GILLETT'S LYE EATS DIRT

Aubrey's Revenge.

CHAPTER XIX.

"And an ugly duckling in the bargain," supplemented Mrs. Snapdragon.

"Precisely," laughed her mistress, "and she turns out to be a beauty, with the manners and accomplishments of a princess. Well, it is certainly delightful. I have quite fallen in love with the dear child. Poor Aubrey is green with jealousy."

The Snapdragon's yellow eyes gleamed as she replied: "I told Miss Aubrey a while ago that her nose was out of joint now, and she threatened to strike me with her silver hairbrush. She's got a temper as sweet as honey, Miss Aubrey has."

"What a spiteful creature you are, Snapdragon! You're like a wasp, ready to sting whenever you get a chance. Hand me my bon-bon box, and get me something nice and batho my head; it has ached dreadfully for the last hour. The Vancouver will be here for dinner, and I shall look a fright—I always do when I've had a headache."

The woman put aside the fine old lace she was mending, and, taking a silver box from the mantel, set it before her mistress.

"I've never heard that sugarplums were good for headache, ma'am," she remarked sentimentally.

"Neither have I," said the lady. "Don't be snappish, Snapdragon. I wouldn't touch a morsel of sweet stuff for the universe, but it is time these precious pets had their lunch. Here Snip, here Snap, wake up and get something nice."

At the sound of the lady's voice there was a sudden movement amid the silken cushions, on which her daintily slipped feet rested, and simultaneously two fluffy heads, which might have been mistaken for balls of woolen yarn but for the tiny pink noses and diamond-bright eyes that gave them life and expression, popped up, and a succession of shrill barks followed.

"Oh, you darlings!" cried their mistress delightedly, and, gathering the two little animals up in her arms, she clasped them to her bosom and covered their woolly little bodies with kisses.

Snip and Snap were selfish little beasts, however, and did not seem to appreciate the devotion of their mistress in the least. They squirmed and snarled, snapping at the lady's jeweled hands and at each other, and, as a last resort, broke forth into pitious whining.

"Hush!" cried the Snapdragon, in a temper. "Hush this instant, you pampered little wretches. This is a fine way to cure your headache, ma'am, I must say. Get out, you pests!"

"No, no; let the little loves alone, Snapdragon," cried the mistress. "You shan't scold them like that. Here, Snip, here, Shap, sit up and beg, and you shall have your bon-bons."

Thus admonished, the two little dogs sprang on the table, and, sitting up on their hind legs, held up their forepaws beseechingly, giving utterance to queer little entreating sounds.

"Hear the darlings beg!" cried the lady. "They're the cleverest little dears in the world, aren't they, Snapdragon?"

"They're a bit too clever," the woman replied; "look, ma'am, they're putting their noses in the bonbon box."

"Well, what if they are? Their dear little noses are nice. Help yourselves, doggies."

The little beasts took a sugarplum apiece, and leaping down, went scurrying across the room, the silver bells about their woolly necks jingling furiously.

Mrs. van Cortlandt clapped her hands to her head.

"No wonder your head aches, ma'am," said her attendant, approaching with a gold-stoppered flask in her hand, "when you have such a din as that about your ears. Let me put out the dogs?"

"No, no, let them alone. I'd rather suffer than have my precious little pets banished; they're all I have to love in the world."

"You forget that you've got a daughter now, ma'am."

"No, I don't, but hold your tongue, Snapdragon, and do something for my poor head."

The woman shrugged her shoulders and her yellow eyes gleamed as she went softly behind her mistress' chair and began to take down her hair.

It was beautiful hair, soft and abundant, and of that peculiar tint of gray so becoming to a woman of middle age.

Mrs. van Cortlandt was proud of her hair, prouder than she had ever been in her youthful days, when it was as black as a raven's wing.

"Ah-h, how soothing that is," she sighed, as the woman bathed her temples with a cool, evaporant, fragrant liquid. "There is magic in the tips of your fingers, my good Snapdragon."

"And a sting on the tip of my tongue, ma'am," added the woman, with a shrug.

"Precisely," laughed her mistress. "But I don't object to that; I rather like a sharp-tongued woman. Am I looking dreadfully old to-day, Snapdragon?"

"You've neglected your massage treatment of late, and the crow's-feet under your eyes are a trifle more noticeable than usual; but I can remedy that. I suppose you want to look your best to-night?"

"My very best, Snapdragon."

"Is it to be a large dinner party, ma'am?"

"Oh, no, not more than a dozen, and a box party afterward, but the Vancouver will be here—"

"And you wish to impress them, ma'am?"

"Snapdragon, you're a treasure. You divine my wishes before they take shape in my own mind. I wish to impress, overwhelm, overawe those pretentious people, and I look to you to manage it. Now, my good Snapdragon, tell me what I shall wear?"

"Your black velvet, of course, ma'am."

