Steamer Mariposa on Fire.

LIVERPOOL, Jan. 9.—Fire was discovered in the hold of the steamer Mariposa, which sailed from New Orleans on Dec. 18 with a cargo of cotton and wheat. The hatches were battened down and steam was injected. The Mariposa has aboard 1,800 bales of cotton and 6,000 bushels of wheat.

The Porte and the O. O. M.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—The Standard says that Great Britain has replied to the Porte's appeal to disavow Mr. Gladstone's birthday speech on Armenia by directing attention to the fact that Mr. Gladstone is simply a member of Parliament and cannot be prevented from uttering his personal views.

A $5,000 Dog.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—It is reported that one of the Russian Grand Dukes is about to bring suit against Col. North, the nitrate king. The suit grows out of the sale by Col. North of the famous greyhound, Simenian, brother of Fulerton, for £1,000, the action arising especially from a dispute on the part of the plaintiff as to the correctness of defendant's warranty of the animal's soundness.

Arms for Armenians Seized.

MILAN, Jan. 9.—The Secolo prints this dispatch under a Constantinople date: Two Turkish vessels cruising on the coast of Asia Minor recently seized a vessel flying the American flag. However, the vessel is reported to be an English one, dispatched by the Armenian committee in London with 10,000 rifles. These were forfeited, and the captain and crew put under arrest.

Anarchist Outrage in London.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—The authorities are greatly exercised over an Anarchist outrage of an entirely new character which has just come to their notice. An important official of the French police in London on a police mission has been seized by Anarchists, who carried him off bodily to one of their haunts, where by threats, they forced him to reveal state secrets as he possessed. The developments of the affair are expected to involve diplomatic correspondence.

The Sultan Enraged.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—The Standard's correspondent in Constantinople says, in a dispatch concerning the Armenian atrocities: "Mr. Gladstone's speech of Dec. 29 has caused a profound sensation in the Yildiz Kiosk. The Sultan would not await the arrival of the English papers, but ordered Rustem Pasha, the ambassador in London, to wire the full text. The Sultan is furious, and his waning Angliophobia has been suddenly intensified."

Canadian Trade with Great Britain.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—According to the Board of Trade returns for 1894, British imports from Canada increased during the year £489,000, or nearly 5 per cent as compared with 1893. The increases include sheep, £280,000; cheese, £100,000; eggs, £17,000; fish, £290,000; and wood, £255,000. The decreases include butter, £100,000; wheat, £270,000; and metals, £4,000. Exports from Great Britain to Canada during the same period compared with 1893 declined £1,300,000, or nearly 28 per cent.

The Victoria Cabinet Crisis.

MELBOURNE, Jan. 9.—The defeat in the Assembly yesterday of the Government's proposal to reduce the salaries of members and officials was due to the efforts of the labor members, who have of late been active in their opposition to the suggestions that their annual salaries be reduced to £200. The Laborists have also sought lately to defeat the Government, and in consequence of their attitude Premier Turner will tender his resignation.

A Meeting of the Cabinet was held to-day.

The majority of Ministers were opposed to the resignation of Premier Turner, but the latter insisted upon retiring, and the council was adjourned until tomorrow. In the meantime Mr. Turner will hold an interview with Lord Hopesden.

A Long Visit.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—The repeated postponements of the return of the Princess of Wales from Russia have caused much curiosity and comment in London society. Three times the Princess's journey has been on the point of starting to escort the Princess home, but each time his orders have been countermanded at the last moment. For the fourth time a telegram has been received from the Princess deferring her journey for another three weeks, but Col. Clark has, nevertheless, been directed to go to St. Petersburg and await her return. Since the death of the Duke of Clarence the Princess has evinced a desire to spend as little time as possible in England, and has prolonged her various visits abroad to such an extent as to upset seriously the court plans.

Why He Became a Liberal.

LONDON, Jan. 8.—The Earl of Buckingham, who recently announced in a speech to his tenants, his withdrawal from the Conservative party and his future adhesion to the principles of the Liberal party, has made a statement of his reasons for the step taken. His Lordship says he has become a Liberal because he believes the reform of the House of Lords is the greatest question of the day. Believing this and having given the matter most careful consideration, he desired to follow the lead of Lord Rosebery. He believed there ought to be a second chamber, but the one now in existence (the House of Lords) must undergo a most sweeping and radical reform. The Earl of Buckinghamshire, who is himself a member of the House of Lords, is a descendant of the famous John Hampden.

Poets in a Flutter Again.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—All the poets of the United Kingdom are again agitated over the disposition of the laureate question. A correspondent of the Times predicts terrible things if the vacancy caused by the death of Lord Tennyson is not speedily filled. He solemnly declares that "as long as the vacancy is allowed to exist there must be, as there is at this moment, an amount of acrimony, of virulence, of actual venom imported into notices of poetry by hostile writers unequalled in the literary history of the last two centuries." Whether this is an accurate statement of the present condition or not, it is certain that there is a vast amount of stuff called poetry being printed, and that divers and sundry critics have scored some of the writers unmercifully. But acrimony and venom among English scribblers does not cease when the laureatehip is filled. Tennyson himself was the victim of one piece of acrimonious, venomous and virulent criticism, and Byron showed that he could outscold the critics who attacked his juvenile verse. Lord Rosebery is to be asked to make an early appointment, so as to put a stop to the dangerous state of affairs arising from the vacant laureatehip. There is a shrewd suspicion that the originator of the appeal is a poet himself.

The Czar's Latest Trouble.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—Reports from St. Petersburg indicate that the Czar and his bride, between whom and the British court several gratulatory messages were exchanged during the past week, were also enjoying themselves this festive season. But it is hinted that there were shadows on the imperial brow. These did not spring from the newly assumed cares of State, nor were they caused by dread of future troubles. The young man simply had an attack of heartache. He was thinking of La Labruska, the love of his bachelor days, who, grief-stricken by his marriage, had shot herself at Odessa.

Commenting on this ugly episode, a crusade journal says: "It is a sad beginning for the Czar's reign. For although today he may love the Empress, as we feel she entirely deserves to be loved, through his father's autocratic will he had to sever his connection with a young woman, who had loved not wisely, but too well. It is clear that the dancer gave her young heart to the Czarowitz without any calculation, for she neither insisted upon being married, as most young girls do, nor accepted the money given her, desiring only her lover. We should think that the lady who would feel the most for this tragic end would be the present Empress herself."

Gullibility of London Servant Girls.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—Life in London is supposed to have a sharpening effect on the faculties and to make one shrewd in dealing with the world. So far as servant girls are concerned, however, the contrary seems to be the case. Nowhere else is the "domestic" so gullible or so prone to be deceived. Her main aim seems to be to hoard up her wages with a view to matrimony. Wedded life has a wonderful charm to her, and she is prepared to get married on the slightest provocation. If male acquaintances are coarse she allows herself to be "mashed" on the streets or in the parks. She places the most implicit confidence in friendships formed in this way. Scores of places can be quoted where good-looking young women have made friends with a man one day, married him the next, entering him with their savings on a third, and been deceived on the fourth. Warnings do no good. Their eagerness to marry destroys every bit of common sense, and they rush headlong to ruin.

Another instance of this foolishness came to light this week. A fine looking housemaid was accosted on the street by a smart appearing young man. She was flattered by his attention and they took a long walk together. The young man was an ardent wooer, for before they separated he had promised to marry her. Next morning they met by appointment in the Strand.

They visited several public houses and toasted their future happiness. Presently the young man left her to get a marriage license. He returned with some kind of a document and told her he had paid $50 for it. Of course she was delighted with this part of his honorable intent, and readily accepted a suggestion to draw her savings, about $40, from the Postoffice

Savings Bank. This was done, they had some 'arf and 'arf, and her admirer took her purse and pocketed its contents, leaving the silly young woman with only a few shillings. He then put her into a cab and told her to be at hand at a certain place next morning, so that the ceremony might take place. The housemaid was at the trying place half an hour before the appointed time, but after waiting several hours she came to the sad conclusion that she had been duped. The young man was arrested a day or two afterwards, and even then the young woman was prepared to marry him. He was already married and had no desire to be prosecuted for bigamy.

On being asked why she trusted her money to his keeping, the disappointed housemaid said: "What else could a woman do with a man who was going to marry her?"

Armenian Outrages—A Flat Denial.

