

BOOZE AT THE REFUGE.

Superintendent Empowered to Act With Vigor. City Will Not be Able to Give Power Price. City Is Once More Free From Smallpox Cases.

There is a field of labor for the temperance workers down at the House of Refuge. Someone has been smuggling booze into the inmates there, and the by jags acquired caused Superintendent...

The city, if it ever goes into the business of selling power, which is very unlikely, stands a royal chance of being gold-bricked.

Mr. Allan says that while the commission will meter the power at Dundas, the city will have its own meters installed wherever it uses power for the satisfaction of knowing exactly what the power will cost it.

Dr. McGillivray, the acting Medical Health Officer, this morning discharged the three smallpox patients, who were quarantined at the smallpox hospital.

Infectious and contagious diseases reported at the Health office during the week included nine cases of diphtheria, six of typhoid, three each of scarlet fever and cholera, and one each of measles and whooping cough.

Building permits were issued to-day to W. A. Noble for a brick house on Home-wood avenue, between Kent and Queen streets, to cost $2,500, and for a brick house on Bold street, between Hess and Queen streets, to cost $2,500.

The cemetery statement for September shows receipts of $2,302, less $673 set aside for the perpetual care fund. The expenditure amounted to $1,846.

The City Hal flag is flying at half-mast to-day out of respect to the memory of ex-Ald. Richard Williamson, who is dead at Niagara Falls.

Notices have just been posted up around Dundurn Park which are causing many a laugh. They read like this: "Any person convicted of molesting or disturbing any animal or bird in this park is liable to a fine of $20, or to imprisonment for 30 days, and will be prosecuted."

The idea of prosecuting people after they have been convicted is somewhat remarkable.

BEACH TAXES

Committee Met Last Night, But Did Little Business.

The County Council Legislative Committee met yesterday for the purpose of discussing the old question in regard to the Beach taxes, but after the matter had been thoroughly discussed it was laid over until next Thursday at the request of Messrs. Dewar and Millen, who represented Saltfleet. They stated as their reason for asking that the matter be left over, that the Saltfleet Council meets on Tuesday and they would like to have the opinion of the Council as to whether to leave the matter to Judge Snider as sole arbitrator or not.

NO WORD YET.

The members of James Street Baptist Church are waiting anxiously to-day for word from Dr. Mills, who was tendered a call to become pastor of the church. When Mr. Mills was in the city he asked for ten days' time in which to consider the matter, and so far has not made known his decision. The time expires to-day, and so far no word has been received from him.

HORSE STOLEN.

Matthew Richardson, of Caledonia, had a dark chestnut horse and fog-buggy stolen from in front of the postoffice last night. The horse is fifteen hands high and tender in the fore feet. The robe that was in the buggy was a yellow one, and has the initials "M. R." on it.

WILBUR WRIGHT.

CITY MUST PAY ALL COST Is the Surest Thing Settled by Yesterday's Conference.

Refused Permission to Meter the Power at the Beach.

Contract Will be Here For Consideration on Monday.

As a result of the conference at Toronto yesterday with the Hydro-Electric Commission it is practically settled that Hamilton will take a supply of one thousand horse power from that source to operate the electric pumps at the Beach and for whatever other use the city may require.

The Council's approval of the application will mark the end of a bitter three year struggle over the power question. Although the matter will pass out of the aldermen's hands on Monday night the city, as soon as the contract is closed with the commission, will probably face the biggest lawsuit in its history.

The city solicitor left the draft contract with Solicitor Lobbs. It will arrive here this afternoon by special delivery and will be immediately sent to the printers. The power committee will be called together on Monday afternoon to consider it.

One of the chief points carried by the committee yesterday was to get the commission's guarantee that the clause in the act which refused municipalities the right to supply power to any municipal corporation, railway, distributing company or other corporation or person, without the written consent of the commission will be amended to read that the power shall not be supplied for the purpose of any railway or distribution other than to the municipal corporation.

This means that the municipalities will be permitted to sell to any purchaser, except railways and distributing companies, providing that in cases of alleged "hold up" in price, the commission shall have the right to step in and determine equitable terms.

The clause as it originally stood was one of the high-handed moves made by the commission without consulting the municipalities, when the act was varied at the last election of the Legislature. Even members of the commission admitted yesterday that it was foolish. A municipality, under that ruling could not give a private householder power for light unless the written consent of the commission was secured.

The city's effort to get the commission to pay for the cost of the line from Dundas to the Beach or even to the city limits failed. The commission agreed to build the line and provide the right of way to the western city limits, the city to pay the cost. It will also build the line to the Beach, but the city must provide the right of way.

The demand that the city be permitted to install meters at the Beach pumping station and any other station where it used power, so that it could determine exactly what it is paying for, was also refused. A clause applying to all municipalities will be inserted, empowering the commission to locate the meters to prevent the indiscriminate measurement of power supplied to municipalities. This means that the meter for Hamilton will be installed at Dundas.

The commission agreed to leave the city free to make contracts with other companies for the supply of power, if the corporation wishes.

It agreed that the city would not be required to take more than 75 per cent. of the 1,900 horse power contracted for. This is no concession, as the act covers the point.

The Hamilton contract will not begin until June 1st of next year. Anniversary sermons to-morrow at 11 a. m. and 7 p. m. in Charlton Avenue Methodist Church by Rev. J. J. Redditt, Toronto.

ARRESTED AT WASHINGTON.

Story of Two Citizens Done Up For $1,250.

Swore Out a Warrant Against Frank Fenton

Who Is Alleged to Have Cashed Race Check.

Two well known citizens are alleged to have been duped to the extent of $1,250 at the race track last Wednesday and Frank Fenton, a race track follower, is under arrest. He is said to be known all over the American continent.

Last Wednesday Fenton is alleged to have told the two Hamiltonians, who were with him at the track, to back Gen Marchmont to win and said he would do the betting for them if they would put up the money. They gave him $250 to back the horse to win at 4-1. The horse won and there was $1,250 coming to them. According to information given to the police, Fenton, who held the cheque, said there was no need to hurry to cash it and they all agreed to wait until the next day. That was the last they saw of him, they say.

The police were notified and Fenton was arrested in Washington, D. C. this morning, and the police there have wired instructions up to the time of going to press, nothing definite has been done. The man now under arrest in Washington boarded at Mr. O'Brien's, 96 Catharine street north, when in this city.

TO ACACIA.

Delightful Visit of Toronto Masons Last Evening.

A party of 65 Masons, members of Harmony Lodge, 438, Toronto, came to this city last evening to fraternize with Acacia Lodge, and a very happy time they had together. The officers of Acacia and the Highland pipers met the visitors at the station and escorted them to their hotel and the hall, and, after the night's merrymaking, played them back again to the station. In the lodge room the Toronto lodge worked the first degree in a manner that delighted all. Mr. W. Bro. E. J. Repath was in the chair, and was assisted by R. W. Bro. J. E. Nixon, W. Bro. Barber, W. Bro. Louché and others. After the work the whole party went to the Waldorf hotel where a happy hour was spent around the festive board, the W. M., Hugh Murray, presiding. The toast list was as follows: "The King and the Craft"—Song, Bro. Geo. C. Robertson. "Grand Lodge of Canada"—Selection, Temple Male Quartet; response, R. W. Bro. W. M. Logan; cello solo, Bro. E. A. Bartmann; recitation, Bro. Harry M. Bennett; response, M. W. Bro. A. T. Freed; vocal solo, Bro. C. S. Walters; recitation, Bro. Geo. Gow. "Visitors"—Vocal solo, Bro. Geo. C. McIntyre; response, R. W. Bro. Lyman Lee; vocal solo, Bro. Jas. E. Fiddes; response, W. Bro. E. J. Redpath; mandolin solo, Bro. E. Rayson; response, R. W. Bro. J. B. Nixon; vocal solo, Bro. W. J. Smyth; response, W. Bro. Loughé; instrumental duet, Bros. Arthur and Wm. Oatler. The speeches were short and crisp and the musical programme a delight. Temple male quartet, of Toronto, was received with great favor and made a great hit. The singing of Mr. J. E. Fiddes was also splendid. The local entertainers acquitted themselves in fine style.

Ladies, read Chanteclair's letter.

Jas. Dunlop was very ill advised in presuming to attack Mr. Sealey in last evening's Spectator. Mr. Sealey, since his election as the member for Wentworth, has spent nearly all his time and quite a lot of his means in the interest of his constituents, and there are hundreds of just as good Tories as Mr. Dunlop who willingly give him all credit for what he is doing for them.

Why not leave the Board of Aldermen as it is for another year? The four Controllers can get along with the present number of aldermen without any trouble. By next year you can get all the legislation you want for any changes desired.

The police should have had more consideration for the Black Hand lawyers than take them by surprise in that way. They should have shown them their hand.

This baseball battle across the line has got the Hamilton fans going. Might as well quit work until the series is over.

I have been requested to ask Mr. Macaulay when the road roller is to be shipped up to Mount Hamilton. I hope I don't intrude.

"This is a beautiful world," wrote the old man who made his exit from it so pathetically in Toronto the other day. He might have added, "Where every prospect pleases and only man is vile."

Sadder story than this was never penned and seldom if ever imagined.

Too many girls in short dresses parading the streets at night. What are their mothers about?

Sunday is always welcome.

The Herald chap who sent in that Toronto special has made some progress in the direction of being an electrical expert. He can evidently tell an electric transmission line from a family clothes line. But what a holy show he made of these "electrical engineers of the commission," whom he undertook to quote!

SON'S DEATH ON STEAMER. Albert M. Belding, of St. John, N. ALL ARE FIT FOR BATTLE.

Tigers In Good Shape and Confident of Victory.

Even Money Was the Best Ottawa Would Offer.

Gray and Smith Are All Right After Slight Mishaps.

(Special Despatch to the Times.)

Ottawa, Oct. 9.—The Tigers and their supporters arrived here this morning, and the yellow and black contingent seems confident of pulling off a victory. The players are in perfect condition. Capt. Ben Simpson and about half the team arrived last night, and had a good night's rest at the Russell. But little money has been wagered on the game. The Ottawa fans don't seem to be over-confident at their team's ability to win, and so far only a few hundred dollars have changed hands. The Tigers' supporters asked odds of 2 to 1, but as no money was in sight at that price a few bets were made at even money. Capt. Ben Simpson says that the team should win as every man is fit. It was feared that, as a result of a twist to his back which Jack Gray suffered in Thursday's practice, he would not be able to play, but he was fit this morning and looks in a condition to play the game of his life "Kid" Smith's leg is in shape and the soreness has disappeared. The teams will line up as follows:

Ottawa Position. Tigers. Full. Johnstone ... Right Half. ... Smith. McCann ... Centre Half. ... Moore. Williams ... Left Half. ... Simpson. Gerard ... Centre Half. ... Burton. Williams ... Quarter. ... Simpson. Kilt ... Scrimmage. ... Awrey. McCraig ... Outside Right. ... Brammer. Kennedy ... Middle Right. ... Pfeiffer. Ferguson ... Inside Right. ... Craig. Convey ... Middle Right. ... Turner. Phillips ... Inside Right. ... Wigle. Stronachy ... Inside Left. ... Grey. Vaughan ... Middle Left. ... Loftus. Church ... Inside Left. ... Isbister. Pud. Kent, of the Toronto Argonauts, has been appointed referee, and Tommy Hayes will assist him. Messrs. Savage and Molson refused to act.

A big crowd is expected to see the game, and already nearly all the reserved seats have been sold. A big squad of police will be on the grounds to keep the crowd in order. The teams will attend the Russell Theatre to-night and see Weber in "The Merry Widow and the Devil."

Some idea of the extent of the smuggling may be gathered from the fact that nearly six hundred of the seven hundred Chinese who landed at Vancouver a year or so ago, and who paid a tax of $500 each to enter Canada, are said to have succeeded in getting over the border.

The gang operating from Canada is said to be paid $125 a head for each Chinese delivered in Chicago or New York, the chief distributing points on the other side. The activity of the inspectors along the Niagara frontier, following the breakwater tragedy, caused the gang to conduct most of its operations from the Windsor end until railway detectives were aroused by the breaking of the freight car seals and started out on a hunt for the offenders.

The United States officers say that the Chinese who are captured and deported seldom give up hope of getting into the States again. They return to Vancouver as quickly as possible from their own country, and, already having paid the tax have no trouble entering. The Chinese when landed in the States are placed at work and have to pay back just twice as much as it costs to get them over.

TWO FRIES. (Special Despatch to the Times.) St. Catharines, Oct. 9.—At 3 o'clock this morning the Merrittion firemen were called to lock 19, old canal, where a barn belonging to Robert Bradley, of Thorold, was on fire. They had just extinguished that blaze when it was necessary to go about a half-mile north, where a house owned by Wm. Leeson was in flames. As there is no water supply in that section of the village, both properties were completely destroyed. Incendiarism is believed to be responsible.

