CANNOT INAUGURATE IMPROVED RAILWAY SERVICE WEST

General Manager W. U. Appleton Writes Local Board of Trade Fully on Matter—Must Rely on Bus Service.

It will be remembered that from time to time the Campbellton Board of Trade have endeavored to obtain some improvement in the railway service from points west of Campbellton. It was suggested that a suburban train might be operated from Arrip to Campbellton to arrive in time for school, returning during the evening. Those most interested were confident that with the population to draw from this service would shortly be a paying one.

The following letter from General Manager Appleton puts an entirely different light on the matter. It looks as if Campbellton would have to depend upon a bus-line, and we would suggest that any citizens take every means to encourage the line not running between Campbellton and Matapedia so that an improved service may be given, and possibly the route extended to Campbellton.

Mr. Appleton's letter is as follows: Mr. H. J. Currie, Board of Trade, Campbellton, N. B. Dear Sir: Referring to our conference some time ago and your letter 30th, ult., in regard to suggestion that the Railway provide additional local train service to arrive Campbellton from Matapedia in the morning, and returning from Campbellton in the evening.

The suggested service has been given very careful consideration and study, with the result that we find there is not anywhere near sufficient traffic to warrant the expense of operation. The letter addressed by Mr. H. B. Ansel, Secretary of the Campbellton Board of Trade, to the Hon. Charles Mitchell, March 21st, suggested a local service to be operated by Storage Battery car. The initial cost of providing Storage Battery car service would be in excess of $50,000.00 and the annual operation costs between $6,000.00 and $10,000.00. However, as no Storage Battery car is available to suit the service, and as the service between Matapedia and Campbellton, on account of it not being possible to turn around at any other point, is a train service between the above points, based at the very low rate of $1.25 per train mile would cost $5,000.00 per month or $60,000.00 per year.

As you are no doubt aware the Ocean Limited trains in both directions stop at Sayabec, Val Brillant, Amqui, Causapscal, and Matapedia, to passengers from Campbellton, and as these are the principal centers of population, passengers desiring to do business at Campbellton, and return home on the same day, would naturally patronize those trains in preference to a local train. From the enclosed statement showing stations, Sayabec to Matapedia, population, stores, industries, etc., you will note the total population of the centres located between Causapscal and Matapedia is less than 2000, and certainly there are not sufficient people resident in the territory to warrant additional passenger train service of any kind.

Under the circumstances the service asked for cannot be provided this year.

Yours truly,
W. U. APPLETON,
General Manager

RECITAL DREW LARGE AUDIENCE

Miss Renout of Grand River Gives Graduation Recital at Mt. A. Ladies' College.

Sackville, May 18.—A very large audience, with every evidence of appreciation, listened to the graduation recital given in Beethoven Hall, Friday evening, by Miss Gladys Rowena Renout, pianist. Miss Renout's numbers included the Mendelssohn Fugue in B minor and the E minor Grieg Sonata. The last movement of the sonata seemed to lack the mood and passion necessary for portraying the deep inspiration of the great Scandinavian master, but in the next group the soloist gave every evidence of music-making and technical facility in the playing of the difficult double note study by Szymanowski, two preludes by Chopin and Polish dances by Paderewski. The "Carnival Frenzy in Vienna" by Schumann was given an excellent reading and with all the brilliancy of her performance of this fascinating composition, the musical thought was never lost sight of from first to last. The "Valse Chromatique" by Liszt was also a fine display of octave technique.

Miss Renout concluded her program with the 12th Rhapsody by Liszt, and although no shyness by Liszt is exactly child's play, the young artist proved wholly competent to grapple with the problems before her. The vocal portion of the program was furnished by Miss Olive Rankin, the possessor of a soprano of smooth and musical quality, and exceptional range. These numbers included "The Rose Tree" by Sullivan and two little songs by Quiller "Last Years Rose" and "April."

Miss Marion Swan's accompaniment was, as always just what accompaniment should be.

CLAIMS TO BE MUCH WOUNDED WAR VET

Interesting Case Proceeding in Montreal Court of Pretences.

Montreal, May 18.—Claiming to be suffering from a fracture of skull caused by a wound extending from the base of his skull and opening into his throat, abdominal wounds, a fractured left arm, a fracture of the wrist of the right arm which made it badly deformed and practically useless, a broken leg which is now shorter than the other, a blind eye and an "incomplete tongue, from which part is missing" which ailments he asserts were sustained while fighting with the Canadian Expeditionary Force, James W. Smith, war veteran, appeared in the prisoner's dock in the Court of King's Bench this morning charged with attempting to secure a war pension from the Board of Pensions of the Dominion of Canada by false pretences.

John Paton, secretary of the Pensions Board, told the Court that Smith had been "automatically" given a pension when he returned from the front and that some time later suspicion arose in the minds of several members of the Board that the many ailments Smith complained of were more imaginary than real. After a series of medical examinations he was finally sent before Dr. Keenan at the Montreal General Hospital, who reported that he did not believe Smith should receive any pension at all. The Board cancelled Smith's pension on September 8, 1919.

The case is continuing.

Plus Michael, M. P. of Edmundston is in town today.

PREPARING FOR FREE TEXT BOOKS

Free Text Books in New Brunswick Schools Beginning Effective July 1st.

Fredericton, May 16.—The first step towards the distribution of free school books in New Brunswick under legislation passed at the recent session of the Provincial Legislature are now being taken by the School Book Department.

While the act providing for free school books does not come into effect until July 1st, the beginning of the next school year, preparations are now under way for the initial distribution of texts which will be required for the fall term of the school year of 1925-26. Circulars are being prepared for the teachers of the various schools throughout the province which set forth the provisions of the act and which will be distributed at an early date.

