Against the Tortures of Rheumatism and Kidney Diseases

These Agonizing Ailments Suddenly Sweep Away Thousands of Our Good Citizens Annually

The Board of Health

In Fact the Government Itself, Could Well Afford to Pay a Great Premium for a Remedy That Will Cure Any Disease That is Destroying Human Life.

These deadly maladies are nearly always brought on by neglect. When the kidneys are diseased and cannot perform their functions, the blood carries the uric acid into the joints to settle and crystallize, which in time becomes chalky and makes the joints stiff.

with these complaints to take no other remedy but Dr. Munyon's, and renew again your age and vigor. I may add in taking Dr. Munyon's remedies, observe the directions by just removing the cap, pouring out four of the little pellets into the cap, placing the pellets upon the tongue, and allowing them to dissolve. Thus the ingredients become absorbed into the mucous membrane which allows the remedy to act upon the nervous system, consequently reaching the diseased parts very quickly.

OPENING OF "TRIP AROUND WORLD"

Mayor Judd. The mayor expressed the great pleasure it gave the city of London to entertain for the first time the Lieutenant-Governor of the great Province of Ontario.

The day had been one of pleasure and profit to the gentlemen of London who had the honor of spending in his company (Cheer) On behalf of the city, of the Daughters of the Empire, and if he might be permitted by President Gibbons to say so, on behalf of the Canadian Club, he heartily thanked the Hon. Mortimer Clark for visiting the Forest City. (Cheers.)

His Lordship Bishop Williams was then called upon by Mrs. Leonard, and he made a brief address. After thanking the Lieutenant-Governor for visiting London, he stated that this city is singularly devoid of monuments.

a country which might well be the mother of the greatest commercial nation in the world.

Work of the Order.

We would wish to impress your honor and the good people of London assembled with us here today, with the purely national and patriotic sentiments which instigated the founding of our order initially, and which now vibrate through its very being and give life and power to its efforts and work.

Word of Thanks. "If your honor will permit me and the people here assembled will be good enough to bear with me a few moments, I would wish to seize this opportunity of publicly expressing, personally and on behalf of the order, our deepest thanks to all those who have worked so hard to give so much to the wheel and to the booths which we see around us, and to assure them of our appreciation for all they have done for us.

The Grand March. The speeches concluded, a grand march was held, while the Lieutenant-Governor and party on the platform looked on with evident pleasure. Sergt. Birrell, assisted by several police officers and a number of military men, formed at the head of the procession, and soon had a channel through which the grand march wound its brilliant way.

At the conclusion of the march, the girls of the Collegiate Institute, commanded by Drill Instructor Gregory, gave an exhibition drill. The spectators were rewarded with deafening applause.

The Scotch Concert. Hon. Mortimer Clark and the party on the platform then adjourned to the gun shed, at the east end of the Armory, where a Scotch concert was put on by Mr. Cyril Dwight-Edwards, assisted by some very clever talent.

the Normal School, was carried out.

At Victoria and St. Joseph's Hospitals, the party, made up of the Lieutenant-Governor, the mayor and aid-camp, and others, were given hearty receptions.

At St. Joseph's Hospital a number of nurses dressed in white greeted the Lieutenant-Governor with a chorus of welcome, and a short musical programme was carried out. After Hon. Mr. Clark had been introduced by Senator Coffey to Father Aylward, rector of St. Peter's, who represented the bishop, his honor was introduced by Father Aylward to Mother Aloysia, who is in charge of the hospital, and an inspection of the institution was begun.

At Victoria Hospital. At Victoria Hospital his honor was introduced to Superintendent Heard and Miss Stanley, the lady superintendent. The nurses were also drawn up in line, and in their uniforms presented a very imposing appearance.

The drive was then resumed in the direction of the Kennels, but unfortunately one of the autos broke down. Judge Elliott, City Clerk Baker and Aid. Gerry were in the machine, but no one was hurt.