SAFETY DEPOSIT BOXES. To rent at $2 a year and upwards, for the storing of deeds, bonds, stocks, wills, silver and other valuables. TRADERS BANK OF CANADA. Most Tempting.

SMUGGLING OF CHINESE.

United States Authorities Endeavouring to Stop It.

Once Deported They Soon Find Their Way Back Again.

The United States authorities, according to a Buffalo despatch, will urge a vigorous crusade during the next few months to break up a well-organized gang, believed to have their headquarters in Toronto and Montreal, who are engaged in the profitable business of smuggling Chinese across the border. Since the tragedy at the Buffalo breakwater last November, when seven Celestials lost their lives while being pursued by American officers, the inspectors along the border have been exceptionally alert, but notwithstanding this it is claimed that scores of Chinese have succeeded in getting into Uncle Sam's domains by way of Hamilton, Windsor and Montreal during the past year.

Many complaints have been made by Canadian railways about the seals of bonded freight cars being broken in transit, and the theory is that this means has been taken of secreting the Chinks to get them over the line.

The Chinese in Toronto, Hamilton and Montreal who assist the smugglers are said to be connected with the big Chinese association, with headquarters in San Francisco, which makes a business of looking after new arrivals in this country, getting them work, and collecting a liberal percentage for getting them into the States.

Some idea of the extent of the smuggling may be gathered from the fact that nearly six hundred of the seven hundred Chinese who landed at Vancouver a year or so ago, and who paid a tax of $500 each to enter Canada, are said to have succeeded in getting over the border.

R. MCKAY & CO.

Katharine's Sacrifice

She stood under a canopy and gave away prizes to the successful scholars in her model schools; she presented gifts to the old folks from her aunts-houses; she stopped to sympathize with a group of invalids who were brought out of their beds in her hospital, and she was altogether the most important person in the county that day. Yet, pleasant as Barbara found it, there was a crumpled rose-leaf to be discovered.

Lord Otway at her express solicitation, stayed by her side all day; she wished to make him share in her ministrations, to draw him into this rush and whirl of parochial festivity, but though the young man obeyed her, and stood by her while she distributed her gifts and smiles, he moved and looked like an automaton. Not a muscle of his face relaxed from the strange, sad gravity that had fallen on it after they had left the cottage that morning and seen Katharine's two arms linked round Gordon Smythe's neck. He was very pale, and there was a sombre fire in his eyes that added to the beauty of the blue orbs, but which somehow impressed the beholder with undoubted distress.

In the evening there was to be the ball to which the whole of the neighborhood in g houses for miles around had received invitations. Ormande, Lord Otway, would have given all his worldly possessions to have rushed away madly from Buxley Hall before the whirl and rush of the dance commenced. His aching heart longed to be buried in some far distant spot where even the name of the woman he loved so dear could never be breathed.

"She does not love me! She has deceived me!" he had said, bitterly, to himself all through the long, weary day. "She loves another, and that other a man whom my instinct warns me is bad to the core. To tell me she was not free, to look at me as she looked, and yet to cling to him, to put her arms round his neck, and—"

He was thinking this madly as he stood at one of the open windows of the drawing-room after dinner was over. The lower part of the house was deserted, while upstairs all was bustle and confusion as the fair occupants arrayed themselves for coquet.

Ormande had no excuse ready to leave that night, but he determined, with a puzzled and anxious look, to go to the drawing-room after dinner was over. The lower part of the house was deserted, while upstairs all was bustle and confusion as the fair occupants arrayed themselves for coquet.

"No, nothing," he answered at last. "What—what of him?" Mr. Montrose put his hands behind his back and pursed up his lips. It was an odd trick of his. He replied to Ormande hurriedly.

"This—that I think he is an awful scoundrel; you know he has a wife! Miss Montrose told me that he had informed her of the fact only last night, and yet I very much fear he is playing the deuce with that lovely girl of poor Robert Breton's."

Ormande's right hand went out to grasp a chair. "You—you speak as if you knew something, Mr. Montrose. Let me know the worst at once. Ay, you may look, you have guessed my secret. I am not ashamed of what Katharine Breton told me with all my heart."

"Then may Heaven help you!" was the elder man's reply, given solemnly. "For this is unfortunately no room for doubt. Gordon Smythe and the poor girl have left the Hall and gone away together as man and wife."

Lady Blanche Bellairs was once again in the very highest of spirits. Her anxiety about poor Craven Adair had been soothed, her distress mitigated, and she had nodded her head many times with delight at the news that Ormande was actually a guest of Barbara Mastya's at Buxley Hall.

good-bye! You will come and see us; won't he, Aunt Blanche?" "Ormande knows he will pain me very much if he does not do so, Martin," the elder woman replied, and then she gave the sign to her coachman, and the carriage rolled away.

Ormande replaced his hat with a sigh of relief and sorrow mixed. This unexpected meeting with his aunt had suddenly riven apart the thick, vague, horrible clouds that had surrounded him ever since that memorable day at Buxley. Even now he can scarcely recall exactly all that occurred then; he had a confused memory of hands playing, voices laughing, soft draperies flying in the ball-room; but beyond that, nothing but those words of Mr. Montrose's—those words that told of Katharine's shame!

THE HAMILTON TIMES

SATURDAY, OCT. 9, 1909.

WE PAY THE BILLS.

There is no longer any doubt as to the Hydro-Electric Commission's attitude towards this city's application for electric power. We are to be treated as if the power were paid for at the Dundas station on the main line.

We can readily understand the eagerness of the local Hydro organ to represent it as advantageous to use current at 12,200 volts instead of at the 2,200 voltage, which has been found by experience to be the most useful.

The Commission's indisposition to deliver power at the point where the city desires it, and at the voltage which it selects, is not in keeping with its policy as set forth in the form of contract presented to the ratepayers.

TIME AT THE POLE.

A Times reader who has been following the Cook-Pearry discussion in the newspapers confesses to some mystification as to the references to time (the clock time) at the North Pole.

The paragraph referring to time at the axis of the earth was probably intended to illustrate the fact that at the poles—the axial points of a slightly flattened sphere—all the meridians or parallels of longitude converge.

There will be no representative from Hamilton or its district on the new Advisory Council of Education. Not a candidate from this locality has been nominated.

Wonder if the Water Rates Sub-committee got its backbone stiffened by its Toronto inquiry? It is prepared to continue the gross injustice toward the householders as a concession to "getting revenue" or will it insist on equalizing charges?

Waterloo County Teachers' Association is not enamored of the new Ontario primers. It has passed a resolution commending of them, and requested that the old Morang primer be restored to authorization.

Mr. Ratepayer, keep your eye on the men who seek to let you in for $30,000 (that may reach $75,000) for the purpose of buying park land on the Beach, while the demands of the city for street paving, sewers, water mains and park spots at home cannot be met.

solar time, which changes with travel east and west. It is based on the principle which we have been explaining. The 360 degrees of the circle of the earth are divided into 24 parts or districts of 15 degrees each, and time-pieces are not changed within the territory.

PEACE AT CLEVELAND.

The Cleveland Street Railway fight, which has gone on for eight years, to the great disturbance of that city, will probably be ended as the result of a conference recently held.

Chicago municipal employees are up in arms against a scheme hatched by the Mayor and department heads to cut every salary from that of the Mayor to that of the humblest employee of the city 10 per cent.

The Hydro organ in reporting the expulsion of the reporters from the conference with the Hydro-Electric Commission in Toronto yesterday put it in this way: Mayor McLaren said Hamilton was willing to have the reporters present;

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The story that Canada's herd of 650 buffaloes at Wainwright Park had been scattered over the prairie by the recent fire proves to be untrue.

It is estimated that there have not been fewer than 1,000 cases of typhoid in Cobalt and the mining district. We are paying a dreadful price for the neglect of the Ontario Government health authorities.

The Manitoba Grain Growers' Association has some big ideas. It proposes to lease the C. P. R. elevators at Fort William and to control the marketing of about 9,000,000 bushels of grain that may be stored in them.

For a Christian town, Toronto has a long way to go in the practical application of its professions of righteousness. Toronto World.

True, and our contemporary could find a great field for reform within its own sanctum.

The big slump in some well known Co-belt stocks has hit some of the speculators hard. It appears, however, to have been entirely caused by manipulation. Nothing has been shown that would seem to warrant any such decline on the basis of the actual values of the properties.

The Toronto Telegram is offended at Justice MacMahon because he ordered that delectable Tory witness Gates out of the witness box when, at the Peterboro election trial, he testified that he "would swear to anything for money."

Society

Mr. H. F. Whitton has postponed her at-home, which was to have taken place on Thursday afternoon, till a day later in the month.

An at-home is to be given in aid of the Women's Exchange at the Waldorf Hotel next Friday afternoon.

Miss Joan Malloch is a guest at Government House, Toronto.

Miss Grace Powis is spending the winter in New York.

Mr. E. B. Lanceley received her first calls since coming to the city on Thursday and Friday afternoons of this week at the parsonage of First Methodist Church.

A marriage of much interest to Hamilton and Burlington people was that of Mr. Ernest V. H. White, youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. William White, of Burlington, and Miss Jo Rawson, who, as a soloist, has so delighted the people of First Methodist Church for the past three years.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Young, Oak Bank, entertained at dinner on Wednesday evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Audrey Crookston, who are returning shortly to their home in Scotland.

Miss Betta Moore and Miss Jean McLaren have returned from a trip to England.

Mr. H. E. McLaren, Alma avenue, gave a delightful tea on Wednesday afternoon for Miss Buchanan, Pittsburg, who is staying with Miss McLaren, Charlton avenue.

Here is a quintette of hale old fellows: Lord Strathcona, 89, Sir Charles Tupper, 88, Sir Mackenzie Bowell, 86, Sir R. W. Scott, 84, Sir Sandford Fleming, 83. This is surely an age of patriachs.

The Board of Trade members would be stacked up for shipment. The Railway Commission, the Library Board, nearly all the members of the Legislature, the Dominion Parliament, the Senate, the people who did not sign its marsh petition—but why pick and choose when the whole generation is perverse?

The engagement is announced of Ruth Corrigan, only daughter of the late Geo. D. Corrigan, C. E., to H. Taylor Miller, of Buffalo, the marriage to take place in November.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Young will be at home the first and third Thursdays during the winter at 72 Emerald south.

Mr. Ellsworth Smith has returned from Westfield, N. Y., where she sang at the wedding of Miss Ethel Stiggs and Mr. Walter Carroll, of New York city.

Mr. Arthur Rowe has moved to 181 Markland street, and in future will receive on Wednesdays, instead of Thursdays.

"About four years ago I had a very severe attack of inflammatory rheumatism. I was taken very ill and was soon in a high fever. I did not leave my bed for four months during those of those months I could not move voluntarily, the pain was so intense. My skin peeled, and the high fever played havoc with the lustre of my hair, which came out in bunches. I also had three large bed sores on my back, —two on the shoulders and one on the waist. I could have cried the first time I saw myself in a mirror. I had lost fully thirty-six pounds, and looked like a consumptive. I did not gain very rapidly, and my appetite was very poor. When I was able to get around, I had all my friends advising remedies, and all guaranteed cures, but I tried many, but they were of little help, and until I tried Cuticura. Resolvent I had had no real relief. That gave me such an appetite that I felt half starved about all the time, and I immediately began to gain in weight, my complexion cleared, and I felt better. The bed sores went very soon after a few applications of Cuticura Ointment, and when I used Cuticura Soap as a shampoo and Cuticura Ointment as a massage, my hair began to regain its former glossy appearance. I am really all made over, and cannot say enough for the Cuticura Remedies. Mrs. LeVina J. Henderson, 138 Broad St., Stamford, Conn., March 6 and 12, 1907."

New York, Oct. 9.—"What we need," Magistrate Tighe said to-day in the ducking plank and a mill pond with which to punish the women gossips who are almost daily summoned before me on charge of circulating scandalous stories about their neighbors. # Chat About Latest Paris Fashions

(Leaves From My Paris Note Book—Chantclair.)

