

NOT ONE RAY OF LIGHT THROWN ON MURDER OF ETHEL KINRADE

WILL INVITE STUDHOLME.

East Hamilton's Member at Opening of New Schools.

The members of the Public School Board are at the Mayor and members of the Finance Committee for planning the board for the increase in the tax rate this year.

The council got a worse slap, however, when the board passed a resolution striking out the clause in the Finance Committee's report, which recommended that the fuel supply for the schools for 1909 be purchased from the city.

Trustee Lamoreaux, of the Finance Committee, said that he learned since the committee met that steam coal can be purchased from local dealers for less than the board pays the city.

Trustee Allan proposed that the Lieutenant-Governor, Premier Whitney, Hon. J. S. Hendrie, the Minister of Education, the Superintendent of Education and Mayor McLaren be invited to attend the opening of the Normal School and the Sophia and Pictou street schools on Friday, March 19.

Trustees Hobson, Lee and Wodell were appointed a special committee to watch the proposed changes in school law by the Ontario Legislature.

The reports of the committees were adopted.

IN ASYLUM.

Another Addition to Hamilton's Insane Murder Colony.

Orangeville, March 12.—The maniac murderer, George Ernest Stewart, having been in jail for over a month, was quietly removed to the Hamilton Insane Asylum yesterday.

Stewart was added to the growing colony of Hamilton insane murderers today.

Three "Gentlemen of Leisure" Sent Down by Magistrate Jelfs This Morning.

A determined effort is being made by the police to rid the city of all undesirable characters, and each morning sees a fair sized deputation of these gentlemen of leisure commonly known as tramps and bums gracing the prisoners' dock at the Police Court.

Another five hours' probing of the Kinrade tragedy before the Coroner's jury last night failed to reveal anything new in the way of sensational evidence that might help in clearing away the mystery.

There is one chance. The coroner's investigation, it is intended, will be brought to a close to-night. If this afternoon or this evening the authorities can establish their theory by the evidence of the witnesses who remain to be heard the public may be treated to startling developments.

It is pretty evident now that the police have no sensations to spring. What they are endeavoring to do is buttress up the theories on which they are working.

waning in the case. The court room was again packed almost to suffocation last night with newspaper correspondents, illustrators, doctors, lawyers and spectators who managed to pass the guard on the door.

On the witness stand, the night before, Florence Kinrade swore that she never told anyone that her sister was murdered in her presence, while she was struggling with the man to get the revolver.

MRS. KINRADE.

Never Saw An Aw Sign of Mental Trouble in Florence.

The murdered girl's mother, Mrs. T. L. Kinrade, was the first witness called last night by the Crown counsel. She went on the stand at 8.10 and her examination lasted over an hour.

"You are not in very good health, Mrs. Kinrade," inquired Mr. Blackstock.

She gave the ages of the members of her family to Mr. Blackstock, who went over them carefully, questioning the witness in a sympathetic manner.

ALWAYS MOST AFFECTIONATE.

Mrs. Kinrade declared that the relationship in the home was always of the best and a loving affection always existed between every member of the family.

DR. J. D. EDGAR, Whose report on the post mortem examination will be a feature to-day.

ily and between herself and her husband.

Questioned about her son Ernest's marriage, six or seven years ago, Mrs. Kinrade said she did not consider the matter of any great consequence.

She said that before the engagement of Florence and Mr. Wright was announced

Mr. Wright took both girls out to different places. She said there was no dissenting voice in the family against the engagement and that Wright was at Victoria College at the time of the announcement.

"You were a family who lived pretty much to yourselves?" asked her.

"Yes," was the reply.

Mrs. Kinrade said the family were aware of Florence's 1907 musical tour to Goderich and got letters from her.

"Did you ever see any people who accompanied her on that tour?"

"No."

"Then your knowledge of where they went and what they did was what you got from your daughter?"

"Yes."

"Was she accustomed to travelling alone?"

"She generally went with her parents."

"Where had she been with you and your husband?"

"To Atlantic City, Philadelphia, the Falls and Buffalo."

"I am speaking of recent years, I suppose she would not go round alone at the age of 18 or 20?"

"No."

"How about the trips to Atlantic City?"

"She was with us."

"That was the longest trip she ever made, I gather?"

"Yes."

FLORENCE'S TRIPS.

"Did she ever do any travelling alone, by herself, after that time?"

"I don't think so."

"But you would know if she was away alone?"

"She was not."

"Then you do not know of any trip she made to Toronto alone?"

"She went down recently to a concert."

"I am speaking before then. Before that you have no knowledge of her having gone to Toronto, Buffalo or other places alone?"

"Mrs. Kinrade said she had not, with the exception of a concert she went to with her fiancé, before she went to Richmond."

"You speak of a trip to Buffalo, when was that?"

"The time of the Pan-American Exposition."

"Did you stop with friends?"

"No. I don't remember where."

Mr. Blackstock took the witness over several trips, in fact, all that Florence had been away on since she was old enough to travel.

He made minute inquiry of the mother, who gave her answers clearly. She said her daughter was with her all the time when they happened to be out of town.

"Then that represents her travelling all she went to Richmond?"

"Yes."

"She had never travelled alone until when?"

"No."

Mr. Blackstock inquired if Miss Florence was at home from the time of her

Stratford and Goderich trip until she went to Richmond. Mrs. Kinrade remembered a trip her daughter took to Syracuse. She could not tell how long she was away, but said she did not think it was as long as three weeks; possibly it was two and was in the autumn of 1907.

"You were opposed to her going to Richmond?"

"Yes."

"And your daughter Ethel also did not like her going?"

"Yes."

BECAUSE OF THEIR ATTACHMENT.

Mrs. Kinrade explained that the girls were very much attached to each other, and they were reluctant to part with her.

"Outside of that circumstance you had no objection to her going?"

"Yes."

"I am talking about going to Richmond now," said Mr. Blackstock, who closely questioned the witness as to the dates when Florence went to Virginia, when she returned, and when she made her second trip to Richmond, to resume her place in the theatre at Portmouth.

"You and your daughter Ethel were much opposed to that and attempted to dissuade her?"

"Yes."

"And yet while she did not succeed in getting your consent or that of your daughter Ethel, your husband gave his assent?"

"Yes."

DETECTIVE BLEAKLEY

Appointed License Inspector---Mr. Birrell Bounced.

(Special Despatch to the Times.) Toronto, March 12.—John W. Bleakley, the Hamilton detective, has been appointed License Inspector of Hamilton. His appointment was announced this morning by the Provincial Secretary. He takes the position formerly held by Wm. Birrell. He will assume his new duties on the 15th of this month.

It is understood that the change had been recommended by the Hamilton Board of License Commissioners and by several citizens.

OPEN SHOPS.

Three Foundries Are Now Running in Hamilton.

Despite the efforts of the International Union, the mouldiers and their employers have been unable to draw up any agreement that meets with the approval of both sides, or come to any satisfactory agreement. The Gurney-Ellden Company took the initiative about a month ago, and began to run an open shop. The International Union at that point ordered the men back to work, but few of them complied.

WHAT WILL HAPPEN AFTER INQUEST?

Everyone Asking Will There be an Arrest, or Will the Mystery Go Unsolved.

Will there be an arrest in the Kinrade murder case to-night? What verdict will Coroner Anderson's jury return?

These are the questions on every lip to-day, heard wherever people congregate.

Thousands of people from coast to coast whose interest has been aroused by this shocking crime are eagerly and expectantly awaiting the answer, and they should have it before midnight.

There was some talk of the jury, after hearing all the available evidence to-night, adjourning for two weeks or a month to give the police a chance to uncover something new. This will not be done. The inquest will be closed tonight. The authorities admit that if they cannot succeed at the coroner's investigation they have not a chance.

On the evidence the jury to-night must return a verdict that Ethel Kinrade was murdered. The jurors have the right to add a rider that in their opinion such and such a person is the murderer, or that the evidence points to them. Will they do so?

Crown Attorney Washington this morning was asked that question, and his reply was: "It's hard to tell what a jury will do. They may name someone or say the evidence points to them, but that rests with them."

Mr. Washington to-day confirmed the statement that Florence Kinrade would not be asked to take the stand again.

THE MAN IN OVERALLS

Almost everybody you meet has a "theory" and quite a lot can tell you what the police should have done in the first place, but didn't do.

Now, who ordered Mr. Birrell's head cut off? Not surely Mr. Callaghan.

In fact, I don't know what to think of the hotel men. Just when I am sure they are obeying the law and keeping the lid on tight, along comes some Johnny of a Government spy and catches them in the act. I don't like it. They are so easy.

Be thankful you're not on the Kinrade jury, sitting up all night.

After all the weather might be worse. March is not considered a holiday month anyway.

If you want a job advertise in the Times. It won't cost you anything. Couldn't be cheaper.

Some of those newspaper cuts of Florence Kinrade are a libel on the girl.

Suppose the police search you, blame your friend, Mr. T. J. Stewart. He may want to put the cuffs on you too. Is he an anarchist or a tyrant?

Let us hope that Constable Smith will yet have the pleasure of arresting the man who shot him.

Notice how Toronto snickers in its sleeve every time it hears of another Hamilton calamity, the whited sepulchre that it is.

It was a Bleak lookout for Birrell.

When a hotel man gets convicted of breaking the law he places another argument in the mouths of the temperance people for the abolition of the bar. I wonder he doesn't see that.

This doesn't look like Lent to me. Too much worry for contemplation.

Is it near time for the bear to come out of its hole again?

To those who would criticise Florence Kinrade's testimony or behavior in the box, I would say, put yourself in her place.

A good building season would put a lot of workmen and others on their feet again.

Lieutenant Inspector Birrell has lost his job. Was he too zealous in the discharge of his duties to suit some of the bosses?

I needn't ask if you still sleep with your window open. The burglar scare shut all the windows as tight as a trap.

