

The Union Advocate.

A WEEKLY JOURNAL

Our Country with its United Interests.

W. C. ANSLÖW.
VOL. XXVIII.—No. 50.

Newcastle, Wednesday, September 18, 1895.

EDITOR AND PROPRIETOR.

WHOLE No 1454

PROFESSIONAL

Law & Collection Office.

C. J. Thomson,
BARRISTER AT LAW,
Commissioner Newcastle Civil Court.
Newcastle, N. B.

Thomas W. Butler,
Attorney & Notary Public,
Fire, Life, & Accidental Insurance Agent,
Collecting and Conveyancing. Promptly attended to. Office over T. Russell's Store, facing the Public Square,
Newcastle, N. B.

O. J. MacCULLY, M. A. M. D.,
SPECIALIST.
DISEASES OF EYE, EAR & THROAT.
Office: Cor. Waterland and Main Streets,
Moncton, Nov. 12, 1895.

W. A. Wilson, M. D.,
Physician and Surgeon,
DERBY N. B.
Derby Nov. 15, 1892

J. R. LAWLOR,
Auctioneer and Commission
merchant.
Newcastle, New Brunswick.

Music returns made on assignments of McKenna. Auctions attended to in town and country.

MUSICAL TUITION.

Miss Edith Troy,
Graduate of Mount Allison
Conservatory of Music, is now prepared to take pupils in PIANO, FORTE, PIPE ORGAN, and VOCAL CULTURE.
Terms on application.
Newcastle, June 6th, 1893.

HOTELS.

Waverley Hotel.

The Subscriber has thoroughly fitted up and newly furnished the rooms of the well known McKenna House, Newcastle, and is prepared to receive and accommodate transient guests. A good table and pleasant rooms provided.
Sample rooms if required.
R. H. Gray's terms will attend all trains and boats in connection with this house.

John McKenna,
Newcastle, March 28, 1893.

Elliott House.

The Subscriber having purchased and newly fitted up the house formerly known as the Mitchell House, opposite the Masonic Hall, Newcastle, is prepared to accommodate permanent and transient boarders at reasonable rates.
WALTER J. ELLIOTT,
Newcastle, Jan. 21, 1895.

HOTEL BRUNSWICK.

MONCTON, N. B.
GEO. McSWENEY, Proprietor.

CANADA HOUSE.

Charlton, New Brunswick.
Wm. JOHNSON, Proprietor.
CONVENIENT at Access
Good Sample Rooms for Commercial Travellers.

Clifton House.

Princes and 143 Gemin Street.
ST. JOHN'S, N. B.

A. N. Peters, Prop'r.

Heated by Steam throughout. Prompt attention and moderate charges. Telephone connection with all parts of the city.
April 6th 1893.

Building Lots

FOR SALE.

THE subscriber offers for sale four desirable building lots fronting on the highway in the Masson Hill, between the residences of Mr. T. W. Crocker and Mrs.
Sutherland, 40 and 35x100 feet, and three between the latter and the residence of Mr. H.
McKenna, each being 40x100 feet. All these lots are offered at reasonable prices per foot frontage.
Also several lots fronting on the lane leading to Indiantown, as well as several other lots all of which are offered at reduced prices.
For terms or particulars apply to
Mrs. W. Masson.
Newcastle, July 1, 1895.

JOB PRINTING.

Plain and in Colors in
FIRST CLASS STYLE at the ADVOCATE OFFICE.

REDUCED PRICES.

I have on hand a lot of Boots and Shoes, including long boots and other goods, all of which I will sell at reduced prices to clear.

Wm. Masson.
Newcastle, March 28, 1894.

Cash and Door Factory.

The subscriber is prepared to supply from his steam factory in Newcastle,
Windows and frames, Glazed
and Un-glazed,
DOORS AND DOOR FRAMES, Mouldings,
Plastering and Matching, etc.
C. C. MIVEN.
Newcastle, Jan. 2, 1895.

Tuning and Repairing.

J. O. Biedermann, Pianoforte and Organ
Tuner.

REPAIRING A SPECIALTY.

Regular visits made to the northern Counties of which due notice will be given.
Orders for Tuning and so on,
Advocate Office, Newcastle.
J. O. BIEDERMANN.
St. John, May 6th, 1894.

MILLINERY.

