See also Oleomargarine
Vitamines in, 1781

Agriculture — Con.
Cattle. See also Live Stock
Embargo on. See Cattle Embargo
Free carriage of, 1029
Cold storage, 818, 992, 998, 2557
Abattoirs, maritime provinces, 992-3, 1023
Quebec, 1471
Warehouses, 3521
Commissioner of, qu. 609, 645, 3501. See also Marshall, Mr. Duncan
Committee on. See Agriculture and Colonization
Competition, 2698
Conditions and prospects, 16, 53, 78, 81, 85, 113, 150, 231, 252, 300, 2147, 2149, 2153, 2156, 2163, 2216, 2403, 2885. See also speeches on Address; Agriculture Estimates; Budget
Statement by Manitoba Agricultural College, 2332
Contributions to railway tonnage, 1927. See also Freight Rates; Wheat Board
Dairying. See that title
Depression in, 1475, 2147. See also Address; Budget
Department
Calgary live stock branch, qu. 607
Comparison of average salaries, 750
Dominion Apiarist, 592
Estimates, 1018, 1718, 3520
Marshall, Mr. Duncan, appointment of, 3501. See also that title
Salaries and contingencies, 588, 644, 3504
Destructive Insect and Pest Act, 590, 3520. See also under this title, Entomology Diseases of Animals. See under this title, Accredited Herds; Health of Animals
Entomology, 813
Exhibitions, 993, 1026, 3521. See also that title
Experimental and illustration Farms, 795, 2557, 3521
Buildings, expenditure on, 1264
M. (Mr. Sutherland) to reduce item, 812
Mont Laurier, 994
Saunders, Dr. C. E., Dominion Cerealist, gratuity to, 590, 3522
Export figures, 2446, 2638
Farm labourers, 79, 87, 251, 1153
Harvest excursions to West, 337
Immigration of. See Immigration
Unemployment. See Unemployment
Fertilizers. See Agricultural Fertilizers; Fertilizers
Fruit Industry. See that title
Importance of, 2386. See Address; Budget
International Institute of, 657, 969

Agriculture — Con.
Health of Animals, 967. See also under this title, Accredited Herds
Bovine tuberculosis, 2556
Hog cholera, 1007, 1028
Alderson claim, 1004
Tuberculosis, 3521. See also Animal contagious Diseases
Japanese engaged in, 345-6. See also Oriental Aliens
Lecturers, 1023
Live Stock. See that title
Manitoba Agricultural College, statements on, 2332
Markets, 251, 2149. See also Address; Budget; Cattle Embargo; Wheat Board
Military and agricultural expenditures, comparison, 1137
Mixed farming, 2592
Potatoes. See that title
Root Vegetables. See that title
Saunders, Dr. C. E., Dominion Cerealist, gratuity to, 590, 3522
Seed, Feed, and Fertilizer Control, 1011
Seed Grain, 3522
Stock-grazing and feeding, 1718. See also Live Stock.
Unemployment, and, 2158, 2331. See also Labour; Unemployment
Wheat Board. See that title

Agriculture and Colonization, Committee on Bouchard, Mr., substituted for Mr. Stein, 2035
Canadian Council of Agriculture Memorandum ref. to, 377
Constitutionality of Wheat Board, Law Officers' opinion, 940
McCoig, Senator, attendance of, 1900, 2406
Reports
Inquiry as to, 1929
Second and third, 657
M. to concur in, 703, 726, 776
Amdt. (Mr. Meighen) to refer back, 779
M. as amended, agreed to, 786
Third, concurred in, 786
Fourth, concurred in, 865
Fifth, M. to concur in, 2915
Amdt. (Mr. Sutherland), 2951; neg. 2969
See Wheat Board, for further proceedings
Standardization of parts of agricultural machinery, 2406

Air Board, qu. 366. See also Militia and Defence; National Defence

Air Board — Con.
Aeronautical research, 3499
Biggar, Col. O. M., resignation of, 1726
Civil aviation, 1722. See also Air Force
Estimates, salaries, etc., 1722
Expenditure, details of, 1728

Air Board Act, 1919, Amdt. bill (Compensation for death or injury)
Res. 2357, 2820; 1r., 2821, 2r., com., 3r., 2826

Aircraft Limitation. See Limitation of Armaments

Air Force. See also Air Board; Militia, National Defence
Aeroplanes, danger of attack from, 2085-98
Civil Aviation, and, 1047, 1722
Aerial patrol, High River, Alta., 1048; qu. 1066, 1723
Camp Borden, 1728
Co-operation with provinces, 1722
Customs patrol, Vancouver, B.C., 1730
Forest patrol, 1047
High River station, 1048; qu. 1066, 1723
Railway Belt, B.C., 1730
Gasoline for aeroplanes. See Gasoline
Pensions, Widowed mothers, 1305

Air Service. See Air Force

Aird, Sir John, 1128

Alberta
Dry areas, 1042
Harbours and rivers, 2004
Indian schools. See Indians
Meeting of defeated candidates, 2858
Public buildings, 1254
Second homesteads, 1042
Soldier's Civil Re-establishment hospitals, 1344

Alcohol. See also Customs Tariff; Opium and Narcotic Drugs; Prohibition; Special War Revenue Act
Country doctors and, 2177
Retail druggists, for, ques. 1213, 1400; 2114, 2176-7, 2191

Alderson Claim. See Agriculture, Health of Animals

Aldred, Mr. J. E., 1128

Ale. See Liquor; Special War Revenue Act; Taxation

Algoma Steel Corporation, rails, 1689

Aliens. See also Immigration; Labour; Unemployment
Deportation of. See Immigration Act Amdt.; Opium and Narcotic Drugs
Enemy property, custodians of 1672, qu. 1904
C.P.R. shares held by, 1672
Mulvey, Mr. Thomas, qu. 3363
Prince Rupert, 3606, 3601
Fisher & Oughton, qu. 1773, 3601, 3606
Thorsch, Mr., qu. 1772
Williams & Manson, qu. 1772, 3601, 3606
Lord Kitchener, news of his death, and, 2155
Oriental Immigration. See Oriental Aliens
Taxation of, 2155
Women of Alien Birth. See Dominion Franchise Act, M. (Mr. Euler)

Allan, Sir Montagu, 872. See also Banks, Merchants Bank

Alliances, Political, 2095, 2097. See also Nationalists; Progressive Party
"Morganatic alliance", 2095, 2344

Alpine Club, grant to, 1053, 1387

Alternative Vote. See Proportional Representation

Aluminum Company of America, 71, qu. 728
Cedar Rapids power, qu. 1375

Amalgamation of Departments. See National Defence Bill

Ambassador, Canadian, at Washington. See Canadian Representation

American Bankers' Association, 2189

American Magazines, importation and competition, 3109

Amherst, N.S.
Car repair contracts, 1702
Drill hall, 1238

Ammunition. See Militia and Defence

Anaesthetics, use of. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Anderson, Mr. R. K. (Halton)
Budget, 2364. Tribute to Finance Minister; taxation and the cost of living, 2364; tariff; import and excise duties; free trade; origin of protective policy in United States; population, increase Anderson, Mr. R. K. — Con.

Budget — Con.
of; tariff reductions; a two and a half per cent budget; sales tax increase, 2365; party without definite fiscal policy; 2366; revenue and protective tariffs in England and United States; Fordney tariff, 2367; reciprocity with United States; British and American investment in Canadian industries, 2368; home manufacture; trade with Great Britain and United States, 2369; home market; difficulties due to war; debt and deficits, 2370; economy and expenditure; civil service; militia and naval service, 2371; taxation; railways; emigration; dumping clause, 2372; beet sugar; the amendment, 2373
Burlington channel bridge, 2007
Daylight Saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 954
Halifax and St. John quarantine stations, 1241
Halton county
Highways — Dundas Street, qu. 1065
Post offices, 1247
Immigration, medical inspection, 2021-2
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act, 3014
Orders in Council, qu. 935
Overseas service — categories, 3317
Penitentiary Act Amdt, 790
Pensions, commutation of, 1281
Public buildings
Rentals, 1259
Water, 1266
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, care and medical examination of patients, 1281
Steel rods, refund of duties, 1774

Andrews, Mr. A. J., K.C.
Winnipeg Strike correspondence, 2042

Anglo-French Relations. See Genoa Conference; Limitation of Armaments

Anglo-Japanese Treaty, 168. See also Japan; Limitation of Armaments

Animal Contagious Diseases Act
Administration, 967, qu. 3362

Animal Contagious Diseases Act Amdt. bill (Compensation for slaughtered animals), 1r., 1283; 2r., com., 2102; com., 2734; 3r., 2806

Animals, Cruelty to. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Annexation, 2550
"Annexationists of the prairie provinces", 1020

Annual Drill. See Militia

Annuities Branch, Salaries, etc., 776

Anti-Conscription, 22. See also Military Service Act Amdt.

Anti-Dumping. See Budget; Customs; Fruit; Trade

Appeal Cases. See Judges' Act Amdt.

Appeal Judges, Saskatchewan. See Judges Act Amdt.

Appeals from Provincial Courts. See Supreme Court Act Amdt.

Apples. See Fruit

Appropriation Acts
1. Bill No. 26 (Interim Supply — for $53,-901,669.17 for 1922-23). Res., 362, 598; 1r., 2r., com., 3r., 599
2. Bill No. 85 (for 1921-22, for $9,623,-792.61 and 1922-23 for $88,517,204.53). Res., 1r., 2r., com., 3r., 1842-3
3. Bill No. 202 (for 1922-23 for $175,766,-646.71). Res. 1r., 2r., com., 3r., 3607

Appropriations not required. See Estimates

Archambault, Mr. Joseph (Chambly and Verchères)
Bankruptcy Act, trustees for Montreal district, 1183
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine ships in Montreal harbour, qu. 2637
Criminal Code Amdt. (Mr. Woodsworth). See under this title, Immigration-Criminal Code
Health Dept. correspondence relating to drugs, 1289, 1377
Immigration-Criminal Code bills (Mr. Woodsworth)
Special Com. Reports, 1988, 2519, 3156, 3280
Isle Perrot bridge, qu. 1377
Military Service Act Amdt., 642
Montreal Harbour Commission, employees, 1289
Naturalization Act, 1914, Amdt. bill (Residence), 1062
Newspaper censors, 1069
Opium and Narcotic Drugs
Correspondence with wholesale druggists, 1289, 1377
Point of order — relevancy, 1890
Pratt vs. Delphine, 302
Railway Commission, Chief Traffic Officer, ques., 1377, 2215, 2457

Archambault, Mr. Joseph — Con.
St. John harbour, qu., 1401
Trent canal, total expenditure, qu. 1376
Victoria bridge tolls, qu. 1377
War claims, details of estimates, qu. 1288
Welland canal, total expenditure, qu. 1376

Architect. See Parliament Buildings

Archives. See Public Archives

Arctic Ocean, patrol. See Naval Service

Arctic Regions, Mounted Police in, 3497

Arichat, port physician, qu. 1773

Armaments. See Limitation of Armaments

Armorial Bearings of Canada, Welsh emblem, 3601

Armouries. See also Militia and Defence
Fittings and alterations, 1261, 1288
Quebec, in, qu. 1287

Army and Navy Veterans, Oriental immigration, 1514

Arsenals. See Militia

Arthur Young & Company, 1490. See also Civil Service, Classification

Arthurs, Mr. James (Parry Sound)
Canadian Transit Company Bill, 1771
Cash Bonus to Soldiers, 403; M., 429
Empire and Ascension days, 1769
Fishing schooner race, 3514
Geodetic survey, 1986
Labour Dept.
Nova Scotia strike, 584
Salaries, 575
Temporary clerks, 567
Naval Service, cruisers, qu. 2039
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3440-53
Postal receipts, qu. 938
Railway Act Amdt. (Crowsnest pass) 3959
Reading of documents, 560
Returned soldier hikers, qu. 3153
Rural mail routes, qu. 3152
Soldiers' settlement, building loans, 3475
Transcontinental railway, 919

Articles. See League of Nations

Artillery. See Militia; Royal Canadian Artillery

Artisans, Immigration of. See Immigration; Labour

Ascension Day Adjournment. See House of Commons

Asiatic Exclusion League of Canada, Oriental Immigration, 1514

Asiatics. See also Immigration; Oriental Aliens
British Columbia in, 171, 183

Assiniboine River Floods, 1842, 2003, 3545
Relief measures, inquiry, 3491

Assistant Chief Electoral Officer. See Chief Electoral Officer

Athletics. See Cadet Camps

Atlanta, Ga., Penitentiary, 1278

Atlantic-Pacific, Canadian ports. See British Preference; Steamship Services

Atlantic Sugar Refineries, drawback, 2850

Audibility of Debates. See House of Commons

Audit, Supreme Court pre-audit, 1275

Audit Act. See Consolidated Revenue and Audit Act Amdt.

Auditor General
Contingencies, 3504
Salaries, 793

Auditor General's Report, 380, 424
Public Works, expenditure of previous year, 1270
Ref. to Public Accounts Committee, 1462

Aurora, warship. See Naval Service

Australia
Immigration policy, 1536
Preservation of Industries Act, 2411, 2648
Reciprocal trade with, 33, 174, 2110, 2802
Correspondence tabled, 9
Steamship services. See Steamship Services
Trade relations with, 2592

Automobiles. See also Taxation
Duty on, 2116, 2186, 2206, 2232, 2574
Drawbacks, refunds, 2850
Excise sales tax, 2116, 2177, 2186, 2206, 2230, 2260, 2346-7, 2388, 3272-3, 3276
Amended, 2857
Ford car, cost in Detroit and Canada, 2186
Ford Motor Company, 3273
Duty paid by, qu. 3599
Output, 3273
Protection and profits, 2232, 2696
Imports, qu. 1633

Automobiles — Con.
Industry, protection of, 2696, 2730, 3132
Number of, by provinces, 2566
Refund of taxes, 3600
Results of protection of industry, 2696
Theft, penalty, 2831
Value, $1,000, to be admitted free for settlers, 2116

Aviation. See Air Board; Air Force

Bachelor Tax. See Taxation

Backus, Mr. E. W. See also Lake of the Woods Repeal Bill
Lease of timber areas, 2805; qu. 2992

Bacon, production. See Agriculture; Live Stock
Conference on, 1025

Baddeck, N.S.
Public Buildings, 1238
Wharf, 1269, 1765

Baie des Chaleurs railway service. See Gaspé Railways

Baker, the late Colonel G. H., M.P.
Memorial to, 1929
Appointment of Special Com., 2101
Second report, 3490

Baldwin, Mr. W. K. (Stanstead)
Address in reply, 60; congratulations to mover and seconder; Miss Macphail, income tax collections, 60; attitude of leader of Opposition, 60-61; conscription, 61; leader of Opposition, 62
Armouries, 1288
Budget, 2250. Public debt; sugar control; railways; economy, 2250; naval service; development of natural resources, 2251; geographical difference; party promises; water power development; St. Lawrence river waterway, 2252; tariff; Progressive party; Hon. Alexander Mackenzie; Sir John Macdonald and protection, 2253; wartime wages and prices; immigration, national spirit; inequalities of taxation, 2255
Oleomargarine, Manufacture and importation, M. (Mr. Neill) 1832

Balkan States, credit to. See Loans; Roumania

Ballantyne, Hon. C. C. See Banks; Ministers and Directorships

Bancroft, Mr. L. P. (Selkirk)
Icelandic river improvements, 2004
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3463
Pensions for lightkeepers, 1496
Selkirk wharf, 2004

Banff, Windermere road, 1051, 1682

Banking and Commerce, Committee on
Bouchard, Mr., substituted for Mr. Stein, 2035
Insurance Act, 1917, Amdt. bill, ref. to, 1210
Loan Companies Act Amdt. bill, ref to, 1210
Trust Companies Act Amdt. bill, ref. to, 1210

Bankruptcy Act, qu., 703

Bankruptcy Act Amdt. bills
1. Bill No. 45 (Mr. Jacobs — additional grounds for petition in bankruptcy) 1r., 821; ref. to Com. on Banking and Commerce, 1395
2. Bill No. 56 (Mr. Ethier — court to which petition shall be presented) 1r., 1132; 2r., ref. to Banking and Commerce Com., 1662
3. Bill No. 107 (Sir Lomer Gouin) 1r., 2035; 2r., com., 3025; 3r., 3026
Sections and Subjects discussed:
Avoidance of general assignment of book debts, 3025
Court of bankruptcy, 3026
Judges to be assigned by chief Justice, 3026
Senate amendments, concurrence in, 3611
Suspension of payment, notice of, 3025
Winding up Act, 3026

Banks and Banking. See also Finance; Loans; Taxation
American Bankers' Association, 2189
Bank Act, revision. See Address; Budget
Bank balances and real wealth, 2497
Chartered banks, returns, 865
Cheque tax, 2117, 2177, 2329, 2852, 2856, 3258
Circulation, deposits, loans, etc., qu. 1901
Circulation, tax on, 2117, 2626
Commerce, 1085-7
Credit system, 1290. See also Financial Credits
Credits, 1071, 2729. See also Loans
Currency, issue of, 2501
Deposits, ratio to capital, 2728
Gold in Canadian banks, qu. 2971
Grain trade, financing of, 2246

Banks and Banking — Con.
Income tax payments by, qu. 1400
Interest, 1291, 3601
Alleged violation of Bank Act, 2627
Interlocking directorates, 2503
Loans to directors, 1093
Merchants', 1085, 1092, 1121, 3604
Allan, Sir Montagu, 872
Amalgamation, 2727
Ballantyne, Hon. C. C., 1085
Independent inquiry by Parliament, 2396
Macarow, Mr. D. C., case against, qu. 2305
Merger, 158, 237, qu. 367, 872, 1085, 2727
Montreal Bank and, 1085
Royal Trust Company, and, 1085
Montreal Bank, 1071-85, 1129
Canadian Pacific, and, 64-66
Unemployed and, 87
Montreal City & District Savings Bank, 1087
Municipalities, withholding credit from, 2627
Nationalization of, 2325-8
New banks, starting, 2501
Number, reserves, deposits, loans, property, qu. 1182
Penny Bank Act Amdt. bill. See that title
Penny Banks, depositories for money received, 1132
Profits, circulation, interest, etc., qu. 3598
Refusal to advance money to school board, 2627
Royal Bank, 1087
Special War Revenue taxation. See that title
Note circulation, payments on, qu., 1400
System, revision of, 138, 158, 223, 237, 352, 2501, 2506. See also Budget; Irvine

Barclay, Mr. A. J., qu., 963-4

Barkhouse, Captain, 1748

Barnet, Major. See Soldier Settlement Board

Barnjum, Mr. Frank J., Forest Protection, 1049

Battlefields Commission, 119, 771. See also War Graves

Battlefields Memorials. See also War Memorials
Estimates, 2098, 2975

Baxter, Mr. Charles W., Appointment of successor, qu., 2457

Baxter, Hon. J. B. M. (St. John City and Counties of St. John and Albert)
Address in reply, 98. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker, 98; Conservative party, campaign literature, 99; natural resources of western provinces, 100; maritime provinces, 101; tariff and reciprocity, 102; railway situation; Canadian ports, 104; economy in expenditure; industrial depression, 105
Audibility of debates, 708
British Preference and Canadian seaports, M. (Mr. Logan) 493, 712
Budget, 2340. Congratulations to Finance Minister; tariff; per capita taxation; expenditure, 2341; Progressives and Government; duties on coal, boots and shoes; platform of 1919; failure of Government to implement pledges, 2343; reciprocity with United States; morganatic alliance, 2344; platform of Canadian Council of Agriculture; the amendment, 2345; Wheat Board; Crowsnest pass agreement; redistribution; taxation of luxuries; automobile tax, 2346; tariff proposals as they affect farmer and labourer; trade with Germany, 2347
Canada Shipping Act Amdt. bill, 2820
Canada Temperance Act Amdt bill, 3007
Date of coming into force, 3008
Canadian National railways
Government ownership and operation, 1965
Immigration, and, 2165
Intercolonial, 1967
Menus, cost of printing, qu., 1931
Carleton, N.B., returning officer, 3538, 3603, 3606
Civil Service — Mr. Martell, 3101
Criminal Code Amdt. bills
Fines, payment to municipalities, 2832
Half-breed scrip, 3217, 3221
Pool-selling and book-making, point of order, 2973
Customs tariff operation, 769
Dauphinee, Mr. Charles, Lunenburg, qu., 1902, 2458, 2584
Daylight Saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 956
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2810
Dominion Lands, Cancellation of Leases bill, 3468-74
Dredging, maritimes provinces, 2006
Enfranchisement of foreign-born wives, M. (Mr. Euler) 492
Escheats Act Amdt. bill, 2826

Baxter, Hon. J. B. M. — Con.
Fisheries
Deputy Minister of, 2166
Markets, 2166
Fisheries Act Amdt. bill, 2817
Freight Rates
Special Com. on third report, 3577
Sub-amdt., 3586
Harbours and Rivers, New Brunswick, 1991
St. John harbour improvements, 2013
Hudson bay railway, 1970
Hudson, Government cutter, qu., 3598
Immigration, maritime provinces and, 2165
Interior Dept., salaries, 454
Judges' Act Amdt. bill, 426, 546
Labour Dept., 494, 495
Mildred McColl, patrol boat, qu., 3598
Military expenditure and policy, 1149, 2094
Militia and Defence
Arsenal, Quebec, 2094
Expenditure and policy, 1149, 2094
Ministers and Directorships, M. (Mr. McMaster) 1117
Monopolies and excess profits, 3276
Monuments, historic sites, qu., 469
National Defence bill, 2809
Negro Point breakwater, 2013
Opium and Narcotic Drugs Act Amdt.
Appeal, restriction of right, 3021
Deportation, 3024
Parliament buildings, architects' fees, 2016
Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill, 789
Pensions Act Amdt. bill, 3441
Railway policy, 1965
Rideau Hall, coal supply, 1757
Royal Canadian Mounted Police
M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 840
St. John, in, 736
St. John terminal facilities, 848-9
St. John Valley railway, 3039
Savoy, J. Clovis, qu., 3363
Soldier Settlement Act Amdt. bill, 3408
Special War Revenue Act Amdt. — Insurance, 3253
Spruce bud worm, 815
Wharves in New Brunswick, transfer of, qu., 2305

Beatty, Mr. E. W., President of C.P.R., 126, 127, 1128
Labour costs, 2317

Beaubien, Mr. A. L. (Provencher)
Address in reply, 280; congratulations to mover and seconder, aims of Progressive party, 280
Boy Scouts, 773

Beaubien, Mr. A. L. — Con.
Canadian National railways — wrecks caused by defective cars from United States, 1708
Immigration — Ukrainians, 3061

Beck, Sir Adam, 63, 71, 92, 123, 124, 134, 633, 1327, 1937. See also Hydro Electric; Maclean, Mr., (York); St. Lawrence Waterway

Beef, Imports of, qu., 610

Beer. See Liquor; Taxation

Beet Sugar. See Budget; Inland Revenue Act Amdt.; Special War Revenue

Behring Sea Patrol, 1736. See also Naval Service

Béland, Hon. H. S. (Minister of Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment and Minister in charge of the Department of Health)
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3479-84
Canadian Red Cross Society bill, 3151, 3386
Canteen funds, disposal, 3329, 3308
Cash grants to soldiers, 394
M. (Mr. Arthurs) 441
Chaudière Valley floods, 3492
Conservation Commission, 456-7
Election promises, 402
Health, department of
Correspondence with wholesale druggists, 1289, 1377
Estimates, 2017
Immigration, medical inspection, 2021
Quarantine, 2021
Salaries, 775
Venereal diseases, 2022
Insurance claim of heirs of deceased soldiers, 1349. See also under this title Returned Soldiers Iusurance
Opium and Narcotic Drugs
Correspondence with wholesale druggists, M. (Mr. Archambault) 1289, 1377
Enforcement of Act, 2017
Prohibition and, 2018
Opium and Narcotic Drugs Act Amdt. bill, 775, 1841, 2823, 3013
Appeal, 3020
Deportation, 3024
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3402, 3439-64
Pension Commissioners, Board of, 1339, 1349-50, 3336
Appeals, 3341
Charges against, 3041

Béland, Hon. H. S. — Con.
Pension Commissioners. — Con.
Discretion, 392
Memorandum of Chairman, 2994
Representation of Quebec, 1350
Pensions
Commutation, 392
European War and active militia, 1353, 1361
Expenditure under report of Special Com., 3523
Widowed mothers, M. (Mr. Power) 1307
Pensions, Insurance, etc., Special Com.
Appointed, 496
Final report, 3355
Shaw, Mr., 3326
Returned Soldiers, alleged ill-treatment of children of, 2639
Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act Amdt. bill, 3319, 3358, 3388, 3398, 3437
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment dept.
Amalgamation or abolition of, 1341
Employers' Liability compensation, 1348
Estimates, 1279, 1339
Hospitals, 1348
Nurses' salaries, 1342
Operating expenses and working capital, 1347
Patients, care and medical examination of, 1280
Pensions, 1349, 1353, 1361. See also under this title, Pensions
Royal Commission on Pensions, 388. See also under this title, Pension Commissioners
Staff, 405, 1343
Reduction of, 3602
Salary increases, 385, 388, 401, 405, 551
Waddington, Mr., 385, 398
Unemployment relief, 1352, 3528
Vocational loans, 1346
Vocational training, 1281
War service gratuity, interest on, 1347
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment Dept. bill, 3597, 3609
Soldiers' homes, establishment of, 1348
Unemployment relief, 1352, 3528

Belgium, free trade and, 2525

Bell Telephone Company, rates increase, 132

Belley, Mr. Alfred, salary, 3504

Belley, Hon. Mr., and conscription. See Military Service Act Amdt.

Benefit Societies. See Insurance Act Amdt. bill

Bertrand, Mr. T., qu., 937

Betting. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Beverages, Tax on, 2594, 2857. See also Budget; Taxation

Bienfait, Briquetting plant at, qu. 6$4, 1233, qu. 1632, 2712-15
Expenditure and results, 2712-15

Big Bay Point, Lake Simcoe, removal of sunken vessel, 2005

Big Bras d'Or wharf, 1765

Big Interests and Liberal party, 242, 2431, 2678, 2682. See also speeches on Budget

Biggar, Colonel O. M.
Resignation from Air Board, 1726. See also Chief Electoral Officer

Biggar, Mr., W. H., K.C., qu. 728

Biggs, Hon. F. C., 63

Bills. See Deputy Speaker; House of Commons; Speaker
For Public Bills See their individual titles;
For private Bills, See Private Bills Discussed

Binder Twine, 257, 265, 2405 2575
Brantford factory, 2375. See also Budget

Binders. See Agricultural Implements

Binette, Mr. Joseph (Prescott)
Campaign funds, qu. 1508
L'Orignal wharf, qu. 1212
Quebec riots, compensation for damage, qu. 1508
St. Lawrence river waterway, communication with Imperial Govt., qu. 1508

Biological Board. See Marine

Bird, Mr. T. W. (Nelson)
Budget, 2704. Political expediency; difficult to modify protective system, 2704; divergence of views of Mr. McMaster and Mr. Raymond; historic Liberalism represented by Progressive party, 2705; revival of Liberal spirit; attitude of Opposition towards Progressives; alleged inaccuracies, 2706; statement as to direct and indirect taxation; tariff a secondary revenue producer; sales tax; free trade and revenue, 2707; inheritance tax; protection and farmers, 2708; labouring man; competition under free trade;

Bird, Mr. T. W. — Con.
Budget — Con.
Canadian wheat in England; workingman and protection, 2709; small industries and trusts, 2710; Wheat Board; protection and flagwaving; obstacles to united nationhood, 2711
Civil Service salaries, 554
Hudson Bay railway, completion, 2786
Nova Scotia miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 526
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 838

Birnie, Mr. Alexander, and others, petition of, 1929

Black, Mr. George (Yukon)
Alien enemy property, qu. 1904
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 3004
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3483
Civil Service list, qu. 727
House of Commons
Law Branch, qu. 2304
Senate, and,
Chief Accountants, qu. 2583, 2803
Expenditure, qu. 2583
McPherson, Mr. Duncan, superannuation, qu. 2805
Migratory Birds, 1686
Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion, 1520
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3464
Pensions Committee, final report, 3334
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 838
Senate and House of Commons
Chief Accountants' salaries, ques. 2583, 2803
Yukon Territory
Administration of justice, 1275
Suggested union with British Columbia, 1275
Mining and mineral discoveries, 1276
Parcel post, 2802
Radio-telegraph service, 1749
Silver discovery, 1276

Black, Mr. William (South Huron)
Budget, 2448. Disappointment at proposals of Finance Minister; the tariff; jokers in budget; protection with an excise tax; boots and shoes; building materials and agricultural implements; exorbitant prices charged; manufacturers' rebate on raw materials; loss of population, 2449; immigration; railway situation; national railways; change of management necessary; merchant marine; civil service; mem-

Black, Mr. William — Con.
Budget — Con.
bers taking up too much time with speeches; trade relations with United States; export of cattle, 2450; immigration, 2450
Goderich harbour improvements, 2000
Harbours and rivers, Ontario, 2000

Black, Mr. W. J., Deputy Minister of Immigration
Appointment of, 3500. See also Immigration

Blackfoot Reserve. See Indians

Blake, Late Hon. Edward
Letter to West Durham electors, 2677
Malvern speech, 2655, 2677
Withdrawal from leadership of Liberal party, 2655, 2657, 2677

Bland, Mr. C. H., Civil Service Commission, qu. 1773

Blankets. See Customs Tariff

Blind
Canadian National Institute for, grant, 3540
Soldiers. See Pensions Committee

Blood Indian Reserve. See Indians

Board of Commerce, 1118
Constitutionality of. See Wheat Board
Cost, report, qu. 2583
Salary of secretary, 1715

Board of Pension Commissioners. See Pension Commissioners

Board of Railway Commissioners. See Railway Commission

Boivin, Mr. George H. (Shefford)
Business of the House
Questions requiring tabulated answers, 1132
Canadian National railways
Board of management, 1698
Rail and car repair contracts, 1698
St. Malo shops, 1699
Cheque tax, 3261
Criminal Code, revision, 1717
Debates Committee, first report concurred in, 1258
Debates, Official, Unrevised Index, 3359
Health of Animals
Hog cholera, 1007
Inspection of dairy herds, 1007
Rail and car repair contracts, 1698
Unemployment, rail and car repair contracts, 1699

Bolshevism, 1290. See also Labour; Nova Scotia Miners

Bona fide Contractors. See Wheat Board bill

Bonds. See also Finance; Loans
Five year maturities, qu. 2993
Non-taxable Victory bonds, qu. 2971
Sale by public tender, 1468
Tax-exempt, 2567, 2725

Bonus. See Civil Service; Soldiers

Bookmaking. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Bootlegging. See Liquor

Boots and Shoes, 3238. See also speeches on Address; Budget; Customs
Felt shoe industry, 3239
Price and labour costs, 2350
Protection of industry, 207-208
Tariff on, 102-103, 152-3, 159, 2341-2, 2465, 2488-9, 2632, 2685, 3236, 3237
M. (Mr. Shaw) to reduce duty, neg. 3238

Borden, Camp
Air force and civil aviation, 1728

Borden, Right Hon. Sir Robert
Appointment to Limitation of Armaments Conference
M. (Mr. Casgrain) for papers, 373
Imperial Conference of 1918, 1864
Naval defence, on, 1864, 1876
Quebec Harbour, 1475
Report on reduction of naval armaments, 9, 42, 1737, 1743
Withdrawal from directorships, 1089

Bouchard, Mr. George J. (Kamouraska)
Introduction, 1929

Boucher, Mr. Aimé (Yamaska)
Naval policy, 2078
Sorel shipyard, men employed May 1921, qu. 1062

Bounties
Linen yarn, 3128
Steel, 304-5, qu. 3360
Sugar beet industry. See Inland Revenue

Bourassa, Mr. J. B. (Levis)
Levis lightkeepers, qu. 2583

Bovine Tuberculosis. See Animal Contagious Diseases

Bowen, Mr. Fred W. (Durham)
Campbell, Mr. W. E., qu. 937

Boy Scouts Association, 772

Boys, Mr. W. A. (South Simcoe)
Big Bay point, Lake Simcoe, wreck, 2005
Business of the House
Budget debate, conclusion of, 2639
Paired members inadvertently voting, 1462
Canada Gazette, expenditure Public Works, 1268
Coal, importation for public buildings, 1763
Dredging, 2005
External Affairs, salaries, 412
Harbours and rivers, Ontario, 2002
Militia-Naval Service, officers, 421
National Defence bill, Air Force, 677
Naval Service
Militia, and, deputy ministers, 421
Niobe, sale of, 2068
Patronage — rural postmasters, 3083
Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill, 790
Pensions Board, appeal, 390
Pensions, disability cases, 389
Public Buildings
Coal importations for, 1763
Ottawa
Elevator attendants, 1267
Expenditure on, 1268
Public works
Appropriations and expenditures, 2002
Estimates, 695, 698
M. to reduce, 695
Expenditure, monthly statement of, 1268, 1271
Riley's army, qu. 3364
Soldiers' land settlement, 2132

Brantford
Agricultural implement industries, 255, 2375. See also Budget; Raymond
Meighen, Hon. Mr., speech at, 256

Breadner, Mr. R. W., Commissioner of taxation, salary, 2024

Brethen, Mr. G. A. (East Peterborough)
Accredited herds, 1000
Agriculture — Deputy Minister, 653
Automobile tax, 3276-7
Budget, 2693. United Grain Growers and agricultural implement business; income tax — who pays? 2693; economy; reduction in cost of government; national debt; domestic loans; reciprocity, 2694; sales tax; excess profits, 2695; luxury tax; unimproved land values; automobile tax; protective tariff and automobile industry, 2696; Ford car; protection of agricultural implements, 2697; home market; prices

Brethen, Mr. G. A. — Con.
Budget — Con.
fixed in markets of world; ability of agriculture and live stock industries to meet world competition, 2698
Customs Dept., estimates, 763
Grants to live stock associations, 1027
Live stock trade with South America, 647
Manufacturers, protection of, 2696, 3232
Oleomargarine, 3430
Woollen clothing and blankets, 3135

Brewing. See Inland Revenue

Bridges. See also Public Works
Burlington Channel, 2007
Edmonton, 2007
Edmundston, 1239-53
False Creek, 3516
Grand river, York, Ont., qu. 1287
Isle Perrot, federal contribution, qu. 1377
Ottawa, lighting, 1267
Quebec, 1068
Red Deer river, 1964
Victoria, tolls, qu. 1377

Bridgetown, post office accommodation, 1245

Briquetting. See Bienfait; Lignite

Bristol, Hon. Edmund (Centre Toronto)
Budget, 2407. Congratulation to Finance Minister; nothing for trade or agriculture, a "stand pat" budget; protection against competitors; wages and production costs in Germany, 2407; German exports to Canada, 2408; protection of industries in Great Britain; Safeguarding of Industries Act; United States tariff, 2409; protection against German competition; equalization of conditions; duty valuation based on Canadian selling price; safeguarding of French industries, 2410; Australian Industries Preservation Act; Tom Moore on German labour conditions; protection of Canadian industries, 2411; industrial development and tariff legislation in United States; iron and steel, comparison of English and American prices; steel rails; Germany underselling United States; nails; protection of Nova Scotia coal and steel industry, 2412; tariff revision long overdue, 2413; western farmer and tariff and freight rates; United States farmer opposed to free trade; tariff against Canadian agricultural products; protection against United States commodities;

Bristol, Hon. Edmund — Con.
Budget — Con.
free trade; agricultural implements, importation from United States; effect of tariff reduction on implement factories; American factories in Canada; trusts and combines; woolens, 2415; free trade means destruction of Canadian industries and home markets; harmony between eastern and western Canada, 2416; deflation; building costs, coal; railway wages and freights; the amendment, 2417
Canadian ships damaged during war, 1183
Welland canal, 2748
Co-operation with the United States, 2751
Grain transportation, 2750

British Admiralty, war claims, 1752

British Board of Trade, relief of distressed seamen, 1676

British-Born
Disabilities under Immigration and Naturalization Acts, 1389-91

British Columbia
Aerial patrol of forests, 1724, 1730
Asiatics in. See under this title, Oriental Aliens
Banff-Windermere road, 1051, 1682
Burrard Dry Dock Company, 2008
Canada Temperance Act, 1017
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 2733, 2997. See also that title
Canadian National branch lines, 331
Coal mines in, 178
Coastal services, qu. 3152
Dairymen's Association, 1794
D'Arcy Island, lazaretto, 2021
Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway Company bill, 1156-63, 1353
United Farmers, and, 1354
Fisheries. See also Quebec Fisheries
Cost and revenue, 2306
Gasoline for fishing boats, 2313, 3116
M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 851, 863
Transfer to, 2042
Freight rates. See Crowsnest Pass Agreement
Fruit industry, 162, 225, 3417-3424
Tariff and. See Budget; Customs
Fuel Oil, 178, 344, qu. 728
Competition with coal, 2312
Liquor traffic, 2018. See also under this title, Canada Temperance Act

British Columbia — Con.
Natural resources, 328. See also Natural Resources
Old age and mothers' pensions, 1375
Oliver, Hon. John, 322
Criticism by Vancouver Sun, 2236-7
Opium and Narcotic Drugs, 2017. See also that title
Oriental Aliens. See also that title
Competition with, 171, 173, 183, 316-19, 332, 344
Immigration, 167, 872, 967, 2310, 3104
Res. by Legislature, 1511, 1513
M. (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion, 1509
Population, 1512
Voting, 172
Post offices, revenue from, qu. 824
Potlach Indian Institution, qu. 1377. See also Indians
Public buildings, improvements, etc., 1255
Railway Belt
Forestry, 1046
Survey, 1043
Railway mail service, 2797
Union for judicial purposes with Yukon, 1275

British Columbia House, London, purchase of, 3537

British Empire Steel Corporation, 200, 1106, 1130. See also Nova Scotia Miners
Business profits tax, qu. 1067
Compensation for loss, 1082

British Goods, Importation. See British Preference; Customs; Trade

British-Japanese Treaty See Limitation of Armaments

British Market. See British Preference; Cattle Embargo; Trade

British Ministry of Shipping
Account, 2975
Hospital ship, claim for loss of, 2976

British North America Act, powers under See Quebec Fisheries

British Preference, 2111, 2201, 2529, 2624-5. See also Budget; Customs; Trade
Canadian Seaports, and, 2688
M. (Mr. Logan) 493, 707
Amdt. (Mr. Lewis) 772; withdrawn, 726
Further reduction of duties, 2113
Goods imported via United States, qu. 375
Sugar, 2116

British Shipping Board, credit, 2975

British Subjects, Wives of alien birth. See Dominion Elections Act

British Valuation. See Customs, Valuation

Brockville and Westport Railway. qu. 704

Brown, Hon. George, on political pledges, 2482

Brown, Mr. J. L. (Lisgar)
Address in reply, 332; reciprocity, live stock industry, 333; cattle embargo, 334
Animal Contagious Diseases Act Amdt. 2735
Automobiles, refund of taxes, 3600
British Preference and Canadian seaports, M. (Mr. Logan) 721
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3484
Canals, traffic through, qu. 705
Canned foods, marking, 3050
Civil Service, economy in, 423
Criminal Code, cruelty to animals, 2833
Experimental farms, 808
Fishing schooner race, 3512
Inaudibility of debates, 1751
Labour Dept. — economy, 568
Militia and Defence
Estimates, 587
Quebec arsenal, 2095
Naval policy, 2069
O'Connor, Mr. James, dismissal of, 1674
Oleomargarine, manufacture and importation, M. (Mr. Neill) 1803
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. bill, 3018
Pensions Committee — final report, 3342
Political alliances, 2095
Prince Rupert Dry Dock Co., claim, 3516
Public Works estimates, 696
Rideau canal, 2765, 2767
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 840
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1207
St. Peter's Indian reserve, qu. 472
Soldier land settlement, 2134
Soldiers' bonus, M. (Mr. Arthurs) 449
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, staff, 1345
Statistics, accumulation of, 580
Wheat Board bill, 3180
Wheat Board — point of order, 2949
Woollen goods, duty on, 3232

Brussels Financial Conference, 1138, 1292

Bryce, Dr. Peter, H., pamphlet, 1224

Bud Moth. See Forestry

Budget. See also Ways and Means
Date of
Announcement, 1721
Inquiry, 1018, 1463, 1503
Debate, on, 2104, 2171, 2216, 2256, 2307, 2358, 2407, 2459, 2519, 2523, 2585, 2640, 2692, 2842, 2859
Amendments
Crerar, Mr., 2473-4; Speaker's ruling 2520-23
Drayton, Sir Henry, 2179, neg. 2912
Divisions
Amdt. (Sir Henry Drayton) neg. 2912
Corrected division list, 2972
Motion (Mr. Fielding) for Ways and Means Com., 2104; agreed to, 2913
Ruling of Mr. Speaker on Amdt. to Amdt. (Mr. Crerar) 2520-23
Probable time for conclusion of, 2639
Speeches of Finance Minister, 2104, 2842
Speakers, Messrs: Anderson, 2364, Baldwin, 2250; Baxter, 2340; Bird, 2704; Black (Huron) 2448; Brethen, 2693; Bristol, 2407; Caldwell, 2660; Campbell, 2729; Cannon, 2909; Chaplin, 2616; Charters, 2561; Church, 2392; Coote, 2724; Crerar, 2459; 2522; Denis (Joliette) 2887; Drayton, 2127; Drummond, 2272; Elliott (Waterloo) 2348; Fansher, 2229; Fielding, 2104, 2842; Findlay, 2893; Fortier, 2274; Gardiner, 2624; Garland (Carleton) 2300; Good, 2429; Gouin, 2654; Gould, 2711; Guthrie, 2874; Hocken, 2675; Hoey, 2331; Hughes, 2225; Irvine, 2495; Jacobs, 2513; Johnston (Last Mountain) 2220; Kellner, 2280; King (Huron) 2301; King (Mackenzie) 2537; Kyte, 2358; Ladner, 2276; Laflamme, 2895; Lanctôt, 2567; Lapierre, 2628; Lapointe, 2585; Lavigueur, 2398; Leader, 2510; Lewis, 2256; Logan, 2684; Lovett, 2270; Lovie, 2451; Low, 2445; MacKelvie, 2196; Maclean (Halifax) 2859; Maclean (York) 2321; Macphail, Miss, 2384; McBride, 2635; McConica, 2898; McCrea, 2314; McKenzie, 2604; McMaster, 2417; McMurray, 2474; McQuarrie, 2233; McTaggart, 2545; Malcolm, 2387; Manion, 2261; Marcil, 2905; Meighen, 2523; Millar, 2294; Milne, 2239; Morrison, 2699; Motherwell, 2548; Neill, 2307; Prevost, 2577; Putnam, 2282; Raymond, 2373; Robb, 2179; Sales, 2574; Speakman, 2881; Spencer, 2629; Stansell, 2290; Steedsman, 2721; Stevens, 2646; Stewart (Argenteuil) 2216; Stewart

Budget — Con.
Debate on — Con.
(Humboldt) 2597; Sutherland, 2481; Tolmie, 2591; Turgeon, 2188; Ward, 2400; Warner, 2204; White, 2352; Woods, 2183; Woodsworth, 2242
To continue from day to day, 2101
Resolutions, 2218
Amended, 2854

Building
Costs, 2416. See also Housing
Trades
Conference, 582-3
Freight rates affecting, 133

Buildings. See Public Buildings

Bukowinians. See Immigration

Bull Durham Tobacco, comparative prices, 2546

Bureau, Hon. Jacques (Minister of Customs and Excise)
Agriculture Committee Report, Wheat Board, 726
Civil Servants, appeal, 3079
Customs dept.
Drawbacks, 766
Estimates, 762, 1674
Officials, 764
Valuation of imports, 3413
Dominion Elections Act Amdt., 2810
Empire and Ascension days, 1769
Estimates, accounts chargeable to current and past year, 1675
Export liquor warehouses, 768
Fishing schooner race, 3511
Military Service Act Amdt. bill, 641
National Defence Bill, Senate amdts., 2807
O'Connor, Mr. James, dismissal, 1674
Parliament, fall session, 3609
Public ownership, 1331
Quebec Harbour — Park St. Charles, 1470
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1332
Total trade, statement of, 1376

Bureau of Standards, 235, 1372

Bureau of Statistics. See Statistics

Burlington Channel, Bridge, 2007

Burrard Dry Dock Company, 2008

Burstall, Major General Sir Henry, retirement, 742-3, 1145, qu. 1211. See also National Defence Bill

Business Profits War Tax. See Taxation

Butter. See Agriculture; Dairying Industry; Oleomargarine

By-Elections. See House of Commons

Bylot Island, Mounted Police, 3497

Byng, Lord, Governor General. See References in Address

Cabinet. See Ministers and Directorships
Personnel of, 241

Cables, Submarine, ques. 3151-2, 3360

Cadets. See Militia and Defence

Cahill, Mr. Frank S. (Pontiac)
Canadian Pacific railway bill, 1860
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1449
Montreal, Joliette and Transcontinental railway, 1577
Royal Canadian Navy, 1893
St. Lawrence river waterway, M. (Mr. Church) 1208
Vancouver and Fraser Valley railway, 798

Calder Act. See Civil Service; Public Service Retirement Act

Calder, Hon. Senator J. A., 1393

Calder, Senator, United States
St. Lawrence river waterway 1206

Caldwell, Mr. Thomas W. (Victoria and Carleton, N.B.)
Abbatoir and cold storage plants in maritime provinces, 992
Agriculture
Cold storage facilities, 992-3
Department — salaries, 750
Exhibitions, 993
Fertilizer inspectors, 592
Lecturers, 1023
Saunders, Dr., resignation of, 591
Spruce bud moth, 595, 2668
Air Board Act Amdt. bill, 2821
Animal Contagious Diseases Act Amdt. bill, 2734-8
Blankets, duty on, 3131
British Columbia fisheries, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 856
Budget, 2660. Congratulations to Finance Minister; Minister of Justice applauded by Opposition; fallacy of the home market argument; wheat and potatoes; reciprocity with United States; Mr. Chaplin; taxation; inconsistency of Caldwell, Mr. Thomas W. — Con.

Budget — Con.
Prime Minister; sales tax burdensome to people least able to bear it, 2661; duty on clothing and silk goods; failure of budget to carry out Prime Minister's ideas; drawbacks and untaxed exports, 2262; a protectionist budget; tools of production; agricultural implements, prices in Canada and United States; fertilizers and the tariff, 2663; Maine and New Brunswick prices, 2664; cost of growing potatoes; reductions of duty on farm machinery; prospect of Liberals implementing tariff planks, 2665; Finance Minister's disavowal of tariff planks of Liberal platform, 2666; free trade; export duty on pulpwood and round logs; Canadian resources used to develop American industries, 2667; spruce bud moth; import and export duties, payment of, 2668; amendment; tariff revision; recent additions to Conservative party, 2669
Business of the House — concurrence, 1842
Canada Shipping Act Amdt. (Pilotage) 2820
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 2733
Canadian National railways
Directors, 2791
Public ownership, 1939
Carleton, N.B., returning officer, 3539, 3602, 3604
Privilege, question of, 3602
Civil Service Commission, salaries, 3509
Commissioner of Taxation, salary, 2024
Cotton fabrics, 3127
Damage by floods in New Brunswick, 3492
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2813
New polls to be established, two months prior to election day, amdt., 2815
Dominion Iron and Steel Company, qu. 704
Edmundston public building, 1240
Farm machinery, cost of, 769
Fertilizer Act Amdt., 775, 3041, 3194
Fertilizers
Duty on, 3140-3141
Inspectors, 592
Tariff and, 2664
Transportation rates on, 1022
Fisheries
Fish culture, 2169
Fishways in salmon rivers, 2167
Pollution of streams, 2168
Fisheries Act, 1914, Amdt. bill, 2818
Fishing Schooner race, 3510

Caldwell, Mr. Thomas W. — Con.
Forests
Destruction by spruce moth, 1049, 2668
Protection by fire towers, 1048
Gasoline tractors, 2123
Grading machines, 3126
Harness, duty on, 3137
Home brewing, 3141
Hudson Bay railway, completion of, 2791
Indians
Devon Band, proposed removal, 1216
Expenditure, 1225
Tobique reserve, illegal cutting of timber, 1233
Insurance returns, 3254
Manufacturers — free traders, 3140
Militia and defence — annual drill, concurrence, 1842
Municipal taxation, payment by Government, 1257
National Defence bill, 745
Naval Service, sale of Niobe, 2065
Penitentiary Act Amdt. 789
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3445-56
Pension Board, staff, 1351
Pensions
Committee on, report, 2996, 3310-24
Commutation of, 1281
Disabilities, 390
Widowed mothers, 1312, 3324
Potatoes, 2661, 2666
Inspection and sale of, 2744. See also under this title Root Vegetables
Shipment to Cuba, 2028
Privilege, Carleton, N.B., returning officer, 3602
Purchasing Commission, 2025
Quebec Harbour Commission — Parc St. Charles, 1469, 3197
Root Vegetables, inspection and sale, 2744, 3486
Potato grades, 3370
St. John and Quebec railway, 1293-6
St. John, N.B., terminal facilities, M. 639, 844, 850
Saw-mill machinery, 3127
Senate indemnity, 3509
Silk fabrics, duty, 2662, 3137
Soldiers
Disabilities of, 392
Insurance, 3321
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment
Hospitals, 1342-8
Patients, care and medical examination of, 1280
Salaries, 1342
Vocational loans, 1346
Vocational training, 1281

Caldwell, Mr. Thomas W. — Con.
Soldier land settlement, 2133, 3408
Land purchase, irregularities charged, 2142
Payment of municipal taxation by Govt., 1257
Taxes, collection of, 2134
Steamship service, St. John and Cuba, 2028
Steel plates, delivery of, 3508
Sydney pilotage district, 3508
Widowed mothers, pensions, 1312, 3324
Woollen goods, duty on, 3129

Calgary
Buildings, rental of, 1254
Free freight outlay, qu. 704
Live stock branch, qu. 607
Milk inquiry, cost of, qu. 823
Post office building, 1254
Trades and Labour Council, unemployment, 1082

Calydor, sanitarium, 1279

Cameras, prices in Canada and United States, 2547, 2624

Cameron, Mr. Alex., qu. 606

Campaign Funds and Literature. See Elections

Campbell, Mr. J. A., claim for flax shipment, 2834

Campbell, Mr. Milton N. (Mackenzie)
Address in reply, 356. Financial position of western farmer, 356; railway and freight problems, 357; maritime provinces and Confederation; financial condition of country, 358
Automobiles, protection of industry, 2730
Blankets, duty on, 3132
Budget, 2729. Liberal pledges and promises; platform of 1919, 2729; statements of Prime Minister at Yorkton, Sask.; the budget a repudiation; the tariff, automobile industry, 2730; Sir John Macdonald's view of protection; guiding principle of national policy; Mr. Meighen and agricultural implement duties, 2731; tractors and farm machinery: cotton and woollen clothing; protection and the farmer; protected interests and campaign funds; betrayal of the people, 2732
Cadet services, expenditure, 1137
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy — Essex) for Special Com. 1426
Dominion lands, surveys, 1037
Experimental farm, Canora, 805

Campbell, Mr. Milton N. — Con.
Housing credits, 3524
Immigration
Highland family, alleged unjust treatment, 2145
Holland, from, 2145
Medical inspection, 759
Indians
Bryce, Dr. Peter H., pamphlet, 1224
Saskatchewan reserves, qu. 608
Linen yarn from Canadian flax, bounty, 1361
Naturalization expenses, 1671
Public Works Dept.
Filing clerks, 693
Officials, 692
Saskatchewan Indian reserves, qu. 608

Campbell, Mr. W. E., qu., 397

Camp Borden, Air Force and Civil aviation, 1728

Camps, Militia. See Militia and Defence, Annual Drill

Canada Status of, 1337, 2324. See also Speeches on Address; Budget; Limitation of Armaments; Naval Service

Canada-Australia-New Zealand steamship service, 3034

Canada Car and Foundry Company, 1696
Car repair contracts, 1696
Amherst shops, 1702
Port Arthur, 1696

Canada Cement Company, 200, 2297, 2300

Canada Gazette
Expenditure, Public Works Dept., 1268

Canada Grain Act. See also Grain and Grain Trade
Administration of, 2834
Constitutionality of, 2837
King v. Manitoba Grain Company, decision, 1132, 1841, 1932
Inquiry (Mr. Meighen) 1770

Canada-Mexico trade, qu. 606, 699, 700, 2989

Canada-Newfoundland Steamship service, 2027

Canada Shipping Act Amdt. Bills
1. (Exemption from Pilotage Dues) — Res. 1335, 1487; 1r., 1489; 2r., com., 2819; 3r., 2820; Senate amdts. 3437
2. (Appointment of Harbour Masters) — Res. 1578, 3009; 1r., 2r., com., 3r., 3010

Canada Steamship Company
Life-saving equipment, qu. 1284

Canada Temperance Act
Expenses under, 3499
Plebiscite, 2024

Canada Temperance Act Amdt. Bills
1. (Provincial legislation) 1r., 1017; withdrawn, 2733
2. (Provincial government control of liquor importation) 1r., 2733; 2r., com., 2997; 3r., 3009
Senate amendments
Concurrence, 3614
Non-concurrence in, 3608
Conference, 3613
Subjects and items discussed:
Amdt. (Mr. Jacobs) 3000, neg. 3006
Carriage or transportation, Amdt. (Mr. Mitchell) 3008
Date of coming into effect, Amdt. (Mr. Shaw 3007; withdrawn, 3008

Canada-West Indies-British Guiana service, qu. 2356

Canada-West Indies, South America service, 2027, 3026

Canada's Contribution. See League of Nations; Naval Service

Canadian Air Board. See Air Board

Canadian Council of Agriculture. See also Progressive Party; Wheat Board
Agricultural figures, 2649
Fiscal policy and proposals, 2508-9
Memorandum on Wheat Board referred to Agriculture Com., 377. See Agriculture and Colonisation Com.
Platform, 2345
Tariff criticisms and proposals, 2509, 2552. See also speeches on Budget

Canadian Deep Waterway and Power Association, 1320. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway

Canadian Expeditionary Force. See also Pensions; Soldiers Civil Re-establishment Canteen Funds. See that title
First contingent, qu. 1376
Medical inspection, 3317. See also Pensions
Repatriation of dependents, 1711
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, and, qu. 2038

Canadian Ford Company. See Automobiles

Canadian Forestry Association. See Forestry

Canadian Freighter. For names of Canadian Government Merchant Marine vessels. See Vessels

Canadian Government Merchant Marine, 882, 2888. See also Canadian National Railways; Naval Service; Shipbuilding; Steamship Services
Canada-Newfoundland service, 2027
Coal from Japan, 2312, 2406
Cost of, 245, 247, qu. 469. See also speeches on Address; Budget
Dominion Steel Corporation, contract for steel plates, 1677
Employees at Montreal, qu. 2992
Employees' wages, qu. 3598
Inquiry as to sale of, 3104
Insurance, qu. 605
Lake marine, qu. 3362
Loans to, 3035
Lumber cargoes for Orient, 2311
Ocean and river service, 3507. See also Marine
Ocean freights. See British Preference
Outstanding claims, qu. 606
Ownership and operation of, 3037
Passenger traffic, qu. 939
Potatoes, shipment to Cuba, 2028
Prince Rupert Drydock and Engineering Co. claim, 3514
Shipments by. See St. John terminal; Steamship Services
Ships in Montreal harbour, qu. 2637
Subsidized steamship services, 3027, 3506
Welland canal, 2756-9
Vessels. See also that title
Britisher, steamer, 3514
Canadian Exporter, wreck, qu. 1210
Canadian Freighter, qu, 963
Number of, qu. 469
Scottish, steamer, 3514

Canadian Government Railways, 873. See also Canadian National Railways
Deficits, qu. 607
Dining car service, qu. 2040

Canadian High Commissioner. See High Commissioner

Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, 1237

Canadian Manufacturers' Association, 170. See also Budget; Manufacturers
Canadian exhibition in France, 2032
Tariff, and, 2546

Canadian Mission, Colonel Delphine, 303

Canadian National Institute for the Blind
Grant, 3540

Canadian National Parks. See Dominion Lands and Parks

Canadian National Railways. See also Address; Budget; Freight Rates; Railways; Transportation
Accounting, 1908-18
Advances
$7,000,000, — 2779
$42,800,000, — 1905-33-69
Amalgamation of system, delay, 2585
Amount required for, 381
Annual report, 1928
Annual statement by Minister of Railways, 873; Canadian Government railways; 873; Grand Trunk system, 877; estimates, 879; freight rates, 879; reorganization, 880; Canadian Government Merchant Marine, 882; summaries, 882
Board of Directors. See under this title, Directors
Bond sale in New York, 58
Branch lines, 1472, 1476, 1956
Bengough extension, 2770
British Columbia, 331
Eastern Maine railway, 1293
Hanna-Medicine Hat, 1965
Kamloops-Kelowna, qu. 937, 1134, 2797
Policy of Government, 1135
Business methods, 1692
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, and, 3036
Canadian Northern railway, 123
Acquisition of, 2614
Advances to, qu, 471
$42,800,000, — 1905-33-69
Agriculture, contribution to freight tonnage, 1927
Arbitration, 204
Bonded indebtedness, 190, qu. 368
Assumption by Dominion Govt., 2458
Co-ordination, 1907
Deficit, 191, 1907
Electrification of, 1317. See also Electrification
Federal subsidies, qu. 1504
Guarantee bill, 1914, legal expenses, 1667
Indebtedness of western provinces, 229
Insurance, qu. 471
Invasion of Ontario by, 202
Liabilities, qu. 368
Loans and subsidies to, 189-90, 204, qu. 1504, 1921
Mackenzie-Mann
Amounts paid to, qu. 935
Subsidy, qu. 607

Canadian National Railways — Con.
Canadian Northern Railway — Con.
Mileage, qu. 368
Operating deficit, 1905
Responsibility for loans, 204. See also under this sub-title, Loans
Rorketon branch line, 2139
Subsidiary lines, 202
Taking over of, 190, 1907
Canadian Pacific railway, competition with, 65. See also Address; Budget; Railways
Car and locomotive contracts
Canadian Locomotive Company, 2794
Eastern Car Company, 2794
Car repairs. See under this title, Rail and Car Repair Contracts
Carey, Mr., 2858
Coal
Importations, qu. 926, qu. 2213
Purchases, qu. 2306
Consolidation, 6, 11, 28, 72, 73, 89. See also speeches on Address; Budget
Dams impeding ascent of fish, 2168
Deficits, 1905-69, 1920
Corrected statement, 1919
Dining car and restaurant service, qu. 2040
Menus, cost of printing, qu. 1931
Rivers and Melville, Sask., restaurants, qu. 2038
Directors, Board of, 1924, 2194, 2791
Appointment of, 1936
Connection with supply companies, 2792
Hanna, Mr. D. B., 1924, 1959, 1962
Labour costs, and, 2317
Interested in other companies, 1129
Mitchell, Mr. A. J., 1924
Public ownership, sympathy with, 2852
Representation of employees, 2798
Statement of Prime Minister, 2792
Drayton-Acworth report, 45-46
Edith Cavell road, Jasper Park, 1052
Electrical operation, 1206, 1323. See also Electrification; St. Lawrence river waterway; and under this title, Public Ownership
Electrification, M. (Mr. Deslauriers) 627
Estimates, 1905
Fraser, Mr., right-of-way agent, 1134
Freight
Careless handling of, 1965
Rates. See also Crowsnest Pass Agreement; Freight Rates
Advertising campaign, qu. 1375
Coal from maritime provinces, 1763
Quebec and, 1472-5
Special Committee, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) 1213

Canadian National Railways — Con.
Grain leakages, qu. 1401, qu. 1930
Grain shipments, 2194. See also Grain and Grain Trade
Grand Trunk Pacific railway, 189, 196, 203, 342, 1921
Advances, qu, 471, qu. 2037, 3520
$15,900,000, 1969
Branch lines, 3520
British Columbia in, 331
Cost of to the country, 196
Estimated, 205
Subsidiary lines, 203
Grand Trunk railway, 29. See also speeches on Address; Budget
Acquisition, 190, 235, 1922, 2612, 2616
Administration of, 64
Advances to, qu. 471, qu. 2037
$25,750,000, 1969
American mileage, 191, 204
Amount required, 381
Annual statement of Minister of Railways, 877
Arbitration, 128, 205, 2779
Comments of English newspapers, 374, 821
MacInnes, Mr. Hector, K.C., payments to, 2772
Bonded security, advances, qu. 935
Coal, qu. 606
Deficit, 191. See also Annual Statement under this title
Employees
Pension rights and status, M. (Mr. Boys) 863, 1382, 2041, 3437
English stock-holders, 64, 123
Financial statement, 1933
Government ownership, 125. See also speeches on Address; Budget
Kelley, Mr. H. B., 205
Mortgage trust deed, legal expenses, 1667
Officials, salaries, qu. 728
Portland terminal, 353, 920. See also British Preference and Canadian Seaports
Rail and car repair contracts, 1688
Hotels, 2806
Immigration, 1927, 2147, 2165. See also that title
Industrial councils, 1061
Insurance, qu. 471, qu. 610
Intercolonial railway, 106-111, 274, 312, 1967, 2688. See also Logan; Macdonald (Pictou)
Administration, 275
Domination by Canadian Northern railway, 193-194
Employees, enlistment of, 3518
Freight rates, 275, 355. See also that title

Canadian National Railways — Con.
Intercolonial railway — Con.
Gaspé and Bonaventure counties, in, 623
Gulf shore and Caraquet railway, qu. 1504
Local management, 313-314, 192
Management, inquiry, 407-8
Moncton headquarters, 313, 355, 2289
Operation of, 107, 192
Passes on, 315
Patronage system, 106
Pension fund, qu. 938
Provident fund for employees, 2769
Repairs to cars, qu. 1212
Snow-cleaning, 313
Investigation proposed, 1908-17
Labour conditions, 2315
Mail contracts, qu. 2038, qu. 2213
Mail service, qu. 2799
Montreal, employees, 1288
National Transcontinental. See under this title Transcontinental
Overbuilding, 2569
Passenger traffic, qu. 927
Pension fund, qu. 938
Prince Edward Island railway, 1249
Public confidence, 1928
Public ownership and operation, 1907, 1933, 2193. See also speeches on Address; Budget
Purchases in anticipation of requirements, 1912
Quebec Oriental and Quebec Western railways, 623
Quebec terminals, 1475
Rail and car repair contracts, 1912, 1925, 1958, 2399
Board of management and, 1688-1710
Defective American cars, 1708
Steel cars, 1702-6, 1709
Rates. See Freight Rates; Railways
Regional control, 1923, 2196
Representation at meeting of steamship companies, qu. 2584
Revaluation, 1925
Right-of-way and lease agent, qu. 1633
Rolling stock repairs, 1212. See also under this title Rail and Car Repairs
St. John and Quebec Railway, qu. 1774
M. (Mr. Caldwell) 1293, neg. 1296
Securities, qu. 3154
Shops
Moncton, 1709
Rivière du Loup, 1690
St. Malo, 1699
Transcona, 1705, 1708
Steel cars, qu. 2213
Repairs, 1702-1709

Canadian National Railways — Con.
Telegraphs, qu. 3360
Ties, ques. 934, 2209
Purchases of in Quebec, qu. 1659
Toronto Globe editorial, 1134
Toronto railway viaduct, qu. 1660
Transcontinental railway, 111, 125, 278, 919, 1921, 2493
Cost, 2193
Enlisted men, allowance to, 3518
Freight rates, Quebec and, 1472-5
Grain shipments by, 2194
Lease of Eastern division, legal expenses, 1667
Opposition of Canadian Pacific to, 545, 2194
St. John valley, 3039
Unification, 1907, 1923-5, 2585. See also under this title Consolidation; Public Ownership
Water supply, Ste. Anne-St. Pierre, qu. 2213
Working expenditures, 2779

Canadian Navy. See Naval Service

Canadian Northern Railway. See that title under Canadian National Railways

Canadian Pacific Railway, 146, 191. See also Address; Canadian National Railways; Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway; Freight Rates
Advance in price of stock, 129
Beatty, Mr. E. W., 126, 127, 1128
Labour costs, 2317
Canadian Pacific Railway Company bill, 1606, 1856
Coal lands, transfer of, qu. 2214
Competition with Grand Trunk, 64. See also that title
Cost, 2193
Dams impeding ascent of fish, 2167
Directors, voting trust, 1936
Electrical operation, 71, 1206. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway
Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway Company bill. See that title
False creek bridge, removal, 3516
Freight Rates. See that title
Immigration and, 351
Indian Department, payment to, 3518
Labour conditions, 2315
Mail contracts, ques. 2040, 2213
New England states, connection with, 1294
Palais station, Quebec, 1068
Public ownership, 1937, 2329
Rail and car repair contracts, 1688-1710
Rates, See Freight Rates

Canadian Pacific Railway — Con.
Shares held by custodians of alien enemy property, 1672
Success of, 123
Transcontinental railway, opposition to, 2194

Canadian Patriotic Fund bill
Res. 3156, 3366; 1r., 3366; 2r., com., 3477; 3r., 3484

Canadian Press, Limited, 772

Canadian Red Cross Society bill
1r., 3151; 2r., com., 3387; 3r., 3388

Canadian Representation in the United States, 1383, 2026, 2864, 2990
International Labour Conference, qu. 824, 1060, 1070, 3437, 3490
Printing of report, 3601
Limitation of Armaments Conference. See that title

Canadian Seaports, trade through, 104. See also British Preference; Steamship Services; Trade

Canadian Towing and Wrecking Co., 1677

Canadian Transit Company. See Private Bills Discussed

Canadian Vickers. See Vickers

Canadian Wheat Board. See Grain and Grain Trade; Wheat Board

Canadian Wheat Board Bill. See also Grain and Grain Trade; Wheat Board
Res. 3174; 1r., 2r., com., 3179; com., 3379; 3r., 3387
Amdts:
(Mr. Johnson, Moosejaw) 3178
(Mr. Maclean, Halifax) 3180
(Mr. Johnson-Mr. Robb) agreed to, 3383

Canadians
Distressed, relief for, 2027
Emigrating. See Immigration

Canalization. See St. Lawrence River Waterway; Welland canal

Canals. See also Railways and Canals; St. Lawrence River Waterway
Chambly, improvements, 3518
Frankfurt, 1189
Georgian Bay, 1184, 1199, 1200-1209, 1319, 1397-8

Canals — Con.
Lachine
Widow of late James Innes, allowance, 2779
Manchester, 1189
Ontario-St. Lawrence, 2779
Quebec, 2779
Rideau, 2764
Construction of storehouse at Ottawa, 2764
Expenditure on, 2860
Improvements, 2769
St. Lawrence river waterway, M. (Mr. Church) 1183. See also that title
St. Lawrence ship canal, 2767
Soulanges
Improvements, 2768
Roadway, 2768
Traffic through, qu. 705
Panama, Suez and Soo canals, 1203
Trent
Estimates, 2764
Nassau dam, qu. 2457
Total expenditure on, qu. 1376
Welland, qu. 827, 1184, 1205, 1207, 2747
Contracts for sections 3 and 4, qu. 3600
Co-operation with United States, 2749-51
Estimates, 2747
Amdt. (Mr. Millar) to reduce vote by $4,000,000, 2758
Port Colborne elevator, claim of Mr. J. A. Jamieson, 1687
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1321. See also that title
Tonnage, qu. 936
Total expenditure on, qu. 1376
Water power rights, 2747. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway

Cancellation of Leases. See Dominion Lands

Canned Fish. See Fisheries Act Amdt.; Meat and Canned Food

Canned Goods, Marking of. See Meat and Canned Foods

Canneries, Inspection. See Meat and Canned Foods

Cannes Conference, 1716. See also Genoa Conference
Submarines, 1845

Canning Licenses. See British Columbia Fisheries; Fish and Fisheries

Cannon, Mr. Lucien (Dorchester)
Budget, 2909. Defeat of Tory party; administration facing serious situation; Progressive party; reasons for Cannon, Mr. Lucien — Con.

