THE TIMES NEW REPORTER

Fairville is indignant. An indignant citizen of Fairville called on the Times new reporter this morning to protest against the published statement that the moon which denormalized street traffic turned out to be a common member of the bovine species, known as the cow. He averred that the slanderous assertion was made by a Millidgeville subaltern who has been here since every morning since the first of June, in the hope of seeing a mouse in the undergrowth back of his cottage—but who has never seen anything bigger than a rabbit. To be envied by small communities is, the Fairville citizen observed, him which side he is on and if anybody will have the other side beaten to a standstill before morning.

Even emperors are disturbed. London, Aug. 13 (Special).—It is understood that one of the questions discussed by King Edward with the Emperor of Germany and Austria was the disturbing rumor that St. John might adopt bakel enamel street signs instead of wooden shingles with the names burnt in it. The rumor was refuted by the Emperor, but St. John will not be so extravagant on burnt shingles. The Emperor on the other side, however, is reported to have been very much disturbed by the rumor.

 Very quickly, with the help of druggist, sciers and twins, the two small portmanteaux were packed with pieces of the meteor, and the paper-covered parcels already prepared. When each bag weighed forty pounds he stuffed the remaining space with rolled-up newspapers, closed and locked them. He estimated that three larger leather bags—these being less noisy than tin—would hold the remainder of the meteor.

As the next morning would find him occupied enough, he decided to do as much as possible that night. Three times he called forth and returned with a good-sized valve. He paid prices varying from two pounds ten shillings to three pounds fifteen shillings, and always bought second-hand goods.

He had locked and strapped the fourth of his goodly array of traveling bags when he fancied he heard a footstep in the moor. Such an occurrence would have troubled him not a jot a week ago. To-night it was extremely disconcerting.

Notwithstanding the weight of the packed portmanteaux, especially the larger one, he lifted each bodily in his arms and man with it into the tiny scullery. On the front window there was no blind only a small, much-worn curtain covering the lower panes, and he did not want any stray looter to gaze in, at him and discover a large quantity of luggage in such a reputable hotel.

When the fourth bag was disposed of in the dark recess of the scullery he passed it in an instant to the tiny scullery. Through the window he could dimly discern the roof of the deserted stable opposite.

He bent again to the task of packing the fifth portmanteau, and was placing in it the last parcel of ore and diamonds when some of the heavy contents fell through one end where the druggist wrapping had been hastily folded.

Shaking the package on the floor as a grocer beats down the contents of a sugar bag, he picked up the fallen specimens and put them in one by one. A large lump of ore had fallen apart when it dropped. Inside there was a huge kernel, a rough diamond quite as large as a hen's egg.

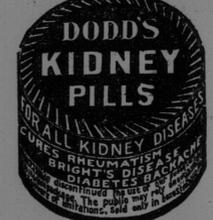

Philip smiled as he recalled his boast to Isaacson. He examined the stone critically, and realized that if it were flawless it must be one of the marvels of creation. Without experiencing any positive motive he slipped this unique specimen into his pocket, and went on with the reconstruction of the damaged parcel.

As he finished, the portmanteau was lying open on the floor, when the thought occurred to him that he might have avoided the flurry and trouble of carrying these heavy articles into the scullery if he had nailed a couple yards of his druggist across the window to rectify this defect. He glanced at the window to ascertain how much material he should cut off, and saw a face—an evil, brutal, suspicious face—peering at him over the top of the curtain.

CHAPTER IX.
A Decisive Battle.

It would be idle to deny that Philip was startled by the sight. No braver or more resolute boy breathed; but the silence, the mystery—the gloomy aloofness of John's Mews—let a sinister aspect to an apparition formidable enough under any circumstances, but absolutely threatening and full of danger to one situated as he at that moment.

He never remembered seeing the man before. Not that this repellent physiognomy was of a type to be soon forgotten. A bullet head with prominent blood-shot eyes, a strong, cruel mouth, a huge nose laddly broken—a certain strength of character.

Fashion Hint for Times Readers

SUIT SHOWING THREE FASHION FEATURES OF THE SEASON.

