ABSENTEE.

Curator of an absence brought action to recover amount of a deposit standing in name of latter :--Held, that defendants could plead that plaintif's appointment was tainted with serious irregularities and ask for its annulment. Plourde v. Bank of Montreal (1910), 11 Que. P. R. 429.

Opening of a succession to which an absentee is called—Ratification—C. C. 195, 105, 106, 107, 607, 608, 654, 1585, 1586, 1597,—C. C. P. 4038, 1654, 1517, 1555, 1586, 1591,—J. He who claims to exercise a right which implies that an absente is living, is applies equally to the person presumed to be an absente as to the person presumed to be one. In other words, the actual heirs are not obliged to consider an absentee whose existence is not proved, and this even when he is not declared to be an absentee. 3. The absente is not considered as being either living or dead; he who bases his claim upon the fact that the absentee is living must prove it according to the maxim; actorineawhit ones probadi. 4. If an absentee of those who would have succeeded in his stace. 5, By means of representation, one may succeed in the place and stead of an absentee whose existence is not proved. 6. The actual heirs, called to a succession, to the exclusion of an heir of an absentee, is reputed the proprietor; consequently, all transfers of the property made by him are valid, and the purchaser cannot refuse to pay the parchase price or recover what he may have paid because he thinks he is in undifference show explored may have a parchase prices of the scales of the property made by him are valid, and the purchaser cannot refuse to properforms must be parties in the suit for a partition, only means, when it is an undivided part of a succession, co-heirs or coproprietors who are present and who are not absentees, inasmuch as the latter, whether presumed or declared absentees, are excluded from the succession. Cod way v. Deveau

Service of absentee — Can they be served on him at the soft the CourtH— C. P. 85, 361.]—Arti SC. P., which provides that whenever use of the parties has, since the commencement of the action, left the province, or has no domicule therein, all orders, rules, notices or other proceedings may be served upon him at the office of the Court, does not apply to the service of articulated facts. Therefore articulated facts served upon an absentee at the prothonotary's office will not be held as admitted, particularly if such absentee's residence is known. Klipstein & Eagle Mining Co. ACCORD AND SATISFACTION.

Acknowledgment — Trial — Connterclaim—Tender.] — A plea of compensation, setting forth a contra-account, followed by an allegation of acknowledgment and promise to pay by the plainiff, will not be rejected on a reply in law. 2. The Judge presiding at the trial has, however, power to order that the settlement of account and acknowledgment by the plainiff, allegad by the defendant, be proved by him before he is allowed to prove his counterclaim. 3. The validity of a tender, especially in commercial matters, may be a question of fact, and allegations relating to a tender will not be rejected on answer in law, although the tender may appear not to have been made in the manner prescribed by law for legal tenders. Lawrentide Pub Co. v. Curtis, 4 Que, P. R. 109.

Agreement to accept land in payment of debt --Solicitor's authority --Agent's authority.]--One C., a commercial traveller in plaintiff's employ, called on defendant and pressed for payment of an overdue promissory note. Defendant offered to give a parcel of land in payment, and C, in company with defendant inspected the land. C, wrote plaintiffs submitting the proposition and giving a specific description of certain land. Plaintiffs wrote a solicitor instructing him to prepare a conveyance therefor. The solicitor, finding that there had been a misdescription in the letter to plaintiffs, accepted a conveyance of the land actually shewn by defendant to C.--Sup. Ct. of B. C. held (9) B. C. R. 257), in an action on the note, that plaintiffs were bound as by an accord and satisfaction and could not recover.--- holding that the plaintiffs were bound to accept the lot which had been offered to and inspected by their agent in satisfaction of the debt, and could not recover on the promissory note. Pither v. Manley (1903), 23 C. L. T. 64, 32 S. C. R. 651.

Contract-Substituted agreement-Consideration.] - Lefendant being indebted to plaintiff, the latter agreed to take in lieu of cash to which he was then entitled, the defendant's written promise to deliver a headstone for $20, which was delivered, and the total claim of plaintiff was thereby reduced to $19.86, the sum sued for. Plaintiff also agreed to accept for this balance another $20 headstone, to be delivered when plaintiff required it. In addition, defendant agreed, if plaintiff required it, to supply a stone of greater value than $20, plaintiff agreeing to pay the excess:-Heid, that the transaction constituted a new and substituted agreement, binding on both, and supported by a sufficient consideration, and constituted a complete accord and satisfaction of ofiginal cause of action. Morton v. Judge, 40 N. S. R. 457.

Keeping a cheque marked in full is not conclusive evidence of accord and satisfaction, and it may be shewn that the cheque was not accepted in full. Day v. McLea, 22 Q. B. D. 610, followed. In order to establish accord and satisfaction of a debt by payment of less than the amount due, it must be shewn that such payment was made in pursuance of an agreement for that purpose, or that it was so accepted by the creditor. McPherson v. Copeland (1909), 1 Sask. L. R. 519, 9 W. L. R. 623.

Salisie-arret in hands of purchaser.] —A defendant is entilled to plead any payment made before the transfer of his debtand which would tend to diminish his original indebtedness in respect of the plaintiff. The delay given to the purchaser to pay the balance of the price of sale does not run, if this amount is seized by a third party and that the seizure is still pending. If sued he is entitled to plead these special facts. Tammaro v. Red Cross Macaroni, Co., 11 Que, P. R. 71.

ACCOUNT.

Action en reddition de compte — Advocate — Mandate — Professional services—Pleading.]—When n declaration does not shew that money paid or remitted to defendant was money intrusted to him by plaintiff to be used in business or invested or used in execution of a commission as agent, but that it was paid voluntarily for professional services, there is no ground for an action en reddition de compte. — The allegation of a promise of defendant to furnish a statement of account for professional services, for which sums of money were paid, cannot serve as basis of an action en reddition de compte, unless it is coupled with an allegation of administration of property. Lafond v. Beaulne (1906), 7 Que P. R. 458. Action on reddition de compte — Defence—Res adjudicata — Judgment for account-Setting up in account item adjudicated upon.]—One who opposes, to de mand en reddition de compte, the defence that the right of plaintiff is subject to the preliminary reimbursement of a sum of money advanced, and who, upon trial, fails in this defence and is ordered to account, cannot, in rendering an account pursuant to the judgment, set up claim urged in the defence as a credit item in his account, Judgment having passed into res adjudicata, while simply declaring against the defence, without specially adjudging whether the claim is well or ill founded, is regarded as having virtually rejected it. Huot v. Huot (1906), 14 Que. K. B. 522.

Action en reddition de compte — Executors may have their account made up by an expert who has been accepted by all parties. The signature of the latter is sufficient to bind defendants, and the verification by affidavit of such account is equivalent to a signature.—2. The word "nominativement" in art. 567, C. P., is not essential, and it is sufficient that the account be rendered by one from whom it is due, and to the one who demands it.—3. Defendants ought to give the details of the account and not only general statements. Bird v. Bird (1909), 10 Que. P. R. 205.

Action for-Agent's returns-Compromise-Subsequent discovery of error-Rectification-Prejudice.]-P. was agent to manage the wharf property of W., and receive the rents and profits thereof, being paid by commission. When his agency terminated W, was unable to obtain account from him, and brought an action therefor, which was compromised by P. paying $375, giving $125 cash and a note for the balance, and receiving an assignment of all debts due to W. in respect to the wharf property during his agency, a list of which was prepared at the time. Shortly before the note became due P. discovered that on one of the accounts assigned to him $100 had been paid, and demanded credit on his note for that sum. This W. refused, and in an action on the note P. asserted that the error avoided the compromise, and that the note was without consideration, or in the alternative that the note should be rectified :--Held, that, as it appeared that P.'s attorney had knowledge of the error before the compromise was effected, and as, by compromise, W. was prevented from going fully into the accounts and perhaps establishing a greater liability on the part of P., W. was entitled to re-cover the full amount of the note. Peters v. Worrall, 22 C. L. T. 198, 32 S. C. R. 52.

Action for—Company—Board of Directors—Onu-Particulars.)—In an action enreddition de comptes brought by a company against their president, the onus is upon the defendant to establish his allegation that the plaintiffs' board of directors is incomplete. 2. The plaintiffs asked that in default of accounting the defendant should be adjudged to pay a certain sum which they alleged he had received by virtue of certain contracts:—Held, that they were not obliged to state at what date and from what persons such sum had been received. Temisconata Rue, Co. v. Macdonald, 3 Que. P. R. 462.

Action for-Ferguson, J., held, plaintiff entitled to an account of defendant's dealings with properties transferred to him as security for an endorsement, Hull v. Allen (1902), 1 O. W. R. 151, affirmed by D. C. ib, 782.

Action for-Neglect to file-Order.]-A plaintiff, who sues upon an account without filing it, and whose declaration is in general terms, will be ordered upon motion of the defendant to file his account, and to serve a copy upon the defendant. Lachine Rapids Co, Y. Hermond, 5 Que, P. R. 138.

Action for-Practice-Writ of summons-Indorsement -- Necessity for statement of claim.]--Where a writ of summons was indorsed, under O. 3. R. 7. with a claim for an necounting, the sole object of the suit being to obtain an account, the defendant appeared and demanded a statement of claim, which being refused, the defendant, after some layse of time, moved to dismiss the action for want of prosecution. The motion was refused by the Judge, and the defendant appealed:--Heid, that the intention of the Rules is to enable a party who is simply seeking an account to obtain it promptly and with little expense, and without pleadings, unless some preliminary question is interposed by defendant. Appent dismissed. Palmeter v. Palmeter, 40 N. S. R. 1900.

Action for — Previous demand — Costs.] —Every action supposes a right in the plaintiff and the violation of that right by the defendant. In order that a man who has a right to an account from another shall have an action en reddition de compte against him, it is necessary for him to shew a demand refused by the defendant; and if he sues without having made a demand, and the defendant, when sued, produces his account, the action will be dismissed with costs as premature. Chanteloup v. Fulton, 16 Que, S. C, 387.

Action for—Service of account—Dilatory exception.]—The failure to serve upon the defendant a detailed account at the same time as process in the action, is not ground for an exception to the form, but rather for a dilatory exception, such failure having only the effect of delaying the proceedings until the account has been served, Dubrule v. Leclaire, 24 Que, S. C. S14.

Alternative condemnation to pay a sum of money in case of fallure to account—Reduction of condemnation prayed for.)—The plaintif in an action to account who prays that, in the alternative of failure by the defendant to account, he be condemned to pay a specified sum, is entitled, on establishing the accountability of the defendant. to a judgment accordingly. Hence, if the defendant, examined as a witness as to bias accountability, produces an account and is permitted to offer explanations on it, the Court will not thereby be justified in reducing the alternative condemnation prayed for, to the balance shewn in the account so produced. Such a power vests in the Court only after a regular contestation of an account filed. McCallum v. Bangs (1910), 37 Que, S. C. 407.

Appeal—Amount in controversy—Juriadiction].— In an action en reddition de compte, where items in the account field exceeding in the aggregate $2,000 have been contested, the Supreme Court of Canada has jurisdiction to entertain an appeal. Bell v. Vipond (1901), 31 8. C. R. 175.

Claims and cross-claims — Legacy — Conversion of shares in company — Reference to Master.]—The first action was against defendant as executor of his brother, but really against defendant personally. Judgment of a legacy in favour of plaintif. The second action was against defendant personally, who was found indebted to plaintiff, the amount recovered in first actions being set off:—Held, further, that certain shares and policies were not converted but merely held as security. McCarthy v. Mc-Carthy, 13 O. W. R. 560.

Co-heirs-Form of action.]-An heir has no right to sue one of his co-heirs en reddition de compte, but the only action which he can bring is an action en compte et partage, Renaud v. Delfausse, 5 Que. P. R. 230.

Contestation —Maladministration—Es. ception to form—Demurrer.]—The party seeking an account may, in his contestation of the account rendered, urge all acts of maladministration committed by the accounting party; and objections to that mode of proceeding should be made by an exception to the form, and not by demurrer. Blackwood V. Mussen, 4 Que P. S. C. 324.

Entries-Proof of debt -- Sufficiency.]--Where regular entries of sales of goods were made, and invoices were rendered and demands for payment frequently made, and the debtor only questioned one small liem of 50 cents, and, promising to pay, asked for delay:--Held, that the indebtedness was sufficiently established. Extra-judicial accounts — Form—Administration—Reformation of account — Action en reddition.] — The rendering of an account divided into distinct heads of receipts, disbursements, and balances, is only required by law in the case of accounts which are rendered in the cause in pursuance of a judgment. No particular form is necessary for extra-judicial accounts, and it is sufficient if they give such details in regard to their subject as will make it possible to check them. 2. When an account of an administration is rendered, the person to whom it is rendered has no right, upon the ground that it is incomplete or inexact, to being an action en reddition de compte; he should proceed by way of action for reformation of the account. Beaudry v. Prévost, 22 Que, S. C. 32.

