The Earl's Son; TWO HEARTS UNITED

CHAPTER XVII.

Ralph stood erect, every vestige of color gone from his face, his eyes fixed on the earl's, and unconscious of Veronica's, which were upturned to him as if she were trying to read his thoughts, to learn the effect of the earl's appeal.

"If the man be rich it is bad enough for her, but you are poor—you condemn her to poverty—can you endure to see her pine and fade under the terrible ordeal which poverty ordains for every woman; to see her, perhaps, wanting for food?—Oh, it is possible, believe me—"

"My lord!" broke from Veronica's lips; but Ralph did not speak.

"You condemn her to a life of misery—"

"No, no!" breathed Veronica, but he disregarded the faint cry.

"Poverty means misery for such as she is; she has tasted ease, luxury, admiration, the admiration of her own class. As the years—months—pass, do you think you will not realise all that this madness has cost her? Wait! You are above your class, Ralph Farrington, an exceptional specimen; but think of the others in your class, the men—and the women—with whom you will compel her to associate! She is proud—her pride is only sleeping under the narcotic of her—love for you; it will wake—oh, very soon, believe me!—and you will have to stand by and share the burden of her regret, of her—shame! Come, man! If there is a spark of the nobility in you with which she credits you, you will not let her sacrifice, degrade herself—"

Veronica uttered a cry, but Ralph's hand grasped hers and forced, commanded her to silence. His face was white, his lips were set tightly. For a moment it seemed as if he were incapable of speech, but he held up his hand and said, hoarsely:

"No more! I cannot bear— You have said enough, my lord. As man to man you have spoken to me, as man to man I will answer you. You have torn the veil from my eyes—it is true, true, every word of it! Sacrifice—such a sacrifice, for me! No, no! You are right; I cannot do it! Veronica uttered a cry but Ralph's lips were set tightly, but he opened with a bitter laugh.

"It is the only mistake you have made, my lord," he said, quietly. "In one breath you tell me I have behaved as a man, an honest man, the next you ask me to act as a cur! Where I go is no business of yours. I refuse your bribe—"

The earl's face darkened. "I see! You will hang about the place—"

"Not for a day, an hour!" he broke in, passionately. "Your lordship need have no fear of me. I have given my word and—I will keep it!"

The earl looked at him steadily. "I believe you," he said. He paused. "I was wrong in offering you money, and I ask your pardon!"

He raised his hat as he spoke, then slowly left the arbour.

Weary Tiredness Changed to Vigor.

That Played-Out Feeling Was Quickly Remedied and Health Restored.

Story of a Merchant Who Almost Lost His Business and His Health Through Neglecting Early Symptoms of Disease.

"My life for years has been of sedentary character," writes T. B. Titchfield, head of a well-known firm in Buckingham. "Nine hours every day I spent at office work and took exercise only on Sunday. I disregarded the symptoms of ill-health, which were all too apparent to my family. I grew thin, then pale, and before long I was jaundiced—eyes and skin were yellow, my strength and nerve energy were lowered, and I was quite unfitted for business. In the morning a lightness in the head, particularly when I bent over, made me very worried about my health. Most of the laxative medicines I found weakening, and knowing that I had to be at business every day I neglected myself rather than risk further weakness. Of course I grew worse, but by a happy chance I began to use Dr. Hamilton's Pills. I was forcibly struck by the fact that they neither caused griping nor nausea, and it seemed incredible that pills could tone, cleanse and regulate the system without causing any unpleasant after effects. Dr. Hamilton's Pills acted with me just as gentle as nature—they gave new life to my liver—strengthened my stomach, and won me back to perfect good health. My skin is clear, dizziness has disappeared, and my appetite, strength, spirits are perfect."

Refuse anything offered you instead of Dr. Hamilton's Pills, which are sure to cure. Sold in 25c boxes, five for $1.00, at all druggists and storekeepers, or postpaid from the Cataract Co., Buffalo, N.Y., and Kingston, Canada.

ringdon, the cow-boy, the digger, the gamekeeper. Even if he succeeded in gaining a fortune—and fortunes are not easily gained nowadays—he would never be her equal in position. He had lost her for ever, but the madness of his love would remain while life lasted.

He went out of the arbour, putting up his hand to ward off the sunlight as if it blinded him, and aimlessly wandered through the woods he had learned to love—principally because she had passed through them.

It was nightfall when he reached the but, and at once he began to make up a small bundle from his box. While he was doing so Burchett came in. Ralph looked round at him, and Burchett saw the pale and haggard face.

"What is the matter?" he asked, curiously.

"I am going," said Ralph.

"Going? Why?" demanded Burchett.

Ralph shook his head.

"Don't ask me: I can't tell you."

"Something has happened?"

"Yes; something has happened," assented Ralph, with a bitter smile.

"Something that renders it impossible for me to remain at Lyane Court any longer. Don't ask me. Let me go without a word. I'm sorry; but—there is no help for it. It's not safe for me to stay here."

"Not safe— But I ask no unpleasant questions," said Burchett. "A man knows his own business. But I'm sorry, lad. Is there anything I can do?"

Ralph shook his head again and sighed.

"Nothing. There is nothing anyone can do," he responded. "I am going to start presently. I have made up a bundle of the things I must take and can carry. You'll let the rest stay until I send for them—it may be a long day, perhaps—never, I think."

Burchett nodded, and stood watching him for a moment; then he drew out his old leather purse and laid it on the table.

"Your wages," he said.

Ralph examined the contents.

"There is more than's due to me," he said.

"Take it," ejaculated Burchett laconically. "Take it, or you'll offend me. You'll want money, wherever you're going. And I've no use for it."

There were ten sovereigns and some silver in the purse. Ralph took out five pounds, and was about to return the purse; but, changing his mind, put the balance of the money on the table and the purse in his pocket.

"I'll keep this, if you'll let me," he said. "It will remind me of all your kindness to me—not that I shall want reminding. I shan't forget it, Mr. Burchett."

He turned away to fasten the bundle and to hide the misery in his eyes; then he looked round the room.

"There was a knife, an old friend—"

"I used it to cut some tobacco this morning," said Burchett. He took from the mantel shelf a long clasp-knife with a black horn handle, with the initials "R.F." on it, and handed it to Ralph, who opened and shut it mechanically.

"It is a very old friend," he said. "I should have been sorry to leave it behind. No! I will give it to you if you'll have it."

Burchett shook his head.

Ralph took a small gold pin of little worth from his scarf.

"I'd like you to have that," he said, simply; and, as simply, Burchett accepted it.

"You look tired out," he said. "You will have something to eat and drink before you go?"

A Terrible Confession.

By RUTH CAMERON.

"And just think, her beds weren't made at three o'clock in the afternoon." So said the Author Man's Wife. "Pooh," said I, "what of it? I wouldn't give a fig for a woman who couldn't leave her beds unmade until five o'clock in the afternoon under some circumstances."

