Wealth and Beauty at Stake!

CHAPTER X.
They cannot be very haughty and strict with their amiable, timid, fussy, but kind-hearted old mistress, or the gentle and polite young mistress, both of whom venture to ring the bells only under the pressure of extreme circumstances. But, when Viscount Glynn had dined at the house once, and made a morning call once, and when Lady Nora comes in to afternoon tea one day just before Christmas, the "livered retainers" become respectful to a remarkable degree.

"I shouldn't wonder if we ain't goin' to 'ave a marriage in 'igh life here before long, Mr. Lord," the footman remarks to the butler who retires in that stately name.

For a delicious bit of gossip had swept down the back stairs concerning Miss Yolande—"such a quiet, plain sort of a young lady, too!" as the maids say, rather enviously—that there is "somebody" very dashing in the background as Miss Yolande's lover—"an officer"—an "honorable"—"Lord Glynn's brother"—and so on through a host of surmises, which all receive abundant confirmation on the afternoon when Lady Nora comes, and the servants hear how her ladyship kissed Miss Yolande on both cheeks, and said, "Good-by, dear! How sweet it would be if you were coming to spend Christmas at Pentreath with us!" and how Miss Yolande "blushed up as red as a rosebud," as the footman says, sentimentally, at her ladyship's words.

They do not, however, suspect that the pretty "gush" of Lady Nora's parting speech has been rather in the nature of a salvo which she feels it polite to offer. For this second visit of Lady Nora has not been a much pleasanter one than her first, when she called one afternoon at Fair View with her maid and stayed to dinner.

Now, as then, she has been perfectly civil and gracious; but it has been the condescension of the patrician to the plebeian. She has said kind and complimentary things; but in every smile and tone there is the idea conveyed that the society in which she finds herself is far removed from the sphere of her "friends."

This afternoon her manner has been more coldly, frigidly gracious, with a decided flavor of condescension in her prettiest speeches. She has put up her eyeglass to note the dimensions of the large drawing-room, and asked them if they really do prefer a room like this for afternoon tea.

"I always prefer the tiniest room of the suite, where one can have one's pet china and books and little tables and brackets close at hand," she says, with another smiling stare of condescension at the grand drawing-room, thirty-six by thirty, as the carpet planner measured it. "But the house looks nice and comfortable," Lady Nora is good enough to add. "I should think you find yourselves far more comfortable here than in that lonely little place down in the country."

She has spoken of her son once or twice, but only in the most formal and distant manner, as "Captain Glynn," and of his continued stay at Pentreath.

"The earl, his uncle, wishes to have him with him," she says, in her soft, maternal tone, "and Captain Glynn wishes to stay. Pentreath has a great many attractions for him, I believe," she adds, with a serene smile, playing carelessly with her teaspoon, noting at the same time that Yolande's pale face, with its great dark eyes, purple-black in the lamplight, has changed as though a shadow had fallen over it at her words.

Lady Nora notes, too, at the same time, that the teaspoon with which she plays is solid silver of the last fashionable pattern, modern antique, and all the appointments of the tea table, the drawing-room, and the house itself are "very creditable."

Two days later Lady Nora is at Pentreath, and again drinking her afternoon tea in her own dressing-room this time—and telling herself as she does so, that it is not such good tea as the Dormers', nor is it served in such dainty cups as theirs.

She talks long and earnestly with her son, and she tells him everything. Lady Nora is never troubled by delicacy when it goes against her interests; so now she gives for Captain Glynn's benefit a description of the house and furniture, plate and servants, of the Dormers, their money investments and prospects so far as she can learn them, old Miss Dormer's amiability and humble-mindedness, and meek-spirited Yolande's blushes and pallor at the mention of his name.

"And now, Dallas, my dear boy, you must lose no more time here!" his mother says, in an imperiously entreating manner—she dares use no other with him. "Lyneph Glynn is getting a hold over these people, and, worse still, a hold over their money, and it is the only chance I see for you. Neither Lyneph nor the earl will do anything for you. I have felt that always, but I did hope for something from that election; however, as he lost it—and nobody who knows Viscount Glynn can be surprised at that," Lady Nora says, bitterly, "there is an end of everything in that direction."

Her ladyship pauses for a moment; then, as her son makes no response, she goes on: "And now he has plunged into money-making schemes in the city, and has completely wormed himself into old Dormer's confidence—and we know what that means with a covetous, grasping, money-loving miser like Glynn!" Lady Nora declares, with a significant glance at her son.

"And he has a spy in the camp—a sort of private intelligence office—in that English Frenchwoman, Miss Bella Glover. I feel quite certain, and—Dallas, dearest, you had better make your mind at once!" her ladyship urges imploringly, with tears in her bright eyes—she can shed maternal tears upon occasion. "It is really a very fair prospect for you, and you know Joyce and you can be nothing to each other now."

"Why?" Dallas demands, with a smothering fire of defiance and resolve breaking out in a flame in his eyes and voice. "Why should I not marry the girl I love and the girl who loves me, and go and earn a living for her like an honest man, no matter what I have to do?"

He paces up and down the room with that flame of excitement and desperate hope thrilling him through, lighting up his handsome, weary face into noble beauty, making him appear stronger, taller, comelier, even to his mother's admiring eyes.

"I'll go to Texas!" he declares. "A fellow I know is going; and in three years or so I can make money enough on a cattle ranch to be able to give her a home—a humble one, I dare say—in some Western town in the States. That's what Daylesford—one of our fellows—is going to do. And I believe Joyce will be faithful to me."

He speaks with passionate determination, for there is a look of half alarm, half compassion in Lady Nora's eyes as she gazes at him.

"For three or four years!" she questions, coldly, though she is cowering in her chair before the bright, hopeful, handsome face. "No, Dallas, not for three or four months. Joyce Murray is engaged to Lord Dunavon. He proposed to her only last night, and she accepted him; so her mother told me this very morning."

Dallas says never a word for a few minutes. His hand pauses in caressing Lady Nora's little pig, which is perched on the end of the scroll of the stately-covered sofa, but that is all.

"I must have that story from Joyce herself," he says at last, in a low, hard voice. "I know both you and Mrs. Murray are apt to believe a thing true when you wish it to be so. No offense to either of you!"

He leaves the room without a word more, though he hears Lady Nora saying something to him in "anxious, pleading tones. Had she gone down upon her knees and implored him to stay, he would have passed her without a word at this moment. He walks downstairs and into the library, where he waits, standing by the great black marble mantelpiece, until one of the servants brings Miss Murray's maid, who takes a pencilled note from him to her mistress.

He waits on, never stirring hand or foot, nor even uttering a sigh, until the door opens, and fair, false Joyce enters the room, with a smile on her lips and her heart beating very fast.

Kings College Rejects Federation Scheme.

Cricket Defeated by Johnny Dundee—Sweeping Victory for Conservatives in P. E. I.

