CHAPTER X.
THE TAMING PROCESS.

"The man fiddled on, doing nothing. But the time came when he thought and acted. He loved still, but he dared not, nay, would not—for he would dare all that man may dare—he would not break his vow, and the pact was kept.

"Henceforth the streams divide—one shines on, lighted by wealth, fame, and public favor; the other must struggle o'er the stones, and through the rocks into an ocean of success. Bella, you were the girl; I was the man. Our pact must be kept," and he looked down into her eyes and her white face with a smile, stern and set.

The girl hid her face from it and shuddered.

"Reginald," she said so hoarsely that he had to bend his head to hear her, "Reginald, you will kill me!"

He shook his head.

"No Bella, women do not die of broken hearts, whatever men may do. Still, were it so, the pact must be kept and you know it."

She moaned like a wounded stag and lifted her pale face again.

"I know it," she breathed. "I know it, and you—you would kill me before your eyes if I stood in your way."

"I should," he said, and his face became grand with the intensity of firmness. "I should. Between us, who have loved and love—for you know I love you—there can be no deceit. Our eyes can look through its mask; our hearts can wear none. Three years ago I offered you my love—no weak, flimsy bauble, but love—under these conditions. You would have taken it with worse gladly, thoughtlessly. I set before you as one dealing with life and death the certain future when the break would come. You took it, still with wide-open eyes, with entire knowledge of the consequences. The break has come. We keep the pact. We part, loving still, mark, but saying farewell forever!"

She was calm, unnaturally calm now, white to the very lips, and short of breath. In her eyes was the look of the leopardess when she feels the life blood oozing from the mortal wound. In her heart was a resolution born of despair—despair, for, from the sentence that had fallen from the lips above her, she knew there was no escape, no appeal.

"You love me still?" she asked, laying her hands upon her heart, clasped till the diamonds on them cut the interlaced fingers. "You love me still?"

"You know it," he replied, meeting her gaze with clear, unshrinking eyes.

"I know it," she said, as if in answer to a last doubt. "You would not speak falsely to me. You love me still, and that must be my consolation. I will clasp it to my bosom like a dove. Reginald, you did not complete your story. You said nothing of the care and love you lavished on the dancing girl. You said nothing of the weary toil you bestowed upon her. You said nothing of the labors which, with a willing hand, you underwent to polish the rough pebble and make it worthy of a place in your heart. For I am but a pebble, polished though I am, to be flung aside, even as you fling me aside now, Reginald. Of all this you said nothing. It was left for me to say. I tell you that though I, who lay here for the last time, am still in outward form that despoiled thing, a ballet girl, within, and she struck her white bosom with her clinched hands, "I have a soul attuned by yourself to your own. You smile; you would smile if I lay in my coffin, Reginald, for your heart is adamant, immovable. I give you proof of what I say. The streams must separate, I say you; 'they shall,' say I. You go through rock to fortune, and the object you have set yourself—Heaven knows what it be; I don't even ask! I stop, and scorning the life you will not render bearable by your love, fall into the silent pool whose name is Death."

As solemn, almost as stern as his, her voice breathed out the threat, for such it was.

"His face changed not a whit. Cold, composed, and calm it turned to hers. "Bella, you speak the truth, as you think; but you err. I know; and knowing am convinced that you lack the courage. Death is a poet's word and easy to rhyme. To realize it by one's own hand—by one so small, so white, so weak as this—is difficult, nay, 'tis impossible."

Her eyes lighted up with a flash of scorn for one moment, then relapsed into the old, awful look.

"Comfort yourself with that then," she said, "and go your way."

"I will," he replied, "I will—a stormy, dangerous way, Bella, on which you could not go, at least, by my side; and I know no other place would satisfy you. I go my way to success or—You go yours—easy, pleasant, and certain at an end. In both our hearts the barb remains: pluck out yours, as I with might and main shall have to pluck out mine."

She shook her head and silently rose from her position.

He took out his watch and looked at it with a sharp, calculating glance, then raised his eyes to where she stood leaning against the mantel, white still, but as resolute as himself.

Something in the turn of her lips kept him silent for a few minutes. He was suffering like herself and could not trust himself to speak.

Presently he rose and looked round for his coat. Putting it on and holding his hat in his hand he walked up to her.

She raised her eyes—clear, bright, blue eyes—as calm as his own.

"You are going?" she said, in a low, deathly voice.

"Yes," he said.

"Forever?" she asked.

"Forever," he replied, solemnly.

She drew near him and held up her face, as she had held it up a score of times.

"One kiss—the last."

His lips quivered for the first time, but the well-trained face did not betray him.

He bent his head.

With a low cry of inexpressible agony she threw her arms round his neck, devouring every inch of his face with her greedy eyes, and caressing his neck with her poor, fond fingers.

Then, as he gently but firmly unclasped them and withdrew from her embrace; she turned and stood upright, with her eyes fixed upon him as he walked toward the door.

As it closed behind him she seemed to wake from the stupor of despair and, with a low cry, sank into a chair.

As she did so a sealed packet lying on the table caught her eye.

Anything, the slightest morsel pertaining to him, was precious to her. She caught at it and tore it open. A score of bank-notes fell fluttering to the floor.

She gazed at them and turned the envelope over. Not a word—simply the money.

"Oh, cruel, cruel!" she cried, flinging herself down upon them and rocking herself in the agony of her grief. "Oh, cruel, cruel!"

Thus she sat for five minutes, then she sprang up and went to one of the small cabinets. The wild outburst of grief had been supplanted by the old, unnatural calm.

The notes lay on the floor; she tramped on them as she returned from the cabinet with a small vial in her hand.

Some chocolate remained in the cup. With a low cry of half-mad delight she caught it up.

His lips had touched it. Even in death she should share with him.

Quickly, as if to give herself no time for hesitation, she emptied the vial into the cup and raised it to her lips.

"The pact is kept!" she cried, and drained the draught to the dregs.

One moment more and the costly toy fell with a dull crash upon the Turkey carpet. Another and the more precious human toy had followed it.

Forsoaken and destroyed they lay side by side, to be thrown, with all other broken china and broken lives, to the dust whence they came.

And the destroyer? Relentless, un pitying, even to herself, he had gone on his way.

Woe be to those whose fate may cast them across his path, for he who had no mercy for himself can have none for them!

A CANDID CONFESSION.
Fear is the last of ills. In time we hate that which we often fear.—ANTONY & CLEOPATRA.

OTHER TABLETS NOT ASPIRIN AT ALL

Only Tablets with "Bayer Cross" are Genuine Aspirin

If you don't see the "Bayer Cross" on the tablets, you are not getting Aspirin—Remember this!

Genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" are now made in America by an American Company. No German interest whatever, all rights being purchased from the United States Government.

During the war, acid imitations were sold as Aspirin in pill boxes and various other containers. The "Bayer Cross" is your only way of knowing that you are getting genuine Aspirin, proved safe by millions for Headache, Neuralgia, Colds, Rheumatism, Lumbago, Neuritis, and for pain generally.

Aspirin is the trade mark (Newfoundland Registration No. 761) of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.

Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets—also larger size "Bayer" packages can be had at drug stores.

This Splendid Baby Boy

strong, active, with some, happy little features as his portrait tells. He has been reared on Neave's Food. Healthy, vigorous and bright, the bonny little chap has secured the first essential for his life success—a clear brain in a strong body.

Neave's Food

Babies thrive on Neave's Food

Dr. D.Sc. (Edin.), B.Sc., M.D., C.M., D.P.H., Peter Lunn, W., writes—"My baby girl is thriving admirably on your food. . . . I have been unable to feed her, and previously tried other infant foods without success."

Both the squire and Grace were astonished to see him. They were just sitting down to dinner when he entered in his cool, languid way and bid them good-evening.

"Hello!" said the squire; "back already, Reginald? You soon got your business over."

"Yes, sir," was the reply; "very quickly. It was an affair of a very few minutes," and he smiled grimly as he thought of the broken heart he had left and the dull, dead pain in his own.

"Well, I'm glad to see you back. Grace and I were missing you—weren't we, Grace?"

"No, I was not," said Grace, coolly. "Shall we put the fowls back? They'll be spoiled."

"Don't ruin them for me," said the captain, taking the rather uncivil remark with his usual indifferent politeness. "I have had half a dinner, and will finish the rest when I come down. Pray go on, sir."

"All right," said the squire; "I'll tell James to keep the mutton down till you come," and turning to the butler he gave the order.

Reginald Dartmouth was not long in exchanging his traveling-suit for an evening one, and sauntered into the room again in a few minutes as carefully dressed as usual, and looking, if anything, more serene and careless.

"Have some fowl or some mutton?" said Grace.

He would have fowl, he said, and she cut him a wing.

"Well," said the squire, "you don't look any the worse for your flying journey. Here's to your health!" and in the old-fashioned way he lifted the glass with a bow.

"No," said Reginald, bowing also, "I don't feel any worse, either. Any news, sir?"

"None, save that Grace has thrown the pony," and he looked over with a shake of his head at the culprit.

"Is that all?" said Reginald, significantly. "Is that the only piece of mischief, Miss Grace?"

"Yes, that is all," she retorted. "And pray, what mischief have you been doing since you have been away?"

He smiled almost sweetly.

"Mischief?" he repeated. "None. I have been seeing to some business that ought to have been got through long ago, Miss Grace. And so you have thrown the pony? Is he hurt seriously?"

"No," said the squire; "I don't think so."

"I must look at him to-morrow," said Reginald, and he held his plate for come mutton.

The pain at his heart was as bad and as intense as ever, but he could eat. Some men, especially those of Reginald Dartmouth's caliber, could enjoy their dinner if they were to be hanged ten minutes later.

After dinner he lighted a cigar and strolled out upon the terrace.

The moon was just creeping above the trees. Grace was in the drawing-room, the squire in the easy-chair, drifting through the land of dreams.