The needs in a modern woman's wardrobe seem ever on the increase, and never ending. The latest to be reckoned with is the costume for "high-flying," or autoplaining, and I have just inspected some practical suits made at a great time de la Paix tailors for the wives of the two most famous aviators. The stuff in heather mixture woollen material is as perfect a combination of lightness and warmth as could be devised. There is a neat coat, with no superfluous trimming or fulness, and a pair of wide knickerbockers so cleverly cut that they would pass for a "trotteur" skirt on and. Headgear was a knotty point, but the result is good. Little bonnets, such as our grandmothers wore, lined with white tulle, no veils, no strings, nothing that could catch on to the machinery, etc. in case of wind or accident. Of course we shall see improvements and patent devices of all sorts, as in the machines themselves, but for present purposes I am told the lords and masters approve of the toggery to be worn by their freights. In search of something more generally useful and distinctly more attractive, I went to the new premises of Liberty & Co., at 2 Boulevard des Capucines, and was deeply impressed by the exquisite beauty and novelty of all the new models for day and evening wear. This branch of the famous establishment is designed for the display of costumes for ladies and children. It will not detract, naturally from the usefulness and charm of the long-loved maison in the Avenue de l'Opera. It is marvellous the prediction the Parisians show for Liberty's production in its designs, even the name of the firm has been adopted to designate the most supple and fluid satins and mousselines manufactured. "la Liberty" is known and loved by every dressmaker and milliner in Paris, and for teagowns and dresses of all sorts which emanate from Liberty's the French have untold appreciation. Of course no English or Colonial readers need any information regarding the picture toilies which are Liberty's sole productions, the designs and trimmings of which are absolutely unique and peerless, but everyone may not know that in Paris there is now this new branch of the business, a visit to which is a liberal education and artistic treat. I know no other place at which you may find such and wraps, such fascinating blouses and coffee coats, hand embroidered with silk, in the most dainty patterns and colors. The "Audrey" blouse, made of Liberty scarves, is specially alluring, with its front and sleeves of lace, and for artists there are some useful and beautiful overalls in Trian silk, the "Newlyn" a the "Mary," perhaps, being the "pick of the basket." I must not forget fringe all round, for these are now almost as extinct as the dodo and to be nowhere else. It is even difficult to procure them from India, and they are the quaintest little wraps, looking as if they had come out of Granny's camphor chest to adorn her young descendant's shoulders. These may be had in apple green, ciel, salmon, or white, for the marvellous price of 35 francs.

The Longchamps races have re-opened their season with eclat, and as usual the makers of fashions and the exponents thereof, have launched their novelties. Let me see what specially impressed me. Well, I hear a great deal about the decline and fall of big hats, and truth to tell, I did note many small ones, such as the tricorne, the lampion, and the toque. These were in stretched velvet or satin, and with them people seemed to like very delicately patterned Chantilly veils, either white, Isabella or black. The tricornes were most coquettish, mostly trimmed with an aigrette or bunch of white tips, or with some old metal galon with tassels, and in some cases, with colored jewels inset. They are poised very nicely on the head, at a certain angle, and nothing is propped up on bandeaux nowadays, and many, of old hide the face and hair more than to my mind come ill fait—that is, if the face is pretty, and the hair well done. I saw a good many furs, big double scarves, and flat square mufflers, also scarves of satin and mousseline edged with duvet or fringe. These went with the semi-long coats, still straight and narrow, but cutaway in front, with long roll revers, opening over a satin ermine-trimmed waist coat, or else a fluffy little blouse in white linon with spots the shade of the dress. Skirts are also half-long, or else short enough to show the varnished boots with uppers the shade of the dress. I fancy will be preferred to smooth for these gowns. I saw many serges and home-spuns, fine and light and of exquisite simplicity. Color? Well, I noted bottle and olive greens galore, also amethysts, corbeau or raven blue, lime green, mole, bronze, vanilla and prunelle. The more dressy costumes were in fine cloth, or cachemire de soie, with panels, pleats, tatics and sashes. These are still more or less princess in style, or with high skirt and short-waisted, sleeveless tops, to be worn with a variety of gimpes with long tight sleeves of the same thin net or lace, either white or the shade of the dress. You see a lot of pretty women at these first autumn races, and their new clothes add to their charm. I admired one brunette in a hat of long, silky-haired felt, just the shade of yellow Leghorn, that is to be the "eri supreme." "Leghorn colored" felt. It was lined and trimmed with black. It was accompanied by a chic little pleated dress in violet and white checks, trimmed with plain violet cloth touched in black, with amethyst buttons on the sash.

I saw a lovely wedding from a chateau at which the bride actually innovated the fashion of having her white satin dress made with a short skirt, and wearing with it a big black hat with Isabella flowers. After the ceremony, she was wrapped in a charming cloak the shade of her feathers, and off she started to her new estate in Italy. I notice that nowadays ivy is always put in amongst bridal flowers, to carry out the pretty sentiment, "Je meurs ou je m'attache." It is quaint to see the way the French adopt and utilize our words. It is now quite the custom to say "bridger" to bridge, or "bostonner" to wait, the chief amusements at these chateau evenings, as in England, and the colonies. But the chateaux are emptying fast and the exiles all returning to Paris. In 1892, this year the weather has driven

All the principal inventors will be represented, and the Stella, Woman's Aero Club, is to have a stand with some of the committee ready to enroll new members. have been on and in the country place I spent two long mornings watching them. We could follow the battle quite well from the motor but in some instances found it better to mount a hillside and stand right close up to the firing lines, the mitrailleuses which I saw carried up, put together and fired, especially fascinating to me. It was a most picturesque sight when the camp fires were lighted for the pot-luck lunch, in the most beautiful Picardy fields, the men reclining for a well earned rest against the stacks of yellow corn, with hills on one side of the field and a forest on the other. The battle had started at six and we joined the fray soon after; at moon all was over, the order to "cesser le feu" (cease fire) was given by the drums and the generals retired by themselves to confab and make the "critique," in other words decide whose day it was. I was lucky in seeing the 6th Chasseurs in their charming pale blue and scarlet-touched uniforms, with silver buttons and white froggings, taking part, also the "Dragons," more sombre, but dignified in black uniforms with white facings and silver ornaments, and the 53rd Infantry. I candidly confess I am much impressed with the seriousness and the energy of the French soldiers as I have seen them. They may not march in such an upright alert fashion as our men. Their uniforms, I speak of the privates, the officers are beyond reproach, are more slovenly, baggy and loose, but the men are thoroughly in earnest about their work, are business like, punctual and always cheerful and philosophical, there is none of Tommy's grumbling, a John Bull privilege, no doubt, which may not go for much. The French soldier is to all appearance happy as a clam, even when tired as a dog at the end of the manoeuvres. Some of the officers with whom I have talked about their army and may say that one and all are keen on their work, and immensely proud of their army, with all that concerns it, if they feel quite differently toward their Government, for which I find few have a good word. By the way, a most interesting little book, which deals to a great extent with military and naval affairs, is published by that useful and enterprising little lousy body, the Daily Mail. It gives a great deal of useful and startling, or at least surprising, information, as to the way in which Germany has gone ahead in all directions during the last year or so only; the progress and change in everything, foreign and domestic. There is a completely new regime in society, dress and household appointments; more magnificence in all things, and the hitherto simple "Hausfrau" is now not content unless loaded with jewels—not always in the best taste, perhaps—which it seems her spouse does not grudge her, in fact he likes to be bedecked himself with priceless gems! The progress in the army and navy is too much on everyone's lips (and minds!) to require comment, but this little book, in the writing of which Germans have to a large extent had a hand, is well worth perusal and the sixpence it costs!

With winter, with its long evenings, coming on, people are glad to hear of amusing devices for passing the time, so let me just mention a game which has caught on in an extraordinary fashion at the chateaux and country-house parties over here this autumn; it is called "Puzzles," and might be called "Patience," for it takes all one has and more! In a round box you have several hundred pieces of painted wood, out of which if you have luck or patience you may make the most fascinating water color pictures. The pieces are all different sizes and shapes, and you put them together, of course, but they do not clip on, as in the old nursery game, which in the end only pictured a farmyard in crude colors, or a lion or a tiger. These pictures are "after" Watteau, Morland and other masters, and when finished are worth a frame, so delicate and pretty are they. In some places it has quite ousted bridge; you have no picture to copy; you do not know your self what sort of aquarelle you will produce to reward your labor, but you will certainly be delighted. A "poster dance" at Dinard was another successful idea. All the people were garbed as characters in well-known posters, and some were absolutely faithful copies, prizes being given in order of merit. The little CHOCOLATE MENIER GIRL was charming, as were some of the others, which many of us know so well on the Paris hoardings.

An amusing competition recently took place at Folkestone, just after the beauty show, at which most of the competitors were the pretty women from the markets, laundries, etc., in Paris and London. At this the first prize again went to La Reine des Reines, Mile. Orihae, whom I saw in the Mi-Careme procession in Paris. Well, the men were not to be outdone, it seems, and a show of masculine beauty was organized, and actually sufficient competitors were found whose pluck and self-sacrifice (!) induced them to face the jury. The first prize was to be the hand of a young, rich and lovely widow, who had offered it herself, he it understood, Can you believe it, the manly winner refused his prize, saying he preferred a bicycle! Not very flattering to "the merry widow"? Perhaps, however, it was best for her future welfare. Think how trying it would be to pass an existence with the winner of a beauty competition!

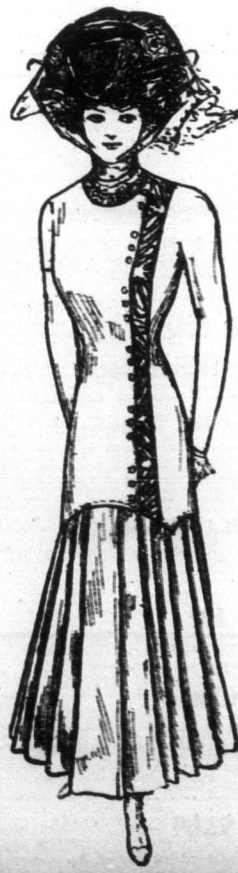

No one who was anywhere within reach of the little Brittany town of Concarneau missed going to the fete of the Blue Nets, which was inaugurated about four years ago, as a means of helping the poor fishermen when the sardine fisheries failed and left them in sore need. This year it was charming; the queen of "les filets bleus" was a lovely girl, dressed in national costume, and the poet Botrel, who has done so much to help the "miserables" in Brittany, came over from Pont Aven to crown her. Another early autumn entertainment was the performance of "Lady Macbeth" in French, which Mafterlinck's clever wife got up at her place, the Abbey of Saint Wandrille, lately. There was only room for fifty select spectators at a time, and they paid eight pounds each for their tickets, but say it was worth it, for the entertainment was most impressive, and Mme. Mafterlinck made an ideal Lady Macbeth, with good support from her company. The old abbey, inside and out, made a most delightful "mise en scene."

Royalty in Shakespeare's plays had no easier time than have our contemporary monarchs; at this moment the so lately a happy careless English Princess, with simple tastes and surroundings, is enduring anxiety and responsibility too heavy for such young shoulders: at first we heard that popularity was at least a doubtful possession of hers, but since the war storm broke out and she has shown such energy, practical help and sympathy for the soldiers and their families, and the tide has turned in her favor and more the people rave over their golden-haired queen, and her jolly satisfactory little heirs. A visit to England from the King of Portugal is impending, they say, with a view to carrying off another of our youngest princesses, the Duchess of Fife's elder girl. It yet remains to be seen whether she will agree to change her religion, or will refuse emphatically, as everyone knows the young daughter of the Duke of Connaught did when the King of Spain, or his "interpreters," proposed for her little hand. I heard that Princess Ena's comment was "I only wish he would ask me," and subsequent events prove that the Good Fairy quickly granted her wish! A most popular queen is the Queen of Italy who behaved so magnificently during the earthquake tragedy. She has just had a birthday, and the present she liked best was one bought with the small and great subscriptions offered to the fund by all who loved and thanked her, from highest to lowest in the land. When the money-box was opened, amongst the coins was found a little cheap ring, undoubtedly a sort of "widow's mite," and this the queen received in the spirit in which it was surely offered for her gracious acceptance, seeming profoundly touched—just what our Queen would have done! I hope in my next "leaves" to give a review of the fashions which will surely prevail in Paris during this season, at present the designers and makers are all busy attending to foreign buyers, who, after all do not always care for the garments the real Parisienne loves.—Chantclair.

Fifteen Years of Agony "Fruit-a-tives" Promptly Cured Him After Doctors Had Failed To Give Relief.

"I wish to express my sincere appreciation of the great benefit I received from taking 'Fruit-a-tives.' I suffered from Biliousness and Dyspepsia for fifteen years and I consulted physicians and took many kinds of ordinary medicine, but got no relief. I was in miserable health all the time and nothing did me any good. I read the testimonial of Archibald McKeachie, of Ottawa, and I decided to try 'Fruit-a-tives.' I have taken a number of boxes of 'Fruit-a-tives,' but before I had taken one box I felt better and now am entirely well. I am thankful to be well after fifteen years' suffering, and I am willing to have this statement published for the sake of other sufferers, and to them I strongly recommend 'Fruit-a-tives.'"

THE FARM

Estimates of the world's probable wheat crop have been published during the past month by two English trade papers and by the Hungarian Minister of Agriculture. Estimates at this time of the year, though they can only approximate actual facts, serve as a good indication of the results looked for by well-informed European official and commercial observers. As compared with last year, these estimates show a gain of from 185 to 270 million bushels in the case of wheat. For corn, an increase of 265 million bushels, and for barley a gain of 334 million bushels are indicated.

Do not make the food too sloppy for young pigs. Keep plenty of chaff in the pen. Put a packet of Epsom salts in the food occasionally. Castrate pigs at three or four months. Observe regularity in feeding, and let them out for a run occasionally. As the young pigs come in do not allow them to lose their baby fat, but keep them in good condition right from the time they are weaned.

