CHAPTER XVII.

Clifford Revel was waiting for Lord Edgar at the station, and greeted him with a smile that was rather one of relief. He had had his doubts whether his honor would prevail over love. "Here you are then!" he said. "I've got your ticket; and here's a carriage."

Lord Edgar got in, and Clifford Revel followed and lit a cigar.

"Much trouble in getting away?" he asked, with a smile; but Lord Edgar did not seem in a smiling mood. Indeed, there was a look in his face which Clifford Revel had seen once or twice before—a look which denoted that Lord Edgar was not in the mood for trifling, and might at any moment become dangerous if not carefully handled. It was the look he had worn when Clifford Revel had suggested that they should conceal Flyaway's lameness and make capital out of it.

"I suppose Lady Fane did not like your leaving her?" said Clifford Revel.

"No," said Edgar, almost coldly. "And I did not like coming; a very little would have made me throw up the engagement."

"Ah!" said Clifford Revel, with a smile that was almost a sneer. "It would have been the first time you have broken your word to my knowledge."

Lord Edgar nodded curtly. Then he half arose from his seat and looked out of the carriage window eagerly.

"What is it?" demanded Clifford Revel.

"Eh?" said Lord Edgar. "That's strange!"

"What is strange? Heaven and earth, my dear fellow, what are you staring at?" he said, with an impatience which was novel in him.

Lord Edgar sank back and took out a cigar.

"Why, it is rather a singular coincidence," he said, "but I have just seen your Mr. Brown, and he was with the man Lela described to me."

And the Worst is Yet to Come—

Clifford Revel did not change color, but his eyes scanned Edgar's face keenly.

"Not much of a coincidence," he said, lightly. "Perhaps Brown is just starting abroad; or he may have gone mad, and that is his keeper. By the way, don't call him 'my' Mr. Brown, my dear Edgar; I only met him the day before your marriage, quite casually, and he offered to perform the ceremony."

Lord Edgar nodded. The point seemed to him quite unimportant. He sighed as he made himself comfortable; the allusion to his marriage called up a vision of his darling left alone in the quiet rooms.

"You have made all arrangements, I suppose?" he said, listlessly.

"Yes," said Clifford Revel. "I have rented the same little house for the week—"

"I go back to-morrow, immediately after the race," said Lord Edgar, quickly.

A strange smile gleamed in Clifford Revel's eyes and flickered about his lips, a smile that, if one could have interpreted it, would have made one's heart shrink with a nameless fear.

"Yes," he said, lightly. "Well, that's only natural. But I couldn't take the house for less than a week."

"And the horse?" said Lord Edgar, still listlessly.

"Went down last night," answered Clifford Revel. "He looked as fit as his most devoted admirers could wish! You saw him the day before?"

"Yes," said Lord Edgar.

"And you thought he was all right?" asked Clifford Revel.

"Yes," assented Lord Edgar, absently.

"Hem! Well, that's all right. I fancied that he was unusually restless and fidgety."

"You said just now that he was fit," said Lord Edgar, moodily. His thoughts were with Lela, and he longed to be quiet, and to be free to think of her. For once in his life "the horse" did not absorb him.

"I said 'looked!'" responded Clifford Revel, with a smile. "But it might only have been my fancy—I mean his restlessness. Only, if he should be in a worse temper than usual to-morrow, you will remember what I said."

Lord Edgar nodded.

"I dare say he will be in his usual tantrums when the crowd begins to shout. I wish we were well through it," and he sighed.

"Are you fudging it?" asked Clifford Revel, with the nearest approach to a sneer that he permitted himself.

Lord Edgar looked up with astonishment.

"You know that I have never been afraid of him," he said, simply. "I certainly have not grown to fear him within the last week!"

"I'm glad of it," said Clifford Revel, "seeing that if you had, the race is as good as lost, and with it an immense amount of money! But if you are not afraid of Assasin, you are seriously down in the dumps, my dear fellow, and that will look bad."

Lord Edgar raised himself.

"See here, Cliff," he said, "I am a little—quiet, because I hate the thing I am doing, and I detest having to do it without Lela's knowledge. It is the first concealment I have had from her, but do not fear, I shall carry out what I have promised, and if we have any

ARE YOU A MAN?

If you are, you either shave yourself or go to a barber. If you visit a barber you may have the unfortunate experience of Mr. M. Butler, of Bridgeport, Conn., who developed what is known as "Barber's Rash" on his face through the use of an infected razor. He writes:

"My face was covered with sores, which caused me a great deal of suffering and inconvenience, and I was unable to shave for four weeks. Repeated applications of Zam-Buk, however, entirely rid me of the trouble."

To avoid the possibility of such an experience, immediately you see a rash or spot appear, treat it with Zam-Buk. This balm will destroy all germs, prevent the disease spreading and soothe the trouble. For eczema, old sores, ulcers, blood-poisoning, burns, and cuts there is nothing so equal as Zam-Buk. All dealers 50c. box, 3 for $1.25.

luck at all, your—and my—money is quite safe."

"Right!" exclaimed Clifford. "That is something like the tone I wanted; and now I've roused the lion. I will subside in my paper till it is safe to emerge again," and laughing, he unfolded the Globe, and got into a corner with it.

