OR WEDDED AT LAST!

CHAPTER IV.

As they sat opposite to each other in the dining room of Maxwell House, no greater contrast could have been found than these two men, and yet they had been friends for many a year. Sir Hugh was exceedingly handsome, and he had used his great wealth to add to the prestige which his good looks gave him in the fashionable world. He kept a first rate stud, lived in the most luxurious manner, gave the best dinners and the most charming entertainments of the London season; his horses and carriages were the best appointed in the Park, his drag the cynosure of all eyes at Epsom. It was no wonder that all men spoke well of him, that the great ladies of his set smiled upon him, and that a shower of invitations poured down upon him all through the season. He was such a charming flirt, the great ladies said languidly—and his waltzing was as near perfection as waltzing could be; and his taste was so unexceptional that no belle would have deemed her court complete unless he formed one of her tiff—dark deep gray, with long lashed household word in many a dainty boudoir.

Life had always been a pleasant thing to this petted prosperous favorite of fortune; he had never known a care or a sorrow; but the thirty years he had lived had not fitted him to bear the storm which breaks almost inevitably, and more or less heavily, over every life, and which broke over Hugh Glynn with additional fury. The friendship which had existed for so many years between Sir Hugh and Major Stuart had been a source of surprise to more than one of their acquaintances. The young baronet's life and tastes seemed so directly opposed in their luxurious indolence to the brave, simple, self-denying life of the soldier. But those who wondered, did not know that the foundation of that friendship had been laid in their school-days, when Guy, a few months the elder and considerably the stronger, had defended the more delicate boy from the bullying which seems inseparable from a public school. Nor did they know that the friendship thus begun had been cemented by a life saved. The occurrence had taken place many years previously, but Hugh Glynn's gratitude was warm and living still. He had not forgotten that at the risk of his life Guy had thrown himself into the angry waters which were hungering to make Hugh their victim, and had brought him with much difficulty safely to land.

For Sale by Leading Druggists Everywhere.

The passionate gratitude which had welled up in the boy's heart as he lay, faint and bruised, watching the endeavors of two or three rough sailors to restore his friend to consciousness, had never died away. Even when, later on, both men were dazzled by one woman's face and the death-blow to their friendship was struck, even when one of them stooped to the blackest treachery, the basest betrayal, that gratitude did not quite fade; it lived to add the bitter sting to the remorse of the betrayer, the most poignant anguish to the traitor's suffering.

Very different in physique were the two men. Beside Guy Stuart, Sir Hugh, although by no means a short man, became almost insignificant, for Guy was unusually tall and strong, towering, like Saul of old, above all his fellows. For the rest, his features were irregular and almost rugged, and, if they were not plain, it was because his eyes were unusually beautiful—dark deep gray, with long lashes, which gave them at times almost a feminine softness.

"It is not such a very severe penalty after all," Major Stuart said, laughing. "I'm not an eligible, so I have never been obliged to submit to it; but we had one or two rich fellows in the regiment, and it used to be very amusing to see how sweetly the mothers used to smile upon them—ay, and the daughters likewise! There was a handsome young 'detachment' amongst us too, and one or two of the girls were inclined to favor him; but—"

"The mammas were too wise," put in Sir Hugh, laughing. "I wish you'd decide about this, Guy. You're my guest, and I am at your disposal. Go or stay, just as you like best."

"I'm perfectly happy here," said Guy Stuart, laughing—"excellent quarters, and commissariat department perfectly managed."

"Then we'll stay at home," "But," Major Stuart said thoughtfully, as he pushed his chair from the table and sauntered over to the mantel-piece, where he had left his cigar-case, "perhaps Sir Gilbert might be vexed; and it will not do for the new master of Maxwell to get into bad repute in the neighborhood."

"No, perhaps not; but even that could be better than being bored." "Of two evils choose the lesser," said Major Stuart laughing, as he selected a cigar. "Suppose you toss up, Hugo?"

"Not a bad idea!" responded Sir Hugh, looking up eagerly. "Upon my word, I have half a mind to adopt your suggestion!"

"Do," said Major Stuart carelessly. "Let chance decide it."

Sir Hugh took half a crown from his pocket and looked at it meditatively; then meeting his friend's glance, he laughed lightly.

"I don't suppose it is the first time in our lives that we have let chance decide for us," he said gayly. "What will it do for us now, do you think?"

Will the Fates be propitious?" "I wonder if there is such a thing as chance?" said Major Stuart, coming to the table, cigar in hand, with some interest lighting up his dark face.

"We won't discuss that question," answered Sir Hugh, laughing, as he played with the coin between his fingers. "It is far too deep for you or me. But"—he lifted his eyes for a moment to his friend's face—"you are strangely in earnest, Guy!"

"Am I?" said the other, turning away with a laugh and a flush on his cheek. "Well, perhaps I was. For a moment I had a kind of feeling that something serious would come of it; but it is all nonsense of course!" he added, as he lighted his cheroot; then, suddenly coming back to the table, he went on with a strange earnestness. "Put back the half-crown, Hugh, and let us discuss the pros and cons dispassionately, and decide accordingly."

Sir Hugh looked at him for a moment in silence. "No," he said quietly, "we'll trust to chance. Heads—we will accept Sir Gilbert Fairholme's invitation, Tails—we will refuse it!"

Once more he hesitated, contemplating the coin as it lay on the palm of his hand, a slim, white, beautiful-shaped hand, wearing one ring, an almost priceless emerald. Once more Major Stuart leaned forward eagerly, the interest deepening in his gray eyes; but just as Sir Hugh was going to spin the coin, a knock at the dining room door interrupted them.

"Come in," said Sir Hugh sharply, covering the coin with his hand as he turned toward the intruder. The door opened quietly, and a servant out of livery came in and walked slowly up the long room toward his master.

Major Stuart glanced at him indifferently, but, almost as he looked, the indifference faded out of his gray eyes, and something like interest replaced it.

He was a man of Sir Hugh's height and very much the same build, a trifle narrower across the chest perhaps, but with no material difference. He was fair, too, like his master, but with no pretensions to good looks; and altogether between the two men there was a faux air or resemblance which might easily exist between two persons of the same height and complexion, and having the same colored hair. For a moment the resemblance struck Guy Stuart, but the impression was a fleeting one.

"What is it, Latrelle?" demanded Sir Hugh, with some impatience.

"The stud-room is here, Sir Hugh," said the man quietly. "He is just leaving for town, and he desired me to ask if you had any directions for him."

"For Willis? No—tell him to let me hear from him on arrival," Sir Hugh answered quietly. "That is all."

The man bowed low, with an air of extreme respect, which had something foreign in its courtesy, and turned to leave the room. But Sir Hugh recalled him.

"Latrelle!" "Yes, Sir Hugh."

"I suppose you know nothing about Fairholme Court?"

"Only that it is a fine building, Sir Hugh, with handsome grounds, situated about eight miles from here."

"I know all that; but you know nothing of the family?" "No, Sir Hugh."

give you any information?" "I have no doubt on the subject, Sir Hugh," the man answered, a slight smiling smile crossing his face. "Then go and make inquiries," said his master quietly, "and come back here and tell me the result."

"Yes, Sir Hugh." With another low bow Latrelle turned away and left the room. Sir Hugh with a laugh selected a cigar.

"The fellow bows like Honu Brammel," said Major Stuart, laughing, "and moves like a prince."

"He is an odd fellow," Sir Hugh answered lightly—"Claude Melnotte style, you know."

"Where did you pick him up? He was not in your service when I went to India."

"No, I got him on the Continent last year."

"And you find him trustworthy?" "As trustworthy as most men in his position," said Sir Hugh carelessly. "I dare say that he robs me, but I have not succeeded in finding it out. He told me a long story when I met him first, which may or may not be true."

"What is it? Will it bore you to repeat it?" asked Major Stuart, who had been struck by the valet's appearance and unusual air of refinement.

"Not at all. You are welcome to as much of his history as I can remember. He has knocked about, and has seen a good deal of the world, and is an amusing fellow enough."

"He is a Frenchman, of course?" "Not a bit of it! He is a Scotchman. Yes, you may very well look surprised; but it is nevertheless quite true. His father was a hairdresser in Edinburgh, who was, I believe, unfortunate, as many men are, in his domestic relations. He left Edinburgh and settled in Paris, where he had not much success apparently, for when he died, he left his son for a legacy some wigs, hair-brushes, razors, and some bad debts."

"Not much of a capital to begin the world upon," said Major Stuart, laughing.

Upper Lahave, N. S., Can.,—"I wish to thank you for the benefit I received by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for female troubles from which I was a great sufferer, so that I was completely run down in health. Other medicine did not help me, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made me well and strong. I now have a big, hearty baby boy, and praise your medicine for the wonderful lot of good it has done me."—Mrs. ISRAEL BECK, JR., Upper Lahave, Lunenburg Co., N. S., Canada.

The darkest days of husband and wife are when they come to look forward to a childless and lonely old age. Many a wife has found herself incapable of motherhood owing to some derangement of the feminine system, often curable by the proper remedies.

