CHAPTER XXV.
HOW MISS VILLIERS PROSPERS IN PASTURES NEW.

Fach approached it, not in the outspoken vulgarity of so many words, but along side ways suggested by circumstances, and then it came about that by the time they reached Luce, Mrs. Alwyn had once more donned her graceful affability, and Leonora had revived to interest in foreign fashions.

It was in the dawn of this happier state of affairs that the pair sat one morning on the balcony of the pension, where they preferred chief rank to an almost lost identity among the multitude thronging the huge hotels. Two boxes of raiment had reached them there from England. Leonora's god had enlivened over unpacking. In creamy lawn she had put to shame a whole breakfast-table of ill-dressed tourists. Now she mused on the delightful effect of her toilet, idly picking oleander blooms off the great green tub by which she leaned, while her mother studied one of Sydney's letters just fetched from the poste restante.

"Well, and at work," she reports herself," said Mrs. Alwyn, crumpling up the carefully worded missive as though it had offended her; "really," glancing round to see no one within hearing, "your sister might belong to the lower classes by her expressions! However, while she is satisfied, I intend neither to complain nor to reproach her. Full forgiveness she has no right to expect of me at present. But it is a relief to have her decently settled. The thought of her harassed me frightfully the last month. Now, Leonora, I must call back my spirits and attend to you again."

Leonora raised her well-smoothed eyebrows. "Or, mamma," she said,

"I may see fit to attend to myself. I think, if ever I am to do that, it is about time I began."

This extraordinary outburst of independence on the part of the usually pliant-dispositioned daughter took Mrs. Alwyn thoroughly aback. Up went her eyeglasses to inspect the fair speaker with some dismay, but that expression graduated rapidly through surprise and curiosity into graceful of pleased recognition, tempered with dignity, which Leonora was bestowing on some one passing below.

"My dearest child, is that—"

"The gentleman who rescued our luggage at Zurich? Yes, mamma. He passed us there twice on the Hobe Promenade. He was with a slighter-figured man, but very distinguished—Count Kuster."

"Count! How do you know, Leonora?"

The young lady blushed. "They were entering that poky little musse, mamma, just as we were leaving. You were gone back for your sunshade. They bowed to me and passed into the first room. And I—I looked at their names in the visitors' book."

"And this gentleman is—"

"Mr. T. Morecombe-Wood."

"Not titled, then?"

"No, mamma, but English, and very likely of better standing than a German count. He is not just an ordinary holiday-maker, I feel sure. Both those men in blue blouses were carrying his luggage just now, and— Oh, mamma! he has turned back. He is coming here!"

And Leonora suddenly began arranging oleanders on her bodice, while her mother appeared wrapped in contemplation of the clear, still lake, though veritably less absorbed in its beauties than in the chances of her own and her daughter's amour propre getting speedily healed by the medicine of a desirable marriage.

Not to let imagination, however, outstrip common sense, the mother shunned further discussion of this newcomer to the pension; and when dinner-time found Mr. Morecombe-Wood filling the place of the last arrival at the dinner-table, he received from his (presumably) fair magnets neither no more obvious attention than from the other eighty odd sharers of the repast.

He was a man of fair height, inclining—not developed—into embonpoint, extremely pale, with short hair and mustache of inky blackness; very quick and much-comprehending eyes, that never met other people's long enough for their own expression to be too patent; of an age still interesting to the opposite sex; of easy manner and conversation with his own; distinctly unobtrusive, yet a close observer might have noticed that he kept his attention very much on the alert for all that Mrs. Alwyn and her elegant daughter said and did. Though addressing them less frequently than the freedom of the pension would have permitted had he chosen to push familiarity, still, mixing with groups near by, he could glean from Mrs. Alwyn's well-weighted remarks that she was travelling mainly for her daughter's health; that with this view residence at home or abroad was immaterial to her; and that the chief disadvantage of a roving winter would be the want of society, her own home-circle having lain among the very elite of the land.

This much acquired, Mr. Morecombe-Wood's glance followed Miss Villiers with growing and—as day after day slipped by—less guarded approbation. A rainy evening bringing music to the fore, Miss Villiers was persuaded to expound, not a humdrum ballad that any schoolgirl could pipe forth, but the grand scena from "Der Freischutz." From the placid air its conclusion Mr. Morecombe-Wood's were missing. He ventured to carry them—a separate offering—to the fair cantatrice while a miserable tenor was murdering "Adelaide;" and he contrived to make them so impressive that thenceforth their intercourse grew rapidly freer, and soon afforded Mrs. Alwyn the insight she desired into the gentleman's individual history.

A party of noisy Americans, one evening, were planning excursions on the water to watch the moon rise from a certain point.

"Would Mr. Morecombe-Wood join them? Oh! he must; they were going to have fine times!" declared a Brooklyn belle in high-pitched persuasion; and while she waited reply, Miss Villiers' soft full tones happened to remark to her vis-a-vis that the sunsets from the Drei Linden were so lovely. She and her mother were going there directly. And Mr. Morecombe-Wood resisted the lively American's invitation, and went strolling also toward the Drei Linden, asking permission of one couple found there to share with them the enchanted hour, though one is bound to confess after they got together the sunset seemed entirely forgotten!

"Those riotous tourists are the bane of the Continent in summer-time," he complained. "One gets out of patience with them. I often threaten myself with returning to England for the empty months."

"Then you never live in our own country?" Mrs. Alwyn asked.

"As little as may be of late years. When a man with enough, or more than is good for him, doesn't anchor in some domestic harbor early in life, he finds English society rather barren by the time he's my age. He gets rid of life more easily by wandering, and has to take every city in turn for his make-believe home."

"Not has to, surely!" said Mrs. Alwyn, very graciously. "I'm afraid you confess yourself hard to please if you say that."

"An impeachment I plead guilty to," the gentleman returned. "Neither London nor other capitals, nor lands native or foreign, have furnished temptation strong enough to fasten me to any hearth, I can truly say—up to this summer."

The last sentence was added with a slight change of tone. Mrs. Alwyn looked keenly but benignly at the speaker, who looked at Leonora, who looked at the ground. And, had the sentiments of the trio been gauged just then, the germs of exultation might have been discerned in each breast, though all went gingerly to work toward securing their fruition.

Another morning later on they strolled under the trees by the lake's shore; and Mrs. Alwyn filling up the pause with lauding the glories of pilatus, Mr. Morecombe-Wood said, laughing, that after his noble attitude our English peaks and fells sung small, and even—this with subdued watchfulness—"even Devonshire slopes turned into ant hills."

"Keswick I saw but once," said Mrs. Alwyn, "when I was first married to Mr. Villiers. Derbyshire I have never seen, nor— with an expression that seemed to say "and she never wished to see it!"—"nor Devon."

"The best of all, some say, and— Miss Villiers, you look tired; here are two vacant seats;" then placing himself at angles on the grass, so as to command the countenances of both companions—"and the one I know most. I lived on its eastern borders in former times, and I keep fancying it was there I came across your name, Mrs. Alwyn. 'Alwyn'—yes, it struck me as soon as I heard it." (Mrs. Alwyn's face clouded, spite of her effort to look unconcerned). "And somehow I had connected it with a great smash-up I remember hearing of there. I fancied it was a Mr. Alwyn who was hard hit in a mining mishap my people used to talk about."

Side Talks by Ruth Cameron

WAS IT PETTY OR NOT?

A friend of mine was entertaining a guest who wanted to take some pictures but had left her camera at home.

She asked the privilege of borrowing her hostess's camera and buying some of the films she had on hand.

The hostess was glad to grant the privilege and when the guest came to go she reckoned up the exposures she had used, counted out the 57 cents to which the cost came, and her hostess accepted it.

Petty To Let Your Guest Pay?

Said my friend's husband afterwards, "What made you take that money? Why didn't you let her have the films? That seems awfully petty to me, to let your guest pay for a little thing like that."

"I let her pay for them," retorted my friend with spirit, "for just one reason. Because if I had asked to use a camera and pay for the films I should have much preferred to be allowed to do just that. I think it is very embarrassing not to be allowed to pay for a thing when you want to. When I was visiting once I wanted to have copies of some pictures my friends had taken and wanted to pay for having them developed but they simply wouldn't let me. And the result was that I didn't take half the pictures I wanted. I would much rather have paid and felt free to have all I wanted. So when anyone offers to pay for anything I believe in letting them. Don't you?" she ended, with an appeal to me.

And I allowed I certainly did.

You know you prefer to pay. There are many small ways in

A Gift is Another Thing Altogether.

Of course, receiving money for some small thing like films, stamps and the like is a bit difficult to do gracefully—it is much easier to graciously waive it aside. But it's just a case, to my way of thinking, of do as you would be done by, of course when you offer a gift that is another thing altogether, then it would be rude of the recipient to try to make payment. But when anyone asks the privilege of paying for a thing and you think he or she really means it, it is kinder and more thoughtful to grant that privilege than to deny it.

London Press Urge Forbearance.

Common Grounds of Settlement
May Yet be Found—Indiscreet
Speeches Cause Comment—Viceroy of India Makes Statement.

PRESS URGES FORBEARANCE.
LONDON, Sept. 5.
With the exception of the Morning Post, which said "it is impossible to make terms with a rattlesnake," the London newspapers to-day made a united plea for forbearance in the latest phase of the Irish situation, which has developed from the reply of Eamonn De Valera to Premier Lloyd George's plan for settlement of the controversy, in the hope that a common ground might yet be found.

TURKISH REPORTS.
CONSTANTINOPLE, Sept. 5.
The Turkish Nationalists right wing, and also the left, are successfully fighting, despite the strenuous efforts of the Greek forces to break their resistance, and the fall of Angora is not likely to occur as soon as had been anticipated. Battles have been raging with undiminished violence for more than twelve days.

MALABAR A STORM CENTRE.
SIMLA, Sept. 5.
Lord Reading, Viceroy of India, during the course of a speech at a joint sitting of the Council of State, and the Legislative Assembly on Saturday last, said it would be wrong to assume that the rising of Moplahs in Malabar District was sympathetic of the whole of India, as that district has always been a storm centre.

THE PRIZE RING.
RINGSIDE, Jersey City, Sept. 5.
Brian Downey, of Cleveland, and Johnnie Wilson, of Boston, fought twelve tame and uninteresting rounds in their bout here this afternoon to settle their dispute over the world's middleweight championship. Under New Jersey law no official decision was permitted, but Wilson retained his championship belt, the fight going the limit. However, it was the opinion of a majority of newspaper men and fight experts at the ringside that Downey won on points.

