CHAPTER VIII

MISS GLITTERS SPEAKS.

"No, I heard nothing; the man—how ugly and insignificant he looked beside somebody I know—seemed to be talking nonsense. I did not even hear your name—our name—he seemed to gabble out a strange one. And I am your wife!"

"My wedded wife until death doth us part," says Cyril, smoothing the cheek that has all the healthy bloom of a child, and the lovely color of a woman combined.

"Oh," says Edna, making a move, "it is dreadful to think of! To think that I have been married in these shabby clothes—without even a veil—and no bridesmaids, and no breakfast."

"No breakfast!" laughed Cyril, "why, what do you call this?" and he drew a picnic basket from under the carriage seat, and, opening it, displayed a perigod pie, some grapes, peaches and a bottle of sparkling moselle.

Edna clapped her hands. "Oh, I'm so glad, for I am so hungry."

"Bravo," cries Cyril, "who says that the marriage ceremony destroys the appetite? There's a plate and a glass—only one glass."

"Oh, I couldn't drink after you," says Edna, with an arch affectation of over delicacy.

"Then you shall have the glass," laughed Cyril, "and I'll drink out of the bottle!"

Then he spread the wedding breakfast upon the seat opposite him, sat Edna at his side with great ceremoniousness and cut the pie.

They were like two children, for all the world, playing at husband and wife, and no child could have enjoyed the commingling of perigod pie and caresses more than did Edna; only now and then a little startled, questioning look came into her eyes when Cyril drew her to him and called her "his wife"; and no child that ever played at matrimony could ever have been more ignorant of the import of the game.

"And now," said Cyril, who was flushed with happiness, and looked more like a great, happy, handsome boy than ever, "we have the pleasant duty of drinking the bride's health—that's yours, you know," he explained. "Now, I'm supposed to be the friend of the family. Ahem! Ladies and gentlemen, on this occasion—on this occasion—this happy occasion," and Cyril screwed up his face into a quaint resemblance of a fussy old man in the act of speech-making, "it is my duty to propose the health of the bride, Lady More—"

"Lady who?" exclaimed Edna, in the midst of a trill of happy laughter.

"Oh," said Cyril, "Oh," gulping down his wine, and turning rather red after the operation. "Lady anybody—this is supposed to be a fashionable wedding—the health," he went on; "of Mrs. Harold Payne. Ladies and gentlemen, may she live long and live happy; and may her husband give up smoking, and allow her a liberal pocket money."

"Oh," says Edna, "I'm sure they don't say that!"

"No, but they mean it," laughed Cyril.

"But I don't want you to give up smoking," pouted Edna, nestling against him in her favorite fashion, "and I hate pocket money; it is so much trouble to count the change; and then it all goes so quickly; and when one thinks there is quite a lot left one finds it is all gone. No, I want my liberal pocket money."

"What a paragon of a wife!" laughs Cyril; "doesn't object to cigars, and refuses pin money! 'Pon my word, I shall believe I have got a prize in the marriage lottery. Perhaps you'll object to give me a kiss?" and he leaned over, with a passionate light in his dark eyes.

Edna puts up her small white hands, but he laughs at such resistance, and only kisses them to scorn, and it ends in Edna putting up the soft, ripe lips that have known no other kisses than his.

It is four hours from Basle to Lunenburg by express, but it only seems three quarters of an hour to the happy lovers, and it is with a start that Edna hears the porter calling the name of the latter station, and comprehends that the hour has arrived when the confession to Aunt Martha must be made. Cyril hands her to a fly, and they roll over the bridge, the Keuss. Edna has crossed it a score of times, and knows it well; but it all seems in some way altered to-day, and she wonders if Aunt Martha will seem the same. Then they come to the cathedral, and the fly is just about to turn up the road to the left when Edna starts from the shelter of her lover's arms to remember that she has left her china crepe shawl behind her. It was a birthday present from Aunt Martha, and—yes—Cyril understands in a moment, and stops the fly. They shall drive back for it at once—or, better still!

Edna got out and waited on the cathedral steps while he drove back for it?—then they could discharge the fly at the steps, and would so get rid of the chance of any excitement that might attend their appearance at the gates of the pension.

"I shall not be long," said Cyril; "you stay here and wait, darling, and then we will walk up the rest of the way together, and face Aunt Martha." Edna is perfectly willing, takes her place on the worn steps, and the fly departs with Cyril in quest of the lost shawl. There is an old West of England proverb which says that it is a bad omen for the bride and bridegroom to part on their wedding day; but Edna is in happy ignorance of the old saw, and seats herself in the shadow of the old cathedral, content to wait and dream, for it is all a dream as yet—love's young dream, than which there is nothing half so sweet in life! It is difficult to realize that she is married, that she is a wife! She, Edna Weston—Edna Weston no longer!—the wife of the man she thinks the handsomest, the best in all the world! What has she done that she should be so happy, she asks herself, as she looks back upon what she considers her useless life, and then—blushing—she calls up Cyril's face, his words, his warm, heart-thrilling kisses, and covers her face with her hands in despair! Oh, yes, it is too great a happiness—too great!

A footstep caresses her to look up, half dazed, half curious, and she sees approaching her a tall, handsome and richly dressed woman.

For a moment Edna is so absorbed by her passionate daydream that she does not recognize her, then as the expressed figure comes nearer, Edna remembers the lady in the carriage at the door of the Grand Hotel. An unpleasant sensation of antipathy—distrust—what?—it is difficult to analyze—pervades the whole of the girl's frame. The lady comes slowly toward the cathedral door, breathing rather hard from the steep ascent of the cathedral steps. Another moment and she is close upon Edna, bringing with her a strong odor of patchouli and jockey club.

Opposite Edna she pauses and draws a long breath, opening her wide, but not ill-shaped, mouth to do so, and accosts her.

"Can you tell me when the organ plays?" she says, then stops abruptly and scans the sweet face below her with an eager interest. "I was going to ask you," she adds, after her scrutiny is over, "if you were waiting for the organ to play—but I suppose you are not."

"No," says Edna, smiling faintly, "I am not."

"So I thought," retorted the lady, eyeing her still with an unpleasant minuteness. "I've seen your face before, haven't I?"

"It is very likely," replies Edna, with a smile; "I have seen yours."

"Ah!" retorts the strange lady with a little sniff, "that's more likely still, and if it's not a rude question, where did you see me?"

"At the entrance to the Grand Hotel," says Edna, regarding her questioner with mingled amusement and repugnance.

"I thought so," responds the lady under her breath; "and it was there I saw you. I was talking to a gentleman, wasn't I?"

Edna flushes and nods. The lady eyes her with a profound air of intelligence, then nods her head violently.

"Yes, and if I'm not mistaken, you are waiting for that very gentleman now. Am I right?"

Edna regards the full, flushed and not by any means handsome face above her with a puzzled air.

"You are quite right," she says, in a low voice.

"I thought so," is the exclamation; "I knew it!"

"How do you know it? Why do you ask me?" asks Edna, with a bewildered stare. "Do you know the—the gentleman?"

"Do I know him?" echoes the strange lady. "Who does, if I don't? Know him! I should think I did! Better than you do, or ever will, I hope, my dear! Come, if I'm right, and you're waiting for him, I'll give you a bit of advice, and that is, get away from here as fast as your legs will carry you, and never let him come near you again."

At this vehemently delivered exhortation Edna opens her eyes wide and smiles.

"Why do you say that?" she says, half indignantly.

"Because no young girl, like you, ought to be waiting for the like of him. There! perhaps I'm a fool to interfere with what don't concern me, and I shall be sorry for it afterward; but—there's a good look about you—you're too good to go wrong for him. Take my advice, and go home, and when that gentleman you are waiting for calls next time, shut the door in his face, and say, 'not at home.'"

Edna rises and confronts the tall, handsome woman, and stares into the bold, daring eyes and powdered, painted cheeks, with bewildered astonishment.

"Are you—mad?"

"Mad! no," with a short, coarse laugh; "not half so mad as you if you listen to him. Come, I'll prove to you if I'm mad or sane. That gentleman you're waiting for—he says he loves you!"

There is no answer, only the same puzzled stare.

"He has promised to marry you—"

The stare falls for a moment and the cheeks flush.

"Oh! I thought so," continues the loud voice. "The same old tale; well, let me tell you that he's told the same thing, and promised the same thing, to half a dozen before you and disappointed them all!"

Edna finds voice at last.

"How dare you!" she flashes out. "You are speaking wicked falsehoods of some one you do not know—"

"Don't know!" retorts Glitters, for it is she. "Look at that!" and she snatches a huge locket from her waistband. "Don't know! Whose face is that, I should like to know!" and she tears the locket open and extends it.

Fashion Plates.

A YOUTHFUL DRESS.

2688—This could be made up attractively in castor color velour, with sage green for collar and cuffs. Its distinctive feature is the plastron, which could be embellished with a touch of worsted or chenille embroidery. Serge, duvety, velvet, satin, checked or plaid suiting, combined with some plain fabric, are also good for this style.

The Pattern is cut in 4 sizes: 14, 16, 18 and 20 years. Size 16 will require 6 1/2 yards of 36-inch material. Width of skirt at lower edge is about 1 1/2 yard.

A pattern of this illustration mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents in silver or stamps.

A SMART COSTUME.

Waist—2688. Skirt—2687.

This comprises Waist Pattern 2688 and Skirt Pattern 2687. The waist is finished with the new so fashionable back closing. It is a youthful style and especially becoming to slender figures. As here shown, mixed suiting in brown tones was used, with nutria fur for trimming. Satin and serge could be combined, or velvet and satin or silk, with braid and buttons for trimming. The Waist Pattern is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. The Skirt in 6 sizes: 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32 inches waist measure.

To make the costume of 36-inch material for a 38-inch size will require 6 1/2 yards. Width of skirt at lower edge is about 1 1/2 yards.

This illustration calls for TWO separate patterns, which will be mailed to any address on receipt of 10 cents FOR EACH pattern in silver or stamps.