Reginald knew that he should be in the drawing-room, but for the moment he felt unequal to bearing the rough, uncultivated rudeness—for it was little else—of the girl he had set himself to marry. His heart was too full of the pleading voice and sorrowful eyes he had left behind him for evermore, and he gave way to the only weakness he had ever felt in his life, and, leaning over the terrace, gazed at the cloud of smoke and continued to harden his heart.

While he was in this position a foot-step sounded behind him, and turning, he saw Grace.

Military Control For Ireland.

Strong Forces Will Take Charge of Police Work--Irish Republic At War With Britain--Prince Within an Ace of Death--Fear of Earthquake Cause Many Italians to Camp Out--Huns Standing on Their Dignity.

THE IRISH DISORDERS.

TORONTO, May 14. A special cable to the Mail and Empire says that, accepting at its face value the claim the Sinn Fein has been trying to prove by speech and act, that actually an Irish Republic is at war with the British Empire, the government will abandon its present plan for handling crime on the island. To this end all arms of the British army in Ireland are being tremendously strengthened. This applies especially to cavalry and motor machine gun outfits. As soon as the force there is adequate it will, under the command of Sir Nevill Macready, take over all police functions. In fact it is said that southern Ireland may then be placed under martial law. This would be nothing more or less than notice to the Irish volunteers that their challenge had been accepted and that government troops would meet rifle and revolver fire with machine guns and possible shrapnel. The government, it is said, feels itself comforted with two alternatives, the acceptance of the implied challenge of civil war in Ireland or acquiescence in the establishment of an Irish republic as a result of the widespread disorders in the island culminating yesterday in attacks on barracks at fifty places in Ireland. Some morning newspapers infer from the statements made by Lord Birkenhead, Lord High Chancellor, last night that the government has decided to send more troops to Ireland, as the chancellor intimated that police officers in future will be accompanied everywhere by armed soldiers. "We have to-day taken special and wholly exceptional steps," Lord Birkenhead said, "so that not one of these in their heroic work will be left unattended by members of the armed forces of the Crown."

PRINCE HAS NARROW ESCAPE.

LONDON, May 24. The Prince of Wales had a narrow escape to-day at Greymouth, N.Z., while motoring on a narrow and dangerous road skirting a ravine in Buller George, according to a despatch to the Central News. At one point the rear wheel of the Prince's motor car actually sunk over the gorge and the earth gave way. The motor car, however, quickly recovered. The Prince did not turn a hair, the despatch adds.

EARTHQUAKE IN ITALY.

LONDON, May 14. An earthquake to-day shook the Plateau of the Region of Udine, according to a Rome despatch to the Exchange Telegraph Company. People of several towns are camping out, the despatch adds, and the military have evacuated Osopfo Fort. No victims have been reported up to the present.

A GERMAN PROTEST.

LONDON, May 14. The German Cabinet, after a full discussion with the Ministers of Federal States, decided unanimously that Germany should not send representatives either to Spa or Brussels Conferences unless the French troops are entirely withdrawn from the main district by May 16, according to a Central News despatch from Berlin to-day. It was urged that every pretext for continued occupation of the main region by French forces had been removed.

LOOKING TO CO-OPERATE.

DUBLIN, May 14. The plan of General Sir Nevill Macready, Commander of the Forces in Ireland, looking to closer co-operation between the police and military in an effort to suppress the disorders in Ireland, involves the establishment of military posts in isolated districts where police barracks had to be abandoned because of attacks on them, it is stated here on apparently good authority.

IRISH DISORDERS.

LONDON, May 14. A decision by the government to make an early appeal to the country by general election in an effort to fix upon a definite Irish policy has been reached, according to rumors current in London last night. In well informed circles these rumors are ridiculed and as yet there has been nothing to confirm them.

At the City Hall.

The Weekly Session of the Municipal Council was held Thursday evening. The Mayor and Councillors Ayre, Morris and Yimcombe were present.

A communication was read from the Colonial Secretary regarding the Tabling at the Legislature of last year's estimates of Revenue and Expenditure. A letter was also read from the Inspector General of Police that arrangements would be made, respecting the proposed building for the Gospel Mission on New Gower St., that would make the place less hazardous from a fire standpoint.

J. A. W. McNeilly, on behalf of Jas. Roll, claimed a sum of money, because he assumed he was ordered to continue his work as collector of Horse Taxes, etc., as usual, the Council, in the meantime, having appointed another man, ordered Mr. Roll be asked what he was employed at.

W. W. Blackall, on behalf of Wm. Clance, applied for the position of guardian of the bathing beach, Quidi Vidi Lake. He claimed Mr. Clance held the position for three years previous to enlistment in 1914. He now wishes to be re-appointed. Ordered Mr. Blackall be informed, that when the appointment is being made the application will be considered. Petition was read from the Tax Payers, Cornwall Avenue, West, asking that the ash collectors call at Further Appreciation.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir.—Let me express my appreciation of the attitude taken by our friend, Mike Murphy, the Barber, in refusing to join in the combine to raise the price of shaving and hair-cutting. Our friend Mike is under as much, if not more, expense, than any of the Barbers, for he has the largest Parlor in the City. He is a man who employs first class assistants, and also a man with a family. If he can run his business successfully at the old rates, why cannot others do so? His independent attitude in this instance means more than we can see at first sight, for it is a stroke, the first I think since the war, to give combines a rap over the knuckles. If we had more men like Murphy, the family man would get a chance to live.

Yours truly, APPRECIATION.

CANONIZATION CEREMONIES.

ROME, May 14.
Solemn ceremonies for the Canonization of Gabriel Possenti and Marie Alacoque were held in St. Peter's yesterday. Pope Benedict was carried in a chair of state to the Cathedral, being surrounded by a gorgeous group of ecclesiastics, officials of the civil and military courts of the Vatican, and members of the Sacred College, Gabriel Possenti, one of the Passionate Fathers, was renowned for his Sanctity and Miracles. He was born at Assisi, Italy, March 1, 1838, and died Feb. 27, 1862. He was buried at Isola Di Gran Sasso. Marguerite Marie Alacoque was a French Nun of the years of the seventeenth century. She was the founder of the worship of the Sacred Heart of Jesus.

DANIELS MAKES THE CHARGES.

WASHINGTON, May 15.
"Rear Admiral Sims robbed American destroyer crews of the credit due them, by leaving the investigation of their combats with submarines to the British Admiralty," Secretary Daniels told the Senate Naval Investigating Committee. Had he known that American officers were not reviewing circumstances of battles between American vessels and U-boats, he would have peremptorily ordered the Admiralty to adopt that course. Admiralty reports, and awards to Americans, were accepted by Sims, Daniels said, although the British demanded absolutely conclusive proof before giving the credit for the sinking of a submarine in the case of an American vessel, while using a less rigorous standard in the case of British ships.

FAMED FOR A DAY.

HYTHE, May 14.
The quaint village of Hythe, on the English Channel, five miles west of Folkestone, with its red roofed houses clustered on the green hills stretching up from the sea, is crowded to-night with British and French officials, who have come here to be in close proximity to the British and French Premiers when they enter into conference to-morrow at the nearby village of Lympe, with regard to the details of the approaching meeting of members of the Supreme Council with German leaders at Spa, Belgium. The actual participants in the conference will be limited to half a dozen, but a great number of experts and clerks have been mobilized in case they are required. The grounds of the home of Sir Philip Sassoon at Lympe, where David Lloyd George, the British Prime Minister, is resting, are being guarded by police and admission to the precincts of the village is refused to all persons except members of Lloyd George's official family. Lloyd George has not recovered from the illness which brought him to the country and he spent most of the day in bed. He however, was waiting on the steps of the Sassoon home to greet Premier Millerand and his party, which included H. Francois Marsal, French Minister of Finance, when they arrived from Folkestone, where they landed from a torpedo boat destroyer. The French statesmen were greeted at the docks by J. Austin Chamberlain.

THE MEXICAN SITUATION.

WASHINGTON, May 14.
The American Consul at Vera Cruz reported to-day that he had arranged for the departure of foreigners aboard Carranza's train under the flag of truce. The British Consul at Vera Cruz and two Americans are on this train. The department was also informed that a special session of the Mexican Congress had been called to name a Provisional President. The call was issued by a joint meeting of 75 Senators and Deputies, and a resolution adopted, provided that the Provisional President, thus named, could call a general election. Mexican rebel forces have apparently won the first phase of the battle against troops still loyal to President Carranza, which have been fighting in a desperate battle north of San Marcos, State of Puebla, for the past four days. Advice from Vera Cruz indicates a break in the Carranza line, and an effort on the part of the President's men to break through the rebel lines and march northward. The struggle is still continuing, and new rebel reinforcements are reported to have reached the scene, coching up from the south. An international incident may be foreshadowed, by the fact that W. A. Body, British Consul for Vera Cruz, is in the camp of President Carranza. Advice gives no details of the reason for his presence there, but it is probable he accompanied the President in his flight from Mexico City. British authorities in Vera Cruz have arranged for a Mexican lieutenant to go by a special train to the battlefield, and make an attempt to rescue the Englishman. British and French warships have made their appearance in the Harbor of Vera Cruz, and four United States fighting vessels are at anchor there.

NO INTERVENTION.

PARIS, May 14.
The Cabinet at its meeting to-day, decided that the Government would decline to intervene with railroad companies to have demobilized and other punishments connected with the railroad strike annulled. Premier Millerand left for England immediately after the meeting. He was accompanied by the Finance Minister, Francois Marsal.

HAVE THEY COURAGE?

LONDON, May 14.
A decision by the Government to make an early appeal to the country by a general election in an effort to fix upon a definite Irish policy, has been reached, according to rumors current in London last night, but in well informed circles these rumors are ridiculed, and as yet there has been nothing to confirm them.

DISORDERS CONTINUE.

DUBLIN, May 14.
Several additional attacks, on Government property and other incidents occurred in various parts of Ireland last night, but up to noon to-day reports indicated that continued activity of armed bands was not on a like scale of Wednesday night's demonstrations. The police barracks, Courthouse and Post Office at Burrer, County Limerick, were burned while a motor van containing provisions for the police was burned near Sheriffs. Armed, masked men raided a motor garage in Dublin, overpowered the caretaker and took away an automobile.