FOOLISH FIREBRANDS.
BELFAST, Sept. 5.
Interest in the speech at Armagh yesterday of Michael Collins, "Sinn Fein Minister of Finance and Commander-in-Chief of the Irish Republican Army," has been completely swamped in Belfast by a declaration at the same meeting of Owen D. O'Duffy, Sinn Fein Chief Liaison Officer for Belfast, speaking concerning the attitude of Ulsterites towards Southern Ireland. O'Duffy said Sinn Fein would have to put on the screws. Sinn Fein would have to tighten that screw, he declared, and, if necessary, would have to use lead against the Ulsterites.

NON-COMMITTAL.
DUBLIN, Sept. 5.
The attention of Sinn Fein publicity department to-day was called to the address at Armagh, yesterday, of Owen O'Duffy, Chief Sinn Fein Liaison Officer for Ulster. It was asked whether O'Duffy's speech had the approval of Dail Eireann. Eamonn De Valera, Irish Republican Leader, and other Sinn Fein chiefs were consulted, after which the following statement was made public: Dail Eireann does not propose to use coercion against the North East Ulster any more than it proposes to submit to coercion itself. O'Duffy's statement refers to defiance of the national minority at Belfast, who last week were wantonly shot down by organized and directed Orange gangs, which were permitted to act for two days without interference from either local or British authorities.

GOVERNMENT SUSTAINED.
LONDON, Sept. 5.
Final results of the general elections in the Province of Victoria, Australia, show that generally speaking the majorities of the Government candidates were increased. The present state of the parties is, Government, 33; Labor, 31; Farmers, 12. The election was almost entirely fought on the Government's intention to abolish the wheat pool.

WOMEN COUNCILLORS ARRESTED.
LONDON, Sept. 5.
Five women Councillors of Poplar were arrested to-day to the accompaniment of stirring scenes. Their arrest had been postponed out of consideration for their sex, and the hope that the trouble arising between the Borough Council and the London County Council respecting taxes would be adjusted. But the women themselves invited the sheriff to arrest them and appointed the hour of three o'clock in the afternoon for the ceremony at the Town Hall, assuring the Sheriff that at that hour there was no danger of disorder. Accordingly immense crowds, mostly women, gathered inside and outside the Town Hall. The Councillors were headed by Susan Lawrence and Mrs. Edgar Lansbury, who delivered farewell speeches both in the hall and from the balcony to bolsterous crowds of demonstrators and sympathizers.

LEAGUE ASSEMBLY MEETS AGAIN.
GENEVA, Sept. 5.
The second Assembly of the League of Nations began its sessions to-day in an atmosphere of optimism, and with as much enthusiasm as might reasonably be expected from so sober a body. It was demonstrated at the outset that the popular branch of the League was meeting entirely free from a pre-arranged programme. H. Vannekranebeck, Dutch Minister of Foreign Affairs, was elected to the Presidency.

LABOUR DEFEATED.
LONDON, Sept. 5.
Labor candidates were heavily defeated in the Municipal by-elections in Lillingston, where the scale of assistance demanded by the unemployed was the deciding issue in the campaign.

The Origin of Cricket.

Cricket, as we know it now, really commenced with the meeting of Sir Horace Mann, the Duke of Dorset, and Lord Tankerville, at the "Star and Garter," Pall Mall, in 1744, when rules and regulations for the game were drawn up. From that time the big schools began to play the game seriously, Eton and Westminster being the principal ones at first, and in 1771, Yorkshire offered to play Nottingham, or vice-versa, in friendly encounters. Football, as it is played to-day had its origin at three of our greatest schools. The oldest game is Rugby, which was first played at the school of that name. "Tom Brown" found it in full swing when he arrived at Rugby about 1835, or so. The Old Rugbians and old boys of Blackheath School founded the first Rugby club of note, Blackheath, in 1838, and Richmond Rugby Club was started in the following year. It was not till 1871, however, that these and some other clubs combined to form the English Rugby Union.

Football was played at Westminster and Charterhouse Schools, as well as Rugby, before 1840. But the playgrounds of those London schools were very limited; that of Charterhouse was but a small enclosure, whilst Westminster played on the small green in Dean's Yard. Hence tackling, scrimmaging, and other points of the Rugby style of play were very unsuitable and dangerous in their nature. So they adopted rules which kept the game down to a dribbling one as its chief principle, and thus arose the Soccer game as it is now played, almost identically the same as that of Westminster and Charterhouse seventy years ago.

It was in 1880 that Sheffield probably from some "Old Boys" of these two great schools who had gone to reside or work about these—began to take up the Soccer game vigorously. Then in 1881 the "Crystal Palace" and "Civil Service" formed clubs in London, and in 1883 the Football Association came into existence, and Soccer football, or "Association," to give it its older name, was fairly set going.

Fives were originated as a game at Eton, from the practice of boys playing at knocking a soft ball against the wall of the chapel between two buttresses near the steps. The peculiar result obtained from break and spin when the ball lighted on this or that step, etc., led to certain rules being formed for the game, and so the sport developed into a well-known and properly organized game, especially after the other public schools, such as Harrow and Winchester, took it up seriously. Its origin was about the year 1846, and it shows how ball games arise, for there is an inherent human tendency to throw balls, and the growth of rules is but a matter of time.

Hockey was evolved by two clubs from the old game of knocking a ball along with a stick. The Blackheath Hockey Club played it first in 1855, with "what was called" the "Hickies" rules. Then the East Surrey Club played with slightly revised rules, and had a match with Blackheath in 1875 under their own code with so-called "Association" rules. In 1886 the two codes were amalgamated under the name of "Association," and the present rules were set permanently in force.

Plunkett, Sask.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for weakness. I had pains in the back and bearing-down pains in the abdomen and was in a general run-down condition. I could not sleep, rest or work and was quite unfit to do even slight household tasks. A friend told me about your Vegetable Compound and I in my turn truly recommend it, as my severe symptoms vanished and I am better in every way. I do my own work, look after my children and see to chickens, a cow and my garden. I also recommend it for young girls who are weak and rundown as my 16 year old daughter has taken it and is quite her own gay self again."—Mrs. FRED. WILEY, Plunkett, Sask.

Mrs. Wiley suffered mentally as well as physically, because her home and her children demanded the care and attention which she was unable to give because of her wretched health. Finally she tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and in this letter tells what it did for her.

Heads, I Win; Tails, You Lose.

The attitude of certain workers at the present time suggests the predicament in which was placed an exponent of the great American game of poker. His wife, who disapproved of gambling, insisted on taking all his winnings, the husband, of course, had to foot his own losses.

On such a basis, poker comes high. So, on the basis which certain unthinking labor men demand, does the production of any goods into which labor enters as a major factor. In the days of brisk business was emphasized the idea that the workers were vitally interested in the business—that they should participate—that at least a goodly part of the profits were theirs. Need of establishing reserves was denied. Reserves were merely a pretext to set aside certain sums which later on would be divided among the owners. Now that business has slowed down; that a falling in the value of raw materials has caused an actual loss, which in many cases will make 1921 an unprofitable year, there is heard less talk of participation in the business. This class of worker has wanted to take the winnings. He now wants the owners of the invested capital to accept the losses.

It is perhaps not surprising that this should be the attitude. The workers as a whole have not been made to see clearly. The fault for their failure to understand doubtless rests in part on the employers themselves—certainly on certain papers which, with circulation in view, have remembered that the people dearly love to hate, and have talked of the down-trodden workers. Many labor leaders of course see the true situation—realize the limitation of employers—but these labor leaders can't get too far in front of their following, or they won't have any following. Perhaps the world troubles of to-day will in the long run be good for all, bringing a truer understanding. For the present the spectacle of the workers who wanted a lion's share of the winnings, demanding that the employer assume all the losses, must simply be regarded as one of the interesting spectacles of an interesting age.—The Financial Post.

SEPTEMBER.

September is the 7th month of the old Roman year, beginning from March, as the name given it implies. By the arrangement of the Julian calendar, it retained its original name and number of days (30) while becoming the ninth month from January. There are several ecclesiastical feasts falling within this month, the principal being: Nativity of the Blessed Virgin on the 8th; Exaltation of the Holy Cross on the 14th; St. Matthew the Apostle on the 21st, and St. Michael the Archangel on the 29th. The Mohammedan New Year (Ramadan) begins on the 4th, dating from 1340 A.D. In the calendar of Charlemagne, Emperor of the Franks, September was called "harvest month," and it corresponds partly to the Fructidor and partly to the Vendemiaire periods of the First French Republic, when those who usurped power changed everything that they could humanly accomplish. September is also the month of the harvest moon, about which poets have raved and wrote. The harvest moon rises about sunset at its full lunation in September for two or three consecutive nights, and this phenomenon is known as the Harvest Moon, the name applied because the harvesters garnered in their day's labors by its light. Usually in each lunation, this rising at sunset occurs, but generally passes unnoticed, the difference in the September lunation being that it happens when the moon is at full, and therefore is all the more noticeable. The September moon is poetically described by Longfellow in Hiawatha, as "the moon of falling leaves." The morning and evening stars for September may thus be noted. Mercury will be above the horizon for a short time after sunset during the month. Venus passes from Cancer into Leo, being near the Star Regulus in the morning of the 25th, and will be seen due east between four and five o'clock. Mars is also a Morning Star, not far from Venus and near Regulus on the 27th. Jupiter and Saturn are in conjunction, being nearly in line with the earth on the 14th, when these two planets will be separated in the sky by twice the breadth of the moon. Being so near conjunction with the sun, however, these planets set soon after the sun, and their near approach is not likely to be noted by other than astronomers.

New Series of Articles.

Beginning on Thursday, the Telegram begs to announce to its numerous readers that a new and extremely interesting series of articles will be published under the caption "Our Budget from the Paper City." The writer of these articles is well known in journalism, and his articles will probably give away his identity. The first of the series describes the new "Botwood Highway," and draws a strong contrast between the method and cost of construction of this highway and that now being pushed from Badger to Hall's Bay. But, best of all, the author's prerogative, no further details can be given in this notice. The article itself furnishes all these. Look out for Thursday's Telegram.

