IRELAND'S AFFAIRS.

The Luggacurran Evictions Continued to the End.

Mr. O'Brien's Visit to Canada Postponed—Mr. Egan's Offer to Answer Sanderson's Charges in Ireland if Granted a Fair Trial—Chamberlain and the Land Question.

DEUBLIN, April 23.—The Marquis of Lansdowne has offered fresh terms to all the tenants of his estates, the offer being extended to those leasing under the judicial as well as under the non-judicial system. The offer has been extended also to those tenants who have been evicted this spring. The tenants have taken the offer under consideration. Mr. O'Brien has postponed his Canadian trip for a week, pending the negotiations for settlement between Lord Lansdowne and his tenants. Three more evictions were effected today, the last being that of the forty tenants representing 300 souls, who were evicted. The police and soldiers will withdraw. Mr. Kilbride, the evicted tenant, was to sail with Mr. O'Brien, started for Greenstown and was there met by a messenger from Mr. O'Brien, stating that he had postponed his visit.

THE TROUBLE SETTLED.

DEUBLIN, April 25.—The trouble between Lord Lansdowne's tenants has been settled, and Mr. O'Brien's proposed visit to Canada has been abandoned.

PATRICK EGAN'S OFFER.

LINCOLN, Neb., April 23.—Patrick Egan has been conveyed to the Dublin Castle authorities an intimation that if they give an affirmative answer to his offer, and will give an understanding not to change the venue, and that they will not pack a jury, but will give to him the number of challenges exercised by the prosecution, which is the last number accorded anywhere in America, while several of the States give to the accused double the number of challenges exercised by the prosecution. As to the matter what may be the result of the offer, it is not clear. Mr. Egan's offer is to stand on his own merits, and to go to Dublin and appear in person, and to be tried by a jury of his own choice, and to be allowed to select his own counsel, and to be allowed to select his own witnesses, and to be allowed to select his own judge, and to be allowed to select his own jury, and to be allowed to select his own venue, and to be allowed to select his own mode of trial, and to be allowed to select his own mode of appeal, and to be allowed to select his own mode of execution.

SOUTH LONDON PROTESTS.

LONDON, April 23.—A great meeting was held on South Lambeth common to-day to protest against the Coercion Bill. Fully 10,000 persons were present, including several members of parliament. Resolutions denouncing coercion were adopted by an almost unanimous vote.

CHAMBERLAIN OR GLADSTONE.

Mr. Chamberlain, speaking at Stornaway last night, said the land was the gift of God, and ought to be treated as a trust, and as an absolute possession of private owners. This trust was not fulfilled while the land was not provided a subsistence for the greatest number of people. He saw a gleam of hope from Mr. Gladstone's speech before the Eighty Club. Regarding a motion of the Liberals Mr. Gladstone said that proposals had been made to go to the assistance of the tenants, but that he had not been made to. Mr. Chamberlain rejoiced that they had not done so. He was content to follow in the lead of those who would fight by Mr. Gladstone's side in the prosecution of the Liberal programme, but only on condition that Mr. Gladstone postpone the Irish question this session or meet the Unionist objections to his plan.

THE HERBERTSTOWN ESTATE.

DEUBLIN, April 24.—Mr. O'Grady has improved the tenancy of the Herbertstown estate that he is willing to concede the demanded statements in rent and to forego all costs of court except those conceded with the bankruptcy case of farmer Moroney. Mr. O'Grady, a Nationalist M.P., announces that the tenants will not accept this offer unless Moroney be included in the arrangement.

BACKSTREET BEWARE.

Circulars have been issued in County Clare demanding that persons renting more than 100 acres shall provide holdings therefrom in order to obviate the necessity of evicting emigrating persons not complying with this demand will incur the wrath of the authors of the circulars. Backstreeting house owners in towns are warned to reduce rents or beware of sharpshooters.

LANDLORDS SETTLES WITH HIS TENANTS.

DEUBLIN, April 24.—The trouble between Lord Lansdowne and his tenants has been settled.

A CEREBRAL PROTEST.

DEUBLIN, April 23.—Rev. A. Browning, D.D., R.C. Bishop of Ossory, and the priests of his diocese have signified a protest against the passage of the Coercion Bill.

SHOCKING RAILWAY ACCIDENT.

SEVEN MEN KILLED AND EIGHTEEN SERIOUSLY INJURED.

SPokane Falls, W.T., April 24.—It has just been learned that on Thursday afternoon a terrible accident occurred on the Cascade Division of the Northern Pacific Railway, four miles beyond Chelium. A west bound train, loaded with a flat car loaded with lumber, was going round the curve leading to a trestle, when it ran into an engine, which was running east, backing up. The flat car passed right through the boiler of the engine, and the driver and engine were crushed and mangled, on which were two men who were crushed to death. The light engine was knocked to pieces. Five men were killed outright and eight were seriously injured. The injured number eight. All of the physicians of Ellensburg were immediately sent to the scene by a special train, but have been unable to do the service possible. The scene of the accident as described by those present bears description. Blood is scattered in every direction, and the neighboring rocks bear the evidence of fearful carnage. The accident was the fault of one of the train's men neglecting to flag as per order. The dead and injured were brought to Chelium on Tuesday night.