Seeing that every one knows all about the Badmore meeting, it would be a display of impertinence to attempt to describe it. Every one knows the aspect the little town—so quiet on all the other three hundred and sixty-four days in the year—puts on for the Race Day; how the streets are thronged with people more or less respectable; how every inn, however modest, is filled to crumming; how every house that is lettable is snapped up for the week at fancy prices, and how everybody, gentle and simple, in the place, is utterly absorbed and engrossed by the one great question: "Which horse will win the Gentlemen's Race?"

Everybody also knows that the Badmore meeting is the most aristocratic race of the year; that the number of splendid equipages, and owners thereof, exceed by four-fold those which gather around any other course; and that, though the spectators are aristocratic, the betting runs higher than that which occurs either at the Derby or the Oaks.

On the morning which broke upon this particular Badmore day, the crowd was, if anything, larger than usual; the turnpike man was prepared to assert, on oath, if need be, that twice the number of carriages had passed through his gate than at any previous meeting; and, as a matter of fact, the seats in the grand stand ran to a premium which exceeded anything that had ever before been demanded. Royalty itself was present on a stand of its own; royalty as represented by a popular prince and princess, surrounded by a bevy of personal friends.

In the inclosure, sacred—it is rather an incongruous word, by the way—to the fraternity of men who get their living by book-making, a vast crowd was surging to and fro howling the odds, and trying to out-yell each other; but above the din could be heard now and again the name of one horse, the "Assasin." Indeed, all through the whole crowd, his name was most frequently heard.

Little groups of men clustered in corners and whispered it; ladies murmured it behind their race chairs and fans, and the prince himself showed a deep interest in the animal, who seemed to occupy the position of favorite.

Indeed, so great a favorite was he, that the race would have been accorded to him by popular prophecy beforehand, but for that serious defect in him of which all were talking.

And that defect was his temper.

"What sort of humor would Assasin be in?" That was the question they were asking. Would he be in a good temper? If so, the Gentlemen's Race was his, and his owner and rider Lord Fane's. But then he was so rarely in a good temper! It was well known that the Assasin was a proud and haughty beast, upon whom yelling and hooting crowds had a maddening effect, and that it was quite within the bounds of possibility, that at the moment of starting he might refuse to move, or sway around, and make a dash for the paddock he had just left.

The crowd knew that there was only one man who could ride him, and that was Lord Edgar, and they planned

Liver Was All Upset and There Was Pain Under the Shoulder-blade—Two Interesting Letters.

So many people suffer from derangement of the liver that we feel sure these two reports, just recently received, will prove interesting reading and valuable information to many readers of this paper.

Mrs. F. L. Harris, Keatley, P.O., Sask., writes: "I was suffering from liver trouble and a heavy pain under one shoulder blade all the time, and was nearly as black as dirt around the eyes, so I concluded to try some of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I did so, and before I had taken one 25c. box the pain had left me and I commenced to gain in flesh, and by the time I had taken two boxes I was completely cured and felt like a new person. My trouble was caused by heavy work out-of-doors, and, of course, heavy eating and constipation. I would advise anyone suffering from kidney or liver trouble to give Dr. Chase's Pills a trial."

Mrs. Charles Terry, Tweed, Ont., writes: "Before I was married I was troubled with enlargement of the liver. My liver became so enlarged that you could detect the swellings on either side, and it was only with difficulty that I could get my clothes on. A friend advised me to get Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills and take them. I commenced this treatment, and used nine boxes, which cured me at that time. Then, about two or three years afterward I was troubled again with the swelling, but only on my right side. I secured some more Kidney-Liver Pills, and took them, which finally cured me. I have not been troubled in this way since. I can cheerfully recommend Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills to anyone having kidney or liver trouble."

"We have also found Dr. Chase's Linseed and Turpentine excellent for coughs and colds. In fact, any of Dr. Chase's medicines which we have used have been good."

Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 50c. a box, 5 for $1.00. All dealers, or Edmondson Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto.

Patriots and Patriotism.

THE REAL AND THE FALSE.

Editor Evening Telegram.

Dear Sir,—The dictionaries define "patriotism" as "love of one's country" and a "patriot" as "one who loves and faithfully serves his country." These definitions are generally accepted as correct, and they should be well kept in mind, especially at such times in which we are now living, when the word "patriotism" is used on every lip, and an appeal to "patriotism" from whomsoever it may come, and by whatever motive it may be prompted, is sure to draw popular applause. Even those who see the glaring baseness of the false "patriotism" amongst us, are, alas only too willing to forgive, in the name of "patriotism," the gross injustices done that sacred name.

The extension of the life of the present rump parliament is, just one example of the many crimes, that are being done those days in the name of "patriotism." The very essence of popular control, which is essential to the wellbeing of free government, is laid in the gutter by a bunch of political parasites, who cover their hideous actions by resorting to the use of the word "patriotism." These are the class of "patriots" who are well fitted by Dr. Samuel Johnson's robust saying, "Patriots" of the Coaker, McGrath, Bennett, Harvey, Caslin, Crobie type will be always seen and heard amongst the most noxious of "patriots," in whose opinions no action is too drastic and no measure too far-reaching, as long as they can exploit their fellow countrymen by using patriotism as a smoke screen to cover their baseness of purpose, and their contempt for the rights of others.