"And my diamonds?"

The Snapdragon shook her head.

How To Make the Quickest, Simplest Cough Remedy

Much Better than the Ready-Made Kind and You Save $2. Fully Guaranteed

This home-made cough syrup is now used in more homes than any other cough remedy. Its promptness, ease and certainty in conquering distressing coughs, chest and throat colds is really remarkable. You can actually feel it take hold. A day's use will usually overcome the ordinary cough—relieves even whooping cough quickly. Splendid, too, for bronchitis, spasmodic croup, bronchial asthma and winter coughs.

Get from any druggist 2½ ounces of Pinex (50 cents worth), pour it into a 16-ounce bottle and fill the bottle with plain granulated sugar syrup. This gives you, at a cost of only 54 cents, 16 ounces of better cough syrup than you could buy for $2.00. Takes but a few minutes to prepare. Full directions with Pinex.

Pinex is a most valuable concentrated compound of genuine Norway pine extract, rich in quaiacol, which is so healing to the membranes.

To avoid disappointment, be sure and get your druggist for 2½ ounces Pinex, "I don't accept anything else."

A guarantee of absolute satisfaction. Money promptly refunded, goes with its preparation. The Pinex Co., Toronto, Ont.

with emphasis.

"Not for the world, ma'am."

"Not wear my diamonds?" cried Mrs. van Cortlandt, aghast. "Why, they cost—"

"Yes, ma'am, I know, and they'll be just the thing for your ball, but you mustn't wear a jewel for dinner but your rings and the diamond aigrette in your hair."

"Well, well!" sighed the lady, "I had set my heart on showing off my diamonds. You'll be telling me presently that my daughter shan't wear the rubies I bought for her yesterday, the very finest ever seen in New York."

Snapdragon threw up her hands and laughed shrilly.

"Why, of course she mustn't dream of wearing them!" she cried. "Fancy a slip of a girl, not yet out of her teens, wearing rubies at a quiet dinner! I'll tell you what Miss van Cortlandt will wear, ma'am: that rose-tinted mouseline de soie, with lace, and pink roses, and not a single jewel but the necklace of pearls you gave her this morning."

"A mere trifle," said the lady. "that only cost a few hundred. Great heavens, Snapdragon, what a poky old Puritan you are, to be sure."

"Better be a poky old Puritan, ma'am, than an overdressed parvenue," retorted the woman. "But you are trying yourself out with all this useless talk. If I'm to manage matters to-night, you must let me have my own way about it, ma'am."

CHAPTER XX.

Kelpie had been at Van Cortlandt's place just one week, but she had not quite decided whether she preferred the life of a grand lady or not. In some respects it pleased her immensely, in others she found it dreadfully tiresome.

"If I only had wings like a dove, wouldn't I go fluttering back to the old lighthouse through all this whirling white snow," she was saying to herself as she stood at the window of her luxuriously appointed room, looking out at the wild November storm.

"I can fancy how the sea will roar and toss, and how lonesome it will be up in the old watch room, and I'm sure daddy and Tom would be glad to see me."

"I haven't made up my mind yet whether I like this sort of life or not. Lounging around in this aimless fashion, with nothing to do but eat and sleep, and letting other people wait on you, seems awfully stupid. Mrs. van Cortlandt gave me orders at lunch to go to my room and take a nap, so I might be fresh and wide awake for her dinner party to-night, but sleep is quite out of the question. I've never been used to taking naps. I feel dreadfully dull and stupid from want of exercise; if I were at the dear old tower I should skip down and take a sharp little row and be all right."

"A run down that quiet-looking street below would quite set me on my feet," she went on, pressing her face against the glass, and looking longingly down at the whirling snow. "I wonder what my lady mother would say if I should attempt it? It would be heavenly to escape from this hot, stuffy room, if only for a moment. The Snapdragon would find it out, of course. She has eyes in the back of her head, but they could not do worse than send me back to daddy and Tom, and I shouldn't be heartbroken."

"Let's see," she continued, consulting the jeweled watch in her girdle, "three o'clock, and the dressing bell won't ring till five; two endless hours. I'll do it; a run in the fresh air will give me an appetite for that wonderful dinner party I've heard so much about."

"Mrs. van Cortlandt's dreadfully afraid I shan't know how to behave myself," she went on, her bright eyes dancing. "I should like to shock her ladyship by putting my knife in my mouth, or pouring my coffee in the saucer. It's wicked, I know, but she isn't my mother, and there's no use in her pretending to be. I'm dear old daddy's granddaughter, and all the powers under the sun can't make me believe otherwise."

Kelpie's lips quivered and her eyes filled with tears, but she winked them away, and, going into an adjoining room, opened the door of a huge wardrobe and glanced over its contents. There were gloves of every description, from tailor-made suits to fluffly, filmy gauzes that looked like summer mist, all provided by Mrs. van Cortlandt's lavish hand.