In many homes once childless there are now children because of the fact that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound makes women normal.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

GOOD ADVICE.

It is necessary to always have a bottle of good Brandy at hand.

What Brandy will you buy?

The Medicinal Brandy "Sanator" is not a properly so-called medicine, but it has been selected from amongst the best known growths for their effective principles, and it is distilled so as to develop its tonic and digestive qualities. It is really the FAMILY BRANDY, which name the public has, for a long time, bestowed on it.

The celebrated French physician, DR. PHARZELLE, Inspector-in-Chief of the Great Medical Services, says: "The medicinal Brandy 'Sanator' is eminently an easy digestive drink, remarkable for its tonifying and reinvigorating properties."

Ask for Medicinal Brandy Sanator from your liquor dealer; he has it.

DIRECTIONS.

Against weakness and bad digestion: a liquor glass at each meal.

Against Cold, Influenza: take as a hot drink, viz: one ounce and a half of Brandy, one ounce of hot water, with a little sugar.

Against summer complaints: use with chopped ice, or cold water.

At the City Hall.

The weekly meeting of the City Council took place yesterday afternoon. Mayor Ellis presided and all the Councillors were present.

Before the minutes of the last meeting were confirmed, a private discussion took place on the Browning letter which was termed "an insult to the Board." It was decided that publication be given to all the correspondence in connection with the affair.

A communication was received from the Secretary of the Board of Works, intimating, in reply to Councillor's letter re connection with George's Pond main, that the matter could not be granted; also that the question of boundary lights was under consideration. Regarding the George's Pond main Councillors Ryan and Coaker motioned that the Engineer find out the cost of making the connection with a view of getting the work done. As to the boundary lights Councillor Mullaly thought that immediate action should be taken and have the matter settled.

The condition of Browning's Bridge was referred to and it was ordered that the City and Government Engineers attend to the arrangements to have repairs made.

On behalf of His Excellency the Governor, the Colonial Secretary, asked for $80 from the Council, amount due for use of ground in connection with Bannerman Park. The Council had not been paying this fee since 1904. The Secretary will enquire into the matter.

Mr. Jonas Barter, President of the Truckman's Protective Union, and Morris and Dunfield, on behalf of the S. P. C. A., called attention to the condition of Water Street. The Reid Company were sprinkling sand and salt on the street to facilitate the operations of their city railway but to the detriment of horses. An immediate remedy was requested.

Councillors Martin, Ryan and Coaker expressed themselves on the matter and suggested that in order to protect the T. P. U. the members of which were paying well for the use of the streets, that street car operations on the south side of Water St. be suspended for the winter. This ought to prove satisfactory to all concerned. A Council deputation will discuss the matter with the Reid Company on Monday next.

Councillor Mullaly said that despite the determined action taken by the Board last week the law is clearing the snow from the sidewalk was again being broken with impunity and which, in his opinion, was a discredit to the Inspectors. A special meeting regarding the matter will be held this afternoon.

Councillor Martin asked that a light be placed on Hamilton Street. Granted.

M. Miller, Water Works Department, asked for increase of salary. Referred to Finance Committee.

Councillors Ryan and Myrick, of the Lighting Committee, approved of a light being put on Gower Street, near the C. of E. Cathedral, as asked for by Councillor Mullaly.

The meeting then adjourned.

Magistrate Six Times Over

All About the Many Posts Held by a Lord Mayor of London—At a Coronation He Acts Chief Butler.

Few people outside the City of London have the faintest idea of the enormous importance of the office of Lord Mayor of London.

To foreigners in particular the whole business is an inscrutable puzzle. They see the Chief Magistrate of London in his magnificent robes entertaining the great folk of the world. They hear him called "My Lord," yet as soon as his year of office is over they find him quietly returning to his home and resuming his occupation or whatever his special business may be.

Lord Mayor is, historically speaking, a comparatively modern title. In old days the chief official of the City of London was called the "portreeve," and later, the "justiciar." At one time he was chosen by the king, who removed him at his pleasure. The first Lord Mayor, Henry Fitz Glwyne, held office for no less a period than twenty-four years.

The famous Dick Whittington was elected Lord Mayor three times over, and served three separate terms.

Any provincial mayor is quite a big man during his term of office. He can claim precedence over the Sheriff of the town, and even the High Sheriff, while on his native soil—otherwise within his own municipality.

In the City He Rules the Princes. But the ordinary mayoral dignities add to nothing compared with those of the Lord Mayor of London. Within the city he claims and is yielded precedence not only over all subjects of the Crown, but even over Princes of the Blood Royal.

At the funeral of Lord Nelson, in 1806, three of the sons of George III, namely, the Prince of Wales, the Duke of York, and the Duke of Clarence attended. As soon as the procession passed Temple Bar, the then Lord Mayor claimed and established his right to take precedence of them all.

There is certainly no other man in the kingdom whose magisterial duties are so wide and varied as those of the Lord Mayor of London. The London Sessions are held at the Guildhall, and there he presides upon the Bench.

By virtue of his office he is a Judge of the Central Criminal Court, a Justice of the Peace for Southwark, and a Judge of the Court of Hustings.

He is escheator in London and Southwark. This is an office which has to do with the fee simple of estates. To wind up with, he is Police Magistrate at the Mansion House. Attends Commission of Sewers' Meetings.

But this is far from being a complete list of his dignities, let alone his duties. As Lord Mayor he presides at the sittings of the Court of Aldermen, and this invariably in person. He is also President of the Court of Common Council and of the Common Hall, but in these two courts he may occasionally have a deputy or substitute.

He is also Chief Conservator of the Thames, and he attends meetings of the Commission of Sewers, and of other committees for municipal purposes.

He is one of the great dignitaries who are called to the first meeting of the Privy Council after the accession of a new sovereign, and at a Coronation he acts as Chief Butler, a duty which is rewarded by a perquisite in the shape of a golden cup.

He is a Governor of Christ's Hospital and of King's College, also a trustee of St. Paul's School.

He lives in a state which is almost regal. He has a sword-bearer, sergeant-at-arms, his serjeants of the Chamber, his esquires, and his crier. His official household, in fact, consists of some twenty permanent members.

For different occasions he has different robes, black silk, violet silk, silk, scarlet cloth, and crimson velvet, and he has four swords, the common sword, the Sunday sword, the black sword and the pearl sword.

MAYOR ELLIS OUT AGAIN.—The many friends of Mayor Ellis, who was indisposed for several weeks, will be glad to learn that he has recovered from his illness and is again at his working desk. He presided over yesterday's Council meeting.

HOME DELIGHTS OF A WINTER EVENING.
(From "The Task.")
Now stir the fire, and close the shutters fast,
Let fall the curtains, wheel the sofa round,
And while the bubbling and loud hissing urn
Throws up a steaming column, and the cups
That cheer but not inebriate, wait on each,
So let us welcome peaceful evening in,
O winter, ruler of the invested year,
I crown thee king of intimate delights,
Fireside enjoyments, home-born happiness,
And all the comforts that the lowly roof
Of undisturbed retirement, and the hours
Of long uninterrupted evening know.
But here the needle piles its busy task,
The pattern grows, the well-depicted flower,
Wrought patiently into the snowy lawn,
Unto its bosom; buds, and leaves, and sprigs,
And curling tendrils, gracefully disposed,
Follow the nimble finger of the fair;
A wreath, that cannot fade, of flowers,
That blow with success when all besides decay.
The poet's or historian's page by one
Made vocal for the amusement of the rest;
The sprightly lyre, whose treasure of sweet sounds
The touch from many a trembling chord shakes out;
And the clear voice symphonious yet distinct,
And in the charming strife triumphant still;
Beguile the night, and set a keener edge
On female industry; the threaded steel
Flies swiftly, and unfelt the task proceeds.
The volume closed, the customary rites
Of the last meal commence. A Roman meal;
Such as the mistress of the world once found
Delicious, when her patriots of high note,
Perhaps by moonlight, at their humble doors,
And under an old oak's domestic shade,
Enjoyed—spare feast!—a radish and

NOW is the time. Oh, Friend, no longer wait to scatter loving smiles and words of Cheer to those around whose lives are now so dear. They may not meet you in the coming year. Now is the time.

Walking.

(E. W. GAGE.)
When we start for a walk, make walking as well as breathing a beauty. It makes a difference what we think as we walk; joyousness and gladness will respond to good thoughts and you will find yourself walking as the command of old demands—"walk as the children of light." It takes the heaviness out of the feet and makes it possible for walking to become a beauty.
The style of walking that I admire most is moderate in velocity, rhythmic, arms swinging naturally; no conscious exertion while there is no force thrown to the winds. Self-conscious persons give the impression that their arms are a trouble to their body, holding them stiffly, or swinging them in some meaningless way; a waste of nervous force.
Good walking, the kind that becomes a habit, demands elasticity and flexibility in the toes. Persons who walk in a flat-footed fashion, or in a heavy manner, or who go along pounding the heels, become tired and fail to enjoy the exercise. They do not experience the benefit that comes from a light, free, easy walking and so miss much real joy in life. It is possible to cultivate gladness and happiness, to find joy in whatever one does instead of finding it a drudgery.
Good thoughts encourage cheerfulness as well as self-control. One should take advantage of anything that makes for health; anything that tends to the shaking off of mental inertia that accompanies so many ailments; anything that can be supplied in connection with other means to maintain, or restore health; anything that makes for complete living—Health Culture.