LONDON, April 20.—Mr. Biggar will sue the Parnellites for libel and make that paper's articles on "Parnell and Crime," of the series of which the Parnell letter was the culminating part, the basis of the action.

DEUBLIN, April 20.—Three constables at Castlemainland and one at Croom have resigned, and a demonstration in their honor will be held on Monday.

IRISH NEWS.

Called from the Latest Irish Exchanges.

On the Feast of St. Joseph, March 19th, Miss Helena Carroll and Miss Margaret Carroll, daughters of Mr. Edmund Carroll, Clonmoyra, Kilnablock, made their vows at the Convent of the Faithful Companions of Jesus, St. Anne's D'Auroy, Morristown, the Lord Bishop of the diocese officiating.

A man named Burke has been arrested in connection with the murder of Cornelius Murphy near Killarney, and it is said that at a private inquest investigation Miss Murphy identified him as one of the men who attacked her father's house. The other members of the family were not, however, able to identify Burke.

Another policeman—Constable Sweeney—has resigned in connection with the arrest of Father Ryan. He was asked to escort Constable Dorney to Bruff as a prisoner. He refused and was dismissed. Constable Dorney repudiates the allegation of the Chief Secretary that he was under notice of dismissal as being a man of indifferent character.

Acting-Sergeant McKeague, who figured so prominently as a model murderer in the recent inquest on the murdered Hanlon, has been rewarded for his obtuseness and forgetfulness by receiving the decoration of an extra stripe. The sergeant celebrated his promotion by treating his fellow-bayonetmen to extensive potations of brandy and some choice cigars.

It has been stated that Colonel O'Callaghan has postponed the next campaign evictions on his Bockyke estates, County Clare, till May, as an instance of how the Labourers Acts of the G. Gladstone Government are administered. I should say impeded—by Tory guardians, I may state that over £300 expenses have been incurred by the Londonderry Board of Guardians and not a scheme has yet been passed. The Local Government Board have been requested to inquire into the matter. The cost of repairing the damage done on the Limerick docks by the falling of the North wall will, I understand, amount to £14,000.

Some time since a man named Whelan in the employment of the land corporation, commonly known as an "emergency man" fired two shots at a respectable farmer, Mr. Michael Laffan. The offence was committed at Brittas on one of Lord Cloncurry's evicted holdings. District Inspector Dunne, Newpallas, County Limerick, prosecuted at the petty sessions. Mr. Laffan's evidence was corroborated by an independent witness and also by the police. The magistrates sitting at petty sessions considered a prima facie case was established and sent it for trial to the assizes. Bills were sent before the grand jury, and, as was anticipated, were "thrown out." The people of the district allege that one of the grand jurors, Mr. J. Harrington, being a landowner, was prejudiced against the defendant, and was committed, sympathized with his less fortunate co-employee, and his influence with the grand jurors advocated the necessity of a trial of Whelan by a common jury.

Michael Davitt was recently invited by the Scotch Crofters to visit them and deliver address on landlordism. He made this characteristic reply to their invitation: "I accept with pleasure your invitation to address a few meetings in the Highlands. The people of Ireland are quite prepared to meet the infamous policy of landlord repression by the Tory Government, and are fully able to conquer it themselves, but we should obtain the co-operation of the democracy of Great Britain in the struggle, and will bury iniquitous landlordism along with the eighty-seventh coercion act of the century so deep in the mire of defeat that no power on earth shall ever be able to resurrect again that system of legalized robbery and extermination."

The arrest and imprisonment of the Rev. Father Keller is another striking example of the incompetency of the British Government to manage Irish affairs. There can be no denying the fact that the more truly such outrages upon liberty are committed, the more numerous will be the recruits in the cause of Irish nationality, nevertheless it must be observed by every fair thinking person that proceedings similar to those surrounding Father Keller's case must have a very aggravating effect on the minds of the peasantry. The work of the government is toasperate the Irish people, and this they will be disappointed. The doctrine of the National League is one of lawful resistance—no outrages, nothing illegal, even in the most rigid interpretation of the law, so that the emergency agent—Judge Boyd—can hold his peace, for the great ambition of his life, to see the peasantry and their leaders massacred, will never be realized.

At Castlemainland an exciting scene occurred at an evictions of a man named Blake. A force of twenty police, under District Inspector Wandersboro, escorted the bailiffs. A large crowd assembled armed with pitchforks and other weapons, and at one time it looked as if there would be a collision. The police were ordered to fix bayonets, but they did not proceed to extremes, although they prepared to do so. Mrs. Blake, the wife of the tenant, took up a position at the gate on the road leading to the farm. She refused to leave when ordered to do so by the police, and seized one of their rifles and sword-bayonets. This action succeeded in delaying the police for about twenty minutes. She was dragged off her perch at last. Blake himself was arrested and taken to Mitchelstown to be charged before Mr. Enton, R.M., with assaulting the police and bailiffs. He threatened to stab the first policeman who would come in his way.