CONSERVATIVE LANDSLIDE IN P. E. I. CHARLOTTETOWN, July 26. Today Prince Edward Island Provincial elections resulted in a landslide for the Conservative Party, and the utter defeat of the Liberal Government of Premier John Bell, which he held office since 1919. At an early hour to-night the Conservatives had elected twenty-two out of a house of thirty, and only one Liberal was left to have been elected then. Premier Bell himself and Hon. W. M. Macdonald were defeated.

COLLEGE FEDERATION TURNED DOWN. HALIFAX, July 26. Alumni of King's College, after nearly four hours debate to-night, rejected the proposed scheme of federation with Dalhousie University, by a vote of fifteen to nine. One of the main reasons presented for rejection by a number of speakers was that they did not consider the present state of business was such as to justify a drive for four hundred thousand dollars, which they stated King's would be required to raise during the next two years, under the proposed scheme. Dr. Judd, Principal of King's College School, and one of the Governors of King's College, said the rejection of the scheme meant the death of college federation.

DUNDEE DEFEATS CRIQUE. NEW YORK, July 26. Johnny Dundee of New York won the world's featherweight championship to-night, from Eugene Criquet, of France, in a slashing fifteen round battle, that kept the crowd that filled the polo grounds in an uproar. Dundee received a decision over his man who less than two months ago took the title from Johnny Kilbane in the same ring. Dundee won cleanly, taking every round, the crowd was constantly divided between admiration for his ability, and the stone defence of the Frenchman, who never relinquished any advance and fought back when he had scarce strength to stand. Criquet was down for a count of nine in the first round and count of seven in second.

Enjoyable Outing.

The members of Gower St. Methodist Church Choir were treated to a delightful outing by the Board of Management of the Church on Wednesday afternoon last. The party, which consisted of the official board and appointed committees with their wives, and the members of the Choir as their guests, left town at 3 o'clock and motored to Manuels, where they had the pleasure of visiting the Girl Guides Camp. The visitors were quite pleased with the camping arrangements. During their short stay they witnessed the Guides' Field Day, which proved very enjoyable. The various competitions were hard fought and keenly contested. At 5:15 the party motored to Doremas, where a delightful spread awaited them. The menu, while was an excellent one, was done full justice to by all. Mr. John Leamon, on behalf of the Official Board, in a few words spoke of the faithful and voluntary services of the Choir, which was at all times greatly appreciated. He hoped they would continue in their good work. Mr. L. R. Curtis, on behalf of the Choir, thanked Mr. Leamon for his kind remarks, also the Official Board for the pleasant outing they were thus enjoying. Before the party returned to the city a stop-off was made at the home of Mr. P. H. Hudson, Topsail Road, where games were indulged in and refreshments served. The return to town was made at 10.30.

Italy's Financial Progress.

New York, July 25.—The financial situation of Italy shows a substantial improvement, according to the National Bank of Commerce in New York. In the July issue of Commerce Monthly, it says that a summary of the financial accomplishments up to a few months ago indicates that the trend of Italian finances has been in the direction of a definite and favorable reduction of the deficit.

"It is difficult to obtain figures for the total revenues and expenditures of Italy for the last four fiscal years that may be relied upon for purposes of an accurate appraisal of the progress toward a balanced budget. The various estimates, however, all disclose the same general and unmistakable tendency. The revenues have been increasing and the expenditures have been decreasing. All statements agree as to the marked decline in the deficit in the last four years.

"It has long been recognized that the abnormal financial conditions created by the events of the war and postwar periods in Europe have come to constitute if not an insuperable, at least a very serious, obstacle to the recovery of European industry. The inter-relationship of the finances of the various European countries and the preponderating influence of Germany in the whole European situation have led many financial authorities to believe that the finances of these countries could not be placed upon a sound footing without a final settlement of the reparations question.

"The events of the last twelve months, however, have focused interest upon the course of the finances in a number of countries and have raised the question anew whether or not, as a matter of fact, several of these countries, almost entirely upon their own resources, were not working out of their financial chaos.

"Illustrative of this movement, if not entirely typical, is the recent financial progress in Italy. If the present programme of financial recon-opens in July, have been so vigorously pared down that the deficit should be but little more than a milliard lire. This estimate represents a reduction of nearly three million lire from the estimate of last November.

"The administration of the finances in such a rigorous way in the light of the social conditions that have existed at various times in Italy since the war, must, of course, be looked upon as a somewhat of an experiment. However, the fact that a nation should respond in a whole-hearted way in support of such a programme as to what is necessary to bring these countries back to a sound basis.

"The financial progress of Italy in the next few months will be watched with unusual attention, not simply because of an interest in Italy's recovery but also because of the light that it will throw upon the question as to how far individual European nations may by their own efforts recover independently of outside influence."

THE FAITH OF GOD.

God believes in us, I guess. Or he'd fix us so we couldn't do the evil things we shouldn't do.

God has faith in us, or he would have crumpled and shut us in so we couldn't stoop to sin.

God is trusting us with power. Nothing else on earth can boast. Not the tide which sweeps the coast.

God believes in us, I'm sure. For He gave us souls to keep. Gave us speech and wisdom deep.

Royal Ages.

Is King George older than any other reigning monarch? "Patriot," for some reason or other, hopes he is.

When King George recently passed his fifty-eighth birthday, King Gustav, of Sweden, was sixty-four. But most of the other monarchs were his juniors.

The King of Rumania was fifty-seven; of Italy, fifty-four; of Denmark, fifty-three; of Norway, fifty-two; of Belgium, forty-eight; of Spain, thirty-seven; of Jugo-Slavia, thirty-four; and of Greece, thirty-three.

Wasteful Business Doomed.

In some trades, notably fish, fruit, and vegetables, there is an enormous margin of middle waste between the producers and the consumers.

As time goes on, there is no doubt that the uneconomic middlemen will gradually disappear, and that the distribution of goods will be undertaken by large concerns ably managed and handling great quantities of stuff.

The common sense of the subject is, therefore, that, while the middleman is necessary to society, we have far too many middlemen, and that as industrial reform progresses the proportion of distributive workers will be reduced.

RECREATION.

The Will

There comes a time in the life of every man when he must leave his worldly possessions to the care of another. In anticipation of this, therefore, the first obligation resting on an individual who is possessed of property is the making of a will, and this should be done before the capacities become impaired by time or the ravages of disease.

A Menace to Public Safety.

While there are few who do not welcome the improved facilities which the motor car has introduced, there are at the same time few who do not view with concern the steadily increasing list of those who almost daily appear in court on the charge of furious driving; who read with dread the constantly recurring headline in the Press—"An Accident Barely Averted," or the columns which tell of a tragedy for which the motor car has been responsible.

Punishment has been meted out to these offenders without apparently having a salutary effect, although the punishment has not erred on the side of leniency. Unfortunately too, the punishment reflects upon the innocent driver who pays every attention to the regulations, in that the general public are inclined to treat with suspicion, and feel resentful towards everyone who uses a car.