In the name of "patriotism" they will leave no stone unturned to break down the spirit of those public men who remain sufficiently cool, when the clouds seem darkest, to guard the public interest. They will, by their pub-

These definitions are generally accepted as correct, and they should be well kept in mind, especially at such times in which we are now living, when the word "patriotism" is on every lip, and an appeal to "patriotism" from whomsoever it may come, and by whatever motive it may be prompted, is sure to draw popular applause. Even those who see the glaring baseness of the false "patriotism" amongst us, are, alas only too willing to forgive, in the name of "patriotism," the gross injustices done to the sacred name.

The extension of the life of the present ramp parliament is, just one example of the many crimes, that are being done those days in the name of "patriotism." The very essence of popular control, which is essential to the wellbeing of free government, is laid in the gutter by a bunch of political parasites, who cover their hideous actions by resorting to the use of the word "patriotism." These are the class of "patriots" who are well fitted by Dr. Samuel Johnson's robust saying, "Patriots, of the Coaker, McGrath, Bennett, Harvey, Cashin, Coaker type will be always seen and heard amongst the most noisiest of 'patriots,' in whose opinions no action is too drastic and no measure too unbecoming, as long as they can exploit their fellow countrymen by using patriotism as a smoke screen to cover their baseness of purpose, and their contempt for the rights of others.

In the name of "patriotism" they will leave no stone unturned to break down the spirit of those public men who remain sufficiently cool, when the clouds seem darkest, to guard the public interest. They will, by their public utterances, and purchased editorial articles in a "kept" press, denounce these brave and fearless upholders of the people's rights, as not being "patriotic" enough. They will besmirch their good names, misrepresent their stand on public questions, and in short damn them, as far as lies in their power, and all this in the name of "patriotism."

In the name of "patriotism" they will insist that all those safeguards in the machinery of government which are to prevent fraud and theft be swept away. In the name of "patriotism" they will squander amongst themselves and their personal following the public funds of the Dominion in expenditures of large sums, made necessary they say, on account of the war. In the name of "patriotism" they will overburden the taxpayer to an extent unknown in our history. These self-styled "patriots" will air their eloquence from morning till night, and during their sleep dream of some new game to work off on an unsuspecting public, this, again, in the name of "patriotism."

Members of the present Government, made up as it is of shreds and patches, have foisted themselves into positions of executive responsibility, not as they claim for "patriotism," but rather for greedy self-interest. With them it is a case "of all are for the party and none are for the State." They hold office to-day as a result of the most dishonest political "frame-up" ever seen in a self-governing Dominion. Those who but a year ago were loudest in denouncing their opponents as "riding roughshod over the greatest safeguard of democratic government, and destroying the very essence of popular control," have during the past few weeks demonstrated that they are just as capable of destroying those very same principles by using "patriotism" as a mantle to cover their selfish motives.

Entrenched behind the word "patriotism" which they have trampled upon for the sake of political expediency, these "patriotic" politicians who now misrule this Dominion of ours, take unto their bosoms a class of men—the profiteers—who since the very outbreak of the present war have eagerly taken advantage of every opportunity to enrich themselves at the expense of those who bear the burdens of the hour. This class of profiteer, shielding himself, like the cute politician, behind the word "patriotism" has made millions of dollars extra war profits, in fact they have never found business so profitable. It is unquestionably this type of commercial men—Mr. Coaker—refers to when he says:

"There are three million dollars in the pockets of the men on Water Street that do not belong to them, but should belong to the fishermen of the country, excess profits of the past three years. That money represents excess profits that should not have been taken out of the pockets of the people. I know a firm last year on Water Street who made $300,000 net profit; and I also know a firm on Water Street that last year 'paid its stockholder $5,000 commission on sales, in addition to his salary. In the Upper House to-day there is a gentleman who represents that firm, and the same 'people must have made $150,000 net profits on flour, pork and beef. These people should be arrested and put in the Penitentiary and charged with the crime of treason. Their action in rejecting 'this (Profit Tax) Bill is a disgrace."

Writing editorially, in his personal organ on November 6th, 1916, Mr. Coaker again said, "The Winters and others are bleeding the people by everyday profits on provisions and every day these profits are becoming larger. Something like A HALF A MILLION of dollars have been taken out of us as extra profits on provisions. Firms in town are selling flour that gave them $4.00 per barrel profit. The rise in butter is another big grab which will place $50,000 into the pockets of two or three concerns."

Later on in the same year, we read the following rebuke to these "patriots" who fenced the public of large profits on foodstuffs:

"Why has he (Sir E. P. Morris) not told the public why Winters' son was sent on a long holiday to the West Coast, at a time when Winters' dealers were enquiring 'for their fall's supply of flour and arranging prices? Did he know that flour was withheld from sale, 'in order to hold for the advanced prices that would be sure to follow when the mills in Canada advanced prices?'"

Again, in addressing himself, to our noble and illustrious son, Baron Morris, then just plain Sir Edward, Mr. Coaker with his heart aflame with righteous indignation, said: "We see no action taken to enforce the law against men who hold Tory seats in the Legislative Council, who are selling flour at a profit of $4.00 per barrel and pork at a profit of $10.00 per barrel, because the firm in question gave $5,000 towards party funds that helped to place Morris in power."

These "patriots" referred to in so pointed language have during the past session of the Assembly been Mr. Coaker's best friends. Their support to his Extension Bill was the means of depriving "the electorate of this country of having an opportunity to say who shall govern them the next four years." The "patriotic" politician, and the equally "patriotic" food shark, are to-day nesting in each other's arms, and the faithful followers gather round the festive board satisfied to catch what stray crumbs may come their way.