Jurisdiction — Master and servant — Division of office receipts—Discovery.]—In a suit for an account the plaintiff stated that he was appointed deputy sheriff by the defendant, under an agreement that he was to have half of the net receipts of the sheriff's office. The defendant stated the arreement to be that the plaintiff was to have half of the fees from writs and executions only. On the probabilities of the evidence the Court found in favour of the defendant's version of the agreement. Of the receipts in which under this finding the plaintiff might be entitled on discovery to share, the fees in one case, amounting to $35, alone remained undivided: — Held, that the bill should not be dismissed. counts already taken, a judgment rendered on the 30th September, 1901, adjudicated on matters in issue between the parties, and, on the accountant's report, homologated on 25th October, 1901, judgment was orthe dered to be entered against the appellant for $26,316, on the 30th January, 1902. The appellant filed a requéte civile to revoke the latter judgment within six months after it had been rendered, but without referring to the first judgment in the conclusions of the petition. It was objected that the first judgment had the effect of res judicata as to the matters in dispute, and was a final judg-ment inter partes :--Held, that, whether the first judgment was final or merely interlocutory, the petition in revocation must be taken as impeaching both former judgments relating to the accounts upon which it was based; that it came in time, as it had been filed within six months of the rendering of the last judgment; and that it virtually raised anew all the issues relating to the taking of the accounts affected by the two former judgments. A motion to amend the petition so as to include specifically any necessary conclusions against the judgment of the 30th September, 1901, had been re-fused in the Court below, and was renewed on the appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada:-Held, that, as the facts set forth in the methican necessity involved in the petition necessarily involved a contestation of the accountant's reports dealt with in the first judgment, the case was a proper one for the exercise of the discretion allowed by s. 63 of the Supreme Court and that the amendment to the con-Act clusions of the petition should be permitted nunc pro tune. Hill v. Hill, 24 C. L. T. 73, 34 S. C. R. 13.

Partnership — The Court has only to decide whether the plaintiff has the right to a judgment against the defendant, to force him to render an account according to law, from the moment that it appears that the accounting cannot be made in a friendly manner between the parties.—A motion by the plaintiff for particulars of certain allegations in the plea made after plea filed, is premature, and will be dismissed. Harel v. Lemaire (1000), 10 Que P. IV. c. 41, s. 17, notwith-standing the dissent of the respondent's counsel, to the Court referring the same. The firm of S. & W. H. in Lower Canada, being indebted to J. W., transferred 75 promissory notes to a factor, on his own account. At the time of the transfer S. & W. H. were en déconfiture. A saisie arrêt having subsequently issued by other of the creditors of S. & W. H., the 75 notes in the hands of the factor were attached :---Held, by the Judicial Committee, that the transfer, having taken place before execution of the saisie arret was valid by the French law in force in Lower Canada. A Commission for examination of witnesses in Canada, to prove such deconfiture, in the circumstances, refused. Semble, by the old French law, prevailing in Lower Canada, all Ordonnances not regis-Hutchinson v. Gillespie are void. (1844), C. R. 1 A. C. 217.

Re-opening — Delay — Contract.]— Where accounts (for electric lighting) had been rendered by the plaintiffs during a period of over fourteen months, during which time the defendants would have had at least two opportunities to abandon the contract rather than pay increased rates for the future:—Held, that the plaintiffs were not entitled to re-open the accounts on the ground that a wrong principle had been followed by them, in calculating the meter readings. Royal Electric Co. v. Davis, 16 Que. S. C. 377; affirmed 9 Que. K. B. 445.

Right of action for—Privity—Pledac of debentures — Subsequent claim on proceeds.]—A contractor for work to be done for a company who have agreed to pay him by handing over the proceeds of their debentures, which have been transferred for the purpose of securing a loan, the contractor consenting that the lender shall be paid before him out of the proceeds of the debentures, has a right of action for an necount against the latter. Setting out previous proceedings-Amendment, —The plaintiff in an action enreddition de compte will not be allowed to set out at length in his declaration the proceedings in a previous action between himself and the defendant, and such allegations will be struck out upon demurrer. However, as it may be of importance to him to allege such facts in a general way, to justify himself for not having begun his present action earlier, the Court will, proprio motu, permit him to amend bis declaration by alleging the previous suit and the judgment therein. Chevel v. Senécal, 4 Que, P. R. 241.

Stated account-Agreement not to suc - Conditional statement - Further adjustment of accounts-Recovery on one item-Absence of alternative claim on items-Refusal to amend-Admission of parol evidence -Partnership-Profits.]-On the dissolution of a partnership the partners signed a statement shewing an amount as due to the plaintiff as his share, and containing a declara-tion that "for the sake of peace and quiet and to avoid friction and bother," the plaintiff was willing to waive investigation of the firm's books and to agree that the balance as stated should be deemed to be the amount payable by the defendants to the plaintiff :-Held, that a promise to pay the amount of the balance so stated to be due should be implied from the admission of liability which the parties had so signed. In an action on the account stated, the defendants alleged that the plaintiff had agreed not to sue upon it, and that the document was merely intended to shew the amount which would be payable to the plaintiff at such time as collections might be made of outstanding collections might be made of outstanding debts due to the firm.-Held, that these contentions tended to contradict, vary, and annul the terms of the written instrument, and, consequently, did not constitute col-lateral agreements in respect of which parol evidence would be admissible. Judgment of Contracte would be admissible. Judgment of the Courts below, 1 W. L. R. 97, 2 W. L. R. 379, reversed. Jackson v. Drake (1906), 26 C. L. T. 315, 37 S. C. R. 315.

Statute of Limitations — Agents of partners-Reference-Practice — Appeal to Supreme Court of Canada.]—Ity agreement between them, the Hamilton Ernss Manufacturing Co, were appointed agents of the Barr Cash and Package Carrier Co. for sale and lease of their carriers in Canada, at a price named for manufacture, net profits to be equally divided and quarterly returns to be furnished, either party having liberty to annul the contract for non-fulfilment of conditions. The agreement was in force for three years, when the Barr Co, sued for an account, alleging failure to make proper returns and payments. — Held, Girouard and Davies, JJ., dissenting, that the accounts should be taken for the six years preceding the action only.—On a reference to the Master (3 O. W. R. 702), the taking of the accounts was brought down to a time at which the defendants contended that the contract was terminated by notice. The Court of Appeal ordered that they should be taken down to the date of the Master's report:—Held, that this was a matter of practice and procedure, as to which the Supreme Court would not entertain an appeal.—Judgment of the Court of Appeal in Barr Cash and Package Carrier Co. V. Hamilton Brass Manufacturing Co., 6 O. W. R. 643, reversed. Hamilton Brass Manufacturing Co v. Barr Cash & Package Carrier Co., 27 C. L. 7, 224, 38 S. C. R. 216.

Time fixed by judgment for ren-dering-Damages in default-Death of defendant during time fixed-Revivor-Universal legatee-Payment of costs.]-On 16th November, 1901, the judgment of the Court required the defendant to render to the plaintiff, within 30 days, an account of a quan-tity of wood which defendant had to dispose of for plaintiff, and, in case of default to render the account, to pay to plaintiff $9,000, with interest, and costs in any case. On 30th November, 1901, the defendant died, leaving his wife his universal legatee. His decease was not entered on the roll. On 2nd December, 1901, the widow, as universal legatee, paid the costs of the action. On 13th January, 1902, the plaintiff served the judgment on the universal legatee, with a demand for payment of the $9,000 within eight days, in default of which the judgment yould be executed against her. On 21st January, 1902, she presented a petition al-leging the death of her husband, her capacity of universal legatee, and asking that she should be added as a party to the suit in place of her husband and allowed to proceed in it. The plaintiff answered that the 30 days having expired, the judgment had become final as to the $9,000; that the petitioner had acquiesced in the judgment by paying the costs; and that there was no suit to which the petitioner could be made a party :--Held, that the plaintiff had not at the time of the defendant's death acquired a right to the $9,000, since it was not due till after the expiry of 30 days, and then only in default of the account being produced within that time. 2. That the decease of the defendant stopped the running of the 30 days, for a dead man cannot render an account; and it was not a case within Arts. 268, 269, C. P., which say that suits are valid up to the day of service of notice of a party's death, for as against the defendant there had been no suit since his death. 3. That the universal legatee, in paying the costs of the action, acquiesced in the judgment, but did not ac-quiesce in the default to render an account and to pay the $9,000. 4. 2. Consolidation of Action.

Action en garantie-Principal action-Jury-Prejudice.] — A defendant in warranty, not adjudged to intervene in the principal action, and who denies his responsibility to the plaintiff in warranty, is not a party to the principal action, according to the terms of Art. 291, C. P., and a motion on the part of the plaintiff in warranty demanding the consolidation of the two Issues so that they may be tried together by a jury will be dismissed. Such a demand should not be granted unless it is evident that no prejudice will result from it to any of the parties. Dillon v. Canadian Import Co., 8 Que. P. R. 123.

Actions against estate — Representatives — Privilege — Riphts of creditors.)— The Court may, proprio motu, unite two default cases against the same estate, and order its representatives to be personally present at the trial, when the claims are, on their face, considerable, and a privilege might attach thereto to the detriment of the other creditors. Motion for-Separate proceedings.]--In order to obtain consolidation of several actions a motion must be made in each of them; a single motion will be rejected. Falardeau v. Montreal. 6 Que. P. R. 300.

Powers of trial Judge-Previous rejusal to consolidate-Reformation of interlocutory orders.]-The Superior Court sitting at the trial of a case upon the merits, has the power to reform and reverse interlocutory orders previously made therein, and, in the exercise of such power, will order, notwithstanding a previous contrary declsion, that the case be united with two other ones involving the same issues, the whole to be tried and decided on the same evidence. Montreal-Canada Fire Insurance Co. v. Thérien, 34 Que. S. C. 205.

Selection of test actions.] — Fortyfour actions were brought by different persons against the defendants for damages caused by the death of relatives in an explosion extending over a large area of the defendants' coal mine, and the plainitifs applied to consolidate these actions with twenty-nine other actions, one of which had been chosen as a test action. On account of the same class, and also on account of the same class, and also on account of the different conditions in the different parts of the mine where deaths occurred, the defendants contended that the action would not be a fair test of all the others:—Held, that the defendants should have the right to select four actions as test actions for those of the same class. Ellyn v, Crov's Neat Pass Coal Co., 24 C. L, T. 102, 10 B. C. R. 221.

Stay of one action-Terms of, I-On motion to consolidate two actions, the Master directed first action to proceed and if plaintiffs succeeded, defendants to be at liberty to apply for a stay of execution or otherwise as may be just. Casuell v. Lyons, 13 O. W. R. 258.

Trial by jury.]-Joinder of two cases where the parties have made option for jury trial will not be granted. Schucab v. Montreal Light, Heat and Power Co., 6 Que. P. R. 50.

3. DISCONTINUANCE OF ACTION.

Before return of writ.]-Plaintiff may discontinue his action before the return, by serving a copy of the discontinuance upon defendant's attorney and by tendering him his costs upon his appearance. In such event, a motion for default against plaintiff, will be dismissed. Bacon v. Lafontaine, 11 Que. P. R. 64.

Costs-Offer to pay-Payment-Practice -Judgment on desistment.]-Where at the time of the discontinuance of an action the plaintiff does not pay the defendant's costs, the defendant has a right to ask the Court for an acte du désistement, and, moreover, a judgment upon it, in order to be able to issue execution for the costs. 2. It is not sufficient for the plaintiff to offer to pay the costs; he must shew that his offer has been followed by payment; if the offer is refused, he must pay the amount into Court. Turgeon v. Sévigny, 10 Que, P. R. 205, 36 Que, S. C. 304.

Counterclaim - Cause of action.] -Where the plaintiff discontinues his action after the defendant has delivered a counterclaim, the defendant may proceed with his counterclaim as if it were an action; the plaintiff will then be in the same position as a defendant served with a writ of summons; and if the counterclaim is one which the defendant could assert only by virtue of the plaintiff having come into the jurisdiction and sued the defendant, he should not be allowed to proceed with it as a term of permitting the plaintiff to discontinue. Dominion Burglary Guarantee Co. v. Wood, 22 C. L. T. 151, 3 O. L. R. 365.

Desistment — Order — Prothonotary — Jurisdiction — Judgment of Court.] — The prothonotary has no jurisdiction to give a certificate or make an order upon a desistment; and therefore, when a desistment is filed with the clerk of the Court by a party, the opposite party must apply by way of inscription to the Court, in order to obtain a judgment in accordance with the desistment. Mageau v. Montreal Mutual Assur-ance Co., 24 Que. S. C. 208,

5 Que. P. R. 405.

Desistment from action filed by a party without the consent or knowledge of his attorney will not be rejected on motion unless fraud is proved against the parties. Gauvreau v. Computing Scale Co., 6 Que. P. R. 448.

Desistment from indgment — Amend-ment — Costa — "Proceeding" — Art. 255, C. P.]—If a plaintiff desists from a judgment based upon grounds not set up in his declaration, the parties stand in the same position which they occupied prior to the recording of the judgment. The plaintiff may then ask the Court for permission to amend his declaration. The costs of such amend-ment will be determined by the final judgment, 2. The word "proceeding," as used in Art 255, C. P., concerning discontinuance of suit, refers to and includes any procedure adopted by any party to a suit; a defence is included in that word, 3. It is not abso-lutely necessary that a party should embody in his declaration of discontinuance, that it is not absorb to a payment of costs. is made subject to the payment of costs, inasmuch as that is the condition imposed by law upon which alone it can be made. Bessette v. Equitable Mutual Fire Insurance Co., 10 Que, P. R. 201.

Dismissal - Payment of costs.]-Article 278, C. C. P., which says that a party who has discontinued cannot begin again before paying the costs of the opposite party in respect of the abandoned demand or proceeding, does not apply to a case where the first suit has been dismissed. In this case the first suit was intended to be against the present defendant, and service upon him was made, but the plaintiff made a mistake as to his name, Girard v. Brais, 16 Que. S. C. 409.

