GRAMMAR SCHOOL CLOSINGS WERE WELL ATTENDED

The public examinations of the different departments of the Grammar school were held this morning at 10 o'clock.
A large number of parents and the members of the school board were present and inspected the work of the different grades, all showing the great interest taken in the work of the school teaching staff.
At the close of the examinations the visitors assembled in the department presided over by Principal Carr, where the presentations were to be made.
F. F. Matheson, Esq., Chairman of the School Board, occupied the chair.
His Honor Judge McLachley addressed the pupils and teachers and highly complimented them on the excellent standing of the various departments.
At the conclusion of his remarks he presented High School entrance examines to the following pupils who

BOOM TIMES NOW RULE IN THE CANADIAN WEST

WINNIPEG, Dec. 16.—The Christmas season is showing an evidence of prosperity, as the Canadian prairie west has never before known. It is manifested through a hundred lines of business activity. The great crop ap-ears to have put money in every one's pocket and moreover, they are willing to spend it.
Loan companies, with offices in Winnipeg are complaining that money is coming in too fast, loans and mortgages being liquidated at such rate that there is no placing the cash again.
As to the Christmas trade it has been wonderful. Today well known jobbing houses had to turn down cash orders for thousands of dollars worth of goods from country points because all Christmas stock was sold out.

HAS NO HOPE OF FINDING SON NOW LONG LOST

H. C. Read, in St. John Talks of Herbert's Disappearance at Montreal.

MANY FALSE REPORTS

H. C. Read of Saskatoon, father of Herbert Read, whose mysterious disappearance in Montreal a few weeks ago caused a great sensation in Eastern Canada, is at the Royal Hotel, St. John. Speaking to a Sun reporter last evening Mr. Read said that the search for his missing son was being continued by the St. John Detective Agency, and practically the whole world had been covered by the search. So many false clues have been followed up without any trace of the missing man being found that Mr. Read is beginning to doubt if any tidings will be heard.

Mr. Read is personally of the opinion that his son never left Montreal, and that the police of that city have searched in the wrong places for trace of him. He doubts the idea that it is impossible for anyone to disappear in Montreal and elude instances of disappearances in every way as mysterious as that of his son.

Mr. Read is frequently in receipt of letters from persons who claim they have located his son. One of these, received recently, was from a friend of C. H. King, King Co. who stated that he had seen a man in St. John, N.B., whom he had recognized as Herbert Read from similarity to the photo of the latter published in the press. This clue was run down and found to be as worthless as the others. The Montreal Witness, a short time ago published a similar story which was also disproved.

UNDER THE STARS ONE NIGHT

Under the stars, one holy night,
A little babe was born;
Over His Head, a star shone bright,
And glinted till the morn.
And while men came from far away,
And shepherds wandered where they lay,
Upon his lowly bed of hay,
Under the stars one night.

Under the stars one blessed night,
The Christ-child came to earth,
And through the darkness broke the light.

Or morning at the birth,
And sweet hosannas filled the air,
And guard angels watched him where The Virgin Mother knelt in prayer
Under the stars one night.

Under the stars one happy night,
We wait for Him once more,
And seem to see the wondrous sight
The shepherds saw of yore.

O baby born in Bethlehem,
Come to us as you came to them,
And crown us with love's diadem,
Under the stars tonight.

SANTA CLAUS'S PETITION

Dear children—I write in great haste just to say I've met with an accident coming this way. As Christmas is near, and I've so much to do, I really must beg a slight favor of you: And unless I mistake, the small folks of this nation will spare poor old Santa great mortification.

By setting about with their might, and their main, to see that the accident's righted again. You know, I suppose, that the distance is great, and for fear I'll be late,

I wrap up my tender, and make each good good, and I'm peaching along at the top of my speed.

This year my big sleigh was as full as it could hold; I wrapped me up warm—for the weather was cold;—and started once more on my gay Christmas tour.

With lightest of hearts, you may be very sure,

I bowed to the stars and winked to the moon; I found myself crossing the great open sea.

When dolphins and mermaids gasped at me; I bent a bit over the side of my sleigh, To wave them a hand, when—ah! no!—lacked—

A working trawled full to the very small top, and over the back to the sea down below.

And there the mermaids made merry ado; When toys I had meant for some dear one of you.

So this is my predicament, and would ask—

I know you won't deem it a trouble, some task— That if you should see some poor child with no toys, Upon Christmas morning, dear girls and dear boys, You'll spare the fat old fellow he was to have had.

Is deep in the sea and poor Santa is sad; And so, that the accident's righted, because, 'Twill be a great favor to Yours, Santa Claus.

"HERE is the tree?" while Mrs. Philander anxiously as her husband shook the snow from his coat and carefully wiped his feet on the brand new doormat.

"Couldn't get one," returned Philander moodily.

"Couldn't get one? Why not, James Philander?"

"I forgot it, Bella, until just as I got off the train, and as that was the last train from town I couldn't very well walk back and look up a tree. By that time the shops would all be closed, and"

"Walk back! Such nonsense! Of course if you haven't thought enough of the children to buy them a tree!"

"My dear," interjected Philander desperately, "don't say another word. I'll find a tree somewhere tonight if I have to rob the church of the Sunday school tree!"

He thrust his arms into his overcoat and grasped his hat, but Mrs. Philander put out a detaining hand.

"James," she said seriously, "you cannot find a tree in Rose Heights tonight. You know there is not a shop in the Heights, and where else would you look for a tree?"

"I shall walk into the woods and dig one," returned Philander, with dignity.

"Well, you could do that, James, but it is 11 o'clock now and there is no moon. You will lose your way."

"Nonsense!" returned Mr. Philander. "I hope I know my way around Rose Heights. I saw a very handsome pine tree in that strip of woods back on the Turkey hill road. I could walk there blindfolded and lay my hand upon that tree," he asserted rashly.

"Very well," returned Mrs. Philander reluctantly. "I hate to have you go, James, but the children will be so disappointed. The presents are all ready, and I have been up in the attic and got the base for the tree and all the ornaments—in fact, everything is ready except the tree."

"The tree will soon be here," said Mr. Philander grimly as he jerked on his arctic and turned up his coat collar. "Just bring me the spade from the woodshed, please," he added.

"A spade, James? I thought they chopped trees down. The ground is frozen."

"Of course, the ax by all means," replied Philander irritably. He was vexed with himself for having forgotten to order the tree, which was one of the necessary adjuncts to the Philander Christmas. He had never forgotten it before. He meant to order it that morning and have it delivered to his home by the next day. But the important business matter had driven him from his mind and his wife's greeting, when he opened the door recalled it to his attention.

He called forth, bearing the ax, and waded through the newly fallen snow to the corner of the street, where he stopped to wait for the delivery man. The snow was only six inches deep, and the walking was not so bad. Gray clouds hung low, and there was a thick flurry of flakes as Philander turned the corner. When he reached the strip of woods it was snowing heavily, and he would only guess at the location of the particular pine he had in mind.

He whistled cheerily as he walked along, for his spirits were rising. He felt a warm glow stealing over his tired frame as he anticipated the delight of the three small Philanders when they beheld the selfsame tree that they had so warmly admired a short while before set up in their own parlor, ablaze with candles and rich with gifts.

Mr. Philander stopped, and thrashed himself vigorously with his arms. There was a faint grayness in the air that was reflected from the fallen snow, and there was the tickling rash of flakes in his eyes. When he reached the very opening in the woods where they had admired the tree he turned around and looked carefully up and down the road. Of course he could see nothing, nor was there the faintest tinkle of bells. It was a very lonely spot.