Teachers of the various grades for which free text books are to be provided, up to and including grade 5 of the graded schools and the corresponding standard in ungraded schools, are being notified of the Department with an estimate of the quantities which will be required, based on the changes which will occur at the end of the present school year and for advancement of scholars from one grade or standard to the next. These returns will be filed with the School Book Department for its information in handling the free texts.

LOCAL AMATEURS PLAY TO CROWDED HOUSE THURSDAY.

"Musical Revue" Was a Decided Success—Every Member on Program Received Merited Applause.

When an entertainment by Campbellton amateurs is announced our citizens know that they can expect something in the way of entertainment which is above the average and usually the entire house is sold before the box office opens on the evening of the performance.

The "Musical Revue" of last Thursday was no exception to this rule, in fact reserved seats sold so rapidly that it was necessary to add row after row to the reserved sections, until every seat was taken up. Those who depended upon procuring seats at the last hour were disappointed and many were turned away.

The enthusiastic audience were not disappointed and from the raising of the curtain until the final drop, the entertainment was bristling with good music, well rendered melodious and comedy acts, which have seldom been equaled on the stage here even by professionals.

Each and every one in the various numbers acquitted themselves in the manner of professionals, and evoked much applause, some of the numbers being three or four times encored.

The following is the program: Opening Specialty—By Chorus Soloists—Mr. Lon Louden Playlet—"Box and Cox" Characters—Mrs. McCintock, Mr. Lyman Gilker and Mr. Vallis. Duet—"In The Days of the Sweet Long Ago." Soloists—Mrs. Sowerby and Mrs. MacNutt. Act from the Opera "The Quaker Maid" Soloists—Mrs. Ray Ferguson, Mr. Dick Corbett, Miss Vera Campbell and Miss Geneva Rogers. INTERMISSION Music by Linnaea Orchestra Playlet—"Outwitted" Characters Mrs. Sowerby, Mr. Burley, Linnaea Orchestra—Floyd Rattray, Director Harold Alonzo Louden, Banjo—Fred O'Leary, Saxophone—Vive Kean, Cornet—Wallace Butler, Drum Monologue—Mr. Lyman Gilker Specialty Chorus—"Baby Sister Blues" Soloists—Misses Jessie Smith and Jerry MacNutt.

Girls of All Nations Mr. Horace Jardine assisted by the following: Mrs. Court Nelson—Canadian Beth McCallum—English Edith Jones—Grecian Ada Wyers—Turkish Olive Ferguson—Italian Marjorie MacBeth—Dutch Georgina Graves—French Vera Campbell—Japanese Nita Duff—Scottish Jeanie Rogers—Indian Geneva Rogers—Spanish Kathleen Dunham—Irish Tableau by the Entire Company GOD SAVE THE KING Chorus Girls and Boys—Misses Jessie Smith, Beth Anslow, Jerry MacNutt, Hazel Myles, Edith Jones, Trudie Titus, Edith Wran, Beatrice Myles, Ida Myles, Vera Campbell, Geneva Rogers and Olive Ferguson.

Messrs. Dick Corbett, Horace Jardine, Howe MacDonald, Bill Miller, Billie MacKenzie, Arnold Jardine, Fred Gorham, Fred Harding, Cy Laughlin, Harold McKenzie, John Alexander and Bert Rossborough. Enough cannot be said in praise of the Linnaea Orchestra whose untiring efforts made this Musical Revue the success it was. This orchestra is under the leadership of Mr. Floyd Rattray who is the director pianist. Also in the orchestra are: Alonzo Louden, Banjo—Fred O'Leary—Saxophone, Evan Kean—Cornet, and Wallace Butler—Drums, who substituted for the regular drummer, Mr. Ernie Bradley. Their Jazz-de-Luxe number on the stage was one of the best numbers of the evening and called forth generous applause.

These boys deserve well merited praise, and have the sincere thanks of the committee in charge of the entertainment. Mrs. MacNutt and Mrs. Ray Ferguson, upon whom devolved much of the training of the chorus and specialties, are to be congratulated upon the success of their efforts. The receipts, which net about $400.00 are for the Soldiers' Memorial Hospital.

Many citizens from Dalhousie and surrounding country motored to take in the entertainment, and all were enthusiastic in their praise of it. Arrangements are being made to take the entire troupe to Bathurst at a date early in June.

OPENING SHOOT OF THE NORTH SHORE MILITARY RIFLE ASSOCIATION

The opening shoot of the North Shore Military Rifle Association will be held on the Tide Head range Monday, May 25th. Morning practice at 10:00, afternoon at 2:00 o'clock. Prizes and recognition may be had at the range.

MRS. B. H. HART SICK FOR YEARS

Wants Women to Know How She Was Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Corwall, Ontario.—"I am now giving your medicine a fair trial and it surely is doing me good and I am going to keep on taking it. I used to feel so tired in the morning that I didn't want to get up, but that feeling is leaving me now. I also sleep better and feel more like working. For seven or eight years I have had headaches, tired feelings, pains in my back and across my body. I read letters in the newspapers saying what good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done others. My husband says I quit too soon, but I am not going to stop taking the Vegetable Compound and Lydia E. Pinkham's Blood Medicine until I am better and haven't an ache or a pain. Isn't that the right way? I have great faith in your medicines. They must be good when those who take them speak so highly of them. I am recommending them to my friends and I will gladly answer letters from women asking about them." Mrs. BERT H. HART, Box 1061, Corwall, Ontario.

AMERICAN GREETINGS KING GEORGE

Walked up and Shook Hands With King At Wembley

London, May 16.—The Daily Mail and the Evening News of Lord Rothermere's group of newspapers today deprecated the initiative of John Cowrie, glove manufacturer of Des Moines, Iowa, who walked up to King George at the Wembley Exposition and shook hands.

