Grand jury-Swearing-Examination of witnesses Petit jury-Challenge - "Verifi-cateurs."]-It is not necessary that the accused should be present in Court during the swearing of the grand juries. 2. The grand jury may examine the Crown witnesses in whatever order they choose, and the examination of a single one of such witnesses is not an irregularity nor an illegality, where it is admitted that the witness was able to establish a complete admission on the part of the accused. 3. Since the coming into force of the Criminal Code, it is not necessary that the first juror sworn should be added to the board of verificateurs who are to pass upon the challenge of the second juror: s. 668. Criminal Code. Rex v. Mathurin, 12 Que. K. B. 494.

Grand jury-Swearing in - Foreman-Omission to initial names of witnesses-Effect on indictment-Submission of record-Depositions-Crown case reserved.]-1. It is essential that, at the time the foreman of the grand jury is sworn, the other jurors be present and hear the oath taken by their foreman. And, therefore, where it appeared that none of the other jurors were in the box at the time their foreman was sworn, that there was no certainty that the oath taken by him was heard by them, that the other jurors were only sworn, afterwards, to observe the same oath which their foreman had taken, and that objection was duly made by motion to quash, before the arraignment of the defendant, the indictment found by the grand jury was held to be null and void. 2. The omission by the foreman to initial the names of the witnesses examined before the frames of the withesses examined brind brind grand jury, as required by law, is a fatal de-fect, and has the effect of annulling the in-dictment. 3. The submission of a record to the grand jury, in order that they may examine certain exhibits, and verify certain statements made by witnesses examined before them, is not a fatal irregularity, where it is proved that the decision of the grand jury was arrived at without reference to the depositions contained in such record. 4. The objections to the indictment above mentioned are proper grounds for a reserved case. Bé-langer v. Rex, 12 Que. K. B. 69.

ty-Apdiction.] nal Code the ground that the petitioner is detained by virtue of a lawful sentence pronounced by a competent tribunal. has no power to order that tribunal to cause a part of the sentence to be executed (in this case the penalty of the lash) which had been suspended by reason of the issue of the writ. Goldsberry v. Bernatchez, 28 Que. S. C. 52.

Illness of juryman - Juryman leaving jury-box-Bailiff not sworn-Rebutting evi-dence-Admissibility.] - During a trial for murder one of the jurymen was taken ill. and it being necessary for him to leave the Court for some time, he was accompanied by an unsworn bailiff and by doctors who examined him and asked him questions in reference to his condition. There was no suggestion that during the time the juryman was absent from the Court he was tampered with in any way. After his recovery the trial proceeded. -Held, that the fact that the juryman was allowed to leave the Court without being in charge of a sworn bailiff did not constitute a mistrial.—Where evidence which is relevant to the issue is tendered by the prosecution to rebut the case set up by the defence, it is for the Judge at the trial to determine in his discretion whether such evidence should be allowed to be given or not. Even if the Judge exercises his discretion in a way different from that in which the Court of Criminal Appeal would have exercised it, that affords no ground for quashing the convic-tion of the prisoner. If, however, it is shewn in any case that the prosecution has done something unfair which has resulted in injustice to the prisoner the Court of Criminal Appeal may interfere. R. v. Crippen (1910), 31 C. L. T. 53, 27 T. L. R. 69.

Indictable offence—Place of trial—Right of accused.]—At common law and under the Griminal Code, a person accused of an indictable offence has a right to be tried in the Judicial District in which the offence was committed, unless an order of the Code, directing that the trial be held elsewhere.— Sections 575, 580, 584 (c), 873 A. and 884, of the Code, considered.—The Queen v. Ponton, 2 Can. Crim. Cas. 192. The King v. O'Gorman, 12 Can. Crim. Cas. 230; Rez v. Harris, 3 Burr, 1330, and The King v. Roy, 14 Can. Crim. Cas. 308, followed. R. v. Lynn (1910), 15 W. L. R. 336, Sask. L. R.

Indictment-Foundation of charge-Inquest.]—In the Territories it is not necessary, in order to put an accused person upon his trial on a criminal charge, that the charge should be based upon an indictment by a grand jury or a coroner's inquest. Regina y, Connor, 1 Terr. L. R. 4.

Indictment—Particularity—Statement of offence—Preferring of indictment — Order — Grand jury.] — Where a person is charged with an offence, the indictment should describe it with such particularity as will enable the accused to know exactly what he has to meet. An indictment which stated the offence in the language of the section of the Criminal Code supposed to have been violated, without setting out the particular facts constituting the offence, was quashed, for war' of particularity, and also because it was not preferred in accordance with a 641 of the Code. The Attorney-General did not in person or even by his authority prefer the indictment, and the informal direction of a Judge to the foreman of the grand jury, recognised by a formal order after the indictment hal actually been preferred, was insufficient. Rev. Beckwith, 23 C. L. T. 307.

Indictment for wounding with intent and for common assault-Motion to quash-Jury-Peremptory challenges.] -The defendant was indicted under ss. 241 and 265 of the Criminal Code on two counts charging (1) that he in the city of Halifax on the 13th November, 1903, with intent to do grievous bodily harm to one W., did unlawfully wound the said W., and (2) that he did in the city of Halifax on the 13th Nov-ember, 1903, unlawfully assault one W. After arraignment and before pleading to the indictment, the prisoner's counsel moved to quash it, on the ground that the clerk of the Crown had not sent the depositions taken on the prisoner's preliminary examination. before the grand jury of the county of Halifax, as required by s. 760 of the Criminal Code. When the jury were being sworn, the prisoner claimed the right to 16 peremptory challenges, on the ground that these counts would, before the Code, have been for a felony and misdemeanour respectively, and, as s. 626 (1) and (2) of the Criminal Code abrogated the common law rule as to their non-joinder. he was, under the above section, being tried on two indictments:--Held, that the indict-ment was properly found. 2. That the pri-soner was entitled under s. 668 of the Criminal Code only to 12 peremptory challenges, being the largest number allowed him on the first count of the indictment, it not being necessary for the Crown to add a count for common assault in order to get a conviction for that offence, if the evidence warranted it, The prisoner was then tried and acquitted on both counts in the indictment. Indictment of street railway company-Nuisance-Endangering lives of public-Removal from Sessions into High Court -Difficult questions of law. Rev. Toronto Rev. Co., 4 O. W. R. 277, 5 O. W. R. 621.

Indictment preferred by Attorney-General.]-Motion to quash-Cr. C. 873.]--The Attorney-General has the right to prefer directly before the Grand Jury a bill of indictment against any person suspected of having committed a criminal offence, without having to adopt the preliminary procedure usual in such cases.-The fact that an accused person has been committed for trial after a preliminary enquiry does not deprive the Attorney-General of the right to himself prefer a bill of indictment before the Grand Jury and completely ignore the proceedings already had before the magistrate who conducted the preliminary enquiry. R. v. Houle (1910). 12 Que. P. R. 4, 16 R, de J, 582.

Although an indictment has been quashed for irregularities in the preliminary enquiry, there is nothing to prevent the Attorney-General from preferring another indictment before the Grand Jury without the necessity of again holding a preliminary enquiry or laying an information before a magistrate. Inmate of bawdy house—Form of conviction—Imprisonment for time certain or until released. Rex v. Young, 2 E. L. R. 65.

Joint conviction—Prohibition to magistrate.]—Every act committed by two or more persons in violation of s. 94 of 51 V. c. 22 is a contravention by each of them. A joint conviction of these persons is therefore illegal; and prohibition will be ordered against the convicting magistrate. Amyot v. *Chau*veau, 28 Que S. C. 54.

Judgment is sufficiently explicit when it contains a brief summary of the nature of the offence and the date upon which it was committed, the names of the complainant, of the offending party, of the presiding Judge and of the Court in which he sat. Bernier v. Que. & Levis Ferry Co. (1910), 39 Oue. S. C. 193.

Judgment upon stated case—Subsc-quent motion to quash conviction—Res judicata - Necessity for writ of certiorari.]-Held, that where a summary conviction has been questioned on a case stated by the magistrate under s. 900 of the Criminal Code, 1892, and has been upheld, a subsequent application to quash it by way of certiorari, will not be entertained.-Semble, per Rich-ardson and Wetmore, JJ. (Scott and Rouleau, JJ., dissenting), that the papers in connection with a summary conviction, returned by the magistrate to one of the clerks of the Court under s. 888 of the Criminal Code, 1892, are not before the Court for all purposes, and that a writ of certiorari must issue in order that a motion to quash the conviction may be entertained. Jury-Exclusion of, during enquiry as to admissibility of dying declaration-Comment on prisoner's failure to testify.] - Motion for leave to appeal to the Court of Criminal Appeal :-- Held, that the jury should not be excluded during the preliminary enquiry as to whether certain evidence is admissible as a dying declaration .-- 2. A prisoner at his trial has the option of making a statement not under oath or of giving evidence under oath. -3. A direction to the jury that an accused has failed to account for a particular occurrence, when the onus has been cast upon him to do so, does not amount to a comment on his failure to testify, within the meaning of s. 4, s.-s. 2, of the Canada Evidence Act, 1883. Rex v. Aho, 25 C. L. T. 50, 11 B. C. R. 114, S Can. Cr. Cas. 453.

Jury — Polling — Separating — Refreshments.]—In a prosecution for felony it is discretionary with the trial Judge to permit or refuse to allow the jury to be polled. The prisoner being convicted of felony, the circumstances that two of the jurors had during the trial, but before the Judge's charge, been allowed to separate for a short time from the other jurors in the custody of one of the constables who had been placed in charge of the jury, and during such separation to hold a short conversation, not referring to the cause, with a stranger to the proceedings, and to partake, at their own expense, of intoxicating liquor, insufficient in quantity to cause intoxication, were held not to constitute sufficient ground for discharging the prisoner, or for a new trial. Regina v. McClung, 1 Terr. L. R. 379.

Jury-Right of accused to inspect panel -Provincial statute-Absence of Dominion legislation - Criminal procedure.]-Appeal from order dismissing appellant's application for a mandamus to the sheriff of Middlesex commanding him to shew to appellant or his agent for examination the panel of jurors at the Middlesex Sessions, for the purpose of determining whether it would be necessary to strike a special jury for the trial of appellant upon a charge of receiving stolen cattle, Argued that s. 85 of c. 31 C. S. U. C. is still the law in criminal matters, because being matter of criminal procedure the Legislature had no power to pass 58 V. c. 15, s. 3 (O.), now R. S. O. 1897 c. 61, s. 94, imposing restrictions upon the disclosure of the names of the jurors and inspection of the panel, to relate to criminal matters :--Held, Osler, J.A., dissenting, affirming the judgment refusing the mandamus. Justices of the peace—Jurisdiction— Committal of accused for trial—Absence of information in writing—Waiver — Submission to jurisdiction by appearing on eummons—Crim Code, as. 654, 655, 1—Application for writ on habeas corpus refused. Applicant, a police constable, informed a justice of the peace that he had unhawfully set at liberty a prisoner in his custody. The maristrate issued a summons. On the return dofendant was represented by another justice of the peace as his connsel, who objected that there was no sworn information, the summons having been issued on the statement of the defendant. Rex v. Thompson, 11 W. L. R. 517.

Magistrate's conviction — Apped — Stated case—Oriminal Code, ss. 238, 752— No offence disclosed in information.]—Defendant having called complainant a liar, was convicted before two justices of the peace under s. 238 above for disorderly conduct and insulting language and ordered to apologise to plaintiff within three days. The justices, in delivering their stated case on this appeal, did not do so within the required four days. This held to be directory, and Judge in Chambers held he had jurisdiction. Conviction held to be bad, first, because there was no offence; secondly, penalty ridiculous; and thirdiy, no judgment of forfeiture. Rex v. Turnbull, 11 W. L. R. 55, 2 Sask, L. R. 186.

Reading depositions to witnesses.]—An appeal from a magistrate's conviction dismissed. The magistrate in dealing with the case under Part XVI. of the Criminal Code is not by virtue of s. 711 bound to take depositions in the manner prescribed by s. 682. The magistrate is relieved under s. 708 from the duty of reading over the depositions to the witnesses before the prisoner enters on his defence. Rev v. Klien, 11 W. L. R. 240.

Magistrate's warrant of commitment —Habeas corpus — Certiorari in aid.]—A warrant without alleging a conviction directed the defendant's conveyance to and detention at a gold. The defendant procured a writ of habeas corpus declining a certiorari in aid. On return coursel for Attorney-General asked for a certiorari in aid:—Held, that the Attorney-General is entilled to this of absolute right and that the warrant was had, and could not be amended. There is no power to impose terms. Prisoner discharged. Rev. V. Selson, 12 O. W. R. 1063, 18 O. L. R. 484, 15 Can. Cr. Cas. 10.

Method of trial — Election—Criminal Code, 1892, a. 773 — Speedy trial—Adding new charges—Consent,]—When an accused person elects to take his trial before a Judge without a jury, on the charge upon which he was committed, or to answer which he was bound over to take his trial under s. 601 of the Criminal Code, 1892, leave should not be granted, under s. 773 of the Code, for thaddition to the indictment of new or other charges for offences substantially different, unless the accused elect to be tried on such other charges also by a Judge without a jury. Res v, Dargiers, 5 W. L. R. 6, 16 Man. L. R. 345.

Motion for change of venue - Fair trial-Convenience-Prejudice.] - The principle on which a change of venue in a criminal case will be ordered under s. 651 of the Criminal Code is, that there is fair and reasonable probability of partiality and prejudice in the district, county, or place, within which the indictment would otherwise be tried .- On a motion to change the venue, notwithstanding that a strong case was made out for the change, if the balance of convenience alone was to be considered, still, as it was not shewn that there was or was likely to be any prejudice against the accused, and certainly no more where the indictment was found than in the place to which it was proposed to change the venue, the motion was refused. Rev v. O'Gorman, 9 O. W. R. 928, 14 O. L. R. 102.

Motion for leave to appeal from conviction at acssions and for a reserved case-Indictment for robbing and wounding -Verdict of guilty of assault — Recording verdict-Interpretation. Rex v. Edmondstone and New, 10 O. W. R. 581.

Motion for new trial—Leave.]—A motion for a new trial in a criminal cause can be made before the Court of Appeal only upon leave therefor granted by the Court before which the trial has taken place. Rew v. Fouquet, 14 Que. K. B. 87. Motion for new trial, etc. — Grand juror, foreman of coroner's jury which returned verdict of murder against prisoner.] —The prisoner had been found guilty of murder. His counsel moved for a new trial, or to arrest judgment, on the ground that W., one of the grand jury, which found the bill against him, had previously neted as foreman of the coroner's jury, which had returned a verlict of murder against the prisoner. The same objection had been taken before the jury were sworn:—Hedl, Peters, J., that as the objection did not affect the justice of the proceeding the application must be refused. R. v. Downey (1869), 1 P. E. I. R. 201.

Motion to quash conviction—Rule nici —Practice where cause not shear,]—An arder nisi granied by a single Judge under Rule 7 of the General Rules of Michaelmas Term, 1899, if not entered to shew cause, will on proof of service be made aboute, and the Court will not consider and determine the sufficiency of the grounds on which the order was granted. Reav, Ritchie, Exp. Sandall, 37 N. B. R. 206.

Motion to quash indictment--Written opinion of Judge after hearing motion--Effect of delivering to registrar-Judgment--Motion still pending, Rex v. Hannay (B.C.), 4 W. L. R. 06.

Municipal corration - Indictment-Preliminary inquiry -Prohibition - Chancery Division.]-1. A prosecution of a municipal corporation for a nuisance in not keeping a public street in repair can only be by indictment, under s. 641, s.-s. 2, of the Criminal Code.-2. A preliminary inquiry cannot be taken before a magistrate for the purposes of s.-s. 2 .- 3. The Judges of the Chancery Division of the High Court of Justice for Ontario have jurisdiction at common law and by virtue of 28 V. c. 18, s. 2 (D.), in prohibition in criminal cases, notwithstanding that no Rules have been made under s. 533 (b) of the Code, and notwithstanding the provisions of s. Motion for a rule nisi to set aside order of Ferguson, J., prohibiting a police megistrate from proceeding, refused. Regina v. London, 21 C. L. T. 71, 32 O. R. 326.

against a company for failure to make and deposit within sixty days from the time it begins operations, the declaration provided in Art. 4754, R. S. Q., begun more than a year after the expiry of the sixty days, comes too late and ought to be dismissed. The limitation to a year within which penal actions must be brought is not a prescription the defendant must invoke. It extingaishes the right by lapse of time, and Courts must take cognizance of this. The defendant in penal actions is not bound 'o answer questions concerning deeds and articles, and his failure to do so does not give the plaintiff the right to take them "pro confesso." Stewart Y. Harrower Co. (1964), 36 Que. S. C. 418.

Plea of "guilty"—Magistrate's conviction—Denial of accused.] — On motion to quash a conviction the defendant swore he had pleaded not guilty, while the magistrate and another swore he had pleaded guilty. In view of this and the magistrate's notes motion was refused. Rex v. Campbell, 12 O. W. R. 1061.

Practice — Fraudulent conversion of moneps—Criminal Code, s. 355—Distributive charges—Trial and conviction on a charge— Autrefoia acquit and autrefois convict.]—The charges were objected to because "and" was substituted for "or" wherever it occurs in s. 355 above:—Held, that the charge is sufficiently and legally set forth. The maxistrate had jurisdiction to amend the original charge of theft by permitting the Crown prosecutor to substitute for it 62 charges of theft. Three of the charges were tried together. No objection to this as they were in no respect identical nor were they identical with a previous charge on which he had been convicted. The different charges are not different indictments. Rex v. Cross, 6 E. L. R. 414.

Proliminary enquiry — Irregularities— Hearing of a witness in absence of the accused—Grounds for quashing indictments.] —The object of a preliminary inquiry is not to establish the guilt or innocence of the accused, but merely to ascertain whether he should be committed for trial or not. Hence, irregularities thereat afford no grounds for quashing an indictment subsequently preferred, such as the hearing of one of the witnesses in the absence of the accused. R. v. Eliasoph (1909), 19 Que, K. B. 232.

Preliminary enquiry before magistrate—Discretion—Evidence—Recopening.] —In a criminal matter the preliminary enquête before the magistrate in respect of an offence which may be prosecuted by way of information, is not, properly speaking, the enquête of the complainant, but that of the magistrate.—2. At the time of the preliminary hearing, after the enquête of the prosecution has been declared closed, and nothing has been shewn against the accused, and even after the parties have been heard as to the legal effect of the evidence, the magistrate has a discretion to permit the prosecutor to roopen the enquête to make more ample prof. Bélanger V. Multena, 22 Que. 8. C. 37.

Private prosecution-Prosecutor bound over to prefer indictment - Appearance before grand jury — Irregularity — Motion to guash indictment — Security for costs.]— When a person preferring a charge requires the magistrate who has discharged the accused, to bind him over to lay and prosecute an indictment, and does submit such an indictment to the grand jury, at the following sitting of the Court, he has no right to appear, by himself or through counsel, before the grand Jury, without the permission of the Court. The rule being, though not express, established by the hitherto unchallenged practice of the Court, a violation of it affords a ground for a motion to quash the indictment after a true bill has been found; but, when the question arises for a formal decision for the first time, and no injustice appears to have been caused by the irregularity, the motion will be discharged and the indictment allowed to stand .--- 2. The right of the accused to security for his costs, under cl. 4 of s. 595 of the Criminal Code, will be enforced, upon motion, after the finding of a true bill under the circumstances stated above. Rex v. Hoo Yoke, 14 Que. K. B. 540.

Private proceentor—Right to take part in proceedings.]—Held, on motion for a certiorari, that, though it is the right of everyone to make a complaint with a view to the institution of criminal proceedings, and also, under certain circumstances, to prefer a bill of indictment, yet the prosecutor is no party to the prosecution, and cannot insist that he, or counsel retained by him, shall aid in the conduct of the prosecutor. Res V. Gilmore, 23 C. L. T. 298, 6 O. L. R. 286, 2 O. W. R. 710.

Proof of previous conviction—Time for—Recollection of magistrate—Crowe case revious conviction against a prisoner under the Criminal Code, s. 971. is not upon the trial of the offence, but after the trial and before seuence—Where there has been a previous conviction, within the recollection of the magistrate, but the Crown has failed to prove it, and it has not been otherwise shewn, the magistrate may proceed upon his own initiative, and may inform himself at the same time as to the previous conviction, and the age, character, and antecedents of the prisoner—Semble, that the proper course to be pursued by the magistrate in such a case is not a subject for a reserved case. Rev K. Bonnevie, 38 N. S. R. 560, 1 E. L. R. 48.

Prosecuting offices—Election of prisoner —Criminal Code—Inspection of depositions.] —A barrister appointed by the Attorney-General, under the authority of R. S. N. S. 1900 c. 165. "to prosecute all matters in His Majesty's Supreme Court and County Court Criminal Court in and for the county of L., until further notice," has power to take the election of a prisoner under the Criminal Code, s. 706, the words "all criminal business," including all process necessary to bring the prisoner to trial, and the making of the election, being a necessary act in these proceedings.—The Dominion statute (Code, s. 706, s.-s. 2, amended by Acts of 1900 c. 46), must be read, if possible, in such a way as to make it applicable to the varying circumstances of the different provinces for which it was passed.—Where the depositions handed to the prisoner for his inspection are contained in a bundle with other depositions, but in such a way that there is no difficulty in understanding those applicable to the particular offence charged, there is a sufficient compliance with the Code, s. 653. Rex v. Jodrey, 38 N. S. R. 142.

Recognizance — Infant defendant,] — Defendant had been convicted for illegally selling liquor. A motion was made to quash this conviction on the ground that defendant was an infant. No recognizance had been entered into, it being contended that as an infant defendant could not give a recognizance nor had $100 been paid into Court as required by s. 101 (a) of the Judicature Act:—Held, that as defendant had the option of paying money into Court the motion could not succeed. Rex v. Reid, 12 O. W. R. 1037.

Recorder of Montreal—Summary trials —Evidence—Reduction to writing.]—In all causes brought before the recorder of the city of Montreal, other than civil actions, the provisions of the Criminal Code apply generally, and the evidence must be taken down in writing. Lacroix v. Weir, 8 Que. P. R. 186, 12 Can, Cr. Cas. 297.

Recorder of Montreal-Summary trials --Evidence-Reduction to writing-Waiver --Consent--Plea of "guilty"--Conviction--Certiorari, I--In a trial before the Recorder's Court, the accused may validly waive the taking down of evidence in writing, and a summary conviction pronounced after such trial will not be quashed on certiorari, on the ground that such consent would be illegal. Reg v. Weir, 8 Que, P. R. 400.

But where the prisoner has pleaded guilty upon a summary trial, the depositions need not be in writing. S. C., S Que, P. R. 405.

Reference by the Governor-General in Council-Criminal Code 6 & 7 Edw. VII. c. 8-Procedure-Alberta and Saskatchewan -Indictable offence-Preliminary enquiry-Preferring charge-Consent of Attorney-General-Powers of deputy - Lord's Day Act. s. 17.1-Section 873a of Criminal Code (6 & 7 Edw. VII. c, S), provides that "In the provinces of Alberta and Saskatchewan it shall not be necessary to prefer any bill of indictment before a grand jury, but it shall be sufficient that the trial of any person charged with a criminal offence shall be commenced by a formal charge in writing setting forth as in an indictment the offence with which he is charged."—"2. Such charge may be preferred by the Attorney-General or an agent of the Attorney-General or by any person with the written consent of the Judge of the Court or of the Attorney-General or by order of the Court:"-Held, Idington, J., dissenting, that a preliminary inquiry before a magistrate is not necessary before a charge can be preferred under this section .- Held. also, that the deputy of the Attorney-General for either of the said provinces has no authority to prefer a charge thereunder with-out the written consent of the Judge or of the Attorney-General or an order of the Court. Section 17 of Lord's Day Act provides that "no action or prosecution for a violation of this Act shall be commenced without the leave of the Attorney-General for the province in which the offence is al-"-Held. leged to have been committed."-Held, that the deputy of the Attorney-General of a province has no authority to grant such leave. Reserved case after verdict—Criminal Code, ss. 1014, 1021.]—Application to state a reserved case after trial and before sentence refused, following Ead v. The King, 40 S. C. R. 272. The Court refused to hear counsel as amici curiae suggesting doubts as to correctness of charge. Rex v. Pantilla, 9 W. L. R. 241.

Restitution of stolen property—Absence of identification at trial.]—The prisoner was convicted for stealing from the person. At the trial the prosecutor testified that bank notes of the value of $70 were taken from him, and he gave the denomination of the notes, which included one for $20. Another witness testified that when the prisoner was arrested and brought to the police station she was searched and a $20 bank note 8.

and some smaller notes, amounting in all to $28, were found upon her. The money was not produced at the trial nor any evidence given to identify the notes found on the prisoner with the stolen notes. After the trial, upon the ex parte application of the prisoner, an order was made by a Judge in the County Court Judge's Criminal Court, directing that the money found on the prisoner should be restored to her. A motion was made to set aside the order, whereon judgment was reserved. The Judge died without delivering indoment. The motion was renewed before his successor, who dismissed the application to set aside the care parte order, and made an order for restitution to the prisoner, on the ground that the money was not produced and identified at the trial as part of the stolen property. Regina v., Hweretock, 21 C. L. T. 482.

Right to jury—Stealing cattle.)—The prisoner was charged with having stolen one steer, and was tried summarily before a Judge without a jury. The Judge found that the value of the animal did not exceed $200: —Held, that the charge was one of theft simply, although the punishment for stealing cattle was greater than for stealing other property; and s. 66 of the North-West Territories Act applied to the offence, and not s. 67. Regina v. Packad, 20 C. L. T. 192.

Search warrant—Information on vehich based—Causes of suspicion — Certiorari— Quashing.]—The proceedings upon which a search warrant is issued and the warrant itself may be brought before the Court on certiorari, and if the warrant is deemed to have been improperly issued, it may be quashed. — The information necessary to justify the issuing of such warrant must disclose facts and circumstances shewing the causes of suspicion, which tended to the belief of the commission of the alleged offence, with regard to which the warrant is deemed essential. The information herein being defective in this respect, the warrant was directed to be quashed, but on condition that no action should be brought against the police majstrate who issued it, or the officer who executed it. Rex v. Kehr, 11 O. L. R. 517, 7 O. W. R. 446.

Sittings of Court-Appeal to Court of King's Bench - Dismissal of information Autrefois convict—Invalid conviction.]—The words "sittings of the Court," in s. 880 (a) of the Criminal Code, mean a term of the Court as fixed by law, and not a sitting had in virtue of an order of adjournment.-2. An appeal lies to the Court of King's Bench from an order of a justice of the peace dismissing an information or complaint on a plea of autrefois convict.--3. A conviction by a magistrate or magistrates upon an information or complaint charging an offence for which a previous information against the same defendant has been made before another magistrate, and while the same is pending, is null and void, and will not avail in support of a plea of autrefois convict to the previous conviction or complaint. Hence an order dismissing the latter on such a plea will be quashed in appeal. Cotton v. Bombardier, 15 Que. K. B. 7.

Stamps—Proceedings by Crown—Warrant of arrest—Execution—Validity.]—The affixing of stamps on judicial proceedings enjoined by ss. 1167 and following, R. S. Q., is not required on proceedings by the Crown. But, even if it were, the omission to affix a stamp to a warrant of arrest would not affect the validity of the proceedings subsequent to the execution of the same. Rev v. Hamelia, 16 Que, K. B. 501.

Stated case—N. S. Speedy Trials Act— Judge taken ill on day fixed for trial of prisoner—Jurisdiction to convict on a subsequent trial.]—On day fixed for trial of prisoner, under above Act, the Judge was suddenly taken ill and unable to attend. No adjournment was made. Subsequently the Judge fixed another day, tried, and convicted defeudant:—Held, that conviction was right. Rev v. Stewart, 6 E. L. R. 564.

Summary conviction — Jurisdiction of District Court.]—Defendant had been summarily convicted before two justices of the peace for unlawfully obstructing a sheriff's officer. On appeal to a District Court the Judge of that Court referred the matter to the Full Court. There being no authority to warrant the reference and no jurisdiction in the Court to entertain it, the matter was not dealt with. Rex v. Mischowsky, 11 W. L. R. 200.

Summary trial — Election — Indictment at assizer — Grand jury — Prisoners called on to plead—Re-election.]—The right of an accused person, bound over by the majstartie at the preliminary hearing to appear and take his trial at the assizes, to theet, under s. 825 of the Criminal Code, to be tried by a Judge without a jury, may be exercised even after finding of a true bill by the grand jury on an indictment upon the same charge preferred by the Crown at the next sessions, if such election is made before plen to the indictment. Res v. Komiensky, 6 Can. Crim. Cas. 524, distinguished. Res v. Thompson, S. W. L. R. 3, 17 Man. L. R. 608, 14 Can. Crim. Cas. 27.

VII. c. 9, requires the magistrate, where consent of the accused is necessary to enable the magistrate to try the accused summarily, to inform the accused that he is charged with the offence, describing it, and that he has the option to be forthwith tried by the magistrate without the interven-tion of a jury, or "to remain in custody or under bail, as the Court decides, to be tried in the ordinary way by the Court having criminal jurisdiction." — Where a police magistrate, having before him a prisoner charged with indecent assault upon a female, complied with the section by informing the prisoner of the substance of the charge against him, and also that he had the option of being tried by the magistrate without the intervention of a jury, or by a jury if he (the

Summary trial of prisoner for theft

-Sentence imposed by police magistrate-Admission by prisoner of previous conviction -Information or indictment not charging previous conviction-Criminal Code, ss. 386, 851, 963, 1016 (2)-Alteration of sentence by Court of Appeal.]-1. When a prisoner is convicted, on a summary trial before a police magistrate, of theft, he cannot be sentenced, under s.-s. 2 of s. 386 of the Criminal Code, to more than 7 years' imprisonment, although he has been previously convicted of theft, unless such previous conviction has been charged in the information by analogy to s. 851, and proved in accordance with s. 963, and where in such a case a greater punishment is inflicted, the Court of Appeal, upon an application under s.-s. 2 of s. 1016 of the Code, will set aside the sentence and pass what it considers a proper sentence .-- Quare, Whether the procedure provided in the Code permits of inserting charges of previous convictions in an information leading up to the preliminary hearing of a charge of an indictable offence .--- 2. When a previous conviction is not charged in the indictment or information, neither a Judge nor a magistrate has any right to ask a prisoner, after conviction, whether he has been previously convicted or not, either with the view of ascertaining whether the prisoner is liable to any increased punishment in such case, or with the view of determining what the proper sentence, within the ordinary maximum provided by the statute in the particular case, should be .- Semble, previous convictions cannot be in any way considered in passing sentence unless they have been charged in the indictment or information. Rex v. Edwards, 7 W. L. R. 1, 17 Man. L. R. 288.

Summoning grand jury-Irregularities -Sheriff-Disqualification- Coroner.]-The prisoner was convicted at the circuit for the county of C., which opened on the second Tuesday in November, 1897. When the Court first met, as there was no criminal business, the grand jury was discharged. After proceeding for a time with the trial of a civil cause the Court adjourned until the 30th November, before which time the prisoner was committed for trial. The sheriff, without any order, summoned a second grand jury for the adjourned Court. Objection having been taken, on an order made by the Court, the sheriff summoned a third grand jury, which was practically the same as the second. This jury found a true bill, and the prisoner pleaded guilty to two of the counts in the indictment. It then appearing that the sheriff was related to the prosecutor, the Court, without formally discharging the third jury, allowed the plea of guilty to be withdrawn and ordered a fourth grand jury to be summoned, the venire being addressed to a coroner. The order for summoning the last grand jury (which also directed the summoning of a petit jury) was brief in form and did not shew on its face all the facts which necessitated its issue. Among the grand jurors summoned by the coroner were two who had been on the sheriff's third panel. The coroner's grand jury was all drawn from the parish of Woodstock :--Held, that the order to the coroner to summon a jury need not shew on its face all the facts that made its issue a necessity .-- 2. The facts that the sheriff's jury had not been formally discharged, nor the indictment found by it in terms disposed of, were immaterial-the whole proceedings being void by reason of the defect in the returning officer.—3. The power of the Court to summon grand juries is not exhausted by the summoning of two.-4. The disqualification of the sheriff sufficiently appeared.-5. It is not necessary that the grand jury should be drawn from all parts of the county .--- 6. The fact that some of the jurymen summoned by the coroner were also on the sheriff's panel was not material .-- 7. It is no objection to the order to the coroner that it directed him to summon both a grand jury and a petit jury .- 8. Section 12 of C. S. N. B. c. 45 applies to criminal as well as to civil matters .- 9. Per Tuck, C.J.: The doctrine held in England that all the coroners of a county, when acting ministerially, constitute but one officer, is not applicable to this province .- Per Hanington, J .: The direction of venire to a single coroner, and a return by him alone, is sufficient under s. 12 of C. S. N. B. c. 25, and if not the defect is cured by s. 656 of the Criminal Code. Re-gina v. McGuire, 34 N. B. R. 430.

Suspended sentence-Estreating recognizance-Locus standi.]-The defendant was in 1887 convicted of libel, and released from custody upon entering into a recognizance with sureties to appear and receive judgment when called upon. The private prosecutor obtained a rule nisi calling on the defendant to shew cause why he should not be ordered to appear at the next assizes to receive judgment, on the ground that he had failed to be of good behaviour since entering into the recognizance, by reason of his having pub-lished further libels :—Held, that it is only upon motion of the Crown in such cases that the recognizance of the defendant and his bail are estreated, or judgment moved against the offender .- Held, also, that, apart from this, under the circumstances, the prosecutor must be left to his remedy by action or indictment against the defendant in regard to the libels complained of. Rex v. Young, 21 C. L. T. 463, 2 O. L. R. 228.

Tring.]—The direction to a juror to stand by — Time.]—The direction to a juror to stand by is practically a challenge for cause, and therefore the order to stand by must be given at a time when a challenge could be made; and, inasmuch as the right to challenge must be exercised before the juror has taken the book in order to be sworn, the direction to stand by can only be given before the juror has received the book. Rex v. Trial-Jury-Influence upon, by Judge's Remark-Conspiracy - Evidence-Reserved case-Prejudice of juror - New trial-Affidavits-Misconduct.] - A verdict cannot be impeached in consequence of an observation made by the Judge presiding while the trial was proceeding, unless such observation was calculated to influence the jury against the defendant; and consequently, a remark of the presiding Judge to the defendant's counsel while the jury was being sworn, that "if you continue to challenge every man who reads the newspapers, we shall have the most ignorant jurors selected for the trial of this cause," is not a proper ground for a reserved case, it having no tendency to influence the jury one way or the other.—2. On a trial for conspiracy to defraud a railway company by fraudulently obtaining information of the secret audits about to be made and furnishing the same to conductors of cars to enable them to be prepared for the audits, proof that information of this nature might be given by one conductor to another for purposes other than to defraud the company, was properly excluded, because such questions could not disprove the object of the conspiracy or throw any doubt on the evidence which had been adduced to shew the object which the parties had in view.—3. An observation by the presiding Judge, in his charge to the jury, to the effect that " about forty or fifty witnesses had been examined for the purpose of establishing the defendant's good character, and that it was very strange that it should take forty or fifty wit-nesses to establish it," is not an irregularity which can constitute a ground for granting a reserved case.-4. A new trial should not be ordered in consequence of remarks made by a juror tending to shew prejudice, unless it be shewn that he was so prejudiced as to be unable to give the defendant an impartial trial .-- 5. An application for a new trial on the ground of improper conduct of the jury must be supported by affidavits clearly setting forth the alleged irregularity, and, in the absence of full proof under oath, the presumption is that the jury properly performed its duty .- 6. The affidavits of jurors are not admissible to impeach their finding, but are admissible to support and confirm the presumption that the proceedings of the jury were correct, and that there was no misconduct. Rex v. Carlin, 12 Que. K. B. 368.

Trial—Jury—Right to — Assault—Criminal Code.]—A person charged with assault occasioning actual bodily harm contrary to s. 262 of the Criminal Code is not entitled, under s. 67 of the North-West Territories Act, to be tried with the intervention of a jury. Section 66 extends to all minor offences included in the several offences specifically enumerated therein. Rex v. Hostetter, 5 Terr. L. R. 363.

Trial-Offence other than that for which prisoner committed.] — Held, that, notwithstanding the provisions of s. 773 of the Criminal Code, 1892, a Judge should not, against the wish of a prisoner, give his consent, at the trial before him without a jury which the prisoner has elected to take, to any charge being preferred in the indictment unless it is clear that, while it may be more formally or differently expressed, it is substantially the same charge as the one on which he was committed for trial. Res v. Carriere, 22 C. L. T. 187, 14 Man. L. R. 52.

Trial—Place other than Court house.]— At the trial of an indictable offence the presiding Judge has the power to order the Court to be adjourned to a place in the county other than the Court house, for the purpose of allowing the jury to hear the evidence of a witness who was unable through illness to leave his home. Rex v. Rogers, 36 N. B. R. 1.

Trial—Right of jury — Steajing cattle.] —Although the punishment which may be awarded on a conviction for stealing cattle is greater than that which may be awarded on a conviction for stealing certain other classes of property, a person charged with having stolen cattle the value of which does not, in the opinion of the trial Judge, exceed $200, has not the right to be tried by jury; Regina v. Pachal, 20 C. L. T. 192, 4 Terr. L. R. 310.

Tr1al—Speedy trial of indictable offences —Election as to mode of trial — Time for— Indictment.]—After an indictment has been found against the accused by the grand jury, it is too late for him to elect for speedy trial without a jury under Part LIV, of the Criminal Code. Jurisdiction to hold a speedy trial is strictly limited by the terms of s. 705 of the Criminal Code, and such jurisdiction is only conferred where the accused has been committed to gaol for trial, or is otherwise in custody awaiting trial on the charge against him. Rex v. Komiensky, 12 Que K. B, 329.

Trial—Speedy trial of indictable offences —Election as to mode of trial — Time for— Indictment.]—When, in the ordinary course, an indictment has been found for an offence with which a person who is either in custody or on ball, has been charged, and such indictiment has been returned into Court and has been filed of record, the Court is regularly and exclusively seised of the case, and the accused has no right then to ask for a speedy trial and to remove the case and the indictment and the other documents forming the record to the special Court for speedy trials. Rex v. Komiensky, 12 Que, K. B. 463, 7 Cam, Cr. Cas, 27.

Trial-Speedy trial of indictable offences Election as to mode of trial - Time for-Waiver-Plea to indictment.]-Four accused persons, after a preliminary enquiry, were committed for trial for conspiracy to defraud, but no bill of indictment was preferred to the grand jury on such charge. A bill of indictment, however, was preferred by the Crown counsel, with the written consent of the Judge presiding in the Court of King's Bench, charging the four accused and two other persons with conspiracy. Two addi-tional bills were preferred against the six persons, charging them with having committed other indictable offences, and the grand jury declared the three bills well founded and returned them into Court as true bills. The accused, when arraigned, severally pleaded not guilty on the three indictments, but when the Court was proceeding to fix a day for the trials, they moved that an order be made allowing them to be taken before a Judge of sessions to declare their option for speedy trial on the indictments :--Held, that in order to waive a trial by jury and to elect to be tried by a Judge of sessions, an information must have been laid before a justice of the peace, a preliminary enquiry must have been made, depositions giving evidence concerning the offence charged must have been taken, and the accused must have been committed for trial. Rex v. Gibson, 4 Can. Crim. Cas. 451, followed.-2. Whenever an accused party neglects to take the necessary steps to elect for a trial without a jury in the special Court for speedy trials, before an indictment is found against him and returned into Court, his plea to such indictment will be conclusive against him, and he cannot afterwards elect for a speedy trial without a jury: Regina v. Lawrence, 1 Can. Crim. Cas. 295. His plea to the indictment conclusively and exclusively fixes the form. Rear V. Wener, 12 Que. K. B. 320.

Trial-Speedy trial of indictable offences Jurisdiction of district magistrate - Criminal Code.]-A district magistrate has no jurisdiction to try a person for an indictable offence, except in the special cases provided by law, viz., the indictable offence must be one which is triable before the general or quarter sessions of the peace; the accused person must have been committed or bailed for trial, and be in actual custody awaiting trial; the sheriff must have notified the district magistrate in writing that such person is so confined, stating his name and the nature of the charge preferred against him; the district magistrate must thereupon have caused the prisoner to be brought before him, and, after having obtained the depositions on which the prisoner was committed, state and describe to him the offence with which he is charged, and the prisoner must then have consented to be tried before such district magistrate without a jury. The jurisdiction to hold a speedy trial is strictly limited by the terms of ss. 765-767, Criminal Code, and the conditions specified in these sections must be strictly complied with, on pain of absolute nullity, even where the accused has expressly declared that he consents to stand his trial before the district magistrate who convicted him. Rex v. Breckenridge, 12 Que. K. B. 474.

Trial-Summary trial — Assault-Penalty-Right to jury-Notification by magistrate's clerk.]—Section 785 of the Criminal Code, 1892, as re-enacted by 63 & 64 V. c. 46, gives to the police magistrate of a city or town power to impose the same punishment for a common assault as could be imposed upon a person convicted on an indictment, when he has decided to treat it as an indictable offence and is proceeding under the summary trials part of the Code.—2. The magistrate may ask the question provided for by s. 786 of the Code through the mouth of his clerk. Rev V. Ridehaugh, 23 C. L. T. 236, 14 Man. L. R. 434.

Venue — Indictment — Commitment to penitentiary—Warrant.] — The venue mentioned in s. 609 of the Criminal Code, 1892, means the place where the crime is charged to have been committed; and, in cases where local description is not required, there is an implied allegation that the offence was committed at the place mentioned in the venue in the margin of the record. It is of no consequence whether or not the trial Court should be considered an inferior Court.—Under s. 42 of the Penitentiary Act. R. S. C. c. 182. a copy of the sentence of the trial Court, certified by a Judge or by the clerk or acting clerk of that Court, is a sullicient warrant for the commitment and detention of the convict. Decision of Davies, J., in Exp p. Smitheman, 24 C. L. T. 329, 35 S. C. R. 189, altirmed. Smitheman Y. Rex, 35 S. C. R. 490.

Verdict - Indictment for robbery with violence and wounding-Finding of "guilty of assault" - Recording - Interpretation-New trial.1-On the trial of the defendants at the general sessions of the peace on an indictment charging them with robbery with violence and wounding, on the jury bringing in a finding of "guilty of assault," the chairman questioned the Crown Attorney as to its meaning, when he replied, "assault as charged in the indictment." The chairman then asked the foreman, when he replied, "We mean inflicting the blow with a bottle as described, but not guilty of robbery," and, on being questioned as to which prisoner, replied, "Both:" whereupon the chairman indorsed the verdict on the record as follows, "Guilty of assault as charged, but not guilty of robbery," he so interpreting the finding :-Held, that the verdict was not properly interpreted and acted upon by the chairman, and was not rightly recorded; and a new trial was directed. Rev. v. Edmonstone and New, 10 O. W. R. 1065, 15 O. L. R. 325.

Warrant of arrest - Habeas corpus-Return-Arrest on telegram - Proper warrant duly indorsed-Perjury-Sufficient allegation of-Signature of magistrate-Designation of office. 1-The accused was arrested for an offence alleged to have been committed in another province in respect of which a warrant of arrest had been there issued and notified by telegram to the police department at the place of arrest :-- Held, that he was not entitled to be discharged on habeas corpus on the ground of the irregularity of his arrest, if the original warrant in due form and duly indorsed was returned in answer to the writ .-- 2. A warrant of arrest for perjury is sufficient under s. 1152 of the Criminal Code if it charges that the accused committed perjury by swearing that he did not do a particular act specified, without alleging therein that the statement was sworn with intent to mislead the Court .--- 3. A magistrate signing a warrant need not add to his signature the full designation of his office and the name of the district for which he was appointed, if recited in the body of the warrant. Rex v. Lee Chu (N.S.), 14 Can. Crim. Cas. 322.

Wilfully obstructing a peace officer -Right of accused to be put on election before summary trial — Party put twice in icopardy — Porcer of appellate Court to retry appellant on original charge.] — An accused party charged before two justices of the peace with wilfully obtions of the peace with wilfully obstructing a peace officer in the excention of his duty, cannot be tried summarily by them without his consent, after being put to election as provided in s. 778 Cr. C. A summary conviction of the accused by the justices, without his consent, is irregular and will be quashed on appeal.—The Court to which an appeal is taken by the accused from a summary conviction so made, shall hear and determine de novo the charge upon which it was made and make such other conviction or order as it thinks just. Section 754 Cr. C. Von Koolberger & Lapointe (1900), 19 Que, K. B. 240.

S. SUMMARY CONVICTION.

Amendment - Certiorari-Indian Act.] -Under s. 889 of the Criminal Code, the Court, if a conviction under any Act to which the procedure in the Code applies is brought up by certiorari (whether in aid of a writ of habeas corpus or on motion to quash the conviction, is immaterial). may hear and determine the charge as disclosed by the depositions upon the merits, and may confirm, reverse, vary, or modify the decision .- A conviction under the Indian Act, defective on its face, was amended by describing the offence accurately, and by substituting for imprisonment for six months and a fine of $50 and $5 costs or imprisonment for a further term of six months in default of payment of the costs or in default of sufficient distress, imprisonment for six months and a fine of $50 and $5 costs or imprisonment for a further term of three months in default of payment of the fine and costs. Regina v. Murdock, 20 C. L. T. 350, 27 A. R. 443.

Appeal - Magistrate stating case after appeal-Res judicata.]-The defendant was convicted before a stipendiary magistrate for violation of certain regulations made under the Fisheries Act, R. S. C. c. 06, s. 17, and an appeal was taken to the County Court for district No. 3, where the conviction was affirmed. No appeal was taken from the judgment in the County Court, but the sti-pendiary magistrate was applied to to state a case for the opinion of the Supreme Court, with the view of questioning the validity of the conviction, which he did :--Held, quashing the case stated, that, with the judgment of the County Court standing in the way, the defendant was precluded from asking the stipendiary magistrate to state a case for the purpose of attacking the conviction in the Supreme Court. The judgment in the County Court, in the identical case, was binding as between the parties, and upon the stipendiary magistrate, and the matter was therefore res judicata, and one in which the magistrate could not be asked to state a case. Rex v. Townshend, 35 N. S. R. 401.

Appeal—Notice—Sufficiency — Recognizance — Affidavit of justification.] — Held, Scott, J., dissentiente, that a notice of appeal from a conviction is insufficient if it is not addressed to any person—Held, per cariam, that no affidavit of justification of the surties need accompany the recognizance. Cragg V. Lamarsk, 3 Terr. L. R. 91. Appeal—Voire of—Parties to be served.] —A notice of appeal from a summary conviction (provincial) served upon the convicting magistrate is not invalid because it is not also addressed to and served upon the respondent. It is not a pre-requisite to the right of appeal that the person convicted should have been taken into custody. Quare, whether service of notice of appeal on the respondent's solicitor would not be sufficient in any event. Rex v. Jordan, 22 C. L. T. 219, 9 B. C. R. 33.

Appeal—Notice to complainant.]—A notice of appeal from a conviction under the Summary Convictions Act, C. S. C. c. 178, was addressed to the convicting magistrate only, and was served upon him only. The notice contained no intimation that it was served on the magistrate for the prosecutor or complainant, nor did it appear that the magistrate was otherwise notified to that effect:—Ided, the notice of appeal was insufficient. Keohan v. Cook, 1 Terr. L. R. 125.

Appent — Notice to complainant — Forum.] — Heid, that a notice of appent neither addressed to nor served upon the prosecutor, but addressed to and served upon one only of two convicting justices of the peace, is insufficient, though it appear that when the notice was so served the justice upon whom it was served was verbally informed that it was for the prosecutor. Keohan v. Cook, 1 Terr, L. R. 125, followed. The question, whether a notice of appeal to the Supreme Court of the North-West Territories instend of a Judge thereof was valid, was raised but not decided. Hostetter v. Thomas, 4 Terr, L. R. 224.

Appeal—Payment of face — Security — Money deposit—Return to appellate Court.] —A person by paying his fine on a summary conviction loses any right of appeal he might otherwise have had under s. 880 of the Oriminal Code. Where on an appeal from a summary conviction an appellant makes a money deposit in lieu of recognizance, the deposit, which includes both the fine and the security for costs of appeal, should be returned by the justice into the appeal cannot be heard. Rev v. Neuberger, 9 B. C. R. 272.

Appeal—Recognizance.]—It is too late to file the recognizance required by s. 77 of the Summary Convictions Act, on an appeal from a summary conviction or order where the defendant has not remained in custody, after the appellant has entered upon his case. Bestucick v. Bell, 1 Terr. L. R. 198.

Appeal—Recognizance—Defect in—Costs —Order—Motion to quash — Grounds—dddition of.] — The Court may allow new grounds to be added on shewing cause against an order nisi to quash an order dismissing an appeal from a conviction under the Criminal Code, granted under the Rule of Court of Michaelmas term, 1890, although the Rule requires the grounds to be stated in the order. — A recognizance entered into under s, 880 (e) of the Code is bad if the word "personally" is omitted from the condition to appear and try the appeal and abide the Appeal — Recognizance — Surctice — Statutory requirements.]—On an appeal, under s. 879, Criminal Code, by several defendanis from a summary conviction, the recognizance must be that of two surctics besides the appellant, and the appeal will be quashed if the recognizance be given with only one surcty.—2. An appeal not being of common law right, the conditions precedent imposed by the statute must be strictly complied with. —3. The giving of security is an essential part of the appeal, and unless it be done in the manner required by statute, the giving of a notice of appeal will be unavailing, and the conviction may be prosecuted as if no notice had been given. Regina v, Joseph, 21 Que. 8, C 211.

Appen1—Right of—Plea of guilty.1—A person who has pleaded "guilty" to a charge, and has been summarily convicted, may raise a question of law in an appeal under s. 897 of the Criminal Cole, but on such appeal his former plea of "guilty" estops him from calling upon the respondent to prove his guilt. So far as his guilt or innocence is concerned, he is not a "party agrieved" within the meaning of s. 879 of the Criminal Cole. Rev. Brook, 5 Terr. L. R. 309.

Appeal to County Court-Habeas corpus proceedings.]-Application for a writ of habeas corpus. The prisoner was charged with an off-nee under s. 523 of the Criminal Code, convicted thereof by the police magistrate for the city of Rossiand, and sentenced to two months' hard labour. Immediately after conviction he appealed to a County Court, and Leany, Co.J., affirmed the conviction :--Held, dismissing the application, that the decision of the County Court and appeal from a summary conviction and and conclusive, and a Supreme Court Judge has no jurisdiction to interfere by habeas corpus. Breach of municipal by-law-Statement of offence-Costs-Fees of experts.]-A conviction which purports to be for breaches of a municipal by-law, but fails to set out which of the large number of sections of the by-law the defendant has violated, and does not in other respects allege the offence or offences whereof the defendant was deemed to be guilty, in specific, distinct, and substantive terms, is insufficient and defective, and will be quashed on certiorari.-2. The fees paid to experts appointed by the Recorder to visit and report upon the condition of the defendant's premises could not be made payable by the defendant as part of the costs of the conviction. Riopelle v. Desrosiers, 3 Que. P. R. 195.

Canada Shipping Act—Offence—" Wilfully "—Omission of,]—It is essential in a conviction under s. 287 of the Canada Shipping Act to state that the act charged was wilfully committed, and the omission to so state is fatal to the conviction. The King v. Tupper, 11 Can. Crim. Cas. 199, and Ex p. O'Shaughnessy, 8 Can. Crim. Cas. 135, followed. Rex v. Bridges, 13 B. C. R. 67.

Case stated—Recognizance — Cash deposit in lieu of.]—Appenl by wny of case stated under s. 900 of the Code. The defendant was convicted of an offence under the Act to restrict the Importation and Employment of Aliens. Instead of entering into the recognizance required by s.-s. 4 of s. 900 of the Code, the defendant deposited a marked cheque for $100 with the convicting magistrate:—Held, that the recognizance was a condition precedent to the jurisdiction of the Code, the append, and no substitute was permissible. Rex v. Geiser, 21 V. L. T. 604, 8 B. C. R. 160.

Certiorari — Amended conviction rectivered—Costs.]—In the return to a writ of certiorari to remove two convictions with a view to quashing the same, on the grounds that they did not follow the minute of adjudication, and were made on an information and summons for a single offence, the convicting magistrate returned the original convictions and an amended conviction in which the objections were cured: —Held, that the majistrate had power to amend; and the rule*nisi*to quash should be discharged—A conviction will not be quashed because the costs are ordered to be paid to the party aggrieved, instead of the prosecutor,Rex v,O'Brien,Ex p,Grey, 37 N. Certiorari — Defect in conviction — Imprisonment — Amculant — Retrial.] — Where upon the return to a writ of certiorari the Court, upon perusal of the depositions, has no doubt as to the commission of the offence for which the defendant has been tried and convicted, but the conviction is defective in awarding a longer term of imprisonment than the statute permits, the Court has power, under ss. 883 and 889 of the Criminal Code, to amend the conviction so as to make it conform to the law.—It is not necessary, before making such amendment, that the Court should retry the case by having the witnesses orally examined before it. ill-fame," and sentenced to be imprisoned for one year in the Andrew Mercer reformatory: -Held, that the conviction might be treated as having been made under the summary convictions clauses of the Code, although the sentence exceeded the power of the magistrate, and that such conviction might be supported and the sentence amended under those clauses: -Held, also, that when a prisoner charged before a magistrate with appearing the keeper of a house of ill-fame had pleaded guilty to such clarge, there was a trial on the merits, and that such person was to be deemed guilty of the offence of keeping a house of ill-fame. Regina v. Spooner, 21 C. L. T. 159, 32 O. R. 451.

Certiorari-Recognizance-Sufficiency of justification - Appeal.]-An affidavit of justification upon a recognizance given pursuant to Rule of Court passed under s. 892 of the Criminal Code, need not state that the surety is worth the amount of the penalty over and above other sums for which he is surety. A Rule of Court made under s, 892 of the Criminal Code requiring sufficient sureties for a specific amount, is complied with if the sureties justify as being possessed of property of that value, and as being worth the amount over and above all their just debts and liabilities, and over and above all exemptions allowed by law. Regina v. Robinet, 16 P. R. 49, not followed. Where a conviction is attacked on the ground of want of jurisdiction, the mere filing of a recog-nizance by the defendant on an appeal therefrom does not deprive him of his right to a writ of certiorari. The conviction and all other proceedings relating thereto having been filed by the magistrate under s. 801 of the Criminal Code, in the office of the clerk of the Court for the judicial district in which the motion is made, a motion to quash the conviction can be made without the issue of a writ of certiorari. Section 892 of the Criminal Code authorises the requiring of a recognizance only where the conviction is brought before the Court by a writ of certiorari, and no recognizance is required where such a writ is not necessary or is dispensed with. Regina v. Ashcroft, 4 Terr, L. R. 119.

Certiorari-Right to-Criminal Code, s. 887 — Failure of remedy by appeal.]-Sec-tion 887 of the Criminal Code, which enacts that "no writ of certiorari shall be allowed to remove any conviction or order had or made before any justice of the peace, if the defendant has appealed from such conviction or order to any Court to which an appeal from such conviction or order is authorised by law, or shall be allowed to remove any conviction or order made upon such appeal," does not deprive the Court of the right to quash a conviction on certiorari. where the convicting justice acted as a partisan in collusion with the prosecutor and without jurisdiction, even though an appeal has been taken which has failed by reason of the refusal of the justice to make the return required by law; Landry, J., dissenting. In re Kelly, 27 N. B. R. 553, discussed. Rex Delegarde, Ex p. Cowan, 36 N. B. Reps. 503

Certiorari—Selling liquor to Indians — View of place of sale.]—Motion for certiorari to remove a conviction for selling an intoxicant to an Indian. The magistrate, after hearing the evidence, but before giving his decision, went alone and took a view of the place of sale:—Held, quashing the conviction, that the proceeding was unwarrantable.—2. That s. 108 of the Indian Act and s. 889 of the Criminal Code do not prevent proceedings by certiorari where the ground of complaint is that something was done contrary to the fundamental principles of criminal procedure. Re Sing Kee, 21 C. L. T. 220, S B, C. R. 20.

Certiorari-Warrant of commitment --Illegatiy-Refusal to quash -- Habeas corpus.]--When a person is in custody under a warrant of commitment, founded on a good conviction, the Court will not quash the commitment on certiorari, even if it is illegal. The proper procedure is by way of habeas corpus. Rex v. Melanson, Ex p. Bertin, 36 N. B. R. 577.

Complaint—Description of offence—Uncertainty—Certiorari.] — A conviction obtained upon a complaint which does not give a clear and precise description of the alleged offence or contravention of a statute or bylaw will be quashed upon certiorari. Carriere v. Montreal. 5 Que. P. R. 44.

Costs—Cinauthorised items—Amendment.] —A justice's order dismissing an information under the Summary Convictions Act, ordered the informant to pay as costs a sum which included items for 'renot of hall.'' counsel fee,'' "compensation for wages,'' and "railway fare.''—Held, that none of these items could legally be charged as costs, and that, therefore, the order was bad, so, that the Court could not amend the order by deducting the illegal items, though it could amend by striking out in toto all that part of the order relating to costs. Regina v. Dunning, 14 O. R. 52, considered. Regina v. Laird, 1 Terr, L. R. 179.

Costs of distress and conveying to gaol-Variance between minute and conviction.]—The costs of distress and of conveying to gaol are obligatory where a summary conviction imposes a fine and awards distress and imprisonment in default of distress, and therefore the omission of any reference to such costs in the minute of adjudication will not invalidate the formal conviction which includes them. Rex v. Beagan (No. 2), 36 N. S. R. 208.

Depositions not in writing—Waiver, Rex v. Janneau, 3 E. L. R. 5; Rex v. Goulet, 3 E. L. R. 9.

Distress—Imprisonment.]—A statute provided that in case of non-payment of the penalty and costs immediately after conviction, the justice might, in his discretion, levy the same by distress and sale, or might commit the person who was so convicted and made default, to any common gaol for a term not exceeding six months, with or without hard labour, unless the said penalty and costs should be sooner paid: N. W. T. Act, 9, 90.—A. conviction under this statute ordered that the penalty and costs be levied by distress, and that, in default of sufficient distress, the defendant be imprisoned for one menth.—Held, that the imposition of imprisonment in default of distress was authorised by the Summary Convictions Act. R. S. C. c. 178, s. 67, Regina, v. Mathewson, 1 Terr, L., R. 168.

Distress-Imprisonment-Costs of conveying to gaol-Certiorari-Return of amended conviction.]-The defendant was convicted under a statute which authorised, in default of payment of the penalty and costs, (1) distress, or (2) six months' imprisonment.--The magistrate's minute directed six months imprisonment, unless the fine and costs should be sooner paid. The magistrate filed with the proper officer a formal conviction, which directed distress, and in default of distress six months' imprisonment. This conviction being obviously bad, inasmuch as (besides not according with the minute) three months is the limit for imprisonment for default of distress, upon the issue of a certiorari the magistrate filed a new formal conviction. which accorded with the minute, except that there were added the words "(unless) the costs of conveying the defendant to the guard room are sooner paid."—Held, following Regina v. Mathewson, 1 Terr. L. R. 168, that the first formal conviction was bad.— Held, also, that the second formal conviction was also bad, inasmuch as the statute under which the conviction was made did not authorise the imposing of the costs of conveying to gaol; the words to that effect in the forms to the Summary Convictions Act being intended to be used only when expressly made applicable. Regina v. Wright, 14 O. R. 668, followed.—Semble, per Richardson, J., that the Summary Convictions Act, s. 85 (as remodelled by 51 V. c. 45, s. 9), directing that the convicting magistrate shall transmit the conviction to the proper officer "before the time when an appeal . may be heard, there to be kept by the proper officer among the records of the Court," and the magistrate having complied with this provision, by filing the first formal conviction, the second could not be considered, Regina v. Hamilton, 1 Terr. L. R. 172.

Fine-Distress-Hard labour - Duplicity Warrant of commitment - Habeas corpus.] - A conviction, which attaches hard labour to imprisonment in default of there being sufficient distress to levy the fine imposed, is bad. A conviction which charges an offence on two separate days, charges two distinct separate offences, and, if it be a case where s. 26 of the Summary Convictions Act applies, is bad; a warrant of commitment based on such a conviction is consequently had It is a usual, convenient, and established practice that a rule nisi to shew cause why a writ of habeas corpus should not issue should also require cause to be shewn why, in the event of the rule being made absolute. the prisoner should not be discharged without the actual issue of the writ of habeas corpus and without his being personally brought before the Court; but in order that the rule may be made absolute in this form, the magistrate, the keeper of the prisoner, and the prosecutor should all be served with the rule nisi, or at least be represented on its return. Regina v. Farrar, 11 C. L. T. 25, 1 Terr, L. R. 306.

Fine — Payment to clerk — Illegality — Quashing.)—A conviction by the Recorder's Court of Montreal requiring payment of a fine to the clerk of the Court, and not to the city. is illegal, and will be quashed upon certiorari, Wilcock v. Montreal, 5 Que. P. R, 120.

Fine and costs or imprisonment -Defendant submitting to imprisonment — Motion for certiorari—Deposit of fine and costs-Refusal of writ-Surrender of pris-oner-Right to return of deposit.]-W., the plaintiff's assignor, having been condemned to pay a fine and costs for an infraction of the license law, and to imprisonment in default, sought to set 'aside the conviction by means of certiorari proceedings, after having suffered part of the imprisonment imposed. He deposited with the defendant, in his capacity of clerk of the peace at Mont-real, the sum of $114.83, the amount of the fine and costs, besides $50 to cover subsequent costs, pursuant to s. 217 of the Quebec Liquor License Act, 63 V. c. 12, and was released from prison. The writ of certiorari having been refused, W. surrendered himself again as a prisoner, and offered to serve the time of his imprisonment, but claimed at the same time from the defendant the repayment of the $114.83. The latter refused and gave as reasons that W., in making this deposit voluntarily and thus obtaining his freedom, had chosen the alternative of a fine, and the judgment setting aside the writ of certiorari had the result of awarding the deposit in payment of the fine to the misen-cause, the collector of revenue of Montreal :- Held, that this deposit possessed only the character of a security, and could not be converted into a payment of the fine and costs ; that the application for certiorari could not take away from one convicted of an offence his right to choose to submit to the term of imprisonment to which he is condemned, instead of paying the fine? that the writ of certiorari, in suspending the execution of the sentence, has only the result when it is discharged of rendering the person convicted liable to his term of imprisonment; and if he makes that choice, he has a right to repayment of his deposit representing the fine and costs. Wing v. Sicotte, 26 Que. S. C. 387.

Imprisonment - Warrant of commitment—Defects—Place of offence — Time for commencement of imprisonment — Court of Record—Copy of sentence.] — A motion for the discharge of S., a prisoner serving a term of imprisonment + Durchart Paris of imprisonment at Dorchester Penitentiary, was based upon alleged defects in the warrant of commitment signed by the clerk of the County Court Judge's Criminal Court at Halifax, returned by the warden of the penitentiary as the authority under which S. was held :- Held, that, even if the place where the offence was committed was not stated in the body of the record of conviction, it was covered by that named in the margin, viz., "the county of Halifax."—Semble, that the "copy of the sentence" required to be delivered to the warden of the penitentiary (R. S. C. c. 182, s. 42), need not contain all the averments essential to the validity of an indictment or conviction :-Held, that the document certified by the warden in the present case as his authority was sufficient. Rez v. Smitheman, 24 C. L. T. 329.

Indust to property — Description of fence.]—N. L. was committed to gool under a warrant of a stipendiary magistrate, charging him with having at L., in the county of C. B., "unlawfully and wilfully destroyed and damaged property owned by A. M. S. on the 24th day of December, 1905;"—Modd, that the conviction was bad because it did not specify the injuries and the nature of the property injured. Regina v. Spain, 18 O. R. 385, followed. Re Learg. 24 C. L. T. 70.

Justice of the peace-Master and ser-vant Act-Refusal to work-Information -Amendment-Form of conviction-Omissions - Distress-Costs.] - The prosecutor hired the defendant to work on a farm and paid for the defendant's transportation thereto. The defendant worked a few hours, and then left. The prosecutor swore to an informa-tion that the defendant did "accept the sum of $1.30 to pay his fare to B, on the condition that the said amount was to be worked out, and refusing to work after reaching this place, with the exception of 4 hours," etc. The magistrate issued a warrant setting out the facts stated in the information and adding "consequently obtaining money under false pretences," and the defendant was arrested. The magistrate amended the in-formation by adding a reference to the Master and Servants Act, 1901, but the inform-ation was not re-sworn. The amended in-formation was read over to the prisoner and he was informed that he was to be tried under it as amended. He made no objection ; the prosecutor gave evidence, and the de fendant was sworn and testified on his own behalf. The magistrate adjudged that the defendant should be fined $5 and $4.88 costs, and if the amounts were not paid forthwith he should be committed to gaol. A note of the conviction was made and a formal con-viction drawn up. The conviction form was headed "conviction for a penalty to be lev-ied by distress," but no such term was mentioned in the body of it :--Held, that the nature of the offence was sufficiently clear in the original information, and any doubt was removed by the addition of the reference to the Act.--2. That the information having been read over, and the trial proceeding without objection, and the magistrate having the prisoner before him, even if brought there improperly, he might try him on the amended information not re-sworn, although the Act required an information on oath.--3. That the Court, being satisfied that an offence of the nature described in the conviction had been committed, and that the magistrate had jurisdiction, and that the punishment imposed was not excessive, should not hold the conviction invalid because the date and place of offence were not stated, there being power to amend.-4. That the heading formed no part of the conviction, which was correctly drawn under the statute.--5. That the costs of conveying the accused to gaol being omitted, was a matter which could be amended, if necessary, but here there were no such costs, as the prisoner never went to gaol .--6. That there was special power by 1 Edw. VII., c. 2, s. 14, under which the prisoner was convicted, to award imprisonment in default of payment; and that by R. S. O. 1897 c, 90, s. 4, that power covered costs as well as fine. Resv. Levis, 23 C. L. T. 190, 5 O. L. R. 509, 2 O. W. R. 290, 566.

Motion to quash — Certiorari — Merits — Appeal.1—When the arguments urged in support of a writ of certiorari attack the merits of the conviction, they then constitute an appeal, and no appeal can be faken by means of a writ of certiorari. Lescarbeau v. Martinecu, S Que, P. R. 415.

Motion to quash-Jurisdiction of single Judge-Certiorari — Disorderly house — In-mate-Pleading guilty — Form of conviction - Summary conviction or summary trial -Penalty.]-A single Judge in the Territories has jurisdiction under 54 & 55 V. c. 22, s. 7, s.-s. 2, to hear and determine applications to quash summary convictions, whether the convictions have been brought into Court by certiorari or not. If the convictions have been returned to the clerk of the Supreme Court, by virtue of s. 102 of the N. W. T. Act, the issue of a writ of certiorari is unnecessary. The defendant pleaded guilty before a magistrate of being an inmate of a disorderly house, an offence punishable either under Part XV. of the Criminal Code (Vaggancy), where the fine on summary convic-(Summary Trials of Indictable Offences), where the fine and costs together must not exceed $100. A fine of $90, with $6.25 costs, was imposed, but the conviction was in the form WW prescribed under part LVIII. relating to summary convictions, and not the form QQ prescribed under part LV., and did not contain the words "being charged be-fore me the undersigned." which appear in the latter form. On an application to quash, the conviction was sustained as a good conviction under part LV., as being of like effect to the form therein prescribed; the amount of the fine and the fact that the accused was not charged with or convicted of being a loose, idle, or disorderly person, indicating the procedure adopted by the magistrate. The omission to recite that the accused had been charged with the offence before him, a fact which appeared from the proceedings, is a matter of form only, and not sufficient to void the conviction. Rex v. Ames, 5 Terr. L. R. 492, 10 Can. Cr. Cas. 52.

Motion to quash — Practice—Duty of justice to return depositions — Certiorari.] —Section 888 of the Criminal Code provides for the return of convictions by justices into the Court to which the appeal is given:— Semble, apart from this provision, it is the duty of justices to make return also of the depositions upon which the conviction is founded: — Held, that papers purporting to be the depositions relating to the conviction having been returned therewith, they should be assumed to be such depositions; that they were properly before the Court, and a writ of certiorari was unnecessary. Motion to quash - Preliminary objections - Security - Cash deposit - Written document - Certiorari-Notice-Objection to -Delay.]-On the return of a rule nisi to quash the conviction of the defendant for an offence against the Liquor License Ordinance, it was objected that no proper security had been given, as required by Supreme Court Rule 13. It appeared by the certificate of the registrar that $100 in cash had been deposited with him in this cause, and that such sum stood to the credit of the cause in a chartered bank. It was the fact, however, that no written document had been deposited with the registrar stating the conditions upon which the deposit was made. Rule 13 requires the deposit to be made "with a condition to prosecute such motion and writ of certiorari: "-Held, that no written document was necessary, the money being in the hands of the registrar for the purposes provided by law. It was also objected that the notice did not give the name of the party who intended to apply, nor the name of the Court or the Judge in Cham-bers: - Held, that the Court should not entertain this and other like objections, for after a writ of certiorari has issued the objections should be raised by a substantive motion to quash the writ:-Held, also, that when more than three months have intervened between the return to the writ of certiorari and the motion for a rule nisi, the preliminary facts must be taken to be admitted, and an application to quash the writ would be too late. Regina v. Davidson, 21 C. L. T. 98.

Ontario Summary Convictions Act-Criminal Code, s. 841-Time for laying information.]--The Ontario Summary Convictions Act, R. S. O. c. 90, s. 2. has the effect of incorporating s. 841 of the Criminal Code, and therefore, in the case of any offence punishable on summary conviction, if no time is especially limited for making any complaint or laying any information under the Act or law relating to the particular case, the complaint must be made or the information laid within six months from the time the matter of complaint or information arose. Rex v. McKinnon, 22 C. L. T. 161, 3 O. L. R. 508, 1 O. W. R. 199. Penalty — Imprisonment — Excessive sentence — Quashing conviction,] — A conviction by the Recorder for the city of Montreal with a penalty of 9 months' imprisonment at hard labour, purporting to be made pursuant to a statute which prescribes a penalty of six months' imprisonment at least and of a year further, is invalid, and may be quashed on certiorari by the Superior Court, Gévry V, Weir, 30 Que, 8, C, 95.

Trial—Evidence in writing—Waiver.]— The accused at a trial before a Recorder under the summary conviction procedure may waive the taking down in writing of the evidence against him. Rev v. Poirier, 31 Que. S. C. 67, 12 Can. Cr. Cas. 300.

Two charges — Evidence — Assault — Pointing firearm — Procedure — Hearing both charges at once—Irregularity — Stipendiary magistrate — Jurisdiction — Consent—Warrant of commitment, Rez v. Reid, 4 E. L. R. 12.

Two informations—Withdrawal of one —Canada Temperance Act, J_Under s. 858 of the Criminal Code, after the evidence has been heard, the magistrate is not bound either to convict or discharge the defendant; he may allow the prosecutor to withdraw the charge, and he may do so, even when another information for the same offence has been laid by the same prosecutor against the same defendant, and the determination thereof is still pending. Ex p. Wyman, 34 N. B. R. 608.

Vagrancy — Conniction — Information —Facts necessary to be stated.)—Application for habcas corpus. The accused was charged with being a "loose, idle person, or vagrant," and was convicted by a police maxistrate, and sentenced to six months' imprisonment with hard labour. The conviction described the offence in the same terms as the information:—Held, that the conviction was bad in that it did not set out the facts constituting the offence. Under s. 207 of the Code various acts constituting vagrancy are specified, and an information charging vagrancy should shew the particular facts on which the prosecution relies to establish the offence. Rex v. McCormack, 23 C. L. T. 207, 9 B. C. R. 497.

Warrant of commitment — No conviction alleged—Habeas corpus—Return.]— On an application for a writ of habeas corpus, and for discharge of prisoner detained in custody under a warrant of a justice of the peace in form V., Criminal Code, s. 596 (committal for trial), the warrant did not allege a conviction, but only that the accused had been charged before the justice. The conviction upon which the warrant was issued was admittedly bad, but an amended conviction was returned to the clerk by the justice after the argument: — Held, that where a warrant of commitment upon a conviction does not allege that the prisoner has been convicted of an offence, the conviction cannot be referred to in order to support the warrant. Order made discharging prisoner, ---Semble, that had the warrant shewn the prisoner to have been convicted of some syntad, the conviction could have been referred to, to support it. An application to discharge a prisoner held under a defective warrant of committal in execution will not be adjourned in order to procure the return of the conviction with a view to supporting the warrant, if the prisoner has been actually brought up on a habeas corpus, aliter where he has not been brought up. Regina

Wrong name — Objection.]—A person whose real name was Bridget Corrigan, but who kept house under the name of Kate Wilson, was arrested under the latter name for an offence under the License Acts, pleaded not guilty, and was tried and convicted under the assumed name, without objection that it was not her real name.—Held, that it was too late after conviction to complain of the mistake, and the writ of habeas corpus which had been issued was set aside. Ex p. Corrigan, 9 One, Q. B. 43.

9. SUMMARY TRIAL.

Assault - Information for indictable offences - Conviction for common assault-Jurisdiction of magistrate — Indictment — Court — Information.] — The defendant was tried before a stipendiary magistrate on an information charging him with committing an assault upon J. F., causing bodily harm. The accused having consented to be tried summarily, in accordance with s. 787 of the Code, was tried and convicted of a common assault only :- Held, that s. 713 of the Code enabled the magistrate to convict of the common assault under s. 265, notwithstanding that the information was for an indictable offence under s. 262, as the latter section includes common assault .--- 2. That the contention that s. 713 only applies to indict-ments, "counts" being the only word used, was disposed of by s. 3 (b) of the Code, where it is provided that the expressions "indictment" and "count," respectively, include information and presentment, as well as indictment, and also any plea, replication, or other pleading, and any record.-3. That independently of the statute the conviction was good, Regina v. Oliver, 30 L. J. M. 12, and Regina v. Taylor, L. R. 1 C. C. R. 194, followed. Rex v. Coolen, 36 N. S. R. 510.

Assault and theft — Summary trial — Police megistrate—Election—Keat Court for jury trial—Amendment — Fresh election — New trial,]—In order to give a police magistrate jurisdicion to try an indictable offence, namely, a charge of assault and robbing prosecutor of 30c. not triable summarily by the magistrate except with the prisoner's consent, the magistrate, in putting the prisoner to his election to be tried before him or by jury, must expressly name the Court at which the charge can probably be soonest heard: and it is immaterial that the election is made by counsel representing the prisoner: McLaren, J.A., dissenting, Repina v, Cockshott, [1898] 1 Q B, 582, followed.—After the election of the prisoner to be tried summarily on such charge, and after the magistrate has entered upon the trial thereof, he has no power to amend the indictment so as to cause a further charge to be preferred against the prisoner, unless the prisoner is again put to his election, and consents to be so tried. Res x, Walsh, 24 C, L, T, S2, 7 O, L, R, 149, 2 O, W, R, 222, 3 O, W, R, 31.

Election-Absence of accused.]-A prisoner charged with theft waived preliminary examination, and was committed for trial, Upon then being arraigned before the junior Judge of the County Court he consented to be tried by "the said Judge without a jury:" -Held, that s. 767 of the Criminal Code, as amended by 63 & 64 V. c. 46 (D.), contemplates an election to be tried in a certain way and not necessarily by the Judge before whom the election is made: that the election in question having been given in a limited form was void; and that the senior Judge could not proceed with the trial of the accused .- Held, also, that a person accused, by waiving preliminary investigation and thus accepting committal without depositions taken, foregoes his right to a speedy trial and cannot make an election effectual to confer jurisdiction :- Held, further, that, unless in the case of misconduct rendering it impracticable to continue the proceedings in his presence, or at his request and with the permission of the Court, the trial of a person accused of felony cannot proceed in his ab-sence. Rex v. McDougall, 24 C. L. T. 324, 8 O. L. R. 30, 3 O. W. R. 750.

Election — Absence of preliminary inquiry by magistrate—Neglect to inform prisoner of time of next sitting—Conviction— Invalidity — Discharge, Rez v. Williams (B.C.), 2 W. L. R. 410.

Election—Amendment of charges—Substiintion of earlier date for offence — Seduction of girl under sixteen—Necessity for new election. Res v. Lacelle, 6 O. W. R. 911, 11 O. L. R. 74.

Election — Depositions disclosing more serious offence.]—Where the depositions disclose an offence which could not have been disposed of by speedy trial, the prisoner will not be allowed to elect for speedy trial if the Crown intends to lay the more serious charge, even though he is committed for an offence which may be disposed of by speedy trial. Rex v. Preston, 11 B. C. R. 159, 1 W. L. R. 17.

Election—N. W. T. Act—Re-trial—New election—Duty of Judge.1—The North-West Territories Act, R. S. C. C. 50, s. 67 (section substituted by 54 & 55 V. c. 22) provides that "when the person is charged with any other criminal offence, the same shall be tried, heard, and determined by the Judge with the intervention of a jury of six, but in any such case the accused may, with his own consent, be tried by a Judge in a summary way, and without the intervention of a jury:"—Held, that the consent of the accumed does not make it imperative upon the Judge to try the charge without the intervention of a jury. It appears to be assumed by the Court that where the accused had been tried by a Judge with the intervention of a jury who disagreed and were discharged, and the accused was brought up again for trial, the Judge on the second trial might, had he seen fit, have, on the accused's consent, tried him without the intervention of the jury. Regina v. Breaster (No. 1), 2 Terr. L. R. 553.

Election — Withdrawal.] — A prisoner who, on being brought before the County Judge's Criminal Court, elects to be tried summarily by the Judge, cannot be allowed afterwards to withdraw his election; no provision therefor having been made in the Criminal Code, so, 762-781, such as the amendment to s. 767 with regard to elections to be tried by a jury. Evidence — Consent — Felony — Misdemeanour. Rex v. Fox, 2 O. W. R. 728.

Habeas corpus.—Writ of error—Evidence =Consent-Public morals.] — A conviction by a magistrate under the sections of the Criminal Code relating to the summary up for review by writs of habeas corpus and certiorari, a conviction under those sections not being matter of record in such sense as to make it reviewable only by writ of error.— Upon the hearing of a charge under these sections, evidence in other proceedings against another prisoner is admissible apon the consent of the accused's counsel.—Nature of evidence to prove a charge of being an immate of a house of ill-fame, considered. Regima v, St. Clair, 20 C. L. T. 204, 27 A. R, 308.

Inmate of house of ill-fame-Jurisdiction of stipendiary magistrate - Punish-ment.]-The defendant was convicted before a stipendiary magistrate of being an inmate of a house of ill-fame, and sentenced to imprisonment at hard labour for one day, and to forfeit and pay $60, and in default of payment to a further term of imprisonment for six months, unless the sum slofild be sooner paid. She was arrested and imprisoned under a warrant issued on the conviction, and an application was made for a writ of habeas corpus to test the legality of her imprisonment :---Held, that the conviction was under Part LV, of the Criminal Code, and the trial was a summary trial of an indictable offence. and not a summary conviction. The jurisdiction is given by s. 783 (f) of the Code. The following section makes the jurisdiction of the magistrate absolute in respect of the particular offence, and independent of the consent of the person charged. Section 788 fixes the punishment which the magistrate on summary trial of indictable offences may inflict upon the person convicted in respect of all the crimes mentioned in s. 783, except theft and attempt to commit theft, the pun-ishment for which is provided by s. 787. The punishment inflicted was not in excess of that authorized by the Code, and is not limited to that prescribed by s. 208. The jurisdiction of the magistrate to try the offence charged under Part LV, of the Code and to inflict the punishment which he awarded was quite clear, and no ground had been shewn for the discharge of the prisoner. Rex v. Roberts, 21 C. L, T. 214.

Jury — Election — Withdrageal — Refusal of Judge to dispense with jury.]—The N. W. T. Act, R. S. C. 1886 c. 50, s. 67 (section substituted by 54 & 55 V. c. 22, s. 9), provides that "When the person is charged with any other criminal offence the same shall be tried, heard, and determined by the Judge, with the intervention of a jury of six; but in any such case the accused may, with his own consent, be tried by a Judge in a summary way and without the intervention of a jury."—Held, that in the event of the accused electing to be tried by a Judge alone, the Judge is not bound so to try the case, but may insist upon the intervention of a jury, who disagreed, and upon a second tried constant, be tried by the Judge alone. Regima V. Weberter, 2 Terr, I. R. 235.

Keeping bawdy house-Consent-Conviction-Date of offence - Discharge of prisoner-Protection against actions.]-The defendant was summarily tried without her consent and convicted for keeping a disorderly house, that is to say, a common bawdy house, and was sentenced to pay a fine, and in default to be imprisoned at hard labour: -Held, that, as she was charged and punished under the combined operation of ss. 198 and 958 of the Criminal Code, the magistrate could lawfully, try her only after having obtained her consent under s. 785, and for want of such consent the conviction was wholly without jurisdiction and void. Nor could the proceedings be sustained under s. 783 (f) of the Code, nor under s. 207 (j). 2. The conviction, which was in the form QQ, declared that the defendant had been guilty of the offence "on the 21st day of April, A.D. 1901, and on divers other days indicating the commission of an offence subsequent to the laying of the information (the date of which was the 29th April) and in-cluding the date of the conviction (the 30th April.) Ex p. Kennedy, 27 N. B. R. 493. followed. 3. Held, also, following In re Moore, 33 C. L. J. 400, that where relief from imprisonment was given as in this case under R. S. N. S. 1900 c. 181, the Judge can only protect from civil action, at the instance of the applicant, in respect to the imprisonment from which she is discharged, the keeper of the common gaol in which she was detained. A recognizance under that section is defective if it is conditioned for the due prosecution of "a writ of certiorari issued," etc., instead of a writ to be issued.—B. Following Exp p. Tomlinaon, 20 L. T. 324, and Regina v. Robinet, 16 P. R. 49, the defendant company should have leave to make the necessary deposit with the convicting magistrate within 14 days, and then to renew the motion. Municipal by-law-Offence against Defects on face of conviction-Keeping billiard room open in prohibited hours-Uncertainty.]-Under a by-law of the village of Carman, providing that all pool rooms in the village should be closed from 8.30 p.m. every Saturday until 7 a.m. of the following Monday, and should remain closed on every other day from 10 p.m. until 6 a.m. on the followand y head to be a series of the series of t that the conviction was bad and should be quashed on the following grounds :---1. It did not state that the pool room had been kept open after half-past eight in the afternoon. -2. It did not state that it was on a Saturday or Sunday the offence was committed; for, if it was not Saturday or Sunday, the pool room might have been lawfully kept open until ten o'clock p.m.-3. The conviction did not give the date when the offence had been committed, and, for all that it stated, it might have been before the by-law came into operation, or more than six months before the information was laid. Re Fisher & Village of Carman, 15 Man. L. R. 475, 1 W. L. R. 276.

Obstructing peace officer — Consent.] —A person charged with obstructing a peace officer in the execution of his duty may, without his own consent, be tried summarily by the magistrate. Rev. V, Jack, 9 B. C. R. 19.

Obstructing peace officer—Consent of accused.]—Held, that a person charged with obstructing a peace officer in the execution of his duty may be tried summarily by a magistrate without the consent of the accused. See Criminal Code, ss. 144, 783-6. Semble, that a magistrate is not bound to inform an accused of the exact sections of the Code under which the proceedings are being taken. Regina v. Crossen, 3 Can. Crim. Cas. 152, not followed. Rew v. Nelson, 21 C. L. T. 456, 8 B. C. R. 110.

Powers of magistrate — Theft — Attempt to commit—Description of offence — Warrant of commitment—Absence of—Order for further detention.]—It is competent for a magistrate upon the summary trial before him of a prisoner charged under s. 783 (a) of the Criminal Code with having committed theft, to convict him of the offence of attempting to commit it provided for in s.-s. (b). The offence of theft from the person is sufficiently described in popular language as picking the pocket of a person. To authorize the detention of a person under a conviction there should be a warrant of commitment; but where there was none, and the conviction itself was lodged with the gaoler as his authority for the detention, there being an offence proved and a proper conviction for the off-nee, and no merits on the part of the prisoner was brought upon habeas corpus exercised the power conferred by s. 752 of the Code, and directed that the prisoner should be further detained and that the convicting magistrate should issue and lodge with the gaoler a proper warrant. Reg v. Morgan, 21 C. L. T. 533, 2 O. L. R. 413. (Affrined by the Court of Appeal, 20th November, 1901, 21 C. L. T. 588.)

Without consent of prisoner-Conviction-Discharge from gaol-Second prosecution. Rex v. Kennedy, 1 O. W. R. 31.

10. MISCELLANEOUS.

Comment of Judge—Reserved case — Application for after sentence.]—On the trial of a prisoner indicted for stealing, the Judge, in his charge to the jury, called attention to the fact that the prisoner was not called to testify on his own behalf, and warned the jury that they were not to take that fact to his prejudice; but added, if he were an innocent man he could have proved that at the time of the offence he was not in the vicinity where the theft took place:—Held, that this was "comment" within the meaning of s. 4 (2) of the Canada Evidence Act, 1893. It is not too late after the sentence has been imposed to ask to have a case reserved for the opinion of the Court. Res v. McGuire, 36 N. B. R. 609, 9 Can. Cr. Cas. 554.

Judge of sessions—Acting for Recorder —Conviction—Jurisdiction.] — A conviction and sentence rendered by a Judge of the sessions of the peace, acting for the recorder of Montreal, are valid, Deschamps v. Vallée, 7 Que. P. R. 231.

Jurisdiction of magistrate-Constitutional law-Constitution of Criminal Courts.] -By s. 785 of the Criminal Code any person charged before a police magistrate in Ontario with an offence which might be tried at the General Sessions of the Peace, may, with his own consent, be tried by the magistrate and sentenced, if convicted, to the same punishment as if tried at the General Sessions. By an amendment in 1900 the provisions of this section were ex-tended to police and stipendiary magistrates of cities and towns in other parts of Canada :--Held, that, though there are no Courts of General Sessions except in Ontario, the amending Act is not therefore inoperative, but gives to a magistrate in any other province the jurisdiction created for Ontario by s. 785. Though the organization of Courts of criminal jurisdiction is within the exclusive powers of the legislature, the Parliament of Canada may impose upon existing Courts or individuals the duty of administering the criminal law, and their action to that end need not be supplemented by provincial legislation. Execution against tenant—Provision as to crops—Rights of Landlord—Bills of Sale Act—Science of equitable interest.] — The claimant let to the execution debtor the farm on which the grain had been grown by an indenture reserving as rent "the share or portion of the whole crop which shall be grown upon the demised premises as herein-after set forth," and the lease provided that the lessor might retain from the share of the crop that was to be delivered to the lessee a sufficient amount to cover taxes, and to repay advances and other indebtedness; that the lessee immediately after threshing, should deliver the whole crop, excepting hay, in the name of the lessor, at an elevator to be named by the lessor; that all crops of grain grown upon the said premises should be and remain the absolute property of the lessor until all covenants, conditions, provisoes, and agreements therein contained should have been fully kept, performed and satisfied; and that the lessor should deliver to the lessee two-thirds of the proceeds of the crop to be stored in the elevator, less any sum retained for taxes, advances, indebtedness or guaranties previously mentioned. The grain in antes previously mentioned. The grain in question had, until its seizure under the plaintiff's execution, remained on the farm in the possession of the lessee. The claim-ant claimed it as owner under the terms of the lease and not for rent :--Held, that the lease did not operate to prevent the lessee from ever having any property in the grain to be grown.—2. That, even if the legal ownership of the grain was to be in the lessor, it was still, as to two-thirds, held for the benefit of the lessee subject to the lessor's charges for taxes and advances, etc., and the lessee had an equitable interest in it. and the lessor's lien or charge would be void under the Bills of Sale and Chattel Mortgage Act, R. S. M. 1902, c. 11, s. 39, as being a charge upon crops to be grown in the future, -3. That the interest of the lessee in the grain, whether legal or only equitable, was subject, under s. 182 of the County Courts Act, R. S. M. 1902, c. 38, to seizure and sale under execution, and that the chainman's interest could not prevail over that of the plaintiff. Campbell v. McKinnon, 23 C. L. T. 234, 14 Man. L. R. 421.

Sale of growing crop - Subsequent mortgage to third party-Bills of Sale Ordinance-Change of possession-Conversion.] ance-change of possession-Conversion.] — The plaintiffs agreed to purchase certain lands from one K., who held under contract with C., the first mentioned contract containing a clause that the crop then growing and unharvested on the land should be the property of the purchasers. Subsequently the plaintiffs acquired the interest of C in the plaintiffs acquired the interest of C, in the land, K, remained in possession, cut and harvested the crop, and mortgaged it to the defendants, who sold it, and applied the proceeds in payment of K.'s indebtedness to them. In an action for conversion K. swore that he did not understand that he was selling the crop to the plaintiffs, but the whole arrangement was one by which the whole arrangement was one by which the plaintiffs would get paid before his other creditors:—Held, that the sale of the crop was void as against the defendants under the provisions of s. 9 of the Bills of Sale Ordin-ance (c. 43, C. O. 1898), not being followed by an actual and continued change of possession, Mihm v. Balcolvski, 1 Sask. L. R. 415, 9 W. L. R. 25, Sale of growing hay—"Goods"—Sale of Goods Act, s. 2 — Implied wearranty of title.]—Growing wild hay, when sold to a person who is to cut and remove it the same scason, is "goods" within the meaning of paragraph (A) of s. 2 of the Sale of Goods Act, R. 8. M. 1902 c. 152, and there is, under s. 14' of the Act, an implied warrant of title by the vendor of hay sold under such curcumstances. Marshall v. Green, I C. P. 0. 35, followed. Fredkin v. Glinez, 18 Man, L. R. 249, 8 W. L. R. 587, 9 W. L. R. 393.

British Columbia Land Act-Holder of pre-emption record - Occupation-Noncompliance with requirements of Act-Hearing by commissioner - Notice - Waiver-Secs. 13, 14, 15.1-The 30 days' notice required by s. 13 of the British Columbia Land Act is for the benefit of the pre-emption holder, who can waive it, wholly or in part, if he so desires; and, if he does so, the Commissioner has jurisdiction to adjudicate and cancel the pre-emption record before the 30 days have elapsed. And held, that the pre-emption holder had waived the notice by requesting the Commissioner to give an earlier hearing and by attending thereon with counsel without objection.—The pre-emptor obtained his record on the Sth January, 1909, and was on the land for the first time thereafter on the 6th March, staying 3 days. He was there again in March, but for no length of time. He next went upon it for 2 nights in May, and again in July— If for 2 mights in May, and again in Jury— for how long did not appear. After that he was absent from the land continuously to the date of hearing, the 15th February, 1910:—Held, that, in view of the spirit of all the sections of the Land Act dealing with measuring and encodelly so 14 and with pre-emptions, and especially ss. 14 and 16, it was impossible to hold that the Commissioner was wrong in finding that the pre-emption holder had not complied with the provisions of the Act as to occupation. Such a claim may be prosecuted by a petition of right.—3. Where the Court has jurisdiction in respect of the subject-matter of a petition of right, the petition is not open to objection on the ground that a merely declaratory judgment or order is sought thereby. H, on the other hand, there is no jurisdiction, no such declaration should be made. Clark v. The Queen, 1 Ex. C. R. 182, considered. Qu'Appelle, Long Lake & Saskatcheican Rux, & Steamboat Co. v. Crown grant - Extent of-Evidence-Preliminary correspondence — Concluded agreement — Possession — Intention—Fishing rights - Navigable rivers.] - 1. Where letters patent issue as a grant of land by the Crown, upon the application of the grantee, and after correspondence, disclosing a con cluded agreement, the latter should be read into the letters patent. Evidence of the application and correspondence is therefore admissible to prove the extent of the grant, e.g., that a grant of land along a river was made with the right to fish in it .-- 2. Although possession cannot give a title by prescription to Crown lands, it may be relied upon and proved to establish the extent of a grant or conveyance of land by the Crown, and the intention of the contracting parties respecting an accessory right; in this case, the right to fish.—3. Per Hall, J.—Rivers are navigable and floatable, and, as such, form part of the public domain, which are de facto used, or susceptible of being used, in their ordinary condition, by the public, as highways for trade and travel by naviga-tion, or for the transportation of timber afloat .--- 4. Also per Hall, J .-- A grant by the Crown of land, along a non-navigable and non-floatable river (such as the river Moisie is proved in this case to be), conveys ownership of it to midstream, usque ad medium filum aqua. As a consequence, the grantee acquires, as riparian proprietor, the right to fish in the river opposite the land granted to Que. K. B. 115.

Grown grant—Person in occupation — Permission — Batoppel — Non-disclosure— Collateral proceedings.]—In an action to recover land, the plaintiffs relied upon a grant from the Crown dated the 14th March. 1830. The defendants limited their defence to a portion of the land claimed, and, as to that vortion, depended upon title acquired in 1833, from H., who entered as a servant of the plaintiffs, and, by their permission, erected a house on the land in 1830:—Held, that the possession of H. was not sufficient to prevent the Crown from granting to the plaintiffs' permission, both the defendants and H, were estopped from denying the plaintiffs' title; that if the Crown was misled by the omission of the plaintiffs to disclose in their pettion that the land was in the occupation of H., that objection could not be raised by a third party, in collateral proceedings, but must be raised in a proceeding to be taken before the Governor in council to have the grant vacated; and that the case was not within the provisions of R. S. (5th series) c. 9, and that the occupancy, being that of a person in possession by permission of the plaintiffs, did not require to be disclosed. Lakecieve Mining Co. v, Moore, 36 N. S. Crown lands in New Brunswick-Adverse possession for less than 60 years-Grant by the Crown during adverse posses sion valid—Rights of grantee—21 Jac. 1, c. 14—Construction.]—In an action of ejectment it appeared that the land belonged to the Crown, and was in peaceable possession of its grantee, the defendant, but that the plaintiff and his predecessors in title had enjoyed uninterrupted occupation thereof for a period of 56 years down to a date about 7 years prior to date of action :--Held, that judgment was rightly entered for the defendant .-- Occupation against the Crown for any period less than the 60 years required by the Nullum Tempus Act is of no avail against the title and legal possession of the Crown and still less against its grantee in actual possession .- The Act 21 Jac. I. c. 14 only regulates procedure, and its effect is that if an information of intrusion is filed, and the Crown has been out of possession for 20 years, the defendant is allowed to retain possession till the Crown has established its title. Where no information has been filed, there is nothing to prevent the Crown or its grantee from making a peacable entry, and then holding possession by virtue of title.--Decisions by the Courts of New Brunswick and Nova Scotia, to the effect that when the Crown has been out of actual possession for 20 years it could not make a grant until it had first established its title by information of intrusion, overruled. Judgment in 24 C. L. T. 204, 34 S. C. R. 533, affirmed. Judg-ment in 36 N. B. R. 260, set aside. Emmerson v. Maddison, [1906] A. C. 569.

Crown mining leases—Misrepresenta-tion—Jurisdiction — Discretion of Attorney-General — Land Titles Act—Conditions.]— Where an action was brought by the Attorney-General for the province to avoid mining leases of public lands as having been granted by the Crown through misrepresentation and fraud on the part of the defendants, and the latter set up in their defence matter attacking the plaintiff's status as suing not in the in-terest of the public, but at the private solicitation of interested individuals :- Held, that this portion of the defence was objectionable and should be struck out, because the discretion of the Attorney-General, as representing the Crown in the commencement and reconduct of litigation, is not subject to in-vestigation or control by the Court.—A "caution" under the Land Titles Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 138, amounts to no more than the notice of an adverse claim equivalent to a lis pendens, and expires by lapse of time, or otherwise as may be directed by the Court in an action .- It does not form a blot on the title, and no pleading is necessary to have it 1340

Dominion lands-License to cut timber -Royalties - Burnt timber - Payment by mistake - Rectification - Lapse of time-Counterclaim for trespass - Estoppel -Laches.]-The suppliant held certain licenses from the Crown to cut timber on Dominion lands. Three of such licenses were issued on the 28th January, 1892, and each pro-yided for a royalty of 5 per cent. on the timber cut thereunder. Another license was issued on the 8th August in the same year, and contained a provision that "if the timber be burnt then the royalty shall be 21/2 per cent. instead of 5 per cent." The suppliant obtained other licenses containing similar provisions as to "burnt timber. The suppliant cut timber under such licenses, but, owing, as he alleged, to mistake and in-advertence, the returns furnished by him did not shew that a portion of the material cut was "burnt timber." Royalties having been paid upon the basis of there being no burned timber cut, the suppliant claimed in these proceedings a refund of one-half of such royalties as a fair deduction for burnt timber. During the time that the timber was cut and returns made, the suppliant was unable to read or write, and he asserted that he had not seen or been made aware of the provisions as to the royalty on burnt timber. His bookkeeper and business manager testified that he had not seen any timber regulations, and that he had never taken the trouble to read the suppliant's licenses. At the trial it appeared that no person's attention, either on behalf of the Crown or the suppliant, had been directed to the matter with a view of ascertaining or even estimating the quantity of burnt timber. Furthermore, at the time of the trial, there was no opportunity for scaling the quantity of burnt timber :-Held, that it was too late to open up the matter after action brought, and that the suppliant had not shewn circumstances that would make it inequitable for the Crown to retain the dues which the suppliant himself had returned as due and payable on the timber cut. -2. The Crown counterclaimed in the action for damages for timber cut by the suppliant in trespass on vacant Dominion lands. in effect claiming the difference between the royalty for which he was liable under his licenses and the dues he would have been liable for had the timber in question been cut under a permit to cut the same on Dominion lands. To this the suppliant an-swered that the timber alleged to have been cut in trespass, if any, was included in the whole quantity of timber which the suppliant had returned as cut under his licenses, and that a royalty of 5 per cent. having been paid thereon to the Crown officers and accepted by them, the Crown was estopped from setting up a larger claim :--Held, that the Crown was not estopped by the laches of its officers from claiming as damages a larger sum than that already paid as royal-ties. Free Grants and Homesteads Act-Sale by patentee of mineral rights-Reservation of mines and minerals by Crown-Cancellation of reservation - Wife of patentee did not join in conveyance-Subsequent conveyance of land in which wife joined to bar dower-R. S. O. (1897), c. 29, s. 20.]-Patentee of a free grant from Crown executed an instrument in favour of plaintiff, called a mining lease and option. The Crown had reserved the mines and minerals in the original grant. Later, patentee sold and conveyed same lands to defendant by deed, the wife joining to bar dower. 8 Edw. VII. c. 17. s. 4 (3), cancelled all reservations by the Crown as to mines and minerals. Plaintiff brought action for possession:—Held, that R. S. O. (1897), c. 29, s. 20, which provides that "No alienation . . . of the land, or that "No alienation . . . of the land, or of any right or interest therein, by the locatee after the issue of the patent, and within twenty years from the date of the location, and during the lifetime of the wife, shall be valid or of any effect, unless the same be by deed in which the wife of the locatee is one of the grantors with her husband, nor unless such deed is duly executed by her, was a complete bar to plaintiff's action, as nothing passed to him under his agreement. Hydraulic mining lease - Breach of contract-Construction of leases and mining regulations-Right of lessees to be heard at a judicial investigation before Crown could declare forfeiture and re-enter.]-The two defendant companies held leases, under the Crown, of hydraulic mining locations in the Yukon, with exclusive rights under certain conditions of taking all metals. The Minister of the Interior, purporting to act under powers provided in their leases, gave notice to the companies that their leases were void as they had failed to expend $5,000 in the efficient working of their rights granted by their leases, and claimed to re-enter possession on the ground that the com-panies had not provided sufficient by draulic or other machinery to permit of the working of their rights conferred :--Held, that while the Hydraulic Mining Regulations of 3rd December, 1898, provided that the Minister of the Interior was to be the "sole and final judge" of the fact of default by the lessees, yet the power to cancel their leases should not be exercised by the Crown without first holding an investigation of a judicial character and giving all parties interested an opportunity of being heard in respect to the matters alleged against them. Lease—Water power from canal—Tem-porary stoppage—Compensation—Total stop-page—Measure of damages—Loss of profits.] -A mill was operated by water power taken from the surplus water of the Galops canal, under a lease from the Crown. The lease provided that in case of a temporary stop-page of the supply caused by repairs or alterations in the canal, the lessee would not be entitled to compensation unless the same continued for 6 months, and then only to an abatement of rent :---Held, Idington, J., dubitante, that a stoppage of the supply for two whole seasons, necessarily and bona fide caused by alterations in the canal, was a temporary stoppage under this provision.— The lease also provided that in case the flow of surplus water should at any time be required for the use of the canal, or for any public purpose whatever, the Crown could, on giving notice to the lessee, cancel the lease, in which case the lessee would be entitled to be paid the value of all buildings and fixtures thereon belonging to him, with 10 per cent. added thereto. The Crown unwatered the canal in order to execute works for its enlargement and improvement, contemplating at the time only a temporary stopage of the supply of water to the lessee, but afterwards changes were made in the proposed work, which caused a total stoppage, and the lessee, by petition of right, claimed damages: — Meld, Giovand, J., dissenting, that, as the Crown had not given notice of an intention to cancel the lesse, the lessee was not entitled to the damages provided for in case of cancellation :—Meld, also, that the lessee was not entitled to damages for loss of profits during the time his mill was idle owing to the water being out of the canal.— Judgment of the Court below, 25 C. Lease for subaqueous mining — Breach of contract—Grant of same area for placer mining—Liability of Crown—Damages —Practice.]—The Crown by indenture dated 23rd March, 1898, leased unto the petitioner for 20 years, the exclusive right and privi-lege of taking and extracting by subaqueous mining and dredging, all royal and base metals other than coal, to be found within a certain defined area on Dominion Creek, in Certain defined area on Dominion Creek, in the Yukon Territory. Subsequent to the granting of this lease, and while the same was in full force, the Crown, through the Gold Commissioner at Dawson, granted to free miners the same area covered by said petitioner's lease as placer mining claims, and placed these free miners in possession of the said area :- Held, that the petitioner had suffered sufficient injury by reason of the subsequent grants to support a petition of right against the Crown for damages. Lien - Dominion Lands Act Amendment, 1897-Registry laws-Entries-Costs.]-Under s. 18 of 60 & 61 V. c. 29, amending the Dominion Lands Act, unless the Registrar makes the necessary entries respecting the indebtedness of the patentee there referred to "in the proper register or other record book in his office," no charge or lien will be created on the land comprised in the patent for such indebtedness. A docket or note book in which the Registrar kept a record of applications under the Real Property Act received and examined by him, is not to be sonsidered "the proper register or record book ' in which to make the necessary entries, which should have been made in the abstract book kept under the Registry Act, as the patent had been registered under the old system of registration. Under Rule 277 of the Queen's Bench Act, 1895, costs will be given against the Crown when it fails in proceedings taken by way of caveat and petition under the Real Property Act. Regina v. Location ticket—Conditions—Non-fulfilment—Cancellation — Prescription.]—Under the terms of a sale from the Crown in 1857, the grantee was obliged to perform all the obligations contained in ordinary location tickets, and without residence and clearance upon the lot the grantee could not become the incommutable owner nor acquire letters patent. 2. Prescription does not run against the Crown, which always has the right to cancel a location ticket. Kealy v. Regan, 23 Que. 8. C. 305.

Military reserve — Order in council— License to use as public park—Lease of part of park for industrial purposes—Mistake of Evidence—Priorities — Waiver — Breach of trust—Ordnance lands—R. S. C. 1886, s. 55.] —On the Sth of June, 1887, a portion of land near the City of Vancouver, and known as Stanley Park, was handed over to the municipality for an indefinite period for use as a public park. The land, which had been an Imperial military reserve, had been trans-ferred to the Dominion on the 7th of March. 1884. The city's petition, presented in 1886 to the Dominion, asked for "that portion of land (described as within the city limits) known as the Dominion Government military reserve near the First Narrows bounded on the west by English Bay and on the east by Burrard Inlet." Adjacent to the peninsula known as Stanley Park, and within Vancouver harbor, is a small island, and there was some evidence that at certain stages of the tide during the year, there was bare land between the island and the peninsula. Shortly prior to the 8th of June above mentioned, the city's boundaries, by an amendment to the charter, were stated so as to extend down to low water mark. It was contended for the city that this made the island a portion of the park. But in all charts and maps the land was shewn as an island. The city assumed to use the island as a portion of the park and built out to it a foot-bridge. which afterwards was allowed to fall into dis-use and decay. Plaintiffs' predecessor, in 1898, applied for a lease of the island, and although the city was notified of such application, no reply was given until when, in February, 1899, an order was passed authorising the Minister of Militia to grant a lease for right to possession of the island under the terms of the order of the Sth of June, 1887. A question then arose between the Province A doshon then arose between the Province and the Dominion as to the ownership of the island (see (1901), 8 B. C. R. 242; (1904), 11 B. C. R. 258; [1906] A. C. 552), resulting in favour of the Dominion. In consequence, the city opened negotiations with the Dominion for a lease of Stanley Park, and sought to have Deadman's Island speci-fically included in such lease. Eventually a lease was executed of "all that portion of the City of Vancouver (and the foreshore adjacent thereto, bounded by the western limit of district lot 185, group 1, New Westmins-ter District, as shewn on the official plan thereof filed in the Land Registry office at Vancouver) and the low water mark of the waters of Burrard Inlet, the First Narrows and English Bay, and being all that peninsula and pages bay, and being an and a said district lot 185, known as "Stanley Park." The lease was also "subject, until their determin-ation, ro any existing leases of portions of said land." Military reserve—Provincial or federal domain — Recitals in private Acts.] — The statement in the Vaneouver Incorporation Acts, which are private in their nature, that certain land is a "Government Military Reserve," is not conclusive on the Crown in right of the Province—Held, on the facts, that it was not shewn that Dendman's Island was a military reserve called into existence by properly constituted authority, and, therefore, that it belongs to the Province and not to the Dominion. Military reserve—Title of the Dominion —Transfer by Imperial Government—British North America Act, 1867, ss. 108, 117.]—The land in suit, called Deadman's Island, was de facto a "reserve" by the Government of British Columbia under paragraph 3 of the Proclamation of 1859, and according to the evidence a military reserve—Held, that it remained Imperial property at the time of the British North America Act, 1867, and was transferred to the Dominion by special grant dated the 27th March, 1884. It did not, therefore, fall to the colony in virtue of s. 117 of the Act, nor to the Dominion in virtue of s. 108. Judgment in Attorney-General v. Ludgate, 11 B. C. R. 258, affirmed. Patent - Construction - Erroneous description-Description to accord with grants of other parcels-Occupancy under French title.]-Under a patent from the Crown a parcel of land, forming part of a large block originally held under what is known as the French title, was granted to the defendant's grantor, with the express condition that the patent must be consistent with the patents of other portions of the block. The description of the land in the patent was erroneous, which was apparent from the other patents and the registered and unregistered plans, and had the effect of including land to which the plaintiff had a good title derivable from such French title, and with which possession had gone. In an action of trespass against the defendant for pulling down the plaintiff's fence, and for a declaration as to his boundar--Held, that the patent must be read as ies:only including the land according to the proper description thereof, and would not include the portion in question; but, even if it were otherwise, it could not be made use of to displace the title of the plaintiff, whose beneficial ownership was derivable through the French title. The occupancy of lands under the French title, and the rights vested in such occupants by virtue of the Imperial Acts 14 Geo. III. c. 83, s. 8, and 31 Geo. III. c. 31, Dru 33, considered and commented on. lard v. Welsh, 11 O. L. R. 647, 7 O. W. R. 575. Patent - Locatee-Improvements-Ascertainment of amount payable for - Crown Lands Department.]-On an application being made for the patent to certain lands, a claim was made by the defendant, who had married the widow of the locatee and had improved the land, to be allowed the value of such improvements, whereupon the Commissioner of Crown Lands directed that before the patent issued the amount, if any, pay-able to the defendant for his improvements and work on the land, after proper deductions, should be ascertained. A consent judg-ment was obtained referring it to the Master to inquire and report as to what sum, if any, the defendant was entitled to for per-manent improvements and work done upon the land; for maintenance of the family of the locatee, and for any advances made to the family, after making all proper deduc-tions: -Held, that, as the consent judgment was silent as to the principle to be applied in ascertaining the amount payable to the defendant for the improvements the proper mode, having regard to the object of the Crown Lands Department, was to award such sum as in foro conscientiæ the defendant ought to receive. S. O. 1877 c. 23, in an action instituted in respect of such lands situate within its jurisdiction, to declare such patents to be void; and this remedy may be accorded in an action by a private individual, to which the Attorney-General may or may not be a party, but to the institution of which his consent is not necessary. The operation of Con, Rule 241 may properly be confined to cases in which it may be necessary to resort for remedy to a writ of scire facias .- In an action to restrain the defendants from trespassing or mining upon or removing ore from a small parcel of land in a mining district, the defendants disputed the plaintiffs' title and asserted title in themselves as assignees of the mining claim of one C., comprising the parcel in dispute. The defendants also counterclaimed, alleging inadvertence, omission, or mistake, and claiming a declaration that the letters patent obtained by the plaintiffs did not give them the title to the parcel in dispute, or that, if they did, the letters patent should be repealed, in so far as the parcel in question was concerned, and an injunction and damages:—Held, that the matter set up by the defendants in their counterclaim would properly form the subject of an action which might have been instituted by the defendants, without obtaining the Attorney-General's flat or his consent in any other form, in respect of the patent for land granted by the Crown to the plaintiffs; and, in that being so, the counterclaim was maintainable in this action. without the necessity of adding the Attorney-General as a party or of obtaining his flat or consent :--Held, however, upon the evidence, that the plaintiff E., who acquired the interests of the original plaintiffs in the land in question pendente lite, did so for value and without notice of the action or counterclaim, and therefore having regard to the provisions of the Land Titles Act, under which the plaintiffs' title was registered, the plaintiff E. was in the position of a registered purchaser for valuable consideration without notice, and the relief sought by the counterclaim could not be granted as against him; the right to an injunction followed upon his ownership of the land; but neither he nor his co-plaintiffs were entitled to damages. Prescription—Party invoking prescription by his oven possession and that of anterior possessors—Grant of land by the Croixe as a town site—Part that becomes unfit or less for the purpose—Retersion.]—A party who claims a tille to property by thirty years' prescription can rely only on his own possession or on his own and that of anterior possessors from whom helds a valid tile to the property in the nature of a demise. When a piece of land is set apart or granted by the Crown as a site for a town, any part of it that becomes unfit or useless for the purpose (e.g., by submersion) reverts to the Crown. Judgment of the Court of King's Bench for Quebec (16 Que, K. B. 142), affirmed, judgment of L'Hon. Gagné, J.C.S. (30 Que, S. C. 203), set aside. Price v. Chicoutimi Palp Co., C. R. [1900] A. C. 359, 19 Que, K. B. 227.

Property may be extra commercium as forming part of the public domain of the Crown, artificially and by destination only, and when such destination is changed it falls into the private domain and is intra commercium. Montreal Harbour Commissioners v. Record Foundry (1909), 35 Que. S. C. 161.

Reservation of timber in grant of land-Mortgage by patentee - Subsequent order in council rescinding reservation-Effect as to rights of mortgagee in timber-Accretion-Estoppel.]-A grant of land issued pursuant to ss. 14 and 15 of the Dominion Land Regulations (c. 100, Consolidated Orders in Council) contained, inter alia, a reservation to the Crowa or its agents of all merchantable timber. Subsequently an order in council was passed cancelling such reservation and declaring that all persons who had received homestead entries for lands similarly granted about be entitled to the timber on their homesteads free of dues. The owner, M., sold the timber to the defendments, J. and C., who in turn transferred their interest to the defendant S. M.'s mortgargees claiming under a mortgare of the 5th August, 1893, brought an action for an injunction and damages for trespass: — Held, (Martin, J., dissenting), reversing the judgment of Duff, J.2 W.L. R. 154, that the cancellation operated either as an extinguishment of the reserve, or a grant of the right in gross to the owner of the land; that the owner thereby became possessed of both the land and the profit which issued out of it, the profit becoming extinct and falling into the inheritance. That the reserve mentioned in the Crown grant was merely a license to enter and cut the timber, and was not a reservation such as that in Stanley v. White, 14 East 322, 343. Mac-Crimmon v. Smith, 12 B. C. R. 377, 3 W. L. R. 154.

Right of way over-Easement - Pre-scription-Possession-Predecessors in title.] -The provisions of C. S. U. C. c. 88, ss. 37, 40, and 44, were in force at the time of Confederation, and have not been repealed by the Parliament of Canada. Such provisions affect the right of the Crown as represented by the Government of Canada. 2. Under such provisions, where one enjoys an easement as against the Crown and over Crown property within the limits of some town or township, or other parcel or tract of land duly surveyed and laid out by proper authority in Ontario, for a period of twenty years, he thereby establishes a right by prescription in such ease-ment; and if the Crown interferes with the enjoyment of it by expropriation proceedings the owner is entitled to compensation. 3. To establish the easement by prescription it is not necessary to shew that the present owner was in undisturbed possession for the full twenty years; but the undisturbed possession of his predecessors in title may be invoked in order to complete the term of pre-scription. McGee v. R., 22 C. L. T. 87, 7 Ex. C. R. 309.

Road reservation - Expropriation by the town-Subsequent grant to individual -Fraudulent concealment -- Cancellation-Jurisdiction of Court-Construction of statutes.] -The defendant, in making application for - The definition in the Crown, represented that the land applied for was "near" the town of Sydney, when in fact it was in that town; also that the land was "unoccupied and unimproved," when in truth, to the defendant's knowledge, it was then in the occupation of the Dominion Steel Co., being a part of land which had been expropriated by the town and conveyed to the company for use in connection with their works, and was ap ortion of what was known as the "Corn-ish town road," being land reserved by the Crown many years previously for the pur-pose of a public road or highway, but which had never been used and was wider than had never been used and was wider than was required for the purpose, and out of which some grants had been made. By the provisions of the Towns Incorporation Act, R. S. N. S. c. 71, s. 170, all public streets, roads, highways, &c., were vested absolutely in the town, and the town council was given full control over the same :---Held, that the Crown having been induced by false suggestions and fraudulent concealment to make a grant which it would not have made if the Crown officers had been properly informed, the grant must be set aside ; that the statute was not to be construed as not applying to the road in question merely because it had not been used or was which the Court had jurisdiction to vacate; and that authority on the part of the town to expropriate the land in question, if the Act (1899 c. 84), did not apply to Crown land, was supplied by the Act ratifying and confirming the expropriation proceedings (1900, c. 66), Atty-Gen, for N. S. v. McGovean, 37 N. S. R. 35, 24 C. L. T. 136.

Sale—Timber lease—Reneval of, subsequent to Croven grant.)—The plainiff obtained a Crown grant to certain lands, for the timber on which a lease for 21 years had been previously given. The grant from the Crown was silent as to the timber lease. At a date subsequent to the said grant, the timber lease had to be surrendered for renewal under the provisions of the Land Act: —Held, that the rights given the grantee under his Crown grant were subject to the existing timber lease, and that the leases did not lose their priority by taking a renewal under the Act. Brohm v, B. C. R. 123.

Squatter-Grant-Purchaser for value-Priorities-Notice - Registry Act - Instrument improperly registered.]-A squatter upon Crown land, which he had partly cleared, and upon which he had built a house, gave a registered mortgage of it in 1874 for value, and in 1881 conveyed the equity of redemption by registered deed to the mortgagee, remaining in occupation of the land as tenant. In 1898 a son of the squatter, having no knowledge of the mortgage or deed, or that his father occupied the land as tenant, obtained a grant of the land from the Crown:—Held, that he should not be declared a trustee of the land for the purchaser from the father :--Semble, that s. 69 of the Regis-try Act, 57 V. c. 20 (C. S. 1903, c. 151, s. 66), by which it is provided that "the registration of any instrument under this Act shall constitute notice of the instrument to all persons claiming any interest in the lands subsequent to such registration, "does not apply to an instrument not properly on the registry, such as a conveyance of Crown land by a squatter. Robin, Collas & Co. v. Therivalt, 25 C. L. T. 68, 3 N. B. Eq. 14.

Swamp lands-Transfer to province-Construction of statute-Order in council.] -By s. 1 of 48 & 49 V. c. 50 (D.), sub-sequently re-enacted by R. S. C. c. 47, s. 4, it was provided that all Crown lands which may be shewn to the satisfaction of the Dominion Government to be swamp lands shall be transferred to the province and enure wholly to its benefit and uses :--Held, that by its true construction the section did not operate an immediate transfer to the province of any swamp lands or of the profits arising there-from, but only from the date of the order in council, made after survey and selection as prescribed by the Act directing that the selected lands be vested in the province. Down to that date the profits resulting from the transferred lands belonged to the Dominion. Judgment in 34 S. C. R. 287, 24 C. L. T. 163, and 8 Ex. C. R. 337, affirmed. Atty-Gen. for Man. v. Atty.-Gen. for Can., [1904] A. C. 799.

Timber licenses—Prior grant of land— Retroactivity.] — Lois granted or located prior to the date of a license to cut timber under Art. 1300, R. S. Q., are exempt from the rights conferred by such license.—2. Licenses to cut timber on Crown lands are not retroactive as against prior granices of said lands. Price v. Delide, 21 Que. S. C. 411.

Timber licenses-Sales by local agent-Location ticket — Suspensive condition — Title to lands.] — During the term of a license to cut timber on ungranted lands of the province of Quebec, the local Crown lands agent made a sale of a part of the lands covered by the license, and issued location tickets or licenses of occupation thereof under the provisions of Arts 1269 et seq., R. S. Q., respecting the sale of Crown lands Subsequently the timber license was renewed but at the time the renewal license was issued there had not been any express approval by the commissioner of Crown lands of the in Art. 1269, R. S. Q.: — Held, affirming the judgment appealed from, Taschereau and Davies, JJ., dissenting, that the approval required by Art. 1269, R. S. Q., was not a suspensive condition, the fulfilment of which would have retroactive effect from the date when the sales by the local agent were made, and that, at the time of the issue of the renewal license, the lands in question were still ungranted lands of the Crown for which the timber license had been validly issued. Leblanc v. Robitaille, 22 C. L. T. 78, 31 S. C. R. 582.

2. EXPROPRIATION OF LAND.

Actual value — Compulsory taking — Compensation.] — In expropriation cases, where the actual value of lands can be closely and accurately determined, a sum equivalent to ten per cent, of such actual value should be added thereto for the compulsory taking; but where that cannot be done, and where the price allowed is liberal and generous, nothing should be added for the compulsory taking. Symonds v. Res, 8 Ex. C. R. 319.

Compensation-Damages for injury to adjoining lands — Amount of judgment of Exchequer Court — Appeal to Supreme Court.]-Information in the Exchequer Court for a declaration that certain lands taken for the Trent Canal were vested in Her Majesty, and that the sum of $6,860 tendered to the defendant was sufficient compensation for the lands taken and for damages to adjoining lands. The amount tendered was made up of $3,860 for the lands taken and $3,000 for damages. The valuators on whose report the tender was made put the value of the land at $200 per acre. This was accepted by the Judge of the Exchequer Court, but, upon conflicting evidence, he increased the amount for damages to $10,350. The Crown appealed on the ground that the damages were excessive:—Held, Gwynne and Girouard, JJ., dissenting, that, as it did not appear from the evidence that there was error in the judgment appealed from, the Supreme Court would not interfere. R. v. Armour, 31 S. C. R. 499.

Compensation - Leasehold interest -Measure of damages.]—The supplicants were lessees of certain land and premises expro-priated for the Intercolonial Railway. The premises had been fitted up and were used by them for the purpose of their business as coal merchants. By the terms of the lease under which they were in possession, the term for which they held could at any time be determined by the lessors by giving six months' notice in writing, in which event the suppliants were to be paid $2,500 for the improvements they had made: — Held, that the measure of compensation to be paid to the suppliants was the value, at the time of the expropriations, of their leasehold in-terest in the lands and premises. Apart from the sum payable for improvements there was no direct evidence to shew what the value was. But it appeared that the suppliants had procured other premises in which to carry on their business, and that in doing so they had of necessity been at some loss, and that the cost of carrying on their business had been increased. The amount of the loss and of increased cost of carrying on business during the six months succeeding the expropriation proceedings was, in addition to the sum mentioned, taken to represent the value to them, or to any person in a like position, of their interest in the premises. The suppliants also contended that, if they had not been disturbed in their possession, they could have increased their business, and so have made additional profits, and they claimed compensation for the loss of such profits, but this claim was not allowed. Gibbon v. R., 20 C. L. T. 434, 6 Ex. C. R. 430.

structions from the department of railways, and justified under the Crown, which had become the owner of the land in question, by expropriation. The predecessor in title of the Crown had sold part of a lot of land to the predecessor in title of the plaintif, and at the same time entered into an agreement with the purchaser that an adjoining plot of land should never be thereafter sold, but left for the common benefit of both parties and their successors:—Held, following McLean v. McKay, L. R. 5 P. C. 327, that the agreement constituted a restriction imposed upon the estate of the Crown in favour of the estate of the plaintiff, enforceable in equity by the latter.—The land exproprinted by the Crown being the servient tenement, and that of the plaintiff the dominant tenement, nothing passed to the Crown except the land described in the exproprinton documents. MeLean v. Serv. 111.

Damage to remaining land - Access - Undertaking - Right of way - Future damages - Agreement-Increased value.]-The defendants owned a certain property, a portion of which was taken by the Crown for the purpose of a canal. Access to the remaining portion of the defendants' land was cut off by the canal, but the Crown, under 52 V. c. 38, s. 3, filed an undertaking to build and maintain a suitable road across its property for the use of the defendants. The evidence shewed that the effect of this road would be to do away with all future damage arising from deprivation of access; and the Court assessed the damages for past deprivation only. - 2. It having been agreed between the parties in this case that the question of damages which might arise in the future from any flooding of the de-In the further from any booming of the dealt with in the present action, the Court took cognizance of such agreement in pronouncing judgment. --3. In respect to the lands taken, the Court declined to assess compensation based upon the consideration that the lands were of more value to the Crown than they were to the defendants at the time of the taking. Stebbing v. Metropolitan Board of Works, L. R. 6 Q. B. 37, and Paint v. R., 2 Ex. C. R. 149, 18 S. C. R. 718. followed. R. v. Har-wood, 20 C. L. T. 424, 6 Ex. C. R. 420.

Damages — Valuation—Evidence.[—The Crown expropriated land of L. and had it appraised by valuators, who assessed it at $11, 400, which sum was tendered to L. but refused. L. brought suit by petition of right for a larger sum as compensation. The Exchequer Court awarded him $17,000. On appeal by the Crown:—Held, Girouard, J., dissenting, that the evidence given on the trial of the petition shewed that the sum assessed by the valuators was a very generous compensation to L. for the loss of this land, and the increase by the judgment appealed from was not justified. The Court, while considering that a less sum than that fixed by the valuators should not be given in this case, expressly stated that the same course would not necessarily be followed in future cases of the kind. R. v. Likely, 22 C. L. T. 191, 32 S. C. R. 47.

Expropriation of land for public works-Water lot-Special adaptability for wharf purposes - Interference with navigation—Right to erect ucharf,]—Appeal to Supreme Court of Canada dismissed. The Crown had offered the appellant $10,000 as compensation for a water lot. The trial Judge allowed the same amount because the Crown had tendered it. Even if trial Judge technically wrong in refusing to consider the appellant's chance of obtaining a license to erect a wharf which would obstruct navigation, still the sum allowed for damages was more than ample. R, v. Cunard, S E. L. R. 94

Foundry—Depreciation of value of machinery and tools by reason of expropriation —Compensation.]—Where a building used as a foundry is expropriated for the purposes of a public work, the owner who is unable to find suitable premises elsewhere to carry on his business is entitled to compensation for the depreciation in value of the machinery, tools, and other personal property with which his foundry is fitted up. R. v. Thompson, 11 Ex. C. R. 161, 27 C. L. T. 600.

Injury to business - Depreciation of value of machinery-Compensation.]-Where the whole property is taken and there is no severance, the owner is entitled to compensation for the land and property taken, and for such damages as may properly be included in the value of such land and property. He is not entitled to damages because such taking injuriously affects a business which he carries on at some other place .--- 2. The defendants, in expropriation proceedings, at the time their premises were taken, had them fitted up as a boiler and machine shop. The machinery was treated as personal property by the defendants and sold for less than it was worth to them when used for such purposes : -Held, that they were entitled to compensation for the depreciation in value of the machinery by reason of the taking of the premises where it had been in use. R. v. Stairs, 11 Ex. C. R. 137, 27 C. L. T. 670.

Leasehold property-Tenant's improvements-Expense of removal-Compensation.] -The suppliant was tenant of certain buildand wharves erected upon lands of which he had acquired possession as assignee of two leases. He there carried on business as a junk dealer. The terms for which the leases were made had expired at the time crown; but the leases contained a proviso that the buildings and other erections put on the demised premises should be valued by appraisers, and that the lessor or reversioner should have the option of resuming possession upon payment of the amount of such appraisement, or of renewing the leases on the same terms for a further term not less than three years. No such appraisement had been made, and the suppliant continued in possession of the property as tenant from year to year. The evidence shewed that the lessor had no present intention of paying for the improvements and of resuming possession of the pro-perty :--Held, that, in addition to the value of his improvements, the suppliant should be allowed compensation for the value under all the circumstances of his possession under the leases at the date of the expropriation. Mc-Goldrick v. R., 23 C. L. T. 99, 8 Ex. C. R. Lessor and lessee—Covenant to build on demised premises.] — Where a lessee is under covenant to build upon the demised premises, and a part of the premises are expropriated by the Crown for the purposes of a public work, the fact that by the expropriation the lessee is relieved from his covenant and the further fact that his rent is reduced by reason of the taking of a part of the premises, will be taken into consideration by the Court in fixing the amount of compensation to be paid to the lessee. R. v. Young, 32 C. L. T. S4, TEx. C. R. 282.

Licensed hotel - Special value of premises to owner arising from liquor license Compensation.] - The Crown expropriated for the purposes of a public work certain premises which the owner used as a hotel licensed to sell liquors. The license was an annual one, but, as the license laws then stood, it could be renewed in favour of the then owner, or, in case of his death, of his widow; but no license could be granted to any other person for such premises.—If the owner sold the property it was shewn that the use to which he put it could not be continued :--Held, that, while this particular use of the property added nothing to its market or selling value, it enhanced its value to the owner at the time of the expropriation, and that such was an element to be considered in determining the amount of compensation to be paid to him for the premises taken. R. v. Rogers, 27 C. L. T. 669, 11 Ex. C. R.

National Transcontinental Railway -Lands taken by Commissioners-Compensation — Arbitration — Jurisdiction of Ex-chequer Court—Construction of statutes.]-Section 13 of 3 Edw. VII. c. 71, reads as follows: — "The Commissioners may enter upon and take possession of any lands required for the purposes of the Eastern Division, and they shall lay off such lands by metes and bounds, and deposit of record a description and plan thereof in the office for the registry of deeds or the land titles office the county or registration district in which such lands respectively are situate; and such deposit shall act as a dedication to the public of such lands, which shall thereupon be vested in the Crown saving always the lawful claim to compensation of any person interested therein."—Held, that, under the terms of section 15 of the above Act (read in connection with the provisions of the Railway Act, R. S. 1906, c. 37), when lands have been taken and become vested in the Crown as provided by section 13, and the Commissioners cannot agree with the owner thereof as to compensation for the same, such compensation must be ascertained by a reference to arbitration, and not by proceedings taken in the Exchequer Court for such pur-pose. National Transcontinental Railway, Ex p. Bouchard, 38 N. B. R. 346, not followed. Rex v. Jones (1910), 13 Ex. C. R. 171.

Possession by officers of the Crown of lands not expropriated—Taking of Highway—Rife range—Damages.]—The defendants complained that possession of certain lands not covered by the plan and description filed by the Crown in an expropriation proceeding had been taken by the officers of the Crown, and claimed compensation :--Held, that the right to recover compensation must be limited to lands mentioned in the plan and defendants' predecessor in title, in laying off into lots the land of which a portion was taken from the defendants by the Crown, left a roadway between the land so divided and the top of the land adjacent to the sea. This roadway had been used by the public, and work had been done upon it by the municipal authorities. The land between that so taken and the sea was not included in the plan and description filed; but the Crown closed up the roadway, and from the land taken from the defendants opened another in lieu thereof :---Held, that the defendants were not entitled to compensation in respect of the taking of the roadway.--3. Where property adjoins a rifle range, the site of which has been expropriated from the lands of the owner of such adjacent property, he is entitled to compensation for damages arising from the use of such rifle range. R. v. Harris, 22 C. L. T. 83, 7 Ex. C. R. 277.

Prospective value—Assessed value.]— Where lands at the time of the expropriation had a prospective value for residential purposes beyond that which then attached to them as lands used for farming or dairy purposes, such prospective value was taken into consideration in assessing compensation. —2. In assessing compensation in this case the Court looked at the assessed value of the lands, not as a determining consideration, but as affording some assistance in arriving at a fair valuation of the property taken. R. v. Turnbull Real Estate Co., 23 C. L. T. 99, 8 Ex. C. R. 163. Affirmed in Turnbull Real Estate Co., v. R., Corkery v. R., De Bury v. R., 33 S. C. R. 677.

Public work-Damages-Reference.] Upon an appeal from the report of special referees, on the ground that the amount of damages reported by them was excessive, and it appearing to the Court that the matter was one in which it was expedient that there should be a reference back to the referees under the 19th Rule of Court of the 12th December, 1899, an order was made therefor, in which the following directions were given to the referees :---1. To find what in September, 1902, was the value of the wharf, land, and premises taken by the Crown as mentioned in the information. In finding that value the referees were directed to exclude from their consideration the value of the same to the Crown, in the way of saving expense in the construction of the public work, or otherwise, and to determine its value at that time to the owner or any other person, for any purpose to which in the ordinary course of events it could be put. In finding that value the referees were also directed to take into account the condition, situation, and prospects of the property taken ; but that such value should be one that the property had at the time it was taken, and not one that the referees might think that it might have at some future time by reason of its condition, situation, or prospects .---- 2. Value-Payment-Market value-Poten-Value—Evidence. — D. purchased at dif-ferent times and in 16 different parcels 623 acres of land, paying for the whole nearly $7,000, or about $11 per acre. The Crown, particular to the second bins $20 on expropriating the land, offered him $20 per acre, which he refused, claiming $22,000, which on a reference to ascertain the value was increased to $45,000. The Referee al-lowed $38,000, which the Exchequer Court reduced to the sum first claimed :--Held, reversing the judgment of the Exchequer Court, 10 Ex. C. R. 208, 26 C. L. T. 528, Girouard, J., dissenting, that there was no user of the land nor any special circumstance to make it worth more than the market value, which was established by the price for which it was sold shortly before expropriation .--- D. claimed the larger price as potential value of the land for orchard purposes, to which he had intended to devote it :--Held, that, as he had not proved the land to be fit for such purpose, and the evidence tended to disprove it, he could not receive compensation on that ground.—By 2 Edw. VII. c. 9, s. 1, only 5 expert witnesses can be called by either side on the trial of a case.—Quare, if more are called without objection by the opposite party, is the testimony of the extra witnesses valid? house and its contents, "but in case she should die without leaving lawful issue, then to my nieces hereinafter mentioned, and their children, being females." Following this there was a residuary gift or bequest to "the daughters of my siters M. and H. and to the daughters of daughter of my late brother J., and to their children, if any, being daughters: "-Held, that there was nothing in the will to indicate any intention on the part of the testatrix that the gift over should not take effect unless in her lifetime her niece M. W. died without leaving lawful issue, but, on the contrary, it was to be inferred from the terms of the will that it was the intention of the testatrix that in the case of the death at any time of M. W. without leaving lawful issue, the other nieces, to whom she left the residue of her estate, should take the property. Cowan v. Allen, 26 S. C. R. 292, Fraser v. Fraser, b. 316, and Olivant v. Wright, 1 Ch. D. 348, referred to.-2. The property in question had been expropriated by the Crown for the purposes of a public work:-Held, that the suppliant M. T., the devisee under the will sub nomine M. W., was in any event entitled to a life interest in the compensation money, and that she might be paid the interest thereon during the pendency of proceedings to determine the respective rights of all parties interested therein. Government railway-Freight rates-Regular and special rate-Agent's mistake-Estoppel.]-A freight agent on the Inter-colonial Railway, without authority therefor and by error and mistake, quoted to a shipper a special rate for hay between a certain point on another railway and one on the Intercolonial, the rate being lower than the regular tariff rate between the two places. The shipper accepted the special rate, and shipped a considerable quantity of hay. Being compelled to pay freight thereon at the regular rate, he filed a petition of right to recover the difference between the amount negligence or laches of an officer or servant of the Crown, for which there was no statutory remedy, the petition must be dismissed. Gunn & Co. v. R., 26 C. L. T. 780, 10 Ex. C. R. 343.

Government railway — Injury to the person—Negligence of Crown's servant—Liability.]—The suppliant, while waiting on the platform of the Intercolonial station at Stellarton, N. S., to board a train, was knocked down by a baggage truck and injured. The truck was being moved by the baggage master. The evidence shewed that the accident could have been prevented by the exercise of ordinary care on the part of the baggage master:—Held, that, as the injuries of which the suppliant complained were received on a public work, and resulted from the negligence of a servant of the Crown while acting within the scope of his duties and employment, the Crown was liable therefor. Sedgewick v. R., 27 C. L. T. 670, 11 Ex. C. R. 84.

The accident happened by reason of a fireman, who was employed on another train belonging to the same railway, failing properly to set and lock a switch in the performance of his duty :-Held, that the case fell within the provisions Heid, that the case ten within the provision of s. 16 (c) above mentioned, and that the Crown was liable in damages.—3. Held, following Miller v, Grand Trunk Ruc, Co., [1906] A. C. 187, the result of which is to overrule The Queen v. Grenier, 30 S. C. R. 42, that the right of action conferred by Art. 1056 of the Civil Code of Quebec on the widow and relatives of a deceased employee whose death has been caused by negligence for which the employer is responsible, is an independent and personal right of action, and is not, as in the English Act known as Lord Campbell's Act, conferred on the representatives of the deceased only; and that a provision in a by-law of a society to which the deceased belonged, and to the funds of which the defendant company subscribed, that in consideration of such subscription no member of the society or his representatives should have any claim against the company for compensation on account of injury or death from accident, did not constitute a good defence to the widow's action. In consequence of such contribution, a rule of the association provided that the members renounced all claims against the Crown arising from injury or death in the course of their employment. The employee having been killed in the discharge of his duty by negligence of a fellow servant :--Held, reversing the judgment of the Exchequer Court, 6 Ex. C. R. 276, 19 C. L. C.—Satisfaction or indemnity.] — In consequence of a broken switch, at a siding on the Intercolonial Railway (a public work of Canada), failing to work properly, although the moving of the crank by the pointsman had the effect of changing the signal so as to indicate that the line was properly set for an approaching train, an accident occurred by which the locomotive engine was wrecked and the engine-driver killed. In an action to recover damages from the Crown, under Art. 1056 of the Civil Code of Lower Canada: - Held, affirming the judgment appealed from, Arm-strong v. R., 11 Ex. C. R. 119, that there was such negligence on the part of the officers and servants of the Crown as rendered it liable in an action in tort: that the Exchequer Court Act, 50 & 51 Vict. c. 16, s. 16 (c), imposed liability upon the Crown, in such a case, and gave jurisdiction to the Exchequer Court of Canada to entertain the claim for damages; and that the defence that deceased, having obtained satisfaction or indemnity within the meaning of Art. 1056 of the Civil Code, by reason of the annual contribution made by the Railway Department towards the Intercolonial Railway Employees' Relief and Insurance Association, of which deceased was a member, was not an answer to the action. vorkrights ie supwhile employed as a locomotive fireman on an Intercolonial Railway train, running between Levis and Chaudière, at a point on the Grand Trunk Railway, enclosed between two sections of the Intercolonial Railway, over which the Government of Canada had acquired running rights and powers in perpetuity and free of charge under 43 V. c. 8. Over this sec-tion of railway the Government operated its trains and locomotives as on a part of the Intercolonial Railway system.—Held, that the agreement between the Government of Canada and the Grand Trunk Rw. Co. made under the provisions of the Dom. statute 43 V. c. 8, giving the Government running rights and powers over a portion of the Grand Trunk Rw, from Levis to Chaudière, between two sections of the Intercolonial Railway, constitutes that portion of the Grand Trunk Rw. a part of the Intercolonial Railway, under the provisions of the Government Rail-ways Act, as amended by 54 & 55 V. c. 50 (D.), and, consequently, a public work within the meaning of the Exchequer Court Act, The meaning of the Exchequer Court Act, 50 & 51 V. c. 16, s. 16 (c), R. Government railway - Passenger -Injury while alighting from train-Negligence of conductor and brakesman - Liability of Crown.]-The suppliant was injured while alighting from an Intercolonial Railway train on which she was being carried as a passenger. Owing to the negligence of a brakesman in failing to open the vestibule door of the car next to the station platform, and leaving the opposite door open, the suppliant was compelled to use the latter. While in the act of alighting and before she had reached the ground, the conductor started the train, with the result that the suppliant was thrown down and sustained bodily injury :-- Held, that both the conductor and brakesman of the train were guilty of negligence, upon the facts shewn, and that the Crown was liable in damages. Ryan v. R., 11 Ex. C. R. 267.

The action of the widow is not barred by her acceptance of the amount of a policy of insurance on the life of deceased from the Intercolonial Railway Employees' Relief and Insurance Association, under the constitution, rules, and regulations of which the Crown is declared to be released from liability to make compensation for injuries to or death or any compensation for infuries to be deal of any member of the association. Government steam dredge - Negligence of employee-Boiler explosion - Fatal injury-Liability of Crown-Public work.]-B., an employee on board of a dredge belonging to the Dominion Government, was charged with the duty of keeping the boilers supplied with water, the condition of the boilers being indicated to him by means of water-gauges. These gauges demanded unremitting attention, owing to the peculiar character of the boilers. B. was instructed by the engineer and fully understood that these gauges demanded his unremitting attention, and that it was dangerous for him to leave except momentarily a position which gave him a view of some of the gauges. B. left such a position for about then minutes, going to another part of the dredge, and during his absence one of the boilers exploded, and he was fatally injured. Upon a petition of right by his widow for damages :--Held, that the accident was attributable to B.'s own neglect, and that the petition must be dismissed.—Quare, whether the dredge was a "public work" within the meaning of s. 20 (c) of the Exchequer Court Act. Massicotte v. R., 11 Ex. C. R. 286, 27 C. L. T. 339.

Highway-Agreement with municipality Accident from ice - Liability - Public work.]-Under an agreement between the corporation of a city and the Dominion Government, the latter undertook, amongst other things, to maintain an approach to the Sap-pers' Bridge, such approach having been built by the city corporation, and forming part of a public highway. On the 23rd Feb-ruary, 1898, the sidewalk on the approach was in a slippery condition, and the suppliant in passing over it fell and sustained a fracture of one of her arms. She filed a petition of right seeking damages against the Crown, under 50 & 51 V. c. 16, s. 16 (c). -Held, that, whilst it was the duty of certain servants of the Crown to go and see that the bridge was in a safe condition for pedes-trians every morning, the suppliant, upon whom the onus was, had not shewn that they had failed in their duty on the morning of the accident .--- 2. In this climate it is not possible in winter to have the sidewalks of the highways always in a safe condition to walk upon; and negligence in that respect when it is actionable consists in allowing them to remain an unreasonable time in an unsafe condition. Davies v. R., 20 C. L. T. 163, 6 Ex. C. R. 344.

Navigation of inland waters — Collision—Government ships and vessels—"Public work"—Exchequer Court Act, s. 16 — Construction of statute—Right of action.]— His Majesty's steamship "Champanin," while navigating the river St. Lawrence at some distance from a place where dredging was being carried on by the Government of Canada, and engaged in towing an empty mud-scow, owned by the Government, from the dumping ground back to the place where the dredging was being done, came in collision with the suppliant's steam-barge, which was also navigating the river, and the barge sustained injuries :-- Held, affirming the judgment of the Exchequer Court of Canada, that there could be no recovery against the Crown for damages suffered in consequence of negligence of officers or servants, as the injury had not been sustained on a public work, within the meaning of s. 16 of the Exchequer Court Act. -Chambers v. Whitehaven Harbour Commis-300, [18:39] 1 Q. B. 1003; Farrett V. Bouman, 12 App. Cas. 643, and Attorney-General for the Strajts Settlement v. Wemyss, 13 App. Cas. 195, referred to. Paul v. R., 27 C. Public work — Bridge—Maintenance— Minister of Public Works]—There is nothing in the Public Works Act, R. S. C. c. 36, in relation to the maintenance and repair by the Minister of Public Works of bridges belonging to the Dominion Government, which makes him "an officer or servant of the Crown" for whose negligence the Crown would be liable under s. 16 (c) of the Exchargence Court Act, 50 & 51 V. c. 16. McHugh v. R., 20 C. L. T. 275, 6 Ex. C. R. 374.

Public work - Collision of vessel with entrance pier to canal — Negligence in con-struction—Liability of Crown.]—One of the entrance piers to a Government canal was so constructed that a substructure of masonry rested on crib-work. The base of the pier was set back three feet from the edge of the crib-work, which left a step or projection under water between the masonry and the side of the crib-work. It was necessary for vessels to enter the canal with great care, at this point, owing to the eddies and currents that existed there. The proper course, however, for vessels to steer was marked by buoys. A vessel on entering the canal touched another pier than the one in question, and then taking a sheer and getting out of control, swung over and came in collision with this pier:-Held, that, upon the facts proved, the accident was caused by the vessel being caught in a current or eddy and so carried against the pier.—2. That, as there was no negligence by any officer or servant of the Crown as to the location and the method of construction of this pier, the Crown was not liable for damages arising out of the collision. British & Foreign Marine Ins. Co. v. R., 9 Ex. C. R. 478, 25 C. L. T. 146.

Public work—Injury to adjoining property by fire—Liability of Croine under a. 16 (c) of Exchaguer Court Act—Injury not actually happening on the public work.]—It is sufficient to bring a case within the provisions of s. 16 (c) of the Exchequer Court Act to shew that the injury complained of arose from the negligence of an officer or servant of the Crown while acting within the scope of his duties or employment on a public work. It is not necessary to shew that the injury was actually done or suffered upon the public work itself. Letournew y. R.

Public work - Negligence-Freight elerator in post office—Use of, by employees — City by-law—Liability of Crown.]—The sup-pliant, an employee of the post office in the city of Montreal, was injured by falling from a lift to the floor of the basement. The lift was used for the transfer of mail bags and matter with those in charge of them from one floor to another in the post office building. It was proved that the lift was constructed in the usual and customary manner of freight elevators; but the suppliant con-tended that, as the lift was allowed to be used by certain employees in going from one floor to another, it should have been provided with guards or something to prevent any one from falling from it, as the suppliant did while passing from the first floor to the basement :---Held, that such user by the employees did not constitute the lift a passenger elevator and impose a duty upon those in charge of it to see that it was better protected than it was .--- 2. In any event the suppliant was not using the lift as a passenger at the time of the accident, but to transfer mail matter of which he was then in charge.-3. The by-law of the city of Montreal respecting freight and passenger elevators passed on the 4th February, 1901, did not affect the liability of the Crown in this case. The lift in ques-tion was built in 1897, before the enactment of such by-law, and was situated in the post office at Montreal, which building constitutes part of the public property of the Dominion, and so was within the exclusive legislative authority of the Parliament of Canada. Fini-gan v. R., 25 C. L. T. 145, 9 Ex. C. R. 472.

Public work - Negligence - Unskilled labourer required to remove electric wire -Bodily injury-Timekeeper - Fellow-servant -Liability.]-R., a labourer employed by the Department of Public Works in the reconstruction of a public building, was ordered by a timekeeper to remove an electric wire which had been used for the purposes of such reconstruction. R. had no skill in respect of this particular work. The timekeeper was permitted by the officer of the department in charge of the work to direct the workmen to attend to matters of this nature, and they were done under his direction from time to time. Removing the wire under the conditions then existing was attended with danger, and this fact was known or ought to have been known to the timekeeper, but he gave no notice of this to R. at the time he directed him to remove the wire. While engaged in removing it, R. received a severe electric shock; and was thrown from a girder upon which he was billion and the start alow when the uses standing, falling to a lower store of the building, and in that way receiving serious bodly injury:—Held, following Ryder v, R., 9 Ex. C. R. 330, 36 S. C. R. 462, that the negligence of the timekeeper was the negligence of a fellow-servant of R., and that the Crown was not liable therefor. Robillard v. R., 11 Ex. C. R. 271.

An order in council was passed providing that "the company shall construct either a swing in the bridge now in question, the cost to be borne by themselves, or else a new swing bridge over the contemplated canal (Trent Valley Canal), in which case the expense incurred, over and above the cost of the swing itself and the necessary pivot pier therefor, shall be borne by the Government." A new swing bridge was constructed ment." A new swing bridge was constructed over the canal by agreement with the com-pany:—Held, that the words "the cost of the swing itself and the necessary pier" included, under the circumstances and in the connection in which they were used, the operation and maintenance also of the swing by the company. Judge also of the swing by the company. Judgenet of the Exchequer Court, 26 C. L. T. 777, 10 Ex. C. R. 317, affirmed. Can. Pac. Rw. Co. v. R., 27 C. L. T. 223, 38 S. C. R. 211.

Canals-Natural channels of rivers-Distinction between public property and public works-Order in council - Constitutional law, 1-The natural channels of the St. Lawrence river, which lie between the canals, are not public works unless made so by statute, or unless something has been done to give them the character of public works .--- 2. By the 1st clause of the 3rd schedule of the British North America Act, 1867, "Canals with land and water power connected therewith" (of which the Cornwall canal is one) are enumerated as part of the "Provincial Public Works and Property" that in virtue of s. 108 of the Act became "the property of Can-ada:"—Held, that this does not give the Dominion any proprietary rights in the river St. Lawrence from which the water is taken for the Cornwall canal, beyond the right to take the water, nor make the river itself a public work of Canada.-3. By an order of the Governor-General in council of the 22nd March, 1870, the St. Lawrence river to the bead of Lake Superior, the Ottawa river, the St. Croix river, the Restigouche river, the St. John river, and Lake Champlain, are declared to be under the control of the Dominion Government: - Held, that this order in council did not have the effect of altering in any way the proprietary rights, if any, that the Government of Canada then had in the rivers and lake mentioned, or of making them or any parts of them public works of Canada. Macdonald v. R., 26 C. L. T. 781, 10 Ex. C. R. 394.

Commissioners National Transcontimental Railway — Contract — Services connected with construction of castern division—Disputed claim—Petition of right—Liabilly of commissioners.]—A petition of right will not lie in the case of a disputed claim founded upon a contract entered into with the Commissioners of the National Transcontinential Railway for services connected with the construction of the Eastern Division of such railway. Under the provisions of 3 Edw, VII, c. 71, the Commissioners are a body corporate, having capacity to sue and be sued on their contracts. Action, therefore, upon such a claim should be brought against the Commissioners and not against the Crown, Johnston v. Rex (1910), 13 Ex. C. R. 155.

Compulsory taking — Compensation — Value.)—It is the value of the land at the time of the expropriation that the Court has to consider in assessing compensation. If the property has deprediated in value between the time it was acquired by the person seeking compensation and the time of the expropriation by the Crown, the former has to bear the loss. 2. Where the property is occupied by the owner as his home, and he has no need or wish to sell, the compensation ought to be assessed upon a liberal basis. R. v. Sedger, 22 C. L. T. 84, 7 Ex. C. R. 274.

Contract-Abandonment and substitution of work-Implied contract.]-The suppliants contracted with the Crown to do certain work on the Cornwall canal, the contract providing that they should provide all labour, plant, etc., for executing and completing all the works for executing and completing all the works set out or referred to it in the specifications, namely, "all the dredging of the Cornwall canal on section No. S (not otherwise pro-vided for)" on a date named; "that the several parts of this contract shall be taken together the available of the contract shall be taken together to explain each other and to make the whole consistent; and if it be found that anything has been omitted or misstated which is necessary for the proper performance and completion of any part of the work contemplated the contractors will, at their own expense, execute the same, as though it had been properly described:" and that the engineer could, at any time before or during construction, order extra work to be done, or changes to be made, either to increase or diminish the work to be done, the contractors to comply with his written requirements therefor. By cl. 34 it was declared that no contract on the part of the Crown should be implied from anything contained in the signed contract or from the position of the parties at any time. After a portion of the work had been done, the Crown abandoned the scheme of constructing dams contemplated by the contract, and adopted another plan, the work on which was given to other contractors. After it was completed the sup-pliants filed a petition of right for the profits they could have made had it been given to them :--Held, affirming the judgment of the Exchequer Court, 7 Ex. C. R. 221, 22 C. L. T. 82, that the contract contained no express covenant by the Crown to give all the work done to the suppliants and cl. 34 prohibited any implied covenant therefor. Therefore the petition of right was properly dis-missed. Gilbert Blasting & Dredging Co. v. R., 23 C. L. T. 59, 33 S. C. R. 21.

Contract—Change in plans and specifications—Waiver by order in council—Powers of executive—Construction of statute—Directory and imperative clauses—" Stipulations" —Exchequer Court Act, s. 33—Extra works— Engineer's certificate—Instructions in writing —Schedule of prices — Compensation at increased rates—Damages—Right of action — Quantum meruit.] — The supplinats, appellants, were contractors with the Crown for the widening and deepening of a canal, and by their petition of right contended that there were such changes from the plans and specifications and in the manner in which the works were obliged to be executed as made the provisions of their contract inapplicable, and that they were, consequently, entitled to recover upon a quantum meruit. In order to afford relief, an order in council was passed waiving certain conditions, provisoes, and stipulations contained in the contract. By the judgment appealed from, the Judge of the Exchequer Court hold, 10 Ex. C. R. 248, 26 C. L. T. 463, that there had been no such changes as would entitle the contractors to recover on the quantum meruit, as in Bush v. Trustees of the Town and Harbour of White haven, 52 J. P. 392, 2 Hudson on Building Contracts, 2nd ed., p. 121; that the words "shall decide in accordance with the stipu-lations in such contract" in s. 33 of the Exchaquer Court Act might be treated as directory only, and effect given to the waiver in respect to the absence of written directions or certificates by the engineer in regard to works done; but that the remaining clauses of the section were imperative, and there could be no valid waiver whereby a larger sum than the amount stipulated in the contract could be recovered, e.g., on prices for the classes of work, so as to give the contractors a legal claim for higher rates of compensation without a new agreement under proper authority and for good consideration. On appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada :--Held, per Girouard, Davies, and Maclennan, JJ., that the decision of the Judge of the Exchequer Court was correct.—Per Idington and Duff, JJ., that the word "stipulations" in the first part of the section referred to, should be construed as having relation entirely to the second part of the section, and as applying to the rates of compensation fixed by the contract; that, on either construction, the result would be the same in so far as the circumstances of the case were concerned; that it did not warrant an implication that the executive could, without proper authority, exceed its powers in relation to a fully executed contract, or confer the power to dis-pense with the requirements of the statute; and that, consequently, there could not be a recovery upon quantum meruit. Pigott & Ingles v. R., 38 S. C. R. 501.

Contract - Delay - Forfeiture-Notice by engineer-Withdrawal of work-Damages -Interest.]-Where a contract provides for a forfeiture for not proceeding with work at the rate required, and fixes a time for its completion, any notice given after such date to determine the contract and enforce the forfeiture must give the contractor a reasonable time in which to complete the work, and the contractor must, before the forfeiture can be enforced, have made default with reference to such reasonable time, according to the decision of the engineer, of which the contractor is to have notice. Walker v. London and North-Western Rw. Co., 1 C. P. D. 518, discussed. 2. The damages for a breach have to be measured as nearly as may be by the profits which the contractor would have made by completing the contract in a reasonable time; and loss of profits in respect of extras could not be taken into consideration. 3. Where the Crown dispossessed the contractor of his plant, and used it in the completion of the work, the contractor was entitled to recover the value as a going concern. 4. Where the contractor was not allowed interest upon the value of such plant, it was held that he was not to be charged with interest upon the balance of the purchase price of a portion of the plant which, with his consent, the Grown had subsequently paid. Contract-Inspector of prisons-Employment of prisoners-Provincial legislature . Contract authorised by resolution-Effect of Modification, by order in council-Executive government-Claim on-Effect of decision of Court-Rights under contract-Interest-Insurance-Accounts - Fraud.] - The Government of the province of Ontario, through its inspector of prisons, entered into contract, authorising and approved of by resolution of the legislature, for the manufacture of twine in the central prison, utilising prison labour, which contract was assigned to a company with the consent of the Lieutenant-Governor in council. After the assignment, and during the currency of the contract, the workshops and machinery were destroyed by fire, and the work stopped. new agreement with the company was then entered into, authorised by orders in council. but not approved of by the legislature, for furnishing new machinery, etc. On the trial of a petition of right, in which the company claimed balances as due after a termination of the contract:-Held, that, while a judgment of the Court would be wholly inoperative, so far as any payment to the contractor of the amount found due was concerned, unless the legislature should appropriate the money, the original agreement was within the authority of the executive Government of the province, and did not require the ratification of the legislature to give it contractual validity. and that the latter agreement was a new agreement, which also was within the authority of the executive Government, as well any changes or modifications in either: as -Held, also, on the evidence, that, after accounts had been taken on a certain basis occasioned by a change in the contract, it was too late to re-open them .--- 2. That the parties were not entitled to interest as of right, and as, in the transactions between the parties here, interest was not charged by the Government, as it now sought to charge that claim could not be allowed .--- 3. That. although insurance was not provided for in the agreement, and the machinery was purchased by the company, it was subsequently to become the property of the Government, and so was substantially a purchase by the Government, and, as insurance had been allowed to the company in the accounts, it was too late to object to such allowance now. -4. That accounts rendered, checked, and entered in the prison books, there being no fraud or concealment, should not be disturbed. -5. That the contract did not call for the payment of additional men supplied beyond the original number contracted for, and there was no implied contract for their payment as on a quantum meruit .- While not necessary to determine the case, the Court was of opinion that the resolution of the legislature ratifying the contract did not give the contract the force of a statute of the province, and there was no intention it should, and, even if it did, that the executive Government had power to modify it. Contract - Railway ties-Inspection-Inspector exceeding authority in respect of acceptance-Subsequent rejection of ties improperly accepted - Right to recover price.] -The suppliant, in reply to an advertisement calling for tenders for ties for the use of the Intercolonial Railway, offered to supply ties to the Crown for such purpose. The Crown expressed its willingness to purchase his ties provided they answered the requirements of the specifications mentioned in the advertisement for tenders. D., an inspector appointed by the Government, in excess of his authority and contrary to his instructions, undertook on behalf of the Crown to accept ties not up to the said specifications. On this becoming known to the Crown, D.'s inspection was stopped, and other persons were appointed to re-inspect the ties, who rejected a portion of those which D, had undertaken to accept. The suppliant claimed the price of the ties so rejected :---Held, confirming the report of the Registrar, as referee, that the Crown was not liable for the price of the ties which D., as inspector, wrongfully and in excess of his authority, had undertaken to accept. Michaud v. R. (1910), 13 Ex. C. R. 147.

Contract for improvement of Gov-ernment canal-Change in works-Breach of contract-Spoiled grounds-Cost of - Al-lowance for.]-The suppliants were contractors for certain works of improvement on the Rapide Plat division of the Williamsburg canal. For their own use and benefit, and without notice to or request of the Crown in such behalf, they obtained certain grounds upon which to waste the material excavated by them :--Held, that the Crown was not bound to indemnify them for money expended in obtaining the said spoiled grounds. 2 In order to carry on the works in the way contemplated by the contract and specification, the contractors changed certain dumpscows into deck-scows. Thereafter a change was made by the Crown in the manner of carrying out the work, which required the contractors to convert the deck-scows into dump-scows: - Held, that the contractors were not entitled to recover from the Crown the expense they were put to in respect to the scows, because, the change in the works being provided for in the contract, there was no breach; but that such expense might be taken into account in considering the increased cost of doing the work, under the circumstances in which it was done, as compared with the cost of doing it in the way contemplated by the contract. Weddell v. R., contemplated by the contract. 1 22 C. L. T. 85, 7 Ex. C. R. 323.

Contract for sale of railway ties— Delivery—Inspection — Payment — Purchase by Croon from vendee in defoult—Title.]— In January, 1884, the suppliant agreed with M., acting for the B. & N. S. C. Co., to supply the company with railway ties. The number of the ties was not fixed, but the suppliant was to get out as many as he could, to place them along the line of the Intercolonial Railway, and was to be paid for them as soon as they were inspected by the campany. The ties were not to be removed from where the suppliant placed them until they were paid for. During the senso of 1894 the suppliant got out a number of ties, which were c.c.t=44 piled alongside the Intercolonial Railway, inspected, those accepted being marked with a dot of paint and the letters "B. & S.," and thereafter paid for by the company. In 1905 the suppliant made a second agreement with M. to get out another lot of ties for the company upon the same terms and conditions. Under this agreement the suppliant got out ties and placed them along the Intercolonial Railway where the former ties were piled, but the lots were not mixed. The second but the lots were not mixed. The second lot was inspected and marked with the dot of paint, but the letters "B. & S." were not put on them. The suppliant demanded payment for them from the company, but was not paid. In November, 1896, the company sold both lots of ties to the Crown for the use of the Intercolonial Railway, and was paid for them, and in May or June, 1897, the Intercolonial Railway authorities removed all the ties :--Held, that the B. & N. S. C. Co. had not at the time when they professed to sell the second lot of ties to the Crown any right to sell them, and the Crown did not thereby acquire a good title to the ties. That being so, the suppliant was entitled to have the possession of the ties restored to him, or to recover their value from the Crown. McLellan v. R., 25 C. L. T. 81, 9 Ex. C. R.

Government railway - Carriage of goods - Breach of contract - Damages -Negligence.] — The suppliant sought to re-cover a sum of $886.38 alleged to have been lost by him on a shipment of sheep undertaken to be carried by the Crown from Charlottetown, P.E.I., to Boston, U.S.A. The loss was occasioned by the sheep not arriving in Boston before the sailing of a steamship thence for England, on which space had been engaged for them; and the cause of such failure was lack of room to forward them on a steamboat by which connections are made between the Summerside terminus of the Prince Edward Island Railway and Pointe du Chene, N.B., a point on the Intercolonial Railway. The suppliant alleged that before the shipment was made the freight agent of the Prince Edward Island Railway at Charlottetown represented to him that if the sheep were shipped at Charlottetown on a certain date, which was done, they would arrive in Boston in time:-Held, that, even if the suppliant had proved, which he failed to do, that this representation had been made, it would have been inconsistent with the terms of the way-bill, and contrary to the regulations of the Prince Edward Island Railway, and therefore in excess of the freight agent's authority. 2. That the evidence did not disclose negligence on the part of any officer or servant of the Crown within the meaning of s. 16 (c) of the Exchequer Court Act. Wheatley v. R., 25 C. L. T. 80, 9 Ex. C. Government railway - Contract for services - Conditional increase of salary -Impossibility of performance of condition -Promises by Crown's officers-Liability.] -H., while general traffic manager of the Intercolonial Railway, offered to secure the appointment of R. to a position in H.'s department of the railway at a salary of $2,000 ment of the railway at a same mount, but per annum. R. refused that amount, but signified his willingness to accept $2,400. after obtaining the permission of the Minister of Railways to offer R. $2,100 per annum, wrote to him: "I would be prepared to alter the terms of my letter to read $2,100, with the assurance that should you, as I feel confident you can, develop the traffic on your division to my satisfaction, your salary should be increased to $2,400 on the 1st January, R. accepted the appointment upon these terms, and entered upon the duties of his office on the 1st January, 1898. In the following autumn H. resigned his position on the railway. Shortly after, namely, in September, 1898, the department offered to appoint R. general traveller freight agent of the railway, with headquarters at Toronto. and R. accepted the new office on the assurance contained in the letter from W., the then general freight agent of the railway, that "there is to be no change in the salary of the present position and the one in the west." R. entered upon his new duties on R. entered upon his new duties on west. R. entered upon his new duties on the 10th October, 1898, and discharged the same until April 1903, when his services were dispensed with. He had never been paid a salary during his employment by the Department of Railways of more than $2,100 per annum, and after his retirement he filed a petition of right claiming a balance of salary due him at the rate of $2,400 from the 1st January, 1809, basing such claim upon H.'s letter and W.'s letter, above mentioned: -Held, that, even if the assurance of increase of salary contained in such letter was more than an engagement or liability in honour, the contingency upon the happening of which the salary was to be increased had never in fact arisen. Before the time arrived when it could happen, two things had ocwhen it could happen, two things had be-curred to prevent it, neither of which was in the contemplation of the parties when the appointment was made. H. had resigned his office, and was no longer in a position to say whether R. had, or had not, developed the traffic to his satisfaction, and secondly, R. had ceased to hold the office in respect of which the increase of salary had been promised, and had accepted another office in connection with the traffic department of the railway. 2. The fair meaning of W.'s promise that there would be no change in the salary on R.'s acceptance of his new office on the traffic department was that R. would be paid the same amount of salary in the new position as that which he was then receiving, namely, $2,100. 3. That W. not having been shewn to have had any authority to bind the Crown by a promise to give any such increase of salary, no such authority was to be implied from the fact that he was at the time the general freight agent of the railway, and as such R.'s immediate superior officer. Robinson v. R., 25 C. L. T. 143, 9 Ex. C. R. 448.

Government railway—Injury to person at crossing—Negligence—Defective engine—

Rate of Speed-" Train of cars "-Dangerous crossing-Gates or watchman-Discretion of Crown.]-The husband of the suppliant was killed by being struck by the tender of an engine while he was on a level crossing over the Intercolonial Railway tracks, in the city of Halifax. The evidence shewed that the crossing was a dangerous one, and that no special provision had been made for the protection of the public. Immediately be-fore the deceased attempted to cross the tracks, a train of cars had been backed, or shunted, over this crossing in a direction opposite to that from which the engine and tender by which he was killed was coming. The engine used in shunting this train was leaking steam. The atmosphere was at the time heavy, and the steam and smoke from the engine did not lift quickly, but remained for some time near the ground. The result was that the shunting engine left a cloud of steam and smoke that was carried over towards the track on which the engine and tender were running, and obscured them from the view of any one who approached the crossing from the direction in which the deceased approached it. The train that was being shunted and the engine and tender by which the accident was caused passed each other a little to the south of the crossing. The train and shunting engine being clear of the crossing, the decensed attempted to cross, and when he had reached the track on which the engine and tender were being backed, the latter emerged from the cloud of steam and smoke and were upon him before he had time to get out of the way. At the time of the accident the engine and tender were being backed at the rate of six miles an hour :---Held, that the accident was attributable to the negligence of officers and servants of the Crown employed on the railway, both in using a defective engine, as above described, and in maintaining too high a rate of speed under the circumstances. 2. An engine and tender do not constitute a "train of cars" within the meaning of s. 29 of the Government Railways Act, R. S. c. 38. Hollinger v. Canadian Pacific Ruo. Co., 21 O. R. 705, not followed. 3. Where the Minister of Railways, or the Crown's officer under him whose duty it is to decide as to the matter, comes, in his discretion, to the conclusion not to employ a watchman or to set up gates at any level crossing over the Intercolonial Railway, it is not for the Court to say that the Minister or the officer was guilty of negligence because the facts shew that the crossing in question was a very dangerous one. Harris v. R., 24 C. L. T. 388, 9 Ex. C. R. 206.