The man, or body of men, who dare raise their voices in honest denunciation of this kind of sham "patriotism" are attacked and bitterly assailed by a "kept" press. The mind of the populace is poisoned against them by such "patriotic" gentlemen, as the editor of the Herald, who not so long ago was introduced to the public by our super-patriot, Mr. Coaker, "as the journalistic crook of the country."

It is such "patriots" as McGrath, Coaker, Cashin, Harvey and others, lustily aided by disreputable politicians who have sold their honor and independence for place and pay, who discover in such occasions as the present condition of the world and the local conditions of things, new changes to lift themselves into places of responsibility, trusting that everything will be forgiven to the "patriot" who is most vociferous in denouncing the enemy and most fiercely proclaiming that the war must not cease until the last of the foe has bitten the dust.

We have an overdose of his paper brand of "patriotism." We have seen how such patriots as McGrath, Bennett and such, have made good with knighthoods and salaries far in excess of what they are worth to the Dominion as to the ability they possess. As soon as Mr. Bennett got his salary passed by the Legislature, he jumps the job, and rushes over to London caring not how the affairs of his Department are managed during his absence. His patriotism ceases as soon as he is assured of his $4,000 per year. If the affairs of the Militia Department are of such a minor nature, that the Minister can leave his work at a time when the Military Service Act is occupying the attention of the country, then people are justified in asking what need is there of such a "full-grown" cabbage as John R. Bennett, holding such a portfolio and taking from the taxpayers of that Dominion a yearly salary equal to that earned by eight ordinary laborers.

Mr. Bennett, we are told, is one of our leading "patriots." He is evidently one of those who believes in that brand of patriotism that pays, of which the editor of the Herald used to write so much about a few years ago. It is to keep this brand of cackling "patriots" in fat positions that clerical office hands and small traders will be asked by the blessed National (?) Government to pay over to the treasury an income tax on their incomes for this and last year as well. Mr. John R. Bennett will, no doubt, enjoy the sights of London. He will dine well, and feed well. He will worry far less as to how the Regiment is getting along now, than he has at any time since leaving the office of Minister of Militia. His salary is secure and that is all he is worrying about. Mr. Bennett will, no doubt, seek a knighthood in return for his valuable and rather expensive services.

Real patriotism means not only to profess "to serve one's country faithfully," to profess love for it or to have a sentimental attachment for it, but to consider with conscientious care what is best for its welfare and its honor, and then to do one's duty to it according to that understanding, honestly, with courageous devotion and in a spirit of self-sacrifice.

And "those who love their country and mean to serve it faithfully" must not forget that true patriotism, while in time of war must fight the common enemy, has to fight with equal vigour and vigilance, false patriotism at home. For unless it do so with effect, the range and power of corrupt and degrading influences in our political life will be fearfully enlarged, and the progress of honest, safe and orderly methods of "government of the people, by the people and for the people" may be set back for an indefinite period or may altogether perish from this land.

Not long ago one of our leading Church dignitaries said to his congregation, "Let us people, therefore, take warning, and beware lest the well-meaning sacrifices made by citizens of every class and every party in the public interest, be exploited for their own ends, by those who will be always found ready to use even the gravest national emergencies for their own personal advantage."

That this warning was a most timely one, no honest man can deny. It is nothing wrong to state that we have here in this Dominion, men who have not hesitated to "use the gravest national emergencies for their own personal advantage." The recent publication of a secret circular sent broadcast over a certain section of this Dominion and the glaring dishonesty of its author in using for his own "personal advantage" the secret and confidential information of the Government of which he is a sworn executive member, is positive proof that the time is ripe for "us people therefore to take warning and beware lest the well-meaning sacrifices made by citizens of every class and every party in the public interest" are not made in vain. The kind of patriots who have control of the Dominion today are not to be trusted. They have neither the confidence nor the respect of the electorate. They do not trust one another. They are in truth to speak, a government without a backing. In fact the majority of the members who sit at the Speaker's left would make valuable officials of the House, but as representatives of the people they are absolutely hopeless.

There have been more crimes in the political calendar committed in this Dominion the past three years in the name of "patriotism" than in any other Dominion of the Empire. The inherent rights of the electorate are only a second consideration with the personal interests of those, who with unmeasurable gall, set themselves up as an executive government and proclaim themselves leaders of the people. Men with such unspeakable political records as some of the present executives are a positive disgrace to any government. They would not be tolerated twenty-four hours in any other Dominion. Using "patriotism" as a pretext for their plundering methods they have enriched themselves by thousands of dollars whilst those they ask to fight for "Liberty and Justice" are unable to exist upon the financial assistance given them when they return after bearing the heat of the battle. Such "patriotic" and self-sacrificing (hem) gentry as editor McGrath gets a few trips to Ottawa to study pension schemes and to see generally what they are doing in Canada. Without Canada what would we do? Everything is Canada, and everything points to the fact that some people here today are wishing for the time when their dreams of Confederation would come true.