The Quickness of Woman's Eyes.

Women are quite accustomed to compliments on their quickness. The way they jump to conclusions and catch the gist of things before mere man has had time to take in all the bearings of the case has become proverbial. Many a man is glad to lay a matter he is undecided about before the mind of a woman, just to see how the affair strikes her at first sight and at the moment. Her judgment is often surprisingly sound. Without stopping to reason about it, she seems to see the thing all round—her answer comes at once. Perhaps if she stopped to reason it out she would be less certain. This quickness is a great asset in woman's character; the way a husband will sometimes avail himself of it is flattering.
Women have the most extraordinary facility for seeing a great many things at once. For instance, they will remember every detail of a person's dress, manner, and personal appearance, even to the color of the hair and eyes, after a mere glimpse. This power is rare with men in general though some have cultivated it. The gift belongs pre-eminently to women, however, who will often, without effort, take away the most vivid impressions of people they have travelled with for a short time only and have never spoken to, or of people they have met by chance in the street.
Woman's eyes need to be kept as they are kindly. In her household all depends on them. Woman is the first to notice any little rift within the lute of home life, and failure in the health of those she loves and has the care of, any lapse from the accustomed, any trouble unexpressed that is making any one unhappy. More delicately balanced, more sensitive than man, her nature receives impressions which to those of a different, perhaps coarser, fibre would simply have no existence. Her intuition is at times divine.
The eyes of a good woman! How gently, how clearly, how truthfully they look out on life! How pleasantly on those they guard! Happy the homes that dwell in peace and security beneath the loving care of a true woman's eyes.

The State's Duty.

If the worth of education were appreciated as it should be, the educational system would give to every child a place in school free, and the school would include a whole training right through to a college degree. That is idealistic, but not impracticable when you come to think of it. Here is a proposition, to expend, say, thirty millions of dollars, upon a new canal. Improved transportation is necessary, we are told. Why does not some one get up, and say, that an improved system of national education is also necessary? Thirty millions of dollars would go a long way towards inaugurating a system perfectly in line with what I have suggested. What do the teachers say to starting a campaign of education along these lines? Preach the money value of a finished educational system to the state at large, picture what the country would be, if it stood first among the nations in this respect, as it might. It will come to pass in time this ideal. Teachers have it in their power to hurry along the day of its approach. Is there any reason, why the state should not make it a matter of the first concern, that all its citizens should have an equal, and a certain right to an education, which would take those who were fitted for it, right through to where they could reach the terminus at present set to scholastic education?—Exchange.

True Love.

The love that measures giving and receiving is not likely to be lasting. True loving gives its best freely, and keeps no niggardly account of how much it gets back. We never shall have deep friendships and close ties so long as we insist on just so much recognition and return for everything we do. Love does not bargain; it gives; and its highest symbol is the Cross, where Love Absolute poured itself out for half-comprehending and slow-hearted man.
Is it Any Wonder?
"Him wuzza tootest little-bitte peccous love's lamb,
And him des a sweetest pittle-tittle single, yes him an,
Wis 'im 'un'inn' lisse footsie, an' him 'uz 'Doo-goo-goo'!"
Him was him muzzer's ownest lamble boy'sie—cootie-coo!"
To this the baby listens by the hour and day and week,
And yet his mother wonders why he doesn't learn to speak!

A Prayer.

Our Father: Thou art the Source and Cause of all that exists in this vast universe. In Thee are all power and wisdom. And thou dost love. Thou art Love. As the body breathes in the atmosphere in which and by which we live, so may we breathe in the Wisdom and Love and Power. May we be inspired and dominated by Thee. May we be brought into perfect harmony with Thee, as we think and pray and resolve and love. And thus may we become the consenting and controlled medium of Thy Spirit. Great, good, and gracious God, thus take possession of us. Dwell within us. Illuminate and control us. And teach us, by a living experience the full meaning of that strong and wholesome and inspiring word: Salvation. Thus shall we find strength and health and peace in Jesus Christ our Lord.

Great Men and Women.

WILLIAM COWPER.
Cowper, one of the most charming of poets, and most unhappy of men, is best known by the poem "John Gilpin," which he liked least of all his voluminous verse. It is a strange irony of fate that the pious recluse of Olney, whose mental malady thrice overturned his reason, making his life so wretched that he repeatedly sought to find refuge in a suicide's grave, should now be chiefly remembered for the jolly jingle of "John Gilpin," and the sublime confidence in Divine Providence expressed in "God moves in a mysterious way." The interest in Cowper's life lies chiefly in the development of his mind as exhibited in his letters. His mind in childhood exhibited that gentleness, timidity, and diffidence, which ripened into such bitter fruits in his after life. In his chambers in the Inner Temple, when called to the bar, there was more of "rambling in the primrose paths of literature," than in "the thorny road of jurisprudence." He seems to have mingled cheerfully in the gaieties of the literary friends with whom his nominal profession connected him. When they procured for him the situation of Clerk of the Journals to the House of Lords, then occurred the first terrible development of the disease, so often manifested in the nervous frame of those gifted with the "diviner soul," which, slumbering beneath an external surface of gaiety or even of wild jollity, rages like a volcano in the mind's inner depths. On his recovery renouncing all London prospects, he settled eventually at Olney in Buckinghamshire in 1767, with Mrs. Unwin and her daughter, where in the society of a devout and amiable circle of friends the "wind was ever afterwards tempered to the shorn lamb." At length, at the age of nearly fifty, the fountain of his poetry, which had been all but sealed since his madness, was reopened. His first volume, "Table Talk, etc.," appeared in 1782. In the preceding year he had become acquainted with Lady Austen, to whose suggestion we owe the story of "John Gilpin," and "The Task." The story of John Gilpin's ride, we are told, caused Cowper a sleepless night, as he was kept awake by laughter at it. During these restless hours he turned it into the famous ballad.
During these years Cowper was engaged on his translation of Homer, varied by his delightful correspondence with Lady Hesketh, his cousin, and others. His disease burst forth with renewed violence when the infirmities of age prevented his kind nurse, Mrs. Anwin, from ministering to him and the year 1800 terminated his sorrows.
Of no writer's mind, character, sorrows, joys, habits, down to his hind cage making and his bare taming do we know more; his whole heart and soul blossom in their beautiful hues in his poetry and letters. His portrait is familiar to every eye, and pilgrims repair with interest and compassion to the scenes among which his footsteps wandered, and which his pen immortalized in song. How much that was martial, pious, glorious, and hopeful, sprung from a spirit overwhelmed in the despair of hopeless separation from his Maker; an enigma in the dispensations of Providence. His principal poems include "Table Talk," "The Progress of Error," "Truth," "Exposition," "Hope," "Charity," and the discursive "Task," written from the theme of the "Sofa," set him by Lady Austen. His hymns include the well-known "Oh! for a closer walk with God," "There is a fountain filled with blood," "Hark, my soul! it is the Lord," "What various hindrances we meet," and "God moves in a mysterious way."

Scientific Discoveries.

SIR OLIVER LODGE
(From Address to British Association, 1913.)
"In justice to myself and my co-workers, I must risk annoying my present hearers, not only by leaving on record our conviction that occurrences now regarded as occult can be examined and reduced to order by the methods of science carefully and persistently applied, but by going farther and saying with the utmost brevity, that already the facts so examined have convinced me that memory and affection are not limited to that association with matter by which alone they can manifest themselves here and now, and that personality persists beyond joddy death. The evidence to my mind goes to prove that incarnate intelligence, under certain conditions, may interact with us on the material side, thus indirectly coming within scientific ken; and that gradually we may hope to attain some understanding of the nature of a larger, perhaps aetherial, existence and of the conditions regulating intercourse across the chasm." A body of research investigators has even now landed on the treacherous but promising shores of a new continent. Yes, and there I more to say than that. The methods of science are not the only way, though they are our way, of being piloted to truth. 'No linere non potest perveniri ad tam grande secretum.'
I am convinced that those on the other side are trying to speak to us, and that they are doing all in their power to help us."

She Saved a Quarter---But?

