Revolt On in Warsaw; Lodz in State of Siege

1,200 Perish in Bloody Battles With the Cossacks and Police in Polish City.

Lodz, June 26.—The victims of last week's outbreak total over 1,200. Thus far the bodies of 343 Jews and 218 Christians have been buried. The wounded number over 700.

Some semblance of order has been restored and the workmen are gradually returning to the factories.

Lodz, Russian Poland, June 26.—The Governor-General has proclaimed a state of siege at Lodz.

n Full Revolt.

Warsaw, June 26, 2:25 p.m.—The Jewish districts are now in full revolt. The shops and stores are closed and traffic has ceased. The street cars have been overturned to form the nucleus of barricades. Great crowds are assembling in the streets, and the ugly temper of both the populace and the troops threatens to break out in bloodshed at any moment.

Thirty-four battalions of infantry are stationed in the town. The city has the appearance of a military encampment. Infantry and Cossacks are bivouacked in the streets and patrols are circulating everywhere. Barricades have been erected at the corner of Ogrodowa and Zelazua streets, and occasionally the crack of a rifle is heard as strikers shoot at men going to work.

Slaughter Goes On.

Lodz, June 25. — The slaughter and rioting continued throughout last night. The rifle firing was incessant. Two bombs were thrown at the Cossacks' barracks. Innocent and guilty alike were shot down. Two thousand civilians of Lodz have been killed or wounded. The soldiers have also sustained great losses.

The most serious phase of the fighting between the military and strikers is at an end, but there are still isolated attacks in the suburbs. At Baluty this morning Cossacks attacked a Jewish family of five persons, who were driving in a cab to the railway station and shot and killed all, including the cabman.

Pabjanice, Lodz, workmen attacked two policemen and shot and killed one and wounded the other. There is a general exodus from Lodz. Twelve hundred persons have already left, and all trains are crowded.

During the disturbances thirty-five Government liquor stores were destroyed by the mob, who appropriated all the cash and stamps found on the premises which they added to the funds of the Socialist party.

The workmen in all the factories will strike tomorrow. Some prominent citizens this morning telegraphed Gen. Shastow, commanding the troops here, asking for protection against the brutality of the soldiers, especially the Cossacks, who in one instance killed and robbed the servant of a millionaire named Rosenblatt, who was carrying $5,000 to the bank.

The general promised to punish the offenders, but said he required witnesses of the occurrence to testify against Cossacks.

THINK MURDERER WRECKED TRAIN

Dope Fiend Who Killed Cleveland Man May Have Derailed Twentieth Century.

Cleveland, Ohio, June 26. — Detectives investigating the wreck of the Twentieth Century Limited at Mentor, have announced that they believe the switch causing the disaster was thrown open by the man who murdered Marion Burlison here a week ago.

This man was seen near the scene of the wreck early on Wednesday night. The description of him tallies with that of the man who killed Burlison and the fugitive is known as a desperate dope fiend. He murdered and robbed Burlison ,a prominent west side merchant, after Burlison had befriended him.

Coroner Sieglesten began an investigation of the Mentor wreck Saturday. He found evidence that the switch was not thrown immediately before the advancing train, but had been open for some time, that a boy probably did not throw the switch, that a water plug stands almost directly in line between the switch light and the west track, that from the track, 500 yards to the westward, the switch is concealed, that directly beneath the water plug is a switch exactly like the one that caused the wreck.

Sieglesten believes this light may have been mistaken by the engineer for the one farther on and that not until the farther switch was almost reached did he see the red danger light. He says Lake Shore employes have complained for years of the switch lights at Mentor.

General Superintendent Storrs said in reply to Sieglesten's statements, that he could state positively that the engineer and fireman saw the light of the switch that caused the wreck.

Guelph Going Ahead.

Guelph, June 25. — The ratepayers of this city yesterday voted on a bylaw for $55,000 for extending and putting on a better basis the gas system which the city runs as a municipal concern. Voting was light, but the bylaw carried by a substantial majority.

DANISH CADETS PERISH IN SEA

Twenty-Two Drowned in Collision of Merchantmen and a Training Ship.

Copenhagen, June 26.—A serious disaster occurred last night here, when the Danish cadet training schooner Georg-Stage was rammed and sunk by the British steamer Ancona. The Georg-Stage sank in one and one-half minutes. Twenty-two cadets were drowned and 57 rescued.

The boys were all in their bunks at the time of the disaster. The night was overcast, but it was not so dark that objects could not be seen at some distance.

The Georg-Stage was a schooner of 206 tons register and was 103 feet long. Apparently she was a training vessel for the mercantile marine and was owned by a private firm of Copenhagen.

TAUGHT EDWARD TO BOX

Winds Up in Montreal Police Court On Attempted Suicide Charge.

Montreal, Que., June 26. — Harry Felton, who was seven years in the British navy and says he instructed the Prince of Wales to box when his highness was a sailor, was charged in the police court today by officers of the steamship Savorona with attempted suicide.

Felton denies the charge, and claims that when inward bound he decided to make for shore, owing to bad treatment. He threw some woodwork overboard and plunged from the ship. He was taken back on board, however, and brought a prisoner to the city.

Clapperton's Body Found

Chatham, June 26.—The body of Peter Claperton was found floating in the river here this morning at a spot just across the river from where Earl Mitchell lost his life a week ago. Claperton was a farm laborer, and inclined to indulge in the flowing bowl. He had been missing about a week.

CIRCUS MEN ON THE RAMPAGE; MILITIA OUT TO CURB THEM

Villages North of Quebec City Terrorized by American Showmen.

Quebec, June 25.—Twenty-three soldiers of the Royal Canadian Garrison of Artillery, under command of Capt. Thacker, from the citadel, and twelve members of the provincial police, all armed with rifles and twenty rounds of ammunition each, with orders to shoot if necessary, left Quebec by special train for Grand Mere, by the Quebec and Lake St. John Railway, to apprehend the followers of Lemon Bros.' circus, responsible for a reign of terror among the inhabitants of the Lake St. John district. Lemon Bros.' circus left Quebec some ten days ago for Chicoutimi, and ever since their departure reports have reached this city of their evil doings. They are accompanied by a regularly organized gang of swindling gamblers, who have fleeced the people right and left, and the latest report received in this connection is one of downright lawlessness.

On Saturday afternoon a number of the circus men abducted a young girl at Roberval and took her to a secluded barn, where they attempted to criminally assault her. The girl's screams attracted the attention of a number of men, who rushed to her rescue and saved her from a terrible fate. Immediately afterwards several residents of the town proceeded to the office of the resident magistrate and secured a warrant for the guilty circus men's arrest. The village constables attempted to execute the warrant, but met with resistance, which soon culminated in a general row, when fully one hundred men belonging to the circus appeared with rifles and revolvers and commenced to shoot promiscuously, with the result that an Indian named Robertson was shot, receiving a bullet in one of his legs. The populace, terror-stricken, sought refuge from the desperadoes, and the latter got on board their train and started for Grand Mere.

When the train reached the next station, Chamberd, one of the circus ruffians, deliberately fired off his rifle and wounded a young girl named Tremblay, who was sitting at her own doorstep beside her mother.

These particulars were communicated by telephone to Mr. J. G. Scott, manager of the Quebec and Lake St. John Railway, who immediately gave the information to the Attorney-General's office last night, but it was only this afternoon that proper action was taken, and the military and police sent out by special train to apprehend the guilty parties, including the whole circus party, numbering over one hundred men.

A dispatch received at midnight from Grand Mere reports that the police and military reached there at 8:30, tonight, when they marched up to where the circus people were encamped, but instead of placing the whole party under arrest, the police contented themselves in an endeavor to pick out the guilty parties, and up to the hour of writing no arrests had been made. The military could not act, as they were simply present to back the police.

WILL TALK PEACE EARLY IN AUGUST

Russia Thinks Japan Should Make First Move.

MIKADO BALKS AT ARMISTICE

Declines to Consider It Until Issues for Conference Are Definitely Decided.

St. Petersburg, June 26, 2 p.m. — Both Japan and Russia are now understood to have agreed on the time when their plenipotentiaries shall meet at Washington. It will be during the first ten days of August, but the exact date probably will be announced by President Roosevelt. The question of precedence evidently is the main stumbling block to a prompt settlement of the number of personal negotiators. Both sides seem desirous to make the other take the initial move. Russia seems to consider that it is Japan's duty to name her plenipotentiaries before Russia announces hers. While the exact number of the plenipotentiaries has not been officially arranged, both powers seem to have tactitly agreed on three. The actual announcement of the names of the plenipotentiaries is expected within a few days.

The official statement of the situation is:

"All is going on favorably."

The question of a possible armistice, as stated last week remains in abeyance for the moment, Japan, it is understood, declining even to take the matter up until the issues involved in the Washington meeting are definitely settled. In the meantime there have been heavy downpours in Manchuria, and the rainy season may enforce a suspension of military operations before diplomacy can act.

Looks Like More War.

London, June 25. — A St. Petersburg correspondent says that Sakharoff, Minister of War, and Prince Hilkoff, Minister of Railway Communications, are engaged in preparation, having in view a long, slow defensive war.

The shortage of efficient locomotives has resulted in the reduction to ten trains eastward daily to trans-Baikal, instead of 50 provided by Prince Hilkoff's scheme when he was in Manchuria last May.

One quarter of all the 1891 reservists in Moscow and the central provinces will begin to mobilize this week. The governors of the Volga provinces have generally decided not to attempt to mobilize in the grain districts until after the harvest season.

The evidence of the preparations for a prolongation of the war have weakened the bourse. Internal fours have fallen to 85½. M. Rokovtseff, the Minister of Finance, called a meeting of representatives of the Russian banks on Thursday, and advised them to prepare for the issue of a new internal war loan.

Fired on Red Cross Flag.

Tokio, June 25, 3 p.m.—The following official dispatch has been received from Japanese army headquarters in Manchuria:

The enemy holding the northwest eminence of Manchenzou was attacked and dislodged on the afternoon of June 22, but a portion of the enemy holding the hills to the west offered stubborn resistance, and the hills were finally taken by assault.

Another force of the enemy holding the hills due north was attacked from the front, and we simultaneously resorted to a turning movement from the northwest, intercepting his retreat and causing him heavy loss.

The enemy in confusion hoisted the Red Cross flag, but this did not stop our firing, and he fled north in disorder. His strength in cavalry and infantry was some 3,000 men and several guns. Fifty corpses were left on the field. The enemy's loss was fully 200. Our loss was insignificant.

THEY WERE "GIBSON GIRLS"

But Mother Appeared and Now It's "Back to Port Huron."

The Mundy shows appear to have had a far greater fascination for the people of Port Huron than they did for the residents of this city.

The wife of a Port Huron contractor —and by the way, the mother of three little children—left her home during last week and came to London, because she had fallen in love with a member of one of the Mundy bands, and later she was taken back by her husband.

On Saturday, Sheriff Moore, of Port Huron, came to the city with a Port Huron lady whose two daughters had left home, and it was supposed had joined the Mundy shows. The grounds at Queen's Park were searched, and sure enough the sheriff, and the much-worried mother found the missing girls posing in front of "The Gibson Girls," one of the Mundy side shows.

The girls were aged 16 and 18 years, and at first they refused absolutely to return to their home, saying that they preferred to remain with the show. They were advised, however, that the best thing for them to do was to go home with their mother voluntarily and avoid further trouble. This they finally agreed to do.

Thus, "The Gibson Girls" had a somewhat limited staff at their farewell appearance in the evening.

Bolt Entered Window.

Brampton, June 26. — At midnight last night, during a heavy thunderstorm, lightning entered the drygoods store of T. H. Shields & Co., it is thought, by the electric light wire. In an instant the contents of the window were in a blaze. Night Watchman Johnston Barrett, who was standing under a veranda opposite, quickly gave the alarm, and by the promptness of the firemen, the flames were confined to the window. The loss likely will not exceed $20, covered by insurance in the Anglo-American and London Mutual.

TO WHOM DOES SIDING BELONG? CITY MAY HAVE SUIT ON HANDS

Grand Trunk Says Its Theirs, But Will Fight the Matter to a Finish.

At a meeting of the London and Port Stanley Railway Board held this morning, it developed that the city of London has to all appearances the chances for an able-bodied lawsuit with the Grand Trunk Railway on its hands.

The trouble is looming up over the possession of a siding which runs west from Burwell street along Bathurst street.

Many years ago—so far back, in fact, that nobody around the city hall has so far been able to find out just when the transfer occurred—the city of London gave the London and Port Stanley Railway Board the power to use the north side of Bathurst street as a siding. The board used the siding while the road was operated by the city, and then in 1873 the line was leased to the old Great Western Railway. Accordingly the Bathurst street siding fell into the hands of the Great Western, and, subsequently, when the Grand Trunk absorbed the G. W. R., into the hands of the former road.

In 1893, the 20-year lease of the L. and P. S. R. expired and the road reverted back to the city.

The line was then leased to the meteoric Miller syndicate, was for a while operated by the M. C. R., then leased to the Lake Erie and Detroit River Railway, and by this company turned over to the Pere Marquette. And it appears that though the lease by the Grand Trunk of the L. and P. S. line expired twelve years ago, the city of London never demanded possession of the Bathurst street siding, with the result that the company now refuses to give it up.

The Grand Trunk has not as yet shown its hand in the matter, but it is stated that the company intends to fight the city, as it will maintain that as it has held the siding, maintained it, and paid taxes on it for more than twelve years, it is now the property of the company under the act which makes ten years' undisputed possession constitute a deed.

But no matter what plea the company sets up, the city will fight it, and at the meeting of the board today the whole matter was referred to the city solicitor for a report.

City Engineer Graydon was instructed to make a thorough inspection of the L. and P. S. Railway at once and to report back to the board without delay.

The Pere Marquette having remedied certain grievances the city brought to its attention in connection with the train service, a report on the matter was filed.

Lord Curzon May Resign; Kitchener the Cause

Latter's Control of Army a Severe Blow to the Viceroy.

Simla, India, June 26. — It is freely rumored that the viceroy, Lord Curzon, has either already tendered his resignation or shortly will do so in consequence of the decision of the home Government, whereby Lord Kitchener, commander-in-chief of the forces in India, has been given complete control of the army in India. Two special meetings of the Indian council have been held since the publication in London of the blue book referring to Lord Kitchener's plans, the approval of which is considered to be a severe blow to Lord Curzon, as he and practically the whole council unanimously advised against the decision ultimately adopted. The keenest excitement prevails in official circles here. The Times of India declares that India cannot afford to lose either of the great men, Lord Curzon or Lord Kitchener, who dominate her affairs.

London, June 26. — While it is considered quite possible that Lord Curzon may tender his resignation in consequence of the course taken by the home Government, directly at variance with his views, it is not believed that it will be accepted or that the viceroy will insist on quitting his post, at least until after the Prince and Princes of Wales have completed their tour of India, extending from November to March.

A question asked in the House of Commons this afternoon elicited from Indian Secretary Brodrick the statement that the Government had received no information to the effect that Curzon had any intention or desire of resigning.

MODUS VIVENDI FOR BREACH

Warm Debate Ahead in Swedish House Over Dethronement.

Stockholm, Sweden. June 26. — As a result of the negotiations between the different groups of the Riksdag, it has been arranged that a special committee to consider the Swedish-Norwegian situation shall be appointed tomorrow, to consist of nine Conservatives and three moderates from the First Chamber, and five Liberals, five Agriculturists and two Reformers from the Second Chamber. It is anticipated that the Government's proposal to settle the crisis amicably by arranging a modus vivandi between the two countries will be violently attacked in the Upper Chamber and generally supported in the Lower Chamber during the debate tomorrow on the subject.

HITS CANADIAN FLOUR

South Africa Proposes to Raise Duty to Four Shillings.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, June 26. — South Africa does a large trade with Canada in flour. The present duty of flour entering South Africa is two shillings per hundred pounds, and one shilling on wheat. The old duty was two shillings on wheat and four shillings and six pence on flour. It is now proposed, according to a report from Mr. Kittson, Canada's commercial agent there, to increase the duty on flour to the old rate, four shillings and sixpence. This will have a serious effect on Canadian shipments. The reason given for the inerease is that the reduction in duty does not benefit the consumer, and that the increase will add to the revenue of the country and assist the local grain farmer.

WILL SHARE TEXAS REWARD

Capture of Desperado Means $200 for Port Huron Officers.

Police Captain Collins and Deputy Sheriff Radica, of Port Huron, will share the reward of $200 offered by the London department for the parties effecting the arrest of the notorious "Texas" Burdell.

The reward was hung up by the London police at the time "Texas" broke jail here, and as it still holds good the Port Huron officers will be that much the richer as a result of their capture.

The reward will be paid over when "Texas" is extradited and placed behind the bars of the Middlesex County jail again.

NOW IN SUPREME COURT

Gaynor and Greene Carry Their Case to the Capital.

[Special to The Advertiser.]

Ottawa, June 26.—Argument was heard in the supreme court today on a motion on behalf of the Government of the United States to quash the appeal of Gaynor and Greene, prisoners held for extradition at Montreal, from the judgment of the court of King's bench affirming the refusal of a writ of prohibition by Judge Davidson against the issue of a warrant for extradition. The grounds on which the motion was based were that the appeal was against good faith, as it was only another mode of obtaining a discharge on habeas corpus, in which no appeal would lie, and that it was a proceeding in prohibition arising out of a criminal charge, as to which no appeal can lie to the supreme court of Canada.

A CLOSE VOTE

Sunday School Convention Decides as to Optional Advance Lessons.

Toronto, June 26. — The International Sunday School Convention this morning authorized its lesson committee to prepare an optional advanced service of lessons for addition to the uniform series now in use. The experiment will be made for three years. When the vote was taken 617 voted against any change and 661 favored the advanced lesson plan. Professor Hamil, leader of the opposition, gave way before such a large vote, and at his request the convention almost unanimously reversed its first decision and granted the will of the minority. Intense excitement prevailed before and after the vote was taken, but the final outcome was regarded as a safe and satisfactory solution of the most difficult problem that will come up.