Head-gates and waters of canal-Control of public and private rights-Crown officer-Estoppel by Acts of-Departmental report.]-The suppliant's predecessor in title, the seignior of Beauharnois, early in the last century had constructed a canal or feeder. with head-gates and appurtenances, through his own land for the purpose of conveying water from the river St. Lawrence to the river St. Louis, and so increase certain waterpowers belonging to the seigniory, Later in the century, when the Beauharnois canal was constructed by the Government of the province of Canada, certain works near the head of that canal had the effect of raising the water along the shores of Hungry bay, in lake St. Francis, and flooding a considerable portion of the seigniory of Beauharnois. To overcome this, the government built a dyke through Hungry bay, which crossed the feeder and had a flume with three sluice-gates at its entrance into St. Louis The gates that the seignior had used river. up to that time were removed, and the three sluice-gates mentioned were constructed as part of the public work. It was not disputed that this dyke was part of the property of the province, and passed to the Dominion of Canada in 1867; but down to the year 1882 the seignior and his grantees remained in possession of the feeder and head-gates. In that year, however, a sum of $10,000 was voted by Parliament for the improvement of the river St. Louis, and a sum of $5,000 in each of the two years following. In con-nection with the work so provided for, the Crown took possession of the feeder, deepened and improved it, built a bridge over it, and took out and re-built the head-gates. It was not quite clear whether these works were undertaken by the Dominion Government at the request of the farmers who owned adjacent lands or of the mill owners, or at the request of both. It was clear, however, that none of the mill owners, of whom the suppliant was one, objected in any way to what was done. But after the work was completed, the Crown's officers continued in possession of both the feeder and the head-gates, and the suppliant complained to the Minister of Public Works that he was prevented, along with other mill owners, from exercising the control of the feeder and head-gates to which they were as such owners entitled. The result of this complaint was that the control and possession of the feeder and headgates were handed over to the suppliant, who retained possession until 1892, when the Government resumed possession against the will and consent of the suppliant, who gave up the keys of the gates without waiving any of his rights. Prior to the time when the Government in 1892 took possession of the feeder, the suppliant had acquired the rights therein of all the mill owners interested excepting one, the rights of the latter being acquired afterwards in the same year: . Held, that, as the suppliant's auteurs were not in possession of the feeder and headgates at the time of the deed of conveyance, 1374 they could not give him possession thereof as against the Crown; and, as the right of control and regulation of the head-gates had been in the Crown from the time the dyke was built, such right was not lost by the Crown ceasing to exercise it for the period above mentioned. The suppliant, while enjoying the right to have these works so regulated and controlled as to give him all the water he was entitled to, consistent with other public or private interest therein, had not the paramount or exclusive control and regulation of them, which, by the necessities of the case, were vested in the Crown. The Crown is not estopped by any statement of facts or by any conclusions or opinions stated in any departmental report by any of its officers or servants. Robert v. R., 9 Ex. C. R. 21.

Injurions affection—Envsion—Increase of—Excheguer Court-Juridiction,]—Where the erosion of land by the natural action of line waters of a river was accelerated and increased by certain works erected in the river, and some dredging done therein by the Crown, a petition of right will lie for damages.—2. The jurisdiction of the official arbitrators under s. 1 of 33 V. c. 23, and s. 4 of 31 V. c. 12, was, in substance, transferred to the Excheguer Court of Canada by ss. 16, 58 and 50 of 50 & 51 V. c. 16. Graham V. R., S Ex. C. R. 331.

Injurious affection of property-Deprivation of access-Street-Damages.]-By the construction of a public work a public highway was closed up at a point two hundred and fifty feet distant from the suppliant's property, which fronted on the highway. In first expropriation for the public work of land in the neighbourhood no part of the suppliant's property was taken. Afterwards, and during the construction of the public work, a portion of his property was taken for the public work, and on the trial of a petition of right for compensation, the question arose as to whether or not the depreciation of the property by reason of the closing up of the street or highway should be taken into account as one of the elements of damages :--Held, that it should be so taken into account, first, because it appeared that the depreciation from this cause in fact occurred subsequent to the taking of the land, and secondly, it was a case in which the suppliant was entitled to compensation for the injurious affection of his property by reason of the obstruction of the highway, which was proximate and not remote. Injury to person — Negligence—Common employment in Manitoba—Workmen's Compensation Act.]—The effect of s. 16 (c) of the Exchequer Court Act is not to extend the Crown's liability so as to enable any one to impute negligence to the Crown itself, or to make it liable in any case in which a subject in like circumstances would not be liable—2. In the province of Manitoba the Dominion Government is not liable for any injury to one of its servants arising from the negligence of a fellow-servant. Filion v. The Quees, 24 S. C. R. 482, referred to. -3. With respect to the liability of the Dominion Government in cases involving the doctrine of common employment, nothing short of an Act of the Parliament of Canada can alter the law of Manitoba as it stood on that subject on the 15th July, 1870. The Workmen's Compensation Act, R. S. M. c. 178, does not apply to the Crown, the Crown not being mentioned therein, Ryder v. R., 25 C. L. T. 85, 113, 9 Ex. C. R. 330, 36 S. C. R. 462.

Injury to property - Barge wintering in Government canal-Lowering level of water -Omission to notify owner - Negligence-50 & 51 V. c. 16, s. 16 (c).]-In the autumn of 1900 the suppliant placed his barge for winter quarters at a place in the Lachine canal which he had before used for a similar purpose. The practice is now changed, but up to and including the year 1900 it was sufficient for any owner of a barge, without asking leave or notifying any one on behalf of the Crown, to leave his barge in the canal, and during the winter some officer of the canals department would take the name of the barge, measure it, make up an account based on the tonnage for such use of the canal, and in the spring collect the amount thereof from the owner of the barge before she was permitted to leave the canal, the whole in conformity with the provisions of Art. 32 of the tariff of tolls framed by that department and issued in the year 1895. Some time after the suppliant had so placed his barge in the canal, M., the superintending engineer for the province of Quebec of the canals department, wrote officially to O'B., the superintendent of the Lachine canal, directing him to have the water lowered on certain date during the winter to facilitate certain work then being done by the Grand Trunk Railway Company on their swing bridge at St. Henri. M. also gave an oral order to O'B. to comply with the usual practice of notifying the owners of barges wintering in the canal before lowering the water on any occasion. In pursuance of such order, O'B. directed one of the employees of the canal to notify the barge owners whenever the level of the water was to be lowered. This employee failed to notify the suppliant before the water was lowered on a certain date, and his barge was so injured by the lowering of the level of the water that she became a total loss :--Held, confirming the report of the registrar, that, as the canal was a public work, a case of negligence was established for which the Crown was liable under the provisions of s. 16 (c) of the Exchequer Court Act, 50 & 51 V. c. 16. Gagnon v. R., 25 C. L. T. 56, 9 Ex. C. R. 189.

Lands injuriously affected — Closing highway — Inconvenient Substitute.]— The owner of land is not entitled to compensation where, by construction of a public work, he is depived of a mode of reaching an adjoining district and obliged to use a substituted route, which is less convenient. The fact that the substituted route subjects the owner at times to delay does not give him a claim to be compensated, as it arises from the subsequent use of the work, and not its construction, and is an inconvenience common to the public generally. The general depreciation of property because of the vicinity of a public work does not give rise to a claim by any particular owner. Where there is a remedy by indictment, mere inconvenience to an individual or loss of trade or business is not the subject of compensation. Judgment of the Exchequer Court, 23 C. L. T. 21.3, 8 Ex. C. R. 245, reversed. R. v. MacArthur, 24 C. L. T. 201, 34 S. C. R. 570.

Negligence of Crown officials-Right of action — Injury to land —Jurisdiction of Exchequer Court — Prescription.] — Lands in the vicinity of a Government canal were injuriously affected through flooding caused by the negligence of the Crown officials in failing to keep a siphon-tunnel clear and in proper order to carry off the waters of a stream which had been diverted and carried under the canal, and also by part of the lands being spoiled by dumping matter upon it :--Held, reversing the judgment in 21 C. L. T. 277, 7 Ex. C. R. 1, that the owner had a right of action and was entitled to recover damages for the injuries sustained, and that the Exchequer Court of Canada had exclusive origi-nal jurisdiction under ss. 16, 23 and 58 of the Exchequer Court Act. Regina v. Filion, 24 S. C. R. 482, approved. City of Quebec v. The Queen, ib. 430, referred to. The pre-scription established by Art. 2261, C. C., ap-plies to the damages claimed by the owner. Non-repair-Money voted by Parliament -Discretion of minister - Jurisdiction of Court-Improvement of navigation.]-There is no law of Canada under which the Crown is liable in damages for the mere non-repair of a public work, or for failing to use in the repair of any public work money voted by Parliament for the purposes of such public work .--- 2. In such a case, whether the repair should be made or the money expended within the discretion of the Governor in Council or of the Minister of the Crown under whose charge the work is; and for the exercise of that discretion he and they are responsible to Parliament alone, and such discretion cannot be reviewed by the Courts :-Semble, that, although the channel of a river may be considered a public work under the management, charge, and direction of the Minister of Public Works during the time that he is engaged in improving the navigation of such channel under the authority of s. 7 of the Public Works Act, R. S. C c. 36, it does not follow that once the Minister has expended public money for such a purpose, the Crown is for all time bound to keep such channel clear and safe for navigation, or that for any failure to do so it must answer in damages. Hamburg American Packet Co. v. R., 21 C. L. T. 517, 7 Ex. C. R. 150, affirmed 33 S. C. R. 252.

Siphon-culvert-Flooding of premises-Negligence.]-The suppliants charged in their petition that their stock-in-trade had been damaged by the flooding of their premises near the river St. Pierre, in the city of St. Henri, district of Montreal, caused by an alleged defective siphon-culvert constructed by the Dominion Government to carry the waters of the river under the Lachine canal. The facts shewed that the siphon-culvert was not defective in its construction, and that there was no negligence on the part of the officers or servants of the Crown with respect to it, within the meaning of s. 16 (c) of the Exchequer Court Act; while, on the other hand, the evidence established that the lands adjacent to the suppliants' premises were of a porous character, and that the basement of their buildings had been connected by a drain with the river St. Pierre, which permitted the water to back up and flood the suppliants' premises, when the river rose to a certain height.-Held, that the allegations in the petition were not supported by the evidence, and that the petition must be dismissed with costs. Alaska Feather & Down Co. v. R., 11 Ex. C. R. 204.

Tort by Crown's servants-Diversion of flowing water — Liability — Amendment of petition of right — Practice.]—The suppliant, by his petition of right, alleged, substance, that the Crown, through the Minister of Railways and Canals, and his servants, agents, and employees, having no right to do so, had diverted the water of a cer-tain brook, which flowed through his property in the parish of Dalhousie, N. B., and used the same for supplying the engines and locomotives of the Intercolonial Railway and vessels in the harbour of Dalhousie :--Held, that the suppliant's action was laid in tort, and a petition of right would not lie therefor .--- Upon an application by the suppliant to amend his petition, the Court declined to grant the same until a draft of the proposed amendments was submitted, and the Court had an opportunity of considering how far it was necessary for the suppliant to depart from his original petition. Montgomery v. R., 11 Ex. C. R. 158, 27 C. L. T. 668.

5. TIMBER LICENSES.

Renewal—Manufacturing condition—Constitutional lace — Petition of right—Amendment.]—The Act 61 V. c. 19 (O.), making applicable to timber licenses the condition approved by Order in Council of the 17th February, 1897, that all pine timber cut under such licenses shall be manufactured into sawn lumber in Canada, is intra vires, and applies to licenses issued after the passing of the Act in renewal of licenses in force at the time of its passage.—The rights acquired under sales and licenses of timber limits under the Crown Timber Act, considered.—A petition of right may be amended at the trial.—Judgment in 31 O. R. 202, 19 C. L. T. 291, affirmed. Smylie v. R., 20 C. L. T. 255, 27 A. R. 172. Statute of Frands-Interest in land-Resulting trust, 1-An arcrement under which a Crown land lumber license was bid in at public sale at the up-set price by the defendant, in whose name the license was issued, for the plaintiff, who had paid to the defendant the up-set price previous to the sale, does not relate to an interest in land within the Statute of Prauds, and if it does, as the purchase money for the license was paid by the plaintiff, and a trust thereby resulted in his favour by construction of law, it can be established by parol evidence under the Statute of Frauds, C. S. N. B. c. 76, s. 9. Mo-Gregor v, Alexander, 2 N. B. Eq. Reps. 54.

6. OTHER CASES.

Action by Attorney-General-Costs-Payment of, by relator or Attorney-General.] —In an action by the Atty.Gen. at the relation of a private individual, the Crown sues as parens patria, and the only object of inserting the name of the relator in the proceedings is to make him responsible for costs. The Act 18 and 19 V. c. 90 (Imperial), is not in force in B. C., and the machinery by which the Act is to be worked out could not be applied here. Atty-Gen. ex rel. Kent v. Ruffner, 12 B. C. R. 290.

Agent of Grown — Lieblity of — Evidence.]—The defendant, the principal of an industrial school, an employee of the Dominion Government, entered into and signed in his own name a written agreement engaging the plaintiff for a certain period in a certain employment. The factory in which the plaintiff was employed being destroyed by fire, and the plaintiff thrown out of employment, he sued the defendant for wronsful dismissal:—Held, that evidence of the capacity in which the defendant entered into the agreement and the other surrounding dircumstances was admissible. It appearing that the defendant acted merely as agent for the Government.—Held, that the defendant was not liable. Bocz v. Hugonnard, 4 Terr. L. R. 69.

Bounties on manufacture of " pig iron" and steel — Statutes — Interpreta-tion.]—It is a general practice in the art of manufacturing steel to use the iron produce of the blast furnaces while still in a liquid or molten form for the manufacture of steel, the hot metal being taken direct from the blast furnaces to the steel mill, Among iron-masters and those who are familiar with the art of manufacturing iron and steel the term "pig iron" has come to mean that substance or material in a liquid as well as in a solid form. A question having arisen as to whether the iron when so used in a liquid or molten form was "pig iron" within the meaning of the term as employed in 60 & 61 V. c. 6 and 62 & 63 V. c. 8 :- Held, that the term " pig iron" in the Act mentioned applied to the iron used in the manner described, and that a manufacturer of steel ingots therefrom was entitled to the bounty provided by the said Acts in respect of the manufacture of such iron, Dominion Iron and Steel Co. v. R., 23 C. L. T. 1, 8 Ex. C. R. 107.

Breach of trust - Purchase of debentures-Illegal purpose - Knowledge - Interest - Evasion of statute - Estoppel.] -In an action by the Crown to recover interest due upon debentures purchased by the Government of the late province of Canada, with trust moneys belonging to the common school fund (of which the Crown is trustee) from the Quebec North Shore Turnpike Road Trustees, the defendants pleaded that the Crown was estopped from recovery, inasmuch as, at the time of their purchase, the advisers of the Crown were aware that these debentures were being issued in breach of a trust, and with the intention of misapplying the proceeds towards payment of interest on other debentures due by them, in violation of a statutory prohibition :--Held, affirming the judgment in S Ex. C. R. 390, that, as there was statutory authority for the issue of the debentures in question, knowledge of any such breach of trust, or misapplication of moneys in respect thereto, by such advisers of the Crown, could not be set up by the defendants as a defence to the action. Quebec North Shore Turnpike Road Trustees v. R., 27 C. L. T. 156, 38 S. C. R. 62.

Canadian Pacific Railway Company -Construction of branch line - Subsidy-Agreement to pay-Ascertainment of amount "Costs" - "Equipment."] - By 3 Edw. VII. c. 57, s. 2, it was provided that the Governor in Council might grant the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, in aid of the construction of a certain branch line, a subsidy of $3,200 per mile, where the line did not cost more on the average than $15,000 per mile, and that where such cost was exceeded, a further subsidy might be given of 50 per cent, on so much of the average cost of the mileage subsidized as was in excess of $15,000 per mile, such subsidy not exceeding in the whole the sum of $6,400 per mile. By s. 1 of the Act the expression "cost" By 8. 1 of the Act the expression cost was defined to mean the "actual necessary and reasonable cost," to be determined by the Governor-General in Council, upon the recommendation of the Minister of Railways and Canals, and upon the report of the chief engineer of Government railways. The Minister of Railways and Canals, under authority of the Governor-General in Council, entered into a contract with the plaintiffs respecting the construction of the branch line and the subsidy therefor, by which it was agreed that the Crown would "in accordance with and subject to the provisions of ss. 1. 2, and 4 of the Subsidy Act, pay to the company so much of the subsidies or subsidy hereinbefore set forth or referred to, as the Governor-General in Council, having regard to the cost of the work performed, shall consider the company to be entitled to in pur-suance of the said Act:"-Held, that, inasmuch as the Act and the agreement made thereunder for the payment of subsidy left the amount thereof to be determined by the Governor-General in Council, the decision of the Governor-General in Council was not open to revision by the Court. Can. Pac. Rw. Co. v. R., 26 C. L. T. 778.

Cancellation of letters patent — Action by Attorney-General—Order in Council pendente lite—Injunction — Crown.]—The Court has no jurisdiction, at the suit of a subject, to restrain the Crown or its officers acting as its agents or servants or discharging discretionary functions committed to them by the Sovereign. Attorney-General for Ontario v. Toronto Junction Recreation Club, 24 C. L. T. 373, 8 O. L. R. 440, 3 O. W. R. 387, 4 O. W. R. 72.

Contract-Bailment-Hire of horses for Construction of public work—Loss of horses —Negligence—Liability — Petition of right —Demise of Crown.1 — 1. Where the suppliant's goods are in the possession of an officer or servant of the Crown under a con-tract of hiring made by him for the Crown. the obligation of the hirer in such a case is to take reasonable care of the goods according to the circumstances, and the hirer is liable for ordinary neglect. Where there is a breach of the hirer's obligation in such a case, the Crown is liable under the contract of its officer or servant .--- 2. Having regard to the circumstances in evidence, the hirer had acted imprudently in continuing the horses on the work after the grazing failed, and the Crown was liable therefor .--- 3. Wherever there is a breach of a contract binding on the Crown, a petition will lie for damages notwithstanding that the breach was occasioned by the wrongful acts of the Crown's officer or servant. Windsor v. An-napolis Rw. Co. v. The Queen, 11 App. Cas, 607, referred to.—4. The Crown is liable in respect of an obligation arising upon a contract implied by law. R. v. Henderson, 28 S. C. R. 425, referred to.-5. An action arising out of a contract for the hire of horses to be used in the construction of a public work of Canada lies against the executive authority of the Dominion, and is not affected or defeated by the demise of the Crown.—Semble, that the loss sustained by Crown, semice, that the loss sustained of the supplicat in this case was an "injury to property on a public work" within the meaning of clause C. of s. 16 of the Ex-chequer Court Act. Johnson v. R_{n} 24 C. L. T. 2, 8 Ex. C. R. 360.

Contract - Inland revenue stamps -Breach of contract—Acceptance by officer— Recovery of money paid—Deduction of cost of production—Set-off—Quantum meruit.]— Revenue stamps are not articles of merchandise, and have no commercial value .--- 2. The defendants contracted to print for the Crown certain Inland Revenue stamps from steel plates, but delivered, instead, stamps produced from steel transferred to stone, which were accepted, paid for, and used by an officer of the Crown under the belief that they were produced by the process specified in the contract, the Crown not being bound by the acts of the officer : - Held, that the Crown was entitled to recover back the money paid. -3. Semble, that the defendants could not recover from the Crown on a quantum merwit the fair value of the stamps produced from stone; their right to an allowance therefor would be a right of set-off, which does not exist against the Crown ; but the Crown having consented to allow the defendants the fair cost of production without profit, they must accept that or nothing: and the "fair cost of production" meant the fair cost to a competent person with the necessary capital, skill, means, and appliances for producing such stamps. Contract-Surety-Omissions of officers -Discharge.]-The defendants were sued as sureties for the performance of a contract to deliver hay to the N. W. M. Police. The defendants contended that they were relieved from liability because the police authorities failed to carry out their part of the contract in material particulars, viz., (1) by using a quantity of hay before it had been inspected by a board of officers, as provided by the contract; (2) by allowing a portion to be carried off by some of the constables, and another portion to be destroyed by cattle before the hay was weighed or measured, as provided by the contract: (3) by measuring instead of weighing the hay, as provided by the contract; the result by weighing being much in favour of the defendant's principal. -Held, that the third objection afforded a good defence.—Held, also, that the Crown was responsible for breaches of contract resulting from the acts or omissions of its ser-Satting from the acts of confessions of its set-vants, though not for their torts. Customs legislation-Conflict with Imperial enactment — Duty upon foreign-built ship—Construction of statutes—Crown—Interest-Tort-Servant of Crown.]-The Parliament of Canada has legislative authority to impose a stoms duty upon a foreign-built ship to be paid upon application by her in Canada for registration as a British ship. The provision in item 409 of the Customs Tariff Act of 1897, which purports to impose a duty upon a foreign-built ship upon application by her for a Canadian register, is not a clear and unambiguous imposition of the duty, such as would support the right of the Crown to enact the payment of such duty .--Interest can only be recovered against the Crown by contract or under statute .--- 4. In the absence of statutory provision, the Crown is not liable to answer for the wrongful act of its officer or servant, Algoma Central Ruc, Co. v. R., 22 C. L. T. 85, 7 Ex. C. R. 239, affirmed, 32 S. C. R. 277, [1903] A. C. 478.

Franchise before Confederation— Liability of province—Arbitration.—A tollbridge, with its necessary buildings and approaches, was built and maintained by Y. at Chambly in the province of Quebec, in 1845, under a franchise granted to him by an Act of the province of Canada, 8 V. c. 90, in 1845, on the condition therein expressed that on the expiration of the term of fifty years the works should vest in the Crown as a free bridge for public use, and that Y. or his representatives should then be compensated by the Crown, provision being therein also made for ascertaining the value of the works by arbitration and award .---they vested in the Crown, on the expiration of the fifty-" of franchise, was a liability on the late province of Canada coming within the operations, 111 of the British North America Act, 1867, and thereby imposed on the Dominion; that there was no lien or right of retention charged upon the property; and that the fact that the liability was not presently payable at the date of the passing of the British North America Act, 1867, was lumaterial. Aty-Gen. for Can. v, Atty-Gen. for Ont. [1807] A. C. 199, followed.— Held, also, filtrining the decision below, that the arbitration provided for by s. 3 of S V. c, 90, did not impose the necessity of obtaining an award as a condition precedent, but merely afforded a remedy for the recovery of the value of the works at a time when the parties interested could not have resorted to the present remedy by petition of right, and that the suppliants' claim for compensation under the provisions of 8 V. c. 90, was a proper subject of petition of right within the jurisdiction of the Exchequer Court of Can-Yule v. R., 19 C. L. T. 371, 30 S. C. R. 24.

Free grant lands — Indirect alienation —Restrict on—Mixtake of title—Statute.] —Section 10 of the Free Grant and Homesteads Act, R. S. Insolvent bank-Winding-up Act-Sale of unrealised assets - Sctoff - Funds in Monds of Receiver-General - Estoppel.] -Where funds belonging to the suppliants had gone to form part of a fund paid into the hands of the Minister of Finance and Receiver-General, as unadministered assets, in the case of the insolvency of a bank, in proceedings under the Winding-up Act, R. S. c. 129, and it was objected that the suppliants were not entitled to such moneys because of judicial decision to the contrary in other litigation in respect to the fund :---Held, that, if it was clear that the matter had been really determined, effect should be given to the estoppel, but that where to give effect to it would work injustice, the Court, before applying the rule, ought to be sure that an estoppel arises by reason of such decision. In this case there was no estoppel. A reference to the Registrar was directed to ascertain what proportion of the fund in the hands of the Minister properly belonged to the suppliants. The rule as to estoppel stated by King, J., in Farwell v. The Queen, 22 S. C. R. 558, referred to .- 2. One of the equities or conditions attaching to the sale to H. was that a debtor had a right to set off against his debt the amount which he had at his credit in the bank at the date of its insolvency. It appeared that at the time of the bank's insolvency certain of its debtors had at their credit in the bank's books sums which they would, on payment or settlement of their debts, have a right to apply in reduction thereof, and the suppliants claimed that they were entitled to be indemnified in respect of such reductions out of the fund in the hands of the Receiver-General :--Held, that the suppliants were not entitled to such indemnity. Liability as common carrier-Loss of acid in tank car during transportation - Contract-Negligence-Costs.] - The Crown is not, in regard to liability for loss of goods carried, in every respect in the position of an ordinary common carrier. The latter is in the position of an insurer of goods, and any special contract made is in general in mitigation of its common law obligation and liability. The Crown, on the other hand, is not liable at common law, and a petition will not lie against it for the loss of goods carried on its railway, except under a contract, or where the case falls within the statute under which it is in certain cases liable for the negligence of its servants (50 & 51 V. c. 16, s. 16). and in either case the burden is on the suppliant to make out his case .--- 2. By an arrangement between the consignee of the acid in question and the officers of the Intercolonial Railway, freight charges on goods carried by the latter were paid at stated times each month, and in case anything was found wrong a refund was made to the consignee. In the present case the consignee paid the freight on the acid, amounting to $135, no refund being made by the Crown. This amount was paid to the consignee by the suppliants, and they claimed recovery of the same from the Crown in their petition of right. The evidence shewed that by the arrangement above mentioned the freight was not payable on the transportation of the tank car, but on the acid contained in the car at the rate of 27 cents per 100 pounds of acid :--Held, that the Crown was only entitled to the freight on the number of pounds delivered to the consignee at Sydney ; and that the balance of the amount paid by the consignee should be repaid to the sup-pliant with interest.--3. That, as the suppliant, while succeeding as to part of the amount claimed, had failed on the main issue in controversy, each party should bear their own costs. Nicholls Chemical Co. v. R_{*} , 25 C, L. T. S2, 9 Ex. C. R. 272.

Officers-Appointment of pilots-Inquiry into-Quo warranto.]-The pilots for the district of Miramichi having resigned, the defendants were appointed pilots for the district by the Pilotage Commissioners. An injunction was sought to restrain the defendants from acting as pilots under licenses granted to them by the Commissioners, on the grounds (1) that the appointments were not made by by-law confirmed by the Governor-General in council and published in the Gazette, as required by the Pilotage Act, R. S. C. c. 80, s. 15; (2) that under that Act the Commissioners fixed by regulation a standard of qualification for a pilot, and that the defendants were not examined as to their competency; (3) that the defendants were not appointed at a regularly called meeting of the Commissioners, or by the Commissioners acting together as a body. pilot appointed under the Act is appointed during good behaviour for a term not less than two years :--Held, that the office of pilot being a public and substantive independent office, and its source being mediately if not immediately from the Crown, and as the objections related to the validity of the defendants' appointments, and as there was no pretence that the appointments were made colourably and not in good faith, the remedy, if any, was not by injunction, but ranto, Atty.-Gen. for N. B. v. Miller, 19 C. L. T. 409, 2 N. B. Eq. R. 28.

Opinion of Court on case stated by Government.] — The opinion given to the Government by the Court of Appeal upon a question referred to the Court under 61 V. c. 11, is an opinion only, and cannot make a point passed upon res judicata; and is not even a compromise, a transaction, nor an arbitration, inasmuch as the question referred to the Court of Appeal is not by the consent of the parties, put upon the sole initiative of the Government. *Galindez v. Payment for services as commissioner-Screaut-Public office.]-A person appointed under the provisions of R. S. C. c. 115, as a commissioner to investigate and report upon improper conduct in office of an officer or servant of the Crown, cannot recover against the Crown payment for his services as such commissioner, there being no provision for such payment in that enactment or elsewhere.—2. The service in such a case is not rendered in virtue of any contract, but merely by virtue of appointment under the statute.—3. The appointment parkakes more of the character of a public office, than of a mere employment to render a service under contract, express or implied. Tucker v. R., 22 C. L. T. 201, 7 Ex. C. R. 351, affirmed 32 S. C. R. 722.

at the port of St. John, N.B., the Dominion Government acquired a portion of the suppliant's land and a wharf; the latter being removed by the Crown in the course of carrying out such works. For the lands and wharf so taken by the Crown, the suppliant was paid a certain sum, and he released the Crown from all claims for damages arising from "the expropriation by Her Majesty of the lands and premises, or the construction and maintenance thereon of a railway or railway works of any nature." One of the effects of the removal of the wharf was to leave a wharf remaining on the suppliant's land more exposed than it formerly had been to the action of the waves and tides; but no sufficient measures were taken by the suppliant to protect his property or to keep it in a state of repair :--Held, that there was no obligation upon the Crown, under the circumstances, to construct works for the purpose of protecting the suppliant's property; and, as the injury complained of happened principally because the suppliant had failed to repair his wharf, the Crown was not liable therefor. Vroom v. R., 24 C. L. T. 2, 8 Ex. C. R. 373.

Petition of right — Suppliant-Locus standi.]—The suppliant applied to be allowed to purchase certain hands under s. 31 of the Land Act, tendering the proper amount therefor. The application was refused on the ground that the lands had been granted to a railway company. The suppliant alleged that such grant was illegally issued and void, and the Crown allowed a petition of right to be brought:—Held, that the suppliant had no locus standi to obtain any relief. Hall v. R., 7 B. C. R. 89, 480.

Postmaster's salary — Allowances—In-terest—Civil Service Act.] — By the Civil Service Act, R. S. C. c. 17, schd. B., a city postmaster's salary, where the postage col lections in his office amount to $20,000 and over, per annum, is fixed at a definite sum according to a scale therein provided, No. discretion is vested in the Governor in Council or in the Postmaster-General to make the salary more or less than the amount provided. Notwithstanding the statute, it was the practice of the Postmaster-General to take a vote of Parliament for the payment of the salaries of postmasters. For the years between 1892 and 1900, except one, the amount of the appropriation for the suppliant's salary was appropriation for the suppliant's salary was less than the amount he was entitled to un-der the statute:—Held, that he was en-titled to recover the difference.—2. That the provisions in s. 6 of the Civil Service Act to the effect that "the collective amount of the salaries of each department shall in no case exceed that provided for by the vote of Parliament for that purpose," was no bar to the suppliant's claim, even if it could be shewn that if in any year the full salary to which the suppliant was entitled had been paid, the total vote would have been ex-ceeded. Such provision is in the nature of a direction to the officers of the treasury who are intrusted with the safe keeping and payment of the public money, and not to the Courts at law. Collins v. United States, 15 Ct. of Clms. 35, referred to.—3. The suppliant was not entitled to interest on his claim.

--4. The provision in s, 12 of the Civil Service Amendment Act, 1885, to the effect that "no extra salary or additional remuneration of any kind whatsoever shall be paid to any deputy-head, officer, or employee in the civil service;" does not prevent Parliament at any time from voting any extra salary or remuneration, and where such an appropriation is made for such extra salary or remuneration, and where such an appropriation is made for such extra salary or remuneration, and the same is paid over to any officer, the Crown cannot recover it back. Hargrave v. R., 22 C. L. T. 427, 8 Ex. C. R. 62.

Prerogative — Attorney-General — Injunction to restrain action—Public harbour.] —It is a prerogative right of the Crown to stop a suit between subjects in the subjectmatter of which it is alleged that the Crown is or may be interested, and in respect of which suit has been brought in behalf of the Crown right alleged is a right in behalf of the province, then the Attorney-General for the province is the proper officer to exercise the prerogative.—Observations on the history of the Supreme Court of British Columbia. Public officer—Assignment of salary— Public policy.] — The provisions respecting the assignments of choses in action found in R. S. O. c. 51, s. 58 (5), (6), are not binding upon the Crown as represented by the Government of Canada.—2. On grounds of public policy the salary of a public officer is not assignable by him.—3. Neither the librarian of Parliament nor the Auditor-General of Canada has power to bind the Crown by acknowledging explicitly or implicitly an assignment of salary by an officer or clerk employed in the library of Parliament. Powecil v. R., 25 C. L. T. 140, 9 Ex. C. R. 364.

Public officer - Judge of Yukon Court -Living expenses - " Appointee of Dominion"-Recovery of money paid.]-The de-fendant was appointed a Judge of the Surendant was appointed a sudge of the su-preme Court of the Yukon Territory on the 12th September, 1898. By s. 5 of the Yu-kon Territorial Act, 1898 (61 V. c. 6), as such Jadge he became a member of the council constituted to aid the Commissioner in his administration of the Territory. An order in council was passed on the 7th October, 1898, appointing him " to aid the Commissioner in the administration of the Territory," and since that time up to the action brought he had continued to act as a member of the council. In addition to the salary paid to him as such Judge, certain provision for living expenses was made from time to time by Parliament in his behalf. By orders in council of the 7th July, 1898, and the 5th September, 1899, relating to officers for the administration of the Yukon District, it was provided that such officers were, in addition to their salaries, to be furnished with "quarters and such living allowance as may from time to time be fixed by the Minister of the Interior :" and it was further provided therein that the provision mentioned should apply to all "appointees of the Dominion" who had been or might be appointed to the staff for the administration of the Yukon Territory :—Held, that the defendant was an "appointee of the Dominion" on the staff for the administration of the Yukon Territory within the meaning of the order in council of the 5th September, 1890, and so entitled to the quarters and a "living allowance" provided thereunder.—2. That the circumstances disclosed approval and ratification by the Minister of he Interior and the Minister of Public Works of the action of the Commissioner in making the expenditures in question for the benefit of the defendant. R. v. Dugas, 26 C. L. T. 460, 10 Ex. C. R. 67.

Railway subsidies-Discretion of Governor in council-Construction of statute-Conditions of consent-Estimating cost of constructing line of railway-Rolling stock and equipment.]—The provisions of the Act 3 Edw. VII. c. 57, authorizing the granting of subsidies in aid of the construction of railways, are not mandatory, but discretionary, in so far as the grant of the subsidies by the Governor in Council is concerned .---On a proper construction of the Act it does not appear to have been the intention of Parliament that the cost of rolling stock and equipment should be included in the cost of the construction in estimating the amount of subsidy payable to the company in aid of the "Pheasant Hills Branch" of their railway under the provisions of that Act, notwithstanding that the Act did not specially exclude the consideration of the cost of equipment in the making of such estimate as had been done in former subsidy Acts with similar objects, and that the Governor in council imposed the duty of efficient maintenance and equipment of the branch as a condition of the grant of the subsidy. Judgment in 26 C. L. T. 778, 10 Ex. C. R. 325, affirmed. Can. Pac. Rw. Co. v. R. 38 S. C. R. 137.

Railway subsidies-Statute-Construction - Compromise - Part payment-Petition of right.]-The grant by a statute of a subsidy "to aid in completing and equipping a railway, throughout its whole length for the part not commenced and that not finished, about 80 miles going to or near Gaspé Basin," with a proviso that it shall be payable to a person or persons, etc., establishing that they are in a position to carry out the work, applies exclusively to the 80 miles of the road ending at or near Gaspé Basin .-A different construction of the statute by officers of the Crown, the effecting of a compromise in consequence, and even a part payment of the subsidy, afford no grounds to recover the balance from the Crown by petition of right. De Galindez v. R., 15 Que. K. B. 320.

Affirmed, 39 S. C. R. 682. See 26 Que. S. C. 17.

Return of moneys paid by mistake —Action for.]—The suppliant brought his petition of right to recover from the Crown the sum of $190, which he alleged he paid under mistake to the Crown in settlement of an information of intrusion in respect of certain lands occupied by him. He also claimed $500 for damages for the loss which he alleged resulted to him on the sale of the lands by reason of the proceedings taken against him by the Crown:—Held, that the suppliant's petition disclosed no right of action against the Crown, and that a demurrer should be allowed. Moore v. Vestry of Fulham, [1804] 1 Q. B. 390, followed. Paget v. R., 21 C. L. T. 280, 7 Ex. C. R. 50.

Right of Crown to choose form.]— It is a prerogative right of the Crown to bring a suit in a County Court, even though as between subject and subject such Court would not be open by reason of the defendant not residing or the cause of action not residing within the territory of such Court. Rev. v. Campbell, 8 B. C. R. 208., 38 C. L. J. 54.

Settlers' Rights Act, 1904—Costs — Indemnity — Vancouver Island, 1—In a statute declaring certain settlers entitled to mineral rights on their lands, there was a provision that any action attacking such rights should be defended by and at the expense of the Crown. On action taken by plaintiff company to test the statute, judgment was given in favour of defendant. Company's appeal was dismissed:—Held, as to costs, that defendant was not in a position to claim any costs against plaintiff company as his rights were being asserted by and defended at expense of the Crown. Esquimalt & Nanaimo Res. Co. y. Hoggan, 14 B. C. R. 40.

Appeal from conviction - Dismissal for want of jurisdiction—Action for costs of.]—The present defendant took an appeal, under the provisions of the Criminal Code, to the Court of Queen's Bench, Crown side, from a conviction by a district magistrate for failing to keep in repair a certain road. This appeal was quashed for want of jurisdiction. Costs were not granted. The present action was brought by the complainant in the previous proceeding, to recover by way of damages the expenses to which the plaintiff had been subjected by the appeal. The Court below awarded 50:-Held (modifying the judg-ment as to the amount of damages, and granting $200), that the defendants by bringing an appeal in a case in which the Court of Queen's Bench had no jurisdiction, became liable for all legitimate costs and expenses incurred by the present plaintiff in resisting the appeal, including fees of coun-sel, taxation of witnesses, service of subpœ-nas, and travelling expenses.—Quære, as to the power of the Court to grant costs where an appeal is quashed for want of jurisdiction. and the plaintiff's evidence it appeared that her real claim was for breach of a subsequent parol contract. Under an order of a local Judge service of the writ and statement of claim were effected by posting them on the 30th November, 1900, in an envelope ad-dressed to the defendant at a place in Ontario. On the 28th December, 1900, judgment was entered for the plaintiff for default of appearance to the writ, for damages to be assessed. No proceedings were taken upon the statement of claim either to enter judgment or a default note :--Held, that, according to the practice, no assessment could be made except upon the judgment for default of appearance, for nothing else was ripe for assessment; and the plaintiff could not have damages pursuant to the claim indorsed on the writ, because it appeared by the evidence that she had consented to the defendant conveying the land in breach of his covenant. The action was, therefore, dismissed, but without costs and without prejudice to a new action being brought upon the causes of action set forth in the statement of claim :---Semble, that the order for service by posting should not have been service by posting should not have been made, the material being quite insufficient, and there being no probability that the papers would reach him. Alexander v. Alexander, 21 C. L. T. 338, 1 O L. R. 639.

Assignment of claim for dam uses ex delteto-Chose in action, 1.—The plaintiff brought this action for damages for personal injuries sustained by his being run down by a carr of the defendants, and for the killing of his master's horse which he was riding at the time, and in respect to which he claimed under assignment from his master: -Held, that the action was properly dismissed as to the latter claim, upon the ground that it was not an assignable chose in action. McCormack v, Toronto Fvc, Co., S O, W, R.467, 9 O, W, R. 300, 13 O, L. R. 656.

Breach of charter party-Hire of ship for season-Failure of owners to fulfil contract-Measure of damages - Principle of assessment.]-A term of the charter party required defendants, the shipowners, to have the ship pass Canadian Government inspection, which it failed to do :--Held, that the damages should not be the difference between the plaintiff's operating expenses and receipts, but such sum as would put him in same position as he would have been in had he not been prevented from running the steamship for the whole term for which he had hired it, but had been able to run it during the whole of that term if he had been so minded. Breach of contract-Remoteness-Carriers-Loss of machinery-Profits.]-Damages for breach of contract must be direct, and none are recoverable that are indirect or remote. Hence, where a carrier for hire loses a piece of machinery, sent through him for repairs, the owner is not entitled to recover from him, as damages, the loss incurred through having been deprived of the use of it for a season. Thiauville v. Can, Ex. Co., 33 Que, S. C. 403, 4 E. L. R. 433.

Breach of promise of marriage — Proof of damages — Jury — Excessive damages—Reduction by Court.]—The Court will not allow the verdict of a jury awarding $3.250 damages to the plaintif for breach of promise of marriage to stand, where she has proved no special damage unless the annoyance which she has suffered by the marriage of the defendent to a rival whom she knew. A sum of $1,500 would be, in the circumstances, amply sufficient. Sims v. Bach, 10 Que. P. R. 178.

Contract—Breach—Assessment by Judge —Evidence—Guess — Appeal — Concurrent findings of Courts below.]—The evidence in an action for breach of contract being insufficient to enable the trial Judge to assess damages, he was obliged to guess, as he stated, and his guess was $5,000. This was affirmed by a provincial appellate tribunal. The Supreme Court of Canada allowed au appeal and dismissed the action, the majority holding that the result of the absence of evidence was that the damages could be no more than nominal. Armour, J., dissenting, was of opinion that there should be a new trial, Williams v, Stephenson, 33 S. C. R. 232.

Conversion of mining shares-Shares of no market value-Measure of damages-Estimate as if trial by jury.] - Defendant sold 20,000 shares of mining stock having no market value in breach of contract with plaintiff. Reference was had before Referee to assess damages to be awarded plaintiff for conversion of said shares. Referee fixed the amount at $8,000, or 40 cents per share. the highest price which had been obtained for such shares. He also found that de-fendant had paid plaintiff $5,100, which should be deducted from amount so assessed, and that the balance, $2,900, should bear interest at 5% from 17th March, 1909.--Meredith, C.J.C.P., held, that the above assessment was too high, and reduced the damages to 26 cents per share, the price obtained by defendant for such shares.—Divi-sional Court held (16 O. W. R. 820, 21 O. L. R. 614, 1 O. W. N. 1131), that the sale was exceptional, and that plaintiff was en-titled to damages, but the question should be dealt with as a jury probably would, tak-ing into consideration the fact of a sale at a higher price than that obtained by defendant, and a fair assessment of damages would be to increase the assessment appealed from by $1,500.-In re Bahia & San Francisco Rw. Distribution of-Tort causing death-Action by widow - Intervention of parent,] -Where the wife of a person who has died in consequence of a tort or quasi tort, has begun, by virtue of Art, 1056, C. C., an action for damages against the tort-feasors, the father or other relation of the deceased mentioned in such article, may intervene in the action to claim from the defendants damages for the loss which he suffers personally on account of such death, and may even, by such intervention, contest the right of the plaintiff to the damages which she claims, Morin v. Mills, 18 Que, S. C. 196, 3 Que, P. R. 138.

Ejection from church pew.]-A plaintiff in a suit to recover damages for personal injuries because of a special reason, in the present case, for having been forcibly ejected from his pew in church by the defendant during divine service, cannot allege that the defendant, for a long time past, has shewn his hatred of the plaintiff by writing libellous articles against him in the newspapers.

-Such a statement is foreign to the issues in the case, and will be dismissed on inscription in law. Lavallee v. Lafreniere, 11 Que. P. R. 73.

Excessive damages—Misdirection—Appeal to Supreme Court of Canada—Reduction —Consent—New trial.]—Where there was misdirection as to the assessment of damages merely, and it appeared that the damages assessed by the jury were grossly excessive, the Supreme Court of Canada made a special order, applying the principle of Art. 503, C. C. P., directing that the appeal should be allowed and a new trial had to assess damages, unless the plaintiff consented to the damages being reduced to a stated sum. Central Vermont Rw. Co. v. Franchère, 35 S. C. R. 68.

Excessive damages-Misdirection-New trial.] - If, in charging a jury, the Judge makes a statement calculated unnecessarily to magnify the importance of the matter in dispute, and suggests excessive damages, a new trial will not be granted, even though the Judge was in error in making the statement, if it appears from the verdict found that the jury, in assessing the damages, were not influenced by the charge. Cormier v. Boudreau, 35 N. B. R. 645.

Excessive damages-Trespass - Evidence-Findings of jury-Equal division of Court-Costs.]-An action to recover damages for a wrongful and violent entry by the defendants' servants upon the plaintiff's property and the wrongful seizure and appropriation of the plaintiff's chattels. The jury found that the defendants, by their servants, took possession of the property illegally and in violation of their agreement, and that the plaintiff was entitled to the value of the property taken, and they assessed the damages at $730, for which judgment was given by the trial Judge with costs. The evidence as reported did not disclose proof of the value of several of the chattels for the taking of which damages were claimed, and it did not appear anywhere how the $730 was made up. Upon a motion by the de-fendants to set aside the judgment and for a new trial :---Held, per Meagher and Ritchie, JJ., that the evidence of damage which was before the jury not having been reported to the Court, and in view of the violent and illegal manner of entry upon the premises, the Court was not in a position to decide that the damages were excessive. Per Townshend and Graham, JJ., that the damages should be reduced to conform with the proof of loss suffered disclosed in the evidence before the Court. Owing to the equal division of opin-ion, the motion was dismissed, but without costs, Johnston v. Dom. Steel & Iron Co., 21 C. L. T. 311.

Expropriation of land-Assessment -Reservation of recourse for future damages — Res judicata — Right of action.] — A lessee of premises used as an ice house recovered damages from a city corporation for injuries by the expropriation of part of the premises. In his statement of claim he had expressly reserved the right of further recourse for damages. In an action brought after his death by his universal legatee to recover damages for loss of the use of the ice house during the unexpired term:—Held, that the reservation did not preserve any further right of action in respect of the exproperiation, and the plaintiff's action was properly dismissed, as, in such cases, all damages capable of being foreseen must be assessed once for all, and a defendant cannot be twice sued for the same cause. City of Montreal v, McGiee, 30 S. C. R. 582, and Chaudier Machine & Foundry Co. V. Canada Atlantic Rv., Co., 33 S. C. R. 31, followed. Anetil V, Quebez, 33 S. C. R. 347.

Faits et articles—Default of defendant to repiy—Evidence—Effect an assessment of damages.]—In an action for damages the proof arising from the default of the defendant to answer faits et articles does not bind the Court by which the damages are assessed. Fatal Accidents Act-Death of child -Expectation of pecuniary benefit—Pleading.]—In an action for damages brought by a father for the death of his child, it is not irrelevant to allege that he and his wife have suffered loss and damage by the death of their child, through loss of maintenance which they were entitled to expect from him. Anderson v. Protestant Board of School Commissioners, 8 Que, P. R. 341.

Fatal Accidents Act—Death of child —Expenses of education and maintenance.] —The maintenance and education of a minor son being obligations imposed by law upon the father, he cannot, in an action in damages for the death of his son, recover the amounts so disbursed in connection therewith. Clough v. Fabre, 9 Que. P. R. 18.

Fatal Accidents Act—Death of infant —Negligence of tramway company—Measure of damages of father.]—The father of an infant killed in a tramway accident can recover from the tramway company responsible for the accident only actual damages established by evidence. He has no right to damages for moral prejudice nor in solatium doloris. Quebec Rw., Light & Power Co. v. Poitras, 14 Que. K. B. 429.

Fatal Accidents Act—Loss of child— Right of mother while (ather livin—Essecasive damages—Reasonable expectation of pecuniary benefit—New trial.)—The mother of the decensed is a person for whose benefit an action can be brought under the Fatal Accidents Act, although the father is living. —Damages assessed by a jury at $3,000 for the loss of a daughter seventeen years old by reason of the negligence of the defendants, were held to be excessive, and a new trial was directed unless both parties would agree to have the damages lixed at $1,500. Order of a Divisional Court, 11 O. L. R. 158, 6 O. W. R. 413, reversed. Remeick v. Galt, Proston & Hespeler St, Rue, Co., 12 O. L. R. 35, 7 O. W. R. 673.

Fatal Accidents Act — Negligence — Quantum — Death of person, — Insurance moneys — Deduction.] — Defendants responsible for an accident causing loss of life, not contesting a claim for damages for such loss except as to the amount of damages recoverable, are not in a position to invoke in mitigation of damages the payment to the plaintiff of the amount of an insurance upon the life of the deceased, the existence of which was brought out in the course of the trial only, without having been alleged in the defence. Quebec Central Rw. Co. v. Gillanders, 15 Que, K. B. 414.

Fatal Accidents Act-Parent and child -Excessive amount-Suggested reduction-New trial — Evidence — Admissibility — Intention of deceased. 1 — Damages to the amount of $2,100 were recovered by the plaintiff suing as the father and administrator of his deceased son, 22 years of age, who was killed through defendants' negligence. The son's occupation was principally that of a labourer, the highest rate of wages received by him being for a few days at the rate of $35 a month. His mother was dead and his father had married again. He lived with a widowed sister, but was on good terms with his father and step-mother, whom he visited once or twice a month, on such occasions giving his father from $2 to $4, and once_$5. His habits were good and he was of a generous disposition. Evidence was received of his intention of helping his father to build a house, of assisting him in paying off a mortgage of $650 on his property, as well as a debt of $400, which he erty, as wen as a deet of $400, which he owed another son, and for which the father had given his promissory notes:—Held, that the evidence of such expressed intention was properly admitted, not necessarily as shewing a promise to make the payments, but of his being well disposed to his father; the amount awarded the plaintiff for damages however was clearly excessive, and a new trial was ordered unless the parties agreed to a reduc-tion of the damages to $500. Stephens v. Toronto Rw. Co., 11 O. L. R. 19, 6 O. W. R. 657.

Flooding land-Measure of damages -Duty of claimant to diminish.] - Where there is, in the power of the person complaining, an obvious and inexpensive method or reducing, diminishing, or wholly doing away with the damages complained of, e.g., by a short transverse drain to prevent flooding of land, it is his duty to adopt it, and, in default of his doing so, he is only entitled to recover such loss as he would have suffered if he had taken proper measures to pre-vent or diminish the damages. Fraud and misrepresentation - Sale of two creameries — Representations as to amount of output, expenses and profit-Measure of damages-Reference to ascertain damages—Appeal from report — Costs.]—Mere-dith, C.J.C.P., held (14 O. W. R. 984, 1 O. W. N. 177), that the measure of damages, in an action for misrepresentation in the sale of two creameries to plaintiff, was the difference between the purchase price and their actual value at the time of purchase, and that the Master erred in allowing damages for loss sustained by plaintiffs in the Local Master found that the creameries had no value as creameries when sold to plaintiffs; that defendants should be allowed only for the value of the land, buildings, etc. Master allowed plaintiffs $3,930 damages with interest at 5%, amounting to 715.65, and also allowed plaintiffs 33.440.14 as damages sustained by plaintiffs in operating the creameries after the purchase. This latter item was disallowed in above judgment. Defendant appealed as to the other items. Meredith. C.J.C.P., dismissed defendant's appeal, but held, that as he had succeeded as to the item for damages for loss in operation of the creameries, the plaintiffs should be allowed only three-fourths of their costs of the appeal and should pay one-fourth of defendant's costs. Lamont v. Wenger (1911), 18 O. W. R. 170, 2 O. W. N. 519, O. L. R.

Future damages.] - In an action for damages resulting from injuries to the pro-perty of another, future damages cannot be claimed, seeing that they are not permanent (at least in the case at bar), and that they are in consequence inappreciable both as to their duration and nature. Duggan v. Stadacona Water Co., 2 Que. P. R. 385.

Inadequacy-New trial - Compromise perdict.] — A new trial on the ground of the insufficiency of the damages will not be granted unless it appears clearly to the Court that the smallness of the damages has arisen from mistake upon the part of either the Judge or jury, or from some unfair prac-tice on the part of the defendant.--A verdict will not be set aside on the ground that it is a compromise verdict if it can be justified upon any hypothesis presented by the evi-dence. Currie v. St. John Rw. Co., 36 N. B. R. 194.

Inciting or procuring breach of contract-Actionable wrong - Sale of goods subject to restriction. 1-Plaintiffs were manufacturers of loose leaf system. Defendant company was formed of four employees of plaintiffs to compete with plaintiffs. When plaintiffs sold binders they had purchasers sign contracts to purchase loose leaves from them. Defendants' agents induced different purchasers to buy loose leaves from defendants :--Held, that plaintiffs were entitled to damages for defendants' interference with the contractual rights between plaintiffs and their customers. Copeland-Chatterson v. Business Systems, 13 O. W. R. 259.

On appeal above judgment varied by narrowing injunction so as to restrain defendants from making contracts with persons whom they know to have made contracts with plaintiffs. Copeland-Chatter, Systems, 13 O. W. R. 1211. Copeland-Chatterson v. Business Injury to land—Future damages—In-minity—Warranty.]—A plaintiff who sues demnityhis neighbour for damages in respect of injury to his property by the construction of a new house, cannot require the defendant to sign a promise of indemnity against future damages, and give him security therefor by a hypothec, unless he alleges and proves that he is entitled to such a warranty by law or by a special agreement. Onofrio v. La Patrie Pub. Co., 8 Que. P. R. 365.

Injury to property-Elements of damages-Fees of expert witnesses - Notarial protests.] - The fees of expert witnesses employed to make examinations of property, plans, etc., necessary for the proof of the plaintiff's allegations of damage to property caused by the defendants' illegal acts, and also the costs of notarial protests, form part of the damages which the plaintiff is entitled to recover from the adverse party. Décarie v. Montreal West, 26 Que. S. C. 16.

Injury to servant through negli-ing power-Incurable disease-New trial for assessment of damages for permanent in-juries—Amount claimed by plaintiff—Stat-ing to jury—Rule of practice—Direction of trial Judge, Tinsley v. Canada West Coal Co. (Alta.), 9 W. L. R. 706.

Jury-Increase on second trial-Excess --Perverse verdict.]-The increase of dam-ages on the second trial of an action for the loss of a foot from $3,500 to $6,500 :--Held, not perverse or wrong, and that the latter amount was not, in the circumstances, excessive. Hansen v. Can. Pac. Rw. Co., 6 Terr. L. R. 420.

Landlord and tenant-House infested with vermin. Middleton v. Allard, Allard v. Middleton, 3 E. L. R. 144.

Lord Campbell's Act-Action - Bar-Life insurance.]-The fact that a widow has, upon the death of her husband, obtained the proceeds of a policy of insurance upon his life, is not a bar to her recovering damages from the person responsible for the accident which caused his death. Konveaketasion v. Dom. Bridge Co., 5 Que, P. R. 320. See 7 Que, P. R. 232.

Lord Campbell's Act-Apportionment between widow and children - Other provision for widow.] - An action brought against a railway company by a widow on behalf of herself and four infant children, aged respectively seven, five, three, and one year, to recover damages for the death of her husband through the company's alleged negligence, was settled by the company paying $4,800. On application to a Judge, the amount was apportioned by giving the widow $1,200, and each of the children $900, the widow also to be paid for the children's maintenance $200 a year half-yearly for three years, the fact of the widow having already received $1,000 for insurance on the husband's life being taken into consideration. Burkholder v. Grand Trunk Rw. Co., 23 C. L. T. 155, 5 O. L. R. 428, 2 O. W. R. 267.

Lord Campbell's Act-Death of relative - Reasonable expectation of pecuniary benefit.]-The parents and sisters of a man who was killed by an electric shock whilst working in the defendants' works, and in consequence, as it was alleged, of defects in the appliances supplied by the defendants at the works, sued for damages for his death. The deceased, who was the only son of the rector of a small parish near Montreal, with an income of about $600 a year, had been given a college education and had returned home when about 21 years old. For a time he remained at home, earning nothing. Then he spent some time in the insurance business in Vermont. Then, on account of his father's illness, he went home, but soon left for Manitoba in search of occupation. There, after working at several things for about three years, he was employed by the defendants to manage their electric works at a salary of $115 a month, out of which he had to pay $45 a month to an engineer and sometimes to hire other assistance. He had been thus employed about three months when he met his death. The parents were getting old and were in failing health and it was not shewn whether they had or had not any means beyond the income of $600 a year. The deceased contributed nothing to the support of the family during all the time he was in Manitoba; but, according to the father's evidence, he had been a great help to him when at home, and had assisted him in many ways in his parish work and in matters of business, and was "a noble, faithful son," efficient in every way, steady and industrious, "an affectionate son and brother: Held, that there was nothing in all this to warrant the inference of a reasonable expectation of any pecuniary benefit to the plaintiffs from a continuance of the life of the deceased, and that the verdict of the jury, in favour of the plaintiffs should be set aside. Sykes v. North Ecstern Rw. Co., 44 L. J. C. P. 191, and Mason v. Bertram, 18 O. R. followed. Davidson v. Stuart, 22 C. L. T. 266, 14 Man. L. R. 74.

Lord Campbell's Act-Pecuniary loss from death of son - Negligence-Evidence -Judge's charge-Excessive damages-New trial.)-In an action under Lord Campbell's Act for the benefit of the father of a man who lost his life as alleged by the negligence of the defendants, evidence was given to shew that the father, who was about 70 years old. was unable to earn his own living ; that the son, who was 26, had always lived with his father, and for many years had paid for his board and lodging; that for the 15 months previous to his death, he had paid nothing. because, having gone into business for himself, his father wished him to keep the money to put into the business; that when the son went into business, the father advanced him $700; that the sale of the son's business realised $1,100, of which the father got $400 on account of his advance. The trial Judge left it to the jury in general terms to estimate what, if any, pecuniary damage the father had sustained by the death of his son; and the jury found a verdict for $3,500 :- Held, that the amount of the verdict shewed either that the charge was too general in its terms, or the jury misunderstood the principles upon which damages should be assessed in cases such as this, and, therefore, that there must be a new trial on the question of damages, and, as the evidence of negligence on the part of the defendants was not altogether satisfactory, and the finding of the jury on the question of the damages did not entitle their opinion on the question of negligence to much weight, there must be a new trial on this point as well.-2. That, as a claim for $300, the balance due the father upon his advance, had not been mentioned in the particulars de livered under the Act, and was not referred to either in the plaintiff's opening, the Judge's charge, or in any other part of the case, it was impossible to say that the jury in assessing the damages had included this item; therefore, even admitting this claim to be a proper element of damage in cases under the Act, it must be submitted to the consideration of another jury .-- 3. That, outside of the debt, there was sufficient evidence to go to the jury of a pecuniary loss to the father by the son's death, Runciman v. Star Line S.S. Co., 35 N. B. R. 123.

NogHgence-Injury — Impairment of prospects of marriage-Remoteness-Excessive damages.]-In an action for neelligence, impairment of the prospects of matrimony, in the case of a young woman, by reason of physical injuries, may be taken into consideration by the jury in estimating the dama ages.-Ih such a case of accident to a young woman of about 21 years of age, living with her father, but earning &6 a week as a stenographer, which accident resulted in the amputation of her left leg at the knee, paresis in a hand and arm, of which there might never be complete recovery, injury to her back, and a very serious shock to her nervous system:--Held, that a verdict of $5,500 dnanges was not so excessive as to necessitate a new trial. Nervous shock - Impact without outward injury-Railway-Findings of jury.1 -Action for damages for negligence. Plaintiffs (husband and wife) were being driven in an enclosed omnibus when crossing the tracks of the defendants; the omnibus was caught between the two parts of a freight train which was about to be coupled, when the driver of the omnibus was caught between the two sections of the train, and while con-siderable damage was done to the omnibus, neither of the plaintiffs suffered visible bodily injury, beyond a few slight bruises, but both complained of serious injury to their nervous systems as a result of fright :--Held, action should be dismissed as damages were result of mental shock only. Henderson V. Canada Atlantic Rw. Co., 25 A. R. 437, and Victorian Rw. Commissioners v. Coultas, 13 App. Cas. 222, followed, but, in view of the unsatisfactory state of the law and the conflict in the decisions, no costs were allowed. Geiger v. Grand Trunk Rw. Co., 5 O. W. R. 434, 6 O. W. R. 482, 10 O. L. R. 511.

Nervous shoek — Personal injuries — Damages not severable — Judgment—Appeal — Waiver.]—The movable portion of a fence c.c.1.—45 erected by the defendant fell upon the plaintiff while passing along the street, and caused injuries for which damages were claimed. The trial Judge assessed the damages at $25. and ordered judgment in favour of the plaintiff for that amount. The plaintiff's solicitor took an order for judgment for the amount awarded, taxed his costs, and immediately de-manded payment from the defendant under threat that, if not paid, judgment would be entered, and execution issued. Subsequently the plaintiff appealed from the judgment, in so far as it restricted the damages awarded to external injuries suffered by the plaintiff, and refused to allow damages for shock consequent upon such external injuries :--Held, dismissing the appeal, that, in order to succeed, the plaintiff must have the whole judgment set aside, for errors alleged in the assessment of damages; that the case was not and that, if the trial Judge erred in not awarding greater damages, the only course open to the plaintiff was to appeal. Flinn v. Keefe, 37 N. S. R. 67.

Nervons shock—Physical injury — Liability jor. —Fear or nervous shock resulting in physical injury may render him who occasions it liable in an action for damages. Fear is not of itself a basis of an action for damages, because ordinarily it does not produce any physical injury, but if such injury results there is liability. Victorian Raileay Commissioners v. Coultas, 13 App. Cas. 222, discussed. Montreal St. Rue, Co. v. Walker, 13 Que K. B. 324.

Nuisance-Exemplary damages - Evidence-Appeal.] - Where there has been a manifest disturbance of enjoyment and violation of rights of ownership, e.g., by the smoke, noise, and vioration caused by the operation of machinery on an adjoining property, the person so disturbed in his enjoyment is, even without proof of any precise amount of damages suffered, entitled to nominal or exemplary damages. - 2. Moreover, on a question of the application of damages, the Court of Appenl will not disturb the award of the Court below, in the absence of any special ground for doing so. Montreal St, Rue. Co. V. Gareau, 13 Que, K. B. 12.

Nuisance—Injury to orchard by smoke —Value of fruit—Assessment of damages by trial Judge—Appeal—Principle of computation or allowance.]—Action for damages for injury to plaintiff's orchard and land owing to noxious fumes and smoke emitted from defendant's smelter. The trial Judge gave judgment for plaintiff's. An appent was dismissed, Smith V. Consolidated, 11 W. L. R. 488.

Personal injuries—Pecuniary loss — Earning power of plaintiff—Penia and suffering.]—In an action for damages for personal injuries sustained by plaintiff owing to alleged negligence, the jury awarded $30,000. Plaintiff was 37, strong, healthy, a mining expert earning $6,000 a year with a 5 years' engagement. The fact that the trial Judge, in his charge, spoke of $25,000 by way of illustration, and that he and plaintiff's counsel mentioned the amount claimed in the statement of claim, namely, $50,000, does not affect the result. Appeal dismissed. Bradenburg v. Ottawa (1909), 14 O. W. R. 318, 19 O. L. R. 34.

Petition of right - Provincial secretary refused to present petition to Lieuten-ant-Governor-Presentation of petition after issue of writ-Damages for breach of Crown Procedure Act, R. S. B. C., 1897, c. 57, s. 4, to be assessed by jury.]--Plaintiff being refused a renewal of a license to cut and carry away timber from a tract of land by the Chief Commissioner of Lands and Works, prepared a petition of right setting forth the application and refusal and left it with the defendant Provincial Secretary for submission to the Lieutenant-Governor for his flat, in accordance with s. 4 of the Crown Proce-dure Act of B. C. The defendant Provincial Secretary refused to submit the petition to the Lieutenant-Governor, and the plaintiff be increasing the provided of the provided of the re-fusal to submit plaintiff's petition in accord-ance with said Act. Defendant before de-livering his defence submitted the petition to the Lieutenant-Governor who refused his fiat. The trial Judge withdrew the case from the jury on the ground that there was no evidence to go to the jury :--Held, that the Crown Procedure Act, R. S. B. C., 1897, c. 57, s. 4, imposes an imperative duty upon the Provincial Secretary, to submit to the Lieutenant-Governor a petition left with him. The failure to do so within a reasonable time after presentation gives a right of action to recover damages not necessarily nominal and it is for the jury to say what damages, if any, followed therefrom. The Supreme Court of Canada ordered a new trial. Judgment of the Supreme Court of Canada, 39 S. C. 6 and Subrade Court of Catalana, 55 S. C. R. 202, affirmed, judgments of the Supreme Court of B. C., 12 B. C. R. 476, 5 W. L. R. 203, and Morrison, J., at trial, discharged, Norton v. Fulton, C. R., [1908] A. C. 416.

Powers of Civil Courts-Liability for diamages - Assessment of as indemnity-Repressive or correctional power-Penalties or punishments-Appeal as to damages-Jury-Grounds of appeal, --Civil Courts, in adjudicating upon claims involving liability for damages, have no other power than to fix the sum which represents the injury suffered and to order the party liable to pay it to the party injured. They are not called upon in any way to exercise a repressive or correctional power by the infliction of penalties or punishments, which are of the competence of Criminal Courts-2. Court of Review or of Appeal cannot modify the judgment of the Court of first instance as to the amount of damages in such actions except upon grounds mentioned in the Code of Procedure as grounds for the setting aside of the verdict of a jury. French v. Hétu, 17 Que. K. B. 429.

Public officer — Notice before taking suit—Bad faith=C, C, P, 88.1—No public officer can be sued for damages alleged to have been caused by him while acting in his official capacity, even if done in bad faith, unless a notice of suit one month before the writ was issued is given him. Deschenes v. Julien, 11 Que, P. R. 35.

Public work—Injury to the person — Negligence—Aggravation of injury by unskilful treatment—Crown.] — Where a person who is injured through the negligence of a servant of the Crown on a public work, voluntarily submits himself to unprofessional medical treatment, proper skilled treatment being available, and the natural results of the injury are aggravated by such unskilled or improper treatment, he is entitled to such damages as would, with proper treatment, have resulted from the injury, but not to damages resulting from the improper treatment he subjected himself to. Vinet y. R., 25 C. L. T. 139. 9 EX. C. R. 352.

Quasi delict—Act resulting from error, but without malice—Purely moral prejudice.] —An action in damages will be against a person who, through error and without malice, does an act which causes a prejudice to the injured party. Lavallé v. Lefrevieré, 16 R. de J. 30.

Railway accident—Nervous shock.]—A railway company is liable, in an action by one injured in an accident while a passenger in the company's train, for damages and pecuniary loss consequent upon a fright resulting in a shock to the nervous system causing physical injury, if the fright was the result of the accident, and was reasonable and natural. Kirkpatrick v. Can. Pac. Rev. Co., 35 N. B. R. 598.

Reduction-Consent-Costs.] - The defendant company, instead of paying to the plaintiff the amount of damages sustained by a fire in her bakery, undertook to repair the damage, and on account of the faulty manner in which the work was carried out the plaintiff sued for the amount of the damages caused by the fire, and also for damages in respect of loss occasioned by reason of being unable to carry on the business. The plaintiff's chief witness stated that the injury to the business was $3,000, and the jury returned a verdict for her for that amount. On appeal the full Court, being of opinion that the amount of the damages was excessive, with the plaintiff's consent, reduced it to $1,000. Precise directions should have been given to the jury as to what they should have taken into account in estimating the damages, and, as the case had been allowed to go to the jury without such directions, without objection by the defendants' counsel and without contradiction of the statement as to the damage being $3,000, no costs of the appeal were allowed. Murray v. Royal Ins. Co., 11 B. C. R. 212.

Reduction-Consent-New Trial as to quantum of damages only. |--Court of Appeal pronounced judgment (5 O. W. R. 572), directing a new trial unless plaintiff consented to reduce the amount of the judgment recovered by plaintiff at the trial to $4,000, holding the amount of damages excessive. The certificate of this judgment not having issued, the Court reviewed the case and having regard to Con. Rule 786 ordered a new trial confined to the question of quantum of damages only. Watt v. Watt, [1905] A. C. 115, followed, which held the Court had no jurisdiction to order new trial (without defendant's consent), depending upon the plaintiff reducing the damages recovered. Hockley v. (16 O. W. R. 639, 1 O. W. N. 1052), con-firmed above report, as Official Referee's findings were on questions of fact, and it had not been shewn that he had gone wrong in law. -Divisional Court allowed the appeal in part and varied the report of the Official Referee by deducting from the amount of damages allowed for the Glasgow shipment of 4.029 lowed for the values of the probability of the theorem (3,2,2) of the probability of (3,2,3) and by reducing the damages allowed for the New York shipment to $$^2_{-0}$. 025.50. In other respects appeal dismissed No costs of appeal. By consent of counsel, judgment on further directions for the plain-tiff for $2,607 and for the defendants for the for $2,007 and for the defendants for counterclaim for $11,403.35. No costs of action or counterclaim. Lang v. Williams (1910), 17 O. W. R. 316, 2 O. W. N. 185.

Remoteness—False representation—Costs of action brought on faith of.]-The plaintiff, on the representation of the defendant, then president of the Accident and Guarantee Co. of Canada, that he was appointed manager of the company, resigned his position at the Canada Life Assurance Co. Later on, however, the accident company declined to ratify the contract made by their president. An action for salary brought by the plaintiff against the company was dismissed. Now the plaintiff sought to recover from the de fendant, among other amounts, the sum of $225, costs of that action. The defendant pleaded by inscription in law that there was no lien de droit between him and the plaintiff. these damages being indirect and too remote : -Held, that the claim of the plaintiff for recoupment of the costs of the proceedings was legally impossible of assertion as resulting from the alleged united false representations of the defendant and his co-directors. Stewart v. Nelson, 7 Que. P. R. 472.

Sale of goods-Breach of warranty-Loss of profits. Thompson v. Corbin, 3 E. L. R. 111.

Sale of goods -- Non-delivery -- Measure of damages.] -- The measure of damages for non-delivery of goods sold is ascertained by the difference between the contract price and the market or current price thereof at the time the breach of contract takes place. In a case of a sale of hay to be delivered between December and May following, the seller hav-ing given notice in February that he would make no further delivery, and the buyer having written in answer that he would make up his claim and send it in the near future, the date of the breach is in February, and the damages, if any, are to be determined by the price current of hay in that month at the place of delivery. McGillis v. Huot, 29 Que. S. C. 350.

Sale of horse - Breach of warranty -Misrepresentation-Costs of uselessly defending suit.]-The plaintiffs, according to the findings of fact, had been induced by the misrepresentations and fraud of the defendants to purchase a horse for $1,200 and to give the defendants their promissory notes therefor, but such notes had been indorsed for value to the Bank of Hamilton before maturity, so that the plaintiffs had no defence to the bank's claim on the notes, and they had ample means of informing themselves on that point. They, however, defended the bank's suit, but never, never, detended the bank his action, unsuccessfully:-Held, that in this action, which was brought to recover damages for the defendants' misrepresentations, the plaintiffs could not add their costs of needessly defending the bank's suit to their other damages, but must be limited to the amount due on the promissory notes, together with the costs of the present action only. Severance and distribution - Joint Severance and distribution — Joint and several trespasses — Several defendants guilty of different acts — Apportionment of damages—Rules 219, 220, 257—Costs.]—In an action for damages for trespassing upon the plaintiff's lands and cutting and remov-ing implay therefore there over a defend the plainting hands and cutting and remov-ing timber therefrom, there were 4 defend-ants; W. T. was the principal, and the other 3 were workmen under him. In addition, there were 6 other workmen engaged in cutting and removing the timber, making 10 persons in all. The trial Judge assessed the plaintiff's damages at $1,000, and gave judgment for that sum against all the defendants. Upon appeal by the defendants, it was con-tended that the damages against the defend-ants other than W. T. should be restricted to such as were actually occasioned by them, that is to say, to the value of the trees cut by them. The commission of the wrong extended over a period of 8 days; two of the defendants other than W. T. worked for the whole 8 days, but the third, K., worked for 2 days only :- Held, that to entitle the plaintiffs to recover judgment against K. and the other defendants for joint trespasses, the plaintiffs must prove that all took part in them as wrong-doers, and the liability of K. must be limited to those acts in the com-mission of which he joined. The damages against all for a joint trespass would, therefore, be limited to those for which all were jointly liable, namely, the 2 days in which K., together with the other defendants, jointly committed acts of trespass. And the plaintiffs were entitled to a separate judgment against the defendants other than K, for the damages caused during the time in which they were wrongfully cutting the plaintiffs There was no evidence upon which the Court could arrive at the amount of the damages for which K, was liable with the others; but K, had, by paying into Court along with the others the sum of $91 to answer the plaintiffs' damages, admitted a liability to that amount. There should, therefore, be judgment against K, for the amount paid into Court; and judgment against the other defendants for $909, being the balance of the verdict, and costs of suit; the defendant K. to have his costs in the Court below subsequent to the payment into Court; no costs of appeal.-O'Keefe v. Special machine manufactured by defendants for plaintiffs — Controt — Warranty—Breack.] — Action for damages for breach of warranty given by defendants with a special hammer manufactured for plaintiffs. The trial Judge gave $400 damages. The Court of Appen held it to be a pure question of fact, and as there was ample evidence to sustain the findings of trial Judge, an append was dismissed. Can. Fairbanks Co. v. London Machine Tool Co., 13 O. W. R. 133.

Street railway-Negligence - Married woman-Personal injury-Damages awarded husband-Excessive amount-New trial.] -The female plaintiff, 62 years of age, wife of the male plaintiff, who was 70 years of age, in attempting to alight from one of the defendants' cars, was through the defendants' negligence thrown to the ground and seriously injured. She was in the doctor's hands for several months, and her arm and hand which were injured were not likely to be as useful to her as before the accident, The jury awarded the wife $1,000 and the husband $1,200 :--Held, that the amount awarded the wife could not be deemed to be unreasonable; but, as regarded the husband, after due allowance for the medical expenses and for nursing and attendance, and considering the age of the parties, the amount awarded him was excessive, and a new assessment was ordered, unless an agreement was come to between the parties, that the damages should e reduced to $400. Tort — Jury — Middirection.]—In an action for damages for tort tried before a jury, the verdict will not be set aside on the ground of misdirection by the Judge, because he told them they might if they chose allow the full amount of the loss which the plaintif contended he had sustained, or the amount which, from actuarial tables, would be required to yield an annuity equivalent to and representing the full Joss. Trespass-Wilful acts-Measure of damages.]-The defendant company entered upon land and cut down trees and removed gravel therefrom, without giving the notice required by statute of their intention to take the property. The plaintiffs, the owners, claimed in this action the amount of an award made by arbitrators, or, in the alternative, dam-ages for trespass. The claim on the award having been dismissed, on the ground that the award was void for want of a proper submission, a new trial was ordered as to the amount of damages for the trespass. See 38 N. S. R. 80 and 37 N. S. R. 134: -Held, as the trespasses were committed in wilful disregard of the plaintiffs' right, and were continued in defiance of repeated protests of the plaintiffs, for the pecuniary benefit of the defendants, that the measure of damages, as to part of the land excavated. was its value for the purposes for which it was used by the wrongdoers, and as to the remaining land the measure of damages was the diminution in value to the plaintiffs by reason of the wrongful acts of the defendants. McIsaac v. Inverness Rw., etc., Co., 40 N. S. R. 579.

Trespass - "Wilful" acts-Measure of damages-Judgment.]-Ip an action of trespass for taking coal from a mine the judgment declared that the plaintiffs were entitled to recover damages from the defendants for and in respect of the wrongful and wilful trespass and conversion complained of in the plaintiffs' statement of claim :--Held, that "wilful" was not intended as an adjudication that the trespasses were wilful in the sense that would render the defendants liable to have damages assessed against them on the sterner rule; and, the defendants having entered the mine under a mistaken idea as to their rights, the milder rule was applied. The measure of damages should be the value of the coal at the mouth of the mine, less the cost of digging (hewing) it and transporting it there as a merchantable article. Fleming v. McNeil Co., 23 C. Presumption-Seven years' absence -Insurance Act, s. 148 (3) - Evidence.] -In order to establish the presumption of the death of the claimant's husband, on account of his not having been heard of for seven years, it was proved that in May, 1900, he had gone in a sail-boat to an island adjacent to where he lived to procure some lumber to be used in his business, and that while on this island a violent storm having arisen, he had telephoned his wife that he would probably be detained. He did not, however, return, and his wife had not heard of him since. The boat was subsequently found with the sail set and having some lumber and his cap in it. On the following morning he was supposed to have been seen at the railway station, but the person who thought he saw him would not swear to his identity. It was said that a person who had lost some chairs suspected him of having stolen them, but, it did not appear that he knew that he was suspected, while it appears that the detectives suspected some one else. In 1901 a letter was received from a favourite aunt in England, with whom he was in the bahit of corresponding, asking about him, and stating that she had not heard from him for some time past. On the case coming before the Court of Appeal, the giving of judgment was stated, at the claimant's request, to enable her to furnish an affidavit from the judgment of a Divisional Court, 12 O. W. R. 153, reversing the judgment of Riddell, J., 11 O. W. R. 1075, that there was sufficient evidence to raise the presumption of death, even without the affidavit subsequently furnished.—[Meredith, J.A., dissented on the question of the need of the further evidence.] Re Ancient Order of United Workmen and Marshall, 80. Illegal issue—Innocent holder — Liability of school trutees—Negligence — Finding of jury—Charge.]—A dehenture of the defendants payable to bearer scaled with their corporate seal and signed by their chairman and sceretary, was allowed to get into circulation without the authority or knowledge of the defendants, and without their receiving any value therefor. It was finally purchased by the plaintif before maturity, who took it in good find and gave full market value for it. In an action brought upon two of the interest coupons attached to the debenture, the trial Judge asked the jury the two following questions (among others), which were answered in the affirmative: "Did the bond come into the hands of the plaintiff as an innocent holder for value through the carelessness and neglect of the defendants, or those of their officers whose duty it was to have the bonds properly executed and issued, and in whose hands or custody the bonds should be detained until delivered to bona fide purchasers?" "Do you find that the board of school trustees, or their officers, were guilty of such negligence in connection with this bond, as that in your opinion it would be inequitable and unjust that the defendants should be permitted as against the plaintiff to set up a defence that the bond was not duty executed, or the issue thereof authorised by the board?" A verdict was thereupon entered for the plaintiff :--Held, that the verdict was rightly so entered. 60 V. c. 24, s. 159, in reference to the trial Judge unnecessarily expressing his own opinion upon the facts, commented upon. Absolute conveyance—Cutting down to mortgage—Evidence—Redemption.]—Land of the plaintif worth $1,500, subject to a mortgage for $000, and other charges for $300, was conveyed to the defendant in consideration of his paying $140 due for instalments under the mortgage, for the recovery of which an action had been brought. The costs of the action war: paid by the plaintiff. The Court, finding under the evidence that the deed, though absolute in form, was intended as mortgage, allowed the plaintiff to redeem. W. R. 54, 393.

Absolute in form-Only mortgage in effect-Notice-Parol evidence-Admissibility of, on question of mortgage or no mortgage.] -Where a tenant is in possession of land, a purchaser is bound by all the equities which the tenant could enforce against the vendor. This equity of the tenant extends not only to interests connected with his tenancy; but also to interests under collateral agreements. The principle is the same in both classes of cases, that the possession of the tenant is notice that he has some interest in the land, and a purchaser baving notice of that fact is bound to inquire what that interest is. But, a purchaser is not bound to attend to vague rumours, or to statements by mere strangers, A notice to be binding must proceed from some person interested in the property. B., the owner of land in West Canada, under a contract of sale from the Chancellor and scholars of King's College, being indebted to T. & Co., induced P. to assume the debt, and to secure him from any loss in consequence of such assumption, by deed poll endorsed on his original contract of sale, absolutely assigned the land to P. Up to the time of this assignment, B, himself had never been in the actual possession of the land, his father having managed the same as his agent. afterwards, in satisfaction of certain debts due by him, assigned the land conveyed to him by B., with other property, to G. This assignment was also endorsed on the original contract of sale. Prior to the execution of this assignment, G. made some inquiries about the ownership of the property, but it did not appear that he received any information that B. was the owner. In a suit by B. against P. and G. for redemption :-Held, upon appeal (affirming the decree of the Court of Error and Appeal in Canada) .- First, that under the circumstances, the transaction between B. and P., although in form an absolute assignment and sale, was in effect a mortgage only. Second, that as G, had acted with proper bona fides, taking the assignment from a party who had the original contract of sale in his possession, and who had taken an absolute assignment of that contract, he had no notice, actual or constructive, of B.'s title .- Semble, where the receipt of the consideration-money is acknowledged in the body of the deed, it is not the custom in Canada to have an additional acknowledgment endorsed on the deed. Judgment of the Court of Eiror and Appeal for Upper Can-ada (5 Grant 1) and of the Court of Chancery for Upper Canada (1 Grant 459) affirmed. Greenshields v. Barnhart (1853), C. R. 2, A. C. 91.

Absolute in form—Parol evidence — Admissibility of, on question of mortgage or no mortgage,]—A. contracted for the grant of certain lots of land from the Government in Upper Canada, and paid part of the purchase-money, and being indebted to B., he assigned by deed his interest in those plots to B. in consideration of the sum of fi00. B. took possession of the lots, and afterwards obtained a grant of them by Letters Patent from the Crown in fee with the privity of

A. subsequently became bankrupt, and B. was appointed assignee to his estate. No mention was made of any claim on the part of A. for right to redeem, or interest in the lots, in his affidavit of debts and assets, nor was any claim then made by him or his creditors. B. remained in possession until his death, and the property having greatly increased in value, A, procured the appoint-ment of a new assignee of his estate, who filed a bill against the devisee of B. for redemption of the lots in question, upon the ground that the original transaction was one of mortgage and not of absolute sale. The original deed of arrangement was lost, and no evidence of its contents could be produced. except a memorandum of account between the parties, made by the solicitor who acted for A. and B., upon which the assignment in the deed was based. Parol evidence was ad-mitted to prove the nature and terms of the transaction, but the Court of Error and Appeal in Upper Canada dismissed the bill. Such decision affirmed on appeal by the Judicial Committee, Mathews v. Holmes (1855), C. R. 2 A. C. 230.

E., "one of Her Majesty's justices in and for the county of V.," without anything further to shew that it was taken in the county, is bad; and an acknowledgment that the grantor "signed and sealed the within instrument," without stating that it was delivered or excented, is bad. Tobique Salmon Club v. Mc-Donald, 36 N. B. R. 589.

Action for possession — Evidence of possession.]—Action for possession of a certain lot:—Held, upon the evidence, that defendants have recognised plaintiff's title. Alteration after execution-Addition of provision for interest - Inscription en faux.] - The defendant inscribed en faux against the copy of a deed of donation filed in the suit and also against the original minute, alleging that the words "avec intérêt légal" had been inserted illegally after the execution of the deed. The terms of the deed had been discussed between the parties during two days, and there was a strong presumption that the subject of interest on the instalments payable under the deed had not been overlooked. In the original minute the words "avec intérêt légal" were added at the end of a line where there was barely space to crowd them in and moreover these words did not appear in a copy made by the notary a few days after the execution of the deed : - Held, that, under the circumstances and the facts apparent on the face of the original minute, the words " avec intérêt légal " constitute, an addition (little de little légal" constitute an addition (ajouté), which is null under the law regarding the execution of notarial instruments unless it be clearly identified or confirmed by the con-tracting parties; R. S. Q. Art. 3648. Nadon v. Auclair, 9 Que. Q. B. 462.

Annulment for fraud as against creditors—Effect as between parties.)— A deed which is annulled is made in fraud of creditors, is annulled only as against creditors; as to those who were parties to it, it continues to subsist. Gaudet v. Tremblay, 35 Que. S. C. 303.

Condition subsequent - Breach-Forfeiture-Assignment by vendor before revesting - Validity.]-On the grant of a fee simple defeasible on breach of a condition, no estate is left in the grantor, but only a possibility of reverter, and therefore, before breach there is nothing capable of assignment. After breach, where the deed does not provide for ipso facto forfeiture, the fee does not revest automatically, and until revesting by suit or otherwise there is nothing capable of assignment. Land was conveyed subject to certain conditions to be performed by the purchasers, and, in default of the performance of such conditions, the purchasers were to hold the land in trust for the grantor, and reconvey to him, notwithstanding that any prior breach may have been waived. The conditions were not performed. In an action by the assignee under seal of the vendor for a declaration that the purchasers held the land in trust for him, and for an order for the conveyance thereof to him :--Held, that after the conveyance there was no estate left in the grantor, but only a possibility of re-verter, which was not assignable, and no action lay. Clarke v. Vancouver, 10 B. C. R. 31.

Construction—Ambiguity — Discharge of debtor—Contract — Illegal consideration —Right of action,]—Where the language of an instrument is ambiguous or obscure, the intention of the parties should be ascertained by consideration of the circumstances attending the execution of the agreement—A deed of settlement between B, and a bank declared that he owed the bank $4,731.61 for interest on an advance in respect to a lottery scheme, and a further sum of $15,762.02 for advances on an account for the purchase of stock, two notes being given for these amounts, respectively, and the shares of stock being pledged as security for the larger note only. Subsequently the directors of the bank passed a resolution authorising the discharge of B. on payment of $15,000 by one V., "jusqu' a concurrence de la dite somme de $15,000," and the transfer of the shares to V. This resolution was followed by a deed of compromise, V. paying the $15,000, and obtaining a transfer of the shares; and it was thereby declared that by the transaction B. was discharged in so far as concerned the bank's advances on the stock account "vis-à-vis la banque des advances qu-elle lui a faites du chef susdit mentionées en un acte de réglement." etc., the resolution being annexed and the deed of settlement referred to for imputation of the payment, and V. was to become creditor of B. under conditions mentioned "jusqu' à concurrence de $15,000." In an action by D., to whom the notes held by the bank were assigned : - Held, reversing the judgment appealed from, that the effect of the deed of compromise was to discharge B. merely to the extent of the $15,000 on account of the larger note; and further, affirming the judgment appealed from, that no action could lie upon the smaller note, as it represented interest on a claim in relation to a contract of an illegal nature L'Association St. Jean Baptiste v. Brault, 30 S. C. R. 598, followed. Deserres v. Brault, 26 C. L. T. 848, 37 S. C R. 613.

Construction—Contradictory description —Falsa demonstratio non noct.]—The description in a deed described the land by metes and bounds which included the lot in question, and these works were added, "being the same land and premises . . . sold and conveyed by F. to P. The conveyance from F. to P. excepted this 'lot,""—Held, the description by metes and bounds would govern, and the tilt to the "lot" would pass under the deed. Chute v. Adney (1908), 39 N. B. R. 113, 6 E. L. R. 244.

Construction-Erroneous description -Latent ambiguity — Evidence — Mortgage — Power of sele — Assignment.] — In a deed from T. H. to S. the lands were described as beginning at a stake standing on the west side of the highway road, being 6.86 chains at right angles from T. H.'s south line, thence north 84° 45' west 25 chains to a cedar post standing on Lenihan's east line, thence north 5° 45' east along said line 6.86 chains to T. H's south line, thence south 84° 45' east along said line to west side of said highway road, thence southerly along west side of said road to the place of beginning, containing 20 acres more or less. The description as it stood could not be applied to the land, and evidence was admitted as to the location of the stake and post and of a former survey :-Held, on the evidence, that the words T. H.'s "south line" in the description, intended to describe the northern boundary of the lot, were an error, and the lot bounded on the north by T. H.'s north line would pass under the deed .-- Semble, that the assignment of a mortgage containing a power of sale to be exercised by the mortgagee and assigns, transfers the power of sale unless it is ex-pressly excepted. Chute v. Adney (No. 2), 39 N. B. R. 93, 7 E. L. R. 36.

Construction - General expression -Special stipulations - Interpretations - Re-ference to draft.]-If on the comparison of a deed of sale with a defeasance drawn up and signed on the same day, there is a doubt as to the meaning or extent of an expression in the former, the Court can, in order to explain it, have recourse to a draft of the deed under private seal, signed by the parties the night before in the same transaction .--- Therefore, where in the deed of sale of an hotel, it is declared that all the movable effects in the house are included in it, and that in the defeasance are found the special stipulations as to liquors, incompatible with the idea that they were included in the general expression "movable effects" in the sale, the declaration in a draft of the latter, signed by the parties the night before, that the "liquors should be payable separately," establishes sufficiently the fact that they were not included in the sale. Larouche v. Bouthillier, 34 Que. S. C. 450.

Construction—Gravel—Deposit — New trial.]—On appeal by the defendants from the judgment in 32 O. R. 240, 21 C. L. T. 30, the Court, on the ground that there had been a misunderstanding as to the extent of the defendants' admission as to the removal of gravel, gave them the option of a new trial upon payment of the costs of the former trial and of the appeal, and in default dismissed the appeal with costs. Construction-Land granted by Canada Company in fee simple-Reservations in deed -Mines-Oil springs-Rock or coal oil-Natural gas-Question as to powers of Canada Company—Right to confer mining rights— Right of entry—Statute of Limitations—Action for trespass and damages - Evidence-Findings of facts-Costs.]-This was a test case to determine as between the Canada Co. and purchasers from that company what rights were reserved under a standard form of conveyance adopted by the company in disposing of lands in the oil regions of western Ontario, in which they "excepted and reserved to said company all mines and quarries of metals and minerals, and all springs of oil in or under the said land, whether already discovered or not, with liberty of ingress, etc., to said company, to search for, work, win, or carry away the same, and for this purpose to make and use all needful roads and other works, doing no other unnecessary damage and making reasonable compensation for all damages actually occa-sioned.—Boyd, C., held, that there was a valid reservation of all oil upon the lot which could be possessed and enjoyed by defendants, but that there was no reservation of natural gas, which remained the property of the land owner; that there was no legal difficulty in allocating the different strata bearing gas and oil to different owners, and no difficulty in making the legal distinction of ownership as to gas and oil in the same well. With this limitation, however, that when the well should be distinctly an oil well and the amount of gas merely a subsidiary concomitant, the gas element should be disregarded and the whole go under the reservation, and the like limitation as to a distinctly gas well; that the defendants should account for net profits made from all gas obtained from the lot, and the Canada Co. for all royalites from the same. No costs allowed either party, the success being divided. Farquharson v. Barnard Argue Roth Stearns Oil & Gas Co. (1910), 17 O. W. R. 533, 2 O. W. N. 276, O. L. R.

Construction-Life estate-Remainder in fee-Grant of land - Habendum - Repugnancy-Remaindermen not named-Descrip-tion of, as "children" of life tenant-Sufficiency.]—A grantor by deed granted to the grantee "for and during the term of his natural life, the lands and premises herein-after mentioned," and upon his death " unto those of his children who shall survive him or shall have died before him, leaving lineal descendants surviving" at his death. " their heirs and assigns forever, in equal shares in fee simple as tenants in common; the said estate granted to the children (of the grantee) to be subject, however, to the support and maintenance of the said lands hereport and maintenance of the said matos ner-inafter mentioned of the wife (of the grantee) during such time as she shall re-main widow (of the grantee);" "to have and to hold unto" (the grantee), "his heirs and assigns, to and for his and their sole and only use forever:"-Held, that the grantee took only a life estate, his children having the remainer in fee simple. The rule in Shelley's case did not apply; otherwise, there would be no estate in the children charged with the support and maintenance of the widow, and there was an express grant of the fee in remainder to the children. The intent was clear that the grantee should only take a life estate; and the habendum, being re-pugnant to the grant, was void. Purcell v. Tully, 12 O. L. R. 5, 7 O. W. R. 848.

D., although the act of sale recited that he was present, and although in fact he was present with the parties, did not sign it, and was not called upon to do so :--Held, that, in view of the ambiguity of the terms of the contract, and in order to give effect according to what appears to have been the intention of the parties, in the special circumstances shewn by the evidence, the clause containing the reservation should be construed thus : "With a reservation in favour of H. D. of the use of the alley which is upon the land sold for a length of twenty feet leading from the public road. Dumais v. Thibault, 10 Que. Q. B. 7.

The amount of the actual consideration was considerably less than the value of the property, and there was evidence that the bargain was an exceedingly improvident one for the grantor:-Held, that the deed should be set aside. *Chisholm v. Conveyance of land—Recital—Garantic —Property not passing — Cutting down to security—Presumption.]—When it is recited in an act d'obligation that an immovable is transferred to a creditor by way of garantie, it must be presumed, in the absence of a clear and precise agreement to the contrary, that the parties have intended to make a contract of security only, and that what the debtor intends to pass to his creditor is the possession of and not the absolute property in the immovable.—2. The creditor does not become the proprietor of the immovable if it is not paid for, but has only the right to possession for the purposes of his security, to receive the profits, and to apply them first upon the interest and then upon the principal amount. Eglauch v. Labadie, 21 Que. S. C.

Conveyance of land-Rectification -Mistake in description-Excessive acreage Insufficient evidence-New trial.]-The plaintiff purchased from P. one-half of a piece of the purchased from P, one-nail of a pace of land, said to contain S2 acres, being a por-tion of lot 119, group 2. New Westminster district. The description and the conveyance of the land, which were drawn by a real estate broker, who was neither a solicitor nor a surveyor, purported to state the metes and bounds, but declared the parcel to contain 41 acres more or less. There was also a mortgage of the parcel given by the plaintiff, containing the same description as the deed, and drawn by the same person. The deed was registered without any description. The plaintiff sold to the defendant on the basis of there being 41 acres, and the same descrip-tion was used. The defendant inspected the property both before and after the sale; had no idea that the acreage was any more than stated, and 'so admitted at the trial. There was up to this time no proper survey of the subdivision, beyond a middle line drawn by a surveyor with a view to dividing the land into halves. The defendant, on seeing the location of this line, perceived that it excluded him from a piece of cleared land which he alleged was on his half. The surveyor, on this, ran another line, the plan from which shewed that the defendant had within his line some 48 instead of 41 acres. Neither the surveyor, the draftsman of the conveyance, nor the parties could say that the original parcel contained 82 acres. The trial Judge came to the conclusion that there was a mutual mistake, and directed the rectification of the conveyance :---Held, on appeal, that there was a lack of conclusive evidence as to the true area of the original parcel on which to direct the rectification of the deed, and that there should be a new trial. Falk v. Sweenson, 8 W. Description - Ambiguity - Charge on homestead before patent - Dominion Lands Act.]-The written contract signed by the defendant for the purchase of machinery from the plaint for the provided for a lien or charge upon the "N. E. ¹/₄ Section 2, Township 4, Range 14," without stating whether the range meant was 14 west or east of the principal meridian, both of which ranges are in this province, but the evidence shewed that it was range 14 west that was intended :--Held, that the expression " N. E. ¼ " sufficiently designated the north-east quarter, as such contractions are in daily use .--- 2. That in this case the description was sufficient to warrant the order for a charge on the N. E. 1/4 24-14 W.; for, (a) if judicial notice should be taken of the surveys that had been already made in Manitoba and of those which had no: been made, then, as township 4 in range 14 east had not been surveyed into sections. township 4 in range 14 west must have been the one intended by the contract, and there was no ambiguity requiring evidence to ex-plain; and (b), if judicial notice of such surveys could not be taken, then the ambiguity. any, was a latent one, and oral testimony was admissible to ascertain what land was meant. It was suggested in argument that the defendant was merely a homesteader under the Dominion Lands Act, and had not received his patent, and that, under s. 42 of that Act, he could not validly create a charge on the land :-Held, that the defendant could not raise such an objection in this action. and that the plaintiff was entitled to an order for the charge on the land and the chance of realising on it, though he might afterwards be defeated by the action of the Dominion Government, Abell v. McLoren, 21 C. L. T. 453, 13 Man. L. R. 463.

Description — Boundary-Medium filum agua - Ascertainment of centre line.]-The plaintiff and the defendant were owners of adjoining farms; the division line was a small stream. The dispute was as to the ownership of an island in the stream. Down to the 5th March, 1883, both parcels were owned by R., who on that day conveyed to the defendant the land lying south-east of the stream, describing it by metes and bounds, the boundary on the north-west being southerly edge of the stream." In 188 In 1884 R. conveyed to the plaintiff the residue of the lot by a description which expressly crossed the stream and ran along its south-easterly edge. At the time of this action there were signs of a channel on each side of the island, but the main stream at all times, and the whole stream in the dry seasons, flowed in a channel on the north-west side. It was contended by the plainlift that in 1883 and 1884 the stream ran very largely in the southerly channel, and by the plaintiff that the northerly channel had always been the only regular one :--Held, that the description in the conveyance to the defendant entitled him to the medium filum aqua as his boundary, and the plaintiff's deed. being subsequent, could not entitle him to claim anything beyond that boundary. Description-" Intersection " - Dividing line between houses - Production - Ejectment-Tender of deed after action-Costs.] -Action of ejectment brought to determine the boundary line between adjoining lots conveyed to the plaintiff and defendant respectively. Dispute over a nine-inch case of brick put around one of the houses, which ex-tended that distance beyond what would have otherwise been the boundary between two houses. The deed from the North British Canadian Investment Co. to plaintiff describes the land sold to plaintiff as " commencing at a point on the western limit of Euclid avenue where it is intersected by the production easterly of the southern face of the southern wall of house number 232 (that is, where the northern wall of number 230 joins the southern wall of 232), said point being distant 32 northerly along said limit of said lot primber 1; thence northerly along said avenue 20 feet 6 inches more or less to the intersection of production easterly of northern face of north-ern wall of house 232; thence westerly along said last production face of wall and limit between premises in rear of house num-bers 232 and 234, in all 129 feet to eastern limit of Iane; thence southerly, etc.:-Held, the word "intersect has a meaning, although rarely applied to it, to divide or separate two things, by passing between them:" Murray's Dictionary; and it was in this latter seuse that "intersection" was intended to be used in the above description, viz., "the dividing line between the two houses," and it must be followed no matter how obvious its course may be. Judgment for plaintiff for land covered by the deed from defendant to him. Weston v. Smythe, 5 O. W. R. 537, 10 O. L. R. 1.

Description — Mistaka—Reformation— Declaratory judgment — Building on land conveyed—Registry laws—Estoppel — Covenant—Costs. Ruetsch v. Spry, 7 O. W. R. 705.

Description of land-Ambiguity-Evidence-Parol agreement for division of land ineffective to pass title-Conventional line-Disputed boundary — Limitation of actions — Occasional acts of ownership.] — The plaintiff claimed land in dispute under a deed from P. O, of one full half or molety of the farm lot on which he resided, and also one full half or molety of all the woods, &c., thereunto in any wise belonging or appertaining. The land in dispute was a wood lot situated about two miles from the farm lot and separated from it by lands of other proprietors, and upon which P. O. was shewn to have cut from time to time, but as to which there was no general user as part and parcel of the farm, there being another wood lot connected with the farm which was generally used for that purpose :--Held, that in order to pass under the words used the land must be an integral part of the farm itself .- There being an ambiguity in this case as to what was in-cluded in the words "farm lot" and as to what was appurtenant thereto :--Held, that there was no objection to evidence of the user to enable the Court to interpret the language used, but that the trial Judge erred in allow-ing evidence to be given of declarations made by the grantor as to what he meant to convey or that he had conveyed .-- 2. That the plain-tiff having no title to the lot in dispute, an agreement made between him and the grantee under P. O. for the division of the lot was ineffective to pass title, and the doctrine of conventional line for the settlement of questions of disputed boundary had no application.--(3) That, in the absence of 20 years' continuous and exclusive enjoyment by the plaintiff, occasional acts of cutting must be regarded as acts of trespass, or, at the highest, as having been done with the consent of the owner. Ogilvie v. Grant, 1 E. L. R. 117, 2 E. L. R. 196, 41 N. S. R. 1.

Description of land-Ambiguity-Falsa demonstratio - General followed by specific description-Evidence - Boundary - Election. 1-The plaintiff and defendant were entitled, under deeds of conveyance to their predecessors in title respectively, to the western and eastern parts respectively of a fractional quarter section of land of an irregular shape bordering about 132 acres. The land was crossed by a highway called the Gimli road running in a somewhat oblique direction from north The conveyance on which the south. plaintiff relied described his land as the west half of the quarter section or that part lying on the west side of the Gimli road, and the defendant's title was for the east half, &c., or that part lying on the east side of the Gimli road. Possession had continued in accordance with the belief on both sides that the Gimli road divided the fractional quarter section into nearly equal portions .- On discovering that there was in fact a larger area on the east side of the road than on the west, the plaintiff brought this action for possession of such excess, being part of the land on the east side in the possession of the defendant :---Held, that, as applied to the land in question, the words "east half" were not sufficient to describe with clearness the land intended to be conveyed, and, conse-quently, the words which follow could not be rejected as falsa demonstratio. Gillen v.

Haynes, 33 U. C. R. 516, Iler v. Nolan, 21 C. R. 309, and Cartwright v. Detlor, 19
 C. R. 210, distinguished.—2. This was a proper case for the application of the rule that, when there is a general description followed by a specific one, the specific and not the general description must be taken to govern, and the expression "east half" in this case was a general description that must yield to the specific description that follows. Murray v. Smith, 5 U. C. R. 225, and Smith v. Galloway, 5 B. & Ad. 43, followed.-3. The ambiguity in the description in question was a latent one, only becoming patent when evidence was given of the irregular shape of the land, and therefore extrinsic evidence was admissible to shew the intention of the parties .- Semble, that the defendant might also succeed on the doctrine of election as set forth in Elphinstone on Deeds, 105 Vin. Ab., Grant, H. 5, and Shep.' Touch., 106, 251, on the ground that his deed gave him the option of taking the east half or the land on the east side of the road, and he had elected to take the latter. Oleson y. Jonasson, 3 W. L. R. 466, 16 Man. L. R. 94.

Description of land - Construction---Boundary-Trespass-Street line-Encroachment.]-In construing documents of title, giving the length of a course in feet or other denomination, with the addition "or until it comes to an object," that object, be it less or more than the length given, is the boundary. Therefore, where a town justified a trespass, on the ground that the act complained of was to remove or prevent an encroachment on R. street, the western boundary of the plaintiff's property, the burden of proving the street boundary is on the town, though the point to which the plaintiff claims is some 5 feet beyond the number of feet given in the plaintiff's deed as the distance from the starting point to R. street. Mil-more v. Woodstock, 3 E. L. R. 204, 38 N. B. Mil-R. 133.

Description of land — Evidence—Burden of proof — Jurisdiction—New triat]— In an action for damages for the mining and removal by the defendants of iron ore from land claimed by the plaintiff under lease from the Crown, the description in the plaintiffs lease bounded him on the north by "the south line of P. G." The trial Judge having directed the jury, among other things, that it was not necessary for the plaintiff to prove this line:—Held, that, the burden of proof being on plaintiff, this was misdirection necessitating a new trial. Bartlett v, Nova Scotia Steel Co., 1 E. L. R. 226, 293, 39 N. S. R. 456.

Description of land—Falsa demonstratio.]—The land was described as commencing at a stake on the O'Leary road, about thirty chains from M.'s north-east angle, when in fact the nearest point of the locus was not within ninety chains of M.'s north-east angle. The question was (1) whether the words "from M.'s north-east angle" could be rejected as a falsa demonstratio.—(2) Could the location of the land be shifted from the locality described in a deed executed by the sheriff under the Land Assessment Act.— Held, Peters, J., in the negative on both points. McPherson v. Ramsay (1869), 1 P. E. I. R. 288.

Easement — Agreement — Purchasers— License—Revocation—Repairs.]—The lower and the upper half of a lot of land were respectively conveyed to separate purchasers. In the deed of the lower half the grantor reserved the right of way to convey water by aqueduct or otherwise from one of the springs on the lower lot to the upper lot. The ease-ment was assigned in the deed of the upper lot. On the lower lot were two springs known as the front and back springs. It was agreed, and acted upon, by the purchasers of the lots that the back spring should be set apart for the exclusive use of the owner of the upper lot under the reservation in the deed of the lower lot. The plaintiff and defendant, becoming respectively the owners of the lots, entered into a parol agreement for the construction by the defendant of a pipe from the front spring to her house, to be tapped on her land by a pipe leading to the plaintiff's house :-- Held, that the agreement between the original purchasers of the lots to limit the easement to the back spring was binding upon the defendant; and that the license to the defendant to use the front spring was revocable upon the plaintiff making equitable compensation fixed by the Court to the defendant for her expenditure under the license. Where license is given to lay pipes on another's land to convey water to the licensee's land, the burden of repair rests in law upon the licensee, and it is a revocation of the license to refuse to the licensee permission to go upon the licensor's land for the purpose of making repairs. Miller v. Cronkite, 21 C. L. T. 150, 2 N. B. Eq. 203.

Ejectment - Delivery - Marksman -Burden of proof of deed having been read is on party impeaching it.]-Defendant claimed under a deed from Francis Chiverie, the plaintiffs as his heirs. The grantor was a marksman, and the attestation clause was simply "Witness." It was objected to the deed that there was no evidence of delivery. (2) that the grantor being illiterate the attestation clause should have stated it to have been read or explained to him, and unless this was proved to have been done the deed was void. Defendant stated that the subscribing witness, who is since dead, was his clerk at the date of the deed. Defendant did not remember if he himself was present when the deed was signed, or whether the grantor delivered it to him, but he thought the grantor gave it to the subscribing witness, defendant's clerk, but in one of these two ways it came into his possession. The Judge ways it came into his possession. The Judge left the question of delivery to the jury, who found for plaintiff. Defendant moved to set aside the verdict as contrary to evidence ve on both 1869), 1 P.

Ejectment-Escrow-Estoppel by acts.] -The locus had been granted to plaintiff whose father agreed to give him a deed of property called the S. place, provided plaintiff would convey the locus to his sister, the defendant's wife. The father, to secure locus to his sister, performance of this agreement, gave the deed of the S. place to his wife, as an escrow, to be delivered to the plaintiff on his conveying the locus to his sister. A deed from plaintiff to his father had been prepared but not tim to his father had been prepared but nor executed in the father's lifetime. After the father's death, plaintiff obtained the deed of the S, place from his mother, at the same time executing and delivering to her the deed to his father (then dead), on the understand-ing that in pursuance of his agreement with his father, he thereby resigned his title to the locus to his sister. The jury found a ver-dict for the defendant, and on the argument upon a rule nisi for a new trial, the only question undisposed of was whether the plaintiff was estopped by his own acts. from treating defendant as a trespasser :-Held, Peters, J., that plaintiff was estopped. McKinnon v. McKinnon (1852), 1 P. E. I. R. 59.

Ejectment-Fore-shore-Grant from the Crown,]-Plaintiffs claimed title to part of fore-shore between high and low water mark of the town of Summerside under grant from the Crown, in fee under Great Seal of the the Crown, in fee under Great Seal of the Province of Prince Edward Island, issued under 25 Vic., ch. 19. Defendant under an authority in writing of town clerk of Sum-merside erected a wharf or breastwork over part of the locus claimed by plaintiffs. In action of ejectment brought to recover possession of site of defendant's wharf, plaintiffs obtained verdict. Rule nisi granted to enter non-suit or set aside verdict on several grounds, and amongst others on the following, That the grant under which plainnamely : tiffs claimed was void because the price or consideration mentioned in the grant did not on its face appear to have been settled by the Governor in Council and no evidence was That the given to shew that it had been. grant was void because no consent in writing was given by owners of land in front of which locus lay before grant was made pursuant to the Act 25 Vic., c. 19, s. 2. That the grant was yold because at the time it was made the plaintiffs were not in posses-sion of the whole of the land in front of which the locus lay. That the grant was void because the locus was in front of and abu-ted the railway which was vested in the Dominion of Canada, and no consent had been obtained from the Dominion Government. That the grant was void because since Confederation the Lieutenant-Governor had no power to make grants of the foreshores of this province. That the grant was void because by the British North America Act all public harbours are vested in Canada, and Summerside is a public harbour. For the improper admission of evidence:--Held, (Peters. J., that the grant was void because the locus was in front of the railway lands vested in the Dominion Government, and no consent had been obtained from the Government. Holman v, Green (No. 1) (1880), 2 P. E. I. R. 329.

Ejectment — Proof of deed—Burden on party impeaching it.] — Defendant claimed under deed executed by marksman, attestation clause was "Witness." Objected on trial that there was not sufficient evidence of delivery. Defendant stated that he was present when deed was executed, and that it was delivered to himself at the time, and that grantor afterwards assisted him to run off the land. The Judge left the question of delivery to evidence, and for a new trial: —Held, Hensley, J., that the verdict was contrary to he evidence and the law. Chiterie v. Ringht (1S76), 2 P. E. 1. R. 108.

Fraud-Conveyance of same land to two purchasers-Priorities-Option - Agreement -Registration-Action to remove cloud on title - Leave to amend-Parties-Grantor-Specific performance-Terms.]-By a writing under seal, but without consideration, dated the 2nd January, 1907. M. consideration, dated the 2nd January, 1907. M. covenanted and agreed with the plaintiff that if at any time he (M_{\cdot}) should be desirous of selling the land described in the document, he would give the plaintiff the option of first chance purchase the same at $40 per acre, and to give the plaintiff 30 days notice in writing of intention to sell the pro-perty, etc. On the 14th January, 1907. M. signed a written offer, binding for three months from the date, to sell the same land to the defendant at a larger price. On the following day, but after the defendant had express notice of the agreement with the plaintiff, M. executed a formal written agreement to sell the land to the defendant, and the defendant, two days later, paid part of the consideration named, and received from M. a conveyance of the land. The plaintiff's agreement or option and the defendant's agreement of the 15th January were both registered on the 15th January, and the defendant's deed on the 15th January. On the 22nd April, 1907, M. conveyed the same land to the plaintiff, and received a payment on account from the plaintiff; this con-veyance was registered on the 24th April, 1907 .- In an action to set aside the defendant's agreement of the 15th January and the deed registered the 17th January as being void, and to remove the same as a cloud upon the plaintiff's title, M, being brought in as a third party :--Held, that the writing of the 2nd January was not a mere option, but a contract with the plaintiff to give him a binding option for 30 days after notice of desire to sell, and, being under seal, there was no need for a consideration; that the defendant took his agreement and conveyance subject to the rights of the plaintiff ; but that these instruments were not tainted with fraud, and could not be declared void ; as the defendant had full notice of the agreement of the 2nd January, he was thereafter in the same position guoad the plaintiff as M. had previously and was bound to do the same acts as M. in respect of the land : and, while the plaintiff's action as framed failed, his remedy lay in a claim for specific performance against the defendant and M.; and he was allowed to amend, upon terms, by adding M. as a party defendant, and seeking the remedy suggested. --Judgment of Teetzel, J., reversed. Saver-eux v. Tourangeau, 16 O. L. R. 600, 11 O. O. W. R. 994.

Gift - Construction-" Tons les meubles et effets mobiliers "-Bank deposit.] - The provisions of Arts. 395, 396, and 397, C. C. defining the sense of the words "meubles," mobiliers," and "effets mobiliers," when they are employed by themselves, are declaratory, and the words are given as examples to aid the interpretation of the Judge in doubtful cases. When the parties to a deed employ several times the words, "meubles et effets mobiliers" to indicate only movable effects, and not money or choses in action, the same words repeated anew in the same provision, even where preceded by the word "all," will be presumed to have been employed in the restricted sense which the parties have already given them, and will not be construed to include a deposit of money in a bank. St. Denis v. Trudeau (1909), 18 Que. K. B. 434.

Habendum- Reservation of way-Deed not executed by grantee - Acceptance.]-A deed contained in the haber tum clause a reservation to the grantee of a right of way. The deed was not executed by the grantee but had been accepted by him. It was contended that not having been executed by the grantee, there was no grant of the right of way :- Held, that the plaintiffs, by accepting the deed, were bound by the reservation it contained. Loyal Prince of Wales Lodge v. Sinfield, 40 N. S. R. 30.

Incapacity of grantor — Absence of consideration—Conflict of evidence—Relief.] —Where at the time of the execution of a deed of conveyance the grantor was 70 years of age, was sick and in feeble health, and it was the opinion of some witnesses, though not of others, that he did not understand the nature of his act, and the effect of the deed was to deprive him of means of support, and the evidence was uncertain respecting the existence of adequate consideration for the deed and favoured the view that it was intended as a gift, the deed was set aside. Lost deed-Inference as to-Maintenance of dyke — Liability for-Covenant running with land.]-In 1847 T. R. purchased from R. a portion of a large tract of marsh land of which R. was owner. From the time of the purchase down to the time of his leath. in 1886, T. R. contributed, either by the performance of work or in cash, in the proportion of one-seventh of the whole amount, towards the maintenance and repair of a dyke and aboiteau erected, prior to the time of the purchase, for the protection of the land against the sea. In an action brought by the plantiffs, claiming under R., against defendant, claiming under T. R., to recover a proportion of the cost of rebuilding the aboiteau, it appeared that the dyke in question had never been brought under the operation of the Act, R. S. c. 42, "Of Commis-sioners of Sewers and Dyked and Marsh Lands," but that the provisions of the Act had been followed in relation to the calling of meetings, of proprietors, the summoning of proprietors to perform work, and the apportionment of the cost of such work among the proprietors according to their acreage. There was some evidence of the existence of an agreement signed T. R., having reference to his liability to contribute towards the keeping up of the dyke and aboiteau, but, at the time of the commencement of the action, the agreement had been lost, and there was no evidence to shew the exact contents of the agreement :--- Held, that, after the lapse of time, in view of the position of the parties, and the necessity of the work for their protection, the requirements of the Act, and the facts shewn in relation to payments made and work done, there was evidence from which to infer the existence of an agreement touching the keeping up and repair of the dyke and aboiteau, constituting a covenant running with the land by which the defendant was bound :-- Held, also, the Judge of the County Court having found that the amount which the defendant was required to pay was not excessive, that such finding was supported by the evidence and should be affirmed. Roach v. Ripley, 34 N. S. R. 352.

Notarial act — Authentication — False date-Nullity.]-A notarial act binds the parties who have signed it, and the signature of the notary only has the effect of authenti-cating it. 2. The date of a notarial act is an integral and essential part of it, and the want of it nullifies the instrument. 3. When an act, to which several persons are parties, has been signed and executed by each of them on different days, a single date may be added to the act, namely, that of the day of the last signature, but it is more proper to give the several dates in the act. 4. A no-tarial act must bear the date of the signature of the parties, allowing the notary, if he has delayed his signature, to mention the day on which he has affixed it. There-fore a notarial act signed by all the parties on the 2nd July, 1902, but signed by the notary on the 3rd July, 1902, should be dated the 2nd July, 1902, and if the notary dates the act on the 3rd July, 1902, because that is the date on which he has closed the trans_ction, the act will be declared false as an authentic act, the Court having no other alternative, and not having the power to substitute the true date of the completion of the act for the erroneous date which the notary has put to it. Ordway v. Veilleux, 22 Que. S. C. 197.

Notarial act - Illiterate parties-Assent --Notary - Witness.] - In order that a notarial act may be considered authentic, it is necessary that the assent thereto of parties who declare that they are not able to write, shall have been received in presence of the notary who is acting in the matter, and of a witness who has signed. 2. Such obligation in regard to the notary imports that the act has been read to the parties in the presence of the witness, or that a sufficient mention, in the presence of the parties, of what the act contains shall have been made to the witness before he attaches his signature, in order that he may be able to state that the parties who are not able to sign have given their consent; if it is otherwise, the act is not an authentic act, and will be declared invalid. Cloutier v. Dulco, 24 Que. S. C. 153.

Notarial act — Impeaching—Remedy— Inscription de faus.]—The remedy of inscription de faus is not open to a party who simply attacks the truth of statements made in an authentic deed, where the party admits that the notary has set out the facts as he was instructed. In such a case the party must make his proof in the ordinary way. Anderson V. Prévost, 28 Que, S. C. 443.

Not delivered — Evidence-Lackes.]-Where a convegance has been Executed by some of the parties, but not by all, and there has been no delivery, it is not a deed, and is not evidence against the parties who have executed it. Where plaintiffs had an agreement for a low rate of interest for a limited time, and after that time expired rested on their rights for seventeen years, they were held guilty of lackes, and the Court would not allow them a higher even though a legal rate of interest for the seventeen years. *Pope v. Quit-claim—Competing purchasers—Priorities — Registry Act.)—It is not a deed of quit-claim where the grantor remises, releases, and quit-claims unto the grantee, his heirs and assigns, a lot of land, and covenants that the land is free from incumbrances made by him, and that he will warrant and defend the same to the grantee, his heirs and assigns, gainst the demands of all persons claiming by or through the grantor; and the grantee under such a deed, if registered, will not be postponed under the Registry Act, 57 V. c. 20, to the equites of a prior purchaser, of which he had no notice. *Bourque v. Rectification—Conveyance of more land than vendor intended—Unilateral mistake no ground for relief—Frand—Knowledge of purchaser of intention of vendor—Importunity —Absence of independent advice. Sievenson v, Cameron, 10 O. W. R. 432.

Rectification — False representation — Roundarics of land conveyed—Damages.)— The plaintiff purchased from the defendant a tract of land which was supposed by the plaintiff, at the time of the purchase, to be bounded on the east by the La Have river. In the deed to the defendant from his father the eastern boundary line was described as beginning at an oak tree on the western bank of the river, and running south nine degrees west, &c. This line was not identical with the course of the river, and left the title to a strip of land between the line described in the deed and the river still in the father. The defendant occupied and cultivated this strip for thirteen years after the making of his deed, and plaintiff continued the occupation and cultivation for a further period of five or six years, after the conveyance to him, when he was ejected. In the deed from defendant to plaintiff the description in defendant's deed was repeated with an addition in which it was stated that the land conveyed was "bounded on the east by the La Have river." In an action for rectification of the deed, and damages, on the ground of the de-fect in the defendant's title, the trial Judge found that the defendant represented that the land he was selling was bounded on the east by the river, and that this representation, which was false in fact, was material, and was relied on by the plaintiff, and he held the plaintiff entitled to the rectification claimed, and fixed the damages at $150. An appeal was dismissed, the Court (four Judges) being divided in opinion. Ramsay v. Meisners, 33 N. S. R. 339.

Rectification—Mistal c.]—The plaintiff, intending to sell the whole of a piece of land, sold it under an oral contract describing it as the D. lot. The deed to the purchaser followed the description in the vendor's deed. After the contract of sale was made, the vendor sought to have the deed rectified, on the ground that it contained more land than that known as the D. lot. The evidence did not shew that the D. lot did not embrace the whole of the land conveyed:—Held, that the bill should be dismissed. Principles upon which the Court proceeds in reforming deeds, considered. Carman v. Smith, 25 C. L. T. 75, 3 N. B. Eq. 44.

Rectification - Mistake-Description of land.]-A mortgage deed executed by the defendant in favour of the plaintiffs described the land as lots 19 and 20 in the parish of Headingly, containing by admeasurement 418 acres more or less. The plaintiffs sought rectification so as to make it cover the outer 2 miles of the lot as well as the inner, the plaintiffs alleging that such was the intention of the parties at the time the loan was made, and that the outer 2 miles had been omitted by mutual mistake :-- Held, that rectification should be ordered, because the defendant, who was a man of intelligence and good education, had signed the mortgage giving the acreage as 418 more or less, whereas without the outer 2 miles the 2 lots only contained 223.65 acres, and with them only 421.22 acres; and because the defendant had. 3 years after the date of the mortgage, asked the plaintiffs to discharge it as against the right of way of a railway running, to his knowledge, only through the outer 2 miles of the lots, and had arranged that the price of such right of way should be paid by the railway company to the plaintiffs in reduc-tion of the mortgage debt. Br. Can. Loan de Agency Co. v. Farmer, 15 Man. L. R. 593, 24 C. L. T. 273, Rectification — Mistake—Equity—Asaignment of chose in action—Amendment— Breach of trust.]—A stipulation contrary to the real intention of the parties having been inserted in a conveyance without the knowledge of the parties to the conveyance or through a misapprehension as to its effect, a party can have the conveyance rectified where it would be against equity and good conscience for the other party to retain the benefit. The defendant took an assignment of this conveyance in good faith, without knowledge of the parol contemporaneous agreement absolving one of the parties from personal responsibility on his covenant:—Hcld, that the assignment of what was a chose in action was subject to all the equities affecting it.—An application by the defendants, made after trial, to allow an amendment alleging that the pinintiff was party to a breach of trust, in assisting an illegal loan by the trutees, was refused. Lausson v. Jones, 40 N. S. R. 303.

Replevin-Grantor using same seal as notary attesting instrument-Dower-Rent-Variance.]-C. claimed as heir. The deed to his father was executed in France before a notary, whose seal was affixed at the bottom of the deed opposite both his own and the grantor's names, and there was no other seal. It was objected that this was not the grantor's seal, and that, therefore, there was no deed and no estate under it to descend. It was also objected that C.'s mother was entitled to dower, and that C. was only entitled to two-thirds of the rent, and having avowed for the whole there was a variance. The rent reserved was £5 a year and a ton of hay, and the averment only alleged the money to be due without acknowledging satisfaction for the hay, and it was contended that this was a variance :--Held, Peters, J., that the seal was sufficient, and that more than one person might lawfully use the same seal .- That there was no variance on account of the dower, as, until assignment, the heir was entitled to receive the rent .- That the omission to acknowledge satisfaction the hay was not a material variance, and if it were it should have been taken advantage of by special demurrer. Compton v. Crossman (1860), 1 P. E. I. R. 174.

Reservation — Use of part of building —Access—Usage.]—The reservation in a deed of the usufruct of the garrets in a building being silent as to the manner of gaining access thereto, the condition of the premises and the usage established at the time of the reservation of the usafruct will determine the mode of access. Godbout v. Godbout, 28 Que. 8. C. 481.

Riparian rights — Building dams — Penning back waters — Warranty—Improvement of watercourses—Condition precedent— New grounds taken on appeal—Assessment of damages—Interference by appellate Court.]— A deed of sale of lands bordering on a stream, with the privilege of constructing dams, &c., therein, provided that, in case of damages ain the beneussignment of vithout knowineous agreejes from permant:—Held, as a chose in uities affecting ndants, made ment alleging a breach of a by the trus-Jones, 40 N being caused through the construction of any such works, the seller or his successors in title to the adjoining lands should be entitled to have the damage assessed by arbitrators, and the purchasers should pay the amount awarded : - Held, that, under the deed, the purchasers were liable not only for damages caused by the flooding of the lands, but also for all other damages occasioned by their building dams and other works in the stream; and that the provisions of Art. 5535. R. S. Q., did not entitle them to construct or raise such dams without liability for all damages thereby caused :—Held, also, that an objection as to arbitration and award being a condition precedent to an action for such damages, which have been waived or abandoned in the Court of Queen's Bench, could not be invoked on an appeal to the Superior Court. On a cross-appeal, the Supreme Court refused to interfere with the amount awarded for damages in the Court below upon its appreciation of contradictory evidence. Hamelin v. Bannerman, 22 C. L. T. 7, 31 S. C. R. 534.

Sale of inmovable.]—A deed of sale of immovable property, without consideration, made collusively between the parties, as an expedient to bring in the name of the purchaser, an action in which the seller must have failed, is not a valid title and cannot avail as a foundation for such an action. Lacroig & Neult v. Rousseau (1909), 18 Que. K. B. 455.

Sale of land - Construction of deed-Reservation of growing timber - Rights of vendor and purchaser-Resolutive condition.] -A deed of sale of wild lands to be used for agricultural purposes clearly expressed certain specific reservations, and contained in addition, a clause as follows: "Et de plus la présente vente est faite à la condition expresse que le dit acquéreur n'oura pas le droit de couper, enlever, ou charroyer aucun bois sur le terrain ci-dessus vendue antrement que pour son propre usage pour faire des bâtisses sur le terrain, des clotures, et du bois de chauffage; il est, en conséquence, convenu que si l'acquéreur coupait du bois en violation de la présente clause, les vendeurs auront droit de demander la résiliation des présentes et de reprendre possession des immeubles cidessus vendus, sans rien payer à l'acquéreur pour les améliorations qu'il pourra avoir faites. Et tout bois coupé en violation des présentes deviendra, oussitit coupe, la propriété des vendeurs, car tel est la convention expresse des parties et sans laquelle des pré-sentes n'auraient pas en lieu:"-Held, that, in the absence of any contrary intention expressed in the deed, the title to the lot of land sold passed absolutely to the purchaser with the exception of the special reservations .-Held, also, that the clause in question had not the effect of reserving to the vendors all the timber standing upon the land sold, nor could it be construed as giving them the right (without rescission upon breach of the resolutive condition) to re-enter on said land for the purpose of removing stumps or second growth timber. Rioux v. St. Lawrence Ter-minal Co., 40 S. C. R. 98, 4 E. L. R. 581.

Sheriff's deed - Condition - Usufruct -Rés inter alios acta --- Default of acceptance - Pleading - Reply - Fraud.]-The plaintiff alleged that in another suit, in which her husband was defendant, the present defendant purchased at sheriff's sale certain immovables subject to a right of usufruct in her favour during her life, but that the defendant had entered into possession of the property and deprived her of the usufruct; and she asked that the defendant be ordered to give the possession of the property to her, and render her an account of the rents and profits. The defendant, by his plea, admitted that a clause existed in the sheriff's deed to the effect that the property was sold subject to a right of usufruct in favour of the plaintiff during her life, but that such clause was of the nature of res inter alios acta, and had never been accepted by the plaintiff, and that the defendant had since protested against the clause and repudiated it, -- the plaintiff not being, in fact, entitled to the immediate usufruct, but only from the death of her husband, who was still living. The defendant further pleaded that previous to the sheriff's sale he became hypothecary creditor upon the property in question, by obligations granted to him by the husband, in which the plaintiff intervened and renounced all her rights upon the property In favour of the defendant. To this the plaintiff replied that it was the defendant himself who arranged for the sheriff's sale and contrived that the property should be sold subject to the plaintiff's rights as expressed in the sheriff's deed, his object being to keep bidders away and acquire the property much below its value. The defendant demurred to this part of the reply :-- Held, that the demurrer was well founded, the allegations of fraud not being properly urged by reply to plead, in an action on a contract, but being grounds rather to support an action to set aside the sheriff's sale.—2. That the clause in the sheriff's deed relating to the plaintiff's right of usufruct was res inter alios acta, and could not avail her without acceptance by her, which had not been signified before the clause was re-pudiated by the defendant. Hope v. Leroux, 18 Que. S. C. 556.

Title to land — Quieting—Subject to trust—Rule against perpetuities.]—City of Toronto applied for a certificate of tille to the land known as St. Patrick's Market. Appellants filed claims to a contingent reversionary interest. Their claim was disallowed, as this case is not distinguishable from In re the Trustees of Hollis Hospital and Hayne's Contract, [1889], 2 Ch. 540; Re 81, Patrick's Market (1969), 14 O. W. R. 794, 1 O. W. N. 92. Verbal agreement by father to convey to son-Consideration of maintenance and support — Moneys expended by son on land—Subsequent repudiation of avvernent.] —Action by son to recover from father money expended by son in evertion of a dwelling house on the father's farm, on the faith of a promise by the father to give the son a deed of the farm upon which the house was built:—Held, that the father having repudiated his promise the son must succeed. Morrison V, Morrison Q E. L. R. 407.

Voluntary conveyance-Ex post facto consideration — Subsequent purchaser — Specific performance — Trust.] — The de-fendant N, made a contract with the plaintiff to sell to the plaintiff an equity of redemption in land which N. had a year earlier conveyed to his brother-in-law, the defendant P., in trust for the maintenance of N.'s infant children. P. had taken the children about S months before the conveyance, and had been maintaining them. The action was for specific performance of the contract and to have P. declared a bare trustee for N. It was contended that the conveyance to P. was voluntary under 27 Eliz. c. 4 :- Held, that the conveyance was not voluntary in its inception; and, even if it were, there was an ex post facto consideration sufficient to support it .- Review of the authorities. Eggertson v. Nicastro (1910), 15 W. L. R. 106.

Voluntary conveyance of land-Absence of fraud-Improvidence-Lack of independent advice.]-Plaintiff, a woman sixtysix years of acc, gave to defendant's neighbours, who occasionally worked for her, a deed of her property subject to a life interest reserved to her:-Held, the improvidence of the deed being manifest, its voluntary character being indisputable, and the evidence warranting findings that plaintiff acted without independent advice, and did not understand nature and effect of the instruments, it was set nside. Smith v. Alexander, 12 O.

1. LIBEL.

i. Evidence.

Admissibility—Previous and subsequent publications.]—In an action for libel evidence may be given by the defendant of a previous publication by the plaintiff connected with the libel complained of, but not of a publication subsequent to the libel—at any rate, where it makes no difference to the defendant. Stirton v. Gummer, 31 O. R. 277, and Dorney v. Stirton, 1 O. L. R. 186, followed. Doixney v. Armstrong, 1 O. L. R. 237.

Admissibility - Publication of previous libel — Provocation — Subsequent libel — Mitigation of damages.]—In a libel action the defendant, in order to mitigate the plain-tiff's damages, may shew that he was pro-voked to libel the plaintiff, because the plaintiff had previously libelled him, but (Rose, J., dissentiente) no subsequent libel or slander can be given in evidence. Nor can the defendant be permitted to shew that the plaintiff has attacked the character and reputation of others. It having been elicited in cross-examination of the plaintiff that the defendant had recovered damages for previous and subsequent libels before mentioned in an action against the proprietor of the newspaper of which the plaintiff was editor, the Judge told the jury to take that fact into consideration :--Held, not misdirection, Downey v. Stirton, 21 C. L. T. 119, 1 O. L. R. 186.

Application to plaintiff—Proof of innuendo,]—An action for libel will be dismissed when the publication complained of does not on the face of it apply to the plaintiff, and he fails to prove the innuendo that it was meant to apply to him. Morrell v. Grant, 30 Que. 8. C. 327.

Notarial notice - Absence of malice-Publication-Service.]-A notification to a member of a municipal council not to take any part in a certain discussion and vote in the council, given by an interested party by means of a notice served by a notary, upon the ground that this member, having received favours from the party opposed to the one giving the notice, will not be impartial, is given in the exercise of a right, and, in default of proof of fraudulent or malicious intention, will not support an action for defamation .- The service by a notary of a notice upon a party is not a publication of the matter which it contains, and is not therefore ground for an action of defamation. Montreal Brewing Co. v. Vallières, 15 Que. K. B. 201.

Plaintiff not named - Circumstances pointing to identity-Imputation of incendiar-tsm.]-There is defamation when the plaintiff, without being named, is sufficiently indicated. The indication may result from circumstances left to the consideration of the tribunal. A paragraph in a newspaper, under the form of a telegraphic despatch from a named village, in which it was announced that "un personnage fort en vue" in that place was to be arrested as the result of an enquiry upon the subject of a "mysterious fire, and that a sensational scandal may be expected when the affair becomes known,' sufficiently indicates the mayor of the village, owner of a house burned down some time before, where the fire had provoked an enquiry on the part of the insurers. The writing complained of contained, in a disguised form and by way of insinuation, a sufficiently marked imputation of fraudulent or criminal incendiarism to amount to a libel. La Presse Publishing Co. v. Giguère, 17 Que. K. B. 268.

Previous writings — Provocation — Mitigation of damages—Meaning of words.] —In libel for two articles which were printed in the defendant's newspaper reflecting upon the character and conduct of the plaintifi — Held, that an article in another newspaper, published before the first of the alleged libels, purporting to be an account of an interview with the plaintiff in which he made an attack upon the defendant's newspaper by its name, and a letter signed by the plaintiff, published in two newspapers before the second of the algesed libels, in which the defendant's newspaper and the editor thereof-mot the defendant himself—were referred to in abusive language, were admissible in evidence upon the part of the defendant, in mitigation of damages.—Percy v, Gazco, 22 C. P. 521, followed.—Held, also, per Rose, J., that editorial articles which appeared on the same day in the newspapers which published the plaintiff's letter, referring to it and to the defendant's newspaper, were admissible too, as furnishing provoction for the second of the alleged libels; Meredith, C.J., contra.—In the first of the alleged libels one of the statements made about the plaintiff was "that during an election campaign the party managers had to lock him up to keep him from disgracing them on the stump," —Held, that evidence was admissible on the part of the defendant to explain the meaning of the words "lock him up," Stirton v. Gummer, 20 C. L. T. 5, 31 O. R. 227.

Trial - Nonsuit after verdict-Innuendo -Onus - Contradictory evidence-" Black-mailing."] - The word "blackmailing" is libellous per se, requiring no innuendo, and it does not lie upon the plaintiff to prove the falsity of the charge; for the purposes of the trial it is presumed in his favour, and the onus is on the defendant to prove it to be true, if justification is pleaded .- Semble, the better view is, that colloquial use has broad-ened the meaning of the word so that it may not have a criminal connotation. In an action for two libels, where the words used in tion for two incess, where the words used in one were not libelious per se, and were not, fairly taken, capable of the meaning alleged in the innuendo:--Held, as to that, that where motions were made for a nonsult both at the close of the plaintiff's case and after all the evidence was in, upon which judgment was reserved, the trial Judge had a right to give judgment dismissing the action, after a verdict rendered by the jury in fayour of the plaintiff. But as to the other libel, where the truth of the charge was not admitted by the plaintiff or proved on un-controverted evidence, and where the evi-dence as to the use of the word "blackmailing " was contradictory :--Held, that it was for the jury to pass upon the evidence, and the judgment dismissing the action on the ground that there was no evidence to go to Bround that there was no evidence to go to the jury, should be set aside and the verifict of the jury in favour of the plaintiff for $50 restored. Judgment in 32 O. R. 103, 20 C. L. T. 404, reversed in part. Macdonald y, Mail Printing Co., 21 C. L. T. 495, 2 O. L. R. 278.

Verdict for defendant-Motion to set aside-Weight of evidence-Innuendo-Proof of -- Jury -- Reasonable verdict, Kelly v. Journal Printing Co. of Ottawa, 5 O. W. R. 83.

Words of abuse—Natural signification— Innucado — Necessity for sheucing sense in which words understood.]—The defendant, a tax-collector, having applied to the plaintiff for payment of certain taxes, was told by him that J. S. should pay them. He subsequently wrote and posted to the plaintiff a post-card stating: "I saw J. S. this morning : he said make the S. B. pay it." In an action for libel in which the plaintiff alleged that "S. B." applied to him and means "soo of a bitc."."-Held, that there was no reas-nable evidence to go to the jury that the lettyrs conveyed the meaning attributed to thera by the plaintiff, they are words of abuse, but are, as often used, absolutely meaning/ess; they do not impute anything against the character of the mother, and are not a statement of a fact; and in their natural significance are not actionable; and the plaintiff had failed to prove his innuendo. Major v. McGregor, 23 C. L. T. 47, 305, 5 O. L. R. 81, 6 O. L. R. 528, 1 O. W. R. 832, 2 O. W. R. 830.

Criminal information.] — Where the libel charges the person libelled with having, by a previous writing, provoked it, the latter, by his affidavit on which he moves for a criminal information, is bound to answer it, otherwise the affidavit is insufficient, and the rule must be discharged. R, v. Whelan (1862), 1 P. E. I. R. 220.

B. 1903, c. 136, s. 4-Notice of action-Neusapaper correspondence, I--Action for libel contained in a letter signed by a fictitious name, said to be written by defendant and published in a newspaper of which defendant was a correspondent: --Held, that defendant is not entitled to notice of action under s. 4 above. Appeal allowed. Nonsuit set aside. Underscood v. Roach, 6 E. L. R. 501.

Damages.]-In an action for libel, where no material or actual damage is proved, the plaintiff may recover exemplary damages. Filiatrault v. "La Patrie" Publication Co., 28 Que. S. C. 380.

Damages — Particulars.]—Where in an action for libel the plaintiff claims damages generally, and makes no special allegation of real damages, the Court should assume that the damages sought are vindictive, and should not order particulars. Gauvreau v. Chapais, 18 Oue. S. C 135.

Defamatory statement in pleading-Right of action — Good faith—Relevancy — Determination of previous suit.]—An action against a party for a libellous statement in a judicial proceeding, raises matters concerning the relation of the subject to the administration of justice, and, as such, is governed by the law of England .--- 2. Under the law of England, no damages can be recovered for injurious words, forming part of a judicial proceeding, pleaded in good faith, with probable cause and without malice, the words being relevant to the issue, although they may be subsequently shewn to be false and injurious :- Semble, an action for such injurious statements, instituted before the determination of the suit in which they were pleaded, is premature; but, in the present case, it was unnecessary to pronounce formally upon this point, the action being dis-missed on other grounds. Wilkins v. Major, 22 Que. S. C. 264.

Defamatory statement in pleading— —Right of action—Prescription.]—A person complaining of a libellous statement in a pleading filed in a suit is not bound to posipone his action for damages until final judgment has been rendered in that suit:—Scanble, were he so to delay, his action might be prescribed. Wilkins v. Major, 22 Que, S. C. 203, 4 Que, P. R. 172.

Injunction to restrain publication— Remedy restricted to particular libels—Motion too wide.]—Middleron, J., held, that the Court cannot grant an interim injunction restraining the publication of libels generally. The most that can properly be asked for in any case is an injunction restraining further publication of particular libels. Natural Reassurces v. Saturday Night (1910), 16 O. W. R. 927, 20. W. N. 9.

Joinder of claim for wages—Particulars.]—A claim for damages for defamation may be joined with a claim for wages due. —2. The plaintiff in an action for damages for defamation, who alleges that he has been defamed to certain institutions and persons, must give particulars shewing what institutions and what persons employed in such institutions are intended. Gray v. Brommell, 6 Que. P. R. 234.

Newspaper-Publication in different districts - Several actions - Litispendence.] -A plaintiff may sue the publisher of a newspaper in several districts at the same time for damages for the particular injury which he has suffered in each of these districts by the publication of a libellous article in the newspaper. Casgrain v. Le Soleil Publishing Co., 9 Que. P. R. 34.

Newspaper-Criminal charge-Innuendo -Security for costs.] - On a motion for security for costs in an action for libel contained in a public newspaper, it was held, that if the words which plaintiff charges to have been used in a sense which involves the making by the person using them, of a criminal charge against the plaintiff, and may have that meaning, the case is brought within the exception contained in R. S. O. 1897, c. 68, s. 10 (a), and the defendant is not entitled to security for costs. Smyth v. Steven-son (1897), 17 P. R. 374, followed. Kelly son (1897), 17 F. R. 514, followed. Redy v. Newspaper innuendo-Verdict for defendant-New trial-R. S. C. c. 146, s. 265.1 -Action for libel. In the defendant's newspaper there appeared a letter which it was claimed charged plaintiff with having been corruptly induced not to be a candidate at the Dominion election. The jury brought in a verdict for defendant. On appeal a new trial was ordered, it being held that a criminal charge was imputed, and that all the jury had to do was to assess the damages. Kendall v. Sydney Post, 7 E. L. R. 410.

Security for costs-Right of sub-editor to security-Application first made to Master in Chambers-Finality of decision-"Judge of the High Court "-Leave to appeal from order of Judge in Chambers-Con, Rule 1278 -Affidavit in support of motion for security -Sufficiency-R. S. O. 1897, c. 68, ss. 10, 15.]-In an action for libels contained in a newspaper the defendant moved for security for costs under R. S. O. 1897, c. 68, s. 10, alleging in his affidavit that he was the "sporting editor of the newspaper, and that he had the sole control and editorship of the sporting and dramatic intelligence :--Held, that as the editor of a department of a newspaper, he was entitled to security for costs. -Semble, that all who are engaged in any capacity in the work of publishing the newspaper in which an alleged libel appears are paper in which an integer to be appended to prove the entitled to the protection given by the sta-tute. Egan v. Miller (1887), 7 C. L. T. 443, and Neil v. Norman (1901), 21 C. L. T. 203, distinguished. The plaintiff having moved under Con. Rule 1278 for leave to appeal from the above decision, held, that leave could not be given under either branch of the Rule, as there were no "conflicting decisions by Judges of the High Court upon the matter involved in the proposed appeal," and there appeared to be no "good reason to doubt the correctness" of the order sought to be appealed from. The defendants' affi-davit as to merits said, "I am advised by my solicitor, and I believe that I have a good defence on the merits," the statute requiring "an affidavit by the defendant or his agent . . . that the defendant has a good defence upon the merits."-Held, that the affidavit was sufficient. Crossby V. Innes (1837), 5 Dowl. P. C. 566, followed. Robinson v. Morris (1908), 15 O. L. R. 649, distinguished. The statute requires that the defendants' affidavit should shew "that the statements complained of were published in good faith, or that the grounds of action are trivial or frivolous." The defendant swore that the words used by him were "innocent and harmless." Robinson v. Mills (1909), 13 O. W. R. 606, 763, 853, 19 O. L. R. 162.

Settlement of action-Renewal of libel Opening of settlement.]-The defendant in an action for libel, who, after pleading justification, makes terms with the plaintiff, and signs an explanatory admission, with the understanding that a judgment of the Court in accordance therewith will be applied for later, impliedly engages not to renew his libellous attacks in the interval, and, if he does so, he violates the agreement, and matters are remitted to the status quo ante. Several libels - Damages-Separation.] A plaintiff who claims damages by reason of a series of libellous paragraphs and articles which he sets forth, cannot be ordered to declare what amount of damages he claims for each of such paragraphs and articles. Prévost v. Nationalist Printing Co., 6 Que. P. R. 428.

Verdict for defendants-Perverse verdict-New trial.]-Two substantive allegations of wrong-doing on the part of plain-tiff as a Minister of the Crown having been alleged, and there being no proof of the truth, and no justification for one of such allegations, the jury, after a charge in Mayour of the plaintiff, returned a verdict in favour of the defendants :- Held, on appeal (Irving, J., dissenting), that there should be a new trial. Green v. World Printing & Publishing Co., 8 W. L. R. 210, 13 B. C. R. 467.

Verdict for $1-Costs.]-Action for libel in which the jury brought in a verdict in favour of the plaintiffs for $1. The plaintiffs' counsel applied for full costs of suit, which was opposed. By Rule 926, where any action is tried by a jury, the costs shall follow the event, unless, upon application made at the trial, for good cause shewn, the Judge or the Court otherwise orders:---Held, that the verdict of $1 recovered should not carry costs, but no costs should be allowed to defendants. (a) Generally.

Accusation of malversation as a director of a company—distor to action— Bad administration as mayor—Putting in default inscription in law—C. P. 191, C. C. 1967.]—A newspaper sued in damages for having published that the plaintiff as president of a company had purchased privately some real estate to re-sell it with profit to the company cannot plead, (1) that the plaintiff as mayor of the city has negotiated a loan to the great loss of the citizens of the city, (2) the plaintiff was bound to put the defendant in default, either by letter or otherwise, to publish an explanation or a retraction. These allegations will be struck on an inscription in law. Garneau v. La Cie "La Vigil" (1900), 10 Que, P. R. 370.

Declaration — Several counts—Particulars of damages.]—In an action for libel and slander based upon several different counts, the plaintiff may be ordered to give particulars of the amount claimed on each distinct count. Hogy v. Ross, 5 Que. P. R. 339.

Defamatory pleading - Fire insurance - Implication - Fraud - Arson.] - The denial in a plea that a fire occurred accidentally and from cause unknown, does not imply or insinuate that the assured criminally set the fire. Allegations in a plea by an insurance company, that the assured made false representations in his application for insurance, made false solemn declarations after the loss, as to the value of the stock. with fraudulent intent, and that in swearing to false exaggerated statements, the assured did not swear to the truth and rendered himself guilty of fraud and his policy null, when pertinent to the issue, and pleaded in good faith and with probable cause, are not libellous or defamatory. Morrison v. Western Assee, Co., 24 Que. S. C. 111.

Defence — Publication — Falsiy,] — Motion to strike out as false, frivolgus, and vexatious, the following paragraphs of a defence in an action for libel: "The defendant does not admit that he is the publisher and editor of said newspaper." The fact of the defendant's being editor and publisher having been established by affidavit:—Held, that the paragraph could and should be struck out as false. Lanos v. Landry, 21 C. L. T. 312.

Disagreement of jury—Amendment by adding innuendoes.] — An action for libel. The cause was tried, and the jury disagreed. The plaintiff applied after trial to amend the statement of claim, by adding further innuendoes as to the libel complained of, the defendant opposing the motion, on the ground that a new case was set up, and also on account of the delay:-Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to the amendment sought, on payment of costs. Grant v. Grant, 24 C. L. T. 95.

Motion under C. R. 261 to strike out statement of claim-No reasonable cause of action-Publication of obituary notice-Imputation that plaintiff was illegitimate-Inference not probable-Question for jury-Attack on defendant's legitimacy struck out of pleading under C. R. 298.]-Plaintiff al-leged that defendant published an obituary notice of his father, which she alleged im-puted that she was illegitimate, and brought action to recover damages for libel. Defendant moved to strike out her statement of claim as disclosing no reasonable cause of action .- Middleton, J., held, that plaintiff had the right to go to trial as possibly, in the light of surrounding circumstances, she could shew enough to satisfy a jury that the words complained of were published with the intention that they should convey the meaning ascribed to them by plaintiff. Plaintiff's pleadings which attacked defendant's legiti-macy struck out under C. R. 298. Barnes V. Carter (1910), 16 O. W. R. 911, 2 O. W. NR

Particulars—Amendment of pleadings.] —The plaintiff sued the defendant for a libel published in his newspaper. Upon demand of particulars the defendant produced a certain number of issues of his newspaper. At the enguéte the defendant made a motion to amend his pleading so as to make it conform to the facts, and at the same time asked leave to produce a number of additional issues of his newspaper to form part of his amended pleading; —Held, that such a motion will be dismissed because it would work an injustice upon the defendant, who would be taken by surprise, and because it would alter the pleadings, Roy v. Mercier, 2 Que. P. R. 405.

Practice — Striking out defence—" Conciliatory plea" — Embarrassing matters.]— In a libel action certain paragraphs were struck out as irregular and embarrassing. Bight v. Warren, 7 E. L. R. 305.

Statement of claim.]—In a likel ration the defendants sought to strike out a paragraph in the statement of claim containing two sentences from the article complained of, because they were not included in the notice of complaint before action: — Held, that from the form of the notice in which he complained of the whole article the plaintiff could retain said paragraph or amend it as he desired. Allegations in aggravation of damages and proof of malice will not be struck out. Pringle v. Financial, 12 O. W. R. 929.

Budge, [1893] I Q. B. 571, followed. Plendings, that a number of other statements were made by defendants and such statements are true, without specifically setting out the facts, are bad; as the plaintiff would be left to fish out facts which defendants desired to prove as detrimental to his reputation. Defence - Justification - Particulars-Appeal - Res judicata.]-A libel originally complained of in the statement of claim stated that the plaintiff had been cashiered from the army for cheating at cards, and also that divorce proceedings had been taken against him. The defendant pleaded justifi-cation to the whole, and added two clauses to the same paragraph of his statement of defence, one of which related to the first charge and the other to the second. The first of these clauses was as follows: "The plaintiff was obliged to leave the army on the ground that he had cheated at cards, and stories of the peculiar character of the plaintiff's card-playing and of his having been cashiered from the army for cheating at cards were in circulation in the city of Vancou-ver." The plaintiff applied for an order striking out both these added clauses, but the application was refused on the ground that the defendants were entitled to plead them as particulars of the defence of justi-There was no appeal from this fication. order, but the plaintiff amended (by leave) by striking out so much of his complaint as related to the divorce proceedings, and the defendants then struck out of their defence the second clause, relating to the divorce proceedings. An application was then made to strike out the first clause, that relating to the plaintiff being cashiered from the army, and was refused by the Master and by a Judge in Chambers on appeal :--Held, per Falconbridge, C.J., that the plaintiff was not prejudiced by the clause; and, moreover, approving Dodge v. Smith. 1 O. Moral and social duty-Malice.]-A niece wrote to her aunt, with whom she was on terms of great intimacy, and with whom she was in the habit of staying, a letter making, on the authority of a correspondent, statements derogatory to the character of a gentleman well known to niece and aunt, who was a frequent visitor at the aunt's house, and it was alleged on the one side and denied on the other that in the letter, which had been destroyed, the niece told the aunt "to spread this about town at once :" -Held, that such a moral and social duty existed as made the communication a privileged one; and that, though a direction to spread the statement about would be some evidence of malice, it should be left to the jury to say whether that direction had been in fact given. Fenton v. Macdonald, 21 C. L. T. 228, 1 O. L. R. 422.

Newspaper — Misleading statement — Public interest—Damages—Costs.]—The defendant published in a newspaper a statement that the plaintiff had in the Police Court pleaded not guilty to a charge of theft and had been remanded for enquête. As a matter of fact, the inquiry was held later in the same day, and the plaintiff was discharged. The item stating that she had been remanded. however, did not appear in the newspaper until the following day, and no mention was made of the fact that it had subsequently been discovered that the charge was unfound-The defendant pleaded that the item was true and had been published without malice and in good faith and in the public interest; -Held, that, though the item was evidently published without malice and in good faith, yet, if it was in the public interest, it was equally so that the plaintiff's discharge should have been recorded. As there was no proof, however, of any pecuniary damage suffered by the plaintiff, judgment was given for $10 and costs as of a Circuit Court action of the lowest class. Hearn v. Graham, 23 C. L. T. 119

Newspaper—Repeating article from another newspaper — Defence—Justification — Payment into Court — Pleading.] — It is not a defence to an action of libel nor a justification to say that the alleged libel was published by the defendant in his newspaper simply as a fact upon the authority of another newspaper.—The defendant, having offered and paid into Court with his defence a certain sum of money, cannot demand the complete dismissal of the action, but o.ly dismissal of the claims of arx as it exceeds the amount paid in. Prévoat v. Huard, 7 Que. P. R. 406.

Pleading — Defence—Denial—Justification — Public interest — Mitigation of damages.]—In an action for damages for defamation, a defence based upon the truth of the words complained of (justification) and the allegation that they were used in the public interest, must be directed altogether to the facts alleged by the plaintiff, and all allegations of the defence relating to other facts will be struck out.—Where the defendant denies that he used the defamatory words complained of, he cannot set up the truth or the notoriety of the matters in respect of which he used the words, either as a ground of justification or in mitigation of damages. Bouchard v. Chartier, 31 Que, S. C. 535.

(c) Privilege.

Charge against civic employee by alderman — Justification—Public interest — Privileged communication — Damages. Barthe v. Lapointe, 4 E. L. R. 339.

Copied letter - Confidential clerk -Publication - Privileged occasion - What witness understood words to mean-Evidence -Damages.]-The defendant, a merchant, in letter accused the plaintiff of theft and threatened to expose him. This letter was handed to a confidential clerk and copied, and the copy was signed by the defendant and sent by post to the plaintiff :-- Held. per Barker, C.J., Landry and McLeod, JJ., Han-ington, J., dissenting, that the writing of such defamatory statements did not fall within the ordinary business of a merchant, and the giving of it to his clerk to copy was a publication, and the occasion of such publication was not privileged .- As the defamatory words imputed a crime and were actionable in themselves, the clerk could not be asked what she understood by them, unless there were some circumstances proved which would or might give a meaning to them different from what they ordinarily have: per Barker, C.J. and McLeod, J.; Landry, J., doubting; and Hanington, J., dissenting.-Per Hanington, J., that the question was proper, because, while the answer could not be a justification, it might go in mitigation of damages. Moran v. O'Regan, 38 N. B. R. 399, 4 E. L. R. 573.

Evidence of malice or indirect motive—Truth or falsity of defamatory words —Judge's charge—Damages.] — Action for libel and slander by plaintiff, a church treasurer, against defendant, who had audited the plaintiff's church books. Plaintiff obtained a verdict at the trial. An appeal was dismissed:—Held, that there was no misdirection by the Judge. Schaefer v. Schwab (1960), 12 W. L. R. 328.

Express malice — Interrogatories—Particulars—Practice.]—As the particulars of dered were particulars of malice which could not be given, appeal allowed. Certain interrogatories struck out and order for particulars set aside. Timmins v. National (1900), 12 W. L. R. 492.

Fair comment.]—On an application to strike out a plea of fair comment which alleged that, "in so far as the said words consist of allegations of fact that are true in substance and in fact, and in so far as they consist of expressions of option they are fair comment made in good faith and without malice upon a matter of public interest," on the ground that the alleged likel was an assertion of facts only and was not a comment —Meld, that the plea was good, but that the defendants would require to prove the truth of the facts on which they based their comment, distinguishing the facts from the comment, and that they must give particulars. Audet & Ouimet (1910), 19 Que K. B. 541.

Innuenda — Defamatory meaning ascribable to scored not libellous in themselves — Privileged occasion—Notice to public of dissolution of partnership—Dumages.]—Action for libel. Plaintiff and defendant conducted a theatre in partnership. The defendant inserted a notice in a newspaper to the effect that the theatre was closed and that he would not be liable for any debts contracted on be half of the theatre by the plaintiff:—Held, to be libellous and that the occasion was not privileged. Fowler v. Nankin, 11 W. L. R. 580.

Interest - Evidence of actual malice-Charge to jury-Evidence.]-On the trial of an action for damages for a libel alleged to be contained in a privileged communication, the Judge charged the jury as to the privi-lege, and added :---" If the defendant made the communication bona fide, believing it to be true, and the privilege existed that I have endeavoured to explain, then there would be no action against him :"-Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to a more explicit statement of the law on a point directly affecting the proof of an issue the burden of which was upon him. One portion of the communica-tion containing the alleged libel might be read as importing a grave charge against the plaintiff or as an innocuous statement of fact : -Held, that, as, in order to prove malice, the writer's knowledge of the falsity of the fact was the material point, the sense in which he may have used the words was the governing consideration. The Judge's charge was not open to objection for want of an explicit reference to pre-existing unfriendliness between the parties as proof of malice, where the only evidence of unfriendliness consisted of only evidence of unifferentiates that by the hard things said of the defendant by the 22 N. S. R. 129, plaintiff. Judgment in 32 N. S. R. 129, affirmed. Miller v. Green, 21 C. L. T. 254. 31 S. C. R. 177.

Interest — Evidence of actual malice— Nondirection—Missivertion — New trial.] — The plainliff, the local agent of an insurance company, voluntarily reiired from his position, and another agent was appointed in his stead. Shortly afterwards the defendant, the general manager of the company, wrote to a policy holder, who was a client of the plaintiff, that the latter had been "removed from the agency . . . because it was clearly necessary . . . I now find that he has collected money which up to the present time we have been unable to get him to report." At the time this was written it was untrue, to the knowledge of the defendant, that the plaintiff had been dismissed and that he had collected money of the company for which they had been ansile to get him to account: —Held, that the writing was libellous; but, if it was written bong ide, the occasion was privileged. 2. The trial Judge should have directed the jury that if it was proved that the defendant stated in his letter that which he knew to be false, it was evidence from which actual malice might be inferred, and, as he had not so directed that there should be a new trial. 3. That evidence of altercations between the plaintiff and defendant was proper to be submitted to the jury as evidence of malice. 4. That an inference of malice could be drawn from evidence that the defendant knew that the plaintiff had used abusive language with respect to him in connection with their business relations. 5. That the trial Judge erred in directing the jury that it was not open to the plaintiff to put another construction upon the word " report " than the sense in which it would be understood by the plaintiff and defendant themselves. 6. That the Judge erred in his definition of malice in connecting it with the idea of "reaking petty spite" upon the plainfift, and in leaving the jury under the im-pression that the defendant's evidence as to the state of mind in which he wrote the letter was conclusive. Miller v. Green, 33 N. S. R. 517.

Interest - Publication to clerk-Finding of jury.]-One of the defendants, the secretary of a trade association, prepared a statement for circulation among the members of the association, and gave it to a person to It contained an allegation that the conv. plaintiff was unworthy of credit :--Held, that, as the publication to the members of the association was privileged, in the absence of malice, on the ground of interest, the publication to the copyist, though she was not a regular employé, was also privileged, being a reasonable means employed to make the communication to the others. Lawless v. Anglo-Egyptian Cotton and Oil Co., 4 L. R. Q. B. followed-Held, also, that the finding of the jury that "there was no ground of action " ' was in effect a finding that the words were not defamatory. Harper v. Hamilton Retail Grocers' Assn., 21 C. L. T. 23, 32 O. R. 295.

Judicial proceedings — Report of— Statement of advocate—Good faith — Damages.]—The privilege which protects a report of judicial proceedings made in good faith does not extend to the publication of statements made by an advocate for one of the parties, outside of the Court, and in a private conversation, but these declarations, although they do not constitute a justification, may be pleaded to shew the good faith of the defendant and in mitigation of damages. Designations, Berthioume, 16 Que, S. Letter to newspaper-Defence-Provocation by uttrances of plaintiff reported in newspaper-Privilego-Mitigation of damagos - Counterclaim - Malice,] - Plaintiff was alderman of the city of Ottawa, and a member of the building committee of the public library, and defendant was the contractor for the stone and mason work of the library building. The libel complained of was in the letter written by defendant to the editor of the Ottawa "Evening Journal," published in that newspaper on 23rd October, 1903, in which, after calling attention to certain statements made by plaintiff at a meeting of the committee criticising the work upon the library building, defendant proceeds to charge in effect that plaintiff was actuated in his criticism by spite and bigotry : that plaintiff was himself an incompetent mechanic; that certain buildings were put up by plaintiff. "of which he ought to be ashamed;" that plaintiff owed defendant an account which he had to force him to pay; that plaintiff was always in a quarrelling mood; and that "if the like of Alderman Hopewell was a fit man to inspect his work, it was time he Laughton v. L. 127, fol-lowed:—Held, that it was the duty of plain-tiff as a member of the building committee to honestly criticise at meetings of the committee the workmanship on a building under its charge, and if such criticisms were not made in good faith and defendant felt aggrieved thereby, he could either resort to an action or communicate to the committee and such other persons as may have heard plaintiff's criticisms his defence thereto, accompanied with such retort upon plaintiff as may have been necessary as a part of his defence or fairly arising out of any charges made by plaintiff, and if in such retort de-fendant had reflected upon the conduct or character of plaintiff, it would be for a jury to say whether defendant acted in good faith and in self-defence, or was actuated by malice. But, he had no right to publish his defence and retort to the general public through the newspapers. In other words, the public as a whole, unlike the members of the committee and other persons who chanced to hear plaintiff, had no corresponding interest with defendant in the subject matter. . . The facts set forth establish no defence on the ground of privilege, but many of them would be admissible in mitigation of damages, and limited to that purpose may be [Reference to Stirton y. pleaded. . plended. . . . Malice - Privilege-Evidence-Meaning of words-New trial]-The defendant, the general manager of a life insurance company, wrote a letter to F., a policy-holder in the company, in which he stated that the plaintiff had been "removed" from his office as local had been "removed" from his office as local agent of the company, and assigned as the reason for such removal that they had tried for a considerable time past to get the plaintiff to attend properly to their business, and that it was only because it was clearly necessary that the change was made. He stated, further, that, to give the plaintiff the opportunity of getting the benefit of commissions on outstanding business, certain matters had been left in his hands, but that he, the de-fendant, now found that the plaintiff had fendant, now found that the plaintiff had collected money which, up to the present time, they "had been unable to get him to re-port." This letter was handed by F, to the plaintiff, who, in addition to acting as the local agent of the company, was a solicitor, and acted as F.'s legal adviser.-Held, in libel, that the trial Judge correctly directed the jury that if the statements made by the defendant in the letter in question, as to the reasons for dismissing the plaintiff, were made by him, knowing them to be false, there was malice, and his privilege was wholly gone.-Held, also, that the reception of evidence of \mathbf{F}_{\cdot} , as to the meaning which she attached to the words of the letter, was not, under O. 37, r. 6, " a substantial wrong or miscarriage in the trial," and was not therefore ground for a new trial. Miller v. Green, 35 N. 8, R. 117.

Mercantile agency — Privilege.]—In a mortgage forcelosure action, the Lion Brevery Company as second mortgagees were joined as defendants, and a mercantile agency published a notice or circular, distributed amongst its subscribers, that a writ had been issued against the Lion Brewery Company claiming ioreclo-are of a mortgage, and indicating by menas of the words "et al" that there were other defendants:—Held, in an action by the company against the uncentile agency, that the publication was libellous and not privileged. Newspaper - Privilege-Fair comment Matters that may be considered in mitigation of damages - Comment distinguished from assertion of facts.]-It is no defence to an action for libel, that the publication complained of purports to represent the assertions of a third party, or even the mere repetition by such third party of the assertions of anothey; such facts can be considered only in mitigation of damages. - While a newspaper may publish a report of the proceedings of a public body, and comment upon facts and statements then made that may be defamatory to individuals, it is not fair com-ment as against any such individuals, after a considerable interval of time, to republish such statements as facts or as alleged facts. Fair comment must never consist of the assertion of fact; it consists of opinions and inferences from facts assumed to be true.--A newspaper publishing and commenting upon proceedings in a judicial or semi-judicial investigation may comment upon the fact that further damaging evidence against a party might have been given if the tribunal had been disposed to receive it, but it is not fair comment to state such evidence, or the purport of it.—Hibbins v. Lee, 4 F. & F. 243, and Helsham v. Blackwood, 11 C. B. 111, approved and followed,-Semble, that the jury (or Judge sitting without a jury) may take into consideration the fact that the libellous statements were matters of public notoriety in the community previous to their publication by the defendant, in mitigation of damages. Newspaper—Public interest—Prinkego— Fair comment.]—It is the inglish law, by virtue of which constitutional liberty of the press exists in Canada, which is applicable to actions for defamation in respect of writlags in newspapers and to defences founded on privilege or fair comment. Under this law, three elements are necessary to enable the writer of a defamatory article to escape eivil liability therefor; (1) the writing must be true; (2) it must relate to facts which are of interest to the public; and (3) it must have been published in the public interest and without malice. Marcotte v. Bolduc, 30 Que, 8, C. 222.

Newspaper — Recklessness-Absence of actual malice-Retractation — Damages.] — Where a failse report, implicating an entircly innocent person in the commission of a serious crime, has been published in a newspaper, not maliciously, but without any effort to verify the statements contained therein, the fact that the newspaper was about to go to press at the time the information was received is not a valid excuse for failure to investigate the truth of the charge; and the fact that subsequently a retractation and apology were published in the same journal, while it may be taken into consideration in the assessment of damages, is not a sufficient reparation for the wrong inflicted on an innocent peron by a false accusation. The Court in such case will award exemplary damages to an amount in proportion to the degree of negligence proved. Auburn v. Berthiaume, 23 Que. S. C. 476.

Newspaper - Evidence - Comment on legal proceedings — Privilege — Public inter-est—Statutory declaration.]—The publication of libellous matter in a newspaper cannot be justified on the ground that it was published "as a matter of public news" or "in the bona fide belief that it is in the public interest that the matters referred to should be made public."-Neither can the publication be justified on the ground that the matter complained of has been embodied in a statutory declaration made before a justice of the peace with the object of bringing the charges contained in the declaration before the Municipal Council having power to enquire into the charges made and to dismiss the official complained of.—Under the heading of "Scott Act inspector accused of bribery" the defendant company printed in their newspaper an item to the effect that M. had made a declaration before a justice of the peace accusing the plaintiff, the county Canada Temperance Act inspector, of attempted bribery, and stating that in the declaration referred to it was alleged that the plaintiff on two different occasions promised that he would not prose-cute M. if the latter would give him a certain sum of money, which M. refused to do. At the trial the statutory declaration referred to was tendered in evidence, on behalf of the defendant, as evidence of bona fides, and was rejected by the trial Judge :--Held, that the evidence was rightly rejected, and that the defendant's appeal must be dismissed with costs.-2. That the making of the statutory declaration before the magistrate was not a necessary preliminary to an inquiry into the conduct of the plaintiff by the municipal council, and that the defendant could not claim privilege in respect to the publication. --Semble, per Graham, EJ, that a communication addressed to the warden of the council, and sent to him, might have been considered privileged. McDonald v. Sydney Post Publishing Co., 39 N. S. R. SI, 1 E. L. R. 61.

Newspaper - Fair comment-Truth of statement.]-The defendants published on p. 1 of their newspaper an article stating that some women from Seattle had been canvassing some time ago in Victoria for subscriptions for a bogus foundling institution, and on being questioned by the police had left town; on p. 8 of the same issue there was an article stating that two ladies for the past few days had been selling tickets for a recital by one Greenleaf, and that the tickets were being sold "in a manner similar to those for a recital by a gentleman of the same name nearly two years ago, which was ostensibly for the benefit of the Orphanage, but which the promoters were obliged to abandon," The manner of selling tickets was abandon." as a fact the same in both cases :--Held, that the article on p. 1 did not necessarily refer to the plaintiff, and that the article on p. 8 was fair comment on a matter of public interest, and was true. Wiles v. Victoria Times Printing & Publishing Co., 11 B. C. R.

