TOO MUCH MARRIED

Con Van Alstine Has One Wife in Seattle, Another in the Klondike.

SUPREME COURT DECISION A MIXER

Tacoma Negro Shoots and Kills His Wife and Himself.

SENATOR C. K. DAVIS IS DEAD

Island of Guam Devastated—Kruger May Visit America—Millionaire Lumberman Dead.

Seattle, Nov. 28, via Skagway, Dec. 3.—Con Van Alstine now has two wives, one in the Klondike, the other in Seattle. Suit for bigamy will be instituted. Two years or more ago Van Alstine received judgment in the superior court here against his wife, who was a notorious Mrs. Mahaffy, and her sister, Emma Norton, claiming fraudulent marriage. The judgment ordered the wife to return $36,000 and granted him a divorce. Since that time Van Alstine has married his Klondike wife. Now comes a decision from the supreme court which reverses everything, leaving him still married to the adventuress.

Cold Lead for Two.
Tacoma, Nov. 28, via Skagway, Dec. 3.—Charles Butler, colored, a long time resident of this city, today shot his wife and himself, he dying instantly, his wife dying a few hours later at a hospital. His premeditated coolness in arranging to commit the crime was most remarkable. All was very carefully planned. He left a long typewritten letter giving a history of their marital infelicity, which was a fair statement and wholly free from bitterness and resentment against his wife. He shot the woman twice, then beat her with furniture and lastly tried to cut her into fragments with a broken lamp. She escaped from the room and instead of following her Butler shot himself dead. His letter states that he had also intended to kill their baby boy. Butler blamed his own mother for all his unhappiness.

Senator Davis Dead.
St. Paul, Nov. 28, via Skagway, Dec. 3.—Senator Cushman K. Davis died yesterday and the city and state are in mourning. Many messages of condolence have been received by his family from all over the United States. He had a long and painful illness. The body is now lying in state.

An Island Devastated.
New York, Nov. 28, via Skagway, Dec. 3.—Word has reached here of the devastation of the American Island Guam by a typhoon. Hundreds of houses were blown down. The American cruiser Yosemite dragged her anchor and was wrecked on the reef.

May Vist America.
New York, Nov. 28, via Skagway, Dec. 3.—Michael Davitt cables from Paris that Kruger says: "I never intended going to America to live, although I have had many pressing invitations. I am seriously considering a short visit to that country."

Millionaire Dead.
Detroit, Nov. 28, via Skagway, Dec. 3.—David Whitney, jr., millionaire lumberman and ship owner, died here today aged 70 years.

Ankeny Bobs Up.
Seattle, Nov. 28, via Skagway, Dec. 3.—Levi Ankeny, the Walla Walla banker and politician, who has been a tanding candidate for the U. S. senate for the past eight years, is again in the field against Turner.

Calderhead Goes Below.
Skagway, Dec. 3.—R. W. Calderhead has left here for Victoria and the Sound. Considerable mail awaited him here on his arrival from Dawson, but it furnished no information of his missing partner, Joseph S. Lancaster.

Gold Mine Trust.
London, Nov. 27, via Skagway, Dec. 3.—An immense gold mine trust has been formed here, principal among the stockholders being John D. Rockefeller, Cecil Rhodes, Albert Beit and Joseph Benjamin Robinson.

The Bank Ogilvie Again

The attendance to the league game on Saturday was every light owing to the cold weather and lack of advertising. The teams lined up at 8:10, both agreeing to play 20 minute halves, owing to the cold weather. The puck was secured by Thompson at the face off and a rush down put the bank goal in danger, but a good lift by Keenan relieved the pressure. After some desultory play to a good stop by Timmins the first goal was scored by Tiffin; time four minutes.

The puck was secured by the police at the face off and after some hard play around the bank goal Crosby scored a good goal for the police; time, two minutes.

The game was a little fast, with the bank having the best of it. Good hockey between Patterson and Tiffin resulted in Patterson putting a hard shot by Timmins; time, five minutes.

After some by play between the forwards, half time is called, with the score standing 2 to 1 in favor of the bank.

After the interval the police made a spurt and were determined to equalize matters but soon died away. Patterson secured the puck and taking it the length of the ice scored a fine goal; time, six minutes. The bank played a strong game and hovered around the police goal like a swarm of bees, and scoring two more goals the game ends with the score 5 to 1 in favor of the bank.

Timmins was in good form for the police, making some stops, but the defence needs lots of practice for the bank. Tiffin, Stevenson, Patterson and Keenan showed up well. More practice by the bank will make them hard to beat for the championship.

point; Bell, Stevenson, Tiffin, Patterson.

N. W. M. P. team: Timmins, goal; Bell, point; Switzer, cover point; Marshall, Crosby, Thompson, Muir.

The league game for Tuesday will be hotly contested between the A. E. and McLennan & McFeely.

