HELEN KELLER, THE WONDER GIRL
Madame Mactierinck recently visited Helen Keller. The following, quoted from Pictorial Review, gives a good idea of her remarkable impressions:

We are standing close together. Helen has not left the arm of her companion whose husband, a young American with a smile in his deep-set eyes, is standing, has now joined the group. Helen is tall and well-developed. She has a finely-shaped head and well-cut, regular features. Her nose is classically straight; the rather full mouth nobly curved; the chin small but firm; the eyes set in their deep sockets, blue, to screen a top-penetrating glance; and dominating all, a lofty brow, a high square forehead that attracts and holds the attention. It is because the eyes are lacking that the brow seems so much alive? Very clear, very smooth, with only a tiny furrow grooved in the centre by effort and study; it is indeed the sun of that countenance, bathing it with its radiance. You feel that, if you covered it, everything would grow dim. Evidently her hair is a black velvet ribbon, its edges prettily worked with very dainty steel beads. Her chestnut hair, dressed low down on the neck, is devoid of wave or parting and drawn back into a tight knot behind. At the utmost, a softening touch may occasionally be given by a lock which has slipped the impertinent ribbon and strayed on her temples; and yet this severe style suits her and, and when we study her profile and her rather masculine throat, straight and pure as a column, we are reminded of an Athenian youth on a bas-relief.

Helen always holds herself very erect, almost to stiffness, and her dress is that of any other American girl who lives remote from the big centres. The full, gray cloth skirt and the blouse of emerald green are in the latest fashion.

THE PRIMA DONNA AND THE CRANK
(Courtesy of Pictorial Review)
A certain type of prima donna, the one employing an industrial press agent, makes the most she can of any little episode capable of a twist into the sensational. But the really earnest, serious minded singer is the opposite.

Things are borne with a silent stoicism, and kept apart from any mention of association with her art. To this latter type much more is likely to happen than to the former, but it is seldom seen in print. Miss Olive Fremsted belongs supremely to this class.

Night after night in the early times, sang at the Cologne Opera House, notes in the same handwriting came to her dressing-room. Each one declared she must marry the author. Dismissing them from her mind as a joke, she would go out and sing. Finally, a long-missive than usual lay in the accustomed place. It said that pleading was ended, and threatened that unless she smiled and nodded in its author's direction that night, thus meaning that she would marry him, that he would shoot her where she stood. Full directions were given as to the location of his seat. Not until the second act did she dare lift her eyes in his direction. The very fixity of his gaze by some occult process made her feel it. What she saw was a face ghastly pale, lit by a pair of eyes piercing in their intensity. His hands fumbled with some object they held.

Naturally she was frightened. She sang as an automaton; cold perspiration starting under the grease paint on her forehead. Although she refused to look again, she felt the terror of those unflinching eyes. By degrees, as act followed act and nothing happened, she gained courage, dressing silently for each coming scene which, perhaps, might be her last, but disclaiming appeal for help which would mean the man's arrest, a scene, and consequent publicity.

Nothing ever came of it and eventually the fair faded and her former sense of security returned.

The Passing of The "Hired Girl"
Telling What The Women's Clubs Have Done To Solve The Servant Girl Problem

In the fifth "Hired House" article, Mrs. Mabel Potter Maggett tells many interesting facts concerning what this now famous body of women have accomplished. The following is quoted:—

Is there anything so hard to get today as a servant girl? For the reason report that lists some 800 occupations now open to women. There used to be only one. Sometimes you entered it by the front door and sometimes you entered it by the back door. But whether as the mistress entering on matrimony or the maid entering on service, the duties to which the limiting conditions of your sex called you, were domestic labor. Even now in all this present day clamor about what women shall or shall not be permitted to do, the public is almost resentfully unanimous in agreement about the one occupation, that women's work whatever else it may be is housework. So of course it seems the more surprising that women won't do it. And they won't today, not if they get into any one of those 800 other occupations in which they may now make a living. It may be that the mothers ate sour grapes and the daughters' teeth are set on edge. At any rate, the ceaseless toil of housework, the work that was "never done" is a matter of historic record. The wife who worked without a wage was busy from sunrise to sunset and long after by the light of the evening lamp. So was the standard of industry set for the domestic help. Ten hours, twelve hours, even sometimes fourteen hours, the continuous round of duties held you. Labor unions have been organized against less hard-ship than that. Was it any wonder family life that women who could get away, walked out of the kitchen?

The hired girl left us about a generation since. We have been wont to regard her going as a calamity. On the contrary it was a blessing in disguise. Her departure turned domestic drudgery into domestic science. It was as if the world awakened to the real menace in the danger of an altogether deserted kitchen. And every modern invention has been rushed to the aid of the housewife who remained behind. More than fifty per cent. of the women in the United States are doing their own work today. But they no longer have to get along with antiquated, outworn tools. See literally acres of cleverly devised, labor-saving utensils displayed by the department stores; No gonn of frying, tale ever worked greater wonders than electricity, the new servant in the house that washes and irons and sweeps and cooks at the touch of a button. And today any domestic operation that isn't easy to do at home, the factory will do for you.

Relieved of her heavier burdens, the historic woman with the broom has been able to rest her hands and employ her head in a study of her problems. The result has been that an occupation hitherto more or less hapazard and chaotic, has been reorganized with efficient system. It was the Household Economics Department of the General Federation that taught it. Between 1906 and 1910, 1,000 women's organizations added that department to their club work, and thereby put themselves in direct contact with all the information available from specialists in chemistry and of culture, in architecture and decoration and every other subject pertaining to the household.

CLEAN UP THE CITY

The mayor of Amherst has issued a proclamation naming May 11 as a general clean-up day for the town. The mayor arrived at this decision after a conference with the Daughters of the Empire. The town council will give some financial assistance, but all the citizens are asked to do their part, so that at the close of the day the town may be cleared of all the rubbish now lying about the streets, alleys, yards and houses, and the sanitary conditions and the general appearance of Amherst improved to that extent.

WELL DONE FAIRVILLE

It will not be surprising if Fairville should set an example to St. John in the matter of definite and well organized community work. An article on our page of today's Times tells of a movement in progress which aims to unite representatives of all churches and social organizations for a definite programme of social welfare work, with special reference to playgrounds and greater attention to kindly and helpful supervision of the activities of the young. The people of Fairville are to be congratulated upon the spirit which has been manifested, and in carrying out the proposed work they will be doing more than merely improving the conditions in their own little town. They will be giving encouragement to every social service worker in the city of St. John, and they will be setting an example to other communities in the province, which is greatly needed to stimulate the people to forget their differences and unite their efforts to promote movements which all are agreed are of benefit, and are really needed to improve the conditions of living in every village, town and city.

NATIONAL LABOR BUREAU

Legislation is proposed in the United States to establish at Washington a national clearing house for labor. The purpose of such a bureau would be to give prompt and full information regarding the conditions of labor all over the country. It necessarily happens in so large a country that while some localities have a surplus of labor there are others where many more persons could be employed than are quickly available. If a ready means were established to let idle men in one locality know about the need of labor in others, so that there would be no guess work about it, the result should be beneficial to both localities. Describing the purpose of the proposed new legislation the Bangor Commercial says: "In recent years much along the above lines has been accomplished by state, municipal and private bureaus, but these have always felt their limitations in regard to exact knowledge of conditions in distant communities. The present proposition is for the establishment of a government bureau of labor exchange with a number of branches and agents, to conduct free employment agencies and to keep in touch with the pulse of non-employment and demand for labor over the country. This one section may be suffering for labor while another has an overplus. Then it will be the business of the national clearing house to record the varying needs of the sections and to see that the overplus is diminished and the needs elsewhere supplied. The central clearing house is to serve as an equalizer."

THE COMMISSION PLAN

The Globe appears to be as strongly opposed as ever to the commission plan of government, and appears to believe it possible, if not probable, that there will be a return in this city to the outworn and discredited city council system with ward representation. Anyone who has gone about with his eyes open since the commission plan was adopted, and has observed how civic affairs have been conducted, and how it was possible for a citizen to reach at any time the man directly responsible for the affairs of any department, can only smile at a plea for a return to the system of small ward politics, divided authority, evasion of responsibility, and general inability to get results. The fact that all but one of the present commissioners had been members of the city council under the old system is no argument whatever in favor of a return to the old system. The gentlemen who will now be in control of the departments at city hall will be able under the present system to do infinitely better work than was possible under the old system. If they fail to do so they cannot evade the responsibility, for it rests directly upon them and not be laid upon the shoulders of others. The commission plan of government has come to stay. There may be amendments and improvements, and this

BIRTHDAYS OF NOTABILITIES

SATURDAY, MAY 2

Dr. W. Bell Dawson, superintendent of the Dominion Survey of Tide and Currents, and a man whose work has been of immense practical importance, reaches his sixtieth birthday to-day. Doctor Dawson, who is the second son of the late Sir J. W. Dawson, was born in Pictou, N. S., and studied at McGill University, whence he graduated with high honors. He was later admitted to the highest school of engineering in France, and led his class there at graduation. From the Institution of Civil Engineers of London, he received his present appointment in 1899, he engaged in a long series of engineering undertakings in Canada, principally in connection with railway construction. Under his supervision there are now issued annually those tide tables for the principal harbors of the Atlantic and Pacific coasts, which are invaluable to mariners. For this work Doctor Dawson received the Watt Gold Medal from the Institution of Civil Engineers of London.

Also born to-day:—Lt.-Col. G. S. Cantle, general superintendent of car service, P. R. Montreal, born in Montreal, 1867. Dr. J. D. Logan, poet and newspaper man, Montreal, born in Antigonish, N. S., 1859.