SCOTCH NEWS.

UNUSUAL MEAT IN EDINBURGH.—The quantity of unseasoned mutton in Edinburgh during the last month amounted to being unfit for human food, was 15,458 lbs., consisting of beef, mutton, pork and veal.

THE TAY BRIDGE.—Another of the large girders has been raised to its full height, and only three now remain to be raised. The work in completion of the viaduct is being carried on rapidly.

SURVEY DEATH OF A BANK AGENT.—Mr. P. McIntyre, agent in Loanhead for the Commercial Bank of Scotland, died rather suddenly. Mr. McIntyre came to Loanhead from Leven, Fife, and was a native of Comrie, Perthshire.

BEAM TRAWLING.—The evil effects of beam trawling, stated to have such detrimental effects on the ordinary methods of fishing, the Ayr and Arran fisherman are agitating in order to obtain the intervention of Parliament.

"It is all very well to talk about economy," says Jack Hardup, "but the difficulty is to get anything to economize. The little baby who has his toes in his mouth is almost the only person who, in these hard times, manages to make both ends meet."

LANDSDOWNE'S IMPROVEMENTS

(Leinster Leader, April 9.)

Just now we hear a great deal of the £20,000 which Lord Lansdowne expended on his Luggacurran estate, and of the ingratitude of the tenants in seeking in the face of those improvements to be allowed to live on the land at a fair rent, which will leave them a fair return for their labor and outlay. It may be well to inquire into the nature of these improvements. A peep at Mr. Townsend Trench's books shows that more than half the boasted £20,000 was spent in providing means for extracting the rent from the tenants who are supposed to be benefited by the outlay, and of providing luxurious homes and luxuries for the tenants who do the landlord's work of over-riding the tenantry. Of the £20,000 £10,125 was spent for the personal comfort of the landlord's agent and his bailiffs. It includes an outlay of £7,605 on Mr. Trench's rent office. The building itself cost £2,500; laying out and planting the lawn £795 (which his tenants should be compelled to make good the sum he lost in his speculation, as the tone of his morning notes implies, is a proposition utterly untenable. Lord Lansdowne simply allowed himself to be persuaded by his agent or engineer, or some other evil adviser to throw his eight thousand pounds into the sea. The tenants are innocent of any blame in the transaction. The Land Commissioners took the proper view of the matter in their judgment. Mr. Kane, said:—

No credit for a landlord's improvements is to entitle him to a higher rent than the full value of the land in its improved condition.

It would, of course, be a terrible injustice to expect men, who had nothing whatever to say to Lord Lansdowne's improvements, to pay him for the money he threw away on them. The tenants had made very considerable improvements too—improvements, compared with which, considering their means and the value of the land to them, Lord Lansdowne's were as nothing. Is there any talk of requiring these tenants for

FATHER DANIEL KELLER.

FATHER MATTHEW RYAN.

When Daniel Keller and Matthew Ryan met together as professor and student in the Irish College, Rome, we dare presume neither of them could have forecasted that in after years they would be so associated in honor as they are to-day. In just one week professor and student were conveyed to Kilmainham jail in the cause of conscience and country. When Father Keller was being conveyed to Dublin, one of the first men who met him at Limerick Junction was Father Ryan. "We'll be together next week," said Father Matt., and they were. The two priests differ essentially in character. Father Keller is a patriarch, one who would ever by universal consent occupy the position of a father and guide, a man of moderation, who weighs every circumstance before taking action, but of unconquerable resolution once he makes up his mind. Father Matt. Ryan's character is well summed up in the title he has received from his flock. He is a "general," a fiery leader first in the van with a non-surrendering valorous trait in him which makes him worshipped by the people of Limerick. Father Ryan is invincible when he takes the lead in any movement. His parishioners—the tenants of the O'Grady—were almost the first to adopt the "Plan." The famous sale at which Tom Moroney's cows were disposed of, and the "decks cleared," was held on the very day that Saxe Weimar's proclamation was issued. Father Ryan that day spoke like a prophet. "Let me tell the British Government and the landlord," he said, "that it is a sore day for them when they have brought the priests into this fight." Surely it is a sore day for them. Father Matt. Ryan is a greater thorn in their side than the whole league put together. The portraits we publish are good ones. Father Ryan is one of those men to whom any portrait would do justice. He has rather Anglo-Saxon features, is about 35 years of age. There are many homes in Herbertstown and Hospital and Kiltree, where his big hearted charity is missed; and we dare say that there are few homes in Ireland where he has not laid up a treasure of love and affection for himself for his manly action. Father Keller when in Dublin made his position very clear to Judge Boyd. Father Ryan did likewise, and made use of an epigrammatic sentence which means much. "Of course," said he, "it is your lordship's duty to administer English law, but I prefer to stick to the moral law of God." This is the text of Irish affection. The Irish people cannot accept Dublin Castle as anything but law inspired by Beelzebub, and the whole Irish nation will follow Father Ryan to jail in contempt of its sinner: than abuse themselves before the golden calf of British persecution and misuse.