Budget — Con.
Liberal victory; tribute to Prime Minister; platform of 1919; restoration of constitutional liberty; responsibility for conduct of public officials; responsible government and commission control, 2910; Canadian National Railways; a word to the West; Quebec the friend of the West; provincial autonomy, 2911; railways; Liberalism, hope of the West; division amongst Progressive forces, 2912
Canadian National Railways, public ownership, 1936-42
Dominion Lands, Cancellation of Leases bill, Senate admts., 3615
Limitation of Armaments, 3166
MacInnes, Mr. Hector, payments to, 2772
Militia, arsenals
Lindsay, 2088
Quebec, 2092
Naval policy, 2085
Point of order, parliamentary committee, 3354
Public Works estimates, preparation of, 1270
Royal Canadian Navy, 1887-90,

Canteen Funds, undistributed, disposal of, qu. 2215, 3290, 3308, 3328, 3331, 3334, 3346, 3350

Capital Ships. See Limitation of Armaments

Caraquet and Gulf Shore Railway, 1183, qu. 1504

Carey, Mr., and Canadian National Railways, 2858

Caribou. See Hudson Bay Railway

Carleton, N.B., returning officer, 3538, 3603, 3606

Carmichael, Mr. A. M. (Kindersley)
Address in reply, 155. French language; western opinions, 156; financial and economic outlook in the West, tariff question, 157; freight rates; grain speculation, banking conditions, 158
Campbell, Mr. J. A., claim for flax shipment, 2834
Canada Grain Act, administration of, 2834
Canadian Pacific Railway Company bill, amdt. 1606
Deputy Minister of Finance, 753
Experimental farms, 800

Carmichael, Mr. A. M. — Con.
Income War Tax Act, 1917, Amdt. 3486
Justice Dept. — Private secretary, 1669
Kindersley post office building, 1254
Militia, annual drill, 1177
Public buildings, Saskatchewan, 1253
Telephone lines, Saskatchewan, 2012
Wheat Board, 3181

Carroll, Mr. William F. (Cape Breton South and Richmond)
Burstall, Sir Henry, 743
Canadian Transit Company, bill, 1771
Cold storage, 819
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 957
Dominion Elections Act. Amdt. 2812
Fuel oil, 178
Harbours and rivers, Prince Edward Island, 1991
Indians, Sydney reserve, 1215
Judges' Act Amdt. bill, 426
Labour dept. increases, 568
Labour men and unions, 228
National Defence bill, 743
Nova Scotia Miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 499, 532
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill) 1800
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt., appeal, 3024
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3442
Pensions Committee, final report, 3316
Pensions — Royal Commission, 3327
Unemployment situation, 1076
Steel rails contracts, 1076
Sydney steel workers, 1076

Carruthers, Mr. John (East Algoma)
Civil Service — patronage, 3086
Little Current harbour improvements, 2002

Cars. See also Railways
Governor General's, 1688
Repairs. See Canadian National Railways
Shortage of. See Freight Rates

Cartier Square militia stores shed, qu. 2038

Carty, Captain, qu. 1062

Carvell, Hon. F. B. See Railway Commission

Casgrain, Mr. Pierre F. (Charlevoix-Montmorency)
Budget, 2670. Congratulations to Prime Minister upon title of Imperial Privy Councillor; Congratulations to Mr. Speaker; budget proposals; abnormal conditions, 2670; principles of the Liberal party; platform of 1919; Opposition amdt. not to be taken seriously; theories and arguments of the official Opposition and Progressive party; the golden mean; moderate protection, 2671; sales tax; inequality of income tax; burden borne by small wage-earners; proposed exemption of heads of large families; tax on cigarettes and cigars; exemptions from sales tax, 2672; cheque tax; leaf tobacco; tariff reductions; automobile tax, 2673; Borden and Meighen Governments responsible for present conditions; Canadian National Railways, management, board of directors, deficits; Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine; public debt; economy; Purchasing Commission; Civil Service Commission, 2674; reduction in civil service; public works in Charlevoix-Montmorency; Canada's future, 2675 Casgrain, Mr. Pierre F. — Con.

Budget — Con.
Belley, Mr. Alfred, salary, 3504
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 956
Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway bill, 1356
Military Service Act Amdt. bill, 642
Steamship service, Murray Bay-Tadoussac, 3035
Superintendent of Lighthouses, Quebec, qu. 2584

Cash Grants to Soldiers. See Soldiers' Bonus

Cassels, Professor Gustavus, 1292

Cattle. See also Agriculture, Accredited herds, Health of Animals; Live stock industry
British embargo on. See Cattle Embargo
Decline in prices of, 77. See speeches on Address; Budget
Diseases of. See Animal Contagious Diseases Bill
Exported to United States, 2450, 2695
Fordney tariff and. See United States, Fordney
Markets for, 977

Cattle Embargo, 93, 334, 361, 970, 973, 979, 985, 989, 992, 1002, 1031, 1283, 2182, 2571, 2597. See also Live Stock Industry
Alleged statement of Hon. Mr. Larkin, High Commissioner, 1020, 1463, 1502
Doherty, Hon. Manning, visit to England, 1283
Removal of, 2597

Cedar Rapids power, 71, qu. 728, qu. 1375. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway

Census of 1921, 20, 56. See also Immigration; Population; Redistribution; Statistics
Agricultural assets and liabilites, 2159
Completion of, 1363
Cost, 1363
Enumerators, 1366
Appointment of, 1368
Payment of, 1367-9
Irregularities, 1363, 1365, 1367
Population, by ages, qu. 1632
Redistribution, and, 1363-71
Registration of Canadians, 1363
Report of Commissioner, 1366
Verification of figures, 1366

Central Vermont Railway. See Grand Trunk Railway

Chair rulings of. See Deputy Speaker; Speaker

Chairman of Committees. See Deputy Speaker

Chamberlin, Mr. R. G., grant to, 3497

Chambly Canal. See Canals

Champlain, steamship, qu. 1400

Chaplin, Mr. James D. (Lincoln)
Agriculture Dept.—salary increases, 657
Boots and shoes, duty on, 3237
Budget, 2616. Ross rifle, war wagons and equipment; acquisition of Grand Trunk; congratulations to Finance Minister; reciprocity treaty, 2616; tariff proposals; automobile tax; tax on soft drinks, grape juice, 2617; consumption of farm produce in Canada; discrepancy as to agricultural exports; padded figures; non-agricultural commodities included in statement of exports, 2618; value of home market; agricultural implements, 2619; home and foreign trade in; prices in Canada and abroad, 2620; trend of tariff legislation in United States; Mr. Crerar's prophecy, 2621; farmers' platform; alleged effect of protective tariff; statement that consumer pays $4 for every dollar of revenue collected, 2622; export freight rates, 2623; cost of collecting customs duties; prices of kodaks in Canada and United States; political pledges; speech of late Hon. J. Israel Tarte, 2624
Canadian Transit Company bill, 1771

Chaplin, Mr. James D.—Con.
Cash bonus to soldiers, 402
Cheque tax, 3260
Dominion lands, temporary employees, 1036
Experimental farm employees, 652
Ford automobiles, 3274
Government printing, 1972
Hamilton-Queenston highway, qu. 471
Harbours and Rivers
Manitoba, 2004
New Brunswick, 1993, 1997
Imperial Mining Resources Bureau, 1238
Interior Dept., salary increases, 457
Migratory birds, 1685
Militia and Defence
Arsenals, 1979
Lindsay, 2086
Quebec, 2091
Military property in Lincoln county, 1980
Pay of staff, 1982
Permanent force, 1983
Staff reduction, 420
Junior clerks, 416, 419
Transport and freight, 1986
Mutual insurance, 3255
Orders in Council, qu. 934
Printing and stationery supplies, 454
Privy Council officials, 410
Public buildings
Maritime provinces, 1244
St. Catharines post office, 1246-50
Rail and car repair contracts, 1709
St. Thomas-Niagara Falls highway, qu. 936
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment
Salaries and officials, 398-9
Salary increases, 386
Welland canal, construction, 2753

Charges of Management. See Finance

Charlevoix-Montmorency public works, 2675

Charlottetown, quarantine station, 2021

Chartered Banks. See Banks and Banking

Charters, Mr. Samuel (Peel)
Budget, 2561. Speech of the Minister of Agriculture; Wheat Board; Liberal pledges; introduction of national policy; the amendment; Government's failure to implement promises, 2561; Mr. Murphy at Milton; Government by Order in Council; business and luxury taxes; profiteers; inaction of Minister of Labour, 2562; sales tax; Civil Service Commission; patronage; the tariff; protection and free trade, 2563; statement of Finance Minister;

Charters, Mr. Samuel — Con.
Budget — Con.
manifesto of Progressive party; tariff changes; agricultural implements; fruit industry, 2564; pessimistic view of present day conditions; reciprocity; rural population; rural school attendance; value of farm lands; farm production, 2565; automobiles; Ontario Government immigration literature, 2566; future of Canada, 2567
Long Branch rifle range, qu. 372

Cheques. See Special War Revenue; Taxation

Chevrier, Mr. E. R. E. (Ottawa)
Civil Service
Absence through sickness, 3509
Bonus, 3531
Commission, 3064
Pensions Com., final report, 3337
Senate indemnity, 3509

Chief Architect's Branch. See Public Works

Chief Electoral Officer
Assistant, salary of, 3538
Carleton, N.B., returning officer, 3539, 3603, 3606
Report of Fourteenth General Election, of 1921, 1258
Report, printing of, 871
Residential qualification, 1297

Children
Dependent. See Income War Tax Act
Health of. See Daylight saving; Health
Immigration. See that title
Infant mortality in cities, 2634
Miners of, in Nova Scotia, 529
Oleomargarine, effect on health, 178. See also that title
Pensions to. See Pensions Com. report
Save the Children fund, 3516
School attendance, 2565. See also Education
Soldiers of Alleged ill-treatment, 2638
Education. See Pensions Com.
Provision for, 3315-16

China
Commissioner of Immigration in, ques. 2026, 2214
Dr. Tsur, Chinese Consul General, 1776
Eggs, importation from, 177
Treaties with. See Chinese Customs Tariff Treaty; Far Eastern Treaty

Chinese Customs Tariff Treaty, 3161

Chinese Immigration. See Oriental Aliens

Chippewa electrical development, 72, 1327. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway

Chisholm, Mr. A. W. (Inverness)
Civil Service, officials receiving more than deputy ministers, 1508
Inverness pier, 1766
Margaree breakwaters, 1767

Church, Mr. Thomas L. (North Toronto)
Address in reply, 116. Congratulations to Speaker; standing of different parties, 116; race and religious differences, 118; Speech of Hon. Ernest Lapointe; Battlefields Commission, 119; taxation methods, 120; unemployment and housing, 121; Good roads; public ownership, 122; Hydro-electric, 123, 131; public ownership of railways, 133; work of Sir Adam Beck, 134; radial railways, 134; St. Lawrence river waterway, 135; German trade; Senate reform; Civil service reform, 138; Conservative and Liberal gains and losses, 138-139; combines; ties with mother land; High Commissioner, 139
Alienation of natural resources, qu. 2992
Backus, Mr. E. W., lease of timber area, 2805
Blind soldiers, pensions, 3310, 3358, 3404
Bonds, sale of by public tender, 1468
Budget, 2392. Tariff not a political question; Tories and Radicals; Conservatives and protection; national policy; home market, 2392; the Progressives; United Farmers' platform; Liberals and free trade; protection and the growth of cities and towns ;tariff increase world wide; protectionist budgets of Liberal governments; tariff reduction and sales tax increase; Progressives and big interests, 2393; farmers and other producers highly organized; time for consumers to get together; tax burden on urban population; cigarette and tobacco taxes; railway problem; Canadian Pacific and Crowsnest pass agreement; trade with Germany, 2394; trusts, combines and war profiteers; tax evaders; taxation in Ontario; war time amusement tax; cheque tax; protest of Toronto and other municipalities, 2395; posterity should pay; Wheat Board; cost of living; Bank Act; Merchants Bank, 2396; judges serving on political com-

Church, Mr. Thomas L. — Con.
Budget — Con.
missions; prison reform; civil service, 2397; St. Lawrence river waterway, 2398
Business of the House, Mondays and Wednesdays, 1462
Cadet corps, 1147, 1973
Canadian battlefields, 119, 771
Canadian Exporter, wreck, qu. 1210
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, 3038
Canadian National Railways, 68
Carey, Mr., 2858
Directors' sympathy with public ownership, 2858
Canadian representation in the United States, 2990
Civil Service retirement fund, income tax, qu. 937
Coal, price of, qu. 2039
Combines Investigation Act, qu. 1902
Committee speeches, relevancy, 555-6
Criminal Code — poolselling, bookmaking, etc., 2973
Cruisers, armed, on Detroit river, qu. 2214
Customs receipts, qu. 470
Daylight saving, qu, 372
M. (Mr. Kay) 946
Disability soldier cases, 3318
Elevators
Ontario, in, 2978
Terminal, qu. 3152
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women, M. (Mr. Euler) 489
Federal subsidies to Ontario, qu. 2214
France, trade relations with, 2990
Freight Rates
Crowsnest pass agreement, 2563-94
Railway Act Amdt. bill (suspension of agreement) 3594; amdt. 3595
Special Com. on, third report, 3560-4
Fuel, price of, qu. 1774
"General" Macdonald's army, reception of, 2256
Government office building in Ottawa, 1252
Haney, Mr. M. J., contracts, 1375
Hueston, Captain, inquiry into death of, qu. 2993
Imperial Mining Resources Bureau, 1238
Judges' Act Amdt. 546
Judges and commissions, qu, 366, 2397
Labour dept., policy, 464-5, 559
Lake of the Woods control, 2805
Joint board, qu. 2970
Lambton, steamer, loss of, 3365
Life-saving stations, qu. 367
Merchant lake marine, qu. 3362
Merchants Bank case, qu. 367, 2396, 3604
Case against D. C. Macarow, qu. 2305

Church, Mr. Thomas L. — Con.
Military expenditure and policy, 1177
Militia and Defence
Annual drill, 1177, qu. 1285
Arsenals, Quebec, 2093
Cadet services, 1147, 1973
Expenditure and policy
1890-1913, qu. 1285
Annual drill, proposed reduction, 1613
First Canadian contingent, qu. 1376
Ministers and directorships, 1125
National Defence bill, 742
Naval policy, 2043
Naval Service
Navy men, travelling expenses, qu. 3156
Royal Canadian Navy, 1894, 2043
Patronage, appointments to penitentiary, 1277
Penitentiary inmates, qu. 3362
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3442-62
Amdt. (Blind soldiers) 3358, 3404
Pensions
Evidence, 3357
Mothers, qu. 1375
Old age, qu. 1375
Pensions Committee final report, 3309
Postal affairs, qu. 368
Post Office, drop letter rate, 1250
Prince of Wales Leinster regiment (Royal Canadians) qu. 1065
Prison reform, 1277, 2397
Inspection by Grand juries, qu. 1773
Jail farms, qu. 1773
Youthful offenders, qu. 1773
Provincial commissions, Hon. Mr. Justice Riddell and Mr. Justice Latchford, qu. 3600
Public buildings
Flags, 1260
Maritime provinces, 1244
Ontario, 1246-51
Rental and purchase of, 1262
Quebec Harbour Commission bill, 1467, 1482
Railway Act Amdt. bill (special passenger rates) 1460
Rental and purchase of buildings, 1252
Returned Soldiers' Insurance bill, 3391
Ritchie, Mr. Hugh, qu. 3361
St. Lawrence river waterway, 135, 2398
Correspondence with United States, 2357
International Joint Commission report, 2357
M. (Mr. Church) 1183
Toronto
Customs house, qu. 470
Harbour improvements, 1467

Church, Mr. Thomas L. — Con.
Toronto — Con.
Public buildings, 1246-7
Railway viaduct, qu. 1660
Steam railway freight, qu. 936
Trade commissioners and commercial agents, 2990
Welland canal, qu. 827
Construction, 1687
Tonnage, qu. 936

Cigars and Cigarettes, tax on. See Budget; Inland Revenue; Taxation; Tobacco

Civil Aviation. See Air Force

Civil Pensions. See Pensions

Civil Service. See also Supply. For individual departments, See their titles. For references generally, see speeches on Address; Budget
Absence through sickness, 3509
Amalgamation of departments. See National Defence bill
Appointments, 337, 2559, 3065, 3098
Members, and, 3074-3077
Recommendations of. See under this title, Patronage
Outside service, post offices, 3073-4
Procedure, 573
Soldiers, 3330, qu. 3361. See also Soldiers
Bonus, qu. 472, qu. 606, 733, 1258, 2397-8, 2513, 2801, 2805, qu. 3364, 3531
Announcement by Prime Minister, 1503
Appropriation, 3528
Inquiry as to payment of, 2996
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, nurses, 1342
Withdrawal of from certain civil servants, qu. 3598
Calder Bill. See Public Service Retirement Act
Classification, 455, 466, 494, 693, 3067, 3089
Appeals against, qu. 1508
Arthur Young Company, 1490
Bland, Mr. C. H., qu. 1773, qu. 1904
Board of Hearing, 1491
Examination of masters and mates, 1490
Foran, Mr. J. J., qu. 2214
Militia dept., 416
Post Office, money order branch, qu. 1285
Printed copies of, qu. 1930
Responsibility for, 1491
Commission
Abolition of, recommended, 2563, 2674-5
Appointments agriculture dept., 2599
Appraisers, Paris and London, 1068
Bland, Mr. C. H., qu. 1773, qu. 1904

Civil Service — Con.
Commission — Con.
Census enumerators, appointment, 1368
Commissioners
Annual salary and travelling expenses, qu. 364-5
Appointment of, 2659
Cost of, qu. 364-5
Employees
Number of, qu. 364
Salaries, 3093
Estimates, 3102
Exemptions, 3078-9
History of and legislation creating, 3065
Jurisdiction, 736-7
Salaries over, 2801
Militia dismissals, 423
Officials and employes, qu. 364-5, 3093
Organization branch, qu. 935
Putnam, Mr., C.V., qu. 935, 3090
Powers of, 553, 554
Report, qu. 826
Salaries and contingencies, etc., qu. 364-5, 386, 3091, 3509
Secretary, qu. 826
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, and. See that title
Deputy ministers, qu. 3364
Increase in salaries, 2805
Militia and Naval Service. See National Defence
Dismissals, 3083-3090
Economy in, 401, 423, 2057-61, 2371. See also Address; Budget
Examination, 871
Hours, 2321, 2371,
Income tax department, 1663
Industrial councils, 1061
List, qu. 727
Married women employed in, qu. 1658
Memorandum of Hon. Mr. Robertson, 555
Militia services amalgamation, 418-19. See also National Defence
Overmanning of, 2371, 2450, 3099. See also speeches on Address; Budget
Patronage and, 199, 2563, 3073, 3080, 3094, 3096
Promotions, 576, 3066
Public Service Retirement Act. See that title
Qualifications, 3070
Reduction of, 2674-5
Reform, 138, 3075
Reorganization, 2061. See also under this title, Classification
Griffenhagen and Associates, 1490
Sherbrooke post office inspector, 1507

Civil Service — Con.
Responsibility, 3076
Retirement. See also Public Service Retirement Act
Fund, qu. 826
Income tax, qu. 937
Lightkeepers, 1496
Rural postmasters, 3079, 3095-6
Salaries and remuneration, 552, 2243, 2321, 2397, 2513, 2805, 3075, 3081, qu. 3364
Employees receiving less than $600, qu. 1067
Hours and, 2321, 2371
Officials receiving more than deputy ministers, 1508
Paying of. See Interim Supply
Recommendations, 550
Reductions, 2690-1
Salaries of $960 and less, qu. 1660, 1775
Statement of Hon. Mr. Robertson, 555
Tariff Commission, appointment of, 1663
Temporary employees, 1036. See also individual departments
Vacancies, filling of, 792. See also under this title Appointments

Clark, Mr. J. A. (Burrard)
Alien enemy property, custodians of, 3601
Messrs. Fisher & Oughton, Prince Rupert, qu. 1772, 3606
Ammunition, shipment from Great Britain, 1337
Income tax collections, 1919-20-21, qu. 1063
Militia and Defence, expenditure and policy, 1335
National Defence bill, 678
Naval Service — Royal Canadian Navy, 1878, 2061
Northwest Rebellion, pensions of Mounted Police, 3523
Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion, 1523
Quebec Harbour, appropriations for, 1486
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3443-55
Pensions Com., 391
Final report, 3327
Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act, 3400
Revenues from imports, qu. 827
Royal Canadian Mounted Police
Doctors Lovering and Taylor, qu. 1211
Industrial disputes, 679
Northwest Rebellion, pensions and claims, 3523
Royal Canadian Navy, 1878, 2061
Vancouver
Drydock, 3542
Harbour work, 1485
Terminal railway, 1485
War, preparation for, 1335

Clark, Dr. Michael, 295

Clarke Trading Co., transport of supplies, 1681

Classification. See Civil Service

Clay Products, 1234

Closure, application of. See Interim Supply

Clothing, duty on, 2186, 2465, 2662. See also Budget; Taxation

Coal. See also Fuel; Mines; Natural Resources; Railways
Anthracite importations, qu. 2356, 2686
Bituminous, 2686
British Columbia, mines in, 178
By products of, 3525
Canadian, 2687
Use of in public buildings, 1759
Canadian National Railways
Imported for, qu. 926, qu. 2213
Purchases, qu. 2306
Canadian Pacific lands, transfer of, qu. 2214
Competition
Fuel oil, 2312
United States Mines, with, 2612
Conservation of supply by power development, 1188. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway
Drumheller mines, 85
Duty on, 2342
Investigation of low grade, 3525
Freight rates. See also that title
Manitoba from, 1763
Japan from, qu. 963, 2312, 3406
Labour. See also that title
Canmore employers and miners dispute, 1058
District No. 18 Board, 1058
Drumheller mines, 86
Employers and miners' dispute, 1058
Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, 1058
Nova Scotia Miners' strike, 1054. See also that title
Oriental aliens, 2312. See also that title
Cumberland mines, in, 2407
Wages in Nova Scotia, 1078. See also Nova Scotia Miners
Lands
Transfer by Canadian Pacific, qu. 2214
United States in, purchase of, 2611
Lignite
Bienfait briquetting plant, qu. 604, 1233, qu. 1632, 2712-15
Utilization Board, 1233, 3524

Coal — Con.
Lightboats, for, qu. 606
Mineral development, 686
Mining industry, protection, 2312
Montreal requirements, 630
Nova Scotia, 2412
Freight charges on, 193, 194
Miners. See that title
Powdered, 2713-5
Price of, 465, 1758, 1774, qu. 2037, qu. 2039
Effect of freight rates on, 132-133
Reduction in, 1490, 1494
Public buildings, heating, 1758
Importation for, 1763
Railways
Canadian National Railways, qu. 926, 2213
Purchases for, qu. 2306
Grand Trunk Railway, qu. 606
Royalties, qu. 375
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1316
Smoky river, lease of coal lands, 3465
Supply, control, 71
Transportation. See Freight rates
Waterpowers and, 2182

Coats, Mr. R. H. See Statistics, Bureau of

Cocaine. See Opium

Cocoa and Chocolate. See Customs Tariff

Cockshutt, Lieut. Governor, 1128

Cockshutt Plough Company, Minister of Justice and, 242

Codling Moth. See Entomology

Coinage. See also Currency Act Amdt. bill
Nickel coin blanks, qu. 3152
Nickel, five cent piece, 1132
Silver, millesimal fineness, 1132

Cold Storage. See Agriculture

Collective Bargaining, 2322

Colonial Status. See Naval Service; Prime Minister's Conference

Combines, 139. See also Address; Budget; Trusts

Combines Investigation Act, qu. 1902

Commerce. See Board of Commerce; Trade

Commercial Travellers. See Budget; Income War Tax Act Amdt.

Commissioner of Agriculture. See Agriculture; Marshall

Commissions
Judges serving on, qu. 366, 546, 2397

Committee of Supply. See Supply

Committees. See House of Commons

Commodity Rates. See Freight Rates; Railways; Transportation

Commodity Tax. See Taxation

Companies Act, Privy Council appeal, legal expenses, 1671

Compensation. See Animal Contagious Diseases amdt.

Compensation for Injuries. See Air Board Act Amdt.

Compulsory Enfranchisement. See Indian Act Amdt.

Compulsory Legislation. See Wheat Board

Compulsory Military Service. See Military Service Act 1917 Amdt. bill

Con Rein, sinking of, M. (Mr. Macdonald, Pictou) 1382, agreed to, 1384

Concurrence. See Supply

Condensed Milk tax on, 2492, 3264-71, 3409

Confectionery, tax on, 2177, 2641, 2676, 2852, 2857

Confederation, basis of, 154
Maritime provinces and, 228. See also Intercolonial Railway

Conferences
Brussels Financial, 1138, 1292
Building trades, 582-3
Cannes, 823, 1716, 1845
Genoa, 7, 58, 156, 212, 582, 1292, 1463, 1675, 1715-6, 1845, 2035, 2337
Expenses, 1715
Europe, in, 1336
Imperial, 1864. See also under this title Prime Ministers'
International Labour, qu. 824, 1060, 1070, 3437, 3490
Printing of report, 3601
Limitation of Armaments, 7, 1283, 1731, 1737, 1844-95
Borden, Rt. Hon. Sir Robert, report M. (Mr. Casgrain) for papers, 373
National Industrial, qu. 1375
Postal, 7, 15
Potato growers, 3367
Prime Ministers', 1624, 1864, 1883, 2042, 2082
Trades Union, Rome, 1060

Conferences — Con.
Washington. See under this title, International Labour; Limitation of Armaments

Connaught rifle range, qu. 3153

Connor, James, dismissal of, 1674

Conscription, 22, 61, 90-91, 2570, 2685. See also Military Service Act, 1917, Amdt.

Conservation Commission, transfer of employees, 3495. See also Interior Dept.; White, Mr. James

Consolidated Revenue and Audit Act Amdt. bill, 1r., 1210; 2r., com., 3r., 3042

Consortium to re-establish Russian trade, 1463

Constitutional Development. See Address; Conferences; League of Nations; Naval Service

Constitutionality of Wheat Board. See Wheat Board

Consular Agents. See Trade and Commerce

Consular Certificates. See Customs; Trade and Commerce

Contagious Diseases. See Animal Contagious Diseases; Health; Immigration; Penitentiary Act Amdt.

Contingency Vote. See Departments; Estimates; Supply

Coolie Labour. See Oriental Aliens

Co-operative Pooling. See Wheat Board

Co-ordination. See Militia and Defence; National Defence

Coote, Mr. G. G. (Macleod)
Agriculture dept., travelling expenses, 657
Automobiles and parts, imports, qu. 1633
Automobile tax, 3276
Banks
Circulation, deposits, loans, etc., qu. 1901
Number, reserves, deposits, loans, etc. qu. 1182
Board of Commerce, cost, report, qu. 2583
Budget, 2724. The amendment; party politics a curse, 2724; the budget a disappointment; national debt; tax exempt bonds; conscription of wealth during war time, 2725; taxation of implements of production; oil and well-drilling machinery; western problems; grasshoppers, 2726; cattle industry; amalgamation of Merchants' Bank and Bank of Montreal, 2727; banking system, ratio of deposits to capital; credit; distribution of products; Wheat Board; tariff a geographical question; treatment of western Canada, 2729
Canadian National Institute for the Blind, 3540
Canadian National railways, freight rates advertising campaign, qu. 1375
Criminal Code, cruelty to animals, 2833
Customs, dumping clause, 3419, 3423
Dominion notes, qu. 3153
Esquimalt dry dock, 3541
Felt shoe industry, 3239
Forestry, aerial patrol at High River, 1050
Grasshoppers, 2726, 3520
Immigration
Child, 2161
Farmers, 3064
Italian, 2171
Policy, 2161
Indians
Blood reserve, 1219, 1224
Land leased, qu. 2969
Education, schools in Alberta, 1237
Insurance premiums, tax, 3258
Lambton, loss of, 3508
Live stock industry, 991, 2727
Macleod post office, qu. 2804
Penitentiaries, inmates, foreign and native, 1279
Ploughs, duty on, 3123
Prince Rupert Drydock Co., claim, 3514
Railway Commission
Carvell, Hon. F. B., Chairman, 2773-5
Langley, Hon. George, statement, 2773
Redistribution, 1370
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, Macleod, 2584
Steel bounties, qu. 3360
Tariff inquiry, 1920-21, cost, report, publication, qu. 2215
Threshing machines, 3125
Total trade, 1900-1921, qu. 1633
Tree-planting on prairies, 1051
Unemployment figures, qu. 3362
Vancouver dry dock, 3544
Wheat Board, 2729, 3182, 3189

Copp, Hon. A. B. (Secretary of State)
Alien enemy property, custodians of, 1672, 3601
Prince Rupert, 3606
Alleged election promises in Charlotte County, N.B., 1994
Archives Branch, Dr. Doughty, 702
Canada Temperance Act, 2024
Civil Service
Commission, 3102
Examinations, 872
Harbour and Rivers, New Brunswick, 1992
Lusitania reparation claims, 3599
Moncton car shops, 1709
Naturalization Act, Amdt. bill, 3104, 3436
Naturalization expenses, 1671
Provincial wharves, New Brunswick, 1992
Public Service Retirement Act Amdt. bill, 1661, 3025, 3148
Rail and car repair contracts, 1708
Secretary of State dept.
Estimates, 701, 1671, 2977, 3499
War claims, adjustment of, 1672, 2977
Privilege, correction of report in Montreal Gazette, 1721

Corporation Control. See Railways

Corporation-Owned Railroads in United States, 67-70. See also Railways, Public ownership

Correction of Division List. See House of Commons Divisions

Correspondence, quoting from. See Speaker's Rulings

Cost of Living, 2349, 2359, 2396, 2578. See also Address; Budget; Civil Service Bonus; Labour; Nova Scotia Miners; Unemployment
Labour Gazette and, 1057
Prices, deflation of, 1216-18
Purchasing power of money, 1151-3, 1175, 1177, 1292, 2331, 2603
Sales tax, and, 2676. See also that title
Tariff and, 2882. See also speeches on Budget
Taxation on, 2364. See also Speeches on Budget
Wages based on, 1303

Cotton Industries
Duties, 2469, 3127. See also Customs Tariff
Wages, hours, etc., qu. 1903

Coughlin Shipbuilding Company, 3542

County Courts, establishment in Quebec, 3496

County Fairs. See Agriculture, Exhibitions

Courtenay Bay, qu. 365. See also St. John Harbour

Courtney, B.C., post office building, 1258

Cow Bay wharf, 1766

Cream Separators. See Agricultural Implements

Credits. See Banking; Finance; Financial Credits; Housing; Loans; Roumania and Greece; Unemployment

Crerar, Hon. Thomas A. (Marquette, Leader of the Progressive party)
Address in reply, 50. Congratulations to Speaker, Miss Macphail, mover and seconder of Address; speeches of Prime Minister and leader of Opposition, 50-51; election campaign, 51; negotiations between Government and Progressives, 51; attitude of Progressive party, 52; condition of agriculture; wheat marketing, 53; production costs; transportation costs; freight rates; tariff revision, 54; Sir Lomer Gouin; railways, public ownership, 55-56; immigration, burden of taxation, 56-57; soldiers' re-establishment, 57; Limitation of Armaments; Genoa Conference; economy, need for; burden of taxation, 58; redistribution; proportional representation, 59
Adjustment of war claims, 1672
Agricultural exports, figures used in budget debate, 2638
Agriculture
Condition and prospects, 53, 2156, 2471
Dept., salary increases, 588
Agriculture and Colonization Com.
McCoig, Senator, attendance before, 1901
Wheat Board report, 780. See also under this title, Wheat Board
Alien enemy property, 1672
American magazines, 3113
Animal Contagious Diseases Act Amdt. bill, 2102
Audibility of debates, 708
Board of Commerce, 1715
British Columbia, and, 2234-9
British Preference and Canadian seaports, M. (Mr. Logan) 716
Budget, 2459. Congratulations to Prime Minister; tribute to Finance Minister; difficult and perplexing problems; unsatisfactory financial position; debt and taxation, 2459; railway expenditures; revenue and expenditure; discrepancy between income and outgo, 2460; limit of taxation about reached; economy; new taxation; reorganization of departments and elimination Crerar, Hon. Thomas A. — Con.

Budget — Con.
of duplication; new administration buildings; overlapping of Dominion and provincial expenditures, 2461; sales tax, inequitable and unsound; cheque tax; tax on foreign insurance companies, 2462; co-ordination of financial policy; overlapping of taxation; reciprocity with United States; valuation and marking goods; valuation of currency, 2463; trade with Germany; a protectionist budget; no statement of government policy; agricultural implements, 2464; inconsistencies in agricultural machinery schedule; government failure to implement pledges; clothing; boots and shoes; household equipment, 2465; tariff reductions counterbalanced by sales tax increase; tariff platform of 1919; Liberal resolution of 1921; tariff proposals not what country requires; discrimination against United States, 2466; tariff legislation before Congress; American factories in Canada; opposition to protection in United States, 2467; Progressive party unalterably opposed to protection; development of natural resources; home market fallacy; manufacture of rubber goods; cotton; raw material and finished product; protection sectional and selfish; movement of population; exodus of Canadian workmen; maritime provinces under protective policy, 2469; rural depopulation in Ontario; prairie provinces; Vancouver and free port proposal, 2470; agriculture prospers in spite of protection; development of west; prosperity from 1900 to 1912 not due to tariff; export of natural products, 2471; tendency of economic thought in Europe; trade begets friendship; the amendment, 2472; no constructive proposal; amdt. to amdt. proposed, 2473
Business of the House
Budget (amdt. to amdt., Sir Henry Drayton) 2473, 2507, 2522
Budget debate, conclusion of, 2640
Easter adjournment, 820
Empire and Ascension Days, adjournment, 1905
Government orders, Monday and Wednesday, 1461, 1720
Privilege on Orders of Day, right to raise, 2638

Crerar, Hon. Thomas A. — Con.
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, loan to, 3036
Canadian National Railways
Deficits, 1920
Canadian Northern, 1907
Immigration, 1927
Public ownership and operation, 1920
Rail and car repair contracts, 1689, 1707, 1925
Revaluation of, 1925
Canadian Transit Company bill, 1772
Civil Service
Commission, 3078
Patronage, 3080, 3096
Cold storage warehouse, Montreal, 819
Crowsnest pass agreement, 3595
M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1414-20-29, 1433, 1454
Telegram from Minister of Agriculture to Calgary Board of Trade, 2358
Customs
Drawbacks, 766
Dumping clause, 3423
Estimates, 762
Officials, 764
Debates, Official Report of, insertion of documents not read, 1540
Dominion Iron and Steel Co. contract for steel plates, 1678
Elevators, terminal, administration, 2980. See also under this title, Grain Inquiry Commission
Emigration, record of, 2158
Estimates, accounts chargeable to current or past year, 1675
Freight Rates
Crowsnest pass agreement. See under this title Crowsnest
Immigration and, 2157
Genoa Conference, 1715
Cannes Conference, 823
Reported subscription of Canada to consortium, 1463
Governor General's cars, 1688
Grain and grain trade. See also under this title Wheat Board
Manitoba Court of Appeal, decision, 1933
Russia, competition in wheat market, 2157
Grain Inquiry Commission, 49, 2982, 2895
Secret session at Fort William, 2983
Hyndman Commission, 2982
Immigration
Central European, 2157
Policy, 2156
Railways, and, 1929, 2157

Crerar, Hon. Thomas A. — Con.
Immigration Act Amdt. bill (Mr. Woodsworth) 1394
Intercolonial Railway, maritime management, 193
Interior Dept., economy, 455
Judges' Act Amdt. bill, 426
Justice Dept., contingencies, 1668
Labour
Estimates, 579180
Technical education, 459
Liberal party, negotiations with, 34-35, 51
Limitation of Armaments Conference, 9, 3167
Militia and Defence
Co-ordination of services, 417
Expenditure and policy, 1593
National Defence bill, 739-40
Naturalization expenses, 1671
Naval Service
Empire defence contribution, 2081-2
Fleet 420
Policy, 2081
Nova Scotia miners, 508
M. (Mr. Irvine) 542
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. bill, 3429
Oleomargarine, manufacture and importation of M. (Mr. Neill) 1821
Ploughs, duty on, 3121-3122
Political inquesting, 404
Population, need of increased, 2158
Privilege, questions of Agricultural figures used in budget debate, 2637
Member's right to raise on Orders of day, 2638
Proportional representation, M. (Mr. Good) 1652
Public ownership, 1920, 1923
Rail and car repair contracts, 1684, 1707, 1925
Railway Act Amdt. bill (Crowsnest pass) 3595
Railway policy 1920, 1923
Responsibility as leader of Opposition, 73
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 835
Soldiers' bonus, M. (Mr. Arthurs) 444
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment
Salary increases, 398, 404
Discussion out of order, 398, 404
Speaker, election of, 4
Speaker, Mr., death of father, 496
Steamship services
Canada-Australia-New Zealand, 3034
Canadian Govt. Merchant marine, subsidies, 3032
Revision of, 3034
West Indies, 3032

Crerar, Hon. Thomas A. — Con.
Steel industry, subsidies to, 1692
Supreme Court Act Amdt. bill, 2974
Tariff, immigration and, 2157
Tractors, duty on, 3124
Treaties of peace with Hungary and Turkey, bill, 3490
Union Government, resignation from, 2490
United Grain Growers, Limited, 2489
Terminal elevator, 2983
Welland ship canal, grain transportation, 2750
Wheat Board, 377, 2922
Fixation of prices, 2588
Proceedings in Committee, 2934
Wheat Board bill, 3186, 3191, 3384, 3386

Crime. See also Criminal Code; Penitentiaries
Foreign immigration and, 1392-4

Criminal Code
Reprinting and revision, 1278, 1717

Criminal Code Amendment Bills
1. Criminal conspiracy and sedition (Mr. Woodsworth) 1r., 364; 2r., 493, 865; com,. 865, 1388; ref. to Special Com., 1395, 1503; report, 1988. For further stages, see Immigration Act Amdt. (Mr. Woodsworth)
2. Newspaper ownership (Mr. Jacobs) 1r., 821
3. Scrip Frauds (Mr. Kennedy, Edmonton) 1r., 1062; 2r., 3211-3217; com., 3217; 3r., 3221
4. Age of consent; automobile theft; bribing police commissioners; carrying animals by railways; carnal knowledge; clerk of peace, Quebec; indecent assault; protection of English hall marks; recovery of penalties from corporations by civil process; retention of fines by municipalities in Ontario (Sir Lomer Gouin) 1r., 1841; 2r., com., 2830, 2973; 3r., 2974; Senate amdts., 3607
Subjects and sections discussed:
Age of consent, 2830-1
Calhoun, Mr., telegram from, 3601
Conveyance of cattle, 2831-34
Feeble-minded person, carnal knowledge of, 2973
Game of chance, 2973
Pool-selling, bookmaking, 2973

Criminal Conspiracies. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Cronyn, Mr. Hume, reference to. See Pensions Committee, final report

Crowsnest Pass Agreement. See Freight Rates

Crude Oil. See Fuel Oil

Cruelty to Animals. See Criminal Code Amdt.
Society for prevention of, 2831

Cruisers, armed, on Detroit river, qu. 2214

Cuba
Shipment of potatoes to, 2028
Steamship service to. See that title

Cultivators. See Agricultural Implements

Cumberland, B.C.
Mines, 2407
Voting in, 180

Currency. See also Banks and Banking; Finance; Money
Gold standard, 1291
Valuation for customs, 2113, 2173, 2389, 2420, 2463, 2599, 2641, 2859, 2875, 2884, 2897, 3223-4. See also Customs Act Amdt.

Currency Act, 1910, Amdt. bill, Res. 1132, 3042; 1r., 3043; 2r., com., 3r., 3043

Currie, General Sir Arthur, 1986

Customs Act and the Department of Customs and Excise Act Amdt. bill (Dumping clause; consular certificates; valuation for duty; currency) 1r., 2r., com., 3222; 3r., 3477

Customs and Excise. See also Budget; Customs Act; Customs Tariff; Imports and Exports; Taxation; Trade
Automobiles, tax on. See Automobiles
British goods imported, qu. 966
Via United States, qu. 375
Collections, New Brunswick, qu. 607
Consular certificates, 2114, 3477, 3522. See also Customs Act Amdt.
Department
Connor, Mr. James, gratuity, 1674
L'Assomption and Montcalm excise officers, qu. 1774
Montreal employees, 1288
Organization, 1674, 2808
Printing, 1674
Salaries, 762
Veit, Mr. A. E., J. M., qu. 1773
Drawbacks, qu. 764, 828, 1067, 2175, 2186, 2662-3, 2840-50, 2895, 3141. See also Budget Speeches; Customs Tariff
Ford Motor Co., 2850
Payments of, 1922, qu. 2356, 2849-50

Customs and Excise — Con.
Drawbacks — Con.
Sugar on, 2850, 3251, 3476-7
Steel rods, refund, qu. 1774
Dumping clause, 304, 2184, 2197, 2275, 2494, 2641, 2879, 3188, 3410-13, 3477. See also Address; Budget; Customs Tariff
Duties
Cost of collecting, 239, 240, 2623-4
Fruit, 164. See also under this title, Dumping clause
Fuel oil on, 178
Militia dept., 1978
Per capita payment, 2691
Rebates of, 2175. See also under this title, Drawbacks
Valuation for, 2172. See also Currency
Excise tax
Alcohol for retail druggists, qu. 1400, 2114. See also Alcohol; Special War Revenue
Ale, beer, porter and stout, 2852
Beer brewed for private use, 2856
Beet sugar, 2117, 2855. See also Budget; Special War Revenue
Tobacco, 2115
Canadian raw leaf, 2853
Cigarettes, 2852
German goods, valuation. See Currency; Customs Act; Germany; Imports
Imports and exports
By countries, 2109
Marking and valuation of, 2113, 2174, 2410, 2463, 2879, 2897, 3413. See also Currency; Customs Act; Customs Tariff
Amended regulation, 2854, 3413
Revenue, qu. 827. See also Imports and exports
1911 to 1922, qu. 1661
International Customs Tariff Bureau, 1373
Liquor export warehouses, qu. 1211
Liquor imported, excise duties, qu. 828
Marking Act, 2641, 2877-80
Prohibited goods, 3476-7
Receipts, qu. 470
Revenue, qu. 614, qu. 827
Tariff bill, 3476-7. See also Customs Tariff
Tariff resolutions, 2118
Amended, 2854
Toronto customs house, qu. 470
Valuation for Duty. See Currency, Customs Act
Wines and spirits
Exportation of, 2854
In bond, 3229

Customs Tariff, 1907, Act Amdt. bill (Marking of imported goods; duties; amended rates; drawbacks; prohibited goods) Res. 1r., 2r., com., 3476; 3r., 3477

Customs Tariff Items
Adzes, cleavers, etc., 3127
Agate ware, 3118
Anti-dumping clause. See under this title, Dumping
Blankets, 3128, 3132, 3231
M. (Mr. Spencer), 3234, neg. 3235
Book and coated papers, 3108
Boots and shoes, 3236
M. (Mr. Shaw) to reduce, neg. 3238
Changes in. See also Tariff revision
Chinese. See that title
Cigarettes, 3107
Cigars, 3107
Clothes wringers, etc., 3140
Coated papers, 3108
Cocoa, 2116, 3106
Cotton fabrics, 3127
Cultivators, harrows, etc., 3120
Dairy tinware, 3118
Drugs, 3114
Dumping clause, 304, 2184, 2197, 2275, 2494, 2641, 2879, 3188, 3411-13, 3477. See also Customs Tariff Act Amdt.
Fishing hooks, etc., 3140
Flannels, 3137
Fruit and vegetable grading machines, 3126
Gasoline, 3115
Glass bottles, etc., 3117
Harness and saddlery, 3137
Hatters' bands, 3139
Hatters' plush, 3141
Incubators, etc., 3126
Iron and steel tubing, 3118
Linen yarn, 3128
Magazines, 3108
Marking Act, repeal, 3104
Milking machines, 3126
Mowers and harvesters, 3118
Paper invalid cups, 3115
Paper milk bottle caps, 3113-14
Ploughs, etc., 3121, 3229
M. (Mr. Johnston) to reduce, 3121, 3229
Portable and traction engines, 3231
Pump parts, 3127
Sawmill machinery, 3126
Settlers' effects, 3140
Silk cloth, 3137
Street rollers, 3126
Sugar, 3107
Threshing machines, parts, 3124
Tools, 3127
Tractors, 3123

Customs Tariff Items — Con.
White cotton fabrics, 3128
Window shades, etc., 3127
Wool and cotton yarns, 3127
Wool and woollen goods, 3233
Woollen clothing, 3235

Dairy Cattle. See Agriculture, Accredited Herds; Live Stock

Dairying Industry. See also Address; Budget; Oleomargarine
British Columbia Dairymen's Association, 1794
Butter. See that title under Agriculture
Competition with other countries, 178
Duties on utensils, reduction in, 2115, 2205, 3118
Exports and imports, 209
Grading of products, 655-6
Implements, reduction of duties on, 2115, 2205, 3118
Milk supply, inspection of herds, 2740. See also Agriculture, Accredited Herds, Health of Animals
National Dairy Council and oleomargarine, 1791
Oleomargarine, 1791, 2205. See also that title

Dalrymple, Mr. J. E., qu. 728

Dandurand, Hon. Senator, 1128

d'Anjou, Mr. Emmanuel (Rimouski)
Address in reply, 306; parliamentary rights of French language, 306; economy in Government expenditure, 307
Military expenditure and policy, 1593

D'Arcy Island lazaretto, 2021

Dartmouth, N.S. air station, 1724

Dauphinee, Mr. Charles, dimissal of, 1902, 2458, 2584

Davies, Mr. C. C. (North Battleford)
Wheat Board, participation certificates, funds, qu. 2304

Davies, Right Hon. Sir Louis, K.C.M.G., Deputy of the Governor General, 3610

Daylight Saving, 227, qu. 372
House of Commons, and, 1282
M. (Mr. Kay) for legislation to prohibit, 942, 943
Amdt. (Mr. Duff) 959; Neg. 1314

Deathbed Cases. See Returned Soldiers Insurance Act Amdt.

Debates. See House of Commons

Debeaux, Mr. Robert, claim of, 2306

Debt, Public. See Address; Budget; Finance; Loans; Public Debt

Deceased Soldiers. See Soldiers
Insurance claims of heirs, 1349. See also Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act
Widowed Mothers. See Pensions

Dechene, Mr. A. M. (Montmagny)
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill) 1801

Deep Sea Racing. See International Deep Sea Racing

Deep Waterway and Power Association. See St. Lawrence River Waterway

Defence. See Militia and Defence; National Defence; Naval Service

Deficits. See Canadian National Railways

Deflation of Credit. See Finance

Deflation and Inflation of prices. See speeches on Address and Budget

Delinquents. See Juvenile delinquents

Delphine, Colonel, 303

Delta, Manitoba, protective works, 3545

Demers, Captain, 1492

Demers, Mr. M. J. (St. Johns and Iberville)
Income tax, Montreal office, qu. 607

Demobilization. See also Militia, Annual Drill; War Claims
Estimates, 1171
Expenditure, 1155, 1163, 1171

Denis, Mr. J. Arthur (St. Denis)
Address in reply, 348. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker; immigration; Laurier-Fielding tariff, 348
Lamontagne, Mr. Ernest, qu. 824

Denis, Mr. Jean J. (Joliette)
Budget, 2887. Tribute to Finance Minister; budget proposals generally satisfactory; extravagance of Union Government; acquisition of Railways; Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine; credits to Balkan states; revenue and expenditure, 2888; Progressive party; compromise and co-operation Canada a hard country to govern; Wheat Board; freight rates, 2889; railway

Denis, Mr. Jean J. — Con.
Budget — Con.
deficits made good by East; free trade, 2890; tobacco industry, protection of, 2891
Milk supply, inspection of herds, 2740
Ministers and Directorships, 1113
Solders' insurance, 3321

Denmark, Expedition to Ellesmere Island, 1751

Dennis Building, Halifax, qu. 3360

Department of National Defence bill. See National Defence

Departmental Expenditure. See Supply

Departmental Law officers, 683, 2572

Dependency. See Pensions, Widowed Mothers

Deportation. See Immigration; Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt.; Oriental Aliens

Depreciated Currency. See Currency; Customs

Deputy Ministers. See Militia Estimates; National Defence Bill; Naval Service
Salaries of, 752

Deputy Registrar. See Admiralty Act Amdt. bill

Deputy Sergeant-at-Arms, appointment, 5

Deputy Speaker and Chairman of Committees (Mr. George N. Gordon)
Election of, 363
Rulings and statements of. See also House of Commons; Marcil; Speaker
Amendments
Already covered, 3147-8
Anticipatory, 2973
Increasing charge on revenue, 3404
Member having already spoken, cannot move, 3558
Moved separately, 3401
Previous, 3148
Bills
Casting vote of Chairman, 3473
New sections proposed, 3445
Private
Com. may not refer back, 1747
Relevancy, 1858
Public
Amdt. dealt with by another amdt. on order paper, 2973

Deputy Speaker and Chairman of Committees — Con.
Rnlings and Statements of — Con.
Chair
Decision given, final, 3354
Member may not criticise ruling, 555, 2974
Ruling of non-debatable, 1898
Debate
Inaudibility of, 1755
Member speaking given opportunity to answer questions, 1889
Rule 18, tedious repetition, 1361
Debates, Official Report of
Insertion of documents not read, 1539, 3526
Decorum, courtesy to member speaking, 2090
Language, "Breach of duty", 3354
Members
Desiring to speak, must rise, 1985
May ask question but not make statement, 2489
May not criticise ruling of Chair, 555, 2974
Must put question without argument, 2340
Not in order in discussing ruling of Chair, 555, 2974
Speaking, need not answer questions unless willing, 2318, 2619, 2710
Opportunity to answer, 1889
To rise if vote desired, 3456
Ministers
Not required to answer questions, 2777
On item, may discuss general policy, 555
Motions
Amdt. to Amdt. in supply, 1579
Involving charge on revenue, must be made by minister, 3404
Non-debatable
That committee rise, 1181
Supply, in, 1579
Two, amending same item, 1982
Questions to be put without argument, 2340, 2489
Railway Commission, salaries not included in vote, 2776-8
Reference to judges and high officials, 2778
Relevancy, 404, 406, 671, 736, 1470, 1476, 1898, 3141
Cash bonus to soldiers, discussion, 404
Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway, bill, 1603
Grain Inquiry commission, 2988
Hudson Bay railway, 2780

Deputy Speaker and Chairman of Committees — Con.
Rulings and Statements of — Con.
Senate, indemnity, 3509
Supply
General policy of department, 560
No question before com. on which to base discussion, 1900
Relevancy, 1135, 2089, 3527, 3545
Lindsay arsenal, 2089
Militia and Defence items to be discussed separately, 1139-40-42
Penitentiaries, 1279
Quebec arsenal, 2095
Quebec riots, 2090
Rails and car repair contracts, 1698
Railway commission, estimates, 2776-8
Railways and Canals, 1135
Two motions, amending same item, 1982
Vote
Casting of, by Chairman, 3473
Desire for in com. to be indicated by members rising, 3456

Derelicts. See Marine and Fisheries

Desbarats, Mr. J. B. See National Defence

Deserted Wives. See Pensions

Deslauriers, Mr. Hermas (St. Mary)
Aluminum Electric Co., qu. 728, qu. 1375
Bland, Mr. C. H., qu. 1773
Boon, Mr. W. R., qu. 728
Canada-West Indies steamship service, qu. 2356
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, employees at Montreal, qu. 2992
Canadian National Railways
Electrification, M. 627
Champlain steamer, sale of, qu. 1400
Civil Service
Classification, printed copies of, qu. 1930
Commission, Mr. Putman, 3090
Imperial council, qu. 2803
Marconi Wireless Telegraph Co., qu. 1065
Militia and Defence, permanent force, qu. 2637
Montreal Harbour Commission
Paint purchases, qu. 602
Policemen, qu. 2992
Tugs, qu. 600
Occupational diseases, protection against, M., 1378
Personal explanation, Civil Service estimates, 3365
St. Vincent de Paul penitentiary, qu. 2804
Veit, Mr. A. E. J. M., qu. 1773

Destructive Insect and Pest Act, qu. 472, 3520. See also Entomology

Detective Firms, American, 670

Detroit River
Armed cruisers on, qu. 2214
Regulation of navigation, 1498. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway

Deville, Dr. E. C., 1044, 1048

Dickie, Mr. C. H. (Nanaimo)
Address in reply, 341. Women and the franchise, 341; Pacific and Great Eastern railway; Grand Trunk Pacific and railway problem, 342; coal and fuel oil; Japanese and the fisheries, 344: returned soldiers, problems, 345; depletion of British Columbia fisheries, 346; dry dock at Esquimalt; British Columbia tariff views, 347
Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway bill, 1603
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill) 1828
Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 1523

Digby, N.S., pier, 1760

Digby-St. John Steamship Service, 3035

Dinosaurs, purchase of specimens, 1237

Directors, Board of. See Canadian National Railways

Directorships. See Ministers and directorships

Disability Soldier cases. See Pensions Committee

Disallowance of Ontario legislation, qu. 2805, qu. 2992

Disarmament. See Militia and Defence; National Defence; Naval Service Conference on. See Limitation of Armaments

Diseases
Infectious. See Penitentiary Act Amdt.
Occupational, of workmen. See that title

Disfranchisement. See Dominion Elections Act

Distressed Canadians, relief of, 2027

Divisions. See House of Commons

Dockyards. See also Naval Service
Halifax and Esquimalt, 1752

Doctors. See Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment

Doherty, Right Hon. C. J.
Payments to, 2572
Reported engaged on Newfoundland-Labrador boundary case, qu. 704, 2572

Doherty, Hon. Manning, 334, 974, 987. See also Cattle Embargo
Visit to England, papers, 1283, 1334

Domestic Loans. See Loans

Domestic. Servants, Immigration of. See Immigration

Domicile of Voter. See Dominion Elections Act Amdt.

Dominion Bureau of Statistics. See Statistics

Dominion Coal Company. See Nova Scotia Miners

Dominion Elections. See Elections of 1921; Proportional Representation

Dominion Elections Act
Abuses under, 184-5
Amendments, qu. 470
Campaign funds, qu. 1508
Enfranchisement of women of alien birth M. (Mr. Euler) 473, agreed to, 493
Removal from statute books, 184
Residential qualification, M. (Mr. Rinfret) 1296, agreed to, 1301

Dominion Elections Act Amdt. (Alien women; Domicile of voter)
1r., 1796; 2r., com., 2809; 3r., 3817
Subjects and sections discussed:
Election day, public holiday Amdt. (Mr. Neill) 2812
Elector's residence, change of, 2809
New polls, establishment of Amdt. (Mr. Caldwell) 2815
Senate amdts. concurred in, 3486

Dominion Iron and Steel Corporation, 2419-20. See also Nova Scotia Miners
Contract for steel plates, claim for damages, 417, qu. 704, 1677-80, 1689, 2170
Legal expenses, 3497
Delivery of seel plates, 3508

Dominion Lands
Contingencies, 1037
Estimates, 1035
Forest reserves. See Forestry
Homestead entry, 1041
Reclamation by drainage, 1051
Salaries, 1035
Sale of, qu. 376

Dominion Lands — Con.
Sub-agencies closed, qu. 1181
Surveys, 1037
Dr. Deville, 1044
M. to reduce, vote, 1039
Reduction of vote by $30,000, 1044-6

Dominion Lands, Notices of Cancellation of Leases bill
1r., 3151; 2r., com., 3465; 3r., 3475
Senate amdts., non-concurrence; free conference 3613; concurrence, 3616

Dominion Lands and Parks
Canadian National parks, 168, 1051
Visitors to, 1052
Migratory birds, 1684
Wolves, destruction of live stock by, 990, 998

Dominion Notes. See Finance

Dominion Observatory, Ottawa Building, 1265

Dominion Police. See National Defence; Royal Canadian Mounted Police

Dominion Public Buildings. See Public Buildings

Dominion Statistician. See Statistics

Dominion Textile Company, 200, 583, 1106, 1130

Dorchester Penitentiary. See Penitentiaries

Doughty, Dr. A. B., 702

Douglas Credit System. See Finance; Irvine

Doukhobors. See Immigration

Drainage. See Dominion lands

Drawbacks. See Customs

Drayton, Hon. Sir Henry L. (West York)
Address in reply, 195. Provincial prejudices; Mr. Macdonald of Pictou; Minister of Finance and railways, 196; financial outlook; election, popular support of parties, 197; redistribution, campaign literature, 198; public works and unemployment; Halifax patronage committee, 199; Minister of Labour and trusts and combines; Sir Charles Gordon; Canada Cement and Dominion Textile Companies, 200; British Empire Steel Corporation, 200-1; position of Prime Minister and Mr. Crerar; railway policy, 201; Canadian Northern in Ontario, 202; railway

Drayton. Hon. Sir Henry — Con.
Address in reply — Con.
lines in United States, 204; national ownership, 205; Sir Lomer Gouin and the big interests, 206; proposed King-Crerar alliance; leader of Opposition and insult to Quebec; 207; tariff present and former, 208; reciprocity; Fordney tariff, 209; imports and exports of agricultural commodities, 209; reciprocity, 208-211
Adjournment, item stands, 596
Admiralty Act Amdt. bill, 2822
Agricultural implements, drawback, 3122
Air Board, 1728, 1735
Air Board Act Amdt. bill, 2821
Alcohol tax, 1213
American magazines, 3110
Auditor General's office, 793
Budget, date of, inquiry, 1018, 1463, 1503
Budget, 2127. Loans; congratulations to Minister of Finance; financial situation; revenue, 2171; optimism and work; taxes, estimated revenue from; trade agreements; customs and currency valuations, 2172; German competition, 2173; marking of goods; income tax; tariff changes, 2174; agricultural implements, drawbacks, 2175; alcohol for druggists, 2176; beet sugar industry; new taxation, 2177; trade with United States; unemployment, 2178; political honesty; amdt. proposed, 2179
Business of the House
Members, payment of, 3611
Canada Grain Act, administration, 2834
Canada Shipping Act Amdt. bill, 3010
Pilotage, 2820
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 2733
Senate amendments, 3608
Canadian Institute for the Blind, 3540
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3477-86
Census
Completion of, 1363
Cost, 1363
Civil service bonus, 3530
Coal for public buildings, 1759
Criminal Code Amdt. bill, 2831
Fines to municipalities, 2832
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com. 1442
Amdt. 1444. See also under this title
Freight Rates
Customs Act and Dept. of Customs bill, 3477
Customs and Excise Dept., employees, 765

Drayton. Hon. Sir Henry — Con.
Customs tariff
Book and coated papers, 3108
Cigars, 3107
Cocoa, 3106
Drugs, 3114
Gasoline, 3116
Marking Act, 3105
Pump parts, 3127
Wool and Woollen goods, 3129, 3130, 3233
Customs Tariff Act Amdt. bill, 3476
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 957
Anonymous letters, 944
Drayton-Acworth report, 126
Elevators, terminal, 2978
Estimates
Accounts chargeable, current or past year, 1675
Discussion of general policy, 767
Exchequer Court, estimates, 1274
Finance Dept.
Charges of management, 770
Salaries, 753
Fisheries Act Amdt. bill, 3011
Fishing tackle, 3140
Freight rates, Special Com., third report, 3555
Amdt. 3559. See also under this title Crowsnest pass
French trade treaty, 3224
German goods, valuation, 2172, 3227
Grain
Inquiry Commission, 2984-6
Shipment of via Quebec, 1466
Grand Trunk arbitration, newspaper comments, 821
Harbours and rivers, estimates, 1765
Health dept. estimates, 775
Housing, 774
Immigration facilities at Quebec, 1466
Income War Tax Act Amdt. bill, 3485
Inland Revenue
Alcohol for druggists, 3242
Sugar beet, tax on, 3242
Inland Revenue Act Amdt. bill, 3477
Insurance Dept. 792
Interim Supply, 373, 378, 383, 598
Interior dept.
Economy, 456
Salaries, 452
Typewriters, 455
Justice dept.
Appropriations exceeded, 1279
Contingencies, 1669
Labour dept.
Appointments, 462
Salaries, 548

Drayton. Hon. Sir Henry — Con.
League of Nations, 3174
Secretariat, Canada's contribution, 3990
Loans, 2127
New Canadian, 1133
Special Loans bill, 3476
Meat and Canned Foods bill, 3149
Militia and Defence
Amalgamation of services, 419
Naval Service, 422
War claims, adjustment, 2974
Montreal Harbour Commission bill, 3199
Naval service, 1737
New departmental buildings, Ottawa, 3541
Non-productive assets, 1467
Nova Scotia miners, 509, 512
M. (Mr. Irvine 540)
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. bill, 3489
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. bill, 2824
Penitentiaries, inmates, increase in number, 1279
Penny Bank Act Amdt. bill, 3043
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3404, 3439-64
Pensions
Commutation of, 390
Widowed mothers, M. (Mr. Power) 1308
Prime Minister, secretaries, 411
Printing plants, tax, 3410
Public Accounts, delay in closing, 1264
Public buildings
Coal for, 1759
Expenditure, 1260
Public Service Retirement bill, 3148
Quebec Harbour Commission bill, 1465-86, 3195
Quebec harbour, Parc St. Charles Co., 1470
Railway Commission, statement of Mr. Carvell, 2774
Redistribution
Census and, 1363, 1369
M. (Mr. Shaw), 1769
Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act Amdt. bill, 3389, 3397, 3438
Revenue and Audit Act, 3042
St. Lawrence river waterway, correspondence, 2207
Sales tax collections, 1921-22, qu. 1212
Saskatchewan, export of liquor, 3000, 3002
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment
Capital expenditure, 1279
Patients, care and medical examination of, 1280
Soulanges canal, 2768
Special War Revenue Act Amdt. bill, 3477
Cheque tax, 3258
Supreme Court Act Amdt. bill, 2974
Supreme Court, pre-audit, 1274

Drayton. Hon. Sir Henry — Con.
Tariff Commissioner, appointment, 1664
Transcontinental railway, 917
Transportation Costs, Special Com. See under this title, Crowsnest pass; Freight Rates
Treaties of Peace with Hungary and Turkey, bill, 3547
United States, operation of railways in Canada, 192
Vancouver Harbour Commission bill, 2822
Vickers, Limited, 2975-7
War claims
Adjustment of, 2974, 2977
Exchange, 1758
War Graves Commission, 774
Weston post office building, 1259

Drayton-Acworth report, 46, 125, 130

Dredges and Dredging. See also Marine; Public Works
Estimates, 2005
Plamonder, 2006
Port Nelson, 2006
Quebec harbour, 1483
Red river channel, 2007
St. Lawrence river ship channel
De Beaujeu bank, 1495
New elevator dredge, 1495
St. Marys river, 2006
Shuswap lake, 2006

Druggists, alcohol for, 2114. See also Alcohol

Drumheller mines, 85, 1058

Drummond, Mr. J. D. F. (West Middlesex)
Beet sugar industry, 2273, 3251
Budget, 2272. Progressives, attitude towards; public debt; duty on beet sugar, 2272; tariff, duty on agricultural implements; farmers not asking special privileges, 2274
Goderich harbour, improvement, 2002

Drury, Hon. E.C., and Drury Government, 63, 125, 127, 134, 334
Lake of the Woods, control. 2991. See that title
Land tax, and, 2491

Dry Docks
Burrard Dry Dock Company, 2008
Esquimalt, 347
Appropriation, 3541
Pacific Coast on, 2401
Subsidies to, 2008
Vancouver, 2005, 2008, 3542

Drysdale, Mr. Justice, retirement of, 1275

Duff, Mr. William (Lunenburg)
Air Board, qu. 366
Air Force and civil aviation, 1724
Banff-Windermere road, 1683
British Columbia fisheries, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 857
Canada Shipping Act Amdt. (Pilotage) bill, 2819
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine
Cost, etc., qu. 469
Subsidized steamship services, 3031
Canadian national parks, expenditure, 1681
Canned fish, marking of tins, 3048
Civil Service
Commission, qu. 364
Overmanning, 3099
Patronage, 3094
Rural postmasters, 3095-6
Con Rein, sinking of, 1384
Courtenay Bay works, qu. 365
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) amdt. 959
Distressed seamen, relief of, 1676
Dominion Iron and Steel Corporation contract, 1677
Fishing schooner race, 1384, 3513
Flags, cost of, qu. 599, 1264, 1268
Halifax terminals, qu. 364
Harbours and rivers
Expenditure, details of, 1272
Ontario, 2000
International deep sea racing
M. for encouragement, 1384, 3513
Marine and Fisheries
Capt. O'Hara, 1490
Examination of masters and mates, 1490
Migratory birds, 1685
Military and naval expenditures, reduction, 1139
National Defence bill, 740
Naval policy, 2052
Naval Service
Aurora, cruiser, 2053
Royal Canadian navy, qu. 366, 1848, 1871, 2052
Navigation off Newfoundland coast, aids to, 1498
Nova Scotia pensioners, qu. 615
Public buildings, flags, qu. 599, 1264, 1269
Toronto harbour works, qu. 365
Tourist traffic, 1683
Unemployment, 1683
War service badge, 1754
Wooden ships, qu. 364

Dumping Clause. See Customs and Excise

Duties. See Customs and Excise; Customs Tariff

Dynevor Hospital, 1218

Easter Adjournment. See House of Commons

Eastern Car Company, car repairs, 1706

Eastern La Have Transportation Company. See Con Rein

Eastern Maine Railway, 1293

Economic Depression, 6, 10, 85, 157, 237-8, 3299. See also speeches on Address; Budget

Economy in Administration, necessity for, 7, 52, 97, 122, 455-6. See also speeches on Address; Budget; Civil Service; Supply

Eddie, Captain, 1493

Edison, Mr. T. A., credit system, 2505

Editorial Committee, 1235-6

Edmonton
Indian school, proposed, 1227-9. See also Indians
Post office building, alteration, 1254

Edmundston
Post office, qu. 608
Public building, 1239, 1242

Education
Indians. See that title
Orientals in British Columbia, 317. See also Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie)
Rural schools in Ontario, 2385, 2565
School boards, refusal of bank to advance money to, 2627
School lands, 339
School system, 2385
Taxes in school districts, 2714

Eggs
Chinese, importation of, 177
Cold storage in, 2562
Exportation, 813
Imported into Canada, qu. 612
Inspection and standardizing, 177, qu. 727, 811-812

Eight-Hour Day. See Daylight Saving; Labour

Election Day. See Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill

Election of Speaker. See Speaker

Election of 1921
Campaign, 21, 40-41, 51, 61, 99, 140, 198, 265, 288. See also Address; Budget; Proportional Representation

Election of 1921 — Con.
Campaign — Con.
Brantford at, 255, 256
Charlotte, N.B., county in, 1997
Funds, and protected interests, 2437, 2732
Literature, 99
Statements by Sir Lomer Gouin, 140
Chief Electoral Officer, report, 1258
Deposits refunded, qu. 1067
Liberal pledges, cash grants to soldiers, 102, 400. See also Liberal Convention; Soldiers' Bonus
Maritime provinces in, 315-316
Minority government, 197. See also speeches on Address; Budget
Number of votes cast, 197
Pledges and promises, 243. See also Liberal Convention; Soldiers' Bonus
Rail and car repair contracts, prior to, 1688
Results, 61, 142, 186, 197, 2282, 2654, 2851, 2909-2910,
By provinces, 46
Returning officer, Carleton, 3538, 3602, 3604
Unit of representation, 198
Voters, failure to vote, 1112
Women, 1113

Electoral System. See Proportional Representation

Electric Power. See also Aluminum Company; Hydro Electric; Lake of the Woods; St. Lawrence River Waterway; Water Powers
Campbell river, 1355
Railways and, 1940

Electrical storm in the West, 3493

Electrification of Railways, 133, 630. See also Canadian National Railways; Railways; St. Lawrence River Waterway
M. (Mr. Deslauriers) withdrawn, 639

Elevators. See Grain and Grain Trade; Wheat Board

Elk Island Park, fencing, 1051

Ellesmere Island
Danish expedition to, 1751
Royal Canadian Mounted Police at, 3497

Elliott, Mr. William (South Waterloo)
Budget, 2348. Tribute to Minister of Finance; tariff proposals a step in the right direction; national debt; revenue and expenditure; civil service; United States tariff; development of natural Elliott, Mr. William — Con.