Experience "I've run across some queer specimens of manhood in my time," said the taxi driver. "Well," replied the aviator, "I've fallen in with some queer people, too."

MEXICAN REBELS REFUSE A TRUCE

Will Not Neutralize Tampico Oil Belt — Remnants of Huerta's Army Fire Saltillo and Retire

Washington, May 1.—General Carranza telegraphed Secretary Bryan from Chihuahua tonight that the Constitutionists would not enter into any formal agreement for the establishment of a neutral zone around the oil wells at Tampico. He said, however, that as far as his forces were concerned the oil companies could resume operations without fear of molestation.

El Paso, Texas, May 1.—Saltillo, principal city of the state of Coahuila, where the remnants of various federal forces rallied after their defeats at Torreon, Monterey and other lesser strongholds, was reported today to have been evacuated April 27, the troops retiring to San Luis Potosi, in the state of that name, about 800 miles south.

The information was received here in a letter signed by Miguel Avila. Avila said he left the city on the 27th, when the federals, numbering 10,000 or 12,000, acting on direct orders from Huerta, set fire to the place and abandoned it, entraining for San Luis Potosi. The letter was mailed by Avila from San Antonio, Texas, last Wednesday to the rebel junta here.

RED HAIR.

Major Hurst has studied the red-haired children of Burbage for heredity in eyes and hair for years. His conclusions are as follows, says the Express: "When both parents have red hair all the children are red. When both parents have brown hair, either all the children or most of them are brown, and a few red. When one parent is brown and the other red, either all the children are brown or about one-half are brown and one-half are red." "I have not noticed," said Major Hurst, "that red hair and a hasty temper go together. I do not think it is so. I know a family here where six out of twelve are red-haired, and the red-haired ones are no more fiery tempered than the rest."

I. C. R. AND THE BRANCH LINES

May Introduce Bill, But Minister Denies Knowledge of Gutelius Negotiations—No Further Tariff Changes This Season

Ottawa, May 1.—P. P. Gutelius, government commissioner-at-large, seems to be "getting in wrong" with his employers. When the estimates of the railway department were before parliament tonight Hon. Dr. Reid, acting minister of railways, stated, in reply to Mr. Kyrle, of Richmond, that no action had been taken, or was at present contemplated towards the transfer of any of the branch lines to the Intercolonial.

"Then the government does not know what its commissioner, Mr. Gutelius, is doing," said E. M. MacDonald, of Pictou. He pointed out that Mr. Gutelius is reported to have interviewed certain interests in Nova Scotia concerning the taking over of the branch lines.

"No, no," responded Hon. Dr. Reid, "I know nothing of it. The minister said he would be surprised at such independent action by Mr. Gutelius."

"Did the minister authorize any such action on the part of Gutelius?" asked Mr. MacDonald.

"No, I certainly did not," was the minister's emphatic reply.

May Reintroduce Branch Lines Bill.

It is learned, however, that the government contemplates the reintroduction of its branch lines bill this session with certain provisions added to the original draft.

This session the government may incorporate in the bill certain provisions which they hope will commend the measure to both houses. It will be provided that in case of purchase of any line there shall be deducted from the appraised price of the line the amount of any federal subsidy which the line may have obtained in the past. In the case of lease it will be provided that there shall be deducted three per cent of such subsidies.

At the opening of the commons today Hon. W. T. White introduced and secured first reading for the tariff bill which is intended to give effect to the tariff resolutions which appeared in the budget, and which were approved in committee yesterday. In this connection the finance minister said that there would be no further tariff changes this season.

Hon. Martin Burrell's dairy bill was taken up in committee and evoked some discussion. The clause which prohibits the manufacture or sale of oleomargarine.

The section was left unchanged.

I. C. R. Matters.

The evening sitting of the house was entirely devoted to various local aspects of the I. C. R. Bill. Chalmers, of Antigonish, spent considerable time in urging the claims of municipalities in Pictou, Antigonish, St. Mary's and Guysborough or comparing the federal government for the amounts spent by these municipalities in giving rights of way to the section of the I. C. R. from New Glasgow to the Straits of Canso, a distance of eighty miles.

Hon. Dr. Reid, while not committing himself as to the justice of the claim, noted that the question was an old one which had been before the late government many times, but it had not been dealt with by them. The matter, however, was one worthy of consideration.

In reply to a plea from E. M. MacDonald that the report of General Manager Gutelius regarding the Pictou-Moncton line be adopted and that a permanent new bridge be constructed from Pictou to Pictou Landing, the minister intimated that as an immediate step supplementary estimates to carry out the recommendation of Mr. Gutelius.

Moncton-Halifax Section.

In reply to J. H. Sinclair, who supported Mr. Chisholm's plea for the municipalities, and who asked for definite information as to whether the government would act upon the recommendation of Mr. Gutelius for the general improvement of the line from Moncton to Halifax with the elimination of heavy grades and the reconstruction of the line in part at least, Hon. Dr. Reid said that all reports and surveys in this connection would be taken down in the house on Tuesday next. He added that he knew that the minister of railways, Hon. Frank Cochrane, was in favor of eliminating the heavy grades and had endorsed in a large measure, at least, the recommendation of Mr. Gutelius for the standardization of the road from Moncton to Sydney.

improvements to the I. C. R. in Cape Breton, interjected the remark that he understood Dr. Reid was to be the next minister of railways.

"I hope not," replied Dr. Reid, referring to the heavy duties of the position.

The house adjourned at a comparatively early hour after passing three items of the Intercolonial estimates.

GENERAL MISSION IN ANGLICAN CHURCHES

Next November there will be a general mission in all the Anglican churches of St. John and regarding this the Bishop of Fredericton has issued a pastoral which we quote:

"After much careful thought, it has been decided to hold a general mission in St. John from the 22nd to the 29th of next November, and I announce the fact at this early date in order that it may be much upon your minds and in your prayers during the next six months. The object of the mission is very simple, the deepening and strengthening of our spiritual life as a church and as individuals. With this end in view, I am asking a number of experienced clergymen to conduct special services during the week I have mentioned in all our churches in the city and Fairville. It is too soon to give you any definite information, but I may say that I have received the promise of help in this work from a number of strong preachers, and I hope to be able to make up the required number. I want to remind you, however, at the very outset that the success of a mission of this sort does not depend so much upon the power of the preachers as upon the preparation of prayer, that has been made by those to whom they are to bring their message. Let me urge you, then, to pray that God will see fit to use this effort for His glory, and for the strengthening and purifying of your own souls."

John—"I saw your sister dancing the two-step at the cotillion the other night. She does it beautifully." Henry—"Why not? She learned it from her two step-sisters."

LABOR MEN PREPARING FOR GREAT CONVENTION

Labor Congress Will be Held in St. John in September — Will be Generously Entertained

Visitors from coast to coast will assemble in St. John in September for the 80th annual convention of the Trades and Labor Congress of Canada, and during the period of convention 850 delegates from Canadian councils, a fraternal delegate from the British Trades Congress and a fraternal delegate from the American Federation of Labor will discuss labor problems and ways and means for the betterment of the working people. More than 1,000 labor men are expected to come to St. John during the gathering and the convention days, from September 23 to 28, will be most eventful as arrangements are being made by a large and experienced committee of prominent local labor leaders to entertain royally on the occasion of St. John's first big labor convention.

In preparation for the banner week, organizers of the different labor unions will visit St. John during the summer to stimulate interest in labor work and to aid in the scheme of entertainment for the congress.

Organizers who have already visited the city are: John E. Potts, of the United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America; Magnus Sinclair, of the Street Employees of America, and Leon Worthall, of the Journeymen Barbers International Union.

Invitations will be sent to the premier of New Brunswick, Mayor Frink, the minister of labor and others.

The convention will be a great boom to the hotel men and to the city in general as the labor delegates will be here for a week and many will be accompanied by their wives. The city will provide a steamer for a sail on the St. John river and a band will furnish music on the trip.

Sports will be provided and details will be worked out for a theatre night on a big scale, and a grand ball will be a feature of the programme for the week.

The following men have been chosen as a committee to arrange the details of the convention programme: John S. Montague, of the Longshoremen's Union, chairman; Baird Stilwell, of the Typographical Union, vice chairman; James L. Sugrue, of the Carpenters Union, secretary-treasurer; Edward Beck, Painters & Decorators; John O'Brien, Plumbers; James McGirr, Bricklayers; Fred Ring, Nailmakers; J. N. Smith, Barbers; C. "Saved . . ."

In June, 1910, a prominent New Brunswick lumber merchant was granted an Imperial policy for $2,500.00.

His fourth annual premium was due June 15th, 1913. He didn't pay it—and it wasn't paid on August 26th, when he died.

But the Company continued the insurance in force under its Automatic Non-Fortifure provision, and paid the proceeds of the policy to the assured's four young children on September 27th, 1913.

Now think what would have happened had the policy not contained this saving clause, which is common to all Imperial policies.

MORAL: Insure in the Imperial, the Company that really safeguards its policyholders' interests.

NO NEED TO SEND DELEGATION YET

Hon. Mr. Hazen Wires About Halifax Matter

NO DECISION TILL ST. JOHN HEARD

Board of Trade Secretary Takes Step For Complete Unification of Interests of Port of St. John—The Christie Woodworking Co. Plans

In reply to a wire sent last evening to Hon. D. Hazen requesting that the government take no action after hearing the Halifax delegation until a St. John delegation could be heard, R. E. Armstrong, secretary of the board of trade, this morning received the following telegram: Ottawa, May 2, 1914. Secretary Board of Trade, St. John, N. B. Will certainly see that any decision such as you referred to is deferred and will advise you if I think it necessary that delegation should come to Ottawa. No necessity of it at present.