Success Is Assured. We cannot help feeling that with such support the success of our undertaking is assured, and that at a very present date we will see a monument in the heart of Victoria Park which will be a perpetual reminder to us of those that were pure, true and brave, and a reflection of the monument of patriotism and self-sacrifice which we hope is built up in the heart of every true Canadian man and woman, and which we are now laboring to erect and keep bright and growing in the young hearts of the children and rising generation of our community. These children are to be the patriots whom, in a very short time we look to see making this Canada of ours, not only the "brightest gem of the crown," but a people that, while one with the Empire, has ships of her own to carry her products to foreign countries, railways to carry them across her mountains and prairies, and children to obtain these products from and

The Hound of The Baskervilles

"Say, rather, into the region where we balance probabilities and choose the most likely. It is the scientific way of the imagination, but we have always some material basis on which to start our speculations. Now, you would call it a guess, no doubt, but I am almost certain that this address has been written in an hotel."

"How in the world can you say that?"

"If you examine it carefully you will see that both the pen and the ink have given the writer trouble. The pen has spluttered twice in a single word, and has run dry three times in a short address, showing that there was very little ink in the bottle. Now, a private pen or ink-bottle is seldom allowed to be in such a state, and the combination of the two must be quite rare. But you know the hotel ink and the hotel pen, where it is rare to get anything else. Yes, I have very little hesitation in saying that could we examine the waste-paper baskets of the hotels around Charing Cross until we found the remains of the mutilated Times leader we could lay our hands straight upon the person who wrote this singular message. Hallo! Hallo! What's this?"

He was carefully examining the footstep upon which the words were pasted, holding it only an inch or two from his eyes.

"Nothing," he said, throwing it down. "It is a blank half-sheet of paper, without even a watermark upon it. I have drawn as much as I can from this curious letter; and now, has anything else of interest occurred to you since you have been in London?"

"Why, no, Mr. Holmes. I think not. You have not observed anyone follow or watch you?"

"I seem to have walked right into the thick of a dime-novel," said our visitor. "Why in thunder should anyone follow or watch me?"

"We are coming to that. You have nothing else to report to us before we go into this matter?"

"Well, it depends upon what you think worth reporting of the ordinary routine of life well worth reporting."

Sir Henry smiled.

"I don't know much of British life yet, for I have spent nearly all my time in the States and in Canada. I hope that to lose one of your boots is not part of the ordinary routine of life over here."

"You have lost one of your boots?"

"My dear sir," cried Dr. Mortimer, "it is only mislaid. You will find it when you return to the hotel. What is the use of troubling Mr. Holmes with trifles of this kind?"

"Well, he asked me for anything outside the ordinary routine."

"Exactly," said Holmes, "however

"Perfectly." "Then you may expect us. Shall I have a cab called for me?" "I'd prefer to walk, for this affair has hurried me rather." "I'll join you in a walk, with pleasure," said his companion. "Then we meet again at two o'clock. Au revoir, and good-morning."

We heard the steps of our visitors descend the stair and the bang of the front door. In an instant Holmes had changed from the languid dreamer to the man of action.

"Your hat and boots, Watson, quick! Not a moment to lose!" He rushed to his room in his dressing-gown and was back again in a few seconds in a frock-coat. We hurried together down the stairs and into the street. Dr. Mortimer and Baskerville were still visible about two hundred yards ahead of us in the direction of Oxford Street.

"Shall I run on and stop them?" "Not for the world, my dear Watson. I am perfectly satisfied with your company. If you will tolerate a mine, our friends are wise, for it is certainly a very fine morning for a walk."

He quickened his pace until we had decreased the distance which divided us by about half. Then, still keeping a hundred yards behind, we followed into Oxford Street, and so down Regent Street. Once our friends stopped and started into a shop window, upon which Holmes had a pair of piercing eyes turned upon us through the side window of the cab. Instantly the trap-door at the top flew up, something came screaming to the driver, and the Holmes looked eagerly round for another, but no empty one was in sight. Then he dashed in wild pursuit amid the stream of the traffic, but the start he gave, too great, and already the cab was out of sight.

"There, now!" said Holmes, bitterly, as he emerged, panting and white with vexation, from the tide of vehicles. "As ever such bad luck and such bad management, too? Watson, Watson, if you are an honest man you will record this also and set it against my successes."

