There were scenes of wild excitement within the building and a great rush in which many were hurt outside.

ESTIMATE DAY IN THE HOUSE

Funds Voted for Operation of the I. C. R.—$250,000 To Be Added to Territory Loan.

Ottawa, Oct. 1.—In the House of Commons this morning a third reading was given to the bill to lend $250,000 to the Government of the Northwest Territories in addition to the regular grant of $1,000,000. The loan is without limit as to time, and will be charged up against the Territories in any future arrangement regarding the political status of the Territories.

The house then went into committee of supply on the item of $47,000 for a deep-water wharf at Sorel; $3,500,000 for working expenses on the I. C. R., and $250,000 for the Prince Edward Island Railway. Several members expressed a desire to have the system of bookkeeping on the Intercolonial altered, by abolishing the capital account and charging all expenditure to reserve, and also to afford some means of ascertaining which sections of the road pay and which do not. The Government declined to accept the suggestion.

The evening was spent largely in a discussion of the items for litigation in connection with the canals.

THE SENATE

Senator Scott moved the second reading of the bill to amend the act relating to ocean steamship subsidies. This bill provides for a subsidized steamship service between Canada and France. He explained that this law was rendered necessary by the treaty, which stipulated that Canadian goods should be carried direct to French ports.

Several items in connection with the canals were passed, and the house adjourned at 10:30 p.m.

BULGARIA PREPARES

Recruits Are Ordered Out Earlier Than Usual.

Sofia, Bulgaria, Oct. 2.—The war ministry has ordered out the annual contingent of recruits for October 14, instead of at the beginning of the year, as is usual. This step, though quite constitutional, has occasioned some surprise, considering the reported improvement in the general situation. While the conditions are undoubtedly most hopeful, there is a strong belief in many well informed quarters that the Macedonian question is still very threatening, and can only be settled by war. The Bulgarian Government therefore continues preparations for eventualities.

The case was given to the jury about 4 o'clock, and after being out for several hours, returned and stated that they were unable to agree. They were then dismissed. SOO WORKS MAY HAVE EXTENSION

Speyer & Co. Have Agreed to Accept a Partial Payment on Their Loan.

Philadelphia, Oct. 1.—Speyer & Co. have agreed to accept a partial pay-ment on their $5,000,000 loan to Con-solidated Superior Company, and if it can be made by Oct. 8, accompanied by satisfactory proof that the sure-ty debt with interest can be settled the firm will grant an extension of one, and perhaps two, months to the Miller protective committee and the board of directors who are working together in an effort to save the con-cern from total collapse.

This information was imparted yes-terday by interests affiliated with Speyer & Co., and was accompanied by the additional statement that only circumstances now unforeseen will change this attitude of leniency to-wards the company by the New York bankers.

There is still a feeling in financial circles that in attempting to raise the money needed the directors and Miller committee have an extremely difficult task ahead of them. But the com-mittee and directors are very hope-ful. The first payment is to be $1,000,000. Accompanying it must come satisfactory assurance that the re-mainder of the money with interest can be raised under the reorganization plan. It is certain that if the loan cannot be paid in the time spe-cified, Speyer & Co. will sell the securities.

Throughout yesterday members of the Miller committee, attorneys in-terested and board of directors of the corporation, held a conference at which plans for raising money were discussed.

Sanborn denied the rumor that some of the directors had tendered their resignations.

It is probable the company will dis-pose of its nickel mine in Sudbury district to a firm of English plate manufacturers.

TROOPS RETURNING.

Sault Ste. Marie, Oct. 1.—The mil-itia are all under orders to return to Toronto to leave here noon today by special train. The regulars will re-main longer. Everything is quiet. A goodly number of the ex-employees are accepting offers for employment from agents representing mining and lumbering interests as well as some railway contractors. The two rioters who were wounded by the police are considered entirely out of danger and progressing well. The rioters under arrest and in the district jail are to be tried on Monday next.

The Campaign Opened.

There were two great pronouncements on the fiscal question in the mother country yesterday. Mr. Chamberlain, in prefacing a series of articles which have appeared in the Daily Telegraph, outlined his plan for imperial preferential trade. Mr. Balfour spoke to many thousands at Sheffield, reaffirming the views to which he gave expression in his recent pamphlet. A campaign which will become historic, has fairly opened.