Heretofore, explain these newspapers the public had kept aloof when their Majesties were in public, but if the practice of shaking hands were to increase unduly it may be necessary to have strong police conditions which neither the King nor anyone else desires.

An Unexpected Encounter.
London, May 15.—King George had an unexpected encounter with an American this morning, but proved equal to the occasion. With the Queen, he was touring to the Palace of Industry at the Wembley Exhibition and was surrounded by dozens of interested visitors. Suddenly a big brawny man, accompanied by his small son, pushed his way through the throng. The King's attendants were just springing forward when the man smilingly shoved out his hand and exclaimed: "How do, King? Shake hands with America."

The King looked a little surprised but grasped the hand warmly. "And my son," the American added. "The King complied."

HOME BUYING VERSUS MAIL ORDER

The receipt of a bundle of neckties from a Toronto firm, said ties being offered at a low figure for the lot, has given the Simcoe Reformer a text for another presentation of arguments for buying in the home town. These are much the same as have already appeared in the Enterprise and other weekly newspapers. They are real. To the question there are two parties, namely the sellers, that is the retail merchants and the buyers, and the home purchasing public. Clamoring by the former against the latter when no invitation is issued to buy at home is certainly not solving the difficulty and not leading buyers who go outside to give effect to a change of practice. The city merchant takes a different line. He talks to the people all the time, chiefly through the columns of the press. The necktie man in question, by accompanying publicity talked to the Simcoe public and the public of other places in a way that in many cases proved convincing. Surely, upon the home merchant rests the responsibility for the invasion of his field. By well directed publicity the outsider could be kept outside; by practising home buying a good example would be set and by a liberal use of newspaper space is the home constituency informed as to what may be done in the way of buying at the home door.

But to return to the arguments of the Reformer, we quote in part: The stock arguments in favor of mail order houses are likely familiar to everyone. Briefly stated, they are that these firms buy in large quantities and consequently at a lower price than the local merchant, and that their turnover is so much greater that they can afford to sell on a lower margin of profit and still pay dividends on their stock. While these arguments may seem true, they fall to the ground when considered in connection with the fact that these firms are necessarily located in large cities where rent and taxes are vastly greater than they are here. The question of help must also be considered. The necessarily exact system of the mail order houses entails an enormous amount of labor, such as checking and counter checking, sorting, shipping, addressing and billing, all of which must be paid for. In fact, the items of labor and superintendence, especially the latter, run into larger amounts. Also, someone, must pay for the catalogue and postage and the express charges they offer to pay if one buys a certain amount of goods. Men who have investigated these faces have repeatedly asserted that the mail order houses are able to undersell our local merchants only in some unimportant articles of small value and of which every person knows the price. They sell these at cost, or even less, merely to inveigle the purchaser into buying the more important articles at full or even inflated prices.

Experience indeed has taught that people can supply their wants in their home town just as economically as by sending away. Moreover every cent spent at home is helping to oil the wheels of business here, while every cent expended elsewhere is prospering another town or city at the expense of our own.

WELL SATISFIED WITH PROGRESS IN GRAND FALLS DEVELOPMENT

No fear for the market says Premier Veniot in interview at Montreal—Project will be no burden on ordinary revenues of province, despite false representations made by opponents of public ownership—Members of government to Ottawa to confer with Premier King.

Montreal, May 18.—Hon. P. J. Veniot, Premier of New Brunswick, in an interview with Canadian Press last evening, expressed himself as "very well satisfied" with the progress that had been made both at the public sessions of the International Joint Waterways Commission's meeting here and also at the other conferences which have been held in Montreal but he declined to make any statement as to the probable rate of the actual commencement of development operations at Grand Falls.

As to the market for the power to be developed, at Grand Falls, Premier Veniot said he only wished that the initial development would provide 100,000 to 200,000 horsepower, for he said there was no fear for the market.

Province's Liability.
Referring to statements which have been published respecting the liability upon the Province which the government's hydro plans would entail, by way of increasing the funded debt, Premier Veniot pointed out that the net funded debt of New Brunswick is less than $30,000,000, seven or eight millions of which is provided for by way of interest and sinking fund without taking one cent of the yearly ordinary revenue of the province. Every dollar of the balance of the province's debt, except for the John Valley railway, is indebtedness, was being amply provided for, he said, by sinking funds sufficient to liquidate the whole at maturity. That the financial standing of the province was excellent, he said, was evident by the price secured for New Brunswick's latest bond issue.

No Burden on Revenue.
"The Grand Falls development project," the Premier declared, "will be no burden on the ordinary revenues of the province, as the earnings will be sufficient to meet interest and sinking fund charges, as well as maintenance, operation and depreciation costs. This has proven true in the case of the hydro development which the Province has already carried out at Musquash, notwithstanding false representations which have been made in certain newspapers, which were evidently acting in the interests of the opponents of the policy of public ownership which the government has adopted. I am fully convinced that the development of Grand Falls will stimulate industry to such an extent that New Brunswick will benefit from industrial activity such as was never dreamed of before. The undertaking, to my mind is the only commercial salvation for our province."

To Ottawa for Conference.
Premier Veniot left Montreal this morning for Ottawa, where he and Hon. Ivan C. Rand, Attorney General, and Hon. J. E. McEneaney, member of the New Brunswick government without portfolio, will have conferences this afternoon with Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, the prime minister and other members of the Federal Cabinet.

Following the adjournment of the sessions in Montreal of the International Joint Waterways Commission on Saturday, Premier Veniot and counsel for the New Brunswick Electric Power Commission, went into conferences with representatives of the various interests which will be affected by the Grand Falls development and with whom agreements have been in the course of completion. These conferences continued all Saturday afternoon. All agreements for settlement of the various claims which have been under consideration it is believed will be completed within a short time.