Whether it is profitable to plow in fall or not depends on the soil and climate. If the soil is of a firm texture, winter is severe enough to keep the ground frozen until spring. It separates the soil and makes it friable. But where the soil is of a tough clay texture and the winters are mild, not freezing the ground solid for a foot or more in depth, the plowed ground will freeze and thaw and run together again and be as firm in the spring as though not plowed. If any good comes from such fall plowing it must be weed destruction.

The oyster-shell scale has appeared to the extent that it is a pest on usual crop of blue bushes and maple trees, although not as prevalent on fruit trees as in some years. Some branches of a Norway maple tree were recently sent to State Zoologist Surface, at Harrisburg, which were badly infested.

Handkerchiefs for French Sailors.
M. Cheron, the Under Secretary of State for the French Navy, is showing as much solicitude for the sailors as he did previously for the soldiers. Quite recently, says the Petit Parisien, he obtained a vote from the Government by which every soldier in the French army is now provided with socks at the State's expense. M. Cheron has been paying a surprise visit to Cherbourg, and among other things has been looking closely into the wearing apparel of the sailors. He was struck by the fact that the wardrobe provided by the State did not include any handkerchiefs, and he at once came to the decision that henceforth the outfit of every sailor is to include two handkerchiefs.

New Concrete Method.
A new method of combining reinforcing and concrete in the building of concrete homes is described with illustration in Popular Mechanics. It is an entirely original combination of steel tubing, wire, malleable fittings and concrete, and with the exception of pipes, the concrete is not dependent on to carry any of the load, but is used only as stiffener or body to the building. The entire framework can be erected before the concrete work is started, making it possible to inspect the position and quality of the steel and to erect a building in much shorter time than if required by other methods. No forms or centering are required, which is another great advantage.

School Sports Held at the Town Park Yesterday.

Fine Afternoon and Large Crowd of Parents and Children.

Dundas, Oct. 9.—The tenth annual games of the Dundas High and Public schools came off yesterday afternoon, and were successful from every point of view. The games were all keenly contested. There was a large attendance of parents and the attendance of parents was much beyond the average. The basketball game between girls of the High school was a pleasing and interesting feature of the day. The captains were Miss Mallet and Miss Suter. Miss Mallet's team won. Score 8-3.

The entire proceedings were thoroughly enjoyed both by participants and spectators. The committee in charge was as follows: Judges—Dr. Bertram, Dr. Lauchland, W. H. Moss, F. C. G. Minty, Col. J. J. There is a very widespread feeling throughout the town that there should have been an inquest on the body of Albert Ayers, who met his death at the quarry last week. Two more cases of scarlet fever are reported in town, which has led to all the rooms in the public school being closed, except the two senior rooms.

MILITARY.

Fine Parade of Thirtieth—Convention of Veterans.

The inspection of the 13th Regiment takes place next week. Last night's parade eclipsed everything so far this season, there being 422 men out. After a short march on the square, the drill was practiced at the armories and the officers were well pleased with the shape for the inspection and their efforts have not been unavailing. The parade state was as follows: Lieut.-Col. Moore, Majors Newburn and Ross, Adjutant-Captain Domville, paymaster, Captain Herling, surgeon, Captain Griffin, quartermaster, Captain Lester, chaplain, Capt. Forester; staff-sergeants, 10; A. 2; B. 5; C. 3; D. 4; E. 4; F. 2; G. 2; H. 35, making a total of 422. The Army Service Corps had their weekly practice last evening in the Drill Hall and were well attended. The various veterans associations of Canada are holding a convention on the 21st of this month, in Occidental Hall, Toronto, to take action regarding the Volunteer Bounty Act in an endeavor to get it extended to the veterans of 1866-70. Also to try and get a campaign pension for the veterans of 1866-70, who are in possession of the Fenian Raid Medal. The Dominion, in districts where there is no association, veterans are requested to meet and appoint a delegate.

HAD WARM FIGHT OVER ANNEXATION.

City and Township of Barton Evidently Will Not be Able to Come to Terms.

And the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board Will Have to Decide.

The conference last night between the city committee and a deputation from Barton Township Council over the terms of the annexation of the district east of Sherman Avenue was decidedly lively in spots. Practically no headway was made. At one time, when Reeve Gago tried to make a laughing stock of the Township Council, it looked as if negotiations might be declared off at once and the whole matter left to the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board. After discussing matters for an hour and a half the city agreed at once to submit to the Barton Council a draft of the conditions which it will urge the board to incorporate in the annexation order. Then another conference will be held to try and adjust matters and whatever the two sides fail to agree on will be left to the board for adjustment. In the meantime the property owners interested are to have a chance to air their views. For this purpose the committee will meet again at 7.30 on Thursday evening next.

Some of the property owners were present last night and Mayor McLaren invited them to make any suggestions they desired. William Strong was the only one who availed himself of the invitation. He asked the city to deal fairly with him in the matter of contracts the Barton Council has already let for cement walks around his survey. Reeve Gago promised he would co-operate in trying to induce the contractor to wait until the annexation matter is cleared up.

The committee then decided to go over Solicitor Duff's draft of terms proposed on behalf of Barton Township. The fireworks began almost immediately. One of the first clauses provided that farm lands of five acres and up should be assessed as such on the 1909 township assessment and at the township rates. The aldermen thought this was reasonable.

The next clause provided that property owners should not be charged water rates until supplied with water at their own request and that the rates should be charged up against that piece of property only.

"That's the same as in the 1903 assessment," observed Mr. Duff. "I hope we never have another one like that," laughed the Mayor. "We will have the balliffs on us if we do."

Mr. Duff said he would reserve the right to argue this point out before the board. There was a lively argument then as to Mr. Duff's right to interfere on behalf of the residents who were coming into the city. He admitted that he was appearing for Barton township, but claimed the right to also represent the residents, who at present are in Barton.

Mayor McLaren said the city was prepared to discuss matters affecting the residents concerned with the interested property owners. Barton could have no interest in them after they came into the city.

The clauses dealing with the residents directly were skipped then and the matters in which the Barton Council is differently interested taken up. The first of these clauses provided that the city should pay over the proportion of the good road debentures yearly that would be paid by the section if it was not annexed. Mr. Duff asked that this be on the 1909 assessment. The aldermen agreed that it was just to pay the debentures, but City Solicitor Waddell insisted that it be on the 1908 assessment, as there was a feeling that the unusually high increase in the assessment this year was made with the expectation that the district would be annexed.

Reeve Gago readily consented to this, provided all the other matters were based on the 1908 assessment. A clause providing that the city pay the proportion due for sidewalk debentures, including all the incidental expenses, such as registration, Court of Revision and so forth, and its proportion of the sinking fund and interest provoked discussion.

"Anything we can't agree on we will send to the board," said the Mayor. "For instance, we don't think we should pay for drawing up a different by-law for each sidewalk when the city bundles thirty into one. We don't think we should have paid when one would have done as well."

THOMAS C. WATKINS HAMILTON ONTARIO

W. C. T. U. AT OAKVILLE.

Mrs. Wolfkill Retires From Treasurership. The final day's work for the W. C. T. U. convention at Oakville was most successful yesterday. Splendid weather, large numbers at each meeting, and encouraging reports made the workers in this cause feel that their work is not in vain. Absolute harmony prevailed, and unity in any work means strength.

The morning the election of officers took place, and resulted in the old staff all being reinstated, with the exception of Mrs. Wolfkill, the county treasurer, who has filled this position most ably for the past nine years—ever since the organization of the union. She found it impossible to accept again. In her place Mrs. Boyle, of this city, a valued member of Central Union, was elected.

Two members of Hamilton union, Mrs. Turnbull and Mrs. Woodruff, were honored by their fellow-workers, and were presented by Mrs. Nichols, on behalf of the district, with life membership pins. The report of the Dog Surveys was read; received. I nstated by large financial backing, a few workers are providing means by which many wage-earning mothers are permitted to go daily to their occupations, knowing that their little ones are being well looked after in this home. Young girls coming to the city are offered the use of this refuge, with their meals, for a very small sum until they find permanent situations.

The superintendents for the year were appointed to the different departments: Evangelistic work, Mrs. Clunas; L. T. L., Mrs. W. F. Moore, Dundas; lumbermen's work, Mrs. W. B. Smith; anti-narcotic, Mrs. Montgomery; legislation, Mrs. McLaren; mothers' meetings, Mrs. (Dr.) Carr; franchise, Mrs. Nichols; press, Mrs. Whalley; soldiers, Mrs. Bowman, Dundas; fair work, Mrs. Woodman; Broad, Mrs. Morris; flower mission, Mrs. Elliott; Day Nursery, Mrs. Boyle; prison reform, Mrs. Campbell; parlour meetings, Mrs. Carr, Burlington; methods, in which Mrs. Turnbull read a paper on the duties of superintendents, and Mrs. McLachlan spoke on the work of the young people, and gave many useful suggestions for the year. Mr. Arthur Beall, M. A., of the Ontario White Cross representative, gave a splendid talk on his work. This is a somewhat new department, but is proving itself very commendable.

Miss Burrows read a paper on scientific temperance.

The unfinished reports of Thursday, consisting of the lumbermen's work, mission to the militia and prison reform, were read and discussed. A vote of thanks was passed to the Ladies' Auxiliary of the W. C. T. U., who so kindly entertained the delegates. After a dainty tea at 6.30 the representatives returned to this city, and felt that their work has been abundantly blessed during the year. Many a man makes big money in a mighty small way.

MISTAKEN FOR A DEER.

Henry Lewis Shot in the Woods Near Saranac Lake, N. Y. Saranac Lake, N. Y., Oct. 8.—A lamentable gunning accident occurred near here to-day, when Henry Lewis, proprietor of the Wayside Inn at Clearlake Junction, was supposedly mistaken for a deer and fatally shot at Little Fish Point, twelve miles from this place. Lewis was hunting with a large party, but the name of the man who unwittingly fired the shot has not been made known. The bullet passed through Lewis' body just above the heart, inflicting a wound from which he cannot recover.

PIRATES TOOK FIRST IN A RATTLING GAME.

Played Errorless Ball While Detroit Made Three Errors—30,000 People Paid to See the Contest.

Pittsburg, Pa., Oct. 9.—The first game in probably the greatest series of baseball contests the country has ever known was played yesterday between the National and the American League champions, and the Nationals won in impressive style.

Table with columns for player names and statistics (AB, R, H, P, O, A, E) for both teams.

Table with columns for player names and statistics (AB, R, H, P, O, A, E) for both teams.

Neither side did anything impressive with the bat, but the pitching on both sides was strictly championship ball, and the fielding of the Pirates was in every way up to the standard expected.

The game would have been closer with the Detroit's errors eliminated, but the Pittsburghs would have won just the same, for they earned two of their four runs.

In the next two innings the Pirates kept on with their aggressiveness, the home run bracing them up like magic, and won the game.

Davy Jones, the only man of the day to make two hits, was sent to first base on four pitched balls in the first inning.

Byrne squeezed Tom Jones and Schmidt with two slam-bang scoops in the second inning.

Crawford all but broke the ball in the third, there being two out at the time, and a great stop by Miller nearly resulted in his being thrown out at first base.

Once in the scoring humor, the Pirates did not allow the humor to pass until they were filled. Leach's long fly to D. Jones brought Gibson to the plate.

The only kick of the game came in Detroit's half of the fifth. Cobb reached first on a force and stole second.

Gibson had to pull down a high pitch before making his throw, and he threw it to the ground. Wagner made a wonderful one-handed gather of the ball on the first bound, and hooked it into Cobb, who was sliding.

Leach dashed in in the sixth and robbed T. Jones of a hit with a close-to-the-ground catch. Wagner doubled into the left field corner in the second installment of the sixth.

He tarried at the second junction while Miller fouled to Schmidt, but on a bad throw he chased ponderously but successfully to third.

Wilson followed with a single, so that Honus would have scored even had there been no bad throw to Schmidt.

They say football players—that is, good ones—like plenty of work, and this being so, Capt. H. O. Page of the Chicago University eleven ought to be satisfied.

William Pitt, in the sixth, made a good start and a good finish. On the stretch run he ran hard, as Bessy Lester was pressing.

KETCHELL WILL BEAT JACK JOHNSON.

Expert Opinion as to the Result of the Coming Mill Between the White Middleweight and the Black Heavyweight.

(By Salvator.) Son, I want to tell you something. When that man Stanley Ketchell gets to the chocolate drop, there will be something doing in the Johnson family.

You didn't like it a bit when I said that Jack Dempsey was up against the real thing when he met Fitz, and told you that it would be a mighty good battle to sit beside and watch the result.

When Billy Lavigne made Joe Walcott look for a hole in the wall you said I was hooked up wrong when I ventured to assert that the Saginaw boy had a line up his sleeve that was worth betting on.

When young Corbett wound a little ball of yarn around Terry McGovern you strolled when I told you that Terry was driving too fast.

That's history. But it went through. If I told you to-day that Stanley Ketchell would win this coming bout you'd still again.

