ALLIES TO SAFEGUARD PEACE OF THE EAST

Paris, May 18.—Japan and China have been informed by the Allied governments that they have arranged for extensive military cooperation to keep the dangers threatening the peace of the Far East from German penetration.

Washington, May 18.—The British military co-operation arranged to meet the threats to the peace of the Far East by German penetration, as reported today from Paris, is understood here as purely a defensive measure, in which participation for the present will be confined to Japan and China. Its primary purpose is the safeguarding of Manchuria with the possibilities of its extension to Siberia.

Dublin, May 17.—A proclamation issued by the Lord Lieutenant today says: "Whereas, it has come to our knowledge that certain subjects of His Majesty the King domiciled in Ireland have conspired to enter and have entered into unreasonable communication with the German enemy; and

"Whereas, such treachery is a menace to the fair name of Ireland and its glorious military record, a record which is a source of intense pride to a country whose sons always distinguished themselves and fought with such heroic valor in the past in the same way as thousands of them are now fighting in this war; and

"That it is the duty of all loyal subjects of His Majesty to assist in every way to suppress this treacherous conspiracy and to defend the honor of His Majesty the King and the integrity of Ireland from its dishonouring and to the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland and government of Ireland, have thought fit to issue this proclamation, declaring as follows:—

ENEMY TANKS NO MATCH FOR OURS

GERMANS WERE ROUTED

Details of Battle of April 24 Received

Six German tanks which made their first appearance on the western front during the recent German offensive, came off second best in their encounter with the more powerful and better managed British tanks, south of the Somme, in Picardy.

Full accounts of the first pitched battle between German and British tanks, which was fought in front of the British line a little before noon and started to roll up the flanks of the British infantry positions. A call for help was sent to the nearest British tank camp, and a squadron, including both "male" and "female" tanks, was sent. A rough and tumble battle ensued. The British tanks, which were equipped with a heavier main gun, completely changed the situation and the Germans fled after receiving a bad beating.

Meanwhile the British had brought up seven of the first pitched type, called "whippet" tanks, which debouched and attacked the enemy's infantry positions on the ridge, rolling up the German line from the north. It developed that the tanks were held by a line of machine gun positions, while beyond the crest a large force was massing in the open for an attack. The whippets ran from shell hole to shell hole, inflicting terrible casualties and completely disorganizing the enemy's preparations for attack.

These seven tanks, each with a full crew of twenty men, inflicted more than 400 casualties on the enemy in this engagement, while the casualties on board were only five men. The tanks left their base before noon and were back at their base again by 2 p. m.

An officer of the general staff, commenting on this engagement to the Associated Press, said: "The British tank has justified itself. The British tank adopted them, but there is yet no equivalent. With the start of the war, the tank construction was largely made up of improvised work, which was not adequate to the emergency of the war."

NEW DEVICE PROVES MASTER OF U-BOATS

Listening Instrument Not Only Tells of Approach But Shows Exact Location

Chicago, May 18.—That an entirely new device has been perfected whereby enemy submarines are being trapped and which detects the presence of U-boats at a distance of thirty miles is the information conveyed to the Chicago Daily News, in a despatch to that paper today from its Washington correspondent, who further declares the invention, which is of a sensitive character, is driving the divers from the trade route to Europe. "Germany," he says, "no longer can send submarines to the trade routes between the United States and Europe and expect them to patrol these lanes and escape detection whether above or below water. Any submarine which now moves about within a range of thirty miles of any of the Allies' patrol vessels cannot only be detected but definitely located if it remains long enough in any given vicinity. This fact alone has accounted in part for the great destruction of German submarines in the last months, and may eventually, when the patrol boats become numerous, prove to be the price antidote to submarine effectiveness.

ELECTRICITY AND CROPS.

British Government Establishes Stations to Test the Much-Discussed Theory.

Electricity as an aid to agriculture is receiving attention from the British government. There have been many experiments in stimulating the growth of crops by electrical means, but this is the first time any government has taken an interest in the matter.

Several stations have been erected throughout the country where seed is electrically treated. It is claimed that the result of such treatment is an increase of from 25 to 80 per cent in the final crop. More than 60,000 bushels of seed grain will go through the process before planting time.

Private companies are supplying apparatus by which whole fields are to be electrified so that the plants will be stimulated by electrical discharge throughout their period of growth. E. H. Demmon, U. S. consul at Birmingham, England, reports that the cost is

SUNDAY READING.

It may help us to decide whether we want German Kultur and the Kaiser's religion thrust upon us, if we read again a few extracts from the Kaiser's utterances in the last two or three years. For example:

"The German sword, with the help of our good old God up there is regaining its respect of all the world."
Remembering what the German sword has done to women and children, old men, priests, nuns and nurses, we are able to appreciate the German conception of the nature of "our good old God up there."

Bishop Warner in India says that the Mohammedans ask: "What kind of people are these Germans? They have no respect for places of worship, no reverence for God Himself. If they came here they would destroy our mosques and violate our sanctuaries, too."

But here again the Kaiser:
"The act is in God's hands, as is our whole struggle. He will decide upon it and we will leave it to Him. We must not argue with what He orders. We will be grateful to Him that we have thus far the honor of being His instruments in the divine judgment that has come to our enemies." And again: "The old God of Battles directed. We were His instruments and were proud of it."

And yet again: "The Lord of Hosts is with you. Those that have besought Him and He has inspired you with strength and courage." "On our side are truth and justice and right, and in order that truth and justice and right may be victorious we are justified in using every weapon."

Here we have a clear statement that "our good old God up there" is believed to sanction every atrocity perpetrated by the Germans since the war began. Christ is never mentioned by the Kaiser, for two reasons. One is that Christ's teachings would present some difficulties to a murderer of women and children and violator of sanctuaries, and the other is, as suggested by Rev. Dr. Bronson, that he does not care to offend his Mohammedan allies.

The world must be saved from such a religion as this. No sacrifice is too great. German domination of the world would rob civilization of all that is worthy to humanity; and all that has been gained by willing sacrifice from Calvary to the spot on Belgian soil where Edith Cavell was shot or Canadian soldiers crucified.

AFTER THE WHEAT HOARDERS.

The United States Food Administration is quite as determined as that of Canada to save wheat. There is a 60-60 rule which requires that with each sale of wheat flour there shall be sold an equal weight of foods selected from a specified list. No public eating place shall serve more than two ounces of bread and rolls, or more than four ounces of quick breads to any one person at any one meal. Bread rolls must contain 25 per cent wheat substitutes. In a city only twenty-four pounds of flour can be bought at a time, and in the country forty-eight pounds. And the Food Board says—

"Anybody who tries to beat that law or anybody who stows away wheat flour is just as much to blame as if he should buy up rifles and cartridges and lay them away so that they would be of no use to our boys or the Allies at the front."

The following articles prepared by the American Food Board is of special interest to Canadians now that the new food regulations have come into force—

"Another individual so thoughtless as almost to deserve the name of slacker is the person who uses wheat because it costs less than some wheat substitutes. So it does in some cases. But is that a good reason to use it? Foods that are in demand have always, in every war, shown a tendency—a tendency more uncontrolled than at present—to go to high price-levels. Besides, when it comes to counting cost, our boys in uniform are not counting the cost of anything, not even of their own lives. Are these the days for any true patriot at home to whine about costs when sturdy acceptance of conditions will help win the war?"

"There are discouraging features about the wheat slacker. But one fact is so encouraging that it overshadows the others. And that is every wheat slacker may become a wheat patriot if he will. All that is necessary is for him to change his attitude and tend his own. There are no elaborate rules to learn, no prodigious sacrifices to make in accomplishing the switch from wheat slacker to wheat patriot. All that one has to do is change. The process is as simple as emptying impure water out of a jug and filling it with water that is pure and clear. All that is necessary is that the jug itself should be sound. And most Americans are sound at heart. Patriotic also. Indeed, the rise of every sun shows a dwindling of wheat slackers and a gain in the ranks of the wheat patriots. And, as it always is the case, the converts are among the most enthusiastic well-doers. Facts prove it. In some regions people who were hoarding wheat-flour have turned in to the government such quantities of it that thousands of extra barrels have been released for shipment overseas.

"A great wave of wheat patriotism has begun to sweep the country. Hundreds of hotels are doing more than regulations demand. The women of one town have pledged themselves to weigh all the wheat-flour used in their homes and not to use more than three pounds a month per person till the next harvest, and, if necessary, to go without wheat altogether during that interval. Whole towns and counties are expressing similar determination. One town offered to the government, at cost price, a carload of wheat-flour (some 500 barrels), which was on its way. An entire State indicated that, if desirable, it would go upon a wheatless diet until the next harvest. Have your town and state been equally awake to their opportunities?"

"During the last six months much has been heard of wheatless meals and wheatless days. But as time has gone on, patriots all over the country have gradually realized that wheat is not so great a necessity as they had always supposed, and that its use has no small extent being a matter of comfort. And as the war has grown more real and important to them, and as they have come to realize the food deprivations bravely suffered by the Belgians, by France, England and Italy, more and more people are voluntarily giving up wheat altogether. And they are doing this gladly. Only a temporary inconvenience, such action influences the result of the war and the safety of all that the Americans cherish. There is a Chinese restaurant in Arizona which prints on its bill of fare: 'We are Chinese, but we are Americans first in the truest sense.' And that restaurant is doing its best to save wheat. If any American willing to let a Chinaman surpass him in loyalty to his country!"

It is quite necessary for any newspaper to try to ease the conscience of the readers and workers until Hon. Mr. Veniot and the government have finally disposed of it. This matter is in their hands. An investigation has been held under oath and the evidence taken down. It is now, or will be, in the hands of the minister and when he has dealt with it or failed to deal with it the time for comment will have arrived. Attempts to prejudice the case will rightly be attributed to gross partisanship, which would stop at nothing to attain its ends. The Food Board is not going to condone any wrong-doing; neither will it condemn anyone without cause. It will be guided by the sworn evidence.