Ladies wishing to have a nice Hat or Bonnet should call and see our new Spring and Summer Millinery.
We have the latest Hats and Bonnets, also Flowers, Feathers, Jests, Ribbons, Laces, Tulle and Veilings.

Children's Hats, Caps and Tams, Infants'
Bonnets, Ladies' Hosiery, Underwear and Chemi-settes, Old Ladies' Dress Caps, and a nice line of Stamp and Linen Goods.

Trimmed Millinery always on hand.
Jennie E. Wright,
Opposite Public Square,
Newcastle, April 30th

Mrs. J. Demers.

A Complete Stock of Summer
MILLINERY FOR ALL.

All the latest novelties in Hats, Bonnets,
Flowers, Jests, Plumes, Ornaments, etc.,
Selling rapidly and at cheap prices. Ladies' clothes, Infants' Headwear in every variety and price, from 25c. up. Wash Silk and Shot Silk in all the new shades, Black Silk, Satins, Crapes, Ladies' Summer Vests, Underwear, Corsets, Black Belt Buckles, white and colored Handkerchiefs, Handkerchiefs, Veilings, Silkcombs, fancy Hair pins.

Old Ladies' Dress Caps, Stamp and Fancy
Linen goods, Ladies' Wrappers and Fancy
Wrinklers and Washers which I am selling on hand and warranted to give satisfaction.
MRS. J. DEMERS.
Newcastle, May 20, 1895.

Seasonable Goods.

I have received and offer for sale at lowest prices Heavy Winter Blankets, Wash
Tubs, Butter Tubs, large Wooden Butter
Bowls, Butter Prints and mounds.
Steel cut nails and shoe nails, all sizes,
Moving machine oil, Harness oil, Axle Grease,
Just received another lot of those splendid Wrappers and Washers which I am selling so cheap.

J. H. PHINNEY.
Newcastle, July 27, 1895.

A NEW BOOK.

BY Michael Whelan.

Now ready, a book of Poems and Songs.

The book contains one hundred pages, and sold at the extremely low figure of 35 cents per volume, or 37 per dozen copies.
If to be forwarded by mail 2 cents for each copy must be added to the price to prepay postage.

Address orders to the publisher,
W. C. ANSLÖW,
Newcastle, N. B.

Or to the author,
M. WHELAN, Bryerton P. O.,
Northumberland Co., N. B.

DOG DAY ILLS.

"The many ills that flesh is heir to," are intensified during the heat of midsummer.
For a pleasant and invigorating tonic to "brace up on," nothing exceeds my

BEEF WINE

And Iron.

LARGE BOTTLES, larger than the market, and better too.

Price, One Dollar.

Just Received.

A fresh supply of Dr. Fowler's Extract of Wild Strawberry for Croup, Diarrhoea,
Dysentery, etc.

"Honest prescription work."
You know what that means.

The Pharmacy

N. R. MACKENZIE,
Chemist and Druggist,
NEWCASTLE,
Newcastle, N. B.

James E. Nicholson.

CANCER ON THE LIP

CURED BY

AYER'S

Sarsaparilla.

"I consulted doctors who prescribed for me, but to no purpose. I suffered in agony seven long years. Finally I began taking Ayer's Sarsaparilla. In a week or two I noticed a decided improvement. Encouraged by this result, I persevered, until in a month or so the sore began to heal, and after using the Sarsaparilla for six months, the last trace of the cancer disappeared."

JAMES E. NICHOLSON, Florenceville, N. B.

Ayer's Only Sarsaparilla

Admitted at the World's Fair.

AYER'S PILLS REGULATE THE BOWELS.

THE GREAT SOUTH AMERICAN NERVE FOOD

This remedy is prepared by one of the most eminent specialists of the age, who has exclusively treated two-thirds of all the diseases caused by deranged nerve centres, as the base of the brain, which supply the different organs of the body with nerve force. As all varied in physiology, from the stomach, heart, lungs, liver, and in fact all internal organs, are connected with the nerve centres, and as the base of the brain is the source of all the nerve force, it will be understood how the derangement will be reflected through the nerves to the different organs of the body, which they supply with nerve force, and thus produce every variety of nervous disease, Indigestion, Heart Disease, Lung Troubles, Scrofula, etc.