Satin pipings, big buttons and slashed coats are three features of the season's fashions that frequently appear in the mohair, pongee and linen suit costume worn by Miss Modish when she runs into town for a day's shopping. The skirt of these attractively cool-looking tan, taupe or tobacco brown suits are sensibly short and either gored or pleated. They will be untrammelled or have satin piped soft or heavy meshed lace bands. The short, slashed, seamed, loosely fitting jackets include quite as much lace as silks and carry many satin or velvet covered cabochon-shaped buttons.

Of Interest to You AND ALL TYPEWRITER USERS.

THERE'S a whole lot of things for a Typewriter to do in modern office work that weren't even thought of five years ago.

There's a number of Typewriters on the market, designed for the needs of that time, that were counted pretty good machines then but have only been adapted to modern methods by alterations and costly attachments. Makeshift!

You need a typewriter with all the modern devices—built into it, not attachments, additions or alterations—which will do the new things as easily as straight writing.

The L. C. SMITH AND BROS. TYPEWRITER (writing-in-sight) is the one typewriter that does all these difficult things in an easy way, and economically. When you have bought it you haven't got to go down in your wallet again to pay for attachments to fit it for your work.

It will be money in your pocket to look at it. Perhaps the most profitable fifteen minutes you ever spent. At any rate you can't stand to lose more than your time for the look doesn't cost you anything. Neither does the demonstration.

Some New Features.

BALL-BEARING TYPEBARS—It's no secret that nearly all typewriter makers worried over that problem without success and that it remained for us to make a really satisfactory application of the principle. The Gardner Ball-Bearing does the trick. That's one of the invaluable new features.

OUR AUTOMATIC RIBBON REVERSE is another. Not an ounce of added key tension, not a bit of strain to tear the ribbon. The ribbons last their natural lifetime.

LIGHTING ESCAPEMENT which will work at a greater speed than any operator can maintain. And the SILENT SHIFT better work and less noise. All new devices of the Democratic Presidential Candidate Was Yesterday Officially Notified of His Nomination.

BRYAN NOTIFIED

Lincoln, Neb., Aug. 12.—Under the burning rays of an almost tropical sun, and in the presence of a vast assemblage, which cheered him to the echo, William J. Bryan today received from Henry D. Clayton, of Alabama, formal notification of his nomination for the presidency of the United States.

Thrice honored by the Democratic party as its standard-bearer, Mr. Bryan plainly exhibited the pleasure it gave him once again to proclaim the principles for which he stood. His nomination for a third time, he declared in his speech of acceptance, could be explained, only by a of his nomination for the presidency of the United States. Thrice honored by the Democratic party as its standard-bearer, Mr. Bryan plainly exhibited the pleasure it gave him once again to proclaim the principles for which he stood. His nomination for a third time, he declared in his speech of acceptance, could be explained, only by a substantial and undepicted growth in the principles and policies for which he, with a multitude of others, had contended. "As these principles and policies," he said, "have given me whatever political strength I possess, the action of the convention not only renews my faith in them, but strengthens my attachment to them."

The ovation accorded Mr. Bryan as he rode through the streets of Lincoln, on his way through the state house, where the exercises were held, was non-partisan. Almost the entire Republican administration was represented, Governor G. L. Sheldon and many other state officers lending their presence both in the parade and on the platform.

Before coming to Lincoln from Fairview, four miles distant, Mr. Bryan received 1,200 visitors.

Never before had Lincoln streets and buildings presented such a gala appearance. Around a mutilated felt banner, a crowd of curious visitors was always clustered. The route of the parade carried Mr. Bryan directly under the banner, but no notice was taken of the fact by him or his party.

The state house grounds were a mass of humanity, and Mr. Bryan's appearance on the platform was greeted with vociferous cheers and handclapping.

Before the notification and acceptance speeches were delivered, Norman E. Mack, chairman of the Democratic national convention, who acted as presiding officer, called on John W. Kern, the vice-presidential nominee, to make a speech. Mr. Kern responded in a few felicitous remarks, in which he gave unstinted praise for the non-partisan character of the exercises.

A St. John Boy at the Champlain Tercentenary

Former Member of Scots Boys Brigade of St. Stephen's Church Describes the Visit of the Regiment to Quebec at Tercentenary.

The following descriptive article was written for the Times by a young man who until last year had been a member of St. Stephen's church, Scots Boys Brigade for the summer and joined the Fifth Royal Highlanders and with them went to the Quebec Tercentenary.