Honest, wouldn't you? Don't you know, old scout, that there are times when dope doesn't count? Did you ever figure out the real thing in fistiana and find that all of your slum went to the bad?

Nothing to it. The line on pugilists is the surrounding environment coupled with their nationality. You take a greyhound, for instance. Would you buy him for a rat dog? The bull terrier. Would you put him on the trail of a bank robber? The Collie. I suppose you'd pit him against a bulldog—not coming right down to law, and without any aspersions being cast and with all respect due the colored race, I tell you from personal knowledge that I never yet have seen a negro that didn't quit under fire.

I've seen Ketchell and I've seen Johnson in motion and to me it looks like the one-best bet of my life to place a white chip on Stanley. How about it? Tell me after the races.

London reports say general business there holds a steady tone. Ottawa reports say a satisfactory volume of business is moving in all lines of trade.

INDUSTRIAL PARTNERS. The extent to which the people are partners in some of the great industrial and railway corporations of the United States is shown by the following figures: American Sugar—20,000 shareholders own $90,000,000 in stock. Pennsylvania Railroad—60,000 shareholders own $134,000,000 in stock. Pullman—13,500 shareholders own $100,000,000 in stock. Bell Telephone—24,100 shareholders own $180,000,000 in stock. Steel—22,100 shareholders own $648,000,000 in stock. Standard Oil—5,500 shareholders own $98,000,000 in stock. Union Pacific—15,000 shareholders own $265,000,000 in stock. New York Central—22,100 shareholders own $178,000,000 in stock. St. Paul—10,000 shareholders own $133,000,000 in stock. Amalgamated Copper—18,000 shareholders own $154,000,000 in stock. Southern Pacific—15,000 shareholders own $148,000,000 in stock. Aetna—25,000 shareholders own $217,000,000 in stock. Smelters—9,400 shareholders own $106,000,000 in stock. More than 2,000,000 men and women are partners in the great corporations of the country, which, according to a recent computation, represent a capitalization of nearly $40,000,000,000, where around when big deals are on. The deal would mean that Mr. Ross would receive $5,000,000 for his interests. Other Dominion Coal interests closely identified with James Ross are his son, Jack; W. D. Matthews, of Toronto, father-in-law of Jack Ross, and himself a well-known financier, and F. L. Wanklyn, vice-president of the coal company, and son-in-law of R. B. Angus, who also is a director of the company, and who supported Mr. Ross in his prolonged fight with the Steel Co., and was, perhaps, his most intimate adviser. Apparently the matter was fully discussed between these and other interests, and the result was that Mr. Ross declined to accept an offer which did not at the same time include the other shares of the company. As there are 100,000 shares besides those referred to, the deal, according to the terms laid down by him, would involve a total of $15,000,000, a sum which is easier to speak of than grass.

DOMINION COAL. Toronto Saturday Night: James Ross has again been placed on the spot where the light falls, by the developments of the past few days in the financial and industrial development of Canada. An offer has been made him to purchase his interests in the Dominion Coal Co. at par. As the market price of Dominion Coal is just 80c to-day, on the stock exchanges, he would be getting a premium of 14 points above the market. As he possesses, or controls, at least 50,000 shares, according to street rumor, an effort to purchase that number of shares on the open market would unquestionably mean an advance of at least fifteen points, so that the purchaser would be quite justified in paying his 100 instead of 80, so far as that is concerned. The offer is believed to have been made through Rodolphe Forget, a man who seems to be always some-

COBALT STOCKS. On the strength of a number of apparently more or less wild rumors there was a sharp break in La Rose stock not only here, but in New York and Boston as well. In Montreal the stock was rather better held, although it scored quite a recession there. Nipissing shared in the break. On the Standard Stock Exchange La Rose opened at 7.25 and sold down

General Gossip

If the plans of the Elgar Choir's conductor and executive are carried out as at present outlined, Hamilton's good name as a musical centre will be more than ever worthily upheld. The first rehearsal this week brought out nearly a hundred chosen vocalists, and when the membership ranks are filled next week the choir will number nearly 120 voices. The first of the two concerts will be principally devoted to Verdi's Manzoni Requiem, and the choir will be supported by the Buffalo Symphony Orchestra and a quartette of New York vocalists. On the second evening the choir will present a notable programme of numbers, most of them a capella, which is always the most appreciated form of choral accomplishment. The choir that evening will be assisted by the Toronto Symphony Orchestra, which, under the direction of Mr. Welman, has already secured a high standing. Among the new numbers for the choir are Coleridge-Taylor's "Searift," a novelty, and Macfarren's "You Stole My Love." Other selections will be Elgar's "Lullaby" and "Challenge of Thor," "By Babylon's Wave," "The Bells of St. Michael's Tower," and a special arrangement of "O Canada."

An amusing incident occurred after Miss Eva Mylott's first appearance in the Albert Hall, London. After an enthusiastic reception, and unrestricted applause, having charmed her audience throughout the entire concert, the young singer was about to leave the hall, when an old man came up to her and said, "Miss Mylott, you have given me very great pleasure this evening. I would like to have you sing for me at one of my parties." "That is very kind of you," Miss Mylott replied, "but of course I would like to know who the other artist is." At this he answered, laughing heartily: "Don't you know me? I am Joachim." Miss Mylott sang for him many times after this, and cherishes many delightful memories of the great violinist, who admired her so much as an artist and prophesied a great future for her through her wonderful voice. Miss Mylott will sing at the Opera House in Hamilton on Oct. 29.

For the most interesting and most pleasing play in the world, Ethel Barrymore's season in New York is a new play, "Mid-Channel," will not begin until January.

Margaret Anglin has received three offers for the foreign rights of her production, "The Awakening of Helena Richie." Two offers came from London, the other from Australia. Miss Anglin will retain the play for her own use in London.

Oiga Nethersole arrived in New York last week, and will open her season in Baltimore, Oct. 11, in "The Writing on the Wall." Miss Nethersole, looking extremely well and beautiful, expressed her pleasure at being once more in America. She was accompanied by her secretary, Miss Field, and two maids.

At the Majestic Theatre, in Utica, N. Y., last Thursday night, Kyrle Bell was seen for the first time in this country in the new Alfred Sutro play, "The Builder of Bridges." Reports from Utica have been most felicitous, and the handsome Raffles is supposed to have a vehicle which will serve him as long and as well as "Raffles" or "The Thief."

George W. Moore, known familiarly as "Pony" Moore, the famous minstrel, died in London, Eng., on Friday, Oct. 1. Mr. Moore was best known as the founder of the Moore & Burgess Minstrels. He was born in Mulberry street, New York, on March 27, 1825. He was given his nickname of "Pony" because of his size, and it stuck to him all his life. He made his debut in 1844 at the Half Way House in New York. In 1850 he went to London to join the Christy Minstrels, and he remained abroad for ten years. He accumulated quite a fortune in his time, and resided in London during his later years.

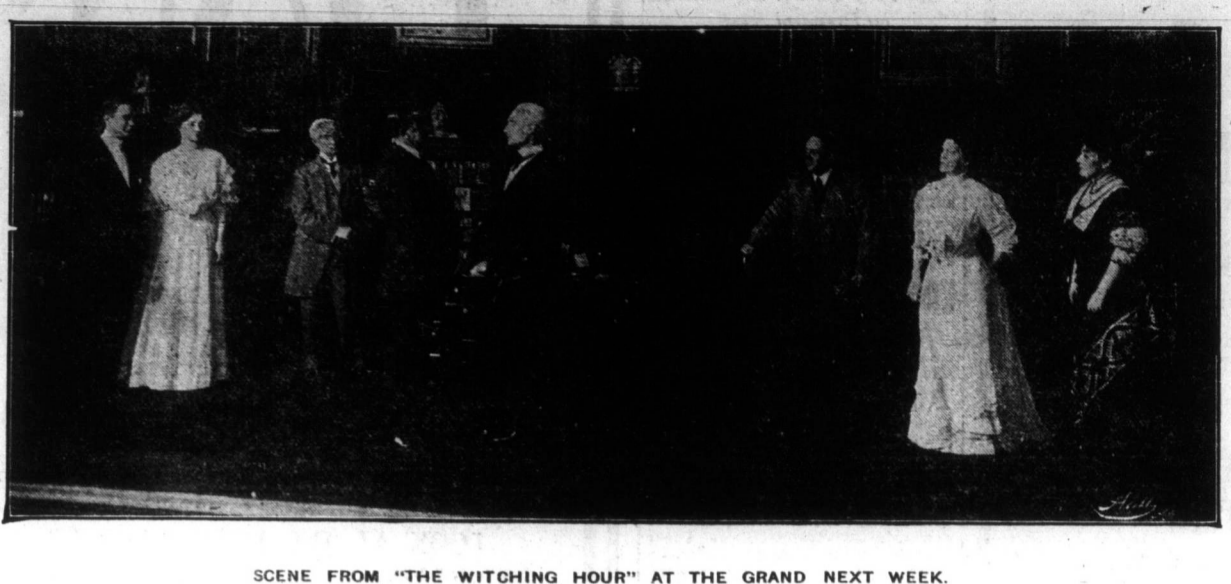

A deed was filed Sept. 27 at the County Clerk's office in Jamaica whereby sixty-five lots at Douglas Manor were conveyed for $35,500 to the Daniels-Hopper Realty Company by Frank Daniels and his wife, De Witt Hopper, and his sons, known on the stage as Nella Bergen, and William Harris. The deed seems to forecast a new actors' colony on Long Island. By the provisions of the deed a house costing less than $5,000 is barred from the land. Flat-roofed buildings and two-family houses are also barred. No buildings may be erected within twenty feet of the front or side of a lot and no garage or stable shall be nearer than sixty feet to the street line.

Fifty years ago this autumn Adelina Patti (Baroness Cederstrom) made her debut in opera in New York at the age of seventeen, in "Lucia di Lammermoor," with the famous tenor, Brignoli, as Eduardo. Ten years previously she had won note in concerts. She visited Europe first in 1861, and her triumphs in Paris, London and Madrid are a part of musical history. Great preparations are now making abroad to celebrate her jubilee.

Prof. Charles Walter Wallace, a native of this city, and now the popular blind organist of Lebanon, Pa., who is on a visit to his old home, will give a recital in Knox Church on Tuesday evening next, Oct. 12. Prof. Wallace is a noted musician, and has made a great name for himself in his Pennsylvania home. He will be assisted on Tuesday night by Mrs. W. F. Brennan and the Knox Male Quartette. It will be an evening of rare enjoyment.

At Bennett's

The stellar feature at Bennett's theatre next week will be the English Mermaids, the spectacular swimming novelty, of which the American press speaks so appreciatively. These pretty girls were formerly with the famous Finney family, featured here three seasons ago, at the opening of the Bennett house. The new offering in which they will appear here has been prominently exploited at the principal music halls of Europe and the big vaudeville theatres of America. In two huge glass tanks the mermaids appear, giving a really wonderful exhibition of fancy swimming and difficult feats. The length of time during which they remain submerged is startling. The act is heralded as one of the best successes of the season and made a great hit recently in New York. In view of the amount of interest aroused here this year by the revival in aquatic sports the act should prove a very attractive drawing card.

Comedy will again predominate the bill. The chief fun maker will be a bright little satire entitled, "A Trial Marriage," in which Henry Briscoe and Olive Keen will appear. As the title suggests, the sketch offers exceptional opportunities for fun making. The act is well staged and capably handled. Mr. Briscoe is one of vaudeville's best-known comedians. The Dixie Serenaders, two dask maids and four men, who will be seen in a spectacular singing and dancing number, are said to have one of the best "smoke" acts seen in vaudeville in a long time. Their dances are pretty, the singing a harmonious blending of pleasing voices and the comedy unusually bright. As a closing number, a spectacular glimpse of the Sunny South is given.

Scott and Wilson, comedy acrobats and rube comedians, will be seen in a new offering. It takes a mighty good acrobatic act these days to arouse enthusiasm, but this pair are said to have an offering that is full of snap and ginger.

A sketch entitled "37 Miles from Broadway," will be the offering in which Zinell and Boutelle will introduce themselves to Hamilton theatregoers. The story concerns a pair of theatrical performers who get stranded at a tank town far from dear old New York town. The lines are bright, the action quick and the sketch enlivened by some exceptionally clever vocal work.

Luigi Marbini has an act that is a genuine novelty, something that is really entirely new. With an ice pick he chisels out of solid blocks of ice, in remarkable fast time, all sorts of birds and beasts. The act has a pretty Polar setting and is sure to attract attention for its unique ideas if nothing else.

Corinne Francis is sure to be a favorite. This dainty, dashing little artist, was featured last season with the Five Masons, a well known vaudeville organization. As a single entertainer in a dainty singing and dancing sketch, in which she makes a number of pretty costume changes, she has created a big hit.

The latest motion pictures will be featured by the kinetograph. The attractions booked for Bennett's week after next include the following:

"The Vital Question" a strong drama, based on an episode of tense dramatic interest. It will be presented by a capable company.