"She is very good to me, and I ought to be grateful," thought Kelpie, "but I can't believe she's my mother, all the same."

"Ah, this is just the thing," she said, and taking down a fur-lined storm cloak, she enveloped herself from head to foot, pulling the close-fitting hood over her head. "It will be no end of a lark, as Tom would say."

She left the room with a light step, closed the door behind her, and went boldly down the front stairs, but not through the gorgeous vestibule that led to the street door, lest the stately footman should be on guard.

Trembling with excitement, she turned toward the music room, and made her way out by a side door leading through a small courtyard into the very street she had looked down upon with such wistful longing.

A stiff wind was whirling the fast-falling snow in every direction, and for an instant Kelpie almost lost her breath. But she rallied speedily and went on at a brisk pace. She had been longing for freedom for days, and she found the strong, fresh wind and the cold touch of the snow-flakes delightful.

It reminded her of a storm at sea, when she used to go out on the parapet and the wild winds tossed her hair and the white foam beat in her face.

NOTABLE MIANUS RECORD.

One short year ago the name of MIANUS was unknown to more than 25 fishermen in Newfoundland. Since then hundreds of Mianus Oil Engines have been purchased by our fishermen, everyone of whom testify to their reliability, economy and guaranteed rated horse power.

To-day the one ambition of thousands of fishermen is to possess a Mianus Oil Engine.

The fishermen of Petty Harbor are as progressive and independent as any in the Island, and they are familiar with all makes of engines on this market.

In February of last year we sold the first Mianus in Petty Harbor, and before the close of the fishing season 23 Mianus Oil Engines had been purchased by the men of that Harbor.

For the coming Season we have orders for a large number for Spring delivery.

Here is what the Petty Harbor fishermen say of MIANUS:—

"We, the undersigned wish to say that we have used Mianus Kerosene Engines during the past Summer, and we found them to be far superior to any of the other makes used in this Harbor. They are good power and we can recommend them to fishermen wanting a reliable and economical Kerosene Engine."

Nearly all the leading Merchants supplied Mianus Oil Engines to their fishermen last year, which resulted to their mutual advantage.

If you intend purchasing an engine through a Merchant this year, insist on getting a Mianus Oil Engine, it will benefit him as well as you. Your Merchant may recommend another make of engine, but you know there is no other just as good as MIANUS.

The fisherman who buys an engine without first investigating the advantages of Mianus, must have money to burn.

The cost of operating some of the so-called Kerosene engines is so great that it amounts to what should be the profit on an average voyage.

The cost of operating a Mianus Oil Engine is so little, the poorest fisherman cannot afford to buy any other make.

Mianus Oil Engines are built specially to operate on low grade Kerosene, and are guaranteed to do so or your money back. That is the way we back up our claims.

Our travellers are thoroughly competent engine experts, and can undertake any installation from the smallest fishing boat to the largest Schooner, and their services are at your disposal.

PUTTING THE TRESSES IN GOOD CONDITION.

There is a season of the year when the hair begins to fall out in the most incomprehensible way. Combfuls of one's cherished tresses leave the head at every doing up of the hair in the morning, and the love locks about the forehead and temples that should fluff out becomingly under the hot brim, have a distressing way of falling in limp wisps an hour or two after being carefully waved.

Even the most luxuriant head of hair will begin to show signs of deterioration by the middle of March, the evidence being lack of lustre and "spring", the accumulation of oil and dandruff—according to the tendency towards one or the other naturally possessed by the scalp—and the coming out of the hair when combed or brushed.

The woman who values her crown of glory will do well, therefore, to give her hair special attention at this season, and it is surprising how readily the average head responds to a little judicious treatment. Massage of the scalp is the first requisite when the hair falls out and the use of a good tonic will help wonderfully. Have a thorough professional massage once a week and every night massage the scalp gently with the finger tips and a little of the tonic our hairdresser recommends.

Once in two weeks have the ends of the hair singed until you have had three treatments. Singeing is better than clipping. After one singeing and a week of massage and tonic treatment the hair should stop falling out and should begin to look more healthy and alive—more springy in its growth like the hair of children or young people. After a fortnight small hairs will begin to show, sprouting around the forehead and the partings.

Gathered effects are much seen of simple afternoon dresses of silk or cotton.

Grief Turned to Joy.

Yesterday the home of Mrs. Wheeler, Torbay Road, which has been the scene of mourning and sorrow since the loss of the Clan MacNaughton, was suddenly changed into one of joy. Mrs. Wheeler had been mourning the loss of her son Philip, who was believed to have been on the missing ship, when a letter from her boy came yesterday announcing the joyful news that he was quite safe. The following is his letter:

F. WARD,
Fitzkerley Hospital, Liverpool,
February 26th.

My Dearest Mother,—Just a few lines hoping you are keeping quite well, as it leaves me at present. Dear Mother, I am just writing to let you know I came off the Clan MacNaughton before she went down, and I am quite safe. I am in this hospital with pneumonia, but I am glad to tell you I have got over the worst of it and I am progressing favorably, and hope to be out soon. So I have no more to say at present. Hoping to hear from you soon, I remain,
Your loving son,
PHILIP.