The Fifth Royal Highlanders were the strongest regiment to visit Quebec; being about 500 strong, while no other regiment numbered over 400. On Friday, July 17, an advance party of 40 or 50 men had gone to Quebec, but the main body did not leave until Sunday, July 19. We marched down to the wharf of the steamer "Trois Rivières" about 4 p. m., headed by our Second Battalion Pipe Band, which is acknowledged to be the best in Canada, and which consisted of over 30 pipers and drummers. We wore our dress parade uniforms, consisting of red tunics, plaid, busbies and, of course, kilts. A light rain was falling, which continued all night, but it did not appear to trouble the immense crowd which had gathered to see us off. On the same boat were the Victoria Rifles, of Montreal, numbering over 300. Between 6 and 7, amid much cheering, we started on our memorable trip. The beautiful scenery of the St. Lawrence River did not appear to very great advantage on account of the rain and the growing darkness. We could see little beside lighthouses and buoys. As there were over 800 of us, we could not be very particular as to where we slept, but had to be content with sleeping on the deck. About midnight, we passed Three Rivers.

Most of us were up at daybreak on Monday morning, July 20, when we had a better opportunity of enjoying the scenery, as the rain had ceased. About 6.30 we passed Cap Rouge, and saw the ruins of the Quebec Bridge, which collapsed with great loss of life last fall. Soon after, we entered the harbor of Quebec, and as we passed each wharf we gave three hearty cheers. It was evidently washday on the French vessels, for as we passed the "Leon Gambetta," we could see Admiral Laungueberry's spare shirt waving in the breeze. Quebec, with the Citadel, the Dufferin Terrace, and the Plains of Abraham on one side of the river, with the heights of "Levis" on the other; and the magnificent war vessels between, presented a very beautiful scene indeed. Immediately upon arriving at "Levis," we disembarked and proceeded by the "O.A." to our quarters at Camp Levis, a few miles distant. Among the regiments at Camp Levis were, the Victoria Rifles, Royal Highlanders, 62nd Fusiliers, the 65th, 84th, 85th, and the Composite Regiment from New Brunswick, also Army Medical and Army Service Corps. The 65th, was the only regiment at the Quebec Tercentenary which was composed entirely of French-Canadian. The camp was under the command of Brigadier-General Lawrence Buchan, of Montreal. When we reached camp, we were allotted to our tents and served with a hearty breakfast; which was very welcome to men who had eaten nothing for nearly 24 hours, except two sandwiches and two cups of coffee. We spent the morning in taking possession of our tents and cleaning our uniforms. In the afternoon, we received permission to leave camp, and most of us went over to Quebec; we had to return at 9.30, however, as "lights out" sounded at 10.15. Our dress when off duty consisted of kilts, white jacket, gungarry, and swagger-stick, or cane; no man was allowed to leave camp unless his uniform was perfectly clean, with buttons and brasswork shining, and spats, belt and sporrans snowy white. The only drawback in camp was the scarcity of water, as most of the time we were forced to use a pond of stagnant water in the rear of the parade ground for washing purposes.