Mr. and Mrs. Jimmy Barry in their rural comedy sketch, "At Hensfoot Corners." This clever pair made a big hit here at the time of the street car strike by volunteering their services at an entertainment conducted by the Street Railway Men's Union.

Sisters Gasch in a remarkable acrobatic act and Nettie Vesta, a dainty singing comedienne, who has been seen here before.

Eckhoff and Gordon, in a comedy musical offering and the Leanders, cycling comedians.

At the Grand

A good-sized audience at the Grand last evening got not a little amusement from the Smith-Hubbell musical comedy, "A Knight For a Day." For a popular-priced attraction it is unusually good.

The comedy is unusually bright. As a story concerns itself with the adventures of a diminutive waiter who masquerades as a lawyer and knight, a servant lady, two mysterious lockets, an heiress and an estate in Corsica. What there is of it is laughable. George Ovey, as the bogus lawyer, proper name Jonathan Gay, made himself a favorite with his comical work, and had a good many recitals. Hilda Thomas, as Tillie, the servant, seconded him in the fun-making, bringing many a laugh. The other characters were well taken, particularly that of Muriel Oliver, by Louise Shepherd, who acted and sang with good taste. The staging being by Gus S. Shike, it was, as is usual in his work, productive of many novelties, and the audience was kept guessing as to the next surprise. The business never lagged. The piece will be repeated to-night.

A play to make people think is "The Witching Hour," Augustus Thomas' masterpiece, which will be presented at the Grand on Tuesday and Wednesday evenings next. In this remarkable piece Mr. Thomas has provided exciting episodes and situations, much genuinely stirring drama of the higher sort, many unique and curious, little surprises of plot dealing with mystic phenomena, weird inheritances of ancestry and startling influences of personality upon personality down through three generations and from the gambler's fashionable card room to the very shadow of the Supreme Court and the jury room of a great murder trial. The skill with which he has woven so many human interests together with all the new ideas that are afloot in the air concerning telepathy, Christian science, spiritualism, hypnotism, mesmerism and all that concerns those unknown mysteries, is enough to stamp this as an even greater achievement than his "Alabama," his "In Mizoura," or his "Arizona." The playgoer who is wise enough to see "The Witching Hour" will carry home with him new sensations, feelings and thoughts and will find fresh interest in the curious coincidences and strange impressions of every day life. Seats are now on sale and large audiences are almost assured, judging from the advance demand.

Klaw & Erlanger's production of Rex Beach's "The Barrier," is described as being big, buoyant, bracing, strong, rugged, irresistible—just what a story of Alaska, the land of the last frontier, should be. "The Barrier" is the story of a young army officer suddenly transferred from the south to the far north. The venturesome hero goes into the Yukon country to preserve order. The picture of the gold fields is the background, but it is the love of the soldier for the half-blood heroine, the spirit of mystery surrounding her father and herself, the thrill of the hard gamblers of the snow wilds, the battle of wit and brawn, the away-from-civilization atmosphere, that lend power to the combination of romance and adventure that make this play one of the strongest of modern dramas. "The Barrier" is full of the freshness and magnetism of life in a new country. The company is said to be one of the strongest organizations that has visited this city in some time, for it includes Mr. Theodore Roberts, one of America's greatest character actors, Miss Florence Rockwell, so well remembered for her charming performance in "The Round Up," Mr. W. S. Hart, last seen here as "The Virginian," said Mr. Alphonse Ethier, the recognized "Ben Hur."

Charles Dickens was a master hand at portraying the passion and frailties of the human race. In his "David Copperfield," one of the most striking situations is furnished by the efforts of Rosa Dartle to win the love of the handsome dashing Steerforth and her hatred of little Emily, whom she thinks he admires. Her jealous rage and the scene in which she taunts the deserted girl at being forsaken by the man for whom she left home, furnishes a fascinating picture of the woman who has loved, but lost. "David Copperfield" will be presented by a strong company at the Grand shortly.

An evening of song by Bernard Daly in his new romantic Irish play, "Sweet Lisfallen," combined with bright Irish wit, a strong play, beautiful scenic effects from the Lakes of Killarney and a strong supporting company under the direction of Mr. A. E. Caldwell, will be given at the Grand the week after next. A delightful evening is promised and every true Irish heart will feel a responsive thrill when Mr. Daly sings the old, old song, "The Wearing of the Green."

Year in and year out, Joe Weber has given to New York a travesty of the most amusing type. The company with which he surrounds himself is invariably more than clever, and there have been under his management the most prominent stars in the theatrical firmament, and the Weber chorus is invariably of the most attractive material. The plays are worthy vehicles of their sort, and the costumes and scenery admirable. As a comedian, Joe Weber long ago demonstrated his propensity for developing characterizations that are his peculiar province. Mr. Weber will present in this city, at the Grand, shortly, his travesties on "The Merry Widow and the Devil."

THE FAIR.

Hired Man's Day Off at Agricultural Show.

(Toronto Telegram.)

The average city dweller is vaguely conscious that way out beyond where the asphalt ends is a large territory which exports from time to time milk cans, lifelong Liberals, local option, testimonials for patent medicines, vegetables in season and numerous wagons which amble contentedly along the wrong side of our thoroughfare. Where they all come from, or why, seldom worries him. He dimly realizes that beyond the great divide, out there behind the cloud-decked horizon, is to be found a form of existence different from his own; but it never occurs to him to navigate to the source of the can, to track the liebling Liberal to his lair.

Now the time offers for such a voyage of discovery. The inhabitants of the countryside are forgotten in sundry straits. The fall fairs are in season, and every country town which considers itself in the smart set sends out cards for a swell function. 'Tis a hard-hearted farmer who doesn't give Hank, the hired man, his annual holiday and likewise his wife, Samantha, and the girls on to the scene of activity. So the fall fair becomes a Mecca for that portion of the population which plays so important a part in the Dominion's history, both at election time and meal time.

GETTING READY FOR THE FAIR.

The months preceding the big day are anxious ones along the concession lines. Father's excitement waxes ever greater as mother scores off day after day on the big sewing machine calendar in the parlour. The farmer's uprising shames the laggard lark as he treads across the dew-laden fields to manure the purple heifer; at noon, the dinner horn falls upon unresponsive ears, while he polishes up the succulent exhibition slush; and oftentimes it is as scandalously late as 9 o'clock when he retires to rest after finally inspecting the potato beds to make sure that the sheets aren't damp. As the fated day draws on apace the family is thrown into a fever of anticipation and the hired man's life is a burden.

EN ROUTE TO THE SCENE.

Fair day arrives. At dawn the family steed is aroused from his slumbers to have his hair brushed, his tail macreled and gay ribbons attached to his effulgent anatomy. "Git up," shouts pa; and, with a final glance to see if the lunch basket is absolutely secure, equipage moves upon the neighboring town.

Arrived there, a place is found for Dobbin and the rig amid the melee of conveyances that crowds the hotel yard. Thence to the fair grounds whose flags flap welcome in the breeze. Pa carefully counts his progeny, produces with resignation the necessary legal tender, and the gate swings wide. Forthwith disperses the family, for tastes differ and there are divers attractions for all.

JUDGING THE LIVE STOCK.

The live stock exhibit most likely lures pa. He finally locates the sheep upon whom his hopes are centred, standing among others of its woolly kind, while the judges conduct an inquest on its anatomy to see if it is real jagger, the proverbial yard-wide, and entirely untenantable by entomological specimens. The animal bears the inquisition with manly composure, but the proprietor shuffles sheepishly till the fateful red ribbon is tacked on the prize winner.

Should he capture the trophy, the farmer does not, la Wolfe, regret that instead he did not write Gray's Elegy; he just glows with joy. Should he lose, he blinks back his chagrin and tows his dejected mutton back to the pen. There is no use quarrelling with the award, for have not the judges their credentials stamped upon their features, long silky whiskers that discount the achievement of even the wool-bearing prize winner?

LOTS OF RED RIBBON.

Mayhap some other denizen of his farm yard will crown his banner with success and restore the beam to his honest shining face. Has he not a porker whose legs are scarcely long enough to provide clearance for his appetite. Is not his bell cow-boss there mooing vociferously to have a small dairy attended to? And does not Bucephalus, pride of the plow, pound the show ring with his whiskered feet? All is not lost, red ribbons galore still peep encouragingly from the committee's pocket.

PUMPKINS AND SUCH LIKE.

Turning into the agricultural hall, one comes athwart the prize pumpkin with an army of pies nestling in its succulent midst; and the monster cumber looking deceptively peaceful despite its arsenal of colicky axes; and the apples, turnips, many-eyed potatoes and giant ears of corn attesting the richness of Ontario's soil. Scattered over them are the red cards that spell kudos, and each prizes to the lucky exhibitor. Pa slips furtively with ill-concealed anxiety from group to group to see if perchance his name and address decorates one of the rubicund pastebards. Finds he it there, and he wouldn't swap for a Christmas Globe.

LUCY SCORES A TRIUMPH.

Mother and the girls, meanwhile, seek their feminine triumphs where the pie and jams, and pickles and homemade bread struggle for supremacy. Little slices from this exhibit and that prove that the judges are resolved to do their duty or perish in the attempt.

The needle, the bodkin and other weapons of the Dorcas Society have played their part. There, with the insignia of victory pinned to it, is the rainbow-hued antimacassar which Lucy would hurriedly to hide when Archie would drop in unexpectedly of an evening. Lucy's hand thrills joyously upon Archie's arm as she spins the winning tag, and the conscious pride of the male overpresents the features of her swain. What if that Sharon girl does say catty things about the judge; it is pretty safe now there will be wedding bells on the fourth concession. "Life is not all antimacassars, oh Archie," says the village pessimist, but youth is hot-blooded, and will not be advised.

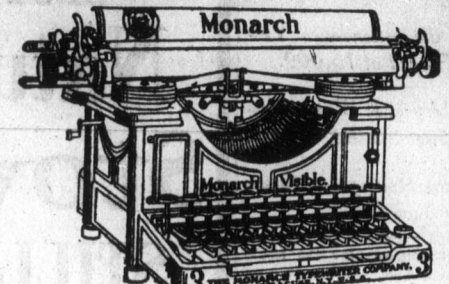

SOMETHING FOR NOTHING.

Even if you don't compete, even if you can't tell a mangel wurtzel from a Hubbard squash, there is lots of fun at a fall fair. There is the free show—the acrobats who walk tightropes in union suits, skin the cat, and perform similar feats of skill and daring. Many there are who sit the afternoon through gazing and gasping at the daredevils and occasionally sustaining life with an equilateral triangle of pumpkin pie. But it is the trotting races which provide the clou of the snow for the untutored youths, for the swains who haven't copied out a village nymph, and pretend by their swagger they do not care. Bait or snare, these gentry glue their shoulders to the rail and watch the champions of the concession lines as they whip past and cast portions of the track into the physiognomies of over-eager spectators. Many a quarter changes hands, and 'tis a crushing blow to the hired man when his candidate takes a long lead and then, spying with puzzled optics the hobbles, tries to trip over them. For equine comedy, Dufferin Park racing cannot hold a candle to the trots of a county fair.

Whizz! "Missed," chuckle the canner natives who lounge idly nearby. Whizz again, and renewed mirth.

Then the third and last shot; every neck is craned, and—bing, the doll is hit. "Ah," sigh the bystanders, as with envious eyes they watch the spendthrift saunter off, a death-dealing cigar protruding jauntily from his face.

DON'T THROW MONEY ABOUT.

But spendthrifts are few beyond the asphalt zone. The Barker brays his invitation to ring a cane or hit a number. "Prizes for everyone—you can't lose." Popular preference alack! is all for the prize pumpkin, the corpulent swine and acrobatic feats where there is nothing to pay. The agriculturist is out for a rip-roaring good time, and whether it's a nickel is five cents, whether its fair day or one of the three hundred and sixty-four other component parts of the year.

200 DESERTERS

New York, Oct. 8.—Six of the great foreign men-of-war—three British armored cruisers and three French battleships—crept out to sea through the Narrows just at dark to-night, leaving behind a great cloud of black smoke and a substantial number of their men. Just how many of the blue-jackets remained in the city for one reason or another is a matter of official knowledge only, but it was reported that two hundred men from the British ships had failed to turn up for duty. Of the French it was said that only three out of the 2,900 sailors had stayed behind. Fleet officers remained to search for the men of both squadrons. When the British squadron visited New York several years ago it lost three hundred men.

In giving their farewell to-day, the Britishers outdid their continental sisters, the French, in the matter of extreme courtesy. While international politeness by no means requires it, all three of the English cruisers fired a parting salute of twenty-one guns as they passed Governor's Island. Old Castle Williams fired twenty-one for each vessel in return. The French had previously passed out in silence.

Guilty Slav Wins His Plea for Separate Execution.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., Oct. 9.—Sheriff Rhodda has decided to hang Willis and Nazarko, the condemned murderers, on the fourteenth of this month separately. It was at first proposed to hang both men at the same time, but Nazarko, who is a Slav, objected to being executed with a negro. The sheriff's real reason, however, for having two hangings is to avoid a sympathetic scene.