P.S.—Please mother remember me to all at home.

Another letter was received from Sister Ryder of the Hospital, who writes as follows:

WARD F.,
1st Western General Hospital,
Fitzkerley, March 1st, 1915.

Dear Mrs. Wheeler,—I do not know if your son Philip has written to you since he has been in this Hospital, but seeing his name amongst the names of those brave men missing from H.M.S. Clan MacNaughton, I thought perhaps you would be relieved to hear he has been in this hospital since the 20th of January. He has been very ill with typhoid fever, but is now doing very well, and we hope that he will soon be up and about again.
Yours sincerely,
(Sister) H. RYDER.

The gladness which these rays of heavenly sunshine brought to that humble dwelling on the Torbay Road yesterday, can better be imagined than described. The story of Philip Wheeler's escape is a remarkable one. He was first drafted for the ill-fated Viking, but was taken ill and had to remain ashore. Later he joined the Clan MacNaughton and the rest of his story is told in the letter to his mother. Mrs. Wheeler is a happy woman to-day but mingled with her happiness is a tender sympathy for those mothers who are still left to weep for the brave sons they have given in the service of the Empire.

Fish Prices High.

The following came by yesterday's mail to the Board of Trade from Lind & Conto at Oporto: "Since we last wrote, there has been some improvement in the demand, but the high prices necessitated by the low exchange, prevent free consumption. At the present prices, codfish is beyond the reach of the poorer classes. It were not for the low exchange, the prices now being obtained here would be fully equal to the returns from Spain and Italy. In fact the prices were never better at such a high level as now."

BULLETS MEET IN RIFLE BARREL.

A German soldier gives a remarkable account of a peculiar shot. "From one of the trenches," he says, "I aimed at my adversary. At a distance of about seventy yards the outline of a cap offered a remarkably good aim. I pointed my rifle, and was already sure of success. I was just pulling the trigger. The aim was clear; my bullet could not fail. Suddenly I staggered back, and when I recovered I found my rifle damaged at the lock and the chamber. I had a very ugly wound in the forehead. I examined my rifle, and found in the barrel a French and a German bullet both flattened. What had happened was this: A French bullet had entered my rifle at the muzzle, had followed the course of the barrel, had caused the explosion of my cartridge and the butt of my rifle, and thus had wounded me."

On Monday next, as will be seen by our advertising columns, Rev. J. P. Cox, S.J., will deliver a lecture in the Star (Rossley) Theatre on "A Jesuit in the Making." We are informed by gentlemen who have heard Fr. This particular subject, we understand, will include some of the many experiences met by the revered gentleman himself in pursuing his chosen vocation, and as must be well known, a man who must needs travel so much and meet so many strange people, has necessarily a large number of experiences and incidents in his career from which to draw on an occasion like this. A large number of new opera chairs, just installed by Mr. Rossley, are reserved at the Atlantic Bookstore and will be on sale on Wednesday morning. We predict a full house.

Fall of Przemyśl.

The successful siege and reduction of the fortress of Przemyśl is the most notable achievement of the Russians during the war. It ranks higher in importance than their capture of Lemberg, on September 4th, when after a slaughter of some ten thousand or more Austrians they captured that fortress with its 200 guns and some ten thousand prisoners. Twenty days later the Russians succeeded in capturing Jaroslavl and in isolating Przemyśl. For the last six months they have held on to it, in spite of the most strenuous efforts of the Austrians and Hungarians, and later of the Germans, Austrians and Hungarians to cause a diversion in Bukovina and repeated attempts to relieve it. The Austrians were able to hold out mainly by the artillery of the fortress being superior to that of the Russians, and the Hungarians themselves out to keep it isolated and to reduce it by starvation. Last week three sorties were made by the garrison to cut their way out. Finally they failed and the fortress was given back. The Russian authorities were confident that the end was near and the end came by surrender and a great slaughter by a final assault was obtained. Official Russian account says that 300 officers and 50,000 men surrendered, and that some 400 guns fell into the hands of the Russians. By the fall the whole central portion of Galicia comes under the dominion of the Russians and an army of 75,000 Russians who were besieging the fortress can be moved west against Cracow. Cracow is the chief Austrian fortress in Western Galicia and is the key to the attack on Silesia and the valley of the Oder, which is the most practicable way into the heart of Prussia, as by this road the Russian army can avoid the great Prussian fortress which dominates the Prussian frontier.

The Royal Colonial Institute and the War.