Froze His Feet.
Billy Bows, a hunter, had a narrow escape from losing his life recently. Bows was on Australia creek looking for moose. He managed in some way to get into the creek, the result being a pair of badly frozen feet. He managed, however, to reach an occupied cabin where he was properly cared for. He is now being cared for at the Good Samaritan hospital. It is feared that, while he may not entirely lose his feet he will be a cripple for life.

N. A. T. Co. Testing Rock.
Mr. H. J. Powers, the N. A. T. & T. Co.'s mining expert, has returned to the city from a trip in the company's interest to Hunker and Bonanza. He has brought back some likely quartz which he will assay today and ascertain its value. Mr. Powers offers to test at the company's assay office any rock which shows evidence of value free of charge.

Much Sickness.
There is considerable sickness in Dawson and on the creeks at present, the leading causes being typhoid and pneumonia. Of the several deaths that have occurred within the past two weeks, nearly all are attributed to one or the other or a combination of the above mentioned ailments. The start is invariably considered nothing but an ordinary cold which passes rapidly into the serious stages, carrying off the victim before it is generally known that danger is apprehended. Hard colds are now epidemic and coughing is general. It is said that typhoid has never before been so prevalent at this season of the year in the history of the Klondike.

Will Live High.
Friday night someone without fear of a sulphurous future stole a turkey and goose from in front of the Hoffman Grill on Third street. The owners wish to notify the thief that if he will return tonight they will present him with some cranberry sauce and oyster stuffing.

The Bank Ogilvie Refuses

Mr. Girouard starts for the outside within a day or two, and, as was published in Saturday's Nugget, his destination is Ottawa. Exactly why Mr. Girouard is going is not known, but enough has been learned to make it sure that his journey is not wholly one of pleasure, although Commissioner Ogilvie refused to say this morning, the exact object of the trip.

The truth of the matter was given to a Nugget representative by Attorney Hulme, of the firm of Tabor & Hulme, who conducts Thomas O'Brien's law business.

Mr. Hulme said when questioned that the reason Mr. Girouard was going to Ottawa was because Mr. O'Brien had a bill against the council in connection with the tramway, and that Mr. Ogilvie, as commissioner, had refused to pay it, therefore Mr. Girouard is going to Ottawa to lay the whole matter before the authorities there.

The extent of the bill or its details could not be learned, but it is naturally inferred that the account is a heavy one.

KRUGER'S SPEECH

At Marseilles Says the War Will Last Till Boers all Die

BUT THAT INDEPENDENCE IS HELD

He Characterizes War as Being Unnecessarily Barbarous.

PREACHED IN PARIS SUNDAY

Minneapolis Newspaper Man Stabs and Kills Young Millionaire—Woman in the Case.

Marseilles, Nov. 22, via Skagway, Dec. 1.—Kruger landed here today and was given a tremendous ovation. Delegation after delegation waited upon him and many addresses were made. Kruger was borne on an irresistible wave of enthusiasm to his hotel. When he landed Kruger made a speech in which he said:

"I believe if England had been better informed she never would have consented to this war, which has been most cruel. The war has reached its last stage of barbarism. During my life I have had many fights with the savage tribes of Africa, but never saw a more barbarous war than is being fought now. Property has been burned, farms devastated and lives needlessly sacrificed; but we will fight to the end. We know our cause is just and we will fight with eternal abandon. I assure you that if the Transvaal and Orange Free State must lose their independence it will be when all Boer people, men, women and children, are destroyed."

He Holds Services.

Paris, Nov. 25, via Skagway, Dec. 1.—There being no church of Kruger's persuasion here, he held services today in his own apartments. After a great street demonstration he appeared on the hotel balcony and made a speech which was frequently interrupted by anti-British yells.

It is expected that Kruger will leave on Thursday for Holland.

Still Critical.

St. Petersburg, Nov. 26, via Skagway, Dec. 1.—The condition of the czar is still critical.

About Women.

Minneapolis, Nov. 25, via Skagway, Dec. 1.—Frank H. Hamilton, a well known newspaper man killed Leonard Day, a young millionaire, in the billiard room at the West hotel today. The fight was a general one and was about women. Hamilton is in jail. The latter is also of a prominent and wealthy family. He killed Day by stabbing him.

MONDAY, DECEMBER 3, 1900.

AN ALL YEAR CAMP.

The theory that the Klondike is exclusively a camp for winter diggings has been proven by long experience to be entirely erroneous. In the early days of placer mining in this territory it was accepted without question that winter time was the only season when dirt could be successfully taken out, and the idea that summer work can be prosecuted to any extent is of comparative recent origin.

The successful operation of summer work has come about largely as a matter of necessity. If all creeks in the district were as rich as Eldorado there would have been no necessity for practicing economy in developing the district. To the fact that so large an amount of ground of comparatively ordinary richness has been discovered, must be attributed the extraordinary efforts that have been put forward to prosecute summer work.

