The Broken Circle!

CHAPTER XVII.
 CHAPTER XVIII.

Half an hour passed, and they were still talking under the veranda on the western terrace. It seemed to Leah but a few minutes, and yet what a change had been wrought in the time! Quite suddenly, and almost unconsciously to her, the whole world had changed for her—her life had grown complete. But a little while before her heart had been desolate. Despite the brilliance with which she had been surrounded, there was a sense of chill and loneliness, of unrealized wishes, of vague hopes, or ungratified desires—a sense of the emptiness of all things. It had vanished as snow before the sun, and a sweet harmonious sense of the fullness of life, had taken possession of her. She could have stood for ever by the passion-flowers, looking at Sir Basil and listening to him; but the general remembered the duties of hospitality.

"You will stay for the day?" he said. "One of the grooms can ride over to Glen for anything you may want."

He did not know that his niece, whom the noblest and wisest in the land had failed to win, was waiting with the keenest anxiety to hear whether their guest would accept her "role's" invitation.

"Leah," said Sir Arthur, "perhaps Sir Basil would like some refreshment after his long walk. You walked from Glen, I believe?"

"Yes, I came through the woods," replied the young baronet. "I envy you those woods and the river."

"If you will take my advice, Sir Basil," said the general, "you will have some claret-cup. For a warm morning like this there is nothing like it. I will join you in a few minutes—I have to see my steward. Leah, you will take Sir Basil into the house. When he has had some refreshment, he will join the party on the lawn."

With a smile for his niece and a bow for his guest, Sir Arthur hastened away, leaving them alone together. It seemed to Leah as though the air throbbled; her heart beat fast, her hands trembled; all the rest of the world had fallen from her, and she stood alone with him.

"This is a beautiful old place," he said. "I like the river. What fanciful lights and shades there are on it!" The calm, quiet words brought her down from an exalted frame of mind to commonplace life.

"It is indeed lovely," she said. "Do you like boating? I am very fond of it. I have a pretty little boat of my own, and I spend many hours upon the water. But I must not forget my uncle's instructions. You must come and have some refreshment."

She replaced the trailing sprays of the crimson dowers which she had held all this time in her hand. She did nothing in the least degree unusual, yet every little incident was vividly stamped on her mind. With the strange feeling about her she walked by his side down the long terrace. She took him into the drawing-room.

"Bring some light refreshments—also some fruit," she said to a servant; and with her own hands she offered him some delicious grapes.

She remembered every word he uttered, every glance, every movement of his; and when he had taken what he wanted she looked at him with anxious, happy eyes.

"Shall we go on to the lawn now?" she asked.

"I am quite at your service, Miss Hatton. Have you a large party at Brentwood?"

She looked at him again, with the dreamy, vacant gaze of one who has forgotten everything, then remembered suddenly, and blushed as he had seen no other woman blush before. The first thought that occurred to him was that perhaps she had a lover among the visitors, and was shy of mentioning his name—else why that vivid, beautiful blush? It was gone now, and she was smiling as she spoke.

"Not a very large party," she replied—"the Duke and Duchess of Rosedale, old friends of Sir Arthur's; Lady Maude Trevar, who is distantly related to the duchess; Colonel Farquharson, whom my uncle loves very dearly because his face is bronzed and he calls luncheon 'tiffin.'"

"Old Indian friends, I suppose?" said Sir Basil.

"Yes, they were inseparable for some years. There are also Captain Langley and a very pretty niece of the old Colonel's. That completes the list."

"It sounds like a very good list, too," he said.

She remembered how he held the door open as she passed, and when the long train of pale amber was caught he stooped down to free it. She remembered how they passed through the grand old entrance hall, and out by the side door on to the lawn. The duchess was seated in the shade of the great cedar tree, with Lady Maude by her side, and pretty May Lusson, who was evidently ready for mischief. Not far from them the colonel—a fine, handsome, elderly man, with a long, grey, drooping moustache—was enjoying a cigar and a newspaper. Captain Langley had been reading aloud to the ladies, but had been dismissed, because, as the duchess solemnly assured him, he had no taste for anything but humor.

There was some little stir when Leah, with her handsome cavalier, appeared. The duchess looked up with a smile. Leah led him to her first, and her grace gave him a very kindly greeting—all women were attracted to Sir Basil the moment they saw him.

They passed on to Lady Maude Trevar—a tall, handsome woman, somewhat past her prime, but evidently bent upon making the best of herself. She received him with a mixture of what she intended to be girlish diffidence and womanly frankness; both falling, the effect was lamentable.

Captain Langley was very pleased, and pretty May, looking more like a fair rosebud than anything else, laughed with delight.

"You live at Glen, Sir Basil?" she said. "I have seen a picture of Glen. There are innumerable fountains and terraces."

"I hope you will honor me by coming to see its attractions," he responded. "The general has promised me that pleasure."

He was quite at home with them in a few minutes. The colonel—who, while he abused India, knew no pleasure out of it—began to discuss with him the probabilities of a frontier war. Captain Langley aired his grievance—which was that some one most decidedly his inferior had been promoted over his head—and revealed that he was in a state of chronic indignation about it.

In a very short space of time Lady Maude Trevar decided that Sir Basil was worth any trouble to win. He was at home with them all, and quite happy. The duchess called him to her side, and began a long conversation with him. She was delighted with him, and considered him quite an acquisition: A rich and handsome young baronet with a fine estate, he would want a wife; and already she had begun to think of those of her acquaintance who were eligible for the post. She regretted that Lady Maude was old and past; her thoughts never went to Leah.

Leah had called to mind not once, but a hundred times, that he was to be with them the whole day. She sat watching him with contented, happy eyes, with a light on her beautiful face, as he went from one to another, thinking there was no other like him.

During the afternoon the duchess called Leah aside.

"Leah," she said, "we must do something to entertain your young neighbor. I do not like to see his handsome face shadowed by melancholy. What can we do?"

"We will do anything that you suggest," replied Leah.

Something in her voice made the duchess look up.

"Leah, child," she cried, "what have you been doing to yourself?"

"Nothing," replied Leah.

"Nothing? Nonsense!" said the duchess, energetically. "I could almost believe that you had been rearing!"

"I have done nothing of the kind," replied Leah, half indignant, half amused. "Why do you say such a thing to me?"

"My dear child, I receive a change in you. A new soul shines out of your eyes; your face is transfigured! It has struck me at times that you had a restless expression, as though the world did not quite answer to your wishes. It has gone now. You look as though your heart had awakened." She wondered still more when she saw a crimson blush cover the beautiful face. "What is it, Leah? You have always trusted me. You may say what you will, but I am quite certain that there is something which would account for the change in you. Why, what happy eyes you have! I never saw the golden gleam in them so plainly as I do this morning."

With all her keen sagacity and worldly knowledge, it was wonderful that she did not connect the coming of the stranger with the change in Leah.

(To be continued.)

