She was sorry for him, but then, what of the poor unfortunates whose lives were made miserable by his unscrupulous dealings in their wants by his vulturous usury? If the dominating instinct for crime that came to her with that ugly RED CIRCLE made her do things "without the pale," she at least used it to help₁ oppressed humanity. Would you know more of this strange girl who was at once a benefactor and a criminal?

ALBERT PAYSON TERHUNE THE RED CIRCLE tells fascinatingly of her in the great serial of heredity, romance and adventure written by him for The Sunday World.

: WAR SUMMARY :

Today's Events Reviewed

in as conditions of terrain become more favorable for a rapid advance, Joffre will probably see to it that the Germans are thrown out of the Tahure knoll. At present it is a thorn in the side of the French.

Sir Douglas Haig, commander-in-chief of the British expeditionary force in France, reports the repulse of a hostile attack on a British advanced position near Maricourt by rifle fire. A more active exchange of artillery fire than usual is noted on the southern portion of the British front. A British aeroplane squadron carried out a successful bombing attack on the German aerodrome at Douai. This French town is about twenty miles east of Lens, and it is an important railway junction. A few bombs were dropped on Boulogne, one of the British bases, by a German aeroplane, which flew over the town.

Earl Kitchener's declaration in the house of lords that "in the special circumstances of this unprecedented struggle, the existing system (voluntary recruiting), without modification, is not equal to the maintaining of the army which is needed to secure victory," settles the case for compulsion. Owing to the many specialized demands of the home war industry, the haphazard selection of recruits, which obtains under the purely voluntary system, will not do. The room for choice is becoming so restricted that practically every man not needed by war industries and for the support of the civil population, is needed for the field.

Mr. Tennant told a member in the commons that the shortage of machine guns at the front was first reported by Sir John French, and that measures had been taken to supply him with more than he asked for before Lloyd George became minister of munitions.

It was discovered, as Lord Curzon said, that the shortage of munitions in the British army was caused by a break-down of the old laissez faire system. Private effort came only within one-sixth of fulfilling its obligations, and public ownership and control of the war industries had to take its place. The work of Lloyd George has been the greatest experiment in public ownership that the world has yet seen outside of the British navy. It is said that Earl Kitchener saw the need of a departure along the lines adopted under Lloyd George in November of 1914, but that his reemmendations were smothered under the red tape of the war office.

British losses of 59,666 for the two weeks' fighting of Sept. 25 to Oct. 8 confirm the estimates of experts on the staff of Sir John French, that casualties of 30,000 a week during the big offensive would have to be provided for. The fighting in that fortnight not only included the advance in the Locs sector, but an all-day combat on the lines east of Ypres, the severe struggle around Fosse 8, and the protracted fighting for the Hohen-sollern redqubt.

I do not consider the change proposed should be regarded in the light of any derogation of the principle of volun-tary service in this country. It only affects during the period of the war one class of men, amongst whom there undoubtedly are a certain number who Sir John Simon, whose resignation as home secretary was announced yesterday, made a speech in which, after expres-sing regret that he had found it neces-sdry to sever his relations with Premier Asquith, he pleaded for rejection of the compulsory service bill. I am very far from wishing it thought that all those to whom the new proposals will apply can be described by the term I have used for some. Many of these men have probably conflicting calls upon them and will only be too happy upon them and will only be too happy that the government should resolve the doubts which they have been un-able to decide for themselves. "I speak only as a soldier, with a single eye to the successful conduct of the war. I feel sure everyone will agree when I say that the fullest and fairest trial bas been given the system which I found in existence and of which I felt it my duty to make the best use. It is a clear notice, nearly be very proud of, but at least they six years in advance, of the intention are the product of the people's will of the citizens to operate their own as crystalized in a government of the people, by the people and for the street railway franchise in future.

It may be well for the citizens to people. keep these things in mind, for time slips around very fast in the throes of a world war, and it will not be very long till the period of the franchise has expired. There are one or two contingencies to be guarded against, which must also be provided for, or at least kept in mind, in case an attempt is made to rush the city into an agres- whole estate passes to her husband, ment which a hostile legislature might 'sanction.

The usual method in the United States has been carefully to plant the city councils for some years before the expiration or the raiding of a franchise. Tools of the corporations are made popular, and are placed in line by her husband, Giuseppe Amodeo, who of promotion, and a majority is created without the citizens knowing anything of what is going on, until one fine day they find that they have been betrayed. It is not so easy as it used to be, and, practically, the Beck act eliminates the possibility. But all corporation legislation for the next five years must be carefully watched by legal department, to see the city that no unintentional liberty is accorded to the corporations. The citizens meanwhile must be careful to control the membership of the council so as to have men serving the city who are united on the question of public vnership, control and operation.

There is one other point which mus kept in view. When the franchise expires, and even tho it were ready to be taken over, the city must be in a position to take hold at once without the hiatus of a moment; and join it up with the lines now built and to be built, so as to create one united system with continuous transfer journeys in all directions. To do this it will be collector of customs for the Port of necessary to build all the lines needed for such connection between now and Sept. 21, 1921. This question comes up in connection with the report of superannuated, and of late had been the transportation committee, which living with his daughter. Mr. Webster has not yet been discussed, the plans, which are essential to any proper consideration of the report, not having been printed yet.

There are many lines which the street rallway company will certainly refuse to build when asked, within the refuse to build when asked, within the old city limits, and these must be constructed in good time. We shall expect to hear much opposition on account of the cost, but this should be enfliciently discounted by full and adequate discussion. MONTREAL, Jan. 5.—A sharp rally in Canadian Car, which sold as high as 84 against a low of 61% the previous day, was a steadying influence on the local stock market today, and some irregular improvement developed in the general list. Car's rally, while impressive, was marked by a repeti-tion of the violent movements which become characteristic of the stock. The first sale was marked at 72, an overnight gain of four points. After touching 84 the stock reacted about eight points and made only a partial recovery. Trading was less fewerish in the afternoon session, when the range was less than two points, from a low of 77% to a high cf """, with last transaction at the best of the session. Against a net loss of twelve points on Tuesday, the change today within a narrower range, showed much the some irregularity as the common.
