An Indispensable Favorite

Wealth and Beauty at Stake!

CHAPTER XXVII

"Now will that do?" Lady Nora says, smiling, graciously. "I have thought of you first, Moodie, though there are a score of other people bothering me for money."

"Thank you very much, my lady," Moodie says, clutching this long overdue instalment of her wages. "There are six pounds more, you know, my lady; but that doesn't matter just now."

"Oh, very well! I'll pay you some more next week," Lady Nora replies, sharply. "Please don't worry me any more! You must go up to town in the morning, and take my luggage to Victoria Station. Mrs. Glynn and I are going to Eastbourne."

Lady Nora, by dint of her smiles and her sweetness and her high-mindedness and adroitness, has smoothed away every obstacle in her path at present. She is "taking the dear child away for change of air and scene, lest she should grieve or mope after her husband," she says, assuming her sweetest maternal manner. "My boy has erred—confess it—against his little wife and myself in so determinedly following the dictates of his own independent spirit," she admits to Mr. Dormer, with patient dignity that rather overcomes his angry mood.

"I can't say that I think your son has treated my poor niece well, Lady Nora," Mr. Dormer says, obstinately. "He's gone and deserted her—that's about what he's done, my lady! If she hadn't a penny in her pocket nor a home to go to, he'd have done the same; and she's well rid of him!" he adds, quite purple in the face with suppressed grief and wrath.

"You are wronging my son, Mr. Dormer," Lady Nora says, still with patient dignity—"cruelly wronging him. You know it was because your niece was rich and my dear boy was poor, having lost his income and expectations at one blow, that he determined to go abroad."

WEAK, RUN DOWN AND AILING

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Brought Relief When Other Medicines Failed

Fort Mann, B. C.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I was tired and run-down. I had headaches and no appetite and was worried for two years with sleeplessness. I tried many medicines, but nothing did me any real good. While I was living in Washington I was recommended by a stranger to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am stronger and feel fine since then and am able to do my household work. I am willing for you to use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. J. C. Chakles, Fort Mann, B. C.

Feel New Life and Strength
Keene, N. H.—"I was weak and run-down and had backache and all sorts of troubles which women have. I found great relief when taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I also used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sensitive Wash. I am able to do my work and feel new life and strength from the Vegetable Compound. I am doing all I can to advertise it."—Mrs. A. F. Hammond, 77 Carpenter Street, Keene, N. H.

Sick and ailing women everywhere in the Dominion should try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

little first effort, and I am quite sure no editor will care for it.

"Thank Heaven," Lady Nora exclaims suddenly, with unaffected gratitude for once, "here is the post, and a lot of letters!"

It is three weeks since Yolande knew that her husband had gone from her; and, though her lips will not part to ask a question concerning him, though she refuses with strange, cold dignity to listen to his mother when she speaks of him, yet there is not one waking hour, scarcely one sleeping hour, in which restless thoughts of him and fabled longings to know what has become of him do not burn like a slow fire in her breast. Every post that arrives, every knock at the door of their rooms, rouses this smothered, hidden, half-demented suffering into throbbing torture.

Lady Nora has asked all the letters on the salver, as usual, and Yolande sits, with her pen held tightly in her fingers, mutely watching her sorting them.

"Three—four—five for me," Lady Nora says, brightening up at once, "and one from Lillian Vavours! Oh, here are your letters, Yolande, dearest! One—two—three—Oh, it's from Dallas! Oh, Yolande, it is from my boy, who has not written me one word, and with a distracting display of excitement and emotion, she rushes across with the letter to her daughter-in-law. "Oh, Yolande, dearest, tell me, tell me—is he well—is he well?" she sobs, before Yolande has a chance even of opening the letter. "Oh, my boy! So cruel not to write to me his mother. My darling boy!"

Yolande does not look at her, does not answer her, but slowly opens the letter, unfolds it, and reads it, her two hands mechanically clutching the paper. It is short—ends on the third page—and is loosely and hastily written.

One full minute after she has read it she gazes, breathless, at the cold, cruel words which seem to glare at her from the large sheet of white foreign paper, and then she hands the letter, without comment, to Lady Nora; and without a response she listens to her ladyship's comments on the letter.

"In New York! Actually in New York!" she exclaims, as if she had not known perfectly well that her son had every intention of going to New York; and then she reads the letter in a half-audible voice.

"DEAR YOLANDE:—Of course you have heard long since from my mother how I decided to leave England, as the only course open to me in the circumstances in which I was placed. I hope I may do better out of England, and having broken with old associations will make it easier for me to work at any honest employment that may turn up. I have written to your uncle, Mr. Dormer, telling him of my future plans as far as I can say at present. I hope you are well, and enjoy yourself during the season; and I trust you did not think I acted unkindly in leaving London without seeing you; but leave-takings are only dreary things unless cheered by the hope of a happy reunion—and this I know I cannot offer you.

"I am at least glad, for your sake, to think that my absence will not sadden you; yet believe me, always yours faithfully,

DALLAS GLYNNE.

"The idea of his going to New York!" Lady Nora says, biting her lip and glancing nervously at her daughter-in-law, who is looking out of the window seaward, with a blank, fixed gaze. "It is perfectly dreadful! I suppose he thinks of going to Texas, or Manitoba, or some place like that, out in those Far West wild countries."

Bull finely shredded cabbage in slightly salted water, season and pour over it melted butter.

After 271 cases in which tails showed five times running, the next tossings gave on an average, 132 heads and 139 tails.

This helps to prove that there is no rule governing "a run of luck." Therefore, the gambler who, after a run of bad luck, goes on gambling under the impression that his luck must turn, is a fool. There is no "must" about chance.

At present, when the whole question of betting is under review, it is interesting to recall an opinion expressed by Lord Chief Justice Cockburn on the subject of gambling.

"The pernicious and fatal habit," said his lordship, "is so demoralizing and degrading that, like some foul leprosy, it will eat away the conscience, until a man comes to think that it is his duty to himself to do his neighbour as his neighbour would do him."

The simplest way to end a corn is Blue-jay. Stops the pain instantly. Takes the corn-bones and comes out. Made in clear liquid and in thin plasters. The action is the same.

Beat the yolks and whites of eggs together, add sugar and beat till very light and bubbly. Stir flour well, add half of it to egg and stir in the milk, then rest of flour. Stir in the melted butter and add baking powder, salt and vanilla last.

Mrs. Brown says Libby's Milk makes her "quick cake" richer

AS fine and rich a cake as you would care to taste—made quickly! Among the many delightful things that Mrs. W. N. Brown of Danville, Va., makes, this cake is a great favorite with her family and friends.

The thing about it that appeals especially is that it is so quick and easy to make and yet has all the richness of a more elaborate cake.

Mrs. Brown gets this special richness in just one way—by using Libby's Milk instead of ordinary milk. For Libby's is very rich in butter fat—there are 7 1/2 teaspoons in every 16 oz. can!

"The milk that good cooks use."

Like Mrs. Brown, good cooks everywhere are using this milk. So many of them, in fact, that in certain localities nearly everyone calls it "the milk that good cooks use."

It isn't ordinary canned milk, of course, nor is it milk from ordinary cows.

There are, as you know, certain sections of this country which are famous for their dairy products, pasture lands where grass grows thick and green in watered valleys and wooded hills give grateful shade.

Cows naturally produce their richest milk where nature and man combine to help them, as in these favored sections.

And you know, too, that certain kinds of cows give richer milk than others.

By placing our condenseries in the hearts of these favored sections we get, for Libby's Milk, the finest milk in the land, milk from selected herds.

We add nothing to it; we simply evaporate more than half the moisture from it, making it double rich. Then we seal it in air-tight cans and sterilize it so you can get it fresh and pure no matter where you live.

Richer milk means richer cooking. Order a can of Libby's Milk from your grocer today. Try it in soups and sauces, in cakes, breadstuffs and desserts—in anything you've been making with other milk. See what new richness, what delightful flavor it gives to all your cooking. Like thousands of other women you'll make Libby's your regular cooking milk when once you have seen what a difference it makes.

Runs That Ruin.

"MY LUCK IS BOUND TO TURN," SAYS THE GAMBLER, AFTER A SPELL OF BAD FORTUNE.

One of the pet theories of the average gambler concerns what may be termed the "Law of Luck." He thinks that luck runs in streaks, and that, after he has lost for a certain period, the time will arrive when he must win.

This imaginary Law of Luck is responsible for the ruin of thousands of gamblers every year. It has been expressed by one writer as follows:

"In a game of chance, the oftener the same combination has occurred in succession, the nearer are we to the certainty that it will not recur at the next cast or turn-up. This is the most elementary of the theories on probabilities; it is termed the maturity of win."

Now, if this were really true, gambling would be an exact science, and all gamblers would become rich men. But the theory is a theory only. There are no definite laws of probability at all.

