NOTE AND COMMENT

Lies say to Germany: "You'll get justice!" "Gott in Himmel!" comes back the answer: "Anything but that!"

Cheese was selling in Northern New York markets at 14 cents a pound last week, the lowest in six years.

There is plenty of ginger in little Jamaica which has voted fourteen million dollars towards the British war debt, says the Winnipeg Tribune.

If people desire to see prosperous conditions restored, they must act as though they had confidence in the future and not as if they thought the world was coming to an end.

Any person who thinks he is the most important drive wheel in the machinery should take a rest for a few days. He will be surprised how well the work will go on without him.

The Ontario branch of the Dominion Alliance find themselves in debt to the amount of $30,000 after the recent contest for the stopping of liquor shipments into the province. Men are a good deal like beans. If the soil is too rich, they are likely to run more to pod than to bean.

As the Kansas City Star remarks the Germans must not only pay the mark but toe it.

More than two years after the armistice, nearly 200 bodies of American soldiers have been discovered hidden in recesses of the Argonne Forest according to cable advice from Paris.

"Short skirts, etc., banned." Daily paper. We don't particularly object to the banning of the short skirt, but if the etcetera is also to be removed, we think it time to raise our voice in protest.

Under the American law a doctor can prescribe 96 bottles of beer per month for each patient. This totals up 1,152 bottles a year. There is going to be a lot of lingering illness over the border. But it will be borne with great fortitude.

The scratch of a lion's claw is almost as deadly as his bite, for he never cleans his nails, and he always carries under them rotting meat that is rank with deadly germs. Flies do the same thing on a smaller scale; and don't forget that they never wipe their feet.

The Dominion Government paid nearly $200,000 in legal fees in settling the Winnipeg strike. Lawyers are a reasonable class of people. The smaller the fish the smaller the feast, the larger the fish the larger the feast. In this instance, apparently, it was a whale they harpooned.

The crown prince of Japan will remain in London, Eng., until May 29, when he will visit France incognito, sailing from France late in the summer for Japan, where in the fall he will welcome the Prince of Wales to Japan, either before or after the British heir's visit to India. In this connection, efforts are still being made to have Prince Edward visit Canada and the United States en route to India.

Empire Day was probably more generally observed throughout Canada Monday than ever before, and from many points have come reports of patriotic celebrations by school children. In the great majority of cases the celebrations took place in the daytime, having been preceded by "talks" and music bearing on the life and character of Queen Victoria and on the British Empire.

Registry offices have been notified officially of the passing of a bill in the Ontario Legislature, which imposes another new provincial tax, which will go into effect on the first of June next. This bill provides that a tax of one-fifth of one per cent. shall be levied upon the amount of the purchase price paid by the party registering all transfers, conveyances, deeds, instruments, or writings whereby any land, tenements or other realty is sold. It is also directed that the registrar shall collect the tax before registering the transfer or other deeds.

Benjamin Franklin in a letter to Abbe Mouellet of Paris said "that the wickedness of man before the flood was due to their being nothing but water to drink." Noah had such a sickness of water whilst in the ark that he invented wine, and thereafter—with the exception of one lapse from sobriety—trod the path of virtue till death came. With his letter Franklin sent the Abbe some drawings to prove that whereas all other animals with long legs have long necks, so that they can drink easily from the rivers and streams, man has a short neck. He evidently was meant to drink easily out of a glass, but Providence intends that the inferior animals shall drink water. One wonders whether this theory is an explanation of the number of hold-ups that America is experiencing.

Toronto Mail and Empire.—Objection to the trade unions on the ground that they specifically aim to increase the wages and the working conditions of their membership have not been raised for a long time. But events of the past few months have brought upon some of them sharp criticism and condemnation on the part of the general public. The action of many of them in threatening or actually bringing about strikes, on several occasions while the war was in progress, and later on the scandalous behavior of the English miners have created for the trade unions millions of critics who previously displayed sympathy with the men in their labor disputes. How the unions have added to the increased cost of production by strictly limiting the amount of work a man shall do in a day, an amount that is only a fraction of what an energetic workman could do, is becoming a matter of general censure. Trade unions are on trial to-day as they have not been for more than a generation.

THE GEOGRAPHY OF BUSINESS SHOULD BE TAUGHT IN OUR SCHOOLS

(St. Thomas Times-Journal)
Consideration of the clothes you wear, the food you eat, and the thousand and one articles you see and touch every day, and which touch your daily life, cannot but arouse in you an interest in the geography of business. This, in turn, is leading in England to the teaching of business geography. It is a move in the right direction and one too long delayed. Of course, the motive is imperial. It is worth while for little boys and girls in the United Kingdom to know that Canada is the granary of the Empire, that oranges and tangerines, grapes, peaches, plums and pears have come thousands of miles across the ocean from South Africa, that Tasmania grows apples for the London trade, and that Australian eggs, currants and dried fruits are as fine as any in the world. The knowledge that this is so must help to build up a pride in the empire as well as a familiarity with its products. Carried to its logical conclusion, it must eventually have a considerable influence upon the buying of the British public.