In order to pay for its development such ground must be worked by economical methods. Obviously, ground which will run from fifty cents to twenty-five dollars to the pan can be worked with much less regard for economy than ground which will not average above fifteen cents.

The steam thawer, operated in summer time, when one handling completes the entire work, has solved the problem. So generally has this become recognized that it is probably safe to say that more than one-half of the work of placer mining in the Yukon territory will hereafter be done in summer time, the winter work being confined largely to creek beds which cannot be worked except when the ground is solidly frozen.

As a result, there is no distinctly idle season, operation being distributed, according to the nature of the ground, over the entire twelve months of the year. The Klondike is neither a winter nor summer camp. It is an all year proposition.

REQUIRES A FACILE PEN.

On Wednesday of this week, the contest for the prize of $50 offered by this paper for the best story contributed for publication in our special holiday issue will close.

All contributors are requested particularly to see that their respective manuscripts are in the Nugget office on the date mentioned. By the terms of the contest none received after the 5th inst. will be considered.

This move inaugurated by the Nugget has served to stimulate interest in literary matters to a marked degree and will demonstrate to a certainty the possibilities of the Klondike country as a source of original literary material. India, Africa and Australia have proven fruitful in this respect, each having been celebrated in song and story until their characteristic features are matters of common knowledge to all readers of contemporary literature.

There is no reason why the same thing should not be true of the Yukon territory. The material is here in plenty, the only requirement being the facile pen which will properly portray the situation as it is.

We think our prize story contest will constitute a very good start toward a solution of the matter.

The local water company is to be congratulated upon the success which has met their efforts in keeping the water mains open thus far during the winter. We hope that no greater difficulties than those which have already been overcome will be met during the balance of the cold season. No greater inconvenience to the community could be imagined than the necessity of again resorting to the river for water for household purposes.

The News weared the public with its tale of woe respecting its French-Canadian editorial as much as it did when the subject of "exclusive telegrams" was under discussion. It is so seldom that a new idea ever illuminates the columns of our contemporary that when one does happen, by chance, to creep in, it is treated by the News with the veneration due a patron saint.

The prevalence of severe colds and diseases resulting therefrom is somewhat alarming. Every precaution must be taken to avoid general sickness or our reputation as a healthful community is liable to suffer.

St. Andrew's night has gone by, but the memory of it will linger long with those whose pleasure it was to attend the splendid event.

Catastrophes in the United States.

The greatest conflagrations which the United States has ever had were the one in Chicago in 1871, in which $199,000,000 of property was destroyed; the fire in Boston in 1872, in which the damage was $80,000,000; and the blaze in New York in 1835, in which 600 warehouses were destroyed, and the damage was $30,000,000. As the population of New York at that time was only about 250,000, or about like that of Newark, N. J., now, the loss was severer proportionately than one many times larger would be in 1900. Chicago's fire, though—and Chicago had a population of only a little over 300,000 at the time—was the most destructive which ever occurred anywhere in the world, with the possible exception of that in Moscow in 1812. Chicago's certainly exceeded the damage at the conflagration in London, which is called the Great Fire, which occurred in 1666.

Johnstown, Pa., in 1889 furnished the most destructive of the floods (Johnstown's being from a bursting reservoir) of the United States, until that at Galveston on Sept. 9, 1900. The property loss at Johnstown was approximately $10,000,000, and the loss of life at 2150. The destruction at Galveston was over 5000 in life and about $30,000,000 in property. The bursting of a reservoir in Mill River valley in Massachusetts in 1874 destroyed several little villages and drowned 150 persons. Floods on the Mississippi have frequently destroyed from $5,000,000 to $10,000,000 of property at a time, and more than once drowned from 1000 to 1500 people.

The most destructive tornado which ever hit a large city in the United States was that which destroyed 400 lives and $10,000,000 in property in St. Louis in 1896. Louisville, the second largest city ever struck in the United States by a tornado, lost 100 lives and $2,500,000 of property in 1890. A tornado ravaged the coast of Georgia and South Carolina in 1893 which destroyed 1000 lives and $2,000,000 of property. The most remarkable collection of tornadoes which ever visited the United States at any one time was on Feb. 9, 1884, which affected Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, Georgia, Mississippi, Tennessee, Kentucky and Illinois, sixty distinct storms being traced on that day in those states, in which 1000 persons were killed and 15,000 buildings destroyed.

Charleston, S. C., in 1886 had the severest earthquake ever experienced in a city of the United States, in which the destruction of life was 50 and that of property $5,000,000. New Madrid, Mo., and the lower Mississippi valley had a series of earthquakes shocks in 1811 which destroyed many villages, but the aggregate losses were not as great, owing to the region being sparsely populated, and most of it having no people at all, as in Charleston.