Mr. McGrath returned last spring from a pleasure jaunt to the States and told us quite a lot about the American pension scheme in connection with the Civil War. 'Tis indeed marvellous what a lot of authentic knowledge this literary (?) genius can unload on the public. Patsy is "full to the bung" with panaceas for all our ills, political, social and otherwise. Some day, overtaxed by the strain, he will bust, and then a long suffering public will get a rest from being jaded to death by what, Mr. Coaker called, "McGrath's senseless and more than absurd fibberings."

The treatment noted out to our soldiers who have returned bringing with them the honourable scars of battle is such as should cause those responsible, to hang their heads in shame. But they do not. In the name of "patriotism" they flaunt their utter disregard for the welfare of those brave men, in their faces and the faces of those dearest to them. They set themselves upon a pedestal and extort tribute from all and sundry.

It would be well for Mr. McGrath and those political shysters associated with him to read the immortal Lincoln's words uttered at Gettysburg. They mean more to the world to-day than when they were spoken. "But in a larger sense we cannot dedicate, we cannot consecrate, we cannot hallow this ground. The brave men, living and dead, who struggled here, have consecrated it far above our poor power to add or detract. The world will little note nor long remember what we say here; but it can never forget what they did here. It is for us, the living, rather, to dedicate here to the unfinished work which they who fought here have thus far so nobly advanced. It is rather for us to be here dedicated to the great task remaining before us; that from these honored dead we take increased devotion to that cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion; that we here highly resolve that these dead shall not have died in vain, and this nation, under God, shall have a new birth of freedom; and that government of the people, shall not perish from this earth."

The history of past wars, as well as the present world war, point to the fact that it is the time when Governments find themselves faced with grave problems, when the rush of events make the needs of the government especially pressing, that a tribe of title chasers, undesirable politicians, place-hunters, and unscrupulous speculators, bent upon finding and robbing the people and most fruitful opportunities. How true are the words of the poet Wordsworth:—"That in ourselves our safety must be sought; That by our own right hands it must be wrought."

Yours truly,

Postal-Telegraph Report.

The Report of the Postmaster General (a copy of which is acknowledged with thanks) on the Postal-Telegraph Service for the year ended June 30th, 1917, is very comprehensive and embraces every detail of the work performed in this dual department of the Public Service. No person, no matter how well informed, can get a complete knowledge of the vast amount of work done by this service from any casual survey of the visible conditions. To obtain even a fair idea of the extensiveness of our Postal system and its numerous ramifications there is no royal means, unless one carefully considers the statistics presented in the Report under discussion, and compares them with those of ten years ago. Even then the increased volume of business will almost be too huge to realize, and the student will be left to wonder how it is that in a country with such a small population the mail service is ever growing.

We would like to make a more extensive review of this invaluable report, but the exigencies of the moment will not allow for more than a brief comment on the principal features. Twenty years ago the service was in its infancy: to-day it is giving every evidence of a lusty coming of age. In other words the birth of the present combined service took place in 1898, when the newly inaugurated Government Telegraph lines was placed under the control of the Post Office Department.

All branches of this service being Public Utilities (which often means more expenditure than revenue) it must be a source of gratification for the public to know that last year Ordinary Postal Revenue slightly exceeded the ordinary expenditure. This in itself speaks for the highly efficient management by which the Post Office is at present controlled.

"If credit were given," says the Postmaster General, "or postage paid, for the ever increasing volume of 'franked' matter, the surplus would be an appreciable one." He suggests that franking should be reduced to a minimum and confined to (1) Departmental Heads; (2) Members of the Assembly; (3) Philanthropic Agencies whose scope is Dominion wide and in no way sectional.

To this public opinion should agree and the Government should take immediate steps to prevent or limit this ever increasing volume of "franked" (free postage) matter.

While the growth of business of the Postal-Telegraph Service has increased, the salaries of officials have not advanced proportionately, as while last year's increment helped the younger and less responsible officials in the Head Office, it provided but little encouragement to officials of many years standing whose liabilities and responsibilities are increasing with the passing year. The $50 increase on the salaries of those cannot be taken as an intention to promote either loyalty or efficiency. "In the interests of the service," the report continues, "it is a matter of profound regret that the recommendations for classification, standardizing and annual increments till the class maximum was reached, were not approved." It will be freely admitted that in a service of such public utility as the Postal-Telegraphs, where long hours and constant attendance are demanded, the officials are worthy of and should receive, at least, a living wage. No department of the public service uses its employees daily for such long periods as the Postal-Telegraph and it is only just and equitable that extra provision be made for salaries in their case.

Inspection is a prime necessity and the F. M. G. speaks with no uncertain sound on the importance of having such. With 1,450 permanent employees, and over one thousand branches, inspection is absolutely needed. In the early days of the Post Office, ere it was combined with the Telegraph Branch, there was an Inspector. Since the enormous development of those services, there is no Inspector, and whatever work of this nature can be attended to without interference with other duties, is done by the Secretary of the Department. An inspection work demands continuous service, it is essential that one or more thoroughly capable men be set apart for the work, in order that efficiency may be the rule, rather than the exception.