Recognizing that the time has come when there should be a complete unification of interests so far as the port of St. John is concerned, and recognizing the importance of a co-operation of all interests in connection with the settlement of ocean mail problem which is now before the St. John Board of Trade, invited the mayor and city commissioners and representatives of the Trades and Labor Council to attend the board meeting on Monday night and talk over the situation, with a view to arriving at a common line of action, and with the further purpose of arranging for a delegation to proceed to Ottawa, if necessary, to present St. John's case to the government and to interview the heads of the C. P. R. Company. Mayor Frink has called the attention of the secretary of the board of trade to a plan submitted to him some little time ago by S. L. Peters, of Gagetown, concerning the crossing of the St. John River by the Valley Railway bridge. "Mr. Peter's proposal," says the mayor, "are materially different from those which have been accepted by the provincial government for the location of this railway at this particular place." The mayor's letter will be submitted to the council of the board for their consideration.

Replying to a letter of sympathy from the secretary of the board to the Christie Wood-Working Company whose well equipped plant in City Road was recently destroyed by fire, Mr. Christie says that his company hopes either to increase its Erin street plant or else to rebuild at City Road.

MRS. CATHERINE EVANS The death of Mrs. Catherine, wife of William J. Evans, took place early this morning at her home, 396 Wentworth street. She had been ailing about three weeks. Mrs. Evans was held in esteem by many friends. Besides her husband she is survived by seven sons and one daughter, Miss Mary at home. The sons are: William, Richard, Thomas, Harold, Robert, Burton and Edward. Two brothers, George and John Conboy, and two sisters, Mrs. A. Secord and Miss Hannah Conboy also survive. The funeral will be held on Monday morning at 8:30 o'clock from her late home.

There's a Better Time Near Says Weather Man Today

Indications For Warmer—A Little Milder Today But Quite a Breeze

We have one small cause for rejoicing today; it is a little warmer than it was all day yesterday, even though there was a snow flurry early this morning—and May 2 at that. There was very little variation in temperature yesterday, the highest being 38 and the lowest 30 above. At 9 o'clock this morning, however, the thermometer had climbed to 37, and was gradually going higher. At 1 o'clock it was 41 degree above. There was a good stiff breeze blowing all morning and a slight drizzle during the first part of the forenoon made it rather disagreeable outside. At nine o'clock this morning the wind registered twenty-eight miles an hour and increased to about thirty-six at noon, but started to drop soon afterwards, and was blowing twenty-eight at one o'clock. The indications are for warmer weather. A London cable says:—"May was ushered in with a piercing northeasterly wind. The sun shone bravely for five hours, but infused little warmth into the atmosphere and furs and overcoats were worn generally. Intense cold prevailed in Scotland and all the chief mountain ranges had a fresh covering of snow."

WHY THIS DELAY?

(Fredericton Mall Friday) Twenty-five days have elapsed since Mr. Dugal formulated very grave charges against the premier of this province, and a commission to investigate the same has not yet been appointed. What is the reason for all this delay?

ARCHBISHOP CASEY'S MESSAGE TO PEOPLE OF ST. JOHN DIOCESE

The New Freeman tells of an interview with His Grace Archbishop Casey at St. Peter's rectory and continues:—"Asked whether he had a message for the faithful of his former diocese, His Grace slowly and feelingly replied, 'Yes, say to your readers and to my former spiritual children that while I may have received many marks of respect, love and loyalty from my children beyond the Ricksies, I still have a warm spot in my heart for the faithful of the St. John diocese. I shall not forget them, and I would ask them to give the same evidence of love and loyalty to my successor that they gave to me. I am pleased to learn of the endeavors of Bishop LeBlanc for the spiritual and material progress of the church here and I pray that God may bless the church in the east and west.' His Grace said this visit was of personal, private nature. He had also been asked by Father LeCavalier to preside at the golden jubilee celebration of St. Joseph's University and would therefore not be returning west until after that event. In the meantime he would take advantage of his presence in the east to visit friends in the province and throughout New England.

MUST GO TO SCHOOL In the juvenile court this morning two boys arrested for truancy were disposed of. One, who had been in several times before on a similar charge was sent below and his father fined $2. The other boy, who had never been in court, was allowed to go when his brother promised to see that he went to school.

ONLY ONE IN PORT There is only one steamer now in port, the South African liner Benda, and she is to sail this afternoon. Should she get away before the arrival of the liner Rapidan, due this afternoon, the harbor will be bare of steamers for the first time since early in the winter.

SOCIAL COUNCIL FOR FAIRVILLE? FOR FAIRVILLE?

Mass Meeting For Bettering of Community Life

PUBLIC PLAYGROUND

Amateur Sport and Clean-up Day Also Expected to be on the Programme—Believe Such a Movement Will Bring Good Results

It will be interesting news to many Fairville people that arrangements have been completed for a public mass meeting in the near future in the Temperance Hall to consider plans for bettering the community life and if possible elect a social council or similar body to act as an executive. The originators of the project have not made themselves known and it makes little difference as everyone residing within the village limits must realize the necessity for improvements along the line of social endeavor. While street talk is the only source of information at present, it is expected that initial steps will be taken to establish a public playground for the children, this being considered one of the most essential problems to be grappled with. Harding street is recognized as a juvenile centre with Prospect and other side streets well populated with youngsters to say nothing of the general crowd that would gather into the fold once such an institution were established. "All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," but close study of the question proves that environment and kind of play are factors to be dealt with, extending as they undoubtedly do, a marked influence on the youthful mind, and under proper supervision play can be made to express and teach much that has in days gone by been associated with training more strict in its nature. No doubt amateur sport will also receive attention as well as a cleaning up day, all of which are commendable and in the best interests of community welfare.

An organization to carry out such work must be thoroughly representative of the people as a whole, and it is expected that the clergy of all denominations will lend willing assistance. When in the city recently J. S. Woodworth hit the nail on the head in his remark "If we pray apart let us work together," and if this movement is to be successful it needs everybody's co-operation. No doubt whatever is expressed as to the attendance of the councillors at the meeting, all of which are commendable and in the best interests of the people and benefit the place. In fact they have been suggested by W. W. Turnbull. A pleasant time was spent by the gathering in games and music.

PRESENTATION. An agreeable surprise was last night given Mr. and Mrs. Charles Smith, when about 100 friends called at their home in King street, West End, and during the evening presented to them a very pretty mantle mirror. The presentation was made, in behalf of those assembled, by W. W. Turnbull. A pleasant time was spent by the gathering in games and music.

MRS. MARY E. WALLACE. The death of a well known Fairville resident occurred this morning at her home—Mrs. Mary E., wife of James G. Wallace—after a short illness from pneumonia. She had been ill only nine days. Besides her husband she survived by three daughters, Misses Clara A., Mary Evelyn, and Rose Gertrude, all at home. The funeral will be held on Monday afternoon to St. Rose's church.

MUST PAY FIVE CENTS MORE IF YOU TRAVEL ON EMPLOYEES' CAR The street railway motormen and conductors who reside in the North End have been granted the privilege of an extra car to convey them to their work in the morning and back to their homes in the evening. This car has been allowed them since the shops were removed last year to Lower Cove from Indiantown where the majority of them had their homes located. The car goes to Indiantown about an hour after the last regular trip north and has come to be quite a popular convenience as well as a favor to the employees. In future, however, the traveling public the fare on this night car is to be ten cents instead of a nickel.

THREE MATTERS IN PROBATE Joshua Clawson left no will. The family consists of four sons—William H., of Toronto, university professor; John W., of Collegeville, Pa., college professor; Ernest E., of Ottawa, civil servant; and Harold K. Clawson, of Regina, loan inspector. The will of Charles Yeats, late of Lancaster, was proved. He gives all his estate to his cousin, Miss Mary Isabella Patton, of St. John, and nominates Jack H. A. L. Fairweather of St. John, executor. He was sworn in. There is no real estate, personally $7,000. J. Roy Campbell, K. C., is proctor.

DELAYED BY ACCIDENT The incoming C. P. R. trains were held up this morning by two accidents. The Fredericton train due at 8:55 a.m. did not reach here until about 10:30, owing to an accident to her cylinder when near Westfield Beach. The Boston train was an hour late, while the Montreal was four hours behind time. The delay of the last named was caused by the Boston loosening some of the tracks behind her in Maine, and the Montreal was unable to pass until repairs were made.

INSURE UNDER THE PARCEL POST SYSTEM BUT NOT REGISTER Under the present regulations regarding parcels post, the articles sent may not be registered but are insured against loss or accident if the sender wishes. A card form is required to be filled out, stating the actual value of the parcel sent, with the fee paid, together with the address of the recipient. One of the chief troubles thus far encountered is that merchants and other senders do not give the actual value represented to those in whose care the parcels are entrusted, and therefore it is necessary to withhold delivery until this is ascertained.

LATE PERSONALS

W. B. Howard, D. P. A. for the C. P. R., accompanied by his wife and child, left last night on a trip to England.

Miss Margaret MacKay of Moncton is visiting her friends, the Misses Lee. St. George street, West St. John.

Miss L. Tweedie, of Sackville, is a guest of Mrs. Ground, Princess street.

Murray Beatty, of the local staff of the Bank of Nova Scotia left this morning for Pictou to receive the manager of the bank there.

With a great sense of awe and importance the young couple stood in front of the parson, the new baby comfortably slumbering in its mother's arms.

Evidently with an idea of improving the occasion, the new curate saw fit to launch into a gentle homily on the child's future upbringing.

"Who knows?" he finished up. "This man like myself, or a brave soldier, or a daring sea captain. It is even possible that he may one day become an illustrious statesman."

The little mother's eyes had gradually grown rounder and rounder.

"What name did you say?" said the parson.