In contradicting the theory above, Richard A. Proctor quotes a very interesting test to which he submitted it.

No "Must" About Chances.

The test was made by tossing a coin, and the coin was tossed not fewer than 16,317 times, the idea being to find out whether the turning up of a great number of heads or tails in succession affects the average of heads or tails immediately following such a run.

After 271 cases in which tails showed five times running, the next tossings gave on an average, 132 heads and 139 tails.

This helps to prove that there is no rule governing "a run of luck." Therefore, the gambler who, after a run of bad luck, goes on gambling under the impression that his luck must turn, is a fool. There is no "must" about chance.

At present, when the whole question of betting is under review, it is interesting to recall an opinion expressed by Lord Chief Justice Cockburn on the subject of gambling.

"The pernicious and fatal habit," said his lordship, "is so demoralizing and degrading that, like some foul leprosy, it will eat away the conscience, until a man comes to think that it is his duty to himself to do his neighbour as his neighbour would do him."

Giant Bomber is Marked Success.

English-designed 'Plane Makes Maiden Flight at Dayton, Ohio.

DAYTON, Ohio, August 23.—(Associated Press)—Surpassing even the wildest dreams of its designer and United States air service officials, the Barling bomber, said to be the world's largest airplane, completed its maiden flight at Wright Field last evening.

Ease with which the giant dreadnought of the air was manoeuvred, both on the ground and in flight, and the slow take-off and landing speeds, was the chief features. The plane was in the air 23 minutes.

Before it rose, Walter Barling, the Englishman who designed it, expressed confidence in his handiwork, but his shaking and his nervousness otherwise was apparent as he climbed through the small trap-door into the fuselage. Lieut. Harold Harris, the pilot, and two of a crew followed him.

Suddenly came a deafening roar as the six Liberty motors were speeded up preparatory to the take-off. An instant later the ship was seen to move across the field.

In nine seconds, and after a run of 120 yards, as Lieutenant Harris "kissed the gun," the ship was off the ground, leaving the ground at a speed of about 50 miles an hour.

The altitude was 2500 feet and about 25 miles were covered.

The landing speed was about 60 miles and hour, whereas the craft attained a maximum of 80 miles an hour in flight.

The ship has a wing spread of 120 feet, has six 450 horse power Liberty motors and weighs 40,000 pounds. The fuel tanks, in the fore-part of the fuselage, have a capacity of 2,120 gallons.

The plane carries seven machine guns and bombs totalling in weight 12,000 pounds. Operating plans call for a crew of six men—two pilots, one observer, one navigator and two gunners. It is the first plane driven by six Liberty engines.

What's the matter captain. The fact is, my dear young lady, we've broken our rudder.

I wouldn't worry about that. The rudder is mostly under water, you know; and it is not likely that people will notice it.

The Real Reason for A Pretty Skin

Why is it that one girl has a fresh smooth complexion and another a skin which is lifeless, dull and sallow? Is it a gift of nature or some guarded beauty secret?

It is a secret, but an open one in which every woman may share. It consists in knowledge of the care which keeps the skin free from clogging, poisonous accumulations. In the removal every day of all dirt, oil secretions, excess cold cream, powder and rouge.

To do this, use mild soap, massage it thoroughly into your skin and remove with many rinsings. The milder soap you can choose for this purpose is Palmolive. It contains Palm and Olive oils. These rare oils are the mildest cleansers nature ever produced. They are the oils used by Cleopatra thousands of years ago.

Their combination in Palmolive produces a profuse, creamy lather which penetrates every tiny pore, removes every trace of dirt, oil, rouge and powder and leaves the skin smooth and fresh as a rose.

You can buy Palmolive Soap at all first-class dealers.

Rotarians Act as Hosts.

OUTING FOR KIDDIES TO-DAY.

The members of the Rotary Club are giving their annual outing to the poor children of the city to-day, and should the day be fine the youngsters are in for a trollicking good time. The Rotarians will meet for their usual weekly luncheon at the West End Restaurant at 1 p.m. There will be no speech making to-day. All arrangements will be perfected for the benefit of the kiddies. Following the luncheon upwards of forty cars will call at the various homes for the children, later assembling at Fort Townsend. They will then move in procession to the park by way of Military Road, Cavendish Square, Duckworth Street, Shea's Hill, Water St., to Bowling Park, where a stop will be made to treat the children to refreshments. From there the kiddies will move to Smithville where a sumptuous supper will be served at 5.30. After the appetites of all have been amply satisfied they will be treated to a moving picture show and entertainment which is bound to produce lots of fun. Upwards of 150 children will take part in the outing. The Rotarians are to be congratulated for the deep interest they have taken in setting aside a day to bring happiness and joy to the poor children of the city. That the affair will prove enjoyable to all, goes without saying.

S.S. Roxburgh Arrives in Port.

SHIP STRANDED AT HIGH GREGO.
S.S. Roxburgh which went ashore at Botwood on Friday last, arrived in port last night and berthed at the Furness Wharf Pier. The ship's forepeak and No. 1 tank are full of water. The Roxburgh loaded pit props at Brown's Arm, Burn's Arm and Point of Bay, Exploits, and was bound to Cardiff when she stranded at High Grego. Just one hour after leaving port. At the time the ship was in charge of a local pilot. It was foggy at the time and when the land loomed ahead the ship's anchors were let go and the engines reversed. In spite of this the Roxburgh hit hard on a shelving rock. After the accident it was found that the ship was drawing 17 feet of water whereas, when afloat, she showed 24 feet. Several attempts were made during the day to refloat the ship and the forward deckload of pit props were jettisoned. It was not, however, until Saturday night at 10.30 when the assistance of the Clyde tug was procured that the ship was towed off. The Roxburgh is owned by Messrs. Ridley & Son, and Tully, Newcastle-on-Tyne, and is 4,286 tons gross, and 2,716 nett. This is Capt. Jenkins' first trip to this port.

Building Concrete Chimneys.

A SIMPLE METHOD DEvised BY MR. CHAS. HENDERSON.

A simple method of building concrete chimneys, devised by Mr. Chas. Henderson Sr., is being used in the construction of the new Reid Company offices, on Duckworth St. For the usual wooden core or inside form which causes so much trouble to remove after the chimney is built Mr. Henderson substitutes a core of sand. The advantages are that the chimney can be used without any wait for the cement to set as there is no danger of a collapse inward. As many hands as desired can be put in the chimney, that is the core follows the contour of the outside form. All that is required is a quantity of sand sufficient to fill the space of the proposed chimney and a piece of sheet iron shaped like a box without bottom or cover. This latter is in reality but a short section (2 feet) of the usual inside wooden form. The outside cribbing is made in the usual way and the box like a piece of iron is placed inside. Concrete is then poured in, after which, or during the pouring, sand is packed in the box. The latter is then drawn up. More concrete is placed and the box again filled with sand. When the top is reached and after the cement has had time to set, the sand core is taken out through the hole usually left near the chimney base for the purpose of taking out soot. Mr. Henderson has not patented his idea and everybody can therefore use it.

Fatal Accident at Bell Island.

MISS HORNEY KILLED BY ORE CAR.

At 7.30 last evening Miss Hilda Horney, a servant at the Staff House, Bell Island, was killed almost instantly by a runaway ore car. It appears that Miss Horney had left the Staff House but a few minutes and was crossing the east tramway, on the way to visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. John Horney, when she was hit by the runaway car and rendered unconscious. Being picked up she was conveyed to Dr. Giovineti's Surgery where, after a brief examination, it was seen that life was extinct. The unfortunate girl was only 23 years of age and her untimely death comes as a severe blow to her family.

A.A.A. NOTICES.
Should weather conditions be such as to prevent the preliminaries being run off to-night, they will be held to-morrow morning at 10.30.

Games will be called at 2.30 p.m. sharp, to-morrow.

Officials and newspaper representatives only allowed inside the enclosure. This rule will be strictly enforced.

The dressing rooms at the eastern end of the field are reserved for weight event competitors only. All contestants in racing events must use the large marquee erected at the western end of the enclosure.

A bell will be rung immediately before each event, when competitors must at once proceed to the starting line; otherwise they will be scratched as no delay can be permitted.

Bell will be rung when the leading man in events over a quarter of a mile enters the last lap.

The silver cup presented by Mr. C. H. Hayward of Grand Falls in 1922 is for the Club or Association securing the greatest number of points, to be scored as follows:—

1st place . . . . . 5 points
2nd place . . . . . 3
3rd place . . . . . 1

Points obtained in the Junior events are not to count. The cup must be won three years (not necessarily in succession) before becoming the property of any club. It was won last year by St. Bon's.

Contestants are not allowed to compete for any more than one Association.

Where the amateur status of any entrant is questioned, certificate must be produced.

The junior age limit is defined as under 15, and birth certificates must be produced.