Without supervision, efficiency is absent, and may be the result as much of indifference as of incapacity. The Postmaster General recommends that, (a) A grant to meet the expenses of inspection be made and (b) that the services of the qualified members of Head Office Staff be requisitioned under certain circumstances. During the year the P. M. G. personally inspected many offices but the time at his disposal is too fully occupied to allow much latitude in this direction. Continuing the report deals with the work of the Enquiry Department, Letters, Newspapers, Stamp Sales, Money Orders, Parcel Post, Couriers, Telegraphs, Repairs, Telephones, concluding with a list of the officials who have signed the oaths of His Majesty during the year covered, and those of the P. O. Volunteers who gave their lives for King and Country. Altogether the Report is most interesting and its perusal will well repay all who are privileged to receive a copy. The Postal Telegraphs being of such paramount importance to the trade and commerce of Newfoundland, it is suggested that so many copies of this Report, as possible, be placed in the hands of business men and others. The expense of doing this is not worth considering, when the value of the information contained is placed on the other side of the scales.

We congratulate Hon. Mr. Robinson on his able presentation of the Postal Telegraph case, and trust the many recommendations for the further utility and efficiency of the combined service will be carried out, in season.

Returned Soldiers Hold Big Meeting.

CONSTITUTION OF ASSOCIATION DRAWN UP.
The Returned Volunteers' Association held a meeting in the British Hall last night, which was attended by about 200 members. The object of the meeting was to draw up a constitution and other business. President Mitchell presided. After the constitution, which was discussed in detail, a meeting of the Executive Committee was held. The question of making claim for separation allowances was discussed at length. It is to be noted that the volunteers who preceded the 1916 drafts should receive the allowance from date of enlistment up to the time of discharge, and will urge upon the Government that the outstanding amounts be made good. The matter of the Minister of Militia absenting himself from the Dominion was also considered, and resolutions voicing the association's disapproval of the Minister's action were unanimously passed and will be forwarded to His Excellency the Governor. Following are the aims and objects of the Association:

- 1. To perpetuate the close and kindly ties of mutual service in the great war, the recollections and associations of that experience and to maintain proper standards of dignity and honor.
- 2. To preserve the memory and records of those who have suffered and died for the nation, to see to the erection of monuments to their valor, and the establishment of an annual Memorial Day.
- 3. To ensure that provision is made for the due care of the sick, wounded and needy among those who have served, including reasonable pensions, employment for such as are capable, soldiers' homes, medical care and proper provision for dependent families of enlisted men, and also for such further educational or vocational training as the needs of any returned soldier or soldiers may render desirable.
- 4. To constantly inculcate loyalty to Newfoundland and the Empire, and unstinted service in their interests.
- 5. To establish, maintain and operate a club and club rooms, employment and information bureaus, and generally to further the business and social welfare of all returned soldiers in every way.
- 6. To raise funds for all purposes of the association by fees from members, as well as by public and private grants.
- 7. To do all such other and lawful acts and things relative or incidental to the above objects as may be found necessary or expedient.

My dear Sir Arthur—A note from my friend Mr. Will Job at New York, the Treasurer of the Newfoundland Committee, enclosing me a letter addressed to you and a cheque in your favor for the balance of the fund $282.64, making to date $222.64, which I have handed over to the association. I now enclose this letter to you. I am forwarding Job's letter to me for your perusal. Perhaps you would not mind sending me a copy of his letter, and a few words acknowledging Job's letter, which I could send out to St. John's and have both published in the papers there. I am sure the subscribers would like to see a public announcement and it would help us next year if we have to take up another subscription. Thank you for your letter of the 28th instant, enclosing a letter from Mr. W. C. Job, of New York, accompanying a cheque for $282.64, the third amount collected by Mr. Job's Newfoundland Committee and sent to you to be used for the comfort of sick and wounded soldiers of the Newfoundland Regiment.
The whole sum subscribed, which you have handed to the Association to be used for this purpose, amounts to the generous total of $222.64, and will be of very material assistance in the work of caring for our wounded and sick men.
Mr. Job's letter gives us the names of the subscribers to whom our gratitude is due. I am sure that those in the island as well as members of the War Contingent Association here, will much appreciate the generosity of those Newfoundlanders and their friends who are in New York, and their remembrance of and interest in the men of the Newfoundland Regiment, which has not been so practical and helpful a form.

Dear Sir—
I have to thank you for your communication of the 9th ult., giving an account of the Defendant, which is very interesting to those who have been trying to do a little bit for the wounded soldiers.
I now come to hand you a draft for $282.64, which closes the account, as the Committee here have decided that for the present they will not try to collect any more money. Most of the Newfoundlanders here are struggling people and the demands on them at present are considerable in other directions and for this reason we do not want to push the thing any further at the moment.

Milk Case Reaches an Important Stage.

The milk case wherein a farmer of the Goulds is the Defendant and the Health Authorities the Complainants, reached an important stage this morning when the evidence of Mr. H. Y. Mott, Clerk of the House of Assembly was heard as to the legality of the by-law of Section 9 of the Milk Regulations. On the last hearing of the case Mr. J. J. McGrath, Counsel for the defendant, asked the court to state if the act as constituted was legal. It is stated in the act that a copy of the rules and regulations shall be laid before the Legislature during the first week of the next session, which session was the one now past. Mr. Mott, on being asked if he had any official record of the same being done, replied in the negative. This being so His Honor Judge Morris intimated that the information asked for would greatly assist him in arriving at a speedy judgment.

WEATHER REPORT.

—The weather across country is light S.E. wind and fine; temperature 33 to 45 above.

DIED.