Money Not Everything.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir—Being interested in the future welfare of those who have helped to secure liberty and freedom for us by their untold sacrifices I went to hear what Dr. Jones had to say on the subject, Sunday night last, and to see if he had any new ideas for the solving of one of the greatest and most important problems that ever this country had confronting it. But I came away from the service sadly disappointed, as if I can believe my ears he said he intended to make a plea on their behalf, but he had received authorized information to the effect that a vote of money was to be handed out to them which unarmed him from making the plea as he intended to do. Well, sir, from my point of view it is not going to be settled quite so easily as that, for after all it is not their own they will be receiving if they ever do get what he mentioned. A few paltry dollars will never make up for all they have sacrificed, but I say by all means let them have the money and more if it can be got for them.

New English Sailings.

The following message from Major Montgomery, now at Halifax, was received yesterday by the Ministry of Shipping:—

"Have arranged rates of freight from Newfoundland to Liverpool, effective immediately, one dollar hundred pounds, or fifty cents cubic foot, ship's option, except sailings from Liverpool as follows, Graciana, Jan. 31st, Sachem, Mar. 8th, and Digby a fortnight later. Understand two later boats will carry passengers, but will advise definitely later. Suggest in view of reduced rates shippers may wish to ship considerable cargo on Graciana, in which case it would be advisable to obtain space from director of overseas transport."

Merchants intending to ship by Gra-ciana, should report space very promptly to Minister of Shipping.

I have failed to see a broad view of the situation taken by any of those who are interested in the problem of re-establishing our boys, and I find that the Re-establishing Committee are 'up against it' to find suitable positions for the few applicants that come to them. Considering the fact that employment can't be found for the few score who require it now, what will happen when the bulk of them get back and we have nothing for them to do. They can be "hushed up" for a while with the dollar but they'll eventually want work. That is the "rub" and what are we going to do about it? Will it be said we can't and anything for them to do? Or on the other hand will we see that the work is created for them. It is up to us to solve this problem right now or suffer for it later.

Money Not Everything.

burden that it is likely to be for them if conditions are allowed to prevail here as they are to-day. When our men get back we should see to it that it will be as profitable for them to live in Newfoundland as it would be in Canada or the United States. If not, we'll be saying good bye to them again, and that will be our greatest loss. Therefore I say let us begin working. Thanking you for space, I am,

Yours truly,

Bingen on the Rhine.

Ach Gott! The morning I arose up across an ancient spell.
And had to do as I was bid or catch all balleys!
I still recall with maudlin curse the day I had to rise
And kick in with some foolish verse with terror in my eyes:
"Beneath the Spreading Chestnut Tree"—"The Ride of Paul Revere."
"Upon a stern and Rockbound Coast"
—and others just as sere;
But from the list which stands accursed where nightmares still entwine,
The one that I recited first was
"Bingen on the Rhine."

Each time my morbid thoughts return to Bingen on the Rhine.

And now against the Hun's abode with steady tramp along.
The old Third Army hits the road,
two hundred thousand strong,
As dim dawns from the eastward creep the vanguards down the plain.
They hold their sector of the sweep that started from Lorraine.
I don't know yet where Bingen stands upon the bally map, Nor yet which Allied army lands upon its waiting lap.
But while for war and all its hell I can't say that I pine, I'd like to drop at least one shell in Bingen on the Rhine.

To-Day's Messages.

9.00 A. M.

NUMBER SETTLED.

LONDON, Jan. 29. The regulations governing the armies of occupation, are dealt with in an official statement issued here to-night by Winston Spencer Churchill, Secretary for War. The statement says: "The British military commanders are of the opinion that nine hundred thousand men are sufficient for this transition period. All the rest will be demobilized as fast as possible. The air force for the armies of occupation, says an official announcement to-night, has been selected on the same basis, and with the same emoluments, as the other branches of the service. Six thousand five hundred officers and seventy-five thousand men will be retained, out of approximately three hundred thousand.

BRITISH LABOR PLANS.

PARIS, Jan. 29. The British plans for an International Labor Bureau have been completed, and forwarded to London for consideration by the employers. As soon as they are returned here, they will be laid before the Peace Conference, coming as the British view.

PASSED IN MEDICINE.

KINKSTON, Ont., Jan. 29. Queens Medical School closed its class for the final year of medicine last Saturday, and the results were announced by the Senate this afternoon. The names of two of the fifteen men, Geo. Baggis, St. John's, Nfld., E. F. Moores, Blackhead, Nfld.

SOLDIER BOLSHIEVICS.

PARIS, Jan. 29. A large number of Bolshievik propaganda pamphlets, the Matin says, has been found in possession of Greek officers and soldiers, returning from internment in the prison camps at Georlitz, Germany. The Government, the paper adds, will exercise special supervision over these soldiers.

DOG EATING DOG.

LONDON, Jan. 29. An official wireless despatch, received from Russia, tells of the defeat of the Ukrainian peasant army by the Ukrainian Soviet forces and the occupation of Yekaterinoslav, capital of the Government of the same name, in South Russia. The despatch says: "Ukrainian Soviet forces, after a desperate battle, overcame the stubborn resistance of the forces of General Pellus, and occupied the town of Yekaterinoslav, capturing guns, machine guns and other booty. The enemy is fleeing in disorder towards the sources of the Dneiper River.

ONLY A COINCIDENCE.

PARIS, Jan. 29. There is no connection, whatever, between the International Socialist and Labour Conference at Berne and the Labour Conference being held here, in connection with the Peace Conference, according to George Nicholl Barnes, the British Labour member of the British Peace Delegation. Mr. Barnes said to-day that a misconception has arisen as to the two Conferences, probably because most of the men selected by the Parliamentary Committee of the Trades Union of the Congress, to advise the British Government on questions of international law regulations, happened also to be delegates to the Berne Conference.

HODGINS CRITICIZES MILITARY.

OTTAWA, Jan. 29. Both officers in charge, and the non-commissioned officers and men returning on the steamship Northland, came in for adverse criticism in the report of Mr. Justice Hodgins, on the voyage of that troopship last month. An investigation into the conditions, of which was instituted early in January. The report which has just been received by the Government, is a comprehensive one, comprising nearly forty typewriting pages. The men, particularly the non-commissioned officers, are blamed for their failure to observe the usual military discipline, and to perform the duties expected of them in the matter of cleaning of latrines and eating and sleeping quarters. Their complaints regarding the latter, however, are considered as fully justified, while on the question of food their complaints are in the main sympathetically upheld.

PROFIT AND LOSS.

OMSK, Jan. 25. Official advices received here, are to the effect that Orenburg, capital of the Government of Orenburg, on the right bank of Ural River, has been occupied by the Bolshievik General Dutoff, commanding the anti-Bolshievik forces, abandoned the town and retired in a northeasterly direction. The Bolshievik control in Lashren, capital of Russian Turkistan, has been overthrown through the defection of the Commissioner Assipov, with whom the two regiments of Bolshievik infantry and one of cavalry mutined, and seized the city. All the Bolshievik Commissioners were shot.

LATEST.

NEW YORK IN LINE.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29. New York became the 44th State to ratify the Federal Prohibition Amendment, when the Senate to-night by a vote of 27 to 24 concurred in the McNab ratifying resolution, which was adopted by the Assembly last week.

UNDER WILSON'S DOCTRINE.

PARIS, Jan. 29. That Bolivia intends to set up a claim for the provinces of Tacna and Arica, under the doctrine of President Wilson that nations are entitled to an outlet to the sea, was indicated to-day by General Montes, Bolivian Minister for France.

THE BIGGEST QUESTION.

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 29. "The biggest question in the United States to-day is the merchant marine question," said Secretary of the Navy Daniels, in an address here to-night at the annual Eastern Shore Banquet. The United States, Mr. Daniels declared, cannot afford to stop building ships, unless it wishes to withdraw into its own national limits and surrender its share of the trade and wealth of the world to other countries.

MUST BE MODIFIED.

LONDON, Jan. 30. In a late edition, the Daily Mail prints a report from its correspondent in Paris, who writes that the treaties between England and Japan, relative to the islands in the North-east Pacific, with the Arabs regarding Syria, and the understanding with France as to the future status of Kamerun, must be arbitrarily modified if not torn up. The Japanese delegates are angry and alarmed, and declare their unaltered determination to claim these islands, as promised, the correspondent says, and adds, "these islands are really the crux of the whole situation."

UPRISING PUT DOWN.

AMSTERDAM, Jan. 30. The Spartacist uprising at Wilhelmshaven has been put down, according to Berlin advices received here.

AVIATOR'S EYE FROZEN TIGHT SIX MILES UP.

"I removed my goggles when I was six miles up because a thick coating of frost had rendered them useless," said Capt. Lang. "My left eye was frozen shut immediately. It was 70 degrees below freezing up there at that altitude.—New York Times.

Press Briefs.

NORMAL.—The situation in Ireland, we hear from London, is very serious. That is, normal.—Boston Record.

HAS AS MUCH EFFECT.—Handling the Bolshievik by moral suasion is just like quelling a mad bull by the power of the human eye.—New York Sun.

A FIRM HAND.—The thing that would do more to encourage Bolshievism in America more than anything else would be governmental cowardice. The agitators should have strict justice, not unintelligent prosecution.—Buffalo News.

NOT EXACTLY EXAMPLES.—"Drink sour milk," said Metchnikoff, "and live forever." "Chew your food with painstaking care," said Horace Fletcher, "and preserve your health by improving your digestion." "Neither lived to the age of 70.—Boston Globe.

AS IT IS HERE.—"I understand that none of the boys take a drink now." "No," answered Three-Finger Same. "Taint safe. If you smell klicker on a man's breath now it's a sure sign he's been robbin' a baggage car somewhere.—Washington Star.

MOVIES AS EDUCATORS.

Dr. Royal S. Copeland, Health Commissioner of New York, has published a strong letter in which he says properly operated moving picture theatres in New York were of great assistance to the Department of Health during the influenza epidemic in promoting the work of public health education. Speeches were made as to the requirements of the Board of Health with appeals for co-operation of the public.

THE REAL CAUSE.

