Seventeen Years Ago.
Sweetest that gardens of roses, Come the length of the orchard below,
As we stood at the turn of the road that day And gazed ahead at the faraway, Seventeen years ago.

Seventeen years—in the clock says, Methinks 'twere a half day; Time's whirling wheels have raced through the night,
Or the hands have skipped the years from spite In their haste to declare us old.

Today from the West to the East From the South to the endless North, We have gathered once more an unbroken band,
For one brief hour to hold in hand, Still we meet again—God knows they do.

And our hands grow strong with the work they do.

Daunting and true to the last, Heathenish, agate our ways part, mattered, dispersed and striven, O'er each wide field we roam among,
Like a band of guests by Destiny's bang, We shall fare till the day is done.

BUTLER'S INQUISITION.
Continued.

As he spoke the color left Stonecroft's face. He looked ten years older. The moment Butler finished, he sprang to his feet.

'By what right,' he cried, 'do you interfere in my private affairs?'

'By the right of Christian justice. And because no affairs are private which involve the lives of other people.'

'I deny the right, all the same,' he retorted.

'Oh, let the question of right go. It you like. My only urgent question is what do you intend to do about it?'

'What do you?' said Stonecroft.

'I want to give you the opportunity of putting things right. I want you to look to the condition of your house property. I want you to pay the gifts in your employ wages sufficient to maintain them in self-respect. You are rich enough to do these things.
You believe yourself a Christian man, and therefore you ought to do them.'

'But, man, you don't know what you ask. I can't pay more than the current rate of wages. No wealth could stand the strain of such a reform as you ask. And if I sold my houses who would buy them? They would be bought by some one else who would prove a harsher landlord than I.'

'Surely that has nothing to do with it. It is your duty we are discussing, not the duty of other people.'

'Then I say, I can't do it. You are asking the impossible. It may be difficult, but it is not impossible. Mr.
Stonecroft, do you realize that every dollar bill you have in your pocket is stained with the blood of innocence, that your yacht is paid for by the price of shame, that your country house is built over the pit of hell?
Would it not be better to be poor and just than rich and what you are—a manufacturer of vice?'

'I tell you I can't do it,' he replied.

'Then I reply, you must.'

'And who will make me?'

'I will. I propose to give you one month in which to consider the whole question. I believe that you have enough natural kindness of heart, enough natural sense of justice, if you will but consider the matter thoroughly, to come to my point of view. If unfortunately you come to an opposite decision, shall publish in the Daily Light all the details about your position which I have discussed this morning.'

Stonecroft rose without a word. He was too stunned for further speech.

When he left the room Butler said grimly, 'I think the Inquisition will prove a success. I rather think it has made its first convert.'

man who grows wealthy too fast, and leaves to others the management of his affairs, and doesn't trouble about details. If I had only to deal with men of his order I should have no trouble, but I'm no prophet if we are not going to be up against the worst kind of trouble with some of the other men on my list before many weeks are over.

Gaunt grew serious at once. 'Tell me what you mean by that.'

'I've nothing very definite to tell you at present. I am only conscious that a storm is brewing. From what direction it will break I can't tell.
Here, for instance, is a letter which shows the sort of spirit which is in vogue.'

He handed Gaunt the letter. It was typed-written, and anonymous. It was composed with a sort of sober violence, a cold exaggerated vindictiveness, much more impressive than any wild and whirling words would have been. The water remarked that he and many others were aware of all Gaunt's plans and movements. They had nothing to say against his work, as long as it was confined to its own proper sphere of religious activity.
He warned Gaunt that if he passed beyond that sphere of activity there were those who would remorselessly crush him. They had the means, they would find the way. For the present they contented themselves with warning him that he was in greater danger than he imagined. If he made it necessary for them to strike, they would strike hard and mercilessly, and the blow would come in such a way that no precautions he might take would enable him to avoid it.

As Gaunt read the letter his eyes flamed. If he had at all hesitated in his approval of Butler's campaign, he now hesitated no more. The letter had an effect precisely the contrary of that intended by the writer. Instead of intimidating him, it kindled in him the spirit of battle.

'Have you any guess who the writer is?' he said.

'None whatever.' Then, noting the anger in Gaunt's face, he added, 'Now don't take it too seriously. I have received hundreds of such letters in my time. It may mean anything or nothing; it may be an idle threat or a serious menace. It is impossible to decide which. The only certain thing is that we've hit somebody pretty hard, and he's angry.'