includes the bringing of trees from Kenmare, 140 miles by rail, and 35 miles by road; water-works to supply the rent office cost £1,275 (which after being kept in repair for years at an additional expenditure of £400 had finally to be abandoned); caretaker's houses, out-offices, enclosing lands, and evicting tenants for the purpose, etc., bring the sum up to the total stated. Then the other improvements which have failed to awaken the gratitude of the tenants consist of the building of laborers' cottages for the estate bailiffs—at a cost of £435, and the building and remodeling of a public house with offices £535, erecting ornamental houses and work premises for the estate artisans, etc., footing up a total as far as the items before us show of £10,125. The cost of the building, remodeling, and fitting out of the bailiffs' offices we have not ascertained, but judging from the other items, we are sure that it would reduce the share of the £20,000 left available for improving the farms of the tenants to less than £8,000. More than this sum the items before us show that it cannot be; less, and considerably less, it may be. This does not represent as much as $1 per acre on the property. All we know of the expenditures on the farms of the tenants is an outlay of £3,201 on the holdings of twenty-six tenants deposited to by the landlord before the Land Commission. The tenants appear to have had no benefit whatever from this expenditure. They say themselves that the land was in no way improved, and that in some instances it became considerably worse after this money was laid out on it. And turning to the judicial decision of the tribunal which fixed their rents, we find that their statements receive authoritative confirmation. Mr. R. R. Kane, the legal Commissioner, in the course of his judgment, said:—

I regret to say that the drainage upon which so much money has been spent, is in great part ineffectual. The soil of most of the estate is a stiff clay soil, very difficult, if not impossible to drain properly. Most of the earlier drainage is now useless, and whatever has been its state before the last few years, represents half, probably more than half, that on the entire property, and we have a judicial pronouncement to the effect that it is useless, and in some cases worse, than useless. No one will deny Lord Lansdowne the right to proclaim his loss, and to summon his friends together to lament with him. But that their outlay. The Commissioners balanced their judgment fairly enough.—

No allowance for a tenant's improvement can entitle him to have the land for less than it would be worth if unimproved.

—though the tenant might claim some consideration for an outlay intended to improve Lord Lansdowne's land, where Lord Lansdowne could make none for the failure of his expenditure, to enrich himself. The improvements were of no earthly value to the property. For all the good his less-than-a-pound-an-acre did, Lord Lansdowne might as well have dropped the coin into one of the pools on Mr. Kilbride's snipe-land mountain. But even with the improvements at their best, Lord Lansdowne has little to make boast of. The Commissioners' again say:—

As a matter of fact, in every case we have had before us on the estate the rent, at the time the contributions were made, was so high as to be a full rent for the land, with the landlord's contributions to the improvements.

The Commissioners found the rents rack-rents at the time of their enquiry, and accordingly they set them down an average of 20 per cent. One of them, Mr. George Mahony, says that they fixed the rents on the basis of the prices for the previous fifteen years—a most prosperous time—and he declares them rack rents now. In fact, with all the improvements, and with judicial leases for fifteen years at reduced rents, no interest was left in the holdings, as the case of Thomas Ryan shows. Evans died shortly after his judicial rent was fixed at £54. His widow put the farm up for sale, and though a popular auctioneer and expert conducted the sale, though the landlord and tenant puffed it, and though the people were anxious that the widow of the deceased Land Leaguer should get a good sum for her interest, only £2100 was bid, and the landlord had to accept a surrender. The facts show that the talk about £20,000 expenditure on the estate is a dishonest pretence, that the little that was expended was of no earthly value, and that after all that has been done the rents are such intolerable rack rents that under the most favorable conditions no one would accept the responsibility of taking one of the farms.

In a Paris restaurant a gentleman and an enob are seated at the same table. The snob is just finishing his dinner, the gentleman just beginning his. The snob lights a cigar and blows a cloud of smoke over his coffee. The gentleman rises and says in the politest tone:—"Excuse me, sir; will it annoy you if I eat while you are smoking?" He who is false to present duty breaks a thread in the loom, and will find the flaw when he may have forgotten his cause.—Becher.

THE COERCION BILL.

The Debate Continued in Committee Yesterday—The Government Threaten Closure Again if the Debate is Prolonged—W. H. Smith Cornered.

LONDON, April 26.—When the motion was made in the House of Commons this evening to go into committee on the Coercion Bill, Mr. Reid (Liberal) moved the House to decline to proceed with any measure directed against tenants combining for relief until a full measure for their relief from excessive rents was presented in Parliament.

Mr. Shaw-Lefevre (Liberal) seconded Mr. Reid's motion. Mr. Balfour said the Government must oppose any amendment. The bill was meant to put down crime that no country in Europe would tolerate. The Government would not tolerate it two hours after the passage of the measure.