SCOTT'S AMERICAN NERVE FOOD acts directly on the nerve centres, and for this reason gives relief in one day, and speedily effects a cure.

"I had my three diamond rings in the left hand drawer of the bureau. I might lose them in the water. I thought I would tell you in case of fire, you know, or any other accident."

"Yes," said Janie; but there won't be any accident."

Mrs. Ralph laughed, and ran back to the carriage and the impatient colonel.

And not until then did Janie perceive that a tall, half grown lad, lurking behind the porch rails, was waiting to speak with her.

"Who are you?" said Janie, briskly. "What do you want?" No, we haven't any clothes. If you really want work you had better go on to the new buildings about a mile up the road. I dare say they can find something for you to do there."

The lad mumbled out something, whether thanks or otherwise, Janie could not discriminate, and shuffled away. And our heroine, slipping on her hat and bolting the front door, ran across the meadow to Ralph Parsons' carpenter shop, some quarter of a mile by the woodpath.

"I want a few shingles," said she, "and a pound of shingle nails."

"What for?" said Ralph.

"No matter," calmly retorted Janie.

She nodded good by and hurried away under the canopy of pink apple blossoms.

Ralph looked admiringly after her.

She's a regular clipper of a girl, that Janie Barr said he.

"If ever I am able to support a wife that will be the one I'd choose."

Light as a thistle-down, Janie hurried back with her precious bundle of shingles, and the pound of nails in her pocket.

"Now I'll show him whether I can mend the roof or not," said she, as with a hammer and nail she set to work in the garret and climbed an old ladder that led out through a rusty trap door to the steep roof.

The elms were abrupt, the old shingles were wet with the recent rain, and slippery with green moss incrustations, but Janie Barr was not lightly to be discouraged, and presently she found herself neatly balanced, with her feet braced against the broad gutter, one elbow leaning on the roof, and the other hand busily tearing away the old shingles and replacing them deftly with overlapping rows of new fragrant wood.

The click of the hammer, the ring of the nails was like music in her ears. Suddenly, however, as she sat perched like a squirrel on the slanting roof, the sound of voices struck on her ear. She paused to listen.

"Three diamond rings! I heard her say so herself. In the left hand drawer of some bureau," said the same accents which half an hour ago had asked her for charity. "And no one but a woman in the house."

"Sure of that?" asked a deeper voice, and I wouldn't wonder if there were other things for the picking up."

"Come on, then," said the other one; "and step lively. We can't stand here jangling all day. The door is bolted, is it? Wait a minute; I've got a little joke here as would start any staples this side of Denver."

Janie had listened in breathless horror. In an instant as it were, she comprehended the danger that menaced Mrs.

Selected Literature.

AN EVENTFUL DAY.

It's these worn out shingles on the roof, said Mrs. Barr in the melancholy half-whine which was habitual to her.

"The rain leaked in on the boarder's bureau all night long; and she says she won't stay here if it isn't to be properly protected against the elements."

Janie tied the last piece colored tulp to its stake and straightened herself up.

"We must have the roof mended," said she.

"Who is to do it?" sighed Mrs. Barr.

"And if Mrs. Lapell goes away what shall we do about the interest of your mother's old note?"

"She won't go away, mother, never fear," said Janie, brightly. "Don't fret. You'll see that things will come all right."

"But the shingles must be fixed right away," said Mrs. Barr.

"They shall be fixed, mother," said Janie.

"Who will do it?" impudently repeated the widow.

"I will," said Janie.

"That is all nonsense," groaned Mrs. Barr.

But Janie had never been more seriously earnest in all her life.

Mrs. Barr went to the parish sewing society that afternoon.

Colonel Addison, from the Valley hotel, who was paying his address to Mrs. Lapell, the boarder, came with a spirited horse and a buggy to take her to the sea beach.

"Now is my time," said Janie, exultingly, to herself.

But Mrs. Lapell came back before she had got twenty-five yards away from the house.

"I forgot to tell you that I left my three diamond rings in the left hand drawer of the bureau. I might lose them in the water. I thought I would tell you in case of fire, you know, or any other accident."

"Yes," said Janie; but there won't be any accident."

Mrs. Lapell laughed, and ran back to the carriage and the impatient colonel.

And not until then did Janie perceive that a tall, half grown lad, lurking behind the porch rails, was waiting to speak with her.