A Case for Charity.

A most deserving case for the exemplification of that attribute which is of Divine origin, now offers itself to those who believe and profess the virtue of Charity. The fire, referred to in yesterday's Telegram by which Mr. Bruce Wyatt of Alexander Bay was rendered both homeless and destitute, offers an opportunity for the practice of the "greatest of the three." Mr. Wyatt lost everything he possessed, and with a wife and seven children to look after, with the possessions of a lifetime swept away almost in a moment, and no possibility of earning anything at present, his case is one of the most deserving. On the day of the fire the whole family were up the river berry-picking, in that way earning enough to keep going, and when they returned, it must have been a tremendous shock to find their homestead in ruins, every vestige of house, furniture and wearing apparel having been burnt up. This is a case for instant relief. Father, mother and seven children with nothing, excepting that in which they stand. The Telegram is perfectly willing to accept donations in aid of Mr. Wyatt, and requests that the Daily News and Advocates open their columns to this appeal and also receive any contributions that may be sent to their offices.

Police Attention Required.

It is becoming more than ever noticeable of late that certain motorists are generally careless as to whether they have tail lights burning or not—generally not. This neglect should not escape the notice of the police, particularly on Water Street, where cars rush up and down in the night-time driven at reckless speed, to the imminent danger of those who have to get about their business on "shank's mare."

Bp. Feild Appointment.

Miss M. E. Joyner, M.A. Honours and Cambridge Teacher's Certificate, has been appointed to the Staff of Bishop Feild College. Miss Joyner has been for the last three years assistant Classical Mistress at George Watson's College, Edinburgh, a school of 1000 girls. During the war she filled the post of classical master at a large boys' school at Greenock, and previous to this appointment was classical mistress at St. Columba's School, Kilmacool. A First Class Honours Graduate and University Medalist of St. Andrew's, Miss Joyner comes with a high record of classical scholarship, and considerable reputation as a mathematician.

A Painful Accident.

GIRL KNOCKED DOWN BY CART. A girl was knocked down on Springdale Street yesterday afternoon by a lumber cart. Beyond suffering a severe shaking and some painful bruises she was unhurt. At the time of the accident the dray was coming around the corner from Water Street at a fairly fast rate and the girl was hit by the shaft before the driver could slacken speed. The cart was stopped, however, in time to prevent the victim of the accident from receiving any serious injuries.

Takes Charge of Blind School.

Mr. S. R. Hussey, a native of Clarke's Beach, and since a pupil of and teacher at the Halifax School for the Blind, has recently been appointed Principal of the School of the Montreal Association for the Blind. He will have charge of the training of all the English-speaking blind in the Province of Quebec.

Child Drowned at Placentia.

Inspector General Hutchings received the following message yesterday from Head Constable Kent of Placentia:—"I beg leave to inform you that Bride Collins, the 11 year old daughter of Peter Collins of this place was drowned here this afternoon. John T. Murphy, his wife, four children and his servant girl with Bride Collins, eight in all, left their side to go to Mount Pleasant in a small boat. The tide was running down strong at the time. They had a sail on the boat and allowed her to drift across a large boat moored at Murphy's wharf. The small boat turned bottom up and they all got in the water. The ferry boat was on this side at the time and went to their rescue or they would all have been drowned. The body has not yet been recovered."

Caplin Bay Garden Party

The Garden Party at Caplin Bay held last Sunday afternoon proved very successful. Many residents of the nearby sections attended as well as a large number of people from the city who went out by excursion train. Delicious teas were served by the ladies of the Parish and the patrons were well pleased. Rev. Fr. Maher and his energetic committee are to be congratulated on the success attained.

General Holiday.

To-morrow (Wednesday) being a whole holiday, the Telegram will not be published.

Bell Leaves Sunday.

MANAGER FOR RUNNERS TO BE SELECTED. At last night's meeting of the amateur Athletic Association, called to discuss matters in connection with the Halifax trip, it was decided that Jack Bell and his trainer and manager, A. Harvey Thomas, should leave by Sunday's express. This will permit our 10 mile to get accustomed to the climate of the Maritime City. The Halifax Herald and Evening Mail Marathon takes place on October 3rd, but there will be no Carnival week, this season, hence Butler, Phelan and Skirving will be leaving on the 15th for Halifax, where they will compete in the Wanderers' Sports which take place on the 24th inst. The team will wear a special uniform of black and white, the Terra Nova colours, which will have a suitable monogram. A manager for the running team will be selected by the Executive during the week. The financing of the trip will be in the vicinity of $1,000, and with the receipts of the sports, football and cricket matches and the proceeds of a sweep which is now on the market, this sum is in sight. The thanks of the Association was tendered to L.A. Coak's R. P. Goodridge, who very kindly placed the C.L.B. Armoury at the disposal of the teams in order to assist them whilst in training. Also the employers of the young men concerned, who have assisted in every way, by allowing them the necessary holiday in order to represent Newfoundland in the New Scottish capital.

Police Court.

There was very little doing at the Police Court this morning. A drunk and disorderly who entered a shop and assaulted the owner was fined $1 or 7 days. A drunk who had spent the night in the cells was discharged. A number of civil cases were disposed of.

Motorist Collides With Pony Carriage.

This is the second time Mr. J. J. Whelan, Grocer, Colonial Street, has met with mishap at the hands of joy riders. On Saturday night, at 8.45, Mr. Whelan's pony and carriage was standing in front of his shop with full lights on, waiting to deliver parcels, a motor car (with yellow wheels and no tail light on) came over Gower Street at a terrific speed and turned into Colonial Street without sounding the horn or slackening up, and crashed into the carriage splitting the side of the vehicle. In the carriage Mr. Whelan's own boy and another were seated. The impact threw these boys down. The driver of the car said, "Why in the Hell don't you get out of the way," and rushed up Colonial Street, and whilst opposite Mr. M. F. Caul's store switched on his tail light, went on his way and never waited to ascertain the amount of damage. If the driver doesn't come forward to make good, he will be taught a lesson that he won't quickly forget, as his number is known. This speeding, particularly in this section at night is becoming a nuisance to the public, and should be dealt with severely by the authorities.—Com.

Coastal Boats.

Soldiers' Drives.

SUBBURY. Owing to the uncertainty of the weather no definite appointments will be made for this month. Will the following car owners kindly choose any suitable convenient to them during the month for the drive they have promised Subbury patients during September? Mr. Benjamin Bowring. Mr. Edgar Bowring. Mr. E. R. Clouston. Mr. C. Q.N. Conroy. Hon. Tasker Cook. Lady Crosbie. Mr. John Leeson. Mr. Simon Lewis. Mr. Harold Mitchell. Mr. Joseph Ouerbridge. Mr. C. C. Pratt. Hon. M. G. Winter.

McMurdo's Store News.

TUESDAY, Sept. 6. Gibson's Gout and Rheumatic Mixture has a very strong hold on the British public as a remedy not only for gout, rheumatism, rheumatic gout and kindred ailments, but also for so-called troubles, and is both safe and effectual against all these complaints, and one that is highly esteemed. Price $2.20 a bottle. Many people, at the approach of colder weather, suffer from a certain bronchial irritation; oh, nothing serious, perhaps, but none the less annoying and unpleasant. For these persons, we suggest a box of McMurdo's mentholated Bronchial Tablets, and their occasional use especially morning and evening, 35 cents a box.

To-Morrow's Football.

The following is the line-up in the football game arranged between the City and the War Veterans to-morrow night: City.—Goal, Smith; backs, L. Kavanagh, E. Kavanagh; halves, Spratt, Drover, W. Hart; forwards, Jerritt, Flynn, Halley, Joliffe, Coultas. Veterans.—Goal, Noseworthy; backs, Charehill, Tait; halves, Christopher, Galay, Haliday; forwards, Callahan, Hunt, MacKinn, Madigan, Young. From all appearances the game is going to be an excellent one.

Funeral of Hon. John Browning.

The funeral of the late Hon. John Browning took place from his residence "Victoria," King's Bridge Road, at 3 p.m. to-day. Interment was at the General Protestant Cemetery. The funeral cortege was one of the largest ever seen in St. John's and was under the direction of Mr. Andrew Carnell. It was attended by members of both branches of the Legislature, St. Andrew's Society, employees of the firm of G. Browning & Co., and many others. The service at the graveside was conducted by Bishop White, assisted by Rev. Dr. Bolt and Rev. C. A. Moulton. The committal was read by the Bishop, who also pronounced the Benediction.

Big Ball To-Morrow.

LYONS AND CUBS IN MORAL COMBAT. To-morrow, Wednesday, being a whole holiday, the Baseball League has decided to play the three unplayed games of the third and final round of the baseball series. In the morning at 10.30 sharp the Red Lions and C.E.I. will contest, while the afternoon will consist of a double-header the C.E.I. facing the Irish clan at 2, whilst the game of the season as a most fitting wind-up to the series will see the Lions face the Cubs immediately after. There will be no apparent changes in any of the line-ups over previous games, only that the Red Lions are trying out two new men in the place of Robertson and Munn, who are out of town. Messrs. Cheesman and Harnett, with the assistance of Mr. J. H. Fulmore will control all three games while Messrs. Skinner and Morner will be the chief scorers.

Senef's Report.

The Minister of Shipping has received the following report from the captain of S. S. Senef regarding the Northern Labrador: "Was north to Ryan's Bay. About 100 schooners are fishing north of Hopedale. Average per schooner 300, or a total of 30,000 qts. The best fishing has been done at Ramah, Dave's Island, Perry's Inlet and Parnyards. At other places, only for the weather the past two days, the fishing has been exceptionally good. Yesterday there was a storm from N.W. with snow showers, but if weather continues fine the voyage will be an average one.

McMurdo's Store News.

TUESDAY, Sept. 6. Gibson's Gout and Rheumatic Mixture has a very strong hold on the British public as a remedy not only for gout, rheumatism, rheumatic gout and kindred ailments, but also for so-called troubles, and is both safe and effectual against all these complaints, and one that is highly esteemed. Price $2.20 a bottle. Many people, at the approach of colder weather, suffer from a certain bronchial irritation; oh, nothing serious, perhaps, but none the less annoying and unpleasant. For these persons, we suggest a box of McMurdo's mentholated Bronchial Tablets, and their occasional use especially morning and evening, 35 cents a box.

To-Morrow's Football.