We thank Mr. Harry E. Brittain, Chairman of the Overseas Committee of the Institute for a copy of an address on the Institute and the War. Mr. Brittain was the English Journalist who managed so successfully the tour of the Overseas Journalists to Great Britain in 1909, and since the commencement of the war he has devoted his great talents to organizing efforts of the Overseas members to aid the mother country in the great struggle. In his address he tells the story of what the Institute has been doing in this respect during the past seven months. It includes Overseas nursing and ambulance courses and aids to recruiting. A feature of the latter effort has been the providing 20,000 recruits of special trades for Kitchener's army, the bringing of recruits from Argentina, Guatemala and elsewhere. Another feature has been the supplying of newspapers, and magazines for sailors of the Grand Fleet, games and cards for the soldiers in the trenches, and papers and books for Overseas contingents. He also makes reference to the excellent papers issued in the War Numbers of the Institute Magazine the "United Empire" and tells of the work done by the lecturers of the Institute, and the efforts made to promote and consolidate commerce with the Empire.

Captain of the Mongolian Killed.

(Halifax Chronicle, March 15.) Capt. J. W. Hatherly of the Allan liner Mongolian was killed yesterday morning by a falling hatch beam. The Mongolian was undergoing repairs in the dry dock. About 9.40 yesterday morning Capt. Hatherly was in the hold of his ship examining the damage done her recently by ice. Two men were hauling a hose pipe up No. 2 hatch. The pipe caught on one of the heavy wooden cross-beams. The beam was jolted out of its socket and fell. He lived only twenty minutes, dying of a compound fracture of the skull. The body was removed to Snow's mortuary. Capt. Hatherly has been master of the Mongolian for two years and was well known in Halifax. He was forty-eight years of age and left a wife and three small children at home in Glasgow.

MINARD'S LIMENT CURES DIPHTHERIA.

BELGIUM MUST BE FREED! And Prussian Militarism Broken.

An Important Declaration by Sir Edward Grey.

LONDON, March 22. "The war might have been avoided by a European conference when and where Germany desired," Foreign Secretary Grey told an audience in London this afternoon. At the time he was acting as chairman of a gathering which was listening to a lecture on strategy of the war. Continuing along this line, the Foreign Secretary said: "Germany, from her experience in the Balkan conference, knew she could count on our goodwill, and that we were ready to do what we could for her. We now know that Germany had prepared for war, and only those who have planned for war can prepare for it." Amid loud cheers, Sir Edward added: "This is the fourth time within living memory that Prussia has made war upon Europe, and we are determined it shall be her last. The expenditure of hundreds of millions of money and the loss of millions of lives might have been avoided by a conference of European Powers held in London or at the Hague, or wherever and in whatever form Germany would have consented to hold it. It would have been easier to have settled the dispute between Austria-Hungary and Serbia, which Germany made the occasion for this war, than it was to get successfully through the Balkan crisis two years ago. In recent years, the Foreign Secretary went on to say, we have given Germany every assurance that any aggressive movement upon her part would receive no support from us. We withheld from her only one thing, the unconditional promise to stand aside, however aggressive Germany herself might be to her neighbor. Last July, before the outbreak of war, France, Italy and Russia were ready to accept a conference, but Germany refused every suggestion made for settling the dispute in this way, and on her must rest now and for all time the appalling responsibility of having plunged Europe into this war. Asking what is the issue for which we are fighting, Sir Edward proceeded as follows: "In due time peace will be put forward by the Allies. One essential condition must be the restoration to Belgium of her independent national life and the free possession of her territory. The great issue is this, we wish the nations of Europe to be free to live their independent lives, working out their own form of Government, whether they be great states or smaller states. That is our ideal. The German ideal is that the Germans are a superior people to whom all things are lawful, and against whom resistance is unlawful and must be put down; that they must establish domination over the nations of this Continent. After the war, we and other nations must be free to live without the interference of a superior power, without the clang of armor and swords continually rattling in scabbard, heaven continually invoked, and without our policy being dictated by military domination of Prussia. We claim for ourselves, and together with our allies we will secure, that right to live and preserve our national existence free in the shadow of Prussian supremacy, but in the light of equal liberty.

ance was only a question of days. War Office advices report that Austrian Generals were taken and more than 300 officers and 50,000 men. The moral effect of the capture of Ruzsica is expected to be very great, awakening hopes that this will be a turning point in the Galician campaign.

1.30 P.M. NOTHING DOING IN DARDANELLES.

PARIS, To-day. A gale blew through the Dardanelles Straits yesterday and the allied warships did not leave their anchorage, says a Havas despatch from Athens. The morale of the crews of the vessels of the French and British fleets is said to be excellent. Notwithstanding their losses they are eager to Havas again. The allied batteries have been posted along the Straits and German howitzers have been mounted on rails, so that they can be moved quickly to threatened points. This is supposed to explain the firing from certain forts, such as Kum Kale, which were supposed to have been destroyed.