It is a moot point whether or not the infliction of a fine or a sentence of imprisonment meets the case. In England, in addition to the imposing of a fine for the first offence, the licence of the driver is endorsed. For the second offence, his licence is cancelled for a period at the discretion of the magistrate. The fact that this method has been adhered to, and that it is also being adopted in America is the best proof of its effectiveness, and it would be worth giving a trial here. It is a punishment that appears to fit the crime. If a driver is regardless of the rights of a pedestrian, he is given an opportunity to see the evil of his ways from their point of view. If he is incapable, he is rendered harmless.

The speed permitted by the authorities in thickly populated areas is a maximum of ten miles an hour. Here again is a debatable point. It is considered by the motorists unsatisfactory because it is only with difficulty, and at the risk of damage to a car that this speed can be maintained for any distance. It is a drawback to the guardians of the law, because while a driver may be conforming to the regulation, he is none the less under certain conditions driving to the danger of the public.

We have been informed that many cars in the city are being driven either without the necessary brakes, or with their breaks in such a condition as to be useless in an emergency. This has been proved to be the cause of more accidents the world over than anything else. The only effective way to remedy this evil is by the appointment of a thoroughly competent traffic inspector, with full authority to examine wheeled vehicles, to remove from the streets all those found defective in anyway, and to bring the delinquents to justice.

He was accompanied by his Chaplain and the rector of the parish. A confirmation service was held in the afternoon when 36 candidates presented themselves for the sacred rite. The Deputy Minister of Customs received a message from Grand Bank yesterday, stating that the schooner W. L. McKinnis, King, Florence E. and Lillian M. Richards had returned from the Banks, hauling for 400, 500, and 700 quintals respectively, taken on their first bailing.

In Passing.

Up to time of going to press nothing of a definite nature has been accomplished towards the formation of the Warren ministry.

To all intents and purposes it is not likely that any announcement of an official character will be made known before to-morrow night.

Yesterday a series of conferences were held by the leaders of the Government and Opposition when some important issues were submitted and debated but as already stated no agreement was entered into or no particular faction was committed to any decision.

The delay is not due to any deadlock as one might view it, but owing to the unusual circumstances which have made themselves apparent since the compulsory resignation of Sir Richard Squires took place matters of grave importance to the country must be satisfactorily settled before any definite arrangement is agreed upon.

The formation of the ministry is a bigger problem than at first anticipated. At a meeting of some members of the Government who held portfolios and executive seats in the Squires cabinet, which meeting took place at noon, it is thought that these important issues referred to were brought up and discussed.

It is currently reported that the opposition party has been invited to assist Mr. Warren in his cabinet making task and that certain conditions and terms were submitted in answer to the invitation. As to whether these terms and conditions will meet with the approval of some of the influential members of the Squires cabinet is not known but it is quite certain that the opposition are as one man in any negotiations or overtures that will be made towards the formation of a coalition government.

As the House meets on Tuesday afternoon it is quite possible that Mr. Warren will be in a position on Monday to make known the success or failure of his attempt to form a stable government that will enjoy the confidence of the country.

As a result of the political dilemma which is breathing over with difficulties all kinds of unfounded rumors are circulated by irresponsible persons. These should be discounted in as much as that these harbingers of hate have a personal motive in circulating same.

The situation is practically the same as it was since the Assembly adjourned with little or no progress reported from any of the political camps or from the leaders who are daily conferring with each other.

Old Reredos Being Re-placed.

Magnificent Piece of Architecture Now Being Erected in C. of E. Cathedral.

The Reredos which was destroyed in the C. of E. Cathedral in the great fire of July 28th, 1892, is now being re-placed, the parts having arrived by the last Digby from England. This new Reredos was shipped by Messrs. John Thompson & Sons, of Peterborough, and was designed by Mr. Gilbert Scott, son of the late Sir Gilbert Scott, the designer of the Cathedral. Work on the foundation has already commenced under the supervision of the compely's representative, Mr. E. Tebbis. A large staff of men is engaged and the work which is of a very tedious nature is expected to be completed within the next six weeks. The construction, which will be placed above and around the Altar, is in two styles of Gothic and Byzantine architecture. The sculptural designs are engraved in the white marble, which is slightly dark in color and gives an excellent contrast. There are eleven figures in all, each carved with a handsomely designed canopy and richly carved cresting. In the centre is Our Lord, on the left St. Theodore, St. David and St. Michael, on the right St. George, St. Andrew and St. Patrick, while on the two extreme wings are two pairs of angels. The Reredos is a magnificent piece of ecclesiastical architecture and will be an adornment to the beauty of the Cathedral when it is erected. The shippers packed the parts in a casing of steel plate and plaster, to ensure that there would be no breakage in transit, and not one piece was either disturbed or even scratched.

In Memoriam.

Editor Evening Telegram. Dear Sir—Will you kindly grant me a short space in your paper to record the death of Catherine Quinlan, of Red Cliff, B. Bay, who passed to the Great Beyond July 16th, at the youthful age of 21 years. Deceased left his home in August, 1922, for Boston, U.S.A., where he met with good success, and also made a host of friends. In the early part of May he contracted measles of a bad type, which developed into paralysis. Some of the most skillful doctors were called in but little could be done for his recovery. He then decided to return to his native home and spend his last hours with his parents. In this world he was highly esteemed and loved by all who knew him, and we trust he will have his reward in the next. To the bereaved parents, brothers and sister the sympathy of the whole community in general goes forth. Thou art gone but not forgotten. Thy years on earth were few. A little while and all shall pass. The vale that thou went through.—R.W.C. King's Cove, July 24, 1923.

The Belfry Tower.

London Morning Post: Even in Middle Ages England was the "Belfry Isle," and the love of bell metal has endured amongst us to this day. Indeed, there are more bells in this country than in any other, and where else is the athletic exercise change-ringing anything like as popular. Not so very long ago our bellfries were regarded as outside the parson's jurisdiction; they were of the scene of drunken and dissipated frolics, which were thought to justify by such bell inscriptions the oft-quoted couplet: "Hark ye hear? Our clappers want beer!"

ACKNOWLEDGMENT.

Municipal Council.

WEEKLY MEETING.

The regular meeting of the City Council was held yesterday afternoon at 7 o'clock in the City Hall. Mayor Cook presided and the following members were present: Messrs. Martin, Vinnicombe, Colbourne, Outebridge, Ryan and Dwyer were present.

The minutes of previous meetings were read and confirmed. A communication was read from the Inspector General Hutchings, in which he stated he was quite in accord with the views of Mr. F. B. Cummins respecting the closing of the lower part of Casey Street to motor traffic as referred to in previous reports. Motorists have for some time past been in the habit of using the very narrow thoroughfare to access to the Higher Levels in the fact that there are many streets in the vicinity which could be used for that purpose. The Council has given this matter careful consideration, and it is more likely the street in question will be closed to motor traffic.