On Tuesday, July 21st, reveille sounded at 6.00 o'clock, breakfast at 6.30, and drill at 7.00. At meal-time we also cleaned our uniforms, and as this occurred three times a day, you may be sure that we used a considerable amount of pipe-clay and brass polish during our stay in camp. We drilled most of that morning on the parade ground, in kilts and white jackets. After dinner, we formed up again and accompanied by all the other regiments in camp, we marched to a large field about a mile distant, suitable for manoeuvring a large body of troops. We wore our review order uniforms, red tunics and busbies, and drilled all afternoon, under command of Brig-Gen. Buchan. After supper, those of us who had not procured passes were not permitted to leave camp. As it was raining we were not greatly disappointed, so we spent the evening quietly in our tents. On Wednesday, July 22nd, when reveille sounded at 5.00 a. m., it was raining quite heavily, so we spent most of the morning in cleaning our uniforms. Shortly before dinner, however, it stopped raining and the sun came out. We paraded after dinner in review order, for the purpose of lining the streets of Quebec in honor of the Prince of Wales, who was to come ashore that afternoon from the "Indomitable," which had not arrived yet. We marched to the Levis wharf where a ferry steamer was waiting to take us over to Quebec. The Prince's ship and her escort passed us while we were crossing the river. Soon after taking up our position on the street, the Prince of Wales, in full Highland uniform, Admiral Jaurguiberry, Sir Wilfrid Laurier, R. L. Borden, Hon. Mr. Lemieux, and many other noted persons. When these had all passed, we formed up again and marched back to camp. Our pipe band, with the exception of a single piper and a drummer, had accepted the invitation of the pipe band of the 48th Highlanders of Toronto to visit them at their camp at Seward Park, in Quebec city. As on the preceding night, it began to rain shortly after supper, so the majority of the boys stayed in camp. On Thursday, July 23rd, the bugles invited us to turn out at 4 o'clock a. m. We were to take part in a rehearsal of the Grand Review that morning on the Plains of Abraham, and as we encamped a considerable distance from that place, it was necessary for us to rise somewhat earlier than usual. We wore our drill order uniforms, and on landing at Quebec, we marched directly to the Plains, receiving much applause on the way. We drilled for a few hours and then returned to camp, where we arrived about half-past two in the afternoon. Just at twenty minutes to three, we received orders to parade at three o'clock sharp, in review order. This came as a great surprise to us, for the officers had promised us the afternoon off. As we were then in our drill uniforms, this left us twenty minutes to eat dinner and change and clean our uniforms. However, we got ready and marched to the nearest street of Levis, where six or eight street cars were waiting for us. They carried us to the Levis ferry, which landed us in Quebec with the least possible delay. We marched up to the Mountain Hill Arch, near the post-office, and halted there for a short time. While there, we saw one of the historical processions, in which some very queer costumes were worn. We also saw a crowd of Caughnawaga Indians in war paint and feathers, whose appearance was very striking.

big grandstand. First came the sailors, French, American and English, in the above order, who were given a fine reception. Next came the cavalry, of whom the Royal North-West Mounted Police were easily the best drilled and most popular. After them came the artillery, and lastly, the infantry. Lord Roberts rode at the head of the Queen's Own Rifles of Toronto, of which he is honorary colonel. The marching of the Cadets from Kingston Royal Military College was another feature. Of the militia regiments, however, the Highlanders were easily the favorites. The 41st Highlanders, of Hamilton, Ont., who were the first of these to pass, were heartily applauded as they marched past, to the strains of "Bonnie Dundee." The 48th Highlanders, of Toronto, who were the next, also got a grand reception. But when the 5th Royal Highlanders of Montreal (who were the last of the Highland regiments), marched by to the tune of "The Campbells are Coming," the cheering became louder and more prolonged than before; thus proving us to be the favorite regiment. After marching on the Plains of Abraham, we took a short cut leading down to the river, which runs alongside the river. Here we passed Wolfe's Cove, and saw the place where Wolfe's army climbed in 1759. We also passed the place where the American General Montgomery fell, while besieging Quebec. The exact spot is marked by a brass tablet. From there we proceeded to the ferry wharf, and went back to camp immediately after dinner, we made preparations for breakfast camp. We struck our tents, packed our kit-bags and haversacks once more, and at 6 p. m. we departed, leaving a fatigue party behind us. The regiments remaining in camp gave us a hearty send-off, and about 7 o'clock we were back once more on the steamer "Trois Rivières." The steamer started and we took a last look at Quebec, which had been our home for a brief but enjoyable week. We had a fine time in spite of the rain and heat. The heat was so great that soldiers in the ranks had frequently dropped to the ground unconscious. While in camp, our food had been excellent and also very plentiful; in this respect we were far more fortunate than most of the other regiments. As the 62nd Fusiliers were camped near us, I had the pleasure of seeing many old friends and acquaintances; among them being Lieut. MacArthur, who taught me military drill several years ago, when I was a member of the Scots Boys Brigade of St. Stephen's Church. After resuming our journey up river, everything passed quietly until about midnight, when one of the paddle-wheels took a weak spell and broke. We steered into Three Rivers next morning about breakfast time and were permitted to go ashore. The restaurants there were closed in consequence of our having had no breakfast and only an apology for a supper on the previous night. As we walked through the streets we had an opportunity of observing the awful effects of the recent disastrous fire. While digging souvenirs out of the ruins, one of our pipers and a member of the Victoria Rifles were arrested. The officer placed them in a carriage and was just climbing in one side of the rig, when the piper quietly slipped out the other side and whistled for reinforcements. A bunch of Highlanders and Vics. came to the rescue, and one of the Scots, with the aid of a bayonet, finally persuaded the cop to release them. In another part of the town a Highlander had been "pinned," but a crowd of the Vics. came along suddenly and the cop departed in such a hurry that he left his club behind him. A bugle call summoned us back to the steamer and we resumed our journey. We arrived in Montreal about seven o'clock, after a voyage of 24 hours, or nearly double the usual time. After mutual cheers, the Vics. and ourselves marched to our respective barracks, and the Quebec Tercentenary Celebration became nothing more than a very pleasant memory. L. R. B. The widespread depression in trade has affected the Manchester ship canal, as shown by the directors' report for the half-year ending June 30th:

