

CHARACTER AND SUCCESS.

It is true that there is now and then a case of the kind which is baffled by circumstances, which the unfortunate cannot p... or remedy; but it is true also, that such cases, as affecting men of well-developed minds, are exceedingly rare. As a general rule, it may be affirmed that he who sits down and laments the condition to which adverse circumstances have brought him, and attributes his unhappy plight to causes beyond himself, really owes it chiefly to his own indolence or weakness.

I do not care to have understood in this connection that the success which should be secured by earnest workers is the artificial acquirements of money merely. By no means. Such success in the eyes of Him who "sitteth in the heavens" is insignificant. He often sees and smiles upon a triumph where men behold what they consider a crushing disaster. The true working unseem with a man's own spirit are often doing the most and the best for him—molding his character and life into harmonious adoption, and giving him a clear outlook upon the world and upon the true purpose of existence.

The young man who sighs for pecuniary gain and deems himself hardly conditioned because the incident of birth did not furnish wealthy parents, and influential business friends, and because he must commence life "at the bottom of the ladder" may be disappointed with a great deal of contentment. "I have no chance." "No chance!" Has he not youth, strength, mental faculties susceptible of indefinite development, and a world teeming with suggestion at his elbow? "No chance!" and with thirty or forty faculties in his hand, which may be made contributory to his advancement, each an efficient co-operator with his free and strong hands!

No chance to get worldly pelf? Never! We mention the names of Law, Vanderlily, Astor, Grant, Longworth, Conroy, Peabody, Drew, Coopey? Doubtless they often regarded their chances as few and slim. No chance to achieve greatness? Think of Watson Hale, Mansfield, Burke, Peck, Wolsey, Whitfield, Stephenson, Samuel Lee, West, Eldon, Clay, Marcy, Phelps, Arkwright, Howe, Benton, Lincoln, and the hundred others, whose changes for success lay not in their earnestness of purpose and unshaking industry.

There is no "cross cut" to true success and no "obstacle" to the attainment of it. Success is not a matter of chance, but of the character of the man. It is not a matter of luck, but of the character of the man. It is not a matter of chance, but of the character of the man. It is not a matter of luck, but of the character of the man.

Both Sir John Lubbock and Dr. Livingstone's views express their belief in the authenticity of the letters from the "Plover" described by Mr. Stanley.

SMASHED AND WOUND.

At a recent meeting of the Royal Society, a paper on "The effect of alcohol on the nervous system" was read by Dr. E. A. Parkes. It contained a description of experiments made on a soldier, a Scotchman, who had been brought up on oatmeal and milk, and who at one time, had been in the habit of taking a fair amount of whiskey. As a soldier, however, he bears the character of a steady man in the enjoyment of perfect health. His experience to the effect of alcohol is noteworthy. He commenced "the exercise and brandy" period of the experiment with a belief that the brandy would enable him to perform the work more easily, but ended with the opposite conviction.

THE ELECTIONS.

On Friday a horrible case of pesticide occurred in the Township of Bedford, a farmer named John Scott, and an old and respected settler in this county, meeting a painful death at the hands of his son, George Scott, a dangerous lunatic. The circumstances that led to the perpetration of this fearful crime will be gathered from the evidence elicited at the inquest, given below. The murderer was recognized as a mania throughout the neighborhood in which his parents lived. Several conflicts took place between him and residents of the locality, and the lives of a few endangered by his actions, but the different frays were unattended with serious results, until on the date already mentioned a quarrel arose between the mother and son; the father amongst others, went to the rescue of his wife, which so increased the lunatic's rage that he chased him some distance, and finally stabbed him twice in the abdomen, from the fatal effects of which he survived only a quarter of an hour. The murderer was arrested and brought before John Hamilton, Esq., J. P., on Saturday, who subsequently handed him over to Coroner Cowdy of Harrowsmith. A jury was empanelled, and an inquest opened at the deceased's residence on Sunday, commencing at 2 o'clock, and remaining in session until 6 o'clock in afternoon. They then adjourned to reassemble at the village of Parkton on Monday morning at 7 o'clock, when they concluded the investigation, and unanimously agreed to a verdict of "Wilful Murder."