Dismissal-Reservation of rights-Prac-tice.]-After the plaintiff has discontinued his action, a motion demanding its dismissal will be granted, reserving to the plaintiff the right to bring another. Lacroix v. Probat, 8 Que, P. R. 315.

Hypothecary action.]-A plaintiff in a hypothecary action cannot discontinue as to his principal action and move for costs, on nis principal action and move for costs, of production of a plea by defendant that he is not in possession of the hypothecated im-movable, on the ground that at date of in-stitution of the action the defendant was the apparent promistor in possession. Pilon v. Cantin, 31 Oue, S. C. 51.

Inscription for proof and hearing cannot be made before acte is given of the discontinuance. McKeown v. Wright, 8 Que. P. R. 137.

Inscription for judgment.]-When a discontinuance is filed and served, the only right the defendant has is to demand an act of discontinuance; and an inscription for judgment in pursuance of the discontinuance will be set aside on motion. John v. Dion, 6 Que. P. R. 227. Bank of St.

Intervention by third party - Fatal Accidents Act-Judgment.]-As long as a judgment is not entered upon a discontinuance, third parties can intervene to protect their rights. If a widow who sues for dam-ages for her husband's death, according to Art. 1066, C. C., desists from her action, the mother of the deceased has the right to intervene in the case. Gaze v. Dominion Bridge Co., S Que. P. R. 181, 15 Que. K, B. 379.

Leave -- " Proceeding an action " Receiver.] - Where defendants were added by order of Court and appeared and pleaded : -Held, that plaintiffs had not the right, excent by leave of the Court or a Judge, to discontinue as against such defendants, especially where defendants claimed a speci tic right in the property in question, which right would be affected by the action. — Where an agreement had been entered into under which defendants' solicitor was permitted to withdraw the defence pleaded by him and to prepare and deliver a new de-fence :---Held, that this was "another pro-ceeding in the action" after delivery of the which, under O. 26, R. 1, precluded plaintiffs from discontinuing without leave of the Court or a Judge .-- Held, also, that an order for the appointment of a receiver. made while the first defence was on the record, and which had not been abandoned. had of which neither the defendant F., nor his solicitor, had notice, was irregularly made and must be set aside with costs, Boak v. Higgins, 32 N. S. R. 494.

Notice-Service of-Rule 173-" Save any interlocutory application " - Inspection of documents-Motion for leave to discontinue - Effect of - Costs, O'Brien v. O'Brien Brewing and Malling Co. (Y.T.), 10 W. L. R. 634.

Offer to pay costs.]-A discontinuance, not accompanied with an offer to pay the costs, is insufficient and ineffective. Moon v. Bullock, 6 Que, P. R. 59.

Partial confession of judgment not accepted by plaintiff does not limit plaintiff's control over his action. He may discontinue in whole or in part only. Moreau v. Jodoin, 10 Que. P. R. 353.

Practice—Mention of cause—Regularity —Signature—Forcign language—Absence of solicitor's context, 1—1. The fact that in a desistment, the cause is mentioned for which it is signed by the plaintiff, does not affect in regularity; there is no need of a supplementary pleading. 2. A desistment signed in a foreign language, in this instance in Russian characters, is valid; the onus is upon the opposite party to contest the signature. if he does not believe it to be that of the party discontinuing. 3. A party may file a desistment without the aid or even the consent of his attorney. Nicholapshick v. McCuigan, 10 Que, P. R. 281.

Practice as to-Return of writ.—The provisions of Art. 276, C. P., as to desistment, are not limitative, and the form prescribed by the Article is not obligatory, 2. A phintiff who desists from his demand before return of the writ, is not obliged to return his action upon the day fixed in order to be in a position to state that he has desisted, 3. A motion for dismissal made after desistment is of no effect. Lauterman v. Vineberg, 5 Que. P. R. 127.

Right of defendant to prevent — Specific performance—Parment of purchase money into Court by defendant—Right to Judgment. Lye v. McConnell, 5 O. W. R. 326.

Rale 430-Leave to discontinue-Terms -Stay of action in foreign Court-No action to be brought in any Court for same cause. Schland v. Foster, 10 O. W. R. 1095, 11 O. W. R. 00, 175, 314.

Service of notice before return day of writ of summons — Rights of defendant —Certificate of discontinuance—Costs of defendant — Action for, as damages.] — The service upon the defendant personally of notice of the discontinuance of an action, before the day of the return of the writ of summons, is valid ipso facto, because it is made before the appearance of the defendant, at a time when the action is under the exclusive control of the plaintiff, and the defendant has not yet acquired a right in regard to the action in which he is sued. The obtaining by the plaintiff of a certificate of discontinuance is not one of the conditions which the Code imposes on its validity. since it exacts no particular formality, and the party upon whom notice of discontinu-ance is served cannot require that it shall be followed by a judgment. Where the plain-tiff has occasioned by his action costs which cannot be taxed according to the tariff, and which cannot be ascertained at this stage of the proceedings (before the return day of the write, the defendant may recover the amount of such costs as damages by direct action against the plaintiff, if he has a good claim thereto. Lussier v. Tellier, 9 Que. P. R. 113.

4. DISMISSAL OF ACTION.

Chambers-Entry for trial.]-A Judge sitting in Chambers has power to dismiss an action for want of prosecution notwithstanding that the action has been entered for trial. Sullican v. Jackson, 7 B. C. R. 133.

Default of doing an act — Further order.]—Upon an appeal from an order of the Master in Chambers upon a motion to dismiss the action for default of an undertaking:—Held, per Meredith, C.J., that where an order is made for the doing of an act. or, in the alternative, that the action should be dismissed, and default is made in the doing of the act, the order operates to put an end to the action, and no further order is necessary, and, the action being dead, the Court has no power to relieve from the consequences of such default. On apneal, a Divisional Court, being of opinion that under the circumstances the action should be dismissed, declined to consider the question of the necessity of a further application of the power to relieve from the default. Crosen Corundum and Mica Co, V. Logan, 1 O, W. 1. 07, 174, 22 C. L. 7, 159, 30 O. L. R. 434.

Default of election under order — Appeal—Extension of time for election after default. Bank of Hamilton v. Anderson, 2 O. W. R. 1127, 3 O. W. R. 301, 389, 709, 4 O. W. R. 146, 24 C. L. T. 347, 8 O. L. R. 153. Digested under PARTIES.

Failure of plaintiff to proceed at trial—Refusal of application to postpone— Rules 255, 256—Appeal—Notion to set aside judgment—Extension of time—Legal koliday.] — The plaintiff appeared by counsel when the case was called for trial: but was not prepared to proceed, and no affidivit in support of the application for an adjournment being produced, the trial Judge dismissed the action. The plaintiff appealed :— Held, that the action was properly dismissed under the provisions of Rule 255 of the Judicature Ordinance, and that before an appeal will lie from such judgment, the plaintiff should apply to the trial Judge to set aside the judgment under the provisions of Rule 256—Held, also, that the Judge under Rule 256—Held, also, that a Judge under Rule 256—Held, laso, that Rule y, Nolin, 8 W. L. R. S20. I Sask. L. R. 185.

Failure to proceed to trial-Breach of undertaking-Excuse for delay-Terms-Costs. Bayly v. Wellington Dressed Meats Co., Hanrahan v. Wellington Dressed Meats Co., 4 O. W. R. 203, 6 O. W. R. 725.

Insolvency of curator is not a reason justifying the dismissal or suspension of an action. Lamarche v. Wilson (1910), 11 Que. P. R. 347.

Money paid into Court — Order permitting withdrawal-Recourse for balance.] —An action will not be dismissed on motion, after judgment has been rendered permitting the plainiff to withdraw the sum paid into Court by the defendant to purchase peace, and reserving the recourse of the plaintiff for the balance of the amount claimed. Laplante V. De Lery Macdonald, 6 Q. P. R. 463.

Motion to dismiss as frivolous and vexations—Afidavits—Truth of.] — Upon an application to dismiss an action as frivolous and vexatious, afidiavits of the defendants were allowed to be read, and, not being answered, were taken as true, and the action dismissed by the full Court on anopeal from an order refusing the application. Hofins & Co., V. Lenora Mount Sicker Copper Mining Co., 7 W. L. R. 156, 13 B. C. R. 226.

Motion to dismiss for failure of plaintiff to attend for examination for discovery-liness of plaintiff -- Medical evidence as to-Undertaking to proceed to trial-Excuse for delay-Increased security for costs. Applepard v. Mulligan, S O. W. R. 500, 624.

No reasonable cause of action--Dismissal of servant -- Mechanics' lien -- Company. Berridge v. Hauces, 2 O. W. R. 619, 741.

Non-payment of costs at appointed time-Append-Time for payment extended -Jurisdiction of Divisional Court.]-Plaintiff asked for an adjournment of trial. Latchford, J., granted the adjournment on terms that plaintiff pay to defendints the costs of the day within 10 days, otherwise, the action to stand dismissed. Plaintiff failed to get the money paid over by 40 minutes, and defendants sought to take advantage of the technicality. Divisional Court extended the time for payment of costs by one week. Court of Appeal keld, that the Divisional Court was within their jurisdiction in so doing. Mcredith, J.A., dissenting. Nirati y. Toronto Construction Co. (1910), 17 O. W. R. 259, 1 O. W. N. 847, 1000, 2 O. W. N. 172, 22 O. L. R. 211.

Not going to trial—Joinder of issue,] —An application for a judgment, as in case of non-suit, was refused where it appeared that the plaintiff had not filed a joinder of issue, though one had been served. Gallagher v. Wilson, 21 C. L. T. 54, 35 N. B. Reps, 238.

Summary order -- Frivolous action --Habcas corpus to obtain custody of infant-Procedure. |--- An application for the custody of an infant must be by way of motion, sum mons, or petition, where the only relief sought in an action commenced by writ of summons was the issue of a writ of habeas corpus, Wetmore, J., under Rule 151 of the Judicature Ordinance, dismissed the action as frivolous, pointing out there are two methods by which a parent may obtain the custody of his child-by writ habcas corpus and by petition to the Court of Chancery-and that it was improper to institute an action for the issue of the writ, while, in spite of Casey v. Casey. 15 Gr. 390, and Munro v. Munro, 15 Gr the jurisdiction of the Court to grant 431. relief on petition must be exercised under the method pointed out by the practice. Gray y. Balkwill, 5 W. L. R. 257, 6 Terr. L. R. 283.

Want of prosecution.]-On motion to dismiss for want of prosecution, nothing having been done for a year, order made that plaintiff elect within a week as to what order shall issue. Lauxon v. Crawford, 12 O. W. R. 1156.

5. FORM OF ACTION.

Exception to — Delay in presentation — Dismissal — Notice of motion,] — The plaintiff sued the defendant in the Circuit Court for the sum of $15, the value of a sheep strangled by the plaintiff's dog. The defendant answered by an exception to the form, alleging that he ought to have been first brought en conciliation. Regular notice of the deposit and of the day of presentation of the motion was given to the plaintiff. On the day fixed the defendant did not bring on his motion, and several days afterwards he gave a new notice of its presentation :— Held, that the motion should have been presented on the day fixed in the first notice, and that the delay in presentation was a sufficient ground for its rejection. Noel v. Garneous, 17 Que, S. C. 346.

Heirs.] — Arts 135, 174 (3) C. P. C. Andrews v. Frankenburg (1900), 17 Que. S. C. 313. Digested under PARTIES.

Personnelle-hypothecaire-Demurrer.] —An action to recover a sum of money and to have it declared a charge on land and to have such charge enforced by sale will lie. Although the Code of Procedure does not expressly sanction such an action (personnelle-hypothecaire), there is nothing in it opposed thereto, and it is warranted by the constant, immemorial practice in this country. A demurter will not be struck out because it is extraordinarily long and in the form of a factum. Belgarde v. Carrier, 3 Que. P. R. 238.

10. SETTLEMENT OF ACTION.

Bona fide settlement.] — This action was brought to determine whether a certain settlement of the original action was valid and binding on the defendants.—Held, that it was; that defendant B., as a partner, had power to make the settlement, to engage solicitors, and that defendant D. confirmed this. The settlement was bona fide and made after careful consultation with solicitors and connsel. Can. Bank of Commerce v. Donoghue (1900), 12 W. L. R. 30.

Dismissal.] — Defendant had certain household goods stored in a public build-ing in Toronto Junction. In 1905 the town solicitor notified him to remove his goods, and at his request carted them to the G. T. R. and shipped them to defendant at Prescott, the town solicitor undertaking to pay freight. When goods arrived at Prescott, defendant had moved to Belleville. Here he received notice from G. T. R. that his goods were at Prescott. He notified them that it was their duty to deliver his goods to his proper address, Belleville. Defendant never received his goods, they not being called for at Prescott; they were sent to the lock-up warehouse in Toronto. Defendant brought action against Toronto Junction and G. T. R., and after negotiations was dismissed as against the town on payment of a certain sum. Application was made to Master in Chambers for order dismissing the action. An issue was directed to try the question whether the action was settled :--Held, that there ther the action was settled :---ried, that there was no settlement. Issue found in favour of defendant, who is entitled to his disburse-ments if any. Grand Trunk Ruc. Co. v. Broom (1909), 14 O. W. R. 824, 1 O. W. N. 135.

Authority to sue.] — The law which authorises the curator to take action on behalf of the insolvent, makes him the representative of all the creditors for the purposes of such action, and at the same time he represents the insolvent; the creditors cannot afterwards, under the pretence of exercising their debtor's rights, take individual actions for the same purpose. Lamarche v. Wilson (1910), 11 Que. P. R. 347.