EX-BANKER SUICIDES.

MONTREAL, May 14.
Wm. Graham Brown, head of the firm of W. Graham Brown and Co., bond dealers, St. James St., Montreal, Manager of the Sovereign Bank at the time of its collapse some years ago, shot himself in the wash room of the Bank of Ottawa building to-night. He was under arrest on a charge of the theft of fifty thousand dollars from the Royal Bank of Canada.

ABOUT ARMENIA.

LONDON, May 14.
The War Office, in a communique issued to-night, announced it has no confirmation of reports that the Ukrainians have occupied Odessa or any other important town. Armenia, the War Office reports, has rejected the ultimatum of Azerbaijan, and is concentrating troops to repel the expected attack. Rumors that the Armenian Republic has surrendered to the Russian Government, so far as the British War Office knows, are unfounded. The communique says Armenia is negotiating for an alliance with Georgia, and has applied to the Entente for assistance.

FROM MEXICO.

EL PASO, May 14.
The latest official word, received up to ten o'clock to-day, was from General Alvarez Obregon, former candidate for the presidency of the Republic, who reported to Luis Montes De Oca, Revolutionary Consul here, that President Carranza's capture was only a matter of hours, and that a train of six hundred soldiers of the President's escort had been captured by forces under General Guadalupe Sanchez, said to be one of Obregon's strongest supporters in Vera Cruz.

A SPORTS CONTINGENT.

CAPE TOWN, S.A., May 15.
South Africa is sending to Europe a team of fourteen athletes comprising five cyclists, six boxers, two wrestlers, and one lady swimmer, to participate in the forthcoming Olympic Games. In addition the Dominion is also sending a team of nine riflemen.

ON THE JUMP.

VERA CRUZ, May 15.
President Carranza, who with a force of loyal troops, has been resisting Rebel attacks near San Marcos, State of Puebla, for the last five days, has broken through the Rebel lines to the southeast, and accompanied by one thousand men, has fled into the mountains between Puebla and Oraca, according to advices received here this morning. Before abandoning their position the Carranza troops destroyed their trains and war material, which could not be carried with them. Generals Margula and Urquiso, with some of the Carranza troops, are still fighting near San Marcos, for the purpose of retarding pursuit of the fleeing president.

SHORTENING DOWN.

PARIS, May 15.
General Nollet, head of the Allied Commission of Control in Germany, reports that an investigation in the neutral zone disclosed the probability that German troops in the Ruhr district shortly will conform to the numbers authorized by the protocol of last August. Marshal Foch, therefore has instructed General Degoutte, commander of the Allied troops on the Rhine, to send without delay an officer of his staff to Cassel to meet the German commander. He will arrange details for the evacuation by French troops of the Frankfurt district, which has been occupied since April sixth.

THOUGHTS ON VOICES.

Have you a pleasant voice? It is so often asserted that anyone can make his or her voice pleasing if not musical, and yet how often we hear voices that are very far from pleasing.

Of course our commonest fault is the nasal voice. Physicians ascribe this to colds, but I think a great many people who don't have adenoids do the high-pitched voices just because they place their voices wrongly.

When the Pitch Rises.

The high-pitched voice is the voice of excitement. Notice how quickly the pitch of a voice rises when the speaker of it is angry or excited.

It is not by partly because we are tired to be over-tense as a people our voices are too high-pitched? The people out of ten could drop their voices from one to a half dozen with advantage.

I Don't Mind a Husky Voice.

Personally, I even carry my like of a husky voice so far that I don't mind a friend of mine who has a husky voice the other day when she had a cold in her throat which pulled her voice down half an octave and made her a bit husky, and result was, to my way of thinking, the best improvement. Of course, I'd like to have the cold become permanent but I almost wish as results.

How We Hate an Affection!

People who speak too rapidly are pleasant to listen to, but I personally don't mind a drawl unless it is an affection. Funny isn't it? We resent an affection, even if it is an agreeable one? The appearance is the way in which each others through the sense of sight, and most of us are quite

Three Burning Questions

(Western Star.)

The three burning questions of the day to the forefront just now are: Improved transport facilities, both inland and coastal; main line road system, and amendment in the present Prohibition regulations. We have just returned from a trip along the south west section of the country. From Curling to Port aux Basques, and from Channel to Burgeo we found these three topics uppermost in the minds of those with whom we had the privilege to converse.

Pressure on our space permits us dealing with but one of these subjects to-day. The present state of our travel and transportation facilities is stifling the trade and commerce of the Dominion. For three months cross country transportation was entirely suspended and a months previous it was little better. The breakdown in the coastal service last fall was a great hardship to many parts of the country. The inadequacy of our various transportation systems to cope with the needs of the country have been plainly demonstrated. And the people are as one that a new policy of progress must be inaugurated if the development of the country is to go on, and they are prepared to support the Government heartily in any steps it might take to bring about an improvement in our travel and transportation facilities. It is a big problem, but we have in our administration men with souls large enough to grapple with the situation and not only to level up this all important public service to the present needs of the country, but to make due provision for its future advancement and development.

Steamer for Straits.

(Western Star.)

Now that navigation is again open, those who have occasion to travel or in any other way use the North-west Coast service are keenly interested in as to what steamer will replace the Ethie on that route. The Diana is now on a trip to the coast, and it is rumoured that she will likely make one or two more trips. So far so good. But as a passenger ship, opinion is expressed on all sides that she is utterly unsuitable. She is without sanitary arrangements and her passenger accommodations are nil. Women travelling by her would be subjected to all kinds of indignities. Considering the large number of people who travel up and down this route throughout the season, it is hoped a suitable boat will be placed here. Even the Ethie last year was unable to satisfactorily cope with the situation. On more than one occasion we witnessed more than 200 passengers on her at one time. There was scarcely standing room upon her decks. A steamer of the Genesee class is what the needs of this coast call for.

30,000 Jews Parade.

TORONTO, May 10.—The greatest Jewish demonstration that has ever taken place in Toronto was staged in an immense parade through the streets yesterday afternoon and a meeting last night in Massey Hall that was attended by about 3,500 persons. The demonstration was meant as an expression of gratitude to Great Britain for the decision of the San Remo Conference to restore Palestine to the Jews. In the parade were about 30,000 Jews.

TIRED OF IT.

I've grown so tired of striking that work looks good to me; though I've had little liking, of late, for industry. The war got me unsettled, unfit for honest toil, and, like a palmyre mottled, I reared and pawed the soil. I called on men and brothers to come and strike with me, and set their dads and mothers from tyrants' shackles free. And all the boys responded, and quit their useful tasks, grew whiskers many-fringed, and yawned from kegs and casks. Like me, they called on workers to throw their handsaws down, and join the ranks of shirkers who thronged the idle town. And so our graft kept spreading, and ran us all in debt, and very few were treading the paths where toilers sweat. I sat, with other bumptkins, around the Blue Front store, and no one grew two pumpkins where but one grew before. And no one plowed a furrow, or made an avil ring, or came out from his burrow, to laugh and dance and sing. But all were talking sorrow, and pessimism black, and swearing that to-morrow would see our bulwarks crack. And now, I'm tired of striking, I need some iron men, and gladly I'd go hiking to make things hum again.

I want another bottle of "Brick's Tasteless", it is the best preparation I have ever taken to give me an appetite.—Apr 28, 1918

Musical Instruments in Church.

While it is certain that as early as the fifteenth century instruments besides the organ were used in church in connection with polyphonic liturgical compositions, it has not been definitely ascertained to what extent that was the case, what passages were played by the instruments alone, and where they simply reinforced the voices.

The difficulty of determining the precise nature of instrumental co-operation with the voice is increased by the fact that in those days the text was applied by the composer to only one voice—generally the cantus, or upper voice. In accordance with this model the singers themselves applied the text to the other voices as they proceeded. At all events the instrument or as a substitute for the human voice, and had no independent function in our modern sense.

Furthermore, they were employed with sole reference to their pitch and not to their timbre, or tone-quality. Thus, instruments of the violin family and flutes would play with the high voices—sopranos and altos—whereas horns and trombones were assigned to the tenor and bass parts.

It was with the advent of monody that the use of instruments in connection with the voices in church music received a great impetus. The closely-knit, compact, polyphonic structure which had predominated up to this time, needed no extraneous aid for its effectiveness and sonority. This was not the case with the new style of composition rapidly superseding the old school. It depended to a great extent for its tonal body, and artistic existence on the aid of instruments.

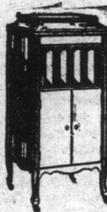

The great perfection reached in the construction of stringed instruments in the sixteenth century was both a manifestation of, and an aid to, the growing tendency. Virtually, not only on stringed, but also on wind instruments was a common accomplishment. The character and individuality of the instruments, so to speak, were being made available as means of expression for the subjective moods, dramatic feelings and conceptions of the composer.

The "Die-Hards" Day.

The battle of Albuera, one of the fiercest, in proportion to the number of combatants, in which the British infantry ever were engaged, and one of the most shining examples of their stubborn refusal to admit defeat, was fought on May 16, 1811, as the result of an attempt by Marshal Soult to relieve Badajoz, then besieged by Anglo-Spanish armies under Marshal Beresford and General Blake. It cannot be said, however, that the all-ed generalship was equally creditable! The Spaniards, badly handled, behaved ill; and Marshal Beresford, though displaying conspicuous courage did not show as conspicuous ability. The battle, indeed, seemed lost at one time, when the mist, by which the day was obscured, enabled the Polish cavalry to surprise a British brigade, when deployed, and to cut it to pieces. Then came the memorable charge of Cole's Fusilier Brigade, which, acting on an order that Col. (later Viscount) Hardinge gave on his own responsibility, advanced to a height, the key of the position, which the French had seized, and after a murderous conflict drove them headlong down. It was then that the 87th Regt. earned its popular nickname from the dying adjutant of its colonel, Inglis, "Fifty-seventh! Die hard!" They obeyed. Out of 570 bayonets, they lost their colonel, 22 officers and 410 rank and file. Altogether, the allies lost some 7,000 men, of whom 4,500 were English, the rest Spanish and Portuguese. The French casualties were about 1,000 greater; and, although it has been claimed that the conflict was drawn, the significant fact remains that Soult drew off and left the field in possession of the British, who made at least a formal appearance of resuming the siege of Badajoz, although that fortress was not then to fall, a barren enough fruit of so much bloodshed.

