The Armenian Slaughter. VIENNA, Nov. 22 .- The Politische Correspondenz prints a letter from an official Turkish source, whose intention is to minimize the significance of the Armenian massacre in the Sassoun district. The letter asserts that at Sassoun all the Armenians fell in open combat. The troops, the writer admits, killed 2,000 of

A Kanaka Uprising.

Sydney, N. S. W., Nov. 22 .- A Kanaka uprising is reported to be in progress on the islands in the vicinity of New Guinea. Scores of Europeans are said to have been murdered and most of the trading posts burned. The steamer Three Cheers brings the news that her captain found fresh traces of cannibal feasts on Admiralty Island and at New Ireland.

Was the Captain to Blame?

SYDNEY, N. S. W., Nov. 22 .- The inquiry into the recent wreck of the passenger steamer Wairarapi, which went on the rocks during the voyage between this port and Auckland, has ended, and judgment will be given on Nov. 30. Several witnesses said that when the steamer struck the captain jumped from the bridge, and he was not seen again. There was much delay in lowering the boats, and this is believed to have been largely the cause of the great loss of life. Had there not been a total lack of discipline, the witnesses said, the dead list could never have approached 100.

"Lord Ashburton's" Career. "Lord Ashburton," otherwise known as "William Griffith," alias "Griffith," alias "Graham," alias "Charles Bertrand," alias, "St. Elmer Donaldson," alias "Big Griff," alias "Griff," the noted international swindler, has been run to earth by Scotland Yard detectives, and is in prison in London. The proprietor of one of the big notels in New York is authority for the statement. When Griff deposited a draft for £12,000 in a Chancery Lane bank the manager let him have a book of checks. "Big Griff" promptly passed them right and left. His arrest and conviction followed. His criminal career began in Chicago when he was 22.

On to Madagascar !

PARIS, Nov. 22 .- In the Chamber of Deputies today M. Paschal Grousset (Radical) moved that the debate on the question of granting a credit and sanctioning the expedition to Madagascar be adjourned until the general situation could be carefully studied. The motion was de-feated by an overwhelming majority.

MARSEILLES, Nov. 22.—The steamer Iracuddy arrived here today with news from East Africa. Her officers say that a strong anti-French feeling has developed in Madagascar. The Queen's sister and aunt have traversed the capital and the villages in the vicinity preaching the holy war, and Prince Rakotemana and the fanatics are agitating the populace. The people were greatly excited on the occasion of Le Myre De Vilers' arrival at Antanarivo. Many outrages, such as the burning of foreigners, have been committed and allowed to go un-

Will Queenstown Be Sidetracked? London, Nov. 22 .- The officials in the London and Liverpool offices of the Cunard Steamship Company will neither confirm nor deny the report that the company intends to abandon Queenstown as a port of call. The concensus of opinion in mercantile circles is that in consequence of the deepening of the water over the Mersey Bar fast steamers need not wait for high tide. It is therefore the quicker way to carry the mails direct from Liverpool without calling at Queenstown. The President of the Chamber of Shipping said at a meet ing today that the report of the interview with Postmaster. General Morley had been misunderstood. It was the intention of the Cunard Company, in view of the special permanent service to be provided by the postoffice for American mails delivered via Queenstown, to continue calling at that port.

The Price of Peace.

London, Nov. 22. - The Globe prints a dispatch from Hiroshimi stating that advices have been received there from China, in which it is intimated that it is the intention of the Chinese Government to offer an indemnity 100,000,000 tacks to defray the expenses of the war as one of the condi-

A Washington dispatch says: "Interest in the Japanese-Chinese war since the jublication of the fact that Japan will receive dvances looking to a settlement of the conflict alone from China centers in speculation concerning the limit of the further duration of hostilities. It is assumed that they will in all probability cease with the fall of Port Arthur, but when that occurs is doubtful. Owing to the strength of the position it is believed in well informed ircles that a siege will be resorted to by he Japanese commander.

A dispatch from Che Foo says that all the vessels of the Japanese fleet are now at Talien Wan and the troops are marching southward to attack Port Arthur. The Chinese there are making preparations to present a determined front to the enemy. The captain of the Chinese warship Chen Yuen, Lin Tai Sau, committed suicide by taking a large quantity of opium because of the stranding of his ship. The vessel struck a rock and is probably a total wreck. The Chinese authorities at Shanghai, however, have arranged to send ships and men to her assistance, believing the Chen Yuen can be floated and repaired. The United States Navy Department has an official cablegram announcing that the Chen Yuen, the most formidable vessel in the Chinese navy, was damaged by a torpedo on leaving Wei Hai Wei on Nov. 18, and was beached and is now useless. With the loss of the Chen Yuen China becomes practically powerless on the sea. This vessel was 7,340 tons displacement and 6,200 horse power, her length being

How the Czar Will Ride to His Wedding.

What the Bride Will Wear-A Gorgeous Pageant Projected.

London, Nov. 22.-The St. Petersburg correspondent of the Daily News says in dispatch concerning the details of the Czar's wedding: The bride will be dressed at the Grand Duke Sergius' palace in the historic national costume and a small diamond crown. The procession will go to the winter palace, led by the Emperor's abolis. Cossack guard. Behind the military will year. come the master of ceremonies, the court marshals and the minister of the household, riding in gilt carriages, surrounded by mounted officials, huntamen and lackeys in gorgeous unitorms.

The ceremony will be performed on a raised dais in the Palace Church. The bride's godfather will lead the couple to the dais, and the ex-Czar's confessor, Jaoischeff will begin the service. The priest will place the two rings on the fingers of the bride and bridegroom. These they will exchange there. While the choir sings, the priest will join their hands, and will cover the pair with his robe. The bridesmaids and groomsmen will hold the marriage crowns over their heads, and the priest will lead them thrice around the dais. Each will sip hot wine, which act is symbolical of their sharing everything.

After the prayers the marriage will be declared effected and the bride's new names will be pronounced and the images will be kissed. The grand dinner afterwards will be the only festivity in consequence of the mourning.

THE KILLING OF RIORDAN

Pugilist Fitzsimmons Exonerated by the Coroner's Jury.

SYRACUSE, N. Y., Nov. 22 .- The inquest touching on the death of Con. Riordan was held tonight before Coroner Roberts and a jury. The jury brought in the following verdict after a long wrangle:

"We find that Cornelius Riordan came to his death on the evening of Friday, Nov, 16, from an accidental blow delivered by Robert Fitzsimmons while engaged in a legal sparring exhibition on the stage of H. R. Jacobs' opera house. We exonerate Robert Fitzsimmons from all blame."

ARRIVAL OF THE COREAN

After a Perilous Voyage of Sixteen Days.

ST. JOHNS, Nfld., Nov. 22 .- The overdue Allan line steamer Corean, fcom Liverpool, for this port and Philadelphia, arrived here this morning after a sixteen days' voyage in weather which Capt, Main reports as being the worst ever experienced within his knowledge. Immense seas broke over her, rendering it impossible for the officers of the ship to maneuver her. Snow storms were frequent and the ship was a mass of ice, looking, as she entered the harbor, like an enormous ice berg. Oil had to be used to break the force of the seas. Otherwise, the officers say, the Corean would have foundered. The 60 passengers on board the Corean expected to go to the bottom every minute.