In a timid whisper came the apologetic reply: "Jemima Ann, sir."

IRON SHIPS LAST LONGEST

(Engineering News.) While in recent years the hulls of lightships have been built of steel, in common with those of other vessels, it is yet to be determined whether the use of steel instead of iron is a wise policy.

As to the long life of an iron hull, the first iron ship built in the world was constructed for the Mersey Docks and Harbour Board in 1842 by the famous old firm of Laird Bros., the same firm which during the Civil War built the Confederate cruiser "Alabama." This iron ship was named the "Prince" and was put in service as a light vessel on her completion and was so used until 1869.

With a great sense of awe and importance the young couple stood in front of the parson, the new baby comfortably slumbering in its mother's arms.

AN HONEST MISTAKE

(Canadian Courier.) Many men make honest mistakes. A prominent business man in Toronto tells of one he made. He got on a street car and asked the conductor for a dollar's worth of tickets, and gave him a bill to change. The conductor gave him a dollar in silver.

"What is this for?" asked the passenger.

"You can't put that over, young man, I gave you a five-dollar bill yesterday."

Then the dispute began. The business man explained that he knew it was a five-dollar bill, because he had carried it for two or three days, and had no other.

The conductor protested that it was a two-dollar bill, and produced just such a bill. Finally, the now wrathful passenger took the conductor's number and promised to report the matter.

That night when he got home, he told his family at the dinner-table how he had been swindled out of three dollars by a rascally conductor, and explained how certain he was under the circumstances. His son listened to the story until it was finished and then remarked:

"Father, do you remember my going to you yesterday and telling you I wanted a pair of boots? I told you I had only two dollars and could not get what I wanted for that amount. So you gave me a five-dollar bill and I gave you the two-dollar bill."

The consciousness faded out of the business man's face, and next day he visited the complaint office of the street railway and duly made a humble apology to one of the inspectors, asking him to explain to the conductor.

WHY FOREMEN ARE SCARCE (American Machinist.) We often hear how difficult it is to find education of high quality. These schools are not. Apprenticeship is the remedy, but not until foremanship is understood, not until the foreman is paid at least as much as the piece-worker in the shop. Foremanship does not attract the best shop men today, comments a writer in the American Machinist.

SOME ASKS WHAT apprenticeship should be. The apprentice problem is very simple. For the shop it should be a contract, apprenticeship brought down to date, changed and improved to meet present conditions.

First is the training of the hand, eye, and judgment in the shop by men who have no other duties. The course should be short, active and thorough to render the boys good, quick, accurate and intelligent workmen, and good citizens, in the shortest possible time.

Second is mental training coincident with the manual development. This means night schools or day schools conducted by men who understand the shops and who can show the boys how to educate themselves. These schools are ahead of the processes which are in vogue and to enable them to understand the materials processes and forces with which they are dealing and to conduct their work without waste of energy, of time, or of material.

Third and most important is the personal responsibility of the boys entering in one man, the apprentice supervisor, whose duty is to know and understand them. He must know the boys intimately, thoroughly understand their capabilities and their personalities. He must know them better than parents usually know their boys and be able to guide them in all the affairs of young manhood.

The real and enduring greatness of a nation always has its source in the home; patriotism dwells within the home that is happy.

It was George Elliot who said that politeness is like an air cushion; there may be nothing in it, but it eases the jolts wonderfully.

CHANGING THE PROCEDURE IN CITY COURT

New Bill Drafted by Local Lawyers Adopted at Last Session—Provides Many Reforms

By a recent act of the legislature an entire change has been made in the method of procedure in the city court. The act passed the house on April 18 and was assented to by the governor on April 16, when it became the law governing the city court. Until yesterday the court was proceeding under the old act, but the magistrate gave instructions that no more papers should be issued until a copy of the new act reached the court.

FOUND 30,000 NESTS OF BROWN TAIL MOTHS

Fredericton, May 1.—Brown Tail Moth nests to the total of 30,000 were found in the province of New Brunswick by the survey parties which have been working during the past winter. The parties which were sent out by the provincial and dominion agricultural departments concluded their work yesterday. While the Brown Tails were found to be in a very excessive number, there is no trace whatever of the Gypsy Moth in the province. The most infected county was Charlotte, with Carleton and St. John counties following in order. In all the counties surveyed, the Brown Tails were found to exist in every county to a very great extent.

Every Person Welcomes the Approach of Spring

But every person does not care for that dull, tired, listless, all-down-and-out, don't-care-to-do-any-work feeling that overcomes one at this time of the year. This feeling is caused by the eating of rich and heavy foods during the winter months, which, along with the indoor life, causes an accumulation of undigested and refuse matter in the system.

much to send a stove up river as it did to bring it to St. John from Montreal by rail. There is also a slight advance in the passenger rates charged on this end of the river, but the rate to Fredericton will not be affected.

The steambot owners, when asked concerning the increase, said that it had been found necessary in order to put the service on a paying basis, as the expenses were heavier than a few years ago, since they have to pay higher for coal and pay higher wages to the crews. It was also said that since the farmers, who are the ones to suffer most from the change, are getting much more for their produce than they did a few years ago, that they could easily pay the increase, which the owners considered very slight.

The boat was valued at about $8,000 and was insured with Cowie & Edwards for $15,000. It is a mystery how the fire started. It was first seen about 11:30 and burned until 12:30.

PERSONAL AND SOCIAL NEWS OF THE WEEK IN ST. JOHN

The principal event in society this week was the large and dance held in the Keith assembly rooms under the auspices of the DeMonts Chapter of the Imperial Daughters of the Empire, the object of which was philanthropic. The large ball room, the brown and green color scheme which now prevails harmonizing with every shade, was ornamented with bunting and festoons of Union Jacks. From the central electric to the four corners of the hall, and over the doors, the brilliant red, white and blue formed a picturesque setting for the ladies' gowns, which followed the fashion of the times, were also vivid in coloring and picturesque in style. The supper committee, under the direction of Mrs. Walter Foster, are to be congratulated upon the perfect manner in which they performed their duties. The service was prompt and the refreshments were delicious. Bridge was played until 11 o'clock, after which dancing was enjoyed. Jones' orchestra providing the music. Those who won prizes for the bridge were Mrs. C. March, Miss Ketchum, Mrs. Shirley Peters, Mrs. Clarence Ferguson, Mr. H. B. Robinson, Mr. Dickson, Col. E. T. Turdine and the officers of the chapter, who also formed the reception committee, presented the prizes. They were Mrs. James Stratton, regent, who was beautifully gowned in black satin, black tulle and jet; Mrs. F. E. Sayre, 1st vice-regent, who wore a very elegant white tulle gown with a pearl embroidery and diamond ornaments, and Mrs. George K. McLeod, 2nd vice-regent, who was smartly gowned in black satin with Brussels net tulle trimmed with jet. Many beautiful costumes were worn by the ladies present. Mrs. Stewart Skinner wore a very lovely cerise satin and tulle gown with same shade of bandeau on her coiffure. Mrs. Walter Foster was in black satin and chiffon; Mrs. R. Downing Paterson, an English gown of pale blue satin and lace; Miss Hudson, of England, in green satin and shadow lace; Mrs. J. Morris Robinson, black satin with beaded chiffon tunic; Mrs. Leonard Tilley, black satin, maline and lace; Mrs. Atwater Smith, of New York, lovely black satin and tulle gown; Mrs. Hugh Mackay, white satin and shadow lace and roses; Mrs. Daniel Mullin, blue satin, white net tulle trimmed with dark fur; Mrs. Henry Rankine, black satin, and white lace; Miss Elizabeth Furlong, white satin with embroidered blue tulle tunic; Mrs. F. T. Sturdee, satin gown with lace and diamond ornaments; Mrs. Busby, black charmeuse with tulle and jet trimmings; Mrs. W. W. White, a very handsome wisteria chiffon satin with tulle draperies of the same shade.

The summer residence of Mrs. Stratton, and was the first wedding to be solemnized in that church. This was probably the first automobile wedding ever take place in St. John, as all the party motored over to the church. The ceremony was performed by Rev. G. F. Scott, rector of St. Jude's, a church of whose parish the chapel is situated. Many friends had decorated the church for the occasion, the chancel being adorned with white cut flowers, shrubs and young trees from the neighboring forest, while small flags and bunting were displayed on the walls of the nave, a large red ensign taking up nearly the full space of the roof. While there were no conventional attendants, the bride was assisted by Miss Madel Sidney A. D. Smith, and Mr. John E. Moore led after Mr. Adams, as his greatest friend. Mrs. Stratton entered the church on the arm of Colonel Sturdee, who gave her away, and Miss DeSoyres presided at the organ and played the wedding march at the conclusion of the service. Mrs. Stratton carried a large bunch of roses and was dressed in a tailor-made suit of black and white check, with raglan sleeves and black jet hat with plumes. After leaving the sacred building, Mr.

FINGER NAILS DROPPED OFF

Skin Beneath Lifeless. Fingers Painful. Sleepless Nights. Used Cuticura Soap and Cuticura Ointment. Complaint Gone.

70 Agricola St., Halifax, N. S. - "Some time ago my finger nails began to drop off, the result it was believed of lead poisoning. The nails themselves were brittle and dry, the skin beneath being lifeless looking. My fingers were excruciatingly painful causing sleepless nights. I was treated for some time, but the fungus which had grown under the nail disappeared and then new strong nails formed. This trouble had lasted about eighteen months before using Cuticura Soap and Ointment yet after using same for three months my finger nails had grown strong and complaint had entirely gone." Popular Young Farmer Talks

TELLS WHAT DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS DID FOR HIM.

He's Back at Work Again, After Suffering from the Pains, Nervousness and Depression that Only Kidney Disease Can Bring.