N. B. LUMBERMEN COMPARE RATES

N. B. Basis Far in Advance of Other Canadian Provinces

St. John, May 18.—To uphold their claim that they must have better terms from the Provincial Government or practically go out of business, the lumber operators submit this comparison of stumpage; New Brunswick, $4.00; Quebec, $2.70; (to be reduced to $1.70); Ontario, $2.

They also point out that a log 16 feet long and 6 inches at the top scales 24 sup-feet in New Brunswick, but only 16 feet in Quebec and 4 feet in Ontario.

Comparison Made
Will regard to the higher stumpage rate in New Brunswick Company lands the operators point out that the financial burden, while the operator man who cuts there has no other on crown lands must first make a capital expenditure to purchase the limits, make provision for interest and sinking fund, take the chance of fire, bud-worm, depletion by settlers and damage by trespassers, besides paying $8 per square mile per year $3.20 for fire protection—all added to the high stumpage rate.

NEAR SETTLEMENT IN GASPER R. R.

Justice McKeowan Has Matter in Hand and Hopes for Agreement Soon.

Quebec, May 16.—Failure to agree on the terms under which the Canadian National Railways would lease the Quebec and Western and the Atlantic, Quebec and Western railways, which operate in the Gaspe region but are said to be unable to give an adequate service under the present conditions, has resulted in the situation being placed before Justice McKeowan, chairman of the Railway Commission. This amicable arrangement has been made by Hon. Rodolphe Lemieux, speaker of the House of Commons and representative of the district of Gaspe, who with Hon. Charles Marcell, member for Bonaventure, is also interested in the settlement of that railway problem. It is expected that Justice McKeowan will visit again the section affected and on his report, the National Railways have decided to act with the consent of the Government. As a result it is fairly safe to state that the leasing of the railways referred to and their operations by the National Railways will shortly become a fact.

CAMPBELLTON, N.B., MAY 21, 1925.

UNDER A SHADOW

It will be remembered that about a year ago a certain councillor for the Municipality of St. John made the statement as reported in the St. John newspapers "I know all about your job in Campbellton, how you bought out the council for $1500 and tied them up for five years." This had reference to Mr. Stephenson, who was endeavoring to procure a contract from the St. John council.

At the time certain members of the 1923 town council made statements as to what they intended to do to that councillor, but evidently their memories are very short.

If we remember correctly ex-Councillor A. C. Belle-Isle, one of those who voiced his sentiments in no uncertain terms. It will also be remembered that this same councillor was one of those who insisted that the contract be awarded to the Stephenson Construction Co.

Let us look at the records of the council meeting at which the tenders were discussed and get some light as to who were back of the Stephenson Construction Co.

Coun. Graham moved the resolution and Coun. Gorham seconded it. Resolved that the tender be given to the Stephenson Construction Co.

Couns. Moores moved in amendment seconded by Coun. Marquis that Grant Construction Co. be awarded contract.

Mayor McKay strongly advised the council to accept tender of Grant Construction Co.

Coun. Belle-Isle objected to the Mayor discussing the question.

The vote in favor of the Stephenson Construction Co. motion was carried.

the following voting yeas—Couns. Graham, Gorham, Duncan, St. Onge, Gilker and Belle-Isle. Nays—Moores and Marquis.

The Graphic in commenting upon the action of the council said "The Graphic has heard many rumors and much adverse criticism of the action of the council majority, and there are many ugly stories in circulation which are not a credit to the town council."

In a later edition of the Graphic a letter, defending the action of the council was published. This letter was in Mr. Belle-Isle's most plausible language, and to a certain extent carried conviction with it.

But the statement of the St. John Councillor brought the whole matter to the fore again and we certainly think that now as nearly a year has passed the councillors implicated by that statement should take some steps to clear their besmirched reputations.

Mr. Belle-Isle has been very active along certain lines during the past six months in endeavoring to keep the present council in order, might we make bold enough to enquire if he has taken any aggressive steps to clear his own reputation of the blot as alleged which has been cast upon it, or has any of his colleagues who favored the Stephens Construction Co taken any steps to bring their traducer to justice. If the statements attributed to the St. John councillor are not true then he is liable to heavy damages and it is the duty of the men implicated to clear their characters or in future remember that in the eyes of the ratepayers they are under a cloud.

Dalhousie, N. B., May 20.—Many of our citizens are under the impression that if they make improvements to their homes, etc. that the assessors will add more value to their properties, consequently increase their taxation. This is a false impression and results in deterioration and as years pass the Shiretown buildings do not help to make attractive to the stranger, the many natural attractions our little town possesses. No reasonable board of assessors would increase or add to the figures of a property's assessment, because the assessors of homes or out buildings used paint or lime to protect or beautify their properties.

What a difference there would be if all the buildings were painted or whitewashed.

The City of Saint John, N. B. has given a good example to the rest of the Province, by having a Bill passed exempting improvements to property in Saint John from taxation for a period of five years.

The object of Mayor Potts, in having the property owner a chance to have necessary work done without fear of additional taxation and at the same time create work for both skilled and unskilled labor. The bill does not only paint and lime, it means all kinds of improvements. The example given by our leading city should be an incentive to all cities, towns and villages etc. in New Brunswick especially.

Improvement is on foot to draw to our province thousands of strangers, who will spend millions of dollars in enjoying our splendid summer climate, our advantages for bathing, fishing, hunting etc., and if pleased with our scenery and our comfortable and tidy looking homes, with the great addition recently made in our hotels and Cottage accommodations, they will not only return the following year; but they will tell their friends about the pretty spots they saw in New Brunswick, the great outdoor amusements the province possesses and the great hospitality of our people.

With improvements made as suggested, it would be a great pleasure for each and every one of us who have relatives and dear friends residing in other parts, to invite them to visit their old homes, to breathe the pure air of their youth, to see improved Cities, Towns, Villages and beautiful Country sections.