There need not be any shortage of wheat in Canada before the next harvest if we were willing to let starvation invade France. Who cares to choose that alternative? The food hoarder—who also helps the Kaiser. Put it straight—that is the plain truth. Let us all face it.

Boys did good work on farms last year. They will do more this year.

How is your war garden progressing?

THE WINGS OF THE AEROPLANE.

War conditions have afforded an excellent opportunity for farmers in certain sections of Canada to engage extensively in the production of fibre flax. They will thereby not only add to their sources of income, but will also be of direct and vital aid in the war efforts of the Allies. The mastery of the air is proving a great, perhaps the determining factor, in the struggle now going on. Aeroplanes are being built in vast numbers as rapidly as possible. As a covering for the wings of these, linen is the only material found satisfactory. Large quantities are also needed for machine gun webbing, ambulance and truck covers, thread for sewing uniforms, and a number of other uses. Were the supply of fibre flax for these purposes to fall short, as is threatened, it would directly and profoundly affect the success of the Allied forces.

Before the war, flax was imported into the United Kingdom mainly from Belgium, France, Germany, the Netherlands and Russia. The German supply is, of course, now cut off, while in 1916 France produced no flax for export. Belgium's mere fraction of its former supply, and the Netherlands about half its former quantity. Owing to conditions in Russia no exports of fibre flax can be depended on this year; Ireland, the great flax-producing country in the United Kingdom itself, cannot with the best of seasons and with the largest possible acreage under flax, commence to meet the demand for fibre.

The foregoing information is contained in a circular on flax growing issued by the Federal Department of Agriculture and that can be had free by addressing the Publications Branch of that department, Ottawa.

"'VOT DO YOU MEAN BY BEING SO LITTLE."

—Eggle, Brooklyn.

REFORMS FOR HOUSE OF LORDS

Will Be Live Issue When War Is Over

The Bryce Report

Plan Proposed Involves Election of Members by House of Commons and Joint Committees of Both Houses

Reform of the House of Lords is not a live topic during the war, but it will be when the war is over. It seems to be conceded on every side in the Motion picture industry that the present House of Lords must disappear. The long fight the Asquith government against the veto power of the Lords damaged the power of the Upper Chamber very seriously, and schemes for a reconstruction of it, on more modern lines, became frequent. Lord Bryce, formerly British Ambassador at Washington, was appointed chairman of a large committee to draw up the official scheme for reconstructing it, and this committee, after forty-eight sessions, has just reported. The committee or conference consisted of sixteen members of the House of Lords and Commons, and the recommendations forwarded to the premier were passed by a large majority, only Earl Loreburn, Lord Sydenham and Mr. Scanlan dissenting.

Uses of Second Chamber. Lord Bryce, in a letter to the prime minister, gives an account of the proceedings of the conference, and sets out the reasons which led to the recommendations.

"It was generally agreed," he writes, "that a Second Chamber would be of little use unless it were strong enough to differ from the House of Commons when a proper occasion should arise. It was concluded that the House of Lords should be replaced by a body of members chosen by the House of Commons, and by the House of Commons, and the recommendations forwarded to the premier were passed by a large majority, only Earl Loreburn, Lord Sydenham and Mr. Scanlan dissenting."

Little Girl Had Jaundice

And All Treatments Failed to Arose the Action of the Liver Until Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills Were Used

Plympton, N. S., May 17.—This is a case in which the liver became sluggish and torpid and failed to filter the bile from the blood. As a result the complexion became yellow and muddy, the white of the eyes turned yellow, and the whole system poisoned by the accumulation of impurities.

Doctors were trying various medicines, but did not succeed in finding an effective treatment. Fortunately a friend advised the use of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and cure was effected.

Mrs. Chas. F. Melancon, Plympton, N. S., writes: "My little girl was taken ill with jaundice in November, 1915, and we tried all kinds of medicines for several weeks. I was advised by a friend to try Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. I myself have used two boxes of Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, and they have cured me of headache and nervous trouble. I would not do without them in my house now. I hope that this letter may be of benefit to other poor sufferers."

Here is another interesting letter from Plympton—

Mrs. Wm. H. Conroy, Plympton, N. S., writes: "I had been ailing for some time, suffering from a lame back. I had taken medicine for this trouble, but nothing helped until I started using Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills. In three months these pills completely cured me, and I have never been bothered with lame back since. I think Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills are the best made, and my husband is enthusiastic over them. Dr. Chase's Kidney-Liver Pills, one pill a dose, 25c. a box, at all dealers, or Edmondson, Bates & Co., Limited, Toronto. Look for the portrait and signature of A. W. Chase, M.D., on the box you buy."

liberate will of the people. But it was also agreed that the Second Chamber ought not to be so strongly entrenched as to dispose of it to engage in frequent contests with the House of Commons, so as to embarrass the executive and clog the wheels of legislation. It thus became necessary to steer a middle course between these extremes, assuming to the second chamber such powers only as the interests of the nation seem to require, and finding expedients by which differences between the Houses might be adjusted with the minimum of friction and delay, avoiding conflicts by methods of conciliation.

Composition Proposed. The following table shows the proposed composition of the second chamber:—

House of Commons
1—Elected by M. P.'s	240
2—Elected by 100 bodies	81
3—Elected by 200 bodies	81
Total		402

The voting by M. P.'s shall be by ballot and by proportional representation by the method of the single transferable vote. It should be noted that six peers and Lord Hugh Cecil were opposed to election by members of the House of Commons, even acting in conjunction. Tenure of seats in the second chamber will be for twelve years, one-third to be elected by M. P.'s or the Joint Committee, to retire every four years. In the first instance the persons chosen by the joint committee shall be selected from hereditary peers and bishops, but afterwards choice is to be unrestricted provided that peers and bishops sitting on the nomination of the committee are not less than thirty. It is proposed that as long as the second chamber discharges judicial functions the law lords shall remain as at present, and that the Lord Chancellor shall be speaker.

Retirement of Members. So that the chamber may be constituted one-third would be elected by the members of the present House of Commons, and retire in four years; one-third would be elected by the members of the next House and retire in eight years; the remaining third would be elected by the Joint Standing Committee of the House of Commons and the House of Bishops, and retire in twelve years.

Clergymen of the Church of England, of the Roman Catholic Church, of the Church of Scotland, and of the Protestant Episcopal Church in Ireland not now eligible for the House of Commons shall be eligible for the Second Chamber. Peers who are not members of the Second Chamber shall be eligible for the House of Commons. If members of the Second Chamber are to be paid, it is recommended that the salary should be the same as that of the House of Commons.

It is laid down that the Second Chamber shall not have power to amend or reject a Financial Bill, what constitutes such a bill being carefully defined. As for the adjustment of differences between the two Houses, either Chamber may demand the reference of a rejected bill to a free conference, consisting of twenty members of each House appointed at the beginning of parliament, and ten members of each house added by the committee of selection for the special bill under consideration. The Free Conference will try to bring about agreement, and if it fails the bill will go over to the next session, where, if the Free Conference again passes the bill and it is rejected by the Second Chamber and accepted by the House of Commons it is presented for the Royal assent.

Careless Language Called For. "John," said the clergyman, "I'm sorry, John—I'm sorry—but we will converse on that at some more fitting time. Just now I want you to go to Jeddison & Blenkinsop and settle this bill for repairing my summer house. And you might talk to them, John, as if it were your own bill, in a careless-like sort of way. Will you, John?"

THE OTHER WOMAN AT EMPRESS THEATRE

Peggy Hyland in Gripin, New York Story, Also Comedy and Serial

The Empress, West End, is showing "The Other Woman," and will screen it tonight for the first time. It is the story of a husband who finds his home life unconvivial and seeks his amusement elsewhere with the result that eventually he finds another woman who comes to mean more to him than his wife, but the other woman sacrifices herself in order to make the wife happy.

The picture shows the so-called Bohemianism of the art colony in old Greenwich Village, New York. It was this free and easy life among the artists—real and imagined—which caught Harrington in the story and nearly separated him from his wife.

Eleanor Gates (played by Peggy Hyland), a pretty and ambitious country girl, decides to cultivate her natural talent for painting and goes to the big city. On the train she meets Mr. Harrington, a broker, also on his way to the city and about to be married.

Eleanor meets with success in her profession and a year later, wishing to invest her earnings, calls upon Mr. Harrington for advice. This second meeting and the subsequent business interview result in a friendship that becomes intimate. Harrington has found his wife unconvivial and is attracted by the unconventional life of the studios and Eleanor becomes very fond of him.

The Harringtons drift further and farther apart. The baby dies. The wife determines that there is another woman and still devoted to her husband, she decides to give him up without a struggle. She becomes acquainted with Eleanor, though she does not know that she is "the other woman." Eleanor thus learns of the tragedy in the little woman's life and sacrifices her own inclinations and breaks off the affair with Harrington.

Peggy Hyland is one of the most attractive leading women of the screen. In "The Other Woman" she has a difficult part to play so sympathetically that she is bound to share the sympathy of the audience with the wife. The production is beautifully photographed and staged.

The balance of the programme is made up with a scurrilously funny comedy, "It's a Wild Life," featuring Longsone Lake and the thirteenth episode of "The Hidden Hand," which is exceptionally interesting.

Effective. "Ever bothered with tramps out your way?" "No, I have a sign on the gate read: 'We are vegetarians, but our dogs don't.'"

LUMP OF COAL? A BOMB.

"I remember," writes a correspondent of the Westminster Gazette, "seeing in the 'Black Museum' at Old Scotland Yard, many years since, among many other interesting souvenirs of crime a small bomb."

"To all appearances it was a piece of coal, but in reality it was a hollow piece of metal ingeniously drilled to repress coal stratification, and then painted black, but with lighter shades to render it more deceptive."

Had No Appetite Could Not Work

THEN MME. LAVOIE USED DODD'S KIDNEY PILLS

Now She Says She Is in Perfect Health, and Is Recommending Dodd's Kidney Pills to All Who Suffer From Kidney Trouble

Yvesham, Que., May 17—(Special)—I know that Dodd's Kidney Pills are good. So says Mme. Xavier Lavoie, a well-known and highly-respected resident of this place. And Mme. Lavoie tells of her own experience why she recommends her friends to use Dodd's Kidney Pills.