School geographies are infinitely better than those of 20 or 30 years ago—better written, better illustrated, better all around—but the text book is not all. The teacher whose class work is perfunctory, whose interest is only in isthmuses and promontories and peninsulas finds it easy indeed to rob geography of any interest it might possess. The teacher who gives instruction in physical geography in the back yard when it rains, and who teaches commercial geography by reference to desks and lead pencils, cotton shirts and woolen trousers, wooden seats and pictures about the walls, is serving better, perhaps, than she knows.

Geography should be the most interesting, the most altogether fascinating, of all subjects taught in the grades, richer even than history in opportunity for teacher and pupil alike. It is usually the most neglected and worst taught subject in the whole curriculum. Canada could well afford to follow Britain's imperial plan and begin to utilize the splendid possibilities of moving pictures in the teaching of geography.

A SMILE OR TWO

Ethel.—Hasn't Miss Hunt got searching eyes?
 May.—She ought to have them. She's been looking for a husband for twenty years.

A lady had been looking for a friend for a long time, without success. Finally she came upon her in an unexpected place. "Well," she exclaimed, "I've been on a wild goose chase all day long, but thank goodness I've found you at last."

The welfare worker glanced around apprehensively as she entered the humble dwelling. "Are you not afraid to live here? I do not see any fire escape." "Law, no, miss. I don't need one," returned the satisfied slum dweller. "Whenever the cops come up after me I make my get-away over the roof."

A country doctor went to a city to see noted experts in his line, and have an operation performed on himself. "Don't you know," they said to him, "that operations are for patients, and not for doctors?" And the country doctor returned home without an operation.

"Those," he said, "are the graves of the former owner's ancestors."
 "Our ancestors," his wife broke in proudly, "are all living."

A cloth manufacturing firm received a letter from a customer complaining that some material had been received full of moths. By return post went a missive to this effect: "On looking over your order we find that you did not order any moths. It was our error, and you will please return them at our expense."

An old man and an old woman were standing before the pigsty looking at their only pig, when the old woman said: "John, it will be our silver weddin' tomorrow. Shall we kill the pig?"

John replied with a look of disgust "What's the good of murdering the poor pig for what happened 25 years ago?"

Efficiency Expert—A man who brings home everything his wife told him to.

Appendix—Something which looks like a new motor car to the doctor.

Prohibition—Nobody's baby, but the bootlegger's darling.

Nothing—The stuff used to make the back of a modern evening gown.

Daylight Saving—A change in time welcomed by persons who never see the sun rise.

"Pap," said the colored youth, "A'd like you to expatiate on de way dat de telegraph works." "Dat's easy 'nuf, Rastus," said the old man. "Hit am like this. Ef dere was a dawg big 'nuf so his head could be in Toronto an' his tail in Montreal, den' ef you tromp on his tail in Toronto he'd bark in Montreal. Understan', Rastus?" "Yes, pap! But how am de wireless telegraph?" For a moment the old man was stumped. Then he answered easily: "Jess preactly de same, Rastus, wid de exception dat de dawg am 'maginary."

The story, or a variation of it is familiar probably to half the story-telling public: A wealthy Jew died, leaving his property to his three sons, subject to the condition that each put a hundred dollars in his coffin, as he did not wish to cross over without money. After the funeral the brothers compared notes. "I put in a hundred tollars 'in golt," said Isaac. "I put in a hundred tollars in greenpaks," said Jacob. Louis was silent. "Vot did you put in?" demanded the brothers in chorus. "I confessed Louis, 'put in a check for three hundred tollars and took out der change." And there is the place to laugh, if it is new to you.

But now comes Perry Daniels, with substantially the same story, but he adds: "When Louis got his bank book balanced on the first of the month following, he found the check had been cashed. The undertaker was a Scotsman."

One of the best flowing gas wells in the district has been struck at a level of 500 feet on the farm of E. E. Jackson, about seven miles from Sarnia.

LOCAL PASTORS HONORED

The Strathroy district annual meeting was held at Mt. Brydges on Wednesday and Thursday of last week. All the business of gathering statistics as to membership and church finance including minister's salaries and connexional funds and tabulating them for the annual conference is attended to at this meeting, also recommendations and resolutions pertaining to the interest of the work.

There was a vacancy caused in the Chair of the district owing to Rev. J. C. Reid being transferred to Rev. Montreal conference. This necessitated an election to occupy the chair till the close of the Conference sessions which convene in Askin St., London on Wednesday of next week. This honor and responsibility was given to Rev. A. C. Tiffin of Watford, and graciously acknowledged by him. Rev. R. W. Miller of Mt. Brydges was elected as representative on the Stationing Com., with Rev. T. A. Steadman as alternative. This Committee meets prior to the convening of Conference on Monday and Tuesday next. The first draft of stations will probably appear on Wednesday morning. The final draft will be completed a few days later on Monday evening, June 6th. The Strathroy district embraces the following circuits: Strathroy, Petrolia, Watford, Alvinston, Mt. Brydges, Melbourne, Appin, Brooke, Oil Springs, Oil City, Eddy's Mills, Kerwood, Warwick, Cairngorm and Arkona.