There does not appear to have been anything sensational in Bryan's speech of acceptance of the Democratic nomination for the presidency of the United States. The lion has been somewhat tamed by discipline. This was anticipated in financial circles, and the stock market was not disturbed. On the eve of Bryan's speech of acceptance the New York Journal of Commerce said:

"Tomorrow William Jennings Bryan delivers his speech of acceptance. Wall street does not believe any sensation will be produced, yet the minds of older operators go back to 1896 when this same presidential candidate threw the financial markets of the world into a state bordering on terror. It does not seem pertinent, however, to argue that what a man has done once he can do again. Mr. Bryan is as radical as of yore, but public sentiment has traveled a long way since then. There has been a revolution in government regulation of corporations. The silver bubble has burst. High finance has been scourged and purged. Publicity has done its work nobly. Every possible step has been taken to exploit scandals and corruption in high places. The twelve intervening years have brought fundamental prosperity to every section of the nation, particularly to the most important body, the agricultural population. Mr. Bryan can scarcely throw any boomerang into the political arena at this time. The country has become accustomed to the wild fancies and fancies of aspiring politicians. Even his advocacy of government ownership of railroads emanated last year has fallen flat. Sops thrown to labor cease to create alarm. In a word, nothing Mr. Bryan can say is calculated, according to Wall street's reason to cause convulsions."

PLAY THE GAME

The following comment by the Toronto News on Lord Roberts' plea for clean sport is worthy to be pondered upon by athletes throughout Canada. "Lord Roberts' plea for clean sport in Canada is opportune. He is a firm believer in athletics pursued with moderation and in the true sportsmanlike spirit. It is essential to the welfare of the nation that the rising generation should learn to 'play the game' to value the contest rather than the victory, to prefer defeat rather than success on anything but honorable terms, to lose cheerfully and to accept success without boasting. In short, the rising generation should cultivate Britishness in the American ideal in sports. As Lord Roberts points out, Canada's bracing climate conduces to the growth of a hardy race. Its vast stretches of unoccupied lands and superb waterways point to a great destiny for its people. But if it is to become one of the first nations in the world and the leading state in the British Empire, the Dominion must have something else besides material resources and splendid physical features. The requisite is that the boy on the playground, the man in the street, the people generally, shall become imbued with the British sense of fair play, and fully seized of the honorable and elevating traditions of the British race."

BRITISH RAILROADS

The great railroads in England have felt the pinch of dull times and are uniting their interests to save themselves from greater trouble. A recent London letter says: "Pending at the meeting of the Great Eastern Railway Company yesterday, Lord Claud Hamilton made a long statement respecting the alliance decided upon between the Great Eastern, Great Northern and Great Central Railways. He said that the experience of the past two or three years conclusively proved that without it the financial position of the three companies could hardly be expected to improve, but on the contrary, might deteriorate. All three companies were in varying degrees suffering from a diminution of traffic and increases in cost of materials, and there had been a steady rise in wages. They, and no doubt the other companies, had all practiced the strictest economy and concentrated the attention

FINAL PLANS FOR A.O.H. CONVENTION

Arrangements for the A. O. H. convention which opens here on August 25 are being rapidly pushed to completion. Lists of hotels and boarding houses in which the delegates may find accommodation are being prepared by competent committees, and it is expected that everything will be in readiness for the opening. The sessions will be held in the assembly rooms of Keith's Theatre and the actual business will probably be transacted in two days.