The following is the line-up in the football game arranged between the City and the War Veterans to-morrow night: City.—Goal, Smith; backs, L. Kavanagh, E. Kavanagh; halves, Spratt, Drover, W. From all appearances the game is going to be an excellent one.

Youth and Health. Young people in the first flush of life are apt to pay little attention to their health. This was evidenced during the war when so many young men apparently strong and healthy were found unfit for military duty. It is your paramount duty to take care of your spine so that you may not only enjoy health but will also be in a condition that you can do as much good in the world as possible. A young man who is continually sick or a young woman who complains of ill health all the time should be the exception and not the rule. On the other hand you may be apparently healthy now and yet your spine may be far from normal. You may have some vertebral subluxation (displacement of the small bones) which will in the future cause you serious trouble. These subluxations cause nerve pressure, thus preventing the vital force from flowing uninterruptedly to the various organs. The result is disease in that organ which is not supplied with its full quota of vital force. The Chiropractor locates the subluxated vertebrae with his bare hands, adjusts it to its normal position. The pressure on the nerve is lifted, the vital force again flows uninterruptedly to the various organs and health is the result. 99 per cent. of the human race have more or less subluxations, some so slight that they are not apparent, except to the competent Chiropractor. Remember, an adjustment in time saves ninety-nine. You will thus ward off serious trouble in the future, will enjoy health and be able to get the best possible out of life. Dr. W. H. Turner will have to appear when called upon, before Magistrate Penney of Carbonear who conducted the enquiry into the case.

The First Reply.

Editor Evening Telegram.
Dear Sir,—I agree with your correspondent B.F.V. in last night's paper that many of the necessities of life are still very high, but think he has gone a little out of his way to drag the Undertakers in as still adhering to war prices. If the Undertaker was forced to advance the cost of burials during that period, he was a victim of circumstances like all others, over which he had no control, but if your correspondent, over his own name, can prove any undue overcharging or profiteering on the part of the Undertaker, he deserves to be called names as well as the other fellow. Yet I doubt it very much. The Undertaker is not the hard-hearted money grabber that some people think he is. If I know the bunch, and I think I am not mistaken in them.
Thanking you in anticipation,
Yours truly,
M. W. MYRICK,
Undertaker.

A vote of thanks proposed by Mrs. Thorburn and seconded by Mrs. McKay was heartily accorded. It is hoped during the season to have the co-operation of the Drs. in advancing the aims of a club from which the community must ultimately reap much benefit. The Farce of Herring Inspection.

ANOTHER NIGGER IN THE BARREL.
It is expected that Inspector Howlett who has been in Halifax this some time past examining some shipments of split herring will be shortly leaving for home. The report in connection with his mission, should, when it becomes public, make interesting reading. So far as can be learned quite a large quantity of split herring were sold this season in Halifax subject to inspection. And at least one firm of shippers cleared some 5000 barrels under these conditions, but it appears that another Exporting Co., did not have inspection made, hence the trouble. It is well known that there was some little annoyance in Twillingate district this summer over the question of whether there was to be an inspection or not, and we learn that Inspector Coyell and assistants were sent North with instructions to inspect all split herring at a charge of 10 cents per barrel. The Customs Officers were also notified that an inspection certificate was necessary before a clearance would be issued. The Inspectors however were not very far through their work, when extra instructions were issued telling them that inspection was only necessary at the shipper's request. The original order thus being countermanded one cargo went off without inspection. The original order was however enforced again in a few days, only to be countermanded subsequently. The consequence is that a lot of herring were sent to Halifax which were not acceptable to the buyers, and when complaint was made Mr. Howlett was dispatched from here. It is said that a large number of packages were condemned, some of the barrels containing winter herring in the centres, whilst the top and bottom were filled with spring fish.

Journalism Up to Date.

On August 25th, an item appeared in the Telegram telling how a schooner ran ashore on a rock at the entrance to Catalina, as a result of the removal of the buoy which had been there as an aid to navigation. To-day our morning contemporary reprinted this item from the Halifax Herald which had copied it from the Telegram, and the Halifax paper was given full credit for it. This is up to date journalism with a vengeance.

Died Suddenly.

A message from G. B. Morley, Superintendent, received yesterday evening states that Archibald Mercer, a man of 72 years of age, who was working on the Deer Lake-Bonne Bay Road, died suddenly on Friday, supposedly from heart failure. The deceased leaves a grown up family of six and a widow. He belonged to Upper Island Cove, where the body is being sent by train.

Body Not Recovered.

Deputy Minister of Justice Summers received a message from Magistrate O'Reilly of Placentia this forenoon saying that the body of the little girl Collins, who was drowned in the Gut the previous evening, had not been recovered. Men in boats searched until dark last night and resumed again this morning without success. When the boat upset there was a very strong tide running out the Gut. The message says that recognition is due Ferryman Morris, Ryan and Purling for their skilful management in rescuing seven out of the eight occupants of the boat.

It's Better Not to Go Up Like a Rocket.

You may feel that your progress is painfully slow, that you are not winning advancement reasonably rapidly. Most of us do feel that way. It is better, however, to climb slowly and surely than to shoot up like a rocket. I know one man who pulled strings so that he manoeuvred himself in a more important position than he was capable of filling. He had enough "pull" with the boss to hold his job. Then came a change in the management. And the man was dropped! He had by this time accustomed himself and his wife and family to a rather expensive way of living. He could not afford to take any position paying much less salary. But he could not find anyone willing to employ him at anything like the amount he had received in his big job. Moreover, he was swayed by pride. He argued that if he took the kind of position he had held before he jockeyed himself into the high-salaried place, he would be written down a semi-failure. All his friends and associates would figure that he had gone backwards. The result was that this man is to-day far worse off, both financially and mentally, than he would have been had he been contented to make up by degrees on merit. We all admire men who have courage to "suckle anything." But courage must always be combined with common sense, or it becomes not courage but foolhardiness.—B. C. Forbes, in Forbes Magazine (N.Y.)

Rainbow Revelations.

An arched rainbow is a pretty sight, but it may be assumed that few of us are learned in rainbow lore. Here, then, are some interesting rainbow revelations.

To produce a rainbow there must be falling rain, bright sun, and dark clouds—the latter always opposite the sun. The sun's rays are then divided into colours by the raindrops, which act in exactly the same way as a prism, or triangular piece of glass.

The continued span of a rainbow is caused by billions of raindrops splitting the sun's rays into colours, and making a band or series of them. A double rainbow is not, as some think, the shadow or reflection of the first. Each rainbow is distinct. In one we see the sun-rays entering the raindrops at the top, and reflecting the colours to the eye from the bottom. In the second rainbow the sun's rays enter the drops at the bottom, and reflect the colours from the top. And who has noticed that the colours of the second bow are, when compared with the first or primary bow, all reversed? The cause of this is the same as that which makes the colours of the secondary bow weaker.

To get the latter there has been two reflections and two refractions—more of the last than in the case with a primary bow. The colours are, therefore, weakened. An evening rainbow in the east is a sign of fine weather. The rainclouds, which generally come to us on west and south west winds, are passing away.

A great bargain in Australian Wool Blankets is now offered at BISHOP'S for only five-sixty a pair.

Rouged Knees!

The so-called "smart set" women of America now paint and powder their knees!
Mr. Sidney Brooks, manager of the beauty parlour at the Waldorf-Astoria Hotel, has been revealing intimate secrets of the fair sex.

His explanation of the craze for powdering the knees is that it is due to the fact that women, besides shortening their skirts, are lowering their hose to a point below the knee. "As skirts continued to grow shorter," he said, "it became apparent that with the disclosures that might result, the same attention should be paid to the knees as to the face. Rouged knees are the result of this feminine logic."

"The idea is to get just the faintest pink effect produced by a coating of rice powder mingled with a slight touch of rouge on the kneecap."
Mr. Brooks also calls attention to the sudden array of girlish-looking women with white hair as another device for attracting male attention.

LANTIC SUGAR

Pure Cane Granu-
lated White Sugar

Grocers who check their costs carefully are unanimous in saying that retelling sugar out of a barrel costs them in bags, twine, waste and overhead expense close to, if not more than, 1 cent per pound. Have you ever figured it?

Figuring your profit on retelling sugar out of a barrel is guesswork when you attempt to reckon your actual profit. Your loss through waste of an ounce here and there is in itself considerable on a year's business. Think it over.

When you retail Lantic Sugar in 2 lb. and 5 lb. packages you don't have to guess at your profit. The difference between the price you pay and the price you sell at is actual profit. The profit may be only 1 cent, but it's real profit. You don't have to guess at it. You know it.

Famous Attempt to Cross Atlantic Recalled.

New York. (Associated Press)—Flight of the ZR-2 recalls the various attempts made to cross the Atlantic, beginning with the voyage of Columbus in 1492 and culminating in the successful flight of the R-34 in July two years ago. The latter has been called the apex of man's four centuries of struggle to master the elements and mysteries of ocean and air.

Eleven years ago, in September 1910, the ocean greyhound, Mauretania, steamed from Southampton, England, to New York in four days ten hours and 41 minutes, a sea record that has never been broken. On June 14, 1919, Captain John Alcock and Whitten Brown, British aviators, started from St. John's, Newfoundland, in a Vickers-Vimy biplane and flew across the Atlantic, 1,900 miles on that route, landing at Clifden, Ireland, the next day after 16 hours and 12 minutes in the air. Alcock was killed in an air mishap the following December in France. The R-34's time was 108 hours and 12 minutes. Columbus was 79 days in reaching San Salvador from Palos, Spain.

For more than 300 years, dating from the time Columbus, ocean navigation made little progress. The same method of propulsion that drove the Pinta, Nina and Santa Maria across "the great and unknown deep," sail power, was in universal use until 1819 when the American steamship Savannah, propelled by steam, demonstrated a new mode of travel between Europe and America.

It was just 100 years after the sailing of the Savannah, that the three successful air flights over the wide expanse of the Atlantic were achieved, one in a hydroplane, another in a biplane and, finally, the third in a dirigible balloon. The hydroplane, known as the NC-4, one of four United States naval machines, in charge of Lieutenant Commander Albert C. Read, left Trepassey, Newfoundland, on May 16, 1919, and reached Horta in the Azores, in 15 hours and 18 minutes, having traversed the 1,200 miles at an average speed of 78.4 knots. Later it flew to Portugal.