The amount of money contributed for the various connexional funds is considerable as the following will indicate. Ministers personal subscription to the Superannuation fund $618; Circuit Subscriptions to same fund $1593; Educational fund $550; General Conference fund $347; General S. S. fund $247; Contingent fund $58; Evangelism and Social Service $589; General Y. P. S. $30; Sustentation fund $279; Annual Conference fund $275; Church and Parsonage aid fund $24. A grand total of $3710. This does not include the Missionary fund which will be a little over $7000, and the Ministers salaries totaling $22550.00.

The next annual meeting will be held in Kerwood where a beautiful new church is being erected. The financial meeting will be held in Oil Springs.

The School and Community Fair Papers made by the High School Students have been judged and the prizes awarded as follows: 1st Prize—$1—Winnifred Fuller. 2nd Prize—75c—Rufus Botsford. 3rd Prize—50c—Minnie Wright. 4th Prize—35c—Gladys Kersey. 5th Prize—25c—Florence Lovell.

The first three prizes were offered by the Women's Institute but in recognition of the excellent work done on the other two Col. Kenward adds the 4th and 5th prizes.

There were also two original and cleverly executed posters handed in by Eulalie Logan and Nellie Kinnell to help in advertising the School Fair but not in competition with the 1st and 2nd Prizes for the prizes.

All the posters are now on exhibition in the window of J. W. McLaren's drug store. Don't fail to see them and note the happy expression on the faces of the vegetables wending their way to the Armory. Would that all the Irish were in the amiable mood of those two "Cobblers."

The judges on Posters were Col. Kenward, Mr. Mahon and Mr. Shrapnell.

TEA TAX

The new budget having imposed a Sales Tax of 1 1/2% on tea, the onus is placed upon the Salada Tea Company of charging this on their invoices to the grocers, and after collection to pay it to the Inland Revenue Department. This is the only tax the consumer of Salada need pay to the grocer.

There is a further tax of 2 1/2% on importations of tea which the Salada Tea Company are paying themselves, and this is not being passed along to the grocers or the consumers.

The ANDREWS WIRE WORKS OF CANADA LIMITED

Mr. Jas. Forrest is spending his holidays in Welland.

Miss Valeria Routley visited in Sarnia last weekend.

Mr. Arthur Shrier spent the weekend at his home in Strathroy.

Mr. Gordon Willoughby and Mr. Chas. Gardner enjoyed the holiday at Rock Glen.

Messrs. Wm. Clothier, Carman McCormick, Karl Newell and Roy Hollingsworth attended the motorcycle race in Forest on the 24th.

They say that office girls know nothing about housework—just ask our girls how they spent the 24th.

The employees of our factory who remain on duty Saturday morning are busily engaged erecting the braces to the centre line shaft in the new building.

Perhaps this is a secret but it's so good we just simply can't keep it to ourselves any longer. They are planning the big shop picnic for Saturday, June 25th, and everyone of us who has attended one of these events in years gone by knows that a shop picnic means one grand and glorious day not soon to be forgotten.

The time for vacations is at hand and we are each looking forward to our holidays this summer. The office staff will have an additional week this year and factory employees will have two weeks. The vacation period will start next Monday and continue to Sept. 1st. Plans are being made by each for a most enjoyable and profitable vacation.

A full attendance was recorded at the meeting of the Androck Association last Friday evening. In addition to the Watford members we had Messrs. Haldane, Campbell and Cav- throp of the Strathroy shop who motored over bringing with them our guest of the evening, Mr. W. Geddes, also of Strathroy. After shop matters had been discussed a bountiful dinner was served under the capable supervision of Mrs. Walter Cooke Jr. Mr. Geddes then gave us a very interesting talk on Production, Transportation and Distribution and features which brought about the present break in the economic condition of the world. Mr. Geddes having made numerous trips into Germany, his last visit there having been during mobilization in 1914, was able to give us an exceptionally clear insight into the huge effort the Germans were then putting forth to gain control over the Commercial World and sounded a note of warning to manufacturers of the allied countries saying that they must ever be on their toes from now on, for while Germany has been defeated in her military program she is by no means defeated in her commercial program.