All contestants in every event must be suitably attired in athletic dress; otherwise they shall not be allowed to compete.

LEAGUE CHAMPIONSHIP GAME THURSDAY.

There was a fair attendance of fans at last evening's game, when the Saints defeated the Felldians by a score of 3-1. The exhibition was good, the Saints playing a nice combination game and in the first half notched up three goals, H. Sawyer getting two and Gordon Elton the third. In the second half, Ewing scored for the Felldians, from a mix-up, Belbin saving the shot, but being in over the goal line the decision was given against him. Only one more game remains to be played, the Felldians-Cadets match which is scheduled for Thursday night. In case the Cadets are victorious they become champions for 1923, while should the Felldians win, the Cadets and Guards will have to play off. In view of the shortness of the evenings it is hoped the championship game towards the end was played in the dark.

NEWFOUNDLAND ENTRIES O.E.

Taking time by the forelock! The A.A.A. wired Halifax on Friday last, stating that in the event of its being decided to send Newfoundland representatives would entries be made after the date of closing viz: Sept. 1st. The Secretary has received a reply stating that this would be satisfactory to the A.A.A. of Canada, provided entries were made by telegraph by Saturday. All is needed therefore is the hearty co-operation of the public to-morrow to make the proposed representation an assured fact.

ORDER OF EVENTS.

In reply to "Guard" the order of events on Wednesday will be the same as last year, viz:—

JUNIOR FOOTBALL.

The contesting teams in to-morrow evening's Junior League match will be the Cadets and Scouts when a lively game is anticipated. The Cadets have gone so far without a loss or draw against them and are therefore strong in the running for the championship. The Scouts are a good team improving with every game, and the other teams are placing their hopes in them to stop the Cadets' onward rush.

ANSWERS.

A Winner—The medals won at last year's Indoor Meet at the Prince's Rink were ordered through a local firm, but evidently were lost in the parcel post mail. All efforts to trace them have been in vain, and a duplicate issue has been ordered. They will be immediately presented by the A.A.A. on arrival.

TO-DAY'S BEST LAUGH.

A Scotch professor was advocating the advantages of athletic exercises. "The Roman youth," he declared, "used to swim three times across the Tiber before breakfast."

Observing a smile on the face of one of the students, the professor demanded:—"Mr. McAllister, why do you smile? We shall be glad to share your amusement."

"I was just thinking, sir," the student replied, "weren't the Roman youth puzzled to get their clothes at the end of a swim?"

FATHER'S DAY?

Sunday, Sept. 9th.

FATHER'S DAY at KEARNEY'S

Saturday, Sept. 8th

Canada and the U.S.A. have already realized that "Dad's been left out"—His birthday's been overlooked, -- Christmas expenses have been high—"Dad doesn't mind," so—he goes without.

Therefore -- they've adopted a "Father's Day." A day when everybody remembers "Dad." When even the very poorest try to get him a gift—however small.

Kearney has made a "Father's Day" for Newfoundland, Sept. 9th. Aren't there lots of things "Dad" needs, or would like?

SURE. Well--get them--on or before Saturday

For "Father's Day" CAPS!

ARGENTINE SWIMMER'S GREAT FEAT—THE BEST YET.
Within a week the English Channel has been crossed twice. The feat performed recently by Sullivan, an American, has now been accomplished by Tiraboschi, a swimmer from the southern portion of the Western continent.

Tiraboschi, a native of the Argentina, entered the water at Cape Grise, near Calais, at 8.10 p.m. on Saturday evening. The weather was fine and the sea calm. A tug accompanied him.

The weather remained excellent, and although he was at one time near the end of his plucky attempt drifted westward by the tide, he hung gamely on, swimming very strongly to succeed in equalling the work of Webb, Burgess, and Sullivan.

He landed on the western beach at Dover at 12.33 p.m. on Sunday, so that his crossing was accomplished in the record time of 16 hours 33 minutes.

He had a great reception from the large crowd of holidaymakers.

Other times.
The following table compares Tiraboschi's performance with the three others:

- 1875—Webb . . . . . 21 hours 45 mins.
- 1911—Burgess . . . . . 23 hours 25 mins.
- 1922—Sullivan . . . . . 27 hours 45 mins.
- Tiraboschi . . . . . 16 hours 33 mins.

Tiraboschi is the first to cross from the French side.
Three swimmers started from without being near the wall at all.

Pump Molasses Like Gasoline.

Time and Labor-Saving Method of Handling Delicacy.

Delivering molasses by pumping it even as one delivers gasoline from a roadside station into the tank of an automobile is one of the latest time, labor and money saving devices newly introduced into Montreal.

From this it need not be deduced that the housewife desiring to make a purchase of ten cents worth of molasses from the neighboring grocery store will be required to lay a length of garden hose to the village warehouse and pump her purchase through a certified molasses meter into the family refrigerator. That stage has not yet been reached.

On a larger scale however it was tested out this week by a large wholesale firm, which took delivery of a shipload of molasses by pumping it out of the steamer's tank into the warehouse. Formerly, molasses was always carried in barrels, handled by cranes, but the system of carrying it in tank steamers like fuel oil, and delivering it by pumping was found to effect a great saving in time. How far the money saving would go the consignees were not able to say yet.

The tank steamer Athelstone was emptied in this way in 36 hours, and with greater experience in handling the apparatus it is hoped to reduce the discharging time to 24 hours for a cargo of 55,000 tons.

Yawning.

There are a number of odd superstitions with regard to yawning. Most people remember having been corrected at some time or other for not placing a hand over the mouth to cover up a yawn.

This arose from a quaint belief of years ago when people were more superstitious than they are to-day—that there was a danger of the devil jumping into the open mouth when in the act of yawning.

Among many races it is still believed that he who yawns much is possessed of an evil spirit. When a Hindu yawns, he raps his thumbs and repeats the name of one of his deities. To neglect this means misfortune.

When a Moslem yawns, he puts the back of his left hand over the open mouth and says "I seek refuge in Allah from Satan."

To yawn in the midst of prayers is considered a bad omen. It is better, according to ancient superstition, to begin the prayer again, from the beginning.

Awful Discovery.

The skeletons of five women, who are believed to have been murdered, have been discovered in the popituous quarter of Maison Blanche in Paris during building operations. The police are investigating the matter. It is believed that the skeletons have been there for possibly 30 years.

Visitor: Well, Tommy, how are you getting on at school?
Tommy (aged eight): First rate, I ain't doing so well as some of the other boys, though. I can stand on my head, but I have to put my feet against the wall. I want to do it without being near the wall at all.

The Construction of the British Empire Exhibition

Mr. Robert McAlpine, head of the firm of Sir Robert McAlpine & Sons, are the contractors for the British Empire Exhibition to be opened in London, 1924, gave some interesting particulars to-day of the progress of the work at Wembley Park, London.

"The British Empire Exhibition has not come to be classed as one of the wonders of the world," said Sir Robert, "it will certainly deserve a place as one of the wonders of the future. So far it has not been disturbed by the general public, but those who have had an opportunity of seeing it even in its present skeleton form are practically without exception unanimously impressed with its grandeur and scope."

From an architectural point of view it has proved what can be done with steel and concrete. It is a building to a greater extent and in a greater variety of ways at Wembley than any other building in the world. Everything that it has been possible to make in concrete has been made in concrete. Even the flag staff is made of concrete.

The effects achieved have to be made. We have made no attempt to make the concrete look anything but concrete but not a single visitor who comes to inspect the progress of the work refuse to believe that in certain parts there are not real stones.

From the employment point of view the Exhibition has an importance of its own. At the present moment we have over 2,500 men at work and we are finishing the job the number may be doubled. These quarters of men are all service men. And those are the men directly employed. This imagination is required to make the enormous numbers to be employed in the Exhibition gives employment indirectly.

It is often asked by the doubting Thomases if the Exhibition will be ready for next April. On that point I have no doubt whatever. As the buildings are completed the work will be completed. It is not so far as Exhibitions go that the better.

The past six weeks have seen an advance, particularly in the glass sections, and now hardly a pane without visible progress made.

Of the buildings with one or two significant exceptions the "how well they are going" is the only question that has to be asked.

During the life of the Exhibition Sir Robert McAlpine & Sons, as the builders are called, the amount of material actually used at the end of last month which are as follows:

Steel and Ballast . . . 100,000 tons
 Cement . . . 16,000 " "
 Portland Cement . . . 45,000 " "
 Structural Steel . . . 2,500 " "
 Iron . . . 300,000 sq. ft.
 Glass . . . 250,000 " "
 All, excluding the Stadium, has been completed for some time, something like a quarter of a mile cubic yards of earth have been excavated for the foundations of the Exhibition.

It is thought the Exhibition has been named "The Shop Window of the World" as my experience in visiting the Exhibition of the Empire has been a much greater exchange of commodities would be done if greater knowledge existed to what each Colliery is capable of producing.