No serious damage was sustained by the vessel. She will proceed to Philadelphia

A Large Fleet of Steamers Overdue

at New York. NEW YORK, Nov. 22 .- The White Star ine steamer Bovic, which sailed from Liverpool Nov. 9, is three days overdue, and has not been sighted since she left port. She is one of the staunchest boats that sails from this port and almost uniformly makes the passage across the Atlantic in ten days. Her non-arrival, therefore, causes some uneasiness. It was her sister ship, the Naronic, which some two years ago sailed from New York and was never heard of after. H. Maitland Kerey, agent of the White Star Line, said today that he did not fear for her safety. He recalled the fact that the speedy liner New York, due last Friday night, was 36 hours overdue in consequence of stress of including a number of race horses.

HOUSES OF REFUGE ON THE COTTAGE

PLAN.

In the neighboring State of New York the county poor-houses are under the supervision of a general board, called the State Board of Charities and Correction. Although the functions of this Board is to a large extent wholly advisory, it has nevertheless succeeded during the last 10 or 15 years in bringing bout very great improvements both in the construction and in the management of these as well as of other county institutions. This Board had a large model of a county poorhouse on exhibition at the World's Fair at Chicago last year, and this model is now at the State Capital at Albany. This model is constructed on what is known as the "Cottage System." that is, instead of one main building for the accommodation of all the inmates there are a number of detached cot-This is the system now recommended by the State Poard, and already one of the counties has, adopted it after trying the old system for many years. In view of the fact that more than one of the counties in Ontario is now moving in the matter of providing a county house of refuge or poor-house, a short description of the cottage system will be timely.

In the cottage system there is a central building for the keeper's residence and administration offices. In some case the farm house purchased with the farm can be utilized for this purpose if it is in a good location. To make the matter simple we will suppose that the keeper's residence faces the south, and also that there is a good barn to the northwest of the same. In this case the the west of the central cottage so as to | military and other dignitaries. be on the same side as that of the barn and for reasons that will be referred to presently. To the east of the keeper's cottage is the cottage for the women. and they are connected by means of a covered passage. To the north of the keeper's residence, but connected therewith by a covered passage, is the general kitchen and two dining-rooms, one for men and one for women. The cottages are two stories only. Over the dining-rooms is the chapel and over the kitchen are bedrooms for attendants. For the accommodation of sick inmates it is recommended to have two one-story cottages, one to the west of the men's cottage for the men, and one to the east of the women's cottage for the women. AGEE, McKILLOP & MURPHY—

James Magee, Q.C., James B. McKillop, the men at all times as far as The barn and cottage for the men the men at all times as far as possible from the women's department. The morality of many of the inmates of every precaution must be taken to keep the two sexes absolutely separated. This separation is much better effected by the cottage system than by the ordinary congregate system. The cottage system, moreover, is much safer in case of fire; it is safer in case of an epidemic; it is more homelike and removes the objection that many have to the prdinary poor-house; the cottages have more sun light and are more easily venfilated than the rooms of a large build-

THE CZAR'S FUNERAL.

A Most Impressive Funeral Service. The signal for the services to begin was the firing of three guns from the fortress. Just as the third gun was fired Emperor Nicholas II. and the imperial family appeared at the west door of the cathedral and, preceded by the Metropolitan of St. Peterslurg and the members of the Holy Synod, all of them magnificently robed in vestments of black and silver, passed through the body of the edifice toward the catafalque.

The Metropolitan of St. Petersburg carried the great crucifix as the Chief of the Holy Synod, and as the procession passed toward the catafalque sprinkled holy water upon those about him, at the same time audibly repeating a prayer.

After the Czar, the imperial family and the Holy Synod had taken their places on a dais at the foot of the coffin, the Metropolitan and the clergy standing in a semicircle around the head of the coffin, the Metropolitan began the mortuary mass, which, with the exception of the elaborate music and the general splendor of the occasion, was the same as the service for the dead which is said for any other faithful member of the orthodox church.

At noon the air inside the church was heavy with incense, and the dim light within was increased by that of thousands of tapers, each mourner and visitor holding one. The first taper was lighted by the Czar. All present stood, the Czar with the imperial family and the visiting royalties, on the right side of the coffin.

The Czarina, pale and fragile, and looking much affected, stood by the side of the Czar. With them were the Princess of Wales, the Duchess of Cobourg, King Christian of Denmark, the Prince of Wales, the Duke of York, the Duke of Cobourg, naval officers, and the ambassadors, with their suites. On the left of the coffin were right until all the forces were engaged. cottage for the men would be located to a number of clergymen, and in front were

Behind the altar all the available space was crowded, two persons being jammed into the space that should be occupied by one. After the general mass for the dead These buildings are 20 or 30 feet apart | the special service for a dead Czar was begun. The service began with a brief the evening. prayer, after which Paalm xci. was sung by an unseen male choir. Then followed the singing of Psalm cxix., which was divided into three parts, with an anthem after each part. anthem was the "Gloria Alleluia," the second, "Have Mercy Upon My Soul," and the third, "Blessed Art Thou, O Lord, Teach Me Thy Judgments." At the end of the second part, before the anthem, was the prayer.

"God of all spirits and all flesh, who has destroyed death, trodden down Satan and iven hope in thy word, grant, O Lord, that the soul of thy servant, our Emperor, rest in happy, pleasant and peaceful places, from which grief and sighing shall flee away. Forgive, O Lord, the sins he hath committed in thought, word and deed, houses of refuge is very low indeed and nor there is not a man that liveth that sinneth not. Thou only art without sin. Thy righteousness is everlasting righteousess and thy word is truth."

Six litanies were then sung by the Metropolitan and the choir. "Gloria in Excelsis Dei" followed the litanies, which was succeeded by another intonation by the Metropolitan. The "Miserere" and Psalm li. followed this, and then the ancient acrostic canon, a mystical corrosition by Theophranes, a priest of the early church, was pronounced. After this came six hymns and another intonation:

"All is vanity. Life is a shadow and a dream. Earth-born creature disquieteth himse f in vain, as it is written; when we have heaped up riches in the world we lie down in the grave where kings and beggars sleep together. Therefore, Christ, our Lord, as the lover of mankind, give repose to the soul of thy departed servant. Then the Metropolitan approached the catafalque preparatory to the ceremony of taking a solemn farewell of the dead. This was done by the chief mourners, the Metropolitan and the archprests, the Metropolitan meanwhile repeating the following as from the mouth of the dead: "Brethren and friends, view me lying here speechless and breathless, and lament. But yesterday we conversed together. Awful hour. Death has now overtaken me. Come near all who are bound to me in affliction, and with a last embrace pronounce a last farewell. No longer shall I sojourn among you, no longer shall I bear a part in your discourses. To a Judge I go who is no respector of persons. Master and slave, sovereign and subject, rich and poor, are alike before him. According to their deeds they are put to shame or rewarded. Therefore, let me entreat all of you to pray to God earnestly that I am not tormented with the wicked according to my sins, but am received into the light Gillett; first vice-president, Mr. Joseph of life. After the repetition of the "Holy, Holy" and the Lord's Prayer, the Metropolitan repeated thrice: "May the memory endure forever. Oh, our brother, who was worthy to be blessed with remembrance." The choir sang this three times, and the Metropolitan then pronounced the words of absolution for the dead:

"Christ, our Lord, who commanded the Apostles to retain or remit sins, through whom I received power to do the same, pardon thee, my spiritual child, for whatever sins, voluntary or involuntary, thou mayst have committed in this life now and forever unto the ages of ages. Amen."