SUSAN RANDALL
The subject of this sketch whose maiden name was Martin, was born in the Parish of St. Teath, County of Cornwall, England, on the fifteenth of March, 1841. Her childhood days were spent in the quaint English village. Finally, however, the glowing reports that were reaching them of that wonderful new country of Canada proved too much and the family decided to emigrate. After an ocean voyage of six weeks and a long tedious journey inland they finally settled on lot 28, 10th concession of Plympton. At that time, 1850, this part of the country was virgin forest. The deceased did her full share of the work necessary to make of the wilderness a comfortable home. In the year 1862 the deceased was united in marriage to William Randall of the 4th line, Warwick, and to them were born, six children, two boys, who died in early childhood, and four girls, who reached mature years. The deceased seemed to have more than her share of trouble, her husband being almost blind for several years and then his death, followed within a few years by the death of the four daughters, seemed almost too much for a woman not over-strong, but she had a living faith in God and was never heard to murmur. She had a cheerful disposition and seemed to be satisfied wherever her lot was cast, always looking forward to meeting her loved ones, when she had crossed the Bar. Having reached the age of 80 years she was enjoying her usual health, but while paying a short visit to the home of her nephew, Mr. Frederic Wynne, near Watford, she had an attack of pleurisy which quickly developed into double pneumonia and death came on the 17th inst. Of a family of six one member now survives, namely, Mrs. Robert Mathews, of Warwick. The funeral was held from the home of Mr. Wynne on Thursday, 19th, at Arkona cemetery, the service being conducted by the Rev. Rayner. The pallbearers were a son-in-law, Wm. Stephenson, and five nephews, viz: Geo. Mathews, Ben Smith, Alonzo Mathews, Fred Wynne and Thomas Martin.

The Better Way

BY EVELYN CLAIRE FORTNER

Profound silence reigned in the great library. Outside the birds sang and the world looked bright and fair. But inside, in the rich, old room, the marks of conflict showed plainly on the faces of mother and son.

"Well Anthony, I am waiting for your answer." It was the woman who spoke. A tall, handsome woman with a haughty face crowned with a wealth of jet black hair. She tapped with her long, manicured fingers, the highly polished table.

"I'm sorry. There is no answer," replied the man. He raised his thin, dark face to observe the effect of his words upon the woman. One could see at a glance that he was scarcely more than a boy though his face showed lines of dissipation.

At his words, the eyes of the woman blazed angrily and she turned even paler as she drew herself to her full majestic height and said finally.

"Very well, Tony. From now on you shall not touch a cent of my money and you shall leave this house to-day. I shall pay up all your standing debts and your travelling expenses, whenever you wish to go. I might have expected you would follow in your father's footsteps. You have disgraced me as he did. Now go." She pointed to the door and then turned her back upon the son, who had wounded her pride, as his father before him, had done.

At eighteen years of age, Margaret Armstrong, as the last of the Morten heirs, had inherited a large estate. At the age of twenty-one she had married, and brought to her beautiful country home, a poor artist. Anthony Armstrong was good-natured and kind but weak and dissolute. Five years after their marriage he died, as a result of his dissipation, after having squandered a great deal of his wife's money and wounded her pride.

One son, Anthony Armstrong, Junior, had been born to them. He was like his father, in that he was artistic and rather wild. From his mother he inherited the Morten pride. On him, the mother lavished her love. She allowed him to grow up almost as he pleased. As a result he was, at nineteen, spoiled and ungoverned, though kind and noble at heart.

Tony Armstrong moved in the town's fast set. He began to gamble and to frequent notorious gambling houses. For a time Margaret Armstrong was almost totally unaware of her son's wild ways. She moved little in society and stayed at home in the big house, nursing her grief and wounded pride.

Thus it came as a great shock to her, when she overheard from the servants of "Mr. Tony's gambling scandal." At first she would not, could not believe it. Then when Tony came home she summoned him to the library and told him the story she had heard, and asked him to deny it. And Tony had said that there was no answer. He could not deny it.

Then it was that his mother's anger rose. Her heart became hard and bitter. Again she would be disgraced and by an Armstrong. The noble name and house of Morten would be dragged in the dust of public scandal. She could not stand it. She decided to send away out of her sight forever,—this cruel son of hers.

Mrs. Anthony Armstrong loved her son, but she was proud. Pride was her besetting sin.

Everyone, from the servants upward, knew of and feared Margaret Armstrong's pride. Even her son quailed before it.

So it was that Tony Armstrong understood that his mother's words, in the old Morten library, that day, were final. Proudly, like a Morten, he gathered up his personal belongings and left the home of his childhood, to begin work, as an artist, in another city.

For Margaret Armstrong, the months that followed, in the great lonely house, were months of self-torture and gloom. Often her love for Tony, wrestled with her foolish pride, but almost always the latter won in the battle. Sometimes she found herself wondering how things would have turned out, if she had chosen the other way, and had not sent Tony away. Almost, she wished she had.

Six weary years crept by and the proud Mrs. Anthony Armstrong sat in her great library, alone as usual. She made a noble picture, as she sat before the fire-place, reclining in a massive, carved chair, against whose crimson velvet, her black head rested royally. A huge mastiff lay at her feet, peacefully sleeping. The fire-light played on her handsome features and satiny hair. The rest of the room was in shadows, except when the light flickered over the many bookcases, and the small gleaming statues. Outdoors the wind sighed wistfully, among the trees, and the curtains on the long windows, swayed in the breeze, like ghostly arms.