Headaches Gone

Perhaps you can imagine what this means to one who has suffered terribly with headaches for ten years.

Read about it in this letter,

Mrs. Teha A. Smith, Country Harbor Cross Roads, N. S., writes:

"I feel that if anyone can recommend Dr. Chase's medicine I certainly can. I suffered for ten years from severe headaches, and although I took all kinds of headache powders they just relieved me at the time. I became very nervous and run-down, and everything seemed to trouble me. I have taken dozens of boxes of Dr. Chase's Nerve Food and it has made an entirely new person of me. I feel that I could not have lived without it. I do not have one headache now for every hundred I used to have, and my nerves are good and strong. I just weighed 109 pounds when I began using Dr. Chase's Nerve Food, and now I weigh 121. Knowing what this treatment has done for me, I cannot too highly recommend it to others."

Mountains Were Destroyed.

EARTHQUAKES SMASHED ETERNAL HILLS.

VALDIVIA, Chile (Associated Press).—Entire mountains were destroyed in the violent earthquakes and volcanic eruptions which took place in southern Chile near the Argentine border last December, says Eric Volkman, who has returned from a visit to the desolated district. Details of the volcanic disturbances which destroyed pasture lands, forests and cattle are only now becoming known here. "The centre of the disturbance was in the region known as the Cordillera Palada, southeast of Puerto Montt," Mr. Volkman said. "The lava composition is almost entirely volcanic, covered with hot rocks whose heat had parched the forests and destroyed pastures."

STREWN WITH FLAMING GASES.
"The surface is strewn with flaming gases and steam from which arises a strong odor of wood vinegar. The rocks have no consistency and the lava field, about 3,100 feet above sea level, apparently still is in process of formation. Subterranean rumblings are still very violent." The affected area is sparsely populated and no casualties have been reported. The water of the Rinhu river, Mr. Volkman reported, have been poisoned by the gases and acids derived from the eruptive material including huge stones that fell in its bed. He said another eruption had occurred in the Los Azules cordillera, also in the Pelada valley. The eruptions in Chile last December were attributed to the volcanoes of Casle and Rincha. They were accompanied by violent earthquakes and it was stated that deep crevices had formed in the mountain sides from which steam was pouring. Enormous damage was caused to grazing lands on the Argentine side of the frontier which for 30 leagues was covered with cinders and volcanic ashes from the erupting peaks, which swept across Argentina obscuring the sun. Ashes were reported to have fallen all the way across to the Atlantic Ocean.

When Brides Were Bought.

THE ORIGIN OF OUR MARRIAGE CUSTOMS.

The "best man" is an essential feature in all our marriages, and can be traced back to the days of "marriage by capture," when the "best man" was the comrade called upon by the bridegroom to assist in the catching of the bride.

The "honeymoon" was not always a pleasure trip as it is now; originally it was a rapid flight of the newly-married couple to escape the wrath of an outraged father. There is no doubt that the bride and bridegroom deemed it advisable to keep out of his way for at least a month, to allow time for his vows of vengeance to cool down.

The custom of giving presents to bridesmaids originated in a form of toll. The bride's girl friends went through the form of preventing the bridegroom and his friends from taking her from her home, a mock battle ensued, each party pelting the other with sweetmeats, and this was finally settled by the bridegroom making presents to all the girls.

Links With Long Ago.
The custom of throwing an old shoe after the departing couple is another link with the past, but writers on the history of marriage disagree as to its origin. According to one view it originated in the "marriage by capture" days, when, during a fight at the bride's house, the nearest thing that came handy were thrown. Another explanation is that it was a symbolic act on the part of the bride's father, signifying that he renounced all authority over his daughter.

The throwing of rice was symbolic of an abundance and fertility, and clearly expressed the hope that the bride would live in plenty.

The wedding cake, still cut by the bride, is one of the oldest marriage customs. The taking of food or drink together by the bride and bridegroom was always the principal, and sometimes the only, ceremony among primitive people, and this is still the case in many parts of the world to-day.

The wide sleeves of a frock of turquoise blue chiffon are embroidered in silver circles and hang to the floor.

Weak, Thin, and Run-Down on Three Big Meals a Day

What to do to help put on good firm flesh, increase weight, strength and energy and obtain a more beautiful form and figure

Since the discovery of an amazing food factor called Vitamins, science now shows why thousands may be thin, weak and undernourished on three big meals a day. No matter how much you eat if your food lacks sufficient quantity of Vitamins, you become weak, thin, nervous, emaciated, easily fatigued, run-down and "all-in." and may actually develop serious disease. This is especially true of those who eat principally soups, white bread, fish, potatoes, tinned fruits and vegetables, pies and cakes, and other foods which have been deprived of their Vitamins, either by throwing away the husks and skins of the foods which contain the Vitamins, or in which the Vitamins have been destroyed by the high degree of heat used in cooking.

Free

Write also in strength, energy and endurance. If you have not obtained all and even greater benefits than you expected, the manufacturers will promptly refund your money. We warrant that you will get the most out of your Vitamins. Write for your free copy of our new book, "The Power of Vitamins."

Roofs Fatal Flight In a Gale.

On Easter Monday, April 8, 1912, during a high wind which prevailed for the greater part of the day, an amazing fatality occurred near Gateshead, the victim being John Thomas Brewis, aged 38, son of a farmer of Chowdene Farm, who was ploughing in a field forty yards away from the house. A man named Thomas Gardner passed the field in the afternoon and he and Mr. Brewis commented on the strong wind, which was blowing almost a hurricane, causing the two men to shout to make themselves heard. Gardner walked on, but meeting another friend he stopped for a chat, and when turning round as his friend was passing on, he saw something in the air, which to his amazement looked like the roof of a house. It was in one piece and was mounting like an Fashions and Fads.

Bands of Oriental embroidery on white organdie trim a simple frock of black crepe roman. Cording, tucks and bias bands have taken the place of embroidery among the trimmings. A blouse of cream chiffon trimmed with a design in velvet is worn with a skirt of pongee. Large untrimmed velvet hats turn up in front. They are usually shown in bright colors. A peasant dress of beige crepe is smocked at the hips and on the waist in red, gold and black. A chemise frock of green flannel has a hip-length flaring cape of red-and-green plaid flannel. The most charming negligee of the moment has a girle of hand-made flowers to hold the front and back panels of finely pleated Georgette crepe.

FALSE ECONOMY.

It is often remarked by customers, "I must try and make my old clothes do for the winter." Perhaps the winter may mean very much longer. Leaves for Botwood

PLANE WILL DELIVER MAILS
Mr. F. S. Cotton, accompanied by a mechanic, left shortly after noon today for Botwood in the Martinside aeroplane. Mr. Cotton has a mail contract to fulfil and as soon as he has accomplished his work in this connection he will fly to Cartwright and will probably return with furs from the Hudson's Bay Company. It is fortunate that today is fine as the ice at the side of the pond was melting rapidly and great difficulty would have been experienced in getting the machine out. When Mr. Cotton returns to St. John's he will probably use floats. Did you ask Father about "Hazel Kirke"?