One of the things that is believed to have contributed more than any other to Col. Roosevelt's breakdown, was the death last Fall, of his son, Lieut. Quentin Roosevelt, the aviator, in action in France. Proud of his son's achievements, Colonel Roosevelt bore up under the sorrow of his death with characteristic fortitude. Friends say that while the father "did not carry his heart on his sleeve," he suffered most poignant griefs in silence and tried to forget by plunging harder than ever into his work.

GRAND MASTER PRESENT.

The Duke of Connaught, Grand Master of the Masonic Knights Templar, with the members of the Order, was present at a Thanksgiving Service in the Temple Church to commemorate the freedom of the Holy Land from the Dominion of the Ottoman Empire. The Master of the Temple preached, and the collection was given to the fund inaugurated by the Order of St. John of Jerusalem for the rebuilding of the Hospital of St. John in that city, towards which the Council of the Order of Knights Templar have recommended a grant of £1,000.

MUTUAL WELFARE IN PRISON.

Lieut. Commander Thomas Mott Osborne spoke on prison reform at the Birdcage Tearoom of the Rod Cross, 587 Fifth Avenue, basing his talks on his experiences at Portsmouth Naval Prison. The introduction of the mutual welfare idea had been so successful, he said, that more than 1,700 boys had been returned to the navy.

Commander Osborne scored what he termed the schala method of punishment, now used in many prisons. It seemed, he declared, that correctional institutions had been built for the benefit of every one but the man who had broken the laws.—N.Y. Times.

A POET FOR THE VATICAN!

From a source closely connected with the Vatican I learn that the question of the Pope's voluntary imprisonment ensuing upon the loss of temporal power when Rome was declared the capital of United Italy will be discussed at the Peace Conference. The solution considered most practical is to give the Holy See a small strip of territory connecting the Vatican with the sea, so that there may be free access to the outer world without crossing Italian territory.

The Pope's confinement to the Vatican has long been a cause of bitter resentment in the "black" or Fascist Party in Italy. President Wilson, for example, when in Rome was unable to drive to the Vatican directly from the King's Palace, as the Pope in that case would not have received him, but was obliged to go to the American Embassy and take a carriage from there to the Vatican, owing to the intense feeling between the two parties.—N.Y. Times' Correspondent.

Field of Waterloo.

(Toronto Globe).

In yesterday's Globe appeared an illustration of detachments of British soldiers marching across the battlefields of Waterloo, against a background formed by the artificial hill erected as a monument. It was a dramatic episode even if some of the war-worn men did not feel the thrill of walking over ground consecrated by one of the greatest moments of history and by bottles of their gallant forbears. The correspondent of the Le Matin of Paris with the British armies was keenly sensible to the appeal of it, and in a despatch his paper records his impressions of the spectacle of Anglo-French comradeship on a spot where British and French met in the world-shaking conflict and were "in one red burial blent."

"Between the Grenadiers of the Iron Duke and those of the Bronze Emperor there had been Homeric combat, and the adversaries of yesterday, converted into allies to-day and friends forever by the intelligent will of destiny, may without resentment and ever at Waterloo commune in the ardent fervor, and beauty of noble memories. By chance it is on the margin of the legendary field of the battle of the giants that at this moment is proceeding the junction of the British and French detachments which will represent of the solemn entry of King Albert into his Capital. Just now in walking out on the Brussels-Waterloo highway I have seen Scotch Tommies and our polius promenading arm in arm."

The correspondent recalls that after Waterloo the Prussians behaved like savages to the French wounded and prisoners, while the British were noble in victory. The Prussian nature has not changed. The Germans in the present war made Waterloo a rendezvous of fetes, of drinking bouts for the officers. They strewed the landscape with bottles. "Even in the sacred temple of history and legend they have exercised their instincts of rapine." In the orchard of Hougmont they stole the brass eagle with outspreading wings which surmounted of the monument to the French dead. Some remnant of scruple, however, made them respect the lion on the hill and the wounded eagle of Jerome.

Henceforth the name of Waterloo will bring neither to British nor French minds the memories of an ancient enmity. The living soldiers of the two nations have embraced on the battlefield. In the eloquent language of Le Matin's correspondent they have carried their homage to those who, whether of the Guard Napoleon or the British Guards, "sleep side by side on the tragic plain, buried but always living in the radiant winding-sheet of the same glory."

Black Snow.

"As white as snow" is one of the stock comparisons of every day, and there is nothing on earth whiter than newly-fallen snow. Its whiteness is caused by its excessive colour. Every tiny crystal of which it is composed acts as a prism and breaks up the light into its constituent colours of the rainbow; but the crystals are so numerous and set at such an infinite number of angles that they all neutralize each other, and we see the snow perfectly white. It was thought until Australia was discovered that all swans were white. There they are black. Similarly it is thought that all snow is white, and the thought is much nearer the truth, for all snow is naturally white.

Some time ago snow of a decidedly dark, almost black, color fell on the Alps, especially on the southern or Italian side, where fierce fighting took place in the closing stage of the war. Naturalists were greatly interested, and many solutions of the snow were examined. The consensus of opinion attributed this black snow to the ashes of Mount Etna, in Sicily, which had recently been in violent eruption, and had vomited forth millions of tons of dark and ashes into the upper atmosphere.

Upholds Factory Law.

The constitutionality of the so-called factory exit law passed by the Legislature after the Triangle fire in 1911, under which every factory building over two stories high must be provided on each floor with at least two means of exit or escape from fire, remote from each other, and all interior staircases must be enclosed by fire-resisting partitions, was upheld yesterday by the Appellate Division of the Supreme Court. The question was decided in a suit of the estate of John V. Cockroft, owner of the Cockroft Building, at 71 Maiden Lane, against the State Industrial Commission, because structural changes in the building ordered by the commission would mean a loss of $215,928 to the estate.

The building is occupied almost entirely by manufacturing jewelers, diamond setters, lapidaries, and opticians. The Appellate Division affirmed the ruling of the lower court on the opinion of Justice Gavegan, who tried the case. Justice Gavegan's decision set forth the circumstances under which the law was passed, and stated that the plaintiff had failed to convince him that the building was safe for manufacturing purposes. In considering the constitutionality of the law, Justice Gavegan ruled that it was necessary for the safety of workers in factory buildings, and that the orders involving the Cockroft Building are necessary to carry out the spirit of the law.—New York Times.

When we were talking about the One Subject, the other evening, the Author said that he hoped when he died, he should be able to see a Kitchener face to face and ask him a certain question about the war. It would be, he said, one of the compensations.

The Author had opened a vista to me on which I have often thought of the interesting things that I should like most to look up myself in That Country to many distinguished travelers.

Family That I Want Left. I never plan whom you would see there are so many that I want to see that I can hardly see them. I would like to see the first outside but I think it would be better to see them in the flesh. In all literature there is no woman whose life and work give me such a sense of reality as Charles Lamb's. I should not associate the name with physical infirmities with the Land, but I cannot help but think that I would like to see the gentle Elia student a bit of inimitable wit just used to on earth.

Do You Want To See? After these two, a perfect gem to my mind. I want to see the Ashtu and the Bronte sisters. I do not want to see them like a peek at their unbecoming (brother), and sad, beautiful (I cannot disassociate a beautiful sadness even in the Ashtu), and Napoleon, the Ashtu, and Boswell and Thackeray.

to meet Peter—that wonderful, blundering, loving, human man who, to me, dominates the gospel as second only to the Master himself. I'd love to tell him how often I have read about him and quoted to myself Stevenson's—"We can forgive mistakes but not even God can forgive the hanger-back."

A Tenderness For Pontius Pilate. And then I have a tenderness that many will find strange for that great offender: Pontius Pilate. He wanted so much to do the right thing, he saw it so clearly, but the forces of earth, the demands of the people, were too strong for him and he gave 'in to them. Think how he must have felt afterwards.

Perhaps some one will remind me that these rulers and great literary folks will not have time to talk to me any more than if I met them on earth. I have thought of that. And then I have remembered—eternity.

Birth of Words.
"Camouflage" is a manufactured word nearly as new to French as to English. You will not find it in your French dictionary. But somehow, it seems to express its own meaning, all those devices which, at the Front, were used to hide gun positions, etc., from the spy-hawks in the air.

The word "commander" was the chief gift of the Boer War, and is now most firmly established in everyday talk. We say that the Food Controller has commanded all the margarine or meat or bacon.

The trouble of the "distressful country" gave us the word boycott. It happened to be the surname of Captain Boycott, an Irish landowner, whom the authorities assisted to reap the harvest the peasants refused to touch by sending soldiers on his land. He was the first man to be "boycotted," that is "sent to Coventry" by his neighbors ostracized, put off the map.

Mackintosh, shrapnel, macadam, maxim, gullotine, brougham, victoria, garibaldi, gladstone, and lynch are all examples of surnames becoming dictionary words of the very commonest kind.

THE BRIDE.

Little lady at the altar. Vowing by God's book and psalter To be faithful, fond and true Unto him who stands by you. Think not that romance is ended, That youth's curtain has descended, And love's pretty play is done; For it's only just begun.

Marriage, blushing little lady, Is love's sunny path and shady. Over which two hearts should wander, Of each other growing fonder. As you stroll to each to-morrow, You will come to joy and sorrow, And as faithful man and wife Read the troubled book of life.

Bitter cares will some day find you; Closer, closer they will bind you. If together you will bear them, Cares grow sweet when lovers share them.

Love unites two happy mortals, Brings them here to wedlock's portals. And then blithely bids them go Arm in arm through weal and woe.

Little lady, just remember Every year has its December; Every rising sun its setting; Every life its time of fretting. And the honeymoon's sweet beauty Finds too soon the clouds of duty, But keep faith, when trouble tried, And in joy you shall abide.

Little lady at the altar, Never let your courage falter, Never stoop to unbelieving, Even when your heart is grieving. To what comes of wintry weather Or disaster, stand together; Through life's fearful hours of night Love shall bring you to the light.

Fads and Fashions.

Tricolette is better liked than ever. Culture ornaments are rarely seen. Slipper buckles are yet very much worn.