Mrs. Armstrong's face was paler than was wont and many new lines had appeared in it. She sat for, perhaps, an hour, thinking—and yes—regretting a little. Then as she rose to retire for the night, sudden pains shot through and through her head. She turned white as marble, and reeling, fell forwards onto the velvet rug, in a dead faint.

When she regained consciousness she was lying in her great carved bed, with the old family doctor bending over her.

"How-do-do Mrs. Armstrong! You are a fine kind of a lady to get sick," he said briskly, looking searchingly into the tired, sad eyes of the sick woman. Then Margaret Armstrong asked listlessly, "What's wrong with me Doctor? Am I very sick?"

"I'm afraid you're in for a few months in bed, Mrs. Armstrong. A case of nerves, I think. I've telephoned to New York for a nurse. She will be here to-morrow."

The nurse proved to be a sweet-faced girl, competent and cheerful; but for three weeks Mrs. Armstrong was too ill to notice her at all. For a time, she hovered between life and death and when finally she began to recover she was a changed woman. The old haughty pride had vanished completely, leaving a yearning, humble love in its place. The mother in Mrs. Anthony Armstrong had wakened afresh and was calling for her only child, Tony, the boy whom she had sent away.

As she grew stronger, she became interested in the nurse, Elsie Adair, and as the weeks slipped by, she grew to love her; to love her as she would a daughter. To Elsie she confessed the story of her proud, unhappy life. She told her of the artist husband. She told her eagerly of Tony; her little boy, she called him. She bade Elsie bring to her the toys and playthings of the absent son.

She showed to her, with pride, the little sketches and drawings which Anthony had done in earlier years. At these the young nurse looked interestedly.

"Isn't it odd, dear Mrs. Armstrong, she said one day, "that you have an artist son and I have an artist lover?"

"Have you?" The older woman started slightly.

"Yes, indeed," she replied blushing and bending her flower-like head. "He is a New York artist, but not yet one of the New York artists. You see I became acquainted with him, when he came as a patient to our big hospital, about six years ago. He was almost down and out, he told me, and that he had disgraced his people. I had to coax him a bit and cheer him up to make him get well. When he left the hospital he had decided to begin life over again and be a better man. He came back to look me up and thank me again."

Here the girl laughed softly and "I became better acquainted and I found that he was doing splendidly in his work—painting. We kept up our friendship, and a year ago he told me he loved me." Here the girl's voice sank low and her grey eyes shone like twin stars. Then she finished, "And oh Mrs. Armstrong, I love him so, and when he comes back from his trip to the mountains, where he has gone to paint, we are going to be married."

"And his name?" The voice of Tony's mother was strained and eager, as she raised herself on elbow, her face flushed.

"His name," Elsie answered, "is Andy Morland." Tony's mother sank back on her pillows. Her face looked suddenly grey and old.

"Oh Elsie Adair," she cried, taking the girl's hand in hers. "I do hope he makes you happy, for I have grown to love you dearly. Oh how I wish Tony had turned out like your Andy. I wish, Elsie, too, that I had chosen the better way and had not sent my boy away." She began to weep softly and the girl rose, and kissing her softly, said coaxingly.

"Come now, my patient must do better than this. Mrs. Armstrong why not advertise for your son in the papers? Write a notice in the personal columns telling him you want him to come back to you. I am sure that if he sees it, he will come back."

"I have thought of that. I believe I shall try it. It cannot do any harm and it may bring good results. Please bring me ink and paper."

The girl complied and soon notices were written to the leading papers. In the days that followed, they waited anxiously for results.

One evening they sat together in the huge, old library. Mrs. Armstrong sat in an invalid's chair and Elsie Adair sat at her feet, the fire-light playing on her bronze head and sweet face. Suddenly the door opened and on the threshold stood a tall, dark man. As each woman turned there was a cry—"Oh Tony!"

"Andy!" The man looked from one to the other in amazement and then sprang forward and folded them both in his arms.

"Mother how I have longed for you! And Elsie, to have you here! I have just come back from the mountains and I have been unable to receive my mail for a long time. I have come gladly, Mother, at your call; and I am doubly repaid to find Elsie here."

"Why I thought Elsie told me that her fiancée's name was Andy—Andy Morland. What does it all mean?" the bewildered Mrs. Armstrong asked gazing from one to the other.

"I changed my name to Andy Morland when I went to New York. You see I didn't want to bring further disgrace on your name. You have forgiven me, have you not Mother? All I am now, I owe to Elsie Adair."

He turned to the nurse, as he spoke, and a smile of complete understanding passed between them.

Margaret Armstrong, watching breathless a prayer of thanksgiving that she had found a daughter and had been given back a son. The fire-light played upon the happy faces and peace, like a benediction, stole over the soul of Mrs. Anthony Armstrong.

