Fashion Sheets Free MR. STEPHENS COMBS ISRAEL TARTE DOWN PRETTY SHARPLY

He Declares He Will Resign Before Taking Any Snubs From the Minister of Public Works - Insists on the Bar at the Mouth of the River Being Dredged-How Tarte Has Acted in the Matier-A Sensation in the House.

Liberal member for Kent, created a threatening to resign on account of discourtesy shown to him and his condiscourtesy shown to him and his constituents by the government. The member for Kent was flushed with indignation when he arose to put his case before the House. He said that while in Chatham during the Easter while in Chatham holidays he wired to the Minister of Public Works that the steam barge Ireland was ashore on the bar between Chatham and mouth of the Thames, and as there was only seven feet of water on the bar the entire fleet was water on the bar the entire fleet was tied up at Chatham. His telegram asked the Minister of Public Works to order a dredge, which was ready on the spot, to go to work and dredge the bar so that wessels could get through. The dredge could be had at the usual rate of $8 per working hour. To that telegram he could get no reply. Since he returned to Ottawa he had received several messages from prominent people in Chatham about the matter. Lumber had to be brought by rail at an additional cost of $2 to $3 per thousand feet. Stone for building could not be had, and business generally was suffering, all because Mr. Tarte would not order the dredge to open the channel. But he couldn't get Mr. Tarte to attend to the matter at all. Twice he had tried to approach him on the subject, but to approach him on the subject, but Mr. Tarte was too busy to talk. So he did not know what reply to make to his constituents. He was not going to submit to such treatment and if it

Ottawa, April 12.—Mr. Stephens, the Liberal member for Kent, created a sensation in the House yesterday by threatening to resign on account of the state of the s more courtesy when such matters were brought to his attention. (Hear, all the Minister of Public Works had to do was to order it to be put at work immediately.

Mr. Tarte's repaly was that his department had nothing to do with floating barges that go ashore. That was a matter for the marine department to deal with. The reason he didn't order dredging to be started at once was that he had not a dellar available for the purpose. Parliament would have to vote the money first. As for not answering the honorable member's telegram, the fact was that at the moment he received it he had member's telegram, the fact was that at the moment he received it he had to leave for Montreal, having learned that his youngest daughter was ill of typhoid fever.

Mr. Stephens replied that he hadn't asked Mr. Tarte to have the barge floated. What he asked was to have the bar dredged at once so that vessels could get through. (Hear, hear.) "It these boats at Chatham have to be laid up all year because there is no these boats at Chatham have to be laid up all year because there is no money to open the bar, this Canada of ours is a poorer country than I ever thought it was," said Mr. Stephens, resuming his seat.

This closed the incident and the House proceeded to business of the

THE DOWSLEY BY-LAW GOES THROUGH UNANIMOUSLY

Alderman Do not Even Discuss it-A Lucknow Man Offered the Position of City Engineer-Kick Against Tree Butchering -General City Business.

The crepe-veiled photo of the late Queen Victoria, which has hitherto hung upon the walls of the City Council chambers over the Mayor's desk, has been removed, and last evening his worship took his seat under a handsomely framed and life-sized representation of King Edward VII. The civic session was inaugurated sharp on time and the adjournment stage was reached ere the hour of ten tolled. All the members of council were present and business was transacted promptly and with a unique absence of long and useless discussion. The main features of the meeting were doubtless the recommendation by the board of works of J. D. McNabb, of Lucknow, as city engineer at a remuneration of $900 per annum, which was adopted, and the final passing of the Dowsley bylaw, upon the legal advice of City Solicitor Wilson and Bruce, Burton &

Bruce, of Hamilton. A communication was read by Ald. Cowan from Douglas & VanDusen, of Cowan from Douglas & VanDusen, of Strather, Pa., volunteering to erect a sugar beet factory in this city, employing over 100 hands, upon condition of the subscription of a $50,000 bonus by the city and $100,000 of six per cent. preferred stock by citizens and farmers. Fire Chief Pritchard reported that the department could furnish 500 or 600 feet of hose for flushing purposes. The Mayor read a communication from Jas. D. Blackburn, of Milton, wrote, asking privilege to tender on stone curbing work. Board of works.

THE DOWSLEY BY-LAW.

THE DOWSLEY BY-LAW. The Mayor read the statement of the clerk on the result of the Dows-ley By-law vote, as published in yes-terday's Planet. Also the following communication from the legal firm of Bruce, Burton & Bruce, Hamil-

"We were very much pleased with the design you sent. It was beautiful and appropriate." The Victoria Ave. Green Houses receive such words of commendation every day. Telephone No. 181.

Intending passengers for any Pacific Coast Points, including San Francisco, Los Angeles, Seattle, Tacoma, Portland, Victoria or Vancouver, will consult their interests by calling on W. E. Rispin, general passenger and ticket agent, 115 King street, who will issue tickets to any of the above points on any Tuesday from now until the end of April at $38.70 each. W. G. Merritt, City Clerk, Chatham, Ont .: Dear Sir,-You have consulted us as to what course the city of Chatham M should pursue in the case of the by-law to authorize the aid to the Dowsley Spring & Axle Co., Ltd., by the issue of debentures to the amount of $20,000, it appearing that the number of electors voting in favor of the by-law is less than three-fifths of all the rate-payers whose names appear on the voters' list and assessment roll, but that if the names of those who, as appears from the record in your office, had died prior to the date of polling, were struck out, then the number of those voting in favor of the by-law would be three-fifths of all such ratepayers.