"Who was the man?"

"I have not an idea."

"A spy?"

"Well, it was evident from what we have heard that Baskerville has been very closely shadowed by someone since he has been in town. How else could it be known so quickly that it was the Northumberland Hotel which he had chosen? If he had followed him the first day I argued that he would follow him also the second. You may have observed that I twice stroll over to the window while Dr. Mortimer was reading his legend."

"Yes, I remember."

"I was looking out for letterers in the street, but I saw none. We are dealing with a clever man, Watson, and I think I have not finally made up my mind whether it is a benevolent or a malevolent agency which is in touch with us. I am conscious always of power and design. When our friends have at once followed them in the hopes of marking down their invisible attendant. So why was he that he had not trusted himself on foot, but he had availed himself of a cab, so that he could loiter behind or dash past them and so escape their notice. His method had the additional advantage that if they were to take a cab he was already to follow them. It has, however, one obvious disadvantage."

"It puts him in the power of the cabman."

"Exactly."

"What pity we did not get the number!"

"My dear Watson, clumsy as I have been, you surely do not seriously imagine that I neglected to get the number of the cab? But that is no use to us for the moment."

"I fall to see how you could have done more."

"On observing the cab I should have instantly turned and walked in the other direction. I should then at my leisure have hired a second cab and followed the first at a respectful distance, or, better still, have driven to the Northumberland Hotel and waited there. When our unknown had followed."

ed Baskerville home we should have had the opportunity of playing his own game upon himself, and seeing where he made for. As it is, by an indiscreet eagerness, which was taken advantage of by our extraordinary quickness and energy by our opponent, we have betrayed ourselves and lost our man."

We had been sauntering slowly down Regent Street during this conversation, and Dr. Mortimer, with his companion, had long since vanished in front of us.

"There is no object in our following them," said Holmes. "The shadow has departed, and will not return. We must see what further cards we have in our hands, and play them with decision. Could you swear to that man's face within the cab?"

"I could swear only to the beard."

"And so could I—from which I gather that in all probability it was a false one. A clever man upon so delicate an errand has no use for a beard save to conceal his features. Come in here, Watson."

He turned into one of the district messenger offices, where he was warmly greeted by the manager.

"Ah, Wilson, I should be glad to have forgotten the little case in which I had the good fortune to help you."

"No, sir, indeed I have not. You saved my good name and perhaps my life."

"My dear fellow, you exaggerate. I have some recollection, Wilson, that you had among your boys a lad named Cartwright, who showed some ability during the investigation."

"Yes, sir, he is still with us."

"Could you ring him up?—thank you! And it should be glad to have change of this five-pound note."

A lad of fourteen, with a bright, keen face, had obeyed the summons of the manager. He stood now gazing with great reverence at the famous detective.

"Let me have the Hotel Directory," said Holmes. "Thank you, Mr. Cartwright, there are the names of twenty-three hotels here, all in the immediate neighborhood of Charing Cross. Do you 'Yes, sir.'"

"You will visit each of these in turn."

"Yes, sir."

"You will begin in each case by giving the outside porter one shilling. Here are twenty-three shillings."

"Yes, sir."

"You will tell him that you want to see the waste paper of yesterday. You will also tell him that you are looking for it. You understand?"

"Yes, sir."

"But what you are really looking for is the center page of the Times with Here is a copy of the Times. It is this page. You could easily recognize it."

"Yes, sir."

"In each case the outside porter will send for the hall porter, to whom also you will give a shilling. Here are twenty-three shillings. You will then learn in possibly twenty cases out of the twenty-three that the waste of the day before has been burned or removed. In the three other cases you will be shown a heap of paper and you will look for this page of the Times among your finding it. There are ten shillings in half goods. Over 75,000 people in hair goods. And now, let me have a report of emergencies. Baker Street before evening. And now, Watson, it only remains for us to find out by wire the identity of the cabman No. 2704, and then we will drop into the Bond Street picture gallery until we are due at the hotel."

DESIGNED BY MARTHA DEAR.

ONE OF THE NEW IDEAS IN GOWN CREATION—6865, 6866.