To him that hath shall be given

Was the Biblical version of our modern saying: "Nothing succeeds like success." So it was with Dr. Pierce, of Buffalo, N. Y., who, over 30 years ago, gave to the world a Prescription which has never been equalled as a tonic for the weakness of women. Many women in every hamlet, town or city will gladly testify that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription did them a world of good. Ask your neighbor. Another of this great physician's successful remedies is known as Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and, like the "Prescription," is now sold by druggists everywhere, in both liquid and tablet form. This medicine was a success from the start, for the list of men and women all over the universe who have successfully used it for indigestion and as a blood tonic and system builder, makes an amazing total of thousands.

QUEER LAWSUITS

A few years ago a wounded Italian officer brought suit to obtain a decision as to the rightful ownership of a bullet extracted from his body. Both doctor and nurse claimed it, but the officer contended that it was legally his.

The judge gave his decision in favor of the officer. He found that the projectile, once discharged from the gun, ceased to belong both to the man who fired it and to the country that entrusted it to him. The officer discovered it in his body. The surgeon, assisted by the nurse, merely brought the projectile to light. Hence the officer was entitled to keep it.

When a French abbe left one village to take up work in another the mayor and the citizens of the town he was leaving lighted a bonfire in the road to speed the departing one, and in other ways showed that they were overjoyed to see the last of him. The abbe thought himself insulted and brought action for damages, but as he was unable to show any cause the case was dismissed.

A very stout man who bought a third-class ticket at an English railway found that he could not enter the narrow doorway of a third-class compartment. Accordingly, he went into a first-class compartment, the doors of which were wider, and refused to pay the excess fare. The railway company sued him for the balance, and the man had to pay both that and the costs, for the court decided that this could not have been his first offence, and that, knowing that he could not squeeze through the door of a first-class compartment, he ought to have purchased a first-class ticket.

After telling a barber to trim his beard, an American fell asleep in the chair. He woke up clean shaved. His beard, twelve inches in length of which he was very proud, was gone. He sued the barber for $1,000 and received $100.

ORIGIN OF POPULAR SAYINGS

"A red-letter day" is an expression which arose out of the old Ecclesiastical Calendar, in which festivals and high holidays were printed in red ink. These important days consequently became known as "Red-letter Days"—hence the term to-day. "Murder will out" is a phrase which Geoffrey Chaucer originated, although in the first instance it was spelt "Mordre wol out." "Truth is stranger than fiction" is a well-used saying, and perhaps it is not generally known that it was originally employed by Byron in his "Don Juan". "Escaped with the skin of his teeth" it is interesting to observe, originates in the Bible—Job, chapter 19, verse 20. "Field" originally meant land on which trees had been "felled" or "field." "Necessity is the mother of invention" is well over two and a half centuries old. These well-worn words were first found in Frank's "Northern Memoirs," written in 1658. "Eaten her out of house and home," a phrase, in view of the present price of food, undoubtedly repeated by worried housewife, was originated by Shakespeare in his "Henry IV." "Anything for a quiet life" is an expression which arose from a play by Middleton, bearing that title. "Turn over a new leaf," by the way, was first used in the same play.

TINSMITHING PLUMBING

THE NEW POSTOFFICE SITE

W. E. Fitzgerald, one of the guarantors that are fetching the Dominion Chautauqua here secured permission from the Public Works Department of Canada, that the Dominion Chautauqua may use the ground west of the Armory here on July 9, 11, 12 and 13 for carrying out their program and Mr. Fitzgerald, also as a director of the Watford Horticultural Society and on their behalf received permission from the Public Department to use and decorate the ground where the new postoffice is to be erected.

On Tuesday Mr. Fitzgerald received a further communication from J. E. Armstrong, M. P., about the matter, enclosing a copy of a letter written by the Deputy Minister of Public Works to Mr. Armstrong which is as follows:—

Office of the Deputy Minister, Ottawa,

13th May, 1921.

Dear Mr. Armstrong,—

I am obliged for your favour of the 7th instant, which was duly received, advising that the Horticultural Society of Watford and the Dominion Chautauqua are working in unison and that portions of the Dominion Public Building site are being decorated.

My understanding is, as you state, that the present difficult financial situation of the country will prevent anything being done this year in Watford, and, therefore, no study has been given the location of a building on the site. This will be dealt with when funds are provided for the erection of a building.

Yours truly,

J. B. HUNTER,

Deputy Minister.

The Oil of the People.—Many oils have come and gone, but Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil continues to maintain its position and increase its sphere of usefulness each year. Sterilized qualities have brought it to the front and kept it there, and it can truly be called the oil of the people. Thousands have benefited by it and would use no other preparation.

Why "Auto-Shoes"?

We figure that any automobile casing has a right to be called a "tire"—whether it's good, bad or indifferent. And we agree with the opinion that an exceptionally good casing deserves a distinctive name.

Ames Holden "Auto-Shoes" are miles better in performance than ordinary tires. That has been proved to our satisfaction. So we think it's a good idea to identify such unusual mileage givers by an easy-to-remember name—"Auto-Shoes."