Taffeta is used for the newest coats. Voile linings are suggested for coats.

If a skirt is short it simply must be full. The collarless neckline is no more popular.

Once again elaborate jewels are in favor. Side panels are a feature in skirt trimmings.

Embroidery will, for the present, be less used. Ottoman weaves in silk ribbons are favorites.

For frocks, printed chiffons are still in vogue. Collars come in both roll and muffer style.

For coats most chic is the three-quarter length. A novel note in French garments is cotton ribbon.

Pink continues to be the favorite color for corsets. Some of the new sweaters have very wide girdles.

Evening gowns will be cut very low, back and front. Color in underwear is much emphasized at present.

Coat linings are bright in color and rich in material. Most suit coats show the normal shoulder and armhole.

Blouses are rather elaborate and usually match the suit. Gingham is as much as ever in the forefront of fashion.

TERMS OF PEACE.

KAISER WILHELM.

If Kaiser Wilhelm came to me, and asked for terms of peace I'd say, "With you I do agree—this blamed old war should cease. But when it comes to making terms, the blue prints that you ask, my rusty brainpan sort o' squirms, a n d balks before the favor.

I'd like to hear from many lands, from France, and Belgium, too, from children who have lost their hands, through orders sprung by you.

I'd like to hear from British towns, where sleeping babes were killed; and from the traveller who drowns, sore pedoed, Kaiser-billed. Alas, alas, the dead can't speak, from out their martyr graves; and neither can the sick and weak you drove away as slaves.

I cannot hear from that brave nurse who fell at your behest; but Captain Fryatt's dying curse makes peace hunk seem a jest. Before I make a plan, with you to shelve the battle blade, I'd like to hear a word or two from Elbert Hubbard's shade. I'd like to have you walk with me, and see the wreck of France, before we soak the snickersnee, and give away the lance. I'd have you read the daily list of brothers and of sons who die because of you, I wist, you and your vandal Huns. I fear if we make peace to-day, I'd soon know I had sinned; for you'd start out again to slay, when you'd regained your wind."

THE BENEFIT OF VEGETABLES AND FRUIT.

Few women will realize that a bushel basket of vegetables contains bright eyes, a clear complexion, and rosy lips.

Not a single dinner should be served without at least one fresh vegetable. Beets are among the best and can be served in various way, for instance, after being cooked they may be served with butter and seasoning, cold with vinegar, minced with cabbage or lettuce salad. They are also quite palatable when eaten with a little sprinkled salt over them.

White canned beets do not actually take the place of fresh ones, still they may be substituted when fresh ones cannot be secured.

When visiting the vegetable markets do not allow the man to top the beets. These tops make an ideal vegetable when cooked in the same manner as one cooks spinach. While beets tone up the complexion they also are very nutritive and have a decided action to right any kidney order that may exist.

Spinach is also invaluable as a vegetable, carrots as well—both being quite appetizing; in fact, all sorts of "boiled greens" act directly upon the system and blood, which in turn brings about a better complexion.

No dinner should be considered complete without some green-salad. It is far better to omit the sweet dessert than the salad if but only one can be afforded. Olive oil dressing should be used on the salad as it is both nourishing and wholesome. While olive oil has a flavor that requires cultivation it is valuable as a tonic.

Plenty of fruit should be eaten for breakfast and also during the day when real hunger assails one. Each individual must be his or her own judge and eat only such fruits as agree with their digestive organs.

More Education.

In briefly discussing the ever growing peril of Bolshevism, yesterday reference was made to the need for greater intellectual cultivation as a panacea for this mental disease which is threatening the world, if its advance universally is to be checked and rendered innocuous, and the suggestion was made that education is the only weapon with which it can be properly and victoriously fought.

That others share this opinion, is borne out by a Rector's despatch from Melbourne, Australia, reporting a speech of a prominent Labor member in the New South Wales Legislative Assembly, in which he vigorously denounced Bolshevism and declared that EDUCATION "will carry us further than all the mad doctrines of voluble revolutionaries." Is there not a lesson in this for Newfoundlanders, and a warning note that it is time for us to be up and doing in improving our present system of education, for that it needs improvement no person will deny.

The annual meeting of the parishioners of Channel was held in the Parish Hall on Tuesday, 21st inst. Rev. H. J. Reed, Rector, in the chair. At this meeting Mr. H. H. Mackay was elected Secretary-Treasurer of the Parish in succession to Mr. C. T. James, resigned.

Presentation Convent Association.

The annual meeting of the above Association was held on Sunday afternoon (January 28th). His Grace Archbishop Roche, presiding. Quite a large number of members were present. His Grace addressed the meeting, and while he said it was unusual for him to be present at a meeting of this kind, still as he was present at the first meeting of the Association, he thought it was due to the members to come again, and this time his reasons were threefold—to wish the Association a Happy New Year, to express his thanks for the good work done the past year, and to elect officers for the ensuing year.

The Secretary's report was read by Miss Doyle (the Secretary being unavoidably absent), and included votes of thanks to His Grace the Archbishop for his kindness to the Association at all times, as no matter how big or little the entertainment was, His Grace was always present, and by his words of encouragement helped the officers in all their various endeavors. Votes of thanks were also expressed to Rev. J. Ryan (St. Bon's College), for the use of the Aulis Maxims for various entertainments; to the following for lectures given during the Lenten season, viz. Rev. Dr. P. H. Kitchin, Dr. Campbell, Major Sullivan and P. K. Devine, Esq. The Association are also grateful to Miss Ella Morris for her kindness in promoting an evening's entertainment in the form of an Irish reading. Thanks are also due to Mr. P. Myler for proceeds of a cricket match; to the Press for kindness at all times; to the President (Miss Furlong), for her untiring efforts on behalf of the Association; to the members in general for their assistance and co-operation in all matters pertaining to the Association. The thanks of the Association were also expressed to the Rev. Mother General and Sisters of the Community for their very material aid during the past year.

Pte. Keeping Dead.

The Director of Records, Ottawa, has cabled the sad intelligence to Mr. Benjamin Keeping of the Anglo-American Telegraph Company, that his son Lancelot, of the Canadian Infantry, passed away at the Military Hospital, Paddington, on Tuesday last. Mr. Keeping feels the blow very keenly, as he had fully expected to meet his boy on this side shortly, and the sudden stroke is therefore a heavy one. We offer to the parents of the deceased our sincere sympathy in their great bereavement.

Rough Trip.

The 'J. Miller,' recently bought by Mr. J. Sellars, which arrived in port yesterday, had a very trying time and was 24 days out from St. John, N.B. The ship was reported a few days ago by the s.s. Valacia as being in a disabled condition and short of food. During the buffeting, the ship lost her foretopmast and jibboom and sustained other damage about the deck. One of the crew named Cousins, had two of his ribs broken and another sailor a negro, had his legs considerably frostbitten, and may possibly have both feet amputated.

Express Passengers.

The following first class passengers are on the incoming express: Mrs. Goshue, D. Mathieson, G. H. Hunt, Mrs. Kennedy, Mrs. G. Fry, C. A. Hayward, H. B. Hatch, Mrs. Joyce and the following Naval Reservists: A. Rice, L. Price, J. Keats, R. Heath, H. P. Fudge, J. Johnson, O. Flynn, G. R. Johnson, E. King, M. Lawless, R. Gaulton, J. Fleming, H. Stanley, A. Russell, A. Freely, A. Young, A. R. Bushett, A. J. Strickland, E. F. Legge, G. Hiden, J. H. Fashpond, H. Anderson, L. Oliver, S. Temple.

Prospero Sailed.

S.S. Prospero sails at 8 o'clock this evening for New York, calling at Halifax. She takes a full cargo, and the following first class passengers: Mrs. Marian Moore, John Rasmussen, Mrs. Stella Barrett, T. Lawrence, Sir M. P. Cashin, Mr. Lawrence, R. W. Strong, Samiel Bartlett, Miss Keegan, C. S. Williams, Miss Denist.

Enjoyable Dance.

Mr. Frank M. Ewing of P. E. Outerbridge's employ, was the host of a very enjoyable dance, some 50 couples being present. The affair began at 8.30 at the Blue Puttee Hall, and lasted until two o'clock this morning, when refreshments were served by the ladies. All present enjoyed themselves immensely. Ex-Sergt. Major Peckham acted as floor manager.

Somewhere in London.

Proof of Ex-Kaiser's Guilt. In a powerful strong room, somewhere in London, are seven or more large steel-bound boxes, which the Kaiser would have paid dearly to possess.

There are some, indeed, who insist that his long-cherished and openly avowed project of invading England, and of dictating the terms of a victorious peace on the banks of the Thames, was prompted very largely by his desire to get hold of the contents of these boxes. It is known that he had promised a large reward to the Zepelin commander who succeeded in dropping his bombs in such a fashion upon London as to convert the depository of these steel boxes into a mere shell crater.

These seven boxes are declared to contain the manuscript of the third, the largest and most important volume of the autobiographical memories of the first Prince Bismarck, as well as a wonderful collection of confidential papers and correspondence of a nature to corroborate and confirm the statements in the memories. They include several hundred letters written by ex-Kaiser, prior and immediately subsequent to his accession, to the Iron Chancellor, reports of various intrigues at Vienna, and of plotting against the ill-fated Crown Prince Rudolf of Austria, in which he was concerned. There are also said to be memoranda in William's own handwriting relating to the unfulfilled conspiracy which he organized in the autumn of 1887 and in the early spring of 1888, to eliminate his fatally-stricken father from the succession to the throne.

The ex-Kaiser's treatment of his father, the Emperor Frederick, is historical. There is no doubt he hastened his death by the callousness of his conduct. He sought to get him barred from the throne by proving that he had cancer. He forced the appointment of a board of physicians to consider the matter. This resulted in a draw. Notwithstanding William induced a surgeon to administer an anesthetic, and it was only when he was on the point of operation on Frederick's throat that the Emperor arrived, and drove the surgeon and her son away. Hence the hatred which the deposed Emperor extended to his mother: till her death.