Newspaper interview - Publication-Privilege-Innuendo - Meaning of words -Nonsuit.]-A defeated candidate in an interview with a newspaper reporter the day after an election informed him that the plaintiff (who was a political opponent and an active party worker), had, as soon as it was known he was in the field, come to and asked him to indorse a note for $1,000, which he refused to do, and had also later, in a speech, accused him of disloyalty. This was pub-lished in the newspaper the following day, and was the libel complained of. The innuendo alleged was, that the plaintiff had offered his services and support as a bribe, and had corruptly offered to desert his party and abandon his principles and support the defendant at the election if he would indorse his note; that his opposition to the defendant's candidature was not due to principle of party loyalty, but to the defendant's refusal to indorse the note; and that because of such refusal the plaintiff not only opposed his candidature but actacked him personally and ac-cused him of disloyalty. The interview was published, and the defendant next day called at the newspaper office, and the only thing he found fault with in the report was the omission of a few words in the introductory part. At the trial the Judge allowed the case to go to the jury, who found a ver-dict in favour of the plaintiff :--Held, that there was evidence that the defendant knew he was speaking for publication and that he authorized what he said to be published in a newspaper: and that the communication was not privileged. - Held. however, that the words were not capable of the meaning ascribed to them by the plaintiff, and that the motion for a nonsuit at the close of the case should have been allowed. Capital and Counties Bank v. Henty, 7 App. Cas. 741, 744, referred to.-Judgment of MacMahon, J., at the trial reversed in part. Hay v. Bingham, 11 O. L. R. 148, 6 O. W. R. 447.

Newspaper likel—Publication of pleadings—Judicial proceedings — Privilege.] — Held, by the Supreme Court of Canada, in dismissing an appeal, that the publication by a newspaper of statements contained in a pleading filed in the course of a civil action is not a privileged publication. Gazette v. Shallow, 6 E L. R. 348.

Petition to county council—Innuendo —Imputation of immoral character—Forced construction—Qualified privilege — No evidence of malice—Evidence for jury—Proper question, Pherrill v. Sewell, 12 O. W. R. 63.

Privilege-Proof of malice-Understanding of letter-Admissibility of evidence-Misdirection-New trial.]-The defendant, local manager of an insurance company of which the plaintiff had been an agent, wrote to Mrs. F., a policy holder, a letter in which he stated, among other things, that he had relieved the plaintiff of his agency; that the plaintiff had collected money which he had not reported, etc. In libel it was shewn that the plaintiff had not been dismissed from the agency, but wanted larger commissions in continuing, which were refused, and that he was not a defaulter, but was dilatory in making his returns :- Held, that evidence of Mrs. F. of her understanding of the letter as imputing to the plaintiff a wrongful retention of money, was improperly received, and there was a miscarriage of justice by its admission. The Judge at the trial charged the jury that "if the meaning of the first part of the letter is that he dismissed the plaintiff, and you decide that he did not dismiss the plaintiff, and it was not a correct statement, that is malice beyond all doubt. The protection which he gets from the privileged occasion is all gone. He loses it entirely. The same way with the second part. If it is not true, it is malicious, and his protection is taken away :---Held, that this was misdirection; that the question for the jury was not the truth or falsity of the statements. but whether or not, if false, the defendant honestly believed them to be true; and that it was misdirection on a vital point. The majority of the Court were of opinion, Girouard and Davies, JJ., contra, that, as the defendant had asked for a new trial only in the Court below, the Supreme Court could not order judgment to be entered for him; and a new trial was granted. Judgment in Miller v. Green, 35 N. S. R. 117, reversed. Green v. Miller, 23 C. L. T. 149, 33 S. C. R. 193.

Privilege — Relevancy — Justification.] —In a libel action defendant pleaded that a likel was published on the invitation or challenge of plaintiff:—Held, that this is a conclusion of fact, and that the facts and circumstances on which defendant claims privilege must be set out. In another paragraph defendant claims that the words in their natural and ordinary signification were true in substance and in fact.—Held, to be bad without particulars. Laird v. Scott, 9 W. L. R. 349.

Privileged occasion-Evidence of malice-Contradictory statements-Evidence for jury-Setting aside nonsuit — New trial. Woods v, Plummer, 10 O. W. R. 759.

Privileged occasion — Publication to clerk—Dictated letter.]—In an action for libel the declaration alleged that the defendant falsely and maliciously published a let-ter containing defamatory matter, and addressed and sent it to the plaintiff, and that this letter was dictated by the defendant to his stenographer, who extended the note and transcribed the same by typewriter, which transcribed copy was signed by the defendant and sent to the plaintiff. The defendant by his pleas denied malice, and alleged that the letter was drafted by him and given to his typewriter to be copied; that the typewriter was his confidential clerk, and as such was accustomed to deal with letters of a confidential nature, and that the typewriting of the letter in question was done in the performance of her duty as such confidential clerk; that no person except the defendant and the typewriter saw the letter, and its contents were not disclosed to any person other than the plaintiff :-- Held, on demurrer (per Tuck, C.J., Landry, Barker, and McLeod, JJ., Hanington, J., dissenting), that the pleas admit-ted a publication and did not shew that the occasion was privileged, and, if proved, would not be an answer to the prima facie cause of action alleged in the declaration, and were bad on demurrer .- Per Hanington, J., that, as the publication was to a confidential clerk, whose duty it was in the usual course of the defendant's business to copy letters of a confidential character, the occasion was privileged, and there should be judgment for the defendant on the demurrer. Election contest-Withdrawal of candidate-Allegation of improper motives-Trial of action-Verdict for defendant-New trial.] -K. was a member of the House of Commons prior to the election in 1908 and in August of that year a letter was published in the Sydney Post which contained the following, which referred to him :--" The doctor had a great deal to say of the elections in 1904. Well, I have some recollections of that contest myself, and I ask the doctor: Why did you at that time withdraw your name from the Liberal convention? The majority of the delegates come there determined to see of the delegates come there determined to see you nominated. Why did you not accede to their request? Doctor Kendall, what was your price? Did you get it? Take the good Liberals of this county into your confidence and tell them what happened in those two awful hours in a certain room in the Sydney Hotel that day ?--- The proceedings of the convention were held up for no reason that the delegates saw; but, for reasons which are very well known to you and three or four others whom I might mention. One speaker after another killed time at the Alexandriz. Hall while you were in dread conflict with the machine. Finally the consideration was fixed and you took off your coat and shouted for Johnson. What was that consideration? On the trial of an action by K. against the On the triat of an action by K against we proprietors of the Post the jury gave a ver-dict for the defendants:—Held, Davies and Duff, JJ., dissenting, that the publication could only be construed as charging K, with having withdrawn his name from the convention for personal profit, and was libellous, The verdict was therefore properly set aside The vertice was therefore property set as by the Court below, and a new trial ordered. —Appenl dismissed with costs. Newspaper libel — Justification—Evidence — Innuendo.]—Action for libel. Defendants justified that part of the libel which referred to plaintiff as having been "found loitering in the barroom" was true. This is a true statement of a fact. The assertion that plaintiff was in the "pay of a confessed gambler" is not supported by the evidence. It is no defence to say that an ordinary man might draw the same inference which the defendants did. Judgment for plaintiff for $25 and fixed costs. Patterson v. "Plaindealer," 10 W. L. Publication — New trial,]—The defendant took a copy of an alleged libellous resolution to the editor of a newspaper, who dictated it to his stenographer, and handed the defendant's copy back to her. Before the stenographer extended his notes, another copy of the resolution was found in the office, and from it the printer set up the type:—Held, reversing the decision of Irving, J., who dismissed the action on the ground that it was not shewn that the defendant was the cause of publication, that there should be a new trial. Mackenzie v. Cunningham, 21 C. L. T. 251, 8 B. C. R. 36.

Verbal accusations of theft repeated by letter-Scarch warrant-Damages.] - Plnintiff having been charged with stealing bruss, a detective on investigation made an unture representation to defendants, who had plaintiff's house searched, but nothing was found; they were not yet satisfied of plaintiff's innocence. This action was brought. Judgment given for plaintiff. Massel v. Dominion, 6 E, L. R. 209.

2. SLANDER.

i. Evidence.

Conflicting evidence - New trial.]-In an action for damages for certain slanderous words alleged to have been spoken by the defendant, of and concerning the plaintiff, during the progress of a trial before a justice of the peace, six witnesses called by the plaintiff testified to the use of the words complained of, while four called on the other side, including the justice, testified that they had not heard the words used, and the defendant denied having uttered them. The Coun-Court Judge treated the evidence for the defendant as a contradiction of that for plaintiff and gave judgment in the defendant's favour :---Held, that he erred in doing so, and Weight that there must be a new trial. should not be attached to the finding of the trial Judge on a question of fact where the reasons given disclose erroneous judgment in weighing the testimony. Zwicker v. Zwicker, 33 N. S. R. 284.

Malicious intent--Presumption of malice --Evidence rebutting it--Qualified privilege.] --Slander gives a right to an action only when it has been uttered with intent to do harm or through malice.--The presumption of malice created by damaging statements, is rebutted by evidence as to circumstances which have justified the party alleged to have uttered the slanders, or which establish his good faith--He who is solicited at his own domieil by one seeking a favour is protected by a qualified privilege with respect to any answer he may give, and, from the moment he proves that, although damaging in itself, his reply was inspired by a sense of the duties of his position, or by a serious, weighty and lawful interest, which dispelled from his mind every other thought, he is freed from all responsibility for the consequences thereof, Belley v, Labrecque (1910), 20 Que, K. B. 70.

Notice given by public crier-Repair of road - Malice.] - The defendant gave notice to the plaintiff at the door of the parish church, as the congregation were issuing from high mass, by the public crier, to repair and maintain his road and keep it open, in default of which the defendant would take the necessary proceedings to compel him to do so. The plaintiff having claimed $195 damages for defamation on account of this notice, which he alleged had been given maliciously, the defendant, in his defence, admitted that he had given the notice, but denied having done so maliciously. Neither of the parties offered oral evidence, leaving the Court to decide the cause upon the record :--Held, that there being nothing to justify the defendant in giving such a notice, which should have been given privately through the municipal officers, and not publicly at the church door, the defendant was guilty of a tortious act for which he was liable to the plaintiff. Hamel v. Lauziere, 22 Que. S. C. 194.

Bengert, 1 Sask. L. R. 259, 7 W. L. R. 891, that while there was a variance between the words laid and those proved, yet the words proved did impute the offence charged, and were sufficient to support the allegation. Rutledge v. Slander of real estate—Haunted house —Cause of action—Malice—Proof of special damage—Statute of Westminster II.—Neuzpaper—Quantum of damages.]—The publication in a newspaper of a statement that the plaintiff's house is haunted is, under the Statute of Westminster II. 35 Edw. I. c. 24 (Bac, Abr, vol. 1, 102), an actionable wrong, if special damage results, though there be no actual malice or any intention to injure the plaintiff or to depreciate the value of the property.—Per Richards, J.A.: — The members of the Court should, as educated men, assume that there are not such things as ghosts, and, therefore, that the statement published by the defendants was necessarily false. It should also be presumed that the reporter and the sub-editor who were responsible for the publication of the article, as educated men, knew that it was false, and, therefore, had no reasonable justification or excuse for publishing it. They thus rendered their em-ployers, the defendants, liable in damages for the natural results of such publication, though such results were not foreseen by them .--- The evidence shewed that the plaintiff lost a sale of the house in consequence of the publication, and that the house, being vacant, was damaged by crowds resorting to it on account of the report that it was haunted, and the plaintiff should be awarded $1,000 and costs. Per Phippen, J.A., concurring with Richards, J.A. - The case falls within the principle of Riding v. Smith, 1 Ex. D. 91, and Bruce v. Smith, 1 Fraser (Court of Session Cases, Scotland) 327, rather than within that other class of cases where, on the ground of public policy, or protection of property, or for other sufficient reason, the Courts have held honest statements to be lawful, although occasioning damage to the innocent .- Per Perdue, J.A., dissenting :- In such a case the plaintiff must prove that the statement is false, that it was published maliciously, and that special damage resulted. The statement can only be actionable if it was intended to be believed and was believed by some person who was influenced by it to the detriment of the plaintiff. But, if it was so repugnant to common sense and common knowledge that no proof of its untruth would be necessary, it is difficult to see how any one could have been deceived by it. The plaintiff failed to shew that the statement complained of was wrongful and was made with the knowledge that it would cause, or was likely to cause, injury to the plaintiff, or that the defendants, in publishing it, intended or contemplated any injury to the plaintiff or her property, and without such evidence the plaintiff should not recover. Intention to injure must be established, either directly or by reasonable inference, to support such an action. It is clear that the statement was only published as an item of news, with no intention to do any wrong to the plaintiff. and without any idea that the publication would cause any damage to the plaintiff's property. The plaintiff also failed to prove that she sustained special damage resulting directly from the publication complained of. The finding of the trial Judge on this point and as to those parts of the evidence which should be believed or disbelieved should not be interfered with. It must be shewn that an actual sale was prevented. Evidence of opinion to shew a general depreciation of value caused by the statement is not suffi-cient in such a case when no lasting injury was shewn to have been caused. Nagy v. Manitoba Free Press Co., 5 W. L. R. 20, 453, 16 Man. L. R. 619:-Held, by the Supreme Court of Canada, affirming the above, that the reckless publication of a report as to premises being haunted by a ghost raises a presumption of malice sufficient to support an action for damages for depreciation in the value of the property, loss of rent, and expenses incurred in consequence of such publication. The rejection of his evidence by the Judge, in a trial by jury, is improper and a sufficient ground for a new trial.-2. In an action for slander, the rendering of an account for professional services by the plaintiff to the defendant, however exaggerated circumstances may have made it appear to the latter, cannot be set up by him as a provocation, in mitigation of damages, still less as an excuse for the slander. A reference to it, in this sense by the Judge, in his charge to the jury, is a misdirection for which the plaintiff. on being nonsuited, is entitled to a new trial. -3. The utterance of a slander, in the presence of one person, is a sufficient publication to afford a legal ground of action, and it does not matter whether such a person was, or not, competent to become a witness in a Court of justice. To charge the jury that Court of justice. there was no publication of the slander in such circumstances, is misdirection which entitles the plaintiff, on nonsuit, to a new trial. Cabana v. McManamy, 35 Que. S. C. 3.

Understanding of by-standers of words spoken — Question for jury-Non-direction-Excessive damages-New trial.]-In an action for defamation, in which the jury awarded the plaintiff $500 damages, the evidence shewed that the plaintiff was a tenant of the defendant, paying rent for the property occupied by her and receiving a certain sum in return for the support of the defendant, who boarded with her. The words complained of were alleged to have been spoken on the termination of this arrangement, when the plaintiff removed her goods from the house, and were alleged to be stole my feather bed and silver spoons." The evidence of witnesses called by the plaintiff shewed that the words first used by the plaindif fendant were "You took my feather bed and fendant were " you took my reactive you and silver spoons," but that when the plaintiff asked him the (estion, " Do you really blane me for stealing them?" the defendant re-piled, " Most undoubtedly I do." There was further evidence to the effect that the defendant was 85 years of age, very indistinct in his speech and hard of hearing and accus-tomed to make use of an ear trumpet, and that on the occasion of speaking the words complained of he did not use an ear trumpet. There was no evidence that the defendant correctly heard the question addressed to him by the plaintiff in the words used by her, or that he meant to accuse her of stealing, or that the words used by him might not have been used in a perfectly innocent sense -Held, that this view of the question should have been placed before the jury by the pre-siding Judge, and they should have been asked to consider the question, in what sense the hearers understood the words used, and that there having been no such instructions there must be a new trial. Some of the remarks used by the presiding Judge were calculated to impress the jury with the idea that they had unlimited scope in relation to the question of damages, although this impression would be corrected to some extent by later instructions. Damages-Quantum-Verdict of jury for substantial sum-Appeal-Refusal of D. C. to interfere with finding of jury-Refusal to provide for set-of of another claim when established.—In an action for damages for slander plaintiff was allowed $150 by the jury, and Mulock, C.J.Ex.D. entered judyment accordingly. Defendant appealed and plaintif cross-appealed.— Divisional Court keld, that the Court should not interfere with the finding of the jury unless satisfied that the amount was so large that no twelve men could have reasonably given it, or unless it to have considered, or acted upon a wrong principle.—Johnston v. Great Western Re. Co. [1904] 2 K. H. 251, followed.—The Court refused to interfere and provide that the judyment should be set-off against a suggested money claim of defendant against a plaintif, when established. Silt v. Alexander (1910), 17 O. W. R. 775. 2 O. W. N. 401.

Election harangne — Injuria absque damao, I.— Slanderous words spoken by a candidate to an opponent in an election harangue, even when they cause no real damage, are ground for an action. Cf. Angers v. Pacaud, 5 Que, Q. B. 17. Verville v. Martin, 17 Que, K. B. 305, 4E. L. R. 540.

Interrogatories on facts and artieles-Must be definite-Damages for slander must be proved—C. P. 365.]—In an action in damages for slander, the interrogatories upon facts and articles must be well defined as to the words and expressions used.—The defendant's station in life and circumstances should be disclosed to the Court.—Substantive evidence should be made to determine the amount of damages. Gravel v. Dumont (1910), 11 Gue. P. R. 204.

Joinder of several defendants.]--In an action for damages for slander against several defendants, these defendants must be implemediaded separately, if combination or conspiracy between them is not charged in respect of said slanders, and if the orcanslons where these slanders were made are distinct, the language charged againt each defendant differs, and the persons present were not the same. Lecompte v. Rodrigue, 11 Que. P. R. 28.

Mitigation of damages - Provocation Set-off.]-An elector, who has made a complaint in respect of a voters' list, which a municipal council is revising, has the right to appeal from the decision of the council, but he has no right to say ostentatiously, while the council is sitting and with the ob ject of intimidating it or ridiculing its decision, that he is going to appeal. If he does so, and the secretary-treasurer of the council, who has prepared the list and acted as clerk and adviser to the council, says to him that "it is easy for him to appeal because he is insolvent, he has not paid his taxes, and is already in debt to the municipality for costs," the manner in which this elector has acted will be taken into consideration by the Court in mitigation of damages in an action brought by the elector against the secretarytreasurer for slander on account of the words quoted .--- 2. A party against whom a debt cannot be set off because it is not liquidated, may, if he chooses, himself demand that it be set off. Desmarais v. Geoffrion, 22 Que. S. C. 229.

New slander since action—Incidental demand.]—Slanders uttered by the defendant after the commencement of an action for damages for previous slanders cannot be made the subject of an incidental demand in the same action, but must be the subject of a separate suit. Lefebvre v. Godin, 5 Que. P. R. 279.

Nominal damages — Costs—Cause for depriving plaintiff of—Misconduct. Ellis v. Sherrin, 3 O. W. R. 938.

Nominal damages—Costs.]—In slander, for words spoken imputing unchastity to the plaintiff and the commission of an indecent act by her in a public place under s. 177 of the Criminal Code, without claim for special damage, there was a verdict of $1 damages —Held, that the defendant having denied the speaking of the words, and the only other defence being, that it was mere abuse spoken in the course of a quarrel between the parties, and the jury by their verdict having found both these questions in the plaintiff's favour, there was no reason for depriving her of the costs of the action in which she was successful. Pickles v. Sinfield, 24 C. L. T. 27.

Offence against morals — Status of plaintiff as public officer—Proof of apecial damage—No necessity for — Case for jury.] —In an action of slander for words used impating an offence which, though non-criminal, and not being an indictable offence under the Criminal Code, yet affects a person's status as a public officer, the plaintiff is entitled to have the case go to the jury without making out a prima facie case of special damare suffered. W. v. A., 13 B. C. R. 233.

Particulars.]—The plaintiff in an action to recover damages for defamatory words uttered in the presence of two persons specilied and named, and also before a "a large number of other persons," will be ordered, upon motion, to give the names of these persons, the dates upon which the words were spoken. And the place at which they were spoken. Lefebure v. Lefebure, 4 Que. P. R. 366.

Parties-Joinder of plaintiffs - Pleading -Striking out-Several rights of action arising out of same transaction.]-The plaintiffs, a married man and an unmarried woman. brought the action for damages in respect of alleged statements by the defendant on three different occasions that the plaintiffs had been criminally intimate, one of the occasions complained of being by letter to the female plaintiff. A motion to require the plaintiffs to elect which would proceed with the action, and to strike out the claim in respect of the letter to the female plaintiff as shewing no cause of action or as embarrassing, was refused, leave to amend being given to both parties. The plaintiffs thereupon amended by claiming for both of them damages in respect of another allegation to the same effect, on another occa-sion, for the male plaintiff special damage, and for the female plaintiff the benefit of R. S. O. 1897 c. 68, s. 5 :- Held, that the plaintiffs were entitled to sue in one action for damages in respect of the statements made on three occasions, there being publication as to both, and these three being a series with a common question of law and fact, but that the joinder of the claim in respect of the letter to the female plaintiff, which gave rise at most to a cause of action in the male plaintiff, was improper, and that this claim, unless amended so as to be simply one in aggravation of damages, should be struck out as embarrassing. Order of Britton, J., 3 O. W. R. 421, as to the joinder of parties, O. W. R. 421, as to the joinder of parties, affirmed, and order of Anglin, J., as to the pleadings, varied. Agar v. Escott, 24 C. Privileged occasion — Malice — Misdirection.]—In an action for shander, where the occasion was privileged, the trial Judge, in defining malice, which it was essential for the plaintiff to prove, told the jury that it consisted of a reckless statement, of a statement not true, made without consideration of what the probable consequences might be to another person, and of a statement not made in good faith—not truly, but wantonly and recklessly, and without proper consideration — Held, misdirection, for it should have been left to the jury to say whether the de-

Proof of defamatory words-Verdict -New trial-Aggravation of damages-Evidence-Pleading.]-Motion for a new trial in an action of slander upon the ground that the verdict was perverse. The defamatory words were proved, but the jury nevertheless found a verdict for the defendant, instead of giving nominal damages to the plaintiff : -Held that a new trial should not be granted in order that the damages which the jury in order that the damages which the Jury ought to have assessed should be assessed to the plaintiff. Another ground of the mo-tion was that the Judge had refused to admit evidence offered by the plaintiff and directed to aggravate the damages :- Held, that, inasmuch as there was no allegation in the plaintiff's pleading to entitle him to give evidence of the acts of the defendant on which he wanted to rely to aggravate the damages, a new trial should not be allowed on this ground. It would be a highly inconvenient practice to require a defendant to go to trial at the risk of being met with a number of circumstances which the other side was permitted to give evidence of, without having set them forth in his pleading, and which might, if unanswered, seriously affect the damages. Milligar v. Jamicson, 22 C. L. T. 409, 4 O. L. R. 650.

Special damage — What constitutes.]— The special damage required in an action of defamation must be such as would be the reasonable and natural result of the words used.—Where, therefore, the alleged defamatory words were that the plaintiff, who received an allowance for the maintenance of his wife's niece, from her father's estate, had put in an account of trilling matters, such as for enadies, oranges, etc., the special damage alleged being that in consequence thereof the niece and wife had left him and refused to live with him :—Held, that such damage was not such as was recognisable at law, not being the natural and reasonable consequence of the words used. Ludlow V. Batson, 23 C. L. T. 151, 5 O. L. R. 309, 2 O. W. R. 41.

Understanding of bystander - Jury -Misdirection-Damages.]-In an action for slander, what a bystander says he understood the words to mean is not the guide the law provides for the jury. The true guide is what he would on the occasion of the speaking of the words have reasonably understood them to mean .--- A jury should not be directed that they might draw an inference as to the sense in which words were understood, from the conduct of a bystander, particularly where such conduct was equivocal.-Although the amount of damages is, in a very large sense, in the hands of the jury, it is necessary al-ways as a matter of law to direct their attention to the rule which the law prescribes for their guidance, and not to leave them under the belief that they need not make any inquiry as to the injury occasioned to the complainant by the slander, but were free to give whatever they thought proper. Watt v. McQuaig, 40 N. S. R. 553.

Words capable of defamatory meaning-Question for jury--Crime.]-In an action for slander, if the words used by the defendant are capable of being reasonably understood in a slanderous sense, it should be left to the jury to find whether or not they were so used, and the plaintif should not be nonsuited on the ground that the words did not necessarily inpute the commission of a crime. Cameron v. Overend, 15 Man. L. R. 408. I W. L. R. 545.

Words imputing unchastity - Absence of averment and proof of special damage -Restriction to nominal damages-Interlocutory judgment - Assessment of damages at trial-Libel and Slander Act-Costs.] - In an action, under s. 5 of the Libel and Slander Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 68, for defamatory words spoken of a woman imputing unchastity to her, she " may recover nominal damages without averment or proof of special damage :"-Held, that, in the absence of such averment and proof, only nominal damages can be recovered .- In default of a defence in such an action, being one for pecuniary damages, under Rule 589, only interlocutory judgment can be entered to fix liability, and the damages, even though nominal, must be assessed by the jury at the trial, and the plaintiff is therefore entitled to the costs of such trial. Whitling v. Fleming, 16 O. L. R. 263, 11 O. W. R. 820.

iii. Pleadings.

(a) Generally.

Accusation against candidate at municipal election — Good faith—Privilege.]—An elector who, in the course of a municipal election, being consulted about the qualifications of a candidate, and questioned by the canvaseers of the candidate as regards his hostile attitude, replies that he would not vote for a man against whom an accusation of corruption has been publicly brought, and who repeats these remarks in good faith, is not liable in damages for defamation. Owimet v. Durand, 28 Que. S. C. 465.

Action against newspaper — Statement of claim—Motion to strike out certain paragraph—Security for costs — Defence — Bona fides—Public benefit.]—Motion by defendant to strike out paragraph of statement of claim and for security for costs dismissed, as the paragraph was in itself a count for slander and could not be struck out, and although defendant might have a good defence based upon privilege it would not help him as far as costs are concerned.—Newspaper editors have no privileges and immunities beyond ordinary individuals in slander actions. Greenhow V. Weeley (1910), 16 O. W. R. 555, 1 O. W. N. 996, 1001.

Character of plaintiff.]—In an action for damages to the reputation, the defendant may plead the evil reputation of the plaintiff. Coté v. Desrosiers, 6 Que. P. R. 65.

Damages — Plea alleging privilege, good faith and truth—The privilege of an alderman when discharging his duties of office—Notice of suit—Want of notice not pleaded—C, P, 88.1—An alderman, when discharging the duties of his office, has the right to make known at a meeting of the council the reasons why he votes against the appointment of a person to whom it is desired to give a municipal office, and amongst others, " that the person in question is a drunkard and makes immoderate use of intoxicants," providing the fact is true; it is even his duty to do so .- Such words, used under such circumstances and in the exercise of a right or of a duty, are privileged, and it is for the plaintiff, if he proposes to prove his case, to shew that the defendant acted with malice. -An alderman is a public officer, and as such, has the right, when he is sued in damages for an act committed by him in the exercise of his office, to the notice provided for by Art. 88 C. P., provided he acted in good If it should happen that the defendfaith. ant should not have raised such want of notice, it results from the text of the law that the Court itself should come to his assistance. Lamy v. Page (1910), 16 R. de J. 456.

DEFAMATION.

Declaration—Particulars.]—If the occasion on which it is alleged that the defamatory statements were made is precisely set forth in the declaration, the defendant is not entitled to have the names of the witnesses who were present. Lebel v. Tourgis, 9 Que. P. R. 59.

Declaration—Particulara—Names of pertons present—Previdue.]—In an action for slander, where the declaration mentions an person in whose presence the words complained of were spoken, the plaintiff is not obliged to give the first name of such person, unless it appears that confusion may arise without it. 2. The plaintiff is not bound to give the names of the persons in whose presence the words were spoken, if the particulars given are precise enough to permit the opposite party to defend himself without knowing such names. 3. The words "similar statements" in such declaration, coming after the enumeration of defamatory remarks of the defendant, need not be particularised. Kennedy v. Shurtleff, 3 Que. P. R. 514.

Declaration—Special damage—Particulars — Names of persons to schom scords spoken.]—In an action for damages for defamation, where the plaintiff complains of having suffered "in his sensibilities, his honour and the confidence which his friends and fellow-citizens had in him." he thereby alleges special damage, and is bound to give particulars in his declaration.—The plaintiff is not bound to give the names of all the persons in whose presence the defamatory words were spoken. Ducharme v. Brulé, 10 Que. P. R. 188.

Defence — Denial — Justification — Innuendo—Hypothetical case.] — In sinder, the words ecomplained of were to the effect that the plain iff, a vendor of patent pills, had pild $50,600 for his title as a Senator of the Dominion, and was advertising that he was made Senator because of the benefits conferred by his discovery in pills. Innuendo, that he had corruptly briled menhers of the Government, and had purchasei the office, etc. — Heid, that a defence that if the defendant did speak the words, they, oven with the innuendo, were not libellous, and denying the innuendo; and saying that without it the words were not libellous, was not open to objection, and not embarrassing. 2. That a defence justifying the slander and asserting, in addition, that the plaintiff did pay the Government $50,000 and did advertise as alleged, and that the particulars were well known to the plaintiff, but not to the defendant, was not embarrassing nor open to objection. 3. That the defendant was not at liberty to allege that the words actually spoken were different from those charged in the statement of claim, and to plead as to those other words something either by way of answer or in mitigation of damages; and a defence alleging that, if the defendant did speak the words, he did so not as stating a fact, but as stating a rumour generally believed, should be struck out. Beaton v. Intelligencer Printing and Publishing Co., 22 A. R. 97, distinguished. Rassam v. Budge, [1893] 1 Q. B. 571, followed :--Held, also, that the remaining paragraphs of the defence, which were pleaded to a hypothetical case. which might never arise, and could arise only on an amended statement of claim, were objectionable and should be struck out. Pulford v. Wallace, 21 C. L. T. 238, 1 O. L. R. 278.

Defence—Master and servant—Insurance company.]—An insurance agent, such for defamation by the insurance company which he formerly represented, may plead, besides the truth of certain facts, that he made other statements than those with which he is charged with making, and made them because the plaintiffs on their part made defamatory statements concerning the company which he now represents, thereby injuring the defendant. Vallée v. Canada Life Assurance Co., 3 Que. P. R. 272.

Defence — Mitigation of damages.]—In an action for slander the defendant may allege facts and circumstances which occurred on the occasion in regard to which complaint is made, when such facts and circumstances are of such nature that, if proved, they will, if they do not altogether justify the conduct of the defendant, at least make the injury appear less grave and mitigate the damages. Renault v. Lortie, 3 Que. P. R. 405.

Defence — Mitigation of damages.]—In an action for damages for shander the defendant may allege certain facts which, if they are proved, will go, if not to justify the alleged defamation, at least to mitigate the damages. Dion v, Fajard, 4 Que, P. R. 351.

Defence — Proposation — Set-off — Justification—Defence—Cross-action.]—Rude and provoking words, but not reflecting upon the honour or credit of a person, do not justify or excuse defamatory accusations.— In an action to recover damages for shander, grounds of defence arising from provocation and set-off of injuries should be pleaded as defences to the principal action; and the defendant cannot support a cross-action for damages unless the injuries done by the plaintiff are more grave and damaging than those suffered by Lim. Cleveland V. Sherman, 19 Que. 8, C. 270.

Defence-Privilege-Scandalous and irrelevant statements. Caldwell v. Buchanan, 10 W. R. 682, 2 O. W. R. 830.

Interest -- Malice - Judge's charge.] -The plaintiff and defendant were members of the same cheese-making a sociation. The plaintiff sued the defendant for slander for saying to the cheese-maker of the association that the plaintiff sent skimmed milk to the cheese factory. The defendant pleaded privi-lege. The Judge charged the jury that the occasion was privileged, and that the defendant was entitled to a verdict unless they came to the conclusion that he was actuated by malice; that they might take into consideration all the circumstances and all the evidence in coming to a conclusion as to whether the defendant acted from ill-will or not in reporting the matter to the cheesemaker :- Held, that this charge was entirely free from objection. Preston v. Thompson, 21 C. L. T. 464.

Irrelevant plea.] — In an action for damages by the advocate of a municipality against an elector in respect of words spoken by the latter charging the former with making out of his position an exorbitant revenue, it is not hawfal for the defendant to plead that the plaintiff had publicly mentioned that he made from this source a certain sum; and such an allegation will be struck out of the pleas upon demurrer. Monty v. Mercure, 9 Oue, P. R. 253.

Justifying words not charged — Striking out — Demurrer.] — To an action for damages for slander the defendant may not plead facts tending to justify other words than those mentioned in the declaration. The elimination of allegations in a plea not amounting to justification, should be sought by demurrer, and not by a motion to strike them out. Phillips v. Laviolette, 4 Que. P. R. 396.

Liability for tort — Defamation—Witnesses in Courts of justico—Defamatory statements while under examination — Privilege absolute.]—The privilege of a witness in a Court of justice, as to defamatory statements made by him while under examination, is maintainable in respect of them. Code v. Deneau (1910), 19 Que, K. B. 272. Malice-Bad faith.]-It is not legal to plead to an action for damages for defamation that the action is malicious and is the product of the hatred which the plaintiff bears to the defendant. Melancon v. Archambeault, 6 Que. P. R. 460.

Master and servant—Malice.]—A master is not necessarily liable in damages because, in the presence of fellow servants or even of casual bystanders, he accuses his servant of theft. Such an accussation is prima facie privilege due to destroy the qualified privilege there must be some evidence of malice, such as want of belief in the accusation, intemperate language, seeking the opportunity to make the accusation publicly, or the like. Githere V. Busse, 22 C. L. T. 137, 3 O. L. R. 561.

Plea of immunity — Engineer charged, under a contract, with the duty of reporting upon work and materials—Execution of the contract—Obligation on the part of the contractor to furnisk supplies of a certain standard.]—When an engineer, charged with the duty of superintending the execution of a contract, is empowered to pass upon the work done and the materials supplied, he is free from all Hability for damages if, whether rightly or wrongly, but in good faith, he condemns either the work or the materials.— If the kind of supplies to be employed in a work are specified with precision, the contractor has no right to use other materials, even though they are of as good a quality. Audet x, Ouimet (1000), 37 Que S. C. 385.

(b) Privilege.

Privilege — Justification — Denial of innuendo — Motion to strike out defences. Goodwin v. Graves, 4 O. W. R. 449, 473.

Privilege—Public interest — Provocation -Set-off.]-A defendant has a right to plead to an action for slander that as a physician and a member of parliament he requires and is entitled to the esteem and confidence and consideration of his constituents and fellow citizens. 2. In an action for slander an allegation that everything which the defendant has said has been said in the public interest, in good faith, and without malice, and is a legitimate criticism on those who attacked his private character and attempted to tarnish it, if assisted in doing so, is not a valid defence and will be out upon petition en droit. 3. Where a plea of set-off of injuries may be set up as a defence to an action or as mitigation of the damages claimed, it must be alleged and proved that the provocation received was the immediate cause and was of sufficient violence to make the defendant lose the control of his will. Bissonnette v. Syl-vestre, 6 Que. P. R. 255.

Privilege — Discovery — Examination of plaintiff—Relevancy of questions—Mitigation of damages—Rule 388.]—In an action for shander, the defence, besides a denial of the material allegations of the staten. ut of claim, was that the words were spoken without malice, in the belief that they were true, and under such circumstances as to make them a privileged communication. There was no justification. The works were :

"He perjured himself and stole the money from the township:" and the innuendo was that the plaintiff had committed wilful and corrupt perjury for the purpose of procuring a reward of $5 from a municipal corporation, and had secured the reward by perjury :--Held, that certain questions put to the plaintiff upon his examination for discovery relating to the reward and directed to eliciting information as to the payment of it to the plaintiff; another question as to statements made by the plaintiff at meetings of the municipal council; another question as to the fact of the council having offered a reward to be paid to any one who killed a dog found worrying sheep; another question apparently intended to elicit information as to the particular times or occasions when the words were spoken; and other questions which might elicit information relevant to the defence of privilege - were all questions relevant to the issues raised on the pleadings, and should be answered by the plaintiff. Though a defendant may not be able to prove all that is necessary to be shewn to establish a defence of privilege, he is entitled to the benefit of what he does shew, in mitigation of domages, if it goes to that-subject, perhaps, to his having given the notice required by rule 488. McKenzie v. McLaughlin, 22 C. L. T. 92, 1 O. W. R. 58, 80.

Privilege — Ecclesiastical immunity — Threat to refuse sacraments—Injury to plaintiff—Damagos.]—A priest who threatens to refuse the sacraments to commissioners of echools of his parish if they appoint as secretary-treasurer a particular person, renders himself liable to an action for damages on the part of the latter.—2. He cannot in such a case set up a privilege or an immunity except where there has been a refusal on the part of the commissioners to observe a grave moral obligation, for example, in appointing to such an office an incompetent person from the moral point of view and so declared by a competent authority. 85, Pierre v. Beaulieu, 33 que. 8. C. 385.

Privileged occasion - Excessive privilege-Malice - Proof of special damage - Judge's charge.]-In 1892, by an error of a town assessor, the amount deducted by the Court of Revision from the defendant's assessment was entered on the roll as the assessment itself, so that he was assessed for some $40 less than he should have been. Subsequently the question of arrears of taxes came up in the council, of which the defendant was a member, and the cases of alleged arrears, including the undercharge of the defendant for 1892, were referred to a committee, of which the defendant was also a mem-The committee by a majority reported ber. that the defendant was liable for the amount, a minority report being presented by the defendant. On the report being considered, statements were made by those presenting it. The defendant in answer thereto, while contending that he was not liable, accused the plaintiff, who had been, but was not then, the assessor, of having violated his oath of office, and of having threatened to tax the defendant out of town, the defendant contending that he could have prosecuted him before a Judge, and was sorry he had not done so; and similar statements were made by him on other occasions :--Held. that the fact of the plaintiff not being the assessor did not prevent the action from being maintained without proof of special damage :-- Held, also, that malice could be inferred from the language of the defamatory words themselves.—McIntyre v. McBean, 13 U. C. R. 534, dissented from.—Laughton v. Bishop of Sodor and Man, L. R. 4 P. C. 495. followed .-- Held, also, that though the occa-sion was a privileged one, the words used, being foreign to the subject matter in hand. created an excess of the privilege, and the statements then made, as well as on the other occasions, were evidence of malice, which could not be withdrawn from the jury .-- The Judge in charging the jury left it to them to say whether the defendant had established that he had acted bona fide and without malice : but on the jury being recalled be pointed out that the onus in this respect was on the plaintiff. An objection, therefore, on this ground of the charge was overruled .- A further objection taken to the charge was that the Judge-after first stating, in substance, that if as a matter of fact the defendant believed the charges to be true, the fact that he had no reasonable ground for such belief, need not enter into their consideration on the question of malice; that such belief was not sufficient, if he took advantage of a privileged occasion when this particular matter was not under discussion and was not relevant thereto, but to gratify some indirect motive of his own brought that in-proceeded "The fact that it is true, that he believed it to be true, is immaterial. If he did not believe it to be true, that, in itself, was abundant evidence of malice; but if he believed it to be true that is not conclusive evidence of want of malice:"-Held, that the words "the fact that it is true, that he believed it to be true," which were objectionable words, were immediately corrected by the words which followed; and this was the way it was understood by the defendant's counsel at the trial as appeared by his objections to the charge; and therefore the charge in this respect was also unobjectionable. Crate V. McCallum, 11 O. L. R. 81, 6 O. W. R. 825.

Privileged occasion - Misdirection-Absence of prejudice-Damages-Quantum.] -In an action for slander the words com-plained of were: "You (meaning the plaintiff), stole my feather bed and silver spoons. at the same time, in answer to the and question. "Do you really mean to blame me for stealing them." the further words, "Most undoubtedly I do" (meaning thereby that the plaintiff was guilty of stealing his feather bed and silver spoons) .- The plaintiff was a tenant of a portion of the defendant's house, and, owing to some difference which had arisen, was engaged at the time the words in question were used in packing up the articles belonging to her with a view to their removal, and the defendant was objecting to having them removed until the following day, asserting that they had not been properly checked over. The words were uttered in the presence of third parties. The trial Judge instructed the jury that the occasion was privileged unless malice was shewn. The jury returned a verdict in the plaintiff's favour, and assessed the damages at $250:-Held, that the occasion on which the words complained of were uttered was Privileged occasion - Theft-Judge's charge.]-In an action brought by the plaintiff for damages for words spoken by the defendant of and concerning the plaintiff, imputing that the plaintiff was a thief, the defence set up was that, on the occasions when the words in question were used, the defendant, on behalf of the Reid Newfoundland Steamship Company, was conducting an inquiry into a shortage of accounts of one M .. who was agent of the company at North Sydney, and that all the parties present were employees of the company, and were endeavouring to ascertain what had become of money which appeared by the accounts to have been taken from the office at the place where the enquiry was being held .-- The trial Judge instructed the jury that the occasion upon which the words complained of were uttered was privileged, and that the words were not the subject of an action unless the jury found that the defendant, in uttering the words, was actuated by ill will or by some indirect motive other than a sense of duty, and that the burden of proving this was upon the plaintiff :--Held, that the instructions given were correct, and that, in the absence of evidence such as that indicated, the verdict of the jury in favour of the plaintiff was wrong; and the action was dismissed with costs. Wilcox v. Stewart, 38 N. S. R. 409.

Privileged occasion - Contradictory statement - Malice - Evidence of] - The defendant, the yard master in a railway yard, forthwith reported to the train master, to whom it was his duty to report, that he had seen the plaintiff, a car examiner, break into a car and take therefrom a bundle of handles, whereupon the train master reported it to the company's detective, and, some four days afterwards, the plaintiff was called into the company's office, the train master, the detective, and a couple of other officials being present, and, on his denving any knowledge of the handles, the defendant was called in, and, on being questioned, made the charge already referred to. In an action for slander brought by the plaintiff against the defendant the plaintiff stated that shortly before being called into the office he had met the defendant, who informed him of the car hav-ing been broken open, but that he did not know who did it :- Held, that while the occasion on which the alleged defamatory statement was made was one of qualified privilege, the statement made by the defendant to the plaintiff was evidence of the defendant's disbelief in the truth of the charge, and therefore of malice to go to the jury to displace the protection afforded by the privileged oc-casion.-Judgment of a Divisional Court, reversing the judgment of Anglin, J., at the trial, affirmed. Woods v. Plummer, 15 O. L. R. 522, 11 O. W. R. 377.

Provocation, --In an action for slander the defendant may, after admitting, denying, or declaring that he ignores, the allegations of the declaration, allege that he has been provoked by the plaintiff, and that the slander, if any, is compensated, and such allegations will not be dismissed on an exception to the form. Molleur v. Marchand, 2 Que-P. R. 405.

Public duty — Municipal councillor — Truth.]—A municipal councillor has a right to make known to the council all the facts which may be reasons for not awarding a contract of the municipality to a person who is tendering for it; it is even his duty to do so; but the statement must be true, and if he makes false statements, he is liable for defamation. Campeau v. Monette, 19 Que. S. C. 429.

Qualified privilege - Quebec law -Functions of Judge and jury-Malice-Finaings of jury-Exercise of right.]-The rule of "qualified privilege" of the law of Eng land in the matter of libel and slander corresponds to and is the same as that of the law of Quebec, in the same matter, that no action will lie for statements made by a person in the exercise of a right (dans l'exercise d'un droit), unless actual malice is proved .---As in England the question of privilege or no privilege is one of law for the Court, and not for the jury, to determine, so in Quebec it is for the Court and not for the jury to say whether the defendant in making a statement is in the exercise of a right .--- Where in a trial by jury of an action for defamation, the jury finds that a statement caused the plaintiff damage to a fixed amount, but was made without actual malice, the Court, hold-ing the defendant to have been in the exercise of his rights, or to employ the English equivalent, holding the occasion to have been privileged, will dismiss the action. Kavanagh v. Norwich Union Fire Ins. Co., 28 Que. S. C. 506.

Qualified privilege - Duty - Interest Privileged occasion.] - A qualified privilege exists, when it is the duty of the person charged with slander to make a communication with another person who has an interest in the subject of the communication, or some duty in connection with it; or, secondly, where the defendant has an interest in the subject of the communication, and the person to whom the communication is made has a corresponding interest, or some duty in connection with the matter. Consquently, a communication made by the chairman of the school commissioners or his colleagues, respecting the character of the secretary-treasurer, if the statement were made to them alone, would be privileged. But the privilege ceases when the communication is made at a public meeting of the parish, at which many others who were not interested were present. Hébert v. Johin. 26 Que, S. C. 193.

Slander attered by married woman Action against husband—Pleading—Authorisation or ratification.]—Where the plaintiff is suing a husband for a slander uttered by his wife, he must allege that the defendant has authorised or ratified the conduct of his wife, without which his action will be dismissed upon defence in law. Lepage v. Montreuille, 9 Que. P. R. 269.

Solicitor - Innuendo - Amendment -Justification - Evidence - Privilege - Interest.] - In an action for slander of the plaintiff as a solicitor, the evidence at the trial shewed that the defendant asked L. who his solicitor was, and upon L. mentioning the plaintiff, defendant said that if he had an honourable man like M, he might win his case. L. said that he would not change until he found some fault-that the plaintiff always did honourably with him, whereupon the defendant said that the plaintiff was "a dirty man." The words proved were differ-ent from those set out in the statement of claim, and the innuendo in the statement of claim was inapplicable. Leave was given to the plaintiff on the trial to amend, but no amendment was made: - Held, setting aside the verdict for the plaintiff, that, in the absence of evidence to shew how the words proved were spoken and understood, the Court could not frame an innuendo to conform to the evidence. On the trial the defendant called the plaintiff as a witness, and the plaintiff admitted that he had collected a sum of money for a client which he failed to pay over, and that he had given a note for the amount collected which he had also failed to pay and that a judgment had been obtained against him for the amount, which was unpaid at the time of the trial :---Held, that this evidence shewed conduct which was dishonourable to plaintiff as a solicitor and justified the language used by the defendant. If the words proved were spoken and understood in the sense that the plaintiff was not an honourable solicitor the defendant had substantiated a good defence : --Held, also, that the communication was a privileged one, L. being a person who had an interest in knowing of it. Tobin v. Gannon, 34 N. S. R. 9.

Statement of defence-Justification — Particulars—Fair comments — Embarrassment — Specific charges.]—After the order 13 O. W. R. 671, plaintifi amended his statement of claim confining it to two acts of wrongdoing to which the innuendo was pointed. The statement of defence was now ordered to be amended. Foster v. Macdonald, 13 O. W. R. 1012.

On appeal, order varied, 13 O. W. R. 1211.

Truth — Justification.] — A defendant will not be cast in dumages for defamation of character where the words complained of truly describe the conduct or an act of the defendant. Thus a servant who has stolen wood from his master cannot have a verdict against the latter for saving, in a discussion relating to this theft of wood, "you are a thief." Baron v. Laroche, 3 Que P. R. 450.

Action against sheriff — Examination of sheriff's deputy.]—In an action against two sheriff's for neglect of duty as sheriffs, an order was made for the examination for discovery by the plaintiff of the deputy of one of the defendants, it appearing that that defendant had himself been examined and had deposed that certain acts, alleged to affect the matters in question, had been done by the deputy. Order 61 of the Supreme Court Rules should be read as supplemental to Order 31, and taken together they were authority for the order. Hollingshead v. Armstrong, 23 C. L. T. 73.

Action for account-Denial of right-Production of books-Prejudice.]-To an ac-Frometion of books - reputies. - To an ac-tion by an incorporated association of cheese-makers against their president and salesman for an account of all moneys received by him for or on behalf of the plaintiffs for three years past, and the application thereof, and for delivery up of all books and documents for derivery up of an books and documents in Lis possession belonging to the plaintiffs, and for an account of profits made by the defendant, one of the defences was that the defendant undertook the sale of the plain-tiffs' cheese as a part of his own business, and that it was expressly agreed that he should not be called upon to divulge the names of the persons from whom he received orders, or give any other information touch-ing his business or the account of sales or the bank account in connection with his business, and when examined for discovery he objected to produce his books and documents shewing sales and prices realised and persons to whom sales made, because, as he alleged, that would in effect give the plaintiffs what they sought in the action before they had established their right to it, which was ex-pressly contested :--Held, that, as the fidu-ciary relationship existing between the parties was practically admitted, the position of the plaintiffs in seeking accounts and inof the plaint exactly like that of a plain-tiff whose right depended on his establishing a case for them at the hearing. The defendant set up an extraordinary agreement, the probability of establishing which was not probability of establishing which was not very great, and this was an element in de-termining the matter in the exercise of a sound discretion. The plaintiffs were, there-fore, entitled to the discovery. Sydney Cheese & Butter Factory Assoc. v. Brower, 20 C. L. T. 208, 19 P. R. 152.

Appointment — Service — Enlargement — Default of attendance.] — The plaintiff obmined from the proper officer an appointment for the examination for discovery of the defendant. The defendant's solicitor was served with a copy of the appointment more than forty-eight hours before the time appointed for the examination, but the defendant himself was not served. At the appointed time and place the plaintiff's solicitor attended before the officer, but neither the defendant nor his solicitor attended, and the officer enlarged the appointment until the next day (the 7th), and on the 7th, the defendant still not having been served, and neither he nor his solicitor attending, the discount was plaid his conduct money, and his solicitor was on the 7th notified by letter of the enlargement till the 8th; —Meddi the enlarged the solution to not attending for examination on the 8th. The mere fact that one defendant admits the allegations in the statement of claim and submits to the relief claimed, and another denies the plaintiff's right, does not make them parties "adverse in point of interest." — Shaw v, Smith, 18 Ch. Company - Directors - Account of profits — Postponement of consequential discov-ery—Production of documents.]—The statement of claim set forth a single cause of action, based upon the proposition that the defendant C, and his associates, as to the transactions detailed in it, in the circumstances under which those transactions took place, stood in a fiduciary relation to the lefendant company, which prevented them from making any profit for themselves out of the purchase of certain businesses acquired by them and afterwards transferred for a large sum of money to the defendant com-pany, and the relief claimed was an account and payment by the individual defendants of the difference between the aggregate of the price paid by them and what was paid by the company to them. It was admitted that the individual defendants received from the defendant company a sum in cash and stock far in excess of what they paid for the businesses, and the only matters really in controversy were the fiduciary relationship with the company and the liability of the defendants other than the defendant com-pany, to account for the profit made by them on the transfer to the company of the pro-perties, and, if liability were established. the amount for which they were answerable -Held, that discovery as to the details of the expenditure made by the individual de-fendants in acquiring the businesses, should be postponed until their liability to account asserted by the plaintiff had been established. Bedell v. Ryckman, 23 C. L. T. 167, 5 O. L. R. 670, 2 O. 'V. R. 86, 148, 280.

Consulting engineer — Examination of officer or servant of municipal corporation.] —Planitfi had a contract to build a dam for defendants under the direction of their consulting engineer — Held, that this engineer could not be examined for discovery. Winger v. Streetsville, 12 O. W. R. 1172.

Corporation — Miners' union—Pleading —Dual capacity—Subpana—Conduct money —Objection.]—A miners' union entered an appearance in an action, and by statement of defence raised the objection that it was not shewn that the defendant was a legal entity capable of being sued:—Held, that defendant by so pleading must be deemed, before a trial of the action, to be a corporation for the purposes of the litigation, and so compellable to make discovery. Where it is sought to examine for discovery in his dual capacity, one of the defendants in an action, who is also secretary of another defradant, two subpansa are not necessary. On examination for discovery, if the witness has an objection, such as the payment of insufficient conduct money, he should take will not be allowed to raise it on an application to compel his attendance to answer questions which he has refused to answer. Centre Star Mining Co. v. Rossland Miners' Union, 9 B. C. R. 190. Creditor's action — Fraud — Pleading general relief—Transfer of assets of debtor —Amendment. Traders Bank v. Sleeman, 2 O. W. R. 127, 133.

Criminating answers — Maintenance.] —Maintenance is an indictable offence in the province of Ontario; and in an action to recover damages for maintenance, the plaintiff is not entitled to obtain from the defendants upon examination for discovery such answers as would tend to subject them to criminal proceedings. In such an action no discovery of the matters charged could be had which would not involve the defendants in matters leading up to the offence; and, therefore, the examination should not be allowed to take place at all. Hopkins v. Smith, 21 C. I. A. T. Siri, 1 O. L. R. 659.

Cure of church—Action against corporation of parish church.]—In an action against a curé and wardens (the corporation) of the fabrique of a parish, the curé may be examined on interrogatories before the trial. Coulombe v. Les Curé et Marquilliers de POcuvre et Fabrique de la Paroisse de St. Joseph de Lanoraie, 8 Que. P. R. 313.

Defamation — Justification — Immorality—Disclosure of name of paramour.]— The defendants having in their newspaper charged the plaintiff with immorality, the plaintiff sued them for libel, and the defendants pleaded that the charge was true. The plaintiff having required particulars, the defendants set forth that the plaintiff lived at a house of ill-fame; that he lived at a particular place in adultery; that a child was born to the woman with whom he lived; and that he brought to his house and kept with the members of his family a woman who had lived in a house of ill-fame. The plaintiff, being examined for discovery, admitted that he had lived in adultery with a woman who had previously lived in a house of ill-fame, and that she bore a child of which he was not the father, but cenied the oliser allegations of the particulars;—held, that the plaintiff was bound to disclose the name of the woman, althougt such disclosure might ing Uo., 20 C. L. T. 43, 19 P. R. 282.

Defendant—Action for slander and penalty under Dominion statute—Idelecancy — Pileading.] — Action for slander and to recover $500 under s. 35, c. 26, 7 & 8 Edw, VII. (D.). Defendant ordered to answer certain questions which were put to bim on examination for discovery. Clements v. Oliver, 13 O. W. R. 530.

Defendant — Action to establish partnership — Question as to profits—Stay of action—Agreement—Arbitration clause. Vanderlip v. McKay (Man.), 3 W. L. R. 232.

Defendant—Defamation — Privilege — Husband and wife. Williamson v. Merrill, 4 O. W. R. 528, 5 O. W. R. 64.

Defendant—Libel — Answers tending to criminate — Witnesses and Evidence Act, s. 5—Con. Rule 4399.]—Upon the trial of an action for libel, s. 5 of the Ontario Witnesses and Evidence Act, as now enacted by 4 Edw. VII. c. 10, s. 21, would be applicable, and the defendant would not be excused from answersing proper questions because the answers might tend to criminate thim; and Con. Rule 439 (1250) puts a party on his examination for discovery in the same position as he would be in if he were being examined as a witness at the trial, and he is therefore not excused from answering any question that is properly put to him upon the ground that the answer to it may tend to criminate him, and if he objects to answer on that ground, his answer is within the pretection of s. 5.—Regime v. Fox, 18 P. R. 343, applied. Order of Mulock, C.J.Ex, B., affirmed. Chambers v. Jafray, 12 O. L. R. 371, 7 O. W. R. 371, 8 O. W. R. 26.

Defendant — Libel — Incriminating guestions—Canada Evidence Act,]—A defendant sued in damages for libel may on his examination for discovery refuse to answer guestions on the ground that the answers may tend to incriminate him.—The Canada Evidence Act (R. S. C. 1906 c. 145), applies only where the proceeding is a criminal one. Beique y, Fournier, 10 Que, P, R. 302.

Defendant — Refusal to answer questions — Relevancy — Pleading — Statement of claim. Canavan v. Harris, 8 O. W. R. 325.

Defendant — Relevancy of questions — Pleadings — Company — Contract — Payment for shares — Conditions. Horton v. Maclean, 11 O. W. R. 961.

Defendant — Scope of — Discovery of mines—Dates and places, Crawford v, Crawford, 8 O, W. R. 833.

Defendant - Scope of examination -Contract - Breach-Denial - Damages.] --Motion by plaintiffs to compel defendant to answer certain questions put to him on his examination for discovery. The statement of claim alleged (1) an agreement by de-fendant to devote his whole time to the service of plaintiffs from 1889 to August, 1903; and (2) breach of said agreement "by carrying on business on his own behalf both alone and in partnership with others." Plaintiffs ask an account of such dealings, and resulting profits, and damages for breach of contract. The statement of defence denies any such agreement, and says that, if defendant was to devote his whole time to plaintiffs' business, he did so, and denies his having engaged in any other business on his own account. By these pleadings two issues are distinctly raised: - 1. Was there such an agreement between the parties as alleged in the statement of claim?-2. Was defendant guilty of a breach of the same? Plaintiffs must prove both to entitle them to a decree. The questions which defendant refused to answer were directed to the second point. The refusal was on the ground that plaintiffs were not entitled to an answer until they had proved the agreement. Plea held bad. See Graham v. Temperance and General Life pense and answer the questions so far as necessary to prove the second point. But this would not extend to going into any such detail as will be proper enough on a reference as to profits and damages, nor would defendant necessarily be required to produce Bis books. Sheppard Publishing Co. v. Har-kins, 4 O. W. R. 250, 277, 25 C. L. T. 45, 8
 O. L. R. 632. See also 5 O. W. R. 482.

ACCRET OF THE OWNER.

Defendant — Service of appointment — Rule 391 A (1)—Service of original—Practice.]—The plaintiff's solicitor, desiring to examine the defendant for discovery, served upon h is solicitor a copy of the examiner's appointment, relying on sub-rule (1) of Rule 301 A., added to the Kinz's Bench Act, R. S. M. 1902, c. 40, by 5 & 6 Edw. VII. c. 17, s. 2, and, upon the defendant failing to attend on the appointment, obtained an order from the deputy Referee directing the defendant to attend for examination at his own expense:—Held, on appeal from this order, that, as the sub-rule speaks of the service of a copy only of the appointment was not sufficient, without service also of a subpean on the defendant personally under Rule 383, and that the order should be set aside with costs. Meyrers V. Keudrick, 9 P. R. 303, followed. Foley V. Buctwaan, 18 Man, L. R. 206, 9 W, L. R. 3.

Defendant a member of Honse of Commons-Examination during session.]--Defendant, a member of Honse of Commons, directed to attend for examination for discovery during the session, such examination to take place on a Saturday while house not sitting, thereby avoiding any possible deduction from sessional indemnity. Lindsay v. Curric, 13 O. W. R. 538.

Defendant resident out of Ontario-Con, Rule §77.]-The provision of R. S. O. 1897, c. 73, s. 16 (4), seems to contemplate only the attendance of witnesses at a trial, and is not applicable to the examination of a party for discovery merely.-A defendant resident in the province of Quebec cannot be compelled under Con. Rule 477 to attend for examination for discovery within the province of Ontario.-Alfer, where it is sought to examine a plainiff.-Medium v. Laidaw, D. C. 12th December, 1002 (not reported), followed.--Smith v, Rabook, 9 P. R. 97, not followed. Lefurgey v, Great West Land Co., 11 O. L. R. 617, 7 O. W. R. 738.

Defendant whose defence has been struck out]—A defendant not having attended for examination for discovery his statement of defence was struck out :--Held, that he can still be examined for discovery. Lindsay v. Imperial Steel and Wire Co. (1990), 14 O. W. R. 240.

On appeal defendant allowed to defend on terms, 279.

Defendant withdrawing after being sworn—Order to appear again—Excuse.]-A party to an action subponaed for examination for discovery before a special examiner and paid his conduct money for the day may be compelled to attend and testify in the same manner as a witness. One of four defendants, all of whom were subpœnaed fo half past ten in the morning and attended and were sworn, after being excluded from the examiner's chambers, waited while the others were being separately examined until after three in the afternoon, and then, without communicating with the examiner, went away and did not attend for examination :-Held, that a local Judge's order requiring him to attend again for examination was right. Campbell v. Scott, 23 C. L. T. 113, 5 O. L. R. 233, 2 O. W. R. 144.

Disclosing names of witnesses — Questions as to indemnity for costs, |—On an examination of a plaintiff for discovery under Rule 379 of the King's Bouch Act, he cannot be compelled to disclose the names of his witnesses, or to answer questions as to whether he has received from persons or corporations, not parties to the action, assistance or promise of assistance or indemnity as to the costs of the action, or as to whether he consulted before action with such other persons as to bringing the suit, Gibbins y. Meteolife, 23 C. L. 7, 98, 14 Man. L. R. 364.

Election by widow-Evidence-Notice of election-Presumption of election in favour of will-Jurisdiction of the Court in an action not brought by widow. Hurry & Stewart v. Hurry (P. E. I, 1940), 0 E. L. R. 123.

Examination — Officer of corporation— British Columbia Rule 370.] — Under the above rule in the case of a corporation any officer or servant of it may, without any special order . . . be orally examined : —Held, to mean that the examination may take place without an order being specially made for that purpose. Robinson v. Me-Kenzie Brothers, Marshall v. Vancouver (B.C.), 10 W. Lz R, 375.

Examination of agent of party— Ontario Rule 903—Ex parte order—Necessity for notice.]—Under above rule the examination of an agent or employee of a party can only be obtained on notice to the opposite party. Smith v. Clergue, 13 O. W. R. 761.

Hushand of a married woman defendant — Séparation de biens.]—Even where the defendant, a married woman separate as to property, declares, in the knows nothing of the facts alleged in her plea, the Court would not be justified in allowing the examination for discovery of her husband, who, according to the plaintiff, would be able to give all the necessary information. Gladu V. Hurtubise, 10 Que, P. R. 177.

Infant plaintiff—Examination of tutor.] —In an action brought by a father, as tutor of his infant child, to recover damages for injuries caused to the child by an accident, the defendant may examine the father for discovery before the trial, Vineberg v, Montreal 83, Rw. Co., 10 Que, P. R. 241.

Interrogatories -- Oral examination of parties -- Double examination. --Action for libel in charging plaintiff with not accounting for moneys received as agent for defendants. Defendants pleaded privilege. Plaintiff was ordered to attend for examination. See 18 Man. L. R. 465, 10 W. L. R. 81. Defendants delivered interrogatories which were not naswered.--Heide, that plaintiff must answer. Timmons v. National Life, 11 W. L. R. 337.

Libel action — Plaintiff not mentioned by name—Questions as to who was intended — Examination of defendant — Refusal to answer on advice of counsel—Malice—Prieilege.]—In an action for libel, defendant on advice of counsel, refused to answer certain questions on examination for discovery. The Court ordered him to attend at his own expense before a special examiner, and answer the questions or have his statement of defence struck out.—Wilton v. Brignall (1875), w. N. 229, followed, — Jones v. Hulton, (1909) 2 K. B. 444, [1910] A. G. 20, and Heaton v. Galdney, [1910] 1 K. B. 754, distinguished. Morley v. Patrick (1910), 16 O, W. R. 172, 21 O. L. R. 240.

Liquidator of company — Action against company — Production of books.]... The official liquidator of a company sued for an act attacked as a frand may be examined for discovery, and compelled, upon subporta to that effect, to produce the books of the company in his possession. Ward v. Montreal Cold Storage Co., 4 Que. P. R. 47.

Manager of a company being wound up who has been appointed liquidator — Default to make him a party to the suit— C. p. 286; 8 Edu, VII. c. 69, s. 228.]—The manager of a company which is being wound up and who has been appointed liquidator to the company cannot be examined on discovery if he has not been joined as a party to the suit. Comet Motor Co. v. Dom. Mutual Fire Ins. (c. (1910), 11 Que, P. R. 308.

Master in Chambers ordered defendant to attend for examination in Toronto-Con. Rule 4/3-Change of pendente lite-Practice - Riddell, J., reversed Master's order -- Costs throughout to defendant in any event.]-Dryden v. Smith, 17 P. R. 500, specially referred to, Jenne v. Member of waterworks and electric Hight commission of town-Con. Rule (33) (a)-R. S. O. (1897), c. 234--R. S. O. (1897), c. 235.)-Latchford, J., held, that a member of the waterworks and electric light commission of a town, constituted by by-law passed under Mun. Light and Hent Act, R. S. O. (1897), c. 234, and Municipal Waterworks Act, R. S. O. (1897), c. 235, is a servant of the municipality, and as such was liable to examination under Con. Rule 430m. Young v. Gravenhurst (1910), 17 O. W. R. 96, 2 O. W. N. 118.

Affirmed by D. C. 17 O. W. R. 211, 2 O. W. N. 167.

Motorman — On plaintiff's suggestion— Did not see accident—Motion to examine conductor—Rule 439 (a2).—Order granted on terms of paying costs. Caseell v. Toronto Rw. Co. (1910), 18 O. W. R. 473; 1 O. W. N. 856.

Next friend of plaintiff—Con. Rules 430, 440.1—The next friend of an infant plaintiff is not examinable for discovery.— The distinction between Con. Rules 430, 440, and English O. xxii, R. 29, pointed out. Vano v. Can. Coloured Cotton Mills Co., 9 O. W. R. 10, 13 O. L. R. 421.

Officer of bank-Production of documents — Relevancy — Pleadings — Contradicting affidavit on production. Bank of Hamilton v. May, 12 O. W. R. 850.

Officer of benefit society — Clerk of subordinate " camp."] — Motion by defendants to set aside an appointment issued by plaintiffs for the examination of one Harley Field as an officer of defendants. The action amount of a policy upon the life of plaintiffs' son, payable to plaintiffs :--Held, by the constitution of defendants the governing body is the "Head Camp," which alone has power to form subordinate camps and issue charters to them. The "Head Comp" consists of one delegate from each subordinate camp and eleven officers who are elected every two years by the members from among their own number. This has absolute jurisdiction over all members. Every subordinate camp has similar officers, who are elected annually by the members. These officers are paid by the subordinate camps such compensation as they monthly to the clerk of the subordinate camp and handed to the banker. But no clerk or banker can be installed until he has given security to the satisfaction of the Head Camp's three head managers. The clerk and banker of the subordinate camps are the persons by whom the dues of the members are collected and remitted to the Head Camp. In the present case, Field is the clerk of the Woodstock camp, of which decensed was a member; but he was not the clerk during the lifetime of insured. It is not easy to see what information he can give but, if he is the proper officer to examine, he must pr-pare himself accordingly. After reading through the by-laws of the Order, and the material filed, I think plaintifs' view is right. and that the clerk and banker of the sub ordinate camp are officers of this Order, and Dable to examination. Motion dismissed with costs. Readhead v. Can. Order of Woodmen, 5 O. W. R. 55, 9 O. L. R. 321. Appealed twice, but both dismissed. See 5 O. 90 and 169.

Officer of company—dent of unincorported association.) — The plaintiffs sued "The Tanners' Association," a syndicate, not incorporated, made up of a number of trading partnerships and incorporated companies. One of the companies appeared and defended in their own name "sued as the Tanners' Association or syndicate could not be examined by the plaintiffs for discovery as an officer of the association or of the company defending. Ahrens v, Tanners' Assocn, 23 C. L. T. 261, 6 O. L. R. 63, 2 O. W. R. 464, 479, 513.

Officer of company — Attorney under Extra-provincial Corporations Act — Con. Rule 439a.]—An attorney appointed to represent a foreign company in Ontario, in compliance with the Act respecting the licensing of extra-provincial corporations, 63 V. c. 24 (O.), is an officer of the company within the meaning of Con. officer.]-Action by the liquidator of the Palmerston Pork Packing Co. to set aside a chattel mortgage given by the company to defendants. The general manager of defendaccentances. The general manufactor of deten-ants was examined for discovery. He knew nothing of the facts. Subsequently on 5th November, 1904, the inspector was examined with no better results. Plaintiff now moved for an order for the examination under Rule 439 (2) of Mr. Campbell, the agent of defendants who was in charge of the Palmerston branch, and was present at the giving of the mortgage in question :- Held, where a corporation or other company is a party to an action, it would seem reasonable and convenient that the company should suggest for examination the officer or servant best qualified to give all inf rmation to which the oppo site party is entitled. Such officer should prepare himself by obtaining full knowledge party may be in as good a position as if contending with an individual, Order granted for examination of Campbell. Clarkson y. Bank of Hamilton, 4 O. W. R. 422, 9 O. L.

Officer of defendant company — Charter—Forfeittre—Preduction of membership roll—Privilege.]—In an action against an incorporated club, for a declaration that they were using their premises as a common betting house contrary to the provisions of the Criminal Code, 1892, and for a revocation of their charter:—Held, that the Evidence Act of Ontario, R. S. O. 1897, c. 73. s. 5, applied, and that the president of the club was not bound to produce upon his examination for discovery the membership roll of the club, he having stated under oath that its production might lead to a criminal prosecution for discovery the membership roll of the club, he having stated under oath that its production might lead to a criminal prosecution against him. D'Ivry v. World Newspaper Company of Toronto, 17 P. R. 335, and Hopkins v. Smith, 1 O. L. R. 659, followed. Forfeiture of the charter being claimed, on that ground also a refusal to produce the roll was justifiable. Attorney-General for Ontario v, Toronto Junction Recreation Club, 24 C. L. T. 172, 7 O. L. R. 248, 3 O. W. R. 257, 4 O. W. R. 72.

Officer of defendant company --Defamation — Evidence — Circular-Names of recipients-Source of information.] — In an action for damages alleged to have been sustained by reason of the sending out by the defendants of a circular stating that they had been " advised that the planitiffs had decided to discontinue their separator business," the manager was ordered to give on his examination for discovery the names of the persons to whom the circular had been sent and the name of the person who had "advised" the defendants of the fact alleged :- Held, affirming the decision of Mabee, J., 11 O. L. R. 227, 7 O. W. R. 59, that the order was proper, both items of information being relevant to the defence set up of qualified privilege, and the latter being also important on the question of damages. Massey-Harris Co. v. DeLaval Separator Co., 11 O. L. R. 91, 7 O. W. R. 682.

Officer of defendant company — Examination of president — Attempt to examine secretary-treasurer — Practice—Man. Rule 387.] — The president of defendant company has been examined for discovery, and it was now sought to examine its secretarytreasure: -He[d], that he can only be examined if it is shewn that the desired information could not have been had from the first officer, and it was not his duty to procure it. Officer of defendant company — Senior assistant engineer—Chief engineer a defendant—Officer put forward by company, Barry V. Toronto & Niagara Power Co., 7 O. W. R. 700, 770.

Officer of defendant companies -Relevancy of questions. |--Plaintiff's supplied gas to their customers in Hamilton. Defendants were three companies, also operating in Hamilton, and plaintiffs alleged, supplying or using electricity. Plaintiffs complained that defendants, by allowing electricity to escape, had set up electrolytic action and damaged plaintiff's gas pipes, etc., and claimed dam-ages and an injunction. Plaintiff examined for discovery one Hawkins, as an officer of all three defendant companies, and upon the examination Hawkins refused to answer several questions, and plaintiffs moved for an order compelling him to answer .- Riddell, J., held, that Hawkins should disclose who his employers were and the terms of his employment; give information as to kind, conduc-tivity, etc., of defendant's wires, number of cars run, their average mileage, and generally all information that would enable an expert to compute or determine the amount, tension, etc., of electrical current; and the means adopted to prevent the escape of electricity; that plaintiffs were entitled to all the infor-mation defendants had, and the officer examined must inform himself. - Harris v. Toronto Electric Light Co., 18 P. R. 285; Ularkson v. Bank of Hamilton, 9 O. L. R. 317, followed.—That, if he did not know, he should sny who did, that that person might be examined; he should tell what instructions he gave to his subordinates, and who they were; that information should also be given as to whether a measurement had been made of the current, as to the sectional area and conductivity of the wires of defendant street railway, as to tracks and bonding, etc.; and information should be given as to what were necessary and proper precautions taken by the defendants to confine the electric current to their own wires and apparatus. Ont. Pipe Line Co. v. Dom. P. & T. Co. (1909), 16 O. W. R. 294.

Officer of defendant foreign company. |--An order cannot be made for the examination for discovery of an officer of a foreign corporation residing in a foreign country, even when the foreign corporation has attorned to the jurisdiction of the Courts of this province. Order of Master in Chambers, 4 O. W. R. 233, reversed. Perrins v. Algoma Tube Works, 24 C. L. T. 373, 8 O. L. R. 634, 4 O. W. R. 233, 289.

Officer of municipal corporation— . ark commissioner—British Columbia Order 31a.1—The word "officer" in above rule refers to an individual under the control and direction of defendants. The park commissioner is a legislative officer, and therefore is not examinable as such an "officer," Anderson v. Vancouver, 10 W. L. R. 646.

Officer of municipal corporation – Rule 387–Water meter inspector.]–A water meter inspector employed by a city corporation, after inspecting the plaintiff's meter, left a trap-door open, in consequence of which the plaintiff was injured – Held, in an action against the city corporation to recover damages for his injuries, that the inspector was examinable for discovery as an officer of the corporation under Rule 387 of the King's Bench Act. Shate v. Winnipeg (1910), 13 W. L. R. 706.

Officer of plaintiff bank-Pleadings-Relevancy of questions-Foreign commission. Sovereign Bank v. Frost (1910), 1 O. W. N. 938.

Officer of plaintiff company — Relevancy of question—Conspiracy—Damages— Settlement with some defendants.]—Action for damages for conspiracy and breach of contracts. Settlements had been made with some defendants. An officer of plaintiffs ordered to answer a question as to amount paid in such settlements. McLean v. White, 13 O. W. R. 713. Appeal dismissed, S55.

Officer of plaintiff company — Relevancy of questions — Scope of examination —Contracts — Financial standing of company. Northern Iron & Steel Co. v. Solucay & Cohen., 9 O. W. R. 597, 709.

Officer of railway company—Enginedireer—Rules 439, 461 (2),]—Held, reversing the decision of a Divisional Court 4 0. L. R. 43, 22 C. L. T. 162, that inasouch as the engine-driver never was in charge of the train, never assumed the duties of conductor, and never acted for the defendants in relation to the control, conduct, and management of his engine, he was not an officer of the company examinable for discovery under Rule 430: Maclenan, J.A. dubitante. Speaking generally, the officer of the corporation which for the hermony of the corporation when if there was no action, would be l. oked upon as the proper officer to act and speak on behalf of and to bind the corporation in the kind of transaction or occurrence out of which the action arises, would prime face he the proper officer to be examined in the first instance under Rule 430. Maclena Rule 630. Morrison V. Grand Trunk Ru. Co., 23 C. L. T. 93 O. L. R. 38, 1 O. W. R. 180, 263, 209, 758.

Officer or servant of municipal corporation — Consulting engineer — Rule 439 (a). Winger v. Village of Streetsville, 12 O. W. R. 1172.

Officer or servant of railway company—"Manager" — Art. 286. C. P.]— The word "manager" in Art. 286. C. P., may be interpreted as meaning the manager of the works, and in an action for damages for personal injuries the man who was in charge of the works when the injury occurred may be examined on discovery on behalf of the plaintiff. Pitt v. Atlantic Que. and Western Ru. Co., 10 Que. P. R. 102.

Potrin, 6 Que. P. R. 117.

Past officer of company—Order compelling attendance—Order of joreign Court.] —R. S. C. c. 140 extends to parties as well as witnesses; and the person who was manager of the defendant company at the time when the transactions in dispute in the action took place, as such officer, is a quasi party and stands for the person to be examined for discovery for the defendant company. And an order to compel him to attend and be examined in pursuance of an order of a Manitoba Court, which he had refused to do, was made as on an ex parte application. In the Kirchoffer v. Imperial Loan & Incetment Co., 24 C. L. T. 230, 7 O. L. R. 295, 3 O. W. R. 300.

Past officer of company — Rule 459 (a)—Rule 45.1—There is no power now under Rule 439 (a), as substituted by Rule 1250 for the Rule 439 (1), to make an order officer or servant of a corporation party, nor is there power to make such an order inder Rule 485. Cantin v. News Publishing Co., of Toronto, 24 C. L. T. 308, 8 O. L. R. 531, 4 O. W. R. 102, 217.

Patent of invention-Agents-Production of documents.]-In an action for damages for the infringement of a patent of invention the defendants pleaded among other defences that the invention was in public use prior to the application for letters patent; that the patent was void for want of novely; that the patent was not at the commencement of the action a valid and subsisting patent; that the plaintiff had not since the expiration of two years from the date of his patent commenced and after such commencement continuously carried on in Canada the manufacture of the patented invention; that the plaintiff had after the expiration of one year from the granting of the patent imported or caused to be imported into Canada articles made in accordance with the patent:—Held, that the defendants were entitled to the fullest discovery from the plaintiff, and that he was bound to give information as to agreements and transactions made and carried on between him and certain agents employed by him for the manufacture and sale of the patented invention, especially as to the time at which and the terms upon which the patented invention was manufactured in Canada under the patent; and the plaintiff having refused upon his examination for discovery to answer questions relating to these matters, was ordered to attend for re-examination at his own expense. The plaintiff was also ordered to make and file another affidavit on production, and to produce for inspection statements received by him from such agents. Parramore v. Boston Mfg. Co., 22 C. L. T. 415, 4 O. L. R. 627, 1 O. W. R. 643, 716.

Person actually interested—Nominal paintiff.]—When the plaintiff in an action is only a préfer-nom and does not know the facts of the case, an examination before trial of the person actually interested will be allowed. Barbeau V. Viau, 7 Que. P. R. 151.

Person for whose benefit action defended—Rule 440 — Manager of assignor company. Carter v. Lee, 8 O. W. R. 499.

Person for whose benefit action defended — $Rule \frac{1}{2}(4)$. I-Rule 4(4), providing that a person for whose immediate benefit an action is prosecuted or defended shall be regarded as a party for the purpose of examination, is difficult of application where the plaintiff seeks to examine a person for whose benefit it is said that the action is defended. Where the action was for infringement of a pattent of invention for a certain heater, and the statement of defence denied the infringement and set up that the right to manufacture the heater was equired by the defendants from C. & Co., and it did not appear that anything had been done by C. & Co. in reference to the action before or after it was brought:— $Ulvid_i$ that the members of the irm of C. & Co. were not persons for whose inmediate benefit the action was dfended; at the most, a successful defence might relit we then from a possible liability to the defendants. Moffat v, Leonard, 24C. L. T. 401, 8 O. L. R. 519, 2 O. W. R. 787, 3 O. W. R. 623, 4 O. W. R. 201, 5 O. W. R. 259.

Person for whose immediate benefit action defended-Action against assignce for creditors-Examination of assignor-Reference for trial-Power of referee to order examination.]-Appeal by defendant from order dismissing appeal from certificate of Neil McLean, official referee, of his ruling in the course of a reference that plaintiff was entitled to examine for discovery one was entitled to examine for discovery one David E. Starr, against whose assignee for the benefit of creditors this action was brought, to establish the right of plaintiff to rank upon the insolvent estate :--Held, Rule 440 and Rule 466 are in pari materia and provide that a person for whose immediate benefit an action is prosecuted or defended is to be regarded as a party for the purpose of examination and for the purpose of discovery. Under the Rules examination for discovery may be "before the trial" (Rule 439), and production may be ordered "at any time pending the action or pro-ceeding" (Rule 463). Rule 440 has been construed to apply to a debtor who has as-signed nis estate for the benefit of creditors, even though the estate may be insolvent. In Macdonald v. Norwich Union Ins. Co., 10 P. R. 462 (1884), Mr. Justice Rose held, that such an assignor might be treated as one to be immediately benefited by the litigation. be immediately benefited by the litigation. This decision was followed in 1897 by Mc-Coll, J. (afterwards Chief Justice of Bri-tish Columbia), in Tollemache v. Hobson, 5 B. C. R. 214; see Johnston v. Ryckman, 7 O. L. R. at p. 523, 3 O. W. R. 198. There would be no difficulty in supporting this order to examine tue debtor Starr for dis-covery, and have him make production of papers if the action had not been referred. were referred by order of 6th April, 1904, to be tried before a referce, pursuant to s. 20 of R. S. O. 1507 c. 02. The whole cause and all its issues were thus before the referce to be tried, and, having regard to the original scope of the Rules in question, it is competent for an order to issue for the purpose of examining the assignor with a view to the proper trial of the cause. The referce has plenary power to deal with the cause under the statute, and, in addition, under Rules 648, 665, 666, 667, and 669. The reference being before trial and for the purpose of trial, the referee can properly direct one to be examined for discovery who is a party or who is to be treated as a party to the Higgition—Append dismissed—Meredith. J., dissented on hoth grounds. Garland v. Clarkson, 5 O. W. A. 62, 9 O. L. R. 281.

> Personal services—Action for motion for further examination—Better affidavit on production—Value of services.]—Cartwright, Master, granted order requiring further examination of plaintif and for better affidavit on production in an action to recover for personal services, the value of which was not ascertained. Costs to defendant in cause. Morton v. Forst (1910), 17 O. W. R. 761, 2 O. W. N. 427.

> Place for —Residence of parties — Eadorsement on write—Appointment for examination of plaintiff—Did not attend—Motion to dismiss action for default dismissed— Plaintiff has right to move from place he commenced action—Examination should be where he now resides—Where there are joint plaintiffs action should not be dismissed for default of one—Costs to plaintiffs. Jeune v. Mersman, 17 O. W. R. S86, 2 O. W. N. 418, followed. Ferris v. McMurrich (1911), 18 O. W. R. 399, 2 O. W. N. 770.

> Plaintiff—Absence from province—Place of residence—Offer to submit to examination abroad—Stay of action—Concurrent proceedings under Railway Act. McLean v. James Bay Ruc, Co., 5 O. W. R. 440, 495.

> Plaintiff — Disclosure — Particulars — Pleading)—After the close of the plendings particulars are only required for the purpose of limiting the issues at the trial, and will not be ordered until after discovery, and not then if the discovery results in full disclosure.—The particulars disclosed at an examination for discovery are as binding on the party discovering as they would be if delivered in the form of a plending. Kelly v. Kelly, v. Kelly, v. K. R. 517.

> Plaintiff — Issue of appointment before service of statement of defence—Service of statement of defence on same day—Fraction of day—Rules of Court. Stone v. Davies, 9 O. W. R. 187, 258.

> Plaintiff — Libel—Absence of justification — Qualified privilege — Honest belief— Relevancy of guestions.]—In an action for libel, in which the defendant has pleaded qualified privilege, to which the plaintiff has replied malice, the defendant, although he has not plended justification, is not precluded, on examination of the plaintiff for discovery, from asking questions which are relevant to the issue of the defendant's honest belief, as tending to shew the absence of malice, al though they may incidentally prove the truth of the libel. McKergow v. Comstock, 11 O. L. R. 637, 7 O. W. R. 197, 273, 449, 558.

Plaintiff-Scope of enquiry-Relevancy of questions. Torrance v. Hamilton, Grimsby, & Beamsville Rue, Co., 7 C. W. R. 46.

Plaintiff claimed the defendant was seller, not agent, for the sale of certain apples injured in transit; on examination for discovery it was held that defendant must inform himself as to instructions given to and communications with shipper, and whether or not these were in writing. Raidolph v_* Jones, 12 O, W. R. 1008.

Plaintiff resident abroad—Demand— Description in writ—Travelling Expenses.]— Where the plaintiff is described in the writ as being "of No. 8 rue Alfred de Vigny, in the city of Paris, in the republic of France," it is not incumbent on his attorney to "declare where such parity then is " under Art. 361, C. P., but it is for the opposite parity to have him examined under a commission. Where a parity is absent and under Art. 361, C. P., service of summons upon articulated facts may be made upon his attorney; such attorney may demand the necessary funds to pay his client's travelling expenses under Art. 370, C. P. Menier v. Whiting, 18 Que, 8. C. 113.

Plaintiff resident abroad—Place of Examination — Order — Discretion.]—The plaintiff resided at Cleveland, in the State of Ohio, and the defendant and the solicitors for both parties in the county of Oxford, Ontario, where also the cause of action arose :— Heid, that the local Judge for that county has jurisdiction under Rule 477 to make an order, upon the application of the defendant, requiring the plaintiff to attend for examination for discovery at Windsor, Ontario: that it was unnecessary for the defendant to shew special circumstances to obtain such an order; that it was a proper exercise of discretion to name Windsor, as a place "just and convenient" for the purpose; and that the local Judge properly took judicial hotice of the geographical situation of Windsor. Lick v. Rivers, 21 C. L. T. 166, 1 O. L. R. 57.

Plaintifs—Particulars.]—Application to compel plaintiffs to answer questions which they had refused to answer on their examination for discovery and any other questions, or to deliver particulars. No order made i— Held, that where discovery results in such disclosures that particulars are not ordered, the particulars disclosed in the examination will be blinding. Plaintiffs therefore will be entitled to prove misconduct on defendant's part in any transaction referred to in his examination. If any other transactions are brought out they will be disposed of by the trial Judge. Kelly, 9, Kelly, 6 W. L. R. 517.

Postponement by company till enforceable contract established.] — Motion to postpone discovery by defendant until plaintiff has established an enforceable contract between plaintiff and defendants C. and O., dismissed. A preliminary trial to ascertain if there be such a contract would be unsatisfactory and at any rate must be ordered by a Judge, not Master in Chambers. Stone v. Currie (1909), 14 O. W. R. 62, affirmed, 154., See S. C., 248.

Preliminary hearing.] — A plaintiff whose title is denied by an exception à la forme cannot refuse to be examined for discovery as to this defect of title before the hearing of the exception. Moreau v. Lamarche, 3 Que. P. R. 73.

President of club.] — Motion by defendants to commit plaintiffs' president for refusing to answer certain questions and to produce certain letters upon his examination for discovery dismissed, the questions being irrelevant and the letters purely personal or relating to plaintiff's domestic affairs. Torouto Club v. Imperial Bank (1909), 14 O. W. R. 92.

Questions on examination — Assignment of chose in action — Interest of assignor—Nominal plaintiff.1—In an action to recover a money demand assigned to the plaintiff, the defence alleged that the plaintiff was only a nominal plaintiff and that no consideration had been given for the assignment, and the plaintiff on his examination for discovery objected to answer questions relating to the consideration and to the interest of the assignors:—Heid, that the question should be answered. Boggs v. Bennett Lake & Klondike Navigation Co., 8 B. C. R. 353.

Relevancy of questions - Defamation -Wrongful dismissal.] - The plaintiff had, as a member of the medical board of the defendants, recommended a certain woman as a nurse, and she was employed by the defendautse, and sale was employed by the defendants, having ants. Subsequently, the defendants, having been informed that the plaintiff had intro-duced the woman under an assumed name, and had previously been living in adultery with her, dismissed the plaintiff from their medical board, and withdrew permission to him to deliver lectures to the nurses, by a resolution of their board of directors, in which the grounds of their action were stated to be that the plaintiff had "recommended as a nurse a woman who was not a fit and proper person for the position, and had in doing so done injury to the hospital, and for other reasons" not specified in the resolution. The plaintiff such for wrongful dis-missal and for libel. In their defence the defendants set up that the alleged libel was privileged and that they had received information to the effect that the plaintiff had been living in adultery with the woman in question some time previous to his appoint-Upon his examination for discovery ment. the plaintiff was asked several questions as to his former relationship with the woman. These he refused to answer. Upon an application to compel him to answer :---Held, that the plaintiff was bound to answer all ques-tions the answers to which would tend to shew whether or not the woman in question was or was not a fit and proper person to be employed as a nurse, even though the fact sought to be proved had occurred previously to the plaintiff's appointment, and that evidence tending to shew that the woman had been living in adultery or leading an im-moral life was evidence bearing on that issue, especially as the adultery was alleged to have been committed with the plaintiff himself, and he would therefore be aware of it and of the fact that the woman was not a fit or proper person when he recommended her appointment. Inns v. Calgary General Hospital Trustees, 4 Terr, L. R. 58.

Scope of examination-Cross-examination-Rule 703 - Retroactivity.]-Upon the examination for discovery of the defendants certain questions were objected to, on the ground that they were in the nature of crossexamination. On the 30th May, 1900, an or-der was made requiring the defendants to answer the questions objected to, from which the defendants appealed. Owing to some doubt as to the construction to be placed on the Rules providing for examinations for dis-covery, on the 15th June, 1900, Rule 703 was amended so as expressly to sanction cross-examination :---Held, dismissing the appeal, that the examination for discovery nnder Rule 703 (even before the amendment) was in the nature of a cross-examination, but limited to the issues raised in the pleadings. Carroll v. Golden Cache Mines Co., 6 B. R. 354, overruled. The amendment of 15th June, 1900, is retroactive. Bank of British Columbia v. Trapp, 20 C. L. T. 464, 7 B. C. R. 354.

Scope of examination.]—In the examination of a party or his representative for discovery under Arts 286 et seq., C. C. P., the witness can be asked as to every fact relating to the claim or to the defence; and in this case the question asked was relevant to the claim. Can. Pac. Rw. Co. V. Richeliou & Ontario Navigation Co., 9 Que, Q. B. 235.

Scope of examination - Rule 703.]-The action was to set aside the will of Alexander Dunsmuir, on the grounds of insanity and undue influence exercised by the defendant, who was the beneficiary under the will. On the examination for discovery of the defendant, he refused to answer questions in reference to the nature and extent of the subject matter of the will, the business and personal relations that existed between him and his deceased brother, the history of their dealings with the property. the mode in which the deceased brother managed his affairs, and the circumstances leading up to and surrounding the execution of the will :--Held, that the questions must be answered or the defence would be struck out. The examination for discovery under Rule 703 is a cross-examination both in form and in substance, and a party being examined must answer any question the answer to which may be relevant to the issues. Hop-per v. Dunsmuir, 23 C. L. T. 275, 10 B. C. R. 23

Scope of examination — Specific performance — Denial of contract — Tender — Financial means.]—In an action for the specific performance of an alleged contract for the sale and purchase of a vessel for $5000, one-half of which was to be paid in cash at the execution of the bill of sale and delivery of the vessel, and credit given for the remainder of the purchase money without any security upon the vessel or otherwise, the plaintiffs alleged a tender to the defendants of $2,500 in payment of the down instalment. The defendants also south to examine the plaintiffs as to their means, to shew that they were persons of no means, which, it was contended, would be a circumstance to induce the Coart to refuse to adjudge specific performance, even if the contract were proved :--Held, that the defendants were not entilded to such discovery, no such issue being raised upon the record, and it not being alleged that the conract was entered into upon the belief or representation that the plaintiffs were persons of means. Bentley v. Murphy, 21 C. L. T. 590, 2 O. L. R. 665.

Second trial — Rule 439.]—A party to an action may be orally examined before the trial ionching the matters in question: Rule 430:—Held, that a trial which has proved abortive by the disarcement of the jury or by the granning of a new trial is not a trial within the meaning of the Rule. Leitch v. Grand Trunk Rue. Co., 12 P. R. 541, 671, 13 P. R. 569, considered. Where the defendant had not been examined before the first trial, and the judgment thereupon had been set aside and a new trial ordered, the plaintiff was allowed to examine the defendant before the second trial:—Second examination might be an abuse of the process of the Court. Clarke v. Rutherford, 21 C. L. T. 189, I. O. L. R. 275.

Servant of defendant — Con. Rules 439 (a), 440, 441. Van Koughnet v. Toronto Towel Supply Co., 8 O. W. R. 683.

Servant of defendant company — Examination of conductor — Application for leave to examine motorman-Recial grounds — Admissions — Evidence. Tinsley v. Toronto Re. Co., 10 O. W. R. 40.

Stage of cause.]—The preliminary examination of a party to an action may take place after the inscription of the cause. Bourassa v. Lambert, 5 Que. P. R. 375.

Time for—Day before trial.]—The preliminary examination of a party may take place the day before that fixed for examination and hearing. Ward v. Jasmin, 5 Que. P. R. 130.

Wife of defendant—Separate property —Agency for husband—Art. 591, C, P,]— Where, after judgment, the plaintif moves for the examination of the defendant's wife under Art. 591, C, P, he must allege in his motion that the defendant and his wife are separate as to property, or that the defendant's wife has acted as his agent for the administration of property belonging to the defendant. Nadeau v. Boulay, 10 Que. P. R. 217. Withdrawal of one defendant after being sworn — Order to appear again. Campbell v. Scott. 5 O. L. R. 233, 2 O. W. R. 144.

2. INSPECTION.

Action for negligence—Defect in elevator—Witness)—In an action for damages for injuries alleged to have been caused by the defects of an elevator situated on the property of the defendants, the Court cannot allow the plaintiffs the privilege of having the elevator inspected by a person whom they intend to call as a witness. Such an inspection is not an experise under Art. 302, C. P. C.; and it cannot be allowed under Art. 28: Garcau v. Montreal Street Rue. Co., 8 Que. Q. B. 400, followed. Dubois v. Horsfall, 18 Que. 8. C. 138.

Action for negligence — Motion for further affidavit on production—Documents in possession — Examination of veitness — Relevancy—Costs.]—Plaintiff brought action to recover damages for injuries sustained by alleged negligence of defendants in the condition and operation of an elevator in defendant's hotel while plaintiff was a guest therein. Plaintiff moved for an order requiring defendants to file a further affidavit on production and produce certain documents admitted to be in defendant's possession and for examination of witness.—Sutherland, J., held, that the sole object of the motion appeared to be to ascertain names of defendant's witnesses and that none of the discovery sought was relevant to the issue. Motion dismissed. Costs in the cause. Pryor v. Clifton Hotel Co. (1910), 16 O. W. R. 1018, 2 O. W. N. 755.

Action for work and labour—Experts.]—In an action for the value of work done for the defendant to his house, where he complains of had workmanship and alleges that he will be obliged to spend a certain sum to put the work done in good condition, the plaintiff cannot have an order to enter the defendant's house with experts to examine the work done. Adams v. Préjent, 3 Que, P. R. 516.

Inspection of defendants' premises —Survey and plan—Rule 571. Hellincell v. City Dairy Co., 6 O. W. R. 480.

Inspection of motor car — Allegations of uselessness. Young v. Hyslop, 7 O. W. R. 581.

Machine in dispute — Order for production—Deposit to cover expense.]—When an action is brought to revendence a machine which the defendant says is in his factory, but which the bailing charged with the writ has been unable to find or seize, the Court is without power to order the defendant to exhibit the machine in his premises, because Art, 289, C. P., does not authorise a compulsory entry on the premises of a party. Garcau v. Montreal Street Rw. Co., 1 Que, P. R. 566, followed. The Court will not, in such a case, order the defendant to bring the machine to Court, because such a course would subject him to expense which he is not bound to bear. Nevertheless, an order for inspection will be granted in such a case, ordering the defendant to bring the machine to Court, when the plaintiff has deposited an amount sufficient to cover the expense of removal. United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Caron, 6 Que, P. R. 100.

Motion for further affidavit on pro duction. .-Incorporated company -- Examination for discovery--II resisted, order to issue as asked. Kline v. Dominion Fire Ins. Co. (1910), 17 O. W. R. 246, 2 O. W. N. 184.

Pleading — Damages.] — Action to reever the price of a hat destroyed by an ietcle which fell from the roof of the defendant's house. The plaintiff went to the defendant's house to claim the value of the hat; she asked to see it and said she would pay after seeing it. Later the plaintiff wrote to her that he would not go to her house. Then the defendant sent an expert to see the hat, but the plaintiff refused to let him see it. The defendant asked that she might not be obliged to plend until she had seen the hat and ascertained the damages. An order was made to that effect. Derney v. Marceau, 16 Que. 8. C. 226.

Premises—Photographs.] — By virtue of Art. 280, C. P., a Judge may permit one of the parties to go upon the premises of the other for the purpose of photographing the place where the accident in question in the action happened. Primeau v. Merchants Cotton Co., 3 Que. P. R. 175.

Premises — View.] — Except in cases where a view of the locus is prescribed under the terms of Art. 392, C. C. P., a Judge cannot order a plaintiff claiming damages for injury to his property examined with the defendant with a view of ascertaining whether he can be held liable for the damages claimed. Garcau v. Montreal St. Rw. Co., 8 Que, Q. B. 409.

Production of letter—Motion for under Con. Rule 452 — Relevancy.] — Plaintiff moved under Con. Rule 452 for production of a letter admitted by defendant Parker in his possession :—Held, that in view of the alleged ground of action, which was a breach of contract made by defendant Parker on behalf of his co-defendant and himself with plaintiff, it was very material to plaintiff's case to ascertain what were the relations between the defendants and what anthority Parker had to bind his co-defendant, and plaintiff should be allowed to judge for himself as to its relevancy, and was entitled to production. Costs of motion and order to plaintiff. Smith v. Fox (1910), 15 O. W.

Right to inspect premises in question in action. — In an action for damages, the Court will not allow one of the parties to enter upon the premises of his adversary, in company with one or more persons of his own choice, to make an examination of the machine alleged to have caused the injury. Belair v. Dominion Textile Co., 10 Que, P. R. 257. Subpoend duces tecum.] — Excepting the case of a public officer, no one can be forced by an action at law to give communication or a copy of a writing under private signature, of which he is the legal depository. This demand can only be exercised during the pendency of a suit by serving the depository with a subpara duces tecum. Massee y. Tradel (1900), 36 Que, 8, C, 501.

3. INTERROGATORIES.

Absence of defendant — Delay—Forcign commission.]—In case of absence of the defendant, the attorney upon whom services of interrogatories sur faits et articles has been made may demand a delay in order that his client may appear and reply, or ask that the plaintiff shall interrogate the defendant upon a commission rogatory, in defaul of which the faits et articles will be taken proconfessio. Hall v, Fenton, 4 Que, P. R. 344.

Administered to officer of defendant municipal corporation — Examination of another officer—Refusal to furnish information by servent of corporation—Relevancy— Opinions of servants, I—Plaintiffs sold to defendants an incinerator for consuming city refuse and sued for price thereof. Defendants claimed the machine would not do the work contracted for, Plaintiffs served interrogatories to ascertain quantity of different classes of refuse. The answers being unsatisfactory further details were asked, bat a Referee dismissed the application. On appeal to Judge in Chambers this finding was sustained. The Court Appeal being evenly divided the appeal we dismissed. Decaric V, Winnipeg, 11 W. R. 102.

Answers — Exceptions — Costs—Will.] —The bill alleged that the testator by his will bequeathed a fourth part of his estate to be divided equally among the four children of his son who were living at the date of the will; that the plaintiff was one of the children, and a beneficiary under the will. The defendants, trustees under the will, the rogatories whether the plaintiff was not one of the four children of the son mentioned in the will, and living at the date thereof, and beneficially entitled thereunder to some and what interest in the estate, after admitting the will, answered that they did not know that the plaintiff was one of the children of the son, that she was living at the date of the will, and that she was beneficially entitled to an interest in the estate, although they were so informed and believed :---Held, suffi-Specific information should be given in answers upon facts within the knowledge of the party answering, and the matter should not be left to inference. Where some excepnot be left to inference. Where some excep-tions were allowed, and others overruled, costs were allowed to each party. Crosby v. Tay-lor, 24 C. L. T. 241, 2 N. B. Eq. 511,

Application for order—When granted —Stage of action, |—On an application for the production of documents, the usual test is whether, having regard to the circumstances disclosed by the pleadings, it can fairly be said that the discovery sought is not necessary or may not prove helpful upon the trial. The granting of the order is practically a matter of course, unless it is sought at an improper stage of the action. Wood v, Dom. Lumber Co., 40 N. S. R. 510.

Basiness books of defendant — Materiality—Personal injuries.]—In an action for injuries to the plaintiff and his carriace, alleged to have been caused by the defendant's servants driving "recklessly and negligently." on an examination of the defendant for discovery he gave the names of his men who were with his waggon at the time of the accident, but he could not give the weight of the load without his books, which he declined to produce. After the examination was adjourned for the purpose of a motion to compet their production, his solicitors wrote a letter stating that the defendant's team was coming from a house on a certain street, and that the weight of the load and waggon together was not less than three tons. This the plaintiff declined to arccept as sufficient:—Held, that, as the plaintiff's case resided on "recklessly and negligently driving horses and a conveyance." which the defendant contended was impossible on account of the weight of the load; and as it night assist the plaintiff to find out what house the team was coming from and the weight of the load, the books must be produced. Boyd v. Marchment, 9 O. W. R. 275, 13 O. L. R. 404.

Business books of defendant — Postponement — Profit of business — Master and Servant Act, ss. 3, 4—Application to contract alleged—Statement of profits—Kight to impeach.]—In an action to recover a share of the profits of a business under an alleged agreement to share profits, the plaintiffs sought discovery of the books of the defendant :--Held, that the consideration of the matter should be postponed until it had been properly determined in the action, as a matter of law and not upon an interlocutory motion, first, whether the agreement alleged by the plaintiffs was within ss. 3 and 4 of the Master and Sevenat Act, R. S. O. 1897, c. 157, and second, whether (if it was) the statement of profits declared by the defendant could be impeached for fraud, error, mistake, or other like cause. Cutten v. Mitchell, 10 O. L. R. 734, discussed. Engeland v. Mitchell, 9. O. W. R. 31, 13 O. L. R. 184.

Business books of plaintiffs — Postponement of discovery till counterclaim established. Parry Sound Lumber Co. v. Flanner, 9 O. W. R. 708.

Chattel mortgage — Bona fides — Solicitor and client—Privilege.]—On an interplender issue between an execution creditor and a chattel mortgage, where the chattel mortgage has been taken to an advocate to secure his client's indeltedness to him for professional services, the books and papers of the advocate are not privileged from production so far as they are required to shew the propriety and amount of the charges made. Smith v. Mackay, 3 T. L. R. 102.

Company — Officer.] — Interrogatories must be addressed to a corporation which is a party to the action, and not to one of its officers. Lambe v. Electric Fire Proofing Co. of Canada, 6 Que. P. R. 397.

County Courts - Practice - Affidavit of documents—Documents not disclosed in— Application for further affidavit—Sufficiency of affidavit—Rule 237—Power and discretion of Judge.]—In an action on a guaranty, the plaining applied for an affidavit of documents. The defendant Rebecca Levy (who carried The defendant Resects Levy (who served on business as L. Levy & Co., with her hus-band, L. Levy, as manager) admitted that she had certain letters relating to the presee a action written subsequently to the 16th February, 1904 (the date on which the de-fendants notified the plaintiffs that they, defendants, would no longer be responsible under their guaranty). The plaintiffs, having had previous dealings with the defendants the previous definings with the detendants on the strength of other guaranties given by them, obtained an order for further and bet-ter discovery generally. In her affidavit filed pursuant to this order, the defendant Rebecca swore that she had no entry in her books of cheques received on account of the previous transactions to that in question in this action; that if the cheques had been en-dorsed with the name L. Levy & Co., it was done while with the hand L. Levy & Co., it was done wholly without authority, and she de-nied having any documents relating to the guaranties. The plaintiffs then obtained an order "that the defendants do within one week from the date hereof make full dis-covery on oath of all books of account, ledgers, journals, blotters, cash books, bank pass books, promissory notes, cheques, memoranda, writings, which now are or were in use in the business of the defendants in the years 1902, 1903, 1904, 1905, 1906, with liberty to the plaintiffs to apply again as to the other matters mentioned in the notice of application filed and served herein on the 25th day of July, 1900."—An appeal from this order was dismissed.—Per Irving, J.:—The authorities conferred by the County Court Rules as to ordering discovery is subject to the same limitations as are imposed by the Rules of the Supreme Court. Empire Mfg. Co. v. Lety & Co., 5 W. L. R. 183, 12 B. C. R. 387.

Defrait — Pleading.]—A defendant in default for a reply to interrogatories sur faits et articles cannot obtain permission to plead until he has been relieved from his defuit. Hall v. Fenton, 4 Que, P. R. 356.

Evidence to contradict affidavit on production -- Privileged documents -- Re-ports of officials of company respecting accidents - Cross-examination on affidavit.]-1. In an action for damages resulting from a railway accident, when negligence is charged, reports of officials of the company as to the accident, made before the defendants had any notice of litigation, and in accordance with the rules of the company, are not privileged from production, although one of the purposes for which they were prepared was for the information of the company's solicitor in yiew of possible litigation. Woolley v. North Lon-don Rev. Co., L. R. 4 C. P. 602, followed.— 2. The fact that the reports sought to be withheld were written on forms all headed, "For the information of the solicitor of the company and his advice thereon," is not sufficient of itself to protect them from production. Hunter v. Grand Trunk Rw. Co., 16 P. R. 385, distinguished.-3. When the officer of the defendants who made the affidavit on production was cross-examined upon it, and as a result made a second affidavit producing a number of documents for which he had claimed privilege in the first, the examination on the first affidavit may be used to contradiet statements in the second, although there was no further examination .--- 4. An affidavit on production cannot be contradicted by a controversial affidavit; but if, from any source, an admission of its incorrectness can be gathered, the affidavit cannot stand. Jones v. Monte Video Gas Co., 5 Que. B. D. 556; Reprint V. Monte V. Gaham, 7 Que, B. D. 400, and Roberts v. Oppenheim, 26 Ch. D. 743, fol-lowed. Savage v. Can. Pac. Rue. Co., 3 W. L. R. 124, 16 Man. L. R. 381.

Ex parte order.]--Summons by the defendants to set aside an ex parte order giving the plaintiffs leave to deliver interrogatories to be answered by the defendants' manager : --Held, discharging the summons, that an order for leave to deliver interrogatories under Order XIIL, Rule 6, may be made ex parte. Daily Co. v. B. C. Market Co., 21 C. L. T. 321, S. B. C. R. 1.

Exception to the form—Preliminary plea—Proof ordered.] — Where the parties have been ordered to proceed to proof upon a preliminary plea (in this case an exception to the form), the plaintiff may interrogate the defendant upon faits et articles. Cullen V. Daiy, 9 Que, P. R. 208.

Faits et articles-Second examination-Leave of Court-New matter.]-A party can only once be examined upon interrogatories on articulated facts, except it be with the permission of the Judge or Court, upon cause shewn, and then only on new matter which was not referred to in the first interrogatories. Holmes v. Woodworth, 9 Que, P. R. 311.

Foot-note - Practice -Exceptions to answer - Irrelevancy.] - The plaintiffs omitted to add any foot-note to their interrogatories, as provided by s. 44 of the Su-preme Court in Equity Act, C. S. 1903, c. 112 .- On a motion to set aside an order setting exceptions to the answer down for hearing :-Held, that, by a proper construction of the section, such an omission was equivalent to a requirement that all the defendants should answer all the interrogatories .-Where defendants, in answering interrogatories filed as part of the bill, neglect to state their belief, or, when required to set out a document at length, neglect to do so without assigning a sufficient reason, the answer is insufficient, and exceptions on that ground will be allowed. If, however, the interro-gatories relate to matters which are altogether irrelevant, the exceptions will be overruled. Golden v. McGivery, 4 N. B. Eq. 42. 5 E. L. R. 89.

Foreign defendants — Administration of interrogatories to resident clerk—Pouer order that the clerk in charge of the head office in America of a commercial firm described as of New York City, but whose head office is, after the issuance of a commission to New York, declared to be in France, be examined on articulated facts in lieu of the personal defendants, Timossi v. Moos, 9 Que. P. 18, 250.

Judgment on, for default of answer —Discretion.]—The Court has a discretion as to admitting interrogatories upon default to appear and answer them, and is not imperatively obliged to admit them upon such default. Caron v. Gaudet, 6 Que. P. R. 105.

Knowledge, information, and belief —Documenta, $|--\Lambda n$ answer to an interrogatory must be in plain and positive language, and clear in meaning, so that it may be safely put in evidence—It is not sufficient for the plaintiff, in answer to an interrogatory, to deup having any knowledge, without stating bis information and belief.—Where a plaintiff was properly interrogated as to the existence of a document in a public office. it was held that he was not bound to seek knowledge as to the fact, but that, if he had such knowledge or information or belief upon the subject, he should answer fully as to his knowledge, information, and belief. Scott v. Sproul, 2 N. B. Eq. 81.

Letters in possession of defendant's ments — Refusal of agents to give up. Outerbridge v. Oliphant, 9 O. W. R. 596, 731.

Motion for better affidavit — Contentious affidavit — Exhibits — Practice. Doyle v. Williams, 9 O. W. R. 286.

ceed with diligence to have the order obeyed. A subsequent order which stays all proceedings until the order for production has been obeyed, is irregular and will be set aside. Toronto Type Foundry Co., v. Mergenthaler Linotype Uo., 8 Que. P. R. 279.

Order for — Amendment.]—An order for interrogatories "sur faits et articles," signed by the prothonotary, may be amended by him only, Tongas v, Quinn, 7 Que. P. R. 34.

Order for further particulars - Officers of municipality. |- The plaintiffs' claim was for the price of an incinerating machine bought by the defendants, who refused pay-ment on the ground that the machine would not do the work contracted for .-- In preparing for trial the plaintiffs, believing it to be necessary to procure information as to the quantities of the different classes of refuse to be consumed by the machine, delivered interrogatories, the answers to which did not satisfy the plaintiffs. - On appeal from the order of Mathers, J., sustaining an order of the Referee dismissing the plain-tiffs' application for further details of information to be given by defendants-in answer to the interrogatories: - Held, per Howell, C.J.A., and Richards, J.A., that the plaintiffs were not entitled on the appeal to an order requiring the defendants to furnish estimates or opinions of their officers as to the quantity of manure produced throughout the city, although such officers had means of forming such opinions. -- Per Perdue and Cameron, JJ.A., that such information should be furnished.—The Court being equally divided, the appeal was dismissed without costs. Decarie Mfg. Co. v. Winnipeg, 18 Man. L. R. 663.

Particulars—Discovery — Which should be had first?]—On appenl order made allowing plaintiff to have discovery before delivery of particulars, latter to be furnished within one week after discovery. Townshend v. Northern, 14 O. W. R. 727, 1 O. W. N. 69.

Penal action.]--The defendant in an action qui tam for a penalty under Art. 5639, R. S. Q., is not bound to respond to interrogatories sur faits et articles; and in this case a motion to take the interrogatories proconfessis was dismissed, but without costs. Rossignol v. Morel, 3 Que P. R. 407.

Practice — Insufficiency to answer — Exceptions.]—A defendant who has acted entirely through his solicitor in any matter, and has himself no personal knowledge, must state in his answer, when required to do so, the knowledge that he has of the matters he is interrogated upon, basing his answers upon the information given him by his solicitor.— Where there are a number of different and distinct questions included in one section of the interrogatories, and the answer to that section is sufficient as to one or more of these questions, neucled. The exception is too wide.—Burpee v. American Bobbin Co., N. B. Eq. Cns. 484, followed. Fenety v. Johnston, 4. N. B. Eq. (101, 6 E. L. R. 213.

Secretary of corporation — Authority to answer.]—The answers of the secretary of a corporation to interrogatories sur faits et articles will be struck out of the record if he has not been authorised by the corporation to answer; a delay should be granted to allow the secretary to renew his answers after having procured the necessary authorisation. Dumont v. College of Physicians & Surgeons of Que. 4 Que. P. R. Sl.

Service abroad — Statute—Repeal — Anwers—Capica, —The provision contained in s.s. 6 of s. 63 of the Revised Statutes of Lower Cannah is abrogated.—2, A party who is served in Ontario with interrogatories, and at the same time accepts conduct money, thereby consents to go to the place where he is summoned to answer the interrogatories, and canot oppose a motion to have the interrogatories taken pro confersis if he does not so answer.—3. Interrogatories may be served, in an action in which a capias is issued, immediately after the filling of a petition to quash the capias. Carbonneau v. Bernard, 6 Que, P. R. 309.

Service with writ ex juris—Ex parte order—Incorporation of English practice. 1— The Judicature Ordinance, R. O. 1888. c. 58, s. 479, enacts : "Where no other provision is made by this Ordinance, the procedure and practice existing before the Judicature Ordinance, R. O. 1888, shall (adapted to the circumstances of the Territories), be held to be incorporated as part of this Ordin-ance."—English Order 31 is intituled "Dis-covery and Inspection." Rules 1-11 of that Order deal with discovery by interrogatories, and do not appear in the Judicature Ordinance. The remaining Rules 12-13, with some slight modifications, do appear therein under the same title: ss. 144 et seq.—Held, that the practice and procedure laid down in England, Order 31, Rules 1-11, were incorporated in the Judicature Ordinance by s. 479. Sec-tion 185 of the Judicature Ordinance, R. O. 1888, c. 58, is intended only for the purpose of perpetuating testimony or obtaining evidence to be used at the trial, and not for the purposes of discovery. Contra per Richard-son, J.-Concurrently with an order for service ex juris, an order was made ex parte giving the plaintiffs leave to deliver interrogatories with the writ of summons .- Held. that, as the material in support of the order did not profess to shew grounds as provided by Jud. Ord. s. 402, to satisfy the Judge that "delay caused by proceeding in the or-dinary way" (i.e., on notice) "would or might entail irreparable or serious mischief," the order ought not to have been made ex parte. Young v. Brassey, 1 Ch. D. 277, discussed. Lougheed v. Praed, 1 Terr. L. R. 959

Vive voce answers—Reading answers from paper.]—A party to an action required to give vize answers to interrogatories must do so and must not read them from a paper prepared in advance. Molsom v. Consumers Cordage Co., 10 Que. P. R. 190.

4. PHYSICAL EXAMINATION.

Bodily injuries—Assault.]—In an action to recover damages for bodily injuries caused in an assault the Court will order the plaintiff to submit himself to surgical examination. Baster v. Davis, 4 Que. P. R. 153.

Report.1—It is usual in an order requiring plaintif to submit to physical examination by a surgeon to insert a direction that the report be in writing and a copy given to the plaintiff's solicitor. It is doubtful if this can be insisted on as a term of the order. Leslie V. McKeouw, 13 O. W. R. 342.

5. Production of Documents.

Action against railway contractor —Copies of contracts, rules, and regulations.] —In an action for damages against a railway contractor, the plaintiff may ask for the filing of: (a) a copy of the contract between the defendant and the railway company; (b) a copy of the contract between the plaintiff and defendant; (c) a copy of the regulations issued by the defendant's engineer concerning blasting operations; and (d) the pay list containing the name and number of the plaintiff. Piti v. New Canadian Co., 10 Que. P. R. 173.

Action against unincorporated assoclation—Documents in possession of central body—Striking out defence for non-production.]—A defendant should not have his defence struck out for non-production of documents which are not in any way in his custody or control, but are in the custody of the officials of an incorporated body, having its head office in a foreign country and not being a party to the action.— Kearsley v. Philips. 10 Que. B. D. 36, and Fraser v. Burrous 2, Que. B. D. 624, followed. Vulcon Iron Works v. Winnipeg Lodge, No. 122 Ironmoulders' Union of North America, 18 Man. L. R. 137, 9 W. L. R. 208.

Action against unincorporated association — Individual defendants ordered to represent association—Documents in possession of central body out of jurisdiction of Court-Attempt to compel production. Vulcan Iron Works v. Winnipeg Lodge No. 122, Ironmoulders' Union of North America, 9 W. L. R. 208.

Action for penalties.]—It is improper in an action to recover penalties under the Extra-Provincial Corporations Act, 63 V. c. 24 (O.), to issue the usual precipe order for production of documents by the defendants. Such an order having been issued, it was held that the defendants were not bound to file an affidavit and claim privilege, but were entitled to have the order set aside. Johnston v. London & Paris Exchange, 23 C. L. T. 245, 6 O. L. R. 49, 2 O. W. R. 468, 492, 501.

Action for value of professional services — Dockets and biotters of solicitor — "Entries of events" — Affidavit on production —Parts of books sealed up. Arnoldi v. Cockman, 11 0. W. R. 102. Action on life insurance—Application of Quebec law—Agreement between defendants and general agent and sub-agent—Materiality — Relevancy.] — In an action to recover amount of two life insurance policies there were two questions for consideration, if decensed suicided, and if Quebec laws applied. Decensed resided in Montreal, and defendants' head office was in Toronto :—Held, that the agreements between the general agent and defendants and the general agent and Montreal sub-agent must be produced. Gray V. Croon Life, 13 O. W. R. 644.

Affidavit — Copy of document.]—Under 53 V. c. 4, 8, 60, and form 10, an affidavit of discovery should negative possession of a copy of a document, Burden v. Howard, (No. 2), 23 C. L. T. 266.

Affidavit — Defunct company—Accountant. Waterall v. Union Petroleum Co., 6 O. W. R. 740.

Affidavit — Identification and description —Schedules—Mortgages. Farmers' L. and S. Co. v. Scott, 2 O. W. R. 23.

Affidavit - Letters-Solicitor and client -Privilege.]-In an action on a policy on the life of the plaintiff's husband, the defendants filed an affidavit on production, but objected to produce certain letters between a local and the head office, on the ground " that they are privileged, being of a confidential nature and disclosing certain legal points in connection with the defence of this action. On a motion to compel production, the defendants' manager in an affidavit stated that "it is my custom, in the course of business, frequently to write to the head office on matters involving points of law; the head office confer with their general solicitors, receive legal advice from them, and then communicate with me. The letters (in question) are of the same nature as those between soli-citor and client, and are, as I am advised and believe, privileged for that reason." Held, not sufficient, and that the affidavit should state that the letters "came into existence for the purpose of being communicated to the solicitor, with the object of obtaining his advice or enabling him to defend an action." Southwark and Vauxhall Water Co. v. Quick, 3 Q. B. D. 315, followed. Thomson v. Maryland Casualty Co., 11 O. L. R. 44, 7 O. W. R. 15.

Affidavit — Materiality — Examination of parties-Scope of-Contents of document —Costs of examination.]—The plaintiff alleged a contract of partnership with the defendant J. for the promotion of a company to buy plant and earry on a manufacturing business, and that the defendants R. and C. had maliciously caused a breach of the partnership contract; he claimed an account and damages. The defendant R., on examination for discovery, said that he had obtained agreements to sell from various companies, which were afterwards assigned to a newly incorporated company, not a party to this action. The plaintiff alleged that these agreements were, in fraud of him, substituted with variations, for agreements previously entered into between the same companies and J.; also that R. and C. paid $20,000 to J. to induce him to act with them; and it appacerd from R.*

examination that he and C. drew a cheque upon their bank account in favour of J., which was paid :--Held, that the agreements and the cheque and a memorandum prepared by R. were material to the plaintiff's case. and should be produced or accounted for in the defendants' affidavits of documents.--2. That R. and C. ought not, as a matter of discretion, to be ordered to disclose facts which would become material only when the plaintiff should have established his right to damages.-3. That the plaintiff was entitled to know from R. and C. whether they paid money to J.; whether it was their own money. or, if not, whose it was; and for what it was paid.-4. That the plaintiff was entitled to know the amount paid by R. and C. to the M. company for their business, it being alleged by the plaintiff that he and J, had ob-tained a prior option upon it.-5. That the plaintiff was entitled to know from C. the nature of the agreements made for the pur-chase of the properties; if they were in writing, and he had access to them in his capacity of director of the company which was formed, he should inform himself of their contents so as to be able to answer as to them, or should produce copies; but, if he had no right of access, he was not bound to state his mere recollection of them :-Semble, that his mere recollection of them :— Semble, that where an examination is unnecessarily long, the costs of it should be entirely disallowed. Decision of Meredith, C.J., 22 C. L. T. 117, varied. Evans v. Jaffrey, 22 C. L. T. 133, 3 O. L. R. 327, 1 O. W. R. 20, 158, 2 O. W. R. 678, 3 O. W. R. 877, 6 O. W. R. 733.

Affidavit — Neccasily for — Agent's commission.]—In an action for compensation for services rendered in finding a purchaser for property, where one of the defendants is a corporation, and must have under its control all records, proceedings, and correspondence, if any exist, relating to communications with the other defendant, it is impossible to say, under all the circumstances, that discovery was not necessary or might not be helpful in the trial, and an affidavit of documents will therefore be ordered. Wood y, Dominion Lumber Uo., 37 N. S. R. 250.

Affidavit — Order.]—Where inspection is songht of documents supposed to be in the possession of the opposite party, an order should be obtained under s, 60 of 53 V, c. 4, for discovery by affidavit as to what documents are in the opposite party's possession, when an order may be made under c. 61 for their production. Cushing Suphite Co. v. Cushing, 23 C, L. T. 158, 2 N, B, Eq. 458.

Affidavit — Partnership — Matter and servant—Agreement to share profits—Statement furnished by master—Fraud.)—Held, by Anglin, J., in Chambers, that, notwithstanding the language of s. 3 of R. S. O. 1897, c. 157, a statement of profits furnished by a master to share profits, is impenciable for fraud; and fraud being alleged by the plaintiffs (servants) in an action (inter alia) for an account of profits, the plaintiffs were entitled to discovery of a document in the possession of the defendant (master) shewing the basis of the statement of net profits furnished by the defendant (-Held, by a Divisional Court, upon appeal, not passing upon the questions with regard to the statute, that production of the document was properly ordered, having regard to the general rules relating to discovery and the other claims made in the action. Catten v. Mitchell, 10 O. L. R. 734, c O. W. R. 497, 552, 629.

Affidavit — Partnership — Account — Special agreement — Master and servant— Profit sharing—Statement furnished by master—Impenching for fraud. Cutten v. Mitchell, 6 O. W. R. 497, 552, 10 O. L. R. 734.

Affidavit-Privilege - Confidential communications - Solicitor and client. |- There has been a progressive development of the particularity required in the description of correspondence between a solicitor and his client in order that it may be protected from discovery by reason of privilege. As the affidavit on production cannot be contradicted, the grounds upon which the privilege is claimed must be set forth explicitly and fully, so that the Court may judge as to whether the documents so described are properly withheld from production. The affidavit must not only state that the correspondence is confidential and of a professional character, but the nature of it must be set forth, without any ambiguity whatever, in order that there may be no doubt as to its being privileged Where the solicitors were acting as agents for the sale of defendant's land in question in this action, shortly before the first of the letters for which the defendant claimed privilege was written :--Held, that the defendant in order to protect the correspondence, should give some more definite description of it than that it was written " in reference to the matters which are now in question in this acters which are now in question in this ac-tion." Gardner v. Irvin 4 Ex. D. 49; O'8hea v. Wood, [1801] P. 286, and Ainsworth v. Wilding, [1900] 2 Ch. 315, followed. Clergue v. McKay, 22 C. L. T. 64, 148, 162, 3 O. L. R. 63, 478, 1 O. W. R. 178, 241, 2 O. W. R. 647, 3 O. W. R. 860.

Affidavits — Privilege—Confidential communications — Solicitor and client, Hall v. Laplante, 2 O. W. R. 490.

Affidavit of documents—Sufficiency of description — Priollege.] — An affidavit of documents which described certain bank books as bill registers, current accounts, and ledgers for stated periods:—Held, sufficient.— Privilege was claimed for the first time in respect of such books in a supplementary affidavit filed subsequently to the issue of a summons for a further and better affidavit. — Held, that this affidavit defeated the summons, and that the claim of privilege must be allowed. Bank of British Columbia v. Oppenheimer, 20 C. L. T. 142, 7 B. C. L. R. 104.

Affidavit of documents made by officer of defendant company — Cross-examination on—Claim of privilege — Documents procured in contemplation of litigation—Right of plaintif to full information— Duty of officer to inform himself—Disclosing names of witnesses, Sarage v, Can, Pac. Rw. Co. (Man.), 3 W. L. R. 124.

Affidavit on production — Documents relating to plaintiff's title—Protection.]— The plaintiff's manager made an affidavit on production of documents in which he objected to produce certain agreements (referred to in the statement of claim) between the plaintiffs and their assignors whereby the property in question in the action was assigned to the plaintiffs: on the ground that such document "relates exclusively to the title of the plaintiffs and to the case of the defendants, nor does the said document tend to support the defendants' case, nor does it, to the best of my knowledge, information, and belief, contain anything impeaching the case of the plaintiffs:"--Held, not sufficient to protect the document from production. Combe V. Corporation of London, 1 Y. & C. C. C. 633, followed. Quilter v. Heatty, 23 Ch. D. 42, specially referred to. Diamod Match Co. V. Hackkeburg Lumber Co., 21 C. L. T. 342, 1 O. L. R. 557.

Appeal — Discretion. |—An appeal from the decision of Weatherbe, J., refusing the plaintiff's application for discovery of documents. The defendants contended that there was nothing to indicate the existence of any documents to be discovered, and also that there was no appeal, the order being discretionary with the Judge below :—Held, that an appeal can be asserted in such cases; and that the Judge below erred in refusing discovery. Wood v. Dom. Lumber Co., 24 C. L. T. 228.

Better affidavit.]-Murphy v. Lake Erie & Detroit River Rw. Co., 1 O. W. R. 827, 2 O. W. R. 444.

Breach of contract—Damages—Loss of profits in business — Books and documents pertaining to business—Postponement of trial. Playlair v. Turner, 7 O. W. R. 332, 379.

Confidential report to company's solicitor — Privileye, [-A company such that a solicitor and a solicitor of an accident cannot be compelled to produce at the trial a report made by an officer of the company to their solicitor, this report being a privileged communication between attorney and client, Zaste v, Grand Trunk Rie. Co., 10 Que, P. R. 270.

Correspondence after action begun-Information for defence — Privilege — Examination for discovery-Undertaking to produce. Slater Shoe Co. v. Wilkinson, 1 O. W. R. 591.

Defendant's affidavit of documents— Document relating solely to defendant's case —Rejusal to produce.]—In defendant's affidavit on production, he admitted having a lease which he refused to produce. Inspection of it refused, as plaintiff cannot in any way support his case by it. Von Feber v. Enright, 11 W. L. R. 648. Documents out of jurisdiction. [—Certain documents had been sent under the bylaws of the defendant union to the parent union in Columbus, Ohio, the latter being lawfully in possession of them, but not a party to this action:—Held, that the defendant could not be compelled to produce these documents on discovery. Vulcan v. Winnipeg, 9 W. L. R. 208.

Enforcement of order—Stay of proceedings.)—The party in whose favour an order is made for the production of documents is not entitled to have the proceedings in the case stayed until it is complied with, but should use the means provided by law to have it enforced. Toronto Type Foundry Co. v. Mergenthaler Lithographic Co., 16 Que-K. B. 345.

English practice—Payment of costs of discovery—Incorporated company—Selection of officer to make affidavit on production. Can. Bank of Commerce v. Carbonneau (Y. T.), 1 W. L. R. 262, 390.

Examination of officer of plaintiff of company-Relevancy.] — Order made for further production, but motion dismissed so far as re-examination of an officer of plaintiff company is concerned as to place of deposit of the mineril alleged to be the origin of "Vitue Ore," and the process of manufacture of the artificial article. Theo. Noel v. Vitae Ore, 10 W. L. R. 88.

Identification—Description in alfidavit.) —Where discovery of documents is made, it is not enough to make them up in sealed bundles marked A. and B., but the documents must be identified by a mark or number and so described in the affidavit. Cushing Sulphite Co. v. Cushing, 23 C. L. T. 231, 2 N. B. Eq. 466.

Inspection — Privilege — Mortgage — Books of bank — Bank Act — Fraud — Preliminary issue-Appointment of accountant as agent to inspect books—Grounds for, Can. Bank of Commerce v, Wilson (Y.T.), S W. L. R. 206.

Letters — Privilege—Contracts similar to that in question — Trade combination—Security for costs—Increase in amount—Discretion. Casein Co. v. Hunsley, 3 O. W. R. 59, 178, 255, 412.

Letters between solicitor and client —Privilege.]—Letters passing between a solicitor and his client, who was the common grantor of the plaintiff and defendant, in respect to the property in dispute, which had passed into the possession of the defendant from the executor of the writer, after his decease, are not privileged from production. Platt v, Buck, 22 C. L. T. 374, 4 O. L. R. 421.

Mechanics' lien action — Order and appointment issued given, inclusion of the second and the second second second second second and an appointment to examine one of the defendants for discovery, pending an adjournment, and after the trial had commenced. The order and appointment were set aside, but without prejudice to an application being made therefor to the Referee. Wade v. Tellier, 13 O. W. R. 1182.

Motion — Necessity for,]—A defendant cannot demand, by motion, the production of the documents invoked by the plaintiff in support of his claim, the plaintiff not being in a position to proceed with his action until such documents have been produced. Lemay V. Labelle, 4 Que, P. R. 189.

Motion for — Vagueness — Action en burnage-Specifications of documents sought.] —In an action en burnage, a motion by the plaintif that the defendant be ordered to produce and give communication of all documents and titles which he has in his control, and which relate to the contestition, is too vague and indefinite, because it does not call for any particular document. Bruneau v. Tabbo, 9 Que, P. R. 424.

Motion for further affidavit — Practice — Examination — Costs. Barwick v. Radford, 7 O. W. R. 237.

Motion to compel—Documents relied on by plaintiff—Pleading.]—A defendant no being bound to plead to the action whilst documents invoked by the plaintiff are not produced, a motion to compel production of such documents is idle (inutile). Montreal Watch Case Co. v. Imperial Button Works, Limited, 7 Que, P. R. 279.

Non-materiality of documents - Foreign commission-Inspection.]-Where discovery, as distinguished from production for the purpose of inspection, of documents, is sought, an affidavit of such documents must be given, though their production when applied for could be successfully opposed on the ground of immateriality. Documents within the jurisdiction of the Court will not be ordered to be produced before a commissioner for taking evidence abroad except in very special circumstances. Where inspection of documents had been given by consent, an application to the Court for further inspection was granted, and the Court declined to give effect, as too technical, to an objection that a demand in writing for inspection had 1 at a definition of the application to the Court. Cushing Sulphite Co. v. Cushing, 23 C. L. T. 231, 2 N. B. Eq. 469, 472.

Order for — Default—Proof of—Contempt of Court—Attachment,—Before an attachment can be issued for contempt in not producing documents for inspection on an examination for discovery, an order for production producion of books for inspection must state the time, or time after service thereof, within which the books are to be produced, and the copy thereof served must be indorsed with notice of the consequence of neglect or refusal to obey the same. Smith v. McKay, 4 T. L. R. 202.

Order for production—Motion to disdistantian distantiant of notice.]—In order that a party taking out an order for discovery may invoke the provisions of s. 184, J. O. 1893, though only with the object of having a plaintiff's action dismissed or a defendant's defence struck out, the order must be indorsed in accordance with s. 311. Doidge v. Toten of Regina (No. 2), 2 Terr. L. R. 337.

Ownership of land — Filing of documents of title.)—A party who alleges that he is the owner of certain land, without alleging title or proofs in support of his allegation, will not be ordered, upon motion to that effect, to file his document of title to the property, and proceedings will not be suspended in order to compel him to file such documents. Molson v. Montreal, 5 Que, P. R. 339.

Penalty.]—Johnston v. Londom and Paris Exchange, 6 O. L. R. 49, 2 O. W. R. 468, 492, 501.

Place of production. |-Where an order has been made for the production of document, the document should be produced in the city or town in which the writ was issued, but a Judge has a discretionary power to order production somewhere else to prevent inconvenience and prejudice to a party's business operations. Davies-Sayward Mill and Land Co. v. Buchanan, 24 C. L. T. 107, 10 B. C. R. 175.

Pleading - Documents mentioned in affidavit.]-Application to enforce production of documents to which reference had tion of documents to which reference had been made in the defendants' pleading: Order XXX., Rules 15, 17, 18.—The defendants had referred to a certain deed which contained a reservation, both in the grant and habendum, as follows: "Subject, however, to the terms of a written agreement entered into between the said parties this day." The defendant objected to produce this agreement, upon the ground that it was not a document referred to in the pleadings. The plaintiff's affidavit did not allege that the document was in the possession or power of the defendants. For the plaintiff it was contended that, if the document was to be regarded as one referred to in the pleadings, no affidavit was necessary: Order XXX., Rule 18 :- Held, that the agreement was not a document referred to in the pleadings; that the affidavit was defective; and the motion should be refused with costs. Robert v. Miller (No. 2), 20 C. L. T. 410.

Practice — Application to dismiss action —Failure to inderse notice on order.]—Rule 330 applies to orders for discovery of documents, not only where the remedy sought for non-compliance is attachment, but also where the remedy sought is dismissal of the action or striking out of the defence. Where therefore a copy of such an order served was not indorsed as provided, an application to dismiss the action for non-compliance with the order was refused. Leadley v. Gaetz, 5 Terr. L. R. 484.

Privilege — Contemplated litigation — Affidavit on production. James Co. v. Dom. Ex. Co., 4 O. W. R. 418.

Privilege — Information and documents obtained before action, London Life Ins. Co. v. Molsons Bank, 1 O. W. R. 457, 2 O. W. R. 34, 3 O. W. R. 858.

Privilege — Reports of officers of com-pany—Examination of officer — Duty to ob-tain information.]—1. When an affidavit on production of documents is made by an officer of a company, any other examinable officer of the company may be examined upon it, and his answers may be used to impeach the affidavit on an application to compel the filing of a further and better affidavit .--- 2. If such lastmentioned officer on his examination states that he does not know whether or not certain documents exist which, by the rules of the company, should be in existence, he will be ordered to inquire and obtain the information necessary to enable him to answer fully and explicitly .--- 3. Reports of the various officials and servants of a railway company upon the occurrence of a fire alleged to have been caused by sparks from a locomotive, and as to the condition of the locomotive, if made as to the contact of the boundary in makes of the company, are not privileged from pro-duction. -4. Privilege—Sale of patent rights—Letters before sale. Outerbridge v. Oliphant, 8 O. W. R. 494.

Privilege-Solicitor and client-Fraud.] -There is no valid claim of privilege in regard to the production of documents passing between solicitor and client, when the transaction impeached is charged to be based upon fraud. Williams v. Quebrada Railway, Land, and Copper Co., [1895] 2 Ch. 751, followed. And where the action was by a mortgagor to set aside as fraudulent a sale under the power in the mortgage and for redemption :-Held, that an admission made by one of the defendants, though sufficient to entitle the plaintiff to redeem, not being of efficacy against some of the other defendants, did not remove the issue of fraud from the record so as to enable the defendant making the admission to escape discovery. St Hunt, 21 C. L. T. 237, 1 O. L. R. 334. Smith V.

Production of documents—Privilege— Evidence produced in contemplation of litigation.]—Appeal by plaintiffs from order of local Judze at Perth requiring plaintiffs to file a further and better affidivit on production, Defendants were owners of land through which a roadway runs, and the question to be determined in the action was whether such roadway was a public highway or not:—Held, that defendants were not entitled to such production and inspection. While the information was not obtained for the purpose of supporting an action expressly contemplated at the time the instructions were given to the solicitors, it must have been contemplated at the time the instructions were given to the solicitors, that if the report of the solicitors was that a highway existed, an action would be brought against the defendants for obstructing it, if they persisted in disputing that it was a highway, in which event the information obtained by the solicitors would be necessary to assist them in prosecuting such action. The immediate purpose of the information obtained by the solicitors for that purpose was privileged from production in an action brought as the result of the opinion formed by the solicitors. Southwark v. Quick, 3 Q. B. D. 315; Leroyd v. Halifag. [1855] 1 Ch. 686. The appeal allowed, with costs to the successful party in the action. Elmaley v. Miller, 5 O. W. R. 651, 717, 10 O. L. R. 343.

Railway — Affidavit on production made by officer—Cross-examination on — Claim of privilege-Reports of officials respecting accident-Duty of officer to inform himself-Disclosing names of witnesses, 1-Reports made by the employees of a railway company to their superior officers in accordance with its rules concerning an accident resulting in death, and immediately thereafter, are not privileged from production in an action against the company for damages arising out of the accident, if they were made in the discharge of the regular duties of such employees and for the purpose of furnishing to their superiors information as to the accident itself. and were not furnished merely as materials from which the solicitor of the company might make up a brief, and an officer of the company who has made an affidavit on produc tion of documents, must, on his cross-examination on such affidavit, furnish such information concerning them that the Court may be in a position to decide on a further motion whether they are privileged or not. If any of the information sought on such examination. and to which the plaintiff is entitled, is not within the knowledge of the deponent, he must ascertain the facts and give the in-formation. That the names of some of the defendants' witnesses would be disclosed if the questions were answered, is not a sufficient reason for refusing to answer. Questions as to whether reports had been sent in as to the condition of the locomotive before the accident, and as to repairs thereto, must also be answered. Savage v. Can. Pac. Rw. Co., 15 Man. L. R. 401, 1 W. L. R. 441.

Railway company—Accident — Reports of servants—Privilege.]—A company sued in damages on account of an accident may be compelled to produce at the trial all reports of the accident made by its employees in the ordinary course of their business, or of their duty, but not its reports made at the request or instance of its solicitor, in answer to and in contemplation of anticipated litigation. Inspection and analysis of medical preparations—Passing off goods on public —Injunction.]—In an action for an injunction restraining the defendants from passing off upon the public certain medicinal preparations manufactured and sold by them, so as to deceive the public into the belief that they were the preparations of the plaintiffs, the defendants are not entitled to an order parations of the plaintiffs, though produced by them for all purposes, and although they contended that such analysis was necessary to test the claims made by the plaintiffs that their preparations were cures for cancer and other disease.—The defendants' object could be as well attained by an analysis of what might be freely purchased in the open market without the destruction of any of the plaintiffs' property. Theo Noel Co. v. Vita Ore Co. 8 W. L. R. 643, 18 Man. L. R. 40.

Inspection of document referred to in pleading — Practice. Shaw v. Brown (No. 1), 4 E. L. R. 312.

Isspection of property—Trespass — Mining land—Risk of losing evidence—Con. Rules 1996, 1098.]—In an action for damages and for an account of ore or minerals removed by the defendants from the property of the plaintiffs, in which a trespass on part of the plaintiffs, an order was made, before the defendants, an order was made, before the defendants the other the delivery of the statement of claim, allowing the plaintiffs to inspect the defendants' property, so that the plaintiffs might state their case according to the facts, and because the evidence necessary to ascertain how much ore had been removed might be lost by delay. Right of Way Mining Co. v. La Rose Mining Co., 0, O. W. R. 678, 14 O. L. R. 80.

Interrogatories — Delivery before defence, White v. McCabe, 40 N. S. R. 628.

Interrogatories—Unsatisfactory ensuces —Defence struck out.]—Where the answers of the defendant to certain interrogatories were disingenuous and evasive, and certain information peculiarly within his knowledge or under his control was not disclosed by him, an application was made under O. 30, R. 20, to strike out his defence. The Judge ordered that, unless the defendant made a sufficient answer to the interrogatories within a stated period, his defence should be struck out and judgment entered against him. On appeal this order was affirmed, Rand v, White, 40 N. S. R. 145.

Surgical examination of plaintiff— Action for personal injuries—Rule 462 — Delivery of defence.]—An examination of the person by a surgeon under Con. Rules 462, in an action for personal injuries, is an examination for discovery; and that Rule must be applied in the same way as Con. Rule 442; therefore an order for such an examination, in an action where the liability is disputed, will not, if opposed, be made before the delivery of the statement of defence. Burns v. Toronto Rue, Co., 9 O. W. R. 277, 13 O. L. R. 404.

DISTRESS.

Arrears of taxes—Notice of sole—Time —Illegol asle—Trespass ab initio — Damages—Lien.]—The provision in s. 88 of the Assessment Act directing that the collector of taxes shall give at least ten days' public notice of the time and place of sale of goods for delinquent taxes, means "ten clear days," and the party making a distress on less notice becomes a trespasser ab initio.—Section 87 does not create the relationship of landlord and tenant between the parties; nor does it give a lien upon goods such as the preferential charge upon lands under s. 80.—The notice of sale being bad, the defepdants in an action for illegal distress were trespassers ab initio, and the measure of damnges was the value of the goods, with additional, moderate damages for the bare trespass. Can. Canning Co. v. Fagan, 12 B. C. R. 23, 3 W, L. R. 38.

Payment by tenant after distress to mortgagee of landlord-Distress lawfully begun—Continuation after payment—Validity of payment—Bailiff—Counterclaim—Costs of distress-Costs of action for illegal distress.] -Action by tenant against landlord and bailiff for an injunction restraining defendants proceeding with a distress for rent, and for damages. Defendant Ireland, being the owner of a farm of 90 acres in the township of Brighton, conveyed it by way of mortgage to C. R. W. Biggar and others, trustees. Later defendant Ireland demised the same premises, by lease under seal, to plaintiff for 5 years, at an annual rent of $150. Rent became in arrear and landlord distrained. Landlord's mortgagee notified tenant to pay rent to him, as his mortgage was overdue, and threatened tenant with proceedings if he did not so pay him the rent. Under this compulsion tenant paid landlord's mortgagee the rent due:-Held, the position was the same as if plaintiff, after defendant had distrained his goods, had paid the reut to the landlord himself. The distress was originally lawful, and the landlord was entitled to retain it until, not only the rent, but the costs of the distress, should be paid. Until payment of these plaintiff was not entitled to any relief. Upon the question whether plaintiff was entitled to pay his rent to the mortgagees or not, the defendant Ireland failed. On the other hand defendants were entitled to be paid their costs of distress before a replevin or injunction could properly be granted, because the seizure and proceedings down to the time plaintiff paid his rent to the mortgagees were proper and regular; and they were entitled to retain a sufficient quantity of the goods until the costs of distress were paid. In these circumstances, there was no cause of action against the balliff, and the action should be dismissed as against him, Puffer V, Ireland, 5 O, W, R, 447, 10 O,La R, 87.

Sale of land—Instalments of purchase money—Rent — Default — Construction of deed.]—A deed by which the owner of land lets if for five years, the grantee to pay taxes, assessments, and assurances, in which it is stipulated that on default of payment within sixty days after the falling due of each yearly sale, the grantee will lose all advantage, is, in spite of its being called a "promease de vente et bail," nothing but a sale of the land, voidable under certain conditions, and a distress in eviction by the strantor, claiming rent and an indemnity, will be dismissed upon exception to the form, such action not being between landlord and tenant. Irreing v. Monchamps, 3 Que, P. R. 430.

Taxes — Controversy as to amount due — Excessive distress — Special damage — Costs. Bradley v. Township of Gainsboro, 9 O. W. R. 397, 819.

Water rates—Sale after payment—Damages.]—The defendants having caused the plaintiff's goods to be selzed for water rates, he on the day of the selze for water rates, he on the day of the selze for water rates, he on the day of the selze for water rates, of the defendants, the haliff, finding no record of the payment, gave notice of sale and went on with the sale on the day fixed. The plaintiff did not leave his receipt at his house for the balliff to see; but the latter discovered the error and offered to have the goods sold returned to the plaintiff; the plaintiff however, refused to make any arrangement, saying that the defendants would have to take the consequences of the error:— Held, that, in these circumstances, the plaintiff had no right to damages against the defendants, but could recover only the value of the goods sold. Acceptance of succession — Renunciation.)—An heir, who has accepted a succession ander benefit of inventory, cannot afterwards renounce it. Re Mathieu & Montreal Loan & Mortigge Co., 6 Que, P. R. 69.

Acceptance of succession — Rights of heirs and legatees—Stay of proceedings—Inventorp—Action — Parties — Dilatory exception.]—Where the heirs or universal legatees of a decedent have accepted and converted to their own use their respective shares of the property of the decedent, they have accepted in succession, and cannot afterwards demand a stay of proceedings to deliberate and make an inventory.—The defendant cannot set up by way of exception that one of the universal legatees has not been made a party to the cause, if he does not allege and support some right in respect of which he should be brought in. Roy v. Roy, 8 Que, P. R. 331.

Acceptance — Acts of heirs — Liability for mourning outfit for widdow—Period.] — Heirs who appoint an attorney "to make and sign all the deeds required for the management of the succession," and, through his agency, receive the money deposited in a bank by the decensed, cause to be delivered to them bills and notes due to the succession and collect the amounts thereof, revendicate by action, as owners, the movable goods of the succession, perform the actions of heirs and thereby take irrevocably a status as such.—2. The mourning outfit of a widow is due to her by the heirs of her husband, according to his fortune, and the price of it is estimated for a period of one year. Mailloux v. Paquette, 35 Que 8, C. 106.

Account — Succession — Partition — Conversion of estate into money.] — Although, in general, the respective rights of the persons interested in a succession are to be determined by an action en partage, yet when such succession consists entirely of money, which has been administered by one of the heirs, the action to account lies without action en partage. 2. If it is alleged that the succession originally consisted in part of movahles other than money, but that the same were converted into money. Brien v. Lanctot, 2 Que. P. R. 560.

Act of heirship — Sale of effects — Payment of expenses—Beneficiary.]—The fact that an heir-beneficiary has received before assuming that position certain moneys due to the deceased and has sold certain of his effects by private sale with the object of providing for the expenses of his funeral and haal illness, as well as of inventory and advertising, especially when the moneys received were insufficient to defray such expenses, does not constitute an acceptance of the succession pure and simple which deprives the heirbeneficiary of that position. Walker v. Goyette, 17 Que, S. C. 228, Ascertainment of next of kin of intestate — Questions as to legitimacy of uterine brother-Marriage laws of State of New York-Bigamous marriage of wife of absentce-Statutes — Presumptions] — Action for a declaration of plaintiffs' status rights as next of kin of one George W. Todd, C.C.L.-49 who died intestate at Hamilton, leaving a considerable fortune. Plaintiffs and defend-ants other than the company (administrators) were grandchildren of one Philinda Ellison, whose matrimonial experiences give Tise to the question raised by defendants as to the legitimacy of plaintiffs' father, Parley Hunt the younger. Philinda Ellison first married one Gideon Todd in 1820. By him she had issue Mary Ann Todd, the mother of defendants, and George W. Todd. the intestate. In 1824 Gideon Todd deserted his wife and caused a story to be published that he had been drowned. Believing him that he had been drowned. Believing non-dead, Philinda Todd in 1826 entered into marriage relations with Parley Hunt the elder, which continued until her death in 1823. Of this marriage Parley Hunt the younger was born in November, 1829, more than 5 years after Gideon Todd had deserted his wife, who always remained unaware that he was not in fact dead. He returned many years afterwards to his former home, in the State of New York, where all the parties were domiciled. The estate of George W. Todd consisted entirely of personalty. Par-ley Hunt the younger was born in November, 1829, and died in 1896. On 3rd May, 1895, the legislature of the State of New York passed the following statute, chaptered 531 of the laws of that year:---'1. All illegitimate children whose parents have heretofore intermaried, or shall hereafter intermarry, shall thereby become legitimatized and shall be considered legitimate for all purposes. Such children shall enjoy all the rights and privileges of legitimate children. Provided, however, that vested interests in estates shall not be divested or affected by estates shall not be divestigl or affected by this Act. 2. All Acts and parts of Acts inconsistent with this Act are hereby re-pealed, 3. This Act shall take effect imme-diately." There could be in 1895 no vested interests in the estate of George W. Todd, who did not die until 1903. Nemo est hares viventis. The proviso in s. 1, therefore, does not, for the purposes of this case, exclude Parley Hunt the younger from the beneficent operation of the statute. Although illegitimate when born, the subsequent intermarriage of his parents in 1830 legitimatized him for all purposes. His issue can, therefore, claim through him as a half brother of the intestate George W. Todd. Judgment entered declaring plaintiffs to be of the next of kin of George W. Todd, deceased, and for payment to them of their costs of this action by defendants other than the Trusts and Guarantee Co., who will have their costs Guarantee Co., who will have their costs as between solicitor and client out of the estate of the intestate. Judgment of Anglin, J., 10 O. L. R. 147, 5 O. W. R. 405, affirmed by the Court of Appeal. Hunt v. Trusts and Guarantee Co., 18 O. L. R. 351, 6 O. L. R. 1024.

Caution—Order allowing registration of by administratrix — No power to exactle Appeal to Divisional Court—9 Educ. VII. c. 46, s. 4.—Receiver—Portion—Interest in land ssigned—Administration—Con. Rule 953,1]— Latchford J., held (17 O. W. R. 546, 2 O. W. N. 407), that a Judge of the High Court has no power to vacate his order allowing a caution to be registered, even if the circumstances warranted such a course.—That in event of special leave being obtained to appeal from an order allowing a caution to be registered, the appeal must be to Divisional Court under 9 Edw. VII. c. 46, s. 4.—That a receiver should not be appointed where all the assets were vested in applicant as administratrix, who also was protected by a judgment against the claims of the other party interested .-- That an order for partition of lands should be refused where it appeared that applicant was entitled to an undivided three-sixteenths interest, but before making the motion had assigned all his interest in said lands to his solicitor as collateral security for costs .-- Divisional Court held, that where land is vested in an administrator, and the real complaint is that the administrator is not acting properly in respect of the estate, the proper course 13 to apply for administration, and upon due cause being shewn such an order may be made .- That if at any time in the future it should be made to appear that the interests of all parties required administration of the estate by the Court, such an order might be applied notwithstanding the dismissal of these appeals, and the dismissal of these appeals would not prejudice the ap-pellant in any application he might be advised to make in the future. Subject to above provisions appeals were dismissed with costs, Re McCully, McCully v. McCully (1991), 18 O. W. R. 236, 2 O. W. N. 662, O. L. R.

Claims against intestates' property in hands of administrator - Application for directions-Disputed account-Irregular proof of -- Notice-Effect of-Summary application.1—A claim was filed with the ad-ministrator of the estates of two deceased persons, verified by an affidavit which was technically very irregular, and which did not set out with any degree of clearness the nature of the claim, nor did it state whether any security was held for payment. On an application for directions:-Held, that, notwithstanding the irregularity and insufficiency of the affidavit in question, it constituted notice to the administrator, and, having regard to the provisions of Rule 596 of the Judicature Ordinance, he could not disregard the claim, but should proceed by giving notice under s. 45 of the Trustee Ordinance, c. 11 of 1903 (2nd session).-2. That paragraph 3 of Rule 481 of the Judicature Ordinance does not permit a Judge to dispose of the claim of a creditor on summary application, where there are facts in dispute. Claims on — Alimentary allowance for widow.].—A widow, as such, has no right to an alimentary allowance from the succession of her deceased husband. Peloquin v. Brazeau, 5 Que, P. R. 128.

Claims on — Widow's mourning.] — A widow who sues to obtain from her husband's succession a provision for the expense of her mourning, has a right herself to choose what she regards as proper to buy, and the person who is obliged to pay for the mourning must pay such a sum as is fitting, having regard to the estate and fortune of the decased; a detailed account of the cost of the mourning cannot be claimed. Peloquin v. Brazeau, 5 Que. P. R. 129. Contestation of collocation—Leave to file after time—Afidavit.]—Where a motion for leave to file, after the time has expired, a contestation of collocation, has been dismissed because the contestation is not accompanied by an affidavit, it is not sufficient for the contesting party to file such affidavit, but he must apply to the Court for leave to file a contestation supported by an affidavit. Labelle V. Ouimet, 5 Que, P. R. 232.

Creditor in possession of property of estate-Duty preliminary to exercising his rights-He must disposess himself and render an account.] — The creditor of an entate cannot take any action against it if he is in possession of some of the assets thereof and if he is under the obligation to account. Hence, the widow who emains in possession of the estate after her huband's death, and disposes of part of the property, and retains control over the remainder, will not be permitted, as long as she has not disposses de herself of the reisidue and rendered an account, to enforce her rights as a creditor of the estate. Yandry v. Belanger (1910), 30 Que, S. C. 55.

Curator — Action—Dilatory exception — Inventory.]—The curator to a vacant succession has no right to stay the prosecution of an action against him, upon the ground that he is obliged to make an inventory. Duppy v. Robson, S Que, P. R. 352.

DeForrest, 23 N. B. R. 200, followed as to distribution of real estate. Carter v, Loverison, 4 N. B. cq. 10, 4 E. L. R. 301.

Devolution of Estates Act—Collateral relations—Per copita distribution—Hall-blood —Double-blood.]—An intestate was possessed of both real and personal property, and left no wife, child, father, mother, uncle, or aunt. His next of kin were cousins, some of whom were the children of his father's half brother, and one of whom was the nice both of his father and mother:—Held, that the estate should be distributed equally among the cousins. Under the Devolution of Estates Act the whole estate is to be distributed as personal property is now distributed. Colateral relatives in the same degree of kinship take equally in their own rights, not by way of representation; those of the half blood take equally with those of the whole blood, and those of the double blood take no morc. Heritier beneficiare — Scisin—Liability for debta—Account.]—An héritier bénéficeiare is, like an héritier pur et simple, seised of the succession as soon as it is opened, with this difference, that he is not personally liable for the debts of the succession. He may be sued for such debts, and the creditors, before bringing action, are not obliged to demand and await an account. Picard v. L'Hopital Général de Quebec, 26 Que, S. C. 159.

Infant heirs—Distribution "en justice" —Authorisation by Judge — Family council —Execution by notary.]—By Art. 603, C. C., it is provided that if there are infants among the heirs of a decedent the distribution of the succession must be made "en justice". Held, that this does not mean that it must be adjudged by the Court in an action en partage, but that it must be made under judicial authority; and it is so made if it is authorized, for the infants, upon the advice of a family council, by a Judge of the Superior Court who refers the carrying out to a notary. Intestacy - Next of kin-Ascertainment -First cousins once removed.]-Application by the administrator of the estate of Isabella McEachren, deceased, for an order for the administration and distribution of her said estate, consisting of about $3,000 p rsonalty and $300 realty, which came to her on the part of neither parent. Isabella McEachren died inestate and unmarried. There were 2 daughters of a deceased sister of the intestate's father and 16 or more grandchildren of he deceased brothers and sisters of the intestate's mother. The intestate's father and mother were dead. No brothers or sis-ters, or children of such, survived her. The question was whether the 16 grandchildren of the brothers and sisters of the intestate's mother, were entitled to participate, by representation of their deceased parents, with the 2 daughters of the deceased sister of the intestate's father, in the distribution of the estate. Falconbridge, C.J. :--Held, that there was no representation of collaterals of this class, and that the 2 daughters of the deceased sister of the intestate's father took to the exclusion of the 16 grandchildren of the deceased brothers and sisters of the intestate's mother. The Statute of Charles, being in force here, was applicable to the pre-sent case. The word "prospectively" in s. 37 of the Devolution of Estates Act does not exclude the operation of the Statute of Charles by making applicable ss. 38 to 55 of the Devolution of Estates Act to descents subsequent to 1886, the word having reference to the period prospectively from 1852 to 1886. Intestate's estate — Rights of widow— Second hushand and child — Devolution of Estates Ordinance — Married Women's Pro-perty Ordinance—Land Titles Act—Imperial Intestate's Estates Act.]—The Devolution of Estates Ordinance, c. 13 of 1901 (assented p. 12th Lute 1901) to 12th July, 1001), provides: — "1. The property of any man hereafter dying intes-tate and leaving a widow, but no issue, shall belong to such widow, absolutely and exclusively, provided that prior to his death such widow had not left him and lived in adul-tery after leaving him.-2. This section shall apply to the property of any person who died before the date of the coming into force of this Ordinance, in case no portion of the estate of such person has been distributed:" --Held, that s.-s. 2 does not apply to a case where the widow died previously to the passing of the Ordinance, although no portion of the estate of the deceased husband had been distributed at the time of its passing. The Ordinance respecting the personal property of married women, C. O. 1898, c. 47, provides that "a married woman shall in respect of personal property be under no disabilities whatsoever heretofore existing by reason of her coverture or otherwise, but shall in respect of the same have all the rights and be subject to all the liabilities of a feme sole:"—Held, that notwithstanding this provision a husband is entitled to the whole of his deceased intestate wife's undisposed of personal property upon taking out letters of administration. Section 3 of the Land Titles Act, 1894, 57 & 58 V. c. 28 (D.), which provides that "land in the Territories shall go to the personal representatives of the deceased owner thereof in the same manner as personal estate now goes, and be dealt with and distributed as per-sonal estate," does not convert realty into personalty, but refers only to the manner of distribution. The Imperial Intestates' Es-tates Act, 53 & 54 V. c. 29, is not in force in the Territories. Where, therefore, S. died on the 24th December, 1899, intestate and without issue, leaving as his next of kin his father, and also his widow, who having married B., died on the 22nd April, 1901, leaving a child by B., the property of S. was directed to be distributed as follows: - One-half of the personal property to the deceased's father and the other half to B, for his own benefit, on his taking out administration to his deceased wife: one-half of the real property to the deceased's father and the other half to Legacies charged with payment of debts-Liability of legates — Proportionate shares.]—When there are several heirs or universal legatees charged with the debts of a testator, they are not jointly and severally obligated for the payment of such debts, but each one only in proportion to his share in the estate. Koy v. Roy, 8 Que. P. R. 165.

Legacy — Saisie-Conservatoire.]—A legatee is not entitled to issue a saisie-conservatoire which he alleges simply that he has good grounds for claiming the amount of his legacy and for bringing into the custody of the Court all movables and money belonging to the estate of the deceased. Rochon v. Darid, 6 Que, P. R. 290.

Legatee not heard of for 7 years-Presumption of death-Burden of proof.]-A testator, dying in 1895, gave his estate (subject to his wife's life interest) to his brothers and sisters share and share alike. One brother was living in 1885, but had not been heard of for more than 7 years before the death of the testator. There was no evidence that he was in fact dead, nor that he survived the testator. Letters of administration to his estate were granted in 1903, upon the presumption that he was dead :-Held, that the onus of proof that he survived the testator lay upon those who claimed un-der him; and, there being no evidence that he survived, the administrator of his estate failed to establish any right to share in the testator's estate; and distribution among the other legatees or their representatives was ordered, subject to their undertaking to refund should it be established at some future time that the absentee or his representative was entitled. Re McNeil, 12 O. L. R. 208, 7 O. W. R. 563.

Legitimation of bastard — Heirship of parent.]—A father is one of the heirs of his natural child legitimated by a subsequent marriage with the child's mother. Lamoureux v. Aymard, 24 Que. S. C. 24, 5 Que. P. R. 432.

Moneys at joint credit of deceased and another-Trust-Survivorship - Will Construction - Executor and trustee -Gift-Sale by executor-Undervalue-Juris-diction of Probate Court.] - D. deposited money in a bank in the joint names of himself and a daughter, with power in either to draw against it. The daughter never exer-cised this power, and when D. died she and her co-executor of his will, in applying for probate, included the money in their statement of the testator's property :--Held, that the money in the bank remained the property of D., and did not pass to the daughter on his death.—An executor sold property of the estate for $800, his wife being the purchaser. On the passing of the accounts the Judge of Probate found as a fact that the property was worth $1,800, and ordered that the executor account for the difference :--Held, that the ex-ecutor, having really sold the property to himself secretly, for an inadequate price, was properly held liable to account for its true value.—Held, also, that, though the Probate Court could not set aside the sale, it had jurisdiction to make such order.—Where by will money was bequeathed to the testator's daughter "to hold and be enjoyed by her while she remains unmarried," with a bequest over in case of her decease or mar-riage:--Held, that the daughter was only entitled to the income from the money and not to the possession and disposition thereof. -Remarks on the absence from the record of the decree of the Gourt of original juris diction.—Judgment of the Court below. Re Daly, 1 E. L. R. 487, affirmed. Daly v. Rrown, Re Daly, 27 C. L. T. 662, 39 S. C. R. 122.

Opposition — Collocation of married woman—Personal service — Judgment.] — An opposition in distribution against the placing on the list of a woman who lives apart from her husband, must be served upon her and not upon her husband only.—2. A collocation which has been confirmed constitutes a judgment which cannot be attacked by an opposition in distribution, Décary v. Pominville, 5 Que, P. R. 203.

Partition — Real estate of intestate — Collateral relatives—Paternal and maternal stocks—Heirs and next of kin--Costs. Carter v. Lowerison, 4 E. L. R. 301.

Partition of property contained in a succession is declaratory of the ownership of the share of each co-partitioner, and is retroactive in its result to the date of the opening of the succession. Hence, a mortgaze given, before the partition, by an heir upon his undivided share of an immovable property belonging to the succession. is subject to the implied condition that it will not cover any more that the share which will fall to the mortgage by the partition. Ouenes, v. Chopin (1910), 39 Que. S. C. 213.

the personal estate of a deceased person in his personal representatives for the purpose of paying his debts; but, except in the case of a residuary devise of real and personal estate, which is especially provided for by s, 7, the order in which the different classes of property were applicable to the payment of debts before the passing of the Act, has not been disturbed by its provisions. Re Hopkins, 20 C. L. T. 446, 32 O. R. 315.

Personalty — Next of kin — Married Woman's Property A.ct.]—Where a child dies intestate and unmarried entitled to personal estate, leaving a father, mother, brother, and sister, the father is entitled as the next of kin in the first degree to the whole of the personal estate exclusive of all others. This rule of construction, as to the distribution of personal property, has not been in any way altered by any provision of the Married Women's Property Act, 1895. Lewin v. Lewin, 36 N. B. R. 365.

Real representative — Caution—Sale of land—Lapse of year—Injunction.]—Letters of administration to real estate of an intestate who died 18th October, 1900, were issued to the defendant on the 14th October, 1901. Prior to such issue the defendant advertised the lands of the deceased to be sold on the 22nd October, 1901, more than a year after the death of the intestate. No caution had been filed within the year under the Devolution of Estates Act; and it appeared th: there were no debts:—Held, that the plaintiff sures entiled to an injunction restruining the defendant from selling the plaintiff is interest in the lands, under the above circumstances. Clearly the defendant had no right to sell the lands at the time he proposed doing so, as, by the operation of the Devolution of Estates Act; the property had become vested in the heirs of the deceased. Bjer v. Grove, 22 C. L. T. 28, 2 O. L. R. 754.

Redemption of hereditary share—In addition to reimbursing the price paid for it, the redemption of an hereditary share, under 710 C. C., is subject to three conditions, namely: (1) It must have been acquired from a person entitled to inherit; (2) The property to be redeemed must form part of the inheritance; (3) The party redeeming must himself be an heir. Taillefer v. Langevin (1910), 39 Que, S. C. 274.

Registration of caution after expiry of three years—Approval of official guardian — Vested interest of infant in land devolving—Construction of ss. 14, 15, 16—Devesting in personal representative —Sale with approval of guardian,1 — Sections 14 and 15 of the Devolution of Estates Act, R. S. O. 1807 c. 127, as amended by 2 Edw. VII. c. 17, apply where the interests of infants as well as those of adults are to be affected; and where, upon an intestacy, land ans vested in an adult and an infant (the heirs of the intestate), after three years from the death of the intestate, the land not having been disposed of or conveyed by the administrator, and no caution having been registered, under s. 14, after the expiry of that period, upon the certificate of the official guardian approving of and authorising the caution to be registered being given and registered with the caution; and the effect, under s. 15, is to re-vest the land in the administrator, just as it would have been or remained vested if the caution had been registered within the three years; and the administrator, with the consent of the official guardian, acting on behalf of the infants, may then sell and convey as provided in s. 16. Re Bowerman and Hunter, 18 O. L. R. 122, 13 O. W. R. 891.

Renunciation of - Manadate of attorney — Execution — Registration.]—In the absence of proof of express mandate, an allegation of renunciation of a succession made by an attorney ad litem, in an action claiming rights under a substitution, is absolutely void and ineffective as a renunciation, the same not being made by a notarial deed or by a judicial declaration which has been recorded, as required by Art. 651, C , and an attorney ad litem having no presumed mandate to renounce a succession .--- 2. A document purporting to be a renunciation of a succession in this province, executed in a foreign country before witnesses and a justice of the peace, and recorded on the same day by the town clerk of the place, is also void and ineffective as a renunciation, the forms prescribed by Art. 651 C. C., not having been thereby complied with, and the docuas required by Art. 2126, C. C. Legrand v. Legrand, 20 Que. S. C. 521.

Renunciation of succession — Registration—Residuary legate.]—It is only in regard to third persons that the lack of registration renders a renunciation to a succession invalid, and in an action against a residuary legatee who renounces to the succession after the expiry of the delays to make inventory and deliberate, and subsequently plends a renunciation to the succession, the plaintiff cannot have such renunciation set aside on the ground of non-registration. Turner V. Renouf, 6 Que, P. R. 175. See, also, Renouf v. Turner, 24 Que, S. C. 194.

Report — Dispensing with — Powers of prothonotary.]—The power to pay the money without report of distribution is given to the prothonotary alone, and not to the Judge or Court. Gravel v. Melancon, 5 Que. P. R. 388.

Report on — Collocation — Contestation —Evidence—Proceedings in action.]—Upon a contestation of a collocation of a report the proceedings in the action subsequent to the writ of summons, Pelletier v. Michaud, 20 Que, S. C. 413.

Rival elaims to succession—Dilapidation of property—Remely against—Scaling up—Curator.]—When the property of a succession is dilapidated or in danger of becoming so, the only remely which creditors or heirs have is to cause the property to be scaled up; they cannot, so long as the time for making an inventory and deliberating has not expired, where several persons are claiming the succession, obtain the appointment of a curator. Lamourcus v. Aymard, 24 Que, S. C. 24, 5 Que, P. R. 432.