As a consequence the several departments increasing their expenditures are correspondingly indebted to the Bank of Montreal, until Legislative authority relieves them of the obligation. The total obligation incurred by the foregoing increases, new appointments and pensions, amounts to $35,791.95 per annum. These require no special explanation except the case of extra pay to Outport Members of the House of Assembly. This additional amount was not granted by Order-in-Council. The Roumanian Bonds

It is understood that the British Government intended granting a loan to Roumania on condition that the country would pay its interest on the Roumanian Bonds. The High Commissioner for Trade that the interest would be paid in May. There is some doubt expressed amongst the business community that the interest will be forthcoming. The Bonds held by local business men amount to $1,300,000 and are an account of the Escosson's Fish Cargo. It will be remembered that these are the Bonds which finance minister Cashin refused to guarantee in 1918-1919. Had he done so the country would have been forced to redeem them on demand.

HIS DIARY

April 7th
Slept but ill all the last part of the night, being that cats did gather outside my window and did generate me. Therefore up and to bed about my business. To the Board of Trade where much discourse of the Resolutions they did give to the government. Indeed, they are all the talk of the town. But for all that, I do see the government is resolved to rest satisfied and will leave things as they are. This day I met a body of citizens from Alexander Bay who would have the Cabal grant them a loan for a company that is in their district and will manufacture sulphite pulp. Mr. J. R. Bennett tells me how Major Cotton will take his air coach to Botwood at the first opportunity but the ice on the pond is now melting at the sides and will give some trouble.

Costume Concert

NEW DEPARTURE IN ENTERTAINMENTS
Last night under the auspices of the Congregational Sunday School Choir a very enjoyable "Costume Concert" was given in the Church basement. Mr. P. H. Cowan acted as musical director. The various artists were dressed in costumes suitable to the numbers which they rendered. During the interval the audience voted for the prize winners and the awards went to Miss E. Thomas who represented "Little Brown Jug." The gentleman's prize went to Mr. Victor Calver as "Mickey." The Choir had the assistance of Mr. Reg. Hearder, who gave two popular recitations and also Mr. H. B. Chafe, who gave a selection. The Misses Chafe favoured the audience with a duet whilst Miss Estelle Barnes was heard in recitations. Many of the costumes were strikingly appropriate to the songs but it would be invidious to make distinctions. The proceeds of this and a similar affair which was held on the previous Friday night will be devoted to Church funds.

Mr. Goodland has been confined to home since Thursday night as a result of a severe bruise received wrestling. Mr. Goodland injured himself while practicing but was too proud to stop to scratch his bout in preliminary to the finale.

Harbor Grace Notes.

The funeral of the late Mr. George ...
 Harbor Grace, Nfld., on Monday last ... place on Wednesday, services being ...
 at the Methodist Church, and high ... mass were held in the ...
 remains were laid to rest in the ...
 Methodist Cemetery. Rev. F. S. Coffin ...
 St. Andrew's Church officiated, owing ... to the illness of the Rev. W. H. ...

Mrs. Holt and Miss Allan arrived in ...
 on Monday last, after having ...
 the winter months here, and ...
 their many friends here are pleased ... to have them with us again.

Miss Gladys Parsons, Principal ...
 Methodist Superior School, went out ...
 Saturday morning to the city to see ...
 her sister, Miss Winnie Parsons, who ... is undergoing treatment at the Hospi- ... tal there. She returned again yester-

Mrs. Selma Yelman, an aged lady ... who resides with her son, Mr. Josiah ...
 Yelman, Dock Foreman, is at present ...
 in the city.

We are pleased to see Mr. I. E. For- ... manager of the "Star" office, who ... returned from his trip to ...
 to home for something over two ...
 weeks.

Mr. W. A. Munn of St. John's, was ... here to-day.

Captain John Snellgrove of the Schr. ...
 D. Hazen, has been here the past ... few days visiting his home. All are ... glad to see him again after his trip.

Eggs apparently are beginning to ... plentiful, and are gradually on the ...
 up in price. 50c. per dozen they were ...
 bid for during the week.

The death of Lee Sap, a young ... man, of about 22 years old, who ...
 had been in town for some weeks past, ...
 occurred early yesterday morning.

Mr. Sap was taken from the ... town, and received medical treatment, ...
 owing to the fact that he was ...
 alone and therefore not having the ...
 necessary attention, was no doubt, the ...
 cause of his condition not improving ...
 rapidly to some extent. Tuesday ... night he was very ill and Dr. Cron was ... with him for some time. Early the ...
 following morning a Police Officer on ... duty, hearing some peculiar sounds ... coming from the house occupied by ...
 the sick man, made an entrance there-and found that he had just died. ...

 His case is indeed a sad one. The ... cause of the death was during last ... summer. Quite frequently he attended ... the Methodist Sunday School, and was ...
 well known to those who knew him.

He passed out a stranger in a ... strange land, and far away from home ...
 and friends, and it is to be regretted ...
 that he died under hard circumstances.

Arrangements were made, and the ... body was sent to St. John's by this ... morning's train. It was accompanied ... by Mr. Gong Koo (one of his fellow ... countrymen who has been residing ... here for some time) and Mr. W. W. ...
 Munn. A few of our citizens follow- ... ing the remains to the station. We ... understand the deceased Chinaman has ...
 a brother at Hamilton, Ont.

"The Round Table."

A MAGAZINE OF EMPIRE.
 The only fault there is to be found ...
 in "The Round Table" is the fact ... that it is issued quarterly. It is ... almost certain that one can find a periodical ...
 which gives such a clear and compre- ... hensive exposition of Empire politics, ... and of world politics in so far as they ...
 affect the British Commonwealth. The ...
 March number has just been received ...
 and its contents are worthy of the ex- ... cellent reputation which this publica- ... tion has gained since its inception. ...
 The most interesting article in this ... number is "A Programme for the ...
 British Commonwealth." This surveys ... the changes which have been brought ... about in the Empire by the tremendous ...
 openings of the past seven years, ...
 and suggests a policy which might be ... followed with advantage. Another ... contribution which is of particular in- ... terest at the moment is a review of the ...
 conference at Cannes between Brand ... and Lloyd George, and an outline of ...
 the matters which will be discussed ...
 at the coming economic conference at ...
 Monaco and the probable results. To ... attempt to review the March number ...
 "The Round Table" at length, is ... impossible at the present time, but we ...
 hope to publish extracts from some of ...
 the articles shortly, so that our readers ...
 will be able to judge for themselves ...
 the value of this excellent publica- ... tion.