The woman who is an artist in dress never fails to take pleasure in a new mode which adds becoming lines and allows her to array herself in a pleasing manner. The wave of Oriental influence which has swept the fashion world during the past year leaves its effects here and there in the new gowns, and perhaps the most decided indications at present to be seen are the various sleeve effects of which the mandarin shown here is most popular. This is quite in harmony with the broad shouldered effects and carries out the wide armhole styles to perfection. The frock is developed in one of those supple silks which lend so much fascination to the present feminine dress. The waist is gathered at the yoke and shoulder edges, while the skirt is tucked about the top and lengthened by a full flounce. The bands which effect the mandarin sleeve are separate, and made of a trimming fabric such as embroidered bands or lace, the yoke and sleeve bands corresponding. The skirt may be finished in short round or instep length, while the sleeves may be long or end at the elbow. The light cloths, crepe de chine, batiste and mousseline are suggested, 14-3-8 yards, 27 inches wide being needed for the medium size.

Two patterns—6865—6 sizes, 32 to 42 inches bust measure.

6866—6 sizes, 20 to 30 inches waist.

The price of these patterns is 20c but either will be sent upon receipt of 10c.

A Message for Pile Sufferers

FROM ONE WHO HAS BEEN CURED OF AN UNUSUALLY SEVERE CASE BY DR. CHASE'S OINTMENT.

Mrs. Geo. H. Simser, Grant, Russell County, Ontario, writes: "Seven years ago I began to suffer from piles, and they caused keen distress and became worse. I doctored for them, but with little or no avail. They were bleeding, itching and protruding, and, oh! the torture I suffered at times can never be described. It was with suffering that the bowels moved, and as nothing brought relief I could only endure the misery with an aching heart and without hope of cure."

"Finally a lady friend told me about Dr. Chase's Ointment, curing piles, and to my surprise I felt relief at once upon using this ointment, the little tumors soon disappeared, the ulcers healed and the bowels became regular. This was five years ago and I have never been troubled with this terrible affliction since, a thousand thanks to Dr. Chase's Ointment."

"Persons who have given up looking for a cure of piles or hemorrhoids, this letter should bring new hope. There is, we believe, no more effective treatment for piles than Dr. Chase's Ointment, 60 cents a box, at all dealers, or Edmanston, Bates & Co., Toronto."

TO THOSE OF SEDENTARY OCCUPATION—Men who follow sedentary occupations, which deprive them of fresh air and exercise, are more prone to disorders of the liver and kidneys than those who lead active, outdoor lives. The former will find without question the most efficacious on the market. They are easily procurable, easily taken, act expeditiously, and they are surprisingly cheap, considering their excellence.

JUST BASEBALL TALK.

Baseball rules can be improved wonderfully if the proper persons are interested. The rule book has no reference to an illegal delivery, and yet there must be a penalty for such work, for there is great difference between an illegal delivery and a balk, as the batsman can move to first on one, while the other is only effective with base-runners. But this is no time to go through the rules. One thing is certain, the player who absolutely understands the playing rules is a novelty. There is more or less of a change each season, and every player should read them faithfully, but they don't. In fact, men who are looking for umpire's berths are seldom capable of properly interpreting the rules.

Even the men scoring the game differ in their ideas of what constitutes a stolen base. In answer to a correspondent last week, the New York World emphasized the point that a stolen base went to the runner who had reached second or third by his own efforts, even if he failed to hold the base. The intent of the rule is to give a player a stolen base when he succeeds in gaining the base, and he must hold the bag before he can be given credit for a clean stolen base. This has long since been established by competent scorers. To give a player credit for a stolen base because he was able to tag the bag out, but could not save a put-out would be like giving a player an assist on a fly ball that touched his fingers, but was a clean muff.

WHEN O'LOUGHLIN RAN FOR OFFICE.

"Silk" O'Loughlin, the well-known big league umpire, has a voice like a young foghorn, and what is more, he knows how to use it to advantage. When the immaculate "Silk" was running for a legislative office, a couple of years ago, he was one night billed to do a spiel in the city of Rochester. Now, "Silk" is a bright and brainy fellow, and no doubt had he been elected he would have delivered the goods all right.