LONDON, Jan. 9.—The Morning Post will print tomorrow a long interview with the Spanish traveler named Ximenez, who has just returned from a geographical mission through Mesopotamia and Kurdistan. He says: "I was in Armenia from March to November and happened to be in Bitlis during the disturbances in the Sassoun district. It is absolutely false that women and children were outraged and tormented by Turkish troops. The whole thing was grossly exaggerated from an entirely local disturbance, locally suppressed, the troops arriving too late to share in the repression, beyond the capture of the supposed instigator. He was a liberated convict named Bohasian, alias Mourah, formerly a pupil in the American Methodist mission school. Ximenez accompanies Zekki Pasha, who, on arriving at Mosul, immediately liberated numbers of Armenians and adopted a policy of conciliation throughout. Ximenez said that the Armenian question hardly existed in Armenia. The Armenians of the Tassoun district he describes as the least educated and intelligent of those in Turkey and very different from their fellows in Van and Bitlis. He thinks they are little better than Kurds. The disturbances from quarrels and raids of Kurds and Armenians, he says, developed until the Armenians mustered a force of 3,000 intent either upon reprisals on the Kurds or revolution. The troops twice encountered this force on Aug. 27, killing 300 of them in an open fight.

The editor of the Post describes Ximenez as a distinguished Spaniard of high scientific attainments and a Fellow of the Royal Geographical Society of England. He accepts the above statement as true, and denounces Mr. Gladstone and the other supporters of what he calls "the political plotters."

SAVED IN THE SAFE.

The Toronto Lithographing Company's Papers Intact—Condition of the Injured Firemen.

TORONTO, Jan. 9.—This morning the safe of the Toronto Lithographing Company was dug out, opened and all the papers found intact.

The Globe cashier's safe was also discovered, but the contents are said to be damaged by water.

Chief Ardagh has almost fully recovered from the effects of his fall, although his nerves are still shaky.

The other men, Smedley Foster, Sanders and Perry, are progressing nicely and will all recover, although months will elapse before Foster and Sanders go back.

KILLED BY A TACK.

Boys' Frank That Led to an Untimely Death.

BANGOR, Mich., Jan. 9.—Jimmie Swoop died from the results of a brass-headed tack which was accidentally swallowed and lodged in the right lung. The accident occurred last March, when a boyish freak pulled the tack from the cushions of the church during Sunday school and swallowed it while laughing.

Strong and healthy, a worrying cough and growing weakness troubled him during the summer. The cause was unsuspected. Two months ago he was confined to his bed and pronounced incurable, and he literally starved to death from inability to assimilate food.

WORK AND WAGES.

C. P. R. Employees on the Anxious Seat—Reduction Rumors Revived.

TORONTO, Jan. 9.—Rumors of reduction in the wages and staff of the C. P. R. are again current in the city today. "The employees in the works will be reduced about 30 per cent," said a Toronto railway official. Rumors of this kind are not new. It is stated that a meeting was held in the city today, when the various departments were closely looked into, and every man that can possibly be done without will be laid off.

The report created considerable excitement among the employees at Toronto, and final results are awaited with eagerness.

AN UNWELCOME VISITOR.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—The leading physicians of the Board of Health admit that an epidemic of grip is raging in the city. Hundreds of people in Jersey City and Hoboken are down with the grip. District Attorney Fellows is very ill of the grip.

BURNED OUT.

LINDSAY, Ont., Jan. 9.—This morning about 7 o'clock fire was discovered in the large dry goods and tailoring establishment of E. E. W. McGaffey. The stock was valued at $33,000, and was very much damaged. The building, owned by the Dominion Bank, is damaged to the extent of $12,000.

SIXTEEN AND NINETY-EIGHT.

The Strange Story of a Young Girl from Toronto.

DETROIT, Jan. 8.—A pretty 16-year-old girl came into the office of the poor commission yesterday afternoon and asked assistance. She told a remarkable story, if it be true—and she seemed not to have deception in her make up.

She said her home was in Toronto, and that she was married to a 98-year-old man. Soon after she had married, her brother had brought her to Detroit, she said, to get her away from her eccentrician "hubby." She and her brother lived at Patrick Mallory's hotel, 13 Brush street, for a short time, and then he went away and left her alone. Her money had quickly given out and she had been obliged to apply to the poor commission for help.

Her maiden name, she said, was Gertrude Robins and the name of her husband Kidd. The young wife was given a ticket to Toronto to return to her aged husband.

Suicide of a Young Woman at Ottawa.

OTTAWA, Jan. 9.—Miss Mary Ann Shea, residing with her brother on Cathcart street, this city, committed suicide by shooting herself in the temple with a revolver today. She was 25 years of age. The cause of the rash act had not been made known at the time of her death.

Quick Work.

WINDSOR, Jan. 9.—The Windsor police did a quick piece of work yesterday. Within an hour after they had received notice from Paris, Ont., that Judson Froome and Frank Hall were wanted they had both men locked up. Before they were taken to Paris by Officer Green it was discovered they had traded a $30 overcoat to a Windsor second hand man for another coat and $2 to boot. Chief Wills has the good coat and awaits a claimant.

DORA HALE DIVORCED

From Her Sanguinary Spouse—Strange Story of a Forced Marriage.

CHICAGO, Jan. 9.—Dora F. Hale, a successful applicant for a decree of divorce, from Alexander Frank Hale, before Judge Smith today related a remarkable story of forced marriage while she was engaged to wed another.

Dora lived with her father, Wm. Mueller, in the suburb of Harlem, in March, 1894, when she was first accosted by her murderously inclined husband, who was conductor of an electric car running to the suburbs. He followed her to the store where she worked, and dogged her footsteps when returning home. She turned to see who was following her, when he aimed a revolver at his victim and fired. The bullet struck the girl's dress, just missing her body.

"He ran up to me after firing," said the witness, "and when he saw me I was he was so surprised. He said he had tried to kill me, thinking he was following my sister. He had asked my sister to marry him and when she refused he had threatened to kill her."

Before Hale would allow the frightened girl to go home he forced her to swear she would become his wife. Her plea of betrothal to the man of her choice only made him more furious, and to escape being killed on the spot she promised. She begged for her release from the promise at various times, but his only response was a threat to kill her if she said a word to any one. They were married clandestinely the following June. The bride was prevented from protesting to the minister because Hale had a revolver in his pocket for instant use. He took her to his parents, tried to poison and burned her body with acid.

THEIR WORK IS DONE.

Final Meeting of Number Three Committee for 1894.

Lack of Fire Alarm Boxes—The Underwriters' Complaint—Other Business and an Oyster Supper.

Four of the victorious candidates in the municipal election were present at the final meeting of No. 3 committee held in the City Hall last night. They were Ald. Parnell (chairman), Wm. Heaman, John Nutkins, and Stephen O'Meara. Ald. Heaman, another victor, was absent owing to other business, and Ald. Scarrow was confined to his home through illness. However, when the members were making a few parting remarks they did not forget to mention him and wish him a speedy recovery. Every particle of business which could possibly be cleared from the blotter was transacted, leaving the incoming committee almost a clean sheet to start with. The long correspondence of Mr. R. McLean, secretary of the Canadian Fire Underwriters' Association, relative to the deficiencies in the London fire fighting appliances was read. Mr. McLean named several changes which would have to be made to bring London's fire standard into "A" class.

"Is that the Undertakers' or Underwriters' Association?" asked Ald. O'Meara. "I think we should bury that communication and the other three on the same question. Why, I think it is a piece of impudence for them to talk like that. We are paying more insurance now than before we got the waterworks at all."

"That is about true," said Ald. John Heaman. The correspondence was not buried, but was laid over for the new committee to wrestle with.

Chief Roe's report on the condition of the fire alarm system—a summary of which has already appeared in the ADVERTISER—was again read. Ald. O'Meara then tackled the proposition to place uniform fireboxes throughout the city. It was not necessary, as the policeman could easily be drilled into the way of sending in alarms from every kind of box. Then Ald. O'Meara spoke of the great lack of alarm boxes in several parts of the city. He instanced the recent fire in the North End, and moved that a box be placed at the corner of Waterloo and Victoria streets.

"It is no ward-grabbing scheme," he said, "because that locality is not in my ward."

The motion was withdrawn, and Chief Roe was ordered to present a report showing where additional boxes should be placed.

Mr. John Labatt asked that the market be retained as at present. The letter was accordingly laid over.

Inspector Bell reported that the total income collections for the year were $2,170. This was an increase of $89 over 1893.

John Law's communications re the public swimming baths were referred to next year's committee. "They had better be taken up early in the spring, and not held over till the summer is almost past, as they were this year," said Ald. Wm. Heaman.

The tenders for a water-heating apparatus for No. 3 fire station were received, but not considered. A. J. Greenaway's letter regarding repairs to the fire system, and the question of equalizing the market rents were both laid over.

A large batch of accounts were passed, but one from Glasgow Bros. for repairs to the fire alarm clock was referred to the chairman. The work, it was stated, had been given to Simpson & Murray, and the aldermen were puzzled to know how another firm had done it. The circumstances will be learned.

Secretary Bell presented a report stating that 22 meetings had been held in the year. The Ald. Parnell attended 27, Wm. Heaman 29, John Heaman 28, Stephen O'Meara 26, John Nutkins 24, M. Scarrow 23 and Mayor Eassay 17.

That was the finishing touch to the year's business, and Ald. Wm. Heaman spoke of the harmonious work in which the members had worked. He congratulated the chairman on his able management, and moved him a vote of thanks.