Mr. Philander knew that the strip of woods was private property, and he also knew that he could make it all right with Lake, the owner of the woods, on the following day, as Lake lived four miles away and it was impossible to ask his permission now.

Although Mr. Philander had stated that he could put his hand on the tree in the dark, he found it rather a difficult thing to do after all. He lost himself several times in the dense thickets, and all the tree trunks seemed unfamiliar to his touch. Then, all at once, he emerged from the underbrush, and gazed at the tree with a look of surprise and delight.

"It's it, by Jove!" he exclaimed. He dug the snow away from the trunk and with a few lusty blows laid the tree low and dragged it trilling through the snow. He lost his bearings once or twice, and finally, at a moment when he almost despaired of reaching home, that night, he found himself standing before his own gate.

He carried the tree around to the back door, and with Mrs. Philander's help it was taken into the house and set up in the parlor.

Mr. Philander showed himself out in front of the kitchen stove and quaffed fragrant coffee that his grateful wife had prepared.

"It is a beauty, James," she said gleefully; "the finest we ever had. How delighted the children will be. I am sorry, though, you are so tired, dear."

"Oh, I'm all right now, Bella," said Philander cheerfully. "I was worried after I found that I had forgotten the tree, but I closed out that deal with Wells today, and I was busy every moment."

"How lovely that you got the contract, James!" cried his wife excitedly. "That is a fine Christmas present for you!"

"You bet your life it is," returned Philander jocosely. "Now let us get the tree ready for the kiddies. Every thing handy?"

"There isn't a thing for you to do, dear, save to hang them on the tree," said his wife, leading the way to the lighted parlor, where the tree stood, its symmetrical branches glistening in the light and exuding a fresh balsamic odor.

"By Jove, it is the handsomest tree we ever had!" exclaimed Mr. Philander, surveying the shapely conifer admiringly.

They were soon at work, and presently the beautiful tree blossomed forth in glistening festoons of gold and silver tinsel. A radiant star tipped the highest point, while daintily decorated gifts burdened the branches and were heaped at the base.

It was with unusual satisfaction that the Philanders retired that night. They were both to have a splendid sleep, but utter weariness drove them to bed.

It was daylight when the first delighted shriek from a small Philander awoke his tired parents. He ached from head to foot, and he was sick from lack of sleep. Mrs. Philander was equally distressed, but with the self-abandonment of mothers in general and mothers in particular on Christmas morning, she got up and went downstairs to enter into the joys of the happy children.

When Mr. Philander came downstairs to breakfast the children gathered about him eagerly.

"Father," asked Jack, the eldest, "is this the very tree we saw last Sunday when we walked along Turkey hill road? Is this the very tree?"

"Who told you that, Jack?" asked Mrs. Philander sharply.

"Oh, mother did. I told her I had seen it somewhere before, and she said it was that very tree."

"I fought Santa Claus brought it!"

"What a story!" exclaimed Mrs. Philander. "Mrs. Taylor told me it was the pride of her husband's heart."

"How did it happen, Jack?" asked Philander, with interest.

"Mr. Taylor said his wife heard some one chopping about half past 11 last night, but she didn't think anything of it, and this morning they found the tree was gone—only the stump left."

"That's very strange," observed Mr. Philander. "Hard luck for Taylor!"

"And, father," continued Jack earnestly, "I was in the woods on Turkey hill road today and that little tree we saw last Sunday is there yet. You didn't cut it down. I knew that one wasn't it!"

Mr. Philander smiled slightly.

"Why, father," pursued the terrible Jack with a delectable born of sudden revelation, "this is Mr. Taylor's tree! Mr. Philander shrank from their horrified gaze.

"The Taylors will be here in a few minutes, James," said Mrs. Philander coldly.

"My dear, I must have got turned around in the storm, but the Lord only knows how I got to Taylor's yard."

"It's on the other side of the woods, father," said Jack sympathetically, "and I guess you walked right through and into Mr. Taylor's yard."

"I must have done that," groaned Mr. Philander. Then with sudden inspiration he stripped the tree of its ornaments and candles and carried it through the house into the back yard.

He scratched a match, and in five minutes the Philander Christmas tree was a charred ruin.

"Too bad, old chap," said Taylor commiserately as Philander indignantly explained the absence of the tree. "That's one reason why I don't believe in Christmas trees. They are apt to take fire, and carry you as I am glad it happened before we arrived!"

"So am I," ejaculated Mr. Philander. But all the little Philanders agreed that it was the most beautiful Christmas tree they ever had.

"HERE is the tree?" while Mrs. Philander anxiously as her husband shook the snow from his coat and carefully wiped his feet on the brand new doormat.

"Couldn't get one," returned Philander moodily.

"Couldn't get one? Why not, James Philander?"

"I forgot it, Bella, until just as I got off the train, and as that was the last train from town I couldn't very well walk back and look up a tree. By that time the shops would all be closed, and"

"Walk back! Such nonsense! Of course if you haven't thought enough of the children to buy them a tree!"

"My dear," interjected Philander desperately, "don't say another word. I'll find a tree somewhere tonight if I have to rob the church of the Sunday school tree!"

He thrust his arms into his overcoat and grasped his hat, but Mrs. Philander put out a detaining hand.

"James," she said seriously, "you cannot find a tree in Rose Heights tonight. You know there is not a shop in the Heights, and where else would you look for a tree?"

"I shall walk into the woods and dig one," returned Philander, with dignity.

"Well, you could do that, James, but it is 11 o'clock now and there is no moon. You will lose your way."

"Nonsense!" returned Mr. Philander. "I hope I know my way around Rose Heights. I saw a very handsome pine tree in that strip of woods back on the Turkey hill road. I could walk there blindfolded and lay my hand upon that tree," he asserted rashly.

"Very well," returned Mrs. Philander reluctantly. "I hate to have you go, James, but the children will be so disappointed. The presents are all ready, and I have been up in the attic and got the base for the tree and all the ornaments—in fact, everything is ready except the tree."

"The tree will soon be here," said Mr. Philander grimly as he jerked on his arctic and turned up his coat collar. "Just bring me the spade from the woodshed, please," he added.

"A spade, James? I thought they chopped trees down. The ground is frozen."

"Of course, the ax by all means," replied Philander irritably. He was vexed with himself for having forgotten to order the tree, which was one of the necessary adjuncts to the Philander Christmas. He had never forgotten it before. He meant to order it that morning and have it delivered to his home by the next day. But the important business matter had driven him from his mind and his wife's greeting, when he opened the door recalled it to his attention.

He called forth, bearing the ax, and waded through the newly fallen snow to the corner of the street, where he stopped to wait for the delivery man. The snow was only six inches deep, and the walking was not so bad. Gray clouds hung low, and there was a thick flurry of flakes as Philander turned the corner. When he reached the strip of woods it was snowing heavily, and he would only guess at the location of the particular pine he had in mind.

He whistled cheerily as he walked along, for his spirits were rising. He felt a warm glow stealing over his tired frame as he anticipated the delight of the three small Philanders when they beheld the selfsame tree that they had so warmly admired a short while before set up in their own parlor, ablaze with candles and rich with gifts.

Mr. Philander stopped, and thrashed himself vigorously with his arms. There was a faint grayness in the air that was reflected from the fallen snow, and there was the tickling rash of flakes in his eyes. When he reached the very opening in the woods where they had admired the tree he turned around and looked carefully up and down the road. Of course he could see nothing, nor was there the faintest tinkle of bells. It was a very lonely spot.