"I suffered from kidney disease, headache and indigestion," she says. "I had no appetite, and I could not work. My heart also bothered me.

"I took Dodd's Kidney Pills, and I am now in perfect health.

"I recommend Dodd's Kidney Pills to everyone who suffers from kidney disease."

That Mme. Lavoie's troubles all came from sick kidneys is shown by the quick relief she got from the use of Dodd's Kidney Pills. They are purely and simply a kidney remedy. The reason they give good results for so many different diseases is that when the kidneys are sick the whole body is sick, and the results of disease are carried to all parts of the body, and affect all the weak spots. The natural cure is to cure the kidneys—to use Dodd's Kidney Pills.

RECENT DEATHS

Moncton, N. B., May 17—(Special)—Mrs. Mary Watson, wife of John Watson, Pacific avenue, died at the City hospital this morning after an illness of about two weeks. Yesterday afternoon she was removed to the hospital from her home in a serious condition. She was in the thirty-third year of her age, and was born in Scotland, but had resided here for a number of years. She is survived by her husband, three children, Jean, Ernest and John, all at home.

FOOD SHIPMENTS TO ALLIES SHOW GOOD INCREASE

Chairman of Canada Food Board Tells How Dominion is Helping—Rationing in Homes

Toronto, May 18—The question of rationing the homes has been given a great deal of thought," H. B. Thomson, chairman of the Canada Food Board, told an audience of 4000 people in Massey Hall tonight.

"We know the people of Canada do not want any direct order for rationing their homes," he added. "The best solution of the difficulty, he went on, had seemed to the board to be to ask the resources committee to make each province draft a standard of voluntary regulations for the homes of their respective provinces."

The government, said Mr. Thomson, had agreed to supply Great Britain and her Allies with large quantities of wheat and flour, between now and July 1. If they did as he hoped they would be between the beginning of the year and that date, they would have shipped more than in the average past three years. Of the 1917 wheat crop, to date, sixty-two per cent more than the average of the past three years had been sent. Shipments of pork had increased by 122,000,000 pounds, beef by 22,000,000 pounds, butter by 12,000,000 pounds, cheese by 80,000,000 pounds, eggs by 15,000,000 dozens, and wheat and flour by 85,000,000 bushels.

Made From Whole Cloth.

Half the stories of the people who said, "What's the use of rationing?" The wheat, the pork, is not going overseas. It's being hoarded by the pickers and the millers," were made out of whole cloth. The shipments of pork in 1918 were twice those of 1915, and three times those of 1912.

There was still a lot to be made up. Of the total requirements of the Allies, the 1916 record showed that Canada had supplied of beef only 2 1/2 per cent, pork 1/2 per cent, butter 1/2 per cent, and condensed milk 1/2 per cent.

Sir William Hearst, who presided, read a letter he had just received from Sir Arthur Currie, thanking him for the patriotic resolution of the legislature forwarded to him, which had been pronounced to the Canadian corps. General Currie said in part: "The days to come will undoubtedly demand the fullest measure of sacrifice, not only from the troops in the field, but from all the people at home, and in order to achieve victory the full weight of the empire, both in men and resources, must be thrown in. It is therefore a source of the greatest encouragement and satisfaction to us all to know that the people at home are fully alive to the situation, and resolved to do their full part towards attaining the great result."

TO BLOCK GERMANS IN PLOT FOR SHIPS

U. S. Adopts Programme to Prevent Fee From Getting Vessels After War

Bill Introduced in House—Gives Shipping Board Power to Pass Upon Requests From Foreign Interests

Washington, May 18—A comprehensive programme to defeat attempts by German agents to obtain an interest in shipping now being constructed in American yards, and to place contracts for ships which would give preference over other orders after the war has been adopted and a thorough investigation started which, it is believed, will unseat all efforts at intrigue of this nature which are backed by the Central Powers' capital, in various disguises, has been undertaken to obtain a foothold in the shipbuilding situation, as in many other industries of the nation. Under the plan adopted, every safeguard will be provided against such an emergency, and indisputable evidence must be submitted to show that German interests are not involved in proposed dealings relating to America's shipping programme.

Congress, the Shipping Board, the War Trade Board, and the Allen Property Custodian are all involved in the right to see that in this direction, as well as in all industrial and commercial relations, the Central Powers shall be discarded as undesirable. It is reported that the most subtle and questionable attempts have been made by German interests to re-establish themselves and users the slightest loop-hole for furthering their interests.

Yards under jurisdiction of the Emergency Fleet Corporation—and they include practically every yard of importance in the country—will not be permitted to consider the acceptance of other than government contracts, at least until it is known that all of America's needs are provided for and that offers which have been made by brokers bear no pro-German taint.

This policy is not aimed at any neutral or allied nation, and applications by these countries for permission to let contracts for ships to be constructed later will receive every consideration.

In carrying forward the programme the officials have at their disposal the mass of invaluable information concerning enemy connection with financial interests of all kinds, in this nation and in foreign countries, which has been gathered by the War Trade Board, the Allen Property Custodian, and the allied nations.

It has been announced that the department of the Allen Property Custodian, which has been riding many of America's industrial interests of the German menace, is prepared to seize any property, shipyard or ship, where it is shown that German agents have succeeded in obtaining an interest, and to take steps to purge the property involved of its undesirable connections.

The government, through the Shipping Board, now has complete control of and must pass upon all ship contracts before they may be accepted by shipyards, and this power of supervision will be used to the full where occasion is found. Trading with the Enemy act provides ample power to deal with persons or corporations which attempt to transact business with enemy interests, and heavy penalties are named.

The more important of the bills which have been reported by the House Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries gives full authority to the Shipping Board to pass upon requests coming from foreign interests with the object of preventing German capital from obtaining, even indirectly, any grip on the shipping interests through the holding of mortgages, stocks, or bonds. Ships built in American yards under the terms of the legislation will not be leased to any corporation influenced by German interests.

Power for Shipping Board.

The Shipping Board is vested with the power of making the decisions involved in order to defeat the efforts of Germany and assure a control of all shipping constructed here by interests in which the Central Powers have no holdings or authority. The legislation is applicable for a reasonable period after the war.

A careful watch on all efforts on the part of Germany to act in the guise of a neutral agency—and these attempts have been made despite the best efforts of neutral governments to discredit them—is being maintained and a thorough organization is being built up, through the co-operation of all of the government departments dealing with such matters, by which it is predicted Germany's hold on any of the shipping interests, as well as on other industries, will be broken.

The recent agreements made by the War Trade Board with the allied governments to fight German efforts to play a part in commercial relations among these nations, by having exports and imports involving the United States carefully viced and purged before production and shipment is permitted, is believed by officials to have gone far to defeat many of the plans which the Germans had prepared.

CAPTAIN SAVARD DISMISSED.
(Montreal Herald.)
Captain Savard, who figured prominently in the work of the police force for many years, and who several months ago was suspended on account of charges made against him by former Controller Villeneuve, was dismissed yesterday by the administrative commission.
In the minutes of yesterday's meeting of the commission is a paragraph which sets out the charges against the captain and the manner in which he was dismissed. It is stated that Captain Savard was suspended from duty on May 20, at three o'clock.
Captain Savard has been connected with the city police force for seventeen years and in less than three years have been entitled to retire on a pension of half pay.
The administrative commission yesterday also took steps to have the law strictly enforced preventing minors under the age of fifteen from entering moving picture theatres unless accompanied by responsible persons. This action follows the receipt of a letter emphasizing the danger to the youth of the city through moving picture influences, sent to the police force. It reads: "On Monday of Commissioner Verelle, seconded by Commissioner Ross, it was resolved that the services of Police Captain Gougeau Savard be dispensed with."
There was a persistent rumor this morning that he intends to sue the city for damages. When he was asked if this rumor was correct, he referred to all his counsel, Peter Brevoyitch, K. C., M. P., and Charles Wilson, K. C., both coming to discuss the matter.
COMING TO FAIRVILLE
George G. Esley, secretary of the Fairville Baptist church, received a letter last evening from Rev. A. S. Bishop, of Jamaica Plain (Mass.), accepting the call offered to him early in the present week to become pastor of the church as successor to Rev. E. Hayward, who resigned two months ago to enter Y. M. C. A. work. The formal announcement of Rev. Mr. Bishop's acceptance will be read to the Fairville congregation on Sunday, Rev. Mr. Bishop expects to occupy the pulpit of the Fairville church on the first Sunday in June.

MARRIAGES AND BIRTHS. Eleven marriages and seventeen births—ten boys and seven girls—were reported to the registrar during the week. The registrar said this morning that he intends to see in the future that parents do not neglect to report the birth of their children and that they make the proper returns to him. He explained that parents should not take it for granted that the attending physician looks after this duty.

TWENTY-NINE YEARS PRESIDING Hon. R. J. Ritchie is today celebrating his twenty-ninth anniversary as police magistrate and judge of the city court. On his desk in the court room are twenty-nine beautiful carnations, a remembrance from a friend, Kristian Pedersen, who visited him many returns of the day. Hon. Mr. Ritchie was sworn in as city magistrate and judge of the city court by the late Chief Justice Allen. At the time of his appointment he was a member of the government under the late Hon. Mr. Blair. His commission was signed by the late respected Sir Leonard Tilley, who was governor at that time.

POLICE COURT. A young Belgian appeared before Magistrate Ritchie in the police court this morning on a charge of drunkenness. He was fined five dollars and costs, but refused to pay. He was remanded to jail until Monday morning and an endeavor will be made to learn who supplied him with liquor.

A boy who recently escaped from the Boys' Industrial Home, was also in court. Magistrate Ritchie warned him that he was liable to be sent to Dorchester. The case was set aside until the superintendent of the Industrial Home could be present.