'But that's exactly what I want.'

'Of course it is. You don't expect the devil to play fair, do you?'

'What do you intend to do?'

'Go on, just go on. In the course of a day or two I shall begin a series of articles in the Daily Light. I shall use this letter later on, if the occasion demands it. It will be a valuable bit of evidence on the character of our opponents. We're in for a big fight, but I've no doubt as to the issue.
I know you think I've rather a poor opinion of human nature; well, let me confess that I have one supreme talent: it is that the great multitude of plain folk are always on the side of right, when they once know what right is.'

'That's a great creed,' said Gaunt.
'It is a justified creed at any rate,' said Butler. 'I've never found it false.
There's an unextinguishable moral sense in man, in spite of all our philosophers. The curious thing is that it is most vital in the people who are roughest and most ignorant. As men go up in the social scale he loses it.
I suppose this is the result of wealth. All revolutions have their birth among the common people. It is from the womb of labor and hardship that all the Christs come. And it is the poor alone who have the vision to recognize the Christ when He comes.'

A day or two later Butler began his memorable series of articles in the Daily Light. In his first article he defined his policy. He began by stating what was perfectly obvious and familiar to all Acadian dwellers, viz., that law had everywhere failed into disrepute. It was notorious that a rich man had means of either coercing, buying, or influencing, the law in his own favor. America was practically at the mercy of the rich men, many of whom were scoundrels of the worst kind. But if law failed to touch the law-breaker, there still remained another tribunal, the tribunal of publicity. He proposed first of all to give a just and impartial account of the various abuses which worked injustice and suffering in the common life. Those who were guilty would recognize their offences in those articles. If the recognition of the offence produced penitence and reparation, he was content. If so such results followed he would proceed to publish the names of the offenders, with full details of their misdoing, and leave public opinion to deal with them in its own way.

These articles at once produced irritous comment in the 'Yellow Press.' Both Butler and Gaunt were sarcastically caricatured and ridiculed. Who was Butler, jeered the press, that he should take it upon himself to be the censor of New York? They took leave to remind him that tyrannical Puritanism died a good many decades ago in New England, after making the life of the people miserable by its exactions, and that America would ever permit its reconstruction in the persons of a fanatical editor and a cracked-brained parson.

'You see,' said Butler, as he read this article to Gaunt, 'the writer of that anonymous letter was right when he said that he was perfectly aware of our plans and movements. I have not mentioned your name, but our antagonists recognize my manifestoes as coming from the League of Service.'

'I am proud that they should do so,' said Gaunt. 'All that I am afraid of is that some of our workers may be exposed to insult and violence—particularly the women.'

'Oh, it hasn't come to that yet, and it won't for some time,' said Butler.
'Of course it may happen, but I shall know well in advance. At present our antagonists will be content with ridicule of our motives, and personal defamation.'

To this attack Butler replied with a personal article. He stated that he had not the honor to be called a Puritan, he was simply a plain citizen, who was fighting the battle of the plain people. He would not be debarred from his duty by either ridicule or abuse.

And then day by day, with others, in which the social sores of New York were remorselessly exposed. He drew vivid pictures of the methods by which vice was manufactured; how manufactured wages made virtue nearly impossible for hosts of women workers; how the lie of crowded tenement houses, dark, airless, and insanitary, provoked a violent passion for excess of some kind in the lives of multitudes who felt themselves unjustly deprived of the joy of living; and how behind all this phantasmagoria of social misery there stood men and women who drew from it the sources of their luxury, who lived delicately, who had houses at Newport and yachts upon the Hudson, who took all the joy of living as a right, and never so much as thought of those who were sacrificed to produce the pleasures they themselves enjoyed.

He dealt most trenchantly with the condition of the women workers of New York. In their pride and love of boasting the press had shouted it self hoarse in affirming that America was a woman's country.' No doubt the women of good birth and ample means had a good time; they had too good a time, for it made them vain and selfish. But what of the other kind of woman—the great host of others? As a class they were shamelessly underpaid, and in many instances as shamelessly overworked.
The doctors of New York could tell a tale full of horror, if they chose.
The keepers of houses where such women boarded could tell a yet more terrible story. And then he proceeded to elaborate his parable of the pool and the river, the pool of misery which a hundred charities and philanthropic societies were endeavoring to bale out, and the river of wrong flowing into it, so that in the end nothing was really accomplished, and this river of wrong often rose in the churches and philanthropic societies though no one seemed to see it, or if he saw it had not the daring to declare what he saw. The very men who gave money for the relief of social misery were often themselves the silent accessories of the misery they sought to relieve. It was therefore the conditions of social misery that must be ascertained, and that implied examination of the sources of wealth.