The plans of the Amusement Park are under development in catering for the pleasure of the people which will be a delight as well as a surprise to the visitors who have never before had an opportunity of enjoyment in a large and varied scale.

Stone Mountain.

America has begun the creation of a great work. "As temporary as a sandcastle" is a catchphrase in various parts of the world. It has been concerned with the thought of enduring thoughts, of lasting monuments. Now we have entered a new era in art. Few Americans realize the blunders of art development in this country during the last twenty-five years.

There is a monument now under construction on Stone Mountain, Georgia, which future races will look upon as a masterpiece of art and study as does this present monument on the Sphinx on the Nile.

Stone Mountain, bound about as it is by the Civil War traditions, seems a great rock placed in the landscape of the world for the coming of a new artist who would see it as a blank slate for his work. It is a massive level country, one hundred feet long, and like a sugar-cube it sits on a base of granite. It is a smooth as the wall of a cave.

At this point Confederate history was made. A few years ago the members of the Confederacy decided to get a small monument or tablet on some sort of the mountain to commemorate the soldiers who made the last stand.

General Borglum, one of the world's greatest sculptors, was asked to suggest a suitable tablet. Borglum suggested that he would willingly dedicate the rest of his life to such a project.

and when the work had once been started, either artists would come forward to complete it. This monument will take years of labor and will cost five million dollars. When it is finished, it will be one of the world's greatest works of art.

Borglum took a year to develop a method by which the monument might be successfully produced. With the use of a tannin-sulfide for by five inches, on which is applied the figure to be carved on the mountain, and with a two-thousand candle power light behind it, the rugged picture is shown as the smooth granite surface. Men are dropped by cables three hundred and fifty feet and they paint on the rocks the lines of the gigantic figures. Later stone-cutters are lowered to do their work under the supervision of Borglum.

The group is eleven hundred feet long; it is two hundred feet high; the horse on which General Lee rides is one hundred and thirty-seven feet from hoofs to top of his bridle. The whole design is moving and full of action. It contains all of the branches of an American army. The central figure is that splendid Christian, Robert Lee, who fought valiantly for a cause in which he believed and surrendered without bitterness or hatred.

Stone Mountain is not merely a Southern monument; it is a great national treasure, which is being discussed in the art circles of Europe

Earthquakes.

What causes eruptions? Entold says back our Earth consisted of a mass of whirling fiery gas. As this gradually cooled, a crust formed on the outside, and this crust is what we are living on.

During the cooling (which is still going on) cracks and weak spots were formed in the uneven crust, and it is along these lines of weakness that we get volcanoes (the name by the way, is taken from Vulcan, the old god of fire).

Inside the crust of the earth is a mass of gas at a temperature higher than anything we can ever conceive. Whether this heat is at the core, or round the core, or even distributed in "pockets," we don't know, but we are certain that there is a simple enormous heat somewhere under our earth's crust.

Road and Motor Notes.

(Mount St. Helens)
A PATRIOT IN THE BAY

Much of the pleasure of spending in France is due to the discovery in which the French fishermen are mentioned. One and another in these countries it has been mentioned the most interesting way of spending a day is to go on a little boat on a sunny day. It is just this plan which the Frenchman applies to the maintenance of roads. Caretakers are on the job all the while, repairing the little ruts which, when neglected, become serious obstacles to the traffic. It is not an enormous task to find the road caretaker in France going to the trouble to replace a stone or fill in a small hole. Over here we suffer while a road is being built, enjoy it for a few months, then forget it and spend time to ten years afterwards complaining over its frightful condition or the inconvenience and delay necessary by extensive repairs.

IF DRIVERS WOULD GIVE HEED TO POLICE.

Any careful driver will find at least a half dozen drivers during the course of an afternoon who ought to be reported to the authorities. The police are seldom in sight when the flagrant violations occur; and the violator does as he pleases most of the time, safe in the belief that while other motorists will swear vengeance on him they will not report him.

This is an unfortunate state of affairs. The motorist who feels that he has a duty to perform in clearing the streets of automobile law-breakers makes a note of a violator's license number; then coming to think of the inconvenience he will be put to in identifying against the violator decides to let the matter drop.

It simply means that the law-breaker is not discovered officially until he has caused some serious—perhaps fatal accident. Most licenses are revoked after the damage is done.

This is all the more reason why the country would profit by a system whereby all motorists would be free to report any act of deliberate violation without being obliged to appear against the law-breaker and be unnecessarily inconvenienced. The accused charge is a matter for the police, or the officials, but the average driver can help materially by advising the police whom to watch.

If motorists would send in a brief report of drivers they think bear watching the police would soon know where to direct their efforts. If ten motorists reported the same driver it wouldn't be long before that driver would get what he deserved—and before he caused great damage.

GRASP LEVER FIRMLY.

The gear shift lever of a car is capable of an annoying kick back if the gears are carelessly shifted. A careless shift means one in which the gears trip over each other before they mesh. This actually mesh, during which process the gear shift lever will vibrate enough to give the relaxed fingers of the driver a bad kick and perhaps injure one of them. Whether your shifting is good or bad, it's safer to grasp the lever firmly.

SPEED UP MOTOR TO GO INTO NEUTRAL.

When you want to shift into neutral, either to coast or to shift to another speed, always speed up a little. If this is not done the gears will "stick" a little, even to a point of resisting a change until the car has slowed down almost to a standstill. When the engine is pulling the driving gears too vigorously, or when the car itself is exerting a varying force, the pressure on the gears at their teeth surfaces is not equal. This causes "sticking" and the difficulty of pulling them out of mesh. Speeding up the engine a little will usually tend to equalize these pressures.

Portugese Cruiser Sustained Extensive Damage.

The Portuguese cruiser Cardalho Arago, which went into dry dock yesterday evening, sustained greater damage than was anticipated when she struck the rocks at LaMouche on Friday last. The ship's bow below the water line has been crumpled in and some 20 feet of hull carried away. Several bilge plates are also badly dented. It is expected that permanent repairs will be effected here.

SIDE TALK.

By Ruth Cameron.

THE RECKLESS PEDESTRIAN.

When an obvious and reckless and unsafe auto driver is deprived of his license, both the pedestrian and the decent motorist applaud. And with reason. But there are a few times when the motorist would like to see this reckless and unsafe pedestrian and driver or cart driver, deprived of his license to make the road safe for the rest of the world.

"So Now!"
A woman was driving a car at an excessive rate of speed, when she emerged from an alley across the street. When she saw the car she did not start or hurry forward, she simply sped calmly into its path. The driver, of course, made a sharp turn, and spitting the machine, and the child. Then she got out and scolded her that she must be more careful.

To-morrow You May Ride.
If we had fixed classes in this country, and one class would always walk while another rode, it would not seem so strange that the walkers should feel resentment toward the riders. But our classes are so fluid: The man who walks to-day may be the man who rides to-morrow, and the man who rides to-day may walk to-morrow.

Who not be decently considerate then whether you walk or ride, knowing to-morrow you may need consideration of the same kind you give.

Not To Walk In.
Are for vehicles of all sorts.

War on Pigeons.

The war many pigeons flying through their homes in the Midlands were missing, and led to the belief that they had come to a tragic end in the neighborhood of Salisbury. Then it was that a pair of peregrines had established themselves in the tower spire of Salisbury Cathedral and the mystery of the disappearing pigeons was solved.

The Great Pacific Earthquake.

One of the greatest earthquakes of recent years occurred at three o'clock on the morning of February 4, 1923, at a point in the north Pacific Ocean 51 degrees north and 170 degrees east, and in 11 minutes exactly the shock was recorded on the seismographs in the Dominion Observatory, Ottawa. The centre of the disturbance was just about half way between the Aleutian Islands and the point of the peninsula of Kamchatka.

At this point the floor of the ocean had been for many years subject to an ever-increasing stress, resulting from the shrinking of the earth and many other causes. Though no one was present to witness the convulsions, it is clear to scientists that they must have been terrific. With a mighty crash a great cleft opened in the floor of the ocean engulfing bodily the water above. Two great walls of water, the edges of this gulf, rushed together raising the ocean level high above its normal surface. While there was no damage to life and property at the point of adjustment, the tidal waves thus formed travelled over the ocean with a speed of about 400 miles an hour and rushed upon the shores of Hawaii seven hours later, causing considerable damage to property and some loss of life.

The seismologists at Ottawa were informed of the earthquake by a message in the form of three sets of earth waves. The first of these called the P or preliminary waves travelled the distance of 4,700 miles from the epicentre to Ottawa in exactly 11 minutes. The second set called the S or secondary waves took about 20 minutes, whereas the third set, the L or long waves, took about thirty-two minutes. The first two sets travelled through the interior of the earth, while the long waves radiated out over the ocean floor and over the land surface in all directions.