Mr. Philander knew that the strip of woods was private property, and he also knew that he could make it all right with Lake, the owner of the woods, on the following day, as Lake lived four miles away and it was impossible to ask his permission now.

Although Mr. Philander had stated that he could put his hand on the tree in the dark, he found it rather a difficult thing to do after all. He lost himself several times in the dense thickets, and all the tree trunks seemed unfamiliar to his touch. Then, all at once, he emerged from the underbrush, and gazed at the tree with a look of surprise and delight.

"It's it, by Jove!" he exclaimed. He dug the snow away from the trunk and with a few lusty blows laid the tree low and dragged it trilling through the snow. He lost his bearings once or twice, and finally, at a moment when he almost despaired of reaching home,

One Dollar Per Year.SANTA AND THE LITTLE MOUSE.By FRANCIS TAYLOR.
(Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.)

One Christmas eve when Santa Claus
Came to a certain house
To fill the children's stockings there
He found a little mouse.

"A merry Christmas, little friend,"
Said Santa, good and kind.
"The same to you, sir," said the mouse.

"I thought you wouldn't mind
If I should stay
Awake tonight
And watch you
For awhile."
"You're very welcome, little mouse,"
Said Santa,
with a smile.

And then he filled the stockings up Before the mouse could wink—
From toe to top, from top to toe,
There wasn't left a link.

"Now, they won't hold another thing,"
Said Santa Claus, with pride.
A twinkling came in mouse's eyes,
But humbly he replied:

"It's not polite
to contradict.
Your pardon I implore.
But in the fullest stocking
there I could put one thing more."

"Oh, ho," laughed Santa, "silly mouse!
Don't I know how to pack?
By filling stockings all these years
I should have learned the knack."

And then he took the stocking down
From where it hung so high
And said: "Now put in one thing
more."

I give you leave to try."
The mouse chuckled to himself,
And then he softly stole Right to the stocking's crowded toe
And gnawed a little hole.

"Now, if you please, good
Santa Claus,
I've put in one thing more.
For you will own that little hole
Was not in there before."

How Santa Claus did laugh and laugh!
And then he gayly spoke,
"Well, you shall have a Christmas cheese
For that nice little joke."

THE DEAR OLD TREE.
By FRANK H. SWEET.
There's a dear old tree, an evergreen tree,
And it blossoms once a year.
'Tis loaded with fruit from top to root,
And it brings to all good cheer.

For its blossoms bright are small candles white,
And its fruit is dolls and toys,
And they all are free for both you and me
If we're good little girls and boys.

THE RIDE TO CANDY TOWN
BY ROBERT DONNELL

COPYRIGHT, 1909, BY AMERICAN PRESS ASSOCIATION

When Charley rode to Candy Town
Astride a Teddy bear,
He looked in wonder up and down
With many a hungry stare,
For all the streets were named for sweets,
And, oh, so many there!

They entered town by Gumdrop road,
Where all the candy shops
Were stuffed as full as any toad
With most delicious drops.
As Charley glanced he almost danced,
While Teddy licked his chops.

They turned a corner, when,
in view,
Before their very eyes,
Came Chocolate Bonbon
avenue,
Which filled them with surprise,
For every shop was a chocolate drop
Of most amazing size.

But on they went with even jog,
Since shops are not to eat,
And soon they passed, with eyes agog,
Through Peanut Brittle street,
And every brick was a peanut stick
And doubtless very sweet!

But Teddy trotted right ahead
Through Candy Kisses way,
Though Charley pulled his ears and said:
"Hold on a minute—stay!"

Lemme get down an' eat this town.
I'll finish up today!"

That Teddy bear plugged straight along
'Til he chanced to see,
Surrounded by a merry throng,
A great big Christmas tree.
"Now I can climb and have a time,"
Says Ted. "Hooray for me!"

As Teddy started climbing up
His passenger slid down
And struck the bedroom floor kerplup,
And in his nightie gown!
Now, wasn't that a sorry bat
To get in Candy Town?

But, after all, the town was there.
When Charley oped his eyes,
High up the tree was Teddy bear,
Of real riding size,
And candy sweets from all the streets—
A Christmas paradise!

Minard's Liniment Cures Distemper

THE CHEERFUL
WAX CANDLE.By ALICE LE BARON.
(Copyright, 1909, by American Press Association.)

ONCE upon a time two little candles lay side by side in a big box. Both were pure white.
Said one: "I wonder what will become of us. Do you think we could be used for a Christmas tree?"
For you must know that to be put on a Christmas tree is the best possible thing that can happen to a candle.

"Of course not," said the other, who was cross. "If we are meant for a Christmas tree it will be for some shabby little children—see if it isn't!"

"If we are," said the first, "I'll shine my very brightest, for the eyes of even poor children with only few pleasures in prospect are enough to rival little candles on Christmas eve."

"If we are," grumbled the second, "I am not sure that I will allow myself to be lit at all."

Christmas eve drew nearer and nearer. Sure enough, the two little candles, with many others of blue and pink and yellow and red, were bought for a Christmas tree.

On the day before Christmas, while it still was daylight, some young girls came to arrange the presents and make the tree ready for the evening.

"Oh, what a lot of pretty little candles!" said one of them. "They are such lovely colors—all except those two white ones. We will put those out of sight, because the red and pink ones are prettier."

"Didn't I tell you what would happen?" said the cross little candle in a whisper.

"Yes, but wait," replied the other.
"Just shine your brightest all the time."

"I won't," snapped the cross one.
"When evening came, raised all round the tree were happy boys and girls. Soon every branch on the great tree blossomed with little lights. Some of the flames were faint, but many were bright. When the little white candles were lit, the cross one just spluttered a minute and then went out. The other shone so brightly that a gentleman standing near said:
"Oh, what a brilliant candle! But it is almost out of sight among the green branches. We ought to put it where it can be seen."

"Put it on the very tip-top," said a little lady.

And that is where they did put it—on the very tip-top of the tree, where it nodded and gleamed in answer to the smiling faces around it.

SANTA CLAUS A STRANGER.
He is Officially Unknown to Uncle
Sam's Mail Agents.

The postoffice department does not know Santa Claus. The old saint has no official existence so far as Uncle Sam's mail agents are concerned. This is due entirely to the fact that Santa Claus lives everywhere at the same time instead of having a single local habitation like other people. It is very sad, but it cannot be helped. Letters which children address to Santa Claus or Kris Kringle must go straight to the dead letter office.

Some time ago an effort on behalf of the children was made to induce the postoffice department to permit postmasters to open all letters addressed to Santa Claus and turn them over to the parents of the child correspondent or to some local organization having a Christmas fund to spend, but the attorney general for the department resolved an adverse decision, holding as follows:

If postmasters were granted authority to open all such letters and select those which they thought proper to deliver to persons applying for them, there would be temptation and opportunity for postmasters and other employees to open letters indiscriminately, some of which contain disclosures of value, and give us an excuse for such action the authority granted by the department.

The department's legal adviser also was of the opinion that, if permission were granted to deliver such letters to benevolent societies and individuals, it would be difficult for the department to draw the line where benevolence ends and commercialism begins. Many persons desire such letters for use in newspapers and magazine stories, the name of the child of such a letter making it especially valuable for that purpose and often correspondingly embarrassing to the parent of the child. Furthermore, the opinion states, such a practice would violate the principles of the sanctity of the seal which is one of the best features of our postal system, and the department would continually be open to serious suspicion.

You have only to be a bit fox.