To rescue people from a leaky ship would do no harm and heroic; but would it not be far more sensible to stop the leaks, and to make it impossible for the leaky ship to put out to sea? And so from day to day he pursued his formidable indictment.
He wrote, as he had always written on moral themes, with a strained fire and passion; always lucid, rational, sober in statement, but with a deadly inclusiveness and force. It was these elements that gave him his power, and never was that power so manifest as in this memorable series of articles.

Only One Cure
For a Bad Stomach.

Indigestion and Similar Troubles Must be Treated Through the Blood.

Indigestion can be treated in many ways, but it can be cured in only one way—through the blood. Purgatives cannot cure indigestion. By using force they move the food still undigested. That weakens the whole system, uses up the natural juices of the body and leaves the stomach and bowels parched and sore. It is a cause of indigestion—not a cure.
Others try predigested foods and reputable drugs. But drugs which digest the food for the stomach really weaken its power. The digestive organs can never do the work properly until they are strong enough to do it for themselves. Nothing can give the stomach that power but the new, rich, red blood so abundantly supplied by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills. So the reason for their success is plain.
The health of the stomach depends upon the blood in its delicate veins.
If that blood is weak and watery the gastric juices haven't the strength to secrete the juices which alone can digest the food. If the blood is loaded with impurities it cannot absorb the good from the food when it is digested. Nothing can stimulate the glands, and nothing can absorb the nutrients until after taking too boxes I could eat any kind of food and in a short time got back to my normal state of health and feel that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have surely cured me of a most stubborn case of indigestion.

You can get these pills from any dealer in medicine or they will be sent by mail at 50 cents a box, or six boxes for $2.50 by addressing the Dr.
Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville,

THE ACADIAN.

WOLFVILLE, N. S., JULY 2, 1909.

We are very glad to be able to report that there is a likelihood that the band may arrange to give open air concerts weekly during the summer. Mr. Watson, the energetic leader, is doing all in his power to get the band into shape, and all that is needed is a little encouragement from the town people. There is no doubt but that these concerts would add greatly to the attractiveness of the town as well as to the pleasure of its citizens. In the case of other towns where such concerts are given many people drive in from the neighboring country, and trade is brisker in consequence. We would suggest, then, that the funds of the band be augmented by a public contribution, so that they may be able to secure the necessary instruments and music to enable them to proceed with their good work.

The political leader who should today appeal to the Newfoundland electorate on the question of Confederation would be disastrously defeated. But on the day when the leader of a party in the Island Colony makes up his mind to risk temporary defeat for the purpose of accomplishing Confederation, that day brings union between Newfoundland and Canada within the horizon of the proximate future. That leader must—unless the financial exigencies of the Island bring him extraneous aid—face an arduous campaign of education, but it will be a campaign crowned with victory.—Francis Asbury Carman, writing on "Pro-Confederation Sentiment in Newfoundland" in the July Canadian Magazine.

A Brilliant Wedding.