The coast of the Atlantic and of the Gulf of Mexico has had many hurricanes and a few tidal waves, but none of them approached in destructiveness that which has just occurred at Galveston. With characteristic American courage, elasticity, and adaptability, however, the afflicted communities quickly recovered from the effects of these disasters. New York more than doubled in population in the 15 years immediately following its great fire in 1835. Chicago has five times as many inhabitants now as it had at the time of its conflagration in 1871. Before the embers of Boston's fire a year later were put out the property owners of the burned district were offered more for the land which was covered than was asked a day earlier for the land and the buildings which were upon it. A new and greater Galveston is already rising on the ruins of the old. This is the American way.—Leslie's Weekly.

The Treasure Island.

Some days since mention was made in this department of the fact that Los Angeles business men were preparing to send out an expedition to look for great riches on an island off the coast of Alaska. The greatest secrecy has been maintained regarding this project, and even now no very clear statement can be made.

It appears that a short time ago there came to Los Angeles a sea captain who had been shipwrecked on the island in question, bringing with him samples of beach sand which he had taken from the island when he made his escape. He claims that there is an immense quantity of sand of the same richness in gold as that which he exhibits, and the mildest estimate is that it runs to $500 per ton. He seems to show faith in his own discovery, asking simply that an expedition be fitted out at an expense of $25,000, to be in charge of Los Angeles men, when he will guide the party to the island. In case the conditions there prove to be just as he has described them he is to receive $75,000 from the Los Angeles men; otherwise he is to get nothing for escorting them to the island.

Naturally the captain has not revealed the location of the island to any one, not even the investors in the syndicate which has been formed, for his alleged secret is his stock in trade. Of course, if there are miles of sea beach which run to $500 per ton in gold, only requiring washing to recover it, it is about the richest thing ever known, and even the wonderful story of "Treasure Island" may be discounted.

It is understood that there has been no difficulty in getting up the syndicate, and that a vessel will leave for the island in the course of a few days, spending the winter there, ready to begin work early in the spring, if nothing can be done during the winter.

The members of the syndicate, however, are most reticent, and while it is known that a wholesale merchant of Los Angeles is president, and that several of the leading bankers are members, most of the members are unknown, and no one wishes to be advertised as being counted in. There is evidently a feeling on the part of all that possibly the stories told are too good to be true, and they do not care to become known as rainbow chasers. But, at the same time, their confidence in the enterprise is sufficient to warrant them in "taking a flyer" on the quiet, in the hope that it may be proven to be as described.—Los Angeles Herald, Oct. 23.

Taught Chinese Emperor.

"When Kwang Hsu was a child there were two foreign stores in Pekin that had been established without permission from the Chinese government. As they were on Legation street, they seem to have been too unimportant to attract official attention. Yet these same stores were destined to have a mighty influence on the future of China. One of them was kept by an illiterate Dane, who sold foreign tops, notions and dry goods such as might please the Chinese or be of use to the scanty European population of the capital. By chance, some eunuchs from the imperial palace bought toys in this shop for his infant majesty.

REGARDING AUTOMOBILES

Destined to Become Factors in Wars of the Future.

Military Automobiles Will Be Much Used Instead of Cavalry Horses.

One of the most important features of the recent maneuvers was the extensive use of automobiles to which a thorough test was given, as noted heretofore. The officials took nothing for granted, but put them all to a thorough test, with the most satisfactory results. As is well known, the question of the uses of automobiles in military operations is one which now occupies the mind of all military authorities. To France must be given the credit of having first taken up the matter seriously, and for having brought it within range of practice. The good work done in the maneuvers was the result of years of experimenting, and therefore it was possible to employ several kinds of automobiles, each one well adapted to the use to which it was put.

Military automobiles can be put in one of three classes:

1.—For carrying passengers.
2.—For the transportation of light material.

3.—Traction automobiles for the conveyance of heavy material. Those of the first class resemble closely the automobiles used by private individuals. They include Dion-tricycles, which are employed by the general staff for the rapid transmission of orders and dispatches. These tricycles are painted a dull gray, that being the color most difficult to distinguish at a distance. More than 20 of this pattern were employed during the maneuvers under Gen. Brugere. The Decamille carriage for three persons is used for carrying officers. An omnibus seating eight, made by Panhard & Levasor, was also used. An express automobile, manufactured by Mors company, with seats for four, ran at the rate of 37 1/2 miles an hour. Five of these were used. The general automobile carriage was manufactured by the Pengot company. It is a coupe of special form, with an eight-horse power motor, and makes nearly 20 miles an hour. It seats five besides the chauffeur. In front are two seats for a mechanic and an orderly. In the middle is the general's coupe proper, for himself and staff, furnished with wardrobe, bureau and two lamps. At the back there is an apartment for two members of the staff, with a little table, a lamp, hooks for swords, etc.