MUSKOKA FREE HOSPITAL FOR CONSUMPTIVES

A national institution that accepts patients from all parts of Canada. Here is one of hundreds of letters being received daily:

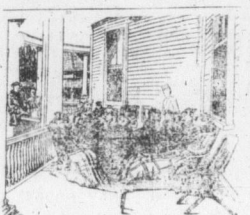

John D. McNaughton, New Liskeard, Ont.: A young man not belonging here, and suffering from it is believed, consumption, is being kept by one of the hotels here. He has no means and has been refused admission to our hospital. The conditions where he is offer him no chance. Could he be admitted to your Free Hospital for Consumptives? If not, could you inform me where he can be sent, and what steps are necessary to secure prompt admission?

REFUSED ADMISSION TO THE MUSKOKA FREE HOSPITAL BECAUSE OF HIS OWN INABILITY TO PAY.

Since the hospital was opened in April, 1902, one thousand five hundred and twenty-four patients have been treated in this one institution, representing people from every province in the Dominion. For the week ending November 20th, 1909, one hundred and twenty-five patients were in residence. Ninety-six of these are not paying a cent for their maintenance—absolutely free. The other twenty-nine paid from $2.00 to $4.00 a week. No one pays more than $4.00.

Suitable cases are admitted promptly on completion of application papers.

I was most thankful for the care I got from the doctors and staff, and I must say that I spent the time of my life while I was there.

The Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives is dependent on the goodwill and gifts of the Canadian public. Money is urgently needed at the present time to make it possible to care for the large and increasing number of patients that are entering the institution.

BUDGET SHOWS HANDSOME SURPLUS

Hon. Mr. Fielding Announces $20,000,000 Surplus During Year.

A FINE SURPLUS

OTTAWA, Dec. 15.—Hon. Mr. Fielding delivered his fourteenth budget in the commons yesterday. He has made many optimistic speeches but none fuller of prosperity nor more programmatic with hope than this.

Mr. Fielding was able to point to a comfortable surplus won from the teeth of hard times of last year and was able to promise the greatest of all surpluses for the present year.

He forecasted $100,000,000 revenue as a possibility with the end of this year and a certainty for the next to follow.

He announced no tariff changes but intimated that there was a possibility of the extension of Canada's trade relations on better terms with British West India, Germany, Italy and Belgium, and that there appeared to be nothing to fear on this score from the United States.

He announced that the government was prepared to take the part of the people in regulating the operation of combines in Canada, which have worked for the restraint of trade or for the undue enhancement of prices.

When he set down every man in the house was again convinced that the affairs of Canada are in the hands of a strong, honest and progressive man.

Hon. Mr. Fielding recalled that at the last session of parliament circumstances compelled him to submit a budget which was not in all respects a very cheerful one. In the fiscal year 1909-10 there had been a financial depression which was almost world wide and which in the case of the republic of the south became a financial panic.

Canada felt its effects to a much less extent than did the United States, and yet the last fiscal year closed on 31st March 1909 it was found that the revenues had been seriously affected.

Coming to the current fiscal year 1909-10 Mr. Fielding said he was glad to have a more cheerful story to tell. There were three and a half months of the year to run the books of Canada were not close until some

With ordinary soap you wash—then spend nine-tenths of your time rubbing and polishing—that is if you are extra particular and can take the time.

When you wash your windows, for instance, little streaks of "dirt" seem so hard to get off—it's really the soap—not the dirt—that's the trouble. With Taylor's Borax Soap you wash and rinse, dry once and your glassware sparkles like crystal.

It's all in the borax—the way Taylor blends it in

The soap removes the grease—the borax removes the soap—and there you are!

It's fine for woodwork, too. It positively will not shrink them. It brings them out of the wash as soft and fresh as new. Thousands of Canadian women are using Taylor's Borax Soap today. Try a cake at once and know the reasons why.

CHRISTMAS STAMP CAMPAIGN

THE 1909 BATTLE AGAINST THE DREAD WHITE PLAGUE.

Available Beds in the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives Increased Three-Fold as a Result of Last Year's Sale of Christmas Stamps. The Number Can Be Doubled This Year If Everyone Will Help.

STIMULATED by the success of a year ago, the National Sanatorium Association have made large preparations for the sale of the Christmas Stamp of 1909-10, issued on behalf of the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives.

Nearly $8,000.00 was netted from last year's sale, making it possible for the trustees to increase the available beds for needy patients from an average of fifty-five a year to an average of one hundred and forty, the accommodation to-day.

The trustees are hopeful that they may bring the accommodation up to 300 beds as the outcome of this year's sale of this little one-cent messenger of hope and healing.

The Christmas Stamp, as a means of fighting the dread white plague, had its origin in Denmark in 1904, the sale from which has financed a hospital for consumptives in that country.

The idea was taken up by the Red Cross Society of the United States in 1907, and interest has grown each year.

A year ago a Christmas stamp of special design was put in circulation by the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives with the trustees already indicated in this article.

The price of the individual stamp is only one cent, but what wonderful things can be accomplished by so tiny an instrument. There is no reason why everyone who writes a letter, addresses a postcard, mails a newspaper or parcel from this day out should not use one of these stamps.

The educational value of the stamp appearing on every piece of mail matter would be enormous. One can hardly figure the material results. It would mean a routing of the enemy

Tuberculosis that would bring hope and joy and gladness to thousands of houses and communities in all parts of Canada.

The stamp of 1909 is more beautiful than that of a year ago. The design is as shown in this article, but printed in red and green, and is of same size as the regular government postage stamp.

This Christmas stamp will not carry any kind of mail, but any kind of mail will carry it—had carry too the happy Season's Greetings from sender to receiver. The stamps will be done up in envelopes of ten, twenty-five, fifty and one hundred for ordinary selling, and large users will be supplied in quantities. The price for ten or for one thousand is a cent each.

The banks, departmental stores, drug stores, book and stationery stores and many other stores will sell them. Women's clubs, church organizations, bible classes and Sunday schools, public schools, and many other organizations and individuals will help this year as last year.

There would seem to be no reason why everybody everywhere may not help in forming an army of willing workers to sell these stamps all over the Dominion. The Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives is in the fullest sense a national institution caring for patients from every province in Canada.

The first issue of the stamp for this year is one million, and these will be put into circulation immediately, but there can hardly be any reason why the issue should not be increased many times over before Christmas.

The direction of the sale of Christmas Stamps is in the hands of Mr. J. S. Robertson, Secy-Treasurer, National Sanatorium Association, 847 King Street West, Toronto, who will give prompt reply to any enquiries regarding the stamp.

Hamden, Had Boed, Had Sick Headache, Etc.

Success of Dr. Hamden

For her life and health, a woman is indebted to a certain property of Dr. Hamden's. She had been pale and depressed, and her health was in a constant decline. She had been suffering from a sick headache, and her appetite was gone. She had been unable to eat, and her weight was falling. She had been in a constant state of nervousness, and her sleep was disturbed. She had been in a constant state of depression, and her life was a constant struggle.

From her home in Newton, Mass., she writes: "For my pale, anemic, and lacking a constant headache, I was a constant sufferer. I was a constant sufferer from a sick headache, and my appetite was gone. I was unable to eat, and my weight was falling. I was in a constant state of nervousness, and my sleep was disturbed. I was in a constant state of depression, and my life was a constant struggle."

What a rich woman I was, take Dr. Hamden's Pills. I gradually got back my appetite, and my weight increased. I was able to eat, and my sleep was restored. I was in a constant state of health, and my life was a constant struggle.

In a few months Dr. Hamden brought me from a constant state of depression to a constant state of health. I was able to eat, and my sleep was restored. I was in a constant state of health, and my life was a constant struggle.