ENLISTED AT 64

St. John Man, One of Canada's Oldest Soldiers, Home From War—Welcome This Morning

Private J. Haverfield, of 272 Brussels street, who returned home in a party of twenty-four from overseas last evening, has the distinction of being the oldest Canadian soldier who has crossed overseas. He enlisted when he was sixty-four in one of the 4th Field Ambulance branches of the service, the 257th Construction Battalion. He saw eleven months of service in France before his age began to get the better of him. He was taken ill with pneumonia and returned to England, thence back to Canada.

He has a son, John Seely, now in France, a member of the 4th Field Ambulance. Private Haverfield, prior to going overseas, worked with D. C. Clark, contractor.

Private Leonard George Vincent, of 19 Union street, West St. John, was in the party. He went overseas with the 115th Battalion and after his arrival in England was transferred to the N. B. Battalion. At the battle of Passchendaele he was wounded in the ear, and at Hill 70 was gassed. Private Leonard was a company runner.

A military medal man was in the party, Private Ouellette, of Grand Falls. He crossed overseas with the 115th and was later transferred into the N. B. Battalion and while fighting with them won his distinction. A party from the unit had been sent out to bomb a section of a German trench. When they had gone only a short distance, Private Ouellette was wounded, but dragged himself along and cleared out a sap running into the trench in which some Germans had taken refuge.

Another soldier to arrive home was Private Carol V. Matthews of Wilson's Beach, Campobello. He went overseas as a member of the 115th and later transferred to a Montreal unit. He was ten months on the firing line.

W. A. Dempster of 83 Westmorland road, and J. McDonald, Princess street, also returned. The men were formally welcomed this morning by the Returning Soldiers' Reception committee, in the assembly hall of the Discharge Depot. His Worship Mayor Hayes gave an address of welcome, after which the ladies of the committee presented to the boys candy and fruit, and the men of the committee gave them tickets for the show houses.

EXCITING TIME WITH SUBMARINE

Rev. Mr. Duval and Wife En Route to Home Here

Their Ship Attacked on Voyage From West Africa Where They Have Been in Missionary Work

After four years of hard missionary work in West Africa, Rev. Louis M. Duval and his wife have arrived home here to a well earned rest and also for the benefit of their health. They set sail from West Africa on March 25 direct for New York and while en route had an exciting experience with a large German submarine. When fifty miles from Freetown Sierra Leone, the submarine appeared to be one of the most modern type. She fired thirty-four shells at the steamer but failed to make a hit. Then she opened up with shrapnel. Fortunately no one on the steamer was injured and after an hour's trying time the submarine turned and gave up the chase. Why she did not attempt to torpedo the steamer is a mystery which the officers or the passengers could not fathom. He said that they heard a rumor later that a British cruiser sank the U-boat.

Rev. Mr. Duval and his wife have been on missionary work in Africa for the last sixteen years, serving for three years and then returning home for a year. He is a son of Mrs. A. Duval of 177 Leinster street, and after graduating from Acadia College more than seven years ago entered the Baptist ministry and immediately set out on foreign work. After going to West Africa he proceeded to Sierra Leone where he opened a mission among the natives and ever since has worked indefatigably in the interest of his church. When he first started he did considerable pioneer work, but as time passed he was able to erect a house and later a church. At the time of his departure he was in charge of a theological seminary where natives were educated for missionary work, in addition to having charge of several churches for some distance about Sierra Leone. He established the school four years ago and there are twenty-two pupils now studying there. Rev. Mr. Duval said that the natives make exceptionally good preachers and render valuable assistance in missionary work.

Since the outbreak of the war the natives have generously contributed towards the Red Cross and other patriotic funds. A large number of the natives also joined the British forces and went to fight the German forces in German East Africa. Reports indicated that they were rendering valuable service to the Allies cause.

Rev. Mr. Duval and his wife have been away for four years, which is two years longer than a white person is supposed to remain in that climate. They will be home for another year and then if their health permits they will return to continue their missionary work. During their absence their mission is being looked after by Dr. and Mrs. E. G. MacLean of New Brunswick.

DEFINITE WORD AS TO AMOUNT OF FLOUR IN HOUSE

Remains of Contents of Package in Home on April 25 or Before Not to be Molested

Dr. W. C. Keirstead of Fredericton has received the following by telegram from Ottawa:

Amendment of Flour Regulations. "Section 1 of order No. 81 of the Canada Food Board, dated April 25, 1918, is amended by adding the following subsections:

(c) A bona fide farmer shall be permitted to hold subject to the order of the Canada Food Board, the amount of flour made wholly or in part from wheat may have in his possession in excess of the amount prescribed by the above order, if on or before June 15, 1918, he reports to the miller or dealer from whom it was purchased or by whom it was manufactured, the excess amount held by him. It shall then be the duty of such miller or dealer to report all such holdings to the Canada Food Board on forms to be supplied and at such times as he is directed.

(d) Any person holding or having in his possession not more than twenty-five pounds of flour made wholly or in part from wheat, or who holds or has in his possession at the date hereof part only of one original package in which such flour is purchased, though the amount exceed twenty-five pounds, shall be permitted to hold same.

Evidently, in the first case, the board desires full knowledge of the amount of flour in Canada, and means to exercise such control as may be found necessary for the public welfare. At the same time it is anxious to avoid all unnecessary inconvenience or hardship.

Cold Storage. A bulletin issued by the Canada Food Board conservation publicity section says:

"Orders-in-council have prevented 'holding up' in foods at cold storage. Order No. 297, on hoarding, gives power to limit the stock held by anyone and even to seize and sell excess stocks, if required.

"Cold storage is as necessary as canning. The new regulations stop manipulation to keep up prices above the demand of an open market. Cold storage plants, free to all, are now to be more used for the benefit of the people. Abuse will be impossible."

BURIED TODAY The funeral of Captain Angus McDonald took place this afternoon from his late residence, Orange street. Services were conducted by Rev. J. A. MacKeigan, and interment was made in Cedar Hill.

TO FORCE PASSAGE OF EQUAL SUFFRAGE

Prussian Government is Determined to See Bill Adopted by Diet— House is Adjourned

Amsterdam, May 18.—Herr Friedberg, vice-president of the Prussian State Ministry, speaking on Tuesday in the Prussian Lower House, said, according to Berlin dispatches, that the government continues to adhere unshakably to equal suffrage, and is resolved to employ all constitutional means to carry the suffrage through. The government, however, he said, also takes the view that the Upper House is an equivalent factor of the legislature, and must first pronounce its decision in the matter. The bill, accordingly, will be submitted also to the Upper Chamber.

Should this procedure not lead to the final acceptance of equal suffrage within a definite period, the vice president said, then the House will be dissolved at the earliest date compatible in the opinion of the government with the war situation.

An amendment to Article 2 offered by the Centre party was adopted to prevent the Lower House from being out-

RECORD CROP IS AIM OF FRANCE

Agriculturists May Be Taken
From the Army

Labor is Very Scarce—Unused
Lands Will Be Tilled to Help
Relieve Bread Scarcity

Paris, May 17.—No economic subject is of more importance to the French than that of wheat, and bread. Conditions have much to do with the temperance of the French workman and capitalist alike.

The French are doubtless the greatest bread eaters on earth, and this means wheat bread and white if they can get it, which at the present time they cannot. It is said that the only towns in France where white bread still exists are those in which American troops are quartered.

Senator Faugot, of the invaded Department of the Ardennes, a big scale farmer himself, has given to the public some remarkable observations recently on the state of the wheat possibilities of France of the future. Frankly he admits climatic and meteorological elements which are beyond the power of man to control, and for this reason all the skill of the modern cultivator should be exerted to best nature when it comes to adverse conditions.

He proposes three salient procedures to accomplish this: Increase the acreage, increase the quantity of farm labor, either manual labor or tractors, and increase the quantity and efficiency of fertilizers used.

His own personal views are worthy of all French farmers' consideration. He says in part:

Big Increase Possible

"It is quite possible for us to increase our wheat lands in France, as suitable soil in quantity is still uncultivated. Driven from my own region by the invaders, I have not been able to learn what might be done there in this respect, but I have taken the opportunity of studying other regions of our bella France, and have seen vast wheat lands, which for obvious present day reasons have been left uncultivated, but I have not seen any fallow land which has not been turned over in an effort to produce some sort of a crop where cultivation had been practised before.

"It is probable that this uncultivated land is less favorable to wheat growing than the other, which is already growing grain, and this is perhaps the chief criticism. But all the same these lands should be put into seed as soon as possible, in the near future at any rate."

As for the question of farm labor, the authority is of the opinion that as many farmer soldiers as possible should be demobilized to aid the women and the old folks, who are largely responsible for such wheat crops as are being grown. He admits that circumstances of the moment may not allow this, but demands that the project should have more consideration than it has had up to now.

Until that time he is of the opinion that the cultivated surfaces should not be largely increased and rather that the effort should be applied to obtaining increased crops by superior quality of fertilization. This particularly for the 1919 crops.

Many of the average wheat lands produce only from six to fifteen quintals of wheat to the hectare (2½ acres), where by the addition of 100 to 50 kilos of soda nitrate and 200 to 300 kilos of superphosphate the crop would be increased from 40 to 60 per cent.

Fertilizers from Steel Mills

M. Faugot argues, too, that these fertilizers could largely be produced in France by the depollution of steel and iron mills, and also by the further development of the phosphate mines of Tunisia.

After the war will be available also the nitrates of Chile and the chemical wastes from French factories and sulphate of ammonia from coal distillates. For the moment the demands of the war establishments absorb all of these for the manufacture of explosives.

A vegetable revolution in the processes of French agriculture is certain if France is to bring back her wheat crop from thirty-eight or forty million quintals to something more than double Argentinean and American and Australian crops.

It is still to be found in the shops as are the cheese. The argument in this line of reasoning is that the home fooder will have it at his disposal, and if he likes he may take a part of it to his restaurant, as he does his lump of sugar, but he may not order it in a restaurant, not even as a hors d'oeuvre, of which it usually forms a part.

The same bread ration of the restaurant—100 grammes if your meal costs six francs, about a dollar at the present exchange—is supposed to make possible under the present difficult conditions but none more notable than this in bread-eating France.