Conseil judiciaire — Disacoverl — Common interest.]—A conseil judiciarie has no right to take, in the name of him to whom he has been named conseil, judicial proceedings, even when such conseil has a personal interest in such proceedings. Beauchamp v. Gourde, Que, R. 20 S. C. 200.

Covenant - Action on - See LANDLORD AND TENANT-MORTGAGE.

Dilatory exception—Payment of costs of former action—C. P. 177, 278.]—Proceedings upon a petition for the interdiction of an habitual drunkard will be suspended until the costs on a previous petition to the same effect, which was dismissed for irregularities, have been paid. Monti v. Amyot (1910), 11 Que. P. R. 298.

Disavowal—Direct action for — Act of disavoural—Necessity for—Affidavit—Costs— Demarrer,]—An act of disavowal is necessary only where disavowal is sought in a pending action, and a direct action for disavowal will not be dismissed, upon a defence in law, for default of production at the record office of an act of disavowal. 2. In any event, the signature to an affidavit at the foot of the petition for disavowal is equivalent to such an act, in a direct action for disavowal. 3. Evidence before determination in law will be ordered upon a defence in law made in a direct action of disavowal by the plaintiff in the original action, arainst that part of the claim in the action of disavowal which asks costs against the original plaintiff. Leusis v. Richard, 2 Que P. R. 426.

Disavowal—Pending action — Action in disavowal—Exception to form.]—Where a disavowal is made in regard to a claim which is the subject of a pending action, it must be made in that action; and a direct action in disavowal will be dismissed upon exception to the form. Gaucher v. Bazin, 6 Que. P. R. 141.

Eliciting judicial promouncement.]-Actions at law do not lie for the mere purpose of eliciting a judicial pronouncement on a question of law, and the interest plaintiffs must have in them means an interest to have a right enforced or a wrong redressed. Hence, a plaintiff, in an action to rescind a contract, who does not set out an injury or wrong growing out of it, and avers the necessity of resorting to further proceedings, if successful, does not disclose such an interest as is required by Art. 77 C. P. Montreal Harbour Commissioners v. Record Foundry (1009), 38 Que S. C. 161.

AFFIDAVITS.

Afidavits for conservatory attachment-Grounds of belief-Donation-Debt-Demand.] — An affidavit for conservatory attachment, founded upon belief, must state the grounds of such belief. 2. Where a conservatory attachment is based upon a donation, the affidavit, and not only the declaration, must shew that the debt is due and exigible, and that the deed of donation has been registered, and must also state that a demand of payment has been made of the moneys claimed in virtue of such donation.

Arrest.]—An affidavit for capies alleging that it is probable that the defendant is immediately to leave the province, but not stating the grounds of deponent's belief, is uncertain and insufficient. Shuman v. Goodman (1969), 10 Que. P. R. 256.

Attachment of debts. |--It was agreed that the issue should be determined in a summary way up a affidavits:--Held, that the claimant, being really the plaintiff in an issue, was entitled to file affidavits in reply to those filed by plaintiff in the action. *Bry*son v. Rosser (1969), 10 W. L. R. 317; 18 Man. R. 658.

Commissioner, who was appellant's attorney in the Court below, may receive an affidavit on review from a magistrate's Court, Northrup v. Perkina, 37 C. L. J. 706.

Commissioner's qualifications.] — The official qualification of a person who has witnessed the signature of a person to an adidavit, and couched in the following words: "Commissioner. Superior Court, district of Joliette," is, on its face, apparently sufficient, the description of the qualification of a commissioner who receives an affidavit is really insufficient, the seizing party should raise the point by an exception to the form, and not by motion to reject the opposition. Drainville v. Saroie & Drainville (1910), 11 Que, P. R. 437.

Criminal information — Libel — Affidavit in reply—Practice, R. v. Whelan (1862), 1 P. E. I. R. 220.

Cross-examination on — Motion for injunction.] — Counsel for the defendant objected to the plaintiff's affidavit being read, as he had served notice asking that the plaintiff be produced for cross-examination on his affidavit, but the plaintiff and objected to being cross-examined: --Held, that Rules 385 and 420, taken together, compel the production for cross-examination of a deponent on his affidavit, if required by the opposite party, before such affidavit can be used. Russell v. Saunders, 20 C, L. T. 251, 7 B. C. B. 173.

Gross-examination on.]—Rules 385 and 429 taken together compet the production for cross-examination of a denoment on his affidavit if required by the onnosite party before such affidavit can be used. Westphalen v. Edmonds, 7 B. C. R. 175.

Marksman-Certificate of Commissioner.] —The afflowit on which a rule nisi for a certiorari was granted was made by a marksman. Objection was taken on shewing cause that the certificate of the commissioner before whom the affidavit was sworn was not a compliance with Rule 1 of Hilary Term 11 V., in that the word "fully" was used insited of "perfectly" in the clause "who seemed perfectly to understand same".— Held, a sufficient compliance with the Rule. Ex p. Allain, 20 C. L. T. 87, 35 N. B. R. 107.

Oath of facts.]--Affidavits are not verified by a hold general statement that the allegations in a pleading are true. They should contain a statement under oath of facts or circumstances which, taken together, prove the allegations to be true, from which the Court of Judge may be satisfied that the party applying has a prime facic case for the defendants to answer. 1, ALIEN LABOUR.

Advertisement for labourers - Promise of employment.] - The defendants had published in a Seattle newspaper this advertisement:—" Wanted, first-class muchinists. Apply Vancouver Encineering Works. Ltd., Vancouver, B.C.—Held, that the advertisement did not contain a promise of employment within the meaning of the Allen Labour Act, as amended by I Edw. VII., c. 13. s. 4. Docnie v. Vancouver Engineering Works, 24 C. L. T. 284, 10 B. C. R. 367, 8 Can. Cr. Cas, 66.

Conviction—County Court Judge.] — A Judge of a County Court has no jurisdiction to convict for an offence under the Act to restrict the importation and employment of aliens, 60 & 61 Vict. c. 11 (Can.), and the amending Act, 1 Edw, VII. c. 13, where the offence was not committed within his territorial jurisdiction. The objection that the Act was ultra vires was raised but not decided. R. v. Forbes, Exe p. Chestanut (1996), 37 N. B. R. 402, 1 E. L. R. 437.

Importation of alien labour—Convictions of distillery company.]—Previous contract — "Clizen" — "Resident"—Skilled workmen—New industry — Quashing conviction—Costs. R. v. Corby Distillery Co., 9 O. W. R. 762.

Importing alien labourer — "Knowingly"—Conviction—Amendment — Evidence of alienage—Person born abroad of British parents.)—Conviction of the defendant for that he did unlawfully prepay the transportation and assist and encourage the importation and unsignation of an alien and a foreigner from the United States into Canada under contract and agreement made previous thereto to perform labour and service in Canada by working at a factory, quashed as clearly bad on its fact, insamuch as the conviction did not state that the defendant "knowingly" did the nets charged, nor in fact did the information charge him with having "knowingly" done them, as required under I Edw, VIL c. 13, s. 3.—Held, also, that this onlession from the information and conviction of one of the essential elements of the offence was not a mere irregularity and informality or insufficiency within the meaning of s. 889 of the Criminal Code. It was not a matter of form merely, but of substance, and a fatal and incurable defect in the conviction. Semble, also, that the person imported by the defendant was not an alien, but a British subject, the presumption from the only facts in evidence being that he was born of British parents residing in the United States. R. y. Hayes, 23 C. L. T. 88, 5 O. L. R. 198, 2 O. W. R. 123.

Importation of foreign labours—Act of agent and liability—Alien labourer—Residence in one foreign country, domicile in another—Statutes—"Skilled labour for the purpose of a new industry."]—A person who, as the agent of a company, procures the immigration into Canada of an alien labourer, in violation of the Alien Labour Act, is guilty of the offence created, and liable for the fine imposed therein, as if he were a principal acting for himself. 2. It is a violation of the Alien Labour Act to import, or assist in importing, an alien labourer who resides in a foreign country that enacts and retains in force laws of a similar character, even though such labourer should be a citizen of and have his domicile in another foreign country that does not enact and retain in force such laws. enact and retain in force such mass. So Skilled labour for the purpose of a new industry in s. 9 (b) of R. S. C. c. 97, in-cludes all skilled labour and is not limited to special skilled labour not to be found in when a manufactory of Canada. Hence, steel cars is established, as a new industry in Canada, rivetters may be imported from the United States for the purpose, if, in consequence of an unusual demand, they cannot be otherwise obtained, though rivetters are employed in other industries in Canada. Francq v. Disney, Q. R. 17 K. B. 488; R. v. Disney, 14 Can. Crim. Cas. 152.

Penalty-Action for.]-The plaintiff in an action brought to recover the penalty proan action blockin to resolve the participation of the Allen Labour Act (60 & 61 V. c, 11, 1 Edw. VII. c, 13) is bound to give security for costs. Lawrin v. Raymond, 7 Que, P. R. 209, 29 Que, S. C. 101.

Penalty-Action for-Consent of Judge.] -Section 2 of the Alien Labour Act, R. S. C. 1906, ch. 97, forbids the importation of workmen, and provides a penalty; and sec. 4 pro-vides that the penalty may, with the written consent of any Judge of the Court in which the action is intended to be brought, be sued for and recovered as a debt by any person who first brings his action therefor :--Held, v. Henderson (1910), 14 W. L. R. 170, 19 Man, 649.

Penalty-Recorder's Court - Jurisdiction -Limitation of actions-Period of prescription.]-Penalties concerning the importation and employment of aliens mentioned in 1 Edw. VII. c. 13, s. 1, may be recovered be-fore the recorders, subject to the formalities therein mentioned. The prescription of an action, suit, or information for any penalty is of two years, according to s. 930 of the Criminal Code. Montreal Harbour Commissioners v. Recorder's Court (1906), 8 Que. P. R. 63, affirmed.

Written consent of Judge to proseention-Requisites of consent.]-Appeal by defendant from a conviction by a magistrate (acting with the written consent of the junior Judge of the County of Carleton) for unlawfully and knowingly assisting the importation of an alien and foreigner into Canada under contract and agreement made previous to his importation to perform labour and services in Canada contrary to 60 & 61 V. c. 11 (D), as amended by 61 V. c. 2 (D.), and 1 Edw. VII. c. 13 (D.):--Held, the written consent did not comply with the intention of the statute, as it should contain a general statement of the offence alleged to have been committed, mentioning the name of the person in respect of whom the offence is alleged to have been committed, and the time and place, with sufficient certainty to identify the particular offence intended to be charged. Conviction quashed. R. v. Breckenridge, 6 O. W. R. 501, 10 O. L. R. 459.

2. CHINESE IMMIGRATION.

Chinese Immigration Act, 1900-Deportation of Chinamen-Habeas corpus.]-Held, that where a Chinaman, who contracts with a transportation company for his passage from China through Canada to the United States, on the understanding that if he is refused admittance to the States he will be deported to China by the company, is refused admittance to the States and is being deported, he will not be granted his discharge on habens corpus proceedings, as the contract is not illegal, and under the Chinese Immi-gration Act, 1900, deportation is proper. 3. DEPORTATION OF ALIENS.

Convict—Immigrant passenger—Canadian domicile.]—The applicant came to Canada from the United States of America on the 27th February, 1910. She then resided in the city of Vancouver continuously for more than there ware. On the 4th March 1010 than three years. On the 4th March, 1910, she was convicted in Vancouver of being an inmate of a house of ill-fame. She then went on a visit to the State of Washington. and, on attempting to return to Canada, was arrested and ordered by the Immigration authorities to be deported :--Held, on a motion for a habeas corpus, that she came within sec. 3 (d) of the Immigration Act, as an immigrant passenger who had been convicted of a crime involving moral turpitude; and did not come within the exception, not being a Canadian citizen and not having a Canadian domicile, as defined by sec. 3. A person claiming a Canadian domicile must shew this to have been ac-quired "after having been landed in Can-ada," within the meaning assigned to " landed " by sec. 2 (p). Re Murphy (1910), 15 W. L. R. 381.

Dominion statute-Intra vires.]-Held, that s. 6 of Dom. statute 60 & 61 V. c. 11, as amended by 1 Edw. VII. c. 13, s. 13, is intra vires of Dom. Parliament. The Crown intra vires of Dom. Parliament. In even undoubtedly possessed power to expel an alien from the Dom, or to deport him to the country whence he entered it. The above Act, assented to by the Crown, delegated that power to the Dom, Gov., which includes and authorizes them to impose such extra-terri-Autorizes them to impose such extra-terri-torial constraint as is necessary to execute the power. Judgment of Anglin, J., Re Cain, Re Gilhula, 10 O. L. R, 469, 6 O. W. R. 124, 41 C. L. J. 573, reversed, Atty-Genl, for Can. v. Cain, Atty-Genl, for Can. v. Gilhula, [1906] A. C. 542.

Right of exclusion and deportation - Foreign law - Finding of fact - Review by Appellate Ct.-International law-Trespass in foreign country-Wrongful entry.]