Is there a prettier section to motor through than that between Miramichi and Bathurst? It can be improved by adding more paint on our buildings.

MAGICIAN AND ILLUSIONIST
The Great DeLaFerre at the Opera House All Next Week
Commencing next Monday, May 25th, the Opera House will present, in conjunction with the usual picture policy, a wonderful act of more than ordinary mention. This is none other than the great DeLaFerre and his associate players. They will be here for the entire week, changing their act with each change of picture, and will present many startling feats of magic, legerdemain-illusion and mind reading. DeLaFerre's opening number will be "The Maid of India," an illusion of particular skill and ability, gorgeously staged and costumed. Other bills will be announced a little later. Combined with a splendid line-up of feature films this attraction will no doubt prove to be a great drawing card and patrons would do well to be early particularly on Monday.

NEGOTIATIONS DROPPED
Negotiations which were going on some time ago whereby the Chandler Pulp Mills on the Gaspe Peninsula were to be taken over by a syndicate headed by Angus McLean, of Bathurst, N. PERENNIALS AND SHRUBS FOR THE HOME GARDENER

The gardener must now cease dreaming and prepare for action. Whether a new garden is to be started or an old one re-conditioned decisions must be made and upon those decisions must perhaps success or failure but whether the garden shall be common-place or distinctive, permanent or transitory. The circumstances of the individual will naturally direct the trend of thought in gardening as in other things. The home owners will tend towards permanency because garden or perennial plant hardy shrubs and bulbs supplemented by such annuals as are necessary to make a showing the first summer and keep the garden in color until frost comes. There need be no hard and fast rules in this matter. The garden of perennial and shrubs is all the better for the brightening effect in late autumn of a few annuals while the tenant need not hesitate to plant perennials because in most cases he can take them to his new home as easily as he can his household furniture.

It is agreed then that it shall be a garden or perennial plant hardy shrubs and bulbs supplemented by such annuals as are necessary to make a showing the first summer and keep the garden in color until frost comes. The aim of the gardener should be to provide a continuous succession from the time the lesser spring bulbs—snow drops, scillas and crocus species push through the ground in early spring until the fading of the last flower in October or November. The spring bulbs have commenced to bloom, others are on the way—the hyacinths, narcissus and tulips—an advantage should be taken of the opportunity to observe and note the varieties that would be suitable to the conditions in your garden so that you will be armed with the necessary information when the time comes to make up your order for fall bulbs.

But the gardener is more concerned at the moment with the selection of the standard herbaceous perennials that must be planted as soon as the ground can be got ready to receive them if indeed this preparatory work was not done last fall. A word about selection many beginners do not discriminate between meritorious and common place materials when making up their planting lists. Do not buy an unnamed iris or peony because it is cheap nor pay an extravagant price for an unnamed novelty.

It is futile for the ordinary home gardener who is not growing for the show table to attempt to keep abreast of the hybridizers, especially in iris, delphiniums and phlox because novelty succeeds novelty in such rapid succession that what a new-to-day soon becomes obsolete, or finds its level with the wealth of standard material available for the embellishments of the garden.

Some bewilderment may be experienced by the prospective gardener when confronted by the long list of irises in some of the catalogues. He will not go far wrong in choosing the following baker's dozen: White, Fiorentina; white with lavender suffusion, Camelot; white standards purple falls, Rhein Nix; yellow, Mrs. Strewin Wright; yellow standards purple falls, Princess Victoria Louise; yellow standards maroon falls, Iris King; lavender and bluish purple, Pallida Dalmatica; blue-purple, Alcazar; light purple, Perfection; purple standards and dark purple falls, Parc de Neully; lilac and rose, Isoline; violet and reddish purple, Caprice; dull coppery standards and maroon falls, Ambassador. The list could be added to almost indefinitely but this will suffice for a start. Irises do not give of their best when crowded and overshadowed by robust neighbors in the perennial border. If there is a room give them special place in the sun and for late summer bloom interplant with the gladioli or an annual with foliage not too dense to shade the rhizomes of the iris, which should be half exposed on.

Paeonies can be planted in the spring, but it is advisable to defer it until the season's growth has been completed in September or early October. Paeonies do better as specimens in the perennial border than iris, but they too will bloom more abundantly if given a special situation and well prepared ground. Every peony collection should include some of the graceful Imperial Japanese types. Three good ones are: White, Isani Gudi; carmine pink, Tokyo, bright carmine. Alaska. Visit peony collections in the neighborhood and compare varieties while they are in bloom. Then order the one you like best for September delivery.

There is no more stately plant for the perennial border than the delphinium. Of recent years many outstanding named varieties have been produced. Amongst them might be named: Sir Douglas Haig, Millicent Blackmore, Mrs. A. J. Watson, the Alke and Statuaria Rude. Unfortunately plants of these varieties are not easily procurable in Canada owing to the difficulty of bringing them across the Atlantic, but seed can be had of these and other fine named kinds and the gardener who sows seeds always has the chance of producing some that will be a better specimen than the best a 1926 catalogue can offer.

For August bloom reliance must be placed upon the sumptuous and sweetly fragrant phlox discolorata, content of grandmother's garden. A specialist's catalogue will list several hundred varieties, but if the home gardener starts with twelve or fifteen plants of the "purple" group or invasion of his garden in spring have not only enough for his own needs but a surplus to exchange with his neighbors. A dozen good ones: Elizabeth Campbell, Frau Anton, Flora Howard, G. A. Stroblin, Le Mahdi, Rijnsroom, Von Hochberg, William Ramsay, Mont Blanc, Baron Von Dodeum, Mrs. Etzel Pritchard. And for fall bloom do not forget the merits of the perennial asters or Michaelmas daisies. They will carry the garden right up to the threshold

If a Six weeks old Baby Could Talk
What would your little one say on the food question?
If nursed, it would be a happy story, for no food can excel that supplied by Nature.
But the infant on Eagle Brand is a contented cherub, too. He would tell you how he looks forward to his feedings, how he relishes each bottle. He'd assure you Eagle Brand agreed with him; you'd know it did because it is always of the same richness and strength, so easily digested—and safe because of its absolute purity.
Eminent physicians, experienced nurses and millions of mothers are agreed that Eagle Brand is the one safe food for bottle-fed babies. And if further proof were required it exists in the fact that Eagle Brand has served three generations.