The Author Man's Wife looked shocked and I wasn't sorry. On the contrary, I love to shock her. She is that type. Nevertheless I didn't say it for that. I meant it. I wouldn't give a fig for a woman who couldn't leave her beds unmade until three in the afternoon or until three the next morning if she had a good reason for doing it.

I went into a young woman's home the other Sunday afternoon. She has a lovely new house, and a third member of the party suggested that I be shown over it. The mistress of the house consented, then blushed, drew back and looked disturbed. The truth shortly came out. She hadn't one of her beds made. She had been to church with her four children and her husband and then to a walk in the woods. Visitors had come in directly after dinner; she is a gracious hostess who likes to chat with her guests instead of flitting away to attend to some household duty, and the beds were still waiting a leisure moment.

"My dear," I said, "please don't be ashamed. I like you the better for it." And I do. I know it means that she places companionship with her husband, her children and her guests above the fetish of perfect household order. I should have liked her even better if she had not been ashamed but had had the complete courage of her convictions.

Why should it be such a crime to have a bed unmade in a room in which you are not going to be all day? If it were in the living room where one sits, that would be another thing. That would confuse the room and take away from its attractiveness. But in a room dedicated to sleep alone what does it matter if the arrangements for sleeping are not made until an hour or two before the time to use them?

Let me make what some people will consider a terrible confession. In the summer my beds frequently are not made up at three o'clock, nor at six, not at any time. I lay the under-sheet smoothly and comfortably and leave the rest of the bedclothes arranged over the foot of the bed. I save the labor of making and the labor of opening and I make the beds cooler to sleep in.

No, I am not afraid of encouraging slovenly and disorderly women in their bad habits. I am not commending slovenliness. I believe that a house should be kept as clean and orderly as is necessary for the health and comfort of the occupants, but I believe there are nine women who go beyond the requirements and sacrifice pleasure, happiness, health and companionship to the fetish of unnecessary neatness, to one who falls below that standard.

Republic of Panama.

By GEORGE FITCH.

Author of "At Good Old St. John's." The Republic of Panama is a small side show which occasionally attracts the attention of tourists for a few minutes after they have finished viewing the big show.

Nobody sees much of Panama but the City of Panama, the flat arch which has fooled the earthquakes, and a few streets in Colon. But there is a good deal to the country which will be discovered rapidly when flying machines become a little more practicable. It is 430 miles long and over 100 miles wide in parts and has 33,000 square miles, most of which are unpopulated with jungle so thick that it has to be tunneled for foot-paths.

Panama enjoys a speaking acquaintance with both oceans. They are separated from each other by a spiny ridge of mountains and until the United States got busy, and introduced them they haven't mixed any more than old Washington society does with the official circle.

Panama has had unlimited amounts of yellow fever and history ever since it was discovered in 1501. Shooting up Panama was a favorite occupation with pirates in the sixteenth century. For almost 100 years it belonged to the United States of Columbia, paying heavy dues therein and getting nothing but a peculiarly sticky-fingered bunch of office holders in return. In 1903, it seceded with the aid of an American gunboat and immediately sold the Panama Canal rights for $10,000,000 and $250,000 a year.

Ever since then Panama has been living happily as a subsidized government. It has $7,000,000 invested in New York real estate, gets enough from Washington each year to pay most of its bills, calls on the United States for troops when necessary, and indulges in agriculture instead of yellow fever and malaria. That is what it gets for being so narrow.

Panama has about 400,000 people who go out in the back yard and eat a banana when hungry. It has enough hardwood forests to congest it with millionaires if it had any railroads and a little American hustle to boot. It has now existed eleven years without a revolution and still has money in the bank which makes it one of the most permanent of Central American republics.

When cutting dice of butter for the table take a wet thread, which will not leave ragged edges and will cut easily. Gold may be cut in the same way.

To keep a pet palm in order the leaves should be sponged carefully every week. Don't water palms too often; let the earth become dry; then soak it liberally.

The revolving breakfast tray is a comfort which American women would do well to borrow from their English cousins. It makes it possible to do with less service.

It is a pretty idea to give a growing slip in front of the bride's bouquet, and the bride can gather roses from the bush each season.

Try Again.

You have, it may be, used ointments, pastes, lotions for hemorrhoids till you begin to get tired of trying things. Well, but you should remember that science is advancing all the time, and that what was not possible yesterday can be accomplished today. If you neglect to try Zylex—the newest and best thing that science has yet to offer for the relief and cure of Hemorrhoids and other annoying and disfiguring skin diseases—you are missing a great opportunity. It may be that it will cure you. It has cured some very bad cases. Price 50c a box. Zylex Soap, 25c a cake.

Household Notes.

Keep a long nail near the laundry tubs and use it to remove the rubber stoppers instead of chains. The nail serves as a lever.

When the fragrance of a balsam fir pillow seems to be fading, hold the pillow over the steam of a tea kettle, and it will be restored.

Cucumbers make very good sandwiches. Chop cucumbers fine and mix with mayonnaise dressing and spread between thin slices of bread.

There is to be had a combination brush, scraper and self-wringing mop, all on a long handle, which is a wonderful help in scrubbing floors.

When sweeping wipe all the dust off the furniture and put it outside the room; then sweep down the walls with a broom covered with this cloth.

Grease stains on leather may be removed by benzine or pure turpentine. Wash the spot afterward with beaten white of egg or a kid reviver.

The up-to-date housewife taboos all heavy cooking utensils. Those of light aluminum, granite and tinned-plate tin are great savers of energy.

If you spill tea on a tablecloth, cover it with common salt and leave it on for a while. When the cloth is washed all stains will have disappeared.

When cutting dice of butter for the table take a wet thread, which will not leave ragged edges and will cut easily. Gold may be cut in the same way.

Don't Be a Quitter.

We can not always find the ways that lead to waiting treasure. There must sometimes be dismal days.

That are devoid of pleasure; The winds that blow so swiftly now To-morrow may be bitter.

The storms will come, but, anyhow Don't be a quitter.

We cannot always do the things We wish we might be doing; We may not be all dukes and kings; Some men must do the hewing; Some men must plow and some must sow.

While some in jewels glitter; But if your place is high or low, Don't be a quitter.

Some men may live in idleness On fortunes they inherit; And some men never may possess The sweet rewards of merit; Some men may ride in lordly state; While others bear the litter; But rich or poor, or small or great Don't be a quitter.

You cannot win by sitting in Your corner, sighing gravely; Inflate your chest, thrust out your chin And do your duty bravely; You may have cause to be in doubt, Your hardships may be bitter, But never let the world find out— Don't be a quitter.

The Call of the Angelus

TO-DAY'S FEATURE—SIX PICTURES AT THE CRESCENT.