Niagara Camp Breaks Up.

Niagara-on-the-Lake, Ont., June 24.—Getting away day at the camp was a very busy day, but the regiments got out in pretty good order. Most of the men are feeling in splendid condition after their two weeks' outing, and the camp is looked upon by officers and men alike as a great success. Considerable sickness mainly attributed to the heat, somewhat marred the camp. The diphtheria outbreak was the most serious. With two or three exceptions the camp was free from serious accidents. The diphtheria patients have been left under special guard in camp. It is likely that Gen. Otter, owing to the injury to his foot, will stay in camp with some of the staff until Monday.

Government to Pay Share Of Cost of New Pavement

Mr. Hyman Acts in a Matter Which Has Long Caused Deadlock Among Dundas Street Ratepayers.

The deadlock over the paving of Dundas street, from Wellington to Waterloo streets, bids fair to be broken at last, and, thanks to the efforts of City Engineer Graydon, and to the good offices exercised by the Hon. C. S. Hyman, it is probable that a pavement will be laid on the block this summer.

The people on the block have never been able to agree as to the payment for a permanent improvement. This state of affairs arose over the fact that the sidewalk on the north side of the street is laid up to the frontage line, while on the south side it is laid fully 20 feet out from the frontage line. The result is that running a line down the center of the street, the pavement is some fourteen feet wider on the north side than on the south side. The people on the north side wanted those on the south side to pay for half the pavement, but the south-siders refused. All the pavement they would agree to pay for was the actual measurement south of the center of the street, minus the portion which the London Street Railway is compelled to pave. Finding they could come to no agreement in the matter, the property owners suggested that the city should pay for the strip of fourteen feet which lies on the north side of the street, but of course the council refused to do this. Then a petition was circulated praying that the city pave the south side of the street on the local improvement plan, but the city solicitor told the aldermen that the city has no power to pave one-half of any street.

Thus the matter has stood for some time, though the block is an absolute disgrace to the city. The city council was loath to commit itself in the matter, from the fact that the Dominion Government owns 330 feet on Dundas street, upon which the armories are situated, and which is exempt, like all other Government property, from taxation. Finally, after all other means had been exhausted by City Engineer Graydon, in his efforts to have the street paved, a happy thought struck him. He wrote to Hon. Mr. Hyman, explaining the situation to him, and asking him if he could not use his influence to have the Government pay the rates for the pavement in front of the armories.

This was on Thursday of last week, and this morning Mr. Graydon received the following letter from Mr. Hyman, a copy of which has also been sent to City Clerk Baker:

"I am informed that petitions have been circulated for the paving of Dundas street, between Wellington and Waterloo. I am writing to say that notwithstanding the fact that the Government property occupied by the armories is exempt, the Government will be prepared to assume its portion of the cost necessary to provide such a pavement as the residents of the locality may decide upon."

Engineer Graydon was greatly elated when he received this letter, and he intends to take immediate action on it. He will at once recommend that the city lay a pavement on the street, the entire cost of the fourteen-foot strip on the north side to be paid by the city. The council can well afford to do this now, as the taxes which the Government has agreed to pay are equal to almost one-quarter of the cost of the pavement. The armories occupy 330 feet, or exactly one-quarter of the total frontage on both sides of the block. The latter is 660 feet long, so that the armories take up one-half of the south side.

The matter will come before the board of works on Thursday night. It is thought around the city hall that the property-owners interested will now jump at the chance to have the street paved.

HEAVY DEFEAT FOR THE GERMANS

Another of Kaiser's African Posts Captured and Looted by the Rebels.

Cape Town, June 26. — The rebel leader, Marengo, has attacked and defeated a German force commanded by Captain Siebert at Amoas in the Karas Mountains, German Southwest Africa. All the German ammunition and supplies were carried off by the rebels. The losses are reported to have been heavy.

It Won't Occur Again.

London, June 26. — Questioned in the House of Commons today regarding the destruction of British vessels by the Russian auxiliary cruiser, Premier Balfour said he was glad to be able to inform the House that the Russians Government disapproved of the actions of their cruisers, and that orders had been transmitted to the Dnieper at Jibutil, rendering quite impossible any repetition of the acts, which the British Government regarded as outrages against international law.

DOCTOR AND BOY OUT OF DANGER

The MacGregors Getting Along Splendidly at the Pasteur Institute.

Another letter from Dr. MacGregor, who, with his little son is now undergoing treatment at the Pasteur Institute, New York, was received in the city this morning.

It contained the very encouraging information that both Dr. MacGregor and his son are doing well, and have been pronounced out of danger by the doctor in charge of the institute.

The dog which bit Dr. MacGregor's son died on Thursday night of virulent paralytic rabies. In a letter to Mayor Campbell Dr. MacGregor says that the mayor's diagnosis of the case had been confirmed at the institute and he hoped that it will stimulate the citizens of London to adopt every means within their power to prevent the spread of the disease.

All Dogs at Large Must Be Adorned With Muzzles

THE DOG BYLAW.

(1) No person shall suffer or permit any dog of which he is owner, possessor, or harborer, to remain at large unmuzzled within the city of London.

(2) Any police constable or other person authorized for that purpose by the mayor, police magistrate or chief of police, may seize any dog found running at large unmuzzled elsewhere than on the premises of the owner, contrary to the provisions of this bylaw, and it shall be the duty of the police constables so to do, and every such police officer or other person authorized, shall forthwith, after making such seizure, deliver such dog to one of the poundkeepers, to whom the same shall be delivered to impound such dog and to supply it with water while impounded, and in case it shall not be reclaimed as hereinafter provided, within 48 hours after it shall have been delivered to the poundkeeper, it shall be the duty of the poundkeeper to kill such dog.

(3) The owner shall reclaim his dog impounded under the preceding section on proof of his ownership and the payment of the sum of $2—one-half to be paid to the poundkeeper and the other half to the person by whom the dog was impounded.

(4) The police magistrate or other presiding magistrate at the police court of the city, may, upon the trial of any complaint for an infraction of any of these provisions of section 1 of the bylaw, in addition to the imposition of a fine and costs, order that the dog in respect of which the complaint is made, shall be killed, and if the owner or person in whose possession such dog shall be, shall neglect or refuse to deliver the same up to any of the police force, or shall prevent such dog from being taken and killed, he shall be imposed for an infraction of the provisions of this bylaw.

(5) The word dog also applies to "bitch."

(6) Any person convicted of a breach of any of the provisions of this bylaw, shall forfeit and pay, at the discretion of the magistrate, a penalty not exceeding the sum of $50 for each offense, exclusive of costs, and in default of payment of the said penalty and costs, forthwith, the said penalty and costs may be levied by distress and sale of goods and chattels of the offender, and in case of there being no goods or chattels the offender may be committed to jail for a period not exceeding 21 days, unless the said penalty and costs be sooner paid.

Such Is the Effect of the Bylaw Passed at Special Council Meeting.

A special meeting of the city council was held Saturday evening for the purpose of passing a bylaw to prevent dogs running at large in this city, and the result was that a measure was put through forbidding the presence of dogs on the streets unless muzzled. This is a modification of the bylaw as at first presented, for it was the original intention to prevent all dogs, muzzled or unmuzzled, running the streets until such time as the present mad-dog scare had subsided. Those present at the meeting were: Mayor Campbell, Ald. Gillean, Gerry, Saunders, Carson, Stevely, and Cooper.

It being Saturday night, the aldermen were loath to put in an appearance, and it was necessary to send messengers after them into the highways and the byways in order to secure a quorum. Mayor Campbell went over the entire case of the MacGregor boy, and of how he has issued a proclamation. The proclamation alone is not strong enough, however, and he felt that a stringent bylaw to prevent dogs running at large should be passed by the council.

Ald. Cooper asked if the MacGregor lad had been sent to New York by authority of the mayor, and, if he was, would the city have to foot the bill?

His worship replied that Dr. MacGregor had taken his son to New York at his own expense. The city has incurred no responsibility in the matter.

A couple of letters bearing on the matter of the bylaw were then read. One was from C. H. Armitage, who in emphatic language declared that there are far too many dogs in the city now, and the other was from the board of health, calling upon the council to put through a bylaw which would stop dogs running at large. The bylaw, which had been prepared by the city solicitor, was then read, and Ald. Cooper immediately objected to it.

"I think it would be going too far to pass a bylaw making it a crime for a man to allow his dog, whether muzzled or not, to run at large," said Ald. Cooper. "If a man is compelled to keep his dog confined in his yard, then the city will be unable to collect taxes for the dog. If we pass a bylaw compelling people to muzzle all dogs which

ZELDA DAMERON

BY MEREDITH NICHOLSON.

[Copyrighted by the Bobbs-Merrill Company, Indianapolis.]

"It's too bad to disturb you; you have an appearance of comfort that rests the soul."

"Generously spoken! I'm waiting; and while I wait I may as well be cool."

"Oh, you're waiting," said Morris, irrelevantly.

Olive looked up at him innocently, and asked:

"Yes; aren't you—for the same person?"

"No; I was just passing—I had an errand in here."

"I'm glad you did," declared Olive, soberly. "I think we should always do our errands. Zee and I are doing a few this morning."

"Oh, yes; you and Miss Dameron. I thought I recognized Zan at the door."

"It was very discerning of you, to be sure; and then—you thought of your errand!" and Olive held up her book and scanned the gilt top with minute care. When she looked at him he was laughing and she laughed, too. "Let's be serious," she said. "I don't believe I understand your tactics. You'll have to get better—as Mr. Balcomb would say. You're what he'd call a rank quitter."

Morris made a wry face.

"I thank you for the diagnosis. I suppose we're referring to the same thing."

"Or person. Undoubtedly. And I may as well be quite frank with you. They have all told me how talented you are; but I really don't see it. It's a good thing you've quit; you couldn't have made it anyhow. I warned her against you in the beginning and I rarely make mistakes."

He had begun the day humbly and her mild flagellation was grateful to his bruised spirit.

"You're the pride of the bar, aren't you?" she asked sweetly.

"Now you're touching me where I'm sensitive. You can afford to be merciful."

"Only to the deserving. You've always rather flattered yourself that you were quick of apprehension and all that sort of thing—that you took in the situation without having it forced upon you. You've had just such conceit, Mr. Leighton and it hasn't been justified by the facts."

"I'll admit everything you could charge against me; but what can I do? I did my best."

"Which wasn't very good. I must say. You weary me beyond words, Mr. Leighton!"

They both laughed at her earnestness.

"If I were you I shouldn't face her here; and she will be here in a minute. You'd better go. If you should care enough for our good opinion to come out to see us—please note the plurals—I'll see if I can do anything for you. But you have neither tact nor judgment. And you're certainly an awful lot of trouble."

He smiled cheerfully. He felt that under her irony she really meant to be encouraging.

"I think I'll come out tonight, if you don't mind," said Morris.

"Oh, suit yourself! Don't put yourself out for anything in the world. But"—and Olive hesitated and looked at Morris searchingly—"you're very slow of comprehension or you might know that—that she has other burdens to bear—besides you! And now I'm sorry I said that to you, for it isn't fair to her; so please run on and don't be foolish any more."

She dropped her eyes to her book and did not look at him again.

Morris went to the State House but Zelda was in his thoughts all day. He knew Olive well enough to understand that she wished him to know that Zelda's way was not all clear; and he at once conjectured that it must be her father who was the cause of her trouble. He was as angry with himself as even Olive could have wished for having sulked since Zelda rebuffed him. He could not imagine how much Olive knew of what had occurred the last time he visited the farm; but she clearly meant to encourage him in her own somewhat unsatisfactory way. As he speculated upon the matter, the wish to aid Zelda, if he could, took possession of him to the exclusion of all other thoughts of her: and evening found him bound for the farm, behind a very fair livery horse. The possibility of meeting Balcomb again was not to be risked.

When he reached the farm house, Mr. Dameron was sitting on the veranda with Zelda and Olive. After discussing the heat of the city and the lower temperature of the country for a few minutes he went into the house.

"I have some papers to study. I never quite free myself of business. Do so when you are young, Mr. Leighton—you'll not have an opportunity later on."

He bowed and walked with his shuffling step across the veranda and into the house. Olive did most of the talking now that the young people were alone. She wished to create as much cheer as possible before disappearing; and she lingered until there was hardly a possibility that any one else would come—unless it should be Pollock, and Pollock, she said to herself, was a wise young man who knew well enough that two are company and three are not. She rose abruptly.

"Zelda, I haven't written to mother for a week. I must get busy—as Mr. Leighton's old college friend says, or I can't mail my letter tomorrow. Please don't notice my absence. If you hear a sound of murder inside it will be I—fighting June bugs."

It was pleasant on the veranda. The night was one of stars, the moon that had shone upon Leighton's previous visit having gone the way of old moons. Insects greeted the dark with their dissonances. The air was heavy with the sweetness and languor of a midsummer night. Far away, through the trees, a soft light crept silently; it was steady and strong and seemed to cut a path for itself. There was something weird and unearthly about it, as it lighted here and there some new bit of landscape; but presently a low rumble began to accompany it and explained away its mystery. It was an interurban car's powerful electric headlight marking a ghostly right of way across farms and through woodlands.

"Not bad, that," said Leighton when the light had disappeared.

"No. It makes our nights more interesting. We can follow the headlight for miles from our upper windows. It suggests a goblin stealing across the country with a bullseye lantern."

"Looking for what?"

"Other goblins, I should think."

The talk of ghosts seemed ominous and Leighton changed the subject. She seemed to him more baffling than ever—a part of the night's mystery.

"I had a brief note from Mr. Merriam today. He seems to be taking his Saratoga rather sadly."

"Aunt Julia hasn't written me at all. She feels that I've basely deserted her. Uncle Rodney writes to me every day or two to tell me how charming it is, and how many perfectly lovely young women he meets. He does that to increase my sorrow in staying at home."

"We'll have to confront him with our respective letters, your cheerful one and mine in a doleful key, when he comes back."

"Dear Uncle Rodney! He can be just as disagreeable to me as he pleases. I believe I'd rather have him scold me than have the praise of most people," said Zelda.

Olive had not warned her of Morris' coming, but her cousin's plea of letter writing as an excuse for going indoors was not wholly sincere, as Zelda knew. But there was no escaping this talk with Morris Leighton on the veranda, and she began with sudden energy to speak rapidly of many irrelevant and frivolous things. It was not an easy matter to meet thus a man who a fortnight before had declared himself her lover. She did not try tonight her old manner of chaffing him almost to the point of impudence; she had no heart for that now. And she felt moreover his manliness and strength; there was an appeal in her heart that almost cried to him. She talked of the past winter; of the Dramatic Club; of the drolleries of Herr Schmidt, and of the people who had fled the town for the summer, and all with a gaiety that did not ring true.

LONGEST GAME OF THE SEASON; EIGHTEEN INNINGS AT ST. LOUIS

The longest game of the present baseball season was played on Saturday at St. Louis between the St. Louis and Chicago National League clubs. The match went eighteen innings, and it was won by Chicago by a score of 2 to 1. St. Louis tied by scoring a run in the ninth, and during the next eight innings neither team could get a man across the plate. A triple and a long fly secured the winning run for Chicago. The fielding of the winners was remarkable, 85 chances being accepted without an error. It was a pitchers' battle also, Taylor and Reulbach doing all the box work, and allowing a total of only 26 hits in the eighteen innings.

New York and Boston played twelve innings at New York. In this game it also happened that the score was 2 to 1; that the teams tied in the ninth, and Taylor a pitcher, also figured in the game.

MARTIN LUTHER'S CHAIR

Dr. Torrey Will Have It for Personal Use During His Revival.

London, June 26.—What is said to have been at one time the favorite chair of Martin Luther, has been loaned to Dr. Torrey for his personal use while conducting revival meetings in London. As an article of furniture there is nothing particularly striking or impressive about it. The carving on the framework is good, but not elaborate. It is a solid, substantial, well-built chair that no one need be afraid to sit down on. Having tried it, I can vouch for it that it makes a very comfortable seat. If Dr. Torrey does not always derive inspiration from its use he is at least assured of a good rest every time he plants himself in it. From the fact that the great religious reformer preferred it to the straight-backed, hard-bottomed chair of the period one would be justified in inferring that he did not believe in needless mortification of the flesh and could occasionally at least thoroughly enjoy taking life easy.

The history of the chair seems to be well authenticated by documentary evidence. In 1523 Luther married Katherine von Bora of Saxony, into whose family 22 years later a member of the Aurauner family married. Martin Luther presented the chair to the newly married couple as a wedding gift. That was about one year before his death. The chair has ever since remained in the possession of the Aurauner family as a cherished heirloom. From Mme. Aurauner, who recently died at Triuchtlingen, Bavaria, it passed to her niece, Mrs. Cruickshank, now living in London. It was she who loaned it to Dr. Torrey.

CRICKET.

LINDSAY LOST TO ROSEDALE.

Lindsay, June 24. — Rosedale, of Toronto, and Lindsay played cricket here today, the former winning by a score of 61 to 55. It was a one-inning game, but a sharp contest from start to finish. Shelton, for Lindsay, and Davidson, for Rosedale, led in the batting. Read, of Rosedale, captured six wickets for ten runs.

THE AUTO.

VAUGHN BROKE RECORDS.

New York, June 24. — When Guy Vaughn finished his 24-hour race today in his 40 horse-power car at the Empire City track, Yonkers, during which he broke two records, the track was in such poor condition that the races scheduled for the afternoon were postponed until Monday. The most important of these was the $2,000 match race between Chevrolet and Barney Oldfield.

THE OAR.

WILL COMPETE AT HAMBURG.

New York, June 24. — John F. Mulcahey and William Varley, the champion double-scull oarsmen of America, sailed on the steamer Patricia today to compete in the Royal International regatta at Hamburg.

RECORD ENTRIES FOR HENLEY.