On May 18, of pneumonia, Kathleen, darling child of William and Margaret Callahan, aged 3 years.
This lovely bud, so young, so fair, Called hence by early doom. Just came to show how sweet a flower In Paradise would bloom. Ere sin could harm or sorrow fade Death came with friendly care. The opening bud to heaven conveyed. And had it blossom there. This morning, after a long illness, Mary Gear, widow of the late John Royal, aged 69 years, leaving two sons, two daughters, three nephews and three sisters to mourn their loss; funeral on Thursday, at 2.30 p.m., Notre Dame Street.

WOMEN and girls of Newfoundland.

Want to again thank you all so much for the splendid response you have given. As you know, it is far beyond what I hoped for, and it is such a representative shower—so from every kind and condition of homes in Newfoundland—all donations, from old and young, and have one pair of socks knitted by an old lady of 82, others knitted by children of 8 and 9; there are even a few pairs knitted by men, one pair from a returned soldier, another 2 pairs from an old man of over 60.

We have a "shower" really worthy of His Majesty, with the knowledge that we could send nothing that will be more appreciated by the women to whom they actually go. Again thank you all very, very much.
Yours sincerely,
M. ARMOREL HARRIS.

Any individual contributor has sent socks it is because she put in her own address. Several letters have come back to me through the Red Cross office.

REEL ISLAND RECRUITS.—A large number of recruits came over from Bell Island yesterday and today. In one Bell Island family three out of seven children who have not previously joined up came over for enlistment.

Shower of Socks.

There will be an Exhibition of the "Shower of Socks" at Government House on Friday, May 24th, from 12 o'clock till 6 o'clock p.m.—Over a thousand pairs of socks, mainly knitted by women of Newfoundland and girls of Newfoundland, are exhibited to send as a gift to Her Majesty Queen Mary. It is a wonderful response and more than proves the devotion and love of the women of the Colony.
The "shower" itself has contributed 1,600 pairs to Government House in separate parcels.
The W.P.A. branches—local and outport—have responded splendidly, and numbers of other pairs have come from those who are unaffiliated with any association.
The biggest individual "shower" is 75 pairs, knitted by Mrs. Hanley, St. John's.
The biggest "shower" from the outport W.P.A. branches is 233 pairs, knitted by the W.P.A. branches in the Placentia district, including Jersey Side. The second biggest "shower" from the outport W.P.A. branches is 148 pairs, knitted by the W.P.A. branches from Trepasser's Cove.
The following is a list of the "showers" from all the local and outport branches that contributed. In cases where parcels of socks were sent to me at Government House, I have not counted with those sent to me at the headquarters of each branch. In almost all cases the number of socks sent from the place is actually more than the number given below. This applies very particularly to the outports.

I Stand Corrected.

By RUTH CAMERON.

RUTH CAMERON

"I guessed it wouldn't amount to anything," and obstinately refused to take any of the sure cure remedies offered her by her friends. I added that when she came down with a violent cold, I did not feel any sympathy for her.

Says my letter friend: "On reading your article criticising the people who refuse to take preventive medicines, I felt impelled to protest.

A Three Years' Illness.

"I have a friend--three years ago, when she returned from the holidays, she felt the gripe coming on. One of her associates gave her some medicine the doctor had given her. The result was acetanilid poison, from which she has not recovered. She is an invalid now, hardly able to sit up, and can take almost no nourishment. "Simple home remedies may not hurt anyone, but I have known a ginger tea, taken to ward off a cold, to throw a person into a hicough that lasted an alarming time.

Too Much Promiscuous Doctoring.

"There is altogether too much promiscuous doctoring. If ill, go to a doctor; it is more economical in the end."

I emphatically agree with my letter friend. Promiscuous doctoring is dangerous. Nothing is more foolish than the habit of indiscriminately taking proprietary medicines, or of handing about physicians' prescriptions. There are, however, some remedies such as simple laxatives, standard gargles, etc., which ought to be perfectly safe if used with intelligence and discretion.

I spoke, the other day, of the value of first aid course for general household use. This is a good opportunity to tie a warning to that, too.

First Aid Means First Aid.

A little knowledge is a dangerous thing. Don't rely on yourself any more than you have to. The idea of First Aid is that it should be First Aid, while you are waiting for the doctor.

Even as I write, I think what a mockery that must sound to that large class of people, not poor enough to go to public dispensaries and yet living on such a narrow margin of income that the doctor's bill is their worst nightmare.

I hope I shall see the day when some system of public health insurance, such as that advocated by Dr. Richard Cabot, shall make it possible for such people to have medical aid whenever they need it without mortgaging their futures to get it.

Household Notes.

For freezing ice cream and sherbets use three portions of ice to one of salt. Cream two or three days old is better for making ice cream than new cream.

Fish, fruit and salads should be frequent in the menus for the brain worker. Fresh meat beginning to sour will sweeten if placed out of doors in the air overnight.

Bisque ice cream is best if the crumbs are added when the cream is almost frozen.

Scraped raw potatoes put into decanters will clean them if left for two or three days.

Always put the scrubbing brush to dry with the bristles down. This will save the brush.

Carrots are delicious boiled until tender, and then served in a gravy made of white stock.

SYSTEM IN HOME WORK EXERCISE.

Speaking of housework again as an exercise, many women look upon systematic exercise as a waste of time. Some will say that housework is, in itself, all the exercise needed. The psychologist would say that the performance of household duties has an object aside from the completion of a certain amount of work.