Ald. O'Meara seconded, and spoke in the same strain. Ald. Parnell, in responding, referred to the great pleasure it had given him to preside at the committee's sessions. He also reviewed the business transacted, and concluded with a feeling mention of Ald. Scarrow, who, he hoped, would soon fully recover from his severe illness.

Ald. Parnell then invited the aldermen and officials present to an oyster supper at Boomer's.

FREEMAN'S CASE.

One Particularly Interesting to Women As It Deals With Their Troubles.

LEAMINGTON, Jan. 7.—It has been a cause of wonder to many people why women will neglect the first symptoms, and continue to suffer from ill health, and from debility, when the means of relief can be so readily obtained. Before a cure can be effected the work of the kidneys must be renewed, the blood cleansed of poisonous materials, and the ligaments and muscles strengthened and invigorated. The history of the case of Miss Nettie Freeman, of this village, whose life was saved by Dodd's Kidney Pills, has had one beneficial effect in that it has aroused scores of other women in this locality from the false notion that they were manifesting and as a result the sale of Dodd's Kidney Pills have been enormous, and the resultant good commensurate therewith.

FORGIVEN BY HER FATHER.

A pathetic scene occurred in the Yorkville court room yesterday, when Ann Anicka, of No. 131 Harris street, Jersey City, accompanied by her father, Josef Anicka, appeared against Katie Anicka, aged 19, a beautiful and stylishly-dressed girl. Some time ago that Katie had left her home about three months ago. He had spent much time and money in the search, but failed to find his wayward daughter until Saturday, when he discovered her in a boarding-house at 144 east Twenty-second street and caused her arrest.

"Please, take me away," pleaded Katie, with streaming eyes, as she clasped her arms about her father's neck. The old man shook his head and pushed her away. Then Katie dropped on her knees before the judge's bench, and clasping her arms about her father's legs, wept aloud.

"Oh, papa, papa," she wailed, "don't send me away; I'll be a good girl and won't do wrong again." A policeman had to drag the girl into an adjoining room, where she continued to plead till the old man relented and forgave her. Then Justice Denon sent them all home.—[New York Tribune.]

HER ROYAL HIGHNESS, WOMAN.

The Fair Sex Discussed by a Famous Frenchman.

Max O'Reil Lectures Brilliantly to a Crowded House.

The world renowned raconteur, gave a most successful lecture entitled "Her Royal Highness, Woman," in the Opera House last night. The large audience, which included many of London's "shining lights" was very appreciative, and Mr. Paul Blouet met with a hearty reception. His style is unique, and one which could never tire his listeners, and from the highest and cleverest witticisms he descends to the most earnest and touching themes. The following are some of the most fetching and clever of the lecturer's remarks:

"Eve goes down on her knees to Adam, confessing her guilt, and then they both kneel down together, and the first story of real love is told."

"The French, who worship grace and beauty, give to women what no other nation does. Woman is their fixed ideal, for we consider woman greatly superior to ourselves—not that they are—but it is an ideal."

"Emerson said: 'England produced the finest and ugliest women.' This is true, and when she is pretty she is incomparable when ugly, ugly!"

"I am not going to discuss tonight women of the 'Upper Ten,' for they are all alike the world over. For example, she who is the new high society handshakes one finds the new high society handshakes one finds the natives only a few years ago were in the way of dress, well—(pause)—a smile, this fashionable handshakes exists, and the fashionable set will be recognized at once by it."

"The politics of matrimony is a science unknown to French women. They lead the men just as they please, but without letting their power be felt. What about the new woman? She tries to lead men and lets them know it. She will fall altogether."

"When the French woman marries, she gains her liberty, the English woman loses it, just as the American retains it."

"A little piece of advice I would venture to give any young man here intending to marry. If you should have to choose between living with your mother-in-law or shooting yourself, don't hesitate a moment, shoot her."

"A French woman never wears her hair in the same way longer than a fortnight at a time (the best dishes may sometimes become insipid if they are always seasoned with the same sauce). She knows on what slender threads love sometimes hangs."

"I am sure that the Great Giv' did not intend landlord, tenant and laborer all three to exist. The French peasant does all herself. She combines the three. It is almost every liberty. She takes the others. She has her own reception day. If a young fellow takes her fancy—I do not say touches her heart—she is at perfect liberty to ask him to visit her on her next at-home day. They may even go to the theatre together, and afterwards enjoy a little tete-a-tete (Theaters and oysters are cheap in America). And if the young fellow orders the waiter to bring half a bottle of champagne, it is possible she will say, 'What are you going to have.' After supper she would be taken home, and she would let herself in with her latch key. American girls are being now taught in Paris, and I am glad of it, although, of course, I am personally out of the field just now."

"This independence in American girls is due to the fact that boys and girls from their earliest days are much together. They meet at high school and colleges and opposite to the feelings of English boys and girls, the American boy likes the girl, and the American girl holds the opposite sex somewhat in contempt, for she can afford to do so, being equally and indeed very often the cleverest."

"A few serious words in closing: Never profane the three words, 'I love you,' and perhaps ruin a girl thereby. Much of our leisure time might be spent in strengthening the bonds of friendship between the paths of girls and women. Some will say roses have thorns, but there are no thorns in woman, and she is the very rose of man's life."

Dyspepsia.

Mental disquietude and the constant anxieties, discouragement and feeling of unfortunateness among people who are pleasantly situated, and prosperous, is an indication of dyspepsia. If dyspepsia do not affect their own misfortunes they are often prone to dwell on the perplexities of others. This state of mind, while produced by derangements of the digestive organs, tends to increase their derangement. A positive cure for dyspepsia is Esch's Liver Laxative, which can be obtained from any druggist at 25 cents a box or 5 boxes for a dollar.

According to an English authority no fewer than 200,000 horses have been imported into England for hunting and harness purposes during the last twelve years.

SIX YEARS ASLEEP.

Even His Wife's Death Did Not Cause Michael to Awake.

ELMIRA, Jan. 9.—Michael Fernan has finished the sixth consecutive year of his sleep. His wife, who watched over him all this time, died last week, and her body has been taken to Scranton for burial. During the two days that Mrs. Fernan's body lay in state all possible means to arouse her husband were employed without avail.

Fernan and his wife emigrated from Ireland and went to Scranton a good many years ago, and in 1832 they removed to Factoryville, a small station on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, about 30 miles north of Scranton, at the mouth of the Factoryville tunnel. Fernan was employed as a watchman at the tunnel. One day in December, 1838, he completed his day's work, went home, ate his supper and went to bed. The next morning he could not be aroused, nor all that day. A physician was summoned, but he could do nothing. Fernan remained in a comatose state. In the course of a week a consultation of physicians was summoned, but they could do nothing more than prescribe a means of giving nourishment. In 1892 Fernan was brought to Elmira by his nephew, John Fernan, a fireman on the Delaware, Lackawanna and Western Railroad, residing in this city. The sleeper was taken to the home of John Kelly, at the corner of Day and Oak streets, and he has since resided there with his wife.

During the four and one-half years of his sleep at Factoryville, he opened his eyes only twice. He did not speak, merely looking about the room. Then he closed them and again went to sleep. In September last, while he was in this city, he awoke, and it was thought he was going to sleep. He looked about him, apparently recognized his wife, and then stared at the ceiling. His wife summoned the neighbors and they took Fernan out of bed and tried to make him walk, but the effort was unsuccessful. He was replaced in bed and in a few hours had again closed his eyes. Fernan is 55 years of age. He is apparently very weak, and the physicians predict his death before he awakes.

MARINE MATTERS.

The Steamer State of California Is All Right—Movements of Other Vessels.

HALIFAX, N. S., Jan. 9.—The steamer State of California, about which some anxiety has been felt, arrived here at 10 o'clock this morning and left for Moville and Glasgow at 11 o'clock. She had been detained outside for three days by a snow storm.

The steamer Alpha arrived this morning from Jamaica. She had 150 soldiers on board on their way home to England. The Allan mail steamship Corean, from Glasgow and Liverpool via St. Johns, Nfld., and Halifax, for Philadelphia, arrived at St. Johns at 10 a.m. and sailed at 11 a.m.

London, Jan. 9.—The Dover mail boat Empress, that was aground near Calais, has been floated.

SOUTHAMPTON, Jan. 9.—It is announced that in future the steamers of the Hamburg-American line will dock here instead of putting passengers ashore by tender.

ELECTRIC LINKS.

The Proposal to Connect Australia and Canada by Cable.

WASHINGTON, D. C., Jan. 9.—President Cleveland sent to Congress some correspondence on Hawaiian affairs, with recommendation that Congress grant the request of Hawaii for permission to lease to Great Britain one of the uninhabited islands belonging to Hawaii as a station for a submarine telegraph cable, to be laid between Canada to Australia, with a connection between the island leased and Honolulu. The President says: "Our communication with the country would be greatly improved by the laying of a cable without any apparent detriment to the United States."