He Was a Point Edward Man. NEW YORK, Nov. 22 .- The body of Daniel Reilly, 25 years old, and a native of Point Edward, Canada, was received at the morgue on Monday from the workhouse on Blackwell's Island. The case attracted considerable attention because the autopsy had been performed by Dr. C. E. Bruce, of the workhouse staff. While the coroners did not criticise the liberty taken by Dr. Bruce, they were quite anxious to know why he made the autopsy. House Surgeon Babcock explained that the man had been admitted on Nov. 17, apparently in good health. He showed symptoms of having been on a debauch, however, and was treated accordingly. He complained Saturday morning of a pain in his head, and in a little while he became violent. He was then placed in a padded cell, where he remained until he died. The autopsy re-

MILITARY MANEUVERS.

Imposing Parade of Volunteers at To ronto.

TORONTO, Nov. 22 .- The weather for the military maneuvers today was fine, and large crowds turned out during the morning to witness the proceedings, which occurred this year in the northwestern section of the city, instead of High Park. The total strength of the corps was as tollows: Staff Sixth Royal Canadian Dragoons, 27; Roya Canadian Regiment, 80; Queen's Own Rues, 633; Tenth Royal Grenadiers, 425; Thirteenth Battalion, Hamilton, 428; Forty-eighth Highlanders, 338. Col. Otter was in command.

The regiments formed at their respective headquarters at 8 a.m., and about 9:30 marched to the scene of action. The Thirteenth Battalion arrived from Hamiltou soon after 9 o'clock and joined the city corps on Spadina avenue. These formed the attacking force.

The regulars arrived on the scene of action some minutes earlier. They constituted a skeleton army of defense, which assumed three positions, and were driven in first by the vanguard of the Queen's Own R fles, and on two subsequent occasions by the entire force. The Royal Grenadiers and Queen's Own Rifles first came into action, the others coming up in the rear and gradually extending their lines to the The last position was held longest, and the firing was very heavy towards the close of the engagement, the final position being, however, taken without a charge. The ground on which the maneuvers took place was too narrow for the number of troops engaged. The officers held a banquet in

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 22.-The steamer Mariposa, which arrived from Honolulu, brought news of an attempt to overthrow the Government by Claude H. Wetmore, a newspaper man, who formerly represented New York and Chicago papers there. Wetmore had several hundred Royalists connected with him in the plot, which was to have been sprung on the day after the last steamer from Honolulu-the Australia-had sailed. On the morning of the steamer's departure Wetmore was summoned to Attorney-General Smith's office and told that the Government was in possession of full details of his scheme, and he was given the alternative of departing on the Australia or being thrown into prison for treason. He took the former course.

House. COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 22.-Lieut. Oyler, who ordered troops at Washington court house to fire, in accordance with orders of Col. Colt. in a given contingency, testified today in the court of inquiry to the batter ing of the doors by the mob with stanes and other things. "A shot fired by a person outside was followed by a cry 'All together,'" he said, "and a terrific blow opened the south door four feet, when I gave the command 'Fire.' "After one volley I gave the command.

'Cease firing.'" The witness said that neither he nor his men were intoxicated. Witness had drank a glass of beer immediately after dinner. He saw at least 50 revolvers in the crowd in the afternoon. Riot shells containing shot could not have been used, not being fitted to the rifles of the Ohio National Guard.

Leaving London. Dr. O. Weld, who has just returned from the Pacific Province, is so well pleased with the prospects of British Columbia, and of Vancouver, B. C., in particular, that he has arranged to leave London in the course of a month or two, with the object of permanently locating in that fine city. Dr. Weld has been offered an excellent opening, and there are bright prospects for a brilliant professional future for him. Dr. Weld will be much missed in London social, Masonic and medical circles.

A Salvation Army Labor Bureau. During the past week 135 men have found shelter at the Salvation Army Working-man's Hotel. The biggest number for any one night was on Wednesday, when 28 men occupied the beds. The army has now started a labor bureau in connection with the establishment, and are ready to supply men on short notice. Already they have furnished men to cut wood and do chores who have given great satisfaction. The telephone number is 535. Any philanthropically K. Buck inclined person can now receive a check-Rennie. book by applying at the citadel. The checks are given instead of money to persons asking aid, and may include a bed or meal, just as the donor wishes. The army afterwards collects the amount from the holder of the books. The Exeter Robbery.

The third party suspected of being implicated in the robbery of Muir's woolen mill GRATES and ART TILES. at Exeter on the morning of May 25 was placed behind the bars this morning. His name is John Hodgins. He is a married man, a blacksmith by trade, and conducted man, a blacksmith by trade, and conducted R. R. BLAND, 2$1 Dundas Street.

near Parkhill. Hodgins was arrested by Constable R. W. Ward, of London West. Three pairs of pants and several other articles, alleged to have been taken from the mill, were found in his house.

The preliminary hearing in the case of Wells Sholdice and Edward Sholdice, of McGillivray, the other two prisoners, was begun before Squire J. B. Smyth this morning, and at 1 o'clock was adjourned. Only two witnesses were examined. John Muir, head of the firm of Muir & Co., related the circumstances of the robbery and estimated his loss at $300. He also identified some of the clothing worn by the prisoners as similar to that stelen from the mill. The mother of the prisoners, Eliza Sholdice, was also examined. She stated that Wells had been in Exeter the night of May 24. He left home about 7 o'clock and did not get back till daybreak the next morning. Edward, however, was in Parkhill on the Queen's Birthday. Mrs. Sholdice Court this morning and another charge told of the boys bringing the goods to her,

To choose from squad; so, before moving too hastily, the worth of the various applicants was learned. The officers met again yesterday and decided unanimously to offer the position to Mr. A. C. Tresham, of London, England, who has been in Canada for several months. Mr. Tresham is a graduate of the famous Musical Training School at Kneller Hall, in the British metropolis, and has won fame in the old land as a musician of the No. 1 stamp. He was for many years in the bands of the British army, and comes well recommended from every direction. F. N. Innes, leader of the celebrated Thirteenth Regiment Band of New York, sends a very flattering testimonial as to the ability of the Seventh's new leader. Under his guidance the band will rapidly assume its position of years ago-the best in Canada. Took a Tumble.