If it is not out of order, I should like to ask if the police cells are any better ventilated.

Another good place to put in an evening is the Liberal Club? Do you ever go up?

I notice that the police dogs in New York are doing good work in running down criminals. Two of them caught three who were running away the other day. The dogs are muzzled, but they are trained to chase and jump upon the men and trip them up by running be-

UP TO-DAY.

Bill For Issue of Debentures Being Considered.

Mayor McLaren, City Solicitor Waddell, Secretary Brennan of the Board of Works, City Treasurer Leckie and City Clerk Kent went to Toronto at noon in connection with the city's private bill authorizing the issue of debentures for $237,000 for roadwork and the overdraft. The bill comes before the Railway and Municipal Board this afternoon.

"Plumber and Steamfitter" for March has a picture of and a descriptive article on Hamilton's public comfort station on the Central Market. The same publication urges the erection of another such station in Gore Park — an idea that no sane person in Hamilton would consider for a moment.

A meeting is to be held in the Board of Trade rooms on Monday afternoon at 4 o'clock for the purpose of forming a Business Men's Association, to act in conjunction with the City Industrial Committee in booming Hamilton.

The Earl's Mistake

"So glad! And how long have you been here? And are you going to make a long stay? Ho wdy you like this part of the country? You must come and stay with us at the Court."

"Thank you," said Lord Cecil. "I am afraid I shall not be able to accept your invitation. At present I am the guest of my friend, Mr. Harrington. Do you know Miss Harrington, Lady Bellairs?"

"Yes, my lord," said Yates, earnestly. "The lady passed me before I could stop her, my lord," he added. "Lord Cecil dismissed him with a nod, and turned to Carrie."

"No, then," he said, "having disposed of this little interlude, perhaps we can go on with our game," and, as calmly as if there had been nothing to annoy him, he took up his rackets and served the ball.

CHAPTER X. With two bright spots burning on her cheeks—two spots of vivid color that make her eyes sparkle like diamonds under their lids—Carrie "takes her lesson" and plays on in silence, while Lord Cecil, making crack shots, carries all before him, notwithstanding that Willie works like a nigger until the perspiration pours down his face, and Philippa dashes madly to and fro in vain endeavors to check Lord Cecil's triumphant progress.

"Just time to dress," remarks Philippa, businesslike in a moment. "Oh, Lord Cecil, I want to ask you; would you like to have your dinner served in your own room?"

STEEL CUT BY AIR. Experiment to Show the Speed With Which the Work Can be Done. "Diamond cut diamond," but steel is cut with air. The new and ingenious method of rapidly cutting through iron or steel plate is based upon the fact that when iron at a high temperature is acted upon by a fine jet of oxygen the resulting iron oxide is more fusible than the iron itself and passing away exposes a fresh surface of the metal to the attack of the gas so that a cut is produced along the line of action.

STIRLING DIVORCE.

SCOTCH JUDGE GIVES THE WIFE A SCOLDING. Mrs. Atherton is Pronounced "a Lady by Birth," Though Ostracized by Wrongdoing—Stirling Keeps Children—Losers to Appeal—Public Surprised.

Edinburgh, March 12.—Lord Guthrie, Judge of the Court of Sessions, gave judgment yesterday in the divorce suits of Capt. and Mrs. Stirling. He granted Capt. Stirling a divorce and denied Mrs. Stirling's suit.

The Court awarded Capt. Stirling the custody of the child. The counsel for Mrs. Stirling and Lord Northland announced their intention of appealing against the judgment.

Lord Guthrie in delivering judgment made some scathing remarks on the conduct of the parties concerned. The evidence, he said, showed that they had led selfish and idle lives. The mental endowments of Mrs. Stirling and Mrs. Atherton could not be reckoned as very high. The only useful occupation the two could find on one Sunday seemed to consist in manœuvring each other's aunts.

In dealing with Mrs. Stirling's trip to America Lord Guthrie remarked that she had spent her time on the voyage to New York in playing bridge whist with a total stranger. With this total stranger she flirted and even entertained an invitation to stay at his house. Her only letter to her husband was written with the purpose of making a selfish proposal for separation on the condition that she received an annual allowance of £750 ($8,750), after the breaking up of her home she saved no unselfishness in frequenting restaurants and theatres with the man on whose account she had separated from her husband.

In comparing the two women Lord Guthrie said: "Mrs. Atherton was a lady by birth and fitted to take a conspicuous place in society, but had been ostracized by her own wrongdoing. The other was unable by reason of her own incapacity to adopt or ape the manners of society, takes at first a conventional pursuit or adheres to its standards. Both women seemed to hold a poor opinion of their own sex."

Lord Guthrie continued: "Lord Northland looked a demurely, straightforward, sensible man, and if Mrs. Stirling resolved to fight the case it was part of the code of honor of such a man to stand by the woman and see her through. It is proved that declarations of love were made recently to each other by the married young man and that young married woman, meaning by 'love' that feeling between the sexes which in the absence of impediment leads to marriage."

"The frequent lengthened meetings took place between the two alone and without the knowledge of the woman's husband, beginning while she still resided with her husband and continuing after she had been forbidden to see Northland, and she knew she was being watched and she had abandoned her home. Neither Mrs. Stirling nor Lord Northland had been able to give any reasonable explanation of these meetings apart from their love."

"Lord Northland's visit to Mrs. Stirling's room at Amberley Cottage during regatta week was not consistent with innocence, and with regard to the charged incident at the Chesham street house there was doubt about improper having taken place."

"The midnight visit of Lord Northland to Amberley Cottage by taxicab threw the duty of explaining it on the footing of innocence on Lord Northland and Mrs. Stirling, and they failed to do so. If they were unable to put themselves in positions so compromising as in an ordinary way to imply guilt, and if they were unable to give explanations to account for them on the footing of innocence, they could not complain if the ordinary inference was held inevitable."

The decision of the Court, which was a lengthy document, extending to about five newspaper columns, was, on the whole, received with surprise, just the reverse of the decision having been expected. It is not likely that an appeal can be heard before November.

The Stirling divorce suit has kept Edinburgh stirred up for months. The merriment in the court room during the hearings became so obstreperous that the judge, after repeated warnings, had the court room cleared and debarréd the public on February 4th.

Mrs. Clara Stirling is a daughter of Charles Henry Taylor, of Washington, D. C. Before her marriage she was spoken of as one of the most beautiful of the American show girls appearing in "The Earl and the Girl" company at the Oldred Theatre, Alexander Stirling, Laird of Kippendievie, Perthshire, Captain in the Scots Guards, fell in love with her and gave up his commission as the price of her hand.

Papers were filed in the Court of Session in cross suits for divorce by Capt. and Mrs. Stirling on Oct. 15. Mrs. Stirling alleged misconduct on her husband's part with Mrs. Atherton, the divorced wife of Col. Atherton, formerly of the Twelfth Lancers. Capt. Stirling charged his wife with misconduct with Lord Northland, an officer in the Foot Guards, and son and heir of the Earl of Banbury.

Mrs. Stirling testified that she and her husband lived together happily until last year when Mrs. Atherton appeared on the scene. The latter, she said, completely won over the Captain's heart. Mr. Stirling and Mrs. Atherton visited Paris together in June, 1908, and stayed at the same hotel. Capt. Stirling admitted that he loved Mrs. Atherton. The latter, when appealed to, emphatically denied that there was anything wrong in her relations with the Captain.

On cross-examination Mrs. Stirling stated that she met Lord Northland a month before her marriage and that she saw him frequently afterward. He formed the fourth member of the party that went to Paris on one occasion. She admitted that she told her husband that she loved Northland. She also admitted writing to Lord Northland a letter in which she said: "I feel such a dreadful rotter for he asked me if I was in love with you and I simply could not tell him I wasn't."

Lord Northland testified that he was very sorry for Mrs. Stirling and in consequence visited her and took her to theatres and other places of amusement. He said that she was depressed and hysterical in consequence of her husband's treatment of her. His only object was to cheer her up. He never loved her. It was purely from pity that he had kissed her, he testified. It was at this point that the Judge, Lord Guthrie, had the public excluded.

Clothing Logic.

Spring is almost here—Old Sol says so, and he rules this earth, even if our friend Jack has made us a belated call and frozen men's thoughts of new spring clothing.

We are ready for these logical men—have just as many suits, coats, etc., as though the temperature were fifty degrees warmer.

NOT JUST NOW.

New Y. M. C. A. Building Not to be Undertaken.

Another meeting of the Y. M. C. A. Board of Directors was held last evening. John E. Brown presided, and around the table with him sat Messrs. Alfred Powis, Geo. Rutherford, F. W. Watkins, F. R. Smith, W. J. Waugh, J. Orr Callaghan, J. J. Greene, D. M. Barton, W. J. Robinson, Wm. Longland, Fred Cloughly and T. F. Best.

Very encouraging reports were read from the various departments of association activity. The treasurer's statement showed a good month for February, largely due to the efforts of the senior cabinet. The membership was greatly increased, and the overdraft considerably reduced. Bible classes and gospel meetings for both men and boys were well attended, and were followed with encouraging results. Classes in the physical department are more largely attended than any previous year, and Mr. Barton, physical director, is kept busy with physical examinations for the new members. Twenty-four joined the business men's class during the month. A new hardwood floor is being put down in the small lecture room, the gift of Mr. W. J. Atchison. The committee on new building reported through Mr. Powis that in their judgment the time was not opportune for raising a popular subscription, such as would be necessary for the present building scheme contemplated. They recommended a new building for boys, with improved locker rooms and shower baths for the men, also bowling alleys. This is considered within reach at the present time.

MINSTRELS.