Budget — Con.
resources, 2348; markets, building up of industry at expense of agriculture; high cost of living, unemployment; labour conditions; boots and shoes; labour cost; woollen cloth, labour cost, 2350; woollen clothing, price and labour cost, 2350; permanent tariff commission; claims for tariff protection, 2351
Galt post office building, 1247

Embargo
Cattle. See Cattle Embargo
Manure, exportation of, 1021

Emigration. See Immigration

Empire, British
Foreign policy and defence, 1629. See also Limitation of Armaments; National Defence bill; Naval Service

Empire Day adjournment. See House of Commons

Employment Offices Co-ordination Act, 1058

Employment Service. See Labour

Enemy Debts. See Treaties with Hungary and Turkey

Enemy Property. See Aliens, Enemy Property

Enfranchisement
Indians of. See Indian Act Amdt. bill
Women of alien birth. See Dominion Elections Act

English River water powers. See Lake of the woods

Entomology, 813. See also Destructive Insects
Spruce bud moth, 1049

Escheats Act Amdt. bill (Time in which action must be brought)
1r., 2456; 2r., com., 2826; 3r., 3026; Senate amdts. 3486

Espionage. See Labour; Royal Canadian Mounted Police

Esquimalt. See also Naval Service
Dry dock; 347, 596-7
Appropriation, 3541
Royal naval college at 2047, 2203, 2450

Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway Company bill. See Private Bills Discussed

Essence de l'Erable, qu. 1774

Estimates. See also Deputy Speaker; House of Commons; Interim Supply; Speaker; Supplementary Estimates; Supply. For departments, See their titles
Accounts chargeable to current or past year, 1675
"Appropriations not required", 1263
Classification and preparation, 569
Comparison with last year, 384
Consideration of, 3526
Details of, 1347
Government economy in, 381-382
Information not up to date, 1267
Items, reading of, 3545
Main
Comparison with last year, 381
Tabled, 363
One-fourth vote. See Interim Supply
Supplementary, tabled, 1258, 3463
War claims, details of, qu. 1288

Ethier, Mr. J. A. C. (Laval-Two Mountains)
Bankruptcy Act Amdt bill, 1132, 1662
Indians, Oka agent, 1217

Euler, Mr. William D. (North Waterloo)
Agriculture Com. report, Wheat Board, 781
Alien Birth, women of, enfranchisement, M., 473, 480
Canadian National Railways
Canadian Northern deficit, 1906
Public ownership operation, 1948
Re-valuation, 1926
Civil Service, promotions, 576
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 950
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill) 1788
Quebec public utilities, 1912
Railway policy, 1948

European Credits. See Loans

European War. See War

Evans, Mr. John (Saskatoon)
Address, 300. Agriculture in a deplorable state; rates on grain; railway consolidation, 300; tariff and trade prevention, 301; national policy a failure, 302: freer trade relations, 303; protected combines; railway question, 304; tariff views of different parties; returned soldier farmers, 305
Agricultural implements
Dumping clause, 2360
Importation by United Grain Growers, 3118, 3119
Agriculture dept., professional men, 588
American magazines, 3113

Evans, Mr. John — Con.
Apple industry, 3417
Armorial bearings of Canada, Welsh emblem, 3601
Beef hides, 3138
Blankets, duty on, 3130
British preference and Canadian ports, M. (Mr. Logan) 711
Canadian National railways, public ownership, 1963
Canadian Pacific Railway bill, 1608
Canadian Press, Limited, 772
Crowsnest pass agreement
Telegram of Mr. Motherwell to Calgary Board of Trade, 2358
Customs
Drawbacks, 765, qu. 828, 1067
Dumping clause, 2360, 3417
Fruit-growers, protection, 3417, 3425
Hudson Bay railway, completion, 2795
Humboldt-Fort Pitt telegraph line, 2007
Immigration
Medical inspection, 759
Money qualification, 3058
Unrestricted, 3062
Live stock industry, 989
Mowers and harvesters, 3118
Naval policy, 2072
Post office salaries, 2801
Railway policy, 1963
Saskatoon post office building, 1253
Soldiers' land settlement, 305, 2132
Steamship subsidies, qu. 614
Welland ship canal, 2758

Excess Profits tax. See Taxation

Exchange. See also Finance
Claim by British Admiralty for refund, 1752
Foreign, 2264
Rate of, 286
Soldiers' money on, 3339, 3348

Exchequer Court of Canada
Admiralty, vacancies, 1275. See also Admiralty Act
Estimates, 1274

Excise Taxes. See Customs and Excise; Inland Revenue Act Amdt.; Special War Revenue Act

Exemptions. See Income Tax Act; Special War Revenue Act
Pilotage dues, from. See Canada Shipping Act Amdt.

Exhibitions, 2582. See also Agriculture; Live Stock; Trade and Commerce

Exhibitions — Con.
Agricultural. See that title
Canadian National, 2990
Estimates, 2026
France, in, 2031, 2990
Grants to, 649, 977, 3521
London, 2027
Tampa, Florida, 2026

Expenditure. See Finance; Public Expenditure

Experimental and Illustration Farms. See Agriculture

Explosives Act, 1234

Export Liquor warehouses. See Liquor

Exports. See that title under Imports and Exports; Trade

Ex-service Men, representative. See Pensions Committee

External Affairs, Department of
Con Rein, sinking of, 1382
Doherty, Hon. Manning, 1283
Papers and memorandum, 1334
Salaries and contingencies, 411, 3509
War claims, adjustment of. See War claims

Fafard, Mr. J. Fernand (L'Islet)
Butter imports, qu. 614
Canadian National railways, water supply, qu. 2213

Fair Wage Clause. See Labour

False Creek, removal of bridge, 3516

Fansher, Mr. B. W. (East Lambton)
Beet Sugar industry, 2232, 3246, 3251
M. to reduce duty, 3248
Budget, 2229. Fiscal policy; tariff revision; encouragement of native industries; agricultural implements; sales tax; business profits tax; protected industries, 2230-1; automobiles, duty and tax; beet sugar industry, 2232
Customs drawbacks, qu. 2356

Far Eastern Treaty, 3160. See also Limitation of Armaments

Farm Implements. See Agricultural Implements

Farm Lands, value of, 2565

Farm Products
Consumption in Canada, 2650. See also Budget
Decline in prices, 6, 11, 77, 93, 95, 113, 150, 225, 231. See also Address; Agriculture; Budget; Live stock
Fordney tariff, effect of, 209. See also United States, Fordney tariff
Exchange value of, 2576
Importation, 209
Trade in, 226. See also Trade

Farmers
Block in United States, 69, 210, 988. See also Address; Budget; Trade; United States
Eight-hour day and, 227. See also Daylight Saving
Geographical advantages, 297-9
Immigration of, 145, 225. See also that title
Income tax returns, 226, qu. 1063, 2241, 2631. See also Income Tax
Labour, 79, 87, 251, 337, 1153. See also Address; Budget; Immigration; Labour; Unemployment
Loyalty of, 526
Need of encouragement, 252
Profits, comparison of, 2333
Protection and. See Agricultural Implements; Budget
Remedial legislation, 157
Representation in Parliament. See Progressives
Sons, exemption from military service, 440, 448-9, 2685. See also, Military Service Act Amdt.
Transportation problems. See Freight rates
Want of confidence in future, 143
Western, 146-7, 357
And wheat marketing. See Wheat Board
Grievances, 2652

Farmers' Movement and Party. See Progressive Party

Federal Civilian Force. See National Defence bill; Royal Canadian Mounted Police

Federal Elections Act. See Dominion Elections Act

Federal Representation by provinces, in 1877, qu. 1183

Federal Subsidies. See Subsidies

Feed Control Act, 1011

Female Suffrage. See also Dominion Elections Act
Failure of women to vote, 1113

Fertilizers. See also Agricultural Fertilizers bill
Cost of, 770
Duty on, 3140-3141
Freight rates on, 1022
Ground limestone, 1024
Inspectors, 592
Natural, exportation of, 1019
Tariff and, 2664

Fiduciary Interest. See Ministers and Directorships

Fielding, Hon. W. S. (Minister of Finance)
Agricultural implements, duty on, 3120, 3141. See also under this title, Customs Tariff
Alcohol for druggists, duty on, 2114, 3241
Alleged election promises, Charlotte, N.B. 1997
American magazines, 3108-3111
Appropriation Acts, 363, 598-9, 1842-3, 3607
Auditor General's office, 793
Auditor General's report
Public Works, expenditure of previous year, 1270
Referred to public Accounts Com., 1462
Automobiles, 2850, 2853, 3275. See also under this title, Special War Revenue Act
Refund of taxes, 3600
Value up to $1,000 for settlers, 2116
Banks
Circulation, tax on, 2117
Interest rates, 3602
Beet Sugar. See under this title, Sugar
Board of Commerce, 1715
Boy Scouts, 772-773
British Columbia government, criticism, 2237
Budget, inquiries as to date of, 1018, 1463, 1503
Budget Speech, 2104; Financial position of Dominion, 2104-17; economy, income and expenditure, 2104; public debt, 2106; loans, 2107; trade, 2108; trade agreements and negotiations; tariff revision, 2110-14; British preference; trade with United States, 2111; Marking and valuation; currency, 2113; certificate of trade or consular agent; tariff reductions, 2114; new taxation, 2116; financial situation; tariff resolutions, 2118

Fielding, Hon. W. S. — Con.
Budget — Con.
Supplementary statement, 2842. Acknowledgement of tributes and congratulations, 2842; attitude of Progressives towards Budget, 2842; step in right direction; Liberal policy as declared in 1921, supported by Progressive members; a policy of moderation; tariff and sales tax, 2843; land and inheritance taxes; tariff proposals; tariff revision of 1897; predictions of bankers and manufacturers; trade revival; reduction in duties, 2844; change in policy of Sir John Macdonald; British preference; Sir Charles Tupper; reciprocity; "no truck or trade with Yankees"; opposition of Conservative party to trade arrangement; Liberal party ready to discuss question; value of United States market; Windsor Hall speech, 2846; industrial condition of Germany, 2847; depreciated currency; value of mark and commodity prices; trade with Germany; treaty of Versailles; valuation of currency, 2848; increased taxation effect of currency valuation on Italian trade; a protectionist budget; downward revision; Progressives would not have been able to do more; direction in which Liberal party is looking, 2849; drawbacks and refunds; Ford motor company; Atlantic Sugar refineries; goods in transit; manufacture for export, 2850; Opposition amdt.; Liberal platform of 1919; verdict of electors; proposed changes in budget proposals; amended resolutions, 2851; tax on confectionery; soft drinks; ale, beer, porter and stout; cigarettes; fertilizers and dried beet pulp; cheque tax, 2852; bond and stock transfers, 2853; beet root sugar; raw leaf tobacco; receipts; cigars; automobiles; depreciated currency, 2853
Business of the House. See also under this title, Estimates; Supply
Amdt. to amdt. (Mr. Crerar) 2473-74, 2522
Civil government items, 374
Daylight saving, 1282
Member interrupting, must ask permission, 255-6
Privilege, right to raise on Orders of the day, 2638
Questions standing as orders for returns, 1660

Fielding, Hon. W. S. — Con.
Business of the House — Con
Special loan bill, 3151
Supplementary estimates, 3365
Supply, concurrence, 1842
Business profits war tax, 1658, 2024
Canadian battlefields, 772
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3156, 3366, 3477-86
Canadian Press, Limited, 772
Canadian Transit Company bill, 1747, 1771
Cattle embargo, reported statement of Mr Larkin, 1023
Chartered banks, returns, 865
Cheque tax, 2117, 2852, 3258
Cigars and cigarettes, tax on, 2852, 3239, 3240
Commissioner of Taxation, salary, 2024
Confectionery, tax on, 2852
Congratulations to on fortieth year of public life, 3279
Consolidated Revenue and Audit Act Amdt. bill, 1210, 3042
Currency Act, 1910, Amdt. bill, 1132, 3042
Currency, depreciated, valuation for customs, 2113, 2849, 2853
Customs Act and Dept of Customs and Excise Act Amdt. bill, 3222, 3476, 3477
Depreciated currency, 3223, 3224, 3410
Dumping clause, 3225, 3411
German goods, valuation, 3229
Invoices certificates, 3221
Wines and spirits in bond, 3229
Customs drawbacks, 2850, 3141
Customs Tariff
Blankets, 3128, 3131, 3136, 3234
Book and coated papers, 3108
Boots and shoes, 3238
Cigars, 3107
Cocoa, 3106
Cotton, fabrics, 3128
Gasoline, 3106, 3115, 3116
Glass bottles, 3117
Grading machines, 3126
Hatters' bands, 3140
Invalids' wheel chairs, 3115
Marking Act, 3105
Mowers and harvesters, 3118
Paper invalid cups, 3115
Paper milk bottle caps, 3114
Ploughs, 3121, 3229
Pumping machinery, 3127
Reductions, 3239
Saw-mill machinery, 3126
Silk, 3127
Tools, 3127
Tractors, 3123

Fielding, Hon. W. S. — Con.
Dominion Iron and Steel Corporation, claim, 2170
Dumping clause, 3225, 3411.
Estimates. See also under this title; Supply
Accounts chargeable to current year, 1675
"Appropriations not required", 1269
Items, urgent, 409
Procedure, 409
Tabled
Main, 363
Supplementary, 1258, 2465
Fabre, Madame, pension, 2024
Fertilizers, duty on, 2852, 3141
Finance Dept.
Charges of management, 770
Deputy minister, 753
Estimates, 751, 1663, 3495
Legal expenses, railways, 1667
Loans, 771. See also under this title, Loans,
Unforeseen expenses, 771
Fire prevention, 794
Fiscal year, ending of, 1210. See also under this title, Consolidated Revenue and Audit Act
Fisheries, reduction in duties on, 2116
Fishing schooner race, 3512
France-Belgium trade treaties, 3223
Girl guides, 774
Governor General's Secretary's office, 751
Harbours and rivers
New Brunswick, 1998
Nova Scotia, expenditure in 1921-22, 1269
Prince Edward island, 1989-90
Housing, 774
Immigration Act Amdt. bill (Mr. Woodsworth) 865
Imperial Convention of Teachers, 1673
Imports, marking and valuation of, 2113, 2849, 2853, 3229
Income tax
Cost of collection, 2025
Legislation, 3104
Income War Tax Act Amdt. bill, 3278-9, 3359, 3484
Inland Revenue Act Amdt. bill, 3477
Alcohol for druggists, 2114, 3241
Cigars and cigarettes, 3239, 3240
Home brewing, 3141
Sugar beets, 2117, 2853, 3242, 3248
Insurance Act Amdt. bill, 1210, 1464, 3143, 3607
Insurance officials, 791
Insurance premiums, tax, 3253, 3255, 3477
Interim Supply, 373, 378, 383, 598
Bill, 362, 598-9

Fielding, Hon. W. S. — Con.
Labour and capital, 2117
Liberal platform of 1919, tariff plank, 2529, 2851
Loan Companies Act Amdt. bill, 1210, 1464, 3142, 3607
Loans, 771, 2107
New Canadian, 1131, 1133
Special loans bill, 3476
Merchants' Bank, inquiry, 3604
Nova Scotia miners, 497
M. (Mr. Irvine) 543
Nova Scotia Supreme Court, vacancy, 3437
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill) 1814
Penny Bank Act Amdt., bill, 1132, 3043, 3148
Pensions to Imperial forces, 864
Personal statement, correction, 681
Private Bills Com., substitution of names, 2355
Public Accounts, closing of, 1210, 1264-66
Public buildings
Flags, 1265
Generally, expenditure, accounts not closed, 1263-66
New, 1256
Public Works estimates, 696, 697, 750
Rail and car repair contracts, 1697
Railways, annual statement, 926
Reciprocity with United States, 2111, 2845-6
Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act Amdt. bill, 3320, 3392, 3395
Revenue and Audit Act Amdt. bill, 1210, 3042
Root vegetables, inspection and sale of, 2744
St. Lawrence river waterway, 786
Co-operation with the United States, 2755
Sales tax, 2116, 2843, 2851. See also under this title, Special War Revenue Act
Save the Children fund, 3516
Senate indemnity, 3509
Soldiers' Bonus, M. (Mr. Arthurs) 442
Special loans bill, 3476
Special War Revenue Act Amdt. bill, 3477
Automobiles, 3275
Ford company, 3276
Cheque tax, 3258
Insurance premiums, tax, 3253, 3255, 3477
Matches, 3263
Mineral waters, 3278
Receipts, 3262
Sales tax, 2116, 3264, 3269
Amdt. (Mr. Speakman) 3271
Condensed milk, 3268, 3409
Job printing, 3409
Steamship services, 2029

Fielding, Hon. W. S. — Con.
Sugar
British preference increased, 2116
Excise duty on beet sugar, 2117, 2853, 3242, 3248
Supply bills, 362, 598-9, 1842-3, 3607
Supply, concurrence, 1769, 1842
Tariff Commission, 1663
Tariff reductions, 2114, 2844, 2851, 3123
Tariff revision, 2110-14, 2844, 2849
Taxation, increases in, 2116, 2843, 2848, 2851-3
Tobacco, duties on, 2115, 2852-3, 3107, 3239
Trust Companies Act Amdt. bill, 1210, 1464, 3142, 3607
United States
Reciprocity with, 2111, 2845-6
Visit to Washington, 2112
War claims, exchange, 1754
War Graves Commission, 774
Wrangel island, 1750

Filled Milk and cream, qu. 963. See also Milk; Oleomargarine

Films, Educational. See Trade and Commerce

Finance. See also Banks; Budget; Financial Credit; Loans
Additional currency issue, qu. 3155
Bank deposits, qu. 3155
Bank notes in circulation, qu. 3155
Banking conditions, 158
Bonds
And stock, transfers, tax, 2853
Tax-free, maturing, qu. 826
Canada's financial position, soundness of, 2497
Commitments, 208
Credit Systems. See Financial Credit
Department
Charges of management, 770, 1663
Deputy Minister, 751
Estimates, 1662
Expenditure, economy in, 1475
Dominion Notes, qu. 705, qu. 935, qu. 3153, qu. 3154
Expenditure, monthly statement of, 1271
Legal expenses, 1667
Paper Control inqury, 1673
Salaries, 751, 3504
Unforeseen expenses, 771
Estimate of wealth and production, 2497
Excise profits and watered stock, 2714
Financial position of country, annual statement of Minister, 2104-2118
Gold reserve, qu. 3154, qu. 3155
Gold standard and credit system, 219

Finance — Con.
Grain trade, 2246
Loan department, 220
National wealth, 222. See also Natural Resources
Per capita wealth, 2630
Sinking funds, 1663

Financial Conference, Brussels, 1138, 1292

Financial Credit, 208, 219, 221, 2497-8. See also Banks; Finance; Loans; Money
Banks and, 1290, 2501, 2714
Brussels Conference, 1138, 1292
Community power, use of for private interest, 1291, 2501
Control of, 222, 1292, 2445, 2500
Germany in, 2500
Credit systems, 2634
Attempts to inaugurate
Guernsey Island, 2505
St. Louis Municipal currency, 2506
Definition of Credits, 2503
Douglas system, 220, 222, 2502
Financial organizations, consolidation, 2245-6
Gold standard and, 219, 1291, 2506
Greece and Roumania, qu. 1400
Industrial stagnation and unemployment, 1291. See also Industrial depression
Inflation and deflation, 2502
Loans, 1292. See also that title
M. (Mr. Irvine) for Parliamentary Com., 1289, 1396
National credit power, 1291, 2499
Private monopoly of, 2501
Purchasing power, 1292
Restricted, 2629-30
Scientific inquiry and experimentation, 1289
Sociological laboratory, 1290
Systems, 2282

Financial Depression and Outlook. See speeches on Address; Budget

Findlay, Mr. J. W. (South Bruce)
Budget, 2893. Protection and blind partyism; reciprocity, 2893; Ontario farmer not a protectionist; Progressives in Ontario; Laurier naval policy; tariff reductions; public morality and political honour; pledges and promises; Senate reform, 2894; debt and increased taxation; expenditure; reduction of sessional indemnity; drawbacks; protective budget, 2895
Potlach, Indian institution, 1578
Indians serving gaol sentences, 1721

Fines, payable to municipalities, 2832. See also Criminal Code Amdt. bill

Finney, Colonel John, 1189

Fire
Insurance. See Insurance
Losses, railways from, 628
Prevention, 794. See also Air Service; Forestry; Insurance

First Contingent, training, qu. 1376

Fiscal Changes. See Budget; Tariff resolutions; Taxation

Fiscal Year. See Consolidated Revenue Act Amdt. bill

Fish and Fisheries. See also Marine and Fisheries
Boats admitted as settlers' effects, 2116
British Columbia. See also that title
Depletion of, 346
Orientals engaged in, 167, 171, 344. See also Oriental Aliens
M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 851, 863
Salmon traps, 346
Transfer, 2042. See also Quebec Fisheries
Canning. See Meat and Canned Foods Act
Canning and curing licenses, 3010
Deep sea, conservation and development, 2169
Department of Fisheries, 2166
Dry salting, 3010
Estimates, 2166
Fish culture, 2169
Fishermen's supplies, 2690
Fishing schooner race. See International Deep Sea Racing
Fishing vessels, pilotage, 2819
Fishways in rivers, 2166
Gasoline for fishing boats, 2313, 3116
Guardians, salaries, 2166
Hatcheries, 2169
Herring, dry salting, 3010
Herring, in Alaska, 70
Improved methods, Gulf and Gaspesian coasts, qu. 1401
International deep sea racing. See that title
Licenses. See Quebec fisheries
Lobster, 1399, 2817, 2996
Market, 2166
Mildred McColl, patrol boat, qu. 3598
Officers and guardians, salaries, 2166
Orientals. See Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie)
Patrol service, 2166
Boats, qu. 1503, qu. 3598
"Phalarope", qu., 1503

Fish and Fisheries — Con.
Pollution of streams, 2168
Prince county, illegal fishing, qu. 371
Protection service. See Marine; National Defence; Naval service
Publicity and marketing, 2169
Quebec, transfer of, 142. See also Quebec Fisheries
Range lights for fishermen, 1498
Rope, twine, etc., duty on, 2359
Salmon, 1399, 2817, 2996
Dry salting, 3010
Sardines, export, qu. 1182
Supplies, reduction in duties, 2116, 2359
Tariff reductions on implements of, 2191
Transportation, 2166
Vocational loans to fishermen, 1346

Fisher and Oughton, Messrs. See Aliens

Fisheries Act, 1914, Amdt. bills
1. Protection of Salmon and Lobster Fisheries. 1r., 1399; 2r., com., 2817; com., 2996; 3r., 2997
2. Salmon Curing and Herring Drying. Res. 2306, 3010; 1r., 2r., com., 3r., 3013

Fisheries Protection Service. See Marine; National Defence bill; Naval Service

Fishing Schooner Race. See International

Flag-Waving, 1265, 1386, 2711

Flags
Cost of, qu, 599
For public buildings, 1260, 1264, 1268

Flavelle, Sir Joseph, 634. See also Canadian National Railways, Directors

Flax
Campbell, Mr. J. A., claim of, 2834
Canadian bounty on linen yarn from, 1361

Flour
Exports to United States, 209
Insurance on mills, 3255

Flynn, Mr. Harry, and soldiers' bonus, 394, 402

Fontaine, Mr. J. E. (Hull)
Gatineau Point-Rockliffe ferry, qu. 1399, qu. 1661
Old age pensions, M., 1303
Post Office
Classification, 3089
Employees receiving $600, qu. 1067
Married women, qu. 1658
Money Order branch, qu. 1285

Food and Drug Act, administration, 2017

Food and Drugs. See Health; Meat and Canned Foods

Food Inspection, 820

Foot and mouth Disease. See Cattle Embargo

Foran, Mr. J. J., qu. 2214

Foran, Mr. W., See Civil Service Commission

Ford Car. See Automobiles

Ford, Mr. Henry, credit scheme, 2505

Fordney Tariff. See Budget Speeches; United States

Foreign-Born wives of British subjects. See Dominion Election Act Amdt.

Foreign Currency. See Customs, Marking; Currency
Inflation. See Customs and Excise Dept. bill

Foreign Fraternal Societies. See Insurance Act Amdt.

Foreign Loans. See Loans

Foreign Markets. See Trade

Foreign Monetary Standards. See Customs; Currency

Foreign Warships. See Canada Shipping Act Amdt. bill

Foreigners. See also Aliens
Crime and, 1392, 2517
Foreign-born wives and children of British subjects. See Dominion Elections Act Amdt.
Immigration. See that title
Immigration Act Amdt. bill (Mr. Woodsworth) 1388-94
Textile industries, engaged in, 2518

Forest, Mr. Médard, qu. 2355

Forestry. See also Natural Resources; Research; Timber
Aerial patrol, 1047, 1722
Gaspe, 1733
High River, Alta., qu. 1066, 1048, 1723
Railway belt, B.C., 1730
Fire losses, 628
Fire towers, 1048
Forest area under federal control, 1048
Protection of timber in West, 1046
Pulpwood and round logs, duty, 2667

Forestry — Con.
Spruce bud moth, 1049, 2668
Tree culture in West, 1046
Turtle Mountain reserve, qu. 615

Forke, Mr. Robert (Brandon)
Address in reply, 76. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker, mover and seconder, 76-77; reciprocity with United States; marketing of farm products, 77; tariff revision; railway problems, 78; taxation burdens; immigration, 79
Agriculture, condition and prospects, 2149
Assiniboine river floods, 2004, 3546
Boy Scouts, 773
Cigarettes, tax on, 3241
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special com., 1424
Distribution of labour and goods, 2149
Fishways, 2168
Freight rates, 1424
Harbours and rivers, Manitoba, 2004
Immigration policy, 2148
Indians
Education, Elkhorn school, 3537
Oak lake and Pipestone, 1223
Militia and defence, Lindsay arsenal, 2086
Naval policy, 2079
Progressives, patriotism, 720
Rideau canal, 2765
Soldier land settlement, taxes, 2134
Soldier Settlement Board, qu. 469
Transportation, 2149
Woollen goods and blankets, 3234

Fort Churchill. See Hudson Bay Railway

Fort George, 119

Fort Mississauga, 119

Fort Qu'Appelle Sanitarium, 1345

Fort William
Car repair contracts, 1696-1705
Grain overages, qu. 1210
Terminal elevators. See Grain and Grain Trade

Fortier, Mr. H. A. (Labelle)
Agricultural exhibitions, 993
Budget, 2274. Congratulations to Minister of Finance; Government policy; amendment; revenue requirements and taxation, 2274; income tax; suggested concession to heads of families; population, suggested methods of increasing; railways and public ownership, 2275; economy in public expenditure, 2276
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 961

Fortier, Mr. H. A. — Con.
Demonstration farm at Mont Laurier, 994
Military Service Act, 1917, Amdt. bill, 643
Ministers and directorships, 1123
Oleomargarine, manufacture and importation, M. (Mr. Neill) 1798

Fournier, Mr. C. A. (Bellechasse)
Carty, Captain, qu. 1062
Chief Architect's branch, Public Works, qu. 963
Civil Service Commission, qu. 826
Bland, Mr. C. H., qu. 1904

Four-Power Treaty. See Limitation of Armaments

France
Canadian exhibition in, 2031
Exhibition train from, 2990
Industries, protection of, 2410
Post war conditions, 2643
Trade relations with. 2990. See also Trade
Trade treaty with, 2110

Franchise. See also Dominion Elections Act Amdt.
Extension of, 2242
Public ownership, and, 1944

Fraser River Fisheries. See British Columbia, Fisheries

Fraser Valley Railway. See Vancouver and Fraser Valley

Fraternal Benefit Insurance. See Insurance Act Amdt.

Frauds, Scrip, prosecution for. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Fredericton
Military property, 1980
Officers' square, 1980

Free Freight outlay, qu. 704

Free Trade. See Address; Budget

Freight, careless handling of, 1965

Freight Rates. See also Address; Budget; Canals; Railway Commission; Railways; St. Lawrence River Waterway; Transportation
Advertising campaign, qu. 1375
Calgary, free outlay, qu. 704
Coal from maritime provinces, 1763
Comparison between freight and duty, 2175

Freight Rates — Con.
Crowsnest pass agreement, 146, 176, 350, 1412. See also under this title, Excessive. See Speeches on Address; Budget
Special Com. to inquire into effect upon Railway Rates
M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for, 1213, 1402
Amdt. (Sir Henry Drayton) 1444; neg. 1457
M. agreed to, 1458
Named, 1502
Reports
First, 1657
Second, 1719
Third, 3546
M. (Mr. Maclean, Halifax) for adoption of, 3548
Amdt. (Sir Henry Drayton, 3559; neg. 3586
Amdt. (Mr. Baxter) 3586; neg. 3586
M. agreed to, 3588
Position of Ministers of Agriculture and Interior on, 242
Railway Act Amdt. bill, 1r., 3588; 2r., com., 3595; 3r., 3597
Rule 11, suspension of, 1502
Telegram from Minister of Agriculture to Calgary Board of Trade, 2358
Excessive, 33, 47, 54, 78, 83, 131-132, 275, 350, 2219, 2314, 2453. See also under this title, Crowsnest Pass Agreement, and Speeches on Address; Budget
Export, 2633
Fertilizers, on, 1022
Immigration and, 2157
Lumber industry, 234, 2311
Norris, Premier, reported statement of, 1213
Quebec, and, 1472, 1473
Railway labour, and, 2315
Regulation by water carriage competition, 1688
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1204. See also that title
Subsidized steamships, 2028
Wheat on, 235. See also Wheat Board

French, early pioneers in West, 2912

French-English Canadians, unity between, 168-9. See also Address

French Language, 155
Civil Service classification, qu. 1930
Parliament in, 155, 244, 306, 356
Pension Commissioners, Board of, 1351
Soldier Settlement Board, Sherbrooke, qu. 1658

Fruit Industry, 220, 2564
Apple-growing, 171, 967
Importations, qu. 612
Protection of, 225, 2197
Baxter, Mr. Charles W., appointment of successor, 2457
British Columbia in, 2593. See also that title
Competition with United States, 2903
Dumping clause, 2280, 2310, 2372, 2593, 2641, 2879 2903. See also speeches on Address; Budget
Freight rates. See Crowsnest pass agreement
Fruit Commissioner, qu. 2457
Grape juice, tax on, 2594, 2617
Okanagan Valley, 162. See also British Columbia
Oriental Aliens engaged in, 1535. See also that title
Protection. See Budget; Customs, Dumping clause
Tariff, 2197
Transportation. See Freight Rates
Trees, protection from insects. See Entomology

Fuel. See also Coal; Mines; Natural Resources
Oil, 344, qu. 728
Competition with coal, 2312
Importation, 178
Tank at Louise Basin, 1484
Tariff against, 1761
Peat, 1235
Price, 1490, qu. 1774. See also Coal

Further Legislation. See House of Commons

Futures, trading in. See Wheat Board

Gaboury, Mr. L. J., salary and duties, qu. 3599

Galicians. See Immigration

Galt post office building, 1247

Gambling. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Game. See Migratory Birds; Dominion Lands and Parks

Games of Chance. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Gaols. See Prisons; Penitentiaries

Garbage Feeding. See Hog Cholera

Gardiner, Mr. Robert (Medicine Hat)
Budget, 2624. New national policy, 2624; fiscal plank; substantial reduction of customs tariff; British Preference; free food stuffs; machinery for conversion of natural resources and raw materials; time to be allowed for industrial readjustment; claims for protection to heard in public; parliamentary committee on tariff; tariff commission, 2625; effects of tariff; exploitation of the people; tariff increases prices but not values; tariff reductions; revenue; land tax; inheritance tax; excise tax on manufactured goods; sales tax, 2626; circulation tax; bank interest violation of Bank Act; withholding of credit from municipality; unemployment; an inequitable budge 2627

Gardiner, Mr. Robert — Con.
Budget — Con.
Canadian National Railways
Branch lines, 1964
Bridge over Red Deer river, 1964
Canadian Pacific Railway bill, 1859
Cheque tax, 3260
Civil Service bonus, 1258
Dominion lands, oil leases, 1046
Fishing tackle, 3140
Income War Tax Act, 1917, Amdt. bill, 3486
Port Nelson dredging, 2006
Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act Amdt. bill, 3438
Rural mail delivery contracts, 2800
Seed Grain Commission, 1011
Steamship services, 2027
Tar Sands, 1236
Timber wolves, 1001
Venereal diseases, 2022
Wheat Board, 785

Garland, Mr. E. J. (Bow River)
Additional currency issue, qu. 3155
Aerial forest patrol, High River, Alta., 1048, qu. 1066, 1723
Agriculture Com. report — Wheat Board, 783
Agriculture dept. — Mr. Duncan Marshall, 651, 652
Bank notes in circulation, qu. 3155
Boy Scouts, 773
Business of the House — eleven o'clock adjournment, 2033
Canadian exhibition in France, 2032
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine
West Indian trade, 3928; amdt. 3031
Canadian National railway, securities, qu. 3154
Criminal Code Amdt. (Half breed scrip) 3216
Dominion lands, surveys, 1038, 1044
M. to reduce vote, 1039

Garland, Mr. E. J. — Con.
Dominion notes, qu. 3154
Dredging, 2006
Fish culture, 2169
Forest aerial patrol, High River, Alta., qu. 1066, 1048, 1723
Gold reserve, qu. 3154, qu. 3155
Immigration of children, 2148, 3063
Indians
Blackfoot reserve, pasture lands, qu. 2215
Greater production, 1224, 1288
International boundaries, 1033
Mixed farming, 983
National gallery, 2011
Naval Service
Niobe, sale of, 2043, 2067
Royal Canadian Navy, 2043
Nova Scotia miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 522
Parliament, fall session, 2608
Pensions Com., report, 3349
Post office, ruling respecting newspaper or magazine subscriber, qu. 3599
Redistribution, meeting of defeated candidates in Alberta, 2858
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, 3497
Enlistment in Canadian Expeditionary Force, qu. 2038
Soldiers' land settlement, homestead rights, 2135
Steamship services, 2027, 3028, 3506
Amdt., 3031
Tax-free bonds, qu. 826
Telegraph and telephone lines, Alberta, 2012

Garland, Mr. W. F. (Carleton)
Budget, 2300. Congratulations to Finance Minister; war expenditure; Canada Cement Company; income tax; tariff on agricultural implements; British preference; Mr. Fielding's trip to Washington; trade with United States; civil service dismissals; bonus; superannuation, councils, 2300; sales tax, 2301
Canada-Great Britain postal rate, qu. 3364
Civil Service
Bonus, qu. 472, qu. 606, 2300, 3531
Withdrawal from certain civil servants, qu. 3598
Commission, salaries, 407
Councils, 2300
Increase to deputy ministers, bonus, salaries, qu. 2805
Remuneration, qu. 3364
Retirement fund, qu. 826
Superannuation, 2300
Connaught rifle range, qu. 3153
Egg inspection, 811

Garland, Mr. W. F. — Con.
Exhibitions, prizes, 654
Experimental farms, 811
Grand Trunk, salaries of officials, qu. 728
Highways
Ottawa-Kingston, qu. 1904, 2794
Ottawa-Pembrooke, qu. 1661, 2794
Ottawa-Prescott, tree planting, qu. 2039
Mail contracts
Gascons-Quebec, qu. 2213
Lachenaie, qu. 2805
Militia dept. shed, Cartier square, Ottawa, qu. 2038
Poultry inspection, 656, 807
Rideau canal, 2766

Gas and electricity, inspection, 1373

Gascons-Quebec mail contract, qu. 2213

Gasoline, price of, 2106, 2296, 2313, 3115

Gaspé Peninsula
Aerial forest patrol, 1733
Fisheries, qu. 1401
Railways, M. (Mr. Marcil) for papers, 623

Gatineau-Point-Rockliffe ferry privilege, qu. 1399, qu. 1661

Gauvreau, Mr. C. A. (Témiscouata)
Acoustics of the Chamber, 3613
Canadian National Railways
Intercolonial
Pension fund, qu. 938
Repairs to cars, qu. 1212
Rivière du Loup shops, qu. 1181, 1690
Indemnity of members, 3613
Juvenile delinquents, qu. 469
Lighthouse boats, fuel for, qu, 606, qu. 1183
Lighthouses and wireless telegraphy, qu. 370
Prison reform, 1279
Privilege — alleged statement of Miss Macphail, 3221
Rail and car repair contracts, 1690
Rivière du Loup arsenal, qu. 1181, 1690

Gendron, Mr. R. M. (Wright)
Dennis building, Halifax, qu. 3360

General Election. See Election of 1921

"General" Macdonald's Army. See also Riley's Army; Unemployment
Government action in regard to, 2458
Reception of, 2256

Genoa Conference, 7, 58, 156, 212, 582, 2337. See also Address; Budget; Conferences
Canadian delegation to, expenses, 1715, 2864

Genoa Conference — Con.
Cannes conference, documents, 823
Tabled, 865
Correspondence with Govt. of Italy, 1905, 2035
Gordon, Sir Charles, 58, 582
Dominion Textile Company, and, 583-4
Money vote for, 1675
Montpetit, Professor, 582
Reported subscription of Canada to consortium, 1463
Submarines, 1845

Geodetic Survey
Estimates, 1033
Ottawa building, 1265

Geological Survey. See also Mines and Minerals
Anthropological division
Potlach institution, qu. 1377. See also Indians
Camsell, Mr. Charles, 1262
Co-ordination of survey work, 1236
Estimates, 1233, 1236
Maps, 1237
Publications, 1237
Reduction of vote, 1237-62
Specimens, purchase of, 1237

George, Right Hon. Lloyd, 2203, 2337
Empire defence, responsibility of dominions for, 1630

Georgian Bay Canal. See Canals

German, Mr. W. M. (Welland)
Freight rates, Special Com., third report, 3587-8
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3441
St. Lawrence river waterway, M. (Mr. Church) 1319
Trenton Harbour bill, 3494

German Goods, valuation of. See Budget; Customs Act Amdt.

German Mark, decline in value of. See Budget; Currency, depreciated

Germany. See also Budget; Customs Tariff; Imports; Trade
Agents of manufacturers in Canada, 2647
Commercial development, 2643
Competition with, 2114, 2140, 2173-4, 2203, 2412, 2420, 2487, 2878
Credit control, 2500
Exports to Canada, 2408, 2421, 2863
Pocket-Knives, valuation of, 2876
Financial situation, 2499, 2642
Indemnity, payment in goods, 2500

Germany — Con.
Industrial condition, 2499, 2847
Labour conditions in, 3227. See also Labour
Mark, value of, 2417, 2644, 2848. See also Budget; Currency, depreciated
Paper money, 2499
Proposed loan, 2500
Reparations paid to Allies, qu. 375
Tariff wall against goods, 174
Trade relations with, 138, 2183, 2263, 2287, 2347, 2394, 2421-22, 2464, 2487, 2848, 2876
Foreign, 2644
Wages and production costs, 2407, 2499, 2884
War debts, 174
Working hours, 2499

Gervais, Mr. Théodore (Berthier)
Inglis boiler works, qu. 732

Gillen Board. See Labour; Nova Scotia Miners

Girl Guides, grant, 774

Glanders. See Health of Animals

Glass
Customs duties on, 3117
Industry, occupational diseases. See Labour

Globe, Toronto, imaginary speeches of Mr. Meighen, 207

Goderich Harbour improvement, 2000

Gold
Central reserves and gold held in Canadian banks, qu. 2971
English hall marks, protection of. See Criminal Code
Refining. See Charges of Management
Reserve. See Finance
Standard, 1291

Gold and Silver Marking Act, administration of, 1372

Good, Mr. W. C. (Brant)
Agate and granite ware, 3118
American magazines, 3108, 3113
Automobiles, tax on, 3273, 3277
Beet sugar industry, 3250
Blankets, duty on, 3234-5
British preference and Canadian seaports, M. (Mr. Logan) 722
Budget, 2429. Tariff record of Liberal party; repudiation of tariff plank of 1919 platform; history of fiscal legislation, 2429; inception of protective

Good, Mr. W. C. — Con.

Budget — Con.

policy; position of Liberal party on tariff question in seventies; Liberal convention of 1893; condemnation of protection system; campaign of 1911, 2430; reciprocity agreement; Liberal protectionists; the "great apostacy"; the "interests"; possible explanation of Liberal attitude, 2431; expediency of compromise; geographical considerations; examination of protective system without reference to locality or occupation; social versus individual advantage, 2432; trade a form of co-operation, not competition; protectionist philosophy; political boundaries and tariff walls, 2433; tariffs for revenue and protection; "plucking the goose with the least squawking"; direct and indirect taxes; protection by boundary dather than by tariff; encouragement of infant industries; protection of all industries impossible; favourable trade balance; international trade; cheap foreign labour; real and nominal wages; retaliatory tariffs, 2435; diversified industry; decadence of agriculture; effect on manufacturing industries; free raw material and lower labour costs; free trade and advantage to manufacturers; competition against old established industries, 2436; protective tariffs and monopoly; price-fixing combinations; has protection assisted Canadian manufacturers?; the system corrupting, demoralizing and indefensible; contributions to campaign funds; national existence and integrity, 2437; economic self-sufficiency; sentiment in favour of protection; public opinion distorted; quotation from Mr. J. A. Hobson, 2438; consumers not organized to protect themselves; Canadian Manufacturers' Association propaganda; objects of protection; how has the policy worked out?, 2439; loss of population; indictment of system by United Farmers of Ontario; war profiteering; revenue raising expedients, 2440; excess profits tax; no promise of relief in budget; taxes on consumption; sales tax, 2441; income and inheritance taxes; ability to pay, 2442; property tax; taxation of land value; 2443; increased production; booms and depressions; public works; credit control, 2445

Good, Mr. W. C. — Con.

Business of the House

Estimates, consideration of, 3527

Mondays and Wednesdays, 1720

Business profits war tax, qu. 1657

Canadian National railways, public ownership, 1961

Cattle embargo, 991-992

Chamberlin, Mr. R. S., grant to, 3498

Civil Service Commission, salaries, 3509

Coated papers, duty on, 3108

Condensed milk, tax, 3269

Contingencies, expenditures for, 415

Cotton fabrics, duty on, 3128

Debates, inaudibility of, 1755, 1996

Ford motor company, 3273

German importations, value of, 3228

Governor General's cars, 1688

Harbours and rivers, Ontario, 2001

Hydrographic survey, 1746

Immigration

Passports, 3064

Salaries, 3499

Income war tax act, 3278

Indians

Medical attention, 1220

Six Nation reserve, 1222

Lambton, loss of, 3507

Live stock industry, 992

Military expenditures and policy, 1144

Naturalization expenses, 1671

Naval defence, obligation of Canada, 1745

Oleomargarine, manufacture, etc., M. (Mr. Neill) 1836

Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. bill, 3019

Pool selling, bookmaking, etc., 2973

Prince Rupert Drydock Co. claim, 3515

Proportional Representation, M. for adoption, 1633

Public buildings, Ottawa

Elevator attendants, 1267

Expenditure, 1268

Quebec Harbour Commission bill, 1485

Quebec harbour, parc St. Charles, 1470

Rail and car repair contracts, 1705

Railway policy, 1961

Root vegetables bill, potato grades, 3376

Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 843

Senate indemnity, 3509

Soldiers' bonus, M. (Mr. Arthurs) 436

Steamship subsidies, contracts, 3034, 3506

Supply, discussion, method of, 1142

Tariff amendments, 3238-9

Telegraph and Telephone lines, 2012

Tools, tax on, 3127

Good, Mr. W. C. — Con.
Unemployment
Causes of, 3526
Military expenditures, 1144
Relief, 3526
Wheat Board bill, 3187
Woollen goods, duty on, 3130

Good Roads. See Highways

Gordon, Sir Charles, 58, 200, 239, 1128
Genoa conference, 1715

Gordon, Mr. George N. (West Peterborough.) See also Deputy Speaker
O'Connor, Mr. W. F., K.C., payments, qu. 2037

Gouin, Hon. Sir Lomer (Minister of Justice and Attorney General)
Adamson, Mr. Justice, appointment of, 1670
Address in reply, 140. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker; statements made in last general election, 140; Order in Council government, 141; Quebec fisheries; results of general election, 142
Allan, Sir Montagu, 872
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. bill, 3025
Senate amdts. 3611
Budget, 2654. Fiscal policy, protection and free trade; issue of the election campaign; Liberals not free traders; history of tariff legislation; Hon. Alex. Mackenzie; Mr. Blake's Malvern speech, 2655; principles which have inspired Liberal party; fiscal policy of Government found in speeches of Prime Minister and Finance Minister, 2656; budget proposals in consonance with declarations of leaders, 2657; expenditure and debt; revenue necessities; manufacturing important factor in developing Canada, 2657; late Sir Wilfrid Laurier on encouragement of Canadian industries; progress of manufacturers since 1870; exodus during last ten years; investment in industrial establishments, 2658; grievances of the West; proposals for tariff reduction; strict economy needed; immigration policy; the amendment; no deception of electors, 2659; budget proposals consistent with Liberal promises
Canada Grain Act
Decision of Manitoba Court of Appeal, 1133, 1841, 1932
Chamberlain, Mr. R. S., grant to, 3497
Criminal Code Amdt. bills, 1841, 2830, 2973, 3607

Gouin, Hon. Sir Lomer — Con.
Criminal Code Amdt. bills — Con.
Half-breed scrip, 3219
Mr. Woodsworth
M. for reference to Special Com., 1503
Dominion lands, Cancellation of leases bill, 3468-75
Senate amdts. 3615
Exchequer court
Admiralty vacancies, 1275
Estimates, 1274
Immigration Act Amdt. bill (Mr. Woodsworth)
M. for ref. to Special Com., 1502
Judges Act Amdt. bill, 424, 2830
Judges, Quebec, 3497
Justice department of,
Estimates, 1274, 1668
Litigated matters, 1276
Salaries, 451, 4395
Yukon territory, 1275
King v, Manitoba Grain Company, decision, 1133, 1841, 1932
Newfoundland-Labrador boundary, 1276
Nova Scotia Supreme Sourt, vacancy, 3437
Pecuniary Claims Convention with United States, 1276
Penitentiaries
Estimates, 1276
Inmates, foreign and native, 1279
Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill, 545, 787
References to, 21, 26, 55, 206, 207, 239, 242, 243, 1128, 2679, 2682, 2718. See also Budget; Ministers and Directorships
Revenue and Audit Act Amdt. bill, 3042
Royal Canadian Mounted Police
Estimates, 2129
Pensions, 2131
Soldiers' civil re-establishment bill, 3597
Supreme Court Act Amdt. bill, 2456, 2974
Supreme court estimates, 1274
Trial of Indian murderer, Lebeaux expenses, 1669
White, Mr. James, employment of, 3496
Yukon territory, 1275

Gould, Mr. O. R. (Assiniboia)
Agriculture department
Officers, 650
Professionnal men, 589
Air force and civil aviation, Saskatchewan, 1724
Allan, Sir Montagu, 872
Bank, loans to directors, 1093
Bee-keeping, 592
Bienfait briquetting plant. See under this title, Lignite
Blankets, duty on, 3129

Gould, Mr. O. R. — Con.
Budget, 2711. Congratulation to Finance Minister; grievance of the West and its solution; briquetting plant at Bienfait, 2712-15; farmers and the income tax; excessive profits and watered stock; banks and credit, 2714; liquor exportation from Saskatchewan; banking system, 2716; cheque tax; national debt, 2717; taxation; Sir Lomer Gouin and protection; tariff on implements of production, 2718; inconsistent attitude of Conservatives towards tariff; a disappointing budget; failure of Government to carry out platform of 1919; similarity of Liberal and Progressive platforms, 2720; Liberals will not implement pledges, 2721
Civil service economy, 793
Clothes wringers, 3140
Criminal Code, carriage of calves, 2831
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 952
Defence branches, amalgamation, 423
Departments, economy in, 458, 793
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2814
Dominion lands, surveys, 1041
Electrical storm in the West, 3493
Elevators, complaint of unfair dealing, 2987
Entomology, qu. 472, 590, 817
Export liquor warehouses, 768, 2716
Fishing schooner race, 3511
Grain Growers' Grain Company, 2489
Grasshopper plague, qu. 472, 590, 817
Harbours and rivers, expenditure, 1272
Harness, hides, prices, 3139
Immigration, medical inspection, 2022
Insurance Act Amdt. bill, 3143
Judges Act Amdt. bill, 546
Lignite
Bienfait briquetting plant, qu. 604, 1233, qu. 1632, 2712-15
Utilization board, 3524
Live stock, diseases, 650
Military district No. 12, 1176, 1602, 1987
Military expenditure and policy, 1148, 1175, 1610
Militia and Defence
Annual training, 1175, 1600-10
Customs duties, 1978
Permanent force, 1982
Saving in, 418
Temporary clerks, 587
Transport and freight, 1987
Ministers and directorships, 1091
Ministers, salary increases, 1093
Ocean and river service, 3508
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. bill, 3017

Gould, Mr. O. R. — Con.
Public Works, average salary, 750
Quarantine, 2021
Raw materials, duty on, 3131
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 839
Steamship subsidies, 3506
Woodmen of the World, 1905
Woollen goods, 3137

Government Departments
Co-ordination of, 180-181. See also National Defence
Payment to each other for services rendered, 1724

Government, Federal, responsibility for unemployment, 1069-94. See also Address; Budget; Unemployment

Government, group system of. See Proportional Representation

Government-Owned Railways. See Canadian National Railways

Government Printing. See Printing; Publications

Governor General
Cars, 1688
Deputy of the Governor General, 3610
Secretary's office, 751
Speech on opening of Parliament; new appointment as Governor General; world-wide economic disturbances and industrial depression; unemployment; decline in prices of farm products; Customs tariff revision; co-ordination of government railway systems, 6; immigration, 6-7; re-establishment and medical treatment of soldiers; natural resources of western provinces; co-ordination of defence forces; limitation of armaments; Genoa conference; Postal conference; need for economy, 7
Address in reply. See that title
Warrants, 1990
Canadian Expeditionary Force, repatriation of dependents, 1711
Dominion Iron and Steel Corporation, contract for steel plates, 1677
Dominion lands and parks, 1681
Expenditure by, 1353
Genoa Conference, 1716
Penitentiaries, 1670
Unemployment relief, 1719
Welland canal construction, 1687
Yukon territory, 1681

Grading of Vegetables. See Root Vegetables

Graham, Hon. George P. (Minister of Militia and Defence and Minister of the Naval Service)
Air Board
Aeronautical research, 3499
Biggar, Colonel O. M., resignation, 1727
Estimates, 1722
Expenditure, details of, 1731
Air Board Act, 1917, Amdt. bill, 2357, 2820
Air Force and civil aviation, 1722
Customs patrol, Vancouver, 1730
Forest patrol, British Columbia, 1730
Barkhouse, Captain, 1748
Battlefields memorials, 2098
Behring sea patrol, 1736
Business of the House
Debate on naval service estimates, 1742-5, 1900
Canadian institute for the blind, 3541
Canadian Northern, Sir Richard McBride, 202
Civil service salaries, 553
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1411-14
Fisheries protection service, 678, 1747
Ford Motor Company, 3277
Government departments, payment to each other for services rendered, 1724
Gwatkin, General, 422. See also under this title, National Defence
Hydrographic survey, 1746
Insurance Act Amdt., 3147
Insurance premiums, tax, 3257
Militia and Defence
Adjustment of war claims, 2974
Air force 1722
Allowances, active militia, 1135
Amalgamation, saving, 417-18
Ammunition, reserve of, 2086
Annual drill, 1151, 1179, 1578
Arsenals
Lindsay, 1979, 2085
Quebec, 1979, 2091
Cadet services, 1972, 1978
Classification, 416
Civil Service Commission, and, 423
Defence forces, 1135
Director of assigned pay, 586
Engineer services and works, 1980
Estimates, 1711, 2974, 3498
Expenditure and policy, 1339
Reductions proposed by Minister, 1578
MacBrien, General, reported utterances of, 1662
Ordnance building, Quebec, repairs, 1711
Permanent force, 1136-52, 1982
Royal military college, 1985
Schools of instruction, 1985

Graham, Hon. Geo. P. — Con.
Militia and Defence — Con.
Temporary employees, 417
Topographic survey, 1985
Transport and freight, 1987
War claims, adjustment, 2098
Ministers and directorships, 1109
Money, purchasing power of, 1151-3
Municipal taxation, payment of by government, 1257
National Defence bill, 363, 417, 547
National Defence bill (No. 27) 644, 657, 668, 733, 746
Air Force, 678
Concurrence in Senate Amdts. 2806
Militia estimates, 421
Services, transfer to, 1747
Naval policy, 2043-72
Naval service
Estimates, 418, 420, 1735, 1843
Fisheries protection service, 678, 1747
Niobe, sale of, 2043-65
Radiotelegraph service, 1749
Royal Canadian navy, 1735, 1843, 2043, 2058, 3365
Postponement of debate, 1972
Reduction of naval armaments, 1737
Ships to be taken out of commission, 1740
Trawlers, 1844
War claims, adjustment, 1752
War medals, 1754
Niagara River Bridge Company bill, 1486
Patrol of northern waters, 1750
Parents, support of by children, 1308
Pelagic sealing treaty, 1844
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3358
Pensions
Northwest Rebellion, 3523
Widowed mothers', M. (Mr. Power) 1308
Radiotelegraph service, 1736, 1749
Railway Commission
Carvell, Hon. F. B., criticism of, 2778
Rideau canal, 2766
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 831
Salaries, 775
Royal Canadian navy. See under this title, Naval Service
Royal naval college, Esquimalt, 2048
Salaries Act Amdt. bill, 363, 746
Soldier Settlement Act Amdt. bill, 3358
Special Loans bill, 3358
Supply, discussion, method of, 1142
Survey and map work, co-ordination of, 1986
War claims, exchange on, 1752
War memorials, 2098, 2100

Graham Miss Nora, qu. 599

Graham, Mr., agent at Regina, 682

Grain and Grain Trade. See also Address; Agriculture; Budget; United Grain Growers; Wheat Board
Acme Grain Company, default of, 2834
Banks and, 2246. See also that title
Campbell, Mr. J. A., claim for flax shipment, 2834
Canada Grain Act
Administration of, 2834
Constitutionality of, 2837
Decision of Manitoba Court of Appeal, 1132, 1841, 1932
Inquiry, 1770
Canadian National railways, grain leakages, 1401, 1930
Canadian Wheat Board, advance, 3541. See also Wheat Board
Car demurrage, 2981
Elevators
Private, 2981
Licenses to, 2838
System of, 114, 233
Terminal, 2980
Excess overages, qu. 609, qu. 1401, 2837
Fort William
Inspector, 2983
Port Arthur, and, overages, qu. 1210
Government, 233, qu. 3152
Grain Commission, and, 2980
Maintenance and equipment of, 2978
Quebec, 1466, 1471, 1474, 1483
United Grain Growers, 2983
Freight rates on grain, 146. See also Freight Rates
Grades, mixing of, 2839, 2981
Grain Board. See Wheat Board
Grain Growers and oleomargarine. See Oleomargarine
Grain Inquiry Commission, 49, qu. 705, 777, qu. 1181, 2839, 2842, 2982
Hyndman Commission, 2982
Secret session at Fort William, 2983
Terminal elevators, 2980
Grain leakages on Canadian National railways, 1401, 1930
Handling of. See under this title, Elevators; Transportation
Long hauls to market, 146-7
Manitoba Court of Appeal, decision. See under this title, Canada Grain Act
Mixing grades, 2839, 2981
In transit, 2838
Montreal harbour, shipment of grain through, 1489
Oats, price of, 225

Grain and Grain Trade — Con.
Overages, qu. 609, qu. 1401, 2837, 2838, 2980
Per capita production, 2159
Price fixed in Liverpool, 1203-08
Production and shipment, 1203
Quebec, shipment of grain through, 1466, 1471, 1472
Russia, competition of, 2157
St. Lawrence river waterway, 269, 1183, 1317, 1325. See also that title
Sample market, 2838
Saskatchewan Co-operative Elevator Co., 2989
Screenings, recleaned, 2490
Selling without growers' permission, 2989
Shipment. See under this title, Montreal; Quebec; St. Lawrence River Waterway
Shrinkage and leakage in transit, 232. See also under this title, Elevators
Speculation in, 158. See also Wheat Board Bill
Transcontinental railway, 2194
Transportation, 235, 300. See also Freight Rates; Railways; St. Lawrence River Waterway; Welland Canal
Water by, 69-70. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway
United Grain Growers, terminal elevator, 2983
Wheat
Marketing, 2915, 2951, 2969. See also Wheat Board
Production and cost, 2333

Grain Growers Grain Company, alleged contribution to political organization, 2488

Grand Anse, C.B., mail service, qu. 938

Grand Manan, wharves and breakwaters, 1993

Grand River bridge, qu. 1287

Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. See that title under Canadian National Railways

Grand Trunk Railway. See that title under Canadian National Railways

Grape Juice, tax on, 2117, 2594, 2617

Grasshopper Plague, qu. 472, 2726, 3520

Gravel, Mr., Quebec Harbour Commission, 1477

Great Britain
British Preference. See that title
Free trade and, 2526. See also speeches on Budget

Great Britain — Con.
Imports from, qu. 966. See also Imports and Exports; Trade
Income tax reductions, 2860
Investment in Canadian industries, 2368
Merchant Marine, 2379
Protection of industries, 2408-9
Tariff legislation, 2267
Trade with. See British Preference; Trade

Great Lakes, life-saving service, qu. 367

Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway. See St. Lawrence River Waterway

Great Lakes Tidewater Association, 1319. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway

Great War Veterans' Association. See also Canadian Patriotic Fund Bill; Returned Soldiers
Cash grants to soldiers, policy on, 394. See also Soldiers Bonus
Charges against Pensions Board, 3041. See also Pensions
Housing credits, 3524
Immigration, 2155
Oleomargarine, 1798
Oriental immigration, 1514

Greece
Commission on credit to, 303
Loan, qu. 1400

Grey, Lord, letter to Governor General on military protection, 1136

Griffenhagen and Associates, 1490. See also Civil Service, Classification
Montreal post office, 1633
Post office inspectors, 1507

Grimmer, Mr. R. W. (Charlotte)
Charlotte County, Mr. Todd's election promises, 1997
Grand Manan, Campobello and Deer islands, wharves and breakwaters, 1993-7
Harbours and rivers, New Brunswick, 1993
Patrol boat Phalarope, qu. 1503
St. George public building, 1240
Sardines, price for export, qu. 1182

Grosse Isle quarantine station, 2021

Guernsey Island of, credit system, 2505

Gulf of St. Lawrence Shipping and Trading Company, qu. 1400

Gutelius, Mr. F. P., 192

Guthrie, Hon. Hugh (South Wellington)
Air Board
Biggar, Col. O. M., resignation of, 1726
Expenditure, 1725
Details of, 1730
Air Service, forest patrol, 1047
Ammunition, shipment from Great Britain, 1154-68-73
Animal Contagious Diseases bill, 2735
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. bill, 3025
British Ministry of Shipping, claim, 1752
Budget, 2874. Amended resolutions, 2874; depreciated currency, valuation of, 2875; trade with Germany; pocket knives; effect of Minister's proposal, 2876; marking of goods, effect of repeal; German aluminum goods; German agents seeking orders in Canada; Canadian valuation of German goods; favourable position of German manufacturers; anti-dumping clause; fruit industry, 2879; marking of goods; government by Order in Council, 2880
Burstall, Sir Henry, 742-3
Business of the House
Point of order, bill ref. to Com., 1395
Saturday sittings, 2032
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 2997
Canadian exhibition in France, 2032
Canadian National Railways, enlisted men, allowance, 3519
Census, completion of, 1364
Chamberlin, Mr. R. G., grant to, 3497
Criminal Code Amdt. bills
Carriage of calves, 2831
Scrip frauds, 1396
(Mr. Woodsworth) 1395
Criminal Code, revision, 1717
Criminal Code and Statutes, reprinting of, 1717
Demobilization, 1155
Expenditure for, 1163
Vote, 1171
Departmental solicitors, 683
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2810
Residential qualification, M. (Mr. Rinfret) 1299
Women of foreign birth, enfranchisement, 476
Dominion lands and surveys, 1035, 1038
Topographic survey, 1043, 1986
Dominion observatory building, 1266
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women M. (Mr. Euler) 476
Escheats Act. Amdt. bill, 2829, 3026
Finance, loans, 771
Govt. departments, payments to each other, 1726

Guthrie, Hon. Hugh — Con.
Govt. publications, demand, 1374
Gwatkin, Major-General, 742
Harbours and rivers
New Brunswick, 1997
Amdt. to reduce item by $20,000, 1998
Nova Scotia, expenditure, 1269
Ontario, Goderich, 2000
Prince Edward Island, 1988
Quebec, 1999
Hospital ship, claim for loss of, 2976
Immigration Act Amdt. bill, (Mr. Woodsworth) 1393
Immigration of farm workers, 3052
Indian Affairs, officials, 683
Judges Act Amdt. bill, 2830
Labour dept., salary increases, 564
Linen yarn bounty, 1362
Military expenditures, 1138
Militia and Defence
Ammunition,
Reserve of, 2086
Shipment from Great Britain, 1154-73
Annual drill, 1154, 1155
Artillery ammunition from Great Britain, 1154-73
Liberal attitude in 1920, 1921, and 1922, 1154
Arsenals, Lindsay, 2085
Cadet services, 1972, 1977
Expenditure and policy, 1594
Permanent force, 1983
Reduction of staff, 586
Topograpric survey, 1043, 1986
War claims, adjustment of, 2976
Ministers and directorships, 1094
Montreal Harbour Commission bill, 1488
Municipal taxation, payment by Government, 1256
Munitions, shipment from Great Britain, 1154-73
National Defence, Department of, bill, 659, 738, 1747
Bill should be preceded by resolution, 547
Naturalization Act, 2024
Naval policy, 2051
Naval service
Fisheries protection service, 1747
Gift of ships to Canada, 2050
Royal Canadian navy, 1846, 1972
Royal naval college, 2049
Opium and Narcotic drugs, 2020
Parliament buildings, 2014
Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill, 787
Pilotage, administration of, 1499
Preston, Mr. W. T. R., claim of, 3503
Progressive party, attitude towards redistribution, 1364

Guthrie, Hon. Hugh—Con.
Public buildings
Expenditure, 1261
Improvements, repairs, etc., 1238
Ontario, 1251, 1259
Public Service Retirement Act, 3025
Public Works estimates, 964, 747
Contingency vote, 748
Reductions, 698
Quebec harbour advances, 1473
Redistribution and the census, 1364
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment Dept.
Amalgamation or abolition of, 1340
Statutes
Printing of, 1972
Revision of, 1717
Steamship services, 2020, 3505
Survey and map work, proposed co-ordination, 1033, 1986
Toronto harbour improvement, 1474
War claims, adjustment
Naval service, 1752
Vickers, 2976
War medals, 2977
War memorials, Vimy, 2100
Warlike stores, sale of, 1171
Wheat Board, 2968
Wrangel island, 1751
Yukon territory, 1034
Radiotelegraph service, 1750

Gwatkin, Major-General, 421, 422, 742, qu. 1211. See also National Defence bill

Halbert, Mr. Robert H. (North Ontario)
Campbell, Mr. Alex., qu. 606
Cattle embargo, Mr. Doherty, 989
Customs tariff, ploughs, 3231
Doherty, Right Hon. C. J., qu. 704
Hatters' plush, duty on, 3141
Labour dept., employees, 566
Lake of the Woods bill, 2309
Lindsay arsenal, 1979
Military expenditure and policy, 1179
Militia and defence
Annual drill, 1179
Expenditure and policy, 1597, 1617, 1984
Permanent force, 1984
Plough parts, duty on, 3123, 3231
Riordon Company, taxes, qu. 607, qu. 927
Root Vegetables bill, potato grades, 3373-4

Half Breed Scrip, Frauds, 148-9. See also Criminal Code Amdt. bill

Halifax. See also Naval Service
Dennis building, qu. 3360
Fortifications, 1581
Ocean terminals, qu. 364
Ocean tonnage, 2008

Halifax — Con.
Patronage committee, 199
Port of. See British Preference, M. (Mr. Logan)
Public buildings, expenditures, 1244
Quarantine station, repairs, 1238, 2021

Halkett, Mr. Andrew, 3051

Hamilton
Post office building, 1246-51, 1258
Queenston-Hamilton highway, qu. 471

Hammell, Mr. W. J. (Muskoka)
Parry Sound lighthouse inspector, qu. 827

Haney, Mr. M. J., contracts, 1375

Hanna, Mr. D. B., 192-3, qu. 471. See also Canadian National Railways, Directors

Hanna-Medicine Hat line, 1965

Hansard. See House of Commons, Debates

Hanson, Mr. Richard B. (York-Sunbury)
Alcohol for druggists, 3242
Business of the House, Saturday sittings, 2033
Canada Temperance Act, 2024
Caraquet and Gulf Shore Railway Co., 1183, qu. 1504
Coal
Anthracite, importations, qu. 2356
Public buildings, for, 1763
Defence, deputy ministers, 419
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2810
Edmundston public building, 1239, 1251
Election promises in Charlotte County, N.B., 1994
Experimental farms, 795
External Affairs, contingencies, 3509
Graham, Miss Nora, qu. 699
Harbours and rivers
New Brunswick, 1991
Nova Scotia, 1765
Expenditure, 1269
High Commissioner, 414
Indians, Devon band, removal, 1215
Insurance premiums, tax, 3256
International operation of railways, 192
Joggins breakwater, 1767
Justice department, contingencies, 1669
Labour investigators, 462
Marshall, Mr. Duncan, 647
Matches, tax on, 3262
Migratory birds, 1685
Militia and defence
Military property at Fredericton, 1980
Transport and freight, M. to reduce item by $50,000, 1987

Hanson, Mr. Richard B. — Con.
Municipal taxation, payment by Government, 1256
Naturalization Act, 2024
Nickel coin blanks, qu. 3152
Nova Scotia
Coal strike, 461
Supreme court vacancy, 3436
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3451
Pension Board, appeals, 391
Post Office Dept.
Printing and stationery, 691
Reorganization, 2800
Rural delivery, 2800
Provincial wharves, New Brunswick, 1991
Public buildings, Maritime provinces, 1243
Public Works estimates, 693
Purchasing Commission, 2025
Reid Newfoundland railway, 2027
Root Vegetable bill, 3369
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, 735
St. John and Quebec railway, 1295
Acquisition by Canadian National railways, qu. 1774
St. John terminal facilities, M. (Mr. Caldwell) 847
St. Lawrence river waterway, survey, 2768
Senate indemnity, 3509
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment dept.
Salary increases, 391
Vocational loans, 1346
Soldiers' homes, establishment of, 1348
Sorel shipyard, qu. 605
Statistics, Dominion Bureau of, 1363
Steamship services, 2029, 3506
War trophies, director, 702
Wharves in tidal waters, qu. 2209
White slave traffic, suppression of, 3497

Harbour Masters. See Canada Shipping Act Amdt.