SIR JOHN FRENCH SAYS IT WON'T BE A LONG WAR.

PARIS, To-day. Ammunition, nothing but ammunition. That is the essential problem of the war, hence the unexpected news that Field Marshal French, according to Havas Agency correspondent John Gately, says in an interview with a correspondent. "Everyone needs plenty of ammunition; but the Germans need it more than we do. I have had a feeling for some time past that they were sparing of their shells; they do not squander them as at the beginning; they are recognizing this because they lack nitrates necessary for manufacturing of explosives, which is making itself felt in Germany. Neither is the morale of their troops the same, as one gets from them an impression of fatigue and lassitude. They had all based their calculations on a sudden, smashing victory. That plan failed, and the state of mind of their troops has suffered in consequence. Economic difficulties in the interior of the German Empire are daily becoming more serious. No doubt, the Germans are still far from famine; but they are manifestly hampered in obtaining their food supply, and that is a great deal. I DO NOT BELIEVE IT WILL BE A LONG WAR! Spring promises well for the Allies. We are convinced, and all of those here believe that a decisive and definite victory awaits us at the end of all these hard months of war."

Obituary.

There passed peacefully away on the morning of the 18th inst., one of Fox Harbor's pioneer planters in the person of Mr. Peter Healey. Deceased although feeling unwell for some time past, was able to be about his premises until the day previous to his death, hence the unexpected break in the home circle at "Woodbine," over which he presided with true fatherly love and solicitude, came as a great shock. Kind, generous and warm-hearted, he was ever and always ready to aid the poor and the distressed, to liberally contribute to subscriptions for worthy purposes and extend that genial hospitality one of his chief characteristics to the stranger in a strange place. Possessing all through life an indomitable energy and perseverance, capable of overcoming obstacles, apparently insurmountable, he climbed the ladder of success until he attained the position of independence and affluence he has enjoyed so many years. A good, true, self-made man—whose honesty, integrity and principle was above and beyond doubt—a many man, who although nearing his 70th milestone this world would ill afford to lose. In the hearts of those who knew Mr. Healey best, the memory of his many genuine qualities will linger long. The writer wishes to be reckoned amongst the many who sincerely and deeply sympathize with his widow and family in their bereavement.

18th Century Concert.

The amount realized at the 18th Century Concert was Three hundred and Fifty-six Dollars, including a generous donation of ten dollars from His Excellency, the Governor. After the expenses amounting to several dollars were paid, the following sums were distributed: Eighty Dollars to Rev. Canon White, Eighty Dollars to Rev. Fr. MacDermott, Eighty Dollars to Rev. D. Henneoon for the poor of the different parishes, and the remainder in cases of unusual distress. Mrs. Colville wishes to thank all those who assisted in the entertainment, Mrs. Keegan for undertaking the business management, Miss Leahy Johnson for hand painted programmes, the United States Picture and Portrait Co. for their generosity in lending furniture, Miss Carbery and Miss May Furlong who provided many of the stage decorations and the press for much courtesy and kindness.

There is a new turban for the young girl; it is made of white muslin and it has a corded brim, which fits the head closely. The crown is slightly tam-shalater in shape. There is a stray tassel under the chin. The only trimming is a bunch of daisies on the left side.

It is a good idea to have mustard and flour already prepared and kept in the medicine closet, then in case of hoarseness and cold, water may be added and a plaster made without having to go to the kitchen to hunt for the mustard box.

Lister to give each a quarter pound of tobacco. They are being given by the previous to this knowledge, crying need with the 1911, had the who in great degree, as the pay day for some speech thanking the Mongolian's past by Mr. Lumsden and Armourer Luxon. Some of them had wanted to go so we told them to do so. They did not do a series of games which were held for "the boys" right out of the Cash Prizes. Tobacco Confectionery. ### Our Boys on the Scandinavian.

R. M. S. Scandinavian,
March 8th, 1915.

Dear Sir—We arrived in Halifax by the Mongolian the afternoon of Sunday week past, by which time the water had penetrated to the bunkers, and the trimmers were standing at foot deep in it.

We left again Sunday, amidst cheers and singing given by and for the Naval Reservists. Last night we sighted the Bull and Calif Light and expect to be in Liverpool early tomorrow morning.

Monday the Reservists had boat drill and were apportioned off to the various boats. This morning they had another and some of the boats were swung free to be ready in case of any necessity.