Moses Florey, a lineman in the employ last evening, being the first annual ball pany, had a narrow escape from instant ing wires on George street. Vellee was working on a guy wire, but failed to securely fasten it to the cross-arm. Florey climbed up to give a helping hand, but, as the task was about done, the wire snapped, causing Florey to lose his hold and fall to the ground, a distance of fully 35 feet, landing on his back. He was picked up unconscious and removed to the Morkin House, where a physician put several stitches in his head. Florey was badly shaken up, but luckely escaped having any bones broken. He regained consciousness in about two hours, and is now doing well. This is not the first narrow escape that Florey has had. On the night of May 16 he was sleeping in his room, when the house was struck by lightning. The fluid entered his apartments and did not leave until it tore the plaster off the ceiling, demolished part of the furniture and tore the woodwork into splinters. But the sleeper never awoke. A few weeks ago Florey was stripping some wire on the Grand Trunk track, when an engine and a train approached him from different directions. He saw the yard engine, and in stepping out of its way was nearly knocked down by the express.

a Million Dollars of Gold Dust and Nuggets Hid Away.

KNOZVILLE, Tenn., Nov. 22 .- A large amount of gold has been found in an Indian mound in Union county, 25 miles from this city. A week ago a Cherokee woman named McDonald, a granddaughter of Chief McIntosh, one of the famous chieftains of her tribe, appeared in the neighborhood with a map, showing the location of a large amount of hidden treasure. She claimed that $500,000 had been buried in the mound by her grandfather. People were disposed treat her as a grank, but finally the owner priesthood and an honor to society. of the farm on which the treasure was located agreed to open the mound for half the treasure, if any was found. Three workmen commenced excavating and early yesterday morning they found $16 worth of gold dust and nuggets in a jar. Later they unearthed an iron box containing $30,000 worth of the precious metal. The Indian woman claims there is a great deal more to be unearthed. Over 2,000 people have gathered in the neighborhood of the mound, and 50 armed men are guarding it.

THANKS DUE TO WHALERS.

How Their Stiffened Joints Have Aided Science.

The Peruvian Indian and Barbarous Asiatics All Come in for a Share of the Praise-The Wonderful Development That Has Followed the Whalers' Discovery-What Science Owes the Unscientific,

It is a curious and noteworthy fact that medicine owes to the unscientific most of the valuable remedies used for the cure of disease. We received quinine from the Peruvian Indian, opium from the barbarous Asiatics and Cod-liver Oil from ignorant whalers, who, because it softened leather thought it would also soften joints stiffened with rheumatism.

These whalers used Cod-liver Oil externally for years before they tried taking it in-ternally, but when they took it internally they found it did them more good, and, strange to say, Cod-liver Oil is probably the best remedy today for chronic rheumatism. The medical world realizes this fact and prescribes Scott's Emulsion of Cod-liver Oil almost universally for this complaint.

In 1754, one hundred and forty years ago, the first treatise was written on the value of Cod-liver Oil as a cure for rheumatism by a Dr. Perceval. Seventy-five years later-1829—an article was published showing that Cod-liver Oil was good for skin diseases due to rheumatism, and in 1843, about 50 years ago, the oil came into use as a cure for con-

Thus for 200 years at least Cod-liver Oil has bean steadily gaining ground as a cure for disease. It may have been in use for even a longer period, but it can be traced back two centuries with absolute certainty. It is within recent years, however, that it has developed a wide scope and scientists have learned its true nature and many uses. It cannot now be said that physicians have really reasoned out the "why" of all its beneficial effects, but experience has revealed some of its underlying principles and science is still at work trying to determine the reason for some of its remarkable results. About 25 years ago physicians came to the unanimous opinion that in order to realize the full benefits of Cod-liver Oil it must be taken in the form of an emulsion. The illustration of this principle is to be found in the use of butter fat. It is perfectly clear that to get the greatest benefit from butter fat it should be taken in its emulsionized form of cream. To eat raw butter is to upset the stomach and derange digestion, whereas if taken in cream the nourishing properties of the butter fat are assimilated without effort.

Exactly this principle applies to Cod-liver Oil. The raw oil is likely to upset the stomach and excite nausea, but in the form of Scott's Emulsion it is natural, easy on the most delicate stomach, and its taste is com-Pletely disguised.

But Messrs. Scott & Bowne, the proprietors of Scott's Emulsion, have done more than make a perfect emulsion of Codliver Oil. They have combined the emulsionized oil with the Hypophosphites of Lime and Soda, thus adding to the potency of each of these valuable constituents. The Hypophosphites form a basis for healthy bone development, assist in the construction of healthy tissue and are a great tonic for the nervous system. Indeed, these Hypophosphites alone are a great factor in toning up the system and warding off dis-

This happy combination, therefore, of Con-liver Uil and Hypophospi in Scott's Emulsion, is the best possible nutriment to overcome the many ailments where a loss of flesh, or diseased or depleted blood is indicated.

The uses for Scott's Emulsion comprise such forms of wasting as consumption, scrofula, anæmia and chronic rheumatism, and the wasting of children. Scott's Emulsion is the most efficient nourishment that can be taken by children in addition to their ordinary food. It presents the principles of milk in a most concentrated and easy form for assimilation, and combines with these also materials for solid flesh and healthy bones.

Scott's Emulsion has completely revolutionized the administration of Cod-liver Oil, and multiplied its usefulness by making it a practical and efficient remedy in cases where the plain oil could not be taken. All druggists sell Scott's Emulsion.

MONARCH OF THE CASCADES. Strange Transformation in the Appear ance of Mount Tacoma.

SAN FRANCISCO, Cal., Nov. 22,-Great excitement has been caused throughout the Puget Sound country by what is looked upon by many as an eruption of Mount Tacoma, or Ranier, 14,444 feet high, and one of the loftiest peaks there. The mountain has lately been strangely transformed. The crest of the great monarch of the Cascades has changed, the cone hav. ing fallen in, and steam can be seen rising from the crater. There is no eruption, it is believed by those most competent to judge, but great masses of rock seem to have fallen. The snow-capped cone has disappeared and a sharp-pointed peak has risen in its place to the east of the crater. The changed appearance of the mountain is evident from the streets of Seattle, 90 miles distant, and thousands of people have watched the great peak all the afternoon. But a very few people have ever ascended the mountain, and at this season of the year the ascension is an absolute impossibility. There is no way of making a thor-

A FISHING LINE DISPUTE

That Must Go to the Courts Before Uncle Sam Takes It Up.

CLEVELAND, Ohio, Nov. 22 .- A Washington special to the Press says the letter of the Lake Erie fishermen, complaining that the Canadian officials on the cruiser Petrel illegally removed their nets form a portion of the lake belonging to the United States, has been referred by the State Department to the British embassy.