 THE ART OF CHEWING.
 Your whole system depends for its health and strength on the stomach. The stomach, in turn, depends on the teeth. The very foundation of health is therefore laid at the first step in food conversion—the act of chewing. Food improperly chewed enters the stomach in a wrong condition, and it brings about a wrong fermentation which causes first, indigestion, then kindred ailments. The proper chewing of the food will prevent these things. Chew your food plentifully.

Alexander Bay Deputation Meets Government.

Citizens Committee Ask Executive to Assist Company--A Splendid Avenue for Employment.

A Citizens Committee from Alexander Bay yesterday met the Executive Government and asked if financial assistance could be given the Terra Nova Sulphite Company to enable them to complete construction work. Two million dollars have already been expended and all the requisite material and machinery has been bought and paid for. The sum of half a million dollars is necessary to spend on labour in completing the plant and putting it in a condition to start operations. The Government, while expressing their desire to help, informed the deputation that to lend the company half a million was, considering the present financial situation of the colony, utterly impossible. It was with regret that they had to make this decision, they said, as they fully realized the benefit which would accrue to the colony through the operations of the Terra Nova Sulphite Company.

A CITIZENS COMMITTEE.
 The deputation consisted of the following representative citizens of Alexander Bay, Rev. E. H. Humphries, Church of England, rector of Salvage; Rev. E. R. Anthony, Methodist Minister of Glovertown; Messrs. H. J. House, and F. E. Arnold, business men of the district, and Mr. F. Grouchy, treasurer of the company. When it was learned that construction on the plant would stop, the feeling of the people was so strong that a public meeting was called and was attended by over 220 electors of the district. At this meeting a Committee of forty was appointed to discuss the matter and they selected the deputation to wait upon the Government. On Thursday, accompanied by the members for Bonaville they had an interview with the Prime Minister who arranged the meeting with the Executive.

A LARGE PLANT.
 Up to a few weeks ago when the manager, Mr. Blacksted, saw to Alexander Bay with Major Cotton, few had even heard of the Terra Nova Sulphite Company. Yet a two million dollar plant has been erected within a few miles from the city. Mr. Grouchy, an official of the company, told the Telegram that the object of the promoters is to manufacture dried baled sulphite pulp. The technical name for this is "mitscherlich." It is used for the better grades of newsprint and other high grades of paper. This pulp is in great demand at all times, and now, when the value of paper and pulp is at its lowest, fetches $70 a ton and tends to increase in value. The output of the plant is estimated at 16,000 tons annually.

ADVANTAGES TO COUNTRY.
 If the company could find the necessary capital to enable operations to be begun, employment would be given on a large scale. Three hundred men could be permanently employed at the mill, and work for six hundred men would be found in logging operations for a great part of the year. This would not, however, interfere with those who wish to prosecute the fishery. The minimum pay roll of the company would be $300,000 annually. The Government would benefit by indirect taxation to the extent of $120,000 annually, and by direct taxation on the company to the extent of $40,000. Thus, each year, the revenues of the colony would be augmented by $160,000. Asked by the Telegram why the Norwegian capitalists who subscribed the original capital of $2,000,000 did not put up the further sum of $500,000 rather than take the risk of losing all already paid up, Mr. Grouchy said that exchange was considerably against Norway and the sacrifices required to make up the further amount would be enormous. Unless this capital can be found, construction will have to cease, said Mr. Grouchy.

SPLENDID LOCATION.
 Several pictures of the plant were shown the Telegram. The main building is a large one and this with the outhouses and wood yards, occupies ten acres of land. The plant could not be located in a more satisfactory situation from every point of view. In the first place, there is as much water power as will ever be required there, and this can be developed very cheaply. The plant is at a tide water and steamers can come within a half mile of it, thus rendering the building of a railway unnecessary. Added to these helps to cheap production is the fact that there is an abundance of labour in the district around, and there will therefore be no necessity to build a town. The timber limits of the company are large enough to provide sufficient wood for 80 years without allowing for natural growth during that period. These limits have been surveyed by Norwegian experts and by civil engineers on the staff of the Montreal Engineering Company and they have estimated the amount of wood to be nearly 2,500,000 cords. The process by which the pulp will be produced is named after its inventor, Mr. Jensen, and is most economical while giving better results than those methods at present in use. It is unfortunate that the remainder of the necessary capital cannot now be raised when labour is cheap and values have reached their lowest ebb and are tending to advance. Mr. Grouchy and the other members of the deputation return home by Sunday's express.

SIDE TALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

WHEN IS A FAULT NOT A FAULT?

When is a disagreeable or unfortunate habit a fault? I used to think it was when it just the person's inevitable disposition?

In the first place, when is it in the second place, when is it mine? "Heterodoxy is you doxy; orthodoxy my doxy," said Bishop Warburton. His Disposition His Wife's Fault.

It is a familiar point of view on her matters than doctrine. I used to know a man who always justified by way he failed to fit comfortably to the social structure by saying, with finality, "That's my disposition." He was self-conscious, and it affected him in many ways. But when his wife also experienced the inevitable mal-adjustments that most of us pass through, he had no patience with her. "Just your foolish sensitiveness," he said. "No need of it. You know you have that fault, and you should have overcome it long ago."

Thus was self-consciousness to be expected and looked out for an avoidable part of an inherited disposition, metamorphosed into foolish sensitiveness which should have been cured long ago, by the simple fact of being "teum" instead of "menn." And the most interesting fact about it was that his wife was far nearer the normal than he.

Up With the Children.

Again, I knew two sisters who were both intense, nervous and high strung and over-conscientious. Being placed in different positions in life—one as the mother of several children, the other as a private secretary in a business concern, each manifested these traits in different ways. The mother was over-anxious about her children, passed over them to their own detriment; wore herself out getting up in the night half a dozen times to open or close a window, or add or subtract a blanket. The business woman, on the other hand, was superconscientious about her work. She stayed nights to finish things; she took work home; she gave up a long planned vacation because she thought her employer could not spare her conveniently just then.

Their Talk. Each was expressing the same traits, whether they be classed under the head of faults or disposition. But you should have heard them talk about each other. Each was convinced that the other was insanely conscientious and ought to get over it, while she was simply being normally careful and thorough, according to her disposition.

"Orthodoxy is my doxy; heterodoxy is the other man's doxy." I often think of that when I find myself condemning the other man's fault and justifying my own disposition.

NEWFOUNDLAND CAUSED BRITAIN'S GROWTH.

Fish Industry Taught English to Become Greatest Seafaring Nation in the World.

(From Post-Express, Rochester.)

Renewed discussion by the neighbors of the United States to the north of the desirability of Newfoundland's becoming a part of the Dominion of Canada raises a point upon which probably many Americans are hazy—that there are two distinct British realms, not one, in the portion of North America above the Canadian border. Newfoundland and its relations to Canada are brought out in the following bulletin from the Washington, D.C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society:

"Settlement plays its part in history and historic geography," says the bulletin, "and the fact that Newfoundland has insisted on standing alone while all the other British possessions of North America have united to form the Dominion of Canada is probably partly due to the pride that Newfoundland has always had in being able to boast that theirs is 'the senior British colony'—the first of the children of the motherland to make its home beyond the seas."