Sale of land — Caution—Administrator —Consent of adults—Infants—Official guardian.]—An intestate owning rea' estate left her surviving her hushand and two infant children. Letters of administration were granted to the hushand, who registered a caution under s.s. 5 of s. 14 of the Devolution of Festates Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 127, and, with the consent of the official guardian, sold the real estate. On an application under Con. Rule 972:--Held, that, although administrator, he, being the ouly adult interested in the real estate, was not deprived of his right to consent, and that his application to register the caution was sufficient evidence of such consent. Re Hart Estate, 9 O. W. R. 225. 13 O. L. R. 379.

Sale of lands by administrator — Convenience of heirs — Duty of official guardian—Title — Vendor and purchaser. Re Jopce, 3 O. W. R. 816.

Sale of lands by administrator — Non-concurring adult heirs — Official guardian.]—Application for a direction to the official guardian to approve of a sale of certain lands, made by the applicant as administrator of his deceased brother's estate, there being heirs who were sui juris, but had not concurred in the sale. The application was made under s. 16 of the Devolution of Estates Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 127, as amended by 63 V. c. 17, s. 17, which gives the official guardian power to approve the sale in such case, as in the case of infants. There appeared to be no express objection to the sale by any of the heirs, but their concurrence had not been sought, because of the delay and expense which that would involve :—Held, that under the facts of this case, the proper course was for the official guardian to make the usual inquiries, and if no good reasons were advanced or discovered for withholding his approval it should be given. Re Bradlen, 23 C. L. T.

Sale of land by administrators — Consent of official guardian—Sale free from dower—Widow a lunatie — Necessity for order—Terms—Payment into Court for benefit of widow—Costs. Re Redman, 10 O. W. R. 16.

Sale of land by administrators — Non-concurring heir — Consent of official guardian—Payment of amount of share — Debt of heir to estate—Statute of Limitations — Right to retainer — Payment into Court. Re Booth, 6 O. W. R. 503.

Settlement — Trust deed—Construction — Equitable estate in fee of settlor — Rule in Shelley's Case—Devolution of Estates Act — Distribution of estate.] — Motion under Rule 938 by trustees under a certain trust deed, executed by William Bower, since detrust deed, viz.: (1) Who are to share in the trust estate as to the right heirs of William Bower according to the laws of descent in Ontario? (2) Whether under the trust deed the property vests in the administratrix of the estate of William Bower, under the Devolution of Estates Act, for the purpose of distribution. The trust deed conveyed to the applicants (and another trustee, since deceased) a farm of 80 acres, " to have and to hold the same, with the second purt (trustees), their heirs and assigns forever, to the use and upon the following trusts, namely, first, to lease and demise the said hand and to pay the said remus and profits over to the said party of the first part (settlor) for his maintenance and support annually, during the remainder of his natural life, and after the death of the said party of the first part, then in trust to convey and assign the said lands to such person or persons as the said party of the first part shall, by his last will and testament in writing executed by him so as to pass real estate in the Province of Ontario limit and appoint, and in the event of his dying without making such will, then to hold the same in trust for the right heirs of the said party of the first part, according to the said party of the first part, according to be without having made a will, leaving as his next of kin a brother and two sisters. Indithe children of two deceased sisters:—Hcld, it was quite clear that the settlor was paisessed of an equitable estate in fee simple in the lands described in the trust deed, which estate under the Devolution of Estates Act, vested in the administratirs. There being no disposition of the estatory death, the duty is cast upon the datinistratrix to proceed to realize upon and distribute the estate under the provision of that Act. Re Baver Trust, 5 O. W. K. 383, 9 O. L. R. 199.

Substitution — Restraint on alienation until opening—Right of apple to alienate eventual interest—Absent heir-Opening of succession in property devised subject to substitution with restraint on alienation before the opening of the substitution, where such sale is made by an appelé, is valid, but does not take effect, until the opening. The restraint upon alienation does not, in such a case, imply a prohibition against alienating the rights which the appelé may eventually have therein. The appelé may eventually have therein. Where one of several heirs is absent at the time of the opening of a succession and does not concur therein, it devolves exclusively on his co-heirs present. Marcoax y, Maillé, 31 Que S. C. 101.

DOMICIL.

Change - Service of process-Nullity -Prejudice.]—Where a young man of full age who used to live with his father, but left to pursue his studies in a foreign city for a number of years, taking with him all his effects with the exception of a few books used by him when a student; and proposes on the completion of his studies to settle in one of several countries, and has no inten-tion of returning to his father's domicil, he is held to have his domicil in such foreign city, and service at his father's domicil is irregular and null, and such nullity amounts to prejudice. Robert v. Dufresne, 7 Que. P. R. 226.

Change of — Jurisdiction—Pleading.] — Want of jurisdiction ratione personæ cannot be set up unless it has been pleaded by ex-ception declinatoire.--2. One who is proved to have had his domicil in the province is regarded as having continued it there, even when he has gone to reside elsewhere, if it has not been proved that he has acquired a domicil at his new place of abode. Pilnik v. Numizinski, 16 Que. S. C. 231.

Change pending action.]-Where plaintiff leaves the province while his action is pending he must furnish a power of attorney even when the cause has been inscribed for hearing. Ricciordo v. Can. Pac. Rw. Co., 11 Que. P. R. 112.

Election of by plaintiff in action— Statement in writ of summons—Curator ad hoc.]—A plaintiff is at liberty to choose his own domicil, and even if he describes him-self wrongly in the writ of summons, the defendant can suffer no prejudice thereby, especially if he is represented by a cura-tor ad hoc, whose domicil is well established and not contested. Cantlie v. Cantlie, 7 Que. P. R. 346.

Origin - Change - Intention-Proof of -Residence-Permanency of.]-The domicil of origin adheres until a new doniell is ac quired, and the onus of proving a change of domicil is on the party who alleges it; the change must be animo et facto, and the anichange must be drinke er facto, and the mus to abandon must be clearly and un-equivocally proved; although residence may be decisive as to the factum, it is equivocal as regards the animus; the question is one of fact, to be determined by the particular circumstances of each case. Where a decircumstances of each case. Where a de-ceased person (in respect of whose estate a question of his domicil at the time of his death arose in an action by his widow to obtain a share of it) had his domicil of origin in Ontario, but went to live in the province of Quebcc upon a farm owned by his father :--Held, upon the evidence, that he had not so adopted the farm as his home as to effect a change of domicil. Coyne v. Ryan, 21 C. L. T. 498. (Affirmed by C. A., 22 C. L. T. 12.)

Origin - Choice-Abandonment - Husband and wife—Alimony—Wit of summons — Service out of Jurisdiction — Rule 162 (c).]—In an action for alimony the de-fendant was served with the writ of summons in November, 1900, in the State of California, where he had gone to reside in September, 1899. He was born in the State of Pennsylvania, and was married to the plaintiff in the State of New York in 1889. For seven or eight years before the marriage he had lived in Canada, most of the time in Ottawa.

After the marriage the plaintiff and defendant went to Europe for several months. and afterwards resided for short periods at two places in different States in America. In 1891 they came to Canada, and bought property at a village in Ontario, which was their home from that time on, although during several winters thereafter they went to different places in the United States, where each did something to earn money, but al-ways came back to the Ontario home in the spring. The plaintiff still continued to re-side there, and said she never at any time had any intention of changing permanently her residence or place of abode. The de-fendant swore that in September, 1899, he sold all the property he had in Canada, and went to the United States to reside, where he had ever since resided, was now residing, he had ever since reside, was now resulting, and intended to reside, and that he had no property of any kind in Ontario. The de-fendant had since going to California instituted proceedings there against the plaintiff for a divorce:--Held, that the defendant's domicil of origin was in the United States; that he acquired a domicil of choice in Ontario; that, upon the evidence, he had not abandoned that domicil; and therefore he was automotive that a control in an interfactor he was still domiciled within Ontario, within the meaning of Rule 162 (c), and service of the writ upon him out of Ontario was permis-sible. Adultery — Statute of Westminster — Repeal by provincial legislature.]—A claim made by the plaintiff to dower out of the estate of her deceased husband was resisted on the ground of adultery, the circumstances being that her husband, who was a seafaring man, being away from home for a number of years, and being reported to have been drowned, the plaintiff, believing this to be true, went through the form of marriage with another man and lived with him.—The provisions of the Statute of Westminster, 13 Edw. I., were substantially embodied in the Married Woman's Property Act of 1884, which provided that a woman guilty of adultery ..., should not be entitled to dower. 15 etc

If it ever was in force in this province, irrespective of whther it would be applicable to such a case as the present, as to which no opinion was expressed. Nolau v. McAdam, 39 N. S. R. 380

Assignment of — Possession by widow, adverse to heir-Right of entry-Statute of Limitations.]—An assignment of dower by oral agreement is valid, and under such assignment the widow may take any part or even the whole of the descendent lands.— Where the heir-at-law permits the widow of the owner of the fee to occupy the whole of the estate during her life under an oral arrangement with the heir understood to be in lieu of dower, but with no definite agreement or understanding to that effect, the widow's possession is not adverse to the heirat-law, and the Statute of Limitations will not run against the right of entry. Lloyd v. Gillia, 37 N. B. R. 190.

Bar — Adultery—13 Edw. I. c. 34.]—A wife voluntarily separated from her husband after having lived with him for three years. years later she married again, know ing that her first husband had married, and believing that he had obtained a divorce from her and that she was at liberty to marry. Subsequently she learned that his second marriage was illegal, and she immediately left her second husband :---Held, that under the statute 13 Edw. I., c. 34, the dower right of the wife in the estate of her first husband was not barred by her subsequent cohabitation with another, as she acted bona fide, believing, on reasonable grounds, that she was legally entitled to marry again. Phillips v. Phillips, 4 N. B. Eq. 115, 6 E. L. R. 478.

Bar - Infant wife-Purchaser for value -Consideration-Married Woman's Real Estate Act.]-A purchaser for value is one who obtains a property for a valuable, as distinguished from a merely good, consideration; and where there is no question of bona fides involved, the question of the adequacy of the consideration cannot be enquired into. Where a son, who had left his father's farm, returned upon his father's request and promise of remuneration and helped the father to work the farm, and remained with him working in that way upon a further request and promise of a conveyance, and the father afterwards married a girl under 15, and the lattice atter-conveyed a part of the farm to the son, the wife, who was still under 15, joining to bar her dower :--Held, that the consideration. having become executed by the son having done his part, was a substantial and valuable consideration sufficient to make the son a purchaser for value, within the meaning of s. 5 of the Married Woman's Real Estate Act, R. S. O. 1897, c. 165; and therefore, the wife having been found to have known what she was doing when she executed the release of dower, was not entitled to dower out of the land conveyed to the son. Bar in mortgage — Release of equity of redemption — Release after actions] — The plaintiff joined with her husband in executing a mortgage of land, and released her dower in due form. The defendant took an assignment of the mortgage, and, subsequently, received from the plaintiff's husband a release of his equity of redemption, in which the plaintiff edid not join — Held, that the plaintiff explaintiff and the plaintiff's number against the defendant as long as the mortgage remained on foot, her only remedy being to redeem. As to a release executed by the defendant after the commencement of the action, the plaintiff's right must be deternanced by the condition of things existing at the time of action brought. Thompson v. Thompson, 37 N. S. R. 242.

Bar of dower in mortgage — Surplus after mortgage sale—Dower claimed in whole amount realised—Judgment against mortgagor before passing of Dower Act—Priorities. Re McIntyre, 2 E. L. R. 305.

Conveyance of land free from — Dispensing with concurrence of wife—Circumstances disentitling to alimony—Adultery— Right to value of douer.] — An order was made under s. 12 of R. S. O. 1897, c. 194, dispensing with the concurrence of the wife for the purpose of barring her dower in a conveyance, where she had not been heard of for several years, having left her husband again and again for the purpose of living and having lived the life of a prostitute— In such a case, in order to deprive a wife of an award of dower, it is unnecessary to shew a continuous living with one man in adultery. Re Smithers, 9 O. W. R. S19, 14 O. L. R. 538.

Customary dower-Authorisation by interdicted husband - Registry laws-Sheriff's sale - Vendor and purchaser - Warranty - Succession - Renunciation - Donation by interdict.] - The registration of a notice to charge lands with customary dower must, on pain of nullity, be accompanied by a certificate of the marriage in respect of which the dower is claimed, and must also contain a description sufficient to identify the lands sought to be affected. A sale by the sheriff. under execution against a debtor in possession of an immovable under apparent title, discharges the property from customary dower which has not been effectively preserved by registration validly made under the provi-sions of Art. 2116, C. C. Per Taschereau, C.J. :- Neither the vendor nor his heirs, who have not renounced the succession, nor his universal donees, who have accepted the donation, can, on any ground whatever, attack a title for which such vendor has given warranty :--- Semble, that voluntary interdiction. even prior to the promulgation of the Civil Code of Lower Canada, was an absolute nullity, and that the authorisation to a married woman to bar her dower is not invalidated by the fact that her husband had been so interdicted at the time of such authorisation. by mark in the presence of a single witness is sufficient to preserve the right to customary dower,-2. The dowress has the right to ob tain possession of the part of the land devoted to her customary dower, even if there are debts which may be the basis of a claim when partition is made later.--3. The dow-ress, taking the part of the lands appropriated to her customary dower, will be obliged to pay interest to the heirs upon such portion of her debts as may be attributed to her part of the lands; but such an arrangement should be made with the heirs, and such payment is due to them, and not to a purchaser, who has only a remedy en garantie against his grantor. The Quebec Act, 47 V. c. 15, which declares that after the 1st January, 1884, rights of customary dower shall be avoided and extinguished as against purchasers, if the declaration required by law has not been registered, should be interpreted as limited to cases, where a purchaser sub-sequent to the 30th June, 1881, has registered his title before the registration of the declaration of the dowress, Toupin v. Vézina, 9 Que. Q. B. 406.

Desertion by wife — Registration.] — The defendant had sued the plaintiff, her husband, en séparation re corps, and her action had been dismissed. Instead of returning to live with him, she abandoned the original home, and, several years afterwards, registered a claim for dower against the lands of her husband. In an action to cancel the registration :- Held, that it was illegal, because the advantages which she was entitled to by reason of her marriage with the plaintiff were dependent upon the condition of fulfilment of the obligations incumbent upon her as his wife. And the Court adjudged the defendant to return to the conjugal domicil within thirty days, and in default of her doing so, the Court declared that the defendant should be deprived of her matrimonial rights and advantages, and that the registration of the claim to dower should be cancelled by the plaintiff registering the judgment now nounced. Gibson v. Patrick, Que, S. C. 504.

Election - Gross sum - Proceeds of sale of testator's land.]-The owner of land died intestate leaving a widow and an infant child. The widow administered, and, with the consent of the official guardian, sold and conveyed the land in March, 1899, barring her dower in the deed of grant, and the whole of the purchase money was paid into the Court to the joint credit of herself and of the official guardian, she reserving her right to elect between receiving the value of her dower or a distributive share of the estate, one of which it was clearly understood she would be entitled to be paid out of the fund in Court. In September, 1900, the widow executed a document wherein she she elected to take the value of her dower in lieu of "any other interest she might have in her husband's undisposed of real estate." She died in April, 1901 :---Held, that the administrator of the widow's estate was entitled to receive out of the moneys in Court the value of the widow's dower, computed according to the annuity tables. Re Pettit, 22 C. L. T. 300, 4 O. L. R. 506, 1 O. W. R. 464.

Equitable charge — Legacies—Mortgage.]—A testator devised a farm to his son, subject to the payment by him of certain legacies. The son mortgaged the farm, his wife joining to har her dower, and paid the legacies out of the proceeds. The son died selied of the farm, and the mortgage was then in force :--Held, that the son took runder the will the legal selisi in the farm, and not a mere equitable estate, and that his widow was entitled to dower out of the full value of the land. Re Zimmermon, 24 C. L. T. 234, 7 O. L. R. 488, 3 O. W. R. 560.

Equitable estate — Voluntary concegance by husband.]—It is only when the husband dies beneficially entitled thereto that the wife acquires any right to dower in an equiable estate, and the husband can therefore deal as he pleases with such an estate; a voluntary conveyance thereof, even though made with the object of preventing the wife acquiring any right to dower, being uniapenchable by her. Fitzgerald v. Fitzgerald, 23 C. L. T. Sö, 5 O. L. R. 279, 1 O. W. R. 17, 2 O. W. R. 68.

Equity of redemption-Conveyance by husband alone-Discharge of mortgage.] On the Sth February, 1881, the owner land subject to a mortgage, dated 29th January, 1879, in which his wife had joined to bar dower, made a second mortgage in which his wife did not join. A portion of the moneys advanced upon the second mortgage were applied in payment of the first mortgage, and the first mortgagees executed a discharge, which was registered on the 5th March, 1881. On the 30th September, 1881. the owner executed a conveyance of the land to the plaintiff, the grantor's wife joining therein to bar her dower. Neither the plain-tiff nor his grantor paid the principal money due under the subsisting mortgage, and the mortgagees in the exercise of the power of sale on the 27th February, 1892, contracted to sell the land to the defendant, who had ever since been in possession as purchaser. The plaintiff's grantor died on the 19th September, 1901, leaving his wife surviving him, and the plaintiff, claiming as assignce of the wife's right to dower by virtue of the conveyance of 30th September, 1881, brought this action for dower on the 11th September. 1902 :- Held, that, as the law stood on the 29th January, 1879, the wife, having joined in the mortgage of that date and thereby barred her dower, could become entitled to dower out of the equity of redemption only in the event of her husband dying beneficially entitled; and, as long as the mortgage sub sisted, her husband could by a subsequent conveyance defeat her dower in the equity. which he effectively did by the second mort gage; and this was not affected by 42 V 22 (O.), which became law on the 11th March, 1879. 2. The second mortgage having been executed and delivered for some weeks before the execution of the discharge of the first, the effect of the registration thereof was not to revert the premises in the derson v. Elgie, 23 C. L. T. 278, 6 O. L. R. 147, 1 O. W. R. 550, 638, 2 O. W. R. 581.

Estate in fee — Undivided share — Commencement of right-Costs. — The plaintiff brought suit for dower, arrears of dower for six years before action, and costs of suit.— The defendant denied the right, as sering that—1. The decensed had only an estate for life, and not in fee.—2. If the pinntiff was dowable, she was only entitled to dower in an undivided one-half of the premises.—3. She was only entitled to dower from the commencement of the suit, as the decensed did not die seise.—4. She was not entitled to costs of suit.—The first ground was decided in the plasmitil?s favour: 1 N. B. Eq., Reps. 53:—Held, that the defendant was entitled to succeed on the second and third grounds; and no costs were allowed. Ahern v. Ahern, 20 C. L. T. 10.

Interest in lands - Locatee of Crown lands-Bond to convey - Unpatented lands - Unregistered assignment - Public Lands Act-Evidence - Corroboration.]-A locatee of Crown lands executed a bond in favour of his son, in consideration of services rendered, that the land should, at his death, be conveyed to the latter, on condition that he paid the Crown dues, which he did. The father afterwards married, and after his marriage obtained the patent :-- Held, that his widow was not entitled to dower inasmuch as he had no more than the right of enjoyment for life with the fee held as trustee for his son. A locatee of land transferred all his interests therein to his son by assignment, which assignment was deposited, but not registered in the Crown lands office .- Held, that, notwithstanding R. S. O. 1897, c. 26, s. 19, the omission to register did not invalidate the transfer as against the assignor; and it operated so as to prevent the father from dying beneficially entitled, and so defeated any claim of the widow under the Dower Act. The facts rested mainly upon the evidence of the son, and his evidence did not require corroboration under R. S. O. c. 73, s. 10, Brown v. Brown, 24 C. L. T. 289, 8 O. L. R. 332, 3 O. W. R. 795.

Land contracted to be sold by testator - State of nature-Right to dower--Executors-Payment to widow for release.] -The testator was the owner in fee at the time of his death of a timbered lot con-taining 100 acres, from 15 or 20 acres of which he had taken the timber; a part of the cleared land had been prepared for cultivation, and the seeds planted, but, owing to the nature of the soil, with little or no result. The testator had contracted to sell the whole lot for $2,000, and after his death the purchaser called on the executors to receive the balance of the purchase money and to make title. The widow claimed her dower, and her claim was compromised by the executors at $390, which they paid her, and she released her dower; they then conveyed to the pur-chaser under c. 24 of the Trustees and Ex-ecutors Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 129:—Held, that the lot was rot in a state of nature at the time of the death, and the widow's dower attached upon the whole of it; she was entitled to have on-third of such part as was not woodland assigned to her, with the right to take from the woodland fire wood for her own use and timber for fencing the other part; the executors had the right, under s. 33 of R. S. O. e. 129, to apply the money of the estate in the purchase of the release of the wildow's dower; and were entitled to charge the estate with the $3500. Re Mediatyc, Mc-Intyre v. Lease made by deceased husband -Priorities-Assignment of dower-Rights of executor and devisee-Devolution of Estates Act.]-A dowress whose dower has not been assigned has no estate in the land out of which she is entitled to dower, but, as soon as her dower is properly assigned, she is entitled to claim possession of the land assigned to her in priority to persons claiming under leases created by her husband, without her Stoughton v. assent, during the coverture. Leigh, 1 Taunt. 402, followed. Where a testator, dying in August, 1901, devised land to his son, and probate of the will was to his son, and probate of the will was granted to the executor named therein, and the son in April. 1902, executed a convey-ance of a part of the land to the testator's widow for her life, as and for her dower, the executor not assenting thereto :--Held, that the conveyance was of no avail, for the only person who could assign dower was the executor, in whom, under s. 4 of the Devolution of Estates Act R. 8, 0, 1897, c. 127, the whole inheritance of the testator vested, Allan v. Rener, 22 C. L. T. 294, 4 O. L. R. 309, 1 O. W. R. 459.

Limitation of actions — Absence from the province.]—F. died intestate in 1884. A.'s son C. died in 1885, leaving a widow and two children. Soon after the son's death his widow removed to the United States, rematried and has been absent from Ontario for twenty years:—Held, that she cannot now maintain any action for dower. Re Foster and Knapton, 13 O. W. R. 176.

On appeal the order was varied by directing that appellant's interest or right should not be affected by order made as between vendor and purchaser. Ibid., 507.

Mortgaged land — Sale — Purchase money.] — The testiator in bis lifetime purchased property subject to a $10,000 mortgage, which he assumed, but subsequently made a new mortgage, in which his wife joined to bar dower, and poid this mortgage off. He afterwards made a further mortgage for $1,650,58, in which his wife also joined to bar dower. He subsequently entered into an arreement for the sale of the property for $16,600, receiving $500 on account. The agreement was carried out by his executifx, the purchase money being applied in paying off the two mortgages, taxes, etc., leaving a balance of $2,150,52,:--Held, that the wife was entitled to dower only out of the residue of the estate after satisfying the charges :

Possession as dowress-9 Edw. VII. c. 39, s. 9 (O.) — Action to recover posses-sion — Forfeiture of dower by adultery.] — Ejectment action, defendant claiming to be rightfully in possession as dowress. Defendant's husband having cruelly used her and forced her from her home, she went to Michigan, where she lived in adultery. Her husband having gone through two or three marriage ceremonies during their separation finally sold his farm, one of his supposed wives joining to bar dower :--Held, that defendant was not entitled to dower and there is no resulting trust in her favour, although she had helped with her money to buy the farm. She had slept on her rights. Bowman v. Thurman (1909), 14 O. W. R. 254.

Separation deed-Jointure - Election.] -On the 24th July, 1868, the plaintiff and her husband and trustees on her behalf executed a deed which, after reciting that disputes had arisen between the husband and wife and that an action for alimony was pending, provided for the separation of the husband and wife and the conveyance of certain property by the husband to trustees for the benefit of the wife, and contained a num-ber of covenants, one of which was a covenant by the trustees that the wife would, whenever called upon, release her dower in any lands of which the husband might thereafter acquire a title. The husband died in Jan-uary, 1898, having acquired and dying seised of other lands. In August, 1898, the wife brought this action claiming dower in these lands, having up to that time continued to have the beneficial use and possession of the lands mentioned in the deed of 1868 :--Held. that that deed provided a jointure for the wife, within s. 7 of 27 Hen. VIII. c. 10; that the acceptance of the deed and the benefits thereby conferred was an election by her within that Act to accept the jointure; and, therefore, she was not entitled to dower in the after-acquired lands.—Judgment in 19 C. Action against municipality — Compensation for damage by water overflowing on lands—Defence — Agreement with previous owner - Validity of agreement - Statutory drain-Municipal Drainage Act-By-law.] -Plaintiff brought action to recover $1.0(x) compensation for damages alleged to have been caused to his lands by a drain constructed by defendant township. Defendants pleaded in answer that they had entered into an agree-ment with a former owner of plaintiff's land whereby he was to be relieved of any assess ment for the drain on the terms that he would take the burden of the waters which might come to his lands and supply a sufficient outlet. Plaintiff contended that this agreement was unauthorised and illegal. Court of Ap-peal, held, that an agreement might be one which no Court would enforce, but still be a complete defence of leave and license : That when the agreement was made the parties knew they were dealing with a statutory drain, subject to repair and improvement from time to time: That plaintiff stood in the shoes of his vendor from whom he purchased with notice and could not now be heard to complain : That he had suffered no damage. as he could extend the drain on his own proas he could extend the drain on his own pro-perty to a proper outlet. Artificial obstruction - Failure of Scheme-Report of engineer.] - In 1884 a petition was presented to the plaintiffs' council asking for the removal of a dam and other obstructions to Mud Creek, into which the drainage of the township and of Augusta, adjoining, emptied. The council had the creek examined by an engineer, who presented a report with plans and estimates of the work to be done and an estimate of the cost and proportion of benefit to the respective lots in each township. The council then passed a by-law authorizing the work to be done, which was afterwards set aside on the ground that the removal of an artificial obstruction was not contemplated by the law then in force, s. 570 of the Municipal Act, 1883. In 1886 the Act was amended, and a fresh petition was presented to the council, which again instructed the engineer to examine the creek and report. The engineer did not again examine it (its condition had not changed in the interval), but presented to the council his former report, plans, specifications, and assessment, and another by-law was passed, under which the work was done. In an action to recover from Augusta its proportion of the assessment :--Held, affirming the judgment of the Court of Appeal, 2 O. L. R. 4, 21 C. L. T. 375, Strong, C.J., dissenting, that the amendment in 1886 to s. 570 of the Municipal Act, 1883, authorized the plaintifis' council to cause the work to be done, and claim from Augusta its proportion of the cost.-Held, further, reversing the judgment, that the report of the engineer was sufficient without a fresh examination of the creek and preparation of new plans and a new assessment. Elizabethtown v. Augusta, 22 C. L. T. 191, 32 S. C. R. 295.

Assessment for outlet—Engineer's report under Municipal Drainage Act—Draingee area—Benefit—Portion of cost assessed to other townships—Liability of subscriptent townships to pay interest—At expiration of four months — Date from which interest should be calculated — Municipal Drainage Act, s. 66—Costs.] — After delivery of the judgment of Court of Append (14 O, W, R, 1033, 1 O, W, N, 190), the question arose as to the liability of the subservient townships to pay interest on the amonts payable by them by way of contribution to the expenses of the drainage scheme.—Henderson, Referee, held, that, under s. 66 of the Ont. Municipal Drainage Act. no sum was payable by the subservient townships until the expiration of four months from date of judgment of Court of appeal, and interest should be computed from that date.—*Elisøbethtoren v. In accordance with the provisions of s.-s. 2 of s. 4 of the same Act, the council by by-law fixed the charges to be made by the engineer for his services at the rate of $5 a day, and under s. 29 the engineer certified to the clerk that he was entitled to $45 for fees and charges for his services—Held, that his certificate established prima facie the validity of his claim for $45, and the onus was on the plaintiff, objecting to the award, to shew its incorrectness, which she had not done.—Held, allso, that under s.-s. 4 of s. 28 work under an award not performed as contracted for, may be re-let. By-law — Petitions tor—Qualification — Damages.]—The assessment roll last revised previous to the passing of a drainage by-law is the one to be looked at for the purpose of assertaining whether the petition for the work was sufficiently signed to authorise the passing of the by-law. The words "exclusive of farmers' sons not actual owners," in s.-s. 1 of s.-S. R. B. O. c. 226, do not refer to farmers' sons who are not actual owners in fact, but to farmers' sons so shewn by the last revised assessment roll. A farmer and his sons arranged that he should convey his farm to them, taking back a life lease:—Held, that this was sufficient to give them an interest in the land, of a freehold nature, entiting them to be assessed as joint owners, and so assessed they are not "farmers' sons not actual owners,"—Held, also, following Connor v. Middagh, 16 A. R. 356, and McCulloch v. *Touen*ship of Caledonia, 25 A. R. 417, that, the bylaw not having been quashed, the plaintiff was not entitled to damages for work done under it, although it was invalid. Challoner v, Lobo, 32 O. R. 247, 21 C. L. T. 29.

Construction of ditch without bylaw—Trespass—Nepigence—Costs.] — Section 470 of the Municipal Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 223, applies only to actions brought to recover damages "for alleged negligence on the part of the municipality." In an action against a municipality for damages for diverting water upon the plaintiff's land by the construction of a ditch without any proper by-law authorizing the work:—Held, that s. 470 did not apply, as the plaintiff's claim was for trespass, and not for negligence; and that the trial Judge had power over the costs; and the Court would not interfere with his discretion in awarding costs up to the trial to the plaintiff, while directing a reference as to damages. Construction of new drain - Notice-Land owners-Liability for old drain-Ap-peal to County Council.]-A public notice given by a special superintendent of his appointment and of his proposed visit to places where it is proposed to establish a watercourse, is sufficient when it is addressed to the persons directly or indirectly interested in the proposed works, and the owners of a concession through which the watercourse must necessarily pass are sufficiently notified by necessarily pass are summerency notified by such a notice. 2. Arts. S81 and S82 of the Municipal Code, passed in the interests of agriculture, override art. 501, C. C., and subject the owners of higher lands to submit to the establishment of a watercourse through their lands for the benefit of lower marshy lands. 3. Owners who assert that they are already under obligation in respect of works for a watercourse established by a procesverbal, in order to escape liability for the work of making a new watercourse, must prove the homologation of this proces-verbal, and they may, besides, be made liable for the new watercourse in respect of the land which such new watercourse drains, 4. An appeal to the county council does not deprive a party of his right to move before the Superior Court to quash a proces-verbal on the ground of illegality or nullity. Ste. Julie v Massue, 13 Que. Contractor claiming for work performed. I.-Section 93 of Mun. Drainage Act, as enacted by 1 Edw. VII. c. 30, s. 4. deals only with cases of damages occasioned to others by reason of construction of drainage works in the way provided for by municipality, and does not refer to the claim of a contractor or workman to be paid for work performed; and therefore an action brought in the High Court which appears by statement of claim to be one to enforce payment of such a claim should not be summarily dismissed on ground that Drainage Referee alone has jurisdiction; but the question of jurisdiction should be left for determination at trial when the facts are investigated. Judgment of Falconbridge, C.J.K.B., 11 O. W. R. 320, and Divisional Court, 11 O. W. R. 1106, reversed Bank of Ottava v. Rozborowsh (1999), 18 O. L. R. 511: 13 O. W. R. 1175.

Cost of construction—Charge on land —"Owner"—Award.] — Moneys paid by a municipality under the provisions of the Ditches and Watercourses Act. R. S. O. 1897 c. 285, for the construction of a ditch under that Act, when placed upon the collector's roll, become, by virtue of s. 30, a charge upon the lands traversed by the ditch in the hands of the respective owners for the time being, though different from the owners at the time of the initiation of the proceedings under the Act. Wieke v. Ellice, 11 O. L. R. 422, 7 O. W. R. 425.

Cost of repairs—Varying apportionment —Power of Referee.1—Upon certain repairs to a drainage work becoming necessary, one of the townships intersetted directed their cagineer to make a report, and he assessed the cost against the different townships in the proportions in which the original cost had been assessed, no proceedings having been taken under s. 69 or s. 72 of the Drainage Act to vary the assessment:—Held, that this was the proper mode of apportionment, and that, notwithstanding the wide wording of s. 71 of the Act, the Drainage Referee had no power to vary an apportionment made under such circumstances. Re Chatham & Dover, 24 C. L. T. 307, S O. L. R. 132, 3 O. W. R. 882.

Cost of work—Procks-verbal — Rateneyers not interested—Mis-encouse—Costa]— At common law as well as by virtue of the Municipal Code, a proces-verbal cannot bind, nor effectively call upon to contribute to the costs of works ordered by the proces-verbal in regard to a watercourse, any ratenayer except those interested: arts, 811, 870, 871, 881, 882, C. M. 2. Therefore a proces-verbal which imposes upon certain ratenayers the duty of contributing to the cost of works in which they are not interested, is illegal and unjust, and should be quashed. 3. Costs cannot be given against a mis-en-cause unless be has joined issue with the plaintiff and asked for the dismisal of the whole or part of the plaintiff's claim. Papuet v. St. Nicolas, 13 Que, K. B. 1.

County road-Watercourse-Special sup erintendent-Proces-verbal.] - Article 772 of the Municipal Code applies only to cases where it is necessary to dig a watercourse through lands fronting on a road duly established, and where such a watercourse is necessary not only for draining the water from the road, but also for draining the abutting lands .--- 2. In this case a watercourse serving the purpose of draining several lots in the vicinity of a road was not in question, but only a prolongation or continuation of road ditches into natural watercourses to facilitate the flow of water from the road; and consequently the special superintendent had a right to provide in his proces-verbal for the digging and maintenance of these outlets by virtue of arts, 799 and 803 of the Municipal Code. Culvert in highway-Existing drain -Reconstruction -- Costs of. Re Camden & Dresden, 2 O. W. R. 200.

Damages-Injury to building.]-An action for damages caused to plaintiff's property by alleged negligent construction of certain highways and drains, thereby increasing the surface flow of water reaching his premises, the building erected thereon finally collapsing after a heavy thunder storm on the 20th July, 1907. The trial Judge held that plaintiff had a right to recover some damages prior to that date and gave a reference. A Divisional Court extended the period to the date of the inquiry, which the Court of Ap-peal confirmed and fixed damages at $100 in order to prevent a reference, which seem ingly would be very expensive and difficult. Rudd v. Arnprior, 13 O. W. R. 172.

Debentures - Maintenance - Embanking work—Registration of by-laws.]—Section 83 of the Drainage Act, R. S. O. c. 226, di-recting that the time for payment of debentures issued for the cost of maintenance of a drainage work shall not exceed seven years, does not apply to debentures issued for the cost of extending, improving, or ala drainage work, and the munitering cipality has the same power to issue deben-tures as in the case of an original drainage work. Because in the course of the construction of a railway work, banks are formed with the spoil cast from the dredge, the work is not one within s.-s. 2 of s. 3 of the Drainage Act, R. S. O. c. 226; that subsection relates to the reclamation of wet or submerged lands. Semble, that the provisions of the Municipal Act as to the registration of by-laws for contracting debts apply to bylaws for the issue of debentures for drainage works, and when such by-laws have been registered in accordance with the provisions of the Act, they cannot be set aside, even if originally ultra vires. Judgment of Fergu-son, J., 18 C. L. T. 342, affirmed. Suther-land-Innes Co. v. Romney, 19 C. L. T. 381, 26 A. R. 495

Defective system - Recovery of damages and costs - Subsequent assessment - Drainage Act, s. 95.]-The assessment for damages and costs recovered by a person complaining of a defective system of drainage must be made only against the lands included in the drainage scheme complained of. Lands included in an amended scheme undertaken after the right to damages has accrued Re McClure & Brooke, 11 O. L. R. 115, 6 O. W. R. 1021.

Deposit of earth on plaintiff's land-Claim for compensation-Remedy-Action-Forum - Drainage Referee.]-In an action brought against a township corporation and their contractor for damages caused by the variation of the specifications by the contractor for constructing a drain under the Municipal Drainage Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 226, in placing earth excavated in digging the drain upon the land of the plaintiff without permission :--Held, that, whether the plaintiff was entitled to be compensated or not, her claim fell under s. 93 of the above Act as amended, and her remedy was by notice proceedings before the Drainage Referee as provided for by that section, and not by writ and proceedings in an action. Burke v. Til-bury North, 8 O. W. R. 457, 862, 13 O. L. R.

Discharge of hot water and steam into - Liability.] - The defendants con-nected a drain leading from their premises with a private drain constructed by the plaintiff. Hot water and steam, originating on the defendants' premises and passing into their drain, flowed back through the plaintill's drain, and overlowed his cellar, and till's drain, and overlowed his cellar, and tilled his house with steam: — Held, fol-lowing Fuller v, Pearson, 23 N. S. Reps. 263, 21 S. C. R. 337, that the defendants were responsible in damages. Andreus v. Cape Breton Electric Co., 37 N. S. R. 105.

Disputes between adjoining owners -Forum for decision.]-A dispute between neighbours with regard to a drain, must be decided by the municipal authority constiinted for that purpose, and not by an ac-tion in the Superior Court, Dansereau V. Dansereau V. Dansereau, 16 Que. K. B. 426.

Disputes between adjoining owners -Municipal Code-Action négatoire.]-Difficulties arising between owners of neighbouring rural parcels of land, as to the right to flow of water, are of administrative compet-ence, and must be settled according to the provisions of the Municipal Code. They do not afford ground for the remedy by action négatoire in favour of one who asserts that his neighbour, by his drainage works, has caused an excessive discharge of water upon his land. Muldoon v. Casey, 33 Que. S. C. 45.

Dispute between neighbours ----- Forum -Municipal officers-Superior Court.]-The special remedy provided in a statute which imposes obligations such as those of vicinity, drainage, and sewerage of the Municipal Code, excludes the remedies of the common law. Therefore, a difference between neighbours in a rural municipality in regard to a ditch or drain must be referred to the municipal officers appointed for that purpose, and an action in the Superior Court based on such difference will be dismissed. Dansereau v. Dansereau, 29 Que, S. C. 411.

Ditches-Injury to lands -- Non-compli-ance with law.]-Rural municipalities which, in the construction and maintenance of roads, do not observe the requirements of the law touching drainage (in this case making lateral ditches), are responsible for the damages which resulted to the lands bordering on the roads. Thérien v. Windsor, 30 Que, S. C 24.

Execution of work by persons benefited — Default — Officers of corporation — Mandamus—Code of Procedure—Change in.] -Municipal corporations have the direction and control of works necessary for the execution of proces-verbaux regulating the opening or maintenance of watercourses. 2. If persons liable to do work, neglect to do it, the municipal corporation should have it done by their officers, 3. Municipal officers are sub-ject to the orders of the municipal corporation, but not to the orders of private persons interested in the works, and they are responsible for their acts only to the corporation. 4. The Superior Court has the right to compel municipal corporations by mandamus to execute what they have ordered by their own proces-verbaux, and their right exists whenever there is no other remedy equally appro-priate, advantageous, and efficacious. 5. The new Code of Procedure, so far from restricting the cases where mandamus may be obtained against corporations, renders the use of the writ applicable to a larger number of cases than the old Code of Procedure. See Art. 1022 of the old Code, and Art. 992, No. 1, of the new. Gauvin v. St. Patrice, 23 Que. S. C. 318.

Injunction restraining Drainage Referee from proceeding in an action before him under the Municipal Drainage Act, R. S. O. (1897), c. 226.]-Plaintiff, a civil engineer. instituted proceedings before the Drainage Referee, under s. 93 of the Municipal Drainage Act to recover $1,239.33 balance alleged to be due him for preparing plans, specifications and estimates for draining certain lands The defendants admitted employing plaintiff. but asserted that they had paid him all that was due him, i.e., $1,950, and contested the right of the plaintiff to have the matter in issue tried by the Drainage Referce :-Held, that the claim of the plaintiff did not arise in the "construction, improvement or mainten-ance of the drainage work," but in matters wholly preliminary to such construction. Prohibition granted restraining the Drain-age Referee from proceeding further in the age Intervet from proceeding (urriter at the action, Moore v. March (1909), 14 O. W. R. 1066, 1 O. W. N. 38, 206, See S. C., 13 O. W. R. 692, 14 O. W. R. 1194, 20 O. W. R.

Injunction requiring townships to trial, plaintiff was awarded $240 damages, and a mandatory injunction against both defendants, requiring them to open up and maintain a culvert, opposite plaintiff's land, in such a manner and to such an extent as to receive and carry away waters that may from time to time flow along the east side of the road-allowance, so that said waters may not back up on plaintiff's land. On appeal to the Divisional Court it was held that the judgment appealed from should be varied as to the terms of the injunction awarded by making it one restraining the defendants from continuing to bring the foreign water down to the injury of the plaintiff and operation of the judgment should be suspended for one year to enable defendants to do this. With this variation judgment affirmed, and appeal from it dismissed, with costs. Vanderberg v. Markham & Vaughan (1910), 15 O. W. R.

Inter-municipal works -- Contract Damages-Guaranty - Continuing liability.] -The city of Montreal having a sewer sufficient for all its purposes within its limits through lands lying on a lower level than those of three adjoining municipalities, en-tered into an agreement in writing with one of them, St. C., by which it was permitted to connect its sewers with the Montreal sewer in question for drainage purposes, and, by the same agreement, Montreal consented that the two other municipalities should make con-nections with St. C.'s sewers, so connected, in such manner that waters coming from such three higher municipalities should be drained through the Montreal sewer, on condition that the connection should be made by St. C. at its own cost and to the satisfaction of the Montreal engineers; and that Montreal should be guaranteed against damages :--Held, that guaranty bound the several higher municipalities not only for all damages resulting from the act of making the actual connection of the sewers, but also for damages that might be subsequently occasioned from user .--- Held also, that, as Montreal had not obliged itself to construct additional or new works within any fixed time in case of insufficiency, the adjoining municipalities were not relieved from any of their liabilities on account of postponement of construction of such works by Montreal.—Held, further, that the judg-ment awarding damages against Montreal being a matter between third parties and not res judicata against the other municipal corporations interested, Montreal was only entitled to recover from St. C. such damages as might be shewn to have resulted from the connection and user of the sewers under the agreement; that Montreal, when sued, was not obliged to summon its warrantor in the action for damages, but could, after condemnation, recover such damages by separate action under the contract; that it was not a condition precedent to action by Montreal, by the terms of the contract, that it should first submit to a judicial condemnation in liquidation of such damages; and that, as between St. C. and the arrière garants, their contracts bound them to pay damages in proportion to the areas drained by them into the Montreal sewers. Montreal v. Ste. Cune-gonde, 22 C. L. T. 251, 32 S. C. R. 135.

Lands subject to works without outlet, and which has no benefit from the watercourse.—Recourse of the owner.].—The recourse in an action in the Superior Court to set aside the decision (of a Court of Revision), is open to an owner whose land is assessed for the cost of opening and maintaining a watercourse to drain the water from a road, without draining the assessed land, and not being any benefit to him, in a distriet where the work on the municipal roads is only done at the cost of the municipality under Art, 1080 C. M. Coté v. Windsor, 1500, 36 Que. S. C. 363.

Maintenance — Improvement of natural watercourses—"Benefit" assessment—"Outc.c.1.-50 let" liability.]-Lands from which no water is caused to flow by artificial means into a drain having its outlet in a municipality other dram having its outlet in a multiplant, other than that in which it was initiated, cannot be assessed for "outlet liability" under 57 Y. c. 56 (O.). 2. Where a drainage work initiated in a higher municipality, the assess-ment for "outlet liability" therein is limited to the costs of the work at such outlet. 3. Every assessment, whether for "injuring lia-bility" or for "outlet liability," must be made upon consideration of the special circumstances of the case, and restricted to the mode prescribed by the Act. There must be apparent water which is caused to flow by an artificial channel from the lands to be assessed into the drainage work or upon other lands, to their injury, which water is to be carried off by the proposed drainage work. A. Assessment for "benefit" under the Act must have reference to the additional facilities afforded by the proposed work for the drainage of all lands within the area of the proposed work, and may vary according to circumstances, 5. Section 75 of the Act only authorises an assessment for repair and maintenance of an artificially constructed drain. The cost of widening and deepening a natural watercourse is not assessable upon particular lands under s. 75, but is a charge upon the general funds of the municipality. Works for the reclamation of drowned lands in a township on a lower level than that of the initiating municipality are not drainage works, within the meaning of s. 75, for which assessment can be levied thereunder, nor are they works by which the namer, nor are they works by which the lands in the higher township can be said to have been benefited. Decision in 26 A, R, 495, 19 C, L, T, 381, reversed. Sutherland-Innes Co. V. Township of Rommey, 21 C, L, T, 1, 30 S, C, R, 495.

Maintenance of ditch - Action against ratepayer—Prescription—Forum — Justices of the Peace—Residence—Summons—Conviction.]-The prescription of six months provided by Art. 2558, R. S. Q., does not apply to an action begun by a municipal corporation against a ratepayer, for the recovery of his share of the cost of maintenance of a line ditch. 2. Such a suit may be begun by the corporation after having paid the account of the rural inspector, but not before a justice of the peace, the right of recourse to that tribunal being a right personal to the rural inspector, which he cannot assign. 3. In this case, the summons calling upon the appellant to appear before two justices of the peace of the district of Montreal, without indicating their residence, and the conviction having been made by such justices without stating their residences, the summons and convictions were held void, the competence of justices of the peace under Art. 1042, M. C., depending upon their place of residence, which, therefore, must be mentioned. Tour-ville v. Francois de Salles, 23 Que. S. C. 67.

Maintenance of watercourse — Procels-verbal—Charge on riparian owners and persons benefited.]—Article S71 of the Municipal Code, under which drainage works, in default of agreement or of proceb-nerbal, is done by the riparian proprietors, and Art. 887 of the same Code, which makes the owners of lands drained liable for such work, may be combined and read together. Therefore, a process-corbal which makes works of maintenance of a watercourse chargeable to the contributories in their double capacity of riparian owners and owners of the lands drained, is not annulable on this ground. Plante v. Richeilen, 32 Que. S. C. 284.

Mandamus - Notice - Damages-Drain insufficient to carry off water.]-To entitle a person who or whose property is injuriously affected by the condition of a drain to a mandamus for the performance of such work as may be necessary to put the drain in proper condition, the notice required by s. 73 of the Drainage Act, R. S. O. c. 226, while not necessarily in technical form, must be so clear and precise that the municipality can decide whether the complaint is well founded or frivolous, and must be one which the municipality would be justified in acting upon under s.-s. (a) of that section. A letter referring to defects in the drain, and suggesting steps to be taken, but not calling upon the municipality to do specific work, is not sufficient. The notice by which pro-ceedings are initiated in Court cannot be re-garded as a notice under s. 73. A person who or whose property is injuriously affected by the condition of a drain is entitled to recover from the municipality charged with the duty of maintaining it such damages as he sustains by reason of its non-repair, whether caused by the flooding of his land by the waters of the drain, or by its failure to carry off the water which came upon the land in the course of nature, Crawford v, Ellice, 19 C. L. T. 385, 26 A. R. 484.

Mandamus - Notice-View-Damages.] -A letter written by the complainant's solici-tor to the council of the municipality, stating that the land in question had been flooded by water from a drain constructed by the municipality, but not saying anything as to the drain's condition, and asking them to construct and maintain such drainage work as is required to relieve the land, is not a sufficient notice under s. 73 of the Drainage Act to justify the issue of a mandamus. It is the claimant's duty to shew that proper notice has been given if a mandamus is asked for, and objection to the sufficiency of the notice may be taken by the defendants at any stage of the action without pleading want of notice. The Drainage Referee in trying an action may proceed partly on view, but in so doing must follow strictly the directions of the Act, and not make the view without appointment or notice to the parties. If he does so proceed, however, his finding, though based partly on the view, may be upheld if the evidence supports it. A complainant is entitled to recover for any injury to the use and enjoyment of his land or for its depreciation in value. if caused by failure to keep a drain in repair, but not for depreciation in value based upon the alleged insufficiency in size of the drain as originally made, and the Court holding, on the construction of the Referee's judgment, that this element had been allowed to enter into the computation of the damages, reduced them from $250 to $50. McKim v. Township of East Luther, 21 C. L. T. 113, 1 O. L. R. 89.

Municipal Drainage Act, s. 75—Three townships interested — Dom. Rw. Act, ss.

250, 251-Necessity for by-law.]-A large number of residents of the township of Chatham petitioned their council that certain areas be drained by deepening and otherwise improving certain drains already made, which and specifications, estimates, assessments, etc., made by a civil engineer which were finally adopted by the council. Duplicate copies of the final report were served upon the townships of Camden and Dover, through which townships the drain would pass. The township of Dover appealed to the Drainage Referee, taking a number of objections, all of which the Referee overruled and confirmed the report except that he altered the provision for maintenance so as to include the lands in Dover assessed for benefit as well as those assessed for outlet. The Court of Appeal held, that the findings of the Referee had been reached after careful surveys, examinations and investigations, and he being familiar with the drainage areas in question, as well as with all the surrounding areas and the drainage systems and works thereon. therefore it would be necessary for the appellants to shew a very strong case to overcome such findings. This not having been done, the appeal was dismissed. Dover v. Chatham Dover v. Chatham (1909), 15 O. W. R. 156.

Neglect to maintain and repair drain —Damages—Mandamus, O'Hara v. Richmond, 4 O. W. R. 178.

Neighbour on higher land.]-In an action contesting a servitude to drain surface water, the defendant who blames his meighbour on higher land for the excess of water has no recourse in real warranty against him. He cannot, under this pretext, delay the principal demand by a dilatory exception. Cf. Gauthier v. Darche, 1 L. C. J. 296, and Gosselin v. Martel, 27 Que. S. C. 344. Roumilhae v. Dennis, 36 Que. S. C., applies to those who are benefited by the work there mentioned. Hence, the owner of lands on a higher level from which water is carried by its natural flow to those on a lower level, cannot be made a contributory to the work or expense provided in a proces-verbal for the opening and maintenance of the municipal watercourse through the low level lands into which such water is discharged .- Comtois v. Dumontier, An action will lie in the Superior Court by a party unlawfully made a contributory to work in a proces-verbal, to have it annulled in so far as he is concerned, and such action is not subject to the limitation of 30 days prescribed in Art. 708, M. C.—Grenier v. La-course, 2 Que. Q. B. 445, approved and fol-lowed.—When the consideration and homologation of a proces-verbal is referred by a local council to the county council under Art. 136 M. C., and the latter takes the matter up and homologates the proces-verbal, any action to annul it is properly brought against the corporation of the county which is liable for costs in case of contestation. Petition for-Report of civil engineer under Municipal Drainage Act-Assessment for outlet-Appeal to Drainage Referee -

Sufficiency of outlet-Evidence on question as to-Report of engineer confirmed by Court of Appeal.]-In 1909 Kalbfleish and other interested landowners presented a petition to the council of the township of South Easthope, asking that action be taken in connection with a drain which was out of repair and considered insufficient. The council appointed John Roger, C.E., under the Municipal Drainage Act, to examine and prepare Easthope, and certain lands in the township of Downie and in the city of Stratford, would he benefited by the proposed drain, and that all three municipalities should be assessed accordingly. His report stated that there would be a sufficient outlet .--- Official Drainage Referee, on appeal by Stratford, found the proposed outlet insufficient, and that the assessment in the city was unwarranted .--Court of Appeal, on appeal by South East-hope, held, that it was a question of evidence, that the expert testimony was directly in conflict, but that the great weight of evidence was in favour of the report of the engineer. Was in income of the report of the en-gineer confirmed with costs throughout. Stratford v. South Easthope and Dovenie (1910), 17 O. W. R. 830, 2 O. W. N. 388.

Petition for drainage scheme - Engincer's report-Delay in filing-Extension of time - Alteration and enlargement of of time scheme - Municipal Drainage Act.] - The power of extending the time for filing the report of an engineer upon a municipal drainage scheme by s. 9, s.-s. 8, of the Municipal Drainage Act as amended by 62 V. (2), c. 28, s, 6 (O.), can only be exercised under the condition mentioned in that sub-section. It is a limited power to extend for good cause, and is dependent upon inability of the engineer to make a report within the time fixed owing to the nature of the work, and not upon dilatoriness or supineness on his part. -An engineer was appointed to make examination and report in 1900, but did nothing within the first 6 months after his appoint-ment. Various extensions were granted, several after the extended time had expired. No report was made till February, 1905, and such report was, after amendment, adopted by the council in June, 1905, and a by-law founded upon it, the engineer advancing no excuse for delay except press of work and lack of assistance:—Held, that when the report was made the petition was not on foot, and therefore there was no warrant to the council for adopting the report or founding a by-law upon it. Re McKenna & Osgoode, 8 O. W. R. 713, 13 O. L. R. 471.

Proces-verbal—Construction of drain— Private interest.] — A municipal corporation has no power to order, by a proces-verbal, the construction of a watercourse begun in the interest of a private person and not in the interest of the public. Fontaine v, Sherrington, 23 Que, S. C. 532. Proces-verbal — Municipal Code, Arts. 771, 772, 870 et seq. — Contributories — Resolution.)—A proces-verbal for the opening and maintenance of a watercourse is presumed to be made under the general provisions of Arts. 870 et seq. of the Municipal Code, and persons interested only can be made thereby contributories to the work. A proces-verbal for a watercourse cannot be held to have been made under Arts, 771 and 772, M. C., unless it is o expressly declared in the resolution ordering it to be made and appointing a special superintendent for that purpose. C, County of Beauce v. Breckey, 15 Que, K. B. 520, Gagné v. Windsor, 34 Que, S. C. 119.

Pumping machinery - Drainage - Injury to land and crops-Overflow of water-Inefficient operation of pumping plant-Appointment of engineer and commissioner of works - Construction of works-Negligent operation-Want of repair - Provisions of Drainage Act - Damages-Costs-Source of payment—Drainage area—General funds of municipality.] — A municipality negligently operated their pumping machinery used for drainage purposes so as to cause damage to the lands of certain persons. Corporation held liable under Drainage Act R. S. O. 1897, c. 226, s. 73 and 1 Edw. VII. c. 3, s. 4 (O.) One-half of the damages awarded were imposed on the general funds of the municipality, and one-half on the area benefited by the drainage machinery causing the dam-Bradley v. Raleigh, 6 O. W. R. 267, 10 O. L. R. 201.

Qualification of petitioners — "Last revised assessment roll."] — The "last revised assessment roll." which governs the status of petitioners in proceedings under the Drainage Act is the roll in force at the time the petition is adopted by the connell and report, and not the roll in force at the time the by-law is finally passed. Report of engineer — Amendment — Failure to take aath—Appeal.]—Taking the oth prescribed in s. 5 of the Municipal Drainage Act, R. 8, O. c. 226, is an essential prerequisite to the exercise of jurisdiction by the engineer under s. 75 of that Act, While an appeal to the Drainage Referee against a report is pending, the initiating municipality cannot refer back the report to the engineer for amendment. Re Colchester North & Giosfield North, 20 C. L. T. 207, 27 A. R. 281.

Report of engineer — Amendment — Jurisdiction of Referee — Appeal — Court of Appeal.]—The Drainage Referee cannot under s. 80 of the Drainage Act, R. S. O. c. 226, upon the admission of the initiating township that the report appealed from is defective, refer it back, against the wishes of the appealing townships, to the engineer for amendment. That course can be adopted, if at all, only with the engineer's consent and upon evidence given. An order assuming to refer back a report is not an interlown-tory order within the meaning of s. 90 of the Drainage Act, IK, S. O. c. 226, and an appeal lies to the Court of Appeal against it. Bervice of engineer — Remuneration — Audit by County Judge—Municipal Drainage Act s. 5 (a) — Absence of written request by council — Condition precedent — Clerical work done by assistants—Value of assistants' services.]—Action by engineer for remuneration for reporting on a drainage scheme. Under s. 5 (a) above the County Court Judge has no jurisdiction to andit plaintiff's account unless there has been filed a written request by the council or a person assessed. The engineer has the right to delegate to qualified assistants matters of detail such as taking levels, preparation of plans, but not any requiring the exercise of judicial discretion. The amount to be paid the assistants is a matter of quantum meruit, Moore v. March, 13 O. W. R. 602. See 14 O. W. I: 1006, 1194, 1 O. W. N. 38, 206, 20 O. L. B-67.

Status of petitioners — Finality of assessment roll — Farmer's son.] — In proceedings under the Drainage Act the assessment roll is conclusive as to the status of the persons mentioned in it, and evidence is not admissible to shew that a person entered on the roll as owner is in fact a farmer's son and has been entered on the roll as owner by the assessor's error. Township drain — Division of tournship —Damages before division—Action for.] — A township, in which extensive drainage works had been constructed, was divided into two townships by a statute which provided that the assets and debts of the original municipality should be divided between the new municipalities, each remaining liable as surety for the portion of the debts it was primarily liable to pay, and the provisions of the Municipal Act as to the separation of a junior from a senior township to be applied as far as possible:—Held, that an action for damages caused by the drainage works, incurred before the division, and asking to have the drains kept in repair, must be brought azinst both townships and not against that one only in which the plaintiff's land was situate. Wigle v. Gascheld South, 21 C. L. T. 231, 10 J. R. 519.

Both townships appealed to the Drainage Referee allowed the appeal of grounds. The Referee allowed the appeal of sould be confirmed and the appeal dismissed. Huntley v. March (1900), 14 O. W. R. Tarning water on plaintiff's farm] —Plaintiff brought action claiming that defendants had while engaged in repairing a highway wrongfully constructed certain grades and ditches along certain culverts through the highway so as to divert water from the highway and from an adjoining highway over which they had not assumed centrol, and from other lands into and upon plaintiff's farm, for which he claimed damages and an injunction-At trial Teetzel, J., keld, that the evidence as to damages was conflicting, but there was no doubt that the excess of water discharged on plaintiff's land caused him some loss and inconvenience, and would have a depreciating effect upon the value of his farm. In lieu of an injunction judgment was given plaintiff or $450. for damages past and future, with costs.— Judgment of Teetzel, J., 15 O. W. R. 294, mtrmed. McMulkin v. Oxford (1910), 16 O. W. R. 3.

Watercourse traversing two counties — Naming of special superintendent — Request—Quashing—Costs — Res Judicata.] —The defendants had presented a petition to the county council of Hochelana for the authorisation of the opening and maintenance of a watercourse crossing the counties of Hochelana and Jacques Cartier. The council granted the request and named a special superintendent, who, after having visited the locus and heard the parties, drew up a report in favour of the proposal. This report was submitted for homologation to the board of delegates of the two counties, who, after consideration, quashed it with costs of the report against the defendants, the petitioners. These costs were forthwith taxed and paid by the plaintiffs, who now claimed payment of then from the defendants.—Held, that the decision of the board of delegates had the force of res judicata against the defendants, and could not be incidentally reformed in a suit for the costs.—2. That the council of Hochelang had, in this case, the power to name a special superintendent, and even supposing such nonination to be illegal, the corporation would not be responsible for errors in procedure in County of Hochelang v. Payment under threat of criminal prosecution — Error — Ratification.] — About the time a dissolution of partnership was imminent, one of the partners was accused of embezzling funds, and, supposing that he was liable for an alleged shortage, and under threat of criminal prosecution, he signed a consent that the amount should be deducted from his share as a member of the firm. He was denied access to the books and vouchers, and some weeks afterwards, upon statement of the affairs of the partnership. the amount so charged to him was paid over to the other partners. It was subsequently shewn that this partner had made his returns correctly, and had not appropriated any part of the missing funds :-Held, that he was entitled to recover back the amount paid in an action condictio indebti, as both the consent and the payment had been made under duress and in error; and, further, that there had been no ratification of the consent to the deduction of the amount by the subsequent payment, because the denial of access to the books and vouchers caused him to continue in the same error which vitiated his consent in the first place; and further, that, even if the consent could be regarded as amounting to an agreement, it would be avoidable for error as to fact. Agreement — Right of way — "Droit de tour d'échelle"—Notice—Repairs—Building—Injury to adjoining premises from rainwater — Remedy.]—An agreement between neighbours in these words, "les parties auront toutes deux droit de passer sur le terrain situé entre les dites maisons pour réparer chacune la sienne," does not establish a servitude of right of way; it simply confers the right known to the old French law as "le droit et tour d'échelle." It gives the owner of the dominant tenement the right to go upon the servient one and to use upon it such implements as ladders, senfiolding, etc., as may be necessary to repair his buildings, wherever they are in need of repair, and then only. Notice to the owner of the servient tenement is, therefore, implied, as a condition precedent to the exercise of the right. Further, it cannot be used, if no repairs are necessary, nor if such repairs is cannot be effected at the season when the exercise of the right is claimed,—2, An action lies to compel the owner of a building to perform the necessary works to prevent rain-water from spatiering from his roof or outworks into his neighbour's windows. Thibuilt v. Gourde, 33 Que. 8, C. 536.

Ancient lights — Prescription—(Carty cf possession—Evidence — Onus—Prescumption —Commencement of statute.]—A right to the access and use of light to a house ennot be acquired under the Prescription Act by the lapse of time during which the owner of the house or his occupying tenant is also occupier of the land over which the right would extend. In an action to establish a right no ancient lights, the burden of proof in the first place is on the plaintiff to shew uniterrapied use for twenty years, and then the barden is shifted to the defendant to shew she facts an negative the presumption of ancient lights. Remarks as to the time from which the twenty years' prescription began to run. Freigenbauw v, Jackson, S. B. C. R. 417.

Conveyance of lots according to registered plan — Park reserve and entrace marked on plan—Registry laves—Statute of Limitations.]—Held, affirming the judgment of a Divisional Court (19 O. L. R. 407). of a N. 1990 (2011) (19 O. J. R. 407). Stances there stated, that what the plaintiff claimed and was entitled to was an ensempt. Claimed and was entitled to was an easement, and that the defendant's possession was in-sufficient to bar the plaintiff. — Mykel v. Doyle (1880), 45 U. C. R. 65, approved andfollowed.—Per Garrow J.A., that even if theconveyance to the defendant had actuallybeen of the land which she claimed to have purchased, she must have taken subject to the rights of prior and subsequent purchasers of lots laid out on the plan, such rights resting upon and being protected by prior registration of the plan, of which every one sub-sequently dealing with the land was bound to take notice; and such rights were in the nature of easements.-Per Meredith, J.A., that the whole difficulty had arisen through a mistake of fact as to the actual position on the ground of the reservations, a mistake made when the defendant first acquired an interest in the land, and not attributable to the plaintiff; what the parties were bargaining about was land abutting on these reservations, with common rights over them, for access, etc.; position on the ground of the reservations-created, at least, when the defendant took her lease - being easements, against which the Statute of Limitations relied upon by the defendant does not run, no title by length of possession had been ac-quired. Ihde v, Starr (1910), 21 O. which constituted it.—3. It cannot be said that there is aggravation of the servitude by the fact that the place where it is sought to be maintained changes little by little by reason of the fact that the water of a river breaks the land and makes more distant, little by little, the place where the gravel is found which is to be taken out according to the terms of the instrument creating such servitude. *Perry v. License to build a house on land — Exclusive enjoyment — Profit à prendre — License to use land as fishing station—Transler, — The right to build a house on another man's land is not an incorporeal hereditament. Such a right is a mark of title and of exclusive enjoyment and is not an easement or profit à prendre.—The right to put boats, nets, etc., on shore and to use the property as a fishing station is not an easement, and, if a profit prendre, is personal only, and not transferable, Pitman v, Nickerson, 40 N, S. Rt 20.

Light — Air — Ventilation — Private way — Prescription — Proof — Injunction —Damages—Costs. Davids v. Newell, 8 O. W. R. 297.

Light — Injunction — Lost grant — Evidence — Inference — Ancient lights.]—An application of the plaintiff for an injunction restraining the defendant from erecting a building which would deprive the plaintiff of light through certain windows, was refused, where the evidence did not warrant the fendant if the erection of the building were delayed.—An inference that might be drawn from the continuous enjoyment of such an easement for 20 years may be rebuilted and disproved. Cases ander the common law relating to ancient lights referred to. Crowe v, Cabot 40 N. S. R. 177; O'Mara v. Eden, ib. 1800.

Light - Obstruction to access of light to windows-Claim under grant-Distinction between grant and ancient lights-Injunction - Waiver - Damages - Mortgage.]-The rules settled by the Courts in case of the interference with ancient lights are not applicable to a case where, as here, the plaintiff's rights are dependent upon a prior conveyance from the common owner of his lot and the adjoining one, now owned by the defendants, the plaintiff being entitled to receive such access of light through his windows as the windows afforded at the time of the severance of his lot from that owned by the defendants .- Held, however, Mabee, J., dissenting, that the plaintiff had, by his inertness in insisting on his rights while the defendants' building complained of was in course of construction, discntitled himself to a mandatory injunction for its removal, his remedy being limited to an award of damages. -Held, also, that the existence at the time of the grant to the plaintiff's predecessor in title of an outstanding morigage, which was subsequently discharged, was not material. Simpson v. T. Eaton Co., 10 O. W. R. 215, 569, 15 O. L. R. 161.

Servitude -- Contract -- Inter-Light ference with enjoyment of.]-A notarial deed made between the parties and intituled "Con-vention et Accord," contained among other provisions the following : "The parties, their heirs and those claiming under them, shall respectively have the right to maintain forever the windows (ouvertures) which actually exist in their said dwelling houses built on said lots Nos. 120 and 119, and will have the right to change the places of the same according to their respective need, but they will not have the right to construct more of them than they now actually respectively have: "-Held, that the deed above mentioned created an easement for light in favour of the covenantees. — 2. It follows that nothing may be done which would limit the enjoyment of this easement or make it incon-venient; the condition of the place canthe right illusory.—3. Thus the construction of a new roof on the house at such a height that it takes away almost all the light and air obtained from a window of which the existence and enjoyment were assured by such deed, constitute an obstacle to the enjoyment of such easement.-4. As a consequence he having a right to this easement can demand that this new construction be removed and that removal should be to such an extent that, after it has been done, the person having a right to the easement will enjoy it to the same extent as before.-5. The case ment of light covenanted for by the plaintiff places on the defendant, the owner of the servient tenement, the implicit obligation not to build in such a manner as to destroy the enjoyment of the easement by the plaintiff. Thibault v. Gourde, 26 Que. S. C. 185, Light — Servitude — Right of view — Deed — Reservation — Way — Rights in common.]—A conveyance of lands fronting on public highways with the right of passage merely over a private lane, does not create a servitude that can entile the grantee to make windows and openings in walls which are built upon the line of the lane.—A reservation in a deed of partition to the effect that lanes through subdivided lands should be held in common by the proprietors par indicas, or their representatives, must be construed as reserving the rights in common only to the converged.—Judgment in Goné v. Leepérance v. Goné, 25 C. L. T. 138, affirmed. Leepérance v. Goné, 25 C. L. T. 138, 36 S. C. R. 618.

Light — Servitude — View — Indirect view.]—A view over a contiguous tenement from a platform or gallery, of which the front parallel to the division line is closed, obtained by lenning over the side rails that are at right angles to the division line, is not a direct view, within the meaning of Art. 536 C. C. De Bellefeuille v. Auger, 28 Que. 8, C. 532.

Non-apparent continuous servitudes —Building restrictions — Necessity for renevaal of registration—Party wall—Deed— "Fastened."] — Clauses in a deed of sale, prohibiting building in certain materials, or for certain purposes, do not create servitudes. 2. The words "é tablissements qui pournient être de nature à incommoder les voisins et devenir un sujet de plainte," imply some substantial inconvenience exceeding ordinary grievances such as neighbours living together are obliged to endure. 3. A proprietor has a right, under Art. 520, C. C., to occupy nine inches of his neighbour's land for a foundation wall eighteen inches in thickness. He has also the right to erect upon his line a building which cannot serve as a mitoyen wall, such as a wooden brick-encased wall, but subject to the obligation of demolishing such wall at his own cost, in the event of his neighbour constructing a mitoyen wall between their respective properties; and even where the previously existing wall was quite sufficient for his purposes, he will still be obliged to contribute one-half of the cost of the mitoyen wall if he use it. 4. The word "fastened" (scellé) in Art. 534, C, C, is sufficiently complied with by a window fixed to the wall with nails or screws, and these covered by a moulding of plaster which is, Covered by a moulding of phaster which is, itself, fastened in such a way as not to be removable without being broken, 5. The deed creating a servitude must sufficiently indicate the dominant property without ex-trinsic ald. Judgment in Que, 8, C. 202 affected States, Variation 20, One 8, C. affirmed. Sicotte v. Martin, 20 Que. S. C. 36.

Pleading — Interest of claimant.]—In an action to establish a right of servirude, allegations in the defence that the plaintiff has no interest in the servirude which she claims —in this case a right of way—and that her action is brought only for the purpose of forcing the defendant to purchase her land, will be struck out on demurrer. Projecting eaves — Descending water and snow-Common owner-Conveyance by -Grant and reservation of rights.] - The plaintiff's predecessor in title, owning a lot of land, built two houses thereon, with a passageway between them, and the eavestrough and part of the eaves of the defendant's house projecting over the passageway, He then conveyed to the defendant's predecessor in title the westerly house, " with the privilege and use of the projection of the as at present constructed," and roof covenanted for the quiet and undisturbed enjoyment of the projection, and that, on any sale or conveyance of the house to the east, he would " save and reserve the right to such projection." Subsequently he con-veyed the easterly house, with the land between the two houses, to the plaintiff, "subject to the right . . . to the use of the projection . . . as at present constructed :- Held, that the defendant was not bound to prevent the snow and water discharged from the clouds upon his roof from falling from it upon the plaintiff's land, and that the easement of shedding snow and water, as had been done ever since the defendant's house was built, was necessary to the reasonable enjoyment of the property granted; that the grantor could not insisupon the grantee altering the construction of the roof so as to prevent the snow and wrater coming down, and the plaintiff stood in no higher position than the granter; that the projection of the roof over the plaintiff's land carried with it the necessary consequence that water and snow falling upon the land below; and the action was dismissed with costs. Right of aqueduct - Prescription -Adverse enjoyment-Lost grant-User-In-junction.]-The plaintiffs and their predecessors in title had for many years, under a lease from B., a supply of water by pipes Bassing through the land of the defendant. B, did not in fact own the land, and had no right to make the lease. There was no evidence that the lease was made with the knowledge and consent of H. (the predecessor in title of the defendant), the owner of the servient tenement :- Held, that the plaintifs' right to the easement could not be supported on the presumption of a lost grant and a continuous uninterrupted user for over 20 years referable to that title .- Held, per Hanington, J., that assuming that the plaintiffs were entitled to the easement as claimed, the erection by the defendant of the building on this land as proposed was no infringement of the plaintiffs' right for which an injunc-tion ought to be granted. Loggie v. Montgomery, 3 E. L. R. 336, 38 N. B. R. 112.

Right of way - Agreement-Evidence-User. |- The plaintiff claimed a right of way over a private road 700 feet in length, in part on land of defendant adjoining plaintiff's and, and leading from a public highway to lots comprised in part by defendant's land, sold by defendant's predecessor in title, B., som by deremant's predectsor in the rule. under a conceynace reserving to the grantees the use in common of the road. The evi-dence of plaintiff's predecessor in title, K., was that, shortly after the sale of these lots, he moved back on his land his farm house and fence, to widen the entrance of the private road at its junction with the highway, under an agreement with B., concurred in, as he believed, by the owners of the lots, that he, K., should have for so doing a right of way with them over the road. B, denied that an agreement was concluded, or that the matter ever proceeded beyond negotiation, and his evidence was corroborated by H., a former owner of the lots, and by drafts of an agreement containing alterations indicating that the parties were merely in treaty, and providing for the maintenance of the road by K in common with the owners of the lots, an obligation disclaimed by plaintiff, and for a conveyance by K, of the part of his land to be used for widening the entrance. This con-veyance was never made, and the land was included in the conveyance from K. to the The road had been used, from the plaintiff. time of the alleged agreement, by K. and plaintiff in connection with the farm house, until it was torn down, situate about 200 feet from the public highway, and the plaintiff had used, but not without interruption. the road for about 13 years, for a considerable part of its length. Shortly after the date of the alleged agreement, fences with gates, crossing the road at separate points, were erected by H, without objection by K.: -Held, that the plaintiff's bill for an in-Junction to restrain the defendant from ob-structing plaintiff in the use of the road, should be dismissed. Foirweather v. Robert-ton. 24 C. L. T. 232, 2 N. B. Eq. 412.

Right of way—Extinguishment by tax salc—Onus.]—Plaintiff was declared entitled to an easement over a strip of land. The defendant alleged the extinguishment of the easement by a tax sale, but he did not meet the onus of shewing a valid tax sale, the production of the tax deed not being enough. Essery v. Bell, 13 O. W. R. 395.

Right of way-Limited grant-Colourable user.]-A right of way granted as an easement incidental to a specified property cannot be used by the grantee for the same purposes in respect to any other property. Judgment of the Court of Appeal, 26 A. R. 95, ante 77, affirmed Robinson V. Purdom, 19 C. L. T. 374, 30 S. C. R. 64.

Right of way — User—Prescription — Railways—Crossing.1—A railway line passed over the northern half of lots 32, 33, and 34, respectively, of the Sth concession of North Dumfries, having a trestle bridge over a ravine on lot 34, near the boundary of 33. G, the owner of lot 33 (except the part owned by the railway company), for a number of years used the passage under the trestle bridge to reach a lane on the south half of lot 34, over which he could pass to a village out he west side, his predecessor in title, who owned all these lots, having also used the same route for the purpose. The company having filled up the ravine, G, brought this action for a mandatory injunction to compel the defendants to reopen it:—Held, reversing the judgment of the Court of Appeal, 27 A, R, 64, 20 C, L, T, 55, that such user could never ripen into a title by prescription of the right of way, nor entitle G, to a farm crossing on lot 34. Guthrie v. Can. Pac. Rue. Co., 21 C, L, T, 222, 31 S. C, R, 155.

Rights appurtenant to dominaut tenement — Construction of ice-house — Floadian of servicut tenement—Aggravation of servitude—Abatement of nuisance.]—The construction upon a dominant tenement of an ice-house in such a manner as to cause the water from melting ice stored therein to flow down upon the adjoining lands on a lower level, and cause injuries to the property, is an aggravation of the natural servitude, for which the owner of the survient tenement is entitled to recover damages for the injury resulting therefrom, and to have a decree for the abatement of the nuisance: Grouard, J. dissenting. Audette v, O'Cain, 27 C. L. T. 658, 29 S. C. R. 103.

Sale of land—Severance—User.]—Hcld, affirming the judgment in 32 N. St. 340, that where two properties of one owner are sold at the same time, and each of the purchasers has notice of the sale to the other, the right to any continuous easement passes with the sale as an absolute legal right; but the same must have been enjoyed by the vendor at the time of the sale. Therefore, one purchaser could not claim the right to use a dam on his land in such a way as to cause the water to flow back on the other property, where such right, if it had ever been endoned years before the sale. Hart v. We-Mullen, 20 C. L. T. 197, 30 S. C. R. 245

Servitude — Change of level—Injury to lower land—Remedy.]—The owner of the lower parcel of hand is not liable for damage suffered by the owner of the higher parcel by reason of the lessee of the lower parcel having changed the level, the latter not being the agent or representative of the owner of the parcel. 2. The owner of the higher parcel cannot even require the owner of the lower to pull down at his expense the obstructions created by his tenant; he can only demand the power to destroy them himself at his own charges, reserving his recourse in damages against the lessee who did the mischief. Judgment in 11 Que, K. B. 173 varied. Kieffer v. Ecclésiastiques du Séminaire des Missions Etrangères, 13 Que, K. B. 89, [1903] A. C. 85.

Servitude - Covenant - Vagueness -Building on adjoining "lot"-Construction -"House"- Alignment and height of buildings.]-Effect will be given to a covenant of servitude, though expressed in vague or in-definite language, if the intention of the parties clearly appears from the circumstances in which it was made .- Thus, where in the sale of part of a lot, the purchaser agreed not to build except on a line with and no higher than the houses to be erected by the vendor on the adjoining lot, and the only adjoining lot owned by the vendor, at the time, was the remainder left him after the sale, the servitude thus stipulated is not the same the series, but exists in favour of that remainder, as the dominant tenement.— 2. The word "lot," in a grant of an ease-ment or servitude, may mean "part of a lot," when the context or the circumstances make it so appear .--- 3. The word "house," in a covenant intended to fix the alignment and height of buildings, includes shops or stores, as well as dwelling-houses. McCallum v. Morgan, 32 Que, S. C. 67.

Servitude — Enclove—Right of vary — Necessity.]—A proprietor whose land is enclosed on all sides by that of others, and who has no communication with the public road, cannot claim a way over the land of a neizhbour which does not offer the shortest crossing, unless it be established in evidence that the shortest crossing would be too inconvenient for the use of the enclosed proprietor. Judgment in 17 Que. S. C. 522 affirmed. Boyer v. Perras, 10 Que. K. B. 313.

Servitude - Right to discharge water on adjoining land-Action négatoire-Claim for damages-Action for tort-Third party-Stay of proceedings to add.]-A plaintiff who, by an action négatoire de servitude, contests the defendant's right of exercising a servitude over the plaintiff's land by discharging water upon it from his (the de-fendant's) land, and who grafts upon this action a claim for damages, is in fact bringing an action for a tort, especially where he alleges no act on the part of the defendant exercise a servitude. In such a case the de-fendant, alleging that he is subjected to the same treatment by a third person, cannot, by dilatory exception, demand a stay of proceedings for the purpose of bringing this third person into the action and making him take son fait et cause. Roumilhac y. Deniss, 10 Que. P. R. 63.

Servitude — Tacit extinction—Building on adjoining lot—Height of building.]—Scrvitudes may be extinguished by tacit (as well as express) abandomment or renunciation. Extinction may result, in the case of a servitude non alium tollendi, from the fact that the owner of the dominant tenement, having alienated the part contiguous to the servient tenement, has permitted the purchaser, a joint stock company in which he is a shareholder, to erect upon it a building of a height exceeding that permitted by the servitude. Judgment in McCallum v, Morgan, 32 Que,S. C. 67, reversed. Morgan v, Guy, 18 Que,K. B. 50.

Servitudes - Building restrictions -Necessity for renewal of registration—Party Wall—Deed—"Fastened."]-1. Clauses in a 1-1. Clauses in a deed of sale, prohibiting building in certain materials, or for certain purposes, do not create servitudes; and, even assuming that they do, such servitudes, being continuous non-apparent servitudes, are extinguished, as regards subsequent purchasers of the immovable sold, by want of renewal of registration. 2. The words "établissements qui pourraient être de nature à incommoder les voisins et devenir un sujet de plainte," imply some substantial inconvenience exceeding ordinary arietances obliged to endure. 3. A proprietor has a right, under Art. 520, C. C., to occupy nine inches of his neighbour's land for a foundation wall eighteen inches in thickness He has also the right to erect upon hi line. a building which can not serve as a motoven wall, such as a wooden brick-encased wall, but subject to the obligation of demolishing such wall at his own cost, in the event of his neighbour constructing a mitoyen wall between them; and even where the previously existing wall is quite sufficient for his purposes, he will still be obliged to contribute one-half of the cost of the mitoyen wall (scellé) in Art. 534, C. C., is sufficiently complied with by a moulding of plaster which is, itself, fastened in such a way as not to be removable without being broken. 5. The deed creating a servitude must sufficiently indicate the dominant property without trinsic aid. Sicotte v. Martin, 19 Que, S. C.

Severance of tenement - Right of drainage-Implied grant-Continuous casement but not apparent or necessary.]-The plaintiff owned the eastern half of a double house, and the defendant owned the other half, which was situate higher up the hill than the plaintiff's. From the sink in the defendant's house a drain was used, which came through the partition wall, under the floor in the basement of the plaintiff's house and connected with the sewer in the street. The plaintiff's sink connected with the same drain. There was no other connection be-tween the sewer and the two houses. Both parties derived their title from G., who had devised one house to each of two nieces. The defendant claimed a right of drainage over the plaintiff's property, as an implied grant when the severance of ownership took place: -Hcld, that, although it was a continuous easement, it was not an "apparent" and necessary easement to the enjoyment of the defendant's house. Tanner v. Hiscler, 40 N. S. R. 250.

Street — Private way — Right of access —Payment-Reservation—Indemnity — Corenant—Fature payments,]—Held, that College street, in the city of Toronto, was, up to the year 1889, a private road, to which adjoining owners acquired no right of access; that the reservation upon its dedication in that year by the University of Toronto to the city corporation of the right of the University to compel adjoining owners to pay for the right of access was valid; that a covenant by a vendor of land adjoining the street in favour of the purchaser thereof to indemnify him "against the payment of any money, and against all loss, costs, or damages be may be obliged to pay to secure access," was therefore enforcible; and that the corenantee could recover not only the amount of payments actually made, but also the amount of payments to be made by him in the future, under an arceement by which he agreed to pay a sum in instalments for the right of access. Judgment of MacMahon, J. 1 O. L. R. 382, 21 C. L. T. 290, affirmed. Paimer v. Jones, 21 C. L. T. 556, 2 O. L. R. 622.

Water privilege — Original in grant— Prescriptice title—Evidence—Referce's deed —Proof of decree.]—In 1854 R. B., owner of lot 8, conveyed the northern part thereof to M., together with the privilege of taking water thereto through a pipe, which M. was empowered to build, from a spring on the southern part of the lot. By mesne assignment M.'s lot, with the water privilege, became vested in T. B. In 1871, he executed to 8, for 21 years with covennant for renewal, a lease of the spring, with a right to lay a pipe therefrom through the southern part of lot 8 to lot 9. The ownership of the southern part of lot 8 was then in H., and in 1905 became vested in the defendant. In 1872 8, built a pipe from the spring across H.'s land to lot 9 and it has been in uninterrupted use over since, a period exceeding 20 years. In 1904 lot 9 with their right to the easement : this build not be set up.—A deed of a referee in coulty, though purporting to have been made under a decree of the Court, is not admissible in evidence without proof of the decree. Logie v. Montgomery, 26 C. L. T. 405, 3 N. B. Eq. 238.

Water supply — Servitude — Contract —Reaction, —In the year 1880 R., who was building an aqueduct, found it necessary to pass over D.'s land, and bound himself, in consideration of being permitted to do so, to supply D, with as much water for the use of his house as he had a right to expect from the proper working of the aqueduct, on payment of $4 per annum. In 1902 R. forcibly broke the connection between the main pipe and D.'s house and cut off his supply of water, because, although D.'s famhy bound for the water:—Held, that R. had no right to refuse the supply of water so long as he retained the servitude of D.'s property.—2. If a party to a contract dissolves it by reason of infractions, by the other party, of some of its stipulated conditions, he must dissolve it in toto. Doyon v. Roy, 24 Que 8, C, 191.

Water supply—Servitude — Enforcement —Interlocutory injunction.]—If a right to a supply of water is granted in exchange for other advantages, it should be considered rather as a right of servitude attaching to the really than as a personal right; and an interlocutory lighnetion will be granted to compel its enforcement, especially when the respondent cannot terminate it without trespassing on the land of the applicant. Action brought under order of Equity Coart-Proof of tille-Presumption of possession-Nonsuit.]--R, filed a bill in equity praying that M. might be restrained from asserting title to a lot of land, and that R. might be declared to be entitled to the lot in fee simple. The Judge in Equity directed that R, bring an action of ejectment against M. to try the title. Both parties failed to prove a documentary title, and relied upon, and gave evidence of, title by possession. On questions submitted the jury found that R, and his predecessors in title had been in possession of the lot since 1876. On this finding the trial Judge ordered a verdict to be entered for R.:--Held, that the direction was right, and the Court was not obliged to treat the action under the order of the Equity Court as an ordinary action of ejectment, and assume the defendant to be in possession, and nonsuit the plaintiff on failure to prove title. Robertson v, Miller, 35 N. Condition of re-entry for want of property to distrain - Tenant denying to bailiff that there was property to distrain, not estopped from shewing the truth at the trial-His credibility a guestion for the jury.]-Ejectment on a condition of a re-entry for want of property to distrain. The bailiff had been sent to search the premises, and had also a demand in ejectment to serve if no property should be found on which to levy. He found nothing, but on passing a hovel he asked defendant if there was any property there, and defendant said there was not, and the bailiff did not search it, and served the demand in ejectment. On the On the trial the defendant did not dispute his former denial that there was property, but proved that there was sufficient to satisfy half a year's rent. Plaintiff contended that defendant was estopped from denying the truth of his statement to the bailiff. At the trial the Judge held defendant was not estopped and plaintiff submitted to a non-suit. rule nisi to set the non-suit aside and for a new trial was granted on the ground that defendant was estopped : - Held, Peters, J., that defendant was not estopped, but that the rule should be made absolute on the ground that plaintiff had a right to have the credibility of defendant's testimony in contradicting his former statement submitted to a jury. Stewart v. McPhee (1863), 1 P. E. I. R. 236.

Equitable defence — Verdict for defendant—Legal itile—Coats.]—In an action of ejectment, where the defendant pleads that he is entiled to possession on equitable grounds, and the Judge trying the case without a jury finds that the plea is proved, it is proper under s. 134 of C. S. N. B. 1903, c. 111, to order a verdict for the defendant, although the legal title and right to possession is in the plaintiff, and the effect of the verdict is to deprive the plaintiff of the costs of the ejectment. Souci v. Ouillette, 37 N. B. R. 303, 1 E. L. R. 350.

Improvements - Tender - Condition-Description of land.]-In a petitory suit by the owner of land against a possessor, the plaintiff is not obliged to tender with his action an amount for the improvements; he is not in default to pay the amount until it has been fixed by the Court. A tender expressed to be made without a prejudice, and pour acheter sa paix, and under the condition that the party to whom it is made can take it only as a complete settlement of his claim in principal, interest, and costs, is not illegal and will not be struck from the record on demurrer; it is not equivalent to a payment of the amount, but is a mere proposal. A tender is not necessarily illegal by reason only that there is a condition attached to it. Where land claimed by a petitory suit was situated in a locality of which there was no cadastral plan, and no fences or other boundaries, the judgment was held to be executable and the land to be sufficiencly described as the lot of land situate at Fox Bay, Anticosti, on which the defendant had built a dwelling house which he occupied. Pleading - Defence-Deed given as security - Amendment-Parties,]-To an action by the plaintiffs, as executors and heirs W., to recover possession of land which it was alleged the defendant had entered into possession of and was withholding, the defendant pleaded that the land in question was conveyed to W. by M. by a deed which, though absolute in form, was given by way of mortgage to secure a sum of money; that W, executed a bond to reconvey the land upon payment of the amount secured with lawful interest; that M. died intestate and since his death the land in question had been in possession of H., one of the heirs-atlaw of M., and had never been in possession of the defendant; and that before action brought the full amount of principal and in-terest was tendered to the plaintiffs. This paragraph of the defence having been struck out as disciosing no reasonable answer to the action, or, in the alternative, as tending to prejudice, etc., the fair trial of the ac-tion :--Held, that the paragraph should be tion - need and amended in such a way as to shew that the heir of M., in whose possession the land was alleged to be, was the defendant's wife, and that the plaintiffs, if they wished, should have leave to add H. as a defendant. Whitman v. Hiltz, 38 N. S. R. 174

Proof of title - Heir-at-law - Unrecorded deed-Sale by administratrix - Presumption-Paper title-Adverse possession-Acts of possession-Limitation of actions.] -An unrecorded deed from the heir-at-law of the owner of the fee to his widow in oc-cupation at the time of his death, which occupation was continued by the widow and her successors in title to the time the deed was given, and for more than twenty years after, is not a deed by one disseised (the possession not being adverse), but operates as a conveyance of the heir's title, or, at all events, is good as a release against the heir or one claiming through him under a re-corded deed. After a lapse of thirty years a deed by an administratrix, under a license from the Probate Court to sell, will be presumed to be good, though there is no affidavit of the administratrix indorsed thereon. as required by the Probate Act of 1840, and no proof that the provisions of the Act as to notice of sale, etc., were complied with. Adverse possession to cut down a documentary title of a defined lot must be made out clearly and satisfactorily, and must be open and exclusive, of some definite part or of the whole; and evidence of acts of cutting hay and planting crops on parts of the lot, the location of which are not so defined as to make it possible to adjudge their position or boundaries, amount only to acts of trespass. Hyde & Lashman Y. Toronto Theatre Co. (1910), 17 O. W. R. 380:

Title — Adverse possession—Evidence — Yete trial.]—On the trial of an action of ejectment, where the defendant claimed title by adverse possession, the Judge, in charging the jury, told them that if what the plainiff stated was true, it would be difficult for them to find the defendant's holding to be open and adverse to the plaintiff. The jury, however, found that the defendant had title by adverse possession.—Held, that the verdiet was not perverse, but there should be a new trial, as it was against evidence. Porter v. Brown, 36 N. B. R. 585.

Title — Certificate under Land Registry Act—Tax sale — Regularity—Ouns.]—In an action for the recovery of land, a plaintiff who relies on a certificate of title based on a tax deed, is not called upon to prove the regularity of the tax sale proceedings until the defendant shews some title to the land in question. Carroll v. Vancouver, 10 B. C. R. 179.

Title of plaintiff-Possession of defendant-Mortgage-Foreclosure — Decree pro confesso-Nonsuit.]-P., by his will made in 1879 and registered in 1883, devised the land in dispute to the defendant M. D. for her life, she being then in possession, on condition that she pay a certain sum of money to a person named at a time specified, and on her death or in default of payment to W. H. P. in fee. There was no evidence whether M. D. paid the money or not, but she re-mained in possession of the property, and there were other circumstances from which it was assumed that she had. W. H. P. mortgaged the property to B. In 1895, Upon this mortgage a suit for foreclosure was brought in equity, in which suit, M. D. was joined as a defendant. The bill was taken pro confesso for want of an appearance, and a decree for sale made. At the sale under this decree W. H. P. became the purchaser, and in 1897 he mortgaged to the Globe Savings and Loan Company. The Globe Company, through liquidators, assigned the mortgage to the plaintiffs, and they sold under the power of sale and acquired any title that could be derived from that source. No proof was given of the liquidation proceedings or the appointment of liquidators. In an action of ejectment by the plaintiff against M_{-D} , and her husband, the trial Judge held that, essuming the interest of M. D. in the property to have been foreclosed by the equity suit, the plaintiff, by failing to prove the liquidation proceedings or the appointment of liquidators, made out no tille which entitled them to eject the defendants in possession; and ordered a nonsult:—Meld, on an application to set aside the nonsult and enter a verdict for the plaintiffs, that the nonsult was right. and, in acknowledging and accepting the nomination, he said: "There are three things essential to success; first, a good cause; second, proper organisation; third, hard work. The first we have; the second and third will largely depend on you:"—Held, that the respondent by these words constituted every delegate who was present his agent, and became responsible for all that was afterwards done by them in organisation and work for the purpose of the election. Re East Middle sex Provincial Election, Rose v. Rutledge, 23 C. L. T. 183, 5 O. L. R. 644, 2 O. W. R. 233.

Evidence of - Canvassers-Speakers-Relatives-Scrutincers.]-The following were held to be agents :---One who accompanied the respondent on a canvassing trip during which he spent a day canvassing for the respondent and spoke on his behalf at an election meeting at which the respondent was also present and spoke. One who accompanied the respondent on a canvassing trip, acting as Interpreter (the respondent being under the impression that he was one of his supporters), and actually worked and canvassed for him with his authority. The son of the respondent, who took an active interest in the election on behalf of the respondent with his knowledge, acted as scrutineer, and was furnished with a sum of money by the respondent when leaving for the polling place at which he was to act. Leblanc v. Maloney, 5 T. L. R. 402

Proof of.]-The respondent was the candidate of the Protestant Protective Association and of the Patrons of Industry. D. was president of the local Conservative Associathough an opponent of B., the nominee of the Liberal party-had withdrawn, D. canvassed two or three votes in the interest of the respondent, to whom he transferred his support, probably in order to defeat B. There was one interview between D. and the respondent during the campaign, but it was not shewn clearly that the latter, or any accredited agent of his, knew that D, was working for him. The respondent was not called as a witness on this point, but there was no doubt that he relied on having the votes of the Conservatives. There was no Conservative committee, and D, did not attend the respondent's committee meetings. The evidence of one witness, if accepted in its entirety, would have brought agency home very closely, but it was contradicted by D. It also appeared that D. knew where to send a person to obtain a scrutineer's authority :---Held, that there was much to raise a case of suspicion, but in a question of imputed agency the facts ought to lead to a not doubtful inference; and in this case they stopped short of that, and therefore D. was not an agent for whose acts the candi-date was responsible. Re South Perth Provincial Election-Malcolm v. McNeill, 2 Elec. Cas. 30

Proof of.]—As to the agency of L_s, who had bribed two voters, it appeared that the respondent was brought into the field as the candidate of his party, having been nominated at a convention of the party association for the electoral district; L_s was not a delegate to, nor was he present at, the convention; and he was not upon the evidence connected with the association or its officers; he was not brought into touch with the endidate, or any proved agents of his, either as regards knowledge of the fact that he was working or purported to work on behalf of the candidate, or as regards any actual authority conferred upon him to do so. But he was present at three meetings of electors whon the voters' list was gone over; he acted as chairman of a public meeting called in the respondent's interest; he canvased soute voters; and from his antecedents, the respondent hoped or believed or expected that he would be an active supporter:—Held, by the Court of Appeal, Boyd, C, dissenting, affirming the decisions of the trial Jadges, that L. was not an agent of the respondent, Haddimand Case, 1 Elec. Cas, 572, distinguished. In re East Elgia Provincial Election—Easton V. Brower, 21 C. L. T. 10, 2 Elec Cas. 100.

Proof of.]-As to the agency of T., who had been found guilty of a corrupt practice it appeared that he was one of the local vice-presidents of the party association above referred to; he had been present at two meetings of local party men calling themselves a "Conservative Club," who were interesting themselves in the election, and had contributed towards the cost of hiring the club room at these meetings, he had gone over the voters list with others, which was the only work done; at a meeting held by the respondent in the place where T. lived, he had presided. having been elected chairman by the audience. and had made a speech introducing and commending the respondent; before the meeting he had met the respondent in the street, had shaken hands with him, and asked him how things were going. The respondent did not know that T, was local vice-president, and had never heard of the "Conservative Club." T: was not a delegate to the nominating convention nor present thereat. The associa-tion, as such, was not charged with any definite duty in connection with the election except the selection of a candidate :---Held, reversing the decision of the trial Judges. Burton, C.J.O., and Maclennan, J.A., dis-senting, that T. was an agent of the respondent. In re East Elgin Provincial Election-Easton v. Brower, 21 C. L. T. 10, 2 Elec. Cas, 100.

What constitutes agency.] — As to the nature of agency in the abstract, in election law there does not now seem to be any room for doubt. In election cases, as in other cases, there must be authority in some mode or other from the supposed principal. It may be by express appointment or direction, or employment, or request, or it may be by recognition and adoption of the services of one assuming to act without prior authority or request. It may be directly shewn or it may be inferred from the supposed principal, or it may be created inducetly through one or more authorised agents. Canvassing or other work in the promotion of an election does not per se establish agency, although, according to degree and circumstances, it may afford cogent evidence of agency. The respondent was nominated at a meeting of delegates from different portions of the con-The respondent did not appear stituency. to have definitely requested the assistance of these delegates in the contest, but at a gen-eral public meeting, after the close of the convention, he expressed hope "that all his friends would go to work with a good will;" the respondent further stated that he wished it understood that he expected the delegates to assist at the election :- Held, that these and other general remarks did not seem sufficient to constitute all supporters of the Government or all Liberals, or even all such in the constituency, agents of the candidate. Accompanying a candidate in his canvass is not sufficient in itself to constitute agency. Re Lisgar Dominion Election, 22 C. L. T. 433.

ii. Ballot Papers.

Divisions of -Error in printing-Uncertainty.]--Where a surname of a candidate had been printed so high up in the ballot paper as to appear in the division containing the name of another candidate and to lead to uncertainty as to which of the two candidates' divisions it was in:-Held, that the votes marked opposite to such surname were ambiguous, and could not be counted for either candidate: and a new election was ordered. Re South Perth Provincial Election -Schoultz v. Moscrip, 2 Elec. Cas. 52.

Initialling by deputy returning officer-Numbers — Marking by voters.]-A ballot paper properly marked by a voter, but not initialled by the deputy returning officer, having instead the initials C. S., which appeared to be and were assumed to be, those of the poll elerk, held good.—2. A ballot from which the official number was torn off, no explanation being given as to how it happened, held bad.—3. Ballots marked with a single horizontal or siniting line, instead of a cross, or with an imperfect cross, held good, following Jenkins v. Brecken, 7 S. C. R. 247. —4. Ballots marked for a candidate, but having: (1) the word "vote" written after his name; (2) having the word "Jos," being an abbreviation of the candidate's Christian name, written before his name; (3) having the candidate's surname written on the back of the ballot—held, bad. Re West Huron Provincial Election—Garrow v. Beck, 18 C. L. T. 247, 2 Elec. Cas. 58.

Marking of — Division of—Portion remored.]—1 a ballot paper is so marked that no one looking at it can have any doubt for which candidate the vote was intended, and if there has been a coupliance with the provisions of the Act, according to any fair and reasonable construction of it, the vote should be allowed.—2. The dividing lines on the ballot between the names of the candidates, and not the lines between the numbers and the names, indicate the divisions within which the voter's cross should be placed, and the space containing the number is part of the division of the ballot containing the candidate's name, so that a vote marked by a cross to the left of the line between the number and the name is good.—3. A ballot from which a portion of the blank part on the right hand side has been removed, leaving all the printed matter except a portion of the lines separating the names, but properly marked by the voter, is good.—4. Ballots marked on the back, although over a candidate's name, are bad.—6, Ballots with other markes on them backs a cross, held good or bad under the circumstances of each case set out in the report.—6. A ballot having the name of a candidate marked on its face in pencil, in addition to being properly marked for that candidate, held good.—7. A ballot with two initials on the back as well as those of the returning officer, held good. Re West Elgin Provincial Election, 18 C. L. T. 249, 2 Elec, Cas. 38.

Numbering by deputy returning officer — Numbers leading to identification of voters — Rejection of ballots — Voiding election costs.] — The deputy returning officer placed numbers on the ballot papers by which the voters could be identified:—Held, the prohibition contained in the Dominion Election Act, 63 & 64 V. c. 12, s. 80, s.-s. 2 (D.) applied, and such ballots must be rejected. Woodward v, Sarsons, L. R. 10 C. P. 733, applied, and a new trial was ordered, there being a sufficient number of ballots rejected to have altered the result of the election. Re Wentworth Dominion Election — Sealey v, Smith, 5 O. W. R. 22, 9 O. L. R. 201.

Numbering by deputy returning officers-Marking by voters-Divisions of ballot paper-Error in printing-Uncertainty.] -The fact that a number has been placed on the back of each ballot paper in a voting subdivision, in pencil, by the deputy returning officer, will not invalidate them, - 2. The fact that the cross is marked in the division on the left hand side of the ballot paper containing the candidate's number, and not in the division containing his name, will not invalidate it. In re West Elgin Provincial Election, 2 Elec. Cas. 38, followed.—3. Where the surname of a candidate was printed 100 high up and in the division of the ballot paper occupied by the name of another candidate: -Held, that the ballots marked with a cross above the dividing line, but opposite the surname so placed, could not be counted for such candidate, but were either marked for the canduate, out were either marked for the other candidate, or were void for uncertainty. Re South Perth Provincial Election, 18 C. L. T. 255, 2 Elec. Cas. 47.

Scorecy — Act of deputy returning officer — Numbering ballots.] — Under the Dominion Election Act a ballot east at an election is avoided if there are any marks thereon by which the voter may be identified, whether made by him or not. Hence, where a deputy returning officer at a polling place placed on each ballot the number corresponding to that opposite the elector's name on the voters' list the ballots were properly rejected, Judgment of Meredith, C.J., and Teetzel, J., 9 O. L. R. 201, 5 O. W. R. 282, affirmed. Sedgewick and Idington, J.J., disSenting, Re Wentworth Dominion Election— Sealey v. Smith, 25 C. L. T. 133, 36 S. C. R. 497.

iii. Claim against Candidate.

Quebec Election Act — Time for presentation — Approval of Judge. I—A person who has a claim against a candidate at an election for the Legislative Assembly of the province, in relation to the election, and has not sent it in to the agent of the candidate within one month after the day of the declaration of the election, but who afterwards obtains an approval of the same by a competent Judge, under s. 231 of the Quebec Election Act, 1903, has an action against the candidate to recover the amount. The true report of s. 231, notwithstanding its permissive form, is to take the claim out of the operation of the preceding s. 230, by which it would be barred, and to restore the right to enforce it at common law. Pigeon v. Chaurest, 28 Que. 8. C. 403.

iv. Corrupt Practices-Penalty.

Admissions - Revocation - Candidate disbursing money through persons other than lawful agents - Presumption - Onus -Illegal expenditure — Agent or mandatory— Wilful ignorance — Voiding election — Disqualification of candidate.] - An admission made and filed by a respondent to a controverted election petition that illegal acts have been done by electors and agents of such a nature as to cause the avoidance of the election, cannot be revoked. A demand for revocation not supported by any reason, not even that of error, will be rejected.—A candidate at a Dominion election may disburse money for election expenses only through the medium of an agent or agents appointed in conformity with s. 143 of 62 & 63 V. c. 12 (D.), and a contravention of this provision of the statute is an indictable offence; it creates besides, a presumption of fraud which the person contravening must rebut .--- A candidate, having an agent as required by the section cited, who remits to another person a sum of money for the socalled legal purposes of the election, without controlling the use of it or asking for an account of it, and who destroys the documents furnished by his depositary shewing the use made of it, will be held to have approved or permitted the illegal use of it by the latter .-One who to the knowledge of the candidate, approaches the electors on his behalf and takes charge of an important part of the election, whether in the way of intrigue or otherwise, becomes the mandatory and agent of the candidate, so that the latter is responsible for and suffers the consequences of his acts. The candidate cannot pretend ignorance of them; and his neglect to control them, his care to shut his eyes and keep himself in ignorance, are equivalent to an express authorisation to commit them.-This implied mandate or agency is deduced from the circumstances, which may vary infinitely, and the appreciation of which is for the Court.---In the course of the trial in this case it was proved that the agents and mandatories of the respondent were guilty of corruption, personation, and fraudulent practices, for which the respondent was responsible, and which had the effect of disqualifying him and voiding his election. Bérgeron v. Brunet, 27 Que. S. C. 389.

Before that day his sole connection with the respondent was that, being a livery stable keeper, he had driven the respondent, a day before the nomination, from one place in the electoral division to an-The respondent on that occasion canvassed A. for his vote, but A. made no promise, and the respondent did not ask him to vote for him. On the day before the polling, A. and one G. drove to H., arriving there in the evening. The trip was undertaken at the instance of G., who was held not shewn to be an agent of the respondent. In order to be an agent of the respondent. In order to persuade A, to go to H., G, said he would procure a transfer of A.'s vote to H., and he afterwards brought and handed to A, a printed paper, signed by the respondent, apparently one of a number of scrutincer appointments which the respondent had signed in blank and left with one B., his agent. A.'s name was not inserted by the respondent, and there was no evidence to shew by whom it was filled in. The number of the polling place was left blank, and never was filled in G, was not examined as a witness, and there was no proof of the means by which he be-came possessed of this paper:-Held, Meredith, J.A., dissenting, that the petitioner had failed to establish that A. was an agent for whose acts the respondent was responsible. It was contended that the election should be set aside under the common law of Parliament because of the corrupt acts of A. and G. and of a number of irregularities in the conduct of the election by the officials, among which were the appointment of a non-voter as deputy returning officer at one poll and of a clergyman at another, contrary to the statute. The operations of A. and G. were, however, confined to a small portion of the electoral district; A. was the only person found by the trial Judges to have been guilty of corrupt practices, and they also found that there was no reason to suppose that corrupt practices extensively prevailed at the election :--Held. that if, in such circumstances, an election could be avoided, it should be only on over-whelming proof of corrupt acts of so extensive a nature as virtually to amount to a re-pression or prevention of a fair and free opportunity to the electors of exercising their franchise and electing the candidate they wished to represent them; and that all irregularities of the kind indicated, not affecting the result, were cured by s. 214 of R. S. O. 1897, c. 9 .- In respect of votes attacked upon a scrutiny :-Held, that a Crown land agent under the Free Grants and Homesteads Act, authorised to take entries and make locations for free homesteads, but not to sell or to receive moneys for the sale of public lands, was not disqualified as a voter by s. 4 of the Ontario Election Act.—2. the meaning of s, 94 (1) and (2) of the Act, who is entitled to the certificate of the returning officer enabling him to vote at a polling place other than the one where law he is otherwise entitled to vote .-- 3. The votes of agents who voted on transfer certificates, but whose names were not in fact on the poll books of the polling subdivisions from which they purported to be transferred, were improperly received; the right to vote was disproved by the production of the poll book, and the petitioner was not bound to shew that the names were not on the orig-inal voters' list .-- 4. The votes of persons voting at a polling place other than that at which they were entitled to vote, without a transfer certificate enabling them to vote at the polling place at which they did vote, were improperly received, being in violation of s. 78 of the Election Act; except in the case of a tendered vote under s. 108, or a vote polled upon a transfer certificate under s. 94, no person is entitled to be admitted to vote unless his name appears on the list in the poll book .--- 5. The votes of persons voting on certificates issued in blank by the returning officer, whose names were afterwards filled in by the election clerk or other person, were improperly received, being against the provisions of s. 94,-6 and 7. Certificates given to constables and certificates sent by telegraph are not properly granted under 94, and cannot support votes received by virtue of them .- 8. Upon the evidence W an elector, did not tender his vote to the deputy returning officer at the proper polling place, and did not demand or receive a tendered ballot in the manner required by s. 108; and, even if there had been a proper demand and an improper refusal, there was nothing more than an irregularity. - Per Meredith, J.A.:-W. was entitled to a vote, but the rejection of the vote could be treated only as an irregularity which should have avoided the election only if it might have affected the result. Avoiding election for — Saving classe —Application of, I—Where only two acts of bribery were proved, but the perpetrators were both active, and one was an important agent of the candidate, and neither was called at the trial, and one of the bribes, though only $2, was paid out of the general election fund, to which the respondent had contributed $250, and the respondent's majority was 65 out of a total vote of about 5,000:—Held, that the election was rightly avoidel, notwithstanding the saving clause, s. 172 of R. S. O, e. 9. Re North Waterloo Provincial Election—Shoemaker v, Lackner, 2 Elec. Cas. 76, Avoiding election for — Saving clause —Application of.)—The total vote solid was over 4.500, and the majority for the respondent was 29. The trial Judges had reported one person multy of an act of undue influence, three being concerned in acts of bribery, and T., an agent, and two others, of providing money for betting :—Held, that s. 172 of the Election Act could not be applied to save the election. In re Enat Edgin Provincial Election—Easton v, Brower, 21 C, L. T. 10, 2 Elec. Cas. 100.

Bribery — Charges indefinite—Evidence,] —Where petitioner made several indefinite charges, and on examination for discovery refused to answer certain questions, it was held he must within two days give particulars as to such charges and verify same by affidavit. Re West Peterborough Election (1900), 14 O. W. R. 543.

Bribery — Evidence.]—In Burenu's case the evidence was that he purchased a dress and gave it to the daughter of Labossibre, a hotel keeper. Bureau was working in the respondent's interest and stayed at Labossibre's hotel: the daughter gave up her room to Bureau and he said he wanted to make her a nice present:—Held, that it was impossible to infer with any certainty that the present was made for the purpose of affecting the father's vote. In re Lisgar Dominion Election, 22 C. L. 7, 433, 14 Man, L. R, 310. Bribery — Offer not accepted.]—Where a charge is made of an offer not accepted of money to influence a voter the evidence is required to be particularly clear and conclusive. Re Lisgar Dominion Election, 22 C. L. 7 432, 14 Man. L. R. 310.

Brthery — Payment of roters for triffing services.] — The bribery by L. of two persons to abstaln from voting against the respondent was established by the evidence, although it was not shewn that anything was said to them about voting; L. having paid them, for triffing services which he engaged them to perform upon election day, sums in excess of the value of such services, knowing them to be voters and to belong to the opposite political pariy. In re East Elgin Provincial Election—Easton v. Brower, 21 C. L. T. 10, 2 Elec. Cas. 100.

Conveying voters to poll — Onus.]— The taking unconditionally and gratuitously of a voter to the poll by a railway company or an individual, or the giving to a voter of a free pass or ticket by railway, boat, or other conveyance, if unaccompanied by any condition or stipulation affecting the voter's action in reference to his vote, is not a corrupt practice, and the onus is on the petitioner to prove that the railway tickets supplied had been paid for. In re Lisgar Dominion Election, 22 C. L. T. 433, 14 Man. L. R. 310.

Dismissal of charges against candidate and agents - Concurrent findings of both trial Judges - Disagreement of trial Judges - Right of appeal.]-The Judges at the trial of an election petition, having reserved judgment in respect of five charges, subsequently gave judgment dismissing four of these charges, both Judges agreeing as to the result. In respect to the fifth chargea charge of payment of money by the candidate to a voter to induce such voter to vote for him-the Judges disagreed, one Judge being in favour of the dismissal of the charge, the other being of the opinion that the charge was proved :--Held, that the existence of a right of appeal in respect of one class of charges does not draw with it the right of appeal in respect of other charges, as to which there would otherwise be no right of appeal: -Held, also, that the portions of the Ontario Controverted Elections Act relating to the right of appeal in cases of disagreement between the Judges, must be construed in connection with the other provisions of the same Act; and also with the provisions of the same Ontario Election Act, which are in pari-materia; that the words "or otherwise" in s.s. (5) of s. 57 of the Controverted Elections Act extend the effect of that sub-section to a difference or disagreement in every matter on which a candidate might be disqualified for a corrupt practice, and that -s. (6) extends it to candidates and others. That if an appeal lies in case of a disagreement between the trial Judges, a judgment in appeal finding a candidate or other person guilty of a corrupt practice would necessarily subject him to disqualification or other disability or penalty, notwithstanding the absence of a concurrent judgment to that effect of the two trial Judges, and that this would be contrary to the statute :--Held, Maclaren, J.A., dissenting, that an appeal did not lie in respect of any of the charges. Re Lennoz Provincial Election—Perry v. Carscallen, 23 C. L. T. 255, 6 O. L. R. 203, 1 O. W. R. 730, 810, 2 O. W. R. 190.

Evidence - Corrupt acts at former election-Agency - System of corruption.]-A petition against the return of a member for the House of Commons at a general election in 1904 contained allegations of corrupt acts by the respondent at the election in 1900, which were struck out on preliminary objections. On the trial of the petition evidence of payments by the respondent of accounts in connection with the former election was offered to prove agency and a system, and was admitted on the first ground. A ques tion as to the amount of one account so paid was objected to and rejected :--Held, that such rejection was proper; that the question was not admissible to prove agency, for agency was admitted or proved otherwise ; nor as proof of a system, which could not be established by evidence of an isolated corrupt act :- Held, also, that where evidence is tendact: — Heia, also, that where evidence is trad-ered on one ground, other grounds cannot be set up in a Court of Appeal. Shelburne and Queen's Election Case, Coscie v. Fielding, 26 C. L. T. 776, 37 S. C. R. 604.

Evidence-Hiring vehicles - Conveying voters to poll-Agents-General corruption-Payment of electors - Pretended services-Expenditure of money-Account of expenses -Disqualification of candidate - Avoidance of election.]-In the trial of an election petition, evidence of corrupt practices must be sufficiently clear to induce belief beyond reasonable doubt, and the respondent or party charged is entitled to the benefit of the doubt. -The hiring of vehicles for the conveyance of voters to the polls is a corrupt practice, and when the person who hires and directs the carters, etc., does so from a committee room, in the presence of the president of such committee, an agent of the candidate, the latter will be held responsible therefor .-- The wholesale hiring of carriages from electors and conveyance of voters to the polls constitute the offence of general corruption .- The employment and payment of electors as chairmen and members of committees is not ipso facto a corrupt practice, but becomes such if the employment is merely colourable and is used as an indirect means to bribe .--- The expenditure of money for election purposes by a candidate otherwise than through his election agent, though not declared a corrupt practice by the Dominion Elections Act, 1900, is presumed to have been made for corruption. Where an amount of from $5,000 to $7,000 is so expended, being handed in packages of several hundred dollars by the candidate to some ten agents styled presidents of committees, and by them distributed to electors colourably employed as locators, etc., the official account of the candidate's election expenses published by his election agent amounting to only $291.35, and the personal in Personal corruption - Inference - Charge in petition-Amendment-Evidence.] -On a charge of personal corruption by the respondent, if the adjudication by the trial Judges does not contain a formal finding of such corruption, this Court may insert it, if the recitals and reasons given by the Judges warrant it .- The respondent, the night before the election, took a sum of over $4,000 and divided it into several parcels of sums ranging from $250 to $1.500. He then, after midnight, visited all his committee rooms and gave to the chairman of each committee, per-sonally and secretly, one of such parcels. His financial agent had no knowledge of this distribution, and no evidence was produced of the application of the money to legitimate objects :---Held, that the inference was irresistible that the money was intended for corruption of the electors, and the respondent was properly held guilty of personal corruption .- Allegations in the petition that the respondent had himself given and procured, and undertaken to give and procure, money and value to electors and others named his agents, to induce them to favour his election and vote for him, for the purpose of having such money and value employed in corrupt practices, were sufficient to cover the offence of which the respondent was found guilty. Providing money for betting—Loan.] —Three persons each lent $10 to R. Any bet or bets which he nade were to be his own bets, not theirs, and he was to return the money in a couple of days. He did not succeed in getting any one to bet with him, and he returned the money to each on the following day: — Held, that this was providing money to be used by another in betting upon the election, and was a corrupt practice within the meaning of s. 164 (2) of the Election Act. *Re East Elgin provincial Election_-Easton v. Treating - Antecedent habit - Candidate.]-The respondent admitted that he had treated on the day of the convention, after the convention was over, several times, at at least two hotels, several persons, some whom might have been electors. He denied, however, that the treating had any relation to the election :--Held, that under s.-s. 2 of s. 162 (added by 62 V. (2) c. 5, s. 7 (O.)), treating generally or extensively or miscellaneously is only prima facie a corrupt practice. If it be shewn that the treating was not in fact done corruptly in order to be elected, or for being elected, or for the purpose of corruptly influencing votes, it is no offence any more than it was before the en-actment of s.-s. 2. There may still be innocent treating, though, if it be general or extensive or miscellaneous, the onus of shewing that it is innocent is upon the respondent. And an antecedent habit of treating must still help, among other things, to rebut the inference of corrupt intent :---Held, also, that, although the respondent did not become a "candidate," within the meaning of s. 2, s.-s. 8, until the 27th March, yet if any corrupt acts in relation to the election were done by him before that date, they would affect the election, for the Act applies to everything done at any time before an election by a per-Son who is afterwards elected. Treating—Candidate — Corrupt intent— Habit, — The undisputed evidence shewed that the respondent from the time of his nomination as the candidate of his party frequently treated the electors and others in the bar-rooms of hotels whilst engaged in his canvass. He was not a man whose ordinary habit it was to treat, nor one who in the course of his ordinary occupations frequented bar-rooms: — Held, Osler, J.A., dissenting, that the trial Judges properly drew the inference that the treating was done with corrupt intent, so as to avoid the election of the respondent. Treating—Committee meeting.]—Upon a charge of treating a committee meeting held at an hotel, the evidence was that McC, who was found to be an agent of the respondent, brought into the room where the meeting was being held a box of cigars for the use of the members of the committee. He said he did it at the request of the landlord. It was not Treating — Evidence,]—In Jobin's case the treating was on polling day. He lived in a locality where there was no licensed tavern. He was accustomed, according to his own account, to keep considerable quantities of wine and spirits on hand and to supply them quite freely to others in the way of hospitality or as a matter of business: — Heid, that under the circumstances the Court would not infer the intent necessary to create an offence under either s. 110 or s. 111 of the Dominon Election, 22 C. L. T. 433, 14 Man L. R. 310.

Treating - Evidence. |-- In the cases of Ami and Foley the charges were of treating in bars. 'The evidence of Ami's treating wa of a very general and vague character. He stayed for some time at Labossière's hotel and treated considerably, even including, at times, all in the bar-room. The circum-stances of the different occasions, or who were present, were not shewn :-- Held, impossible, upon such evidence, to find the corrupt intent proved. In Foley's case the charge in the particulars was of treating all of the voters-a large number present in the bar of Tremblay's hotel on a particular evening -and that Foley then announced " that although he was not the Government candidate. he had their money to spend." The evidence shewed that Foley was at Labossière's, not Tremblay's hotel, and gave an invitation to all in the house to drink, and that what he said was that "if he wasn't a candidate, he had money to spend." Foley's name was one of those brought before the convention which nominated the respondent in the Government interest :--Held, that the evidence of the part taken by Foley in the contest was very vague and seemed in no way to support the view that this treating was done in the respondent's interest or for the purpose of influencing electors. Re Lisgar Dominion Election, 22 C. L. T. 433, 14 Man. L. R. 310.

Treating — Evidence.]—In the case of Watson, the charge against him and others associated with him, was of furnishing food for a meal at the house of an elector, to him and other electors, on the occasion of a mecting the night before polling day. It might be inferred that the refreshments were supplied with intent to influence the electors, and that, in that sense, it was done corruptly. The suggestion, after the votes had been polled, of a further "treat" for the night of polling day was not without importance. That suggestion fell through :—Held, that the case could not be brought within s. 111 of the Dominion Election Act, for which it seems necessary that either the meat or drink, or the money or a ticket to promy homizion Election, 22 C. terms in the particulars that he travelled about in the constituency and canvassed a large number of voters in certain specified polling districts, and " corruptly treated them, to induce them to vote for the respondent." The evidence shewed that Fiset did go about canvassing and was driven by Jean Moreau. It was sought by the petitioners to shew that in so going about Fiset treated various electors, but objection was made to the allowance of such evidence on the ground that the particulars did not give the details required by the order, and the Court refused to hear evidence of treating in that way, not more definitely specified, or to allow the examination of Moreau for the purpose of obtaining information only. About a week before polling day Fiset spent an evening at Moreau's house may rise; spent an evening at Moreau's house; he had with him whisky and gin and gave a drink to one Cardinal, telling aim it was "election whisky." The meeting was not arranged, but the neighbours just happened to ome in. It was not shewn that Cardinal had a vote. Cardinal's evidence was given without objection, and he was cross-examined mon it :- Held, that the Court was not prevented from considering the charge on account of its not being specified in the particulars, but the way in which the evidence was brought out was to be taken into consideration. If such meetings were frequent or intentionally brought about, the inference of the corrupt intent would be almost irresistthe corrupt intent would be atmost irresist-ible. As it was, it could not be taken as absolutely clear. Re Lisgar Dominion Elec-tion, 22 C. L. T. 433, 14 Man. L. R. 310.

Treating-Intent - Candidate.]-It was shewn that the respondent and his chief agent had on several occasions in the course of the canvass treated in bars. The respon-dent was a physician, with a large country practice, and constantly on the road. He was also a horse fancier, and, although an abstainer from liquor, a great consumer of cigars. It was not disputed that while on the road he was in the constant habit of treating, and he continued to treat after his nomination by the convention on the 1st February until the writ for the election was issued on the 22nd April: - Held, that no corrupt intent having been shewn in any of the instances of treating proved, the election was not thereby avoided. West Wellington Case, 1 E. C. 16, distinguished. In re East Middlesex Provincial Election—Rose v. Rut-ledge, 23 C. L. T. 183, 5 O. L. R. 644, 2 O. W. R. 233

Treating-Intent-Custom.]-The treating of electors prior to and on polling day by an agent of the respondent, although done on a liberal scale, will not be assumed to have been done with the corrupt intent necessary to make it an offence, when the Court is satisfied that he was accustomed to keep at all times considerable quantities of liquors on hand and to supply them quite freely to others in the way of hospitality or as a matter of business, and there is no other evidence to shew that the treating was done in order to influence a voter or voters. The same rule applies to treating when done in compliance with a custom prevalent in the country and without express evidence of any corrupt intent in so treating; also to the supplying of meals at a private house to electors who have come from a distance, in the absence of evidence that this was done for the purpose of influencing the election. In re Lisgar Dominion Election, 22 C. L. T. 433, 14 Man L. R. 310.

Treating - Intent - Custom.]-Where a person who was held to be an agent gave two bottles of whisky to an elector the day before polling day, the inference of fact was drawn that they were given with the corrupt intent of influencing the voter, although there was no direct evidence to shew the object for which they were given. Where a quantity of whisky was obtained from one agent of the respondent and taken to the home of another in the vicinity of one of the polling places. where it was drunk freely on election day by the electors generally, the inference of was drawn that it was provided by both these agents for the purpose of influencing the electors, though there was no direct evidence to that effect, and it was held to be a corrupt practice notwithstanding that apparently it did not have that effect. The evidence also shewed that a quantity of whisky was taken to a place in the vicinity of another polling place by an agent, where it was consumed by the agents and others on polling day :--Held, that this shewed a scheme on the part of the respondent's agents to influence the of the respondent's agents to initiate the election of the respondent by providing whisky at each of the polling places. Quare, whether an agent accustomed to carry about with him a bottle of whisky to treat those whom he should happen to meet, should not, if following this custom while actually engaged in canvassing, he held to have treated with a corrupt intent. Leblane v. Maloney, 5 T. L. R. 402

Treating — Meeting of electors — In-dividuals.] — The respondent requested M., who was found to be an agent, to go with him to a factory and introduce him to the workmen, some of whom were voters. M. did this, and the respondent addressed the workmen on behalf of his candidature. After the meeting was over and the workmen had dispersed. M. asked the foreman to have a drink at a neighbouring inn, which the foreman declined. M. also said that if the workmen who went home in that direction would go to the inn, he would "leave a drink for them there." This conversation was not in the presence of the respondent, nor heard by him. When the men were leaving their work for the day, the foreman told them what M had said, and eight or ten of them called at the inn and got a drink of beer without paying for it :--Held, that a charge of treating a meeting assembled to promote the election, under s. 161 of the Ontario Election Act, failed upon this evidence, for the meeting had come to an end before anything was said about the treating, and the men were not told anything about it till nearly three hours afterwards. Nor did the evidence support a charge under s. 162 (1) of corrupt treating of individuals in order to be elected, M. being a customer of the factory and following a previous habit in his intercourse with the men. Treating a meeting-Bribery.]-Where, after a meeting of electors had broken up, an alleged agent of the respondent had treated, at the bar of the hotel where it had been held, a mixed multitude comprised of some who had been at it, and others who had some who had been at 11, and others who had not:—Held, Maclennan, J. A., dissenting, that this was not treating "a meeting of electors assembled for the purpose of pro-moting the election," within s. 161 of the Ontario Election Act, R. S. O. c. 9.—Held, also, reversing the decision of the trial Judges, that such treating was not "bribery," within s. 159. Corrupt treating in its nature runs very close to bribery on the part of a treater, but the circumstances in which a treat can be said to be a valuable consideration within s. 159, so as to amount to bribery on the part of the person accepting it, must be unusual. Voting without right - Knowledge -Mala mens-Taking oath.]-It was charged that a person had voted at the election, having that he had no right to vote, by reason of his not being a resident of the electoral district. He knew that his name was on the voters' list, and that it had been maintained there by the County Judge, notwithstanding an appeal, and he believed that he had, and did not know that he had not, a right to vote :--Held, that a corrupt pra tice under s. 168 of the Election Act. R. S. O. 1897 c. 9, was not established. Under that section the existence of the mala mens on the part of the voter, "knowing that he has no right to vote," not merely his knowledge of facts upon the legal construction of which that right depends, must be proved. The offence does not depend upon his having taken the oath ; it may be proved apart from that; nor does the fact that he has taken the oath, even if it be shewn in point of law to be untrue, necessarily prove that the offence has been committed. The application was based primarily on the ground that more than three months had elapsed since the presentation of the petition without the day for trial being fixed :---Held, dismissing the application, per Fraser, J., that the presence of the respon-dent at the trial being shewn to be necessary. the time during which Parliament was in session was not to be computed, and the period of three months had, therefore, not elapsed .- Per Russell, J., that the fact that the respondent's presence at the trial was necessary, was a complete answer to the application to substitute another petitioner. in so far as that application was based on the petitioner's assumed default in not having proceeded with the trial.—Townshend, J., dissented. Change of solicitors — Right to abject to—Withdrawal of petition — Order for — 1606

Evidence on-Notice of motion - Publication -Collusion-Deposit-Security for costs -Substitution of petitioner-Time for.]-The only person who can complain of an order changing the solicitor for the petitioner in an election petition is the solicitor removed. An ordinary voter has no status to attack the order, and an application by such an one to set aside an order can be considered only so far as the order is part of a scheme to get rid of the petition. 2. Assuming that an ordinary voter is a person who can move against an order giving the petitioner leave to withdraw the petition, there was no irregularity in the application to withdraw in this case, affidavits of the financial agents of the candidates not being necessary unless insisted on by the Judge who hears the application, and the notice of motion having been published in two newspapers in the electoral published in two newspapers in the electorial division. 3. It was not proved that there was collusion or that the petitioner did not in good faith authorize the application; and semble, if there had been collusion, the appli-cant would still have had the right to with draw, but the Judge might have ordered that the deposit should remain as security upon a petitioner being substituted. 4. An application to substitute a petitioner is to be made at the time the motion to withdraw is made; and, if not then made, and an order for withdrawal granted, the petition is out of Court and cannot be revived. But semble, if there was power to make such an order at a later period, it should be applied for within a period, it should be applied for within a reasonable time and full explanation of any delay given. Charges not investigated at trial.]— Excessive particulars — Witness fees.] — A controverted election petition contained 685 charges and at the trial application was made to 8 or 10 more charges: 225 witnesses were subpenaed and paid $530. Two charges were proved thereupon, the respondent admitted responsibility of an agent and did not claim protection of the statute. The Court declared the seat vacant:—Held, the practice of heaping up excessive number of charges could not be encouraged. Costs were not allowed for charges which failed nor for the supplemental charges, but the Court allowed the petitioner $230, as a reasonable apportionment of the expenses for witness fees. The requirement in s. 39 of the Domin-ion Controverted Elections Act, R. S. C. 1906, c. 7, that an election petition must be brought to trial within 6 months from the time of its presentment, is not imported into the law governing election petitions under the Manitoba Controverted Elections Act, R. and the other the unsuccessful candidate, B. It was disclosed by the affidavits that R. was actively interested in securing the return of the respondent at the election, that he was a member of one of his committees, and that he was associated with leading members of the political party with which the respondent was identified :--Held, that, as R. was not, for these reasons, a person by whom the inquiry under the petition was likely to be prosecuted without partiality and with effect. his application, although prior in point of time, should not be granted, and that the interests of the electors concerned in the prosecution of the petition would be better served by the appointment of B .- Held, further, Fraser, J. dissenting on this point, that the appointment of B. should not be refused on grounds which would not have been available against him if he had been the original petitioner. Particulars-Scrutiny - Supplementary particulars-General Rules 20, 25-Invalid votes-Transfer certificates obtained without request.]-The word "particulars" in Rule 24 of the General Rules respecting the trial of election petitions means particulars of "votes intended to be objected to," this being the language in Rule 20, and is not con-fined to further details of particulars already given .- Where for the purpose of a scrutiny the respondent had filed and served particulars of votes objected to by him, and the scrutiny had been begun but not completed, he was allowed (upon terms) to add new particulars of other votes objected to. Semble, that the votes of persons who voted on transfer certificates obtained from the returning officer without any personal or writ-ten request were invalid. s. 2 (f) and s. 7-Corrupt practices-Returning officer as party respondent to petition-Certainty in pleading.]-Hearing of preliminary objections to election petitions against both the successful candidates and the returning officers. Each petition alleged, among other things, that the returning officer, acting in collusion with the elected member, unlawfully established different polling divisions from those arranged by the provincial authorities for provincial elections; that, instead of supplying the deputy returning officers with the copies of voters' lists received from the clerk of the Crown in Chancery, he made changes and erasures therein and removed therefrom the names of many persons entitled to vote, and so prevented such electors from voting at the election; that he had given copies of the voters' lists so improperly made out to his co-respondent and refrained from furnishing such copies to the opposing candidate, and concealed these matters entirely from the latter, and that all this had been done in furtherance of a design previously arranged between the respondents to embarrass and hinder those opposed to the election of the elected member; also that the returning officer had signed a large number of certificates in blank to enable voters to vote at polling places for which their names did not appear; and that the respondents had, in these and other ways, conspired to impede and interfere with the free exercise of the franchise of many voters : -Held, that the acts complained of might constitute corrupt practices within the meaning of s.-s. (f) and s. 2 of the Dominion Controverted Elections Act, R. S. C. c. 9, for, although they were not so declared by the Dominion Elections Act, or by any other Act of the Parliament of Canada, yet they were infractions of subsequent statutory provisions as to the conduct of elections, and might amount to corrupt practices within the common law of Parliament, as they might be of such extent that the constituency had not had a fair and free opportunity of electing the candidate whom the majority might prefer, this being the test applied by Lord Colering, C.J. in Woolward v. Sar-sons, L. R. 10 C. P. at p. 743, and therefore the paragraphs of the petition setting forth such acts should not be struck out on pre-liminary objections.—2. The conduct of the returning officer in connection with the election being complained of, he was properly joined as a respondent under s, 7 of the Act. -3. An allegation in the petition that the returning officer, with the knowledge and consent of the elected member, in many ways improperly aided in the election of the latter, is too vague and should be struck out. Preliminary objections - Order as to -Jurisdiction of Judge at Chambers-Rules of Court-Practice.]-The words of O. 35 of the Rules of the Supreme Court made under the Dominion Controverted Elections Act, and the table of Chambers work indicating the order in which each Judge shall sit and the period of time during which he shall take the duties assigned, etc., fulfil the provisions of the Dominion Act of 1887, c. 7, s. 2, and there being both a practice as to the order of business and an arrangement of the order of business, a Judge sitting at Chambers has jurisdiction to make an order setting down preliminary objections to an election petition to be heard before one of the Judges of the Supreme Court. It is not necessary in Nova Scotia that there should be a rota before such an application can be heard, the English practice in that particular being different, and depending upon the wording of the English Act applicable in such cases. The words "order," "duties," and "arrange," as used in the Dominion Controverted Elections Act., are not used as conferring jurisdiction. In re Cumberland Dominion Election-Ripley v. Logan, 37 N. S. Preliminary objections - Status of petitioner-Proof of-Notice of hearing of preliminary exceptions-Procedure on hearing-Particulars-Quebec Controverted Elections Act.]-The allegation that the deposit required by law had not been made by the petitioner, and that the latter was only a prete-nom, are not good grounds of prelim-inary exception. If the respondent denies that the petitioner is a British subject and entitled to vote, it is for the petitioner to prove his qualification as a voter and his status to contest the election. The production of the original voters' list which was used at the poll or of a copy duly certified by the officer who has charge of the original, is the best proof of the status of the petitioner; and if the latter has voted at the election his status as an elector cannot be questioned. The production of a certificate of baptism setting out the date of the birth of the petitioner and the domicil of his father and mother in the province of Quebec at that time, although the baptism took place more time, although the outpoint took place more than 24 years after such birth, is sufficient proof that the petitioner is a British subject; and the burden of proof is on the respondent to prove that the petitioner, although the superstant of the petitioner. though baptized in the province, was born in a foreign country. The law being silent as to the form of proceedings to be followed on a hearing of preliminary exceptions, the notes of evidence may be taken by a stenographer appointed by the Judges, and the witnesses may be sworn by the clerk of the Court (député protonotaire of the Su-perior Court) in the presence of the Judge; this procedure is conformable to the spirit of the law as set forth in ss. 473 and 500 of the of Quebec. To prove that an election has been held, it is not necessary to produce the writ nor the proclamation and commission of the returning officer, but these facts may be established by oral testimony: s. 515, Que-Controverted Elections Act. This Act and the Rules of practice under it do not contain any direction as to the length of the notice to be given of the hearing, leaving it to the Judge to give it, at his discretion, on the application of one of the parties, as he may deem convenient in the common interest of the parties and the public; and the rules followed in England in similar cases are not consistent with the rules of practice governing election petitions in the province of Quebec. The Judge may, without prejudice to the parties, fix a day for the hearing at the same time that he grants an application of the respondent for particulars, providing he limit such hearing to facts for which particulars are not demanded and of which proof can be made by the production of public and official documents, and adjourn hearing on the other facts until after the such particulars are furnished. It is not necessary to give public notice of the day fixed for the hearing, the only public notice required by the law being that of the discontinuance of the petition on abandonment of the contestation. Preliminary objections - Status of petitioner-Proof of-Voters' list-Franchise Act, 1898.]-On the trial of the preliminary objection to an election petition, filed under the Dominion Controverted Elections Act, the petitioners were not persons entitled to vote at the election in question, it is not necessary since the passing of the Franchise Act, 1898, and the Dominion Franchise Act, Elections Act, 1900, to prove that the names of the petitioners were on the list of voters which was actually used by the deputy re-turning officer at the particular polling division; but it will be sufficient to shew that their names were on the original list transmitted under s. 16 of the Franchise Act, 1898, by the custodian thereof, after final revision, to the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery, as this is declared by s.-s. 2 of s. 16 to be "the original and legal list of voters for the polling division for which the list of which it is a copy was prepared :" and under s. 10 of the same Act this list may be proved by the production of a copy authenticated by the ordinary imprint of the Queen's Printer. Preliminary objections—Sufficiency of — Service of petition — Naming attorney— Affidavit in support of petition.] — The Dominion Controverted Elections Act, defining, as it does, what are grounds on which an election petition may be deemed insufficient, the Courts can only entertain preliminary objections based on substantial error and want of formalities essential to a valid petition, especially when the want of form is not such as is calculated to prejudice, surprise, or mislead the party who urges it. After an election petition has been presented, the petitioner may get it from the registrar of the Court and deliver it to a bailiff for service in the same manner as in the case of writs of summons in civil matters. A petitioner is not bound to name an attorney, and, if he does, he need not state the residence of the attorney chosen. Security-"Current money of Canada." -The petitioners, intending to comply with ss. 21 and 22 of the Manitoba Controverted Elections Act, R. S. M. c. 29, made a deposit with the prothonotary, consisting of Dominion notes, one for $500, one for $100, and 150 for $1 each, and got a receipt stating that the sum of $750 had been deposited as security "for the payment of all costs, charges and expenses which the Court shall award to be payable by the petitioners on the final disposal of the petition." On the hearing of preliminary objections it was shewn that the notes had been handed out by one bank to the petitioners' solicitor as Dominion notes in payment of a cheque; and that, after receiving them, the prothonotary deposited them in another bank, which received them as cash. The note for $500 was produced and identified at the hearing, but the others had been paid out in the course of business and could not be traced :--Held, (1), that it was not necessary to prove that the notes were genuine and signed by the proper officials with the same strictness as proper officials with the same structures as would be required in proving other docu-ments before the Court, and that the evi-dence adduced was sufficient prima facie to establish compliance with the Act; and (2). That the petitioners were not bound by the form of the receipt given by the prothonotary as to the purposes for which the security given was intended, as no receipt is required by the statute to be given. The money was paid in as security for costs in the matter, and ss. 21 and 22 of the Act make it security for all purposes therein referred to. Re St. Boniface Election, 20 C. L. T. 183, 281, 13 Man. Security—Notice—4 fidavit of service — Rules of Court.]—In s. 216 of the British Columbia Elections Act "proposed security" means "intended security," and a notice by the petitioner informing the respondent that security would be given by depositing $2,000 with the Registrar was held a good notice pursuant to the section. The additional Rules made on the 27th Jannary, 1875 (i.e., in addition to the Parliamentar, Election Petition Rules, Michaelmas Term, 1868), are in force in British Columbia. The petitioner after serving notice of the presentation of the petition and of the proposed security omitted to file an affidavit of the time and manner of such service thereof:-Held, that the petition should not be struck off the files of the Court on that ground. *Re Lilloot Provin*cial Election—Stoddart v. C., as amended by s. 8 of c. 20 of the statutes of 1891, should, unless otherwise ordered by a Judge, be personally served .--- 2. Service made on the respondent of a copy of the election petition by leaving such copy for him at his domicil with his wife, without having previously stated the impossibility of making a personal service within the time described, and without the order of a Judge, is not good service according to the provisions of s. 8 of c. 20 .- 3. As in ordinary actions, a petitioner may abandon at his own expense, the service of an election petition made as above, without the authorisation of the Court or a Judge, which is necessary under s. 56 of c. 9.-4. Within the time allowed by law for the service of an election petition, a Judge of the Superior Court may, under s. 10 of c. 9, extend the time for such service, and a personal service, such as is required by s. 8 of c. 20, is a good and valid service of such petition.--5. A motion for the dismissal of an election petition, made before the time allowed by law or by a Judge has expired, is premature and will be dismissed with costs. Labelle v. Leonard, 4 Que. P. (b) If, by reason of special circumstances of difficulty in service, the petition has not been served within the ten days, the Court or Judge may allow further time, and in such case the service must be personal. (c) If it has not been possible to serve the defendant personally within the time allowed by the Court or Judge, then the Court or Judge may order another mode of service.-2. Service of petition — Echibition ci original — Indorement of service — Allegations of petition — Holding of election.]— There is nothing in the law requiring that the original of a petition contesting a federal election be exhibited to the respondent at the time of the service. The omission by the bailift to mention on the copy of the writ of summons or contestation of election the date of such service, is no ground for exception to the form, unless prejudice is shewn. It is sufficient in the contestation of an election held in one of the divisions of Montreal, to state that the same took place within the judicial district of Montreal. Darlington v. Galdevy, 7 Que. Service of petition out of Canada— Second service on agent.] — Under the Dominion Elections Act, service of an election petition cannot be made outside of Canada : Idington, J., dissenting. By rule 10 of the Nova Scotia Rules under the Elections Act, a candidate returned at an election may, by written notice deposited with the clerk of the Court, appoint an attorney to act as his agent in case there should be a petition against him:—Held, that an agent so appointed is authorised only to act in proceedings subsequent to the service of the petition, and service of the petition itself on him is a nullity. The respondent has no interest in urging that the prothonotary gave credit to the petitioner's attorncy, instead of claiming his fee on the election petition at once.-4. Stay of proceedings pending appeal on preliminary objections — Trial — Time—Extension.] — Preliminary objections to an election petition filed on the 22nd February, 1902, were dismissed by a Judge on the 24th April, and an appeal was taken to the Supreme Court of Canada. On the 31st May the Judge ordered that the trial of the petition be adjourned to the thirtieth juridical day after the judgment of the Supreme Court should be given, and the same was given, dismissing the appeal, on the 10th Ocmaking the 17th November the day fixed for the trial under the order of the 31st May. On the 14th November a motion was made before a Judge, on behalf of the member elect, to have the petition declared lapsed for non-commencement of the trial within six months from the time it was filed. This was refused on the 17th November, but the Judge held that the trial could not proceed on that day, as the order for adjournment had not fixed a certain time and place, and, on motion by the petitioner, ordered that it be commenced on the 4th December. The trial was begun on that day:—Heid, that the effect of the order of the 31st May was to fix the 17th November as the date of commencement of the trial; that the time between the 31st May and the 10th October, when the judgment of the Supreme Court on the preliminary objections was given, should not be counted as part of the six months within which the trial was to be begun; and that the 4th December, on which it was begun, was therefore within the six May could not be considered as fixing a day for the trial; it operated as a stay of proceedings, and the order of the 17th November was proper. *Re 8t. Substituting petitioner - Grounds for Jurisdiction of Court-Time-Collusion.] -The Court has no power in a proceeding under the Dominion Controverted Elections Act to substitute a new petitioner unless either no day for trial has been fixed within the time prescribed by statute or notice of withdrawal has been given by the petitioner. And where a petition came regularly down for trial and the petitioner stated that he had no evidence to offer, an application of a third party to be substituted as petitioner, upon vague charges, made on information and belief, of collusion in the dropping of the petition, which were contradicted, and of corrupt practices, was refused; and the peti-tion was dismissed with costs. After the result of the recount was made known confirming the election of the respondent, the returning officer sent another return to the clerk of the executive council, which he duly gazetted, but this was more than six weeks after the filing of the petition :---Held, that the petition was regular, and that a preliminary objection based on the contention that the first return and gazetting of the election were void, and that only a petition filed after the second return would be good, should be overruled. Such judgment was given on the 29th October, and on the 19th November on application of the petitioner for instructions, another order was made by the same Judge which directed that judicial days only should be counted in computing the thirty days, and stating that such was the meaning of the order of the 25th May, and that the 6th December would be the date of On the petition coming on for trial trial. on the 6th December, the appellant moved for peremption on the ground that the six months' limitation for hearing had expired. Appeal — Notice of —Signature —Result of appeal — Majority.] —The notice of appeal from the decision of the County Court Judge upon a recount of votes under s. 129 (1) of the Election Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 9, need not be signed by the appellant candidate personally, but may be signed by his solicitor or agent on his behalf. Where both candidates appeal from the decision of the County Court Judge, and the result of the appeal of one, first heard and determined, is to give his opponent a majority, the appeal of the other will be heard and determined, although it cannot change the result except by increasing the majority. Neither appeal having been limited to particular ballots, it was open to the candidate whose appeal was first determined to object, when his opponent's appeal was being heard, to certain ballots not previously objected to. Re North Grey Provin-cial Election—McKay v. Boyd, 22 C. L. T. 287, 4 O. L. R. 286, 1 O. W. R. 474, 483, 2 O. W. R. 231, 604, 1131.

O. 1897 C. 9, is not an essential part of the ballot paper; and where a deputy returning officer, in detaching the ballot papers from the counterfoils, did so in such a manner that the candidate's numbers were left on the counterfoils, instead of appearing on and as part of the ballot papers, such ballot papers, when marked by voters, were not rejected. Ballots-Irregular marking.]-Upon the recount of ballots cast at the election of a member of the Ontario Legislature, there being two candidates, ballots were allowed which were marked (1) with a cross below and to the right of the lower compartment; (2) with a cross in one compartment and a line in the other; (3) with a cross in one compartment and a faint and probably unintentional mark in the other: (4) with a mark in the form somewhat of an inverted as being probably intended for a cross; (5) with three crosses in one compartment; and (6) with a mark which might fairly be taken to be a clumsy and ill-made cross; and ballots were disallowed which were marked (1) with a single stroke; the error in the head-note in In re West Huron, 2 Ont. Elec. Cas. 58, in which it is stated that ballots so marked were in that case allowed, being pointed out; (2) with a plain cross in one compartment and a fainter, partly smudged or rubbed out cross in the other; (3) with the name of the candidate written in the compartment; and (4) with a circle in both compartments. Ballots marked in due form but with indelible coloured pencil, were objected to on the ground that there was possibly a design to identify the voters, but these were allowed, there being no evidence, and evidence not being admissible, to shew whether a pencil of this kind had or had not been supplied by the deputy returning officer. Re Halton Provincial Election, Nizon v. Barber, 22 C. L. T. 362, 4 O. L. R. 345, 1 O. W. R. 501.

Ballots - Irregular marking.] -- Four ballots counted for one of the candidates by a deputy returning officer were held to have been properly rejected by the County Court Judge on a recount, in consequence of each being marked with a cross in the division of both candidates There was nothing to shew that, as was alleged, one of the crosses had been placed on each ballot after the counting by the deputy returning officer. A ballot having a distinct cross in the division of one candidate, and an obliterated cross in that of the other, was allowed for the first. But where there was a distinct cross in one division, and a very faint one in the other, the ballot was rejected. The following ballots were rejected :-- Marked for one candidate and having the name of that candidate written on the back. Having, instead of a cross, a perpendicular, horizon al or straight slanting line. Having a cross on the back only. The following were allowed : - Properly marked, but having on the back words written by the deputy returning officer. Having several connected tremulous marks in one division. Having a strongly marked cross in one division, and a thin, faint upright pencil mark on the upper edge of the ballot in the other division, not indicative of any intention to make a cross. Having a distinct cross, and in the same division a slight irregular pencil marking, or a series of slight, cloudy, formless pencil markings. Having a mark consisting of two lines lying very close to each other, both distincly visible, in one division, shewing an intention to make a cross. 810n, snewing an intention to make a cross. Re North Grey Provincial Election, Boyd v. McKay, 22 C. L. T. 286, 4 O. L. R. 286, 1 O. W. R. 474, 483, 2 O. W. R. 231, 604, 1131.

Ballots-Irregular marking-Ballot not objected to before deputy returning officer.] -A County Court Judge is not confined, on a recount, to the consideration of cases in which an objection was made before the deputy returning officer when counting the votes at the close of the poll. Where a ballot was marked with a cross outside, but near the upper line of, the top division :--Held, that it should be allowed. It is not essential to have a line on a ballot paper at all. Similarly all votes below the lower division must be counted for the candidate whose name is in it. Where a ballot was marked with a circle, not a cross, nor any apparent attempt to make a cross :- Held, bad. Where a ballot was well marked for one candidate, but in the other candidate's division there was an irregular, shapeless pencil mark, which was not, however, a cross or any attempt to make a cross, nor a mark by which the voter could be identified :---Held, a good vote for the candidate for whom the paper was well marked. Where a ballot, though well marked, had, in the same division, the initials S. A. in small but legible capitals :---Held, bad. Any written word or name upon a ballot presumably written by the voter, ought to vitiate the vote as being a means by which he may be identified. Where ballot papers had a cross or crosses in the division of both candidates. -Held, bad. Re Lennox Provincial Election -Carscallen v. Madole, 22 C. L. T. 363, 4 O. L. R. 378, 1 O. W. R, 472.

Ballots - Irregular marking - Initialling.]-Ballots marked with a straight line only are improperly marked and cannot be counted, while ballots marked with a cross upon or above the upper division line, or marked with a cross made by three or four pencil strokes, or marked with what might be taken for a "c," are properly marked and should be counted. In initialling the ballots a deputy returning officer at one subdivision put as his initials H. C. instead of his full initials H. C. G., and a deputy returning officer at another polling sub-division put McN., instead of his full initials, W. D. McN. :- Held, that such ballots were sufficiently initialled within the meaning of the Act, the object of such initialling being merely the identification of the voter, which was effected, there being no suggestion that the number of ballots cast at the polling subdivision was not correct; and semble, that under these circumstances the ballots should not be rejected, even if not initialled at all. Interference with by Superior Court Judge — Method: of counting votes.]—A County Court Judge holding a recount of the votes cast at an election for the House of Commons, pursuant to s. 90 of the Dominion Elections Act, 1900, rules that a ballot could not be objected to before him because the same objection had not been raised when the ballot was counted by the deputy returning officer:—Held, that a motion to a Superior County Court Judge to entertain the objection was not warranted by s. 91; under that the County Court Judge could be directed to proceed, but not as to the mode by which he should proceed. Re King's County Dominion Election, 21 C. L. T. 57.

Irregularities.]—Upon a recount of the votes cast at the London election for the House of Commons objection was taken to three ballots without the official stamp of the returning officer and to five ballots from which the deputy returning officer had omitted to remove the counterfoils. The ballots were in other respects regular, and were counted and allowed by the deputy returning officer. The Judge refused to disallow them. Re London Dominion Election, 24 C. L. T. 401, 4 O. W. Jurisdiction of Deputy County Court Judge-Absence of statement by Returning Officer as to result of poll - Substituted statement-Two crosses on ballot-Erasure of one-Irregular cross.]-The County Judge was ill and a deputy took his place :--Held, the deputy had jurisdiction to hold recount of ballots in an election for the Provincial Legislature. A ballot had a cross in a division for one candidate and the ballot also shewed an erasure of another cross after the other candidate's name :---Held, properly counted for the candidate in whose division the cross was left unerased :--Held, also, that there was nothing in the Ontario Election Act to void the ballots cast at any particular poll where the deputy returning officer failed to make a statement of the votes cast in his returns; if the returning officer has no difficulty in ascertaining the number of votes cast the vote must be counted. Court of Revision-Appeal - Jurisdiction-Voter's qualification-Territories Election Ordinance - Residence - Controverted Elections Ordinance.] - In the case of an election under the Territories Election Ordinance, a Judge sitting in appeal from the Court of Revision is limited in the exercise of his jurisdiction to the same extent as the Court of Revision. The jurisdiction of the Court of Revision is limited to enquiring whether any of the formal statements, subscription to which the Ordinance provides, may be required from a person tendering a vote, is "false in whole or in part;" if false in whole or in part, the vote is to be disallowed; if altogether true, the vote is to be allowed. New polls were held in two polling divisions; votes were challenged on the following grounds: (a) voter was deputy returning officer in another polling division on the day of the general election; (b) voter was resident in another polling division on the day of the general election and entitled to vote there, and (c) voter was absent from electoral district on day of general election ; and in each case the voter could not possibly have voted on that day at either of the two polling divisions in question; the Court of Revision disallowed these votes : the Judge in appeal held that he had no jurisdiction sitting in appeal (but only in proceedings under the Controverted Elections Ordinance) to consider the validity of these votes, though he doubted their validity, "Residence" means a man's habitual physical presence in a place or country which may or may not be his home; the word "habitual" does not mean presence in a place for either a long or short time, but the presence there for the greater part of that period. O. 1807, c. 7, for objections to names wrongfully inserted in the voters' lists, should be followed with exactness; all that is required is that the nature of the objections to the names should be stated with reasonable clearness. Where, therefore, in giving notice of the wrongful insertion of names in the voters' list, the complainant used list No. 2 of form 6 in the schedule, being the list for persons wrongfully named, instead of list No. 2, being the list for those wrongfully inserted in the voters' list, but it was quite apparent what the grounds of the objections were, the notice was held sufficient. Notices as provided for in sec. 7 were posted up as required, naming the 23rd as the date. The King's Printer, for certain reasons, deemed the date inconvenient, and printed and on the 4th May sent out new posters naming the 16th May as the date, and these were posted 10 days before the 16th May. On the 10th May an order in council was passed amending the proclamation of the 30th April by substituting the 16th for the 23rd May :--- Quare, whether the Lieutenant-Governor in council had power to change the date mentioned in the proclamation .-- Semble, that, at all events, the King's Printer had no authority to issue the amended notices, and the notice thus given was not a com-pliance with sec. 9, which requires the notice to be posted at least 10 days before the commencement of the registration sitting :--- Upon an application for a mandamus to compel the registration clerk to hold a sitting at A.'s house, the applicant swore that he had seen the notice appointing the 23rd, but did not become aware of the change of date until after the sitting had been held on the 16th :---Semble, that it was no answer to the application that the applicant might have attended at another place in the electoral division on a subsequent day; his right was to have the clerk sit at the places named in the proclama-tion.—But held, that to make a mandamus effective the clerk must be ordered to attend at some future time; the Court had no power to fix a time, and the clerk was equally powerless. The Lieutenant-Governor in council might have the power under sec. 10, but the Court had no jurisdiction to compel the exercise of it; and the Court will not grant mandamus unless it can be made effective. Revision — Contestation — Status of contestant—Proof of qualification.] — The production of the voters' list, on which appears the same name as that of the person who contests the list; is not alone sufficient to establish the identity of the latter with the person named in the list; and, therefore, it cannot be said to be evidence of his qualification as a voter. Lariced v, Corporation of St, Vincent de Paul, S Que. P. R. 150.

Right to vote—Refusal of ballot—Action —Damages.1—The planniff resided in St. John, New Brunswick, and his name was on the voters' list in St. John, and also in Dalhousis, Ananpolis county, Nova Scotia, at which latter place the defendant acted as deputy returning officer in the last Dominion election. The plaintiff presented himself at the Dalhousie booth, and demanded a ballot. Under the Nova Scotia statute, which was passed with a view to provincial elections only, it is provided, in effect, that an elector can only vote once in the province at any election ; that he must vote in the county in which he resides at the teste of the election writ, if qualified, and not elsewhere ; and that a non-resident elector, having a right to vote in two or more polling districts, may vote in either. The plaintiff was required to swear before receiving a ballot that "at the teste of the writ for this election I resided in the city of St. John, New Brunswick; that I am not qualified to vote in the said city . . ." He declined to take the oath and was refused a ballot and brought this action to recover damages :--Heid, that the plaintiff had a right to vote in Dalhousie; and damages were assessed at $350. Status of appellant — Residence — Forms.]—Under the Ontario Voters' Lists Act, 7 Edw. VII, c. 4, ss. 14 and 15, no person is entitled to be entered as an appellant in respect of the voters' list of a municipality, except a person who is entered, or entitled to be entered, on such list as a voter,—Disenssion and application of the rule that the operation of the enacting clause of a statute must not be restraired or enlarged by the language of a form or schedule given by such statute. Re South Fredericksburgh Voters' Lists, 10 O. Special return - Election not held -New writ-Petition-Costs.]-The returning officer decided that, owing to the absence of proper voters' lists, the election could not be held on the days fixed by the writ, and pub-licly so declared, and notified the two prospective candidates that there would be no meeting for nomination on the day appointed. He made a special return to the writ, setting forth why it had not been duly executed, and the executive government accepted such return, and issued a new writ under which due proceedings were had and one M., a former candidate, was nominated and declared elected by acclamation. The petitioner, who was to have oposed M., refused to recognize the authority of the returning officer to decline to hold a meeting for nomination, and on the day originally appointed left with a clerk of the returning officer a nomination paper and deposit, and he filed a petition under the Dominion Controverted Elections Act to have it declared that he had been duly elected for the district. M. was not made a party :-Held, that, apart from the question of the jurisdiction to entertain such a petition, no practical result could follow from an attack upon the returning officer as sole defendant. If the special return was illegal, the Court would go no further than to declare that it was an invalid return upon which Parliament might direct the issue of a new writ; but that was what executive government had done, and was not what the petitioner had sought. It was not the duty of the Court under its statutory jurisdiction to proneunce upon the constitutional right of the executive to direct the issue of a new writ; that was a matter for the House of Coumons. In re Nipissing Dominion Election—Klock v. Varia, 21 C. L. T., 258.

Dominion Elections Act - Deputy Returning Officer-Conditional refusal to vote Non-resident's oath - Damages-Malice.] -Plaintiff, who resided at St. John in the province of New Brunswick, was a property owner and entitled to vote at Dalhousie, in the county of Annapolis and province of Nova Scotia, where his name appeared on the list of voters as a non-resident. Plaintiff presented himself before the deputy returning officer at Dalhousie at an election and demanded a ballot paper, but the officer refused to deliver a ballot paper or to permit plaintiff to vote unless he took the non-resident's oath :--Held, that the oath proposed was not applicable to the case of a property owner residing in another province, and that the officer was wrong in his refusal to per-mit plaintiff to vote. Per Macdonald, C.J., and Ritchie, J., that plaintiff's right to vote being clear, defendant was responsible in damages for his refusal to permit him to do so; that defendant, in undertaking to de-termine plaintiff's right to vote, was not acting in a judicial capacity, but was merely a ministerial officer to carry out the provisions of the Act; and that, even assuming that defendant was acting in any respect in a judicial capacity, his action in refusing a Justicial capace not being bona fide, but being wilfol and corrupt, the action was maintriable even on the theory that proof of malice was necessary. Per Weatherbe, of malice was necessary. Per Weatherbe, J., and Graham, E.J., that defendant was a public officer having a quasi judicial duty to perform, and that he could not be made liable for an error of judgment; that, in order to make defendant liable, malice must be shewn ; that the burden of shewing malice was on plaintiff, and that the evidence adduced was not sufficient for that purpose. Anderson v. Hicks, 35 N. S. R. 161.

Jurisdiction-Disavowal and proceedings to annul judicial acts-Court different from that in which the attorney's mandate was violated.] - Disavowal and proceedings to annul judicial acts resulting from the viola-tion of an attorney's mandate, can only be taken before the Court where the suit, in which such violation took place, was pend-ing. Hence, the Superior Court of Quebec is not competent to take cognizance of an action to disavow an attorney and to have his judicial acts annulled, in a case before the Superior Court sitting as a Dominion Court to try an election petition.—Per Cross, J.:--Judgments in election petitions, under the Dominion Controverted Elections Act, are given in the public interest as much as in the interest of the parties to such petitions. They are governed exclusively by the pro-visions of that Act and disavowal not being therein provided for, cannot be the basis of a suit-at-law once a decision on the election petition has been given and forwarded to the Speaker of the House of Commons. Returning officer - Return - Injunc-tion - Violation by agent-Contempt of Court - Solicitor's advice -- Validity of return - Jurisdiction of Court of King's Bench-Mandamus.] - An injunction order was made ex parte restraining the defendant. who was the returning officer for an electoral division, his servants and agents, from making a return to the clerk of the Executive Council that H. was elected as a member of the Legislative Assembly for that electoral division. Before notice of the injunction order reached the defendant, he had delivered his return, to the effect that H, was elected by acclamation, to an express company for conveyance to the clerk. The agent of the express company was notified of the injunction order, and knew that it restrained the defendant, his servants and agents from delivering the return ; but, several hours afterwards, delivered it to the clerk :---Held, that, although the express company were the agents of the defendant, and had committed an act in violation of the injunction, and were guilty of contempt of Court. the status as it existed at the time they received notice of the injunction, could not be restored, because the return could not be recalled, and it could not be said that it. although made in violation of the injunction. was a nullity ; and the Court had no jurisdiction to declare void r return which was not on its face a nullity.—The return having been actually made, its validity or invalidity must be dealt with under the Controverted Elections Act; and the Court could not grant a mandamus to the defendant to compel him to declare that the plaintiff had been duly nominated as a candidate at the election in question, for to do so would involve a finding that the return made was illegal; and to continue the injunction would be futile .--Semble, that the violation of the injunction by the express company was deliberate and intentional, and it was no excuse that the agent had been advised by his solicitors to do as he did. Davis v. Barlow (1910), 15 W. L. R. 49.

Telegrams — Action for price-Illegality —Pleading.]—To an action begun by a telegraph company to recover the price of a certain number of telegrams, the defendant will not be allowed to plend simply that such telegrams were sent in the course of a parliamentary election; in order to defeat the action in such a case, it is necessary to allege that such telegrams were sent for the purpose of illegally influencing the election. The Act 61 V. c. 20, s. 3, having abolished the terms of the Circuit Court and the Superior Court, at Quebec, there are no longer, practically, terms or sessions of the Court at Quebec, or, to put it in another way, the whole year constitutes a single term, and, therefore, if notice of a petition in contestation of a municipal election is given within 15 days after such election, it may be presented to the Court at any time afterwards. 3. In this case the charter of the corporation of the town of Levis, referring, as regards contestations of elections, to arts. 348-358, inclusive, of the Municipal Code, and de-claring that they are to be regarded as forming part of it, these articles as they existed at the time the charter was passed by the Quebec Legislature, and not those which have been substituted for them by the legislature, are to be considered as incorporated in the charter. Mercier v. Belleau, 23 Que. S. C. 136, Controverted election — Petition—Affidavit—Security for costs—Terms of Circuit Court.]—It is not necessary that a petition in contestation of a municipal election should be accompanied by an affidavit. 2. The security for costs which the party contesting the election of a municipal councillor must give, in which the surety declares that he is the owner of an immovable of the value of $200 over and above all his debts, is sufficient. 3. Although it is declared in s. 2352, R. S. Q. that in the district of St. Francois all judicial days are term days, by resolution, approved by all its members and accepted and followed for several years, fixed certain days as term days for the Circuit Court, that resolution has the force of law. Labbe v. Morin, 23 Que. S. C. 269.

Controverted election — Petition — Pleading-Amendment.]—The insufficiency of a pleading in a contestation of a municipal election, governed by the provision of the Municipal Code, is a cause of nullity. 2. After the expiration of the time for serving the contestation an amendment will not be allowed. Brisson v. Pelletier, 5 Que. P. R. 295.

Controverted election — Quo scarranto —Contestation—Deposit.] — The right to a seat in the municipal council of the city of Quebec may be contested by quo scarranto. 2. The remedy by quo scarranto under the Code of Procedure is not affected by arts. 427 et seq. R. S. Q. 3. A petition invoking reasons against the validity of an alderman's claim to hold a seat in the city council of the city of Quebec, and asking that he be ouwted and his sent given to the petitioner, and that the city clerk be ordered to proclaim him elected, is a contestation of the election, and therefore the deposit of $200 required by 58 V. c. 49 (Q.), as security for the costs of contestation, must be made. Roy v. Martineau, 22 Que. S. C. 1.

Controverted election—Recount of ballots—Petition—Jurisdiction of County Court

Judge to try - Sufficiency of petition -Ballots - Objections to.]-The declaration of the county clerk on a recount of votes under the Municipal Act, R. S. N. S. 1900 70, ss. 64, 65, 66, is simply the return e. which the presiding officer should have made had he correctly counted the ballots, and does not in effect differ in any way from the return of that officer, and does not deprive the County Court Judge of his jurisdiction to try an election petition, conferred by the Municpal Controverted Elections Act. R. S. N. S. 1900 c. 72 .- A petition which complains of an undue return and sets forth facts sufficient, if true, to shew that such is the case, complies sufficiently with the provisions respecting the presentation of the petition contained in s. 7 of the Act. On the trial of the petition evidence was given to shew that petitioner, on the day of the election paid for the dinners of several electors who took dinner at the same house with him, but it appeared that such payment was not made in pursuance of any previous intention or arrangement, or with the intention of corruptly influencing the voters :- Held, affirming the judgment of the trial Judge on this point, that, as the payment, while unlawful, was not made "on account of the voters having voted or being about to vote," it was not a corrupt practice within the meaning of the Act, rendering the candidate liable to disqualification and other penalties .- Of the three ballots rejected by the clerk and allowed by the County Court Judge, one had a finger mark or studge on it, another had two crosses instead of one, in the space opposite the name of the candidate, and in the case of the third ballot the voter had made his mark below the name of the candidate whose name was printed last in order on the paper, and below the double lines printed at the bottom of the paper:-Held, Townshend, C.J., dissenting as to the last mention | ballot paper, that all three ballots were properly counted. Stephen v. Flemming, 42 N. S. R. 282, 4 E. L. R. 402.

Controverted election — Setting aside petition — Time — Security — Recognisance —Commissioner. Nicholls v. Raueding, 6 E. L. R. 41.

Controverted election-Two petitions-Security for costs - Practice - Ambiguity.] -1. The formalities in respect of security, in a contested municipal case, should strictly interpreted. And, when two petitions have been presented, the second while the first is under consideration, the security given for the first petition cannot avail for the second, unless it clearly appears that the surety has intended to become such with respect to the second petition as well -2. In this case, the security, bearing the number of records of the Court affixed to the first petition, struck out in pencil and not replaced, does not sufficiently indicate that it is given on the second petition, and therefore the security and the petition in contestation should be set aside. Rousseau v. Pelletier, 34 Que. S. C. 289.

Controverted election petition-Corrupt practices - Particulars.] - The petitioners contesting the validity of a municipal election will be required to furnish the following particulars: (a) the dates, places, and circumstances of acts of violence, corruption, fraud, trickery, threats, payments of money, gifts, or promises, to which reference is made in the petition, and the names of the persons involved in these practices; (b) the dates, places, and circumstances relating to the payment of municipal taxes, the names of persons who paid such taxes, and for whom : (c) the nature of the threats and acts of intimidation which were made to certain electors; (d) the names of the agents mentioned as having devised and carried out a tioned as maying devised and carried out a system of corruption, threats, intimidation, general treating, and the use of intoxicating liquors, Lachapelle v. Pauzé, 9 Que. P. R. 233

Controverted election petition—Scenrisy for costs—Art. 352, M. C.—Failure to comply with—Nullity of petition.]—Article 352 of the Municipal Code, which enacts that petitioners to set aside a municipal election "must give security for costs at least ten days before the petition is presented to the Court, otherwise such petition cannot be received," is problibilitie in its terms, and failure to comply with it imports nullity of proceedings had. The Court has, therefore, no power to allow a petitioner who has not given sufficient security to put in another and different bond, and the petition received under an insufficient bond must be declared null and void. Rousseau v. Pelletier, 33 Que S. C. 355.