LUMBER AND BANKING IN NEW BRUNSWICK

E. A. McGurdy, of Newcastle, Gives Montreal Paper Some Pointers.

Mr. E. A. McGurdy, manager of the Newcastle branch of the Royal Bank of Canada, who has been in touch with the shipping ports of New Castle and Bathurst, for thirteen years as a banker and business man, is at the Windsor, and he speaks very optimistically of the financial and commercial status of that part of New Brunswick.

Thirty years ago, he says, pessimists were predicting the depletion of the great forests tributary to the Miramichi and the St. John Rivers, and the consequent decline of the lumber business of the province. Today, he states, that lucrative industry is as much on its feet as it was a quarter of a century ago. The report from the Miramichi this year, which at $10 per 1,000 gives a value of $1,000,000. From 1900 to 1908, or a total of almost 400,000,000 feet, while at $10 per 1,000 gives a value of $4,000,000,000. From 1900 to 1908, 4,000 men are employed on the woods in this business, one firm alone having no fewer than 2,000 men on their pay roll.

Speaking of the alleged depletion of the New Brunswick forests, Mr. McGurdy said that the lumbermen were quite as anxious as the Government that the greatest care possible should be taken in the cutting of the trees; consequently no undue depletion was taking place from year to year, in the great forests of northern New Brunswick.

Above Newcastle, he went on to remark, were paper and pulp mills, which turned out an enormous product, employed a great number of men and contributed generally to the prosperity of the country.

He thought that the banking accommodation in the province was quite sufficient, although the value carried on these great industries, were very large borrowers. The great body of working people, he considered, were living to a great extent from hand to mouth, yet, of course, a great deal of money must be turned over where the working population was so large. However, the banks were always on the look-out for new territory. The Royal Bank had only quite recently opened two new branches, one being located at Jacques River and the other at Campbellton. It was, however, from the enterprise of Messrs. E. and T. J. Drummond that the north shore of New Brunswick was expected to derive the greatest possible benefit. (They, under a name of the Canada Iron Corporation Company, had near Bathurst, one of the finest and most extensive iron ore deposits in the world, some 100,000,000 tons of the best possible ore being actually in sight and ready to be mined at a very small cost. The Government of New Brunswick had been very generous with regard to this industry, as the royalty charged was only a nominal one of about 5 cents per ton. After being brought to a point near Bathurst, the ore was taken over by the C. N. R. to New Castle, where the company was building a spur down to the water front, and a sum of $50,000 was being spent on the construction of a smelter alongside the ore deposits. But time would tell how this would work out. Mr. McGurdy thought, however, that sooner or later, New Castle would become an important manufacturing point, as there could be no possible question as to the facilities for the manufacture of furniture, railway cars, and other articles, which would be made in the vicinity of the coal supply. The statement had been made that it was cheaper to carry the iron ore to the coal than to take the coal to the smelter alongside the ore deposits. But time would tell how this would work out. Mr. McGurdy thought, however, that sooner or later, New Castle would become an important manufacturing point, as there could be no possible question as to the facilities for the manufacture of furniture, railway cars, and other articles, which would be made in the vicinity of the coal supply.

The people of Newcastle also had hopes that the company would make its way clear to construct a smelter in the near future, as the population was about double if such an industry was established in its midst. It might be, however, that the company would build its smelter in the vicinity of a coal supply, as the statement had been made that it was cheaper to carry the iron ore to the coal than to take the coal to the smelter alongside the ore deposits. But time would tell how this would work out. Mr. McGurdy thought, however, that sooner or later, New Castle would become an important manufacturing point, as there could be no possible question as to the facilities for the manufacture of furniture, railway cars, and other articles, which would be made in the vicinity of the coal supply.

The old fashioned way of doing a weak stomach, or stimulating the Heart or Kidneys is all wrong. This is why his prescription—Dr. Shoop's Restorative—is directed entirely to the cause of these ailments—the weak inside or controlling nerves. It isn't so difficult, says Dr. Shoop, to strengthen a weak stomach, Heart or Kidneys, if one goes at it correctly. Each inside organ has its controlling or inside nerve. When these nerves fail, then these organs must surely fail. These vital truths are leading druggists everywhere to dispense and recommend Dr. Shoop's Restorative. Test it a few days, and need improvement will promptly and surely follow. Sold by all dealers.

EXTERNAL EXAMINATIONS OF CANADIAN BANKS

Mr. H. C. McLeod's Interesting Pamphlet.

As the Bank Act comes before parliament at this season for its decennial revision the pamphlet issued by Mr. H. C. McLeod, general manager of the Bank of Nova Scotia, is timely. It is also interesting and valuable, for it presents in Mr. McLeod's able manner strong arguments why there should be an independent audit of banks. Mr. McLeod declares he has been long convinced of the usefulness of an independent examination, and he says the weakest point in our banking system is the lack of the check on the directors and general management. Failures are mainly due, he says, to this defect. Mr. McLeod asserts that the independent audit is in vogue in countries transacting more than three-fourths of the business of the world. He points out that three years ago he wrote an article in the Toronto Globe in favor of this plan, in which he called attention to bank failures in Canada, which were twenty-five per cent. in number within the preceding twenty-five years, while in the United States an imperfect system of examination had reduced failures to five per cent. Since afterwards Sir Edward Clouston, in his annual address, of December 3, 1906, to the shareholders of the Bank of Montreal, said: "During the last twenty years of a century, by failures of banks which could be organized under our present banking laws, the loss to depositors has been under $10,000. The note holders, of course have lost nothing. I speak only of banks that could be organized under our present laws. Other banks during that period failed, involving a loss to both depositors and note holders, but they were acting under old charters, and under conditions which do not now exist—a one case there was no doubt liability. Out of the twelve banks that have suspended since 1880, five only could obtain charters under our present system."

Commenting on this statement Mr. McLeod now observes: "Of the banks in existence at the commencement of the period mentioned by Sir Edward Clouston, some were organized under the present act all were permitted to do business under the act. A number of each kind failed not for the reason of size but on account of the quality of the management, which in all cases were reckless, in most cases fraudulent. If it is argued that small banks are more prone to disaster than large ones, the low percentage of failures in the United States, where the banks average very small in comparison with Canadian banks, give increased weight to my contention. With capable management a bank of $1,000,000 capital is not more liable to disaster than a bank of $2,000,000 capital; the one must be content with a small circle of operation; the other must resist the temptation to reach out with the dash and daring of too many instances, for want of restraint has resulted in menace and wreck."

Investigating the years between 1900 and 1909 Mr. McLeod quotes figures to show that while there were 39 banks at the beginning and 5 new banks had commenced business, 10 had disappeared through mergers and 2 had ceased to exist. He states that at the end of the period there were only 29, a number smaller than the failure of Incorporated banks in British North America. "To claim that the present system has an effective restraining influence on bank management is to argue against the statistics, and to urge a virtue in the Bank Act that experience shows is wanting. Mr. McLeod's view is that the suggestion that a simultaneous audit of all a bank's branches on the same day would be necessary. Mr. McLeod does not think bankers opposed to independent audit can derive much comfort from the financial troubles in Australia in the nineties, to which they are fond of referring. There were four failures out of 23 in existence, approximately 1 to 6, while in Canada from 1893 to 1900, with rapidly increasing bank deposits and advancing values, Canada showed failures in nearly 1 to 2. The chief cause of this condition, in Mr. McLeod's view, is the want of supervision of the direction and management of Canadian banks. Canadian experience has demonstrated that fabricated balance sheets will appear so long as there is no proper supervision. Auditing from the outside has had the same salutary effect in Great Britain, under the branch system, as government inspection has had in the United States, where banks are not permitted to have branches. The trend of banking in all countries, Mr. McLeod claims, shows that external examination is necessary; it has been adopted in eighty per cent. of the banking power of the world. The improvements in conditions in the United States since 1863 is due to external examination.