Prior to the three successful flights alluded to, previous attempts had been made to negotiate "the big pond" through the air. The earliest of these was made by Walter Wellman, American journalist and explorer and Melvin Vaniman, on October 15, 1910, in a dirigible balloon called the "America." They started out from Atlantic City, N.J., with a crew of four men, including an Englishman, an Australian, and two Americans. Their objective was any point on the coast of England, Ireland or France to which the wind might carry them.

After being three days and nights in the air, sailing 1,010 miles and tossed about by adverse winds, the party was picked up by the steamship Trent, 375 miles east of Cape Hatteras, half way between New York and Bermuda. The dirigible was abandoned at sea.

Harry G. Hawker, a British aviator, and Lieutenant Commander Mackenzie Grieve of the British navy, in a heavier-than-air machine started from St. John's, Newfoundland, on May 18, 1919 on a non-stop flight to Ireland. The attempt was generally regarded as the most daring of them all up to that time. Hawker and Grieve, after many hours of peril in the air and struggling against stormy conditions, were rescued in mid-ocean by the Danish steamship Mary on May 19. Hawker was killed on July 12, 1921, when the gasoline tank on his machine exploded while he was making a landing at Hendon, England, flying field.

All these modern efforts to conquer the Atlantic aloft, as well as below, stand out in striking contrast to the slow progress made in ocean navigation during the preceding 427 years. The era of sails had continued without particular improvement from the days of Columbus until 1819, when the Savannah, a vessel of 350 tons, with a length of 100 feet, crossed from Savannah, Ga., to Liverpool in 25 days. Her engines, however, were purely auxiliary; she was equipped with full sail power and when the wind was fair or the sea too rough for steaming, the paddle wheels were unrigged and hauled to the deck.

The first real transatlantic voyages by steam power were undertaken by the steamships Sirius and Great Western. The Sirius left England on April 4, 1838, and was followed, four days later, by the Great Western. They arrived in New York harbor within 24 hours of each other, the Sirius completing the trip in 18 days and the Great Western in fourteen.

The century that followed the voyage of the Savannah, however, produced ocean liners as broad as the little pioneer was long. The Leythian, for instance, one of the largest of modern steamships, is 820 feet long, 100 feet broad and has a registered tonnage of 54,282.

The Portugal Cove Garden Party.

ON WEDNESDAY.

The friends and patrons of the R. C. Church at Portugal Cove, are reminded that the Annual Garden Party takes place there on Wednesday afternoon, the 7th Sept. All who visit the old historic spot, will see with pleasure that by means of their help within the past few years a beautiful new church has replaced the old church. Last year, an High Altar of rare design and workmanship was erected. There is yet much to be done, as new seats, and heating system are needed. We would therefore ask all friends to attend the Garden Party and thus help the Priest and good people of the Cove in their efforts.

Appearances Are Deceitful.

It is unfair to condemn the man who appears to be a fool. He may turn out to be a genius. Take Knut Hamable to find a publisher. He drifted sun. Even as a youngster, he was unfrom job to job. In Norway he tried to become a shoemaker and in the United States he was a farm hand, a worker in a logging camp, a coal heaver, a road mender, a school teacher, a surveyor's assistant, and in Chicago he was a street car conductor. He was such a poor conductor, however, that he was fired. It seemed to be impossible for him to remember the Nobel prize. The young fellow who knew him then thought he was little more than a fool.

To-day, however, his books are translated into half a dozen languages or more, and last year he was awarded the Nobel prize. The young fellow who looks like a fool to you may turn out to be a genius.

It is also true that the young fellow who appears to be a genius may turn out to be a fool.

An Innocent Thief.

The celebration of the centenary of the birth of Flaubert, the great French writer, author of "Madame Bovary" and "Salambo," will take place on December 13th next.

Anstole Frances, the greatest living French writer, tells an amusing story of Flaubert.

A beautiful young actress set her heart upon winning the poetry prize on one occasion she forgot to compose from the Academie Francaise, and, year after year, she succeeded. But her poem until the day upon which it was due to be sent.

In despair she appealed to Flaubert to write two hundred lines on "Immortality" before midnight, and she locked him in her library to complete the task.

At 11:30 he had not written a line; then, bestirring himself, he took down Lamartine's "Harmonies" from a shelf and copied out the necessary number of verses.

Unaware of their authorship, the lines were submitted by the actress to the Academie, which awarded her the prize and printed Lamartine's verses over the signature of Louise Collet.

It was a capital joke against the "Immortals," but Flaubert never confessed his part in it until long afterwards.

Murray-Mogridge Mines

Accomplishing Excellent Results From Development Work—Good Values Expected in Yellu—Increasing Interest in Gold Issues $18-250.

For some time interest in the market for the shares of gold mining companies has been steadily increasing and from the showing that these issues are making it is apparent that a substantial gain in market value is about to be recorded.

During the period of industrial depression with the resultant neglect of securities in general, the stocks of gold mining companies were entirely overlooked as the true situation underlying these issues were ignored. It was not generally remembered that every step in the process of definition of conditions was a benefit to those companies, as it aided in bringing about lower operating costs in the way of cheaper material used in mining operation and cheaper and more efficient labor.

Gold is a staple commodity, commanding a fixed price and a market for every ounce that can be produced. In view of all these facts, it is not surprising that gold mining stocks should be exhibiting market strength at this time. As a matter of fact, it is surprising that these issues did not begin to show greater activity and sell at higher levels long before this, but, nevertheless, the present activity presages higher levels for gold stocks, and it would seem to be good judgment to give these issues careful consideration at this time.

In the group there are one or two which appear to offer greater possibilities in the way of market profits than others, and the most prominent issue is, undoubtedly, the stock of the Murray-Mogridge Mines, Limited, which is showing considerable strength on the outside market at its present price of 48 cents bid, 50 cents asked.

This company was organized under the laws of Ontario in 1919 and took over the properties of the Murray-Mogridge Mining Company located in the great gold producing area, about 50 miles southeast of the famous Porcupine camp and nine miles northwest of the Kirkland Lake Camp. These properties consist of approximately 650 acres on which, up to the present time, five distinct vein systems have been discovered. The development work on the property to date consists of thousands of feet of surface trenching, and all the mine veins exposed carry good values. Two shafts have been sunk at a distance of 3,600 feet apart, one of which is down to a depth of 50 feet and the other of 235 feet.

From this latter shaft, known as "No. 2," 2,400 feet of drifting and exploring has been accomplished, showing satisfactory results. In one drift where a fault zone appears to the face of the south drift the assays show an average of $13.50 of gold per ton for over a width of 35 inches and from the fault to the face of the north drift an average of $12.50 a ton for a width of 53 inches.

From reports of engineers who have examined the property it is seen that the veins carry to considerable depth.

The company is well managed and its officers and directors include some of the most prominent men of the highest repute in Canada. The president of the company is Gordon Grant, vice-president, L. E. Col. G. F. McFarland, and A. E. Marks, secretary and treasurer. The Hon. F. B. Carvell, chairman Dominion of Canada Railway Board; William L. Banfield, vice-president, W. H. Banfield & Sons, Ltd.; Douglas Murray, D. L. Grant, J. R. Starr, W. W. Sloan and J. L. MacDowell are on the board of directors.

The stock in the last year has ranged between 45 cents and 63 cents a share, while in the past two years its high price has been 77 cents and its low level 45 cents.

In view of the development work and excellent results now being realized and the increasing interest in gold mining stocks, the shares of Murray-Mogridge Mines, Limited, at current levels offer speculative possibilities of an unusual sort.

For shares and further information investors will please communicate with Murray-Mogridge Mines, Box 55, West, P. O. City.

Juvenile Offenders.

SENTENCED TO PENITENTIARY.

James Furlong, aged 10 years, and Arthur Young, arrived by yesterday's express from St. George's in the custody of Police Sergeant Goodland. They will serve sentences of 3 months and 6 months respectively for burglary. Furlong, despite his tender years, is an incorrigible and specializes in the burning of barns and hay ricks. The present charge against him is of breaking into the Royal Bank at Port au Port. Young was sentenced for breaking into the Log Cabin at Stephenville. A man who was sentenced to 6 months for larceny at Grand Falls, arrived yesterday in the custody of Constable Martin of that town.

Women's Secret Society.

American women now have their own secret society. The members seem to aim at rivaling Freemasonry. "The Daughters of the Nile" is the name of the order. The membership is limited strictly to women, and Mrs. Harding, the wife of the President, is claimed as one of the latest initiates.

The organization is really the counterpart for women of the Order of the Mystic Shrine, known only in America and Canada, of which President Harding is a member.

The presiding officer is known as the Supreme Queen, and her subordinate is called Princess Royal, Princess Thru, Princess Sadoura, Princess Marshal, Princess Recorder, Princess Banker, and Princess Chaplain.

There are various "Ladies in Waiting," each of whom is known as a "Princess," the Lady of the Keys, the Lady of the Gates, and Junior Past Queen.

Spurgeon and the Madman.

"On three occasions," writes the Rev. W. Y. Fullerton, in his biography of the great Nonconformist minister, "Mr. Spurgeon had interviews with madmen under dangerous conditions. One entered the vestry at the Tabernacle, shut the door, and declared that he had come to cut Mr. Spurgeon's throat. 'I would not do that,' said Spurgeon. 'See what a mess it would make on the carpet.'" "Oh, I never thought of that!" said the madman, who eventually was led quietly out of the room.

"The second occasion was when he was lying ill at the Hotel des Anglaises at Mentone. He had persuaded his friends to go for a walk. Scarcely had they left when a man, evidently mad, rushed in and said, 'I want you to save my soul.' With remarkable presence of mind, Spurgeon told him to kneel down by the bed, and he prayed as best he could. Then he told the man to get away and return in half an hour. It turned out that he had eluded the vigilance of his keepers. As soon as he had gone the doctors and servants were summoned, but he had stabbed someone in the street before he could be overtaken.

"On another occasion Spurgeon happened to be in the entrance hall when someone knocked loudly at the door. He opened it himself. A man with a huge stick rushed in, slammed the door, and stood with his back against it, declaring that he had come to kill Mr. Spurgeon. The great thing was to get rid of him, so Spurgeon said, 'You must mean my brother; his name is Spurgeon.'