Mr. Gladstone asked whether Mr. Balfour would furnish a memo showing upon what principle the police classified crime in Ireland. Mr. Balfour said he would furnish a memo giving the desired information.

Viscount Walmer, in the course of a Unionist speech, referred to the charges against Mr. Parnell, and asked why a libel action had not been taken against the Times. He said Mr. Parnell, unless the charges were proved to be true, could not only get enormous damages from his calumniators, but at the same time could aim a deadly blow at the Unionist cause. If an action was not commenced the people could not be blamed for drawing the worst conclusions against the Parnellites.

Mr. Harrington deprecated the spirit that had been imparted to the debate. He thought the word of a man who had been proved guilty of falsehood would not be taken anywhere. If it suited the Conservatives to repeat their offensive insinuations and continue the same offensive methods, then their opponents could hardly be held answerable for their temper in meeting the charges. (Parnellite cheers.) Similar insults and calumnies had been met in former times in a different manner from that adopted now-days. Mr. Harrington then proceeded to criticize the bill.

Messrs. Mundella and Dillon criticized the Crimes and Land Bills. Mr. Dillon said that the Irish people were crowding emigrant ships as fast as they could be borne away. If, instead of giving a substantial relief, the Government persisted in offering the detestable and contemptible mockery found in the Land Bill, some people in despair would seek refuge in America, while others courageous enough to remain at home would seek refuge in some sort of combination, if not openly, then secretly.

THE CRIMES BILL

already noticed, the Parnellites have contributed 33, Gladstonians 69, Conservatives 38 and the Unionists 8. None have yet been made in the names of either the Gladstonian or the Parnellite leaders. Probably one hundred more amendments will be added before Thursday. The Unionists have still to meet to decide their course of action in the committee stage. Lord Hartington will consult Lord Salisbury with regard to the views of the Unionists. The Ulster Unionists are dissatisfied with the distribution of benefits proposed by the land bill, which they regard as unfair, and they are agitating for a revision of the bill in that respect.

AN INCIDENT OF THE DEBATE.

The debate to-night was languid. The speakers repeated the old arguments and the House was inattentive. An interesting incident occurred, however, resulting from a question put by James L. Carey, member for North Kildare, a Nationalist, who asked what W. H. Smith meant by associating the National League with "cowardly assassins who were tyrannizing over peaceful peasants." Mr. Smith stated the phrase occurred in a letter written by his secretary. He himself had not seen it, but he accepted the responsibility for the language used. The question was then asked, "What did Mr. Smith mean by coupling the Gladstonians with 'avowed enemies of England.'" Mr. Smith again admitted the phrase had been used by his secretary in a letter which he himself had not seen. He declined to be explicit as to the meaning of the expression, but referred his question to the columns of United Ireland. Mr. Smith's remarks gave rise to considerable excitement and disorder and a serious row was imminent, but the Speaker interposing succeeded in restoring peace. The Liberals are dissatisfied, however, and will wait upon a formal explanation from Mr. Smith. The Government has decided to apply closure on Thursday if the opposition persists in prolonging the debate.

WHAT MR. GLADSTONE DID SAY.

LONDON, April 26.—Mr. Gladstone was incorrectly reported to have said in his speech against Mr. Goschen's Budget last evening, that he believed the country was adding £100,000,000 per annum to her wealth. What he said was, he believed the country was becoming richer than ever—that she had added $100,000,000 to her wealth in recent years.

ANARCHIST SAVINGS.

AMERICAN SOCIALISTS PREDICTING AN UPRISING IN 1889—PREPARING THE PROGRAMME.

CHICAGO, April 26.—It is now authoritatively stated by the organ of the socialists that the leader of the "Reds," proposed that there shall be an uprising in 1889. What would occur were the uprising he counts on successful is thus outlined:—The circumstances which may permit decisive action will probably be these: In 1889 the present panic will approach a climax. It will be accompanied by closing of factories, starving workers, rioters, and the use of military force. It may be even complicated by a bitter class feeling and result in a suppression of the rights of free speech, meeting and the press. (Anti-then, unless the whole people are armed, it is the duty of the wise Socialist to hold aloof from riots in special localities. The time is not yet ripe for success. We have counted our heads and we know it. To strike this year would be to uselessly slaughter our best people, and put back the cause a hundred years. No, at present we must be wise as serpents, but harmless as doves. We must take advantage of it for agitation and education. Only we must speak much and act not at all. When the working people are hungry their brains weaken. One year of panic means a troubling of our forces at the very least, and while our present 100,000 socialists forcible action is impossible, with 400,000 (what the next panic will give us if we manage wisely).

WE HOLD THE GAME IN OUR HANDS.