The strongest series of pictures—six in number—ever witnessed at the Crescent Picture Palace, should afford reading the following particulars, delight large audiences to-night. Lovers of motion pictures are provided with a treat of filmdom. Six feature subjects, the first of which is an emotional drama "The Call of the Angelus," a Frontier production, containing many tense situations; "Mistaken Intentions" is a comedy with Billy Burke; "In the Night" a society drama, is a stirring story of high life; "Shifting Fortune," a Victor pastoral play featuring Gertrude Robinson, also a very fascinating and cleverly designed reel with pleasing characteristics; "Making a Kinematograph" is a bright illustration, showing how they robbed the house; "How Diamonds are Made," an educational film. Miss Louise Arkandy will be heard in a popular ballad, and the orchestra will render the best musical hits. The feature for Wednesday is a two-reel drama "The Victory of Virtue."

New Model Collapsible Lounges.

With the approach of really warm, summer days all one's plans for the summer cottage come into action, and the first thought of the housekeeper is generally that of comfortable sleeping accommodation, combined with economy of space.

Here is where our New Model Collapsible Lounges come to the front; of light, strong manufacture, full sized spring mattress when extended, and easily manipulated by means of an adjustable foot brake, these Lounges are particularly suitable for summer residences. They can be folded during the day, and by means of rugs and cushions made into luxuriously comfortable seats, while a couple of minutes transforms them into perfect beds for perfect rest at night. These Lounges are very reasonable in price. Come and see one demonstrated in our store, you'll be charmed with the result.

The Eastern Trust Company!

The Eastern Trust Company has installed safety deposit boxes in its vault in the Pitts Building, Water Street. These boxes can be hired at a moderate rent by the year.

Persons making a will in which they appoint the Eastern Trust Company executor may deposit their wills in the vault of the Company without charge.

An impression has gone abroad that the Company charges a fee upon the making of a will which the Company is appointed executor. This is an error. The Company charges no fee until after the death of a testator and the Company has undertaken the execution of the trusts under the will. It then charges the same fee as is allowed to ordinary executors.

Shore Fishery Short.

According to the figures posted at the board of Trade Rooms to-day the shore fishery is considerably short of what it was on this date last year. The figures give 130,000 quintals last year as against 108,000, showing a shortage of about 22,000. There is, however, no report of Fogo District in either year. A perusal of the figures shows that the great shortage is in the district of Placentia and St. Mary's, where the catch to date is 8320 quintals as against 21,260 this time last year. The figures from Harbour Grace north round through the Straits show that very little has been done as yet north or in the Straits. Burin has done much better than last year, while Fortune Bay has not done quite so well. Burgeo and LaPoile and St. George's show a distinct advance on last year. As to the northern fishery the ice remained inshore much later this year than usual, and the whole fishery preparations were delayed. Fish, however, have not yet struck in in any quantity, and much will depend on what the present month brings forth.

The Duke at Botwood.

H. M. S. Essex, Capt. Watson, arrived at Botwood at three p.m. from St. Anthony. Fifteen minutes later H. R. H. the Duke of Connaught landed at Park's wharf, where he was received by His Excellency the Governor and the Magistrate. The Boy Scouts, under Mr. Herbert Blackall, served as a guard of honour, and the Grand Falls Band was also in attendance. When the Duke arrived on the main road, Mr. Hartley was presented to him and Mr. Hartley then presented twelve citizens of Botwood. Magistrate Scott then conducted His Royal Highness to Connaught Hall, where 150 Masons were awaiting in uniform to receive him, as the Grand Master of the English Order of Masons. D.G.S. Edgar was presented to the Worshipful Grand Master, and he in turn presented J. W. Aitken, Master; T. R. Arrie, S.W.; W. H. Beird, G.W.; Norman Grey, P.D.G.D.; R. G. Ash, I.G.T.; S.C.; Andrew Grey, P.M.; Twillingate; George White, W.M. Northcliff.

His Royal Highness was conducted to the platform amidst applause, and one verse of the National Anthem was sung, and the salute with Grand Honours was given. The Worshipful Master addressed a few words of welcome to which the W.G.M. replied, expressing the pleasure it afforded him to allow the hall to bear his name, and how pleased he was to meet the brethren of Botwood in such a magnificent building. He intimated to the Master that he would send his photo as a souvenir of the visit. He signed his name in the visitors book and was conducted through its club rooms. On leaving, H. R. H. was heartily cheered. After leaving Connaught Hall, the Duke took train for Grand Falls. The band of H.M.S. Essex played selections and the Captain intimated he would send the launches ashore for visitors on Sunday to inspect the warship. To-day the Duke is due at Bonavista.

Forest Fire at Badger.

NEARLY EXTINGUISHED.
Since Saturday last a forest fire of serious proportions has been raging in the vicinity of the railway, about five miles west of Badger. The fire is on the property of the A.N.D. Co. of Grand Falls, and on Saturday night over 100 men from that place went to the scene to endeavor to prevent the destruction of their timber reserve in that locality. They worked assiduously all day yesterday and succeeded in confining the area of the blaze, which was about two miles in extent. The fire is about two hundred yards from the railway, but not near enough to any of the villages to cause alarm. The downpour of rain this morning proved very effective, and as we go to press we are informed by the Reid Co.'s Despatching Office that it is pretty nearly all extinguished. It was a fortunate occurrence that the elements came to the rescue before any serious damage resulted. No theory has been given as to the origin of the blaze.

LECTURE BY MISSIONARY.—The Rev. Mr. Cheshippe, a Canadian Labrador Missionary, delivered a lecture on "Ellista" to a good sized audience at the Seaman's Institute last evening. The lecture was illustrated and proved very interesting.

MONDAY, July 13th, 1914.
The Pinex proposition appears to be a good one. A sixty cent bottle of Pinex with the appropriate quantity of syrup (directions for making which appear with each bottle) will make 16 fluid ounces of an excellent cough mixture—or equal to the contents of from four to five 25-cent bottles of cough mixture for about half that sum. And we are informed by those who have made and used it that it is a good cough mixture too. Why not try a bottle. Price 60 cents.
That new Lilas (Lilac) perfume—put up for us by Connoisseurs, favours for the introduction of the "no spirit" family of perfumes—is really very choice, and gives fine value for $1.00. It is, we think, about the best perfume at this price.

An Attractive Exhibit

The casket, which will contain the address to be presented by the Masonic Fraternity to His Royal Highness the Duke of Connaught, an inadequate description of which we gave in Saturday's issue of the Telegram, is now being exhibited in the Eastern window of T. J. Duley & Co. From every side we have heard encomiums for the beauty and excellence of design, as well as the splendid workmanship which combine to make this exhibit one of the most attractive seen in the city for some time.