SANTA CLAUS IN PORTO RICO.

CHRISTMAS in Spain is a religious festival rather than a social one. It was so originally in Porto Rico, but the population has been influenced partly by the spirit of the new world and partly by the many American merchants who reside in the cities and who exert an influence much greater than the numbers would seem to warrant.

The churches welcome the day with chimes which begin at midnight and last until the midnight of the next day. What with one church beginning ten minutes too soon and another ten minutes too late and a third at the right moment, what with bells which ring every fifteen minutes and bell ringers who under some ancient custom would sound the great bells every half hour, the air is filled with music which never seems to end.

If you are near a campanile the effect is not altogether pleasant on account of the volume of sound striking the ear with too much force, but in a public square several hundred yards from the nearest belfry, where trees

A DAUGHTER PLAYS ON THE GUITAR.
And buildings break the sound waves, or in saloons on the hillside the effect is preponderantly delightful.

Most of all it is when you are sitting in the lower court or quadrangle of a Porto Rican home. Around you on four sides the house rises above you, and in the grounds or in great trays and porcelain pots rich flowers, graceful vines and restful trees afford shade, color and perfume. The sound of the bells descends from the air above very much like a benediction. You sit in an easy chair, and servants bring you tea or steaming coffee, sweetmeats and biscuits, confections and cigarettes, while a daughter or son plays ancient songs or dances upon a mandolin or guitar.

The churches are crowded; so are the clubs and most of the places of recreation. Every vehicle is in use, and there can be seen young men and women trying to imitate English models. Some of the people of the mountain districts carry out many of their early superstitions in regard to Christmas. They hang over the doors of their houses bunches of trees which are supposed to possess charms and often conduct marriage ceremonies under great canopies made of these charmed trees.

A great many wild flowers are in bloom at Christmas, and these are worn by children of the mountain districts in wreaths and garlands about their heads, necks and waists. The Christmas giving is sadly missing in our new possessions. The churches hold no Christmas tree, and there are few charitable societies to give feasts. However, one hospital for old people and orphans in Ponce gives a Christmas feast, and the inmates have a good meal and receive warm clothing, medicines and other useful gifts.

The American occupation has brought extra Christmas cheer to the people of the island. The American residents celebrate the day in good American fashion, and, best of all, they put money into circulation and give zest to industry and business.

When Shepherds Watched by Night. Some historians contend that the shepherds could not have watched by night on the Bethlehem plains in December, it being a period of great inclemency. In answer to this a well-known student says: "Bethlehem is not a cold region. The mercury usually stands all the month of December at 40 degrees. Corn is sown during this time, and grass and herbs spring up after the rains, so that the Arabs drive their flocks down from the mountains into the plains. The most delicate never make fires till about the end of November, and some pass the whole winter without them. From these facts I think it is established without doubt that our Saviour was born on the 25th day of December, the day which the church throughout the world has united to celebrate in honor of Christ's coming in the flesh."—Washington Star.

The Most Popular Christmas Poem. The most popular Christmas poem ever written for children was that familiar to the world's beginning: "Twas the night before Christmas, when all through the house—"

The poem was written by a very learned man, Dr. Clement Clarke Moore, a profound Greek and Hebrew scholar. He was a professor in the General Theological seminary in this city. He was born in 1770 and died in 1863.—New York Globe.

The Barber's Joke. Christmas morning and the barber very busy. "I'd rather shave ten Germans than one American."

The misanthropic brewer in the chair smiled smugly through the latter. "Glad," he chuckled. "Did you shave?"

"No, I haven't shaved yet," replied the brewer. "I'm waiting for you to shave me." "You certainly pay me a dollar and a half—more than any other barber in the city. And you haven't shaved yet?"

"Popcorn!" "If Santa Claus has come the same as grandpa," said a wee girl the other day. "I feel like I'd like to come down the chimney over a hot fire for fear his eyes would pop."

"If I was only Santa Claus," said Annie with a grin. "I know of just one stocking. I'd put all the presents in!"

"I know my feet are awful big," Mama says they're shocking. But they're all right just once a year when I hang up my stockings!"

The 2nd of the Auto. Mrs. DeWitt's car is being and having a car will give me an auto for Christmas.

The 2nd of the Auto. Mrs. DeWitt's car is being and having a car will give me an auto for Christmas.

A Trying Situation. That mother who says easily be in a trying situation. It's about the answer. And so the question.

POSSIBILITIES OF GYROSCOPE UNBOUNDED To be Used to Prevent Automobiles From Skidding and Substitute For Mariners Compass.

The possibilities of the gyroscope seem to be unbounded. Since Louis Brennan's eminently successful demonstration of his gyroscopic aeroplane last week, the same principle has been adapted to an automobile to prevent skidding. This particular automobile is in the form of a gyroscope fitted in a swinging frame attached to the car and driven at a high rate of speed. When the test was made on a thick coating of mud and soft snow, the car never slipped, and the gyroscopic action kept the car steady and straight. The latest suggestion is that the gyroscope should be substituted for the mariner's compass. Once started spinning in a plane running north and south it would never deviate until its rate fell below the necessary speed. It would not be affected by magnetic or electrical disturbances.

An interesting speculation is raised as to how the gyroscope principle might be applied to the steering of ships. In a fog the ordinary compass being untrustworthy in aeroplanes or ships because their engines are based on the magnetization system, which deflects the needle hopelessly. Once the gyroscope is perfected as a compass it would be set spinning in the proper plane and the compass by maintaining the indicated direction would make a straight course for its destination, or around from its base in the thickest fog.

SAWDUST FLOUR FROM LUMBER WASTE

"Four from" sawdust is another step in the movement in the conservation of forest resources. The United States consul at Christiania, Norway, has sent to this government a suggestion along this line which may be of value to American lumbermen who are wrestling with the problem of sawdust waste.

The flour in question is an ingredient of dynamite, lignum, xylite, which for the information of the man on the street is a kind of artificial flooring and other things. It is not put forward as a new discovery, for it has been in use for several years in Europe, and to a small extent in this country.

The wood flour is ground in a chisel mill, very similar to those which grind corn and soy. Pine and spruce sawdust is used in Europe, and after passing through the stones and the bolting chest, it is sacked or baled for shipment. It is then worth $12 to $14 a ton.

The flour has a number of uses, one of which is in the making of dynamite. It is the absorbent for the nitrogenizer, which is the explosive ingredient.

Wood flour dynamite is inferior to that made with fibrous earth as the absorbent, but it serves many purposes, and is cheaper. But dynamite is one of the smallest prospective uses for the product. Linoleum makers mix it with linseed oil and give body to the floor covering. It is not considered quite equal to ground cork for this purpose, as it is less elastic, but it is cheaper and meets requirements for medium grades.

The flour fills an important place in the manufacture of xylite, a kind of artificial flooring, resembling wood in weight and stone in appearance. It is used for kitchen floors, and in halls, corridors, cafes, restaurants and public rooms. It is impervious to water, and is practically fireproof. It is flour material in some of the German war vessels. It is so used because it is not liable to take fire or splinter if struck by shells.

