A very amusing feature of the La Rabida convent collection of Columbus pictures at the World's Fair is one noted by many Western visitors and laughingly commented on. The Colopolo portrait though painted no less than 300 years ago, is an exact likeness of Archbishop Ireland of St. Paul.

A French-Canadian of Quebec professes to have discovered the true method of hardening copper, so that it will cut and resist bullets better than steel. This, it is true to the extent claimed, can scarcely be called the rediscovery of a lost art, for in spite of all that has been said about the hardening of copper, in past times, there is no evidence to show that such an art ever existed. But it is claimed for the present process, that besides hardening, it tempers copper, giving it all the force of steel springs.

Another Way To Do It.

A New York daily paper has found the most ghastly plan on record for enlarging its subscription list. It has arranged with a certain undertaking company to give a discount for buying all its subscribers. For instance, if you take the paper and die some morning, which people who take the paper would be apt to do, and are left dead with a copy of the paper on your person, then your wife can go to the undertaker with the burial coupon cut out of The Daily Telegram, and he will accept it and bury you at 15 to 20 per cent less than if you took the rival paper next door.

The funerals are divided into different classes in regard to expense. A first-class funeral costs $1,500 to $2,000, outside class $1,000 to $1,500, and the personal attendance of the undertaker at the grave. This is a compliment for only a few ten cities. It may be that the undertaker's bill for the white trash in the number of coffins. If you are only worth a $35 funeral, you cannot have but one coffin, whereas if you are worth $10,000 you may have three. The desire of everybody even to the poorest is to have a big funeral. It looks as though many people cared for you whether anybody did or not.

Wajah Rajagun of Kapoorthalla.

From the northernmost part of British India in the Punjab comes to us to visit our World's fair his royal highness Jajat Jit Singh, rajah rajagun of Kapoorthalla, one of the most loyal of British provinces.

He is a very distinguished man, only by that of some of the princes in the "Arabian Nights." Moreover, one of his wives—his fourth—was his wife, and she is the first Indian princess who ever visited America. But the gentlemanly reporter, who cannot tell a lie, declares that she cannot be called handsome.

Welcomes Jajat Jit! If you have as much money as they say you have and are going to spend a good chunk of it at the World's fair, Chicago will think you are the greatest Indian prince who ever visited America. If you stop a little while among us and take in America the richest and most advanced vocabulary of slang that ever any one country possessed.

You will also learn how good are pumpkin pie and corn roasted in the husk. You will also learn the sense of respect and reverence in such perfection as nowhere else exists.

The Power of the Press is Grandly

The power of the press is grandly shown in the following incident, which took place during a term of court the writer attended in Alliquipp, N. Y.

A young Pueblo Indian had killed a member of his tribe and was on trial for the crime. The mother of the murdered boy was called to testify, as she stood upon the witness stand it would be difficult to imagine a more weird and unearthly appearance. She must have measured nearly 6 feet in height, but extreme age had bent the broad shoulders, and the long, bare, black arms and coarse hands told of many a year of weary toil. Her face was haggard and cadaverous, and the scanty gray hair straggled over her forehead, almost hid the vivid gleam flittingly from her deep, dark eyes. The house was full of spectators, and a motley group of Indians, dressed in dirty frock, loomed around the door.

Don Jesse Seta, the interpreter, rendered her evidence into English for the court and jury. On being sworn, she related that the obligation was refused to testify, although repeatedly urged to do so. When asked her reason for refusing, she said the padre had instructed her to forgive all her enemies; that she had forgiven all her enemies and could not swear against him. On being assured that it was not a violation of her obligation as a Christian, she was ordered to testify by the judge, she reluctantly proceeded to do so. When she had concluded, she arose, and raising her long, bony hands she exclaimed in a voice that was tremulous with emotion: "I am, you killed my boy, but God says I must forgive you and I do. I obey His will." As she stepped down from the stand a dead silence reigned throughout the court, and I could not help thinking that the good padre, who sat among his Indian children, must have felt that the teachings had borne good fruit in the heart of that poor, bereaved Indian mother.

Within a day or two of the above touching event a white mother against the alleged slayer of her son. On the conclusion of her evidence she arose and horrified the people by launching a torrent of blasphemous curses at the unfortunate prisoner, who bent his head and bore the storm in silence.—Catholic News.

His Royal Reason.

WHY THE DUKE OF DEVONSHIRE IS AGAINST HIS MULE.

The Duke of Devonshire, who lately made a keen interest in Irish affairs, has (says Reynolds's New Paper, London), a very substantial reason for doing so, although apart from politics or patriotism. He receives about £30,000 a year in rents from certain Irish estates confiscated (from Catholics) in former days, and, as the English habit is, appropriate to inhabitants of the country (England.) A portion of the Earl of Desmond's estate, which the crown declared forfeited because the owner had sided with the people of Ireland, amounting to 42,000 acres, exclusive of other thousands of acres of mountain and bog, was given to Sir Walter Raleigh. He, when in prison, sold it for £5,000 to one Richard Boyle, an clerk of an English Judge, a man who had been convicted of forgery and horse-stealing.

Boyle, true to his character, never forgot the purchase price of £5,000, and he subsequently gave an English Duke of Cork, with a patent of right granted to him by James I., over all these lands. Boyle married one of his children to an English aristocrat (a family), in that way the Duke of Devonshire, is at present the landlord over all the confiscated and appropriated Irish acres.

These are the men who are endeavoring to persuade the people that the light for the paper nation's one of pure patriotism. In reality, they are simply fighting for their own unjust possession.

The Pope's Choir.

SOMETHING ABOUT THE UNIQUE ORGANIZATION—ITS FAMOUS LEADERS.

Some time ago it was announced that the Pope had granted leave to the Sixtine choir to come to America and sing at the World's Fair. Never before in its history has the choir, before the limits of Rome, except when the Papal court was in Avignon, and on the occasion of the coronation of Emperor Napoleon I., when the effect of their rendition of Palestrina's "Te Deum" was declared to be the most striking and imposing feature of the ceremony, had been out of place at this time to give a brief sketch of the famous organization.

The Sixtine choir is composed of thirty-two male members, who sing entirely without instrumental accompaniment. Their music has been for centuries composed by some one of the members.

The choir is, as its Italian title, Il Collegio dei Cappellani Cantori della Cappella Pontificia, indicates, the personal choir of the Pope, and at no time is it called upon except at mass or at the death of a cardinal. Since 1870 the only important occasion on which it has been heard was during the Pope's jubilee.

The history of the organization dates back nearly a century, when Sylvester established a school for training the voices of boys. The various churches of Rome were supplied with choirs from the papal choir. In the succeeding century this institution was expanded and developed, and in the time of Gregory the Great the scholars who were of noble birth became members of the papal choir.