It was from the difference in the time of arrival of these waves that the distance of the centre of the earthquake from the observatory was calculated. The combined records at Ottawa, Hawaii, and Georgetown (D.C., U.S.A.) were used to finally determine its exact location.

The seismographs are kept constantly recording, day and night. There are from 100 to 150 earthquakes recorded in a year. These records are furnishing data for the location of earthquake epicentres and active fault lines. The mass of data accumulated will probably lead in time to prediction of great quakes.

The perfecting of seismograph instruments offers, as an interesting and profitable side-line, means for the investigation of vibrations and sagging in buildings, filled-land areas, railway lines, and great chimneys, and used locally with artificial quakes generated by means of explosives set off at the base of a single borehole enables surveys to be made for the location of oil and mineral deposits.

Seismograph records are of considerable value for the purpose of determining the conditions beneath the earth's surface. As the preliminary and secondary waves of this quake dipped 900 miles below the earth's surface, they penetrated far below any borings man could ever make and they brought up information which could not be obtained in any other way.

Weeds Worth Growing.

Tasty Salads and a Tobacco Substitute Grow Wild in Our Fields or by the Roadside.

"Dirt," someone said, "is matter in the wrong place." Weeds you might define in the same way, as plants in the wrong place, and farmers and gardeners should remember that weeds not only rob growing crops of the food intended for them, but also stint them in the matter of air, light, and moisture.

On the other hand, weeds can be made useful. If they are turned under they help to fertilize the soil, and some of them are very valuable in this respect. Others are useful as cattle food.

Among these non-weeds comfrey, Comfrey is a large-leaved plant which grows wild in many parts of the country, especially in rather moist ground, and many big seedmen actually stock the seeds. Nothing gives a horse a better coat. Comfrey is also useful as a vegetable. The young leaves can be picked and cooked like spinach. They make a very good dish, and are excellent for purifying the blood.

Try Balled Bracken.
Nettles, too, can be used as spinach, and the dried leaves make excellent hay. Ponies, given hay in which there are nettles, will always pick out the dried nettle leaves and eat them first.

Bracken is increasing in England at an alarming rate. Great stretches of Dartmoor are covered with it, and it kills out the heather in its march. Yet bracken, weed as it is, has its uses. It makes good bedding for cattle, and the small curled fronds can be cooked and eaten. They require to be boiled for about an hour and a half, chopped fine, and flavoured with a little meat stock and a few cloves.

Dandelions ruin a lawn and have to be cut out bodily with a spade or old knife-blade, leaving ugly holes. Yet the French grow small patches of dandelion in almost every garden. The tender leaves make an excellent salad at the very time when lettuce and endive are not obtainable.

Equally abominable, from the point of view of the man who delights in smooth, shaven lawns, is the plantain. To the green-keeper, of the golf club the presence of this weed is particularly hateful. All the same the plantain has its uses. Sheep delight in it, and will eat it, leaf, root and all. The seeds are one of the greatest delicacies which can be offered to a caged bird. Finches and canaries love them.

Rhubarb Balsam.
All of us grow rhubarb, which is to a native of this country. Few, however, pay any attention to its near relatives, the sorrels, which grow wild on every hand. We leave them to the sheep to consume, although for salads the tender leaves of sorrel are considered by many superior even to lettuce.

It is quite worth while to go out into the fields with a trowel, dig up a dozen of sorrel plants, and transplant them to your garden. Put them six inches apart, water well, and the leaves will be deliciously crisp and tender.

The teasel, now grown in great quantities for use in woolen mills, where it is the best medium for giving a nap to woolen cloth, is also a common weed, is about the only substitute for tobacco found in this country. The leaves, if cured like properly will not smoke at all badly in a pipe.

Parcel Post Adds to Exports.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 24.—(A.P.)—The American export business by mail and parcel post is growing so rapidly that the Department of Commerce officials have decided to ascertain so far as possible the extent of this business, of which no statistics ever have been kept. It is believed to run into a huge sum each year, which will swell the total value of the foreign exports of the United States.

Plans have been completed to collect, beginning with January, 1924, statistics of exports by parcel post and mail, which have not been collected heretofore because such exports are not cleared through custom houses. Tentative regulations, subject to approval by the Postmaster General, have been drawn up requiring business concerns in the United States exporting by mail goods valued at $25 or over to file export declarations.

Stranded in Belgium.

Quite a number of British girls have recently been stranded in Brussels, and this again calls attention to the scandalous manner in which chorus girls are recruited for work in the Belgian capital. They are offered high wages, taken over, and after a pretence of employment are told that they must get money by other means. They are also callously informed there is no means of getting them back to England. Only recently the British Consul arrested for a batch of twelve stranded girls to be sent home.

Mammoth Show at the Nickel Yesterday.

"BROADWAY ROSE" IS MAGNIFICENT PHOTOPLAY.

An entertainment of superior excellence was witnessed at the Nickel last night. Miss Margaret Frear, the popular mezzo-soprano, delighted everybody with her renditions of "Vissi D'arte" from La Traviata and "A Little Bit of Heaven." Miss Frear's interpretation makes them a source of thrilling inspiration to all who hear them.

In "Broadway Rose," which opened at this theatre yesterday, Miss Murray has again added to the dramatic interest of a powerful love story a dazzling production conspicuous for its gorgeous settings and wonderful costumes. Not the least interesting parts of the picture are those episodes where Miss Murray is given opportunity to display her ability as a dancer. There she becomes the idol of Broadway and receives the adulation which is showered on the favorites of the Gay White Way. Success in her career only serves to increase her desire for the love and happiness which every woman craves. So When Hugh Thomson urges her to marry him she consents in spite of the fact that she knows that his father will disinherit him for marrying a dancer. All's well that ends well.

Household Notes.

Serve fried veal cutlets with brown butter, lemon and capers.

Flour for bread dough should be warmed slightly in cold weather.

Sixteen tablespoonfuls, or one-half pint, is contained in the standard cupful.

Rubbing with a cloth dipped in kerosene will keep lacquered copper in good condition.

Dumplings should be kept closely covered while cooking, as otherwise they are apt to fall.

To make potato chips or Saratoga potatoes successfully, one should use a vegetable cutter.

Wild rice is a comparatively new fish and is quite delicious served with wild duck or any game.

If the filling of stuffed peppers needs moistening, any kind of soup stock or gravy can be added.

Pastry flour contains less gluten and more starch than bread flour and therefore is smoother and lighter.

If spaghetti is being served with a seasoned sauce, but no main dish of meat, add a few bits of chopped ham or tongue.

A steamed fig and pudding flavored with cider or orange juice is delicious served hot with hard or foamy sauce.

Served with either sausage or chops, buckwheat cakes and maple syrup make an ideal breakfast for a cold morning.

Make a blackberry pie with one crust, cover with a sweetened meringue, sprinkle with a little sugar and brown delicately.

Fill small tart shells with fresh ripe blackberries, top with sweetened whipped cream and garnish with a few choice berries.

Brown barley is delicious and wholesome cooked like rice and served as a vegetable, or with top milk and sugar as a cereal.

Mashed potatoes will be more fluffy if, after they are boiled and drained, they are dried by shaking the pan over the fire.

Clean bran can sometimes be purchased at a nearby feed-store, but several times through a good-grinder and used in the cooking.

English muffins are unusually delicious when split, toasted on a grid-iron spread with butter and served with honey or marmalade.

Bake light bread for sandwiches in greased baking powder cans, filling them only half full to allow room for the dough to raise before baking.

Never let freshly baked bread stand in a draught until it has cooled. Remove loaves of bread from the pans as soon as they have finished baking.

Stuff green peppers with a mixture of cold boiled rice, chopped cold meat, chopped onion and seasoning, cover with buttered crumbs and bake.

Unless a recipe states otherwise make all measurements level, as they cannot be used to level on dry ingredients.

Public Corruption.