Point Alexander, Ont., May 1 (Special) - Mr. D. A. Frounce, a well known and popular young farmer, living near here, who has been a sufferer from kidney disease for some time past, is back at work again, and he says without hesitation that his cure is due to Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I was always tired and nervous," Mr. Frounce says, in speaking of his illness. "I suffered from backache and neuralgia and my sleep was broken and unrefreshing. My eyes were puffed out and there were dark red circles around them. "My muscles would cramp. I felt heavy and sleepy afterwards, and I was depressed and low-spirited, while shortness of breath and dizzy spells served to make my life yet more miserable for me. It was always thirsty; my limbs were heavy, and I had a dragging sensation across the loins.

"My symptoms led me to believe I had kidney disease, and I started to use Dodd's Kidney Pills. I have taken eight boxes in all and I am very grateful for the benefit I have received from them." If the disease is of the kidneys or from the kidneys, Dodd's Kidney Pills will cure it.

"Do make yourself at home, ladies," said an hostess to her unexpected visitors. I am at home myself and I wish you all were."

DELANEY LEAVES VITAGRAPH

Kathlyn Back to Studio After Rest - Popular May Fuller - Local Man Guest of Maurice Costello in New York

The Famous Players Film Co. has secured Bruce McRae, and will shortly present him in "The Ring and the Man," by Cyrus Townsend Brady.

Mr. McRae began his stage career with Daniel Frohman, to whose management he now returns for his first appearance in motion pictures, as was the case with James K. Hackett and Cecilia Loftis.

Leo Delaney, well known in Vitagraph pictures, has severed his connection with that company. Delaney is resting for a few weeks before announcing his future plans.

When the Kathlyn pictures were completed, Kathlyn Williams took a brief rest in the mountains of Montana. The pretty heroine of Harold MacGrath's story is now back at the Selig Los Angeles studio.

Mary Fuller received a telegram at the Edison Bronx studio the other day that informed her that she was a thousand or so votes ahead in a popularity contest being conducted by Texas exhibitors.

Edison Director George Lessey is back from Bermuda. It had originally been intended to keep the Edison Company under Lessey's direction in Bermuda for two weeks; but so fast did the director work that he was back at the studio and working on another picture in ten days.

One of the biggest elephants in the Segil Zoo is Mary Gardner. When they loaded the pachyderm aboard a train last week, at Chicago, for a trip to the Los Angeles studios, the undertaking was so unique that the Chicago dailies all devoted special stories and photographs to the event.

The story is a travesty on the present warfare in Mexico. It deals with two small boys, the Ostreich brothers, weighing over three hundred pounds each, who tire of "watchful waiting" and decide to take the reins in their own hands. They invade Mexico, and there come upon Colonel Furioso, "the interchangeable spy," portrayed by Romaine Fielding. The battle of wits between the boys and Furioso supplies the humor.

Digby Bell, who will make his picture debut in the all-star version of "The Pipp," tells this good story of a gambler who always kept $15 to bet on a sure thing—and only a sure thing. He and Digby happened to sit next to one another during the funeral services of a prominent actor. At one of the most solemn moments when the clergyman had just used the words, "he is not dead, but sleeps," Mr. Bell was startled to hear his companion say, "I'll bet you fifteen he is dead."

Alan Campbell, son of Mrs. Pat Campbell, is a recent addition to the Vitagraph forces. Mr. Campbell accompanies Sidney Drew's company to Florida.

Percy Standing, who has appeared on the screen frequently with Florence Lawrence, has just completed a four-reel feature for the English market, produced by an independent firm, The Red Flame of Faston. Mr. Standing left last week, for England on the Olympic, where he is under contract with an English firm to star in a feature.

While in New York a few days ago, Fred H. Trifts of the Gem Theatre, Waterloo street, had an experience which would have brought delight and charm to the hearts of many admirers of Maurice Costello of the Vitagraph Co. Mr. Trifts enjoyed it too. It was a merry whirl for almost a whole afternoon in the popular motion picture player's handsome touring car, and they visited many places of interest in New York and the surrounding country.

Mr. Costello is now directing the production of photo-plays in New York as well as appearing in some of the Vitagraph Co's biggest productions.

HOW TO DO IT

A "Man Doctor" unambiguously declares that women do everything rather less perfectly than men. They don't cook so well, they don't make dresses quite so well, they don't (so we have heard, though the medical accuser is dumb on this point), trim hats quite so well as a man who sets himself to millinery.

If you have a feeling that your wife doesn't cook so excellently as she ought just you take home a bottle of H. P. Sauce tonight. Suggest to her in the mildest possible manner, that you like H. P. with cold meats, that its good with eggs and bacon, delicious with crust of bread and cheese—unparalleled as a flavoring to insipid gravies, ragouts or made up dishes. In this, as in most other domestic matters, a grain of help is worth a bushel of fault-finding. But you should be quite sure that it is H. P. Sauce that you take home with you.

After twenty-seven years, Mrs. Andrew Knudson has paid off the remainder of her husband's debts, which were partially settled at the time of his death. She resolved to pay off the remainder, although she was not required to do so by law, and has just now succeeded.

INVITATION TO MARGARET ANGLIN

Twice Bidden to The Shakespeare Festival

PLANS PREVENT ACCEPTANCE

Has no Present Intention of Going Into Vaudeville—Dustin Farnum Back to the Boards—London Applauds Great New Tenor

Margaret Anglin has twice been invited to appear in one of her Shakespearean characters at the Shakespearean festival to be held at Stratford-upon-Avon next August. When Archibald D. Flower, chairman of the board of governors of the Shakespeare Memorial Theatre in Stratford, was in America last October, he honored Miss Anglin with a formal invitation to attend the festival and to be featured as the American star player. The invitation gave Miss Anglin the privilege of her own choice of plays, in which, of course, she would be supported by the Stratford players. At that time Miss Anglin could not give Mr. Flower a decisive answer. Mr. Flower is now on his second visit to America, and at this writing is in San Francisco, where the Benson players of Stratford-upon-Avon are playing an engagement. Last week Miss Anglin received an urgent request by telegram asking her to take part in the forthcoming Shakespearean festival. The telegram was signed by Charles F. Towle, the manager of the Benson Players in San Francisco, and is as follows:

Miss Anglin, Hudson Theater, New York. Will you accept invitation to be present in Stratford-upon-Avon in August? Mr. Flower, the chairman of the board of governors is here, and again wishes me to make place for you in any Shakespearean play in which you choose to appear.

CHARLES F. TOWLE. The success of Lady Windemere's Fan in which Miss Anglin is now playing at the Liberty, where it will in all probability remain until the torrid season together with her plans for the Shakespearean returns for next season, precludes Miss Anglin's accepting the honor conferred upon her by Mr. Flower, although developments between now and June may change her present intention.

When a writer in the New York Mirror mentioned Miss Margaret Anglin as a vaudeville possibility, he evidently hadn't consulted Miss Anglin herself for the truth is, she has no intention of giving up playing Shakespeare for years to come, and now that she has firmly established a run for Lady Windemere's Fan, she is going to stick to that as long as the New York public will go to see the play. When she is ready to follow the example of other illustrious stars to enter vaudeville, she declares she will make it duly known.

Joseph L. O'Connor, now managing the Six Kirkamith Sisters, has a farcical comedy, Whose Trouser, breaking in at one of the smaller New York houses this week.

Frederick W. Peters, Gertrude Perry, and Walter Woodall, who played here with Harkins and with the Baker Stock Company will have the principal roles.

Dustin Farnum who played here with W. S. Harkins will abandon the film drama next season to become a star in "The Apex," a play by Richard Harding Davis and Jules E. Goodman.

A dramatic version of Daniel Caron Goodman's "Hagar Revelry," was disclosed in New York this week, but the critics were but lukewarm.

Selwyn & Company have engaged Miss Vera Fuller Mellich for Rio Cooper Megrue's play, "Under Cover."

John Drew and Miss Ethel Barrymore talk of going to London with their projected revival of Sardou's "A Scrap of Paper."

A curious novelty has been introduced on the Paris stage in a little play called "Bicard, dit le Bouff," which is running successfully at the Theatre Cluny, in the Latin Quarter. Every evening a racing character in the piece gives the audience a tip for next day's racing. Quaintly enough, the tips have proved extraordinarily successful, and the play has gained remarkable popularity in consequence.

Madame Melba opened the Covent Garden opera season this week when she sang Mimi in "La Boheme."

"Am I to give up my convictions because they are unpopular?" is the question that sounds the keynote of John Galsworthy's new play, "The Mob," which Otis Skinner is to produce in America next autumn.

The London Chronicle says: "The Mob," Galsworthy's new play, "is one of the most daring, the most powerful and the most absorbing things that the great realist has written. Really it is a study in mob sentiment. But it might pass for a panegyric of the Pro-Boer. As the curtain rises England is on the point of war with 'a little people.' These rude hillmen are to be punished. But Stephen More, M. P., is against the war. He is in the House. All his friends and his wife implore him to give up the idea. In the end she, too, leaves him. She will not live with a man whose equal she is not."

"And the end is as the beginning. More is killed in his lonely rooms by a mob in Madras mood. But there is an aftermath. For the curtain rises again on a sun-steeped city square. In its spacious center rises a solitary stupa. From the stupa a speech is made by two birds perched on the top of it. The birds are Stephen More, and the tablet runs, 'Erected by the country to the memory of Stephen More, Faithful to his ideal.'"

Thomas Barlow Holmes, son of Judge and Mrs. L. W. Holmes of Keene, N. H., and Miss Ethel Harriet McFarland, daughter of Mrs. Malvina McFarland, and granddaughter of the late Danman Thompson, were married last Saturday in Boston by Rev. John Suter, Jr., at Hotel Puritan. Mr. Holmes is a mining engineer, a graduate of the Massachusetts Institute of Technology, and his interests are in Mexico.