The Municipal Act appears to be clear enough as to who is entitled to vote on such a by-law (see Sec. 353) and a person who had been rated as freeholder, if he ceased to be such at the time of tendering his vote is not the time of tendering his vote, is not entitled to vote, and it seems to us clear that if a living person who has ceased to be a freeholder is not en-entitled to vote, much more a dead person, who certainly has ceased to be a freeholder, cannot be entitled to vote, and as the real test of whether or not the by-law has been car-ried depends upon the assent or othried depends upon the assent or otherwise of those entitled to vote, we advise you to give the certificate in the form which you have submitted to us with the few words interlined by us in pencil in the fourth paragraph, and upon that certificate being given we consider that the council ought to pass the by-law, and assuming the facts to be as stated in the certificate, we think the by-law will hold good against any question as to the number voting upon it.

Yours truly,

Yours truly. BRUCE, BURTON & BRUCE. FINANCE REPORT.

THE RAILWAY DONATIONS.

As usual, the announcement of the railway donations has been left until the closing hours of the session, when business is being rushed through, and there is but little opportunity for discussion. The donations this year are not as large as they have been on some former occasions, but still they are large, and the fact that they are smaller than usual, does not make them less objectionable, They are as folsame road.

Total, $297,000. In return for this money the government will receive no mortgage or security of any kind. The only return made will be to the politicians, who, as Mr. E. B. Osler, himself a C. P. R. director, says, take their toll from every subsidy. There will be no public control of rates except in the case of the Port Arthur line, and no limitation as to the issue of stock or bonds. Some of the grants are clearly made for the purpose of connecting mining | by, bye. properties with main lines of railway; and the public will thus pay what would otherwise be put up by the owners of the mines. Now that the grants calcimine, kalsomine, etc. have been brought down it will be interesting to see whether those members on the government as well as on the opposition side of the house who have been declaiming against subsidies will vote as they have talked. Besides these grants, there is a land grant of 2,542,000 acres to a line to run from Meaford up through the Bruce peninsula, thence by ferry to Manitoulin Island; thence across the island to the mainland; thence northerly for some distance, with a branch to Sudbruy, and an extension for 105 miles west. The total length of the proposed line will be about 285 miles. The company gives the Provincial government control over rates, and agrees to give other railway companies runming powers over its road at fair rates. It also gives the Province the right to acquire the road at any time within fifteen years, upon paying the cost of tion and operation and other dike, dyke. outlays and six per cent, interest thereon, less the earnings of the road in the meantime. In fixing the amount of the purchase money the Province is to receive credit for the land grant at the rate of fifty cents per acre, and also of one-half of any subsidy that may be received from the Dominion government. The promoters of the line are Mr. Clergue and his associates at the Sault.

The report of the committee on "variant spellings" presented to the Publie School Department of the Ontario Educational Association, will, if adopted, be undoubtedly the most important feature of this year's convention. Our wonderful orthography with its mystifying manipulations of "ough" and "ight" and "tre," etc. etc., is badly in need of some radical changes, in the line of lopping off unnecessary letters, and of rationalizing some of the very irrational spellings now in vogue. Such a reform can be introduced only through the public schools of the province, and the changes proposed by the committee will, if adopted, mean in a few years the complete disappearance of many of the most objectionable features of our present system of orthography. A complete list of desirable changes in the orthography of individual words would include almost 20,000 words, but the committee appends to its list none but those sanctioned by respectable usage, and avoids all capricious or whimsical forms. Below are a few examples of the proposed official changes in public school orthography. The preferred form is placed first, but examiners are to accept either form of spelling:

The Toronto Telegram points out an inconsistency in the statements of the nen who are now engaged in "booming" Northern Ontario. In one breath they tell us that the district is marvellously rich, and that all that is needed is railroads to develop its wealth. In another they tell us that the land is so poor that in order to get a railway built it is necessary to give enormous grants in land and money. An immense amount of lying is being done somewhere.

ARCHIE'S DISAPPEARANCE CAUSED QUITE A COMMOTION.

Everybody at the Family Reunion Joined In the Hunt, and For a Time There Was Great Excitement at the Rankin Home.

Archibald had been distinctly naughty all the morning. As Mrs. Rankin, his nother, explained to Cousin Martha, there were some days when the young one just got a mean streak, and then there was no doing the first living thing with him. This, apparently, was one of those days.

There was a sort of family reunion at the Rankin homestead, which made it all the more aggravating. Pa and Ma Conklin were there and Uncle Alence all the more aggravating. Pa and Ma Conklin were there, and Uncle Alonze and his family and Bert and Minnie Beebe, as well as Cousin Martha, and the dinner was to be according. When you have a dinner for 11 to get up and the girl you have can't be trusted to boil water without burning it, you may be expected for becoming comparing the strategy of the percent of the party of the country of the party of the percent of the party of the percent of the percent of the party of the percent of the party of the percent cused for becoming somewhat flustrated. Mrs. Rankin owned herself to be in that condition. She told Archibald that if he didn't behave himself and if she heard another word out of him she would paddle him good. She said it as if she meant it, and Archibald believed it. At this Uncle 'Lonzo felt in his coattail pocket and produced something like a wooden trum-pet, which he said was a bubble blower. "I should have thought that you would know better than to give him a thing like that," said Mrs. Rankin. "He'll went to blow bubbles now, and I just won't have him in the kitchen under my feet." "Let him blow them in here," suggest ed Cousin Martha. "And then have him slopping suds all over the carpet?"