Mr. Balfour delivers a home thrust when he says that "our own colonies, our own flesh and blood, the very sinews of a growing empire, are building up a system of protection, that, when it reaches its logical conclusion, will make it as hard to export to them as to America or the other protective countries." The new Australian tariff has been framed on protective lines. In Canada the imports of British products were being strangled by a hostile tariff when it was relaxed in their favor; but powerful interests are now clamoring for higher duties against British goods. The Conservative party of this country is practically pledged to abolish the British preference if the mother country refuses to respond. When that party returns to power, as in the natural order of things it will some years hence, it will proceed at once to raise the duties against the world, Great Britain included, unless in the meantime the tariff relations of Canada and the mother country have been fixed in a scheme of mutual preference. But Mr. Balfour's policy involves no tariff on foodstuffs, and without a tariff on foodstuffs there can be no preference in the British market for the colonies which will make it worth their while to grant reciprocal favors. If the commercial consolidation of the empire is to have a place in the programme of the British Conservative party, Mr. Chamberlain's plan is the only consistent and practicable one. It is the only one that interests Canada. It makes little difference to us if Great Britain chooses to retaliate against the United States or Germany by taxing their finished products, since Canada is not yet a serious competitor of those countries in manufactures abroad, except in agricultural implements and one or two lines. Mr. Balfour's policy in its present form is purely domestic; Mr. Chamberlain's is imperial.

Mr. Chamberlain has addressed himself to the task of converting the British people to an acceptance of a tax on food, as the basis of his scheme. He complains that the "free food controversialist" ignores the fact that a large portion of the revenue of Great Britain is already raised by taxes on food and drink. Last year Great Britain raised by customs duties £31,600,000, the chief articles of consumption being: Tea, £5,792,966; beer, £2,524,119; cigars, £3,566; tobacco and snuff, £19,567,705; cocoa, £255,300; coffee, £114,341; currants, £106,939; dried plums, £25,909; figs, £48,730; prunes, £5,154; raisins, £138,154; spirits, £4,581,520; sugar, £6,399,227; wine, £1,449,587. Great Britain is the greatest tea-drinking country in the world, and the tax on tea falls on every family in the land. The tariff on tobacco and beer, customs and excise, might be called also a tax on the working classes, since these articles are so universally used in the old country. Mr. Chamberlain points to these taxes and says they will be reduced to compensate for taxes on grain and breadstuffs from the colonies. A duty on foreign grain and foodstuffs, he claims, will not raise the price to the consumers by the whole amount of the duty. In this Mr. Chamberlain opens up the much-disputed question as to whether the foreigner pays the duty. He argues that the foreigner will pay a portion of it, if not the whole, and that the cost to the consumer will be regulated mainly by supply and demand. Professional economists quarrel over the point, but Mr. Chamberlain cares little for theory.

While Mr. Balfour eliminates the food tax from his present programme, his divergence from Chamberlain is more apparent than real. If the Premier can ride into power again on a policy of retaliatory tariffs, the Chamberlain plan will be much easier of consummation. It is a far longer step than from protection to preferential tariffs. Mr. Balfour, in his address yesterday, said not a word against the merely taxing of foodstuffs, but principally stated that public opinion was not ripe for it. He is ready to take the step when the country supports him in so doing, and the task of converting public opinion he conveniently delegates to his colleague.

The man who has been caught smuggling is quite sure that the foreigner doesn't pay the duty.

It is now almost certain that the session at Ottawa will come to an end. The national expenditure this year is nearly $70,000,000, but this has become a $70,000,000 country.

The State Democratic convention in Massachusetts has declared in favor of reciprocity with Canada. That shows which way the wind is blowing.

The late Henry Cargill, of South Bruce, was one of the most popular members of the House of Commons, and his loss will be deplored on both sides of the chamber. He had opponents, but no enemies.

The United States tariff rests on the support of the farmers of the country. The great agricultural states in the middle west are solidly Republican. If the American farmer find their products hit by a tax in the British market, they are going to ask the reason why. And the moment they do that, Dingleyism is doomed.

It is hard to repress a smile when Mr. Chamberlain speaks of "the economic advantages our opponents enjoy in the shape of cheaper labor." The protectionists of the United States and Canada are always pointing to the "cheap labor" of England as a reason for high tariffs. How do they like the tables turned?