As a talker "Silk" can give the best of them a run, and when he gets to going he never pauses for a word, for his command of the English language is all that can be desired. As to his fluency, Tennyson's brook has nothing on the sandy-haired boy.

But when speaking at Rochester, "Silk" had to make one large and brazen pause, which was occasioned by an individual of the butlinisk breed, such as are often to be found on the outskirts of every large political gathering.

Mr. O'Loughlin was on the last lap of his oration, and in a few moments more would have been at the home plate, when in rounding off a regular spread-eagle sentence he made a slight pause, and then, with the natural gesture and the true delivery of a born orator, he asked: "And now, friends, what is grander than to have a man you can trust?"

"To have," piped a shrill, though alarmingly penetrating voice from the back of the mob, "a man who will trust you," and the vast assemblage brutally guffawed.

"BUMPETY, BUMP, BUMP, BUMP!"

D'ju hear that splash in Chicago yesterday? Christy Mathewson, erstwhile pride of the college world, leader of National League pitchers, and idol of the Gotham fans, was bumped, battered and bruised for 16 singles by the untamed Windy City Cubs, and the Giants went down hard—3 to 2. Of course, there weren't any happy fans in Chi'. Oh, no! Not at all! The Giants are the most popular (?) bunch that ever received a lemon or hit the toboggan slide, and it is dollars to boarding-house prunes that Chicago was one happy city last night. Throw the hooks, Cubs, old boys—you've got our permission, and the fans are with you in any deal concerning the McGraw tribe.

GETTING READY FOR THE GRAND CIRCUIT.

Havis H. James, one of the star steeplechasers of Canada, is at the Cleveland track with his racers. He has Harold H., 2:02 3/4; Robert Lee, 2:06 3/4; Joe S., 2:19 3/4; Quintell, 2:14 3/4; Ida Bars, 2:23 3/4; Alfred L., brother to Harold H., and other good ones. Harry Stinson, driver for the Cruckston Park Farm, is also at Cleveland. Every workout day at Glenville resembles a Grand Circuit meeting.

LIBERAL BOWLERS BUMPED.

It has been a long time since the Liberal Club bowlers have been defeated, but they bumped into a snag good and plenty last night, when they tackled "Cap" Graham's Ideals in a special game. However, there is still room for hope—the Ideals may repeat.

[Written Specially for The Advertiser by J. V. McAree.]

Canada's greatest annual turf fixture, the spring meeting of the Ontario Jockey Club is over, and the statistician is busy with his little pencil. Mr. Seagram has won more than $14,000 in purses, besides pieces of plate and the checks he has cashed. For the President of the O. J. C., unlike his predecessor, the late William Hendrie, is by no means undiminished of the betting side of racing. Disgust must be mingled with pride in Mr. Seagram's bosom when he reflects that so popular are his colors with the betting public, that his horses usually start favorites, and his opportunities of getting a good price are almost invariably spoiled.

T. Ambrose Wood won a trifle more than $3,500 mainly contributed of course by Kelvin's unexpected victory in the King's Plate. The Kirkfield stable won $1,570, and the MacKenzie must have had more than their share of racing ill luck to have fared so badly. They sold War Whoop in the paddock the other day, and the famous horse fetched only $130. At this price he is a cheap horse for a hackman. Thirteen other horses were sold at the same time and they ran all the way from $105 for Sour Sack to $580 for Crestfallen. Sour Sack was a King's Plater and Crestfallen has won several races. Year after year about the same prices are realized, King's Platers being about as cheap as a fair screw-tailed Boston terrier.

What's the matter with our thoroughbreds? The question is surely not out of order in view of such prices, for remarks that are the rule are the exception. Is there any farmer in the land who does not get more for the average horse he breeds at a like age than our thoroughbred breeders get for the expensive failures they enter for the King's Plate, and later sell for what they will fetch? You can't buy Clydes, nor Clyde-Bronchos, nor Shetland ponies for these prices, let alone trotters. Won't blood tell? Is there nothing a thoroughbred is useful for but racing, or pulling a butcher cart when he breaks down?