London, June 24.—The entries for the Henley regatta this year constitute a record, there being 57, against 44 in 1904. The entries for the grand challenge cup, which were announced tonight, are: The Vesper Boat Club, of Philadelphia; Christ College, Cambridge; the Belgian crew, Jesus College, Cambridge, and the Leander, the London and the Thames Boat Clubs.

THE TURF.

SATURDAY'S WINNERS.

At Sheepshead Bay—Sandhurst, 11 to 5; Roseben, 3 to 2; Security, 15 to 1; Agile, 13 to 5; Leonard Joe Hayman, 8 to 5; Hippocrates, 9 to 2.

At Detroit—Clandestine, 4 to 1; Tichimingo, 4 to 5; Hans Wagner, 4 to 1; Red Car, 3 to 1; Fallen Leaf, 8 to 1; Miss Anxious, 7 to 5; Mizzen Mast, 5 to 2.

At Cincinnati—Sweetie, 6 to 5; Concert, 13 to 1; Prince Silver Wings, 1 to 3; White Plume, 18 to 5; Arabelle, 12 to 1; Haviland, 9 to 2.

A LUNCH WITH BARRIE

Author's Shyness Caused Disappointment to Charming Actress.

London, June 26.—J. M. Barrie's incurable shyness is responsible for disappointment mingled with amusement on the part of a promising young English actor. The girl, who is unusually comely, was engaged recently to understudy the leading part in one of Barrie's plays, and has been rehearsing under the dramatist's own eye. Her work seemed to please Barrie and at the end of a rehearsal, not long ago he came up and asked for the pleasure of her company at luncheon. Unfortunately, however, the young actress had an engagement she could not forego and was obliged to refuse.

A few days later Barrie again approached her in his quiet, rather nervous way, and repeated the invitation. Again, to her immense chagrin, the girl had an important appointment. Shortly afterwards the invitation was extended once more. This time the young actor accepted and was in high glee over the prospect of a pleasant tete-a-tete with Barrie, and reveling in advance over the good things she expected him to say.

At the appointed time the pair left the theater and went to a near-by restaurant, where a quiet corner was secured. With some obvious diffidence, Barrie ordered lunch. Then there was silence. The fair guest, rather surprise, hazarded some remarks which were answered in monosyllables. Silence again, broken after a little by another desperate attempt on the part of the girl to make conversation. But her companion answered hardly a word and so the luncheon went on in mute solemnity. At the end of it, Barrie inquired gravely, "Shall we return to the theater?" And they did.

Jeweler's "Diamond Tree."

"I haven't a diamond tree," said the jeweler. "Smith, over the way there, has one, though. At least, so I've been told."

"What is a diamond tree?"

"It is a tree where diamonds grow, of course."

"No, seriously. What is it?"

The jeweler smiled.

"Well," he said, "a diamond tree is a swindle, a very profitable swindle, and one that can be carried on forever with mighty little risk of detection. I'll explain it to you.

"I am a jeweler, and you bring me a diamond ring for repairs. I take the diamond out of your ring and I put back in its place a similiar diamond that is a little, a very little smaller. You naturally don't discover the trick that has been played on you.

"The same day a brooch is brought to me, and since the central stone of the brooch is a little larger than your diamond, I get rid of yours and keep the bigger gem. In this way, four or five times in one day, I make diamond exchanges, keeping always a better stone than I part with.

"On good diamond trees diamonds as small as pinheads have been known to grow to the size of peas in two days. A good tree, too, won't have only one diamond growing on it at a time. A dozen stones or more will be simultaneously increasing in size and value as the days pass."—Chicago Chronicle.

MILK THAT IS BEING SUPPLIED LONDONERS BY THE DAIRYMEN

Semi-Annual Report of Dr. Hutchinson—Average Is Not High.

The following is the semi-annual report of Medical Health Officer Hutchinson on the milk supply of London. It will be of interest to every housekeeper:

I herewith present a report of the inspection of herds, dairies and quality of milk supplied the city during the winter and spring months. The average per cent of richness or butter fat, in about one hundred samples was a fraction over 3.75 per cent. This is not a high average, and is no doubt due to the high price of provender. The herds and dairies are given as heretofore, in the order of merit: A, B and C, and the milk in thee classes, 1, 2 and 3, according to quality: that is, the percentage of butter fat in a given quantity. One sample had cream added, this being done for publication.

CHINA TAKES LAW INTO OWN HANDS

Will Forbid Immigration of Laborers Into U. S.

SOLVES A VEXING PROBLEM

Relieves American Government of Necessity for Insulting the Chinese Empire.

Washington, D. C., June 26.—China is about to take the question of Mongolian immigration to the United States into her own hands. Within a few weeks the Empress Dowager will publish an edict forbidding Chinamen of the laboring class making an attempt to come to this country.

It is one of the most important reforms which that Government ever has considered. It means not only an improvement in the relations of China and the United States through the removal of many irritating questions but the assertion on the part of the Celestial Empire of independent sovereignty and of its purpose to prevent the insult and humiliation of its people. This attitude is one of the results of the victories of the Japanese over the Russians, as Chinamen now are imbued with the belief that they as well as the Japanese are the equals of the white race.

Information of the solution which the Chinese Government has been evolving to the serious immigration question has reached the President, and if the edict is issued at once it will have undoubtedly a big influence upon the policy he will adopt in connection with the matter of exclusion.

The President explained recently to members of the American Asiatic Association and Southern Cotton Manufacturers he did not believe in the harsh methods employed by immigration inspectors in the enforcement of the law, and Secretary Metcalf stated that these officers sought to be courteous and decent, but the methods applied were those fixed by law and upheld by the courts.

Secretary Taft in a speech a few days ago made it clear that the policy of the administration is in the direction of leniency, and that such a policy is necessary in order that no harm be done American trading interests in the far east is shown, according to official reports, by the way in which the boycott of American goods is spreading in China.

The boycott is to be maintained by Chinese merchants, so resolutions they adopted read, "until terms are proposed and the treaty modified and made to meet the requirements of justice." The Chinese have been informed that clauses in the proposed treaty are even more severe than in the old one, which expired last December. The restrictions imposed by the latter referred to the laboring class alone, while those proposed will include Chinese of all classes who may seek to enter American territory.

When Mr. Rockhill, minister of the United States to China, left Washington in April he carried a draft of the treaty, which carefully defined the character of men who should be permitted entrance into this country. It named five classes, as did the old treaty—merchants, students, travelers, teachers and officials.

The Chinese Government preferred that negotiations should be conducted here by Sir Chentung Liang Cheng, one of the most capable diplomats accredited to the United States. He was familiar with the conditions in this country, and had been collecting a mass of information which would have been valuable in enabling him to present the case from the point of view of his nation.

The result of the decision that Mr. Rockhill should carry on the negotiations was that he found Wai Wu Pu, of the Chinese foreign office, averse to making any concessions or meeting him half way. It became necessary to let the matter drop and no treaty has been signed.

It is stated, further, that no treaty will be made with this country unless under the most favorable conditions until China ascertains what the future policy of the American Government is to be. This policy will be determined during the coming session of Congress and the direction it should take in the interest of the welfare of the United States and the good relations with China will be pointed out by the President in his forthcoming annual message.

From every point of view, it is stated here, China's prohibition of her coolie subjects to emigrate to the United States would have excellent results. It will relieve this country of the necessity of adopting legislation for the exclusion of this class, which in itself is an insult to a sovereign nation.

Fearing something of the kind would follow the agitation on the Pacific coast, Japan several years ago forbade the emigration of her subjects to the United States.

If China should enforce sternly the proposed edict, as it is promised she will, American immigration inspectors will be able to turn over to her any laborers who come to the United States and punishment will follow which will deter others from following their example.

Some exception may be made in the case of the Philippine Islands. Thousands of Chinese laborers go there every year. It has been their custom from time immemorial and the American consul at Amoy has reported that if strict exclusion be imposed distress will be brought to the people of that province. The authorities believe that some exception may be made to a certain number of Chinese, but this is a matter to be determined by negotiations between the Government and the Chinese authorities.

Even if China forbids immigration to the United States the treaty will have to be negotiated eventually describing the exempted classes. It was pointed out today that this Government could not be expected to admit the coolie as a merchant because he sold some small articles like a peddler in the country districts.

China is willing to make concessions on this point. All she wants is that her subjects shall not suffer insult and injury through ignorant and discourteous inspectors. The President has taken up this point and has given stringent instructions to immigration officers.

While China seriously is discussing the immigration question she has not been unmindful of the harm which may be done her Government by the Chinese Reform Association. This organization has been collecting funds in America and drilling the Chinese as military bodies with the intention some day of making a serious effort to introduce reform into the ancient empire.

Sir Chentung Liang Cheng has been active in ascertaining the purposes and work of the association, and has called the attention of the state department to the violation of international comity involved in the proceedings of reformers in the United States. The Federal Government has been unable to prevent the drilling of organizations of Chinese, but the governors of states have been informed of the necessity of seeing that China should have no just ground for complaint.

VACATION HOUSE OF THE JESUITS

It Is Near the Chesapeake in Region Filled With Historical Association.

New York, June 26.—On an airy cape at the mouth of St. Inigo's Creek, and perhaps a dozen miles from the Chesapeake, stands the vacation house of the Jesuits, in old Catholic Maryland of the Calvert palatinate.

The county is St. Mary's, and St. Inigo's Creek is a branch of the noble and lovely St. Mary's River. Just across the wide mouth of the creek on a fine plateau commanding the river is the site of the old custom house of the period when the capital of Maryland was the little seventeenth century town of St. Peters.

Here dwelt the collector of customs, and from his commanding bluff he could halt any craft coming up the river, and demand tribute for the viceregal Government. St. Mary's itself, with its impressive shaft commemorating the Calverts and their vanished palatinate, lies six or eight miles up the river in a lovely hill country rich in history and tradition.

The Jesuits could hardly have chosen a lovelier or more congenial spot for their retreat, or one more remote in spirit and aspect from the affairs of this century. The whole geography of the region commemorates the saints of the church. The next great estuary of the Potomac is St. Clement's Bay.

A dozen miles across the river is the birthplace of Washington in Westmoreland County, Va., a region where one of the commonent family names is that of the first president. At quaint little old Leonardtown, the county seat of St. Mary's, is a Catholic school. The very negroes who fish the waters and work the farms are Catholics, as were their slave ancestors for generations.

That green and airy cape where the Jesuits find retreat from time to time is almost 30 miles from the nearest railway station on either shore of Chesapeake Bay. When the chief buildings of a neighboring county town were burned some years ago Baltimore was four days in learning the news.

The fathers go to and from the retreat by means of a tri-weekly steamboat, which is normally thirty hours in making the voyage between Baltimore and Washington. The nearest wharf is two miles by water, and a good deal more by land up St. Inigo's Creek.

The steamer makes the wharf with so much deliberation that visitors to the vacation house from Washington often leave the boat at St. George's Island, some miles up the Potomac, walk across the island, and sail thence by small boats to their destination. Eight or ten hours later the steamer, after having visited meanwhile half a dozen wharves up and down the tortuous and beautiful tributaries of the Potomac on the Virginia side, reaches St. Inigo's Creek, and enables travelers from the retreat to make Baltimore in ten or twelve hours.

As seen from the water, the retreat suggests almost anything but a scene of ascetic rites. The vast square yellow house, four stories high and nobly proportioned, looks, with its green blinds and many windows, like a well-kept seaside hotel of a substantiality unusual with such structures.

At a nearer approach it is found to be a great, comfortable house, severely simple in its appointments, with a pleasant garden at hand and a prevailing atmosphere of neatness. Here the brothers of the order come for longer or shorter stays, some only until the next boat can take them up the Potomac to Washington, or down to the mouth of the river, and thence to Baltimore.

Nothing is commoner aboard the boats that link this quiet and remote region with the outside world than the vision of a Jesuit father unostentatiously occupied with his devotions, or keenly eyeing the land that was once the Catholic stronghold in the English-speaking new world. These black-coated figures are just such as have been familiar to these shores and their inhabitants for two and three-quarters centuries, and the fathers of today are as much at home in old St. Mary's as were those who came with the Calverts when they exchanged the inhospitable climate of Newfoundland for this land of warmth and richness.

The beauty and fertility of the land must fill the visiting Catholic with regret at the thought of what the Calverts lost for the church. The bluff shores of St. Inigo's are clad in rich woodland or lined with cultivated fields as far as the eye can reach.

Within sight of the retreat is the oldest house in Maryland, a quaint and lovely homestead looking across its rich old box garden to St. Marys and the Potomac. Wheat and corn and tobacco are still grown in the staid, old-fashioned way, and oxen are the chief draft animals.

All manner of barnyard fowl flourish ashore, and the waters fairly swarm with wild ducks and geese in winter, and all the year round with fish of many kinds. Eastern Shore men boast that they are the best fed people in the world, but there are few places where one may live more cheaply and substantially than within sight of the yellow house, where the Jesuits find refuge from the noise of the twentieth century.

Two or three dollars will furnish fish for a whole Lent, and fifty rich farms within easy sailing distance are ready at hand with cheap fare for the rest of the year.

The British Army Scandal.

The purity and integrity of the public service of Great Britain have been long considered an example to other nations, so that the scandal unearthed in the war department has come as a universal surprise. The mysterious efficiency ascribed to the war office was shown to be wanting when put to the test in South Africa, but the British people had not suspected that incompetency was associated with corruption. The commission, headed by Sir William Butler, a distinguished soldier, reports that about $30,000,000 was lost through speculation and criminal waste in the disposal of unused military stores. The committee intimates that the Government tried, not only to hamper the inquiry, but to keep the report from the public. "Time has not been allowed us in which to extend our investigations into the great body of the transactions." Persons of high rank and station have been implicated in the frauds, and have used their "pull" with the Government to prevent exposure. In justice it must be said that the case is an isolated one, without a parallel in British civil or military administration for many years, and there is no evidence that corruption is systematic and deep-seated. The bane of the British army, and the same may be said of the civil branches of the public service, is not improbity, but the undue importance of social prestige. No aristocracy has been so mindful of its public responsibility, or has given such vitality to the state, but the army or any other department cannot be made a social or class preserve without some sacrifice of efficiency. The army is a stronghold of class privilege and is honeycombed with social intrigue, with the result that influence and "pull" too often count for more than merit. The British people are jealous of their national honor, and it is likely they will demand that the army scandal be probed to the bottom, no matter who may be exposed.

Canada and Japan.

The Minister of Agriculture announces that the Dominion Government is negotiating for improved commercial relations with Japan.

The Japanese Government has special treaties with Great Britain, Germany, Austro-Hungary and France, by which a limited number of manufactured products are admitted to Japan at a reduction of duty, averaging about one-third of the general rate. This privilege is extended by Japan to seventeen other countries, but Canada is not included. She was included in a prior treaty between Great Britain and Japan, but this expired shortly after Sir Wilfrid Laurier became premier. At that time it was feared that Canada's commercial freedom might be impaired by the imperial treaty. Besides, the Canadian people classed the Japanese with the Chinese. The Dominion Government chose to be excluded from the provisions of the treaty at that time, but wishes now to take advantage of it, since there is no danger that our commercial autonomy will be affected, and our views of Japan and the Japanese have undergone a change. The Dominion Government has communicated with the British colonial office, inquiring whether Canada can still avail herself of the treaty privileges.

The Federal Government of Canada has shown its goodwill toward Japan by vetoing the anti-Japanese legislation of British Columbia. The Government of Japan will no doubt meet us in the same spirit. The right of Japanese to enter this country freely would be guaranteed by such a treaty, a provision which would not meet with the favor of many people in British Columbia, but Japan has become so powerful that no nation can safely impose disabilities upon her. The island empire is on the eve of a great industrial development, and will afford a growing market for Canadian products, as we have a geographical advantage over European competitors.

Railway Accidents.

The New York Central Railway Company, in consequence of the disaster on the Lake Shore road at Mentor, Ohio, has returned to a twenty-hour schedule between Chicago and New York. The president of the company declares that high speed had nothing to do with the accident, the cause being a misplaced facing-point switch — the act of a train-wrecker. This led directly into a side track, and the derailment was due to the abruptness of the curve. It is pointed out that the train was running about a mile a minute, but this speed is duplicated or exceeded every day in the week on easy stretches of road on various railway systems. Discussing this question the New York Post says that the existence of such a side track on any main line is universally recognized as a danger which grows greater as the speed of trains increases, unless there is a signal some distance back by which the engineer is warned in time to shut off steam, and apply the brakes. Such signals cannot show "all right" for high speed as long as the switch is set for the siding. The distant signal is needed, because without it every engineer of a fast train is at the mercy of every fog, or snowstorm, or cloud of smoke (from another train), which may obscure his vision. He is bound to know that every switch is in the right position, yet he usually has less than a minute in which to give his attention to its signal, so that the only safe arrangement is to provide a space of several hundred yards between the signal and the switch. On some lines the switches will be found to be mostly "trailing"—so laid that a train must be run past them and be backed before it can get into the side-track; such a switch set wrong does no serious harm. Switches on these roads not "trailing" have their distant signals, or are connected with the automatic block-signal system, which of itself constitutes a distant signal for every switch of either kind. The practical consideration for the railroad is that of making facing-point switches as safe as possible or else abolishing them.

Since the above was written, the New York Central announces that the 18-hour schedule will be resumed, investigation having proved that the speed of the train was not a factor in the disaster. It is an established fact that the proportion of accidents is no greater in the case of these "flyers" than in the case of slower trains, one reason being that special vigilance and care are bestowed upon the flyers, and that they are run only on railway systems of the highest physical standard.

Can't Even Make Peace.

[Philadelphia Telegraph.]

Russia, unable to make war, seems to be also unable to make peace. Never in the history of the world, so far as known to its present inhabitants, has there been such a colossal, such an inconceivably far-reaching example of incompetence and consequent failure as that exhibited by the Government of that unfortunate empire.

The Basso Profundo.

[Winnipeg Free Press.]