Mr. A. J. Magurn has his new edition of the Canadian Parliamentary Guide ready for distribution. The present work consists of 450 pages, covering all the latest political intelligence concerning members of Canadian cabinets, of legislatures, election returns (including the general election in Manitoba, July 29 last), census population, titled Canadians, etc. No one is better qualified than Mr. Magurn to prepare such a publication. He is a newspaper man of long experience. As an Ottawa correspondent for many years he has a wide acquaintance with public men and affairs, and is familiar with the best sources of information. The price of the book is $2, mailed free. Address A. J. Magurn, box 268, House of Commons, Ottawa.

Lost and Found.

[Philadelphia Record.] She lost her head when he proposed. But he, a trifle bolder, Made search for it distractedly. And found it on his shoulder.

Canada Strikes Her Gait.

An interesting schedule is presented by the Canadian Department of Trade and Commerce. Canada is shown to have outstripped the rest of the world in the rate of export trade increase during the last ten years. Japan follows as a close second, but there is a long gap between Japan and the third on the list, which is our own country. The figures below show the export trade ten years ago, that at the present time and the percentage of increase for the decade: Canada, $105,488,708; Japan, $104,074,103.25; United States, $1,655,785,126.25. In point of volume, Canada stands on the list as No. 12, but it is to be remembered that her population is only about that of the States of Pennsylvania. Her per capita export trade, as far as can be determined by available reports, now exceeds that of any other country, with the exception of the Netherlands.

There is much at the present time which indicates that Canada has "struck her gait" and is about to enjoy a temporary spurt at a pace which cannot be maintained. Reports show that she continues to receive an influx of immigrants far beyond that of preceding years. Her financial condition is sound, her industries are generally active and prosperous and her future is full of encouragement.

The Backward Student.

About Bopp.

[Toronto Star.] Why should a Canadian newspaper give way to excitement because the Premier of Canada discussed trade relations with one Herr Bopp, of Montreal, who is German consul agent? It is being said that Canada was made ridiculous in the eyes of the world and perhaps contemptible in the eyes of Germany by the Laurier-Bopp correspondence?

It seems that Herr Bopp is unknown in the courts of law. And the name of the man—Bopp! It is not a high-sounding name. It sounds like a cheap name, does Bopp. Now that the Premier of Canada has discussed trade relations with one Bopp and the fact is known in London and bruted about Europe, no Canadian will discuss trade relations with one Bopp in the face. We have all been cheapened, as an evening contemporary says, by the episode. It is almost as bad as if the Premier had stirred his tea with his fork in the presence of Major Maude.

The Future.

[S. E. Kiser.] Probably the darkest days are still away ahead somewhere; But let him shrivel in gloom who will, I'll not sit in despondent woe. The evil that is dreading grows With every wretched day. The worst of all our ills are those That were not nothing make.

The dearest and dearest day May still be on our side, Yet, since we can but guess it may, Why wait around in dread? The pains that come in haste Are suffered o'er and o'er, Our terror of makes dangers great That were but slight before.

The Lord's Day.

[Hamilton Times.] Employees of the Health Food Company of London, Ontario, who were on strike on Thursday, charged with working on the Lord's Day. The members of the company are said to be seventh day Adventists, and one of their pleadings is that Sunday is not the Lord's Day. Defenders of the Day insist that it is with interest the result of the case.

The World's Metropolis.

[Yorkshire Post.] Markets for strange foods, streets with none but alien shop names, summer tourists in alien garb, foreign restaurants, and in certain quarters a babel of strange tongues keep one in mind that London is the world's capital as well as England's. It has become more than ever so in recent years. The two jubilees, the coronation, the persecutions of Jews abroad, the increase of visitors from France as well as from America, have all amplified its ancient character of a cosmopolis.

Rice-Throwing a Pagan Custom.

[Ottawa Free Press.] Rev. Father Sloan, in St. Mary's Church yesterday, censured persons who indulge in rice throwing at weddings. The pastor's remarks applied to those who decorate churches by throwing the cereal on bridal couples before they have left the sacred edifice. The custom, which is of Pagan origin, he said, should certainly not be practiced in buildings consecrated to Christian worship. Those who greeted the newly married people in this rude fashion displayed, remarkably vulgar and very poor taste indeed.

PRESS COMMENT ON BALFOUR'S SPEECH

Organs of Both Parties Appear To Be Dissatisfied.