Mr. J. Brown, Solicitor, wrote re property expropriated by the Council in 1921, and asked what steps the Council intends taking in the matter of compensation. These expropriations are at present under consideration, and the Council is making arrangements to hold necessary arbitrations as soon as possible. Mr. C. G. Rendell, agents for the estate, asked compensation land taken in the opening up of the new water pipe line road. The Engineer was instructed to look up the records of information in connection, as it is thought the land in question has already been arbitrated on.

Mr. C. O'N. Conroy complained of the condition of sidewalks, Allan Road, which were completely broken up during the recent rainstorms. He asked if the Council would immediately attend to the matter of repairs. A similar communication was read from F. H. Steer with regard to the sidewalk, southside of Hillary Road. Both matters were referred to the City Engineer.

Application of Mr. C. Churchill for share of patronage in connection with horse shoeing was granted, and the Sanitary Supervisor instructed accordingly. The Medical Officer of Health recommended that permit be given Mr. Shields to rebuild stable, Cove Street, subject to the usual sanitary requirements.

Mr. T. Dohoney asked that the paper fronting his residence, Prospect Street, (near Henley's Lane) be removed, as he had complied with regulations by connecting with the water and sewerage mains. It was ordered that the City Engineer get up to this day more bells in the city, and that any other, and that athletic exercise of anything like as popular as long ago our church were regarded as outside the jurisdiction; they were often broken and disorderly, which were thought to be well inscriptions and classed as "want beer."

ADJUDGMENT.—The St. Vincent Debtors' Court, on the 26th inst., adjudged the sum of $100.00 to be paid to the late Mrs. J. J. 27.11

Yesterday's was arrived at Bunn's. The incoming mails and letters were distributed to the various departments.

Attention was called to the fact that proper signs were not erected in the new streets in the "Annex," which was renamed last year. It was ordered that they be placed at once.

The Child Welfare Association asked permission to hold Band Concerts in one of the City Parks for the purpose of raising funds for their most worthy object, stating that several of the City Brigades had offered their services. The request will be acceded to on the usual condition—namely, that no entrance fee shall be allowed save that which the City Engineer's report on the work of the various departments for the week was tabled.

Up to the present Contractor Chiquley, who is doing the work at Pipe Line, Mulworney's Hill, has completed 1600 feet of excavation and 1100 feet backfilled. This work is progressing very satisfactorily.

A new connection is to be made to the storm sewer, Hutchings Street (at McCarty's Cove), which has been giving considerable trouble during recent rainstorms.

Investigation was made in connection with complaint of S. O. Steele re alleged damage to his premises through surface water. Several bursts were discovered in the services of nearby residents, which the owners were compelled to repair, and there has been no negligence on the part of the Council employees.

The Medical Officer of Health reported 4 new cases of Scarlet Fever, 1 Typhoid, 1 Diphtheria in the city for the past week.

Building Permits are to be issued the following:—Dwellings, J. Tolin, King's Bridge Road; W. Cummings, LeMarchant Road, West, provided he pays proportion of cost according to frontage for water and sewerage extension; Alex. LeMessurier, Catherine Street, provided ground plan is submitted.

Garage—D. Baird, Circular Road, provided ventilator is installed. Plans Deferred—P. Bolger, alterations to building of McDougall Street; J. Burke, dwelling, Warbury Street, there being no water or sewerage available.

The following Rules and Regulations for the management of Bowring Park were adopted:—

1. Opening and Closing—The Park shall be open to the public at 7 a.m., and shall be closed at 10 p.m., from the 15th of May to 31st of October.

The Grattan Kieley Trophy.

Now that Mount Cashel running is over, interest is centering on the five mile race on St. Bon's grounds, to take place next Monday evening. The first prize is a splendid cup donated by Master Kieley, son of the popular Nickel proprietor, to the Belvedere Garden Party Fund, while the second prize is a beautiful gold medal. Several contestants are in training for this event, and as the record is likely to be broken, the committee is taking precaution to have the course surveyed. As a great many people were disappointed in not seeing this item at the Garden Party, the management has decided to charge a nominal fee of ten cents to cover expenses of advertising, etc., and without doubt, all the fans will be on hand to see the victor. Entries are now being taken by Mr. C. J. Ellis, who with Messrs. W. J. Higgins and J. J. Lacey, are finalizing this item for the Belvedere Ladies' Association.

When "Blue" Meets "Blue."

THRILLS OF THE FAMOUS INTER-VARSITY CRICKET MATCH AT LORDS.

(By the Hon. F. S. Calhorne, Cambridge XI and Captain of the Warwickshire C.C.C.)
The "Varsity" match is always a law unto itself. It has its own style of play, its own attractions, and its own surroundings.

Not always does the best team—judged by results up to date—win. Not always is the cricket as fine as the display of the social world attending it. Not always does the match produce a Charles Fry for Oxford or an F. S. Jackson for Cambridge.

But one thing it does produce, unfailingly. And that is a splendid enthusiasm. There is the excitement of the crowds of old and young, Dark and Light Blue themselves. There is the meeting of the long parted Varsity chums and friends. There is the ventral exuberance which must find vent in sport if under-grades are to be kept within bounds in other things. Yes, this is the march of the year par excellence for real, whole-hearted enthusiasm!

Given three days of glorious weather, Lord's is something to be proud of. No other cricket ground in the world can equal it. You see there the game set in its ideal environment, and if the two teams are what they ought to be, you witness the game played as it should be played.

A "ONE-MAN SHOW."

The "Varsity" match has a magnificent history. This year's will be the eighty-fourth of the series. We are approaching its century. For the first match was in 1827; but there have been omissions in certain years—the War caused several. And there are, of course, matches which have become historic and which will stand out for all time.

There was that total of 503 by Oxford in 1890. Kirk's offer has ever yet reached 400. There was "Le Compton's" match in 1910—a surprising one-man effort—when the famous Oxonian-Australian scored 160 runs and actually took eleven Cambridge wickets for 66 runs by his superb bowling. "Some" performance for one man in the "Varsity" match.

There was that thrilling minute or two in 1919 when Miles Howell, having made 170, seemed about to excel J. F. Marsh's record score of 172. The large crowd got quite excited at the prospect, only to see Miles dismissed without having won the glory after all. You could hear the sigh of disappointment which went all round Lord's.

There was Yardley's 130 for Cambridge in 1872, after he had made just a century two years previously in the match—still the case of any batsman making a century twice in it.

Fast-Trick With Last Three Balls.

And above all others for immense excitement, thrills, and astonishing result was that bowling performance of F. G. Cobden for the Light Blues in 1870—something which will, perhaps, never be equalled or seen again in the match. If it is, "May I be there to see!" as the poet wrote about John Gilpin's ride.

For Oxford only needed three runs to win, with three wickets to fall. She had needed but four runs, with four men to be out; but Cobden disposed of one after a single had been made, and so left the Dark Blues with three runs wanted and three men to be dismissed.