Among those for transportation of material is a surgery automobile, which is practically a miniature hospital. The seat is for the driver and two hospital aides. The partition can be opened, and inside is packed a folded operation table and necessities. The center of the car is divided into a dozen compartments, each one of which contains a case of medicines. On the top of the carriage are two big cases containing surgical instruments and the larger articles required. Behind is a room for two doctors, furnished with a lamp, table, hooks, etc. Under each seat is a reservoir of six and a half gallons of water. At one side of the door, at the back, there is a small cupboard, containing a sterilizer, from which water can at any moment be procured. At the other side of the door a ladder is fixed, by means of which one can climb on the roof, where the stretchers, etc., are kept. A folded tent is so arranged that when it is open it can be used as operating or consulting room, one side of which is formed by the back of the carriage itself. This automobile, which is also painted gray, has a motor of ten-horse power, and travels at the rate of from two and one-half to ten miles an hour.

The postal automobile has a speed of from four and one-half to 17 1/2 miles. The telegraph van has a petroleum motor. Its maximum speed is 17 1/2 miles. The telegraph automobile can travel 20 miles an hour, and is very ingeniously constructed. Behind the front seat is a movable partition. When the partition is raised the operators, sitting in front, turn around to the apparatus. At the same time two electricians at the back establish communication with the wires.

The third class comprises those used for the transportation of heavy artillery, regimental baggage, bridge materials, etc. They are really very powerful traction engines of moderate speed. The Scottie engine drew siege cannon weighing 50 tons up slopes of 20 in 100. They will run 45 miles without having to coke. As for the price, they cost less than horses, and the repairs do not cost so much as relays of horses. The coke costs about one-quarter the amount of horse feed and does not take up one-twentieth of the room.

Deserving of particular notice is the Renault automobile, with signaling apparatus, which was tested for the first time at the maneuvers. It is an ordinary automobile, with petroleum motor of three horse power. In the rear is a dynamo, operated directly from the motor. The axle of the auto is broken by a slip joint, and can be replaced in a moment by the axle of the dynamo. This dynamo operates a projector, which formed of an arc lamp with horizontal carbons and a crystal mirror of parabolic form. The stand and support of the projector are of aluminum, for the sake of lightness, with several lengths of wire, which makes it possible to operate the projector at some distance from the auto. A table, with indicating instruments, is stowed in front of the auto. Experiments showed that it was possible to read a newspaper in the light thrown at a distance of two and one-half miles from the instrument.—Ex.

Glacial Phenomena.

In an article on "Recent Progress in Geology," by Prof. Lawson of the University of California, in the International Monthly, he says:

"A close study of glacial phenomena has been one of the characteristics features of geological research of the past decade, and important results of a general kind have been reached. The explorations of the officers of the Canadian geological survey in the far north, the work of Dawson, Tyrrell, McConnell and Low, have given us very valuable information for regions where field observations are of prime importance for any general theory of the distribution and movement of the ice of the glacial epoch. As a result of these explorations it seems now well settled that the old idea of a polar ice cap and even its successor, the single continental ice sheet, must give way to the conception of several centers of dispersion, of which the Greenland ice sheet of the present time is a type and living illustration. The absence of glacial phenomena in northern Alaska, the occurrence of glacial drift from the south at the mouth of the Mackenzie river, of drift from the west on the west side of Hudson bay, and from the east on the east side, the non-glaciation of a long belt to the east of the Canadian Rockies, these and other facts of a similar order have led the Canadian geologists to a recognition of at least three distinct centers of dispersion of the ice of glacial time. They are named the Cordilleran, the Keewatin, and the Labradorian glaciers, the names indicating the regions from which the ice flowed in all directions. Not only were these three great glaciers distinct from one another geographically, but, according to Tyrrell, they were not strictly synchronous. This energetic explorer and writer cites evidence to show that the more westerly or Cordilleran glacier had greatly shrunken and perhaps had almost disappeared before the Keewatin glacier had attained its maximum development, and that the latter was in turn, on its decline at the time of the maximum extension of the Labradorian glacier. It cannot as yet, however, be claimed that the succession of these great glaciers in time sufficiently well established to merit unqualified acceptance, and it will require an extended and severely critical study of the regions of confuence of these great ice sheets to properly test Tyrrell's hypothesis."

Mr. and Mrs. Mills, who own the big restaurant on King Solomon's Hill, prepared a big dinner for all the bachelors on the hill. Numerous invitations were issued, and the old sour doughs had a "hi-yu" time.

Donald McKinnon, discoverer of the conglomerate on Indian river, to which there was such a big stampede last summer, sold a three-quarter interest to an English syndicate for $15,000 cash.

Last Wednesday evening Mr. C. D. Blodgett had one of his five pups killed by a wolverine. The following morning the animal was tracked up Queen gulch at 22 below Bonanza.

Mr. C. F. Smith has severed his connection with the Magnet roadhouse, and will leave for the outside in a few days. Mr. Smith has made many friends and his genial countenance will be missed at this popular resort.

The Anglo-Klondike Co., of Fox gulch, under the able management of Mr. Hugh Packwood, is making extensive preparations for getting water to the gulch for next spring. Three and one-half miles of ditch is now constructed, and 1400 feet of 12-inch pipe will be used to carry the water into Fox gulch.