Y. M. C. A. Boys Put on a Very Fine Show.

There's talent among some of the lads in the boys' department of the Central Y. M. C. A., as those who were present at the minstrel concert given in Association Hall last night could see. The programme started with a two-act dialogue, entitled "Camping 'Up Caesar's Creek," which showed how eleven boys went to have a good time up the creek, and their good time being spoiled by the drifting in of two city dudes, with lofty ideas. However, things work out very well after a while, and all settled down to have a minstrel concert in camp, and then the fun commences in earnest. The following programme was given by the minstrels: Chorus, Tending To-night on the Old Camp Ground; round of jokes; song, Come to the Land of Bohemia, Mr. Earl Hyslop; round of jokes; song, The Old Time Rag, Mr. Ernie Hyslop; round of jokes; song, Don't Take Me Home, Mr. Albert King; round of jokes; song, Down Among the Sugar Cane, Master Willie Smith; round of jokes; song, ors that were continually running over his body. "You have brought this upon yourself," said the Magistrate, "but your condition is most pitiable, and for your own good I'm going to send you down for one month." Joseph McGovern, no address, when told to stand up and answer to a charge of vagrancy, assumed a very aggrieved expression. "My goodness! it is possible!" "Where do you keep your trunk?" asked the Magistrate. "Well Judge, to tell the truth, on my back," he replied. He was unable to give any satisfactory explanation of his business here and was given three months in which to meditate upon the error of his ways. The third vag had the distinction of having two names and having a sense of humor made them synonymous, one being John Shears, and the other Jack Scissors. This individual seemed deeply incensed that he should even be suspected of such a thing. He was a tourist, he said, though on a small scale, and had plenty of cloths, but unfortunately they were in St. Catharines. "Whereabouts in St. Catharines?" asked the Magistrate. "Why—er—the 'Queen's Hotel,'" he answered, after a moment devoted to thought. "Well, give me the name of the proprietor and I will write to him." "I didn't leave them with the proprietor, I left them in charge of the man that looks after the horses." "What is his name?" "But Scissors had been through terrible suffering lately, and his memory was most uncertain, in fact, after about three minutes' consideration, he did not know if he ever knew his name. He was given six months in which to refresh his memory. "Charles Smith, Murray street, drunk, was fined $2. He made a mistake in not paying his fine and getting out, for a short time after some one informed the Magistrate that he was an "Indian." He was again called on the carpet and asked to explain how it happened, and where he got his liquor. He said that he had been laid up for the last few days with a sore hand, and having nothing else to do had taken a few drinks. He said that he was able to get a drink in any of the hotels. He was fined $20 instead of $2. Pompeo Niekletti, an Italian, was arrested by Constable Cameron this morning for indecently exposing himself before children, near Stinson Street School. It is thought that it was this man that has been causing so much alarm in the southeast end of the city. He was remanded until to-morrow to gather further evidence. The case of Benjamin B. Morden, who is charged with theft by Wesley R. Bennett, was adjourned until Monday. He was allowed out on $500 bail.

LABOR PARTY

Will Ask Explanation of Studholme's Treatment.

The Independent Labor Party held an open meeting at Labor Hall last night, which was fairly well attended. After the regular routine business was over a discussion took place on the best method to continue the organization and augment its membership. The Printing Committee was empowered to publish pamphlets with the party platform and other matter for distribution. A special meeting and drawing will take place at the A. O. F. Hall on Monday, March 22, at which a programme will be rendered. Alphonse Veruile, M. P., Montreal, and Allan Studholme will be the principal speakers. The regular meeting night was changed from the second to the third Thursday in each month. A committee was appointed to wait on Mayor McLaren and find out why Allan Studholme, M. P., was ignored in the matter of the private bill introduced in the Legislature in the interest of Hamilton. A vote of confidence and commendation on the ability and integrity of Mr. Studholme in connection with his work in the Legislature was unanimously carried.

SOME TYPES OF MESSINA.

Messina's streets were a great attraction, for, though of a rather squalid type, they housed a most interesting population. The Marina teemed with life—with fishermen in stocking caps and knitted smock-frocks; with stevedores loading and unloading the molly-craft that filled the harbor. Back from the port, the city's streets were filled to overflowing with curious figures, vendors of all kinds; fruit sellers and peddlers of pottery; ironmongers and peddlers of all sorts.

IS HE A BIGAMIST?

Charges Walter Blizard With Having a Wife Too Many.

(Special Despatch to the Times.) St. Catharines, March 12.—Walter Blizard, a married man, 27 years of age, residing on Niagara street, was laid before Magistrate Campbell in the Police Court this morning on a bigamy charge. The warrant for his arrest was sworn out yesterday by John H. Chick, of the township of Carleton, who alleges that the accused did on Sept. 14 last, in Lockport, N. Y., go through the form of marriage with complainant's daughter, Alice, being at the time a married man. Blizard was arrested at 11 o'clock last night by Police Sergeant McCarthy, while cutting ice on the new canal. He was remanded for a week by Magistrate Campbell.

H COMPANY.

England's Unemployed.

Business Depression Not the Only Cause of Failure to Get Work.

The condition of the unemployed is one of the big questions of the day in the United Kingdom. In Edinburgh the vice-chairman of the Distress Committee in an address delivered a short time ago gives his views on the causes and possible remedies for the evil. Unemployment, he believes, was aggravated by the recent trade depression but was not caused by it. He said that there was a class of men who best could be described as unemployable, comprising "the corner man, the loafer, the tramp, the begging impostor and the man who will not take work."

"The most fertile source of breeding these classes," the speaker continued, "is an indiscriminate and ill administered charity."

Among other causes of the growth of these classes he mentioned excessive drinking, a faulty educational system, which too often develops intellect without any training of character, forgetful that intellect may increase a man's capacity for evil as well as his capacity for good," and finally a "growing habit of indolence and self-indulgence, which is sapping some of the best root qualities of the national character and are causing a consequent weakening of moral force and will power."

FIFTY ICEBERGS.

British Steamer Encounters Them Off Grand Banks.

Had to Steer For 12 Hours to the Eastward.

Philadelphia, March 12.—Towering icebergs and a great area of encircled ice cause consternation to the officers and crew of the British steamer Tamara when the vessel was within several hundred miles of the Grand Banks, on March 3. The Tamara arrived here yesterday from Shields, and the report of her officers caused amazement in shipping circles, when it became known that more than fifty icebergs were passed. The vessel was 200 miles northeast of Cape Race when the look-out reported icebergs ahead. Officers crowded the bridge decks and with glasses swept the sea. To their astonishment the water was literally dotted with bergs of all sizes. The steamship soon found herself in heavy field ice, and finally was compelled to steam for twelve hours to eastward. She picked her way through fifties of icebergs, some of massive proportions and others less than ten feet out of the water.

USES FOR WASTE WOOD.

Most Recent Have Origin in Demand for Alcohols and Acids.

Uncle Sam is concerned about the wilful waste of wood which seems predestined to create woful want. Millions of cords of wood is wasted every year in the forest and on the farm because this wood is not suitable for the various mechanical uses for which wood is employed. There are, however, numerous means of disposing of this waste. Aside from burning, and paper making, which are chemical industries that have been established for hundreds of years, there are other industrial uses of more recent origin which are of agricultural importance.

Important among these are destructive distillation, recovery of turpentine, resin, paper pulp, preparation of alcohols and manufacture of acids. These are growing industries because of a steadily increasing demand for wood alcohol, acetates, acetone, turpentine, charcoal, etc., which are utilized in other industries.

The crude products from distillation are chiefly four: Gases, tar and oils, charcoal and acids. Methyl alcohol, acetates, acetone, turpentine, charcoal, wood, oil and oxalic acid are directly or indirectly obtained on a commercial scale from woods, and the yield is governed largely by specific gravity, weight and kind of wood as well as by the way in which the manufacturing process is carried on.—From the Chicago Tribune.

PROTECTION OF CROSSINGS.

Hon. G. P. Graham States the Policy of the Government.

Dominion to Grant Two Hundred Thousand a Year.

Municipalities to Contribute Under Jurisdiction of Railway Commission.

Ottawa, March 11.—The policy of the Government in regard to level crossings was laid before the House this afternoon by the Minister of Railways, and the fact that it received the warm commendation of Opposition critics like Hon. John Haggart and Mr. Lennox may be taken as evidence that the Hon. Mr. Graham has found a practical way of dealing with a difficult problem, and one that will be generally acceptable. The main provisions of the bill, based on the resolution moved by Mr. Graham, and carried, are these: That a sum of $200,000 be appropriated each year for five consecutive years from April 1st, 1909, placed to the credit of a special account to be known as the railway grade crossing fund, and applied under the authority of the Board of Railway Commissioners, for the purpose of aiding in the providing of protection for existing highway crossings of railways; that the amount contributed from that fund shall not exceed ten per cent. of the cost of the crossing protection, and that in no case shall it be more than $5,000; that the Railway Commission shall have the power of apportioning the cost as between the railway and the municipality or corporation; that payments shall be limited to crossings of not more than three tracks; that not more than three crossings in one municipality in one year shall receive contributions; that crossings constructed hereafter shall be protected at the expense of the railway companies; that the board shall have power to order any municipality, by which it means city, town, incorporated village, township or parish, to contribute a portion of the cost of the protection, and that railway companies shall be allowed to establish grade crossings along their lines under conditions to be prescribed by the Railway Commission. There are also provisions relating to the issue of bonds and to the expropriation of property by railway companies within a specified time after the filing of plans.