PRETTY POKER PLAYERS.

Serious Society Scandal Reported From Ottawa.

MONTREAL, Jan. 9.—The Presse publishes a special dispatch from Ottawa exposing a fashionable gambling club, composed of men and women, and alleged to be in full sway at Sandy Hill. The dispatch says that Montreal is represented there by a lady well known in high life, and St. John, N. B., has also its representative. It adds that the stakes are large, and many husbands have reason to regret that they introduced their wives into that Canadian Monte Carlo, for it is stated that one of them, who recently met with bad luck, gave a mortgage on her husband's splendid residence in order to cover her losses. Whiskey mixed with water is said to be a favorite method used to keep up the spirits of the players, and the influence is reported to be far from homeopathic. Efforts are being made, it is stated, to hush up the whole affair, but fears are entertained that some losers will divulge the secret, and thus cause a great scandal.

SOLICITING A BRIBE.

A Serious Charge and Important Evidence in Ex-Ald. Stewart's Case.

TORONTO, Jan. 9.—The case of Ex-Ald. Stewart, charged with soliciting a bribe, came up this morning in the police court. The most important evidence was that of J. J. Wright, of the Toronto Electric Light Company. He stated that Stewart told him he could have the influence in the electric light contracts of four aldermen, namely Gowenlock, Bailey, Murray and Hewitt on payment of $15,000. The case was adjourned until Friday.

"My six-year-old daughter, Bella, was afflicted with eczema for 24 months, the principal seat of eruption being behind her ears. I tried almost every remedy I saw advertised, bought numerous medicine bottles and soaps, and took the child to medical specialists in skin diseases, but without result. Finally, a week ago, I purchased a tin of Dr. Chase's Ointment, and the first application showed the curative effect of the Remedy. We have used only one-sixth of the box, but the change is very marked; the eruption has all disappeared, and I can confidently say my child is cured." London, Thursday, Jan. 10.

A number of prominent medical men of this Province concur in the opinion that the average height of the Canadian woman is increasing. The men are not growing taller.

Election results in London in recent years appear to afford small comfort to our contemporary the Free Press. A month or two ago it was disgusted with the outcome of an election in which only men participated. Now it seems to be much put about over the results of an election in which both men and women voted. Is there no way of voting and securing election results that will satisfy the Free Press?

During 1894 23 members of the British House of Lords died, sixteen of them being 70 or over, and only two members of the Commons. It is not the work that they do that kills the Lords, but old age. The Lords, as at present constituted, spend the most part of their time devising means to thwart the will of the people as expressed by the House of Commons. No wonder that so strong a Conservative hitherto as the Earl of Buckingham should resolve to join the Liberals rank that he might be the better able to aid Lord Rosebery, also a British peer, in effecting a radical reform of the privileged chamber.

If we only had good sleighing all over Canada business would improve. It can stand a good deal of improvement, and we would all rejoice if there was plenty of work and good returns for everyone. But no permanent benefit can be looked for by the workers till we have a change at Ottawa. Far too much money has been taken from the pockets of the people to be spent on favorites and on unprofitable and corrupt jobs. We are often asked, Where does all the earnings of the people go? Here are a few significant figures that prove why times have been hard. Last year the Dominion Government increased the debt of Canada by $8,000,000 and increased the expenditure by $770,973 over that of 1893, while it charged up a deficit of $1,210,322. How much better would the people have been if the money had been left in their pockets, to be spent in buying the products of our city and rural industries!

An Intrepid Woman

Her Travels in This District Sixty Years Ago.

Romantic Visit to Famous Col. Talbot.

His Extraordinary Career and Style of Life.

The Struggles of Early Settlers in Delaware.

How a High Tax Policy in Great Britain Caused Starvation Among Her Workers—When Letters Were Left in the Post Office Because Settlers Could Not Find Money to Pay the Postage—Horror of the Cholera.

A week or two ago the ADVERTISER gave selections from a new rare volume, dealing with this city and Western Ontario as they existed nearly 60 years ago. The story then printed related to the author's romantic journey in a stage coach and farm teams through wild woods to the hamlet of London. We now propose giving Mrs. Jameson's account of her visit to the noted Col. Talbot's home and her journeyings through other districts in this neighborhood.

For eight dollars, Mrs. Jameson hired a vehicle and a driver from the master of the inn in which she had tarried for a few days in London, and resolved to pay a visit to the famous Talbot Settlement and to Col. Talbot at his solitary mansion on a cliff above Lake Erie. She had heard that this "hermit lord," who had practically been sovereign over the vast settlement, was singular of manners and "a sort of woman-hater, who had not for 30 years allowed a female to appear in his sight," and though she still felt a little nervous over the possible reception that awaited her. The only conveyance which the author could hire here was a "common cart, with straw at the bottom; in the midst a slat was suspended on straps, and furnished with a cushion not of the softest." Mrs. Jameson entered into conversation with her driver, a bright young lad of 16. She found that he was the son of a weaver who had emigrated in 1832. Here was the condition of affairs in Glasgow in that year, as described by this immigrant, and let those who believe that "protection" was a benefit to British workers note it. In 1832, the high tax policy was in full swing in Great Britain. The immigrant said his father worked hard enough for his family in the old country. He added:

"I remember often waking in the middle of the night and seeing my father working still at his loom, as if he would never give over while my mother and all of us were asleep."

"All of us! How many of you?"

"There were six of us; but my eldest brother and myself could do something."

"And you all emigrated with your father?"

"Why, you see, at last he couldn't get no work and trade was dull and we were all starving. I remember I was always hungry then—always."

"All but my eldest brother. When we were on the way to the ship he got frightened and turned back and wouldn't come. My poor mother cried very much and begged him hard. Now the last we hear of him is that he is very badly off and can get no work at all."

"Is your father yet alive?"

"Yes, he has landed up in Adelaide."

"Is your mother alive?"

"No, she died of cholera coming over. You see the cholera broke out in the ship and after fifty-three people died one after another and were thrown into the sea. My mother died and they threw her into the sea; and then my little sister, only 9 months old, died, because there was nobody to take care of her, and they threw her into the sea—poor little thing!"

"Was it not dreadful to see the people dying around you did you not feel frightened for yourself?"

"Well, I don't know; one got used to it—it was nothing but splash, splash all day long—first one and then another. There was one Martin on board, I remember, with a wife and nine children, one of these as sold his pension. He had fought in Spain with the Duke of Wellington. Well, first his wife died, and they threw her into the sea, and then he died and they threw him into the sea. And then the children, one after another, until only two were left alive—the eldest girl about 13, who had nursed them all one after another and seen them die. Well, she died, and then there was only the little fellow left."

The boy further explained that he took the fever, but recovered. His father was so hard up that he had to sell his watch to get money enough to bring the family as far west as Toronto. He continued:

"And then there was a schooner provided by Government to take us on board, and we had rations provided, and that brought us on to Port Stanley, far below Port Talbot, and then they put us ashore, and we had to find our way and pay our way to Delaware; where our lot of land was; that cost us $8, and then we had nothing left—nothing at all. There were 900 immigrants encamped about Delaware no better off than ourselves."

"What did you do then? Had you not to build a house?"

"No; the Government built each family a house—that is to say, a log hut, eighteen feet long, with a hole for a chimney; no glass in the windows, and empty, of course, not a bit of furniture, not even a table or chair."

The immigrants, it was added by the driver, had a hard life; some died, others gave up and went away—"they lost all heart to see every where trees and trees, and nothing beside."

Mrs. Jameson liked St. Thomas, which bore, she says, the Christian name of Col. Talbot, and which he styled "his capital." Kettle Creek, on which St. Thomas is built, Mrs. Jameson thought poorly named, and she remonstrated with the colonel.

"He told me," says the author, "that his first settlers had found a kettle on the bank, left by some Indians, and had given the river, from this slight circumstance, a name which he had not thought it worth while to alter." At this time St. Thomas had a population of 700, and it had doubled within two years. There were three churches, three taverns, and two newspapers. Mrs. Jameson says she found a factory for making cabinetware and furniture in full blast at St. Thomas, and she remarks on the fact that whole forests of black walnut and maple wood had been seen by her burning together. What a bonanza would a forest of such trees be to a Western Ontario man today!

Mrs. Jameson describes the road on which she traveled from St. Thomas to Port Stanley as the best yet driven over by her, and she attributes this fact to the carefulness of Col. Talbot, who controlled the whole district and compelled the settlers to whom he sold lands to keep the highway in good repair. Of the colonel she adds:

"Colonel Talbot does not like gentlemen's cars, nor will he have any gentlemen within a certain distance of his own domain. He never associates with the people except on one grand occasion, the anniversary of the formation of his settlement. This is celebrated at St. Thomas by a festive meeting of the most respectable settlers, and the colonel himself opens the ball with one of the ladies, generally showing his taste by selecting the youngest and prettiest."