"He won't do that," said Uncle Alonzo.
"He'll be careful. Won't you, Archibald?"

"No," answered the boy, who had no notion of committing himself.

The end of it was that he had a bowl of soapsuds, which he was cautioned un-der penalty of skinning not to spill, and he became so quiet that for the next half hour he was almost forgotten. Then he tried to climb on to the chair on which the bowl had been placed in order to give the bubbles a longer descent. That overturned the soapsuds on the carpet. Nobody was looking at the time, and, being a bright child for his age, 3 years, he concluded that it was a good time for disappearing and forthwith disappeared Presently somebody inquired, "Where's Archibald?" But there was no imme diate uneasiness. Half an hour later however, the inquiry was repeated, and then Cousin Martha began a search. She went up stairs and called, and she went into the kitchen and outdoors to the barn, but no Archibald responded to her falsetto. When she came back to the kitchen, where Mrs. Rankin was concocting a "floating island," she looked

"Where do you suppose that young one can have got to?" she asked of his mother.

"Why, isn't he in the sitting room?" "No, and nobody has seen anything of him for an hour."

Mrs. Rankin laid down the fork with which she was beating eggs and, with a hasty direction to Hilda to look after things, hurried into the sitting room. The suds was on the floor, but no other trace of the child. Mrs. Rankin, followed by Cousin Martha, next went to the back of the house, where the stone foundation had fallen down, and stooping shouted into the darkness that Archibald had been ter come out of that if he knew what was good for him.

Uncle Alonzo now came up and was dispatched to the haymow, and Rufus, the long legged, gangling hired man, was sent to the chicken house. Just then Ma Conklin ran up at a surprising pace for a woman of her age and informed them, with a great deal of agitation, that there was a board off the cistern. "Oh!" exclaimed Mrs. Rankin and pressed her hand to her side. For one ment she looked as if she would fall, and Cousin Martha put her arm around her. The next minute she was running toward the cistern, screaming as she went. When she got there, she began frantically to tear the covering boards away, and Rufus and Uncle Alonzo ran up just in time to prevent her from jumping in. Rufus ran back to the barn for a rope, and the rest crowded around

Rufus now came up with a length of rope, and the men lowered him down into the cistern so hurriedly that he splashed into the water and disappeared. He rose gasping and told them to pull on the rope gasping and told them to put of the and a little, as he could touch bottom and keep his mouth clear by holding the rope. They hauled taut and then fastened the rope to a board laid across the mouth of the cistern, and the hired man began are the role of the cistern. working to and fro, feeling with his feet. The men groaned, and Mrs. Rankin fell unconscious into Cousin Martha's arms. At the same moment a window in the

At the same moment a window in the second story of the house was thrown open, and Hilds, the hired girl, leaned out and screamed to them.

"He's here!" she cried. "I've found him. He was in my room, down behind a trunk, hiding. He said that he had spilled the suds an his maw was going to lick him. Here he is!"

There was a rush to the house, and in

There was a rush to the house, and in another moment the cause of the trouble was being hugged and kissed and shaken and scolded and blessed as he never was before in the whole course of his exist-ence. He was howling his disapprobation when his mother revived, and then he had cause to howl, for in the joy of her beart she took him across her knee and heart she took him across her knee and spanked him vigorously.

At last—in the course of an hour, perhaps—quiet and order were restored, and Mrs. Rankin, between smiles and tears, with the restored Archibald pressed close to her matronly bosom, said she guessed their dinner was spoiled now sure enough. "Don't worry about that, my dear," said Ma Conklin: "just think how much worse it might ha' bio."

"By the way," said Uncle Alonzo, "what's come of Rufus?"

They all looked at each other blankly until Pa Conklin voiced the general thought. "I guess," he said, starting up, "that Rufus is up to his chin in the cistern waitin for some of us to come an pull

I read about many being helped by using your medicine, so I thought I would give it a trial. I began to take your 'Favorite Prescription' in November, and I had a nice little baby girl in February following. My baby weighed over eight pounds. I was only ill for about one hour, and got along nicely during confinement. Was up and dressed on the eighth day. I never had the doctor with me at all: just the nurse and one or two friends. My friends thought I was sick a very short time. This makes my second child. With the first one I did not take 'Favorite Prescription.' How to Gather. Laying gathers is a time honored operation, as irritating and nerve wearing as it is necessary. Since learning to accomplish the same result in a far easier way, the present writer has taught the knack to several friends, and all, without exception, are enthusiastic. Use a long, strong needle; that is, a coarser one than you would ordinarily use for the work in hand. Gather the needle full, keeping the thimble finger at the eye of the needle, so that no stitches escape on to the thread. When you can force on no more cloth, still holding the thimble in place, with the thumb and first finger hold the gathers firmly on to the needle at the point end. With the left thumb and first and second fingers pull the gathers, two or three at a time, straight down from the needle with a swinging motion. sliding the fingers under the material and pulling down with the thumb, beginning at the left and working toward the right. When the work is slipped on to the thread, it will be as flat as if each gather had been painfully "scratched" into place. The two processes are practically accomplished in one, and after a few trials and with a little patience you will never go back to the "good old way."-Good Housekeeping.