MR. GRAHAM'S EXPLANATION

Mr. Graham was, as usual, concise and explicit in his explanation of the scope of the measure, and the points of criticism raised by the Opposition were few in number, the chief having reference to the liability of the municipality. Mr. Graham said the situation with regard to level crossings required a practical solution, and the crux of the resolution proposed lay in the enlargement of the powers of the Board of Railway Commissioners, and in the contribution by Parliament of a certain sum for the accomplishment of the project they had in view. Objection had been made to the authority of the Board of Railway Commissioners to make any contribution to the cost of crossings, the ground being taken that all the expense should be borne by the railways and municipalities. There were additional objections which might be acceptable, and the Board of Railway Commissioners would have full power to adopt that principle where in its judgment those conditions existed. But if they were to get rid of the level crossing danger, even in a measure, they must be prepared to take the object in view he had followed, the policy adopted in, he thought, every State in the Union where an effort had been made to grapple with the problem. He believed that under the conditions which the Federal authorities, Provinces and municipalities, had helped to create, the only practical way was to make a contribution within certain bounds. CERTAIN RESTRICTIONS. It was therefore proposed that the sum of $200,000 be contributed by Parliament each year for five years to a fund for the purpose of aiding in the protection of level crossings. There would, however, be a double restriction. It was proposed that towards the protection of no crossing would the contribution exceed 20 per cent., and that no crossing should receive more than $5,000. The board would exercise the power of apportioning the cost between the railway and the municipality or corporation or person. Mr. Lennox—Is there a limit to the contribution of a municipality? Hon. Mr. Graham replied in the negative. It was proposed that the contribution should apply to crossings including from one to four tracks, and that not more than three crossings in any one municipality in any one year would receive a contribution from the fund. Another important point was that the contributions would be for crossings that now exist. He proposed to place a clause in the bill to the effect that crossings hereafter constructed by railway companies across highways should be protected at the expense of the companies, without any charge on the Parliamentary fund or against a municipality. Another provision of the act would define municipality as a city, town, incorporated village, township or parish, and there would be a provision covering the issue of bonds. Then there was the question of protection along the line of railway by fire guards, and it was proposed to provide for that under conditions to be prescribed by the Railway Commission. NO TYING UP OF PROPERTY. Another important point in the bill would have reference to the filing of plans and the price of property. Under the present law, after plans had been filed for the location of a railway, the value of the property remained the same as it was at the time the plans were filed, no matter how great a time elapsed before taking over the property. It hardly seemed fair that railway companies should be able to tie up property for years, while it was increasing in value, and so it was proposed to allow two years after the filing of plans for the railway companies to obtain titles. Mr. Lennox—Will the board have jurisdiction to order municipalities to contribute? Hon. Mr. Graham said the board would have jurisdiction to compel municipalities as well as individuals. Mr. Lennox asked whether the Provincial Governments had been consulted. Hon. Mr. Graham said he had written to each of the Provincial Premiers outlining the provisions of the bill, asking their co-operation, and suggesting that the provinces might fairly contribute something.

Mr. Borden did not think the bill would bring about a very large measure of relief, and he was not quite so sure as Mr. Haggart that the Dominion Parliament had jurisdiction to order a municipality to pay towards the cost of the protection of crossings. The resolution was carried, and Mr. Graham introduced a bill founded upon it.

CIVIL SERVANTS' SALARIES. Inspired presumably by some disgruntled civil servants, Mr. Foster took occasion on the motion to go into supply, to launch into a searching analysis of the recent salary increases in the various departments and of the flat rate increase proposed under Hon. Sydney Fisher's bill.

Hon. Sydney Fisher completely disapproved of Mr. Foster's criticisms. He charged the member for North Toronto with trying to smash the act which he had assisted to pass, and scored neatly by pointing out that the classification which Mr. Foster now described as mechanical was not in the original bill, and that Mr. Foster himself had objected to the proposal originally made, that the classification should be on the lines of merit.

Hon. Mr. Pugsley, after analyzing the re-classification in his department, made an effective reply to the Opposition criticisms by challenging the citation of a single instance where any undeserved promotion had been made or any injustice done a single civil servant.

The House then went into supply on the Nova Scotia public works estimates. Mr. Wilfrid Laurier informed Mr. Borden that the Government had had no negotiation, and had no intention of entering into negotiations with the Government of the United States with respect to the duties on paper and pulp-wood.

Replying to Col. Hughes, Hon. Mr. Fielding stated that the Government had called the attention of the Imperial authorities to the discoveries of Messrs. McCurdy and Baldwin in connection with aeroplanes in the hope that the Admiralty might avail themselves of the services of these young Canadians, and thus retain them for the benefit of the empire.

WAIST LINE.

May be Anywhere Below Hips, Which Fashion Condemns.

Arbiters Decree This Shall be Straight Line Season.

Chicago Tribune.—A simple little thing for market wear, like the one-piece costume which Juliet wore when she went to the tomb, is threatened as one of the tentative styles of the spring season. An automobiling costume in the manner of a Capuchin friar is another. Indeed, the dressmakers' convention, assembled even now in the Auditorium, tells us that this is to be an eclectical season. Even the costumes especially designed for wear when playing at Monte Carlo is described by Miss Elizabeth White, the high priestess of the exhibition, as "eclectic in its scope and design."

To describe it, however, requires language less Biblical than algebraic. "Diminishing as it approaches the limit" is one of those impressionistic quotations from the eclogue which here finds its concrete application. "Supply the hips as the subject of 'diminishing' and 'the spring styles' as the phrase referred to in the last word.

Let X equal the waist line and the problem be to find it. The answer is that it is variable, and is located between the hips and the knees, the former having "diminished" into "infinitude." In other words, the waist line has at last come into its own, and the old standards—44, 34, 26 measurements—are no longer official. Hips, indeed, are extremely bad form. From having been crowded into inconspicuousness through the years, the waist line is the feature of the season, and is at liberty to appear, ample and conspicuous, anywhere from the line of the chest to the knees.

Miss White says that "all you've got to do this year is to get a line and then fix everything around it." Presumably, this one fixed quantity is perpendicular, and you may select whatever point you prefer for the location of your waist. "This is not," said Miss White, "the season for the plump woman—unless she added, with a ray of light, 'she wears the proper corset.'"

And such a corset, according to the informal demonstrations of the afternoon, extends from the arms to the knees. If you observe the above rules, you may introduce modifications of design ad lib. The friar automobiling coat may have an embroidered back, if you prefer it that way. The one on exhibition is trimmed with 500 buttons, and with it goes a hat with a plume on it two and one-half yards long.

The Juliet costume has an embroidered front and back, extending from throat to hem, and is hung together at the sides with net of large mesh. A Capulet cap goes with it, encircled in roses.

DERAILED BY WRECKERS. Train Thrown From Track and Engineer Killed.

Monroe, La., March 11.—As a result of the work of train wreckers, the southbound express on the Arkansas, Louisiana & Gulf Railroad was derailed twenty miles north of this city shortly before midnight last night. The Juliet costume has an embroidered front and back, extending from throat to hem, and is hung together at the sides with net of large mesh. A Capulet cap goes with it, encircled in roses.

Engineer C. W. McDaniel was instantly killed and Fireman J. B. Brown was seriously hurt. No passengers were among the injured. An investigation showed that a switch had been thrown and spiked, while the signal light had been turned so as to show white.

THE ORANGEMEN.

Essery Will Represent Grand Lodge at Triennial Council.

Racine Bill and Other School Legislation to be Watched.

St. Thomas, March 11.—The Orange Grand Lodge of Ontario West will contribute to the distribution of the Sentinel to ministers in Ontario. Grand Master Essery was chosen representative to attend the Triennial Council at Liverpool, Eng., in July.

There was prolonged discussion of the Legislation Committee's report, which said that: "In the Provincial Legislature we have a band of members who if they are true to our principles (as we believe they will be) of equal rights for all and special privileges to none can make it impossible for any laws to be passed conferring special favors on any class or creed." In Manitoba it was "evident that an effort is to be made to secure some special school favors for Rome as the price of granting an enlargement of the boundaries to the Province which first since confederation declared in favor of a national non-sectarian school of education.

"It should be mentioned in this connection that our most worthy grand master has introduced a bill in Parliament intended to make it quite clear that the public school lands of the west shall be used for public schools, and not for sectarian schools."

The Racine bill before the Legislature was condemned. Reference was made to the necessity of having more information on matters coming up before law-makers, and it was proposed that the Grand Lodge unite with the Grand Lodge of Ontario East and vote $500 to enable the joint legislation committee to make a thorough and searching inquiry into all the facts relating to the school question in those localities where the separate school supporters are trying to supplant or have supplanted the public schools.

COFFERS OF RICH

Threatened by French Income Tax Bill.

Paris, March 10.—The Country has received the passage of the income tax bill by the Chamber of Deputies with mingled feelings of rage and triumph. The commercial, moneyed and property classes generally, whose interests are voiced by such journals as the Figaro, the Temps and the Journal des Debats, deplore it as a piece of criminal folly voted by a "cowardly majority" solicited only of re-election next spring. On the other hand, the Socialists and Radicals joyfully hail the passage of the bill as marking the beginning of the millennium.

The income tax bill passed is in reality an electoral platform which the Radicals and Socialists will go to the country. No one imagines that in its present form it will be enforced. It is a cleverly-devised appeal to the masses. It shifts the burden of taxation as far as possible to the rich by dividing the taxable population into seven categories, the workmen and salaried employees, which include State servants, paying the lowest, and the hated "bourgeois" and the landed proprietors the highest.

CARMAN LETTER.

OUT-INGERSOLLED WITHIN THE HOUSE OF GOD.

Methodist Superintendent Replies to the Critics of His Assault on the Scientists of the Bible.

The following is from a letter written by Rev. Dr. Carman, which appears in this morning's Toronto World:

While not specially fond of controversy or desirous of its continuance, I feel in duty bound as at the first to notice some issues that have arisen. One could hardly imagine there would be such a stir, but it is plain enough some spots were struck, and I am sorry they were so near, both on the irregular articles of pulpit arrangements and the utterances concerning the integrity of Holy Scripture. This pulpit arrangement was conceived in confidence and good will, and likely so would have terminated but for a manifest disposition to introduce and propagate what is known as higher criticism.

THE MEANINGS OF TERMS.