"Ah," said the man, 'It is the man who makes jokes I mean to kill.' 'Then you must mean my brother. He makes jokes,' said Spurgeon.

"The unwelcome visitor drew himself up and said, 'No, I believe you are the man,' and then he asked Spurgeon whether he knew a certain asylum. 'That's where I live, and it takes two men to hold me. Are you strong?'

"Yes," said Spurgeon. 'You don't know how strong I am. Give me that stick.'

"Thoroughly cowed, the man obeyed, and Spurgeon, opening the door, told him that if he was not out of the house in less than a minute he would break every bone in his body. The man fled, and as a result of information given to the police he was soon under restraint."

Flying Torpedoes.

Experiments, throwing a new light on the problems of aerial war, are reported as having taken place with great secrecy near Paris.

Small heavier-than-air machines, really torpedoes with wings, are sent up into the air under their own power, and entirely pilotless, and are then controlled by wireless telegraphy.

Machines are flown for considerable distances and made to carry out manoeuvres while under wireless direction from the ground. A further development contemplated is for a method to be perfected by means of which a pilot in an aeroplane can control the movements of one of these air torpedoes.

This would mean that after a torpedo had been launched and controlled up to a certain height by the land station, its direction would be taken over by a pilot in a special aeroplane, who would send it on ahead until he had guided it to its target, he himself remaining at some distance.

Rules for Foretelling the Weather.

What Barometric Changes and Shifting of the Wind Indicate Under Certain Conditions.

The following rules are adapted for use with aneroid barometers:—

A Rising Barometer.—A rapid rise indicates unsettled weather.

A gradual rise indicates settled weather.

A rise with dry air and cold increasing in summer, indicates wind from the northward; and if rain has fallen, better weather may be expected.

A rise with moist air and low temperature indicates wind and rain from the northward.

A rise with southerly wind indicates fine weather.

A Steady Barometer.—With dry air and seasonable temperature, indicates a continuance of very fine weather.

A Falling Barometer.—A rapid fall indicates stormy weather.

A rapid fall with westerly winds indicates stormy weather from the northward.

A fall with a northerly wind indicates storm, with rain and hail in summer and snow in winter.

A fall with increased moisture in the air, and the heat increasing, indicates wind and rain from the southward.

A fall with dry air and cold increasing indicates wind and rain from the southward.

A fall with dry air and cold increasing in winter indicates snow.

A fall after very calm and warm weather indicates rain with squally weather.

The barometer rises for northern wind, including from north-west-by-north to the eastward, for dry, or less wet weather, for less wind, or for more than one of these changes, except on a few occasions, when rain, hail or snow comes from the northward with strong wind.

The barometer falls for southerly wind, including from southeast-by-south to the westward, for wet weather, for stronger wind, or for more than any of these changes, except on a few occasions, when moderate wind, with rain or snow, comes from the northward.

Weather Indications.

If the wind "howls" that is, shifts around with the sun, expect better weather. If the wind "backs," that is, shifts around against the sun, be fairly sure of worse weather.

When objects at a distance can be seen very clearly, look for a hard blow by the following night or day.

A "mackerel back" sky, or "mares' tails," are the forerunners of a blow, several hours away.

Flying scud seen in the upper air going in a different direction from the surface wind betokens a violent change of direction. Flying scud on the surface of the clouds generally brings a strong breeze at once.

Small clouds, distinctly separated, appearing in the northwest sky in the evening during the summer season, almost invariably precede a fine day.

A rainbow in the morning means bad weather; and in the evening good weather. A ring around the moon generally precedes wet weather; so do, in the summer, exceedingly bright stars.

A north-east wind, in the fall months, starting about or a little after sunrise, generally means a gale by the middle of the forenoon.

An easterly wind in the winter, followed by a "mell" or fog, is almost surely the precursor of a morning westerly gale, sudden and violent.

When the sun is seen through, or just about a thickness that is neither cloud or fog, yet denies one a sight of the horizon, and may be seen in color from gay to blueblack, it is time to seek the nearest shelter. So it is when an indescribable low-roaring noise can be heard all over the water, with no apparent cause; this is at times called "the birth pang of the storm."

All or any signs may fall. I have steered seaward in a dense fog through occasional rifts in which could be seen overhead a ragged, brown scud flying with dreadful rapidity from the south-east, and, though we got torrents of rain, not even an offshoot from the blow above penetrated to the calm on the surface.

A very dark red sky in the morning means bad weather and a gray morning sky, fine weather.

A rolling line of cloud across the sky is bringing a hard squall and so is a very large black cloud, particularly if the darkness of the cloud fades away into a grayness that reaches downward toward the earth.

Rain or snow falling in the distance can always be told by the softer gray below the clouds that reaches toward the earth in either perpendicular or in slanting lines.

With the wind anywhere from the eastward, a fine drizzle is generally the beginning of a hard storm.

If the sun takes its first look at you from under clouds that are low on the horizon, the day is apt to be fair; but if from over some clouds, bad weather is apt to follow.

Soft clouds indicate soft, easy weather, and sharp, well defined clouds, with decided coloring, hard weather. But, when you see little clouds, red, purple, green or copper colored, floating around under large heavy cloud-masses, run for shelter.—Canadian Motor Post.

The Pioneers.

BILL MOGRIDGE OF NEWFOUNDLAND.

In my wanderings round the globe many and varied are the scenes and types of men that have met my gaze or crossed my path, and which remain stamped upon my mind as it were ever occurring and recurring like the prints upon a movie film. Those which seem most indelibly stamped are the prints of this Western Continent the home perhaps of races lost in antiquity as witness the ruined temples on the borders of Titicaca, the abode of the Red man, Aztecs, and the Incas of Peru which external nature perhaps tortured into progress through countless ages of misery and privation from the lowest depths of human existence into the primitive state of civilization which met the gaze of the Spanish pioneers four hundred years or so ago. 'Tis a far cry to Columbus or Amerigo, it would seem to those of to-day, but looked at in its true perspective in the lapse of time, 'tis but a fleeting moment, and in that fleeting moment what changes have taken place. Here a single night with mushroom growth, roads and railway tracks have crept from North to South and East to West like snakes across a map, and its population from an embryonic unit of early pioneers and a continuous stream of cosmopolitan additions into one of the leading races of to-day. From a topographical point of view the Western Hemisphere or American continent is a mighty nation, and a nation where its mighty rivers and great falls, its stupendous mountains, its almost never ending prairies, its gigantic forests, its leagues of snow and ice and sea-like lakes all contribute in the scheme of things where everything seems to have been transmuted on a mighty scale to make for harmony in the mighty whole. Civilization they say is the product of the soil on which it is nurtured. Such a soil and such an environment was therefore bound to produce a mighty people, and the people are there in response to nature's plan and law. One of the greatest wonders on the American Continent that the great alchemist seems not to have overlooked is the provision of means for the sustenance in all its forms of a mighty people. The means are here in abundance especially in Canada from every conceivable point of view, not the least of which are the undreamt of resources in mineral wealth, which this land seems to possess, and which if taken in conjunction with other aspects of nature's wealth so far to give this country the prospect of becoming one of the richest the world has ever known. The average person even in Canada seems to have little knowledge of the colossal wealth which lies hidden in the bosom of her mysterious north, hiding as it were by instinct one would almost imagine from the searching gaze, the prying fingers, and seductive means of the greedy tyrant man for her possession. When one thinks of the great gold producing areas of Northern Ontario such as the Porcupine and Kirkland Lake, the silver of Cobalt, the lead, copper, nickel, iron, asbestos and other commodities which this land is capable of yielding one gets a glimpse of the enormous wealth contained within the boundaries of a single province of this great nation, and which if properly developed ought to lift its people head and shoulders above the shackles of any nation, and free it from debt for all time. During my sojourn here not the least interesting part of my time has been spent in the company of men whom I shall never forget, men of the long long trail, men of the frozen North, men with big hearts and generous souls, men whose minds have broadened and expanded, and whose sense of justice and tolerance and whole outlook on life has been clarified by their constant communion with nature in her most naked form, uncorrupted, red in tooth and clay ready to wage battle with the intruder, a contest from which those only emerge who are equipped with brain and muscle to survive the struggle. Such of these men as I have met are men with a code of honour that would do credit to any race, and make them worthy citizens in any land. The first individual of this particular type who came across my path was a man who went to Alaska in the big rush when a boy of fourteen, where he spent twelve years of his life and made good before returning. He is a big man with a kindly generous heart, and a tolerant disposition, a typical pioneer, a man who like poor Gelert could be a lamb at home and a lion in the chasm, a man who if occasion demanded could abide his time like the long Arctic night. Many pleasant hours have I spent in the company of this man whose wealth of knowledge, and description of life in the frozen north which he relates with a child-like simplicity, sounds like a fairy tale at times. Another interesting and arresting personality with whom I have had occasion to spend much time of late is "Bill Mogridge" a pioneer and prospector also from the wilds. Bill is the descendant of a Devonshire family from the old country who landed in Newfoundland three generations ago, where they have remained ever since as true and loyal citizens. (So Bill says) with the exception of the formidable William, True to the "God of his Fathers" Bill had inherited the blood of the pioneer, and was destined by nature to play his own particular part. He is another of creations gentlemen, as Hamlet would say "Native and to the manner born." In 1906 his avocative tendency took possession of him, the call of the wild went forth like a wireless S.O.S. across the foam. Bill picked up the message, and ventured forth a blind messenger of fate to the great unknown. His little farm home at St. John's he left behind, and proverbially with his bundle on his shoulder in company with Dr. Steward, V.S., he experienced his first sea voyage over to Cape Breton with his eye fixed straight on Cobalt. Bill is a man with a genial personality, a sweet and lovable disposition, is religiously inclined, a good biblical scholar, and speaks the truth above all things. Fifteen years of this mans life have been spent in the bush and wilds of Northern Canada, during which time he has played almost every part destined to the lot of the persistent pioneer or prospector. He has worked on railroad tracks, and cleared bush, he has prospected for gold and silver, nickel and copper or anything else that might come his way. Upon one occasion he filed the post of professional cook to a camp of Frenchmen, the Bachmalian chef of whom soon got rid of him on the pretext "that the grave-yard was only of certain dimensions." Upon another occasion in the vicinity of Lake Beauty he was lost for four days, and when he at last arrived at a strangers cabin he had his pockets full of mushrooms, and frogs legs for food. The result of this was that his new-found friends christened him Froggy, and for quite a long time continued to greet him with "Froggy, how's the mushrooms." Misfortune seemed to dog the steps of poor Bill and ended in his having his canoe swamped, an accident in which he lost all his belongings, and forced him to live on a diet of fish for a period of eight days. In 1911 he was in the Porcupine district during the big forest fire, a conflagration which cost eighty seven lives, devastated the country for miles around, and burnt out practically every mining plant in the vicinity. Here Bill saw an opportunity to put his business ability to the test, and in conjunction with Mrs. Mogridge opened up a Cafe where they fed 750 people who had suffered by the fire. Finally after many years of hardship and toil, in company with Mr. T. W. Powell, and Mr. H. Murray a prospector of very wide experience, he finally drifted into the Kirkland Lake district, and upon the end of Wolf Lake struck what he considers is one of the richest gold veins in Northern Ontario. From 1913 to 1917 they stuck to their claim with grim tenacity, performing the allotted tasks necessary to such a holding, and at one time for a period of three months hunted and lived on rabbit three meals a day rather than leave their prize behind. In 1917 the property was sold to Mr. C. E. Jury of Toronto, a mining expert of some experience, who in company with a few more Canadian gentlemen of repute formed a company to develop the property as a gold mine under the name

MILK which adds richness and flavor to all your cooking

MANY good cooks use Carnation Milk. Not only because it is the most convenient form of milk supply, but also because it improves their cooking.