(By OBSERVER, Bonavista.)
 "I had not wished to see the day, When Newfoundland should prostrate lay,
 And doubt the sons she bore. But now, alas, she looks in vain, For men to cleanse her from the stain;
 Could malice whisper more."
 It shocks the mind to muse upon the lines of (to me) an unknown writer because it gives wings to our thoughts and shows us that we cannot travel far without concluding that we have thrown down the gauntlet and challenged both God and His pulpit to keep our once decent standard of public morality from going to wholesale robbery and corruption.
 Who will dare to say that we are progressing? No we cannot be. We easily see the dividing line where men in public life turned sharply to the left with the avowed intention of despoiling an innocent people indifferent to the obvious result of branding themselves as thugs and robbers on the public highway; for the politician who acts differently with public monies with a view to personal appropriation than he does with private funds in his own private business is no less a robber than the outlawed desperado who points his pistol and says "your money or your life." No less callous and no less immoral is he. And if he takes advantage of the security of office to pursue his nefarious intentions, he is a despicable coward beside, because he builds upon the general usage which gives politicians immunity from justice while he robs his helpless victims of their very sustenance.
 There are many foits and bumps for the brain of the ordinary person who sits down to think through the sea-way of public scandals and immoral practices of present public bodies called governments, but the jolt with high voltage on comes in on this overpowering thought that when it comes to public robbery, justice seems to jump its steed and deliberately refuse to stabilize by punishment and penalties a wicked and vicious stream of oppression against the very people for whom governments were created to protect.
 This being a fact; where then is the hope for the producer? If as we know, the trend of political life is still toward debauchery and corruption and the lever of all laws is a non-detachable part of political machinery, who will see that if public monies still carries its own title of public plunder, that justice will be meted out to offenders? If the politician is exempt from justice for this absurd reason that he is the law maker, I ask again what hope is there, what hope can there be for those who still must hew wood and draw water?
 The one disgusting feature of the whole study is that present political examples, being epidemic, have as might be expected broken out among the people. The present unprecedented number of larcenies, pilfering of government property of all qualities especially the wholesale appropriation of government pitprops and pulpwood are directly traceable to political tuition, and while we denounce, bitterly, such a degrading tendency and allow a generous scope for moral leeway on the part of politicians, how can we take sides with a doctrine impartial enough to punish one party and grant the other absolute immunity from justice. The people cannot be blamed, they have simply followed the teachings and examples of those who should have known better; they did know better but blinded by lust for power and the spoils of office they paid little heed to consequences. Let them now shoulder the responsibility.

 We are certainly at a loss to understand how or on what grounds the present government can hope for a restoration of public confidence by simply putting a new ruler on the old ship of destruction. Personally we have every hope of being able to develop some faith in the new leader, but we cannot be persuaded to lose sight of the fact that we are still retaining within the government a concentrated element of twisted and deceitful policies whose very existence publicly shows a menace to public welfare, and until it is rooted up and thrown out no permanent good is at all probable to result from the present change. We take the liberty to say we still fear to forget any person whose dreams are wild, whose extravagance and deceit is wilful just because for the time being he loses his identity in a fair semblance of a theatrical shuffle. We still visualize a danger, a danger so grave as to prevent us absolutely from feeling a negligible possibility of future good behavior with our softening hope for a generous confidence in our new Premier; but if Mr. Warren is both fool and guileproof and is determined to be boss with honest motives his superior; then the public who are not corrupted by bribery nor giddy from following a vacillating policy may thank God that possibly the biggest of dangers has passed. The staggering disclosures that have been brought before the eyes of a victimized people may possibly for the people bring a more sober and serious way of thinking and for a squandering remnant of the past government we now once more take up the discarded thread of hope that an awakening to shame may bring back the obsolete terms HONESTY, INTEGRITY AND PROGRESS.

Laying of Corner Stone of Church at Warwood.
 In the following clipping from the Wheeling Recorder reference is made to Father Edward Galway who left here many years ago, but who paid a visit to his old home this summer when his many old friends gave him a warm welcome.
BISHOP SWINT DELIVERS IMPRESSIVE ADDRESS AT EXERCISES HELD RECENTLY.
 The corner stone of the new Corpus Christi church was laid in Warwood Wheeling, W. Virginia, recently with elaborate ceremonies.
 A notable address was made by the Right Rev. J. Swint, D.D., Bishop of Wheeling, who was assisted by the Very Rev. O. A. Moya, V.G., who acted as master of ceremonies, and Rev. Father Edward Galway, pastor of the Warwood Parish, and representatives of the clergy from the Wheeling and Pittsburgh districts.
 The services took place at five o'clock previous to that hour a heavy rain storm swept over the valley, which prevented many churchmen from being present at the interesting and historic exercises.
 An assembly of several hundred people heard the sermon of Bishop Swint. In an address of twenty minutes he ably upheld a number of the doctrines, which he stated had been taught and believed by the Catholic church for two thousand years or more.
 He brought out the importance of erecting this magnificent edifice to the service of God. He called upon the parishioners to cheerfully contribute and to support the undertaking.
 Previous to his address the corner stone was laid according to the ancient custom of the church and the ritualistic rules which have so long been carried out upon such occasions.
 The speakers stand was appropriately decorated. A beautiful American flag floated to the breeze, with a fringe of black in honor of the memory of the Beloved President who had passed away.
 The corner stone is of white granite. Chiseled thereon are the words "Corpus Christi, 1923." The stone was put into position in the building by Edward J. Weber, architect and R. V. Engstrom of Engstrom & Co., building contractors.
 Before the stone was sealed many unique and interesting things were placed therein.
 Among the contents were:
 A copy of the Wheeling Sunday Register.
 A copy of the Pittsburg Observer.
 List of members of the congregation.
 Coins of different denomination.

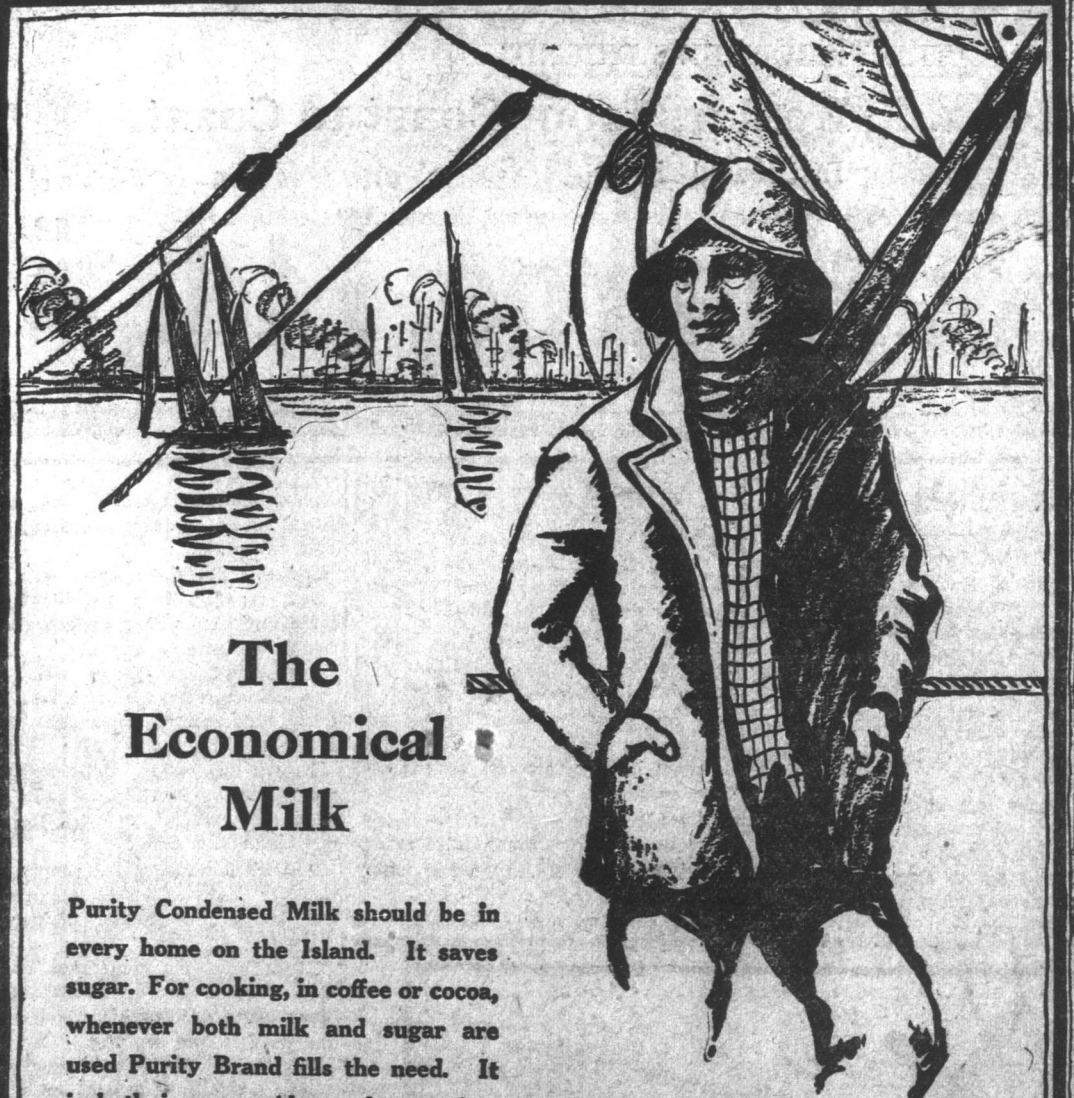

The name of Edward J. Weber, of Pittsburgh, architect.
 The name of Bishop Swint.
 Many other things of interest, which relate to the present day. Among the distinguished out of town visitors who assisted in the laying of the corner stone were the Very Rev. M. A. Hehir, C.E. Sp., president of the Duquesne University of Pittsburgh and the Very Rev. P. H. Glisenn of Fairmont, former pastor of Corpus Christi.
 Other representatives of the clergy present were: Rev. Paul Abrahams, Rev. Thomas J. Garrett, Rev. Francis P. Rossman, Rev. Alphonses Hillenbrand, O.M. Cap, Rev. Ernest Phleger, S.M., Rev. Jeremiah O'Connell, and Rev. Joseph Gormley, all of Wheeling; Rev. James Rogers, Follansbec; Rev. Arthur D. McSwiggan, Weirton; Rev. Leopold Herman, Wallsburg; and Rev. Michael J. Cogan, of Moundsville.