Harbours. See St. Lawrence River Waterway. For individual Harbours, see their titles
Advances to. See Montreal, Quebec and Harbour Commission bills

Harbours and Rivers
Alberta, 2004, 3547
British Columbia, 2005, 3547
Esquimalt, 3541
Estimates, 1269, 1765, 1988, 3541
Expenditures on, 1465
Lake Huron, harbour of refuge, 2002
Little Current, 2002
Manitoba, 2003, 3545

Harbours and Rivers — Con.
Montreal Harbour Commission, employees, 1289. See also Montreal Harbour Commission bill
New Brunswick, 1991
Amdt. (Mr. Guthrie) to reduce item by $20,000, 1998
Provincial wharves, 1991
Nova Scotia, 1765, 3545
Expenditure, 1921-22, 1269
Ontario, 1999
Port Arthur and Fort William, 3541
Prince Edward Island, 1270, 1988
Quebec, 1998, 3545
Quebec Harbour Commission, 1283. See also Quebec Harbour Commission bill
St. John
Expenditure, qu. 1401
Improvement, 2013
Saskatchewan and Alberta, 2004, 3547
Shuswap lake, wharf, 3547
Toronto, 3541

Harding, President, 69
St. Lawrence River Waterway, 133, 1184

Hardy, Hon. Senator, A. C., 2695

Harris, Mr. Joseph H. (East York)
Address in reply, 307. Liberals and Progressives, 307; immigration; railway policy; 308; manufacturers and raw material, 309
Aliens, taxation of transient, 2155
Customs department, secretaries, 764
Foreigners, 2155
Hog cholera, garbage feeding, 1007-9, 1028
Immigration
Policy, 2154
Undesirable, 2154
Insurance premiums, tax, 3258
Lord Kitchener's death, foreigners and, 2155
Militia and defence, Lindsay arsenal, 2085
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3464
Pensions Com., final report, 3350
Public buildings, Ontario, repairs, 1250

Harvest Excursions, 337

Hatfield, Mr. Paul L. (Yarmouth and Clare)
Canned goods, marking, 3050
Fishing schooner race, 3511
Rural postmasters, 3080

Hatters' Bands, Plush, and bindings, 2855, 3139, 3141

Hawaian Islands, Japanese immigration, 1515

Health. See also Immigration; Indians; Tuberculosis
Department
Estimates, 2017
Salaries, etc., 775
Diseases, infectious of prisoners. See Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill
Honey, 2017
Housing, and, 121. See also Housing
Immigration, medical inspection, 2021. See also Immigration
Narcotic drugs, 2017. See also Opium and Narcotic Drugs Act Amdt. bill
Correspondence with wholesale druggists, 1289
Occupational diseases. See Labour
Quarantine, 2021
Unemployment, 86-87
Venereal diseases, qu. 935, 2022

Health of Animals. See Agriculture; Animal Contagious Diseases

Hearst Publications, 3111

Herring, Dry-salting. See Fisheries Act Amdt. bill

Hides, price of, 2623, 3138

High Commissioner in London, 58
British Columbia house, purchase of, 3537
Cattle embargo, and. See also that title
Alleged statement on, 1020, 1463
Income and taxation, 139
Salaries, etc., 413

High Cost of Living. See Cost of Living

High River, Alta.
Aerial Forest patrol, 1050, qu. 1066, 1723

Highways, 63, 75, 122
Banff-Windermere, 1051, 1681
Biggs, Hon. F. C., 63
Dundas Street, Halton county, qu. 1065
Edith Cavell, 1051
Grand Circle tour, 1683
Hamilton-Queenston, qu. 471
Indian reserves, 1216
Isle Perrot bridge, qu. 1377
Ontario, qu. 372
Ottawa-Kingston, qu. 1904, 2794
Ottawa-Pembroke, qu. 1661, 2794
Ottawa-Prescott, treeplanting, qu. 2039
Road materials, investigation, 1234
Road projects, submitted, qu. 2040
St. Thomas-Niagara Falls, qu. 936
Soulanges canal road, 2768
Tourist traffic and, 1682
Transcontinental, 319, 2636

Highways — Con.
Transportation, 1939
Unemployment relief, 1082
Windermere road, 1051, 1681

Hikers. See Macdonald's Army; Riley's Army

Historic Sites, 119. See also Battlefields Monuments, qu. 469

Hocken, Mr. H. C. (West Toronto)
Agriculture Com. report, Wheat Board, 785
American magazines, importation of, 3108-09, 3112
Budget, 2675. Expected modifications in budget proposals, 2675; taxes on cheques, confectionery and cigars; sales tax and cost of living; dissatisfaction of Agrarian party with budget; tariff record of Liberal party; pledges and promises broken, 2676; reduction in agricultural implement duties; protection and the maintenance of industries; record of Conservative party; inconsistencies of Liberals; Mr. Blake's Malvern speech; his letter to West Durham electors, 2677; unrestricted reciprocity; commercial union; Mr. Fielding's disavowal of tariff items of Liberal platform; concealment of views on public questions; reciprocity; government created by big interests, 2678; big business behind Sir Lomer Gouin, 2679; Proposed coalition of Agrarians and Liberals; national railways; responsibility for railway building, 2680; effort to form Liberal-Progressive government; progressives and reactionary factions in government; Minister of Marine and Fisheries; conflicting opinions in Liberal ranks; national railways; speech of Minister of Justice; full value for support of big interests; protection; diversified industries, 2682; relief from burdens not to be had through tariff reduction; feeling between East and West; rural depopulation of Ontario; agricultural conditions; manufacturers in unsatisfactory position, 2683; amenities of rural life, 2684
Canada's credit, 1919
Canadian National railways, deficits, 1919
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2811
Residential qualification, M. (Mr. Rinfret) 1298
Empire-Ascension Days, adjournment, 1905
Finance, deputy minister's salary, 752

Hocken, Mr. H. C. — Con.
Fishing schooner race, 3513
Income taxes, qu. 705
Labour dept.
Mr. Harrison, 575-6
Promotions, 576
McDonald, Mr. John N., qu. 3361
Military expenditure, 1137
Military hospitals, expenditure, 1261
Public buildings
Expenditure, 1261
Flags, 1265
Water, 1266
Public works estimates, 747, 748, 1261
Reciprocity, Mr. Putnam, 2286
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 833
St. Lawrence river waterway
M. (Mr. Church) 1314
Welland canal, and, 2754
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, salary increases, 388, 398
Toronto Suburban railway, qu. 2456
Welland ship canal, 2754

Hodgins, Mr. A. L. (East Middlesex)
Animal contagious diseases, 2103
Telegraph and telephone lines, 2013
Water powers, surveys, 1051

Hoey, Mr. R. A. (Springfield)
Budget, 2331. Financial obligations; precarious position of agriculture; Canadian workman, purchasing power; unemployment, 2331; Western Canada; statements prepared by Manitoba Agricultural College staff; wheat production and cost, 2332; farmers' profits compared with those of other businesses, 2333; probable permanency of conditions; rural discontent; the solution, 2334; drastic tariff reductions; lower freight rates, wider markets; tendency to lean on government, 2335; protection and the agricultural industry; Fordney tariff; opportunity for reductions in Canadian tariff; Genoa Conference; Mr. Lloyd George and spirit of nationalism; source of revenue; development of basic industries, 2337; the amendment, 2338; broken promises; tariff commission; redistribution; party system of government, 2339
Census, completion of, 1365
Cost of living, 1175, 2331
Gordon, Sir Charles, 584
Immigration statistics, 756-7
Labour dept., salaries, 551

Hoey, Mr. R. A. — Con.
Military expenditure and policy, 1175
Militia and defence
Annual drill, 1175
Quebec arsenal, 2097
Ministers and directorships, 1111
Rail and car repair contracts, 1705
Redistribution and the census, 1365
Winnipeg river, bridge, 2011

Hogs
Cholera. See also Agriculture; Animal Contagious Diseases bill; Health of Animals
Compensation, 1028
Extermination of, 2594
Grading, 2594

Holiday on Election Day. See Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill

Holland, immigration from, 2144

Holland, Lee, order for deportation of, 1283

Holland, Major, death of, 2821

Holstein Cattle trade with United States in, 2695

Holt, Sir Henry, 1128

Home Brewing. See Inland Revenue

Home . Markets. See Budget; Markets; speeches on Address

Homesteads. See Dominion Lands; Immigration; Soldiers' Land Settlement
Re-entry, 1041

Honey, 2017

Honorary Advisory Council of Industrial and Scientific Research. See Industrial and Scientific Research

Horse Power. See Electric Power; Water Power

Horse Racing, Federal control of, 2596

Horses. See Live Stock

Hose, Captain. See Naval Service

Hosmer, Mr. Charles R., 1128

Hospital Ships
Claim by British Ministry of Shipping for loss, 2975
Exemption from pilotage dues. See Canada Shipping Act

House of Commons. See also Deputy Speaker; Speaker
Acoustics, 1053, 1751, 3544, 3612. See also under this title, Audibility of Debates
Adjournments
Easter, 546, 820, 823
Empire day and Ascension day, 1760, 1769, 1905
To discuss matter of urgent public importance
M. (Mr. Irvine) Nova Scotia miners, 497; withdrawn, 545
Audibility of debates, 385, 411, 658, 708, 1053, 1578, 1721, 1751, 1755, 1996, 2831, 3544, 3613
Bills, money, to be preceded by res, 547
Business of the House
Budget debate, probable date of conclusion, 2639
Daylight saving, 1282
Further legislation, 2996, 3041, 3103, 3151, 3364-5
Government orders, Mondays and Wednesdays, 1460, 1719
Private members', 1719
Public accounts, closing of, 1210
By-elections. See under this title Vacancies
Chamber, acoustics. See under this title, Acoustics; Audibility of Debates
Committees, Select Standing, 8, 323. For proceedings and reports, See titles of the several Committees
Changes in, 497, 545, 596, 871, 1398
Powers of, 326
Criminal Code, reprinting of, 1717
Debates
Audibility of. See under this title Acoustics; Audibility of Debates Official Report of Committee
Appointed, 325
First report, 1132, 1258
Second report, 3359
Incorporation of documents not read, 1539, 3526
Tabulated statements in answer to questions, 1132, 1660
Decorum
Conversation, 1755, 2640
Courteous bearing to member speaking, 2090
Deputy Speaker, election of, 363. See also that title
Deputy Sergeant-at-Arms, 5
Divisions
Budget
Amdt. to Amdt. (Mr. Crerar), ruling of Mr. Speaker on, 2523

House of Commons — Con.
Divisions — Con.
Budget — Con.
Amdt. (Sir Henry Drayton), neg. 2912
Correction of division list, 2971; Corrected list, 2972
M. (Mr. Fielding) for Com. of Ways and Means, agreed to, 2913
Crowsnest Pass Agreement
M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) and amdt. (Sir Henry Drayton) 1457-8
Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway Company bill, amdt. (Mr. Neill) neg. 1163
Freight Rates, amdt. (Sir Henry Drayton) to M. (Mr. Maclean, Halifax) for adoption of third report of Special Com. on Transportation Costs, 3586
Lake of the Woods Regulation bill, 3435
Ministers and Directorships, M. (Mr. McMaster) neg. 1131
Oleomargarine, Manufacture and Importation, discontinuance of, M. (Mr. Neill) neg. 1840
Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) and amdt. (Mr. Stewart, Argenteuil) 1577
Paired members inadvertently voting, 1462
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) neg. 843
Soldiers' Bonus, M. (Mr. Arthurs) neg. 450
Estimates, 2026. See also that title
Discussion of particular item on M. to go into Com. of Supply, 1337
Expenditure, qu. 2583
Expense of sittings and cost per hour, 1476, 2170, 2635
Hansard. See under this title, Debates, Official Report of House of Commons and Senate Act, 1088. See also Ministers and Directorships
Indemnity
Payment of, 361
Proposed reduction, 2513, 2690, 2895, 3613
Internal Economy Commission, 8
Members
Attendance of, 2513
Deceased
Baker, the late Colonel G. H., memorial to, 1929
McGibbon, Mr. Peter (Argenteuil) 39
New
Election and introduction of Bouchard, Mr. Georges (Joseph) 1929
King, Hon. J. H., 496
Ouimet, Joseph Rodolphe, 323
Private, business of, 1719

House of Commons — Con.
Members — Con.
Speeches, length of, 2450, 2635
Ministers and directorships. See that title
Motions
Amdt. to amdt. (Mr. Crerar) 2473, 2507
Speaker's ruling, 2519
Non-debatable
That Com. rise, 1181
Oleomargarine (Mr. Neill) time fixed for discussion, 1719
Redistribution, M. (Mr. Shaw) opportunity for discussion, 1719
Supply in, 1579
Orders for returns. See under this title, Returns
Orders of the Day
Right of member to raise qu. of privilege, 2638
Pairs. See under this title, Divisions
Petitions, Birnie, Mr. Alex. and others, 1929
Privilege
Baxter, Hon. Mr. — Carleton, N.B., returning officer, 3492
Caldwell, Mr. — Carleton, N.B., returning officer, 3602
Copp, Hon. Mr. — Correction of report respecting War claims, 1721
Crerar, Hon. Mr. — Budget debate, agricultural figures quoted in, 2637
Deslauriers, Mr. — Correction of speech, 3365-6
Fielding, Hon. Mr. — Clerk Assistant, 687
Gauvreau, Mr. — Statement of Miss Macphail, 3221
Hoey, Mr.—Denial of newspaper reports. 2458
Johnston, Mr. (Last Mountain) — Charge that Progressives are delaying budget debate, 2692
Kay, Mr. — Wheat Board, 872
Maclean, Mr. (York) — Crowsnest pass agreement, 3608
Right of member to raise qu. on orders of the day, 2638
Questions
Lengthy answers to, 1660
Tabulated statements in official report of debates, 1132
Returns
Inquiry for, 1283, 1988, 2042
Questions requiring tabulated answers, 1132
Rules, suspension of Rule 11, 1502
Senate, and, expenditure, qu. 2583
Sergeant-at-Arms
Parliamentary messengers, qu. 1376, 1335

House of Commons — Con.
Sittings
Eleven o'clock adjournment, 2033
Empire and Ascension days, 1769
Saturday, 1905, 2032, 2458
Suspended, 3611-14
Wednesday at 3 p.m., 49
Wednesday evenings, 1905, 2033, 2170
Speaker. See that title
Speeches, length, 2450, 2635
Staff
Chief accountant, salary, qu. 2583, qu. 2803
Chief of stationery division, 3608
Law branch, 2304
Organization, 3221
Amended, 1335
Reading room, assistant curators, 1335
Stenographers and messengers, pay, qu. 1376
Statutes, reprinting of, 1717
Supply
Amendment to amendment, 1579
Discussion of particular item of estimates on M. to go into Supply, 1337
Motion, movers of, 1579
Motion for, latitude in discussion, 2238
Vacancies
Kamouraska, 1459

House of Commons and Senate Act Amdt. bill. See Ministers and Directorships; Salaries Act Amdt.

Housing, 121, 219, 774, 3524. See also Labour; Returned Soldiers; Unemployment
Building costs, 2417
Returned soldiers, for, 271, 3304, 3314, 3321-22, 3329, 3332. See also that title
Shortage of, 1072
Unemployment, and, 3524

Howe, Hon. Joseph, 1387

Hubbs, Mr. John (Prince Edward)
Alcohol tax, retail druggists, 1213

Hudson, Mr. A. B. (South Winnipeg)
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1444
Immigration-Criminal Code bills, 3283
Lake of the Woods repeal bill, 3199, 3210

Hudson's Bay Company
Northwest country and, 148
Supplies to northern Indians, 1712

Hudson Bay Railway, 2602
Completion of, 2779

Hudson Bay Railway — Con.
Hudson Bay
Navigability and fishery resources of, 2781, 2779-99
Port Nelson, 1970
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1208, 1325
Senate committee, report, 2781

Hueston, Captain, inquiry into death of, qu. 2993, 3314

Hughes, Mr. J. J. (King's P.E.I.)
Address in reply, 224. Reciprocity and class legislation, 224; immigration and unemployment, 225; Prince Edward island markets and government inspection; income tax, administration of Act, 226; sales tax; daylight saving; eight-hour day and farmers, 227; labour unions; railways and the maritime provinces, 228
Administration, economy in, 3077-8
Budget, 2225. Financial situation, debt, expenditure, economy; borrowings, 2225; the amendment, 2226; income tax, comparison with systems in other countries, 2227; sales tax; extravagant war expenditures, 2228; Wartime Elections Act, 2229
Canadian National railways, public ownership, 1925, 1956
Canned goods, inspection of, 3049
Civil Service Commission, 3076
Civil Service, economy, 2060
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 955
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill
Residential qualification, M. (Mr. Rinfret) 1299
Harbours and rivers, Prince Edward island, 1989
Income tax, comparison with systems in other countries, 2227
Military expenditures and policy, 1143
Militia, annual drill, 1144
Montague, P.E.I., post office building, 1264
Railway policy, 1956

Humane Society, Criminal Code Amdt., 2831

Humphrey, Mr. L. W. (West Kootenay)
Oriental aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 1526
Pension Board, charges against, 2994
Postal revenue, qu. 2040
Remuneration of railway employees — Mr. McCrea, 2316

Hungary, Treaty with, 3359, 3490, 3547. For Bill, See Peace Treaties

Hutterites. See Immigration

Hydro Electric, 632, 1326, 1937, 2327, 2747. See also Electrification; Maclean, Mr. (York); St. Lawrence River Waterway; Water Powers
Commission, 1937
Difference with Ontario Government, 1080
Power development in Ontario, 63, 71, 131, 1950
St. Lawrence river waterway, 136, 1188-9. See also that title

Hydrographic Survey, 1736, 1746. See also Naval Service

Hyndman Commission. See Grain Inquiry Commission

Ice-breakers
Claim of Canadian Towing & Wrecking Co., 1677
Repurchase of, 1490
Thunder Bay, at, 1677
Vickers company contract, 320

Iceland, immigration from, 2144

Immigration, 6-7, 56, 79, 80, 82, 88, 145, 164, 182, 236, 282, 297, 311, 336, 348, 2243, 2254. See also Address; Budget; Census; Labour; Oriental Aliens; Unemployment
Advantages, 2516
Agents,
Bonus to, 3062
Promises by, 3058, 3063
Agricultural labourers, 297, 2143, 2161, 2193, 2514, 3053-5
Agriculture, condition and prospects, 2147
Alien enemies, 2146
Asiatic. See under this title, Oriental Aliens
Attitude towards the immigrant, 2151, 2157, 2160
British, 2144, 2150, 2515
Artisans, 2258, 2516
Ex-service men, qu. 3152
Buildings, repairs, etc., 1757
Bukowinians, 2159
Canadian National railways, and, 1927
Canadians emigrating, qu. 1182. See also under this title, Emigration
Central European, 2154-8, 2166, 2477
Child, 2144, 2148, 2153, 2161, 2163, 3063
Chinese, 2026. See also Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie)
Commissioner at Canton, qu. 1901, qu. 2214

Immigration — Con.
Classes prohibited after May 9, 2514
Crime, and, 1392-4, 2517
Deportation. See Immigration-Criminal Code Bills (Mr. Woodsworth)
Aliens trafficking in drugs, 2019
Desirable, 3057
Domestic servants, 2143, 2514, 3053-4
Doukhobors, 167, 2160
Eastern Canada, 2165
Eastern Europe, 80
Emigration from Canada, 2260, 2372, 2516, 2865. See also Population
Canadians, qu. 1182
Exodus from Canada, 2478, 2516
Losses through, 2516
Record of, 2158
Europe, from, 308. See also under this title, Central European Follow up policy, 2160
Foreign-born and crime, 1392-4, 2517
Galicians, 2159
Great Britain, from, 2480
Growth of wealth under, 13
Highland family, alleged unjust treatment of, 2145
Holland, 2144
Holland, Lee, deportation of, 872, 1282
Household workers, 2143, 2514, 3053-4
Hutterites and Mennonites, qu. 723, 2160, 3060
Icelandic, 2144
Industrial centres, from, 236
Inspection, 2143
Investigation of conditions in Europe, 1711
Italian, 2171
Japanese. See under this title, Oriental Aliens
Land, speculation in, 2152-9
Language qualification, 2515
Literature, Ontario Government, 2566
"Man with the sheepskin coat", 2151, 2153, 2518
Manitoba Liberal Convention, res. 2478
Maritime provinces, and, 2165
Meals for immigrants, qu. 2971
Medical inspection, 2021, 2143
Mennonites, qu. 723, 2160, 3060
Emigration to Mexico, qu. 732, 2160
Mentally unfit, 2145
Minister's statement, 2143
Money qualification, 2148, 2208, 3058
Montreal Board of Trade res. 2517
"Nomination system", 3056
Oriental, 319, 2143. See also Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie)
Asiatic, 173, qu. 732
British Columbia in, 167

Immigration — Con.
Oriental — Con.
Chinese, restriction of
M. (Mr. Stevens) for papers, 1776
Japanese, restriction of, qu. 1289, qu. 1399
M. (Mr. Stevens) for papers, 1776
Oriental Aliens, 319. See that title
Poland, 2145
Policy
Criticisms, 2579
Minister's statement, 17, 2143, 2476, 2481
Physically fit, 3055-6
Printers, 3055
Problems of, 350
Qualifications, 2479
Quebec, facilities at, 1465
Racial groups, 236
Assimilation, of, 2517
Rate of, 269
Reception of the immigrant, 2151, 2157, 2160
Regulations, 249-250, 2148, 2215, 2513-14
Res. of Manitoba Liberal Convention, 2478
Restricted, 167, 2513-14, 3056
St. John immigration buildings, 2027
Scandinavian, 2144
Shandro's plan, 2153
Sifton, Sir Clifford, and, 268
Undesirable, 1389, 2154
Ukrainians, 3061
Unemployment, and, 151, 182, 225, 1071. See also that title
Union of Canadian municipalities resolution, 236, 2155
United States, from, 658, 2147, 2150, 2162, 2477. See also that title
Work, lack of, 251. See also under this title, Unemployment

Immigration Act
Disqualification of British-born under, 1389-91

Immigration Act Amdt. bills
1. Trial by jury, deportation, (Mr. Woodsworth) 1r., 364; 2r., 493, 864
Ref. to Special Com., 1388-94, 1502
Additions to Special Com., 1719
Special Com. reports, 1988, 2519, 3104, 3156. See also Criminal Code bill (Mr. Woodsworth)
Final report, 3280
M. (Mr. Woodsworth) to refer back, 3282-83
Amdt. neg. 3286
M. (Mr. Archambault) to concur
M. agreed to, 3286
(Subjects and sections discussed)

Immigration Act Amdt. bills — Con.
Trial by jury — Con.
Arrest without warrant, 1390
Assumption of powers of government, 1391
British subject, naturalization of, 1391
Decision of immigration authorities, 1389
Deportation of British subject without trial, 1390
Domicile, 1389
Enemy aliens, 1389
Foreigners, 1392
Organized Government, disbelief in, 1389
Overt acts and thoughts, 1390
Prohibited or undesirable classes, 1389
Repeal of provisions of 1919 Act, 1392
Retroactive legislation, 1391
Trial by jury, 1388
2. Intending Immigrants to make written application. (Mr. Neil) 1r., 2207

Immigration and Colonization
Department
Civil government estimates, 3499
Contingencies, 3051
Deputy Minister, qu. 2970
Estimates, 1711, 2026 2143, 3499
Representative at Canton, China, qu. 1901, qu. 2214
Salaries, etc., 754, 3502

Imperial Conference. See also Conferences; Prime Minister Conference
Naval defence, 1864

Imperial Convention of Teachers, grant, 1673

Imperial Council, qu. 2803

Imperial Defence. See National Defence bills

Imperial Forces, pensions. See Pensions

Imperial Mining Resources Bureau, 1237

Imperial Order of Daughters of the Empire, 2517

Implements. See Agricultural Implements

Imported Goods, marking of. See Budget; Customs; Imports

Imports and Exports. See also Budget; Customs; Germany; Trade
Agricultural figures, 209, 2618-19
Automobiles and parts, qu. 1633. See also that title
British goods, qu. 966
Via United States, qu. 375
By countries, 2109
Coal for public buildings, 1759
Duties, 2668. See also Customs

Imports and Exports — Con.
Exports
Decrease, 2579
Fiscal years, 1876-77 and 1921-22, qu. 1376
Restriction of exports, 2883
United States, to, 209. See also United States
1911-1922, qu. 1661
Germany, from, 2421, 2644. See Germany
Marking, 2113, 3476-7. See also Customs
Meat, of, qu. 610
Quantity, and, value of, 2182
Revenue from, qu. 827
Statement for last three years, 2109
Structural steel, qu, 1931
Valuation, 2113, 3413
For duty, amended regulation, 2854

Income Tax. 2174, 2220, 2691, 2693. See also Address; Budget; Taxation; Ways and Means
Administration of, 226, 2024
Aliens, non-residents, 1301
Amount collected, qu. 366
Average, by classes, 2298
Banks, payments by, 1400
Branch, appointments to, 1663
By provinces, qu. 705, qu. 1340
Civil Service retirement fund, qu. 937
Classification of taxpayers, 1063
Collections, 60
In 1919-20-21, qu. 1063
Manufacturers, from, 60
Commercial travellers, 2174, 3484. See also Income War Tax Act Amdt.
Comparison with systems of other countries, 2227
Exemptions, 2275
Farmers, and, 352, 2714
Great Britain, reductions in, 2860
Inequalities, 2672
Inquiry for legislation, 3103
Montreal office employees, qu. 607, 1288
Payments by grades, qu. 3362
Revenue and classification of taxpayers, 1063, qu. 1399
By provinces, qu. 705, qu. 1340
Winnipeg, qu. 1340
Riordon Paper Company, qu. 927
St. John, N.B., office, qu. 826
Systems in other countries, 2227
Widows and widowers, 2174

Income War Tax Act, 1917, Amdt. bill
Res. 3478; 1r., 3359-3360; 2r., com., 3484; 3r., 3486
Sections and subjects discussed:
Banks not entitled to deductions, 3485

Income War Tax Act, 1917, Amdt. bill — Con.
Sections and Subjects discussed — Con.
Exemptions, 3359
Children, 3484
Forms, 3486
Non-resident aliens
M. (Mr. German) 1301, agreed to, 1303
Taxation of American citizens, 3485
Travelling expenses of trainmen and commercial travellers, 3485

Indecent Assault. See Criminal Code

Indebtedness. See Budget; Finance; Loans; Public Debt

Indemnity of Members. See House of Commons

Index, Unrevised Edition. See House of Commons, Debates

Indian Act Amdt. bill (Enfranchisement of Indians; Ownership of land)
1r., 2991; 2r., com., 3191; 3r., 3194

Indian Affairs, Department of
Estimates, 1214, 1712, 3536
Salaries, etc., 681

Indians
Agents. See also under this title, Reserves
Oka, 1217
Sturgeon Falls, qu. 1285
Agitation and unrest, 1223
British Columbia, 1713
Lands, 330
Legal expenses, 3536
Bryce, Dr. Peter H., pamphlet, 1220, 1224
Complaints, 1223
Destitute, relief for, 1712-14
Edmonton school, proposed, 1227-9, 3536
Education, 1227, 1715, 3536
Edmonton school, 1227-9, 3536
Elkhorn school, 3537
Morley school, 1218, 3536
Red Deer school, 1229
Round Lake school, 3537
Stony reserve, qu. 965, 1218, 1227, 3536
Enfranchisement. See Indian Act Amdt.
Expenditure, 1216, 1225
Field and garden seeds, 1712
Food allowance, 1220
General expenses, 1226, 1712
Greater production campaign, 1216-20, 1224, 1288
Half-breed scrip frauds, 148-9. See also Criminal Code
Health, 1220, 1230
Hospitals and medical attention, 1218-24, 1713

Indians — Con.
Janse brothers, land in Ermineskins reserve, 1713
Lafferty, Dr. J. D., 1225
Manitoba, Saskatchewan, Alberta and northwest, 1218
New Brunswick, 1215
Nova Scotia, 1214
Number in Canada, 685
Ontario and Quebec, 1216
Potlach Institution, qu. 1377, 3191
Indians serving gaol sentences for, 1578, 1721
Reserves
Blackfoot, 1224
Greater production, 1288
Pasture land, qu. 2215
Blood, 1219
Land leased, qu. 2969
Devon band, proposed removal, 1215
Ermineskins, 1712
Keeseekoose-Saskatchewan, qu. 608
Oak lake and Pipestone, 1223
Oka, Indian agent, 1217
St. Peters, qu. 472
Saskatchewan, qu. 608
Six Nation, 1220-1
Stony, 1218
Education, qu. 965, 1227, 3536
Sydney
Medical attendance, qu. 2216
Proposed transfer, 1215
Tobique, illegal cutting of timber, 1233
Settlers. See Indian Act Amdt. bill
Smallpox and other diseases, 1714. See also under this title, Health
Treaty No. 11, 1219, 1227
Tuberculosis, 1714
Yukon, 1226

Industrial and Scientific Research, 1372

Industrial Conference. See National Industrial Conference

Industrial Depression, 6. 10, 52, 85, 105, 210, 212, 218, 219, 223, 235. See also Address; Budget; Trade

Industrial Disputes. See Labour
Investigation Act, 1054, 1058. See also Nova Scotia Miners

Industrial Re-establishment. See Labour; Returned Soldiers; Unemployment

Industrial Warfare. See Nova Scotia Miners

Industries. See also Address; Budget; Trade
Basic and secondary, 2384
Boot and shoes, cost of labour, 2350

Industries — Con.
Canadian, encouragement, 2658. See also Budget
Exhibitions of industrial products in France, 2031
Financial credit, M. (Mr. Irvine) 1289, 1396
Home, 2149, 2229. See also Budget
Key, 2379
Infant, encouragement, 2434
Manufacturing, 2377
Occupational diseases. See Labour
Protection and maintenance of, 144, 2677, 2409-11
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1318
Subsidizing, 2402
United States, branches in Canada, 2389, 2546
Woollen, cost of labour, 2350

"Industry and Humanity", reference to, 253, 534

Infant Mortality, 1380, 2634

Infectious Diseases. See Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill

Inglis Boiler Works, qu. 732

Inheritance Tax. See this title under Taxation

Inland Revenue Act Amdt. bill (Excise duties changed). Res. 3239; 1r., 2r., com., 3r., 3477
Sections and subjects discussed:
Alcohol for druggists, 3241
Beet sugar, 3246
Amdt. (Mr. Fansher) negatived, 3252
Cigars and cigarettes, 3239
Home brewing, 3141, 3142, 3252
Molasses, 3242
Raw leaf tobacco, 3241
Sugar, 3242

Inquiry for Returns. See House of Commons, Returns

Insect Pests. See Agriculture; Destructive Insect and Pest Act; Grasshoppers

Inside Service. See Civil Service

Inspection and Sale of Root Vegetables. See Root Vegetables

Insular Dominions. See Limitation of Armaments

Insurance
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, qu. 605
Canadian National railway, qu. 471, qu. 610

Insurance — Con.
Claims of heirs of deceased soldiers, 1349. See also Returned Soldiers' Insurance
Fire prevention, 794
Foreign companies, tax, 2462
Fraternal benefit societies, 3143
Mutual companies, 3477. See also Special War Revenue
Premiums, tax on, 2117
Returned Soldiers, 3306, 3313. See Pensions; Returned Soldiers Insurance bill
Beneficiaries, 3328
Returns. See Special War Revenue bill
Soldiers, etc., 791
The People's Insurance Act, Great Britain, 1304
Unemployment, 1069-84
Sickness, and old age, qu. 1375
Woodmen of the World, 1905

Insurance Act, 1917, Amdt. bill
1r., 1210; 2r., ref. to Banking and Commerce Com., 1464; com., 3143; 3r., 3148; Senate admts. 3607

Inter-Allied Permanent Committee on Disabled Soldiers, 3403

Intercolonial Railway. See that title under Canadian National Railways

Interest, 1921. See also Banks; Finance; Loans; Money

Interim Supply. See also Estimates; Supply
Committee, 378, 598
One-fourth vote suggested, 373
Position of Opposition last year, 378-385

Interim Supply Bill. See also Appropriation Acts
Res. 378; 598; 1r., 2r., com., 3r., 599

Interior Department
Canadian National parks, 1681
Conservation Commission employees, transfer to, 452-3
Dominion lands and parks, 1681
Estimates, 452, 1033, 1270, 1680, 3517
Forbes, Mrs. E. S., compassionate allowance, 3517
Migratory Birds, 1684
Nelson, Mr. Frank, salary, 3517
Printing and stationery, 1680
Statistics, 1366
Topographical maps, qu. 1632
Yukon territory
Administration of, 1681
Expenditure, 1275

Interlocking Directorates, 2503. See also Ministers and Directorships

Internal Economy Commission. See House of Commons

International Boundary Commission, 1033

International Customs Tariff Bureau, 1373

International Deep Sea Racing, M. (Mr. Duff) 1384, 3510

International Disarmament Conference. See Limitation of Armaments

International Harvester Company, 2382

International Institute of Agriculture, 969

International Joint Commission, 70. See also Electrification; Lake of the Woods; St. Lawrence River Waterway
Report on St. Lawrence river waterway, 136, 1185, 1191, 1193, 1197, 1199, 1206, 1315, 1396, 1469
Welland canal, 1688

International Labour Conference, qu. 824, 1060, 1070

International Operation of Railways. See under Canadian National Railways, Grand Trunk lines in United States

International Opium Convention, qu. 1066

International Waters. See Lake of the Woods; St. Lawrence

Intoxicating Liquor. See Canada Temperance Act; Liquor

Inverness Pier, 1766

Invoice Certificates. See Customs Act Amdt.

Ireland-Halifax cable, qu. 3360

Iron and Steel Industry. See also Steel
Structural steel importations, qu. 1931

Irrigation
Preservation of forests and, 1723
Southern Alberta, 761

Irvine, Mr. William (East Calgary)
Address in reply, 211; death of Prime Minister's brother; congratulations to Mr. Speaker, important matters contained in Speech from Throne, 211; industrial problems; social evolution, 212; complicated political system, 213; Labour party, 214; party system of government, 215; origin of parties, 216;

Irvine, Mr. William — Con.
Address — Con.
official Opposition; speeches of Prime Minister and leader of Opposition, 217; co-operation in government; production, consumption and unemployment, 218; unemployment insurance; industrial disturbance, 218; housing; gold standard and credit system; 219; protection and wages; home markets, 221; credit systems, 222; trade competition, 223; industrial problems — British labour party, 224
Agriculture and unemployment, 3058
British Empire Steel Corporation, 1082
Budget, 2495. Congratulations to Minister of Finance; taxation; public debt; chasing the financial blue-bird; colossal lie upon which budget is based; credit proposal to meet expenditures and debt; panic of national leaders, 2496; soundness of Canada's financial position; bank balances and real wealth; estimate of wealth and production, 2497; difference between production and consumption; average income of Canadian bread-winner; purchasing power, 2498; credit question at centre of national problems; Germany's industrial and financial position, wages, working hours; paper money, 2499; payment of indemnity in goods; proposed German loan; control of credit, 2500; the banking system; starting a new bank; issues of new money; issue of currency by Govt.; interest; private monopoly of social credit; indebtedness of Canada, 2501; inflation and deflation; under consumption; shut off interest taps of financiers; the Douglas system, 2502; definition of credit; ability to produce and deliver goods; a social asset; banking and interlocking directorates, 2503; regulation of prices, 2504; schemes proposed by Mr. Henry Ford and Mr. T. A. Edison, 2505; practical attempts to inaugurate credit system; island of Guernsey, 2505; St. Louis municipal currency; the gold basis; collapse of financial system; investigation of banking system, 2506; taxation of consumer; the amendment; attitude of Opposition; amendment to the amendment, 2507; attitude of Progressives; Farmers' platform; fiscal policy of Canadian Council of Agriculture; speech of leader of Progressive party; tariff proposals of Canadian

Irvine, Mr. William — Con.
Budget — Con.
Council of Agriculture, 2509; tax on unimproved land values; inheritance tax, 2510
Debate, M. for adjournment, 2448, 2451, 2455
Business profits war tax, 2024
Calgary live stock branch, qu. 607
Canadian exhibition in France, 2032
Canadian Government railways, deficits, qu. 607
Canadian National railways, public ownership, 1953
Canadian Patriotic Fund Act, 3478-84
Customs department, estimates, 769
Ex-service men, qu. 3152
Financial credit, M. 1290
Free freight outlay, qu. 704
Gold in central reserves and chartered banks, qu. 2971
Immigration-Criminal Code bills (Mr. Woodsworth) 1393, 3285
Immigration, medical inspection, 2022, 3060
Labour department
Employment specialist, 461
Statisticians, 462
Wage investigators, 463
Labour and unemployment, 3060
Loans, five year maturities, qu. 2993
Mackenzie-Mann subsidies, qu. 607
Military expenditure and policy, 1150, 1617
Ministers and directorships, 1120
Non-taxable bonds, qu. 2971
Nova Scotia miners
M. to adjourn House to discuss, 497, 539; withdrawn, 545
Quarantine. immigrant refusing vaccination, 2022
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3456
Pensions Com., final report, 3345
Prime Ministers' Conference, naval defence, 1745
Rail and car repair contracts, 1705
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 836
Shoe industry, protection, 3238
Soldiers' bonus, M. (Mr. Arthurs) 436
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, 1617
Tariff against France, 2032
Unemployment
Insurance, 1081
National Conference, 1082
Public works and highways, 1082
Relief, 2023
Situation, 1080
Standing committee, 1082
War, causes and effects of, 1618

Isle Perrot bridge, See Bridges

Italy
Genoa Conference, correspondence, 1905, 2035
Immigrants from, 2171
Trade, effect of currency valuation, 2849

Jacobs, Mr. S. W. (George Etienne Cartier)
Air Board, 1722
Animal Contagious Diseases bill, 2734
Archives branch, 703
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. bill (petition in bankruptcy) 1395
Budget, 2513. Immigration, restrictive regulations; certain classes of immigration prohibited after May 9; agriculturists; farm labourers and domestic servants, 2514; discrimination in favour of British immigrants; language qualification; attempt to secure farmers bound to fail, 2515; artisan class should be admitted; immigration of the last ten years; exodus; loss of a million people; advantages of immigration; immigration into the United States, 2516; resolution of Montreal Board of Trade; curious notions in regard to immigration; Imperial Order of Daughters of the Empire; assimilation of races; foreign-born and crime, 2517; Miss Macphail's objection to sheepskin coats; foreigners engaged in textile and other trades; government by Order in Council, 2518
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, amdt., 3000, neg. 3006
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, 3104
Census
Cost, 1363
Enumerators, appointment of, 1368
Chamberlin, Mr. R. G., grant to, 3498
Cigars and cigarettes, tax, 3240
Criminal Code Amdt. bill, (Mr. Jacobs) 1395
Criminal Code revision, 1717
Dominion Chain Company, Limited, 3490
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women, M. (Mr. Euler) 477
"Foreigners and crime" propaganda, 1392, 2517
Grecian and Roumanian loans, qu. 1400
Immigration, 2513-2517
Department of, 3500
Deputy Minister, Mr. W. J. Black, qu. 2970, 3500
Dutch, 2144

Jacobs, Mr. S. W. — Con.
Immigration — Con.
Lord Kitchener's death, foreigners and, 2155
Meals for immigrants, 2971
Immigration Act Amdt. bill, (Mr. Woodsworth) 1391, 1392
Insurance premiums, taxation, 3254-5
Linen yarn bounty, 1362
Lusitania reparation claims, qu. 3599
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. bill, 3425
Palestine, mandate over, 1716
Redistribution and the census, 1365
Saskatchewan liquor export, 3000
Steamship subsidies, qu, 614
Supreme Court Act Amdt. bill, 2974

Jamieson, Mr. J. A., claim of, 1687

Japan
Army reduction, 1610
Coal, importation from, 2406. See also Coal
Immigration from. See Oriental Aliens
Lemieux agreement, 1459
Rights and disabilities of Canadians in, qu. 1289, 1511, 2208
Treaty with, 1510. See also, Limitation of Armaments

Jasper Park, Edith Cavell road, 1051

Jelliff, Mr. L. H. (Lethbridge)
Air force and civil aviation, High River, 1734
Customs tariff, woollen clothing, 3235
Irrigation, Southern Alberta, 761
Lighthouses and lightkeepers, 1497
Live stock, loss through wolves, 990, 1001
Rotary rod weeders, duty on, 3121
Sales tax, 3272
Soldiers' civil re-establishment, salary increases, 406

Job Printing. See Special War Revenue, Sales Tax

Joggins, breakwater, 1767

Johnson, Mr. R. M. (Moosejaw)
Address in reply, 112. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker; position of Progressive party, 112; agricultural conditions, 113; marketing of grain, 114; tariff; natural resources of western provinces; public ownership of railways, 116
Agriculture, retirement of Dr. Saunders, 590, 3522
Animal Contagious Diseases Act Amdt. bill, 2103, 2737

Johnson, Mr. R. M. — Con.
Canada Grain Act
Constitutionality of, 2837
Overages, 2838
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 3009
Canadian National railways. Bengough extension, 2770
Canadian Wheat Board, qu. 472, 2951. See also under this title, Wheat Board bill
Advance to, 3541
Customs, dumping clause, 3419
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2810
Dominion lands, cancellation of leases bill, 3469
Fishing schooner race, 3510
Freight rates, Quebec and, 1472
Goderich harbour, grain shipment through, 2002
Government publications, 1374
Grain companies, default of, 2837
Judges' Act Amdt. bill, 427
Justice dept, estimates, 1668
Labour dept.
Temporary clerks, 567
Wage investigators, 462-3
Lignite Utilization Board, 3526
National Defence bill, 2808
Portable and traction engines, 3231
Public buildings
Heating, 1759
Western provinces, discrimination against, 1254
Quebec harbour advances, 1471
St. Lawrence river waterway, 2762
Saunders, Dr. C. E., gratuity, 590, 3522
Soldiers' civil re-establishment, Fort Qu'Appelle sanitarium, 1345
Threshing machines, 3124-25
Welland ship canal, grain transportation, 2762
Wheat Board bill, 3177, 3180, 3182, 3188, 3384
Amdt. 3178

Johnston, Mr. J. Fred (Last Mountain)
Accredited herds, diseases, 968
Air force and civil aviation, 1724
Bacon, production and marketing, 1025
Budget, 2220. Congratulations to Finance Minister; reciprocity; financial situation, 2220; revenue and expenditure; debt; war obligations; profiteering; failure to tax wealth; tariff reductions; sales tax, 2221; income tax; immigration; increased production, 2222; markets; trade with United States; Wheat Board; amendment, 2223; failure of Government to propose progressive policy, 2224

Johnston, Mr. J. Fred — Con.
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, qu. 469
Cultivators, etc., duty on, 3120
Customs Act, valuation, 3415
Dominion lands, sale of, qu. 376
Hudson bay railway, 1970
Immigration
Deputy Minister, 757
Officials, 760
Implement parts, duty, 3120
Lighthouses and lightkeepers, 1497
Militia and Defence, pay of staff, 1982
Ministers and Directorships, 1120
Ottawa public buildings, 1252
Ploughs, etc., duty on, 3121
M. to reduce, 3121
Printing Bureau, plant and publications, 1971
Privilege, Progressives and delay in budget debate, 2692
Redistribution and the census, 1370
Rural and urban population, qu. 376
War memorials, 2101

Joint Industrial Councils. See Labour

Jones, Mr. George B. (Royal)
Canadian National railways, coal importations, qu. 2213
Grand Anse, C.B., mail service, qu. 938
Le Blanc, Dr. B. A., Arichat, qu. 1773
St. John terminal facilities, 848

Judges. See also Bankruptcy Act Amdt.; Exchequer Court; Justice; Supreme Court
Adamson, Mr. Justice, appointment of, 1670
Admiralty, local judge in, 1274
Gravelbourg, Sask., appointment at, 3496
Judges Act, Ministers and Directorships, 1088
Nova Scotia Supreme Court vacancy, 3436
Political commissions, on, 2397
Provincial commissions, on, qu. 366
Latchford, Hon. Mr. Justice, qu. 3600
Riddell, Hon. Mr. Justice, qu. 3600
Salaries, 2512, 3496
Yukon territory, 1275

Judges Act Amdt. bill (Saskatchewan Court of Appeal
Res. 424; 1r., 429; 2r., com., 546; 3r., 547
Senate amdts., 2830

Judicial Districts. See Bankruptcy Act Amdt. bill

Justice
Administration of
Exchequer Court, 1274

Justice — Con.
Administration of — Con.
Litigated matters, 1276
Pecuniary Claims, 1276
Penitentiaries, 1276
Supreme Court, 1274
Yukon territory, 1275
Civil Government, 1668
Estimates, 1274, 1668, 3495
Minister of, directorships and, 242-3. See also Ministers and Directorships
Pecuniary claims convention with United States, 1276
Prisons and penitentiaries, inspection of by Grand Juries, 1279
Salaries and contingencies, 451
Trial of Indian murderer, Lebeaux, expenses, 1669

Juvenile Delinquents
Prison farms for, qu. 1773
Special schools for, qu. 469
16, 17, and 18 years old, qu. 1773

Kamloops
Model city, 318
Post office building, 1255

Kamloops-Kelowna Railway. See Canadian National Railways

Kamouraska, vacancy, 1459

Kay, Mr. W. Fred (Missisquoi)
Agricultural implements
Standardization of parts, 2406
Appearance of Senator McCoig before Com. on Agriculture, 2406
Agriculture and Colonization Com. reports
McCoig, Senator, attendance of, 1900
M. for concurrence in fifth report, 2915
Wheat Board, 657, 703, 726, 776, 865, 1929
Baker, the late Col. G. H., M.P., memorial to, 2101
Daylight saving, M., 942-3
Privilege, Wheat Board, 872
Reference to, 1282

Kelley, Mr. Howard G., qu. 729

Kellner, Mr. Donald F. (East Edmonton)
Air force and civil aviation, 1723
Animal contagious diseases, compensation, 2806
Budget, 2280. Congratulations to Minister of Finance, 2280; attitude of Progressives to old parties; little change in policy indicated by budget proposals; new taxes; principle of taxation; depression throughout the country, 2281; position

Kellner, Mr. Donald F. — Con.
Budget — Con.
of the farmer; workingman and business man; labour and capital; public debt; credit system, 2282
Canteen funds, undistributed, qu. 2215
Criminal Code Amdt. (Scrip frauds) 3216
Immigration regulations, compliance with, qu. 2215
Soldier land settlement, 2141
Soldiers' pay, exchange on, qu. 826
Winnipegosis wharf, 3545

Kemp, Sir Edward, ammunition shipment from Great Britain, 1169

Kennedy, Mr. Donald M. (West Edmonton)
Address in reply, 142. Constituency of West Edmonton, 141-142; conditions in western Canada; tariff question, 143; protection of industries, 144; immigration, 145; Wheat Board; freight rates on grain; Crowsnest pass agreement, 146; soldier settlers, 147; railways, western provinces, natural resources, 147-8; half-breed scrip, 148
Air force and civil aviation, 1724
Banks, income and note circulation taxes, qu. 1400
Criminal Code Amdt. bill (Scrip frauds) 1062, 1395, 3213, 3220
Calhoun, Mr., telegram from, 3601
Dominion Iron and Steel Company, contract for steel plates, 1680
Edmonton bridge, 2007
Harbours and rivers, Alberta and Saskatchewan, 2005
Indians, 1232
Nova Scotia miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 499
Prince Rupert Drydock Co. claim, 3515
Public buildings, furniture, etc., 1758
Public Works dept., average salary, 749
Rural mail contracts, subletting, 2801
Steamship subsidies, fair wage clause, 3506
Steel industry, 769

Kennedy, Mr. J. Wilfred (Glengarry and Stormont)
Animal Contagious Diseases Act Amdt. bill, 2737
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 3005
Liquor, export of, 3005
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, wheat carriage, 3039
Customs
Drawbacks, 769
Officials, 765
Valuations, 3416

Kennedy, Mr. J. Wilfred — Con.
Dairy Grading Act, 652
Director of Commercial Intelligence, 700
Immigration figures, 758
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. bill, 3425
Railway finances, qu. 471
Sugar beet industry, 3245

Kennedy, Hon. William C. (Minister of Railways and Canals)
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, loan to, 3035
Canadian National railways
Annual statement, 873
Branch lines, Bengough extension, 2771
Canadian Northern, advance to, 1905
Consolidation, 1963
Deficits, 875-86
Corrected statement, 1919
Directors, 2791
Appointment of new board, 2772, 2794
Representative of employees, 2794
Freight, careless handling of, 1965
Grand Trunk Pacific
Advances to, 3520
Branch lines, 3520
Intercolonial, employees' provident fund, 2769
Kamloops-Kelowna railway, 1135
New board of directors, appointment, 2772, 2794
Rolling stock, repairs, 1212
St. John and Quebec railway, 1295
Toronto Globe editorial, 1134
Transcontinental, allowance to enlisted men, 3518
Canadian Transit Co. bill, 1772
Canals. See also under this title, St. Lawrence
Rideau, 2769
Soulanges, 2768
Trent, 2764
Welland, 2747
Construction, 1687
Port Colborne elevator, Jameson claim, 1687
Crowsnest Pass Agreement. See under this title, Freight Rates
Electrification of railways, M. (Mr. Deslauriers) 638
Freight Rates, M. for Special Com., 1213, 1402-3, 1502
Gaspe railways, 627
Governor General's cars, 1688
Hudson Bay railway, completion of, 1970, 2798
Ottawa-Kingston highway, 2794
Rail and car repair contracts, 1689

Kennedy, Hon. William C. — Con.
Railway Commission
Carvell, Hon. F. B., alleged statement at Calgary, 2775
Motherwell, Hon. Mr., alleged statement, 2774
Representation of labour, 2776
Railway estimates, 407-8, 1133, 1905, 1933, 2747
St. John valley railway, 3039
St. Lawrence river waterway, surveys, 2768
St. Lawrence ship canal, 2768
Shipbuilding, cost of, 3508

Key Industries Act, 2424

Kindersley, post office building, 1254

King, Hon. J. H. (Minister of Public Works)
Big Bay point, sunken vessel, removal of, 2006
British Columbia govt., reply to criticism of, 2237
Courtenay Bay, 2014
Customs dumping clause, 3418
Introduction, 496
National gallery, 2011
Oriental aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion, 1547
Public buildings
Appropriations and expenditures, 1921-22, 1259
Calgary, 1254
Coal for, 1758
Edmundston, 1240
Flags, 1264
Furniture purchases, 1757
Galt, 1247
Generally, expenditure, 1260
Halifax expenditures, 1244
Hamilton, 1246-51, 1258
Heating, 1758
Kamloops, 1255
Maritime provinces, 1243
Montagu, P.E.I., 1264
Ontario, 1245
Ottawa, 1252
Dominion observatory, Geodetic survey, 1266
Elevator attendants, 1266
Lighting, 1267
New departmental, architects' designs, 3541
Water, 1266
Parliament buildings, 2014
Architects' fees, 2014-16
Furniture, purchase of, 1757
Tower, 2016
Quebec, 1245

King, Hon. J. H. — Con.
Public Buildings — Con.
Rentals, 1259
Rideau hall, fuel and light, 1756
St. Catherines, 1258
St. John quarantine station, 1240-1
St. George public building, 1240
Saskatoon, 1253
Swift Current, 1253
Toronto, 1246-7
Victoria, 1255
Weston, 1260
Public Works
Dredging, 2005
St. Marys river, 2006
Drydocks,
Esquimalt, 3541-2
Vancouver, 1255, 2005, 2010
Harbours and rivers, 1988
British Columbia, 2005
Icelandic river improvements, 2004
Manitoba, 2004
New Brunswick, 1991
Provincial wharves, 1992
St. John, 2014
Nova Scotia, 1765
Expenditure, 1269
Inverness pier, 1760
Joggins breakwater, 1767
Ontario, 1999
Goderich, 2000
Prince Edward Island, 1270
Quebec, 1998
Saskatchewan and Alberta, 2005
Selkirk, wharf, 2004
Shuswap lake wharf, 3547
Winnepegosis wharf, 3545
Public Works dept.
Employees transferred, 696
Estimates, 692, 747, 749, 1238, 1270, 1755, 1988, 3541
River guaging and metering, 2011
Roads and bridges, 2007
Edmonton, bridge, 2007
St. John, N.B.
Harbour improvement, 2014
Terminal facilities, 849-50, 851
Telegraphs and telephones, 2012
Humbolt-Fort Pitt telegraph line, 2007
Yukon radio-telegraph service, 1750

King, Mr. J. W. (North Huron)
Budget, 2301. Congratulations to Minister of Finance; Progressives from Ontario; fiscal policy; small percentage of land under cultivation; drift towards the cities; infant industries; reciprocity with the United States; tariff proposals, 2302; friendly relations between Canada and United States, 2303
Grand Trunk railway, employees pension rights and status, 2041

King, Mr. J. W. — Con.
Budget — Con.

King, Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie (Prime Minister; Secretary of State for External Affairs; President of the Privy Council
Acoustics of the Chamber, 3613
Address in reply, 38. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker, mover and seconder, 38; welcome to Lord Byng; late Mr. Peter McGibbon; Miss Macphail, 39; remarks of the leader of the Opposition; followers of Mr. Meighen in present Parliament, 40; campaign literature and election results, 40-41; natural resources of western provinces, 41; treaties; Imperial Conference, Limitation of Armaments, 42; customs tariff revision, 43-44; position at Liberal Convention, 44; railway situation; government ownership, 45-46; marketing of wheat, 46-47; railway freight rates; party formation and names, 47; negotiations with Progressive party, 48; Liberal administration, 48-49; Mr. Stewart (Argenteuil) and Mr. Motherwell, 49
Ammunition, artillery, shipment from Britain, 1154, 1156, 1163, 1165, 1172
Annual drill, 1155, 1165
Demobilization expenditure for, 1155-65
Annuities, 776
Armorial bearings of Canada, Welsh emblem, 3601
Assiniboine river floods, 1842
Auditor General's report, 424
Australia, reciprocity with, 9, 2803
Banff-Windermere road, 1681
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. bill, (Mr. Ethier) 1662
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. bill (Mr. Jacobs) 1395
Board of Commerce, 1715
Borden, Right Hon. Sir Robert
International disarmament conference, papers, 1283. See also under this title, Limitation of Armaments
British Columbia house, London, purchase, 3537
Budget, 2537. Conflicting amendments evidence of wisdom of budget proposals, 2537; taxation, re-adjustment of; speeches of Progressive and Op-

King, Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie — Con.
Budget — Con.
position leaders; extreme points of view; amendment to amendment; a protectionist budget; repeal of protectionist legislation; reduction of duties; effort to carry out Liberal policy; protection versus free trade not the issue, 2538; tariff revision; amendment; no constructive suggestions; Sir Henry Drayton's tariff proposals of 1920, 2539; platform of National Liberal Conservative party; trade with the mother country; disregard of political honour; promised revision of tariff, 2540; pledges of Liberal party; Liberal Convention of 1919; chart, 2541; statement of policy last session; budget consistent with campaign utterances; no deception of electorate, 2542; Mr. Meighen's London speech; Liberal handbook, 2543; tariff revision on basis of revenue; duties on instruments of production and necessaries of life; pledges fulfilled; tribute to Finance Minister; stability and confidence, 2544
Business of the House
Budget debate, conclusion of, 2639
Customary procedure, 7
Debates on naval service estimates, 1899
Easter adjournment, 546, 821, 823
Eleven o'clock adjournment, 2033
Empire and Ascension days, adjournments, 1769, 1905
Estimates, 569, 2167, 3527
Govt. orders on Monday and Wednesday, 1460
Legislation to be introduced, 2996, 3041, 3102, 3103, 3365
Mines and Minerals Com., 1398
Mondays and Wednesdays, 49, 1719, 2169
Order of, 374
Private members', 1719
Prorogation, 3365
Questions standing as orders for returns, 1660
Quotations from anonymous letter, 1480
Saturday sittings, 2033, 2458
Wednesday sittings, 49
Evening, 2169
Canada Grain Act, Manitoba Court of Appeal decision, 1770
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, Senate amdts. 3613-4
Canadian Expeditionary Force, repatriation of dependents, 1711

King, Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie — Con.
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, 3104
Coal importations, from Japan, 2406
Canadian National Institute for the Blind, 3540
Canadian National parks, 1681
Canadian National railways
Amalgamation of system, 2585
Co-ordination, 73
Directors, sympathy with public ownership, 2858
Canadian offices in England, co-ordination, 414
Canadian representation in the United States, 1384
Canadian Wheat Board bill. See under this title, Wheat Board
Cattle embargo, alleged statement of High Commissioner, 1463
Chamberlin, Mr. R. G., claim of, 3498
Chief Electoral Officer, report, 871
Civil Service
Appointments, 573-4
Bonus, 733, 1258
Appropriation, 3528-36
Inquiry as to payment, 2996
Economy, 424
Salaries, 552
$960 and less, 1660
Civil Service Commission, salaries, 3509
Coal
Importation from Japan, 2406
Mined by Orientals, 2407
Con. Rein sinking, 1384
Contingencies, vote for, 415
Criminal Code Amdt. (Half-breed scrip) 3220
Criminal Code Amdt. (Mr. Woodsworth) 865, 1719
Criminal Code and statutes, reprinting, 1717
Crowsnest pass agreement. See also under this title, Freight Rates
Telegram from Minister of Agriculture to Calgary Board of Trade, 2358
Dauphinee, Mr. Charles, dismissal of, 2458
Death of brother, Dr. MacDougall King, 211, 224, 230, 276
Debates, Official Report, insertion of documents not read, 1540
Debeau, Mr. Robert, claim of, 2306
Deputy Speaker, election, 363
Doherty, Hon. Manning, visit to England, 1334
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2814
Dominion Lands, cancellation of leases bills, Senate amdts., 3614
Editorial Committee, 1236

King, Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie — Con.
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women, M. (Mr. Euler) 487
Esquimalt dry dock, 597
Estimates, classification of, 569, 2167, 3527
External Affairs
Salaries, 412, 3509
Secretaries, 411
Fielding, Hon. Mr., congratulations to, 3279
Financial credit, M. (Mr. Irvine) 1293
Freight Rates (Crowsnest pass agreement)
Special Com., ref to
M. (Mr. Kennedy), Essex) 1213, 1432-8, 1453-4
Railway Act Amdt. bill, 3588
Reports, 3546, 3560
"General" Macdonald's army, 2256
Genoa Conference, 582, 823, 1715
Cannes documents tabled, 865
Correspondence tabled, 865
With Italy, 2035
Reported subscription to consortium, 1463
Grand Trunk Arbitration
British newspaper article, 374, 822
Grand Trunk railway, pension rights and status of employees
M. (Mr. Boys) 863, 1382, 2041, 3437
High Commissioner
Alleged statement re cattle embargo, 1463, 1502
Office of, 414
House of Commons. See also under this title, Business of the House
Organization, amendment of, 1335
Sittings suspended, 3611-14
Staff, 3221
Immigration
Chinese, 3437
Investigation of conditions in Europe, 1711
Oriental. See under this title, Oriental Aliens
Immigration Act Amdt. bill (Mr. Woodsworth) 864, 1388, 1394, 1719
Imperial Convention of Teachers, 1673
Indians
Estimates, 1712
Potlach institution, 1578
Number serving gaol sentences, 1721
Interim Supply bill, 379
Interior dept., printing and stationery, 1680
International Disarmament. See under this title, Limitation of Armaments
International Labour conference, 3437, 3490
Report and printing of, 3601
Japan
Lemieux agreement, 1459
Rights of Canadians in, 1289, 2208

King, Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie — Con.
Labour dept. estimates, 564, 569, 577
Lake Huron marine allowance, 1930
Lake of the Woods repeal bill, 3206, 3211, 3435
League of Nations
Permanent secretariat
Canada's contribution, 2990
Expenses, 3173
Protocols of proposed amdt. to covenant, 2583, 2692, 3171
Limitation of Armaments, 786
Papers, 1283
Report tabled and ordered printed, 596
Res., 3157
Treaty tabled, 9
Liquor importation, 733. See also under this title, Canada Temperance Act
Military Service Act Amdt. bill, 639
Ministers and directorships, 1098
Ministers' secretaries, 413
Munitions, shipment from Britain, 1154-65-72
National Defence bill, 547, 662, 680
Natural resources transfer to western provinces, 1017
M. (Mr. Meighen) for correspondence 1509
Provincial governments, correspondence with, tabled, 1769
Naturalization Act, 2024
Naval defence, 1873-1899
Naval service
Gift of ships to Canada, 2051
Royal Canadian navy, 1873-1899
Newmarket, speech at, 35
Norris, Premier, statement on freight rates and natural resources, 1213
Nova Scotia miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 536, 597
Occupational diseases, M. (Mr. Deslauriers) 1381
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. bill, 3427-35
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill), time for discussion, 1719
Oriental aliens, 872, 967, 3104
Immigration
Chinese, restriction of
M. (Mr. Stevens) for papers, 1776
M. (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion of, 1554, 1573-6
Japanese, restriction of
M. (Mr. Stevens) for papers, 1776
Parliament, fall session, 3608
Pensions, Insurance, etc.
Special Com., appointed, 496-7
Widowed mothers, M. (Mr. Power) 1308
Preston, Mr. W. T. R., rent of house in London, 3504

King, Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie — Con.
Prime Ministers' Conference, 5
Correspondence, 1068
Naval defence, reported statement of Lord Lee, 1742
Opportunity for discussion of, 2042
Proceedings tabled, 8
Prime Ministers' secretaries, 411
Privy Council
Estimates, 410
Private secretaries, 410
Proportional representation, M. (Mr. Good) 1655
Public buildings appropriations, 1259
Purchasing Commission, 2025
Quebec fisheries, 8
Railway Act Amdt. bill, 3588
Railway Commission, Hon. Mr. Motherwell, 2774, 3491
Redistribution, 733
Bill to be introduced next session, 3608
Meeting of defeated candidates in Alberta, 2858
M. (Mr. Shaw), opportunity for discussion, 1719, 1769
References to, (Sir Henry Drayton, "jilting Quebec") 206, 1365, 1754, 2969. See also Address; Budget
Regional Bureau of the International Catalogue of Scientific literature, 3528
Returned soldiers. See also under this title, Pensions; Soldiers
Announcement of Govt.'s policy, 2637
Unemployment of, 2458. See also under this title, Unemployment
Returns, inquiry for, 1283
Royal Canadian Mounted Police
Industrial disputes, and, 666
M. (Mr. Woodsworth), 834
Macleod detachment, reported removal of, 2585
Russian relief, 3516
St. Lawrence river waterway
Co-operation with United States, 2760
Correspondence with United States Govt., 2357, 2583, 2760, 2767
Tabled, 2256
International Joint Commission, report, 2357
Treaty with United States Govt., 2207, 2760
Save the Children Fund, 3516
Soldiers' bonus, 396
M. (Mr. Arthurs) 431, 437
Speaker, Mr.
Bereavement of, 496
Congratulations to, 3489
Election of, 1

King, Right Hon. W. L. Mackenzie — Con.
Steamship services, 2027
Tariff commissioner, appointment of, 1666
Tourist traffic, 1682
Treaties of Peace with Hungary and Turkey, 3490, 3547
Unemployment. See also under this title, Returned Soldiers
Banff-Windermere highway, 1682
Federal, provincial and municipal obligations, 1073-9
Insurance, 1073
Relief, 1719
Returned soldiers, 2458
Situation, 1073-9
Unemployment Service Council, recommendations, 2803
Vancouver dry dock, 3544
War memorials, 2099
Washington conference papers, 1283. See also under this title, Limitation of Armaments
Wheat Board, 378, 783, 2921, 3179
Concurrence in report of Special Com., delay, 2306
Constitutionality of, opinion of Law Officers, 940
Wheat Board bill, 3190, 3383
Wrangel island, 1751
Russian claim to, 2208
Yukon territory, administration of, 1681

King-Crerar Alliance, negotiations, 48, 206. See also references in Address

King v. Manitoba Grain Company, decision. See Canada Grain Act

Kingston
Election petition, 2692
Penitentiary. See Penitentiaries

Klim, competition with milk, 981

Knives, German production of. See Budget; Customs Act; Currency; Guthrie; Stevens

Knox, Mr. Andrew (Prince Albert)
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3484
Coal royalties, qu. 375
Customs tariff, ploughs 3230
Easter adjournment, 546
Experimental farms, 800
Hudson bay railway, 2750, 2779
Mines dept., field work, 690
Natural resources of western provinces, 457-8
Northwest rebellion, pensions for Mounted Police, 3523

Knox, Mr. Andrew — Con.
Port Nelson, examination of masters and mates, 1491
Rideau canal, 2769
Riordan Company, taxation, qu., 372
Royal Canadian Mounted Police pensions
Inadequate, 2131
Northwest rebellion, 3523
St. Lawrence ship channel, 1495
Welland ship canal, 2750

Kodaks, prices in Canada and United States, 2547, 2624

Kootenay, Burlington channel bridge, 2007

Kyte, Mr. George W. (Cape Breton South and Richmond)
American magazines, 3109
Budget, 2358. Congratulations to Finance Minister; testimony of opposition to wisdom of Minister's proposals, 2358; tariff an issue no longer, burden of taxation; revenue tariff; sales tax; the workingman; cost of living; articles which do not pay the tax; interpretation of customs law; fishermen's rope; lumber; technical ruling of officials; agricultural implements, 2360; revenue tariff; England's tariff policy; protective duty counterbalanced by excise tax; origin of protective tariff in United States, 2361; manufacturers and war profits; propaganda of Canadian manufacturers; alleged reconstruction committee, 2362; election campaigns of 1896 and 1911; reciprocity with United States; increase of population under Liberal and Conservative rule; immigration, 2363
Migratory birds, 1685
Militia, civil pensions, 3499
Paired members inadvertently voting, 1462
Rail and car contracts, 1693, 1694
Unemployment at Sydney, rail orders in advance, 1691

Labour. See also Civil Service; Housing; Immigration; Industrial Disputes; Oriental Aliens; Returned Soldiers; Shipbuilding; Unemployment
Administration, 1058
British labour party, 224
Bureaux, 3314
Canadian Government Merchant Marine
Wages, qu. 3598
Canadian National railways
Representation on Board of directors. See Canadian National Railways, Directors

Labour — Con.
Canadian Pacific, conditions on, 2315
Capital and, 2117, 2191, 2250, 2282. See also Speeches on Budget
Coal. See also N. S. Miners
Canmore and Drumheller, miners' dispute, 1058
Competition with foreigners, 2154, 2435
Orientals, with, 317, 345. See also Oriental Aliens
Conciliation and Labour Act, 1053
Conditions, 2350
Cost of living, 1175, 1303, 2331. See also that title
Costs, 2317, 2349-50
Cotton industry, wages, hours, etc., qu. 1903
Lower, 2436
Department
Annuities branch, 776
Bertrand, Mr. T., qu. 937
Classification, 494
Director of Technical Education, 578
Estimates, 1053, 1719, 1970
Officials and economy, 464-5
Printing bureau, 1970
Salaries and contingencies, 458, 493, 548
M. (Mr. Stevens) to reduce item, 562, 579, agreed to, 581
Statistical branch, 1366
Technical education, 459, 460, 578
Temporary clerks, 548
Wage investigators, 462
Departments employing organized and unorganized labour, qu. 2303
Distribution of, 2149
District No. 18, board, 1058
Economic injustice to, 2323
Eight-hour day, 184, 2311. See also Daylight Saving
Employment Offices Co-ordination Act, 1058
Espionage, 670-9
Exodus of workmen, 2469
Fair wage clause, 1469, 1486, 3506
Farms, on, 79, 87, 251, 337, 1153. See also Address; Budget; Immigration
Genoa Conference. See that title
Germany, conditions in, 2411. See also Germany
Hours, 2317. See also under this title, Eight Hour Day
Housing, 219. See also that title
Immigration of farm workers and domestics, 2480, 3053-4. See also Immigration
Industrial centres, 236
Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, 1054, 1058