CALEDONIA'S GREAT FAIR. Estimate of the Attendance Yesterday Placed at 15,000. In Every Respect It Was an Immense Success. Results of the Racing and Sports of Two Days.

With the attendance near the 15,000 mark, Caledonia Fair, the largest and best of the many fall fairs held in this part of the country, came to a close last night, after two of the most successful days ever known in the history of the society.

In making arrangements for the fair this year, the directors were determined that nothing should be left undone to make it a success, and in this they succeeded to a degree far beyond their expectation.

The main building presented an attractive sight, being well filled with varied exhibits, from factory, store, orchard and farm. At the east end of the building were the exhibits of art and ladies' work.

The refreshment providers did not forget the fair, as shown by the large number of booths, which included a large dinner under the direction of the Ladies' Aid of the Methodist Church.

The Caledonia Citizens' Band was present and assisted in making things lively by a liberal supply of excellent music. In the exhibition of horses, Caledonia lived up to its reputation and the entries far exceeded expectations.

The vegetable exhibits were very large this year, having to be displayed in a separate building, which was well filled with all the many varieties. The table features were the collections shown by Mr. Smith and F. Thomas.

The dairy products were numerous, and the judges stated that the butter this year was of splendid quality and scored very close to Toronto Exhibition. They described the display as one of the best ever seen at a country fair.

The floral exhibits were striking. Several tables were well filled and the quality of all was excellent. The dahlias and other cut flowers showed well above the dark background and offered a display that was a treat.

The school exhibit, which was under the supervision of J. W. Richardson, was a great credit to the young people of the various schools, and included some excellent pencil work, drawings and maps.

Prominent features on the programme for the afternoon were the V. M. C. A. acrobats and the colored minstrels, who amused and interested the large crowd gathered together in the grand stand.

MADE CITY BEAUTIFUL.

City Improvement Society Distributed Its Many Prizes.

Plans For Future Work Outlined by President Steel.

Short Addresses by Mayor McLaren and Prominent Citizens.

The council chamber in the City Hall was filled last night, not with aldermen or civic officials, but with prize winners and their friends in the Hamilton Civic Improvement Society's competition for the best general appearance around the homes, the best kept back yards and the best flower boxes, who were present to receive their prizes.

It was a good sight to see the light of pleasurable surprise that shone in the faces of the winners—men and women who had devoted hours of labor to making their homes look beautiful, and thus had helped to make the city beautiful. There, in those little back yards, men had dug and planted, and their efforts had been rewarded. There they had learned to banish from their minds the fallacy of arguing the theological controversy, and had found God in that wonderful growth which they had seen and could not explain.

Mr. Tasker Steele briefly explained that the society was formed ten years ago, but its career had been a chequered one. Mr. Hoodless, president of the Greater Hamilton Association, had done the work of resurrection this year by getting his association to vote $250 to the society. Mr. Steele said a lot of nice things about Hamilton in his speech, and said it was better to have quality in population than quantity.

Another thing the society is going to fight for is the removal of the Gore Park Fence and to have lamps placed round the park. The speaker told of the bulb competition which would take place in the spring, and would be announced for later.

Chicago, Oct. 8.—A cut of 10 per cent. in salaries of all officials and employees of this city, from Mayor Buse's $18,000 down to the lowest laborer, has been agreed upon by the Mayor and department heads for next year. This measure was made necessary by the fact that Chicago has not money enough to maintain the pay roll at its normal level. The pay roll last year approximated $15,000,000. The cut, before becoming effective, must be sanctioned by the City Council, where a big fight against it is expected.

The DAY of the DUEL

AN EYE FOR AN EYE (A TRUE STORY)

Copyright, 1908, by the New York Herald Co. All Rights Reserved.

HE broad shouldered, strong faced man who entered the hotel dining room with assured step had about him the subtle something of distinction, of power, of magnetism that marked a leader. Glances and whispered comments among those who were at breakfast showed that he was known and that he was worth knowing. It was David C. Broderick, United States Senator from California, son of an Irish laborer, newsboy of the New York streets, ward politician by grace of heavy fists and high courage, stone cutter and, finally, one of the dominant figures of the new golden State.

As he took his seat he opened a newspaper and began to read the account of the convention held at Sacramento the day before by the branch of the democratic party that was bitterly opposing him. While he read his brows gathered and knotted. It was one of those quick flashes of anger beyond the control of strong minds, sober and well balanced though they be, that brought his eyes from a certain passage in the paper to the face of a man seated opposite him. The other man had been reading that same account and there was an unspoken question in his glance.

"I see that your friend Terry has been abusing me at Sacramento, Mr. Perley," he said. His hearer blurted.

"What is it, Mr. Broderick?"
"I defended that man when all others deserted him," Broderick went on, emphatically. "I paid and supported three newspapers to defend him during the Vigilance Committee days, two hundred dollars a week I paid. I have hitherto spoken of him as an honest man, as the only honest man of a corrupt Supreme Court, but now I find that I was mistaken. I take it all back."

"I am a warm admirer of Judge Terry," said Perley, leaning over the table. "You would not dare to use such language to him."

"Would not dare?" echoed Broderick.
"No, sir. And you shall not use it to me concerning him. I shall hold you personally responsible for the language you have used."

Broderick looked at Perley with a slow smile of contempt and superiority. "My dear sir," he said, "I fight only with gentlemen of my own position." Thereupon he placidly resumed the reading of his paper, and Perley, fuming with rage and exasperation, left the table.

The local situation, like the national one, was ripe for trouble. It was a time of tense, unbridled political passion in California, when the hurrying war clouds were drawing toward a vortex and men hated rather than believed. Broderick's position was critical. He was a supporter of Stephen A. Douglas and leader of the section of the State democratic party which was opposed to the further extension of slavery. His fellow Senator, William M. Gwin, was his direct adversary and champion of the slavery wing.

Broderick had won his seat after a terrific struggle, during which he had displayed unexpected strength. In an attempt to conciliate the Broderick element Gwin had pledged himself in writing to give over part of his political patronage. Broderick had protested by the error. Waving this document, the "scarlet letter," as an offense, he had called for the suppression of a man who would thus openly admit the corruption he practiced. From that moment Broderick had been marked for sacrifice. It had been war then, with the elimination of Broderick as the first step essential to his enemies.

David S. Terry, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court of California, was one of Gwin's most devoted followers. A man of undoubted gifts, he was passionate and quarrelsome, a duelist, remorseless as he was fearless. Before the split in the party he had been friendly with Broderick. During the time of the vigilantes he had taken part in an attempt to rescue a prisoner from the custody of those volunteer advocates of law and order and in the fracas had stabbed Sterling A. Hopkins, a vigilante. He had been thrown into jail and Broderick had saved him by bringing press influence to bear in his favor.

The obligations which Terry owed him had moved Broderick's outburst at the hotel dining table. Terry the man he had protected from death or banishment; Terry, his former friend, had risen at the Gwin convention and attacked him as a traitor. Referring to the anti-slavery Democrats, Terry had said—
"They are the followers of one man, the personal chattels of a single individual whom they are ashamed of. They belong, heart, soul, body and breeches, to David C. Broderick. Yet they are ashamed to acknowledge their leader."

More than two months passed before Broderick's sharp exchange of words with Perley bore their fruit. Then, early in September, 1859, the Senator received the following communication:—

"Sir—Some two months ago, at the public table of the International Hotel, in San Francisco, you saw fit to indulge in certain remarks concerning me which were offensive in their nature. Before I heard of the circumstances your note of the 29th of June, in which you declared that you would not respond to any call of a personal character during the political canvass, just concluded, had been published. I have, therefore, not been permitted to take any notice of those remarks until the expiration of the limit fixed by your self. I now take the earliest opportunity to require of you a retraction of those remarks. This note will be handed to you by my friend, Calhoun Denham, Esq., who is acquainted with its contents and will receive your reply."
D. S. TERRY.

Broderick was no devotee of the code, though he was regarded as an expert with the pistol. In his New York days, when he had led a phalanx of thumping partisans, he had had no experience with the niceties of personal combat. In his rise to a loftier plane of political effort after moving West he had shown himself possessed of excellent qualities, resourceful, a good speaker, a strong executive. But he had never sought to enforce his great popularity or his reputation by threats of personal reprisal. At the same time there was nothing of the coward in him and he was not the one to retract.

In his reply to Terry he recalled his remarks to Perley and said that they were occasioned by allusions to him made by Terry at the Sacramento Convention. "You are the proper judge as to whether this language affords good ground for offence," he concluded. There was no delay in the decision. Terry immediately resigned his position and challenged. It was at first arranged that the meeting should take place at sunrise on September 12 near the San Francisco county line. Word of this reached the chief of police, however, and the principals with their seconds were arrested on arriving at the designated spot. They were discharged from custody the same day and the subsequent arrangements were made more secretly. The conditions were as follows:—

- 1—Principals to be attended by two seconds and a surgeon each; also by a person to load the weapons. This article not to exclude the drivers of the vehicles. If other parties obstruct the time and place may be changed at the instance of either party.
- 2—Place of meeting—On the farm adjoining the Lake House Ranch, Laguna Merced.
- 3—Weapons—Duelling pistols.
- 4—Distance—Ten paces, parties facing each other; pistols to be held with the muzzle vertically downward.
- 5—Word to be given as follows, to wit:—"Gentlemen, are you ready?" Upon each party replying "Ready" the word "fire" shall be given, to be followed by the words, "one, two." Neither party to raise his pistol before the word "fire" nor to discharge it after the word "two." Intervals between the words "fire, one two," to be exemplified by the party winning the word, as near as may be.
- 6—Weapons to be loaded on the ground in the presence of a second of each party.
- 7—Choice of position and the giving of the word to be determined by chance—throwing of a coin, as usual.
- 8—Choice of the two weapons to be determined by chance, as in article 7.
- 9—Choice of the respective weapons of parties to be determined on the ground by throwing of a coin, as usual—that is to say, each party bringing their own pistols and the pair to be used to be determined by chance, as in article 7.

The Place Selected.
On the morning of September 13 the principals and their respective attendants were on the ground in a valley near Laguna de la Merced, a like about twelve miles from San Francisco. It was a cold, clear day with little wind stirring. In spite of all efforts word of the meeting had been whispered in certain quarters and about eighty spectators were present.

Judge Terry had chosen as members of his party three men who were familiar with the operations of the code and the necessary arrangements on the field. Broderick's supporters, on the other hand, knew little of the matter in hand and it was evident as the preparations progressed that they were unable to emulate the cool composure that marked the attitude of the opposing group. Their nervousness did not tend to set their principal at his ease. One of them, Leonidas Haskell, approached Broderick to untie his cravat. In the midst of his operation he stopped, overcome by emotion, and walked away a few paces wringing his hands. It was with difficulty that he could bring himself to complete the office with his friend.

It was now time for the preliminaries when the little details of the duel were to be submitted to chance. It may have been that Broderick read in the result an ill omen, for he lost every toss. Judge Terry selected his own pistols, the weapon he preferred of the pair, the position and the right for his own second to give the word.

When Broderick took his stand he was pale, with his features hard set. He was clad, as was his opponent, in a long, black overcoat, light in weight and unbuttoned. Both men also wore soft felt hats pulled low over their eyes. It was apparent to all that Terry was more at ease than the Senator. Broderick fumbled with the skirts of his coat, pulling them away from his knees and apparently feeling that his clothing hampered him. Terry, on the other hand, was obviously in full command of himself, concentrating every faculty upon the success of his shot.

In observance of the extreme punctilio of the code the chief second for each party then advanced to examine the principals for concealed mail or breast plates. Calhoun Benham, who acted for Judge Terry, performed this duty most thoroughly and in a manner that brought a twitching frown to Broderick's face. He ran his hands closely over the Senator's body, pressing and feeling with great care and deliberation. Congressman Joseph C. McKibben, who examined Terry, merely laid the tips of his fingers upon the breast of the Judge, bowed and withdrew. Broderick drew several coins from a waistcoat pocket and passed them to one of his attendants. Terry imitated his adversary and handed some silver to Calhoun Benham, who dropped them with superior gesture to the ground.

One more incident disturbed Broderick's poise, the exact adjustment of thought and person so valuable to the man about to venture deadly combat when his own second, McKibben, corrected him as to the position he had taken. He made no remark, however, and moving to the spot pointed out settled himself firmly for the ordeal. Benham now stepped forward and read aloud the conditions of the duel. David D. Colton, another of Terry's seconds, repeated the instructions as to the firing. During these final moments Broderick was measuring the ground between himself and his adversary with quick, uneasy glances. Terry stood erect and motionless, conserving every energy and never removing his keen eyes from the Senator. The spectators were warned to stand aside from the line of fire and the little valley fell suddenly silent. Colton's voice came loud and clear:—
"Are you ready, gentlemen?"
"Ready," said Terry, instantly. Broderick delayed

an appreciable space before replying.
"Fire!"
"One!"
Both men had brought their pistols swiftly to a level and at this point Broderick's weapon rang out.
"Two!"