NO DEFINITE POLICY GIVEN

Cannot Retaliate Without Reorganizing the Tariff—Mr. Chamberlain's Compromise.

London, Oct. 2.—It is evident that Mr. Balfour's speech has failed to satisfy the press of either party. The burden of all the editorial comment this morning is that in spite of the enthusiasm evoked at Sheffield the speech leaves the question exactly where it was left by the Premier's recent pamphlet. The greatest disappointment is expressed on all sides at his failure to touch on the cabinet crisis or explain the outlines of his proposed policy. The Conservative organs like the Standard and the Morning Post, concur in the view that Mr. Balfour's position is impossible, and that while Mr. Chamberlain has adopted a leader-like standpoint, Mr. Balfour has no defined policy.

The Standard wants his proposals thrown into the shape of a working scheme. It says that his plans may be innocent or extremely dangerous, while it is still impossible to say whether he is repudiating Mr. Chamberlain's proposal to tax food or not. The Morning Post says that a policy of "negotiation" from which the colonies are excluded is singularly inopportune. Great Britain cannot retaliate without reorganizing her tariff, and it is impossible to say whether Mr. Chamberlain's effort to do this is a step in the right direction. The Liberal organs, on the other hand, are equally dissatisfied. The Economist says that the speech was evidently intended to take the wind out of Mr. Chamberlain's sails by securing the support of the avowed radicals. It says that his plans may be innocent or extremely dangerous, while it is still impossible to say whether he is repudiating Mr. Chamberlain's proposal to tax food or not.

This is no meager feast, but a right royal banquet—luxurious, sumptuous and grand—perfect works of art—the creation of a master hand—of colorings blending to perfection, each hue distinctive, yet in perfect harmony. The tints are soft and graceful, giving tone to all the surroundings. A room covered with such is more than half furnished. And yet with all this grandeur there is a quality of durability which will withstand the friction of the foot and still retain its brilliancy. These goods are such as were made for the English trade of Old London. They were personally selected by our Mr. Kingsmill during his recent tour in Europe, are of the latest designs, only having arrived this week and are now ready for your inspection. To all lovers of high-class art we extend a most cordial invitation to view these marvels from the best looms of the world. We spared neither time, labor nor expense to have them right. We are proud of the results attained, and can with truth say that such an exhibition of high-class novelties has never before been shown in this part of the country, neither can they be seen elsewhere.

KINGSMILL'S PREMIER BALFOUR FAVORS A RETALIATORY POLICY

Continued from page 1. play of supply and demand. There has been a development of which Cobden and his contemporaries never dreamed, the development of the trust system under protection. The phenomenon is so new that I dare scarce venture to prophesy what its development is likely to take; but you may be absolutely sure that in the alliance of trusts and tariffs there is a danger to the capital and enterprise of this country which acts and reacts not mainly upon the capitalist, for he is at liberty to move to those regions where his industry will be looked after, but it will fall with its heaviest weight upon the artisan and the labor classes, which are incapable of protecting their interests against such a calamity.

Now, if I have rightly described the dangers and evils we suffer, you are entitled to ask me whether I know of a cure. My answer will be disappointing. I know of no cure, but I do know of a palliation. The ill has gone too far. You will not get the great commercial nations of the world to abandon protection. I fear that you will not get the great self-governing nations to retract the steps which we have taken. I know of no other way to take. I am here, therefore, to recommend a palliation, which I believe to be still possible, indeed hoped and great uneasiness among all parties as to the condition of British trade in relation to the trade of the world. Mr. Chamberlain's speech of last night would not have had the effect it did if it had not fallen on prepared ground. I know of no other way to take. CUTICURA OINTMENT Purest of Emollients and Greatest of Skin Cures. The Most Wonderful Curative of All Time For Torturing, Disfiguring Skin Humours And Purest and Sweetest of Toilet Emollients. Cuticura Ointment is beyond question the most successful curative for torturing, disfiguring humours of the skin and scalp, including loss of hair, even compounded, in proof of which a single anointing preceded by a hot bath with Cuticura Soap, and followed in the severe cases, by a dose of Cuticura Resolvent, is often sufficient to afford immediate relief in the most distressing forms of itching, burning and scaly humours, permit rest and sleep, and point to a speedy cure when all other remedies fail. It is especially so in the treatment of infants and children, cleansing, soothing and healing the most distressing of infantile humours, and preserving, purifying and beautifying the skin, scald and hair. Cuticura Ointment possesses, at the same time, the charm of satisfying the simple wants of the toilet, in caring for the skin, softening the hands and feet, from infancy to age, far more effectually, agreeably and economically than the most expensive of toilet emollients. Its "Instant relief for skin-tormented babies," or "Sanative, antiseptic, cleansing," or "One-night treatment of the hands or feet," or "Single treatment of the hair," or "Use after athletics," cycling, golf, tennis, riding, sparring, or any sport, each in connection with the use of Cuticura Soap, is sufficient evidence of this.