Corrapt acts by agent — Treating— Voiding election.] — The Court has power under the provisions of the Municipal Controverted Elections Act, R. S. N. S. 1900 c. 72, ss. 4, 16, 22, aided if necessary by s. 64, to set aside the election of a municipal councillor for corrupt acts of an agent, whether committed with or without the knowledge and consent of the candidate.—The giving of a drink on election day, by a person standing in close relationship with the respondent, to a voter who had "changed" from the petitioner three days before the election and decided to support the respondent, was held sufficient to render the election of the respondent void. Kaulback v. McKean, 38 N. S. R. 364.

Corrupt practices—Effect on election— Votes of unqualified persons—Serutiny.]— Promises, gitts, favours, or threats, which may induce an elector to vote for a candidate, are corrupt practices, the effect of which is to annul the election of the candidate for a municipal office, whatever be the number of votes whom he has thus corrupted. But illegal votes which are so because of want of qualification of the voter, do not invalidate the election, if, such votes being deducted, the candidate elected still has a majority of legal votes. Labbé v. Morin, 23 Que. S. C. 407.

Corrupt practices by candidate — Particular election.]—The corrupt practice referred to in s. 249 of the charier of the city of Montreal, 62 V. c. 58, is a corrupt practice committed by the candidate in the election in which he is a candidate, and not in another election in which he is not a candidate. Tanguay v. Vallières, 6 Que. P. R. 122, 26 Que. 8. C. 122.

Councilman — Proceedings not initialed in any Court—Notices of holding meeting not duly posted. [—Application to oust from office a member of a local improvement district council—Held, that it is unnecessary for the proceeding to be initialed in any Court, and that evidence shews respondent to have been dnly elected. Grasballot, 17 Que. 8. C. 118.

Councillor-Disqualification of-School trustee - Term not expired - Motion to set aside election-Costs-Disclaimer.]-The respondent was elected school trustee in January, 1903, for two years, and took the oath of office on 21st January, 1903; (2) that on 26th December, 1904, he was nominated as councillor, and on the same day was nominated (with four others) as school trustee; but next day filed with the secretary of the school board a memorandum in these words : "I hereby tender my resignation as candidate for trustee for 1905;" (3) that the first meeting of the new school board was held on 18th January, 1905, when the same was organised; (4) and that Mr. Cook took the oath of qualification as councillor on 27th December, 1904, made his declaration of office as councillor on 9th January, 1905, and took his seat in the council. On 7th February the relator caused a letter to be written to the respondent pointing out that he was disqualified by reason of 3 Edw. VII. c. 19, s. 80, s.-s. 1, as having been a member of the school board at the time of his election, and inviting him to consult his solicitors as to save costs of proceedings to have him unseqted. Councillors — Qualification—Ratepayer —Quo warranto—Time of election.]—Under the provisions of the Towns Incorporation Act, R. S. N. S. 1900, c. 71, s. 26 (2), two things are necessary to qualify a person to serve as councillor of an incorporated town; (1) he must have been a ratepayer for one year before his nomination; (2) he must continue to be a ratepayer.—Where it appeared that the respondent was not a ratepayer at the time of his election:—Held, that this condition being once shewn to exist, it must be presumed to continue; that for a disqualification continuing after the election, que warrato was the proper remedy; and that no distinction can be made between a digualification existing at the time of the nomination and a disqualification existing at the time of the election. Reg v. Mack, 2 E. L. R. 203, 41 N. S. R. 128.

Councillors-Petition to avoid election-Allegations - Claiming seat - Nomination -Voters' lists - Misnomer of voters - Corrupt practices - Bribery - Candidates -Agent.]-In a petition contesting the election of a municipal councillor, where the petitioner prays not only the voting of the election of the respondent, but also that he himself shall be declared elected, it is sufficient to allege that votes were cast for each of them, without more formally alleging their nomination as candidates .- In a town where in the provisions of 40 V. c, 29 (Q.), regarding voters' lists, are in force, those only may vote whose names are on the list. faulty spelling of names and the substitution even of one family name for another (e.g., Moreau for Morency), where it is plain that it results from an error of the copyist, and that the identity of the person is not in doubt, do not form an obstacle to persons voting .- The corruption aimed at in s. 33 of 36 V. c. 9 (Q.), as a ground for contesting an election, must be understood as that recognised at common law in England, and not that defined in the federal and provincial election laws. It exists only in a case where by a bargain concluded between the briber and the elector, the latter, in consideration of an advantage given or promised, engages to vote in a particular way. The offer or proposal to give on the one side, without acceptance on the other, does not constitute the offence .--- A single act of corruption by the candidate is sufficient to avoid his election. It is otherwise as to acts of others for his benefit. It is necessary, in order that they should have the same effect, that they should constitute, by their number, general corruption, and raise a doubt as to whether the election was the result of the free and honest vote of the electors, rather than of corrupt practices, Langlois v. Auger, 20 Que. S. C. 373.

Councillors — Presiding officer—Declaration of result—Postponcenent—Mandauxa-Nomination paper—Completion of formalitics.1—The signatures upon the nomination paper of a candidate at an election for councillors of a town must be certified or attested by affidavit, and the officer presiding at the election may adjourn the proclaunation of the result of the election, in order to permit a candidate to comply with this requirement. Therefore, such an adjournment should not be taken as a refusal to announce the result such as to afford ground for a mandamus against the presiding officer. Manseou v. Mercure, 30 Gay. S. C. 153.

Conncillors - Qualification of voters-tax - Contested election - Defence - Status of petitioners - Preliminary objection -Practice.]-A personal tax imposed, by virtue of the Municipal Code, upon persons who are liable for no other tax, may be exacted from a husband whose wife's name is on the assessment and collector's rolls as the owner of taxable property and who has paid the taxes thereon. Therefore, a husband, in these conditions, who has not paid his personal tax, has not the qualification of a municipal elector. A husband has the qualification of a municipal elector by reason of lands possessed by his wife only when his name is on the assessment roll .- Defendants in contestations of the election of municipal councillors should set up all their grounds of defence at the same time, and are not bound to set up as a preliminary objection the petitioners' want of qualification as municipal electors. Julien v. Bernier, 31 Que, S. C. 481.

Councillors—Voting for—Procedure.]— Where there are two councillors to elect and four endidates are proposed, the presiding officer ought to count the electors favourable to the four candidates and declare elected the two who have the greatest number of votes irrespective of the question whether the candidates have been nominated in opposition to one another. Declaration of qualification - Invalidity - Property qualification-Joint assessment - Fixed assessment-Including school taxes-Invalidity of by-law-Conflicting interest-Contract with corporation - Corrupt practices - Evidence - Powers of Master in Chambers.]-The Consolidated Municipal Act, 1903, 3 Edw. VII. c. 19, s. 129 (3a), as amended by 4 Edw. VII. c. 22, s. 4, requires every candidate for the office of mayor or councillor in a town to file in the office of the clerk of the municipality a statutory declaration of qualification in accordance with the form contained in s. 311 of the Act, or to the like effect, in default of which such candidate shall be deemed to have resigned, and his name shall be removed from the list of candidates. By 6 Edw. VII. c. 34, s. 10, s.-ss. 1 and 2, the form of declaration is by seeks 1 and 2; the form of declaration is amended by adding to it statements that the candidate is "not a citizen or subject of any foreign country," and that the estate in respect of which he qualifies is assessed in his name, or in the name of his wife, on the last revised assessment roll of the municipality to the value specified in the declara-Neither of these requirements was complied with in the declarations filed by the persons elected as mayor and councillors of a town :-- Held, that the omission of these statements rendered the declarations invalid, and they could not be cured by virtue of s. 204 of the Act, and that the persons elected must be deemed to have resigned their offices.

-Semble, that the declaration of qualification is invalid if made before the town clerk. -A councillor was jointly assessed with five other persons as tenant of a property assessed at $6,780, so that his one-sixth share was less than $1,200, being the amount re-quired by s. 76, s.s. 1 (b), read in connec-tion with s. 93 of the Act :--Held, that the qualification was insufficient.--Principle of Regina ex rel. Harding v. Bennett, 27 O. R. 314, applied.-A councillor was a member of a partnership to which the town had assumed to grant by by-law a fixed assessment "for all purposes, including school taxes :"-Held, that such agreement was ultra vires of the corporation under s. 591a, clause (g), of the Municipal Act; that the partnership firm was liable to an action by the corporation to have the proper school rates levied upon the true assessable value of the property; and that the councillor's qualification was in-sufficient.—Rex ex rel. Macnamara v. Heffernan, 7 O. L. R. 289, followed .- A councillor had done work for the school board which had to be done to the satisfaction of the town engineer, the account for which was not passed and paid until February, 1908 :-Held, that, as a member of the council, he was in a position where his duty might conflict with his interest, and must therefore be disqualified .- The mayor, as a member of the Citizens' League, had entered into a contract with the corporation, under an indemnity given by the League as to certain costs, by which he was apparenty liable for the sum of $19.66 :- Held, that he was thereby disqualified, and that to such a case the prin-ciple "de minimis non curat lex" does not apply.-Nell v. Declaration of qualification to be filed by candidate after nomination-Declaration made before election—Duty of clerk of municipality—Objection taken after election-Irregularity not affecting result-Municipal Act, 1903, ss. 129 (3a), 204.]-The declaration of qualification required by s. 129 (3a) of the Municipal Act, 1903, to be filed by the candidate for municipal office in certain cities, within (at the most) 48 hours after the hour of nomination, may be made and subscribed before the nomination. If the declaration tendered on behalf of a candidate be made after the final revision of the assessment roll upon which the candi-date must be qualified, if it avers the possession of the necessary qualification, specify-ing the property, and if such averment be corroborated by the last revised assessment roll, the city clerk should file the declaration and place the candidate's name on the ballot paper, even if, as in this case, the declaration was made and subscribed six weeks before the nomination .- Semble, that, even if the declaration may not be made before the nomination, the objection cannot be taken after the election; and the declaration in this case having been made in good faith, as a compliance with s, 129 (3a), and acted upon in good faith by the city clerk, there was at the worst an irregularity not affecting the result of the election : s, 204 of the Municipal Act, 1003. The township of O. had a township hall, but at the election of the reve and council for 1907 the clerk made the declaration at another hall: -Held, that "town hall "includes "township hall," and that the declaration was irregular, but that the election was don't the provision of the Act, s. 204. A motion to set aside the election was dismissed without costs. Rex ex rel. Armour v. Peddie, 9 O. W. R. 336, 14 O. L. R. 339.

Deputy reeve of town—" Actual occupation" — 6 Educ, VII. c. 35, 8. 1 (a).]— On a proceeding to set aside election of respondent as deputy reeve of Brampton, it was held: (1) that the question whether that town is entitled to a deputy reeve cannot be determined on this motion, nor can it be raised by one who voted at such an election; (2) that respondent having agr-eed to sell his equity of redemption will not disgualify him; (3) that his having control over the freehold and right to possession is "actual occupation" within the meaning of s. 76 (f), Municipal Act, 1903. Rev ex rel. Sharpe v. Beck, 13 O. W. R. 457. Appeal dismissed. Ibid, 539.

Details - Particulars - Declaration.]-If a defendant, without contending that the setting forth of the causes of action contained in the declaration is insufficient, asks the Court to order the plaintiff to furnish him with certain details which are necessary to him for the purpose of making his defence, this demand is not an exception à la forme and is not subject to the same formalities .--- 2. The Court can always, in the course of an action, order one of the parties to furnish to another details which the latter requires .--- 3. This demand of details, granted to facilitate the administration of justice, is different from that upon which the party demanding asks that the allegations of the pleading shall be struck out if particulars are not given in the time fixed by the Court ; this latter demand should be treated as an exception à la forme .--- 4. If a judgment dismissing an exception à la forme reserves to the defendant the right to demand details, the Court seized of this last demand cannot dismiss it because it does not comply with the formalities required for exceptions à la forme .- 5. In contested municipal election cases it has been the practice to order particulars without considering the demands therefor as exceptions à la forme .--- 6. In a contested municipal election case the petitioner will be ordered to give the names, Christian names, and residences of the agents of the defendant, the fraudulent acts and corrupt practices, bribery and fraud, committed by the defendant and his agents, with his approbation and to his knowledge, the dates and places, as far as possible, where and when they were committed, and how the defendant and his agents, and other persons, have hindered the petitioner from being nominated. Clarke v. O. 1897. c. 223, is amended so as to provide that " no member of a school board for which rates are levied" shall be qualified to be a member of the council of any municipal corporation. The respondent was a member of a school board for a section which had no school or teacher of its own; but the board was organised, and paid over the rates levied on the section to the board of an adjoining section. which provided accommodation for the school children living within the first-named section :-- Held, a school board for which rates are levied, within the meaning of the amend-Rollo v. - Statutes - Relator - In a quo warranto proceeding in which it was sought to unseat the respondent as a county councillor because he was a member of a school board for which rates were levied, and to seat the relator :- Held, that the relator was not entitled to the seat, as he had not objected to the disqualification of the respondent at the nomination or given any notice on the election day to the electors that they were throwing away their votes on account of the respondent's disgualification .--- 2. That s. 76 of the Municipal Act does not apply to county councillors.--3. That at the time of the respondent's election he was a member of a school board for which rates were levied, and if he were then disqualified, his resignation after his election and before taking his seat would not remove his disqualification. Regina ex rel. Rollo v. Beard, 3 P. R. 357, followed.—4, That the words "for which rates are levied," used in 2 Edw. VII. c. 29, s. 5 (O.), disqualify any member of the council of any municipal corporation who was at the time of his election a member of a school board for which rates are levied, whether levied by the municipal corporation for which he was elected or by any other .--- 5. That the saving clause in s. 5 refers to the election of the member of the council of any municipal the member of the could of any manifold corporation, and not to the election of a school trustee. Res es rel. Zimmerman v. Steele, 23 C. L. T. 196, 5 O. L. R. 565, fol-lowed. Therefore at the time of his election as county councillor the respondent was disqualified; and a new election was ordered. The relator was allowed the costs of proceedings so far as he had succeeded, and the respondent his costs of opposing the application to sent the relator; such costs to be set off pro tanto. Rex ex rel. O'Donnell v. Broom-field, 23 C. L. T. 202, 5 O. L. R. 596, 2 O. W. R. 295.

Disgualification of township councillor — Membership in school board—Re-signation—Non-acceptance — Designation of board - Relator's claim to seat-Notice to electors-Costs -- Status of relator-Discretion.] - Held, that the respondent being a member of the school board for a union school section, a school board for which rates were levied, and his resignation as such not having been accepted by his co-trustees, was by 2 Edw. VII. c. 29, s. 5 (O.), disqualified for the office of township councillor; and it was not material whether the school corporation of which he was a member was called a " board of public school trustees of union section," etc., or a "public school board." The respondent's qualification not having been objected to at the nomination, so that the electors might have an opportunity of nominating another candidate, the defeated candidate was about channels, the behavior channels was not entitled to the seat. Rex ex rel. Zim-merman v. Steele, 23 C. L. T. 196, 5 O. L. R. 565, followed. Forum - Petitioner - Qualification -Pleading-Writ of summons-Quo warranto -Security-Notice.]-A petition to contest a municipal election addressed to the Superior Court may be received by a Judge of the Superior Court .--- 2. The petitioner sufficiently alleges his qualification to contest an election when he alleges that he is an elector duly qualified to vote at the municipal elections at which the defendant was elected, and that his name was duly entered on the list of electors of the district for which the defendant was elected.—3, An action to void the election will not be dismissed upon exception a la forme because the plaintiff has made illegal allegations besides those he had a right to make.—4. The words "quo warranto" added to an ordinary writ of summons do not change its nature and do not make it irregular.-5. Semble, that it is necessary in an exception d la forme in which the sufficiency of the security and of the notice thereof is attacked in contesting an election, to set out in what respects the security and the notice are insufficient. Archambault v. Tansey, 3 Que. P. R. 50.

Fraudulent practices—Tampering with ballots—Disregard of provisions of Municipal Act as to secrecy—Voiding election — New election — Costs — Agency of wrongdoers. Reg ex rel. Macklin v. Thompson, 11 O. W. R. 035.

Illegal voting - Electors voting more than once-Presumption-Affecting result of election-Corrupt practices - Illegal voting by respondent and relator.]-At a municipal election for reeve, at which upon a large vote the successful candidate obtained a majority of six, it was shewn that a widespread belief prevailed among the electors of the right to vote at each sub-division in which right to vote at each sub-outsion in which the name of the elector appeared; that four electors had in fact voted twice; and that several others had received ballot papers within a polling booth, after having already voted for reve; --Held, that the statutory presumption arising under the Municipal Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 223, s. 162, s.-s. 3, did not apply in proceedings to set aside an election, and that as, owing to the destruction by the clerk of the ballot papers pursuant to the provisions of the Act, it was impossible to tell whether more than four voters had voted twice, the election should not be set aside, the voting twice by four electors not having, in the opinion of the Court, affected the re-sult.-Held, also, that if, as alleged, the respondent had himself voted twice, this was not a cause for setting aside the election; voting twice not being in itself a corrupt practice, and the commission of that offence not being, under the statute, a disqualification for office during the current year .---

Held, also, that, there being strong reasons to believe that the relator had himself voted more than once, and there being undoubted evidence that he had advised other electors to vote more than once, he could not successfully urge this objection against the validity of the election. Res ex rel. Tolmie v. Campbell, 22 C. L. T. 236, 4 O. L. R. 25, 1 O. W. R. 268.

Invalidity - Absence of declarations by voters-Unauthorised vote by ballot-Early closing of poll - Relator - Acquiescence-Local Improvement Act - Imperative provisions.]-An election of a councillor for a Local Improvement District, under the Local Improvement Act, was adjudged void because the election was not held in the manner prescribed by the statute, in that the persons who voted did not make the declaration required, that the voting was by ballot, though that was not authorised by a resolution of the council, and that the poll was only open for half an hour .--- The relator, who was a candidate, consented to the vote being taken by ballot, but not to the omission of the declaration :-Held, that the consent of the relator could not validate the election, and at any rate the omission of the declaration was fatal, s. 21 of the Act being imperative. Woodward v. Sarsons, 32 L. T. 870, followed. R. ex rel. Gunder Bjorge v. Zellickson (1910), 13 W. L. R. 433.

Invalid nomination—Failure to observe formalities — Written nomination paper — Time for delivery to returning officer.]—According to the Act respecting eity and town municipalities of 1903, the written nomination of the candidate may be delivered to the returning officer at any time between the publication of the notice of the election by the scoretary-treasurer and the day of nomination of candidates, but on the day of nomination it cannot be delivered to him unless before 10 o'clock.—2. The failure to observe any one of the formalities prescribed by arts. 166, 167, 168, 169, 171, and 172 of this statute, completely avoids a nomination, and the returning officer has no right to give effect to it. Bérubé y, Chapleau, 34 Que. 8. C. 182.

Irregularities — Declarations of qualification—Saving clause of statute—Compliance with statute — Subscription — Commissioner. Res ex rel. Cavers v. Kelly, 7 O. W. R. 280, 600.

Irregularity—Quo carranto application —Status of relator—Voting for respondent— Disclaimer.]—The relator attacked the election of the respondents as county councillors for non-compliance with certain statutory formalities:—Held, that the relator, by voting for M, one of the respondents, who was in the same class with the others, acquiesced in and became a party to the irregularity, and could not be heard to complain. The fact that M, after service of the notice of motion, disclaimed office, was mikil ad rem. Rex ex rel. McLeed v. Bathurst, 23 C. L. T. 201, 5 O. L. R. 573, 2 O. W. R. 246.

Irregularity in procedure — Circuit Court—Discretion.]—The Circuit Court has a discretion to exercise in the matter of the contestation of municipal elections, and will not annul an election, on the application of a defeated candidate, by reason of irregularities in form and in the procedure followed in the holding of the election, when such informalities have caused no prejudice to such candidate. Jones v. Gauthier, 19 Que. S. C. 100.

Justification of complainant-Exception to the slyle of cause-C. P. 174, R. S. Q. 4227, 4275.]—The lack of qualification of the complainant in a motion to set aside a municipal election may be legally invoked by an exception to the style of cause. Anyone who has not paid his school taxes cannot be nominated for the position of municipal councillor, according to s. 4227 of R. S. Q.: moreover, he is not qualified to be the complainant in motion to set aside the election. Latour v. Lefebre (1909), 10 Que. P. R. 232

Motion dismissed with costs. Re Ryan and Alliston (1910), 16 O. W. R. 794, 1 O. W. N. 1116, 21 O. L. R. 582.

Lists of municipal electors—Quashing —Injunction — Other remedy.] — Lists of municipal electors made under the provisions of art, 4515 et seq., R. S. Q., may be quashed on the ground of illegality, under the provisions of art, 4376, as provided by art, 4522. 2. A writ of injunction will not be granted when the law provides a special remedy for the grievances complained of. Wallace v. Languedoc, 4 Que, P. R. 851.

Local improvement district — Qualifcation of voters — Payment of taxes — Declaration of voter,]—Held, that, while it is not expressly provided in the Local Improvement Act that only electors who have paid their taxes may vote, still the letislature, having amended the declaration to be signed by voters before voting, so as to insert a declaration that their taxes have been paid, must have intended that only those who could make that declaration could vote, and therefore, as a majority of those voting for the respondent had not paid their taxes, the election was irregular, and the respondent should be ousted. Oven Sound, 15 O. W. R. 443, followed.-2. That the notice required by sec. 66 of the Liquor License Act be published in the Manitoba Gazette and a local newspaper "as soon as possible," was published in time, the second reading having been on the 5th October, and the publications in the Gazette on the 16th, 23rd, and 30th October and the 6th and 13th November, and in a local weekly newspaper on the 14th, 21st and 28th October and the 4th and 11th November. The publications might have been a week earlier in each case, but "as soon as possible" did not mean that the soon as possible and not mean that the clerk should neglect his other duties and devote himself to the preparation and publi-cation of this notice; he must publish it as scon as possible, following the ordinary routine of official duty. And the municipal officers were not bound to select as their medium a daily newspaper because of earlier publication, the weekly circulating more largely in the municipality.-3. That the bylaw was not illegal because the proclamation published pursuant to sec. 376 (b) of the Municipal Act stated in one paragraph that in the event of a poll being required, the said poll will be taken at the following places" -naming them; another paragraph contain-ing an explicit notice of the voting on the by-law .--- 4. That the by-law was not illegal because it was given its third reading before because it was given its indirection a recount had elapsed—In re Convorth and Village of Hensall, 17 O. L. R. 431, approved and followed—5. Without considering whether sec. 376 (b) of the Municipal Act was made applicable by sec. 68 of the Liquor License Act, that the requirement of sec. 376 (b), that before the final passing of the by-law the council shall publish in a newspaper in at least one number of such paper each Manitoba Gazette, at least two weeks in ad-vance of the day of voting, a notice signed by the clerk, etc., was complied with by the publications in October and November (set out in paragraph 2 of this head-note), the voting taking pace on the 21st December; and that, in construing sub-sec. (b) of sec. 376, the provisions of sub-sec. (a) are not to be considered, in view of the new section substituted for sec. 65 of the Liquor License Act by sec. 4 of ch. 26 of the Acts of 1908 .-6. That an objection that one of the polling places was not opened until after 11 o'clock on the day of polling should not be considered, the only evidence in support of the fact being an affidavit of the applicant on information and belief.—7. That the ad-mitted fact that another poll was not opened until after 10 o'clock (9 being the hour for opening) did not invalidate the by-law, the deputy returning officer having made an honest effort to comply with the by-law, but having been delayed by stress of weather, and it not being shewn that the result was af-fected. And semble, that sec. 89 of the Municipal Act, fixing the hours of voting, is effect should not be given to an objection based on the fact that the by-law did not fix a time and place for the appointment of scrutineers, as required by sec. 377 of the Municipal Act, it being shewn as a fact that scrutineers were appointed and did act. Local option by-law — Voting on — Serutiny before County Judge — Mun. Act s. 263 — Motion to prohibit Judge from certifying to the result.] — A local option by-law was submitted to the voters of a town, and 440 votes were east, 204 for the by-law, exactly the three-fifth majority required by statute. A scrutiny of the ballots was had under the Mun. Act, s.-s. 203 and following, before the County Judge, who found that the by-law was carried by the requisite majority. Motion was then made to prohibit the Judge from certifying to the result of the scrutiny. —Meredith, C.J.C.P., held, that a certiforeri does not lie to bring up and quash a certificate of the County Judge, because of suggested error in determining matters over which he has jurisdiction, but where a Judge has no jurisdiction to enter upon an inquiry at all, by reason of his failure to observe the statutory requirements, his certificate may be quashed. Manner of marking ballot.] - Any ballot upon which the elector has clearly and in good faith indicated his intention to vote for a particular candidate is valid .-In the present case, the ballot was marked by a cross being placed immediately under the figure alongside of one of the candidates' names and should be counted as a vote for the candidate so named, the form of the ballot leading one to the belief that the whole space below the heavy line separating the names of the two candidates belonged to the candidate whose name was printed below such line .- Semble, there is such a close connection between the name and the number of a candidate on the ballot paper that in marking his ballot with a cross inside of the line subdividing the lower part of the ballot and containing the figure, the voter is presumed to have voted for the candidate whose name bears such figure .- Art. 9 of the Cities and Towns Act applies to a municipal election the same as to all other business of the municipality. 1 (1910), 16 R. de J. 59. Mayor-Inability to read or verite-Petition to avoid-Objection to jurisdiction — Time for — Declinatory exception-Costs.] —The election by a rural municipal council of a mayor who can neither read nor write can only be attacked in the manner provided in the Municipal Code. The question of absence of jurisdiction, ratione materiar, may be raised at any stage, but the party who has not raised it by a declinatory exception, if he succeeds, ought not to have the same costs as if he had so taken it. Mayor of local municipality—Incapacity to read and write—Disqualification from holding office—Contestation of election—Quo warranto.]—Quo warranto proceedings under art. 3857, C. P., lie to oust a person from the office of mayor of a local municipality, on the ground that he can noither read nor write. This incapacity not only makes the party ineligible, but disqualifies him from holding the office. It is, therefore, not merely a ground of contestation of the election in the manner and within the delay specially prescribed, but may be urged at all times by the above proceeding, although it existed at the time of the election. Pagé v. Génois, 34 Que. 8. C. 541.

Mayor of village — Property qualification.)—By s. 51 of the Municipal Act, R. S. M. c. 100, the persons eligible for election as mayors or councillors of villages must be the owners respectively, at the time of the election, of freehold or leasehold, or partly freehold and partily lensehold, real estate, raied in their own names respectively on the last revised assessment roll of the village to at least $500, over and above incumbrances... The respondent lived with his wife in a village upon a property assessed in the name of the wife as owner at $600, His name appeared on the roll as occupant or tenant of the same property, and opposite his name, under the heading "description and valuation." were dots. Co. At trial the ob-jections in substance resolved themselves into two: (1) that the by-law did not receive a majority of the votes of persons qualified to vote thereon; (2) that the voting was not conducted in accordance with the principles Inid down in the Municipal Act. The ma-jority for the by-law was 4. — Mulock, C.J.Ez.D., held, 16 O. W. R. 86, that whether the Court omits to hold a legal meeting, or holding a legal meeting omits to try all complaints as required by s. 62 of the Assessment Act, in either case an appeal lies to the County Judge, and if no appeal is taken, the Voters' List Act applies. In this case no appeal was taken, therefore the objection to use of 1909 list failed. That it is not competent to the application to call in question the findings of the County Court Judge as to the qualifications of the persons whose names he placed upon the voters' list. This objection therefore failed ; the evidence shewed that the election was conducted substantially in accordance with the principles laid down in the statute, and that the result of the election was not affected by any noncompliance, mistake, or irregularities. Motion dismissed but, under the circumstances, without costs .- Divisonal Court held, that it was unnecessary to express an opinion upon any of the grounds urged against the by-law any of the grands urged against the by no except whether (1) the voters' list uson which the voting took place was by force of s. 24 of the Voters' List Act, or for any other reason, conclusive as to the right of the persons named in it to vote on the bylaw; and whether (2), if it was not conclusive as to their right to vote, the appellant had succeeded in establishing that a sufficient number of unqualified persons voted to overcome the majority which was cast in favour of the by-law. - Their Lordships answered the first question in the negative and on finding that five votes had been cast which were bad, they quashed the by-law. respondents to pay costs throughout. The service on the defendant is not void because the bailing who effected it certifies that he has served on the defendant the writ and declaration thereto annexed—the word "declaration" evidently referring to the petition. Remeault v, Gagmon, 17 Que, S. C. 542.

Petition — Exception to form—Status of petitioner.]—In the case of a petition to set axide a municipal election the objection that the petitioner is not an elector is not an objection to the form but to the merits. Moreau v. Lamarche, 18 Que. S. C. 34.

Petition - Exception to form-Status-Justification-Particulars.] - If a petition contesting an election is served within 15 days from such election, and another service is ordered, the delay given for the presentation of the petition being insufficient, the petition shall not be dismissed on the ground that the second service of the petition was made more than 5 days after the election. 2. Such petition need not be accompanied by affdavit. 3. The absence of justification shewing a surety to be qualified as required by law is not a ground of nullity of the bond justifying a demand for dismissal of a petition in contestation of election, but the respondent is entitled to have the said surety justify that he complied with the require-ments of the law. 4. The fact that some allegations of the petition are not sufficiently detailed does not constitute ground for the rejection of the petition. Thérien v. Sénécal, 4 Que, P. R. 66.

Petitioner in controverted election, under 3 Edw. VII. c. 38, Que., must prove that he is a qualified voter in order to contest an election for mayor or alderman. Laframboise v. Charbonneau (1910), 16 R. de J. 389.

Petition to avoid—Allegations—Particulars — Corruption — Treating — Committee meetings—Undue influence.]—In a contestation of a municipal election a general allegation of fraudulent acts and corrupt practices will be struck out as too vance. 2. Acts of corruption by a candidate and his agents, consisting in payment of treats, cannot be proved unless the name of the keeper of the hotel at which these treats were puid for is mentioned. 3. If refreshments were offered at a committee meeting in support of a candidate, this fact can only be proved in the petition. 4. All the persons accused of having unduly influenced the electors must be mentioned in the petition. 5. It is necessary to give the names of the electors having the right to vote who have been influenced. 6. Vague accusations, such as "a large number of persons" and "in a number of other restaurants" will be struck out on motion. Pepia v. Vallieres, 6 Que, P. R. 364.

Petition to avoid—Exception—Lis pendens.)—An alderman whose election is contested cannot, by exception of lis pendens, plead that an analogous action, brought by another elector, is actually pending. Tanguay V. Vallieres, 6 Que, P. R. 269.

Petition to avoid — Misnomer of petitioner—Class of action—Costs.]—A petition in contestation of a municipal election will not be dismissed, upon exception to the form, because one of the petitioners is described sometimes by the Christian name of "Auguste," sometimes by that of "Augustine." 2. Contestation of municipal elections in cities and towns are actions of the third class, Mazaro v, Höbert, 6 Que, P. R. 342.

Petition to avoid—Qualification of petitioner.].—Where a candidate at a municipal election is not duly qualified for the office which he seeks, he may nevertheless be the petitioner in a petition contesting the election of his opponent. Tétreau v. Beaudry, 6 Que. P. R. 156.

Petition to avoid — Quo vearranto — Superior Court — Territorial jurisdiction— Special town charter—Discretion.]—A petition in the nature of a quo vearranto, for the purpose of ousting a municipal councillor from his office, is a contestation of his election, and therefore, by art. 42:16, R. S. Q., the jurisdiction of the Court is confined to the district where the election was held. 2. The charter of the town of Chicoutimi excludes the recourse by quo vearranto to oust a municipal councillor from his office. 3. The granting of leave to file an information in the nature of a guo veneratio is not a matter of strict right, but is subject to the exercise of a wise judicial discretion by the Court. Guay v. Fortin, Guay v. Lépine, 24 Que S. C. 210.

Petition to avoid—Security for costs— Examination of surety.] — Where the petitioner in a petition to set aside a municipal election gives notice that he will furnish two sureties at a certain hour, and does not come to the process office until a later hour, and then with only one of the sureties, after the solicitor for the respondent has departed, an order will be made for the appearance again of this surety to be interrogated by the respondent. Pepin v. Vallières, 6 Que. P. R. 280.

Petition to avoid—Security for costs— Single surcty.] — A bond for security for costs of a petition to avoid a municipal election will not be set aside on the ground that it is furnished by a single surcty only, if the solvency of such surcty is not contested, and this although the notice of filing the security mentions the names of two surcties. Pepin V. Vallière, 6 Que, P. R. 345.

Petition to avoid—Status of petitioner —Allegation of—Amendment.] — Upon a petition to quash the decision of a municipal council in an election matter, the petitioner should allege his status as an elector, or make it appear in his petition. He will not be permitted to amend his petition in this regard after the time for commencing proceedings has expired. Brousseau v. Village of Abunist, 7 Que. P. R. 33.

Petition to set aside election—Particulars — Corrupt practices.]—A petition to set aside the election of a councillor for the city of Montreal should indicate in a summary manner the corrupt practices committed by the candidate or his agents, and the dates and places where these acts of corruption were committed. Larin v. Nault, 7 Que. P. K. 482.

Petition to set aside election-Particulars of corrupt practices.]-Upon motion of the defendant respondent, the petitioner in a petition to set aside a municipal action was ordered to declare: (a) At what date, at what places, and in what circumstances, by whom, and in what ways, certain funds, of which a named person was the deposi-tary, had been employed for purposes of corruption. (b) Where, when, and how persons named had employed funds, of which they were the depositaries, for purposes of corruption. (c) What persons were intended to be designated under the names of "friends and agents of the defendant or duly authorised agents of the defendant, or his agents." (d) Where, when, and how drivers of conveyances, among whom were some electors, had been engaged and paid, and to distinguish the drivers to whom allusion was made. (e) Where, when, and how professional poli-ticians had been engaged and paid to work Uchas had been engaged and plat to work on behalf of the defendant, which of such politicians were electors of the district in question, and which had voted for the de-fendant. (f) Who were the persons in-tended to be designated by the words "agents due autherized of the defendant" and who duly authorised of the defendant," and who were the persons to whom the defendant and his agents had poid out different sums of money. (2) At what dates, at what places, and in what circumstances, the defendant and his agents had induced divers persons to commit the offence known as "personation." That part of the motion seeking to obtain the names of the friends who had furnished money to the defendant, was not granted, because it was not important to know the names of such friends. Levy v. Lamarche, 5 Que, P. R. 16.

Petition to set aside election—Sccurity.]—By virtue of the Act respecting town corporations, applicable to the town of Maisonneuve, a petition to avoid a municipal election, filed by a single elector, and not preceded by security, is illegal and will be dismissed upon exception to the form. Dufreene v. Fortin, 5 Que, P. R. 57.

Petition to set aside electicu-Security — Particulars — Notice — Amendment — Signature of attorney.]—A security file under Art. 352 of the Municipal Code, in support of a petition against the election of a councillor, must set forth the name, Christian names, quality, occupation, and residence of the surety, and in default thereof the security is void. 2. The want of such particulars cannot be supplied by mentioning them in the notice in respect to which the security was given. 3. The security cannot, after the expiry of the time mentioned in art. 352 of the Municipal Code, be amended by adding the necessary particulars which are wanting. Semble, that a petition in contestation of a municipal election can be signed only by the attorney himself, and that a signature by another person, with the anthorisation of such attorney, is void. Parizeau v. Twienens, 21 pues S. C. 222.

Petition to set aside clection-Security for costs-Bond-Time for filing-Expiry of-Substitution of security.] — The bond which must be furnished by a party who contests a municipal election in the city of Montreal, must cover all the costs of such contestation, and cannot be limited to any amount.—When the delay for putting in security has lapsed, the Court has no power to allow an amendment thereto or the substitution of another security in lieu of the one complained of. St. Denis y. Mercier, S Que, P. R. 20.

Petition to set aside election—Trial —Procedure—Absence of rules of Court.)— A Judge has jurisdiction to fix a time and place for the trial of an election petition under the Municipal Elections Act, notwithstanding no rules for regulating such a trial have ever been made as provided by s. 86 (d) of the Act. Remarks as to the procedure to be followed at such a trial. It is not necessary that Judges should exercise power to make rules regulating the trial of election petitions, if the ordinary machinery of the Court is sufficient for that purpose. eview of rs.]—In n, under I, 62 V. c. 58 (Q.), it is not sufficient, for the purpose of obtaining a review of the decisions of a Judge upon a recount, to allege generally that ballots cast in favour of a candidate have been improperly rejected by the deputy returning officers and by the Judge, while irregular ballots cast in favour of the caudidate declared elected have been admitted. and that the effect has been to change the result of the election; the petition must point out the irregularities complained of and give the number of ballots irregularly admitted .--- Upon such a recount the Judge cannot enter into the merits so as to reject ballots for fraud or want of qualification of voters; his functions are limited to making the count which the deputy returning officers should have made at the close of the poll; but when the election is contested by subsequent action, his decision may be reviewed. -In such a case the pelitioner, where he asks that the votes of certain unqualified persons should be struck off, must make it appear that the admission of such votes has affected the result of the election, and therefore allege that these votes have been given for the candidate declared elected. Proper voters' list-Use of wrong list-Irregularity - Consolidated Municipal Act, 1903, ss. 148, 204.]-Inasmuch as s. 148, of the Consolidated Municipal Act, 1903, 3 Edw. VII. c. 19 (O.), enacts that the proper list of voters to be used at municipal elections shall be the last list of voters certified by the Judge and delivered or transmitted to the clerk of the peace under the Ontario Voters' Lists Act, 7 Edw. VII. c. 4 (O.), even though a later list has been validly certified by the Judge, but not delivered or transmitted to the clerk of the peace, at all events before the opening of the poll on poll-ing day, it is not the proper list of voters to be used at the election .- Semble, that the list to be used must be a list that has been certified by the Judge and delivered or transmitted to the clerk of the peace before the time at which nomination takes place .- Held, that the use of a wrong list is not such a non-compliance with the Act as to the tak-ing of the poll or such an irregularity as may be held cured by the provisions of s. 204 of the Consolidated Municipal Act. - Quare, whether a list certified on Sunday can be valid. Qualification for office—Declaration of gualification—Commissioner for taking oaths and affidavits—Consolidated Municipal Act and amendments—Canada Evidence Act]— The statutory declaration as to the possess sion of the necessary qualification for office required by s. 129, s. s. 3 (a), of the Consolidated Municipal Act, 1903, 3 Edw. VII. c. 19 (O.), as amended by 4 Edw. VII. c. 22, s. 4 (O.), from every candidate for the office of mayor, revey, etc., in cities, etc., may be made before a commissioner for taking affidavits, and need not be expressed in the form of a statutory declaration under the Canada Evidence Act, R. S. C. 1906, c. 145, s. 36. Section $15 of the first-mentioned Act, which requires the head and other members of the council and the subordinate officers of every municipality to make their declaration of office and qualification " before some Court, Judge, police magistrate, or other justice of the peace, having jurisdiction in the munici-that when joint owners or occupants are rated at an amount sufficient, if equally divided between them, to give a qualification to each, then each shall be deemed rated within the Act, otherwise none of them shall be deemed so rated, does not apply to the qualification of candidates .- Where persons elected as controllers of a municipality, when pur-porting to make the declaration required by 311 of the Consolidated Municipal Act, 1903, as to their property qualification, omitted the statement as to incumbrances contained in the form embodied in the section, and, in place of it, stated that they were " in the actual occupation of the said premises," intending to take advantage of the provisions of s. 76, s.-s. 1, by which the value of the property, if occupied, where otherwise sufficient, shall not be affected or reduced by the incumbrances :---Held, that this was a sufficient compliance with the provisions of the Act, and the declarants were not to be prejudiced by the fact that the legislature had failed to alter the form of declaration in s. 311, suitably for such a case.-Held, also, that the fact that in the declaration, in re-ferring to their qualification, the declaration, in re-ferring to the present tense, instead of re-ferring to the time of the election, was not a fatal objection, and an opportunity should be given to them to file a declaration in the proper form, *Rex ex rel. Milligan v. Hapri-*son, 16 O. L. R. 475, 11 O. W. R. 554, 678.

Qualification of alderman — Bare ownerskip of property — Assessment roll — Inconclusiveness] — In an action to annul the election of an alderman of the city of Monireal, for want of the required real estates qualification, the fact that the defendant's, name appears on the valuation and assessment roll as "proprietor" of the property on which he qualifies, is not conclusive, and does not preclude investigation of the nature of his title, notwithstanding the final clause of his, 29 of 62 V, c. 58 (Q), which says that the qualifiestion is to be established by the valuation and assessment roll in force at the date of nomination.—2. Where it appears that the defendant is the donee of the immovable property on which he qualifies, and that by the terms of the deed of donation he has the mere ownership (nue propriécie), the usuffact for life being reserved by the donor, he is not " selevel of " and does not "possess as proprietor," within the meaning of s. 29. Archembault v. Tansey. 23 Que. S. C. 170.

Qualification of alderman under 3 Edw. VII. c. 38 (Q.), is to possess in the municipality, in his own or his wife's name, during the whole of 12 months preceding nomination, immovables to the value of $600, after deduction of all registered charges, necording to valuation roll in force at date of nomination. He must be able to read and write with ease. Latramboise v. Charbonneau (1910), 16 R. de J. 389.

Qualification of candidate-Mortgaged real estate — Plea to the merits—Powers of returning officer.]—Held, on a petition contesting a municipal election, in which the petitioner and respondent were nominated as candidates, and a poll was granted and held without protest or objection, and without notification of any kind to the electors, or its being shewn that those who nominated or voted for the petitioner had knowledge of his lack of qualification, that averments by the respondent to the effect that the petitioner had not the necessary property qualification to be put in nomination, and that the re-spondent was, consequently, the only candi-date duly nominated, and was and should have been declared elected by acclamation. are matters of plea to the merits and not of exception to the form .--- 2. Where a candidate's real estate was hypothecated for payment of insurance premiums, as well as for the principal obligation, such accessory hypothec must be taken into account in ascertaining the net value of the real estate over the above hypothecary charges .--- 3. Notwithstanding the lack of property qualification on the part of one of the candidates, the returning officer, in the absence of any protest or objection, has no authority to reject his nomination paper, and consequently the other candidate is not entitled, ipso facto, to claim that his election was, and should be held, an election by acclamation. Martin v. Ricard, 25 Que. S. C. 461.

Gualification of candidate — Payment of taxes. I—In order to be elected a municipal councillor, a candidate must at the time of his election, whether there was polling or not, have paid all municipal and school taxes: Aris. 253, 291, 306, C. M. Rockingham v. Leith, 6 Que. P. R. 77, Qualification of councilion—" Householder"—Lodger.]—A statutory qualification for a municipal office described in the English version by the word "householder." and in the French by the words "qui itent feu et lieu," means, as the English word expresses it, one who lives in and is the master of a house. Hence, one who lives in his father's house, and carries on business therein, having the use of one room to sleep in and of another in which to receive clients, and who contributes to the household expenses, is not a householder within the meaning of the statute. Prévost v. Méand, 34 Que. S. C. 31.

Qualification of councillor — Interest in freehold property—Joint ownership—Value of interest—Assessed value—Incumbrance— Joint assessment—Assessment roll—Finality —Costs. Rex ex rel. Bock v. Sharpe, 11 O. W. R. 642, 2827.

Qualification of municipal elector— M. C. 315.1—1. There is no refusal on the part of an elector to take the oath when, upon being requested by the presiding officer to swear that he is the person whose name appears upon the roll as proprietor of the lands thereon mentioned, the voter declares that he will verify the cadastral numbers of his property as shewn upon the roll for the purpose of establishing that he is the real 1680 roll—2. The law does not intend to disqualify an elector from voting under such circumstances, Art. 315 M. C. applying only when an elector who has signified his intention of voting, positively refuses to take the prescribed onth.—3. The vote of an elector whose family name is properly inscribed upon the list should be received, even though the voter's Christian name be not properly designated thereon, but when the elector is known under such Christian name and when, in any event, the elector is otherwise qualfied on the property mentioned upon the roll Perroult v. Beaudry (1909), 16 R. de J. 449.

Qualification of petition may be proved by secy-treas, producing before the Court the voters' list used at the election and giving evidence to establish petitioner's identity and qualification as a voter, if not objected to by adverse party. Laframboise v. Charbonneas (1900), 16 R. de J. 389.

Qualification of voter-Tenant-Cessor of occupancy by-Corrupt act.]-It is not the amount of rent paid, but the annual value of the premises occupied as appears in the assessment roll, which is the basis of qualification, as a voter, of a tenant. The position of the elector at the time of the election is what should be considered, and that which appears by the assessment roll, but if an elector, who takes the oath and votes as an occupant, has ceased for two months before the election to occupy the premises on which he qualifies, his vote ought to be rejected. In order that the payment of an elector's taxes or travelling expenses may be considered a corrupt act, either at common law or under the Municipal Code, it is necessary that it be made with corrupt intent, that is to say, for the purpose of influencing and inducing the voter to vote for a particular candidate: it is not sufficient that the payment is made for the purpose of enabling him to qualify only. To entitle an elector to vote it is only necessary that he pay the taxes for which he is rated on the collection roll, and it is not necessary that he should pay those owing on land which he has purchased from a third person some days before the election, nor is it necessary that he should have paid taxes levied for county purposes which have not been entered on the collector's roll of the local corporation and of which an estimate has not been sent to the latter. Proof of personal corruption by a candidate will only void an election when the result has been thereby affected. Laframboise v. Ladouceur. 26 Que. S. C. 85.

Quebec Heense law—Qualifications of municipal elector—Certificate for restaurant license—Certificate confirmed — Opposition— Nullity and setting aside of by-low confirming certificate.] — The quality of municipal elector which is necessary for the plantifi in a suit having for object the setting aside of by-law confirming a certificate for a resturant license, is submitted to the further condition that his taxes are paid.—An opposition couched in general terms to the corfirmation of any certificate for a restaurant license within a certain district and for a certain period of time and filed by those authorised by law and in due legal form, hus the same effect as a special opposition filed against the confirmation of a certificate granted to a particular individual. Hence, a resolution of a municipal council which confirms a license for a certain district, after an absolute majority of the voters therein residing has prepared and filed an opposition to the confirmation of any such certificate, is null and should be set aside as such. Montmagny v. Belanger (1910), 19 Que, K. B. 256.

ⁿ Quo warranto "-Municipal councillor --Petitioner's qualifications-C, P. 987, M. C. 346.]--The qualifications of a municipal elector, required under the provisions of Arts. 346 and following M. C., is not necessary on proceedings by quo warranto, Art. 987 C. P., to oust from the office of municipal councillor. In such a case, the interest of petitioner is sufficiently shewn if it is alleged and established that he is an elector and ratepayer residing in the municipality. Campbell v. Blakely, 16 R. de J. 234.

Guo warranto proceeding — A fidavits—Cross-commination on — Discretion — Refusal.]—In a proceeding to set aside a municipal election it is in the discretion of the Judge or Master to allow or refuse to allow their affidavits. And in this case permission was refused by the Master in Chambers, who was of opinion that a cross-examination would not be helpful. Res ex rel. Ross v. Taylor, 22 C. L. T. 183, 1 O. W. R. 205, 582.

Quo warranto proceeding — Appeal to Judge of High Court—Order of County Court Judge quashing proceedings-Right of appeal-Power to make order.]-In a quo warranto proceeding, in which the flat giving leave to serve a notice of motion to set aside the election of a township reeve had been granted by a County Court Judge, and the proceedings were intituled in his County Court, a motion was made before him to set aside all the proceedings upon the relation, and he made an order setting them aside and quashing them with costs :--Held, that no appeal from such an order lies to a Judge in Chambers, as appends from the County Courts in ordinary cases are to a Divisional Court, and the appeal from the decision of a County Court Judge to a Judge of the High Court, given by 55 V. c. 42, s. 187, s.-s. 3 (O.), "under this section," is from the decision of the County Court Judge upon the merits on the trial of the contested election, and not the quashing without a trial of the fiat upon which the proceedings were founded. Quare, whether the County Court Judge had power to make such an order. Regina ex rel. Grant W. Coleman, 7 A. R. 619, referred to. Rest w. Coleman, 7 A. R. 619, referred to. Rest war rel. McFarlane v. Quo warranto proceeding—Notice of motion—Time — Wrong day of the week-Mistake—Amendment.]—A notice of motion in the nature of a quo warranto to contest the validity of the election of the respondents as aldermen of a city, was, by flat of the Master in Chambers under s. 220 of the Municipal Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 223, allowed to be served upon the respondents, and was served on the 15th February (seven clear days' notice being required by s. 221) for "Tnostay the 24th day of February"—the 24th February being in fact a Monday. Afterwards the relator served upon the respondents a notice to the effect that the day on which the motion would be made was Tuesday the 25th February, but this notice was not a seven clear days' notice:—Held, that the notice of motion was good and sufficient notice supon the relator's recognizance, as required by s. 220, would have no ground of objection because of the proceedings not being properly prosecuted. Eldon v. Haig, 1 Chit. 11, followed. Semble, that the practice in actions in the High Court is applicable to these quo tearranto proceedings. Reg ex rel. Roberts v. Ponaford, 22 C. L. T. 146, 3 O. L. Quo warranto proceeding—Tampering with ballots—Delivery of ballot box to clerk —Evidence—Affidavits—How voters voted— Cross-examination.]-Where in a guo wayranto proceeding under the Municipal Act, R. S. c. 223, before a County Judge, to set aside the election of a town councillor, it was found by the Judge upon a scrutiny of the ballot papers, having regard to the character of the evidence, both viva voce and by affidavit, that such ballot papers had been tampered with, and that there was also a breach of the Act in the deputy returning officer taking the ballot box to his own house instead of directly to the town clerk, and it was impossible to say that the result of the election was not affected thereby, an order of the Judge setting aside the election was affirmed. Affidavit evidence may be supported at the trial by viva voce evidence, although not mentioned in the notice of motion. Regina ex rel. Mangan v. Fleming, 14 P. R. 458, referred to. The provision of s. 200 of the Act that "no person who has voted at an election shall in any legal proceeding to question the election or return, be required to state for whom he voted." must be construed, in furtherance of the object of the Act, as absolutely excluding such testimony. After the trial of such proceeding has commenced, it is discretionary with the Judge to allow a person who has made an affidavit to be crossexamined, though before the commencement of the trial cross-examination may properly be had. Rex ex rel. Ivison v. Irwin, 22 C. L. T. 299, 4 O. L. R. 192, 1 O. W. R. 371.

Recognizance — Allocance of — Appeal —Defective nominations—Powers of returning officer — Statute — Directory or imperative.]—Where, in a controverted municipal election case, a recognizance has been duly entered into with sureties and affidavit of justification, as required by R. S. O. 1897 c. 223, s. 220 (2), the security is completed; but the Judge may postpone indorsing his allowance of it until objection raised. Such interlocutory procedure is matter of discretion, and not subject to appeal. The provisions of s. 128 (1), that every nomination is to state the full name, etc., of the candidate, are directory, not imperative; and the presiding officer cannot, after the close of the meeting for nominations, reject those made on account of non-compliance with such requirements. Semble, it objection is taken at the time, and the nominations are not amended, the presiding officer should then and there reject them. Rev. ex. rel. Walton v. Freeborn, 2 O. L. R. 105.

Submission to electors-Liquor License Act, ss. 66, 68—Voting—Application of ss. 376, 377, of the Municipal Act—Summing up of votes-Posting of notices-Publication in newspaper.]-The legislature in passing s. 68 of the Liquor License Act intended that those sections of the Municipal Act which provide for situations not directly covered by the Liquor License Act should be applicable. Summing up is a necessary part of the proceedings in taking the vote upon a by-law submitted to the electors. Section 377 of the Municipal Act provides a just and reasonable method for the appointment of a time and place of summing up, and also that those interested in promoting or opposing the by-law may be present thereat. A local option bylaw which did not appoint a time and place for summing up was quashed .- Section 66 of the Liquor License Act provides that the council shall, "as soon as possible" after the first and second readings of the by-law, publish a notice in a newspaper, and that such notice shall be published for at least one month before the vote is taken :- Semble, that the statute does not require two such advertisements :--Held, that s. 376 (b) of the Municipal Act, providing for the posting up of notices, in 4 conspicuous places, is made applicable by s. 68 of the Liquor License Act to the voting upon a local option by-law. Municipality of South Norfolk, 8 Man. L. R 437. and Re Hickey and Town of Orillia, 17 O. L. R. 317, followed.—A local option by-law received its first and second readings on the 5th June. Notice of the by-law and of the vote to be taken thereon was published in a newspaper on the 14th, 21st, and 29th October, and the 11th November :--Held, that a first publication on the 14th October was not a publication "as soon as possible after the first and second readings," as required by s. 66 of the Liquor License Act .- On the day of voting one of the polling places was closed for three-quarters of an hour, during the hours of polling, while the deputy returning officer, poll clerk, and scrutineers were at lunch. It was said that all parties interested consented to this, and that it had been the custom for many years at parliamentary and municipal elections to close this polling place during an adjournment for lunch. There was no evidence that any person had been deprived of his vote by the closing, neither was there any evidence that some electors might not have been deprived :- Held, that the closing of the polling place was fatal to the by-law .- In 1909 the Liquor License Act was amended by prescribing that the form of balloi paper should read "for license" and "against icense," instead of "for the by-law" and "against the by-law." The printed directions for voters were not changed, and were incon-At the voting the ballot papers used were printed according to the new form, and the printed directions in use were not changed :-Held, that the by-law could not be quashed for illegality because of the inconsistency, even if some electors were misled. The provisions of the statute had been complied with .-- It was objected that the by-law was finally passed by the council before the two weeks during which there might have been a recount had expired :---Held, that there was nothing in this objection. In re Coxwell and Village of Hensall, 17 O. L. R. 431, 12 O. W. R. 279, 936, followed .- Semble, that, if there had been any satisfactory evidence that the closing of the one polling place did not affect the result the one points place and not arked the test tests of the election, it would have been saved by s. 200 of the Municipal Act; but, even if there had been such evidence, the disregard of s. 66 of the Liquor License Act would have necessitated the quashing of the by-law. Time — Statutes—Quo warranto—Service —Petition—Corrupt practices — Particulars.] —When a special statute does not fix the times prescribed by the Code of Civil Procedure most applicable to the matter in litigation should be applied.—2. The charter of the eity of Montreal does not require the petition and the writ of quo warranto to be served on the alderman whose election is contested during the thirty days which follow the polling or election by acchamation.—3. The presentation of the petition for a writ of quo warranto is made ex parte, the Judge himself fixing, if he finds the adidavit satisfactory, the time in which the defendant is to appear: and afterwards the petitioner must serve copies of the writ, petition, and order of the the nature of the litigation and sufficient to allow the defendant to defend himself with certainty and with a full knowledge of the cause. - 4. An interval of six days between the service of the copy of the writ and the other papers and the return of the writ is sufficient. 5. The order of the Judge allowing the issue of the writ of quo warranto and other papers is not exhausted by the service of a copy of these papers upon the wife of the defendant in the street, his house being shut up; the order does not become exhausted until the return-day, by the return itself or by default of return.--6. The Judge who receives a petition verified by oath exercises purely ministerial functions, and the Court cannot consider whether the reception was justified .--- 7. The emission to mention the names and residences of persons accused of having committed corrupt practices in an election and to particularize the nature of these practices and the dates, places, and circumstances in which they were committed, is a ground for a motion for particulars, but not for an exception d la forme asking for the dismissal of the action. 8. That such particulars can be demanded after the time fixed for filing an exception. Clark v. Jacques, 3 Que. P. R. 12, 17 Que. S. C. 322

Time for holding election-Duty of town clerk-Proclamation - New election-Warrant-Necessity for, -Under s. 212 of the Municipal Act, 1903, 3 Edw. VII. c. 19 (O.), dealing with a new election of members of a municipal council, the issue by the clerk of his proclamation for the holding of the election, by which the nomination and polling days are fixed, and the polling places, deputy returning officers, and poll clerks named, is not alone sufficient. He must also issue his warrant for such election, directed to himself, as returning officer, and to the deputy returning officers and poll clerks .- An election held without a warrant is not validated by s. 204, as not coming within its curative provision, that section having reference merely to the conduct of the election, and not to what is its very foundation :--Held, also, assuming that a proclamation alone would have been sufficient, that the election would not have been avoided by reason of its not having taken place within the fifteen days provided for by s. 214, such provision being merely directory. Vacancy in town council—Election of alderman—Act respecting Cities and Towns, 1903—Days of nomination and election—Fixing by mayor—Resolution of council—Ratification—Imperative enactment—Objection to form—Voters' lists—Effect of statute—Repeat of town charter.]—The Act respecting Cities and Towns, 1903, having provided (s. 59) for the filling of a vacancy in the office of alderman by delegating to the mayor the power of fixing days for the nomination and election in case of a contest, a resolution of a town council to that end is void .-- Such resolution, although void, being signed by the mayor and acted upon without objection on his part, must be considered as ratified by him and as equivalent to an order made by him fixing the dates for holding the nomination and election. All the more is this so, because the statute above mentioned is not imperative; and, in the absence of a provision as to the manner in which the mayor is to exercise the powers given to him, application must be made of the rule of s. 9 that no objection to form or founded upon the omission of formallties, even imperative, in municipal matters, is to prevail unless some real injustice results from it .- The provision in a statute passed to repeal the charter of a town and apply to it the Act respecting Cities and Towns, 1903, that " the by-laws, resolutions, proces-verbaux and other acts and documents whatsoever done or executed by a town council and now in force, shall continue to have their full effect until they shall be annulled, amended, repealed," etc., includes voters' lists, Therefore the lists existing at the time of the passing of this statute remain in force and are to be used in future elections until they are replaced by lists under the Act respecting Cities and Towns, 1903. C., as one ground for annulling a municipal election, is the corruption recognised by the common law of England, and in so far as particular and independent acts are concerned, for it to exist it is necessary that both the corrupting party and the voter should have the corrupt intent, viz., there should be a complete understanding between them whereby, for a consideration, latter obliges himself to vote as former may direct .- Even when done with object of influencing their votes, the fact of treating voters cannot affect the result of a municipal election; to have such influence, it is necessary that the treating be general in such a way that the voters have been rendered incapable of 1 Moneys addiloans for their taxes, the result of tablish, wh that the ad as to const the presenconducted i fied in cont although ppay his ov (1908), 16

Disposition of fund — Claim of judgment creditor—Receiver by way of equitable execution—Context with assignce — Parties — Assignor — Parol assignment — Validity — Retund of moneys puid under order subsequently reversed.]—Where the application of a judgment creditor for a receiver by ay of equitable execution of a fund is opposed by a party claiming under a prior equitable assignment, by proceedings (e.g., Chambers summons) analogous to interplender, the assignor is not a necessary party.—Bouden's Patents Syndicate v. Subsequently, on the 4th January, 1900, McE., who had a deposit account with M., who was a private banker, authorised M. to pay $650 to P. on the mortgage, and for such purpose signed the following document: "B. M. & Co., Bankers. Pay to P. (on mortgage McE.'s share) or bearer $650;" which he delivered to M., who a day or two afterwards informed P. of his having the mony, the dod mort want the money before the beginning of next month, and M. did not pay over the money until the 29th January, and after the death of McE., who had died in the meantime, of which all the parties had notice:—Held, by Falconbridge, C.J., K.B., that under s. 72, s.-s. 2, and s. 74 of the bills of Exchange Act, 53 Y. c. 32 (D.), the document was not a cheque, being drawn on a private bank, but a bill of exclange, and that it was not revoked by McE.'s death. Action in partition — C. P. 1037— Transferee of the heir of an undivided part of a share in an extate—C. C. S11.]—The action in partition does not belong to other than an individual co-heir or to a transferee of the major portion or of a part only of the rights of a co-heir in an estate.—Such action cannot be taken by the transferee of an undivided part of a special immovable forming part of an estate; as being in the place and stead of his transferor and in the exercise of the latter's rights, the transferee has no other action than one for the partition of the whole estate. Gauvin v. Belanger (1910), 16 R. de J. 351.

Estate tail—Bar of entail—Mortgage-Will—Construction, I—By a will made in 1847, a testator, who died in 1854, dee sed to his son a piece of land, describing it, and proceeded; "All which shall be and is hereby entailed on my said son and ble heirs for ever." In 1859 and again in \odot the son granted the land in question fee by way of mortgage, each mortgage being duly registered within a few days of its excention and each containing the swall proviso that it was to be void on payment at a named date. No discharge of either mortgage or reconveyance of the mortgaged had had been registered, and there was no evidence whether either mortgage had in fact been paid — Held, per Osler and Moss, JJ.A., that under this will the son did not take an estate tail Maclennan and Lister, JJ.A., contra.—But held, also, per curiam, that, even if the son did take an estate tail, that estate tail had been barred and converted into an estate in that of the mortgage by the execution and registration of the mortgages.—Latior v. Latelor, 10 S. C. R. 194, and Plomley v. Felton, 14 App. Cas. 61, applied. Cubertson vent, he continued from year to year pursuing the same course, shewing each year balances in favour of the township non-existent except upon the footing of his having actually received the $5,799.52. During 1899 he proved the debt against the deceased trea-surer's estate in the name of the defendants, and received two dividends, and a third in 1901, amounting to $1,481.56. He did not, however, bring the facts clearly to the notice of the council or make any claim against the township until 1905; and the defendants apparently remained in ignorance of the facts until shortly before this action was brought to recover the balance due the plaintiff :--Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to recover, as there had been no direct representation by him that the original order given him by the defendants had been paid, and the advances subsequently made by him were all made on orders given by the defendants in respect to the ordinary debts and expenditures of the township; and the defendants had incurred, so far as appeared, no debts or liabilities, and had entered upon no expenditures or undertakings which they would not have done if they had received the clearest notice at the earliest moment, that their late treasurer's estate was insolvent .--- Held, however, that there must be a reference to the Master to report as to any loss defendants might have sustained by the plaintiff's laches, and the amount for which the plainutiff was entitled to judgment should be re-duced accordingly. Leslie v. Malahide, S O. W. R. 511, 13 O. L. R. 97.

Parceners—Tenancy from year to year.] —Children of a deceased tenant from year to year are co-parceners or tenants in common, and the widow of the deceased tenant has no power to disposses them. McIntyre v. McIntyre (1874), 1 P. E. I. R. 500.

Agreement to sell stock-Accounting-Consideration - Finding of trial Judge.]-In an action to recover a balance alleged to be due for sales of stock, in a company of which the plaintiff and defendant were joint promoters, it was alleged by the plaintiff. and found by the trial Judge, that an agreement was entered into between them for the sale of 50,000 shares of stock at 25c., and for an equal division of the proceeds after paying commissions, etc. 'The plaintiff's version of the transaction was supported by two letters written by the defendant, indicating a recognition on his part of the arrangement that the sales of stock and divisions of the proceeds were to be in equal proportions :-Held, that the finding of the trial Judge on this point should not be disturbed .- In response to a demand made by the plaintiff for an account of sales, in which he credited himself with the larger proportion of the shares sold, and, after deducting former pay-ments, shewed a balance in favour of the plaintiff of $1,636.51, for which his cheque was handed to the plaintiff's solicitors, who gave their receipt therefor: - Held, per Townshend, C.J., Russell, J., concurring, that, in the absence of evidence to shew that the amount so paid was paid or accepted as a compromise or settlement of their differences, the plaintiff was not estopped thereby from claiming payment of his full share of the proceeds of stock sold in accordance with the agreement .- Held, also, that the mutual interest of the plaintiff and defendant in connection with the company, and their inter-change of services in carrying on the enterprise, afforded consideration to support the agreement as found to have been made, Fleming v. Hayes, 42 N. S. R. 164, 4 E. L. R. 185.

By acts - Ejectment-Escrow-Conveyance to dead grantce-Trespass.]-The locus had been granted to plaintiff, whose father agreed to give him a deed of a property called S., provided plaintiff would convey the locus to his sister, defendant's wife. The father, to secure performance of this agreement, gave the deed of S, to his wife as an escrow, to be delivered to plaintiff on his conveying the locus to his sister. A deed from plaintiff to his father had been prepared in the latter's lifetime. After the father's death plaintiff ob-tained the deed of S. from his mother, at the same time executing and delivering to her the deed to his father, on the understanding that in pursuance of the agreement he thereby resigned his title to the locus to his sister. The jury found for defendant, and plaintiff moved for a new trial :--Held, that plaintiff was estopped by his own acts from treating defendant as a trespasser. McKinnon v. Mc-Kinnon (1852), 1 P. E. I. R. 59.

Charge on land - Lien memorandum-Consideration - Representation as to ownership — Subsequent conduct — Extension of time for payment — Registered judgment — Homestead exemption.]-Action to recover balance due for a threshing outfit sold and delivered by the plaintiff company to the de-fendants, C. H., and his wife, E. H., under a written agreement signed by the defendants, which provided that promissory notes were to be given on approved security for the amounts payable at the dates mentioned. When the machinery had been delivered at the defendants' farm, the plaintiffs' agent called there to take settlement for it. The defendants then signed the notes asked for, and the agent demanded a lien on the farm as security for the notes, and, relying on the representations of both defendants then made, that the wife owned the land, accepted a lien on the land for the amount, signed by E. H. in the presence of her husband, and did not insist, as he might have done, that the hus-band should also sign it. It appeared that the title to the land was then actually in the husband, and had remained so ever since Renewal notes had been given by the defendants, and the original periods of credit considerably extended, and during this time the husband wrote several letters, in which the wife was spoken of as the actual owner. chief contention at the trial was as to whether the paintiffs were entitled to a lien on the land for the debt as against the defendant C. H.:-Held, that there was ample consid-eration for the giving of the lien, as the plaintiffs might have removed the machinery and refused to carry out the transaction if it had been refused.—2. That the defendant C. H. was estopped by the representations he had made, and subsequently repeated, from denying that the land in question was his wife's property and from claiming it as his own as against the plaintiffs. Freeman v. Cooke, 2 Ex. 654, followed.—3. C. H. was also thereby estopped from asserting that the land was exempt, as land occupied by him, from proceedings under a registered judgment .--- Judgment declaring that the lien claimed formed a valid charge on the land for the plaintiffs' claim and costs. John Abell Co. v. Hornby, 15 Man. L. R. 450, 1 W. L. R. 3.

Conduct-Principal and agent - Unpaid receipted accounts.]-Where a debt or obligation has been contracted through an agent, and the principal is induced by the conduct of the creditor to reasonably believe that the agent has paid the debt or discharged the obligation, and in consequence of such belief pays or settles or otherwise deals to his prejudice with the agent, the creditor is not permittee with the agent, the creditor is not permitted to deny as between himself and the principal that the debt has been paid or the obligation discharged.—A railway engineer, who was supplied with money by a railway company to pay for supplies and the board of his men, being credited with the amounts of the receipted accounts as they came in, induced a firm of hotel-keepers who had furnished both items, to receipt the accounts in advance, on the representation that the company as part of their system required receipts before they would pay the accounts : -Held, that the company were justified in relying on these representations that the accounts were paid, and, as they had altered their position-the engineer having left their employment without accounting-on the faith of them, the hotel-keepers were estopped from setting up to the prejudice of the company that the accounts were not in fact paid. Gentles v. Can. Pac. Rw. Co., 9 O. W. R. 601, 14 O. L. R. 286.

Deed — Privies in estate—Reservation— Mines and minerals — Action.]—A person who had acquired tile by possession to certain lands, nevertheless, afterwards took a conveyance from the owner by paper tile, for an expressed consideration of $900, reserving to the grantor the mines and minerals, and gave a mortgage back for $300, "saving and excepting the mines, which said mortgagor has no claim to:"—Held, that this did not revest the mines in the grantor, nor was a subsequent owner estopped by the exception in the mortgage, from claiming the mines as against one deriving tilte from the grantor, the action not being based on the mortgage, but being wholly collateral to it. Dodge v. Smith, 22 C. L. T. 52, 3 O. L. R. 305, I O. W. R. 46, 803, 2 O. W. R. 561.

Electment — Condition of re-entry for ivant of property to distrain—Tenant denying to bailiff that there was property to distrain not estopped from shewing the truth at the trial—His credibility a question for the jury.]—A bailiff was sent to search premises for property to distrain, and had also a demand in ejectment, under a condition of re-entry, to serve should no property be found. He found nothing, but on passing a hovel he asked defendant if there was not, and the bailiff did not search it and served the demand. On the trial defendant admitted his formal denial that there was property but proved there was sufficient to satisfy half a year's rent. The Judge held he was not estopped, and plaintiff submitted to a non-suit:—Held, on motion to set the non-suit aside. that defendant was not estopped, but that the non-suit should be set aside on the ground that plaintiff had a right to have the credibility of defendant's testi-

Ejectment-Death of landlord terminates tenancy at will-Ground not taken at trial-Costs,]-G. laid off lands in lots and streets (not dedicated to the public), and conveyed a At defendant's request, G. pointed out his lot to him, and he built on the land so pointed out. G. had made a mistake and the land pointed out was really Cedar street. G. told defendant so and wished him to move his house back, offering to pay the expenses. On defendant's not moving, G. told him he must move at his own expense. G. afterwards died having devised his lands to plain-tiffs, who brought this action to eject defendant. Defendant contended he was tenant at will and entitled to demand possession, while plaintiffs argued that G.'s acts and declarations were themselves a determination of the tenancy. The Judge charged the jury that if they found that G, had pointed out the land as alleged, his subsequent conduct was not sufficient to terminate the tenancy at will, and their verdict ought to be for de-fendant, and they so found. Plaintiff moved to set aside the verdict for mis-direction. and also on the ground, not taken at the trial, that the tenancy at will was determined at G.'s death --Held, that the direction was right, (2) that G.'s death terminated the tenancy, and a new trial must be granted on that ground, but as it had not been taken at the trial, plaintiffs must pay the costs of the first trial. Green v. Higgins (1873), 1 P. E. I. R. 466.

Ejectment — Estoppel by acts.]—Green had laid off land in building lots and streets, but there was nothing to shew where the streets were situated, and they had not been dedicated to the public. He sold a lot described as fronting on Cedar street to defendant, who wishing to build asked Green to shew him his lot, and Green pointed out a plot of land and told him he could build there. Defendant built on the land so pointed out, but it turned out that Green had made a mistake and that the land was really part of Cedar street. Plaintiffs wished defendant to move his house back, and on his refusal brought this action to eject him. At the trial the Judge told the jury that Green's acts estopped him, and there was a verifiet for defendant. A rule was then moved for to set aside the verdict for mis-direction yms right, and the plaintiffs wisheetopped. Green v. Higgins (1874), 1 P. E. I. R. 499.

Cause of death — Way — Non-repair— Negligence—Statements of person injured— Res gestæ—Other evidence.]—In an action brought by the father and mother of a young girl to recover damages in respect of her death, which resulted, as was alleged, from a fall on a stone in a highway under the control of the defendants, it was proved that the stone in question had been allowed to remain for a long time in a part of the highway used by foot passengers; that several persons had tripped over it; that the deceased had left her house on a certain evening to go to another house, the direct route to which would be by the highway in question; that she came to the other house apparently suffering great pain, and stated that she had tripped on the stone and hurt herself: that, about the time she would in the ordinary course have been passing the place in question a witness saw a young girl, whose description answered to that of the deceased, lying beside the stone, who stated to him that she had fallen on the stone and hurt herself; and that the girl died from peritonitis resulting, in the opinion of the doctor who attended her, from an injury such as would have been the result of a fall on stone :---Held, that the statement of the deceased to her friends at the house to which she came, and, assuming that the identity had been proved, her statement while lying near the stone, were not admissible in evidence as part of the res gesta, these being at most statements made in reference to the accident after it had happened, and after the deceased had had time for consideration, distinguishable therefore from those involuntary and contemporaneous exclamations made without time for reflection, which alone are properly admissible as part of the res gesta, Regina v. McMahon, 18 O. R. 502, applied. But the identity of the deceased with the person seen by the witness lying near the stone was established; and, excluding her statements, there was ample evidence to justify the conclusion that the deceased had received injuries by falling on the stone; and, as the highway was by reason of the presence of the stone in a dangerous condi-tion and out of repair, the defendants were liable. Improper admission — Action under Workmen's Compensation Act—Proof of insurance by defendants against accident — New trial — "Substantial verong or miscarriage" — Rule 7551—In an action by a workman under the Workmen's Compensation Act, the plaintif's counsel was allowed, against the strong objection of counsel for the defendants, to prove the fact that the defendants were indemnified against any verdict that might be given in favour of the plaintif, by a policy of insurance with an accident and guarantee company. The trial Judge warned to take the risk of submitting the evidence, and, in charging the jury, told them that it should form no element whatever in their decision:—Held, that the vidence was improperly admitted.—Held, also (Anglin, J., dissenting), that, by reason of the admission of the evidence, a "substantial wrong or miscarringe" had been occasioned within the meaning of Con. Rule 785, and that the defendants were entitled to a new trial. Longhead v. Collingwood Shipbuilding Co., 16 O. L. R. 64, 11 O. W. R. 697.

Improper admission — Hearsay — Declarations of decreased persons—Plan filed in Crown Land Office—Certified copy — Witnesses and Evidence Act.]—On the trial of an action for damages for trespass to land, witnesses were permitted, notwithstanding the objection of the plaintiff's counsel, to give evidence of what they had been told or understood, and of declarations of deceased persons, in relation to lines and boundaries in dispute. Also a certified copy of a plan found in the Crown land office, and supposed to relate to the property in dispute, was received in evidence—Meld, that the evidence was wrongly received, and that the evidence was wrongly received, and that the cordination of the jury, must be set aside with costs; and that the statute (Witnesses and Evidence Act, R. S. N. S. 1900, c. 160, s. 20), making admissible in evidence plans on file in the Crown land office, was one that must be strictly construed. Bartlett v. Nova Seotia Steel Co., 37 N. S. Reps. 259.

R. 36 S. C. 324.

Indecent assault — Complaints to husband.]—In an action for damages by a husband and wife for assaults alleged to have been committed on the wife, under circumstances which made them the criminal offence of an attempt to commit rape or an indecent assault:—Meld, that evidence of statement and complaints made by the wife to the husband after the alleged assaults took place was properly received. Hopkinson V. Perdue, 24 C. L. T. 339, 8 O. L. R. 228, 3 O. W. R. 934.

Interrogatories upon articulated facts — Must be clear and precise—C. P. 365.1—An articulated fact reading as follows: "If you don't recognise to owe the said amount, state how much you recognise to owe." is irregular and contrary to Art.

EVIDENCE.

Knowledge of trial Judge of facts in another action.] — Where it was evident from the conduct of counsel on both sides that they took it for granted that the trial Judge had knowledge of certain facts established in another action which had been tried before him with a jury, and out of which this action prose, and that for that reason no evidence was given of such facts: —Held, that the trial Judge might properly make use of his knowledge. Pease v. Town of Mooseomin, 5 Terr. L. R. 207.

Negligence—Fire—Sparks from steamer.] —In an action to recover the value of buildings destroyed by ine started, as was alleged, by sparks escaping from the defective smokestack of a steambont, evidence that on prior and subsequent days sparks of large size escaped from this smokestack may be admissible to prove its defective construction; but opinionative evidence that, having regard to the force and direction of the wind or the day in question, sparks of this size if they escaped might have been carried to the building in question is too conjectural and speculative. Peacock v. Cooper, 20 C. L. T. 201, 27 A. R. 128.

Negligence — Safeguards — Subsequent placing.)—Where an injury is alleged to have been caused by the negligence of the defendant in not furnishing proper safeguards at some place of danger, evidence of safguards placed there by him after the injury is not admissible for the purpose of shewing his prior negligence; and upon an examination for discovery the defendant is justified in declining under advice to answer questions relating to such subsequent placing. Cole v. Can. Pac. Rue. Co., 20 C. L. T. 105, 19 P. R. 104.

Oral testimony - Replevin-Ownership -Proof of - Defence - Tenancy - Re-buttal - Exclusion - Nonsuit set aside.]-In an action of replevin, the plaintiff proved ownership and rested his case. The defendant then moved for a nonsuit, the de-cision on which was reserved until he had presented his case. The plaintiff offered evi-dence in rebuttal to meet the case made by the defendant, which was rejected, on the ground that evidence to prove the non-existence of the tenancy alleged would be merely confirmatory of the plaintiff's case, and the action was disposed of by allowing the defendant's application for a nonsuit :--Held. that, in the circumstances, the rejection of the evidence tendered by the plaintiff in rebuttal could be sustained only on the ground that the onus of proof on the issues to which it related was at the outset of the case on the plaintiff; and that the course adopted by the trial Judge admitted the evidence for the defendant to and excluded the evidence for the plaintiff from review by the Court of Appeal. McAdam v. Kickbush, 11 B. C. R. 488

Presumptions — Discretionary power of the Judge—Presumption of the extinction of an obligation by reason of continued activity on the part of the creditor.]—Presumptions, to make proof, must be serious, precise, pertinent, clear and uniform. The Judge may disceard them.—The proof of an obligation to refund the sum paid for another, by the production of a written discharge from the original creditor, cannot be rebutted by a presumption that the debt is extinuible d by reason of the settlement of the price of a sale subsequently entered into by the parties and from the continued inactivity of the creditor. Relevancy - Fraud - Similar transactions.]-In an action to set aside a bill of sale of a mineral claim, on the ground that it was forgery by one of the defendants, evidence was given by the plaintiff and his witnesses as to matters which, whether material or not, were intended to make the Judge give a readier credit to the plaintiff's case. For the defence witnesses were allowed to give evidence shewing that the plaintiff and his witnesses, in respect of the same mineral claim, had been parties or privy to a fraudulent transaction involving perjury and conspiracy, and tending to shew that a like fraudulent scheme was being attempted in this case, and the result was that the Judge was so influenced by this evidence that he gave judgment for the defendants :--Held, that the evidence on behalf of the defendants was properly admitted. D'Avignon v. Jones, 23 C. L. T. 71, 9 B. C. R. 359; affirmed, 32 S. C. R. 650.

2. AFFIDAVITS AND DEPOSITIONS. See AFFIDAVITS.

Another action.]—The provision of Art. 292 C. P., "A Judge may order that the evidence taken in one action may serve in another," must be interpreted as applying to evidence nor already taken, but which is to be taken, the parties being aware at the time that it will be useful in another cause. Boutin v. Traders' Advertising Co., 5 Que. P. 11. 350. Contradicting witness.]—A deposition tendered in evidence for the purpose of contradicting a witness, held to be improperly received where the attention of the witness was not called to the writing before it was tendered. Blois v. Midland Rw. Co., 39 N. S. R. 242.

Correction—Affdarit.]—A demand by a witness to correct his deposition will be granted only in exceptional cases, by reason of grave errors which seriously affect the cause, and this procedure ought to be prompted to retract, restate, or change his deposition, nor to give a new one. Levallée y. Cournoyer dit Poulet, 10 Que. P. R. 274.

Correction of affidavit.] — The Court will not receive the affidavit of a witness to correct a mistake which he says he made in his deposition, especially where the affidavit is put on the record at the instance of the party opposed to the one on whose behalf the witness was called. Capirand v. Durand, 10 Que, P. R. 174.

Cross-examination of party on affidavit.]--Where a party has been crossexamined on an affidavit made by him, the opposite party can use such examination at the trial as evidence in rebuttal of the evidence of the same party. Livingstone v. Colpitta, 21 C. L. 7, 102. 4 Terr. L. R. 441.

Deceased plaintiff-Taken on examination for discovery — Action continued by executor-Principal and agent — Agent instructed to purchase mining shares for principal-Bought pooled shares for himself -Costs.]-Original plaintiff brought action to recover $500 entrusted to defendant to purchase 500 shares of mining stock. This defendant failed to do, but bought 2,000 shares of pooled stock in same company in his own an order of the same compared in the second evidence of original plaintiff taken on examination for discovery, but held, that de-fendant did not buy any shares for original plaintiff, and in not carrying out his in-structions exactly, his authority was revoked, and plaintiff was entitled to judgment with costs. Johnson v. Birkett, (1910), 16 O. W. R. 445, 21 O. L. R. 319, 1 O. W. N. 917.

Discovery — Ex-officer of corporation.]— An examination for discovery of an exofficer of a corporation is not inadmissible at the trial merely because the person examined was not such officer at the time of examination. British Columbia Electric R. W. Co. v. Manufacturers Guarantee and Accident Ins. Co., 7 B. C. R. 512.

Evidence taken in another cause— Adjudication.]—Articles 291 and 292, C. P., relate only to the trial of causes pending and tried at the same time; therefore, evidence taken in a cause already adjudicated upon cannot serve as evidence in a pending cause. Quebec Central Ric. Co. v. Dionne, 4 Que. P. R. 424.

Former action-Admissibility-Lack of opportunity for cross-examination. Graham v. Frank (Y.T.), 1 W. L. R. 510.

Former trial — Divorce.] — In divorce proceedings the evidence of a witness who cannot be found, given at a former trial proving misconduct, may be read over to the petitioner at the trial and verified by her as a correct note of the evidence as given by the witness and used as proof of misconduct. Cunliffe V. Cunliffe, S. B. C. R. 18.

General reputation of house - Afidavits.].--Held, that evidence of the general reputation of a house in which a Chinese immigrant has lived is admissible in habcas corpus proceedings directed against the Collector of Customs who is detailing such immigrant for deportation to China on the ground that she is a prostitute. An affidavit drawn up in a language not understood by the deponent, may be read in Court if it appears from the jurgt that it was first read Injunction motion—Cross-examination on aff.favits—Refusal to produce books — Proper custodian — Order for production— Forum—Alternative motion to commit. Signature — Irregularity — Amendment —Appeal.]—Where the depositions of witnesses taken in longhand are not signed by the witnesses, such a grave irregularity makes the depositions void; and the Court in review will not entertain an appeal upon them, but will send back to the Court of first instance in order to permit the parties to remedy the mistake. Lamarre v. Villecourt, 8 Que, P. R. 154.

Special examiner—Wrong person—Suppression.]—An order appointed "E. K. A. of Neihart. Montana, U.S.A., a justice of the peace," a special examiner to take the depositions of certain witnesses; the depositions were in fact taken by one G. P. M., a justice of the peace, it appearing that E. K. A. had ceased to hold office, and that G. P. M. was his successor in office. Claserie v. Gory, Pagnac v. Claverie, 4 Terr, L. R. 470.

Statute—Form prescribed—Officer to take —Lexeption to form.]—The provisions of a special statute, enacting that an affidavit shall be made according to the form contained in the Act, which indicates that it is to be made before a justice of the pence, have not the effect of restricting the power conferred on a commissioner of the Superior Court by art. 23, C. P. C.; but these provisions indicate only that a justice of the pence can also take such affidavit. The fact that an affidavit does not read in the first person is not a ground for taking exception to its form, if it is not shewn that the other party has been prejudiced thereby. Lapointe v. Berthiaume, 20 Que, S. Swearing — Foreign notary.]—A notary public for the State of New York has authority, under art. 30, C. P., to receive affdavits, within his State, for use in the Courts of the Province of Quebec. Schwab v. Baker, 5 Que. P. R. 441.

Taken de bene esse - Admissibility-Evidence as to absence of witness-O. 35, r. 17.]-Where the evidence of a witness taken de bene esse is tendered upon the trial, and the trial Judge, on being satisfied from the evidence before him that the witness is absent from the province, receives it, the fact that it is subsequently made to appear that the witness was at the time within the province, in the absence of any fraud practised upon the Court, is not ground for setting aside the verdict and ordering a new trial.-The rules providing for taking the evidence of a witness about to leave the province, make the admission or use of the evidence so taken to depend not upon the absence in fact of the witness at the time the evidence is offered, but upon the trial Judge being satisfied as to his absence, O, 35, r. 17. Graham, E.J., and Lawrence J., dissented on the ground that it had been made to appear that, at the time the evidence was tendered, the Court was misled as to the fact of the absence of the witness from the province, and for that reason, there should be a new trial. Rogers v. Troop, 43 N. S. R. 279.

Testimony at former trial—Absence of witness at subsequent trial—Scarch for witmess—Reception of evidence.]—Where it is sought to give in evidence at the trial of an action oral testimony taken under oath in another judicial proceeding, in which the adverse party had the power to cross-examine, on the ground that the witness cannot be called as being beyond the jurisdiction to the Court or otherwise, it is sufficient to shew that after diligent search the witness cannot be found—Answers to enquiries made as to his whereabouts are admissible to prove an unsuccessful search for a witness, and are not for that purpose to be treated as hearsay evidence.—Monro v. Toronto Rw. Co., 9 O. L. R. 2209, 312. distinguished. Cuff v. Frazee storage and Cartage Co., 9 O. W. R. 691, 14 O. L. R. 203.

Witness-Forum.]-A deposition necessary to obtain judgment in an action by default should be taken before the Judge or the prothopotary and not before a commissioner of the Superior Court. Morris v. Everett, 3 Que. P. R. 496.

3. COMMENCEMENT OF PROOF IN WRITING.

Admissibility of oral testimony — Architect's fees—Retainer.]—In an action by an architect to recover a sum of money, in necordance with a tarifi, for professional services, a letter of the defendant contained after an admission of previous conversations, these words: "You have even made a sketch without my asking for it, but I do not understand that I have thereby retained your services: nevertheless I am ready to pay for this sketch if you desire it:"—Hd, a commencement of proof in writing which rendered oral testimony admissible to prove a request for the plaintiff's services and to establish their value. Turgeon v. Dubeau, 35 Que, S. C. 211.

Admission — When inadmissible—C. C. 1243.] —The rule that an admission cannot be divided is subject to exception when it is off-set by other statements made under oath that different times and which are not only contradictory as to one another, but are equally so in face of the admission contained in the plen. Such contradictions have the effect of dividing the admission, and hence any such admission and hence as a commencement of proof in writing authorising the admission of oral testimony. Lessard (1910), 16 R. de J. 258.

Admission of oral testimony—Promissory note.]—An affidavit to the effect that the payee of a promissory note has transferred it to the person making the affidavit, joined with the admission of the latter that the holder of the note did not receive from him any consideration for transferring it to him, constitutes a "commencement de preuve" in writing of a promise by the transferee of such note to pay the amount thereof to the transferor, sufficient to admit oral testimony of such promise. Jewell v. Latimore, 26 Que S. C. 420.

Admissions — Divisibility — Architect— Plans—Agreement.]—In an action brought by architects, claiming fees for the preparation of sketches or designs for the defendant, the latter, when examined as witness, admitted that the sketches had been prepared for him by the plaintiffs, but stated that there was an understanding that they were not to be paid for unless used by him, and that they had not been used. It appeared that the defendant, at the time the plans were invited, had not yet purchased the land for the proposed buildings, and that he had could not be divided, for the purpose of obtaining a commencement of proof, there being no improbability in his statement, or indication of bad faith, or other circumstance, to bring the case within the exceptions of 60 V. c. 50, s. 20 (Q.), amending Art. 1243 of the Civil Code. Uox v. Pacaud, 23 Que. S. C. 9.

Admissions - Divisibility.] - Where a contract is admitted to have been entered into by the party against whom it is set up, no commencement of proof in writing is necessary in order to permit of the reducing of evidence by parol as to the amount of the consideration or as to the conditions of the contract. In such a case, the rule that admissions cannot be divided against the party making them does not apply. Camp-bell v. Young, 23 C. L. T. 38, 32 S. C. R. 547.

Admissions - Oral evidence - Admissibility-Sale of immovables.]-Where a sale of an immovable is alleged against a party as the seller, admissions by him: (a) of negotiations for the sale to the alleged buyer for a stated price, payable partly in cash and partly by instalments; (b) of possession and party by instalments; (d) of possession of the immovable by the alleged buyer, fol-lowing the negotiations, and continued dur-ing twenty years; (c) of a plea by himself to an action subsequently brought by an aypothecary creditor against him as tiersdétenteur of the immovable, that he was not in possession of it, as owner, but that the alleged buyer was in possession, form a com-mencement de preuve par écrit which allows proof to be made of the sale by oral testi-mony, Cantin v. Bérubé, 34 Que. S. C. 78.

Admissions-Parol evidence-Estoppel-Vendor and purchaser-Contract for sale of land-Part performance.]-The admission by a party to a suit, examined as a witness, that he had entered into an agreement to sell certain immovable property, under the condition that it was to pass only on pay-ment of the price, coupled with further admissions, that he had subsequently allowed the intending purchaser to take possession of it and that he had received from him a sum of money, at a time when nothing else could be due him but the price of sale in question or part of it, affords a commence-ment of proof in writing, and entitles the purchaser to prove payment of the price in full by parol testimony.-2. The party who makes the above admissions, independently of complete proof of the payment of the price, is estopped from ignoring the agreement and treating it as non-existent and a petitory action brought by him to revendicate the property from the purchaser's ayant-cause, without offering to return the amount received under the agreement, will be dismissed. Fil-iatrault v. Guilbault, 28 Que. S. C. 486.

Authentic and private writings.]-A writing which is not authentic by reason of defects which deprive it of its authenticity, will avail as a private writing if it have been signed by all the parties whose signa-tures thereto were necessary if made as a private writing. 2. Verbal evidence is not admissible to establish the amount payable admissible to extantiat the amount payment any specific transaction), signed with the amount in blank, unless there be a commencement of proof in writing as to the amount and the signature of the person obliging himself would not constitute such commencement of proof. Judgment in 19 Que. S. C. S2, affirmed. Gauthier v. Rioux, 19 Que. S. C.

Continuation of contract between principal and agent-Acceptance of contract procured by agent. |-The written acceptance by the vendor of real estate of an offer to purchase made on the 16th March to an agent of the vendor, is not a commencement of proof in writing which permits of proving by witnesses (in a case in which the sum demanded exceeds $50) the con-tinuation until that date of an agreement between the vendor and the agent relative to the sale of the land, which came to an end on the 1st February preceding. Massicotte v. Poissant, 35 Que. S. C. 300.

Loan of money-Indorsement of cheque.) The indorsement of a cheque by a third person after the indorsement of the payee, is not a commencement of proof in writing that the amount thereof has been lent by the payee to the person who has so indorsed after him. Pouliot v. Lavigne, 29 Que. S. C. 539.

"Proceeding" from a party-Sale of horse-Warranty - Certificate of veterinary surgeon-Delivery by vendor-Breach-Red-hibitory action - Reasonable diligence. Three things are necessary to constitute a commencement of written proof (commence-ment de preuve par écrit): first, a writus: secondly, the writing must have proceeded (avoir émané) from the party against whom it is used; thirdly, it must make the fact to be proved, probable (vraisemblable) .-- 2 A writing may be said to proceed (émaner) from a party, though not in his handwriting, nor signed by him, if he uses it or makes it his own by manifesting his concurrence in its contents. So, where an exchange of horses took place, a certificate of the soundness of his horse, delivered by one of the parties to the other, not written by himself, but by a veterinary surgeon, may be used against him as a commencement of proof in writing that his warranty of the soundness The provisions of art. 1230, C. C., respecting redhibitory actions for breach of warranty, apply only to cases of legal warranty. When an exchange of horses took place on the 13th October, a redhibitory action for breach of a contractual warranty, in which process was served on the 30th of the same month, was brought with reasonable diligence. Odell v. Lavigueur, 32 Que. S. C. 99.

Action by executors for money demand - Defence - Payment to testator-

Testimony of defendant—Corroborating cir-cumstances.]—In an action by executors to recover money due from C. to the testator, it was proved that the latter when ill in a hospital had sold a farm to C., and that

$1,000 of the purchase money was deposited in a bank to the testator's credit; that subsequently C. withdrew this money on an order from the testator, who died some weeks afterwards, when none was found on his person, nor any record of its having been received by him. C. admitted having drawn out the money, but swore that he had paid it over to the testator; no other evidence of any kind was given of such payment:—Held, reversing the judgment of the Court of Ap-peal, 2 O. W. R. 356, and restoring the judg-ment of a Divisional Court, 1 O. W. R. 205, that a prima facie case having been made out against C., and his evidence not having been corroborated as required by R. S. O. 1897 c.

Appeal-Acquittal for perjury at trial of action.]—For perjury alleged to have been committed by the defendant at the trial of this action, he was tried and acquitted before the hearing of an appeal in the action, and, to the appeal, his coursel moved the full Court to be allowed to read the verdict of the jury in the criminal trial. The motion was refused. Borland v. Coote, 24 C. L. T. 383, 10 B. C. R. 493.

Books of account-Improper reception -New trial-Goods sold-Admissions of de-fendant.]-In an action for the price of goods sold and delivered, to which the defence set up was that the goods in question were only delivered to the defendant as manager of the plaintiffs' business and not otherwise, books of account kept by the plaintiffs were received in evidence against the defendant :-Held, that the evidence in question was improperly received; and the Court, being unable to say with certainty that the evidence did not enter into the materials that pro-duced upon the mind of the trial Judge the conviction expressed in his judgment in favour of the plaint is, and being unable to say with certainty what the judgment of the trial Judge excluding the evidence improperly received would have been, directed a new trial. It was argued that the reception of the books of account was "harmless er-ror," inasmuch as they could only have been received to fix the value of the goods sold and delivered, and such value was fixed independently of the books by the admission of the defendant. The whole question in dispute being whether the defendant was a purchaser or not, and there being evidence that he was not aware that the plaintiffs were making a claim against him until shortly before the action was brought, the admission relied upon being yague in its character, and the amount of goods sold being only capable of being ascertained from the plaintiffs' books:—Held, that the admission was not of the nature or effect which such an argument required. Semble, if it were conceded that the defendant was a purchaser of the goods sent, the evidence as to his admissions on this point would probably suffice to fix the amount. Carstens v. Muggah, 37 N. S. R. 361.

Business books - Consent-Irrelevancy -New trial.]-To an action for the price of goods sold and delivered, the defence was that the goods were received by the defendant as the plaintiffs' manager and not otherwise. There was a verdict at the trial in favour of the plaintiffs, which was set aside by the or the plainting, which was set and by the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia and a new trial directed (37 N. S. R. 361), on the ground that the plaintiffs' books of account were improperly received in evidence against the defendant. The Supreme Court of Canthe defendant. ada reversed this decision and restored the verdict at the trial, holding that the books were received on the taking of evidence under commission by the express consent of both parties, and their reception could not afterwards be objected to on the general grounds that they were irrelevant and immaterial to the issue. Carstens v. Muggah, 36 S. C. R.

Certified copy of document—Notice— Requisites—Trial—Specification of sittings.] —A notice of intention to offer in evidence a certified copy of a document need not state the particular court at which the document will be offered; it is sufficient if it states generally that the document will be offered at the trial of the cause, and it is good until the cause is tried. Smith v. Smith, 37 N. B. R. 7.

Claim to immovables — Variance between tile and cavastre, as to description— Proof of identity, I—A plaintiff who brings suit respecting an immovable described by its cadastral number, and sets up a title granted before the cadastre of the locality was made, and which varies, as to the description of the immovable, from the cadastral book of reference, must prove the identity of the lots described, to justify his claim. Fraser v. Cayer, 35 Que. 8. C. 75.

Confession of judgment — Pleading— Estoppel by record. 1—A confession of judgment for a portion of plaintiff's claim is a judicial admission of the plaintiff's right of action, and constitutes complete proof, against the party making it. S. 1900, c. 160, ao not permit the reception of a certified copy of a plan of survey deposited in the Crown lands office, to make proof of the original annexed to the grant of lands from the Crown. Nova Scotta Steel Co. v. Bartlett, 35 S. C. R. 527.

Entries — Proof of debt-Sufficiency.]-Where regular entries of sales of goods were made, and invoices were rendered and demands for payment frequently made, and the debtor only questioned one small item of 50 cents, and, promising to pay, asked for delay:—Held, that the indeotedness was sufficiently established. Laporte v. Duplessis, 20 Que. S. C. 244.

Entries in books—Onus.]—An entry in a merchant's books, shewing that the defendant is indebted in a certain amount, with proof that the plaintiffs did sell goods to him and that the books were regularly kept, is not sufficient, per se, to put the defendant, who, by his plea, denied his indebtedness, upon proof of the incorrectness of such entry. Garth v. Montreal Park and Island Rec. Co., 18 Que. S. C. 463.

Entries in merchant's books — Oral testimony—Admissions.]—The entries made by a merchant in his books must be necepted as presumably representing, faithfully and correctly, the facts; and, unless an error is established by legal proof, they are evidence against him: Arts, 1226, 1227, C. C. 2. The oral testimony of the merchant himself casnot destroy such proof, and as against him does not constitute legal proof to the contrary. 3. An authentic act may be contradicted and its terms may be changed by a judicial admission of the party against when such admission is invoked. Resther V. Matte, 13 Que, K. B. 198.

Exhibit — Copy of document — Acquiexernce.]—Where the defendant has not objected to a copy of writing sous sciapprice set out in the plaintiff's declaration being produced in lieu of the original, which the plaintiff asserts is in the possession of a third party, he cannot ask that ex parte proceedings since the return be rejected on the ground that the defendant has contravened Arts, 155, 157, C. P. Latour v. Brazier, 3 Que, P. R. 174.

Goods sold—Books of rendor.]—By a notice printed on the pass-book containing entries of the goods sold by the plaintiffs to the defendant, the pass-book was not to be conclusive as to the amount of the purchaser's indebtedness, and it further appeared that the book contained errors and discrepancies:—Held, that, in view of the notice on the pass-book and the fact that the book contained errors, the plaintiffs were not precluded from making proof, by the books of the company, of the actual amount of the defendant's indebtedness. Montreal Breneing Co. v. Jones, 16 Que. S. C. 422.

Instrument in duplicate—Variation— Less—Secondary evidence—Demand of performance of obligation—Default,]—When a written instrument is made in duplicate, all non-existent so far as the holder of the latter is concerned. In order that secondary evidence may be admitted of a document, ht is not necessary to shew that it was lost by no fault of the party or unforeseen accident; it is sufficient to shew to the satisfaction of the Court that it is impossible to find it, and that it has not been purposely destroyed. Dumages cannot be recovered for non-performance of an obligation unless the party seeking to recover has demanded performance so as to place the other in default. Lerenee v. Laroschelle, 27 Que, S.C. 153.

Marriage registry — Legitimacy—Pedi-gree—Declarations by deceased parent and others ante litem.]—A. was married at St. Paul's Church, Halifax, in 1809. In the entry of the marriage in the church's marriage registry his name appears with the addition "batr"-a contraction for bachelor. There was nothing to shew by whom the entry of the addition was made, or that it was made in pursuance of a duty prescribed was made in pursuance of a duty preservice by statute-Held, that the registry, while admissible in proof of the marriage, could not be received as evidence that A. had pre-viously not been married.—To prove that C. was the legitimate son of A. by an alleged previous marriage, it was shewn that he re-sided for two or three years at A.'s home, previous to departing to learn a trade, and at a subsequent time for a few months; that he addressed him as "father," was treated as a member of the family, was treated by A.'s wife as his son, and by children by her as their brother; that after his removal to the United States he wrote letters to A., in one of which he informed him of his (C.'s) marriage; that subsequently to his death D., a son of A., corresponded with a son of C during which he referred to C. as a half brother; and that in an oral declaration by A, in the hearing of a witness, who was a neighbour of the family, he referred to the Caristian name of his former wife, and to her personal appearance:-Held, that C's legitimacy had been proved: - Quare, whether declarations in letters written ante whether declarations in letters written antelitem motam, between D., a son of A., and G., a son of C., in which D. recognised C.'s relationship to him, were admissible in D.'s lifetime; but, semile, that where prima facie evidence of C.'s legitimacy had been given, declarations in G.'s letters, he being dead, were admissible. Johnston v. Hazen, 26 C. L. T. 317, 3 N. B. Eq. 147.

Mortgage — Alteration—Presumption— Proof of execution—Registry Act.] — The production of the registered duplicate original of an instrument with the registrar's certificate indorsed thereon is, by virtue of s. 63 of the Registry Act, R. S. O. c. 136, prima facie evidence of the due execution thereof, notwithstanding the fact that material alterations appear on the face of the instrument, all questions as to these alterations being however still left open.—Whenever it would be an offence to alter an instrument which has been completed, the legal presumption is that material alterations appearing on the face of the instrument were made at such a time and under such circumstances as not to constitute an offence. Greystock v. Barnhart, 19 C. L. T. 381, 26 A. R. 545.

Notes of, taken at trial.]—The notes of evidence taken at the trial are conclusive as to what took place thereat. McDougall v. McLean, 1 Terr. L. R. 450.

Notice to produce — Object of.]—The only object of a notice to produce is to enable the party giving it to put in secondary evidence the contents of a writing, if the original, being in the possession of the party to whom the notice is given, is not produced by him.— If the party chooses to produce the original without notice, or if the party desiring to put in the original gets possession of it and puts it in, it is no object that a notice to produce was not given. Carte v. Dennis, 21 C. L. T. 207.

Oral contract — Petition to open up judgment — Discovery of fresh evidence.]— A party who has declared, in compliance with a judgment ordering him to file particulars, that he was suing upon an oral contract, may, without fraud, file documentary evidence at the trial, in support of such so-called oral contract.—2. At any rate, it is the duty of the adverse party, when such documents are filed, to object to their production and take proceedings to have the case re-opened while it is under advisement, and a requete civile will not be received when the party might have had the case re-opened before judgment.—3. A judgment will not be revoked by reason of the discovery of new evidence, unless it is shewn that the party made reasonable efforts to discover it before the trial, or could have discovered it by reasonable diligence. Union Home and Real Estate Co. v. Estates Linited, 6 Que. P. R. 383.

Privilege - Notary-Jury trial-Objections to charge-Objections after verdict-New trial-Misdirection - Discretion, 1-H., to qualify as candidate in a municipal electo quality as canonate in a municipal elec-tion, procured from a friend a deed of land giving him a contre-lettre under which he collected revenues.—Having sworn that he was owner of real estate to value of $2,000, B., in his newspaper, accused him of perjury and he took action against B. for libel.-On trial the deed to 11. was produced and the existence of the contrc-lettre, proved, but the notary having the custody of both documents refused to produce the latter, claiming privilege on ground that it was a confidential document .- Trial Judge maintained this claim but the substance of document was proved by oral testimony.—A verdict having been given in favour of H.:—Held, that trial Judge erred in ruling that the notary was not obliged to produce the contre-lettre and there should be a new trial. B., in his newspaper article, also accused H. of being drunk during the electic being drunk during the election, and the Judge in charging the jury said: "You should consider the case as if the charge of drunkenness had been made against yourself, your brother or your friend :"-Held, that this was calculated to mislead the jury and was also a reason for granting a new trial .--If objection to one or more portions of the Judge's charge is not presented until after the jury have rendered their verdict, the losing party cannot demand a new trial as of right, but in such a case an appellate Court, to prevent a miscarriage of justice, may order a new trial as a matter of disv, Huard (1909), 42 S. C. R. 406, 29 C. L. T. 169.

Production — Confidential report made to transvey company as to accident—Action by person injured—Privilege.]—Action for personal damages sustained by plaintiff while a passenger on defendant's transway.—Held, that the report to the defendants by the conductor as to the accident was privileged from production. Shell v. British Columbia Electric, 10 W. L. R. 198. Production of book-Refusal of trial Judge to allow — Substantial wrong — New trial—Costs. Matthews v. Moody, 1 O. W. R. 47.

Proof of contract for sale of goods-"Writing" required by art. 1355 (4), C, C, --Letter and enclosurg--Terms of bargain.] --A letter by the selers to the purchaser, suggesting that he should write to them, "along the lines" of an inclosed draft, In their handwriting; is held to embody the latter and form with it one document, which is a sufficient "writing," as evidence of a contract for the sale of goods under art. 1235 (4), C, C, --2, A writing in which the quantity and description of the goods and the price are given, with a statement that delivery is to be made "before the close of navigation," contains all that is required under the article. Stevens v. Hill, 18 Que. K. B, 65.

Proof of foreign judgment—Certificate —Seal — Canada Evidence Act.]—A document purporting to be a transcript of the judgment roll of the Circuit Court for Walworth County, South Dakota, was tendered in evidence. The seal affixed was engraved "Clerk of the Circuit Court, Sixth Judicial District, South Dakota, Walworth County;" the certificate appended under the hand of the clerk of the Court stated, "I have hereunto set my hand and affixed the seal of the saigned by the officer who would ordinarily have the custody of the seal of the Court, was prima facie proof that the judgment purported to be under the seal of the Court as required by s. 10 of the Canada Evidence Act, 1803. Beebe v. Tanner, 6 Terr. L. R. 13.

Proof of relationship of heirs-at-law —Register of births—Marriage.]—Relationship of heirs-at-law, as brothers and sisters of the de cujus, is proved by the acts of birth in the registers of civil status, describing the parties as born of the same father and mother as he was. It is not necessary to produce the certificate of marriage of the parents; it is enough to shew that they were in possession of the status of husband and wife. O'Meara v. Ouellet, Que. 28 S. C. 418.

Provincial laws in Canada—Judicial notice—Conflict of laws—Negligence—Common employment—Construction of statute— "Longshoreman".—" Workman."]—As an appellate tribunal for the Dominion of Canada, the Supreme Court of Canada requires no evidence of the laws in force in any of the provinces or territories of Canada. It is bound to take judicial notice of the statutory or other laws prevailing in every province or territory in Canada, arew where they may not have been proved in the Courts below, or althouch the opinions of the Judges of the Supreme Court of Canada may differ from the evidence adduced upon those points in the Courts below.—Cooper v. Cooper, 13 App. Cas. 88, followed.—Judgment in 31 Que, 8. C. 469; 3 E. L. R. 132, affirmed. Logan v. Lee, 27 C. L. T. 781; 39 S. C. R. 311.

Reference — Admissions in pleading— Entries in books — Discretion of referee — Appeal. —Where a reference is directed to the clerk of the Court and the plaintif adduces evidence, he will not be allowed to rely on admissions in the statement of defence. —Entries in a ledger, sworn to hare been made in the usual course of business, from memoranda regularly made, which memoranda had been accidentally destroyed by fire are not evidence. —On a reference the clerk refused to receive further material evidence tendered by the plaintiff after the close of the defendants' case: —Held, that the matter was in the discretion of the clerk, that in this case he had exercised such discretion reasonably, and that the case would not be referred back by a Judge on appeal. Cummings v. Gourlay, J. Alta, L. R. 85.

Revival of action—Petition by child of deceased plaintiff—Proof of status—Certificate of baptism—Marriage contract.]—Upon a petition for leave to continue an action in the name of the petitioner as the daughter of the deceased plaintiff.—Held, that the certificate of the petitioner's baptism attested only her filiation, but not that her parents were man and wife, which fact could only be proved by the marriage settlement or other similar documents. Connelly v. Consumer' Cordage Co., 6 Que. P. R. 150.

Tile to land—Plan of survey—Onus of proof—Pindings of jury—Error—Neuc trial] —Where it appeared that in directing the jury at the trial the Judge attached undue importance to the effect of a plan of survey referred to in a junior grant as against a much older plan, upon which the original grants of the lands in dispute depended, and that the findings were not based upon evidence sufficient in law to shift the onus of proof from the planitif, and were, likewise, insufficient for the taking of accounts in respect to trespass and conversion of minerais complained of.—Held, affirming the order for a new trial made by the judgment appealed from, 1 E. L. R. 293, that, in the absence of evidence of error therein, the older grants and plan must govern the rights of the parties. Bartlett v. Nova Scotia Steel Co., 38 S. C. R. 336.

Optimion—Witness fees.]—A medical man who has attended the victim of an accident, and who is afterwards called as a witness, must disclose all the facts of which he has knowledge; but is not obliged to express an opinion in his capacity of physician until his fees as such have been paid or guaranteed. Marquis V. Robidouz, 3 Que. P. R. 433.

Opinion evidence.] — See Wright v. Shattuck, 5 T. L. R. 264.

Opinions.]—Where there is direct contradiction between equally credible witnesses, the evidence of those who speak from facts within their personal knowledge should be preferred to that of experts giving opinions based upon extra-judicial statements and municipal reports. Crawford v. City of Montreel, 30 S. C. R. 406.

Testimony of experts—Handwriting— Comparison of writings.]—The testimony of experts in handwriting, like all scientific testimony, offers serious dangers as to the credit to be given to it, and should be accepted only after strict testing, and merely for what it is worth, having regard to the other elements of proof in the cause.—Proof by comparison of handwriting is insufficient to establish the authenticity of a signature denied on oath by the person against whom it is invoked. Deschenes v. Langlois, 15 Que. K. B. 388.

Application for, during trial - Refusal-Adjournment by consent - Appeal-Estoppel.]-During the progress of the trial, and after a number of witnesses on behalf of the plaintiffs had been examined, the defendants' counsel applied for a commission for the examination of a witness who was absent The examination of a writess who was absent in British Columbia, and for a postponement of the trial. The witness in question was a son of one of the defendants, who was aware of his absence, but the fact was not brought to the attention of the defendants' counsel until the day on which the trial was commenced. The trial Judge having refused both the commission and the postponement :-Held, that there was no reason for interfering with his discretion on these points. After the commission applied for had been refused, the plaintiffs' counsel offered to agree to an adjournment for a reasonable time, to be fixed by the Court, to enable the defendants to produce the witness, should they desire to do so, and the case was adjourned from the Sth January to the 17th February. On the latter day, the case being called, the defendants' connect stated that he had no further evi-dence to offer, and judgment was given for the plaintiffs:—Held, that the defendants, having accepted the offer made on behalf of plaintiffs, and obtained an adjournment of the area ware not in a modifier to work of the case, were not in a position to revert back to their original rights, and claim a review of the judgment. Stephen v. Thompson, 35 N. S. R. 390.

Application for—Examination abroad of officers of plaintiff company—Production of books of company before commissioner—Convenience — Case made on affidarits — Sufficiency.] — A plaintiff suing in a foreign forum should not ordinarily be excused from appearing there and giving his evidence : per Chitty, J., in Ross v. Woodford, [1894] 1 Ch. at p. 42: and the proof that the interests of instice require the issue of a commission to take his evidence abroad should be of the clearest kind and best nature that can be got, affidavits sworn to only on information and belief being insufficient. The issue of such commission should be the exception, and should only be resorted to when the inconvenience or expense caused by requiring the plaintiff's personal attendance at the trial would pretty nearly thwart the ends of justice.—Kceley v. Wakley, 9 Times L. R. 571, followed.—These principles applied upon an application by the plaintiffs, a company whose head office was in Ottawa, Ontario, for the issue of a commission to take the for the issue of a commission to take the evidence of a number of the company's offi-cers at Ottawa, in spite of affidavits tending to shew that the books of the company at the head office, which would have to be put in evidence, were in constant use there and in evidence, were in constant use there and could not be brought to Winnipeg without great inconvenience and loss, also that it would be practically impossible to carry on the business of the company if all the officers whose evidence would be necessary at the trial had to be absent from the head office for the time necessary to attend the trial at Winnipeg. The Court was of opinion that the material was not sufficient to shew that all the books must be kept at the head office all the time, and that, if the evidence were taken on commission at Ottawa, the defendant would probably have to go there himself in order to instruct counsel on crossexamination of the witnesses as to entries in the hooks.—Order for commission set aside with all costs to the defendant in any event. -Semble, if a proper case were made, an order might go for the examination of some of the officers of the company at Ottawa on some of the facts which the plaintiffs wished to prove; and that the books, or at all events all those that were not absolutely required all the time at the head office, might be brought to Winnipeg with the other officers to verify them, so that the Court might see those books themselves rather than certified copies or portions of them. Canadian Rail-way Accident Insurance Co. v. Kelly, 8 W. L. R. 738, 17 Man. L. R. 645.

Commission to examine witness abroad refused, when unnecesary deabroad refined, when unnecessary de-lay in making application. I-Defendant was father of W. B. Dawson, who absconded, having assigned his property to defendant as trustee, who claimed to be a creditor for a large sum. The trial had already been postponed one term, and now defendant applied for a commission to examine his son abroad, alleging that he had not done so before because he did not know where his son was, but this was not positively stated, but left to be inferred argumentatively from the affidavits. He and his attorney admitted having been all along in communication with the son, but through a third person. To grant the commission would cause the trial to be put off for another term.—Held, Peters, J., that there was no valid reason for the delay, and that the rule must be refused. Union Bank v. Dawson (1868), 1 P. E. I. R. 279.

County Court-Examination of plaintiffs -Expense.]-In an action in a County Court on a promissory note for $65.40 the defendant pleaded that the note was obtained from him under duress and the plaintiffs, who lived in Ontario, applied for a commission to take Ontario, applied for a columnsion to make their evidence there: -Held, that, as the probable expenses of the commission would not exceed a quarter of the expenses of the plaintiffs attending the trial, and the appli-cation was made bona fide, it should be granted, Thompson v. Henderson, 9 B. C. R. 540

Depositions — Foreign commission — Reading at trial — Discretion.] — Whether all the evidence taken upon commission in an action shall be read at length, or read in part, and stated in part, or stated by counsel at the trial, is a matter in the discretion of the trial Judge. Marks v. Marks, 6 W. L. R. 329, 13 B. C. R. 161.

Depositions returned-Use at trial.]-A party who has procured evidence to be taken on commission is not bound to put it in at the trial, but if it has been duly returned into Court, the opposite party has a right to put it in on his own behalf if he desires.-Gordon v. Fuller, 5 O. S. 174, fol-lowed. Richardson v. McMillan, 18 Man. L. R. 359, 9 W. L. R. 632.

Discretion -- Appeal.] -- The granting of a commission to take evidence is in the discretion of the Judge to whom the application is made, but where strong reasons are shewn to the Court why the commission should not have been granted, such as failure to exercise due diligence on the part of the party applying, or unreasonable delay caused to the opposite party, the discretion will be reviewed. In a case which had been twice tried, and was coming on for a third trial. where it appeared that two commissions had already been obtained, and evidence taken under each; that the facts sought to be established had been previously known to. or their existence suspected by, the party applying; where it was not alleged that the evidence sought to be obtained was material and necessary, and that the party could not safely proceed to trial without it, but only that the examination would be effectual; and where no defence based upon the fact sought to be established had been set up, and no application had been made to amend the pleadings so as to enable it to be set up :-Held, that the order for the commission must be set aside with costs. McLeod v. Insurance Companies, 32 N. S. R. 481.

Examination of absent plaintiff.]— Action of replevin. After the commencement of the action one of the plaintiffs left the jurisdiction. Application was made on behalf of the plaintiffs to examine the absent plaintiff under a commission, the plaintiff's solicitor stating that the absent plaintiff's soliought to have leave to issue a commission. The delay was satisfactorily accounted for, and, even if the absente was a real plaintiff, the law permits a commission to be issued to take the evidence of a party. The fact that it is on the part of the plaintiff makes no difference. Willis x, Behie, 22 C. L. T. 430.

Foreign commission.] — Plaintiffs applied for an order to examine as witnesses, officers of their company out of the jurisdiction. It was a question whether plaintiffs were holders in due course of certain notes which admittedly had been obtained from the makers by fraud. Application refused as justice would not be obtained in this case unless witnesses examined in open court. Union Investment Co. v. Perras (1909), 12 W. L. R. 76.

Foreign commission—Security for costs —Plaintif out of jurisdiction,—An administrator moved for a commission to take evidence in Italy as to support deceased gave his relatives during his lifetime. He was cross-examined on his afidavit in support of the motion. On the next day he left for Italy. Thereupon defendants moved for se curity for costs:—Itald, that it would by better to leave the doors of the Court open to the litigant, than to make the graver mistake of unwarrantably closing them to him, until he should have given security, thereby (almost certainly) closing them entirely.—Sharp v. Interrogatories - Foreign commission -Evidence - Motion to strike out-Jurisdiction,]-Motion by defendant to strike out interrogatories served by plaintiffs upon defendant as proposed to be used upon a commission to take evidence in Scotland. No authority was cited in support of the motion : against it was the authority of Hume-Williams and Macklin on Evidence on Commission (1903), p. 101, where it said that great care should be taken in framing in-terrogatories, for, "if the interrogatories contain leading questions or are immaterial, irrelevant, or otherwise objectionable, the opposite party may object to the answers being received at the trial. It is not the present practice for the Master to consider interro-gatories proposed to be administered to witnesses on commission, because the rules which so provide apply only to interrogatories inter partes; but the practice seems at one time to have been different." The only rule dealing with the subject is 503 :- Held, in the absence of express authority, there was no power to deal with these interrogatories. A party examining on interrogatories cannot be interfered with as is sought to be done in this case. If the other side objects to his interrogatories, it may be wise to alter them. But a party is not obliged to do so. If he chooses he is free to take his risk of the commission evidence being rejected either in whole or in part by the Judge at the trial. Motion dismissed with costs to plaintiffs in the cause. Toronto Industrial Exhibition Assn. v. Houston, 5 O. W. R. 493, 9 O. L. R. 527.

Interrogatories—Names of withcases.] — When a commission in the nature of a commission rogatorie is issued to examine witnesses, the interrogatories will be allowed and settled notwithstanding the fact that the party at whose instance the commission issued, declares he is unable to disclose the names of all the witnesses he intends examining. Milliken v. Lagurentide Pulp Co., 6 Que. P. R. 134.

Irregularity - Waiver - New trial-Defect in evidence.]-Where a commission to take evidence was issued without a formal order therefor, but merely on an informal memorandum of a Judge, containing no direction as to the commissioner's name, or the time, place, or manner of taking the evidence, but the commission, before being sent out, had been shewn to the advocate for the opposite party, and due notice of the time and place of taking the evidence under the commission had been served on him, and ou the return of the commission it had been opened at his instance :--Held, that the irregularities in connection with the issue of the commission, which might at an earlier stage have been taken advantage of by motion to suppress, were waived by the advocate for the opposite party, with knowledge of the irregularities, causing the commission to be opened; that being a fresh step within the meaning of s. 541 of the Judicature Ordinance.—2. That in any case, the trial Judge having received the evidence, and s. 501 of the Judicature Ordinance providing that a new trial shall not be granted on the ground of the improper admission or rejection of eridence, unless, in the opinion of the Court to which application is made, some substantial wrong or miscarriage has been thereby occasioned in the trial, and the Court being of the contrary opinion, no effect should be given to the objection. Master's office-Partnership accounts-Defendant out of jurisdiction—Preliminary examination as to surcharge—Discretion of Master — Commission — Appointment of Master as Commissioner.] - The discretion vested in the Master by Con. Rules 668 and 669 as to preliminary examinations in taking accounts is very wide, and where in the proper exercise of his discretion an examination of a party is directed, it will not be in-terfered with; but he has no power to require the attendance within the jurisdiction of a defendant residing thereout, or to issue a commission naming himself as commissioner. As it appeared in this case that it would be in the interests of justice that the examination should be held before the Master personally, the Court directed a commission to issue for such examination, naming him as the commissioner. Return - Delay-Nullity-Omission to put questions.] - The execution of a foreign commission and the return of the commissioner after the time fixed, by the consent of the parties, are not necessarily causes of nullity, especially when no prejudice has been occasioned.—2. If the commissioner has omitted to put to a witness certain questions, his return will not be received, his proceedings being incomplete, but such omission does not render the proceedings void, and the Court, in that case, will order the record to be sent back to the commissioner with instructions to put the questions and so complete his proceedings. Admissions - Withdrawal-Leave-Motion for judgment.]-After all parties had agreed upon a statement of facts, and the plaintiff had served notice of motion for judgment thereon, he delivered a statement of claim and served on the defendants a notice withdrawing the statement of facts and countermanding the notice of motion. On the statements of facts, which had not been filed :--Held, that it was not necessary for the plaintiff to make an independent motion to be relieved from his admissions contained in the statement of facts, which had not been acted upon or brought before the Court ; after the filing of the statement of claim and the notice of withdrawal, it was not competent for the plaintiff to get judgment on the statement of facts; and if the sanction of the Court were needed for the course taken by the plaintiff, it might be given upon the defendant's motion. Cross-examination on affidavit - Attachment of debts-Salary of municipal officer - By-law - Production.] - An order having been made attaching all debts due to a judgment debtor by a city corporation, the paying teller of the corporation made an affidavit that nothing was due from the corporation to the debtor at the time of service of the attaching order. Cross-examined, he said that the debtor was assessment commissioner for the corporation and in receipt of a salary, but that advances had been made to him on account of it, by the authority of the treasurer of the city, so that nothing was due :-Held, that the affiant should be compelled to answer all questions put to him on crossexamination on his affidavit bearing on the advances made in the past to the debtor, and those bearing on the affiant's authority to make them, and his motives in doing so if he were exercising a discretion. - Held, also, Street, J., dissenting, that the affiant should answer the question whether he had ever made advances on account of salary to any other employee of the city, and, if he should answer it in the affirmative, he might be further interrogated as to the number of such instances, but he was not to be compelled to disclose the names of persons to whom such advances had been made.—Held, also, that the affant was not compellable to produce any of the city by-laws, not being the custodian thereof. Wilson v. Fleming, 20 C. L. T. 377, 19 P. R. 203.

Depositions of witnesses-Use on motion for new trial - Contradicting evidence given at trial, 1-The plaintiff, having given notice of motion for a new trial on the ground of surprise, in that certain witnesses, called for the plaintiff, had withheld evidence which they could have given in his support at the trial, and were willing to give such evidence if a new trial were granted, subpensed three of these witnesses under Rule 491, for examination before a local registrar upon the motion for a new trial :- Held, that Rule 491 applies to motions for a new trial pending before a Divisional Court .- Held, however, that evidence of persons who had been witnesses at the trial that the evidence they then gave was not in fact true, and that certain statements made by them before trial to the plaintiff's solicitor (which was avowedly the evidence sought to be obtained here by the examination in question) were true, would not be receivable. Security for costs-Nominal plaintiff-Insolvency — Affidavit — Notice of mation.] —The decision of Rose, J., 20 C. L. T. 309, 19 P. R. 180, affirmed on appeal; Street, J., dissenting :--Held, per Boyd, C., that an application for security for costs on the ground that the plaintiff is insolvent and is only nominally interested in the action, should be based on an affidavit of belief on the defendant's part that such are the facts, and such an affidavit should at least be furnished by the defendant before he attempts to establish the facts by examining the plaintiff. --Semble, that the proper practice in such a case is to have the grounds set forth in the notice of motion, as was done in Port Rowan notice of motion, as was done in Port Roices & Lake Shore Rue, Co. v. South Norlolk Rue. Co., 13 P. R. 327; and if this method were adopted, an affidavit of belief might be dis-pensed with if it was proposed to establish the facts alleged out of the mouth of the plaintif.—Held, per Falconbridge, C.J. that the finding of Rose, J., that the plaintiff had a substantial interest, should be adopted, and such being the position, the defendant had no right to prove the plaintiff. proverty out of right to prove the plaintiff's poverty out of his own mouth on this application. — Per Street, J., dissenting, that the defendant was entitled to examine the plaintiff for the purpose of shewing that he was a mere nominal plaintiff suing for the benefit of another, as well as for the purpose of shewing his insolvency; and the defendant could not be re-quired to establish each particular proposition involved in his motion, in its logical order, before proceeding with the next. --Leave was given to the defendant to proceed in proper form with his application for se-curity. Pritchard v. Pattison, 20 C. L. T. 435, 19 P. R. 277.

Security for costs-Nominal plaintiff-Insolvency.]-The plaintiff, being examined by the defendant as a witness upon a motion made by the defendant to set aside the proceedings and dismiss the action or for security for costs, on the ground that the plaintiff had no interest in the company on behalf of whose shareholders as well as himself he was suing, was asked what means he had of satisfying the costs in the action : - Held, that the defendant could not interrogate the plaintiff as to his financial position until, at least, a prima facie case had been made out that he was only the nominal, and not the dence given upon the motion before the examination of the plaintiff shewed that he had a substantial interest. Pritchard v. Pattison, 20 C. L. T. 309, 19 P. R. 180.

9. NEW EVIDENCE AFTER HEARING.

Action to revoke a indgment-Subacquent discovery of evidence not available at the triak-Must be material.]-New evidence alleged, in an action to revoke a judgment, to have been discovered subsequently to the trial, must be material, that is, of such a kind and nature, that if it had been adduced thereat, the judgment impugned might have been different. American Asbectos Co. V. Johnson Co. (1900), 38 Oue. S. C. 32.

Application to admit fresh evidence after judgment — Affidavit — Grounds— Orders XXIV, XXXV. Hekla v. S. Cunard & Co., 40 N. S. R. 611.

Application to let in fresh evidence -Knowledge of party. |--A petition to open up judgment in order to prove an allegation in the declaration (which the plaintiff forgot at the hearing) will not be granted unless it appears that the facts which it is desired to prove did not come to the knowledge of the plaintiff until after the close of the examination of witnesses. Canadian Breveeries (Limited) v. Allard, 4 Que P. R. 305.

Application to reopen judgment and let in fresh evidence—Corroborative evidence — Inconclusiveness. Duck v. Daniels, 9 W. L. R. 19.

County Court — Admission of further evidence after trial—County Courts Act, s. [31—Discretion—Appeal.]—In an action in a County Court for conversion of a chattel the evidence at the trial shewed that the defendants had received the chattel from the plaintiff and could not account for its disappearance. The Count; Court Judge reserved judgment and afterwards gave a written judgment in which he said that the elaintiff was entitled on the evidence to a verdiet for a named sum, but, the evidence being unsatisfactory, that he would suspend judgment for 10 days to allow the defendants to give further evidence. The defendants had made no application for leave to adduce further evidence, after this deliverance.

they obtained from the Judge an appointment for the taking of further evidence; they did no: then or later disclose the names of the evidence: -Heid, on appeal, that, if the Judge had power and discretion, under s. 131 of the County Courts Act or otherwise, to make such an order as to the taking of further evidence, he had not exercised his discretion properly; and the order should be set aside, and judgment entered for the plaintiff. Tett v. Bailey Supply Co. (1910), 13 W. L. R. 5.

Court of Appeal—Leave to adduce further evidence on appeal. Klees v. Dominion Coat and Apron Co., 3 O. W. R. 841, 937, 6 O. W. R. 200.

Discovery of fresh evidence—Opening up—Judgment.] — Where the plaintiff, whose action had been dismissed, presented a petition supported by an affidavit shewing that since the judgment he had discovered two new witnesses who would prove facts essential to the success of his action, an order was made remitting the parties to the same position as they were in before judgment in order that the plaintiff might produce the two witnesses, with leave to the defendant to give evidence to contradict them, and reserving costs. Brousseau v. Déchêne, 3 Que. P. R. 397.

Exchequer Court-Patent for invention -Experiments after trial.]-An application was made, after the hearing and argument of the cause but before judgment, for leave to the defendants to file as part of the record certain affidavits to support the defendants' case by additional evidence in respect of a matter upon which evidence had been given by both sides. It was open to the defendants to have moved for leave for such purpose before the hearing was closed, but no leave was asked. It also appeared that the affidavits had been based upon some experiments which had not been made on behalf of the defendants until after the hearing :--Held, that the application must be refused. Humphrey v. The Queen, 2 Ex. C. R. 286, and DrKupper v. YanDulken, 3 Ex. C. R. 88, distinguished. General Engineering Co. of Ontario v. Do-minion Cotton Mills Co., 20 C. L. T. 52, 6 W. C. P. 206. Ex. C. R. 306.

Fresh evidence — Motion to discharge délibéré—Reopening of trial.]—A motion to discharge délibéré will be granted where it appears by the affidiavit in support of the motion that the new evidence southit to be adduced is material, and that the failure to adduce it at the enguéte was inadvertent. Héiu v. Butter and Cheese Association of Discille, 8 Que. P. R. 103.

Leave to adduce, after judgm nt in appeal—Amendment of record)—After the judgment of the Court of Appeal affirming the judgment of the trial Judge dismissing the action, had been pronounced, drawn up, and entered, and while an appeal was pending therefrom to the Supreme Court of Canada, the plaintiffs moved for leave to adduce further evidence for the purpose of shewing that an exhibit which was used as part of the evidence in the case was not a true copy of the orignal document. It was not suggested that there was any error in the judge ment of the Court of Appeal which could be corrected by the introduction of the proposed evidence, or that, if the proposed evidence had been given while the appeal was performed by indigment would have been different. It might tend to displace one of the grounds on which the trial Judge relied, or might prevent the defendants from relying upon that ground if the case went further, but that was all that could be said:—Held, that the application should be refused. Rule 498, which empowers the Court to receive further evidence, is clearly confined to case where such evidence is sought to be introduced for the purpose of the appeal. Dueber Watch Case M'f's. Co. v. Taggart, 20 C. L. T. 374, 19 P. R. 233.

Motion to Divisional Court for new trial—Discovery of fresh evidence—Examination of witnesses on pending motion — Appointment for—Motion to set aside — Rules 401, 498. Trethencey v. Trethencey, 10 O. W. R. 684, 893.

10. PAROL EVIDENCE.

Admissibility — Oral evidence—Error or fraud—Evidence of facts alleged in pleadings — Irrelevancy — Weight, |- Oral evidence is always admissible to establish error or fraud—2. The Judge at the hearing on the merits alleged in the pleadings, the irrelevancy of which has not been attacked by inscription in law. He should admit the evidence, subject to his power of determining the weight of it in adjudicating upon the merits. Mancotel v. Tétrault, 32 Que. S. C. 500.

Admissibility—Oral evidence—Lease for 5 years—Rental exceeding $60—Commencement of proof in writing — Agent — Admissions — Divisibility.]—Parol evidence is not admissible to prove a contract of lease for a period of five years, at a yearly rental of $600, unless there be a commencement of proof in writing of it.—2. Such a commencement of proof in writing may be found in the admissions of a party examined as a witness under oath.—3. The admissions by a party cannot be divided except in the special cases stated in art. 1243, C. C.—Quere, can the admissions by an agent have the same value as proof in writing, or as a commencement of proof in writing, as if made by the principal? Sobinsky v. Allard, 16 Que. K. B, 530.

Architect — Plans and specifications— Contract — Proof of — Oral evidence — Inadmissibility — Time to move for rejection.]—1. A contract with an architect for the drawing, at a cost exceeding $50, of plans and specifications for a proposed building, is not a commercial matter, and cannot be proved by parol testimony.—2. When inadmissible evidence is received without objection, the party against whom it is given may move for its rejection at any time before the trial is over. Wright v. Davies, 33 Que. S. C. 346.

Cheque — Deposit of, as security—Commercial matters.]—Bills of exchange, promissory notes, and cheques are commercial terms by themselves, and with respect to all persons and all contracts or transactions relating thereto are commercial matters. Therefore, one who alleges that he has ziven a cheque to another as security for an obligation which he has assumed to the holder of the cheque to attempt to collect the amount of the latter's deposit in a bank in liquidation, may prove his allegation by oral testimony. Torn of Maisonneuve v. Chartier, 20 Que. 8, C. 518.

Contract — Construction — Oral eridence of surrounding circumstances.)—For the purpose of the interpretation of an arrement the terms of which are ambiguous, evidence of witnesses in regard to circumstances, such as the manner in which the parties have executed it and a prior agreement for the same purposes, is admissible, Gregoire v. St. Charles de Bellechasse School Commissioners, 29 Que. S. C. 215.

Contract — Sale of standing timber — Representation as to quantity — Inadmissible evidence.]—Oral evidence is inadmissible to establish that, at the time of a contract in writing for sale of the right to cut timber upon "lot number 15, range 13, Maroz. Hattley, and lying on the east side of the road called Beach road," the vendor represented to the purchaser that the lot contained 125 to 130 acres, when in reality its extent was only 75 acres. Hamel v. Smith, 31 Que. 8, C. 208.

Contradicting valid writing — Commencement of proof by teriting-Documente —Inscription de faux.]—Oral evidence will not be admitted to contradict the terms of a writing validly made whether as a commencement of proof by writing or any other kind of oral testimony. 2. An inscription de faux is only required when it is desired to prove the falsity of what a public officer declares that he saw or heard himself. O'Malley V. Ryan, 21 Que, S. C. 506.

Conveyance — Cutting down to mortgage.] — The plaintiff executed a transfer absolute in form of land to the defendants. The plaintiff alleged that the transfer was executed to secure the defendants against their liability as indorsers of a promissory mote for him; that he made default in payment at maturity; and that eventually the whole amount had been paid, partly by the plaintiff, and partly by the proceeds of the sale of a portion of the property transferred; and claimed an account and re-convergance. The defendants alleged that the transfer was iteraded to operate according to its terms, i.e., as an absolute convegance. The trial Judge found the facts in favour of the plain. tiff upon and the the plain claring t to be a count an the prop-126.

Blunt v. Marsh, 1 Terr. L. R. 126.

Custom of commerce — Proof of.]— Evidence may be given of the usage of commerce not only when the terms of the contract are ambiguous, but even when the intention of the parties is not clearly shewn according to the circumstances of the transaction. Prior v. Atkinson, 19 Que. S. C. 210.

Default of answer to interrogatories —Promissory note — Prescription — Interruption — Part payment.]—The default of the defendant to answer interrogatories surfaits et articles is sufficient proof to establish part payments made by him upon a promissory note for more than $50, and therefore to prove the interruption of prescription. Charrier V. St. Pierre, 19 Que. 8. C. 103.

Evidence to explain contract - Collateral security.]—The plaintiff sued on a promissory note, and tendered with his action a certificate of shares which he said the defendant had transferred to him as collateral security for the loan represented by the note. The defendant pleaded that the note was made in connection with a contract by which the defendant sold to the plaintiff eleven shares of Kensington Land Company stock subject to the right of redemption within six months on certain conditions, and that the note was only collateral to the contract, and made at plaintiff's request to enable him to obtain the money by discount. The note and contract were produced :--Held, that taking the note and contract together, and also seeing the admission in the declaration that the two documents were connected with the same transaction, parol evidence was admissible in explanation of the contract as between the parties thereto. Walker v. Brown, 19 Que. S. C. 23.

Money lent — Action to recover — Noncommercial action — Oral critence — Inadmissibility.]—Although a loan made by a banker or a money-lender, in the ordinary course of his business, is always an act of commerce, whatever be its object and whatever be the capacity of the borrower, a loan which he makes outside of the ordinary course of his business to a non-trader—for example, to a friend to oblige him—is noncommercial, and, if it exceeds $50, oral evidence of it is not admissible. O'Brien v. Heires of Daniel Church, 34 Que. S. C. 16.

Notarial deed — Description of land— Discrepancy — Parol testimony.]—When in the description of an immovable in a notarial deed, there is a discrepancy between the area stated and the boundaries given, parol testimony is admissible to prove a mistake as to the latter. David v. Hains, 31 Que. S. C. 489.

Oral evidence — Admissibility—Proof of contract between trader and non-trader.]— A contract, as regards the proof of it, is civil, commercial, or mixed, that is to say, civil for one of the contracting parties and commercial for the other. In regard to mixed contracts, in matters where the amount claimed exceeds $50, oral evidence is admissible against a trader, but not in his favour. Therefore, an innkeper will not be admitted to prove by witnesses a contract with a nontrader under which he claims a sum exceeding $50. Pellerin v. Vincent, 33 Que, S. C. 51.

Oral evidence—Proof of a sum exceeding $50 by means of partial payments of less than $50—Presumption of payment—Imputation of payment at the end of a term of a lease.]—Oral evidence is not admissible to prove the payment of a debt over $50 by means of partial payments of less than $50 each. The imputation that the tenant made a payment at the end of the term of his lease raises an inference that he paid the former terms. Desileres v. Deslieres et al., 35 Que. S. C. 528.

Oral testimony — Contradicting deed— Pleading — Absolute deed — Security. — An allegation in a pleading that a deed, in form a deed of sale, is in reality a pledge, allows the opposite party to prove by oral evidence that the deed is of a diiterent nature, e.g., a certificate of deposit for the benefit of a firm. Whitney v. Jogce, 14 Que. K. B. 406.

Oral testimony — Contradicting deed— Redemption—Payment of sum named—Oral evidence to vary amount—Inadmissibility.] —The vendor or his representative, who, in the exercise of the right of redemption, pays to the purchaser the sum agreed upon, executes a deed of re-purchase in which such payment is stated, and by a subsequent document, although of the same date, protests against the amount of such payment, will not be allowed to prove by witnesses that there has been a mistake in the amount.—Accordingly, his action for recovery of part of the sum paid, supported by that kind of evidence only, will be dismissed. Saint-Onge v. Chopin, 28 Que S. C. 206.

Oral testimony — Interruption of prescription — Agreement — Indemnity.]—The interpretation of the short prescription of actions for damages resulting from torts or quasi-torts, cannot be proved by witnesses, any more than an agreement to pay an indemnity exceeding $50. McLennon v. Mc-Kinnon, 28 Que. S. C. 536.

Oral testimony—Matter of public order —Consent to admission — Proof of,]—The acclusion of oral testimony, except in cases provided for by art. 1233, C. C., is a matter of public order. Therefore, where such testimony has been adduced in a case where the principal sum demanded exceeds $50, the Court cannot take it into consideration, even if the opposite party in interest does not oppose its being considered.—Upon the supposition that such exclusion of oral evidence is not of public order, the renunciation of the party against whom the evidence is taken of the right to invoke art. 1233 can be inferred only from facts incompatible with the intertion of objecting and leaving no doubt as to the consent of the party. Gervais v. Mc-Carthy, 14 Que. K. B. 420. Oral testimony — Varying document-Improper admission at trial—Party adducing it complaining on appeal.]—Oral evidence of false representations to contradict or change the terms of a writing validly executed, is inadmissible, but the party who adduces such evidence at the trial cannot be allowed to assert its nullity upon appeal. Brownice v. Hyde, 15 Que, K. B. 221.

Parol evidence as to deed absolute in form being in fact only a mortgace. Matheus v. Holmes (1855), C. R. 2, A. C. 230; Greenshielda v. Barnhart (1853), C. R. 2, A. C. 91.

Principal and agent—Proof of agency —Mandate—Oral evidence—Admissibility,1— The proof of the mandate in a commercial matter, where the sum demanded exceeds $50, may be made by the oral testimony of witnesses. Therefore, a plaintiff suing to recover payment of an account rendered by him as a commission merchant, to which the defendant sets up the defence that the plaintiff was the purchaser of the merchandise, is entitled to prove by witnesses the contract of mandate by virtue of which he accepted delivery. Deerosiers v. Brown, 17 Que. K. B. 55.

Proof of contract — Oral testimony— Loss of written proof by unforescen event— Procedure—Writing alleged and not expressly denied—Denial of the effect it may have.]— A party who takes suit upon a private writing is hound to file it with the return of writ. It cannot be proved by oral testimony upon simple declaration of party that such writing is lost. To benefit by provisions of par. 6 of art. 1253 C. C. the party must prove, not only that such writing existed, but, in addition, the unforescen event which cansed its loss.—When defendant, without denying existence of contract alleged by plaintiff, pleads that the action taken (in present case, a selzure in revendication) does not arise from such contract, it then becomes necessary to establish the contract in order that the Court may be in a position to decide upon issues as joined. It is useless for plaintiff or rely upon art. 111 C. P., inasnuch as the denial of the right to action as taken is a denial of contract as alleged by plaintiff. Magon & Risch Piano Co. v. Fournier (1910), 38 Que. 8. C. 242.

Proof of obligations and their extinction — Private signature by mark — Denial under oath—Onus of proof—Parol testimony.]—When a signature to a receipt, by affixing his mark in the presence of a witness, is denied under oath, as provided in Art. 208 C. P., by the party alleged to have subscribed it, the "onus" of proving the payment it refers to, is cast on the party who sets it up, and, if the sum exceeds fifty dollars, parol testimony, including that of the attesting witness to the receipt, is inadmissible for the purpose. Legare v. Barbe (1900), 28 One. 8. C. 27.

Trust.]—Among other claims in this action, the plaintiff asked to have it declared that the purchase made by the defendant of a lot of land was made to him as trustee and agent for the plaintiff, and that the plaintiff was entitled to the profits and an account. There was no writing evidencing the alleged trust.—Held, that the plaintiff was at liberty to prove by parol evidence (if he could do so) the existence of the alleged trust. The authorities are conflicting. Bartlett v. Pickersgilt, I Cox 15, 1 Eden. 515, 4 East 577, Heard v. Pilley, L. R. 4 Ch. 548, James v. Smith, [1891] 1 Ch. at p. 387, and Rochefoucauld v. Boustead, [1897] 1 Ch. 196, discussed.—Held, however, that the evidence in this case failed to prove the trust. Hull v. Allen, 22 C. L. T. 158, 1 O. W. R. 151, 782.

Work done—Request.]—On a claim for repairs done by the lessee at the request of the lessor, and board of men, exceeding S50, the request cannot be proved by parol evidence. Caron v. Gauder, 6 Que, P. R. 23.

11. SECONDARY EVIDENCE.

Books and documents — Objections — Resemblance or identity of performances — Copyright.] — Objections to secondary weidence of the contents of a written document must be distinctly stated when it is offered: and if not objected to it is received, and is entitled to its proper weight, and the weight to be attached to it will depend upon the elecumstances of each case. Each programme of an entertainment is an original document, not a meter copy. The rule excluding oral testimony of a witness of the contents of a written document which he had read was not applicable to the present case (an action for infringement of a copyright by the performance of an opera). What was sought to be proved was not the contents of any book or document, but the resemblance or identity of two performances partly verbal, partly nuiscal, and facial expression. Sufficiency and admissibility of evidence of copy with original discussed. Carte v. Dennis, 5 T. L. R. 30.

Lost deed — Secondary evidence — Oral testimony — Presumptions.]—A party who relies upon a title deed which he asserts to have existed, but which he cannot find, may establish the existence, the tenor, and the destruction of it as well by oral evidence as by presumptions grave, precise, and sequential. Bienvenu v. Lacaille, Que. 17 K. B. 404.

Notice to produce — Object of.]—The only object of a notice to produce is to enable the party giving it to put in secondary evidence of the contents of a writing, if the original, being in the possession of the party to whom the notice is given, is not produced by him. If the party chooses to produce the original without notice, or if the party desiring to put in the original gets possession of it and puts it in, it is no objection that a notice to produce was not given. Carte v. Dennis, 21 C. L. T. 267, 5 T. L. R. 30.

Proof in writing—Necessity for—Loss by unforescen accident—Oral testimony.) — Where the original of a notarial minute has disappeared without the fault of the partice by some inexplicable circumstance, the case comes within art. 1233, par. 6 C. C., which provides that proof may be made by testi-

Will \rightarrow Evidence Act - R. S. N. S. Will — Evidence Act — R. S. N. S. (1900), et. 163, sees. 22 and 27.—Secon-dary evidence—Ejectment — Mesne profits.] —Section 27 of the Evidence Act of Nova Sectia (R. S. N. S. (1900), et. 163), pro-vides that "A copy of a notarial Act or instrument in writing made in Quebec before a notary public, filed, enrolled or enregistered by such notary and certified by a notary or prohonotary to be a true copy of the original, thereby certified to be in his possession as such notary or prothonotary, shall be received in evidence in any Court in place of the original, and shall have the same force the original, and shall have the same force and effect as the original would have if pro-duced and proved."—And by the first two sub-sections of sec. 22, it is provided that:— "The probate of a will or a copy thereof certified under the hand of the registrar of probate or found to be a true copy of the original will, but the Court may, upon due cause shewn upon affidavit, order the original will to be produced in evidence, or may direct such other proof of the original will as under the circumstances appears necessary reasonable for testing the authenticity of the alleged original will, and its unaltered condi-tion and the correctness of the prepared copy. This section shall apply to wills and the probate and copies of wills proved elsewhere than in this province, provided that the ori-ginal wills have been deposited and the proginal while have been deposited and the pio-bate and copies granted in Courts having jurisdiction over the proof of wills and ad-ministration of intestate estates, or the custody of wills:"—Held, that a copy of a will executed before two notaries in the province of Quebec under the provisions of art. 843 C. C., certified by one of said notaries to be a true copy of the original in his possession, is admissible in evidence on the trial of an action of ejectment in Nova Scotia, as provided in sec. 27.—In an action of ejectprofits which accrued while the title was in his predecessor; and the defendant in possession by consent of the owner is not entitled to be paid for improvements or repaid disbursements made before the plaintiff obtained title.—Appeal dismissed with costs. Musgrave v. Angle (1910), 30 C. L. T. 691, 43 S. C. R. 484.

12. WITNESSES.

Action to perpetuate testimony-Procedure-Order for examination of witnesses. Atlas Loan Co. v. Honsinger, 3 O. W. R. 917.

Admission of liability — Burden of Proof — Positive and negative evidence.] — Where in an action against the indorser of a promissory note, a defence of failure to present for payment and to give notice of dishonour is admitted, but the plaintiff relies on an alleged admission of liability by the defendant, the burden of proof is on the plaintiff; and the case is not one where the rule as to the adoption of the positive evidence of one witness against the negative evidence of another can be properly applied. Hart v. 7 aydor, 37 N. S. R. 155.

Alten — Form of oath.]—Upon a trial for murder, a Chinese witness, who was not a Christian, was interrogated as to the form of oath most binding, and was sworn by "the King's oath," or "chicken oath," a form deemed of greater solemnity than those ordinarily administered, the "paper" and "saucer" oaths. Rev v. Ah Wooey, 9 B. C. R. 569.

Appeal—Question of fact — Conflicting evidence. Bent v. Morine, 3 E. L. R. 108.

Bornage—Right of defendant to call witnesses—Absence of plea.]—In an action en bornage, a defendant, who has not filed a plea, has nevertheless a right to examine witnesses. Johnsons Co. v. Wilson, Q. R. 24 S. C. 131.

Competency — Religious helie(1, 1—A person offered as a witness, upon heing examined on the voir dire stated that he believed in God but did not believe in a future state of rewards and punishments dependent upon his conduct while on earth, whereupon he was rejected as incompetent — Held, that he was properly so rejected. Bell v. Bell, 34 N. B. R. 615.

Conflicting evidence—Duty of Court.] —When several witnesses equally intelligent and credible, who appear to give their testimony in good faith, do not agree upon the existence of the fact, the Court should adopt the version of the majority, rather than that of the minority.—2. As between witnesses equally honest, the Court ought rather to believe those who would not be likely to be mistaken than those who are likely to misconceive the facts in question. Guay v. Village of Malbaie, 25 Que, 8. C. 263:

Conflicting testimony — Appeal from Master's report—Forgery—Perjury—Prosecution—Solicitor—Law Society Hall v. Berry, 10 O. W. R. 954.

Conflicting testimony-Verdict. City of Montreal v. Enright, 3 E. L. R. 129.

Cross-examination on affidavit — Interioeutory motion — Original document — Production by witness. Wilson v. Rannie (Y.T.), 1 W. L. R. 397.

Cross-examination to credit — Contradiction — Defamation.]—The defendant in an action of defamation, to which he pleaded privilege, after himself stating in the witness box that one H. had informed him that the plaintiff was keeping the strippings from his cows, and making butter from them, contrary to his agreement with a cheesemaking association, which was the alleged slander, called H. as a witness, and proved that H. had told him (the defendant) what he had stated. The plaintiff's counsel then in cross-examination asked H. his grounds for making the statement, and H, said that he had seen the plaintiffs wife taking the strippings, and that she had not mixed them with the milk seat to the factory; that she told him that she always took the strippings from the cows and used them in the house. —The plaintiff proposed to call, in reply, a witness to contradict H:...-Heid, that this evidence, if anfinciently tendered, was properly rejected, there being no plea of justification and the defendant not seeking to go into the truth of the charge. It was not competent for the plaintiff to make the evidence relevant by himself asking H, in effect, whether the charge was true or not, and then seeking to contradict him. The cross-examination of H. upon this point was proper, but only as a matter of credit, to rebut evidence brought out by himself upon a matter going only to credit. Preston v. Thompson, 21 C. L. 7, 464.

Examination of plaintiff — Over 80 years of age—Required at home—Illness of wife—Motion to cross-examine plaintiff on affidavit at Toronto, instead of at Woodstock, his county town—Motion dismissed—Costs in the cause—Rules 444, 491, 492, Hull v. Allen (1910), 17 O. W. R. 487, 2 O. W. N. 260.

Examination of witness de bene esse. Haskins v. May, 2 O. W. R. 500.

Examination of witness de bene esse —Important witness—Necessity for examination in open Court — Refusal of motion. Switzer v. Switzer, 11 O. W. R. 311.

Examination of witness de bene esse —Rule 638.]—Summons to examine a witness de bene case. The witness lived at Telegraph Creek, in Cassiar district, but at the time of the hearing of the summons he was in Victoria temporarily, and the application was for the purpose of getting his evidence before he went back to Telegraph Creek:—Held, that Rule 368 was applicable and order made as asked. Hyland v. Canadian Development Co., 22 C. L. T. 170, 9 B. C. R. 32.

Finding based on positive evidence -Appeal.1--In an action for injury to land by flooding the trial Judge found, with some doubt, that the water had been delivered by means of a culvert constructed by the defendants, in spite of a mass of testimony going to shew that this was impossible:--Heid, that the Court (Supreme Court en banc) would not interfere with the Judge's finding, there being positive evidence to sustain it, which he had chosen to believe, and it could not be said that he was clearly wrong. Milton v. District of Surrey, 10 B. C. R. 206

Judge in Chambers has no power to order viva voce examination of a witness de bene esse. Hodgson v. Dawson (1869), 1 P. E. I. R. 281.

Motion—Cross-examination of officers of company on affidavit — Injunction — Production of documents — Undertaking to produce — Questions—Relevancy—Sufficiency— Trade union—Details as to emologer's business. Gurney Foundry Co. v. Emmett, 2 O. W. R. 938, 9559, 1038, 3 O. W. R. 382, 554.

Motion - Examination of witness on pending motion-Ex parte motion-Substituted service of process-Status of witness to move to set aside appointment and subpana.]-Motion by a person, not a party to the suit who was served by plaintiff with a subpona and appointment for examination as a witness upon a pending motion, to set aside the subpœna and appointment. Several grounds were taken in the notice of motion. Those mainly relied on were: (1) that there is no motion pending before the Court, and so Rule 491 does not apply; (2) that an order for substituted service has already been made and acted on, and the witness, on whom service was made, has disclaimed any knowledge of defendant's residence, and (3) that the Rules do not provide for or permit the examination of witnesses upon an ex parte examination of witnesses upon the witness has motion. It was argued that the witness has no status to move yet. This point was not no status to move yet. This point was met by Steele v. Savory, S Times L. R. 94, which seems to overrule the objection. The substantial question was whether an ex parte motion is a "motion before the Court within the meaning of Rule 491. The notes to this Rule in Holmested & Langton's Jud. Act, p. 673, and the cases cited, seem to shew that an ex parte motion is a motion in support of which evidence can be obtained :-Held, plaintiff was right in trying to obtain such information as would enable such an order to be made as would prima facic bind defendant on the question of service. When an order has been made, as here, which was plainly abortive, it does not seem reasonable to hold, in the absence of authority, that plaintiff's whole remedy is exhausted. The motion dismissed. Dunlop, v. Dunlop, 5 0.
 W. R. 258, 305, 9 O. L. R. 372.

Oral testimony — Party to cause—Promissory notes — Possession of.]—A party to a cause may be examined as a witness in order that he may be made to explain how he came into possession of certain promissory notes, and on what conditions they were accepted. Sauré v. Charlebois, 7 Que. P. R. 442.

Party as witness — Discrediling-Reputation—Opinion—Rejection of evidence— New trial.]—At the trial of an action for negligence in non-repair of a way, the plantiff testified in his own behalf. For the defence a neighbour of the plaintiff's vascalled who swore that the plaintiff's reneral reputation among his neighbours in the community was not good; the witness would not believe the plaintiff on his oath. He said he knew the individual opinions of the plaintiff's neighbours as to his character, and he was then asked by counsel for the plaintiff' "Whose opinion do you know?" This was not allowed:—Held, that this evidence should not have been rejected; but, as, even assuming the plaintiff's testimony to be true. the action was properly dismissed by the trial Judge, there was no substantial wrong of misenringe within Order 37, Rule 6, and there should not be a new trial. Messenger v. Town of Bridgetoor, 33 N. S. 201.

Party as witness—Refusal to incriminate himself—Municipal councillor—Quo warranto.]—The defendant was elected a member of the council of a village, the charter of which required that no one should occupy such office unless he could read and write.

St. Arnaud v. Barrette, 4 Que, P. R. 102.

Petition to correct deposition. |-A witness has the right to apply directly to the Court, by petition, to have his deposition corrected, when he states that it is not correct. Nadon v. Richmond, Drummond, and Yamaska Ins. Co., 3 Que. P. R. 439.

Right to contradict witness—dudge'sLeave—Refusal of.]—Where a witness, whethere a party to the action or not, is called by the plaintiff to prove a case, and his evidence disproves the case, the plaintiff may yet establish his case by other witnesses called, not to discredit the first, but to contradict him on facts material to the issue; and the right to contradict by other evidence exists, though the trial Judge may not grant his permission. Stanley Piano Co. of Toronto v. Thompson, 21 C. L. T. 73, 32 O. R. 341.

Trial Judge—Appellate Court.]—When the credibility of a witness who has given his evidence before the trial Judge is guestioned before an appellate Court, the Court should reverse the finding of the trial Judge as to the witness's evidence only if the evidence itself furnishes very strong grounds for doing so, and if the matter is in doubt the finding should be accepted. Admiralty jurisdiction — Action by ship-builders for price of ship—Counterclaim for moneys expended in repairs. — The plaintiffs built a ship in Scotland for a company in Vancource, B.C. On her way out certain repairs were made, which cost 23,638. The first instalment of the price of construction not being paid, this action was commenced in the Exchequer Court of Canada by seizure of the ship. The Vancouver company counterclaimed for the sum mentioned, the expenditure whereof, as they alleged, was rendered necessary by the defective work and material in her construction and equipment: —Held, on motion, that the counterclaim must be struck out, for it was not within the Admiralty jurisdiction of the Court. Action for money demand - Jurisdiction of Court — Cause of action—Foreigners —Domicile — Rules 201, 202 — Tort—Conversion of money abroad-Detention in Manitoba - Contract - Motion to set aside order of attachment — Service of statement of claim — Substituted service — Personal service on foreigners in jurisdiction-Affidavits -Defendants out of jurisdiction-Temporary residence.]-Upon an application by the defendants to set aside an order allowing substituted service of the statement of claim and an application to set aside an order of attachment under which certain goods had been seized by the sheriff :—Held, per Mathers, J., (1) that the facts did not bring the case within Rule 201 of the King's Bench Act, R. S. M. 1902 c. 40, or any of its sub-rules, so that it was not a case in which the statement of claim could be served out of the jurisdiction .- (2) It could not be said that the defendants had committed a tort in Manitoba within the meaning of paragraph (e) of Rule 201. Anderson v. Nobels Explosive Co., 12 O. L. R. 644, followed.—(3) A Court has no right to enforce a personal money claim against a person who is neither domi-ciled nor resident within its jurisdiction, unless he has appeared to the process or has expressly agreed to submit to the jurisdic-tion of such Court. Sirdar Gurdyal Singh v. Rajah of Faridkote, [1894] A. C. 670, and Emanuel v. Symon, [1908] 1 K. B. 302; and, therefore, apart from Rule 202 of the King's Bench Act, the possession by the defendants of property in Manitoba gave the Court no jurisdiction over the defendants in an action in personam.—(4) If evidence had been given that the defendants were pos-sessed of property in Manitoba to the value of $200, it would have been necessary to consider whether, under Rule 202, the statement of claim could be served out of the jurisdiction without previously obtaining leave to serve it : Gullivan v. Cantelon, 16 Man. L. R. 644; and also whether the plaintiff's cause of action against the defendants was upon a contract within the meaning of that Rule .--(5) The writ of attachment should be set aside with costs as having been issued without jurisdiction; but, as there was a possibility that the plaintiff might succeed in establishing a claim to the specific chattels seized an order should be made for the detention of them by the sheriff until further order, on condition that the plaintiff should always keep the cost of detaining, storing, and insuring the goods paid in advance so as to protect the defendants against loss in case the plaintiff should fail to establish his claim. with leave to either party to apply at any time to vary or rescind the order.—(6) That substituted service of the statement of claim should not be allowed in a case like the should not be allowed in a case like the present, when personal service out of the juri-diction was not authorised. Fry v. Moore, 23 Q. B. D. 305, and Wilding v. Been, [1891] 1 Q. B. 100, followed.—Upon appeals from the orders of Mathers, J. — Heid, by Howell, C.J.A., and Perdue, J.A., that the evidence shewed that the defendants were not, at the time of the commencement of the action domicible or confunctive scalars. the action, domiciled or ordinarily resident within Manitoba, and the case was, there fore, not within paragraph (c) of Rule 201, and, not being within any of the other paragraphs of that Rule or Rule 202, the Court had no jurisdiction, and the appeals should be dismissed.—Per Richards and Phippen. J.J.A., that the defendants being shewn to have acquired a domicile in Manitoba, or to have been ordinarily resident here up to within about a month before the commence ment of the action, and having described themselves as of Winnipeg only two weeks before, the onus was upon them to shew that they had ceased to be so ordinarily resident. and had, at the time of the commencement of the action, no intention of returning; and that they had not satisfied that onus.-The Court being equally divided, the appenls were Court being equity invited, the append where dismissed without costs. Application to set aside attachment -Practice - Appearance - Evidence.] -An application by the defendant to set aside an attachment against him, will be heard before the defendant appears .--- The defendant came from the United States to Halifax, N.S., to work, in connection with certain gold mines, a valuable cyanide plant owned by him, and he carried on this work for 6 months in Halifax county, and then decided to remove the plant to another county in Nova Scotia in connection with another mine. Having made the necessary arrange-ments, he went to New York on the 14th December, to spend Christmas. There was no secrecy about his movements, and he left his horses and carriages and other property in Nova Scotia. There were no claims against him except the claim of the plaintiff. and a disputed claim :-Held, that attachment proceedings against him as an absent or ab-sconding debtor should be set aside.—Notes relating to other cases of alleged absent or absconding debtors. Foreign company-Agent "carrying on business."]-The plaintiffs sued the defendants for an account incurred by P., who was engaged in negotiations for the sale of one of the defendants' engines to the city of H., and while so engaged incurred the account in question. P. left the province, leaving the account unpaid, and attachment proceedings were commenced against the defendants under the provisions of O. 47, r. 6:-Held, that, as the evidence shewed the agent to have been employed only for the one transaction, and no further or other business was contemplated, this did not constitute " carrying on business" within the province within the meaning of the Order, and the writ and attachment, with the service thereof, must be set aside. Action for-Judgments Act -- Lien on land — Equitable interest — Registration— Devolution of Estates Act — Manitoba Trus-tee Act — Interest of heir in lands of intestate - Realty or personalty - Parties to tate — Realty or personalty — Paynes to action.]—Z., the owner of the lands in ques-tion, having died intestate, his widow, $A_{,,}$ took out letters of administration of his took out petters of international of its estate. B., the only child of Z. and A., sub-sequently married the defendant, and then died childless and intestate. The plaintiff, having recovered indgement in the King's Bench against the defendant, registered in the proper land titles office a certificate of the judgment, and then brought this action for a sale of the defendant's interest in the lands to realize his judgment. A. had not disposed of the land in any way under her letters of administration, nor had letters of administration of the estate of B, been taken out :-Held, that the defendant had no interest in the land in question, which was bound by, or could be sold under, the registered judgment. -Held, also, that an administrator of the estate of the defendant's wife was a necessary party to any proceedings affecting her estate or the defendant's interest in it. Re Shephard, 43 Ch. D. 131, followed .- Semble, even if the estate of the defendant's wife had been represented in the action, it would have to be held that the defendant, while the land remained vested in the administrator, had no interest in it which would be bound by the judgment.—Section 3 of the Judgments Act, R. S. M. 1902 c. 91, with the interpretation of the word "land" given in s.-s. (j) of s. 2, refers to a present existing interest in land, and does not cover an interest which may come to a beneficiary as real estate, or may come to him as money, according to the actions of the administrator and the unknown exigencies of the administration. Fi. fa. lands—Equitable interest in lands —Assignment of — Priorities — Land Titles Act — Lien — "Instrument" — "Lands" -Filing writ of execution in land titles office.] - The plaintiffs, being the registered owners of a quarter section of land, on the 24th December, 1903, agreed to sell it to the defendant G. S. in consideration of a price payable partly in cash and the balance in nine annual instalments, with interest, and agreed to transfer it to G. S. or his approved assignee, upon payment in full of the purchase-money and compliance by him with the further conditions set out in the agreement. On the 24th July, 1907, the defendant com-pany caused to be filed in the land titles office a certified copy of a writ of execution, issued upon a judgment recovered by the company against G. S., directed to a sheriff, requiring him to levy the amount of the judgment out of the lands of G. S. The writ was dated the 3rd July, 1907, and was still in force at the time of this action. On the 31st December, 1908, G. S., by an indenture in writing, transferred and assigned to the de-fendant T. J. S. all his interest in the land under the agreement for sale in considera-tion of $600:-Held, that the interest of G. S. in the lands was purely an equitable one. By the writ of execution the sheriff is commanded to levy the amount of the execu-tion out of the "lands" of the debtor; and, having regard to the provisions of the Land Titles Act, especially s. 129, s.-s. (2), (3) and (4) ss. 132, 136, and form V., "lands" does not include an equitable interest in lands and a writ of execution does not bind the equitable interest of a purchaser under an agreement of sale :--Held, also, that the execution does not give the execution creditor a lien on land realizable by equitable execution. Bocz v. Spiller, 1 W. L. R. 366, followed.-Held, also, that the word "instrument" in s.-s. 3 of s. 129 would not include the assignment by G. S. to T. J. S. of his interest in the land-the assignment was not a registrable document under the Act .- Held, therefore, that the execution of the defendant company was not binding upon the equitable interest which G. S. had in the land at the time of the filing of a copy of the writ in the

R. S. M. 1902, c. 38, is not nearly so exten sive as in the case of a registered judgment of the Court of King's Bench under the Judg-ments Act, R. S. M. 1902, c. 91; and, when the only interest or estate of the judgment debtor in the land in question is under an agreement of purchase providing for payment by delivery of one-half of each year's crop and in no other way, the judgment creditor, hav-ing only a registered County Court judgment. does not acquire all the rights or position of an assignce of the benefits of the agreement, and is not necessarily entitled to notice of a cancellation of the agreement by the vendor, in pursuance of a stipulation contained therein, or to insist on taking the place of the purchaser in all respects or to redeem the vendor, nor is he entitled to an order for the sale of the land after such cancellation. When the vendor in such a case declares the agreement forfeited and cancels the same by notice under one of its terms, whether or not the purchaser could get relief in conity against the forfeiture, the judgment creditor has no standing to claim such relief. Attachment — Action for tort — Crim-inal conversation—Rules 813-858 — Claim for damages-Right to attaching order.] -In an action for $5,000 damages for enticing away the plaintiff's wife and for criminal conversation, the plaintiff obtained an order directing the attachment of certain property of the defendant. By the group of Rules governing attachment proceedings, Rules 813-858 of the King's Bench Act, the process is not declared to be available in every case where money is demanded. By Rule 815 property " may be attached for the payment of a debt or the satisfaction of a cause of ac-tion arising from legal liability :" and Rule 817 requires an affidavit stating, inter alia, that the defendant is legally liable to the plaintiff in damages in the sum claimed in plaintiff in damages in the sum claimed in the action, "after making all proper and just secoffs, allowances, and discounts:"-Held, that the procedure, if applicable at all to an action of tort, was not applicable to an action such as this, where the damages are not given merely by way of restitution, but may be of an exemplary or punitive nature; and the attaching order was set aside. Execution against lands of home-steader — Transfer of homestead to wife-Licn-Land Titles Act-Exemptions Ordinance.]-F. was the owner of a quarter section of land, which was his homestead, he and his family residing thereon. While it was his homestead, he transferred it to his wife, the plaintiff. At the time of the transfer, the defendants had an execution against the lands of F. on file in the land titles office, and the Registrar put a memorandum on the certificate of title issued to the plaintiff that it was subject to the execution :---Held, having regard to the provisions of the Land Titles Act and the Exemptions Ordinance, that the execution was not a lien upon the land; that the plaintiff took the property free from any claim of the defendants under their from any claim of the defendants under their execution; and the Registrar was directed to remove the memorandum from her certifi-cate of title.—By s. 2 of the Exemption Ordinance a homestead of 160 acres is free from "seizure." By delivering a certified copy of the writ of fi. fa. to the registrar, the sheriff "seizes" all the lands of the judgment debtor, with the exceptions mentioned in the denor, with the exceptions mentioned in the Exemption Ordinance: as he cannot seize the homestead, that land is not affected by the delivery, and the execution does not become a lien upon it.—Boez v. Homestead — Judgments Act.] — The plaintiff claimed a right to have two village lots owned by the defendant sold to satisfy a judgment of which he had registered a certtificate. The defendant occupied as his dwelling the upper floor of a two-storey building on one of the lots, the ground floor having been built for use as a store. There was a stairway inside the building connecting the two floors, also a stairway from the outside to the dwelling. The two lots were occupied as one property and some use was made of the vacant store for storage of articles used in connection with the dwelling. The Judge at the trial found that there was a mortgage upon it for an amount exceeding $2,000; —Held, that the defendant was bona fide using the whole premises as his residence and that, under s. 12 of the Judgments Act, R. S. M., c. 80, the property as a whole was free from sale under the judgment. Codville v. Pearce, 21 C. L. T. 318, 446, 13 Man. L. R. 468.