Now, the address which originally provoked the animadversions is before the public, men may judge for themselves. I do not find in it a word about the supernatural, or miracles, or revelation, and scarcely a word about inspiration, all potent and indispensable factors of our Christian faith; nor do I find the feeblest intimation of faith itself, which of course is the faculty and the spiritual operation that connects us with God. We must believe that He is, and that He is the rewarder. "Through our faith we understand that the worlds were framed by the Word of God." These voices from the heavens with their attestations are ignored or suppressed. The voices from exalted palaces and cities are stifled, monument and inscription, tile and record, have no place in its estimate. Yet we have much talk and reiteration of "unhistoric," "unscientific," "REVELATION AND KNOWLEDGE."

"If the creation of the universe be a fact and not a myth; if the creation of man and woman be facts and not myths—I am not concerned just now about the literary dress—and if the fall of man be a fact and all duly recorded, then we have history up to its date and the basis of all history, and we have science up to its date and the foundation of all science. This is imbedded in and a part of our Christian faith. Further than that: Is revelation a source of knowledge? Is inspiration a source of knowledge? Is faith a source of knowledge? Can they shed any light on our other knowledge? Can they attest and confirm history as relating to the acts of God and His dealing with men? Who dare deny it? And this is what is unhesitatingly claimed for Christ and the apostles, that when they touch human history their statements are perfectly trustworthy.

The rule of interpretation set forth in the lecture might well startle us somewhat, considering that it had been previously pronounced, as is said, in a Methodist Church. "We must lay aside our theological prepossessions, forget what we know of other knowledge; we must have much talk and reiteration of 'unhistoric,' 'unscientific,' 'REVELATION AND KNOWLEDGE.'"

With this marvellous rule of interpretation the marvellous rock of Holy Scripture is loosened by a whirl of Huxley's breath. The Bradlaugh and Ingersoll have all vanished under the splendors of this uncertain ray. But what if one should venture to ask, what need of Bradlaugh and Ingersoll if they are out-Bradlaughed and out-Ingersolled within the precincts of the House of God, which is the Church of the Living God, the pillar and ground of the truth? If there is science or history up to its own date under the sky, it is in my humble judgment the first verse of the Bible. "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth," that truth of the sword of the eternal spirit throughout all the ages against all Atheisms, Polytheisms, Agnosticism, Materialism, Pantheism and materialistic evolutions. Will it be said, dare it be said, in these circles that this is not a true account of the origin of the universe, and the profound, sacred sense of the great first verse? Again, "God created man in His own image—male and female created He them." Is not this a true account as we see in our streets to-day? And with it correlates the basis of our history, sociology, anthropology and religious sciences.

Should our ideal be a slim sociology or a protoplasm sociology, or a Mormon sociology or the materialist sociology of higher levels? or should it be the pattern set in Eden and condensed to the race? "I was afraid because I was naked," said the guilty transgressor, and so revealed at the beginning the basis of all ethical science and the need of atonement. On these and kindred facts with absolute historic certainty were the foundations laid at the beginning. How else is the marriage law and the Sabbath law to be obligatory on all mankind for all ages? Whatever may have been since, whatever we may have introduced at the start, and they are part and parcel of the Christian faith. Science and religion were so united at the beginning, and from all man's misdeeds and perversities when reason and faith stand have learned their places they will be reunited in the radiance around the throne.

If men want to be slack in religion and loose in morals, the preacher is not the man to encourage such a step by his doctrine. Dr. Carman is not a literalist; he is by no means a "verbatim et literatim" man. But he is not ready to have his Bible wrested from him by anti-Christian canons of interpretation and a heathen court of appeal. "Men are walking softly," says an esteemed brother, "in the presence of the problem of sin and misery." This is precisely the trouble in our time. Why are they not broad up by the teaching to walk manfully, courageously? Certainly that will not be done if you railroad the Bible, book by book, into oblivion. The problem of sin is perfectly solved as to its origin, its perpetuity and its one only an absolute, infallible cure. If the Bible is right on its origin and cure, men better be waked up, lest they dwell with everlasting burnings.

OPPORTUNITY OF TRAINED MEN

Liberal Leader Advocates the Technical School.

Hon. Adam Beck's Important Government Bill.

Sir James Whitney Scores Methods of Mining Company.

Toronto, March 12.—The leaders clashed in spirited addresses at the close of the budget debate in the Legislature yesterday. Hon. A. G. MacKay submitted a resolution which Mr. Speaker subsequently declared "lost on division," the first vote of the session.

The Liberal leader was at his best. He followed his vigorous lead on the forestry policy earlier in the week by blaming the trail towards a practical and progressive system of technical training, under which the sons of Ontario's artisans would be confronted with the open door to efficiency and its emolument. He contrasted the trade institutions of Germany, which take the green apprentice and make him a finished man, with the English technical schools, which are supplementary to the workshop. Last year Ontario spent $32,000 on technical education. Mr. MacKay strongly advocated the establishment in all our towns and cities of evening technical schools, arguing that these would reach the masses of the young men who enter the workshop much more effectively than similar teaching in our high schools and collegiate institutes, which the majority never reach. "Let us have," said he, "evening classes in all our factory towns, where the young man has the opportunity to learn the general theoretical and scientific principles which underlie his chosen life work." Mr. MacKay emphasized his declaration that the largest practical problem before the Government was the proper handling of our great forest wealth, and showed that the greatest present educational defect was inability of the poor man's son to receive the technical training that should be at his own door. "Let us," said the Liberal leader, "not content ourselves with recounting the achievements and failures of the past. Opportunity lies in the living present. Let us be doing."

HON. MR. BECK'S BILL.

That no franchise or contract extending over more than one year can be entered into by any municipality without a vote of the people is the essence of an important Government measure introduced at the Legislature yesterday by Hon. Adam Beck.

The bill, which, according to its provisions, comes into force on March 11, 1909, covers heat and lighting contracts, telephone and street railway franchises and long term agreements for all public utilities.

ACCOUNTS GETS INTERESTING.

Mr. Allan Strohme (East Hamilton), on resuming the budget debate commended Hon. Colonel Hendrie on the fact that that Minister had done his work as Provincial Commissioner at the Legislature without charge to the Province. It was a splendid example to other Ministers who "ran up big bills and expense accounts" on their trips to England, and the Judges who dined on the ratpayers of the Province every time they met to consider the revision of the statutes.

UNITED AND ABLE OPPOSITION.

Hon. A. G. MacKay, who was greeted with Liberal applause, took occasion to observe that never in his experience of budget debates had he seen an Opposition acquit itself as creditably as had the "little band" with which he was associated. The Liberal leader immediately dipped into public questions, after taking occasion to urge upon the Government the advisability of seriously dealing with the forestry policy he had previously laid before the House. Mr. MacKay touched on the question of education. One of the necessities of the hour was to meet the growing demand for technical education.

A corps of skaters is attached to the Norwegian army, the members being men selected for good physique and accurate marksmanship. These skaters can be manoeuvred upon ice or over the mountain snow fields with as great rapidity as the best trained cavalry, and as an instance of their speed, one of the corps some little time back accomplished a march of 120 miles in eighteen and a half hours over mountainous country.—London Tit-Bits.

and miscellaneous; the expenditure under civil government having risen from $344,006 in 1904 to $518,823 in 1906, and that under the head of miscellaneous from $139,007 in 1904 to $468,131 in 1906; and this House, especially in view of the fact that last year, strongly urges a curtailment of expenses, particularly under the heads mentioned. This House further regrets the tremendous increase in the expenditures of the Province that has made within the annual vote of this Legislature, which expenditures last year amounted, under three heads of special statutes, Treasury Board minutes and special warrants, to the large sum of $1,480,894, or seventeen and a half per cent. of the total expenditure."

THE PREMIER REPLIES.

Sir James Whitney got a prolonged and enthusiastic reception from his followers. In reference to the Cobalt Lake difference the Premier said: "For some time the Electrical Development Co., the Electric Light Co., and the Mackenzie interests have displayed hostility towards myself and this Government because we did not choose to allow an account to be made of the annual vote of this Legislature, which expenditures last year amounted, under three heads of special statutes, Treasury Board minutes and special warrants, to the large sum of $1,480,894, or seventeen and a half per cent. of the total expenditure."

NEW LIPTON CUP.

Sir Thomas to Offer One For an Airship Contest.

New York, March 11.—[That Sir Thomas Lipton is planning a battle for supremacy in aerial navigation between America and Britannia is intimated in a letter to Milwaukee correspondents whom he met in this city last year. The letter intimates that Sir Thomas has wearied of trying to win back the America Cup, but will or is considering putting up a cup for aeromatic supremacy between representatives of the two great English-speaking races.

His letter was not intended for publication, the Milwaukee man says, so the text is being withheld, but it is believed that Sir Thomas is feeling out the sporting blood of America on a new proposition which will give him a chance to enter into a pretty contest with Americans. Sir Thomas has been greatly interested in the work of the Wright brothers, and it is probable that the contest will be restricted to dirigibles.

Sir Thomas has a great faith, he says, that it will be an Anglo-Saxon who will finally solve the problem of absolutely successful aerial navigation, and he hopes to figure in the conquest, when that time comes. The present work he considers to be of great value for experimental purposes, and some day the real solution will be found.

THREE NEW STATES

Added to British Empire by Treaty With Siam.

London, March 11.—Fifteen thousand square miles of territory have been added to the British Empire by the treaty signed yesterday at Bangkok, Siam, under the terms which Siam cedes to Great Britain the States of Kalantan, Tripang and Kudat, which heretofore will be administered with the Malay Federated States.

Under the treaty English capital to the extent of $20,000,000 will be furnished for the construction of railroads south of Bangkok. These lines are to be controlled by a new department quite distinct from the present railroad administration of Siam, which is administered by Germany. There will also be a gradual abolition of British extra-territorial rights in Siam.

"Yes."

While Mrs. Kinrade was being questioned about the time her daughter returned last December from Virginia, she asked for a glass of water.