Mrs. Armes handed $1.25 to the girl of the glove counter in payment for her purchase.
"Even change," she said. "Need I wait for the sales slip?"
"We are not allowed to deliver the package until the cashier sends back the voucher," the girl explained.
"Here it comes now."
She caught the box as it fell from the tube, and pulled out the slip. A quarter fell out with it. The girl glanced quickly at her customer.
"I am very sorry, but we cannot take this quarter," she said. "It is not a good one."
Mrs. Armes frowned. "Isn't that a bother!" she exclaimed. "Of course, I have not the remotest idea where it came from. I shouldn't know the difference. I wonder if my dimes are counterfeit, too! It makes one feel so doubtful."
The dimes and nickels, however, proved good, and a moment later her purchase was handed, her Mrs. Armes took it absently. Her mind was still busy with that quarter.
"I've got to get rid of it somehow," she reflected. "I can't afford to lose it. I'll try the little corner store. I'll get some thread there."
The little corner store was a tiny, pathetic place, kept by an elderly woman whose face showed how difficult the struggle had been. She never had more than one assistant—always young and inexperienced. To-day the girl was a new one. She accepted Mrs. Armes' quarter without question and that lady, with a sigh of relief, hastily hid the thread in her bag and left the store.
Five minutes later Miss Earle happened to go to the cash drawer, and her fingers touched the suspicious coin; she drew it out at once.
"See, Lucy, this is a counterfeit," she said, and she showed the girl how it differed in weight and "feel" and ring from a genuine coin.
"You won't make such a mistake again, I'm sure," she went on. "I'm sorry, but I shall have to take this from your pay to-night. I can't afford to lose it; my profits are too small."
The girl's face darkened. She made no protest for she knew the meager profits of the shop, only it seemed so cruel! Twenty-five was all that she was allowed to keep out of her scanty wages, and this week she had been planning a tiny treat for little sick Jack on Friday, and now—the hot tears filled her eyes.
But Mrs. Armes had "saved" her quarter!

Religious Ideas.

Religious ideas have the faith of methods, which, once set afloat in the world, are taken up by all sorts of instruments, some of them woefully coarse, feebly dr out of tune, until people are in danger of crying out that the melody itself is detestable—George Elliot.

The Six Stages of Sin.

The Steps by Which the Goal of Wickedness is Reached.
There is only one absolute ideal—says Dr. D. W. Sifton in the "London Quarterly Review"—the absolutely good. From this there are six steps constituting the Logic of Sin, which lead to the final goal of wickedness.
1. The first step in moral evil, that is, in sin, is taken when a lower good is chosen in preference to one that is higher. The thing chosen is in both cases good—it may be a question either of degree or quality.
2. The choice of a good lower in degree rather than of one of a higher degree.
Men fall into this sin when they indulge to excess in anything that is intrinsically and enjoyed in moderation, actually good—good, too, meant for human enjoyment. The most common forms of such excess are eating, drinking, amusement, pleasure.
3. The choice of a good lower in quality rather than of one of a higher quality.
Men fall into this sin when they choose a lower sensual or physical good in place of a higher, as when good food is sacrificed for good tobacco or plain, nourishing food for food that is more tasty but not so nourishing; or when fine clothing is bought instead of warm or useful clothing; or when the stomach has needlessly to pay for the back, and in numerous other ways.
4. The second step in moral evil is the employment of wrong means for the attainment of real good.
This sin is committed, for example, when a hungry man obtains food by means of theft; or when a man escapes danger or inconvenience or loss by means of a lie; or when he deceives in order to secure some sort of advantage, as in bargaining, whether as buyer or seller.
5. The third step in the development of sin is taken when good is left undone or wrong is done, notwithstanding its being seen to be wrong. The trick of the cuttlefish, which darkens the water in which it is swimming when its foes are at hand; even so men rouse their passions, or stir up their prejudices, or create a cloud of doubts, which for the moment dims their vision and sets them free, or rather subjects them to constraint to do or leave undone what conscience forbids or commands.
6. A still further step is taken when wrong is done because it is wrong; when men choose not only what is wrong as means, but what is wrong as end.
Are there not men to whom mischief is a pleasure; who find gratification in the corruption and sin of others apart altogether from any personal participation in it.
7. A fifth stage of sinful development is reached when a man deliberately usurps the function of moral lawgiver.
That which begins in caprice, in surrender to the whim of the moment, tends to ripen into a more and more conscious and determined refusal to be bound by any law whatever.
Persons of this kind are prone to refuse to be bound even by their own promises, their own inclinations, their own needs; nay, even their own obvious and recognized interests. Nothing binds them; they won't be bound.
8. The final stage of sinning is reached when man consciously rebels against God, defies Him, and blasphemes His holy name.

Great Thoughts.

Eden is yours! would you dwell within it!
Change men's grief to a gracious smile;
And thus have heaven here this minute.
—Nixon Waterman.
The Camel (by a Begianer.)
"It's nest is a very mean one, made of twigs, leaves, etc. It has a large body, and it is able to carry it full of water. It has two humps of fat on its back, on which it is able to feed when it is hungry. Its feet are webbed, in which it is able to cross the desert. Its hair is used to make brushes which are used for painting. It also lays eggs. It eats worms."
The One Thing Necessary.
Venerable Archdeacon: "Now, my dear children, I will ask you a few questions in your catechism. Which of you can tell me the two things necessary in Baptism?" "Quite right, 'Water.' Water is one thing, and what is the other? What! can none of you think what else is necessary?" "Well, little girl, what do you say?" "Little Girl: 'Please, sir, a baby.'"

Masonic Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of St. John's Lodge, No. 579, A.E. & A.M., was held last night and proved of unusual interest. On Dec. 5th, 1882, Brother Charles S. Pincet, Past District Grand Master of Newfoundland, entered the fraternity, and the celebration of his fiftieth anniversary last night recalled many happy coincidences. Mr. Pincet was initiated at the annual meeting which took place on a Friday and it is remarkable that the annual meeting which marks his Golden Jubilee, should take place on the same day of the week and month. Congratulations were showered on him last night, followed by the presentation of a beautifully illuminated address on silk. A second coincidence is the fact that when Brother Pincet was initiated, the Master of the Lodge was James Shannon Clift, while last night the first to extend congratulations was James Augustus Clift, M.H.A., the District Grand Master; and a third that Adam Johnston was proposed as a candidate for Masonic honors at his initiation in 1863 and last night was present in the Temple, tendering his congratulations and receiving similar ones himself. Amongst those present last night were District Grand Master Clift, W.M. Dr. Brehm, for the Mother Lodge, W.M. Satter, for Avalon, W.M. Baird, for Tasker, P.M. Hon. J. R. Bennett, for Whiteaway, Bro. Douglas Mann, for Harbor Grace, Rev. Canon Bolt, P.M. Collier and P.M. Robinson, P.M. Stott, Treasurer of the Tasker Fund, read a letter from the Jubilarian who celebrated his anniversary quietly by the enclosure of fifty dollars for the Tasker Educational Fund. The Treasurers and Auditors' reports being presented the election of officers took place, the Worshipful Master, Dr. Brehm, Treasurer R. Wright, and Tyler George Morris, being re-elected.

Thanksgiving Services

As to-morrow Sunday, will be the annual Thanksgiving Day and also the twentieth anniversary of the dedication of the first St. Andrew's Church, the services will be of a special character. The sermons will deal with the past history of the congregation and its call to gratitude and noble service. Music appropriate to the occasion is being prepared and special emphasis will be laid upon the service of song. In the morning there will be two anthems by the choir and a solo by Miss Strang. In the evening there will also be additional anthems, while Mrs. King will be heard for the first time as soloist in a service at the Kirk.

Aged Woman Missing

Last night the police were informed that an aged woman named Fitzgerald, was missing. She lived on Holdsworth Street, and had been absent from the first St. Andrew's Church, when she left to go out. The unfortunate woman was found on Thursday night wandering the streets and given shelter at the East End Fire Hall, until early morning, and then brought home. The old woman is said to be of unsound mind as a few weeks ago she was found in the woods near Windsor Lake by a man named Gladney, and driven to the city by Sergeant Mackay.

What They Have Done

Editor The Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir.—Talk about the work of the Municipal Council! Are they not supposed to keep the streets in lanes, etc., clear of snow? What have they done to "Richard's" Lane? Simply banked the snow against Smallwood's building and watched it grow legs! The result—why hundreds passing up and down daily have been over ankle deep in mud! Dr. Scully must be quiet; for by his surgery door its filthy Mr. Smallwood must be very indifferent to the health of his building, and the temper of the general public must be amiable itself to stand such treatment!

Attempt to Kill Governor of Canton.

Hong Kong, Nov. 29.—General Chai Kuang Lung, governor of Canton, today for the second time within a fortnight, was attacked by an assassin, who endeavored to plunge a knife into his heart. General Lung, however, escaped with only a wound in the hand. General Lung personally killed four of his guards, leaving the citizens when he addressed the recruits of his company, aroused still further indignation against the army to-day by cutting down a lame shoemaker with his sabre and wounding him dangerously in the head. The little Liets, was leading a half com-

German Officer Sabres Civilian.