A Moose Hunt on Riviere De Chute

(By Douglas Wetmore Clinch in Field and Stream)

In the early fall of 1917 our party hunted the upper Tobique country. It was my first trip in this particular section of New Brunswick since 1910 on which occasion we had poled the Left Hand Branch, portaged to Nepeguigon water, and ran the Southeast Upsalquitch. Aside from the filling of our lenses, however, I was particularly interested in checking certain information regarding country to the South and East of the main river.

It was snowing slightly when our outfit was loaded on the sled. The condition of the road being questionable, two long poles had been fastened to the sides of "bob" in order to distribute the weight. As is customary we walked ahead of the team, rifles slung from our shoulders and pipes aglow. I carried the old and much-picked "93" to which I had attached an army sling. As a rule in hunting any sling is a nuisance unless detachable, but on long hikes, especially in carrying a pack, the army sling is a joy. My outfit for this trip included heavy woolens, the special handknit country socks procurable only at certain small stores, and two pairs of moccasins. One pair of oil tanned moccasins were reserved for a good moccasin may make or mar a trip and for over ten years I have had my own made to order. My loden cloak suit now in its fifth season, was lined at the knees and hips with waterproof material, while the outer surface glistened noiselessly from bush to bush. I wore a cap with earlaps and unsung a two-pound axe. My special vest carried a reserve of shells, the 3/4 X 4/4 camera and color screen (for without sunlight all snow scenes are otherwise flat and lifeless). My compass was attached to my belt while a light sheath knife, wound about with surplus surgeon's plaster at the front of the handle, nestled in the small of the back. But of greater importance I carried a reserve food ration and a few fundamental medical necessities. Wrapped in my sleeveless waterproof was a ten hour battery flashlight.

The first snow of the period had routed out most of the local deer hunters and of these we had ample evidence as we followed the course of the Wapkechagan an then sprung off to the highway country of the de Chute. In fact after having launched at Owen Rock and crossed the river, we occasionally jumped a deer and toward the latter part of the afternoon I had little trouble in dropping in his tracks and with a single shot, a fair size buck, whose single antler carried four points. About six miles beyond the de Chute there is a crutch which turns off to the left camp of Messrs. Wade & Knapp, located on Otter Pond. This is generally used in the early water hunting, but because of the heavy going, we deemed it wise to stay there over night. What might be termed heavy going is an element uncertain in the extreme, sometimes identified with New Brunswick sport. It was long past dark when we reached the "cutch," and when the team finally dragged through the snow of the clearing we had reconciled ourselves to a makeshift quarters for the night. For such an emergency I was, however, prepared, and almost before the horses had been unhitched I had laid out my Comfort Pocket, adjusted its tiny mattress, and from my pack removed a huge kettle of home-made baked beans, brown bread, bacon and other guides are encountered. In fact the further country in question has not, to date, been cut over by lumbermen for years. Our plan was to drive to the Home Camp on the deadwater and from there hunt the surrounding ridges, moving, if necessary, to any of the twelve outlying camps.

It was snowing slightly when our outfit was loaded on the sled. The condition of the road being questionable, two long poles had been fastened to the sides of "bob" in order to distribute the weight. As is customary we walked ahead of the team, rifles slung from our shoulders and pipes aglow. I carried the old and much-picked "93" to which I had attached an army sling. But moose hunting in New Brunswick involves other elements than the choice of country, though this is the great secret known to the chosen few. To shoot a moose is a simple matter providing one is devoid of nerves and imagination. To match one's cunning against that of the forest folk and the elements of luck and weather is a royal pastime which the teller of cities dreams of eleven months of the year, to realize perhaps in a passing moment. In the beginning there must be born the great ambition of which in moose hunting there are two distinct ambitions; one to call one's own bull "neath the mystery of the Hunter's Moon; to still hunt him on the ridges. Not spik horns mind you, but fully palmed heads which have shed their lower "bell" and the inquisitiveness of youth. In this respect it is interesting to note that the majority of moose hunters have garnered their experience in the early season despite the fact, conditions of weather being equal, the November hunting offers more shots at better heads.

Like many hunters my final plans were completed hastily, and with ten days of the open season remaining took the morning train north from McAdam Junction for Perth. At this point the branch of the Canadian Pacific runs along the south shore of the Tobique to Plaster Rock, stopping en route at Wapake Sliding where we put up for the night with Mrs. Hall. Our party consisted of Claude Knapp and Hestland Giberson, who were to run a line of traps, and William Macmillan, of Arthurville, who was to act as my guide.

From Wapake there is a portage road extending for upwards of thirty miles to the deadwater on the main Riviere de Chute. For the first half of this distance, to where the head crosses the de Chute, portages haul to lumber camps to the Southwest, but once the river no lumber opera-

It seems a simple matter to relate, but when one is fatigued with a long day's travel an hour's delay in food seems an eternity.

During the night the storm continued. This, of course, not only increased the difficulty of travel, but was bound to have its effect on the shooting. Bill had been over the country a good deal in past years, but had not travelled it for eight seasons. We knew there were plenty of moose for the party last in camp had counted forty-five of which fifteen were bulls. In a manner, however, our method of hunting was very primitive for we had, by a process of elimination, located the feeding country which at this particular period the game had selected. Of course, by the first of November the moose of Northern New Brunswick are generally well out of the second growth and working towards the ridges, intent on their winter yards. Frequently the bulls will be found together, while it is not uncommon to find them with a cow. Much of the fighting is done at this season of which ample evidence in the trodden snow is found.