"I have a cold," she explained.

"That is right, when you feel any discomfort let us know," said Mr. Blackstock.

"When Florence returned there was no unpleasantness manifested by Ethel," said the mother. She added that she wrote to her daughter to come home.

"Why was that?"

"I didn't like her to be connected with a theatre."

"Was there any other reason?"

"She had a touch of malaria fever on account of the climate there."

PLEASANT RELATIONS CONTINUED.

Mrs. Kinrade insisted very emphatically that the pleasant relations among members of the family continued after Florence returned from the South. "The girls were always together and out every day," she said.

"Was any complaint made by yourself or your daughter Ethel because Florence took no part in household duties after she returned?"

"We had a charwoman."

"Your daughter Florence gives us to understand that after she returned all the household duties were left to you and Ethel?"

"Not altogether."

"Practically altogether?"

"I never noticed it in that way."

"That was the way she told us last night, and the question I ask you is whether you and Ethel ever reproached her?"

"Not that I know of."

"Well, you would know it, for instance on the day of the tragedy; Florence slept until noon?"

"That was a common occurrence."

"On that day were you and Ethel in her room to get her up?"

"No, sir, I don't think we did."

"Well, you could remember. Had you and Ethel been in Florence's room before she got up?"

"I don't remember about Ethel."

"Well, were you there that morning before she got up?"

"I don't know."

Whenever any undue noise was heard, caused by the moving about of those present to escape the many draughts, Mr. Blackstock looked in the direction of the disturbance with a frown.

THOSE MARKS ON WINDOW.

Mrs. Kinrade in discussing the incident at the dinner table when it was decided to make a complaint about annoyance caused by tramps said her husband told her to telephone the police.

"Your husband," said Mr. Blackstock, "last night did not say that he told you to go to the police station. One of the things I pressed him on last night was this point why he did not phone to the police. He said it never occurred to him, although there was a phone in the house, and now you come up and get over the difficulty by telling us that he urged you to phone. However, that is what you say on the subject, and you did not phone?"

HOW THE TIME WAS OCCUPIED.

"Did you help to clear away the dishes or leave that to the daughters?"

"I didn't assist at all."

"What day was your calling day?"

"The first and third Thursdays."

"And this was the third Thursday?"

"I don't remember."

"At all events this was the day you expected people to come to the house?"

"No answer was given."

"When did you start to get ready to go out?"

"I think it was after 2 o'clock."

"Your daughter told us it was before that."

"I couldn't say."

"Any idea of that time at all?"

"No answer was given for some time, then the witness said she could not recall it to her mind."

"She was asked what she had done between 1.10 and 3 o'clock."

"I don't remember whether I laid down or not."

"You don't remember?"

"No."

"Was it your custom to lie down?"

"Generally I did."

A DAY TO BE REMEMBERED.

"Mrs. Kinrade," said the Crown examiner, in a solemn voice, "may I suggest to you that if you ever remembered anything in your life with perfect accuracy it would be what you did on that day, and you now tell me that, although you do not remember it, you can remember what you did that day?"

The reply Mrs. Kinrade began to give did not satisfy the Crown examiner, who said, "Now, don't answer something else. Is that what you say, that you cannot remember?"

"I think I did."

"Without thinking you told me a minute ago you did not know whether you did or not. Do you want to alter it in any way? You can if you wish."

"No, I don't think I was lying down."

"Are you sure about it?"

"Perfectly sure."

"What makes you perfectly sure now when two minutes ago you could not tell?"

"That makes the change in two minutes."

"Your business that afternoon was to go down about those messages?"

"Yes."

ACCOUNTING FOR THE TIME.

"The next question I desire to ask you is, when did you go? At what time?"

"I did not look at the time. Really, I could not tell you."

"You say you went to the police office at 4 o'clock. What I want to know is how long from the time you left the house until you got to the police office?"

"Well, I went to the lodging house."

"Well, that does not answer my question. How long from the time you left the house until you got to the police office? I don't ask the minute."

"I judge I must have left home after 3 o'clock."

"What places did you go to?"

The Workingman's Home was given as one by the witness, who said she did not remember what street she went from the house to King street on, but she thought it was MacNab. "There was anything else about this journey to the police station and the places before that you went to which you want to add?"

Mrs. Kinrade added several trifling visits, which brought her to the police station, and she saw the clock as she came out, and it was 4 o'clock.

She said she was only there a few minutes; less than ten, and spoke to the officer about the way the tramps were running on them. She went to the Bethel Mission after leaving the police office.

"After visiting the Bethel, did you go straight home?"

"I went up to King and James streets, and took the car."

BLACKSTOCK SEES GAP.

"You think it must have been 3 o'clock when you left home, judging from the times of your trip?"

"Yes."

"Well, what were you doing from 1.10 till 3 o'clock?"

"I was sewing."

"You remember that?"

"Yes, I remember that."

"Were you doing anything else?"

"Getting ready to go out."

"How long would that take?"

"Half an hour."

"Well, how long were you sewing?"

"Possibly half an hour."

"In that time between 1.10 and 3 o'clock, then, you can only remember doing half an hour's sewing and half an hour it took you to get ready?"

"Yes, but I looked up the police telephone in the book."

"That would not take long?"

"No; but you asked me what I did."

"To be fair with you, I put you in mind that the time, half an hour for sewing, half an hour for dressing, brings us to ten or fifteen minutes after 2 o'clock. Now there is a gap in there of three-quarters of an hour before you went down stairs, unaccounted for, and an hour or two later you heard of the occurrence, and of course the events of that day you would remember with much greater particularity than any other ordinary day."

"I think so."

"You are giving the evidence," he said. "I asked you how long you were sewing, and you say half an hour. Those are your words, not mine. Am I right in saying you would like to extend the half hour of sewing and make it longer?"

"Why, yes."

"Very well, now, I give you a chance. How much do you want to put on it?"

"It was some time before this question was answered."

EXTENDING THE TIME.

"I don't want to be hard on you, and don't want to misrepresent you, so don't take up the time like that. Give me how much time you want to put on that sewing?"

"No answer was to be heard."

"Give us how much time you want; you gave us half an hour before; what now?"

Again there was a pause and no answer.

"You are an intelligent woman; now I want to know without any more of this trifling how much you want to put on it? Make it three-quarters of an hour?"

"It might have been three-quarters of an hour."

"You now want to put three-quarters of an hour down to it?"

"Yes."

"How much do you want to extend the dressing?"

Silence.

"Three-quarters of an hour?"

"One half hour?"

"About three-quarters," came the reply.

"That would just nicely fill up the time till 3 o'clock—that's the way you fix it up now?"

LEFT HOME ALONE.

"When you went out did you know your daughters were going?"

"Yes."

"So this tramp-besieged house was to be left alone?"

"Yes."

"You went down town on the message you tell us of and came home in the car, and when you saw it you first learned of this occurrence?"

"I went past the house to Caroline on the car."

"You saw it as you passed and saw something was the matter?"

"Yes, I saw the ambulance there or thought it was, but it turned out to be the patrol wagon."

"Did somebody tell you of the occurrence?"

"Yes."

She explained that a passer-by told her that something was wrong with her daughter. She was much shocked and had to be taken to Mrs. Hickey's residence. She went home from there later on that evening. She said they had been out of the city part of the time—in Toronto—since the tragedy.

KNEW OF NO MOTIVE.

"I will tell you go as soon as possible, Mrs. Kinrade, but are you able to suggest a motive for a person to injure your daughter?"

"No."

"Can't suggest any reason?"

Mrs. Kinrade advanced the tramp theory alone.

"Has your husband any brothers?"

"Yes, sir."

"How many brothers?"

"Three brothers."

"Had your husband any trouble with any of them after your marriage?"

"There was trouble over the father's estate. I was an executor."

"Was there a lawsuit with one of your husband's brothers about that property?"

"Yes."

"How long ago was that?"

"It may have been five or six years."

"What was that brother's name?"

"Hiram Kinrade."

"Is he still living?"

"Yes."

"Where does he live?"

"In the east end."

"What business?"

"Carpenter."

"Have you seen him in recent years?"

"Only on the street."

"You and your husband and the brothers would not be on speaking terms?"

"No."

"Was there anything the matter with him? Was he afflicted with any disease of any kind? Not subject to fits of any kind?"

"No."

"I never heard of it."

Mrs. Blackstock said he hoped Mrs. Kinrade would not mind the questions, in view of the desire of the authorities to clear up the mystery.

Mrs. Kinrade suggested she would willingly furnish all the information she could.

"And you are not able to suggest any reason why any one should have any ill will against your daughter?"

"I had never heard her speak ill of anyone and don't know why anyone should have anything against her."

"She was of a sweet and affectionate disposition?"

"Yes."

NOTHING WRONG WITH FLORENCE.

"Now, your daughter, Florence, did you ever notice anything about her temperament and demeanor to attract your attention?"

"No."

"There was nothing that suggested itself in the temperament or demeanor of your daughter Florence which seemed to suggest anything wrong with her in any way?"

"No."

"Anything that made you apprehensive of any kind of mental trouble or that sort?"

"No."

"Always seemed a person of strong mind and character?"

"Yes."

"Is there anything more you desire to say? We don't want to misrepresent you."

"I am not keeping anything back," declared Mrs. Kinrade, who assured the Crown examiner that she desired to render every possible assistance in clearing up the mystery.

"You feel you have had an opportu-

ITY OF MAKING ALL THE EXPLANATION YOU DESIRE?"

"I think so."

"Your representation is you are not able to give us any assistance as to who the guilty party is?"

"I wish I could."

Mrs. Kinrade collapsed at this stage, and the trained nurse, Miss Walker, had to be summoned from an ante-room to assist her out.

GERTRUDE KINRADE.

Never Knew Quarrel or of Florence Having Revolver.