"Who are you?" said Janie, briskly. "What do you want?" No, we haven't any clothes. If you really want work you had better go on to the new buildings about a mile up the road. I dare say they can find something for you to do there."

The lad mumbled out something, whether thanks or otherwise, Janie could not discriminate, and shuffled away. And our heroine, slipping on her hat and bolting the front door, ran across the meadow to Ralph Parsons' carpenter shop, some quarter of a mile by the woodpath.

"I want a few shingles," said she, "and a pound of shingle nails."

"What for?" said Ralph.

"No matter," calmly retorted Janie.

She nodded good by and hurried away under the canopy of pink apple blossoms.

Ralph looked admiringly after her.

She's a regular clipper of a girl, that Janie Barr said he.

"If ever I am able to support a wife that will be the one I'd choose."

Light as a thistle-down, Janie hurried back with her precious bundle of shingles, and the pound of nails in her pocket.

"Now I'll show him whether I can mend the roof or not," said she, as with a hammer and nail she set to work in the garret and climbed an old ladder that led out through a rusty trap door to the steep roof.

The elms were abrupt, the old shingles were wet with the recent rain, and slippery with green moss incrustations, but Janie Barr was not lightly to be discouraged, and presently she found herself neatly balanced, with her feet braced against the broad gutter, one elbow leaning on the roof, and the other hand busily tearing away the old shingles and replacing them deftly with overlapping rows of new fragrant wood.

The click of the hammer, the ring of the nails was like music in her ears. Suddenly, however, as she sat perched like a squirrel on the slanting roof, the sound of voices struck on her ear. She paused to listen.

"Three diamond rings! I heard her say so herself. In the left hand drawer of some bureau," said the same accents which half an hour ago had asked her for charity. "And no one but a woman in the house."

"Sure of that?" asked a deeper voice, and I wouldn't wonder if there were other things for the picking up."

"Come on, then," said the other one; "and step lively. We can't stand here jangling all day. The door is bolted, is it? Wait a minute; I've got a little joke here as would start any staples this side of Denver."

Janie had listened in breathless horror. In an instant as it were, she comprehended the danger that menaced Mrs.

General Intelligence.

THE GREAT YACHT RACE.

New York, Sept. 7.—The Defender defeated the Valkyrie by eight minutes 9 seconds, in the first of the races for the American cup to-day. There was a scene of hilarious joy when the Defender crossed the line fully two miles ahead of Lord Dunsuave's boat. The Valkyrie gained on her opponent shortly after starting but was soon overhauled by the Defender. The Defender was unquestionably better handled than the Valkyrie; she outspun her in the wind and she seems better before the wind. It appears that the Defender's foot was faster than the Valkyrie's in stiff weather, her bowing her to windward. The English boat is unusually faster in a light breeze such as the race began with, but even then she cannot sail so close to the windward. Another point in her favor is her superior sails. There seems to be no difference between their water work under a light breeze but in a fresh wind the Valkyrie makes a great fuss, raising great waves under her bow and rolling up more under her quarters. When the Defender sailed proudly over the finish line she was given a tremendous ovation. Whistles tooted long and loud and cannon were fired. The Defender's supporters shouted themselves hoarse in exultation of joy over the gallant American boat's big victory.

New York, Sept. 10.—The second race of the series for the American cup was sailed to-day off Sandy Hook, over a triangular course of ten miles to a leg. The challenging boat, Lord Dunsuave's Valkyrie III, was first over the line and first home again, leading throughout in a smart wind. An accident at the start gave the Defender's supporters a chance to claim that the American yacht would have won had not the Valkyrie carried away the Defender's top-mast backstay just before crossing. The boats, in jockeying for the line, had shown some of the prettiest work that has been seen in the history of the British cup. The Defender's supporters claim that the Valkyrie obtained the lead by the help of the windward position. As the two boats headed for the line there were murmurs of disappointment in the crowd when it was discovered that the Valkyrie had the advantage. Both finally approached the starting line, with the Valkyrie leading. Both held their courses there would have been no result, but the anxiety of the British skipper to get his boat over the line first and to the windward of the enemy made it a question if he would not cross before the starting gun sounded. To prevent such a possibility, the Valkyrie broke away a tuff, and sailed on her sheers. The main boom of the British boat swept over the deck of the Defender, carrying away the topmast shrouds on the starboard side and tearing out the jaws of the spreader. The topmast cracked, and was badly sprung. Just as the crash came the starting signal was given, and the Valkyrie sped away like a rocket. Defender was luffed, the jibtopmast lowered, and the wreckage removed, and Mr. Ivelin decided to continue the race. Probably a couple of minutes were wasted making repairs before the boat continued on her course. A protest flag was displayed, and the committee boat showed an answering pennant. Then the Defender went in pursuit of the British cutter.