While driving towards the colonel's, Mrs. Jameson chronicles that deer kept popping across the pathway. Of her welcome on arrival Mrs. Jameson gives this description:

"The colonel, taking me under his arm, and ordering the boy and his horses to be well taken care of, handed me into the hall or vestibule, where sacks of wheat and piles of sheepskins lay heaped in primitive fashion, thence into a room the walls of which were formed of naked logs. Here no furniture, spring-cushioned, extended its comfortable arms—no sofa here, 'insidiously stretched out its lazy length.' Col. Talbot held all such luxuries in sovereign contempt. In front of a spacious chimney stood a long wooden table, flanked with two wooden chairs, cut from the forest in the midst of which they now stood. To one of these, the colonel handed me with the air of a courtier, and took the other himself."

Mrs. Jameson describes Col. Talbot as a remarkable man about 65, perhaps more, good humored and jovial, living in "primitive simplicity." This, after Col. Talbot had lived 34 years in the solitude of the Canadian wilds. Col. Talbot came out to Upper Canada as an aide-de-camp to Gov. Simcoe in 1793, and accompanied the governor when he chose London as the future capital. It was then, Mrs. Jameson tells us, that the idea of founding a colony took possession of Col. Talbot's mind. He was given a grant of 100,000 acres of land along the shores of Lake Erie, on condition of placing a settler on every 200 acres. He came out again in 1802, and took possession of his domain in the heart of the wilderness. When Mrs. Jameson saw him 35 years later he drew a strong, a terrible picture of his difficulties and obstacles. For sixteen years he rarely saw a white man, and this was his style of life. Mrs. Jameson says:

"He himself assumed the blanket-coat and axe, slept upon the bare earth, cooked three meals a day for twenty wooden men, cleaned his own boots, washed his own linen, milked his cows, churned the butter and made and baked the bread. In this latter branch of household economy he became very expert, and still plagues his functions of sewing and reaping, felling and planting, frying, boiling, washing, wringing, brewing, and baking, he added another even more extraordinary—for many years he solemnized all the marriages in his district."

When Mrs. Jameson visited Col. Talbot he showed her the list of the domain over which he held sway. It extended over 28 townships, with 650,000 acres of land, of which 98,700 were cleared and cultivated. The inhabitants, including the population of the towns, were about 50,000.

"You see," said the colonel gaily, "I may boast, like the Irishman in the farce, of having peopled a whole country with my own hands." Col. Talbot told Mrs. Jameson that though he then liked his retirement, he would not, if anyone offered him the universe, go through again the horrors he underwent in forming the settlement. As the colonel recited the hardships of his lonely position, Mrs. Jameson says he drew tears from her eyes. How he came in some measure to get over his aversion to womanhood, Mrs. Jameson thus details:

"There is a favorite servant, Jeffrey by name, who has served him faithfully for more than five-and-twenty years, ever since he landed in Canada, and who has been his constant companion, his confidant, and his helper in all his undertakings. This honest fellow, not having foreseen female companionship, began to sigh after a wife."

"A wife! Ah! Saint Marie Benedicte, how might a man have any adverse fate but a wife?"

And like the good knight in Chaucer, he did "Upon his bare knees pray God him to send A wife to last unto his life's end."

"So one morning he went and took unto himself the woman he most desired—one of whom we need must suppose that he took her for her virtues, for most certainly it was not for her attractions. The colonel swore at him for a fool; but, after a while, Jeffrey, who is a favorite, smuggled his wife into the house; and the colonel, whose increasing age renders him rather more dependent on household help, very patiently in addition to his family and even the presence of a white-headed, chubby little thing which I found running around without let or hindrance."

Mrs. Jameson thus graphically depicts how hermit-like Colonel Talbot lived:

"Dynasties rose and disappeared; kingdoms were passed from hand to hand like wine decanters; battles were lost and won—he neither knew nor heard, nor cared. No post, no newspaper brought to his forest-bud the tidings of victory and defeat, of revolutions of empires, or rumors of unsuccessful and successful war."

After a visit to Colonel Talbot, extending over six days, Mrs. Jameson was driven in a farmer's cart from Port Talbot to Chatham. The charge was twelve dollars for the two days' journey. The driver proved to be an Irishman, who had settled in the neighborhood, and was making a good thing out of shipping dairy products by way of Port Stanley. "The wolves," he said, were his greatest annoyance; during the last year they had carried off eight of his sheep and thirteen of his brother's flock, in spite of all precautions. At this time the reward given by the Canadian magistracy for a wolf's head was $6; but Mrs. Jameson says this was not enough. The United States gave $15 and $20 a head and quickly exterminated the wolves from its new settlements. "Dear," remarks Mrs. Jameson, "still abundant, and venison is common food in the cottages and farm-houses." The author comments in unfavorable terms on the then state of education in Western Canada. She says:

"I passed in these journeys some school houses built by the way; several of these were shut up for want of school masters; and who that could earn a subsistence in any way would be a school master in the wilds of Upper Canada? Ill-fed, ill-clothed, ill-paid, or not paid at all—boarded at the houses of the different farmers in turn. I found indeed some few men, poor creatures I always either Scotch or American, and totally unfit for the office they had undertaken. Of female teachers I found none whatever, except in the towns."

The pioneers had tough times trying to correspond with distant relatives. The poor emigrants, longing to hear from home, "sometimes present themselves at the post-office," says Mrs. Jameson, "and finding that their letters cost three shillings and four pence, or perhaps five or six shillings, turn away in despair. I have seen such letters not here (in Howard township) only, but often and in greater numbers at the larger post-offices; and have thought, with pain, how many fond, longing hearts must have bled over them. The torture of Tantalus was surely nothing to this."

Mrs. Jameson had the usually rough time of it jolting through the blazed road-way to Chatham. Arrived at that place she was driven to Freeman's Hotel. "The best in the whole district," but was refused admission by Mr. Freeman, who, "in consequence of the high price of wheat, could no longer afford to take in hungry travelers," and had "no accommodation." She finally had to lodge in a "miserable little place," and slept in a bedroom without chair or table, but she was too tired to kick. From Chatham Mrs. Jameson made her way by steamboat to Detroit, a great part of the cargo being flour and wheat for export from Canada to the Western States. And all this occurred less than 60 years ago!

Health Built Up

"I had a very bad cold which settled on my lungs. I was under doctor's care and was not able to get out of the house for eight weeks. I did not gain strength very fast and other remedies failing to help me or improve my ease, I was induced to try Hood's Sarsaparilla. I have taken several bottles and my health is improved very much. Since I have taken Hood's Sarsaparilla I feel very much stronger than for a long time past. I have recommended Hood's Sarsaparilla to others, for it truly has been of great benefit to me." The Big Bonspiel Begins at Hamilton Today.

CURLING.

THE HAMILTON BONSPIEL.
HAMILTON, Jan. 9.—The big bonspiel to be held on Hamilton Bay tomorrow in celebration of the 21st anniversary of the Ontario Curling Association is an assured success. One hundred and twelve rinks are expected to participate in the contest between East and West, 56 on each side. The ice is in magnificent condition.

DETROITERS ON THE WAR-PATH.
DETROIT, Mich., Jan. 9.—Two rinks of Detroit curlers left for Canada today to take a whack at the curlers who are to be at Hamilton at the tournament. Tonight the Detroiters play Simcoe, and tomorrow play with two rinks from Albany, N. Y., at Hamilton.

SIMCOE, Jan. 9.—A friendly game of curling took place here this evening between two rinks from Detroit and the home club. Score: Detroit 27, Simcoe 24.

HOCKEY.
At Montreal on Wednesday night the Shamrock hockey team defeated McGill by 11 to 5.

THE TURF.

ALICANTARA SOLD FOR $10,000.
New York, Jan. 9.—The only notable sale at today's horse sale was that of the celebrated stallion Alicantara to John S. Clarke, of New Brunswick, N. J., for $10,000.

THE WHEEL.

BY THE WAYSIDE.
Mrs. Langtry, the "Jersey Lily," rode considerably while in Philadelphia recently. She always appeared in full cloth knickerbockers, with cloth gaiters to match, and wore Russia leather boots. Her tweed skirt reached to her ankles. A colored linen skirt, with dainty markings, and a short coat and waistcoat completed her riding costume. An Alpine hat of soft grey material added to her chic appearance.

SURVEYOR TYRRELL'S TRAMP.

Reached Winnipeg After a 200-mile Walk—Notes by the Way.

WINNIPEG, Jan. 9.—J. B. Tyrrell, Dominion Government geological surveyor, reached the city late last night, after an absence of six months on a journey to the shores of Hudson Bay. The surveyors left for the Chancery exactly 40 days ago, and walked almost the whole distance to Winnipeg, nearly 200 miles.