SERVED IN FOUR ARMIES.

War service in four armies has been given by the family of which Mr. Charles Hessel, living in Kennington, Park Road, London, is a member. Mr. Hessel himself was over 60 when war broke out, but he joined the British army voluntarily, and saw two years' service. A brother J. Van Heel Hessel, of Antwerp, is in the Belgian Army, an another brother, Raoul Hessel, of Bordeaux, is with the French forces. His third brother, Frederick Cecil, died in Antwerp before the German evacuation, and his nephew Frederick Hessel, after escaping from Antwerp, crossed to America and returned to France with the American Army.

An Invention to Watch.

Something new which should be watched is outlined in the Daily Chronicle by "A.M." "I stood at Westminster and saw the oldest power on earth do something new. I saw a man turning a handle and a column of water rising like a solid thing.

From the beginning of the world the waters have been moving. "And yet through all the aeons of time, no man till now has seen water rising from a well save in a bucket or in something to contain it. We let a bucket down a well and bring it up filled with sparkling liquid; but the new sight that is now to be seen is of water rising from a well without a bucket. It will stick to a chain like glue; it will come up in hundreds of gallons as fast as you turn a handle; it will rise from a river for hundreds of feet if you have a chain big enough and long enough. "It is all incredible until a man has seen it; but the new chain that goes round and round with water clinging to it as if it were coming from a fountain or a hose is one of the rare things to be seen in London now, and some day it will be pumping everywhere—the simplest means ever known of raising water to great heights, or emptying water out of mines, or salving sunken ships."

Shipping Notes.

The Auxiliary schooner Hunter, left St. John, N.B., on Tuesday, Jan. 28th, for here. The Prospero sails to-day for Halifax, Capt. Couch in command. The S.S. Cape Breton arrived this morning from Lunenburg with a load of coal, consigned to the Government. The Gladys Fearn has entered to lead codfish at Burin for Oporto. The General Smuts is loading fish at Marystown for Oporto.

Reids' Boats.

Argyle left Placentia at 5 p.m. yesterday on Red Island route. Glouce left Port aux Basques at 9.20 p.m. yesterday. Kyle arrived at Port aux Basques at 7.20 a.m. to-day. Meigle left North Sydney at 11 a.m. yesterday for St. John's. Sagona left Pushthrough at 4 a.m. to-day, going to Port aux Basques.

Prices Just Even With Quality. MILLEY'S Election Slogans. Every General Election produces its special cry. The word that dominated the present one is Reconstruction. The slogan of 1830 has ever since been famous. It was: "The Bill, the whole Bill, and nothing but the Bill." And it is only surpassed, perhaps, by one back in the 'eighties: "Three acres and a cow," which was designed to get the new agricultural labourers' vote. "The Big Loan," with which the Free Traders made such a stir in 1906, was but a revival of the same cry in the 'forties and the 'fifties of last century, and is as old as Free Trade itself; but "Dumping" was brand new in 1906, and has been a slogan ever since. "Votes for Women" has been a strong slogan at three General Elections, but to-day it is an accomplished fact, and has done its "bit" as an election cry. In 1898 the Radicals went to the polls with three slogans: "One Man One Vote," "An Eight Hour Day," and "Local Veto." The two of 1910 produced the most potent of slogans on record, "Tariff Reform and Work with the House of Lords," and "Free Trade and Free Food for Women." Secret History of the Dreadnought.
How the Story of Lord Fisher's Sweeping Revolution in British Methods of Naval Warfare -- How Britain's Broomstick Saved the World -- Brains, Not Blue-blood, Are England's Need, Says Great Sailor.
 (By HAROLD BEGBIE, in the "London Chronicle.")

...less ships to spend millions on a ship that would scrap the mirth of the world. He said to me afterwards: "What hope would the Fleet have had of victory, called from the bright sunshine and the blue air of the Mediterranean to fight a battle in the fogs of the North Sea? There they were, with white topped caps and linen trousers, with beautiful polished decks and shining brass work, living in a yachtsmen's paradise; and God was saying every hour as loud as Sinai's thunders that Armageddon would be fought in the pea-soup of the North Sea. I wanted the Fleet to nose about in the fogs, smelling different patches of pea-soupiness, sniffing and peering until it could say, 'Hello, here; the Dogger Bank,' and feel it had a friend. I wanted that; and if England was not to be destroyed I had to get it."

The magnificent work of Tyrrhitt and his heroes was made possible only by this revolution. By 1914 the North Sea had become the familiar playground of the British Fleet. But Nelson inspired Fisher to make certain of his broomstick in another way. He saw that the Fleet nosing about in the fogs of the North Sea, but he was able to hit hard, to hit fast, and to keep on hitting. The secret was gunnery. He must have a swift ship carrying a long range gun. "A gun that carries farther than the other fellow," he is fond of saying, "make the other fellow's gun into a pea-shooter."

And he tells you he means what he says, declaring that the other fellow might just as well have a pea-shooter on board as a gun that can't reach you. "That's true, isn't it?" he demands, fixing you with glaring eyes, raising his brows, and depressing his underlip. And of course it's true. In this way came the Dreadnought. And in this way, too, while Fisher was at the Admiralty again came the greatest naval victory of this war, the battle of Falkland Islands. Now

... strength on the waters. The Dreadnought was a great man," he said on one occasion; "the peasoupers think that what the world is in the fear of the Lord and a broomstick, which is wonderfully and truly true, particularly a broomstick. And Nelson, who was the man that ever lived, gave us a broomstick. All we have to do is to fear God and keep hold of the broomstick. Napoleon, who stole the world's great sayings, saw England was invincible so long as he never forgot her broomstick. And that we should smash when we were sea-power and tried to turn us into a land power. Our day on the water, danger lay in weakness for a redcoat. So the world lasts England will be the same; so long, that is, as she has Nelson and the sea."

... North Sea Drill Grounds. The policy at the Admiralty was in the saying of Nelson that background should be your ground. This was his first rule of preparation. For long England's battle-grounds had the Mediterranean, and there our Fleet was wont to drill—and hunt. But when Fisher came to the Admiralty, knowing in his bones England's next battle-ground would be the North Sea, he set himself to make the North Sea our drill-ground. But how to do this? It was suggested it to political authorities, or discussed it with sailors, but he had the whole vast armies of naval officers howling for his head. Yet it had to be done. Happy England was it that this man of courage had a cunning brain and a less heart.

... told him once: "Men say you do some splendid things for the world in a way of which the track of the Navy disapprove." He said: "My own brother stood in my way when I wanted to do something for England, I'd knock him and walk over his body"—leaving forward and hitting me a backward blow in the chest, he demanded: "Wouldn't you?" Well, as he put it, I should.

... Beginning of Revolution. The days when he was fighting bravely to get things done, he told me that he scarcely had one man to help him except King Edward. Not only was society against him, but a great weight of naval opinion was opposing him at every turn. He depended upon himself. He was a man and many a fool. But he was one with intervals of time between the recalled ships from the Mediterranean and set them to make acquaintance with the North Sea. It was a degree that England's historical policy was revolutionised; and all of a sudden that the navy realised what had happened. The North Sea had become our drill-ground. The Mediterranean had been a side show.

... he began to scrap old ships, and as bug-traps, began to re-equip the Naval Estimates, and there came against him, cruel, manly, and to the last degree, the arm; and King Edward told him to budget. He was scrapping

... son was waiting for you on the doorstep?" It was as certain as that.

When the history of those times is written Fisher will be seen as a greater than Nelson. He created the modern Navy. And he forestalled the Germans at every turn of the game. He had vision, he had courage, he had faith. His soul was baptised with the sea service of England by the Nelson touch.

Where should we be now if the Fleet had been drilling all these years in the Mediterranean, and brass-work had been exalted above gunnery? He hates war. He says he cannot now walk the streets without bitterness of heart, seeing so many mutilated men hobbling along under God's sky.

"We are still a nation of lions led by asses. Wealth is in our way, and rank and pride, and vain-glory. Away with all snobs! Every child in the nation must have a chance. The best is kept back or hindered or suffocated under the mass. What we want are brains—brains at the top. Never mind about blue-blood. Brains are England's need. And we can't have too many of them. A straight road for brains, that's my policy."

"When England is a real democracy there'll be nothing like her under heaven; and then everybody'll see that we are the Lost Tribe of Israel. Of course we are! God and the Ocean and some fostering Star, in high cabal have made us what we are."

It is fitting that this man, entering the British Navy as a little boy from a long line of parsonic ancestors, should have signed his name, John Arbuthnot Fisher, in Nelson's Victory, should have been nominated for the Royal Navy by two ladies related to two of Nelson's captains, and should have served under Captain Parker, the last of those noble captains.

Links With Nelson.

When he went from Portsmouth to the Admiralty in 1904 the flag was hauled down from the Victory. He had seen as a boy on the grave of one of Nelson's captains the epitaph, "Death found him fighting"—and the words haunted him. Full of the Nelsonic spirit, and thinking only of England, he went up to the Admiralty to fight, knowing that he would have to fight, and prepared to die fighting. In that great fight of his he saved the world.

That the world may have forgotten him does not bother either his heart or his head. He goes on his way, vigorous, upright, dynamic, sunning in love than ever with a numerous host of nephews and nieces. He reads the Bible, sees gladly that Democracy is at last on the march and occasionally wonders as he cocks his legs up on a chair, how long it will be before he and Nelson sit down to sing an old sea-chanty together in some snug parlor of the many mansions.

While these two great Admirals

... How the Dreadnoughts Failed. Let me take as much of that history as may be safely told at this distance of time. I have discussed it with naval officers ever since it first left the slips. I have followed it up, and passed from its deck to the spotting-top of a ship that turned its guns into pea-shooters.

The world woke up one day to find that naval warfare had been revolutionised. A ship was on the sea which could steam a prodigious pace, and steaming, hit a moving target miles away on the horizon, crashing enormous shells on that tiny mark one after another, bang, bang, bang! The British Admiralty made no secret of this success. On the contrary that success was trumpeted all over the world. Some people thought that Fisher had lost his head. And when the Dreadnought came into dock nobody knew that it had come back as a failure. It had failed in one most urgent particular. It wouldn't steer. There it lay, with the brains of the Admiralty tolling to right this vital defect, and all that the world heard was gossip about some improvement to be made in her gun mountings!