THE DOSE THAT MOTHER GAVE.

How back across the vanished years our thoughts at times will roam, Ere for the first time busy world we left our childhood's home. We think of how that house looked, with vines about the door, And how we used to wander far across the old barn floor; We view the meadows far away, where daisies used to blow, And meet again the boys and girls who left us when we were so young, And if to think of mother's ples, we sometimes awake, We never forget the castor oil she used to make us take.

Our thoughts go back to the old barn, with swallow-covered eaves, Where, from the spruce-hill the trees, we'd push the fallen leaves; Again distinctly the old barnyard, to find the stolen nest, And, with a chickin in our hands, our little ones go in quest. Once more we wade the meadow brook, the And wipe again, with checkered neck, the boyish appetite comes back, which Not e'er the dose that mother gave, the dose of castor oil.

That was before the styles came in that we enjoy today. For then the nearest doctor lived a dozen miles away. On every corner that you passed a druggist So every family then must have a doctor of its own. And if the children e'er took sick, disease Our dear old mother always ran and got the castor oil. And, though the very sight of it would make us shiver and shake, No doubt it often saved our lives, the dose she made us take.

IN LIGHTER VEIN GETTING ON. "You want to marry my daughter, eh? May I ask what chance you have for getting on in the world?" "I have an automobile, a yacht, and an alibi." "You seem to have every means for getting on. She's yours, my boy." "Cleveland Plain Dealer."

ROCKEFELLER AND UNCLE REMUS. Mr. Rockefeller has given $1,000 toward the Remus memorial. "I'd like to see that source the secret of how to 'keep on your feet'!" "New York Post."

THE SCOT AND HIS DOG. For once the American had discovered something better than that was anything they could produce "across the pond." His discovery was fine collie dog, and he at once tried to induce its owner, an old shepherd, to sell it. "Wad ye be takin' him to America?" inquired the Scot. "Ye, I guess so," replied the Yankee. "I thought an' I thought, said the shepherd, 'I couldn't part wi' Jock.' "But while they were talking, an English tourist came up, and to him the shepherd sold the collie for much less than the American had offered. "You told me you wouldn't sell him," said the Yankee, who the purchaser departed. "I couldn't," replied the Scot; "I said I couldn't part wi' him. Jock'll be back in a day as he is the best I ever saw." "New York Tribune."

WHAT IT WAS FOR. One of the visiting professors at the Columbia summer school is a Canadian of the breed, a man whose views on manners and well-bred deportment are noteworthy. "I have just read," he said, "the account of a man who was killed by a dog. The dog bit him first at the finger bowl, and then at the water, but he was not hurt. The waiter looked on indifferently, and said in a low voice: 'Try to dip your fingers in, sir.'" "New York Post."

THE INGLENOOK PHILOSOPHER OF KENNEBACCAISS BAY. "That fellow has been a-dreaming," said Turnipseed, as Mrs. Turnipseed laid down the Times in which she had been reading aloud and wiped her spectacles on the corner of her apron. "We all dream," answered Mrs. Turnipseed, placidly. "I don't," growled Turnipseed. "Mr. Lash that the collie you sold him for $200 would trot a mile in three minutes."

"That was business," answered Turnipseed. "And there was money in it," retorted Mrs. Turnipseed. "But what shall it profit a man," she continued, as if to herself, "if he gain the whole world and lose his own soul?" "There you go again," shouted Turnipseed, and setting his hat he stamped out of the house, slamming the door behind him.

We are all dreamers. Turnipseed has unpleasant dreams when he sleeps, of men, women and children that in one way or another he has defrauded of their life-savings; of a mother who died of a county farm; of a daughter who was lost in a great city;—but what then? He has a fat bank account; his neighbors touch their hats when he passes on the street; he is as "the queen." "Dreams are nothing," says Turnipseed, and continues to dream his dreams.