"Newfoundland had its settlements as early as the seventeenth century and was a full-fledged British colony with a governor when Canada was in the hands of the Dutch, and not a single white settler had landed in Australia."

ACROSS CANADA'S FRONT DOOR. Newfoundland has a geographical position of great importance for it largely blocks the broad gulf into which the St. Lawrence river widens, and which forms Canada's front door from Europe. Moreover Newfoundland is the closest part of North America to the British Isles, being only 1,640 miles from Ireland. It is natural that the first transatlantic cable should have been laid to the shores of Newfoundland in 1858—and that out of the North Atlantic eleven first touch American soil either on Newfoundland or its neighboring islets. And when in 1919 aeroplanes finally conquered the Atlantic it was from Newfoundland that both the American and the British machines took off.

"Newfoundland has an area of more than 42,000 square miles, and is therefore practically half the size of Great Britain. Excepting only Cuba, which barely exceeds it in size, it is the largest island of the western hemisphere outside polar waters. With its cliffs of brown stone rising 200 to 300 feet, broken here and there by deep fjords and bays, Newfoundland has a bleak and barren appearance which belies conditions in many parts of the rolling, timbered interior. Along a number of the streams are fertile valleys in which agriculture and stock-raising flourish."

STORY IN ONE WORD—FISH. "In late years mining, stock-raising the manufacture of wool-pulp and newspaper, and a number of other industries have been developed in Newfoundland, but throughout its more than 400 years of history the central story of the island might be told in one word—fish. Boston and Massachusetts have felt deeply indebted to their 'sacred cod,' but after all that important creature came from the Newfoundland bank; and however valuable it has been to New England, it has meant much more to Newfoundland and through Newfoundland to Great Britain."

"A good case could even be made for the cod as a claimant for a place on the British coast-or-arms; for that lowly fish in a way laid the foundation of the worldwide British Empire. Before the discovery of Newfoundland Britishers were of little importance as seafarers. The great wealth of codfish which John Cabot's finding of the island disclosed immediately, drew the men of the British Isles out of their industry."

"The next year after the discovery—1498—a fleet of Devon fishermen crossed the Atlantic and returned loaded down with fish; and from that time on for centuries the annual crossing and recrossing of the Atlantic took place. The British kings looked upon the voyages of thousands of men to and from Newfoundland as the best kind of training for seamen and deliberately discouraged the settlement of the island in order to perpetuate the fishing from a British base. Great Britain quickly became a seafaring nation; the navy grew, and with its growth the British Empire spread around the world."

IS SELF-GOVERNING COLONY.

"The Newfoundland of to-day has a government in general somewhat like that of Canada. It is not a crown colony but a self-governing, responsible colony with a governor-general appointed by the British king, a premier, and a parliament of two houses."

"Its educational system is unique. Neither the central government nor political divisions maintain public schools. Instead, religious denominations have charge of schools in proportion to their membership, and funds are furnished to these schools by the government. Practically the only un-are usually due to straining when constipated. Nujol being a lubricant keeps the food waste soft and therefore prevents straining. Doctors prescribe Nujol because it not only soothes the suffering of piles but relieves the irritation, brings comfort and helps to remove them. ifying activities of the government are in the laying out of studies and in the giving of examinations at stated periods."

BOOKS AND TALK.

WALT MASON.

I've a volume, bound in leather, wherein sleuths and villains glide, and I won't discuss the weather till I've laid the aside; for a good old fashioned story, with a hero who's a scoundrel, beats a conversation heavy, beats the weather as a theme. I will talk about the weather when I have no book to read, when the neighbors get together, swapping mental chicken-feed; I'll discuss the southeast breeze which may bring a needed rain, and will list to all the wheezes touching corn and other grain; I will talk of oats and barley and grow eloquent on hay; oh, I'll stand around and parley of the goosebore by the day; but I have no use for spelling when I hold a story fine, in the shadow of my shieling, underneath my fig and vine. I don't understand the critter who can argue, talk and plead, who can stand around and twitter, when there is a book to read. Neighbors come across the heather to my coop, at close of day, to discuss the windy weather in their rather windy way; if I have no book I chatter in a style to beat the band, but I bid them scoot and scatter if a novel is at hand.

When I suffer in despair And my nights are filled with care, They, too, leave their joys behind To be comforting and kind.

When my heart with grief is numb, They, too, brave the storm and come To be near me and to share All the burdens I must bear.

Though mild pleasures they might stay In their sunny far-away, Soon I find them calling here, Messengers of faith and cheer.

Screeds O' Tartan Frae Scotland.

(Contributed.)
Rev. Dr. Henderson of Galashiels in the course of his pastoral visitation, called on a widow with a large family, and asked how they all were, and how things were getting on. She said, "A' richt, except Davie; he's been troubled wi' a sair leg, and no fit for work." The doctor could not remember which one Davie was, but did not like to hurt the widow's feelings by betraying his ignorance, and in his prayer he pled that Davie's affliction might be blessed to him. On going home he said to his wife referring to his call "which of the sons is Davie?" "Hoot," she exclaimed, "Davie's no a son. Davie's the Cuddie." (donkey.)

FREE CHURCH MINISTER.
It was a minister of the Free Church of Scotland in the parish of Kilspindie, in the care of Gowrie, in the course of his parochial visitation called at the house of a ploughman where the oldest boy, a lad of ten, had been severely coached by his mother in anticipation of the "visit, and with the hope of his making a good show, when, by and by, the minister took notice of the boy.
"Ay," interposed the mother, "an he can say his Caratches, too."
"Indeed, exclaimed the Minister," still eyeing the lad. How nice! Who made you?"
"God."
"Quite correct. Who redeemed you?"
"Christ."
"Right again. You're a clever little fellow and (putting his hand on his head) who cut your hair?"
"The Holy Ghost," was the reply, and the interview terminated.
Some folks are awfully clever, and try to draw the leg—only sometimes, to wit, the Rev. Walter Morrison, one of the most brilliant preachers of the North of Scotland, and a well-known North Country divine. It is told of this worthy that when he was entertaining the commanding officer of a regiment at Fort George to pardon a poor fellow who had been sent to the halibut, the officer declared he would pardon the culprit a free pardon on the condition that Mr. Morrison should accord with the first favour he (the officer) asked. The preacher at once agreed. The favour was to perform the ceremony of baptism for his young puppy. A merry party was invited to the christening, and much fun was expected at the Minister's expense. But they had been reckoning without their host. On his arrival, Mr. Morrison desired the officer to hold up the pup. "As I am a Minister of the Church of Scotland," said he, "I must proceed accordingly." "The Major, said he, asked no more." "Well then, Major, I begin with the usual question, "You acknowledge yourself the father of this puppy?" The Major saw he had been over-reached, and threw away the animal amid the loud laughter of his brother officers.