Young Ladies, Please Note. The following is a sample of the wis-dom contained in the standard work on Chinese feminine etiquette for 1,800 years which has just been translated by

Why Women Join Clubs. Women join clubs because they enjoy sociability, which is placed upon an in-tellectual basis. The pleasure to be de-rived from the exclusively fashionable gatherings is militated against by the fact that the circle is comparatively small and is composed of persons who have similar traditions and standards. There is apt after a time to be a sense of monotony; there is also apt to be rivalry, and above all, a woman must be young and beautiful or rich and influential in and beautiful or rich and induction in order to extract the true essence of the pleasure of fashionable society. Club society is much more democratic and is composed of a greater variety of elements. Its reason for being is intellectual. Such rivalry as exists has nothing and plain woman, poor in purse and un-known outside of her club, may win her double firsts there and find a life that otherwise would have been lonely and unexpressed filled and warmed by what she receives and what she is able to give.—Mrs. Ella W. ### CANNON BALLS Relic Bunters Again Visit the Sunken Gunboat up the River.

THEY FISHED OP

Yesterday afternoon a party of relic hunters, composed of R. C. Burt. Reuben Burt, A. E. Jewett and John Glassford, went up to the old gun boat sunk above Pikeville. With the aid of Mr. Burt's patent grabber, the party secured seven 6-pounders cannon balls, two tweenty-four pounders, and a grape shot. The water is about six feet deep where the balls were secur-ed. Jos. McGarvin, who lives near the ed. Jos. McGarvin, who lives hear the site of the wreck, was watching the operations. He said he had often heard his father, the late Michael McGarvin, tell of the burning of the gun boat. Mr. McGarvin, Sr., was only six years old at the time, but he remembered vividly seeing the gun boat sunk at Fisher's when it was burning. He also told how a man named Westbrooke, an American deserter, used to come up from Detroit and plunder the sunken gunboats. Harrison in his account of the trip up the Thames and the battle, says that above Chatham the Americans came on three gunboats burning. An at-tempt was made to extinguish the first but without success.. Further up, the invaders captured two gunboats and some cannons. When returning to Detroit with the captured craft, a fierce storm was encountered on Lake St. Clair, and the two boats, with all the guns and everything, went down

"I think parties owning chickens should be forced to keep them at home," said Citizen Henry Richards. "When I went home last evening, I found a splendid bed of double violets all scratched up and other flower beds damaged. CHATHAM CASE DECIDED.

At Osgoode Hall before Falconbridge, C. P., Pittsburg Spring—Co. v. William Gray & Sons Co.—Judgment (E. R. The contract contained a clause that "the seller warrants spring to by standard quality, and agrees to replace, free of charge, any spring found defective by reason of impertent material or poor workmanship, providing the defective springs be returned by freight."

Defendants brought $118 into court, and said that that sum, in consequence of this loss and, damage, is sufficient to satisfy plaintiffs: claim and counter-claim for damages for breach of warranty. Drugging Will not Cure Catarrh

Drugging Will not Cure Catarrh

Doctors say so. Victims of snuffs, ointments and tablets tell the same story. Catarrh is a germ disease. The germs excite disease in the lungs, throat, nasal passages, and bronchial thues. Germs are hard to get at, but destroy them and you cure the disease. How can it be done? By carrying powerful medication with the air you breathe direct to the diseased parts. You must be sure, also, that the medication will kill the disease germs. Catarrhozone is guaranteed to do this, that is why it has created such a sensation in the medical world. Yoy simply breathe Catarrhozone; it destroys germs—it heals—in a word it cures. Now you know everything about Catarrhozone, except what you can learn the catarrhozone, except what you can learn the catarrhozone are very distarrhozone, except what you can learn by using it. A PHASE OF SETTLEMENT WORK IN A CHICAGO SUBURB.

Frenchwoman's Dot-The Essentials of Beauty-The Frivolous One's Cakes-Speiled Children-Girls In

In Neighborhood House, a social settlement at West Sixty-seventh and May streets, Chicago has an example of a new phase of settlement work. The first condition which awoke efforts of this nature was the congested state of districts in the central parts of the great cities, the second is the stage which anticipates the need of such a social center in the future. Social settlements are hereafter, if the hopes of their promoters are realized, not to wait the coming of such conditions as prevail in the river wards of Chicago, but are to take their place in advance of dense populations and grow with the neighborhood.

Indirectly, Neighborhood House began
In 1895 as a day nursery. Professor Fulton B. Ormsby of the Perkins Bass school suggested to the young people of the Stewart Avenue Universalist church

MRS. HARRIET M. VAN DER VAART. of Englewood that a creche was needed in the locality of West Forty-seventh and Halstead streets. A small cottage was rented and furnished for this purpose. Soon the demands on the nursery grew to such proportions that a kindergarten was started in West Forty-seventh street, just west of Halstead street. The Per-kins Bass and D. S. Wentworth schools co-operated with the young people who had begun the work in its support and have since worked in conjunction with the settlement. Soon afterward a mothers' class was formed, and this has grown into one of the most successful woman's clubs in the city. It is in the Federation of Women's Clubs. The cottage in which the movement was first given an impetus was opened in the evenings for a reading room and clubs were organized for boys and girls. The cottage was outgrown that winter, and in 1896 a larger house was rented in West Sixty-ninth street, near Bishop street. This was the real beginning of a social settlement. Mrs. Harriet M. Van Der Vaart took charge and has since that time been head resident. In 1898 a new and still larger building was secured. Two more residents, both young women joined the settlement, making the total four, Mr. S. S. Van Der Vaart, husband of the head resident, devoting his evenings to the work.