THE DEAD FLEDGLING
 I have just come in from the yard,
 Called there by the children's cries,
 And oh, but they take it hard
 When a fledging robin dies!
 The dog in his playful way
 Had struck a fluttering thing,
 And there on the ground it lay,
 A bird that would never sing.
 I pillowed it in my hand
 And they watched it as it gasped
 For breath:
 Came a slight little tremor—and
 The children had looked on death.
 Tears for the spirit fled
 Came into the children's eyes,
 Such tears as would grace the bed
 Of a monarch when he dies.
 Brief was your span of breath,
 Poor bird, but could you know
 Yours was a royal death
 To be mourned for the children so.

Old Masters Identified.
 Great developments are following the clever invention of Professor Laurie, the Principal of the Heriot-Watt College, Edinburgh, who has devised a system whereby it is practically possible to identify Old Masters.
 Professor Laurie is chemist to the Royal Academy, and thus brings to bear upon the problem an unrivalled knowledge of pigments; but, more than this, he has invented a microscopic camera with which he takes minute photographs of disputed pictures. These prints are developed and magnified, and then compared with results from an undoubted Master. Already doubts concerning a famous Rembrandt, expressed by Dr. Martin, the Director of The Hague Museum, have been dissipated. It is likely that before long collectors buying famous pictures will require a certificate of authenticity!

A year ago more than one million tons were idle.

The Power of Thought.

(By OBSERVER, Bonavista.)

It is quite certain that while dame nature made no fixed law against shortage of physical necessities she guaranteed from the beginning that there should be no want of material for brain exercise; and we know the thinking powers of man never lags; now in this direction, how in that the human brain is thinking and the human tongue and hand keeps on expounding and writing; and still there are countless subjects scarcely even casually commented upon.

(I do not mean that paragraph, or sentence rather, as an index to the contents of this short article, but as a somewhat feeble claim to the idea that first-class journalism (by higher abilities than mine) should seek and encourage diversions by contributions so widely distinct and varied as to draw and retain all kinds of literary tastes.)

Now this starts me upon my original idea of the thoughts, workings and force of the human brain. If I say that man gets just what he deserves in this world—an exact retribution for brain power and force of will—I shall be laughed at still in spite of this I am fully convinced that a large surplus of proofs would be found to substantiate it. Without will-forceful will—man is a weakling! Admit that?
Of course you do! Then you have already apologized for your sceptical inclinations. The human brain is the power-house where all the good things of the world are manufactured, where self-control gets its proper adjustment and confidence and self-reliance can be trained to become "the Napoleon of the mental army," and the difference in the social grade as between success and mendacity is generally proportionate with the higher or lower force of mentality. To be precisely accurate in a judgment of merit and make up of any person environment and obstacles has to be studied. Difficulties minor or almost insurmountable have to be considered to a fine degree; for the man who is possessed with poise and a never-say-die mentality is surely either successful as far as circumstances will allow or is if we could blame fate, sadly and shamefully misplaced.

But there is no such thing as fate.
On the contrary "there is a thousand evidences in our make up that man is not a puppet of circumstances"; born under a lucky or unlucky star. To a great extent if opportunities within a man's line of thought offers a possibility of appropriation; unflinching invariable faith in his own ability is an infallible guarantee of success in that direction. It is the luck-warm person who falls invariably; yet he is trashy enough to say of the other fellow who seldom meets failure because he fails to admit defeat that his success comes from luck. True something may sometimes happen, but you may be sure that the happening is a favorably eddy in the tide of fortune created by some previous exertion.

There is hardly any limit to man's possibilities and whether success has been gained through honorable or dishonorable means I raise no distinction. Desire for and faith in ability to gain a certain goal has been the objective and the performance of itself (waiving the idea of questionable methods employed) confirms the belief that a brain capable of engendering strong desires, and stimulating thought is practically invincible.

As I write I visualize a mixed crowd of pessimists and chery folk. The pessimists look gloomy, speak no hope.
His talk is vapor from the waters of despair. He knows he is going to starve because he can see no hope of avoiding it. The optimist chips in with the remark that Providence will open a door of escape somehow. Does that satisfy? Not at all for it really cannot satisfy. In the first place the pessimist cannot see because his mind is negative and a negative mind cannot produce anything but failure. At the start he is actually prohibited from honest effort and result must be failure. The optimist who sees doors opening of their own accord never gains much success either, for while it is true that provident does open doors man must first forge a key to unlock them.

But gentle reader keep away from the idea that you can ever work hard enough to turn sand into gold dust.
You can only succeed by taking hold of a possibility of success; your reward is sure if your faith is firm and you work upon that possibility for all you are worth.

Are Boxers Born— or Made?

CAN WE PRODUCE A WORLD
HEAVYWEIGHT CHAMPION?

(By H. G. Lewis, the well-known Sporting Journalist.)

Will there ever be a British heavyweight boxer able to hold his own against the world?

There are certainly signs that in the lesser weights the slump is passing. Among the youth which is leasing to its own are Bazley Lake, the Flynouth bantam-weight champion,
Fred Archer, a rising welter-weight, and Roland Todd, the holder of our middle-weight title. These three, I think, may speedily be capable of pitting themselves against the world at their weights.

But can we honestly say that among our young heavies there is one with the slightest promise of becoming great? I think not. We have had our "hopes" in the past, chief among whom, of course, was Bombardier Billy Wells; but none of them has gone far.

A syndicate, headed by a well-known American trainer, has searched England for a "hope," and has selected a young policeman of some fifteen stone of bone and brawn.

This young giant is to be trained and taught to hit. He will be taught something of boxing, one gathers, but the primary duty of his coach will be to teach him to punch; to punch so hard that Jack Dempsey, who is, of course, the objective, will be put on the floor.

Many others have thought along these lines. Get a huge, strong fellow, as young as possible, make his muscles supple and his legs nimble, teach him to hit his opponent with every ounce of his natural force—and surely he must beat a smaller man.

The only flaw in the scheme is—Dempsey, or whoever the champion happens to be. It seems to be forgotten that he, too, is going to hit, and—here is the crucial point—that a man of fifteen stone, or even a twenty-five stone, can stand a well-delivered blow on the jaw, no better than the man of thirteen stone—which of course, is Dempsey's weight.

In this case, indeed, he cannot stand it so well, for whereas Dempsey is toughened by the innumerable punches he has received, the young policeman as yet has never felt the shattering impact of an expert punch.

Giants have never had much success in the ring, not because they were giants, but because they never started to fight until they were giants.
One of the pluckiest and most wonderful boxers the world has known, without a doubt, is Carpenter, who started to fight when he was fourteen and a year later won over fifteen rounds against Ledoux.

Carpenter has since met and beaten some of the biggest fellows in the ring. Why? Because he learnt, while he was small, not only to hit, but to take a hit. And many a plucky battle has he fought.

The young fifteen-stone policeman appears to be keen on the idea, now that he has been selected. But without wishing to throw cold water on his ambitions, it has to be pointed out that all the boxers who have made a name have not waited to be selected. They fought from the moment they could swing their arms, for the sheer love of battle.

There may be a coming world's heavyweight champion amongst our boxers-to-day. But if there is he will not come to light for a year or two.
Such a man cannot be produced by the hot-house process, but only by more natural means. If he is in existence he is among the youths who are fighting their way up, and at the same time growing into the weight.

Try a "Peach Melba" or

The Family Milk Supply

CARNATION Milk is the only milk supply your family needs.
It is really more, because it serves as both cream and milk.

Fresh from the can it has creamy consistency because about 60% of the natural water content has been taken away from it by evaporation, then sealed in the container and sterilized.
Use it for tea, coffee, fruits, cereals and desserts.

By adding a little more than an equal part of water to Carnation Milk you have milk of natural consistency. You get "whole" milk—rich, wholesome and pure—for cooking, drinking—for every milk use.

There is no waste to Carnation Milk
—it stays sweet in the can indefinitely
—and for several days when opened.
Order several tall (16 oz.) cans or a case of 48 cans from your grocer—
the Carnation Milkman.