Speaking of the new territory surveyed, Mr. Tyrrell said that he had been able to locate several timber areas and note the existence of "many interesting rocks," but he would not say whether or not he had discovered any minerals. On the Kazan River he fell in with a tribe of Esquimaux. These people have become alarmed at their brethren on the coast, to whom they originally belonged, and have become an inland tribe. They are mainly on reindeer meat, of which they can obtain an abundant supply with little effort, as reindeer roam through the region in vast herds.

The Cordage Combine.
JERSEY CITY, N. J., Jan. 9.—The annual meeting of the Cordage Company, to have been held today, was indefinitely postponed. The present officers will serve. The company is prospering, and a number of small cordage concerns have been bought out by the company. The annual report showed assets of $47,163,724.55, including a cash balance of $572,035.61, and liabilities of the same amount.

Creamery Convention.
CHESLEY, Jan. 9.—The second day's session of the Ontario Creamery convention held here had a much larger attendance than yesterday. Some very able speeches were made by the different delegates. The farmers appeared to take a very keen interest in the instructions given by the different speakers. At the close of the day's proceedings the visitors were entertained at a banquet in the McDonald House by the people of Chesley.

Collapse of Trestle-Work on the New Railroad.

Three Men Seriously and Perhaps Mortally Wounded.

A Scene of Terrible Excitement—The Wounded Men Removed to Hamilton—Great Destruction of Valuable Material.

DUNDAS, Ont., Jan. 9.—A terrible accident occurred today at the trestle-work on the T. H. and E. Railway in Binkley Hollow, causing great loss to the contractors and perhaps the lives of at least three men. The trestle is built by erecting bents made of square timber, some of which are

SIXTY-FOUR FEET HIGH. These bents are raised up to their places by an engine with blocks and pulleys, one block being attached to the bent last put in position, and on this block is the greater portion of the weight and strain of the next bent being raised, although the guy ropes lessen the strain somewhat. At about 5:30 o'clock this evening about 64 feet high had just been raised and positioned and fastened by spiking planks to the bent last raised and the workmen had nearly all gone back from the spot, only three or four remaining to finish, when

WITHOUT A MOMENT'S WARNING, 16 of the 24 bents which had been put up came down with a terrific crash, smashing many of the huge square timbers into kindling wood and making a pile of twisted and broken fragments of what had been the finest square timber ever put into a bridge or trestle.

AFTER THE CRASH. The moment after the crash heartrending cries of pain came from the wounded men, and a rush was made to extricate them. In a few minutes three men terribly mangled were taken out, and immediately medical aid was sent for from Hamilton. Drs. Ross, Bertram and Smith were quickly at the scene, and took charge of the wounded men.

TERrible SUFFERING OF THE WOUNDED. One poor fellow had both legs broken, and his left arm broken in two places, besides other injuries. Another had his left leg broken, but supposed to be injured internally.

CARING FOR THE VICTIMS. The wounded men were quickly chloroformed, placed on mattresses, covered with blankets and taken to the Hamilton hospital. It is thought that one at least cannot possibly recover. Following are

THE INJURED:
Mr. Rogers, married; residence Hamilton; compound fracture of both legs; left arm broken in two places; scalp torn very badly; one eye gashed out.
Mr. Riley, married; residence Hamilton; compound fracture of left leg and injured internally.
John Kerr, unmarried; residence Hamilton; no bones broken, may be badly injured internally.

THE RUINED TRESTLE. This section of the T. H. and E. railway is under Superintendent Skinner's supervision; foreman Finnigan. Both were absent at the time, but had been there through the day. An investigation will be held tomorrow, and perhaps a coroner's inquest. The wreck will be photographed at daylight tomorrow. The damage to the trestle work will run up into the thousands.

ANTI-TOXINE KILLS A HORSE.

The Doctor Gave Him Three Times the Regular Dose.

NEW YORK, Jan. 9.—Dr. Paul Gibier is sending anti-toxine serum to all parts of the country. The supply of horses with which the Pasteur Institute is provided enables the doctor to give the serum to all who request it.

Dr. Gibier made an experiment yesterday. Complaints have been received that in certain cases inoculation with the serum produced hives. It was found that all the serum complained of had been taken from one horse.

It was decided to kill the horse and Dr. Gibier, who wished to try the effect of an over-dose of anti-toxine, gave the horse three times the regular dose. The horse showed signs of blood poisoning immediately.

He seemed to grow dizzy, and fell to the floor of his stall. In five hours he was dead. His death appeared to be painless. Dr. Gibier says, and the experiment proved that the pure anti-toxine from the bacillus of diphtheria is an active poison.

THE OLD STORY.

Treasurer Taylor Falls to Turn Up in Time—A Great Shortage.

PENNSBURG, N. D., Jan. 9.—State Treasurer Taylor, who would have turned over his cash to his successor yesterday, failed to appear, and the Redfield National Bank, of which he is the head, closed its doors. At last accounts Taylor was in New York. On Saturday he should have had $350,000 and should have paid $190,000 to take up funding warrants in New York.

It has been known for some time that Treasurer Taylor was hard pressed. He was caught in the Chemical National Bank at Chicago and elsewhere. Altogether he lost $100,000. If the defalcation is as large as the bondsmen believe it will place the State in a very embarrassing situation. Taylor has always had a high reputation as a financier and a man of integrity. The school fund may lose $50,000.

Taylor's present whereabouts are unknown. His bond of $325,000 is said to be good, but it will not begin to cover the amount of the shortage as it appears at present.

Sir Oliver Mowat to Address the Kingston Electors.

Patron Nominations in North Middlesex and Haldimand.

ATLISA CRAIG, Jan. 9.—At a nominating convention held here today by the Patrons of Industry of North Middlesex, Wm. Brock, J. H. Alexander, Mr. Saunders and Mr. Darling were nominated. All resigned but Mr. Brock, who will be the candidate of the party in the coming general election for the Dominion House.

THE PROTESTED PATRON ELECTION. TORONTO, Jan. 9.—Mr. C. A. Mallory, president of the grand board of the Patrons of Industry, said that he believed that the Patrons would not say a word about the Kingston election. "There is a protest against one of our members," said he, "I don't know that the grand board will meet the expenses of the protest. It is our principle that every man shall pay his own expenses. We have no election fund. I don't believe that any deviation from the general rule will be made in this case."

NOTES. Sir Oliver Mowat will address a meeting at Kingston on Thursday in the interest of Hon. Wm. Mackay.

The Conservatives of South Grenville have renominated Dr. J. D. Reid for the Commons.

The Patrons of Industry of Haldimand met at the Cayuga court house on Wednesday to select a candidate to contest the seat at the Legislative assembly rendered vacant by the resignation of Mr. John Senn. Mr. Senn was again the unanimous choice of the convention.

Clark Carter, of the New York National Bank of Commerce, who embezzled $30,000 from that institution, was sentenced on Friday to six and a half years in Kings County Penitentiary.

The New York State treasury receipts during the fiscal year ending Sept. 30, 1894, were $16,357,948, and the expenditures were $20,183,911. The pool tax receipts amounted to $22,752.

Mr. W. H. Gulesian, secretary of the Armenian Society, of Boston, claims there are 5,198 Armenians in the world. The Turkish Minister at Washington said there were only 900,000.

The schooner F. L. Godfrey, Captain Corson, master and owner, sailed from Philadelphia this week for Salem, Mass., with a cargo of coal and has not been heard from since. The Godfrey carried a crew of six or seven men besides Capt. Corson.

In Congress on Wednesday the special rule to bring the currency bill to a vote was defeated on a yeas and nays vote by 122 yeas to 129 nays. This, it is claimed, practically kills the bill. Mr. Springer does not regard this as killing the measure by any means. He says the committee on rules will probably bring in another order within a few days.

STARTLING DOCTRINE.

Pastor Rippere Checks His Fellow-Methodist Ministers in Brooklyn.

BROOKLYN, Jan. 9.—The Rev. John Rippere, of the Kalb Avenue Church, denounced most of his fellow-Methodist ministers in Brooklyn Monday at their regular monthly gathering. When it came his turn to speak he said, "If the standards of the Methodist Church are right, then nine out of ten members are going to hell. Dr. Partridge, the presiding officer, stood up in his chair at the astounding declaration, and asked the Rev. Kalb Avenue pastor if he had heard him aright.

The Rev. Mr. Rippere repeated his remark with emphasis, and added: "We preach and are taught to preach that without holiness and purity no man shall see God. But that standard up and you must have a purgatory. Our funeral orations are at war with our theology. Our philosophizing cuts the nerve of our conviction."

In the course of the debate which followed the Rev. Dr. Poulson said: "We may differ as to meaning of sanctification, and yet may measure up to the standard. The brother certainly has no means of knowing that nine-tenths of the people are going to the devil, as he says."

THE NEXT C. E. CONVENTION.

BOSTON, Mass., Jan. 9.—It is estimated that when the fourteenth international Christian Endeavor convention is held here next July there will be from 50,000 to 60,000 members and delegates in attendance, which will make it one of the largest religious gatherings ever held.