His next ball cleared off another of them. What shouts of delight from Cambridge! What groans from Oxford! The incoming man had to go back after one ball. Tremendous excitement, terrific shouting, cheering and groaning. Men dancing in their agitation; while hosts unable to sit still, laughing and crying at the same moment.

Last man—Mr. Stewart—came in, with several Oxonians walking beside him, exhorting, cajoling, threatening, begging him at all hazards to keep his bat immovable till the over was done. Stewart swore he would.

Cobden sent down a very wily ball. Stewart stood firm till it got halfway, but then he felt sure he could drive it for two and make the totals equal. He lifted his bat, struck, missed—and was out!

Cambridge had won, and Cobden had performed the hat-trick with his last three balls. What a scene of excitement! Shall we ever see its like at the "Varsity" match again?

The Vogue of Golf.

Crawford Morgan, of the Royal Hongkong Golf Club, is endeavoring to get a few single figure handicap players to volunteer to devote one evening a week during the summer months to imparting instruction to beginners at Happy Valley. Judging by some of the performances seen on the Shanghai Race Course it would appear that such a system is also much needed here, but even more than that lessons on the most elementary rules of the game and its etiquette are called for.—North China News.

Belgians and the Congo.

The industrial areas of the Congo along the vast copper belts, to be followed by the coal areas are being exploited with the thoroughness and foresight of a leading industrial nation in old Europe. The Belgians have not disdained the help of other nationalities in the stupendous colonial enterprise which is before them, but it would be strange if they did not give special encouragement to their own mother country.—Buluwayo Chronicle.

A Stirring Story of the Underworld.

"THE NIGHT ROSE" COMING TO THE NICKEL MONDAY.

On Monday next, the Nickel Theatre offers a picture somewhat different than recent attractions, in that it is a stirring crook story, entitled "The Night Rose" by LeRoy Scott. The picture is vividly interesting and tells a gripping story in the best moving picture manner from all angles. It is the kind of film that everyone will like. And the most rapid reformer will have to do some digging to exhaust any reasons for calling "The Night Rose" in any way objectionable. The following is just a idea of the wonderful plot contained in this story:

SORE SHOULDERS ON HORSES !!

Minard's quickly heals sore shoulders, saddle boils and all sprains and bruises.

Minard's is just a idea of the wonderful plot contained in this story: The power of a leader of the underworld is seen to reach into the very halls of justice. Political heroes are the pawns of the mighty character who controls them through fear and through a secret organization of cut-throats and robbers. However, the leader of this gang is undone by a woman.

The climax of the picture takes place in a magnificent ballroom, where the underworld czar is about to dance with his new "girl." But in order to get her fiance out of the way, he has had him shot. Though this turns out not to be fatal, it nerves the girl to the point of appearing at the ball with the intention of taking the gangster's life. How her aim is thwarted but her intention carried out by another, forms one of the most exciting moments in a picture replete with thrills.

How the Lost Cable Was Recovered.

(By H. F. SHORTIS)

Today is the 57th Anniversary of the successful laying of the Atlantic cable between Valentia, Ireland, and St. John's, Newfoundland. Many improvements have taken place since the great event in the world's history. All the leading nations have since been gathered to their shores but the names of such benefactors of the human race as Cyrus Field, P. W. G. Gilborne, Peter Cooper, Moses Taylor, Marshall Roberts and Chandler White, will be handed down to posterity for all time. Nor must we forget the noble work performed by the late illustrious Roman Catholic Bishop of St. John's, Rt. Rev. Dr. Mullock, who with voice and pen advocated the pushing of the enterprise, and in his historic letter to the "Morning Courier," newspaper of St. John's, dated November 8th, 1850, outlined the route that the cable was to be laid, as well as the connecting links of the land lines. This letter read up with the prophetic words: "The day is not far distant when the cable will be the first link in the chain which will unite the Old World and the New." He lived to see his wish fulfilled, having passed away in March, 1889. But great as was the successful laying of the 1866 cable, the recovery of the broken 1865 cable was yet a greater effort, and we herewith set forth the full particulars of its recovery from the bottom of the Atlantic sea. We have often heard the phrase:

"It was lost as completely as if at the bottom of the sea." This expression no longer holds good, as it was (to use a familiar expression) knocked into a cocked hat in 1866. Modern science and invention conquered the depths of the Atlantic, and this is how it happened by the recovery of the 1865 cable, and I am sure the details will be preserved by many readers of the Telegram throughout the country particularly by the young operators of the present day.

Among the many scientific men employed in the expedition of July and August (1866), to lay the cable, and attempt the recovery—hopeless task, as many thought—of another, was Mr. Cyrus Field an American citizen. A banquet was given at New York to congratulate him on that persevering skill which he had contributed to the success of the enterprise. In the course of his speech on the occasion he gave the following description of the successful operations.

"After landing the cable safely at Newfoundland, we had another task, to return to mid-ocean and recover that lost in the expedition of 1865. This achievement has, perhaps, excited more surprise than the other. Many, even now, don't understand it; and every day I am asked 'How was it done?' Well, it does seem rather difficult to fish for a jewel at the bottom of the ocean, two miles and a half deep; but it is not so very difficult when you know how. You may be sure we did not go a-fishing at random, nor was our success mere 'luck.' It was the triumph of the highest nautical and engineering skill. We had four ships, and on board of them some of the best men in England—men who know the ocean as the hunter knows every trail in the forest. There were Capt. Moriarty, who was in the 'Agamemnon' in 1857-58. He was in the Great Eastern the past year, and saw the cable when it broke; and he and Capt. Anderson at once took observations so exact, that they could go right to the spot. After finding it they marked the line of the cable by a row of buoys; or fog would come down and shut out moon and stars, so that no one could take an observation."

could feel by its quivering, that the grapnel was dragging on the bottom, two miles under us; but it was a very slow business. We had storms and calms and fogs and squalls. Still we worked on, day after day. Once, on the 17th of August, we got the cable up, and had it in sight for five minutes—a long, slimy monster, fresh from the ooze of the ocean's bed but our men began to cheer so loudly that it seemed to be frightened, and suddenly broke away and went down again into the sea. This accident kept us at work two weeks longer; but, finally, on the last night in August, we caught it.

"We had cast the grapnel thirty times. It was a little before midnight, on Friday night, that we hooked the prize; and it was a little after midnight, on Sunday morning, when we got it on board. "What was the anxiety of those 26 hours! The strain on every man was like the strain on the cable itself! When finally, it seemed close at hand, it was midnight; the lights of the ships, and in the boats around our bows, as they flashed in the faces of the men, showed them eagerly watching for it to appear above the water. At length it was brought to the surface. All who were allowed to approach crowded forward to see it. Yet not a word was spoken; only the voice of the officers in command were heard giving orders.