While the principal support of the settlement has always come from the Stewart Avenue Universalist church of Englewood and its members, the settlement is now gradually assuming an independent position and without losing the assistance of the church, whose pastor and members are among its teachers and lec turers, is becoming the common heritage of all religions and nationalities in the district and is drawing on all for its mor al and financial support.-Chicago News

A Frenchwoman's Dot. John Strange Winter has contributed to the London Telegraph an interesting account of the Frenchwoman's dot. Probably, she says, few English people realize to the full extent how fixed an in stitution the dot is in France. We in England do sometimes speak of the dot often rather as a joke than otherwise, but I doubt whether the average English man or woman fully understands that just across the channel the marriage portion is universal and omnipotent.

with very few exceptions every French girl has her dot. Indeed, from the day of her birth a French girl is saved for, and her dot is the object of her parents' most self sacrificing endeavors. A girl who has none is looked upon as an object of pity, forsworn to St. Catherine, with no better prospect in life than to enter a sisterhood or to hang on to the outskirts of the ramily in the capacity of a useful of the family in the capacity of a useful relative.

Not many women, be they young or old, like this kind of existence, and this is the reason why so many women in France enter the religious life. As a good sister, no matter of what order, the portionless girl acquires a position of dignity and Marriage in France is quite a different institution from marriagfe in England. It is entered into from different motives and in a very different fashion. Inclinain a very different tashion. Inclina-tion scarcely affects the bargain at all. In the first place, no young Frenchman actually proposes to the girl he wants to marry, perhaps, for one thing, because he never gets the chance. Friendship be-tween the sexes is sternly discouraged. In fact, before marriage no girl of re-spectable class is ever allowed to be alone in a young man's company for one single moment. "My son lives his vie de single moment. "My son lives his vie de garcon, but my girl lives in my pocket." is the motto of the prudent French mother. So, when a young Frenchman wishes to settle in life he looks around for a suitable partner. According to his own position and his fortune, so does he demand a dot of a certain sum. Perhaps two or three girls of his acquaintance may have the desired sum. The approximate amount is always known. So, fixing on the one he admires most, he sends his lawyer or his uncle to some trusted friend to make inquiries and to open up pro-

If the proposal is not disagreeable to the young lady, her family name on their side a lawyer or trusty friend, and arrangements are very soon made, money is carefully tied up, and the engagement is an accomplished thing. Then the wedding day is fixed, and preparations for the weading are harried on a six as may be. Long engagements are almost unknown in France.

The Essentials of Beauty. There is a distinctive something-a manner of dressing or a correct carriage

-that makes the American girls head the list by their natural right to precedence. They have their faults, to be sure, but such faults as are easy to correct. Loud voices are the commonest lapses into the unbeautiful and simple. I never realized this so much as I did on my last voyage from the other side of the Atlantic. On oboard there was a crowd of girls who had been finishing their educations abroad. They sat on deck and chattered like magpies, their voices rising shrill and high and grating fearfully on the nerves of any listener blessed with fine sensi-bilities. They were pretty girls, charming, stylish, in splendid health, robust and athletic. But their voices were something fearful to listen to. A low, sweet voice, carefully modulated, always bespeaks the lady. A voice that is rasping, quick of action, high strung, nervously pitched, will undo the beauty ambitions of many years.

The matter of eating forms a large part in one's beauty rules and regula-tions. To my way of thinking, we Americans eat too much and do not eat often enough. We wait for our dinners at night until we are ravenously hungry, and we overload the stomach. The result is a florid, unbeautiful complexion, dull eyes, languid movements and wits that, if not exactly wool gathering, are certainly not as bright as they should be. In the old country meals are lighter. In the morning it is toast and tea and a bit of fruit, later a little chop, again a cup of tea, with bread and butter—always just enough to satisfy the stomach, not enough to cause it to overwork and to bring on dyspepsia, that surest complexion wrecker of all. The time between meals is too long with us. We are so hungry that we are sure to overeat. And overeating is deadly. There is no mis-take about it.

Fresh air is a beautifier that is not appreciated by the average woman. Good health is, of course, the first principle of all beauty ambitions. Without it your foundation for everything is gone. Fresh air enlivens the wits, stirs up circulation brings encouragement to the lungs and instills one with new life.-Amelia Bing ham in Chicago Times-Herald.

The Frivolous One's Cakes.

It was a progressive euchre party, and she was the prettiest and most frivolous looking person present. How could any me who looked like a doll and dressed like a fashion plate be anything but frivolous? The members of the club, which met around from house to house, felt sure that the pretty and frivolous one had not an idea in her head that was more practical than her own gowns. There did not linger a thought in their minds that the refreshments, served at every meeting of the club, would be any less inviting at her house than theirs. In these days of caterers a lack of house hold knowledge does not count. But when the eventful day came there was a little gasp of surprise when there was served the most delicious cake any one had ever eaten, and it bere the unmis-takable evidence of being homemade, No caterer could make such cake; neither could a maid. Cakemaking requires a cultivated hand on the spoon.
"I made it all myself!" cried the frivo-lous one when the exclamations of delight reached her ears. This is one cake. It was a layer cake and between the layers was a chocolate filling made much like an ordinary filling. with chocolate, milk, sugar and the white of an egg. but into that was beaten a little whipped cream, and the same cream covered the top and sides of the cake The cake itself was very light and deli-cate, freshly put together, and the result can only be surmised by those who did not try it, for the cake was too good to describe. Another cake was made in the same way, only maple sugar was substituted for chocolate and melted with as little water as possible, whipped cream beaten into it and the whole cake covered with the cream. Another way of using the maple sugar is to add a little to fruit layers in cake, as date cake, and the lit-tle flavor given is perceptible and ex-cellent.—New York Times.