A masquerade ball was given at the Raymond hotel at Grand Forks last Thursday evening which was largely attended. Many of the guests were masked and some very fine costumes exhibited. Those present were: Mesdames Protzman, Fowells, Raymond, Kline, Van Buskirk, Kline, Reily, Crouse, Green, McDowell; Misses Langset, Johnson, Baxter, Ruthstrum, Doring; Messrs. Hall, Hickey, McDowell, Hamil, Bjewenmark, Van Buskirk, Dennis, J. Herron, Flannagan, Ward, Green, Berggreen, Main, B. Johnson, Wanceowen, Say, Birmston, Nordhal, B. E. Johnson, T. S. Herron, Pearson, Gorst, Sugrue, Leroy, T. Herbert, W. Herbert, Collins, Fletcher, Jones, Edwards and Lum.

America's Great Opportunity.

In this practical world there is nothing quite so great as a great opportunity.

During the past twelve months much has occurred in England. More than 200,000 troops, the flower of British manhood, have been chasing Boers in South Africa, and have been causing the government to spend millions of dollars a day, and to lay the hand of taxation heavily upon the people. With the absence of part of England's working force and with the presence of the financial problem, the sharp-witted American saw his chance. This has happened not only in regard to the transportation problem in London, not only in respect to the building of large industries on American plans and the profitable employment of American capital.

England made millions out of our civil war and did not lose anything in our war with Spain. Now it is the turn of the United States.

In round numbers, we are now sending from our shores $4,000,000 worth of exports every day. Of this over $1,000,000 per day is in manufactured goods.

Take the increase by decades. The figures given are quoted from a statement from the treasury department: "In 1860 the exports of manufacturers averaged three and one-half millions per month; in 1870 they were a little over five millions per month; in 1880 they were less than ten millions per month; in 1890 they were twelve and one-half millions per month; in 1899 they were twenty-eight millions per month, and in the fiscal year 1900, thirty-six million dollars per month." More than three-fourths of these exports go to Europe.

In big things this country leads so markedly that sometimes it hardly seems that it has any competition. In wealth it is at least 25 per cent a head of any other nation. In coal and other resources it has a paramountcy—to borrow a word from our current politics—which towers beautifully. In the annual products of its manufactured industries it is nearly 50 per cent ahead.—Saturday Evening Post.

A Splendid Feature.

The flashlight picture of St. Andrew's ball by Goetzman has turned out most successfully, and it is the largest and best picture ever taken in Dawson of a public gathering. Twenty-five dollars' worth of powder was used in obtaining the negative. Pictures can be obtained at the photograph gallery on Second street, near the corner of First avenue.

MONTAGUE MARTIN BURIED

With Church of England and Arctic Brotherhood Rites.

First Time Latter Have Been Used in History of Local Camp—A Large Funeral.

The funeral exercises over the remains of the late Montague Martin who died at the Good Samaritan hospital Friday from peritonitis, the outgrowth of typhoid fever, were conducted at 2 o'clock in McDonald hall, the camp of the Arctic Brotherhood, of which order he was a member, the camp being in charge of the funeral. The hall was beautifully and befittingly decorated, at the rear being a life size bust crayon picture of the deceased, on it being the emblems of the Arctic Brotherhood, the pick, shovel and gold pan. This beautiful piece of work was executed by W. M. Kohm, an artist of attainment and himself an enthusiastic member and worker in the order. Rev. Naylor, of the Church of England, conducted the exercises for the church which, as all know, is the most beautiful funeral service of all the churches. At the conclusion of the church service, Camp Dawson, No. 4, Arctic Brotherhood, was called to order by Arctic Chief F. W. Clayton, when the following impressive service was performed over the remains of the departed brother:

A. C.—I am about to convene the camp of the last pass. Arctic Trail Guide, are all the brothers present and in their proper places?

Arctic Trail Guide Geo. Murbarger—All present except one. The place of Brother Montague Martin is vacant. Weary of the long and perilous journey over the trail, he has pitched his last tent and is resting from life's toils.

A. C.—Arctic Recorder, have you an information relative to Brother Martin's absence?

Arctic Recorder G. G. Cantwell—I find this set of resolutions on my desk. The resolutions were read by Dr. J. A. Cleveland and were:

Whereas, It has pleased our Heavenly Father, the supreme head of all brotherhoods, to gently withdraw the curtain between the two spheres of man's existence, and from the celestial domain reach forth beyond the veil of that superior shore and tenderly pluck from the tree of life and gather unto himself Montague Martin, our beloved brother, a wholesome branch made glorious in the early summertime of its fruition, after more than 30 years in which he toiled manfully with and through the changing conditions and seasons of earth life, the residuum of which has crowned and robed him in a regalia rich in precious jewels for his wearing in that country not made with hands. In him the principles of our order were personified. He was a son of God. His was an honest God, that manifest in him the true friend, kind neighbor and upright and honorable citizen. Of a sympathetic and artistic nature, he was an ideal companion, and many were made better because of him. The great hardships endured and obstacles overcome with manly courage upon that terrible Teslin trail by him as he journeyed from his southern home to this arctic north-land well qualified him to be enrolled and honored within the sacred shrine of our order.