Sitting under the apple trees of a pleasant afternoon, with the placid bay lying spread before me, I often dream, but my dreams are not those of Turnipseed. They are sometimes fantastic, but they are never unpleasant. The wooded shores of the bay between Drury Cove and Sand Point I observed that they were growing dimmer and dimmer. Soon they vanished altogether and before me and the horizon lay stretched a glassy sea, unbroken by sail or wind to ruffle its surface. Then I saw a tiny speck, as of silver, in the far distance, which grew larger and larger as it rapidly approached, until it showed itself to be a graceful yacht with wide spreading sails, steering for a tiny wooded cove, but a few rods away from the sea. I knew chosen for my afternoon reverie. I knew she was coming for me so I strolled down to the shore and when she touched the landing place I stepped on board. Instantly we were away, sailing with incredible rapidity, though there was not a breeze to stir the sails or ripple the surface of the sea. Where were we going? I thought of "Lost Atlantis," of "Fabled Hesperides," of the gorgeous landscapes of the Orient, and wondered which of these might be our destination. We sailed, and sailed. The air grew softer and was laden with strange and exquisite odors. Birds of beautiful plumage fluttered about us and sang as if I had never heard a note of theirs. Then a strange thing happened. A beautiful beach lay stretched before us with a background of orange groves and flower gardens with a bungalow and youths and maidens waiting to welcome me. Strangest of all, they all recognized me, and I remembered them, every one, though nearly three quarters of a century had passed since some of us had last met. "I shall be the skeleton at your feet, Oh children," I said, "with white wrinkles, white hair and withered hands." Then the little one in the group held a tiny mirror before me, and, strange to relate, I saw myself as young as they.

"Only to rain, I reckon," said the rough voice of a passer by. "No, the dream was over." Whitehead, Kings Co., Aug. 10, 1908.

AMERICAN CRICKET RECORD

A new record for American cricket was set at Chicago on Saturday, when H. Livingston, the Blue Pittsburg player, scored 106, not out, in the North-Western International match, making his first century in three innings. He made 28 not out, against St. Louis on Monday, 119, not out, against Winnipeg on Wednesday, which with Saturday's count gives him an average of 333 for four innings, a great performance, and easily the best ever recorded in the west. Canada and the United States played a draw game, the home team getting 242 for three wickets, and then closing, while the visitors hardly would have gone to bat, but, as it was, Capt. MacPherson took some little risk in closing when he did. From the way runs were coming at the finish it looked as if the men from the Dominion might have come near winning had they forced the game more at the start, even at the risk of losing one or two of their batsmen. The Canadians, after losing the toss, added to their stay in the field by dropping two catches.

AN ENGLISH TEAM WILL VISIT CANADA

Plan to Have Crack English Athletic Team to Visit Canada in September Will Cost $3000. (Montreal Star.) Here is something else that would lead one to believe that the Canadian Amateur Athletic Union and the Athletic Federation of Canada will not always live apart. There is a scheme on foot to bring an English athletic team to Canada. If everything goes well it is to come here next September, and although Mr. J. H. Crocker, manager of the Canadian Olympic team, is the prime mover in the matter, he stated when he passed through here that he had consulted Mr. Leslie E. Boyd, president of the Montreal Amateur Athletic Association and vice-president of the Athletic Federation of Canada in the matter, and that the latter had agreed to the preliminary plans for the visit.

GOOD TIME IN THE WOODSTOCK RACES

Brownette and Tony D Captured First Money in Their Respective Classes Yesterday. Woodstock, N. B., Aug. 12.—The circuit horse at the driving park this afternoon drew about 1,000 people and proved very interesting. It was the greatest race since the town has seen for some years. The track was in perfect condition although it rained the morning, and remarkable time was made. The 7th hand furnished music.

NO BOAT RACES AT SEASIDE PARK SATURDAY

Every Day Club Worked Hard but Absence of Two of Crew Upset Plans and Races are off. There will be no boat races at Seaside Park on Saturday. Whether the field sports and swimming races will be held will be decided today. With regard to the boat races the conditions indicate the low ebb and disorganized state of aquatic sports in St. John—once the hours of world-beaters. When the Every Day Club took a crew under its colors there seemed a prospect of sport. But Hilton Belyea was still suspended and the Neptune had no crew in training. Several changes took place in the Every Day Club crew, and then the Cedar Lamb crew was formed. Enquiries made by the president of the Every Day Club as to the possibility of having Hilton Belyea reinstated brought the information that nothing could be done before September at the earliest. Then the Belyea crew and Cedar Lamb crew rowed as usual without M. L. A. A. sanction and were suspended. Thus the Every Day Club crew had no competitors. An appeal was made to Mr. Coates and the Neptune, and it was arranged that that club would put in a four and a single. Things then looked all right for a race for fours and singles, but last week two of the Every Day Club crew left town although they had been lined 4:00 and suspended. The horse did not come out and won the fifth heat from Kestil Boy by a nose.