Homestead — Sale of — Mortgage taken in part payment — Receiving order.]—The Exemptions Ordinance, C. O. 1898, c. 27, s. 2, s.-s. 9, declares the following real property of an execution debtor and his family free from seizure by virtue of all writs of execution, namely:—(9) "The homestead, provided the same is not more than one hundred and sixty acres; marker is the more the surplus may be sold, where it be more the surplus may be sold, where the proceeds of the sale of the do-conduct's homestead, do not come within this provision. This provision exempts the homestead only so long as it remains a homestead, and where the debtor has voluntarily disposed of it, the language of the Ordinance is not wide enough to extend the exemption to the proceeds, unless they are re-invested in other exempt property before a creditor has acquired a charge or lien upon them. Receiving order, as equilable execution, discharged. Massey-Harris Co. v. Schram, 5 Terr. L. R. 338.

Romestead — Value — Notice.]—Held, that the execution debtor was entitled, as an exemption under the Homestead Act, to $500 out of $1.009 realised by the sheriff on the sale of a steamship, the only exigible personalty of the debtor. *Vpc v. Homestead exemption — Conveyance of homestead—Action to set aside—13 Elis. c. 5—Fraudulent transfer.]—Heid, Scott, J., dissentiente, that a transfer of a homestead exempt from seizure under execution was not, by reason of the exemption, a fraudulent transfer of property under the statute 13 Eliz. c. 5.—Semble, the right to claim the benefit of an exemption is not confined to the execution debtor, but extends at least to members of his family. Meunier v. Doray, 6 Terr. L. R. 194, 2 W. L. R. 231.

Homestead exemption — Proceeds of sale under mortgage—Practice—Originating summons.]—An execution against lands does not bind the homestead of the execution debtor, and mortgagees of the land subsequent to the executions are entitled to sell it free from the executions.—Such a mortgagee may invoke the provisions of the Exemption Ordinance for the purpose of securing his priority.—The sale of a homestead under a mortgage is a compulsory sale, and consequently the proceeds after payment of the mortgages are exempt from seizure under execution to the same extent as the land.— The rights of the parties appearing to be interested in the land may be determined upon an originating summons for sale under a mortgage, Bozy, Spiller, 6 Terr, L. R. 225, 1 W. L. R. 306, 2 W. L. R. 280.

sale-Intituling-Swearing affidavit of execution of transfer.]-A quarter section of land, although all the land owned by an execution debtor, is not his "homestead" within paragraph 9 of s. 22 of the Exemptions Ordinance, where he has not occupied it for nine years, and appears to have no animus revertendi .--Where the advertisement of a sale under an execution had been published in a weekly paper, and had appeared in every issue of the paper published during two months, but there had been no issue in two weeks of the period : -Held, that it not appearing that the sale of the property had been affected in any way, there had been a sufficient compliance with the provisions of Rule 364 of the Judicature Ordinance.-Proceedings to confirm a sale of lands under a writ of execution are proceedings under the Land Titles Act, 1894, not that the proceedings are initialed in the cause, and not "In the matter of the Land Titles Act," is nevertheless no objection to the in the cause in which the writ issued; but An affidavit of execution of a transfer upon a sale under a writ of execution, sworn be-fore the clerk of the Court, is bad, but leave may be given to reswear it pending an application to confirm the sale. John Abell Engine and Machine Works Co. v. Scott, 6 W. L. R. 272, 6 Terr. L. R. 302.

Homestead exemption-Right of mortgagee to claim—Effect of executions—Priori-ties.]—The plaintiff applied for foreclosure or sale of a quarter-section of land against which a number of executions were registered in priority to the mortgage in question. plaintiff contended that the land in question was, when the mortgage was given, the homestead, and still the homestead, of the debtor, and that the executions in question did not charge the land. The creditors, in addition to denying that the land was a homestead, also contended that only the debtor could avail himself of the exemption :-Held, that the execution in question never charged the land if it was a homestead, and that the mortgagee was in as good a position as the mort-gagor, and could not invoke the provisions of the Exemption Ordinance to procure priority for his mortgage. Baker v. Gillum, 1 Sask. L. R. 498, 9 W. L. R. 436.

Homestead exemption - Sale of homestead under mortgage-Rights of prior execution creditors.]-Three quarters of a section of land were sold under a mortgage, and, after satisfying the mortgagee's claim, the balance was paid into Court. The title was subject, in addition to the first and second mortgages, to a number of executions and third and fourth mortgages. The mortgagor claimed one of the quarters sold as his homestead, and that the proceeds of the sale of such homestead were not available for the purpose of satisfying the executions, and the subsequent mortgagees contended that, as such moneys were not available for the purpose of satisfying the executions, they should be applied in payment of their respective mortgages: — Held, that, as the executions bound only the portions of the land not exempt, subject to incumbrances thereon, and it appearing that the amount realised for the portions not so exempt was not sufficient to satisfy the prior incumbrances, the money in Court must be held to be the proceeds of the homestead, and not available for the purposes of satisfying the executions .-- That the fact that the mortgagor would not benefit by the allowance of the exemption, inasmuch as the solucquent mortgagees would secure the whole sum, did not cause such fund to lose is character of an exemption, inasmuch as the execution debtor had a right to mortgage or otherwise dispose of his exemption so long as he did not convert it into property while would not be exempt.—Judgment in Purdy v. Colter, 5 W. L. R. 439, 6 Terr. L. R. 234, reversed. Purdy v. Colton, 1 Sask. L. II: 288, 7 W. L. R. 820.

Horse and cart — Trade or business [— The exemption from seizure of a horse and vehicle can be invoked only by a carter or one who uses the horse and vehicle to gain his living, and not by a carpenter, who is some times a contractor and sometimes a foreman, at the same time hiring out his horse and vehicle, St. Lambert Lumber Co. v. Lambert, 10 Que, P. R. 259.

Horse of a carter—Opposition afin ddistraire, C. P. 598, par. 8, p. 651.]—An opposition to the sciure of a horse by the defendant on the ground "that he is the agent of a company dealing in gas fixtures, that he installs the same and that the said horse is necessary to him to carry on his business," will be dismissed, the opposant being neither a carter nor a conchman Rousseau v. Nadeau (1960), 10 Q. P. R. 351.

Immovables exempt therefrom --Clause prohibiting science -- Judicial hypothece arising from registration of judments--Action to crase, --Clause prohibiing science in a deed of gift of an immovable property, although it cannot prevent sale of immovable, yet it is an obstacle to such property being charged with a judicial hypotheresulting from registration (with required notice) of judgment rendered against done. Hence, by an action directed against creditor who registered such judgment, done may have hypothec erased. Cf. Germain v. Rouseau, 37 Que, S. C. 189; Latour v. Latour (1900), 38 Que, S. C. 193.

Indian - Sections 99 to 102 of Indian Act - Property exigible under execution against Indian - Attaching Indian's milk against indian — Attaching the money.] — The primary debtor, who was an Indian, a member of the St. Regis hand of Indians, sent his milk out of his reserve to the factory of the garnishees. The garnishees were to manufacture the milk into cheese, sell the cheese, and after deducting charges of manufacture and sale, were to account to the Indian for the value of the milk. Primary creditor issued garnishing summons, attacking this milk money. Garnishees paid the money into Court, and primary debtor made application for payment out to him, claiming that the money was not exigible under execution :-Held, that the milk money in question liable to taxation, and therefore was not exigible under the Indian Act, s. 102. Action dismissed ; money to be paid over to primary debtor. Simkevitz v. Thompson (1910), 16 debtor. Simk. O. W. R. 865.

Therefore, the effects which garnish the table and diningroom of a boarding-house keeper are instruments used in the exercise of her meticr, and as such are exempt from seizure under execurion. Boily V, Guillot, 9 Que, P. R. 336.

Notice of sale — New proceedings.] — Where goods of the plaintiff were seized under execution, and she filed an opposition alleging that the notices of sale and the advertisements of the seizure were irregular, and that certain of the goods seized were exempt, the execution creditors were granted an order declaring the opposition maintained, and allowing him to proceed to sell the goods soited other than those claimed as exempt, upon giving new and regular notices of sale. Jean v. De Marchi, 2 Que. P. R. 442.

Notice to quit — Costs.]—When an execation debtor declares he has no goods and the execution creditor does not contest this statement, the execution debtor has an absolute right to a replevin by the execution creditor; this replevin sequivalent to a preemption against execution; the execution creditor must pay the costs of the motion to protect it from the execution debtor. Heari v., Beaucage (1909), 10 Que P. R. 409.

Opposition — Horse used in business.] The exemption from seizure under execution of a horse and harness, etc., can be invoked only by a carter or one who uses the horse to gain a living, and not by a butcher who keeps horses and uses them in his trade. Lecavailer V. Brunelle, 8 Que, P. R. 245.

Proceedure — Execution of judgments — Objects exempt from seizure — Alimentary allowance granted by the Courts — Damages allowed a father for the death of his son, his only support, and given by a Court of Justice in action for damages.]—An indemnity granted to a father for the death of his son whom he alleges had been his only support, and allowed by a Court in a suit for damages taken by the father against the party responsible for his son's death, partakes of the nature of "alimentary allowances granted by a Court," under the provisions of Art. 509, C. P., and are, therefore, exempt from seizure. Carriere v. Leroux (1909), 19 Que, K. E. 249, 11 Que, P. R. 158.

Property of Indians on reserve — Resistance.—Contempt of Court.]—By virtue of the Indian Act, 48 V. c. 43 (D.), and its amendments, the property and effects of Indians upon their Reserve are excempt from seizure under exceution. The word "property," used alone in a statutory provision, includes both movables and immovables without distinction. A rule nisi to commit for contempt the defendant, an Indian, who resisted the seizure of his goods, without committing an assault upon the bailift, was quashed. Brussière y, Bastien, 17 Que, S. C. 180.

Property subject to restraint on alignation — Gift — Insaisissabilité.] — Property which is the subject of a gift upon condition that the donee shall not alienate it is not exigible under execution or other process against the donee. Roberts v. Bergevin, 16 Que. K. B. 104.

Public officer—Salary — Garnishee process served on provincial treasurer—Exemption from seizure—Privileges of deputy-registrar, I—The salary of the deputy-registrar for the registration divisions of the counties of Hochelaga and Jacques cannot be garnished. He is as lucky in this respect as the registrar. Garand v. Mancotel, 6 E. L. R. 180.

Registration of attachment in mines office sufficient — Seizure by sheriff not essential—Unregistered equitable interest not an answer—Diligence a condition of setting aside proceedings. Bank of Montreal v. Wallace, 1 E. L. R. 228.

Sale of land by sheriff — Homestead exemption — Exemptions Ordinances — Dominion Lands Act—Land taken up by execution debtor and rented to stranger — Advertisement of sale — Publication — Sufficiency—Rule 364—Compliance with — Application to confirm sale—Initiality of proceedings—Land Titles Act—Transfer — Affidavit of subscribing witness taken by unauthorized person—Permission to reswear. Abell Engine & Machine Works Co. v. Scott (N.W.T., 6 W. L. R. 272.

Sciurce of crops grown on land transferred by excention debtor — Labour and means of transferce—Ouncrahip of crops—Interpleader.]—The sheriff seized trops grown on property of the claimant, son of the defendant. Part of the property of the defendant's homestead transferred to the claimant, and part was the property of the claimant, under authority from the wife and paid for the help, and paid for twine and harvesting. The defendant did a small amount of work on the farm:—Held, that the question of bong fides of the transfer from father to son did not materially affect the ownership of the crops; that on the evidence the claimant was entitled to the crops. —Kilbride v, Cameron, 17 C. P. 373, followed. Massey-Harris Co. v. Moore, 6 Terr. L. R. 75, 1 W. L. R. 215.

Tools and implements — Selection — Right of creditor to make.]—The privilege granted the debtor by Art. 598, C. C. P., paragraph 10, of selecting and wiltdrawing from solar e^{*} tools and implements and other chattels ordinarily used in his profession, art, or trade, to the value of $200," only exists while the debtor is carrying on his profession, art, or trade. When he has ceased to do so, his right to make a selection is at an end, and, therefore, his creditor can have no right, under Art. 1031, C. C., to make such selection. In any case the right of the creditor, under the last mentioned afride, is merely to bring back certain effects to the partimony of the debtor, for the benefit of his creditors generally, and cannot be exercised for the exclisive henefit of the creditor seeking to avail himself of the provisions of the article.

Tools of trade—Costs of opposition.]— A workman who demands the withdrawal from a seizure of his necessary tools, cannot claim costs against the execution creditor, because the bailing making the seizure cannot make the distinction between tools which the debtor may claim as exempt and his other tools. Cunningham v. Guilbault, 6 Que. P. R. 75.

Unregistered transfer before attachment, Clish v. Baltimore-Nova Scotia Mining Co., 1 E. L. R. 235.

4. For Costs.

Amount of debt — Addition of costs of former scrits.]—The costs incurred upon a writ of execution against the movable property of the debtor and upon a seizure by garnishment may be added to the costs of suit for the purpose of justifying the issuing of a writ against immovable property. Lamothe v. Wigney, 19 Que. 8. C. 201.

Conservatory attachment—Hotel property—Claim for commission on adle.] — A person claiming a commission on the sale of an hotel has no lien on the hotel property, or the purchase price of it; and a conservatory attachment based upon such a claim will be discharged. Benoit v. Brouillet, 9 Que. P. R. 352.

Declaration — Clerical error—Costs.]— It is not a ground for declaring a satisferevendication irregular that the plaintiff has not conformed to Arts. 900, 948, C. P., when the irregularity has been rectified, and was the result of a clerical error; but the costs upon an exception thereto should be borne by the plaintiff. Ruel v. Langlois, 3 Que. P. R. 132.

Fi fa. goods-Scizure under, by sheriff, after assignment by execution debtor for benefit of creditors and notice to sheriff Executions Act, s. 11 — Assignments Act, s. 8-Right to seize for costs of action and execution. Thordarson v. Jones, 9 W. L. R. 233.

Judge's order — Direction for set-off— Service of allocatur — Issue of execution — Production of order.]—Where a Judge's order requires the defendant to pay interlocutory costs to the plaintiffs, and the Judge makes an oral direction that costs previously awarded to the defendant should be set off pro fanto, the deduction should be made be fore execution issues on the Judge's order. It is not necessary to serve the certificate of taxation of the costs awarded by an order, where the party to pay has been represented upon the taxation and has notice of the amount payable. When the execution is issued upon a Judge's order, the order itself or an office copy should be produced to the officer issuing it; a mere copy is not sufficient, unless such officer is the one who has official custody of the book in which the order is entered. People's Building and Loan Assn. v. Stanley, 22 C. L. 7 410, 4 0. L. R. 644, 1 O. W. R. 399, 469, 572, 502, 2 0. W. R. 122.

Judgment for debt and costs—Payment of debt—Execution good for costs — Release — Seisure — Opposition — Payment.]—A debtor ordered by a judgment to pay a sum for debt and costs who sends by post to his creditor a cheque for the amount of the debt, is not freed from the costs. A seizure under execution of the debtors goods four days later, in the name of the creditor, is valid for the amount of the costs. A telegram from the creditor reading, "Have instructed solicitor to withdraw," is not a release of the costs, nor an engagement by him to pay them. Therefore, an opposition by the judgment debtor to the seizure, on the ground of payment, should be dismissed. Canada Wood Specialty Co. v. Henry, 33 Que. S. C. 140.

Motion for leave to appeal — Coart of Appeal-High Court.]—An application to a Judge of the Court of Appeal for leave to appeal from an order of a Division! Court having been dismissed with costs, the same were taxed and a certificate thereof issued, which, with the order of dismissal, was filed in the High Court, and a f. fa. to levy the amount of such costs placed in the sherifs' hands for execution:—Held, that the order directing payment of costs was properly made under ss. 77 and 119 of the O. J. Act; and that execution was properly issued out of the High Court, under Rule 3, by analogy to the procedure number Rule 31, by analogy to the procedure number Rule 31, by analogy to the grand Loan Association v. Stanley, 22 C. L. T. 309, 371, 4 O. L. R. 247, 377, 10 W. R. 309, 469, 572, 502, 20 W. R. 122.

Pending appeal to Privy Conneil— Security.]—In a case in which by special leave, an appeal has been allowed to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Conneil, excution may issue, pending such appeal, for the costs incurred in the Courts appealed from, without, for that purpose, sending the record back to the Court of first instance, when no security for the costs incurred in the Courts below has been given with the appeal to the Judicial Committee. Consoldated Car Heating Co. v. Came, 5 Que, P. R. 48.

Seizure by bailiff — Appointment of guardian — Cost of carctaking — Application by bailiff.]—When a bailiff, after the seizure of certain animals, has appointed a guardian to take care of them, he cannot afterwards apply for moneys necessary for the safekceping of these animals; he has no interest to justify this application. for his responsibility ceased when he appointed the guardian at the defendant's suggestion and without objection by the plaintiff. Boulanger V. Martineau, 9 One, P. R. 405.

Science for costs already paid-Bona fide mistake — Liability for damages. I-A seizure in execution made under a judgment, in good faith and without malice, in order to levy costs, which, unknown to the creditor, had been paid to his deceased solicitor, does not make him liable for the damages which may result from it to the debtor. Filiatrault v. Village of Coteau Landing, 35 Que. S. C. 205.

Affidavit — Person to make,]—An affidavit leading the issue of a conservatory attachment ought to be subscribed by one of the persons authorized to subscribe such an affidavit in case of an attachment before judgment. Marchand v. Globensky, 7 Que. P. R. 94.

Affidavit for writ — Wife of plaintif.] —A writ of attachment had been issued upon the fling, with the fint, of an affidavit of the wife (commune) of the plaintiff. Upon motion of the defendant to set aside the attachment, upon the ground that a wife in such position cannot testify on behalf of herhands in the issue of a writ of attachment is not evidence in the action, and may be made by such wife. Roberge v. Roberge, 3 Que. P. R. 403.

Attachment - Insufficient affidavit -Waiver — Appearance — Bond.] — An appli-cation to set aside an attachment. The affidavit simply alleged "that the said defendant company are absent or absconding from the province of Nova Scotia:"-Held. that it should have contained statements bringing the defendants within Order 47, Rule 1 or Rule 6.—The defendants appeared to the action, and gave a bond to relieve the property under Order 46, Rule 20.-Held, that that Rule would apply if the case had been brought within Order 47, Rule 6. -There was no waiver by appearing and putting in this bond. A party must not, after an irregularity committed by his opponent, take a step or do anything which will lead his opponent to suppose that no advantage will be taken of the irregularity, and to proceed to incur expense on that supposition. The bond was given under the pressure of the plaintiff's irregular process, and giving a bond is provided for by the Rule To require a person to remain in all cases. in prison until an order to hold to bail is set aside for irregularity is not the practice. and where property is solve the rule should be the same. The person has no feasible alternative, owing to the plaintiff's action. Matthews v. Metropolitan Contracting Co., Matthews v. M 20 C. L. T. 354.

Attachment — Motion to set aside—Absence from province — Costs.]—The defendant had gone to work as a servant in the State of Maine, leaving his family in Nova Scotia. A writ of attachment was issued against him as an absent or absconding debtor. Upon a motion to set it aside, he swore that he had "before been employed in the same business and in the same place." but he did not say when or how long, or that to go there at a certain season and return at another was his well-known and return at another was his well-known and return be had given a note to the plaintiffs and gone away without making any provision for it, and never communicated with the plaintiffs about it down to the time of the attachment: —Held, that the motion should be dismissed.

Attachment after judgment — Default taken by the defendant—C. C. P. 153, 678, 679.]—The defendant is one of the parties to an attachment after judgment which is really a writ of summons; as a consequence, if the writ is not returned, the defendant has a right to take a default against the plaintiff. Outnet v. Fleury & Dominion Park Co., 11 Que. Pt. R. 81.

Attachment before judgment — Affdavit — Requirements.]—A writ of attachment before judgment will be quashed if the affidavit does not diselose. (1) that the indebtedness is personal. (2) that the acts complained of were committed with the intent to defend the defendant's creditors in general and the plaintiff in particular. (3) that a demand of assignment was served upon the defendant, or that he refused to make such assignment—even if the affidavit sufficiently discloses the fact that the defendant is a trader. Gagnon v. Penicost Lumber Co., 10 Que. P. R. 29.

Attachment before judgment - Damages which are not liquidated-Mention on the back of the writ of the security given-Sufficiency of the allegations of the action -C. P. 904, 939.1-When an attachment before judgment is issued with the permis-sion of a Judge for non-liquidated damages, the amount of the security is fixed by law, and it is not necessary to mention it on the back of the writ.—The following allegations of an affidavit for the issue of a writ of attachment before judgment: — "I am credibly informed by a person worthy of belief and I really believe that the defendant is on the point of disposing of his property which he has sold to me and is transferring his lease of the house in which he is, to another person who has offered him a higher rental, the whole to my prejudice, and with the object of relieving himself of his obligations with respect to me." "I am credibly informed by a person worthy of belief and I really believe, because of what the de-fendant has himself said, that he has the intention, after selling his effects and goods and after transferring his rights in his lease, to leave the province, and I will be deprived of my recourse against him for the reasons above stated "-are insufficient, and an atallegations will be quashed on motion. Pa-quin v. Chalifoux, 11 Que. P. R. 129.

Attachment before judgment — Separation as to bed and board — Claim of uoife under marriage contract — Support— C. P. 933.]—A debt payable to his wife by a busband only at his denth, is eventual, future and uncertain and cannot form the basis of the affidavit required by Art. 933. C. P. to obtain the issue of a writ of attachment before judgment.—The right of the wife plaintiff in an action in separation, to recover for her support creates but a probable claim which is subject to future and uncertain conditions, and accordingly does not authorise her to cause the issue of the attachment before judgment until her claim has been judicially settled and liquidated. Graham v. Ireland, 11 Que. P. R. 185. Attachment in revendication — Perishable articles — Value — Res judicata C. C. 1241; C. P. 634.1—A judgment, in an attachment in revendication, ordering the defendant to return the things revendicated or pay their value is res judicata as to such value in a subsequent action taken to recover the difference between such sum and the price realised from the sale of the articles which were of a perishable nature. Ship v. Gurborg, 16 R. L. n. 8, 225.

Attachment proceedings - Temporary absence - Invalidity - Impeachment collaterally - Interest in estate - Interest in intervaly — Interval in ender — Interval in mortgage — Receiver — Equitable execu-tion — Priorities.]—The wife of the de-fendant by her will bequeathed to him onehalf of her interest in the estate of her father, to which she would be entitled on the death of her mother, C. A., who was the executrix of the will of the father. Subsequently the wife of the defendant died. mining company executed in favour of B. a mortgage to secure repayment of money advanced to the company, of which money the defendant personally advanced a con-siderable portion. The defendant, at a later date, being in financial difficulties, left the province suddenly, and proceedings against him were taken by several claimants, as an absent or absconding debtor, under O. 46, and C. A. and B. were summoned as agents. The plaintiff subsequently recovered judg-ment against the defendant, and obtained the appointment of a receiver by way of equitable execution:—Held, that as the defendant's absence was temporary and without intent to avoid legal process, he was not an absent or absconding debtor; (2) that the attachment proceedings were unjustifiable in law, and their validity could be impeached collaterally: (3) that the interest of the defendant in the estate of his wife's father and in the B. mortgage was not the subject of attachment, such interests not being included in any of the terms "goods," "cred-its," or "choses in action": (4) that the plaintiff was entitled to priority over the attaching creditors in respect to the interests in question. Hart v. Cunningham, 40 N. S.

Attachment proceedings against company—Appointment of receiver by for-eign Court — Property vested in receiver.] -The defendant company were incorporated in New Jersey, and never carried on busi-ness in Nova Scotia by themselves or any agent. Proceedings were taken by the plaintiffs at Halifax under O. 46 against the defendants as absent or absconding debtors to recover for goods supplied in Halifax. The day before these proceedings were commenced, an order was made by the Chancery Court of New Jersey against the defendant company in a suit brought in that Court against the company, which order appointed receivers of the defendant company with full power to take possession of all the property for the company :—Held, that by the property ings in the Court of New Jersey all the property of the company had become vested in the receivers, and could not thereafter be attached as the property of the company. Creditor collocated on moneys levied —Insolvency — Nub-opposition — Subcollocation.]—Hold, in review, affirming the disposition of the judgment in 23 Que. S. C. 45, but modifying the considerants that art. 824 of the Code of Procedure which authorises a creditor of a person who is entitled to be collocated or who is collocated, upon moneys levied, to file a sub-opposition. does not confer any privilege on such creditor. If the person primarily entitled to be collocated is insolvent, the amount of the bollocation must be distributed amount bis creditors, according to law. The service of a writ of attachment, attaching such moneys in the hands of the sheriff does not give the sub-opposant any special right thereto. Art. 1981 C. C. Marion V. Brien dit Deerochers, 23 Que. S. C. 52.

Disbursements — Scale of — Opposition —Costa—Scale of,]—When a writ of execution is issued from the Superior Court, the disbursements must be according to the amount for which the writ is issued, but if the amount is less than $100, then it is the tariff of the fourth class of the Superior Court which must be applied; but when the execution of such writ is opposed by way of opposition din diamatler, alleging parment, which is sustained with costs, the fees of the attraction of the amount claimed by the writ. On application to set aside the execution plaintiff stated that the judgment was satisfied but offered no corroborative proof.—Held, that notwithstanding any irregularity in service the execution should remain in force. Stone v. Goldstein, 9 W. L. R. 365. Appeal from above dismissed, the Court being equally divided. Ibid. 11 W. Le B. 551.

Expiry — Renewal — Limitations Act.] —An execution against an existing interest in lands ceases to be a lien thereon in ten years from the time of its delivery to the sherif, even though it has been duly renewed from time to time and kept in force continuously and sale proceedings cannot be taken under it after that time. Neil v. Almond, 29 O. R. 63, approved. Re Woodall, 24 C. L. T. 350, 8 O. L. R. 288, 4 O. W. R. 131.

Expiry - Renewal-Time-Amendment Seizure of lands.] - The Judicature Ordinance (No. 6 of 1803), s. 327, enacted: "Every writ of escution shall bear date the day of its issue, and shall remain in force for one year from its date (and no longer, if unexecuted, unless renewed), but such writ may, at any time before its expiration, and so on from time to time during the continuance of the renewed writ, be renewed by the party issuing it for one year from the date of such renewal," etc. This section was amended by Ordinance No. 5 of 1894, s. 12 (which came into effect 7th September, 1894), by substituting "two years" for "one year" in both instances :-Held, that the amendment could not be construed as reviving or enabling an execution to be revived which had expired before the amendment was passed, nor as continuing in force for two years an execution which had been renewed only for one year. The registration by the sheriff of a writ of execution against lands in the Land Titles Office under s. 94 of the Territories Real Property Act, as amended by s. 16 of 51 V. c. 20, cannot be construed as a seizure, and is not sufficient to continue the execution in force without renewal. An execution issued on the 20th Octo-tober, 1893, was renewed on the 20th Octo-An execution issued on the 20th Ocber, 1894 .- Held, that the renewal was made in time, and the execution continued in force. McDonald v. Dunlop (No. 2), 2 Terr. L. R. 228

Fi. fa. lands — Sale by sheriff—Action to set aside—Purchase by crecution creditor —Agreement for re-sale — Irregularities — Inadequacy of price — Sheriff — Negligence —Remedy. 1—A firm of solicitors, defendants in this action, recovered judgment against the plaintiff or §97, and placed in the hands of the sheriff a fi. fa. lands, under which the plaintiff sife estate in land said to be worth $3500 was sold, subject to certain charges, for $70, to one of the solicitors who had previously made an arrangement with their co-defendant wife of the plaintiff, to allow her the benefit of the purchase. In an action to set aside the sale or to declare the defendants trustees for the plaintiff:—Held, that the execution creditor had the right to purchase, and was not affected by any irregatlarities or omissions on the sheriff's part; nor could a sale under process of law be successfully attacked for mere inadequacy of price, unless, perhaps, it was so grave and extreme as to complet a conclusion of fraud or malversation.—Where the conveyance has been executed by the sheriff, the fact that the purchaser has entered into a binding agreement to sell at an advance to another, deed.—Semble, that the sheriff (since deceased) might have been guilty of negligence in disposing of the property; and, if there were evidence to support an action against his estate or his surcties, such an action would not be barred by this action. Mc-Nichol v. McPherson, 15 O. L. R. 393, 10 O. W. R. 844.

Guardian of goods seized—Removas of goods—Obligation to return.]—Where the person appointed guardian of goods seized under execution removes them, he must, if the seizure is annulled, bring them back to the domicil of the execution debtor. Adams v. Mulligan, 20 Que. S. C. 203, 4 Que. P. R. 60.

Guardian of property seized — Discharge — Lapse of time — Destruction of property seized.]—A judicial guardian is not discharged from his guardianship by the expiration of a year from the day of the seizure, and a rule will issue against him to make him produce the goods intrusted to him if he does not prove that they have been destroyed without fault on his part. Millar v. Gillespie, 5 Que, P. R. 376.

How may it be contested? — C, P, c, $b_{1}^{*}c_{1}$, — It is by an opposition to annul and not by petition to quash that defendant should seek to have an exception set aside. Frank y, Paillard, 11 Que, P. R. 221.

Interest in oil leases — Scizure by sheriff as goods — Construction of leases — Interest in lands — Profit à prendre.] — Interests in oil leases are interests in lands, and as such are not scizable as goods under execution, but must be sold as interests in lands. McIntosh V. Leckie, 13 O. L. R. 54, followed. Can. Railway Accident Co. v. Williams (1910), 16 O. W. R. 574, 21 O. L. R. 472, 1 O. W. N. 991.

Irregularity — Judgment — Amendment —Pracipe — Signature — Motion—Waiver. Carbonneau v. Letourneau, (Y.T.), 1 W. L. R. 273, 2 W. L. R. 113, 493.

Issue of writ — Irregularity — Waicer.; —Any irregularity in the issue of a writ of agicie-conservatore was waived by the defendant having before moving to quash the writ, made a motion to fix the amount of bail by the giving of which the property attached might be relieved from seizare under the writ. Beclanger V. Godbout, 3 Que. P. R. 107.

Judgment for part of sum claimed— Appeal to increase amount.)—A plaintif who has obtained judgment for less than the amount demanded, and appeals from that judgment to have the amount increased, cannot, in the meantime, obtain an execution in satisfaction of the judgment so rendered. Migneron v. Yon, 5 Que. P. R. 60.

Motion by defendant to set aside writ of attachment before appearance—Saskatchesean Rules 87, 47.1—Defendant C. sought to set aside a writ of attachment against personal property under above Rule 417:— Heid, that writ of attachment not a step in the cause, and that defendant could move before he entered an appearance to the summons. Saveyer-Massey Co. v. Carter, 9 W. L. R. 675.

Motion for a new statement of claim —Arrangement between the plaintiff and the third party.]—When a third party deposits a certain sum in Court, stating he deposits that sum in accordance with an arrangement made between the plaintiff and himself and plaintiff does not deny that arrangement, he can not force the third party to make a new statement; his only recourse is to join issue on the statement made by the third party. McNally v. Harcourt (1909), 10 Que, P. R. 434.

Motion for release — Solicitor moving refusing to disclose address of his clients— Extension of time for service of statement of claim.]—Defendants moved to have sherif give up possession of all goods, etc., in his possession. Time for service of statement of claim had been extended for six months. As defendant's solicitor refused to disclose their whereabouts or accept service for them, motion refused; notice to extend time for service of statement of claim to be given defendant's solicitor. Emperor of Russia v. Proskouriakoff, 10 W. L. R. 1. See 18 Man. L. R. 143, 9 W. L. R. 207, 42 S. C. R. 226.

Motion to issue execution.] — Where the enforcement of a lien of a judgment creditor against unsold lands involves questions of value and deductions by reason of partial releases, it must be made the subject of an action, and, where the proper parties are not before the Court, it cannot be accomplished on motion for leave to-issue execution. Re Bank of Liverpool, 6 E. L. R. 321; 43 N. S. R. 205.

Negotiable instruments — Debts secured by notes not attachable.] — Payment into Court by garnishee upon mere notice of the attachment without a Judge's order directing him to do so is not a bar to an action brought against him by his creditor; and money secured by bills of exchange or promissory notes is not attachable under attaching clauses of Common Law Procedure Act, 1873. Rankin v. McFadyen (1882), 2 P. E. I. R. 461.

Opposition to selaure — Dismisral — Execution of judgment of Court of Review— Time for.]—A motion for the dismissal of an opposition cannot be made before the original thereof is returned. 2. An opposition which raises the question whether a judgment of the Court of Review, in a summary matter, can be executed within eight days from the rendering therof, is not frivolous, and will not be dismissed on motion. Kavanagh v. Quinn, 5 Que. P. R. 166.

Opposition to science — Incatissabilité —Incentment of moneys bequeathed—Declarstion — Registration.]—A declaration of investment, stating that a purchase of properly has been made with moneys bequeathed to the purchaser on condition of invasissabilite, may be set up in opposition to a science of such property by a creditor of the purchaser, although the declaration was not registered until after the creditor's claim had accurd. Baird v. Morphy, 23 Que. S. C. 497.

Opposition to science — Security — Time for hypothecary creditor.—Hennell,—An hypothecary creditor, whose claim has been registered before the registration of a lense of the immovable hypothecated, may require from the tenant, who files an opposition to a science by such creditor, asking that the immovable may be sold subject to his lease, security that the immovable will be sold for a price sufficient to assure him the amount which is due to him (art, 729, C, P, C,). 2. He may require such security as soon as the opposition is filed and without admitting the ground of the opposition. Desaulhiers v. Peyette, 12 Que, K, B, 445.

Order of Court upon a party who was alleged to have suffered a considerable time to clapse without taking the prosecution of an appeal to shew cause why execution should not issue upon judgment given against him. Evans v. Congdon (1823), Wakeham's Nöd. Ca. 428.

Partial release of lands under execution.) — Where judgment debtor in his lifetime and his personal representatives after his death allenate portions of land found by a judgment, and the judgment creditor released a portion of the land sold, from any claim under the judgment, the full amount of the judgment cannot be enforced against owners of the unsold portions of the land, who are only liable to be called upon to jay pro rata according to the value of lands released. Re Bank of Liverpool (1908), 43 N. S. R. 205; C. E. L. R. 321.

Possession of goods affected by bailor's privilege - Disputing their declarations-Lack of proof of fraud-Conversion of the scizure into garnishee.] - A bailor who causes goods to be seized in his hands affected by his privilege as bailor and con-tests their declaration of "non indebiliate" for the reason that after their acquisition by sale from the execution creditor the latter was insolvent to his knowledge, is not permitted after the failure of his attempt 10 establish this fraud, to claim that the seizure having been attempted within the week he had possession of the goods was equivalent to a garnishee after which an order may be issued enjoining T. S. to re-deliver them of to pay the value thereof, especially when in exercising this resource the plaintiff acted as a personal creditor without relying on the pledge or the privilege he had as to the Bastien v. Richardson, 35 Que. S. effects. C. 481.

ortgage—Credicutions against ' a sheriff subi chattel mort-, on the goods seized, attach only on the equity of redemption, and are not entitled under the Creditors' Relief Ordinance, to share with executions placed in the hands of the sheriff prior to the giving of the mortgage. Reach v. McLachlan 19 A. R. 496, and Breithaupt v. Marr, 20 A. R. 689, followed. Howard v. High River Trading Co., 4 Terr. L. R. 109.

Provisional execution of a judgment —By whom can it be ordered?—C. C. P. 594, 596, 597.]—The provisional execution of a judgment, which does not order it, when an inscription in review or appeal has been taken, cannot be pronounced by the Court which delivered the judgment, inasmuch as the case has passed beyond its jurisdiction. Latour v. Gueeremont, 11 Que. P. N. 126.

Provisional execution of a judgment will be ordered, even during the long vacation, and notwithstanding an inscription in review, if the judgment is based upon a promissory note and defendant has not pleaded to the action. C. C. P. 594, 597. Gasthier v. Strachan, 11 Que. P. R. 51.

Reduction of amount of judgment -Return.]-A seizure made under a writ issued in execution of a judgment obtained ex parte for $500 damages ceased to be valid and binding as soon as this judgment is reformed upon opposition to judgment by a second judgment maintaining the opposition ; and the defendant-opposant is only bound under the seizure to the sum to which the judgment is reduced, in this case, $50. Such a seizure having become effete cannot be con-tinued upon the same writ for the latter sum ; and the defendant may dispose of the immovable so seized notwithstanding the seizure after the judgment maintaining the opposition. 2. A writ of execution which has been returned by the sheriff to the Court upon service of certificate of the filing of an opposition to the judgment cannot be withdrawn from the record of which it forms part in order to be sent to the sheriff with instructions to continue proceedings, without the authorization of the Court or a Judge. Demers v. Dufresne, 5 Que. P. R. 465.

Return by bailiff — Government daty.] —A bailiff who has made a sale of movables is bound to make a return of the writ and the proceedings had thereon, and at least the daty due to the government, and he cannot make the payment of the government daty by the party asking for the return, a condition precedent thereto. Dubue v. Duclos, 7 Que P. R. 168.

Return by shoriff nullae terrae — Same verit sent to another shoriff. I—When a writ of execution de terris has been addressed to the shoriff of a district, and he has reported that he has found no property in his district to seize, the prothonotary may address the same writ to the shoriff of another district where the defendant has property. Dillon v. Allantic and Lake Superior R. W. Co., 19 Que. S. C. 553, 5 Que. P. R. 68.

Rule nisi against a guardian — Does an opposition to judgment annul a verit of execution[†]—Removal of effects seized for the purpose of selling them—Option which should be allowed the guardian-Costs-C. P. 549. 657, 658.]-Proceedings taken on a writ of execution before an opposition is filed, remain valid if the opposition is eventually dismissed.—The guardian is not obliged to re-move the effects seized from the place they were in when they were seized, although the cost of so doing is tendered to him .- The guardian cannot be committed to prison if the rule nisi does not give him the option of paying the amount claimed by the seizing party or the value of the effects which cannot be found : the Court cannot amend the rule nisi by itself adding this option to it.— The guardian will not recover costs when he succeeds in having a rule nisi dismissed for a mere informality, if he does not offer to represent the missing effects in his contestation of the rule. Bailey v. Fortin & Sevigny, 11 Que. P. R. 167.

Rule to return — Bailiff — Residence —Description — Service, 1—A motion for a rule misi must be personally served on the opposite party. 2. The rule misi must contain, or it will be vold, the residence and description of the party against whom it is directed. 3. One who seeks to obtain an order against a bailiff charged with a writ of execution must prove that be has intrusted such writ to the bailiff. Massey-Harris Co. V. Plourde, 9 Que, P. R. 400.

Sciurce and sale — Opposition for payment — Bailiff's return — Default — Rule nisi, — A bailiff who has seized and sold a debtor's property both at his domieil and line of business, and has received an opposition for payment on the moneys levied at either of these places, must return into Court all the moneys levied at that place, and make a separate return of his proceedings at both places, in order that the Court may adjudicate; in default of his so doing, a rule may be issued against him. Lacrois v. Prouls, 5 Que, P. R. 309.

Seizure by way of security — Service —Return — Declaration.]—When a writ of saisie-gagerie is made returnable the second day after service, the declaration must be served at the same time as the writ. 2. When the service of the declaration is made at the office of the Court, there must be at least one clear day between the service and the return. Dupnis v. Mathicu, 5 Que. P. R. 414.

Sciurce for preservation of property —Declaration — Moncy in bank — Gaynishment — Exception to form.] — A writ of satistic-conservatoire must be accompanied by a declaration or contain a sufficient statement of the grounds of the demand. 2. If the articles to be seized are not in specie, but sums of money in the possession of a bank, the creditors must proceed by way of garnishment, and not by satistic-conservatoire. 3. A satistic-conservatoire with respect to sums of money, and not accompanied by a declaration, will be dismissed upon exception to the form. Letth v, Holl, 5 Que, P. R. 155.

Seizure of movable property-Chardian's charges-Salary agreed upon between guardian and bailif-Remedy against seizing party-Taxation of guardian's bill.) - The guardian appointed to a seizure of movable property, for a fixed remuneration agreed upon between him and the balliff who excented the writ, has a right of action against the scialar party to recover such remuneration. The seizing party cannot set up in defence that the guardian's fees were taxed at a lower figure, as the prothonotary could only tax such sum as was payable under the terms of the judgment and not the sum due under a special agreement. Forthis v. Simard (1910), 37 Que. S. C. 470.

Setting aside — Fraudulent intent — Non-disclosure — New evidence.] — The plaintiff's affidavit, upon which an order for attachment of goods was granted, stated that he had good reason to believe and did believe that the defendant had disposed of her real estate with intent to defraud her creditors. and that she was about to dispose of her personal property with the same intent, and personal property with the same intent, and was about to leave Manitoba as soon as the goods should be disposed of (giving the source of his information). The defendant, on motion to set aside the order, by affidavit denied having had the intention to leave Manitoba permanently, and gave reasons for leaving temporarily. In reply the plaintiff swore to a chattel mortgage on the defend-had disposed of her real estate raised no inference of fraud; the affidavit of the plaintiff in reply disclosed facts on which his belief of intent to defraud was properly grounded; but these facts, being within the plaintiff's but these facts, being writin the parallel knowledge at the time of the original appli-cation, should then have been disclosed. The fact of the plaintiff's holding security should also have been stated. Newton v. Bergman, 21 C. L. T. 485, 13 Man. L. R. 563.

Setting aside — Procedure—Grounds.] —A defendant cannot set aside, upon petition, a saisie-conservatoire, except by attacking it on affidavit or establishing that the goods seized are exempt from seizure; other grounds should be taken by pleading to the merits. Lefleur v. Beaudin, 3 Que. P. R. 442.

Sheriff.]—It is not necessary to serve the opposition upon the sheriff, it may be served upon the bailiff charged by the sheriff with the execution of the writ of seizure, the sheriff having the power to have writs addressed to him. Drajneille v. Sovoie & Drainville (1910), 11 Que P. R. 437.

Sheriff — Return — Reissue to another sheriff — Opposition — Sale of railway.]—If the sheriff to whom a writ of execution is addressed makes a return of wulla bona and nulla terea, the prothonotary has no right to address the same writ to the sheriff of another district, by making an addition in the margin.—2. An opposition to the sale of a portion of a railway seized under a writ of execution will not be dismisse! upon defence in law upon the ground that it is not formally alleged that the portion of the railway so seized does not constitute a section; that must be shewn by evidence. Atlantic and Lake Superior Riv. Co. v. Dillon, 5 Que. P. R. 191.

Substitutions — Inalienability.] — The institute has the use and enjoyment of the property until the substitution opens; as such, he has the right to take, and defend bimself against, all auits relating to the property substituted.—The leading of immovable property is an act of administration on the part of the institute.—In case of costs incurred by an institute in a suit respecting his administration of the property, the jactitate should hear the advances and disbursements, saving his recourse against the heirs. —A clause in a will creating a substitution whereby certain property is declared to be inalienable and exempt from seizure does not apply to the costs incurred by an institute respecting the leasing of the substituted proerty. C. C. 947, 953. Decaudicrs v. Drpaine & Belcourt & Archer, 16 R. L. N. 8, 130.

Summary inquiries in aid of — Ascertainment of interest of execution debtor under will—Mortgage. Hill v. Rogers, 2 O. W. R. 979.

Usufruct of fund — Withdrawal from bank.]-The fact that a person having the usufruct of a fund has withdrawn from the hank a sum of money part of the usufract does not give occasion for a conservatory aitachment against him. Marchant v. Glubensky, 7 Que. P. R. 208.

Volunteer Bounty Act—Land warranty or scrip — Attachment — Agreement for transfer—Invalidity.]—A South African hand warrant or scrip issued under the Volunteer Bounty Act, 7 & 8 Edw. VII. c. 67 (D.). entitling the holder to select a certain amount of land, is in the nature of a document of title to land, and, like a deed, is not seizable under execution or attachment. The Act does not contemplate trafficking in scrip, and expressly provides for one transfer only of the scrip or the rights under it, to one who shall perform the homestead duties; and an agreement by the defendant, the veteran entitled to the land under the scrip, to sell it to the plaintiff, not being a transaction permitted by the Act, was void. Inter-Ocean Real Estate Co, v. White (1910), 15 W. L R. 551, Man. L, R.

Writ of attachment — Application to set aside—Writ obtained upon false affidevita—No appearance by applicant — Locus standi—Step in the cause—Proceeding incidental to the cause.—Proceeding incidental to the cause.—Defendant moved to set aside a writ of attachment on the ground that it had been obtained on affidavits which were false. No appearance had been entered by the defendant, and it was objected that until an appearance had been entered be has no locus standi.—Held, that the issue of a writ of attachment is not a step in the cause, but is entirely incidental thereto, and a metion may be made to set it aside on the ground of irregularity before appearance. Saweyer-Massey V. Carter (1900), 2 Sask. L. R. 148, 9 W. L. R. 675.

Writ of possession — Breaking house with violence—Conservatory seizure] — An action of conservatory seizure is subject to the same rules and delays as summary matters and attachments before judgment; Aris, 956, 939, 922, C. Court." without fixing any delay for the delivery of the effects, is not executory until after the lapse of eight days from its date, and a writ of possession issued before the expiration of that time, without service of the judgment, and without a further order of the Court, is premature and illegal.—3. If the debtor be absent, or if there be no one to open the doors of the house, the seizing officer must draw up a minute of the fact, and obtain judicial authority to use all necessary force, but only in the presence of two witnesses.—4. It is a breaking in for an officer, by a false prefence, to procure a person within the house to open the door, and then, without permission to rush in with violence. He must notify the immates of his business and demand admittance. Kaufman v. Campean, 19 Que. S. C. 479

6. SEIZURE.

Account book — Assignment of debts.] —A ledger or account book containing a list of debts which have been assigned in writing, and which are described in the writing as "all the debts in a certain ledger marked A." is a mere incident to the debts, and is no longer a chattel as it was before the entries were made in it. It is, therefore, not seizable in excention against judgment debtor, the former owner of the debts, as against the person to whom they have been so assigned by him. Corticelli Silk Co. v. Balfour, 5 Terr. L. R. 385.

Action against sheriff for trespass.] —Action for damages for trespass. The defendant bailiff in making a seizure under an exceution broke open a store door, the plaintiff residing over the store, both being under one roof:—Held, that breaking open the door was unlawful, and small damages allowed. Some of the property seized was the plaintiff s, the remainder was liable to the execution. The plaintiff gave the sheriff a written statement of what he chimed. As plaintiff put in no claim to the remainder to the sheriff he cannot now claim damages for the unlawful seizure of it:—Held, further, that there was no unreasonable delay in selling and that a fair price was obtained. Hudson v. Fitcher, 12 W. L. R. 15.

Amendment—4.fidavit — Provisions of statute, J—Article 647, C. P., does not prevent the amendment of an opposition to a selaure, but mergy requires that such amendment shall be accompanied by a deposition on oath affirming that the facts alleged therein are true. 2. An affidavit is not required in support of an amendment which merely alleges a provision of a public statute, of which the Courts are bound to take notice without its being pleaded—in this case, the charter of the city of Montreal, Learoque V. City of Montreal, 5 Que, P. R. 34.

Amendment — Title — Costs.] — On motion to reject an opposition, and on motion by the opposant to amend :—Held, that a delay will be granted to the opposant to amend her opposition by setting up her title and the date thereof, upon her paying costs of both motions au préalable, and that in defuelt by her of so doing within such delay, the opposition will stand dismissed. Senecal V. Chappell, 5 Que. P. R. 72.

Attachment before judgment — Aff-davit-Sufficiency, j — The following statement in an athidavit: "That the said (defendant) said and declared to this deponent that he was going to sell everything and decamp from the country in order not to pay him (deponent); and the said deponent is, besides, credibly informed and believes that the said (defendant) is concealing and selling and is about to conceal and sell his property with the intention of defraading his creditors, and particularly the said deponent, and the sources of my information are that one B., a milkman, affirms that the said (defendant) said and declared to him that he would sell all his property in order not to pay the deponent his said debt''-Held, sufficient, and that a saie-arret before judgment containing this allegation should not be quashed upon petition. Lefebere v. Rochon, 5 Que, P. R. 443.

Attachment before judgment — Defendants about to leave Province—Amount of claim only disputed. —An attachment before judgment may be issued when the defendant, a foreigner, intends to depart with all bits effects without paying the plaintif's claim, of which he disputes the amount only. Lemieux v. Le Cirque Sells and Dovens, 7 Que. P. At. 273.

Attachment before judgment — Petition to quash — Delay to present it—C. P. 922, 945.]—A petition to quash a seizure before judgment en mains tierces founded on the faisity of the allegations of secretion, need not necessarily be made within the delays to plead. Hardy v. McConnell (1909), 10 Que. P. R. 382.

Attachment before judgment — Sale of movables—Reade—Offer to concel—Husband and wife—Authorization of wife.]—An attachment before judgment will not lie for the balance due on a sule of movables, because the defendant had resold these effects to a third party, if said resule was cancelled long before the taking of the writ of attachment, if the defendant has offered to cancel the purchase and to restore the effects to the plaintiff, and if the plaintiff, who is separated as to bed and board from her husband, has not been authorised for the purposes of said sale. Tetreault v. Bazinet, 9 Que. P. R. 295.

Bailiff's return — Exemptions — Controcerting return—Res judicata.]—A defendant can, without inscribing en jaux against the report of a bailiff seizing the defendant's goods, declaring that he has left to such defendant all the goods which he had the right to keep, prove that the bailiff has not left them. 2. A judgment declaring a satisfegagerie good and valid, and ordering the sale of the property seized, constitutes res judicata upon an opposition din d'annuter founded upon defects or irregularities in the seizure. Adams v. Mulligan, 20 Que. S. C. 251.

Bank notes — Property passing.] — A superannuated civil servant had presented his superannuation certificate at the wicket of a bank, which paid superannuation allowances for the Dominion Government. The teller counted out the amount coming to him, and placed the money on the edge of the teller's wicket. Before the payee had touched it, the money was seized by a sheriff's bailiff under an execution against the payee --Held, that the property in the meney had passed to the payee as soon as it had been placed upon the ledge, and that the execution creditor was entitled to it. Holl v. Hatch, Bank of Montreal v. Hatch, 22 C. L. T. 58, 3 O. L. R. 147.

Barge — "Stray" — Hull of vessel.] — The seizure of a barge under the description of "stray" is of the disabled shell without rigging. Boursier v. Bergevin, 34 Que. S. C. 97.

Boat — Lien.]—Interplender issue as to ownership of goods. There was a verbal agreement at time of sale of boat that title should remain in vendors until purchase price paid. On default vendors until purchase price -Held, latter sale valid. The Statute of Frauds does not apply. The Conditional Sales Act is not for benefit of creditors. Debotrs of plaintiffs gave to them a chattel mortgage on 39-100 andivided interest in heir property. This chattel mortgage was not filed.—Held, invalid. Bank of Hamilton v. Mercyn (1009), 14 O. W. R. 132.

Book debts — Attachment of debts. Jobin-Marrin Co. v. Betts (N.W.T.), 1 W. L. R. 369.

Buildings on land — Erection by purchaser à réméré—Seizure and sale.]—Buildings placed upon land by a purchaser à réméré may be seized and sold separately from the soil. 2. A purchaser à réméré has no status to restrain the sale, as against him, of buildings placed upon the land of his vendor. Quare, whether such a scizure is of movables or inmovables. Lafontaine v. Bélanger, 6 Que. P. R. 338.

Claim by assignce of chattel mortgage and Hen note given by vendors of execution debtors — Extinguishment of claim-Interpleader — Equitable interest — Subrogation-Renewal of chattel mortgage. Green v. Cornell, 3 O. W. R. 872.

Claim by transferce — Possession.] — An opposition to a sale of movable effects, made by a third person, who has lent money to the debtor and has had transferred to him the effects soized as security for the loan, but has let them in possession of the debtor, will be dismissed upon motion as frivolous, Pharend v. Emond, 5 Que. P. R. 29.

Conservatory attachment — Contestation—Assignment for creditors.]—The plaintiff issue a writ of conservatory attachment against the defendant. After the execution of the writ, the defendant made an abandomment of her property, and a provisional guardian was appointed to her estate. The defendant contested the conservatory attachment by an exception to the form :—Held, that after the abandomment the defendant ceased to have any interest in prosecuting the exception to the form. Lodoux v. Simpson, 4 Que. P. R. 57.

Conservatory attachment — Ordinary creditor—Lien—Master and servant — Claim for wcrong/ul dismissal—Clerk in store—Affidavit.]—A saisie-conservatoire can issue only at the suit of one who claims a right of property in or a special lien upon movable effects, and not at the suit of an ordinary creditor who has only the general lion resulting from Arts. 1980 and 1981. 2. A clerk has not, under Arts. 1984 and 2006, a lion upon the merchandise in the shop where he serves to secure the payment of damages for wrongful dismissaid. 3. Such a claim being one for unliquidated damages, the affidavit made in order to obtain the writ of satis-conservatoire should state the nature and the amount of damages claimed and the facts giving rise to the claim, and should be submitted to the Judge, without whose order the writ cannot be issued. Poirier v. Grastein, 19 Que, S. C. 182, 3 Que, P. R. 487.

Conservatory attachment — Sale of goods—Refusal to deliver.]—The purchaser who has not yet received the goods sold to him, and on account of which he paid certain sums, cannot seize, by way of conservatory attachment, goods of the same nature and quality, owned by the defendant, and which the plaintif alleges to be the defendant's only asset. 2. Conservatory attachment can only issue in virtue of an express provision of law. Popin v. Long, 4 Que, P. R. 140.

Contestation — Notice of—Time,]—It is not until after the return of the original opposition, that the notice of contestation prescribed by Art. 650, C. P., can be given. Gravet v. Tétrault, 3 Que. P. R. 176.

Contestation — Notice of — Time — Original opposition.]—It is not until after the production of the original of the opposition that the opposant can give notice of contesting; and an inserption for judgment az parte, effected within the usual time after the production of a copy of the opposition, but less than twelve days after that of the original, will be struck out on motion. Lindman v. Paradis, 2 Que. P. R. 477.

Costs - Taxation - Notice-Particulars Several defendants --- Contestation by one only—Apportionment of costs.]—Pursuant to Art. 554, C. P., costs incurred in the Circuit Court must be taxed upon notice to the opposite party before an execution issues. 2. Where, upon a bill of costs, taxed, but not on notice to the opposite party, execution issued for a larger amount than was really due, an opposition demanding the annulment of the seizure for the whole amount, without mentioning the items of the bill of costs objected to, will not be allowed; but the oppositions or surcharge, notwithstanding that that is equivalent to a revision of the bill of costs; and if he succeeds in establishing that the amount of the writ of execution is larger than the amount due, the opposition will be allowed for the difference between these amounts, but without costs, seeing that both parties are in fault. 3. By virtue of item 37 of the Circuit Court tariff, or item 19 of the Superior Court tariff, when there are two defendants appearing by different attor-neys, and one of the two files a plea, the attorney of the plaintiffs, if he succeeds in obtaining judgment upon every issue, will be entitled to the full amount of his costs against the defendant who contested the action, and to half the costs against the one who did not contest. Descormiers v. Hyland, 5 Que. P. R. 112.

Seizure by cre--Abandonment -Interpleader -- Onus -- Estoppel-Sale of Goods Act.]--Under ss. 82 and 83 of the County Courts Act, R. S. M. 1902 c. 38, be-fore the amendment of 1904, a seizure under execution made by the execution creditor himself was not unlawful or invalid. Where wood piles were seized under execution, and notices of the seizure attached to the different piles, and a person living near asked by the bailiff to look after them, and a week or two later placed by the bailiff in charge, it was held, that there was no abandonment. Per Dubuc, J .- The property in the wood never passed to the claimant, notwithstanding conpassed to the channel, how when the first of the cause it thad not been measured: Rule 3 of s. 20, Sale of Goods Act, R. S. M. 1902, c. 152. The plaintiff was not estopped from enforcing his execution by the fact that he had attached any money that might be due from the claimant to the judgment debtor on a sale of the wood. Per Perdue, J .-- Under s. 20 of the Act it was not open to the claimant, on the trial of the interpleader issue, to raise any objection to the validity of the seizure or as to its abandonment. The question was whether the goods seized were the property of the claimant as against the execution creditor, and the onus was on the claimant to tor, and the onus was on the chainant to prove his ownership. The claimant failed because the provisions of the Bills of Sale Act had not been complied with. Richards, J., dissented. Hustable v. Conn, 24 C. L. T. 245, 14 Man. L. R. 713.

Grops — Lease given as security—Validity of lease—Saskatchevan Bills of Sale Ordinancc.]—Lease for a term of one year given as security does not come within above ordinance. Before seizure at instance of defendants, execution creditors, the plaintif had threshed the grain on premises mentioned In said lease and were removing same when seizure made. Order made for sale of grain, proceeds to be paid into Court. Reference to ascertain amount due plaintiffs, whose claim must be first paid out of proceeds. Massey-Harris Co. v. Marchand (Sask.), 10 W. L. R. 62.

Crops on land transferred by execution debtor — Labour and means of transferee—Ownership of crops — Interpleader, Massey-Harris Co. v. Moore (N.W.T.), 1 W. L. R. 215.

Customer's goods — Opposition by depositary.)—The defendant, a tanner, had in his possession a large number of skins which he had received from customers to be tanned. These were seized under a writ of f. fa. goods Issued against the defendant — Held, that the defendant was entitled to maintain an opposition d fin d'annuler; the seizure being void because the tanner held the skins à titre de dépositoire. Latouche v. Leclerc, 17 Que. S. C. 181.

Disavowal — Diligence.]—One who disavows after judgment, and does not proceed with diligence to have his disavowal declared valid, cannot oppose the execution of the judgment, and the opposition, in these circumstances, will be dismissed on motion. Sylcentre v. Struthers, 3 Que. P. R. 146.

Dismissal — Examination of opposant.] —The Court may, upon a motion for the examination of the party opposing a seizure and for the dismissal of the opposition after such examination, order the examination of the opposant, saving the right to pronounce afterwards upon the part of the motion relating to the dismissal of the opposition. It is not necessary for the applicant to allege in his notice of motion that the opposition is untenable on its face. Dupuis v. Beaudry, 4 Que. P. K. 416.

Distribution — Contestation.]—The opposition of a third party cannot hinder a distribution of the moneys realized, and the rights and privileges of the parties will be determined by the scheme of distribution unless it is contested, contestation being the remedy of the third party. *Turgeon v. Shan*non, 4 Que P. R. 156.

Exception — Time for filing — Affi-davit—Commissioner—Claim of exemption— Quardian to scizure—Solvency.]—A plaintiff who wishes to make an exception to the form of an opposition made to a seizure has, under Art. 650, C. P., 12 days from the service of the notice required by this Article within which to file such exception .- An opposition to a seizure will not be set aside as irregular because the commissioner who took the affidavit signed it "L. P. Dupré, C. C. S. D. for the district of Montreal." — An opposition made by the defendant, based upon paragraphs 1 and 8 of Art. 598, C. P., which does not allege that the bailiff making the seizure not allege that the ballit making the servare has not left the defondant firing and food sufficient for himself and family for three months, and that he has not left hay and other folder necessary for animals which by paragraph 8 of such Article are declared not is be available but which alleges only that to be seizable, but which alleges only that these goods are of the class which ought to these goods are of the class which ought to be left to the defendant, at his option, in virtue of such paragraph, will be set aside, under Art. 651, C. P., as being made with the object of unjustly delaying the sale, pro-vided that the person making the opposition does not allege damages.—The fact that the bailiff seizing has not stated in his report that he has required the defendant to furnish a solvent surety before naming a guardian, is not a reason for nullifying the seizure, if the defendant does not complain that the bailiff has refused to accept a solvent guar-dian. Lachance v. Lachance, 3 Que. P. R. 282

F1 fa. goods — Seisure under, by sheriff, after asignment by accution ablor for benefit of creditors—Execution ablor for benefit of creditors—Executions Act, s. 11—Assignments Act, s. S. — Costs of action and creditor for his costs given by s. 11 of the Executions Act, R. S. M. 1902 c. 58, when the writ of fieri forcia is placed in the sheriff, and the assignments Act, R. S. M. 1902 c. S. When the writ of fieri forcia is placed in the sheriff, and the assignment of the set of the contrary, such lien is expressly recognised in both ss. S and 9 of the Act,—The assignee, therefore, has no right to demand possesion of property seled by the sheriff, without part to him of his own and the execution creditors costs. Glurad v. Milligan, 28 O. R. (265, and Ryan v. Clarkson, 17 S. C. R. 251, followed. Thordarson v. Jones, 18 Man. L. R. 223, 9 W. L. R. 223.

Fi. fa. goods in sheriff's hands — County Court execution—Interpleader—Application of proceeds of sale by balliff.)—Under a County Court execution the bailiff seized an automobile, and was proceeding to sell it, when the sheriff notified him that he held prior writs against the defendant, and told the bailiff that he would allow him to go on and sell, if he afterwards paid the money to the sheriff. Upon an interpleader issue in the County Court between the plaintiff and sheriff:—Held, that the bailiff, in making the sale, was really acting for the sheriff who thereupon became entitled to the proceeds in the same manner as if he had seized. Maw v. Moaram, 18 Man. L. R. 412, 9 W. L. R. 705.

Fi. fa. lands - Payment by subsequent purchaser-Satisfaction-Other executions purchaser—Satisfaction—Other executions Creditors' Relief Ordinance — Sheriff — Ab-sence of "levy"—Money not made out of property of debtor.]—On the 11th March, 1909, the registered owners of land mortgaged it to the plaintiffs, and the plaintiffs, desiring to have their mortgage a desiring to have their mortgage a first in-cumbrance, tendered to the sheriff of the district in which the land lay the amount of an execution by E. against the goods and lands of L. placed in the sheriff's hands in December, 1907, when L. was the registered owner of the land. The sheriff refused to accept the money and certify that the execution, as against the land mortgaged to the plaintiffs, was satisfied, for the reason that there were then in his hands two other executions against the goods of L. and one other execution against the lands of L., the latter having come to the sheriff's hands after the land had been transferred by L., and that, if he received the amount of the execution, he would be obliged, under the Creditors' Relief Ordinance, to distribute the money pro rata among all the execution creditors, and none of them would be paid in full:-Held, that the amount tendered by the plaintiffs, if accepted by the sheriff, could not be said to be moneys "levied" by the sheriff under the execution, nor money made out of the property of the execution debtor. Without a seizure there can be no levy. And the sections of the Creditors' Relief Ordinance which require moneys levied upon an execution against the property of the debtor to be distributed pro rata among the creditors would not apply. As to the executions sub-sequent to the transfer of the land by L., they could only affect such interest as he had in the land at the time they were delivered. The sheriff, not having made a levy, was at liberty to receive the money and apply it in satisfaction of the E. execution. Trust and Loan Co. v. Cook (1910), 15 W. L. R. 727.

Filing documents — Deposition—Serrice—Stay of sale.]—The failure to file, with an opposition, the documents alleged in it, is not a ground for dismissing it upon a simple motion, in accordance with Art. 651, C. P.; and Rule 62 of the Rules of Practice is not imperative. 2. The sheriff is bound to receive an opposition accompanied by a deposition such as is mentioned in Arts. 647 and 727, C. P., and the service of such opposition stays the sale, pursuant to Art. 720, C. P. Morinville V. Basil, 18 Que. S. C. 397.

 declaration has directed the sale of these goods, pursuant to Art 695, C. P. C., it is not necessary that a writ of execution should be issued to authorise their seizure and sale... In spite of the fact that the donor or testator has stipulated that articles given or bequenthed shall not be seized upon any secount whatever, such articles may be seized for an alimentary debt. Préfontaine y. Valois, 16 Que, S. C. 613.

Goods of stranger — Right of reventication.]—The owner of effects seized under a writ of saisie-arrêt before judgment, as be longing to a third person, has the right to recover them by means of a saisie-revendioation in the hands of the first execution creditor or of the balliff or guardian to the seizure. Corriveau v. Boright, 6 Que. P. R. 133.

Grain — Bona fide sale — Actual and continued change of possession.]—Claimant sold certain property to G, to be paid for by the delivery at elevator of 1907 crops and one-half of each year's crops till purchase price paid. Subsequently it was agreed that claimant should get all of 1908 crop delivered at elevator. G, was to have possession of property.—Held, that crop did not pass until actual delivery or the execution craditor entitled to crop under execution. Re Godkin, 9 W, L. R. 430.

Grain — Claim by purchaser — Sale for valuable consideration—Absence of notice or knowledge of execution—Actual and continued change of possession—What amounts to. McCormick v. Anderson, Beach v. Anderson (N.W.T.), 5 W. L. R. 76.

Guardian — Discharge—Sale,]—A guardian appointed to a seizure under execution is discharged as soon as he has handed over the effects seized to the bailiff charged with the sale of them, and if the latter does not sell them all, the guardian is not responsible for those which are not sold. *Gingras v. Par*ent, 25 Que, S. C. 271.

Guardian - Duties of-Delivery of goods -Discharge-Mistake - Costs.] - A voluntary guardian, upon an attachment of goods claimed pending litigation of claim, is in the wrong if he does not notify the execution creditor that the goods intrusted to him are upon the point of being sold at the instance of another creditor; and his omission to do so may expose him to an action for damages. but not to arrest.—2. The service upon the guardian of a copy of a judgment declaring the plaintiff the owner of goods which have been seized is not sufficient to put the defendants and the guardian in default for not delivering the goods; it is necessary, in addition, to send to the defendant's abode an officer authorised to take delivery of the goods .-- 3 The guardian is in law discharged after one year reckoned from his nomination, the ordinance of 1657 (tit. 19, Art. 22) being still in force in this country.-4. If the guardian In force in this country.—, if the galaxies makes a mistake, and the applicant for the rule has proceeded irregularly upon that, the rule will be dismissed without costs. Guardian — Several execution creditors —Different guardian — Rights of.] — The second execution creditor seizing is not obliged to name the same guardian as in the case where the debtor has been dispossessed of the goods seized. 2. The two guardians named at the time of different seizures, who have allowed the debtor to remain in possession of the goods seized, may each or either take them from him at any time before the sale. 3. If the two guardians wish to have possession of the goods seized, the Court, upon petitor, will determine their respective rights, awarding, however, possession, in default of sufficient reasons against his demand, to the guardian mamed in the cause in which the sale of the goods sized should first take place. Conture v. McManamy, 24 Que. S. C. 356.

Guardian — Volunteer.] — The voluntary guardian in respect of a seizure of goods has no status to oppose the seizure and sale of these goods in another cause in which he has not been appointed guardian. Joly v, Youwie, 3 Que. P. R. 190.

Hull of ship - Conditional sale - Price ruiti of antp — Conditional sale — Price payable before delivery — Title to goods— Rescission of sale—Attachment—Possession by judgment debtor—Ownership—Procedure by bailiff-Guardian to second seizure-Sale super non domino et non possedente - Adjudication upon invalid seizure.]-The hull of a steamer sunk in a canal had been attached under judicial process, and, while standing on the bank at a distance from which he could not see or touch the materials, a bailiff assumed to make a second seizure, gave no notice of his proceedings to those on board the hull, and appointed a guardian other than the one placed in charge of the hull at the time of the first seizure. The execution debt-or, named in the second writ, had made a bargain for the purchase of the hull, subject to the price being paid before delivery, but had not paid the price, nor had the property been delivered into his possession. Subse-quently the bailiff adjudicated the hull to the appellant by judicial sale at auction :--Held, that there had been no valid seizure under the second writ; that the purchaser acquired no title to the property by the adjudication, and the sale to him should be rescinded ; that, under the circumstances, there could be no application of the maxim "en fait de meubles possession vaut filtre," and that the maxim "main de justice ne dessaisit pas" must be taken subject to the qualification that a seizure under judicial process places the goods seized beyond the control of an execution Connecticut and Passumpsic Rivers debtor. Railroad Co. v. Morris, 14 S. C. R. 319, dis-tinguished. Judgments in 32 Que, S. C. 142 and 17 Que, K. B. 193 affirmed. Brook v. Booker, 41 S. C. R. 331, 6 E. L. R. 435.

Inoperative assignment — Sale of lands.]—Held, affirming the decision in 13 Que. S. C. 125, that an assignment of effects, incomplete in that it does not contain a sworn c.c.L.—57 list of creditors and that it has not been followed by the requisite notices, cannot be set up by way of opposition to a scizure of the property of the detor.—2. The modes of execution which the Code of Procedure (old text) prescribes as to reality included in an assignment of property do not exclude the ordinary remedy which a creditor has by virtue of his judgment of proceeding by writ against lands to the scizure and sale of the real estate of his debtor. St. Jorre v. Morin, 10 L. N. 14, approved. Birks v. Levie, 8 Que, Q. B. 517.

Insuription — Filing of contract.] — A person who makes an opposition to a seizure based upon a marriage contract, cannot set the opposition down for judgment without filing the contract, and if he does so, the inscription will be set aside on motion. Ward v. McGarry, 3 Que. P. R. 380.

Interest of partner in grain — Possession. Clemens v. Bartlett, 1 O. W. R. 342.

Irregularity — Residence — Waiver — Appeal—Delay — Motion to dismise opposition.]—A defendant cannot set up, as a ground for setting aside a seizure, an erroneous description of his domicil, if it is described in the writ of execution and the procéa-cerola is it is in the writ of summons, and he has not objected to the irregularity during the time allowed for delivering an exception à la forme (Art. 176, C. P.)—2. The setting down of an appeal from a judgment after the time allowed therefor cannot delay the execution of such judgment.—3. An opposition based upon these facts will be dismissed on motion. Atkinaon v. Ryan, 3 Que, P. R. 94: 18 Que, S. C. 427.

Irregularity — Status of claimant to attack.]—The claimant of goods seized cannot attack the seizure for irregularity. Germain v. Lamoureux, 16 Que. S. C. 404.

Joint opposition.]--Two or more persons, each one of whom is sole owner of one of the articles seized, cannot, by a joint opposition, each claim the article which belongs to bim, especially if their titles are not of the same nature. Hill v. Howley, 20 Que. S. C. 200, 4 Que. P. R. 176, 353.

Joint seizure — Grounds of opposition —Fricolity.] — The Court will dismiss as frivolous, on motion, an opposition of fin d'annuler made by joint defendants on the following grounds:—I. That a requéte cirile is pending to annul the judgment, no order to suspend proceedings having been given by the Judge.—2. That the seizure is made upon defendants jointly without stating which owned the effects asized, the seizure being made in the joint domicil of the defendants. —3. That the notices of sale are irregular, no detail of such irregularity being given. Naah v. Honam, 2 Que. P. R. 452.

Landlord's privilege -Sele and lease.] --When goods are under seizure, the execution debtor cannot, by selling these goods, with the land on which they are, to a third person, and by taking from this third person a lease of such land and the goods seized, confer upon the third person a landlord's privilege capable of being set up as against the execution creditor, upon distribution of the moneys arising from the sale of these goods, made at the suit of another creditor. Dageneis v. Honan, 17 Que. S. C. 478.

Lessor of goods seized, j--A tuird party, the lessor of the goods seized, who has reserved to himself the right to re-take them if the lessee should not pay the instalments regularly, may exercise such right by way of opposition to the seizure of the goods by a creditor of the lessee. Farand v. Emond, 5 Que, P. R. 58.

License under Liquor License Act.] --See Walsh v. Walper, 22 C. L. T. 49, 3 O. L. R. 158.

Machinery—Annexation to freehold — Trade factures—Fi. fa. de bonis—Sale.]—The licensees of a mining arear in Nova Scotia erected a stamp mile on wild lands of the Crown, for the purpose of testing ores. All the various parts of the mill were placed temporarily in position, either resting by their own weight on the soil or steadied by bolts, and the whole installation could be removed without injury to the freehold:—Held, that the mill was a chattel, or at any rate a trade future, removable by the licenses during the tenure of their lease or license, and, consequently, it was subject to seizure and sale under an execution against goods. Judgment in 36 N. S. Reps. 335, affirmed, but for different reasons. License Falls Gold Mining Co. v. Bishop, 25 C. L. T. 78, 35 S. C. R. 539.

Motion to dismiss opposition — Grounds.]—A plaintiff cannot, by a motion made under the provisions of Art. 651, C. P., demand the dismissel of an opposition because it is made after the delivery of a former opposition which has been dismissed, and at a time when all the notices following upon the seizure have been given, and without the authorization of a Judge, and because it does not invoke grounds subsequent to the proceedings which have caused the suspension of the sale in the first place: such grounds having only the force of an exception a 14 forme to the opposition; and Art. 651 applying only when it appears by the opposition itself, or by the proceedings on the record, that it is made with the object of unjustly delaying the sale. Le Comptoir d'Escompte v. Gaudet, 3 Que. P. R. 97.

Movables — Can the bailiff be the guardian—Scieure in recendication by the guardian—C. P. 624, 624,]—A bailiff who executes a seizure of movable property, may, upon the party upon whom the seizure is made refusing to furnish a guardian, appoint himself guardian of the effects seized.—The guardian of the effects seized may, by seizure in revendication, recover possession of the effects of which he has been deprived. Beaufort v. Hetu (1910), 11 Que. P. R. 306.

Movables — Liability of guardian—Diacharge.]—A guardian to a seizure of movables is discharged only by the judicial sale consequent upon the seizure, by the consent of all the seizing parties, or by a judicial order. Lapse of time no longer affords relief from liability for the things in his custody. Howard v. Heffernan and Howard, 34 Que S. C. 524.

Morables and immorables — Opposition as to movables—Sale of immorables— Sheriff — Return.] — The plainiff having caused to be selzed at the same time morables and immorables in the possession of the defendant, and a third party having by opposition claimed the movables as his, the plainiff may afterwards proceed to a sale of the immovables without waiting for the result of the opposition, for he is not bound to zo further with the contest as to the movables. —2. The sheriff, having, before making a return of the writ, his proceedings, and the opposition, taken a copy of the writ and of the proces verbal of the seisure of the immovables, may, without other authority, and without waiting for judgment upon the opposition as to the movia-les, Forceaed to alvertise and sell the immovables. Gaudeas v. Tetu, 20 Que, S. C. 402.

Notice — Exemption — Telephone.]—A seisure of goods under an execution and a notice that goods 20 miles away in the same bailiwick belonging to the same execution debtor are under seizure do not operate as a seizure of the latter goods. Quere, whether a debtor's right of exemption is absolute or a privilege to be exercised within two days. Schl v. Humphrey, 1 B. C. (pt. 2) 257, and In re Ley, 7 B. C. R. 94, questioned in this regard. Semble, goods cannot be seized by telephone. Dickinson v. Robertson, 11 B. C. R. 155, 1 W. L. R. 142.

Opposition — Attack on judgment — Juriadiction.]—A judgment, in execution of which a seizure has been made, cannot be sitacked by an opposition d fin d'annuler, on the ground that the Superior Court had no jurisdiction to pronounce the judgment. Coté v. Bernatchez, 25 Que. S. C. 219.

Opposition — Default of contestation — Time — Leave to contest — Consolidation of actions.] — Where an execution creditor has made default in contesting an opposition to his seizure within the time allowed, he will not be allowed after the time has expired to file his contestation and to join his cause to another cause in which he has seized the same goods. Archibald v. Spenard, 6 Que P. R. 124.

Opposition —Examination of opposant. —An opposant, who claims property, stating that he has been doing business for "some time" previous to the seizure, under the same firm name under which the debtor was condemned, will be ordered to appear for examination on the opposition. Ford v. Payette, 6 Que, P. R. 57.

Opposition— Examination of opposant. —The examination of an opposant will not be ordered unless the creditor seizing establishes, or there appears on the face of the record some reason leading the Court to be lieve that the opposition is made to unjustly retard the sale, or is unfounded, or would be shewn to be so by the opposant's examination. Demors v. Bergevin, 6 Que. P. R. 47.

Opposition — Insuissabilité — Investment of moneys bequeathed — Declaration — Registration, —A declaration that a purchase of property has been made with moneys derived by the purchaser, under a condition of "insuissabilité" can be set up against a creditor of the purchaser, although not registered until after the creditor had acquired his status as such. The following clause in a will. "My intention in making the bequests aforesaid being that the said property or that by which it shall be represented shall be insuisissable, the same being given to secure a provision for the support of the said beneficiaries." is not contrary to the provisions of Art. 509, C. P. C., clauses 3 and 4, the hav empowering a donor or testator to declare "insuisissables" not only immovables so disposed of by the will, but also such as might be acquired in place of such inmovables. Judgment in Baird v. Morphy, 23 Que. S. C. 4937, affirmed. Baird v. Ferrier, 13 Que. K. B. 317.

Opposition — Judgment — Reduction of assent — New writ. — A judgment pronounced upon an opposition to a judgment has the effect of causing the execution issued fault to lapse; and the party who has thus obtained judgment by default and has executed it, may not, after the sustaining in whole or in part of an opposition to the judgment, proceed with his execution, but must be content to reduce the amount to be levied upon his original writ to that fixed by the judgment upon the opposition.— Z. The judgment sustaining an opposition, but granting to the plaintiff a part of his demand, should be executed by a new writ. Demers v. Dufreme, 24 Que, S. C. 141.

Partnership property - Ownership of goods seized-Transfer to continuing partner -Sheriff - Proceeds of sale - Liability to execution creditor-Damages-Depreciation.] -A partnership existing between C. and S. was dissolved, C. taking all the assets and assuming all the liabilities of the firm :---Held, that, in the absence of fraud, the goods of the firm were effectually transferred to C., and were subject to an execution placed in the hands of the defendant sheriff with instructions to levy upon and sell the goods of C. The defendant, after having levied upon the goods under the plaintiff's execution, sold the goods under two executions placed in his hands subsequently, and paid over the proceeds to the creditors at whose instance such executions were issued .- Held, that he was liable to the plaintiff in damages for so doing ; but was not liable for depreciation resulting from delay in selling occasioned by the act of the Court. The case was not one for punitive damages, or for other damage than the actual value of the goods at the time of the sale. Crowe v. Buchanan, 36 N. S. R. 1.

Patent for invention.] — A patent for invention granted by the Dominion Government may be seized in execution. Farand v Emond, 23 Que. S. C. 2.

Patent for invention.] — Quare, whether a patent for invention can be seized under execution. Walker v. Lamoureux, 21 Que. S. C. 492.

Patent of invention — Exigible property.]—A patent of invention is seizable, and an opposition based upon its alleged insaisis-sabilité will be dismissed upon motion. Farand v. Emond, 5 Que. P. R. 63.

Possession of goods — Joint ownership. — A creditor can seize under ordinary execution only goods which are in possession of the debtor.—2. A third party, owner of an undivided interest in goods seized under execution against his co-owner, may prevent the sale of the goods as regards his own rights. Turner v. Bradshave, 6 Que, P. R. 184.

Prior seizure.]—An opposition for the purpose of setting aside a seizure under exceution is well-founded in law if, among other grounds, it invokes a prior seizure under execution of the same goods, even if it is not alleged that the sheriff is proceeding under the prior seizure. Samson v. Beauregard, 3 Que. P. R. 256.

Product of timber - Permit to execution debtor to cut and remove from Crown lands Partnership Purchasers - Claimants -Interpleader-Interest of partner.]-E. Kendall, an execution debtor, was the holder of a permit entitling him to cut and remove from certain lands of the Crown a quantity of railway ties. He entered into a contract with the Canadian Pacific R. W. Co. to furnish them with 30,000 ties on certain terms as to delivery and payment. To enable him to carry out the contract, he applied to the Bank of Ottawa for advances, which the bank agreed to make, on receiving an assignment of the moneys payable under the con-tract and other securities. E. F. Kendall and Thomas Robinson entered into partner-ship in the business of tie manufacturers, to be carried on upon lands comprised in the permit, and to include the carrying out of the contract with the Canadian Pacific Rw. The agreement of partnership was at first oral, but, later, it was, at the instance of the Bank of Ottawa, reduced to writing and signed by the parties, and a certificate of the partnership was duly registered. The partners proceeded to the lands, and Robin-The son was left in control, in accordance with the partnership agreement. He established the camp and commenced to cut the ties, and got them out on the ice on an arm of the Lake of the Woods. In the spring they were boomed and finally towed to Norman's Bay, where they were seized by the sheriff. The boom timber and logs were cut by the partnership for the purposes of rafting the ties, and were properly taken for that purpose: -Held, the claim of the execution creditors could not take effect so as to deprive the partner Robinson of his rights, or prevent him from enforcing them in the name and on behalf of the partnership. The property in the ties was shewn to be in Kendall & Robinson and the Canadian Pacific Rw. Co., as purchasers from them, and the property in the boom timber and logs to be in Kendall & Robinson. A sale of Kendall's interest in the partnership would not pass the property to the purchaser, but would give to him a right to an account of the partnership transactions with a view to ascertaining and realising the interest of the execution debtor. But there were no means by which such a proceeding could be taken in this matter. The money in Court stood as security for the ties, boom, timber, and logs seized by the sheriff. It was not possible to determine in this proceeding whether Kendall was entitled to any, and, if so, how much of it. The materials for such an inquiry wore not before the Court. Defendants' remedy, if any, was in some proceeding in which all questions between the partnership and the execution debtor could be properly inquired into and adjusted. Appeal dismissed. Can. Pac. Ruc. Co. v. Rat Portage Lumber Co., 5 O. W. R. 473, 10 O. L. R. 273.

Property already under seizure — Duty of sheriff — Seizure upon seizure.] —A sheriff, having a judgment against the defendant, issued a \hbar . fa addressed to the coroner (Arts. 35, 36, C. P.), and the latter seized the immovables of the defendant. The defendant having lodged an opposition, the coroner returned the writ, the opposition, and all his proceedings. Subsequently the plaintiffs, having a judgment against the defendant, issued a \hbar . fa addressed to the sheriff, and he seized thereunder the same immovables:—Held, that the old maxim " seizure upon seizure is invalid" exists no longer except as modified by the Code of Procedure; that the sheriff hand not to note this second writ upon that addressed to the coroner; that att. 711, C. P., did not apply to this case: that the sheriff, upon receiving the secondwrit, had nothing to do but seize, since he had not then the first writ, and that writ had not been addressed. C. 442.

Property declared by will insaisissable - Scizure for debt of testator.]-P. M. devised his property to L. M., without reserve, constituting him his universal legatee from the day of his death, upon the express condition that L. M. was to dispose of the property in favour of his children, in equal or unequal parts, as he should judge fit when making partition of his other property. L. M. accepted the devise. Then, by his will, he bequeathed his property (other than that which he had from P. M.) to his son J. B. M., the present defendant, on the express condition that he should preserve the property for his children and divide it among them equally or unequally. And, moreover, L. M., desiring to discharge the trusts mentioned in the will of P. M., made choice of his said son J. B. M. to receive the property left by P. M., and he gave him all such property, and added that he (L. M.) wished and intended that the property belonging to the testamen-tary succession of P. M. should be preserved in the same manner as the property devised by L. M., and he concluded his will as fol-lows: "I wish and intend that the enjoyment of the property above devised to my son J. B. M. shall be insaisissable and I declare that I gave him this legacy à titre d'aliments L. M. dying J. B. M. accepted the will. The plaintiffs, having obtained judgment against J. B. M., as universal legatee, for a debt contracted by L. M., caused to be seized the immovables coming from P. M. J. B. M. lodged an opposition, setting up that the property was subject to a substitution in favour perty was subject to a substitution in havour of his children, and invoking also the insaissi-sabilité clause:-Held, that the substitution provided by the will of L. M., as regards the property which came from P. M., in favour of the children of J. B. M., was valid, but that the decree did not purge the substitution; that the defendant, who was the grevé, could not set up the substitution by his opposition ; that the insaisissabilité clause as regards the property coming from P. M., imposed by the will of L. M., was valid and within the powers of L. M., but it could not be invoked against the debts left by L. M., and the defendant, as his universal legatee, was bound to pay. Richer v. Michaud, 20 Que. S. C. 442.

Removal of goods — Obligation to refurn.]—Where the person appointed guardian of goods seized under execution removes them, he must, if the seizure is annulled, bring them back to the douicil of the execution debtor, who has a remedy by way of rule nisi. Adams v. Mulligan, 4 Que, P. R. (b).

Repeated seizures-Damages - Bailig -Execution creditor.]-A bailiff holding a writ of execution against a debtor, instead of at first seizing all the chattels which were to be found at the house of the debtor, seized only a part, and, upon the debtor and his wife filing an opposition, returned a second and a third time and seized goods which he might have included in the first seizure :--- Held, that he was liable to the debtor for the damages and annoyance which these repeated seizures had caused.-2. It was the duty of the bailiff, under the circumstances, after the first seizure, to abstain from proceeding upon the writ of execution until after judgment upon the opposition.—3. The party for whom the bailiff acted, in spite of the fact that he was not aware of these repeated seizures, was liable jointly with the bailiff and severally for the damages suffered by the debtor, where by defending the action he had adopted the acts of the bailiff. Bédard v. Bachand, 16 Que. S. C. 348.

Right of debtor to withdraw effects.) —An opposition to a seizure, based on the fact that some of the effects seized could have been withdrawn and selected by the debtor, must shew that he was not allowed to select and withdraw them; otherwise it will be dismissed on motion. Beaubien Produce and Milling Co. v. Lecuyer, 5 Que. P. R. 71.

Rule aisi-Option.]—A rule nisi, against a guardian to effects acized under execution, which (besides giving him the option of paying the amount due the seizing creditor) gives him the option of producing the effects, or of paying the value thereof, without the value being mentioned or ascertained, is illegal, and will be set aside. Simard v. Crevier, 19 Que. S. C. 133.

Sheriff—Notice—Custodia legis — Security.]—Goods were seized under execution by the sheriff, who left them in possession of the judgment debtor's wife, who claimed to be the owner, upon her agreeing to hold them for him. Some months later the sheriff, under the same writ, took the goods, which were then in the possession of the claimants, who claimed to have bought from one H, who claimed to have bought from the wife after the original seizures:—Held, in view of the Administration of Civil Justice Ordinance, 1884, s. 83, that there was no abandonment by the sheriff; that he was right in resuming actual possession; and that, therefore, the execution prevailed over the claimants' title. Brittlebank V, Gray-Jones, 1 Terr, L. R. 75.

Ship seized by sheriff under fi. fa. -Connivance to bring ship from foreign waters into sheriff's bailiwick-Declaration that ship was not exigible-Public policy-International law-Ashburton Treaty Act. 7 International law—Ashourton Treaty Act. 7 —Costs.]—This was an issue in which plain-tiffs affirmed and defendant denied that the ship "Houghton," seized or taken on or about 19th April, 1910, by sheriff of Essex, under an execution issued in May V. Houghwas improperly brought by defendant ton or with his connivance, or by others, into the balliwick of the sheriff of Essex, or came within the balliwick of the sheriff of Essex, under such circumstances that the ship was not exigible in execution, and that the said seizure was an abuse of the process of the Courts and should be released. Defendant in this issue recovered $10,000 for damages for a collision between a vessel of plaintiff's and defendant, and seized this vessel, which broke away or was released from her moorings on the American side and drifted to the Canadian side at night in a storm .---Clute, J., held, that plaintiff was entitled to a declaration as asked, and that plaintiffs were entitled to costs of the interpleader order and incident thereto and the extra Costs occasioned by the postponement of the sale and of the trial of the issue and judg-ment, Thirty days' stay. Houghton v. May (1910), 17 O. W. R. 750, 2 O. W. N. 376, 0. L R

Stay — Appeal—Irregular notice—Costs —Undertaking by advocate to repay—Costs of [evs.]—The defendants, having served notice of motion to the Court en bane for a rule to shew cause why the verdict for the plaintiff should not be set aside, or for a nonsuit or a new trial, applied to the trial Judge, under J. O. Ord. 512, after seizure under execution issued upon the judgment for a stay of proceedings, upon the ground of irreparable loss and inability of the plaintiff to repay the amount levied in case the appeal should be successful:—Held, that there was jurisdiction to entertain the application, although the notice of motion was perhaps irregular in form.—(2) That the fact that the plaintiff would not be able to repay the amount levied in case of an adverse decision on appeal is sufficient ground for granting stay. Stay ordered on security being given.—(3) That execution for costs should be stayed unless the advocates give personal undertaking to re-pay them in case appeal succeeded.—(4) That the defendant, having delayed making application until after issue of execution and seizure, should nay the costs and expenses incurred by reason of the delivery to the sheriff of the execution.—(5) The costs of application must execution.—(5) The costs of application must be paid forthwith by party applying. Merry v. Nickalls, L. R. 8 Ch. 205, and Cooper v. Cooper, 2 Ch. D. 492, followed. Patton v. Alberta Coal Co., 2 Terr. L. K. 294.

Stay — Motion to dismiss—Exception.]— An opposition to a seizure under execution will not be dismissed upon motion because no order for a stay has been made by a Judge; the sheriff having suspended proceedings and made a return to that effect, the opposition is regularly before the Court for adjudication.— 2. Such a motion, not attacking the merits of the opposition, is in the nature of an exception à la jorme, and cannot be entertained except in so far as it attacks the opposition as futile and is based upon prejudice caused by the irregularities complained of. Ville de St. Jean v. Lefebere, 3 Que. P. R. 23

Stay — Second opposition — Former one dismissed—Reservation.]—Where an opposition à fin de charge was dismissed, by a judgment which reserved to the opposant the right to take the proper proceedings to protect his interests, no order to stay the proceedings upon the execution pending a new opposition will be granted to the opposant now setting up a different claim base upon reasons existing before the former opposition was made. Thompson V. Caldwell, 2 Que. P. M. 428.

Substitution — Interest of institute.]— 1. The property held under a substitution, which has not been declared to be exempt from seizure, can be select for the debts of the institute. The interest of the institute in a substituted property can be select, but the sale does not affect the rights of the substitutes unless the sale has been made for a claim either prior or preferable to the substitution itself. Desjardins v. Michald, S Que, Q. B. 494.

Sufficiency.]—An opposition to a seizure alleging that the opposant is the owner of the animals seized, on account of having bimself bought them and paid for them out of his own money, supported by an affidavit following the provisions of Art. 647, C. P., is sufficient in law, and will not be rejected on motion. Perron v. Marguis, 4 Que. P. R. 174.

Sufficiency of seizure — Sale — Adjournments — Notice — Ezpiry of writ.] — The defendants contended that the bailiff executing a writ of f. fa. did not make a seizure, as required by law, of certain buildings, or that, if he did legally seize, he abandoued the seizure; that he did not give due notice of the sale, or at any rate of the adjournment; that the buildings were sold for an inadeouate price; and that the writ had expired before the sale. The bailiff found the buildings locked. He did not enter them, or put a man in possession, but put up written notices on the buildings stating that he had seized them, and mentioning the date when and the place where he intended to sell :--Held, reasonably sufficient to constitute a seizure as against defendants, whether it would, or would not, have held the property as against a subse quent bona fide purchaser from the owner for value, without notice. No notices of the several adjournments of the sale were made public by the sheriff, but the debtor must be presumed to have known of the day fixed for the sale, as a solicitor, at the sale, on the defendant's behalf, gave the bailiff a notice forbidding the sale. The seizure was made while the writ of execution was in force, and the sale then advertised was adjourned from time to time till the buildings were actually sold. The fact that the writ expired before the actual sale was, therefore, unimportant. Dixon v. Mackay, 22 C. L. T. 374.

Territories Real Property Act-Creditors' Relief Ordinanco-Expiry - Renewal -Priorities - Seizure - Sheriff's sale -Advertisement — Postponement — Appeal — Admission of point of law.]—No question of the effect of the Creditors' Relief Ordinance the energy of the christian of several execu-tions against land depend not upon the date of their delivery to the sherif, but upon the date of the deposit with the registrar of certified copies of the executions, accompanied by memoranda of the lands sought to be charged.—2. The sheriff's advertisement of sale of land is a seizure of the land.—3. The effect of s. 94 of the Territories Real Property Act is to provide that neither the delivery of the execution to the sheriff nor his seizure of the land binds the land, but only the deposit with the registrar of the copyexecution and accompanying memorandum. -4. Any seizure by the sheriff enures to the benefit of all execution creditors whose executions are then in his hands, and this notwithstanding that, in case the seizure is by way of advertisement, the advertisement mentions only one or some of such executions; and semble, also, notwithstanding that some of such executions were not in the sheriff's hands for a sufficient time to authorize an advertisement for sale under them alone .-The sheriff's advertisement of the sale of lands may properly run prior to the expiration of the year, during which he cannot actually sell; and semble, even if the date actuality set; and sense, even the vert, but fixed for the sale fail short of the year, but the sale is adjourned to a date subsequent to the lapse of the year, the sale would not be bad on that account.—6. A sheriff having seized lands under an execution before it has expired can proceed with the sale of such lands after the lapse of the time for the renewal of unexecuted executions :---Held, on appeal to the Court en banc, that the priorities of several executions against lands is not affected by the provisions of s. 94 of the T. R. P. Act, and that therefore such priorities are not determined by the order in which copies-execution and accompanying memo-randa are deposited with the registrar, but by the dates of delivery to the sheriff.--2. The distribution of the proceeds of the sale is governed by the provisions of the Creditors' Relief Ordinance.--3. Although outside was raised before the Judge of first instance, as to the effect of the Creditors' Relief Ordinance, and it was there conceded that the rospective execution creditors had the right to have the proceeds of the sale applied on the executions in the order of their legal priority, this could not be construed as a consent on the part of the claimants to the fund that it should be disposed of in the same manner as if the Ordinance were not in force, but merely as a contention on their part that the whole fund should be applied on their executions, and in the absence of consent on the part of the sheriff and all the parties intersted in the fund, the provisions of the Ordinance must govern its disposal Limages V. Campbell, 2 Terr. L. R. 356.

Title — Necessity to allege.]—An opposition which merely sets forth that the opposant is proprietor of the effects selzed, without mentioning any title thereto, is futile, and will be dismissed on motion. Desroches v. Drapeau, 3 Que, P. R. 230.

Writ of possession — Opposition — Stay of proceedings.]—An opposition to a writ of possession which alleges that, since the judgment rendered against the defendant, he has obtained from one of the attorneys of the plaintif leave to occupy for a certain time the room let by the plaintif, and which is accompanied by an order for a stay made by a Judge of the Superior Court, will not be dismissed on motion. Hart v. Dubrewil, 3 Que. P. R. 201.

7. SALE UNDER.

Conveyance — Mistake — Title — Recission of sele.] — When an immovable is advertised to be sold by the sheriff, and an order of the Court is made to withdraw a portion of it from the sale, and the latter takes place in conformity with such order, the delivery to the purchaser of a tille deed drawn by mistake as if the whole property originally advertised had been sold, confers no right to the same upon the purchaser. If, therefore, the document so drawn in error is returned to the sheriff for any purpose, he is justified in retaining it, and will not be compelled by action to return it or to issue another in the same form, nor do such facts afford grounds for the rescission of the sale. Walker v. Thibaudeau, 29 Que. S. C. 452.

Ejectment—Sherif's deed under 11 Vict. ch. 7—Want of notice cured by s. 22—Deed void if land not described by metes and bounds at sale.]—The 7th s. of 11 Vict. c. 7, ences that before proceeding to sell land taken in execution under that Act the sheriff shall at the sale publicly declare the metes and bounds thereof. Sec. 5 enacts that no omission of any direction relative to notice or forms shall render a sale invalid. The locus was sold by the sheriff and bougit by Y. for a trilling sum. It appeared that notice of sale had not been duly given by the sheriff, and also that the land was not described at the sale by metes and bounds. That the want of description by metes and bounds at the sale was a defect, which was not cured by s. 22, and rendered the sale invalid. Yeo v. Betts (1856), 1 P. E. I. R. 116.

Equity of redemption — Unassigned dover in—Share in—Equitable execution.]—A A right of dower in an equity of redemption before assignment is not exigible under a writ of f. fa., nor is the share of one of several tenants in common of an equity of redemption. Where a person dies possessed of lands mortaged by him, his widow, before assignment of dower, though entitled to redeem, has no estate in the land, and is therefore nor an "assign" of her hushand, nor a "person having the equity of redemption" within s. 29 of the Execution Act, R. S. O. 1807, c. 77, and her interest does not come within s. 30 of that Act, and therefore is not saleable under it nor under s. 33. In such a case an execution creditor seeking equitable execution should proceed under Rules 1016-1018, and not by action. 22 C. L. T. 252, 4 O. L. R. 106, 1 O. W. R. 351.

Estoppel--Admission of evidence-Ejectment.]--Defendant whose lands have been sold under statute execution, issued upon a judgment entered upon a warrant of atforney signed by himself, is estopped as against a purchaser at sheriff's sale from setting up title in a third party. Connelly v. McLeod (1881), 2 P. E. I. R. 373.

Fixtures - Opposition-Appeal - Title of purchaser.]-The appellants, a company having their place of business in the Province of Ontario, had sold certain machines to K Bros. of Joliette, with a reservation of right of property. The mill in which these machines were installed having been seized with the machines at the suit of the curator under an assignment of K. Bros. for the benefit of creditors, and of a creditor of one of the insolvents, the appellants filed an opposition, which the respondent contested, and which the Superior Court dismissed. The appel-lants, nearly four months after the judgment of the Superior Court, appealed to the Court of Queen's Bench, which maintained the opposition ; and this judgment was affirmed by the Superior Court of Canada. However. in the interval between the judgment dismissing the opposition and the institution of the appeal, the creditor obtained from the prothonotary a writ of ven. ex., and, through the agency of a person named by the respondent, the curator obtained from a Judge an order for the sale of the mill and the machines. The sale took place after the appeal but the appellants knew nothing of it until after they had obtained the judgment of the Supreme Court, and at that sale the respondent became the purchaser of the mill and the machines, and subsequently disposed of them:—Held, that the respondent, whom the appellants had informed of their right of property in the machines and the nullity of the seizure which had been made of them, could not, by instigating the order and becoming the purchaser at the sale, obtain a title which would be good against the appellants, and that in disposing of the machines as things belonging to him, the respondent had made himself responsible to the appellants for their value. Waterows Engine Works Co. V. Bank of Hochelaga, 12 Que, K. B. 258.

Goods — Opposition to sale—Notice — Parties—Debtor, |--An opposition to the sale of movables will not be maintained unless notice of contestation has been given to the parties, including the debtor. Valiquette v. Guilbault, 5 Que. P. R. 163.

Goods — Place of sale — Residence of debtor.]—An execution debtor has the right to say that goods of his seized under the execution shall not be sold at the place of his residence at the time of sale, if such goods were not seized there and have not been taken there by him, but are in the control of the creditor, who proposes to remove them to the actual residence of the debtor. Adams v. Mulligan, 19 Que. S. C. 338.

Goods not seized - Irregular sale-Acquiescence — Purchase in good faith.]-A portion of a debtor's stock-in-trade having been seized under a writ of execution, the bailiff, on the day fixed for the sale, added other goods of the debtor to the list of those seized, and, at the request of the debtor, who was desirous of repurchasing his stock-in-trade, sold the entire stock en bloc. The proceeds of the sale were distributed among the creditors in due course of law. The debtor having shortly afterwards, made an abandonment of his effects, his curator, by the present action against the purchaser at the bailiff's sale, sought to have the sale annulled as irregular and void, and the goods returned, or their value paid to the plaintiff :--Held, that, although the sale was irregular, and improperly included goods which had not been seized or advertised for sale, yet the purchaser having acted in good faith and even offered to re-transfer the goods, the price being a reasonable one, and the proceeds distributed according to law, and the creditors, moreover, having suffered no injustice in consequence of the irregularity of the proceedings, the sale should not be annulled. Bernier v. Depocas, 24 Que. S. C. 70.

Hay seized and sold by sheriff,]— Defendant, a sheriff, seized a quantity of hay which he sold under N. S. Jud. Act, Order 46, Rule 5. Plantiff brought action to recover damages for wrongfully depriving him of the hay. Plantiff claimed the hay as proceeds of a lot of land of which he holds title as assignee of a mortgage. Macgulivray, Co. C.J., held, that plantiff had failed to prove that he was in possession of the land at the time the hay before the levy and dismissed action with costs. Macdonaid v. Doucette (1910), 8 E. L. R. 529.

Interest in land — Action by execution debtor to set aside—Purchase by execution creditor — Irregularities. — Advertising—Inadequacy of price—Resale by purchaser to wife of plaintiff—Charge on land—Declaration—Costs. McNichol v. McPherson, 10 O. W. R. 844. Irregularity-Death of original defendant-Ex parts order of revivor-Order for leave to issue execution in name of defendant by revivor-Failure to serve orders on plaintiff - Rule 248 - Practice - Satisfaction of judgment. Stone v Goldstein, 9 W. L. R. 366.

Land — Formalities—Minutes of seisure —Pface of ade.]—The formalities prescribed by Arts. 706, 741 and 743, C. C. P., for the sale of immovables by the sheriff, are imperative, and the omission in the proces-verbal or minutes of seizure of the name of the street in which the immovables are situated is a fatal defect which annuls the sale.—2. Where the exceptions mentioned in Art. 741, C. C. P., do not apply, a sale of an immovable commenced at the registry office and terming made at the door of the parish church of the locality where it is situated, is null. Sauger V. Reiowz, 18 Que. 8. C. 173.

Land - Irregularities - Division Court judgment - Transcript - Advertisement -Affidavits.]—Held, that it was not an objec-tion to the sheriff's sale that no execution was issued from the Division Court in which the judgment was recovered before the issue of the transcript to the County Court in 1893. According to Jones v. Parton, 19 A. R. 163, Burgess v. Tully, 24 C. P. 549, is no longer applicable. — 2. That although the execu-tion was issued against two defendants, while the transcript shewed a judgment against only one, and although the execution recited the wrong date for the judgment. these were mere irregularities which did not vitiate the sale .---- 3. That it was not necessary to the validity of the sheriff's deed that there should be an advertisement in the Gazette. The absence of an advertisement was a mere irregularity. - 4. That the fact that there was no return to the fi. fa. goods did not invalidate the sale, but was a mere irregularity. Ross v. Malone, 7 O. R. 397, followed --That the inadequacy of the price for which the lands were sold to the plaintiff might have been a ground for declaring that the deed should stand merely as security for the amount paid, but in this case there were other circumstances, and the trial Judge had made a finding of fact, viz., that the defendants authorised the sale, which made it impossible to so declare, there being evidence to support such finding .-- 6. That the affidavits filed for the purpose of obtaining a new trial did not make out a case which would justify the Court in exercising its discretion to grant a new trial. Staunton v. McLean, 21 C. L. T. 587.

Land — Usu/ructuary — Executris — Title-Right of purchaser.]—A sale of lands in an action against a widow, formerly commune en biene, as well personally as in th capacity of testaneurary executrix of her husband and usufructuary, gives a perfect tile to the purchaser, and he is bound to pay the purchase price. Desrochers v. Mallette, 3 Que. P. R. 493.

Lands — Advertisement—Distribution — Costs of execution creditor — Creditor — Creditor's Relief Act.]—Where two writs of execution against lands were placed in the sheriff's hands on the same day, and, no further steps being taken by the first execution creditor, the second execution creditor directed the sheriff io advertise and sell the lands, which he did under the second execution creditor's writ:—Held, that the advertisement was in law the seizure of the lands under the second execution creditor's writ; and, there being no seizure or sale under that of the first, the second was entitled, under a 26 of the Creditor's Relief Act, R. 8. 0. 1897 c. 78. to payment in fall of his taxed costs and 'he costs of his execution, which exceeded the amount of the residue of the proceeds of the sale after payment of the sheriff's fees. McGuinness, v. McGuinness, 22 C, L. T. 54, 3 O. L. R. 78.

Lands—Collocation of hypothecary creditor—Right of execution debtor to context— Conditional debt.]—At the time of a sheriff's sale the judgment debtor has a right to contest the collocation of an hypothecary creditor, whose debt is conditional, and who is collocated as a simple creditor, inasmuch as, if the condition is not realised, the creditor will have received the money, and, not having furnished the security required from a condtional creditor, he will perhaps not be in a position to repay the amount which he has received. Benoit v. Ste. Marie, 5 Que. P. R. 222.

Lands — Diligence — Creditors—Priorities.]—In order that a first seizure of an immovable shall prevent a second one, it is necessary that at the moment when it is desired to proceed with the second, here shall be nothing to hinder the sale of the immovable under the first seizure. Therefore, if the creditor making the first seizure has supended the sale of the immovables, he cannot oppose a seizure made by another creditor. Garand V. Roussin, 19 Qu. S. C. 506.

Lands - Ejectment-Defence-Adverse Possession-Evidence Admission of death-Deed - Certified copy-Affidavit - Judgment -Registry of-Statute of Limitations.]-In - Registry of Statute of Limitations.] - In an action brought by the plaintiffs, trustees under the will of D., to recover possession of land bought by them at a sheriff's sale under execution on a judgment recovered by D. against M., the defendant relied upon his adverse possession of the land at the diac of the sale:-Held, that the defence was not applicable to the case of a sheriff selling under execution. The objection was also taken that at the trial the plaintiffs failed to give evidence of the death of D .- Held, that the objection was one which under Order 21, Rule 5 must be specifically taken; and the deception in evidence, without objection, of a certified copy of the will of D. was an implied admission of his death. At the trial the plaintiffs put in evidence a certified copy of the deed to M. the judgment debtor, without shewing that the Judginen decommended out shewing that the original was not in the plaintiff's possession.—Held, that this was a matter as to which the plaintiffs should be permitted to amend by filing the usual statu-tory affidavit. Per McDonald, C.J., that the registry of the judgment obtained by D. had the same effect, so far as his title was concerned, as if he held a mortgage .- Held, also, the judgment being registered, and se-suring the title, that the Statute of Limitations would not begin to run until after the date of the recovery of the judgment. Lands - Opposition-Contestation-Appeal-Sale under ven. ex. - Rights of pur-chaser.] - The intervenant, the holder of a judgment against one V., having made a seiz-ure under execution of an immovable of which V. was in possession, the plaintiff asserted an opposition à fin d'annuler against this seizure, alleging that she was the owner of the immovable by virtue of a sale made or the immovable by virtue of a sale made by V. to her, and her opposition was con-tested by the intervenant, who alleged that the sale by V. to her was fraudulent. The opposition was maintained by the Superior Court, but that judgment was reversed by the Court of Review, which dismissed the opposition, maintained the seizure, and ordered a sale of the immovables under writ of ven. ex. By virtue of this last judgment the intervenant advertised the sale of the immovable upon ven. ex., and the sale took place and one C. became the purchaser. He sold to the defendent. sold to the defendant. After the sale under the ven. ex., but before the time for appeal had expired, the plaintiff appealed from the judgment of the Court of Review to the Court of Queen's Bench, and, not wishing to give security for the costs of the appeal, signed security for the costs of the appear, since the declaration required by Art, 1214, C. P. C., consenting to execution upon the judgment against her. The Court of Queen's Bench reversed the judgment of the Court of Review and restored that of the Superior Court. The plaintiff then brought the present action to recover the immovable sold, and the intervenant (the judgment creditor) intervened in this action, and contested it :-- Held, that the seizure having been made against one in possession animo domini, the sale, having taken place after the fulfilment of all the for-malities required by law, and before the appeal of the plaintiff, was valid, and had wiped out the right of the plaintiff to the immovable itself, and left her only a claim upon the purchase money. Renaud v. Denis, 23 Oue, S. C. 16.

Lands-Priorities - Intervening transfer - Sale - Distribution of proceeds - Creditors' Relief Ordinance - Ultra vires.] There having been lodged with the registrar a copy of fi. fa. lands in two several actions, with memoranda of the same land to be charged ; the land standing in the defendant's name at the time of the lodging of the first f. fa., but having been transferred to and standing in the name of a purchaser from the defendant at the time of the lodging of the second execution, and the lands having been sold under the first f_h , f_a . -Held, following Roach v. McLachlin, 19 A. R. 496, and Briethaupt v. Marr. 20 A. R. 689, that the first execution creditor was entitled to the whole screened of the sole whole proceeds of the sale. The members of the Court were divided in opinion as to whether the Creditors' Relief Ordinance was ultra vires so far as it purported to affect executions against lands, as being inconsist-ent with the Territories Real Property Act. Massey Manufacturing Co. v. Hunt. McCor-mick Harvesting Machine Co. v. Hunt, 2 T. L. R. 84.

Movables — Hour of sale — Number of bidders—C. P. 655, 662.]—The fact that a sale of movables under authority of justice was held only at a quarter to eleven when it had been announced for ten o'clock, and the further fact that there was but one bidder present who made but one bid are not sufficient reasons in law to upset the sale. Frank v. Donohue (1910), 11 Que. P. R. 235.

Movables — Revendication — Pleading.] —A plaintiff who revendicates movable property may set forth, in answer to a defence alleging that the defendant bought the property at a judicial saile in virtue of a writt of execution prior to that upon which the goods were sold, that the second sale was simulated and only effected by the defendant forcing the locks of the house where the goues were deposited. Belfrey v. Frank, 4 Que. P. R. 337.

Resalls — Liability of bidder—Garnishee —Contempt of Court.]—When a judicial adjudication of movables is not followed by immediate payment of the price of adjudication, the bailiff may immediately resell the said movables.—2. But this does not release the bidder from his liability. The moment a person bids at a judicial sale, he incurs liability for the amount of his bid, and is bound to make the same good if the subsequent sale does not realise an equal amount.—3. In this case the garnishee, having after the sale paid the amount of the adjudication to bim of the books seized both by him and the plaintiff, was discharged of his obligation as garnishee.—4. He was not subject to coercive imprisonment for contempt in not delivering the books to be sold again at the suit of the plaintiff, who had also seized them. Duckenee v. Colline, 16 Que. S. C. 277.

Reversal of decree for error — Rettitution.]—Where goods were sold under an execution upon g decree reversed on appeal for error, it was held that restitution should be of the amount of the sale and not of the real value of the goods. Robertson v. Miller, 25 C. L. T. 76. 3 N. F. Eq. 78.

Sale of equity of redemption — Purchase by execution creditor — Subsequent conveyance to debtor—Corenants — Incumbrances—Release.]—Under a writ of f. fa. against the lands of the original defendant (the mortgagor) the sheriff sold the equity of redemption in mortgaged land, and conveyed it to the purchaser in 1896. The purchaser was at the time the assignee of the judgment upon which the f. fa. was founded. After holding the interest acquired by his purchase for a year, he sold it to the mortgagor. and made him the usual short form conveyance under R. S. O. 1897, c. 124. The moneys realised under sale were not sufficient to satisfy the judgment, and the writ was returned by the sheriff for renewal on 2nd August, 1899, but was not then renewed. In 1902 the purchaser assigned the judg-ment (so paid in part) to one S., and thereafter an alias writ of fi. fa. lands was issued and placed in the hands of the sheriff, and in respect of that execution S, was made a party in the Master's office to an action brought upon the mortgage :-- Held, that the land was not affected by the judgment and execution while the purchaser retained his interest, but the effect of his sale and conveyance to the mortgagor was to invest the latter with a new interest in the land, and that interest fell under the operation of the fi. fa., and the statutory covenants, No. 4 as to incumbrances, and No. 8 as to the release of all claims, contained in the conveyance by the purchaser to the mortgagor, did not operate to release the judgment or the execution; and the latter was, therefore, a subsisting incumbrance. Chittick v. Low-ery, 24 C. L. T. 15, 6 O. L. R. 547, 2 O. W. R. 957.

Sale of land — Charges — Insufficient description in advertisement-Opposition.]— When an immovable seized in execution is advertised for sale, subject to charges which are not sufficiently described—in this case the sale was announced subject to charges created by an act, the date of which and the name of the notary were given without other description of the nature of the charges —the execution debtor may oppose the sale by way of opposition à fin d'annuler. Corbeil v. Dagenais, 13 Que. K. B. 205.

Sale of land by sheriff — Effect of — Extinguishment of rights.]—In the province of Quebec a sheriff's sale, accompanied by legal formalities, gives a complete and absolute title to the purchaser of the property sold, and extinguishes all the rights charged upon such property, with the exception of a lien resulting from the commutation of seignorial rents, of a lease for a term of years, of substitutions not open, and of customary dower not open. The decree extinguishes all the other rightes: Art. 711, C. P. C. (old code). King v. Nadeau, 17 Que. S. C. 342.

Sale of land under — Assignment for benefit of creditors — Priorities — Costs. Elliott v. Hamilton, 4 O. L. R. 585, 1 O. W. R. 705, 2 O. W. R. 141.

Sale of property en bloe—Discretion of sheriff—Oppression — Equitable relief— Remedy at law — Innocent purchaser — Fistures — Abandonment of action against one defendant—Effect on others.]—A quantity of gold mining machinery, consisting of boilers, engine stamps, etc., was sold by the sheriff en bloc, under execution, against the plaintiff company: — Held, that the method of sale, whether en bloc or otherwise, is a matter in the sound discretion of the shertiff, to be determined in each case by the particular facts, and that the question whether, in view of the particular facts, he has acted oppressively, must be determined in an action against him:—Held, also, that the equitable at law, the Court will not exercise its equitable powers, was applicable to the state of affairs in this case. Quære, whether, even where the action of the sheriff is oppressive, the sale can be set aside as against an innocent purchaser, as irregular and void. Part of the property sold consisted of machinery ordinarily used in connection with a gold mining mill. The evidence shewed that the boiler could only be lifted out of its place by pulling off the top of the wall and that portion of the wall over the lugs of the boiler; also, that the mortar was connected to a foundation of cement and timber extending down to bed rock by a number of iron bolts 30 inches in length :-- Held, that the mill and therefore not liable to be levied upon and sold by the sheriff as personal property -Held, also, that the effect of the abandon-ment of their action as against the sheriff, by the plaintiffs, was not to release their action against remaining defendants. comb Falls Mining Co. v. Bishop, 36 N. S. R, 395.

Sheriff's sale — Auction—Land knocked down to highest bidder—Sheriff reopening biddings—Property again put up and highest bidder declared purchaser—Refusal to confirm second sale. Re Hind, 7 W. L. R. 806.

Sheriff's sale — Notice of sale—Misdescription of property—Rights of execution debtor—Action to set aside sale. [-A party has no right to have a sheriff's sale set aside for the reason that the notices of sale were for the whole lot, whereas the party whose property was sold was the owner of but onehalf of the lot; the buyer being the only one who could complain. Orr v. Barry, 10 Que. P. R. 34.

Sheriff's sale - Opposition-Security-Default-Chose jugée-Appeal.]-In proceed-ings for the sale of lands under execution, the appellants filed an opposition to secure a charge thereon, and under the provisions of Art. 726, C. P. Q., a Judge of the Su-perior Court ordered that the opposants should, within a time limited, furnish security that the lands, if sold subject to the charge, should realise sufficient to satisfy the claim of the execution creditor. On failure to give the security as required, the opposition was dismissed, and, on appeal to the Suprime Court of Canada, the judgment dismissing the opposition was affirmed ; 35 S. C. R. 1. Subsequently the proceedings in execution were continued, and, on the eve of the date advertised for the sale by the sheriff, the opposants filed another opposition to secure the same charge, offered to furnish the necessary security, and obtained an order staying the sale :--Held, that the judgment dismissing the opposition on default to furnish the required security was chose jugée against the appellants, and deprived them of any right to give such security or take further proceedings to secure their alleged charge on the lands under seizure .- Per Taschereau, C.J.-In a case like the present an appeal to this Court might be quashed as being taken in bad faith. Fontaine v. Payette, 25 C. L. T. 138, 36 S. C. R. 613.

Death of defendant — Delay before acceptance of succession.]—An heir-at-law has three months and forty days to make an inventory and deliberate upon the acceptance of the succession, and any execution ngainst the property of the defendant issued after his decease may be suspended by means of a dilatory exception. Garand v. Malo, 4 Que, P. R. 228.

Garnishment proceedings.]—Where a creditor of the plaintiff, before execution against the defendant, causes a writ of garnishment to be served on the defendant, such writ does not suspend the proceedings under the execution, unless the defendant deposits in Court the amount of the judgment, with interest and costs. Montambault v. Niquette, 4 Que. P. R. 411.

Judgment affirmed by Court of Appeal — Proposed appeal to Supreme Court of Canada — Necessity for leave -Process of Master in Chambers and Judge of High Court -Grounds for esercise.] — After a verdict for judgment for the plaintift, affirmed by the Court of Appeal, the Master in Chambers, on the application of the defendants, made an order staying proceedings till such time as leave to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada could be moved for, unless the solicitor for the plaintiff would undertake to return, if now paid, the amount of the damages and costs awarded to the plaintiff, in the event of the judgment of the Court of Appeal being reversed :--Held, that the Master had no jurisdiction to make such an order: Rule 42, clause 17 (d). If a Judge of the High Court in Chambers has the power to make an order -and, semble, he has-this was not a proper case for the exercise of ... The judgment being for only $400 damages and costs, there was no appeal to the Supreme Court without leave, and there was no doubtful question of law of such general importance as to call for extraordinary interference. Pending appeal to Divisional Court -Rule 827-"Judge of Court appealed to -Trial Judge - Jurisdiction - High Court -Removal of stay.]—By s. 70 (2) of the Ontario Judicature Act, R. S. O. 1897, c. 51, a Judge is disabled from sitting as a member of a Divisional Court hearing an appeal from a judgment or order made by him-self, and he has, therefore, no jurisdiction, after the setting down of an appeal from his judgment, to make an order that execution shall not be stayed.—In an action for goods sold and delivered the defendant counter-claimed for trespass. The plaintiff recovered judgment at the trial of his claim, and the trial of the counterclaim was adjourned. The defendant appealed to a Divisional Court, on the ground that the amount for which the plaintiff had recovered judgment should be reduced by $214.50 as damages for breach of warranty :- Held, that the trial Judge had no jurisdiction to make an order, on application to him under Rule 827 (2), that ex-ecution should not be stayed notwithstanding that an appeal to a Divisional Court had been set down; but, that, as the order was a proper one on the merits, execution should not be stayed save as to the $214.50, as the counterclaim was not one which should have been joined with the action, and it was not shewn that if a verdict were obtained on the counterclaim, there would be any danger of the amount not being recoverable from the plaintiff ; and that, as to the $214.50, it was proper to stay execution, notwithstanding affidavits on behalf of the plaintiff of his belief that the defendant's appeal was merely for delay, and as to his uncertainty in re-spect to the defendant's financial ability to pay the claim, there being no suggestion or evidence that by staying the execution to this extent the plaintiff would probably lose his claim. Mullin v. Provincial Construction Co., 16 O. L. R. 241, 10 O. W. R. 1116, 11 O. W. R. 302.

Removal of stay.—Motion under Ont. Rule 827 (2) to remove in part the stay of execution consequent upon defendant having given security for costs of appent to Court of Appent.—Held, that above rule only applies where special circumstances could be shewn. Motion refused with costs. Singlehurst y, Wills (1910), 1 O. W. R. 417.

Stay.—Where plaintiff obtained judgment for $3,311.48, and defendants appealed as to $2,452.9, but admitted balance $807.56, plaintff was granted order removing stay of execution as to the $857.56, Gledhill V. Telegram Printing Co. (1909), 14 O. W. R. 1. See S. C. 957.

F1. fa. — Life of — lasue of new writ — Science under — Invalidity.]—When a writ of fi. ja. de bonis et de terris has been lasued in execution of a judgment, it remains in force until it is satistied, and is a bar to the issue of a new writ. Therefore, a seizure of land made under a second writ issued before the first is exhausted is void. Owens v. Conseq. 30 Que. S. C. 325.

Judgment — Appeal.]—When a judgment is inscribed in review and confirmed by the Court of Review, the judgment of the latter Court takes the place of the original judgment, and the delay for execution runs from the reception by the protheorotary of the judgment of the Court of Review. Even assuming that this were not so, the delay for execution in any event censes to run from the date of the deposit and inscription in review, and only recommences to run from the date of the judgment rendered by the Court of Review. O'Dell v, Bell, 17 Que. S. C. 373.

Liem — Prosecution of action—Diligence —Judgment — Delay in issuing execution.] —The lien effected by attachment proceedings is only temporary, and expires if the creditor does not prosecute his suit to judgment and execution with all due diligence. Where certain creditors, after entering judgment, allowed six days to elapse before registering the judgment and issuing execution :— Held, though with a good deal of doubt, that this delay had not affected the liens obtained under the attachments. EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRA-TORS.

Account — Action — Petition.]—An account can only be demanded from a testamentary executor by action at law, instituted by means of a writ of summons, and not by petition. O'Borne v. Lemay, 7 Que. P. R. 333.

Account - Judgment - Maladministration - Loss of assets - Pleading-Amend-ment.]-Neglect to have an inventory made with due diligence, failure to sell movable property and allowing it to deteriorate and depreciate in value, carrying on an unprofit-able husiness instead of winding it up, neglect to collect moneys due, and, generally, negligence and maladministration resulting in the loss or shrinkage of the assets of an estate, are legal grounds of contestation of an account rendered by executors of their executorship, pursuant to a judgment in an action to account .-- When the conclusions of a contestation of an account are that the account ing party be condemned to pay the contestant a sum stated to be the balance of the account, the Court, at the final hearing, has power, on motion of the contestant, to allow him to amend them by adding thereto a prayer that the judgment declare the ac-count illegal and false, that no substitution exists of the movable property, and that its proceeds should be distributed, and that the accounting party was guilty of negligence and maladministration causing loss to a stated amount, which should be refunded to the interested parties. Such an amendment does not change the nature of the demand, and does not, therefore, come within the prohibi-tion of art. 522, C. C. P. Blackwood v. Mussen, 28 Que. S. C. 170.

Account — Predecessors — Acceptance-Action — Pleading. I—A testamentary executor has the right to refuse to accept the account of his predecessors, if he believes it to be erroneous, and that even where his co-executor has accepted it. 2. But an exector cannot, without the concurrence of his co-executor, in answer to an action by their predecessors to compel acceptance of the account and discharge, set up a claim for the reformation of the account, and ask to have the plaintiffs condemned to pay a larger sum than that which appears by their account. Deejardins v. Masson, 3 Que. F. R. 538.

Account - Surrogate Court-Estoppel.] -The Surrogate Courts of Ontario are invested with the authority and jurisdiction over executors and administrators and the rendering by them of inventories and accounts conferred in England on the ordinary under 21 Hen. VIII, c. 5, the effect of Rule unger 21 Hen. VIII. c. o. the effect of Rule 19 of the Surrogate Court Rules of 1802. as limited by s. 73 of the Surrogate Courts Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 59, being to bring the practice back to that in force under the ancient statute. It is not only the duty of an executor or administrator to file an inventory and render an account when duly called upon to do so, but it is his privilege to do so voluntarily in any case in which he is liable to be called upon, and this privilege in case of his death extends to his personal representative, though not at the same time the representative of the original testator, and even though there is a surviving representative of the original testator. Where, therefore, the executors of an executor brought into the proper Surrogate Court an account of the dealings of their testator with the assets of the estate of the original testator, treating in the account as cash received by the accounting executor certain promissory notes, and the account was audited and 1809

Action under Fatal Injuries Act -Status of administrator-Person having no interest in estate - Action begun before grant of administration — Fiat — Judicial Act — Fraction of day.]—Action by the administrator of the estate of Augustino Fancelli, deceased, against Fauquier Brothers, to recover damages under Lord Campbell's Act for having negligently caused the death of deceased. Defendants, besides denying any negligence, pleaded that plaintiff was not at the time of the commence-ment of the action the administrator of the deceased. The damages were claimed in the statement of claim for Egidio and Creusa Fancelli, the father and mother of the deceased, both of whom were alleged to be living near Pisa, in Italy. It appeared at the trial that plaintiff had applied to the Surrogate Court of the district of Algoma, some time before the issue of the writ, for a grant to him of letters of administration. alleging himself to be authorized for the pur-pose by the father of the deceased, and that on 23rd January, 1903, an order was made by the Judge of that Court for the issue to the plaintiff of letters of administration, but that the letters of administration were not actually issued by the registrar until 26th January, 1903. The writ of summons in the present action was issued on 23rd January, 1903 :- Held. letters of administration taken out after action and before the trial, when the plaintiff brings his action as administrator, are sufficient to support the action. The Judge of the proper Surrogate Court had on the day the writ was issued ordered that letters of administration should be issued to the plaintiff, which was a judicial act and must be treated as taking precedence in point of time over the issue of the writ, which was not a judicial act. Administration-Cash on deposit-Rate of interest.] — Executors found a sum of money belonging to the testator in the hands of a loan company upon savings bank ac-count, and allowed it to remain there at 3½ per cent. per annum, for more than two years after obtaining probate of the will. In January, 1902, they closed the savings bank account, and invested the money at 4 per cent. in a debenture, but 20 days later, fearing that they would be called on to distribute the money, they took over the debenture themselves as from its date, and put the money into a chartered bank at 3 per cent. The trusts of the will, so far as the property not specifically devised was concerned. were to provide for annuities and to divide the surplus amongst the residuary legatees : -Held, that the executors would not have been justified in making long or permanent investments of the money which came into their hands; in strictness they should have deposited it from the beginning in a chartered bank, where it would have earned only 3 per cent.; and, in accounting, they should not be charged with more interest than they actually received, that is, 31/2 per cent. while the money was on deposit with the loan company, 4 per cent. for the 20 days during which it was invested in a debenture, and 3 which it was invested in a debenfure, and 3 per cent, thereafter until distributed. Administration de bonis non - Con test as to grant - Evidence - Domicil --Next in kin.]-In a contest for administration de bonis non between the next of kin of the deceased administrator, the husband of the intestate, and the next of kin of the intestate, whose status as a petitioner depended on the domicil of the intestate, the Judge of Probate disregarded the fact that letters of administration had been issued out of his Court to the estate of the intestate as domiciled in New Brunswick, the petition upon which the letters were granted not having been put in evidence or the state-ments therein relied upon, and he refused to consider as evidence a statement in the unsworn petition of a trust company applying for administration as the representative of the next of kin of the deceased adminis-trator, that at the time of her death the intestate was domiciled in New Brunswick :-Held, on appeal, that the decision was right, and that administration was properly granted to the representative of the next of kin of the intestate. Re Forester, 37 N. Administration of estate - Agreement between widow and creditors - Confirmed by Court-Reference by Local Master to himself. |-A Local Master assumed to sanction an arrangement between testator's widow and the creditors, by which the widow released her dower in her husband's lands in consideration of the creditors agreeing not to attack as fraudulent against them the transfers which her husband had made to her of part of his property. He also ordered that all balances, which might be found due from plaintiff or defendants, to the estate of deceased, should be forthwith after they had been ascertained paid into Court to the credit of the cause, subject to further order, to dispense with payment into Court — Held, that in both cases he acted without authority, and his action in order to have effect must be confirmed by the Court. Order made confirming these provisions and the report directing distribution according to its provisions, and allowing the parties the commission and disbursements that were allowed ; that the practice of the Local Master making an administration order with a reference to himself is not satisfactory, and it would be much better in such cases that the order were made by a Judge of the High Court. Administrator - Renunciation after grant - Necessity for order - Execution issued by next of kin on judgment recovered by intestate - Costs.]-Letters of adminisby intestate — Costs.]—Letters of adminis-tration to the estate of H. N. K. were granted to his widow S. K., and to his two children, E. R. and R. K. S. K., by deed, assigned all her interest in the personal property to E. R. and R. K., and, by the same deed, purported to renounce all her right, authority, and power as administra-trix of the estate. E. R. and R. K. ob-tained from the Judge of a County Court an order permitting them to issue execution on a judgment obtained by H. N. K. in his lifetime against defendant :--Held, following Jost v. McNeil, 20 N. S. R. 156, that S. K., having accepted letters of administration, could not renounce without the order of the Court of Probate, and that the order made on the application, and in the names of E. R. and R. K. only, was bad and must be set aside. The order was bad, further, for execution to issue on the judgment " for the benefit of the said R. R. and R. K.," instead of requiring any sum realized to be applied according to law under the direction of the Court of Probate. As the appellant had failed on the merits, a larger amount appearing to be due on the judgment than was claimed, there should be no costs to either party, either in this Court or in the Court below. S. 1900 c. 158 p. 565) to administer according to law. Sub sequently he applied to the Court of Probate for the settlement and distribution of the estate, and obtained a decree for payment of the balance of the estate to himself as next of kin, without disclosing the fact that the estate was indebted to the estate of C., of which he and his father were executors and trustees, for moneys of that estate received and not accounted for: - Held, Graham, E.J., dissenting, that there had been a breach of the condition, for which the sureties were liable in an action on the bond. Colford v. Compton, 39 N. S. R. 247.

Administrator's compensation - Particular fund-Will.]-A testatrix by her will. after the bequest of certain legacies, directed that the residue of her estate should be divided into four equal shares, three of which she directly disposed of, and the fourth share she devised to her son, not to be payable to him until ten years after her death, and in the meantime he was to be entitled to the income. The son died shortly after the mother, having made a will and appointed executors. On his death an order was made directing the administrators, with the will annexed, of the testatrix's estate, to pass their accounts relative to the son's share, and to hand it over to his executors. On a question being raised as to the compensation payable to such administrators :--Held, that such compensation should be paid out of the son's estate, and not that of the testatrix. Administrators pendente lite - Investment of moneys - Trustee Act - Trus-tee Investment Act.] - The administrators pendente lite of an estate asked for an order declaring that they were empowered to invest moneys in their hands during the pendency of litigation concerning the will of the deceased, in securities authorized by the Trustee Investment Act. An action was pending in the High Court, in which the validity of the will was to be tried, and in the meantime the Surrogate Court appointed the executors administrators pendente lite. They had received a large amount of money. whch they wished to invest at higher rates of interest than could be obtained from chartered banks, as the litigation was liable to be somewhat prolonged :--Held, that this was a proper case in which to apply for a direction under the Trustee Act, and that there was no difference in principle between the position of the applicants with regard to the money in their bands, and that of an executor or trustee under the Trustee In-

Deceased died in Minnesota, having his place of abode in North Dakota. Part of the estate was land situated in Saskatchewan. The locus in quo of the rest of the estate was not disclosed, nor was there evidence as to whether or not letters of administration had been granted to the estate of the intestate in the United States, nor any proof of next of kin in North Dakota, or who would be entitled to administrate there, or that letters of administration would be granted to applicant here. Application for letters of administration by stranger — Public administrafor,]—In the absence of an application by a person entitled by reason of relationship to the deceased, it is necessary, in order to justify the grant of letters of administration to a creditor or a person without interest, to shew by special circumstances that such grant is in the interests of the estate; otherwise the grant should be made to the public administrator for the district. Re Morton, 5 Terr. The plaintiff did not appear on the further hearing of the application, and some months had elapsed when this application was made to cross-examine the defendant on the affidavit : -Held, that, as the affidavit was not filed when notice of the application was served. but only (if at all) by the plaintiff himself on the return, the application must be refused .--- Quare, whether the Rule authorizes a direction that such accounts be verified under arterion that such accounts be vermit that the onth, and whether such an affidavit is an affidavit "used or to be used on any pro-ceeding in the cause or matter." Assets — Exemptions — Widow-Will-Election — Devolution of Estates Act-Gift of another's property — Insurance moneys —Charge on.) —The goods of a decensed husband, exempt from seizure, under the Execution Act, are not, except as to funeral and testamentary expenses, assets in the hands of the husband's executors for the payment of debts, the effect of s. 4 of that Act being to give his wife a parliamentary title there-The fact of the wife being residuary deto. visee under the husband's will does not put her to her election as to taking these goods, either under statutory title or under the gift of the residue, for, though such goods, apart from the statute, would pass under the residuary devise, it was otherwise here, for the husband would not, under the circum-stances, be presumed to be dealing with such goods ; nor would any such presumption arise from the fact that, under the terms of the will, the provision made for her should be in lieu of dower; nor did s, 4 of the Devolution of Estates Act affect her right, for that section must be read as being subject to s. 4 of the Execution Act. A plano belonging to the wife was dealt with by the husband under his will, as part of his estate, by giving it to his son :--Held, that the wife must elect either to allow the son to retain it, under the gift to him, or to take it herself, making good to the son the value thereset, making boot to the solution made for her in the will. A policy of insurance for $2.000was by the husband's will made payable to and for the benefit of his wife and son, and he apportioned the proceeds by giving the son $500 and his wife the residue thereof. The policy was charged with payment of a loan procured by the testator from the company.-Held, that the amount of the loan was payable by the wife and son pro rata out of their respective shares of such moneys, the gifts to them being specific. Bills of exchange - Drawn in Canada on New York-Taken by deceased to California, where he died without cashing them

-Con. Rule 1114.]-Deceased purchased two bills of exchange in Canada on New York, carried them to California, where he died without having cashed them. Plaintiff was appointed administrator in California and defendant was appointed administrator in Ontario. The bank in Canada, where the drafts had been purchased, stopped payment in New York. Question in action was, which administrator was entitled to the money ? :-Held, on principle, that the plaintiff would be, under Con. Rule 1114, but as the de-fendant was the sole heir of deceased, and the plaintiff would not require all the money to pay debts, it would not be advisable to pay money out of Court to a foreign administrator who would repay some of it to a person in Ontario (the defendant), Defendant was given option of a reference to the Master to determine amount which should be sent to plaintiff or to have the money paid to plaintiff. Business carried on for benefit of estate under will-Liability of executor-Estoppel - Statute of Limitations.] - An estate of a deceased was being administered in this action commenced in May, 1892, and V. brought into the Master's office in 1901 a claim for goods supplied to the executor, between July, 1890, and March, 1892, for use in carrying on the hotel business of dev. had, in May, 1893, sued the executor in a County Court for the price of the goods in question, but the County Court Judge dismissed the action, on the ground urged by the defendant that he was not personally liable, but that the claim thould be against the estate. The executor claimed in the administration proceedings that the estate was insolvent, but in April, 1894, an order was made by consent for the transfer of all the assets to him personally, upon his undertaking to pay or settle with all the creditors of the estate and paying $1,200 into the hands of the trustees for the benefit of the children of the deceased and certain costs, and this order was carried out on both sides. The order contained provisions that the Master should forthwith adjudicate upon and settle all claims against the estate, that the executor should indemnify and save harmless the estate from all such claims, and that he should carry out and perform all the terms and provisions of the settlement: -- Held, that a person supplying goods to an executor under such circumstances has no right against the estate, but he may sue the person who incurred the debt, and he also has a right to be subrogated to any right of indemnity which the executor has against the estate in respect of the liability so incurred. In respect of the famility so in-curred. In re Frith, [1892] 1 Ch. 342; Doucee V. Gorton, [1891] A. C. at p. 190.-2. That the executor was estopped from disputing the claim against the estate .--- 3. Compensation of executors-Distribution of corpus-Collection of interest - Management of estate.]-An estate was not a agement of estate. —An estate was not a simple one to deal with, owing to conflicting interpretations of the rights of the benefi-ciaries under the will, the nature of the trusts, their number and complication, and, to a more limited extent, the character of a portion of the assets. The executors to k over about $60,000 worth of the property in cash, mortgages, notes, farm property, and furniture. Of this they distributed a little less than half, and set apart the remainder for payment of annuities, legacies not maturetc. They collected about $16,500 of erest. They managed the estate for a ed. interest. period of a little more than four years down to the date of a report providing for their remuneration :---Held, that they were not entitled to an allowance upon taking over the estate, but should be allowed 2½ per cent. upon such portion of the corpus of the estate as they had taken over and distributed, and when the remainder of the corpus taken over should be distributed, they should have a like allowance upon the portions distributed from time to time; they should be allowed 5 per cent. on the interest collected, and to be collected; and $100 a year in addition, for the first two years, and $75 a year for the last two years, for management of the estate and services not covered by the other charges, including the care and preservation of the corpus. Re McIntyre, McIntyre v. London and Western Trusts Co., 24 C, L. T. 268, 7 O. L. R. 548, 1 O. W. R. 556, 3 O. W. R. 258

Compensation of executors and trustees - Nature of services - Percentage -Allowance.]-In fixing the amount of con compensation to trustees, there should be taken into consideration: (1) the magnitude of the trust; (2) the care and responsibility springing therefrom; (3) the time occupied in performing its duties; (4) the skill and ability displayed; (5) the success which has attended its administration. Such compensation, while fair and just, must be reasonable, but not necessarily liberal .- The duties of the executors in this case were to realise on the real estate of the testator in Manitoba and transmit the proceeds to the Ontario executors. It took nine years to complete the work, and it appeared that the executors had carried out their duties with great faithfulness and unusual success, assisted by the great advance in the values of real estate during that period, and that the total amount of money realised was over $300,000, also that R., who had the chief management of the work, had already received under orders of the Court $19,500 on account;—Held, that an additional compensation to R. of two per cent, of the gross amount realised would be fair and reasonable, and that the other two executors should together have two per cent. of the same .- Held, also, that R. was not entitled to commission as a real estate agent on sales of lands to purchasers secured by him personally, although he might have employed another person at the expense of the estate to perform such services : Am. & Eng. He appointed the widow and L. executors. One of the children died unmarried and intestate; the other two conveyed part of the land devised to the defendant, and the widow executed a quit-claim deed in favour of the defendant. L. did not join in any conveyance.—An action brought by the widow and L. as executors, to set aside the deeds to the defendant, was dismissed. Chaboyer v. Desrochers (1910), 15 W. L. R. 24.

Corroborative evidence - Advance of money-Claim for interest-Promissory note -Action for consideration.]-The plaintiff sued the surviving member of a firm, together with the representatives of a deceased member of the firm, for $1,000 lent by him, in the lifetime of the deceased, to the firm, for the purposes of the firm. He also claimed interest, alleging that this was spoken of at the time the money was borrowed, and that the deceased member of the firm had asked him what the interest would be, and he told her five per cent.; the surviving member of the firm denied all recollection of interest having been mentioned :--Held, that, inasmuch as there was corroboration as to the main fact, namely, the borrowing by the firm of $1,000, this was sufficient to entitle the plaintiff to recover the interest claimed. When a promissory note is taken from a borrower as collateral security for money lent to him, and not in payment, an action can be brought for the money lent, notwithstanding that, owing to the form of the note, an action thereon could not be maintained. Costs of unsuccessful action — Personal estate — Real estate.] — An executor, without direct authority or obtaining indemnity, brought an action to receiver a sum of money alleged to belong to the testator, and this action was dismissed with costs, the personal estate being insufficient to pay the costs of the opposite party :—Held, that, though the general rule is that an executor acting in good faith is entitled to be recouped his costs of an unsuccessful action, this rule would not justify the executor resorting for this purpose to specifically devised real estate. Re Champagne, St. Jean v. Si.aard, 24 C. L. T. 234, 7 O. L. R. 537, 3 O. W. R. 515.

Creditor's action against executors —Stay pending administration suit.]—A motion by the defendants, executors, to stay a creditor's action against them, on the ground that an administration action by a legatee was pending, in which an administration order had been granted, was opposed on the ground of inconvenience to the plaintiff and generally as to the right to grant a stay in such cases: — Held, that actions should be stayed against the estate, unless a fair consideration of the claim cannot be had by the referee. The affidavits of the plaintiff disclosed that it would be a hardship if compelled to come to Halifax to establish the claim before the referee; but it was stated that the referee would go to Sydney to inquire into the claim. The order to stay proceedings was continued until the referees should have an opportunity of considering the claim. Broven v. McDonald, 25 C. L. T. 131.

Distribution of estate - Unpaid legatee-Contribution by others-Limitation actions.]-Legatees entitled to a share of the residue of an estate are not bound by the accounts and proceedings in an administration action instituted by other residuary legatees in which they have not been added as parties. and of which they have received no notice. The judgment in such an action, however, enures to their benefit, and makes a fresh starting point in their favour as against the defence of the Statute of Limitations .- In the absence of reasonable efforts by the executors of an estate to discover the where-abouts of persons entitled to share in the residue, other persons who have received a share of the residue must refund, for the benefit of the persons whose claims have been ignored, the amount received in excess of the sum payable if the division had been properly made. Distribution of estates-Absentce next of kin — Advertisement for creditors and others —Publication in newspaper—Failure of absentee to make claim—R. S. O. 1897 c. 129—Bar to future claim.]—The administrators of the estate of an intestate, who died in 1906, inserted three times in a newspaper published at the place in Ontario where the intestate was residing at the time of his death an advertisement headed "Notice to Creditors," given pursuant to R. S. O. 1897 c. 129. calling upon "all creditors and others having claims against the estate" of the deceased to send them in to the solicitor for the administrators by a named date, and stating that after such date they would not be liable to any person of whose claim notice should not have been received. One of the next of kin, who would, if alive, have been entitled to a distributive share of the estate, had left Canada in 1876, and no communication had since been received from him or information about him, except that soon after his departure a sister of his heard that he was in Oregon, and in 1895 an aunt heard that he was dead. Diligent inquiry was made for him in 1882, but he was not then found. No one had even heard of his marrying. No claim was made on his behalf upon the estate: -Held, that the advertisement was sufficient; that it covered next of kin; and that the absentee would be barred if he were hereafter to make any claim; and therefore the administrators should divide the assets amongst Executors and trustees' accounts -Surrogate Court-Approval by Judge-Fraud or mistake-Items of overcharge - Application to re-open accounts—Re-opening limited to items proved — Surrogate Courts Act Jurisdiction — Costs.]—A petition by the cestui que trust to the Judge of a Surrogate Court to set aside an order made by him upon the passing of the accounts of the trustees and to re-open the accounts, was dismissed with costs, subject to the petitioner being allowed to surcharge the accounts of the trustees upon two items, viz., premiums paid by the trustees for fire insurance, from which they should have deducted rebates or commissions allowed to them by the insurance companies, and an overcharge of one cent a share upon a purchase of 3,000 shares of mining stock by former trustees :--Held, affirming the judgment of the Judge of the Surrogate Court (York), that he had properly refused to open up the accounts in regard to the purchase of the mining stock referred to, in regard to an alleged overcharge of interest, in regard to the sale of a property without notice to the petitioner, in regard to certain mortgage accounts, and in regard to other matters .- It was contended for the petitioner that the non-disclosure of the fact that the rebates had been allowed amounted to fraud on the part of the trustees entitling the petitioner to have the accounts re-opened and taken de novo, and that, at all events, coupled with the overcharge as to the mining stock, she was so entitled. The accounts approved by the Judge were brought before him under the provisions of s. 72 of the Surrogate Courts Act, as amended by 2 Edw. VII. c. 12, s. 11, and 5 Edw. VII. c. 14, s. 1:--Held, that, under that section, it is only so far as mistake or fraud is shewn, that the binding effect of the approval is taken away; and the language of the section plainly indicates that it was not intended that the whole account should be opened up, but that the account should be opened up so as to remove from it should be opened up so as to remove non it anything which, owing to fraud or mistake, had not been charged or had been allowed to the accounting party. The principle appli-cable to the opening of an ordinary stated account, and the consequences of such an account being opened, do not apply to an account taken by the Court in the presence of the parties, where the persons to whom the accounting is being made are brought before the Court for the purpose of enabling them to challenge, if they will, the correctness of the account.—While the failure to credit the rebates was not due to a mere accidental omission of them from the account, the intentional retention of the small sum not credited, apparently under the mistaken idea that the trustees were entitled to it, did not amount to fraud, or at all events not to such fraud as would entitle the petitioner to the relief which she claimed or to any further relief than that given to her by the order of the Judge .- The petitioner should not have been ordered to pay all the costs of the trustees in the Court below, as she had succeeded to a trifling extent. No costs of the appeal were allowed to either party, but without prejudice to the trustees' right to claim their costs as proper disbursements in accounting thereafter to the petitioner. Excentors continuing testator's business.]---Where executors continue the busi-ness of the testator after his death only temporarily and for the mere purpose of effecting sale of the business as a going concern, they are entitled to indemnity out of the estate in respect to liabilities properly incurred by in respect to infinites properly incurred by them in the management of the business. Douse v. Gorton, [1891] A. C. 190, 60 L. J. Ch. 745, 64 L. T. 809, followed. As a general rule the indemnity will only be ordered as against unsecured creditors, except where the assent of the secured creditors is given to the continuation of the business, and where such consent is given there will be no distinction made between secured and unsecured creditors, except, however, that the executors must look first to the property on which there is no security before they can look to the property covered by the security. To prove the assent of secured creditors something more than knowledge and acquiescence on the part of the creditors must be shewn : Dourse v. Gorton followed. Brooke v. Brooke, [1894] 2 Ch. 600, 64 L. J. Ch. 21, 71 L. T. 398, disapproved and not followed .- Where, however, the circumstances are such that it enforce the rule that secured creditors have priority over the executors' claim for indemnity, that rule will be relaxed .--- Where, therefore, executors carried on an hotel business temporarily, after the testator's death, for the purpose of keeping the hotel business as a going concern and preventing lapse of the goin: concern and preventing lapse of the liquor license in connection with the hotel, and the secured creditors, with knowledge, acquiesced in the continuation of the business :---Held, that to the extent of any money paid to the secured creditors whose security was on the hotel premises, by the executors out of moneys received by them from the management of the business, the executors were entitled to indemnity as against those secured creditors :--Held, also, that, where one of the secured creditors whose security was upon the hotel premises and whose security was not obtained for actual present advance in money, but as security for a past debt. had not only acquiesced in the continuation of the business but intervened and obtained a change of receivers in order to further carry on the business, the executors were entitled to indemnity in priority to such secured creditor: -Held, however, that the executors were not entitled to indemnity as against a secured creditor whose security was not upon the premises in which the business was carried on, but was upon other property. -The action having been first commenced against the next-of-kin of the testator and the secured creditors only, upon the application of the plaintiffs one unsecured cred tor was added a party-defendant to represent generally the unsecured creditors. Fatal Accidents Act—Conflicting claims —Consolidation of actions—Negligence.]—A woman, claiming to be the wildow of a man killed owing as alleged to the negligence of the defendants, brought an action against them, with her two children as co-plaintiffs, to recover damages. Subsequently another action was brought by another woman, also claiming to be the deceased's widow, to recover damages for the benefit of herself and her child, her marriage having taken place after an alleged divorce of the first plaintiff:

-Held, that only one action would lie under the Act; that that action would be for the benefit of the persons in fact entitled; and that, there being no doubt as to the right of the children in the first action, the first action should be allowed to proceed and the rights of all parties worked out in it, the plainting in the second action to be represented by counsel at the trial if desired. Fatal Accidents Act — Right of action —Action before grant of administration — Fiat of Surrogate Court Judge, —This action was brought by the plaintiff as administrator of a workman who died in the service of the defendants, in consequence, as alleged, of their negligence. The plaintiff never had any personal right or interest in the subject-matter of the litigation:—Held, that the action must be dismissed, but without prejudice to the plaintiff insign another action, Dimi v, Fauquier, 24 C, L. The first in point of time was brought by the paternal grandfather and grandmother of the deceased, and the second by his mother, who had obtained letters of administration to his estate after the bringing of the first action. Upon a motion by the defendants to stay one or other of the actions :—Held, that, while the grandfather and grandmother could legally proceed with their action under R. S. O. 1897 c. 166, although brought within six months of the death, so long as there was no executor or administrator, yet an administratrix having been appointed and an action brought by her within the six months, she was entitled to proceed with it; and the first action was the one to be stayed. Fatal Accidents Act-Status of widow Grant of administration pendente lite – Workmen's Compensation Act-Negligence-Release of cause of action-Relphs of mather -Expectation of benefit – Discovery of fresh evidence-Damages-New trial.]-An action was brought to recover damages for the death of a workman employed by the defendants, owing to their alleged negligence. The plaintiff alleged that she was the widow of the deceased, but this was denied. She obtained as widow, pendente lite, letters of adminis-tration to the estate of the deceased, and tration to the estate of the deceased, and amendments were made by which she claimed as administratrix for her own benefit as widow and for the benefit of the mother of the deceased. The defendants denied of the deceased. The defendants denied negligence, denied the plaintiff's status as widow and administratrix, and also set up a release of the cause of action. The trial Judge found against the plaintiff's status. but the jury found negligence, and assessed the damages at $1,500, apportioning that sum equally between the plaintiff and the mother : Held, that there was evidence upon which the jury were justified in finding that the man's death arose from the negligence of the defendants without blame on his part; and therefore that there should not be a nonsuit or a new trial upon this branch of the case; Meredith, J., dissenting, and being of opinion that there should be a new trial. 2. That That the release given by the plaintiff should not, on the evidence, be held binding on her : Anglin, J., hesitating. 3. That on the evidence the mother had no sufficient interest in her son's life or expectation from him to give her a right of action in respect of his death; and there should be a new assessment of dam-ages unless the plaintiff was content to ac-cept $750. 4. That there should be a new trial upon the question of the plaintiff's right as widow and administratrix, evidence having been discovered since the trial going to shew that the plaintiff was the true widow. Foreign will — Action to set aride — Powers of provisional administrator appointed by French Court.]—The widow of W. C. H. died at London, England, Leaving property in Great Britain, France, and Canada. By her last will she appointed "La Societé Charitable de l'Asile de nuit à Paris" her universal legatee, and a French Court appointed L., a notary, provisional administrator of the succession. Subsequently the heirs of W. C. H. brought an action to have the will set aside, and afterwards the Court at Paris confirmed the appointment of L. for such time as might be necessary. I. then asked for an account from Mrs. H.'s former agent in Montreal, and obtained from the French Court an order allowing him to delegate his powers as provisional administrator to a designated person, with power to sue the former agent at Montreal for an account respecting the property in Canada. In the menntime, however, the Superior Court of Quebec had appointed M., a notary, judicial sequestrator of the property. L. brought the present action to obtain possession of the property from M. and relid on the facts above set forth:--Held, that the judicial sequestrator appointed by a Court of this province was the proper person to be in possession of the property in this province. Judgment against executors - Evidence of debt-Endorsement of note-Devolu-tion of Estates Act - Caution - Estate.] -A judgment against executors is only prima facie evidence of its being for a debt due by the testator, and the parties interested in the real estate are at liberty to disprove it. In an action by a judgment creditor on a judgment recovered on a promissory note dis-counted by him, which note was received by the executors for the sale of personal property of the testator, and endorsed "without ery of the testing, and endowsed without recourse 'to the plaintiff:-Held, that the endowsement of the note by the executors would not make it a debt of the testinor in the hands of the endorse.—Held, also, that the effect of the Devolution of Estates Act and amendments, acted upon by the registration of a caution under the sanction of a County Court Judge, after the twelve months had expired, was to place lands of a testator again under the power of his executors on that they could sell them to satisfy debts; and that the expression "in the hands" of executors, as applied to property of the testator, is satisfied if it is under their control and saleable at their instance; and that the operation of a devise of lands is only postponed for the purposes of administration, and the estate does not pass through the medium of the executors, but by the operation of the devise. Liability of administrator for interest of deceased in land under contract for pur-chase-Burden of proof - Evidence-Incom-plete agreement-Application of money paid by deceased on debt due to vendor-Arrangement between administratrix and vendor -Attack by creditor-Bona fides.]-The plain-tiff, who was a creditor of a deceased person, sought to fix the defendant, as administratrix of the estate of the deceased, with liability for a margin of value said to have existed in the dwelling-house property occupied by the deceased at his death-the plaintiff alleging that the deceased held the property under an agreement of sale from a company, the owners of it, and that, by the de-fendant's wilful default or by conversion to her own use, the benefit of that margin was lost to the estate. In fact, on the 12th April, 1904, the deceased paid the company $500 on account of a proposed purchase of the dwelling-house property at $4,000, which was the true value of the property; the $500 was paid in pursuance of an arrangement not reduced to writing. The deceased was, however, at the time, indebted to the company in the sum of $500. An agreement embodying the terms of the proposed sale and purchase was drawn up in duplicate dated pany, but not by the deceased, and the two instruments were found among the deceased's papers when he died, about 4 months later. Several of the special provisions appearing in the instrument were not discussed at the time of the oral negotiations or at any other time, but were presented to the mind of the deceased for the first time when the company sent him the duplicate instruments, 4 months before his death :---Held, that the oral negotiations between the deceased and the company resulted in an incomplete agreement, the detailed terms of which, it was contemplated, should be expressed in a formal agreement, to be drawn up at the instance of the company and submitted to the deceased; that the signing of the formal agreement was contemplated as a condition precedent to the final transaction by which the parties were to be bound; and that, therefore, until that event, there was no contherefore, until that event, there was no tog-tract; and that, inasmuch as the instruments signed by the company did not contemplate signature under seal, the proposal of the company (regarding these instruments as a proposal) might have been accepted orally by the deceased; yet, as a matter of fact, it never was so accepted.-Held, also, that, in any case, the burden of establishing that there was an interest in the property in question, the benefit of which the estate fulled to receive through the fault or default of the defendant, was on the plaintiff; and had failed to discharge that burden .--After the death, the defendant said to the company that she could not carry out the proposed agreement, and asked to have the $500 repaid to the estate. She was then told that the deceased owed the company $500, which was the fact, and the defendant accepted that statement, and did not press for the $500:-Held, per Beck, J., that the estate, by the defendant's acceptance of the position taken by the company, got the benefit of the whole margin in the property, that is, $500. Had the agreement been recognised as a concluded agreement, the margin of $500 would have formed an asset of the estate, but there would have been a corresponding liability to the company for the same amount; and, although the company would not have had their claim paid in full,

Mortgage — Purchaser of equity — Indemnity — Death — Release — Insolvent exter — Administrator,] — The administrators of the insolvent estate of a deceased mortgager are not liable in damages to his mortgage as upon a devastavit, because they release the purchaser of the equity of redemption in the mortgaged properly from his liability to indemnify the mortgagor in respect of the mortgage. Judgment in 30 O. R. 684, 19 C. L. T. 280, affirmed. Higgins V. Trusts Corporation of Ontario, 20 C. L. T. 347, 27 A. R. 432.

Negligence - Agent's fraud-Limitation of actions-Trustee Limitation Act.]-The Trustee Limitation Act, R. S. O. c. 129, s. 32, protects executors where, relying in good faith on the statement of their testator's solicitor that he has in his hands securities sufficient to answer a fund they are directed by the will to invest for an annuitant, they distribute the estate, and it is afterwards found that before the testator's death the solicitor had misappropriated the money given to him by the testator to invest, and had in fact at the time of the representation no securities or money in his hands. Payments made from time to time by the solicitor to the annuitant, ostensibly as of interest received by him from the fund, do not keep alive the right of action against the executors. Judgment of Street, J., 30 O. R. 532, 19 C. L. T. 174, re-versed. Clark v. Bellamy, 20 C. L. T. 350, 27 A. R. 435.

Notice to elaimants - Limitation of actions-Trustee Limitation Act - Trustee Relief Act.]-A notice by executors that " all parties indebted to the estate of the late (testator) are required to settle their in-debtedness" by a named date, and that "parties having claims against said estate are also required to file same by said date," is not a sufficient notice within s. 38 of R. S O. c. 129 to protect the executors from liability for claims not brought to their knowledge until after the estate has been dis-tributed by them. Their liability in this tributed by them. respect extends to claims against their tes-tator for money lost owing to a breach of duty by him as trustee. Persons having a reversionary interest in a trust fund may bring an action to compel the trustee to make good money lost owing to his negligence, and the Trustee Limitation Act does not run against them from the time of the loss, but only from the time their reversionary interest becomes an interest in possession. After judgment had been given in the Court below (30 O. R. 110, 18 C. L. T. 407), against the executors in this case, the Act for the Relief of Trustees, 62 V, c. 15 (O.), was passed.—Held, that, assuming the Act to apply to such a case, it did not relieve the executors, for they could not be held to have acted reasonably when they failed to follow the plain statutory directions as to notice to creditors and claimants. Streart v. Snyder, 20 C. L. 7, 251, 27 A. R. 423.

Official administrator — Heirs out of jurisdiction — Letters of administration.]— The official administrator is not allowed to take out letters of administration in opposition to the heirs of the deceased, such heirs being resident out of the jurisdiction, but having an atterney-heif-fact within the province to manage the estate, and there being no evidence that the deceased had any debts or any substantial personal property, although he died possessed of real estate within the province subject to a mortgage. Passing accounts—Corroboration—Payment of claims—Statutory declarations.] — A Judge sittirg on the probate side of the Court passing m.counts is not bound by the rule of procedure requiring claimants against the estate to give corroborative proof of their claims. This rule of procedure is applicable only when the claim comes to be contested in Court—Semble, a Judge sitting without a jury is not bound any more than is a jury to apply it under all circumstances. The responsibility of paying claims fails upon the administrator: he must use care and judgment in considering them, and if he does so the estate, he will on passing his accounts be allowed such as he has thought fit to pay. Passing of accounts - High Court -Reference to take accounts in Master's office —Prior account in Surrogate Court—Effect of — Consent judgment — Trustees.]—By s. 72 of the Surrogate Courts Act, R. S. O. 1897, c. 59, "Where an executor or administrator has filed in the proper Surrogate Court an account of his dealings with the estate of which he is executor or administrator, and the Judge has approved thereof in whole or in part, if the executor or administrator is subsequently required to pass his accounts in the High Court, such approval, except in so far as fraud or mistake is shewn, shall be binding upon any person who was notified of the proceeding taken before the Surrogate Judge, or who was present or represented therein, and upon every one claiming under such person."-The defendant, an executor, brought into the proper Surrogate Court the accounts of certain estates of which he was the executor, which were passed by the Judge in the presence of the solicitor for the plaintiff, a beneficiary. Sub-sequently the plaintiff brought an action in the High Court, and, without any pleadings being delivered, an order was made, by consent, for the removal of the executor and the appointment of a trust company in his place, and for the passing of the accounts, adopting the common form of the order for such purpose :--Held, that on the taking of the accounts in the Master's office the account taken and passed by the Surrogate Court Judge was, under s. 72, no mistake or fraud having been shewn, binding on the plaintif, for, notwithstanding such consent, the judgment must be construed as if made in invitum, and the usual rules of law and procedure, statutory and otherwise, applied thereto.--63 V. c. 17, s. 18 (O.), 5 Edw. Payment of debts — Authorisation of Court-Consent of heir or unreasonable refusal to consent.]—The Court cannot authorise the testamentary executors to pay a delt of the testator unless it is ascertained and undisputed by the heirs, or the payment of it is unjustly refused by the heir, or where the heir cannot zive a consent to such a payment, as in cases of unsound mind or absence, or where the heir has refused the hequest, or there is no heir or leartee. This entirely discretionary authorisation will act be accorded if the debt is disputed or disputable by the heir upon apparently reasonable grounds. Ex p. Clark, 10 Que, P. R. 201.

Penalty—Statement of property not made in time — Action — Plea — Difficulty — Delay. [—An executor against whom an action is brought for a penalty for having neglected to make within the propert time the declaration required by law of the property left by the testator, cannot plead that he has done what he can to prepare a statement of the affairs of the estate, but has not succeeded by reason of numerous difficulties, and that he has asked for time; these allegations will be struck out on inscription in law. Frederick v. Gibson, 37 N. B. R. 126.

Personal Hability — Promissory note — Debt of estate — Revecuel—Consideration — Statute of Frauds—Amendment.]—Action on a promissory note payable on demand, sined by the defendant, as "executor of an estate", but not expressly restricted to payment out of the estate:—Held, that the defendant was personally liable. The note was given in renewal of a former one (similarly simed) which was not a demand note, but payable at a definite time, the debt being originally the testator's:—Held, that there was a good consideration for the former note, if not for the demand note, namely, forbearance on the part of the plaintiffs, and the defendant was liable thereon; and his antecedent liability was a valuable consideration for the demand note: s. 27. Power to sell lands-Charge of legacies - Trustee Act - Devolution of Estates Act.]-P. died on the 11th September, 1886, leaving a will in which he appointed executors and gave all his estate, real and personal, to his wife for life subject to certain bequests, and should his brother survive the wife he was to have the life use of the resi due of the property, which was afterwards to go to the brother's children. In several places in the will (which was not skilfully pinces in the win twinch was not skilling drawn), the testator used the expressions "from the time Humewood," sold," "after the sale of Humewood," and "so soon as Humewood is sold," but there was no devise to the executors in trust, and no express power of sale. The lands in question which were a portion of what was called "Hume-wood" in the will, were sold and conveyed by the executors, and the vendors made title under such conveyance. The sale was not made in any way under the Devolution of Estates Act, and was not for the payment of debts. The question was whether the executors had power to sell. The Devolution of Estates Act, 1886, came into force on the 1st July, 1886, shortly before the death of the testator:-Heid, that under what is now 18 of the Trustee Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 8. 18 of the Trustee Act, R. S. O. 1807 C. 129, the executors had power to sell, the testator having created such a charge as is described in s. 16, and not having devised the real estate to the executors in trust; that s. 16 of the Devolution of Estates Act, as found in R. S. O. 1897, c. 127 (which first became law in 1891), did not oblige the executors to sell under the Devolution of Estates Act, for by s.-s. (2) that section is not to derogate from any right possessed by an executor or administrator independently of the Act; that if the testator had devised the land to the executors upon trust, the mach-inery of the Devolution of Estates Act was not to be applied. Re Booth's Estate, 16 O. R. 429; and no more should it where the executors have a statutory power of sale to satisfy a charge. Re Moore and Langmuir, 21 C. L. T. 562.

Power to sell lands after expiration of two years after testator's death--Direction is will.]-Meredith, C.J.C.P., held, that excentors had power to sell lands after the expiration of two years from the testtor's death, notwithstanding his direction contained in his will to the effect that his lands should be sold within two years from his death. Re Walton & Bailey (1910), 17 O. W. R. 700, 2 O. W. N. 428.