Civic Wages and Work.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—I notice that the daily papers of this city are beginning to wake up and give the Civic Commissioners a certain mead of praise and justice. It is to be taken into consideration the plans and schemes they have outlined at their meetings held during the past week, they are going to do things for this city which I believe will exceed the greatest expectations of some of our citizens. We should have more such correspondents of Theobald's class, whose contribution appeared in your issue of Saturday, and who is filled with hope in the work the Commissioners are going to perform, and I trust they will get the help and encouragement they justly deserve. In fact most of the papers of this city have made a complete change of front in favor of the Commissioners and their work during the past week. One of them makes a very favorable suggestion with regard to the power and privileges given to the different Bosses to discharge their duties over the departments under their control. That is where they have been greatly inconvenienced in their work during past years. They could go so far and no farther. Now their powers are extended, and I believe the chairman and his committee will see that they are carried out to the letter, and not give way one iota. If they find the Boss in charge doesn't see that the work under him is not sufficiently performed, discharge him and see to it that his position is properly filled which will certainly make the other Bosses stand up and fall in line as to their obligations. One of our papers states that "the City Commissioners seem to be very much in earnest about their work, and so far as the situation permits, they will do some good." I am glad to see that he has changed his opinion somewhat. He further says, "one step they have already taken commends itself to the general public." It certainly does if properly carried out, and that is in leaving to the "heads of the labor departments the right to choose their own men." I say provided they are not cousins, uncles or other relatives as is done in most cases; but I guess he means so far as the laborer goes who will give the best value for wages received. That is where the great evil festers with regard to labor in too many instances in this country, especially with the Government and the city service. The majority of the laborers do not care two straws about the equivalent so long as he gets the wages sought after. He again states, "for years past the man with the note from some one higher up has played the very deuce with the Road Boss, who has had to accept some of the Tired Toms of the town; and pay them three times as much as they were ever worth." Thus it came about that there was very poor value for the work done on the city streets. True, O King! That is just where the trouble comes in, regarding the revenue of the city. We get about one-third value for the money spent; two-thirds are actually wasted. Let a person speak to one of the laborers about the amount of work he is giving for the wages he receives, and he very plainly says, "Oh, I am doing enough for the wages I am getting, and I am only getting my own money back again." Whereas a person would be safe in saying that the same individual never paid five dollars in city taxes in all his lifetime. Now I would suggest that if the city has any big jobs to undertake, it would be well for the Commissioners to ask for tenders by contract, and never mind the dust some soreheads will kick up about it. Then I believe we would receive good value for the money spent, if not, the revenue will certainly be wasted. To cite a case if my memory serves me right, some years ago we had a heavy fall of snow, and a certain contractor offered to clean the streets for that week for four hundred dollars, though some correspondents at that time stated, in their opinions it would be better for the Council to give it out in days' work, which they did. What was the result? Why, it cost the city somewhere in the neighborhood of eighteen hundred dollars. Now, Sir, I am not altogether clear on that matter, therefore I would like some correspondent to make me right on that point. I think I have already trespassed too much on your valuable space. I will therefore leave it to more able correspondents to deal with this all-important matter, the judicious spending of the city taxes. Again expressing my best wishes to the Commissioners, and trust they will be able to put through all the various schemes they have mapped out to perform.

I am greatly pleased to see that Mr. Mollaly has used good judgment in taking his seat at the Council Board, and that he will keep to his greatest stunt, that is, the judicious spending of the city revenue. Again asking your indulgence for trespassing on so much of your valuable space.

I remain,
Yours sincerely,

Caught in the Act.

Three young lads, who entered Mr. F. McNamara's store on Queen Street, by the rear window, last night, were caught by the police, when about to make off with a large quantity of cigarettes they had stolen. The alarm was given by Mr. Gardner, a resident of George Street, who on noticing a light in the building, had a suspicion that something was wrong. Constables O'Neill, Dooley and Emberly, on being informed, hastened to the scene and were none too soon to prevent the young thieves from escaping. The quantity of cigarettes they planned to take away appeared to be worth about $50. Two of them are brothers named Scanlon, and the other lad's name is Dave. They spent the night at the police station and were up before Court to-day.

False Alarms.

I see the farmers toiling, out in their fields of wheat, and they are glad, though broiling in fifty kinds of heat. "The fields are simply reeking with finest kind of grain," I hear the farmers shrieking; "prosperity will reign! The crop is simply thumping! There is no end to wheat, and all of us are humping along to Easy Street!" I sit upon the fences and watch the toilers strain, and see no evidences of caring care or pain. Where are the dismal grangers who raised their doleful cries, about the frightful dangers they feared from Hessian flies? Where are the weeping farmers who lately had the crust to pose as false alarmers, and talk of smut and rust? Where is the howling hayseed, who said, "The drouth is near, and surely I won't raise seed to plant a crop next year!" The prophets of disaster have canned the boding frown, and faster yet and faster they're hauling wheat to town; they draw the shining kroner, they draw the golden buck; no longer do they groan or complain about the luck. Most all our fears of evil are baseless, I repeat; we talk of rust and weevil when we should talk of wheat.

Can He Fly Right Across the Ocean?

(By Charles M. Chapin, in Boston Transcript.)

In July, 1909, a wind-battered aeroplane landed near Dover after crossing the English Channel. Throughout the world the feat of Bleriot was hailed with amazement and awe. Today, half a decade later, we are contemplating with equanimity, almost with confidence, the traverse of the Atlantic by air. Thus rapidly has aeroplane construction and the art of aerial navigation progressed.

Five years since, no aeroplane had travelled 100 miles without alighting, nor had any pilot remained in the air for three hours at a time. Only this week a German airman flew continuously for more than two-thirds of a day and covered a distance greater than that between Boston and Chicago.

It is this tremendous advance that we must bear in mind while considering the possibility of the transatlantic flight. Under the plans as originally outlined for the Wanamaker-Curtiss expedition—organized for the winning of the London Daily Mail's $50,000 prize—there were many, including the writer, who were extremely skeptical as to the outcome. These plans, it will be remembered, called for a straightaway course from Newfoundland to Ireland, a distance just short of 2,000 miles. The great obstacle to success here, as indicated in a Transcript interview with Orville Wright last March, lies in the limited amount of fuel which can be carried by present-day machines. W. Starling Burgess, the equal, if not the superior of any other American aeroplane designer, when asked to construct an ocean flyer, was unable to figure out any method for transporting gasoline sufficient to insure a flight exceeding 1,500 miles.

Evidently Glenn H. Curtiss, builder of the Manamaker machine, encountered the same difficulty in solving the fuel problem, and the plans were changed in such a manner as to divide the journey into three stages, via the Azores and Vigo, Spain, in England. With this alteration, the project was brought at once within the limits of possibility. The first stage now becomes 1,200 miles, instead of 1,900, with an opportunity to replenish supplies and effect repairs in harbor at Fayal. Thence to the Spanish coast, 900 miles farther, the course should be far easier than the journey to Fayal, where the final run to the British coast, 600 miles, becomes, by comparison, mere child's play.

As now proposed the three stages, separately, lay but slightly greater demands on the aeroplane that have hitherto been accomplished in other heavier-than-air craft, so far as distances are concerned. The fuel question, therefore, goes into the background and another problem, much harder to solve, emerges.