Prosecution Closed Its Case by Calling Bishop McEvay.

It was 3:50 o'clock yesterday afternoon when the mother superior of the stand almost nine hours.

Witness was asked in regard to the money that she had sent to Montreal.

The mother superior also denied asking the plaintiff about her previous history, and repeated her story of the act of Miss Archer running excitedly to her room on one occasion and telling her that her hands had been scratched by the devil.

His Lordship Bishop McEvay, of London, was then sworn. Examined by Mr. Betts, he said he had an ecclesiastical connection with the society.

Before the next witness was called the chancellor stated that the question of wages would at least not be considered.

POOR "LO'S" TEEPEE

Enriching civilization has done away with "Poor Lo's" most picturesque attributes, reducing him to a very ordinary and oftentimes unattractive specimen of his species.

Not only is the gorgeous garb of buckskin, topped off with a eagle-plumed war-bonnet, and the beautiful elk-tooth dress, whose price now rivals the costliest creations imported from Parisian dressmaking establishments, becoming rare in camp and on the trail, but along with the elk and the buffalo has gone the primitive home of the red man—the picturesque teepee of skins.

These are the reasons why the number of little two-roomed red houses on the allotments of the Kiowa, Comanche and Apache Indians and tribes to induce his stubborn red wards to dwell in them; but nine times out of ten the buckskin-covered government houses stand empty and forsaken, while in the yard hard by looms up a couple of teepees.

The Rose of Wentworth

Eddie was admitted to see Philip as soon as it was thought that he was able to receive visitors, and his surprise and delight upon learning that Arley was his uncle Philip's wife can be better imagined than described.

"There has been a misunderstanding between Mrs. Paxton and myself, for which I was wholly on blame," Philip explained to him while Arley was out of the room. "I do not want the subject ever referred to hereafter, but I wish you to understand that it was entirely my fault that we were separated."

"Yes, sir," Eddie said, with a wistful look at him, as if both in sympathy and to show that he understood that he could do anything very wrong. "I thought," he added, "that she was not very happy when I saw her at the exhibition, but I'm sure she's much more beautiful than she was then! May I call her auntie?"

"If she likes you to do so, yes," and it is needless to add that Arley cheerfully granted him the privilege he desired.

At the end of the fortnight from the time that he began to improve, Philip was pronounced well enough to leave the hospital.

"My first work shall be to make home for my wife," he said on the evening before he was to go, "but I shall be obliged to go out of town on business for a few days first, and it is impossible to take you with me, as much as I dislike being separated from you just now. Will you go and take possession of my rooms until I return, or would you prefer to go back to Lady Elaine until I come for you?"

"I will go to her until you are ready for me, Philip," he said, with a smile that remained with him. "I shall be very lonely without you in a strange place. But," she added, a shadow flitting over her face, "it is absolutely necessary that you go. Cannot you send some one to attend to this business for you? I fear you are not able to travel yet, besides."

"Beside what my beloved?" she questioned, fondly but gravely, as she hesitated, and fearing that she was still doubting him somewhat.

"I cannot bear to let you go away from me, now that I have you back once more," she confessed, blushing like a shy girl, and hiding her face upon his shoulder.

"Oh Arley!" he cried, in a voice in which pain and joy were blended, "I do not deserve that you should love me like that, but if I could only be out from your memory and mind the past two years."

"Hush," she said, gently, "I do not believe that such a thing is possible. We have both needed just that discipline to fit us for the future."

"And is there no root of bitterness left in your heart? Way down in the deepest recesses of your soul, no scorn of contempt for me?"

"None, Philip," she answered, with a grave sweetness, "the remembrance of the past will gradually grow to be like a dream to me; and now I can only rejoice to find that the man whom I have loved is not a myth, an ideal, but a reality. Perhaps, Philip, if you had never been subjected to the temptations which have so beset you during these two years, you never would have known the strength of character which you possess."