The Basso Pr-r-rofundo, in evening dress,
He tackles the ro-ho-ho-ho-lling sea,
Boom, boom!
And in subway staccato attempts to express
The mar-r-iner's ag-on-ee,
Boom, boom!
'Tis the song of the anvil, asleep in the deep,
In a dar-r-r-k br-r-own minor-r-r key,
And he swings as he sings, and he sings as he swings,
To the depths—to the depths of the X—Y—Z.
See! a ship in dist-tr-r-ess, with tattered shrouds!
Is none who will su-hu-hu-hu-ccor bring?
Boom, boom!
But the stor-r-rm r-r-rocks long, and the surf beats loud—
While the basso continues to sing,
Boom, boom!
Lo! the vessel r-r-reels and is sinking fast,
But the vo-ca-list, what cares he?
* * * * * *
He's the Stor-r-rm King's pal, and he laughs, ha! ha!
His mur-r-derous wor-r-rk to see—
Let them howl as he growls, let him growl as they howl,
In the depths—in the depths of the X—Y—Z.
Oh, the Basso Profundo is r-r-reckless of life
When he sings on the co-ho-ho-hon-cert stage,
Boom, boom!
Yet he's kind to his childr-r-ren and meek to his wife
When she asks for his weekly wage,
Boom, boom!
And it's str-r-r-range that this happy domestic man
Such a ter-r-rible fiend can be,
When he growls as they howl, and they howl as he growls
To the depths—to the depths of the X—Y—Z.

Roosevelt's Little Joke.

[Boston Herald.]

When the President alighted at Red Hill, Va., the other day, when he went over to see his wife's new cottage, he noticed that an elderly woman was about to board the train, and, with his usual courtesy, he rushed forward to assist her. That done, he grasped her hand and gave it an "executive shake." This was going too far, and the woman, snatching her hand away and eyeing him wrathfully, exclaimed: "Young man, I don't know who you are, and I don't care a cent; but I must say you are the freshest somebody I've ever seen in these parts." The President tells this as a good joke on himself. The Virginia country people, however, will soon get used to his breeziness of manner.

Japan a Dangerous Foe.

[Washington Post.]

It may be remarked that the nation that ventures a war with this new world's power must have enormous capacity to withstand punishment. None other has any business to undertake it. It is possible that there are nations that can overcome Japan in the desperate game of war, but it would be at a frightful loss of blood and treasure, and it will be a reckless government that shall enter upon a conflict with her without a just cause and the completest preparation. Japan's victory against Russia makes our duty plain—we must be rid of our colonies or get a navy second to none. Our next war will be for our colonies. England is tickled to death. She thinks we will need her. Some of our own folks seem to think so too.

OPPOSITION IS WASTING TIME

Indulging in Aimless and Purposeless Discussion to Keep House Sitting.

Ottawa, June 26.—As intimated on Saturday, the outlook for an eary prorogation of Parliament is discouraging. It seems to the old parliamentary hands that unless we are to have Parliament meeting all the time some method of checking idle and useless discussion must be adopted. It is quite true that when the Liberals were in Opposition they debated important questions at length, but they had a definite aim and a fixed goal in view. It was to expose certain iniquities of which the Government had been guilty and to arouse the public mind. In this they succeeded, and at all times they were held within legitimate bounds by strong party discipline.

The present Opposition have been indulging in the most aimless and purposeless discussion, beginning nowhere and ending nowhere. There can be no possible objection to the Opposition putting their views on record and taking a reasonable time for that purpose, but when it comes to the constant repetition of the same thing it creates a feeling of disgust. Two or three men who have made their first appearance in parliament are the greatest offenders. These members do not realize that there is no speedier way to be put down as a bore than to be continually bobbing to their feet with criticism or abuse. The new-comers, however, are not altogether to blame. Some old-timers from Quebec and Ontario have been talking as glibly about Northwest affairs as though they had the authority and experience conferred by years of residence there. It is a most peculiar thing in connection with the discussion on the redistribution of the constituencies in the Northwest, that the less the Opposition member of the class alluded to knows of the country the more exhaustively he insists upon talking. If the Opposition, or at least the talkative section of them, are under the impression that they can force the Government to yield to their demands, the sooner they rid themselves of that delusion the better. A gentleman who enjoys the confidence of the Prime Minister said last night: "Sir Wilfrid Laurier is not to be bluffed. If necessary he is prepared to sit until the 1st of November in order that this legislation may be passed. If the Opposition think differently they are making a great mistake. Sir Wilfrid is in fine health; in fact, he never felt better, and if the Opposition are determined to keep the House sitting he can endure it as well as they can."

FORMALDEHYDE IN MILK

What Some Brantford Folk Have Been Drinking Last Few Days.

Brantford, June 26.—It may be a surprise to some citizens of Brantford to know that during the past week or so they have been drinking milk diluted with formaldehyde. Nevertheless, some of the milk dealers, not all by any means, have been using the fluid in their milk. Formaldehyde is a volatile fluid used by undertakers in the preservation of dead bodies.

This rather startling fact was revealed Saturday when Dr. Pearson made his official test of the milk samples brought in by Sanitary Inspector Glover. He found that in a number of cases formaldehyde had been used for the ostensible purpose of preventing the milk from souring. The intense heat was probably the cause of the dealers resorting to such extreme measures. The fluid would not affect the taste of the milk, and as far as known, would have no injurious effects, unless taken in very large quantities.

The authorities are indignant at the discovery, and it is possible some of the permits may be canceled. The general result of the test was bad.

John Hay Ill.

Newbury, N. H., June 26.—Secretary of State John Hay, was prostrated by an attack of Uraemia at his summer home here last evening, but early today his condition has been relieved by a local physician and two specialists, who had come from Boston by special train, and it is expected that he will soon be in his usual health. The attack which was similar to others experienced by the secretary during recent years, was attributed to a cold contracted on his journey from Washington to Newbury last Saturday.

A Wild Night Storm.

Belleville, June 26. — A very severe electrical storm passed over this section last night, the lightning and thunder being terrific, and the rain descending in sheets. Thomas Callaghan's house, on George street, this city, was struck by the lightning and considerably damaged, but no one was hurt. A new barn, belonging to Wm. PECK TALKFEST IS CONCLUDED

Rev. Royal Raymond Finishes His Martyrdom.

IS NOT CONVERT TO THEISM

Lets the Apostle of That Creed O a e at Him for Eleven Hours for Land Church Needed.

Boston, June 26.—The martyrdom of the Rev. Royal M. Raymond is over. The last spark of the fagots has burned out, the rack has taken its last twist at him. His great work is done. The Methodists of Stratford, Conn., own their land and never, never again, so long as he lives, will the Rev. Royal M. Raymond have to listen to the talk of Thaddeus K. Peck, apostle of theism.

The Rev. Royal M. Raymond, as all the world knows, is the pastor who agreed to listen to Thaddeus K. Peck for eleven hours in return for a $250 piece of land which the church wanted. Thaddeus K. Peck had been trying and trying for years to get a clergyman to listen to his hateful heresy; he adopted this measure in the belief that he had only to show the goods to make a convert out of the Rev. Royal M. Raymond. The clergyman paid in installments, but when he left Stratford to accept a call to Brooklyn a year ago one hour was still credited to Thaddeus K. Peck.

Yesterday Mr. Raymond went back to Stratford to settle up the score. Thaddeus was waiting at the station, his side whiskers bristling with enthusiasm, his eyes glittering.

"How do you do?" said Mr. Peck. "Ready to listen to reason this time? I've got a powerful lot of arguments to finish you off. I'm going to get you."

"Brother," said the reverend doctor, "you could argue with me through eternity and never win me to your false doctrine. To prove it and to clinch the title to the church land forever I am willing to throw in three hours. Talk to me for four hours, I am feeling strong!"

"Hallelujah!" said Mr. Peck. "Then I'll sure get you. Come on, for I'm aching to wrestle with you."

Mr. Peck took the clergyman to Savin Rock Park. They went to the pavilion, where Mr. Peck nailed the martyr with his glittering eyes and proceeded to burn him up with the fire of his enthusiasm.

"All humanity," began Mr. Peck, with his customary opening formula, further than which no clergyman ever listened to him free, "all humanity could not create a single segment of the hair on a monkey's tail without the help of the infinite. How do you account for that?"

The Rev. Mr. Raymond didn't attempt to account for it. He merely set his teeth, clenched his fists, and, with pale, drawn face, prepared to stand it like a man.

For the first hour Mr. Peck stuck to natural history. The relation of the Abyssinian ibex to the plan of creation and the link between the mastodon and divinity occupied a quarter of this period In the second hour, going easily and without effort—for he was trained to the minute—Mr. Peck tagged onto chemistry and elucidated the relation between asbestos and original sin. In this period the Rev. Mr. Raymond was groggy. His Bible holders, the Episcopalian rector and the Baptist preacher, who stood behind him with stopped ears, thought he would never last out the round.

He came up pale and smiling in the third hour, however, and stalled cleverly while Mr. Peck tried to pin him down to an admission that the nebulae of Orion disprove the theory of infant damnation. The fourth and last period found the parson stalling gamely while the apostle of theism talked like a demon trying to whip in a finisher. Dusk had then fallen.

"Time!" cried the Episcopal rector, consulting his watch and pulling the plugs from his ears. The Bible holders vaulted into the pavilion and overwhelmed with congratulation their plucky little champion.

"Aren't you converted?" cried Thaddeus K. Peck, aggressively, but a little anxiously.

"No!" cried the Methodist martyr of Connecticut. "Never!"

Thaddeus K. Peck twirled a side whisker and heaved a sigh.

"I wish," said he, "I had just one more hour's chance at you. I had you going. I could see it in your eye. Besides, I had a fine argument about the behemoth of Holy Writ."

"Brother," said the Rev. Mr. Raymond, "man was born to suffer. I will give you that hour."

"No!" cried the Episcopalian and the Baptist, together.

Yet the Rev. Royal Raymond was firm. It was getting late, however, and even a martyr at the stake gets hungry.

They adjourned, therefore, to a restaurant, where the Rev. Mr. Raymond ate and kept up his strength, while Mr. Peck talked. When the clergyman had finished his own clam chowder, he reached over and annexed Mr. Peck's. The apostle of theism never noticed.

"Time!" cried the Episcopalian, clicking his watch and removing the plugs.

The Rev. Mr. Raymond rose and slapped a legal document and a fountain pen before Mr. Peck.

"Sign!" he said. The apostle of theism signed.

"Aren't you converted?" he asked.

"No!" cried the Rev. Mr. Raymond.

"I suppose," faltered Mr. Peck, "that the Episcopal Church would like some land? Lots of it going on the same terms."

"No, thank you," said the rector.

"Nor the Baptists?" asked Mr. Peck.

"No, indeed!" cried the disciple of Immersion.

Thaddeus K. Peck arose with a sigh.

"Anyhow," he said, "I believe he's converted. I think he's just stubborn and stiff necked."

Next week the Methodists of Stratford will place Mr. Peck's deed of gift, with all due ceremony, among the archives of the church.

RADIANT WOMANHOOD

The glory and satisfaction of beautiful womanhood can be known only to those possessing the unlimited advantages of health. No weak woman can be happy or enjoy half the pleasures of life. Pallid cheeks, sunken eyes, exhausted nerves, all tell of a terrible struggle to keep up. What the weak woman needs is Ferrozone; it renews restores and vitalizes instantly — it's a "womanly remedy," that's why.

Ferrozone makes women strong, plump and healthful because it contains lots of nutriment the kind that forms muscle, sinew, bone and nerve. Vitalizing blood courses through the body, making delightful color, happy spirits, true womanly strength. Fifty cents buys a box of Ferrozone in any drug store.

LIVERPOOL DAIRY REPORT, WEEK ENDING JUNE 16.

[Hodgson Bros.' Letter.]

Cheese—This has been holiday week, but there has been a steady retail consumptive demand for both old and new cheese. Old are now almost exhausted, and the bulk of the arrivals of new are too green to please buyers, and the cool chambers on the Canadian steamers have hindered the development of the early made cheese this year, so that some of them have reached here practically as green as when they were shipped two or three weeks ago. The decline in the market appears to have been checked this week, owing to good buying in Canada of the early June cheese, which has caused a slight advance, and today's c.i.f. quotations a loss to importers upon present values here, and yet, if an advance is attempted, buyers will resist it very much, as they say the early makes of English are coming in freely, much better value. We quote today: Finest old Canadian, white, 54s per cwt; do, colored, 50s to 51s; finest new Canadian, colored, 46s 6d to 47s 6d; do, white, 46s to 47s; medium States, showing quality, soft and meaty, sell on arrival at 40s to 44s; but skims, offered at 35s to 40s, do not sell readily.

Butter—Both Irish creamery and Danish have advanced 1s to 2s this week, but the demand is not strong, the advance being due to the comparatively small stocks of foreign goods. Under-priced butter keeps very scarce, and is relatively dear. The Copenhagen quotation is 2 kroner higher for next week. We quote today: Choicest Canadian creamery, in 56-lb boxes, 93s to 95s per cwt; choicest Danish, in Kiel casks, 102s to 106s; choicest Russian, do, 93s to 95s; choicest Australian and New Zealand, 90s to 96s; choicest Argentine, 93s to 94s 6d; choicest Irish creamery, 94s to 96s; medium grades, nominally 80s to 85s.

HAY MARKET.

TORONTO.

Toronto, June 24.—Baled Hay—There is a marked dullness about the market, very little trade being done; No. 1 timothy is quoted at $7 75 to $8 per ton for car lots on track here.

Baled Straw—Buyers are not taking hold very freely at the market price, $5 75 to $6 per ton.

PRODUCE MARKET.

TORONTO.

Toronto, June 26.—Wheat—Ontario is steady; No. 2 red and white, 98c to $1; goose nominal, at 85c to 86c; Manitoba firm; No. 1 northern, $1 09 to $1 09½; No. 2, $1 06; No. 3, 91c, at lake ports, and 6c more grinding in transit.

Flour—Steady; Ontario 90 per cent patents, $4 40 to $4 45, in buyers' sacks, west, and 15c to 20c higher for choice; Manitoba, first patents sell at $5 40 to $5 50, second patents at $5 10 to $5 20, and bakers at $5 to $5 10.

Millfeed—Ontario bran is lower, at 12c to $12 50; shorts, $17 to $17 50 for car lots, outside; Manitoba, $17 for bran and $19 to $20 for shorts, at Toronto and equal points.

Barley—Nominal, at 45c for No. 2, 42c for No. 2 extra, and 41c for No. 1 malting, outside.

Rye, 69c, outside.

Corn—Canadian, 52c to 53c, Chatham freights; American easier; No. 2 yellow, 62c to 62½c; No. 3 yellow, 61¼c to 62c, lake and rail freights.

Oats—No. 2, 43c to 44c, west.

Rolled Oats—Cars of bags at $4 25 and barrels at $4 60, on track here; 25c more for broken lots here and 40c more outside.

Peas—No. 2, 70c to 71c, west, and 75c for milling.

Buckwheat, 59c to 60c.

Butter—Receipts of all lines liberal; prices about steady.

Eggs—Firm tone, at 16c to 17c.

KAISER MAY OVER-REACH HIMSELF

France, Backed Up by Britain, Refuses to Meet the German Demands.

London, June 25. — France and Germany are at loggerheads with bayonets bristling in the background. England has made the French cause her own and is prepared for all eventualities. This fact is of the greatest importance, namely, the collapse of the German attempt to alienate France from England. Every possible influence during the past week was brought to bear through the press, society and other public and private channels to convince the French people that England was attempting to use the country as a catspaw against Germany. It was necessary for England to meet this attack with the most powerful and frankest arguments and assurance. There is reason to believe that all the resources of the British Empire were placed unreservedly at the disposal of France, in case her resistance to the German demands should lead to hostilities.

Prime Minister Rouvier's conciliatory conversations with Prince von Radolin, the German ambassador, a week ago, has led Germany to believe that France would give way all along the line. When the French official reply reached Berlin yesterday, however, it was found that while every desire was shown to conciliate Germany, yet France was not disposed to relinquish the definite rights she obtained in Morocco by agreement with Great Britain and Spain. France understands perfectly that Germany's grievance against her is that her general policy has been aggressively anti-German for several years. It was this crucial position which M. Rouvier discussed frankly with Prince von Radolin and upon which he gave such assurances as he believed would completely restore cordial relations.

Your correspondent is able to state on the highest authority that M. Rouvier's representations on this point were to the following effect: Delcasse's policy was his own. He did aim at the isolation of Germany and had received encouragement in this direction from both Russia and Great Britain. This policy was unknown to the French public, the press or the Chamber of Deputies, and had never received their sanction. Russia's collapse had rendered its realization impossible. M. Delcasse's fall should be considered as the end of his personal policy.

Prime Minister Rouvier considered that this should put an end to German resentment. Later indications that it has failed to do so, are rapidly transforming both the official and public attitude toward Germany in the pending negotiations. The continuance of the anti-French policy now that all cause of offense has been removed by M. Delcasse's retirment and M. Rouvier's statement can only have one meaning. It is taken as directed against the nation and not against the individual minister and hence there is complete revulsion of feeling in Paris and a cordial welcoming of English support.

French newspapers and publicists are freely discussing the probably result of a conflict between Germany and France and England in alliance. There is nothing more reassuring than a remarkable article by M. Delafosse, one of the ablest deputies in the Conservative Opposition. It is pointed out in this article that whatever early success German troops might win against France, Germany could not endure for many weeks the destruction of her navy and commerce by an English blockade. France, in fact, has taken heart completely in the last few days. Instead of believing that the Kaiser is determined to force war upon her, she now doubts very strongly his willingness to risk a conflict against two powers.

The next move must come from the Kaiser. The master mind at Berlin has many weapons which he can bring to bear on the situation. The present indications are that his main ambition to break the Anglo-French entente will fail, but he will not neglect other opportunities to profit by the incapacity of Russia. The question on everybody's lips is, will he risk war? England thinks not, and French opinion is now inclined to agree.