The Super-Dreadnought.

Fisher once said to me, "The secret of shipbuilding is, Never lay down a lot; lay down one." He says it's like making aeroplanes. Each improvement leads to another. They used to smile at the Admiralty when they heard that foreign nations were laying down four, six and eight Dreadnoughts. We were making plans at this time for super-Dreadnoughts. He declares that he did not create the Dreadnought.

"It was always there," he says, "like the planet Neptune. Two astronomers, you remember, French and English, noticed a perturbation in the heavens; they decided that there must be a planet thereabouts; they looked into matters and discovered old Neptune. He had been there all the time! It was like that with the Dreadnought. There was a perturbation in the political heavens, and we got our telescopes upon it, and there, sure enough, was the planet Dreadnought!"

This vessel, which first paralysed the world's shipbuilding and then revolutionised naval warfare, was the greatest blow the German Kaiser had ever endured. No ship ever came from the yards with a more Machiavellian purpose.

A King Edward Story.

I remember Fisher's account of his visit to Royal with King Edward after the Russo-Japanese war: "His Majesty said to me, 'I am going to visit Nicholas, and he is sore because of our alliance with Japan; therefore my escort is to consist of only two cruisers; it would be bad manners, it would be vulgar, to take a squadron of battleships.'" Well, I thought to ... myself. What a gentleman the King is! And I loved him for that gentle thought.

"But we were going through the Kiel Canal, and I had to think of Germany. It was necessary to obey the King, but I wanted to drop the Germans a hint. I had to do that. Well, we took two cruisers as an escort for the royal yacht, but when we entered the Kiel Canal we left two other cruisers waiting for us to continue the journey."

A German Naval officer came to me at Kiel, while the King was talking to Prince Henry on the other side of the deck, and clicked his heels, and saluted, and bowed. I did the same. He said he thought he was addressing Sir John Fisher, and bowed again. I bowed and said he was. He then presented Admiral Tirpitz's apologies for not being present, and offered me a handsome compliment in the Admiral's name. He then clicked, saluted, bowed; and I did the same. He was like a tin toy!

"All of a sudden he became human. The stiffness went out of him. He became a man. He grinned and said to me, 'You came with two cruisers?'"

"Yes," I replied, pretending no interest. "And you have two more cruisers waiting for you out there?" I glanced over my shoulder seaward. "Yes," "You call them cruisers?" he asked, winking his eyes. "Yes, why not? I affected bewilderment. 'Ah!' he exclaimed, you are very clever!—these little cruisers of yours are too big to go through the Kiel Canal; so you left two behind you in the North Sea, and have two more waiting for you in the Baltic; that is a hint for us is it not?"

"Der Tag" Postponed.

"I tapped him on the chest, and said, 'You're a very clever fellow to see it.'" We parted on excellent terms.

... Tortured for Nearly Two Years.
 MRS. PLANTE FOUND RELIEF IN DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.
 She Tells How They Helped Her Kidney Disease and Made a New Woman of Her.

St. Florence, Que., Jan. 29th. (Special).—"Two boxes of Dodd's Kidney Pills made a new person of me." The speaker is Madame M. L. Plante, of this place, and her numerous friends here fully verify her statement.

"For nearly two years," Mrs. Plante continues, "kidney disease tortured me. I heard of Dodd's Kidney Pills, and made up my mind to try them, and to my surprise they did me good almost at once. Two boxes cured me completely. I recommend them to all my friends."

Mrs. Plante is only one of many who have had a similar experience. They were weak and run-down, and sick all over. Dodd's Kidney Pills helped them. How? Simply by curing the kidneys. The diseased kidneys were the cause of all the trouble. They were failing to strain the impurities out of the blood, and the result was disease all over the body. Dodd's Kidney Pills helped the kidneys, the impurities were strained out of the blood. The result was pure blood and good health all over the body. The cause of the disease had been removed.

Pussy O.H.M.S.
HOW CATS MAY SERVE KINGS.
 H. M. Salvage Ship, L.—was laid up for repairs and left after a long spell at sea saving damaged or derelict vessels. One day a small, stray cat came walking up the gangway, its tail stuck hopefully into the air. The little animal was seen by one of the workmen on board, who promptly started to "shoo" it away. The skipper of the L., happening to pass along at the time, bade the man desist in his efforts to rout pussy.

"Let her come aboard," he said. "I can do with her and as many more as like to come."

The worker grew curious, for he knew that the ship already possessed a mascot in the shape of a thoroughbred British bulldog.

"Want 'er for a pie?" he asked jokingly. The skipper grew serious.

"There's many a man owes his life to a cat," he replied, "for even a cat it may seem a funny thing to say, but I wish I had a few rats aboard."

Trying It on the Cat.

"You see," he continued, puffing at his pipe, "we never know what we are up against when we come across a derelict ship. There's all sorts and conditions of craft I have to board to examine, and sometimes it's unsafe."

"Why?" queried the worker.

"Gases or poisonous fumes," was the rejoinder. "Sometimes there is quite sufficient to kill a man. When we get aboard a stranger, I first of all have a cat lowered down into the hold, and keep it there for a minute or two. Then we pull him up. Sometimes he's all right, just as alive and kicking as when he was let down, so we know we can get on with the examination of the hold. But sometimes the creature is pulled up dead or dying; then we know it means loss of life for my men if they go below. So let the little joker come aboard," he concluded. "She may be the means of lessening the Navy's casualty list."

So the kitten duly became a member of the L.'s crew, and, like that crew, would be called upon, perhaps to give its life in the service of its country.

The Evangelists.

I.C.M. "The Stable" was the title of Mrs. Demarest's address last night; and yet it was not what is generally looked upon as an address in the accepted meaning of the word; nor was it a sermon, nor was it a Bible reading. All these sort of discourses the Evangelist has been giving us—and giving them in full measure, pressed down and running over.

To correctly interpret last night's discourse would be to call it a recital; and in this aspect we will be the better able to pass some of it on to our readers. Beginning with the story of the Saviour's birth, as recorded in the second chapter of St. Luke's Gospel, the speaker was at once pathetic, and adapted her to the rendition. The times in which the Saviour was born, and the position of the Jewish nation, and the domination of Imperial Rome under the sway of the Caesars, and their decree that all the world should be enrolled, were vividly portrayed. The arrival of Joseph and Mary at Bethlehem for this purpose, and the congested condition of the inn, and the probable bustle of the place, and the crowding out of the holy couple, and their final sheltering in the stable, were reviewed in panoramic order. The scene within the stable, and the attention of the devoted husband and faithful guardian, and the immaculate birth of the Holy Child, were enumerated in language, which perhaps only a gentle woman could use. The effect of this great event upon the humble place called "the stable," and the glorification which it brought to it, and the ignorance of those within the inn proper, and the disinterestedness of the people in general, were next in order. The recital of the story of the stable, was a word-picture of the "crib"; thus it was that our thoughts more than once ran off to St. Michael's Convent, at Belvedere Orphanage, where the crib is annually exhibited, and at which the dear orphan children sing their Christmas carols, under the direction of the good Sisters.

The gifted Evangelist did full justice to the recital of the story, and in doing so, she drew from it many lessons which are applicable to human life in general, and to modern life in particular. She compared the stable to the heart. The stable was not a clean place; nor was it a sanitary place. The animals were there; it was a shelter for beasts—a place where nestled the lower and lowest order of life. The heart of man unregenerate, is the same from a moral and spiritual standpoint. The beasts of passion and the animality of desire, and the vanity of pride, and the glory of self, were like the denizens of the stable. But the advent of the Holy Babe had for ever changed the atmosphere of that particular stable, and tens of thousands of people of every age, have since venerated the spot. The difference came about by the presence of the Infant Saviour; and so it is with us; if we admit Him into our hearts, and give Him His right place in our lives, His grace will drive out these tendencies which so often defeat us, and which so often pull us down.

Of the many other lessons which were given, and of the various points which were raised, we think that of the description of the Son of God coming into the world under such conditions, was the most sublime of them all. He could have come to a palace; but He made it a choice to come to a stable. He could have found guardianship from Kings, and motherhood from Queens, but He chose a humble working man, and a lowly Jewish maid. He could have come in the splendor of the noonday, but he made it a choice to come in the darkness of the midnight. He could have come to the great city, but He made it a choice to come to the quiet village. He could have come with wealth, but He made it a choice to come with poverty. He could have come a King, but He came a peasant. All these conditions were for a purpose, and that purpose was a Divine one—the purpose of Redemption, the redemption of all men, and of all conditions of men.

The stable seemed a humble sort of a topic, but we think that the lessons which Mrs. Demarest drew from its recital will be long borne in mind. A notable feature of the address last night, was the fact, that it was not illustrated by anecdotes, as all the talks hitherto given have been. Perhaps this was just as well for once; because, when we have related our deepest experiences, they best fall short, and appear small, when placed side by side with such a narrative as that of the coming into the world of its Maker, and of the stupendous condescension which is manifested in the story of "The Stable." The story stands unique in history; and when men shall have done with their interpretations, and with their misinterpretations of it, it will be the same; and only Eternity will reveal its true meaning; as saith the Master to His Apostles "What ye know not now, ye shall know hereafter."

Enthusiastic Meeting.

The meeting of the Women's C. L. B. Memorial Association, at the C. L. B. Armoury yesterday evening, was very largely attended. Lt.-Col. Rendell occupied the chair, and dwelt forcibly on the worthiness of providing the Orphanage boys with kit, declaring it his belief that all members of the Brigade who had made the Supreme Sacrifice would have been heartily in accord with the object.

It goes without saying that all the members showed their determination to "carry on" the work of making clothing more energetically than ever. Quite a number of garments have been supplied, but the 28 boys, who are at the Orphanage are not all fitted out yet. The sewing classes of the Association meet every Wednesday night. At last night's meeting the attendance was the largest on record, and five new members joined the circle.