Legislation Needed.

There were no undivided opinions expressed yesterday that a settlement of the Longshoremen's strike did not come a moment too soon to save a situation rapidly verging on disaster, both for labor and capital. Had the steamships Rosalind and Sachem left port with cargoes undischarged, the loss to trade and industry would have been almost beyond calculation, for it is true that neither of these, nor other boats, would have been continued in the ocean freight carrying service from British and United States ports to St. John's while conditions of such a chaotic nature existed. But wisdom was applied to decision and all the parties to the dispute made compromises, which have been mutually accepted, and it is to be hoped that good counsel will henceforth prevent a recurrence of any labor troubles amongst our people, especially as we are so entirely dependent on the outside world for all our necessities. The refusal of labor organizations to work at discharging steamboats would have such an effect on the whole dominion that the consequences would be appalling. Business would stagnate and the tide of commerce flow past the city to elsewhere. Of employment, even for non-strikers, there would be none, and bankruptcy would inevitably ensue. Without imports there could be no exports, for if labor intended to be consistent in its policy of striking, it would neither load nor unload cargoes. The result can better be imagined than described, if such a condition existed.

It is impossible to play with fire and not be burned. A tie-up of industries for two months in St. John's, and ruin must surely follow, but that ruin would come more quickly to the workers than to employers. All employees in offices, shops, stores and on wharves would be out of work, simply because there would be nothing for them to do. Our whole system of economy would be thrown out of gear and suffering and privation become intense. No person desires to see things come to such a pass. The universal wish is that labor and employers of labor shall work in harmony and everybody is prepared to help toward that end and its permanent accomplishment. But there is ever the possibility of a falling out between parties, over some small point involved, and no amount of foresight can anticipate such a happening in time to counteract it. Little difficulties crop up daily in the relations between employers and unions, and if not adjusted at the moment are liable to develop into greater. The only real sensible method of preventing labor difficulties from getting out of hand and causing loss and inconvenience to both sides, is arbitration. Governments cannot very well interfere in matters which are between employer and employee, even should strikes materialize. As a contemporary pertinently puts it "such an action would virtually place the Government in the position of being a strike breaker, and lending the resources of the state to capital in a struggle with labor without any proper understanding of the merits or claims of the two parties to the issue." But the Government can and should legislate for the appointment of a Board of Arbitration in the event of future disputes, the personnel of such Board to be determined by the Governor in Council as occasion may arise. Armed with legislative authority a board of this kind would have power to investigate the whole circumstances surrounding and bringing about friction between capital and labor, without the complicated machinery of a Department to involve it politically, for until a difficulty arose for adjustment or enquiry, appointments to serve thereon need not be made.

Sheriff Will Call Public Meeting.

Yesterday a deputation from the Citizens' Committee charged with the arrangements for forming a Consumers League, called on Mr. Blandford, High Sheriff, and requested him to call a public meeting on Tuesday evening next at 8 o'clock, in the Casino Theatre. The request was acceded to and further particulars will be announced later.

Founding of T. A. & B. Society.

Sixty-two years ago on May 16th, a number of gentlemen met together for the purpose of founding a Society having for its object the promotion and propagation of Temperance principles. The result of their deliberations was the organization of the Total Abstinence and Benefit Society, which celebrates its sixty-second birthday to-morrow. The founders of the Society were:—Wm. McGrath, Patrick Reardon, Philip Healey, Wm. Vinnicombe, Chas. Kickham, John Donnelly, John Sheehan, Henry E. Hewitt, John Myrick and John Barry. The first President was Charles Kickham who held office from 1858 to 1864. The T. A. & B. Society has grown into an influential body since its first birthday in 1858 and has accomplished a vast amount of good. Ad Maltes Annes.

Young Girl's Adventure.

On May 16th, 1886, news was flashed over the wires from Sandy Point, Bay St. George, that Miss Journeaux, a young lady of Jersey, Channel Islands, had been landed at a French fishing station by a French vessel from France. Miss Journeaux, who belonged to St. Helier, Jersey, was out rowing, in a small boat opposite the pier, when through some cause she lost control of her frail bark and becoming caught by the ebb tide was taken out to sea, being rescued some time afterwards in an exhausted condition, by the fishing vessel which safely brought her to Newfoundland. Relatives and friends in Jersey heard the good news from one thought drowned, and went wild with joy. Miss Journeaux on her arrival in St. John's from the West Coast was feted, entertained and generally made much of by all classes.

Officers of L. S. P. U. Resign.

Barle, for five years Treasurer, also refused nomination. Votes of thanks to the retiring officials were passed.

Hey day! ye mighty men of gain,
What right have ye to choose;
That any day—shall not be kept
—So dear to British views?

Where would yourselves and Empire be,
But for the name that's wound;
Within the spirit of that day
As roots within the ground.

The trade, ye say, will suffer,
Well, frankly say to me;
But for bull-dog, invincibles,
Where would that same trade be?

Don't tell us the Dominion Will be benefited,
Should we cast out the Twenty-fourth To buy up "grub" and "tea."

Ye're prouder of her fame—
Then please uphold her festival
Or hang your heads in shame.

Coal Prospects Good.

The prospects for the shipment of coal from this port and the bunkering look very bright for the coming summer, and it is expected that a larger business will be done than in 1919, which was a bumper year. In order to accommodate the ships there is talk that the Coal Company intend to fix up the old International Pier, which has not been used in recent years. This Pier, No. 1, was the first one built here and was owned by the International Company until the Dominion Coal Company bought out that company's interests. The pier was built in 1870—Sydney Record.

Landmarks That Attract Attention.

A famous scientist remarked, some time ago, that many people went about the world blind—mentally. That is to say, custom has so staled their interest in their surroundings that they go on their way without noticing even the outstanding features on their journeys.

Now this is a serious charge to bring against this generation, and in order to prove whether this state of affairs was true or not, of people here in St. John's, I asked a number of my friends, the other day, what particular landmark each noticed on the way to his place of business that morning.

The first noticed nothing; he lives in the West End and always takes the street car, utilizing his time reading the paper. The next, who lives somewhere on the higher levels, reckoned the day ill-spent on which he had not gazed on the two Cathedrals, Gower Street Church, the Court House, the Royal Stores and some of the other stores on Water Street; while the third replied that he couldn't remember about the morning, but in the evening he usually saw the Narrows, Cabot Tower and the South Side Hill.

The ladies to whom I spoke were mostly vague, but they left the impression that the shop windows with their varied displays of New Goods were what remained most vividly in the minds of the fair sex.

Now, when you come to look into it, every one of the objects named attracts attention not only by its size and form but by its personality.

First, there are the two Cathedrals, both noble piles of architecture, each so grand and impressive in its own individual style as to compel attention. Again, whose interest is not stirred by the sight of the Court House, that stately structure of native stone, or the magnificent ruggedness of the cliffs overlooking the Narrows.

As I say, every one of these objects has an indefinable "something" which, for want of a better word, I have called personality, that attracts interest.

It is this kind of personality that draws through to the Royal Stores, the place where customers meet their friends, wander through the different departments undisturbed or shop at their ease.

Many are the reasons given for coming here—the tasteful displays appeal to one, the spirit of go-aheadness and enterprise to another, while most of them believe in getting value for their money. Anyway they all agree on one point—THEY ALL COME HERE.

Lucky Man.

At a Church conference a speaker began a tirade against the universalities and education, expressing thankfulness that he had never been corrupted by contact with a college. After proceeding for a few minutes, the Bishop, who was in the chair, interrupted with the question: "Do I understand that Mr. Dobson is thankful for his ignorance?" "Well, yes," was the answer; "you can put it that way if you like."

"Well, all I have to say," said the prelate, in sweet and musical tones—"all I have to say is that he has much to be thankful for."

A Man of His Word.

She—"When are you going to give me the money to buy that new dress?" He—"Next week."
"That's what you said last week."
"Yes, and that's what I say now, and am going to say next week. I ain't the kind of a man who says one thing one week and another thing next week."

Civil Servants Badly Treated.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—It is time that something was done by way of giving the Civil Servants a decent increase in salaries. This is a question that the Government had better not tarry over in settlement, or it may be that this body of men will be compelled to demand their payment for services rendered, and demand it in no uncertain tone. The Civil Servants are the poorest paid body of men in the country to-day, and the public would be astonished if the figures of some of the salaries paid were published, and those salaries compared with wages awarded to other workers in the city. Despite this the Civil Servant has much important work to perform, and work that calls for responsibility in handling. I am writing this with my eye on (for example) the Post Office where the "pay sheet" is a joke at the expense of the Government. There are men there receiving the wage now being paid to small boys in outside places of business. There are men who, after 40 years of faithful service, are receiving about the same salaries that employees of three and four years duty in other firms are paid. Anybody who knows the duties of the Post Office clerk will understand that the work there calls for much ability that need not be exercised elsewhere, and that the responsibility in connection with such work is very large. The official in this branch of the Civil Service might rightly be called the TRUSTED SERVANT OF THE PUBLIC, for the P.O. official has to handle the business of the public, and handle it to the satisfaction of that public. If the Civil Servants decided to unite their forces and "walk out" to-morrow, the sympathy—yes, and the aid too—of the public would be given. It is said that the Government are granting an increase of 20 p.c. to the Civil Servants, but this increase is by no means sufficient to help meet the frightfully high cost of living to-day. Another rumor has it that the recently submitted report of the Civil Service Commission has been "turned down" on the authority of a favored few, though that report was based on very satisfactory claims. If this last is true (as yet I give it for what it is worth), I shall ask you to publish a statement of certain facts from me that will show to the general public just how things are run by a few individuals in certain branches of the service.

Yours very truly,
WATCH 'EM.