Very sharp and stinging was the wit and satire of the well-known Rev. Mr. Thom of Govan. One day when he was preaching before the Magistrates, he is reported to have suddenly halted and said, "Dinna sneer sae loud, Balfie Brown; ye'll waken the Provost." On another occasion, the circumstances of which were very similar, he suddenly stopped in his discourse, took out his snuff-box, tapped it on the lid, and took a pinch of snuff with the greatest deliberation. By this time the whole congregation was agog with eager curiosity to know what was wrong. Mr. Thom, after a little, gravely proceeded to say, "My friends, I've had a snuff, and the Provost has had a sleep, and, if ye like, we'll just begin again."

A county laird, near Govan, who had lately been elevated to the position of a County Magistrate, meeting Mr. Thom one day on horse-back, attempted jocularly by remarking that he was more ambitious than his Master, who was content to ride upon an Ass.
"They canna be gotten noo," replied Thom. "They're a' made Justices of the Peace."
OLD SCOTCH DIVINES.
The quaint homeliness thus manifested in the lesson and in the sermon found a place now and again in the prayers. A West Highland divine, in the course of a wet harvest, in praying for more suitable weather, expressed himself thus—"O Lord, give us mair water for a season, but wind—plenty of wind, an' yet, O Lord, nane o' yer rantin', tantin', teardin' winds, but an' oughin', oughin', winnin' wind." Another good old Minister of the Highlands, similarly circumstanced, prayed—"that the flood-gates of heaven might be shut for a season." This was towards the close of a protracted period of rain and storm, and the weather had never been worse than on this particular Sabbath. And, just as the good man persisted in his petition, a fierce gust of wind bore the roof-window of the church down with a crash, which was succeeded by a terrific clatter of broken glass. "Oh," he exclaimed, assuming an attitude of despair, "O Lord, this is perfectly ridiculous!"

He was more of a philosopher who, when his good lady told him that he did not insist enough when praying for a change of weather, replied, "Nae use o' insistin'! Margot, until the change o' the Mune."

The wife of a distinguished Highland divine had occasion to travel during very cold weather, a number of years ago. One night she rested at a respectable inn in a country village, and on being shown to her bedroom by the rustic chambermaid, the question was put to her:—
"Would you like to have a hot crock in your bed this cauld nicht, mem?"
"A what?" asked the lady.
"A pig, mem. Shall I put a pig in your bed to keep you warm?"
"Leave the room, young woman! This was the indignant response. "Your mistress shall know of your insolence."
"Nae offence, mem," insisted the lassie. "It was my mistress that had me spier, and I'm sure she meant it in kindness."

The lady looked in the girl's face, and now satisfied that no insult was intended, said, in a milder tone, "Is it common, my girl, for ladies to have pigs in their beds?"
"Ay, and gentlemen ha'e them too, mem, when the weather's cauld."
"But you would not surely put the pig between the sheets?"
"If you please, mem, it would do mair guid there."
"Between the sheets? It would dirty them, girl. I could never sleep with a pig between the sheets."
"Nae fear o' that mem! You'll sleep far mair comfortable, till stick the mouth o' tightly, and tie it up in a poke."
"Do you sleep with a pig yourself in cold weather?"
"Na, mem, pigs are only for gentry like persel. Wha lie on feather beds!"
"How do you sleep, then?"
"My neebor lass and I just sleep on Cauf."

"What! you sleep with a calf between you?"
"On, no, mem, ye're jokin' noo. We lie on the top o' it."
When the two came to perfectly understand each other, history telleth not.
It's a hard hard job for the pulpit to please the pew. The ladies have always exercised in Scotland a lively surveillance of the pulpit, and vented many an apt criticism.
"How did you like that young man we had to-day?" was once asked of a discerning village matron.
"Well, I had just three faults to his sermon," was the reply.
"And what were these, if I may ask?"
"Well," said she, "firstly it was read, and secondly, it wasna weel read, and thirdly, it wasna worth readin'." A sweeping criticism and no mistake.

A little band of old women on their way home from the Kirk on the evening of a special day's preaching—shortened the road by discussing the merits of the various divines who had addressed them. When one worthy came thus honestly expressed herself, "Oh, leuze me abune them, an' exclaimed she," for you auld, beid, clear headed man that spoke sae bonnie to the angels. When he said, Raphael sings, and Gabriel tunes his golden harp, and the angels clap their wings wi' joy. Oh, but it was grand." It just put me in mind o' oor gessie at Dunjarg, as they turn their nebs to the South and clap their wings when they see rain."

COMIN' AFTER A LONG DROUTH.
A physician in Dumfries, who was also a member of the Kirk session, meeting the headie "the waur o' a dram" threatened to expose him. "Man, doctor," said the gravedigger, with a twinkle in his eye, "I ha'e happit mony a faut o' yours, an' I think ye might thole ane o' mine."
A reverend and pious gentleman once began his discourse thus—"My dearly beloved brethren, you will Closed for Nearly Two Centuries.

REOPENED IN SHAKESPEARE'S TIME. LONDON, March 31. (By Canadian Press)—After being closed for 187 years, the original doorway between Henry VIII's great Watching Chamber and the gallery leading to the chapel commonly called "The Haunted Gallery," in Hampton Court Palace, has been re-opened. It was through this doorway that Shakespeare's company performed their rehearsals, which took place in the Watching Chamber, and their performances, which were given in the great Hall, passed down the stairs to the gallery together with other "Grooms of the Chamber," and the King's Musicians and "Revels men," to partake of their dinner and a half of beer, and to watch the play from the gallery when they performed at Court. In addition to the associations with Shakespeare's company, this old doorway has many other historic links with the Tudor and Stuart periods. It was through it that Prince Edward, afterwards Edward VI, was carried from his nursery on October 15, 1537, three days after his birth, along the gallery to the Watching Chamber, through the Great Hall, down into the Clock Tower, and so to the chapel, there to be baptised. The procession was very impressive, including many scores of lay ecclesiastics, and great nobles, ambassadors and their suites, all officers of State, and the whole royal household, numbering altogether several hundreds, all carrying waxen torches.

SOME GRISLY EXITS.