SAVED THE DYNASTY IF NOT THE COUNTRY

Roumanian King Thanks Premier
for Even That Much—Accepts
Peace Pact

Amsterdam, May 18.—A despatch received here from Bucharest says: King Ferdinand of Roumania, in a telegram to Alexander Marghiloman, the Roumanian premier, has expressed his confidence in the future of his people. In the telegram the king also thanked Marghiloman and his associates for their work in the preservation of Roumanian rights.

"I hereby take cognizance of the peace which has been concluded at Bucharest," says the king's message to M. Marghiloman, "and thank you and the other Roumanian delegates for the difficult and self-sacrificing work you have done to preserve our rights at a painful time."

"As king and as a Roumanian I have every hope for the future of my brave and valiant people. I thank you for the assurance of confidence you express in the prosperity and strength of the Roumanian kingdom under my leadership and that of my dynasty."

The Bucharest newspaper Steagul, a copy of which had been received here, forecasts the prosecution of the members of the cabinet of J. J. C. Bratianu and Take Jonscu, former minister with out portfolio, in the Roumanian government. An investigation, says the paper, is being made regarding the preparations for and the conduct of the war, and also the administration of state funds.

ian crops are keeping the Frenchman supplied with his daily bread at present but with the difficulties of transport and other economic conditions the bread is getting darker and darker every day.

Butter is the natural accessory of bread, though the French never eat bread and butter as Americans do. All the same, for the average person it was the accompaniment of the morning breakfast roll. Now it, too, is absent from the hotel and restaurant table and allowed to be used only for cooking in these establishments. It has gone the way of soft cheeses.

It is still to be found in the shops as are the cheese. The argument in this line of reasoning is that the home fooder will have it at his disposal, and if he likes he may take a part of it to his restaurant, as he does his lump of sugar, but he may not order it in a restaurant, not even as a hors d'oeuvre, of which it usually forms a part.

The same bread ration of the restaurant—100 grammes if your meal costs six francs, about a dollar at the present exchange—is supposed to make possible under the present difficult conditions but none more notable than this in bread-eating France.

"I deem it my duty to say" the president's letter said, "that I should regard the passage of this resolution as a direct vote of confidence in the administration. The purpose which it undoubtedly expresses has been expressed again and again in various forms during the present session, and has always seemed to originate in a rooted distrust of those who are at present in charge of the executive functions of the government. These executive functions are very clearly understood. They have been defined both by the constitution and by long experience, and no one can doubt where the responsibility for them lies or what the methods are by which those who are responsible can be held to their duty.

"Such activities on the part of a particular committee of the senate as this resolution would look forward to would constitute nothing less than an attempt to take over the conduct of the war, or at the least so superintend and direct and participate in the executive conduct of it as to interfere in the most serious way with the action of the constituted executive. I protest most earnestly against the adoption of any such action, and shall hope that every senator who intends to support the present administration in the conduct of the war will vote against it. These are serious times and it is absolutely necessary that the lines should be clearly drawn between friends and opponents."

By a vote of three to two, the senate expenditures committee ordered a favorable report on the Chamberlain resolution, but added amendments modifying it so as to limit specifically the military committee's activities to army operations. A proviso was added expressly prohibiting the committee from a general inquiry into the conduct of the war.

HUGHES TO PROBE AIRCRAFT CHARGES FOR PRESIDENT

Wilson Asks Defeated Rival To Assist Attorney-General Gregory
—Desires Full Inquiry

Washington, May 18.—President Wilson has asked Charles Hughes to assist Attorney-General Gregory in investigating the aircraft situation. Mr. Hughes has replied that he will be glad to assist.

Correspondence between the president and Mr. Hughes was made public here today. The president said the importance of the aviation service warranted an investigation with as little delay as possible.

In asking Mr. Hughes, whom he defeated for the presidency to help in the investigation, the president said:

"You have, doubtless, noticed that very serious charges of dishonesty have been made in connection with the production of aircraft."

"Because of the capital importance of this branch of the military service, I feel that these charges should be thoroughly investigated and with as little delay as possible in order that the guilty, if there are any such, may be promptly and vigorously prosecuted and that the reputation of those whose actions have been attacked may be protected in case the charges are groundless."

"I requested the department of justice to use every instrumentality at its disposal to investigate these charges, and with the approval of the attorney-general, I am writing to beg that you will act with him in making this investigation. I feel that this is a matter of the very greatest importance, and I sincerely hope that you will feel that it is possible to contribute our very valuable service in studying and passing upon the question involved."

Mr. Hughes replied that he would arrange his affairs to enter upon the inquiry with as little delay as possible.

Opposes General Inquiry.

In a letter today to Senator Martin of Virginia, Democratic leader in the senate, President Wilson declared he would regard passage of the Chamberlain resolution calling for an investigation of aircraft as a direct vote of confidence in the administration, and an attempt by congress to take over the conduct of the war.

"I deem it my duty to say" the president's letter said, "that I should regard the passage of this resolution as a direct vote of confidence in the administration. ### WINDOWS IN PARIS PAPER PROTECTED

Gothas and Long-Range Gun Lead to New Scheme—Effect is Decorative

Paris, May 18.—Residents of Paris were reminded recently that they should take all precautions to avoid the breaking of glass in view of the difficulties of replacing shattered windows. An official suggested that the best method was to keep the windows open, but where this was not possible bands of thin paper about two inches in width should be pasted in squares upon the glass. They should be carefully placed in such a way that they adhere closely and continuously, and the advice he gave.

The plan would diminish considerably the risk of breakage in case of the sudden displacement of air caused by the bursting shells or the exploding aerial torpedoes from the Gothas. What was the result of that usual suggestion? Surely if you've ever known Paris and came over again this time, you wouldn't recognize the place. Every window from the smallest cafe to the windows of the Elysee Palace is plastered up with ribbons of paper.

The big shops display fancy designs in many colors. Banks, railroad offices, barber shops and florists are showing trade marks and labels peculiar to their particular branch of business—all pasted on the window panes.

BETRAYS AUSTRIA'S
LONGING FOR PEACE

Amsterdam, May 18.—The Tiji prints the following significant and much-censored letter from its Vienna correspondent:

"The reason why all classes of the population have greeted Count Czernin's departure (from the foreign office) is that in him they saw the herald of peace, and the people want peace above all. This is not surprising, because the misery is extreme. (This part censored.) The people will probably hold out through the next difficult months until the Czarine grain arrives in sufficient quantities. But it is natural that everybody yearns for peace—(censored.) Hundreds of times daily one hears the lament: How long is this crazy destruction to last?"

"Only the conviction that the emperor honestly desires peace and has given evidence of this in recent incidents keeps the people going."

DROPPED BOMBS TO LIGHTEN CRAFT

Chance Act of Airman Resulted in
3,000 Germans Surrendering

London, May 18.—Surrender of a German force of 3,000 men in East Africa was due to the chance dropping of a number of bombs by a British airman, according to a report from Capetown, which says:

"An officer of the flying corps was out on reconnaissance in the region of the Rovuma River but found nothing to bomb. Being forced to discharge his cargo of bombs to lighten his machine for the homeward trip, he chose a quiet spot and dropped them all, causing, of course, considerable noise."

"The German general, Tafel, was at the time marching to join his chief, von Lettow, but news of the explosions was reported to him, and he, thinking a large force of the enemy must be somewhere in the district, diverted his line of march and before long bumped into a British force.

"Ultimately his whole force, 3,000 strong, surrendered."

Hymn of the Republic" in the amphitheatre of the Y. M. C. A. stadium here. The singing was heard in every barracks in the camp by sentries left on guard there, and a mile away officers and soldiers heard the roll of the 50,000 voices and stood at attention until the chorus was finished. Many other acts, one of them the anthem of the Allies, and others old American favorites, were sung by Mme. Schumann-Heink. W. Stanley Hawkins, the song master at the camp, said he had no doubt that the Kaiser heard the singing above the noise of the guns.

Long Hours For The Members Of Parliament

Opposition Worse Off Than Government Side

C. G. R. Shows Deficit

Lively Tilt Between Messrs. Cannon and Edwards—Expect Protraction on Thursday Next

Ottawa, May 17.—The government is keeping parliament's nose to the grindstone pretty assiduously these days—so assiduously, in fact, that members of the opposition are complaining that the clause on what they regard as a reasonable and not prolonged discussion of the important legislation of the session is being practically resorted to through the government's policy of long hours and not let-up for the numerically inferior side of the house.

On the government's side the whips have divided the members into shifts so that there will be at all times a government majority at hand, prepared for any opposition vote. By this expedient government members are enabled to have a few hours off every day while the smaller opposition force has to keep in the trenches all the time. Under the government whips' programme, Unionist members who attend the morning sitting are let off for the afternoon or evening and are not required to be on "duty" until after 11 at night. Through alternation of the hours for the various days of the week the government members get some hours each day for attending to their correspondence, relaxation, etc. Since the beginning of April and especially since the beginning of the morning sittings, parliament has set a new pace this session in the way of long office hours. During April on only two days did the house adjourn before 10 o'clock at night; on seven days adjournment was after midnight and on all the other days adjournment hour was nearly midnight. Since May 1 the house has been kept sitting until after 1 a. m. on three days, on seven days until midnight or after, and on three days until nearly midnight.

Prorogation is expected by Thursday of next week. Good headway was made with the remaining government business on the order paper at today's sittings of the house. The morning and part of the afternoon sittings were taken up with the third reading of the civil service bill, two opposition amendments being voted down by government majorities of 41 and 38. Two bills based upon the budget resolution—the bill to amend the business profits war tax act—were put through committee stage with little discussion. In committee on the bill to amend the income tax act, also put through committee, there was considerable discussion.

At the evening session, Hon. J. D. Reid, minister of railways, presented his "railway budget" on the operation of government railways. The statement showed that the average increase in earnings was about $300,000 per month. Nevertheless, there was a deficit of $5,294,280. The minister predicted a deficit again at the end of the present year. Continuing the discussion of the third reading of the civil service bill at the afternoon sitting, Mr. Copp said he could not understand why employees of government railways were not brought under the control of the Civil Service Commission. He had very little confidence that the bill would do away with the patronage evil. It might enable a minister to use the Civil Service Commission as a sort of buffer. Patronage on the I. C. R., Mr. Copp said, was, if possible, growing worse every day. The bill was given third reading.