We were, perhaps, a mile north of the main portage which ran, almost due east and west, from the crutch to the Home Camp. That is to say the team would turn back for a mile and then swing east. It is interesting in this respect to note that the portages play an important role in all hunting in New Brunswick, especially that on the snow. With few exceptions in leaving camp in the morning the guide will follow a portage for a mile or more before turning off. He will then hunt up into the wind, cruise back and forth about a certain ridge, and then strike off for another piece of country. After lunch the plan is to swing back to the portage with about enough daylight left to arrive in camp before dark. There is plenty of hunting far back beyond the portages, but such in the late season involves unnecessary travel and the packing of heads and meat. Our plan was to swing in a general direction north and then east, to make the Home Camp by dark.

With the heavy going and overcast sky, the steadily falling snow, we had to hunt entirely by compass, in view of the fact Bill had not been over the country of late years. Here and there we found the beavers had flooded large areas, while one lumber company had cut out a number of new hauling roads, none of which had, to date, been used. From time to time we stopped on the hillside of the highest country, but because of the snow were unable to see further than a hundred yards. Of game we saw no sign till the afternoon, when Bill picked up one fresh track, to come on shortly, a young bull feeding with his back into the storm. By three o'clock we had travelled further north than had been our purpose and made no further effort to reach the Home Camp that night.

Despite the storm the deer seemed

FACTS ABOUT TEA SERIES—No. 8

The Consumption of Tea

Tea as a beverage is used in nearly every country in the world. It is estimated over 200 billion cups are consumed annually. Australia leads in tea drinking with an annual per capita consumption of about nine pounds, which means that every Australian consumes from six to eight cups of tea every day. The consumption per capita in England is 8½ lbs., and in Canada nearly 5 lbs. In the United States, it is less than 1 lb., but this is largely because Americans have not been able to get fine teas until comparatively recently. "SALADA" is considered one of the choicest blends on the market, and is the largest selling tea in either United States or Canada.

A Moose Hunt on Riviere De Chute

"Me, too," answered Bill, "let's go down towards the head of the brook, he was lying down and snoring, and see here is blood and lots of it, come on."

As we moved along in the track of the bull he seemed to bleed at every step. Perhaps two hundred yards further on he had turned round in his tracks and listened. This seemed a favorable sign, so a half mile along the mountain, where he had turned up, we decided to leave him and, going a safe distance to leeward, allow for him to lie down and rest.

We took up the trail about an hour later and followed it up the side of the mountain. In places the moose had climbed over deadfalls where the snow was so deep it came to our hips. On top of the mountain he had swung slightly to the west and then continued down grade. At the far side of the mountain we found where he had lain down, and on picking up the track noted with satisfaction, by the spread of the hoof, that he was walking.

Much has been said and written about the trailing of wounded game, but my own experience has been that the best a hunter can hope for is to move without noise in hopes that the animal in question will not get the scent. That is to say, this moose in question, had, on being wounded, headed almost due east, swung north and then east. The blizzard in which we were travelling was blowing from the northeast, and should the bull turn towards the north and then west he would, in due course, providing we were close enough, get our wind. It is very simple in a diagram to say that had we known he was going to swing north and west that we might have headed due north and cut him off. But we had no assurance of this, on encountering the second bed, we found he had increased his pace to a trot. In the storm he could not possibly have heard us, so the only logical conclusion was that our scent had been carried to him.

We had taken up the trail about 11 o'clock, and by 1 o'clock reached the second bed. We had travelled possibly one and a half miles. The bull was evidently badly frightened. In places while crossing brooks, he had broken through the ice and left in the soft mud a clear impression of his chest. But always he managed to extricate himself and never did it seem to be there any shortening of his stride. In Bill's opinion the moose was heading for the portage and the ridge beyond on Sadlier Brook. At 3 o'clock we crossed the portage and there, sure enough, was the track headed due north. Despite the week of travelling I was completely exhausted. Even on the balance of our "lunch" seemed particularly appetizing, and as I sat and munched some bread and jam, moose shooting assumed all the attributes of a stupid undertaking. If there is anything as humiliating in the annals of sport comparable to the wounding of a dinner moose, we have yet to experience the sensation. In keeping with his calling, Bill was optimistic. Had he not on so many occasions in the morning picked up the trail to find the bull dead a half mile further on? Slowly, almost painfully, we dragged our now frozen moccasins toward camp. The morning was the last day of the season, and, for good measure, four inches of snow fell that night.

Despite the storm there was no difficulty experienced in picking up the partly filled track in the morning. High, and on the right side, was the trail of frozen blood. Apparently the bull was wounded in one or both hips. He did not, however, drag his toes or sway from side to side. For the first half mile after crossing the portage he had taken a course almost east, then swung north again, and in a half circle toward the ridges on Sadlier Brook. At intervals we experienced a burst of sunshine and as we would approach a fairly open ridge there was dominant the hope that the "something black" we were looking for would prove to be our trophy. Before noon we had crossed another fresh track and numerous deer sign, for which we carried not at all. For a second my heart seemed to bob into my throat as a black form moved off through the woods at a trot, to prove, on second sight, to be a cow. From the ridges the trail would lead down to the swamps, along the edge of horsebacks so steep in places, that literally I was able to sit down and slide. At other times we laboriously hauled ourselves over acres of wind-falls, the bushes catching and ripping our clothing. By 12 o'clock we had travelled perhaps three miles from the portage and about seven miles from the scene of the shooting. There was still some three inches of snow in the tracks which proved the moose had travelled perhaps ten miles or more the day previous. As we hit the kettle, the wind allowed us to do so, it was decided to follow the track till 2 o'clock. We were all this time moving further and further from the camp and would have to allow for sufficient time to reach the clearing before dark.

