The Parting Hour. There's something in the parting hour Will chill the warmest heart— Yet kindred, comrades, lovers, friends, Yet kindred, comrades, lovers, friends
Are faded all to part;
But this I've seen—and many a pang
Has pressed it on my mind—
The one who goes is happier
Than those he leaves behind.

Poetry.

No matter what the journey be-Adventurous, dangerous, far, To the wild deep or black frontier, To solitude or war— Still something cheers the heart that dares
In all of humankind, And they who go are happier Than those they leave behind.

The bride goes to her husband's home The bride goes to her husband's home
With doubtings and with tears,
But does not hope her rainbow spread
Across her cloudy fears?
Alas! the mother who remains,
What comfort can she find
But this—the gone is happier
Than one she leaves behind?

Have you a friend-a comrade dear-An old and valued friend?

Be sure your term of sweet concourse
At length will have an end! At length will have an end!
And when you part—as part you will—
Oh, take it not unkind
If he who goes is happier
Than you he leaves behind!

God wills it so, and so it is; God wills it so, and so it is;
The pilgrims on their way,
Though weak and worn, more cheerful ar
Than all the rest who stay,
And when at last poor man, subdued,
Lies down to death, resigned,
May he not still be happier far
Than those he leaves behind?

Aunt Naomi's "Findlin'.

Aunt Naomi and Uncle Cæsar Smith were going slowly home from the village of Americus. Their cart was made of small saplings rudely fastened together; the two wheels were solid circles from the bole of some mighty gum tree; the traces were chains, and there was only one rein, a stout rope fastened to the horn of the near ox;

The Washington government would probably never have set up the unreasonable conwhich is hostile to everything British. The Irish element in American politics delights, in imagination, to twist the tail of the British lion. With a view of pleasing this element Mr. Blaine and others of his school of politics appeared to be anxious to keep open countries. An amicable settlement of these questions would deprive them of material for agitation, and it was not until Lord Salisbury plainly intimated that hereafter the British flag would be protected in Behring Sea, that Mr. Blaine consented to refer the matter to arbitration. Possibly, should Home Rule be granted to Ireland, this anti-British feeling in the United States may disappear, as the Irish element should then be satisfied. Sudden Death of Mr. Charles Brinton.

Among the passengers on board the schr. Pilot which arrived at Port Lorne a few days ago was Mr. Charles Brinton, who had been to St. John for the purpose of obtaining medical advice, as he had been ailing for some time, though nothing serious had ever been apprehended by his friends. He was met at the pier by Capt. John Anthony with a team to convey him to his home at St. Croix Cove. Shortly after being placed in the wagon, however, he was taken with a serious ill turn, from which he never rallied, and expired before reaching the homestead. The deceased was about 38 years of age. Besides a wife and several children, he leaves a large circle of relations and friends to mourn their sudden and, sad loss.

Wednesday excursion to Point Prim per schr. Sea Foam.

We notice in port: brig. Champion, schrs. E. Morris, Seraphine, Sandolphine, Sea Foam and Oisiten.

Work will soon begin on the new school building, the plans and specifications being complete and tenders called for.

The week's entertainment consists of a concert by the Baptist choir on Tuesday evening, the chief attraction of which will be the singing of Prof. E. M. Spears, of the Ter.ple Quartette, of Boston, who has kindly consented to assist.

The usual activity in shipping goes on. Two American schooners, the Geo. H. Mills and Francis R. Baird have just finished extensive repairs and have sailed with cargoes of pulp wood for Havre deGrace, Md.

While we note the decrease in travel, yet quite a number of tourists have visited this picturesque town during the season, among whom we note J. Gonzalez, Esq., and wife of Havana, Cuba, who are spending the summer at James H. Purdy's.

We are looking forward to the meeting of the teachers association here in September with interest, thinking that the educational interest shere will be stimulated by thus bringing together the representative teachers of the two counties.

Cherries have come and gone, the crop being well up to the average in both quantity and quality. It would seem that the last few years have witnessed a change in the disposal of the fruit,—less visitors to this great cherry centre, while more of the fruit is shipped.

The Tourists' Paradise. HOW AMERICANS CAN SPEND SIX WEEKS THOROUGHLY ENJOYING THEMSELVES IN NOVA SCOTIA CHEAPER THAN GOING

TO EUROPE. Paradoxical as it may read, the travellers' guide will prove that the lady or gentleman tourist, or both, can take a travel-trip of weeks from the United States to foreign weeks from the United States to lead to lands, and at a financial profit, independent of the fact that money must be taken out of the purse daily, and none put in it! Our fair lady tourist, or jolly gentleman tourist, may lady tourist, or jolly gentleman tourist, may lady tourist, or jolly gentleman tourist, may ask with a slight sneer of incredulity, "Can this be so?" Yes, certainly; and by following the guide's directions.