Third reading was also given to the bill making provision for meeting maturing obligations of the Canadian Northern railway system.

Committee stage was then completed on two bills based on the budget resolution and the bill to amend the business profits war tax act. Afterwards the house went into committee on the bill to amend the income tax act. In this connection Dr. Cowan urged that there be improvements in the organization for collecting income tax. He said it was incidentally being done.

Mr. MacLean promised to take the matter up and said that every assistance was being given to inspectors. Mr. Sinclair complained that by distinctions drawn between married and unmarried women, the unmarried woman was put at a disadvantage in regard to income tax.

W. F. Nickle (Kingston) asked why the incomes of a husband and wife should not be considered as one. He thought that the government was losing considerable revenue through not taking their combined incomes over $1,500. Under the act, it was quite possible for a man to transfer securities to his wife, which would lessen the income subject to taxation.

Mr. MacLean declared that he was disposed to agree with Nickle and in all probability there would be some amendment of this nature made at the next session. Mr. Cannon (Dorchester) wanted to know what Sir Joseph Flavelle was being taxed, what MacLean and Mann were going to pay and those who had bribed the press during the last election. "How," he demanded, "Mr. Cannon, are the people who claim to own this country being taxed by the government? Why are they not taxed? Because the government does not dare to do it?"

PATRIOTIC AND UNPATRIOTIC PETS

tion was made then, remarked Dr. Edwards, to keep him out of temptation. One would have thought it was enough to lift him above any temptation on the earth but there was another addition for work which was to be done in a far distant country. The judge was not justified in getting it, but he was granted it for two years in succession, in order to keep him out of temptation. "Lead us not into temptation," concluded Dr. Edwards amid much laughter.

THREATEN BLOODY REVOLUTION IN HUNGARY
Washington, May 17.—According to an official despatch from Paris today, quoting a telegram to the Matin from Zurich, asserted that the Czech delegation, in Vienna, through their leader, Deputy Stonek, has declared that if the Austrian government proceed to establish German districts in Bohemia, the Czech nation will answer with a bloody revolution. The despatch says Yugoslav circles are preparing for a struggle.

A Queer People.

Daniel Willard, former chairman of the War Industries Board, said at a dinner in Washington: "The Germans are a funny people. They are winning now that the world is unjust to them. They rather remind me of the old maid. A frightful wreck of an old maid once went to a fashionable photographer's and had herself photographed in a low-necked white gown. Looking at the result, the old maid hissed: 'This photograph doesn't do me justice.' 'Justice, ma'am?' said the photographer. 'Don't talk about justice. What you want is mercy.'" season has ruined the prospects for this year, and the authorities, while attempting to propagate the lobster industry, permitted and sanctioned this extension of the season. That any of his fishermen coming in this season with a seed lobster in his boat would be immediately dismissed, is the order which Mr. O'Leary has issued to his men and he finds that in most cases the men respect his ruling and are not taking any seed lobsters. Mr. O'Leary is not altogether hopeful of the results that can be attained by the sending of professors throughout the country to talk to the fishermen. He feels that the fishermen, who are somewhat bigoted in their views, will not be eager to listen to biologists on the lobster situation.

Must Change Law To Save Lobsters

Present Fishery Regulations Threaten to Destroy the Industry—R. O'Leary's Suggestions

"There is only one way to my mind of protecting the lobster industry in these waters and that is by licensing our lobster fishermen," said Richard O'Leary, of Richibucto (N. B.), one of the biggest lobster packers in the maritime provinces, when discussing the situation yesterday with a Telegraph reporter.

Under the present conditions, ask our fishermen to conserve the seed lobsters, he continued, "but I do not think we will be very successful. License every lobster fisherman and if he is found taking seed lobsters out of the sea and breeding them, then revoke his license."

He explained that the term "breaching" seed lobsters meant removing the eggs from the lobster's body in order that the inspector may not determine whether or not the crustacean is a seed lobster when it is brought to the factory for sale.

It is the opinion that the authorities made a grave error in extending the lobster season one month last year," continued Mr. O'Leary. "Usually the lobster caught on our shores averages about one pound each, therefore a ton of live lobsters should contain about 2,000. Last season I saw a ton of lobsters and I found that there were 5,600 odd in the ton, or about one-third of a pound each."

Mr. O'Leary then pointed out that lobsters of this size should never have been taken by the fishermen as they were under nine inches and had not nearly arrived at maturity. "If you catch our young lobsters in the fall of the year, or about one-third of a pound each," he said, "they will be ready to breed in the following spring. That is exactly what was done last fall. The lobster season was extended a month and the bulk of the small and immature lobsters were caught."

The outlook in the lobster industry this season is extremely blue at the moment, he continued. "The capture of hundreds of small lobsters last

GERMAN CHILDREN TAUGHT TO HATE U. S.

Mrs. Beatrice Robertson Hale Describes Atrocities of Hun Master Minds

Please For Food Saving—'Give Us More Bread, Give Us More Hatred,' Is Song Taught Children of Kaiser

(Bainor Commercial.) An appreciative audience was assembled in Memorial Parlors on Friday evening to hear Mrs. Beatrice Forbes Robertson Hale, famous actress, lecturer and author, speak on Food and the War. Mrs. Hale, who is an officer of the Federal Food Administration of Washington, has been spending the past ten days in New Hampshire and Vermont lecturing on the war and women's work in the war. She is peculiarly fitted to lecture on this subject. She was in England during the summer and autumn after the present war broke out. Mrs. Hale is a niece of the famous actor, Sir Forbes Robertson, and her father and mother are both English. Her husband, Captain Hale, is attached to the army staff at Washington and their three children are at the seaside in Massachusetts.

She is a woman of remarkable talent and personality. From the moment she began to speak she was the centre of interest until it was over. It was one of the finest war addresses heard in this city.

Lee T. Gray, sub-master of Bangor High school, introduced Mrs. Hale. He spoke a few words on the present struggle and the sacrifice that we must make to save a little food that our Allies might have it over there.

When Mrs. Hale began to speak, she asked if she might correct Mr. Gray in the way he used the word sacrifice. The only person she went on to say, who has made any sacrifice in this war is the one who has given a father or son or child to fight for the country, for they are the only ones who have sacrificed sometimes all they have. "And what," she continues, "is giving up of a small amount of wheat, sugar or meat compared with the giving up of a life?"

Mrs. Hale then explained the food situation and its problem that America must solve. Last year the United States and England and Canada were the only countries that produced their usual amount of crops, she said. This year the United States will be the only one country that will be enabled to do this. The question has come up in regard to how America could be expected to raise as much as usual when she has so many men fighting. Mrs. Hale then compared our population and size with that of Great Britain. The population of our country is 100,000,000 and that of Great Britain is 42,000,000 and most of their men are at war and were last year also. How were they able to raise so many in the fighting if it were not for the women? So if the small country of Great Britain that could be dropped into one of the large western states, Arizona for instance, could raise as much as ever with so many fighting, why can't America do the same? The French and British have been holding out wonderfully in this war and we really owe a lot to them. If they had not held out where would we be? The German plan would have been put into execution long ago and we would be in the same position as the poor starving Belgians and Polish race. The Germans have us on account of this and are teaching their children from babies to hate us also with the deepest hatred. So it grows with the years in the primary grades in the German schools where the children are not even able to read, they are taught a song of which a literal translation is, "Give us more enemies, give us more blood, give us more hatred." The German Kaiser has a lot of confidence in himself but still is afraid of the food supply of America. When he was made Kaiser and the Prince Bismarck was about to put the crown on his head, he took the crown, and put it on his own head and said, "I am the German Kaiser and only through me God speaks." How could a man who made such a terrible blaspemy be capable of doing anything but what he has been doing for the past four years? In January President Wilson sent six men over to France and England who were to come back with reports of what they themselves had witnessed the effects of and nothing of what had been gathered by hearsay. "They wanted to be shown the graves of the old men and women and tiny children. They sent these away to the field and then began their ravaging of the houses. They entered the private houses taking whatever might be of value and sending this to Germany. Then the graveyards were devastated, the bodies of the French taken out and if there were any German dead they were put in. If not, the skeletons were left by the side of the graves. "The whole place was then bombed and small pens and pencils were then scattered over all the ruins of the doorposts. After the Germans satisfied, with their work had marched away, the old men and women with the children, returned. They found their homes devastated and all means of shelter gone. The children ran to the places their homes had been and found nothing. They picked up the pencils and with child instinct to play, began to write on the remains of their doorposts. The instant the point touched the wood a bomb went off and the child's arm was blown off to the clouds. Then most of these children died and more suffering was added to the lot of the French people. Our soldiers have seen these little children with their stumps of arms and have resolved more firmly to get revenge on the Hun. This name Hun was given by the German emperor himself for when his army was marching into China in 1890, he said to them, "Conduct yourselves like Huns."

"The question has frequently arisen. Are the German soldiers bad individually or is it the big men in the empire who plot all this ruin? This instance of the pencils is a proof that it is the big men who are doing their share in the atrocities committed. Who invented these? It was the master minds of the country and who planned this invention for the destruction of the little ones.

"The German soldier has a diary in which he is supposed to write everything he sees during his marches along the route. He has his orders also and knows them well. The following order reads: "Win this war. Frightfulness is not only necessary, but it is right." A description of the order "Frightfulness" was when they assembled 108 of the highest citizens of a Belgian city and had them shot by one explosion of the machine gun.