BRAVERY RECOGNIZED.

OTTAWA, Jan. 9.—The Royal Humane Society has awarded its testimonial in volume to Messrs. John C. Dance, his son, W. H. Dance, and Henry Wyburn, all of Warton, for their gallant rescue of three persons who were drowning in Colpoys Bay on the 27th of July 1892. The rescue was effected at considerable risk. Nine persons had been upset from a boat, and the rescuers went out in a very small and leaky craft and succeeded in bringing the three safely to shore.

CAUGHT ON.

It was expected that our Cotton Sale would be a success, and sure it has 'caught on.' Pardon the digression, but the occasion makes us feel merry. Our list of prizes must have made a deep impression, and to republish them would perhaps not be amiss, as surely there are others in London requiring Cottons and quite willing to pay a low price for a good article. CHAPTER IV.

The genial spring gave place to a hot summer; and summer, in its turn, was giving place to autumn. There is little to record of the interim. The greater part of the year, as regards North Inlet, was no longer crowded. The poor workmen, with their wives and families, for the most part drifted away from its shores few by few, until only a few remained to accept the fact that last and hated refuge, the workhouse; and they seemed likely, so far as present prospects looked, to be permanent recipients of its hospitality. The greater portion, however, had wandered away to different parts of the country, seeking for that employment they could no longer find in their native place. Poole and the other conspirators had been tried at the March session. Richard North pleaded earnestly for a lenient sentence; and he was listened to. Poole received a term of penal servitude shorter than it would otherwise have been, and the others had been sentenced to terms varying from three to five years, including Poole, declared that they would not willingly have injured Richard North.

So, what with one thing and another, North Inlet had to much empty space in it, and was now at peace. There was no longer any need of special policemen. As to Richard, he was going on steadily and quietly; progressing a little, though not very much. Five or six men had been added to his staff, as Jolly said, come to his senses. But the works would never be what they had been. For one thing, Richard had no capital; and if he had, perhaps he might not now have cared to make it in this manner. Provided he could gain a sufficient income for expenses, and so employ his time and energies, it was all he asked.

Madam lived permanently abroad. Mr. North—Richard in reality—had two hundred a year, his son Arthur two; Sir Nash two. Six hundred a year; but it was pretty plainly intimated to madam that this income was only guaranteed so long as she kept herself aloof from them. Madam retorted that she liked the Continent too well to leave it for disagreeable old England.

Matilda North had married a French count, whom they met at Baden-Baden. She herself, made the announcement to her step-brother Arthur in a self-possessed letter, telling him that as the count's fortune was not equal to his merits, she should depend upon Arthur for her support. Richard North had also married. Tired, possibly, with his most uncertain existence, finding supplies from home were now no longer exception rather than the rule, and not daring to show his face on English soil, in the end, for more, Mr. Sidney North entered into the bonds of matrimony with a wealthy American dame a few years older than himself; the widow of a great man who had made his fortune by the oil springs. It was to be hoped he would keep himself straight now.

And Mr. North, feeling that he was freed from madam, was as happy as a pig in a trough, and he was growing young again. Bessy wrote to him weekly; pleasant, happy letters. She liked her home in the new world very much indeed; and she said Oliver seemed not to have a single fault. The new firm, Jones and Kane, had more patients than they could attend to, and all things were well with them. In short, Dr. and Mrs. Kane were evidently both prosperous and happy. No one was more pleased to know this than Mrs. Gass. She flourished; and her beaming countenance was more beaming than ever when seen abroad, setting the wives of Richard North's workmen to rights, or looking out from behind her glasses. William Adair had quitted it, his mission there was over. Richard North was thinking about removing the furniture; but in truth he did not know what to do with it. There was no hurry for Miss Dalloway said she did not intend to let it again at present.

Perhaps the only one not just now in a state of bliss was Jolly. Jolly had made a frightful discovery. He was fairly less. For several months as it came out, Mr. Wilks had transferred his allegiance from himself to Molly Green, whom he was secretly courting at Whitborough. The truth was, poor Tim did not dare to tell her. Jolly heard of it in a manner that astounded her. Spending a Sunday at Whitborough with Mrs. Beveridge's servants, Jolly went to morning service at one of the churches. "Pete" took her to a particular church, she said. And there she heard the banns of marriage read out, for the first time of asking, between Timothy Wilks, bachelor, and Molly Green, spinster. Jolly was fairly less. He shrieked aloud in his indignation. Had the cur priests been present, he might have felt compelled to box their ears in coming out. It proved to be true. Tim and Molly were going to be married, and Tim was furnishing a pretty cottage at Whitborough.

And this is how matters at present stood in Dalloway.

One autumn day, when the woods were glowing with the warm colors, and the gun might be heard making war on the partridges, Richard North overtook one of his Flemish workmen at the base of a hill about half-a-mile from his works. The man was wheeling a wheelbarrow that contained sand, but not in the handy manner that an Englishman would have done it, and Richard took it himself.

"What you learn, Sande?" he said, addressing the man. "See here! you must stop; you must not get the barrow nearly upright. See how you have split the sand."

Wheeling it along and paying attention to nothing else, Richard took notice of a basket-carriage that was coming down the opposite hill. It pulled up when it reached him. Looking up, Richard saw Miss Dal-lory. Resigning the wheelbarrow to the man, Richard took the hand she held out.

"Yes," he said laughing, "you stop to shake hands with me now, but you won't do it soon."

"Not Why not?" she questioned.

"You saw me wheeling the barrow along."

"It did not look very heavy."

"I have to put my hands to all sorts of things now, you perceive, Miss Dalloway."

"Just so, I hope you like doing it."

"But I want to know what you mean by saying I shall soon not stop to speak to you."

"When you become a great lady. Report says you are about to marry."

"Does it? Do you still think, sir, I am going to accept a Bohemian?"

"There has been some lord down at your brother's place, once or twice. The gossip in Dalloway says that he comes for you."

"Then you can tell the gossip that they are a great deal wiser than I am. Stand still, Gyp—to the shop pony. I would not have him; and I am sure he is not the remotest idea of having me. Why, he is hardly out of his teens! I dare say he thinks me old enough to be his godmother."

Miss Dalloway played with the reins, and then glanced at Richard. He was looking at her earnestly, as he leaned on the low carriage.

"That young man has come down for the shooting season, Mr. Richard. Frank takes him out every day. As for me, I do not intend to marry at all. Never."

"What shall you do, then?"

"Live at Dalloway Hall. Frank is going to be married, to the lord's sister. Now there's some information for you, but you need not proclaim it. It is true, I shall remove myself and my chattels to the Hall, and live there till I die."

"It will be very lonely for you."

"Yes, I know that," she answered sadly. "Most old maids are lonely. There will be Frank's children, perhaps, to come and stay with me sometimes."

A Wonderful Cure.—Mr. David Smith, Coe Hill, Ont., writes: "For the benefit of others I wish to say I was cured of Northern and Lyman's VEGETABLE DISCOVERY. About a year ago I took a very severe cold, had a virulent sore on my lips, was bad with dyspepsia, constipation and general debility. I tried almost every conceivable remedy, outwardly and inwardly, to cure the sore but all to no purpose. I had often thought of trying Northern and Lyman's VEGETABLE DISCOVERY, so I got a bottle and when I had used about one half the sore showed evident signs of healing. By the time that bottle was done it had about disappeared and my general health was improving fast. I was always of a very bilious habit and had used quinine and lemon juice with very little effect. But since using three bottles of the VEGETABLE DISCOVERY the biliousness is entirely gone and my general health is excellent. I am 60 years old. Parties using it should continue it for some time after they think they are cured. It is by far the best health restorer I know of."

Stainoff & Gordon's stage will have shut down Saturday last for this season.

The skating rink opened Saturday evening for the first time this season, and the ice was very good, which accounted for the large crowd who went to enjoy themselves.

Monday was election day, but by the looks of the town a stranger would have taken it to be a holiday, everything was so quiet. The following were elected: Reeve, C. H. Chubb; deputy reeve, Joseph Shaw; councilors, Dave Gordon, Malcolm Cameron and F. Balongie.

Miss Eva and Minnie Dunlop have returned to Chatham to finish a course in the Ursuline Academy.

Mr. A. J. O'Flynn paid Port Lambton a friendly call on Sunday last.

Mrs. S. Moser, we are sorry to report, died this morning. She leaves a husband and five small children to mourn her loss.

The great lung healer is found in the excellent medicine sold as Bickel's Anti-Consumptive Syrup. It soothes and diminishes the sensibility of the membrane of the throat and air passages and is a sovereign remedy for all coughs, colds, hoarseness, pain or soreness in the chest, bronchitis, etc. It has cured many who were supposed to be far advanced in consumption.