Notes for Women.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir—Women suffrage seems to be "in the air" these days, and as I hear there is a considerable objection to it on the part of some of our reactionaries, I shall be much obliged if you will allow me space in your columns to present a few arguments in favor of extending the franchise to women. The vote is a symbol of citizenship, and a very large number of representative women all over the world have agitated and fought, and even gone to prison to obtain it. They argue that women who have to obey laws should have a voice in making them. That men have never made and never can make just and adequate laws for women, and that this one-sided legislation is contrary to the basic principle of Democracy. That matters dealing with home and the welfare of children, are continually being legislated upon, and should be regarded from the women's point of view, because women have experience and knowledge which would be very helpful in domestic legislation. That no class, nor race, nor sex can have its interests properly attended to in the legislation of a country, without direct representation. You cannot get industrial justice, for instance, unless you have political power. Women workers, the world over, have learned that fact by sad experience. Further, that the laws dealing with women are notoriously unfair. We have the authority of John Stuart Mill, the greatest economist that ever lived, for the statement, that "if men lived up to the rights the law gives them over their wives, the lives of women would be a hell on earth!"
Another reason why women should have the vote is that many of them own property and pay taxes. Their men-servants can vote, but they are minus this safeguard! It is an outrageous situation, and only the fact that we are accustomed to it prevents us from seeing "just how outrageous it is."
The civilization of to-day is evolving women of a reasonable, independent, and responsible type, who ask and expect recognition as an economic factor in the affairs of their country. It is a live political issue to-day.
Yours faithfully,
WOMAN SUFFRAGE.

Mutiny On The High Seas

"Hell-Fire Jack" Pedersen-- Manhandler.

"Hell-fire Jack" is a name which has been applied to many man-handling skippers, but perhaps never, with more justice than to Adolf Pedersen, the master of the U.S. barkentine "Puako," which sailed from British Columbia on April 27, 1918, bound for Cape Town.

Four months later Cape Town got a wireless message from an outward bound troopship to send an armed guard to the "Puako," as mutiny had broken out aboard.

An amazing story was disclosed, which has scarcely been equalled even in fiction. When the vessel arrived at Cape Town the skipper reported that the crew had mutinied and tried to murder him and his two sons, who were the mates, and two of his men had jumped overboard. He handed over to the police nine members of the crew, who had been badly knocked about. They were detained in Cape Town pending their removal to the United States for trial. They said that prison was far preferable to the "Puako."

In order fully to grasp the astounding yarn it is necessary to mention the following members of the crew: Stewart, cook.

Smithson, cabin boy.
Olsen, boatswain.
Mattson, carpenter.

Jorgensen, Grielen, Rellly, Jensen, Jones, Hansen, Joe and John Campbell, seamen.

In his sworn account of the voyage Pedersen said that he found that his crew had so little knowledge of sailing ships that the sails had to be furled and the gasoline engine used.

At the beginning of May he had occasion to complain of the cook's failure to supply fresh vegetables, of which there were plenty on board, and a few days later he pointed out to Grielen that he was not handling a rope correctly. Grielen at once became very excited, and shouted "Kill me, kill me; I'll jump overboard." As he became stubborn and asked to be shot, it was thought best to place him in irons and confine him to the lazarette, but on his promising to be of a different behavior he was released the following day and allowed to go about his work as usual.

About that time, Captain Pedersen said, he found that most of the crew were members of the "I.W.W."

When nearing the Tropics it was noticed that the men were acting peculiarly, and on May 21 Stewart approached the Captain in the dining-room, and, after stammering a few words, produced a large knife and assumed a threatening attitude. He was pacified and returned to his work, but later in the day Smithson informed Pedersen that it was Stewart's intention to murder the Captain.

The affidavit continues: Two days afterwards, whilst I was taking an observation at 8 a.m., I had occasion to tell Stewart to go away from where I was. That was the last time I saw him alive. At 10:15 a.m. the second mate reported that Stewart had jumped overboard. I said "Get him," and went on deck right away. The ship was lying almost still and the weather was dead calm. Everyone was on deck except Hansen and Grielen. I later found that these men had practically driven the cook to do this, as they had told him to kill me or jump overboard. This was about the locality where I was informed by the authorities that the German raiders were operating. When I reached the deck I saw the cook about 30 feet below the surface. He appeared to be drowned. Ropes had already been thrown to him and were hanging over the side. The second mate was stripped and ready to jump, but I stopped him, as I thought the cook was crazy and might harm him as well. There were several sharks about, and I saw it was too late to do anything. None of the crew made any effort to effect a rescue.

After this, according to Captain Pedersen, the crew began to act queerly and talked amongst themselves of committing suicide. The cabin boy became insubordinate, and was placed in irons for putting poison in the milk intended for the officers' table. Subsequently he was set at liberty, and on July 4 he admitted putting tobacco in the beans for breakfast with the intention of getting the cook into trouble.

Smithson, who was questioned about a pair of handcuffs that were missing from the Captain's room, at first denied any knowledge, but "after a slap or two" admitted stealing them, with the intention of putting them on the second mate and detaining him in the galley. The crew thought that when the Captain heard him calling he would go to his assistance, and thus give them the opportunity of killing the pair.

And so this astonishing affidavit continued. Olsen was placed in irons on August 11 because he was suspected of planning to destroy the ship and kill the Master. Jensen confessed to putting broken glass in the bread and small pieces of tin in the dinner meat with the idea of getting rid of the Captain and his sons. He also confessed to being a friend of one Count von Alstorf, an Austrian, who resided at 317 Washington Avenue, Minneapolis. On August 20 and 21 Jensen, Jorgensen, Smithson and Jones were placed in irons because the Captain thought they were German spies. Campbell was also placed in irons, and the next day Rellly was manacled on suspicion of being implicated with the others in the plot to scuttle the ship.

From that time onward, according to his own admission, Captain Pedersen became afraid of the men forming his ship's company, and told them if they came near him he would shoot them. This was the time they got their bruised faces. He had to hit them in self-defence.

A number of "confessions" signed by various members of the crew, admitting that they had been bribed by Germans to wreck the ship and murder the officers, were handed to the police.

Along with Smithson, Jensen made a joint "confession" and disclosed the plans they intended to carry out. Stewart was to poison the Captain or stab him, otherwise Stewart was to be killed. The Captain, mates, carpenter and John Campbell were to be poisoned by placing Lysol, scraps of tin, soap and glass in their food, but the Captain was too sharp for them. Another plan was to bore a hole in the hull of the ship. Grielen was to use oil from the gasoline tank to set the "Puako" on fire. After disposing of the vessel and the officers the conspirators were to get ashore by means of the gasoline launch, and proceed to America to receive payment for their services from the Count.

On the other hand, the crew made some startling affidavits. In describing the death of Stewart, Rellly said that he was at the wheel at the time and the sea was dead calm. Suddenly he heard the carpenter shout, "Cook has gone overboard." The second mate threw him a line, but no effort was made to launch a boat.

Whilst the crew were in irons Captain Pedersen at the point of the revolver compelled them to smash each other. Rellly was forced to beat Jones, and Jensen, Campbell and the second mate battered Rellly. Campbell dragged Rellly round the deck by the hair of the head whilst the second mate belaboured him with a club. The black eye which he showed to the Cape police was caused by the second mate hitting him with a slung shot without any cause. As a result of the blow he bled a lot on the deck, for which he was beaten by the Captain and his sons. Grielen and Olsen signed statements under compulsion confessing all sorts of crimes.

Describing how Hansen met his death, Rellly stated: "I was on deck at the time and heard the second mate order him to set the fore-royal. The mate smashed and kicked him before he went up and abused him whilst he was in the rigging. Hansen loosed the lee side of the sail, and the second mate told him to hurry up. Hansen replied that he was doing his best. He had no sooner slid to the deck when the second mate jumped on him and kicked him where he lay. He was then ordered aloft again, and as he was going up the mast the second mate called him back and again struck him. Hansen cried out: 'I can't stand this any longer; I'll jump overboard.' He made a lurch to the side, and as he had his hand on the main rigging and was about to jump the second mate again kicked him, and said, 'Go to it, you—!' Hansen then jumped into the sea. He did not sink but swam aft, and hung on to the log line and cried, 'Save me, save me.' Captain Pedersen, who was leaning across the rail, shouted, 'Drown, you—!' I was standing at the mizzen rigging, and shouted, 'Captain, he can be saved. All there is to do is to pull on the line.' Pedersen replied, 'Let him drown.'

"Later, at the Captain's dictation, the second mate wrote a statement and asked me to sign it. I declined on the grounds that if I did so I would be perjuring myself. Pedersen said I would have to sign before I left the cabin, and, jumping from his bed, took a revolver from under the pillow and threatened to shoot. I was therefore forced to sign to save my life."

Jones said he was once shackled to Jensen and placed in the pumphole amongst the deck cargo. Whilst there the carpenter set the gasoline engine going and pumped salt water on them for a hour at a time for two days and two nights.

Jensen, trying to explain his injuries, was forced to admit that he could not tell when he received them. Once he was knocked to the deck because he had no hot water for the boss. Another time when he had plots on the brain, Pedersen, senior, hit him with the leaf of an oak table and broke the leaf, and on another occasion assaulted him with a razor strap, leaving the hook in Jensen's scalp.

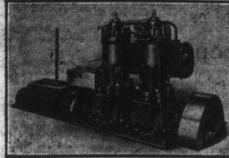

When the ship was docked at Cape Town the police, on making a search, found a loaded truncheon, knuckle-dusters, a truncheon bored ready for loading, a hardwood staff, batons, an automatic pistol fully loaded, a rifle, and repeating shot guns in the officers' cabins.

The officials responsible for the report submitted to the American Consul at Cape Town for transmission to Washington, gave it as their opinion that Captain Pedersen was either out of his mind or was suffering from hallucinations with regard to various "plots" to destroy himself, his sons, and the ship. They drew attention to the fact that it was not until seven weeks after Stewart's death that Pedersen discovered he supposed conspiracy, and then he turned back to the 23rd May and logged a dead man for two separate attempts to murder, and fined him $5 dollars for each offence.