"What We Owe." "We owe a debt to the French and British which will be hard to repay. The only way which we can do a little towards it will be in giving them enough to live on to finish the great task that they have begun. We have been doing a lot for the Red Cross, but still when we think of it, an army could get along without stockings, helmets and sweaters, if they had to, but where would they be after a week of going without food. My mother keeps one sock a day but after she has done her knitting she doesn't think she has done her bit. There have been instances in this war where the army has gone without medical assistance. One of our American commissioners returned from Europe and brought with him photographs showing where there were no Knights of Columbus of Y. M. C. A. huts so forty soldiers plodded their way for thirty miles to Salonica where they dropped in their tracks, each one bearing with an intense fever. This great patriotism shows the depth of their feeling for their country and the righteousness of the cause for which they are fighting. God forbid that our men would ever have to do without medical aid or knitted goods. But when we compare the suffering of going without medical aid and even rough aid can be procured from companies and the suffering of starving to death, which would be the harder to endure.

"We are in this war for a good cause and no country ever did this with cleaner hands than we entered this. Compare allied orders with that of the Germans. "Always have the greatest respect for women."

"Ting of the sacrifice these women in France and England are making. There are millions of women in England working in the munition factories and in the fields, and are glad to do their share for their beloved country. Then they always have a heavy burden on their minds. Perhaps before they will we have to have fifty-fifty bread or how long will we go without all the meat we want? "There are many ways of making bread without wheat and the Americans know how to do it. "In France very little wheat will be raised at all this year, as the land has been bombed, phosphates are scarce and even the tools are taken from every private house. Rakes, hoes and shovels are gone so if one will have a garden this year it will be dug with a stick or with the hand. Then some have asked why haven't we sent the corn and the substitutes to France? For the first reason, there are not ships enough to convey this bulky corn and as it will not keep as long as the wheat and then the French women have never made bread but always depend on the baker's loaves I heard a woman say one time, "It is time these French women learned to cook." Just picture to yourselves the splendid opportunity they have to cook. A mother with her children does the housework before the sun is up and then goes to the munition plant and does the men's work. And always with that heavy heart and anxiety.

"Have they time to learn now? It is duty and it should be our pleasure to be to answer, 'Take our wheat, it is the best we have to give you and our best is not half good enough for you.' "Never was a speaker more warmly applauded than Mrs. Hale when she finished speaking.

"Gibraltar RedSpecial" Virtues Are Real. "Gibraltar RedSpecial" Belting is to-day simple that they are now, always have been, and widely used in a multitude of ways in the many varied industries in this country. It owes its success, not to any illogical deductions or fantastic analyses, but to the simplest cause—fact. Permanent Elasticity Means "Life" in Belting. In producing this new, original, this master, with long "fingers," and not a quality of rubber red belt, our object has been to have the friction coat of rubber between the pulleys such as will retain its life indefinitely, and to have a quality of rubber of elasticity. There must be between the pulleys a certain amount of friction. What you have to secure in a belt is a friction full of ductility. There must be between the pulleys a certain amount of ductility. What you have to secure in a belt is a friction full of ductility. Resilient Quality Must Not Be Sacrificed To Excess of Friction Strength. To obtain high figures, such as referred to above, in belt frictions you have to take away from the elasticity of the friction; hence, there is a happy medium, and this medium we have obtained through our laboratory experts. It ensures for Universal Recognition of "Gibraltar RedSpecial". To cite the names of users of this famous, red frictioned-surface belt would necessitate the use of much space. We have on file recommendations from almost every type of industry requiring "Gibraltar RedSpecial" Belting in widths varying from 1 1/2" to 48". These testimonials are available for your perusal at any time. The Original "Red". "Gibraltar RedSpecial" as noted previously, is the Original Red Rubber Belt—and like most things that are original, its success is of the kind that endures. DUNLOP TIRE & RUBBER GOODS CO. LIMITED. "Mother's Day" In The Trenches

How the Canadian Troops at the Front Observed Festival—Message Sent Home

Canadian Army Headquarters, May 18—The Canadian troops have found an opportunity during the lull in the battle for recreation and amusement. Despite the unseasonable weather, which has been unduly wet and cold, officers and men of the many units have succeeded during recent days in securing some measure of relaxation from the continuous months of strain.

Amongst the peace activities of the corps has been the observation of Mother's Day on May 12. Canadian Y. M. C. A. officers who were prominent in the movement tell me that unprecedented demands were made upon their special stationery, which was placed at the disposal of the men in their canteens, so that mothers at home might hear from their sons.

One hundred and fifty thousand specially printed sheets of notepaper were placed in such establishments by the association. In the upbuilding of happy homes and noble citizenship. Pray for us that this high and holy vision may never fade from our minds, and that we may be given courage and patience to finish our task.

PERMANENT OFFICERS TO GET THEIR CHANGE

Montreal, May 17—Major-General E. W. Wilson, C. M. G., announced this morning that he had received advice from Ottawa that the permanent officers were to be allowed to go overseas.

"It is considered that the time has arrived when officers of the permanent force who have been retained in Canada should proceed overseas with drafts, and with special letters to the adjutant-general officers requesting that these officers be retained. Wherever such officers are now employed in Canada, it is requested that the district officer commanding should replace them with suitable returned officers, who have had actual experience in the theatre of war, so as to render the officers of the permanent force available to proceed at the earliest possible date."

The notice above was received yesterday at local military headquarters with the further information that officers were to be recommended to fill the places vacated by those who might be sent overseas. It was said last evening that there are only two officers on the permanent staff here who have not reached the actual theatre of war but in both instances it is through no lack of effort on their part that they have not reached the firing line.

CADET CORPS PARADE

At a meeting held in St. Andrew's church last night the cadet corps commanders in the city met and made final arrangements for the big parade on Victoria Day. It was reported at the meeting that eighty boys from Moncton will be present, forty from Sussex, seventy-five from Rothesay and eighty from Fredericton besides all the city cadet corps. It is hoped that at least two brigades of cadet corps will be present and last night the opinion was expressed that this turnout, at least, was assured. This will be the first time in the history of the city that there has been such a turnout of cadets, all of whom have been issued uniforms. It has been arranged that the ladies of the provincial auxiliary of the Maritime School for the Blind serve the boys with luncheon at the Y. M. C. A. The cadets will arrive in the city at noon and it is arranged that the parade will take place in the afternoon.

CUT OFF FINGERS TO EVADE THE DRAFT

"I would not like to tell you how many defaulters there are in New Brunswick," said George Riddout, chief of the Dominion police, to a question put to him by a Telegraph reporter yesterday afternoon, "but I will tell you this, that since the new order-in-council has been in operation our work has doubled, also the results, and the machinery at present is working smoothly and very successfully."

MILITARY TAKE OVER

ST. ANDREW'S COLLEGE

Toronto Property to Be Expropriated

Government Will Spend Between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000 For Hospital Buildings

(Toronto Star)

St. Andrew's College, in North Rosedale, is to be expropriated by the Dominion government for the Militia Department. Notice of expropriation has been served on the college trustees through the Public Works Department under the Militia Department. The land, which comprises twenty-five acres, and valuable buildings, is to be valued between $500,000 and $600,000. It is understood that the government will use the property buildings for hospital purposes, where an exclusive use of hospital buildings, both completed and under construction, will be necessary.

It is understood that the government will spend between $1,000,000 and $2,000,000 in erecting buildings for hospital purposes on the site. This proposal has caused a great deal of concern in the city, particularly among the military district. For over a year the authorities have been anxious to get a suitable hospital site, where all branches of the medical service could be concentrated, instead of having hospitals scattered all over the city.

Accommodation for 5,000

With twenty-five acres the authorities will have ample room to build enough hospital buildings, and it is figured that the site is an excellent railway site, nearer the city than the proposed High Park site, and the important advantage is that there is an excellent railway siding running by the property.

"I haven't been served with any notice yet by the government," stated Dr. Bruce Macdonald, principal of St. Andrew's College. "I knew they were negotiating for the property and anxious to get it."

"What will you do?" "I don't know as yet. I suppose the authorities will let us close the year which ends in June. There are 220 day and boarding pupils attending college. The college has a site on Yonge street at York Mills, 135 acres, but we have no buildings. The site here covers twenty-five acres, and is worth about $600,000. We will have to hunt up another site by September, when we open the fall course.

"If the military authorities need the place, then it is up to St. Andrew's College to help them. The hospital situation is a mighty acute one."

St. Andrew's College was organized by the late Rev. Dr. George Bruce, who resigned from St. David's church in this city to undertake the work. He served as head master until his health made it necessary for him to retire.

The Canadian Club is now making an effort to secure a visit from Lieutenant-General Lord George Wellesley, grandson of the Iron Duke, who is now in the U. S. A. in connection with the aerial service. An effort also is being made to secure a visit from Premier Hughes of Australia.

THE STRUGGLE THAT OVERCAME EVIL INFLUENCES IN BASEBALL

(By Joe Page)

Note—This is the sixth of a series of articles.

The growing evils of gambling, drinking and crookedness among players, beginning with the organization of the National Association of Professional Base Ball Players in 1871, reached a climax at the end of 1873. During all of this time the association was under the presidency of Robert Ferguson, one of the best and most athletic field players.

One must look for the cause of and increase of these evils during this period, and one does not have far to look for it. It is understood that the game of baseball has been kept clear of these pests since then.

As stated in a previous article, the National Association of Professional Base Ball Players incorporated in their constitution and by-laws that all officials of the association should be respectable and honorable.

Consider the wonderful advancement of the game and the thousands of various sportsmen that have been the result of the world-wide upheaval now in progress and the number of children made orphans owing to the ravages of war it is remarkable that the increase in numbers requiring public care is so small. In the year 1908 there were in all the orphanages in the province 4,628, and in 1916 the number was 4,643, or an increase of only 25 in eleven years.

In sympathy with the increased cost of living the upkeeps of these institutions has advanced considerably. The total expenditure in 1908 was $187,173.20, or an average daily cost per head of 25¢64 cents, while in 1916 the expenditure was $248,321.56, or an increased average cost of 30¢77 cents per head.

One cannot help thinking that a charitable institution is hardly any place in which to make physically fit children who are to constitute the men and women of the next generation. The future holds in store for these young people many opportunities, and a much better plan would be to place the healthy children in foster homes, reserving the institution for the backward and feeble-minded class. There are many good families in the province all anxious to bestow a parent's care on these little ones. It would be well for institutions having children to let the public know that such are for adoption, and they would soon find applicants.