Resolved, That while we cannot fully understand infinite purposes, and while we mourn our loss on earth, may we not hope and trust that all is well and for the best as seen and understood in the great and loving heart of our Heavenly Father, and while we wait before the Seen and Unseen, may we not go to that source of all help for guidance, and in humble submission bow our heads to His will and lay our sorrowing hearts upon his sympathetic breast, and whispering, "Thy will be done," fall asleep comforted, conscious that our every waking moment will inspire a more perfect understanding of the master's will and way. And while we journey heartsome and wearily midst earth's gathering shadows and storms unspent, far from the fulfillment of ambitions, may we not realize that our departed Arctic Brethren are not dead, but ever living and even ministering angels, and in that consciousness be inspired to grander and nobler lives.

Resolved, That we, the Arctic Brethren here assembled to do honor to our departed dead, with bowed heads and sorrowing hearts extend our heartfelt sympathy to his relations, deprived of the privilege of participating at these, the last sad rites. May the Comforter gently steal away across land and sea to the home of his childhood, and breathe the message so tenderly that his beloved mother, father and dear ones may be comforted, their sorrows overcome by the knowledge that the grave has no victory, that it is but the portals through which consciousness of the life eternal that now is, is more fully realized. And now, while we bow before this altar let us dedicate anew the blessing of our beloved order to the mourner's cause, trusting that earth's choicest blessings may be their's until the great living Master calls them to join their dear ones in the summer land, where there is no parting and where the home's sweetest melody, love's tenderest ties are never broken. Be it further Resolved, That copies of these resolutions be sent to the relatives of our departed brother and to the press of the city, and a copy spread upon the records of the Arctic Brotherhood of Dawson.

On motion the resolutions were adopted.

A. C.—Keeper of Nuggets, what is Brother Martin's record at your station? Keeper of Nuggets, R. A. Kalenborn—His record is clear. His account is closed. To his credit are deeds of truth, charity and brotherly love.

A. C.—Arctic Chaplain, what is the record of our absent brother at your station?

Arctic Chaplain J. S. Cowan—Justice, charity and truth ever guided our brother in his dealings. He believed in and practiced the principles of the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man.

A. C.—Vice-Arctic Chief, what is the record of Brother Martin at your station?

Vice A. C. C. H. Wells—A record of good deeds. A true, brave and honest man.

"None knew him but to love him None named him but to praise."

A. C.—Past Arctic Chief, what more can be said of our dead brother?

Past Arctic Chief L. R. Fulda—Dead? Our brother but sleeps. He has but stepped from the trail of life to rest in the Supreme Camp beyond, there to receive from the Chief of all brotherhoods a well merited reward.

"There is no death; An angel form with silent tread Walks o'er this earth. He bore our loved brother away And then we call him dead."

Arctic Chief Clayton—How is the record with you brother Arctic?

All responded, "It is well." A select quartette then sang "It Is Well With My Soul" and the exercises were completed with the Arctic Chaplain's invocation.

The members of the brotherhood all wore the regalia of the order which is parkeys, white for members and assorted colors for officers and preceded the remains to the cemetery. The pallbearers were, from the camp of A. B.'s, Messrs. L. L. James, D. A. Shindler and E. J. Fitzpatrick; from the ranks of deceased's outside friends, Messrs. F. C. Wade, F. E. G. Berry and J. A. Davidson. Interment was in the Hill-side cemetery.

McGovern Lost a Cat.

Last evening at a small social gathering the freaks of animals were being discussed, and someone said something about the recently published Clark Russell experiences of Dr. Shoff's tearful past on the Island of Maltese. This brought to mind a more recent experience of J. R. McGovern, who mourns the untimely death of what he believes to have been the finest cat that ever killed a rat, or had her tail trod upon in the Klondike.

"The last time I came in," said the bereaved gentleman, "I stopped a few days in Seattle, and when I came away, Venus (that's the name I gave her) followed me aboard the steamer, and made the trip with me to Skagway. She was a pleasant traveling companion, sharing my stateroom without using my tooth brush or wearing any of my clothes, or otherwise making herself obnoxious.

"When we arrived at Skagway I didn't know of course that Venus was going to Dawson, nor did I learn it till I left Whitehorse, when I discovered her curled up and purring in my berth.

"Well, without discussing the probabilities of how she got from Skagway to Whitehorse, it will be enough to say that she came on to Dawson and made her home in my office, where she seemed perfectly happy and content, till one day I had to make a trip to the creeks, and while I was gone Venus passed away."