A great new tenor in Signor Crimi made his debut at Des Olympe, "Mac on Lescanti" at Covent Garden last Saturday night.

Although it was said that he was suffering from a cold, he gave a marvellous performance, and roused the audience to a high pitch of enthusiasm. According to the critics, Signor Crimi sang with excellent dramatic intensity, yet without any exaggeration of effect, and always with a great vocal beauty. All agree that he is a real artist.

"There is none of the distinction in being an actor today," said George C. Tyng, "but there are two or three years ago. Can you tell me to save you, who is the great tragedian of our present actor's time when the name of Booth, Joe Jefferson, Clara Morris would fall at once from the tip of your tongue. As for acting, a magnificent high-class play revealing the best American management, it can't be done today. We might find the women to cast for parts—we could not find the men. Our actors have no the elegancies of life. They know nothing of the class they come from and the way of the saloon and cabaret and the Hereafter no musical plays controlled by the Messrs Shubert will be published either in part or whole. The managers have come to this decision because of the impossibility of preventing burlesque of their own productions by amateur performers from pretentious and musical comedies when it is easy for them to secure copies of the plays."

Julian L'Estrange, who is at present appearing in The Yellow Ticket, will be seen next season in a new play from the pen of Bertha Bowman, the names of The Rabbi and the Priest. As the title indicates, the play has to do with a comedian of circumstances that unite differences of creed upon common ground. Mr. L'Estrange will probably play the part of the priest, while Harry First is reported to be cast as the rabbi.

Klaw and Erlanger's first musical production for next season will be made in August. With music composed by Ivan Caryll, it will be an adaptation by Harry B. Smith of Le Fils Surmatal, the play by Ginet d'Ancourt and Maurice Vaucadre, which achieved an unusual success in Paris.

EARLY DAYS OF THEATRE HERE

Enchanting Local Chapter From Veteran's Book

LANERGAN AND BEFORE

M. B. Leavitt, Now in the City, Tells of the St. John Stage in the Days of Great Men of Drama

In his very interesting book entitled "Fifty Years in Theatrical Management," M. B. Leavitt, who was a well-known visitor to St. John this week, deals at some length with early days of stageman in this city as well as in the maritime provinces. His account is particularly interesting and gives a striking contrast between conditions as they existed nearly half a century ago and as they are today. After describing his entrance into the theatrical game, Mr. Leavitt tells of various tours which he made with different companies, and of his finally starting out on a tour through New England and the "British Provinces" with his company of minstrels.

Mr. Leavitt chartered a sailing vessel from Boston, the skipper agreeing to land him and his company at Yarmouth in twenty-four hours. However, when outside the harbor they were beset for some time, and were compelled to eat salt pork and hard-tack for a couple of days before landing. There were twelve members in the troupe, four among whom were formed the players, the orchestra, a brass band for parades, a quartette, specially performers, etc.

Mr. Leavitt alludes to the fact that hotel bills, which he says "daily averaged from sixty to seventy-five cents a day per capita."

Concerning the early theatrical history of this city, Mr. Leavitt says that "The earliest record of a theatre in St. John was the 'Drury Lane,' opened in February, 1806, and burned in 1816. It was really a garrison theatre and the amateur clubs of the different regiments in St. John at that time were probably the only actors. The next theatre was Hopley's, built by Hopley in Union street, though he never ran or managed it himself. It was used occasionally as a circus, but when utilized as a theatre, it had a plank floor, which was removed to be replaced by sawdust and tan-bark. This establishment must have been running in the early twenties; I find one of its bills of October 22, 1825, which reads as follows: 'His Majesty's Theatre, St. John, N. B., under the management of Hopley & Co., proprietors. The theatre was burned by fire on the 15th of June, 1827, and was replaced by the 'Irish Friendly Society.' It was burned in the great fire of June 20, 1877, my company was giving a matinee performance during the conflagration."

"During these seasons, under Mr. LanerGAN's management, St. John had first-class stock companies and always a fine orchestra. Among his leaders was Napier, Lothian, the well known Boston conductor. His stock company was generally composed of the best actors and actresses, who were glad to have an engagement for ten or twelve weeks in St. John. At that time the regular season had closed in the American cities. Mr. LanerGAN had the pick of the members who wanted work enough to tide them over the dull season and they were glad to go to St. John at a salary just enough to cover expenses and where they could enjoy St. John fog and the exhilarating breezes of Fundy Bay, so LanerGAN was able to have a fine stock company. Thus he had L. P. Roys, Shirley France, Louis Aldrich, Walter Lennox, Moses Fiske, Rachael Noah, Rachael Johnston, Mr. and Mrs. Claude Hamilton, with such stars as Concock, Wyeman Marshall, Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Daverport and many others equally brilliant. Among the celebrities who played in the pleasant evenings and saw some of the best actors and actresses, English and American, in their favorite characters. In 1807, with Bulwer's comedy of "Money," Mr. LanerGAN playing Alfred Evelyn, Mr. LanerGAN, Clara Douglas and Mrs. Buxton, Graves, the Lyceum was the chief theatre of the maritime provinces and during its existence all the leading stars played there. In later years Eugene MacDowall had a fine company touring the large cities of New Brunswick, Nova Scotia and Quebec, with Julia Arthur, Mary Hampton, Percy Haxwell, Thomas Wise, George Fawcett and T. D. Frawley as principals, supporting visiting stars. Ernest Sterner was also a member of the company. He was drowned off the island of Barbadoes while trying to save the life of one of the ladies of the company. The Lyceum was run regularly every summer until 1876 when it was purchased by the "Irish Friendly Society." It was burned in the great fire of June 20, 1877, my company was giving a matinee performance during the conflagration.

"The Academy of Music was erected in 1872 by a joint stock company and cost about $70,000. Its seating capacity was about 1,200 and was opened in the summer of 1872 with Nannery and MacDowell as managers, Neil Warner, leading in the drama was so high in St. John, and the stories of actors and actresses of those old days still regulate by comparison the criticisms of the actors of today.

"The Times will have more to say later in reference to Mr. Leavitt's most valuable book, the local chapter is given at length and should be read with keen interest. It is from the well stored memory of the author as well as from a contribution written for Mr. Leavitt's book by Francis McCafferty of St. John, himself a prominent figure in the theatrical life of a former generation, and one whose memory, too, is a storehouse of St. John's stage events of that day, and of the great actors and actresses who came here to entertain the people.

Gorgeous Pearls From Vincent Astor To Bride

Family Decline to Give Any List or Description—Colonel Astor's Widow Invited to Wedding But Not Present

Staatsburg, N. Y., April 30.—William Vincent Astor, son of the late Col. John Jacob Astor, and Miss Helen Dinsmore Huntington, whom he has known since childhood, were married here a little afternoon today in the big paneled library of Hopland House, home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert P. Huntington.

Fewer than fifty persons witnessed the ceremony, and of these were the superintendents from the Astor, the Huntington and the Dinsmore estates, respectively.

The other guests were relatives and close friends of the families. Plans had been made for an elaborate church wedding, but Mr. Astor's recent illness, which threatened pneumonia, made necessary the abandonment of these plans.

Eighteen hundred wedding announcements were sent out after today's ceremony, but the small company that witnessed it had been invited by informal notes.

A fine rain was falling when the few guests from New York city arrived at the Huntington estate. Guards had been posted at the entrances, and only those whose credentials were unquestioned were admitted.

Green foliage and spring flowers from the Huntington conservatories and from New York hung everywhere throughout the rooms of Hopland House. Buried in blossoms, with here and there a touch of green, was the marble mantel-piece in the library before which the couple stood.

Third Bride to Wear Lace Veil

Miss Huntington entered the room with her father. At her throat gleamed a gorgeous necklace of pearls, the gift of the bridegroom. Her bridal gown was of white tulle with a train of white satin. Her lace veil had been worn by her grandmother, Mrs. Dinsmore, and by her mother before her.

Hermann Oelrichs of New York was the best man. Miss Alice Huntington, sister of the bride, acted as maid of honor, and the little Misses Muriel Astor and Margaret Doves were flower girls.

The two children were prettily garbed in corn-colored chiffon and dotted net with blue sashes. Small flowers wreathed their heads, and each carried an old-fashioned bouquet. Mrs. Robert Huntington, the bride's mother, wore blue tulle and chiffon.

A screened orchestra of twenty pieces played the "Lohengrin" wedding march, and Rev. Charles H. Duncan, rector of St. Margaret's church, Staatsburg, read the Episcopal marriage service. When the pair had knelt before him and had risen man and wife, the wedding party assembled in the "long room" adjoining the library where a wedding breakfast was served.

Mrs. Ava Willing Astor, mother of the bridegroom, was among the wedding guests. The young widow of Colonel Astor, although invited, was not present. She is in the south.

Among others present were Robert Huntington, the bride's brother, who is home from St. Paul's School at Concord; Miss Lillian B. Dinsmore, the bride's grandmother; Mr. and Mrs. William B. Dinsmore, Jr., the bride's aunt and uncle, with their two children; Miss Madeline Dinsmore, another aunt; Mrs. Charles B. Duncan, wife of the rector, who performed the ceremony; Nicholas Biddle, one of the executors of the Astor estate; William A. Dobby, secretary of the estate; Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Rogers and Mr. and Mrs. Tracy Doves, neighbors and old friends, whose little daughter was a flower girl.

Gifts Placed in Vault.

Vincent Astor is twenty-two years old; the bride is twenty. She is tall and blonde. He, too, is tall. Both are lovers of the out of doors, and his health permits they probably will take an extended honeymoon voyage on his yacht, the Noma.