At the State Department is was stated that it would have to be decided in the courts. If the American fishermen had set their nets north of the imaginary line which is drawn directly through the lake from east to west, than they were in Canadian waters, and Canadians had a right, under the treaty, to seize their nets and contents. If, however, they can prove that their nets were set south of the line. or in other words, in American waters, then they will have a good case for heavy damages, and the United State authorities | prayers by a young man. will back them to the uttermost.

However, the matter is one that must be determined by a lawsuit, and until the courts decide the United States Govern. ment can go no further.

CHATTELLE'S CASE.

An Interview with the Culprit's Half-Brother,

Who Decides It Will Not Be Advisable to Defend the Murderer.

Mr. Malcolm Macfarlane, of Stratford, was in St. Hyacinthe, Que., a few days ago, and availed himself of the opportunity to call on Eusebe Chattelle, the half brother of the confessed murderer of Jessie Keith. Eusebe Chattelle keeps a grocery store in St. Hyacinthe, and appeared to be doing a flourishing business. He is a tall, dark, straight-looking man of 32 years of age, and is smart and business-like. He is assisted in the store by his wife, who is a tidy-locking woman, They speak English fairly well.

Chattelle (the prisoner) left St. Hya-cinthe when his half-brother was only 2 years old, so that the latter never saw him until he returned there last spring. Eusens knew from his father that there was such a brother. While in St. Hyacinthe the prisoner worked as laborer on a railway, and appeared to be very quite. All who knew him were shocked to hear of the murder, and the laborers with whom he had worked all said that they had considered him very quiet. To his halfbrother, especially, the news was a terrible

"If we had never seen him." he said to Mr. Macfarlane, "it would have been nothing; but it seems terrible that he should go away and commit such a murder after coming home and getting acquainted

Mr. Chattelle said his father had been married three times, the prisoner being a son of the second wife, and himself a son of the third. The prisoner had two full sisters, one of whom is in a convent. There were two girls by the first marriage and one by the last. They are all married, excepting, of course, the one in the convent. The sisters have not been informed of the murder, although they may have heard

He has had several letters from parties n Toronto making inquiries about his brother's insanity, and offering to defend him on that plea. Eusebe, however, thinks his brother is perfectly sane, and asked Mr. Macfarlane's opinion as to the advisability of defending him. After giving Mr. Chattelle minute details of the evidence against the prisoner, Mr. Macfarlane said he didn't think it would be advisable to defend him. "It would not be advisable," assented Mr. Chattelle in response.

Mr. Chattelle asked what it would cost to come to Stratford. On being informed that it would cost $25, he remarked that he thought he would come and see his brother.

ENGINE MADE OF FLOWERS.

Unique Feature of the Michigan Central Yard at Ypsilanti, Mich.

What can be accomplished in the way of decorative gardening that is unique and effectively serves the purpose for which it s designed is shown in the station grounds of the Michigan Central at Ypsilanti, Mich., says the Buffalo Courier. The chief feature is a locomotive that, from cab to pilot, is made of a variety of plants, ingenionsly selected for their respective purposes. the whole structure presenting something that is both novel and attractive. In the composition of the engine something over 2,800 plants are used, the botanical names of which are given below: Boiler, alternanthera, spathulatar; wheels, alternanthera, spathulatar, with sedum variegatum; between wheels and spokes of wheels, rods, echeveria metallica; bell, alternanthera aurea nana; whistle, coleus compacta; headlight, sedum variegatum; cab, alternanthera veriscolor; roof of cab, achyranthus lindenii; windows of cab, echeveria secunda gloco; cow-catcher, alternanthera veriscolor and sedum variegatum. The device was designed and executed by John Laidlaw, the Michigan Central official florist, who has charge of its greenhouse at Ypsilanti. Some idea of the extent of the Michigan Central's greenhouse at Ypsilanti may be gained from the fact that the twelve months ending Sept. 1, 1894, there were distributed to passengers upon trains 28,383 boutonnieres, and in addition 455 large bouquets were sent to the hospital at Detroit. The company's greenhouses at Niles are about as large, and the two together undoubtedly make the Michigan Central the largest grower of flowers among the railway companies of the world. That the beauty of the station grounds (and the station buildings themselves foe that matter) along the line of the Michigan Central has contributed to the fame and popularity of the road and has been of financial benefit to it is probably indisputable.

London, Friday, Nov. 23.

"THANKSGIVING DAY" AS IT IS. Nothing can be more senselessly idiotic than the "Thanksgiving Day" special holiday humbug-as practised. As practised, we say, for the fundamental idea, that of giving thanks to the Divine Provider, is of course right and proper in itself.

But how is it observed? A handful of people assemble in churches; the mass simply make it a day for squirrel-shooting, or for dreary loitering about the streets.

The proper thing to do would be to choose some Sunday in November for Thanksgiving Day - the Government simply recommending the date.

The suggestion would be generally followed and the Sabbath thanksgiving services would be largely attended.

The present Thanksgiving Day performances are simply a mockery of Almighty

-One significant lesson of the recent campaign is that politicians cannot with impunity take organizations founded on a non-political basis, and use them for their own purposes. Mr. Essery, from the first made no secret that on using agencies of this description, at his sweet will. depended the success of the attempt of himself and the Conservative Association to dominate the city through the loyalty of these organisations to the principles upon which they are founded. In this he signally failed, as he deserved to do, whatever ill. fancies as an irredeemable paper currency informed persons may think or say.

ONE FOR THE PREACHERS.

After Rev. Dr. Parkhurst's superb services in upsetting the New York Tammany, we should hear rather less of the alleged incapacity of ministers of the Gospel to aid in the purification of public life. Here is an extraordinary moral revolution in New York, largely through the heroism of one clergyman.

-Some telegrams do look funny after such as the purification of government and an election. Here is one sent to the Toronto Empire from Conservative headquarters in this city the night before the day of polling:

"London, Nov. 19 .- Never were Conservative prospects better on the eve of polling than they are tonight. From every subdivision there is the cheering intelli- To the Editor of the ADVERTISER: gence that Mayor Essery's candidature has met the expectations of the most strenu- paper, as an English Churchman I should ous and sanguine of his friends. BOGUS SYMPATHY WITH RUSSIA. Mr. Peter Ryan, who is a big man After having cur souls, through earnest physically and mentally, is objecting in prayer and superb music, lifted "nearer to God," we were taken through a good plain English to Toronto having gone off at half cock in sending condolence to the family of the dead Czar. Mr. Ryan takes the ground that no man who speaks the tongue of Hampden and of Pym can have any real sympathy with absolute monarchs who repress free speech alike in press and on platform; who have expelled the Jews, persecuted the Stundists, and a language which would some day be unisent men to Siberia for trifling offennes. Mr. Ryan's demur against sycophancy to absolutism and tyranny is timely. Russia may some day be civilized, but it stands today for the opposite of all those ideas of "wondered how ever he could expect to go self-government and of civil and religious to heaven." Social customs were so deliberty which have made Great Britain truly great.