We have perhaps until 1889 time in which to perfect our plans. That year in Europe will surely bring brave results. In America if figures do not lie another panic, greater, deeper and more widespread than the preceding, will be upon us. Not until then we may risk a cast of the iron die. Then we may strike and strike to win. The article states that they expect to have in the United States in 1889 at least half a million earnest Socialists, divided somewhat as follows:—Chicago, 25,000; New York, 25,000; New England factory states, 100,000; central coal and iron region, 100,000; Colorado and the Western states, 50,000; Pacific coast, 50,000; Atlantic and Southern cities, 100,000 and scattered at various points in towns and villages, 50,000. Continuing, the year the panic comes the public are excited, the large centres revolt, the places where but a few Socialists exist are made points for the rallies.

RALLYING OF THE CONSERVATIVE ELEMENTS.

In these small places it should be made the duty of the socialists there residing secretly and with the aid of science and inductive warfare to raise sufficient turmoil to keep the conservatives busy at home. Meanwhile, in large centres bold measures should be taken. Our people should head, lead and control the popular revolt, should seize the place of power, should lay hands upon the machinery of the Government. Once installed in power, the revolutionary army committees should follow this course of action. The decrees should at once be promulgated and enforced.

THE ECCLIASTICAL BILL.

PRINCE BISMARCK HELDS TO A CHARGE OF AIDING CATHOLIC AGITATORS.

BERLIN, April 23.—The debate in the Unterhaus on the ecclesiastical bill to-day brought out some of Prince Bismarck's strongest peculiarities. In defending the measure he had to attack the speeches of some members who are his own supporters, like the National-Liberal Eyrer and Pfaff, the ultra-Conservative Baron Hammerstein and other zealous defenders of the Protestant Church, who are convinced that the Chancellor has gone too far in his concessions to the Vatican and has virtually taken that journey to Canossa which he once declared he would never make. Among the most interesting episodes was Baron Hammerstein's accusation that the Government was impeding the restoration of the church. In casting his aspersions he said: "If the property of Cardinal Manning that the fight between the Catholic and Protestant churches will be fought out on the sandy plains of Brandenburg is destined to be fulfilled, and if, therefore, the Protestant Church is to succumb in the fight, then the man who deemed an alliance with the Pope necessary must be held responsible." The charge thus levelled directly at the Chancellor produced a profound sensation. Prince Bismarck started up to respond. He was much agitated, and in a voice quivering with excitement, denied that the ascendancy of the Protestant church was endangered. He ridiculed the idea that the restoration of the former rights of Catholics would damage the Protestant establishment, and advised the National Liberals and conservatives to join him in trying to attain the final objective of the Kulturkampf. The speech was effective in the sense that it showed that Prince Bismarck was determined to carry the bill in the form in which it was presented to the Unterhaus, and would tolerate no opposition from his own supporters. The bill must pass, but his week's discussion has left angry feelings and much discontent in the National Liberal and Conservative groups.

CHANGES IN THE IRISH JUDICIARY.

"BLOODY" BALFOUR MAKES COWARDLY INSINUATIONS.

LONDON, April 23.—The Daily News says Hugh Holmes, Attorney-General of Ireland, will soon be elevated to the Irish Bench, and that Solicitor-General Gibson will then be appointed Attorney-General, and Mr. Madden, Q.C., Solicitor-General. Mr. Balfour, Chief Secretary for Ireland, in a speech at Ipswich, last night, said he was surprised at Gladstone's statement that he had never accused the Parnellites of participation in crime. He denied that the Government had any political motive for introducing the Crimes bill in Parliament. He would not state his views on the subject of The Times-Parnell letter, but would ask his hearers to remember the antecedents of the Parnellites and reflect upon the status of the journal which published this letter, and the tremendous punishment which it would be liable to if the letter were proved to be a forgery and therefore their own judgment.

BIGOTTED TORIES.

LONDON, April 19.—[Special]—The Tories profess to be by no means satisfied with Mr. Parnell's denial of the letters published in The Times, and insist that he should bring a criminal action of libel against the editor of The Times as the only means by which he can clear his character.

NOTICE.

We have to crave the indulgence of our readers for delay in this week's issue of THE TRAVELER. The rise of the River St. Lawrence flooded our premises to such an extent that press work had to be suspended entirely, and it is only through outside assistance that we are enabled to print this issue.

UNCLE MAX.

I was not permitted at the sign of a little... I had not been in the room for five minutes... I thought she looked prettier than ever that evening...

She always would have it that her mother was hard on her... "What do you think of that?" she asked, fixing her blue eyes on my face with marked interest...

"You and I are different people, Sara; we shall never think the same about anything." "Well, I don't know," she returned, half affronted...

CHAPTER IV.

WHOLE MAX BREAKS THE ICE.

Uncle Max was one of those men who like to take their own way about things; he never hurried himself, or allowed other people's impatience to get the better of him...

Uncle Max was smiling, and pulling his beard behind his paper; but he made no attempt to check the flow of feminine eloquence... "Well, now, Ursula, do you not agree with me?—was not Lesbia a darling?"

"I do want you to be serious a moment," I went on plaintively. "I am really very obliged to you for having broken the ice after all, I have not been badly submerged..."

"I should like to have some place found for me first," I remarked, sententially; "you must take lodgings for me first, and then I can settle my plans."