The main purpose of the name is to help you to get cheaper mileage. The guarantee behind Ames Holden "Auto-Shoes" insures that you get it. If necessity for adjustment should ever arise you will find that you will get satisfaction without trouble or red tape.

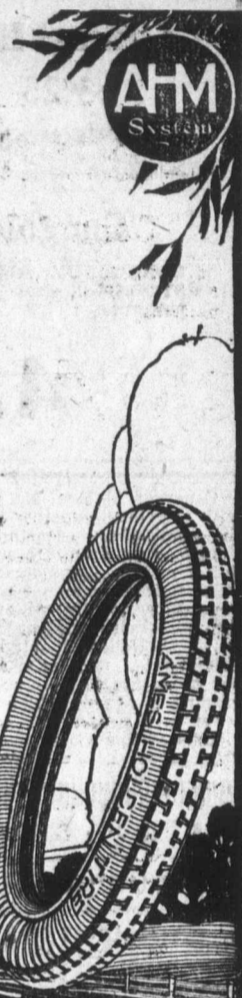

They are the principal advantages that go with the name Ames Holden "Auto-Shoes." Drop in and let us show you the tires themselves.

IF WE LOSE THE BACON HOG

The Death Warrant of Our Export Trade.

The following extract from a pamphlet entitled, "The Bacon Hog and the British Market," prepared in 1916 by the late Mr. John Bright, and Mr. H. S. Arkell, Dominion Livestock Commissioner, defines the position today of the heavy hog in Canada very plainly:—

"There is no sound argument for the production of the fat hog in Canada. We have long since been forced out of that business because of the peculiarly strong advantages possessed by the United States in the marketing facilities and outlet for the product of that type of hog. The nature of our home and export demand makes the bacon hog the necessary type for the Dominion. To produce the fat hog economically the feeding of large quantities of cheap corn is an absolute necessity and the greater part of the hog output of the United States is produced in the corn belt. Canada cannot begin to produce a similarly large amount of cheap corn and fat hogs cannot be produced for competitive marketing unless grown on corn."

"There is a certain rigid home demand for our fat hogs but as soon as this demand has been supplied and the attempt made to dispose of the surplus in Great Britain we should find ourselves put out of business by American competition. If we lose the bacon hog we sign the death warrant of our export trade in hog products."

"If we are to make our Canadian product the bacon of the British people then the words 'Canadian Wiltshire side' must be a guarantee of standard type and quality. Failure to meet requirements by not producing the desired uniformity of type is a condition which must not be tolerated. We must conform to market requirements. Close adherence to type by the farmer, together with proper feeding, and a similar degree of care in the curing and marketing by the packer, will steadily build up a reputation for quality and uniformity, such that the position of our bacon in relation to other brands will be steadily improved. The British market is inexorable in its demand for the choicest quality."

Lambton County druggists met in Petrolia last week when the county situation was reviewed and plans for the forthcoming Retail Druggists meeting in Toronto which will occur with the fiftieth anniversary of the Ontario College of Pharmacy discussed. Druggists were in attendance from Sarnia, Petrolia, Watford, Bridgen Forest and practically every centre in the county that boasts of a drug store. The majority present were graduates of the Ontario College of Pharmacy and the fact that the annual convention and the fiftieth anniversary of their old school would be held at the same time created more interest than usual. Lambton County will likely send a large number of the O.C.P. Jubilee.

Cause of Asthma. No one can say with certainty exactly what causes the establishing of asthmatic conditions. Dust from the street, from flowers, from grain and various other irritants may set up a trouble impossible to be relieved except through a sure preparation such as Dr. J. D. Kellogg's Asthma Remedy. Uncertainty may exist as to cause, but there can be no uncertainty regarding a remedy which has given relief to a generation of asthmatic victims of this scourge of the bronchial tubes. It is sold everywhere.

MINISTERS MUST REGISTER

In the future all clergymen who perform a marriage ceremony will have to be registered with the Provincial Secretary. This is the result of the bill to amend the Marriage Act which passed at the last session of the Legislature. And the penalty for any clergyman marrying two people without being registered is a fine of $500. It is the intention of the Government to keep track of all clergymen who solemnize marriages and whenever the Provincial Secretary is satisfied that the person registered to perform the marriage ceremony has ceased to possess the qualifications entitling him to be so registered the registration will be revoked. This act comes into force about July 15th after proper proclamation by the Lieutenant Governor. It is expected that by this time all ministers and those entitled to perform the marriage ceremony will have been registered. Registration need not be made personally, but the ecclesiastical authority or authorities of the church, religious denomination or congregation to which the party belongs may do the registration. Issuers of marriage licenses, who in the past have been mostly jewelers, can carry on for the next couple of months. After that it is the clerk of the municipality who is to be the issuer of licenses or someone he designates in writing as his assistant.

"It's got so these days that a man can hardly wed unless he can show the girl two licenses."
"Two licenses?"
"Yes, marriage and automobile."

