Why is Parkdale Sighted?

Why is Parkelle Slighted?

Complaint is made by the people in South Parkelle about the lack of trains between 5 and 7 p.m. The recent change in the time table does away with the 5.55 train and gives no accommodation till 6.50. The former train was very convenient and well patronized. The Grand Trunk should have a suburban train to replace the 6 o'clock train. Another complaint is that the train coming from Hamilton and passing Parkelle about 6.30 p.m. does not stop there as it formerly did.

Mr. Wm. Reyaolds of Guelph, Treasurer of the County of Wellington, who is a shareholder and also a depositor of the defunct Central Bank, and of course liable for the double liability, wrote to the liquidators, asking if they would allow his deposit as a set-off to their claim, instead of applying to the court and thereby incurring expense. They replied that they would if the balance were paid at once. Mr. Reynolds accordingly sent a marked check for the amount. He is probably the first shareholder to pay up his double liability. The scheme of having an "Art Fair," by which the two Canadian Artistic Societies would be benefited, was when broached received, so to speak, with open arms, and for weeks past young men and ladies have been drilling in the intricacies of the old English dances. It will be seen that there was much to employ the time of the moneyed visitors.

On the pretty stage which had been erected there was the dance of which so much has been said during the past few weeks, Professor Davis has been busily drilling the dancers in the May Macque. That he has done so to the best of effect was visible. All of the old nursery rhyme celebrities were presented. Mr. Fox as Little John was a most striking figure. The other parts were taken by a host of young people and they took them well. Their singing was first-class for amateurs and the orchestra did them full justice. They were applauded vigorously and often.

hat if the agreement were not specially an eright of the G.P.R. to enter the city from he east would be postponed for a year. The granting of the injunction would work irreparable hardship and wrong to both the city with the railway companies. The injunction would render the agreement of the city with he G.P.R. perfectly worthless. The G.P.R. Act had been amended on the faith of this agreement being railfied. Mr. Biggar went into detail as to this agreement, and then submitted that the plaintiff Clindinning was but a sub-lessee, whose lease would expire in 1898. Yet he came to the court to stop an improvement which was worth millions of dollars to the citizens of Toronto.

Mr. Moss Q.C., replied to the three speeches in favor of the city. He contended that the Council wanted ratification of the agreement without discussion or consideration. If railway matters were unsatisfactory at Toronto it was owing to the city's inertness and inaction. They had power to make the companies do their duty to protect life and prevent accidents. The proposed agreement, was illegal, improper and unnecessary. The funds of the city were to be used to legalize what is at present.

The Vice-Chancelor: Have we any right to enquire into the Council's improvidence?

Mr. Moss: It is an unauthorized transaction—a speculation; and the coart should not allow them to do this. The learned counsel then quoted authorities to show that the courts were in the habit of interfering to prevent corporations doing illegal acts. If the plaintiffs had right to its continuance. The plaintiffs had a right to its continuance. The plaintiffs case had been strengthened by what had transpired in court. The citizens had a right to the water front by agreement, and it was sought to take this right away from them without their cossent. Mr. Clindinning had expended $17,000 on his property on the strength of things remaining as they were. Mr. Dissette had spent $12,000, and other lessees large sums. These persent have substantial property rights, and the law would not tolerate any unnecessary interference with them. He therefore asked for a continuance of the injunction.

The Befent of Friar's Raisam.

LONDON, May 5.—"Oh, what a surprise!"
Such was the burden of everybody's song on Wednesday atternoon at about two minutes after 3 o'clock, when half way up the Rowley Hill they observed. Tem Cannon's heels vigorously at work upon the sides of Friar's Balsam, who just previously had started one of the hettest favorites upon record for the Two Thousand Guineas. The spectators were for the moment dumbfounded, and plungers on the crack received an agravated repetition of the fright which was caused over the same ground three years ago when Paradox, upon whom odds were laid, only secured the verdict by the skin of his teeth from Crafton, then known as the colt by Kisher out of Chopetts. A more sorry exhibition by a hot favorite was never seen, and it is poor consolation to raftet that its very badness was its best excuse, for to suppose that it was true form would be too utterly absurd.

Nor is difficult to assign a cause for his mean display, inasmuch as the peor brute was suffering from an abscesson his jaw. Although it was hoped that this disorder would not materially affect him, as a matter of fact he was attempting an impossible task. While at the post a large quantity of blood and matter was discharged from the wound, and under the circumstances it is mavereless how the horse could bear the bit in his mouth at all. After the race for the Guineas the advice of Mc. Barrow was sought, and that eminent practitioner, having lanced the abscess, gave it as his opinion that he would soon be all right again.

The Frinr's Balsam case has assumed a new phase. It may be wondered how a horse could be thus affected without the injury being detected, but this is accounted for by the fact that the Balsam was never known to leave an oat since the abscess made its appearance.

Here is to be seen the grandest display of fishing tackle in the Dominion. The sales department is complete and occupies the ground floor, which is 30 by 62 feet. On one side is every variety of red, hook, bait, float and the thousand requisites of the piscator. On the other is a collection of the firm's specialties in needles, pins and smallwares. In the offices are the diplomas and medals which the firm have won at the principal exhibitions throughout the world. Prominent amongst these are the awards at the International Fisheries Exhibition, Londen, Eug., in 1883, when the Canadian exhibit, comprising admirable specimens of rods, hooks, etc., and valued at $1000, was sent from Torouto by Allcook, Laight, & Westwood. These are also to be seen those obtained at the Torouto exhibitions, at which the firm took the highest awards whenever it exhibited.

In the basement is a cool store for lines, rods and other tackle that will not bear dry exposite. Here is a large assortment of bamboo poles from Japan and Calcutta. At the sides are racks for brass-drawn tubings, which are cut into required lengths for fitting up fishing-rods.

which are out into required lengths for fitting up fishing ruds.

The firm manufacture rods of every kind on the premises, and interesting it is to see the various processes. From the rough they are brought to the most finished state, and are models of excellence of workmanship. There are various specialties, the "Toronto" and "Washaba" rods being highly prized. No one save the house in England knows the socret of the latter rod, which is the most nopular in the market. It possesses great elasticity and strength, and is used for trout and bass fishing. At the rear is the shipping room, where large quantities of rods, etc. are ready for immediate despatch. The firm has travelers in raious districts, their trade extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific. The goods are uniformly high-class, and according to their quality and finish is the price. This ranges from the ordinary rate to some extraordinary figures. Their English house, S.