Seaborn, Alsace, Ger., Dec. 2.—Lt. Baron Von Forstner who started the trouble between the troops and civilians here by referring scornfully to the citizens when he addressed the recruits of his company, aroused still further indignation against the army to-day by cutting down a lame shoemaker with his sabre and wounding him dangerously in the head. The little Liets, was leading a half company of the 99th infantry from the barracks to the country to go through the morning drill when a group of workmen recognized Von Forstner as he and his men were passing through a village. The workmen hooped the officer, who at once halted his company and then sent armed soldiers in pursuit. The infantrymen succeeded in catching only one, a lame shoemaker who resisted arrest. Von Forstner then came up and deliberately struck him on the head with the sharpened edge of his sabre. The fresh incident has created such tension in the vicinity that serious bloodshed is feared unless the unpopular officer of the 99th regiment is transferred immediately.

Annual Report of the Bank of Montreal.

Elsewhere in this issue we publish the general statement of the result of the business of the Bank of Montreal for the year ended 31st Oct. 1913. The annual meeting took place at Montreal last Monday with the new President Mr. H. V. Meredith in the chair. We call from the report of the directors the following extracts. It will be observed that the report comments on the financial stringency in Great Britain in regard to loans and the onerous conditions connected with it. It is gratifying to notice that the directors recognize that the high prices of fish obtained in Newfoundland have induced an era of prosperity. This will be a most encouraging word for the delegates of the F. P. U. Convention to take home with them and should stimulate them and their President to continue in the efforts they have made the past few years.

The report, in part, points out the success of the bank during the year and says, in part: "The authorized capital remains at $25,000,000, the paid-up capital at $18,000,000, and the rest at $7,000,000. Out of net earnings which, for the year, amounted to $2,648,402.86, $243,402.86 was transferred to profit and loss account, bringing that balance up to $1,046,217.80, and there has been set aside for bank premises account during the year an amount of $485,000. A bonus of 1 per cent. was paid to shareholders on the 1st June and 1st December over and above the quarterly dividend of 2 1/2 per cent.

"Turning to our assets, the current loans and discounts in Canada and elsewhere and other assets, amounting to $134,160,000, show an increase of $15,000,000, caused by taking out new business and by the increased legitimate requirements of our customers. Investments in railway and other bonds are $12,933,000. Bank premises, Montreal and branches, remain at $4,000,000. Call and other loans in Great Britain and the United States are $51,240,000, against $55,150,000 a year ago, which deduction with $8,000,000 withdrawn from foreign correspondents and agencies of the Bank outside of Canada, has been used to provide for the increased demands of our Canadian customers, mentioned above. Our bills payable amount to $919,308, as compared with $1,717,000 as at the same date last year. At that time, however, the amount was shown as a contingent liability instead of being included in the general statement as at present.

"In regard to the general situation, the year 1913 may be truly described as a memorable one. In Great Britain it has been disturbed and disappointing. The demands of borrowing countries, both old and new, have outstripped capital supplies, and there has been an ever-increasing difficulty in obtaining loans, however sound the security might be, and, when obtainable, the rates and terms have been far more onerous than for many years past.

"These conditions abroad will no doubt take time to ameliorate, and improvement will probably be brought about by reduced trade activity gradually releasing money for investment and hoarded funds; but the present will of necessity be slow.

"In Newfoundland the high prices obtained for fish have induced a period of prosperity. The building of branch lines of railway, the development of the mining of iron ore at Bell Island, and the growth of the pulp and paper industry have all improved conditions."

ELECTION OF DIRECTORS.
 The retiring boards of directors were re-elected, with Mr. H. Vincent Meredith as president, namely: Messrs. R. B. Angus, D. Forbes Angus, A. Baumgarten, H. R. Drummond, C. Gordon, E. B. Greenfields, C. R. Hooper, Sir William Macdonald, Hon. Robert Mackay, Wm. McMaster, H. V. Meredith, D. Morriss, Sir Thomas Haughnessy, K. C. V. O., Rt. Hon. Lord Strathcona and Mount Royal, G. M. G. What About Morison and Blandford?

Yesterday, as the editor of the Daily News had broken silence on political matters, we suggested that he might deal with the topic of the retention in office of the defeated Ministers of Justice and of Agriculture. The suggestion he passes by unheeded, and continues the policy of the shut-mouth. It is interesting to search out the reason for such a policy in the case of a party which claims by its very name to be ultra-democratic. For the past five years this party has been masquerading under the name of the People's Party, whilst exploiting the country for graballs, monopolists and bootlers. In accepting the leadership of this party, Sir Edward Morris declared that "Under the banner of the People's Party, the whole of the industrial classes of the Colony—the Fishermen, the Farmers, the Mechanics, the Laborers, the Clerks and all who work for a living—will find a rallying point, where all who wish to see their country advance may join together to work for the common good." That was promise. The performance has been an eye-opener: jobs, fees and patronage for members of the Legislature; timber grabs for men like Morison and their relatives; fat contracts for the big contractor; grants for all kinds of big men in outport districts to influence voters. Never has there been such a fleecing of the people by professed leaders of a People's Party. Even when the Fishermen themselves, the most numerous and influential of all the classes of workmen, who were to find a leader in Sir Edward Morris, protested against a Minister of the Crown being a timber grabber, Sir Edward rallied to the support of the grabber, and fought down their efforts for pure government. And now that the fishermen of Bonavista have put at the bottom of the poll a timber grabbing Minister, and defeated also the head of the department who should have protected the People's interest, Sir Edward Morris rallies to the support of these two Ministers, who have been discredited by a signal vote of want of confidence registered in such an overwhelming fashion by the fishermen of Bonavista Bay. In defiance of the will of the people, these two Ministers have been kept in office some five weeks, and all that is offered to the people is the shut-mouth and stony-stare of a Graball Boss. He palms himself off as a leader of the party in which the will of the fishermen and other workers shall prevail. Yet he works in the interests of the Graballs and defies the people.

We have kept this matter constantly before our readers for nearly five weeks now. This week protests have been passed by the Convention of Fishermen, which has been meeting in the city. Yesterday we published a suite of resolutions passed by them against the retention of these Ministers in office, calling upon the Government to follow the democratic custom which has prevailed in Newfoundland for the past quarter of a century, and asking for the appointment of two new ministers and a reference to the constituents of the new appointees. These resolutions are being forwarded to His Excellency the Governor, who will no doubt bring them formally to the attention of His Ministry. The policy of the shut-mouth and the stony stare, and the retention of defeated Ministers in office could be pursued only by a party which did not trust the people which preferred to null and fool them and retain a Government not by the good will of the people but by the guile of political tricksters.

Cruel on Horses

The agent of the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, Mr. E. Bastow, is voicing the sentiments of horse owners, in his complaint of the condition of Water St. during the past few days. Large lumps of ice have been thrown from the sidewalk into the street, instead of being deposited in the harbour, or some other suitable place, and have necessitated the use of wheels instead of runners, with the result that hauling is far more difficult, particularly in coming up from the different coves where quite an ascent has to be made. Complains in this direction would be unheard of, if the streets had been properly cleaned at the beginning.

F. P. U. Delegates Call on Governor.

At eleven o'clock to-day delegates, numbering 120, of the Supreme Council of the Fishermen's Protective Union, now in convention, marched to Government House in a body and waited on His Excellency Governor Davidson, presenting him with a set of resolutions, dealing with the wrongful retention in office by the present Government of the two defeated Ministers—Messrs. Morison and Blanford—and with the increase in the membership in the Legislative Council. The latter resolution being asked to be forwarded by His Excellency to the Secretary of State for the Colonies. The visitors were most cordially and graciously received and escorted to the reception room, where President Coaker handed the documents to His Excellency, who in accepting them, made a brief address, assuring the delegates that he would give the resolutions his most earnest consideration and that he would do all in his power for the well being of the Fishermen. At the conclusion of his Excellency brought the delegates through the Government House and showed them the different departments. The visitors were delighted with what they saw. After leaving Government House the delegates proceeded to the Mechanics Hall and continued their convention.

Counterfeits.

It would be well for those who haven't any more money than they can spare to take an extra look at the fifty cent pieces that come into their possession and if they are marked with a Newfoundland stamp it would be well to test them to see if they have the right tinge. There are counterfeit Newfoundland fifty cent pieces on the go and they are to all appearances exactly like the genuine ones.

For the benefit of those who do not know it may be well to say that a genuine silver piece has a ring to it while a counterfeit piece will fall with a thud like lead. This is a genuine test and nobody need fear who tries it when in doubt.—Sydney Post.

Proclamation Too Late.

Special to The Evening Telegram. NOTTINGHAM, Eng., To-day. In his speech here last night, Carson said Ulster volunteers who a year ago numbered 1,900 now aggregated 9,000, and added they were perfectly determined and awaiting orders. The comment of Ulster leaders is to the effect that the King's proclamation comes too late. They said they are all ready with eighty thousand serviceable rifles, half of them quite modern weapons and millions of rounds of ammunition in the possession of Ulster volunteers. They also argue it is easier to issue proclamations than it is to prevent the continued secret importation of rifles. They also said there is nothing to prevent them starting a gun factory in Belfast, that the proclamation gives no power to search for arms. The Government's belated action will serve no purpose beyond the making of a blundering admission of the seriousness of the estimation of Ulster. Carson, in an interview at Nottingham, said the proclamation was too late, and added it would make no difference, but that it would put an end to liberal taunts about wooden guns and the Ulster movement being a farce.