"I think it would be good for Lesbia's health, Mrs. Fullerton." "Well, well," a little peevishly, "we must talk to Dr. Pratt about it. But how is Lesbia to settle well if I bury her in that poky little village?"

CHAPTER V.

"WHEN THE CAT IS AWAY."

Aunt Philippa had one very good point in her character: she was not of a nagging disposition. When she scolded she did it thoroughly, and was perhaps a long time doing it, but she never carried it into the next day.

Jill always said her mother was too indolent to prolong effort; but then poor Jill often said many things. But we all of us knew that Aunt Philippa's wrath soon abated; it made her hot and uncomfortable, while it lasted, and she was glad to be quit of it; so she refrained herself prudently when I spoke of my approaching departure;

"Only Jill," I said, half-laughing, "if you would take a little more notice of her..."

after I have gone, I should be so thankful to you... I thought Leahia seemed somewhat amused at the request...

THE FRANCO-GERMAN QUARREL.

great satisfaction, apart from its mere political significance. It shows the unity of Celtic sentiment and the establishment of a bond of union between the two great branches of the race, which bodes good for the future.

THE EVICTOR LANDSOWNE.

The esteemed Kasoot again quotes from THE POST what it pleased to style "Further specimens of the violent attacks which the Governor-General is subjected." The fact that Lord Lansdowne is Governor-General of Canada is no reason why his crimes against humanity should be treated with silence.

bound as Orangemen to maintain that union. At another meeting of the Grand Lodge the Rev. J. Flanagan, who once expressed a wish "to kick the Queen's crown into the Boyne," moved a resolution of gratification at the election of O'Donovan Rossa to Parliament.

They then invited the leaders of the Irish Nationalists (of whom the late Isaac Butt, M. P., was the chief) to a conference in Dublin, which was held on the 20th of the same month.

A committee of thirty-five Orangemen and Catholics was appointed to promote the objects of the new institution, and among the leading Orange names was found that of Colonel King-Harman, while a foremost National member was Patrick Egan, late president of the Irish National League of America.

OUR OTTAWA LETTER.

(Special from our own Correspondent.)

OTTAWA, April 21. The session this afternoon afforded members of the Commons a sort of field day in the discussion of Mr. Curran's Irish Home Rule resolutions.

WITH ROUNDS OF APPLAUSE from both sides of the House. He spoke earnestly and seemed to weigh the effect of every sentence. He denounced the Coercion bill in the strongest terms, and appealed to the House to carry the resolution which was about to offer.

THE INTEGRITY OF THE EMPIRE. The men who supported, favored and encouraged Home Rule for Ireland almost without exception were traitors to the Queen and emperor of this British Empire.

ORANGEMEN AND HOME RULE.

Orangemen are a very peculiar class of people. Their "loyalty," of which we hear so much, is a very unstable element in their constitution, and their leaders vary the motomy of their devotion to the Crown of England so often that outsiders will be excused if they regard the professions of these gentlemen with mingling.

That this House desires to repeat its deep and abiding interest in the prosperity and happiness of the people of Ireland and its adherence to the sentiment on the subject of Home Rule enunciated by the joint address to Her Majesty from both Houses of the Canadian Parliament passed in 1882 and the resolution adopted by this House in 1886.

Resolved therefore that it is inexpedient and unwise for this House to express an opinion on the bill now before the House of Commons for the amendment of the Criminal Law and procedure in Ireland.

Mr. Casey, of West Elgin, next took the floor and defended the resolution. He took up the argument of the first speaker and showed how fallacious it was and how radically wrong he held him up to ridicule and showed him to be an impostor and a fraud.

Mr. Jones on Monday next will ask an order of the House for a detailed statement of the sums charged to capital expenditure on the Intercolonial Railway each year from 1879 to 1887.

OTTAWA, April 22.—There was youth and old age, beauty and ugliness, fashion and penury, and the greatest yesterday afternoon on the opening of the House. The reason for all the crowd being the further discussion of the Home Rule resolutions.

Mr. Blake rose to speak in support of the amendment. He asked the question, "Oh, he replied, it is going to be beaten by a big vote; but you must not be taken in by the vote will stand," and the result justified his expectation.

He was followed by Doctor Landerkin of East Grey. He favored the motion of Mr. Curran and attacked in vigorous terms the amendment of Mr. McNeil, which he said connected in every way with the wrongs of the Irish people under Tory misrule.

Mr. Blake rose hesitatingly in his place amid a storm of applause. He commenced to speak in favor of the motion slowly but emphatically, but with evident feeling. He pointed out in what respects he thought the bill might be improved.

Mr. Curran then took the floor to prove that he was a Home Ruler, but it requires something besides his effort last night to establish the fact that he is not a politician first and an Irishman afterward.

Resolved therefore that it is inexpedient and unwise for this House to express an opinion on the bill now before the House of Commons for the amendment of the Criminal Law and procedure in Ireland.