Until a week ago, the young heir to the vast Astor estate was confined to his room in the Huntington residence. While visiting his fiancée a month ago, he became seriously ill with an abscess on the lungs, and for a time there was talk of postponing the wedding.

Yet, although his physicians permitted him to go out doors for the first time only four days ago, young Astor insisted that there should be no delay.

It is understood that Mr. and Mrs. Astor will remain at their country home, Fendcliffe, at Rhinebeck, not far from the Huntington place, for at least a month. At the end of that time they will return to the city, where Mr. Astor's health will permit them to have the delayed yachting cruise and to tour Europe with a visit in England at the home of his mother, Mrs. Ava Willing Astor.

A holiday was declared at both the Huntington and Astor estates today in honor of the wedding. For the disappointed servants who did not see the ceremony a special luncheon was served.

The Huntington family declined to give out any list or description of the many and handsome presents received by the bride. Most of these were taken immediately to safe deposit vaults in a tough-keep bank.

If for no other reason, the numerous valuable presents for the bride—the great pearl necklace from Vincent Astor himself, and the jewels which had arrived too late for dispatch to the safe deposit vault in Poughkeepsie that already holds many of the rich gifts sent to Miss Huntington—made a guard over the house and grounds imperative.

IF KIDNEYS AND BLADDER BOTHER

Take Salts to Flush Kidneys and Neutralize Irritating Acids

Kidney and Bladder weakness result from an acid, says a noted authority. The kidneys filter this acid from the blood and pass it on to the bladder, where it often remains to irritate and inflame, causing a burning, scalding sensation, or setting up an irritation at the neck of the bladder, obliging you to seek relief two or three times during the night. The sufferer is in constant dread, the water passes sometimes with a scalding sensation and is very profuse; again, there is difficulty in voiding it.

Bladder weakness, most folks call it because they can't control urination. While it is extremely annoying and sometimes very painful, this is really one of the most simple ailments to overcome. Get about four ounces of Jad Salts from your pharmacist and take a tablespoonful in a glass of water before breakfast, continue this for two or three days. This will neutralize the acids in the urine so it no longer is a source of irritation to the bladder and urinary organs which then act normally again.

Jad Salts is inexpensive, harmless, and is made from the acid of grapes and lemon juice, combined with lithia, and is used by thousands of folks who are subject to urinary disorders caused by uric acid irritation. Jad Salts is especially good for kidneys and causes no side effects whatever.

Here you have a pleasant, refreshing, light-water drink, which quickly relieves bladder trouble.

WORKMEN WHO NEVER STRIKE

Project of Profit-Sharing as a Remedy For Industrial Warfare In England

(London Tit-Bits)

Every serious-minded man must read with amusement the strike figures for 1911 and the first eight months of 1912 (the latest available). In the former year there were no fewer than 908 trade disputes, involving 961,960 workers, who lost 1,031,921 working days, while in the period mentioned of 1912 there were 801 disputes, involving 1,340,206 work-people, causing a total estimated loss of 2,208,400 working days, figures unprecedented in the records of the Board of Trade.

When and where is this state of labor unrest going to end? What is the remedy? These are the questions which men of all shades of opinion have been asking for some time past. And their suggestions are removed to the state of industrial chaos into which the country was thrown during the early months of 1912—while condition it is possible to be repeated—almost as numerous and varied as the real and imaginary grievances of employees.

Strike-Preventative Plan.

More than twenty years ago, however, that very astute and far-seeing man, the late Sir George Livesey, chairman of the Metropolitan Gas Company, of London, adopted a strike-preventative plan, which has proved highly successful, and has also been successfully carried out by other companies. In 1889 occurred the great dock strike, and that year the company was approached by the trade union officials with a view to a concession, but, in order to avert the danger of strikes in the future, Sir George introduced a special system of profit-sharing.

The scheme adopted by this gas company provides for the payment of a percentage of income on salaries or wages—one half in cash, and the other half being invested in the ordinary stock of the company—the percentage rising and falling proportionately with the price of gas. The object of the scheme, briefly, is to induce all officers and employees to take a real interest in the success of the firm. The rate of the bonus stock of the firm. The rate of the bonus stock has varied from 8 per cent. in 1892 to 9.4 per cent. in 1905-6-7, the total amount paid in the twenty-three years ending 1911 being £246,337.

Other Schemes.

In all, 5,656 of the company's employees hold between their ordinary stock of the company to the (nominal) amount of £301,460. In addition, the company holds on behalf of 8,594 of its employees a bonus fund, and other deposits to the total amount of £24,960. And the company have placed it on record that this profit-sharing scheme has proved a successful relation between employers and employees and led to an avoidance of strikes.

It is urged that in these days, when working men consider that, apart from their wages, they should share in the prosperity of the business which their labor helps to build up, a profit-sharing scheme is more generally adopted with great advantage to employers and employees. Some very interesting facts regarding other schemes are given in a report of trade union profit-sharing.

Thirty-two other gas companies have followed the example of the South Metropolitan Gas Company with very great success, while two notable profit-sharing schemes have been adopted by Messrs. Lever Brothers, the famous soap makers, Messrs. Armstrong, Whitworth, & Company.

At Port Sunlight.

Messrs. Lever Brothers, of Port Sunlight, have had a co-partnership scheme in operation for more than three years, in operation for more than three years, among those workers who have been employed five years, of partners each ten per cent. of the workers' annual wages. These certificates receive interest as though they were shares, but at a rate which is less than that of the ordinary shares of the company, and carrying a fixed interest of 4 per cent. In addition, a bonus is declared each year equal to half the difference between the fixed rate and the dividend payable on the shares of the company, the interest and bonus being added to depositors' accounts.

The keen interest which employees take in this scheme is illustrated by the fact that the total amount of the deposited certificates in 1911 was no less than £241,492.

After the South Metropolitan started their profit-sharing scheme Messrs. Clark, Nickolls, and Coombs, Ltd., of the Clarico Confectionery Works, started a somewhat similar scheme for their work people. The ordinary shareholders are paid 6 per cent. on their capital, the surplus profits being divided in equal proportions between the work people and the shareholders. In twenty-two years the work people have received the sum of £174,000. All employees who have worked one year participate in this bonus, and are paid in proportion to their wages and salaries. The bonus is paid in cash and there is no compulsion for employees to invest any part of it in the company's stock, but every encouragement is given to them to acquire shares, and their holding is considerable.

Steadily Increasing.

Messrs. William Thomson & Sons, of Huddersfield, and Messrs. J. T. and J. Taylor, of Batley, have had co-partnership schemes in operation for more than twenty years. In the latter firm out of 1,400 employees, 1,100 are shareholders, and up to the end of last year nearly £28,000 had been apportioned to the workers as their share of the profits.

One of the latest profit-sharing schemes is that instituted by the ship-building firm of Messrs. Furness, Withy, & Co. The ordinary shareholders become holders of special shares, called employees' shares, paying for such shares by agreeing to a deduction of 5 per cent from their earnings until the whole amount is paid. For the 5 per cent deduction thus invested the workman gets 5 per cent per annum as fixed interest, whether the company divides any surplus profits

A CARUSO STORY.

A little sense of humor is a dangerous thing if allowed practical play on the stage. Caruso possesses the quality in more than limited degree, and with back turned toward the audience has many a time convulsed his colleagues by mere facial expression. His natural good heartedness, however, a genuine good-

not. Interest at the rate of 5 per cent. is allowed on the shareholders' capital before any profits are declared, and after the payment of 5 per cent, and allowance made for depreciation and reserve surplus, profits are divided between the employees and the shareholders who possess individual holdings.

There are 133 profit-sharing schemes in private firms and companies in operation. These schemes involve 108,000 workpeople, and the general opinion of employers is that they produce excellent results in the direction both of developing a higher degree of efficiency on the part of employees, and of bringing about more harmonious relations between employers and employees.

In about three-fifths of the schemes a bonus is paid in cash, in others it is put into a provident fund, or partly paid in cash and partly put to the fund. But a more common plan is to retain all or part for investment in the capital of the firm.

Many profit-sharing schemes have failed, for various reasons, but sufficient success has been achieved to show, in the opinion of experts, that further development might provide a solution of the industrial problem of today.

heartedness as strong as any sense of mischief that may tempt him to bring the unexpected on an open scene, makes him more beloved than any man in opera today. An action, one of a thousand kind ones he has done, will show it. It was at Atlanta, the final performance of that season, now four years back, just prior to the Paris appearance of the Metropolitan Company, Caruso, on that particular night, was seated before his dressing table, on which was piled in five-hundred dollar bills his fee for the week's engagement. Behind him stood the wig man putting on his wig, for the presentation was in progress.

In his mirror, the tenor caught sight of the hair dresser's eyes fixed on the heap of notes. "What would you do if you had them?" the singer asked. "If I had those?" the man repeated. Then he added, longingly, "If I had only one of them I would take my wife and little boy to Paris with me. And I would be the happiest man on earth." "Take it," said Caruso, impulsively, selecting the newest bill of the lot and handing it to him. "I am glad to make somebody happy."

Apples cut in irregular pieces will cook more quickly in a pie than if sliced, for they do not pack closely as slices do, and so the hot air comes more easily in contact with the fruit, and cooking is facilitated.

RING

Big Purse. Manager Bettinson of the National Sporting Club of London, Eng., at a banquet to Snowy Baker there the other day, showed how he felt about the boxers getting such big purses. He said the National Club would never pay boxers money that was out of all proportion to their worth. The N. S. C. would never run "circus shows." They wanted to occupy the same position in boxing that the cricket association occupied in cricket.

Baker explained his stand in giving such big money to the scrappers by saying that his hand was forced by the public. In the case of promoters it was, after all, he declared, a question of the survival of the fittest.