Piloting an Aircraft.

Granting the possibility of flying 1,200 miles, will Lieut. Porte, pilot and navigator of the Manamaker aircraft, be able to guide his machine as to, pick up the pilotage of the Western Islands? The reader will readily understand that the navigation of an aeroplane during flight differs greatly from the navigation of an ocean liner. It will be far from difficult for the airman to use his latitude and longitude, to say nothing of the task of figuring out his exact position, once his observations have been secured.

Again, in a water-borne craft, particularly a steamer travelling over a well-known course, the position can be very closely approximated by dead-reckoning. The marine navigator is aware of the drift caused by ocean currents, and by the wind, both of which can be determined with precision. Thus between observations he need vary little from his true course.

In the case of the aeroplane, however, dead-reckoning is out of the question. With a machine in the air or fifteen miles an hour the velocity of the air movements. Suppose, for instance, that he has a good breeze athwartship. In this case there would be a possible error of ten miles an hour, even though the pilot takes an observation every sixty minutes, or a total of 200 miles in the twenty hours which Lieut. Porte estimates will take him from St. John's to Fayal. Where the margin above failure is so small as in the present case it will be seen that the navigation problem wears a very serious aspect.

Picking Up the Azores.

Particularly is this so with the Azores as the destination. At the start, the load to be carried by the America will total two tons and a half. One ton of this will consist of gasoline and lubricating oil; another ton, the machine and boat hull; while the remainder will include the crew, instruments, food supplies, etc. As the fuel and oil consumption will approximate 80 pounds an hour, the weight carried will rapidly decrease, lightening, as has been said, the burden of the engines.

From tip to tip the upper surface of the biplane, spans 72 feet, the lower plane measuring 46 feet. As the depth of the wings is seven feet the total supporting area is just under 800 square feet. Even at the start, therefore, the loading, six pounds per square foot, will not be large in comparison with that of most modern machines, and will drop under four pounds as the gasoline nears exhaustion. As a consequence the problem of landing and getting away, in case of necessity, has been greatly simplified, a factor of safety by no means to be despised.

Where Responsibility Lies.

No matter how large, or how small, a business may be, nobody can deny that its Office is the nerve centre of the firm. Every transaction, important or trivial, must be recorded at the Office. An order is received at the Office, its history is recorded at the Office, and finally payment is received at the Office. If the Office makes an error the firm stands the loss. That's why you must be sure that your office is adequately and especially equipped for the care of all important papers. To do this effectively you need the up-to-date equipment of the "GLOBE-VERNEICKER CO." When sixty offices in St. John's have found this necessity this equipment can surely be of use to you. Mr. Percé Johnson represents this world known firm in Newfoundland.—April 17, 1914

The Grateful Beggar.

For giving up their only bed to a sick and apparently penniless beggar, Mr. and Mrs. George Smith, a poor working couple, residing at Sunbury, Pennsylvania, have been rewarded with a legacy of £1,600.

The beggar, a man named John Pell, who was about eighty years of age, arrived at the Smiths' home at the beginning of the month, and asked for shelter, saying he was friendless and ill. The man looked so old and infirm that, although the Smiths had only one bed, they gave it up to him, and themselves slept on the floor.

They told Pell that he was welcome to share their food, but they had no money with which to buy medical comforts. The next day the beggar produced a dirty cheque book and drew a cheque on a Northumberland (Pennsylvania) bank for £10. The cheque was duly honored.

Pell grew worse and died, but before the end came he drew up a will leaving all that he was possessed of to Mr. and Mrs. Smith for their "kindness and self-sacrifice."

Three Spanish Toreadors Go to Hospital as the Result of Bull Fight Yesterday.

New York, July 6.—A cable from Barcelona to the Tribune says: The most tragic bull fight in history of the local bull ring occurred Sunday, when one after another of Barcelona's three leading toreadors were retired to hospital, only one of the six bulls having been killed.

The first accident occurred just at the beginning of the fight. Rafael Gomez, one of the most noted fighters in Spain, was sore in the right thigh and sustained a broken collar bone. Punteret, who was called to finish the wounded man's work was wounded in the leg, but he succeeded in killing the bull.

The next bull had not been in the arena for more than five minutes when Belmonte also fell with a serious wound in the leg, whereupon the day's "amusement" was suspended. Gomez is in a dying condition.

More Fires.

Fires provoke immediate sympathy for the sufferer and also, thankfulness for personal escape. Another thought should be whether one is personally and sufficiently protected? An insurance policy with Percé Johnson would provide for you this insured security, and at an all expense. Have you enough insurance?

The Situation in Ireland.

Special to Evening Telegram.

LONDON, July 11.

The situation in Ulster to-day, is without parallel in the United Kingdom since the Jacobite rebellion of 1745. Short of actual hostilities the position, according to the opposition newspapers, could not be more desperate. This is the eve of the 24th anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne, and only the exercise of great restraint on the part of the Ulster Volunteers will prevent disturbances on Monday. Tension is extreme throughout Ulster, especially in Londonderry, where the people are said to be in a state of apprehension, almost bordering on terror, for fear of what may happen between now and Tuesday.

In reference to strong representation from headquarters, the Orangemen have agreed to hold their demonstration two miles outside the town.

The next move, the Unionist press insists, lies with the British Government. A meeting of the Cabinet will be held on Monday, to decide what course is to be taken as to the drastic changes made by the House of Lords in the Home Rule Amendment Bill. These changes, it is again insisted, are the only alternative to civil war. If Redmond and Devlin agree to the total exclusion of Ulster from the scope of the bill, with the consequent depletion of the Irish Treasury, all will be well; but the Irish leaders say they do not want Home Rule without Ulster.

The bill comes again to the Commons next week, and it is the intention of the Government to delay consideration of the question. This, it is hoped by the Unionists, will at once bring the Cabinet into conflict with the Nationalists. For this course, the Government has certain justification in the backward state of the Budget. Bonar Law, as a matter of tactics, will press the Premier on Monday, to move that the Home Rule Amending Bill have immediate consideration by the Commons. This, it is feared, the Government will resist.

Redmond is reported to favour a large degree of conciliation for Ulster, and in consequence to be threatened in his own party by Mr. Devlin, who sits for a Belfast constituency.

GLASGOW, July 12.

Twenty-five thousand West of Scotland Orangemen held a demonstration at Lanarkshire, this afternoon. Grand Master Rev. David Neas, declared that their policy regarding Home Rule was "No Surrender." Great crowds witnessed the procession, and lively skirmishes occurred, but only four arrests were made.

LARNE, Ireland, July 12.

"If it be not peace with honor, it must be war with honor," said Sir Edward Carson, in addressing the Central Antrim Volunteers here today. "There is no alternative," Sir Edward declared. The Ulsterites are not aggressive, but they had told the Government they would never submit to be turned out of the Imperial Parliament, and by that decision they must win or go down together; there would be no drawing back. As to the immediate future, the Ulster leader could see no evidence of peace.