Labour — Con.
Industrial disputes, Mounted Police and, 667, 679. See also Royal Canadian Mounted Police
M. (Mr. Woodsworth)
International Labour Conference, qu. 824, 1060, 1070, 3437, 3490
Report, printing of, 3601
Joint industrial councils, 1060
Labour Gazette, 1053, 1057
Leaders, 2118
McAdoo award, 1707
Mounted Police and, 670. See Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth): National Defence bill
Nova Scotia miners. See that title
Occupational diseases, protection against M. (Mr. Deslauriers) 829, 1378, withdrawn, 1382
O'Dell, Mr., on cost of labour in boot and shoe industry, 2350
Old age pensions, 1303. See also that title
Organized, 2321, 2324
Oriental, 2330. See also Oriental Aliens
Party, composition of, 214
Public ownership and, 130
Quebec harbour commission, wages of employees, 1465, 1469, 1486
Railway, 2315
Canadian National, 2315
Representation on board of directors. See Canadian National Railways, Directors
Canadian Pacific, 2315
Costs, 2317
Wages, 357, 1707, 2315, 2417. See also Crowsnest Pass Agreement
Railway Commission, representation on, 2776
Skilled, protection of, 2379
Specialization of, 2149
Strike-on-the-job, 1054
Strikes, 2320, 2322
District No. 18, miners' strike, 1058
Nova Scotia miners. See also that title
Gillen board, 1054
Railway employees, 2324
Winnipeg, 841, 1068
Cost of trials, qu. 1182
Literature, 837
Trades Union Conference, Rome, 1060
Unemployment. See also that title
Agriculture and, 2158, 2331
Calgary Trades and Labour Council, 1082
Rail and car repair contracts, 1688
Relief, 1719, 1970, 2022, 3526
Situation, 1069
Steel workers, Sydney, 1076
Trades and Labour Congress, and, 1081

Labour — Con.
Unions, 228, 2295, 2317-8, 3059
International, 2317
Unorganized, 2628
Unrest, 14, 17, 90. See also Address; Budget
Wages
Average income, 2498
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, qu. 3598
Fair wage clause, 1469, 1486, 3506
Germany, in, 2407
Investigators, 462
Protection, and, 2298
Quebec Harbour Commission, employees, 1465, 1469, 1486
Railway, 357, 1707, 2315, 2417
Shops, 1707
Real and nominal, 2435

Labour Gazette, 1053-7
Cotton industries, wages and hours, qu. 1903

Labrador Boundary, qu. 704, 2572

Lachenaie, Que., mail service, qu. 2805

Ladner, Mr. L. J. (Vancouver South)
Address in reply, 321, 326; four parties in politics, 321; Liberal party in British Columbia; Hon. John Oliver, 322; national railway, 326; returned soldier problems, 327; natural resources of prairie provinces, 328; British Columbia claims, 329
Belgium, trade with, 3223
British Columbia house, London, purchase of, 3538
British Preference and Canadian seaports, M. (Mr. Logan) 720
Budget, 2276. Tribute to Minister of Finance; Budget of sixteen years ago; promises and policy of Liberal party, 2277; the amendment; tariff changes; British Columbia industries and protection, 2298; danger of Japanese competition; results of protective policy; weakness of budget; trade with Germany, 2279; sales tax; dumping clause and fruit industry, 2280
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 3608
Canneries, inspection of, 3048
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) 1448
Fisheries Act Amdt. bill, 2818
Indian Act Amdt. bill, 3191
Labour estimates, increase, 495
Oleomargarine
Further legislation, inquiry, 3041
Importation, 654

Ladner, Mr. L. J. — Con.
Oleomargarine — Con.
Manufacture and importation of, 1797
Regulations under Act, qu. 1902
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. bill, 2824, 3014
Appeal, 3023
Penalty, whipping, amdt., 3015, 3020
Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion, 1528
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3444-56
Pensions Com., final report, 3339
Potlach Indian institution, qu. 1377, 3191
Proportional representation, M. (Mr. Good) 1650
Vancouver dry dock, 1255, 1484, 2010
Vancouver Harbour Commission bill, 2822

Lafferty, Dr. J. D., 1225

Laflamme, Mr. J. N. K. (Drummond-Arthabaska)
Budget, 2895. World war and its consequences; motion and amendment; opposition arguments; Liberal platform of 1919; pledges and promises, 2896; Agrarian party; amendment to the amendment; standard of public life; currency valuation; dumping clause; marking of goods, 2897; insufficient reasons given for vote to defeat Government, 2898
Canadian National railways, public ownership, 1944
Military Service Act Amdt. bill, 643
Oriental aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion, 1566

Lafortune, Mr. D. A. (Jacques-Cartier)
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 959

Lake Marine. See Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine; Grain; St. Lawrence river Waterway

Lake of the Woods
Control board, 2025
Joint board, 2805, qu. 2970

Lake of the Woods Regulation Act, 1921, Repeal bill
1r., 2991; 2r., com., 3199; 3r., 3435

Lambton, steamer, wreck of, 1497, 3365, 3507

Lamontagne, Mr. Ernest, qu. 824

Lanctôt, Mr. Roch (Laprairie-Napierville)
Annual drill, 1154
Budget, 2567. Beer tax; war and taxation; tax free bonds, 2567; commercial patriotism; national railways, 2568;

Lanctôt, Mr. Roch — Con.
Budget — Con.
responsibility for overbuilding of railways; proposal to sell system to Canadian Pacific; freight rates, 2569; public ownership will lead to ruin; war and conscription, 2570; preparation for war; naval service; militarism; cattle embargo; public debt, 2571; parliamentary counsel; Hon. C. J. Doherty, reported engagement in Labrador - Newfoundland boundary case; payments to, 2572; departmental lawyers; co-ordination of law branches, economy, 2573
Civil Service classification, appeals, 1508
Dominion Iron and Steel Co., contract, 1678
Farm labour, cost of, 1163
Foran, Mr. J. J., qu. 2214
Lawyers, employment of by department of Justice, 1678
Manure, exportation of, 1018
Military expenditure and policy, 1153
Militia and defence
Military districts, 1775
Officers and men at headquarters, 1775
Militia council, qu. 2039
Naval council and officers, qu. 1774

Lands. See also Dominion Lands; Natural Resources
Accessible for homesteads, 87
Location of. See Criminal Code, Scrip frauds
Percentage under cultivation, 2302
Private ownership of, 1927
Public. See Natural Resources
Right of Canadians to hold in Japan, 2209
Settlement, 182-3. See also Soldier Land Settlement
Speculation in, 2404. See also Immigration
Undeveloped, settlement of, 236
Unimproved values, tax on, 2191. See also Budget; Taxation
Unoccupied, 2603
Western, cost to the immigrant, 2157

Langley, Hon. George, statement respecting Railway Commission, 2773

Lapierre, Mr. E. A. (Nipissing)
Budget, 2628. Congratulations to Finance Minister; the great unorganized body of wage-earners; clerks, book-keepers, commercial travellers and office assistants; cheerful acceptance of burden of citizenship; union government; day of reckoning; debt; curtailment of expenditure, 2628; restoration of pur-

Lapierre, Mr. E. A. — Con.
Budget — Con.
chasing power; adjustment of tariff to financial exigencies; retail trade and prices, 2629
Georgian Bay canal, 1199
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1199
Sturgeon Falls
Indian agent, qu. 1285
Postmaster, qu. 1285
Sudbury mail contract, qu. 1285

Lapointe, Hon. Ernest (Minister of Marine and Fisheries)
British Columbia fisheries, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 857
Budget, 2585. Congratulations to Finance Minister, 2585; leader of Opposition; amendment; no violation of Liberal platform; political pledges and honour, 2586; a Liberal budget; no political party in favour of free trade; campaign bogeys; an academic question; protection an economic heresy; national as opposed to individual interest; geographical considerations, 2587; United States farmers and protection; Wheat Board, fixation of prices; financial and economic consequences of war; tariffs of Switzerland, Belgium, Holland and Spain, 2588; Government tariff proposals, 2589; Liberal platform of 1893; reciprocity; not free trade but freer trade; revenue tariff; protection and revenue features of tariff legislation; exaggerated statements as to Canada's condition, 2590; hatred and class war; the future; fair play for the government, 2591
Business of the House, questions, 1660
Canada Shipping Act Amdt. bills
Harbours and harbour masters, 1578
Pilotage dues, 1487, 2819, 3009
Coolie labour on British ships, 2043
Criminal Code Amdt. bill (Mr. Woodsworth) 865
Distressed seamen, relief of, 1676
Dominion Iron and Steel Co.
Contracts, steel plates, 1677
Damage action against Govt., settlement of, 2170
False Creek bridge, 3516
Fisheries. See also under this title, Marine and Fisheries
Department of, 2166
Fish culture, 2169
Fishways, 2167
Marketing, 2109
Protection service, 678

Lapointe, Hon. Ernest — Con.
Fisheries Act, 1914, Amdt. bill, 2306, 2817, 2996, 3010
Fishing schooner race, 1387, 3510
Genoa Conference, expenses, 1715
Immigration Act Amdt. bill (Mr. Woodsworth) 864
International deep sea racing, 1387, 3510
Judges Act Amdt. bill, 428
Lambton steamer, loss of, 1497, 3365, 3507
Limitation of Armaments, 3169
Marine and Fisheries. See also under this title, Fisheries
Biological board, 3051
Capt. Demers, 1492
Department, estimates, 1489, 1676, 2166
Examination of masters and mates, 1490
Icebreaking, 1677
Life saving service, 1494
Lighthouse and coast service, 1496
Lambton, steamer, wreck of, 1497, 3365, 3507
Marine agencies, 1496
Marine signal service, 1499
Navigation, aids to, 1498
Navigation schools, Capt. Eddie, 1493
Ocean and river service, 1494, 3507
Pilotage, administration of, 1496
Removal of obstructions in navigable waters, 1493
Port Dalhousie, 1493
St. Lawrence ship channel, 1494
Dredges, 1494
Steamboat inspection, 2169
Wrecks, investigation, 1492
Meat and Canned Foods Act, 3045, 3149
Military Service Act Amdt. bill, 640
Militia and Defence
Annual drill, amdt. to amdt. to reduce vote by $400,000, 1579; agreed to, 1631
Quebec arsenal, amdt. to reduce vote by $50,000, 2091
Montpetit, Prof., 582
Montreal Harbour Commission
Employees, 1289
Revenue, 1465
Montreal Harbour Commission bill, 1488, 3199
Naval Service
Niobe, sale of, 2067
Transfer of services to Marine and Fisheries, 3611
Navigation, Rainy river lights, 1499
Pilots and pilotage, administration, 1499
Fees, regulation of, 1500
Prince Rupert Dry dock and Engineering Co., claim, 3514

Lapointe, Hon. Ernest — Con.
Quebec fisheries, 377
M. (Mr. Marcil) 619, 622
Quebec harbour
Parc St. Charles Co., Limited, 1470
Revenue and expenditures, 1471
Quebec Harbour Commission
Papers, 1584
Political patronage, 1477
Quebec Harbour Commission bill, 1464-86, 3195
Fair wage clause, 1469
Returned Soldiers' Insurance bill, 3399
Steel plates
Contracts, 1677
Delivery, 3508
Trenton harbour bill, 3493
Vancouver
Ballantyne pier, 1485
Drydock, 1485
Vancouver Harbour Commission bill, 1929, 2821, 2996

Larkin, Hon. P.C. See High Commissioner

L'Assomption and Montcalm
Excise officers, qu. 2355
Lightkeepers, qu. 1904, qu. 2215

Latchford, Hon. Mr. Justice, qu, 366, qu. 3600

Laurier, Sir Wilfrid. See also speeches on Address; Budget
Canadian military responsibilities, 1629
Canadian Northern loan, 1957
Canadian ports and German submarines, 2089
Conscription and. See Military Service Act Amdt. bill
Grand Trunk lines in United States, 191
Monument, qu, 936
Naval policy, 1849
Old age pensions, 1305
Railway administration, 202
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1333, 1398

Laurier-Fielding Tariff, 141, 144, 208, 290. See also Address; Budget

Lavigueur, Mr. Henri E. (Quebec County)
Budget, 2398. Tribute to Finance Minister; extravagance and mismanagement of former government; public debt; unfair treatment of province of Quebec, 2398; no confidence in public ownership of railways; transcontinental railway; Champlain market station; St. Malo repair shops; car repairs, 2399; St. Charles river improvements; wharf at Ste. Pétronille;

Lavigueur, Mr. Henri E. — Con.
Budget — Con.
wharf at St. Grégoire de Montmorency; expenditure and economy, 2400
Canadian National railways, public ownership, 1938
Military Service Act Amdt. bill, 643
Quebec Harbour Commission bill, 1474

Law, Bowman B., M.P., the late, memorial tablet, 2835

Law Officers
Departmental, 1678, 2573
Opinion of. See Canada Grain Act, constitutionality

Leader, Mr. Harry (Portage la Prairie)
Accredited herd system, 2739-41
Animal Contagious Diseases Act, qu. 2739, 3362
Assiniboine river floods, 1842, 2003, 3545
Budget, 2510. Finance Minister's proposals disappointing; tariff reductions counterbalanced by sales tax increase; better trade relations with United States; apology for having voted against reciprocity; rejection of treaty a disaster; live stock industry; little difference between two old parties; origin of Progressive party; promises and performance of Liberals; the amendment; broken promises of Conservatives; Mr. Meighen's declarations on tariff policy; salaries of Ministers and judges, 2512; proposed reduction in indemnities of Senators and Members; Civil Service bonus; shortening of session; absence of members from House, 2513
Harbours and rivers, Manitoba, 2003
Health of animals, tuberculosis, 3522
Immigration, Hutterites, 3060

League of Nations. See also Limitation of Armaments
Article X of the Covenant, 3170
International Labour Conference, 1060
Permanent secretariat, 2026
Canada's contribution, 2990
Protocols of proposed amendments to covenant, 2583, 2692, 3171

Leases, Cancellation of. See Dominion Lands

Leblanc, Dr. B. A., Arichat, qu. 1773

Lee, Lord, of Fareham, 1852. See also Limitation of Armaments

Legal Expenses, 1668. See also Justice; Law Officers
Companies Act, appeal, 1671
Departmental counsel, 1678, 2572-3
Dominion Iron and Steel Co., damage claim, 1677
Employment of outside lawyers, 1678
Trial of Indian murderer, Lebeaux, 1669

Legal Officers, concentration of, 683, 2572-3

Léger, Mr. A. T. (Kent, N.B.)
Canadian National railways, purchase of ties, qu. 2209
Experimental farms, 806, 808
Harbours and rivers, New Brunswick, 1991
Lighthouse and coast service, 1495
Migratory birds, 1685
Oleomargarine, manufacture, etc., M. (Mr. Neill) 1792
Richibucto repair works, qu. 375
St. John income tax office, qu., 826

Legislation. See also House of Commons; Senate
House of Commons, 2026
Printing, 1972
Senate, 2026

Lemieux, Hon. Rodolphe. See Speaker

Lemieux Agreement with Japan, 1459

Lepers, Number of, 2021

Lesueur, Mr. R. V. (West Lambton)
Sugar beet industry, 3243-4

Letter Carriers. See Post Office

Letters, Anonymous, quoting from, 943-944

L'Evénement, Quebec, 1480

Levis
Gravel, Mr., resignation from Quebec Harbour Commission, 1477
Lightkeepers, qu., 2583

Lewis, Mr. Arthur J. (Swift Current)
Address in reply, 149. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker; common platform in politics, 149-50; real conditions in the West; Great War burdens, 150-151; unemployment; wider markets, agricultural and economic conditions, 151-152; tariff and protection; natural resources of western provinces, 153-154; consolidation of railways, 155
Blankets, duty on, 3233
British preference and Canadian seaports, M. (Mr. Logan) Amdt. 722

Lewis, Mr. Arthur J. — Con.
Budget, 2256. Congratulations to Minister of Finance; Progressive party and government; fiscal policy; free trade; similarity of Liberal and National policies, 2257; forty-four years of protection; tariff for revenue; reductions in tariff and increases in sales tax, 2258; economy; Welland canal; St. Lawrence river waterway; emigration and race suicide; cigar and cigarette duties; automobiles; luxury tax, 2260; British preference; reciprocity with United States, 2261
Canadian National railway, public ownership, 1954
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3484
Canned fish, marketing, 3049
Cattle embargo, 1020
Cigars and cigarettes, duty, 3239
Dominion Bureau of Statistics, 1368
Dominion Election Act, residential qualification, 1301
Dominion lands, 1036
Experimental farm, Swift Current, 796, 3521
Grand Trunk Pacific branch lines, 3520
Gravelbourg, Sask., appointment of Judge, 3496
Indians, education of, 1230
Mines dept., field work, 690
Mixed farming, dairying, 996
Naval service, 1737
Royal Canadian navy, 1852, 2065
O'Connor, Mr. James, dismissal of, 1676
Paper cups, 3115
Pilotage dues, 1500
Post Office estimates, 692
Proportional representation
M. (Mr. Good) 1645
Public Works estimates, 692
Rail and car repair contracts, 1689
Railway policy, 1954
Railways, branch lines, 1688, 3520
Residential qualification, 1301
Royal Canadian navy, 1852, 2065
Saskatchewan liquor export, 3000
Soldier Settlement Act Amdt. bill, 3406
Soldier settlement, land purchase, 2140
Swift Current
Experimental farm, 796, 3521
Post office building, 1253
Tractors, duty on, 3123
Welland canal construction, 1688, 2260, 2749

Liberal Convention of 1919. See also Address; Budget
Cash grants to soldiers, 393, 397, 429

Liberal Convention of 1919 — Con.
Old age pensions, 1305
Platform, 25, 2529, 2541, 2896, 2910
Tariff, 2466, 3235
Mr. Fielding's disavowal, 2666
Res. of 1921, 2466
Position of Mr. King, 44-45

Liberal Party
Administration of railways before 1911, 189
Appointments, 138
Big interests and, 242. See also Big interests; Ministers and Directorships
Caucus, 1338
Fiscal attitude, 2430. See also Address; Budget
Gains and losses, 138-9. See also Elections of 1921
Government, 188
History of, 2430, 2548-9. See also Speeches on Budget
Interpretation of Liberalism, 26
Opposition in, and Estimates, 378-385

Library of Parliament
Joint Committee on, 211, 326
Salaries, 3517
Staff, 3091-2

Life-Saving Service. See Marine and Fisheries

Lights and Light-Keepers. See also Marine and Fisheries
Fuel for lightboats, qu. 1183
L'Assomption and Montcalm, qu. 1904, qu. 2215
Lévis, qu. 2583
Lighthouse and coast service, 1495, 1677, 3508
Maintenance and repairs to lighthouses, 1498
Parry Sound inspector, qu., 827
Pensions of lightkeepers, 1496
Salaries and allowances, 1497
Superintendent, Quebec district, qu. 2584
Wireless telegraphy, qu., 370

Lignite. See Coal

Limitation of Armaments, 7, 10, 20, 42, 58, 1143, 1174, 1179. See also Military Policy; Militia and Defence; National Defence
Air service, 1731
Approval of treaties signed at Washington, 786, 3157
Borden, Right Hon. Sir Robert, 1283
Report of, 1737, 1743
Canada's representation, 43

Limitation of Armaments — Con.
General Smuts, 1283
Naval armament, reduction of, 1737, 1844-5. See also National Defence; Naval Service
Naval holiday, 1737
Report tabled and ordered printed, 596
Sherman, General William T., 1336
Submarines, 1845
Treaty tabled, 9

Lindsay Arsenal. See Militia and Defence

Linen Yarn
Bounty, 1361
Dominion Linens, Limited, 1362
Duty, 3128

Ling, Mayor. See Nova Scotia Miners

Liquor. See also Alcohol; Canada Temperance Act; Inland Revenue; Special War Revenue
Ale, beer, porter and stout, tax on, 2117, 2852, 2857
Beverages, containing 2½ per cent proof spirit, 2857
Bootlegging, cost to country, 2282
Confiscation of, 2997
Export, 2716
Warehouses in Saskatchewan, 767-8, qu., 1211, qu. 1660, 2997
Government, sale of, 1017
Importation, 733. See also Canada Temperance Act
British Columbia into, 1017
Excise duty on, qu. 828
Saskatchewan into, qu. 2037, 2303
Quebec government, and, 71
Sales tax on ale, beer, etc., 2117, 2852, 2857

Little Current
Harbour improvement, 2002
Tugboat, 3086-7

Live Stock, 333, 971, 2511. See also Accredited herds; Address; Agriculture; Animal Contagious Diseases Act; Budget; Cattle Embargo; Health of Animals
Animals, cruelty, to. See Criminal Code Amdt.
Associations, grants to, 1027
Bacon, 1025
Bovine tuberculosis. See Animal Contagious Diseases bill
Carload and free freight policy, 1029
Commission men, 1031
Competition, 2695, 2698
Destruction by wolves, 990, 998

Live Stock — Con.
Estimates, 1018
Exhibitions, 3521. See also Agriculture
Feed shortage in western Canada, 1030
Fordney tariff, effect on, 2453-4. See also that title
Garbage feed, 1029
Grants to exhibitions, 3521
Hog cholera, compensation, 1028
Hogs, grading, 1025
Industry, 334. See also Cattle Embargo
Marketing in United States, 94
Milk supply, inspection of herds, 2740
National live stock records, 1026
Pure bred sires, 1032
Sheep-raising, 2592
Stallion clubs, 1031
Stockgrazing and feeding, 3522
Stockyards, 1030
Trade with South America, 647
Tuberculosis, 2595

Lloyd George. See George, Lloyd

Lloyds, steel plates, delivery, 3508

"Loafing-on-the-Job". See Industrial Disputes; Labour; Nova Scotia Miners

Loan Companies, 2299
Proposed taxation of, 2299
Renewal of loans, 1476

Loan Companies Act Amdt. bill
1r., 1210; 2r., ref. to Banking and Commerce Com., 1464; Com., 3142; 3r., 3142; Senate amdts., 3607

Loans. See also Finance; Special Loans bill, 2107, 2171
Domestic, 2694
Five-year maturities, qu. 2993
German, proposed, 2500
Grecian, qu. 1400
Morgan, Messrs, J. P., & Co., 1131
New Canadian, $100,000,000, announcement of, 1131, 1133
New York, 2107-27
Roumanian, qu. 1400
Soldiers, to. See Soldier Settlement
Special Bill. See Special Loans bill
$100,000,000, 1292, 1131

Lobster Canning. See Meat and Canned Foods

Lobster Fisheries. See Fisheries Act Amdt. bill

Local Council of Women, Hamilton, Oleomargarine, 1835

Logan, Mr. Hance J. (Cumberland)
Acoustics of Chamber, 708, 3612
Address in reply, 105. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker, 105. Intercolonial railway, management and operation, 106; history of the Intercolonial; 107; separate operation necessary, 111
British preference
And Canadian seaports, M. 493, 707, 725
Goods imported through United States, qu., 375
Budget, 2684. Mr. Hocken's flirtation with Progressives; official Opposition; Bourbons; decline of Conservative party; optimism should give place to despair; the amendment; platform of 1919; changed conditions, 2684; public promises; conscription of farmers by Union Government; tariff; not sufficient time for investigation; boot and shoe industry; problem of unemployment, 2685; leader of Progressive party; revenue necessities; transportation; income, inheritance and land taxes; no question of free trade or protection; revenue tariff; incidental protection; not a protectionist budget; anthracite and bituminous coal; suggested duty on anthracite; bituminous coal duty, 2686; distinction between revenue and protective tariffs; importance of Canadian coal industry; imports; valuation of imports for duty purposes, 2687; British preference and Canadian seaports; direct shipments; transportation question as it affects the maritime provinces; South African railways, 2688; Intercolonial railway; sales tax; exemptions, 2689; fishermen's supplies; economy; civil service salary reductions; indemnity of members; equality of sacrifice; Opposition and budget; compromise on tariff issue; reciprocity; a united Canada, 2691
Canadian National railways
Intercolonial, 106-111, 2688, 2689
Employees, enlistment, 3519
Rail and car repair contracts, 1702, 1925
Revaluation, 1926
Transcontinental, enlisted men, allowance, 3518
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3478
Coal
Anthracite and bituminous, suggested duty on, 2686
Investigation of low grade, 3525
Public buildings for, 1759

Logan, Mr. Hance J. — Con.
Fishing schooner race, 3512
Joggins breakwater, 1767
Lignite Unitilization board, 3525
National defence, 422
Nova Scotia miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 523
Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill, 790
Pensions, widowed mothers, 1310
Prison reform, 1278
Rail and car repairs, 1702, 1708, 1925
Unemployment
Canadian coal miners, 1759
Rail and car repair contracts, 1702

Logan, Mr. R. S., 728

Long Branch rifle range, qu., 372

Long Sault. See St. Lawrence River Waterway

L'Orignal wharf, 1212

Louisburg quarantine station, 2021

Lovering, Dr., qu. 1211

Lovett, Mr. L. J. (Digby-Annapolis)
Bridgetown post office accommodation, 1245
Budget, 2270. Waste of time in useless discussion; slow progress of Nova Scotia, 2270; freight rates and trade restrictions; reciprocity; emigration; sectional interests, 2271; public debt; financial chaos; taxation; tariff reductions, 2272
Civil Service patronage, 3084
Rural postmasters, 3080

Lovie, Mr. W. J. (Macdonald)
Bovine tuberculosis, Carman, Man., deputation, 2743
Budget, 2451. Congratulations to Finance Minister; tariff reductions not sufficient; handicap upon agriculture, 2451; farmer cannot pass on taxation; manufacturer beneficiary of protection; agriculture the basic industry; implements sold cheaper in foreign countries than in Canada; agricultural depression, 2452; injustice of protective tariff to farmers; freight rates reduction; marketing of wheat; export markets; reciprocity with United States; effect of Fordney tariff on live stock industry; potatoes and poultry products; garden truck; Kubanka wheat; freight rates; statement of Mr. Sandford Evans; wheat and commodity prices, 2454; war profiteering;

Lovie, Mr. W. J. — Con.
Budget — Con.
income tax; religious institutions penalized, 2455
Civil Service bonus, 3535

Low, Hon. Thomas A. (South Renfrew)
Budget, 2445. Congratulations to Finance Minister; tariff views of Mr. Good; serious problems confronting government; 2445; effort to reduce expenditure, 2445; the tariff; the home market; agricultural production; ratio of exports to domestic consumption; agricultural implements; reciprocity agreement; railways, 2446; freight rates; history repeating itself; cheap transportation for the West; national ills and financial burdens; progressive immigration policy, 2447; settlers from the United States, England and northern Europe and countries

Lucas, Mr. W. T. (Victoria, Alta.)
Canada Grain Act, car demurrage, 2981
Canadian Pacific Railway bill, 1861
Elevator overages, qu. 609
Immigration, Mr. Shandro's proposed colony, 2159
Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 1519

Lumber. See also Tariff resolutions; Timber
Cargoes for the Orient, 2311
Dressed on one side only, duty, 2360
Freight rates on, 175, 234, 2311. See also that title
Japanese, acquisition of timber in British Columbia, 2310
Machinery and tools, reduction in duties, 2116
Orientals in industry. See Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie)

Lusitania reparation claims, qu. 3599

Macarow, Mr. D. C. See Merchants' Bank

Macbrien, General, 1151, 1169, 1179, 1617
Reported utterances, 1662
Topographic survey, 1986

Macdonald, Mr. E. M. (Pictou)
Address in reply, 186. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker and previous speakers, 186; results of election, 186-7; Mr. Meighen's political campaign, 186-8; responsible government once more restored; public ownership of railways, 188; Canadian Northern and government railways 190; Grand Trunk lines

Macdonald, Mr. E. M. — Con.
Address — Con.
in United States, 191; Intercolonial railway management, 192; deficits on railways, 194; financial burdens, 195
Agriculture Com. report, Wheat Board, 783
Canada Shipping Act Amdt. bill (pilotage) 1487
Canadian National railways, 190
Coal
Importations, qu., 926
Purchases of, qu., 2306
Insurance, qu., 471, qu., 610
Operation, 66
Public ownership, 1924
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3480
Civil Service classification, 494-5
Con Rein, sinking of, 1382
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1440-2
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2814
Dominion notes and gold reserve, qu., 705
Freight Rates, Special Com., on, third report, 3570
Grand Trunk, coal for, qu., 606
Judges Act Amdt. bill, 427, 429
Labour dept., temporary employees, 566
Naval defence, 1743
Naval service
Reduction in, 1743
Royal Canadian navy, 1870, 2062
Rail and car repair contracts, 1706
Redistribution of 1914, 1369
Reference to, 2536
Royal Canadian navy, 1870, 2062
War claims, loss of hospital ship, 1753
Washington disarmement conference, 1743
Yukon territory
Administration, cost of, 1681
Population, and expenditure, qu., 2456

Macdonald, "General", army of, 3315
Reception of, 2256

MacInnes, Mr. Hector, K.C., payments to, 2772

MacInnes, Mr. W. W. B., Immigration Commissioner in China, qu. 1901, qu. 2214

MacKelvie, Mr. John A. (Yale)
Address in reply 159. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker; boots and shoes, tariff on, 159-160; statements of Mr. Meighen and Sir Lomer Gouin, 160; Tory party, 161; tariff revision, 162; fruit-growing in British Columbia; protective tariff and fruit; railway situation, 166; immigration; Orientals in British Mackelvie, Mr. John A. — Con.

Address — Con.
Columbia, 167; natural resources; soldiers' re-establishment; attitude of Sir Lomer Gouin, 168; unity between French and English-speaking Canada, 168-9
Budget, 2196. Congratulations to Finance Minister; tariff; fruit-growing industry; Liberal platform of 1919, 2197; promises and performances; British preference, 2198; reciprocity; dumping clause, 2199; fruit growing industry, 2200; taxation; retrenchment; militia expenditure; cadet training, 2202; naval service; German trade and competition, 2203; the amendment, 2204
Cadet training, 2202
Canadian National railways, Kamloops-Kelowna line, 1134
Customs, dumping clause, 2199, 3422
Dominion lands, sub-agencies closed, qu., 1181
Entomology, codling moth, 814, 816
Fruit growers, protection, 2197, 2200, 3422
George, Rt. Hon. Lloyd, 2203
Interior dept., publicity agent, 454
Militia, expenditure and policy, 2202
Naval college, Esquimalt, 2047, 2203
Naval service, 2203
Royal Canadian navy, 2047
Oriental Aliens, M., (Mr. McQuarrie) 1534
Telegraphs and telephones, Okanagan district, 2008

Mackenzie and Mann, 189. See also Canadian National Railways
Loans to, 189-190
Subsidy, qu. 607, qu., 935

MacLaren, Mr. Murray (St. John City and Counties of St. John and Albert)
Address in reply, 353; national railway system; Grand Trunk railway and Portland terminus, 353; Intercolonial railway, 354; natural resources of Prairie Provinces, 355; returned soldiers, 356
American magazines, 3110
Biological Board, 3051
British preference and Canadian seaports, M. (Mr. Logan) 721
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, steamship services, and, 3033
Canadian National railways, Intercolonial employees, 3519
Canadian Red Cross Society, 3387
Canadian Transit Company bill, 1771

MacLaren, Mr. Murray — Con.
Canned goods, marking, 3048
Cold storage, 3521
Edmundston public building, 1240
Harbours and rivers, New Brunswick, 1273
Immigration
Medical inspection, 3052
Officials, 756
Imports of British goods, qu., 966
Inter-allied permanent commission, 3403
Military expenditure and policy, 1149
Militia estimates, 588
Naval policy, 2053
Negro point, breakwater, 2013
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3403, 3442
St. John Ambulance Association, 3387
St. John harbour, 2013
Submarine cables, qu., 3151, qu., 3360
Tracadie lazaretto, 2021
West Indies subsidies steamship services, 3033

MacLean, Mr. A. E. (Prince, P.E.I.)
Address in reply, 335. The Prime Minister and Prince Edward Island, 335; Progressive and Liberals; potato trade, 336; harvest excursions; civil service; railway situation in Prince Edward Island, 337; Intercolonial railway; tariff; natural resources and Prince Edward Island, 338-9
Census enumerators, 1366
Civil Service Commission, 364
Hog cholera, 1029
Illegal fishing, Prince county, qu., 371
Migratory birds, 1684
Rail and car repair contracts, 1710
Range lights for fishermen, 1498
Theshing machines, 3125
Tormentine reef, buoy, 1490
Unemployment, Canadian National railways, 1710

Maclean, Hon. A. K. (Halifax)
Budget, 2859. Amended resolutions; effect of taxation on trade; depreciated currency; Germany, trade with; debt and revenue necessities, 2859; income tax expenditure, reduction of, 2860; economic problems and proposed remedies; Progressive party not an occupational group; class organization; restriction of output; consequences of the war; European recovery; interdependence of nations; international trade; international politics, 2862; German rehabilitation; reparation payments; restriction of German exports, 2863; Canadian representation at Genoa Conference; reciprocity with the United States; tariff legislation of Congress; Canadian representation at Washington; business conditions, 2864; emigration; reconciliation of adverse interests; Maritime Provinces commercial relation with rest of Canada, 2865; Ontario and Quebec, industrial development; Prairie Provinces, 2866; British Columbia; depression of trade; exchange value of commodities; primary products low in price; manufactured products abnormally high, 2868; wages, labour conditions and production; deflation of manufactured products; effect of taxation on prices; amendment, 2869; Liberal platform of 1919; tariff revision vertically and horizontally; chart and compass; Prime Minister's utterances at convention and in campaign, 2870; protection and free trade, 2871; United States competition; compromise on fiscal policy; tendency in United States towards reduction of tariff, 2872; imports and interests, 2873

Maclean, Hon. A. K. — Con.
Budget — Con.
Canadian Government Merchant Marine
Ownership and operation of, 3036
Subsidized steamship services, 3029
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1420-6.
See also under this title, Freight Rates
Dominion lands, Cancellation of leases bill, 3469
Freight Rates, Transportation costs, Special Com., Third report, 3456
M. for adoption of, 3548-55
Insurance Act Amdt. bill, 3143, 3145
Loan Companies Act Amdt. bill, 3142
Naval policy, 2055
Naval service
Royal Canadian navy, 2055
Royal Naval college, 2055
Public buildings, alleged discrimination against western provinces, 1254
Quebec Harbour Commission bill, 1464
Rideau canal, 2764
Welland ship canal, 2763
Wheat Board powers, 781
Wheat Board bill, 3175, 3180, 3380, 3385
M. Com. rise, neg., 3383

Maclean, Mr. William F. (South York)
Address in reply, 63. Public ownership of utilities; hydro-electric developments, 63; public ownership of railways, 64;

Maclean, Mr. William F. — Con.
Address — Con.
competition of C.P.R. with government-owned railways, 64-66; corporation-owned railways in United States, 67; water transportation, 69-70; electrical developments, 71; transportation and marketing of wheat, 72; co-ordination of government railways, 73; railway grades and duplication; community centres, 75; goods roads, 75-76
Alien enemy property, 1672
Blake, Hon. Edward, 2655
British Preference and Canadian seaports, M. (Mr. Logan) 723
Budget, 2321. Mr. McCrea and organized labour, 2321; war profiteering; pulp and paper industry; speculation in paper stocks; collective bargaining, 2322; farmers and strikes; the farmers' bloc in United States Congress; economic injustice to labouring population; railways, public ownership; consolidation of national railways, 2323; strikes of railway employees; organization of capital, labour and industry; Canada's status; federation of dominions with written constitution; court of last resort; the war and defence, 2324; scientific methods of destruction; race aggression; transportation; bill of rights of Canadian public services; nationalization of transportation communications, banking, marketing, waterways, finance, 2325; post office, express, telegraph and telephone services, cables; community centres, 2326; St. Lawrence river waterway; water-borne competition with railways, 2327; national banking system of United States; watered stock; co-ordination of railways, 2328; opposition to public ownership from Canadian Pacific Railway; new taxation; soft drinks; cheque tax; immigration, 2329; Oriental labour; redistribution, 2330
Budget debate, conclusion of, 2639
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 2733
Canadian National railways
New board, appointment of, 2722
Shares held as alien property, 1672
Census
Completion of, 1365
Enumerators, 1366
Cheque tax, 3259

Maclean, Mr. William F. — Con.
Crowsnest pass agreement, 175-6. See also under this title, Freight Rates
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 953
Electrification of railways, M. (Mr. Deslauriers) 632
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women, M. (Mr. Euler) 491
Freight Rates, Special Com., on, third report, 3564
Grand Trunk lines in United States, 191
Hydro-electric Commission and Ontario Govt., 1080
Hydro-electric power developments in Ontario, 1937
Manufacturers and profiteering, 3275
National Defence bill, 680
Prison reform, 1278
Privilege — Crowsnest pass agreement, 3608
Public ownership, 1933
Quebec fisheries, 622
Railway Act Amdt. bill (Crowsnest pass agreement) 3595
Railway policy, 1933
Redistribution and the census, 1365
Returned Soldiers'
Bonus, 3290
Early announcement of government's policy, 2637
Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act Amdt. bill, 3319, 3392
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 831
St. Lawrence river waterway
M. (Mr. Church) 1326
United States, co-operation with, 2752-55
Sugar beet industry, 3249
Toronto and York county, representation, 1365
Traffic charges on boat services, 182
Unemployment situation, 1080
Water-power rentals, 2747
Welland canal, 2747
Co-operation with United States, 2752-55
Wheat Board, 2967

MacLennan, Mr. Justice, Admiralty Court at Quebec, 1275

Macleod, Alberta
Post Office, revenue, building, qu., 2804
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, detachment at, 2584

MacPhail, Miss Agnes C. (Southeast Grey)
Alleged statement, denial of, qu. 3221
Annual drill, 1174

MacPhail, Miss Agnes C. — Con.
Budget 2384. Liberal party and protection; no material gain in budget proposals; argument of Mr. Raymond; basic and secondary industries; effect of protection, rural depopulation, 2384; protection of industries at expense of agriculture; rural schools; United States farmers demanding protection; unsatisfactory school system; farmers' credits; high transportation costs; taxation of all for the benefit of the few, 2385; proof that farming does not pay; importance of agriculture in development of Canada; trade and national greatness; high protection and revenue; the manufacturer the principal beneficiary, 2386; infant industries; cotton and woollen goods; discrimination against goods used by common people in favour of luxuries; direct and indirect taxation; national expenditure, 2386
Immigration
Child, 2153
"Man with the sheepskin coat", 2153
Policy, 2153
Military expenditure and policy, 1174
Nova Scotia miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 533
References to. See Address; Budget
Rural population, movement towards cities, 2153, 2384
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, Supervisor of expenditure, 405

McAdoo Award, 2315, 2317. See also Canadian National Railways

McBride, Mr. T. G. (Caribou)
Address in reply, 316. Oriental question in British Columbia, 316-17, 319; soldier settlement, 318; unemployment; transcontinental highway, 319; Oriental immigration, 319
Budget, 2635. Length of speeches; free trade; tariff on farm implements and mining machinery; dumping clause, 2635; transcontinental highway, 2636
British Columbia and Progressive party leader, 2239
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, 3039
Loan to, 3036
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3482
Canadian Transit Company bill, 1746, 1770
Chinese, arrival of at Vancouver, 3437, 3604
Civil Service
Bonus, 3533-5
Commission, 3072

McBride, Mr. T. G. — Con.
Criminal Code Amdt., branding of cattle, 2833
Customs, dumping clause, 2635, 3419
Debates, inaudibility of, 1053
Dominion lands, Cancellation of leases, bill, 3465
Dredging, Shuswap lake, 2006
Elevators at Vancouver, 2980
Experimental farms, 804-5
Fuel oil, tariff against, 1761
Grain Inquiry Commission, 2984
Housing, 774
Hudson bay railway, completion, 2797
Immigration, Chinese, 3437, 3604
Income War Tax Act Amdt. bill, 3485
Kamloops-Kelowna railway, qu., 937, 3797
Kamloops post office building, 1255
Lambton, steamer, loss of, 3507
Militia and Defence
Cadet services, 1978
Lindsay arsenal, 2088
Quebec arsenal, amdt. to reduce item by $110,000, 2091
Milking machines, 3270
Naval Service, Royal Canadian navy, 1854
Oriental aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 1531
Pensions Com., report, 3351
Quebec Harbour Commission bill, 3196
St. Lawrence river waterway, 2762
Shuswap lake
Dredging, 2006
Wharf, 3547
Soldier land settlement, 2142
Steamship services, 2027
Telegraphs and telephone lines, 2008
Woollen blankets and clothing, 3135

McCoig, Senator, leave to attend Agriculture Com., 1900, 2406

McConica, Mr. T. H. (Battleford)
Agricultural exhibitions, 984
Agriculture Com., report, Wheat Board, 748. See also under this title, Wheat Board
Budget, 2898. Amendment; political promises; tariff revision, 2898; tribute to Finance Minister; old and new taxes; reciprocity, 2899; Sir George Foster's trip to Australia and China; treaty of 1854; abrogation; efforts at renewal; trade routes; acquisition of railways in United States, 2900; trade complications; wheat market; manufacturers of Eastern Canada, 2901; purchasing power of West; position of the farmer; changed conditions, 2902; self-

McConica, Mr. T. H. — Con.
Budget — Con.
contained country or world power; production costs in United States; hothouse industries; competition with United States; fruit industry; debt; financial problem of the United States after Civil War; work; opportunities multiplying; high protection, 2964; substantial reduction of tariff; congratulations to Prime Minister, 2905
Campbell, Mr. J. A., claim for flax shipment, 2836
Canadian Pacific Railway Company bill, 1856
Amdt. (Mr. Carmichael) 1609
Canadian Transit Company bill, 1772
Dominion Iron and Steel Co. contract, 1678
Judges' Act Amdt. bill, 428
Live stock industry, 985
Mixed farming, 985
Nova Scotia miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 525
St. Lawrence river waterway, 2753
Soulanges canal, 2769
Welland ship canal, 2743, 2753
Wheat Board, 3183
Point of order, 2935
Wheat Board bill, 3381

McCrea, Mr. Francis N. (Sherbrooke)
Budget, 2314. The railway situation; high freight rates; deficits, 2314; Government ownership; international labour unions; McAdoo award; eight hour day; labour costs in general, 2317; remuneration of railway employees; specialization of work; strikes; thrift and industry, 2316; reduction of labour costs necessary; incorporation of labour unions; formation of labour board; walkouts and lockouts should be made illegal; arbitration for settlement of labour disputes, 2319; civil service, 2320
Canadian Pacific Railway bill, 1857
Organized labour, 2321-2

McDonald, Mr. Angus (Timiskaming)
Multigraph machines in departments, 1508
Population by ages, qu., 1632
Quebec Harbour Commission, wages of employees, 1465
Unemployment, 2318

McDonald, Mr. John N., qu., 3361

McGiverin, Mr. Harold B. (Ottawa)
Civil Service
Bonus, 1503, 3529

McGiverin, Mr. Harold B. — Con.
Civil Service — Con.
Commission, 3071
Ottawa, Gas Company bill, 1657
Pensions Com., final report, 3331

McKenzie, Hon. D. D. (Solicitor General)
Admiralty Act Amdt. bill, 2456, 2822
Animal Contagious Diseases bill, 2735
Baddeck wharf, repair to, 1765
Big Bras d'Or wharf, 1765
Budget, 2604. Group representation in Parliament; Progressives; duties of citizenship, 2604; public men; tribute to Finance Minister, 2605; Liberalism in Nova Scotia; one change of government in fifty years; Hon. George Murray, 2606; Right Hon. Sir John Thompson; opposition criticisms; responsibility of former government for public debt, 2607; methods of collecting revenue; new taxes; war debt; extravagance; unfit men mobilized; patronage, 2608; Ross rifle; purchase of military equipment; amendment; no suggestion to offer; Liberal platform of 1919; trade with United States, 2610; reciprocity; transportation facilities; purchases of railways in United States; seaports at New London and Portland; purchase of coal lands in United States, 2611; competition with Canadian mines; taking over of Grand Trunk, 2612; Liberal opposition to proposal, 2613; Canadian Northern railway; Grand Trunk Pacific; verdict of the people, 2614; campaign promises made good; record of Liberal party; administration of Sir Wilfrid Laurier, 2615; time to restore prosperity, 2616
Campbell, Mr. J. A., claim of, 2837
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill
First reading, 1017
Withdrawn, 2733
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, (No. 132) 2733, 2997
Date of coming into effect, 3007
Senate amendments, 3608
Canadian National railways
Amalgamation, 916
Public ownership, 1939
Criminal Code Amdt. bill., 2831
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2809
Concurrence in amdts., 3486
Residential qualification, M. (Mr. Rinfret) 1299
Dominion franchise, 1300

McKenzie, Hon. D. D. — Con.
Dominion lands, cancellation of leases, 3473
Escheats Act Amdt. bill, 2456, 2826, 3026
Senate amdts. concurred in, 3486
Grain trade, alleged abuses of, 2840
Harbours and rivers, Nova Scotia, 1765
Interruptions, point of order, 558
Lake of the Woods regulation bill, 2991, 3202
Opium and Narcotic drugs, prosecutions, 2017, 3019
Public buildings, Ontario, 1248-51
Statutes, arrangement with Mr. W. J. O'Connor for revision, 1718
Sydney-Whycocomagh steamship service, 2031
Transcontinental railway, 917
Wheat Board, point of order, 2933

McKillop, Mr. Hugh C. (West Elgin)
Mulvey, Mr. Thomas, qu., 3362

McLachlan, Mr. J. B. See Nova Scotia Miners

McMaster, Mr. A. R. (Brome)
Animal Contagious Diseases bill, 2734
Audibility of debates, 411
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. (Mr. Jacobs) 821
Boy Scouts, 773
Budget, 2417. The Tariff a tax; German competition; purchasing power of the mark in Germany; working hours and conditions; production costs; Mr. Bristol's speech "made in Toronto"; prosperity of the United States; tendency towards free trade, 2418; Nova Scotia coal and steel industries; Dominion Iron and Steel Co.; watered stock; free trade in Australia; western farmers and protection; congratulations to finance Minister; inflation and depreciated currency; German competition, 2420; German imports and exports; cheap labour; international hatred and bitterness; treatment of French Canada after siege of Quebec, 2421; spirit of international peace and comity; trade with Germany; German rehabilitation necessary for stabilization of world conditions; fiscal policies of Switzerland, Holland, Belgium, 2422; free trade Great Britain; the big industries; the Safeguarding of Industries Act; history of free trade movement in England; the carrying trade of Great Britain and the United States, 2424; budget proposals; sales tax, 2425; cumulative payment by consumer; tariff reductions; Liberal McMaster, Mr. A. R. — Con.

Budget — Con.
party and tariff; revisions of 1904 and 1907, 2426; reciprocity agreement of 1911; Liberal platforms of 1893-1919, 2427; abuses of protection; price-fixing by manufacturers; tyranny of the trusts; collars and silk stockings; the new feudalism; the amendment, 2428; Liberal party stands for progress and freedom, 2429
Criminal Code Amdt. (Mr. Jacobs) 821
Customs dumping clause, 3418
Depreciated currency, 2420, 3411
Dominion lands, cancellation of leases, 3467-75
Empire defence, Canada's responsibility, 1629
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women, M. (Mr. Euler) 483
Essence de L'Erable, qu. 1774
German valuation of goods, 3227
Girl guides, 774
Immigration figures, 758
Insurance premiums, tax, 3257
MacBrien, General, utterances of, 1662
Militia and defence, expenditure and policy, 1628
Ministers and Directorships, M., 1084, 1128
Paired members inadvertently voting, 1462
Point of order, reading of documents, 560
Proportional representation, M. (Mr. Good) 1648
Public Accounts Com., first report, 1460
Railway Act, 1919, Amdt. (Mr. Jacobs) 821
Root Vegetables bill, 3376
Sales tax, 3265
Special War Revenue, flour, 3265
Voting when paired, explanation, 1462
Wheat Board, 2957, 3185
Wheat Board bill, 3189, 3380
Amdt, 3384; agreed to, 3385

McMurray, Mr. E. J. (North Winnipeg)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech moved, 10. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker; Miss Macphail; Lord Byng, 10; abnormal conditions at home and abroad; financial burdens; state-owned railways; agriculture unprofitable; tariff revision, 11; natural resources of western provinces, 11-12; seat for Hon. Mr. Stewart; unemployment; returned soldier problems; forest and mineral wealth, 12; immigration; wider markets, 13; War-time Elections Act; labour troubles; harmony between races, 14

McMurray, Mr. E. J. — Con.
Andrews, Mr. Alfred J., 1068, qu., 1182
Budget, 2474. Serious financial conditions, 2474; national debt; railroad deficits; legacy of the war; no constructive proposals; shifting the burden; production of wealth; Canada's future, 2475; immigration policy of former Liberal government; development of the West; prosperity interrupted by war; aggressive immigration policy needed, 2476; immigrants from central Europe; settlers from United States, 2477; exodus from Canada; statement of Lord Shaughnessy; declaration of Manitoba liberal convention; qualifications of the immigrant; criticisms of immigration policy answered; conditions in West improving, 2479; immigrants from the British Isles; foreigners and Canadian national life; the labour argument; policy of the United States; Canada's problems less than those of other countries, 2480; probable results of active immigration policy, 2481
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1439
Lake of the Woods Repeal bill, 3205
Natural resources, prairie provinces, 1017
Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 1527
Winnipeg strike, cost of trials, qu., 1182

McPherson, Mr. Duncan, superannuation of, 2805

McQuarrie, Mr. William G. (New Westminster)
Asiatic immigration, qu., 732. See also under this title, Oriental Aliens
British Columbia fisheries, M., 851
Budget, 2233. Progressive party' attitude towards Government; tariff reductions, 2233; reciprocity; British Columbia, protection of farms, mines and fisheries, 2234; free trade; immigration; unemployment; the amendment; pledges and moral code of the Liberal party; "political trickery"; Hon. John Oliver, Premier of British Columbia, criticism of by Vancouver Sun; alleged purchase by provincial government of warehouse site from President of Liberal Association; Vancouver World; resignation of provincial Attorney General, 2237; Minister of Public Works; national debt, 2238

McQuarrie, Mr. William G. — Con.
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, coal mined by Orientals, 2407
Carriage of mails, qu., 825
Census enumerators, payment of, 1367
Civil Service bonus, 733
Patronage, 3084
Salaries $960 and less, qu., 1660, qu., 1775
Condensed milk tax, 3269
Exhibitions, grants to, 1026
Indians, New Westminster agency, 3536
Oliver, Hon. John, criticism by Vancouver Sun, 2026, 2236-37
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. bill, 3018, 3016
Oriental aliens, 872, 967, 3104
M. for exclusion or, 1509
Pensions Act Amdt. bill, 3445
Quebec fisheries, M. (Mr. Marcil) 169, 622. See also under this title, British Columbia Fisheries
Small manufacturers, 2710
Vancouver and Fraser Valley railway, 798
Widowed mothers, pensions, 3293

McTaggart, Mr. Neil H. (Maple Creek)
Budget, 2545. Congratulation to Finance Minister; budget proposals disappointing; speeches of leaders; debt, taxation, idle factories; unemployment; abandonned farms; readjustments in economic structure; downward revision of the tariff; failure of protection, 2545; sales tax; suggestion from Canadian Manufacturers Association; protectionist budget; revenue; investment of American capital in Canadian industries; abuse of Customs tariff by United States companies, 2546; duty on cigarettes, cameras; comparative prices in Canada and United States, 2547; tariff reduction; ability to compete with outside industries; Progressive party, 2548
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 3006
Customs revenue, 770
Dominion lands, surveys, 1041
Saskatchewan, liquor export, 3006

Machinery. See Agricultural Implements

Madawaska customs collections, qu., 607

Magazines, American, imports of, 3109

Magna Charta, 1388

Mail Carriers. See Post Office

Mail Contracts. See Post Office

Mail Services. See Post Office; Railways; Steamship Services

Malcolm, Mr. James (North Bruce)
British Preference and Canadian seaports, M. (Mr. Logan) 719
Budget, 2387. Tariff and taxation proposals of Minister of Finance, 2387; consideration given to all sections of country; sales tax; stamp and stock transfer taxes; automobiles tax; the tariff, 2388; United States tariff; reciprocity; British preference; American branch industries and export trade; marking and depreciated currency acts, 2389; income tax; effect on capital; confiscation; enterprise should not be discouraged; immigration, 2390; emigration; the farmer and industrialism; problems of prairie provinces; markets; transportation costs; fiscal policy, 2391
Goderich harbour improvement, 2001
Harbours and rivers, Ontario, 2002
Lake Huron, harbour of refuge, 2002
Soldier Settlement Act, 1919, Amdt., 2035

Management, Charges of. See Finance

Manion, Hon. Robert J. (Fort William and Rainy River)
Address in reply, 263. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker; speech of Mr. Raymond, 263; different tariff policies of Liberals, 264; election campaign, 265; record of Union Government, 266; defeat of Union Government, 267; immigration; national debt and railway problem, 268; natural resources; St. Lawrence river waterway, 269; race and creed bigotry, 270; soldiers' re-establishment and pensions, 271; housing; tariff and protection, 272; railway rates, 273
Agriculture, subsidies to, 1698
Budget, 2261. Congratulations to Finance Minister; loans; Liberal and Progressive platforms, 2261; resolution moved by Minister of Finance while in opposition; the tariff, 2262; farmers and the budget; trade with Germany, 2263; foreign exchange; protective legislation in the United States; tariff for revenue; free trade not possible, 2265; sectional demands; Wheat Board; Crowsnest pass agreement; St. Lawrence river waterway; the home market; sales tax, 2266; Great Britain and tariff legislation; 2267; free trade

Manion, Hon. Robert J. — Con.
Budget — Con.
and protection, 2268; advisory tariff board or commission; cheque tax, 2269; receipt tax; the amendment, 2270
Burstall, Sir Henry, 743
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, claims qu., 606
Canadian National railways
Grain leakages, qu., 1401, 1930
Orders in anticipation of requirements 1698
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3481
Canadians emigrating, qu., 1182
Census, remarks by Mr. Johnston (Last Mountain) 1370
Civil Service Commission, 3087
Cost of living, 1057
Daylight saving, 948-9, 961
Dominion Bureau of Statistics, 1366
Dominion lands and surveys, 1037, 1039
Election pledges, cash bonus to soldiers, 403
Empire and Ascension days, 1760
Employment offices, 1058
Fisheries estimates, discussion, 2166
Forest protection, 1048
Harbours and rivers, Ontario, 1999
Health, department of, 2017
High Commissioner's office, 414
Immigration
Estimates, opportunity for consideration, 2162-4
Physically fit, 3055-6
Policy, 756
Immigration dept., labourers, 3054
International Labour Conference, 1060
Labour Gazette, 1057
Labour, technical education, 460
Militia and defence
Arsenals, Quebec, 2093
Expenditure and policy, 2092
Officials, 586
Staff reduction, 422
Naval service staff, 418, 422
Navigation lights in Rainy River, 1499
Opium and Narcotic drugs, 2017, 3016
Prohibition, and, 2017
Parliament buildings, tower, 2016
Patronage, rural postmasters, 3083
Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill, 788
Pension Board, 392, 1350
Regulations, change, 2995
Pensions
European war and active militia, 1361
Widowed mothers, 1311
Pensions Committee, final report, 3302-3

Manion, Hon. Robert J. — Con.
Point of order, general policy, 556
Public building, location of services in, 1757
Rail and car repair contracts, 1696, 1698
Returned soldiers, alleged treatment of children of, 2638
Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act Amdt. bill, 3394, 3400
Revenue and protective tariffs, 719, 2265
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1200
Co-operation with United States, 2760
Grain transportation, 2758
Soldiers' bonus, M. (Mr. Arthurs) 445
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment
Estimates, details of, 1347
Expenditure, 1340
Hospital staff, 1345
Salary increases, 387
Soldiers' disabilities, 392
Unemployment relief, 1352
Vocational loans, 1346
Soldiers, land settlement, 2023
Statistics, co-ordination of work in, 1366
Steel industry, subsidies to, 1697
Tariff, permanent advisory board or commission, 2269
"Tories and militarists", 1598
Unemployment
Rail and car repair contracts, 1696
Situation, 1074
Vancouver and Fraser Valley bill, 798
Welland ship canal, grain transportation, 2758
Wheel chairs for invalids, 3115
Wrangel island, 2208

Manitoba
Agricultural College, western agricultural conditions, 2332
Court of appeal decision on Canada Grain Act, 1770, 1841, 1932-3. See also Wheat Board
Flags on public schools, 1265
Forestry in, 1046
Harbours and rivers, 2003
Liberal Convention, res. on immigration, 2478
Natural resources, control of, 24, 1018. See also Western Provinces
Norris, Premier, on freight rates and natural resources, 1017, 1213
Unemployment conference, 1069
University of, percentage of students of foreign extraction, 2151, 2157
White Mud river fishway, 2167

Manufactured Goods, tax on. See Customs Tariff

Manufacturers. See also Canadian Manufacturers' Association
Eastern Canada in, 2901
Income tax paid by, qu., 1063-4
Production of wealth by, 2378
Progress since 1870, 2658
Propaganda, 2362
Protection of, 55, 102-3, 144, 153, 303, 343, 2435-2440. See also Speeches on Address; Budget
Sales tax. See Special War Revenue

Manure, exportation of, 1018. See also Fertilizers

Maple Products. See also Health

Maple Products Act, administration of, 2017

Maps, Topographical. See Dominion Lands and Surveys

Marcil, Hon. Charles (Bonaventure)
Air force and civil aviation, 1733
Budget, 2905. Twenty-two years of parliamentary life; interest in the West; 2905; Liberal party and western development; a united Canada; hardships of pioneers, 2906; conditions and advantages of the western railways; market for the farmers; employment for the workingman; reciprocity; opposition of manufacturers; 2907; trade relations with United States; tariff reductions; British preference; development of St. Lawrence waterway; better understanding between East and West; the amdt., 2908
Business of the House
Budget debate, conclusion of, 2639
Sub-amendment (Mr. Crerar), 2473
Canadian National railways, public ownership, 1938
Canadian representation in the United States, 1383
Canned goods, marking, 3050
Census enumerators
Appointment of, 1371
Payment of, 1368
Census figures, verification, 1366
Civil Service
Commission, 3072
Patronage, 3074
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 952
Debates, official report of, insertion of documents not read, 1540
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2813
Fisheries, Gulf and Gaspesian coasts, qu. 1401
French-Belgian treaty, 3223

Marcil, Hon. Charles. — Con.
Gaspe railways, M. for papers, 623
House of Commons staff, stenographers and messengers, qu., 1376
Immigration Act Amdt. bill (Mr. Woodsworth) 1393
Insurance claims of heirs of deceased soldiers, 1349
Meat and canned foods, 3047
Montreal Harbour Commission, Capt. Landry, 1481
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill) 1800
Opium and Narcotic drugs, 3019
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3444
Pension Commissioners, Quebec representation, 1350-1
Pensions, widowed mothers, 3293
Proportional representation, M. (Mr. Good) 1656
Quebec fisheries, 377, M., 493, 616
Receipt tax, 3262
References to, 1298
Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act, 3395
Root Vegetables, potato bags, 3377
Rulings as Acting Speaker:
Member moving res. has right to close debate, 540
Member withdrawing motion, 545
Relevancy, 3539-40, 3542
Res. involving charge on revenue, 3476
Supply, point of order, 1337
Vocational loans to fishermen, 1346

Marcile, Mr. J. E. (Bagot)
Bankruptcy Act, qu., 703
Dominion Elections Act, qu., 470
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, qu., 377

Marconi Company, 1736, 1749

Margaree breakwater, 1767

Marine and Fisheries. See also Canada Shipping Act Amdts.; Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine; Fish and Fisheries; Naval Service. For vessels, see that title
Barkhouse, Captain, 1748
Biological Board, 3051
Demers, Captain, 1492
Deputy Minister of Fisheries, 2166
Derelicts, removal, Windsor, N.S., 1493
Distressed seamen, relief of, 1676
Estimates, 1489, 1676, 2166, 3507
Examination of masters and mates, 1490

Marine and Fisheries — Con.
Life-saving
Equipment, qu., 1284
Services, 1494
Stations, qu., 367
Lighthouse and coast service. See that title
Little Current tug boat, 3086
Marine agencies, 1495
Marine signal service, 1499
Meteorological service, 1501
Navigation, aids to, 1498
Newfoundland coast, 1498
Rainy river lights, 1499
Navigation schools, 1492
Ocean and river service, 1676, 3507
Expenditure, 1494
Murphy, Capt. Frank, compensation, 3508
Relief of distressed seamen, 1676
Steel plates, 3508
O'Hara, Captain, 1490
Pilotage
Administration of, 1499
Exemption from dues. See Canada Shipping Act Amdt.
Prince Rupert Drydock Co., claim, 3514
Publicity and marketing division, 2169
Range lights for fishermen, 1498
Removal of obstructions from navigable waters, 1493
St. Lawrence ship channel, maintenance, 1494
Select Standing Com. on, changes, 1398
Steamers and icebreakers, 1489
Steamboat inspection, 2169
Sorel shipyard
Maintenance, 1494
Men employed, 1062
War claims, adjustment of, 1677
Wrecking plants, subsidies, etc., 1493
Wrecks, investigation, 1492
Lambton, 1497

Maritime Provinces
Coal fields, 108, 2611. See also Coal
Condition prior to Confederation, 107
Intercolonial and, 107, 192. See also that title under Canadian National Railways
Natural resources, 340. See that title
Public buildings, 1243
Railways, 131
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1316

Mark, value of. See Currency, depreciated; Germany

Marketing of Wheat. See Wheat Board

Markets, Foreign, 221. See also Trade
Necessity for, 2149. See Speeches on Address; Budget
Reciprocity and. See that title
Restricted, 343

Marking Act. See Customs

Marking of Goods. See Budget; Customs Tariff

Marler, Mr. Herbert (St. Lawrence-St. George)
Address in reply, 243; congratulations to Mr. Speaker; unity of purpose in government; elections and the province of Quebec, 244; government by co-operation; railway situation, 246; merchant marine, 247; tariff revision, 248; Liberal tariff views; immigration, 249, 250
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, 246-247
Insurance, qu., 605
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women, M. (Mr. Euler) 486
Mines and Minerals, Com., on, 1398
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3444-55
Pensions Committee
First report, 726
Final report, 3286, 3348
Adoption of, 2253
Meetings, 3335
Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act, 3393
Soldiers' Settlement Act Amdt. bill, 3408
Speech on tariff before election, 240
Vickers, dry dock, qu. 936

Marshall, Mr. Duncan, 647, 754, 1012, 1032. See also Agriculture
Cattle embargo and, 1032

Martell, Mr. L. H. (Hants)
Agricultural exhibitions, 995-6
Barkhouse, Capt., 1748
Biological Board, Mr. Halkett, 3051
British Empire Steel Corporation, taxation, qu., 1067
British Preference and Canadian seaports, 719
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, passenger traffic, qu. 939
Canadian Pacific Railway bill, 1859
Canadian Transit Company bill, 1771
Canned lobsters, inspection, 3048
Civil Service
Inside service, 580-1
Overmanning, 3081, 3100
Patronage, 3087

Martell, Mr. L. H. — Con.
Coal transportation on national railways, 1763
Cold storage, 818, 996
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 951
Departmental law officers, 683-4
Esquimalt and Nanaimo railway bill, 1163
Fisheries Act Amdt. bill, 2818
Fisheries Protection service, 678, 1747
Fishing schooner race, 3510
Food inspection, 820
Income tax, qu., 366
Indians Sydney reserve, medical attendance, qu., 2216
Labour department salaries, 549
Legal costs, 2772
MacInnes, Mr. Hector, K.C. Halifax, payments to, 2772
Marine and Fisheries
Capt. O'Hara, 1491
Lighthouse and coast service, 1496
Ocean and river service, 3507
Select Standing Com., on, 1398
Wrecks, investigation, Capt. Demers, 1492
Meighen, "the King-maker", 35
Military expenditure, 1137, 1141
Militia dept., officials, 741
Motion transferred, 942
National Defence bill, 665, 737
Nova Scotia miners, 524
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. bill, 3489
Opium and Narcotic Drugs bill, 3022
Parents, support of by children, 1310
Parliament buildings, architects' fees, 2015
Pelagic Sealing treaty, 1844
Pensions
Limitation of time for application, 2995
Widowed mothers, M. (Mr. Power) 1309
Pensions Act Amdt. bill, 3445-62
Preston, Mr. W. T. R., claim, 3504
Removal of derelict in channel at Windsor, N.S., 1493
Royal Canadian navy, 1855, 1890
St. John terminal facilities, 849
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, staff, 1343
Steamship services, freight rates, 2028, 3032
Welland ship canal, 2749
West Indies steamship services, 3032
Wheat Board, 3182
Windsor, N.S.,
Lease of wharves to C.P.C., 2749
Wreck at, 1493
Women and the franchise, 483

Massey-Harris Company, 1106, 2175. See also Agricultural Implements

Masters and Mates. See Marine and Fisheries

Matapedia Valley. See Quebec Oriental Railway

Match Industry, Occupational diseases. See Labour

Matches
Bill respecting, 1r., 3598
Tax on, 3262

Maybee, Mr. M. E. (Northumberland, Ont.)
Baxter, Mr. Charles, successor to, qu., 2457

Meat and Canned Foods Act, administration of, 967

Meat and Canned Foods Act Amdt. bill
Res. 3044; 1r., 2r., 3050; com., 3050, 3149; 3r., 3150

Meat Inspection, 226. See also Animal Contagious Diseases; Cattle Embargo

Meat Products. See also Live stock

Meats, Cold storage. See Agriculture

Medical Advisory Board. See Pensions Committee

Medical care. See Indians

Medical Examinations. See Returned Soldiers Insurance Act

Medical Inspection. See Immigration

Medicines. See also Opium and Narcotics
Duties, reductions in, 2116

Mediterranean of America, 1202. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur (Leader of the Opposition)
Abattoir inspectors, 969
Adamson, Mr. Justice, appointment of, 1670
Address in reply, 19. Congratulations to mover and seconder; Miss Macphail; New Prime Minister; Limitation of Armaments conference, 19-20; census returns; expansion of trade, 20; Liberal speeches and campaign literature; Sir Lomer Gouin and Mr. Mitchell, 21; natural resources of western provinces, 22; tariff revision, 24; Liberal platform; speeches of Sir Lomer Gouin, 26; Hon. Walter Mitchell; the Prime Minister on the tariff, 26-27; Mr. Raymond, 27; Mr. Marler, 28; public ownership; 30; wider markets; Minister of Agriculture, 32; reciprocity pact; reduction of freight rates, 33; Liberal administration; negotiations with Progressives, 34; Mr. Crerar, 34-35; Newmarket speech; Union Government negotiations, 35; Mr. Gardiner's statement, 36; responsible government, 37; Orders in Council, 37-38
Agricultural implements, duty, 3119
Agriculture Com. report, 726, 776, 1929. See also under this title, Wheat Board
Agriculture dept., Mr. Duncan Marshall, 645
Air Board, 1722
Details of expenditure, 1728
Estimates, 1722-35
Alien property, custody at Prince Rupert, 3606
Alpine Club, 794, 1053
Archives, 702
Assiniboine river floods, relief measures, 3491
Australia, reciprocity with, 9, 10, 2802
Banff-Windermere highway, 1682
Birthday, congratulations on, 3102
Borden, Sir Robert, correspondence, 373
International disarmament conference, 1283
Budget, 2523; Tribute to Finance Minister; financial position; debt; taxation and fiscal policy; moderate protection, 2524; free trade principles; the Netherlands, Belgium, 2525; Great Britain; abandonment of protection would mean disaster to Canada; ability to compete abroad; reciprocal trade; peculiar situation of Canada; United States an intermediary between us and the outside world, 2526; east and west routes of trade; reciprocal arrangement with United States; rejection of Reciprocity treaty; Fordney tariff, 2527; American farmers and competition in home market, 2527; free trade in wheat; results seen in United States tariff legislation; amendment, 2528; Liberal pledges broken; brazen apostacy; British preference; microscopic reduction in duties; Liberal platform of 1919, 2529; Finance Minister should have declared his position; tariff; general reduction and detailed adjustment, 2530; voters betrayed; contract broken; revised policy of Liberal party; declaration of Prime Minister; promised reductions in duties on food, 2531; clothing, building materials; failure to implement pledges, 2532; responsibility of Progressive party; invitation to Government to abandon pledges; grant to returned soldiers; Mr. Crerar's position, 2533; amendment to amendment; failure of Progressives to achieve their desire; responsible government; agricultural implement duties; 2534; Opposition votes for government; freight rates; faults of the budget; German and Austrian trade; exchange; inflation of currency; marking of imports, 2535; Government by Order in Council; dumping clause; possible tariff reductions; sales tax; Mr. Raymond and agricultural implement duties; Hr. Macdonald (Pictou) and steel and coal duties, 2536; special platforms for individual constituencies; Government's difficulties of their own creation, 2537