Sixteen days after the funeral procession of Prince Edward's mother, as Seymour, passed through the doorway, in the reverse direction, to the Chapel, where the body lay in state for many days. Three years after, another Queen, Catherine Howard, passed through the doorway, under arrest, on her road to the Tower and the scaffold; and it has been linked the romantic legend which has given its name to this gallery. Another victim of the Tower, the ex-Protector Somerset, was hustled along through the doorway by the guards, after his sudden and treacherous arrest in the Council Chamber, in the corner of the Haunted Gallery, on his way to the block—great which his nephew, who resented at Hampton Court, callously carried his head off of this "haunted" gallery. It was in 1584 that Leopold von Wedel, a Prussian nobleman, saw Queen Elizabeth passing through this doorway, going in splendid state to the Chapel, with her bodyguard; several scores of them, with their red hats and their gilt halberds, and all the great nobles of the Court and the Queen's Council. He tells how the people, standing in the gallery—the general public seem to have been admitted, fell on their knees, as the Queen's face turned towards them, exclaiming, "Long live Queen Elizabeth!" She answered graciously with, "Thank you, my good people with all my heart." In 1785 the doorway was finally closed, and the gallery turned into a habitable room. So it remained until some fifteen years ago. Then, in the course of a renovation of Queen's Chamber, reached in 1856 that hereafter it should no longer be used for any occupation, with a view to the gallery being ultimately opened to the public and the old way through reopened, the suite of private apartments which included it was abolished. Its aim has now been accomplished, besides its historic significance. Re-opening of the doorway will be of great convenience to visitors in any way through the State rooms.

Prince in Mikado Land.

FROM JAPAN TO JAPAN VIA CEYLON.

LONDON (Canadian Press)—After spending four months in India, the Prince of Wales, who has been in India, reached the Indian Ocean, where he will record the results of his strenuous and on the whole, pleasant, tour through the various parts of the great Empire of India. But present there is a general British feeling of relief that His Royal Highness has carried out his mission in safety. There is a general acknowledgment that his mission, which was to convey a message of good will to the various peoples of that country, has had a beneficial effect. It has not settled the spirit of unrest among the natives. In short, the Prince's happy smile, coupled with his gracious manner and his abilities as an all-round sportsman, has won him a high regard in India as it has already done in other parts of the British Empire.

CEYLON TO JAPAN.

Now the interest in this Royal visitor shifts to Colombo, the capital of Ceylon, where arrangements have been made for a magnificent reception. The Prince, Colombo has a population of 267,888, and the official residence of the Governor of Ceylon, Excellency Brig-Gen. Sir William Murray Manning, is in that city. From there the Prince will sail for Japan, due to arrive at Yokohama on

There he will be received with all the Oriental grace and attention characteristic of the Japanese, and doubtless his visit to Japan will be exceedingly pleasant, as well as interesting. Among the entertainments arranged in honor of the Prince of Wales at Tokyo are dinner parties at the Japanese Foreign Office, and at the Prime Minister's official residence, and a ball at the British Embassy, Tokyo, Japan, where the Prince will stop a brief period before going to Tokyo. He will be the chief guest at a ball given by the British Colony there.

IN THE LAND OF THE RISING SUN.

The Prince will travel to Nikko on April 18, and after spending two days he will return to Tokyo for one night. Then he will proceed to Odawara and Lake Hakone, visiting Yokohama on the way to unvail an inter-Allied War Memorial Arch, which has been erected on the "Yokohama Cliff" by public subscription. After a short stay at Lake Hakone, the Prince will leave by motor car for Shoji, where he will remain over night and continue on the following day to Lida. From Lida he will the next day, descend the Tenryu-gawa Rapids as far as the railway line, where he will take train to Hikone, on Lake Biwa, for Kyoto. He will devote a week to Kyoto, during which time he will visit Lake Biwa and its island of Chikubushima. After Kyoto two days are allotted to Nara, the old capital of Japan, and His Royal Highness will then proceed to Kobe. A ball will be given at Kobe by the British Colony there. From Kobe he will sail on May 8 and traverse the Inland Sea, possibly calling at the sacred island Miyajima, to Kagoshima, in Kyushu. On May 9 the Prince will leave Japan with the Royal Highness to spend two days. He is expected to return to London in June.

Are You Wearing Wool?

WHAT YOUR SUIT IS MADE OF.

When you order a suit of clothes, you usually make careful inquiries as to whether the material is all wool, and when the tailor assures you that this is the case you feel quite satisfied. But does it ever occur to you to ask where the wool comes from? If you do you will find that it is not by any means all English. Wool is valuable as a material for cloth-making because it is so "crinkly." The finest, softest, silklike wool—which is Saxony—has no fewer than 2,700 crinkles to the inch. Australian wool has 2,400 crinkles, but Leicester-shire wool only 1,800.

You can make blankets of English wool, but for weaving the closer-grained fabrics, such as serges and tweeds, English wool must be mixed with wools from abroad. For instance, to make the cloth known as "Cheviots" English wool is blended with the wool of half-bred New Zealand sheep.

Cape wool is fine, but short, and is good for making shawls, while South American wool is fine in the hair, but apt to be dirty and full of burrs. The burrs can be destroyed by a chemical process, but the wool is generally used for making worsted yarn.

You often see "lamb's wool" mentioned. This is from animals of under six months old. Yearling wool is from sheep aged up to eighteen months, while wool from older animals is known as "fleece."

Fleece is divided into a number of different qualities. Picklock is the choicest; prime the next best. After that come "choice," "super," "head," "seconds," "abb," and "broach." The last is merely the startings and endings of the fleece.

Many very useful fabrics are made of a mixture of cotton and wool. But there are others masquerading as wool which contain cotton. Cotton can be detected by putting a piece of the material in a bath of bleaching liquid, which whitens the cotton but turns the wool yellow.

Sacred Vessels and Church Jewels Confiscated.

MOSCOW, (The Associated Press)—An Aladdin's cave of jewels has been opened by the decision of the Soviet authorities to confiscate some of the treasures of the Russian churches and sell them to feed the famine sufferers. (The Soviet decree issued Feb. 28 directs the seizure of all precious metals and stones "which would not interfere with the interests of the various countries." It has been announced that the All-Russian Central Committee will determine what articles are absolutely necessary for religious purposes and exempt from requisition).

"OUR LADY OF KAZAN"

Most famous of the church treasures, described by the Moscow newspaper Izvestia, is the jewelled icon, "Our Lady of Kazan," at the Kazan Cathedral in Petrograd. It is a representation of the Virgin done in beaten gold, weighing 10 pounds and decorated with 1,656 larger and 1,432 lesser diamonds, 638 rubies, seven sapphires, 1,400 pearls and 155 other jewels; and hung about the neck of the Virgin is a diamond necklace of huge, first water stones. At Peter Paul's Cathedral, also in Petrograd, there is another famous icon, known as the "Jerusalem Holy Lady," in solid gold. It is about two feet square, and contains 38 carats of large diamonds, 13 carats of middle-sized diamonds and 14 and one-quarter carats of smaller stones. Altogether, in this church, says the Izvestia, there are 24 almost equally valuable icons. To St. Isaac's Cathedral, Petrograd, were presented on the day it was opened, a total of 215 articles containing 31 pounds of gold and 4,788 pounds of silver and featuring a shrine was built of solid silver weighing 468 pounds. St. Isaac's also has one icon, 21 inches wide by 28 inches high, done in gold overlay and bearing a wreath in large diamonds. There are a dozen other icons of tremendous value at St. Isaac's alone.