Many additional uses for wood flour will probably be found. The amount of sawdust to be had in this country is practically unlimited, and millmen will welcome any plan that will lessen the waste at the sawmills. One of the ways to export thousands of tons of this sawdust flour yearly, and the United States takes some of it. Germany is a large manufacturer also, and has been for years. England is an extensive buyer, and much goes to France.

BANK OF NEW BRUNSWICK

At a meeting of the directors of the Bank of New Brunswick, held on Wednesday, it was decided to dispose of the remainder of the stock of the bank which they were authorized to issue some time ago. The amount is $250,000. The stock will be sold to share holders at 125. The Bank requires more capital to meet its ever increasing business. It is hardly necessary to say that it is in excellent condition. Its 13 per cent dividend speaks for itself—Globe.

HUNTERS KILLED

Thirty three lives were the sacrifice demanded by the chase of the moose and other wild game in the north eastern corner of the United States and Canadian provinces during the season. Twenty three persons were killed by being mistaken for deer or by the accidental discharge of firearms, or other causes in Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts and three more in the provinces of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia. Contributory causes added seven more deaths. Among the score or more injured 5 are not expected to recover. 2 will lose their sight, and half a dozen more will remain maimed or badly scarred for life. New Brunswick had but one death, an Italian shot by the accidental discharge of a hunter's rifle while on a G. T. P. train near Moncton.

JACK THE HUGGER IN TOWN

NEWCASTLE, N. S., at present, having a visit from Jack the Hugger. He has been prowling about the streets for the past week and has been the cause of considerable annoyance and fear to women having occasion to go through the cross streets at the upper end of the town. A few evenings ago a lady was held up by this individual near the Opera House, but she called her dog, which was near, and the hugger made good his escape, through a back yard minus the seat of his pants—Leader.

OTTAWA, Dec. 16—The committee on the eight hour bill of Mr. Verville met and agreed to a programme for a rather extensive inquiry into the question of limiting the hours of labor in Canada. It was decided to have an open meeting on each Saturday during the session after the recess at which anyone will be heard. There will be other meetings of the committee to hear special witnesses who will be summoned. The first of these will be labor. The first of them will be Mr. Ackland the deputy minister of labor. The fair wage officers of the Department of Labor will prepare a report on the question covering the whole of Canada.

TORONTO, Dec. 16—Leo Farnum, a former gateman at the Union station appeared in the police court yesterday on the charge of seducing a 15 year old girl from the Barriardo Home at Peterborough. The girl said she had missed a night train for Peterboro and Farnum persuaded her to spend the night at the station. "Two" caps went into the box and made charges against the girl's character which Magistrate Denison flatly declared he did not believe. The case was adjourned for evidence as to the girl's age and in the meantime the Union Station authorities will be asked to investigate the character of some of the employees there.

CHRISTMAS STAMP CAMPAIGN

THE 1923 BATTLE AGAINST THE DREAD WHITE PLAGUE.

Available Be's in the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives Increased Three-Fold as a Result of Last Year's Sale of Christmas Stamps. The Number Can Be Doubled This Year If Everyone Will Help.

Nearly $20,000.00 was netted from last year's sale, making it possible for the trustees to increase the available beds for needy patients from an average of fifty-five a year ago to one hundred and forty, the accommodation today.

The trustees are hopeful that they may bring the accommodation up to 300 beds as the outcome of this year's sale of this little one-cent messenger of hope and healing.

The Christmas Stamp, as a means of fighting the dread white plague, had its origin in Denmark in 1907, the sale of which has since been followed by other countries. The idea has been followed in Canada since 1917, and interest has grown each year. The Christmas Stamp of special design was put in circulation by the Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives with the success already indicated in this article.

The price of the individual stamp is only one cent, but what wonderful things can be accomplished by so tiny an instrument. There is no reason why everyone who writes a letter, addresses a postcard, mails a newspaper or parcel from this day out should not use one of these stamps. The educational value of the stamp appears on every piece of mail made more conspicuous. One can hardly begin to list the material results. It would require a meeting of the entire Tuberculosis that would bring hope and joy and gladness to thousands of homes and communities in all parts of Canada. The stamp of 1923 is more beautiful than that of a year ago. The design is as shown in this article, but printed in red and green, and is of same size as the regular government postage stamp.

This Christmas stamp will not carry any kind of mail, but any kind of mail will carry it—and carry too the happy Season's Greetings from sender to receiver. The stamps will be done up in envelopes of ten, twenty-five, fifty and one hundred for ordinary selling, and large users will be supplied in quantities of one thousand for ten or for one thousand is a cent each.

The books, departmental stores, drug stores, book and stationery stores and many other stores will sell them. Women's clubs, church organizations, bible classes and Sunday schools, public schools, and many other organizations and individuals will help this year as last year.

There would seem to be no reason why everybody everywhere may not help in forming an army of willing workers to sell these stamps all over the Dominion. The Muskoka Free Hospital for Consumptives is in the fullest sense a national institution caring for patients from every province in Canada.

The first issue of the stamp for this year is one million, and these will be put into circulation immediately, but there can hardly be any reason why the issue should not be increased many times over before Christmas. The direction of the sale of Christmas Stamps is in the hands of Mr. J. S. Robertson, Sec.-Treasurer, National Sanatorium Association, 9367 King Street, West, Toronto, who will give prompt reply to any enquiries regarding the stamps.

INTERPROVINCIAL BRIDGE NOW OPEN FOR HEAVY TRAFFIC

First Train Crossed New Bridge This Week--Temporary Approaches For Winter Months

A GRAND CONVENIENCE

Mr. Chas. J. McDonald who is engaged through the winter months carrying the mail to the camps up the Restigouche river, was the first to cross a team on the new carriage bridge at Matapedia. He was accompanied from the New Brunswick approach to the Quebec side by Messrs. Lockhart, Supy, of the work, and A. H. Ward, foreman of the construction. As the approaches are not completed he had to traverse parallel with the I. C. R. track to the public crossing.

Mr. A. H. Ward is worthy of recognition by the way he is pushing the work ahead.

It will be glad tidings to the people of Restigouche and Bonaventure to know that it is contemplated to open the new interprovincial bridge at Matapedia, over the Restigouche, to the public on or about January 1st. Mr. Mackenzie, Chief Engineer of the I. C. R. who has had supervision of the work of erection has arranged for temporary approaches during the winter; by that the bridge may be utilized. In the spring the permanent approaches will be built by Mr. Reid of Halifax, the contractor.

This improvement meets a long felt want.

It is over eight years now since Hon. Charles Macell presented the petition to the citizens of Matapedia to the late Hon. A. O. Blair, then Minister of Railways and Canals.

Through the cooperation of the Dominion, New Brunswick and Quebec governments the work has at last been accomplished. Among those who have assisted in the work should be mentioned Hon. C. H. LaBelle; J. Reid, M. P. P. J. H. Kelly, M. L. A. Hon. L. A. Taschereau, Percy Baker, Esq.; Hon. John Morrissey; Hon. W. S. Fielding; Hon. H. R. Emmerson; Wm. Currie, M. P. P. and W. H. McKennie, chief engineer; F. C. R. besides many others. Hon. Wm. Parsley, the Minister of Public Works, had the money voted of the House and Hon. G. P. Graham as Minister of Railways and Canals authorized Mr. Mackenzie to see it through.

Cold in the Head

What's the Sense in Sneezing and Sniffling, Coughing and Bothersome with Acomers?

"Catarrhazone" A Convenient Inhaler Treatment is the Proper Remedy to Cure Quickly and Pleasantly.