It has been decided to hold teas and dances to raise the necessary funds, as quite a bit of expense is entailed in providing clothing—as present prices go.

It was shown at the meeting that the new building being erected near Exon by Hon. Sir E. R. Bowring in memory of Mr. John S. Munn, is being rapidly built, and the boys will probably occupy it ere the year 1919 closes.

Mr. Pittman, who has charge of the boys, reports their health much better, all round, than when living in town, and no illness has occurred for a long time.

STAR OF THE SEA ASSOCIATION.—Members of the Star of the Sea Association are requested to meet at their Hall on Thursday night, at 7 o'clock. A large attendance is desired. By order, WM. F. GRAHAM, Secretary.—Jan 29, 21.

DERAILED.—The Glencoe's express which was due to arrive last Saturday, was derailed last evening near Arnold's Cove, the engine, tender, and four cars, including the sleeper and diner, going off the track. Fortunately no one was injured, and the passengers were transferred to another train which arrived to-day.

The Ethie called to-day for Placentia, to relieve the Argyle, while the latter comes here for general repairs.

"ELIHU." The jokes which have been made about the name of Mr. Elihu Root, America's ex-Secretary of State, who accompanies President Wilson to the Peace Conference, are legion. He is rather fond, however, of telling this favourite against himself. One day he said to his office-boy, "Who has taken my waste-paper basket?" "Mr. Johnston, sir, the caretaker," was the reply. Some time later Mr. Root asked, "James, who opened that window?" "Mr. Smith, sir, the window-cleaner." "Now look here," said Mr. Root; "we call men by their first names here. We don't 'mister' them in this office. Do you understand?" "Yes, sir." Ten minutes afterwards the door opened and the shrill voice of James was heard saying, "There's a man wants to see you, Elihu!"

The Car of Quality Is

"THE DODGE"

Dodge Bros. motor car, since its introduction in the motor world, has given universal satisfaction, and is regarded as one of the best cars on the road. Every-thing entering into its manufacture is of the best and the Company's policy has always been "Is it good enough for the Dodge?"

It is not the extreme freakish one year car, but sensibly built to give years of service and always to look good. Real leather upholstery, 116 inch wheel base, one-man top, 32 x 3 1/2 tires (rear non-skid), electric starting and lighting, all attest to the fact that the car is built up to a standard and not down to a price.

Quidi Vidi Distribution.

The distribution of prizes at Quidi Vidi School Room last night was a very happy and merry event.

In the afternoon a tea was given to the children, and as invariably happens the children regaled themselves heartily. Their appetites being still unappetized they made rapid inroads upon the candy which was a specialty of the evening. A nice programme had been prepared, and started at 8 o'clock, Rev. Dr. Jones being Chairman during the performance of the same. The programme was as follows:—

1. Opening Chorus—"Britannia," Chairman's Remarks.
2. Son—"My Task," by Marjorie and Philip Snow.
3. Reading—"Allan's Letter," by the Superintendent.
4. Recitation—"Xmas Stocking," by Mina Martin.
5. Speech—Mr. Henry Cook, Supt. Virginia School.
6. Dialogue—"Jenny's Secret," by Miss Lizzie Snow.
7. Recitation—by Miss Lizzie Snow.
8. Children's Story—by Mrs. (Rev. Dr.) Jones.
9. Distribution of Prizes by Mrs. Jones.
10. Address—by Rev. (Capt.) Clayton.
11. Song and Chorus—"Hurrah for the Lads in Khaki."
12. Recitation—"Hang up the Baby's Stocking," by Ada Martin.
13. Dialogue—"Mrs. Hooligan's New Spring Hat."
14. Recitation—by Mary Morris.
15. Speech by Mr. E. Maidment.
16. Chairman's closing remarks.
17. "GOD SAVE THE KING."

There were a few changes in the order of the programme as here set down. Miss Lewis, the accompanist of the evening, singing a song. The various items were undoubtedly well rendered and must have given great pleasure to the promoters as they listened to the very hearty applause which greeted the different performers. One little girl did exceptionally well, viz. Mary Morris, who in a quite natural and free and easy style recited to the admiration of all.

The story by Mrs. (Rev.) Dr. Jones was told in such a way that both adults and children enjoyed it and her role in presenting the prizes was nicely sustained.

The money accruing from the sale of candy and the general collection taken up will be used for acquiring a library in memory of Rev. G. R. Godden, to be placed in the schoolroom. Anyone who wishes to give a book to this library may do so. Already a hundred volumes or more are in sight as the outcome of last night's attempt. More are needed. Congratulations are due all concerned for the pleasing entertainment given last night and for the genuine interest displayed by the people at Quidi Vidi in their Sunday School.

Every Saturday evening after 7 o'clock, Choice Ends of Beef, Mutton, Lamb, Pork will be sold at cost. ELLIS & CO., LTD., 203 Water Street—nov.29.

Curling.

For the first time in 1919, the Curlers, tried their hand at play last night. The ice was in very good condition, and enthusiasm was great, and the various trial matches were well contested. To-night the first match will be played between the Reds and Greens, for the Bonavista trophy, and a good game is expected. Each team feels confident of carrying off the honors and lovers of the "Roarin'" game are welcome to view the contest.

Aggression.

(From the Washington Star.) When the Germans approach the Belgians," said Colonel House at a luncheon, "when the Germans talk about guarantees against Belgian aggression, I am strongly reminded of little Willie. "Little Willie ran howling with rage to his mamma. "That goat butted me!" he roared. "The bad goat butted me in the stomach!" "Are you sure you weren't teasing it?" his mamma asked. "No, no," wailed Willie. "What would I tease it for? I was only just carvin' my name on its back with my new penknife."

Personal Mention.

Rev. P. O'Brien, Bay Bulls, and Rev. F. Tierney, Petty Hr., were in the city yesterday. Dr. Hogan, of St. Mary's, is at present visiting the city. Mr. A. F. Buffett, of Grand Bank, registered at the Croable. Rev. H. Boyle, of Freshwater, B.D.V. who has been in town for the past few days returned home this morning. Constable Vail, of Marystown, returns to his station by next steamer.

Clyde Strike Serious.

Scotch Miners Throw Down Their Tools.

Movement to Restore Kaiser---Secret Treaties Raise Discussion---Newfoundland Wrecked Crew at New York.

THE STRIKE SITUATION.
LONDON, Jan. 29. The strike on the Clyde was reported today to be growing more serious. Almost all the big shipyards and engineering works are on the verge of closing down or are carrying on their work with small forces.

SYMPATHY STRIKE.
LONDON, Jan. 29. Miners in many of the collieries in West Scotland have struck in sympathy with the men who threw down their tools at the Clyde. This action was taken in spite of their leaders' protest.

ROBERTS ON LABOR.
LONDON, Jan. 29. Weakness and subordination of convictions to personal interests, is charged against many of the Trades' Union leaders by Food Controller George H. Roberts, in an interview printed in the Mail today. He says that this is one of the chief causes of the present anarchy in the industrial circles of Great Britain. Mr. Roberts, who is a veteran leader and who was recently Minister of Labor, said, "there must be a fight between revolution and re-construction. If young bloods are allowed to smash the Trades' Union organization, we will have to face a long period of industrial chaos and a long process of disillusionment. The end of this will find the workers infinitely worse off than they are to-day. Labor's demands can never be completely realized without efficiency of production. I greatly deplore the weakness of those leaders who fail to recognize their responsibility."

WILL RETURN TO WORK.
LONDON, Jan. 29. The coal miners of Fifeshire, Scotland, by a majority of 16,000 votes cast to-day, decided to return to work. The miners who number 24,000, went on strike Tuesday.

FINLAND'S INDEPENDENCE.
PARIS, Jan. 29. The French Government, according to the Journal, has proposed to the Powers that Finland be recognized as an independent nation.

REPARATION FIRST.
COPENHAGEN, Jan. 28. The Norwegian Sailors' Organization has passed a resolution declining to assist in carrying food to Germany until the German Government has paid an indemnity of $4,000,000 for members of their organization who were victims of submarines.

DISCUSS WILSON'S PLAN.
PARIS, Jan. 29. Great Britain's War Cabinet held a special meeting yesterday afternoon at three o'clock to discuss the difficulty arising between President Wilson's plan for the disposal of the German colonies and that of the other conferees, according to the Paris edition of the London Daily Mail, which adds, it is believed that some approach was made towards Mr. Wilson's viewpoint at the meeting of the Supreme Council, following Mr. Wilson's impromptu speech giving more details of his plan.

SECRET TREATIES.
PARIS, Jan. 29. In connection with the territorial questions before it, the Peace Conference is confronted by no less than three secret treaties, says the Paris edition of the London Daily Mail, today. The first is the treaty between Great Britain, France and Italy disposing of the Adriatic coast which conflicts violently with Jugo-Slav and Czecho-Slovak interests. The second is the treaty between Great Britain and Japan, under which Japan gets the German islands in the North Pacific. The third is the treaty between Great Britain and the King of the Hedjaz, under which Damascus forms a part of the territory given to the Hedjaz kingdom.

WANTS THE KAISER BACK.
PARIS, Jan. 29. Field Marshal Von Hindenburg, according to the Echo de Paris, is endeavoring to bring about the return of former Emperor William after the meeting of the National Assembly. Leading German manufacturers in Westphalia are said to be interested in the plan. The newspaper adds that the former Emperor wrote to Premier Ebert that he would accept whatever residence in Germany was assigned to him. Ebert is said to have replied that only the National Assembly would be qualified to decide the question.

THE POLISH QUESTION.
PARIS, Jan. 29. The Supreme Council of the Peace Conference had before it for consideration on assembling this morning, the Polish question and the instructions to be given the Allied mission to Poland, recently authorized and about to leave on its eastward journey. The program called for the appearance of Polish and Czecho-Slovak representatives before the Council to present their views.