A very pretty society wedding took place on Tuesday evening, when Miss Florence Uplian Harding, daughter of Charles S. Harding, of Mountain street, Montreal, was united in marriage to Dr. Connel Edward Avery DeWitt, of Wolfville, N. S., in the German street Baptist church, by the pastor, Rev. W. W. McMaster. The church, which was prettily decorated for the occasion with marguerites, buttercups and white lilies, presented a beautiful appearance. There was a very large number present to witness one of the most brilliant and fashionable weddings of the season. Mr. Stanley E. Fisher acted as organist and the choir under direction of Mr. George T. Cooper, furnished very excellent and appropriate music. The bride was given away by her uncle, Mr. James S. Harding, and was attended by Miss Mary Trueman, as maid of honor, and Miss Nellie DeWitt, sister of the groom, and Miss Zillah Rankine, as bridesmaids. Little Miss Brenda Beryl Harding, sister of the bride, acted as flower girl, and carried a very pretty basket of buttercups, daisies and poppies. Mr. Herman DeWitt, brother of the groom, was best man, and Messrs. Wm. Yessie, J. W. Harding, Royden Harding and Harold Peters acted as ushers. Mr. and Mrs. Harding, the parents of the bride, were present, as was also their little daughter, Brenda, the flower girl. The bride's costume was of white satin, with princess lace and pearl and cut crystal trimmings. She wore a veil of old Limerick lace with orange blossoms. The veil was the one worn by her aunt at the time of her marriage. The bride carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. The maid of honor was gowned in white crepe de chene and wore a black hat with white plumes. She carried a shower bouquet of white and mauve sweet peas. The two bridesmaids wore mauve colored satin trimmed with gold, and their hats were of white straw trimmed with marguerites and buttercups. Their bouquets were of buttercups and daisies. The little flower girl wore a white dress embroidered with marguerites and a white satin sash. As the bridal party entered the church the choir sang: "The voice that breathed o'er Eden," and during the service chanted the seventh or second psalm. At the conclusion of the ceremony the organ pealed forth the wedding march from Lohengrin, and the bridal party left the church after registering, to the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march. After the wedding ceremonies were finished, a reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Harding, at 224 German street. The dining room was handsomely decorated for the occasion. Dr. Daniel proposed the toast to the bride, which was responded to by Dr. DeWitt. Dr. Daniel made a brilliant and witty speech. Speeches were also made by Hon. W. H. Tuck, ex-Chief Justice of New Brunswick, and by the father of the groom, Dr. DeWitt. Dr. and Mrs. DeWitt left on the late train and will sail from Quebec on Saturday on the steamer Megantic for an extended trip through Europe, after which Dr. DeWitt will pursue a post graduate course at Munich. The bride and groom were the recipients of many handsome presents. Miss Harding has been one of the most popular young ladies in the city and many friends who will miss her from the city will follow her with their warmest good wishes. [The above is taken from the St. John Standard. Many Wolfville friends wish Dr. and Mrs. DeWitt much happiness and prosperity.]

Mrs. Hilda Estella Vaughan, B. A., Acadia '08, who has just been graduated from Smith College, Northampton, Mass., will be at the Summer Camp, Pinelands, Centre Harbor, New Hampshire, until September 1st.

Announcements have been received of the marriage of Miss Mary Johnson, a former resident of this town, to Arthur Harris Hay, a graduate of Acadia in the class of '09, now manager of the bank of Montreal at Belmont, Ont. Rev. E. W. Kelley, Acadia '76, who has been home from India on furlough, has just received his Ph. D. from Boston university, on the completion of a two years' post-graduate course. He left last week for Burma to resume his missionary duties. Mrs. George Higgins has arrived from New York and is occupying the beautiful residence of W. Marshall Black, Main street. She is accompanied by Miss Elizabeth Higgins, daughter of the late Dr. D. F. Higgins, who will spend the summer in Wolfville. Miss Alice Huntington, of this town, has accepted a position on the musical staff of a ladies' college at Brownwood, Texas. She sails from New York on Saturday, accompanied by Miss Bertie Brown, to spend some time in France before entering upon her duties. Mrs. George W. Munro left on Saturday morning last for Boston, where she was to join Mrs. Hutchinson and in her company cross the Atlantic and spend some weeks in London and other places in the old country. The trip will be doubtless a most enjoyable one. Mrs. George W. Lewis, of Alvin, Texas, with her little daughter, arrived last Friday, and will spend the summer visiting her mother, Mrs. C. K. Burgess, who have been residing for the past two years in Texas and are about returning to their former home in Oneonta, N. Y.

Mr. R. Creighton, manager of the Union Bank, expects to leave tomorrow on a vacation of two weeks, which he will spend at North Sydney. Mrs. Creighton and family will accompany him and remain for two months. On their return they expect to occupy their new residence now being constructed on Linden avenue. Mr. and Mrs. George Taylor, of Mattapan, Mass., are spending the summer in Wolfville, guests at "Bunny Brae." Mr. and Mrs. Taylor were here last summer, and were so well pleased with our town as to return this year. They have been extensive travellers, and the fact that they have chosen Wolfville as a summering place is a high compliment to our pretty town. Mr. W. B. Pindwell, who during the past year has carried on a book-binding establishment in this town, left on Wednesday, accompanied by his little daughter, for Buffalo, N. Y., where his parents reside. Mr. Pindwell came here in consequence of the health of his wife, who died last spring. He was so pleased with our town that he plans to return next autumn to again resume business. Mr. Pindwell is a straightforward and intelligent young man, and a good workman. We should like to see him return to Wolfville. E. M. Bill, Esq., K. C., of Shelburne, was in town last week, visiting relatives. Mr. Bill is stipendiary for Shelburne and Lockport and Recorder for the latter town. Although he has a lucrative law practice in Shelburne county he is obliged, because of the health of his eldest daughter, to remove to the Canadian coast, where he has already entered into a partnership with a Mr. Brown, of Saskatchewan. Mr. Bill is a brother of Mr. C. E. Bill, of the Customs, and Mrs. E. E. Harris. He is a graduate of Acadia and of the Dalhousie Law School. His many friends will be sorry that he is leaving his native province, but wish him good luck in his new home.