"All felt as if life and death hung on the issue. It was only when the cable was brought over the bow, and on to the deck, that men dared to breathe. Even then they hardly believed their eyes. Some crept forward to feel it, to be sure it was there. Then we carried it along to the electrician's room, to see if our long-lost treasure was alive or dead. A few minutes suspense, and a flash again, told of the lightning-current again set free. Then did the feeling, long pent up, burst forth. Some turned away their heads and wept. Others broke into cheers; and the cry ran from man to man and was heard down in the engine-rooms, deck below deck, and from the boats on the water and the other ships, while rockets lighted up the darkness of the sea. Then, with thankful hearts, we turned our faces to the west."

Referring to the electrical power to send a message across the ocean, Mr. Field observed, "When the cable was first laid in 1858, electricians thought that to send a current 2,000 miles, it must be like a stroke of lightning; but Mr. Lattimer Clark telegraphed from Ireland across the ocean, and back again, with a battery composed of a gun-cap with a strip of zinc, excited by a drop of water, the simple bulk of a pea."

"This was accomplished the greatest achievement of modern times and the name of Cyrus W. Field will be handed down in history for all time."

Jap Cannery Competition.

Canneries on the Pacific coast still have on hand 400,000 cases of salmon of the 1922 catch. Several of the large canners have stated that they will not operate this year unless the market improves very much in the next few weeks. The banks have made considerable advances against the 400,000 cases of salmon, and are unwilling to increase the amount. The competition from the Japanese fishermen operating on the Siberian coast has recently become somewhat keener. These men live at a minimum of cost as compared with the white fishermen of British Columbia. They use cheap labor in the canneries and are subsequently able to place their fish on the European market at a very low quotation which leaves the British Columbia fishermen with little, if any, margin over cost.

Fads and Fashions.

Women are quick to take advantage of the becomingness of touch of white at the neck, which fashion now favors. To wear with lace or crepe frocks the narrow jet and bugle girde, finished with long tassels, is quite effective. Sleeveless jackets of colored tannet, bound with white silk braid, are worn with white skirts and Peter Pan blouses.

Women of Three Generations.

The daughter, mother, and grandmother have all proved from personal experience the remarkable strengthening and tonic properties of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in overcoming the ills of women. It was first made from roots and herbs in 1875 by Lydia E. Pinkham of Cobourg, Ont., for her neighbors and friends. Its fame has spread from shore to shore until it is now looked upon by women everywhere as the standard remedy for woman's ills. It has been proved that it benefits 98 out of every 100 women who try it, which is a marvelous record for any remedy to hold.

Life's Little Tasks.

A wise man has said that the most insignificant thing becomes full of interest if studied deeply enough. Beneath the microscope of rest and will the content of the trivial is capable of indefinite enlargement. The disordered minutiae of life fall into pattern when seen as the raw material on which purpose and personality must work. They become "dim fragments meant to be united in some 'wondrous whole'; a heap of beads waiting for the magic string of character to make a necklace of them, and perhaps even in the process change glass to jewel. It is a saying thought that, if "Hoc age" means "Just do this," it means no less that whatsoever the hand finds to do should be done with all the heart and mind and strength.

These babies were anchored a few miles apart. They were numbered, and each had a flag-staff on it, so that it could be seen by day and at night by the aid of a lantern. Thus having taken our bearings, we stood off three or four miles, so as to come broadside on; and then casting over the grapnel, drifted slowly down upon it, dragging the bottom of the ocean as we went. At first it was a little awkward to fish in such deep water, but our men got used to it, and soon could cast a grapnel almost as straight as an old whaler throws a harpoon. Our fishing line was of formidable size. It was made of rope, twisted with wires of steel, so as to bear a strain of 30 tons.

"It took two hours for the grapnel to reach the bottom; but we could tell when it struck. I often went to the bow and sat on the rope; and

SIDETALKS.

By Ruth Cameron.

WE NEED IT.

S o m e t i m e s when I have had a specially hard time trying to put salt on the tale of a winged thought and imprison it in a cage of words, and rather suspect that the cage is empty after all—(it is the penalty of the writer that one never knows whether one's work is good or not in the definite way one knows about a cake or piece of embroidery)—I say aloud to myself what a letter-enemy once wrote to me: "Dear Ruth Cameron, you write the worst rot that is written."
And then again I smile and remember what a letter-friend once wrote: "Some days you are not as good as others, and then I say to myself, 'Perhaps Ruth has a headache to-day.'" Wasn't that a sweet thing to think? It has been a great comfort to me to know that there are understanding people like that in my unseen audience.

And it has been a great lesson to me in my reading of other people's work.
For instance, my favorite short story writer writes a story that is not quite up to the mark and I think perhaps she has had a headache—or a heart ache.
Not As Written.
Another way in which I have learned to make allowances is when I read a story and it has a peculiarly abrupt-unreal sound. The transitions, instead of being smooth, are jumpy, and there are references that one does not understand. One wonders why an editor would buy a story like that. He didn't. He bought a good story very likely, and made it that way by cutting.

Why didn't the author object? Because the editor in that case would probably buy the stories of some other author who would not object. Even the top line authors have to stand cutting in the make-up of the magazine demands it. One of the best known authors in the country after one or two bitter experiences, did not go so far as to refuse to allow cutting, but did say, "If my child's hair got to be bobbed I want to do it myself."
He's Not A Moron.
The same is true about newspaper articles, only more so. When one goes into a newspaper office to work, one is instructed to write the news story so that all the important details—who, when, where—are in the first paragraph. Less important details are supposed to follow in the order of their importance, so that if necessary the end can be shut off. And it frequently is. Therefore, do not think the writer was a moron when his article ends with an abruptness that may sound idiotic. He minds more than you do.

Many people, I find, have an idea that the author of a story selects his illustrations and tells him what to draw. Far from it. The author doesn't know what the pictures are to be until he sees his story in print. I often wonder if the illustrator knows what the story is to be until he sees it in print. It is plain he does not always read it before he illustrates it.

THE WORLD'S PRESS.

Egyptian Mail: What we cannot understand is how negotiations should be carried on between the Cabinet and the British Government on the indemnity Act, of which the nation knows nothing, and why it is not left for Parliament to decide. The country cannot, in any case whatever, give the British Government rights over the people and their lands. Why does the Cabinet give the English a law which they insist upon having before Parliament meets? A few days ago the Under Secretary for Foreign Affairs said, in reply to Mr. Spoor, that he hoped the Egyptian Government would approve the indemnity Act very soon. This means that the negotiations which have been going on for some time are on the point of conclusion, and that the British Government hopes the Egyptian Government will sign the act. If such is the case, has Egyptian public opinion no right to know what its Government is going to sign? Will the matter remain secret till one morning the law is published and thus we find ourselves faced by an accomplished fact?

AN AMERICAN LANGUAGE.