A large company assembled at the residence of Mrs. Frederick Blythe, London township, the occasion being the marriage of her daughter Miriam to Mr. Wm. Conn, of East Nisouri. The bride was attended by Miss Lillie Dodson, while Mr. J. Conn acted as groomsmen. The ceremony was performed by Rev. J. H. Kirkland, of Brynston, after which the guests sat down to a very sumptuous repast. The numerous costly and beautiful presents of which the bride was the recipient bore testimony to the high esteem in which she is held by a large circle of acquaintances. The happy couple begin their married life under most auspicious circumstances, and go to their new home, near St. Mary's, followed by the best wishes of a host of friends.

Instantaneous Colds

Colds are taken instantaneously. You may not believe it; that's because you never thought of it. Just stop and think how often you have said—how often you have heard others say—"I know when I took cold." It may have been known by a chill, or even a shudder—perhaps by exposure to a draught or rough wind—maybe a wet foot, or by standing on a cold, damp ground—a change of clothing; or cold and clothing—possibly the treacherous weather caught you with a light wrap or coat—a nap carelessly taken without something thrown over you. Anyhow, you knew when you took cold, and the mind would have been strengthened and a few doses of "IT" would have fortified the body and saved you an illness.

"IT" DR. HUMPHREY'S SPECIFIC, does all this and more. "IT" IS A SPECIFIC for Colds, Grip, Influenza, Catarrh, Pains and Sores in the Head and Throat, Croup, Hoarseness, General Prostration and Fever, and in curing the cold prevents pneumonia, diphtheria, and other wards of consumption.

A small bottle of pleasant pellets, fits your vest pocket. Sold by druggists or sent on receipt of price, 50c. or five for $2.50. HUMPHREY'S MEDICINE CO., corner William and John streets, New York.

A NOTABLE VICTORY.

Mr. Frank E. Shepard, the newly-elected reeve of Port Stanley, is a proud man, but in the hour of his victory he does not forget his friends. He returns sincere thanks to the London voters who so kindly went down and gave him a helping hand, and he fully recognizes the assistance of his friends in the Port and neighborhood. Mr. Shepard is a stalwart Liberal, and as Port Stanley has invariably returned only Conservative reeves from time immemorial the new Chief Magistrate is naturally proud that he has now been chosen. He is a man of progressive ideas, and he has many friends in the west who will wish him a most successful term of office.

—The Rev. E. Hutchinson, formerly of Lion's Head, has been appointed to the charge of Christ Church, Forest, Ont.

—The subject at the meeting tonight in the First Presbyterian Church in connection with the week of prayer will be foreign missions.

—At a recent meeting of the council of Huron College the Rev. G. F. Sherwood was promoted from the position of lecturer to that of professor of English literature and history.

—The annual meeting of the directors of the Street Railway Company which was to have been held yesterday afternoon, was postponed, owing to the absence from the city of some of the directors.

—On Monday morning the family of Mr. Jarvis, of the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, had a narrow escape from being asphyxiated at their residence. They had just moved to Guelph from London.

—Well-worn shoes and slippery pavements brought several horses to grief on the streets yesterday. Luckily, however, there were no serious accidents. Blacksmiths did a land-office business calking shoes.

—The rehearsals of the spectacular comic opera "Cinderella," by the London Amateur Operatic Association, are progressing favorably, and the performance, which will take place early next week, will probably be the best ever given by the company.

They had pleaded guilty to being drunk and disorderly in Stratford. When brought to jail Smith was recognized as George Underwood and Burns as John Collins, both of this city. They were released from custody only a few days ago.

—Dr. Lockwood addressed an interested audience on "Hypnotism" at the First Congregational Church last night. Ex-Mayor Spencer was in the chair. The possibilities of hypnotism for good, said the lecturer, were commensurate with its powers for evil. Dr. Lockwood will deal with the symptoms and conditions of this science in the Talbot Street Baptist Church tonight.

—The annual Sunday school entertainment of the Talbot Street Baptist Church was held Tuesday night in the lecture room of the church, which was very numerously attended. Rev. After the programme was over 200 pounds of candy were distributed amongst 300 pupils by the superintendent, Mr. J. W. Westervelt. An enjoyable time was spent by all.

A Good Choice.

By electing Mr. J. W. Little as mayor Londoners have made a choice which is creditable to their good judgment. Mr. Little is a first-class man of business, and the city is fortunate in securing his services. Confessedly one of the weak points of our system of municipal government is the difficulty of inducing men of business experience and of large financial interests to take municipal office. They are naturally reluctant to abandon, even for a time, their

A MYSTERIOUS LETTER.

City Clerk Kingston Has One on His Hands.

When He Received It is a "Legal Question"—Mystery Which the Mayor Declines to Clear Up.

The city has in its keeping just now a very mysterious letter. There is much vagueness about the exact date of its arrival, and its contents are shrouded in as deep a gloom as that which has pervaded certain quarters of the city since Monday last. Both Mayor Eserry and City Clerk Kingston have the power to throw light on the matter, but prefer not to until the next meeting of the council. A report has gained currency that Mr. A. B. Powell, high school trustee, and alderman-elect for No. 2 ward, had resigned his position on the School Board. With a view to ascertaining the date of the resignation an Advertiser reporter this morning asked Mr. Kingston, the city clerk, to allow him to see the communication.

It has been lying in my drawer for several days, and I have not even read it myself yet," replied Mr. Kingston, as he mechanically leaned towards the drawer to produce the letter. Then he hesitated and said:

"I really don't know whether I can let you see it or not until it comes before the council in the regular way."

"When was it sent in?" the reporter asked.

"Oh, several days ago."

"Was it before the election?"

"Well, that's a legal question," answered Mr. Kingston, with an air of judicial mystery.

"Does the legal question hinge on the difference between standard and sun time?"

A smile was the only immediate response. Mr. Kingston said further that the reporter would have to get the consent of the council or Mayor Eserry before the letter could be produced.

"I don't know that the letter is in the hands of the city," answered Mayor Eserry when approached on the subject.

The reporter said that he had Mr. Kingston's word for it.

"Well, if it is there it will have to lay there until the council meets," replied Mr. Eserry. "I am not interested one way or the other."

Where the necessity lies for so much obscurity in connection with a simple resignation is a question. At any rate, the resignation not being yet accepted Mr. Powell stands in the dual position of school trustee and alderman-elect.

Mr. Powell, himself being seen, stated that his resignation was dated before nomination day. He disclaims responsibility for its not being acted on as yet by the civic authorities.

THE HENDERSHOTT HOMICIDE.

Progress of the Preliminary Trial—Hendershott's Brother on the Stand.

ST. THOMAS, Jan. 9.—At the preliminary trial of the Middlemarch murder case today, thirteen witnesses were examined. A great deal of evidence was given as to the position of the body under the tree, the finding of the blood-stained apron under a log, and other testimony similar to that given at the inquest.

Coroner Gustin identified the signatures of the two prisoners attached by them to the evidence given at the inquest.

When the court adjourned Duncan Hendershott, brother of the prisoner Hendershott, was on the stand. He proved to be a very unwilling witness, but identified the watch found in the murdered man's vest as the one belonging to the prisoner Welter.

Court resumes tomorrow at 9:30.

UNDER NEW MANAGEMENT.

Another year in our history has just closed. It is three years since this business was established, which was predicted could not last a year. Every year has been greater than the preceding one. The pace we have advanced at has been very rapid. Until last year our business was just two and a half times as great as the first year. The reputation we enjoy is marvelous when we take into consideration the number of "fairy tales" told by other stores to lead you away from buying here. Could we only have an opportunity to hear the praises we receive for selling cheap we would require a volume to print them. We constantly hear customers talking in our stores that they have saved so much on what they have purchased here, and also of the good qualities of the goods we have sold them, that we feel like public benefactors and we are proud that we are in this business, but satisfied that you appreciate our efforts to please you with goods bought away below the regular prices, which only men who buy for cash can do.

WITH THE 4th YEAR A NEW ERA WILL DAWN

In this business. New blood has been introduced into the management and we will start now on a new basis. The business has been divided into departments and thoroughly organized on the most modern plan of running a large business—the whole forming one vast business machinery, which will go on like clock-work. It is our intention to lead in the race and not be content with simply keeping abreast with the times. The rules as laid down are few, but to the point, namely:

FIRST—Cash is our motto and one price to all.

SECONDLY—All goods marked in plain figures.

THIRDLY—Any goods which are not satisfactory will be cheerfully exchanged for anything in any other department.

FOURTHLY—On no account will we allow misrepresentation; and FIFTHLY—Pressing a customer to buy is strictly forbidden. Our clerks' duty is simply to show the goods and quote the price, and we will do our best on all occasions to please.

In conclusion we cordially invite the public to make our stores their rendezvous—to meet their friends here—to look through our stock, to compare and examine our goods, and we will do our utmost to make everybody feel quite at home.

Mail Order Department.

Our new catalogue will be ready in a few days for out-of-town purchasers. Write for one if you are not one of our regular customers.