Powers of executors - Sale of land -Payment of debts — Devises in fee-Execu-tory devises over — Devolution of Estates Act-Tru 'ce Act.]-A testatrix gave to her daughter some personal effects and $4,000 to be paid by her son, charged on property deshe gave to her son, charged with $4,000 Sho then directed that in case of the death of either the son or daughter without issue, the whole of the property was to go to the survivor, and in case of the death of both without issue, to brothers and sisters of the testatrix. The executors contracted to sell a part of the real estate to the appellant, the daughter being alive and having three children, the son alive and unmarried, and brothers and sisters being also in existence. The land was incumbered and there were other debts:-Held, that the executors, even with-out the concurrence of the son and daughter, and a fortiori with their concurrence, could make a good title, either under the Devolu-tion of Estates Act, R. S. O. 1897, c. 127, ss. 4, 9, 16, or under the Trustees Act, R. S. O. c. 129, s. 18. Section 9 of the former Act enables executors to sell for the payment of debts, and the power to sell is not quali-fied by s. 16. That section was intended to make it clear that executors had power to sell for the purposes of distribution where there were no debts as well as where there were debts; and the consent of the official guardian, on behalf of infants, lunatics, and non-concurring heirs or devisees, is only necessary when the sale is for purposes of distribution only. The power of sale given to executors by s. 18 of the Trustee Act was executors by s. 18 of the trustee Act was exercisable in this case, notwithstanding the last clause of s. 20; "a devise to any person or persons in fee or in tail, or for the tes-tator's whole estate and interest," does not mean a devise of a life estate to one or more encode a secondary and a conservation of the second second persons, and a remainder or several remainders to one or more others, either jointly or successively, and with, it may be, executory devises over to still other persons, so that his whole fee simple, or less estate, whatever it may be, is disposed of; but it means a devise of his whole interest, whatever it may be, whether it be an estate in fee simple or any less interest, to the same person or persons, either as joint tenants or tenants in sons, either as joint tenants or tenants in common. In re Wilson, Pennington v. Pagne, 54 L. T. N. S. 600, 2 Times L. R. 443, approved. Re Ross & Davies, 24 C. L. T. 213, 7 O. L. R. 433, 3 O. W. R. 215.

Property willed to inmate of an asylam — "May" is handed over if pronounced permanently cured — Construction of will.]—Testator gave property to executors for the benefit of an adopted daughter, in an asylam, and directed that should she be dismissed from the asylam as "permanently cured," "the entire amount. 'may' be placed at once at her possession." She was dismissed as "cured." On motion for adminiveration of the estate, it was held, that the word "may" did not necessarily mean "must;" the power conferred was discretionary, and in this case it would be in the best interest of the beneficiary that the money should remain in the hands of the executors for investment and payment over as they deem advisable, not only the interest, but such additional amounts as may be necessary or the maintenance and confort of the benetering. Re Bennett, Sennett v. Philip (1900), 14 O. W. R. 1076, 1 C. W. N. 213.

Resunction of executorship — No jurisdiction of High Court to set aside renunciation—Surrogate Courts Act-Judicature Act.]—Teetzel, J., held, that all jurisdiction and authority in testamentary matters is by the Surrogate Courts Act. VII. c. 31, ss. 19 and 20, vested in the Surrogate Courts, subject to provisions of the Judicature Act.—That neither the Judicature Act nor the Surrogate Courts Act, gave the High Court jurisdiction to adjudicate upon a claim to set aside a renunciation of probate, or to allow a retraction by a plaintiff, who was named in the will as executor and who had filed a renunciation, therefore plaintiff must seek redress in the Surrogate Court in which the renunciation was filed and out of which probate issued. Foswell v. Sale of lands—No power to sell in will —Purchaser made permanent improvements in the improvements and damares—Latchford, J., allowed purchaser a lien on lands for permanent improvements under R. S. O. (1897), c. 119, s. 30—Damages not allowed — Defendants given offset for occupation rent.—Baiw v, Fothergil, L. R. 7 H. L. 153, followed, Rose v, Parent (1911), 18 O. W. R. 745, 2 O. W. N. 783.

Security "judicatum solvi" — Foreigner inheriting — Administrator residing out of the province.]—When a plaintiff proceeds in any character whatever, it is the domicil of the person represented and not that of the representative, that ought to be traken into consideration in deciding whether large should be security "judicatum solci." Consequently the administrator of an estate appointed outside the province of Ouebec, ought to furnish such security even if he resides in Quebec. Re Gagné v. Superior (1900), 10 Que. P. R. 401.

Seisin of movable property — Rents of immovable property—Agreement with tenants.]—The seisin of movable property of successions by testamentary executors, under Art. 918, C. C., carries with it the right to collect, during the year and a day of its duration, the revenues of the immovable property. Hence, in an action for rent and damages, under a lease by the legatees of the lessor against the lesse, the latter may law fully plead matter of agreement respecting such rent and damages between himself and the testamentary executors of the lessor, during the period of seisin of the latter. Saint-Aubin v. Crevier, 28 Que, S. C. 392.

Settlement of estate - Unreasonable delay-Allowance of interest to beneficiary -Void will-Payments made under.]-The executor named in a vill is not entitled to delay payment of legacies for the period of eighteen months from the decease of the testator, where it appears that there were ample funds in his hands to enable him to have paid the same at least twelve months, and in the absence of evidence to shew the existence of debts, claims, or difficulties calling for eighteen months to dispose of them .-Where it appears that there has been unreasonable delay, and a decree has been made allowing the beneficiary interest, after the expiration of the period of twelve months, such decree will not be disturbed .- The executor under a will which has been set aside as void, will be entitled, in taking the acto credit for an amount paid out bona fide under the probate of the void will, but such payment is no answer to parties claiming under the terms of a previous will, subsequently admitted to probate, to have the terms of such will carried out, Cullen v. McNeil, 42 N. S. R. 346.

Specific legacy — Realisation—Set-off— Debt barred by statute—Retainer. Holt v. Perry, 2 O. W. R. 424.

Substitution-Power to sell property and reinvest — Mortgage by grevé — Creditors —Attachment of debts.]—The testator left his property to the defendant, subject to a substitution in favour of the children of the defendant, with a stipulation of insaisissabilité. The will, however, permitted the exe-cutors, of whom the defendant was one, to sell the property on condition of employing the moneys arising from the sale in the purchase of property of the same value as the property sold, the property so acquired to represent that sold. The defendant in 1869 sold one of the immovables of the estate, and in 1873 he bought in his own name a lot upon which he built a house. In 1895 he charged and hypothecated this land in favour of his children to the amount of $10,440, which was the cost price, to serve and be in-stead of, as the deed said, a reinvestment for the children in accordance with the provisions of the will, up to the amount of the price so The deed of hypothecation reserved to paid the defendant the right to remove the hypo-thee, and invest elsewhere, whether in purchasing new porperties or upon other suffi-cient securities: - Held, that the deed of hypothec did not constitute a valid reinvestment of the moneys arising from the sale of the property of the estate, and that the revenues of the immovable acquired by the defendant in his own name could be attached by his creditors. De Serres v. Leclaire, 23 Que, S. C. 454.

Successions — Acceptance — Surviving consort — Accounting — Expenses of mourning and of last illness — Burial — C. C. 638, 639, 645, 650, 651, 736, 1198, 1368, 2002, 2003; C. P. 105, 113]. — I. The acceptance of a succession is valid only when the party accepting has been called to it.---2. The heir has the choice of three courses; pure and simple acceptance, acceptance under benefit of inventory, renunciation .--- 3. The heir who is sued, and who sets up in his plea his title and quality of heir, is deemed to have accepted the succession .--- 4. Except for reasons of fraud, violence or lesion, a person cannot impugn his acceptance of a succession.-5. The surviving consort is not responsible for the expenses of mourning, of last illness or of burial, because such con-sort is not the reputed heir and such expenses are not liabilities arising from the marriage .- 6. In the absence of conclusions asking for an accounting, the legal heirs, sued by the surviving consort, cannot set up the plantiff's default to render an account of her interference in the affairs of the succession. -7. In any event, an accounting may be legally made by direct action. Vaudry v. Belanger (1910), 16 Que. R. L., n. s. 294.

Supposed death of intestate — Evidence of death — Application by public administrator for letters of administration. Re Tjerstrom (Y.T.), 1 W. L. R. 385.

Surrogate Courts - Grant of Administration-Nominee of next of kin in Ontario -Discretion - Revocation - Fraud.] -Only one of the next of kin, the sister, of an intestate, resided in Ontario, and, upon the consent of the sister and her children, letters of administration were granted by a Surrogate Court to the defendant, the husband of the sister's daughter. A brother of the intestate, resident in the United States, brought this action to revoke the grant. was stated in the defendant's petition that all of the next of kin had renounced in his favour, but it was plain from the renuncia-tion, which was fil d, that this statement was intended to refer only to the next of kin esident in Ontario :- Held, that the Surrogate Court had before it all those who were required by s. 41 of the Surrogate Courts Act,, R. S. O. 1897, c. 59, to be cited or sum moned, and the consent and request of all of them that the defendant should be appointed administrator, and, having regard to the nature of the property of the deceased, and the age and illiteracy of his sister, that the Judge had not exercised his discretion improperly in directing the grant to be made to the defendants .- Semble, that, even if the discretion had been improperly exercised, the grant would not have been revoked. The practice of the Surrogate Courts in this Province is to apply the provisions of s. 59 of the Act more liberally than do the English Courts the corresponding provision of the English Probate Act .-- Held, also, affirming the finding of the Surrogate Court, that the defendant had not made false suggestions nor concealed material facts for the purpose of obtaining the grant. Carr v. O'Rourke, 22 C. L. T. 207, 3 O. L. R. 632, 1 O. W. R. 331.

Surrogate Courts — Passing accounts — Res judicata.]—An action by administrator with will annexed to recover a certain amount of money from defendant was dismissed on merits. Union v. Bensley, 12 O. W. R. 1069.

Survival of action - Tort-Power to appoint administrator ad litem.]-R. S. O.

1897 c. 129, s. 11, providing that in case any deceased person has committed a wrong to another in respect to his person or his real or personal property, the person so wronged may maintain an action against the administrators or executors of the person who committed the wrong, does not give authority to maintain an action against one who is an administrator ad litem merely, but only against an administrator in the ordinary sense of the term, that is, a general administrator clothed with full power to collect the assets, pay the debts, and divide the estate. Therefore, for this reason, apart from others, the appointment of an administrator ad litem should be refused in this action, which was brought against five persons for malicious prosecution, one of whom had died pending the action, and whose widow and children refused to administer to the estate. Hunter v. Boyd, 22 C. L. T. 50, 3 O. L. R. 183, 1 O. W. R. 79, 2 O. W. R. 724, 1055.

EXECUTORS AND ADMINISTRATORS.

Taking possession of estate — Debtor opposing claim for account—Period of year and a day — Commencement of—Cessation of executor's functions.]-The fact that a debtor of an estate resists an action en reddition de compte brought against him by an executor, alleging that he is not accountable to the estate, does not prevent the executor from taking possession of the estate: nor is he prevented from doing so because the debtor, having been ordered to render an account to the executor, renders an account in which he brings himself out free of debt to the estate, so long as the executor contests such account. 2. In con-sequence, the period of a year and a day commences to run from the date of the death of the testator, the executor being presumed to have known the will from that date. 3. If the year and a day from the death have elapsed during the pendency of the contest as to the account, then there is plainly a cessation of the functions of the executor, and the proceeding is suspended until the legatee or heir takes up the conduct of it in place of the executor. Francœur v. Paradis, 20 Que. S. C. 246.

Technical breaches of trust - Relief from - Limitation of actions - Trustee Acts.]-Where it was held that the appointment of executors to carry out the alternative provisions of the will never took effect, it was also held that the persons named as executors, having applied for and obtained probate, became trustees for the persons probate, became trustees for the persons entitled upon an intestacy; payments made by them to those who would have been beneficially entitled if the alternative provi-sions had taken effect were brenches of trust; but the Statute of Limitations was a bar to a recovery in respect of any of those breaches which occurred more than six years before the action was brought: R. S. 1897 c. 129, s. 32 :- Held, moreover, that the executors were entitled to be relieved from personal liability for all breaches of trust committed by them under 62 V., 2nd sees., c. 15, they having acted honestly and rea-sonably, in view of the facts that the construction of the will was doubtful; the trial Judge took the same view of its effect as they did, and for eleven years everybody interested in the estate acquiesced in that view. Henning v. Maclean, 21 C. L. T. 434, 2 O. L. R. 169.

Title to land — Ejectment—Costa,]—P. L. died, owning land in fee simple; letters of administration of his estate were granted to J. L; J. L. died, and letters of administration of her estate were granted to the plaintiffs, who sought by this action to recover possession of the land of P. L, upon the tile thus set forth:—Held, that the legal estate passed to J. L. as administrativa of the estate of P. L., but was vested in her solely for the purposes of administrativa; and, there being no evidence to indicate that J. L. had, in the course of her administration, conveyed the land to herself for her own benefit, the plaintiffs title being apparent upon the plendings, while the action have received had he raised the point of law and had the action disposed of in that way, instead of going to trial. National Trust Co. v. Prouls (1910), 15 W, L. R. 349, 20 Man, L. R. 137.

Tort of testator—Action against testator —Death pending action — Recovery against estate — Time limit.]—Under R. S. N. S. 1000 c. 177, s. 2, dealing with actions against executors for injuries done by deceased, although the action is brought in the lifetime of the deceased, if he dies before judgment there can be no recovery against the estate, if six months have elapsed between the acts complained of and the death. —Reasons for not allowing cests. McDonald v. Dickson, 40 N. S. R. 500.

Transfer of debt to executors—Plead-ing—Reply—Departure.] — Executors have a status to recover a balance due upon a debt transferred to them in their capacity of executors.—H, in reply to an exception to the form, they set up and produce documents which confer upon them more extended powers than those which are given to them by the law alone, such part of the reply will not be struck out on motion, as setting up a new ground of action. Francis v. Rhine, 3 Que, P. R. 320.

Trespass to land—Survival of action — Continuing cause of action — Reviver.)— In an action for trespass to land, brought la 1895, the statement of claim included a claim for erecting and maintaining feuces and depasturing cattle. The plaintiff died in July, 1897, and his executive was made a party in April, 1898;—Held, that R. S. N. S. c. 113, s. 21, in relation to the maintenance of actions of trespass by executors and administrators, applied. It appearing also that trespasses had been going on since the action was brought, and that a fence thrown down as a trespass had been rebuilt and continuing cause of action within the meaning of O. 34, R. 46. Beach lots-Special adaptability for shipping purposes — Compensation claimed for stone in disused wharf.]—In valuing beach lands being expropriated by the Crown special adaptability will not be taken into account. Resz v. Inverness, 7 E. L. R. 291; 12 Ex. C. R. 383.

"Buildings and erections" - Assess ment of damages.]-See 38 N. B. R. 542. On the new trial in construing "buildings and erections" the trial Judge held that all filling in as well as the piling was covered by "erections." The Court holds that in addiby erections. The court holds that in addi-tion to the piling only such filling in is covered as forms part of the foundations of the buildings. Sleeth v. St. John, Gordon v. St. John, 6 E. L. R. 129.

Compensation-Value to be ascertained by justices of the peace and specially sum moned jury-Jury not qualified to assess value without expert evidence-Acquiescence or waiver as to jurisdiction of Court.]-By the Canadian Act, 14th and 15th Vict., c. 128, s. 66, the corporation of Montreal are authorised to purchase and acquire, or to take lands for the purpose of public im-provements in that city, the value whereof, if disputed, is by section 68, to be ascer-tained at a session held by the justices of tained at a session held by the pusces of the peace and determined by a jury specially summoned for that purpose :--Held (revers-ing the judgment of the Court of Queen's Bench for Lower Canada), that the jury were not of themselves qualified to assess the value, without evidence of experts, and that a party claiming compensation for land taken by the corporation was entitled to produce witnesses as to the value; there being no express words in the Act, or necessary implication, to take away the right to have witnesses sworn and examined, and that the justices of the peace were wrong in refusing to take, such evidence .- Held, further, that the justices being under the Act competent to swear a jury, were competent to swear witnesses on the claimant's behalf. In order to constitute acquiescence, or waiver, it must be shewn that the party said or did something to give the Court a jurisdiction it did not possess. Mere respectful acquiescence, or submission to the ruling of a Court, will not amount to a waiver of a right to complain of an illegal decision. Beaudry v. Montreal (1858), C. R. 2, A. C. 342.

Foreshore-Title-Special adaptability of property for wharf purposes - Value - Compensation.] - The suppliants claimed damages for value of certain lands expropriated by the Crown to form the shore end area by the Grown to form the above end of a wharf: --Held, (1) that the suppliants have proved their title to the lands; (2) that special adaptability for wharf purposes will not be considered in estimating the proper value. Gillespie v. Rez, 7 E. L. R. 299; 12 Ex. C. R. 496.

Lands covered with water - Special adaptubility for harbour purposes.]-Natural adaptability for harbour purposes will not be construed in arriving at the value of land being expropriated by the Crown. It is the market value which must be considered. Res v. McDonald, 7 E. L. R. 290.

Water lots - Contingent value - Crown grant - Statutory authority.] - Land in Halifax, N.S., including a lot extending into the harbour, was expropriated, for pur-poses of the Intercolonial Railway. This lot could be made very valuable by the erection of wharves and piers for which, however, it would be necessary to obtain a license, from the government of Canada as they would obstruct navigation. The title to the water lot was originally by grant from the government of Nova Scotia, but no statutory authority for making such grant was produced. $10,000 was offered by the gov-ernment for all the lands and allowed by the Exchequer Court. The owners appealed. claiming a much larger amount : - Held. Duff, J., dissenting, that the owners were not entitled to compensation on the basis of the water lot being utilized for wharves and piers and if they were the amount tendered was sufficient.—Quare, can a Crown grant of lands be made without statutory anthority ?--- Judgment of the Exchequer Court (12 Ex. Appointment of extradition commissioners-Federal parliament - Extradition Act - Constitutionality - Prohibition -Notice to adverse party - Excess of jurisdiction.]-Upon presentation of a petition for the issuance of a writ of prohibition, the Judge may require notice to be given to the parties having an adverse interest in the proceedings. 2. The Judge to whom the application is presented, in view of the effect of the issuing of the writ, which would be to tie up the inferior jurisdiction for an in-definite time, will go fully into the reasons urged on the merits of the application. 3. The writ of prohibition lies whenever a court of inferior jurisdiction exceeds its jurisdiction, if there is no other remedy equally convenient, beneficial, and effectual, and it may also be used to restrain any body of persons or officers assuming to exercise judicial or quasi-judicial powers, although not strictly or technically a court. 4. The writ should not be granted except in a substantially clear case of want of jurisdiction and where there is an imprince damage of fully there is an imminent danger of failure of justice. 5. The Extradition Act, R. S. C. c. 142, in so far as it enacts that the Governor-General in council may appoint Extradition Commissioners other than members of a court already constituted and organized by the provincial authorities, is constitutional and within the powers of the federal parliament, 6. Doubted, that a writ of prohibition is the proper means of bringing before the Court the question of the constitutionality of a statute under which a court or an officer pretends to act. Re Gaynor, 7 Que. P. R.

Arrest and remand of accused—Writs of habcas corpus — Jurisdiction — Procedure.]—The respondents, having been arrested in Montreal by an order of an extradition commissioner for an alleged extradiition offence committed in the State of Georgia, were remanded by him for the purpose of affording the prosecution an opportunity of proving its case. Thereafter one Judge in Quebec issued, on their application, and then quashed, writs of habcas corpus, while another Judge afterwards issued similar writs and discharged the respondents from custody, on the ground that no extradition offence hal been disclosed against them in the proceedings before him: — Held, that this was the question which the Extradition Commissioner had juriadiction to investigate on the remand which he had ordered; that his c.c.L=-59 remand warrant could not be treated as a nullity; that the respondents were in lawful custody; and that in consequence, the Judge had no jurisdiction to order their release. United States of America v. Gaynor, [105] A. C. 128.

Arrest on telegram-Information based on — Sufficiency — Release and re-arrest on warrant — Habeas corpus — Affidavit — Crown Rule 150 — Forum — Warrant of extradition - Statement of crime - Two offences.] - The prisoner was arrested at Halifax upon a request by telegram from the Russian Consul-General at Montreal, and without warrant. A writ of habeas corpus having been granted, a warrant to apprehend, issued under the Extradition Act, R. S. C. 1906 c. 155, was returned as the cause of the detention. It was admitted that the prisoner had been momentarily released and then re-arrested on the extradition warrant. The habeas corpus was granted before but not served until after the second arrest; Held, that it was not necessary that the affidavit on which the habcas corpus was obtained should be made by the prisoner, he being a foreigner unable to speak or under-stand English; it was sufficient if made by his solicitor or any one acting on his behalf. -2. That Crown Rule 150 did not apply, the writ having been granted when there was no warrant of extradition in existence, and the full Court not being in session at the time .--- 3. That the warrant of extradition, setting out that the prisoner was "accused of the crimes of theft and embezzlement within the jurisdiction of the Russian Empire. following the form prescribed by the Act, was sufficient; and it was no objection that two offences, of a cognate character, were stated. -4. That the information in extradition might properly be based upon a telegram.-5. That the second arrest was lawful, al-though the accused was only nominally set at liberty, and was re-arrested without liberty depart. Rex v. Rutland, Ex p. Kalke (N.S.), 14 Can. Crim. Cas. 22.

Assault with intent to murder — Treaty — Evidence on inquiry.]—Where a fugitive offender from the United States is charged with an assault with intent to murder, in an information laid under the Extradition Act, R. S. C. c. 142, the evidence must sufficiently establish the existence of the intent. Re Kelly, 22 C. L. T. 202.

Bail pending appeal-Habcas corpus-Powers of Judge of Court of Appeal. |-An application to a Judge of the Court of Appeal to admit to bail a person committed for extradition, pending an appeal to that Court refusing, upon Abdees corpus, to discharge the applicant, was refused on the grounds, (1) that it did not appear that the applicant was in actual custody, and (2) that it was doubful whether a Judge of the Court of Appeal had power to make the order, a matter of bail not being incidental to the appeal (Jud. Act, s. 54). -Quere, as to he propriety of granning hall in extradition proceedings otherwise than de die is diem, pending the hearing of a motion for habees corpus on an appeal. In re Waits, 220, L. Bribery-Retroactive legislation-Treaty -Foreign law - Criminal Code.] - The prisoner, who was the assistant city engineer of a city in the State of Ohio, U.S., with the supervision over certain of the streets, which were being improved by a firm of contractors, accepted from the firm the sum of $50 for the purpose of influencing him in his work of supervision :--Held, that the offence did not amount to bribery at common law, where it could only be predicated of a reward given to a Judge or other perof a reward given to a budge of administration of justice; but that it constituted bribery wider the laws of the State of Ohio, as well as under s.-s. (c) of s. 161 of the Criminal Code, R. S. C. 1906 c. 146.-The crime of bribery was not included in the list of offences contained in the extradition treaty of 1889, nor in that of 1890. but by art. 1 of the treaty of 1907 it was added to such list, and was by art. 2 to be considered as an integral part thereof, and as if the original list of crimes had comprised the additional crimes specified in art. 1.-The offence here was committed before the coming into force of the treaty of 1907. -Held, that art. 2 had a retroactive effect, and, notwithstanding that the offence was committed before the coming int. force of the treaty of 1907, the offence of bribery was to be treated as if originally in the list of offences contained in the treaty of 1889, and therefore came within the treaty; and that the prisoner was extraditable. Child-stealing - Contempt of foreign court — Parent stealing his own child — Foreign law — Criminal Code.]-The prisoner and his wife were absolutely divorced in the State of Illinois, where they, were domiciled, by a decree which gave the custody of their child, five years old, to the wife, with permission to the prisoner to take it out with him in the day time, but to return it the same day. The prisoner, having thus obtained the child, brought it to Canada :-Held, following In re Murphy, 26 O. R. 163, 23 A. R. 386, that "child stealing" be-ing mentioned in the existing Extradition Treaty between the United States and Great Britain, as one of the extradition crimes, the Court should, in the absence of any evidence to the contrary, assume the crimes to be identical in the two countries, and the onus did not rest upon the prosecutor of proving what the foreign law was. The evidence taken before the extradition commissioner shewed a The extrantion commissioner surved a crise of child stealing, under s. 284 of the Criminal Code, and, in the absence of evi-dence of the foreign law, that was sufficient. Section 284 of the Criminal Code does not exclude the case of father and child, Though what was done was a contempt of Court, yet if a man has committed a crime it does not become the less a crime because it also happens to be a contempt. As to the prisoner's contention that he had acted in good faith because he had been advised that the decree of divorce having been obtained collusively, was a nullity, this was a matter which might properly be set up as a defence by the prisoner upon his trial, but could not be dealt with by the magistrate, who had before him the decree of the foreign Court and the oath of the wife that she did not collude. EXTRADITION.

Conspiracy to defrand — Estradiable crime—Evidence.]—The offence or crime of conspiracy to defraud is not an extraditable crime under the extradition treaty between Great Britain and the United States:—Evidence of a conviction in the United States: dence of a conviction in the United States: of an indictment for that offence, of a verdict of guilty, and of the sentence to fine and imprisonment in consequence, affords no grounds for a committal for extradition on a charge of fraud by an agent, even though overt acts of fraud by the prisoner as an agent be set ou in the indictment, in conformity with the rules of criminal procedure in the United States. Embezzlement — Hearsay evidence-Removal of goods—Master and servant-Larceny.]—The prisoner was remanded for extradition for the crime of embezzlement committed in Texas. The facts relied on were set forth in the deposition of the owner of the property alleged to have been embezzled. He stated that twenty thousand sheep and other property were piaced by him under the charge of the prisoner, as foreman, on a ranch 350 miles distant from the owner's place of residence, in the State of Texas; and that the property was removed without his knowledge from the ranch. There was no evidence except that of the owner as to the rmoval or as to the receipt by the prisoner of the proceeds of sale, and the owner's evidence as to those matters was merely hearsay:— Held, that the evidence did not shew embezzlment nor larceny, and the prisoner must be discharged. C. c. 142, s. 6, for the appre-bension of a fugitive was issued upon duly authenticated copies (1) of an indictment found by a grand jury in a foreign country charging the accused with an extraditable offence, (2) of a bench warrant issued upon the acid indictment accommendation. the said indictment, accompanied by a copy of a return thereto by the sheriff dated 10th April to the effect that he could not find the April to the effect that he could not that the accused and believed that he was without the jurisdiction, and (3) of depositions of witnesses tending to shew that the accused on the was guilty of the offence charged. Of the bearing, the proceedings above mentioned were put in as evidence subject to objection, and the sheriff gave evidence that the accused whom he identified, had been in custody from about the 1st May until the sittings of the Court at which he was indicted, and that he was at that sittings discharged from his custody :--Held, that, in order to give jurisdiction to a Judge to issue such a warrant, either a foreign warrant of arrest must be proved or an information or complaint must be laid before the Judge at or before the time of the issue of the warrant. That, in case of a foreign warrant, it must be shewn to be outstanding and in full force, and that the evidence failed to establish this. The evidence before the Judge con-sisted of a certified copy of the indictment of the prisoner in the foreign state, the information of a police detective taken before Judge himself, and five depositions or the affidavits sworn in the foreign state, consisting in great part merely of hearsay state ments made by other persons to the deponents, not in the presence of the prisoner. These depositions proved some relevant facts, and raised a strong suspicion against the prisoner mitted an offence which, if committed in Canada, would be forgery at common law, Canada, would be forgery at common tar-as well as under the Criminal Code, ss. 419, 421, 423; but neither a genuine ticket nor one of those with the forging of which the prisoner was charged was produced with any of the depositions, nor produced or identibefore the extradition Judge :--Held, Meredith, J.A., dissenting, that there was no proper evidence of the commission of the alproper evidence of the commission of the leged officace; and the prisoner was entitled to his discharge upon habeas corpus. Deci-sion of reetzel, J., reversed.—Semble, per Osler, J.A., that there were grave irregularities in the proceedings before the extradition Judge; his warrant for the apprehension of the accused was issued without any information or complaint taken in this country, or a foreign warrant duly authenticated, having been before him; the prisoner was arrested on the strength of a telegram, and the depositions on which he was committed were not forthcoming pending their authentication until the day upon which the order was made remanding him for extradition; and s. 6 (2) of the Extradition Act could not have been complied with.—Semble, also, that, in the present state of the authorities, an Extradiin the tion Judge should require proof that the crime is an extradition crime as well by the laws of the demanding state as by our own. Forgery-Uttering forged document-Intent.]-There was evidence that the prisoner handed to a young woman in charge of a telegraph office a letter purporting to be signed by a vice-president of the telegraph company, in these words: "To any employé, Western Union Telegraph Company. This will introduce Mr. J. O. Goelet, a personal friend of the management of this company. Any favours shewn him will be duly appre-ciated by the corporation and myself." The The vice-president whose name was used did not himself sign it, nor authorise any one else to There sign it for him, nor was he aware of it. was evidence that the prisoner shortly afterwards gained the affections of the young woman, and proposed, under the name of J. O. Goelet, to marry her, although he had a wife living. There was no evidence that any per-son named J. O. Goelet existed. There was son named J. O. Goeret existed. There was no evidence to shew that the prisoner had himself written any part of the document:— Held, that the facts were sufficient to make out a prima facic case that the prisoner presented the document with the intention that the young woman should believe and act upon it as genuine, to her own prejudice, within the meaning of s. 422 of the Criminal Code; and therefore a prima facic case of uttering a forged document, within the meaning of s. 424; and an order for extradition was right. The language used in s. 422 is intended to extend to cases which would not have come within any former common law or statutory definition of forgery in force in Canada. Re abeel, 24 C. L. Under s. 16 of the Extradition Act, affidavits may be received by the Extradition Commissioner, if he so desires, and such weight may be given to them as he thinks proper.—4. While, for the purposes of con-venience, the introduction of depositions and affidavits may be allowed, they ought to be limited, in the case of depositions, to such as set forth the question and answer, and, in the case of affidavits, to such as state facts, and which disclose that no injustice is being done to the accused by their admission. — 5. Certain oral evidence was taken before the Commissioner in this case, and the affidavits of the complainant and an other were filed :- Held, upon consideration of them, that they were not sufficient to establish a prima facie case against the accused; and his discharge was ordered. Re Moore (1910), 13 W. Habeas corpus—Desistment—New trial —Res judicata—Certiorari—Extradition commissioner — Jurisdiction — Warrant — Description of offence—Extradition treatics.]— A writ of habeas corpus, in an extradition matter, issued upon the order of a Judge, then discharged by the same Judge, does not prevent the issue of another writ and does not constitute res judicata, when: (a) there are new allegations in the petition upon which thes desided from his first writ before judgment and alleges this desistment in his second petition ; (c) the second writ is not addressed to the same gaoler and is executed in a different district. 2. The petitioner may validly desist from a writ of habcas corpus at any time before judgment, and if, in spite of the desistment, judgment is rendered. It does not constitute res judicata, and cannot be set up against the second writ. 3. After the issue of a writ of habeas corpus, in an extradition matter, the Judge seised of the writ may issue a writ of certiorari in ald add dressed to the extradition commissioner who has issued the warrant, to return the whole of the proceedings before him, including the information or complaint and the documents relating to it. 4. In order to form an opinion upon the merits, the Judge after the return of the proceedings under the certiorari, is not confined to the warrant of arrest, to see if the extradition commissioner had jurisdie tion, but he may go behind the warrant and see what it is founded on. 5. An extradition commissioner has no jurisdiction to proceed to extradition, unless his warrant, as well as the documents upon which it issues, is legal and contains a legal description of an offence mentioned in the treaties. 6. In an extradi-tion matter, the date of committing the offence is an essential element in the description of the offence, and if it is not in the warrant, the warrant is illegal. 7. The warrant, the complaint, and the documents relating to it, must shew clearly that the offence is within the treaties, S. The extradition commissioner cannot in his warrant change the offence stated in the complaint so as to bring it within the treaty. Ex p. Gaynor &

Locus standi in Court of foreign state Commissioner of extradition Juris-diction Interference by Judge Habeas cor-Judge seised of case — Exclusion of other Judges.]—Foreign sovereigns and States have the right to appear and intervene in cases before the Court of the province of Quebec. 2. A commissioner of extradition acting under the authority of the Extradition Act, has equal authority with a Judge of the Superior Court ; and it is only when, assuming to act as a commissioner, he does something which is ultra vires or otherwise acts illegally, that Superior Courts, or Judges thereof, become seised with revisory, amendatory, or appellate powers over his acts. 3. When a prisoner, whose extradition is sought, has been brought before a Judge of the Superior Court on a writ of habeas corpus issued before the committal of the accused and before the conclusion of the inquiry before the commissioner, the powers of the Judge are limited to determining whether the commissioner has jurisdiction to make the inquiry, i.e., whether he is legally seised of the case; when, however, the writ of habeas corpus was issued after the committal of the accused, the Judge has the power to review the case against him. 4 The jurisdiction of an extradition Judge or commissioner extends over the whole province for which he has been appointed; he may therefore order a prisoner to be brought before him from any part of the province in which he has been arrested. 5. A Judge of the Superior Court before whom a prisoner whose extradition is sought, has been brought on a writ of habeas corpus, has absolute con-trol over him until he has passed from the hands of such Judge ; and until then no other Judge has the right to interfere in the matter by habcas corpus or otherwise. As a consequence, it need not state that the charges laid have been inquired into, that they relate to extradition crimes, that prima facic proof of guilt has been made, nor provide specifically for the discharge or surrender of the prisoner.—2. The commissioner for extradition, in dealing with the information and evidence in the case, is governed by the same rules as the magistrate before whom a preliminary investiga-tion in respect of an indictable offence is held; he issues his warrant for committal upon evidence that would justify the magistrate in committing for trial, and, as the latter may from those for which the accused was arrested, so also a variance between the charge in the information and the crime or crimes (whether one or more is of no consequence) stated in the committal as the ground for extradition, provided they are extraditable, is immaterial.-3. Participation in fraud by an agent, participation in embezzlement, and the receiving of moneys knowing the same to have been fraudulently obtained, are extraditable crimes .--- 4. Copies of the depositions of witneses taken by means of stenography in the Courts of New York, duly certified and authenticated by the competent officers of such Courts, though not read over to nor signed by the witnesses, constitute legal evidence of the facts therein.—5. The Judge to whom application is made for habeas corpus on behalf of the fugitive committed for surrender, has no power to review the decision of the ex-Tradition commissioner as to the sufficiency of the evidence adduced before him. A prisoner who has been discharged upon habeas corpus because the extradition commissioner had no jurisdiction to act judicially on the com-plaint laid before him, may be again arrested and tried before a commissioner having jurisdiction over the complaint. For an extradition commissioner to decline to exercise his jurisdiction, the fraudulent device by which the prisoner was brought within the jurisdiction must be chargeable to the adverse party. 3. Prohibition — Extradition commissioner Appeal—Inferior tribunal—Power of Fed. eral Government to appoint.]-An appeal lies to the Court of King's Bench from a decision refusing to grant a writ of prohibition. extradition commissioner is not an inferior tribunal within the meaning of Art. 1003, C. P. The federal government has power to appoint extradition commissioners. nor & Greene v. Lafontaine, 7 Que. P. R. 240, 14 Que, K. B. 99, See also 36 S. C. R. 247.

Receiving stolen property - Evidence -Inferences- "Money, valuable security, or other property "-Ejusdem generis.]-Upon a motion for the discharge of a prisoner com-mitted for extradition, no evidence can be considered except that upon which the prisoner stands committed, and into the weight of that evidence, or even its sufficiency to sustain the charge, no inquiry can be made. The fact of the silence of a person accused of receiving stolen property, upon hearing statereceiving stolen property, upon hearing stat-ments made as to his nlleged quilt by the per-son who stole the property, is admissible in evidence as leading to the inference of his guilty knowledge. Having regard to the in-terpretation clauses of the Extradition Act. R. S. C. 1886 c. 142, crimes referred to in the "extradition arrangement" of 1890 between Great Britaing and the United Store Great Britain and the United States, come within the Act. The words "other property" used in that arrangement as to the crime of "receiving any money, valuable security, or other property, knowing the same to have been embezzled, stolen, or fraudulently ob-tained," must be construed as relating only to things of the same type as "money" or "we have be constructed as "money" or "valuable security;" and a prisoner accused of receiving a stolen pair of shoes was discharged from custody. Re Cohen, 24 C. FALSE ARREST.

Absence of malice—Arrest not justified —Aggravation by pleading—Liability for arrest.]—In this case, acting without malke, the defendant caused the arrest of the plaintiff for obtaining money by false pretences, without first demanding from the plaintiff the proof of his tile to certain land which the plaintiff offerfed as security for the loan of $500, and in an action for the arrest made allegations which he could not support. Meid, that he was blable in damages under Art. 1053, C. C. Under the circumstances he was ordered to puy $25 damages and the costs of an action of the fourth class. Labiberte's, Gingras, 21 Que, S. C. 406.

Absence of malice — Probable cause — Burden of proof.]—In an action for damages for false arrest the onus is on the plaintiff to prove that there was not probable cause for the arrest and that the defendant was actuated by malice. Malice alone is not sufficient; there must be absence of probable cause. The theory of probable cause according to English law does not prevail in Quehec; the rule of the French law must be applied. Giguere v. Jacob, 10 Que. K. B. 501.

Action — Pleading—Reasonable and probable cause.]—A plaintiff may sue for damages for false arrest, alleging that the information, trial, and conviction were irregular, null, arbitrary, malicious, ultra vires, that the conviction was quasiled as such upon certiforari, and that the plaintiff has suffered damage owing to the fault, negligence, and inprudence of the defendants, and their employees, such allegations being, in effect, sufficient charges of want of probable and reasonable cause. Leonard v. Delorme, 6 Que. P. R. 349.

Alleged crime – Justification – Reasonable and probable cause–Damages. Deslauriers v. Jasmin, 5 E. L. R. 243.

Arrest without warrant — Oral charge —Probable cause—Liability of affect making arrest and of municipal corporation.]—A constable or peace officer, in a case of humicide is justified, upon the verbal charge of the daughter of the deceased, in arresting, without a warrant, a person found in his bed, at his home, a short distance away, whose bloodstained hands and clothes lend colour to the charge—2. The officer, and the clty, in whose police we relieve he is employed, incur no liability for false imprisonment, through the arrest and detention of the party as aforesaid. Hubbard x, City of Montreal, 28 Que. S, C. 221.

Compulsion and restraint amounting to arrest and imprisonment—Evidence —Not guility by statute—Want of notice of action—Reasonable grounds of beliet that plaintiff harbouring criminal — Absence of malice—Peace officer — Damages — Costs. Mack Sing v. Smith, 9 W. L. R. 28. Constable arresting without warrant --Offence not committed in constable's presence---Municipal by-law---Criminal Code, s. 32. Desjardins v. Montreal, 4 E. L. R. 329.

Mallee—Want of reasonable and probable cause—Functions of Judge and jury -Appreciation of evidence — Miedirection.]—In an action for damages for false arrest, the function of the jury is only to find whether the evidence adduced establishes facts from which good faith and reasonable and probable cause, or malice and want of reasonable and probable cause, can be deduced; the inferences of good or bad faith, reasonable and probable cause, or the absence thereof, to be drawn from such facts, is a questions of law to be determined by the Court alone; and the jury ought to be guided on questions of law by the Court. In this case the evidence did not establish that the arrest of the defendant had been made in good faith and with probable cause on the part of the diendart; and therefore the verdict of the jury, rendered under the effect of the evidence upon this point, should be set aside. Belanger v. Larocque, 25 Que, S. C. 403.

Termination of eriminal prosecution.]—In an action for damages for false arrest it is not necessary to allege that the prosecution has been terminated, or that the plaintiff has been acquitted. McDowell v. United States Thread Co., 7 Que. P. R. 325.

Want of reasonable and probable cause — Functions of Judge and jury — Malice-Misdirection — Non-direction — Improper relation of evidence — Character of plaintiff — Damages. Sinclair v. Ruddell (Man.), 3 W. L. R. 532.

Agreement for division of estate of intestate - Consideration - Absence of fraud.]-J. H. died intestate possessed of property worth about $40,000, and survived by his widow, two sons, and three daughters. Part of his property consisted of lumber lands worth $21,000, which it had been his intention, known to all the members of the family. to give to the sons, who were associated with him in his business as a lumberman. few days before his death, in discussing with his solicitor the terms of a will be intended to make, he stated that he wanted his lumber lands and mill property to go to the sons, who should continue his business and pay his debts, and that he did not intend making any provision for the daughters. At a meeting of the family held after his death, they were informed of these wishes ; that performance of an outstanding contract by the deceased for the delivery of a quantity of lumber was being pressed, and that his liabilities were $15,000 or $20,000, though in fact they were $22,000. It was agreed for the purpose of giving effect to the deceased's intentions that the sons should assume the debts; that the daughters should convey all their interest in the estate to the sons; that the sons should pay to the plaintiff $500, to another daughter $600, and should join in a conveyance to the third of land given to her by her father, but uncon-veyed by him. At the time the exact condition of the estate was unknown. Before the deed to the sons was executed, the solicitor of the deceased present at the meeting explained to the daughters their legal rights and the effect of the deed. On the true condition 1865

FATAL ACCIDENTS ACT.

Action for death of husband and father—Bar—Renunciation in lifetime.]— The renunciation of a workman of his right of action against his employer for possible tort or negligence causing him injury, is not an answer to an action to recover damages for his death, brought by his widow and children under Art. 1056 C. C.—the cause of action being a different one. Laplante v. Grand Trunk Rue. Co., 27 Que. 8. C. 456.

Indemnity to parents and children —Only one action—Second action barred.]— In case of death caused by a tort, no more than one action can be brought against the tort-feasor in behalf of those entiled to indemnity, and such an action brought by one of them, even though the judgment rendered the ridentity which the others are to receive, is a bar to a subsequent action brought by one of the latter. Bouthillier V. Central Vermont Rue. Co., 28 Que. S. C. 472.

Right of action — Persons entitled to sue.]—By the terms of Art. 1056, C. S. 1000 c. 93, s. 6, s. e. 3, to recover double the expense of making a boundary or division fence between the properties of the defendant and an adjoining owner. The only defence offered was that the fence constructed was not of the height of four and one-hulf feet, as required by the statute. The trial Judge having found that the fence was built to the proper height as required by the statute :—Held, that his judgment on this point should not be disturbed. Cross v. Legag, 3 E. L. Scamble, that, if the leases and licenses prejudiced the rights acquired by the suppliant under his ferry grant, be would be entitled to a writ of seire facias to repeal them. Brigham v. Pablic earrier — Nepligence of pricate carrier.]—The defendant was the proprietor of a small ferry across the Ottawa river. He was engaged in other occupations, and the boat made no regular trips; but whenever anyone came asking that he and his property should be taken across, the defendant and his employees left their other work, rowed them across, and charged for doing so. The plaintiff and his companion were being rowed across, and had two horses aboard, which they themselves had embarked, acting under instructions given by the defendant. In the middle of the stream the boat veered suddenly, one of the horses became frightened, and (there being no railings or other protection) jumped into the water and was drowned:— Held, that the defendant was not a common carrier.—Held, further, that the defondant being under no obligation to provide a safer boat, and the plaintiff electing to take the risk and to remain in charge of his own animals while crossing, the defendant was not liable for negligence as a private carrier. Imposition by Court - Remission by municipal council-Rights of Crown.]-The petitioner was convicted of the offence of personation at a municipal election in the city of Montreal, and was sentenced by the Recorder to an imprisonment of one month, and to the payment of a fine of $500, and, in default of payment, to a further imprisonment of six months. After the expiration of his term of imprisonment, the city council remitted the fine, and the Recorder's Court having refused to issue the necessary order to the keeper of the common gaol for the petitioner's discharge from custody, he sought to obtain his liberation under a writ of habeas corpus :- Held, that, although by s. 517 of the charter of the city of Montreal, 62 V. c. 58, it is provided that all fines sued for and recovered in the Recorder's Court shall belong to the city, and by the same statute, s. 518, it is provided that to the council alone appertains the right to remit the whole or part of any fine be-longing to the city, yet under 63 V. Accidental starting on defendant's Iand—Excape to plaintiff's land adjoinna— Negligence—Prairie Fires Ordinance, s. 2, s.s. e; ss. 4, 9—'Letting'—'Permitting' —Liability — Damages.]—Action for damages for injuries to plaintiff's property by fire spreading from that of defendant:— Held, that defendant's dropping a lighted eigar on the prairie grass, thereby starting the fire on his property, was gross negligence. Judgment for plaintiff. Moseley v. Ketchum, 12 W. L. R. 721, 3 Sask. L. R. 29.

Damage by — Action against person at fault--fatterest of plaintiff — Compensation by insurance--Ploading.]—A defendant sued for damages alleged to have been suffered by the plaintiffs from a fire alleged to have been caused by the defendants' fault, cannot plead want of interest of the plaintiffs, because they have been compensated for their loss by insurance moneys received by them. Burrit v. Pillow and Hersey Manufacturing Co., 7 Que. P. R. 461.

Damage to property by fire spreading from neighbour's land — Cause of fire—Burden of proof—Failure of plaintiffs to satisfy—Findings of trial Judge—Prairie Fires Ordinance — Negligence.]—In actions for damages for the destruction of the plaintiffs' property by fire spreading from the adjoining land of the defendant :--Held, that it was not necessary for the defendant to explain the cause of the fire; the burden was on the plaintiffs of shewing that it was caused by the defendant; and, as the plaintiffs not merely did not furnish any direct evidence, or any evidence from which a reasonable inference could be drawn, that this was the case, but even did not supp'y any facts from which a reasonable surmise as against the defendant could be made, the plaintiffs failed in the initial step of the case; and the judg-ment of Beck, J., at the trial, 2 Alta, J. R. 101, 9 W. L. R. 657, should be affirmed.— Per Stuart, J. (dissenting) that it was a proper inference from the facts as found by the trial Judge that the fire originated from the embers of a fire set out by the defendant, and that s. 4 of the Prairie Fires Ordinance had not been complied with. Clark v. Ward, Kirstein v. Ward (1910), 13 W. L. R. 83.

Damages by—Electric wires—Responsibility of electric company—Evidence.] — A company who furnish electric lighting for a town and conduct electricity by wires in a primary current of 2,000 volts from their works to their transformers, where it is lowered to a secondary current of 110 volts before passing over branches installed in houses by their owners, are not responsible for a fire started in one of the houses by the electric current, unless the fire has been caused by the fault of the company. Therefore, an action against the company for damages, the evidence wherein shews that the disaster might have been caused in two ways, one of which is imputable to the fault of the company, and the other to that of the owner of the house, without affording to the Court the necessary facts to lead to a decision bevarence Society, 15 Que, K. B. 440.

Damages to property by fire started by sparks from railway locomotivetiffs having separate causes of action arising out of same event-King's Bench Act, Rule 218-Costs.]-If it appears from the evidence that there was no other possible cause for the starting of a prairie fire near a railway track than sparks from a passing locomotive, the proper conclusion to be drawn is that the railway company are liable, notwithstanding that the sparks must have carried the fire an unusual distance, and that no evidence was given as to the condition of the smoke-stack and netting at the time. A number of plaintiffs joined in the Tait case presenting separate claims for losses by the same fire, which plainly appeared by the statement of claim, to which the defendants filed a statement of defence without having moved to strike out any of the claims :--Held, without deciding whether Rule 218 of the King's Bench Act justified the joinder of plaintiffs in this case, that it was too late to take the objection of misjoinder at the trial.—A deduction was ordered to be made from the plaintiffs' counsel fees for the trial, because considerable time was taken up in proving title to the property destroyed, which the defendants had not been asked to admit, and which would be presumed from mere possession as against tort-feasors. Tait v. Can. Pac. Ric. Co., Bain v. Can. Pac. Ric. Co., Kellett v. Can. Pac. Ric. Co., 3 W. L. R. 452, 16 Man. L. 7, 391.

Damages to property by prairie fire-Origin - Evidence-Damages-Negligence.] The defendant, who was very shortsighted, while examining a fence on his land, ob-served on the prairie near him a pile of ashes and some fragments of partly burned willow roots. Imagining he saw smoke, he moved the ashes with his foot to ascertain whether or not there was fire. As he did so, the wind, then blowing very strongly, carried the burning embers into the long grass ad-joining, which at once took fire. He then started to beat the fire out, and, as the burning grass was in a measure isolated by a strip of burned-over ground on one side and by short grass on the other, he succeeded, as he believed, in preventing the fire spreading and in finally extinguishing it :-- Held, that, even if the fire which, on the same day, destroyed the plaintiff's property was caused by the fire which the defendant started, as to which there was grave doubt, the defendant had not been guilty of negligence, and Was not liable to the plaintiff for damages. Owens v. Burgess, 11 Man. L. R. 75, and Chaz v. Les Cisterciens Reformes, 12 Man. L. R. 330, followed. Holliday v. 4 W. L. R. 577, 16 Man. L. R. 437. Bussian.

Destruction of warehouse - Sparks from railway engine-Negligence-Contribu-tory negligence.]-In an action for damages for loss of warehouse and contents alleged to have been set on fire by sparks from one of defendants' engines, the jury found plaintiff was negligent in piling baled hay near defendants' tracks, the sparks having fallen on the hay, from which it spread to the warehouse. The hay was on plaintiff's property. Action dismissed. Cairns v. Canadian, 10 W. L. R. 39.

Destruction of work in progress Incidence of loss - Owner or contractor.]-The hot water furnace in a house of the defendant having been damaged by frost, the defendant requested the plaintiff, a plumber, to make the necessary repairs. The latter not wishing to do the work for a fixed price. unless it were the price of a new outfit, it was agreed that the plaintiff should make the repairs, furnish the materials, at an advance of 12 to 15 per cent. upon the price which he himself should pay, and should charge 35 cents per hour for the time of his During the night which preceded the day which would have seen the completion of the work, the house was destroyed by a fire, which was an accidental one :- Held, that, under these circumstances, the plaintiff not having undertaken the work in furnishing the materials and in charging himself with doing all the work and to render it perfect for a fixed price (Art. 1684, C. C.), the loss did not fall upon him, and that he could claim for the time of his men and the price of his materials, such materials being regarded as sold to the defendant according as they were placed in his house. Jean v. Papineau, 19 Que. S. C. 438. (See Murphy v. Forget, ib. 135.)

Injury to property - Cause of fire -Railway-Sparks from engine-Conjecture.] -The British Columbia Full Court dismissed an appeal from judgment at trial dismissing action brought for damages for injury to plaintiff's property from fire alleged to have originated from sparks emitted from engine of defendants. No by-law had been passed by township council regulating the setting out of fires for burning brush, etc. Negligence was admitted. The sole question, therefore, was ascertainment of damages. Davis v. Rowsome, 13 O. W. R.

Prairie Fire Ordinance — Railway engine—Escape of fire—Conviction.] — An ordinance of the Territories prohibited the kindling and placing of fire " in the open air in any part of the Territories," except for certain purposes. The defendants, who were respectively fireman and engine driver of a freight train, were severally convicted of a breach of the ordinance upon evidence to the effect that sparks from the fire which they had kindled in the locomotive engine had kindled a fire on the adjacent prairie, there being, as the magistrate found, no evidence of improper construction of the engine, or of negligence on the part of the defendants of meshgeneous of the part of the derivative — Held, that these facts afforded no evidence of the defendants kindling a fire "in the open air." Regina v. Clive, Regina v. Holds-worth, 1 Terr. L. R. 170.

Precautionary measure - Destruction of house — Municipal corporation — Liabili-ty.] — A fire threatened to assume large proportions and to destroy a considerable part It was considered proper, in order of a city. to arrest the progress of the fire, to pull down the respondent's house. The circumstances justified such demolition as a measure of prudence and of public safety in respect to that part of the city. But it turned out that the fire was extinguished before it reached the site of the respondent's house :-Held, that the demolition of the house was lawful .-- 2. That the city corporation was bound to indemnify the respondent. City of Quebec v. Mahoney, 10 Que. K. B. 378.

Railways-Negligence - Onus of proof.] -In an action against a railway company, carrying on business under legislative sanction, to recover damages resulting from a fire alleged to have been caused by a spark from an engine, the plaintiff must, in addition to giving evidence from which it may rea-sonably be inferred that the fire was caused as alleged, also give some evidence of negli-gence on the part of the defendants, e.g., in the construction or management or want of repair of the engine, and the onus is not upon the defendants to prove that they have adopted and used with due care reasonable contrivances to avoid the danger of fire. The plaintiff and defendant were adjoining land owners, and a fire, started in brush and fallen timber by the defendant for the purpose of clearing his land, spread on to the plaintiff's lands;— Held, applying the principle of Rylands v. Fletcher, L. R. 3 H. L. 330, that the defendant maintimed the fire at his own risk, and was responsible for the damage caused by it. Judgment for the plaintiff for $300. Setting out—Municipal by-law—Notice— Negligence — Onus — Contributory negligence.]—A person who sets out fire upon his own land in a township without giving the notice to the owner or occupant of the adjoining property required by a township by-law, passed pursuant to R. S. O. c. 223, s. 542, s.-s. 16, and imposing a penalty upon any person contravening the by-law, pursuant to s. 702, s.-s. 1 (b), is not, by reason of the omission of such notice, liable for diamage done to the adjoining property, without proof of negligence; but the failure to give notice is prima facie evidence of negligence, and puts the onus apon the defendant of the proof of no negligence:—Held, upon the evidence in this case, that the defendant had satisfied that onus as regards the property of the plaintiff first destroyed, the reause of which was the sudden rising of a high wind, which the defendant was not bound to anticipate, and which caused the smouldering fire to suddenly blaze up. As to the property of the plaintiff subsequently destroyed, there was negligence on the part of the defendant, for he migh thave taken measures to control the fire after the destruction of the first property; but there was contributory negligence on the part of the plaintiff in not making any effort to remove his property from danger; and he could not, therefore, recover. Tait v. Jackson, 20 C. L. 7. 234.

Setting out fire on defendant's land —Spreading to plaintiff's property—Prairie Fires Ordinance—Fireguard—Negligence.]— Action for damages for injury to plaintiff's property by fire, alleged to have spread from a fire kindled by defendant on his land. Defendant had burned a 40-foot fireguard around his straw stack before burning it, and four days thereafter the fire spread to plaintif's property. Defendant having failed to prevent its escape, is liable. Plaintiff Held his property under a sale agreement:— Held, sufficient evidence of title. Robert's v. Morrow, 10 W. L. R. 32, 2 Sask. L. British Columbia foreshore lease — Powers of chief commissioner of lands and works — Non-exclusive right — Injunction. Capital City Canning and Packing Co. v. Anglo-British Columbia Packing Co. (B.C.), 2 W. L. R. 53.

Crown grant — Claim of grantee to exclusive right to fish from foreshore — Construction.] — The appellant, as grantee of the lands in suit from the French King. "with all the fishing and hunting and other rights and privileges which the vendor had or might have as seignior, or along its frontage on the senshore," claimed the exclusive right to fish salmon from the foreshore along their boundary :—Hi/4d, that, on the true construction of the grant, the claim could not be sustained. The above was ineffectual to pass the exclusive use of the foreshore so far as the fishing is concerned.—Judgment in Cabot v. Carbery, 15 Que, K. B. 124, allirmed, Cabot v. Atty-Gen. for Que., 16 Que, K. B. 463, [1907] A. C. 511.

Crown grant—Fief—Exclusive rights.] —The grant à titre de fief of a "tract of land situate on the Baie des Chaleurs of a lengue and a half in front by two in depth, to be reckoned from the seigneurie du Grand Pabos belonging to the Sieur Réné Hubert, proceeding from the coast of Cape Espoir towards Percée Island, with right of hunting, fishing, and treaty with the savages in the whole tract granted," does not give to the grantice and his assigns the exclusive right of fishing in the Gulf of St. Lawrence or posite the fief. Therefore, the owner of this fief has no right of action against persons who spread nets at the place mentioned to restrain them from so doing or for damages. Cabot v. Carbery, 15 Que, K. B. 124

Crown grant-Shell fish-Natural beds in tidal waters between high and low water marks - Private ownership of soil - Public right - Exclusive user 1-In their counterclaim the defendants averred that clams were dug out of flats which were in front of the defendants' farm, and were included down to low water mark in a grant from the Crown to the defendants' predecessors in title, 70 years ago. The grant also professed to convey a right of fishing :- Held, that the grant from the Crown of such a right of fishing would be invalid as against other subjects, whatever its force might be as against the Crown. Two elements essential to the establishment of such exclusive right were: (1) proof shewing a user of or a dealing with the right of fishery to the exclusion of others, as a right of property, separate and distinct in itself ; (2) the absence of anything to shew that its origin was modern .--- Unless a several fishery in tidal waters was in being before Magna Charta, it cannot be created by subsequent grant. In view of the date of the settlement of the province, there could be no appropriation of a several fishery in tidal waters by the Crown or by a private person so as to admit of an effectual grant thereof by the Crown. In that respect there is no distinction between taking swimming fish and shell fish covered by the soil. The right of the public to fish on the sea-shore between high and low water mark includes the right to take shell fish. Donnelly v. Vroom, 40 N. S. R. 585, 2 E. L. R. 358.

Fishery bounty — Regulations—Time of service on ship.]—To entitle a fishing vessel to bounty under the regulations of the 10th December, 1897, the fishermen employed on board of her must serve the full time of three months on such vessel during the season; service for such time partly on one vessel and partly on another will not suffice. Snow v. Rez, 11 Ex. C. R. 164.

Fishery reserves—Construction of term "high valer mark on the coat" in township grants.]—The original grants of townships reserved to the Crown five hundred feet from "high water mark on the coast" for the purposes of the fisheries. Under this reservation the Crown claimed 69 acres fronting on St. Peter's Bay, and 69 acres on the Morell River, in which the tide ebbs and flows. A verdict for the Crown was found for the whole. A rule nisi for a new trial was granted on the ground, amongst others, that the reservation clause only applied to land fronting on the open sea, and not to that fronting on tidal rivers. It was contended that the employment of the word Foreign fishing vessel — Three-millimit-Seizure — Juvisiteiton of Dominus and provinces over fisheries — Constitutional law.] — The American schooner "North" was discovered by the fisheries protection cruiser "Kestrel" fishing for hallbut in Quatsino Sound, Yancouver Island, within the three-mile limit, having all her boats out On observing the "Kestrel" the schooner picked up two of her boats and stood out to see. The "Kestrel" picked up one of the schooner's boats within the three-mile limit and then overhauled the schooner and seized her about a mile and three-quarters outside of the three-mile limit. There were freshly caught halbat on the schooner at the time of the seizure :—Held, that the seizure was lawful, the pursuit having commenced within the three-mile limit and having been continuous. — Observations on jurisdiction of Dominion and provinces over fisheries, Rez V. The "North," 11 Ex. C. R. 141.

Foreign fishing vessel — Violation of customs fisheries—Protection Act—Position of vessel—Accuracy of observations.]—Action for the confiscation of the steam fishing vessel "Francis Cutting," of Seattle, for fishing in Canadian waters. The sextant observations made by the captain of the Canadian Government cruiser in locating the "Francis Cutting" being doubtful, but the compass bearings of the first officer not being successfully attacked, it was held that the fishing vessel was a trospasser and was condemned and deelared forfeited. Rez v. "Francis Cutting," by W. L. R. 402.

License - Renewal - Exclusion of colicensee-Tenants in common-Use and possession-Profits-Account.] - A Dominion Government fishery license for one year, without right of renewal, was taken out a number of consecutive years by the plaintiff and the defendants until 1899, in which year and in the year following, the license was taken out and the fishing thereunder was carried on by the defendants. The plaintiff and defendants owned as tenants in common fishing gear They used in fishing under the license. were not partners in respect of the license, and each catch of fish was divided at the time it was made among such of the licensees as assisted in it. The expense of repairing the fishing gear was proportionately borne by the plaintiff and defendants up to the years 1899 and 1900, when it was borne by the defendants. In the years 1899 and 1900 the fishing gear was possessed and used exclusively by the defendants in fishing under the license :-- Held, that the plaintiff was not en-

Public right — Ownership between high and low water mark—Disping dams.]—The plaintiff claimed damages from the defendants for the conversion of a dary, its cars, and a quantity of clams. The defendants paid a sum of money into Court in respect to the dary and cars, but counterclaimed for the clams, which they alleged were dug upon flats of which they where the owners from high to low water mark:—Held, affirming the judgment of Meaging of the clams in question was done in the exercise of a public right of fishery, and that the defendant's ownership of the flats was subject to such right. Donnelly v. Vroom, 42 N. S. R. 327, 4 E. L. R. 306.

Regulations — Foreigners — Order in Council — "Temporarily domiciald.")—The defendants resided in Pennsylvania; they came to the county of Yarmouth in three successive years for the express purpose of tront-fishing in the inland waters of the county, employing Canadian boats and boatmen; they erected a substantial fishing camp on Crown land at the fishing grounds, in which they lived while engaged in fishins, and where their accourtements remained from season to season. Each of the defendants was convicted of a violation of certain regulations made under s. 16 of the Fisherles Act:—Held, that an appeal lay to the County Court from these convictions. 2. That the defendants were not "temporarily domiciled in Canada," within the meaning of an order in council providing that foreigners when so domiciled should be exempt from the regulations requiring permits. 3. FIXTURES.

Buildings—Crown — Intention.] — The plaintiff sued for the delivery by the defendants of certain buildings erected by M. upon land the title to which was, at the time of such erection, and continued to be, in the Grown. The plaintiff claimed title through a sale made to her under an excention issued from the Courty Court of Selkitk, on an alleged jadgment recovered by the plaintiff's husband against the defendants, under which excention the bailiff purported to selthe buildings as charters of M., who erected them about 19 years before action, and lived in them till about 1996; he did not actually reside in them at the time of the seizure under excention, but he took possession again before this action was brought. The buildings were not so affixed to the freehold as to require that anything should be broken or separated by force in order to remove them. M. did not own the land:-Held, that the presumption was that it was not intended that the buildings should become part of the freehold; the onus was on M. to shew that it was so intended. If the buildings became part of the freehold, they became the property of the Crown, the buildings became part of the freehold, they became the field to sell the buildings to the Grown, his actions in so doing being those of an owner, and not of one seeking compensation for the buildings as a matter of grace. Dizon v. Mackay, 22 C. L. T. 394. Reversed, 24 C. L. T. 28

Chattel affixed to railway — Lien of vendor for price — Extinction — Sale of railvery — Following purchase money — Acts of purchaser—Fraud.]—The lien of the vendor for the price of a chuttel is exinguished by the affixing of the chattel to an immovable (in this case a railway), which renders it immovable by destination. This is so especially where the immovable, including the article so affixed, is seized and sold; the lien cannot attach upon the purchase money placed in readiness for distribution—The acts of the vendor, and the diversion of receipts to his prejudice for other purposes, are not grounds for reviving the lien which may be set up against the hypothecary creditors of the undertaing. Ahearn & Soper Limited V. New York Trust Co., 18 Que, K. B. 82.

Field stones - Lumber-Roof of "leanto" — Fence rails — Machinery — Annexa-tion of, to freehold — Detachable part.]— Held, without deciding whether field stones which lie imbedded in or upon the surface of the soil are part of the soil, that their character is at all events changed when they are taken from the place where they are found and piled up in another place. The stones by the act of severance ceased to be a natural deposit and became chattels; and the supposed intention of the deceased to use them for building purposes did not again change their character, Levis v. Gordon, 15 O. R. 252, specially referred to. Tucker v. Linger, 21 Ch. D. 18, distinucibled :--Held, upon the evidence, that, although lumber had at one time formed part of the roof of a "lean-to," it had been taken apart by the intestate before his death and divided up into boards, and so had become chattels :---Held, that, although a fence is part of the realty, and although it might be that material placed along the line of a contemplated fence, but not used because the fence is not completed, also belongs to the freehold, yet the rails in question here did not become fixtures, because, so far as the evidence shewed, there was an entire absence of contemplation to erect them into a feace, and they were, there-fore, chattels which the defendant had the right to sell. A hay-fork was part of a plant consisting of a track, a truck, pulleys, a rope, and the fork. The track was fastened with holts or screws to the barn roof. Without the track, the truck would be useless; in fact, each of the articles was a joint in the whole, and the whole would be useless without its parts, or without any one of them :--Held, following Gooderham v. Denholm, 18 U. C. R. 214, that the hay-fork in question was a fixture, and the circumstance that it could be used again in connection with another track. truck, pulleys, and rope, of similar kind and dimensions, did not deprive it of its character. McCarthy v. McCarthy, 20 C. L. T. 211.

Furnace purchased on an agreement that the property in it should remain in the vendor until paid for, ceases to be a chattel when the purchaser annexes it to the freehold. Such an agreement merely confers a license on the vendor to enter and sever from the freehold what is no longer a chattel so as to again make it a chattel. A purchaser of the really without notice of the agreement is not bound by it, nor can the vendor recover possession of the chattel or damages for its conversion from the purchaser. Hobson V. Gorringe, [1807] 1 Ch. 182, and Reynolds v. Ashby, [1904] A. C. A66, followed. Waterous v. Henry (1884), 2 Man L. R. 169, and Vulcan Iron v. Rapid City (1894), 9 Man. L. S77, overruled. Andrexes V. Machinery - Conditional sale-Lien of manufacturer-Rights of mortgagee-Priori. ties - Statute - Retroactivity.]-A woollen company purchased from the plaintiffs, on the instalment plan, a steam engine under an agreement in writing which provided that it should not become the property of the vendee until the payment of all the instalments, and should be removable by the vendor on failure of the vendee to pay as agreed. The engine was affixed to the freehold of the vendee by bolts and screws to iron plates embedded in concrete to prevent it from rocking and shifting, and might have been removed at any time without injury to the freehold. It was used for driving the machinery in the factory of the vendee. Default having been made in the payment of the instalments, the engine was claimed by the vendor and also by defendant, a mortgagee of the land on which the mills were situate and all the mill plant, engines, etc., who took his mortgage after the engine had been installed and without notice of the plaintiff's claim. The mortgage was foreclosed by the defendant, and the mortgaged property was bought in by him under a sale in equity, for an amount less than the mortgage debt. The plaintiffs were not parties to the foreclosure proceedings, but were aware Held, that the engine was sufficiently annexed to the land to become part of the freehold. and passed to the defendant under his mortgage. By the mortgage to the defendant the engine passed as part of the realty, and on his taking possession, if not by virtue of the mortgage alone, all right in the plaintiffs to retake, it was put an end to. The Act 62 V. c. 12, s. 8, s.-s. 2, which provides that where goods or chattels are sold on the instalment or hire and purchase system, and the property is not to pass until payment, the right of the owner shall not be affected by such goods or chattels being affixed to the realty, does not apply to past transactions where the goods had been affixed to and become part of the realty before the passing of the Act. Machinery leased to company - Annexation to freehold-Rights of lessor against mortgagee of company's lands.]-Certain articles of machinery were leased by the plaintiff for one year to a manufacturing company. and placed upon the company's premises There was no agreement for purchase. Previous to this the company had mortgaged to the plaintiff their lands, including these premises, with all the plant and machinery thereon, or which should be brought thereon during the continuance of the mortgage. The plaintiff's articles of machinery were in some degree attached to the buildings in which they were placed, but all could be detached at a trifling cost, without doing substantial damage to the inheritance :-- Held, upon the evidence, that the articles were so annexed to the freehold as prima facie to constitute them as between the company and the defendant, fixtures; and, the defendant not being a party to the agreement between the plaintiff and the company, that agreement, though it was merely one of hiring, and not the usual hire-pure to alter annexed entitled ant. Mill and machinery—Mortgage of realty -Fi, i_a , $g_{aods} - Bills of Sale Act—Inter$ pleader.]—A mill built on mod sills laidon piles and spiked to the piles and millmathematical and plant therein were held toleast and spiked to the resolution and to pass tothe plaintiff by mortgages of the hand andpremises together with all buildings. Exturesand appurtenances, and not to be exigibleunder the defendants' execution against theplaintiff's mortgages were not assurances ofpersonal chattels, so as to require registration under the Bills of Sale Act. ReynoldsV. Ashby, 73 L. J. K. B. 946, and In reYates, Batcheldor V. Yates, 57 L. J. Ch. 637,followed. Small V. National ProvincialBank of England, 63 L. J. Ch. 270, disinguished. Kilpatrick V. Stone (1910), 13W. L. R. 634, 15 B. C. R. 158.

Mortgage — Plant — Temporary absence from factory.]—A mortgage of an electroplating factory, "together with all the plant and machinery at present in use in the factory," does not cover patterns used in the business, sent from time to time from the factory to foundries to have mouldings made, and not in the factory at the time of the making of the mortgage. Judgment of Ferguson, J., 1 O. L. R. 229, 21 C. L. T. 186, reversed. McCosh v. Burton, 21 C. L. T. 371, 2 O. L. R. 77.

Ownership of buildings - Sale under private writing-Mortgage effected by the proprietor of the land and registered against both land and buildings - Remedy of the proprietor of the buildings — Against whom should action be brought?]—Build-ings may be acquired, by private writing, as a right of ownership distinct the land upon which they are erected. Hence, if a mortgage is effected upon a cadastral lot, without excepting the buildings erected upon it, by the proprietor of the land, the owner of the buildings, who acquired them in virtue of a sale under private writing and not registered, may take an action to have the hypothec erased as against the creditor who has registered his title. - A building erected upon ground belonging to another is the property of the builder, under the suspensive condition that the pro-prietor of the land will not claim it later as accretion .- The action to have the hypothec erased should be directed against the creditor or those who are qualified to effect it, without calling the debtor who created the hypothec into the case. Reed v. Belavance (1910), 19 Que. K. B. 369.

Property in building separate from noll—Land belonging to substitution—Building erected by greed—Science by creditors.] —The property in a building may be in a person other than the owner of the soil upon c.c.L_{a} —60 which it is built. Article 415, C. C., establishes a different rule from that of the Roman law, edificium solo cedit, which is no longer in force. Therefore a house built by a greed et aubstitution upon land beionging to the substitution and declared insainsaable, belongs to him and may be seized and sold at the suit of creditors, Lacombe y. Brunet, 14 Que, K. B. 465.

Safe built into house — Landlord and tenant — Agreement — Change of owner-ship — Removal of safe.]—The plaintiffs rented a building into which they moved a safe for the purposes of their banking business. The landlords, at the request of the plaintiffs, built around the safe a brick vault. to the defendants, who knew nothing of an alleged agreement between the plaintiffs and their landlords as to the right to remove the safe after the plaintiffs had left the premises. During the interim between the removal of the plaintiffs and the sale, certain improve-ments were effected in the building, one of which was the pulling down of the vault and the construction of a mezzanine floor, versing the judgment of Henderson, Co.C.J. (who decided that the safe was a chattel and had been bricked or built in merely for the purposes of its more convenient use as a chattel), that, although the safe when enclosed in the vault, became a fixture, and although it could have been removed with the consent of the original owners of the building, yet the right of removal was lost when the defendants bought the premises, Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Lewis, 5 W. L. R. 194, 12 B. C. R. 398.

Small building not attached to freehold—Consent of owner of freehold to sale of building—Hight of purchaser to remove building — License, Thompson v. Thompson, 2 E. L. R. 401.

Structure—Right to remove,]—A lessee who has a right under a covenant in his lease, to remove, at the expiration thereof, a structure added by him to the leased premises, and fails to protect his right by an opposition to withdraw, or otherwise, when the latter are sold by licitation during his tenancy, is entitled to recover from the lessor or his representatives not the full value of the structure as attached to the premises, but only what would be the value of it after severance and removal. Goudet v, Marsan, 36 Que, S. C. 537.

Suspensive conditional sale—Repletin —Title — Registration.] — In order that movable property placed on real property for a permanency and incorporated therewith, should become immovable by destination, one ownership as well of the movable as the immovable poop the former is placed, must be vested in the same person. 2. Movable property which, had it been owned by the proprietor of the real estate upon which it was placed, would have become immovable by destination, may, even after a sheriff's sale of the immovable while the movable property was so attached to it, he revendicated by its owner. 3. The title to such movable property preserved under a suspensive conditional sale providing that the ownership shall not pass until full and final payment of the price, and that the property shall not become immovable until that time, and with a stipulation that any money paid on account shall be imputed as rent, is, without registration, a valid and sufficient title. Leonard v. Willard, 23 Que. S. C. 482.

Vendor and purchaser - Claim for price of electric fittings and storm sashes as not included in sale of house-Contract-Oral evidence.]-In ar action to recover balance alleged to be due in connection with the sale of a house and lot of land, it ap-peared that the balance sought to be recovered referred to certain electric light fittings, and storm sashes which the plaintiff asserted were to be paid for as extras, and which the defendant contended were fixtures and passed with the house. The evidence of the estate agent through whom the sale was effected was to the effect that when he took to the plaintiff a memorandum, signed by the defendant, agreeing to pur-chase the house for a stated sum, the plaintiff said he would accept the offer provided the defendant paid for the electric light fittings, and that, upon this reply being communicated to the defendant, he assented thereto.-The County Court Judge for dishe assented trice No. 1 having given judgment in the plaintiff's favour for the full amount claimed:—Held, that, on the evidence, the plaintiff was entitled to recover only for planting was control to recover only for the electric fittings, and not for the sashes, and the judgment must be reduced accord-ingly.—Per Russell, J., that, as the agree-ment signed by the defendant was not acment signed by the plaintiff, and there was not ac-cepted by the plaintiff, and there was no memorandum in writing of the agreement actually entered into between the parties, the rule prohibiting the introduction of oral evidence to vary the terms of a writing had no application, and, as neither party had succeeded fully, there should be no costs. --Per Longley, J., that the storm sashes sued for would pass as fixtures. Dorcy v. Gray, 42 N. S. R. 259.

Vendor and purchaser—Shop fittings, Gas and electric light fittings.]—Shop fittings, consisting of shelving made in sections, each section being screwed to a bracket affixed to the wall of a building, the whole being readily removable without damage either to the fittings or the building, and gas and electric light fittings, ccnsisting of chandeliers which were fastened by being screwed or attached in the ordinary way to the pipes or wires by which the gas and electric currents were respectively conveyed, and were removable by being unscrewed or detached without doing damage either to the chandeliers or the building, were placed in it by the owner of the freehold land on which it stood:—Held, that these articles became part of the land and passed by a convegance of it to the defendants. Bain V. Brand, 1. App. Cas. To2: Holland v. Hodgson, L. R. 7 C. P. 328, Mobson V. Gorringe, [1807] 1 Ch. 182, Happert v. Town of Brampton, 28 S. C. R. 174, and Argles v. McMath, 26 O. R. at p. 248, followed. Stack v. T. Eaton Co., 22 C. L. T. 322, 4 O. L. E. 335, 1 O. W. R. 511.

Wooden building erected on lot by ternant-Right to remore — Injury to jrechold.] — Action to prevent removal of a building erected by defendant, tenant of plaintiffs. The building rested on rock, placed on the soil. The chimneys were supported by poles resting on rock. The front stoop supported on wooden plock sidewalk:— Held to be a fixture. That it could be removed without materially injuring the freehold is immaterial. Bing Kee v. Yick Chong. 10 W. L. R. 110.

Wooden buildings seized under 6, ja, goods--Claim of oxener of lands to buildings as part of freehold — Ameration to freehold — Interpleader.]--Interpleader issue to ascertain ownership of a house and stable:--Held, that as these merely rested on the land by their own weight, and were not considered part of the land, they are chattels liable to seizure under execution against goods. Hamilton v. Chisholm, 11 W. L. R. 134.

FRAUD AND MISREPRESENTATION.

Action for damages for frandulent representations inducing contract — Failure to prove actual fraud. Scott v. Sprayue's Mercontile Agency of Ontario, Limited, 4 O. W. R. 454, 5 O. W. R. 237.

Action for deceit—Pleading—Statement of claim—Allegation of misrepresentation as to future event.]—In an action of deceit it is not sufficient for the plaintiff to allege a misrepresentation by the defendant as to something to take place in the future, as, for example, that a store to be leased by the plaintiff from the defendant would be vacant at a certain date: and if, in such a case, the plaintiff's inability to get possession of the store at such date was caused—by the defendant having given a prior lease to another party, the statement of claim should specifically allege the concealment of such prio: lease as the ground of action. Smythe v. Mills, 7 W. L. R. 557, 17 Man, L. R. 349.

Action for deceit-False representations - Agreement for sale - Compromise - Re-lease - Notice.]-P., living in Montreal, owned 15,000 shares in a Cobalt mining company, and D. of Ottawa, also a shareholder, was looking after his interests in respect to them. Being informed by D. that the mine was badly managed and the property of little value, P. signed an agreement to sell his stock at par which D. assigned to a third Later P., believing he had acted imparty. prodently in signing the agreement, entered into negotiations with the assignee and a compromise was finally effected by which 3.000 shares of his stock were sold to the Solve shares of his sock were sold to the latter at par, and the remainder re-trans-ferred to P. It turned out that the assignce and D, were acting in collusion to get pos-session of P's stock, and it having greatly increased in value he brought action against D for damages — Hdd_{e} excession the index D. for damages :- Held, reversing the judgment of the Court of Appeal, 12 O. W. R. 824, and restoring that of a Divisional Court, 11 O. W. R. 127, which affirmed the verdict at the trial, 9 O. W. R. 380, that the said compromise having been effected when P. was ignorant of the real state of affairs, he was not bound by it, and was entitled to re-cover from D. the difference between par value and the price at the date of the com-promise. Pitt v. Dickaon (1909), 42 S. C. R. 478, 30 C. L. T. 170.

Action for deceit — Representations inducing plaintiffs to become shareholders in company formed to acquire timber limits— Estimate of value of timber — Fraudulent misrepresentation as to part—Plaintiffs not induced by the mairepresentations proved— Dismissal of action—Costs. Piper v. Thompson, 11 O. W. R. 690; affirmed 12 O. W. R. 1088.

Action for deceit — Sale of interest in business.]—Plaintiff's son and defendant conducted a store in partnership, the son having one-third interest by an agreement under seal. Defendant sold his interest in the business to plaintiff and his son for $4,000, they to assume liabilities, which, as is not unusual, turned out to be more than expected. The Court of Appeal holds that notwithstanding this agreement the plaintiff can, and as he did shew that he alone purchased defendant's two-thirds interest, consequently he was entitled to two-thirds of the total drumage sustained in consequence of this failse statement. The trial Judge held plaintiff was entitled to one-half not twothirds, as by the agreement the plaintiff and his son were the purchasers. Dickson v. Let roy, 13 O. W. R. 147.

Action to set aside sale of business-Representations by agent-Amount of business - Lease - Representations not relied on-Action dismissed -- Costs.]-Plain-tiff brought action to set aside a sale of the Avenue Motion Picture Theatre, at Owen the avenue Motion Picture Theatre, at Owen Sound, for an order requiring Mrs. Lizzé M. Buckley, who sold plaintiff the theatre, to reconvey to him some property at Wei-land, which he had given in exchange, or in the alternative, he asked for $2,000 dam-ages Plaintiff alleged that it had been represented to him that defendant had become a Christian Scientist and wanted to get her husband out of the theatrical business. Plaintiff alleged fraud and misrepresentation by defendants' agent Brownscombe: (1) with reference to the amount of business transacted in the theatre, viz., that there had been two or three shown per night to full houses; (2) that there were at least two good picture machines in said theatre; (3) (and this was more in the nature of a guarantee than a representation), that the landlord or owner of the building would give a fease with the ordinary statutory covenants for the balance of the five years,—Falcon-bridge, C.J.Q.B., keld, that the plaintif did not satisfy the onus of proof: That any representations made by Brownscombe, if in any respect inaccurate, were not fraudulently made, but innocently. Action dismissed with costs. Skinner v. Buckley (1910), 17 O. W. R. 446, 2 O. W. N. 257.

Imperial Life Assurance Co. v. D'Aigneault, 25 Que. S. C. 75.

Exchange of lands-Misrepresentations relied on - Rescission of conveyances.]-Action to rescind an agreement for exchange of plaintiff's city property for defendant's farm. Agreement held void, defendant having misrepresented farm, and plaintiff having relied on defendant's representations. Thompson v. Pepper, 11 W. L. R. 286. Affirmed (1909), 12 W. L. R. 490.

Exchange of farm for stock of goods -False and fraudulent representations as to the farm - Damages.]-Plaintiff brought action to set aside an exchange of a farm for a stock of goods, on the ground that the defendant had made false and fraudulent representations as to the value of the farm, etc.: Held, that defendant made the false and fraudulent representations charged as to the value and condition of his lands, crops and chattels and the quantities thereof, with the intention that they should be relied and acted upon by plaintiff's husband in order to effect the sale or exchange of the property for the Drayton business and property, and that plaintiff's husband did rely and act thereon, whereby he suffered great loss and damage. Judgment entered for plaintiff for $3,205.15, with costs, and dismissing the counterclaim with costs. Clemens v. Comp-ton (1910), 15 O. W. R. 794.

Exchange of land for stock of goods -Plaintiff brought action to recover $1,000 damages for alleged false and fraudulent statements made by defendant in respect to certain lands in Muskoka, taken by plaintiff in exchange for a stock of general merchandise owned by him in Grand Valley. At the trial Britton, J., entered judgment for defendant, and dismissed the action with costs. Plaintiff's appeal therefrom was al-lowed by Divisional Court, as defendant had failed to satisfy the onus of clearing himself of the effect of his misstatements. Plaintiff given judgment for $300 and costs of appeal. McCabe v. Bell (1910), 15 O. W. R. 547, 1 O. W. N. 523.

Failure of evidence to establish -Foreigners imperfectly acquainted with English-Execution of bond.] - Action on a bond :- Held, that there was no fraud or misrepresentation, and that defendants were well aware of what they were signing. Colwell v. Neufeld, 11 W. L. R. 583.

False representation inducing plaintiff to purchase land-Action for deceit-Honest belief in truth of statements-Reversal by Appellate Court of finding of fact of trial Judge — Damages — Amendment — New cause of action—Refusal of Appellate Court to allow.]—In an action for damages for false and fraudulent representations ages for the all fraudule representations made by the defendant M., a land agent, whereby the plaintif was induced to pur-chase land from the defendant B., through the defendant M. as agent, the trial Judge (Johnstone, J.), found that the representa-tions were made and were false and were believed and acted upon by the plaintiff, but that the defendant M. had an honest belief in the representations he made at the time that they were made, and dismissed the acthat they were made, and distances in the they were made, and distances in the suggest of Johnstone, J., differed from the helief of the defendant M., holding that he had the means of knowledge in his possession and no reasonable grounds for his belief, and therefore they must be regarded as frandulently made; and held the plaintiff entitled to succeed. Derry v. Peek, 14 App. Cas. 337, and Angus v. Clifford, [1801] 2 Ch. 449, explained and followed:—Heid, by the majority of the Court, that the finding of fact of the trial Judge was clearly wrong, and it was therefore the right and duty of the Court to reverse it, within the rule laid down in Schéaac v. Central Vermont Ruc. Co., 26 S. C. R. 641, and Hayes v. Day, 41 S. C. R. 134.—Damages assessed by the Court at the difference between what the plaintiff paid and what the land was found to be worth.—At the hearing of the appeal the plaintiff applied for leave to amend by setting up as an alternative claim that the defendant M. was an agent or employee of the plaintiff:— Held, that the application should be refused; the plaintiff should not be allowed, at any an entirely different relationship from that set out in the original claim. Steinfen v. Lord Chelmsford, 22 L. J. Ex. 322, and Connecticut Fire Insurance Co. v. Kavoangah, [1892] A. C. 473, distinguished. Davis v. Burt & McFarlane (1910), 13 W. L. R. 534.

Inducement of contract — Fraud of third person — Remedy — Damages.] — Fraud practised by a third party, even when it produces in the mind of one of the contracting parties a mistake as to the nature of the contract, cannot be invoked by that party as a cause of nullity as against the person with whom he contracts. He has no remedy except against the author of the fraud of damages. Therefore, a person.who, deceived by the fraudulent practices of a third person, signs a security when he believes that he is signing a contract of insurance, is bound to fulfil the collipations of it. Imperial Life Assurance Co. v. Laliberté, 29 Que, S. C. 183.

Lease of farm—Representations of leasor as to condition—Evidence,]—In an action for damages for false and fraudulent representation: as alleged to have been made by defendant which induced plaintiffs to lease a farm, it was held that such representations had not been made out, but plaintiffs were allowed $40 with Division Court costs for some losses and inconvenience. Defendant allowed High Court costs. Luck v. Ranmie, 13 O. W. R. 715.

Lease of land — Representations as to value and condition of land untrue in fact but made in good faith—Counterclaim for damages for deceit—Dismissal — Money demand—Items, Booth v. Beechey (N.W.T.), 5 W. L. R. 71.

Petition of right — Fraud by Government official — Order addressed to no one to "pay bearer" amount of salary due from Government not an assignment unless it is zheuce to have been intended as such.] — Petitioner, a schoolmaster, under the usual trustees' certificate, became entitled to receive §44.50 from the Governor-in-Council, after the Secretary of the Board of Education shall have furnished the Governor-in with a list of teachers entitled to salaries, and the amounts treasury warrants to be issued payable to the Colonial Treasure, to be by him applied towards paying the teachers, and that the clerk of the council should place the warrant in the treasurer's hands with a certified copy of the list, and that the clerk of the council should draw orders for the several amounts of the salaries on the treasurer. who should pay them when presented at his office. Instead of following the Act the Government or its officials gave McNeill, Secretary of the Board of Education, cheques on the treasurer payable to bearer, thus giving him control over the money whereby he was enabled to defraud both Government and individuals of large sums. In Bradley's case the cheque was given to McNeill on 5th September, although the order for payment was not made until the 9th. The trustees' certificate was dated in August and had an indorsement in McNeill's handand an incorresent in MCNern's name writing dated 5th September, as follows: "Pay John McNeill or order," and signed by Bradley. When Bradley came for his money McNeill instead of giving him a cheque filled up an order payable to bearer and addressed to no one and told him to go to Hayden who would give him his money. and if there was any discount he (McNeill and it there was any discount he (McNeill) would pay it, and Hayden having charged $1.50 McNeill repaid it to Bradley. On the same day Bradley at McNeill's request signed his name to the trustees' certificate, but he could not remember if the indorse-ment "Pay to John McNeill or order" was there when he signed or not. In his evdence Bradley said he considered himself paid by McNeill. The action though in Brad-ley's name was really by Hayden, who claimed to be his assignee and therefore entitled to use his name. The defence of the Government was that the petitioner had re-ceived payment from McNeill, the official appointed to pay him, and that no assignment was made or intended to be made by him to Hayden, and the question was whether under the circumstances there was an assignment or not :--Held, Peters, J., that there was no assignment and that an order of the nature given was not an assignment unless shewn that it was intended to be such. -That this case was properly cognizable in equity and not in a Court of law, Brad-ley v. R. (1873), 1 P. E. I. R. 454.

ages by reason of the payment of the dividends, notwithstanding that the payment was not made out of the actual fixed capital and was not ultra vires of the company ; and notwithstanding that it was made to the persons who were then the shareholders of the com-pany; the company having parted with sums of money which, but for the misrepresenta-tions, would still have been at the company's credit .-- Damages were assessed against the estate of the deceased in the sum of $34,500, made up by taking the amount of the misrepresentation at the end of December, 1902. to have been roundly $30,000, and adding three years' interest at five per cent.-It was urged by the defendants against the credi-bility of the principal witness for the plaintiffs, that having, at the instance of the plaintiffs, though before this action was brought or contemplated, and while the president was still alive, made a statutory declaration as to the truth of the facts which he afterwards deposed to at the trial, he was in vinculis, and was not free to vary from it except at the risk of a prosecution for perjury .--- Held, that the taking of unnecessary statutory declarations is a practice which should be avoided, and in this case a simple signed statement would have been as effectual; but the witness was entitled to credit, against this objection, his testimony being given with fairness and candour, and no motive for falsehood being apparent. Recovery of money paid under contract induced by fraud — Rescission — Jurisdiction of County Courts — County Courts Act, s. 61 (b),].—1. Without a resclosion of a contract, there can be no recovery of amounts paid under it by one party on the ground of alleged misrepresentation by the other party inducing the contract.—2. County Courts in Manitoba have no jurisdiction to cancel contracts on the ground of fraud, as s.-s. (b) of s. 61 of the County Courts Act. R. S. M. 1902 c. 38, which confers equitable jurisdiction when the subject of the action is "an equitable claim and demah of debt, account or breach of contract, or covenant or money demand, whether payable in money or otherwise," does not apply to an action for the cancellation of a contract. Plaintiff has not proved, with sufficient definiteness, that any damage can safely be estimated resulting from breach of contract, regarding seed to be sours. Action dismissed without prejudice to suit being brought for breach of contract, or to countrectain if sued upon note. Latus v. Beardsley, 10 W. L. R. 653.

Sale of farm and horses-Condition and value-Reliance of purchaser on representa-tions of vendor-Action for deceit - Damages.]—The plaintiff transferred to the de-fendant the stock in trade and goodwill of his business as a merchant, and received as consideration therefor a section of land, with the horses and implements thereon, and a sum of money. The plaintiff sued for damages for deceitful representations in regard to the land and the chattels :---Held, upon the evidence, that the transaction was not one in which the parties were equally ignorant of the conditions and value of what they were getting, and understood that they were taking chances and dealing at their peril; the plaintiff had never seen the land, and had no independent information about it : the defendant did make certain represenar, the detendant did make certain represen-tations about it, and the plaintiff acted upon some of them at least.—The represen-tations alleged were: (1) that the land was first-class farm land; (2) that it was all good beaux soil accent do accent which was all good heavy soil accent do accent which was all good heavy soil, except 40 acres, which was rough, but first-class pasture land; (4) that, with the exception of wells, there was no water on the land .- Held, that the first and third representations were in regard to matters of opinion and were mere commendation, not justifying an inference of fraudulent intent; but the second and fourth representations were untrue and in regard to matters of such moment that they must be regarded as fraudulent:—Held, also that misrepresen-tations alleged as to the condition, age, and value of six horses upon the land, could not be recarded as proved; value is a matter of opinion; the plantiff must have understood what their condition was; and, if their ages were misrepresented, it was hardly material, in view of all the circumstances .- Damages assessed for land not at present fit to be cultivated and for water on the land in excess of what was represented. Sale of interest in chattels—Representation as to price paid—Falsity—Intent to deceive—Caveat emptor—Fiduciary relationship.)—The plaintiffs bought a half interest in a fishing boat and gear, and sought to recover back the purchase money from the defendant, on the ground that the defendant falsely represented that he had paid a certain sum for the boat, which amount was much larger than the actual amount paid by him :— Held, that the plaintiffs could not succeed in this action by shewing merely that such representation was made, and was false to the knowledge of the defendant when making it, and was made with a view to deceive. Representations by a vendor as to the price he paid for an article should be regarded as merely "dealer's takk." Caveat emptor applies.— Cases in relation to sales of property to companies distinguishable, on the ground of agency, or guasi agency, or fiduciary relations. Young V. Medillan, 40 N. S. R. 52.

Sale of land—Action by purchaser to set aside.]—Action to set aside a sale and conveyance of land on ground of fraud and for damages. Negotinitions for sale were by correspondence. At trial plaintiff withdrew fraud charges, which was allowed, defendant have charges of fraud reinstated, which was refused:—Held, that as plaintiff, with knowredge of the representations, had sold the land, action must be dismissed. No costs to either party if defendant will not bring action of deceit. Heatherly V. Knight (1909), 14 O. W. R. 338. See S. C. 684.

Sale of land — Contract not in fact induced by misrepresentation if made—Contract previously made—Plaintiffs acquiring an isterest — Deceit — Amendment — Evidence —New contract—Damages—Contract resulting in substantial profit. Steele v. Pritchard (Man.), 5. W. L. R. 203, 7 W. L. R. 108.

Sale of land-Inducement-Evidence New contract-Damages-Contract resulting in substantial profit.]-On the 25th June, 1906, the defendants, acting as agents of the Ontario and Saskatchewan Land Corporation. gave the plaintiff S. an option in writing to purchase all the lands of the company in certain named townships, being about 48,000 acres, at $6.60 per acre, and took S.'s cheque for a deposit of $5,000 on account. There were not funds in the bank to pay the cheque and the defendant urged S. to provide funds. S. then, at a meeting of the parties held on the 28th June, introduced his co-plaintiffs, P. and B., to the defendants. P. and B. were then induced to join S. in the purchase, and acquired a two-thirds interest in it, and funds were provided to make the $5,000 payment. The plaintiffs alleged that the defendants in-duced P. and B. to go into the purchase by representing at that meeting that the pur-chase included all the land that the company ever owned in the township mentioned, and that such representation was false, as some of the best lands had been previously sold. After discovering the mistake, the plaintiffs com-pleted the purchase, and later disposed of the bulk of the lands at a substantial profit. The statement of claim was based on the contract of the 25th June and on the allegation that the defendants by fraudulent misrepresentations induced the three plaintiffs to enter into it, and damages were claimed, as in an action of deceit, for loss of the profits that would have been made if the plaintiffs had received the lands that the company had previously sold. The trial Judge found that the plaintiff S. had not been induced to enter into the purchase by any misrepresentations of the defendants, but found a verdict for the other plaintiffs against both defendants:--Held, on appeal, that, as the plaintiffs P. and B. had not made any independent contract with the defendants for the purchase of the lands in question, but had only acquired an interest with S. in the option which he had previously secured, their only remedy for the alleged false representation would be by an action of deceit, for that they had been thereby induced to enter into the agreement with S. for the acquisition of an interest with him in the option, to which action S. would not be a proper party, and that, as the issues and evidence in such an action might be widely different from those in the present action, an amendment of the pleadings setting up such new case, first asked for at the hearing of the appeal, should not be allowed, and that the appeal, should not be allowed, and that the action should be dismissed, without prejudice, however, to the right of P, and B, if so ad-vised, to bring a new action on the grounds above indicated.—Held, also, per Phippen, J.A., that, after discovering the alleged fraud, the plaintiff might, if the facts they alleged waves true have sued the commony for the rewere true, have sued the company for the re-turn of their $5,000 deposit, or brought an action of deceit against the defendants, laying Intheir damages at the amount paid out. stead of that, however, they exercised their privilege of making a new contract directing the company to retain, as part of the pur-chase money thereunder, the $5,000 previously paid for the option. Judgment—Attack on—Time.]—A judgment, and the judicial hypothec thereby created upon the property of the debtor, while he is insolvent, and with the intention of obtaining a fraudulent preference over other creditors of the debtor, may be attacked within the time mentioned in Art. 1040, C. C. —2. A judgment is a judicial contract.—3. The time for contesting the fraudulent act of a debtor runs not only from the date of the distribution of his property, establishing his insolvency, but from the date of the knowledge of the fraud by the creditor, that is to say, from the prejudice which the fraudulent act causes him. Banque Nationale v. Common, 22 Que, 8, C. 284.

Land purchased by debtor — Patent issued to another—Evidence—Presumption.] —The plaintiff claimed a declaration that a certain piece of land purchased from the Do-minion Government in the name of the defendant J. was the preperty of his brother, the defendant R., and should be sold to realize the plaintiff's registered judgment against R. At the time of the purchase in 1888 R. was indebted to the plaintiff in a sum of over $1,800, and to another person for over $4,000, and it was shewn that J. had never paid anything on the land either for the purchase money or taxes, and had never received anything by way of rent or profits; also that the money for the first instalment had been advanced by another brother, that R. had paid the rest of the purchase money from the proceeds of the land, of which he had always proceeds of the land, of which he had a way enjoyed the use and occupation; and that the Crown patent for the property was issued to J. in 1892 without his having applied for it. The defendants at their examination for discovery before the trial swore that the whole transaction was bona fide and that R. was J.'s agent throughout in respect of the property, but R. was not called as a witness for the defence. J., also, in a letter to R. written in 1899, had referred to the property as "your land:"—Held, that the proper conclusion upon the whole evidence was that the land was really R.'s property and had been purchased and held in J.'s name for the purpurchased and near in J, s name for the pur-pose of preventing creditors from realising out of it, and that the plaintiff was entitled to the relief asked for. Semble, that when a defendant who is in Court does not give evi-dence to support his case, the Judge is en-titled to make arear reasonable resonance. titled to make every reasonable presumption against him. Barker v. Furlong, [1891] 2 Ch. 172, followed. Miller v. McCuaig, 20 C. L. T. 27, 13 Man. L. R. 220.

Simulated sale of chattels—Presumption—Pledge.]—Although a sale of movable effects may be perfect without delivery, the want of diplacement gives rise to the presumption that the sale was simulated.—2. The laws of the province of Quebec do not permit chattel mortgages, and in a prominent degree refuse recognition of subterfuges whereby a creditor may secure advantages at the expense of his fellow-creditors.—3. Where it appears that a pretended deed of sale, without any delivery having taken place, is, in reality, an unlawful pledge of the movables affected, such deed will be annulled. In re doyer, 21 Que. Dealing in shares—Broker—Payment of differences—Illegality — Criminal Code, s. 201.)—The defendant instructed the plaintiffs to sell shares for him; the plaintiffs asked for cover, and the defendant paid $600; no time was fixed for delivery; the plaintiffs asked the defendant for more, as shares were rising, and finally called for $2,400, which the defendant refused to pay. The plaintiffs then, as they alleged, purchased the shares to astisfy their own liability, and sued for amount paid:—Held, that, as no stock way ever delivered or intended to be delivered, and as the intent was to make a purofit from the fluctuations of the stock mark :t, the transaction was illegal. British C.Jumbia Stock Exchange, Limited, v. Irving, S. B. C. R. 186.

Municipal by-law-Ultra vires-Municipal Act-Gambing in private house-Con-viction quashed.]-Motion by defendant to quash his conviction by the police magistrate quash his conviction by the police magistrate for the city of Toronto for allowing a game of chance to be played for money upon his premises, contrary to a by-law of the city, purporting to be founded on a clause in the Municipal Act empowering the municipality to pass by-laws "for suppressing gambling torons the provide the suppressing the suppressing the superhouses and for seizure and destroying faro banks, rouge et noir, roulette tables, and other devices for gambling found therein:" R. S. O. 1897 c. 223, s. 549 (4). The legislation The legislation pointed at houses where gaming or gambling was practised, and houses kept for such pur-The inquiry in this case was not as to Dose. whether the place in question was a "gamb-ling house," and there was no evidence to proved, or perhaps two, in which cards for proved, or perhaps two, in which cards for gain had been played at the house, but that fell far short of what would be required to attach to it the character of a "gambling house:"—Held, the element of frequency at least was essential to make out that any place is a gambling house, and isolated instances on Sundays, when Jews or others come together in private houses to play cards, were not within the scope of this statute. The The by-law far transcends the terms of the enabling statute, and assumes to make illegal that which was not in contemplation of the legislature as expressed in the statute. The conviction should be quashed because resting on an invalid by-law. Res v. Spegelman, 5 O. W. R. 33, 9 O. L. R. 75.

Promissory note—Indorsement—Club.] — The defendants indorsed a promissory note made in favour of the plaintiffs, a club, by the manager of the club as security for a sum of money placed in the hands of the manager by the club for the purpose of promoting gambling:—Held, that the indorsement was void, and the plaintiffs could not recover upon it. Le Club Canadien v. Jacotel, 16 Que. S. C. 312.

Order bofore judgment—Rule 759.]— The right under Rule 759 to attach debts before judgment is confined to cases where the amount of the plaintiff's claim can be definitely ascertained at the time the action is brought—to cases where there are actual debts due and owing to the plaintiff; and the Rule does not apply to cases of unliquidated damages, whether arising in tort or contract.—This action, which was for commissions earned and which would have been earned by the plaintiff under an agreement to sell goods for the defendants for 5 years, and for a share of the defendants' profits, the plaintiff alleging that the defendants had refused to carry out the agreement and expressed the intention of no longer carrying it out and discharged the plaintiff, was considered to be an action for damages for breach of the agreement and not within the Rule; and an attaching order was set aside.—McIntyre v. Gibson, 17 Man. L. R. 423. 8W. L. R. 202, followed. Hart v. Dubrule (1910), 15 W. L. R. 602, Man. L, R.

Procedure — Seizure by garnishment — Garnishee in possession of movables belonging to the judgment debtor—Condemnation to deposit or pay a sum of money as their ralue.]—A garnishee who, upon a contestation of his declaration, is proved to have had in his possession, movables, the property of the judgment debtor, can only be condemned to surrender them to the officer of the Court for execution, and, in default to do so within a prescribed delay, to pay their value, or satisfy the judgment. A condemnation to deposit a sum of money, or to pay it to the seizing creditor, as the value of the movables, without the option of surrendering them, is julegal. Fontaine v. Lamoureux (1909), 19 K. B. (Que.) 421.

Summons—Rule 384—Affidavit sworn before action begun.]—Although, under Rule 384, a garnishee summons cannot issue until after an action has been begun, the affidavit upon which the summons is based may be sworn before the commencement of the acsworn.—Marcy v. Pierce, 4 Terr. L. R. 186, followed.—The affidavit need not state the grounds of the deponent's belief; it is suffcient if it follows the Rule—the deponent swearing that, to the best of his information and belief, the proposed granishee is indebted to the defendant.—Salander v. Jensen, 6 W. L. R. 401, not followed. Stewart & Maithews Co. v. Ross (1910), 15 W. L. R. 425. Sask. L. R.

Summons before judgment.] — Before judgment, the affidavit of one of the plaintiff's solicitors was filed, in which he swore that he had a full and personal knowledge of the matters deposed to, and that the two defendants, and each of them, were justly and truly indebted to the plaintiff in a named sum, being the amount due to the plaintiff sum, being the amount due to the plaintin for principal money and interest on a chat-tel mortgage, and that he (the deponent) was informed and verily believed that each of the proposed garnishees (named persons) was justly and truly indebted to the defendant M., and that each was within the juris-diction of the Court. By the statement of claim the plaintiff alleged that each of the defendants covenanted to pay to the plaintiff, under a certain chattel mortgage, the amount mentioned in the affidavit :--Held, that the affidavit was sufficient in point of form to sustain garnishee summonses issued thereon; there was nothing in the Rules which required a præcipe to be filed; the requirements of Rule 384 were sufficiently requirements of Rule 384 were sufficiently complied with ; Rule 295, which requires the grounds of belief to be stated in affidavits used on interlocutory motions, could have no application, because the affidavit was not for use on such a motion, and because Rule 384 itself only requires it to be "to the best of the deponent's belief," without more; and the words used expressed all that is ex-pressed in those words.—Held, also, assu-ing that the liability of the defendants upon the covenant in the chattle mortcare was a the covenant in the chattel mortgage was a joint one, that there was no reason why a Joint one, that there was no reason why a debt due to one of two joint debtors might not be attached. — MacDonald v. Assignment of right to Crown lands — Notarial Act — Parent and child — Subsequent patent to donor — Rights of Donee — Want of Registration of Act — Sale of Timber — Right to payment — Apparent Owner,]—By a notarial act the parents of a family of twelve living children assigned and abandoned to one of their sons all the rights, privileges, and advantages resulting and b longing to them by virtue of an Act of the legislature assented to 2nd April, 1890, in-tituled an Act giving the privilege to the father and mother of a family of twelve living children, of a grant of 100 acres of public land. The notarial act recited that the assignment or abandonment was made gratuitously and out of parental love, and purported to give the son the right to enjoy and dispose of such rights and privileges, as and dispose of such rights and privileges, as owner thereof and in perpetuity, upon the charges, clauses, and conditions imposed by the statute:-Held, Casault, C.J., dissenting, that this act of donation granted to the donee the lot which the donors had claimed from the government, and to which afterwards the latter had given the donors a title of concession; and that it was not necessary to render the donee proprietor of such lot that the donor should make a new assignment. 2. That the acceptance of the gift appeared by the same act, and that the signature of the notary affixed to the act after that of the donee made the act of donation perfect, and it was not necessary that the done should notify the doners of the perfecting of the act. 3. That the de-fendants, from whom the donee claimed the value of wood cut upon this lot, they being value of wood cut upon this lot, they being neither heirs, legatees, nor creditors of the donors, and not pretending to have any right in or to the lot, were not in a position to set up the want of registration of the act of donation. 4. That the defendants, if they paid the amount claimed to the donee, he having the apparent title, would be dis-charged as regards the heirs of the donors, if they should become entitled by virtue of the want of registration. 5. That the sta-tute 53 V. c. 26 authorizes such a gift inter-vivos. Gelinas v. St. Maurice Lumber Co., 21 Que. 8. C. 270.

Charge for maintenance-Hypothec-Money value -- Personal obligation-Maintenance undertaken by third person.] --Where a gift is subject to a charge of lodging, food, clothing, and maintenance for a third person, the charge, having a money value, is equivalent to a hypothec, although its value is not specified in the instrument creating the charze--2. A charge imposed on the donee and his legal representatives for lodging, food, clothing, and maintenance for one of his brothers, cannot be discharged by a third party, the beneficiary having an interest to see that it shall be fulfilled by the donee himself. Pelletier v. Girard, 34 Que. S. C. 318.

Cheque—Not subject of donatio mortis causa — Death of drawer — Revocation of banker's authority to pay.] — Divisional Court held, that a cheque is not a chose in action and is not the subject of donatio mortis causa: That the death of drawer of a cheque revokes the banker's authority to pay it.—Heusitt v. Kay, L. R. 6, Eq. 198.— In re Beaks Estate, L. R. 13, Eq. 489, and In re Beaumont, [1902] 1 Ch. 889, followed. Re Bernard (1911), 18 O. W. R. 525, 2 O. W. N. 716.

Condition — Restraint on alienation — Construction — Contractual sale — Judicial sale.]—A condition imposed in a deed of gift that the property given shall not be sold, seized or seizable for any consideration generally whatever, during the lifetime of the donees, applies to a judicial sale, and is not an obstacle to a contractual sale of such property. Hamel v. Smith, 31 Que. S. C. 298.

Conditional gift inter vivos.]-The donor inter vivos who, in return for the property given, has obliged the donee, by a clause in the deed, to furnish the donor with lodging, food, clothing and other necessaries of life, has a right of action, in the event of life in common with the donee becoming impossible, to be authorised to live separate from the donee and to have converted into a money alimony the value of obligations provided for by the deed of gift. Laplante v. Fontaine, 37 Que. 8. C. 128.

Conditions—Acceptance —Third partie.] —Wheever makes a gratuitous conveyance of property has a right to impose such conditions as he sees fit, provided that they be not contrary to law, and he has the right to impose such conditions not only upon the property gratuitously conveyed to him, but also upon any property in the hands of the person to whom the conveyance is made, and the acceptance of the gift by the donce gives full effect to the condition thus stipulated, in so far as it does not prejudice the rights then acquired by third parties. Deijardine v. Michaud, 8 Que Q. B. 494.

Contemplation of marriage — Breach by donce — Recovery of gift.]—A man and woman were engaged to be married. The man had a claim against the woman for moneys advanced to her or expended on her behalf, in respect of certain business transactions not connected with their contemplated marriage. The man gave the woman a receipt for the amount of his claim, but no money passed :—Held, upon the evidence that the man made the woman a present of the claim in view of the contemplated marriage, and it having been broken off by her act, that he was entitled to recover the amount of his claim. Donatio mortis causa — Banker's pass book—Delivery of.]—Held, that a banker's pass book given upon receipt of a deposit, which was numbered, and in which it was stipulated that the deposit would not be repaid without production of the pass book, is a good subject of donatio mortis causa. The book was contemporaneous with the debt, was delivered to the creditor, was essential to the proof of the contract, and the production of it essential before the money could be demanded. The delivery of such a puss book, in anticipation of death, operates as a transfer of the debt due by the bank in respect of the money or deposit, to take effect upon death. Broken v. Toronto General Trusts Uroprotion, 21 C. L. T. 28, 32 O. R. 319.

Donatio mortis cansa — Deposit in savings bank—Bank book handed to donee— Executors and administrators—Bank entitled to have administrator joined in action by donee—Costs. Adams v. Union Bank of Haifax, I E. L. R. 317, 561.

Donatio mortis causa - Deposit receipts - Cheques and orders - Delivery for beneficiaries - Corroboration - Construction of statute.]-McD., being ill and not expecting to recover, requested his wife, his brother being present at the time, to get from his trunk a bank deposit receipt for $6,000, which he then handed to his brother, telling him that he wanted the money equally divided among his wife, brother, and a sister. The brother then, on his own suggestion or that of McD., drew out three cheques or orders for $2,000 each, payable out of the deposit receipt, to the respective beneficiaries, which McD. signed and returned to his brother, who handed to McD.'s wife the one payable to her and the receipt, and she placed them in the trunk from which she had taken the receipt. McD. died eight days afterwards :-Held, affirming the judgment in 35 N. S. R. 205, Sedgewick and Armour, JJ., dissenting, that this was a valid donatio mortis causa of the deposit receipt and the sum it represented, notwithstanding that there was a small amount for interest not specified in the gift. By R. S. N. S. 1900 c. 163, s. 35, an interested party in an action against the estate of a deceased person cannot succeed on the evidence of himself or his wife, or both, unless it is corroborated by other material evidence .- Held, that such evidence may be corroborated by circumstances or fair inferences from facts proved. The evidence of an additional witness is not essential. McDonald v. McDonald, 23 C. L. T. 135, 33 S. C. R. 145.

Donatio mortis causa — Evidence — Delivery for adje-keeping, I—A person on his denth-bed handed to his wife, out of a satchel which he kept in a closer of his bedroom, $2,000 in bonds and $1,550 in cash, telling her to "take them and put them away: wrap them up and lock them up in your trunk." At the same time he handed to her a pocket book containing $150, saying that it was for present expenses. A few minutes later he handed to his business partner remaining contents of satchel, consisting of $1,000 belonging to the firm. Subsequently he made a will bequenthing to his wife $3,000, a horse, two carriages, and all his household effects; to his partner his interest in partnership property; to two grandnephews S500 each; and to nieces and nephews 5500 each; and to nieces and nephews 5500 each; and to nieces and nephews the residue of his selit. His private estate was worth about $8,000. When giving directions for the drafting of his will, on the amount of the legacles to his will, and grand-nephews being counted up, he said. "There is more than that":—Hield, that there was not a douatio mortis causa to the wife, the deceased intending no more than a delivery for safe-keeping. Eastern Trust Co. V. Jackson, 26 C. L. T. 365, 3 N. R. Eq. 180.

Donatio mortis causa — Evidence — Corroboration. O'Connor v. O'Connor, 2 O. W. R. 737, 794, 5 O. W. R. 10, 701, 751.

Donatio mortis cause — Evidence — Money and notes — Delivery of keys of box.1 — The defendant's father, a man of ninety-eight years of age, who had been living in her house, was taken suddenly ill, retired to his room and lay down on his bed, and while she was endeavouring to make him comfortable, he handed her a small wallet containing 'liree keys, and said, "All the money and notes I have got are yours." One of the keys was that of a trunk in his room and another of a cash box (in which the money and notes were) in the trunk. There was evidence that he had a foreboding that it would be his last illness, and that he intended to give his property to the defendant. She retained the keys until his death. In an naction by the administrators of his estate for the money and notes:—Held, that there was a good donatio mortis cause. In reo Mustapha, Mustapha v. Wedlake, 8 Times L. R. 100, followed. Charlton v. Brooke, 23 C. L. T. 280, 6 O. L. R. 87, 2 O. W. R-684.

Donatio mortis causa — Future succession — Illegal consideration—Ratification by well—Power of xxecutor—Seismi, — Judgment in 8 Que. Q. B. 511, affirmed. Consumers' Cordage Co. v. Converse, 30 S. C. R. 618.

Donatio mortis causa — Mortgage.]— The holder of two mortgages, while very ill and about to start on a journey for the benefit of his health, handed the mortgages and some title deeds to the defendant, telling her that they were for her and that he would excente an assignment of them to her if one were prepared and sent to him. The mortgagee died two months later, no assignment having been executed by him, and one of the mortgages having been partly discharged by him:--Held, that there had not been a donatio mortis causa of the mortgages, but merely an incomplete and effective gift inter vives, and that the mortgages formed part of the mortgage's estate. Wood v, Bradley, 21 C. L. T. 107, 1 O. L. R. 118.

Donatio mortis causa — Savings bank deposit book — Trust — Remedy in equity.] —A deceased person in her last illness, and shortly before her death, handed to the defendant a government savings bank passbook, in which was credited in the names of the defendant and the deceased a sum of money deposited in their names, and at the same time told the defendant to pay to the plaintiff $400 out of the bank, pay some debts owing by the deceased, and her funeral expenses; to which the defendant assented. The money on deposit belonged to the defendant on delivery up of the pass-book whether before or after the deceased's death : —Held, (1) that the pass-book was a good subject of a donatio mortis causa constituted by trust, and enforceable in equity, in favour of the plaintiff. Thorne v. Perry, 21 C. L. T. 95, 2 N. B. Eq. R. 140. Affirmed, 35 N. B. 398.

Donatio mortis causa — Savings bank deposit — Delivery of pass book—Evidence -Corroboration.]—The money at the credit of a savings bank depositor may pass as a donatio mortis cause by the delivery of the savings bank book by the depositor to the donee with ant words of gift, the deposit being subject to the condition that no part of it can be withdrawn without the production of the book. Any evidence which is sufficient to prove any fact against the estate of a doceased person is sufficient to prove a donatio mortis causa; that is, any evidence which is believed and is corroborated as required by the statute may be acted upon. Re Reid, 23 C. L. T. 334, 6 O. L. R. 421, 2 O. W. R. 918.

Donatio mortis causa - Solicitor and client - Absence of independent advice Invalidity of gift - Corroboration.]-Held, per Moss, C.JO., and Garrow, J.A., that where, at the time of the making of an al-leged donatio mortis causa, the relationship of solicitor and client existed between the parties, who were the only persons present at the time, no previous intimation of the intention to make the gift having been given to any one, nor any disinterested person called in. nor any advice or explanation of the nature of the proposed gift given to the deceased, such gift could not be supported Maclennan, J.A., dissenting. Per Osler, J.A be supported ; -Apart from the question of confidential relationship, the plaintiff's testimony as a litigant making a claim upon the estate of a deceased person in respect of a matter occurring before the death, had not been corroborated by some other material evidence, as required by s. 10 of the Evidence Act. Davis v. Walker, 23 C. L. T. 83, 5 O. L. R. 173, 1 O. W. R. I. 745.

Fund deposited with trust company in names of donees - Executed trust.]-

Mrs. P. deposited with the plaintiffs $3,000 in the names of three of her relatives, the defendants, $1,000 for each, and obtained from the plaintiffs three documents acknowledging the receipt from each of the defend-ants of $1,000 "in trust for investment." and guaranteeing the payment of interest. Mrs. P. informed the three defendants of what she had done, saying that the money deposited was theirs and they could draw it. she, however, retained the receipts in her own possession, where they remained until her death, and did not inform the defend-ants of their existence. The cheques for ants of their existence. The cheques for the interest which accrued during Mrs. P.'s lifetime were made payable to the three defendants, but were indorsed by them in favour of Mrs. P., and were cashed by her for her own benefit :--Held, that there was a complete and executed trust created by Mrs. P., enforceable by the defendants, the cestuis que trust. Toronto General Trusts Corporation v. Keyes, 10 O. W. R. 86, 15 O. L. R. 30.

Gift inter vivos — Trust deed of land — Revocation — Non-Julfilment of conditions— Failure to stipulate for right of revocation] —A gift inter vivos of immovable property, made in trust in the manner provided in chapter 4 A. of title II. of Book III. arts 981a to 981a, C. C., initiuled "Of Trusts," is subject to the general rules which govern gifts inter vivos, and, among them, to that of art. 816, C. C., respecting the revocation of gifts. Hence the right of revocation for non-fulfilment of the contractual obligations of the donee exists only when it has been stipulated in the deed of gift in trust. Mathison V. Shepherd, 35 Que S. C. 29.

Intention — Incomplete gift — Loan of chattels — Detention — Replevin. Jewish Colonization Assn. v. Baratz (N.W.T.), 2 W. L. R. 97.

Inter vivos - Promissory notes - Evidence.]-The defendant, by representations that he had been presented by one M., deceased, with several promissory notes, as a gift, a few days before the death of M., in-duced the plaintiff to give him a new note for the balance due by the plaintiff to M., on the old notes alleged to have been given to the defendant. The notes in question were not indorsed by the deceased, and there was no evidence of the alleged gift apart from the defendant's statement. In an action by the plaintiff, asking that the note given by him was inadmissible to prove the fact of the do-nation alleged, the debt represented by the notes being a civil and not a commercial debt. 2. Even if the defendant's evidence were admissible, the words which he deposed as those which had been used by the deceased, viz., "ces billets, je te les donne au cas ou je mourrais," were not sufficient to establish a valid donation inter vivos. This right of legitime continued to exist in the province of Quebec until the date of the Cvil Code, but it cannot, since the introduction of the unlimited power of disposing of property by will, be exercised to the projudice of testamentary dispositions. 3. In order to have a right to legitime, the person claiming it must be an heir; to renounce legitime is to renounce right of succession. 4. The plaintiff, by a marriage contract made in January, 1853, having accepted certain gifts from her father and mother in lieu of her share in their father succession, thereby renounced in advance her right of succession to her father and mother, and it was held that she could not now claim anything from their estates, since she was not an heir. Duval v. Fortin, 23 Que. S. C. 399.

Moneys deposited in bank - Terms of deposit receipt — Testamentary disposition —Costs.]—Action by John R. Hill against the personal representative of his deceased father, William Hill, for a declaration that a certain deposit receipt and the moneys represented by it were the property of plain-tiff and not part of the estate of his de-ceased father. William Hill, deceased, owned $400 on deposit in the Bank of Ottawa to his credit. He procured from the bank a deposit receipt for this amount "payable to William Hill and John R. Hill, his son, or either, or the survivor." The understanding between William Hill and his son was that it should remain subject to the father's control and disposition while living, and that whatever should be left at his death should then belong to the son. The father's request to the bank manager, upon which the deposit receipt issued, was "to fix the money so that his son John would get it when he was done with it." He told John himself that he wanted him to get the money when he (the father) was gone. He retained the deposit receipt intact in his own possession, and it was found amongst his papers at the time of his death. These facts are deposed to by the son John, the plaintiff :--Held, upon plain-tiff's own evidence, that the purpose of Wil-liam Hill, deceased, was to make a gift to his son, plaintiff, in its nature testamentary. As such it could only be made effectually by an instrument duly executed as a will. father retaining exclusive control and disposing power over the $400 during his lifetime, the rights of the son were intended to arise only upon and after his father's death. Mortgage — Deed — Confidential relationship — Undue influence — Pressure — Misrepresentation — Improvident contract — Voluntary gift — Insanity of grantor.]— W. D. died in 1880, leaving real estate consisting of his homestead and lot A., all of which he left absolutely to his wife H. D., and appointed her and the defendant W. F. executors. In 1898 J. D., a son of W. D. and H. D., being indebted to the defendants W. F. and P. A., became insolvent and asc.c.c.-61 signed to P. A. Nearly all the creditors, including W. F. and P. A., agreed to com-promise at ten cents on the dollar, but J. D. made a secret agreement with W. F. and P. A. that they should be paid in full. By arrangement between J. D. and W. F. and P. A., W. F., for J. D., purchased the assets from P. A., as assignee, for $1,000, and for the securing W. F. the balance advanced and balance of his old debt against J. D., H. D. in 1899, being then about seventy-six years in 1869, being then about seventy-six years of age, without any independent advice, ex-ecuted to W. F. a mortgage of lot A. for $822.00. W. F. gave J. D. a power of at-torney to deal with these assets, who, in the name of W. F., sold and converted them into money to an amount greater than the mortgage. In December, 1899, J. D. arranged that his mother should sell to P. A. lot A. for $600, $200 of it to go on P. A.'s old account against J. D. account against J. D., and $400 by notes made by P. A. in favour of W. F., and which the latter took on his account against J. Both the mortgage and deed were written by J. D., and H. D. had no independent advice and had become of feeble intellect, In March, 1900, H. D. made a will leaving all her property to her son J. D. and his family. W. F. drew this will, was named nis ramity. W. F. drew (nis will, was handed in it as an executor, and had full knowledge of its contents. In December, 1902, J. D., being indebted to W. F. to the amount of $1.250.97, H. D., at the request of W. F. and J. D., gave a mortgage of the home-stead to W. F. for $1,250.97 to secure that amount, which was shewn by the evidence to be the total sum due from J. D. to W. F. at that time. H. D. lived practically all the time with J. D., and he had great influence over her, which fact was well known to both W. F. and P. A. :—Held, that the first mort-gage to W. F., made in March, 1899, was discharged and must be set aside, as obtained through undue influence and pressure on the part of J. D., and solely for his benefit, and on the ground of the mental weakness of the grantor, and that she had no independent advice; that P. A., as he knew the re-lation which J. D. occupied with regard to the granter, and all the circumstances in connection with the transaction, stood in no better position than J. D. would stand, and was bound by and responsible for any acts committed by J. D., or omitted to be done by him.—Held, that the second mortgage to W. F., made in December, 1902, must be set aside, as obtained through undue influence and pressure on the part of J. D. and W. F., and solely for their own benefit; that W. F. had the same knowledge of all the facts as P. A., and was bound in the same way by the acts and omissions of J. D.; that the grantor had no independent advice, and was so deranged mentally as to be incapable of transacting business. McGaffigan v. Ferguson, 4 N. B. Eq. 12, 5 E. L. R. 105.

Mortis causa — Delicery of key to third person.].—To effect a donatio mortis causa, delivery to a third person for the use of the donee is sufficient, provided that such third person is not a mere trustee, agent, or servant of the donor. The assent of the donee, or even his knowledge of the delivery, is not requisite.—Delivery of the key of the desk containing the property constitutes an actual delivery, and transfers the possession of and dominion over the same. Judgment in 32 N. S. R. 156 reversed. Walker v. Foster, 20 C. L. T. 196, 30 S. C. R. 299.

Mortis causa - Ratification by will -Mortgage Discharge by executor Rights of legatee.]-J. A. C., the father of the re-spondent, had sold land to A. W. M. and C. B. M. for the price (secured by lien de bailleur de fonds) of $150,000, of which $50,-000 was payable to the respondent after the death of the vendor, who subsequently made a will by which he ratified such gift and de-legation of payment. Messrs. M. were the executors of this will. The appellants having become owners of the land by virtue of a title which obliged them to pay the amount due to the respondent, the Messrs. M., in their capacity of executors, gave a discharge of this sum and of the mortgage which secured it. In an action by the respondent en declaration d'hypothèque, seeking to set aside the discharge given by the executors :--Held, that, even supposing that the delegation of payment stipulated in favour of the respondent upon the sale of the Messrs. M. was void as containing a donatio mortis causa by a deed inter vivos, that gift was validated by the subsequent will of J. A. C., and the debt in question passed to the respondent with its accessories and especially with the mortgage and the lien de bailleur de fonds .--- 2. Executors having seisin only for the purpose of executing the will, that is to say, for pay-ment of debts and particular legacies, the Messrs. M. had not the power, in this case, to give a discharge to the appellants, there being nothing to shew that there was need of this sum for payment of the debts of the succession ; on the contrary, one of the executors, the assignee of the other, had sold the land to the grantor of the appellants subject to the burden of paying the amount of the legacy to the respondent. Obligation to lodge and board a life--Conversion of the value of the liferent into a sum of moncy-Inscription in law.] -Upon an action taken at the suit of a life-annuitant, with a view of having converted into a payment in money his right to receive board and lodging from the defendant, who assumed an obligation to that effect, the plaintiff alleging that the defendant is not carrying out his contract with the plaintiff in a proper manner-the defendant cannot, by his plea to the action, allege that the defendant has boarded and lodged the plaintiff in the same manner as himself and the other members of his family, and in the same manner as he was boarded and lodged by his late mother and the predecessors in title of the defendant who were obliged in the same way. - Upon the inscription in law such allegations of the plea will be dismissed, for the reason that, even if they were true, they are not means of defence to the plaintiff's action .- The defendant may board and lodge himself and his family as he deems best, without there being any obligation on plaintiff's part to accept such a state of affairs, and, for the same reason, the way in which the predecessors in title of the defendant of the obligation may have treated the plaintiff cannot change or vary plaintiff's rights either for the present or for the future.-The life-annuitant who has the right to expect board and lodging from the debtor of the life-rent, is not obliged to remain content with the food which the debtor of the life-rent considers sufficient for himself and for his family, but he has the right to be given food suitable to his condition in life and within reasonable limits and such as would be expected by an ordinary bearder in the country.—When, for motives deemed sufficient by the Court, life in com-mon has become impossible, the obligation of the debtor of the life-rent to suitably lodge and board the creditor of the life-rent may be put at a certain value by the Court and converted into a sum of money in spite of an offer on the part of the debtor of the ing and lodging the plaintiff. Henault y. Goulet (1909), 16 R. de J. 282.

Obligations — Payment of debts — Limitation of actions—Acknowledgment by donor -Interruption of prescription-Sale of goods to donor for common use-Remedy against donee-Contract-Sale,]-Article 797, C. C., in declaring a universal donee personally liable for the totality of the debts of the donor, does not make the donor and donee joint and several debtor in respect of such debts. Therefore, an acknowledgment by promissory note subscribed by the donor, subsequently to the gift, of a debt due by him at the time of the gift, does not interrupt prescription as regards the donee .- The fact that the donor and donee live together does not give rise to any obligation on the part of the latter to pay the debts of the former. One who sells goods to the donor, even for the common use of the two, has therefore no recourse for the price against the donee .-When the property which is the subject of the gift represents the value of the charges imposed on the terms of the gift, it becomes a contract equivalent to a sale, and does not give rise to the obligation of Art. 797, C. under a power of attorney. For eleven years before the death the defendant and his wife and children all lived with the father in a dwelling above the shop. The fullest authority was given to the son and the fullest trust reposed in him. After the death of father at the age of 78, in September, 1898, the son claimed a sum of $20,000, represented by a bank deposit receipt dated 3rd June, 1898, payable to himself, which he alleged was a gift from his father to himself or his children. He obtained the deposit receipt by drawing a cheque for the amount in his own favour upon his father's account and signing it with his father's name, by virtue of the power of attorney. The father died intestate, leaving the defendant and two other children. The sum of $20,000 represented more than one-fourth of the value of the estate. The trial Judge found that the $20,-000 was a gift to the defendant's children. and ordered it into Court for their benefit :-Held, reversing that judgment, that, on grounds of public policy, the presumption was that the gift, even though freely made, was the effect of the influence induced by the confidential relationship which existed, and the onus was on the defendant to shew that his father had independent advice, or adopted the transaction after the influence was rethe transaction after the inductice was re-moved, or some equivalent circumstances; and nothing of the kind was shewn in the case. Morley v. Loughoran, [1893] 1 Ch. 736; Rhodes v. Bate, L. R. 1 Ch. 252, and Lilles v. Terry, [1895] 2 Q. B. 679, followed. Evidence was given to the effect that the deposit receipt was taken in the defendant's name in lieu of a promissory note made by the father in 1895, which itself was a renewal of an earlier note made in favour of the son as a settlement for his children, and that both notes had been destroyed :-Held, that the notes, if they existed at all for the purpose alleged, were incomplete gifts, not binding upon the deceased or his estate. The father at the time the transaction was carried out in June, 1898, was not legally bound to pay his note; he was ill and old; and the only adviser to whom he had recourse was the defendant. Therefore that time, and not the time when the notes were said to have been given, was the time at which the gift must be taken to have been made, if at all, and at which the effect of the lack of independent advice was to be considered. Trusts and Guarantee Co. v. Hart, 20 C. L. T. 65, 31 O. R. 414.

Parent and child — Fiduciary relationthip—Undue influence—Principal and agent —Absence of independent advice.]—In the case of a gift attacked on the ground of undue influence, something more must be shewn than the mere fact that the donee was the agent of the donor, and in the absence of proof of more the donee is not called upon to shew independent advice. The fact in this case of the donee being the son of the donor was held not to alter the principle applicable, the son being, as was found on the evidence, the agent and business manager of the father; and the gift in question, which was made to the son as trustee for his children in consideration of services rendered by the son, was upheld. Judgment in 31 O. R. 414, 20 C. L. T. 65, reversed. Trusts and Guarantee Co, v. Hart, 21 C. L. T. 493, 2 O. L. R. 251. Parent and child — Insurance policy— Indorsement—Undue influence — Failure of proof—Costs. Holderness v. Patterson, 3 O. W. R. 583.

Parol gift of chattel — Evidence to establish—Delivery.[—Actual delivery of the thing is a necessary ingredient of a valid parol gift, or, in other words, a gift is a transaction consisting of two contemporaneous acts, the giving and the acceptance, and these acts cannot be completed without an actual delivery of the subject of the gift.—In the circumstances of this case there was not a sufficient delivery of the chattel said to have been given away by the plaintif.—Irons v. Smallpicer. 2 B. & Ald. 551, Cochrane v. Moore, 25 Q. B. D. 57, and Re Bolin, 136 N. Y. at p. 180, followed. Hardy v. Atkinson, 18 Man. L. B. 551, 9 W. L. R. 564.

Personal property — Death of donor — Action by administrator to recover from donee—Evidence. McLorg v. Loppe, 7 W. L. R. 833.

Possession — Acceptance — Parent and child — Subsequent sale.] — The plaintiff's father in his lifetime purchased a piano which, after delivery at his home, be gave to the plaintiff, then living with him. She accepted the zift, and it was afterwards treated as her property: —Held, following Winter v. Winter, 4 L. T. 639, and Kilpin v. Ratley, [1892] 1 Q. B. 583, that the title to the piano was complete in the plaintiff, and she was entitled to recover it from the defendant in spite of an alleged subsequent sale by the father to the latter. Tellier v. Dujardin, 16 Man. L. R. 423.

Promissory note — Want of consideration—Promise to pay — Indorser — Action against maker.] — Semble, that where the payee (deceased) on indorsing a promissory note for the accommodation of the maker promises without consideration to pay it, and the holder compels payment by the payee's estate, an action for the recovery of the amount lies by the estate against the maker. Johnston v. Hazen, Re Woodford Claim, 3 N. B. Eq. 341; Hazen v. Woodford, 2 E. L. R. 25.

Registration of deed.]—A gift of immovable property in 1849 and varied in 1850 was subject, quite apart from its registration, to its inscription in the hooks of the office of the Court of the district in which the property was situate, and it took effect only from the date of such inscription. Consequently, a sale by the donee of the property so given, before such inscription, is null and void and the purchaser cannot set up his title in opposition to those having hereditary rights to the property. Taillefor y. Langevin (1900), 39 Que, S. C. 274.

Repleyin — Concubinage — Partners — Pleading.)—To an action for replevin of goods the subject of a gift, the defendant may plend that one of the donors was living in concubinage with the donee at the time of the gift.—2. The defendant will not be allowed to plend as against the donee that the gift is void because made by the donor in order to escape his creditors.—3. In repleysing articles given by a partnership, it is not necessary to make all the partners parties if a single one of them is detaining the articles in question.—4. The defendant cannot plend to a saisie-revendication that other creditors are claiming the right to the same articles.—5. Preuce acant faire droit will be ordered where the donor alleges that he has sold the articles replevied with the assent of the donee. Rousseau v. Verdon, 5 Que. P. R. 219.

Revocation — Condition — Maintenance of donor.]—A gift is not an onerous gift equivalent to a sale by a reason only that the donee is obliged to lodge, feed, warm, and maintain the donor.—2. A gift may be revoked on the ground of ingratifude when the donee, who is obliged to lodge, feed, warm, and maintain the donor, uses with regard to the donor base and insulting expressions and drives him from the house. Rousseau Y. Majeur, 18 Que. S. C. 447.

Revocation — Demand — Period of limitation—Bar to action—Pleading — Judicial notice.]—The period of one year, counting from the breach imputed to the donee, during which a demand for revocation of a gift is peremptory, and the law forbids an action after such time has passed. Consequently, according to the terms of Art. 2188, C. C., the tribunal seised of such a demand must apply such prescription of its own motion if the defendant does not invoke it. Farand V. Paulos, 28 Que. 8. C. 200.

Revocation — Ingratitude — Arrest of donee, who causes to be imprisoned, under a judgment for damages for shander, one of the donors, an old man of 83 years of age and in bad health, thus separating him from his wife, the other donor, also ill, where the donors, who have given all the property they possess, have nothing to pay the damages except an alimentary pension, insaisissable and hardly sufficient for their subsistence, which the done allows them under the terms of the gift, is guilty of ingratitude which has the effect of revoking the gift. Depatie v. Charbonneau, 22 Que S. C. 80.

Revocation — Parties—Co-donec—Transfer of rights — Mortgage — Esception—Demurrer.]—It is not necessary, in an action for the revocation of a glft on the ground of ingratitude, to bring before the Court as a party one of the donees who has since, as is alleged in the action, transferred all his rights to his co-donee, the defendant, in consideration of a mortgage upon the property the subject of the glft. The neglect to make a party of one whose presence before the Court is necessary affords grounds at the most of a dilatory exception, but does not cause, as a matter of law, the absolute rejection of the demand. Jacob v, Klein, 3 Que. P. R. 519.

Revocation of gift.]—A gift made in 1849 of immovable property, with substitution in favour of the donor's children, was irrevocable. Hence, a subsequent revocation of the gift and a deed of donation of the same property to others are absolutely null and void. Taillefer v. Langevin (1910), 39 Que, S. C. 274. Savings bank deposit — Instructions — Testamentary instrument — Survivorship — Duty of bank — Trustee.] — M. deposite money in a bank and wrote to the manager of the bank as follows: "Please put the amount of my deposit, $074.80, in the savings department of your bank in such a way that I can draw it during my life, and after ay death it can only be drawn by Mrs. B. E." The manager made the entry in the form of a credit to M. and Mrs. B. E. "myshele us either or survivor:"—Held, that the legal rights must be decided, after the death of M., by what he instructed the manager to do; what he expressed in a testament, and effect could not be given to it, in the absence of the formalities required by the Wills Act. It was not a donatio mortis causa nor a gift inter vices. The delivery of the pass book to Mrs. B. E. did not alter the case. The bank was not a trustee for M. during his life and after his death for the defatant Spruce Y. Edwards, 25 C. L. 7, 18.

Simulated donation-Execution against donor-Opposition - Contestation by creditor-Claim arising after gift.]-Where the donor does not intend to give and does not divest himself of the thing given, and the donee does not intend to receive the thing agine does not intend to receive the thing as a gift, there is no real donation, and Art. 1039, C. C., does not apply—this article ap-plying only where there is a real contract. and not where the contract is simulated. The thing which is nominally given may be seized, therefore, as being still in the possession of the donor .--- 2. A person who only becomes a creditor subsequent to the execution and registration of a simulated deed of donation of movables by his debtor, may nevertheless allege and invoke the fact of simulation, in his contestation of an opposition, based on such pretended deed of donation, made to a seizure effected by the credi-tor. Lighthall v. O'Brien, 6 Que. S. C. 159, approved. Sisenicain v. Roque, 23 Que. 8.

Sum of money — Equivocal possession-Evidence-Presumption-Claim by universal legatee after death of donor,]—A universal legatee bringing an action for the recovery of a sum exceeding SiO from a person holing that sum and claiming it as a gift from the testator, may establish the precariousness of the possession by the aid of the ordinary simple presumptions, supplemented by oral testimony, when it is procurable, of the aimission of the claimant that his possession has an equivocal character; for example, where the money at the time it was handed to him was placed by him in a receptacle blonging to the testator, but in the possesion of the claimant, from which he did testator, Saint-Saureur v. Ouellette, 35 Que. S. C. 330.

Undue influence —Confidential relations —Evidence—Parent and child—Public policy—Principal and agent.] — The principle that, where confidential relations exist btween donor and donee, the gift is, on grounds of public policy, presumed to be the effect of those relations, which presumption can only be rebutted by shewing that the doaor acted under independent advice, does not

Thus, in case of a gift to the donor's son, for the benefit of the latter's children, when the son had for years acted as manager of his father's business, when he was the only child of the donor having issue, and when the donor, nine years before his death, had evidenced his intention of making the gift by signing a promissory note in favour of the son. by renewing it is years later, and by voluntarily paying it before he died, such presumption does not arise. Action on - Contract for one year -Extension of time given principal-Release of surcties.]-Defendants signed guarantee for coal dealers for a prospective quantity of coal approximating 100,000 tons, to be handled during the year commencing April, 1907. The agreement stated that defendants would be responsible for "all coal" shipped. The evidence shewed that it was the usual custom of plaintiffs to make new contracts each year, also that all coal shipped in one month was paid for during the next month. In 1908 a change was made in the mode of payment, plaintiffs taking notes at 30 days instead of channes which cheques, which continued to August, 1909. Sutherland, J., held (16 O. W. R. 758, 1 O. W. N. 1102), that defendants were released, plaintiffs having given extension of time in principal, and that the contract should be limited to one year and to 100,000 tons, on the ground "that the surety is not to be the ground "that the surety is not to be charged beyond the precise terms of his en-gagement." Fidelity bond - Employer and employee -Bank officials-Duty and responsibility of -Teller's cash - Examination and checking of-Proximate cause-Expenses of following defaulter - Right to deduct from sum recovered-Indemnity-Subrogation.]-The defendants, a guarantee company, gave the plaintiffs a bond whereby they agreed to indemnify the plaintiffs to the extent of $5,000 in the case of a paying teller, and of $6,000 in the case of an accountant of the bank, against "all and any pecuniary loss sustained by the plaintiffs directly occasioned by dishonesty or negligence or through disobedience of direct persons in connection with their duties in the plaintiff's service . . . The bond also con-tained a provision whereby the defendants were exempted from liability for acts or omissions of any employee in pursuance of any inor a superior officer, or for mere errors of judgment or bong fide mistake on the part of the employce—also a provision requiring the plaintiffs when required by the defendants, and at their cost, to assist them in every way in bringing to justice any employee for a criminal offence entailing loss upon the employer, and procuring the reimbursement to the defendants by the defaulting employee or the derivative composition of any more paid by or recover-able from the defendants by reason of such defalcation. On a Saturday the teller stole from the plaintiffs a large sum of money, and absconded from Canada. The moneys were properly in his custody until the close of the day, when it was his duty to deposit them, along with the other moneys and securities in his possession, in the bank vault, having first submitted his cash to examination and checking by the accountant, whose duty it was to perform this office in the absence or by the direction of the manager. On the day in question the accountant certified to the correctness of the teller's statement, in which the stolen money was included. Its absence was discovered on the opening of the teller's cash-box on the following Monday, the teller having taken it with him when he left the bank on Saturday. No steps were taken by the defendants towards following or appre-hending the teller, but the plaintiffs, without communication with the defendants, took active steps and finally succeeded in apprehending him and recovering from him a large part of the stolen money. In so doing they incurred expenses to a large amount, which they claimed to be entitled to deduct from the recovered money, and to hold the defendants responsible for the deficiency, after making such deduction, up to the amount in which the defendants were liable in respect of both officials:-Held, (1) that the loss of the money was "directly occasioned," not the money was "directly occasioned, not merely by the dishonesty of the teller, but also by the negligence of the accountant, and that the defendants were therefore linble under their bond in respect of both. Bazen-dale v. Bennett, 3 Q. B. D. 525., distinguished. -2. The contract between the parties was in effect, one of indemnity, and the plaintiffs were therefore entitled to deduct all such reasonable expenses as were incurred by them in recovering the money, from the amount recovered from the teller, and were only bound to account to the defendants for the surplus after such deduction.—Application of the dectrine of subrogation to guarantee insurance. Action dismissed. Canada Furniture Co, v. Stephenson (1910), 12 W. L. R. 602.

Letters - Construction-Ambiguity-Intention of nartics — Consideration — Sta-tute of Frauds.]—The plaintiff wrote the following letter to the defendant: "Mr. W. R. Bailey, of Wolseley, has called upon us to-day and placed an order with us for con-fectionery stock. Mr. Bailey informs us that you are backing him up financially and asks us to write you to this effect. Please be good enough to let us know by return mail if you with us. We may state that Mr. Bailey has placed a very modest order with us, and thanking you in advance." to which the de-fendant replied as follows: "Yours received to-day asking me about Mr. Bailey. Yes, he is honest, a good business man. I have backed him before and no trouble, I am which letter was acknowledged by the plain-tiffs in the following terms: "Your favour of February 15th is received. We thank you to state that we hold a high opinion of Mr. Bailey, and as he mentioned to us that you were backing him up, it was for our own information instead of applying to our cominformation instead of applying to our com-mercial agencies that we thought it better to write to you direct." The plaintiff alleged that the defendant thereby guaranteed Bailey's account and such him for the re-covery of the amount of such account:— $Held_{a, per}$ Newlands and Johnstone, JJ, that in construing a contract in which the terms are at all ambiguous, such construction must be placed on the words as will make the act of the parties operative; and, in the pre-sent case, the defendant having answered the plaintiff's letter in such a way as to lead a reasonable man to believe that he was guaranteeing Bailey's account, the document should be construed as an effective guarantee. - Per Prendergast and Lamont, JJ., that in construing such a contract all the circumstances must be taken into consideration, and in the circumstances of the present case, particularly in view of the plaintiff's last letter, the defendant's letter should not be construed as more than an offer to endorse the paper of Bailey.—Held, also, per curiam, that a mem-orandum guaranteeing the debt of another is sufficient to satisfy the Statute of Frands. even if the consideration is not stated in writing .-- Judgment in 1 Sask, L. Application for - Forum - Districts-Judges-Court of King's Bench-Consent.] $-\mathbf{A}$ person deprived of his liberty, who wishes to obtain the issue of a writ of habcas corpus, must make his application for such writ to any Judge who may be in the district in which the prisoner is confined, and who is qualified and authorised to exercise his judicial functions therein.-2. If there be no Judge within the limits of such district, the application for a writ of habeas corpus may be made either to a Judge in any adjoining district, or to any Judge in the city of Montreal or in the city of Quebec, according as an appeal from the district where the applicant is confined would be brought to one or the other city .--- 3. The Court of King's Bench, appeal side, has original jurisdiction at Montreal or Quebec in matters of habeas corpus with respect to any person confined in a district from which appeals are brought to one or the other city; but a Judge of the Court of King's Bench has no jurisdiction to grant an order in Chambers in such matter, unless it be first established that there was no Judge within the limits of the district where the prisoner is confined, when the application was made to such Judge of the Court of King's Bench.—4. Where a Court or Judge is not vested with jurisdiction by law, the consent of the parties cannot confer jurisdiction. Ex p. Tremblay, 11 Que, K. B. 454.

Jurisdiction — County Court Judge—Liquor License Act—Conviction—Findings of fact—Review.]—A Judge of a County Court has no jurisdiction to grant an order under the Habeas Corpus Act (Consolidated Statutes c. 41), unless the person applying is confined within the Judge's county. Where there is conflicting evidence in a case for selling liquor contrary to the Liquor License Act, 1896, the finding of the committing justice on questions of fact can not be reviewed on an application for an order in the nature of a habcas corpus. Rex v. Wilson, Ex p. Irving, 35 N. B. R. 401.

Petition for — Territorial jurisdiction— Sentence of competent Court—Certiorari in aid.]—The Judges of the Superior Court for the district or division within which a person is detained in custody are competent to entertain his petition for a habeas corpus. —The remedy by habeas corpus not being open to one who is detained in custody by virtue of the judgment or sentence of a competent Court, he cannot demand a writ of certiorari in aid to produce the record of the proceedings in which the judgment or sentence has been pronounced. Ex p. Goldsberry, 27 Que, S. C. 430.

Powers of Court on—Infant—Custody —Ilusband and wife.]—The writ of habeas corpus is a means of preventing all restraint and assuring individual liberty: when there is no restraint, there cannot be an order upon a writ of habeas corpus.—2. All that the Court can do upon a writ of habeas corpus is to ascertain if there is restraint, and, if there is, to put an end to it.—3. The Court may, according to the circumstances, regard as restraint the taking away and detention of a child under the age of reason, and the withdrawal of this child from the care of his parents; if the child is under the age of reason, his being taken away from the care of his parents may be equivalent to restraint warranting the issue of a habeas corpus, and the right of the parents to have the care of their child, or the duty of the child to return to their care, may be equivalent to the desire to be set free and withdrawn from such restraint.—4. It is only in a case where the child is under restraint, or ought to be considered as being under restraint, and deprived of his liberty, that his return to his father should be ordered upon a writ of habeas corpus.—5. The Court would exceed its powers if, after having ascertained that there was no restraint, if should decide upon a contest between the parents for the custody of their children.— 6. Although under Art. 243, C. C., the child should remain under the authority of his father until majority, it does not follow that the child should be considered as under restraint when he remains with the mother, she not residing with the father: if the child should be presumed to be under restraint from the fact alone that he draws himself from the paternal authority, he should be considered as under restraint until the age of 21 or until his emaneipation.—7. Upon a writ of Abeas corpus a mother living apart from her husoand will not be ordered to restore her son aged seven, who has accompanied her voluntarily, and who wishes to remain with her, to the custody of the father. Douwt v. Schiller, 2 Que, P. R. 529.

Refusal — Appeal—Right of — A mendment of conviction and warrant of commitment to cure defect.—" Wilfully."]—The prisoner was convicted under s. 177 (b) of the Criminal Code, 1892, for an indecent exposure of his person, and sentenced to three months' imprisonment. Neither the conviction nor the warrant of commitment stated, although the evidence tended to shew, that the act had been done wilfully. He then applied for a writ of habeas corpus.—Held, per Mathers, J., following Re Plunkett, 1 can. Crim. Cas. 365, that the prosecution should be permitted, on the hearing of the application, to substitute new conviction and warrant containing the omitted word: and, the substitution having been made, that the application should be refused, but without costs.—Held, also, by the full Court, that no appeal to the full Court lies in this province from the decision of a single Judge refusing a Rabeas corpus application, for the writ to one Judge after another, or he may make a direct application to the Court en banc. *Exp. 1. ACTIONS BY AND AGAINST - PARTIES AND SERVICE, Absent husband — Service—Authorisation of wife as sole defendant.)—When a husband who is absent is made a party to a cause for the purpose of assisting and authorising his wife, the defendant, and when it does not appear by the report of the bailiff that any attempt has been made to serve him in this province, a petition to a Judge for authorisation by the Court of the wife's being brought before the Court in the action, will he dismissed. Credit Foncier Franco-Canadien v. Dafrzene, 4 Que. P. R. 244.

Action — Parties – Joint liability.] — An alimentary debt not being joint or indivisible, a person sued for such a debt cannot require another relative equally liable to be added as a party; but, in such a case, the defendant should be ordered to pay the half only of the alimentary allowances demanded. Larochelle v. Lafteur, 10 Que. S. C. 358.

Action against spinster — Marriage before service of process—Motion to dismiss action—Addition of husband as party.]—An action directed against a woman, described as a "file majeure," will not be dismissed on exception to the form because, between the issuance and the service of the writ, the defendant contracted marriage, if the plaintiff was not made aware of her change of status.—The Court will, however, allow the plaintiff to call in the defendant's husband as a defendant, as hend of the community. Melloon v. Coffey, 7 Que. P. R. 436.

Action against wife—Appearance withaut authorisation—Itemedy of plaintiff.]— Where a female defendant, whose husband has been made a party to the suit, appears and files a plea without authorisation of her husband, the plaintiff may ask that she be authorised to ester en justice, and that the appearance and the plea already filed be rejected from the record, Pichette v. Lavallée, 9 Que, P. R. 241.

Action against wife — Authorisation— Practice—Vacation.] — The authorisation of a married woman to be a party to an action may be validly pronounced by a Judge of the Superior Court between the 30th Jame and the 1st September. Educard v. Belleau, 16 Que, K. B. 341.

Action against wife — Authorisation— Service on husband.) — A martiel woman, whose husband, made a party for the purpose of authorising her, has not been served, may have the action dismissed with costs upon exception to the form delivered by her after having been judicially authorised to appear before the Court.—2. The plaintiff in such a case will not be permitted afterwards to serve process in the action upon the husband so made a party. Jarvis v. Allaire, 5 Que. P. R. 316.

Action against wife — Community of property—Alsence of authorisation—Nality —Amendment—Pleading to merits — Costs.] —The default of authorisation of a wife by her husband, in a case in which it is necessary, imports a nullity which cannot be relieved against, and it follows that an action against a wife, common as to property, without the authorisation and assistance of her husband, is absolutely void; the plaintiff will not be allowed to amend the writ of declaration—2. If a wife, common as to property, pleads to the merits without being authorsised by her husband, the action will be dismissed, each party paying his and her own costs. Martin v, Kankin, 9 Que. P. R. 192.

Action against wife — Exception — Authorisation of husband.]—A married woman, separate as to goods and carrying on business as a public merchant, may, without being authorised by her husband, file in answer to the claim in an action a declinatory exception when an act of simple administration is in question. Bernstein v. Synck, 7 Que, P. R. 443.

Action against wife — Exception on ground of scant of authorisation-Necessity for authorisation to file exception.]—A married woman, common as to property, who has appeared separately from her husband, who is also made a defendant and served, and who pleads by way of exception to the form that no authorisation has been obtained for bringing her before the Court, cannot, by such exception, unless authorised and assisted by her husband, plead and invoke such want of authority. Boistioiti v. Bargdadi, 8 Que, P. R. 44.

Action against wife — Husband added to authorise wife—Default—Motion for authorisation of Court—Notice to husband.]— Default of appearance by a husband made a defendant for the purpose of authorising his wife à ester en justice is equivalent to a want of authorisation. In such a case it is not necessary to serve the husband with notice of a motion for an order of the Court authorising the wife. Morissette v. Pouliot, 9 Que. P. R. 334.

Action against wife - Infant - Per-sonal service of process-Service on guardian-Irregularity-Exception by defendant -Misnomer of defendant-Absence of prejudice - Other irregularities - Pleading-Marriage contract—Service of notice for au thorisation — "Authoriser" — "Assister."] -A married woman, though an infant, named as defendant to an action, must be personally served with process; if she is not, it is for her guardian to complain of the false service, and not for the defendant herself; if she does so, by exception to the form, it will be dismissed. — 2. The defendant, who is named "Marie Rose Eliza," is not prejudiced by being sued under the name of "Blanche, that being the name by which she signed her marriage contract.-3. The fact that the fiat mentions the name of a person as defendant, whereas the name does not appear in the writ of summons, is not an irregularity which causes prejudice. — 4. The guardian was not appointed until the 11th December, whereas the writ naming him as such was dated the 10th December :--Held, that there was no prejudice .-- 5. When the marriage contract of the defendant is filed, and it appears that she is separate as to property, is not necessary to mention the fact specially in the declaration .- 6. In the Quebec system procedure, the husband may be served of with notice pour autoriser his wife or pour l'assister, both words having the same meaning. Gauvin v. Bélanger, 10 Que. P. R. 225.

Action against wife — Refusal of husband to authorise—Order of Court.]—Where the husband refuses to authorise his wife d eater en justice, and files of record a declaration to that effect, the Court may grant such authorisation. Lévesque V. Fortin, 9 Que. P. R. 423.

Action against wife alone — Proof of existence of husband—Admission.]—If there is upon the record the extra-judicial admission of the defendant that she is a widow, whereas she has been sued alone and asserts that her husband is still living, she must give clear proof of his existence. Lamarche v, Laprode, 8 Que. P. R. 434.

Action by hushand — Slander of wije.] —The hushand being dominus of actions mabilières and possessoires of his wife, an action for damages for slander of a married woman subject to community of property must be brought by the hushand alone, and the Court will not authorise the wife to bring such an action. Gagnon v. Daigneault, S Que. P. R. 32.

Action by husband and wife — Community—Injury to wife—Action for damages —Wife improperly joined as plaintiff.]—A married woman, common as to properly, should not be joined wina her husband as coplaintiff in an action for damages for personal injuries sustained by her; the action is that of the husband alone, as the head of the community. Morin v. Morin, 9 Que. P. R. 221.

Action by husband for rent and damages — Plea that wife is real lessor -Séparation de bicns—Head of community-Future rights-Removal of action from Circuit Court.]-A defendant, being sued for the sum of $20, to wit, $10 rent and $10 dam-ages, pleaded that he rented the premises from the wife, separate as to property, of the plaintiff, and that the action should have been brought by her; he also demanded the removal of the cause from the Circuit Court to the Superior Court :- Held, that the defendant, pleading that he had leased the premises from the wife, without saying how and by virtue of what title she was separate as to property, would be bound in spite of such plea to pay his rent to the plaintiff, the head of the community .- Such defence does not involve the affecting of future rights in such a way as to authorise the removal of an action for $20 for rent and damages. Clarke v. Wilson, 7 Que. P. R. 422.

Action by widow - Second marriage pendente lite — Legal community — Réprise d'instance—Right of action—Amendment.] — The widow of a man who was injured, as alleged, by reason of the negligence of the defendants, and died from his injuries, brought an action against the defendants to recover damages for the death, suing as well on her own behalf as in her capacity of tutrix to her infant children, issue of her marriage with the decensed.-While the acissue of her tion was pending and before judgment on the merits, she married again, and became common as to property with her second husband, under the law respecting legal com-munity, and she and her second husband were subsequently appointed joint tutors to the aforesaid infants. By the judgment of the Superior Court of Quebec the action was maintained, and the defendants were condemned to pay damages, $300 to the original plaintiff and $2,700 to herself and her hus-This band as joint tutors to the children. judgment was affirmed by the Court of Review. The defendants appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada, and there raised an objection not taken below, that the original plaintiff upon her second marriage was deprived of her right of action for the recovery of the damages claimed by her personally, and in respect to this part of the action there had been no réprise d'instance. The Supreme Court dismissed the appeal on the facts, and, of its own motion, under ss. 63 and 64 of the Supreme and Exchequer Courts Act, ordered that the record should be amended so as to shew that the $300 was payable to the husband and wife as communs en bien. North Shore Power Co. v. Duguay, 37 S. C. R. 624.

Action by wife — Absente husband — Authorisation by Court-Right of action— Inscription in law.]—The right of a wife, common as to property, whose husband is absent, and who has been authorised by order of a Judge, to bring an action, cannot be challenged by way of exception to the form, but is the subject of an inscription in law. Action by wife—Authorisation by Judge pendente life—Exception to jorm—Costs.]— The authorisation of a Judge to a married woman to bring an action, given without proof of the husband's refusal to so authorise her, and without previous notice to him of her demand, is void. The wife may, however, in the course of the suit, before judgment has been pronounced, on proving the necessary facts and giving the necessary notices, obtain a valid judicial authorisation. An exception to the form founded on the above irregularity should be rejected, after the obtaining of the regular authorisation, but with costs against the plaintiff (the wife). Engler v. Rosenbloom, 35 Que. S. C. 428.

Action by wife — Authorisation — Poasession of land—Scentry for casta—Procuration—Defence—Petitory claim, I—A married woman, common as to property, and living in Montreal, although her husband resides in the United States, and who has been authorised by the Court to sue in her own name for the assertion of a personal right in relation to her personal possession of an immovable, is not bound to give security for costs or to produce a power of attorney.—If the action is on disturbance and for repossession of an immovable, the defendant cannot, either personally by way of defence or through the introduction of a defendant in warraty, meet the same by a petitory claim. Langlois v. 84, Jean, 9 Que, P, R. 77.

Action by wife — Community — Damages for selima fiquor to husband—Right of action.] — An action brought by a wife against an hotel-keeper for selling liquor to her husband after prohibitive notice, is not an exercise of community rights, as the community has no claim against the defendant.— A wife commune en biens has an eventual right in the property of the community, and thus suffers damage from acts which diminish the community property. Duclos v. Murray, 9 Que. P. R. 325.

Action by wife — Property of community-Recenducation — Authorisation of husband—Exception to form.]-Actions in respect of property of the community must be begun in the name of the husband exclusively; a saisie-recendication made, in such circumstances, by the wife, even authorisade by her husband, will be dismissed upon exception to the form. Marcotte v. Daoust, 8 Que. P. R. 310.

Action by wife — Position of husband— Judgment for separation of property — Default in execution—Exception to the form.] —Where, in an action by a married woman, her husband is made a party only to authorise rad assist her, conclusions demanding a judgment in favour of "the plaintifs" must be interpreted as if they read "the plaintifs" only.—2. It is for a defendant who sets up defnult in the execution of a judgment ordering separation of property alleged by the plaintiff, to shew, upon his exception to the form, such default in execution. Drolet v. Bélanger, 5 Que. P. R, 312.

Action by wife — Second marriage before dissolution of first—Authorisation of de facto hasband.] — A second marriage contracted in good faith, before the dissolution of the first, produces civil effects, and, until it is declared null, the wife cannot appear in judicial proceedings (exter en justice) without her de facto husband, or his authorisation. An action brought by her alone and unauthorised will therefore be dismissed on exception to the form. Fitzallen v. Rieutard, 27 Que, S. C. 296.

Action by wife on behalf of community — Authorisation — Liability jor costs.] —A wife, common as to property, whose hashend is absent, may be authorised to institute an action on behalf of the community, and, if it is dismissed, the property of the community will be liable for the costs incurred. De Courcy v, David, 33 Que, S. C. 174.

Action by wife separated from hushand — Want of authorisation by Court — Exception to form — Amendment—Costs.1— An exception to the form is well founded where it demands the dismissed of an action begun by a woman, separate as to person, and not authorised by the Court. Nevertheless, if she asks it, she will be authorised by the Court to sue, on paying the costs of the exception to thee form occasioned by the want of authorisation. O'Brien v. Clavel, 9 Que. P. R. 217.

Action for injury to wife's reputation — C. C. P. 174; C. C. 176.]—A wife common as to property may institute in her own name an action in damages for injury done to her reputation.—When the husband is mentioned in the writ as authorising his wife, his joinder in the action is sufficient authorisation, without it being necessary to especially allege the authorisation. Laforest v. Relanger, 11 Que, P. R. 80.

A stion for entiting, harbouring, and can sally knowing wife — Evidence of wite to show range—Rejection — Proceeding instituted "in consequence of adultery.")— In an action for enticing plaintiff's wife to desert him, and for wrongfully harbouring her, and for wrongfully and carnally knowing her, aninst her will, the trial Judge rejected the evidence of the plaintiff's wife, which was tendered in support of the allegation that defendant had committed a rape upon her — Held, following Russell v. Dana (unreported), that the wife's evidence was properly rejected, she not being a competent witness in such a case.—An action of this kind is, in the words of R. S. N. S. c. 163, s. 36, a proceeding instituted " in consequence of adultery." even if the act complained of was accomplished by force. — Evidence of " haroouring." considered. Corkum, V. Corkum, 40 N. S. 4, 488.

Action of tox't for personal injuries to wife—Joinder of parties—Action by husband for loss of his wife's services—Joinder of causes of action—Common Law Procedure Act, 1852, s, 30 — English Order XVIII. Rule 4,]—21eld, per Stuart, J., that where a married womn sues in tor't to recover damness for personal injuries, and not in respect of either her separate real or personal property, it is not only proper to join the husband as a party plaintiff, but, if he is not joined, the defendant can insist upon the joined reducts and the action.—The husband has a right of action in himself alone for the loss of the services of his wife occasioned by such injury. The wife herself has no cause of action arising from such loss, and she cannot be joined as party plaintiff with the husband in such form of action.— The individual action of the husband for loss of services can be joined with the action of the husband and wife jointy for general damages for the injury suffered by the latter.— Semble, that the Common Law Procedure Act, 1852, s. 40, is in force in Albertu, and guere, whether English Order XVIII., Rule A, is in force here or not. Scean V. Canadian Northern Rev. Co., 1 Alta, L. R, 427, 8 W. L. R. 062, 9 W. L. R. 275.

Action to compel provision of maintenance — Necessities—Relatives—Concur-rent obligations—Parties—Infants—Tutrix.] An action for maintenance may be brought although the claimant, at the date of its institution, is in possession of a sum of money sufficient to supply his or her wants for a short time to come, e.g., in this case, sufficient for about twelve months. It is not necessary that the claimant should wait until the money in hand is totally exhausted before instituting an action to have his right to maintenance determined.-2. The obligation of relatives by blood and relatives by alliance to furnish a maintenance is concurrent, and not successive. The father-in-law may, therefore, be condemned to contribute his proportion of the maintenance of a daughterin-law, even where it appears that the father (See is equally able to furnish maintenance. 19 Que. S. C. 358.)-3. The mother is entitled to sue for aliment on behalf of her children, without being named tutrix to them. Larochelle v. Lafleur, 20 Que. S. C. 184.

Affidavit.] — A wife may swear to the affidavit required by Art. 208. C. P., in a proceeding taken in the name of her busband. Godburt v, McPeak, 20 Que. S. C. 204, 4 Que. P. R. 190.

Addition of wife—Interest—Pleading— Defence — Action brought by procurement of third person — Irrelevancy.] — Where a wife appears to have profited, with her hushand, by a deed which is sought to be avoided, and the hushand is sued alone, the Court will order, upon inscription in law, that the wife be joined as a defendant with her hushand.—An alegation in the defence that the action was not brought by the free will of the plaintif, but by the contrivance of a third person seeking to ruin the defendant for his own bearft, will be struck out as irrelevant. Quintin v. Laramée, 8 Que. P. R. 265.

Appeal by wife — Necessity for authorisation by husband—Inscription — Setting aside.]—A married woman, separate as to property, cannot appeal from a judgment rendered against her upon hypothecary claims, without the authorisation of her husband. An inscription of such a judgment for revelew made by her alone will be rejected, on motion. Renaud v. Lebeau, 27 Que. 8, C. 360. Arthorisation of wife — Declaration of widowhood—Estoppel—Husband activally adire.]—Want of authorisation of a wife under the control of her husband as a parig to a suit is a nullity which nothing can cure, and of which all those who have any interest existing and actual may take advantage.—2. In this case, although the defendant passed for a widow, and although she had called herself a widow in certain decise and writings, such action on her part did not modify her absolute incapacity to be a pary to the suit without authorisation, where she swore that her husband was still alive, and the plaintiff had not proved that he was decal Judgment in 21 Que. S. C. 506, reversed. O'Malley V. Ryan, 23 Que. S. C. 94.

Authorisation of wife — Exceptions by wife.]—A married woman can not take partin litigation, or take exception to a judgment and to the form, without authorisation. When her husband, duly called upon with her to eater en justice, does not appear, it is deemed a refusal of authorisation. In this case it was incumbent on the married woman defendant to have the authorisation granted by the Judge before presenting her exceptions. Charbonneau v. Vendette, 7 Que, P. R. 164.

Authorisation of wife — Want of $-E_{r}$. ception to form,]—In an action by a married woman, separate as to property, who alleges that she is authorised by her husband, actual want of authorismon must be alleged by wany of exception to the form, and an allegation to that effect contained in a defence will be set aside upon motion. Comtois v. Sénécal, 6 Que, P. R. 307.

Authorisation of wife — Writ — Declaration.]—If a married woman is sued as being authorised to be a party, it is not necessary that the authorisation appear upon the writ; it is sufficient if it is alleged in the declaration. Derose v. Derose, 25 Que. 8. C. 273.

Authorisation of wife - Pleading-Opposition - Swearing to - Proper officer Costs against wife-Community-Res judicata,]-It is not necessary to allege specially the authorisation given by a Judge to a married woman to be a party to a cause. such authorisation appears somewhere in the proceedings for which such authorisation is required .- 2. An opposition sworn to before the prothonotary of a district different from that in which such opposition is filed, is, nevertheless, sworn to before a competent officer: Art. 23 C. P.-3. Although costs have been incurred for the purpose of obtaining possession of real estate of a married woman. it does not follow that she should be obliged to pay them in any other quality than as common, when the judgment which has been pronounced against her for such costs has not determined in which quality she is obliged to pay them. Therefore, it cannot be set up. against an opposition alleging that the married woman is only obliged to pay such costs in her quality of common, that, in view of the judgment in the principal action in which she has been ordered to pay costs jointly and severally with her husband, there is res judicata as to her liability on this head, and a like ground of opposition will not be Community — Wife as plaintiff—Possessory action — Authorisation.] — A married woman, common as to property, may maintain a possessory action in regard to the property of the community; upon default of authorisation by the husband, judicial authorisation is necessary. Langlois v. 84. Jean, 9 Que, P. R. 75.