Take passage on the Yarmouth steamship company's line for the town of Yarmouth, at the head of its river portal. There, in that Nova Scotia mart of commerce, with fair hotel accommodation, salubrious atmosphere fine country drives, land and water fair hotel accommodation, salubrious atmosphere, fine country drives, land and water scenery, and courteous citizens, the tourist can spend a week or more happily, and at a profit. Leaving lively Yarmouth, take the steamer City of St. John for Shelburne, that antiquated town, celebrated in Acadia song and story; visiting Barrington and Lockeport—those three towns will furnish the tourist with a variety of fresh fish and fresh delights, and at a profit. Leaving this trinity of towns, the tourist, to keep adding to his pleasure, will stop over at Liverpool, where the generous importunities of its hospitalable cities to the American tourist, will, of necessity itself, cause a sojourn there for days. To ascend the Liverpool river, as handsome as the Hudson, will need follow, up to the Indian Gardens—the river, fringed with farms and villages—while the boatman's song sings a cherry refrain to the music of the saws in the lumber mills.

name: Halifax, in the centre—with Dutch-town, west; and Irishtown, east. The tourist, among the hundreds of attractive sights, must walk out to "KISSING BRIDGE," a short and pleasant walk from the city; while perchance, cultivating acquainta with a talkative Haligonian, may be told of many a scene enacted at, and in the vicinity of, "kissing bridge," where, indeed, a sweet salute of that kind can be given and taken; but the "bridge" itself was never a fitting place for—whispering lovers made. A misauthopist might call it "the bridge of sighs." The tourist, nearing the terminating period of his absence from home, by taking his return trip from Halifax, will of course take the land route by railway; and a few hours, or a day at Windsor, will well repay for the delay. Kings's college is there; and there can be seen the amazing rush of tide-water, as it comes in and up from the Bay of Fundy, as it comes in and up from the Bay of Fundy, with a talkative Haligonian, may be told of

Raised from the Dead Long and Terrible Illness from Blood Poisoning

Completely Cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla. Mrs. Mary E. O'Fallon, a very intelligent lady of Piqua, Ohio, was poisoned while assisting physicians at an autopsy 5 years ago, and soon terrible ulcers broke out on her terrible ulcers broke out on her all head, arms, tongue and throat. Her hair all came out. She weighed but 78 lbs., and saw no prospect of help. At last she began to take Hood's Sarsaparilla and at once im-proved; could soon get out of bed and walk. She says: "I became perfectly cured by Hood's Sarsaparilla and am now a well woman. I weigh 128 lbs., eat well and do the work for a large family. My case seems a wonderful recovery and physicians look at me in astonishment, as almost like one raised from the dend." HOOD'S PILLS should be in every family medicine chest. Once used, always preferred.

An was doin' well enough—
Singing good as people could sing
Sich an awful mess o' stuff—

When the choir give a holler, An the organ give a groan,
An they left one weak voiced feller
A-singin there alone! But he stuck right to the music Though 'twas tryin as could be, An when I tried to help him, Why, the hull church scowled at me.

You say that's so-low singing You say that's so-low singin.
Well, I praise the Lord that I
Growed up when folks was willin
To sing their hymes so-high.
Oh, we never had such doin's
In the good of Bethel days,
When the folks was all contented
With the simple songs o' praise.

Now, I may have spoke too open, But 'twas too hard to keep still, An I hope you'll tell the singers 'At I bear 'em no ill will. 'At they all may git to glory
Is my wish an my desire,
But they'll need some extra trainin Fore they join the heavenly choir.

But cannibalism at sea is no new thing. It crops up now and again in all waters under such circum stances as those we have been describing or under slightly different circumstances. A case very similar to that of the Thekla, only, if anything, more revolting, was that of the Caledonian which became waterlogged and unmanageable in a hurricane and drifted for thirteen days with her cabin and provisions under water. During these thirteen days some members of the crew had to furnish food for the rest. The rescue of the remainder was effected by the mate of a Russian ship, who, in a heavy sea, went in a hoat by himself to the doomed Caledonian and took off the hands. He was afterwards presented with a ship called the British Fratitude for his bravery .- London Review.