Geriatric people long ago abandoned the idea of "working off" a cold by means of laxatives and purgatives, for the simple reason that these are as bad as the disease itself.

To cure a cold in about five minutes' time use Catarrhazone. It is aromatic, delightful to inhale, clean, and very simple to use.

C. B. College, of Clarence street, London, says: "I had a continuous cold in the head for years, and never used anything with such quick results as I derived from five minutes' use of Catarrhazone. I am delighted to find a remedy that cures colds in a few minutes. Catarrhazone is a great relief."

To carry a Catarrhazone Inhaler in the pocket means you won't have colds, catarrh, or any lung or throat trouble. It keeps these diseases away, and is warranted to protect you against all the ills of winter. Complete outfit, with hard rubber pocket Inhaler, costs $1. Small size 50 cents. MILITARY DRILL TO BE INTRODUCED AT U. N. B.

Two Companies To Be Formed And Government Will Furnish Accoutrements--Arm To Be Built.

FREDERICTON, Dec. 16--(Channel) or Jones and Judge Barry as a special committee from the Senate of the University of New Brunswick had a consultation yesterday with Major Fleet, the officer commanding No. 3 military depot this city, relative to the introduction of military drill at the University. Major Fleet will supply instructions from the staff at the military depot and will make satisfactory arrangements regarding the periods for drill so that several hours each week can be devoted to the work by the students taking it up. It is likely that two companies of cadets will be formed at the University and that drill will commence soon after the first of the year. The federal department of militia and defense will furnish the accoutrements for the company and the students will provide their own uniforms at nominal cost. The University authorities will furnish an armory for the companies. Rev. T. Hunter Boyd of Charlotte County, who has been appointed provincial organizer for the Anti-Tuberculosis movement met the execution of the York County branch of the association for the prevention of tuberculosis last evening. Rev. Mr. Boyd is taking up the ecological side of the question and has arranged to deliver a public lecture here about January 12th. Today he went to Charlottetown to continue his work as organizer.

In a corridor of a certain University building there is a large replica of "The Wined Victory." A wretchedly hollow student observed the headless, armless, footless statue, and wrote underneath: "God pity Defeat!"

An old colored man, who could neither read nor write, and who had been found by his master to be deficient in his market book accounts, blamed the butcher for tampering with his book. The gentleman of the house remonstrated by saying: "But, Tom, figures don't lie." "No," answered the old man, "but there do figures!"

Two armers of the old school stood upon the platform of a railway station the other day, when a lady passed dressed up in the highest fashion.

"There, John," said one, "what do you think of that lady?" John eyed her for a minute and then said: "Ah, Bill, it is bad ground that takes so much top dressing."

A citizen was trading his paper the other evening, when suddenly he looked up and remarked to his wife: "Just think of it! One person in every 37 in England is a pauper!"

"Why, John," she returned, "it isn't so. I met more than 37 people in London last summer myself, and there wasn't a pauper in the lot!"

A Boston girl the other day said to a Southern friend who was visiting her, as two men rose in a car to give them seats:

"Oh, I wish they would not do it."

"Why, isn't it a bit nice of them?" said her friend, settling herself comfortably.

"Yes, but one can't thank them, you know and it is so awkward."

"Can't thank them. Why not?"

"Why would you not speak to a stranger man, would you?" said the Boston maiden to the astonishment of her Southern friend.

concert in the Opera House on Friday night. The greater part of the evening will be taken up with a debate.

The subject will be, whether it is better to expend out money in the interests of the British Navy or in a navy of our own.

Here is a story told by a drummer about a drummer and a pretty waitress. Here is what happened, according to the report:

The dapper little travelling man stained at the menu and then looked up at the pretty waitress. "Nice day, little one," he began.

"Yes, it is," she answered, and so was yesterday, and my name is Ella, and I know I'm a little plump, and have pretty blue eyes, and I've been here quite a while and like the place and I don't think I'm too nice a girl to be working in a hotel, did I tell you, and I'm a respectable girl, and I'm from the country, and my brother is cook in this hotel, and he weighs 200 pounds, and last week he wiped up this dining-room floor with a fresh $400 month travelling man who tried to make a date with me. Now what'll you have?"

The dapper little travelling man

said he was not hungry, and a cup of coffee and some cakes would do.

At the death of the Duke of Wellington the whole diplomatic corps was invited to the funeral at St.

Paul's. The French ambassador, on receiving his invitation, was very much upset. He hurried off to his colleague of Russia, Baron Brunow, and confided to him the difficulty in which he was placed.

"The queen," he said, "expects us to go to St. Paul's to the funeral of the Duke of Wellington. How can

I go, considering the injuries which the Duke inflicted on my country?"

LEOPOLD LOSES BATTLE WITH THE GRIM REAPER

King of The Belgians Expires At An Early Hour Collapse Comes at Moment When Doctors Had High Hopes of Recovery

BRUSSELS, Dec. 17.—King Leopold died at 2:25 this morning, his aged and wasted body being unable to stand the strain upon it. The collapse occurred suddenly and at a moment when the doctors, seemingly had had the greatest hopes of recovery.

Throughout yesterday's bulletin were issued from the sick room indicating progressive improvement. The bulletin posted at 6 p. m. gave the king's temperature, pulse and respiration as practically normal. Apparently by the drainage of the wound was good, no fever was present and during the day the king was able to take nourishment.

The public at large was satisfied that the king was on the road to recovery, but within the pavilion where the king lay, there was a feeling of anxiety, chiefly because of Leopold's great age. After a restless day the patient was able to sleep for a brief time early in the evening and the night passed quietly. But towards 2 o'clock alarming symptoms appeared.

Many persons find themselves affected with a persistent cough after an attack of influenza. As this cough can be promptly cured by the use of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, it should not be allowed to run on until it becomes troublesome. Sold by all druggists.

ALL BUT FOUR OF THE COLUMN SLAIN Heavy Slaughter in Battle in Nicaragua.

PANAMA, Dec. 8.—Passengers arriving here from Nicaragua say that the people in that republic are kept in ignorance of what is happening throughout the country. So true is the censorship maintained by President Zelaya that residents of the western part of Nicaragua have not learned of the breaking off of diplomatic relations between the United States and Nicaragua. The President of Honduras, reported to be an ally of Zelaya, has wired the Honduran Minister at Salvador inquiring about events in Nicaragua after waiting ten days for a reply to numerous messages sent by him.

General Toledo is besieged at Greytown, which is surrounded on land and sea by the insurgents. General Vasquez, commander of the government forces, at the last battle near Rama, was court-martialed because of the defeat suffered by the government troops. This battle is said to have been a desperate one. A Government column which entered the fight with 150 soldiers left all but four of them on the field.

MANAGUA, Nicaragua, Dec. 16.—Jose Santos Zelaya, has resigned from the presidency of Nicaragua. He has placed his resignation in the hands of Congress.

Apparently there was no other course for him to take. The people were at last aroused. The guns of the revolutionists threatened. The warships of the United States lay in Nicaraguan ports.

Managua has been seething for days. The spirit of revolt has spread even to the gates of the palace. Zelaya surrendered himself, with an armed guard. Unchecked the populace have marched through the streets crying for the end of the old and proslavery regime.

Who will take up the reins is one knows or cares. It is sufficient that Zelaya as dictator, will be known no more. There is no doubt that Congress will act quickly on his resignation for the people have demanded it.

A sprained ankle will usually disable the injured person for three or four weeks. This is due to lack of proper treatment. When Chamberlain's Liniment is applied a cure may be effected in three or four days. This liniment is one of the best and most remarkable preparations in use. Sold by all druggists.