Try this recipe—and write for your copy of the Carnation Cook Book.

CUSTARD PIES

Two eggs, ¼ teaspoonful salt, 3 tablespoonfuls sugar, 1 cup water, ½ teaspoonful vanilla, ½ cup Carnation Milk, few grains nutmeg. Beat eggs slightly, add sugar, salt and milk mixed with the water. Line a pie tin with pie paste; add the mixture to which the vanilla has been added.
Sprinkle the top with nutmeg. Bake in hot oven at first to set the rim, then reduce the heat as egg and milk in combination should be cooked at a low temperature. This recipe makes one pie.

Movies in the Antipodes.

It is not only desirable from an Imperial standpoint that we should get Britain's pictures into the Commonwealth: it is equally important that Australian films should be got into the United Kingdom. Percy Hunter, who, it is estimated, costs the Commonwealth about £10,000 per annum, partly as an immigration expert, can never give this country a thousandth part of the publicity it would be well paid for providing by means of an established cinema industry. The Germans have built up an enormous film industry by enjoining that for every foreign film which is released in Germany a German film must be released in the invader's country. The passing of such a law here would build up a local film industry in a very few years, and while it was on its way those who now patronize Yankee pictures would have no cause to spend their nights at home. All would be as before, save that imported British films would replace the foreign ones which have so disastrous a monopoly at present.

If you cannot sleep eat a fair-sized raw onion sprinkled with a little salt just before you go to bed at night. A slice of bread and butter tastes well with it, while a sprinkling of lemon juice makes it more palatable to some people. This is also an excellent tonic for a muddy complexion.

Stresemann.

Dr. Stresemann, the new German Premier, is likely to prove a pretty interesting personality—very different from Dr. Cuno, who was an exceedingly colourless individual. Stresemann is well known in London, as he was for some time a councillor in the German Embassy in the happy days before the war. He came to the front after the Armistice as a leader among the National Liberals, and has a very solid following among all classes. There is one point with regard to his selection which seems significant; he has long been an ardent opponent of the Hohenzollerns—so this would seem to indicate that the return of the exile, or his son, is not likely to meet with much sympathy. Stresemann is a man of considerable literary abilities, and a great lover of music—an amiable and cultivated man.

Fairbanks Pictures King of Romance.

No character in history or legend ever appealed more to the imagination for his preponderance of dashing romantic nerve than Robin Hood, whose exploits in the Twelfth Century serve to mark that era as one in which the spirit of chivalry reached its zenith. No character in the memory of mankind ever was given such a magnificent opportunity to be impressed permanently so brilliantly. Douglas Fairbanks' masterly portrayal of this character in his photodrama, "Douglas Fairbanks in Robin Hood," at the Majestic Theatre last night, is sure to enhance the popularity of this hero since this film undoubtedly will live, just as any great novel with a historical background survives the onslaughts of time.

That Robin Hood was a great lover, every version of his meteoric career indicates. He was noted for the manner in which he so rigidly enforced the highest respect for all women. He was gallant to a maximum degree and he never failed to resent any show of masculine misconduct toward the gentler sex. His manner of resentment was always most unpleasant for the offender, too. In order to appreciate what kind of ardor was characteristic of this heroic defender of womanhood, one has only to contemplate one speech accredited to him.

"I love you with all my heart and soul," he declared to the Maid Marian. "Your eyes are to me as the stars on a dark night to foresters who have lost their way. Your voice is sweeter to me than the music of birds. I would sooner be in your company than in the merriest meeting I ever saw on May day."

As visualized in the matches "Douglas Fairbanks in Robin Hood," this character becomes the very king of romance in all that the term implies, and his manner of impressing his commendable traits of standing unabashed as the bold fighter in behalf of frail woman is one which will not fail to remain fixed in the mind of every person who sees the reincarnation of his spirit by Mr. Fairbanks, foremost of romantic stars. It has been predicted that this film will go far in reviving a world-wide interest in romance of the dashing sort and chivalry of the habitual kind and there seems to be ample grounds for anticipating such a beneficial result. Nor is it to be doubted that the world to-day needs more of this combined spirit of such great power in making life more worth-while.

Mr. Fairbanks' masterful interpretation of the romantic role of D'Artagnan in "The Three Musketeers" has established him beyond question as a player with few peers when it comes to portrayals of this sort. Don't miss him in Robin Hood.

Several little girls of the town, known as the "Sunshine Club," gave a most pleasing playlet in St. Patrick's Hall on Thursday afternoon of last week. The affair was so much appreciated by those present, that a special request was made that the playlet be repeated, and it was staged again, this time in Coughlan Hall, on Monday night last. Those who trained the young players, viz: Mrs. J. T. Moirae and Miss F. Noel, also Miss Q. Hinton, may well feel proud of the good training displayed by the "Sunshine" girls, and the affair, although intended to be on a very small scale, proved to be something really worth while, being most interesting and enjoyable right throughout. It would be unfair to single out any of the little players for special mention, as each part was acted most creditably. The cast of characters of this playlet, has already appeared in these columns. On the second evening, some extra items were added to the programme: Piano selections, a duet, recitations, and some dancing was cleverly executed by little Nestle Hinton. Candy and ice cream was sold during the evening, and on each occasion something like forty dollars was realized, which will be divided amongst the Church of England and Methodist Orphanages. The "Sunshine" girls and their teachers, are certainly worthy of commendation.

St. Paul's Sunday School purpose holding their annual picnic on Thursday of this week at Connell's Farm. We trust that the day will prove fine, so that the youngsters may spend the best kind of a time.

Miss Linnie LeDrew of the Nfld Coal & Trading Co., St. John's, who has been spending her vacation at her home, Bell Island, spent the week end here with friends.

Mr. and Mrs. W. Bellamy of Bay Roberts were amongst the visitors to town during the week.

Rev. F. S. Coffin, Pastor of the Presbyterian Church leaves on Tuesday on a month's vacation, visiting his home at Charlottetown, P.E.I.; he will also attend the Presbyterian Synod at St. John, N.B.

Dr. Cron who had a brief holiday during last week, was relieved during his absence by Dr. Cecil Parsons.

The various schools will re-open for the year's work on Monday next, when the pupils will go back with renewed vigour to their studies. We wish them one and all a very successful year, and with the hope that the coming C.H.E. results holds in store good news for the scholars who sat for the exams, in June last.

Miss Flo Goodwin, daughter of Dr. W. S. and Mrs. Goodwin, leaves town by Thursday's train en route to Sackville, N.S., to continue her studies at school there. Flo's many friends wish her well.

Cochrane House—that well known hotel—has changed ownership so we learn, and will be renovated, before again catering to the travelling public.

Mr. Jas. Yetman left town on Friday for Beloram, where he will be engaged teaching school.

Mr. John Heater, accompanied by his daughter Nellie, leaves town on Thursday morning en route to Toronto, Ont., where they will make their home in the future. The good wishes of their many friends follow them.

Mr. Robert Cron, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Cron, leaves on Tuesday to enter Picou Academy.

A Word for the Upper House.

As a hot weather topic the abolition of the Senate is having its full measure of publicity. Our "uplift" newspapers are strong in their pronouncements against the Canadian Upper House and all its works. The Senate simply will not "reform" itself and therefore should, in the eyes of these people, be put where it can do no harm, or good. The Senators, wise old birds for the most part, refuse to get excited every time a "joy killer," either in the form of a newspaper or an individual knocks on the door and demands that this or that reform be enacted. The truth be told there are few if any W. E. Raneys in the Senate Chamber. Most of them are men of the world, who have made good in some calling, before being offered a lodging in the Senate Halls. They even go to horse races and bet on the ponies, and at least one Honorable Senator is the president of a jockey club. And there are a lot of them that would not hesitate to break the Ontario Temperance Act wide open if it suited their convenience. In this respect they are just like a lot of mem-

G. KNOWLING, Ltd.

There are other serious parts I feel that I could really well but for my defective dentals. A Shakespearean character that would suit me down to the ground, for example, is the ghost in Hamlet. My face would be hidden altogether.

Another strongly dramatic part in which I might have made a "hit" is that of the mad husband in A Bill of Divorcement. Surely my appearance would not be against me there.

A tourist passing through a country village found that his watch had stopped. Seeing a little boy standing outside the village shop he went up to him and said:

Can you tell me the time, sonny? Just twelve o'clock, was the reply.

"Only twelve, said the tourist. I thought it was more than that.

It's never any more in these parts, sir, answered the boy. It goes up to twelve o'clock and then commences again at one.

A seaside landlady went to her church one Sunday and heard an extremely impressive sermon on the Good Samaritan. So impressed was she that on her return from church she said to a friend: "Well, I'll never turn a beggar away from my door again.

Strangely enough a few days later a tramp knocked at her door. True to her resolve, she ran upstairs and cut a slice of bread from the lodger's loaf.