"The weakness you should have said," he interrupted, bitterly.

"Nay, you are strong," she persisted, "for you have come forth from the battle a conqueror—you are like a hero who has fallen time after time before his assailing foes, but who has bravely struggled up again to oppose them, who has been desperately wounded, and will carry the scars of the conflict to the end of his life, but which go to show that victory crowned him at last."

"Your words are very comforting—you are very lenient in your judgment of me," he replied, sorrowfully, "but if I had not dragged you down with me—I could bear it better. Do you know," he added, earnestly, "that I would like the marriage service to be repeated over us? That other seems like a mockery—it was a mockery on my part, though Heaven knows that the vows which I have registered in my heart, since you have given yourself back to me, are as solemn and sincere as love and true repentance can make them."

Arley lifted her face, all shivering with tenderness and joy, and kissed him.

"Let us never refer to the past again, please," she said, "let us, though we have been husband and wife in the eyes of the world for two years, date our real marriage from now, and never again go back of it. I give myself to you without reservation; I love you, I love you, perhaps with even more of depth and tenderness than I did when you asked me, at Hazelmere, to be your wife. I have perfect faith in you, too, Philip, so do not let us mar our life with vain regrets or morbid re-remembering. The only thing that troubles me now is that you must leave me, but—your will not be long away," she pleaded, in conclusion.

"No longer than I can possibly help, dearest. I do not know just how much of an undertaking I have before me, but you may rest assured that I shall not remain away from my newly-recovered treasure a day longer than I am possibly helped."

The following morning Arley sat up and went back to Mordant House, to wait until that patience she could for his return.

Lady Elaine welcomed her back with delight.

"You," she said, between smiles and tears, "there is always a thorn with a rose," and I cannot bear to think that you will, perhaps, have to leave me again, and I am glad and thankful for your happiness, Arley, but I shall miss my sister."

"I expect I shall be between two fires all the time," Lady Elaine responded, smiling, "but when are you going to see Philip of our discovery, my Lady Alice?"

"When he returns; we are then to decide about our future home, and I cannot delay the matter longer, for of course a daughter of the house of Mordant will have a fitting residence in which to entertain her beloved sister and friends," Arley said, smiling, and having the slightest suspicion that Philip had taken those matters into his own hands, and was even then discussing with his steward the elegant furnishings which were to embellish Elmston in honor of the home-coming of his wife.

LONDON'S WANT JUNIORS TO WORK

Think That They Can Beat Petrolea Saturday.

LOCAL WRESTLER AFTER FITZ

Dan Patch Made Attempt to Lower His Record and Failed—General Sporting News.

Only President Gerrard and a few others turned out last night to attend the meeting of the football club, called at the Teumseh House. The night was an unfavorable one, and the meeting was postponed until tonight. The juniors are the people who are wanted to attend tonight's meeting, because it is thought that London can put a fast team in the field to meet Petrolea on Saturday. Every junior player is asked to turn out, as the club is determined to send a team to Petrolea that will win. The local men have a conviction that if a junior team gets out and hustles they can land the championship.

FOOTBALL.

THE FOOTBALL DAYS.

The football days have come again, the gladder of the year.

One side of Willie's nose is gone, and Tom Heaped on the field, the players jab, and punch, and cut, and stab, and they knock the breath from a care beneath, and cough without a care. They break each other's arms and legs, and pull joints out of place.

And here and there is one who gets his teeth kicked from his mouth.

The freshmen and the sophomore, be- smeared with grime, and the players, bathed in blood, and the junior down and kicking him in the chest.

The high school boy is carried home and gently laid on a cot.

While here and there a crowd of spectators, and a crowd of spectators, and a crowd of people get more than they paid for at the gate.

THE RING.

LOOKS LIKE PIPE.

The story to the effect that Bob Fitzsimmons would come here soon and wrestle William Mahon, of this city, is said to be a pipe-dream. Mr. Frank Passmore, Fitzsimmons' well-known writer of Hamilton, came through the city yesterday and incidentally met Mahon and tried to arrange a match between him and McLeod, the world's champion. Mahon would not bid himself to this, but said that he would wrestle Fitzsimmons, if it were possible.