Spoiled Children.

Spoiling children consists in letting one's darling have its own precious way on all occasions, and the way is such pretty, cunning, winsome way nobody can see any harm in it. But grown up willfulness is quite a different thing from baby willfulness. It has claws and teeth, so to speak, and is not nice to contemplate.

Spoiling appears to mean a gree many different things. One of its mild forms is a total disregard for the feelings and convenience of others. If you notice a disagreeable, unaccommodating woman on the car or elsewhere you may know that she was a spoiled child.

Although poor people do contrive oc-casionally to spoil their children by indulgence, by making great sacrifices, this business is not carried on wholesale, as it is among the rich. Poverty is a severe yet kind stepmother. In a large family, not very well to do, the older children care for the younger ones and exert more influence often in their own way than their parents in teaching self denial and ommon sense.
Self control is the one thing spoiled

Self control is the one thing spoiled children never learn. They must have everything they want and have it without delay. The child who kicks his nurse, bullies his mother and his younger brothers and sisters develops into the passionate, dissipated young man.

The spoiled girl becomes an exacting, disagreeable woman. The world must disagreeable woman. The world must wait upon her, she makes everybody around her unhappy and all because she was a spoiled child. Her husband is a martyr to her whims and caprices, and her children are made wretched by her irritable and fretful disposition, and all because her early training was not what it should have been.—Bouquet.

Because a girl takes a position of service in a store is no reason why she should proclaim a personal declaration of inde pendence to every customer by her de pendence to every customer by her de-portment toward her. She simply cannot afford to do it, and the sooner she realizes it the better it will be for herself. Let me whisper a secret to you girls who expect to take some similar position by and by. It is this: You will find that courtesy, self respect and an interest in the busi-ness in which you are engaged are the conditions of ultimate success, and no girl used fear failure if she has added to

Have you ever heard a poor, weak, sickly girl cough. AN ANÆSTHETIC SAFE

Queer Product of an Inventor of the Olden Times.

"I ran across a queer old relic in my line of business recently," said a safe and lock expert who is in the city. was prowling around a machine shop in town in Iowa, trying to find a fitting that I needed, when I happened to notice a sheet iron box which seemed to have once been entirely covered with glass tubes attached to the surface by cement. All of the tubes were broken, and most of them were missing, but the general arrangement could be easily traced, and the contrivance impressed me at once with a sense of familiarity. Presently I remembered about it. It was all that was left of the one time famous 'anæsthetic safe,' an invention which ought to have been sponsored by a society for the prevention of cruelty to burglars. The idea of the thing was that any cutting or drilling through the outer casing should release certain chemicals which would promptly stupefy everybody in range of their fumes. In the morning the owner would find his valuables intact and could simply call a dray and pack off the unconscion burglars to jail, "With such a device it was unneces ry to have massive steel walls, and the model which I chanced to resurrect was made of one-eighth inch sheet iron. The inner box was entirely surrounded glass tubes about the diameter of a lead pencil and filled alternately with two chemicals which were supposed to produce stupefying gas when they came into contact. There was a thin outside casing, and the theory was that any effort to break in would necessarily fracture two or more of the fragile glasses. It seemed incredible, but several prominent seemed incredible, but several prominent capitalists became greatly interested in the scheme and stood ready to back it with unlimited means until actual tests finally convinced them of its grotesque impracticability. How the model ever drifted to the lowa machine shop I couldn't find out. It had been there for years and was probably part of the plunder of some forgotten junk sale.

"The only other safe I know of fit to rank with the 'anæsthetic' as a freak was one designed by an inventor in Washington. It was circular in shape, with a pivot at the bottom, and at nightime the plan was to connect it with an engine belt and spin it like a top. The inventor was very much in earnest and made a large working model. He admitted modestly that the safe could enly be used 'where steam power was available.' used 'where steam power was avaliable.' What would prevent the burglars from throwing off the belt he didn't state."

A HISTORIC MARKET.

STRONG ODORS AND GIANT PORTERS ABOUND IN BILLINGSGATE.

Rough and Dirty Treatment That Visitors to London's Famous Flah Mart Receive From the Burly, Boorish Employees.

I reached Billingsgate fish market, London, a little before 4 in the morning and was met by an old gentleman who wanted to act as guide, he calling after me that I had better employ him and so keep my clothes clean. I declined the proffered service, but I would advise accepting the services of the old man.

On gaining the market I looked about, expecting to see women selling fish, but not one did I find. I was disappointed in this, as I had read that it was a great treat to roil a Billingsgate fishwoman and hear her swear. My stock of information was increased almost immediate ly, for I learned that the saleswomen disappeared from Billingsgate with the retail trade. The women can be found elsewhere today, and they are as vulgar as of yore.