RUSSIA'S INTERESTS.
PARIS, Jan. 29. A declaration has been issued and delivered to the Allied Governments by what in the document is called "a conference of Russian ambassadors and business men in Paris." The declaration says the object of the conference was to defend the rights and interests of Russia by "solemnly proclaiming in the name and by the order of the United Government of Russia, the principles by which the nation's policy will be inspired."

NEW PRESIDENT OF GERMAN REPUBLIC.
AMSTERDAM, Jan. 29. Prince Max, of Baden, the former German Chancellor, will be nomi-ated by the German Social Democrats and the German Democrats as the candidate for the Presidency of the German Republic, according to a Berlin despatch printed in a Vienna newspaper.

BONUSES FOR BRITISH TARS.
LONDON, Jan. 29. The Admiralty announces that, pending the conclusions of the Committee of Inquiry on the subject, it has decided to increase the pay of all Navy men, ranging from an extra shilling per day for ordinary seamen to six shillings for captains and higher ranks, with similar increases to the Royal Marines. This extra pay, it is declared, must be regarded as a bonus and not as representing an increase of the present pay, which may ultimately be considered a just and equitable remuneration.

HELEN STEWART'S CREW AT NEW YORK.

NEW YORK, Jan. 29. The entire crew of eight members of the British sloop, Helen Stewart, which was abandoned when she went ashore on one of the Azore Islands a few weeks ago on a voyage from Cadix, Spain, to St. John's, Nfld., arrived here today on the American steamship Westford. The Westford put in at Ponta Delgada for coal and found the crew there. The Helen Stewart was carrying salt to Newfoundland after having taken fish across on the eastward voyage.

RUSSIANS BOUND HOME.
COPENHAGEN, Jan. 29. The hospital ship Russ, with fully armed and equipped Russian troops en route to Reval from the French front, called here yesterday. The Russian troops reported on their way to Russia from France, probably a part of the Russian divisions which participated in the operations on the Western Front in the last two years of the war. Reval is the capital and main seaport of Esthonia.

DISURBANCE IN AUSTRIA.
LAIBACH, Jan. 29. Reports from Marburg, a town in Styria, Austria, state that quite a serious disturbance broke out there on the arrival of an American debarcation commission, which was under command of Col. Miles. It is reported that five persons were killed and thirty injured. General Majster, of the Jugo-Slav army, is said to have restored order there.

RETURNING FROM FRANCE.
LONDON, Jan. 29. The Third Canadian Division is expected in England from Germany and France this week. Bramshott Camp has been cleared for the infantry and Borden Camp for the artillery. The troops in these camps have been moved to Ripon, in Yorkshire, where a large Canadian construction camp is being opened. The Second Division was the last Canadian division remaining in Germany, Sir Douglas Haig having reviewed it there.

IRISH AFFAIRS.
LONDON, Jan. 29. Following the brutal murders of Constables O'Donnell and O'Connell, near Tipperary, martial law is being rigidly applied in the southern part of the country. Large bodies of troops have been drafted to Tipperary, Fethard and other places. Fairs, markets and public meetings of any kind are prohibited. Sinn Feiners and others are beginning to realize the consequence that murder and sedition bring in their train, trade and commerce being stopped till the people come to their senses. Roman Catholic clergymen are now denouncing murders and outrages. Mons. Ryan, in Tipperary, on Sunday, said mass for the repose of the souls of the murdered men, who, he said, were martyrs. It was the duty of the soldier to prepare himself for death before facing bullets, even a rebel on the scaffold had the benefit of the clergy, but these men, declared Mons. Ryan, were murdered by men with blackened faces and black hearts, without giving them a chance. The people must denounce the miscreants. God help poor Ireland if she followed this lead of blood. Many punishments for illegal drilling have been inflicted in various parts of the south and west. It is feared that the strike troubles of Belfast and elsewhere will further complicate the position of Ireland.

APPEAL TO STRIKERS.
BERLIN, Jan. 28. The Vorwaerts publishes an appeal to the striking coal miners from the Workmen's Council in the Government printing office. The appeal says, "Coal miners, comrades, furnish us with fuel. Its shortage is preventing the production of paper money in the Government printing office; if the resulting shutting of the city's gas supply goes on wages for the workman and money for the support of the unemployed cannot be paid. Furnish us with coal.

ANTI-AIRCRAFT GUNS.
LONDON, Jan. 28. (Via Reuter's Ottawa Agency)—The first statement, issued officially, emphasizes the great value and high standard of work performed by the anti-aircraft guns, searchlights and air machine guns in France. The statement points out that the standard of efficiency obtained, whereby such remarkable results were obtained during the final years of war, reflects the greatest credit on all officers, men and civilians concerned. The anti-aircraft guns' total bag in France in 1918 was as follows: Hostile planes crashed or forced down in our lines, 171; Hostile planes forced down out of control, 73. During the same period special anti-aircraft machine guns used by the infantry accounted for 27 hostile planes, making a grand total for ten and a half months of 271 hostile planes. The anti-aircraft guns and searchlights are defensive rather than offensive, but over and above any physical effect obtained there remains the moral effect which produces results of no little value. No plane is able to make a good reconnaissance, take photographs or direct artillery fire, but is compelled to remain at a considerable height over 15,000 feet or continually dodge about to avoid shells. Moreover by a system of placing shells in the direction of and at the same height as the enemy planes, the latter have often been pointed out to our air craft. When out of the range of our guns, observation balloons, which the enemy constantly attacks, have always been under the watchful supervision of our anti-aircraft guns, which in addition to firing defensive barrages, warn telephonically of impending attacks. Although it is impossible to render a balloon absolutely immune against sudden attacks from behind low clouds or against large numbers of planes approaching simultaneously from all directions, yet many balloons and the lives of their occupants have been saved by the aid of the archies. The moral effect of the searchlights too is enormous. On many occasions the enemy bombing machines have been kept out of vital areas, as the one thing they particularly dislike is being held in a searchlight beam and shot at. Our lights have been so efficient that it was quite an ordinary thing to pick up and hold an enemy aircraft for long periods. In August last the light flying squadron of the R. A. F. commenced operations, and it was mainly due to the efficiency of the searchlight, that night attacking by our planes became so remarkably successful. When the enemy aircraft was not actually picked up and held in the beam, and incidentally handed over wide areas from beam to beam they were pointed out by switching lights in the direction of the sound of the engine of the hostile plane. Lastly, twenty-five enemy machines were destroyed in three months and hostile bombing was thereby enormously reduced. The mere holding of a hostile machine in a beam has often caused it to shed all its bombs at once and usually in the open in order to enable it to become sufficiently light to rise and get away from the beam quickly. It is an undoubted fact that no keener or smarter lot of officers and men than the anti-aircrafters exist. This is not a safe job. Casualties have been low, but that was primarily due to the fact that the forward area anti-aircraft guns are extremely mobile and so highly trained they can move in ten seconds to new positions when spotted by the enemy gunners. As a sample of efficiency and pluck, one anti-aircraft battery gained three Military Crosses and twelve medals in three months all immediate awards for bravery in action, and means an isolated case, the reverse in fact.

Will Tennyson's Prophecy Be Fulfilled.

(By J. W. Mitchell.)
 In Tennyson's Locksley Hall, written between seventy-five and eighty years ago, there appear lines which we must in the light of events, regard as truly prophetic. They foreshadow a great war of nations and the use of great air forces therein, and predict that it will lead to a union of the free peoples of the world in some kind of "parliament" or "federation" that will mean the end of war.

The prophecy is the reasoned prophecy of a true seer. Of course, as is usually the case with poetry, much is left to be filled in. By inference, Tennyson says that the relation of nation to nation rests upon a false and insecure foundation and that it will take a great world war, intensified in its horror through the application of modern science and inventions, to show the peoples this great truth and to help them to find their relations upon a rock of truth and righteousness.

A further fair inference to be drawn from the closing lines in the extract given below is that out of the war will grow a realisation, quickened by the spirit of universal brotherhood, of the interdependence of nations and their moral obligation to be each other's keeper. In short, there will grow up an international spirit and law that will insure, in future, the settlement of international affairs, not through the application of arbitrary might and brute force to satisfy passion, vain national pride, lust of conquest or the caprice of a despot,—but through either the direct, frank, square-dealing of one nation with another, or, falling this, an international court of arbitration, whose guiding principle will be equity and justice, broad-based upon the Golden Rule.

The following are the lines to which we refer:

"For I dip't into the future, far as human eye could see,
 Saw the Vision of the world, and all the wonder that would be;
 Saw the heavens fill with commerce, argosies of magic sails,
 Pilots of the purple twilight, dropping down with costly bales;
 Heard the heavens fill with shouting, and there rain'd a ghastly dew
 From the nation's airy navies grappling in the central blue."

Far along the world-wide whisper of the south-wind rushing warm,
 With the standards of the peoples plunging thro' a thunder storm;
 Till the war-drum throbb'd no longer, and the battle-flags were fur'd
 In the Parliament of man, the Federation of the world."

The great world war, with its aerial navies "grappling in the central blue," we have already experienced. The world now yearns for the fulfilment of the balance of the prophecy, the conclusion of a peace settlement which will both satisfy the ends of justice and insure a permanent peace. It is no more in the best interests of the criminal nations themselves than those of the Allies that there should be undue leniency and a miscarriage of justice. But the largest, the most difficult problem to solve is that of the insurance of a permanent peace. Should the representatives of any nation take a narrow stand, based upon selfishness, they should either be instructed from home to modify their stand or be recalled and replaced. Failing this, the representatives of other countries should politely inform them that they will not be permitted to stand in the way of the conclusion of a just and permanent peace arrangement.

It is fair to assume that at the peace conference no unjust demands will be made of any individual nation to sacrifice its inherent rights. Hence, should any nation after the catastrophe through which the world has just passed, take a course which will, even in the slightest degree sow the seeds of a future war, it will, by such act, stand before the world as a criminal of the class which plotted, planned and precipitated the armageddon of the world has just experienced.

May the representatives at the peace conference of the great free nations of the world fully justify their selection and through their wisdom inaugurate "the Parliament of man, the Federation of the world," which the poet and prophet so ardently wished and hoped for three-quarters of a century ago.