We have had very good weather and the "Calypos" have, I think, enjoyed their trip. They have better quarters here than on board the Mongolian. Shortly after leaving, as a token of appreciation of their work, those passengers transferred from the Mongolian, numbering twelve, started a tobacco fund amongst themselves for them. This was very generously headed by our worthy Chairman Mr. Andrew Lumsden and we were able to give each of the men a quarter pound of tobacco, a dozen cigarettes and matches. Those of us who had been giving them cigarettes previous to this knew tobacco was a crying need with them, and none of them had the wherewithal to any great degree, as they hadn't had a pay day for some time. A short speech thanking them on behalf of the Mongolian's passengers was made by Mr. Lumsden and responded to by Armourer Luxon. Some of the Canadians wanted to come into this, so we took them to start one on their own. They did not do this but in the series of games which had been suggested for "the boys," they took the matter right out of our hands and put up the prizes, which consisted of Cash Prizes, Tobacco, Cigarettes and Confectionery.

I enclose the programme and a list of prize winners, as I think this may be interesting to the relatives and friends of these boys.

The boys themselves took great interest and got considerable amusement out of the games, and all the prizes were, I think, very acceptable. There was great enthusiasm amongst the spectators. Of these gentlemen on the committee Messrs. Bremner and Ewing were very generous in dealing out cigarettes daily, and between one thing and another they have been fairly well off for smokers.

This bunch is a fine lot of chaps and with just a little training they will more than hold their own with any of their petty officers. Yeo, Gill and Luxon, who have been kept busy with one thing and another all the time, also give them the highest praise as being men of a very good class.

I enclose a copy of an address presented to their Commanding Officer, Capt. A. Goodridge, by the passengers of the Mongolian, as a small appreciation of his services. He was on the job early and late.

Personally I may say the three petty officers mentioned above worked hard, and looked after their men well, and they, like the men themselves, are highly thought of by all the passengers of the Scandinavian.

As I finish this we are in close touch with several of the English shore lights and we are running with all port holes covered and without any ship's lights. It is a clear night. Understand three German submarines have been sunk since we left Halifax, and trust to hear of three or more extra on arrival.

Yours truly,
K. M. BLAIR.

Address

To Captain Alan Goodridge, A. D. C.,
St. John's, Nfld.

We, the undersigned passengers of the S. S. Mongolian, on arrival in port and bearing in mind our experiences of the voyage cannot but feel an opportunity to pass without expressing our appreciation to you, the officers and the men of the Naval Reserve, under your command for the excellent manner and cheery way in which you all helped in a time of such uncertainty.

We have much gratification in noticing the esteem in which you are held by the men and the officers alike, and to see in consequence the quickness and willingness of their obedience to all orders.

We fully believe that it was due to the untiring efforts of you and your command that the S. S. Mongolian finally reached Halifax and possibly owe our lives to the ceaseless work of the Reservists on the pumps by which the inflow of water was held in check and your supervision of this work along with your three officers: Luxon, Yeo and Gill.

We know the men of Newfoundland will always be ready to help under similar conditions should they arise.

We wish them all a safe return to their homes crowned with victory.

Signed—A. K. Lumsden, Beatrice S. Grieve, Jesse Dunbar, Frank Bateman, Clare Bateman, J. R. Randall, Edie B. Randall, Frank Dawes, P. C. Mars, K. M. Blair, John Dunbar, Wm. Pollock, William H. Frazier, L. J. Richard, James Richard.

CONSCIENCE.

BY GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old Siwash."

Conscience is a small, dark, voice which speaks to us from within as we are about to sin in perfect safety, and causes us to jump several feet.

Every man has a conscience, but some have it under better control than others. Some men cannot let a street-car conductor overlook their fare without suffering from toothache of the soul; while other men can steal a national bank and order their consciences to prepare a statement proving that it was done for the good of the depositories who might otherwise spend their money for booze.

Conscience has no dimensions or muscles and cannot seize its owner by the neck and compel him to obey. It acts more like an 85-pound wife who has to control a 198-pound husband. It keeps bringing a question up again and again, after it has been settled, with a gentle, timid insistence.

After a man's conscience has waked him up at 3 a.m. for 1,789 nights hand running to discuss a little matter of right and wrong, he would give all his earthly possessions to be able to talk back with an axe.

However, in this respect, conscience has a vast advantage over the small, pale woman. One cannot kill it all at once.

If a man obeys his conscience to a reasonable extent, he can live an upright life and win golden opinions after he is dead. However, no man should attempt to enter the arena of politics and finance unless he is able to back his conscience into a corner and throw a mattress over it when necessary. Conscience has spoiled more political and financial deals than the fool friend who rushes in with a new story just as a sale is being concluded.

However, conscience is as easily fooled as the average voter. No man who is a good debater need be afraid of his conscience. He can sail easily along converting it into an enthusiastic supporter of everything from perjury to bribery, and when the grand jury finally indicts him, his conscience will be so indignant that it will list him as a martyr and go off to argue with the heartless tyrants who jailed him.

Many a man has travelled prosperously to a prison cell or the depths of infamy leading his conscience along behind him like a dog on a string. This should teach him not to divert conscience from the job for which it was intended. It should be used as a guide, not as an appendage.