Conspicuously displayed outside the market besse were large placards reading. "If any porter shall be guilty of dishonesty or drunkenness, or use any obscene, filthy or abusive language, or com mit any assualt, or otherwise misconduct himself, he shall have his license revoked. I copied the above on leaving. When I first read it, I was foolish enough to suppose that Billingsgate was a decent sort of place. I trusted the placards implicitly. They were certainly all one rould expect - no "dishonesty" against highway robbery, no "drunken-ness" insured against assault, no "ob-scene language," no "filth," etc. Billingsgate must have improved since the days when Shakespeare and Pope wrote about

I entered the great building, which is an acre in extent, and was met by the vilest smell I have ever encountered. My breakfast had not been eaten, and the odors made me seasick. It was nothing but fish, and all fresh at that; but I was smelling the extract from 400 tons, more or less, and the current of air that rushed to the door I opened was doubly laden. Once inside it did not seem so bad.

Everything was hurry and bustle. Devoted entirely to wholesale, the place was not crowded, but here and there, perhaps in 20 places, groups of men were follow-ing the auctioneers from one pile of fish to another. The auctioneer would mount stand and say something, and before I could catch his meaning he would clap his hands as evidence of sale, jump to the floor and go to the next pile. A pleasant faced man approached.

"Come with me," he said; "I'll see you through. Here come the porters. Don't bother them. They are ignorant and vulgar and, while a lot of good fellows, might be unpleasant toward you. You see, the literary world branded us cen-turies ago, and the men know how they are considered by visitors, and they care absolutely nothing for any one. men have 200 pounds of fish each on their heads. They drink a quart of heer without catching breath and eat five pounds of beef a day, usually in five neals, but often in only three.' admired the men as they filed past and emptied their boxes. I stood to one side, out of the way, when I was dis turbed by a huge porter laying his hands on my left shoulder. He deliberately wiped his hands on my back, talking to companions all the while. I turned, as any one would, when I felt a foot on leg, and I found another porter wiping his wet and dirty foot on my trousers. The salesman saw the second move, and quick as a flash he was to the rescue. "The next man who raises his hand against this visitor will lose his position, e exclaimed. The porters laughed heartily and filed on back to the ships. "About what I ex-pected," said my deliverer. "It's no use to object. It is lucky they did not strike you in the face with a fish. These fel-lows have no sense. They are the lowest type of English, Swedes and Norwegians nostly the latter, and there is not a man smong them. It seems the handling of fish makes men mean, dirty and brutal. I have seen women get worse treatment than you did, and some of our great wholesale dealers, here on business, often get the same dose right under our eyes. If you take this treatment good naturedly and buy drinks for the crowd, the porters are the best fellows you ever saw. dare not complain, for the whole crowd would strike, and tons of fish would spoil. I believe these are the strongest men on earth. When you go home, remember that you have a striked as the strongest men on earth. member that you have visited the nastiest and filthiest place in the world. Perhaps this knowledge will repay you for the treatment you received."

I thought the abuse had its advantages and replied that I would have been disappointed had I not had some disagreeable experience. It was this salesman who told me of the flight of the fishwomen. He also said that up stairs I would find one of the cleanest restaurants in Lon-don and I could have a fish breakfast if I was so disposed. I was not and was satisfied with a glance into the dining roo Billingsgate is the oldest market in the city. It is located on the Thames, im city. It is located on the Thames, immediately below London bridge. The boats wharf at its door. The market was in existence a thousand years ago, and while today only one-third its supply arrives by water bids fair to remain for several centuries more. The fishmongers exceed the turies more. The fishmongers erected the great market house. They are wealthy and thus far successfully fought the rail roads and merchants who would like a more central location for the market. Fish supply one-third the meat of London, and nearly the whole supply enters through Billingsgate.

On leaving I gave the old watchman a penny and told him I was sorry I had not penny and told him I was sorry I had not engaged him. He seemed pleased and said that I should try to see the fish train while in Loudon. It is composed of box cars, several of glass, for the convenience of women, who can see their dinner swimming about. An attendant with a dip net lifts the selected fish out and weighs it, while the housewife is thus assured that she is buying fresh fish. I made an effort to see this train, but falled. I heard of it from several sources, otherwise I would have doubted its existence.

Men err not so much in prompt action as in hasty judgment.-Louis Na-No man knows the state of another ;

Between the ages of fifteen and forty-five, the time when womanhood begins and motherhood ends, it is estimated that the aggregate term of woman's suffering is ten years. Ten years out of thirty! One third of the best part of a woman's life sacrificed! Think of the enormous loss of time! But time is not all that is lost. Those years of suffering steal the bloom from the cheeks, the brightness from the eyes, the fairness from the form They write their record in many a crease and wrinkle. ## Counterfeit China.

Other things besides money are coun erfeited, and purchasers of old china have to be continually on their guard or they will be paying many dollars for what is worth only a few cents.

"The market is full of imitation china," said a lower Fourth avenue dealer in antiques who was asked about the matter. "Persons who rely on marks are sure to be deceived, for marks are easily imitated, and there is not one that has escaped forgery.
"Both French and English manufac turers forge all of the most sought after marks and find sale for their products. In looking for old china I find that every mark of importance has been forged, from Dresden to Worcester and Crown Derby, not excepting old Sevres. Every day would be purchasers come here and visit other New York shops, looking for china, and have no mortal idea at all correct of what they are buying. that they may be deceived. #### An Advertising Scheme.

Several old acquaintances of the late D. H. McAlpin, the tobacco manufacturer, were discussing his business suc cess in an up town club, and one of them told the following story as illustrating the farreaching effect of comparatively insignificant things some-

"It was after Mr. McAlpin was well started in the tobacco business," he said, "that an enterprising rival began to cut into his business by advertising that he placed a dime in every tenth package of tobacco put up in his factory. One day a foreman of the pack ing room went to Mr. McAlpin and said: "'I have a suggestion to make that promises to knock out this dime in every tenth package scheme of your rival. Will you hear it?