Assuming that this view is correct the chief danger lies in the fact that the crisis may be pushed so far that is will be impossible to maintain peace. It is this peril more than actual belief in warlike intentions which is upsetting the market and creating a public anxiety more acute than since the last continental conflict.

"TEXAS" FULLY IDENTIFIED; WILL FIGHT EXTRADITION

London Detectives See the Notorious Burglar and Jail-Breaker at Port Huron.

"Texas" Burdell and no other is the man who was locked up in Port Huron on Friday last and held on suspicion. The Port Huron police were morally positive of his identity from his resemblance to photographs of "Texas," which they saw in one of the circulars sent out after the desperado's escape from this city.

The London police were satisfied when they saw a photo of the captured man on Saturday, and the matter was made certain yesterday by a trip to Port Huron on the part of Detectives Nickle and Egelton.

"Texas" refused to come to London without extradition, but this will, of course, be only a question of time, for Crown Attorney McKillop has already begun proceedings.

Sheriff Thomas Moore, of Port Huron, brought a photo of "Texas" to this city on Saturday evening, and the London detectives recognized the prisoner as soon as they saw it. The two photos taken of "Texas" when he was in the toils here were produced and compared with the one brought by Moore. It could be seen that "Texas" had not changed much during the past two years, his face still bearing the same wide-awake expression, the mouth retaining the old peculiar droop and the forehead the same lines. The only difference was that in the earlier photos the hair was unbrushed and underneath stood the number "17526." In the later photo the hair was neatly parted and the prison mark absent.

"What made you suspect first of all that the man was "Texas'?" Moore was asked.

"O, one of the men was turning over the leaves of an old copy of The Detective (a police journal edited in Chicago) and he came across the picture of 'Texas,' and thought it looked very much like the man we had."

Mr. Moore explained more clearly the reason why the man had been arrested by the Port Huron police. Several barroom tills and gum-slot machines had been robbed during the past week, and the police notified all the banks to watch for men carrying a superabundance of small change. "Texas" went to a bank on Friday and said that he had been working on the boats and thus had come into the possession of a great deal of small change which he desired to turn into bills. The teller of this bank turned "Texas" down, however, refusing to change the money. "Texas" then went to another bank, immediately across the road, and succeeded in geting the teller to change $5 for him. It was at the third bank that the police were notified and the desperado captured.

"Is it true that 'Texas' pulled his gun on his captors?" Mr. Moore was asked.

"Not exactly. You see, Deputy Sheriff Radica and Police Captain Collins came up from behind. They were just about to grab him when 'Texas' turned and saw them, and he quickly moved his left hand towards his inside coat pocket. But Collins and Radica grabbed him like this," and Mr. Moore placed a professional grip on the reporter's wrist to illustrate the point. "When they searched him afterwards they found the gun."

There was no proof that Texas was the man who had robbed the tills, so a charge was registered against him of carrying concealed arms. His sentence on this charge is 45 days. "Texas" had about $17 in small change on him when searched.

When Detectives Nickle and Egelton confronted "Texas" yesterday morning he had nothing to say, one way or the other. He admitted nothing and denied nothing. It was expected that he would submit to the inevitable and consent to go home with the London detectives without extradition.

"Texas" could not see the matter in this light, however, and said: "If anyone wants me in London they will have to fight to get me." Crown Attorney McKillop anticipates no "fighting," however, and expects that "Texas" will once more be behind the bars in this city before the week is out.

Chief of Police Williams has expressed his surprise that such a clever crook as Burdell would so expose himself as to go into a bank and try to exchange a large lot of small change for bills.

An interesting circumstance is that when "Texas" reached for his gun in the bank in Port Huron, he made the motion with his left hand. The observant police noticed this, and later on remembered that "Texas" had been described as left-handed.

The trial of "Texas" Burdell will be watched with the greatest interest in this city, the story of his capture at the Richardson house on Ridout street and of his sensational escape from the jail being fresh in the memory of all. The steel cell which successive grand juries and committees of the county council have been from time to time recommending for the county jail has yet to materialize. What means will be taken to make the desperado secure in the old structure remains to be seen. His trial will doubtless come off at the fall assizes.

OLD NEIGHBORS DIED WITHIN SHORT TIME OF EACH OTHER

Two Aged Residents of Westminster Passed Away On Sunday Morning.

The deaths of two of the oldest residents of Westminster occurred Sunday morning, when Mrs. Ann Anderson, relict of the late Frederick Anderson, passed away at the home of her son, north half lot 14, con. 4, and Miss Ann Dark, who for many years had been housekeeper for Mr. Wm. Hendra, south half lot 14, con. 3, died in Victoria Hospital in this city.

The deaths of the aged ladies on the same day have had a somewhat remarkable connection. The families lived across the road from one another. For sixty years Miss Dark had kept house for Mr. Hendra. A short time ago she took ill, and Mr. Anderson, a son of the deceased Mrs. Anderson, who is a friend of the Hendra family, took the old lady to Victoria Hospital. There she underwent an operation and appeared to be getting better, but complications set in.

A few days ago Mr. Aiderson's mother took ill, and a physician from the city was called. He prescribed for her and she appeared to be improving, but on Sunday morning she took a sudden change for the worse and died in the arms of her daughter.

Mr. Anderson arrived in this city on Sunday morning to make arrangements for the funeral of his mother, and he thought he would visit the hospital, and inquire how Miss Dark was getting along. There he was informed that she, too, had passed away.

Arrangements have been made to have the two funerals take place from the Anderson homestead on Tuesday at 2:30. The services will be conducted by Rev. Dr. McCrae and Rev. S. Edelstein. Interment will take place at Glanworth.

Togo Ends a Century Begun at Trafalgar Bay

Japan's Splendid Victory Recalls Nelson's Great Fight With Napoleon's Armada.

London, June 26.—Japan's latest and greatest victory, the greatest battle between fleets of steel, marks the centennial of Trafalgar, the greatest battle between fleets of wood.

Trafalgar, in which Nelson gave up his life, was fought on the afternoon of Oct. 21, 1805. On that occasion the British fleet of 27 line-of-battle ships fought the combined fleets of France and Spain, consistng of 33 ships of the line, completely defeating the allied fleet and capturing 18 ships, only four of which, however, ever reached a British port.

In numbers the allied fleets were superior to the fleet under Nelson, but they lost to the British because they were unprepared.

The methods of naval warfare have changed totally since the time of Trafalgar. At Trafalgar ships were boarded by men with cutlass and pistol, and for nearly two hours Nelson's ship was within 30 feet of the French ship Redoubtable, each of the three-deckers pouring broadside after broadside at the other. Fighting now is at long range, and it will in the future be conducted at even greater range. The greatest damage inflicted on modern ships is that due to fire, in spite of the fact that they are now simply machines of steel. There are comparatively few hits made in modern naval action, but one lucky hit will put a modern ship out of action. In this respect the modern battleship is a more delicate piece of mechanism than was the old oaken ship, such as Nelson fought at Trafalgar.

The battle of Trafalgar lasted from noon until just before sunset, 5 o'clock, or a little more than five hours, and at the end of that afternoon's hot work the combined French and Spanish fleets, excepting eleven ships which had escaped to Cadiz, were either captured or destroyed. Eighteen ships had at the end of the day struck their colors to the British, one of them, the Achilles, was ablaze, and at 5:45 o'clock blew up. At the beginning of the fight, the British fleet had 27 ships, against which were placed 33 ships of the enemy, 18 French and 15 Spanish. The losses on both sides were extremely heavy, for the fighting was forced and usually at very close range.

Nelson's Famous Signal.

It was at this moment that Nelson gave his famous signal to the fleet:

"England expects every man will do his duty."

It was Nelson's last message to the fleet before going into action. As usual, before the engagement, the admiral held a council of his fleet captains, at which so much of a plan of battle as could be made in advance was decided upon.

Early in the morning he had signaled to the fleet, "Form order of sailing in two columns," and to "Prepare for battle." His general idea, which was well understood by every flag officer and captain in his fleet, was to throw upon the rear twelve ships of the enemy a superior number fifteen, under the command of Admiral Collingwood, while Nelson himself, with the remaining twelve ships of the line, would act as seemed best to prevent Collingwood from being disturbed. All this had been understood by the officers in the fleet, but after Nelson had returned on deck he asked Blackwood whether he did not think another signal was needed. The captain replied that he thought everyone understood what was expected of him. Nelson, however, said he would "amuse the fleet with a signal," for the ships were wearing and were not yet close enough to fight.

"Suppose," he suggested, after reflecting a moment, "suppose we signal, 'Nelson confides that every man will do his duty'?"

An officer standing by suggested: "Would it not read better, 'England confides'?"

The little admiral agreed, thinking the change an improvement. The signal officer then explained that the word "confides" would have to be spelled, and suggested instead the word "expects," as that was in the code. So the world-famous signal was hoisted to the masthead, and, as it was translated on the nearer ships, the message was received with cheers. It happened, however, that there were British ships in the fleet that day that knew nothing of it until the return to England.

British Open the Ball.

The British led the attack, the fleet advancing in two columns perpendicular to the enemy's line. Collingwood guarding the rear, as proposed, and Nelson piercing the hostile order a little forward of the center, so that the brunt of the fight fell upon the 23 rear ships of the allies, the ten which formed the van being for a long time untouched, and themselves remaining inactive.

Although the action began about noon, it was two hours later before the rear ships in Nelson's fleet came fairly under fire, owing to the light character of the breeze blowing. Once the opposing fleets were well under fire, the action became little more than a melee. It was a captains' fight, and each ship was fought at its best, and with little knowledge on the part of the captain of what the others were doing. Under these circumstances it is almost impossible to find any account of the battle which describes it as a whole. Collingwood led his column in the Royal Sovereign, which, having been newly sheathed with copper, was more speedy than Nelson's fast battleship Victory.

The Spanish and French ships ahead of the Victory "closed like a forest," and Capt. Hardy, who was directing the steering of Nelson's ship, told the admiral that he could not pass through the line without running into one of the three ships.

"I cannot help it," replied Nelson. "Go on board which you please; take your choice."

Broadsides Hurled Destruction.

By 1 o'clock the bows of the Victory reached the wake of the Bucentaus, the Victory passing within thirty feet of the French ship. The guns from each ship belched out broadsides of death-dealing fire, but the shot of the Victory ranged from end to end of the Bucentaur. Twenty guns were dismounted, and the loss by the single broadside was estimated by the French at 400 men. The Victory then turned her attention to the Redoubtable, whose guns, as well as those of the Neptune in the French column, for there were three Neptunes present, had been busy upon the British flagship. Passing to the port side of the Redubtable, the Victory was soon lashed to the Frenchman, and soon the British ship Temeraire closed in on the starboard of the enemy and lashed together, the three ships were in a death struggle, which was to cause the British to lose their greatest naval commander.

The Redoubtable had soldiers in her mizzentop, where they kept up a fusillade of musketry and dropped hand grenades upon the decks of the British ships which were holding the Frenchman in the embrace of death. The British ships did not make use of fighting tops, and consequently were at a disadvantage in this game.

Nelson was pacing the quarterdeck of the Victory, side by side with Capt. Hardy. At 1:25 they were walking from aft, and were within one pace of the forward end of their short promenade, when Nelson suddenly faced left about and fell to his knees, his left hand touching the deck. Hardy hastened to him, expressing the hope that he was not much hurt.

"They have done for me at last," replied Nelson; "my backbone is shot through."

The fatal ball had come from the mizzentop of the Redoubtable. An hour later the Redoubtable struck to the Temeraire, having lost 300 killed and 222 wounded out of a total of 643.

Although he was suffering acutely, his life fast ebbing away, Nelson's only anxiety was for victory. Hardy visited him and told him the British had twelve or fourteen of the enemy's ships in their possession, and cheered the dying admiral by assuring him that no British ship had struck.

At 4:30 o'clock Nelson breathed his last, his last audible words being: "Thank God, I have done my duty."

IT WILL PROLONG LIFE.—De Sota, the Spaniard, lost his life in the wilds of Florida, whither he went for the purpose of discovering the legendary "Fountain of Perpetual Youth," said to exist in that then unknown country. While Dr. Thomas' Eclectric Oil will not perpetuate youth, it will remove the bodily pains which make the young old before their time and harass the aged into untimely graves.

No Waste of Heat In the "Bison" Hot Water Heater

The "Bison" has two drafts—a center draft to burn quickly, and a side draft to heat quickly.

The side draft carries the heat up a side flue passing up and down, and up again through a center flue, always in contact with water surfaces, trapping the heat and burning the gases. See illustration.

The draft is continuous, syphon-like in action, but always under easy control.

Not a particle of heat is lost—the sections get it all, the water heats quickly—the effect on the radiators is almost instantaneous — The "Bison" has more good heating points than all other heaters combined.

LOOK OUT FOR THIS NEW GRUB

Preys On Grain Roots and Stalks and Is Operating in the Kents.

Chatham, June 25.—A voracious new slug which attacks almost every young grain root has been discovered by a Harwich resident. The slug varies in length from one-eighth to one and one-half inches when found, and appears to eat its way into the stalks of corn, which is principally affected through a hole one and one-half inches from the ground, after which it eats the entire pith out. Inquiries lead to the conclusion that destruction caused by the slug is widespread, though apparently the cause is not noticed by farmers so far. Even the Canada thistle is not exempt, and samples of this weed showed only the shell left, the entire inside being eaten out. The grub is tobacco-brown in color with white stripes, and a broad, dark band around the center of the body. Several samples have been sent to the Ontario Agricultural College, Guelph, and the report is awaited by interested agriculturists.

CHILD KIDNAPED SISTERS

Iowa Girl Also Took Mother's Money, But Was Recaptured.

Sioux City, Ia., June 26.—The kidnapping of two babies by a 10-year-old girl at Lake City last evening, created a sensation, which was second only to that occasioned by the capture today of the young kidnapper on a train 100 miles from the scene of her offense.

Edith Brown, the offender, quarreled with an older sister while engaged in picking strawberries. She left the patch, returned to the residence, secured her two little sisters, aged 3 years and 3 months respectively, and stealing a $20 bill from her mother's purse, coolly made her way to the depot and boarded the first train. Although it was necessary for her to change cars en route she managed her two young charges admirably, and had just reached her destination, Perry, Ia., when the warrant for her arrest was served upon her.

In the meantime her parents and the entire neighborhood were frantically aroused, and it was only by dint of much telephoning and telegraphing that she was located.

CRUISER IN COLLISION

Hits a German Liner Off the Coast of Spain.

Ferrol, Spain, June 25. — The British cruiser Carnarvon ran down the North German Lloyd steamer Coblenz, in a dense fog at 4 o'clock this morning, off Cape Prior (on the northwest coast of Spain, ten miles from Ferrol). The Coblenz was badly damaged, and sprang a leak. The passengers were transferred to the cruiser and landed here. The injury to the cruiser was trifling, but the Coblenz will have to go into dry dock.

LOCAL MARKET.

Monday, June 26, 1905.

For a Monday, there was considerable business transacted at the market this forenoon.

About a dozen loads of old hay was offered; sales were slow at $7 and $7 50 per ton. Had the hay been of the best quality there would have been no trouble to have sold it.

One load of straw sold at $3 for the load.

Mr. D. McIntyre purchased about 120 live hogs, for which he paid $6 50 per cwt. for selects. The market looks weak, and the probability is that there may be a slight drop in prices.

One load of oats were offered, and they sold at $1 30 per cwt. It looks as though the prices of oats will keep up until the new crop is on the market.

A couple of loads of new alfalfa hay was offered. They were unsold at 11:30 o'clock.

A large consignment of butter will be made from here to a firm at a point in British Columbia. This accounts for the firmness in this market.

H. C. Becher, stock broker, next Free Press building, received the following by private wire from Bartlett, Frazier & Carrington today:

New York, June 26. — Noon. — The opening market failed to reflect the slightly lower prices from London this morning, with the exception of one or two stocks. The opening fifteen minutes was rather quiet, followed by considerable buying which gave the market a substantial advance, which has up to the present been well maintained. Sales to noon 449,200.

Letters to the Editor.

AN OLD BOY'S APPEAL.

To the Editor of The Advertiser:

No doubt a large number of those whose homes were once around London will wish to pay the old town a visit during the reunion in August. One drawback in such cases usually is that the tickets issued by the railways are for such a limited time. Could you not arrange to have the tickets for at least ten days to make it worth while in coming? I would certainly like to come if arrangements are satisfactory.

F. L. FITZGERALD,

CONDENSED LOCAL NEWS

—Miss Jessie Sweet has left for Exeter to spend a few days.

—Mrs. M. J. O'Meara will be at home at 141 Central avenue on Thursday and Friday of this week.

—The members of the local grocers' association have decided to observe Saturday as Dominion Day.

—Mrs. J. H. Griffiths and Miss Sara Griffiths leave tomorrow for Winnipeg and Brandon, where they will spend the summer.

—Miss Winnie McCandless, of this city, leaves today on an extended visit to friends in Brantford, Hamilton and Niagara Falls.

—The Canadian Pacific Railway city ticket office will be open this evening for the sale of homeseekers' excursion and other tickets.

—The every-day 30-cent return fare excursions to Port Stanley began today and will continue during the excursion season. Six trains are running each way over the line.

—Forest City Division, No. 1, Uniform Rank of the Maccabees, under command of Capt. Douglas, gave a fancy drill at the garden party under the auspices of St. John's Church, Thamesford, last Friday night.

—It is rumored that Rev. Dr. Rainsford, the New York pastor, may be forced by ill-health to give up his charge. Dr. Rainsford was for some time a resident of this city, and his preaching attracted large audiences.

—Mrs. May De Mille and Maizie Johnston, arrested last week by High Constable McLoud on the charge of being the keeper and an inmate of a disorderly house, respectively, were tried before Squire Lacey this afternoon.

—A bunch of boys, who were found swimming in the river near Blackfriars bridge yesterday, by High Constable McLoud, were allowed to go by a county magistrate with a warning. Swimming in the river can only be indulged in before 6 a.m. and after 8 p.m. Boys are warned to keep within the time limit.