The immigration of Chinese to San Francisco has grown so rapidly that even now the traveler meets as many Chinese as American workmen in the streets during the dinner hour. The Chinaman is indeed bound to take no small part in California's future. In some places he possesses whole mining districts abandoned by white men, and in others he does nearly all the labor of the husbandman. He builds railroads and digs canals, cooks, washes and works at various trades, and experience has shown that he will work longer and cheaper, and live more frugally than any other class of laborers. Originally employed only in the laundries of cities in the State, the Chinese have pushed themselves into almost every branch of industry, not excepting printing, and they threaten to supplant native workmen in the course of a few years. The bitter feelings of hostility which formerly characterized the action of a large portion of the American population in San Francisco towards Chinese immigrants have happily died out. The Chinese are flowing into the cities of the Pacific coast in increasing numbers every year, and the people of the United States are settling themselves to work to solve this problem of Chinese immigration, and its probable results on the future of the Republic.

"Mr. Dodge, in coming before the people, would have done well to have remembered that the Riding that elected a Baldwin requires a thorough reformer; that a political man should understand political questions; that the concessions of Canadian territories and Canadian fisheries to the United States, in the past, demand that no Yankee should enter a Canadian Legislature, but that the motto should be, 'Canadians for Canada.'"

We find the above morceaux in the Globe. People are expected to forget that the Globe honored the Honourable Robert Baldwin into his grave, and ever opposed his candidature for the Upper House of Parliament, preferring the claims of Charles Roussin. We are also to forget that, though a Reformer, Baldwin approved of the Coalition Government in 1854. And what are we to think of the idea "that no Yankee should enter a Canadian Legislature?" Were not the great English Chancellor Lord Lindhurst, and many other of the great men of the mother country, either Americans or the sons of Americans? With all the facilities the Globe has for collecting news, it is a most unreliable guide in politics.

THE MUSICAL TIMES, of Rochester, N. Y., for July, is an unusually interesting number. It contains a very full and graphic account of the Great Boston Jubilee, written by an eye witness, and the stirring scenes and incidents occurred. It also contains an interesting variety of local and miscellaneous reading, besides several pages of new music. It is a wide-awake music paper, interesting and reliable. Send 10 cents for a specimen copy, or $1 for a year's subscription, to the Publisher, J. P. Shaw, 43 State Street.

The Pope has written a letter to M. Thiers in which he congratulates him upon the success of the French loan, and assigns as the reason for its being so readily taken up that the Minister of Finance refused to accept the mission to the Court of Italy, "the invader and enemy of the Holy See."

A MAN SHOT BY RIEL.

From reliable information we learn that on Tuesday last, a man named Stalker was on his way to Winnipeg, on Tuesday last, he came across the notorious Louis Riel, who, in company with two others, were talking on the roadside some four and a half miles up the Red River. It appears that this man Stalker entered into conversation with them, and the subject being the shooting of Riel, the latter gave opinions which Stalker would not agree. The debate grew warmer until at length Riel ordered him to be off or he would shoot him. The man seeing that he had fired arms, thought best to obey, and as he walked off a few paces he felt a sharp pain in the ball passing between his legs without any injury.

Now we have come to a nice pass in Manitoba, where a murderer with $600,000 offered for his head, should be permitted to shoot down loyal men with impunity. It is time that the reputation as to this matter, and the steps to be taken with a view to protect their lives in open day in Manitoba. No wonder, when the whole acts of our authorities have been a premium on murder of loyal people. If the Government do not at once take steps to stop the acts of this kind, the reputation as to this matter, and the steps to be taken with a view to protect their lives in open day in Manitoba. No wonder, when the whole acts of our authorities have been a premium on murder of loyal people.

TWO ALLIGATORS KILL TWO HOUNDS AND A DEER. A party of sportsmen who were recreating on a hunt for deer scored up three of the sportsmen. The two hounds followed the deer, and were consequently drawn into the combat, which was most terrific and bloody. The stag made a gallant defence with his antlers and forefeet, but the fight was unequal, and the water was soon crimson with the blood of the noble animal as he sank down in his death throes. The dogs barked bravely in the contest with the alligators, but they, too, had to yield to the terrific onslaught of their enemy. The sportsmen tried to get in some shots on the alligators, but they counted naught, and after finishing their bloody work, the mortars glided off.