On Saturday morning last an alarm of fire was rung in by telephone from W. H. Evans'. It was found that Frederick Messon's barn near Boat's Corner was on fire and well under way burning. The barn and most of its contents, however, were totally destroyed. There was no insurance. Much sympathy, that can be used in rebuilding the barn, has been extended to Mr. Messon, by the generously disposed people of Wolfville and vicinity, to whom Mr. and Mrs. Messon wish to express their sincere thanks.

WOLFVILLE, - N. S.

Newtonville Notes.

The very much needed rain which came on Tuesday last made a great difference in the appearance of the field crops.
Miss Ellen Alfred, of Atleborough, Mass., is spending her summer vacation at the home of her uncle, F. H. Caldwell.
Mr. F. M. Caldwell and son, Frank, of Atleborough, Mass., is spending a few days with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Caldwell.

Our public school closed last Wednesday. Quite a number of visitors were present and listened with great interest to the review of work done during the last year, readings, recitations and dialogues. Special mention should be made of a little song entitled "Boatman row us o'er the tide," sung by the children in their sweet, childish voices. Credit is due our teacher, Miss Eva Smith, for the training she has given the children.

To Let.—House on Gaspean Ave., at present occupied by Mrs. Henshaw. Possession July 1st. Address: Mrs. Robinson, Annapolis Royal.

We regret to learn of the death of Whitman, Mass., of James A. Power, a native and for years a resident of Canada, this county. Mr. Power had been an invalid for two years and his death was not unexpected. His wife, formerly Miss Mary Hill, is a sister of C. R. Hill, Esq., of this town. "Jim" was a generous, good hearted fellow and beloved by those who knew him best. The Oddfellows, of which order he was a long time member, officiated at his burial. Besides the widow, who is left to mourn the loss of a kind husband, there is one son, William Hill Power, aged 18 years, who is manager of The Brockton Mercantile Agency, Brockton, Mass.

Eczema Covered Baby's Face

Was spreading over the baby but DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT made a complete cure.

"I would not care if I could bear the suffering myself," said an anxious mother, "but for the poor innocent baby to be in agony from the dreadful itching, eczema is more than I can stand."
Fortunately, there is in Dr. Chase's Ointment nothing and healing for baby's skin troubles. It is remarkably quick and effective in action. Dr. Chase's Ointment cannot possibly prove otherwise than beneficial to the most tender skin.

"My little girl, three years old, had her face covered with eczema and it was spreading over her body. I tried many different ointments and the doctor could not do her any good. A friend of mine advised me to try Dr. Chase's Ointment, and she was completely cured by one box. I cannot praise Dr. Chase's Ointment enough for the good it has done her."
60 cents a box, all dealers, or Edman's, Bates & Co., Toronto.

There was an informal and very pleasant gathering at the home of Mr. R. Creighton, the popular manager of the Union Bank of this place, on Tuesday evening, June 29th. It being the fifth anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. Creighton's wedding day, a few of their intimate friends called in a bunch to congratulate them. On behalf of those present Mr. Harold D'Almaine presented Mr. and Mrs. Creighton with a mahogany tea tray, stand and tray-cloth. Through much surprise Mr. and Mrs. Creighton thanked all in a few words and afterwards "bridge" and conversation marked the evening past very quickly.

That Watch of Yours.

Is it running just right? Or perhaps it is still running but hasn't been cleaned for years, and you in your false economy will let it go just as long as there is a tick in it.

Now a watch in a union with any other piece of machinery needs to be cleaned and oiled occasionally and if neglected the bearings soon become worn and if left long your machinery is practically ruined.

Why not have your watch examined at once?