Another Big Feature

AT THE NICKEL.

There was another big feature at the Nickel Theatre last evening—The Man Hunt—a Pathe production in two reels. It is an interesting story and had the attention of all from start to finish. "When Love Leads" is a Lubin story with the charming actress Orni Hawley in the principal role. "Once was Enough," "Cohen's Reward" and "Why Tightwad Tips" are comedy subjects. Mr. Cameron sang "More work for the Undertaker" again. The whole programme was a good one and no one should miss it.

Was Not Robbed

The item that appeared in the Evening Herald that Nathaniel Somerton, of Portugal Cove, was robbed and badly beaten by three burglars on Bell Island, is not true. We are informed, Somerton, who had two cheques in his pocket, had just left the Bell Island Co.'s office when he was attacked by two unknown fellows, but managed to escape after a little wrestling. He lost nothing out of his pockets and received no injuries.

ROBERT TEMPLETON'S.

Olive Branch for Ulster.

Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, To-day.

The British Cabinet, by a royal proclamation, promulgated last night, prohibiting the importation of arms and ammunition into Ireland, for the first time grasped with meagre the revolution in Ulster which it had hitherto ignored. Although the followers of Carson for months have been advertising military preparations in every possible way, there has been no interference with them. Almost simultaneously with the publication of the proclamation, Asquith made the longest step towards conciliation of the Ulsterites, the Government has yet taken by announcing his acceptance of the principles for a basis of agreement, that Carson suggested in his last speech. These principles are: first, that the settlement must not be humiliating or degrading to Ulster; second, Ulster's treatment must not be different or exceptional from that of other parts of the United Kingdom; third, Ulster must retain the full protection of the Imperial Parliament; fourth, the Home Rule Bill must not be such as will lead to the ultimate separation of Ulster from Britain. Thus the Government extends to the signers of the Ulster Covenant the olive branch. The proclamation prohibiting the importation of arms and ammunition into Ireland, which King George signed at a meeting of the Privy Council on Thursday, which was published in the Royal Gazette last night, is milder than rumors anticipated it would be. Instead of reviving the Irish Crimes Act, which was so odious to old time Home Rulers against whom it was directed and which prohibited the carrying of arms, and gave drastic power to search for arms, they invoked the Customs Consolidated Act of 1876. The only reason given in the proclamation for the taking of this step is: "Whereas it is expedient that the importation into Ireland of arms and ammunition, other than goods hereinafter mentioned, should be prohibited therefore, and the proclamation proceeds to specify all articles intended for or capable of being used for military purposes, being under ban. It exempts, however, arms and explosives designed solely for sporting uses. Asquith's pronouncement was made as many of his most important declarations in British politics have been in the course of an after dinner speech. The Premier was the guest of honor at the Reform Club, Manchester. It was in this city on a similar occasion that the Carson overtures were made, so that it would appear the negotiations for a settlement of the Irish controversy have been taking a course of informal public debate. Dealing with Carson's basis of settlement categorically, Asquith said he was sure Sir Edward must agree with the statement that there could be no settlement worthy of the name that would be humiliating or degrading. Those for whom Sir Edward spoke should apply this to all sections of the Irish people. In the second point, Asquith said he supposed Sir Edward referred to what was called Home Rule all round. Ireland's case, he added, was a case of urgency, must come first. It could not be delayed until the Government had gone through the complicated process of adopting the principle of Home Rule to all the different parts of the United Kingdom. The Premier said he agreed there must be no ultimate separation of Ireland from Britain, but with the modification that there were peculiar conditions making the application of cast iron or a standardized system of Home Rule to different parts of the Kingdom as not practicable. He added the real effective authority, supreme and unquestionable, must be retained in the Imperial Parliament. Concluding, the Premier said, he was hopeful that the discussion will be freely and frankly carried out on the lines he indicated at Ladybank. The Ladybank lines, Carson indicated, may lead to a cessation of a long embittered controversy and a settlement which will command the consent and good will of all parties concerned. I agree with Sir Edward, we have to consider carefully and sympathetically the case of the Irish minority, but equally we must keep in mind the case of the majority, who after a struggle extending over more than a life time, now see the goal actually in sight. The leaders of Labor Unions halted these speeches (including Carson's on the proclamation) with resentment and asked indignantly why Carson is permitted to advocate such a policy when Tom Mann was recently imprisoned for a speech which advised soldiers to refuse to fire on strikers. The present Labor situation is so delicate that Conservatives appear to have begun to fear. Even Carson now declares the first duty of an army is to obey orders. A Dublin newspaper said Secretary of War Seely demanded the resignation of Major Critchon, of the Horse Guards, son of Viscount Erne for connection with the Ulster volunteers. Thereupon eight officers of the Horse Guards threatened to resign, and the Secretary of War withdrew his demand.

Special Evening Telegram.

EXETER, Eng., Dec. 5.

Mrs. Pankhurst, suffragette leader, is said to be in a state of collapse, having started both a hunger and thirst strike since her arrest on board the Majestic yesterday.

LONDON, Dec. 5.

An official proclamation prohibiting the importation of arms and ammunition into Ireland was issued here to-day. This course is taken to counteract the activities of the Ulster volunteers who have for some time been drilling with a view to opposing the Irish Government, should Home Rule for Ireland become law.

LONDON, Dec. 5.

Passengers on board the Majestic aboard which Mrs. Pankhurst made her voyage across the Atlantic, on their arrival in London told of the indignation of the travellers being detained for over an hour at Plymouth Harbour in order to enable the police to outfit the suffragettes, who proposed rescuing Mrs. Pankhurst. The English press is rather inclined to criticize the police plans, which the Manchester Guardian describes as possessing an absurd disposition between actual danger of disorder or rescue and the plans of the authorities. The Westminster Gazette says it is absurd to describe the arrest of Mrs. Pankhurst as a triumph for the police.

How One Burn Was Cured.

"Did you ever hear how that little girl of Mrs. Wells got on—the one that had the nasty burn on her arm, you know?"

"Why, yes, she was perfectly cured, not even a scar remains."

"How was that managed?"

"Easily enough; Mrs. Wells got a box of a new ointment called Zylez, from her druggist—and in a very few days the burn was healed and the child's arm as well as ever."

Zylez is the latest soothing and healing ointment, and is up-to-date in every respect. It is for sale by all Druggists. Price 50c. a box. Zylez Soap, 25c. a cake. Zylez, London.—dec2, cod. f.

Lost A Sense of Proportion.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"Oh do not get delirious about your troubles numerous. For what to you seems serious to others may seem humorous." A few days ago I met a little friend of mine on the trolley, and on inquiring what caused her to look so blue, was made the recipient of a tale of deepest woe. It was one of those times with her "when everything goes dead wrong." In the first place she had made a mistake in the office; in the second place she was just coming back from a visit to the dressmaker and the new gown didn't look as if it were going to be becoming, and after that she had spent more money than she really should have upon it; then she was going to be late to supper which always made her boarding mistress cross and she didn't feel as if she could stand being glowered at to-night; and lastly she had just heard a disagreeable remark which a supposed friend had made about her. Although she was in one of those moods when it doesn't seem as if the joys of life were sufficient to outweigh its sorrows, and when one is inclined to wish with the facile melancholy of youth that this one had never been born into this vale of tears.

If you could only realize the scores of everyday ills that arise from a sluggish condition of the kidneys, liver and bowels you would not be long in giving this medicine a trial. Mrs. Edward Stewart, New Richmond West, Que., writes: "I want to tell you how thankful I am for using your Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills for stomach troubles and backache caused by weak kidneys. I was unable to wash any clothes for over two years on account of my back being lame. I read the Almanac and began using these pills. Two boxes made a complete cure. I can do my own washing and other work now, and want to say to lady friends that they do not know how much I appreciate Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills." 25 cents a box, all dealers or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Ltd., Toronto.

To the Holders of American Bonds: The new Federal Income Tax Law contains provisions of great importance to Canadian holders of Bonds or other obligations of American Companies. Roofing As Attractive in Price—As in Color. You'll admit this roof looks attractive—in distinctive colors of red or green. But for most home builders its chief attraction lies in its remarkable economy. Let's begin with its first cost. NEPONSET Prostate Roofing costs less to buy than good shingles. Greatly reduces the cost of repairs. No shingles to split, crack or "curl up." Remember, the shingles of today aren't the shingles of 20 years ago. NEPONSET Prostate Roofing makes a water-tight blanket. And best of all, resists fire—is "spark-proof." Its protection from fire-hazard alone is worth all its cost. Its first cost is its only cost, too. Can you afford NOT to have NEPONSET Prostate Roofing on your roof? NEPONSET Waterproof Building Products. Roofings, Building Papers, Wall Board.

GLASGOW, Dec. 5. Fire to-day destroyed Kelly House, one of the finest mansions of Wemyss Bay, a favorite outlying suburb of Glasgow. Suffered from usual plagues.