The mental attitude of the housewife, then, is work, whereas the woman who is exercising with exercise only in view, has as an object, only her health. This will show you that there is a mental side of the question of exercise as well as a physical side, and the motive which we have uppermost in the mind is the one that affects us most physically.

If you are systematic you will map out the work for the day, no matter what it may be, so that you can go through it without having to stop to think about what you will do next when you have finished each task. In this planning do not fail to include the constitutional or the exercise hour. If you value your good health and good temper, take indoor exercise, as well as outdoor.

Perhaps you cannot have a gymnasium in the expensive sense of the word, but you can rig up a few ropes and maybe add a broomstick and a dumb bell or two. Do not overdo in exercising so that you will become exhausted instead of invigorated.

Household Notes.

When the provision of meat is rather small, serve soup to take the edge off the appetite.

If the meat provided is expensive, balance things by serving inexpensive vegetables and dessert.

A daily bath, into which a little bicarbonate of soda is put, will allay the burning of the feet.

Underground Hangars of German Airmen.

These are unhappy days for the German flying men. Not only are they confronted by overwhelming numbers when they take to the higher altitudes, but even when resting in their shelters many miles from the battle front they are subjected to the attacks of enemy airmen.

Almost four years of continuous warfare has disclosed the fact that the German is not slow to put new ideas into execution. So it is not surprising to hear that the German airmen have resorted to the same device as their brothers in the first line trenches, namely, underground shelters and hangars as a protection against hostile attacks. It is learned from Allied intelligence officers that at many points on the western front the enemy is busily engaged in building underground hangars and quarters. And this, after all, is nothing more than carrying out their program of wonderful subterranean shelters on a far greater scale than heretofore attempted by the infantry.

From material now available our artist drew views of German underground hangars. It appears that the Germans are excavating rocky caves below the surface, which they roof over with a heavy layer of sandbags and the original sod. The roof is supported by pillars at frequent intervals, so arranged as to interfere the least possible with the movement of the airplanes. From the entrance of the underground hangar there extends to the surface an inclined runway of concrete, which can be used most admirably in starting a flight; indeed, no matter what may be the condition of the surrounding terrain due to rain or snow the concrete runway is always ready for service. As likely as not the Germans are using or will use large strips of canvas palatized the same color as the surrounding grass, to camouflage the concrete runway and the entrance to the hangar. While speaking of camouflage it is also well to mention that they intend using decoy or dummy aerodromes some distance away from the underground hangars in order to draw off enemy attacks from the real objective.

It would be a case of sheer ignorance to deride this latest German idea. For in many respects it has marked advantages, particularly from the German point of view when the Allied aviators are nightly attacking the German airman at their camps. Furthermore, it is not infrequent for a severe wind storm to cause considerable damage to the usual aerodrome. Obviously, an underground hangar, if properly built and waterproofed so as

SPRING MOTORING.

The choo-choo season has arrived and the roads are good, the fields are green; I'm thankful that I have survived to burn a lot more gasoline. The winter, cold and long and drear, killed off a lot of jays and rubes; how glad am I that I'm still here.

To blow myself or inner tubes! Sometimes I thought when tempests whirled, I wouldn't live to see the spring, for rheumatism through me streaked, and wrenched my joints like everything. When blizzards, whooping down from Nome, were brawling angrily and loud, I called motorists to my home, to figure on a beer and shroud. But I hung on through sleet and snow, the lamp of life maintained its flame; and now that springtime breezes blow, you'll see me in the motor game. I'll buy some bonds to save the boons inherited from martial stress; I'll spend some bones for bread and prunes, and blow some more for rubber tires. I've cut out rich cigars and wines, and made a simple bill of fare; I'll need my change to pay my fines for busting speed laws here and there. I'll blow a portion of long green to help the Red Cross work; that's best; the bulk will go for gasoline--mechanics then will get the rest.

THE LONDON RAID.

LONDON, May 20. Deaths and injuries to innocent inhabitants of London were less than any raid this year except that of January 28, when 68 people were killed and 173 injured. This time the raid was made on March 19. The provinces got off lightly as well. Virtually all the bombs dropped outside of London, having fallen in open places; in fact it appeared as though the raiders, on being foiled in their attempt to reach London, got as far as possible to do serious damage. However, could not have been a great height. Spectators had a good view of an aerial fight, which resulted fatally to one of the bombers; his machine fell in flames and the accompaniment of cheers of the onlookers. Six persons were injured in the provinces. The casualties are divided as follows: London and other Metropolitan Police District--Killed, 17 men, 1 woman, 6 children. Total 24. Injured, 83 men, 49 women, 43 children; 23 in 155. Provinces: Injured, 1 man, 3 women, 3 children. Total 6. Considerable damage to property is reported to have been done.

ARTILLERY ACTIVE.

PARIS, May 20. Active artillery fighting near Hated on the front before Amiens, is reported to-day's official statement. The third German line, taking prisoners.

FRENCH TROOPS ADVANCE.

LONDON, May 20. Official--During the night the French troops carried out successful operations east and northeast of Loos. All their objectives were gained a front of some four thousand yards, and over four hundred prisoners were captured. Local fighting occurred early this morning north of Loos, as a result of which a few of our men are missing. A party of our troops rushed a German post east of Loos and captured a few prisoners and 2 machine guns. The heavy artillery has shown considerable activity to-day with gas shells in the area north of Bethune.