After a few weeks' stay at the Cape the "Puako" and its crew returned to America under the command of Captain Pearson, of Observatory, and in Legislative Council.

May 14th.
 The House met at 4:30 and went in Committee on the Bill entitled "An Act Respecting the Department of Public Works." The Bill passed the second reading with the amendment that the words "Deputy Minister of Public Works" be substituted for Secretary.

"An Act Respecting the Department of Posts and Telegraphs" passed the committee stage with the addition of "Newfoundland Disaster Fund" and the "Newfoundland Patriotic Association" to Section 7, Sub-Section 1.

The Bill entitled "An Act to provide for the Standardization of Codfish" did not receive much criticism, except Sub-Section 2, Section 3, which says branding of fish. Section 4 which gives 30 days notice from the date of proclamation was thought could be taken advantage of. Hon. Sir P. T. McGrath thought that the provisions in Section 6 may be carried too far. A lot of discussion was held on a Bill entitled "An Act to provide for the better obtaining of information respecting the Codfishery." In Section 3 not less than $10 fine was stricken out and now reads, "to a penalty of not more than $100, etc." Section 4 was allowed to stand over, the verbiage being objectionable. To Section 6 the Hon. Mr. Grieve raised strong objections, saying "Why should we give to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries the details of our holdings, he being engaged in the same business, and the knowledge obtained would be greatly to the advantage of his trade. This clause (No. 6) is most objectionable. To state the total quantity held would not be so bad, but to make us give the details, why it is un-British."

Hon. Mr. Gibbs here offered some explanation, but admitted that the Section had objections.

Hon. Mr. Grieve, continuing, said, "If you wish to restore the confidence of the trade, this Section should be left out. Arbitrary rules will destroy all confidence. Six weeks ago I applied to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries for a permit to sell a cargo of fish, the permit was verbally given, subject to the Advisory Board's permission. The members of that Board in the same business as myself, refused the permit, consequently I was put to the loss of $30,000. I am now starting to drop out of the fishery business. The trade of the Colony will be destroyed by these arbitrary measures. I call this clause a most pernicious one."

Hon. Sir P. T. McGrath asked why the permit was not granted.

Hon. Mr. Grieve replied, "The fish was not sold here, it was sent on consignment."

Hon. R. K. Bishop, speaking on the Section, said: "It is an extraordinary proceeding, that every exporter must describe his stocks so, to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries. What is the value of the information to the Minister if he cannot give it to the Advisory Board?"

Sir P. T. McGrath, on Section 7 said, "This will stifle all newspaper discussion, because for any inaccuracy people would be open to prosecution."

The matter of fines or imprisonment was discussed by Hon. Mr. Milley, who pointed out that in one Section the fine was $1,000 or three months' imprisonment, and in the other section the fine is $100 or three months.

A Bill entitled "An Act to Incorporate the Women's Patriotic Trust Fund and for other purposes" was further discussed, the House then adjourning until Monday.

GETTING HOME.

When you have wandered far away and left the old-familiar scenes To live for days and nights afar from all that friendship really means, Though skies are blue and men are kind and joy is yours from day to day, How good it is when comes the hour which starts you on your homeward way.

Oh, there is beauty in the hills and music in the roaring sea! The pine and palm are fair to know, but fairer is the apple tree! A stranger's smile is good to see, but wander whereso'er you may, The richest joys of earth are found always along the homeward way. There comes the time when scenes afar will lose their luster and their thrill; You'll want the old-familiar street, the sitting room, where all is still, The faces of the friends you love, the children romping at their play, And you will hail with joy the time which starts you on your homeward way.

It matters not how fair the place to which in search of peace you roam, There is no thrill which can compare to that you find in getting home. To be once more with those you know! Oh, that the joys of earth depend, And sweet the thrill and glad the day which brings you to your journey end.

Among the various places to put the responsibility for the rising prices of sugar, one is on the "system." In New Orleans it is charged, by the United States authorities, that some arrested several dealers, that some of them have been "pyramiding" prices and profits by selling one to another. It is also said that a sugar cargo en route from Cuba may be sold several times before it reaches the United States, and that each time some one, who sits in an office and is a part of the "system," carefully pockets a "profit." The Federal Trade Board's finding that there are too many profits between the farmer and the consumer appears to apply here.

as well. It appears to be a case of "What is to be done about it?"

DE VALERA.

It is not necessary to be a partisan, one way or another, in order to endorse most fully the purpose of the great meeting held recently in Birmingham, Alabama, to protest against the activity of Mr. de Valera in the United States. Said Judge Horace Wilkinson, the chief speaker at the meeting: "De Valera, so-called president of the 'Irish Republic,' is a traitor to the United States. He is a traitor of the blackest kind to every cause that the Allies fought four years to defend. England has not crushed Ireland under an iron heel. Our great ally has, on the contrary, given the Irish every chance to better themselves." The language, it is true, is emphatic, but there are certainly occasions which warrant emphasis.

GLASGOW'S TRIUMPH.

Glasgow may well be proud of its tramway service. Not only has it refunded the capital expended on it, but it has now no interest to pay and no sinking fund to meet. In addition it has paid over to the Corporation the sum of £1,000,000. The explanation of this highly satisfactory state of affairs is given by the general manager of the tramway department of the Corporation. "This result has been achieved," he says, "chiefly by giving a regular and frequent service of cars, which are made as clean and attractive as possible, at the lowest possible fares." Residents in towns, who are dissatisfied with the local tramway service and high fares, might think it worth their while to draw the attention of their local tramway manager to the reasons why the Glasgow trams pay.

AUSTRALIAN LABOR LOSS.

That is a significant item in the Australian news which records the loss by that country, within twelve months, of £4,000,000, as the result of direct action by Labor. The loss, too, in the main is Labor's loss. The striker often, to use a homely metaphor, cuts off his nose to spite his face. He throws down his tools and enters on the political strike only to find perhaps, that victory is worse than defeat. In the famous squabble over "Ginx's Baby," it will be remembered, the Detectors Association discovered that it had squandered in public meetings, salaries, and tracts all the funds raised for G. B.'s support by benevolent zealots. The parallel is obvious. No wonder that Labor is getting tired of its familiar tactics and showing a disposition to strike, according to a Canadian leader, not for higher pay but to reduce the high cost of living, which it now sees is the direct outcome of a successful strike. The logic of the new step is irresistible. It will not bring a new world into being for Labor, but it will save something from the wreck, and, after all, Labor by such action can bring us all nearer than before to the realization of that league of mankind which will recognize only common interests and aims.

The royal command that in future the Royal Welsh Fusiliers will be officially known as the Royal Welsh Fusiliers ends a pretty little quarrel between the War Office and the famous regiment with the "dash." For many years the "c" in its name has been adopted by the regiment, and appears on their badge, but the spelling has never been recognized at Whitehall, and "Welsh" is the authorized word in the Army list. The only justification for "Welsh" is to be found in an early document relating to the regiment, drawn up in the days when spelling was an affair for whim rather than an exact science.

NEW YORK STATE WILL HAVE BOXING BOOM.

New York, May 3.—These are great days for boxing! When Governor Smith signs the Walker bill boxing in this state will begin to boom in a way that will throw all former records in the shade. Despite continual opposition from professional reformers and many a hard wallop from those who posed as friends of the sport, boxing has continued to grow in popular favor or steadily ever since the days of bare knuckles and finish fights.

With the passing of ring battles with the raw 'uns and the advent of the Horton law, boxing gained many friends and followers. Years later the Frawley law with its athletic commission and ten round no decision bouts brought about another tremendous boom.

Although many of the greatest battles in ring history were fought under the Horton law, they did not draw so well in those days. But boxing gained so many followers during the period that elapsed between the death of the Horton law and the advent of the Frawley law that under its provisions ten round no decision bouts frequently drew more money than the biggest of the Horton law championship contests.

Since the Frawley law was killed boxing continued to grow, and now it comes back in better guise than ever. The way New Yorkers have flocked over to New Jersey when any bout worth while was scheduled, indicates how great is the interest in the sport.

It is a difficult matter to get the New York fan to leave his regular habitat. That was shown during the days of the Frawley law. New Yorkers would not take the comparatively easy journey to Brooklyn, and most of the big clubs that opened on the other side of the bridge died an untimely death for lack of New York patronage.

Yet, despite their natural distaste for travel, local fans have braved the discomfort of the long trip to Newark and other Jersey cities, so keen is the interest in the sport. All winter the Jersey clubs have played to packed houses and a great percentage of the crowds came from New York. This was shown by the unusual sparseness of the crowd that saw the last set of bouts in the Hudson tubes kept many New Yorkers away.

Jersey promoters are inclined to look upon the no decision clause of the law in that state as their biggest asset now that New York is to have real boxing. They predict that New York will not get the champions to fight for decisions except on rare occasions, and that if the fans want to see the leading contenders and the title holders in action they still will have to patronize Jersey.

However, it is not likely to work that way, except in a few instances, New York can easily afford to pay higher purses than any other city, and if the stars refuse to fight here, they will soon lose their popularity. If a champion continues to dodge liberal offers to box in New York in favor of cheaper purses in Jersey the fans will not take long to get on to him. He will lose so much of his drawing power that he will not be a big card anywhere.

CARPENTIER READY TO FIGHT.

New York, May 4.—Francis Desamps, manager of Georges Carpentier, the European heavyweight boxing champion, issued a statement tonight as to the French boxer's position regarding a match with Dempsey. The statement follows:

"There seems to be a false impression and various contradictory stories regarding the intention of Georges Carpentier appearing in America in a real boxing contest. I have managed Georges since he took up boxing ten years ago. There is no question as to his ability or courage. He fears no one. For the last five years various American cinema producers and showmen have made me offers to have Carpentier appear in America. During the war Carpentier steadfastly refused to earn any money. He never once asked for even a temporary furlough for his own part. At last the war was over. Carpentier not only gave his services and did his duty by his country, but it so happened that his home town, Lens, where all his vestments were located in various properties, was ruined by the Germans. He was broke. The Beckett fight and a few European engagements, the cinema with Robertson-Cole and now the tour with Jack Curley, will start to replenish Carpentier's coffers.