—The New York branch of the "Salada" Tea Company has extended so rapidly under the management of Mr. James A. McGuane, the well-known Torontonian, that they have had to acquire larger premises. Until lately they have been at the corner of Hudson and Duane streets, and have now moved to 198 West Broadway, where they have fine warehouse and office aaccommodation.

—The funeral of the late Miss Louisa Evans took place Friday afternoon from the family residence, 816 Talbot street, to Mount Pleasant Cemetery, Rev. Dr. Daniel and Rev. S. Salton conducted the services, which were of a very impressive character. The pall-bearers were Messrs. Alex Harvey, George Tindall, Stewart McCallum, Samuel Friendship, William Boyd and M. Ellson. The floral offerings, which were beautiful and numerous, testified to the esteem in which the deceased was held by her host of friends, young and old. Miss Evans was the daughter of the late Ephriam Evans, D.D. For about eight months she was a constant sufferer from a fatal malady.

THE ETRURIA DELAYED.

F. B. Clarke, agent for the Cunard Line, received word that the Etruria waited one hour over sailing hour for the delayed Australian mail Saturday.

LATE W. T. LOBB'S FUNERAL.

The funeral of the late Wm. T. Lobb, who met with such a terrible death last week from sulphuric acid, took place yesterday afternoon from his late residence. There were many floral tributes from his late companions in the works. The services were conducted by Rev. D. E. Martin, pastor of the Hamilton Road Methodist Church. The pall-bearers were John Henderson, John McGinnis, Mr. Spice, Mr. Gower, Mr. Welford and George Robinson. Interment was at Mount Pleasant.

DEATH OF A. M. GUNN.

Angus Matheson Gunn, who had resided in this city for thirty years, died at his residence, 359 King street, last night. He had been ailing for about four months. Mr. Gunn came to this city from Port Stanley, and had been inspector for the Ontario Loan and Debenture Company for 29 years. He is survived by a widow, six daughters, and a son, Hugh A. Gunn, who is a resident of Toronto. The funeral, which is private, will be held tomorrow, interment being at Woodland Cemetery.

MACHINISTS' STRIKE STILL ON.

Mr. Joseph McConnell, president of the International Association of Machinists, addressed the members of the Toronto branch in the Labor Temple, Saturday evening. Mr. McConnell, after the meeting, told the Globe that the strike of the machinists on the G. T. R. is not yet at an end. He had been over the G. T. R. system and things looked very favorable. The strikers are unanimous in their determination to hold out, and a very good feeling prevails among them. There are between 750 and 800 men who are receiving support from the international.

SPRINGBANK THEATER OPENING

The Springbank Auditorium opens tonight with the Stoddart Stock Company. The opening play is announced as "The Senator's Daughter," a new society comedy, which is said to be above the ordinary. The following specialties will appear between the acts: Rodney and Gay in a quaint conceit, called "The Piper and the Soubrette"; Walbourne and Whitney, travesty artists; Francis Greene, character singer; Cato Keith, Yiddish comedian, and J. Arthur Nelson, the illustrated singer. The street car company promise a five-minute service for the Springbank line every night, beginning today.

THEY WILL BE MISSED.

Rev. H. C. Speller, formerly of this city, was in Sarnia last week packing his household effects, preparatory to shipping them to Guelph. Mr. Speller and family leave for their new home on Wednesday, carrying with them the best wishes of a host of friends. A number of pleasant teas and evenings were given in their honor during the last week of their stay in Sarnia. On Friday evening at the close of choir practice at the Central Baptist Church, Miss Ethel B. Speller was surprised by the members of the choir with an address and a beautiful gold ring set with pearls. Rev. Mr. Speller conducted both services on Sunday at the Central Baptist Church, Sarnia.

THOUGHTS OF HEAVEN.

Rev. E. E. Shields, of Kincardine, who is supplyiny the pulpit at Adelaide Street Baptist Church during the absence of the pastor in Winnipeg, preached very acceptably in the church and in Jubilee Rink, respectively. His morning theme was "Heaven," taken from Hebrews xi., 13. The preacher held that thoughts of heaven occupied much too small a space in Christian minds today. Heaven was looked upon as a shadowy something somewhere that was all right for children and sick people to think about, but not for busy people in everyday life. The hope of heaven, he held, should have a great elevating influence on the lives and character of men and women and he referred to what Abraham, Moses, Paul and the Saviour had said about the future home of God's people—a city without sickness and without a cemetery, where only those can enter whose names are written in the Lamb's book of life. The preacher's evening discourse was a strong and earnest appeal to the unconverted from the text found in II. Corinthians v., 20.

PERE MARQUETTE IS WILLING TO IMPROVE WATER SUPPLY

Road Agitated Over Statements Made by Dr. English, of the Health Board.

The statements made by Dr. English, chairman of the board of health, at the meeting of the Memorial Church Sunday school on Sunday afternoon, have not alone greatly exercised the Pere Marquette officials, but also several of the city fathers, as well as several of the members of the board of health.

The shoe pinches the city in the matter of the percentages on the earnings of the Pere Marquette. If the people do not go to Port Stanley it means the loss of many hundreds, and probably a couple of thousand dollars, in a year, to the city. Already, it is stated, that after considering the positive statements made by Dr. English, the Memorial Sunday school has decided to picnic at Springbank on July 7. It was stated further around the city hall today that unless conditions change, the travelers and the Irish Benevolent Society will not go to Port this year. All these things mean money to the city, and money talks.

District Passenger Agent Britton, of the Pere Marquette, today took the matter up in earnest. He had a consultation with Medical Health Officer Hutchinson, with the result that he promptly accepted the advice of the doctor to put in new cement tanks at the Port and to make them air-tight.

"Anything you can suggest we will do," he told Dr. Hutchinson. "This is a serious matter for us, and for the city, and we are prepared to have the water analyzed or to do anything else the city wants. We want the people to go to the lakeside and we intend to see that the water is pure."

To The Advertiser today, Dr. English said that while he well knew he was making a very serious statement, he could do notning else in the face of the reports which had been furnished him by the Government analyst as to the purity of Port Stanley water.

"As chairman of the board of health I would not be doing my duty by the citizens if I allowed them to send their children to Port Stanley without a protest."

Dr. W. J. Stevenson, of the board of health, called on the mayor today, and suggested that the board should pass a resolution calling upon the provincial authorities to take charge of the water supply at Port. It is not improbable that a meeting of the local board may be called at once to deal with the matter.

In a letter to Dr. English Dr. Hodgetts states that it is his intention to inspect the Port Stanley water supply at once, so that it looks as though the Toronto authorities intend to take a hand in the matter without being asked.

STORM DID DAMAGE

Razed Flower Gardens and Snapped Telephone Wires.

The windstorm which set in about 12 o'clock last night and continued for a couple of hours did considerable damage to city gardens and shade trees. A number of the latter were blown down, in various sections, while the contents of flower gardens were laid low to such an extent that the latter will not be presentable for a time.

The Bell Telephone Company is invariably a sufferer by wind and rain storms. This morning the London office received reports of the blowing down of wires in the vicinity of the city, and men were soon dispatched in every direction to repair the damage. In the city proper a number of wires were down, and beyond the limits some of the long-distance lines were snapped. The service was consequently crippled for a while. No time was lost, however, in repairing the damaged lines, and before noon the service was everywhere in operation.

EX-DEPUTY SHERIFF DEAD

Mr. Charles B. Stevens Passes Away in Toronto, Aged 72.

Mr. Charles B. Stevens, a deputy high chief ranger of the Independent Order of Foresters, died at his residence in Toronto on Saturday evening in his 72nd year. Mr. Stevens was a native of this city, and at one time he held the position of deputy sheriff. He had also been mayor of Walkerton. He was district deputy high chief ranger of the Foresters, and instituted the first courts in England and Ireland. At different times he had been in the circulation departments of the Globe, the News, the Mail and Empire and the old Empire, Toronto. He leaves two sons and two daughters, George E., of Chicago, and Brock, of Montana; Mrs. William Wallace, 26 Melbourne avenue, Toronto, and Mrs. Frank Ball, 232 Bloor street west, Toronto.

STEALING FROM THE CAMP

Suspects Rounded Up—Disorderlies Dealt With by the P. M.

High carnival was held Saturday night, and as a consequence Harriet Chrysler and Henry Chrysler (colored), are in the police court this morning charged with keeping a disorderly house. Mrs. Henrietta Jacoby was also charged with being an inmate. "Hank" was beer-rusher-in-extraordinary, and he was demonstrated to be a howling success. He then did the can-can merely wrapped in thought for the edification of the ladies. The police, having no taste for terpsichorean feats, arrested the outfit. The women were remanded for a week, and Henry was bailed in the sum of $500, to appear in a week. Henry is on his own bail bond.

William Howard, a big, burly fellow, was charged with stealing a ring and a gold chain. He was remanded until Friday, bail being granted for his appearance. There has been considerable stealing going on at the camp, and the police rounded up Thomas Cahill and W. Brennon, who were charged with stealing military clothing, and other articles. Their case will be disposed of Thursday.

Three drunks were allowed to go.

A couple of juveniles, one of whom was charged with carrying concealed weapons, were remanded for a week.

REGRET EXPRESSED

Council Passes Resolutions Regarding Death of Former Members.

At the special meeting of the city council held Saturday night, two resolutions of condolence with the families of lately-deceased former members of the council were passed. Both were moved and seconded by Ald. Stevely and Ald. Forristal respectively.

The first was a resolution regretting the death of the late Judge W. W. Fitzgerald, who many years ago held a seat at the council board. The second resolution called attention to the death of the late Squire J. B. Smyth, who away back in the days when London was in her swaddling clothes, was an alderman here.

Copies of the resolutions will be forwarded to the relatives of the deceased gentlemen.

VERDICT FOR $5,000

Suit of Hooker vs. Western Travelers Accident Association.

A sitting of the weekly high court was held this morning, Sir William R. Meredith presiding. The following motions were heard:

Graydon vs. Redan, motion to transfer action from the surrogate court of Middlesex to the high court of justice. Order granted. R. M. C. Toothe for plaintiff, W. R. Meredith for defendant.

Hooker vs. Western Travelers' Accident Association and motion for adjournment on the pleading. Action is for the recovery of $5,000, amount of an insurance policy on the life of plaintiff's husband, Edwin R. Hooker, who died as a result of injuries received while on a shooting expedition last fall. Judgment for plaintiff for $5,000 and costs. R. M. C. Toothe for the plaintiff.

WILL BUILD A FENCE

The Case of Cafarella vs. Pascuzzo Finally Settled.

A case which has been hanging fire in the courts for the past year, that of Cafarella vs. Pascuzzo was finally settled this morning before Judge Elliott in terms of consent minutes. The plaintiffs, Michael Angelo Cafarella and Nuziata Cafarella, who own land on Fullarton street, alleged that the defendant wrongfully took possession of part of this land, and they desired an injunction against him. It has been agreed that a fence shall be built down the center of the disputed piece of property. Meredith, Judd & Meredith, for plaintiffs; R. K. Cowan, for defendant.

A case under the mechanics lien act ocupied the attention of the court all afternoon. The case involves the sum of $300. W. Copp is the plaintiff and John Richards the defendant and owner of the property.

—The council of the University of Toronto have awarded the Alexander Mackenzie fellowship to Mr. John A. C. Mason, B. A., of Stratford. The appointment is the highest recognition in the gift of the faculty of political science.

EFFECTS OF SUNDAY NIGHT'S WIND STORM ON THE CANVAS CITY

One Marquee Partly Overturned and Another Ripped—The Sunday Services.

It might have been expected that last night's big windstorm would play havoc with quite a few of the thousand tents on Carling's Heights. Not more than three or four suffered, however, so well erected are the canvas homes. A large rent was torn in the band tent of the Twenty-ninth Regiment, and the Y. M. C. A. tent was partly overturned. Since these tents are on the northeast corner of the heights and the wind was from the west, it might be thought that they would be better protected from the storm than those on the lines nearer the city. The two tents mentioned, however, are large marquees, and thus suffered, while the small ones were passed over.

Hundreds of guyropes had, of course, to be tightened when the soldiers responded to the reveille. But, on the whole, the wild night was rather enjoyed on the heights, for not much rain fell, and the wind rushing over the west brow of the hill and rattling among the tents was conducive to sound, healthy slumber.

Sergt.-Major Ardiel, of the Army Medical Service, returned from Niagara-on-the-Lake this morning and resumed his duties in connection with the divisional hospital headquarters at the barracks.

"There were about 6,000 men encamped at Niagara," said Sergt. Ardiel, "and it was undoubtedly the best camp in the history of the historic grounds."

The Twenty-ninth and Thirtieth Regiments were engaged in outpost work and field movements in the open country north of the heights this morning. The broad slopes leading down to the north branch of the Thames looked not a litle picturesque with companies of redcoats moving to and fro among the trees and across the fields.

The band of the Thirtieth Regiment were ordered to take up a position at the corner of Oxford and Adelaide streets at 11:30 o'clock, to meet their regiment on the way back and play it into camp. The regiments did not return from their maneuvers until well on to 1 o'clock, however, and the blue-coated band had a long wait. They seated themselves on the grass, and two of the bandsmen amused the others by stationing themselves on a mound across the way and playing various tune on two trombones. "Just One Girl" was one of the selections given, and was much resented by a member of the R. C. R. who happened to be passing.

A young colt, which has not yet become used to gun drill, got frisky this morning when the artillery brigade was at work. Five men in succession essayed to ride the animal, and one was sent back to earth sooner than he had intended. The fifth man succeeded in making the colt do as he wished.

The weather being fine, quite a number of civilians made their way to Carling's Heights yesterday morning to witness the whole brigade take part in divine service. Rev. Canon Dann, chaplain of the Twenty-sixth Regiment, and acting chaplain of the Sixth Field Battery, conducted the services. The ten-minutes' service held each morning is, as a rule, well attended.

The infantry brigade will shoot for the Gowan and Layborn cups at the Cove ranges tomorrow.

Sergt. Evans, of the Barracks, will leave tonight for Halifax, whither he has been ordered.

It is said that Sergt. Harry Millie, the genial and well-liked staff clerk of No. 1 Company, R. C. R., is soon to retire from military life. He has served his full time, and is entitled to a pension.

The usual Wednesday afternoon tea will be given this week by the officers at the Barracks.

A mild case of sunstroke was reported by the field hospital authorities yesterday.

CELEBRATED FEAST OF CORPUS CHRISTI

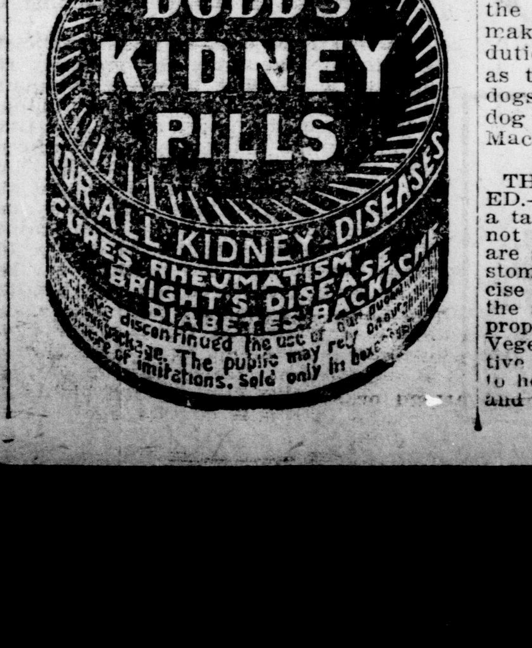

How Catholic Citizens Took Part in the Imposing Ceremonies.

The Feast of Corpus Christi was celebrated in the Catholic churches of the city with the usual impressive ceremonies yesterday. At St. Peter's Cathedral, immediately after the solemn high mass, which was celebrated by Rev. Father Stanley, assisted by Rev. Father White as deacon and Rev. Father Tobin as sub-deacon, the procession of the Holy Sacrament was held around the grounds of the cathedral.

The Host was carried by Rev. Father Stanley, escorted by Fathers White and Tobin, with a number of acolytes. They were followed by the children, who made their first communion, and were confirmed this summer; the Young Ladies' Sodality, St. Ann's Society, the Consolers of Mary, the Children of Mary, St. Vincent de Paul Society, the C. M. B. A., the separate school board, the Catholic Order of Foresters, and the other members of the congregation. As the procession passed the people knelt on the grass, and with heads uncovered prayed until the Host had passed.

In the evening solemn vespers and benediction brought the ceremonies of the day to a close.

At St. Mary's Church a large class of children made their first communion, and at the conclusion of high mass the Host was carried in procession around the church. First came the cross-bearer, Bert Smith, with Joseph Ward and Joseph Long as acolytes, bearing lighted candles. Then the little girls of the first communion class. The girls were dressed in white with white veils, and were led by Gertrude Flynn, who carried a silk banner bearing the words, "Behold Thy Mother." Little Myrtle Johnston and Phyllis Liley acted as maids of honor, and held the supporting ribbons of the banner. Then came the boys, all of whom wore white bows on their arms. Joseph Murray carried the banner, which bore the words "Thy Kingdom Come," while Gordon Lane and Daniel McCaughtry acted as pages. Special music was rendered by the choir for the occasion.

NOW FOR THE INSPECTION

Dominion Officers May Soon Start Interviewing London's Dogs.

Inspector McCallum today furnished an officer of the Dominion veterinary department, Ottawa, with a list of the names of all dog-owners in London. The officer and his assistants will now commence an inspection of all dogs in the city, if it is deemed advisable to make the inspection. He will begin his duties in the north end of the city, so as to find out if possible whether any dogs in that district were bitten by the dog which attacked young Langford MacGregor.