A PLEASANT PARTY.

A very pleasant evening was spent Saturday, August 8th, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. F. C. MacLean, of Kiersteadville, Kings Co., N. B., when a number of the friends from St. John and elsewhere assembled to express their friendship and kindly feeling. During the evening ice cream and refreshments were served, followed by a select musical entertainment. The friends dispersed at 11:30 p.m., after many expressions of friendship and thanking their host and hostess for the very pleasant evening spent. Mr. MacLean leaves in a few days for the West.

The deceased is noted as rail-beater.

MASONIC FAIR AT HAMPTON IS A BIG SUCCESS

Many Visitors Last Night Heartily Enjoyed the Various Attractions Offered.

Hampton, N. B., Aug. 13 (Special).—In the series of masonic festivals in progress under the auspices of Corinthian Lodge F. & A. M., the arrangements for satisfying the tastes and appetites of their patrons form one of the leading features. Whilst most of the matrons and house-keepers of Hampton Station are contributors to the cuisine the business of receiving, arranging and serving the several courses of last night's supper and to-day's fish dinner falls mainly into the hands of Mrs. William Langstroth, Mrs. Henry Frost, Miss Mamie Frost, Mrs. Archie Brittain and Mrs. James Blair, who, with their staff of waitresses, gave the fullest satisfaction to all the guests who crowded again and again their long tables last night.

In the lodge room the fair was continued and the male shouters for every booth made things happy and full of life, while in the adjoining room of horrov batches of curious inquirers were entertained by an unblushing tradeleur with an explanation of the use of the various implements of the trade displayed on tables and the walls. That few were inclined to talk on coming out showed at least that they were of some degree in the science of secrecy. The weather looks bad for the garden party and chambrake to-day, but fortunately the arrangements can be readily converted into a fish dinner under cover. To Mr. W. J. Webster, thanks are due for grandiose music of the very best order. Tickets for Friday's concert and minstrel show were all disposed of the first day and seats were opened, but as there will be a repetition on Saturday evening and there will be a late train to the city, visitors from St. John can attend and get back home for Sunday all right.

PAINTERS WANT WOODEN SIGNS FOR THE STREETS

The sub-committee on street signs are likely to have some trouble when they meet this afternoon to consider the awarding of the contract for enamelled signs. The master painters of this city are opposed to enamelled signs, preferring to see painted ones. Aid, McIowan, of the sub-committee, says that the climate here is not suitable for enamelled signs.

POLICE COURT

SPORTS POSTPONED

It has been decided to postpone the field sports and swimming races at Seaside Park, which were to have been held on Saturday afternoon. By doing so, there is a chance of getting boat races, and there is also a hope that the present bad weather would hold until Saturday and leave the grounds in poor condition. In the meantime, efforts will be made to arrange for boat races.

THE PLAYGROUNDS

The formal closing of the Centennial school playground takes place tomorrow. It is expected many citizens will attend to enjoy the exercises and show their appreciation of the efforts of the playgrounds committee of the Woman's Council.

A DOUBTFUL INTENDER

An automobile with a bursted wheel went into a garage for quick repairs. And the chauffeur barked in his protest, talked. As a tinker talks when a tinker swears, But the great machine, Full of righteous spleen, And of gratitude by its cure inspired, Said at once to each, And the skillful tech, And the swearing chauffeur, "You make me tired!"

STRICKEN OFF.

"Leaves From My Life." I think it was James Payn who told me the story of how he escaped performing his duty as a citizen. He was being hailed his untoward fate in some public place, when a most respectable man informed him that for some small sum he would insure his never being called upon again to serve. James Payn gave what he asked, and being consumed with curiosity to see how he would manage, he repaired to the court whither he had been summoned and waited. His name was called, and then a sad figure in deep black arose from the wall of the court, bearing a spotted handkerchief in his hand. The man simply said, "Dead, my Lord!" The judge uttered a few commonplace condolences, the name was struck off the list, and he was never again called upon to act.