The Finding of the Disaster Commission.

Special to Evening Telegram.

HALIFAX, July 11.

The finding in the inquiry into the Empress of Ireland disaster, concludes as follows: Captain Kendall, of the Empress of Ireland, would have been better advised to have given the Storstad a wider berth, but we do not consider his failure to give a wider berth a contributory cause to the disaster. The chief officer of the Storstad was wrong in altering his course.

QUEBEC, July 12.

The whole blame for the disaster to the Empress of Ireland, which was sunk by the collier, Storstad, has been placed upon the shoulders of Alfred Tuttness, Chief officer of the collier, by the Dominion Wreck Commission. The Commission found Tuttness wrong and negligent in changing the course of his vessel, and Captain Kendall, of the liner, blameless, his actions up to and after the disaster being approved by the Commission. The report further agreed that the accident was not caused by special characteristics of the St. Lawrence River route, but would have happened under similar circumstances in any other river. In an interesting part of the report, suggestions are made for safeguarding life at sea in future. It was found that the port holes open helped to make the vessel sink rapidly, and the watertight doors could not be closed. In future all port holes should be closed, and as many watertight doors as possible closed in a fog. It also suggests the use of rafts that would float away when a vessel went down. A change in the system of taking on pilots at Father Point, is also suggested.

Readers of the Great Harry Thaw Case should further satisfy their curiosity by our getting Bvelyn Thaw's "Story of My Life." The extraordinary advance orders have induced the publishers to offer it at only 30c. GARLAND'S Bookstores.

Bell Islanders Won Baseball.

In the presence of a large concourse of spectators the Wanderers and Bell Island teams contested on St. George's Field, Saturday afternoon, resulting in the Wanderers going down to defeat. A feature of the game was the heavy hitting, particularly by the winners. The Wanderers, however, were handicapped through the absence of Wallace from the ranks. The Islanders were in good form and it looks as if they will make a bold bid for the Inter-town Trophy. The players and score were—

More Fishermen Picked Up.

The Deputy Minister of Customs received a message to-day stating that two French fishermen from the schr. Tourdawreng, of St. Malo, were picked up on the banks by the schr. Orsett, and brought into Ferryland Saturday night.

Two Days and Two Nights in Open Dory.

TWO FISHERMEN HAD TERRIBLE EXPERIENCE.

J. Hardy and Thos. Bishop, two bank fishermen, came into the city Saturday night and reported that they were castaways and had a trying experience. They belong to the Belleoram fishing vessel "Loch Lomond." They left their vessel on the Grand Banks a fortnight ago to go visit their trawls. On returning they became enveloped in thick fog and were unable to find their vessel after rowing about all that day and night. The next day weather conditions were similar and to make matters worse food and water ran short. The occupants of the dory did not mind much the exposure they were suffering, but were very weak from the effects of hunger. The fishermen drifted about in their dory helplessly all that night and were almost overcome. Early the following morning they were sighted by the Lunenburg vessel "Benjamin C. Smith" Capt. Cook, which picked up the stragglers and brought them to Caplin Bay on Saturday, where they were kindly looked after. The two men were badly used up. Besides being in an advanced state of exhaustion their hands and feet were swollen considerably. They say that they went through a terrible ordeal and if not rescued when they were could not have kept alive much longer. They came from Caplin Bay by train and were given quarters at the Seamen's Institute, where they will remain until Wednesday, when they will go out by train to join the Glencoe at Placentia and proceed to their home port Belleoram.

WINNIPEG, To-day.
The standing of parties in the next Legislature still remains in doubt. Two days after the election Liberal and Conservative claims are still different. The Government forces are still believing in a 25 to 21 standing which includes two doubtful seats in St. George and St. Rose. The Liberals while conceding St. Rose claim St. George as a Liberal victory.

NEW YORK, July 12.
Judge Hand, of the Federal Court, has announced a ruling which permits claimants to withdraw their claims growing out of the loss of the Titanic, from the Admiralty Court litigations here, and prosecute for damage suits in the English Law Courts, under the English Law known as Lord Campbell's Liability Act.

Claimants may recover $3,000,000 for account of salvage, freight and passage money, while the American statute limits the recovery to $97,000. Action was brought for claims aggregating $18,000,000. The Judge's order permits claimants to proceed in the English Courts without prejudice to the right of further action in this country.

LONDON, July 12.
A violent attack was made to-day on Augustine Birrell, Chief Secretary for Ireland, by a male militant suffragist, who rushed at the statesman immediately on his descent from the train, here. The assailant hurled a heavy bundle of papers at Birrell's face, shouting at the same time: "You cur, you torturer of women." The man was arrested.

BOSTON, To-day.
Capt. John H. Thomas, of the schr. George Hudson, and two seamen lost their lives in a collision between the schooner and the steamer Middlesex in a fog off Cape Cod, Saturday night. The schooner, coal laden from Philadelphia to Boston, was nearly cut in two and sank within five minutes after the collision. The Middlesex put back into port with nine rescued seamen aboard to bring the first news of the disaster.

LONDON, To-day.
An armed guard of ten policemen, conveying confiscated arms and ammunition from Londonderry to Dublin, was surrounded on Saturday by volunteers who recaptured the consignment which was placed in motor cars and rapidly driven away, the consignment consisting of 200 Mauser rifles, 10,000 rounds of ammunition has been discovered by Customs concealed in false lining of furniture van. The arrangements were made to remove the consignment by train to Dublin, but the Ulster volunteers, learning of this intention, made plans to intercept the train.

BELFAST, To-day.
Despatch says shots were exchanged in a fight on Saturday night between Nationalists and Unionists at Kiltrea, County Derry. Through Ulster yesterday the anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne was celebrated by religious services at which addresses were delivered, exhorting Protestants to remain faithful to King and country in the present crisis. The streets of Belfast everywhere were decorated with portraits of Carson, painting of Derry gates, and Mountjoy breaking the boom. The people wore small Union Jacks. A large number of orangemen marched to Ulster Hall, Belfast, where the audience numbered three thousand. It is expected 100,000 will be present at the main Orange demonstration at Drumbrery to-day. Carson will be the chief speaker.

ROCHESTER, New Hampshire, To-day.
Six persons, returning from Sunday School picnic, were killed on Saturday when a buck board wagon, in which they were riding, was hit by a freight train of the Boston and Maine Railroad. The party was singing "Nearer My God to Thee," as the wagon tumbled down the road, towards the tracks and the voices drowned out the noise of the train.