Some little time ago a paper in an adjoining city asked for a house for a blind lad, and the applications for him exceeded 200, while another notice in an agricultural paper recently brought in twenty-six applications for one child.

Of course it is necessary to look very carefully into the character of the family to whom the care of a child is entrusted. There are people who are not fit to be foster-parents, and who regard the child simply as a working animal.

Adjustment Providential?

Montreal, May 17—The trial of Charles Desjarlais, government detective, and Eli Lalumiere, the two remaining alleged conspirators held in connection with the dynamite plot last summer, was postponed till the November assizes by Mr. Justice Pelletier this morning. The crown has found it impossible to get important evidence owing to a witness being missing and the fact that Sir Percy Sherwood, head of the Dominion police, is ill.

Mr. Justice Pelletier said that owing to the changed sentiments in the country, the hand of providence might be seen in the circumstances necessitating the adjournment of the trial.

Very Likely.

"Mrs. Compuz said the other day she couldn't quite recall what age her ancestors came over in."

"I guess it was in the sterage."

CARE OF ORPHAN CHILDREN

(Toronto Star)

Statistics themselves do not make the most interesting reading in the world. To give them a humanizing touch they must be connected with some personal problem, social or otherwise.

Statistics relative to children in orphanages eleven years ago as compared with the year 1916 afford some glimpse into the realm of practical sociology. When we think of the world-wide upheaval now in progress and the number of children made orphans owing to the ravages of war it is remarkable that the increase in numbers requiring public care is so small.

In the year 1908 there were in all the orphanages in the province 4,628, and in 1916 the number was 4,643, or an increase of only 25 in eleven years.

In sympathy with the increased cost of living the upkeeps of these institutions has advanced considerably. Third—To make base ball playing respectable and honorable.

Consider the wonderful advancement of the game and the thousands of various sportsmen that have been the result of the world-wide upheaval now in progress and the number of children made orphans owing to the ravages of war it is remarkable that the increase in numbers requiring public care is so small.

In the year 1908 there were in all the orphanages in the province 4,628, and in 1916 the number was 4,643, or an increase of only 25 in eleven years.

Another sharp line of distinction was drawn at this time. Previously all baseball teams were known as clubs. When the new association went into business base ball teams would manage baseball teams, clubs would form leagues, rent or own grounds, grandstands, property, arrange schedules, deals, pay salaries, assess fines, discipline players and control the sport for the general good of both the public and the club. While the baseball man played ball for the relaxation of the baseball loving public, for the rendering of such service they were to be adequately recompensed.

The first president of the National League was Morgan G. Bulkeley, ex-governor of Connecticut. He and Hon. John K. Tener, president of the National League at present, are the only two baseball presidents who have held state governorships. The present incumbent is an ex-governor of Pennsylvania. At this time legislation was enacted whereby all ball players were to be signed under regular players' contracts issued by the National League, and that no cities were to be granted franchises in the league having a population less than 75,000. At the first annual meeting of the National League in December, 1876, William A. Hulbert was elected president and held that office until his death on April 10, 1882.

At this period in the life of the game, while the National was the only league in existence, many of the larger cities had very strong semi-professional teams and played scheduled games when the cities were closely situated.

Baseball did not thrive in 1876 or 77, due to past performances and the animosity of the civil element before spoken of, who were trying their utmost to suppress the plans of President Hulbert and his associates. However, they kept on the course laid out and were soon to be rewarded for their efforts for clean sport.

In 1877 two other leagues were organized and were affiliated with the National League. They were the League Alliance, a United States organization, and the International Association, composed of clubs in the United States and Canada as follows: Alleghenys, of Pittsburgh; Buckeyes, of Columbus; Live Oaks, of Lynn; Manchester, Rochester, Tecumshs, of London, and the Maple Leafs, of Guelph, Ontario. This league lasted only two years. The Tecumshs of London, however, won the International Association championship of 1877.

Second—To encourage, foster and elevate the game of base ball.

Secondly, to enact and enforce proper rules for the exhibition and conduct of the game.

FRESHETTE AND SWEET GIRL GRAD

Know All About This Food Producing Business; They Pioneered on Ontario's Farms Last Summer

LADY FALCONER.
Wife of Sir Robert Falconer, President of Toronto University.

"The spirit of the college girls is excellent. You would not believe how much the war has changed their lives. Some of them are now almost martinetts in their self-denial. They spend the minimum on clothes, and have done away with all luxuries, more especially where food is concerned. No one can say that the Varsity girl is indifferent, selfish or unpatriotic in these days. She is really an example to all manner of girls."

LADY FALCONER.

It is for the Varsity girl that Lady Falconer speaks—the girl who has really pioneered on the farms of Ontario. Last summer she set the pace when, leaving college gown and mortar-board behind her, she got into khaki and went on the land. Instead of exercising her mind with the abstruse problems of the universe, she bent her back and plied her fingers gathering fruit. This year she will do even more, and as a farmette will undertake most of the duties of farm life, and, incidentally, will aid materially to the country's food supply.

Toronto University, in common with the other colleges of the Dominion, has a remarkable war record. First of all, her men went, until college halls were deserted in very truth. The Freshette and sweet girl grads did not lag behind in doing their share of war work. With the long summer vacation ahead of them, they chose the most practical kind of war work, and turned out to produce food. Although they made barely enough to cover living expenses and the days were long and tiring, yet they accomplished much, and the farmers realize by now that the athletic college girl is a very real help. It was pure patriotism that inspired these girls, and naturally they worked with heart and soul.

Their spirit is excellent," says Lady Falconer. "You would not believe how much the war has changed the lives of those girls. Some of them are now almost martinetts in their self-denial. They spend the minimum on clothes, and have done away with all luxuries, more especially where food is concerned. The college entertainments of other days are no more. I notice the difference because I used to be asked to act as chaperone at all their little affairs. Oh, no one can say that the Varsity girl is indifferent, selfish, or unpatriotic in these days. She is really an example to all manner of girls."

"What do you suppose accounts for it?"

"Education! Their training, their capacity for self-discipline, the example set by the men students, pride in their Alma Mater! All these are contributory causes, I believe."

"Women want things to do these days, and the bigger the things asked of them they will do, and the more they will be capable of doing. Necessity for action sweeps away all minor considerations. Be sure the grumblers are not enough to do, or her time would be spent to better advantage. Those who accept what fate sends them with a cheerful front, and keep on working."

As an active war worker and a member of different organizations herself, Lady Falconer has great faith in the Women's Institutes, believing that they, more than any other body, reach the women on the farms—the women practically unapproached through other avenues.

"There is a certain cleavage between city and country," declared Lady Falconer, "but the Women's Institutes—wide-awake and alert—are helping to bind up the severance. Wherever there is an Institute, you find the feeling of criticism and misunderstanding being cleared away. I think they are helping the Canada Food Board wonderfully through their quiet and persistent efforts and by the constant emphasis being placed on the seriousness of the food situation at all their meetings."

"The food question is one that needs to be constantly talked about, thought about, written about. Every question answered is a step forward, and it is by this means that the most invulnerable wall of criticism will gradually be worn down. The farmers' wives are earnest, capable women, and if once they see they are more than ready to do."

Lady Falconer believes firmly in the sacredness of the pledge taken by those who signed the food controlling act last fall. It is her opinion that the campaign did an immense amount of good, even among those who refused to sign, for they were bound to have some com-

RODE TO DEATH LAUGHING.
Major Rasmussen Was Idolized by His Fearlessness.

With the American Army in France, May 9—(Associated Press)—Major Andrew Rasmussen of Portland, Ore., who was killed a few days ago when leading a reconnoitering party on the American front in Picardy, was the idol of his men because of his utter fearlessness.

The major passed unscathed through revolutions in Central America and more severe fighting with General Caceres's forces in Mexico, and finally through two years of service as a major with the Canadian army. He was detailed by the British last October to assist in training Americans in bayonet fighting, and later was sent to an American Army school as instructor. In January he was transferred to the American Army with a major's commission.

Major Rasmussen was immediately put in command of a battalion and went into action on the front northwest of Ypres, where he suffered slightly in a gas attack.

On the night that his battalion was moved from its billets into the line on the Picardy front Major Rasmussen joked with several correspondents while the German shells were bursting in the village a few kilometers in the rear. He told them they might have his uniform helmet and other things in case he was killed. Then he rode laughing toward the trenches.

BRIGHT TWEEDS.
(From Women's Section, Department of Public Information.)

In the effort to solve the problem of providing adequate employment to returned soldiers and sailors in England, an organization has been formed which is self-supporting and entirely independent of aid from either state or charity. Loans are provided for the weaving of "Bright Tweeds," and the work is done entirely by the returned heroes who are first instructed by the society. The finest yarns are used and ideal tweeds for men's and women's garments are turned out. Every piece of cloth bears the name of the man who wore it—a return to the good old days when each workman was an artist and proud of his handiwork.

OLD MEN MAKE GOOD.
Henry Ford, on being asked if he was employing women, replied: "No, I'm using old men—or men that used to be called old. And they are fine." If he does something to upset the absurd idea that industrial workers must be of military or flying corps age he will be doing both industry and mankind a service.

"Those who refuse to sacrifice are actually the losers, she observed. "It is a spineless argument that what my neighbor does I must do, even when I know her course to be a wrong one. If we ever needed to live by principle, it is now. If we ever needed to be fearless and progressive, it is now. We cannot do too much. None of us is doing enough. Just think of our comfort, our freedom from annoyance and dread! We live in peace with plenty around us, and our ears are deaf to the reverberations of the guns of Europe, or the cries for food from starving women and children."

Sir Robert and Lady Falconer are keen gardeners, and at their summer home in Muskoka they have a wonderful war-time garden, where last year enough vegetables were grown to keep them supplied right through the winter months. They raise chickens, too. Lady Falconer hopes and believes that before the season is out, the whole country will be running over with potatoes, carrots, beets and the other fine things that the earth yields to the assiduous gardener.