THE FLAGGING ENERGIES REVIVED.—Constant application to business is a tax upon the energies, and if there be not relaxation, lassitude and depression are sure to intervene. These come from stomachic troubles. The want of exercise brings on nervous irregularities, and the stomach ceases to assimilate food properly. In this condition Parmelee's Vegetable Pills will be found a recuperative of rare power, restoring the organs to healthful action, dispelling depression, and reviving the flagging energies.

URRAY PUZZLE TO M'CLARYS; TWO HITS IN FIVE INNINGS

ame, However, Was Lost Before He Went in Box—Rockets Defeat Perrins.

Two good games of ball were played in the City League at Tecumseh Park on Saturday afternoon, the abundance of action giving the fans good value for their money. The faithful were there in large numbers, despite many counter-attractions.

The first game was between the Perrins and the Rockets. It was exciting, and kept the fans on the keen edge from the sound of the gong. The candy men started after Crowe at the outset, and they did several things to the elongated chap. It was all hands up in the first, and three hits, a couple of errors, and a couple of outs chased four men over the plate. The Rockets duplicated the trick in the second, and Clark was also given a hearty reception. Four hits, three ragged errors by the outfielders, aided in making five tallies. Clark was hit steadily after this, receiving a hard drubbing in the sixth, but only two runs resulted. Crowe was sent away back to rest in the fourth, after three real hard smashes had been made off him, and he had hit a couple of players, resulting in three runs. J. Wilson pitched the last three innings, and although hit somewhat freely, he managed to hold off the fast coming Perrins. The Perrins were changed around a great deal, and some new players were on the line-up. W. Clark was the slugger of the day, having four nice hard drives. Hosie and Dewan had a trio apiece. It was Dewan's busy day in left field, for he captured five hard flies. The score:

McClary's won the second game from the Blue Labels. All the luck was with the foundrymen, and they must have had a rare collection of rabbits' feet and horseshoes. Phillips was in the box for McClarys, and he was hit freely. He was lucky, however, and was thus saved from a bad beating. Howell, who appeared to have nothing but a tired feeling and a little curve, lasted three innings, and in the fourth he was unmercifully pounded. Murray went into the box with the bases full, and none retired, but he stopped all further trouble. He held the McClarys down to two hits in five innings, although they netted three runs, owing to some rank errors by the Labels. The blue boys were going strong at the finish, and were clouting Phillips merrily at the last. Ecclestone caught some hard flies in left, and Maxwell had a busy day at second. Stein had three clean singles to his credit. The score:

GAME PLAYED UNDER PROTEST

Bennet Nine Claims Packing Company Is Not Adhering to Constitution.

Only one game was played in the Wholesale League on Saturday at Springbank, and that was between the Bennet and the Canadian Packing Company nines. The Packing Company won by the score of 13 to 8. The game was played under protest, the Bennet management giving notice that the constitution provided that before a player is eligible to play in any of the teams, he must be a resident of the city prior to April 1; must be an actual employe of the firm represented in the league, and two weeks' notice must be given before he can appear on the diamond. This, the Bennet management claimed has not been adhered to by the Packing Company's nine. The matter will be disposed of on Tuesday evening.

Both teams batted hard on Saturday, Cochrane making two triples and a double, a total of eight bases. Maitland, for the Packing Company, also batted well. In the third inning, the Bennet nine made six errors, which netted the Packing Company nine runs. Only seven innings were played, as the Wholesalers gave way to the juniors, to allow them to play their game.

Begg, of the Somerville nine, is leading the Wholesale League in batting, followed closely by Cochrane and Cartledge, of Bennet's.

Canada For Canadians,

We have the grandest country in the world and a great future awaits us if we only prove loyal and patriotic. Years ago thousands of our young men left the country for the United States, and today they are rushing back, as the sweep of prosperity rolls over the country. Canadians should learn to patronize home products—Foot Elm is a Canadian Remedy, and the whole world cannot produce a better article for tired, swollen, sweaty, tender feet. Send stamp for particulars of our $100 in prizes.

BELDAME BEATEN IN $15,000 STAKE

Three-Year-Old Agile Too Much for Winner of the Suburban.

New York, June 24. — Captain S. S. Brown's Agile, a 3-year-old colt by Sir Dixon-Aipena, and winner of two derbies, today added another stake to his already long list by capturing the $15,000 Advance Stake, distance 1 3-8 miles, at Sheepshead Bay. August Belmont's great mare, Beldame, winner of the Suburban, was second, and Graziallo, an added starter, third. The time, 2:40 4-5, was fair, considering the condition of the track, which was slow. Out of the original five entries, Dolly Spanker, Gamara and Migraine were withdrawn, and the Columbia stable added Graziallo. The Advance Stake is a weight-for-age race, with 111 pounds on Agile, 121 on Beldame and 126 on Graziallo.

The start was good and Beldame did not show her great flight of speed today and never was able to get away from Agile, which clung to her all the way. On the run down the back stretch Beldame was leading by a length from Agile. Both mare and colt were running easy and three-eighths of a mile from the finish Martin gave Agile his head and he closed up on Beldame. A great shout went up that Beldame was beaten, but the two came into the stretch on even terms, with Beldame on the inside, Beldame bore out at the head of the stretch and bumped Agile. In the run to the wire they ran head and head to within 50 yards of the finish, where O'Neill drew his whip and began to ride the mare, but Agile, under Martin, hard ridden, drew away and won by a neck. Beldame was 30 lengths before Graziallo. Agile was quoted at 13 to 5 in the betting and Beldame was held at 1 to 3, while 30 to 1 was laid against Graziallo.

E. E. Smathers' Security, a 15-to-1 shot, won the $20,000 Great Trial Stake by a head and also scored Jockey Dominick's first victory in the east. Timber was second and George C. Bennett third. In his race, H. P. Whitney started three horses and they were at once made an even-money favorite. The field ran close together to the bend, where Burgomaster showed in front, but in the final furlong the field closed up and Security, which was on the extreme outside, closed with a rush and won by a head from Timber, which was a head in front of George C. Bennett.

BASEBALL.

SUNDAY GAME CALLED OFF.

Brooklyn, June 25.—There was no professional ball played here today, although a game was scheduled for the New York and Brooklyn Clubs at Washington Park. The gates were thrown open and about 500 persons entered the grounds, but while the players from both teams were on hand, none of them donned uniforms on account of the edict issued yesterday by Police Commissioner McAdoo. The game will be played next Thursday, the original date set for it in the season's schedule.

WOODSTOCK ALL THE WAY.

Woodstock, June 24. — The Woodstock Canadian League team won an exhibition game from Sarnia here today by the following score:

	R.	H.	E.
Woodstock	13	11	2
Sarnia	1	6	5

Batteries—Bussey and Roche; McCutcheon and Agnew.

QUOITING.

POSTPONED.

The weekly match for members of the Forest City Quoiting Club was postponed until Wednesday night, many intending competitors being unable to attend on Saturday.

HOCKEY LEAGUE MAY BE EXTENDED

Several New Clubs Are Asking Admission to the International.

Calumet, Mich., June 24. — Secretary James R. Dee has called the annual meeting of the International Hockey League to be held at the Auditorium Annex, in Chicago, on June 26. The meeting will be devoted principally to business left over from last season's work, and it is expected that a meeting will be held in Chicago at a later date, when plans for the coming season will be prepared.

The International Hockey League was organized in Chicago about a year ago, and, last winter, its first season, was a prosperous one, Calumet winning the championship. It is almost certain that all the old clubs will be represented the coming season, i. e., Calumet, Houghton, Pittsburg, Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., and Sault Ste. Marie, Ont. Many applications for membership have been received from other cities, but it is uncertain as yet just what new clubs will be admitted. It is possible that the league will be increased to include eight or ten teams, and, in that event, it is likely that Chicago, Duluth, St. Paul and Philadelphia will have the call.

If at all possible, the circuit will be made compact, and a team in Chicago would serve to break the long trip from the copper country to Pittsburg. As yet, very little has been made public regarding the personnel of next season's teams, but it is known that the various managements are negotiating for the stars of last winter, and it is likely that many of the best men in Canada will be seen in the American teams next winter.

MERRY ENGLAND MADE NEW MARK

Seagram Sprinter Lowers Kenilworth Record a Fifth of a Second.

Buffalo, June 24.—Another track record went by the board at Kenilworth Park yesterday afternoon, when Merry England, the Seagram sprinter, streaked out six furlongs in 1:12⅘, lowering Carl Kahler's mark of 1903 by one-fifth of a second. Merry England found a soft spot in the third race, getting in with 102 pounds on his back, a fact which evidently frightened Scarfell, the other Canadian crack, and kept several others in their barns. Odds-on was the best betting to be had about the fancied one at any time in the betting ring, and the result warranted the caution exercised by the layers. Merry England did not get away from the post any too well, but J. Walsh had him in front of his party in a jiffy, and he retained a lead of a couple of lengths to the end, Lochinvar coming from far back to second place in the stretch, but not troubling the winner.

When the barrier was sprung, J. Walsh, on Scarfell, and Creamer, on Rosetint, started out to fight for the lead, as had been expected, and the battle between the colt and the filly up the back stretch was a pretty sight. At the three-quarter pole, Scarfell had enough and began to drop back, while Rosetint drew away with a length advantage. Here, however, Sir Ralph the Breadknife, 3-year-old, which had been generally overlooked in the betting, began to stir out of the ruck, and with litttle Lee urging his hardest, began to overhaul the leaders. He came up like a whirlwind, and catching Rosetint in the stretch bend, raced past her and entered the stretch with a comfortable margin to the good. From here home it was only a romp for the 3-year-old, and the backers of the longshot cheered lustily as he came home, leading Rosetint, which was a length in front of Wire-In, he only a length the better of Reservation, which had made a characteristically strong stretch run.

KEEN CONTESTS WERE WITNESSED AT THE ROWING CLUB REGATTA

A Splendid Day's Sport On the River—Several Valuable Trophies Offered.

Fair weather, large crowds of spectators, and a great measure of success were attendant upon the annual regatta of the London Rowing Club, held Saturday afternoon on the stretch of water just above the Springbank dam. The programme was the longest that has ever been given by the club, and each event was remarkably well contested, the boys being trained up to the last notch. The number of entries was also larger than in past years. In brief, it may be said that the regatta on the whole was bigger and better than the one of two years ago, and probably the best that has ever taken place on the Thames. The programme was begun at about 3 o'clock and the last event was not finished until 7:30.

The usual starting and finishing points were chosen, the former being opposite the County Club, and the latter a few hundred feet west of the old Ward landing-place. The high, grassy bank on the north side of the river made an ideal "grand-stand" for the scores of spectators, who came down by the cars, and across Col. Little's bridge. Numbers of others drove down, and watched the regatta from their carriages. Tony Cortese's orchestra kept the air alive with sweet music, and the intervals between events, which were kept as short as possible by the energetic committee, passed away pleasantly. Some of the finishes were very close, and both the contestants were awarded liberal applause from the banks, and from the quota of spectators who lounged along the shores in pleasure boats.

After the regatta, the cups and other trophies, which had reposed on Ward's veranda all afternoon in full view of the spectators and aspirants, were distributed to their winners by Mr. Thomas Alexander, president of the club.

The first event was an augury of the regatta's success, being very closely contested. It was the race for junior fours, and was won by Ward's crew by about four lengths. The fact that the course this year was "straightaway half a mile," made the races much less trying on the younger boys. A couple of years ago, most of the events required the contestants to make a turn in their course. The crews in the first race were as follows: H. Willis, R. Whetter, B. Spittal, G. Ward (stroke), H. Little (cox); F. G. Marshall, J. Yarker, G. Stockton, H. J. Marshall (stroke), and C. Weld (cox).

The senior fours' race, which came next, and for which a handsome cup was donated by Hon. C. S. Hyman, was even more closely contested than the preceding events, Mortimore's four winning out by about two and a half lengths. Collins' crew showed up remarkably well also.

The winners—P. C. Thompson, G. J. Ingram, H. Ingram, A. R. Mortimore (stroke), G. Ward (cox).

The losers—W. Aust, C. Marsh, W. Southam, P. Collins (stroke), H. Little (cox).

Next came the junior scull event, in which H. G. Willis and J. Yarker were contestants. This was one of the best races of all from the point of view of competition. Both boys rowed their very hardest all the way. Yarker's steering was a little at fault, however, and Willis won out by barely two lengths.

Percy Spence and Lorne Spry won the junior double sculls by several lengths, their competitors, Bert Spittal and Gib Ward, not doing as good work, together, as they are capable of, singly.

The most exciting finish of all was made in the senior double, for which Hon. Adam Beck donated the prize. C. Marsh and A. R. Mortimore were not more than a length ahead of P. C. Thomson and G. J. Ingram when Mr. C. B. Edwards fired the pistol announcing the finish. All four rowers are in the first class, but the team work of the winners was the better.

H. G. Willis and R. Whetter won the intermediate double scull race over F. Marshall and G. Stockton by about six lengths.

The single canoe race was won by H. Wood, the only other contestant being H. Spry.

Although the fastest time of all was in the senior doubles' race, in none of the events was the result so much in doubt as in the intermediate single sculls. Howard Ingram and Gib Ward were the contestants, and they came down the stretch side by side. Ingram here lost a little by bad steering, but he immediately picked up, and won out by half a length. The cup for the winner was donated in this race by Mr. A. Tillmann.

The crack race of the day, in the minds of many, is always the senior single sculls, which is contested as a rule by the best individual rowers in the club. A. R. Mortimore finished about two lengths ahead of Gordon Ingram. The race will have to be rowed over, however, on account of the accidental touching of the two boats when the start was made. The cup was donated by Mr. E. J. Rechnitzer, himself one of the crack rowers of the London club.

Four teams entered the double canoe race, Ward and Willis finished first by about two lengths, Thomson and H. Ingram came next, and Yarker and Darch third. Spittal and Stockton did not finish.

The tilting in canoes, which came next, evoked much merriment. Teams of boys in canoes, with long poles, capped with soft material, entered the "arena" and tilted at each other in good style. Those knocked out of their boats were losers, and the survivors tilted off with each other until G. Ingram and Gib Ward were the only ones left of seven entries.

The crab race, in which the paddler had to sit in the front of the canoe, causing the back to lift out of the water, had also its ludicrous side. Only canoeists know how impossible it is to make any speed while sitting in a canoe in this posture. Fred Marshall made the distance, from one side of the river to the other, ahead of the other six competitors.

The Lotos Club gasoline launch won the last event on the programme from Mr. Silvester's steam-boat, by a small margin. The course in this race was one mile.

The officers of the day were:

Judges—T. Alexander, Col. Macbeth, M. H. Rowland, Frank Love, P. M., W. J. Hayward and C. B. Edwards.
Starter—E. Rechnitzer.
Referee—G. B. Gerrard.
Clerks of Regatta—James S. McDougall, James D. Tytler, A. Tillmann.
Captain—A. R. Mortimore.

The work of arranging for the regatta fell largely on the shoulders of Mr. Arthur Mortimore, the captain of the club, and chairman of the regatta committee. Mr. Mortimore deserves much credit for the regatta's success. The other members of the committee were: G. Ingram, W. Aust, W. Southam and G. Ward.

ROUGH ON JOCKEYS, WERE DETROIT JUDGES

Detroit, Mich., June 24. — Attracted by the first big jump of the meeting and a handicap at a mile and an eighth, in addition to five other good races, an unusually large Saturday crowd swarmed about Highland Park today.

The International Steeplechase, worth $1,200, was won by John Ferris' Red Car, which led all the way and outgamed Springwater in the drive through the stretch, winning by a head. Trenct the Mere, coupled with Picktime, was an odds-on-favorite, but was anchored by the weight. Dosch's ride on Picktime was far below his well-judged run through the Kenilworth field, where he won with the Pickpocket horse recently.

Hans Wagner had the foot of his party all the way in the distance handicap, but lasted just long enough to nose out the favorite, Leila. A. Walsh, who rode Wee Girl in the third race, the filly being disqualified, was set down for five days for cutting across on Stoessel in the stretch. D. Boland was fined $25 for cutting across his field at the start of the third race. Jockey Leonard was so green at the barrier with Hickory Corners in the last race that Starter Dwyer gave him a week off to become familiar with his duties. Lady Hamburg was badly kicked by Eastern Pride at the post in the sixth event.

EXETER EASILY DEFEATS ST. MARYS BOWLERS

MUCH JIU-JITSU IN LACROSSE GAME

Brantford Wanted to Win in a Hurry, But Failed—Galt Defaults.

Toronto, June 24.—There was a lot of jiu-jitsu in the C. L. A. senior series between Brantford and Toronto at Rosedale today. The boys in blue won by a close margin and had the score in their favor after the first couple of games, but they were playing against a short-handed team. Brantford, with three games to the bad, wanted to win in a hurry and began roughing it very early in the game. It was a circus game, slow at times, but brilliant at others. The best work for the Torontos was done by Kirkwood, Carmichael, Lamb, Park and Neeley. Dowling put up a great game for Brantford. So did Whitehead, Hendry and Hutton.

GOAL WAS DISPUTED.

Hespeler, June 24.—The junior C. L. A. match between Guelph and Hespeler today resulted in a score of 4 to 3 in favor of Guelph, with one goal claimed by Guelph in dispute. The game was refereed by Waghorne, of Toronto.

NO GAME AT DRUMBO.

Drumbo, June 24. — There was no game in the junior C. L. A. series here today between Woodstock and Drumbo, the latter having dropped out of the association.

EASY WIN FOR PETERBORO.

Peterboro, June 24.—The junior C. L. A. match played here this afternoon between Bowmanville and Peterboro, resulted in an easy victory for the locals. The score was 17 to 1, and only ten minutes were played in the last quarter.

GALT DEFAULTED.

CHESS.

TENTH ROUND AT OSTEND.

Ostend, June 24. — The chess experts began play in the tenth round of the international tournament in this city this morning. When time was called Wolf had beaten Taubenhaus, Janowski had disposed of Leonhardt, while the games between Blackburne and Schlechter, and Marco and Marshall were drawn. The other games, left unfinished, will be resumed this afternoon.