Change of Coastal Steamers.

The Bowring coaster Prospero, which is in better condition than ever since she came off dry dock, is now coaling at the Southside, after which she will haul over to this side and get ready to replace the Portia for a trip or two on the Western route, the latter steamer laying up for her annual overhauling. Owing to the ice on the coast the Portia is not expected back for at least a week yet.

Advantages of the New Furness Line Pier.

For the first time since the erection of the new mammoth pier and steel shed, two of the Furness Withy Line steamers, Durango and Tabasco, are berthed together, unloading their freight cargoes and with as much despatch as if only one steamer was there. Both ships will get away again sometime this evening, the Tabasco for Halifax and the Durango for Liverpool. The latter ship is taking a small outward cargo of fish and 23 stranded Chinese seamen will take passage. The Furness Liner Roanoke will leave Liverpool on Thursday for here.

Christianity and the War

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

In my mail the other morning I received a letter from a woman who is grieved and bewildered at the spectacle of the world's arms. She wants to know if I believe that, as some people maintain, Christians and Christians failed us in a terrible crisis. To her and to my other readers I want to go on record as answering most emphatically "No!"

Listen. A young Japanese was told the story of Christ. He listened eagerly. The sublime humility, the supreme self-sacrifice stirred his imagination. He began to understand Christianity and what it meant.

The Japanese and the Missionary Teacher.

"I should like to be a Christian," he said, "because Christians have such splendid ethics."

He thought quite naturally that Christians patterned themselves and their lives in accordance with the teachings of Christ. To have such high "ethics" seemed to him better than holding to the faith of his fathers. An so, eager to be with these Christians and to live as they did, he enrolled in the missionary school.

One morning the superintendent and one of the teachers had an argument over methods. Unfortunately both came close to losing their tempers. The Japanese listened in pained amazement. Finally he went to the woman who had told him the story of Christ.

"How Can They Be Christians?"

"Hon. Superintendent — is he Christian?" he asked.
"Why of course," he assured.
"Hon. Teacher too?"
"Of course!"

"But," he protested, "how can they be Christians when they are not Christ-like?"

He went away and thought the matter over. Then he returned. "All Christians are not Christ-like they are no different from Jap," he said. "Why should I be Christian?"

The Japanese was not interested in creed nor dogma. He had found in the story of Christ an ideal. He believed that to live up to it, to be a Christian, would be beautiful. But to be a Christian in name and not in spirit, or to find that other Christians were thus, destroyed his belief.

We Who Have Failed Christianity.
In other words it is not Christianity that has failed us, but we that have failed Christianity. The splendid ideal is still there, even the non-converted Japanese could not understand it and be fired by it; it is we who have shut our eyes to the vision.

No, my dear, bewildered reader-friend, it is not Christianity that has failed mankind, but mankind that has failed Christianity.

War and Peace.

W. C. JOHNSON

I talk with Wax, my neighbor, about the boon of peace; the work of gun and sabre, we both agreed, should cease. "There is no sense in fighting, in killing men," Wax said; "all wrongs men should be righting by peaceful means instead; but then the allied nations of peace were tired and sore, and hence these tribulations—they simply honed for gone." And then I preached some sermons, to show that Wax was wrong; "the blame rests with the Germans, with war machine so strong." One word led to another, until we came to blows; and Wax, that man and brother, I smote upon the nose. He climbed upon my shoulders, and loosened seven slats; and then we threw some boulders, old cabbages and cats. The peckers came and choked us and dragged us off to jail, and then the jurist soaked us for quite a bunch of kale. And since that day I'm wiser; I talk of peace no more; I know how King and Kaiser get mad and thirst for eggs. The "banish war" oration looks now like thirty cents; for man is like a nation, and kings are human gents.

WHY HAIR FALLS OUT

Dandruff causes a feverish irritation of the scalp, the hair roots shrink, loosen and then the hair comes out fast. Illustrating his remarks with beautiful colored views. Before and after the lecture, songs of a patriotic nature were sung, and at the close a hearty vote of thanks was tendered by the Hon. W. C. ### Household Notes

When lamp chimneys are washed with soap they are liable to crack. This is not necessary. By holding them in the steam of a boiling kettle for a moment and then rubbing them with a clean cloth, they are easily cleaned. The careful housekeeper should look into her bread box every day as religiously as she goes over the refrigerator, saving the pieces that are suitable for toast and putting the smaller pieces away to dry for bread-crumbs. Delicious steamed oysters are made in the following way: Steam the oysters until they are just heated through and serve them on toast cut in rounds; moisten the toast with the oyster juice and then cover with the oysters. If lemons have become dry, do not throw them away. Put them in a pan of hot water and put it where it will remain at almost the same temperature without boiling for two hours. After that the lemons will be soft and juicy.