III.
Leaving the picnic grounds our party wandered towards the headlands of the harbour for the purpose of learning a little more about the place. The road on the northern side affords a very pleasant walk and also gives an opportunity of seeing the promontories which form the harbour. In every direction nature seemed to be at its best, and in the thickly wooded hill side we found cooling shades and invigorating perfume. Quite a fleet of bankers, both local and Nova Scotian, were anchored in the roadstead; some had their sails hoisted and others partly so, while the dories passing to and fro from the shore imparted a spirit of animation and industry which was interesting to behold. Some of the ships were in quest of bait, and others had come to replenish their stock of ice. We went into the ice house and conversed with the men as they loaded their dories with about ten blocks of ice. This amount they told us was an average load for a dory. We enquired as to the value of a dory load of ice, and they told us that it was five dollars. The conditions being that the ship's crew chop it out from the bulk and pass and lower it into the dory. The interior of the ice house was indeed a novel sight upon a hot July day. The men with bars and prisers loosened the great blocks of ice, which had become frozen together, and then tossed them on to the tram-way, or inclined skids, over which they swiftly slid down to the wharf. At the wharf they were hauled to the davits where the crew fastened them to the tackles by which they were lowered to the dory. The men to whom we spoke at this particular time of which we write were from Burn and were part of the crew of the good ship "Australia", which is owned by Messrs. Hollett Bros., Burn. Speaking to them as to over-loading a dory with ice, and as to whether they towed a loaded dory or rowed her, they answered that they rowed her. This process we considered very dangerous, there not being much room for rowing, and on further enquiry from the crew they informed us that on that very forenoon one of their dories had sunk when quite near their vessel, and that dory and ice had become a total loss. The ice floated off and the dory went to bottom, and the crew had just time to board their vessel, but before they could get other dories to the rescue the ice had scattered far and wide and was drifting to sea. We may here state that the distance from the ice house to the ship was about two miles.

The davits used in lowering the ice were of iron and were very strong. They struck us as having belonged to some large steamship, and no doubt like the flag on the picnic grounds they were a relic of shipwreck and loss. The wharf and ice house generally are very conveniently situated for the purpose, and judging from the number of bankers then in port, we decided that the proprietor of the ice house at Caplin Bay must do a brisk business. We did not enquire as to whose ice house it was, but we had the impression, although we hardly know why, that it was the property of the late Capt.

L. O. A. Parade.

The Loyal Orange Association held its annual "July 12th" parade yesterday, attending Divine service at Wesley Church. Over four hundred men, including members of Royal Oak and Leeming Lodges, turned out. At 2:30 Leeming Lodges turned out. At 2:30 and proceeded via Long's Hill, LeMarchant Road and Patrick Street to Wesley Church which was filled to its utmost capacity. Prominent in the parade were Rev. F. R. Matthews, B.A., Hon. D. Morrison, who has been indisposed for several weeks, and John Badcock, a veteran Orangeman. The sermon which was delivered by Rev. Mr. Matthews, was a masterly effort and dealt with the religious, social and political conditions of England and France, during the seventeenth century. His remarks were substantiated by historical facts, and their general trend showed a broad conception of the subject with which he dealt in a most interesting manner. Emphasizing the ideals of the Association, which stood for Equal Rights and general tolerance, his remarks were listened to with great attention by the large congregation present. At the close of the service the collection was presented to Rev. Mr. Matthews by Grand Master Squires, and Mr. W. R. Stirling, the Secretary of the Committee, thanked the Rev. gentleman on behalf of the Committee and Lodges. The procession upon reforming, returned to their Hall by way of Hamilton and New Gower Streets. After the usual votes of thanks to the clergyman, choir and Church officials were passed the Lodge closed.

Red McInnis says: The most unlikely looking pup may cop blue ribbons when grown up, upseftin' all the dope. T h e scrawny-l o o k i n' faunterloy, a reglar sissy when a boy, grows up—big White Hope. When Stuffy McInnis joined the Macks' the wise o' cracks 'bout founding institutes. Their laughin' rang out loud an' strong when Connie said this kid 'fore long would fill ol' Davis' boots.

"First base?—That kid?"—Au, cut the fun!" the fans all said. "It can't be done." But Connie played his hunch. He knew the kid was short on height but figured he'd produce all right because he had the punch. That first year Stuffy was just nineteen but in that swell in-field machine he fit just like a glove. There must be springs in Stuffy's legs; he gathers in the wildest pegs—both sides, below, above.

An' he don't fall down at the bat. Ask any pluckin' guy 'bout that. They'll tell you Stuffy's there. His two-base wallops sure look fine a-scuddin' out the third-base line. He don't pop in the air. The boy is just a youngster yet an' it's a purty darn safe bet he'll shine for some more moons. There's nothin' 'bout this little man that smacks of flashin' in the pan or single year balloons.

An Ad. Stunt.

A Newfoundlander in Boston

writing to a friend in this city under date of July 5th, gives an account of some of the things that had taken place on the 4th of July celebrations (or the "Glorious Fourth" as it is called) at Revere Beach.

The great summer resort of that city, says it was a grand sight. One of the Boston papers states there was 800,000 people present and 100,000 men, women and children were bathing in the water. The Boston American, one of the greatest papers in America, announced that a flying machine would fly over the Beach in the afternoon, starting from Marblehead, about 30 miles from the Beach. All eyes were gazing in that direction, finally the machine was seen coming and it came so near the people on the Beach that they could hear the engine working.

It flew around about one dozen times. On the bottom of the machine was a boat attached occupied with one man and it rested on the water. The man in the machine went up and down over the Beach throwing down thousands of slips of paper with as high as twenty dollars marked on them. The whole thing was the work of the Boston American which proved to be a great success for that paper. A person who was fortunate enough to receive one of the slips so marked had nothing more to do but go to the office, present the slip and get the money. The scheme worked a big advt. for the American which goes to show what means some persons will adopt to gain notoriety. The number of papers sold that day amounted to over one million copies.

St. John's Gas Light Company. Dear Sir,—I have analyzed a sample of Sulphate of Ammonia made at your Works and I found 20.5 per cent of NITROGEN, Sulphates of Ammonia and Nitrate of Soda are the two principal Nitrogen manures.

Sulphate of Ammonia is less soluble than Nitrate of Soda, consequently it is a safer manure to use during a wet season.

Yours truly,
D. JAMES DAVIES, B.S.C., F.C.B.
Analyst and Assayer.

Hal Reid's Master

AT THE NICKEL.

The wonderful story of "Father Beauclaire" will be told at the Nickel Theatre this evening. The play was written and acted by Hal Reid, the author of The Confession. The story is historically true as related by James Cardinal Gibbons. Wherever produced this play has been well received, the press has spoken very favorably of it. That it will be popular here goes without saying.

"The Coast of Chance" is a strong drama by the Selig artists. There are two comedies: "Found Out" and "The Trail of the Itching Palm." There is also a comedy drama by the Lubin Company, entitled, "Kidnapping Father." Miss Gardner will be heard in one of her dainty songs, and Messrs. McCarthy and Ross will give new music. DeWitt C. Cairns, a baritone of great power and sweetness will arrive shortly for the Nickel Theatre. Everyone should make an effort to see to-day's entertainment.