Of course, by this time we had none to rest, there was haze in me an appreciation, new and sustaining, regarding moose and their hunting. It was only a question of time before this moose would stop and commence to feed, when he was sure we were hopelessly distanced. I was quite sure with another few days of shooting we would have moved over our bedding and to the Otter-Bend Camp and followed that moose till he crossed the Gulnac. A feeding bull will often travel in a day but a few hundred yards. With decent weather it would have been comparatively simple to get within range. But at 2 o'clock the bull had not stopped to feed or rest, there was still snow in the track, and reluctantly we turned back. For the first time in sixteen consecutive seasons I had been fairly and squarely beaten at my own game, to return without having filled my license. When we swung into the portage there was the fresh track of the moose that betokened the end of the season.

On December first, while the team tarried to haul wood to the camp yard we eased the old "Bill" and, with camera and lunch started anew for the big ridge, just to prove our contention that as a game country this last of all sections to be hunted was more than desirable. En route we approached to within easy shooting distance three good sized deer, two of which, without difficulty, we could have killed in their tracks. On passing the scene of the shooting I was tempted to measure off the distance, which proved to be 110 paces. There, shoulder high in a dead cedar, was a bullet hole, and, with his eyes, Bill carefully clipped away the intervening timber. We found the bullet imbedded in the far side of the tree in a perfect mushroom, with blood clots under the head. This bullet had, therefore, passed fairly through the moose as he turned and we knew from the distance he had travelled another season would find him thereabouts to match his cunning with those who would venture forth. This was a sustaining thought, for two of us could vouch for his spread of antlers, which, coupled with the stamina and skill in which he had led us through ridge and gully, labelled him a worthy opponent.

A WILD PET

Frances Mary Hughes
 Probably the only wolf in captivity that is allowed all the privileges of a pet dog is the one owned by Mr. and Mrs. T. W. Bewick of Wisconsin. The wolf, "Laddie," is now three years old, and having been brought up from its earliest days with the bulldog belonging to the Bewicks, it displays more dog characteristics than those of a wolf.

Three years ago a marsh was being turned out near the town in which Mr. and Mrs. Bewick live. The fire routed out a nest of wolves, and the mother escaped without saving her little ones. All excepting the one saved by Mr. Bewick perished in the flames, but he took the one which he rescued home with him that night and decided to keep him as a pet.

The little wolf was so young that his eyes were not yet open, and Mr. Bewick thought that his bulldog would mother the little thing, but instinct warned the dog, and if the Bewicks had not constantly been on guard the dog would have killed the baby. Eventually, however, the stranger made a welcome for himself, and the dog took the best of care of him. The dog is away for any length of time Laddie becomes restless and unhappy and wanes pitifully until his foster mother returns. As for other dogs, Laddie has no use for them. As soon as their unsuspecting backs are turned, he attack them ruthlessly. Strange to say, however, dogs seem to have no fear of Laddie, so like a dog he become. They approach him as one of their own kind. When in the house Laddie makes a stranger exceedingly nervous. He is not still for one second, but spaces softly and lightly back and forth, and barks like a dog. This seems to be the only wild animal characteristic that he retains. He eats like a dog, enjoying the same food that one does, and what is more he barks like a dog. His owners contemplate keeping him as long as he lives. They do not fear that he will revert to type sufficiently to become a menace. He makes an excellent watch-dog. When he was seven months old a veterinarian was engaged to cut his teeth, which were of the long, tearing kind, of course. Now they are like those of any domestic animal. Children love Laddie and he has never shown any inclination to be ugly when playing with them.

Being orphaned so young, the problem of raising Laddie seemed a serious one, but Mrs. Bewick decided to treat him as she would a puppy under similar circumstances, so his early diet was made up chiefly of bread and milk. He has never tasted raw meat, for it is said that such food brings out the wildest tendencies in any animal.

Home-baking—Home ties

Home-baking makes children healthy and happy. It gives them pleasant memories of home in after years. With Quaker Flour, home-baking is easy. It is good for pies and cakes, as well as bread. Because every sack is of the same high quality, you can rely on perfect results every time.

"You'll Like the Flavor"

Sold by Grocers everywhere

Mr. and Mrs. Bewick operate a lurch room, and some of their patrons are given to using the chairs as parking places for chewing gum. Laddie has learned of this, and every time he is allowed in the dining-room he makes a thorough canvass of the chairs hunting for gum. It is ludicrous to see him. He makes a systematic tour, and whenever he finds a piece, he looks up with almost a human wink in his eye, chews his find methodically for a moment, swallows it with a noisy gulp, and then proceeds on his search.

That his owners find him a satisfactory pet is evidenced by the fact that when they were asked for a valuation on him they said simply, "We wouldn't part with him for any money."

The Cheaper kind. A Scotman went to the grocer's for some eggs. "How much are these eggs?" said he. "Twopenny halfpenny each," answered the boy; "a penny the cracked ones." "Crack me a dozen," said the Scotman.

HAS CONFIDENCE IN PREMIER VENIOT

Maine Man Tells Water Ways Commission that People Name G. F. Development.

During the hearing before the Waterways Commission at Montreal last week one Maine man expressed himself very plainly as follows:—
Hon. Peter D. Keegan, representing the Saint John Valley Board of Trade (Maine), introduced a humorous note by his whole-hearted advocacy of the development in the face of what the Government of Maine representatives might say. "He said his people had been waiting for the development for 40 years and looked to it to give them their chance to live. He felt the New Brunswick Government would want a market for their power if they developed it. "I have confidence," he said "in this great man," referring to Premier Veniot.