Shot Not Mortal.
Terry's pistol spoke as Colton pronounced the word. Through the floating cloud of smoke that shifted slowly to one side eager eyes sought the result. Broderick had taken a step backward just after Terry's fire. He reeled and turned a little on his heels. It was evident that he was making a desperate effort to keep his feet. He sank suddenly to one knee, then pitched backward at full length. His seconds and surgeon ran to his aid and supported his head while a hasty examination was made. The bullet had entered the right breast, taking a tortuous course to the left armpit.

Terry held his place, watching the excited group opposite him with calm eyes, his arms folded and the barrel of his pistol hugged close. His first words were, "The shot is not mortal. I have struck two inches to the right." Broderick's bullet, it was found, had ploughed the ground about two paces in front of his antagonist. It was thus evident that he had discharged his weapon prematurely—a fact which was laid to his nervousness or to his unfamiliarity with the hair trigger.

One of the spectators of the affair was Davis, the owner of the dairy ranch upon which the meeting took place. He was one of the first to move in the tense instant when Broderick fell. Starting from his seat he rushed toward Terry, crying as he ran, "His life is in your hands, by God." Several men threw themselves upon him. He struggled to free himself. "Let me go," he cried. "Broderick has been murdered and I'm Broderick's friend. Are there any men here? Then come on and we'll wipe this matter out." He was restrained and pushed back from the field. It was the opinion of many present that if a word of his threat had reached Terry or any of Terry's seconds the result would have been a pitched battle between the sympathizers of the respective opponents.

Broderick was carried from the ground to the Haskell home at Black Point. He suffered greatly and was conscious during most of the time up to his death, three days later. One of his last remarks was, "I tried to stand firm when I was struck, but I could not. The blow blinded me." His comment on the affair was, "They have killed me because I was opposed to slavery and a corrupt administration," a sentence which had in it something of prophecy.

Broderick's funeral was one of the most impressive events in the history of San Francisco. He had been greatly admired and with his intimate knowledge of the people who made up the strength of his following had contrived to stand in the light of a personal friend to his supporters. The manner of his death aroused feeling to a high pitch and the entire city went into mourning. The political significance of the event was not lost sight of and the man served the anti-slavery cause in death as he had in life. Broderick had suffered for his defence of human liberty and the lesson was written so that all might read.

Nor was California the only section to mourn the strong, brilliant and able statesman. The affair produced a profound sensation throughout the country, serving as one of those striking and tragic incidents, like the John Brown raid, that congeal public sentiment into definite form. The ceremonies held in San Francisco were repeated in New York on the same day, the procession being two miles long.

Judge Terry was arrested after the death of Broderick, was tried and acquitted. All the influence of the Gwin branch of the democratic party was thrown into the scales to aid him. It was a period in the development of the West, moreover, when duels were almost every day occurrences and when public opinion, when not openly supporting the code, felt no particular desire to check its free operation. The man who had killed Broderick was set at liberty and went his way. In the tragic sequel he was to play a large part. Terry was to make his life one of the strangest of all strange stories.

At the outbreak of the civil war Terry made his way overland, through great hardships, into Texas. He had fought under General Sam Houston in the war for independence against Mexico and his claims to a command were at once recognized. He raised a company and saw active service throughout the struggle. At the conclusion of hostilities he returned to San Francisco and resumed the practice of law, in which he was notably successful.

In 1884 Terry became one of the counsel for Sarah Althea Hill, who fought a long and desperate legal battle through many years, first for recognition as the wife of William Sharon, United States Senator, and later for a share in his large estate. This case was the cause célèbre of the decade, and Terry attracted country wide attention through his conduct of it. During the hearings after the death of Sharon the former Judge became the husband of Sarah Althea.

When the woman's claims came up for final settlement Stephen J. Field, Associate Justice of the Supreme Court of the United States, read the opinion. By a curious twist of fate Field had been one of the warmest personal and political friends of David C. Broderick. With Terry and his wife seated in court Field pronounced the words that meant absolute failure for their case. The Justice was interrupted toward the end by the hysterical shrieks of Sarah Althea, who declared that the decision had been purchased. Court officers advanced to silence her and Terry sprang to her aid, drawing a long, broad bladed knife.

Battle in Court.
Drawing the woman behind him he held the officers at bay, swearing that he would kill the first man who laid hands on him. The court room was in an uproar and a dozen men threw themselves upon the raging Terry. He was disarmed by a United States Deputy Marshal, David Nagle. Justice Field sentenced him to six months and his wife to thirty days in the county jail as a result of the outbreak.

After his release Terry made no secret of his intention of killing Field. Word of his threats reached the Department of Justice in Washington and Nagle was assigned as a bodyguard to accompany the Justice. He was ordered to protect Field's person at all hazards. Terry met Samuel Turner, one of his benchmen during the early days of California, when he had given promise of becoming the greatest jurist of the State, soon after his release from jail. They drifted to a hotel bar and fell to discussing affairs in which they had both taken part. Terry, warning to the subject, released the Broderick affair.

"Sam," he said, "it was one of the proudest moments of my life when I saw Broderick fall. I did a great public service in removing that man and it has never been recognized."

"Then you've never been sorry for it?"
"Sorry? Why should I be? I went to breakfast just afterward, you may remember, and ate it with a good appetite and a clear conscience."
"You always did have nerves of steel," said Turner, shaking his head in awe.

"Just one thing is lacking, Sam, to make me completely satisfied. Field is still alive and I'm going to get him. You can tell any one I said so if you feel like it." Broderick and Field—they're the two stumbling blocks in my life. I'm getting to be a pretty old man, Sam, but when I get ready to go I'm going to take Stephen Field with me."

"You're nothing if not a good hater," murmured Turner. Terry's eyes narrowed and his face hardened.
"A good hater. Yes, I have been. I come from a race of good haters. Most of the men of my family have died with their boots on, Sam. If I ask one more thing beyond landing Field's old man, I may die that way myself." And the fierce old man, almost a forgotten type in the newer civilization of the West, strode from the place.

On August 14, 1889, Justice Field, accompanied by Nagle, boarded a Southern Pacific train at San Francisco. On the same train were Terry and his wife. They attempted to obtain seats in the same car with Field but were prevented. The train stopped for twenty minutes at Lathrop, a small town near Stockton, and the passengers entered the dining room of the railroad station for lunch. Terry, Nagle and Nagle were seated at one table, and the Terry's who did not see the Justice on entering the room, proceeded to another.

During the meal Sarah Althea caught sight of Field and called the attention of Terry to his presence. The actions and whispered conversation did not pass unobserved, and when the woman rose and left the room, with a threatening Terry close at her heels, the proprietors of the restaurant approached Terry.
"I hope your wife does not intend to make a scene," he said, indicating Field.
"My wife could not remain in the same room with that man," returned Terry, stiffly.
"Well, I hope you will make no trouble here. We don't want to have any trouble in this place."
"I don't know, there may be trouble," answered Terry, without raising his voice. When the other turned away from him he left his chair and walked to the table at which Field was seated. Leaning the table across the face with his open hand, Nagle, who had been watching Terry closely, whipped a revolver from his pocket and threatened to shoot if Terry did not desist. Terry paid no attention to Nagle, but with his eyes fixed upon Field raised his hand for another blow.

That instant Nagle fired. Terry staggered and fell while Nagle fired again. The first bullet passed through Terry's heart. The second missed him and scored a deep furrow in the floor. At the same instant that Terry fell his wife appeared in the doorway of the room with a satchel in her hand. She screamed and started toward her husband, crying that he had been murdered. She was stopped and the satchel taken from her. A revolver was discovered inside. She had evidently returned to her section on the train to obtain it.

Terry had been instantly killed. Nagle was arrested, but was later released. Sarah Althea was adjudged insane not long afterward and was confined in an asylum.

The Sunday School Lesson

LESSON 11.—OCTOBER 10, 1909.

Paul a Prisoner.—The Plot.—Acts 22; 23-25: 35. Acts 23: 11-24.

Commentary.—I. Paul before the council (22:30-23:10). The day following Paul's arrest the chief captain took him to the Sanhedrin in order to ascertain the nature of the charge against him. The scenes enacted here were very exciting.

II. The conspiracy against Paul (vs. 11-15). Lord stood by him—Probably appearing in a vision at Corinth (chap. 18:9). Paul must have been exhausted by the strain and excitement of the last two days.

III. Promptness in action.—"Hear, ye men of Israel." Had the young man delayed God must have worked a miracle to save Paul. "It is a lifelong disadvantage to be slow."

IV. The journey to Caesarea (vs. 23:35). 23. He called.—The chief captain took immediate steps to get Paul out of Jerusalem so this infamous plot could not be carried out.

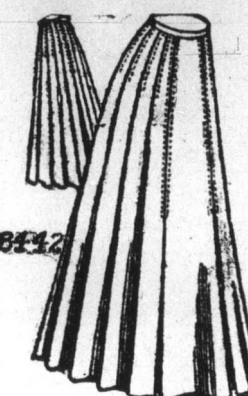

Consider the postage stamp. It says nothing regarding the difficulty of the task assigned it, but by dint of close application it usually gets there. Also, it delivers the goods.

The oldest man living. His wife called for assistance, but found her hubby was only pining his corns. Far better not to risk blood poisoning—use Putnam's.

Under date of yesterday, a professional man well known in this city and Chicago writes to the Evening Wisconsin as follows: Editor Evening Wisconsin:

The love that is not lived soon dies. The love that is not lived soon dies. The love that is not lived soon dies.

GOOD BLOOD AND GOOD HEALTH

Is the Result Obtained When Dr. Williams' Pink Pills Are Used.

To have good health you must have good blood. It is only when the blood is bad that the health is poor. The blood is the life-giving fluid of the body—it is therefore an absolute necessity that it should be kept free from all impurities and poisons.

Thousands of young girls throughout Canada suffer just as Miss Lapointe did. They are sickly all the time and are totally unable to take the enjoyment out of life that every healthy girl should.

OWNERSHIP RATES.

How Whitney Bleeds the Struggling Settlers of North Ontario.

Reports on the earnings of the Northern Ontario Railway for the month of July, as submitted by the Railway Commission, show an interesting fact, just what the Citizen has contended for many months.

The gross earnings of the road are $146,111 and the expenditures $75,587. This expense is made up from two items—running expenses $25,587, and interest $50,000. The balance of $70,524 with $9,813 paid in by the mines as royalties, added, leave a net balance of $80,337 as profits to the commission for the month's work.

And one of the pockets of struggling homeseekers and prospectors in practically a wilderness that stretches from Cochrane to Temagami! The number of homes do not exceed 12,000 of that territory.

RAGPICKERS OF PARIS.

The Right to a District Passes From Father to Son.

The ragpickers of Paris are born to their work, the occupation being passed from father to son for generations. Each rag-picker family has its own district, which is inherited by children and grandchildren.

In spite of all the progress made in modern and elegant Paris barrels of waste are piled up in the streets in front of many buildings, beautiful boulevards in the early morning hours, and it is the privilege, and in fact the mission, of the rag-pickers to examine this refuse.

They have use for everything, and but little is left after they have passed, their very thoroughness being one reason why the system is still allowed. Every scrap of paper has its market, says Popular Mechanics; rags are gathered for paper manufacturers, shoes go back to leather dealers.

Old sardine and preserved meat tins are used for making playthings, old bones produce gelatine and glue, lemon and orange peels are greatly sought after and sold at the rate of one cent a pound to perfume and syrup manufacturers, old metals are highly prized, cigar stubs go to tobacco factories and even stale vegetables are carted away.

The quarters of the rag-pickers of Paris are just outside of the confines of the city, sections carefully avoided by most people who do not belong to the guild. Every member of the family from the oldest to the three-year-old takes part in the sorting of the spoils, and it often happens that members of a family die either from poisoning from stink food or from a cut from one of the tins.

The secret of the plot had too many keepers to be well kept into the castle—Thus it appears that Paul's friends had free access to him. 17. Paul called.—He had received Christ's own promise of protection (v. 11), but he did not on that account neglect to avail himself of the ordinary means of protecting himself.

In Paul's sister's son we see: 1. Intelligence. He walked not through the world or the city of Jerusalem dreaming but kept his eyes and ears open, and picked up the hints which had been foisted against his uncle. 2. Affection. On seeing footing religiously he stood with his uncle cannot be told; yet in the sudden peril which confronted his mother's brother he made a bold stroke for his rescue. 3. Promptitude. Had he delayed in making known his discovery, his uncle's life might have been lost.

What makes a man lose his temper is for his wife to look astonished when he says he always kept it.—New York Press.

Origin of "O. K." Under date of yesterday, a professional man well known in this city and Chicago writes to the Evening Wisconsin as follows:

Editor Evening Wisconsin: Noting your editorial of August 24 concerning the editorial statement of the Chicago Inter-Ocean in its assumption that the phrase "O. K." originally came into use during the civil war, let me say that you are entirely correct in your statement—it was in common use long before that time.