-The Court on appeal will not disregard the finding of Judge who tries a question of fact without a jury on eiks voce evidence, and substitute for it a finding which they may thick should have been made, unless they are satisfied the Judge was wrong, and the onus of shewing that is on party moving. If question is left in doubt the presumption that the Judge was right is not displaced.-The eivil liability arising out of a wrong derives its birth from the law of the place, and its character is determined by that law. Therefore the plainiff, an alien, being unlawfully within U. S. territory in violation of an Act of Congress, and liable to be deported, has no right of action in this arrest in, and deportation from, that country.-Foreign law is a matter of fact to be ascertained by evidence of experts akilded in such law. Where evidence is unastisfactory conclusion upon the question of foreign law is C. S. N. B. 1903, c. 127, a 60,--By international law, and apart from any civil enactment, a source state has the right at its pleasure to extende the command and on behalf of the state of which he is the servant. Papageorgious V. Twerner, 37. N. B. 449, 1-E. L. R. 387.

4. NATURALIZATION OF ALIENS.

Allegiance — Commissioner of Superior Court-Public officer-Failure to take oath -Effect on proceedings.] — A commissioner of the Superior Court is not a public officer within the meaning of Arts. 500 et seq. R. S. Q., and is not obliged to take the oath of allegiance; and if he were, his failure to take the oath would not invulidate proceedings signed by him. Lamalice v. Electric Printing Co., 4 Que. P. R. 266.

Allegiance-Renewed of-Commissioners -Accession of sovereign.]-Quare, whether the commissioners of the Superior Court for the district of Quebec are obliged to take the onth of allegiance or to renew it on the accession of a new sovereign. Lamalice v. La Compagnie d'Imprimerie Electrique, 4 Que. P. R. 63.

British Columbia Naturalisation Act, ss. 13, 14, 15, 19.]-Under above sections that certificate of naturalization should not be granted by officials authorized to take oaths of aliens applying for naturalization, unless evidence is taken of at least two credible, Canadian-born subjects, shewing that applicant is a person of good character, the time he has resided in Canada, his intention to remain in Canada, the evidence to be taken in writing and filed with the clerk of the Court. Re Fukuichi Aho (B.C.), (1909), 9 W. British Columbia Provincial Elections Act-Powers of Provincial Legisla fure-B. N. A. Act. -Section 91, s.s. 25, of the British North America Act reserves

Powers of County Court Judge. By amendments of 1903 to Naturalization Act, the scope of the Judge's duty, as limited by decision in In re Webster, T. C. L. J. 39, is changed, and the Judge, upon an opposition being filed, or an objection taken in open Court to granting of certificate, has power to take any necessary measures to satisfy himself as to the truth of facts stated by applicant, and of his fitness to become a British subject. *Re Mal*sufuro, 8 W. L. R. 37: In re Saddjiro Malsufuro, 13 B. C. R. 417.

5. CIVIL RIGHTS OF ALLENS.

Jurisdiction of Quebec Courts – Property in Quebec — Service of process — Subject of action.] — Quebec Courts have jurisdiction in an action for an account against an alien, who has been regularly served with process at a place therein where he owns property. The fact that he resides in A foreign country, when he owns property in Que, does not oust the jurisdiction of the Courts, even when the action for account has its foundation in a claim by plaintiff for administration of estate of her decensed mother, who at time of her death owned property both in this province and in such foreign country, and who at such time resided in such foreign country. De Bigaré v. De Bigaré, 14 Que, K. B. 26.

Right to sue qui tam for penalty-Non-registration of partnership.]-An alien has no right to institute a qui tam action in bis own name and in the name of His Majosty to recover a penalty from the members of a partnership who have not registered the declaration required by law. Bauer v. Dinning, 9 Que, P. R. 325.

place him in an asylum, when he has not been declared a lunatic. Ouimet v. Ouimet, 21 Que. S. C. 479.

Husband in gaol.]--A married woman, common as to property, whose husband is in gaol, may, with his authorisation, institute an action for an alimentary allowance. She may also claim such allowance on behalf of her minor children without having been appointed turix to them. Connolly v. Connolly, 9 Que, P. R. 309.

Liability of relatives by marriage.] —The remedy of a party claiming an alimentary aliowance is limited, by virtue of art. 167, C. C., as regards descendants by marriage to living sons-in-law, and does not extend to the husband of a granddaughter. Deschines v. Morin, 10 Que. P. R. 90, 35 Que. S. C. 95.

Liability of step-son.]--A child, issue of a prior marriage, cannot be suid for an alimentary allowance by the widow of his father. Oliver v. Woodfine, 7 Que. P. R. 444.

Obligation to pay—Petition for discharge—Remedy by action.] — The person linkle to pay an alimentary allowance, and seeking relief therefrom, must proceed by action, not by petition.—One who contests a petition for such relief should not do so by inscription in haw, and if he does so, he will be allowed only costs of an oral contestation. Michaud v, Moreau, 9 Que, P. R. 330.

Petition to proceed in forma pamperis - Dismissed - New petition - New Jacts.] - A petition to proceed in forma pupperis for alimentary allowance, shortly after the dismissal of a former one to the same effect, must disclose new facts which have arisen since the judgment, to justify its being granted, Guilbert v. St. Jean, 9 Que, P. R. 259.

Reduction — Action — Petition.]—The reduction of an alimentary allowance granted by a judgment must be demanded by an action, and not by a petition in the cause in which the judgment was rendered. Mc-Craw v. Vaillancourt, 7 Que. P. R. 396.

ANIMALS.

Agister of Animals-Death of animals -Evidence-Exposure to cold.]-The plaintiff, on the afternoon of the 24th April, delivered to the defendant, for agistment, a healthy colt, 10 months old; the colt died on the night of the same day or early the next morning, and the plaintiff sued the defendant for negligence, alleging that it was improper to leave the colt in a shed for the night. The evidence shewed that there were 5 degrees of frost that night.—Heid, in the absence of any clear evidence as to the cause of death, and accepting expert evidence that 5 degrees of frost would not affect a 10 months' old colt, that there was no negligence on the part of the defendant within the authorities reviewed in the judgment. O'Connor v, Reid (1910), 13 W. L. R. 401.

Agistment — Absence of agreement.] — Had defendant a lien upon certain cattle for their keep the ownership not being disputed? —Heid, that he had not, as (1) there was no express lien, (2) there is no common law lien in favour of agisters, nor (3) is there any lien by implication of law. Judgment for plaintiff. Morrison v. Bryan, 12 W. L. R. 415.

Agistment of cartle-Loss of Reasonable care-Price paid-Custon of locality-Negligence.]--Although one who takes animuls to pastare them should give them the care of a "bon piece de famille." the extent of this obligation is, nevertheless, dependent on the price paid for such pasturage, and the custom of the locality. Therefore, it is unreasonable to expect that for a moderate price a man should watch the animals constantly and if one of them disappears, it is the owner who should bear the loss, at least, unleas he can prove negligence on the part of the owner of the land. Bees, escape of -Injury to neighbour.] -Defendant placed a large number of hives of bees upon his own land within 100 feet of plaintiff's land. While plaintiff was at work with two horses upon his own land the bees attacked and stung the horses so that they died and also stung and injured plaintiff. In an action to recover damages for his loss and injury, the jury found, inter alia, that the bees were in ordinary flight at time of occurrence: that they were defendant's bees; and that defendant had reason-able grounds for believing that his bees were. able grounds for believing that his bees were, by reason of the situation of his hives, or their numbers, dangerous to persons or horses upon the highway or elsewhere than on defendant's premises : - Held, that the doctrine of scienter, or notice of mischievous propensities of bees, had no application, nor could the absence of negligence, other than as found by jury, relieve defendant; it was his right to have on his premises a reasonable number of bees, so placed as not un-fairly to interfere with rights of his neighbour, but if the number was unreasonable, or if they were so placed as to interfere with his neighbour in the fair enjoyment of his lawful became an unlawful act; the finding of jury meant that the bees, because of their number and situation, were dangerous to plaintiff and defendant was liable for injury flowing directly from his unlawful act. Judgment of Magee, J., affirmed. Lucas V. Pettii (1906), 12 O. L. R. 448, S O. W. R. 315.

Castration of a stallion running at large contrary to the provisions of the Entre Animals Ordinance is a "maining" of the stallion within the meaning of s. 510 (B. b.) of the Criminal Code. The fact that the owner of the stallion had expressed an intention to castrate it was held to be no justification of the unauthorised act of the defendant. The interference by the stallion with the defendant's mares also running at large was also held to be no justification, the defendant being in such case at best a mere license of the land over which the mares grazed: McLean v. Rudd, 1 A. L. R. 505, followed. The proper test in such a case is the question, Did the defendant do what he did honestly believing the act to be necessary for the protection of his property? Proof of actual malice is not necessary under this section, but although the word "malicionsly" is not used. legal malice, such as would establish that mens res, without which there can be no criminal intent, must be proven. The fact that the defendant committed the net without any stallions, and the evidence adduced not shewing that he honesitly believed the act uncessary to protect his property: PHeld, that legal malice was sufficiently proven. R. v. Krosening, 2 Alta, R. 275, 10 W. L. R. 649, 16 Can, Cr. Cos. 212.

Cattle trespassing on land — Escope from highway — Fences — Municipal by-law —Municipal Act, ss. 6/3 (b), 6/4/ (d).]— Sub-section (b) of s. 6/43 and s.s. (d) of s. 644 of the Manitoba Municipal Act must be read as supplementing each other: and the power by by-law to limit or take away altogether the right to recover damages for loss sustained by cutle trespassing cannot be held to extend to cases where the cattle trespass from a highway whereon by law they ought not to be. Judgment of Cumberland, Co. C.J., affirmed. Jack v. Stevenson (1910), 13 W. L. R. 486, 19 Man. L. R. 717

Cottle trespassing on land — Fences — Common law right — Municipal bylaw — Municipal Act, s. $6^{(1)}_{(1)}$ (d.) — At common law the owner of animals must keep them from trespassing upon the lands of other persons, even though such lands are unfenced. By s.s. (d) of s. 644 of the Municipal Act, a municipality may pass a by-law for limiting the right to recover damages for any injury done by cattle, etc., trespassing upon had, to cases in which the land is enclosed by a fence of the by-law. A by-law of a rural municipality declared that it should be unlawful for any person to permit his cattle, etc., tor un at large in the municipality, and no one should be at liberty to claim damages against the owner of the cattle, "unless he shall have surrounded his lands and premises with a lawful fence as defined by by-law of this municipality." No by-law was proved which shewed what should constitute a lawful fence. The plaintiff's land was not fenced at all, and the defendant's cattle came on and did damage:—Held, that the plaintiff's common law right had not been taken away by the by-law, and he was entitled to recover damages from the defendant. Judgment of Prud'homme, Co. C.J., reversed. Dalgiel v. Zastie (1910), 13 W. L. R. 488, 19 Man. L. R. 353.

Contagions diseases.] — Plaintiff not knowing a cow was affected with tuberculosis sold it to defendant. half cash and half on time:-Held, that the sale was illegal under s, 2 of the Bom. Animals Contagious Diseases Act, and plaintiff could not recover balance of purchase money. North v. Martin, 7 E. L. R. 439.

Cruelty to animals. See CRIMINAL LAW.

Dog-lajury to child-Contributory fault.] —The respondent's son, aged thirteen, was provoking or exciting a bull-dog owned by the appellant, by stamping on the floor and calling him by name, when the appellant's daughter, aged nineteen, opened the door and allowed the dog to fly at the child and bite him:-Hold, that the appellant was responsible for the injuries inflicted on the boy, notwithstanding the fact that he had irritated the dog, a child of that age not being expected to shew the prodence and thoughtfulness which would be expected and required from an adult under similar circumstances. Bernier V. Genéreuz, Que. R. 12 K. B. 24.

Dog-Wilfully killing-Compensation to owner.]--1. On a summary conviction under Code s. 537 for wilfully killing a dog, the whole penalty, which is not to exceed $100 "over and above the amount of injury done," belongs to the Crown, and there is adjudication was that the defendant pay the fine of $1 and costs and further pay the owner $20 damages for the loss of the dog, the summary conviction will be amended by striking out the award of damages. 3. An amended conviction imposing a fine of $21 is had as not conforming with the adjudication. 4. Code s. 539, which empowers the magistrate in certain cases to award compensation up to $20 to the person aggrieved, does not apply to the offence of killing a dog for which Code s. 537 provides a punishment. R. v. Cook, 16 Can, Cr. Cas. 234.

Escape from field upon railway — Defective fence — Liability of neighbour for.]—The owner in default in respect of maintenance of his part of line fence between two adjoining farms is responsible for loss of animals of his neighbour, which, passing through a breach in the fence, reach a railway where they are killed by a train. Paradis y, Parks, 32 Que, S. C. 2032.

Fences-Animals at large-Liability of other of lands insufficiently or dangerously enclosed, --Owner of a mane allowed her to run at large, and straying on to lands of defendant, was killed, as the result of coming into contact with a single strand of barb wire stretched on posts about defendant's property :--Heid, that plaintiff could not recover damages from defendant: that at most plaintiff could not stand in a better position than that of a bare licensee: and that owners of animals in Alta, allowing them to run at large, must take the rike of nccidents from ill-constructed or insufficiently constructed fences.--Semble, that owner of unenclosed or insufficiently enclosed lands would be liable for damages resulting to estrays by reason of a damgerous trap (e.g., an unenclosed well) on his property. McLean v. Rudd, 1 Alta. L. R. 505, 9 W. L. R. 283.

Harbouring vicious dog.]—A wife, separate as to property, is liable for damages caused by her husband's vicious dog when harboured at their common domicile, although it is her private property, particularly when it is proved that the dog was harboured with her full consent and approval, notwithstanding that she had full knowledge of the dangerous character of the dog. Hugron v. Statton (1900), 18 Que. S. C. 200.