With Carnation Milk in the house you always have milk handy whenever you "take a fancy" to cook something extra nice—to add milk to sauces or soups—or to make a dessert when guests call unexpectedly.

Once you try Carnation Milk, you will prefer it for all your cooking simply because it adds a welcome new deliciousness and pleasing flavor to everything you cook.

And its richness means extra nourishment, too

Carnation Milk comes to you so rich that for cooking, you must add water, at least an equal quantity.

Part of the water has been taken out—by evaporation. But nothing else!

It keeps because it is sealed fresh, in new air-tight containers and because it is sterilized.

Not a particle of preservative or sugar is added.

Carnation Milk is simply fresh cow's milk—pure, rich, "whole" milk—reduced to the consistency of cream. You can whip it. (Chill it first, of course.)

Use this convenient milk in every way you use ordinary milk. Buy it next time you order groceries—your grocer is the Carnation Milkman. Ask for three or four cans, tall (16 oz.) size, or a case of 48 cans.

Made in Canada by CARNATION MILK PRODUCTS COMPANY, LIMITED, Aylmer, Ontario. Condensed at Aylmer and Springfield, Ont.

MY COLUMN

(By the CUB-EDITOR.) MY SECOND NOVEL.

Coming to the immense appreciation of my previous attempt at story writing and in response to urgent appeals of readers, I have decided to write another novel on similar lines to my first.

THE STOLEN BRIDE

—OR— Jim Gunczew in Quest of a Wife. CHAPTER I. KIDNAPPED.

The night was dark and would have been still, if it were not for the howling of the cats on the fences. The woman who reclined in on the big cushions, surrounded by cushions of many shapes and colours, gave vent to an impatient sigh and rose to her feet.

A JOKE OR TWO

(Four from Forbes Magazine)

A clean conscience is better than unclean cash.

The line of least resistance doesn't always lead farthest.

They should flay the hide, as well as hides, of the Fordney tariff bill.

"Riches have wings." Yes; but they can fly to you as well as from you—provided you deserve them and would be any better off if you got them.

THOSE SHORT SKIRTS.

Commissionaire: "Lost yer Mammy, 'ave yer. Why didn't yer keep hold of her skirt?" Little Alfred: "I cou-cou-couldn't reach it."

ENOUGH TO START WITH.

"Where's Jimmy?" asked the head of the house, coming home from work. "He was very naughty," replied his wife. "I sent him to bed for swearing."

WHEN SILENCE WAS DANGEROUS.

A merchant was recently persuaded to purchase an excellent parrot. This one had travelled far and could jabber in several foreign tongues. He had it sent home. That same day his wife had ordered a fresh spring chicken for dinner. On leaving the house she said to the cook: "Mary, there's a bird coming for dinner. Wring its neck and roast it for Mr. Richards when he gets home." Unfortunately the parrot arrived first and Mary followed instructions. At dinner he was served "What's that?" explained the hostess' pale Mary? "But for goodness' sake, Mary!" he said. "This is a bird that could speak seven languages." "Then why on earth didn't he say something?" asked Mary.

RIMES OF THE TIMES

(25) MINISTERIAL GUILTY.

(With apologies to Edgar Allen Poe.) The following short "rime" was written after a perusal of the article by the Woman Suffrage Committee, setting forth the manner in which they had been treated by the Prime Minister.

Said the Premier all smiling in his manner most beguiling, On this question, I assure you, party feeling we shall sink.

We shall introduce your measure with a great amount of pleasure, 'tis advisable I think.

We'll make it a party measure, said the Premier I (don't) think. And Sir Richard gave a WINK (Atrocious—Editor).

Behind all outward show you find The culture of the gentle mind; Nor casts nor crowd can place a ban Upon a true born gentleman; Who walks the world with head erect May justly claim the world's respect. The man too big to cheat or lie, Who takes but what his purse can buy, Whose name has come through every test.

A shining symbol of his best, May own-but little here of gold, And seldom may his fame be told, But he shall have until life ends The good opinion of his friends.

To be respected for your worth, Here is the greatest joy on earth; To live your life so none can say That you have walked a shameful way, To come through sorrow's time of tears.

And bitter days and dreary years, Still brave of soul and clean of hand, Pit with the best of men to stand, In victory—not wealth nor grace Can make such glory commonplace. The man who walks in honor's ways And own's his neighbors' love and praise Has more, when life's long tale is told, Than those whose wealth is all in gold.

The "Mayflower" Tercentenary.

Three hundred years ago this week on September 6, 1620—the little ship "Mayflower" sailed from Plymouth on the then dangerous and adventurous voyage to America. Her passengers, when the people of the United States say regard as their forefathers, were English dissenters. The Government at that time did not look with favor on dissenters, but passed ferocious acts against them. They were punished by fine and imprisonment, and hunted for their lives, so that in 1608 many of them removed to Amsterdam, and next year to Leyden, where they resided for ten years. Finding it hard to maintain themselves and wishing for some place where they could have more liberty, they decided after long discussion to emigrate to the wild and almost unknown shores of America. Obstacles and difficulties of every kind hindered them in their enterprise but after interminable troubles and delays they sailed at last. The "Mayflower" was only about the size of a canal barge, about 30 feet long and 23 feet beam, her tonnage being about 150. She was very high in the bow and stern, and low in the waist—but she carried 102 passengers and about 35 crew. A very wet and leaky ship, there was serious discussion among her passengers as to whether they should turn back, but, caking the ship as well as they could, they resolved to proceed, and on Nov. 11, 1620, after a 67 days' voyage, the vessel reached what is now Plymouth, in Massachusetts but which was then nothing but a howling wilderness, inhabited by wild beasts and savage men. Half of the "Mayflower" passengers died during their first year in America, but the remainder became so-called "Plymouth Planters," cultivated the land and made a permanent settlement. These planters have now grown to a hundred millions, and the descendants of the despised exiles, with later emigrants, have become one of the greatest nations of the world. The tercentenary of the voyage, which is now being commemorated on both sides of the Atlantic, will tend to further unite the two great English-speaking nations in bonds of friendship, so that they will be able to guide and direct, and to a large extent, to control the rest of the world.

Improvements Continuing.

The Municipal Council are still continuing the improvements to the various water mains and sewers throughout the city. On Casey Street some 300 yards of new piping are now being laid and the work is progressing favorably. At Rennie's Hill the Council employees are engaged on a big job of replacing the present sewer pipes, with others of larger diameter. The work is very difficult owing to the main water lines and the sewer pipes crossing at several places. The work of widening the upper part of Pleasant Street has been completed, and the thoroughfare is now very much improved. The vacant land at the foot of Lime Street has also been levelled off and the street now presents a much neater appearance.

The British Empire Exhibition.

"AN EPOCH-MAKING EVENT." By Robert Donald, L.L.D., Chairman of the Publicity Committee. A national appeal is being made by the Prince of Wales to the heads of public bodies throughout the United Kingdom in support of the British Empire Exhibition. The response to that appeal will determine whether the exhibition, which is under the patronage of the King, the presidency of the Prince, and has the financial help of the Government, will be held in 1923 or at all.

The Executive Committee (headed by Lord Morris) has planned an exhibition to be held at Wembley Park on a scale never before attempted in this or in any other country. It is confident that it will be as great an epoch-making event in trade, industry, education and science, as was the first universal exhibition held in Hyde Park on the initiative of the Prince Consort.

The purpose of the exhibition is to demonstrate the wealth and resources of the Empire in every phase of industrial and human activity. The colossal undertaking will occupy a site of 120 acres. The preparation of the ground, the erection of the buildings and the organization of the exhibition will cost more than £1,000,000. A guarantee fund of this amount must be raised. Towards that fund the Government, with the sanction of Parliament, has contributed £100,000. The present appeal is, in aid of the fund. No financial payment is required of the guarantee. They will only be called upon to contribute in the almost inconceivable contingency of the exhibition becoming a financial failure.

The exhibition, which the Dominion Premiers in London have promised to support, will be the first attempt to bring home producers, manufacturers and merchants into direct touch with the products of the Overseas Dominions, India and all British territories. It will also be a many-sided Imperial Conference, concerned not only with the Empire's material resources, but with problems affecting its Government, development and progress which will be discussed at congresses. The organizers, realizing that the success of an exhibition depends as much on side shows as on its more serious aspects, are planning novelties for amusement and relaxation which will make Wembley Park a national pleasure ground. The Football Association has chosen it as their permanent home where cup ties and other important matches will be played. A national sports ground capable of accommodating 125,000 spectators is now being laid out. The fact that the Football Association has chosen Wembley Park proved that it is the most accessible spot available. There is no open space which is better served with transport facilities, train, tram or omnibus.