WELL SATISFIED WITH BABY'S OWN TABLETS

Once a mother has used Baby's Own Tablets for her little ones she will use nothing else. Her use of them leads her to believe there is no other medicine to equal them for any of the many minor ailments of childhood. Concerning them Mrs. Eugene Boisvert, East Aldfield, Que., writes: "My baby was terribly constipated, but after the use of Baby's Own Tablets he is entirely well again. I am so well satisfied with the Tablets that I lose no opportunity in recommending them to other mothers." The Tablets are sold by medicine dealers or by mail at 25 cents a box from The Dr. Williams' Medicine Co. Brockville, Ont.

FAINTING A HEALTHY EXERCISE

Contrary to popular belief, fainting is just the most natural thing in the world and does one good. What really happens when a person faints, is that the heart is not sending a sufficient supply of blood to the brain and fainting causes the latter to stop working and the person affected to fall to the ground. This falling is just what the person needs to put matters right again, for when standing or even sitting upright, the heart has the difficult task to perform of driving the blood upwards to the brain and having to contend with the gravitation of the earth in so doing. As soon, however, as the fainting person falls, the heart's task of sending the requisite blood supply to the brain is comparatively easy, and as soon as this is accomplished, the person "comes round" as we call it. Thus the act of falling is Nature's own method of dealing with the situation. In view of this little fact it is not wise to raise the fallen person, for that, as we have seen, would be interfering with Nature's remedy in allowing the heart to send the necessary amount of blood to the brain.

EVERYTHING IS UP

One of the Peculiarities of the English Language.

The use of the word "up" as applied to railway destinations reminds a correspondent of the Manchester Guardian of some observations by a Swiss friend. "When I go back to my country," she said, "I shall certainly tell the Swiss people a new way to speak English. I shall tell them that they must use 'up' to everything. Everything is up. I am knocked up in the morning. I wake up, I get up, I button up my dress. Why 'up'? I button it down. Then I eat up my breakfast, I drink up my coffee, and then somebody washes up the pots and cleans up the house. I pick up my umbrella and go out of the house, and when I see a friend in front I catch her up. How can I catch her up. It is ridiculous. It is all up. You lie up when you are ill, and you save up for a rainy day. Your English language is very funny. My employer put his head in at my office the other day, and said, 'I want you to stop to-night.' So I got up and put my cloak on. When he saw me he got quite worked up. He said, 'Why have you got your cloak on? I told you to stop.' I said, 'I have stopped.' Why was he so angry? I look in the dictionary, and 'stop' means 'leave off', and he meant me to go on."

THE OLD ARM CHAIR

I love it, I love it, and who shall dare To chide me for loving the old arm chair? I've treasur'd it long as a holy prize, I've bedew'd it with tears, and embalm'd it with sighs, 'Tis bound by a thousand bands to heart; Not a tie will break, not a link will start, Would ye learn the spell?—a mother sat there, And a sacred thing is that old arm chair. In childhood's home, I lingered near The hallow'd seat with list'ning ear; And gentle words would mother give, To fit me to die, and teach me to live She told me shame would never betide, With truth for my creed, and God for my guide; She taught me to lisp my earliest prayer As I knelt beside that old arm chair. I sat and watched her many a day, When her eyes grew dim, and her locks were grey. And I almost worship'd her when she smiled, And turn'd from her Bible to bless her child, Years roll'd on, but the last one sped My idol was shattered, my earth-star fled; I learned how much the heart can bear, When I saw her die in the old arm chair. 'Tis past; 'tis past; but I gaze on it now With quivering breath and throbbing brow. 'Twas there she nursed me, 'twas there she died, And memory flows with lava tide. Say, it is folly, and deem me weak, While the scalding tear drops start down my cheek; But I love it, I love it, and can not tear My soul from my mother's old arm chair. —Eliza Cook.

STERN REMINDERS OF RHEUMATISM

The Trouble Must be Treated Through the Blood.

Every rheumatic sufferer should realize that rheumatism is rooted in the blood and that to get rid of it must be treated through the blood. The old belief that rheumatism was caused by cold, damp weather, is now exploded. Such weather conditions may start the pains, but it is not the cause. Liniments and outward applications may give temporary relief, but that is all they can do because they do not reach its sources in the blood. The sufferer from rheumatism who experiments with outward applications is only wasting time and money in depending upon such treatment; the trouble still remains, and it is all the time becoming more firmly rooted. Treat this disease through the blood and you will soon find relief. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills act directly on impure, weak blood; they purify and strengthen it, and so act on the cause of the rheumatism. Mr. P. J. MacPherson, R.R. No. 5, Cardigan, P.E.I., says: "About three years ago I was attacked with rheumatism. I began taking Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and soon the trouble disappeared and I am in better health than before. I also know of an old lady acquaintance who was badly crippled with rheumatism in her arms and legs, and who suffered very much. She, too, took Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and is now able to do her household work. I tell you this in the hope it may be of benefit to some other sufferer."

You can procure Dr. Williams' Pink Pills through any dealer in medicine or they will be sent you by mail at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 by writing direct to the Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.