Consent to wife carrying on business --Bffeet of filing, as notice--Principal and agent -- Undiscloard principal.] -- The mere fact of a married woman filing her husband's consent to her carrying on business in her own name will not enable her to recover as an undisclosed principal against a third party who has purchased goods from the husband, believing that he is dealing with the husband alone, and has credited the price of the goods on an account against the husband for goods sold and delivered. Murray v. Lapierre, 41 N. S. R. 122.

Consent to wife carrying on business -Order of Judge.]-Only the husband, and not a Judge, may authorise a married woman à faire commerce. In re Spinelli, 8 Que. P. R. 346.

Conservation of wife's personal property — Intervention.]—A wife contractually separate as to property may be a party to an action without the assistance or the authorisation of her husband, or of a Judge, when she seeks the administration and conservation of her personal property; therefore, she may alone intervene in a cause for the conservation of her personal property; such a proceeding being only an act of simple administration. Beauchamp v. Beauchamp, 4 Que, P. R. 400.

Defamation — Wife suing alone.]—A matried woman common as to property assisted by her husband, or upon his refusal authorised by a Judge, has a personal right of action to protect her honour, and may bring, in her own name, an action for defamation. Such action does not belong solely to the husband as chief of the community, and an exception to the form based upon that ground will be dismissed with costs. Girard v, Tremblag, 6 Que, P. R. 63.

Defence — Nullity of marriage—Malice —Preuve avant faire droit.] — In an action for an account by an infant married woman, assisted by her husband, against her tutor, where the latter pleads, by exception to the form, the nullity of the marriage as contracted without consent, preuve avant faire droit will be ordered upon a reply to an exception alleging that such consent has been refused through malice and interest, and against the unanimous feeling of the family council. Levy v. Levy 6 Quee, P. R. 250.

Husband detaining wife's property— Action of define — Proof of demand and refusal — Evidence of conversion. Lintner v. Lintner, 2 O. W. R. 1117.

C.C.L.-62

Husband separate as to property has a right of action against owner of an animal to recover damages he may suffer from an injury caused by it to his wife. Caron v. Kleinberg (1910), 39 Que. S. C. 121.

Interdiction of husband — Petition by wife — Authorisation — Family council — Order of Judge.]—Where a wife is seeking to have her husband interdicted, she must be authorised by order of a Judge; the decision of a family council cannot be considered as taking the place of such authorisation, the want of which results in a nullity which nothing can cure. Barbier v. Arcand, 9 Que. P. R. 332.

Joint action — Defamilion—Incidental demand, — The action as originally brought by the husband and wife complained merely of the defamation of the wife's character; an incidental demand afterwards added complained of words uttered on the same occasion imputing misdeeds to the busband at the instration of his wife, which complaint had been by mistake omitted at first:— Heid, that there was identity in the causes of action contained respectively in the two demands and connection between them.—2. The appellants, being common as to property, had both a cause of action in the two demands, and therefore the incidental demand was properly made by them under the provisions of Art. 215, C. C. P. Charest v. Tessier, 8 Que, Q. B. 500.

Joint action — Goods sold — Amendment.]—The plaintiff was described in the writ of summons as a public merchant, wife of F. A., adding the words "and the said A. to authorise his said wife." The action was for the price of goods sold in the course of the wife's business. The defendant demurred on the ground that, the plaintiff being commune en biens, the price of the goods was due to the community, and therefore the action should have been by the husband alone. After service of the denumrer, the plaintiff made a motion to amend the writ by adding "and the said F. A. also personally." This was granted on payment of costs. Pleau v. Clément, 3 Que, P. R. 406.

Joint defendants — 4ppearance — Presumption.]—A married woman made a defendant to an action jointly with her husband—joined for the purpose of authorising her—is presumed to be regularly before the Court if the parties have appeared by the same attorney and if no protest has been made by the husband. Brousseau v. Déchene, 17 Que, S. C. 350.

Joint defendants — Service of process on — Bailiff's report.] — Service upon a wife, séparée de biens, but not séparée de corps, of two copies of the writ of summons, one for herself as the principal defendant, and the other for her husband, made a defendant as tutor to the plainiff's lafant children, is sufficient and regular, and is not vitiated by the fact that the bailiff alleges in his report that he served both defendants. Corbeit v, Beaudain, 4 Que, P. R. 44. 濯

Joint defendants -- Slander by wife.]--In an action for damages for slanderous words uttered by a married woman, the defendant's husband cannot be Jointly condemned unless he is alleged to have become in any way responsible for his wife's statements, and the conclusions against him personally will be struck off on demurrer. Camiré v. Bergeron, 3 Que. P. R. 281.

Joint HabiHty — Alternative liability — Election—Estoppel—Evidence—Leave to supply on appeal—Costs. Matthews v. Weller, 3 O. W. R. 316.

Libel by wife — Liability of husband — Verdict for $10—Coats.]—Action against a husband and wife for damages for a libel published by the wife. At the trial in Vancouver the jury returned a verdict in the plaintiff w favour for $10:--Held, by Martin, J., following Neroka v, Kattenbury, 17 Que, B. D. 177, that the husband was liable; and, also, that the costs should follow the event. Mackenzie v, Cunningham, 22 C. L. T. 43, S B. C. R. 2006.

Marriage of woman pendente lite-Rights of kusband.]--If, during the pendency of a suit a woman who is a party to the suit is married, with a settlement under which her property is to be separate from that of her husband, the husband may obtain leave to take part in the suit for the purpose of authorizing his wife, but not on his own behalf. Toupin v, Boule, 5 Que, P. R. 137.

Married woman — Action against.]—If a woman, although separate as to property and engaged in a business as a merchant, is sued without her husband having been cited to authorize it, the action will be dismissed. Vanasse v. Bellefeuille, 7 Que. P. R. 266.

Married woman sued as widow — Exception to form.]—An action against a boarding-house keeper, who was held out and declared herself to be a widow, will not be dismissed on an exception to the form, although the defendant is married and common as to property. Normandin v. Desrochers, 7 Que. P. R. 93.

Negligence — Injury to wife, [—An action for damages for injuries caused to a married woman, common as to property, must be brought by her husband alone, and the action will, upon demurrer, be dismissed as to the wife if she is made a plaintiff. Major v. Paquet, 6 Que. P. R. 20.

Opposition — Act of administration — Necessity for authorization of wife — Dismiscal of contestation — Reservation of rights.1—An opposition dön de diatratire by the owner of an immovable to withdraw it from seizure, is not an act of administration, within the meaning of arts. 176 and 117, C. C. Therefore, a married woman cannot be brought before the Court in such a proceeding unless authorized by her husband or by order of a Judge-—A Court asked to pronounce upon a contestation of an opposition in such circumstances should simply dismiss it, reserving the rights of the parties. Valiguet v. Steenes, 31 Que. 8. C. 183. Opposition by wife — Domicil of hasband — Pleading.]—The matrimonial status of husband and wife being established by the law of the domicil of the husband at the time of the matriage, the wife in asserting an opposition to a sciaure must allege her husband's domicil, and no other, and, if she alleges another domicil in her reply to the contestation of her opposition, it will be struck out on motion. Lemicux v. Lionges, 7 Que. P. R. 341.

Protection order — Affidavit — Information and belief—Denial.]—Application for protection order under s. 17 of the Married Women's Property Act, by a married woman. The petition was verified by affidavit "to the best of my knowledge and belief." All the allegations in the petition were denied by an affidavit of the husband. The application was dismissed with costs. Cochrane V. Cochrane. 21 C. L. T. 87.

Recovery of damages for death of son - Claim by both husband and wife Community.]-In the case of an action to recover damages for the death of a son, the damages and the action to recover them, are personal, and are part of the community of property; and the husband common as to goods has the right to bring such action as the head of the community. When two plaintiffs who sue jointly, designate themselves as husband and wife, without alleging separation as to property, they are presumed to be under a legal community as to property. There is nothing to prevent a husband and wife common as to property from bringing an action jointly concerning the property of the community. St. Laurent v. Telephone Co. of Kamouraska, 7 Que. P. R. 293.

Slander of wife — Sole right of husband to sue. [...] In the case of community of goods, the husband has the sole right of action for recovery of damages for slander of his wife. 2. The wife cannot be joined with the husband in the institution of the action, even if the latter acts in his personal capacity and not solely to authorize her; and upon demurrer, the demand of the wife will be dismissed. Caron v. Larieć, 5 Que. P. R. 332

Tort — Personal injuries of wife.] — A matried woman common as to property may be joined with her husband in his claim as head of the community to damages, a part of which is based upon personal sufferings which she has endured. Prévost v. Village of Aubuntic, 24 Que. 8. C. 408.

Wife — Authorisation — Counsel — Service.]—When a married woman has not been authorized to ester en justice, where such authorized, and a motion served upon said counsel, even after she has been judicially authorized, will be dismissed, but without costs. Laverdière v. Drouin, 8 Que. P. R. 207.

Wife separate as to property — Marriage contract—Saisia-arreft helpere judgment is separate as to property, and it is stipulated by her matriage contract that she shall have the sole administration of her property. she may, without the authorization of her

Wife such alone — Absence of authorization—Nullity — Objection — Curing — Costs.]—Proceedings taken against a wife under the control of her husband, before being authorized either by the husband or by the Court, are absolute nullities, and will be so declared upon demand even after enquête and at the argument. 2. Nevertheless, a demand of authorization of the defendant made by the plaintiff also at the argument should be granted. 3. No order can be made as to the costs of the proceedings of either party before such authorization. Demers v. Dutrene, 4 Que, P. R. 130.

Wife such alone — Authorisation by husband — How sheen.]—In an order that a wife may be regarded as authorized by her hashand as defendant to an action, it is not sufficient that he should have assisted during the trial by giving instructions to the attorney and by being present, but it is necessary that such authorization should appear on the record, or that the husband should be a party to the cause with his wife, without which he escenges the jurisdiction of the Court. Thibaudeau v. Désilets, 10 Que. O. B. 183.

Wife sued alone - Defamation-Service of process-Authorization of husband-Execution of judgment - Goods of community.] - A wife commune en biens, defendant in an action, is not validly served with process unless copies of the writ and declaration are served upon her husband as well as upon her. Service at the conjugal domicil, made by leaving with the husband for the defendant a copy of the writ in which the husband is named "to authorize his wife," is insufficient and void. 2. In an action for damages for slander, against a wife under control of her husband, default of authorization of the wife, either by the husband or the Court, vitiates and renders ausonal of the Court, vitites and renders void a judgment recovered against her.—3. The facts that the husband has received from the balliff the copy of the writ and declaration intended for his wife, that he has chosen the advocate for the defence, and that he has been present at the hearing, do not constitute a sufficient authorization, and the husband has the right to maintain an opposition to the judgment against the wife in an action for damages being executed against the property of the community. Thibaudeau v. Désilets, 4 Que. P. R. 1.

Wife sued alone — Money demand — Appearance by husband.] — The defendant, a marchande ublique, was doing business authorized by her husband. An action was instituted against her for a claim arising out of her business, the writ being served upon her personally and not upon the husband appeared by altorney on the return of the writ, but did not plead. On an inscription for judgment ex parte: --Held, that the hushand hould have been served with the writ, and not having been so served, judgment could not be rendered against the defendant. Sistencian y, Rooya, 2 Que. P. R. 409. Wife such alone — Promissory note — Exception.]—A. married woman, separe de bions, may be such alone, without her hushand, upon a promissory note signed by her; and an exception to the form upon the ground that her husband was not made a party as authorising her, is not well founded. Fraser V. Ogilvie, 3 Que. P. R. 424, 546.

Wife such alone — Separation — Lunacy of husband—Contract of wife—Authorisation—Curator—Act of commerce—Exception to form.1—1. A wife who has obtained a judgment declaring her separete de biens, but has not caused if to be executed, and has in a contract made by her described herself as a wife separete de biens, without mentioning whether such separation is contractual or judicial, cannot set up that her contract is void by reason of the non-excention of such judgment. 2. The curator of the husband declared interdit has no capacity to authorize any act of the wife, and, consequently, is not a necessary party to an action against the wife. 3. When a husband is interdit, it is for the Court to authorize the wife, and such authorization may be given at any stonge of the cause. 4. Keeping boarders is not an eco for commerce mecssitating marital authorization; and, even if it were, the absence of authorization mud hot be a ground of exception to the form. Parizeaw v. Huwt, 3 Que, P. R. 305.

Wife sued with husband as mis-encause — Failure to serve husband — Author-isation of Court.] — The plaintiff sued " Dame M. P. D. the wife, separate as to property, of F. J. B., and the said F. J. B., made a party to assist his said wife." Process in the action was served on the wife herself on the 15th November, 1901, at Quebec. It was not served on the husband. The action was not served on the husband. The action was entered in Court on the 21st November. On the same day the defendant alone, without the assistance of her husband, and without On the 23rd November, the plaintiff served those advocates with a notice of a petition. alleging that the husband had left the country not to return, that it was impossible to serve him, and praying that the Court would authorize the defendant to defend the present cause, which was an hypothecary action : -Held, that the wife not being able in such an action to defend without the assistance or the authorization of her husband, or the authorization of the Court, the plaintiff, who sued her as assisted by her husband, and who could not, because the husband had left the country, effect service upon him, should, before bringing the action, have obtained the authorization of the Court. Such authorization should be refused him in the case as it stood, because the wife was not regularly before the Court; and the service which had been made and the appearance which had entered by her advocates were absolutely The question how a married woman void. may be authorized or served, discussed. Wife suing alone-Death of child by former marriage - Damages for-Costs.]-An action for damages for the death of a child born of a former marriage should be brought by the second husband of the victim's mother, if she is commune en biens with her husband.-If objection to an action brought by the wife is taken by demurrer ore tenus, the action will be dismissed, but without costs of the hearing. Lefebvre v. Dominion Wire Mfg. Co., 3 Que. P. R. 224.

Wife suing alone - Dismissal of action -Petition of husband to set aside.] - A husband, commune en biens, cannot proceed by way of petition to set aside a judgment dismissing the action of his wife on the ground of her incapacity to sue, which ground was raised ore tenus. Lefebvre v. Dominion Wire Mfg. Co., 3 Que. P. R. 417.

Wife suing alone - Personal services-Administrator - Notice - Corroboration.] -A married woman has no right of action for nursing a person boarding with her and her husband, unless there has been a special agreement with her to pay her for such service; and in that case she should sue for it alone. Young v. Ward, 24 A. R. 147, dis-tinguished.—The claim of a creditor against the estate of a deceased person, whose domicil was in Manitoba, is not barred in a Manitoba Court by failure to sue within six months after a notice under s. 31 of R. S. M. c. 146, repudiating the claim given by an administrator of such estate appointed by a foreign Court, though the letters of administration be afterwards re-sealed in Manitoba pursuant to the Surrogate Courts Act. Such a notice, to be effectual, must be given by the person who is at the time the duly appointed administrator of the estate in Manitoba .- Whilst the evidence of a claimant against the estate of a deceased person should be clear and convincing, and, if not corrob-orated, will not be readily acted on, there is no absolute rule of law requiring such corroboration in this Province. In re Garnett, 31 Ch. D. 1, and In re Hodgson, ib. 177, followed. Doidge v. Mimms, 20 C. L. T. 90, 13 Man. L. R. 48.

Wife's remedy against person inciting husband to drink and to ill-treat her.]-When a person incites her husband to drink and to ill-treat her, the wife comto drink and to ill-treat her, the wite com-mon as to property has the right to an ac-tion in damages which she may institute, upon her husband's refunsal to do so, with the authorisation of a Judge. Art. 1298 C. C., which gives to the husband the exer-cise of all his wife's movable or possessory estimate the movelene menication of decret actions, is merely permissive and does not deprive the wife of her right to herself institute, after being authorised, suits-at-law involving her interests, more particularly when they are exclusively personal to her. Cote v. Richardson (1903), 39 Que. S. C. 1.

2. ALIMONY-ALIMENTARY ALLOWANCES.

Absence of evidence of improper conduct by either husband or wife.]-Plaintiff alleges abuse, temper, etc., on part of defendant. The young married couple had apparently an occasional tiff, but there was no pretence of any violence or improper conduct by either husband or wife :--Held, that the action was wholly unwarranted and should action was wholy unwarrantee and shound be dismissed. Forster v, Forster (1999), 14 O. W. R. 796, 1 O. W. N. 93. Affirmed by Divisional Court. Forster v, Forster, 1 O. W. N. 419.

Action by wife — Allowance for self and children.]—A married woman is entitled to sue in her own name for an alimentary allowance for her own support and that of her minor children, although she has not been appointed tutrix to the children. Gallagher v. McEnroe, 17 Que. S. C. 204.

Action for - Wife living under same roof as husband.]-So long as a wife remains in her husband's house, though occupying a different bed, she is not entitled to alimony. There is a set of the entitled to provide food and apparel for herentrice to provide food and appares to associate and the is bound to pay for them. Debenham v, Melton (1880), L. R. 5 Q. B. Cruelty — Condonation. Reynolds v. Reynolds, 6 O. W. R. 782.

Cruelty - Condonation-Receipt by husband of income of wife's separate property — Action for arrears of annuity — Real Property Limitation Act, R. S. M. 1902 c. 100, ss. 18, 24—Charge on land by agreement substituted for former agreement-Interest.]—The plaintiff and defendant married in 1887. In 1892 an action for alimony brought by the plaintiff was settled by the resumption of cohabitation and by the defendant agreeing to pay her $3 per week during her life, in addition to maintaining her according to his station in life. The parties lived together until April, 1908, and during all that period seemed on the whole to have got along fairly well together. The defendant's conduct towards the plaintiff was, according to the findings of fact, often morose and unkind, and he sometimes swore at her, and he displayed none of that sympathetic consideration for his wife which a husband ought to shew, but the only act of violence charged since the settlement of 1892 was one which had taken place in 1904 and had been provoked by the plaintiff, who was quick-tempered and irritable and often made no attempt to control either her language or her actions :--Held, that the plaintiff had not made out a case of legal cruelty, as defined by the decided cases, entitling her to live apart from her husband. Russell v. Russell, [1897] A. C. 395, followed. Lovell v. Lovell, 13 O. L. R. 569, distinguished. When a husband receives the income of his wife's separate estate and disburses it for the purpose of their joint establishment, he cannot be called on for an account, unless the wife can prove that he received it by way of loan. Rice v. Rice, 31 O. R. 59, and Educard v. Cheyne, 13 App. Cas. 385, followed. The astreament of 1892 made the payments of 83 per week a charge on the defendant's lands. In 1900, in order to permit him to raise a loan on the land so charged, the plaintiff gave him a quit claim deed, on the understanding that another astreament of similar tenor would at once be exceuted and registered after the morigage. This was done, but nothing had ever been paid under either of these astreaments:—Held, that, in the absence of a plea based on s, 24 of the Real Property Limitation Act, R. 8. M. 1902 c. 100, the defendant was limble for the arrement, with interest, however, for the last six years only, the whole being a charge on the lands referred to. Willey, N

Cruelty — Evidence of — Amount of alimony allowed.—Bugg v. Bugg (1910), 1 O. W. N. 939.

Cruelty - Insufficient evidence of-Nonrevival of prior condoned acts.] - The Courts scrutinize very closely retaliatory acts of alleged violence and cruelty on the part of the husband arising out of the wife's headstrong and irritating conduct, and will refuse unless such acts are accompanied by intemperate and excessive violence to call them acts of cruelty, and so effective in reviving prior condoned acts of cruelty and In 1895 the plaintiff and defendant, who prior thereto had been living together, were married, but thereafter only lived together at intervals, the plaintiff living apart from defendant, and carrying on what she called a hospital for pregnant women. In 1904, on the defendant insisting on it, the plaintiff returned to the defendant's house, everything going on satisfactorily until the plaintiff desired to carry on the alleged hospital business in the house, which the defendant refused to consent to. plaintiff then rented a house for herself, and, during the defendant's temporary absence, stripped the defendant's house of nearly all the furniture, removing it to her own house. This greatly incensed the defendant, and on the plaintiff using foul and abusive language to him, he committed, as the plaintiff alleged, an aggravated assault on her, and by his conduct rendered it unsafe for her to live with him, and revived prior condoned acts of cruelty and misconduct :---Held, that the defendant's acts were not of such an excessive and intemperate a character as would render it unsafe for the plaintiff to live with him, and revive the prior condoned acts, for not only did it appear that the alleged assault was grossly exaggerated, but was brought on by the plaintiff herself, whose sole object was to goad the defendant into acts of violence which would justify an action for ali-mony. Payne v. Payne, 10 O. L. R. 742, mony. Payne v. 6 O. W. R. 428.

Cruelty — Unfounded suspicions — Injury to health — Danger of life — Evidence —Custody of child.]—Plaintiff brought action for alimony on grounds of alleged cruelty, etc. Some three years before there had been a separation on account of defendant's cruelty, but these differences were adjusted and an agreement as to renewal of marital relations was made. Defendant renewed his acts of cruelty. At trial Clute, J., held defendant's conduct to amount to legal cruelty and gave plaintiff alimony at rate of $1S per month and the custody of their infant son Russell D., aged 14.—Divisional Court allowed defendant's appeal and dismissed plaintiff's action.—Court of Appeal reversed Divisional Court, 14 O. W. R. 226, and restored the judgment of Clute, J., 13 O. W. R. 599. Meredith, J.A., dissenting. Courie v. Courie (1910), 15 O. W. R. 767. See 14 O. W. R. 575.

Cruelty not amounting to personal violence — Threats — Wife leaving husband — Justification — Condenation — Costs — Castody of infant child. Lovell v. Lovell, 5 O. W. R. 401, 640, 6 O. W. R. 621.

Desertion—Offer to receive wife back — Bons afdea.]—In an action for alimony, on the ground of desertion, in order to give effect to the husband's offer and willingness to receive back his wife, the Court must be satisfied that it is made bond file, and not merely set up to prevent the pronouncement of judgment against him. Crothers v. Crothers, 1 P. & D. 568, specially referred to. Rae v. Rae, 19 C. L. T. 34, 20 C. L. T. 64, 31 O. R. 321.

Descrition — Offer to receive wife back —Bong fides.]—The defendant in an action for alimony offered to "receive the plaintif as his wife at any time when she is prepared to come and reside with and accept the home he is able to provide for her and conduct hardself as a wife reasonably should." but the trial Judge, being satisfied upon the evidence that descriton had been proved and that the defendant's offer was not honestly made, but solely for the purpose of avoiding a judgment for alimony:—Held, following Rae v. Rae. 31 O. R. 321, that such offer, under the circumstances, was not sufficient to defeat the plaintif's claim. Emer v. Emer. 25 C. L. T. 19, 15 Man. L. R. 352.

Discharge — Costs — C. P. 551,]—Art. 551 C. P. provides that, in suits for alimentary allowances, no more costs can be allowed plaintiff than in an action for the monthly allowance granted, and is applicable to suits for a discharge from or a reduction of such maintenance. — These rules apply both to costs which plaintiff has the right to recover if his action is maintained and those of maintained in part only with costs against plaintiff. Moreou v. Michaud (1900), 17 R. L. n. s. 12.

Divorce—Impotence.] — Permanent alimony may be granted in a divorce suit where the wife has obtained a decree nisi for divorce on the ground of impotence. Brown, v, Brown, 13 B. C. R. 73.

Her first husband had remarriel — Held, that she was entitled to dower. Phillips v. Phillips, 6 E. L. R. 478.

Effect of altered circumstances of parties — Altimony and conjugal duty of mutual support — Right to altimony from children of married person in distress.] — Agreements respecting altimony from a the construction of the subject to such modifications as the altered conconsort arises from the conjugal duty of mutual support. Hence, a married person in distress must first claim assistance from his or her consort, and it is only the impossibility of the latter to provide it, that casts the obligation on the children. Interim allowance - Deed of separation -Subsequent reconciliation - Desertion.]cember, 1898. On the 20th May, 1899, the defendant deserted the plaintiff until the 25th June following, when he returned to her, but immediately after deserted her again and left her without any means of support. The defendant, in answer to a motion for in-terim alimony, relied on the fact that when he and the plaintiff separated in May, 1899, they joined in a deed of separation by which the defendant was to pay the plaintiff $100 the 1st November, 1899, which the plaintiff agreed to accept and take in full satisfaction for her support and all alimony whatthe plaintiff was entitled to interim alimony which, under the circumstances, should be $3 a week, with $20 for cash disbursements. Whether the deed, if the parties had con-tinued to live apart after it was executed, would disentitle the plaintiff to the order for interim alimony, was a question that would require consideration, but the effect of the reconciliation was to put an end to the deed. Brewster v. Brewster, 20 C. L. T. 182.

Interim allowance — Diabursements — Residence, 1—In an action en separation de corps et de biens by a wife against the husband, which is contested, she has a right to require from him payment of interim allmony and diebursements in the cause. Wife also allowed to change the place of residence assigned to her at the beginning of the suit. Keily v. Lavery, 3 Que, P. R. 129.

Interim allowance — Eridence—Contradictory affidavits — Interim disbursements —Speedy trial,]—On motion for interim allmony, affidavits as to earning power of defendant being specially contradictory, order made for defendant to advance $30 for interim disbursements. Case to be set down on peremptory list. If this not acceptable usual order to be made. Amount of disbursements to be fixed. Goldman v. Goldman, 13 O. W. R. 672.

Interfun allowance — Petition for — Time—Residence of wife.]—A petition by the wife for a provisional allowance, in an action for separation from bed and board, will not be granned until the wife's place of residence pending the suit has been fixed by the Court. Lauzon v. Hébert, 3 Que. P. R. 448.

Interim allowance—Reduction.]—Upon the application of the defendant, the husband, an order was made reducing the amount of interim alimony payable to the plaintiff, the wife, under a former order, upon shewing that the necessities of the wife had diminished. Doudlet v. Hardman, 2 Que, P. R. 447.

Interim and disbursements — Amount to allow.]—The amount of interim allimony which should be allowed does not depend on the hashand's income; all that can reasonably be asked for is an income "suitable to her position " until the suit is heard. Sykkes v. Sykes [1897] p. 306, and Kettlewell v. Kettlewell [1898], p. 138, followed. Bugg v. Bugg (1909), 14 O. W. R. 1014, 1 O. W. N. 210.

Interim and disbursements — Defendant pleaded an agreement of separation— Plaintiff swore that she never was paid anything and did not understand the agreement —Order granted for 86 a week and 830 for interim disbursements. Interim disbursoments—Counsel fee — Undertaking—Practice,—Where the counsel to be engaged is not the solicitor for the plainiff or his partner, it is proper that a counsel fee should be allowed to the plaintiff as part of her prospective disbursements to be paid by the defendant in an action for alimony; and in this case an order was made before the trial for payment of a fee of $40, upon the undertaking of the plaintiff's solicitor that he would not himself act as counted any portion of such sum of $40 not actually and properly disbursed by him for counsel (ee.—Gailagher V. Judgment — Liability of estate of husband—Coste, 1—The obligation to furnish an alimentary allowance is not transmissible to heirs as a debt of the estate of the person who was under obligation to furnish the allowance, even when such person has been adjudged to do so in his life.ime, in this case by a judgment pronounced in an action for separation begun by a married woman against her husband, which judgment required the husband to pay alimony to his wife during her life. In this case, also, the costs were divided, even the costs of the appeal, on account of the relationship of the parties and the fact that they had proceeded by way of joint factum under Arts, 500 et seq. C. P. C. Daeidson V. Winteler, -3 Que. K. B. 97.

Jurisdiction of Court to grant -Grounds upon which granted-Adultery on part of wife-Bar.]-The plaintiff such the defendant to recover alimony on the grounds of desertion, cruelty, and adultery, and on the trial it was established that the defendant had been guilty of cruelty to the plaintiff and of desertion, and also of adultery, but whether before or after desertion did not clearly appear. It was also proved that the plaintiff after desertion had herself been guilty of adultery. By c. 29 of the Con-solidated Ordinances of 1898, respecting actions for alimony, the Court has jurisdiction to grant alimony: (1) to any wife who would be entitled to alimony by the law of England: (2) to any wife who would be entitled by the law of England to a divorce and to alimony as incident thereto; and (3) to any wife whose husband refuses to support her without any sufficient cause under circumstances which would entitle her by the law of England to a decree for restitution of conjugal rights :--Held, that this has ref-the Imperial Act, i.e., a vinculo matrimonia. -2. That the plaintiff, having herself been guilty of adultery, would not be entitled under the law of England either to a judicial separation, a divorce, or a decree for restitu tion of conjugal rights, and therefore could not recover alimony.—Judgment in 6 Terr. L. R. 308, 6 W. L. R. 392, affirmed. Lieb v. Lieb, 1 Sask. L. R. 363, 7 W. L. R. 824.

Justification of wife leaving — Violence-Adultery-Misconduct of wife. Falvey v. Falvey, 2 O. W. R. 476, 832.

Legal cruelty.] — This was an alimony action. The trial Judge held that legat cruely had not been shewn as construct in Lovell, v. Lovell, 13 O. L. R. 569. Where the defendant had farmed the plaintiff's had and taken the income with her consent she is not entilled to an account. A previous alimony action had been settled in 1892 by defendant agreeing to pay $3 per week. Setion 24 of Real Property Limitations Act not having been pleaded judgment was given for $3 per week from 1892. Willey v. Willey, 9 W. L. R. 166.

Lunatic wife-Admission to asylum-Removal by relatives.]-A husband on two occasions procured the release of his wife from the provincial lunatic asylum, where he had procured her admission as a lunatic. After her second release she grew worse, becoming violent and dangerous, and he again applied for her admission, which was refused, it being insisted that she would only be admitted as a warrant patient, whereupon he took proceedings under s. 12 of R. S. O. 1897 c. 317, which resulted in her being committed to gaol as a dangerous lunatic, whence she was transferred to the asylum. Her relatives then applied to the Lieutenant-Governor and obtained her release, and she went to live with them, and claimed alimony : -Held, that an action therefor would not Lie. Hill v. Hill, 21 C. Misconduct of wife before marriage -Condonation - Property in chattels.] -Unchastity before marriage and concealment of it from the husband until the birth of a child is not sufficient to make the marriage null and void or to disentitle the wife to alimony.—Swift v. Kelly, 3 Knapp 203, Moss v. Moss, [1897] P. 263, Nelligan v. Nelli-V. MOMS, [1891] F. 208, Newgan V. Achegan, 26 O. R. 8, and Aldrich V. Aldrich, 21 O. R. 447, followed.—2. Under s. 30 of the King's Bench Act, R. S. M. 1902, c. 40, a wife will be entitled to alimony if, by the law of England as it stood on the 15th July, 1870, she would have been entitled to a decree for the restitution of conjugal rights. By that law nothing but cruelty or adultery on the part of a wife after marriage would be a bar to an order for such restitution or entitle the husband to a judicial separation.—Scott v. Scott, 4 Sw. & Tr. 113, and Russell v. Russell, [1897] A. C. 395, followed .--- 3. Resumption of cohabitation is a necessary ingredient of condonation by the husband of any matrimonial offence committed by the wife, such as would prevent him from relying upon it as a defence to an alimony suit.—Keats v. Keats, 1 Sw. & Tr. 334, followed—4. A wife abandoned by her husband is entitled to the engagement ring which he had given her before marriage, unless she had absolutely surrendered it to him; but she is not, in ordinary circumstances, entitled to demand and recover possession of wedding presents given by friends of the husband at the time of the marriage. A. v. A., 15 Man. L. R. 483, 3 W. L. R. 113.

Multiplication of actions.]—If a hushand has sued his wife in separation from bed and board, and recovered by judgment in his favour, while a similar action by the wife is still pending, the latter, who has demanded a pension alimentaire in her action, will not be permitted to bring a new action for alimony, as she can obtain such alimony in the case already pending. Hainguit v, Beland, 5 Que. P. R. 382.

Natural children recognised by their father are entitled to maintenance from him, and their mother, tutrix of the children, can recover it for them. Picard v. Gadoury (1909), 38 Que. 8. C. 65.

Provisional alimentary allowance— —Separation as to bed and board—C. P. 504 (7); C. C. 175.]—The husband, defendant in a suit for separation as to bed and board, or even for alimentary allowance alone, is obliged to pay his wife an alimentary allowance during the pendency of the suit. Laflear v. Gagnon (1910), 11 Que P. R. 349.

Right to appeal.] — A wife separate as to property from her husband by marriage contract, whose action authorised by a Judge, in the Superior Court for alimentary allowance is dismissed, cannot inscribe the case in Review until she has been again authorised for that purpose. Bourgelas V. Goulet, 37 Que. 8, C, 167.

Right to recover for natural child.] The mother of a natural child, although not its tutrix, has, in addition to her lying-in expenses, the right to recover for the child an alimentary allowance from its father. Chevrier v, Dupreuil (1910), 20 Que, K. B. 284. Separation agreement — Absence of consideration—Restitution of conjugal rights —Demand—Refusal.—Held, upon the evidence given in an action for allmony, that the plaintiff was the defondant's hawful wife; that an agreement for separation made between them was without consideration and void; that, the plaintiff's mental and physical condition being feeble, she could not be said to have left the defendant's home voluntarily; that she had subsequently asked to be reinstated in her rights, which the defendant had refused; and, therefore, she was entitled to alimony. Ditch v. Ditch (1911), 17 W. L. R. 108.

Separation from bed and board—C, C, 175.1—A matried woman who by reason of her husband's ill-treatment, and by his misconduct, can no longer live in common with him, she may, however, sue him to recover alimentary allowance suitable to her means without instituting an action for separation as to property. Lafleur v. Gagnon (1910), 16 R. L. n. s. 308, 11 Que, P. R. 349.

Support of poor relations — Son-inlaw not liable under 14 Vie, cap. 7, to support wife's father, 1-An application to set aside an order of justices of the pence, made under the Act 14 Vie, cap. 7, for compelling persons to support their poor relations. The objection is that the order is made against a son-in-law, who it is contended is not liable under the Act :—Held, that the statute only provides for the support of natural parents. It does not oblige the maintenance of any relative who is out of the line of consanguinity. The son-in-law was therefore not liable to support his wife's father.—Rule for setting aside the justices' order in this case was made absolute. Re Brenan (1852), 1 P. E. I. R. 74.

Unsuccessful action — Costa—Conduct of action.]—Action for alimony dismissed; —Heid, that defendant is not entitled to pay plaintiff's cests. He had paid the interim disbursements. Considering the plaintiff's examination for discovery and the facts in this case, it is not sufficient to say that the plaintiff's solicitors acted in this case as they would in any other. Costs refused. Keizer v. Keizer (1909), 12 W. L. R. 89.

Vexations proceedings — Motion to dismiss action — Res judicata — Interim alimony—Offer of wife to return—Bona fides. Morden v, Morden, 11 O. W. R. 425.

Wife abused by husband, mother-inlaw and another member of the family.]---Where husband, mother-in-law, and another member of the family continuously abused the wife in various ways, set out in the judgat ment, she was given permanent alimony at the rate of $10 per month. D, v. D. (1910), 15 O, W. R. 357.

Wife leaving husband — Justification — Craelty — Condonation — Insanity of defendant — Foreign divorce — Divorce — Domicil — Amount of alimony — Reference, Lofthouse v. Lofthouse, 12 O. W. R. 140.

Wife leaving husband — Justification — Cruelty — Evidence — Countercharge against wife — Jurisdiction of Court.]—A wife is entitled to a judicial separation and alimony when the husband has been guilty of logal cruelty, which is actual violence of such a character as to endanger personal health or safety, or of conduct causing a reasonable apprehension of such cruelty.— 2. The Court may refuse alimony to the wife if she has herself been guilty of legal cruelty or of acts which would justify the husband in leaving her, but may grant alimony in such cases if it should see fit so to do.—The jurisdiction of the Court in such cases discussed. Patrick v, Patrick, 7 W. L. R. 470, 1 Sask, L. R. 44.

Wife leaving husband — Justification —Cruelty — Offer to take wife back. Hummel v. Hummel, 11 O. W. R. 113, 605.

Wife leaving husband - Justification - Legal cruelty - What constitutes - Acts affecting mental condition.] - Legal cruelty, as regards the conjugal relationship, does not necessarily depend on physical acts or threats of violence, but may arise from acts or conduct operating entirely upon the mencondition of the aggrieved person. Where, therefore, such a course of harsh conduct, treatment, and intimidation on the husband's part towards his wife, a woman of delicate constitution, created such mental distress as was sufficient to and did impair her health; and where his language of threats and menace, and his habitual demeanour, were such as to create a well founded apprehension that the wife would suffer worse and more injurious treatment and hardship if she did not submit implicitly and submissively to anything the husband might choose to say or do :- Held, that there was such matrimonial cruelty shewn as justified the wife leaving her husband, and entitled her to a judgment for alimony. Judg-ment of a Divisional Court, 11 O. L. R. 547, 7 O. W. R. 308, affirmed; Meredith, J.A., dissenting. Lovell v. Lovell, 8 O. W. R. 517, 13 O. L. R. 569.

Wife leaving husband — Misconduct— Cruelty — Justification — Antenuptial contract — Construction — Enforcement—Declaratory judgment. Edgeworth v. Edgeworth, 2 O. W. R. 404, 3 O. W. R. 71.

3. BREACH OF PROMISE OF MARRIAGE.

Capins — Damages.]—The fact that a defendant sued for damages for breach of promise of marriage, has said to the plaintiff that he would go to the United States to get rid of her if she insisted that their marriage should take place within the time agreed upon, is not sufficient ground for the issuing of a capies against him, if there is nothing to shew that he latended to carry out his threat and defraud the plaintiff.—2. The failure to carry out a promise of marriage does not, of itself, make the promison liable to damages, but it may become actionable, and afford ground for the application of Art. 1063, C. C. —3. When the breach is incut able to a fault, and real prejudice results from such fault, the action for damages does not array, but from the fact of the prejudice caused and the obligation inposed by the law upon the person who caused the prejudice, to atome for it.—4. The fact that the defendant has withdrawn unceasionably and without reason his promise of marriage gives rise to an action for damages, and the plaintiff is entitled to be indemnified for the loss of her employment, travelling expenses, and tronsseau, and against injury arising from the difficulty of establishing herself for the future, having regard to the respective sutions and means of the parties. Walker v. Goldman, 16 Que, 8, C. 466.

Delictual fault - Liability of parents of infant — Damages — Pleading.] — A breach of promise to marry is a delictual, and not a contractual, fault, and liability for the consequences is the same as for those of a tort. When, therefore, the party committing it is a minor child, the parent incurs liability for it in the manner and under the conditions set forth in art. 1054, C. C.-The damages recoverable by the disappointed suitor properly include all expenses incurred on the strength of the promise of marriage, as well as the value of time lost .- The reiteration of allegations of fact, the expressions of opin ions, and the setting out of irrelevant, if otherwise innocuous, matter, in a declara-tion, do not afford grounds of demurrer, but rather of exception to the form or of motion to reject. Internoscia v. Bonelli, 28 Que. S. C. 58.

Right of action — Offer to fulfil contract.]—The breach of a promise of marriage gives rise to an action for the recovery of damages against the party guilty of the breach, and the latter cannot discharge his liability by offering to fulfil his broken promise. Boulet v. Goudreault, 35 Que. S. C. 294.

4. COMMUNITY.

Action by — Lunatic husband — Curator.]—The action for damagea for an injury sustained by a wife commune en biens belongs to the community, and can be maintained only by the husband, or, if he has been interdict for insanity, by his curator. Sauriol v. Clernont, 10 Que K. B. 204.

Action by — Personal injuries to wife-Witness.]—A wife, commune, may sue with her husband, to recover damages for personal injuries sustained by her, and in such an action has a right to be a witness on her own behalf. Sullivan V. Town of Magog, 18 Que. 8. C. 107.

Action by —Personal injuries to wife.]— The right of action for damages for personal injuries sustained by a married woman. common as to property, belongs exclusively to her husband, and where she is joined in the action, she may be dismissed from the case on demurrer. Troude v. Meldrum, 20 Que. 8. C. 531.

Action by — Slander of wife — Defence in law,]—Action for damages for verbal injaries, begun by a married woman, commune en biens, assisted by her husband :—Held, that the claim sued for belonged to the community. 2. That the busband alone could

Action by — Wife as witness.]—Where in an action perturbing to the community the wife is joined with her husband, the wife has no more right to testify in the cause than if the action had been instituted by the husband alone. Dunfy v. Kelly, 20 8. C. 231.

Action by husband to recover debt due to wife before marriage — Pleading —Eridence.1—A debt due to a woman before her marriage becomes due to her husband only in his capacity of head of the community, and therefore in an action brought by him to recover the amount from the debtor he must allege the marriage and the community of property which result from it. An action founded upon this obligation as if it had been contracted with the husband, and supported only by evidence of the creation of the obligation and of the marriage, will be dismissed. Massicotte v. Pronevost, 28 Que, 8, C. 44.

Action by wife — Authorisation by husband — Declaration—Personal property.]— Article 1238, C. C., does not take away from a wife, common as to property, the right of exercising, with the authorisation of her husband, personal actions belonging to her. 2. It is necessary, however, that the declaration in such an action should make it appear that the personal property which she chains does not fail into the community. Donohue x, Donohue A Que, P. R. 300.

Action by wife alone — Tort —Rejusal of husband to join.]—A married woman, commune en biens, authorised de justice upon the refusal of her husband, may multialn an action in her ewn name alone to recover damages for injuries to her person and her honour by nets of violence of which she has been the victim. 2. Although the compensation which she obtains may be the property of the community, the principle of the action must chiefly be considered, and it has a claracter peculiarly related to her person and honour, which she has the right to protect even against her husband. Baker v. Gingras, 20 Que, S. C. 85.

Conservatory attachment — Separation from bed and board—C, P, 955 1102; C, C, $20_{\rm el}$, -1n an netion in separation from bed and hoard, a conservatory attachment may issue for the purpose of securing to the wife her eventual rights in the community.—It is not necessary to allege and to establish by alfidavit, for the purpose of obtaining such conservatory attachment, that the defendant is immediately about to leave the province of Quebec or that he is serveting his property with intent to defraud. Lefebrer v. Denault (1910), 12 Que, P. R. 45.

Death of one consort — Continuation of community — Incentory — Prescription.] —At the time of the dissolution of community by the death of one of the consorts in 1545, the common assets consisted of bare necessaries of small value and exempt from seizure. There was no inventory or proceverbal de carence made, and, subsequently, the survivor contracted a second marriage. In an action by a child of the first marriage claiming a share in the continuation of community i—Held, that there was no necessity for an inventory of property of such insignificant value, and that failure to make an inventory or process-cerbal de carence did not, under the circumstances, effect a continuation of community. Judgment in 9 Que. Q. B. 44 reversed. King v. McHendry, 20 C. I. T. 373, 30 S. C. R. 450.

Debt due to wife — Attachment — A findwrit.] — An affidivit for an attachment, made in a cause in which the plaintiff is described as a married woman, without saying that she is séparée de biens, and stating that the defendant owes the plaintiff, personally, a sum there mentioned, is irregular, because the married woman is presumed to be commune en biens, when it is not said that she is séparée de biens, and the debt due to the married woman is a debt of the communanté, and hence of the husband. Shorey v. Hamilton, 2 Que, P. R. 574.

Execution of judgment—Remunciation of community — Registration—Creditors of hasbond.) — A judgment for separation of property is sufficiently executed by the declaration of the wife, given effect to by the judgment, that she has no rights or remedies to exercise against her husband, but the separation of property takes effect against third persons only from the time of the judgment, and the wife can only, as against, them, set up her remunciation of the community from the time of the registration of such reaunciation. Therefore, a contract made by a marration of property and the registration of the remunciation, is made for the benefit of the community, and sums due by view of such contract may be attached by the creditors of the husband. Berard v. Magnas, 22 Que. 8, C. 217.

Gift by husband to child — Fraud on wije.]—A gift of the property of the community made by the husband in favour of one of the children of the marriage cannot, whatever the advantages which the gift confers upon the child, even to the prejudice of the other children of the marriage, constitute a fraud as against the wife so as to canable her to claim that the gift shall be set as to get as a nullity. Jodoin v. Birtz, 22 Que. 8. C. 443.

Personal injuries — Right of action — Pleading — Appedd.]—The right of action for duanages for personal injuries sustained by a married woman commune de biens, belongs exclusively to her husband, and she cannot sue for the recovery of such damages in her own name, even with the authorisation of her busband to bring the action.—Where it appears upon the face of the writ of summons and statement of claim that the plaintiff has no right of action. Absolute want of a legal right of action may be invoked by a defendant at any stage of a suit — Held, also, not a mere question of procedure upon which the Court would hesitate to interfere. Judgment of the Court below, 3 Que, P, R.

Plea of — Exception to form.] — Com-munity between husband and wife, who are sued for damages, although it is a ground of defence upon the merits, may be pleaded by an exception to the form if it constitutes good defence. Shank v. Bourassa, 4 Que. P. R. 287.

Pleading — Particulars — Judgment — Estoppel,]—Community of property between husband and wife is the general rule under the law of the province of Quebec, and sepa-ration of property the exception. Therefore, a party setting up a judicial separation of property must indicate in his pleading where and when the judgment for separation was rendered, and this under the penalty of being afterwards estopped from setting up such judgment. Gravel v. Cardinal, 5 Que, P. R.

Promissory note - Debt of community -Action against wife-Costs.]-A married woman was sued upon two promissory notes. The writ of summons described her as a merchant carrying on business under a firm name. It was not, however, alleged by the plaintiff that the notes had been made for the purposes of the business, nor with the au-thorisation of her husband; and it was in the institute of the functional and it was in fact established that the notes were given far a debt of the communauté :-Held, that the husband should have been sued alone.— This objection not having been raised by the plea, but only at the hearing, the defendant was allowed only such costs as she would have been entitled to under a judgment upon a confession of plea. Perron v. Duguay, 17 Que. S. C. 192.

Property of wife - Possession of husband — Continuation after her decease — Acknowledgment — Interruption — Status of children - Proof of marriage.] -The husband, common as to property, has not the useful possession of the property of the wife, although he has the enjoyment of it as head of the community. The profession which he continues to have after the death of his wife is equally precarious, since he cannot change the title of it.--An acknowledgment by the person in possession of the existence of a superior title in the course of his possession, is a cause of interruption.-The pos-session of the status of legitimate children renders it unnecessary to shew the act of celebration of the marriage of their deceased parents. Descôteaux v. Descôteaux, 33 Que. S. C. 269.

Right of wife's personal creditors.] —Community property cannot be taken in execution of a judgment against the wife alone when she was a party to the suit with the permission of the Court but without the authorisation of her husband. If the moneys realised from such illegal sale of community property (the sale is final as to the purchaser who has paid) are deposited in the office of the Court, the husband, as head of the community, has the sole right to obtain the money. The wife's personal creditors have no claim upon it. If disputes arise between them, upon their pretended claims, as to their respective rights of preference, they will be put out of Court, without costs. Dorval v. Morin (1911), 39 Que. S. C. 494.

Rights of wife - Pleading-Demurrer. A wise common as to property has no right of action to reclaim rights which be-long to the community. 2. The proper pro-cedure to have an action dismissed as regards her is by demurrer and not by exception to the form. Desrouard v. Fortier, 5 Que, P. R.

Saisie gagerie conservatoire -A thidavit-Service.]-A saisie gagerie conservatoire issued by a married woman, common as to property, against the goods of the community, is governed by the ordinary procedure in matters of saisie gagerie, and the plaintiff is not bound to serve, within three days from the service of the writ and de-claration, a copy of the alidavit filed by her for the purpose of issuing the writ of saisie gagerie conservatoire. Chartier v. Larivière, 8 Que, P. R. 131.

Saisie gagerie conservatoire - " Mov-Database gagerie conservatore — Mot-able effects " — Petition to quash.] — The meaning of the words " mocable effects of the community," in Arts. 204 and 205 of the Civil Code, is not limited to the furniture which furnishes the common domicil, but includes all the movable property which belongs to the community, of whatever nature it may be .--- Whether a saisie gagerie conserratoric could have been made under the pro-visions of Art. 204, C. C. or not, if the same is justified by the provisions of law concerning the issue of writs of seizure before judgment, a petition to quash the saisie gageric will be dismissed. Lachapelle v. Gagné. S Que, P. R. 18.

5. DIVORCE AND SEPARATION.

Action by husband for separation-Desertion of wife — Time — Return—Cus-tody of child.]—An action for separation for bed and board by the husband against his wife on the ground of desertion, will not lie if brought four days only after the depar-ture of the wife, while she was ill.—The Court will then fix a delay within which the wife should return to her husband, and in the meantime no adjudication will be made for the custody of the child, Tessier v. Bé-langer, 7 Que. P. R. 335.

Action by husband for separation Order for interim disbursements.]-It is only in exceptional cases that a husband may demand a provisional order for costs in an action for separation; if he has need of money to obtain the services of a special agent to search for witnesses, or obtain information as to accusations brought against him, which he denies, or to get information about the facts. Lecavalier v. Labelle, 7 Que. P. R. 472.

Action by wife — Separation, contractual or judicial.]—It is not necessary to allege in an action begun by a married woman, separate as to property, whether the separation is contractual or judicial. Davignon v. Chevalier, 8 Que. P. R. 104.

Action by wife against husband — Authorisation of Judge — Vacation — Chambers — Adultery of husband — Custody of children — Family connect!—Order by Court of Appeal.—Art. 15, C. P., in forbidding Courts to sit between the 30th June and the 1st September, does not take away from the Judges their necessary and ordinary powers of authorisation, which may and should be exercised at any time, even during long vacation.—A Judge in Chambers may during vacation authorise a wife to sue her husband for separation of persons and property and to leave the conjugal domicil.— In the case of the adultery of the husband at the conjugal domicil, the Court will allow the wife (if she cannot bring up the children herself) to call a meeting of the family council to advise upon the care and custody of the children, and the Court will finally decide after receiving the advice of the relatives.—Such an order may be made car moro motu by the Court of Appeal, if the order made by the Superior Court acems and Action by wife for separation de corps – Pleading – Plead attacking character of wife – Irrelevance,] – In an action by a wife for separation de corps, the husband, the defendant, cannot plead: (a) that he cohabited with the plaintiff for several months before his marriage, and that he married her when she was with child; (b) that on the very morning of the marriage he saw in her bedroom a young man of shady reputation; and (c) that the plaintiff could give no satisfactory explanation of this occurrence; all these allegations are foreign to the action, and will be struck out on inscription in law. Boldue v. Archambault, 10 Que, F. R. 143.

Action for — Evidence of partics.]—In an action for séparation de corps the husband and wife may be heard as witnesses, even in support of the action. Talbot v. Guilmartin, 10 Que. K. B. 564. Action for — Misnomer of wife-Wife separate as to property-Marriage contract —Esclusion from community — Exception to form.]—A husband sued for separation from bed and board cannot object that all the prenomens of his wife are not set out, especially where the marriage contract and extract from the marriage contract and extract from the marriage register are filed, and where the marring register are filed, and where the marring register are filed, and where the interpret of the set of the she is known, and which is mentioned in her petition power exter en justice--2. The fact that, a woman, sning for separation from bed and board, is described in the writ as separate as to property, whill it in the contract of marringe (which she has not alleged) exclusion from community is stipulated for, is not a ground for exception to the form, Roy v. Queenel, 7 Que. P. R. 136.

Action for — Particulars.]—A wife suing for a separation from her husband will be ordered to give particulars shewing when and how her husband has seriously injured her, and in what way he has rendered an existence in answer impossible and insupportable by her; indicating in what eircumstances or with what person he has held slanderous conversations charged against him, and in what circumstances he refused to answer when she spoke to him. Melancon v. Bédard, 4 Que, P. R. 147.

Action for — Trial — Reconciliation — Preliminary hearing.1—Where, in an action for séparation de corps, the parties have, with the assent of the Court, divided the hearing to allow one of the parties, who alleges a reconciliation, to prove the facts constituting it, reserving the right to prove the other facts alleged by the parties, after adjudication upon the reconciliation, the opposite party will not be permitted to reopen the hearing to prove facts having nothing to do with the reconciliation before adjudication by the Court upon this first question. Christin v. Lafontaine, 5 Que. P. R. 198.

Action for separation de corps — Exception — Litispendence — Previous action — Intermediate reconcilation.] — An exception of litispendence made by the defendant in an action for séparation de corps, upon the ground that a former action for separation is still pending, will not be maintained if there has been a reconciliation of the husband and wife since the commencement of the first action. Defisle v. Dumesnil, 9 Que. P. R. 29.

Adultery of husband - Lackes -- Custody of children -- Alimony--Costs.]--The parties were married in 1876, and had several children. The respondent committed acts of brought against him under the Bastardy Act, but were unsuccessful. The petitioner was aware of the proceedings, but the Judge Ordinary found that the respondent persunded the petitioner at the time that he was innocent. She continued to live with him until 1880, when, in consequence of his cruely, she left him, taking her children with her. She hereupon instituted proceedings for the dissolution of the marriage, alleging cruely and adultery at various times during the preceding ten pers:--Held, that the petitioner was not guilty of lackes; and there must be a dissolution of the marringe on the ground of adultery; the petitioner to have the custody of the children, and the respondent to have access to them on terms to be settled; the sum to be paid by the respondent for alimony and for maintenance of the children to be settled by the Registrar; the petitioner to have the costs of the petition and action. Baker V. Baker, 21 C. L. T. 357.

Adultery of husband — Lacks — Cutody of children.]—The petitioner and respondent were married in 1886, and there were two children of the marriage. The respondent left Nova Scotia in 1889. He committed adultery before leaving Nova Scotia, but the petitioner did not become aware of it until shortly before instituting these proceedings:—Held, that the petitioner was not guilty of any laches; and a decree for the dissolution of the marriage must pass with cosis; the petitioner to have the custody of the children. Fraser v. Fraser, 21 C. L. T. 356.

Adultary of plaintiff — Cross-action — Pleading — Exception — Particulars.] — In an action for separation de corps the defendant cannot set up as a defence that it is the plaintiff who has been guilty of adultery and ask that, if a decree for separation de corps is pronounced, it shall be against the plaintiff : that is the subject of a crossaction.—2. Such a defence should be attacked by way of exception to the form, and not by demurrer; and upon demurrer preuve avant faire droid will be ordered.—3. Upon demand of particulars of such allegations of adultery, and, as far as possible, the times when and places where such acts of adultery were committed. Thessereau v. Robert, 2 Que. P. R. 520.

Adultary of wife — Damages against co-respondent — Method of assessment — Consect of co-respondent to assessment by trial Judge—Right of jury—20 & 21 V. c. 83, 3.33 (Imp.).] — The petition for divorce claimed damages from the co-respondent. On application for directions it was ordered that the trial should be by Judge without a jury. It was practically a consent order. A divorce was decreed:—Held, that the co-respondent by his actions on application for directions submitted himself to the Court's arbitrament upon all matters in controversy in the pleaddomages not apply. Williams v. Williams, 11 W. L. R. 498.

Adultary of wife—Previous separation.] —Heid, that where a husband separates from his wife on account of her intemperance, but makes no provision for her, thereby leaving her without any means of support, he is not entitled to a divorce on the ground of adultary committed by her after the separation. Forrest v. Forrest and Morton, 21 C. L. T. 219, S. B. C. R. 19.

Agreement to live apart — Provision that wife shall have custody of infant child —Attempt to enforce—Illegal contract—Dismissal of action. Barrett v. Barrett (N. W. T.), 4 W. L. R. 7.

Alimentary allowance — Authorisation of wife.]—A wife who is not authorised to leave the conjugal domicil cannot demand an alimentary allowance, in the course of an action for séparation de corps. Protain v. Prevost, 5 Que. P. R. 103.

Alimentary allowance-Rights of wife against relatives - Past debts.]-A wife. common as to property, abandoned by her husband, who is absent in a foreign country, against whom she has begun an action for separation of the person, which is actually pending, may, her poverty being shewn, and with the authorisation of a Judge, claim against a relative or connection who is bound to provide her with support, an alimentary allowance for herself and her children.--2. A wife who, before an action in which she claims an alimentary allowance, has con-tracted debts in respect of the means of livelihood, may claim an alimentary allowance in respect of the past in order to pay such debts. Girard v. Vincent, 21 Que. S. C 206

Alimony — Judgment — Inability of husband to pay — Annuity — Seisure or attachment.)—An alimony allowance may be exacted only according to the measure of the ability of the person obliged to provide it. Therefore, a husband who is infirm and incapable of working for a living, who has been ordered by a judgment of séparation de corps to pay $4 a month to his wife, is not obliged to deduct that amount from a life annuity granted on condition of insaisabilité cannot be seized or attached for an alimetary debt due to a third person. Dupuis v. Viau, 30 Que, 8. C. 391.

Appointment of referee — Prescription.]—An understanding between husband and wife to avoid the nomination of a referee in an action for séparation de corps and of property, is illegal. The right to name such a referee is prescribed only by 30 years' lapse of time. Brière v. Marcotte, 7 Que. P. R. 352.

Community — Desertion of domicil by wide—schemation de biens.)—A wife subject to community of property who deserts the conjugal domiell, at which the husband declares himself ready to receive and maintain her, but who refuses to furnish her elsewhere with the necessaries of life, has ground for an action for separation of property. Soultry V. Ferrel, 31 Que. S. C. 59.

Conservatory attachment — Affidavit for.]—A wife commune en biens who sues for a séparation de corps, to obtain a conservatory attachment to which the law entitles her, ought to set out in her affidavit the facts which would entitle her to a saisicarrêt before judgment or to a conservatory attachment. Mongeau v. Trudeau, 7 Que. P. R. 70.

Conservatory attachment — Affidavit for.]—In an action for separation from bed and board, an affidavit of the wife, who is separate as to property, that without the benefit of a conservatory attachment she will lose her recourse in respect of alimony and of the donations made by the marriage contract, is insufficient, and such selzure will be quashed on petition. Gratton V. Desormiers. 7 Que. P. R. 88.

Gravity — Condonation.]—Where the husband had been guilty of crueity, which had been condoned, but within the six months subsequent to the condonation had been guilty of violent and harsh treatment which would not originally of itself constitute a ground for separation, the Court granted a separation to the wife. Town v, Town, 7 B. C. R. 122.

Cruelty - Consideration - Evidence -Pleading - Specific acts - Practice - Substitution service of petition.]-A wife petitioned for a judicial separation from her husband on the ground of cruelty and attempted to establish her right by proving specific acts and a course of conduct amounting to cruelty. The parties were married in 1886 and had 6 children, and lived together until February, 1909, when they separated, but came together again after two months, shortly after which they again separated, and this petition was filed : - Held, that lack of harmony does not justify a judicial separation; there must be some substantial wrongdoing. The question of cruelty is one of and is, whether the husband has so treated his wife as to inflict bodily injury upon her, or cause reasonable apprehension of suffering to her, physically or mentally. Here the petitioner had no substantial grievance, or at least none which she had not unequivocally condoned.—Striking his grownup daughter, not in the presence of his wife, was not cruelty of the husband to the wife, within the meaning of the authorities. Wil. son v. Wilson, 6 Moore P. C. 484, distin-guished.-Recent cruelty set up at the trial, in refusing to supply medical attendance, was not specifically pleaded, and was not in fact proved.—On the whole nothing was established which would justify a decree for judicial separation .- Where the petitioner relies upon conduct amounting to cruelty, the petition should specifically set out a regular series of the acts relied on to establish the cruelty.—The greatest possible care should be taken to see that the proceedings are brought to the notice of the respondent .-Remarks upon looseness of practice in matremarks upon rooseness of practice in mat-rimonial causes, and especially in regard to service or substituted service of the petition. Timms V. Timms (1910), 13 W. L. R. 636. See 12 W. L. R. 529.

Custody of children awarded to wife —Right of access of husband—Procedure to obtain.]—Where a judgment granting séparation de corps has awarded the guardianship of the children to the wife, the husband may, by a simple petition, demand the right to see his children at the house of a third person, if this right cannot be effectively exercised at the abode of the wife. Carroll v. Duckesmay, 10 Que. P. R. 235.

Decree annulling marriage on ground of impotence — Permanent alimony.] — The wife had obtained a decree absolute annulling the marriage on account of husband's impotence. She now applied for permanent alimony. Application refused. Brown v. Brown, 10 W. L. R. 120. Desertion — Alimony.]—The leaving of her husband's house by the wife and her refusal to return thither in spite of the requests of the husband, constitute a grave injury to the latter which gives him a right to demand séparation de corps and exempts him from liability for alimony. Doyon v. Riopel, 2 Que, P. R. 522, 17 Que, S. C. 488.

Discovery — Affidavit of documents — Adultery.]—In a petition for dissolution of marriage, the respondent applied for an affidavit of documents:—Held, that, on the respondent filling an affidavit shewing that discovery was not sought for the purpose of proving the adultery of the petitioner, but for the purpose of discovering documents relating to the matters in question, other than the misconduct of the petitioner, the discovery ought to be ordered. Levy v. Levy, 12 B. C. R. 60, 3 W. L. R. 514.

Dissolution of community — Inventory —Reference—Coate.] — The humand, defendant in an action brought by his wife, who has neglected to make an inventory of the property of the community at the time of its dissolution, will be ordered to pay the costs of a referee afterwards appointed, even where the plaintiff makes no claim. Brière v. Marcatte, 7 Que, P. R. 405.

Dissolution of community - Judgment -Date of taking effect-Execution of judgment - Time for - Prescription.] -The dissolution of the community of property between husband and wife resulting from a judgment of separation de corps, takes effect from the day of the service thereof. Therefore, the referee appointed to make an inventory and ascertain the assets of the dissolved community, must have regard to that date, and take no account of property sub-sequently acquired by either of the parties. -The execution of a judgment of separation de corps, as regards the separation of property which follows from it, may be had at any time until it has censed to be in force by reason of a thirty years' prescrip-tion, the reconciliation of the parties, or other legal cause. Brière v. Marcotte, 29 Que. S. C. 301.

Domiel1 — Jurisdiction — Animus manendi — Wife's domiell — Wife's adultery.] —Petition by a husband for divorce a vinculo on the ground of wife's adultery.]— Held, that the petitioner is not domielled in British Columbia. Residence alone is not sufficient for domiell. There must be the necessary animus manendi. The defendant resided in either New York or Boston. Petition dismissed. Adams v. Adams, 11 W. L. B. 258.

Ecclesiastical decree — Effect of—Civil consequences — Community — Alimony — Custody of child — Maintenance — Costa of action.)—In spite of an ecclesiastical decree declaring a marriage invalid on account of a relationship in the fourth degree between the contracting parties, in respect of which there has been no dispensation, the civil consequences of the marriage continue until a judgment of a civil Court declares it void. Therefore, pending a suit by the husband against the wife to have the marriage declared void, the husband and wife continue to be regarded as such in their civil relations, the community stipulated for in the marriage contract continues to exist and the husband continues to be obliged to support his wife .-2. A child being born of such marriage after the canonical decree and after the husband and wife have ceased to live together, and such child being only a few months old, the wife, who naturally has the guardianship and care of the child, has a right, without being appointed guardian, to obtain from the husband, pending the suit, a proper provi-sion for the child.—3. The wife has also the right to obtain from the husband alimony for herself pending the suit .--- 4. She has also the right to obtain from the husband, head of the community stipulated for in the marriage contract, a provision for her costs of a defence in good faith to the action. It is for the plaintiff, as head of the community, to defray all the expenses of the action both on his own part and on the part of the defence; such expenses are a charge upon the community. Levesque v. Ouellet, 22 Que. S. C. 181.

Effect of divorce not actually declared word, 1--A woman who has obtained a divorce and has re-married, has no status as the widow of her first husband upon his death, so long as her divorce has not been declared void. Fits-Allan v. Rieutord, 6 Que. P. R. 111.

Evidence — Facts anterior to reconciliation. I.—Under Arts. 106 and 197 of the Civil Code, the plaintiff in an action for separation from bed and board is not entitled to adduce evidence regarding facts anterior to the last reconciliation between the consorts, without first having proved some fact which, if not of sufficient gravity alone to warrant a separation, should at least strongly support the demand therefor. Corteau V. Skelly, 20 Que. S. C. 216.

Execution of judgment — Time — Inventory.]—A married woman may, at any time before the death of her husband, cause to be executed a judgment to give effect to a decree for separation of property, unless she has been deprived of it by a judgment of the Superior Court. — The community having been dissolved on the day of the demand for separation, the property to be divided is that existing at that date, and it is the inventory of that property which must be homologated. Briere v. Marcotte, 7 Que. P. R. 376.

Foreign divorce - Criminal conversation - Alienation of affections - Damages.] -The plaintiff's wife separated from him with, as was found on the evidence, his consent, and after some years obtained a divorce from him not valid according to the law of this province. She then went through the ceremony of marriage with the defendant, and lived with him as his wife for some years before this action, which was brought to recover damages for criminal conversation and alienation of affections. The latter branch was abandoned at the trial, but on the former the jury allowed $5,000 damages, withstanding the separation and the divorce, the action lay, but that the damages were grossly excessive, and on this ground, and on the ground of improper reception of evidence, a new trial was granted. Per Mac-Mahon, J.—The separation and subsequent conduct amounted to an absolute abandonment of his wife by the plaintiff and were a bar to the action. Judgment of Anglin, J., 3 O. W. R. 561, reversed. Milloy v. Weilington, 24 C. L. T. 318, 3 O. W. R. 37, 501, 4 O. W. R. 82; 6 O. W. R. 437; C. v D., 8 O. L. R. 308.

Foreign divorce — Invalidity — Service on wirk, 1-in a suit to declare void a marriage contracted by a woman who had obtained in the United States of America a divorce from her first husband upon the ground that such divorce is void, that question cannot be decided upon an exception to the form alleging that the service of process was illegal, and that the woman should have been served as the wife of the first husband. Stephens v. Miller, 5 Que P. R. 307.

Grounds — Insanity.] — The fact that the husband is insane and unable to receive or provide for his wife is not a ground for separation from bed and board. Deneen v. McLeod, 5 Que. P. R. 301.

Husband's liability for wife's sup-port.]-Anderson had married McLeod's sis-After marriage he and his wife lived ter. for some months at his house, when becoming melancholy he left and went to another man's house, where he remained several months, leaving his wife at home. He took nothing away from his house, which he left well supplied, and he told his wife to remain She remained three or four months, there. and then went to live with her brother, the respondent, but her husband's house Was always open to her. Respondent sued the appellant in the County Court for the wife's board and lodging, and recovered judgment for $150. From that judgment Anderson appealed: — Held (Hensley, J.), reversing the judgment of the County Court, that the husband was not liable. Anderson v. McLeod (1876), 2 P. E. I. 142.

Infant wife — Guardian—Rights of husband.)—Unless upon grounds adjudged to be valid, the husband of a minor emancipated by marriage should be named her guardian ad lifem. 2. The right of a husband to the guardianship of his infant wife is a consequence of the respective duties of the spouses and their intimate relations. Such reasons cease to exist when, for example, the spouses are separated, and the wife is preparing to begin an action for séparation de corps. In such a case the husband loses all right to the guardianship of his wife. Ex. p. Pauzé, 3 Que. P. R. 570.

Interim costs and disbursements — Order for — Incidental demand.]—The allowance made to the wife pending an action for signaration de corps includes not only alimony but necessary costs to carry on the cause.—A demand for provision for costs may be made at any stage of the cause, even on appeal; it is not a new demand, but an accessory of the principal action. Judgment — Execution — Third persons —Wife taking lease — Authorisation.]—The non-execution of a judgment for séparation de biens does not deprive it of effect except against third persons, and does not prevent third persons from invoking it against the wife who has obtained it.—2. A married woman, séparée de biens, who keeps a boarding house, may, without the authorisation of her husband or of the Court, take a lease of a house to serve as a boarding house. Parizeau v. Huot, 19 Ques, S. C. 379.

Judgment-Execution - Time-Proceedings-Posting and entry of judgment-Effect of default.]-All essential formalities having been accomplished, and in the absence of fraud the execution of a judgment for separation de biens may be procured, or at least the proceedings to obtain it may begin at any time after the delay fixed by Art. 612, C. P., sub-ject to the prescription enacted by Art. 2205, C. C.-By "procedures aux fins d'obtenir le paiement des droits et reprises de la femme (Art. 1098, C. P.), is meant all that is done with the object of winding up the communauté, for example, an inventory, a compromise .--- 3. Failure to post up and enter the judgment for separation de biens is a ground for setting aside the execution as regards third persons; it is not a ground as regards the parties to the suit, and it does not prevent the judgment from taking effect, as regards such parties, from the day of the demand. Tourneur v. Drouin, 3 Que. P. R. 169

Judgment for separation de corps-Effect as to dissolution of community-Default of execution — Right to allege.]-The separation of property which follows upon a séparation de corps, is without effect lf it has not been executed in the manner provided by Art. 1098, C. P.; and the inefficiency of a judgment to dissolve the community may be pleaded as well by the husband and wife as by their creditors. Lafleur y. Morin, 21 Que. S. C. 483.

Judgment not executed - Effect of as to strangers—Contract of wife — Estoppel— Action — Non-authorisation.] — The nullity of a judgment en séparation de biens, not executed, is absolute; and third parties even cannot succeed by virtue of the fact that the wife, in a contract made between her and them, described herself as judicially separated as to property. 2. Default of authorisation of a wife commune en biens makes service of process upon her absolutely void ; such nullity is a matter of public policy and should be taken notice of by the Court in a case where the wife does not avail herself of it. Per Langelier, J .- An action brought against a wife, commune en biens, who has falsely represented herself in the contract upon which the action is based as séparée de biens, and has not pleaded the nullity of the service by way of exception to the form, will be dismissed, but without costs. Leclaire v. Robert, 3 Que, P. R. 549.

Jurisdiction of Supreme Court of British Columbia.]—The Supreme Court of British Columbia has jurisdiction to grant a decree of divorce between persons domiciled in that province and such jurisdiction may be exercised by a single Judge of that Court. Shorpe v. Shorpe (1877), 1 B. C. R. 25, and Sheppard V. Sheppard (1908), 13 B. C. R. 486, approved. Judgment of Mr. Justice Clement, 7 W. L. R. 29, 13 B. C. R. 281, at trial, reversed. Watts v. Watts, C. R. (1908) A. C. 517, 74 L. J. P. C. 121, (1908) A. C. 573, 24 T. L. R. 911, 99 L. T. R. 764.

The introduction of English law into the colonies of British Columbia, considered and vancouver's Island, and as it is in force in the province of British Columbia, considered and reviewed. Sheppard v. Sheppard, 13 B. C. R. 486.

Liability of hushand for debts of wife-Allowance - Absence of authority. ----A married woman who is separated in fact from her husband, and who receives from him an allowance for her needs, cannot bind him for her personal expenses, particularly where they are not of the nature of alimentary supplies. In such a case, the furnisher of supplies has himself to blane if he does not make inquiry into her condition, or does not require from her an express marital authorization. Morgan v, Tobert, 29 Que S. C. 297.

Liability of husband for debts of wife - Public trader-Loan - False representations - Judgment of separation - Revocation - Power of Court. |-A wife, common as to property, who is a public trader and as such procures a loan by means of false representations, binds her husband to the payment of the debt. When, under such circumstances, the wife obtains a judgment of separation as to property from her husband, renounces the community, and the report of the practicien is homologated, the Court adjudicating on the suit of the lender, has power, so far as may be necessary to give effect to its judgment, to revoke the judgment in separation, the renunciation to the community, and the homologation of the report of the practicien. Samson v. Pelletier, 28 Que. S. C. 394.

Lumatic husband—Authorisation of vei/e to proceed against curator.]—The plaintiff. alleged that they had been morried in 1882, and had been living apart since the year 1881, and that since that time she had supported herself by her own work; that he had recently been interdicted for insanity; and that his curator had obtained a judgment for $3,500 damages for personal injuries suffered by the husband before the date of interdiction. She asked that she be authorised to ester en justice, in an action against the curstor in his quality, for separation de corps et de biens from her husband interdicted for insanity to receive or provide for his wife is not a ground to support an action by the wife for separation from bed and board, and no legal grounds were alleged for a judicial authorization of the wife to bring such action against the husband's curator. Maladministration of hushand.] — Where the dissipation of the lueband or his maladministration of the revenues of his wife's property renders it impossible to provide for the needs of his wife and children, or even make it seem probable that it will become impossible if his management continnes, there is ground for decreeing séparation de biens, although the corpus of the wife's estate is not really in peril. Kaeamagh v. McCrory, 3 Que. P. R. 45.

Marriage of lunatic—Action for declaration of nullity of marriage—Jurisdiction of H. C. J.)—Clute, J., keld, that H. C. J. for Ont, has no authority to declare a marriage void (ab initio), upon the ground that one of the parties was of unsound mind, and, therefore, incapable of entering into the contract of marriage, at the time the ceremony was performed. Caine v. Birmen (1911), 18 O. W. R. 027, 2 O. W. N. 706, O. L. R.

Marriage of plaintiff to brother of decensed husband — Action to declare marriage void — Defendant absent — No personal service on defendant - Service by publication - No sufficient evidence of relationship - Jurisdiction - Grounds insufficient-Ontario Judicature Act, s. 55 (5).]-Plaintiff brought an action against her husband, Robert May, for a declaratory judgment under s. 55, s.-s. 5, of the Judicature Act, that the marriage of the parties at Toronto on 1st July, 1893, was null and void. The action was undefended. Defendant was not personally served with writ of summone nor statement of claim. There was nothing to indicate that he had any knowledge what ever of the proceedings taken against him by plaintiff. At date of marriage now attacked, plaintiff was the widow of William May, to whom she was married at Glasgow in 1870. She alleged that defendant was a In 1840. She alreged that declement was a brother of her first husband, and that in procuring the license for the marriage at Toronto, he made affidavit that plaintiff was The license, which was in evia spinster. dence, described plaintiff as a widow.-Latchford, J., held, that even if proper ser-vice of the writ had been effected, the plaintiff was an unreliable witness upon whose uncorroborated evidence, a judgment declar-ing her marriage with the defendant void, should not be given. Action dismissed. May v. May (1910), 16 O. W. R. 1006; 2 O. W. N. 68.

Marriage to brother of deceased husband—Action to declare marriage void —Defendant absent—No personal service on defendant — Service by publication — No sufficient evidence of relationship—Want of corroboration—Jurisdiction of H. C. J. for Ont.-Grounds insufficient-7 Edw. VII. c. 23, s. 8-1s it constitutional?]-Divisional Court held, that the High Court of Justice for Ontario has no jurisdiction to declare invalid a marriage within the prohibited degrees of consanguinity.-Hodgins v. McNedi (1882), 9 Gr. 305, approved.-Laucless v. Chamberlain (1889), 18 O. R. 296, distinguished.-Quare, 1s 7 Edw. VII, (O.) c. 23, s. 8, constitutional?-Held, that above Act dees not apply to such cases as this, even if constitutional.-Judgment of Latchford, J., 16 O. W. R. 1006, 2 O. W. N. 68, affirmed. May v. May (1910), 18 O. W. R. 515, 2 O. W. N. 413, 22 O. L. R. 559.

Motion by wife for payment of disbursements—C. P. 89, 594, par. 7; C. C. 169, 202.1—In an action in separation from bed and board, the wife must be allowed a certain amount for the necessary disbursements. But if the husband is unable to pay, the wife must then be allowed to plead in forma payperis; she being later granted sufficient money for the summoning and transporting of her witnesses. Moisan V. Bilodeau, 11 Que. P. R. 248.

Necessaries — Implied guthority.] — A matried woman separated de facto and living apart from her husband and in receipt from him of a monthly allowance sufficient for her support, has no implied authority to bind him for purchases of clothing. Morgan v. Vibert, 15 Que, K. B. 407.

Non-support of wife — Defence-Misconduct,]—In an action en séparation de corps begun by the wife on account of the refusal of the husband to support her, her misconduct before marriage or since does not constitute a ground of defence. Plink V. Numičnski, 16 Que, S. C. 231.

Nullity of marriage — Impotence.] — Where consummation of the marriage is, on the part of the husband, a practical imposibility, the wife is entitled to a decree of nullity of marriage. P. (otherwise C.) : P. p. 11 B. C. R. 369.

Petition — Recrimination—Trial.] — It is no answer to a petition for a writ in separation from bed and board for the hushand to allege that his wife is keeping a disorderly house, etc., etc.; every consort is entilled to take such action, and questions of matual recrimination must be left to the merits of the trial. Arcand v. Charruay, S Que, P. R. 25.

Petition by husband—Infidelity of wife —Husband leading an immoral life — Discretionary poster of Court.]—Husband and wife had separation. He led an immoral life. The Court in its discretion refused huband's petition for divorce. A. v. A. and K., 10 W. L. R. 77.

and came to British Columbia, bringing herchild of the marriage, a girl of eight years, with her. The husband followed and commenced proceedings in British Columbia for the custody of the child. While in British Columbia he renewed the acts of cruelty, and, apprehensive of further cruelty, the wife commenced proceedings for a judicial separation. He opposed the suit, on the ground that there was not jurisdiction in the Court, inasmuch as he was not domicibel or resident in British Columbia:—Held, that the husband had established sufficient residence to give the Court jurisdiction to entertain the suit. Jamicson y, Jamicson, 14 B. C. R. 59, 9 W. L. R. 419.

Petition by wife for judicial separation—Practice — Divorce rules — Ex parte motion for directions as to trial, husband not appearing in answer to citation—Absence of affdavit denging collusion — Necessity for filing citation with certificate and affdavit of service.]—A wife had filed a petition for divorce, but her affidavit filed therewith did not state that there was no collusion or connivance between her and her husband. The husband was served personally with the citation but did not appear. On motion for directions as to trial no order made, affidavit being insufficient. Petitioner must begin de novo. Timms v. Timms (1960), 12 W. L. R. 529. See 13 W. L. R. 636.

Petition by wife for judicial separation - Husband domiciled out of province Motion by husband to set aside a citation and petition for judicial separation.]-The parties were married in Winnipeg, but immediately thereafter went to reside in Montreal, the husband's domicil. There is one child. Owing to cruelty and misconduct plaintiff left her husband and went to reside permanently in Vancouver. About a month after the husband followed and started pro-ceedings to recover custody of child, and committed further acts of cruelty $-Held_{\rm t}$ that the husband's temporary residence is sufficient to give the British Columbia Court jurisdiction. Jamieson v. Jamieson, 9 W. L. R. 419

Petition for dissolution of marriage —Necessity for signature by petitioner,—Petition for dissolution of marriage must be signed by petitioner, not by his solicitor, unless leave has been obtained from the Court permitting latter to sign. Ploteman v. *Plote*man, 10 W. L. R. 20.

Petition for leave to sue — Vague allegations.]—The Court, before granting to the wife an authorization to sue for separation from bed and board, may require her to specify the acts of cruelty committed by the defendant and the particular insults which she pretends were uttered. Alary v. Phillips, 16 Que. S. C. (905.

Pleading — Misconduct — Alimony — Custody of children.]—In an action by the wife for separation from bed and board, the plaintiff also asked for an alimentary allowance and the care of children; the husband pleaded admitting some of the acts alleged in the declaration, but denied the motive alleged, and asserted that the acts in question were caused by the missonduct of the plaintiff braself:--Held, that, although the plaintiff's missonduct uight not be an answer to the claim for separation, yet it would affect her right to the care of the children and to an alimeniary allowance; and a denurrer to the plae for missonduct was overraled. Courteau v. Skelly, 20 Que, 8, C, 215.

Providing residence for wife — Conjugal domicil.]—In an action for separation, personal and as to property, brought by a wife against her husband, the Judge may, according to circumstances, in place of allotting to the wife a provisional residence outside the conjugal domicil, authorize her to remain in such domicil, and order the husband to leave it. Hebert v. Michaud, 4 Que. P. R. 207.

Provisional alimentary allowance — Vacation.]—A Judge has no jurisdiction in vacation to order the payment of a provisional alimentary allowance in an action for séparation de corps. Currie v. Cunin, 5 Que, P. R. 56.

Reconcliation — Subsequent crucity — Pleading. |—A mere general allegation as to deceit of force in regard to a reconciliation which took place between consorts, or as to subsequent ill-usage, is not sufficient to justify proceedings in separation from bed and board within a few days of the reconciliation. Beauchamp V. Ledue, 7 Que. P. R. 91.

Reconcliation — Tarable costs payable by community — Authorisation — Extra serveices.]—The costs incurred by the wife, In an action for separation from hed and board, for the purpose of realising her share of the community, having been authorised by the Court, can and must be levied upon the assets of the community, and the husband must pay them if proceedings are stopped at his request. 2. When a woman is authorised to such her husband for separation from bed and board, she is only authorised to bind herself for the taxable costs in the said action; the extra services which she may require from her lawyer must be considered as requested by her without authorisation. Hannan v. Cooke, 10 Que. P. R. 159, 18 Que. K. B. 127.

Reference — Powers of referee—Report —Community of property — Will—Intention —Provision against seisure and attachment— Provision against seisure and attachment against seisure and attachment and proselt is against seisure and attachment of all the property belonging to the hurband and wife, without taking upon himself to decide whicher such property is included in the community of property or not, this being a question for the Judge alone to decide on the presentation of the report for confirmation. Where a report of a referee stated that certain property should be excluded from the community, and judgment was given directing the referee to amend his report by inserting therein a complete and detailed list of this property so that it might form part of the community property, such judgment does not constitute chose jugée when the report so amended is presented afresh to the Court for final adjudication and confirmation. In ascertaining the intention of a testator on the interpretation of a will, regard should be had to the particular circumstances which may have influenced him, and to the impression by which he sought to convey his meaning. The following clause in a will, "I wish it to be well and clearly understood that the said movable and immovable properties may not in any manner be liable for the support and maintenance of N. T. S. divorced wife of the said D. A. C., my son," is not contrary to public policy or good morals, as having the effect of protecting a husband from providing for the necessities of his wife while he is provided with maintenance and the other necessaries of life, the support and maintenance" words aforesaid being interpreted in a wider sense than would be those of "alimentary allowance." Property thus devised or bequeathed to the husband ought to be considered as property de communauté. A clause in a will, "I wish it to be well and clearly understood that the property, movable and immovable, real and personal, hereby devised, is so devised under the express condition that said property. movable and immovable, real and personal, cannot be liable nor seized nor sold for debts now contracted and to be contracted. makes the income of the property devised as free from seizure or attachment as the property itself, although the testator did not add that they were made "à titre d'ali-ments." Stewart v. Cairns, 27 Que, S. C. 1.

Renunciation of community — Formalities—Authorization.] — The wife's renunciation of the community, in an action es séparation de biers, should be made at the record office or b-fore a notary, and a renunciation made before a commissioner of the Superior Court is void and of no effect. 2. A wife authorized by a Judge to sue her husband en siparation de biens, does not need a fresh authorisation to renounce the community. Trudeau v. Labossiere, 4 Que, P. R. 46

Resunciation of community — Registration — Absence de droits et reprises.] — The neglect to register the wife's renunciation of community, upon a judicial separation of property, does not affect the validity of the judgment for separation. 2. In order that the absence of rights and remedies of the wife against the husband may exempt her from causing the judgment for separation to be executed, it is not sufficient that such judgment does not grant any rights and remedies to the wife, but it is necessary that the absence of such rights and remedies should be stated by the referce's report or by a declaration of the wife. Mailloux v. Drolet, 18 Que, S. C. 507.

Residence of wife-Discretionary power of Judge.]-Art, 195 C. C., like Art. 298 C. N., gives the Judge discretionary power to allow the wife suing for separation from bed and bard, to reside temporarily in a foreign country, if circumstances justify it. Jones v. Warman (1910), 39 Que S. C. 174.

Residence of wife pendente lite – Conjugal domicil – Community – Esclussion of husband.]—In an action for sciencetion de corps brought by a wife against her husband, the plaintif must allege that she is separate as to property to be authorized to dwell pendente, lite in the conjugal domicil, and thus force her husband to quit it. The husband, head of the community, has the enjoyment of the property of the wife, including the house and furniture; he cannot be deprived of this right by the institution of an action for separation de corps. Gaganier V. Lasajolonière, 8 Que P. R. 37.

Resumption of cohabitation — Presumption of condonation — Cruelty.] — Λ separation of husband and wife, followed by their resuming life together, presumes the condonation of past offences, but the continuation of the life together after cruelty does not give rise to this same presumption. Labelle v. Lecavalier, 16 que, K. B. 261.

Right of husband to aliment.] — A merchant such for separation de corps, may claim from his wife an alimentary pension if the latter has been put in possession of the business from which the former obtained his means of subsistence. Joly v. Garneau, 5 Que. P. R. 137.

Right of the wife to costs for suit or defence — Alimony.)—A wife, plaintiff, or defendant, in a suit for divorce has a right to make her husband advance her the necessary means to pay the costs of suit or defence. It ought to be taken account of in the amount of alimony provided for in Ar. 202 C. C., but nothing prevents her from making a special demand for a provision ad litem, when the alimony is insufficient. Detroismaisons v. Tellier, 35 Que. S. C. 201

Rule nisi — Judgment in a husband's favour against his wije — Partial execution of the judgment — Petition for a rule — C. P. 834.]—A rule will not issue against a wife ordered to receive her husband into the comply with the order by allowing him to occupy a room in the domicil. It is by a petition for a rule mis, and not by direct action, that the husband should seek to force his wife to obey the order of the Court which commanded her to permit her husband to live in the conjugal domicil. Robinson to Gore, 11 Que P. R. 179.

Separation as to bed and board -Cross-demand based upon different reasons-Statement of facts subsequent to the principal action-C, P. 217, 1100; C. O. 187, 185, 180, --In an action for separation as to bed and board, based upon ill-usage, and taken by a wife against her husband, the latter can make a cross-demand for separation from bed and board based upon the adultery of the wife. Separation from bed and board — Care of the children — C. p. 100, 1101; C. C. 200,]—The wife defendant in an action in separation from hed and board is entitled to the cure of a child, one year old, and whom she has nursed and cared for until shortly before the institution of the action, especially if she resides with her father and shews that the child will be well cared for. But the husband will be given the provisional entre of a child, four years old, who is not so dependent upon a mother's care and affection. Poiltras V. Lafrance (1909), 10 Que. P. R. 362.

6. LJABILITY OF ONE FOR CONTRACTS AND TORTS OF THE OTHER.

Contract of wife for husband - Invalidity — Firm name — Presumption.] — When a wife, separate as to property, who has, by request of her husband, registered a declaration to the effect that she is carrying on business under a certain firm name, contracts obligations for her husband under such firm name, such obligations are absolutely void, according to Art. 1301, C. C. 2. The facts that she has derived no personal advantage from the business carried on under such firm name, and that the business has chiefly served to pay the debts of her husband, make a strong presumption that she has carried it on for her husband, and that she has contracted for him. 3. She cannot engage her property for the purpose of guar-anteeing the obligations of her husband. Honan v. Duckett, 19 Que, S. C. 418.

Debts of husband — Contract of wife to pay — Invalidity — Stranger. I—A contract by a married woman séparte de biens, to pay the debts of her husband, is void, even where the wife declares to the creditor that she is horrowing to pay her own debts, which the lender believes. Such a contract is an absolute nullity, and the nullity of it may be invoked by a third party, the holder of an immovable mortgaged to guarantee such obligation. Judgment of Court of Review, Q. R. 13 S. C. 129, reversed. Globenski v. Boucher, 10 Que, K. B. 318, 321.

Debts of husband before dissolution of community — Obligation by wije—Nuility — Public policy.] — Judgment of the Superior Court In review, 6 Rev. Jur. 13, affirming judgment in 15 Que. 8. C. 445, affirmed for the reasons given in the Courts below. Bastien v. Filiatrault, 31 S. C. R. 120.

Debts of wife — Costs—Application of husband for custody of children.]—Where a wife leaves her husband without justification, she is not entitled against him to her costs of unsuccessfully resisting his application by habcas corpus for the custody of the children of the marriage. In re McPhalen, 10 B. C. R. 40.

Debts of wife — Necessaries.]—A debt for clothing is of an alimentary nature, and the onus is upon the defendant to prove that the clothing was not ordinary or necessary, or that the price was too high for his means. Richer v. Arnton, 2 Que. P. R. 569.

Debts of wife before marriage -Married Women's Property Act — Property acquired from wife — Evidence — Deduc-tions.]—The Married Woman's Property Act, R. S. N. S. 1900 c. 112, s. 25, makes a hus-band liable for the debts of his wife con-tracted by her before marriage "to the extent of all property whatsoever belonging to the wife which he has acquired or become deducting therefrom any payments made by him" in respect to any such debts, etc. In an action against the defendant R, for goods supplied to his wife before marriage, evifore a commissioner, the defendant R. was present and stated, among other things, that he had received from his wife three promissory notes, for amounts and due at dates which he mentioned :--Held, that the evi-dence was not admissible, the best evidence being that taken down by the commissioner, and which he was required to return to the and which he was required to return to the Court. 2. That there was nothing in the evidence to bring the notes referred to within the language " property belonging to the wife" which the defendant hat. "acquired or become entitled to " through the wife, or i discharge the bucken resting woon the to discharge the burden resting upon the plaintiff to shew acquisition or title by or in the husband -Scmble, where money was received and payments made by the husband, that the plaintiff would have to shew a balance remaining in his hands, and that he could not put in one side of the transaction without the other. Bauld v. Reid, 36 N. S.

Debts of wife before marriage—Property of wife received by hashand — Necessaries — Extinguishment of debt by marriage.]—In an action against a hushand and wife for goods supplied to the wife before and after marriage, the evidence shewed that, at the time of marriage, the wife had a separate estate, which she still held, and the only evidence upon which the claim against the hushand was founded was that after marriage he cut some timber upon the wife's property, which was sold and the proceeds used to purchase supplies for household purposes:—Held, that this did not constitute an acquiring or becoming entitled to property from or through the wife within the Married Women's Property Act, R. S. N. S. 1900 c. 112, s. 25; and that the debt due from the wife to the hushand before marriage was extinguished by the marriage. Lockett V. Cress, 2 E. L. R. 3, S E. L. R. 90, 41 N. S. R. 400.

Goods ordered through wife — Acknacledgment — Domicil — Change.] — Assuming that the defendant and wife were separated as to property, the fact that the household linen zoods in question were purchased on the credit of the husband and for him, although charged in an existing account against the wife, was sufficiently established by proof of his knowledge of the transaction throughout, his personal visit to the vendor, his furnishing a sketch of his own family crest to be embroidered on the linen, by his promise to pay for the goods on arrival, and by a letter to the vendor's attorneys in which he stated that he had authorized the insurance of the goods at his own expense, and further said, "I do not see why I should be called upon to pay him (the vendor) until I have received the goods and checked them off before a linen expert, etc." 2. Change of domicil from Montreal to New York is not legally established by the fact that a person born in Montreal, and having his domicil there, went to New York and married there, and subsequently lived in New York State for a time with his mother-in-haw, and at a hotel, and then in a furnished house in New Jersey. There must be actual residence in the place selected, coupled with the intention of the person to make it the seat of his principal establishment: Art. 80, C. C. Calcutt v. Tiffn. 23 Que. 8. C. 175.

Goods supplied for household use — Liability of wide — Presumption—Agency— Evidence.]—When goods are ordered by a married woman living with her husband, for use in the bouschold, the presumption of law is that the wife is acting as the agent of her husband, and such presumption is not displaced by the fact that the merchant kept the account in the name of the wife and rendered statements of it from time to time to her instead of to her husband. Paquin v. Becauclerk, [1906] A. C. 100, distinguished. Vogni v. Bell, 8 W. L. R. 205, 17 Man. L. R. 417.

Sale of goods — Authority of wife to sell husband's goods — Re-purchase by husband — $Acquiescence.] \rightarrow A$ husband, sued for the price of a stove, will not be allowed to set up in his defence that the stove always belonged to him and that the sale which his wife assumed to make of it in order to obtain drink was void, unless he can prove that he could not have prevented the sale. 2. The fact that the husband offered a certain sum of money for the re-purchase of the stove shews acquiescence in the sale made by his wife. Beaulieu v. Paquet, 6 Que. P. R. 68.

Sale of goods to wife — Community— Action by hashand to set as.de sale—Recovery of moneys paid — Set-off — Use of goods — Deterioration.] — To an action brought by a husband, where there is community of property, to, set aside the sale of a piano made to his wife, and for repayment of sums paid on account, the vendor may plead that such sums are offset by the value of the use of the piano and the deterioration which it has suffered. Norris v. Mason and Risch Piano Co., 9 Que, P. R. 64.

Services rendered to wife — Costa-Negotiations resulting in reconciliation — Liability of community.]—Chriges for professional services rendered to v wile who obtained judgment against he husband for séparation de corps, in negotiations instituted by the husband and which ended in a reconciliation, are a debt of the community, and may be recovered in an action against the husband as head of the community. Hanman v. Cooke, 18 Que K. B. 127, 10 Que. P. R. 159.

Tort of both — Slander—Action against both — Liability of husband — Business car-ried on by both.]—The wife of the defendant managed and worked his cheese factory. With the object of taking away customers from the plaintiff, who was in the same business, she stated that he gave bad measure, and did so in the presence of her husband, who made the same statement. The plaintiff brought, on account of these statements, an action for damages against the husband and wife, but without conclusion against the latter:-Held, that the husband is responsible for the acts of his wife during the tacit execution of the duties he has intrusted her with, and therefore for the damages which she has caused by uttering injurious words against some person, even if no special conclusions have been taken against her by the action. Dubuc v. Trottier, 19 Que. S. C 202

Tort of husband — Keeping vicious dog —Separate property of wife.] — A wife, separate as to property, is liable for damages enused by a vicious dog belonging to her husband, and harboured at the common domiell which is her private property, paticularly when it is proved that the dog was so harboured not only without any objection or protest on her part, but with her full consent and approval, notwithstanding that she had full knowledge of the dangerous character of the dog. Hugron v. Stattos, 18 Que 8, C. 200.

Tort of wife.]—Held, affirming the judgment of Street, J., that a husband is still liable for the torts of his wife if the marriage took place before the 1st July, 1884. The provisions of the Married Women's Property Act, 1884, 47 V. c. 19 (O.), applicable to persons married before that date, do not relieve him from liability. Earle v. Kingscate, [1900] 2 Ch. 585, applied and followed. Amer V. Rogers, 31 C. P. 195, overruled. Lee v. Hopkins, 20 O. R. 508; approved. Travise v. Hales, 24 C. L. T. 12, 6 O. L. R. 574, 2 O. W. R. 509, 1087.

Torts of wife - Community-Participation - Defamation.]-A husband in general is not responsible for the torts or quasi-torts committed by his wife, nor is the community responsible for them. 2. There is no exception to this rule except when the husband has acted as his wife's accomplice or has participated in the tort or quasi-tort by having aided, ordered, or authorized her. 3. In this case (slander), the husband having ordered his wife to be silent and to go into the house as soon as he understood what she was saying, there was no fault or complicity on his part, and therefore, no responsibility of the husband or of the community for the wrong committed by the wife. Fortier v. Demers, 21 Que. S. C. 543.

Wife as survey — Debt assumed by husband.)—Held, affirming the decision in Q. R. 15 S. Wife pledging credit of hushand — Necessaries — Admissions — Evidence,]— An admission of a sale of goods for more than $50 by a merchant to one who is not a merchant, cannot be proved by witnesses, if it is not proved that the goods were delivered in whole or in part. 2. In the absence of a special mandate to his wife, a hushand is i.' responsible for purchases made by her unless they are for things necessary for his family, such as provisions, clothes, etc. 3. Even when goods so purchased by the wife for the needs of the family are in question, the husband is not bound by the admissions of his wife as to the purchase, unless such admissions have been made in the course of the purchase. Pickette v. Mosrisette, 25 Que, 8. C. 40.

7. MARRIAGE CONTRACT.

After-acquired goods — Donatio mortis cause.] — A clause of an ante-nuprial contract by which the future husband gives to the future wife all the furniture in the matrimonial donieli, including what may be acquired by the husband during the marriage, such gift becoming void in case of the pre-decease of the wife, constitutes a gift mortis cause, and confers on the wife the actual property only in the goods which the husband possessed at the time of the marriage. Neuran v. Despocas, 17 Que, S. C. 477.

After-acquired property — Contexttion of opposition—Doadio morits causa.]— A gift to the wife of all the household furniture in the dwelling-house of the husband and wife is a gift of property present and future, which is not a gift mortis causa, but which takes effect at any time, and there is nothing illegal or inmoral about it.—2. It may be alleged in answer to the contextation of an opposition, based upon such a gift, that certain of the effects were boukh by the husband after the marriage for his wife to replace like effects which had been sold, this answer being an explanation of an allegation of the opposition raised by the contextation. Allan v. Trihey, 5 Que. P. R. 298, 24 Que. S. C. 12.

After-acquired property — Donatio words cause — Separation—Repletin—Parties.]—A marriage contract stipulated that "all the furniture which should be brought at any time into the dwelling-house of the future husband and wife, by either one of them, should belong to the future wife." A separation de corps having been adjudged between the husband and wife, the wife, accompanied by her father, went to the house of the husband, and removed the furniture.

which she alleged belonged to her by virtue of the clause above quoted, and this furniture was transferred to the house of her father, where she lived. The husband replevied the furniture in an action brought against the father and daughter:—Held, that the clause quoted constituted a gift of future property, mortis cousa, and, therefore, the furniture remained the property of the husband until his death. That, in the circumstances, the husband was right in bringing his action against both his wife and her father. Goyette v. Leclere, 23 Que, 8, C, 542.

Ante-nuptial contract — Specific performance — Will—" Voluntarily "—Zzecutor —Costs.]—A woman, in consideration of a man matrying her, promised him that she would make him her sole heir, he married her, and after marriage, in acknowledgment of the ante-nuptial contract, she signed a writing stating "I voluntarily promised . before and after marriage that I would make him my sole heir . . by virtue of this contract he is my sole heir." She died having (after the acknowledgment) disposed of her estate by will to the exclusion of her husband —Held, that the ante-nuptial agreement was a binding contract on the part of the woman to leave by will her property to her husband, and should be specifically performed; and that "voluntarily" in the acknowledgment meant "of her own free will," —Held, also, on the facts, that the executor named in the will acted reasonably in defending the action and resisting the appeal, and was therefore entitled to charge the estate for his costs. Raser v. McQuade, 11 B. C. R. 160.

Community — Stipulation for usufract of survieor—Repistration.]—A contract of marriage provided that there should be universal community, and also stipulated a donation to the surviving consort of the usufruct, during life, of all property existing at the dissolution of the community by the death of the consort dying first. Nothing existed in the community, at the date of its dissolution, that would not have formed part of it by mere operation of law: --Held, that the stipulation, in such marriage contract, of usufruct in favour of the surviving consort, although described as a donation, is not a donation but a marriage covenant, and is not subject to the formality of registration. Art. 1411 C. C. Huot y, Bienvenu, 21 Que. S. C. 341.

Construction—"Membles et effets mobiliers"—Honey in bank, —Unless the context clearly indicates the contrary, the words "membles et effets mobiliers" in a marriage contract comprise money deposited in a bank. Sabourin v. Montreal City and District Sasings Bank, 21 Que, S. C. 301.

Construction — Stipulation of acver — Claim by children-Renunciation of succession.]—A stipulation of dever in a marriage contract executed before the Civil Code came into force, of a sum une fois payée et sans relour, meant that, if children were born of the marriage, the wife, in case of survival, should have the usufruct and the children the ownership of the dower-money-2. Children, in order to claim their dower, are not beyind to renounce the succession of their father, when it has devolved by his will on a universal legatee, who has accepted it. Kirkpatrick v. Birks, 14 Que. K. B. 287.

Donation a cause de mort — Creditors of husband.]—A gift to the wife in a marriage contract, " of all the furmiture and furnishings which the expected husband will have in his dwelling at the time of his death," is a gift of goods in the future, and, therefore, made d cause d emort. This grant takes effect only on the death of the husband, and in his lifetime the wife has no right to the goods granied; she has no title to prevent the seizure and sale theroof at the suit of the creditors of the husband. Doreal v. Prefontaine, 14 Que, K. B. 80.

Donation of chattels — Time of tak-ing effect—Death of husband — Rights of creditors in lifetime.] —A clause in a marriage contract providing that, "In consideration of the honest and sincere affection which the intended husband bears towards the intended wife, he makes a donation to her of all his furniture, furnishings, and movable effects to be actually found in his dwelling house, and also of all such furniture, furnishings, and movable effects which the intended busband may in the future have in his dwelling house." does not amount to a gift in favour of the donee taking effect in the lifetime of the donor, but should be considered a gift "d cause de mort," which would take effect only at the death of the husband, and, as a consequence, the goods thus given, becoming the property of the wife only at the death of the husband, can be seized and sold to satisfy a judgment against the latter. fontaine v. Dorval, 26 Que. S. C. 301. Pré-

Douaire prefix une fois paye et sans retour — Cicil Code—Interest of wije—Inferrat of children.]—A clause in a marriage contract, made before the coming into force of the Civil Code, by which the husband gives his wife the sum of $4,000, douaire préfix une fois payé et sans retour, interpreted according to the law prior to the Code, does not import a departure from the well established principle underlying dower, of asufruct in the wife and property in the children; and therefore the children have a vested proprietary interest in the dower and become entitled to claim it on the death of the parents. Birks v. Kirkpatrick, 27 Que. 8. C. 51.

Gift — Gain de survie — Scieure by creditors of husband-Contractual gift of chatrela-Registration — Wedding presents.] — A gift of property made to a wife by a marriage contract as goin de survie, takes effect only at the dushand the wife has no right to the property nor status to oppose a science thereof made by the creditors of the husband. Dorreal v. Préjontaine, 14 Que, Q. B. 80, referred to.—A contractual gift of movable property, not followed by an actual handing over to the donee of the public possession, must be the subject of registration.—Wedding presents are regarded as made to the future wife and are her property when it becomes a question of separating the goods of the husband and wife. Prouls v. Klineberg, 30 Que, S. C. 1. Gift during coverture — Seizure by execution creditor. Shuttleworth v. McGillivray, 2 O. W. R. 250, 5 O. L. R. 536.

Gift of household furniture—To be delivered at a future indeterminate time— Oral teatimony of the delivery.]—The clause in a marriage contract whereby the husband, by gift inter views, twes to his future wife household furniture of a specified value, and binds himself to deliver it to her as his means, from time to time, will permit, is legal, and subsequent delivery of the movable effects, in execution of the gift, may be established by oral testimony. The further condition in the same clause of the marriage contract that, upon death of his wife, the furniture and effects so given will rever to the husband, does not impair the exclusive right of ownership enjoyed by the wife during her lifetime. Lusher v. Decary (1911), 39 Que, 8, C. 460.

Gift of movables and money - Survivorship — Gift inter vivos — Condition — Predecease of wife — Return to husband.]-A stipulation, under the heading "by way of settlement," in a marriage contract, drawn up in the English language, by which, after a gift of movables, the intending husband makes a gift to the intended wife of a sum be had and taken hyperbolic a sum to be had and taken by her . . Sarah Fox . . from and out of the most available cash assets of the estate of him, the said Carl Schiller, at any time upon her first demand and as her own property, to have and to hold both of said donations and settlement unto her. . provided always that she survive him, for, in case she should predecease him, said settlement and said donation shall return and belong to him by title of reversion." does not constitute a gain de survie, but a gift inter vivos to take effect upon the property of the husband whenever the wife chooses, subject to the condition, in the event of her predecease, of the return of the mov-ables and money to the surviving husband. Fox v. Lamarche, 16 Que. K. B. 83.

Gift to wife — Contemplation of death-Creditors.]—A clause in a marriage contract, stipulating that all household effects and furniture which shall at any time be brought into the conjugal domicil by either of the consorts shall belong to the wife, is neither a gift of present property, nor a gift of future property made in contemplation of denth permissible in a marriage contract, but purports to be a gift of future property inter vieve, and is illegal and of no effect. Moreover, such stipulation is void inasmuch as it would enable the husband to confer benefits upon his wife during the marriage, contrary to the terms of Art. 1205, C. C. The husband has, therefore, a right, notwithstanding such clause, to oppose the seizure, by a judgment creditor of his wife, od articles of furniture acquired by him after the marriage and brought into the common domicil. Judgment in 16 Que, S. C. 273 reversed. Desrochers v. Roy, 18 Que, S. C. 70.

Gift to wife — Expenditure in purchase of land—Deed—Notice-Registration—Rejhts of mortgages — Rights of children of marriage.] — The husband by the maringe contract promised to expend, within five years, $7,000, which he gave to his wife (separate as to property), in the purchase of an im-ture in purchase stration—Rights children of marhe marriage conrithin five years, s wife (separate schase of an immovable in the name of the wife, but in which she should have only the usufruct, and the children the property. After the marriage, the wife, with the authorisation of her husband, bought an immovable in her own name. There was nothing either in the deed of sale. nor in any other writing, which shewed that this purchase was made with the money of the husband, or with the sum given in the marriage contract; on the contrary, every-thing shewed that it was the wife who was money, and so the matter appeared at the registry office. Afterwards the with her own rowed money from the plaintiff, and, with the authorisation of her husband, hypothe-cated the immovable as her absolute pro-perty to the plaintiff. The plaintiff having caused the immovable to be seized under his execution against the wife, her children claimed it by virtue of the marriage contract, and they proved orally that the intention of the hashand and wife, at the time of the purchase, was to make it in order to con-form to the contract of marriage, and that the husband had himself furnished the purchase money in fulfilment of the contract: Held, that the claim of the children could not, upon such testimony, prevail against the plaintiff ; that, in order to prevail against him, the deed of sale or some other registered deed should have mentioned that the purchase was made with the sum given by the husband to the wife; that the plaintiff, in consequence, had the right to cause the whole of the im-movable to be sold as the property of the wife. Gaudreau v. Tetu, 20 Que. S. C. 402.

Gift to wife - Future payment-Insolvency of husband-Ranking on estate-Registration-Creditors-Loan by wife.]-In a marriage contract the giving by the future husband to his future wife of a sum of money which she "shall have and take, when it shall please her, sur les plus clairs et apparent biens of the future husband," is lawful when such gift has been made without fraud, when the husband was not insolvent at the time of the contract, and when the debt of the creditor contesting the gift did not exist at such time, and the wife can claim such sum at the time of the subse-quent insolvency of the husband and rank therefor with the other creditors of the hus-band upon the estate. 2. The marriage con-tract may be set up in opposition to the subsequent creditors of the husband, if it has been registered at the place where the husband and wife had their domicil at the time it was entered into, even when it has not been registered until later at the place where the bankruptcy has been declared. 3. A contract of loan between husband and wife is valid, and the wife can claim the sum lent against the estate of the husband equally with the other creditors. In re Denis and Kent, 18 Que. S. C. 436.

Gift to wife — Inolvency of husband— Dowcer-Renunciation of—Hypothec--Keyitration,]—A gift in a marriage contract by the intending husband to his intended wife, of the furniture and household effects garnishing the common domichi, is deemed to be by gratuitous title, and is invalid as against a creditor of the husband, donor, who was insolvent at the time of the marriage. 2. Dower, whether customary or conventional, is not a gift but a debt, and is by onerous title. This rule applies to conven-tional dower even when it exceeds the cus-tomary dower which it replaces. 3. Renunciations to dower are to be very strictly construed in favour of the wife; and even where, as in the present case, the marriage contract contains what purports to be a renunciation to dower, whether customary OT prefix, the stipulation of a life rent payable to the wife, which rent is expressly stated to be in lieu of dower, is in effect a stipulation of conventional dower, and is governed by the same rules which govern dower. Such stipulation cannot, therefore, be set aside by a creditor without proving knowledge by the wife of her husband's insolvency at the date of the marriage. 4. The wife has no legal hypothec to secure the payment of conventional dower, and the registration of a mere notai dower, and the registration of a mere notice, as provided for legal hypothec, with-out description of the property affected, does not charge the husband's property with a hypothec in favour of the wife. Turgeon v. Shannon, 20 Que. S. C. 135.

Marriage agreement - Promise to provide for plaintiff if she would marry adopted son-Instrument in writing-Forgery of Neglect to bring action on during lifetime of donor — Donor had provided for plaintiff by deed inter vivos.]—An action was brought against the executrix of M. H. in the year 1854, upon the following document:—"On demand, I will pay at any time to Miss M. , if she will marry my adopted son, A. T H., £1,500, currency. Three Rivers, 14th August, 1840. M. H." The declaration alleged that this promise was the ground which induced the plaintif (formerly M. J.), to marry M. H.'s son, A. T. H. The defence to the action was that this instrument was a forgery. Upon the evidence it appeared that no claim had been made by the plaintiff for principal or interest during the life-time of M. H., nor was it shewn how the instrument came into the plaintiff's posses-sion, nor did the plaintiff in any way account for not enforcing the demand during the lifetime of M. H. It further appeared that M. H. had, in two letters written about the date of the alleged note, promised to pro-vide for the plaintiff and any family she might have, and had, by a deed of donation inter vivos, provided for his son, A. T. H., (reversing the judgment of the Court of Queen's Bench in Lower Canada), that, without deciding that the instrument was a forgery sufficient appeared from the facts to lead to the conclusion that M. H. had provided for the plaintiff by the deed of donation in satisfaction of the promise made to her, which inference, coupled with the fact of the plaintiff not claiming, or bringing the action in M. H.'s lifetime, or accounting for the custody of the instrument, afforded strong proof of satisfaction by the deed of donation for any promise made by M. H. W? ther the evidence of cousins-german to a party in the cause is by the law of Lower Canada admissible? The Courts in Canada examined witnesses, and compared the handwriting of the instrument sued upon, with the handwriting of two other documents put in evidence and admitted to be genuine. In such circumstances the Judicial Committee upon petition for that purpose, ordered the Court in Canada to transmit to the originals for the purpose of inspection and comparison at the hearing of the appeal from the judgment of the Court in Lower Canada. McCarthy v. Judah (1858), C. R. 2 A. C. 407.

Marriage contract—Quebe law—Money payable to wije after death of hasband — Right of wije to renk as creditor upon insolvent estate of deceased husband—Policy of insurance—Construction of marriage contract — Consideration — Remunciation of dover.]—The plaintifi claimed, as widow of Edward O'Reilly, to rank as a creditor in the same of $25,000 in the distribution of the assets of said O'Reilly's estate, under a certain marriage contract entered into between plaintiff and the said O'Reilly prior to their marriage, and dated 22nd June, 1889. Upon the application of defendants, executors of the last will of Edward O'Reilly, it was ordered by Anglin, J., that parties proceed to the trial of an issue whether the said marriage contract entitled the plaintiff to rank as a creditor in the distribution of the assets, and whether the plaintiff was entitled to the proceeds of a certain policy of insurance for $3,000. At the trial Britton, J., (12 O. W. Gitors—Divisional Court (13 O. W. R. 907) affirmed Britton, J., and dismissed the creditors—Divisional Court (Meredith, J.A., dissenting). O'Reilly v. O'Reilly (1910), 16 O. W. R. 75, 21 O. L. R. 201.

Marriage settlement — Gift-Registration-Time-Creditors-Action to set aside transaction-Partics.]—A gift of property by husband to wife by way of marriage settlement must be registered. 2. The registration of a gift after the time allowed cannot be et up against creditors who have become such in the interval. 3. Several creditors may join together in an action to set aside a transaction as fraudulent. McDougall Co. v. Boisvert, 24 Que. S. C. 162.

Payment of sum in lieu of dower-Survival—Rights of heirs-at-law—Gift inter vivos—Condition.]—A covenant in a contract of marriage that "the husband, in consideration of the renunciation of legal dower by the wife and of the love and affection he has for her, gives her a sum of money, to be taken from the clear assets of his estate, provided that she survive him, payable immediately after his death, monthly or otherwise as she may require, as a marriage portion in lieu of dower," with a further covenant that " if the wife predeceases the husband, without issue, or, having had issue, such issue having predeceased herself, her heirs shall have no right to the sum, which shall vest in him, the hus-band, à titre de reversion," is not a stipulation or prefixed or conventional dower, nor a gift or gratuitous disposition, but a synallagmatical agreement or bargain that the husband shall pay the sum in consideration of the renunciation by the wife of her dower rights. Hence, in the event of the predecease of the wife leaving children, issue of the marriage, and of such children being her heirs-at-law, she having died intestate, they have the right to be paid the sum out of their father's estate, not by right of dower (à titre de douairiers) but as the representatives of their mother. They are not bound, therefore, as a condition precedent to the recovery of the sum, to renounce the succession of their father, or any benefit accruing to them under his will.— Even in the view that the above marriage covenant is gratuitous or a gift, it is a donation inter views and not morfis causa, nor is it subject to a suspensive condition that the donee survive the donor. Hogan v. Eadie, 30 Que. 8. C. 402.

Place of celebration — Foreign law,]— In the absence of an express or tacit agreement to the contrary, the legal consequences of a marriage, as regards matrimonial contracts, are determined according to the law of the place where the marriage was celebrated. Peters v. City of Quebec, City of Quebec v. Peters, 33 Que. 8. C. 361.

Pre-suptial contract in Quebee-Law of Quebee — Community of property — Land situate in Ontario — Will — Distribution of proceeds of sale—Heirs of husband—Judgment—Petition to set aside— Reference—Costs. Cadicux v. Rouleau, 10 O. W. R. 1103.

Transfer of husband's property be-fore marriage — Intent to defeat claim of wife—Husband continuing in possession till death - Testamentary character of deed Registration—Evidence—Conversations with deceased — Fraud on wife.]—A., shortly be-fore his marriage to the plaintiff, transferred fore mis marriage to the plaintiff, transferred nearly all his property to the defendant for the purpose of preventing the plaintiff from having any portion of his estate in the event of his death. The defendant took the title to the property with knowledge of A.'s purpose. A. died about two months after his marriage. A, notwithstanding the transfer, continued in possession of the real estate and personalty until his death:--Held, that the wife was not entitled to relief against the transfers made by A. during the treaty of marriage,-Held, further, that there being nothing on the face of either of the transfers, and no clear proof otherwise, to indicate that its operation was to be suspended until the maker's death, the documents could not be regarded as testamentary .- The fact of registration is almost conclusive against the testamentary character of an instrument .-- Conversations with A. in respect to the transfers were admissible, not to cut down the transfers, but to shew the state of the deceased's mind thereto and the design of himself and the defendant in the transaction. American and English authori-ties reviewed. Archibald v. Archibald, 40 N. S. R. 406.

Universal community — Don mutuel-Registration,]—A maringe contract contined a clause whereby the contracting parties made to each other a mutual gift of all the property which might belong to the one who should die first, "en jouir en usifruit as vie durant à so caution juratoire et gardant riduité." The only property affected belonged to the community:—Heid, that the donation was within Art. 1411, C. C., and did not require registration, as the clause was divisible, and the stipulation as to universal community merely a marriage covenant, and not subject to the rules and formalities applicable to gifts. Judgments in 21 Que. S. C. 341 and 12 K. B. 44, affirmed. Huot v. Bienzeau, 33 S. C. R. 370.

Adultery of wife — Mourning.) — The mourning equipment of the wife is part of her portion as survivor, and a wife who has been adjudged guilty of adultery cannot recover the value of such mourning (deail) from the heirs of her bushand. Bradley v. Ménard, 18 Que. 8, C. 382.

Alicantion of husband's affections— Action for — Summary dismissal.] — The plaintiff sued another woman for alicanting her husband's affections, committing adultery with him, and inducing him to leave the plaintiff and go to a foreign country, whereby she was deprived of his support and services and of the statutory right to proceed against him for non-support — Held, following Leflis v, Lambert, 24 A. R. 653, that the action would not lie; and a summary order was made under Rules 250-261 strikling out the statement of claim as disclosing to reasonable cause of action, and dismissing the action. Lawry v. Tuckett-Lawry, 2 O. L. R. 162.

Alienation of husband's affections— Adultery of husband—Damages—Married Women's Property Act.]-Neither at common law, nor under the Married Women's Property Act, will an action lie by a married woman against another woman to recover damages for alienation of her husband's affections, and for committing adultery with him. Lellis v. Lambert (1807), 24 A. R. 653, followed. Judgment of Divisional Court affirmed. Weston v. Perry (1909), 14 O. W. R. 956, 10 O. W. N. 155.

Alienation of wife's affections — Plea—Ildreatment of husband.]—A defendant sued for damages by the plaintiff for having alienated the affections of his wife, cannot plead that the plaintiff had already lost her affections by the ill-treatment to which he submitted her. Cormier v. Bousquet, 9 Que. P. R. 25.

Criminal conversation — Damages — Limitation of actions.] — The Statute of Limitations is not a bar to an action for criminal conversation where the adulterous intercourse between the defendant and the plaintiff's wife has continued to a period within six years from the time the action is brought:—Quare, Does the statute only begin to run when the adulterous intercourse ceases, or is the plaintiff only entitled to damages for intercourse within six years proceding the action? Judgment in 27 A. R. 705, 21 C. L. T. 19, affirmed. Bailey v. King, 21 C. L. T. 390, 31 S. C. R. 338.

Criminal conversation — Abandonment —Separation-Hearsay evidence-Damages.] —Appeal by the defendant and cross-appeal by the plaintiff from the judgment of a Divisionl Court reported 8 O. L. R. 308. The appeal was dismissed on the ground that the evidence did not shew such abandonment by the plaintiff of his wife as deprived bin of his right of action, and the cross-appeal on the ground of improper reception of evidence at the trial and excessive damages. Absence of independent advice — Guaranty by wife.] — The plaintiff, a married woman, sought to set nside certain instruments of guaranty, agreements and transfers of property with and to the defendant bank mainly on the ground, no fraud beling alleged, that she had no independent advice. The trial Judge dismissed the action, and the Court of Appeal being equally divided the appeal was dismissed. Stuart y, Montreal, 12 O. W. R. 358.

Abandonment of one claim — Proceedings with the other — Allegations required—Notice,1—In an action for separation from bed and board and as to property the plaintift may abandon her claim for separation from bed and board and proceed with that for separation of cools only, provided always that the allegations in the action and the conclusions to be drawn therefrom be stated in a manner to justify the latter claim, and that the notice required, in cases of separation of goods, to be given in the newspapers, has been given. Rielle v. Dubreuil, 7 One, P. R. 66.

Action by wife against husband — Promissory note — Endorment—Construct] —In 1882 the respondent made a promissory note for $10,000 in favour of J. L., payable on demand. This note was endorsed by the payee to her sister, the maker's wife. In 1880 an action was brought on the note by the endorsee against her husband, the maker, which, at the trial was dismissed on the ground that the Married Women's Property Act did not authorise such an action: 19 C. L. T. 326. On appeal to the Court enbanc the Judgres were equally divided in opinion, and the judgment at the trial stood affirmed: 20 C. L. T. 130, 32 N. S. R. I. By R. S. N. S. 5th ser., c. 94, a married woman in Nova Scotia holds her separate personal property, not reduced into possession by her husband, as if she were a leme note, and the Act of 1898, c. 22, gives her the same civil remedies against every person, including her husband, as an unmarried woman has:— Held, reversing the judgment, that the note sued on was personal property of the wife not reduced into possession, and the action could be maintained under the above Acts by the wife against her husband. Michaels v. Michaels, 20 C. L. T. 450, 30 S. C. R. 547.

Action relating to separate estate — Parties — Next friend,]—Husband and wife should not be joined as co-plaintifs in a suit relating to the wife's separate property. The suit should be in the name of the wife's next friend, or, since the Married Women's Property Act, 58 V. c. 24 (N.B.), it may be in the wife's name. Cronkhite v. Miller, 2 N. B. R. 51.

Administration by wife—Agent's commission.]—Although a wife, scparec de biens, can by herself do all acts and make all contracts which concern the administration of her property, she cannot, without the authority of her husband, validly contract to give a commission to an agent who shall effect a sale of her immovable property, such a contract not being an act of administration. Bourdon v. Bourdeau, 18 Que. 8. C. 136. Administration of wife's property by husband — Warrant of administration — Alicenation by husband—Replecin by wife.] —A wife, separate as to property, may replevy her goods without the authorisation of her husband.—2. A warrant of administration given by a wife, separate as to property, to her husband, does not give him the right to alicenate the goods.—3. The husband, although he may be, in certain cases, the administrator of the property of his wife, separate as to property, has no right to alienate them without an express warrant. Beaulae v, Lapien, 23 Que 8. C. 88.

Animals seized under execution against husband — Claim by wife — Acts of ownership by husband — Animals kept on farm of husband — Interpleader — Evidence — Estoppel.] — The plaintiff, the wife of the execution debtor, claimed horses and ca tle selzed by the sheriff on the debtor's farm under the defendants' execution. Upon the trial of an interpleader issue it appeared that the plaintiff had money of her own before her marriage, and that with that money she, after her marriage, bought cattle; part of the increase of these cattle she exchanged for other cattle and for horses, and in that way acquired the animals seized. The evidence shewed certain isolated instances of dealings by the husband with some of the animals; amongst others, that he placed a chattel mortgage upon some of them with his wife's consent :--- Held, reversing the judgment of a County Court Judge, that the plaintiff was entitled to succeed in the issue. -Per Richards, J.A., that the plaintiff's con-sent to some of the animals being chattelmortgaged was no estoppel as against any one but the mortgagee .-- Per Cameron, J.A. that the acts of interference by the husband were to some extent inconsistent with the wife's ownership, but were not sufficient to divest that ownership. Haffner v. McDermoti, an unreported decision of the King's Bench, approved. Simpson v. Dominion Bank (1910), 13 W. L. R. 1.

Business of husband — Transfer of assets to wife — Conduct of business — Investment of wife's money.] — A. carried on a dray and trucking business, and becoming financially emburrassed, gave a bill of sale of his horses and trucks to S. for $750, payable in one year. A few months after the giving of the bill of sale, S., with A.'s consent, sold the property at auction and bought it in. After the sale the whole of the property remained on A.'s premises and in his or bis wife's possession for some years. Subsequently the wife of A. filed the usual certificate and consent, but the business continued as before, except that S. sold the property covered by the bill of sale to the wife of A. for $750, and she paid him $250 of her own money on account, and gradually paid him other sums out of the earnings of the business. The business was conducted in the wife's name, the husband, however, superintending it, and some of his debts were paid out of its earnings:—Held, that the facts in evidence deprived the business of its separate character, and that even the investment of the wife's money did not enable her to claim the business as her separate property. Chattels — Domicil — Married Women's Property Ordinance, N. W. T.—Construction —Constitutional law — N. W. T. Act.] — Whether a husband and his wife are living together or apart, her domicil in legal contemplation follows his. Where, therefore, a man domiciled in the Territories, married in Ontario a woman domiciled there, and thereafter they resided in the Territories, it was held, that as to furniture belonging to the wife, brought by her to the Territories, the question whether it passed to the husband jure mariti or was the wife's separate property, depended upon the law of the Territories .- Ordinance No. 16 of 1889, enacted "A married woman shall in respect of her personal property, have all the rights and be subject to all the liabilities of a feme sole. and may alienate and by will or otherwise deal with personal property as if she were unmarried :"-Held, that this Ordinance referred only to such property of a married Woman as was covered by the provisions of the N. W. T. Act, R. S. C. 1886, c. 50, ss. 36-40. Conger v. Kennedy, 2 Terr. L. R. 186, reversed 28 S. C. R. 397.

Contract — Pleading — Proof of scparale estate.]—In an action against a married woman on a contract, it is not necessary under the Married Women's Property Act of 1885 (N.B.), to allege on the record, or prove on the trial as a fact, that either at the time the contract was made, or at the time the action was commenced, she had or was possessed of separate property. Johason v, Jack, Johnson v. Bank of Nova Scotia, 34 N. B. R. 402.

Conveyance - Security - Device to defraud creditors-Knowledge of grantee-Evidence.]-Where a conveyance by a married woman of alleged separate property is attacked as a device to defraud creditors, the attacking party is not entitled to succeed, where there has been valuable consideration for the security given, by shewing that ultimately the business was judicially declared to be a device to defraud creditors, and also that the party obtaining the security was a relative and had some knowledge of the business in question, and knew that the husband was employed in it. In order to set aside such conveyance, it must be clearly shewn that the grantee had knowledge of the "device" at the time the security was given. Hartlen v. Adams, 40 N. S. R. 96.

Adams, 35 S. C. R. 393, distinguished.—And, in the circumstances of this case, where the defendants, husband and wife, became sureties for the debt of a third person, and it was found by the trial Judge that the wife became co-surety with full knowledge of the nature of the obligation which she undertook and without anything in due influence, she was held liable to the cre-ditors, the plaintiffs, no circumstances being proved which would relieve the principal debtor from liability. - There was evidence that threats were used to induce the wife to guarantee the debt, but the trial Judge found, upon consideration of the conduct and demeanour of the witnesses, that no such threats were made :--Held, that the Court threads were made — Head, that the Court could not, upon conflicting evidence, reverse this finding.—Judgment of Riddell, J., af-firmed. Deed of married woman — Absence of formal authorisation of hurband—Art, 177, C. C.—" Concours du mari"—Absolute nullity—Vendee invokino.] — The "concurrences of the husband" in the deel required by Art, 177, C. C., to render valid the allenation of her property by a married woman, must be understood in the common and ordinary sense of the words. Therefore, a deed of sale of land executed by a married woman alone, although her husband, who is in the next room with only a thin partition between the rooms, has heard all that passed, is void. The deed being absolutely void and not merely voidable, all those who have an actual interest may take advantage of the nullity, among others, those to whom the sale was made. Fournier y, Grégoir, 30 Que. S. C. 527.

Deed to wife—Non-authorisation of husband — Petitory action — Prescription,] — Quere: Is a deed of sale of lands in Quebec to a married woman, without the authorisation of her husband, sufficient to support a petitory action? Would such a deed be null for defect of form and insufficient, under Art. 2254, C. C., to serve as the ground for a prescription by ten years' possession? Chaliyour v. Parent, 21 C. L. T. 322, 31 S. (Ohio) has not been proved, the Court in this province is justified in assuming, in the absence of special circumstances, that the common law prevails in that foreign State. Prima facie, goods in the actual possession of the wife of an execution debtor are the goods of the latter; a wife, in order to prove that the goods are her separate property, must shew facts that will displace the presumption involved in this rule. Execution against goods of husband -Seizure of crop grown on farm of wife-Claim by wife-Farming operations carried on by her-Interpleader issue.]-Where a crop is grown on land owned by a married woman, and both herself and her husband reside upon that land, the crop, being the product of her land, prima facie belongs to her, and it can only be held to be the husband's when it is shewn that he carried on the farming operations as head of the family or as tenant of the land.—And held, on the evidence in this case, that the farm was that of the wife, and the farm operations were conducted by her; that her husband had no part in the conduct of the business or the management of the farm; and that the crop, therefore, belonged to the wife, and was not eligible under the executions of creditors of the husband. Moose Mountain Lumber & Hardware Co. v. Hunter (1910), 13 W. L. R. 561, 3 Sask. L. R. 89.

Joint purchase of land by wife and another person — Poasesion — Principal and agent-Account — Agency of husband— Partnerskin,] — Where a person purchases immovable property jointly with a married woman, and leaves her in possession of it, the relation of principal and agent is not thereby established between them. So, if the husband of the joint purchaser assumes the administration of the property, he is solely responsible as agent, and no action to account as such lies against the wife:—Quare, would an action pro socio lie against her? Marson y, Martin, 28 Que, 8, C. 539.

Joint surveties for debt of third parties— Liability of wife — Lack of independent advice.] — The defendant's husband and wife were guarantors for L. of the price of a machine purchased by L. from plaintifs:—Held, that Cos v. Adams and Stuart v. Bank of Montreal do not apply here, the wife being not a guarantor for her husband, but for a third party. The husband had no proprietary interest in the machine. Judgment against married woman-Payable out of separatic estate-Proceeds of insurance policy on life of husband-Trust in favour of wife.]-The defendant judgment debtor was named as sole beneficiary in the contract of insurance upon the life of her husband, and s. 159 of the Insurance Act. R. S. O. 1897 c. 103, in such cases enacts that 'such contract shall (subject to the right of the assured to apportion or alter as hereinafter enacted) create a trust in favour of the said beneficiary or beneficiaries, according to the intent so expressed or declared; and, so long as any object of the trust remains, the money payable under the contract shall not be subject to the control of the assured," etc. : -Held, the effect of this section was to creste a statutory trust of the money payable under the policy in favour of the wife without restraint upon anticipation, but subject to be defeated upon the happening of either of two contingencies, the wife predeceasing her husband, or the revocation of her appointment as beneficiary and appointment of a child or children in her place as beneficiary under s. 160 of the Insurance Act. Neither of these contingencies happened, and upon the death of the husband, the absolute right to the money became vested in the wife. Her original interest in the trust was separate property within the contemplation of the Married Women's Property Act, and it necessarily follows that the fruits of the trust must also be regarded as separate property, and as such liable to satisfy the judgment obtained by plaintiffs. Mortgage by wife to secure loan to husband — Nullity—Consequent nullity of Security — Principal and surety—Status of surety to invoke nullity.]-A hypothec given by a married woman upon personal property to secure the payment of a loan made to her husband, in order to enable the latter to make a composition with his creditors. among whom is the lender, is null and void, being in contravention of Art. 1301, C. C.-2 Such nullity being absolute and d'ordre public, involves the nullity of everything which is attached to it; and in this case, the security given to guarantee the obligation of the wife is a subsidiary obligation, depending upon the existence of the principal obligation, and consequently the nullity of the principal obligation necessarily involves the nullity of the security .-- 3. An obligation prohibited by law is not a natural obligation, and it cannot be the subject of security .--- 4. Such nullity, being d'ordre public, is inherent in the debt; it is an infirmity in the debt which the surety may invoke as well as the wife herself. Sutherland v. Bérard, 13 Que. K. B. 128.

N. S. Married Women's Property Act —Separate business—Debt due by husband-Board of herse. Defendant did not know that plaintiff, a married woman, carried on business, but supposed it was conducted by her husband, who was indebted to him on an accommodation endorsement of the firm of which her husband was a partner. That firm failed and defendant made no chim on the estate because he had agreed with the husband that his horse should be boarded at the stable: — Held, that plaintiff cannot recover without the note being set-off. The filing of the husband's consent to his wife's doing business did not help plaintiff in this case. Hirtle v. King, 6 E. L. R. 573.

Nullity of obligation of a married woman, separated as to property, for her husband's dobts — A first illegal promissory note — Illegality of a reneval note signed by the husband pretending to act as his wije's attorney, I-C. C. 1301. A husband, attorney for his wife separate as to property, exceeds the powers of his mandate when he signs, in the name of his wife, a renewal of a promissory note, when the original note had been also signed without the knowledge of the wife for a debt of the husband. Deserres y. Foutier, 16 R. do J. 230.

Obligations undertaken for husband -Promissory notes - Burden of proof-Presumption.]-Although the obligation of the wife who is separate as to property, when she binds herself with her husband, is not null if the obligation be for her own business and profit, the burden of proof is on the creditor to establish that it was for her business and profit, and in the absence of such proof the presumption is that she bound herself for her husband. 2. The wife separate as to property will not be condemned on promissory notes signed by her, which were either renewals of notes made and signed by her husband alone, or which were given for goods furnished on the husband's order, and charged to him in the books of the creditor. Mc-Clatchie v. Gilbert, 24 Que. S. C. 387.

S. M. 1892, c. 95, which provided that a man might make a valid conveyance or transfer of land to his wife without the intervention of a trustee, a husband may make a gift of proporty to his wife, which property, if the gift be completed, will in equity be considered as her separate property, provided that the husband is at the time in a position financially to make the gift, and does not do it with any intention of defrauding his creditors. Kent v. Kent, 19 A. R. 352 .- 2. The profits made in the fur business started with such proceeds and carried on from the first in the wife's name, though managed chiefly by the husband (all the goods required for the business having been sold to her and on her credit only, as the husband had unsatisfied judgments against him), belonged to the wife. and so did all goods purchased out of such profits and put into such business .-- Dominion Loan, etc., Co. v. It is also without effect as regards the claims of encumbrancers upor the immovable, duly registered, notwithstanding the acceptance of it for the minors by a guardian authorised by the Judge on the advice of a family council. Martin v. Hébert and Tourneur, 35 Que. S. C. 148.

Rents and profits — Sale of land — Necessity for concurrence of husband.] — A married woman married before the commencement of the Married Women's Property Act, 58 V. c. 24, is entitled under s. 4 (1) to the rents and profits of her real estate during her life, but may not, without the concurrence of her husband, dispose of her real estate so as to deprive the husband of his tenancy by the curtesy. Debury V. Debury, 21 C. L. 7, 510, 2 N. Eq. R. 278.

Sale of — Payment of husband's debt — Nullity — Reimbursement of purchaser.] — A married woman, separate as to property, may sell one of her immovables to pay the debt of her husband—in this case to secure the liberation of her husband then under arrest at the suit of one of his creditors—and such sale does not fall under the prohibition of Art, 1301, C. C. —2. In any event, even if the wife could assert the nullity of the sale, she could succeed in the action only upon offering to reimburse the purchaser the amount which he has paid her, over and above the price of sale, to extinguish her personal debt. De Kerouack v. Gauthier, 20 Que, S. C. 320.

Security for husband's debt — Undue influence of husband — Wile relieving husband's francial distress — Duty of solicitor acting for wile—Wile's right to relief in equity.)—Plaintiff, a confirmed invalid, acting in passive obedience to her husband's directions, having no means of forming independent judgment, surrendered to defendant bank all her extensive estate real and personal, for the purpose of relieving her husband's financial distress. The solicitor who acted in all or most of the transactions. was solicitor for the defendant bank and also for the hasband. Plaintiff brought action, against defendant bank, to set aside the above transactions .- Privy Council held. that in transactions between husband and wife the barden of proving undue influence lies upon those who allege it. — Nedby v. Nedby, 21 L. J. Ch. 446, 5 De G. & Sm. 577, approved.—That in transactions between husband and wife the husband's solicitor owes a duty to the wife, where her interests are concerned, to advise her and place her position and the consequences of what she is doing fully and plainly before her. If she rejects his intervention, he ought to insist upon the wife being separately advised .--Held, further, that the above transactions could not stand, the wife being in fact wholly under the husband's influence and the soli-citor in a position in which he could not advise her fairly.—Cox v. Adams (1904), 35 S. C. R. 393, disapproved, in so far as it held that no transaction between husband and wife could be upheld unless it was shewn that the wife had had independent advice .-Judgment of Supreme Court of Canada, 41 Judgment of Supreme Court of Canada, 41 8. C. R. 516. affirmed, judgment of Court of Appeal for Ontario, 17 O. L. R. 436, 12 O. W. R. 958, and of Mabee, J., at trial, 10 O. W. R. 10, 32, set aside. Bank of Mont-real v. Stuart, C. Separate business - Consent of husband-Certificate-Place of doing business.] --Under the provisions of R. S. N. S., 5th ser., c. 94, s. 53, when a married woman does, or proposes to do, business on her separate account, in addition to filing her husband's consent thereto, she is to record a certificate in writing setting forth her name and that of her husband, the nature of the business, and the place where it is, or is proposed to be carried on, and giving, "if practicable," the street and the number on the street; and where the nature of the business, or the place where it is carried on, is changed, a new certificate shall be filed accordingly. The plaintiff, who carried on business as a grocer in a city, under a license from her husband. enabling her to carry on such business, filed a certificate giving the particulars required by the Act, except as to the street and the number on the street, as to which it was set out that it was not practicable to do so, as the premises had not yet been selected. Goods claimed by the plaintiff as her separate property having been levied upon by the defendant, as sheriff of the county, under a writ of execution for the husband's debt: Held, that it was incumbent upon the plaintiff to select the premises before filing her certificate, the provision being intended to apply not only to towns having streets named and numbered, but to towns which had not streets so named and numbered :--Held, also, that the words "the place" meant the place in the city, town, or municipality where it was proposed to do the business, and that where the place was changed a new certificate must be recorded. Pearce v. Archibald. 34 N. S. R. 543.

in connection with the property of a married woman, no conveyance or contract can prevail to deprive her of such property, but the restraint does not extend beyond such transmitting that property in her lifetime. It does not, therefore, apply to the provisions of her will. Borden v. James, 40 N. S. R. 43.

Separation of property — Judgment— Intervention of creditor.]—A creditor may intervene in an action for separation of matrimonial property, even after the pronouncing of judgment granting the separation. Gauthier v. Gendron, 9 Que, P. R. 252.

Settlement — Creditor of hasband.] — The calimant was married in England. By her marriage settlement, there were settled upon her, to her separate use, certain moneys over which she was given a power of appointing a part to her own separate use. This was paid or sent to her in the Territories. With it she bought farm stock, which was used on her farm; but it was found as a fact that it was the husband who carried on the farming operations. In the absence of evidence that the husband constituted himself a trustee for the wife:—Heid, that the farm stock had become the husband's properiy, notwithstanding the settlement or the provisions of the N. W. T. Act. Brittlebank v. Gray-Jones, 1 T. L. 17, 70.

Sheriff's sale — Purchase by husband— Folle enchire.]—A husband, séparé en biens, may validly purchase at a sheriff's sale an immovable belonging to his wife; and, if he fails to pay the price, the usual proceedings for resale may be taken against him. Buchanan v. O'Brien, 18 Que. S. C. 343.

Wife cannot bring action without the consent of the Powhand — Asking the consent of the Cowrt, C, P. 78; C, C, 176, 178, 183; I—A wife holds her property in common (with her husband); she being neither a trader nor a shop keeper, cannot bring an action without the consent and support of her husband; the Court grants her this permission only in case of the refusal or incapacity of her husband. O'Rourke v. Robertson (1960), 10 Que. P. R. 342.

Wife common as to property and judicially authorised to recover damages on account of false arrest; right of the husband as chief of community of property.]-Wife common as to property, even judicially authorised, has no right of action to recover damages suffered by her on account of having been falsely arrested; such a claim, if it exists, being a movable debt, belongs to the community, and can be recovered by husband only as chief of said community. Brazeau v. Lewist (1910), 16 Que. R. de J. 307.

10. TRANSACTIONS BETWEEN HUSBAND AND WIFE.

Abandonment of wife -- Repletin of household goods.]--In a satisferevendication the plaintiff will not be put in possession of the goods seized when it appears that they c.c.L-064 are in the possession of the intervenant, his wife, whom he has abandoned, and that the place where the effects are is the domicil of the husband and wife, where the intervenant lives with her children. Beauchamp v. Beauchamp, 5 Que, P. R. 307.

Action by husband against wife.]— In an action by a husband against his wife for a declaration that certain real and personal property claimed by both parties, belonged to bin, and for an injunction to restrain his wife from disposing of the same : -Held, that a husband can sue his wife in respect of both real and personal property as if she were a frem sole. Semble, the law in the Territories is practically the same as that in England as to suits between husband and wife, except that in the Territories one may sue the other in respect of torts, while in England this is not so. England v. England, 5 Terr, L. B. 204.

Action by husband against wife's excentor-Moneys of husband deposited in bank in name of wife-Claim for recovery-Corroboration — Set-off — Funeral and other expenses—Costs, Leggatt v. Quigley, 11 O. W. R. 735.

Action by wife against husband for necessaries supplied to children. Park v. Park (B.C.), 3 W. L. R. 281.

Agreement between husband and wife-Changes made in clauses of their marriage contract. — An agreement between hushand and wife, which changes certain clauses in their marriage contract, even if made in the course of a settlement to put an end to an action for separation as to bed and board, is null. Odell & Gregory (1910), 19 Que. K. B. 384.

Ante-nuptial marriage contract — Public policy.]—Before plaintiff, who was a widow, married defendant, an ante-nuptial contract was made between the parties which, among other things, provided that if they ceased to cohabit, the trust property should be sold, the proceeds to be divided equally between them. Plaintiff having left her husband brought this action to enforce said contract. Action dismissed, the contract being arainst public policy. Nelson v. Nelson (1909), 12 W. L. R. 150.

Business carried on by husband in firm name.]—B. Brothers made an assignment for the benefit of their creditors. With the exempt goods a new business was started under the name of B. Brothers and Co. The wife of one member of the old firm now claimed that it was her business, and that her husband managed it for her. The new name was never registered. She put no money in the business not took any part in it. In an interplender issue it was held that execution creditors of her husband were entitled to hold these goods under their excention. Burton v. Merchants Bank (1909), 12 W. L. R. 239, 3 Sask. L. R. 111.

Business carried on by husband in his own name alleged to be property of wife — Seizure of plant and stock of business under execution against husband.— Claim by wife — Interpleader issue — Evidence—Married woman's separate estate — Statutes. Devison v, Schwartz (Y.T.), 7 W. L. R. 328, 8 W. L. R. 359.

Business of wife — Services of husband —Implied contract to remunerate—Creditor of husband—Attachment of supposed salary.] —There is nothing to prevent a husband from giving his time and his services gratuitously for the benefit of a business carried on by his wife. From his so doing the relation of creditor and debtor does not arise, and the creditors of the husband have no right to attach money in the hands of the wife as due to the husband for his services. Frank v, Lafrance and Riopelle, 32 Que. 8. C. 438.

Business of wife carried on in name of husband — Judgment against husband — Seixure of business assets — Estoppel.]—A married woman who, without registration, for yea.x carries on business under the name of her husband, whom she allows to hire employees and to deal with them and the public as if he were the owner of her establishment, who allows a suit to be brought and judgment to be recovered against him by an employee for damages caused by an injury for which she is liable, is estopped from opposing the seizure, under such judgment, of the movables in the establishment in question. Cuil'erier v. Roy. 30 Que. S. C. 321.

Contract of wife with husband — Nullity — Ordicor — Notice.]—A contract whereby a wife separate as to property binds berself with her husband, is, as regards her, a nullity, and the party who knowingly acquir:s such an obligation cannot claim to be a creditor in good faith. Dagneau v. Decarie, 8 Que. P. R. 141.

Conveyance before marriage - Fraud on marital rights-Testamentary dispositions -Wills Act.]- The plaintiff was engaged to be married to J. C. A. in November, 1900. The marriage took place on the 4th Decemher, 1901. The husband died on the 26th January, 1902. In August, 1901, the deceased secretly executed a conveyance of all his real estate to the defendant, and this conveyance was not recorded until a few days before the marriage. Late in November, 1901, the deceased also assigned his securities to the defendant. The plaintiff had no knowledge of these conveyances at the time of the marriage, and only learned definitely about them after her husband's death. She thereupon brought an action to have the instruments set aside, (1) as having been made in fraud of her marital rights, and (2) as not having complied with the provisions of the Wills Act. The trial Judge found that the transfers were made with the distinct object of preventing the plaintiff from enjoying any portion of her husband's estate after his death, and that the deceased wilfully concealed from his intended wife before and after their marriage the fact that he had stripped himself of his property. The Judge decided, however, that the instruments were not testamentary, and that the plaintiff was not entitled to the relief claimed: — Held, that conversations with the deceased were admissible, not to derogate from the transfers, but to shew the design of the deceased. Under English law the wife is not entitled to relief against convegances made in fraud of her marital rights, though the rule is different in the United States. There was nothing to indicate that the operation of the instruments was to be suspended until the grantor's death. Archibald v. Archibald, 23 C. L. T. 121.

Conveyance of equity in real estate by husband to wife — Implied trust — Subsequent assignment by husband for benefit of creditors—Sale by mortgagee—Wife entitled to surplus as against assignee. Smith V. Wambolt, 2. E. L. R. 271.

Creditor of husband taking security from wife — Independent advice — Onus. Vanluven v. Scott, 3 O. W. R. 11.

Crops grown on wife's land - Seizure under execution against husband-Farming operations carried on by wife - Status of married ucoman-Married Woman's Property Act.]-The sheriff seized a quantity of wheat grown on land the property of the claimant, a married woman, under executions against her husband. The latter was a farmer and owned a quarter section adjoining that of the claimant. It appeared in evidence that the claimant carried on the farming operations on her own land, hiring the necessary help, and that she purchased the seed grain personally. She consulted her husband in regard to the working of the farm, and he assisted in working the place; but it was shewn that the men hired by her did more work for the husband on his farm than was done by him on the claimant's farm. On trial of an interpleader issue to determine the ownership of the grain :--Held, that as, under the Married Woman's Property Act (c. 19 of 1907), the claimant was entitled to hold and deal with real and personal property as if she were a feme sole, and as it was not shewn that the husband was carrying on farming operations on her land as head of the household or lessee, she was entitled to the crop grown on her land. Lind-say v. Morrow, 1 Sask. L. R. 516, 9 W. L. R. 619.

Custody of children — Renunciation by father—Illegality of contract—Ibublic policy.] —An agreement between a husband and wile whereby the former contracts himself out of his right to the custody of the children of the marriage, is against the policy of the law, and will not be enforced. Barreft v. Barrett, 4 W. L. R. 7, 6 Terr. L. R. 274.

Debt — Interest—Prescription.] — Notwith 'anding Art. 2233, C. C., the prescription of five years (Arts. 2250, 2267, C. C.), applies to the interest upon a debt between hushand and wife. Picard v. L'Hopital Général de Québec, 26 Que. S. C. 159.

Dower — Dispensing with release—Husband and wife living apart—Alimony—Release.]—A husband whose wife has been living apart from him for two years, and who for valuable consideration has released and dia...darged him from all claims for alimony present and future, is not entitled, under s. 12 of R. S. O. 1897, c. 164, to an order dispensing with the concurrence of his wife to bar dower in a conveyance, for, although barred by contract from claiming, she canot be said to be living apart "under such 201:

Dower — Judgment recovered before marriage.] — This was an action to recover dower. J. D. C. was selzed in fee of the land. In 1832, M. B. recovered a judgment against bim. In 1846, he married plaintiff. In 1850, the land was sold under the judgment and bought by S., who conveyed to defondant. J. D. C. afterwards died and plaintiff, as his widow, brought this action for dower, contending that the judgment did not create such a lien on the lands as to prevent her right of dower attaching: —Held, Peters and Hensley, JJ., that the judgment created a lien, even by the Common Law of P. E. Island, and that the dower did not attach. Cantob v. Beales (1880), 2 P. E. I. R. 202.

Execution against husband-Business registered a notice that she was carrying on business as a decorative artist (which was the defendant's business) under the firm name of F. E. M. & Co., and in this capacity she maintained an opposition to a seizure of goods at the place where the business was carried on. It was proved that at the time of the registration the opposant had no money and that she had since acquired none by her own work, and that the goods seized had been bought with the moneys earned by the work of the defendant, who carried on the business under a power of attorney from his wife :--Held, that the alleged firm was simply a prete-nom for the defendant, who was the true owner of the goods seized, and that the opposition should be dismissed. Décary v. Meloche, 21 Que. S. C. 486.

Execution against husband - Opposition by wife - Usufruct - Marriage con-tract - Subsequently acquired goods-Evidence.]-A wife, being the usufructuary of the furniture of a house, has a right to make an opposition to the sale of the furniture where it is demanded by the creditors of the husband .--- 2. This usufruct ceases, however with the disappearance of the goods, and does not extend to furniture bought in renewal of that which was subject to the usufruct and has been worn out by use .--- 3. An opposition to the sale of a piano, which the opposant alleges was given to her, will be dismissed if the evidence shews that the piano was bought by the husband of the opposant who gave her in payment therefor an old piano, and that the opposant lent to her husband the money necessary to pay the differalleges that she has bought goods of which she claims the possession, to prove that the money which went to pay for such goods was her own ; if she has mixed money which came to her from her relatives with that coming from her husband, she cannot maintain that the goods are not the property of her hus-band. Walker v. Massey, 5 Que. P. R. 369.

Glift by contract of marriage — Furniture—Husband and wife—C. C. 755, 756, 777, 1257.]—I. A gift made by a husband to his future wife in a contract of marriage in the following terms: "The sum of $2,500 which he promises and obliges himself to pay to the future wife within ten years from this date by providing furniture and other movables to that extent for the use and ornamentation of their common domicil : it being expressly agreed that the future husband will be liberated from this obligation to the extent of the value of such furniture and other household effects as he may require and place in the common domicil of the parties. All and every the articles of household furniture and other movable effects which may be acquired by the future husband for use in or for the ornamentation of the common domicil of the parties in addition to and over and above the said sum of two thousand five hun-dred dollars. The sum of five thousand dollars, unto the future wife, as her absolute property, subject to this condition, that should she predecease the future husband the said gifts shall return to the future husband and be his absolute property, without the heirs of the future wife having any rights therein or claim thereto," does not create in therein of chain thereto, uses not create and favour of the wife, as to the furniture and movables acquired by the busband, anything else than a gift of future property in contemplation of death .--- 2. The furniture and movable effects in question remain the property of the husband until his death. Von Eberts v. Allan (1910), 16 R. L., n.s. (Que.) 308.

Gift from husband - Change of posses-Execution creditor — Seizure in con-omicil 1—Interpleader issue. The desion jugal domicil.]-Interpleader issue. fendant purchased certain pictures, and, bringing them home, handed them to his wife, telling her he gave them to her. She had one framed in a frame given her by her mother; and all three were hung up in the house occupied by her and her husband. Some six or seven years afterwards an execu-ecution creditor of the defendant caused the sheriff to levy on these pictures :--Held, that since the Married Woman's Property Act, 1884, R. S. O. 1897, c. 163, s. 3, a married woman is under no disability as to receiving and holding personal as well as real property by direct gift or transfer from her husband ; and in this case the subsequent possession of the pictures was the wife's although the house Item, also, that the effect of s.s. 4 of s. 5 of R. S. 0. 1897, c. 163, whereby it is en-acted that a married woman married since 4th March, 1889, may hold her property free from the debts or control of her husband, " but this sub-section shall not extend to any property received by a married woman from her husband during coverture," is not to make property received by the wife from the husband during marriage liable to the hus-band's debts. This sub-section must be read in connection with s. 3, s.-s. 1, and a wife is placed precisely in the position of a feme sole with regard to property transferred to her by her husband during coverture; and therefore she can hold the property against his creditors unless the transfer is made for the purpose of defeating them; and there was no evidence of uctuality durin, and there was no evidence of such purpose here. Shut-tleworth v. McGillivray, 23 C. L. T. 153, 5 O, L. R. 536, 2 O, W. R. 250.

Gratuitous services by insolvent husband — Rights of creditors—Attachment of debts.]—An insolvent husband may lawfully give his services gratuitously to his wife, separate as to property, for the carrying on of her business, and his creditors have no right to claim from her, by garnishment, the value of such services. Ct. Frank v. Lafranc and Riopelle, Q. R. 32 S. C. 438. Excelsior Lafe Insurance Co. v. Désy and Coutu, 35 Que. S. C. 232.

Husband's anthority — Consorts' residence—Domicil of fact established by usife alone—Husband's right to be admitted and to live therein—Husband's remedy when usife refuxes to allow him to live with her.]—The consort's residence is subject to the provisions of the law wontained in Arts. 173, 174 and 175 C. C., from which the husband's authority springs. Prargaph 1 of Art. 83 C. C. which prescribes one domicil of ract and to the legal domicil. Hence, the wife separate as to property who, in her bursband's absence, opens and conducts a boarding-house, where she has her domicil of fact, thereby establishes a domicil for her husband's absence, opens and conducts a boarding-house, where she has her domicil of her refusal, to enter and live there with force.—In addition, the husband, in case the wife refuses to submit has a remedy by action to have it declared that his wife has lost and forfeited all her rights to gifts c1 movable and inmovable property provided for in the marriage contract and have her condemned to pay him the value thereof. Robinson V. Gore (1909), 38 Que. 8, C. 97.

Judgment against husband-Property wife - Fraudulent standing in name of scheme-Fraud on creditors-Liquor license Accenter - Arabian to creations - Laquir themas - Aaset - Action to set aside fraudulent con-vegance - Parties - Judgment debtor -- Trus-tee -- Cestuis que trust -- Gift -- Evidence - Farnings in business -- False representations -Action brought against wrong person-De-- Admissibility. - Where a conveyance is attacked as fraudulent under 13 Eliz. c. 5, it must be shewn that debt of the grantor was in existence at the time of the conveyance, or that a scheme had then been entered into to defraud possible subsequent creditors. A license, under the Liquor License Ordinance. is not an asset available to creditors, and the fact that it stood in the name of the husband ract that it stood in the name of the husband (the grantor), while the property and busi-ness was in the name of the wife, is not a badge of frand.—To constitute a fraudulent scheme on creditors, the debts anticipated must be such as would probably arise out of the conduct of the business.—Semble, (a) that in an action to set aside a fraudulent conveyance the grantor is a necessary party; (b) that in an action to declare a party a trustee for another person the cestui que trust is a necessary party :--Held, that, in the absence of fraud, a husband can make a valid gift or gifts to his wife, from time to time, of the earnings and profits of a business afterwards claimed by the wife as her separ-ate estate, although the husband may have been allowed to interfere in the management of the business .- Held, that an action is not maintainable based on alleged false representations whereby a person is induced to suc the wrong defendant, and, for the time being, to forego his remedy against the party really liable. There is liable. There is no precedent for such an action.—Held, that an examination of a judgment debtor under Rule 380 cannot be given in evidence against a third party (even an alleged transferee from the judgment debtor), who was not present, and had no opportunity of cross-examining, notwithstanding s.-s. (3). Clinton v. Sellars, 7 W. L. R. 615, 1 Alta, L. R. 135.

Loan inter se — Bona fides—Prohibition of Art. 1265, C. C.—Husband acting as agent of wife-Rights and remedies.]-The prohi-bition of Art. 1265 C. C., against a husband or wife during the marriage advantaging the other by an act inter vivos forbids every transaction whereby one advantages or enriches the other to his or her own detriment, to the decrease of his or her estate, but it does not hinder one from borrowing money from the other in good faith, and a loan so made imports a valid contract to repay the sum borrowed.—2. The /act that one of them has lent money to the other, in the absence of evidence indicating fraud, cannot taint the transaction with fraud as having been made contravention of the prohibition of Art. 1265 -3. The law does not forbid the husband to act gratuitously as the agent of his wife, separate as to property, in the purchase and sale by her of immovables or in the man-agement of her immovables, and purchases so made, when they are true and actual, and do not withdraw anything from the property of the husband to his "etriment or that of his creditors, do not come under the prohibition of Art. 1265 .- 4. If the husband or wife has illegally benefited the other during the marriage, what has been so given may be recovered; if it is an immovable that has been given, it may be retaken; but when it is money, the husband or wife and his or her eirs and assigns have against the other, or his or her heirs only an action for restitu-tion of the sum given. Dery v. Paradis, 21 C. L. T. 47, 10 Que. K. B. 227.

Loan or gift—Statute of Limitations — Executors and administrators—Right of retainer—Devolution of Eatotes Act.]—In 1876 Mary Starr advanced by way of loan or gift to her husband the purchase money of certain land, which was accordingly conveyed to him. On his death in 1883 be devised the land to Mary Starr and one of his sons in equal shares. In 1901 she obtained an order for partition or sale of so much of the land as had been theretofore sold and a sale of such residue of the land being made, she filed a claim upon the proceeds as a creditor for the amount originally advanced by her to purchase the land being mide, she filed, that, even assuming that such money

Limitations --Right of Act.]-In 1876 of loan or gift money of cergly conveyed to he devised the of his sons in tained an order ach of the land and a sale d eing made, she is as a creditor dvanced by her /e mentioned :--hat such money had been advanced by her by way of loan, her claim was barred by Statute of Limitations. There is no reason why the Statute of Limitations should not be applied to a claim by a wife against her busband to recover a loan from him, in the same way as if she was not his wife—Held, also, that, though she was executrix under the will of her husband, she had no longer any right of retainer in respect of her alleged debt, inasmuch as by her own acts, that is, first by registering no claim within the twelve months allowed for this purpose, and then treating the property as vested in the defendants, the heirs of her co-deviace, who had previously died, she put the assets out of her own possesion and control. Loan to wife — Benefit of husband — Hypothecation of wife's property—Void contract—Duty of lender to see to application.] —Where a loan is obtained by a married woman separated as to property from herhusband, with bypothecation of her real estate, it is sufficient to shew that the money, although handed to her in the form of a cheque payable to her order, was not used by her, but was given to her husband, in order to bring the contract within the prohibition of Art. 1301, C. C.—2. The law does not require that the person from whom a wife obtains a loan should know that it is for the benefit and use of her husband. It is for the lender to exercise proper caution, and to see to the due employment of the money for the purposes of the wife, as to the use to which the money is to be applied, the contract of loan is neverthless null. Trust and Loan Co. V. Kerouack, 12 Que K. B. 251.

Loan to wife — Benefit of husband — Security by sale of land with right of redemption—Foid contract—Knowledge of lender.] —A loan contracted by a wife separate as to property—the security for the loan being given in the form of a sale with right of redemption of her immovable property, instead of in the form of a hypothecation—is null and void as contrary to the prohibition contained in Art. 1301, C. C., where the proceeds of such loan are to be used, with the knowledge of the lender, for the exclusive benefit of the husband. Judgment in Q. K. 20 S. C. 320, reversed, Kerowack v. Gauthier, 12 Que. K. B. 205.

Moneys advanced by husband to enable wife to purchase land — Resulting trust—Evidence—Sale by scife—Notice by husband to purchaser—Payment to scife after notice—Recevery by husband—Liene of wife for moneys of her own used in purchasing property.]—In an action by a husband against his wife for a declaration of trust, the evidence shewed that the wife had received from the husband the money for the purchase of a homestead, the convergence of which was taken in the wife's name. A purchaser from her received notice that she was not a widow, and, notwithstanding that, before completing the agreement for sale. be received notice from the husband's solicitors warning him, he did complete it;—Held, that there was a resulting trust in favour of the agreement for sale by accepting an immediate convegance.—Held, that the plaintiff should recover from the purchaser the amount of purchase money which he had paid to secure such immediate conveyance. Dudgeon v. Dudgeon and Parsons, 6 W. L. R. 346, 13 B. C. H. 179.

Moneys paid for release of incheate right to dower -0, S. N. B. c. 78, s. 4 (2)—Braud on husband's creditora—Intent.1 —Money paid to a wife by her husband to secure her execution of a mortgage of lands of which she is dowable, under an agreement that she is to receive hulf of the money advanced, is not money received by the wife from her busband during coverture, within the meaning of the qualifying part of s.-s. 2 of s. 4 of c. 78, C. S. N. B. 1903, and if it is an honest and bona ide transaction, entered into in good faith, cannot be impeached as a fraud against the husband's creditors. Cormier v. Arsincen, 3 E. L. R. 203, 38 N. B. 44.

Promissory note — Obligation by wife with kushad, I—A promissory note made by a wife to the order of her hushand, and indorsed by him, is not, in the absence of any evidence that the note was signed by the wife for her hushand, a contravention of Art. 1301, C. C., as constituting an obligation contracted by the wife with her hushand. Dupus v. McTareish, 21 Ques. S. C. 435.

Promissory note signed by wife at husband's request—Absence of fraud—Husband acting as agent for bank—Absence of independent advice.]—Action upon a promissory note made by husband and wife:—Hold, that husband as agent of bank obtained wife's signature, who had no independent advice. Action dismissed as against wife. La Banque National v. Usher, 13 O. W. R. 896.

Promissory notes — Transfer of, by busband to wife—Scheme to defeat creditors — Evidence — Declaration that notes exigible under judgment against husband. Shaw v. Dennison (Man.), 10 W. L. R. 304.

Prospective gift of money by husband to wife — Attachment by judgment ereditor of urife.]—It is essential to a gift inter eiros that the donor should actually divest himself of his ownership in the thing given; and the following clause in a maringe contract does not constitute such gift:—'En considération dudit jutur marie je ledit jutur épour jait don à ladite juture épouse d'ino somme de $800 courant, à prendre sur see biens les plus apparents, et avant tout autre créancier.'' And such sum cannot be attached in the hands of the bushand under a wit of saisie-arrêt issued by a creditor upon a judgment against the wile. Pagé v. Beauchamp, 20 Que S. C. 220.

Purchase of land — Gift—Presumption — Surrender of leases — Merger — Lien.]— Freehold property and leaseholds, the reversion in which was vested in the plaintiff's wife by devisee under her father's will, were purchased by the plaintiff in 1803, while acting as manager of her landed estates, with his own money. The freehold property was conveyed by the vendor to the plaintiff's wife by his directions, and the surrender of leases was to the plaintiff and wife. Under the law at that date a husband was entitled to the rents and profits of his wife's real estate. By a. 4 (1) of the Married Women's Property Act, 1895 (N.B.), real estate belonging to a married woman, not acquired from her husband, is held and may be disposed of by her as a feme sole.—Held, that the presumption that a purchase by a husband in the name of his wife is intended to be a gift to her was not rebutted by the estate under the freehold estates so acquired from her husband, at least during his lifetime.—3. That on the purchase of the leases the estate under them merged in the freehold of the wife, and that she could dispose of the whole estate without the husband's consent, and free of any equity in him for repayment of the purehase or money expended by him in making repairs to the property. De Bury, 22 C. L. T. 154, 2 N. B. R. 348, 36 N. B. R. 57.

Purchase in wife's name — $Gi(t_1)$ — Where property purchased by a husband as a home for binnedif and wife was, by his direction, conveyed to her, so that the title might be in her in case of his death, it was held that a gift was intended, to take effect upon his death if she should survive him. Evens v. Evens, 26 C. L. T. 386, 3 N. B. Eq. 216.

Purchase of land with husband's money in wife's name-Gift or trust-Circumatances rebutting presumption of gift.]--Action for a declaration that defendants. heirs-at-law of A., are trustees of certain lands for plaintifs, children of the husband of A. by his second wife. It was so declared as the land in question, although the deed had been taken in A.'s name, was paid for with the husband's money. Sale ordered as more beneficial than partition. Henderson v. Henderson, 7 E. L. R. 218.

Savings deposit.]---Where a husband deposits money with a savings company and caused an account to be opened in the names of himself and his wife jointly, "to be drawn by either or in the event of the death of either to be drawn by the survivor," and it appeared by her evidence, uncontradicted, that money of hers went into the account and that both drew from it indiscriminately:--Held, that she was entitled as survivor to the whole fund. In re Ryan, 20 C. L. T. 426, 32 O. R. 224.

Separation as to property — Loan of money by wije to husband—Deposit as security for obligation—Bank simulated deeds— Nullity—Oral evidence—Action—Parties.]— The delivery to the husband, by his wife, separate as to property, of a cheque, the proceeds of which he deposits in a bank, as collateral security for paper discounted by the bank, is a valid loan, and does not violate the prohibition of Art, 1301. C. C., that the wife shall not bind hereaft, with or on behalf of her husband, otherwise than on behalf of her community.—The nature of the operation and its validity are not affected by the following declaration, written on the back of the cheque by the manager of the bank: "To guarantee the payment of a draft of $1,027 on Linaburg O. K., this cheque will be valid only as far as Linaburg shall not pay the whole draft, or shall demand a reduction, or shall make a reclamation after having sold the hay."-2. A simulated deed is void and non-existent. Oral evidence is admissible to establish that a sale of land by a husband to the father of his wife and one to her by the heirs of her deceased father, in reality disguise a voluntary transfer by the husband to the wife in violation of Art. 1265, C. C.-3. These deeds may be adjudged void in an action to which the husband and wife are parties, and it is not necessary that the representatives of the wife's deceased father should be brought in. Auge' v. La Banque D'Hochelaga, 34 Que. S. C. 481.

Separation as to property — Marriage contract—Gift to wife—Earnings—Savings.] —A wife separate as to property, the done under the marriage contract of a sum of money payable by her husband on demand, who, for a number of years, receives all his earnings, out of which she is proved to have saved and appropriated an amount exceeding that of the gift, has no further claim therefor upon him or his estate. Any savings, the result of her thrift, economy, and good management, belong to the husband, and can in no manner be the property of the wife, as earnings or otherwise. Bruneau v. Lefaivre, 34 Que. S. C. 173.

Transfer of proviseory notes by husband to wife—Scheme to defect creditors.]— Plaintiffs having judgment against the defendant husband, seized under f. fa. certain promissory notes given by M. to the husband but the renewals were to the defendant's wife. Held, that the notes were the husband's, his evidence being uncorroborated, and the property for which they were given, being his. Schaw v. Dennison, 10 W. L. R. 304.