"I really and truly feel that we are entitled to make this tour. Anyway, judging from the princely salary, for which we are contracted, it must be that the public wishes to see Carpentier.

"Regarding a fight let me make this very plain. C. B. Cochran has got my signature to a contract for Carpentier to fight Jack Dempsey for the world Championship. However, I am released, both morally and legally from that contract and privileged to box Dempsey for any other promoter, who can come to me with Jack Kearns' signature to a set of articles. In other words, I am waiting for the man to bring me such a contract with Jack Kearns, and I assure you it will not take more than a few minutes to do business. Certainly we are after the championship fight and, no matter what anyone else thinks, Carpentier and myself are absolutely confident of a chance to win the title. I am not issuing any challenges nor chasing Kearns around or hampering him in any way. In the first place, the public does not desire such procedure, and at this time Kearns and Dempsey are on the verge of a trial in the United States courts. I would feel it an insult to both of them and to the public to force the issue. I understand that in a very short time the trial will come off and the matter will be settled one way or another, and I will say that our plans and procedure depend entirely on this outcome.

"Carpentier prefers to fight rather than anything else, but while there is a chance left to secure a championship fight with Dempsey, we will naturally waive all other bouts for the big one.

"Regarding our tour under Curley's management, my contract simply calls to furnish the services of Carpentier. It does not matter to us, nor have we anything to say whether these appearances are held in theatres, clubs or in a circus. That part is entirely in the hands of Curley."

JIMMY WILDE'S EARNINGS.

New York, May 4.—Jimmy Wilde, the greatest chunk of fighting machinery ever shipped to this country by England, has collected $60,500 for eight bouts in this well-known country since his arrival last November.

For losing his initial affair to Jack Sharkey in Milwaukee, he drew down $11,000. His win over Johnny (Babe) Asher in St. Louis, netted him $5,000, the smallest purse he has received in the States to date. His three-round knockout of Mike Ertle in Milwaukee rewarded him $6,000. He was reimbursed $8,000 for stopping Mickey Russell in the seventh frame in Jersey City. For meeting Patsy Wallace in Philadelphia, $6,000 more flowed into his coffers. His end for successfully defending his world's flyweight title against Frankie Mason in Toledo, totalled $11,000. Young Zulu Kid was instrumental in adding another $6,000 in Windsor to the little Briton's earnings. At Camden, where he halted Battling Murray in the eighth round the other evening, he drew $7,000.

An average of $7,700 for a scrap isn't bad money nowadays, all things considered.

FORMER TITLE HOLDER TO MEET BECKETT.

Southampton, May 3.—Joe Beckett, the English heavyweight, has signed articles to meet Tommy Burns, the French-Canadian fighter, one-time holder of the heavyweight title. The day of the match has not yet been decided upon.

BOXER DROPS DEAD.

Bridgeport, May 4.—Louis Sulle, 18 years old, this city, dropped dead in the boxing ring at the Acorn Athletic Club last night, after he had sparred 42 seconds with "Young" Saxon, a 17 year old boxer. Persons at the ringside said that no heavy blows had been struck and Medical Examiner Garlick reported no evidence of external injuries on Sulle's body. Saxon, who said his real name

LOOKING FOR AN AMERICAN HEAVY.

New Orleans, May 5.—Tex O'Rourke, of New York, representing the International Sporting Club, which, according to O'Rourke, plans to develop a "rally representative American champion heavyweight boxer," left here yesterday for Bogalusa, La., to select several lumbermen for training. The club, O'Rourke said, proposes to select a number of promising candidates from among the five "strenuous" industries—lumbering, steel manufacturing, shipbuilding, mining and farming—take them to a training camp near New York, pay their expenses and a salary at least 25 per cent. greater than they formerly received, and train them for a year. At the end of that time, a series of elimination contests will determine the champion, O'Rourke said.

"The Lady With the Lamp."

Centenary of Crimean War Nurse--Florence Nightingale.

"Lo! in that hour of misery,
A Lady with a lamp I see,
A noble type of good
Heroic Womanhood."

FLORENCE NIGHTINGALE, the centenary of whose birth was celebrated this year by Red Cross Societies in all parts of the world, was born of English parents on May 12th, 1820, at Florence, Italy, says the Buffalo Express. Brilliantly educated, this woman whose genius for organization was exceeded only by her desire to serve those in need, received her first inspiration for the work which won her imperishable fame in the calls which English girls of her station were wont to make on the sick within the parish.

Lea Hurst, the Nightingale country house in Devonshire, with its fifteen bedrooms and its terraces bright with bellflowers and nasturtiums, was here she grew up in the usual round of parties, guests, seasons at Maybury, friends and gaiety which characterized the life of the wealthy country aristocracy. In her closely written diary Miss Nightingale has left a record of her teens and early twenties, spent in leisurely travel among the chateaux of France, the Riviera, Switzerland and Italy; of opera and court balls at Rome, of meetings of scientists, scholars, celebrities, of famous Paris salons, of growing dissatisfaction at the emptiness of her days. Correspondence and conversation with the foremost scholars and parliamentary leaders of her day exercised her usual intellectual gifts. Nothing, however, satisfied her longing for service which crystallized into a desire to enter Salisbury hospital.

Had she announced her intention to enter domestic service she could have horrified her family to a certain extent. To be "hospital nurse" 70 years ago was an unheard-of desire. Such persons were usually coarse, ignorant old women without even the rudimentary knowledge of cleanliness. After six years of discussion Miss Nightingale prevailed on her family to allow her to enter the school of deaconesses at Kaiserswerth, Germany, where Theodore Fildes had his wife had founded an infant school, a penitentiary, an orphan

He Now Works Just Like a Young Man.

WINNIPEG MAN PRAISES DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS.

For Ten Years Was so Weak It Was Impossible for Him to Walk—He Tells of the Benefit He Got from Dodd's Kidney Pills.

Winnipeg, Man., May 14.—(Special.)—"I advise everybody who suffers from backache to use Dodd's Kidney Pills." So states Mr. Adam Duciowicz, who resides at 183 1/2 Maple Street, this city.

Asked to give the reason why he gave this advice, Mr. Duciowicz said: "Dodd's Kidney Pills have done me a great benefit. I even wonder myself how this medicine helped me. For ten years I was so weak it was impossible for me to walk. When I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills I felt I was getting young and strong again."

"I am now 62 years old and I work just as if I were a young man."

It is very noticeable that people who have used Dodd's Kidney Pills are enthusiastic in recommending them to others. That is how Dodd's Kidney Pills have made and maintained their reputation. Dodd's Kidney Pills are purely and simply a kidney remedy. If you have not used them yourself, ask your neighbors about them.

Audacious Bullion Robbery.

Never was a crime more audaciously conceived than the great bullion robbery on the evening of May 15, 1855, when three large boxes containing gold were delivered by their owners to the care of the firm of Messrs. Chaplin and Horne, and by this firm conveyed to the South Eastern Railway, London Bridge. Every precaution was taken with the precious freight, which belonged to Messrs. Abell and Co., Messrs. Spellmann, and Messrs. Bull. The boxes were bound with iron bars, sealed and weighed by Messrs. Chaplin, and placed in an iron safe secured by Chubb's patent locks, which had duplicate keys, in the possession only of confidential servants of the Railway Company—keys in London, in Folkestone, and also in possession of the captains of the boats belonging to the South Eastern Railway. The safes were specially placed in the guard's van, under his immediate care, but on the bars being taken out of the safes at Boulogne it was discovered that one weighed 40 lbs. less than it ought to have weighed, while the other two weighed a trifle more than they should have done. Examination proved that the precious metal had all been extracted, shot substituted, and the outward appearance of the safes restored as before. The principal actors in this elaborate crime were James Burgess, who had been 13 years a guard in the South Eastern Railway, William Pierce, an ex-bookmaker's clerk who first conceived the robbery, and confided it to Edward Agar, a professional thief, and William George Tester, clerk in the traffic superintendent's office at London Bridge Station. The plans had been laid during eighteen months, impressions of the locks being taken, and false keys made. After the robbery the bars were melted at Agar's residence in North London, notwithstanding the most anxious enquiries by the police, none of the perpetrators of this daring robbery were traced till Agar, arrested on another charge, confessed, and made known the whole details of the crime. Pierce, who capped his villainy by robbing his accomplice of thousands of pounds, and leaving Agar's child for starvation, got two years' hard labor for larceny, while Tester and Burgess—whose crime, as servants of the Company, was greater—received fourteen years transportation each.

An Irish political candidate who felt sure that a certain elector was against him was surprised to have that elector call and announce that he would support him to the limit. "Where the other day ye called at my place and stood by the pigsty and talked for half an hour, ye didn't budge me an inch," said his visitor. "But after ye'd gone away, I got to Produce and Provisions.

(From The Trade Review.)

CODFISH.—During this week 11,999 quintals of dry codfish were shipped to foreign markets from Newfoundland, of this amount 9,543 qts. were sent from St. John's and 2,456 from Burin to Halifax. The balance of the shipment went to Barbados, Liverpool, Spain, and Bahia. Some cargoes of last year's fish arrived from Piacentia Bay and other sections of the South Coasts, and the fish sold at $9.00 to $10.50 according to quality; only three merchants' firms here were buying this week. European markets except Portugal are over-supplied and prices have declined.

COD OIL.—The shipments of Common Cod Oil this week totaled 15,777 gallons, of which 13,888 gallons went to Boston and 1,889 to North Sydney. The demand shows signs of decrease and there is a weakening in the price that prevailed all the Spring in the United States. Local holdings of 1919 oil are now at low ebb and as the stocks are in the hands of a few exporters, the price here is keeping firm at $10 to $15.

CODLIVER OIL.—Preparations are now active for the manufacture of Codliver Oil amongst those who have faith in the future of this particular product. Others have an idea that it will not pay to treat their livers this way the coming summer and that it will be more profitable to let them render into common cod oil. Our own opinion is that those who have the outfit and have a reputation for manufacturing a good article of refined oil would make most money out of cod livers this season.