Louisville Courier-Journal: Anglophobia has had no more futile manifestation than the proposal for a distinctive American language. The disease—that of hating England and all things English—is virulent when it attacks school histories for attempting to tell the truth, but it becomes a form of paroxysm when it would abolish the English tongue. The proponents of a new language are again expounding their views. They are the literati who have been bitten by the anti-British bug or literally fanatics who favor any fad that has the appearance of being new or intellectual. But their suggestions are received coldly. Scholars and teachers of English who gathered in New York last week were loud in condemnation of the proposal. The strange thing, however, is that any notice was paid to this wild fancy.

IMPERIAL FRIENDSHIP.

London Daily Telegraph: The hope which is bringing representatives of the self-governing Dominions here in the coming autumn is that the people of this country, with its highly-developed financial system and its prestige will study their peculiar problems through the same spectacles as have been used to investigate the situation in the Crown Colonies and Dependencies. It is a matter of self-interest, but, even more important, it is a matter of mutual insurance of every asset in the Empire—its study,

NAUGHTINESS IN YOUTH.

London Daily News: It is no new thing for children to be naughty—it is simply a part of their problem in adjusting themselves to a world which is largely fashioned on the principles, sometimes arbitrary, of their parents. But the child in whom naughtiness has become acute even to the stage of criminality is now far too common. Some recent cases have displayed the alarming depths of depravity to which children will sink for no apparent reason and with no cause that even the most sympathetic observer can discover. As life becomes more complicated and puts into the hands of children and youths greater power for doing physical and moral damage, the child becomes more and more a problem which demands immediate investigation on the part of those who have made a study of such matters.

Water-Power Development in Canada.

The known available water power in Canada, from all sources and within limitations, is 18,255,906 h.p. for conditions of ordinary minimum flow and 32,074,000 h.p. under a flow estimated for maximum development, that is 88 per cent. for at least six months of the year. The present recorded water-power resources of the Dominion will permit of a turbine installation of 41,700,000 h.p. The total installation to date in water-wheels and turbines throughout the Dominion is 2,973,769, or in other words represents only 7 per cent. of the recorded water-power resources.

The power installed in Canada at the present time may be classified as follows:—2,204,486 in general stations for general distribution for all purposes; 444,226 h.p. is installed in pulp and paper mills, not including 100,877 h.p. purchased by pulp and paper mills from central stations; 255,945 h.p. is installed in industries other than central stations and pulp and paper mills. The sustained, and in many cases increased, earning power of existing hydro-electric organizations, both privately and publicly owned, during the past few years of reaction, depression and deflation following the war stimulus has been reflected in the excellent treatment of these concerns on the various financial exchanges, and has created a most favorable impression on capital, and generally established a public confidence that is proving of inestimable value in the further promotion and growth of hydro-electric enterprises.

In the wake of these favorable conditions has come a year of development which promises to be unprecedented, with utilization schemes varying in extent from the gigantic to that of a relatively small power being undertaken in every part of the country. From all indications the figures just used will be left behind by a wide margin before the end of the year. Even should the rate of installation since 1910 be maintained in succeeding years, there will be installed in 1925, 3,360,000 h.p.; in 1930, 4,110,000; in 1935, 4,860,000; and in 1940, 5,600,000. The water power developed in Canada at the present time, represents an investment of over $620,000,000, and in 1940, at the same rate of increase, should represent $1,100,000,000. This is swelled to many times its volume by the thousands of new industries induced to locate by the advantages of hydro-electric energy at cheap rates, the numbers of which are increasing every year.

More of This is Wanted in Canada.

The York County Council is to be congratulated on its wisdom in accepting the report of its Reformation Committee in favor of purchasing Lot 28, Concession 8, Whitechurch, for the purposes of reforestation. The land, which already bears considerable timber, is 197 acres in extent. The price is $4,000. This committee recommended that 200 acres of such land be purchased every five years.

At least one or two other County Councils in Ontario are doing a similar work, and I cannot conceive of an annual outlay which should more meet the views of patriotic Canadians than this. It is an action which looks more to the future than to the immediate present but if this becomes a traditional policy there will come a time in the history of each County Council so acting when this work now a source of expense, will become a source of revenue which will finance its further progress. The increase of the world's population bears with ever greater weight on the forest resources of the world. Waste of the latter will be regarded more and more as a crime and the plant root Nelson's habit of planting an acorn whenever he had an opportunity so that there would be oak trees for the navies of England that would sweep the seas when he was dead 100 years was the result of his acute perception of the vital necessity of such trees to England's continued existence. He did not foresee the age of steam and of steel, but nevertheless the foresight of men like himself resulted in trees which were of immense value to the British cause in the last war. But it is the demands of peace-time I was thinking of when I spoke so approvingly of every move made in the direction of providing that Canada's forest growth shall be renewed, encouraged, aided and abetted by every effort Canadians can put forth. We have one of the great remaining stands in the world, and it is up to us to treat it as a crop as they do in Europe. It is up to us to see that the enormous industries developed on

Bank, Alta.—Elected by a huge majority over all other nominees, W. Thousands of Elks in convention have tendered a record reception to the grand exalted ruler elect and his brother delegates from Montreal, Mr. Joseph C. Rancourt. Great tribute was paid to Mr. Murphy's ability as a leader and organizer and the fact was stressed that he

All along the line, wherever the train stopped, reception committees were on hand to greet their new chief, and upon the arrival in Vancouver a civic reception was tendered, the freedom of the city being accorded to the guests.

the foundation of our forest resources shall continue to be well based. We must treat those whose carelessness starts fires, whether they be settlers, hunters, campers, miners or anybody else, as incendiaries. The efforts to protect the forests against fires, insects, disease and ignorant wasting must grow from more to more, and foresters be accounted amongst our most valued citizens. At the same time two trees should be planted for every one that is destroyed or used until the balance lost by generations of carelessness is restored. Look out for the Independent. July 12th.

Belfast, July 18.—(Associated Press)—Irish leaders in both North and South Ireland were greatly interested yesterday over the announcement of the meeting between William Cosgrave and Sir James Craig in London, this being the first time the two had met as the heads of their respective Governments. Officially the Free State Government in Dublin said Cosgrave was soon to visit the north on official business and might then meet Craig again. ## DUNDEE DEFEATS CRIQUET

New York, July 26.—John Dundee of New York, won the world's featherweight championship to-night, from Eugene Eichel, of France, in a slashing fifteen round battle, that kept the crowd that filled the polo grounds in an uproar. Dundee received a decision over his man who less than two months ago took the title from Johnny Kibane in the same ring. Dundee won cleanly, taking every round, but crowd was constantly divided between admiration for his ability, and the steady defence of the Frenchman, who never relinquished any advantage and fought back when he had scarce strength to stand. Criquet was down for count of nine in the first round and count of seven in second.

TO-NIGHT'S GAME.