LEGALISED SACRILEGE. While these big Petrograd Cathedrals, which were long favored by royalty, probably contain the most valuable treasures of the Greek Orthodox church in Russia, nearly every one of the estimated 61,000 other cathedrals, monasteries, convents and churches contains objects in gold and silver and jewelled icons are not at all rare, even in the smaller edifices. Royal gifts, donations by pious parishoners and church taxes for centuries went largely TAKING TOLLS—It has been represented to the Telegram by one of the men employed on city relief work that two able bodied men stand at the door of the pay office and seek for money from those who are being paid. Strong objection is taken to this method of getting money and it is suggested that these men should be sent to work, and not allowed to take tolls from those who really work!

Get Together.

GOVERNMENT AND BOARD OF TRADE — SOME PRACTICAL SUGGESTIONS.

Editor Evening Telegram.
 Dear Sir— I think that it cannot be too strongly emphasized that the members of the Board of Trade promoted last Tuesday's meeting only in a spirit of loyal co-operation with the Government so as to help stabilize present conditions and start fishery operations with a fair degree of confidence. In trying to maintain Government expenses which increased nearly three times during the war years of inflation with present export values reduced fully 50 per cent., Newfoundland may well be described as a "cow milking herself."

If the present expenditure and taxation in this country will continue purchasing foodstuffs only, and all other lines will be reduced to a minimum with little prospect of the trade increasing employment. The Board of Trade resolutions were general. Emphasizing the need for reduction in taxation and expenditure, but did not suggest how much the reduction might be and how it might be applied. I think that a strong committee of the Board of Trade should work out a practical proposition suggesting to the Government what changes are needed in the opinion of the Board to enable the fishery to be prosecuted on a paying basis, and also revise the general trade of the country.

For instance, if it is conceded that the estimates and taxation should be cut say 2 1/2 million dollars what portion of the public services are we prepared to abandon this year? $300,000 at least can be saved on steam subsidies, and give the coastal schooner a chance to carry the major portion of freight as in the older days. We certainly cannot afford to pay $300,000 as provided for the Labrador subsidy. By reducing taxation, would not the civil servants be able to live as well if one-quarter million dollars is taken from the present estimates on a percentage basis? This would still leave a majority of the civil servants' salaries 40 per cent. higher than in 1914.

By limiting the branch railways and running two express and a freight train a week across country one and a half million dollars could be saved. The public works, customs, posts and telegraphs departments could also contribute large sums and still function as well as in pre-war days. By removing the 10 per cent. and 25 per cent. surtaxes and the 5 per cent. sales tax 2 1/2 million dollars would be saved in taxation, the revenue would be augmented somewhat by the larger importations; in other words, look for revenue on a big turnover.

These are only a few suggestions which an independent Committee could examine and present in definite form to the Government for consideration. What is needed now is a get together policy. Why not co-operate in a practical manner and in such a way as to provide immediate relief. This is the great essential.

Yours truly,
 WM. WHITE.

Air Ship Material Sold

GOVERNMENT IN LIQUIDATION.
 In view of the fact that the Railway Commission is offering for sale the Mack motor trucks imported last year in connection with the South Branch Coal mines, and the recent sale of the airships at Botwood the inference is that the Government is going into liquidation. The air ships and material which has been stowed away since arriving at Botwood has been disposed of to a company of whom Mr. Fred Dodd is manager. It is understood that the company is negotiating a sale of their purchase to the Japanese government.

Obituary.

The sudden death of Richard Riles at Summerside, Bay of Islands, March 3rd, was one of immense suffering. Richard while coming down a hill in company with James Barry of the same place, while sitting on a small stick across the slide on which he was sitting, it broke and sent some inches into his body, resulting in his death a few days later. What he suffered no one can imagine. Dr. Fisher of Curling was immediately sent for and did all possible to save the life of the suffering man. He is the son of Capt. and Mrs. Riles, Bay of Island having two brothers, one at Wood's Island, and another an employee of the A.N.D. Co., Millertown; one sister at Frankfort, Indiana, U.S.A. To those mentioned his death was a heavy blow. The deceased was married to Miss Sadie Pettas, daughter of Mr. John Pettas, well known in Bay of Islands, and had just settled down in their new home when death paid its visit. R.I.P.

 I am more grateful since using your wonderful D.D.D. for Eczema. My little girl was troubled with Weeping Eczema. I used everything but to no use and I thought D.D.D. would be of no use either. My girl's head became so bad I had to clip her hair off and keep her from school. She got sores all over her body. I used 6 bottles and I am proud to say she is cured. Not a pimple or rash and her skin is clear and white and all the itching is gone. I will recommend D.D.D. to anyone I know who is troubled with Eczema. I am ever so happy and thankful for your wonderful cure.

New York Bans Women Smokers.

BELLES OF GOTHAM MAY NOT ENJOY THEIR CIGARETTES.

NEW YORK (Canadian Press)—Police Commissioner Enright has issued orders for members of the police department to arrest any proprietor or manager of a hotel cabaret or other place of public entertainment who permits women to smoke publicly in their establishments. The commissioner's order was issued pursuant to the text of an ordinance passed recently by the board of aldermen and signed last week by Mayor Hylan. Groups of detectives and policemen immediately started out on tours of amusement places and resorts in Greenwich Village, Harlem, the Bronx, and along Broadway, where blue halos of cigarette smoke had been curling around the heads of women smokers since early evening. They passed the news along to the resort keepers and its announcement brought boos and groans.

There had been no warning of such an order and it was taken as a joke by many. The skeptical were notified individually by policemen, however, and they joined the others in trading their fags under foot. "How hey, sweet dreams," sighed one blond haired young woman as she blew a ring of smoke into the face of a detective and flipped her cigarette over her shoulder. "What joy-killer is responsible for this? And me with a new gold lined tag case worth $20."

WOMEN INDIGNANT.

In the luxuriously furnished woman's smoking room of a theatre on Broadway was the announcer of the order received with what she flapped call "the raspberry." The loungers blew smoke in his face, gave him three rounds of sarcastic ha ha's and chased him. He brought back a policeman and the manager and women were convinced.

Everywhere the announcement raised a storm of indignation. The cry of "Author, Author" who's the author of this blue law? was raised—and went unanswered. The ordinance provides that "no person, firm, partnership corporation or association of whatever character, owning or controlling either as proprietor or manager any hotel, restaurant, place of public entertainment or other public resort in the city of New York in which people meet and congregate, whether for the purpose of refreshments or entertainment shall allow any female to smoke in such place."

WILL KILL BUSINESS.

Violation of the ordinance is punishable by a fine of from five to twenty dollars or by imprisonment of not more than ten days or both. Proprietors and managers of newly opened women's exclusive smoking rooms in fashionable, ultra fashionable, and unfashionable sections of the city seeing in the ordinance the ruination of their business indignantly that they would carry their fight to the highest state courts.