Mr. Curran will likely accept the suggestion of Mr. Blake, leader of the Opposition, to somewhat modify the wording of his resolution. He says he will do so on the principle he acted upon last year in supporting the Coercion amendment.

Mr. Fisher moved early next week, so he tells us, to abolish the Department of the Deputy Speaker. Before this is done you can depend on Peter White getting a soft snap in that direction.

OTTAWA, Ont., April 25.—"Did you hear Blake's great speech on Friday?" is the one great question which the human kind of the political world here are now asking of one another.

Halifax fisheries award, are now willing to serve for the coming season, and if necessary for a further term, on the condition of things existing under the treaty of Washington without any suggestion of pecuniary indemnity.

Mr. Amyot will ask this morning for information regarding the sale of the North Shore to the Grand Trunk, and of its subsequent purchase by the Canadian Pacific.

Mr. Holton will ask on Tuesday whether the Government has renewed its contract with the British American Bank Note Co. of Montreal, and if so, what are the terms of contract.

OTTAWA, April 26.—Judging from the way in which business has commenced in the House, there is every prospect of a six month's session. There was absolutely nothing done yesterday in the way of getting through, unless meeting, Davin and the formal opening of the House and the usual business had been disposed of.

Mr. Fisher moved early next week, so he tells us, to abolish the Department of the Deputy Speaker. Before this is done you can depend on Peter White getting a soft snap in that direction.

move that at some future date the following resolution be considered: "That the salary of the Minister of Trade and Commerce be $7,000 per annum, and you can depend on it that Hon. J. A. Chapleau is going to draw the first year salary."

Mr. Laurier will on the same day enquire whether it is the intention of the Government to introduce during the present session a measure to amend the laws respecting the inspection of flour, in accordance with the recommendation of the Montreal Board of Trade.

Young Mr. Tupper is on deck asking for a return showing the date on which the returns were made in each electoral division in 1874, and all other correspondence between the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery and the different returning officers in relation to the returns.

IRISH LANDLORDISM.

The Founder of the Landsdowne House - The "Kasoot" and "The Post" - Things not Generally Known.

To the Editor of THE POST and TRU WITNESS: "Sir, The ground you have taken on the Landsdowne evictions must meet with the approval of the lovers of justice and equity throughout the Dominion.

No doubt the Kasoot will be gratified to learn that the evictions were not carried out in Ireland, and that Sir William Petty, although it cost him his place, was considered the pink of Boodle's. Such, then, Mr. Kasoot, was the founder of the House of Lansdowne, a member of the first wave of public opinion which protested against Boodle and Boodle; and one of the worst of the many Cromwellian cut-throats, whose accursed presence cast a blight and pestilence on the sacred soil of Ireland, from which she will never be freed till that hydra-headed monster, Landlordism, is exterminated forever.

Salisbury Induces in a Feeble Attack upon Mr. Gladstone and his Followers.

Republiates the Word Colonization - Mr. Gladstone's Attachment for American and Colonial Sympathy with the Irish Cause - Morley Buolozises - Gladstone - The Parnellites Indignant.

LONDON, April 26.-Lord Salisbury, in an address before the Primrose League at Albert Palace last night, said the following criticisms upon the Eastern Policy of the Government had failed, and the Government course was his country's vast machine, pressed in Ireland and against which the facing terrorism, intended to struggle with all the terrorism of the party.

FARM AND GARDEN.

GENERAL AGRICULTURAL NOTES.

Plants do better when watered often, but copiously.

Snap seeds is a splendid fertilizer for flowering plants.

With a good home-made hotbed, the construction of which any woman can at least superintend, and proper seeds, the battle for a floral display is half won.

Lucerne is a valuable leguminous plant that thrives in good soils of a fine calcareous nature. On wet land it produces three or four abundant cuttings.

Branches that were broken during the winter should be cut near the trunk, a smooth cut made, and covered with grafting wax or thick paint.

A Western inventor claims that prairie grass, ground into a pulp with corn stalks and pressed into blocks, makes an excellent substitute for wood and coal.

The sulky or riding plough, on which the ploughman is carried around the field while the work is done, revolutionizes all the old ideas about ploughing.

Eggs intended for hatching should not be over two weeks old.

Just here, we will say to those who complain of having no eggs, to change the food by giving a good supply of wheat once a day.

Milk may be seasoned just as you would count fruit. Bring your milk to the boiling point and fill your jars to the brim with it; then shut airtight.

Michigan has passed a law against the adulteration of honey. Iowa has prohibited dealing in diseased hogs.

The soundness of a log of timber may be ascertained by placing the ear close to one end of it, while another person delivers a succession of smart blows with a hammer or mallet upon the opposite end.

One of the difficulties in growing wool in far away districts is that the quality of the wool deteriorates. Where the climate is not cold enough to make the wool necessary for the protection of the sheep, nature, always considerate, is less careful to maintain its quality.

As a rule, milk is richer in the fall and poorer in the spring. The quality of cows' milk is not only affected by the age of the animal, but by the distance from the time of calving.