OXFORD, Dec. 5. Part of Jesus College was burned to-day, Oxford's most serious fire for 200 years. The Seventeenth Century Hall was badly damaged. Pictures by Van Dyke, Holbein and Lely, hanging there, were saved.

TAIPEI, Formosa, Dec. 5. Six conspirators, recently arrested, and convicted of plotting the overthrow of Japanese rule in Formosa, were sentenced to death to-day; 123 to terms of imprisonment from 4 to 25 years, whilst 140 were liberated.

DENVER, Dec. 5. A railway contract of $8,000,000 has been let to the tunnel-driving firm of James A. McLean & Sons, of Denver, to drive a ten-mile tunnel for the C.P.R. in British Columbia. Work will start in January, and must be completed in three years.

EDMONTON, Dec. 5. Preparations for an attempt to blow up either the Alberta Penitentiary, or mine operated by the Prison for the Dominion Government, have been discovered. Twenty-one sticks of dynamite were found hidden under some brushwood, by one of the prisoners.

MEXICO CITY, Dec. 5. President Huerta is sending Adolfo de la Loma, his Minister of Finance, to Europe, on a money-seeking mission. It developed to-day that the plan of the foreign colonies for defence involves an effort to have the marines of nations, other than the States, brought here to join the local organization which is being formed.

HALIFAX, Dec. 5. The Invergyre, with 2,100 tons of coal, arrived this morning after a most trying voyage, and in a damaged condition. She also brought part of the crew of the Evelyn, Capt. Roberts, abandoned on Nov. 28th. The Invergyre rescued three of the Evelyn's crew of six, but the officers report they were unable to rescue the remaining men, which included the captain and mate. When shown the despatch from Glasgow they were greatly pleased, as it indicated that the remaining three men had been either rescued by another steamer or had managed to complete the voyage from Beaverton to Glasgow. From the time they left Penarth they encountered tremendously rough seas. With the engine racing, there was a continuous round of gales till Nov. 23rd, when they broke the low pressure crank shaft. After 28 hours without any let up, in the face of head and high seas, they succeeded in making repairs. On the night of the 25th a sailing vessel, showing signs of distress, was sighted, and the crew asked to be taken off. It was impossible to approach close in the raging sea. The coiler stood by all night the seas endangering both ships. In the morning, after much difficulty, a life boat was launched, practically all the crew of the Invergyre volunteering to go. Finally first officer Souther and four seamen got away. They went to the stern of the brig and a rope was passed to the life boat, but the seas made it impossible to get close to the ship. The crew was advised to jump into the sea and be picked up. Three did, and were taken safely aboard. The others refused. The rope became unseaworthy, and further attempt had to be abandoned. Life belts, fastened to lines, were tossed overboard, but those in the brig would not jump. The Invergyre stayed by the brig all day, and as night came on, another increased gale with mountainous seas sprang up. It was decided to separate a little. The Invergyre's funnel was damaged and bent all over. The skylights had to be closed to prevent the water reaching the engine rooms. All the port holes in the forecastle were burst in by the seas. They stayed by all night, but in the morning there was no sign of the brig. After steaming around, and seeing nothing of the Evelyn, the coiler continued her journey.

The Frailty of Man.

We are all liable to error and will be so to the end of time—the most careful will make mistakes; sometimes, for are we not merely human? With the fact of our own frailty staring us in the face, would it be reasonable on our part to neglect the means placed within our reach for the elimination of error? Errors in the counting house are costly but they can be avoided by the use of present day inventions constructed as well as human ingenuity can suggest. It is to busy men that we speak—the other have no time to listen. To busy office-men the "Globe-Wernicke" devices come as a boon and a blessing, guarding as they do the essential records, which are the main vitality of business. These appliances are on view at Mr. Percie Johnson's office, and need only be seen to be appreciated.

R.C. Bazaar at Bell Island

GREAT SUCCESS.
The annual bazaar in aid of St. Michael's R. C. Church, at Bell Island, was held there last week and proved a great success despite the adverse weather prevailing. The Bazaar closed on Tuesday night, and was the finale to a very successful fair. The ladies' committee and the energetic pastor, Rev. J. J. McCrath, worked assiduously to make this year's bazaar equal to any yet held, and their realizations were not disappointing. The committee of management comprised Mesdames P. F. Power, L. Walsh, R. J. Costigan, T. Dwyer, J. Connors, F. Wade, T. Green; while the Messrs. Greace, Bowdring, Jackman, Power and others did their share of the work.

STOP Coughing.

How often do you awake during the night and have an attack of "Coughing"? Don't you find that the cough is caused from a tickling sensation in the throat? What is the cause of this tickling sensation? It is because you contracted a cold in some simple way and did not trouble about it. The cold has developed to a "cough," and now you must try and obtain some remedy to stop this "cough." If you do not do this you are making a great mistake. A mistake which is often the cause of regret for the rest of your life.

If you have a "Cough or cold" try a bottle of Stafford's Phoratic Cough Cure to mix equal parts of Stafford's Liniment and (amphorated Oil) in a saucer, warm slightly saturate a piece of thick flannel with same, and apply to chest and throat. You will find relief at once.

The large quantity of these two preparations having been sold this year prove them to be genuine.

Pig is Gentleman Despite His Diet.

Cambridge, Nov. 28.—That the pig is naturally one of the finest "gentlemen" in the land and should be treated as such was the statement made by Dr. Peters while talking on the raising and care of poultry and swine.

"The pig is naturally a gentleman," said he. "It is a man who has made him as he is. The popular idea that broken glass, empty cans and tin covers are appreciated as a diet by swine is one of the many popular fallacies. Neither do they appreciate lemon rinds, orange peel and banana skins. The pig should have a clean, dry bed to sleep on, its pen should be kept clean and it should be properly fed."

POLICE CALLED TO SHIP.—The police were called to the Manchester Company last night to attend to two of the sailors who were creating a disturbance. At the instance of the captain of the ship they were arrested and taken to the lock up.

Bell Island Tramway Opened

Hogan, of St. John's, and Miss Kissett, of California. Congratulations to the B. I. T. Co. on having their construction work accomplished.

On Borrowing

By GEORGE FITCH.
Author of "At Good Old Sir"

Borrowing is a talent, a virtue, a disposition and a very help in time of trouble. Borrowing is not all of the same man, however. There are many kinds of borrowing and many ways of telling a tale. Some men borrow money to buy a lawn-mower, an automobile, a street car ticket or a tooth brush. Some men borrow money to hustle around and stake a good job. These men generally live with a large circle of acquaintance and end with a few acquaintances by reason of the uncertainty of their means to be able to pay. Some men borrow money to buy a new start. Getting a new start is a large part of borrowed money. Some men borrow money to do the working and the worrying. Some men borrow money to have to have it. These more legitimate objects of borrowing are those who try to borrow in case he needs it. John D. Ler who has several cisterns and bond coupons, could go on time and borrow a wagon load of money, because he does them. But when a man has $500 to-morrow noon he that depression hangs over him. He black the word currency out of his dictionary and all of his friends have unkindly disposed of their surplus for the day before.

Some men borrow money to see it to work. They are employment bureau. They are a dollar which has lain for you stocking of its secret owner to work piling up interest. They take banks to buy roads and empty the corner of an order to erect new buildings. Many a man has started in nothing, but a genius for some other man's money and has it to him two-fold in the time. If it were not for the and talented borrowers, the world still be struggling all on cash basis and the project of New York to Chicago and the nearing Cleveland, Ohio, stage connections the first of

On Borrowing.

By GEORGE FITCH.
 Author of "At Good Old Sivash."

Borrowing is a talent, a vice, a virtue, a dissipation and a very pleasant help in time of trouble.

Borrowing is not all of these things to the same man, however. There are as many kinds of borrowing as there are many ways of telling a girl that she is nine up and eight to play with you.

Some men borrow money as they would a lawn-mower, an umbrella, a street car ticket or a tooth brush. It is easier to borrow money than it is to rustle around and stake a claim on a good job. These men generally begin life with a large circle of friends and end with a few acquaintances who are the reason of rheumatism or spring-hair are unable to be elsewhere in a great hurry.

Some men borrow money because they have lost their and must finance a new start. Getting a new start on a nice large wad of borrowed money is a nice diversion of labor. The borrower does the working and the borrower does the worrying.

Some men borrow money because they have to have it. There is a more legitimate object of pity than the man who tries to borrow money because he needs it. John D. Rockefeller who has several millions full of hard earnings, could go out at any time and borrow a wagon load of Richfield gas because he doesn't need them. But when a man has to have $500 by to-morrow when he discovers that depression hangs over the land that stocks are depressed, the future is black, the word currency has been torn out of the dictionary and that all his friends have unfortunately disposed of their surplus wealth only the day before.

Some men borrow money in order to set it to work. They are a regular employment bureau. They take the dollar which has lain for years in the stocking of its secretive owner and set it to work piling up interest. They rifle the banks to build railroads and empty the corn cribs of the nation in order to erect new factories.