But for the accident the race to-day would probably have been one of the finest in the history of America's cup contests. Nothing was lacking to make it a memorable affair. The crowds of spectators and the fleet of excursion craft and private yachts were present to lend animation to the scene, and annoy and interfere with the racers. There was a good sailing breeze; the sky was clear after the mist of the morning had been dispelled, and the ocean was comparatively smooth.

It was a good day for Valkyrie, but it would have been a better one for Defender had she not met with an accident. The weakened topmast of Defender prevented her from carrying the sail that course and she could not keep the pace set by the Dunsuave boat. In the best of ten miles to windward of the first time the Valkyrie gained an advantage of 2 minutes and 55 seconds. At one time she led by fully a mile, but as the wind freshened from the six knots at the start to fifteen at the first turn, and the English shortly afterwards, the Defender's crippled bow was she began to gain. The second leg of the race was a broad reach, and Valkyrie used a balloon jibtopmast, while the people on the Defender had to content with a baby jibtopmast. In spite of her handicap, the Defender gained seventeen seconds on the second leg. On the run home the Defender continued her good work, gaining one minute and seventeen seconds. The time allowance of Valkyrie to Defender is 79 seconds, and, allowing for this, the difference between her time over the course and the Defender's time was only 47 seconds.

After the finish and when the Defender had gone to her anchorage at Bay Ridge Mr. Ivelin made a verbal protest in regard to the fouling. Mr. Bush, the club representative on the British boat, was asked by the committee to present his version of the affair. At 10:30 p. m. the following notice was posted on the bulletin board of the New York Yacht Club:—The Defender protests the Valkyrie on the ground that she bore

General Intelligence.

THE GREAT YACHT RACE.

New York, Sept. 7.—The Defender defeated the Valkyrie by eight minutes 9 seconds, in the first of the races for the American cup to-day. There was a scene of hilarious joy when the Defender crossed the line fully two miles ahead of Lord Dunsuave's boat. The Valkyrie gained on her opponent shortly after starting but was soon overhauled by the Defender. The Defender was unquestionably better handled than the Valkyrie; she outspun her in the wind and she seems better before the wind. It appears that the Defender's foot was faster than the Valkyrie's in stiff weather, her bowing her to windward. The English boat is unusually faster in a light breeze such as the race began with, but even then she cannot sail so close to the windward. Another point in her favor is her superior sails. There seems to be no difference between their water work under a light breeze but in a fresh wind the Valkyrie makes a great fuss, raising great waves under her bow and rolling up more under her quarters. When the Defender sailed proudly over the finish line she was given a tremendous ovation. Whistles tooted long and loud and cannon were fired. The Defender's supporters shouted themselves hoarse in exultation of joy over the gallant American boat's big victory.

New York, Sept. 10.—The second race of the series for the American cup was sailed to-day off Sandy Hook, over a triangular course of ten miles to a leg. The challenging boat, Lord Dunsuave's Valkyrie III, was first over the line and first home again, leading throughout in a smart wind. An accident at the start gave the Defender's supporters a chance to claim that the American yacht would have won had not the Valkyrie carried away the Defender's top-mast backstay just before crossing. The boats, in jockeying for the line, had shown some of the prettiest work that has been seen in the history of the British cup. The Defender's supporters claim that the Valkyrie obtained the lead by the help of the windward position. As the two boats headed for the line there were murmurs of disappointment in the crowd when it was discovered that the Valkyrie had the advantage. Both finally approached the starting line, with the Valkyrie leading. Both held their courses there would have been no result, but the anxiety of the British skipper to get his boat over the line first and to the windward of the enemy made it a question if he would not cross before the starting gun sounded. To prevent such a possibility, the Valkyrie broke away a tuff, and sailed on her sheers. The main boom of the British boat swept over the deck of the Defender, carrying away the topmast shrouds on the starboard side and tearing out the jaws of the spreader. The topmast cracked, and was badly sprung. Just as the crash came the starting signal was given, and the Valkyrie sped away like a rocket. Defender was luffed, the jibtopmast lowered, and the wreckage removed, and Mr. Ivelin decided to continue the race. Probably a couple of minutes were wasted making repairs before the boat continued on her course. A protest flag was displayed, and the committee boat showed an answering pennant. Then the Defender went in pursuit of the British cutter.