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur — Con.
Budget — Con.
Budget amendment, 2338
Building trades, 583
Business of the House, 373
Amdt. to amdt., (Mr. Crerar) 2522
Budget debate, conclusion of, 2639
Daylight saving, 1282
Debate on naval service estimates, 1742, 1900
Debates, Official, insertion of documents not read, 1540
Decorum, 2090
Delay in proceeding with, 7
Further legislation, inquiry, 2996, 3102, 3365
Government orders on Mondays and Wednesdays, 1461, 1720
Privilege, right of member to raise on orders of the day, 2638
Questions standing as orders for returns, 1660
Supplementary estimates, 3364
Wednesday, hour of sitting, 49
Canada Shipping Act Amdt. bill (Pilotage) 1487
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, Senate amdts., 3614
Canadian National parks, 1053
Canadian National railways
Accounting, 1918
Amalgamation of system, delay, 2585
Canadian Northern, 1907
Deficits, 1918

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur — Con.
Canadian National railways — Con.
Estimates, 1907-54
Minister's annual statement, 912
Canadian offices in England, co-ordination, 414
Canadian Transit Company bill, 1747
Cash grants to soldiers, 393, 394, 2533
Liberal pledge, 400
Relevancy, 404
Cattle embargo, 985
Alleged statement of High Commissioner, 1022, 1463
Census enumerators, appointment, 1368, 1372
Chamberlin, Mr. R. G., grant to, 3497
Chinese customs tariff, 3168
Civil aviation, 1722
Civil Service Act, 1368
Civil Service
Classification, Arthur Young Co., 1491
Economy, 2057
Marine and Fisheries department, 1491
Militia services, organization of, 423
Reorganisation of, 2061
Griffenhagen and Associates, 1491
Russell, Mr. T. A., superannuation of, 1667
Coal for public buildings, 1758
Committees, changes, 497
Criminal Code Amdt. bills
Half-breed scrip, 3103, 3211, 3219
Mr. Woodsworth Special Com., second report, 1988
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 104-11-21-24-49-53. See also under this title, Freight Rates
Customs
Drawbacks, 766
Dumping clause, 2535-6, 3119, 3413, 3421
Estimates, 763
Valuation for duty, 3225, 3414
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 948
Debates, Official Report of, insertion of documents not read, 1540
Defence, preparation for, 1621. See also under this title, National Defence
Demobilization, military hospitals, 1262
Deville, Dr., 1044, 1048
Dinosaurs, museum specimens, 1237
Director of commercial intelligence, 700
Distressed seamen, relief of, 1676
Doherty, Hon. Manning, visit to England, 1283, 1334
Dominion Elections Act, 470
Dominion Iron & Steel Company
Contract for steel plates, 1677
Damage action against Govt., 2170

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur — Con.
Dominion lands
And surveys, 1044
Homestead re-entry, 1042
Dominion lands, cancellation of leases, bill, 3466-75
Senate amdts., 3614
Editorial Committee, 1235-6
Election campaign, 21, 187
Election of Speaker, 2
Election promises, 21
Liberal handbook, 400
Ellesmere Island, 1751
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women, M. (Mr. Euler) 479
Estimates
"Appropriations not required," 1269
Information not up-to-date, 1267
This year's accounts charged to previous years, 1715
Exemption of farmers' sons, 440
Experimental farms, expenditure, 1264
Extra-territorial rights, 1068
False creek bridge, 3516
Finance, deputy minister, 751
Fire prevention, 794
Fisheries protection service, 1747
Fishing schooner race, 3511
Freight rates. See also under this title Crowsnest Pass Agreement
Crowsnest pass agreement, 3589
Railway Act Amdt. bill, 3589
Special Com., ref. to, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) 1213
Third report, 3589
Gasoline tax, 3116
Gaspé railways, 627
Genoa conference, expenses, 1715
Geological survey, co-ordination of survey work, 1236
German goods, valuation, 3225
Government departments, payments to each other, 1724
Grain Inquiry Commission, 50
Grand Trunk Railway
Arbitration, British newspaper article, 375
Financial statement, 1933
Harbours and rivers
Expenditure for 1921-22, 1269
Prince Edward Island, 1270
High Commissioner
Alleged statement of, 1022, 1463
Office, 414
Hydrographic survey, 1746
Immigration Act Amdt. bill (Mr. Woodsworth) 1503, 1988
Immigration — Criminal Code bills, 3284

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur — Con.
Immigration dept., 3051
Black Mr., appointment, 3500
Marshall, Mr. Duncan, 755
Work of, 760
Immigration of Hutterites, 2160
Imperial Convention of Teachers, 1673
Imperial Mining Resources Bureau, 1238
Income tax
Comparison with systems in other countries, 2228
Naturalization, and, inquiry as to legislation, 3103
Non-resident aliens, M. (Mr. German) 1303
Income War Tax Act. Amdt., 3359
Indian Act Amdt. bill, 3192
Indian Affairs
Estimates, 681, 684, 1712
Indians
Agitation and unrest, 1223
Complaints, 1223
Expenditure, 1216
Hospital grants, 1218
Medical attention, 1218
Six Nation reserve, 1222
Soldiers Settlement Board, 1222
Stony reserve school, 1229
Insurance department, 792
Interim Supply bill, 380
Interior Department
Conservation Commission employees, transfer, 457
Estimates, 3517
Printing and stationery, 1680
International Labour Conference, 3437
Judges' Act Amdt. bill, 424, 428
Justice dept. salaries, 452
Labour department
Duplications, 577
Salaries 550
Lake of the Woods Repeal bill, 2991, 3200, 3207, 3435
Lawyers, employment in Justice dept., 1679
League of Nations, 3162, 3171, 3174
Limitation of Armaments, 43
Loyalty of western Canada, 1023
McCoig, Senator, attendance before Com. on Agriculture, 1900
Marine and Fisheries
Life-saving service, 1494
Removal of obstructions in navigable waters, 1493
St. Lawrence ship channel, 1494
Steamers and icebreakers, 1490
Marler, Mr., and railway situation, 28, 247
Marshall, Mr. Duncan, appointment, 3501
Meat and canned foods, 3045, 3050

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur — Con.
Military Service Act Amdt. bill, 640
Militia and Defence
Annual drill, proposed reduction of vote, 1620-9
Arsenals
Lindsay, 2088
Quebec, 2091, 2096
War claims, adjustment of, 417
Mines department
Additional officials, 689
Estimates, 686
Ethnologist and ornithologist, 687
Ministers and directorships, 1104
Montreal Harbour Commission, 1489
National Defence bill, 663, 674, 734, 738,
Senate amdts., 2807
Natural resources, transfer to western provinces, 41-42
M. for correspondence, 1509
Naturalization Act Amdt. bill, 3436
Naval defence, 1862-1900
Naval policy, 2056-81
Naval service, 1738
Empire defence, contribution to, 2081
Niobe, sale of, 2065
Royal Canadian navy, 1741, 1862-1900, 2056
Empire defence, needs of, 1741
Minister's proposals, criticism of, 1741
Staff, 418
Nelson, Mr. Frank, 3517
Norris, Premier, reported statement, 1213
Nova Scotia miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 503, 524-539, 544, 597, 1054
Nova Scotia Supreme Court, vacancy, 3437
Ocean and river service, expenditure, 1494
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. bill, 3426-32
Orders in Council, government by, 663, 2535-6
Ore-dressing plant, 1235
Oriental aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 1561, 1567, 1575
Paper milk bottle caps, 3114
Parliament buildings, lighting, 1755
Parliament, fall session, 3609
Peace and war, 1621
Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill, 789
Pension Commissioners, Board of, 1350, 1351
Charges against, 3041
Representation of Quebec, 1351
Pensions
European war and active militia, 1353
Expenditure under report of Special Com., 3522

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur — Con.
Ploughs, duty on, 3123, 3125
Amdt. (Mr. Johnston, Last Mountain, 3230
Political alliances, 2097
Political promises — Mr. Hoey, 2338
Portage la Prairie exhibition, qu., 1391
Post Office estimates, 691
Preston, Mr. W. T. R., rent of house in London, 3504
Prices, deflation of, 1216
Prime Minister, private secretaries, 410, 412
Prime Ministers' Conference, 1629
Correspondence, 1068
Naval defence, 1742
Lord Lee, reported statement of, 1742
Report, reference to, 5
Prince Rupert Dry Dock & Engineering Co., 3514
Privy Council, increases, 410
Promises of Union Government, 2339
Public buildings
Coal for, 1758
Flags, 1264, 1268
Generally, expenditure, 1262
Heating, 1758
Maritime provinces, 1243
Ontario
Alleged neglect by former government, 1249
Appropriation and expenditure, 1245-59-60
Ottawa
Elevator attendants, 1266
Lighting, 1267
Water, 1266
Public expenditures, 1249
Public Works
Classification, 693
Estimates, 692, 697, 699, 747
Public buildings, 1755. See also under this title, Public Buildings
Salaries, 749
Quebec fisheries, M. (Mr. Marcil) 377, 493 622
Quebec Harbour Commission
Inquiry for papers, 1283
Political patronage, 1477
Resignation of former commissioners, 1477-8
Quebec Harbour Commission bill, 1477
Radiotelegraph service, 1749
Railway Commission
Chairman, alleged statement of Mr. Motherwell, 3491
Freight rates, 193

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur — Con.
Railway estimates, 409
Railway policy of Government, inquiry, 407
Railways, annual statement of minister, 921
Raymond, Mr., and the tariff, 255, 2536-7
Reciprocal trade with Australia, 10, 2802
Inquiry for correspondence, 9
Reciprocity with the United States, 2845
Redistribution, 733, 3611
Census, and, 1364, 1367, 1371
Resolution should embody bills, 3179
Returns, inquiry for, 1283
Rideau hall, fuel and light, 1756
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, 734
Amalgamation with Dominion Police, 673
Estimates, 2129
Ruling of Chair, 3354
St. John quarantine station, 1241
St. John terminal facilities, M. (Mr. Caldwell) 844
Saunders, Dr. C. E., gratuity to, 3522
Secretary of State, estimates, 701
Seed grain advances, 1053
Seed grain commission, 1011
Soldier land settlement, 3294, 3296
Estimates, 2135
Homestead rights, 2135
Land purchase, irregularities charged, 2139
Taxes, collection of, 2135
Soldiers' bonus, 393, 394, 400, 404, 436, 2533
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment
Hospitals, 1262
Medical treatment, 392
Parliamentary Com., 393
Salary increases, 385
Unemployment relief, 1352
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment bill, 3597, 3609
Sorel shipyards, dismissal of employees, 1283
Speaker, Mr., bereavement of, 496
Speaker's election, 2
Statistics, co-ordination of work, 580, 1366
Statutes, revision of, 1718
Steamship subsidies, 3505
Steel, structural, importation, qu., 1931
Stefansson expedition, 1750
Supply. See also under this title, Estimates
Concurrence, 1769
Method of discussion, 1142
Motions in, 1579
Latitude in discussion, 2238
Supreme Court estimates, 1274
Tariff Commissioner, appointment of, 1663
Tariff revision, 2540
Tourist traffic, 1682

Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur — Con.
Tractors, duty on, 3124
Trade and Commerce officials, 700-01
Treaties of Peace with Hungary and Turkey, 3490
Trial of Indian Lebeaux, expenses, 1669
Unemployment
Banff-Windermere highway, 1682
Canadian coal, use of by railways, 1759
Insurance, 1080
Policy of government as to, 3491
Relief, 1719
Situation, 1079
Welland canal, 2750
United Grain Growers, agricultural implements, 3120
United States, discriminatory legislation 1303, 2527-8
Washington conference. See also under this title, Naval Service
Empire naval defence, 1744
Papers, 1283
Welland canal, 2750
Western provinces, natural resources. See Natural Resources
Wheat Board, 2915, 2924, 2953, 3175, 3184, 3190, 3381, 3386. See also under this title, Agriculture Committee
Concurrence in report of special Com., delay, 2306
White, Mr. James, employment of, 3495
Winnipeg strike, Mr. Alfred J. Andrews, 1069
Wrangel island, 1750
Yukon territory
Administration of, 1681
Expenditure, 1275
Radiotelegraph service, 1749

Melchior, Dr., on value of German mark, 2645

Mellish, Mr. Justice, 1275

Melville, Sask., railway restaurant, qu., 2038

Members. See House of Commons

Memorials, War. See Baker, Lieut. Col.; Battlefields; Historic Sites; War Graves Commission; War Memorials

Mennonites. See Immigration

Merchant Marine. See Canadian Government Merchant Marine

Merchants' Bank. See that title under Banks and Banking

Mercier, Mr. Paul (Westmount-St. Henri)
Address in reply to Governor General's Speech, seconder, 15. Change of government; Baron Byng of Vimy, 16; congratulations to Mr. Speaker; encouragement of agriculture, commerce and industry, 16-17; immigration; labour, 17; financial burdens; political parties, 18
Electrification of railways, M. (Mr. Deslauriers) 638
St. Lawrence river waterway, 786, 1333
M. (Mr. Church) 1396

Meredith, Sir Vincent, 1128

Messengers and Stenographers, qu., 1376

Metal File Cabinets, 1252

Metals. See Mines and Minerals

Meteorological Service, magnetic observatory, 1501

Mexico
Postal rate to, qu., 3364
Trade with, 699, 700, 2989

Mewburn, Hon. S. C. (East Hamilton)
Ammunition shipment from Great Britain, 1169
Battlefields memorials, 2098
Hamilton post office building, 1246
Military expenditure and policy, 1152, 1579
Militia and defence
Annual drill, 1152, 1579
Expenditure and policy, proposed reduction, 1579
Services co-ordination, 416
National Defence bill, 665, 666, 737, 744, 745
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, industrial disputes, 667
Royal commission on pensions, 386

Michaud, Mr. Pius (Restigouche and Madawaska)
Audibility of debate, 385
Criminal Code Amdt., fines, payment, 2832
Customs revenue, qu., 607
Damage by floods in New Brunswick, 3492
Edmundston
Post office, qu., 608
Public building, 1242
German reparations, qu., 375
Lighthouse and coast service, 1496
St. John terminal facilities, 847
St. Lawrence river waterway, 2753
Welland ship canal, 2753

Migratory Birds, 1684

Military Forces, preparedness. See Militia and Defence; National Defence; Naval Servicee

Military Hospitals, 1261, 1341, 1344, 3287-9, 3345. See also Pensions Com. report; Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, 1339-48

Military Service. See also Pensions Com.
Medical inspection, 3317

Military Service Act, powers under, 780

Military Service Act, 1917, Repeal bill (Mr. Woodsworth
1r., 424; order for 2r., stands, 493; M. for 2r., 639; Mr. Speaker rules bill out of order, 644

Militia and Defence. See also National Defence bill
Adjustment of War claims, 1155, 2098, 2974
Air force, 1722
Allowances, active militia, 1135
Ammunition, 2085
Shipment from Great Britain, 1156-63, 1337
Small arms, 1979
Annual drill, 1137, 1139, 1144, 1146, 1151, qu., 1285, 1335, 1578, 1610, 2835
Amdt. (Mr. Power) to reduce vote by $1,100,000, 1174, 1578
Amdt. to amdt. (Mr. Lapointe) to reduce vote by $400,000, 1579; agreed to, 1631
Expenditure for 1911-21, qu., 1287
Armouries
Fittings and alterations, 1261
Quebec, qu., 1287
Arsenals
Danger of attack by aeroplanes, 2085-98
High explosive shells, 1170
Lindsay, 1165, 1171, 1979
Site, purchase of, 2087-8
Quebec, 1165, 1171, 1978-9, 2085
Amdt. (Mr. Lapointe) to reduce vote by $50,000, 2091; agreed to, 2098
Amdt. (Mr. McBride) to reduce vote by $110,000, 2091; neg., 2098
Customs duties, 1978
Rivière du Loup, qu., 1181
Burstall, General Sir Henry, retirement of, qu., 1211. See also National Defence
Cadet camps, 1147, 1973, 2202
Militarism, 1974
Cadet services
M. (Mr. Murdock) to reduce vote by $100,000, 1972; agreed to, 1978

Militia and Defence — Con.
Civil pensions, 1711, 3499
Clothing and necessaries, M. (Mr. Murdock) to reduce item by, $21,000, 1978
Defensive forces, 1135
Demobilization expenditure, 1155, 1163
Department
Estimates, 415, 586, 1578, 1610, 1972, 2974, 3498
Reductions, 1174, 1578, 1631, 1972-87, 2091-98
Salaries and contingencies, 415, 586, 1985
District auditors, 1145
Engineer services and works
M. Mr. Murdock) to reduce item by $50,000, 1980
Expenditure
Policy and, 1174, 1335, 1578, 1610, 2202. See also under this title, Arsenals, Naval Service
Reductions proposed by minister, 1578
Reduction of, 1135
1890-1913, qu., 1285
1911-22, qu., 1287
First Canadian Contingent, qu., 1376
General staff, 1145
Generals, 1145
Gwatkin, General, retirement of, qu., 1211. See also National Defence
Lindsay arsenal. See under this title, Arsenals
Long Branch rifle range, qu., 372
Lord Grey on military protection, 1136
MacBrien, General, 1151
Reported utterances of, 1662
Maintenance of military properties, 1980
Military districts, 1580, 1775
District No. 12, 1602
London, 1983
Toronto, 1983
Military holiday, 1146, 1338
Military hospitals, 1341. See also that title
Militia council, qu., 2039
Montreal ordnance stores building, 1245
Munitions. See also under this title Ammunition
Shipment from Great Britain, 1154-63
Officers and men at headquarters, 1775
Ordnance arms and lands
M. (Mr. Murdock) to reduce item by $9,000, 1982
Ordnance building, Quebec, repairs, 1711
Pensions. See also that title
European war and active militia, 1349, 1353, 1361
Permanent force, 1136, 1147, 1152, 1580, 1982
Estimates, 1982

Militia and Defence — Con.
Permanent force — Con.
Expenditure, 1140
Royal Canadian Artillery, 1982
Strength of, 1136
Ten years' service or more, qu., 2637
Prince of Wales Leinster regiment, qu., 1065
Quebec arsenal. See under this title, Arsenals
Rental of buildings, 1764
Royal Military College, 1985
Schools of instruction
M. (Mr. Murdock) to reduce item by $50,000, 1985
Service overseas, 1140-80
Shed on Cartier square, Ottawa, qu., 2038
Staff, 661
Pay of, amdt., (Mr. Murdock) to reduce item by $10,000, agreed to, 1982; amdt (Mr. Sutherland) to reduce item by $25,000, neg., 1982
Tobin, Lieut. Col., and 29th Battalion, 1975
Topographical maps, qu., 1632
Topographic survey, 1985
Training areas, 1986
Training camps, qu., 2584
Transport and freight, 1986
Amdts. (Mr. Hanson) to reduce by $60,000 and (Mr. Spencer to reduce by $10,000, 1987
War claims, adjustment of, 1155, 2098, 2974
Warlike stores, 1137, 1154-63
Sale of, 1171-3

Milk. See also Dairying Industry
Competition with Klim, 981
Condensed, tax, 2492, 3264-5, 3271, 3409
Filled milk and cream, qu., 963
Herds supplying. See Accredited herds
Paper caps for bottles, 3114
Products, taxation, 3263-4

Milking Machines, 3270

Mill Feeds, adutleration of, 1012, 2490. See also Grain and Grain Trade

Millar, Mr. John (Qu'Appelle)
Agricultural implements, price of, 1476
Agriculture
Condition and prospects of, 1475, 2163
Plant pathologist, 593-4
Animal Contagious Diseases bill, 2736
Banks, interest rates, 3601
Beet sugar industry, 3251
Budget, 2294. Congratulations to Finance Minister; war indebtedness; failure

Millar, Mr. John — Con.
Budget — Con.
to meet larger proportion of cost during the war; public debt; revenue and expenditure; encouragement of basic industries; agriculture bled white, 2294; monopolies and political contributions; labour unions; extracting profits from the consumer, 2295; insufficient tariff reductions; agriculture languishing; price of gasoline; Sir Richard Cartwright and Mr. Meighen on the tariff, 2296; the tariff and mergers; increased prices of textiles; white lead, protective duty added to price; sales tax, the poor man hit, 2297; free food, boots and shoes; protection and wages; average income tax by classes; cost of fostering home industries, 2298; income tax, introduction of; loan companies, 2299
Canadian National railways
Branch lines, 1476, 2772
Freight, careless handling of, 1965
Census
Completion of, 1363
Registration of Canadians, 1363
Civil Service, overmanning, 401
Dairy industry, 980
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women, M. (Mr. Euler) 485
Estimates, 401
Expenditure, necessity for economy in, 401, 1475
Export liquor warehouses, Saskatchewan, 767, qu., 1211
Legality of, qu., 1660
Fish culture, 2169
Fishing schooner race, 3513
Fort William-Port Arthur terminal elevators, qu., 1210
Hudson bay railway, completion of, 2784
Immigration
Foreigners, loyalty of, 2163
German, 3052
Policy, 2163
Indians
Education and health, 1228
Round lake school, 3537
Liquor
Export warehouses, 767, qu., 1211, qu., 1660, 3001
Importation into Saskatchewan, qu., 2037, qu., 2303
Loan Companies Act Amdt. bill, 3142
Loan companies, renewal of loans, 1476
Parsons, W. Reuben, qu., 3362
Millar, Mr. John — Con.
Quebec harbour advances, 1475
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1198
Grain transportation, 2756
Saskatchewan liquor export. See under this title, Liquor
Soldier land settlement, land purchases, 2139
Terminal elevators, overages, qu., 1210, 2837
Welland canal
Estimates, amdt. to reduce vote by $4,000,000, 2758; neg., 2764
Grain transportation, 2756
Wheat Board bill, 3385, 3181
Woollen goods, duty on, 3136

Milling Combines, 304, 2633. See also Wheat Board

Milne, Mr. Robert (Neepawa)
Agriculture dept., officials, 654
Budget, 2239. A six country; new fiscal policy needed; amendment; no solution; loss of faith in political parties, 2239; economy; tariff inconsistencies; unfairness as between manufacturer and farmer; free raw materials and protected product; sales tax, 2240; farmers and the income tax; agriculture the mainstay of the country, 2241
Fishways in White Mud river, 2167

Milton, speech of Hon. Mr. Murphy, at, 2562

Mineral Resources Bureau. See Imperial Mineral Resources

Mineral Waters, tax on. See Taxation

Mines and Minerals. See also Coal; Geological Survey; Natural Resources
Assay office, Vancouver, 1236
Canadian Institute of Mining and Metallurgy, 1237
Clay products, 1234
Imperial Mining Resources Bureau, 1237
Lignite Utilization Board, 3524
Machinery and tools, reduction in duties, 2116
Mineral rights. See Soldiers' Settlement Act Amdt.
Miners' strike, district No. 12, 1058
Mines dept.,
Estimates,, 685, 1233
Salaries, 685
Statistical branch, 1366
Topographical maps, qu., 1632
Ore dressing plant, 1236

Mines and Minerals — Con.
Publications, 1234-6
Resources, 12
Investigation of, 1234
Reduction in vote, 1236-62
Road and materials, 1234
Select Standing Com., 1398
Tar sands, 1236
Yukon, mineral discoveries, 1276

Ministers and Directorships, 241-243
M. (Mr. McMaster), 1084; neg., 1131
Bank directors, 1091
Bank of Montreal, 1129
Board of Railway Commissioners Act, 1088, 1101
Borden, Sir Robert, 1089
Directors of large corporations, names, 1128
Government's attitude, 1095-1117, 1124
Great Britain, practice in, 1089-99, 1107-1128
House of Commons and Senate Act, 1088, 1100, 1111, 1113, 1129
Interlocking directorates, 1086, 1100, 1115, 1129
Judges' Act, 1088
Merchants' Bank, 1085, 1096, 1121
Practice in other countries, 1090, 1096, 1101, 1114
Tariff beneficiaries, 1088
White, Sir Tomas, 1089, 1102

Ministers of the Crown
Salaries, 1093, 2895
Trips to Europe, 14

Minority Candidates. See Elections

Minority Government. See Elections

Minors, sale of drugs to. See Opium and Narcotics

Miscou-Shippegan Islands, service, 2029

Mitchell, Mr. A. J., 46, qu., 471

Mitchell, Mr. Walter (St. Antoine)
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 3002
Carriage or transportation, amdt., 3008
Canadian National railways
Deficits, 1910
Investigation proposed, 1908-17
Public ownership and operation, 1907
Rails and car repair contracts, 1694, 1709, 1961
Reference to by Mr. Meighen, 21, 207

Monckton Papers, purchase of, 1673

Moncton
Intercolonial headquarters, 313, 355, 2289
Railway shops, 1709

Money. See also Banks and Banking; Currency; Finance
Gold standard, 1291
Purchasing power of, 1151-3, 1175, 1177, 1292, 2331, 2603, 2629. See also Address; Budget
Mark, German. See Germany

Money Bills. See Appropriation; Supply

Montpetit, Professor. See Genoa Conference

Montreal (city)
Bank of. See Banks
Canadian National railways' employees, 1288
Census figures, 1366
Clerks of the peace. See Criminal Code Amdt.
Cold storage warehouse, 819
Customs and excise employees, 1288
Foreigners, immigration of, 1392-4
Income tax office, qu., 607, 1288
Merchants' Association, 1392
Ordnance stores building, repairs, 1245
Post office employees, 1288
Post offices, business done, qu., 1065
Soldiers' civil re-establishment, staff, 1342
Suburban steam service, 135
Wages of workmen, 1465

Montreal (port). See also British Preference, M. (Mr. Logan)
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, qu., 2637
Employees, qu., 2992
Expenditure to date, 1488
Facilities, 1472, 1473
Grain shipments through, 1489
Ocean tonnage, 2008
Revenue, 1465
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1183-1209, 1315-34

Montreal Gazette
Canadian National railways, 1923
King-Crerar alliance, 206
Montreal Harbour Commission, resignation, 1481

Montreal Harbour Commission, 1289, 1335. See also Quebec Harbour Commission
Employees, 1289
Harbour master, Capt. Landry, 1481
Paint purchased, qu., 602
Policemen, qu., 2992
Resignation of commissioners, 1478-81
Tugboats, qu., 600

Montreal Harbour Commission Advances bill
Res., 1335, 1488; 1r., 1489; 2r., com., 3r., 3199

Monty, Hon. Mr., and conscription. See Military Service Act Amdt. bill

Monuments. See also Battlefields; War Memorials
Historic sites, 119, qu., 469
New Brunswick, historic sites, qu., 469
Parliament hill, qu., 936

Moore, Mr. Tom, and immigration, 3053

Moosejaw public building improvements,

Morgan, J. P., & Company, 1131, 1133

Morganatic Alliances. See Alliances

Morin, Mr. L. S. René (St. Hyacinthe-Rouville)
Canadian Northern railway, qu., 368
Wheat Board, 2926

Morphine. See Opium and Narcotic Drugs

Morrison, Mr. John (Weyburn)
Budget, 2699. Comparative prices of wheat and farm implements in Saskatchewan and North Dakota; shifting burden of taxation, 2699; exports of farm implements; competition in foreign markets; protection of industries; customs tariff inadequate to raise revenue, 2700; excise duty on manufactured goods; expense of running the Government; to much overhead, 2701; comparative development of Canada and the United states; freight rates and Crowsnest pass agreement, 2702; export rates on manufactured goods and agricultural products; prices of hides, wool, boots and shoes and clothing; exchange value of wheat and commodities, 2703
Campbell, Mr. J. A., claim for flax shipment, 2836
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 3005
Crowsnest pass agreement, 2702
M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1425-6
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) 836
Sales tax collections, qu., 375
Saskatchewan liquor exports, 3005
Soldiers' bonus, M. (Mr. Arthurs) 435

Morrissy, Mr. John (Northumberland, N.B.)
Harbours and rivers, New Brunswick, 1992
Provincial wharves, 1992

Mothers, Widowed, pensions to. See Pensions

Motherwell, Hon. W. R. (Minister of Agriculture)
Abattoir inspectors, 969
Accredited herds, 649, 999
Diseases, 969
Valuation, 1003
Adulteration of mill feeds, 1012
Agricultural Fertilizers bill, 1282, 3041, 3043, 3195
Agricultural Instruction Act, 1013
Agricultural lecturers, 1024
Agriculture department
Deputy Minister's salary, 653
Employees, 651
Estimates, 644, 1718, 3504, 3520
Lynton, Mr. T. J., 588
Marshall, Mr. Duncan, 645, 651, 1013
Officials, 654-5
Professional men, 589
Salary increases, 588, 657
Saunders, Dr., 590
Alderson claim, hog cholera, 1004
Animal Contagious Diseases Act Amdt. bill, 2102, 2734-43, 2806
Bacon, production and marketing, 1025
Budget, 2548. Fulfilment of election pledges; Liberal platform of 1893, 2548; tariff pledge; British preference; reciprocity, defeat of, 1911; free trade, 2549; unrestricted reciprocity; cry of annexation; opposition of manufacturers to proposal, 2550; Canada's tragic mistake; protection; infant industries; protection for the farmer, 2551; not a protectionist budget; a substantial step in right direction; Liberal platform of 1919; revision of Progressive platform, 2552; excise duty on manufactured articles; revenue, 2553; free trade and revenue duties; motor cars; Mr. Crerar's pre-election statements; gradual reduction of tariff, 2554; elimination of protective feature; Regina speech; time inopportune for drastic action, 2555; Department of Agriculture; accredited herds; tuberculosis in cattle, 2556; cold storage; experimental farm system, 2557; staff; Civil Service Commission, 2559; patronage, 2560
Canada Temperance Act Amdt bill, 2998
Carvell, Hon. F. B., 2773, 2774, 2778-9
Cattle embargo, 970, 979, 1021
Cattle, free carriage of, 1029
Cold storage, 818, 998, 1024, 2557, 3521

Motherwell, Hon. W. R. — Con
Criminal Code, cruelty to animals, 2834
Dairies, inspection of, 1006
Dairy produce, grading, 652, 656
Dairying industry, 982
Destructive Insect and Pest Act, 3520
Entomology
Botanical section, 816
Insect pests, 815
Exhibition grants, 649, 979
Experimental farms, 795, 799, 804, 812, 1014, 2557
Illustration farms, 3521
Fertilizers
Inspectors, 692
Manure, exportation of, 1021
Grasshoppers, 3520
Health of animals. See also under this title, Accredited Herds
Contagious diseases, 967
Hog cholera, 1008
Compensation, 1028
Tuberculosis, 2556, 3521
Hogs, grading of, 1025
Hudson Bay railway, completion, 2784
International Institute of Agriculture, 969
Klim, competition with milk, 981
Liquor, export of, 2998
Live stock industry, 978
Feed shortage in western Canada, 1030
Grazing and feeding, 1719, 3522
National live stock records, 1027
Provincial governments, overlapping, 997
Stockyards, 1030
Wolves, destruction by, 998-999
Milk supply, inspection of herds, 2740
Mixed farming, 998
Oleomargarine, 654
Manufacture and importation, M. (Mr. Neill) 1804
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. bill, 3358, 3425-32, 3487
Pure bred sires, 1032
Railway Commission
Carvell, Hon. F. B., alleged statement in regard to, 2773, 2774, 2778-9
Root Vegetables, sale and inspection of, 1282, 2724, 3142, 3194, 3369, 3486
Rust investigations, 594
Saskatchewan liquor export, 2998
Saunders, Dr. C. E., gratuity to, 3522
Seed Grain Commission, 1011
Spruce bud moth, 595
Wheat Board, 377, 2940
Wheat Board bill, 3382
Wool industry, 997

Motor Cars, Theft of. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Motor Trucks for transportation, 134

Mounted Police. See Royal Canadian Mounted Police

Moving Pictures. See Trade and Commerce

Mowing Machines. See Agricultural Implements

Mulvey, Mr. Thomas, qu., 3363

Municipal Prison Farms, 1277. See also Prison Reform

Municipal Taxation, payment of by Government, 1256

Municipalities
Unemployment relief, 1069

Munitions. See Guthrie; King, Mackenzie, Militia and Defence; War

Munro, Mr. E. A. (Fraser Valley)
Oleomargarine, manufacture, etc., M. (Mr. Neill) 1793
Oriental aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion, 1537

Murdock, Hon. James (Minister of Labour)
Building trades, 583
Canmore and Drumheller coal miners' dispute, 1058
Civil Service, report of Hon. Mr. Robertson, 554
Conciliation and Labour Act, 1054
Cost of living, 1058
Employment offices, 1058
Gordon, Sir Charles, 584
Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, 1058
International Labour Conference, 1060
Joint industrial councils, 1060
Labour department
Classification of employees, 494, 575
Director of technical education, 578
Economy and work, 465
Estimates, 1970, 3526
Outside employees, 493, 494
Permanent and temporary employees, 460-1
Staff and salaries, 458-9, 562, 575
Statistical work, 580
Wage investigators, 462
Labour Gazette, 1058
Militia and Defence
Cadet services, M. to reduce item by $100,000, 1972

Murdock, Hon. James — Con
Militia and Defence — Con.
Clothing and necessaries, M. to reduce item by $21,000, 1978
Engineer services and work, M. to reduce item by $50,000, 1980
Ordnance arms, lands, etc., M. to reduce item by $9,000, 1982
Pay of staff, M. to reduce item by $10,000, 1982
Nova Scotia miners, 46, 1054
Labour department officer, 585
M. (Mr. Irvine) 505
Printing Bureau, 1970
Rail and car repair contracts, 1696, 1701
Unemployment relief, 1074, 1719, 2022, 3526
Policy of government, inquiry, 3491
Rail and car repair contracts, 1696
Whitley councils, 1061
Winnipeg strike, correspondence with Mr. Andrews, 2042

Murphy, Hon. Charles (Postmaster General)
Belley, Mr. Alfred, salary, 3504
Militia expenditure and policy, 1582
National Defence bill, 677
Post Office department
Employees
Bonus, 2801
Salaries, 691, 2801, 3504
Estimates, 1711, 2799
Inspectorates, reorganization, 1507
Outside service, 2799
Railway mail service, 2800
Reorganization, 2800
Rural mail delivery contracts, 2800, 2801
Subletting, 2802
Yukon, parcel post, 2802

Murray Bay-Tadoussac service, 3035

Musk Ox in northern Canada, 2785

Mutton, imported, qu., 610

Mutual Insurance. See Insurance

Nanaimo, B.C Post office revenue, qu., 2040

Nanton, Sir Augustus, 1128

Narcotic Drugs. See also Opium and Narcotic Drugs
Correspondence with wholesale druggists, 1289

Nassau Dam, qu., 2457

National Battlefields Commission. See Battlefields Commission

National Debt. See Public Debt

National Defence. See also National Defence bills
Department of
Ashton, Major General, 661
Burstall, Major General Sir Henry, 661, 742
Canadian air force and civil aviation, 1722
Currie, Sir Arthur, 659, 743
Elmsley, Major General, 661
Gwatkin, Major General, 742
MacBrien, Major General, 661, 742
Morrison, Sir Edward, 661
Naval students in armories, physical drill, 1741
Services, co-ordination, 91, 97, 1747

National Defence, Department of, bills respecting
1. No. 15. 1r., 363-4; order for 2r., discharged, 547-8
2. No. 27. Res., 644, 657; 1r., 2r., com., 681; com., 733; 3r., 787; Senate amdts., 2806
Sections and subjects discussed:
Air Service, 658, 677
Amalgamation of services, 658
Appointment of officer to exercise powers of deputy, 737
Controller, 741
Defence Council, 746
Deputy Minister, 737
Desbarats, Mr. J. B., 737
Federal laws, enforcement of, 680
Holder of position abolished may be appointed to another, 741
Militia, 658
Naval Service, 658
Officers, retirement of, 661, 742
Officials, 736
Orders in Council, 661
Powers of Minister and deputy, 746
Regulations, 746
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, 658
Secret service, 670-9
Services included, 733

National Gallery, 2011

National Industrial Conference, unemployment insurance, qu., 1375

National Livestock Records, 1026

National Parks. See Dominion Lands and Parks

National Railways. See Canadian National Railways

National Status. See Canada

National Transcontinental Railway. See Canadian National Railways

Nationalists, 187
Conservative alliance with, 2095. See also Naval Service
Naval policy and, 1849, 1877

Natural Resources. See also Forestry; Mines and Minerals
Alienation of, 2245, 2992
Coal lands, 3465, See also Coal
Development, 269
Foreign ownership of, 2243. See also United States
Investigation of mineral resources, 1234
Northern Canada, in, 2779-99
Water powers, 1051. See also that title
Western provinces of, 88, 89, 100, 116, 154, 168, 223, 229, 339
Aerial patrol, 1722
Agreement with Government of Manitoba, 1018
Claims of prairie provinces, 1017
Conference with premiers, 1017
Tabled, 1769
Norris, Premier, reported statement, 1213
Transfer of, M. (Mr. Meighen) for correspondence, 1509

Naturalization. See also Dominion Elections Act

Naturalization Act, 1388, 1390
Disabilities of British-born under, 1389-91
Expenses, 1671, 2024
Further legislation, inquiry, 3103

Naturalization Act, 1914, Amdt. bills
1. Residence (Mr. Archambault) 1r., 1062
2. Method of application (Mr. Copp) 1r., 3436

Naval Armaments. See Limitation of Armaments

Naval College. See under Naval Service, Royal Naval College

Naval Defence. See Naval Service

Naval Fortifications. See Limitation of Armaments

Naval Service. See also Marine; National Defence
Aurora, qu., 827, 1736, 2051
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, 1898. See also that title

Naval Service — Con.
Canadian navy, members stranded, 3365
Cruisers and destroyers, expenditure, qu., 2039
Department
Deputy Minister. See National Defence
Estimates, 1843, 1862, 2043
Reduction in, 2371
Naval council and officers, qu., 1774
Salaries, 418, 1735, 1745
Dockyards, Halifax and Esquimalt, officers, 1752
Fisheries protection service, 665, 678, 1736, 1740, 1747
Gift of ships to Canada, 2050
Hydrographic service, 1736, 1746
Naval college, 2047, 2203, 2458
Naval defence
Contribution of dominions, 1742
"Five trawler policy", 1741-5
Naval policy, 2043-84
Naval volunteers, 2058
Patrol of northern waters, 1750
Pensions, widowed mothers, 1305
Protection of fur seals, 1844
Radiotelegraph service, 1736, 1749
Royal Canadian navy, qu., 366, 1843, 1862
Aurora, cruiser, qu., 827, 1736, 2051
Debate postponed, 1742-5, 1900, 1072
Dreadnoughts, contribution of, 1876
Esquimalt naval station, 1740
Estimates, 2043
Gift of ships to Canada, 1880-7, 2050
Halifax, protection and service at, 1740
Naval reserve force, 1739
Naval volunteer force, 1740
Niobe and Rainbow, 1736
Patricia, 1736, 2051
Patriot, 1736, 2051
Policy adopted, in 1913, 1876
Resolution of 1909, 1873
Ships to be taken out of commission, 1740
Submarines, 1845
Training, 1740
Travelling expenses, qu., 3156
Trawlers, 1740
Units, cost, etc., qu., 965
Warships and torpedo boats, qu., 827
Royal Naval college, Esquimalt, 2044
Closing of, 2047, 2203, 2458
Tidal surveys, 1736
Transfer of services to Minister of Marine and Fisheries, 3611
War claims, adjustment of, 1752
War service badge, 1754

Navigation. See also Marine
Aids to, 1498
Detroit river, 1498
Life-saving equipment, qu., 1284
Rainy river lights, 1499
St. Lawrence river waterway, M. (Mr. Church) 1183
Schools of, 1492

Navy. See Canadian Government Merchant Marine; National Defence; Naval Service; Royal Canadian Navy

Neill, Mr. Alan W. (Comox-Alberni)
Address in reply, 169. Congratulations to preceding speakers; Miss Macphail, 169; comparison of parties; British Columbia and protection, 170; Mr. Crerar, 170-171; Orientals in British Columbia, 171; personal position and platform, 172-3; unemployment; wider markets, 174; railway rates, 175; the tariff; free trade and protection, 176; Chinese eggs, 177; butter and oleomargarine, 177-8; coal mines in Vancouver Island; fuel oil importations, 178; Hon. Mr. Stevens and Mr. Clements; vote in Cumberland district, 179; railways and government ownership, 180; necessaries and luxuries, 182; immigration, 182-3; Asiatics, competition with; soldier settlement, 183; inheritance tax; eight hour day; old age pensions; removal of Dominion Elections Act from statutes, 184
British Columbia
Coastal services, qu., 3152
Fisheries, cost and revenue, 2306
Fisheries, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 860
Post offices, qu., 824
Public buildings, 1258
British Columbia house, London, purchase of, 3537
Budget, 2307. Free trade and protection: a question of geography, 2307; the tariff, a compromise; economic position of British Columbia; support of government during session; expenditures in Vancouver and Victoria; rural constituencies neglected, 2309; political arguments for Conservative members; fruit industry and dumping clause; Oriental aliens; exclusion of, 2310; acquisition of British Columbia timber areas by Japanese; immediate action demanded; the workingman and the Neill, Mr. Alan W. — Con.

Budget — Con.
eight hour day; lumber industry and freight rates, 2311; protection of coal mining industry against fuel oil; importation of coal from Japan; fishing industry; reduction in gasoline practically no benefit to fishermen; dairy industry; fruit industry; dumping clause; industries of Comox-Alberni, 2313; country districts suffering injustice; views of constituents, 2314
Canadian Freighter, Japanese coal imports, qu., 963
Civil Service reform, 3100
Courtney post office building, 1258
Criminal Code, carriage of calves under three weeks' old, 2831
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1438
Debates, official report, insertion of documents not read, 1540
Debeaux, Mr. Robert, claim of, 2306
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2811
Election day a public holiday, 2812
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women M. (Mr. Euler) 485
Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway Company bill, 1354, 1439, 1602-6
Amdt. 1156, neg., 1163
Fisheries Act, 1914, Amdt. bill, 3012
Fuel oil, British Columbia, qu., 728, 2312
Gasoline for fishing boats, 2313, 3116
House of Commons, accoustics, 3544
Immigration
Methods, 3057
South-eastern Europe, from, 3057
Immigration Act Amdt. bill (Intending immigrants to make application) 2207
Indians, medical attention, 1219
International Labour Conference, qu., 824
Japanese in British Columbia, 2310. See also under this title, Oriental Aliens
Nova Scotia miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 521
Oleomargarine, Manufacture and importation, M., 1777, 1836
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. bill, 3016
Oriental Aliens
Japanese, acquisition of timber areas in British Columbia, 3210
M. (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion of, 1539
Paper mills, 3113
Pensions Com., final report, 3332
Point of order
Rule 18, tedious repetition, 1360
Rule 19, offensive words, 1361

Neill, Mr. Alan W. — Con.
Quebec Harbour Commission bill, fair wage clause, 1469
Soldier Settlement Act Amdt., 3407
Special War Revenue Act
Sales tax, 3269
Stumping powder, 3268
Statistics, co-ordination of, 581

Neill, Mr. C. E., 1128

Nelson post office revenue, qu., 2040

Neutrals and Non-Combatants. See Limitation of Armaments

New Brunswick
Floods, 3492
Harbours and rivers, 1991
Amdt. (Mr. Guthrie) to reduce vote, 1998
Immigration and, 2165
Public buildings, 1239
St. John and Quebec railway, 1293, qu., 1774
Salmon rivers, fishways, 2167
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment staff, 1344
Wharves
Provincial, 1991
Tidal waters in, qu., 2209
Transfer of, qu., 2305

New London, Conn., seaport, 2611

New York Central Railway, 128

New Zealand
Butter. See Oleomargarine
Government ownership of railways, 181

Newfoundland
Canada-Newfoundland steamship service, 2027
Navigation, aids to, 1498
Reid-Newfoundland railway, 2027
Trade between Prince Edward Island and, 226

Newfoundland-Labrador Boundary
Reference to Privy Council, 1276
Doherty, Hon. C. J. reported engagement of, 2572
White, Mr. James, technical adviser, 3495

Newmarket, speech of Prime Minister at, 34-35

Newspapers
Censors, 1069
English, comment on Grand Trunk arbitration, 374, 821
Extracts. See Speaker, Rulings

Niagara Power Development, 134. See also Electrification; St. Lawrence river waterway

Nickel. See also Coinage

Nickel Coin Blanks, qu., 3152

Nickel Currency. See Currency Act Amdt.

Niobe and Rainbow, 1736. See also Naval Service

Non-Taxable Bonds. See Bonds; Finance

Norman Dam. See Lake of the Woods

Normand, Hon. Dr., references to. See Military Service Act Amdt.

Norris, Hon. T. C., Premier of Manitoba
Natural resources, 1017
And freight rates, reported statement on, 1213

North Sydney quarantine station, 1238, 2021

Northern Islands and Waters
Patrol. See Naval Service
Policy respecting, 1750

Northwest Rebellion
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, pensions. See Pensions
Smith, Mr. Leo, pension to, 3523

Notices of Cancellation. See Dominion Lands

Nova Scotia
Admiralty, local judge in, 1275
Air station at Dartmouth, 1724
Coal industry, protection of, 2412
Coal strike, 461. See also Nova Scotia Miners
Harbours and rivers, estimates, 1269, 1765
International deep sea racing. See that title
Liberal party in, 2606
Migratory birds, resolution of legislature, 1684
Pensioners in, qu., 615
Public buildings, 1238
Shipbuilding, 1387
Supreme Court, vacancy, 3436
Unemployment, 1075-6

Nova Scotia Miners, qu., 605, 1054. See also Labour
Inquiry, 597
McLachlan correspondence, qu., 704
M. (Mr. Irvine) 497, 539, 545

Noxious Gases and Chemicals, use of. See Limitation of Armaments

Observatory. See Dominion Observatory

Occupational Diseases. See Labour

Ocean
Ports, 1464-86
Tonnage, 2008
Vessels
Quebec, 1471
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1183-95, 1205

Ocean and River Service. See Marine

O'Connor, Mr. James, Snowflake, Man., dismissal, 1674

O'Connor, Mr. W. F., K.C.
Payments to, qu., 2037
Revision of statutes, 1718

Official Report of Debates. See House of Commons

O'Hara, Captain, 1490

Oil. See also Natural Resources
Duty on oil drilling machinery, 2726
Fuel Oil, 344, qu., 728
Competition with coal mining industry, 2312
Importations, 178
Tank at Louise basin, 1484
Tariff against, 1761
Leases, speculation in, 1046
Mackenzie and Peace river, cost of surveys, 1044

Okanagan Valley, fruit growing, 163. See also Budget; Customs, Dumping clause; Fruit

Old Age Pensions, 184, 1070, qu., 1375. See also Pensions
And mothers' pensions, qu., 1375
M. (Mr. Fontaine) 1303-5

Oleomargarine, 2205. See also Agriculture; Butter; Dairying
British Columbia Dairymen's Association, res., 1794
Children fed on, 178
Competition with butter, 177
Further legislation, inquiry, 3041
Great War Veterans' Association, 1798
Importation and Manufacture, qu., 613, qu., 1506
Discontinuance of, M. (Mr. Neill) 1720, 1776, neg., 1840

Oleomargarine — Con.
Local Council of Women, Hamilton, 1835
Materials, importation of, qu., 704, qu., 727, 3270
National Dairy Council, and, 1791
Regulations under Act, qu., 1702
Retail Merchants' Association and, 1797

Oleomargarine Act, 1919, Amdt. bill (Extension for one year)
Res., 3358, 3425; 1r., 3435; 2r., 3487; com., 3489; 3r., 3489

Oliver, Hon. John, Premier of British Columbia, criticism of by Vancouver Sun, 2236, 2237

One-Fourth Vote. See Interim Supply

Onion Grades, 2744. See also Root Vegetables

Ontario
Alienation of natural resources, qu., 2992
Canals, 2779. See also that title
Flags on public schools, 1265
Harbours and rivers, 1999
Historic battle sites, 119-120
Hydro Electric Power Commission. See that title
Public buildings, 1245
Appropriations not required, 1259
Improvements, repairs, etc., 1258
Rural population, loss of, 301. See also Budget; Population
Taxation of, 131
Water powers. See Lake of the Woods

Ontario Athletic Commission, cadet camps, 1973

Ontario Temperance Act. See Canada Temperance Act

Opium and Narcotic Drugs. See also Health
Chinese, 2018
Cocaine, 2019
Correspondence with wholesale druggists, 1377
Enforcement of Act
Prosecutions, 2017
Japanese, 2017
International Opium Convention, qu., 1066
Morphine, 2019
Oriental traffic in, 1529, 2017. See also Oriental Aliens
Production and export of, 2019
Prohibition and, 2017
Smuggling, 2020

Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. bill
Res., 1841, 2823; 1r., 2826; 2r., com., 3013; 3r., 3025; Senate amdts., 3607

Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. — Con..
Sections and subjects discussed:
Appeal, restriction of right, 3020
Dealing in drugs, 3013
Deportation, 3013, 3024
Penalties, 3013, 3014, 3020
Whipping, 3015

Opposition. See also Progressive Party
Attitude of, 60-61. See also Speeches on Budget
Position of. See Interim Supply
Representation in Parliament, 40
Status of leader of, 73

Orchards, protection of. See Entomology; Fruit Industry

Orders in Council, qu., 935
Canadian National railways, management, 192
Government by, 38, 141, 660, 662, 2518, 2536, 2562, 2880
Intercolonial railway operation, 107
Number passed, qu., 934, qu., 935

Ordnance Lands, local improvements fronting, 1681

Orient, trade with, 85. See also Trade

Oriental Aliens, 967
Australian legislation, 1536
Birth rate, 317
British Columbia in, 167, 171, 316, 332, 855
Resolution of legislature, 1513
Restrictive legislation, 1510
Canadians, disabilities in Japan, 1511, 2208
Chinese, 1510, 2026 3437
Arrival of at Vancouver, 3604
Opium and Narcotic drugs, 2020
Coal mined by, 2407
Coolie labour on British ships, 2042
Demands for exclusion of, 1513
Education, cost of, 317
Fisheries, engaged in, 345, 855
Franchise and, 483, 485
Fruit growing and, 1535. See also Fruit Industry
Gentlemen's agreement, 1511
Immigration, 319, 2161. See also that title
Chinese. See also under this title, Chinese Restriction of, M. (Mr. Stevens) 1776
Inquiry for opportunity to discuss, 967, 1461, 3104
Japanese
Restriction of, M. (Mr. Stevens) 1776

Oriental Aliens — Con.
Rights of Canadians in Japan, 1511, 2208
Minister's statement, 2143
Money qualification, 2148
Written application by intending immigrants, 2207
Japan, treaty with, 1511
Japanese, qu., 1399, qu., 1459, 1510
Acquisition of timber limits in British Columbia, 2310
Competition in British Columbia, 2279
Lemieux agreement, 1459
Opium and Narcotic drugs, 2017. See also that title
Labour, competition with, 317
Land occupation by, 1534
Number in Canada, 1512
Motion (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion of, 1509
Amdt. (Mr. Stewart, Argenteuil) for "effective restriction", 1567; agreed to, 1577
Canada's right to legislate, 1550
"Effective restriction", 1567
Opium and Narcotic drug traffic, 1529, 2017

Osler, Sir Edmund, 1128

Ottawa
Cartier square Militia dept., shed, qu., 2038
Daly building, purchase of, 1252
Daylight saving, 1282
Dominion observatory and geodetic survey building, 1265
Local improvements fronting ordnance lands, 1681
New departmental buildings, 3541
Noon gun, 1756
Ottawa Gas Company bill. See Private Bills Discussed
Ottawa-Kingston highway, qu., 1904
Parliament buildings, 2014. See also that title
Proposed donation of Rideau canal to, 2764
Public buildings, 1245, 1252, 1265, 1755
Char service, 1756
Elevator attendants, 1266
Lighting, including roads and bridges, 1267
Rental of buildings in, 1252, 1764
Rideau hall, maintenance, 1756
Telephone service, 1757
Water, 1266

Ouimet, Mr. Joseph Rodolphe (Vaudreuil-Soulanges)
Introduction of, 323

Outside Service. See Civil Service

Overages. See Grain and Grain Trade; Elevators

Pacific and Great Eastern Railway, 342

Pacific Naval Powers. See Limitation of Armaments

Pairs. See House of Commons, Divisions

Palais Station, Quebec, 1068

Palestine, mandate over, 1716

Panama Canal, 191, 1326-9. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway

Panet, Mr. L. C., appointment as Deputy Sergeant-at-Arms, 5

Paper Control Inquiry, 1673

Paper for magazines, taxation, 3108

Parc St. Charles, 1469, 3197. See also Quebec Harbour Commission

Parent, Mr. George (Quebec West)
Appraisers, Paris and London, 1068
Civil Service examinations, 871
Insurance premiums, 3253
Labour dept., organized and unorganized labour, qu., 2303
Military Service Act Amdt. bill, 641
Naturalization expenses, 1671
Quebec bridge, 1068
Quebec riots, qu., 1508
Royal Canadian Artillery, qu., 370

Parents, support of by children, 1310. See also Pensions; Widowed Mothers

Paris Agency, 2025

Parks. See Dominion Lands and Parks

Parliament
Fall session, 3608
Opening of, 1
Prorogation of, 3616
Representation of provinces in 1877, qu., 1183

Parliament Buildings
Architects' fees, 2014
Cost to date, 2014
Estimates, 2014
Furniture, purchase of, 1757
House of Commons Chamber, accoustics, 1751, 1755, 1996, 3613. See also that title
Lighting, 1755
Tower, 2016

Parliament Hill monuments, qu., 936

Parliamentary Counsel, 2572

Parliamentary Guide, 2024

Parliamentary Procedure. See Deputy Speaker; House of Commons; Speaker

Parliamentary Restaurant
Com. appointed, 326
Loss in, 184

Parry Sound
Lighthouse inspector, qu., 827
Postal receipts, qu., 938

Parsons, Mr. W. Reuben, qu., 3362

Party Representation, 214

Party System of Government, 2339. See also Address; Budget

Party System of Politics, 117-118, 214, 215. See also Address; Budget

Passenger Rates. See Railway Act Amdt. bills

Passport Office, 2066

Patent Record, 2026

Paternalism. See Pensions Committee

Patricia, warship, qu., 827. See also Naval Service

Patriot, warship, qu., 827. See also Naval Service

Patriotic Fund. See Canadian Patriotic Fund

Patronage, 2608. See also Budget; Civil Service; Speeches on Address
Appointments to penitentiary, 1277
Census enumerators, appointment of, 1368, 1372
Civil service, 1663
Civil Service Commission, 2559, 2563
Intercolonial railway and, 106
Quebec Harbour Commission, 1477

Peace River block, 330

Peace Treaties. See Limitation of Armaments; Treaties

Pears, Vice Admiral Sir Edmund, 2061

Pearson, Mr. John A., Architect. See Parliament Buildings

Pearson Institute, Toronto, 3457

Pease, Mr. E. L., 1128

Peat. See also Fuel; Natural Resources
Committee, 1505
Deposits, experiments and production, qu., 1505
Investigational work, 1235

Pecuniary Claims Convention with United States, 1276

Pelagic Sealing Treaty, 1844

Penitentiaries. See also Justice; Prisons
Appointments, 1277
Death of inmates, qu., 3362
Dorchester, prison reform, 1278
Estimates, 1276
Supplementary, 1670
Infectious diseases. See Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill
Inmates
Foreign and native, 1279
Increase in number, 1277, 1279, 1670
Inspection by grand juries, 1743. See also Prison Reform
Kingston, overcrowding, qu., 3362
Patronage, appointments, 1277
Population, increased, 1277, 1279, 1670
Prison reform. See that title
St. Vincent de Paul, employees and number of convicts, qu., 2804

Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill, (Infectious diseases) 1r., 545; 2r., 787; com., 787; 3r., 967

Penny Bank Act Amdt. bill
Res., 1132, 3043; 1r., 3043; 2r., com., 3r., 3148

Penny Banks, depositaries for money received, 1132

Pension Act Amdt. bill
Res. 3358, 3402; 1r., 3405; 2r., com., 3439; com., 3459; 3r., 3463; Senate amdts., 3612
Sections and subjects discussed:
Application for pension, 3445
Blinded men, 3456
Bonus payments continued, 3451
Deserted mothers, 3439
Disability at or prior to discharge, 3452
Disability attributable to, incurred or aggravated during military service, 3453
Pension to widow, 3447
Power to cancel pension of prostitute, 3451

Pension Act Amdt. — Con.
Sections and subjects discussed — Con.
Residents in Canada, 3446
Time within which application must be made, 3445
Total and helpless disability, 3446
Widowed mother, 3439

Pension Commissioners, Board of
Amalgamation with Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment dept., 1339-40
Charges by G.W.V.A. against, 2994, 3041. See also Speeches on Address
Memorandum of Chairman in reply, 2994
Royal Commission to investigate, 3156, 3304, 3312, 3327, 3336, 3345, 3352, 3355-6
Expenditure, 1349
Imperial pensions, 1347-51
Medical examinations, 1343
Salaries and contingent expenses, 1339, 1349
Secondary boards, 1350
Staff, 1351

Pensions. See also National Defence bill; Railways
Civil, 1711
Commutation of, 390, 1281, 1349
Crimean war, 3315
Disabilities, 390
European war and active militia, 1349, 1353, 1361
Fabre, Madame, 2024
Fenian raid, 3315
Grand Trunk railway employees, 2041. See also that title under Canadian National Railways
Imperial Forces, M. (Mr. Ladner) 864, 1347-51
Increased, 184
Investigation. See under this title, Roya Commission
Lightkeepers, 1496
Maternity benefits, 1070
Mothers, qu., 1375
Deceased soldiers, of, M. (Mr. Power) 1313
Northwest rebellion, 3523
Nova Scotia, payment in, qu., 615
Old age, 184, 1070, qu., 1375
M. (Mr. Fontaine) 1303, agreed to, 1305
Returned soldiers, 320, 327. See also Returned Soldiers
Royal Commission on, suggested, 386. See also Pensions Board
Sickness, 1070
South African war, 3315
Total expenditure on, 1349

Pensions — Con.
Widowed mothers, 1312, 3324
M. (Mr. Power) 1305, 1313
Widows, 1070
Wrenick, Mrs., 3457

Pensions, Insurance and Re-establishment of Returned Soldiers
Special Committee appointed, 496-7
Change in names, 596
First report, 726
Final report, 3286
M. (Mr. Marler) for adoption, 3286
Amdt. (Mr. Shaw) to refer back, 3308; Withdrawn, 3349
Recommendations, expenditure under, 3522

Pilotage
Administration of, 1499
Dues, exemption from, 1500. See also Canada Shipping Act Amdt. bill
Fees to pilots and regulation of, 1499

Pleuro-Pneumonia. See Cattle Embargo; Health of Animals

Ploughs, duty on. See Agricultural Implements

Pocket-Knives, Competition, 2646, 2876. See Budget; Currency, depreciated; Customs Act; Germany

Police Commissioners, bribing of. See Criminal Code

Political Alliances, "Morganatic", 2095. See also Nationalists; Progressive Party

Political Contributions, by Monopolies, 2295. See also Election of 1921

Political Patronage. See Patronage

Polls. See Dominion Elections Act Amdt.

Pollution of Streams, 2168

Pool Selling. See Criminal Code Amdt. bill

Population. See also Budget; Census; Immigration
By ages, qu., 1632
Drift towards the cities, 2153, 2302
Increase under Liberal and Conservative govts., 2362, 2365
Loss of, 2439-40, 2449
Rural. See under this title, Rural
Ten years, in, 2516
Need of increased, 2148-58, 2275

Population — Con.
Oriental in Canada, 1512. See also Oriental Aliens
Rural, 2564-5
Decline in, 2153, 2156, 2158, 2384, 2439-40, 2449, 2683
Loss in Ontario, 2369, 2683
Movement to cities and towns, 2153, 2302, 2403
Urban, and, qu., 376
Infant mortality and, 2634
Slow growth of, 2158
Yukon territory, 1681

Pork Imports, qu., 611

Port Arthur
Canadian Towing and Wrecking Co. claim, 1677

Port Dalhousie, 1493

Port Hood breakwater, 1768

Port Nelson, dredging, 2006

Portage La Prairie
Assiniboine river floods, 1842, 2004
Exhibition grant, qu., 1931
Post office revenue, qu., 2040

Porter, Mr. E. G. (East Hastings)
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3457
Trenton harbour bill, 3494
Wrenick, Mrs., pension, 3457

Portland Terminus, 2611
Competition with Canadian ports, 104, 2611. See also Grand Trunk Railway; British Preference, M. (Mr. Logan)

Ports, United States in preference to Canadian, 353-4

Postal Conference, 7, 15

Postmasters. See Civil Service; Post Office

Post Office
Department
Appointments, 3073
Belley, Mr. Alfred, salary, 3504
Classification, 3089
Employees receiving salary of $600, qu., 1067
Estimates, 1711
Gaboury, Mr. L. J., salary and duties, qu., 3599
General superintendent of postal service, 1711
Married women employees, qu., 1658

Post Office — Con.
Department — Con.
Money Order branch, qu., 1285
Outside service, estimates, 2799
Postal employees, 3075
Printing and stationery, 1741
Salaries and contingencies, 69, 3504
Drop letter rate, 1250
Letter rate, Canada-Great Britain, qu., 3364
Mail, carriage of, qu., 825
Mail contracts
Canadian National railways, qu., 2038
Canadian Pacific railway, and, qu., 2040, qu., 2213
Gascons-Quebec, qu., 2213
Grand Anse, qu., 938
Lachenaie, qu., 2805
Richmond and Wolfe, qu., 1505
Rigaud-St. Rédempteur, 1776
Sudbury, qu., 1285
Money orders tax, 2857
Montreal
Employees, 1288
Gaboury, Mr. L. J., salary, qu., 3599
Post offices and business done, qu., 1065
Postal receipts, qu., 938
Postmasters
L'Assomption-Montcalm, 1775
Sturgeon falls, qu., 1285
Post offices in British Columbia, qu., 824
Railway mail service, 2797
Reorganization, 2799
Revenue, qu., 2040
Richmond and Wolfe post offices, qu., 1507
Ruling respecting newspaper or magazine subscription, qu., 3599
Rural mail routes, qu., 3152
Savings banks, reduction in interest rate, qu., 1932
Sherbrooke inspectorate, qu., 1507
Subsidized steamships and carriage of mails, 2028
Toronto, revenue, qu., 368, 1250

Potatoes
Conference of growers, 3367
Cost of growing, 2665
Duty on, 239, 2601
Grading machines, 3126
Market for, 225
Marking and grading. See Root Vegetables
Prices of, 94
Shipment to Cuba, 2028
Shipping cost. See St. John Terminal Facilities
Trade with United States, 336. See also Budget

Potlatch Institution. See Indians

Poultry Industry, 226, 807

Power, Mr. C. G. (Quebec South)
Admiralty Court, vacancy at Quebec, 1275
Cash grants to soldiers, 394
Fishing schooner race, 3510
MacInnes, Mr. Hector, K.C. (Halifax) payments to, 2772
Militia
Annual drill, amdt. to reduce vote by $1,100,000, 1173, 1174, neg., 1631
Engineer services and works, 1980
Expenditure and policy, annual training, 1611
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3402, 3443
Pensions
Mothers of deceased soldiers, M., 1313
Widowed mothers, M., 1305, 1312
Point of order — not permissible to read evidence to controvert member, 3540
References to, 1339
Returned Soldiers' Insurance bill, 3396
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, salary increases, 398

Power Development. See Electrification; Hydro Electric; St. Lawrence River Waterway

Prairie Provinces
"Annexation of", 1020
Forestry in, 1046
Natural resources. See Western Provinces

Pratt vs. Delphine, 302

Preference, trade. See British Preference; Trade; United States

Premiums, Insurance tax on. See Special War Revenue

Prescriptions, refilled. See Opium and Narcotics

Preservation of Industries Act, 2648

President Harding, St. Lawrence river waterway, 1326

Press. See also Canadian Press; Newspapers
Censors, 1068

Preston, Mr. W. T. R., rent of house in London, 3503

Prevost, Mr. Jules E. (Terrebonne)
Bertrand, Mr. T., qu., 937
Budget, 2577. Tribute to Finance Minister, his difficulties and responsibilities; the Prevost, Mr. Jules E. — Con.