Many a man has started in life with nothing but a genius for borrowing, some other man's money and returned to him two-fold in the course of time. If it were not for these ready and talented borrowers, America would still be struggling along on a cash basis and the projected railroad from New York to Chicago would now be desiring Cleveland, Ohio, with good stage connections the rest of the way.

Mr. James Wants an Investigation.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—The Fishermen's Advocate of date Nov. 29th, in an editorial, charges that during the recent election, at a settlement in Burin District, "a clergyman was heard to state that Orangeism was a synonymous term for Anarchy and "Piracy."

If this is so, and there is no reason whatever to doubt it, as the statement is very plain, and not filled in any way, it is the immediate duty of the Right Worshipful Provincial Grand Orange Lodge of Newfoundland to investigate, and have the charge brought home to the man of God, who so criminally and ignorantly libelled the Orange Association and no matter what his denomination to take prompt action against him in the courts.

A little while ago, a tremendous furor was created when an alleged oath of the Knights of Columbus was circulated, but when the Orange Association is calumniated it appears to be nobody's business to probe the matter, and so a base libel is permitted to gain currency and credence among people who do not know any better.

The Provincial Grand Orange Lodge will hold its annual session at Burin during the month of February, 1914, and will be, consequently, right on the spot where no difficulty should be experienced in tracing the enunciator of such an uncalculated and mendacious expression, and, if not done before, compelling him either with or without process of law to publicly retract and apologize.

Yours truly,
 C. T. JAMES.
 Channel, Dec. 3, 1913.

Thick, Glossy Hair No More Dandruff

Girls! Beautify your hair! Make it soft, fluffy and luxuriant—Try the moist cloth.

Try as you will, after an application of Danderine, you cannot find a single trace of dandruff or falling hair and your scalp will not itch, but what will please you most, will be after a few weeks' use, when you see new hair, fine and downy at first—yes—but really new hair—growing all over the scalp.

A little Danderine immediately doubles the beauty of your hair. No difference how dull, faded, brittle and scraggy, just moisten a cloth with Danderine and carefully draw it through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. The effect is immediate and amazing—your hair will be light, fluffy and wavy, and have an appearance of abundance; an incomparable lustre, softness and luxuriance, the beauty and shimmer of true hair health.

Get a 25 cent bottle of Knowlton's Danderine from any drug store or toilet counter and prove that your hair is as pretty and soft as any—that it has been neglected or injured by careless treatment—that's all.

Kiev Fails to Secure Loan.

Odessa, Nov. 29.—The mayor of Kiev, with two members of the Kiev municipality, has returned from London and announces the failure of his attempt to float a municipal loan of £1,575,000 in London. The mayor informed the representatives of the Kievstoe Myssl that his mission failed owing to the evil repite into which Kiev has fallen on account of the trial of the Belifiss "ritual murder" charges.

'Cascarets' Relieve Sick, Sour Stomach

Move acids, gases and clogged-up waste from Stomach, Liver, Bowels—Cure Indigestion.

Get a 10-cent box now. That awful sourness, belching of acid and foul gases; that pain in the pit of the stomach; the heartburn, nervousness, nausea, bloating after eating, dizziness and sick headache, means a disordered stomach, which cannot be regulated until you remove the cause. It isn't your stomach's fault. Your stomach is as good as any.

Try Cascarets; they immediately cleanse the stomach, remove the sour, undigested and fermenting food and foul gases; take the excess bile from the liver and carry off the constipated waste matter and poison from the bowels. Then your stomach trouble is ended. A Cascaret to-night will straighten you out by morning—a 10-cent box from any drug store will keep your stomach sweet; liver and bowels regular for months. Don't forget the children—their little insides need a good, gentle cleansing, too.

Hymenal.

On Dec. 1st, at St. Jones Without, T.B., a very pretty wedding took place, when Mr. John Green, jr., son of Mr. Charles Green, of that place, was united in holy matrimony to Mary Jane Downey, of that place, but who for a few months had been residing in St. John's. The ceremony was performed by Rev. Mr. Richards, Methodist Minister, of the Random South Circuit. Mr. Leander Green was groom's best man, and Miss Minnie Green, assisted the bride. The wedding was kept up in the home of the groom, where the good friends of St. Jones Without, met for a sumptuous repast. Mr. and Mrs. Green have the hearty wishes of all for many years of happy wedded life.

Desperado's last Stand in Mine

Bingham, Utah, Dec. 1.—Snudges were lighted early to-day in Utah Apex Mine where Ralph Lopez, desperado, is making his last stand. With all the exits to the mine except that of the Andy Tunnel bratticed and sealed with mud, and with poisonous gas floating back into the depths of the workings, it was expected that the fugitive would make a break for liberty to-day.

A large amount of dynamite is stored in the mine, and knowing Lopez could easily blow out one of the bulkheads, the seven sheriffs early to-day stationed a dozen deputies at each of the fifteen tunnel mouths with orders to shoot him on sight. The ten thousand inhabitants of this canyon-walled mining town, deep in drifts of snow, were waiting in tense excitement for the result of the man hunt that already has cost six lives.

Took Refuge in Mine. On November 21 Lopez killed a Mexican miner and later in the day killed the chief of police, and two detectives who pursued him. After a chase through several counties he backtracked to Bingham and took refuge in the mine, where he killed two more deputies last Saturday.

Healthy and Unheal by Lighting

Gas, it may be said, vitiates the atmosphere. True. But it also helps to purify it. Its purifying power is greater than its vitiating power. Electricity does not viliate, nor does it purify. Hear what three eminent men have said:—

Much evidence has lately been adduced to show that gas is more useful than the electric light in promoting efficient ventilation of air. It is for this reason, amongst other reasons, that gas is being frequently substituted for the electric light. The best example is, perhaps, the Society of Medical Officers of Health, which has recently installed gas on its premises, after experience with the electric light.—Dr. Jamieson B. Hurry.

He would merely add that no member who had experience of their meeting room under the old conditions could deny the improvement that had taken place since gas had been substituted for the electric light and the new system of heating and ventilation had been installed.—Dr. Reginald Dudson, before the Society of Medical Officers of Health.

I have in my mind's eye, at the moment, a hall which, in the old days, was lighted by gas, and in which a large audience could, with comfort, sit through an hour's lecture, or with pleasure through a three hours' dinner, but which with the march of civilization, had its illumination changed from gas to electricity, the latter being employed with all the latest refinements to effect the lighting under the best conditions, with the result that any large gathering within its walls leads to a state little short of asphyxiation.—Vivian B. Lewes, Professor of Chemistry at the Royal Naval College, Greenwich.—nov8,tf

Eat Meal for 12 on Wager; Dying.

Boulder, Dec. 2.—As a result of attempting to win a ten dollar wager by devouring a dinner sufficiently large to feed a family of twelve, J. T. Harris lies at his home in a semi-conscious condition. The attending physician declares it will take twenty four hours to determine the outcome of Mr. Harris's illness.

With L. N. Ferguson, Mr. Harris last Monday made a ten dollar wager that he could eat, at a sitting of two and a half hours one 15-pound turkey with oyster dressing, three loaves of bread, six large sweet potatoes, six cups of coffee, two bunches of celery, four dishes of cranberry sauce, one glass of mint jelly, six bananas with cream, one pound of butter, one order of squash, two mince pies and two dishes of plum pudding with brandy sauce.

Mr. Harris began his meal at six o'clock last evening and had successfully reached the mince pies when he collapsed and fell to the floor in a faint.

Girl's Nerves Fully Restored

Was Never Able to Obtain Lasting Benefit Until Dr. Chase's Nerve Food Was Used. Too many girls grow up with weak, anaemic bodies and exhausted nervous systems. Indoor life and too much application in school are sometimes the cause. The blood needs enriching and the nerves need strengthening by such treatment as Dr. Chase's Nerve Food. This food cure is doing wonders for many thousands of girls whose parents had almost despaired of their ever developing into strong, healthy women.

Mrs. J. Bagnall, 295 Woodville avenue, Toronto, writes: "My daughter suffered from nervousness since childhood, and any medicine she tried did not do any lasting good. We read in the papers about Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and my daughter used it with wonderful results. This treatment has built up her system and so strengthened the nerves that she feels like another girl." Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, 50 cents a box, 6 for $2.50, all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Boys' and Men's OVERCOATS

JACKMAN THE TAILORS.

20 p.c. Reductions and Over for Spot Cash.

This season is a record one with us in our Overcoat Department. Why? Because we never had such fashionable styles or good values. They are pronounced by competent judges to be the finest lot of high grade Overcoats ever shown in this city.

But we want to clear them out before Stock-taking. We find that it pays us better to take off twenty per cent. at the end of the season than to carry them on for another year, because they depreciate in value and get out of style.

Just a few prices to illustrate the Bargains that we are offering in Boys' and Men's Overcoats.

Boys' Overcoats, D.B. Reg. $6.00, reduced to . . . $3.97