MISS MOORE CAPTURED SINGLES CHAMPIONSHIP

Philadelphia, Pa., June 24. — Miss Elizabeth Moore, of the Kings County Tennis Club, New York, today won the championship of the United States in woman's singles by defeating Miss Helen Homans, Westside Tennis Club, New York, 6—4, 5—7, 6—1, in the final round of the tournament.

Miss May Sutton, last year's champion, is in England, and loses the championship by default.

The surprise of the meet was the defeat of Miss Moore and E. B. Dewhurst, in the mixed doubles, by Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Hobart, of this city, who won handily, 6—2, 6—4.

In the man's single's, Mr. Dewhurst defeated M. B. Colket, of Philadelphia, for the championship. Mr. Colket played a brilliant game and his defeat was a surprise. The score was 3—10, 7—5, 6—3.

'TWAS ALL YANKEE.

London, June 24. — The final match for the London lawn-tennis championship in doubles was played on the Queen's Club courts today. W. A. Larned and W. J. Clothier won, defeating another pair of Americans, Holcombe Ward and B. C. Wright, in three sets out of five. The score was 6—4, 6—4, 5—7, 2—6, 6—4.

LONDON BALL PLAYERS ARE IN GREAT DEMAND

London ball players are in demand, and the Western Ontario League are looking this way for talent to strengthen their teams. Jack Stockton and Fleming are signed with St. Thomas; Bert O'Rourke has signed with Simcoe, and several others have offers under consideration. O'Rourke played the outfield for Simcoe against Ingersoll last week, and made a fine catch of a hard fly.

GOLF.

LYON HOME AGAIN.

Toronto, June 24.—Mr. George S. Lyon, the golfer, arrived home today from attending the international golfing events in Great Britain. In conversation with a reporter, Mr. Lyon complained of the bad weather which attended the English games and which affected his playing. Canadian weather was better for golf. The British links were splendid.

MAY PICNIC ELSEWHERE

Memorial S. S. Not Likely to Go to Port Stanley.

Dr. English, chairman of the board of health, made the important statement at a meeting of the officers and teachers of the Memorial Sunday school yesterday, that his family and himself will take no part in the picnic which the school proposes to hold to Port Stanley on the 7th of July.

In explanation Dr. English stated that nothing yet had been done to purify the water supply at Port Stanley. Dr. Hutchinson visited Port Stanley on Wednesday last and found that no action had been taken upon the analysis of the water made in August last, in September, or in May.

Dr. English also stated that he had written to Dr. Hodgetts, of the provincial board of health, and had been informed by him that the municipality of Port Stanley is prepared to do all in its power to cleanse the wells there. Dr. Hodgetts added that he intends to inspect the water supply at the Port at an early date. The letter was dated June 20.

The statement of Dr. English was made at the request of the rector of the Memorial Church, and it is probable that the picnic will be held at some place other than Port Stanley.

DIED ON HIS WAY HOME.

William W. Willis, on his way home to Exeter from the Northwest, was overtaken by death while traveling on a C. P. R. train on Friday at Huntsville. The coroner at Huntsville sent the remains to Toronto, where Coroner Johnston made an inquiry into the cause of death. It developed from this inquiry that Willis had been ill for some time, and his condition became so acute that he decided to go to his home in Exeter. The journey was too trying on his weakened condition, and he passed away at Huntsville. The funeral will be held at Exeter.

WEDDED AT BERLIN.

The marriage of Mr. Arthur E. Robinson, G. T. R. agent at East London, to Miss Mary Elthea Reid, was solemnized at the residence of the bride's parents, Berlin, in the presence of about 50 guests from Listowel, Paris, Woodstock, Toronto and Berlin. Rev. L. H. Wagner performed the ceremony. Miss Clara Robinson, of Paris, sister of the groom, was bridesmaid, and Mr. Elmer Reid, Berlin, brother of the bride, was groomsman. Mr. and Mrs. Robinson will be at home 697 Dundas street, after July. 1.

NEW PASTORS WILL BEGIN THEIR WORK

Three to Arrive Here This Week—News of the City Churches.

Sunday next will see three of the local Methodist pulpits occupied by new pastors. Rev. J. W. Graham will then assume his work at the First Church, Rev. E. B. Lanceley, at Dundas Center, and Rev. W. H. G. McAllister, at the Centennial. Rev. Alfred Brown, who comes from Windsor, to Askin Street, will not be in his new pulpit until Sunday, July 9, a supply having been arranged for next Sunday. Rev. W. G. Howson and Rev. A. H. Going preached for the last time at Askin Street and Centennial Churches, respectively, last evening, and they will leave this week for their new fields of labor.

At St. James' Presbyterian Church yesterday morning the pastor, Rev. Mr. MacGillivray, stated that the new gallery for the church was now assured. The managers had met with much success in their canvass for subscriptions, and the alterations would be completed and the opening take place some time in September.

The congregation of the First Methodist Church was addressed yesterday morning by three workers who are shortly to engage in the foreign fields—Rev. Mr. Wilkinson, Miss Allen and Mr. Percy Westaway. Mr. Williamson is to go to China, Miss Allen to Japan, and Mr. Westway is to be connected with the Methodist printing bureau in China. Mr. Wilkinson preached in the evening. The First Methodist Church has undertaken to pay Mr. Wilkinson's salary. The Sunday school is sending Miss Allen to Japan, and the Epworth League is sending out Mr. Westaway.

The floral service in the First Presbyterian Church yesterday morning for the children of the congregation was of a very beautiful nature. Palms and flowers were tastefully arranged in the front of the church, and the motto "No Cross, No Crown," was worked very prettily in a wreath of flowers. The wreath contained a cross worked out in red flowers and a crown in white flowers. The little ones assembled in the Sunday school, carrying flowers of all kinds, and marched into the church, depositing their sweet burdens one by one below the reading desk. The children then took seats in the front of the church, which was reserved for them, and a large part of the service consisted of the singing of children's hymns. In the absence at Rodney of the pastor, Rev. W. J. Clark, the services were taken in charge by Mr. George A. Little, student at Knox College, Toronto, and son of the late Rev. James Little, of London Township. His sermon, based upon the text "Remember Thy Creator in the Days of Thy Youth," was especially directed to the little ones.

Rev. Mr. Tancock, of Hyde Park, exchanged pulpits yesterday evening with Rev. George B. Sage, rector of St. George's Church, West London.

The Dundas Center Sunday school pupils were addressed yesterday by Rev. James Livingstone and Mr. Wilkinson, the new missionary for Japan.

Rev. Mr. Howard will conduct confirmation classes in Christ Church on Thursday evening.

Rev. T. B. Clarke preached at the anniversary services at Hyde Park yesterday morning, and his own pulpit was taken by Rev. Rural Dean S. S. Robinson, of Walkerton.

In the Memorial Church yesterday morning, Rev. Arthur Carlisle delivered a special sermon to young women on the life of the Apostle Mark, whose work proved to be a success, after first having been a failure.

Dean Davis and Canon Davis, of Sarnia, exchanged pulpits yesterday.

The congregation of St. Andrew's Church will meet on Thursday evening, in regard to the new Sunday school.

Mr. Harry Schwegler sang Handel's "Lord of the Night," in St. James' Church, South London, with fine feeling and effect. Mr. Schwegler's voice is a baritone of good compass and quality of which much is expected.

Special attention paid to spring wedding orders. Hueston's livery.

BURIED AT WOODLAND

Remains of Judge Fitzgerald Laid at Rest Saturday.

The funeral of the late Judge Fitzgerald was very largely attended on Saturday afternoon. Rev. Canon Davis and Rev. G. B. Sage were in charge of the services, and the interment was made at Woodland Cemetery. Many beautiful floral tributes were presented, prominent among which were a Masonic emblem, an anchor from the Middlesex Law Association, and a circle crown from the I. O. F. The Middlesex Law Association attended in a body. The pall-bearers were Messrs. T. H. Purdon, F. Love, S. Grant, C. Taylor, W. H. Ferguson and A. B. Greer.

BERRY—WILSON

Pretty Wedding at a Ridout Street South Residence.

A very pretty wedding was held on the lawn at the home of the bride's mother, Mrs. Lawrence H. Wilson, Ridout street south, on Wednesday evening when her daughter, Ethel, was united in matrimony to Mr. John Berry, of this city, the ceremony being performed by Rev. W. M. Walker, of the South London Baptist Church. The bride looked charming in a costume of cream silk eolienne, and carried bridal roses. She was given away by her brother, R. C. Wilson, while her sister, Miss Mabel, dressed in a pretty gown of crepe de chine, acted as bridesmaid. The groom was supported by his brother, Mr. R. W. Berry. The guests, relatives of the contracting parties, numbered about sixty, some coming from Bay City, Listowel and Woodstock. The gifts were very numerous and costly, among them being a beautiful dinner set presented by the employes of D. S. Perrin & Co., and a handsome couch from the Dominion Transport Company.

LOCAL INDUSTRY ENLARGED

Well-Known Citizens Chosen as Officers of Automobile Company.

The regular meeting of stockholders of the Maple Leaf Automobile and Electrical Manufacturing Company, Limited (successors to Barton & Co.), this city, was held at the company's offices, 124 York street, on Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The provisional directors having completed their work, resigned from their various offices, when the following board of directors were elected for the ensuing year: D. Ferguson, president; W. G. Barton, vice-president, R. T. Clark, secretary-treasurer; J. O. Weldon, H. McIntosh, John Houston and H. S. Albertson, directors; G. H. Rapson, general manager; John Houston, superintendent of sales. The line of goods which the company are now making and propose to manufacture are largely in demand, and as all those directly interested are thorough and successful business men, good results should follow. Every citizen of London will welcome the enlarged industry in the city, and trust that their highest anticipations may be fully realized.

SPICY EVIDENCE AT THE INQUIRY

Several Witnesses Called Before the County Council Committee.

The investigation which is being carried on by a special committee of the county council into the charges which High Constable McLoud and Detective Northgreaves made against each other at the recent session of the county council, is turning a very strong light upon the inner workings of the county constabulary system, and a great many ugly facts are being elicited. The investigation was thrown open to the public by the committee when it was resumed on Saturday afternoon. The whole afternoon was taken up with the hearing of evidence against Detective Northgreaves, County Solicitor Elliott examining the witnesses. The investigation will resume next Thursday evening.

The first thing to be done by the committee was to tabulate the charges which were made by the two constables against each other somewhat disconnectedly before the council. County Clerk Robson was then called to give evidence on the first charge made by McLoud against Northgreaves, namely, that the latter is insubordinate. Capt. Robson testified that county constables are all supposed to submit their accounts to the high constable to be initialed before being submitted to the audit board, which consists of Judge Elliott, G. F. Jewell and County Treasurer McEvoy. No exorbitant accounts had been presented by the constables during the past two years. Northgreaves had on several occasions put through accounts which had not been initialed by the high constable, and was the only constable who had ever refused to have his accounts looked over, according to witness. There would be opportunity for false accounts if they were not checked over by the high constable.

Capt. Robson said that McLoud's duty was to keep the constable at their work, but he had no actual supervision over that work. Constables were supposed to record their cases in a book kept by Constable McLoud. As far as witness could remember, Northgreaves had never presented any fraudulent accounts.

With regard to the charge that Northgreaves was drunk at the Thorndale fair, Mr. B. Harrison testified that he had seen the detective on that occasion, and that the latter was "not in good shape for a county man." Witness said Northgreaves had told him that he (Harrison) was just as guilty as Chantler, who was tried for cattle-stealing, on the ground that witness had supplied Chantler with the money he had used.

Constable Sadlier testified to having heard Northgreaves say that he would not submit his accounts to "that thing," indicating the high constable, that McLoud would not know, anyway, whether the accounts were right or wrong, and that McLoud did not know anything about the work at all.

Witness said that it was generally known among the county constables that there was a disorderly house at the Gore. Northgreaves had never asked witness to accompany him to several disorderly houses in the county.

On being asked why he did not pull the house, Sadlier replied that he did not want to do so without instructions from the high constable. Witness knew that McLoud had knowledge of the existence of the house and thought the latter should make the first move. Witness had gone to the Gore once to seek remuneration for a certain young man who had contracted a disease at the Gore, but was refused money by the keeper. The young man then said he would see the high constable, and witness had dropped the case. Witness had never heard that Northgreaves took any tips from the keepers of disorderly houses.

Constable Sadlier and John Hughes, janitor of the court house, told the committee of an unsuccessful attempt on the part of the high constable to "raid the Gore" shortly after it had been raided by Northgreaves and Corsant last Wednesday night. The two witnesses and McLoud had gone to the east end, but when they arrived at the Gore they found nothing suspicious and were told that the place had been raided.

DOGS MUST BE MUZZLED

are to be allowed to run at large it will be quite enough. The dog which bit the MacGregor boy may only be a poisoned dog. I think there has been a great deal too much talk and scare about this matter. To my mind, the less said the better in such cases. It is quite true that there are many dogs in the city which could be very easily done away with, but it is also true that there are very many fine dogs in London, and the men who own them do not wish to be compelled to keep them chained in backyards, after they have been compelled to pay a tax for them."

"Dr. McCallum says that the dog which bit young MacGregor had hydrophobia," said Ald. Carson. "Rabbits are now being inoculated with virus taken from the spine of the animal. Under these circumstances, I feel the aldermen should remember that the life of one child is worth more than the lives of all the dogs in London. I am in favor of passing a bylaw to the effect that no dog shall be allowed to run at large unless muzzled."

"It is quite true that the dog which bit the MacGregor boy was mad," Mayor Campbell told the council. "An officer of the Dominion veterinary department was here, and he decided to examine every dog that can be got hold of. The whole trouble lies in the fact that the dog which bit young MacGregor had been running at large for some time. Consequently it is impossible to say how many dogs were bitten and inoculated by this animal. The Dominion officer says he has been expecting something like this for some time, from the fact that rabies have been rampant in Buffalo for some years. My idea is that we should pass a bylaw to prevent all dogs running at large. If an owner desires to take his dog on the street, he can do so by leading him on a chain. The passing of the bylaw will, to my mind, be no hardship to dog-owners. And even if it is a hardship, the dog-owners of the city should have some consideration for the 40,000 people living in the city, who run the chance of being bitten and of contracting hydrophobia. I do not like the idea of muzzling dogs, as a means of heading off the trouble. I think all dogs should be prohibited running at large. In cases of infectious diseases people are compelled to live within doors, and surely if people could put up with this inconvenience they could tie their dogs up for a time."

Ald. Gillean didn't like the idea of absolutely prohibiting dogs running at large. He favored muzzling them.

Ald. Forristal said there are far too many dogs in the city now. He believed the mayor was right, and that a bylaw should be passed which would put a stop to dogs running at large in the city for a while at least. He moved that the bylaw, as read by the clerk, be given its first reading.

Ald. Cooper said that three years ago a bylaw had been passed calling upon dog-owners to muzzle their dogs. He believed this bylaw would cover the present case, but if the bylaw could not be found, then he would move in amendment to Ald. Forristal's motion, which had been seconded by Ald. Stevely, that a bylaw be passed calling upon all dog-owners in the city to muzzle their dogs. He repeated his assertion that there has been too much talk about the biting of the MacGregor boy. It was to be expected that the doctors in charge of the Pasteur Institute in New York would say the dog which bit the boy was mad. The institution is there to make money, he said. But all the mad dogs he had seen had been running about from place to place frothing at the mouth, and snapping at everything. This dog was only sick, and was lying in the grass. He wasn't running around.

"He couldn't run," said the mayor. "He was paralyzed." (Laughter.)

Ald. Cooper also said that it would not be right to tax people for dogs, and then compel them to keep their dogs within their yards all the time, but the mayor explained that no person is granted a license for a dog to run at large. The tax is simply for the privilege of keeping a dog in the city.

In reply to Ald. Gillean, the mayor stated that the bylaw can be repealed at any time.

On motion of Ald. Carson, seconded by Ald. Cooper, the word "unmuzzled" was then inserted in the bylaw, and the first reading was carried. City Clerk Baker had previously stated that the bylaw to which Ald. Cooper referred, does not appear on the records.

A wrangle then ensued as to whether a dog-owner whose dog has been impounded should be charged $1 or $2, but the sum was finally placed at $2.

Then the bylaw was given its second and third readings, and it became law, as soon as it was signed by the mayor and clerk. Consequently, it has been operative since Saturday night.

Ald. Cooper was the only alerman who objected to the passing of the measure, his ground for objection being that it is not right to charge a dog-owner $2 to get his dog out of pound. He thought $1 would be sufficient.

A huge anchor of extremely antiquated pattern, probably dating back to the time of the Armada, which had been hauled up from the North Sea, was brought into Yarmouth by the mission ship Cholmondeley. Covered all over from stock to head with barnacles and live oysters, it presented a singularly fossilized appearance. It was 14 feet long with flukes three feet square; the shank was 13 feet long, and an immense wood stock that had formerly been fixed to it had completely disappeared.

The great days of italics were in the thirties of last century, when the London Figaro began its criticisms of politics, the drama and society. Then every other word was italicized, and the effect today is as though every other word were a shriek. Until the eighties women retained the habit of underlining all but the prepositions and conjunctions in their letters, and there are still many women journalists who cannot get along without the stimulus of italics.

In one of the recently published letters of Ibsen he says that while he was writing one of his plays he had on his desk an empty ale glass with a scorpion in it. Now and then the animal would grow sick and the author would throw a piece of soft fruit to it, whereupon the scorpion would fall upon the food furiously, empty its poison into it, and then get well again. "Is it not a good deal like this with us poets?" Ibsen continues.

The latest weapon of man is a floating fortress for coast defense purposes. This fighting machine, which is called the Cerberus, lacks in every line of beauty. It is nothing more nor less than a perfectly round floating fort, about 200 feet in diameter, heavily protected by impenetrable thicknesses of armor plate and equipped with batteries of heavy guns far too large to be mounted upon any ordinary warship. The idea of the invention was suggested by a small but strongly fortified island.