Don't fool yourself thinking you are saving a dollar when you are really expending a watch worth 25 or 50 times what we would charge to put it in a 1/2 shape.

Our prices may not be the lowest, but they are the lowest possible consistent with reasonable work guaranteed in every respect, which is the only kind we do at any price.

Dr. Chase's Ointment

Poultry Notes.

If you make a mistake find out how to avoid it next time.

Poultry seldom have too much sun, but they are often kept in such close quarters that they become unhealthy and unprofitable.

The idea that 'anything is good enough for hogs and chickens' has put many a farmer on the wrong side of the road to profitable farming.

Fifth causes lice and disease. During the warm weather mites breed in the droppings and spread to every crevice and corner.

She—It is nice of you to put it that way, but I must speak to mother first.

Chicks can be fed a variety of vegetables, but too much cabbage sometimes causes bowel trouble.

Milk is good, a little every day, and plenty of fresh water. Do not feed too much at the start.

If you would get winter eggs you must breed and feed for them.

This means breeding from fowls that have shown themselves capable of shelling out eggs when the temperature is down to zero, getting the chicks out early, keeping them growing all the time and housing them in comfortable quarters.

A falling tiny nerve—no larger than the finest silk thread—takes from the heart its impulses, its power, its regularity.

The stomach also has its hidden, inside nerve. It was Dr. Shoop who first told us it was wrong to drug a weak or falling stomach, heart or kidneys.

ANOTHER WOMAN CURED

By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Gardner, Maine.—"I have been a great sufferer from organic troubles and a severe female weakness.

No woman should submit to a surgical operation, which may mean death, until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made exclusively from roots and herbs, a fair trial.

This famous medicine for women has for thirty years proved to be the most valuable tonic and renewer of the female organism.

It cures female ill and creates radiant, buoyant female health. If you are ill, for your own sake as well as those you love, give it a trial.

How to Use Money.

'Spring is coming! Use your money for cigars. You'll not need it to buy coal.'

So reads an advertising board on one of the main streets of Chicago.

What do you think of that advice? Suppose you put it in another form: 'Spring is coming! Throw two dollars a week into the fire. You'll not need it for coal.'

Or put it in this way: 'Spring is coming. Use your money to buy arsenic. You'll not need it for coal.'

What! Arsenic is poison! Well, what if it is? Some people take it. But it kills them? If you think so listen to this true story from an English physician:

FRIGHTFUL STOMACH TROUBLE

For Four Long Years He Suffered—Then "Fruit-a-Live" Brought Relief.

Stratford Centre, Wolfe Co., Que., May 15th, 1908.

I have been completely cured of a frightful condition of my stomach through this wonderful medicine, "Fruit-a-Live".

I suffered for four long years with this trouble. My head ached incessantly. I could not eat anything but what I suffered awful pain from indigestion.

I used every known remedy and was treated by physicians, but the dyspepsia and headache persisted in spite of the treatment.

I was told to try "Fruit-a-Live", and sent for six boxes, and this was the only medicine that did me any good.

It is now ordinary food and I never have a headache, and for this relief I thank this wonderful remedy "Fruit-a-Live".

My case is well known in this vicinity and you may publish this statement.

ces, which are invaluable, if we use them, we shall be young if we live to be a hundred. They are: Sympathy, progress, tolerance.

The first is the hardest for most of us, because our little prison of the actual is so immensely important to us. There is no denying the fact that when you have a toothache you feel it is hard to have to consider other people's aches.

But it can be done, though it generally involves physical effort, for we must breathe ourselves and act; the mere feeling of sympathy expressed by words is a worthless thing; but the soul, determined not to grow old, can force the body to such physical effort, though there is no denying that it is hard work.

Pain can be easily and quickly stopped. Pain Tablets—Dr. Shoop's—stop Head ache, womanly pain, any pain, anywhere, in 20 minutes sure.

Formulas on the 25c. box. Ask your druggist or doctor about this formula—it's fine. Sold by A. V. Rand.

A Bicycle Revival.

The bicycle, a few years ago was all the rage both for men and women as well as children; then somewhat of a fall-off came in its use; the 'fad' began to wane; prices dropped in consequence; a good many people said that the bicycle had had its day.

Things now are changed, the bicycle is coming into its own once again, and we believe permanently, or until a much better substitute is devised.

So far it is the cheapest, quietest, most reliable aid to getting about of anything yet invented; all it asks for is a fair road