Minard's Liniment Co., Limited.

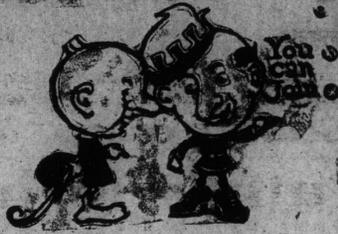

Gentlemen.—Last August my horse was badly cut in eleven places by a barbed wire fence. Three of the cuts (small ones) healed soon, but the others became foul and rotten, and though I tried many kinds of medicine they had no beneficial result. At last a doctor advised me to use MINARD'S LINIMENT and in four weeks time every sore was healed and the hair has grown over each one in fine condition. The Liniment is certainly wonderful in its working.

British Boxer Won World's Championship

Freddie Welsh Outpointed Willie Ritchie, the American Champion, in Twenty-Round Bout—An Anglican Clergyman Was Master of Ceremonies.

London, July 7.—Fred. Welsh, lightweight champion of England, to-day best Willie Ritchie on points in the twenty-round fight for the lightweight championship of the world at Olympia.

In the opening rounds Welsh scored more points than Ritchie. In the fifth round, however, Ritchie forced the fighting, and in this and the next two rounds there were some sharp exchanges and heavy in-fighting in which Ritchie generally got the upper hand. Several times the American was cautioned for holding in the clinches.

In the eighth round the Welshman recovered his liveliness and in this and the ninth round forced the fighting and had the best of the encounter. When half the match was over Welsh led easily on points.

Ritchie revived somewhat in the eleventh and there were some hot exchanges in this and the twelfth, Welsh repeatedly by his remarkable quickness scoring and then eluding heavy returns.

In the thirteenth Ritchie had it all his own way, landing some heavy blows and forcing the fighting all through while Welsh appeared to be weakening.

The fourteenth was also all Ritchie's, and the fighting was very fast. Then both slowed up, but in the sixteenth round there was a lot of in-fighting and Welsh boxed splendidly, Ritchie meantime, trying to get a knockout.

In the seventeenth Ritchie got home a number of sharp body blows and forced the fighting throughout, but Welsh was very clever in covering.

Welsh obtained some more points in the eighteenth, which was a very fast round, and left Ritchie with a bleeding lip.

The nineteenth was even, with Ritchie forcing the fighting.

The final round was the swiftest of the whole fight, and Welsh had the better of it.

Of the twenty rounds ten were undoubtedly Welsh's, five went to Ritchie, and the other five were about even.

Ritchie broke down when the decision was given against him and was in tears when seen in the dressing room. "I have nothing to say," he said, between sobs. His manager and seconds were just as reticent.

There was some dissatisfaction among the American spectators of the fight at the decision, because neither man was bested at the finish, and although the Welshman scored more blows, those of the American seemed to be more telling.

When the Rev. John Hervey Boudier, who is popularly known as "Father" Boudier, climbed through the ropes shortly before 8 o'clock in his clerical garb he got a round of applause. He then announced in stentorian tones the names of the contestants in the first of the preliminary bouts.

The great revival of interest in pugilism in Great Britain was evidenced by the big assemblage of all classes which had congregated in the great arena of Olympia. The newspapers had predicted a large attendance of women, but there was only a small sprinkling of bright dresses in the cheaper seats around the sides of the arena, which filled first before time was called.

Before the three preliminary time-killing bouts had been finished, the majority of the prominent London sporting men had gathered about the ring as well as 200 or 300 Americans some of them well known.

There were not more than 100 women altogether, most of them in evening dress, in the section occupied by members of the Royal Family and prominent society people during the Horse show.

Welsh entered the ring at 9.58 amid lusty singing of the Welsh hymn, "God of our Fathers," by hundreds of his countrymen.

The betting was 7 to 4 on Welsh. George Considine placed $2,000 at these odds.

Willie Ritchie appeared at 10.03 amid hearty applause.

Mrs. Ritchie reached up and shook hands with the American fighter. Mrs. Welsh, wife of the Welsh fighter, arrived at the ringside.

London, July 7.—The Rev. John H. Boudier, Vicar of St. Michael's Anglican Church, Islington, who acted as master of ceremonies at the Welsh-Ritchie match, is a popular clergyman, who encourages his parishioners to box and to play football and cricket. When he was a curate at Cardiff in 1902 he established a temperance saloon in which he placed a great crucifix over the bar. The venture was an immense success.

Divorced Life

By Helen Hesson Fuesate

The Tango Trail

Marian had read and heard a great deal about the tango and tango suppers. But to-night, as she gazed out over the odd and curious spectacle, it struck her as being at once charming and absurd, beautiful and ridiculous.

The light, flimsy silk skirts of the women, modishly slit, looked crude and barbaric. Yet after the first shock the scene had given her, Marian felt herself becoming fascinated with it. The mesmeric bars of tango strains from the hidden orchestra began flowing through her veins.

She observed that Lamartin's was the Mecca for all manner of persons. A distinguished looking man, with a sensible looking woman, evidently his wife, had just seated themselves at a nearby table, puffing and exhausted. They were flushed youths who looked like clerks squandering a week's wage on a night of frolic; there were gaudy, painted creatures, furiously fashionable; old men and young women; slips of girls and white-haired women.

"They seem to take this tango affair pretty seriously, don't they?" laughed Barker. "By George, I wouldn't mind taking a shot at it myself. You dance, of course, Miss Winthrop?"

Marian had experimented with the step in the solitude of her room to the accompaniment of a piano across the street, sometimes fancying herself at just such a place as Lamartin's. Dancing is natural to us all. In most of us it is the primitive struggling for expression. Marian asked to try it here to the wonderful siren strains of the music.

"Everybody does it here," continued Mr. Barker. "We'll try the next. What say you?"

"I'm by no means an adept," she smiled, "but I'll be glad to try."

The orchestra rippled into action, and Marian and her escort rose. It seemed endless years since she had been at a dance, but she felt as natural as though she had risen for a waltz or a two-step. Naturally, guided by an almost instinctive impulse, she glided with her partner into the tango, and was soon settling into its swing with abandon.

"You can't make the apology of being a novice, I'm sure," said Barker between puffs, when he had led her back to their table. "You rival the footwork of the best gobbler I ever saw. Will you be the next victim?" he added, addressing his sister.

"I'm by no means an adept," she smiled, "but I'll be glad to try."

"No matter what they call the custom," retorted Marian with hot indignation, "I don't dance with utter strangers. Be good enough to leave me!"

"Really, I meant no discourtesy," was the blase reply. "I'm sorry that city ways seem offensive to some of those from the provinces." He bowed himself gallantly away, and presently Marian saw him dancing with a stunning creature in extreme décolleté.

"From the provinces!" said Marian indignantly under her breath. "Takes me for a country girl, I suppose. Well, he evidently preferred me to his New Yorker, at that," she consoled herself bitterly.