But for the accident the race to-day would probably have been one of the finest in the history of America's cup contests. Nothing was lacking to make it a memorable affair. The crowds of spectators and the fleet of excursion craft and private yachts were present to lend animation to the scene, and annoy and interfere with the racers. There was a good sailing breeze; the sky was clear after the mist of the morning had been dispelled, and the ocean was comparatively smooth.

It was a good day for Valkyrie, but it would have been a better one for Defender had she not met with an accident. The weakened topmast of Defender prevented her from carrying the sail that course and she could not keep the pace set by the Dunsuave boat. In the best of ten miles to windward of the first time the Valkyrie gained an advantage of 2 minutes and 55 seconds. At one time she led by fully a mile, but as the wind freshened from the six knots at the start to fifteen at the first turn, and the English shortly afterwards, the Defender's crippled bow was she began to gain. The second leg of the race was a broad reach, and Valkyrie used a balloon jibtopmast, while the people on the Defender had to content with a baby jibtopmast. In spite of her handicap, the Defender gained seventeen seconds on the second leg. On the run home the Defender continued her good work, gaining one minute and seventeen seconds. The time allowance of Valkyrie to Defender is 79 seconds, and, allowing for this, the difference between her time over the course and the Defender's time was only 47 seconds.

After the finish and when the Defender had gone to her anchorage at Bay Ridge Mr. Ivelin made a verbal protest in regard to the fouling. Mr. Bush, the club representative on the British boat, was asked by the committee to present his version of the affair. At 10:30 p. m. the following notice was posted on the bulletin board of the New York Yacht Club:—The Defender protests the Valkyrie on the ground that she bore

General Intelligence.

THE GREAT YACHT RACE.

New York, Sept. 7.—The Defender defeated the Valkyrie by eight minutes 9 seconds, in the first of the races for the American cup to-day. There was a scene of hilarious joy when the Defender crossed the line fully two miles ahead of Lord Dunsuave's boat. The Valkyrie gained on her opponent shortly after starting but was soon overhauled by the Defender. The Defender was unquestionably better handled than the Valkyrie; she outspun her in the wind and she seems better before the wind. It appears that the Defender's foot was faster than the Valkyrie's in stiff weather, her bowing her to windward. The English boat is unusually faster in a light breeze such as the race began with, but even then she cannot sail so close to the windward. Another point in her favor is her superior sails. There seems to be no difference between their water work under a light breeze but in a fresh wind the Valkyrie makes a great fuss, raising great waves under her bow and rolling up more under her quarters. When the Defender sailed proudly over the finish line she was given a tremendous ovation. Whistles tooted long and loud and cannon were fired. The Defender's supporters shouted themselves hoarse in exultation of joy over the gallant American boat's big victory.

New York, Sept. 10.—The second race of the series for the American cup was sailed to-day off Sandy Hook, over a triangular course of ten miles to a leg. The challenging boat, Lord Dunsuave's Valkyrie III, was first over the line and first home again, leading throughout in a smart wind. An accident at the start gave the Defender's supporters a chance to claim that the American yacht would have won had not the Valkyrie carried away the Defender's top-mast backstay just before crossing. The boats, in jockeying for the line, had shown some of the prettiest work that has been seen in the history of the British cup. The Defender's supporters claim that the Valkyrie obtained the lead by the help of the windward position. As the two boats headed for the line there were murmurs of disappointment in the crowd when it was discovered that the Valkyrie had the advantage. Both finally approached the starting line, with the Valkyrie leading. Both held their courses there would have been no result, but the anxiety of the British skipper to get his boat over the line first and to the windward of the enemy made it a question if he would not cross before the starting gun sounded. To prevent such a possibility, the Valkyrie broke away a tuff, and sailed on her sheers. The main boom of the British boat swept over the deck