The Guest That Tarried

The Dreamer Who Heard the Call of Manhood

BY SIR GILBERT PARKER

A soft rain was falling, but, seated on the stump of a maple which had furnished part of the late winter's firewood, the singer took no notice. His leather jacket, made for him by one whose eyes were not so bright as those of Rosleen of Inniskillen, had resisted many a heavier storm than this, and his face was turned to the south, whence the spring seemed to come.

ed of a woman standing beside him, and nodding toward the singer. "Fifteen years, doctor." "He's no relation?" "None. He's Irish and we're Irish, that's all."

The face of a man, a young, bearded, keen-eyed man, appeared at the window of the house behind him. It was the Young Doctor who had lately come to Askatoon.

"How did he come to plant himself on you?" "Well, you see, doctor, it was pouring wet, that day, fifteen years ago, and I'd just stepped in out of the rain."

"How many years, you say?" he asked.

"How old are you?" the Young Doctor asked curiously, but with his face turned toward the bedroom where a woman's voice was sobbing softly and a man's voice was speaking in gentle wedding tones.

"I'm thirty-one," she said with a toss of her head; and by that, the Young Doctor knew beyond peradventure that she loved the man outside, for she was forty-one if she was a day.

"What did you do for a living?" "You took the shillings!" "You were in the army?"

"The teeth are twenty-one," he answered gallantly.

"And the light in your face is that of a girl steppin' home along the road down by Trace—steppin' home from school. Faith, I hope your heart is as young for there's stiff work to your hand!"

"There's a dark road ahead, I know," she said. "But 'tis me own that I'll work for."

"Your father may get well, perhaps, but it will be slow, and he can't help himself much"—he nodded toward the other room—"but 'tis a kind man, and—"

"Well, he will make it as easy for you as he can; but she—your mother—can't make it easy, no matter how she tries. She can only move one arm, and even that, may go with the rest—but, there, we'll hope for the best. She has to be lifted often and often, and you can't do it alone. Besides, it's a night and day business. Is there no sister, or aunt, or cousin—?"

"There's no one at all, at all, of women folk. We were five—father and mother, the two boys, and meself. Terry, he's gone this fifteen years. Left us one day after a shindy—father'd been drinkin', an' he laid hands on Terry, and Terry flew off like a colt with the bars down. Ah, Lord, Lord, he was 'the pick of the poby, wild as he was. And cruel, too, he was in goin' for him and her"—a hand flung toward the bedroom door—"was never the same after Terry went."

"I know. Shure I know."

"I want to know what you mean to do, Doyle," the young doctor interrupted. Then he hastily drew a picture of the dark days ahead; of the misery and trouble and awful hardship, and the sickening burden which must fall upon the shoulders of Nora Brennan; of the killing expense, and only Shannon's four dollars a day to meet it.

"I'm going to help," said Doyle.

"What are you going to do?" "To nurse them—in there," he answered.

"You—nurse?" "Could I earn as much as two hospital nurses'd want pay for? What can I do—a peat-cutter and a soldier? But I can nurse."

"I do—nurse?" "I'm going to pay for the last fifteen years' bed and bread," he said.

"Lave it to me. Mrs. Brennan's glad to have me by her. She says it keeps her from frettin' too much about Terry."

"And I suppose Terry was a wastrel?" "Terry? Terry was a man, ivry inch of him. He was as good as you an' two of you. Wid a head—ah, shure he had a head!"

"His long, idle life lived in the open air, without excess of any kind had given him a store of energy and a reservoir of strength on which he now drew, steadily diminishing the supply. There was talk, of course, at Askatoon at first—ugly, unattracted talk; for there were days and days when Shannon was away with his sleigh or his wagons, and Nolan Doyle and Nora Brennan were alone in the house, save for the two bed-ridden people—and Another; and the talk became a scandal, which at least materialized in the definite proposal of tar-and-feathers for Nolan Doyle."

"Very well. Settle it your own way. But if you are going to nurse these old people—I warn you 'twill be a heavy task, a dismal and weary task—then listen to me, Nolan Doyle, and hearken hard to what I say, and take note of what to be done, and how it is to be done, and—"

"And it was so. As he said he would, Nolan Doyle laid himself out to pay for the bed and bread he had had over fifteen years."

All the time, day and night, the man, with the fine gentleness of a woman and his strong arms and coaxing voice, contested inch by inch the advance of disease and death, ceaselessly vigilant, automatically precise, concentrated, self-forgetful, comprehensive, thinking of everything, and doing all with a smile and a humorous word.

"It was then that the Young Doctor, who had a gift for acting at the right time—not by any means a rare thing in his race—went out upon the war-path. First he went to the Rev. Ebenezer Groom, the Methodist minister in whose 'parlor' much sanctimonious scandal had been brewed, and insisted that he should come out to 'the house of shame' and learn the truth."

"He came to the door of the shaded sick room at a moment when Nolan Doyle was holding the paralyzed woman in his arms like a child—and a very heavy child at that—and Nora was freshening the pillows. The pious sky-pilot saw the woman put gently back on her bed, whispering blessings on the head of 'Nolan' since he had, in the stial replies of the man-nurse, saw the face—how thin and worn it had become!—met the dark eyes with the soft slumbering fire, saw the girl on the other side of the bed with that look of single purpose which sick-bed watching, more than anything else, gives to the faces of those who fight death and decay for others, and into his lean soul there entered a new understanding of human nature, the first glimpse of a real revelation of humanity."

"In the other room Nolan Doyle said to the bewildered preacher: 'I've had letters—from some of your flock, I'm thinkin'—Here's wan of them—read it. It come this mornin'."

"The preacher read a letter of a dozen lines which brought the blood of shame to his face. He was not wholly a hypocrite; he had a good heart and an illused conscience."

"The Sunday following, having judiciously set the rumor flying that he would preach a special sermon, on a special subject of local importance, he found a congregation that filled the church to the doors; and when he stood up to each, it was so still that only the added innocently."

"Well, of all the blasted—" But Terry turned away to choke back his tears. A week later Nolan sat in the sun on the maple stump in front of the house singing to himself: "Did ye see her with her hand in mine the day that Clancy married?" "Ah, darlin' how we footed it—the grass it was so green! And when the neighbors wandered home, I was the guest that tarried."

"What's that you're singin' Nolan?" said Nora's voice behind him. "Oh, just a little anthem of the happiness that's comin' to us, Nora, dear. But he winked slyly to himself."

Scotland's Good Example The old Scottish legislation appears to have realized that brevity is the soul of good legislation. For instance, James I.'s parliament passed an act which said where there is hay with a candle, unless it be a lantern—which is probably the shortest statute ever passed. In fact, not small volume is enough to hold more than two centuries of Scottish legislation.

roaring of the fire in the huge stove could be heard—typical of the flame of the spirit, as he very obviously said, when he gave out his text, which was "Judge not, that ye be not judged."

The sermon was very fully reported in the local papers, and the story he had told was of such an unusual nature that the sensational parts of it were copied in cities on the Mississippi and ports in the Bay of Fundy.

Another spring came, and then the early summer—the first of June; and then the end fell suddenly. There came to the door of the house of Brennan one bright morning a man bearded and big and boyant. He had in his hands a canvas bag, such as postmen or fishermen use, and in his eyes was a light of humor and eagerness and anxiety all in one. He knocked at the lintel of the open door and entered. As he did so a figure came slowly from the other room, bent and feeble and gray-haired. At sight of the bearded stranger the old man stood still for an instant, bewildered and troubled, and then with a moan of joy he stumbled forward.

"Terry—Terry, my own boy!" he cried and was caught in the strong arms.

The old man convulsively clutched the man's hands and kissed his cheek. "Shure, God wouldn't let me die till I'd seen you once again. Now let Thy servant depart in peace, according to Thy Word," he added. Then, after an instant, he said: "Let me break it to her—to your mother, Terry. Oh, God, he prayed! 'Tis just in time you've come, for you'll set things right—Terry, Terry."

But the quick cars of love had heard the cars that had listened so long had grown acute beyond all usual measure. They heard the voice of the old woman calling from the bedroom. "Terry, my own son—oh, my own son!"

A moment later her arms were round him, drawing him close—her arms were round him, for thus much had Nora and Nolan done.

"There was a piece in a newspaper—I got it down in New Orleans," he said at last. "Lifted out of a sermon preached at Askatoon it was, and I came as quick as I could. I ought to have come before, but—"

He paused, for some one was entering the room—the ghost of a man, as frail and worn as one that has come back from the desert, its famine and its thirst. "Oh, 'tis you—'tis you—and in good time!" he said feebly, and in a voice husky with weakness. "You can take my place Terry, for I'm not feelin' so well as I might; but 'twill be all right in a day or two if you'll take the shift. Turn and turn'll do it."

"Yes, 'twill be all right now. Nolan," he said with a voice blurred. "She'll need good care yet, Nolan," said; "they'll both need watchin', but the worst is over, and they're steppin' out into the sun—out into the sun."

"But I've earned me bed and bread this past year and more. Shure, I can say that, Terry. 'Tis all I can say, I owe them for the rest."

"Owe them—God's love, owe them! I tell you what, man, I owe you two lives as dear to me as my own, and I mean to pay you for them, one way or another."

"How d'ye mean to be doin' that?" "Well, first, I'll be settin' you up in any business that you like—when you're filled out again, and look like a man and not a disembodied spirit."

"Nora's a fine woman—oh, the finest and finest! To think that I've come into such a family! Put yere hand behind yere ear, Terry, and hear the news I've for ye. Nora's to be marryin' of me when when we can lay hands on a priest—if ye think I'm not too old for her," he added innocently.