-The Toronto News (Conservative), which warmly indorsed the decision of the London Conservative leaders to put Mr. Essery in the field in the recent contest, said a day before the polling:

"One thing is certain, if Esserv is beaten it will be the death of Conservatism in London for years to come, for he is not the man to quietly accept a 'knifing,' and he has a personal following strong enough to destroy the party if he says the word."

ELECT CLEAN ALDERMEN. A number of Toronto aldermen have apparently been bought by contractors. There are evidently Tammany Halls in Canada too. Electors everywhere should above suspicion.

A vote of thanks was tendered to Mrs.

Gahan for her excellent report. Mr. Little was called upon to give an address upon the subject of "Geography." He stated that the men from the university did not themselves agree as to what benefits we should receive from the teaching of geography. The text book presented a difficulty to his mind, inasmuch as he did not know whether the book was intended for the teacher or pupil. Another difficulty was the fact that the publisher was limited as to price, matter, maps and all the conents. He then referred to the maps, stating that they were maps of reference, not maps for teaching. He closely criticised the maps, stating that no mention should be made of rivers, mountains, capes, etc. These should be brought out by properly coloring the maps. Cities also having large populations should be brought pose, answers pretty closely to the Patrons out by distinguising marks. Small towns of Industry here, is ascribed, I have little on railway lines of little importance should not be mentioned at all. He would have pupils draw outlines of European countries, and then cut it into parts, comparing these parts and then putting them together again as an ordinary puzzle. A relief map is also a great necessity to pupils. Every country should be studied in an orderly and systematic manner. The countries of Europe afford a good example of this method of treating the subject. North America was altogether too clumsy for this method of treatment. Europe also affords a far greater scope for illustration on the influence of climate than America. In dealing with any country there are two features to be considered-systematic treatment and literary treatment. By putting the map of Europe before pupils, they observe that it has a certain configuration. These facts must have a By literary treatment he cause. meant taking the country as a whole. The divisions he would make are physical features, climate, then rescurces, products and industries. In treating of the resources he would speak of the soil, what it produces and what uses are made of these things. In the same way he would treat of the minerals, forests, and fisheries. Facilities for transportation also come under this head. He closed his interesting address by reading an extract from Micklejohn's Europe on the relation of Holland to the countries of Europe, also by showing that Holland stands in the same relation to Europe that China does to the countries of Asia. A second extract on Austro-Hungary referred to the great variety of climate, peoples, climate and products of Spain. Mr. Geo. Kirk, in a few well chosen remarks, showed how readily pupils might receive erroneous impressions by comparing Holland to China; as they might think they resembled each other because of the hundreds of millions of inhabitants or because China was low and in danger of being flooded by the sea as Holland. The meeting then adjourned until 2 o'clock.

The following minute relating to the death of the late Mr. Murray, of London, was passed by the Presbytery of London at its last meeting and ordered to be published graded that a host was not considered in the city and church papers:

"The Presbytery of London desires to record their deep sense of the loss sus-"hired help," Some nobleman played tained by this Presbytery, and by the church at large, in the removal by death a deplorable mistake. After swearing on Oct. 21, at St. Andrew's manse, London, of their highly-esteemed and beloved brother, Rev. James Allister Murray, late minister of St. Andrew's Church, London. Mr. Murray was a man of decided mental culture and high literary attainments, was well read in general literature and theology. He was naturally endowed with hearing the Rev. J. W. Annis, M.A., on mental capacity or powers of a high order, Psalms, ciii., 2. That he may live long which, when developed by assiduous and and prosper in the highest sense of the careful training, secured for him a high word is the wish not merely of one, but of position in the respect and esteem of his brethren.

"As a minister of Christ he was faithful in declaring the whole counsel of God, having a correct estimate of the sacredness and dignity of the Christian ministry; he always maintained a deportment and bearing coresponding with his high ideal, yet pervad-According to Muller the total number of | ing that dignified attitude there was a vein and integrity, and despised anything that was assumed or feigned.

"As a pastor, Mr. Murray was specially and tenderly beloved by his people. His genial disposition, his friendly sympathetic nature, his kindly social qualities and his elevating, cheerful manner made him a most welcome visitor in every family of [his charge, in health and sickness, in prosperity and in adversity.
"As a member of Presbytery, Mr. Murray was faithful to his ordination vows in diligently attending the meetings of that court, and took a special interest in all its proceedings, and materially aided the court by his counsel, in many of its decisions, and readily undertook his full share of the work. The Presbytery would note with special gratification the continued steady prosperity from year to year, both materially and spiritually, which characterized Mr. Murray's labors in St. Andrew's congregation for the long period of nineteen years. This prosperity is evidenced by the increase in the attendance on ordinances and in the membership, and also in the congregational contributions to the schemes of the church and other benevolent objects. The Presbytery would further, while expressing our deep sorrow at the removal of our much-esteemed and beloved brother, desire to acquiesce in the sovereign will of our Lord and Master, at the same time cheered by the divine declaration that 'if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so, them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him.' The Presbytery would also extend its cordial sympathy to the bereaved widow and children, praying that the God of all grace, who hath promised to be 'the stay of the widow and father of the fatherless,' may be their shield and protector. Finally, the Presbytery would also express its special sympathy with the congregation of St. Andrew's, praying that the Lord give them another pastor, in his good time, to break to them the bread of life.

Thanksgiving Concert. The children of the Dundas Street Methodist Church held a Thanksgiving entertainment last night, which was a big success financially, and will materially aid the nurpose to which the funds will be devoted-the erection of a new Sunday school. The announcement that 150 boys and girls would furnish the programme naturally drew a crowd. and it was more than delighted at the novel and unique entertainment provided. About 50 girls seated in the choir gallery sang many choruses, while those who recited or otherwise participated did so on a large platform erected in front and heavily leaden with 'mums. Rev. E. B. Lanceley opened the proceedings with an address, in which he stated that last Sunday the attendance of scholars at the school was the largest in its history. It reached 570, while there were also 200 children at the mission school. The fact of such a growing attendance was, Mr. Lanceley thought, sufficient to impress upon the people that greater accommodation was necessary. The salutatory was then made by Ernie Millar -a bright little lad of about 5 yearsin a very amusing way. The programme was introduced with a kindergarten chorus. The Apollo Club had as master of ceremonies Wilbert Willis, who introduced separately Fannie Joyce, Florence Cole, Nono Johnston, May Ashplant, Edna Scott, Gertie Whittaker, Anna Shuff, Hazel O'Brian, Madeline Yates, Kathleen Lanceley, Laurie Yeates, Beatrice Hunt, Nellie McBride, Ernie Millar, George Clark, Wilkins Shuff, Lewis Olmstead, Charlie Cole. Each represented some notable person, and gave short recitations or songs. Recitations were also given by Lillie Golding, Eva Field, Alice Shuff and George Halls; solos by Nellie Burnip; dialogue by Beatrice Hunt, Nellie Chapman, Bella Heaman, Pearl Noble, Mabel Legg and Gertie Cooper; "The Young Critic," by Lee McBride and Gordon Keenleyside; overtures by the Misses Clark, Ashplant, Kerns, Screaton and Mr. Ashplant, marches, drills and songs by little girls and the valedictory by Fred Bowman. The success of the affair is entirely due to Miss Keenleyside, Miss Maggie Brown and Miss Hicks.