Budget — Con.
tariff, 2577; proposals in harmony with Liberal policy; new taxes; inheritance of debts from former governments; effort to lower cost of living; economy, 2578; national debt; militia or naval expenditure; expansion of external trade; decrease in exports; restoration of normal conditions, 2579; Canadian market insufficient for natural products and manufactured goods; trade with Great Britain and the United States; Fordney tariff; transportation; interior systems of communication, 2580; direct intercourse with foreign countries; duty of the department of Trade and Commerce; consuls and trade agents; information; trade commissioners; qualifications, 2581, fairs and exhibitions; serious problems; the future; new political groups; development of Canadian national spirit, 2582
Civil Service Commission report, qu., 826
Dominion Elections Act, residential qualification, 1298
Imports and exports, 1911-1922, qu., 1661
Militia and Defence
Annual drill
Expenditure 1911-21, qu., 1287
Armouries in Quebec, qu., 1287
Expenditure 1911-22, qu., 1287
Stationery, purchase of by Government, 1288

Pribyloff Islands, protection of fur seals, 1844

Prices. See also Budget; Cost of Living; Finance; Trade
Price-fixing combinations, 2428, 2437
Regulations of, 2504

Prime Minister's Bereavement, reference to death of brother. See King

Prime Ministers' Conference, 42. See also Naval Service
Anglo-Japanese Treaty, 168
Correspondence, 1068
Empire naval defence, 1629, 1883, 2082
Canada's contribution, 1742
Resolution respecting, 1742
Opportunity for discussion of, 2042
Report, 5
Tabled, 8
Royal Canadian Navy. See Naval Service

Prince County, illegal fishing, qu., 371

Prince Edward Island
Harbours and rivers, 1270, 1988
Migratory birds, resolution of legislature, 1684
Natural resources, 339
Potato-growing, 225, 337
Public lands, 229
Railway, 229, 337, 1249. See also Canadian National Railways

Prince of Wales Leinster regiment, qu., 1065

Prince Rupert
Alien property, custodians of, 3601
Post office building, 1257
Post office revenue, qu., 2040
Prince Rupert Dry Dock & Engineering Co., 3514
Rental of buildings, 1257
Vessels constructed at, qu., 606

Princess Mary, marriage of, 39

Printers, immigration of, 3055

Printing. See also Printing Bureau; Publications
Canadian National menus, qu., 1931
Customs and excise, 1674
Joint Committee on, 211, 326, 1132
Public archives, 1673

Printing Bureau
Government printing, 1373
Government publications, distribution of, 1971
Legislation, 1972
Plant
New, 1970
Repairs and renewals, 1970
Statutes, 1972
Supreme Court reports, 1274

Printing and Stationery
Criminal Code, 1717
Interior, 1680
Post Office department, 1711
Statutes, 1717

Prison Reform, 1277-8; qu., 1773, 2397
Atlanta penitentiary, 1278
Dorchester penitentiary, 1278
Inspection by grand juries, qu., 1773, 2397
Jail farms, 1277-9; qu., 1773
Youthful offenders, qu., 1773

Prisoners, Contagious diseases of. See Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill

Pritchard, Mr. John (North Wellington)
Address in reply, 250. Congratulations, etc., parliamentary groups and class representation, 250; manufacturers and the tariff, 251; agricultural conditions, 252
Experimental farms, 806, 810

Private Bills, Committee, 374
Bouchard, Mr., substitution for Mr. Stein, 2035
Vien, Mr. substitution for Mr. Ouimet, 2355

Private Bills Discussed
Canadian Pacific Railway Company
Amdt. (Mr. Carmichael) 1606, 1856
Canadian Transit Company, 1746, 1770
Dominion Chain Company, Limited, 3490, 3495
Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway Co., 1353, 1439
Amdts. (Mr. Neill) 1156, neg. 1163; 1354, neg. 1357; 1602, neg. 1606
Fraser Valley and Southern Railway Company, 1577
Montreal, Joliette and Transcontinental Railway Company, 1577
Niagara River Bridge Company, 1486
Ottawa Gas Company, refund of fees, 1657

Private Bills Undiscussed. See Journals of the House

Private Secretaries. See Privy Council

Privilege, questions of. See House of Commons

Privy Council
Appeals, 139
Salaries and contingencies, 410

Proclamation. See Canada Temperance Act

Progressive Party, 295. See also Address; Budget; Canadian Council of Agriculture; Crerar; United Grain Growers; Wheat Board
Alleged split, denial, 2458
Alliances of, 2095-7
Attitude towards Government, 2233, 2507, 2842
Big interests and, 2393-4
Budget debate and, 2692
Canadian Pacific, and, 130
Class legislation and, 224. See also Address; Budget
Liberal negotiations with, 34, 48, 51, 240-1
Oleomargarine, attitude on, 2380. See also that title

Progressive Party — Con.
Ontario in, 2301, 2893-4
Origin of, 2512
Platform, revision, 2552
Redistribution, attitude towards, 1364-70

Prohibition. See also Canada Temperance Act; Liquor
Opium and Narcotic drugs, 2017

Property, alien enemy. See Aliens

Proportional Representation, 59. See also Dominion Elections
M. (Mr. Good) for adoption of alternative vote method, 1633
Residential qualification, 1301

Prorogation of Parliament, 3616

Proscription. See Criminal Code (Scrip frauds)

Protection, 143, 228. See also Address; Budget
Boots and shoes, 102
Manufacturers and, 2435-40. See also Budget
Policy of, 1088
Tariff and, 170, 2110. See also Tariff

Protocols. See League of Nations

Provinces. See also Natural Resources. For individual provinces, See their titles
Air Force and civil aviation, 1722
Unemployment relief, 1069
Western. See that title

Provincial Rights, infringement. See Lake of the Woods bill

Ptomaine Poisoning. See Meat and Canned Foods

Public Accounts. See also Consolidated Revenue and Audit Act
Committe, report, 1460, 3359
Date of closing, 1264-66
Non-productive assets, 1467

Public Archives
Estimates, 702, 1673, 2025
Monckton papers, purchase of, 1673

Public Buildings, 1755. See also their respective titles; Public Works; Supply
Alberta, 3545
Appropriations and expenditures for 1921-22, 1259-60
Chambers, Mr., 1244
Char service. See Ottawa

Public Buildings — Con.
Coal, importation of, 1759
Estimates, 1238, 1258, 1755
Expenditure, accounts not closed, 1262-66
Fittings, supplies and furniture, 1757
Flags, qu., 599, 1264
Generally, 1260-5
Heating, 1755-1758
Immigration, repairs, 1757
Maritime provinces generally, 1243
New, 1255, 2461
New Brunswick, 1239
New departmental designs, 3541
Nova Scotia, 1238
Ontario, 1245-59, 1258, 3544
Alleged neglect of, 1248
Ottawa, 1245-52, 1265, 1755. See also that title
Parliament buildings. See that title
Penitentiaries, 1277
Quebec, 1245
Rental and purchase of, 1764
Calgary, 1254
Ottawa, 1252
Prince Rupert, 1257
Waterbury, Mr., retirement of, 1244

Public Debt, 2106, 2225, 2370, 2496, 2501, 2895. See also Address; Budget; Finance; Loans
Taxation and, 2459

Public Expenditure, 1249, 2276, 2860
Capital expenditure on harbours and rivers, 1472
Comparison by departments, 1137
Debt, and, 2557
Dominion and provincial overlapping, 2461
Economy in, 1475. See also Address; Budget
In 1877 and 1922, qu., 1211
Income and, 2104
Reduction of. See Address; Budget; Militia and Defence; Naval Service

Public Harbours. See Harbours

Public Health. See Health

Public Lands. See Dominion Lands and Parks; Natural Resources

Public Ownership. See Address; Budget; Canadian National Railways; Railways; St. Lawrence River Waterway

Public Service Retirement Act Amdt. bill (Extension for one year)
Res. 1661, 3025; 1r., 2r., com., 3025; com., 3148; 3r., 3149

Public Services, nationalization of, 2324, 2328. See also Address; Budget; Canadian National Railways

Public Works. See also Public Buildings; Supply
Bridges. See that title
Dauphinee, Mr. Charles, dismissal of, ques., 1902, 2458, 2584
Department
Carty, Captain, 1062
Chief Architects' Branch, qu., 963
Estimates, 1238, 1755, 1988, 3531
Estimates branch, 1270
Expenditures, 1249
Minister, selection of from British Columbia Government, 2238
Salaries, etc., 692, 747
M. (Mr. Boys) reduce item, 695, 699
Harbours and rivers. See that title
Miscellaneous, 2008
New public buildings, 1256
Quarantine stations, 1238-45
Public buildings. See that title
Roads and bridges, 2007
Burlington, 2007
Edmonton, 2007
Telegraphs and telephones, 2007, 2012
Unemployment relief, 1082
Yukon territory, expenditure in, 1275

Publications, Government. See also Editorial Committee
Co-ordination and economy, 1374
Demand and distribution, 1344, 1971
Geological survey, 1237
Mines, 1234-6
Printing and translation, 1373. See also Printing Bureau
Printing, unnecessary, 1374

Publicity Agent. See Labour

Pulp and Paper Industry, 2322. See also Natural Resources; Paper Control
British Columbia in, 175
Export duty on pulpwood, 2667

Purchasing Commission, 2674
Coal, for public buildings, 1758
Estimates, 2025
Goods purchased, origin of, 2042
Suggested abolition of, 2674
Warlike stores, sale of, 1173

Purchasing Power of Money, 1151-3, 1175, 1177, 1292, 2331, 2603. See also Address; Budget; Civil Service; Cost of Living; Money

Putman, Mr., C. V., qu., 935

Putnam, Mr. Harold (Colchester)
Address in reply, 309. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker, 309; Progressives and the party spirit, 310; leader of the Opposition; immigration; tariff; railway problems, 311; Intercolonial railway, 312; elections and campaign literature, 315

Budget, 2282. Election issues and results; congratulations to Finance Minister; tariff reductions; no time for drastic changes; Liberal platform of 1919, 2283; interprovincial trade; geographical, physical and climatic difficulties, 2284; reciprocity with the United States, 2285; tariff reductions, 2286; trade with Germany; sales tax; the amendment, 2287; political pledges and promises, 2288; Liberal platform of 1919; record of the Opposition party, 2288; Union government; public honour; War Time Elections Act; tariff commission; intercolonial railway; promise of Mr. McCurdy to restore headquarters to Moncton, 2289; the Progressives, 2290
Canadian National railways, ties, qu., 934
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3478
Civil Service, returned soldiers, 3088
Condensed milk, tax on, 3265
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. bill, 3425-34
Rural postmasters, 3080

Quadruple Pacific Treaty, 3160

Qualification of Voters. See Dominion Elections Act

Quarantine. See also Health; Immigration
Detention at Partridge Island, 2021
Estimates, 2021
Immigrant refusing vaccination, 2022
Stations
Grosse Isle, repairs, 1245
Halifax, repairs, 1238
North Sydney, repairs, 1238
St. John, repairs, 1239-40
William's Head, improvements, 1255

Quebec (City)
Admiralty, local judge in, 1275
Arsenal, 1979, 2085, 2091
Customs dues, 1978
Canadian National railway terminals, 1475
Champlain market station, 1475, 2399
Newspapers, political policies of, 1480

Quebec (City) — Con.
Palais station, 1068
Plains of Abraham, 1467
Riots, 676, 3089
Compensation for damage, qu., 1508

Quebec (Port). See also Quebec Harbour Commission bill
Appropriations for, 1486
Borden, Right Hon. Sir Robert and, 1474
Elevators, 1471, 1483
Grain shipments through, 1466, 1471
Harbour Commission, 1283, 1464. See also Quebec Harbour Commission bill
Ocean tonnage, 2008
Parc St. Charles Co. Ltd., proposed payment to, 1469
Political patronage, 1478
Revenue and expenditure, 1471

Quebec (Province)
Attitude of towards Opposition, 168-9, 187, 206-7, 290. See also Budget; Speeches on Address
Attitude towards West, 2912
Board of Pensions Commissioners, representation, 1350
Canals, 2779. See also that title
Census figures, 1366
Chaudière valley floods, 3492
Conscription and. See Military Service Act Amdt. bill
Election issues and results, 245
Fisheries, 142
Transfer to province, M. (Mr. Marcil) 377, 493, 616, 623
Order in council tabled, 8
Request for order in council, 5
Harbours and rivers, 1998
Harmony with, 14, 270, 291, 362, 2421
Public buildings, improvements, 1245
Public expenditure in, 1468
Public ownership and, 71. See Address; Budget
Superintendent of lighthouses, qu., 2584
Unfair treatment, alleged, 2398

Quebec and Western Railway. See Canadian National Railways; Gaspé Railways

Quebec Battlefields Commission, 119

Quebec Chronicle, 1477

Quebec Harbour Commission
Gravel, Mr. 1477
Inquiry for return, 1283
Tremblay, General, 1477
Watson, Major-General Sir David, 1477

Quebec Harbour Commission bill (Further advances)
Res. 1464; reported, 1486; 1r., 1486; 2r., com., 3195; 3r., 3198

Quebec, Oriental and Atlantic Railway. See Canadian National Railways; Gaspé

Questions. See their several titles. For rulings, See Deputy Speaker; House of Commons; Speaker

Questions Passed as Orders for Returns
Accounts branch, Dept., of Militia and Defence (Mr. Vien) 2994
Animal diseases, compensation for, (Mr. Sutherland) 940
Armouries (Mr Baldwin) 1288
Army Service Corps (Mr. Lanctôt) 1905
Auditing, payments for, (Mr. Vien) 2993
Bankruptcy Act, Montreal district trustees (Mr. Archambault) 1183
Binder twine and rope (Mr. Gordon) 1905
Blackfoot reserve, greater production (Mr. Garland, Bow River) 1288
British Columbia fisheries (Mr. Neill) 2306
Calgary, Government office buildings, (Mr. Shaw) 939
Canadian National railways, coal purchase (Mr. Macdonald, Pictou) 2306
Canadian Northern, payments from, 1914 (Mr. Kennedy, Glengarry), 615
Chief Architect's branch employees, (Mr. Fournier) 1067
Civil Service
Appeals against classification (Mr. Lanctôt) 1508
Bonus and statutory increases (Mr. Lanctôt) 939
Number and salaries paid, 1912 and 1922 (Mr. Séguin) 1832
Officials receiving more than deputy ministers (Mr. Chisholm) 1508
Permanent employees, 1920-1922, (Mr. Demers) 706
Coal importations
Canadian National by, (Mr. Macdonald, Pictou) 2306
Government, by, (Mr. Logan) 939
Doherty, Right Hon. C. J., amounts paid to since 1855, (Mr. Lanctôt) 472
Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific, amounts paid to since 1914, (Mr. Kennedy, Glengarry) 615
Halifax dry dock, (Mr. Stevens) 706
Harbours, improvements and expenditures, (Mr. Church) 828
From 1900 to 1921 (Mr. McBride) 372

Questions passed as Orders for Returns — Con.
Homestead pre-emptions, areas, (Mr. McTaggart) 732
Hotels owned and operated by Canadian National railways (Mr. Coote) 2806
Military districts (Mr. Lancôt) 1775, 2305
Militia and Defence
Buildings occupied (Mr. Lanctôt) 2305
Officers and men at headquarters (Mr. Lanctôt) 1775, 2305
Ministers' trips to Europe (Mr. Lanctôt) 1402
Multigraph machines (Mr. McDonald, Timiskaming) 1508
Montreal
Canadian National railways, employees (Mr. Archambault) 1288
Customs, Income Tax, Post Office, employees (Mr. Archambault) 1288
Drydock (Mr. Stevens) 706
Parry Sound customs collections (Mr. Arthurs) 967
Postmasters
L'Assomption-Montcalm (Mr. Séguin) 1775
Richmond-Wolfe (Mr. Tobin) 1508
Prince Rupert dry dock (Mr. Stevens) 706
Quebec dry dock (Mr. Stevens) 706
Quebec Harbour Commission, advances to Sir Henry Drayton) 615
Railway systems, purchase of bonds (Mr. Baxter) 828
Rental of public buildings (Mr. Lucas) 615
St. John drydock, (Mr. Stevens) 706
School lands, sale of (Mr. Spencer) 1661
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment and Pensions, 615
Stationery, purchase of, (Mr. Prevost) 1288
Trade agents (Mr. Prevost) 1661
Transcontinental railway, amounts paid, (Mr. Kennedy, Glengarry) 165
Vancouver drydock, 706 (Mr. Stevens)
Victoria, drydocks, 706 (Mr. Stevens)
War
Advances to Imperial Government (Mr. Vien) 1288
Material furnished British Govt. (Mr. Vien) 1067

Race and Religious Differences, 14, 270, 291-2, 362, 2421

Race Disqualification. See Dominion Elections Act M. (Mr. Euler)

Racing, Fishing schooners. See International

Radial Railways. See Hydro-Electric

Radiotelegraph Service, 1749

Radium. See Nanaimo and Esquimalt Railway

Rail Contracts. See Railways

Rails, Steel, bounty on, 304-5

Railway Act, 1919, Amdt. bills
1. Return Tickets. (Mr. Jacobs) 1r., 821; 2r., ref. to Railway Com., 1395
2. Special passenger rates (Mr. Church) 1r., 1460; 2r., 1719
3. Transportation Costs. (Crowsnest pass agreement (Mr. Kennedy, Essex.) 1r., 3588; 2r., com., 3595; 3r., 3597

Railway Commissioners, Board of. See also Crowsnest Pass Agreement; Freight Rates; Railways
Applications to, 201-202
Board of Railway Commissioners Act, 1088, 1101
Campbell, Mr. W. E., qu., 937
Carvell, Hon. F. B., alleged statement at Calgary, 2775
Statement of Mr. Motherwell, 2773, 3491
Chairman of, 233. See also under this title, Carvell
Chief Traffc Officer, qu., 1377, qu., 2215, qu., 2457
Coastal boat service, and, 182
Commodity rates, 234
Drayton-Acworth report, 125
Freight rates, 234, 276, 2773. See also Crowsnest Pass Agreement
Intercolonial rates, 193, 312
Norris, Premier, reported statement of, 1213
Official report of proceedings, 2776
Rates. See also Freight Rates
Grain on, 300
Increases, 131
Recommendations to by Drayton-Acworth report, 126
Tenure of office, 2777

Railway Transportation Costs, Special Committee on. See Freight Rates

Railways. See also Canadian National Railways; Speeches on Address; Budget
Advances to, qu., 471
Annual statement by Minister of Railways, 872
Branch lines, 1688
Canada Car Company, 1696

Railways — Con.
Canadian in United States, 312
Canadian National railways. See that title
Canadian Railway Board of Adjustment, No. 1, 1060
Car demurrage, 2981
Car repairs, 1688, 2399
Car shortage, 166
Caraquet and Gulf shore, qu., 1504
Carriage of mails by, qu., 825. See also Mail Contracts
Co-ordination of, 2328. See also Address; Budget
Deficits, 2314, 2890
Drayton-Acworth report, 45-46, 1921
Duplication and waste, 125
Eight-hour day and, 228, 2316-17
Electric and steam locomotives, 630, 1188
Electrification of, 70, 1317, 1323, 1326, 1330, 1940
M. (Mr. Deslauriers) 627. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway
Expenditure on in last 25 years, 111
Exploitation, 2245. See Budget; Speeches on Address
Freight and commodity rates, 131, 175, 233, 234, 261, 273, 357. See also Freight Rates
Coal on, 193
Legislation, qu., 934
Tonnage into Toronto, qu., 936
Government-owned, administration in United States, 67
Harvest excursions, 337
Labour conditions, 2315. See also Labour
Loans and subsidies to, 1921
Mileage in 1877, qu., 1183
Nationalization of, 235. See also Address; Budget
New Zealand, 181
Overbuilding of, 202, 2569
Paralleling of existing lines, 203
Passes in maritime provinces, 315
Passenger rates. See Railway Act Amdt. bills
Increase, 132
Policy, 201, 1905, 1920, 1933
Prince Edward Island, cost of, 229
Problems. See Address; Budget; Freight Rates
Provincial obligations, 229
Public ownership, 2570. See also Budget; Canadian National Railways; Freight Rates; Speeches on Address
Rail and car repair contracts, 1688
Shipping facilities. See St. John terminal facilities

Railways — Con.
Steel rails
Bounty on, 304-5
Purchase of, 1912
South Africa, 2688
United States, purchase in, 2611. See also Canadian National Railways; Grand Trunk
Vote for, saving in, 384
Wages, 2317, 2417. See also Labour
Water transportation competition, 69. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway
Western provinces, indebtedness for, 229

Railways and Canals. See also Canals
Department
Estimates, 1133, 1687, 1905, 1933, 2747, 3035, 3518
Salaries and contingencies, 407, 1133
Governor-General's cars, 1688
Loan to the Canadian Goverment merchant Marine, 3035
Rail and car repair contracts, 1688
Surveys and inspections, 2779
Welland ship canal. See that title under Canals

Rainbow. See Naval Service

Rankin, Mr. J. P. (North Perth)
Canadian Transit Company bill, 1770
Penitentiary Act Amdt. bill, 791

Rates, Special. See Railway Act Amdt. bills

Raymond, Mr. W. G. (Brantford)
Address in reply, 253; congratulations to Mr. Speaker; Liberal party and big interests, 253; Mr. Church and Toronto; Mr. Meighen's reference, 254; election campaign, 255; Mr. Meighen's election manifesto, 255-6; attitude of Brantford manufacturers, 257-258; binder twine industry; liberty of the franchise, 258; War Time Elections Act; manufacturers and taxation, 258; basic and key industries, 259; tariff policy to build up country, 260; transportation rates, 261; national railway system; Liberal party and big interests, 262
Budget, 2373. Tariff; "Liberal protectionist"; congratulations to Finance Minister, 2373; amendment; duties of members; Liberal party and protection; free trade, 2374; agricultural implements; reduction of duty on; Brantford factories closed; binder twine factory, 2375; basic industry argument; manufacturing industries and Raymond, Mr. W. G. — Con.

Budget — Con.
production of wealth, 2377; United States competition, 2378; key industries; Great Britain's mercantile marine; world trade; protection for the skilled labourer; United States tariff; capital, 2379; Progressive party and oleomargarine; Wheat Board, 2380; revenue tariff giving incidental protection; duty on binders, 2381; International Harvester company; principles of the two old parties; history of Liberalism; Toryism and tyrannical power, 2383
Customs duties on agricultural implements, 3230-1
References to, 27, 255, 263, 2384, 2536, 2705

Receipt Tax. See Special War Revenue Act Amdt.

Reciprocal Trade. See Reciprocity

Reciprocity. See also Trade
Australia with, 9, 33, 2900
United States with, 33, 53, 77, 94, 102, 208, 224, 278, 333, 2201, 2234. See also Address; Budget; United States

Red Cross. See Canadian Red Cross; Canadian Patriotic Fund bill

Redistribution, 59, 198, 283, 2330, 2339, 3611. See also Proportional Representation
Announcement of Prime Minister, 3608, 3611
Census, completion of, 1363-71
Former, 1369
Inquiry, 733
M. (Mr. Shaw) opportunity for discussion of, 1719, 1769
Meeting of defeated candidates in Alberta, 2858
Progressive party, attitude towards, 1364-70

Re-establishment. See Pensions; Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment

Reed, Mr. William S. (Frontenac)
Mixed farming, Kingston fair, 992

Refills. See Opium and Narcotics

Regina, Speech of Hon. Mr. Motherwell at, 2555

Regional Bureau, International Catalogue of Scientific Literature, 3528

Reid-Newfoundland Railway, 2027

Relief Work. See Canadian Patriotic Fund; Unemployment

Rental of Buildings. See Public Buildings

Reparations. See Germany; War Claims

Repatriation Expenses, 3503

Representation. See also Census; Proportional Representation; Redistribution .
Unit of, 198

Research. See also Industrial and Scientific Research
Promotion of, 235. See also Natural Resources
Research Council, lignite plant, 1233

Residence Qualification. See Dominion Elections Act Amdt.

Resources. See Natural Resources

Restaurant. See Parliamentary Restaurant

Retail Merchants Association of Canada
Oleomargarine, resolution on. See that title
Oriental immigration, 1513

Retirement Fund. See Civil Service; Public Service Retirement

Returned Soldiers. See also Canadian Patriotic Fund bill; Pensions; Soldiers; Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment; Unemployment
Alleged ill-treatment of children of, 2638
Blind, 3358
M. (Mr. Church) 3404
Pensions, 3310
Cash bonus to. See Soldiers' Bonus
Civil Service salaries, 549
Disabilities, 386 See also Pensions
Government's policy, early announcement of, 2637
Housing, 271. See also that title
Insurance, 3294. See also Returned Soldiers Insurance Act Amdt.
Pension regulations, 327
Repatriation, 3403
Special Committee on. See Pensions
Tubercular, 318. See also Hospitals
Unemployed
Hikers, qu., 3153
Inquiry as to Government's policy, 2458
Unemployment, 3290, 3304, 3307, 3331, 3335, 3339, 3345-7, 3356. See also that title

Returned Soldiers' Insurance Act Amdt. bill
Res. 3358, 3388; 1r., 2r., com., 3402; com., 3437; 3r., 3439

Returning Officers. See Baxter; Caldwell

Returns. See House of Commons

Revenue, 2171-2. See Address; Budget; Consolidated Revenue Act
Expenditure and. See Public Expenditure
In 1877, qu., 1211

Revenue Act. See Consolidated Revenue and Audit Act

Revenue Bills
1. Customs Act and the Department of Customs and Excise Act Amdt. bill, 1r., 2r., com., 3222; 3r., 3477
2. Customs Tariff Act, 1907, Amdt. bill Res., 1r., 2r., com., 3476; 3r., 3477
3. Income War Tax Act, 1917, Amdt. bill Res., 3278; 1r., 3359-3360; 2r., com., 3484; 3r., 3486
4. Inland Revenue Act Amdt. bill Res., 3239; 1r., 2r., com., 3r., 3477
5. Special War Revenue Act, 1915, Amdt. bill Res., 3252; 1r., 2r., com., 3r., 3477

Rice Jones, Mr. Cecil, statement of, 2489-2490

Richibucto, repair works, qu., 375

Rideau Canal. See Canals

Rideau Hall, fuel, maintenance, etc., 1756

Riddell, Hon. Mr. Justice, qu., 366, qu., 3600.

Right of Appeal. See Opium and Narcotic Act Amdt.

Riley's Army, qu., 3364. See also "General" Macdonald's army

Rinfret, Mr. Fernand (St. James)
Canadian National railways
Canadian Northern, subsidies, qu., 1504
Public ownership, 1942
Canadian navy, qu., 965
Cost of living, purchasing power of the dollar, 1177
Dominion Elections Act, residential qualification, M., 1296
Exports and imports, 1876-77 and 1921-22; qu., 1376
Military expenditure and policy, 1176
Militia and Defence
Annual drill, 1177
Expenditure and policy, 1584

Rinfret, Mr. Fernand — Con.
Montreal Gazette editorial comment, 1584
Montreal post offices, business done, qu., 1065
Peat, deposits and experiments, qu., 1505
Railway mileage, in 1877, qu., 1183
Railway policy, 1942
Representation of provinces in 1877, qu., 1183
Revenue and expenditure in 1877 and 1922, qu., 1211
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1195
Topographical maps, qu., 1631

Riordon Company
Income tax, 60
Collections, qu., 372; qu., 607; qu., 927

Ritchie, Mr. Hugh, qu., 3361

River St. Lawrence ship channel. See Marine and Fisheries; St. Lawrence

Rivière du Loup
Arsenal, qu., 1181, 1690
Car shops, qu., 1181, 1690

Roads. See Highways; Public Works

Roads and Bridges. See Bridges; Highways; Public Works

Robb, Hon. J. A. (Minister of Trade and Commerce)
Budget, 2179. Reforms long overdue; the amendment; tariff reductions; Liberal platform of 1919, 2180; war time extravagance; restoration of confidence; economy; markets; Mr. Fielding's visit to Washington, 2181; trade with Great Britain and United States; cattle embargo; imports and exports, quantity and value of; uniform development; coal and water power, 2182; tariff policy; German trade; marking of goods, 2183
Campbell, Mr. J. A., claim for flax shipment, 2836
Canada Grain Act, administration of, 2834
Car demurrage, 2981
Complaints of unfair dealing, 2987
Canadian exhibition in France, 2031
Canadian Wheat Board, advances, 3541. See also under this title, Wheat Board
Census
Cost, 1363
Enumerators, 1366
Payment of, 1369
Registration of Canadians, 1363

Robb, Hon. J. A. — Con.
Dominion Bureau of Statistics, 1363
Dominion Chain Company, Limited, 3490
Elevators
Licenses to private, 2838
Ontario, in, 2978
Terminal, maintenance and equipment, 2978
Government publications, 1373
Demand and distribution, 1374
Grain Inquiry Commission, 50, 2982
Implements, agricultural, duty on, 3120
Industrial and Scientific Research, 1372
International Customs Tariff Bureau, 1372
Linen yarn bounty, 1361, 3128
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. bill, 3429, 3488
Pratt vs. Delphine, 303
Redistribution and the census, 1363-71. See also under this title, Census
Statistics, co-ordination of work, 1366
Steamship services, 2027, 3505
Canada, Australia, New Zealand, 3034
Canada, West Indies, South America, 3026
Freight rates, 2028
Quebec and north shore ports, 3034
St. John-Cuba, 2028
Trade and Commerce department
Director of commercial intelligence, 700
Estimates, 1361, 2834, 2978, 3026, 3505, 3541
Officials, 700
Trade commissioners and agents, 2989
Trade with Mexico, 700
Wheat Board, 50
Wheat Board bill, 3174-5, 3184, 3188, 3380, 3383, 3386

Robb, Mr. W. D., qu., 728

Robertson, Hon. Senator, 505
Statement on Civil Service, 555

Robertson, P. L. Company, refund of duties, qu., 1774

Robinson, Mr. E. W. (Kings, N.S.)
Root Vegetables bill, potato grading, 3373

Robitaille, Mr. Clement (Maisonneuve)
Address in reply, 320. Public ownership of railways; Wheat board; returned soldiers' pensions, 320

Rockefeller Foundation, 61

Rods. See Steel

Rome, International Institute. See Agriculture

Root Vegetables, Sale and Inspection of, bill
Res., 2743; 1r., 2747; 2r., ref. to Com. on Agriculture, 2972; com., 3142, 3194, 3367; 3r., 3487

Ross, Mr. A. E. (Kingston)
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3482
Militia expenditure, policy, 1587
Niobe, sale of, 2068
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3450
Pensions Com., final report, 3343
Soldiers' civil re-establishment
Hospital staffs, 1345
Nurses, salaries of, 1342
Venereal diseases, qu., 935

Ross, Mr. Thomas E. (North Simcoe)
Address in reply, 95. Congratulations to Miss Macphail; decline in prices of farm products, 95; soldier settlers, 96; re-establishment; economy in administration; increase in sessional indemnity, 97

Ross Rifle, 2609, 2616

Roumania, loan to, qu., 1400, 2888

Round Table, 3170-1

Routhier, the late Sir Adolphe, 1275

Royal Assent, 722, 1988, 1995, 3617

Royal Canadian Artillery, qu., 370, 1982

Royal Canadian Mounted Police. See also National Defence bill
Amalgamation with Dominion Police, 675
Barracks, Fairmont, improvements, 1255
Buildings, 2129
Canadian expeditionary force, in, qu., 2038
Detachments in Arctic regions, 3497
Discontinuance of, qu., 377
Enlistments from A and B squadrons in Canadian expeditionary force, qu., 2038
Estimates, 2129
Income tax office, Hamilton, 1253
Indians, relief to destitute, 1715
Labour espionage and, 670
Lethbridge, Drs. Lovering and Taylor, qu., 1211
Macleod detachment, removal of, 2584
Naturalization, investigations, 1671, 2024
Opium and Narcotic Drugs Act, reports, 1289, 1377
Pensions, 2131
Northwest rebellion, 3523
Removal from British Columbia, 173, 184, 327, 522

Royal Canadian Mounted Police — Con.
Salaries, 775
Secret service, 670-9
Unorganized territories in, M. (Mr. Woodsworth) to confine to, 829; neg. on div., 843
Winnipeg strike, 671
Zaneth, Corporal, 671

Royal Canadian Navy. See Naval Service

Royal Military College, 1985

Royal Naval College, 2047, 2203, 2458

Royal Trust Company, 1085

Rubber Goods, manufacture, 2469

Rubber Industry, occupational diseases. See Labour

Rulings. See Deputy Speaker; Speaker

Rural Depopulation, 301, 2470. See also Address; Budget; Census; Population

Rural Mail. See Post Office

Rural Postmasters. See Civil Service; Post Office

Russell, Mr. T. A., 1663, 2695

Russia
Competition in wheat market, 2157
Consortium to re-establish trade, 1463
Public ownership, 1942
Re-establishment of business in, 1463
"Save the Children Fund", 2516
Wrangel Island, 1751

Ryckman, Mr. Edmond B. (East Toronto)
Address in reply, 284. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker, 284; economy in government; Mr. Church's record, 285; protective tariff; Great Britain and the tariff, 286; protection for farmers, 287; Liberal tariff and election campaign, 288; speeches of Prime Minister and Minister of Justice, 289-90; Sir Lomer Gouin and Quebec attitude, 291; sectionalism in politics, 292
Arsenals
Lindsay, 2088
Quebec, 2093
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 3006
Canadian National railways, consolidation, 1962
Cigars and cigarettes, tax on, 3241
Dominion lands and surveys, 1038

Ryckman, Mr. Edmond B. — Con.
Dominion Textile Company, 584
Lambton, loss of, 3508
Mines department, economy, 688-9
Parliament buildings, architects' fees, 2014
Public buildings, heating, 1761
Sales tax, 3269
United States tax on German goods, 3411

Ste. Agathe Sanitarium, 1342

Ste. Anne Hospital, 1342

Ste Anne de la Pocatière, water supply, qu., 2213

St. Catherines Post office building, 1246-50

St. Charles Park. See Parc St. Charles

St Charles River Improvements, 2400

St. George, N.B., public building, 1240

St. John, N.B.
Cold storage, 3521
Courtenay bay, 2013
Harbour, qu., 1401
Improvements, 2013
Immigration buildings, 2027
Income tax office, qu., 826
Negro Point breakwater, 2013
Ocean tonnage, 2008
Port. See British Preference, M. (Mr. Logan)
Quarantine station, 1239-40, 2021
Terminal facilities, M. (Mr. Caldwell) 639, 844; withdrawn, 851

St. John Ambulance Association, 3387

St. John and Quebec Railway
Acquisition by Canadian National, qu., 1774, qu., 1293
M. (Mr. Caldwell) 1293; neg., 1296

St. John River
Pollution of by United States mill owners, 2168
Wharves on tidal waters, qu., 2200

St. John Valley Railway, 3039

St. Lawrence River Ship Channel
De Beaujeu bank, dredging, 1495
Elevator dredge, 1494
Maintenance and operation, 1494
Pilotage dues, 1499
Self-propelling hopper barge, 1495
Sorel shipyard, 1494. See also that title

St. Lawrence River Waterway, 70, 121, 134, 137, 269, 2266, 2327, 2398. See also Address; Budget; Canals; Quebec Harbour Commission; Transportation; Waterpowers; Welland Ship Canal
Calder, United States Senator, 1206
Climatic conditions, 1187
Coal, conservation of supply, 1188
Co-operation with United States, 2750, 2767
Correspondence with United States Government, 2207, 2583, 2755, 2760, 2767
Tabled, 2256
Cost, 269, 1191, 1195-99, 1203-07, 1315, 1320, 1329
Deep Waterways Association, 1206-8
Electric power development, 1188, 1205, 1317, 1319, 1321, 1326, 1397
Export of power, 1203
Niagara river, 1322, 1327
Electrification of locomotives and railways, 133, 1188, 1317, 1323, 1326, 1330. See also Electrification; Railways
Finance, 1189, 1195, 1318, 1320
Finney, Col. John, 1189
Freight rates, 1204
Georgian bay canal, 1199, 1204, 1209
Grain production and shipment, 1203
Great Lakes-St. Lawrence Tidewater Association, 1319
Harding, President, 133, 1184
History of project, 1185
Imperial Government, communication with, qu., 1508
Industrial development, 1318
Information available, 1195
International Joint Commission, 1191, 1199, 1206, 1315-21, 1469
Report, qu., 377
Distribution of, 2357
International partnership, 1191, 1199, 1209, 1315, 1332, 1396
Land adjacent to development, 1200
Long Sault, 1199
Manchester ship canal, 1190
M. (Mr. Church) 1183, 1314, 1396
Navigation, 1195
Negotiations, inquiry, 786
New York state commission, 1197
Progress report, 2969
Ocean steamers, 1193-95, 1205
Opportunity for further discussion, 1462
Opposition to project, 1184, 1193, 1199, 1202, 1206, 1209
Proposed bond issue, 1318, 20
Public ownership, 1189, 1318-31
Support of western states, 1184

St. Lawrence River Waterway — Con.
Surveys and investigations, estimates, 2765
Taschereau, Premier, 1191
Ten Eyck, Congressman, letter re acquisition of land adjacent to development, 1200
Traffic through Panama, Suez and Soo Canals, 1203
Transportation, 1186, 1201, 1208, 1315, 1325, 1327
Treaty with United States, 2207, 2760, 2767. See also Welland Ship Canal
United States and, 1396
Water power, 629, 1188, 1197, 1199, 1205
Welland canal, 1205, 1207

St. Lawrence Shipping and Trading Co., 1400

St. Louis, Municipal currency, 2506

St. Malo Car shops, 1699, 2399

St. Père, Mr. Edouard C. (Hochelaga)
Address in reply, 281. Immigration, 281, 282; Public ownership of railways; Race harmony, 284; Tariff; unemployment, 282; Wheat Board, 283
Canadian Navigation Company, qu., 1284
Cotton industries, wages and hours, qu., 1903
Parliament hill monuments, qu., 936
Warships and torpedo boats, qu., 827

St. Peters' Reserve. See Indians

St. Pierre water supply, qu., 2213

St. Thomas-Niagara Falls Highway, qu., 936

St. Vincent de Paul Penitentiary. See Penitentiaries

Sabotage. See Labour; Nova Scotia Miners; Strikes

Safeguarding of Industries Act, 2409, 2423-4

Salaries. See Civil Service

Salaries Act and the Senate and House of Commons Act Amdt. bill; 1r., 363; 2r., com., 746; 3r., 787

Sale and Inspection of Root Vegetables. See Root Vegetables

Sale of Agriculture Fertilizers. See Agricultural Fertilizers

Sales, Mr. Thomas (Saltcoats)
Animal Contagious Diseases Act Amdt. bill, 2103

Sales, Mr. Thomas — Con.
Binder twine, 257, 2575
Budget, 2574. Sales Tax; Canada a dear country to live in; burden on the poor man; automobiles, 2574; protection; binder twine; success of a free trade industry; agricultural implement manufacturers; successful competition in other markets, 2575; infant industries; farming conditions; distribution and marketing; exchange value of farm products; intermediary between producer and consumer, 2576; bleeding the victims white, 2577
Canada Grain Act, 2838
King vs. Manitoba Grain Co., decision, 1132
Licenses to private elevators, 2838
Canadian National railways, restaurants at Rivers and Melville, Sask., qu., 2038
Customs
Dumping clause, 3420
Officials, 764
Dredging, Saskatchewan, 2006
Elevators
Excess overages, qu., 1401
Private, 2981
Terminal, 2839
Exhibitions, 982
Experimental farms, 799, 807
Grain Commission, 2839
Grain, selling without growers' permission, 2989
Humboldt-Fort Pitt telegraph line, 2008
Mixed farming, 981
St. Lawrence river waterway, 2761
Saskatchewan Elevator Company, 2989
Welland canal, grain transportation, 2761
Wheat Board, 3181
Wheat Board bill, 3386

Sales Tax, 2297, 2425, 2661, 2843. See also Budget; Special War Revenue; Taxation
Automobiles, 2177
Collections, qu., 375
Confectionery, 2177
Exemptions, 2672, 2689
Dried beet pulp, 2858
Fertilizers, 2858
Increase, 2365
Lumber, 2177
Regulations, 2858

Salmon Canning. See Fisheries Act Amdt.; Meat and Canned Foods

Salmon Fisheries. See Fisheries

Sanitarium. See Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment

Sardines, export of, qu., 1182

Saskatchewan
Aerial patrol, 1724
Canada Temperance Act Amdt., 2997. See also that title
Dry areas, 1042
Harbours and rivers, 2004
Indian reserves, qu., 608
Liquor
Export of, 2977
Warehouses, qu., 1211; qu., 1660
Importations, qu., 2037; qu., 2303
Public buildings, improvements, 1253
Second homesteads, 1042
Wheat marketing, 115. See also Wheat Board

Saskatchewan Court of Appeal. See Judges Act Amdt. bill

Saturday Sittings. See House of Commons, Sittings

Sault Ste. Marie, Algoma Steel Co. rail contracts, 1704

Saunders, Dr. C. E., resignation of, 590, 3522

Savard, Mr. Edmond (Chicoutimi-Saguenay)
Canadian National railways, right of way and lease agent, qu., 1633

Save the Children Fund, 3516

Savoy, Mr. J. Clovis, qu., 3363

Sawmill Machinery, 3126

Scandinavia
Immigration, 2144
Trade relations with, 2990

Schools. See also Education
Closing in West, 152
Lands, 339. See also Dominion Lands; Natural Resources
Nova Scotia in. See Nova Scotia Miners
Refusal of banks to advance money to, 2627

Scientific Research. See Research

Scott, Mr. Frank, qu., 728

Scrip Frauds. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Sea-Going Vessels. See St. Lawrence River Waterway

Seals, destruction by. See British Columbia Fisheries

Seaports, Canadian. See British Preference

Secondary amendments. See House of Commons; Speaker

Secord Case. See Criminal Code (Scrip Frauds)

Secret Proceedings. See Prime Ministers' Conference

Secret Service. See Royal Canadian Mounted Police

Secretariat. See League of Nations

Secretary of State department
Adjustment of War claims, 1672, 2977
Estimates, 601, 1670, 3499
Public archives, 1673

Sedition. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Seduction. See Criminal Code Amdt.

Seed Grain
Advances, 1053
Freight on, 3522
Purchasing Commission, 1011

Séguin, Mr. P. A. (L'Assomption-Montcalm)
Forest, Mr. Médard, customs officer, qu., 2355
Gaboury, Mr. L. J., salary, qu., 3599

L'Assomption and Montcalm
Excise officers, qu., 1774
Employment and dismissal of, qu., 2355
Lightkeepers, qu., 1904, qu., 2215
Postmasters, 1775
Tobacco experimental station, 1776

Select Standing Committees. See House of Commons

Selective Conscription. See Military Service Act Amdt.

Senate
Amendments concurred in:
Agricultural Fertilizers bill, 3607
Criminal Code Amdt. bill, 3607
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 3486
Escheats Act Amdt. bill, 3486
Insurance Act, 1917, Amdt. bill, 3607
Loan Companies Act, 1914, Amdt. bill, 3607
National Defence Department bill, 2806
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act bill, 3607

Senate — Con.
Amendments concurred in — Con.
Trust Companies Act, 1914, Amdt. bill, 3607
Amendments, non-concurrence:
Bankruptcy Act Amdt. bill, 3611
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 3608
Dominion Lands, Cancellation Leases bill
Concurrence, 3616
Conference, 3614
Chief accountant, salary, qu., 2583, qu., 2803
Expenditure, qu., 2583
Free conferences with, 3613, 3616
Indemnity, proposed reduction, 2513, 3509
Reform, 138, 2894
Salaries and contingent expenses, 2026

Senate and House of Commons Act. See Salaries Act Amdt.

Senn, Mr. Mark C. (Haldimand)
Corn-borer, destruction by, 818
Grand River bridge, York, Ont., qu., 1287

Sergeant-at-Arms. See House of Commons

Serums. See Accredited Herds; Agriculture

Sessional Indemnity. See House of Commons; Members

Settlers. See Immigration

Sexsmith, Mr. Edward J. (Lennox and Addington)
Address in reply, 293. Change in administration; agriculture; railway problems, 283; soldier settlement, 294
Dominion Elections Act Amdt. bill, 2812
Soldiers bonus, M. (Mr. Arthurs) 447

Sexual Offences. See Criminal Code

Shaughnessy, Lord
National railway scheme, 89-90, 127
On immigration, 2478

Shaw, Mr. Joseph T. (West Calgary)
Agriculture Com. report, Wheat Board, 782
Banff-Windermere road, 1683
Blankets, duty on, 3136
Boots and shoes, M. to reduce duty, 3238
Calgary, post office building, 1254
Canada-Australia, steamship service, 3034
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 3003
Date of coming into effect, 3007; Withdrawn, 3008
Canadian National railways
Representation at meeting of steamship companies, 2584
Canadian Patriotic Fund bill, 3484
Coal lands, transfer of by Canadian Pacific Railway Company, 2214

Shaw, Mr. Joseph T. — Con.
Criminal Code Amdt bill, fines, 2832
Expenditure, comparison by departments, 1137
Explosives Act, 1234
Freight rates, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1444-8
Grain companies, security of, 2837
Indians
Education, 1227, 3536
Stony Reserve school, qu., 965, 1218, 1227, 3536
Military and other expenditures, 1137
Militia and defence
Expenditure and policy, 1590
Permanent force, 1983
War medals, 2976
Ministers and Directorships, 1126
Naval service, 1738
Opium and Narcotic Drugs, 3022
Pensions Com., final report, 3305
Amdt., 3349, 3358
Prime Ministers' Conference, naval defence, 1742, 1745
Railway Commission, Carvell, Hon. F. B., alleged statement of Mr. Motherwell, 2775, 2779
Redistribution
Inquiry as to intention of Government, 3611
M. (Mr. Shaw), opportunity for discussion, 1719
Reply to leader of Opposition, 3611
Royal military college, 1985
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, Alberta hospital, 1345
Tariff commissioner, 1665
Tariff, reciprocal arrangement with France, 2032
Tourist traffic, 1683
Trade commissioners and commercial agents, 2989
War memorials, 2101
Wheat Board, 3182
Wrangel island, 1751

Sheard, Mr. Charles (South Toronto)
Address in reply, 294. Congratulations to Mr. Speaker; defeat of Meighen Government due to taxation, 294; Progressive party; railway problem, 295, 296; immigration; tariff and protection, 297
Criminal Code Amdt. bill, docking of horses, 2833
Soldier Civil Re-establishment, salary increases, 386

Sheep Industry. See Agriculture; Live Stock

Shelburne wharf, 1768

Shellfish. See Meat and Canned Foods

Shells. See Ammunition

Sherbrooke
Post Office inspector, qu., 1507
Soldier Settlement Board employees, qu., 1658

Sherman, General William T., war, 1336

Shibley, Mr. A. D., Secretary-Treasurer of Union of Canadian Municipalities, 1392

Ships and Shipbuilding. See also Canadian Government Merchant Marine; Labour; Limitation of Armaments; Marine; Naval Service; St. Lawrence River Waterway; Steamship Services; Unemployment; Vessels
British Ministry of Shipping, claim for hospital ship, 1752
Canada Shipping Act. See that title
Canadian navigation companies, life-saving equipment, qu., 1284
Con Rein, sinking of, 1382
Coolie labour, 2042
Dominion Iron and Steel Co., steel plates, 1677
Drydocks. See that title
International deep sea racing. See that title
Nova Scotia, 1387
Pilotage dues, 1499. See also Canada Shiping Act
Registration of, 1493
Sorel shipyard, 2169
Dismissal of employees, qu., 605, 1283
Maintenance, 1494
Men employed, qu., 1062
Steamboat inspection, 2169
Steel plates, cost of delivery, 3508
Vickers Company, elevator dredge, 1494
Wooden ships constructed at Victoria, B. C., qu., 364

Shuswap Lake
Dredging, 2006
Wharf, 3547

Siberia, Service of Mounted Police, in, qu., 2038

Silk Fabrics, duty on, 2662, 3137

Silver. See also Coinage; Mines and Minerals Coins. See Currency Act Amdt. bill
Discovery in Yukon, 1276
English hall marks, protection of. See Criminal Code

Simpson, Mr. T. E. (West Algoma)
Dredging, St. Mary's river, 2006
Good roads, Ontario, qu., 372
Lambton, wreck of, 1497, 3508
Rail and car repair contracts, 1703
Receipt tax, 3262
Sales tax, workmen's clothing, 3272
Sault Ste. Marie wharf, 2006
Unemployment
Insurance, 1075
Rails and car repair contracts, 1704

Sinclair, Hon. J. E. (Queen's, P.E.I.)
Harbours and rivers, Prince Edward island, 1990
Root Vegetables bill, potato grades, 3375

Single Tax, 2191. See also Budget; Taxation

Six Nation Reserve. See Indians

Slaughter Houses, Inspection. See Meat and Canned Foods

Smuts, General, International Disarmament Conference, 1283

Socialism, 1290

Soft Drinks, tax on, 2329, 2617, 2852, 2857. See also Taxation

Soldier Land Settlement, 83, 96, 147, 183, 252, 294, 305, 318, 327, 345, 3294, 3298, 3307, 3333, 3338. See also Address; Budget; Pensions Committee
Abandoned farms, 2132
Building loans, 3475
Cost and results, 2159
Estimates, 2023, 2131
Expenditure, statement of, 2132
Foreclosure, 2132
Homestead rights, 2132
Inflated values, 2133
Land speculation, and, 2136
Municipal taxation, payment by Government, 1257
Revaluation of land, 2136-42
Taxes, collection of, 2134

Soldier Settlement Act Amdt. bills
1. Mineral rights. (Mr. Malcolm) 1r., 2035
2. Consolidation of Indebtedness. (Mr. Stewart, Argenteuil)
Res. 3358, 3405; 1r., 3409; 2r., com., 3475; 3r., 3476

Soldier Settlement Board, qu., 608
Amounts loaned, etc., qu., 469
Estimates, 2023, 2131-43
Comparison with last year, 382

Soldier Settlement Board — Con.
Loans, 147
Sherbrooke office employees, qu., 1658
Six Nation Indians, 1221

Soldiers. See also Pensions Returned Soldiers; Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment; Unemployment
Bonus, 394, 402, 1618, 2533, 3337
M. (Mr. Arthurs) 429; neg. 450
Exchange on pay, qu., 826
Homes, establishment of, 1348
Insurance, 1349. See also Returned Soldiers' Insurance bill
Land settlement. See that title
Pensions, 271. See also Pensions

Soldiers' Aid Commission, 3315-16

Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, 168, 271, 1617
Building requirements, 1261
Calydor sanitarium, 1279
Department, decrease in activities of, 1340
Doctors, 1343, 1351
Employers' Liability, compensation, 1348
Estimates, 1279, 1339
Expenditure on, 266
Reduction of, 1339
Hospitals, 1262, 1341, 1344, 1348
Nurses, salaries of, 1342
Operating expenses and working capital, 1347
Patients, care and medical examination of, 1280
Pension Commissioners, Board of, 396, 1339, 1349. See also Pensions
Ste. Agathe sanitarium, 1342
Ste. Anne hospital, 1342
Salaries, 385, 1339
Reduction of vote, 1339-46
Waddington, Mr., 385, 398
Staff, reduction of, 3602
Tubercular patients, treatment of, 1344
Unemployment relief, 1347, 1352, 3524
Vocational loans, 1346
Fishermen, to, 1346
Vocational training, 1281, 1340
War Service gratuity interest, 1346

Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment Department bill (Report of Re-establishment and Pensions Committee)
1r., 3597; 2r., com., 3609; 3r., 3610

Soldiers' Re-establishment and Pensions Committee. See Pensions Committee

Sorel Shipyard
Dismissal of employees, qu., 605. 1283
Estimates, 2169
Maintenance, 1494
Men employed in May 1921, qu., 1062

Soulanges Canal. See Canals

South America Steamship service. See Steamship Services

Speaker, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux. See also Deputy Speaker; House of Commons; Marcil Rulings and statements of
Acoustics of Chamber
Member speaking from centre of Chamber, 632
Member speaking from front seat, 3286
Agreement between Whips as to 11 o'clock adjournment, 173
Amendments, 3284
Imposing tax, cannot be moved by private member, 722
Secondary amendments (amdts. to amdt.) 2473-4, 2519
Baker, the late Col. G. H., M.P., memorial, 1929
Bills
Introduction by unanimous consent, 3597
Military Service Act Amdt., 644
Money, must be preceded by res, 548
Private
No sponsor, first reading postponed, 2102
Refund of fees, 1577, 1657
Reference from Com. of Whole to Special Com., 1395
Repealing legislation, 644
Second reading on day of introduction, 1460
Trade or money, to be preceded by res., 1282
Chair to be addressed, 2415
Clerk Assistant, correctness of record, 1843
Committees
Leave to sit while House in session, 1988
Motion in advance of report of, 1901
Refund of fees, 1577
Special, members opposed to principle of bill not to be chosen, 1502
Congratulations to on 25th anniversary, 3489
Criminal Code and statutes, reprinting of, 1717

Speaker, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux — Con.
Rulings and Statements — Con.
Crowsnest pass agreement, suspension of Rule 11, 1502
Daylight saving, discussion in order, 944
Debate
Closed by mover, 835, 1295, 1836
Relevancy
Criticism of British Columbia Government during Budget debate, 2238
Hon. John Oliver, quotation from Vancouver Sun, 2236
Debates, Official Report
Insertion of documents, 942
Decorum, conversation in Chamber and lobbies, 2640
Election of, 1, 4
Kingston election petition, 2692
Language, "False" or "falsely", 3603
Libellous statements reflecting on honour of Canada, 822
Letters, anonymous, 944
Library of Parliament, 3517
Salaries, 3517
Members
Customary to speak from seats, 632, 3286
May speak only once on motion for 3r., 3487
Must address Chair, 2415
Must address other members in third person, 165
Payment of, 3611
Speaking, not to be interrupted, 2361
Motions
Amdt. to amdt. (Mr. Crerar on Budget) 2473-4, 2519
For concurrence in, notice required, 703
In advance of report of Com., 1901
Non-debatable, 865
Notice given in Votes and Proceedings, 378
Ministers and Directorships, seconder, 1084, 1094
Private members, involving expenditure, out of order, 844
Re-drafted, in order, 844
Newspaper extracts, 821
Orders of the Day
Arguments not permissible, 822, 1721, 1842, 2256, 2995, 3492, 3601
Member may make personal explanation or ask question, 3602-3
Question not debatable, 3602
Reading newspaper extracts, 303, 374-5
Right of members to raise question of privilege on, 2638

Speaker, Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux — Con.
Rulings and Statements — Con.
Pairs, 1463
Petitions, irregular, 1929
Privilege
Member may make personal explanation or put question, 3602-3
Member must confine himself to question, 3366
Must affect honour of member, 3493
Right of member to raise on Orders of the day, 2638
Prorogation of Parliament, 3610
Questions
Argumentative, 2805-2806
Discretion of Ministers respecting, 1775
Standing as orders for returns, 1660, 1775
Reading of letters, 948
Resolution
Adopted, binding on Government, 639
Affecting civil rights of provinces, 829
Money, should originate with Government, 639
Must be positive, 644
Royal Assent, 1988
Rule 11, suspension of, 1502
Senate, free conference, 3613
Sergeant-at-Arms to prevent disorder in lobby, 3606
Supply
Concurrence, 1843
Discussion of particular item on motion, 1337
Redress of grievances before going into Com., 1337
Tedious repetition, 944
Unanimous consent, 703, 726, 3597
Bill, introduction of, 3597
Vacancies
Kamouraska, 1459
War memorials, 2100
Wheat Board, point of order, 2935, 2949

Speaker, Mr., Bereavement of, 496, 596

Speakman, Mr. Alfred (Red Deer)
Address in reply, 80. Co-operation necessary; agricultural prosperity, 81; tariff for revenue; taxation forms; immigration, 82; unemployment; soldier settlement, 83
Agriculture, subsidies to, 1698
Budget, 2881. Alleged selfishness of prairie provinces; Budget as it affects the West; protection, 2881; tariff and cost of living; textile industry; protection and prices; price of agricul-

Speakman, Mr. Alfred — Con.
Budget — Con.
tural products set by export market; policy of give and take, 2882; tariff as means of taxation; commodity tax fundamentally wrong; restriction of export market and reduction of prices, 2883; excise duty on protected goods; depreciated currency; cost of manufacturing in Germany, 2884; agriculture and lower costs of production; transportation; marketing; compromise; reciprocity, 2885; attack on the Progressive party; the amendment; political morals, 2886; idealism in politics, 2887
Dredging, 2006
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women, 490
Estimates, reclassification, 455
Fishing schooner race, 3511
Imperial Mining Resources bureau, 1237
Indians
Education, 1715
Red Deer school, 1229
Militia, purchasing agents, 587
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill) 1833
Pensions
Committee
Expenditures, 3523
Final report, 3297
Widowed mothers, M. (Mr. Power) 1309
Promotions and salaries in Civil Service, 577
Rail and car repair contracts, 1698
Sales tax, 3269, amdt., 3269
Soldier settlement
Board, qu., 608
Revaluation, 2141
Special Com., work of, 2141
Soldier Settlement Act Amdt. bill, 3406

Special Loans Bill
Res., 3252, 3358; 1r., 2r., com., 3r., 3476-77

Special War Revenue Act Amdt. bill
Res., 3252, 3409; 1r., 2r., com., 3r., 3477
Subjects and sections discussed:
Automobiles, 3272-3
Cheques, stamp tax, 3258
Condensed milk, 3264-3271, 3409
Drawbacks, 3263
Excise tax of two and a half per cent, 3263
Insurance premiums, 3253
Lumber, 3263
Matches, 3262
Receipt tax, 3262

Special War Revenue Act Amdt. — Con.
Subjects and Sections discussed — Con.
Sales tax, 3409
Condensed milk, 3264-71, 3409
Exemptions, 3263, 3410
Job printing, 3409
Taxation under, 2116, 2857. See also Taxation

Speech from the Throne. See Address

Spence, Mr. David (Parkdale)
Egg inspectors, qu., 727
Entomology, 913-14
Meighen, Right Hon. Arthur, 406
Militia expenditure and policy, 1592
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3463
Root Vegetables bill, 3142, 3194, 3367
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, royal commission, 406
Stamp tax on cheques, 3260

Spencer, Mr. Henry E. (Battle River)
Agriculture, condition of, 2158
Banks, circulation, interest, qu., 3598
Blankets, duty on, 3128, 3132
M. to reduce, 3234
Budget, 2629. Congratulations to Finance Minister; public men, 2629; Mr. Fielding and the Liberal platform of 1919; conditions in Canada; restricted credit; purchasing power; home market; per capita wealth; labour troubles; after affects of war; statement of Mr. W. Bell; private financing of public production, 2630; capital investment in agriculture and manufacturing; foreign and home markets; returns from agricultural and industrial enterprise; farmers and the income tax; agricultural products; prices and cost of production, 2631; prices of hides and boots and shoes; woollen goods; profits of textile industries, 2632; profits of milling industry; food, shelter, and clothing; Mr. Stewart (Argenteuil) on the tariff; driving capital out of business; conscription of wealth, 2633; no radical taxation proposed; credit system; urban development and infant mortality, 2634
Calgary milk inquiry, qu., 823
Canadian National railways
Dining car service, qu., 2040
Mail contracts, qu., 2038, qu., 2213
Canadian Pacific railway
Bill, 1608
Mail contracts, 2040

Spencer, Mr. Henry E. — Con.
Census, agricultural assets and liabilities, 2159
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1423
Dominion notes, qu., 935
Fabre, Madame, pension, 2024
Farming industry, 809, 2158, 2159
Grain, per capita production, 2159
Grain Growers' Grain Co., alleged contributions to political organizations, 2488
Immigration
Central European, 2158
Land speculation, 2159
Pamphlets, 759
Policy, 2158
Imported liquor, excise duty, qu., 828
Income tax-payers, qu., 3362
Livestock industry, 984
Marshall, Mr. Duncan, 590
Militia and Defence
Transport and freight, amdt. to reduce item, 1987
Mixed farming, 983
Naturalization Act, 2024
Nova Scotia miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 515
Population
Rural, decline in, 2158
Slow growth of, 2158
Post office saving banks, interest, qu., 1932
Soldier settlement, cost and results, 2159
Steamship services, 2027
Welland canal, qu., 3600
Wheat Board, 3185
Wheat Board bill, 3380

Sportsmen's Patriotic Association, cadet camps, 1973

Spruce Bud Moth, 595, 815, 2668. See also Entomology

Stamp Tax. See Special War Revenue Act

Standard of Living. See Oriental Aliens

Standard of Valuation. See Customs

Standard Time. See Daylight Saving

Standards, Bureau of, 235, 1372

Stanfield, Dr., Bienfait briquetting plant, 1234

Stansell, Mr. J. L. (East Elgin)
Accredited herd system, 995, 999
Address in reply, 359. Definition of party names; farmers and protection, 360;
Stansell, Mr. J. L. — Con.
Address — Con.
defeat of late government; economy; cattle embargo; railway situation, 361; racial differences, 362
Agriculture dept., estimates, 994
Budget, 2290. "Grit and "Tory"; suggested identity of Liberal and Progressive policies, 2290; tribute to the Minister of Finance; attitude of Progressives, 2291; sales tax; income tax, 2292; constructive criticism; tariff and the masses; protection; adjustment of tariff to changing conditions; revenue, 2292; encourage maximum production; sales tax; increase of burden upon consumers, 2293; income tax.; taxes passed on to consumers, 2294
Canned milk industry, 3264
Civil service patronage, 3087
Commissioner of Agriculture, qu., 609
Experimental farms, 809
Freight rates, Special Com. report, 3596
Live Stock industry, 994
Ministers and directorships, 1124
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill) 1825
Railway Act Amdt. (Crowsnest pass) 3597

State-Owned Railways. See Canadian National Railways

Stationery. See Printing and Stationery

Statistics. See also Census; Population; Trade
Concentration of, 580
Dominion Bureau of, 1363
Dominion Statistician, Mr. R. H. Coats, 1364-71

Statutes
Printing of, 1972
Revision of, 1717

Steamship Services, qu., 614. See also Trade and Commerce
British Columbia coastal, qu., 3152
Canada-Australia-New Zealand, 3034
Canada-Newfoundland, 2027
Canada-West Indies-British Guiana, qu., 2356
Canada-West Indies-South America, 2027, 3026
Charlottetown-Pictou-New Glasgow, 3506
Charlottetown-Victoria-Halliday's Wharf, 3506
Competition with railways, 182
Freight rates, 2028
Halifax-Canso-Guysboro, 3507

Steamship Services — Con
Mails, carriage of, 2028
Miscou-Shippegan Island, 2029
Mulgrave-Arichat-Petit de Grat, 2029
Murray Bay-Tadoussac, 3035
Newcastle-Neguac-Escuminac, 2029
Pelee Island and mainland, 3034
Pictou-Mulgrave-Cheticamp, 3050
Port Mulgrave-St. Peters-Irish Cove, 3507
Quebec Natashquan-Bras d'Or, 2029, 3034
St. Catherines Bay-Tadoussac, 2029
St. John-Bay of Fundy-Minas Basin, 3507
St. John-Bear River, 3507
St. John-Cuba, 2028
St. John-Digby, 2030
St. John-St. Andrews, 2030
St. Stephen-Deer Island-Campobello, 2030
Sydney-Bras d'Or lakes, 2031
Sydney-Whycocomagh, 2030, 3035
Vancouver-Howe Island, 2027
Victoria-Vancouver-Skagway, 2027

Steedsman, Mr. James (Souris)
Budget, 2721. Inconsistencies of the tariff; implement duties; opportunities for manufacturing in British Columbia, 2721; prairie farmers paying tribute to manufacturers and fruit growers; cost of wheat production beyond market value; farming unprofitable, 2722; survey of conditions in West; boot and shoe industry, 2723
Tractors, 3124
Turtle Mountain reserve, qu., 615

Steel. See also Railway estimates; Rail repairs
Bounties, 304-5, qu., 3360
British Empire Steel Corporation. See that title
Dominion Iron and Steel Company, contract for ship plates, 1677, 2170
Drawbacks, 2175
Industry, subsidies to, 1692, 1696
Plates, 1677, 2170
Delivery of, 3508
Prices, 2411-12
Rails
Competition with Germany, 2412
Contracts for, 1688
Price of, 1680-1709, 2412
Purchases of, 1913
Unemployment, 1077
Rods, refund of duties, qu., 1774
Steel plates, 1677
Damage claim of Dominion Iron and Steel Co., 1677
Settlement of, 2170
Structural, importation of, qu., 1931

Stefansson Expedition, 1750

Stevens, Hon. H. H. (Vancouver Centre)
Address in reply, 230. Death of Prime Minister's brother; debate on address opportunity for vigorous discussion, 230; importance of aids to agriculture; marketing of wheat, 231; Wheat Board, 232; elevator facilities, 233; freight rates on commodities, 234; bureau of standards, industrial and scientific research, 235; immigration, 236; Bank Act, revision of; unemployment, 237; the tariff question; customs taxes, cost of collecting, 239; tariff, platform of Liberal Convention; speech of Mr. Marler, 240; survey of ministers, 241; Minister of Justice and big interests, 242; minister and directorships, 242-3
Air board, 1722
Air Force and civil aviation
Customs aerial patrol, Vancouver, 1730
Forest patrol in Railway Belt, 1730
Archives, book binder, 703
British Columbia house, purchase of, 3537
Budget, 2640. Tariff announcement will allay alarm of manufacturing interests; cheque tax, 2640; discriminatory tax on confectionery; repeal of anti-dumping clause; fruit; marking act and depreciated currency clause, 2641; German situation; depreciated currency, 2642; post war industries and commercial development of Germany; position of France; reparations; physical suffering; Germany's budget deficits; issues of paper currency; unemployment; comparison of conditions in 1915 and 1921, 2643; Germany's foreign trade; adverse balance; Canada's imports from Germany; purchasing power of the mark; internal and external value; Mr. Maynard Keynes; Dr. Melchior; situation in France, 2645; Austria, Hungary; prohibitory tariffs in central Europe; German exports to Canada; pocket knives, 2646; German goods, method of distribution; agents of German manufacturers in Canada, 2647; sale of brokers' goods; enormous profits of German manufacturers; congratulations to Prime Minister on recently bestowed honour; Australian Preservation of Industries Act; direct and indirect taxation, 2648; inaccurate statements issued by Canadian Council of Agriculture; Mr. Crerar's figures

Stevens, Hon. H. H. — Con.
Budget — Con.
as to agricultural exports, 2649; consumption of agricultural products in Canada, 2650; taxation of capital; income tax — who pays?; per capita payment of customs duties, 2691; grievances of western farmers; technical and not fiscal problems, 2652; the tariff; business profits and taxation; United Grain Growers; watered stock, 2653; business principles enunciated in Grain Growers' report, 2654
Canadian exhibition in France, 2031
Canadian National railways, deficit, 1919
Canadian Pacific railway bill, 1858
Cash grants to soldiers, Liberal pledge, 399, 433
Chinese immigration
Agent in China, 2026, qu., 2214
Estimates, 2026
Civil service bonus, inquiry, 2996
Coal, Canmore and Drumheller miners' dispute, 1058
Conciliation and Labour Act, 1053, 1054
Congratulations to Mr. Fielding, 3279
Customs Act, depreciated currency, 2642, 3224, 3410
Dredging, 2005
Shuswap lake, 2006
Dumping provision, 2641, 3412
Employment offices, 1058
Enfranchisement of foreign-born women, M. (Mr. Euler) 487
Fisheries, salmon canners' license fees, 1748
Ford automobile company, 3274
Forests, depletion of, 1046
Fraser Valley and Southern Railway, 1577
Fruit growers, protection, 2641, 3423-4
German valuation of goods, 2642-48, 3226
Government publications, 1373
Grain Inquiry Commission, qu., 705; qu., 1181, 2842
Harbours and rivers
British Columbia, 2005
Quebec, 1998
Hides, price of, 3138
Immigration
Commissioner of at Canton, China, qu., 1901, 2026; qu., 2214
Foreigners admitted as farmers, 1068
Industrial and scientific research, 235, 1372
Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, 1058
Interior dept., economic adviser, 455
International Opium Convention, qu., 1066
Job printers, taxation, 3264

Stevens, Hon. H. H. — Con.
Labour department
Employees, 460, 468
Estimates, 571
M. to reduce item, 562, 579
Salary increases, 562
Liquor importation, 733
McCoig, Senator, attendance before Agriculture Com., 1901
McInnes, Mr. W. W. B., qu., 1901, 2026; qu., 2214
Marine and Fisheries
Eddie, Capt., 1492
Ice-breaker, repurchase of, 1490
Lightkeepers, salaries, 1497
Navigation schools, 1492
Steamers and ice-breakers, 1490
Marshall, Mr. Duncan, 754
Mennonite emigration, qu., 732
Mexico, trade with, 699
Militia and Defence
Purchasing agents, 416-17
Training camps, qu., 2584
National Defence bill, 739
National Liberal-Conservative platform, trade, 2540
Naval Service
Royal Canadian navy, 1882-91
Royal Naval college, closing of, qu., 2458
Niagara River Bridge Company bill, 1486
Northwest rebellion, pensions for Mounted police, 3523
Nova Scotia miners strike, 1054
Opium and Narcotic Drugs, 775, 3017
Oriental aliens, and, 2018
Prohibition, and, 2018
Oriental aliens
Immigration
Chinese, restriction, M. for papers, 1776
Japanese, restriction, M. for papers, 1776
M. (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion of, 1548, 1573
Pilotage dues, 1500
Point of order
M. in advance of report of Com., 1901
Right of member to complete speech, 3540
Unfinished statement of member ruled out of order, not debatable, 3603
Post office, railway mail service in British Columbia, 2799
Public buildings, heating, 1758
Radiotelegraph service, 1749
Railway Commission, Hon. F. B. Carvell, statement, 2777

Stevens, Hon. H. H. — Con.
Returned Soldiers' Insurance bill, 3393
Senate indemnity, 3509
Soldier settlement, 2024
Soldiers' bonus, M. (Mr. Arthurs) 433
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment
Pension Board officials, 404
Salary increases, 386
Special War Revenue Act, exemptions, 3263
Standards, bureau of, 235, 1372
Steamship services, 2027
Atlantic and Pacific, Canadian ports, 3026
Unemployment
Relief, 1061, 2022
Employment offices, 2023
Tariff and, 3527
Vancouver drydock, 2005, 2008
Vancouver Harbour Commissioners bill, 2996
War, payment of cost of, 2405
Wheat Board, 2931
Point of order, 2933
Proceedings in Agriculture Com., 2931
Special Com. report, delay in concurrence, 2306
Women, the franchise and, 485
Yukon radiotelegraph service, 1749-50

Stewart, Hon. Charles (Minister of the Interior; Superintendent General of Indian Affairs; Minister of Mines)
Alpine Club grant, 1053
Assiniboine river floods, 3491
Bienfait briquetting plant, 1233
Budget, 2216. Congratulations to Minister of Finance; review of agricultural and industrial conditions from introduction of national policy, 2216; prosperity following change of government in 1896; reciprocity; depression of 1914; agricultural implements; tariff reductions; public debt; war conditions, 2217; railways, 2218; tariff proposals; markets; freight rates, 2219; United States, trade with; taxation; sales, income tax, 2220
Canadian national parks, 1501
Chinese. See also under this title, Immigration; Oriental Aliens
Arival of at Vancouver, 2026, 3604
Criminal Code Amdt. (Scrip frauds) 3220
Calhoun, Mr., telegram from, 3601
Deville, Dr., 1045
Dinosaurs, museum specimens, 1237
Dominion lands
Homestead re-entry, 1041
Reclamation by drainage, 1051
Salaries of staff, 1035

Stewart, Hon. Charles — Con.
Dominion Lands — Con.
Surveys, 1037
Expenditure, 1045
Mackenzie-Peace river districts, 1044
Reduction of vote by, $30,000, 1044
Dominion Lands, Cancellation of Leases, bill, 3151, 3465-74
Senate amendments, 3615
Editorial Committee, 1235
Electrical storm in the West, 3493
Emigration, record of, 2160
Explosives Act, 1234
Forbes, Mrs. E. S., compassionate allowance, 3517
Forestry, 1046
Spruce bud moth, 1049
Tree planting on prairies, 1051
Geological museum specimens, 1237
Geological survey
Co-ordination of survey work, 1236
Reduction of vote, 1237-62
Immigration, 3054
Agents, bonus to, 3063
British artisans, 2208
Chinese, 2026, 3604
Doukhobors, 2160
Hutterites, 2160, 3060
Italian, 2171
Medical inspection, 3052
Mennonites, 2160, 3060
Ministers' statement, 2143
Money qualification, 2208
Policy of department, 3051-2
Reception of immigrant, 2160
Shandro, Mr., proposed colony, 2159
Unemployment, 2143, 3058
Immigration and Colonization, estimates, 754, 758, 2143, 3499
Immigration — Criminal Code bills, 3284
Imperial Mining Resources Bureau, 1237
Indian Act Amdt. bill, 2991, 3192
Indian Affairs Dept., estimates, 681, 685, 1214, 3536
Indians
Blood reserve, 1221
Devon band, proposed removal, 1216
Education, 1227, 1231, 3536
Edmonton school, 1231, 3536
Stony reserve, 1228, 3536
Expenditure, 1216
General expenses, 1226
Greater production, 1224
Health, 1228
Hospital grants, 1218
Medical attention, 1218
Potlach institution, 3192

Stewart, Hon. Charles — Con.
Indians — Con.
Six Nations, 1221
Enfranchisement, 2991
Soldier Settlement Board, 1221
Sydney reserve, proposed transfer, 1215
Interior department
Employees, transfer to, 457
Estimates, 3517
Printing and supplies, 454
Salaries, 452
International boundaries, 1033
Lignite
Bienfait briquetting plant, 1233
Utilization board, 3524
Mines and Minerals
Clay deposits, investigation of, 1234
Estimates, 685
Investigation of resources, 1234
Reduction of vote, 1236-62
Officials, 687
Ore-dressing plant, 1235
Tar sands, 1236
Nelson, Mr. Frank, 3517
Oriental aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) for exclusion, 1565
Amdt. "effective restriction", 1567, 1574
Preston, Mr. W. T. R., claim of, 3503
Public buildings expenditure, 1262
Research council, 1233
Seat for, in Quebec province, 12
Seed grain advances, 1055
Soldier settlement, 2024
Estimates, 2131-42
Land purchases, irregularities, 2140
Taxes, collection of, 2134
Soldier Settlement Act Amdt. bill, 3405, 3475
Water powers, surveys, 1051
Wheat Board bill, 3189
Yukon territory government of, 1034

Stewart, Mr. C. Wallace (Humboldt)
Budget, 2597. Progressive amendment, 2597. Amendment; does not express progressive view; budget proposals; congratulations to Finance Minister, 2598; the average citizen and public affairs; taxation; revenue; debt; economy; reciprocity with the United States; direct taxation; freer trade; marking and valuation of currency acts, 2599; tariff reductions; agricultural implements; sales tax; undue burden on people with small incomes, 2600; political pledges; constructive criticism; income tax; business profits tax; inheritance tax; land tax; estimated revenue from, 2601; conditions of Stewart, Mr. C. Wallace — Con.