Gertrude Kinrade, the sixteen-year-old daughter, and youngest member of the Kinrade family, rapidly reviewed the circumstances of the night before under the direction of the Crown counsel. Her story agreed with the one told by the mother. She declared that there never was any discussion in the house, and, although Ethel did not like Florence going to Richmond, the girls never quarreled over it.

"Did Florence ever tell you when she was down South that she ever shot off a revolver?"

"No."

"Did you know if she ever had a revolver?"

"We never kept anything like that."

"You don't know if Florence brought one back from the South?"

"No."

"Did you ever hear about any brothers or sisters having any revolvers?"

"No."

"You never saw any firearms of any kind in the house?"

"No."

Gertrude assured the Crown counsel that she knew of no reason why anyone should shoot her sister.

"Everything was agreeable in your home?"

"Yes."

"The relations between your father and mother were always pleasant?"

"Always."

The girl said she was quite sure there was no trouble in the house between any of the members of the family, and she had heard no quarrels.

"That'll do," said the lawyer, and the girl left the court with a sprightly and quick step.

ERNEST KINRADE.

Swore He Could Throw No Light On the Case.

"Ernest Kinrade," called the sergeant, and the eldest son walked in. He said he was about twenty-seven years of age, and had been married seven years. He lived a couple of miles from his father.

"At what time did you learn of the occurrence we are investigating here?"

"Ten minutes past four."

"Was that over the phone in your house?"

"No."

"Did you know who called you up?"

"And don't now?"

"Yes."

"Who was it?"

"Luke Copple."

"You came up on the car as soon as you could?"

"Yes."

"There were a considerable number of people there?"

"Yes."

"When did you first see Florence?"

"Six minutes after I got there; she and father had their arms around one another."

"Has Florence told you what occurred?"

"No."

"Can you throw any light at all on this tragedy then?"

"No. I'd like to, though."

"Nothing at all?"

"No."

"You have no idea who perpetrated the deed?"

"Where were you the afternoon of the occurrence?"

"Behind the house."

"With anyone?"

"Hendrick Ditzels; we were waiting for a load of lumber."

"Does your father owe you anything at present?"

"Yes."

"How much?"

"Twenty-two dollars."

"For how long?"

"Six last Friday night. I paid some accounts while in Toronto and that is how he owes it to me."

"Was your wife at home the time of the telephone message?"

"No."

"There was she?"

"In town."

"Where has she since told you she was at?"

"At her aunt's."

"Can you suggest any reason why any person should have motive or ill-will against your sister?"

"No."

"No clue at all. No idea who committed it?"

"No."

"You have seen the rest of the family since the occurrence?"

"Yes."

"And as far as you know none of the rest of the family has any knowledge as to who committed the deed?"

"No."

"Do you know of any firearms in the house?"

"There were never any while I was there."

"Did you never hear that your brother Earl was in a shooting affair?"

"No."

"Never hear that either of the girls had a revolver?"

"No."

"Did you ever hear that Florence brought one from the South?"

"No."

"You are sure you are not able to give us any information other than that you have already told us?"

"I am not."

"I think you volunteered a short time after the occurrence to give the Crown Attorney an account of where you had been that afternoon?"

"Yes."

"You had no idea of anything like this or had no reason to anticipate it?"

"No."

"When you arrived did you say something about expecting it?"

"No," I said. "I knew something had happened." He was allowed to go at this point.

STORY OF NEIGHBORS.

Florence's Mouth Frothed When Telling of the Murder.

Mrs. Hickey, 106 Herkimer street, was called. She was cross questioned by Crown Attorney Washington.

Mrs. Hickey said Florence ran into her house screaming "they have shot Ethel. They have shot her six times." Witness said the girl was very excited and worked up.

"Did you notice anything peculiar about her mouth?"

"Yes. The saliva seemed thick, almost like froth."

"Do you know anything further?"

Mrs. Hickey, Washington, and Mrs. Hickey told the story the girl told first when she went into the house. She said Florence told her the man asked for money and then shot her sister. He threatened to shoot her if she made any noise. She said she ran out in the back yard.

Mrs. Hickey said it could not have been ten minutes after the alarm when the police were notified. Mrs. Hickey went then to the Kinrade home and saw the body on the floor. The dead girl was lying on her back. Her head pointed west. She was dressed in coat and hat. Asked if she saw any blood, Mrs. Hickey replied in the negative, but said the room was dark.

She said the mother and daughter met in her presence and that Florence said: "Mother, don't worry."

When she looked across the road Mrs. Hickey said she saw the front door of the Kinrade house open, but could see no one within.

TROUBLED BY TRAMPS.

Mrs. Kittson Corroborates This Part of Kinrades' Story.

Mrs. H. N. Kittson, who lives almost opposite from the Kinrade home, on Herkimer street, told how Mrs. Hickey had come to her house to telephone for the police. She said she saw Mrs. Hickey not say any one leave the Kinrade house. She later saw Florence Kinrade on a lounge in the Hickey house. She was very excited and said little or nothing about the shooting.

"Have you been troubled much with tramps this winter?" asked the crown attorney.

"A great deal," she said, but explained they were not offensive.

She did not hear Florence Kinrade say anything about the number of shots fired or describe the man further than to say he was not a tramp.

"Do you now anything about the family?"

"I have always heard them spoken of as a quiet family."

Mrs. Hickey was recalled and questioned as to whether Florence Kinrade had a hat on. Mrs. Hickey declared positively Florence wore a hat when she entered her house.

MRS. ACRES' STORY.

Mrs. William Acres, 107 Herkimer street, who lives next door to the Kinrades, was called. Mrs. Acres said her house was only three or four feet west of Kinrade's. She did not know the family of the dead girl at all.

"Were you at home all that afternoon?" asked Crown Attorney Washington.

"Where were you?"

"In the upstairs sitting room."

She said she could not see the verandah from her window. It was 3.15 when she first sat down in this room, and she remained till an hour and a half later. She said there was a window on the east side of the house, which faced one in Kinrade's house.

"You heard no shots that day?"

"No."

"Nor anyone leave the house or cross the street?"

"No."

"See a man around there that day?"

"No, the first I knew was seeing Mrs. Hickey run out of her house towards the corner."

"You know nothing more?"

"No."

Mr. Hobson, counsel for the family, asked Mrs. Acres if she could have seen the girl or any man at the house if she had been in any other position than she was.

"Yes," was the reply.

LIKE A CRAZY MAN.

That is How Florence First Described the Man.

"There is a man in the house and he has shot poor Ethel. He is acting like a crazy man. He has shot poor Ethel."

D. M. Brown, the butcher, who was in Hunt's grocery store when Florence ran there to give the alarm, said these were the words she used before she collapsed.

With Luke Copple he started for the Kinrade home. On the way he thought it was best to summon a doctor as speedily as possible, and he ran to Mrs. Kittson's residence and telephoned for Dr. McNichol. He went into the house and found Ethel Kinrade lying on the floor on her back, the head towards the bottom of the stairs. The head was towards the street, wearing hat, veil and coat. The hair was soaked in blood, but he could not see the pool of blood on the floor until after the body was removed.

The doctor told of examining the body, and described the wounds, three of which gave the impression of having been directed at the heart.

"Did you form any impression as to whether the shots were fired at close range?"

"Yes. The burning of the clothes showed the shots were fired at close range, the revolver being probably held against the body."

Dr. McNichol said he accounted for seven shots. Several people asked him to go across the road and see Florence

DR. MCNICHOLO.

Says Ethel May Have Been Dead 15 Minutes or Hour.

Mr. Blackstock here took charge of the examination again, when Dr. McNichol was placed on the stand. He was the first physician to enter the place. With Luke Copple and D. M. Brown he went in the house. The front and back doors and the rear door, leading into the back yard, were all open.

"And when you went in what did you observe?"

"Ethel was lying in the dining room, on her back, with the head towards the southwest and the feet near the bottom of the stairs. She was apparently dressed for the street, wearing hat, veil and coat. The hair was soaked in blood, but he could not see the pool of blood on the floor until after the body was removed."

The doctor told of examining the body, and described the wounds, three of which gave the impression of having been directed at the heart.

"Did you form any impression as to whether the shots were fired at close range?"

"Yes. The burning of the clothes showed the shots were fired at close range, the revolver being probably held against the body."

Dr. McNichol said he accounted for seven shots. Several people asked him to go across the road and see Florence

Kinrade. He found her in a nervous state and administered a sedative.

"Could you form any impression at the time you examined the body of Ethel as to how long she had been dead?"

"I could have an impression, but it could only be an impression of the subject."

"I mean your professional opinion on the subject?"

"No medical man can accurately estimate the time within an hour or so. She may have been dead from fifteen minutes to an hour and a half."

"The girl's hands were quite cool when he examined the body."

"Was there any evidence apart from the position of the body of any scuffle or fight?"

"The dining room table had evidently been pushed towards the south side of the room."

"Anything else?"

"A fur muff was lying on the floor, and there was a stone on the table."

"Anything to indicate a fight?"

"Nothing outside of the table."

The doctor told about seeing Florence Kinrade in Mrs. Hickey's house. His story was the same as already published.

"She told me how the fellow drew his revolver and threatened to shoot her if she screamed. She was afraid he was going to shoot, and she said she was trying to get hold of the arm that held the revolver. While she was doing this, Ethel, she said, came down the back stairs, and uttered a scream, and he turned around and shot her."

"So, according to the account she gave you, she herself was present when the man shot Ethel?"

"Yes."

Some of the jurors wanted to know if there was any smoke in the house when the doctor arrived.

"There was an odor of gas from shooting, but he would not be sure about smoke. The only description she gave of the man was that he had an insane look, wore a slouch hat and had a rather light complexion."

that took place between Kinrade and Florence?"

"I was."

"Where?"

"In the house, after the tragedy."

"Was any account given by the daughter of what happened?"

"No."

The detective then told how he heard Florence's first statement.