The old servant retired at the entrance of her master. He sat down, and prepared to go through the interview with equanimity, though he heartily wished Mrs. Gass anywhere else. His house was desolate: infected also; he thought that visitors, for their own sake and his, had better keep away. They had not met since the death, and Mrs. Gass, though the least exacting woman in the world, took it a little unkindly that he had not been in, knowing that he passed her house several times in the

In subdued tones, Oliver Rane gave Mrs. Gass a summary of Bessy's illness and death. He had done all he could to keep her, he said; all he could. Seeley had come over once or twice, and knew that nothing more had remained in his power.

"But, doctor, I heard that on Friday you told people she was getting better and the danger was over," urged Mrs. Gass her tears flowing afresh.

'And I thought it was so," he answered. What I mistook for sleepiness from exhaustion, and what Seeley mistook for the same, must have been the exhaustion of approaching death. We are deceived thus Sometimes.

"But. doctor, she never had more than a day's fever. Was that enough to cause death from exhaustion?"

"She had a day and a night of fever. And onsider how intense it was; I never before saw anything like it. We must not always estimate the fatality of a fever by its turation, Mrs. Gass. The terrible suidenness of the blow has been worse to me than It could have been to any one else."

Yes, Mrs. Gass believed that, and warmly sympathized with him. She then expressed a wish to see the coffin. Would it be well for her to go up?" he asked. "Oh dear, yes,' Mrs. Gass answered; "she was not afraid of anything." And the doctor took her up without further hesitation. There was little if any danger now, he observed, as he raised the sheet, which still hung there, to snable her to enter the gray room.

Everything was completed, Hepburn's men had been two and fro, and all was ended. The outer coffin was of oak, its lid bearing the inscription. Mrs. Gass's tears fairly gushed out as she read it.

"BESSY RANE. AGED 31.

"But you have not put the date of the death, doctor!" cried Mrs. Gass, surprised at the omission.

"No? True. That's Thomas Hepburn's fault; I left it to him. The man is halfcrazed just now, between grief for his brother and fear for himself. It will be put on the grave. From Dr. Rane's Mrs. Gass went to Dallory Hall, knowing that madam was absent. Otherwise she would not have ventured there. And never was guest more welcome to its master. Poor Mr. North for the cure of Dyspepsia. A lady customer spoke out to her all his grief for Bessy without reservation.

But of all who felt this death, none were so affected by it as Jelly. She could not rest for the wild thoughts that tormented her day and night. The idea at first taken up kept floating through her head, and sometimes she could not get rid of it for hours; an idea that Mrs. Rane had been put into her coffin alive; that what she saw was Mrs. Rane herself, and not her spirit. Yet Jelly knew that this could not be, and her imagination would turn to another wild improbability, though she dared not follow it—that the poor lady had not died a natural death. One night there came surging into Jelly's brain the suggestive case put by Timothy Wilks, that some men might be found who would put their wives out of the way for the sake of the Tontine money. Jelly tossed from side to side in her uneasy bed, and stared at the candl -- for she no longer cared to sleep in the dark-and tried to get rid of the wicked notion. But she never got rid of it again; and when she rose in the morning, pale, and trembling, and weary, she believed that the dread mystery had solved itself to her, and would be found

What enght she to do? Going about that day as one in a dream, the question continually presented itself to her. Jelly was at her wits' end with indecision; at night resolving to tell of the apparition, and of her suspicion of Dr. Rane; in the morning putting the thoughts from her, and call herself a fool for yielding to them. Dinah could not make out what ailed her, she was so strange and silent, but privately supposed it might be the condition of Mr. Timothy Wilks. For that gentleman was confined to his bed with some attack connected with the liver.

Wednesday, the day of the funeral, drew on. It had been a little retarded to allow of the return of Richard North. News had been received of him the morning after Bessy's death. It may readily be imagined what Richard's consternation and grief must have been to hear of his sister's death: whom he so recently left well, happy, and as likely to live as he himself.

The funeral was fixed for twelve o'clock. Richard only arrived the same morning at ten. He had been delayed twelve hours by the state of the sea, the Ostend boat not having been able to put out. Jelly, in her superstition, thought the elements had been conspiring to keep Richard North from following one to the grave who had not been sent to it by Heaven.

Long before twelve o'clock struck, groups had formed about the churchyard. The men, out on strike, and their wives, were there in full force. partly because it was a break to their menotonous idleness, partly out of respect to their master. The whole neighborhood sincerely regretted Bessy Rane, who had never made an enemy in her

In the church people of the better class ssemb ed, all in mourning. Mrs. Gass was a her pew, in an upright bonnet and crape lowers. Seeing Jelly come in looking very cebegone, she hospitably opened the pew door to her. And this was close upon the arrival of the funeral.

The first to make his appearance was nomas Hepburn in his official capacity; quite as wee-begone as Jelly, and far more sickly. The coffin, which Mrs. Gass had seen the other day, was placed on its stand; or the few last words of this world to be ead over it. Dr. Rane, as white as a sheet: and Mr. North, leaning on his son Richard's rm, comprised the followers. No strangers vere invited; Dr. Rane thought, considering what Bessy had die i of, that they might not care to at end. People wondered whether Captain Bohun had been bidden to

t. If so, he certainly had not come. It seemed only a few minutes before they were moving out of the church again. The grave had been dug in the corner of the churchyard, near to Edmund North's; and he, as may be remembered, lay next to his mother. Mrs. Gass and Jelly took their seats on a remote bench, equally removed from the ceremony and the crowd. The latter stood at respectful distance, not | Palatable form. Price 50 cents and $1 per caring, from various considerations, to appproach too near. Not a word had the two women as yet spoken to each other. The bench they sat on was low, and overshadowed by the trees that bordered the narrow walks. Not ten people in the churchyard were aware that any one sat there. Jelly was the first to break the

"How white he looks!" It was rather abrupt, as Mrs. Gass thought. They could see the clergyman in his surplice through the intervening trees, and the others standing bare-headed around

"Do you mean the doctor, Jelly?" "Yes," said Jelly, "I mean him. "And enough to make him, poor berefted man, when the one nearest and dearest to him is suddenly cut off by fever," gravely rejoined Mrs. Gass. "In the midst of life we are in death."

Now, or never. Sitting there alone with Mrs. Gass, surrounded by these solemn influences, Jelly thought the hour and the opportunity had come. Bear with the secret much longer, she could not; it would wear her to a skeleton, worry her into a fever perhaps; and she had said to herself several times that Mrs. Gass, with her plain common sense, would be the best person to confide in. Yes, she mentally repeated, now or never.
'Was it the fever that cut her off?" began

Jelly, significantly.
"Was it the fever that cut her off?" echoed
Mrs. Gass. "What d'you mean, Jelly?" Jelly turned to the speaker, and plunged into her tale. Beginning, first of all, with the apparition she had certainly seen, and how it was—staying late at Ketler's, and Dinah's having left the blind undrawn—that she had come to see it. There she

English Investors in South Dakota Interests Fleeced by a Fellow-Countryman.