NEW YORK, August 21.—Stanley, African traveler to the Herald, today, says Dr. Kirk of Grosvenor in furnishing Dr. Livingston stores. The letter bag containing letters to Dr. Livingston was sealed up by Dr. Livingston at Zanzibar, on which is written: "November 1871, Dr. Livingston, Ujiji." It is now closed on the 11th of November, 1870. On the 6th January, 1871, our correspondent arrived at Zanzibar, and I have heard of a caravan being at Bagamoyo, the caravan of Dr. Livingston's still at Bagamoyo. On or about the 18th of Feb., 1871, appeared Dr. Bagamoyo's Britannic Majesty's gunboat Commodore, Dr. John Kirk, acting as Her Britannic Majesty's Consul. Three days before Dr. John Kirk arrived at Bagamoyo, Livingston's caravan started for the interior, hurried on doubt by the report that the English Consul was coming. DIGGING FOR DIAMONDS AT THE CAPE.

From "Twelve months at the South African Diamond Fields," by F. Foster. The life with all its drawbacks, was a manly one, possessing the great advantage of a purpose attached to it; and I often find myself now looking back to the free and healthy existence I led in this remote spot, with a certain amount of regret, recalling with envy in some degree the nights the sound refreshing repose I enjoyed in my dry encamped tent, and which I had earned by open air life and strong developing exercise. Life at Cape Town, during summer months, was nearly as follows:—Up in the morning with the sun, or before it, and after the heavy cup of coffee—a institution of the fields—to work with a will until breakfast, then the one hour's repose and the pipe of reflection after the dawn to the river to see what the cradle and sorting table might reveal—also a walk to the river, and if it rained, and how often did careful hand and watchful eyes sweep over and see nothing but rubbish—then when the loads were washed and sorted, to repeat until the great heat of the day became somewhat allayed when some other work was done in preparation for the morning's labour at the cradle; then, as the sun sank low and shadows lengthened, once more to the "shining river," and a long dreamy swim in cool water, a plunge of delight which almost compensated for the toil of the day. At night what amusement or occupation individuals cared for could be had, and Mr. Stanley, charged that he neglected to forward his correspondence as regularly and promptly as he should have done. The matter has already been mentioned by the English papers, and there is no doubt that a full investigation will take place.

On Friday last the son of Mr. James White, 10th concession of Mayborough, died about 2 years, was drowned in a barrel sunk in a shallow well or spring. His parents were pulling hay out from the house, and had left two little girls with the child. They were in the garden pulling currants, when they missed the child, and on searching for him, found him with his head down in the well. He was not quite dead when they took him out, but he expired soon after. The remains were buried on Sunday.

There were more disturbances at Quebec yesterday. The rancid sea to rule the roost in the good old city the police are powerless and violence was only prevented yesterday by the resolute attitude of some of the inhabitants. The police and the militia were armed themselves and prepared to give the rowdies so very warm a reception if they carried out their threat of seizing the axes that, rowdy like they went back on their boasts, and relieved their feelings by yell.

We learn that Mr. F. R. Tranchesi, one of the oldest merchants in the city of Quebec, died at his residence, Berthier, at the age of 65. Dr. Moll, an old citizen of the same village, and a member for the first time in Parliament for Quebec, also died suddenly at Berthier of apoplexy, at the age of 52. Both gentlemen occupied a prominent position in the country, and were highly respected by their fellow-citizens.

The King of Spain has made a great step in advance, a step which will draw forth the sympathy and moral support of Europe more perhaps than any other act he could have done. He has signed a decree for the gradual abolition of slavery in Cuba and Porto Rico. Thus the blot of upholding slavery has at last been wiped away from the scepter of the only country in Europe which permitted it.

A lady, fond of reading Balzac's works, went into a book-store a short time since, just as one of the clerks had killed a large rat. "I wish to see 'The Money-Grinder,'" said she to the boy behind the counter. "Well said the boy, 'If you'll step to the window, you will probably see him slip into the back lot.'"

ETHER GLUE FOR PRINTERS.

The following has been recommended as a very good article for printing office use:—The glue (which is liquid) is made by dissolving Gum in nitric ether. The ether will only dissolve a certain amount of glue, consequently the solution cannot be made too thick. The glue thus made is about the consistency of molasses, and is doubly as tenacious as that made with hot water. If a few bits of india rubber, cut into scraps the size of a beet shot, be added, and the solution be allowed to stand a few days, being stirred frequently, it will be all the better, and will resist the dampness twice as well as glue made with water.

Two cases of accidental drowning occurred here this week. On Sunday afternoon, the son of Mr. James H. Kee was missed from the house, and on search being made, his body was found in a cistern of water. Life was extinct. This afternoon, the eldest son of Mr. Geo. Kinsley, of this place, named Emanuel, aged twelve years, was drowned while bathing in the river. His body was recovered after being in the water about an hour.