The trouble is that the Canadian breeders don't breed the right kind of

GOT THEIR BUMPS FROM THE IDEALS

Those Chesty Liberal Club Bowlers at Last Receive a Severe Jolt.

Ever hear of the man who sat on a limb and sawed it off? Yes? No? Sheers or so ago, the Brock bowling party (singular and plural) went digging around the King street establishment looking for trouble. Last night they found it. Oh, they found it in large and juicy packages! And still some!

Strikes, spares, and every other old thing that is good went the Ideal boys' way, while the best the visitors could do was to make passes down the gutter or bump into a difficult "railroad." The amusing part of it all was that the Ideals allowed the beautiful ones to assume a slight lead in the first frame in order to draw them on. In the second round the King street crowd moved up and whizzed by their opponents like a shot out of a gun. After that it was all ideal, and it's ideal yet.

In summing up, it seems meet to say that the Liberal crowd last night could not hit an elephant, but that they hope to do better (or worse) next time. Last night's game was a tournament game, but was a special match arranged in a spirit of aggressiveness—and fun.

MATHEWSON A MARK FOR CHAMP CUBS

Pride of the Giants Batted All Over the Lot—Dodgers Blank the Reds.

Chicago, June 5.—New York's first appearance here this season drew a great overflow crowd to see Chicago win, 8 to 2. Every seat in the bleachers of the grandstand and the boxes were filled, and several thousand persons lined the field. The visitors opened on Brown savagely in the first, a pass, two hits and an error giving them two runs. After the bad start the three-fingered pitcher held them helpless.

The locals gave Mathewson one of the hardest poundings of the season, hitting him for a total of 13 bases, five of them, including two doubles, in the seventh inning. Score: Chicago...10001042*—8 15 3 New York...200000000—2 6 1

PERFORMED "HAT TRICK" TWICE IN ONE INNING IN BIG GAME

Albert Trott, the Middlesex (England) professional, for whose benefit the cricket match with Somerset was played in the three days ending May 22, accomplished a wonderful hat-trick feat in the second innings, which has never been equaled in first-class cricket. Twice in this innings did he accomplish the "hat-trick." On the first occasion he got four men out with successive balls, and the fifth man hit at the fifth ball of the over, and missed it. The wicketkeeper stepped aside, feeling certain that the wicket was down, but the ball was a scant inch off, and four bays resulted, and Mr. F. M. Lee was saved. Mr. Leo made several runs before being caught by Trott of Tarrant's bowler, and then Mr. Mordant, who had made four runs, faced Trott. He made a poor stroke to mid-off, and was easily caught by Mignon. Mr. Wickham succeeded him, and was bowled first ball. Bailey, the last man in, had to take the one ball of the over which re-

CARLINGS ALE, PORTER AND LAGER. PURITY, BRILLIANCY AND UNIFORMITY.

PROF. DOREN WEND. Of Toronto IS COMING and will be at CITY HOTEL, LONDON On Tuesday, June 11, '07 ALL YOU THAT ARE BALD

The greatest evidence of the popularity of any given pastime is large attendance. Baseball undoubtedly is the most popular of all summer sports, and particularly is this applicable to London.

Vast crowds attend all of the local games, and the greatest of interest is shown in the results at all times. Realizing this fact, The Advertiser, as well as the complete service has ever been given by a London paper, and that the step is appreciated is evinced by the throngs which gather nightly in front of The Advertiser office when the bulletins are posted.

"LONDON, CANADA, HAS GONE WILD OVER BASEBALL. THE AMERICAN GAME SUPPLANTING EVEN THE CANADIAN SPORTS. BULLETINS ANNOUNCING ALL THE BIG LEAGUE RESULTS HAVE MADE THEIR APPEARANCE."

Not only are the results of the National, Eastern and American League games eagerly read on the bulletin board, but the results of the local games are looked for just as eagerly by a large number of people who are unable to attend the Saturday games themselves.

The Advertiser sporting bulletins are dispensed each evening and remain out until 8:30 a.m.