Horse on highway—Dangcross animal —Inivity to child)—The defendant's horse being on the highway, a boy of twelve years of age approached to catch him by taking hold of a rope then around his neck, when the boy was kicked and injured. There was no evidence that the defendant knew that the horse was accustomed to stray or had any vicious propensity, nor was the horse shewn to have such fault, and there was evidence that the horse had been interfered with by several boys, of whom the injured boy was one, and that the latter had more than ordinary intelligence and fully understood the risk he ran. In an action by the boy and his father:—Held, that they could not recover. Patternov, Fansing, 2 O. L. R. 462, distinguished. Flett v. Coulter, 23 Oce, N. 11, 5 O. L. R. 375, 1 O. W. R. 775, 2 O. W. R. 142.

Horse—Payment for keep.]—The obligation, quasi-contractual, to reimburse money expended upon the chaitel of another person (in this case a horse), arises from the fact of ownership of the chaitel, which it is necessary to prove against one from whom reimbursement is sought, Richard v. Stevenson (1006), 28 Que. S. C. 188.

Horse — Runatoy,] — An owner's responsibility for his animal, recomined by art, 1055 C. C., arises from fault, but such fault is presumed to exist until proved to the contrary by the owner. Therefore, the proprietor of a runaway horse is not responsible for the resulting damages if it is proved that the horse was frightened by fortuitous event and without fault on his owner's part. Birmingham v. Gallery, 36 Que, 8, C. 481.

Horses infected with disease — Animal Contaions Disease Act. R. S. C. 1906, ch. 75, sec. 38—Absence of evidence to abete knowledge of vendor — Illegat contract — Lien-notes — Action on Comnensation-money — Amendment — Money had and received — Dunages — Costs — Warranty.] — The Animal Contagious Diseases Act. R. S. C. 1906, ch. 75, was passed for the protection of the public; and by sec 38 Parliament intended to prohibit the sale of an animal infected with disease, whether the vendor knows it to be so infected or not.—And where lien-notes were given by the defendant hen-notes were given by the detendant for the purchase-price of two horses which were, at the time of sale. Infected with glanders, and which, after they came into the defendant's possession were killed by the government veterinary surgeon : - Held, that the contract of sale was illegal, although there was no evidence that the plaintiff knew of the disease, and the lien-notes were void ; and an action upon the notes was dismissed but the plaintiff was allowed to amend and to claim and recover the sum of $200 received by the defendant for compensation-money from the government, as money had and received by the defendant for the plaintiff's use .- There being no contract, the defendant was not neighbor contract, the detengant was not entitled to damages, but was entitled to the costs of the action, to be set off pro tanto against the $200;-Held, also, upon the evidence, that the defendant failed to prove a warranty. Nickle v. Harris (1910), 14 W. L. R. 515, 3 Sask, L. R. 200.

Infections disease - Opportunity for inspection.] - The rule caveat emptor only protects the vendor against damages resulting to him by decrease in the actual value of the articles sold, but where there is collateral damage to person or property of the purchaser occasioned by a defect in the article sold, which is known to the wendor, the rule caveat emptor will not protect him. A vendor of horses, some of which are horses affected with a contagious disease. is not liable to the purchaser for damage occasioned to the sound horses by reason of their mingling together when delivered, where the purchaser has an equal oppor-tunity with the vendor of inspecting the animals before delivery. Collateral damages, however, which flow from the negligence of the vendor in not warning the purchaser of the existence of the contagious disease in some of the horses, such as the cost of keeping the horses in quarantine, etc., are charge-mble to the vendor. Urch v. Strathcona Horse Repository, 2 Alta. R. 183, 10 W. L. R. 475.

Injury by — Liability of owner.] — Owner of an animal, being liable for injuries caused by the animal, is presumed to be at fault, but he may escape liability by abswing that the injury was due to the fault of the victim. Martin v. Hogg. 3 E. L. R. 200, 31 Gue. S. C. 529.

Enjury by vicious animal—Liability of owner.]—Owner of an animal is responsible for damage caused by it, at any rate until he proves that he could not have prevented the damage. Therefore, he is responsible for injuries from a bite of a vicious horse, which he should have caused to be muzzled. Matte v. Meldrum Bros. Co., 33 Que. S. C. 396.

Injury to plaintiff by hite from defendant's pet raccoon — Liability — Dangerous animal—Scienter.] — Unless an animal is shewn to be harmless by its very nature, or to belong to a class that has become so by what may be called "cultivation." it falls within the class of animals as to which the rule is, that a man who owns and keeps one must take the responsibility of keeping it safe. Fillburns v, Peoples Palace Co., 25 Q. B. D. 258, followed. In this case, where the plaintiff was bitten by a pet raccoon kept by the defendant, which came upon the plaintiff's premises, it was immaterial whether the animal was a dangerous one, or whether the defendant had any knowledge. The defendant being the owner of the animal, and it having caused damage, the defendant was liable therefor. Andrew v, Kilgour (1910), 13 W, L. R. 608, 19 Man, L. R. 545.

Liem on horse under Livery Stable Keeper's Ordinamce-Purchase by livery stable keeper-Destruction of lien-Animals subject to lien-note for price — Claim by vendor-Replevin-Hong fide purchaser for value without notice.]--The plaintiff sold a pair of horses to M., taking a lien-note for the Ordinance respecting lit under the Ordinance respecting hir receipts and the conditional sale of goods. Afterwards M. toek the horses to the defendant's livery and sale stable for sale, and kept them there four days, after which he sold them to the defendant for $75:-Held. upon the evidence, that the defendant had no hourse, not as the keeper of a feed stable, but as owner; that the plaintiff never repossessed them; that the barese for value without notice; and the plaintiff was entide to a bong fide purchaser for value without notice; and the plaintiff was entited to judgment for the return of the horses, Judgment of McLorg, Dist. Ct. J., reversed. (McRoire V, Senced (1910), 13 W. L. R, 552, 3 Sask, L. R. 69.

Municipal by-law — Cattle "running at large"—Highway.] — Where cattle have escaped from their owner's premises to the highway, and there is no default or negligence on part of owner, who makes suitable efforts to recover them, they are not "running at large" within meaning of a municipal by-law. Spur v. Dominion Atlantic Ruo. Co., 40 N. S. R. 417.

Owner of animal is liable for injury caused by it to a person in voluntary charge of it, when it is shewn that a necessary and customary appliance for leading it, supplied by the owner, was not of sufficient strength. If the person so in charge saw the appliance before taking charge and declared it to be sufficient, the case is one of contributory negligence and the damages will be reduced accordingly. Grenier v. Wilson, 32 Que. S. C. 193.

Right to run at large—Animal killed on unfenced land of stranger—Liability— Common lato — Cuustom — Statutes.]—The plaintiff's and defendant's farms, both unfenced, were separated by a highway. The plaintiff's mare strayed on to defendant's land, ate some poisoned wheat desirned for vermin, and died:—Held, that the defendant was not liable for the loss of the mare. which had no right to be on the defendant's land. Ponting v. Noskes, [1804] 2 Q. B. 281, specially referred to. The common law has not been so modified in Baskatchewan by custom and legislation that it can be said to be lawful for cattle and horses to range at large in unfenced property. Kruse v. Romanowski (1910), 14 W. L. R. 606, 3 Sask, L. R. 274.

Service of mare—Nepligence of owner of stud horse-Motice at to risk.]—Owner of a stud horse on hire is bound to see that the service of mares takes place in a safe and natural manner, and, notwithstanding notice to the public that such service is at the risk of owners of mares, he is liable in damages for a mare killed, while being covered, by faise penetration through want of proper care by those in charge of the animals. Robidour N. McGerrijet, 25 Que, S. C. 174.

Sheep trespassing on neighbour's land — Using dog to drive off sheep.]--Injury to sheep-Liability-Absence of negligence. Carmichael v. Felloe, 9 W. L. R. 15.

Shooting dog — Trespass for shooting dog.)—Master liable for acts of servant done in course of employment: if from facts master's concurrence can be presumed trespass lies, and in the absence of such presumption case against master is the proper remedy. Suebey v. Palmer (1866), Pet. P. E. I. R. 202.

Shooting dog at large.] — Defendant shot plaintiffs dog while at large. He knew the owner of the dog and saw him within call. The dog was doing no injury and defendant did not apprehend that he would: --Held, that R. S. N. S. (1900), c. 61, s. 2, as annended by (1905), c. 63, exconerated defendant, but as his act was one of wanton cruelty costs were refused defendant. Frazer v. Sinclair (1900), 7 E. L. R. 408; S E. L. R. 3.

Stud book — Wager.]—The parties deposited with H. $1,250, of which the defendant contributed $1,000 and the plaintiff $250, and signed a document in which it was set forth that the money was to be held by H, until the determination of the question whether a certain horse in the possession of the defendant (describing it) was the same Horse as described in the British Hackney Stud Book as "Towthorpe Rupert:" the question to be decided by a report from that book. "Should such report shew that the horse . . . be the horse described in the . . book, the whole $1,250 shall be paid to "the defendant. "Should the said report shew that the said horse . . . is not the horse described . . . in the . . book, the said money shall be paid to "the plaintiff.—Held, a wager. Econs v. Robert (1910), 13 W. L. R. 350.

Trespass upon highway-Liability of owner for damage upon adjoining land.] --Where cattle are permitted to trespass upon the public highway, the owner is liable for damage which they may cause upon the land of an adjoining proprietor into which they stray, and in such case it is not a sufficient defence that plainill's fence was not a lawful fence, or that there was a custom among inhabitants of district to fence against cattle. Smith v. Boutiker, 42 N. S. R. 1, 3 E. L. R. 1906.

Victors animal-Liability of owner.]--Plaintiff sought to recover damages from defendant for injuries to plaintiff's ox caused by defendant's oven, which were at time upon highway in violation of a bylaw of municipality.--Held, that without proof of scienter defendant could not be held liable. ANNUITY.

Ademption - Evidence.] - A testator gave by his will to each of two daughters an annuity for life of $6,000. After making the will he gave to one daughter absolutely bonds sufficient to produce an income of a little more than $1,200 a year, and by a codicil reduced her annuity by that amount. He subsequently also gave to the other daughter absolutely bonds sufficient to produce an income of a little more than $1.200 a year, and instructed his solicitor to alter his will so as to reduce her annuity by that amount. He died suddenly, and the will was not altered .--Held, that the doctrine of ademption applied, and that, notwithstanding the different natures of the two gifts, and even without the evidence of intention, second daughter's annuity must be treated as reduced pro tanto .- Held, also, however, that the evidence of intention was admissible and was conclusive. Agreement—Charge on land — Registra ion—Notice.]—Testator by will directed his executor to pay his widow an annuity for support and maintenance of one of his sons until he became of age; but, if there were not sufficient funds therefor, it was to be a charge on separate parcels of land severally devised to three of his other sons. There ment, for valuable consideration, made between widow and said devisees of the lands, it was agreed that the annuity should not be paid out of such moneys but should be a charge upon such lands, the intention being that such moneys should be kept in hand for payment of a legacy to be paid to the first named son on his attaining his maforing. A sale was subsequently made by one of the sons of the parcel of land devised to him. The purchaser, being informed as to an agreement having been told that it in no way affected the land, but merely created a personal obligation to pay the annuity, made no further inquiry with regard to it.—Heid, that purchaser could not be deemed to have purchased the land with notice of contents of the agreement be and with notice of contents of the land in the Registry Act discussed. Coolidge v. Nelson. 20 C. L. T. 225, 31 O. R. 640.

Charge on land—Action to recover arrears—Payments—Evidence of — Interest— Report—Appeal — Further directions — Sale in default of payment.)—Planniffs brought action to recover arrears claimed to be due in respect of an annuity of $225, which Wm. Hayward, under whom defendants claimed, covenanted by deed to pay his father, whose personal representatives the plaintiffs were. The Master made a report as to amount due plaintiffs—Meredith, C.J.C.P., held, that while payments were made in cash and produce on account of the annuity, yet the evidence did not warrant the finding of the Master that the instalments which became due prior to the 1st of October, 1906, were paid. That the amount found due by the Master should be increased to $2,000. That appellants were not entitled to interest. No costs of appeal or cross-appeal to either should be judgment for payment of the $2,000 and the costs provided for by the original judgment, and for the subsequent costs (not including costs of the appeal), and in the usual form for sale of the lands in default of payment. Charge on land—Life tenant and remainderman — Apportionment.] — Where an annuity is charged on lands, and, subject thereto, a life estate is devised to one party and the remainder to others, the case falls within the rule that the periodic payments of the annuity are to be treated, "partly as interest which the tenant for life had to pay and partly as principal for which she would have charge on the inheritance in the proportion which the value of the life estate bore to the value of the reversion": Whiteself v, Reece, 5 O. L. R. 352, 2 O. W. R. 160, Jones v, Meson, 39 Ch. D. 357; and this although the testator, in his life time, made provision for the nayment of a portion of the annuity by conveying a parcel of land to one of the remaindermen and taking a moritgage back payable 800 a year until the death of the annuitant. Britton, J., in Reece v, Whiteedl, 6 O. W. R. 566.