" 'Yes: go ahead.' "'Well, then, just put a dime in every package of tobacco put up in our shop and don't advertise it. It will advertise itself quickly enough.'

"Mr. McAlpin saw that the suggestion was good, and he accepted it. It cost him a good deal of money, but its success warranted it. Within a few weeks farmers were buying McAlpin tobacco, knowing that they would find money in each package, and if they had found diamonds it would not have surprised them."

All on Account of the Boots. As a sergeant was bawling out his orders in a barracks in Dublin and watching the line of feet cruits endeavored to obey the word of command he found, to his astonish ment, that one pair of feet, more noticeable on account of their extra large size, never turned.

Without taking his eyes off those feet the sergeant bawled out a second or "About face!" He could see that all the feet except those he watched turned in obedience. Rushing up to the owner, a little fel ow, he seized him by the shoulder, shouting:

"Why don't you turn with the rest?" "I did!" replied the trembling recruit. "You did, eh? Well, I watched your feet, and they never moved." "It's the boots they gave me, sir," said the poor fellow. "They're so large that when I turn my feet turns inside of them."-London Answers.

The Disadvantage of Delicacy. The editor sent her little story back, with a polite note praising its delicacy, but saying it was unsuitable to his magazine. Again she sent it forth. Once more it was returned with kind words for its delicate touches and regrets that it was unavailable. When a third time the little story had been praised for its delicacy, but rejected, the authoress was in despair. "It looks to me," she said, "as if my story was so delicate that it had gone into a decline."-New York Mail and Express.

They Raised Pairs. While Bishop Potter of the Episcopal church was traveling through Louisiana some years ago he addressed inquiries to his fellow passengers with a view of obtaining knowledge regarding the orchards and fruit interests of the

WATER RATE QUESTION

The Commissioners Explain that the Liability for

These Charges is Controlled by Statute-The Local Board Really Protecting the Property

To The Planet,-There seems to some misapprehension in regard to the action of the board of water commissioners, at their last meeting, in passing a resolution regarding the liability of owners of properties supplied with city water, in cases where their tenants have failed to pay the water rates.

The commissioners therefore desired to direct the attention of all owners of houses to the following sections of the Municipal Waterworks Act, being Chap. 235 of the Revised Statutes of Ontario, 1897 :-

Sec. 20, sub-sec. 2, provides-"The sum payable by the owner or occupant of any house, tenement, lot, or part of lot, for the water supplied to him there, or for the use thereof, and all rates, costs and charges by this Act to be collected in the same manner as water rates, shall be a lien and charge on the house, tenement, lot, or part of a lot, and may be levied and collected in like manner as municipal rates and taxes are by law recoverable."

Sec. 22, sub-sec. 1—"The attempt to collect the rates by any process hereinbefore mentioned shall not in any way invalidate the lien upon the premises as hereinbefore provided."

Sub-sec. 2—"In the event of the rate remaining uncollected and unpaid, and continuing a lien upon the said premises, as aforesaid, the amount of the rate so in arrears shall be returned by the collectors to the treasurer of the municipality annually, on turned by the collectors to the treasurer of the municipality annually, on or before the eighth day of April, in each and every year, or such other time as may be fixed by the corporation by by-law in that behalf, and the same, together with interest at the rate of ten per cent. per annum thereon, shall thereupon be collected by the treesurer by the sale of the by the treasurer by the sale of the lands and premises in the same man-ner and subject to the same provis-ions as in case of the sale of non-resident lands for arrears of muni-resident lands for arrears of municipal taxes."

The commissioners ask a perusal of the above sections of the Act, and feel assured that the general conclusion on the part of owners must be that it will be greatly to their interest to pay the water rates themselves, and to charge their tenants with the same, or otherwise to exercise a supervision over the matter so as to know that their tenants were not allowing their properties to become liable to sale for arrears, as the water rate continues a lien on the the water rate continues a lien on the property from the time it becomes due ntil it is settled by payment or sale. The commissioners are not acting with a desire to harass or worry water users, either owners or ten-ants, but with the sole object of fur-thering the good of the citizens, and carrying on the management of the city waterworks in a manner con-ducive to the interests of the rage-payers as a whole, and to that end solicit their earnest co-operation and assistance.

Believing that the majority of rate-payers are unaware of this statutory lien, the commissioners deem it to be their duty to make the above state-ment, in order that the public at large may understand that the whole matter is controlled by statute.

NEW LINE TO SOUTHERN CALI-FORNIA.

A new and interesting feature in connection with the Chicago, Northwestern and Union Pacific route to California is the announcement that, with the new schedule of the Southern Pacific Railway, effective March 31, the new Coast Line between San Francisco and Los Angeles was opened. This new line, which is sure to become very popular with tourist travel, runs along the Pacific Coast, via San Jose, Santa Cruz, Salinas, San Miguel. Paso Robles, San Luis Obispo and Santa Barbara, where the finest scenery in California may be witnessed. It is confidently expected that the establishment of this new route will result in a greater part of the Southern California travel at all seasons of the year, going via the Northwestern-Union Pacific and the new Pacific Railway. Epworth Leaguers going to the San Francisco Convention in July and who desire to visit Southern California will have the privilege of using this new Pacific Coast Line.