Mr. Stanley, the New York Herald explorer, has published grave accusations against Dr. Kirk, the British Consul at Zanzibar. To him was entrusted by the British Government the duty of forwarding to Dr. Livingston the supplies necessary to enable him to prosecute his expedition into the interior of Africa, that he neglected to forward his correspondence as regularly and promptly as he should have done. The matter has already been mentioned by the English papers, and there is no doubt that a full investigation will take place.

On Saturday last, a farmer named James Hanna was finishing a barn on the farm of Mr. James McGee, near Mrs. Mary, when an axe fell from the roof of the building, striking him upon the head, and cutting through to the brain. The medical attendants removed a portion of the skull, and the poor man is lying in a critical condition.

The boys are getting to be a terror to grown people, and there is no knowing how soon they may rise and exterminate all the older heads and run fashion. A few days ago a boy in Michigan, having been insulted by his insolent father hid behind a fence, and blazed away at the old man with a shot gun. It is setting to be dangerous to insult one of these little ones.

Whitby, August 6.—The barn belonging to Luther Galt, a farmer residing on the Kingston Road, between Oshawa and Whitby, were totally destroyed by fire about 10 o'clock on Tuesday evening. A quantity of valuable hay and barley were burnt. The fire was caused by children playing with matches about the buildings. There is an insurance, but not enough to cover the loss.

Current worms may be entirely destroyed, or driven from the bushes, by a liberal application of buckwheat flour. The English rivers are to be stocked with American black bass, a quantity of the young fry from Saratoga lake having recently been despatched to England for the purpose of trying the experiment. A small or moderate-sized tree at the transplanting will usually be a large tree, less than a larger tree set out at the same time, and which is necessarily checked in growth by removal. An extensive sawmill at Pottsmouth, Michigan, was destroyed on Wednesday afternoon by fire. A 600,000 feet of lumber was consumed. It was insured for $475,000. Loss estimated at $300,000.

The ladies of the Presbyterian Congregation of Prescott recently presented their pastor, Rev. James Hastie, with a handsome sum of money to defray the expenses of a holiday trip. Missouri editors do not indulge in coarse epithets. They merely remark of a contemporary, in the spirit of quiet sarcasm, that "his ears would do for a wailing to a ten-story wholesale box-packing establishment."

San Francisco affirms have taken to disporting of obscenity practices by depositing torpedoes into the houses. One was thrown into a parlor a few days since and demolished doors, windows and furniture. A garden party near Holey, Eng., the other day, each lady on arrival was presented by the hostess with a pair of gloves, one hundred pairs having been telegraphed for from London when the invitation was first issued.

The Duke of Devonshire has lately been seen in the streets of London in the company of Mr. Millbank, who is the Member of Commons. The money to be paid is as follows: One million dollars down, and one hundred thousand dollars a year. More than 900 applications for Ontario alone, for the 100 girls brought to Miss Rye. The steamer Albatross is on her present trip from New York to New York, and will meet them on their arrival. Let announcements fill up the sheets of your existence, not the great spaces thereof. Let your pleasure be as spacious as Daniel took his prayers—with his windows open; pleasure which need not cause a single blush on an ingenious cheek.

On the 18th ult., the Canadian team were entertained at a dinner, given by Sir Peter and Lady Tat. On the following day the team presented their Captain, Major W. W. W., with a massive gold ring, in recognition of his exertions to secure them the success which had attended their competitors. Tying a line on the end of which is a fishhook, to a large rocket, is the latest form of practical joking in Troy. It works to the intense amusement of the victims and the intense amusement of the jokers.

CLIMATE AND PHYSIOLOGY

"It is the hard grey weather makes hard Englishmen," says Kingsley, and it is difficult to convince an average Englishman that an athletic or martial, or industrial race can grow up under a blazy sky, or the sweet soft air of the half-hated lands, amidst the heat of the tropics or in any climate so perfect that it suffices by itself to supply the need of enjoyment.

DR. LIVINGSTONE

The burst of brag with which the New York Herald announced Stanley's discovery of Dr. Livingstone has abated. Mr. Stanley's antecedents as a journalist are not satisfactory. If the testimony of those who worked with him on various American newspapers is to be believed, he is a journalist Tom Pepper.

Stanley, who has returned to England from Zanzibar, is the lion of the hour. The world has been edified by his letters, describing his meeting with Dr. Livingstone, and reciting the doctor's experiences and discoveries, and they have undoubtedly excited such excitement in the United Kingdom where the venerable traveller is so highly esteemed.