Creation of fund for-Right to resort to corpus.]-The testator by his will made certain specific bequests and devises, and then gave to his executors all the residue of his property, real and personal, in trust to provide means to pay the expenses of administration, to pay debts, and to pay the beastranon, to pay debts, and to pay the be-quests thereinafter made, with power to the executors to sell lands, etc., "to deposit at interest, lend on security of mortgages, or invest in the Dominion funds any balance that may be on hand at any time, to form a fund to keep up the yearly payments to my sisters . . . namely, to pay to each one of my sisters . . . $250 a year, or, if there be not so much available in any year, then to divide equally between them what may be available and make up the deficiency to them when there are funds to do it with, and to pay to any of them who may have greater need on account of ill-health or misfortune a greater sum than the others, and a greater sum than $250." The will then directed the executors, after sufficient funds had been invested to keep up the payments to the sisters, to pay certain specific sums to four named persons, or in like proper-tions to each of them, "if there be not enough to pay them in full," and "to pay to the children of my brother . . . what-ever may remain of the estate:"-Held, that the sisters of the testator had the right to the sisters of the testator had the right to resort to the corpus of the fund provided for the payment of their annuities, if the in-come was sufficient. Right to rank on estate—Annuitant —Attachment of Debta—Assignments Act.]— An insolvent made an assignment to the defendant for the benefit of creditors, pursuant to R. S. O. 1897, c. 147. Previous to the assignment the defendant had covenanced with the plaintiffs to pay to J. R. $100 per quarter on the first day of each quarter during her natural life:—Held, that the growing payments were in the nature of contingent debts; and that the plaintiffs were not entitled under R. S. O. c. 147 to rank upon the estate of the insolvent for the present value of such payments. Grent v. West, 23 A. R. 533, and Mail Printing Co. v. Clarkson, 25 A. R. 1, followed. Semble, that such Jaims are not subject to attachment under the garnishee provisions of the English Judicature Act and Rules, as accruing debts. In re Coucas's Trust, 14 Ch. Sheriff — Bond — Recense of office.] — Pursuant to the terms of his appointment ssheriff and two survives gave a bond to his predecessor in office to pay him an annuity "out of the revenues of the sale office":— Held, that fees received by the sheriff as returning officer at elections of members of Parliament, and commission earned by him as assignce for the benefit of creditors, formed part of the revenues of the office, and that as far as the revenues of each year so ascertained extended, after deducting necessary disbursements connected with the office during such year, the annuity for that year was payable. Smart v. Dana, 5 O. L. R. 451, 2 O. W. R. 287, 24 C. L. 438.

Sheriff-Bond-Condition on appointment to office - Resignation of office-Re-appointment-Subsequent breaches-Liability-Res judicata.]-The plaintiff resigned his office of sheriff, and the defendant was appointed in his place under a commission containing a condition that he should pay the plaintiff "out of the revenues of the said office" a certain sum for his life; and he gave a bond to the plaintiff for the due fulfilment of the condition. Finding that the revenues were not sufficient to pay the amount, the defendant resigned his office, and soon after-wards was re-appointed under a commission without any such condition. In an action on the bond, the plaintiff obtained judgment for the amount of the penal sum, and damages were assessed for the breaches up to the time of the defendant's resignation. A petition was subsequently presented by the plaintiff, ask-ing for assessment of damages for alleged breaches since the re-appointment and for execution. On the trial of an issue as to whether the plaintiff was entitled to execution for any further damages :--Held, that want of good faith was not to be imputed to the Crown, who had the right to permit, and did permit, the defendant's resignation and by accepting it made it effectual, and thereby discharged the condition and all further liability on the bond; that the condition was attached to the first commission, and the annuity was payable only during the occupancy of the office thereunder, and when that commission was gone there ceased to be any contract to pay it. Semble, that there was no implied obligation on the defendant's part to refrain from invoking the consideration of the Crown to relieve him from the obligation it had imposed upon him: Held, also, that the question was not res judicata by the principal judgment, and that the judgment upon the issue was appealable as a final judgment as to matters set up as a defence to further liability in respect of alleged breaches subsequent to the new appointment. Smart v. Dana, 3 O. W. R. 89, 5 O. W. R. 387, 9 O. L. N. 427, 23 C. L. T. 170, 25 Occ. N. 456.

1. APPEALS GENERALLY.

Loss of record is not sufficient reason to strike out an inscription in review. Dupéré v. London & Lancashire Life Assec. Co., 11 Que, P. R. 198.

Questions of fact.) — Where disputed questions of facts are left to the jury, and the Judge's charge distinctly leaves the matter to them to find for plaintiff if they believe his evidence, and for defendant if they believe defendant's evidence, and there is evidence to support a finding either way, the verdict will not be disturbed on appeal. Brenan v. Hopkins (1900), 39 N. B. R. 236.

Question of fact.]--Where the whole quesiton in an action was one of fact, and there was ample evidence to satisfy findings of trial Judge, held, that his findings should not be interfered with. Holland v. Franke (1960), 14 O. W. R. 987. Cooper v. James (1960), 14 O. W. R. 925, 1 O. W. N. 151.

Time for appealing extended where there was no serious prejudice to respondent. Henderson v. Manufacturers (1909), 14 O. W. R. 575.

2. ALBERTA-APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT.

Extending time for giving notice---Delay in moving.]--Where intending appellant had allowed 3 months to elapse from expiry of time for giving notice of appent before moving for an extension of time, and no important principle of law was involved, and amount of judgment was small:--Held, that the trial Judge had properly exercised his discretion in refusing to extend time for giving notice of appeal. Ross v. Robertson, 7 O. L. R. 454, distinguished. Hill v. Barneis, 1 Alta. L. R. 514, 9 W. L. R. 274.

Leave to appeal. |---Under c. 7 of the Acts of Alberta of 1908, s. 6, if leave to appeal is given by the Judge, an appeal may be taken from the judgment of a single Judge on an application to cancel liquor license under s. 57 of Liquor License Ordinance, In re Richelicu Hotel License (1909), 2 Alta. L. R. 64. See 10 W. Lu R. 402.

down for trial, without mention being made of a jury, and it having been set down ac-cordingly, the plaintiff made an application for an order that the action be tried by a jury, and an order was made accordingly by the Judge at the trial, who gave leave to appeal from his order, on the ground that. the action having been once set down for trial without a jury, there was no jurisdiction to make a subsequent order for trial with a jury :- Held, that Rule 170 of the Judicature Ordinance, 1898, was the only provision governing the matter, and, as the action was one arising out of tort and the damages claimed exceeded $500, that Rule applied; but the opening words of the Rule, "on the applica-tion to set a cause down for trial," did not prevent a Judge from exercising the powers conferred by the Rule at another time, having regard to the provisions of Rules 538 and 548 — Semble, also, that if the order for trial by jury was wrong, it was merely an irregularity, and such an irregularity as could be taken advantage of only within a reasonable time, and before the defendants had taken any fresh step with knowledge of the irregularity (Rule 539); and the appellants, al-though they obtained leave to appeal, having gone to trial without renewing at the trial their objection to a trial with a jury, and not having served notice of appeal until after verdict, had waived their right; and their appeal from the order should be dismissed, -3. The action being for damages for personal injuries sustained by the plaintiff, and indement having been given for him against the defendant company for $5,000; Held, that no weight should be given to an pany suggesting, upon hearsay, that since the trial the plaintiff had been successfully operated upon, and that his leg, which had been broken, would be a useful leg, and therefore that upon a new trial the damages might be reduced .-- 4. Upon the argument of the appeal, the defendant company applied for to read affidavits to shew that the plaintiff had never been in the employment of the contractors who were doing the work of construction of the railway at the place where the plaintiff was injured :--Held, that the facts set out in these affidavits, so far as they might have been given as evidence on the trial, were not " matters which occurred after the date of the decision from which the appeal is brought:" Rule 107; and therefore the affidavits were to be considered only as proposed additional material in support of a motion for a new trial; and, as it was not shewn that fresh evidence had been discovered which could not, with reasonable diligence have been discovered before the trial, and which was so conclusive as to make it practically certain that the verdict would have been different had it been adduced at the — trial, the affidavits should not be admitted, —5. The action was brought, not for negli-gence causing the breaking of the plaintiff's leg, but for negligence in the treatment of the plaintiff when injured, it being alleged that the defendant company and the other defendant, their medical or surgical officer, or one of them, were or was responsible for the treatment which resulted in the plain tiff's leg not being properly restored :--Held. that the trial Judge was not bound to compel the plaintiff to elect against which of the defendants he would proceed .--- 6. The plaintiff was 32 or 33 years old, a labourer on public works, ranches and farms. The evidence as to the condition of his leg shewed dence as to the condition of his key snewed that the bones were not in alignment, and that the leg was not as strong and useful as before. To make it so, the leg would have to be broken again and reset, and even then it would be an inch shorter than the other :-Held, that $5,000 damages could not be considered so excessive that the jury could not reasonably award that amount.-7. Counsel for the plaintiff stated to the jury the amount of damages claimed, $10,000 :- Held, that no injustice had arisen from the jury having knowledge of the amount claimed.-Semble. that it is proper for counsel for the plaintiff in his address to the jury to name a sum which he asks them to award, and there is which he asks them to award, and there is no difference between making such a claim orally and reading from the statement of claim.--Tinsley v. Canada West Cool Co., 9 W. L. R. 706, doubted.--8. The jury found that the plaintiff's injury was the result of negligence on the part of the defendants, consisting in the failure of the defendants.company to comply with the terms of the Public Works Health Act regarding the providing of a suitably equipped hospital, a dury authorised physician and attendants; and that the plaintiff was employed in the construction of the railway :--Held, that there was evidence sufficient to support the findings .- 9. It was contended that the Public Works Health Act was, in the words of sec. 2. "for the preservation of health and the mitigation of disease," amongst the employees, and that there was no obligation upon the defendant company to make any provision for accidents .- Held, that this point of law, raised for the first time on the appeal, might had it been raised at the trial, have been shewn, by evidence of additional facts, not to be material for the purpose of the present case, and it was too late for the defendants to ask this Court to give any effect to it .--Stuart, J., concurred with the other members of the Court in dismissing the appeal, but with some doubt whether there was any evidence from which a jury could reasonably conclude that the omission of the statutory duty charged against the defendants really caused the defective condition in the plaintiff's leg .- Judgment of Harvey, J., affirmed. White v. Grand Trunk Pac. Riv. Co. & Hislop (1910), 13 W. L. R. 158.

Order upon appeal — Pronounced but not issued—Application by way of crossappeal—Indulgence—Variation of judgment below. I—Upon the defendant's appeal from the judgment at the trial in favour of the plaintiffs, declaring them entitled to a limited lien, in an action to enforce a mechanic's lien, the Court, in dismissing the appeal, expressed the opinion that the plaintiffs ware entitled to a general lien, but, as the plaintiffs had not moved to vary the judgment, the order pronounced by the Court simply dismissed the defendant's appeal. The formal order not having issued, the plaintiff applied to vary the judgment at the trial, and the Court directed that it should be varied accordingly. Scratch v. Anderson (1910), 13 W. Lz R. 113.

Right of appeal to Court en banc-Award made by Judge — Edmonton city charter — Arbitration Act — Judge's Ordera Enforcement Act-Enforced statutory arbitration-Remedy by action.]-H. attempted to appeal to the Gourt en bane from an award made by Harvey. J., under the provisions of the Edmonton clurter, fixing compensation for lands expropriated. The charter gives no appeal and makes no reference to the Arbitration Act:--Held, that the award was not an order of a Judge within the meaning of ch. 7 of the statutes of 1908, "An Act respecting the Enforcement of Judge's Orders in Matters not in Court:" that the Arbitration Act does not apply to an enforced statutory arbitration, the charter not declaring that the proceedings under it shall be deemed a submission; and that no appeal lay by virtue of these statutes or otherwise to the Court en bane.--Semble, that the only method by which H. could impeach the sward was by action based upon the equitable grounds of frand, misconduct, or mistake. Re Humberstone & Edmonton (1910), 14 W. L. R. 492.

Security for costs-Form of order imposing terms-Stay of proceedings-Powers respectively of trial Judge, single Judge, and Court en banc-Estending time for giving accurity after lapse.] -Where a Judge makes an order for security for costs of appeal under Rule 502, he has not power to impose a term that in default of security being furnished the appeal shall stand dismissed without further order. A stay of proceedings upon terms under Rule 510 can only be granted by trial Judge or Court of Appeal itself, and the parties cannot, by consent. give jurisdiction to any other single Judge, other than the trial Judge, direct that appeal shall dismissed without for or fix such terms.-Consequently, where a single Judge, other than the trial Judge, directed that appeal stand dismissed without further order. 'A ladd, that, outwithstanding the expire of the time, a Judge had power to make an order extending time for giving security under terms of Rule 548. North-West Threater Cox, 200

3. BRITISH COLUMBIA-APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT.

Amending Judge's notes of evidence.] —On hearing an appeal from a County Court Judge, counsel for appellant applied to introduce further evidence allered to have been omitted from Judge's notes of evidence taken at trial. The Court refused application, holding that where a party desires to introduce, on an appeal, evidence alleged to have been omitted from Judge's notes of evidence, he should first apply to Judge to anmend his notes. Rendell v. McLellan, 23 C. L. T. 57, 9 B. C. R. 328.

Amount involved — Mechanics' Lien Act, ss. 23, 24,]—An appeal from the judgment of a County Court Judge for the enforcement of a mechanics' lien for $172.05 was dismissed for want of jurisdiction, "the amount claimed to be owing " having been adjudged to be less than $250, sec. 24 of the Mechanics' Lien Act; and there being no adjudication under sec. 23. Gabrielle v, Jackson Mines Limited, 2 M. M. C. 399, followed. Gillis Supply Co, v. Allan (1910), 14 W. L. R, 458. Appeal book—Paging.]—Pages of appeal books should be numbered at top of pages. Haggerty v. Lenora Mount Sicker Copper Mining Co., 22 C. L. T. 106, 9 B. C. R. 6.