HERRING.—Mr. Redman of Redman Bros. Herring Packers returned from New York by the S. S. Roseland this week, and gives a very depressing report of the future outlook of the Newfoundland Herring Fishery. The Herring market in New York is practically dead and there is nothing doing in Newfoundland Herring. At present there are about 12,000 barrels of Scotch Pack in Notre Dame Bay that were held up all the winter and could not get out owing to the ice making so early and shutting off all navigation, there are also about 13,000 barrels of Split herring between Pogo and Cape John. The firms that have been hardest hit by being barred from getting their herring out last winter are Messrs. Strong & Murcell, Wellman, Winsor, Blackler, Ltd., Smith Shipman & Co., Ltd., Clarke & Earle. Split herring are down to about $4 a barrel and no one in the local market cares to touch Scotch Pack at all.

LOBSTERS.—Packers will have to be careful this summer in view of the regulations in Canada and the States regarding tinned Lobsters. All consignments going from Newfoundland will be subject to a rigid inspection and any cans less than 16 ozs. of fish and containing water will be thrown out and condemned. In some instances that came to light last season, the cans were half full of water and did not contain 16 ozs. of dry "meat". These two requirements will be rigidly insisted on by American and Canadian importers of Newfoundland pack this season. The Lobster packers will therefore be guided accordingly, and as they can be traced by their license number, they will get into serious trouble if they practice any dishonesty. We understand that West Coast packers are expecting $35.00 per case of 48 one pound tins.

PORK.—The market continues lifeless and there is no change in quotations of any consequence during the week. American Authorities are of opinion that the low spot in Hog values is about reached. They base their calculation on the fact, that, at present prices of corn, hog-raising is not a paying venture. The anticipated shortage of hogs later on is consequently a factor in the way of preventing any further important decline in prices. The present low prices have been and this will continue till financial credits are established with the countries that need Pork products so badly.

When exports begin to assume their normal output to Europe it is expected that there will be a stiffening in Pork and Pork products generally. The local prices are, Mess Pork $49, Fat Back and S. Clair $46, Hambutt $56, per barrel wholesale.

BEEF.—The market is steady on high grade beef. There has been no change in quotations now for two weeks. Boneless is offered at the lowest prices since the year the war began, viz:—$29.00. This is the favorite grade for exports use and now is a good time to buy. By comparison with all other food products it will be seen that Beef of all qualities is offering to-day at attractive prices. If Pork through an anticipated shortage of hogs should advance there is little doubt that beef will advance in sympathy. Family is $35, Mess $34 and Plate $27 per barrel wholesale.

SALT.—During this week seven vessels arrived here from Cadiz with loads of salt aggregating 1513 tons, viz:—
Dazilo 150 tons
Falca 172
R. G. Dale 209
Little Princess 290
F. E. Moulton 329

NOTES OF TRAVEL:

And Reminiscences of a Pleasant Tour.

(I. C. MORRIS.)

CHAPTER III. CHARACTERISTICS OF THE PASSENGERS.

At sea on an August morning on board of a first class steamer, is a very enjoyable experience, and as a rule everybody seeks the deck, and so with our party; we took, early mingled with our fellow travellers, and endeavored to learn a little about them. There was of course a kindred feeling in every breast, that is, we all had a common interest in the ship, and expressed our satisfaction at the beautiful weather, and at the progress we were making. For the time we were all sailors, and all ready to wonder why everybody should be seasick. The scene on deck and around the bridge at such a time could not be otherwise than animating and varied. Here sat those who delve in books, and who, as far as the attractions of the sea were concerned, might just as well have been within the walls of their library at home. But then it was their own business, and they evidently found more enjoyment in reading than in gazing. To them the book was greater than the sea; and perhaps their mental vision had a wider range as they read, than their fellow passengers had, who watched the surroundings.

Some travellers avail of the trip to have a read; but many more prefer to indulge in games. This is very manifest by the large proportion of passengers who play cards, and who spend so much of their time at the recreation which cards seem to afford. Hour after hour, and day after day, these games go on, and the players for the time being at least, are oblivious to all else about them. The vast sea and racing ship, the summer sky, and golden sunsets, appeal not to them. Their horizon is confined to the little table at which they gamble, and their bigger selves seem shrivelled within them. They are self-satisfied, and evidently they are happy, and as happiness is that which all men seek, why disturb them? It would be difficult to disturb them, and only in case of disaster or tragedy would they leave an unfinished game. But readers and players were only part of our company. There were lots of things in which the other passengers indulged, and which tended to make pleasant the trip. Perhaps the best of all was that, of the little groups of pleasure-seekers, who, here and there sat or leaned or lounged, and exchanged friendly conversation. Such people are always helpful to each other, and their wit and pleasantness at times, relieve what might otherwise prove monotonous. We heard several stories on the deck of the Rosalind, some of them savored of good taste, and were worth while, but others were mere gossip, and political party clap-trap. But then it was all necessary to the make up the company, and so long as each person kept their proper place, and respected his fellows there was room for all. Thus we spent the first day, and when the curtains of night fell, and we sought the saloon with its song and music, and finally our state-rooms, we all felt that we had spent a happy day, and that our good ship had made a splendid record, and that on the whole, our list of passengers contained a lot of jolly good fellows. The first day was a pleasant one, and so was the second, and as we watched the landscape about us, we soon saw the city of Halifax looming in the distance, and in a short time our staunch ship was safely moored at the pier. On the bridge stood our brave Captain, and as we stepped ashore, we felt that the Rosalind had added another link to the chain of her popularity.

Hr. Grace Notes.

To glance over the pages of some of the outside-world newspapers and magazines and be "moved" by the articles therein concerning the planet, one can reasonably look forward to the day when the different correspondents will be writing of Mrs. so-and-so's visit to Mars!

Herring were on the market a few mornings of this week, and were of a good run. The sale price is still 30 cents per dozen, and considered reasonable. More fish, less meat, and the purse will soon show the benefit. The wire-fencing for the Handley-Page aviation ground that was so long delayed is now here. The work of fencing the ground will start Wednesday, and owners of the land (some of whom have already turned over the sod and plowed their hitherto cultivated lots) will begin to set it out, some with turnips, and others with different vegetables. The men who can pick through with a hundred or two barrels of spuds within the next few weeks will be "reg'lar fellers" indeed. News was received in town the past week by his father, that the Rev. Ernest Davis was ill at Little Bay, where he is stationed. His many friends here express the hope that his illness will be of short duration, and that he will be about again a few days hence. There is at present a scarcity of granulated sugar in town; molasses is also scarce. Brown sugar can be had at 18 cents per pound. The house of Wesley J. Parsons, manager of the Hr. Grace Boot and Shoe Factory, is now undergoing repairs, and when it is finished will be a great improvement. The following gentlemen were elected on Tuesday last to serve as the Road Board for the ensuing two years: Messrs. Charles Cron, William Carson, H. P. Henessey, Arthur Thompson, Rev. T. D. O'Neill, Albert Rogers, F. McRae, Robert French and H. D. Archibald. Mr. Timothy P. Connors left here Thursday morning for Bishop's Falls where he will take up work with the Reid Newfoundland Co. Mr. Connors recently arrived from the United States, going thence a few months ago on a health trip. The friends of the young gentleman wish him every success.

Mr. Willis Regular left for St. John's Thursday evening to connect with the s.s. Rosalind en route to Montreal to resume work there. James and Miss D. Regular, son and daughter of Mr. James Regular of the Southside left by the same train for the same city. Miss M. T. Colbert will leave for St. John's Friday afternoon to take up nursing at the Children's Hospital. His Lordship Bishop March arrived here Thursday night from his visit to Rome. The bells of both the Cathedral and the Convent pealed forth their notes of welcome at 10.15. A dance will be held at the Masonic Hall by the members of the Society United Fishermen on Tuesday night, when a pleasant time is looked forward by those who delight to "trip it on the light fantastic toe."

The schooner Harry H. Nickerson went on dock on Wednesday for repairs, having finished landing her coal.

The schooner Colonia arrived from St. John's on Wednesday.

The barq. Minerve was towed from St. John's to this port by the tug D. P. Ingraham on Wednesday to go on dock. Having a considerable quantity of salt on board, she had to discharge same into the schooner Pandora. After having necessary repairs done she will again load the salt and "bear away."

The schooner Dorothy arrived here Thursday night.

Mr. Wesley J. Parsons, manager of the Hr. Grace Boot and Shoe Factory, went to the city Thursday morning, on a business trip in connection with his firm.

Messrs. Harold Wells and Thomas Davis left Wednesday for Bay de Verde, where they will prosecute the fishery this summer.

Mr. George Kelloway was in town this week from Perry's Cove, on a visit to friends.

If there is any among you who want adventure, take a sack of "spuds" and march through the street.

Already preparations are being made in England for the fifth Aerial Derby, which will be held at Hendon in the summer. It will be chiefly interesting as an index to the advance in speed. When the first race round London in 1912 T. Sopwith won with an average speed of sixty miles an hour. In the two succeeding years the average rose to between seventy and eighty miles. Then the great development of the aeroplane engine came. Last year, when the race was resumed, Captain Gathergood, the winner, attained an average speed of 129 miles on the course of 190 miles.

The Most Beautiful Car in America

A New Development in Light Sixes

Before we began experimental work on our new six-cylinder motor three years ago, we made a very thorough investigation of the light six field.

We found out just what qualities car owners desired in the power plants of their motor cars and then we designed an engine to meet these requirements.

The wisdom of our method is attested by the unanimous approval given our five-passenger "Glenbrook" model. With its first appearance, it immediately won the enthusiastic support of motorists.

And, by its dependable and economical performance, it has so clearly demonstrated its high character as an investment value that our production schedule is already proving unequal to the demand.

The "Glenbrook" is a truly remarkable development in five-passenger cars. Won't you arrange for a demonstration while our dealer is in position to meet your requirements as to delivery?