It is not thought, however, that Fitzsimmons would come to a city of London's size except as a pasture. A wrestling match would go well in London, though, and it might be well to encourage such a thing.

Clothing That's Conclusively Best.

HERE'S nothing theoretical about Grafton's Clothing. It's practical. It is made for a particular clientele—made only for them—made by ourselves. It is made as custom tailoring—with all the care and regard for detail. The features of it are apparent with the putting on of the garment. It feels that it fits, that it was made for you. There's exclusiveness in design, exclusiveness in pattern—all factors in the make-up of satisfaction—factors of being well dressed.

Each grade has its special attractions, entitling it to preference over every contemporaneous offering.

The $10 grade is a leader at $10, because it discounts the best elsewhere at $12.50.

The $12 grade is a leader because it equals made-to-order clothing at $20 and $25.

The biggest grade and the biggest value grade of all is

THE $15 GRADE SUITS AND TOP COATS.

The variety is immense—but every style was carefully selected and every style is exclusive. You don't do the value justice until you compare it with the very best you can find anywhere else for $18 and $20. If you want the quiet elegance, it's here both in Suits and Top Coats; plain, but rich. If you want striking styles—in either Suits or Top Coats—they are here by the score; fancy, but genteel; extreme, but within the graces of good form.

A SUDDEN DEATH IN THE COMMONS

Mr. Henry Cargill, M. P. for East Bruce, Stricken Down Immediately After Speaking.

Ottawa, Oct. 2.—King death invaded the precincts of the House yesterday afternoon and struck down Henry Cargill, M. P. for East Bruce, with truly solemn suddenness.

At a few minutes to 5 o'clock Mr. Cargill was making a speech from his place on the floor of the House, and as the clock struck the hour he was battling with death in a combat from which he was destined to return no more to the place which has so long known him.

Having concluded his speech, Mr. Cargill left the chamber, and having put on his hat and coat, left the building by the west steps, or what is known as the Commons entrance. As he passed the threshold he staggered, and would have fallen on the stone steps had not Mr. Nathaniel Mills, postmaster to the Commons, who was entering at the time, caught him and laid him gently down.

Mr. Mills' call for help speedily brought Drs. Sproule, Kendall and Johnston, of Lambton, to Mr. Cargill's assistance. They thought he was suffering from some stomach trouble, though Dr. Sproule diagnosed the case as one of apoplexy, but it speedily became evident that there was serious fear from heart failure and symptoms of great organic disease. Hypodermic injections to stimulate the heart's action were resorted to, and the patient showed signs of recovery, but unfortunately these were only of temporary duration, though they repeatedly occurred.

Mr. Cargill was removed to the corridor, and finally to the ante-rooms of the clerk's apartment, where he passed quietly away shortly after half-past ten o'clock.

Dr. Powell, who has been in attendance on Mr. Cargill, was also present during a great part of the illness.

There is general feeling of intense regret amongst the members of the House irrespective of politics at his sudden demise, as Mr. Cargill was deservedly one of the most popular members of the House.

Mr. Cargill was a Conservative, and had for two Parliaments represented East Bruce.

GLLEN OAK.

Glen Oak, Oct. 1.—On Wednesday, Sept. 30, at 3 o'clock an exceedingly pretty wedding took place here, at the residence of Mr. William Paisley, when his daughter, Miss Minnie, was wedded to Mr. William Hardy. The interior of the festal decorated for the occasion, and the ceremony was performed under an arch of evergreens and flowers. Rev. Dr. Mace said the words that sealed the bond of union. Miss Edith, the eldest of Mr. Hardy's daughters, acted as bridesmaid, and the groom's brother, Mr. Samuel Hardy, performed the duties of best man. The guests of the bride and maid were very rich, being creamed in the bride carriage, a bouquet of bridal roses, and wore a wreath of orange blossoms, while the bridesmaid carried bridal roses and wore a picture hat of white chiffon, with white blouses. The bride's going-away gown was of green zebeline, with hat to match, and she looked her prettiest. After the ceremony the guests, about 100, sat down to partake of the temporary wedding dinner that had been provided. Those present were relatives and old friends. The bride was the recipient of many beautiful gifts, showing the esteem in which she is held. Mr. and Mrs. Hardy left on the 3:45 train for London, and after spending a few days with relatives there and in Hideron, will leave for Hamilton. May the richest blessings that earth can bestow follow them through many years of happy wedded life.