"That was too bad, Mr. McGovern, how did it happen?" asked a lady who has a confessed weakness for cats.

Tears actually stood in McGovern's eyes as he replied: "Next to my office in the A. C. office building are the Board of Trade rooms, and one night while I was away Frank Clayton, Jack Emerson and R. M. Thompson were smoking and telling each other funny stories in there and Venus went in. They smoked cigars from the special box of Secretary Clayton, and when they couldn't stand it any longer they went out and closed the door behind them, and Venus deliberately stayed in the room. She was asphyxiated."

"Play us something soulful," said one who knew Mac, and the sobs of the company were drowned in the music from the piano.

Thanksgiving on Gold Run.

The Gold Run residents had a typical Yankee Thanksgiving, one of the prominent features of the day being a turkey shoot in the morning on claim 36 when upwards of 20 copies of the great American bird were disposed of, and in nearly every cabin on the creek could later in the day be detected the scent of baking turkey.

In the evening the entire populace congregated at the home of Messrs. Allen and Wheeler where a Thanksgiving dance was given, an excellent supper being served by Mr. and Mrs. Lucas. Among those present were: Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Rogers, Mr. and Mrs. Sola, Mr. and Mrs. Carlo, Mr. and Mrs. Davies, Mr. and Mrs. Herrin, Mr. and Mrs. Morrell, Mrs. Baisley, Mrs. Gadel, Mrs. O'Dell Mrs. Baspron, Miss Evans, Miss Noss, Miss Keeny, Miss Sullivan and all the young and single men on the creek. Music was furnished by the Jewel Brothers' orchestra.

PAYING FOR A MEAL.

It Was Worth a Shilling to Pick Those Bones.

Colonel Ebenezer Sproat, of Revolutionary fame, was born and bred in Middleboro, Mass. He was always fond of a joke and was quick to seize an opportunity to indulge his propensity, as the following incident, related by Dr. Hildreth, well illustrates. His father, also a Colonel Sproat, kept a tavern. One day while Ebenezer was at home on a furlough three private soldiers, on their return from the seat of war, called for a cold luncheon.

Mrs. Sproat set on the table some bread and cheese with the remnants of the family dinner, which her son thought rather scanty fare for hungry men. He felt a little vexed that the defenders of the country were not more bountifully supplied. The soldiers, after satisfying their appetites, asked him how much they should pay. Ebenezer said he would ask his mother. He found her in the kitchen.

"Mother," he said, "how much is it worth to pick those bones?"

"About a shilling, I guess," she answered. The young officer returned to the soldiers, and taking from the barroom till 3 shillings and smiling genially upon them, gave each man one and with good wishes sent them on their way. Mrs. Sproat soon after came in and asked Ebenezer what he had done with the money for the soldiers' dinner.

In apparent amazement he exclaimed: "Money! Did I not ask you what it was worth to pick those bones, and you said a shilling? I thought it little enough, for the bones were pretty bare, and I handed the men the money from the till, and they are gone."

Mrs. Sproat could not find heart to reprove her favorite son for this misinterpretation of her words, and then she, too, loved a joke, and so, after an instant's glum look, she laughed and said it was all right.—Youth's Companion.

Ants Invent a Wagon.

"There are a good many ants of different varieties on the lot at my country place, near Covington, and last year I began to make a systematic study of their habits," says a contributor to the New Orleans Times-Democrat. "Near one of my flower beds is a colony of small red ants that are extremely industrious in collecting food, and they frequently perform the most astonishing engineering feats in transporting heavy burdens to their home.

"Not long ago I watched a party of about a dozen who had found the body of a small spider and were dragging it toward the nest. The spider had hairy legs, which stuck out in every direction and caught on obstacles, greatly retarding progress. For several minutes the ants toiled away with their awkward booty and then stopped and seemed to hold a council. A minute fragment of dry leaf was lying on the ground, and presently they all lay hold and pulled the spider on top of it. Then they seized the edges and slid it along without difficulty."

The Advance of Time.

The age of man, we are told, is three-score years and ten. From 25 to 40, if the health be good, no material alteration is observed. From thence to 50 the change is greater. Fifty-five to 60, the alteration starts; still we are not bowed down. In the earliest periods of our life the body strengthens and keeps up the mind; in the later stages of it the reverse takes place, and the mind keeps up the body; a formidable duty this and keenly felt by both. Such is time's progress.—Scottish American.

The Carp Is Very Bony.

People marvel at the mechanism of the human body, with its 492 bones and 60 arteries, but man is simple in this respect compared with the carp. That remarkable fish moves no fewer than 4,386 bones and muscles every time it breathes. It has 4,320 veins, to say nothing of its 99 muscles.

The Worst of It.

Jack—Tom, I'm in a terrible fix. I'm engaged to three girls. Tom—Well, that's not exactly a crime. Jack—No; that's the worst of it. If it were, I could go to prison and have some peace.