CHICAGO, Nov. 22.—A special to the Herald from Yankton, S. D., says: English capitalists who have been investing in South Dakota interests during the past few years have been investigating the validity of their holdings, and find in nearly every instance they have been swindled by Mr. J. V. L. Pierce, an Englishman, who has been living in London during the past three years. It is alleged Pierce has realized fully $1,000,000 in five years through fraudulent and forged papers, school bonds, certificates, mythical township bonds, etc.

Mutiny on the High Seas-The Indian Crew of a Sealer Seize the Vessel.

VANCOUVER, B. C., Nov. 22 .- At the Westminster assizes yesterday six of the Indian crew of the sealing schooner C. D. Rand were found guilty of revolt and mutiny on the high seas.

Just outside of Bering Sea on last season's sealing cruise this crew took possession of the vessel and remained in command for nine days. The Indians outnumbered the white crew three to one. At length the captain took advantage of a favorable opportunity when there were only two of the Indians on deck, and drove them into the hold, where he kept them confined until the vessel reached Vancouver.

For the defense it was claimed that the captain supplied them with whisky, gave them no food, and was taking them to Copper Island instead of Bering Sea, as had been agreed upon, and the Indians fearing barbarous treatment at the hands of the Russians at Copper Island. the Russians at Copper Island, revolted. The defense, however, was broken down and the Indians convicted. Sentence will be pronounced tomorrow.

-Miss Telfer, Central avenue, is visiting friends in Port Huron. -The London election was held on Hon.

Wilfrid Laurier's birthday. -Paul Kompass, of Hamilton, spent Thanksgiving Day in the city.

-Mr. Alex. Ferguson, Brantford, spent Thanksgiving under the parental roof on -Rev. W. J. McKay, of the Baptist Church, Stratford, spent Thanksgiving Day with London friends. -At Buffalo on Thursday evening the Independent Order of Foresters tendered a reception to Dr. Oronhyatekha, of Toronto, chief ranger of the order, who has been in attendance at the Fraternal Congress in that city. -Mrs. Forester, of Wanstead, while on a visit to her niece, Mrs. H. Carson, here, missed her footing on a slippery sidewalk and broke the radius of the forearm in the fall. Mrs. Forester may take legal proceedings against the city for damages. -At the Police Court yesterday morning the charge of infraction of the liquor license law preferred against Joe Dunn was enlarged until Nov. 29. Wm. Burris, drunk and disorderly, was fined $5 or twenty days. Timothy Whaley, charged with assaulting a street car driver, paid $3 into the treasury. A drunk was discharged. -An inspection and muster of the Seventh Battalion was held in the drill shed yesterday morning from 9 to 11 the soldiers presented a bright and tidy appearance, which was favorably commented upon by the inspecting officers, Major Vidal and Lieut.-Col. Dawson. The battalion was put through the drill by Col. Lindsay, Major Hayes and Capt. Kings-mill. The officers present were: Lieut. Col. Lindsay, commanding; Major Me-Millan, paymaster; Major Hayes; Capt. Kingsmill, acting adjutant; W. J. Mitchell, surgeon; Dr. Piper, assistant surgeon; Capts. union Thanksgiving service in the Dundas | Co (Ltd.) No. 6 Adelaide St. E., Toronto. Street Church yesterday morning, and the edifice was crowded to the doors. Rev. J. W. Annis, of the Queen's Avenue congregation, preached the sermon, and in taking the second verse of Psalm ciii. for his text gave many strong reasons why thanks should be given for the many personal, domestic and natural blessings which the guages spoken in Russia. people of Canada enjoy. The excellent choir was present in full force, and under Mr. Moxon gave music suitable to the service. Miss Emma Case sang a solo very creditably, and the selection by the quartet -Misses Gott and Ruse and Messrs. Carroll and Skinner-was fully up to the standard. The collection was large, and will be used in relieving the poor.

and Allison.

John Morkin, of King street, son of Mr. Ed Morkin, whose brutal treatment at the hands of Essery heelers was reported in Wednesday's ADVERTISER, was removed to the City Hospital yesterday. On Wednesday evening his condition became worse, and in the morning he was so unmanage able that the only course open to his parents was to remove him to the hospital. Morkin's mind is completely unbalanced and his right side is paralyzed. His condition is serious.

For Sweet Charity's Sake.

The Thanksgiving supper and concert in Somerset Hall last night in aid of the Home for Incurables was a striking instance of the success that follows in the wake of the energetic ladies of the Women's Christian Association. The affair was under their auspices, and as the hall was crowded, the home will doubtless receive substantial benefit as a result. Supper was served upstairs during intermission and was all that could be desired and fully in keeping with the character of the day. Mr. Chas. F. Complin occupied the chair and gave an interesting account of the good work that is being done at the home. The rendering of the various numbers elicited well-merited applause. The programme

Sadie Martinot Tomorrow.

The following is the Toronto Globe's criticism of Miss Martinot, who is to appear at the Grand tomorrow, matinee and evening: "Manager Sheppard has achieved no greater success this season than in securing for the Grand the engagement of Miss Sadie Martinot. No one would venture to say that she is a great actress in the same sense that, for example, Adelaide Neilson was, but she is indescribably clever, intensely amusing and thoroughly natural. She is a born actress, and inimitable in such roles as that which she assumes in "The Passport." It is so thoroughly pieced together that it cannot be taken apart, but from first to last it sparkles with humor, and, while its situations are the most natural in the world, they are incomparably droll. There is not a weak actor in the company, and each is admirably adapted to the character he or she represents. The chief interest of the audience centers about Miss Martinot and Mr. Max Figman, especially about Miss Martinot, whose role might not inaptly be called a counterpart to Lord Dundreary. Her imperturbable good humor and happy ignorance of everything practi-cal, and her continually recurring lapses of

Mr. and Mrs. Chute, of Aylmer, desire that we should publish their testimonial and let other sufferers know what Williams' Royal Crown Remedy (Nature's Liquid) has done for Mr. Chute. He writes: "For ten years or more I have been a sufferer with dyspepsia, and doctored with fix of the most skilled doctors in this part of the country with but little relief and no benefit in return for the very large doctors' bills that I paid. I tried almost every conceivable remedy but all to no purpose, until April. 1893, when I took to myself a wife, and itso happened that three years previous to our marriage she had been in poor health, and used part of a bottle of Royal Crown Remedy, and, knowing of its excellent qualities, she prevailed upon me to give it a trial. I purchased one bottle of the Remedy and Pills, and by the time I had them used my general health was much improved, and by the time I had taken three bottles I was restored to good health, and my neighbors say that I am looking better than I have done for years. I believe Royal Crown Remedy to be the best value for the money on earth, and am thankfully yours. Remedy to be the best try yours. earth, and am thankfully yours. "WILLIAM CHUTE."