After the none too brilliant exhibition given by the Cadets against the C.L.E., the friends and supporters of the Stars are hopeful to-night that their eleven can throw a monkey-wrench into the championship machinery, and thus create some excitement, for just one tiny little defeat of the Cadets would put the Guards on the same perch with them in addition to giving the trailing teams a fighting chance. It is felt therefore that the fans will turn out in large numbers to-night to witness the clash which starts at 7:30 with Referee Quick in charge. Both teams are turning out their strongest lineups, and a good game is assured.

TENNIS.

(By MRS. LAMBERT CHAMBERS.)

Stroke practice is far better than matches where you score and are all out to win rather than to improve your tennis. Try and get hold of someone as enthusiastic as yourself, and stroke practice for a certain time every day. You will soon improve out of all knowledge. Take the forehand and peg away at that. Try and take your stroke in a proper manner, and cultivate a good length. When you can more or less put the ball where you like, and are certain of your length, then try and put more pace into your strokes.

Length, pace, and variety of stroke are your chief objects to obtain.

Forehand Stroke.

I will now describe my forehand stroke, of course, because it is the best one for you to learn, but it is the one I know most about, and can best describe. There is no harm in your learning it as an alternative to any other you may possess.

Take the ball when it is about the height of your waist, and stand well away from it lengthways and sideways. Turn the body sideways, with the left shoulder to the net and the left foot in front of the right—never stand square for any lawn tennis stroke.

I swing the racket well back (this is a debatable point, as many advocate no swing-back), my hand raised to about the level of my shoulder, bring the racket forward and hit the ball in the centre of it. This can only be done by keeping your eye rigidly on the ball, transferring your weight from the right to the left foot, and bringing your arm and racket right round as far as they will go, ensuring a good follow-through, and at the end of your stroke your body is then facing the net.

One Thing at a Time.

I find it very useful to crouch somewhat when making this stroke. It is a great help for keeping your eye in line with the flight of the ball. When stroke practising, have some aim and object—something you want to improve, and peg away at this something. It is so much better to have some object in your practising, and not just to play aimlessly.

Determine to improve one stroke at a time, instead of taking your game as a whole. The backhand drive is the exact reverse of the forehand—the right shoulder faces the net, and the right foot in front of the left, swing back and follow through in the same manner.

Correct Timing.

It is very curious how many people take their backhands with their left foot forward and their bodies facing the net. All power is thus lost, and there is practically no follow-through. Remember it is the timing of your stroke which makes it a good one, and we all know the joy of just timing it right and hitting the ball in the centre of the racket. It is exactly the same feeling as a good drive at golf. You know the moment you have hit it whether it is good or not—in a good strike it is so beautifully timed that there is no effort at all. Mistiming is due to the eye being off the ball and faulty footwork. Hold your racket firmly, as too slack a hold encourages mistiming.

At present the Nfld. A.A.A. has not requisite sufficient funds to send a representative team, which is a great pity, as such men as Herder, Halley, Stone, Bell, Bunnell and O'Toole would, no doubt, between them be able to bring some of the spoils to Newfoundland. The following form the committee controlling the event:—
A. W. Covey, St. John, N.B. (Chair).
Major D. Ritchie, M.C. Alberta.
Dr. J. G. Davidson, British Col.
John DeGruchy, Ontario.
E. G. Murphy, Fort William, Ont.
Mayor F. H. Plant, Ottawa Valley.
J. A. McVicar, Winnipeg.

Dr. D. S. Johnston, Sask.
Dr. A. S. Lamb, Montreal.
A gold medal (emblematic of the Championship of Canada) will be given to the winner in each event; a silver medal to the second, and a bronze medal to the third.

GUARDS 2; B.L.S. 0

Whether it is that the fans have deserted the bleachers for the Lakeside these evenings, we know not, but last night's game between the B.L.S. and Guards, certainly deserved a better attendance. When the roll was called three of the regular Irish line-up failed to answer their names. Freddie Phelan and Fred Brien volunteered to fill the gaps in the field and both gave very creditable exhibitions despite the fact that they had had no practice this season. Owing to the late arrival of the Manos, the services of John Phelan could not be availed of and Frank Donnelly substituted in goal. Referee Quick got the game away promptly. At the blow of the whistle the B.L.S. brought the play to Guards goal mouth, which Thistle repulsed, and then the position was reversed by the heavy pressure produced by the blue-and-white forwards. There was a general give and take for some minutes when Quick got a shot which Donnelly cleared, but not sufficiently far enough to prevent Oulatas acquiring sudden control and a fast low one drew first blood. A few minutes later Quick duplicated.

The party will leave by express on Sunday, August 19th and return on the 26th. Special fares have been arranged and it is believed many will take advantage of the trip for a worth while visit to the Paper Town.

Prospect of Cheap Flour.

WASHINGTON, July 26.—(By Canadian Press)—According to the American Farm Bureau Federation, one of the strongest organizations of farmers in the country, the wheat situation in the United States has been constantly getting worse since the end of the war. The Federation looks on wheat as a "sore spot with agriculture." One of the phases of the wheat outlook which is worrying the Federation is increased competition for the coming crop. Increased European production, including Russian production, is forecast. As viewed here, Canada's crop promises to be as large as the record of last season, while India has produced an exportable surplus of 50,000,000 bushels over 1922. This is the condition of things as to competition. Furthermore, wheat prices this spring have averaged about $1.20 per bushel compared with $1.35 for the corresponding months a year ago and $1.70 two years ago. The June forecasts indicate production 5 per cent. under 1922 and a 2 per cent. less than the 1917-22 average. Acreage is 5 1/2 per cent. under last year. Domestic consumption in recent years has shown some decline and efforts are being made to increase it. Much of the crop is put on the market at prices below the average and there is no doubt, although the Federation does not directly say so, that the great majority of the United States wheat farmers are making no money or actually losing money. This is one of the causes of the widespread discontent among the farmers which is worrying the politicians, who are wondering how to mitigate it.

Dressing the Windows.

Natal Advertiser: After the Napoleonic wars there was an interval of many years before the Great Exhibition in Hyde Park. Now, within less than five years of the Armistice, British industrialists welcomed inspection of their products. If this dressing of the shopwindows in Great Britain has such beneficial effects, how much greater will be the results when the shutters are raised to reveal the products and progress of the whole of the British Empire. All that is required for success is a stout heart and steady work.

BUSINESS IS GOOD.

The farmer sells a load of wheat, And all the world grows fair and sweet, He hums a couple of cheerful tunes And buys the grocer for his prunes The grocer, who had the blues, Now buys his wife a pair of shoes, That ten the shoeman thinks God-sent, And runs and pays it on the rent. Next day the rent man hands the bill To Dr. Carver for a pill And Doctor Carver tells his Frau That business is improving now, And cheers her up and says, "My Dear, You've been quite feeble for a year, I'm thinking you should have a rest, You'd better take a trip out West." And in a couple of days the Frau Is on the farm of Farmer Howe, Who takes the bill and says, "I s'aw Here's something that just can't be beat. This bill's the one I got for wheat. He hums a couple of cheerful tunes, And goes and buys a lot more prunes.