Carefully Prepared Estimates. To ensure further the financial success of the British Empire Exhibition, the Executive are entering into arrangements to enable the exhibition to receive a percentage of receipts from all sources until such time as losses incurred are covered. While these precautions are taken it is expected that the income will greatly exceed guarantee funds. Sir Richard Vassar Smith, Chairman of the Guarantee Fund Committee, says that "the very carefully prepared estimates foreshadow a substantial credit balance which, by arrangement with the Government, is to be devoted to some public object." Until the guarantee fund reaches at least half a million, a serious start cannot be made, and in order that the exhibition may be held in 1923 it is essential that this amount should be provided within the next few weeks.

The exhibition has a many-sided appeal. It is a patriotic demonstration, a gigantic display of the Empire's resources, means of increasing inter-Imperial trade, a national playground, and, as the Prince of Wales also sees it, "a fitting commemoration of the triumph of our cause in the Great War," by uniting again to develop constructive work, the vast potential resources and the manufacturing power of the Empire. The Prime Minister has expressed the hope that "it may be organized on a scale worthy of the cause it is intended to commemorate."—Yorkshire Observer.

Something Like Speed.

One of the most interesting of recent discoveries in connection with astronomy is that the older a star grows, the faster does it move.

A star, like an express train, takes time to get up speed.

In the case of the train, however, it is a matter of a few minutes only; with a star it is millions of years. The speed of the fastest star is about three hundred miles per second. This celestial racer is invisible with the naked eye, but has a number of other means of identification for the convenience of astronomers.

It has been found that the average velocity of faint stars is much greater than that of brighter ones. Twenty-eight faint ones have been found to have an average velocity of 138 miles per second, whilst the speed of nine very bright ones averaged only eighty miles per second.

Judged from the standard of speed, our own sun—which would appear as a star if it was far enough away from us—as a comparative infant. Its speed is only about twelve miles per second.

"Laugh and grow fat" is an old axiom. We advise the use of a good tonic, named "Bick's Tasteless". Price $1.00; postage 20c. extra.—spec. 11

League Football.

SEAB.—C. E. L. The Star-C.P.L. football match which took place last evening on St. George's Field was witnessed by one of the largest gatherings of enthusiasts for the season. The game proved interesting, and individual play was rather conspicuous. During the early part of the first half no scoring was done but shortly before the whistle sounded, Adams of the Star team found the net. In the second half Evans notched up No. 3 for his team, and the game ended Star 2 C.E.L. 0. The C.E.L. lost several good chances to score, and their supporters were disappointed at their lack of speed. Three teams are now in the running for first place and tonight's match will be watched with much interest.

Valuable Cement Property.

We learn that in connection with the cement property at Heart's Delight, Mr. R. J. Murphy left for New York by express to-day, on business concerning the development of these recently acquired areas. To-morrow Messrs. Allan T. Long (Surveys) and M. L. Parrell will go out by local train to the property, for the purpose of making a survey, in order that everything may be in readiness for commencing operations. The opening up of this valuable deposit, the quality of which has been determined to be better than imported cement should give considerable employment to men in the vicinity, and we trust that all the hopes of the shareholders will shortly be realised.

Wake Up, Newfoundland!

Dear Sir—Any thoughtful observer of financial conditions in Newfoundland must come to only one conclusion. That fish at $4.50 per qt. tal qual does not provide enough wealth to finance either the Government, the mercantile trade or the individual worker, under present day cost of commodities and expenses. To a large extent the cash received for fish must be used to pay for our imports, food, clothing, fuel, etc. It is therefore evident that no great improvement can take place in trade conditions in Newfoundland until the price of commodities is further reduced and the price of fish advanced. It will take $7.00 or $8.00 fish tal qual to enable this country to pay its way and relieve the large amount of "frozen credit" which is now tying up the country's trade. In view of recent events one is led to ask "Is there a nigger in the fish pile?" The fish buyers argument and that of the fishermen, is "Too much old fish, and markets too bad to pay more for fish locally." On the other hand the offer received from Russia to purchase 400,000 qts. of our fish remained unanswered by the Board of Trade for practically a week, during that time no effort was made to improve the offer and very little interest was taken in it although it received the unanimous support of all the newspapers. It is impossible to put through a deal of this kind if those interested magnify the obstacles and minimise the possibilities. It is suggested that when the fish is transferred from the fishermen's hands at a low price the time will be opportune for improved markets. The price of fish is of national interest and if Newfoundland is to survive, a better price must be paid and we should concentrate all our efforts on opening new markets so that the increased competition will have the effect of advancing the price to a paying basis. Yours truly, WM. WHITE.

Obituary.

WILLIAM A. NOEL. On Monday, August 8th, there passed away strengthened by the last rites of the church, one who was highly respected by all who knew him. How true are those words which we all so often hear, yet seem to pay little heed to in our health and strength. "In the midst of life we are in death." A few days before his passing Mr. Noel was about his daily business. No one realised that the end was so near, since he was not complaining of being ill. His sickness was sudden, only a few days duration, and the soul of one whose form was familiar, his kind and gentle manner winning, passed to the church expectant. On Tuesday, August 9th, the Rev. W. E. R. Cracknell, committed to mother earth, all that was mortal of a loving husband, father and friend. There to await the sound of the trumpet. "For the trumpet shall sound and the dead shall be raised."

O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory? For ten years on and off Mr. Noel was Church Warden of St. Peter's Church, St. George's, an office which he filled faithfully and well. Of him it can be truly said he was a Christian gentleman. To mourn their sad loss are left a widow, (an invalid for many years); two sons, Stewart, living in Vancouver, B.C., and Ernest at home; three daughters, Maymie, Mrs. Job Daws, St. John's; Elsie and Floss at home. The former at one time popular stewardess on S.S. "Fogota"; three brothers, John Fred, Vancouver, B.C.; Archibald, Harbor Grace, South; Simeon, Victoria; and one sister, Mrs. Rose Ann Farwell, St. George's. To whom the sympathy of all the community goes forth. May his soul rest in peace. "Father is Thy gracious keeping Leave us now Thy servant sleeping." —COM.

St. George's, Sept. 3, 1921.

WATER SHUTES DRY—Owing to hot weather which has been experienced along the railway recently, the water shutes have gone dry and train bands are compelled to obtain water from the nearby ponds. As a consequence the express trains have been delayed some hours during the past few days.

Salvage Notes.

During the past few days the Road Board has had men employed on the repairing of roads and bridges. Several large boulders that appeared above the surface on the main road have been removed, and the road now presents an even surface in so far as gravel can be even, and very well suited for the mailman's carriage. Other carriages are few and far between, excepting baby carriages, of course. A rather unusual incident occurred shortly after the men began work on the first day. The foreman came along and informed his men that they were getting the pay of 20 cents per hour, upon which the gang then threw down tools proclaiming that 25 cents per hour was their lawful due. The chairman of the road board granted the concession, and work was immediately resumed. A strike is by no means rare, but I imagine its uncommon in Salvage. Fortunately the issue was decided so quickly and amicably that John Clifton might well learn therefrom.

Among other things done to make the roads good and solid, was the putting of the school branch road into practically permanent first class order, for which everyone is duly grateful.

On Monday evening the light on Puffin Island (Flat Islands) shone forth its fitful glare, but we fail to see how the light can be utilised to the full under its present regulations. Its flash like that on Little Daniel is too quick by far. In thick weather, one would want these lights flashing (half dark, half light). If the lights can be regulated to stand a longer showing, then such should be done, if for no other reason than the justification of the lighthouse.

During our holidays, we visited Catalina and Port Union. In common with other places, Port Union was dull, and not doing much business, although we received different reports since Mr. J. R. Smallwood is on a visit to Coaker's metropolis. During our stay at Catalina we put up at Mrs. Randell's Hotel, and pardon the seeming advertisement, Mr. Editor, if we commend the same to any traveller, it being all that a hotel can be.

Mrs. (Dr.) MacDonald, who had been spending a pleasant vacation with friends at Greensand, arrived home last Saturday.

The Primary Department of Salvage School opened on Monday, the teacher, Miss Blackmore, having arrived on Saturday's Malakoff.

Mr. P. J. Humphries and wife arrived here last Saturday, en route for Salvage Bay, where Mr. Humphries resumes charge of the school for another year.

The schooner J.W.D., at Cottle's Island, has arrived from Labrador, well laden.

Mr. Stephen Oldford, Squid Tackler, arrived home from Labrador a few days ago, hauling for 900 qts.; several of our neighboring schooners are reported as doing well. —COR.

S. U. F. Dance.

Last night at the Club Rooms of the above Society, a large gathering of the youth of both sexes, attended a dance, which was greatly enjoyed by all, the music being furnished by the capable band of the Church Lads Brigade Cadets, under the direction of Captain A. Morley. The programme contained "twelve regular items" and one "extra," with an interval between the seventh and eighth, during which refreshments were served, by the ladies. The function terminated after midnight, God Save The King by the Band, bringing the entertainment to a close. This dance was the fourth of a series given under the auspices of the S.U.F. Ladies' Association, the direction of the present one being accomplished by Miss M. Burrage, to the entire satisfaction and pleasure of all who participated.

For years I have never considered my stock of household remedies complete unless a bottle of Hiram's Liniment was included. For burns, bruises, sprains, frostbites or chilblains it excels, and I know of no better remedy for a severe cold in the head, or that will give more immediate relief, than to inhale through the nasal organ. And as to my supply of veterinary remedies it is essential, as it has in very many instances proven its value. A recent experience, reconfirming what was supposed to be a lost section of a valuable cow's udder has again demonstrated its great worth, and prompts me to recommend it in the highest terms to all who have a herd of cows, large or small. I think I am safe in saying among all the patent medicines there is not one that cures as large a field of usefulness as does Hiram's Liniment. A real treasure—good for man or beast. —CHAS. ROBBINS, Chateaux Point.

SWEET, PURE MILK—always on hand when you want it!

If you have never used Libby's Evaporated Milk, you will be amazed to find how good, how convenient and economical it is. Many women who first tried it in some emergency now use it always—they find it gives such satisfactory results.

There's no waiting for the milkman—you can always keep several cans on the shelf and in summer there's no bothering with ice, and in winter the milk wagon can get stuck in a heavy drift of snow as often as it wants to!

And there's less waste—a can of Libby's Evaporated Milk will keep indefinitely before being opened—and after you have opened a can you can use just what you need; the rest, put in a cool place, will keep several days.

Libby's Milk comes from the finest dairying section of America and is processed in our own sanitary condensaries—it is not the "distributed" product of an unknown and nameless plant.

Order a tin from your grocer to-day.