"She sat down in a chair at the east end of the dining-room table," he said. "I sat by her. I asked her how it happened. She said that she and her sister Ethel were upstairs between 3 and 4 o'clock when the bell rang and she answered it. The man she described as a tramp asking for something to eat. Certainly, we heard her say that. As soon as she opened the door he rushed past her and said, 'I want any money in the house as well.' The thought just struck her that she had $10 of her own upstairs. She went up the front stairs, told Ethel as she passed her door to lock herself in her room, and she went upstairs. She went on into her room, which faces on Herkimer street, raised the window, intending to give the alarm, but changed her mind. Then she heard a shot, a scream and bang, bang, bang. She went and got the money, then went downstairs to the lower end, into the dining-room, and there the man was standing. She handed him the money, went through into the dining-room and kitchen into the back yard."

"Did she say she saw Ethel's body in the dining-room?"

"She said she did not. She said she went down the yard to the back fence, turned around and came back into the house. She said she intended to go over the back fence. The man was still standing in the dining-room and turned the revolver on her and said, 'If you make an alarm I will shoot you too.' She said she tried to get the revolver, and then ran out the front door to Mrs. Hickey's place."

"Did she say she saw Ethel's body on the way back through the dining-room?"

"She said she did not see her sister and some blood when she was coming back."

"Of course, if the body was in the same position when you got there the pool of blood could not be seen?"

"No, because the body covered it."

"You are clear she told you that when the bell rang she said, 'If you make an alarm I will shoot you too.' She said she tried to get the revolver, and then ran out the front door to Mrs. Hickey's place."

"Yes."

There was no statement at that interview, he said, about the side window having been opened. She described the man at that time as being about 35 years of age, 5 ft. 7 or 8 inches in height, medium stout, with a dark brown, wavy mustache.

"It must have been 4.30 when I was talking with the girl."

"Was the young woman reasonably collected?"

"She appeared to me to be quite rational."

"Where did you next see her?"

"In the dining-room the next morning."

"Well, what did she say?"

"She differed in this story by saying that she was downstairs mending her gloves at the time the man came to the door. After she came downstairs she saw the man standing in the hall and she gave him the $10. She then went into the parlor and was going to go out the window, but changed her mind. 35

"Did she say the man grabbed her then?"

"Not at that interview."

"Did she say she saw Ethel in passing out?"

"She didn't see Ethel on the way, and then went out."

"What was it like out there?"

"She had gone to the back fence, dragging her feet, and standing with her back to the fence stood there some time. She ran back. Detective Bleakley said he judged this from the footmarks."

Witness said the passage between Kinrade's and Acres' houses was the best way out. There was the front door and the back door in addition.

Witness said that on the Saturday after the tragedy he, Coulter and Miller had another interview with the girl. She admitted to them, then said the witness, that she had got out of the window and been pulled back in by the murderer. The officer said he saw footprints to corroborate this. After being pulled in, the girl said, she heard more shooting, and went out the back door.

"No sign of any other shooting?"

"No."

"That was the only occasion on which she said she heard firing after coming downstairs?"

"Yes."

"Can you suggest a reason why the girl did not give an alarm when she was upstairs and had the window open?"

"None at all."

"Can you suggest why, having got into the back yard, she did not give an alarm?"

"I don't see any reason at all."

The officer said he saw a window open in a bedroom upstairs and one open in the back parlor.

This closed the officer's testimony, and the jurors were tired and wanted an adjournment. It was agreed to adjourn until this afternoon at 3.30 o'clock.

A request by some of the jurors that they be allowed to go through the house was at once granted by Mr. Hobson, the family's solicitor.

REFUSED DEMANDS.

Mine Operators Want to Combine Present Agreement.

Philadelphia, March 11.—The anthracite operators met the committee of hard coal miners in the Reading terminal here to-day and flatly refused to grant the men any of the demands they laid before them. It was agreed to adjourn proposed to the mine workers that the present agreement, which expires on March 31st, be renewed for another term of three years. This decision, though not unexpected by the mine workers, came as a great disappointment to them.

Thomas Lewis, national president of the United Mine Workers of America, declined to comment on the developments of the day, beyond stating that he and his committee would meet to discuss the situation at the miners' meeting the operators again at 2 o'clock to-morrow afternoon.

MILITARY LECTURES.

Col. Taylor, commandant of the Royal Military College, is in the city to give a series of lectures on "The War Game" in the officers' mess of the drill hall. The series will include three addresses: the first at 8.15 this evening, the second at 3 o'clock on Saturday, and the third at 8.15 Saturday evening. The garrison is reminded of this series.

When you build the hatchet it isn't worth while to erect a monument over it. The chances are it will be dug up again, anyhow.

INSPECTOR McMAHON.

Mrs. Kinrade Was Perfectly Calm When She Called.

Detective Inspector McMahon was in charge of the City Hall office when Mrs. Kinrade called on Thursday, February 25.

"What was her condition?" asked Crown Attorney Washington. "Was she excited?"

"No," said the witness.

"Cool?" queried the Crown.

"Very much so," was the reply.

He said she was inquiring about the "workingmen's" tickets, and she told him about the many tramps who were bothering them of late. She referred to the Sunday evening scare as one from an extraordinary kind of a tramp.

"Did she complain that she had been badly scared the night before?"

"No. She did not mention anything about the night before."

"Was she making any complaint?"

"No; she was merely there asking advice."

"Did you notice the time then?"

"No, but two minutes after she left the message came in that the shooting had taken place."

The inspector was asked by a juror if the woman had complained about the attempt to enter the house, and said she had mentioned it casually to him as an occurrence of a few nights before.

DETECTIVE BLEAKLEY.

Swore That Florence Could Not Have Seen the Blood.

Detective Bleakley was called and said he went from the City Hall to the Kinrade home in the patrol car. The horses galloped all the way. He found Luke Copple and a doctor at the house, and going into the dining room, saw a girl there lying dead. She was dressed for outdoors.

"Did you feel the body?"

"Yes."

"What was its condition?"

"The lower limbs were quite warm. The upper ones slightly cooler."

"Did you see any blood?"

"When the body was moved, fifteen minutes after my arrival."

"As far as you know it was not disturbed by anyone summoned to the house till then?"

"That's right."

"How was the blood?"

"It was a pool about eighteen inches in size."

"Where would that be?"

"Under the small of the back."

"There were no wounds there to account for it?"

"No, sir."

"Then was there any chair in the room?"

"One just south of the girl's feet and a pair of rubbers right close to it."

"Supposing Ethel Kinrade was sitting on that chair and was shot in the head, how might she fall?"

"She might fall with her head where the blood was."

"Where was her head?"

"Quite a distance from the pool of blood."

"Where did you see wounds on the body?"

"In the left breast, and under the lips there were powder marks."

"Did you examine this pool of blood?"

"Yes," and found in it a bullet and a tooth. On Saturday I found the roof of the tooth there."

"So it looks as if she had fallen with her head in this pool of blood?"

"Yes."

"Then if that is the case the position of the body must have been changed by some one after?"

"It must have."

Asked if he had seen any of the family at the house, Detective Bleakley said he saw Ernest pass through the hall and plainly heard him say, "I expected something like this would have happened."

Detective Bleakley said the first time he discussed the matter with any member of the family was about twenty minutes later, when he was with Detective Coulter.

"As I passed the father in the hall," he said, "I heard him say as I passed him: 'I just expected something like this would happen.' We went through to the dining room. I was walking ahead. Detective Coulter was at the dining room door. Mr. Kinrade at this time did not know which daughter it was, because Florence was at Mrs. Hickey's place. The body was being taken out on a stretcher, and the face was covered with oil-cloth. 'It's Ethel!' said the father, as he leaned over and kissed the corpse."

"I had searched the house from cellar to attic," said the detective. "As I had been told that a tramp had shot the girl."

"Did you see anything of any weapon?"

"No."

The officer said he found three bullets, one at Ethel's feet, one in the pool of blood and a third, which had gone through the blood and became imbedded in the floor.

WHAT WILL HAPPEN AFTER THE INQUEST?

Earl Kinrade, the Montreal bank clerk, a brother of the murdered girl, will be one of the first witnesses called this afternoon.

It has come to the ears of the authorities that Earl Kinrade shot a revolver off near the Waldorf Hotel on King street one night.

Probably the best part of the afternoon session will be taken up with the medical evidence. The post-mortem report will be submitted by Drs. Edgar and Hulse, and Dr. McNeil, who testified last night, will likely be recalled.

In the inquest last night it was stated that no member of the family except the father and Gertrude Kinrade were out until the mother left the house in the afternoon.

A SAD DEATH.

Mrs. Oliphant Contracted Pneumonia While at Funeral.

The funeral of Mrs. Albert Oliphant, of Hannon, took place to Trinity church yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

The jury at 2.30 this afternoon visited the scene of the tragedy. Plans were in court for the jurors, but some of them thought they would understand it better by going to the house.

Mr. Washington declared to-day that the authorities were satisfied the lawsuit between T. L. and Hiram Kinrade referred to by the mother last night was not figure in the case.

The latest move of the police is to open the sewer at the Kinrade home, from the front street where it joins the trap in the cellar, in hope of finding the revolver with which the crime was committed.

Fred Barrett has been given the contract for the masonry work for a new brick house for Richard Fourth on the fourth concession of East Flamboro.

Detective Miller left the city early this morning, and has been in Toronto all day. He will return for the inquest.

MANAGER'S STORY.

A despatch from New York states that a Rev. John O'Neill, an English clergyman, just from the old country, and on his way to this city to accept a pastorate, was robbed of about $800 in sovereigns, contained in a huge wallet in his hip pocket.

Mr. O'Neill was not on his way here to accept any pastorate in the diocese, Ven. Archdeacon Clark, Secretary of the Synod, stating that all the positions are filled. He suggested that Mr. O'Neill might be bound for Hamilton, Ohio.