Budget — Con.
western farmers; need of wider markets; Wheat Board; transportation; Hudson Bay railway; branch lines, 2602; purchasing power; re adjustment of taxation; immigration; unoccupied lands, 2603
Hudson Bay railway, completion of, 2602, 2789
Insurance premiums, tax on, 3255
Macphail, Miss, alleged statement of, 3221

Stewart, Major Duncan, qu., 823

Stewart, Mr. H. A. (Leeds)
Brockville and Westport railway, qu., 704
Canadian Ford company, taxes, qu., 3599
Canadian National railways, passenger traffic, qu., 927
Condensed milk, tax, 3271
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 955
Militia and defence, cadet services, 1978
Nova Scotia miners, McLachlan correspondence, qu., 704
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill) 1791
Returned Soldiers Insurance bill, 3391-2

Stewart, Hon. John A. (Lanark)
Alcohol for retail druggists, qu., 1400
Canadian National railways
Board of management, 913
Minister's statement, 912
Public ownership and operation, 1956
Rail and car repair contracts, 1914, 1958
Toronto Globe editorial, 1134
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1427-32
Genoa Conference, 582
Grand Trunk and Grand Trunk Pacific railways, qu., 2037
Intercolonial railway management, 408
Labour department
Director of technical education, 577
Policy, and building trades, 582
Publicity agent, 466
Supplies clerk, 585
Public Works estimates, 698
Rail and car repair contracts, 1690, 1694, 1700. See also under this title Canadian National Railways
Railway Commission, alleged statement of Mr. Motherwell, 2777
Railways
Administration, 408
Co-ordination, 408
Freight rates, legislation, qu., 934
Policy, 1956

Stewart, Hon. John A. — Con.
Railways and Canals dept., salaries, 1134
Rideau canal, 2764
Soulanges canal, 2768
Trent canal, construction and betterments, 2764
Unemployment, car repair contracts, 1690
Welland ship canal, 2747

Stewart, Mr. T. J. (West Hamilton)
Hamilton post office building, 1251
Mineral waters tax, 3278
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill) 1835
Stamp tax on cheques, 3261

Stock, Transfer, tax, 2117

Stockyards. See Live Stock

Stony Reserve. See Indians

Stork, Mr. Alfred (Skeena)
Address in reply, 330. Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk Pacific railways in British Columbia, 331; oriental question, 332
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 962
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. bill, 3013
Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 1516
Prince Rupert post office building, 1257

Strike-on-the-Job. See Nova Scotia Miners

Strikes. See Labour; Unemployment

Sturgeon Falls
Indian agent, qu., 1285
Postmaster, qu., 1285

Submarine Cables, qu., 3151-2, qu., 3360

Submarine Construction. See Limitation of Armaments

Submarines, 1845. See also Naval Service

Subsidies. See also Steamship Services
Canadian Northern, 189-190, qu., 1504, 1921
Federal, Ontario, qu., 2214
Provinces to, 330
Steel companies to, 1692-96. See also Steel

Sudbury mail contract, qu., 1285

Suez Canal, 191. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway

Sugar
Atlantic refineries, refund, 2850
Beet industry, 2177, 2232, 2273, 2373, 3246, 3251
M. (Mr. Fansher) to reduce duty, 3248

Sugar — Con.
British preference increased, 2116
Excise duty on, 2116-7, 2232, 2273, 2853-5, 3267. See also Budget Speeches; Inland Revenue

Superannuation. See Civil Service; Public Service Retirement Act

Supervisor of Expenditure. See Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment

Supplementary Estimates. See also Estimates;; Supply
Tabled, 1258

Supply. See also Interim Supply
Committee of, 378, 385, 429, 451, 493, 548, 598, 644, 681, 747, 791, 873, 967, 1018, 1040, 1133, 1163, 1214, 1339, 1361, 1489, 1578, 1662, 1722, 1747, 1843, 1905, 1933, 2010, 2043, 2129, 2747, 2834, 2975, 3026 3051, 3495

Supply, Committee of Amendments
Cash bonus to soldiers, M. (Mr. Arthurs) 429; neg., 450-1
Defence Forces, remarks of Mr. Clark on motion for Supply, 1335
Bills. See Appropriation Acts
Concurrence, 1769, 3489, 3547
Estimates. See that title
Procedure, motion to reduce vote, 1579
Subjects and items discussed
Agriculture, 588, 644, 1018, 3504
Cold storage, 818, 3521
Destructive Insect and Pest Act, 3520
Entomology, 813
Experimental farms, 795, 799, 3521
Fruit, 967
Health of animals, 967, 3521
Livestock, 971, 1018, 3521
Seed, Feed and Fertilizer Control, 1011
Stock-grazing and feeding, 1718
Air Board, 1722
Air Force and Civil Aviation, 1722
Annuities, 776
Assay Office, Vancouver, 1236
Auditor General's Office, 793
Board of Commerce, 1715
Boy Scouts Association, 772
Canada Temperance Act, 3499
Canadian National parks, 1051, 1681
Canadian National railways
Advances
Canadian Government railways ($7,000,000) 2779

Supply, Committee of — Con.
Subjects and items discussed — Con.
Canadian National railways — Con.
Advances — Con.
Canadian Northern ($42,800,000) 1905, 1933
Grand Trunk ($25,750,000) 1969
Grand Trunk Pacific ($15,900,000) 1969
Grand Trunk Pacific ($800,000) 3520
Rail and car repair contracts, 1688
Canadian Press, Limited, 772
Canadian Representation in United States, 2026, 2990
Canals
Chambly, 3518
Ontario-St. Lawrence, 2779
Quebec, 2779
Rideau, 2764, 2769
St. Lawrence ship canal, 2767
Soulanges, 2768
Staff and repairs, 2779
Trent, 2764
Welland ship canal, 1687, 2747
Civil aviation, 1722
Civil Service
Bonus, 3528
Commission, 3064
Conciliation and Labour Act, 1053
Customs and Excise, 762, 1674
Distressed Canadians, relief of, 2027
Dominion lands, 1035, 1051
Dominion lands and parks, 1681, 3517
Employment offices, 1058
Exhibitions, 2026
External affairs, 411, 3508
Finance, 770
Charges of management, 1663, 3495
Paper Control inquiry, 1673
Tariff commissioner, 1663
Forestry protection, 1046
Geodetic survey, 1033
Geological survey, 1233, 1236
Genoa Conference, 1715
Girl guides, 774
Governor General's Secretary's Office, 751
Grain Inquiry Commission, 2982
Harbours and rivers. See also under this title. Public Works.
Nova Scotia, 1269, 3545
Prince Edward Island, 1270
Health, 775
Immigration, medical inspection, 2021
Quarantine, 2021
High Commissioner's office, 413
House of Commons, 2026
Housing, 774

Supply, Committee of — Con.
Subjects and items discussed — Con.
Immigration, 754, 1711, 2143, 3051
Adjustment of war claims, 1711
Chinese, 2026
St. John immigration building, 2027
Salaries, 3499
Indians, 681, 1215, 3536
British Columbia, 1713
Destitute, 1712-14
Education, 1715, 3536
Field and garden seeds, 1712
General expenses, 1712
Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, 1058
Insurance, 791
Interim. See Interim Supply
Interim Supply bill, 378, 598
Interior, 452, 1033
Dominion lands and parks, 1681, 3517
Migratory birds, 1684
National parks, 1051, 1681
Printing and stationery, 1680
Yukon, administration of, 1681
International Labour Conference, 1060
Joint Industrial councils, 1060
Justice, 451, 1274
Civil government, 1668, 3495
Exchequer court, 1274
Litigated matters, 1276
Supreme court, 1274
Yukon territory, 1275
Labour, 458, 493, 548, 1053
Conciliation and Labour Act, 1053
Employment Offices Co-ordination Act, 1058
Industrial Disputes Investigation Act, 1058
Unemployment relief, 1970, 2022
Lake of the Woods Control Board, 2025
Lignite
Bienfait briquetting plant, 1233
Utilization board, 3524
League of Nations, Permanent Secretariat, 2026
Lighthouse and coast service, 1495, 1677
Live stock, 971, 1018, 3521
Marine and Fisheries, 1676, 3051
Deep sea fisheries, conservation, 2169
Examination of masters and mates, 1490
Fish culture, 2169
Fishways, 2166
Investigation into wrecks, 1492
Life-saving service, 1494
Lighthouse and coast service, 1405, 1677
Salaries and allowances, 1497

Supply, Committee of — Con.
Subjects and items discussed — Con.
Marine and Fisheries — Con.
Marine signal service, 1499
Meterological service, 1501
Navigation, aids to, 1498
Navigation schools, 1492
Ocean and river service, 3507
Pilotage, administration of, 1499
Prince Rupert Drydock Co. claim, 3514
Registration of shipping, 1493
Removal of obstructions in navigable waters, 1493
St. Lawrence ship channel, 1494
Salaries of officers and guardians, 2166
Sorel shipyard, 1494, 2169
Steamboat inspection, 2169
Steamers and icebreakers, 1489
War claims, adjustment, 1677
Wrecking plants, subsidies, 1493
Militia and Defence, 415, 586, 1163, 1578, 1601, 1922, 2974, 3498
Allowances, active militia, 1135
Annual drill, 1163, 1578, 1610
Arsenals
Lindsay, 1979, 2085
Quebec, 1979, 2091
Battlefields memorials, 2098
Cadet services, 1972
Civil government, 415, 586, 3498
Civil pensions, 1711, 3499
Clothing and necessaries, 1978
Customs duties, 1978
Engineer services and works, 1980
Maintenance of military properties, 1980
Ordnance arms, lands, etc., 1982
Ordnance building, Quebec, repairs, 1711
Permanent force, 1982
Reductions, 1174, 1578, 1631, 1972-87, 2091-98
Royal Military College, 1985
Salaries and wages, 1985
School of instruction, 1985
Staff, pay of, 1982
Topographic survey, 1985
Training areas, 1986
Transport and freight, 1986
War claims, adjustment of, 2098, 2974
Mines and Geological Survey, 1233, 3524
Mines and Minerals, 685, 1234
Naturalization Act, 2024
Naval Service, 418, 1735
Dockyards, Halifax and Esquimalt, 1752
Fisheries protection service, 1747
Hydrographic survey, 1746

Supply, Committee of — Con.
Subjects and items discussed — Con.
Naval Service — Con.
Patrol of northern waters, 1750
Radiotelegraph service, 1749
Royal Canadian navy, 1735, 1843, 1972, 2043
Salaries and contingencies, 1745
War claims, adjustment of, 1752
Newfoundland-Labrador boundary, 1276
Paris agency, 2025
Parliamentary guide, 2024
Passport office, 2026
Patent record, 2026
Penitentiaries, 1670
Pensions, 3522
European war and active militia, 1349
Madame Fabre, 2024
Post Office, 691, 1711
Outside service, 2799
Printing and stationery, 1711
Printing Bureau, 1970
Privy Council, 410
Public Archives, 702, 2025
Public health, 2017
Public Works, 692, 747, 1238
Dredging,, 2005
Harbours and rivers, 3541
British Columbia, 2005, 3547
Manitoba, 2003, 3545
New Brunswick, 1991
Nova Scotia, 1269, 1765, 3545
Ontario, 1999
Prince Edward Island 1270, 1988
Quebec, 1998, 3545
St. John harbour improvements, 2013
Saskatchewan and Alberta, 2004, 3547
Miscellaneous, 2008
Public buildings
Alberta, 1254, 3545
British Columbia, 1255
Fittings, supplies and furniture, 1757
Generally, 1260-4
Immigration buidings, 1757
Lighting, etc., 1755
Maritime provinces generally, 1243
Ontario, 1245-68, 3544
Ottawa, 1265
Parliament buildings, 2014
Rents, repairs, etc., 1238, 1265, 1764
Rideau hall, 1756
Quarantine stations, 1238-45
Halifax, 1238
St. John, 1238-45
Williamshead, 1255
Quebec, 1245
Saskatchewan, 1253

Supply, Committee of — Con.
Subjects and items discussed — Con.
Public Works — Con.
Telephone service, 1757
Roads and bridges, 2007
Telegraphs and telephones, 2007, 2012
Purchasing Commission, 2025
Railway Commission, 2773
Railways and Canals, 407, 3518
Arbitrations and litigation, 2772
Canadian Govt. Merchant Marine, loan, 3035
Canadian National railways, 1933. See also that title
Canadian Northern advance, 1905, 1933
Canals. See under this title, Canals
Governor Generals cars, 1688
Grand Trunk arbitration, 2779
Hudson Bay railway, 1970
Intercolonial, 2767
Port Colbourne elevator, 1687
Railway policy, 1905, 1933
Salaries and contingencies, 1133
Surveys and inspections, 2779
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, 775, 2129
Royal Canadian navy, 1735, 1843, 1972, 2043
Secretary of State, 701
Civil government, 1670
Naturalization expenses, 1671
Public archives, 1673
War claims, adjustment of, 1672, 2977
Seed Grain advances, 1053
Senate, 2026
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, 385
Capital expenditure, 1279
Employers' liability compensation, 1348
Operating expenses and working capital, 1347
Pensions
European war, active militia, 1349, 1353, 1361
Salaries, 1339
Unemployment relief, 1347, 1352, 3524
Vocational loans, 1346
War service gratuity, interest on, 1346
Soldier settlement, 2023, 2131
Statutes, reprinting, 1717
Steamship services, 2027, 3026, 3505
Supplementry estimates, 1662
Taxation, business profits, income, 2024
Trade and Commerce, 699, 3541
Canada Grain Act, administration of, 2834
Dominion Bureau of statistics, 1363
Gas and electricity, inspection, 1373
Gold and Silver Marking Act, administration, 1372

Supply, Committee of — Con.
Subjects and items discussed — Con.
Trade and Commerce — Con.
Industrial and Scientific Research, 1372
International Customs Tariff Bureau, 1373
Linen yarn bounty, 1361
Printing of publications, 1373
Steamships services, 2027, 3026, 3505. For individual services see that title
Terminal elevators, 2978
Trade commissioners and commercial agents, 1373, 2989
Unemployment relief, 1061, 3524-6
Victorian order of nurses, 772
War Graves Commission, 774
Water powers, 1051
Wheat Board, 3541
Yukon territory, 1034, 1275

Supreme Court
Cameron, Mr. E. R., K.C., estimate and expenditure, 1274
Decision. See Wheat Board
Estimates, 1274
Library, 1274
Reports, 1274

Supreme Court Act Amdt. bill (Appeal from provincial courts of final resort) 1r., 2456; 2r., com., 3r., 2974

Survey and Map Work. See also Interior Department
Co-ordination of, 1986

Surveys. See also Dominion Lands; Geodetic; Geological; Topographic
Water power resources, 1051

Sussex public building, 1239

Sutherland, Mr. Donald (South Oxford)
Accredited herds, diseases, 1001
Adulteration of mill feeds, 1011, 2490
Agricultural implements, duty, 3134
Agricultural Instruction Act, 1012-1013
Air Force and civil aviation, 1731
Alderson claim, 1002-3
Beet sugar industry, 3251
Blake, late Hon. Edward, 2657
Budget, 2481. After war conditions; tribute to Finance Minister, 2481; election promises not carried out; breach of faith; the amendment; leader of Progressive party making excuses for Government; Hon. George Brown and violation of political pledges, 2482; statement of Prime Minister; Liberal declarations in favour of free trade;

Sutherland, Mr. Donald — Con.
Budget — Con.
Finance Minister chastises colleagues; opposing views in government party, 2483; a policy to suit every constituency; tacit understanding between Progressives and Liberals; public statements as to fiscal policy of Liberal party; Mr. Fielding and protection; duty on agricultural implements, 2484; reciprocity agreement; attitude of United States towards Canada; proposed duties under reciprocity, 2485; importation of agricultural products from the United States; world tendency to increase tariff barriers; valuation of currency, 2486; trade with Germany; labour costs; marking of goods; United States legislation to prevent unfair competition; industrial development of the West; sectionalism; two-party system;, 2487; Progressive party, origin and policy; record of the old Tory party; Union government tariff policy; Wartime Elections Act; tariff concessions to western Canada; Grain Growers' Grain Company contributions to political organizations, 2488; resignation of Mr. Crerar from Union government; statement of Mr. Rice Jones; Mr. Crerar's salary as president of United Grain Growers, 2489; oleomargarine; recleaned screenings; adulteration of mill feed, export duty on dairy produce; Mr. Rowell and Mr. Clark on tariff proposals of Union government; protective policy; Premier Drury and land tax, 2491; tax on unimproved land values; free trade; sales tax; condensed milk, 2492; railway situation; debt; inheritance from former Liberal government; Transcontinental railway, 2493; dumping clause; value of German mark; economy in administration, 2494; amendment, 2495
Cattle
Embargo, 1002, 1031
Free carriage of, 1029
Freight on, 1010
Stockyards, 1030
Condensed milk tax, 2492, 3266
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1437, 1455
Customs revenue, qu., 614
Drainage tiles, 3270-1

Sutherland, Mr. Donald — Con.
Experimental farms, number of, 797, 801, 805, 813, 1015
M. to reduce item, 812
Farm tractors, duty on, 769
Feed Control Act, 1011
Filled milk and cream, qu., 963
Freight on hay for stock, 1007
Health of animals, Alderson claim, 1002-3-5
Hides, price of, 3139
Hog cholera, 1009
Alderson claim, 1005
Immigration
Bonus to agents, 3062
Unemployment and, 3058
Imports into Canada, qu., 610; qu., 612; qu., 613
Marshall, Mr. Duncan, 1032
Meat and Canned Foods Act, 3050
Militia and Defence
Arsenals
Lindsay, 2091
Quebec and, 1982, 2087-97
Expenditures and policy, 1981
Military properties, 1981
Naval Service, co-ordination with, 420
Pay of staff, M. to reduce item, 1982
Milk herds, tuberculosis, 1006
National Defence, department of, 1732-4, 1981
Naval policy, 2073
Royal Canadian navy, 2073
Oleomargarine
Importation of materials, qu., 613; qu., 704; qu., 728
Manufacture and importation, M. (Mr. Neill) 1816
Materials for, 3270
Oleomargarine Act Amdt. bill, 3432, 3487
Parliament buildings, purchase of furniture, 1756-7
Pensions Board investigation, 3156
Pensions Committee, 3348-9, 3357
Final report, 3351
Sales tax, 3270
Soldiers' bonus, M. (Mr. Arthurs) 447
Stallion clubs, 1031
Standard of living, 3139
Sugar beet industry, 3267
Wheat board, 2947
Wool, duty on, 3132-35

Sutherland, Hon. Mr. Justice, qu., 366

Swift Current post office building, 1253

Sydney, N.S.
Pilotage district, 3508
Reserve. See Indians

Sydney, N.S. — Con.
Steel workers, unemployment, 1076
Unemployment contracts for steel rails, 1688

Tadoussac-Murray Bay steamship service, 3035

Tampa Exhibition, 2026

Tar Sands. See Mines and minerals

Tariff, 1290. See also Budget; Customs; Trade. For items discussed See Customs Tariff
Amended resolutions, 2854
Australia, preferential treatment, 2110
Automobiles, 2116, 2186, 2206, 2230. See also Budget
Book paper for magazines, 2855
Canada-West Indies trade agreement, 2110
Changes, 2174, 2851
Cigarettes, 2855
Commission, proposed permanent, 2269, 2339, 2351, 2625
Commissioner, 1663
Salary, 3504
Comparison with Laurier-Fielding tariff, 208
Dumping clause, 2184, 2197. See also Speeches on Budget
Duty on boots and shoes, 159-160
Fordney. See United States
France, 2032
Fruit, 2197. See also that title
Fuel oil, 344, 1761
Immigration and, 2157
Inquiry, 1920-21, cost, etc., qu., 2215
Legislation, history of, 2184, 2429-30, 2655
Liberal policy. See Liberal Convention of 1919
Ministers and Directorships, 1088
Prohibitory Central European, 2646
Reduction, 2111, 2114, 2286, 2844
Resolutions, 2118. For items See Customs Tariff
Amended, 2851, 2874
Bill, 3476-7
Revision, 2110-14
Former, 2426
Necessity for. See Speeches on Address; Budget
Shoe manufacturers and, 141. See also Boots and Shoes
Tractors, 2115. See also Budget
Unemployment and, 3527
Valuations for duty, 3413-15

Taschereau, Premier, and St. Lawrence river waterway, 137, 1191

Taxation, 2496. See speeches on Budget; Revenue Bills
Amusement, 2395
Automobiles. See under this title, Sales tax
Bachelor, 82
Bank circulation, 2117
Beer, ale, etc., 2117, 2567, 2852, 2857
Bond and stock transfers, 2117, 2853
Bonds held in United States non-taxable, 1133; qu., 2971
Breadner, Mr. R. W., Commissioner, salary, 2024
Burdensome, 2242, 2248, 2600, 2661. See also speeches on Address; Budget
Urban population on, 2394
Business profits, qu., 1657, 1658, 2024, 2172-9, 2281, 2562, 2653
Administration of, 2024
British Empire Steel Comporation, qu., 1067
Canadian Ford Company, qu., 3599
Cheque tax, 1036, 2117, 2177, 2269, 2329, 2462, 2640, 2676, 2852, 2856, 3258
Protests against, 2395
Classification of income tax-payers, 1063
Condensed milk, 2492, 3264, 3271, 3409
Confectionery, 2177, 2641, 2676, 2852, 2857
Commodity tax, 2883
Consumer of, 2507
Customs. See Customs Tariff; Tariff
Debt and, 2459. See also Public Debt
Direct and indirect, 2386, 2402, 2648, 2707
Effect on trade, 2859
Estimated revenues from, 2172
Evasions, 2395
Excess profits, 2441, 2695
Express money orders and travellers cheques, 2856
Garbage collection tax in Ontario, 1256
Income, 2442, 2686. See also that title
Administration of, 2024
Banks, payments by, qu., 1400
Forms, 3485
Members of provincial legislature, 3486
Railway men and commercial travellers, 3485
Revenue and classification, 1063; qu., 1399-1400
Inequalities, 2255
Inheritance tax, 184, 2442, 2510, 2601, 2626, 2686, 2708, 2844
Insurance
Foreign companies, 2462
Premiums, 2117, 3253

Taxation — Con.
Land values, 2191, 2405, 2443, 2492, 2510, 2626, 2686, 2695-6, 2844,
Estimated revenue from, 2601
Loan companies, 2299
Luxuries, 2260, 2561, 2696
Modification of, 230. See Speeches on Address; Budget
Municipal, payment of by Government, 1256, 1257
Mutual insurance companies, 3477. See also under this title, Insurance
New, 2116, 2177, 2329
Non-taxable bonds, 1133, 2971
Overlapping, 2463
Per capita, 2341
Post Office money orders, 2857
Principle of, 2281
Property, 2443
Provincial, payment to British Columbia govt., 1714
Receipts, 2270, 2853-7
Riordon Company, qu., 372; qu., 607
Sales tax, 2220, 2843. See also Special War Revenue bill
Ale, beer, etc., 2117, 2567, 2852, 2857
Automobiles, 2116, 2186, 2206, 2260. See also Automobiles; Budget
Collections, qu., 375
Confectionery, 2117, 2641, 2676
Exempted goods, 2126
Beet pulp dried, 2852
Fertilizers, 2852
Goods on which tax was collected, 1921-22, 1212
Increase, 2393
Mineral waters, 2117
Soldier settlement, municipal taxes, 1257
Special War Revenue Act. See that title
Stocks and bonds, 2856
Stock transfers, 2117, 2853
Telegrams and cables, 2117, 2178, 2856
Transient aliens, 2155

Taylor, Dr., qu., 1211

Technical Education. See Labour

Telegraphs. See also Wireless

Telegraphs and Telephones
British Columbia, 2008, 2012
Canadian National lines, qu., 3360
Humboldt-Fort Pitt telegraph line, 2007
Lower St. Lawrence and maritime provinces, 2012
Prince Edward Island, 2012
Public buildings, Ottawa, 1757
Saskatchewan and Alberta, 2007, 2012

Telegraphs and Telephones — Con.
Telegrams and cables, tax on, 2117, 2178, 2856
Yukon, cost of, 1275, 2012

Telephones. See Telegraphs and Telephones

Temperance. See Canada Temperance Act

Ten Eyck, Congressman, 1396

Terminal Elevators. See Grain and Grain Trade

Terminal Facilities. See St. John

Territorial Waters, Fishing beyond. See Fisheries Act Amdt.

Territories, Unorganized. See Royal Canadian Mounted Police

Textile Industry, 2882. See Speeches on Budget
Foreigners engaged in, 2518
Occupational diseases. See Labour
Profits, 2632

Thompson, Colonel Andrew, soldiers' bonus, 403, 432

Thompson, Colonel J. T. C. See Pensions Board

Thompson, Mr. T. H. (East Hastings)
Dairy inspection, 1009
Dairy produce, grading of, 655-6
Stamp tax on cheques, 3261

Three Rivers Clerk of the Peace. See Criminal Code

Threshing Machines. See Agricultural Implements

Thunder Bay, icebreaking, 1677

Thurston, Mr. John J. (Victoria, Ont.)
Immigration, travelling expenses, 757
Militia and Defence, Lindsay arsenal, 2085
River-gauging and metering, 2011
Trent canal, Nassau dam, qu., 2457

Tidal Fisheries. See Quebec Fisheries

Tidal Survey. See Naval Service

Timber. See also Lumber
Acquisition of British Columbia areas by Japanese, 2311
Gaspé, in, 625
Illegal cutting on Tobique reserve, 1233
Lease of Ontario areas, 2805; qu., 2992
Protection of. See Forestry

Tobacco
American Tobacco Company, 2547
Bull Durham, comparative prices, 2546
Cigarettes, duties on, 2394, 2547, 2852-3
Cigars, duties on, 2115, 2853, 2857
Duties, 2115, 2394, 2546, 2891
Experimental station at L'Assomption, 1776
Imperial Tobacco Company, 2546
Industry, protection, 2891
Raw leaf, 2115, 2673, 2853

Tobin, Mr. E. W. (Richmond and Wolfe)
Canadian National railways, purchase of ties, qu., 1659
Oleomargarine, importation and manufacture, qu., 1506
Richmond and Wolfe
Post offices, qu., 1507
Postmasters, qu., 1508
Rural mail routes, qu., 1505

Tobin, Lieut. Col., Vancouver, letter of, 1975

Tobique Reserve. See Indians

Todd, Mr. W. F., election promises in Charlotte, N.B., 1994

Tolmie, Hon. S. F. (Victoria City)
Accredited herd system, 2738
Agricultural exhibitions, 650
Agriculture
Cattle embargo, 973-4
Dept., Mr. T. N. Lynton, 588
Live stock industry, 971
Livestock trade with South America, 648
Salaries, 656
Animal Contagious Diseases bill, 2734-43
Bovine tuberculosis, 2738
Budget, 2591. Duration of previous Parliament; congratulations to Finance Minister, 2591; tariff and agricultural implements; trade relations with Australia; agricultural conditions; mixed farming, 2592; wool and sheep raising; dumping clause; British Columbia fruit industry; United States competition, 2593; tax on temperance beverages; fruit juices; grading hogs for the British market; extermination of hog cholera, 2594; United States system of dealing with disease; eradication of bovine tuberculosis, 2595; horse racing, Federal control of and revenue from, 2596; cattle export; embargo; new taxes; amendment, 2597;
Cold storage, 818
Entomology, orchard protection, 816

Tolmie, Hon. S. F. — Con.
Esquimalt and Nanaimo railway bill, 1156, 1161, 1353, 1355, 1604
Esquimalt dry dock, 597
Experimental farms, British Columbia, 796
Fisheries dept., 2166
Fishing schooner race, 3512
Fruit growers, protection, 2593, 3424
Health of Animals
Diseases, 968, 2594, 2738
Tuberculosis, 2594, 3521
Hog cholera, 2594, 2738
Horse-racing, federal control, 2596
Immigration of Japanese, 1289, qu., 1459
Marine and Fisheries
Examination of masters and mates, 1491
Lightkeepers' salaries and allowances, 1497
Ministers' secretaries, 413
Oleomargarine, M. (Mr. Neill) 1785
Opium and Narcotic Drug Act Amdt. bill, 2825, 3017
Oriental Aliens, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 1567
Oriental immigration
Japanese, 1289, qu., 1399, qu., 1459
Patronage, civil service, 3083
Victoria post office building, repairs, 1255-8

Topographic Maps, qu., 1631

Topographic Survey, 1043

Tormentine Reef, buoy, 1499

Toronto
Campaign advertisement, 198-199
Cheque tax, 2395, 2329
Customs house, 198-9, 1246-51
Harbour improvements, qu., 365, 1187, 1467, 1471, 1474, 3541
Imperial convention of teachers, 1673
International yacht race, 3513
Post Office, qu., 108-9, 368
Building, 1246-51
Revenue, 1250
Power plant, public ownership, 123
Prison reform, municipal farms, 1277
Railway facilities, 66
Viaduct, qu., 1660
Railway grades, reduction of, 74
Rate increases, 131
Representation of, 1365
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment staff, 1343
Steam railway freight, qu., 936
Street railway
Public ownership, 1937
Service, 63
Toronto Suburban railway, qu., 2457
Transportation commission, 130
Unemployment, 86

Toronto Electric Light Company, 123

Tourist Traffic
Banff-Windermere highway, 1681
Highways, 1681. See also that title
Visitors to Canadian National parks, 1052

Town Planning, Banff, 1052

Townsend, United States Senator, 1206

Tracadie Lazaretto, 1240, 2021

Tractors, 769, 2354, 3123. See also Agricultural Implements
Value $1,400 and less to be free, 2115

Trade and Commerce, 2108. See also Customs and Excise; Exports; Imports; Speeches on Budget; Tariff
Agreements and negotiations, 2110, 2172
Agricultural implements, in, 2620-1. See also that title
Australia, with, 9, 174-5. See also Steamship Services
Austria, with, 2535
Bills to be preceded by resolution, 1283
British Preference and Canadian seaports. See British Preference
Canada-Mexico, qu., 606, 699-700, 2989
Canadian ports by, 104. See also British Preference
Channels of, 336-7
Competition, 223. See Speeches on Budget
Consular agents, repeal of Act of 1921, 3222, 3477
Consular certificates, 2114, 3222, 3477
Department
Canada Grain Act, administration, 2834
Estimates, 1361, 2834, 2978, 3026, 3541
Salaries, etc., 699
Elevators, terminal, maintenance and equipment, 2978
Exchange value of commodities, 2868
Expansion, 2021
Export. See St. John Terminal Facilities
Exports and imports, 1876-77 and 1921-22, qu., 1376. See also Imports
Foreign. See also Germany
France-Belgium, 3223
Freight rates, effect on, 276
Germany, with, 138, 2203, 2279, 2535, 2859. See also Customs; Germany; Speeches on Budget
Great Britain, 2540. See also British Preference
And United States, 2369
International, 2862
Interprovincial, 2284

Trade and Commerce — Con.
Italian, effect of currency valuation on, 2849
Mexico, with, qu., 606, 699-700, 2989
Necessity for revival, 105. See also Budget; Industrial Depression; Speeches on Address
Potatoes. See that title
Russian, consortium to re-establish, 1463
Southern Pacific dominions, 2990
Steamships Services. See that title
Total
1876-77 and 1921-22, statement, 1376
1900-1921, qu., 1633
Statement, 1376
Trade commissioners and commercial agents, 1373, 2114, 2581, 2989
United States with, 2223, 2449-50. See also that title
West Indies. See St. John Terminal Facilities; Steamship Services

Trades and Labour Congress
Oriental immigration, 1514
Unemployment insurance, 1081

Transatlantic Traffic. See St. Lawrence River Waterway

Transcontinental. See Canadian National Railways

Transportation, 2580, 2611. See also Crowsnest Pass Agreement; Freight Rates; Railways; St. Lawrence River Waterway
Cattle, free carriage of, 1029
Commodity and freight rates, 234
Costs. See Freight Rates
Farm products of, 231
Fish, 2166
Loss of, 175
Maritime provinces in, 106-111, 2687-8
Nationalization, 2325. See also Canadian National railways
Problems. See Budget; Speeches on Address. See also that title
St. Lawrence River Waterway, 269
M. (Mr. Church) 1183, 1203-8
Tonnage rates, 234
Water, 1939

Trawlers. See Naval Service

Treaties. See also Conferences
Anglo-Japanese, 168
Chinese Customs Tariff Treaty, 3161
Far Eastern, 3160
Four Power. See Limitation of Armaments

Treaties — Con.
France-Belgium, 3223
Hungary and Turkey, 3490, 3547
Tabled, 3359
International Opium Convention, qu., 1066
Japan, with, 1511
Lemieux treaty with, 1459
Limitation of Armaments, 3158
Peace treaty with Germany, Lusitania claims, 3599
Pelagic Sealing, 1844
Prevention of use of noxious gases and chemicals, 3159
Protection of neutrals and non-combatants at sea, 3159
Quadruple Pacific, 3160
Versailles, 2848

Treaty of Peace with Hungary and Turkey bill
1r., 3490; 2r., com., 3r., 3547

Tree Planting. See also Forestry
Provincial highways, qu., 2039

Tremblay, General, Quebec Harbour Commission, 1477

Trent Canal. See Canals

Trenton Harbour bill
Res., 3436, 3493; 1r., 2r., com., 3494; 3r., 3495

Trépanier, Alderman, of Montreal, 1392

Trial by Jury, 1388. See also Criminal Code Amdt.

Trusts and Combines, 2395, 2414. See also Address; Budget
Minister of Labour and, 200

Trust Companies Act Amdt. bill
1r., 1210; 2r., ref. to Banking and Commerce Com., 1464; com., 3r., 3142; Senate amdts., 3607

Tsur, Dr., Chinese-Consul General, 1776

Tuberculosis. See also Health; Hospitals
Bloc areas, 3521
Bovine, 2556, 2595, 3521. See also Animal Contagious Diseases bill
Indians, 1225, 1228
Returned Soldiers. See Pensions; Returned Soldiers' Insurance; Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment hospitals, 1344

Tupper, Sir Charles, and maritime union, 107-108

Turgeon, Mr. Onésiphore (Gloucester)
Address in reply, 273. Congratulations; maritime provinces and the Intercolonial, 274-276; government ownership of railways, 277; tariff questions, 278; natural resources of western provinces, 279
Budget, 2188. Mr. Fielding's visit to Washington; Fordney tariff; relations with the United States, 2189; public debt; income and business profits taxes; economy; British preference; duties on farm implements, 2190; fishing industry; lumber; alcohol for medicinal purposes; sales tax; taxation of land values, 2191; Liberal platform of 1919; capital and labour; immigration, 2192; railways; Transcontinental; opposition of C.P.R., 2193; board of directors; grain shipments, 2194; public ownership; Intercolonial, 2195; regional control of Canadian National railways, 2196
Canadian National railways
Board of directors, 2194
Hanna and Mitchell, Messrs., salaries, qu., 471
Public ownership, 2193
Transcontinental
Grain shipments, 2194
Opposition of Canadian Pacific to, 2194
Canadian Pacific railway, cost, 2193
Civil Service patronage, 3082
Immigration, agricultural workers, 2193
St. John terminal facilities, 848
Single tax, 2191

Turkey, Peace Treaty with, 3359, 3547

Turtle Mountain Forest reserve, qu., 615

Ukrainians. See Immigration

Ultra Vires, Canada Grain Act, 1132

Undesirables, deportation of. See Criminal Code; Immigration; Opium and Narcotic Drugs

Unemployment, 1290, 2331, 2627. See also Address; Budget; Canadian Patriotic Fund bill; Housing; Immigration; Labour; Returned Soldiers
Agricultural conditions and, 2158
Banff-Windermere road, 1052, 1682
Canada, number in, qu., 3362
Cities, in, 86

Unemployment — Con.
Continuance of, 237
Credit system, 219
Economic causes, 1081, 3526
Employment offices, Co-ordination Act, 1058, 2022
German competition and, 2178. See also Germany
Farm labourers, 2331. See also that title
Housing, 219. See also Housing
Immigration and, 225, 2143
Importations and, 210
Insurance, 88, 218, 1070, 1081
Land settlement and, 182-3
Military expenditures, 1144
National conference proposed, 1082
Nova Scotia miners, 1759. See also Labour
Occupational diseases. See Labour
Policy of Government, inquiry, 3491
Proposed order steel rails to relieve, 1691
Rail and car repair contracts, 1690, 1912
Relief, 1061, 1719, 1970, 2022; qu., 3152
Camps, 86
Expenditure for, 86, 2023
Report of Ontario Government commission, 218
Returned soldiers, 2458, 3311, 3329-30. See also that title
Hikers, qu., 3153
Riley's army, qu., 3364. See also "General" Macdonald's Army
Seasonal, 87-88
Soldiers, 3524. See also Returned Soldiers
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, relief, 1347, 1352
Standing Committee, proposed, 1082
Toronto, aid to, 121, 199
Unemployment Service Council, recommendations, 2803
Unemployment situation, 1069-84
Welland canal, 2750

Unimproved Land Values, tax. See Taxation

Union of Canadian Municipalities
Foreigners, immigration of, 1392
Immigration, 2155

Unions. See Labour

United Farmers of Alberta
Loan system, resolution, 220

United Farmers of British Columbia, 1354
Oriental immigration, 1514

United Farmers of Ontario, 63
Platform, 2393
Protection and, 2440

United Grain Growers' Limited, 2489, 2653
Agricultural implements, 304, 2693, 3116
Crerar, Mr., and, 2489
Political organizations, contribution to, 2488
Report, 2654

United Mine Workers. See Nova Scotia miners

United Shoe Machinery Co. of Canada, 1902

United States. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway
Air Service, 1726
American Bankers' Association, resolution, 2189
Amicable relations with, 91
Bonds held in, non-taxable, 1133
Canadian exports to, 209. See also Exports
Canadian-owned railways in, 312
Canadian representation in, 2990
Coal and steel industries, 2419
Coal, importations from, 124, 1759. See also Coal
Con Rein, sinking of, 1382
Duty on Canadian apples, 164. See also Fruit
Duty on Canadian potatoes and wheat, 239. See also Root Vegetables
Emigration to, 2516. See also Immigration
Factories in Canada, 2413-14, 2467
Farmers, competition with, 2527
Farmers' bloc, 69, 210, 988, 2323. See also under this title, Fordney
Flag, 1265
Fordney tariff, 53, 93-94, 209, 272, 343, 2112, 2178, 2189, 2219, 2336, 2367, 2409, 2527, 2580
Effect of, 2454
Grand Trunk mileage in, 191
Immigration from, 236, 2147. See also that title
Comparison, 3056
Figures, 758
Years' residence in Canada, 236
Imperial pensioners in, 1347
Importations, duty on, 208-209
Importations of British goods through, qu., 375
Income tax, non-resident aliens, 1304
Industries developing Canadian resources, 2667
Insurance companies, tax. See Special War Revenue Act
Investment in Canadian industries, 2368, 2546
Iron and steel industry, 2412-13
Magazines, imports, 3109

United States — Con.
Medical inspection of immigrants for Canada, 2022
Military expenditure, 1622
Oriental immigration, 1515
Pecuniary claims convention with, 1276
Pelagic Sealing Treaty, 1844
Railway difficulties, 67-70, 129, 1917-18
Railways
Lines in Canada, 204
Purchase of, 2611
Reciprocity, 77, 102, 2111, 2201, 2285, 2368, 2463, 2485, 2511, 2527, 2616, 2694, 2846. See also Address; Budget
St. Lawrence and Welland canals, 2749
St. Lawrence river waterway, 1184, 1315 1396. See also that title
Treaty, consideration of proposed, 2207
Steel prices, 2412
Tariff discrimination, 2466
Tariff legislation, 113, 988, 2487, 2620-1, 2864. See also under this title Fordney
Trade, 2111, 2178, 2610,. See also under this title, Reciprocity
Cattle, 2695
Relations, 2908
War operations, 1336
Washington
Hon. Mr. Fielding's trip to, 2112, 2189, 2300
Wrangel Island, 1751
Russian claim to, 2208

Unopposed Motions for Papers
Algoma Indian lands, timber leases (Mr. Simpson) 942
Appraisers, Paris and London, (Mr. Parent) 1068
Avignon, Que., post office (Mr. Marcil) 829
Bonaventure
Mail contract (Mr. Marcil) 829
Post office, (Mr. Marcil) 829
Caisse, Mr. J. J., Montreal post office (Mr. Marcil) 828
Canadian Expeditionary Force, 112th Battalion band instruments (Mr. Martell) 372
Canadian Northern and Grand Trunk insurance (Mr. Macdonald, Pictou) 828
Canadian Northern bonds (Mr. Stevens) 2458
Canadian ships, damage during war (Mr. Bristol) 1183
Caraquet and Gulf shore railway (Mr. Hanson) 1183
Carleton, Que., post office (Mr. Marcil) 829
Cattle embargo, Hon. Manning Doherty (Mr. White) 616

Unopposed Motions for Papers — Con.
Civil Service bonus, (Mr. Garland, Carleton) 828
Dauphinee, Mr. Charles, dismissal (Mr. Baxter) 2584 Dominion Iron and Steel Co., contract (Mr. Caldwell) 616
Extra-territorial rights (Mr. Meighen) 1068
Fisheries
Establishment of independent department (Mr. Martell) 372
Transfer to British Columbia (Mr. McQuarrie) 2042
Fort Edward lands (Mr. Martell) 372
Genoa conference (Mr. Boys) 1905
Grand Trunk Railway Company 1921 loan, (Mr. Putnam) 828
Griffenhagen and Associates report (Mr. Séguin) 1633
Holland, Lee, deportation (Mr. Meighen) 372
Hudson Bay, St. John parish patents (Mr. Garland, Carleton) 829
Hudson, Govt. cutter (Mr. Baxter) 3600
Immigration
Foreigners admitted as farmers (Mr. Stevens) 1068
Western lands, on, 616 (Mr. Stevens)
Indian agency, Bear river, N.S., (Mr. Lovett) 828
Inverness Railway and Coal Co., (Mr. Chisholm) 372
Kootenay flats (Mr. Humphrey) 286
Legal costs, payments (Mr. Martell) 2971
McQuarrie, John C., dismissal of, 377
Mail contract, Rigaud-St. Rédempteur (Mr. Ouimet) 1776
Migratory Birds Convention, infraction, (Mr. Martell), 377
Nanaimo County judge (Mr. Neill) 2042
Nautical assessors (Mr. Church) 1633
Newspaper censors (Mr. Archambault) 1068
Nova Scotia
Barristers, payments (Mr. Martell) 707
Miners, McLachlan correspondence (Mr. Stewart, Leeds) 616
Order of Grain-Baggers (Mr. Stevens) 2806
Page, Mr. H. W. A. claim (Mr. Neill) 2042
Palais station, Que. (Mr. Parent) 1068
Parc St. Charles Company (Mr. Marcil) 372
Paspebiac post office, (Mr. Marcil) 829
Post Office department (Mr. Séguin) 3600
Purchasing Commission, origin of goods (Mr. Raymond) 2042
Quebec
Bridge (Mr. Parent) 1068

Unopposed Motions for Papers — Con.
Fisheries (Mr. Marcil) 616
Harbour Commission (Mr. Meighen) 372
Sardines for export (Mr. Grimmer) 1183
Shigawake post office, (Mr. Marcil) 829
Sorel shipyards, dismissals, (Mr. Hanson) 377
Tobacco experimental station L'Assomption (Mr. Séguin) 1776
Tug Pekin (Mr. Maclean, Prince) 1289
Victory bonds, (Mr. Putnam) 942
Winnipeg strike (Mr. McMurray) 1068
Yukon territory
Royalty on minerals (Mr. Black) 616
Transfer of mineral claims, (Mr. Black) 616

Universal Postal Union, 3173

Universities, Physical drill and military training, 1615

Unrestricted Reciprocity, Hon. Edward Blake on, 2677

Urban Population, loss of. See Immigration; Population

Vancouver
Anti-Japanese riots, 1511-16
Assay office, 1236
Ballantyne pier, wages of workmen, 1465, 1469
Board of Trade drydock, 2009
Customs aerial patrol, 1730
Drydock, 1255, 1484, 2005, 2009, 3542
Board of Trade telegram, 2009
Expenditure in, 2309
Free port, proposal, 2470
Harbour, 1473. See also Vancouver Harbour Commission bill
Mounted Police barracks, Fairmont, 1255
Ocean tonnage, 2008
Post office building repairs, 1255
Railway duplication at, 74-75
Shipment of grain from, 235
Sun, criticism of Hon. John Oliver, 2237
Unemployment conference, 1069
Unemployment relief camps, 86

Vancouver, Fraser Valley and Southern Railway Company, 798

Vancouver Harbour Commissioners Act
Amdt. bill (Port Warden and Shipping Master) 1r., 1929; 2r., com., 2821; 3r., 2996

Vancouver Island coal mines, 178

Vancouver Sun, criticism of Hon. John Aliver, 2236-7

Vegetables. See also Root Vegetables
Dumping clause, 2372. See also Speeches on Budget
Production of near Montreal, 1019

Versailles, Treaty of, 2848

Vessels. See also Canadian Government Merchant Marine; Shipbuilding
Aurora. See Naval Service
Britisher, 3514
Canadian Exporter, wreck of, qu., 1210
Canadian Farmer, 2311
Canadian Freighter, qu., 963, 2311
Canadian Inventor, 2312
Canadian Prospector, 2311
Canadian Winner, 2311
Champlain, qu., 1400
Con Rein, 1382
Foreign ships of war, exemption from pilotage dues. See Canada Shipping Act
Hudson, Government cutter, qu., 3598
James Whalen, 1677
Lambton, wreck of, 1492, 3507
Mildred McColl, 3598
Niobe, sale of. See Naval Service
Ocean-going, 1471. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway
Patrician. See Naval Service
Patriot. See Naval Service
Pekin, 1289
Phalarope, patrol boat, 1503
Plamonder, dredge, 2006
Quebec, in and out of, 1471
Scottish, 3514

Vickers Company, 320, qu., 936
Claim, 2975
Elevator dredge, 1494

Victoria, B.C.
Drydock, 2009. See also Quebec Harbour Commission bill
Govt. expenditure in, 2309
Lightkeepers' salaries, 1497
Ocean tonnage, 2008
Post office building, 1255
Wooden ships constructed at, qu., 364

Victoria Bridge. See Bridges

Victoria Memorial Museum
Geological specimens, 1237
Potlach institution, 1377. See also Indians

Victorian Order of Nurses, 772
Unemployment, relief of, 86

Victory Bonds. See also Finance
Exempt from taxation, 263
Five year maturities, qu., 2993

Vidal's Point Park, 1052

Vien, Mr. Thomas (Lotbinière)
Daylight saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 948
Dominion lands, cancellation of leases bill, 3467
Senate amdts., 3615
Duty on apples, 164
Esquimalt and Nanaimo Railway Company bill, 1161
Judges' Act Amdt. bill, 426
Military expenditure and policy, 1145
National Defence bill, 661
Mounted police, 675
Pension Act Amdt. bill, 3451
Point of order, Rule 18, tedious repetition, 1360
Rail and car repair contracts, 1695
Royal Canadian Navy, 1868-89
Soldiers' bonus, 440
War, advances to Imperial Government, 1288
Wheat Board, 2969

Vimy Memorial, 2098

Vitamines, 1781

Voters, qualification of. See Dominion Election Act; Euler; Rinfret

Wabana Ore, 2412-13

Waddington, Mr., 398

Wage Cuts. See Nova Scotia Miners

Wage Investigators. See Labour

Wages. See Labour; Unemployment

Wallace, Mr. J. A. (Norfolk)
Tuberculous cattle, 2742

Wallace Shipbuilding Company, 3542

War. See also Militia and Defence
Battlefields memorials, 2098
Canadian and United States armies, operations, 1336
Claims, adjustment of, 1155, 1672, 1677, 2098, 2977
British Admiralty, 1752
Details of estimates, qu., 1288
Hospital ship, claim for loss, 1082, 2975
Militia and defence, 2974
Naval service, 1752
Repatriation, dependents of soldiers, 1711

War — Con.
Conscription and, 2570. See also that title
Conscription of wealth, 2725
Debts, 90, 174. See also Address; Budget; Public Debt
Demobilization, expenditure for, 1155, 1163, 1171
Equipment, 2616
Expenditures, 2228
First Canadian Contingent, qu., 1376
Foreign ships, exemption from pilotage dues. See Canada Shipping Act
Imperial War Graves Commission, 2099
Indebtedness, 2294
Kemp, Sir Edward, 1169
Laws of. See Limitation of Armaments
Medals, 1752, 2975
Mewburn, Hon. S. C., 1169
Mobilization of unfit men, 2608
Munitions, shipment of from Great Britain, 1154-63
Newspaper censors, 1068
Overseas ministry, 1169
Pensions. See that title
Preparation for, 1335. See also Militia and Defence; National Defence; Naval Service
Profiteering, 2221, 2247, 2395, 2440, 2455. See also speeches on Budget
Reparation claims, Lusitania, 3599
Results, 91, 2588, 2861-2, 2895
Scandals, 90
Taxation and, 2567. See also that title
War memorials Commission, 2098

War Finance Corporation, 54

War Graves Commission, 774, 2098

War Measures Act, 662, 663, 1362

War Purchasing Commission, sale of warlike stores, 1171

Ward, Mr. W. J. (Dauphin)
Animal Contagious Diseases Act Amdt. bill, 2738
Apple-growing industry, 3419
Boy Scouts, 773
British Columbia fisheries, M. (Mr. McQuarrie) 863
Budget, 2400. Congratulations to Finance Minister; reactionary and mysterious budget, 2400; the tariff; protection and indirect taxation; drydock on Pacific coast; purpose and principle of protection; invisible government; Canadian manufacturers a Bourbon; free trader when purchasing; pro-

Ward, Mr. W. J. — Con.
Budget — Con.
tectionist when selling; raw material and finished product, 2401; subsidizing of one industry means penalizing of another; immense wealth and dire need; results of indirect taxation; cumulative effect of tariff taxation, 2402; agricultural conditions in western Canada; rural depopulation, 2403; railway situation; land speculation; expenditures on agriculture contrasted with amounts paid to manufacturers; exports the source of wealth, 2404; Professor Ely on taxation; national debt; speculators and unearned increment; tariff from cradle to grave; land tax; payment of war costs; binder twine industry, 2405; basic industries, 2406
Canadian National railways
Directors, employees, represented, 2794
Yorkton branch line, 2139
Experimental farms, 811
Fisheries
Fish culture, 2169
Fishways, 2168
Generals Burstall and Gwatkin, retirement, qu., 1211
Income tax, cost of collection, 2025
Rail and car repair contracts, 1695
Rideau canal, 2767
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, estimates, 2130
St. John terminal facilities, 848
Soldier land settlement, 2136
Soldier Settlement Act Amdt. bill, 3406
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, employees, 3602
Supply, opportunity for members to speak, 1985
Welland ship canal, 2764

Warlike Stores. See Ammunition; Militia and Defence

Warships and Torpedo Boats, qu., 827

Wartime Elections Act, 14, 258, 350, 352, 473, 2229, 2289, 2488. See also Dominion Elections Act, M. (Mr. Euler)

Warner, Mr. D. W. (Strathcona)
Address in reply, 349. Progressive point of view; farmers not asking for special privileges, 349; excessive freight rates; immigration problem, 350; protective tariff and the manu-

Warner, Mr. D. W. — Con.
Address — Con.
facturers, 351; banking system, 352; Wartime Elections Act, 350, 352
Agricultural fairs, 651
Blankets, duty on, 3132
Budget, 2204. Tariff, disappointment at proposals of Finance Minister, 2204; small reductions; oleomargarine; dairying industry; protective duties on woollen goods and shoes; income tax; lack of purchasing power, 2205; british preference; agricultural implements; sales taxes; automobiles and the tariff, 2206
Canadian representation in United States, 2025
Crowsnest pass agreement, M. (Mr. Kennedy, Essex) for Special Com., 1429
Daylight Saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 952
Exhibition grants, 983
Experimental farms, 809
Forestry, aerial patrol at High River, 1050
Hudson Bay railway, completion of, 2797
Indian education, Edmonton school, 1231
Northwest rebellion pensions, 3523
Oleomargarine, Manufacture, etc., M. (Mr. Neill) 1829
Pensions Com. final report, 3338

Washington
Canadian representation in. See Canadian Representation in United States
Conference. See International Labour Conference; Limitation of Armaments
Visit of Finance Minister to, 2112, 2181, 2189, 2300

Water-Borne Traffic. See St. Lawrence River Waterway

Water Powers, 71, 124, 2182. See also Hydro Electric; Lake of the Woods; St. Lawrence River Waterway
Aluminum Company of America, Cedar Rapids, 71; qu., 728; qu., 1375
Canals, on, 2747
Development of, 223
Electric energy, 133. See also Electrification
Exportation from Niagara district, 137, 1188
Lake of the Woods Control Board, 2025
Joint board, 2805; qu., 2970
Regulation Act, 1921 Repeal bill, 2991, 3199, 3435
Niagara river power development, 137, 1188
Railway electrification, 1940. See also Electrification

Water Powers — Con.
St. Lawrence and Ottawa rivers, on, 629
St. Lawrence river, M. (Mr. Church) 1183, 1205, 1314. See also that title
Surveys, 1051
Welland canal, 2747

Water Transportation, 70, 73-74. See also St. Lawrence River Waterway
Canals in United States, 68

Waterways. See Canals; International Joint Commission
St. Lawrence river, 1183. See also that title

Watson, Major General Sir David, 1477

Ways and Means, Committe of, 362, 599, 1842, 2104, 2854, 3104, 3246, 3409, 3476, 3604, 3607
Amended resolutions, 2854
Interim Supply bill, 599
M. for (Mr. Fielding) 2104
Resolutions, 2118; amended, 2854
Supply bill, 3607

Wednesday Sittings. See House of Commons

Welland Ship Canal. See Canals

West Indies
Canada-West Indies trade agreement, 2110
Subsidized steamship services and freight rates, 3026, 3032
Trade with. See St. John Terminal Facilities

Western Provinces. See Budget; Natural Resources; Speeches on Address
Agricultural depression, 1475
Flags on public schools, 1265
Marketing of grain, 114. See Wheat Board
Natural resources, 7, 12, 22, 41, 148, 279, 328, 1017. See also that title
Interest of other provinces in, 23, 340, 355, 1017
Public buildings, alleged discrimination against, 1254

Weston post office, 1259

Westport Railway. See Brockville and Westport

Wharves. See also Harbours and Rivers; Public Works
Baddeck, 1269
L'Orignal, qu., 1212
Provincial, New Brunswick, transfer, qu., 2305

Wharves — Con.
Provincial wharves and tidal waters, 1991
Sault Ste. Marie, 2006
Selkirk, 2004
Tidal waters in, 1991, qu., 2209

Wheat. See also Agriculture; Grain and Grain Trade; Wheat Board
Competition with Russia, 2157
Cost of production, 114
Dumping of. See Customs, dumping clause
Duty on, 239
Early seeding in West, 115
Exports to United States, 209
Fordney tariff and, 210. See that title under United States
Free trade in, 2528
Freight rates on, 300. See also Freight Rates
Kubanka, 2454
Marketing, 46-47, 53, 115, 151, 231, 2453. See also Budget; Speeches on Address; Wheat Board
Prices of, 152
Shipments through Vancouver, 235
Transportation, 233. See also Railways; St. Lawrence River Waterway
United States demand for, 333

Wheat Board, 31, 283, 338; qu., 472, 1118-20. See also Agriculture and Colonization Com.; Budget; Grain and Grain Trade; Grain Commission; speeches on Address
Agriculture Com. report of:
Amdt. (Mr. Sutherland) to M. for concurrence in, 2951; neg., 2969
Concurrence in report, delay, 2306
Canadian Council of Agriculture memo, 377
Constitutionality of, opinion of Law Officers, 940
Fixation of prices, 2588
Kay, Mr. privilege, 872
Participation certificates, qu., 2304
Re-establishment of, demand for, 72, 115, 146, 152, 158, 232

Wheat Board Bill. See Canadian Wheat Board Bill

White, Mr. James
Newfoundland-Labrador boundary, 1276, 3495

White, Mr. J. F. (London)
Budget, 2352. Congratulations to Finance Minister; election pledges, promises and arguments; tariff proposals; proposed permanent tariff commission, White, Mr. J. F. — Con.

Budget — Con.
2352; western agriculture; freight rates; climatic conditions; Wheat board; agriculture and protection; importation of farm produce; wider markets; free trade; farm tractors; tariff and manufacturers' profits; trade with Germany; unemployment, 2354
Experimental farms, 810
Lake Huron, marine allowance, qu., 1930
Soldiers' Civil Re-establishment, salary increases, 406

White, Sir Thomas, resignation of directorships, 1089, 1102

White Lead, duty on, 2297

White Slave Traffic, Suppression of, 3497

Whitley Councils, 1061

Widowed Mothers, Pensions. See Pensions' Committee

Wife Disertions. See Pension Act Amdt. bill

Wilson, Mr. G. C. (Wentworth)
Highways, approved, qu., 2040

Windermere Road, 1051, 1682

Windsor, N.S. removal of derelict in channel, 1493

Windsor, Ont., Canadian Transit bill. See Private Bills Discussed

Wines and Spirits. See Customs Act Amdt. bill

Winnipeg
Strike, 1068
Andrews, Mr. Alfred J., 1068
Royal Canadian Mounted Police, 671-9
Trials, cost of, qu., 1182
Unemployment, 86

Winnipeg River. See Lake of the Woods

Winnepegosis Wharf, 3545

Winter Ports in Canada. See Intercolonial Railway

Wireless Telegraphy. See also Radio
Lighthouses and, qu., 370
Marconi Wireless Telegraph Co., qu., 1063

Wives, Foreign-born, of British Subjects. See Dominion Elections Act, M. (Mr. Euler)

Wolves, destruction of livestock by, 990, 998-999

Women
Alien born. See Dominion Elections Act
Representation in Parliament. See Macphail, Miss
Voting in last election, 185

Wooden Ships, qu., 364

Woodmen of the World, 1905

Woods, Mr. R. J. (Dufferin)
Address in reply, 92. Congratulations to Miss Macphail, 92; changes in political parties; attitude of Progressive party; greater markets for farm products, 93; tariff revision; farmers not concerned with politics, 94
Budget, 2183. Tariff; history; classification; reductions; sales tax; added burden to consumer; dumping clause, 2184; free raw materials and high duties on finished products, protection on farm implements, 2185; duty on clothing, woollens, etc.; automobiles; Ford car; effect of 25 per cent duty; drawback system; farmers and protection, 2186; speeches of the Prime Minister in 1920; manufacturers free traders in raw materials; protection as it affects the consumer, 2187; agricultural implements, 2188
Canada Temperance Act Amdt. bill, 3004
Daylight Saving, M. (Mr. Kay) 953
Militia and Defence
Annual training, 1582
Expenditure and policy, 1582
Sales tax, 3264

Woodsworth, Mr. J. S. (Centre Winnipeg)
Address in reply, 84. Economic disturbance, 84-85; demand for markets; home market; unemployment, 85; unemployment insurance, 88; production, factors of; equipment; transportation question, 89; tariff revision; national debt and taxation; war fortunes and war scandals, 90; Defence department; relations with United States; war legacies, 91; reconstruction, 92
Blankets, duty on, 3132
Budget, 2242. Conservatives and Liberals, origin and policy; extension af franchise to ordinary people; agriculture and business interests not identical; labour view; sales tax unduly burdensome to family man, 2242; civil service pay;

Woodsworth, Mr. J. S. — Con.
Budget — Con.
immigrants to pay taxes and feed the railways; an administration bankrupt in ideas; no economic changes proposed; drifting and borrowing; "mortgaging the homestead"; foreign ownership of natural resources, 2243; concentration of wealth; railway exploitations; alieniation of lands and resources, 2245; mergers and watered stock; consolidation of financial organizations; grain trade and, 2246; the Great War and profiteering; financing, 2247; burden of taxation; repudiation; capital levy; income tax, 2448; profits and property rights vs. human welfare; labour and capital, 2250
Cadet camps, 1973
Canadian Government Merchant Marine, employees' wages, qu., 3598
Canadian National railways
Directors, representation of employees, 2798
Steel cars, qu., 2213
Civil Service, 3075
Bonus, 3533
Industrial councils, 1061
Patronage, 3097
Salaries, 2243
Criminal Code Amdt. (Sedition and Criminal Conspiracies) 364, 865, 1395, 3104
Debates, inaudibility of, 1755
Disarmament, 1143
Fishing schooner race, 3510
Immigration Act Amdt. (Bill 16) 364, 864, 1388, 3104
Immigration, British artisans, 2208
Immigration-Criminal Code bills
Report of Special Committee, 3281
M. to refer back, 3282
Income tax, taxpayers, qu., 1399-1400
International Labour Conference, 3601
Joint industrial councils, 1060
Labour
Industrial engineer, 494
Mounted Police and, 670-1
Military policy and expenditures, 1143
Military Service Act repeal bill, 424, 639
Ministers and Directorships, 1127
Mounted Police in unorganized territories, M., 829, 841
National Defence bill, 670
Naval Service, Royal Canadian navy, 1854
Nova Scotia miners, M. (Mr. Irvine) 516; qu., 605

Woodsworth, Mr. J. S. — Con.
Oriental labour on British ships, 2042
Post Office employees' salaries, 2801
Quebec Harbour Commission bill, fair wage clause, 1486
Railway Commission, representation of labour, 2776
Russian relief, 3516
Save the Children Fund, 3516
Unemployment
Relief, 3526
Returned soldiers, 2458
Situation, 1069-84
Unemployment Service Council, 2803
Winnipeg strike, Andrews correspondence, 2042

Wool. See also Agriculture; Livestock
Blankets, duty on, 3128
Duty on, 2415
Prices of, 985, 997
Woollen clothing, prices and labour cost, 2205, 2350, 2632. See also Speeches on Budget

Workmen. See Labour

Workmen's Compensation Act, 88, 1381

Wrangel Island, 1750, 1751
Russian title to, 2208

Wrecks. See Marine and Fisheries; Ships and Shipbuilding

Yacht Racing. See International Deep Sea Racing

York County, Ont., representation, 1365

Yorkton, Sask., Speech of Prime Minister at, 2730

Young, Arthur and Company, qu., 365, 1490

Yukon Territory
Administration of
Cost, 1681
Justice, 1275
Expenditure, 1275
Expenses, population, qu., 2456
Government of, 1034
Mineral discoveries, 1276
Parcel post, 2802
Radiotelegraph service, 1749
Telegraph line, 1749
Union for judicial purposes with British Columbia, 1275

Zaneth, Corporal, 671