Costs--Appeal partly successful.]--Appellant who is substantially successful is entitled to costs of appeal. The fact that a respondent is successful in some parts of an appeal is not sufficient to deprive appellant, who is substantially successful, of his costs. Centre Star Mining Co. v. Rossland Minere' Union, 24 C. L. T., 198, 10 B. C. R. 48.

County Court appeal — Time — Pronouncing of judgment — Replevin.]—Time for taking an appeal from an ordinary judgment to the Full Court commences from date of delivery of judgment, and not from date of taking out formal order. — A judgment in replevin is not a special judgment under Order XXIII, Rule 1. Kirkland v. Broten, 7 W. L. R. 786, 13 E. C. R. 350.

Decision of County Court on appeal from magistrate's Court.] — An appeal does not lie, even by leave, to Supreme Court of B. C. from order of a County Court Judge made on appeal to him from a decision or conviction of a magistrate under Provincial Summary Convictions Act. In re Lambert, 7 B. C. R. 306.

Entry of appeal—Extension of time.]— An appeal was not centered in time for the sittings of Full Court for which the notice of appeal had been given, and an application was made to extend time and for leave to enter appeal for next sittings:— Held, that when Full Court is sitting, such an application is properly made to it. Meeredy v. Quann, 9 B. C. R. 117.

Interim injunction—Trial begun,]—A motion to dissolve an interlocutory injunction was refused, "votice of appeal was given before trial, but when appeal came on to be heard the trial had commenced, though it had not been concluded, Court refused to interfere, Dunlop y, Haney, 7 B. C. R. 455.

Introducing fresh evidence on appeal -Motions by appellants to admit in Full Court further evidence on hearing of appeal from a judgment at trial were dismissed:— Held, that an application to admit further evidence which might have been adduced at the trial, should be supported by the affidavit of the applicant indicating evidence desired to be used, and setting forth when and how applicant came to be aware of its existence, what efforts, if any, he made to have it adduced at trial, and that he is adduced the result would probably have been different. Marino v. Sproat, 23 C. L. T. 31. 9 B. C. R. 335.

Judge by consent trying issue summarily is in effect an arbitrator and no appeal will lie from his decision. Harris v. Harris, S B. C. R. 307.

juries, the trial Judge did not see fit to enter any judgment on the findings of the jury, but left the parties to move the full Court as they might be advised. Both parties accordingly moved the full Court for judgment, the arguments being confined to the question of the liability of the defendant company : Held, per Walkem, Drake, and Irving, J.J., that the full Court is an appellate Court and has no jurisdiction to hear a motion for judgment on the findings of a jury referred to it by a trial Judge. Per Martin, J ... (dissenting) that, as the question of jurisdiction was not raised by counsel nor by the Court, the case should be dealt with on its merits, and that judgment should be entered in favour of the defendant company. Mc-Kelvey v, Le Roi Mining Co., 22 C. L. T. 42. 8 B. C. R. 268.

New point raised on appeal—Guestios of fact.)—D., with others jointly indebted to plaintif, on c-nin promissory notes in relation to transfer of a business as a going concern, did not, in his oleadings, nor at trial, until the close of evidence for both sides, raise the point that he claimed a lien on certain merchandise in stock. which was sold by plaintiff, the proceeds of vhich ought to have been, but were not, applied in reduction of the debt:—Held, that where a point is one of fact, or of mixed law and fact, it cannot be raised in Court of Append for the first time unless the Court is astisfied that by no possibility could evidence have been given which would affect the decision upon it; but where the point is wholly one of law, such, for instance, as constructime on appeal, subject to such terms, if any, as the Court may see fit to impose. Stone v. Rossland Lee and Fuel Co. (1906), 12 B. C. R. 60, 3 W. L. R. 55.

Notice of appeal—Extension of time for -Waiter — Security for costa, —Court has no jurisdiction to extend time limited by a, 76 of B. C. Supreme Court Act, as amended by Acts of 1899, c. 20, for giving notice of appeal. Respondent by applying for security for costs of appeal aces not waive his right to object that appeal was not brought in time. Lung v. Lung, 8 B. C. R. 423.

Notice of appeal--Particulars.] --Points not argued, although included in notice of appeal, will be considered as abandoned. Grounds of appeal should be so particularized that the opposite party will know beforehand what he fins to meet, and when "misdirection" is alleged, particulars should be stated. Warmington v. Palmer, 22 C. L. T. 126, S B. C. R. 344.

Notice of appeal — Sittings-Time.]--Final judgment was pronounced and entered on 27th February; notice of appeal for Jannary sitting of Full Court was given on 24th Oct. A sitting of Full Court commenced, according to the statute, on 3rd Nov.:--Heid, that appeal was brought in time. Traders National Bank of Spakare V. Ingram, 24 C. L. T. 108, 10 B. C. R. 442.

Petition to eancel water record-Water Clauses Consolidation Act, s. 36 --Retrial-Viva voce examination of witnesses --Change of venue--Proper registry--Forum.] --The right of append upon petition to cancel a water record under s. 30 of the Water Consolidation Act is in effect a right to a re-trial before a Judge of the County Court or a Judge of the Supreme Court; and the appropriate method of dealing with questions of fact on that appeal is by examination and cross-examination of witnesses vira coce. Ross v. Thompson, 10 B. C. R. 177, followed. —There is jurisdiction to change the place of hearing of the appeal or trial; and an application may be heard at Victoria, although the petition, was filed in the Vancouver registry. Wallace v. Flewin, 11 B. C. R. 328, 2 W. L. R. 13.

Place of hearing—Notice of appeal — Striking out—Forum .—Under B. C. Supreme Court Act, as amended in 1902, an appeal in a Victoria case can be heard by Full Court sitting in Vancouver without consent. Per Drake, J.—A single Judge has jurisdiction to order a notice of appeal to Full Court to be struck out. Raser v. McQuade (No. 2), 11 B. C. R. 169.

Preliminary objection—Failure to set down, I—Failure to set down an appeal is an irregularity only, within s. 83 of Supreme Court Act of B. C. No preliminary objection will be heard unless proper notice has been given under same section. Baker v. Kilpatrick, 7 B. C. R. 127.

Preliminary objection — Notice of,]— Notice of a preliminary objection to an appeal to Full Court must be served at least one clear day before time set for beginning of sittings. McGuire v. Miller, 9 B. C. R. 1.

Preliminary objection — Mittake in appeal book.]—An objection to the hearing of an appeal on the ground that appeal books, are defective and erroneous is not a preliminary objection within s, S3 of Supreme Court Act of B. C. Rogers v. Reed, 20 C. L. T. 219, 7 B. C. R. 139.

Refusal to entertain — Interlocutory order — Action decided pending appeal — Costa.]—An appeal from an interlocutory order, and, pending the appeal, the action had been tried and decided. Co., 22 C. L. T. 39, 8 B. C. R. 219.

Reversing findings of facts — Trialwithout jury—Commission evidence—Company—Contract—Ultra vires.]—In action in Yukon for damages for breach of contract, tried without a jury, the evidence for defence being evidence taken on commission, the Judge held the contract sued on was made with defendant Co, and not with one Munn as alleged by defence, and gave judgment for plaintiffs:—Held, reversing the finding and allowing appeal, that the Judge had failed to appreciate the commission evidence. Per Drake, J., that the question of ultra vires, not having been revised in the Court below, was not open on appeal. McKay v. Victoria Yukon Trading Co., 22 C. L. T. 169, 9 B. C. R. 37.

Right of appeal-Award-Workmen's Compensation Act.]-No appeal lies to B. C. Supreme Court from an award of an arbitrator appointed by a Supreme Court Judge under clause 2 of schedule II. to Workmen's Compensation Act, 1902. Lee v. Crow's Next Pass Coal Co., 11 B. C. R. 323, 1 W. L. R. 527.

dated 26th March, set.led by the Judge on 15th July, and entered on 25th July. Notice of appeal was served on 19th July :--Held, that appeal was brought in time. Manley v. Mackintosh, 10 B. C. R. 84.

Time-Depositing appeal books-Extension — Application — Forum.]—Appeal books were not deposited in time, and, on application to extend time, Full Court was Forum.]-Appeal asked to express opinion whether such applications should be made in Chr. abers or to Full Court:—Held, that application should be made as soon as possible and to a Judge in cambers, if Full Court was sitting at the time. If Full Court was sitting at the time, the better course would be to apply there in first instance. Application was al-lowed and case set at foot of list. Haley v. McLaren, 20 C. L. T. 267, 7 B. C. R. 184.

Time—Extension after expiry—Jurisdic-tion.]—On appeal the question of Court's jurisdiction to extend time limited for ap-peal after time limited had expired came up. and counsel for appellant wished to argue that the Court had such jurisdiction and that the decision in Sung v. Lung, 8 B. C. R. 423, was wrong. Court announced that if it became necessary to decide the point. all the Judges would be summoned to hear argument .--- A decision on the point was not necessary, so it was not argued. Noble Five Mining Co. v. Lost Chance Mining Co., 23 C. L. T. 252, 9 B. C. R. 514.

The motion was refused Borland v. Coote, 24 C. L. T. 383, 10 B. C. R. 403.

Water Clauses Consolidation Act, 1897, ss. 36, 39—" Decision" — Time for taking appeal—Jurisdiction.] — In a pro-ceeding under Water Clauses Consolidation Act, 1897, before a County Court Judge, on appeal from Water Commissioner, respondents objected, inter alia, to jurisdiction of County Court Judge, who overruled objection and proceeded with hearing, reserving his deciproceeds with neuring, reserving ins occu-sion on petition generally. Respondents ap-pealed within 21 days given in s, 39 as time within which an appeal must be taken from a decision of any Supreme or County Court Todays a same appeal Judge on any proceeding under Act:-Held, that term "decision" as used in s. 39 means final disposition of whole case before the Judge, on appeal from Water Commis-sioner. Bole v. Roe, 7 W. L. R. 160, 13 B. sioner. B. C. R. 215.

Ynkon appeal-Final judgment - Right ci appeal-Leave to appeal to Privy Coun-cil-Costa.]-In action by executors against appellant to recover certain sums of money due to their estate, the Judge of Territorial Court, at request of plaintiffs, selected one of the items, and adjudicated on evidence taken that action in respect thereof be dis-missed :—Held, that this was, within mean-ing of Yukon Territorial Act, 1899, s. 8, a final judgment in respect thereof, notwith-standing that the remaining items in suit standing that the remaining reens in such were referred, and the costs were reserved. No appeal therefrom to B. C. Court lay after expiration of 20 days. Special leave having been granted to appeal from a decree of the second second from a decree. of the Supreme Court of Can. on a petition stating that the construction of said statute was a matter of general public importance, without staing that it had been re-pealed:—Held, that, as the omission was immaterial and bona f de, appellant should ministerial and bond pre, appendix and an one of the deprived of his costs. Judgment in Belcher v. McDonald, 33 S. C. R. 321, reversed. McDonald v. Belcher, [1904] A. C. 429.

Yukon cases-Amount in controversy-Counterclaim]-Append from a judgment in Territorial Court of Yukon. Plaintiffs sued for $408 damages sustained by their steamer as result of collision with defendants' steamer. counterclaimed for damages. Defendants At trial plaintiffs' claim was dismissed, and defendants on their counterclaim were given judgment for $735. Plaintiffs appealed :--Held, that appeal must be limited to the judgment on counterclaim, as claim was not for an appealable amount. Can. Devel. Co. v. Le Blanc, 21 C. L. T. 600, 8 B. C. R. 173.

5. EXCHEQUER COURT OF CANADA-APPEAL TO.

Salvage action — Judgment of local Judge in Admirally—Practice—Remission for further evidence.] — Under provisions of Rules 159, 162, of general Rules and Orders regulating practice and procedure in Admiralty cases in Exchequer Court of Can., the Court, in entertaining appeal from a decision of local Judge in Admiralty in a salvage case, may direct further evidence be taken before local Judge in order to dispose of an issue raised on appeal. In such a case the appeal is by way of rehearing. Vermont 8.8, Co. v. "Abby Palmer." 24 C. L. T. 387, 9 Ex. C. R. 1.

6. MANITOBA-APPEAL TO COURT OF APPEAL.

Notice in lieu of cross-appeal — Validity as against party not appealing— Rule 652 (a) — Practice.] — Rule 652 (a) of King's Bench Act, R. S. M., 1902, c. 40, does not apply when the party against whom respondent in appeal seeks relief is not appellant. It is not sufficient in such a case for respondent to serve upon such non-appealing party a notice under said Rule, but he must set down a substantive cross-appeal. Eent v. Arrowhead Lumber Co., 18 Man. L. R. 277, 9 W. L. R. 301.

7. MANITOBA-APPEAL TO COURT OF KING'S BENCH.

Admitted facts—Review of evidence.]— Although accepting the findings of the trial Judge as to the credibility of the witnesses, the Court in appeal may review the evidence and reverse the decision arrived at as to the legal conclusions to be drawn from the admitted facts. Rosenbaum v. Bedson, [1900] 2 Ch. 267, commented on and distinguished. Gilmour v. Simon, 15 Man. L. R. 205, 1 W. L. R. 417.

From judgment of County Court— Order to amend — Finality.] — Order of County Court Judge at trial of action giving plaintiff leave to amend his particulars of claim pursuant to s. 330 of the County Courts Act, R. S. M., c. 33, and providing that defendant should have 15 days to put in a dispute note, and that in default judzment might be signed for plaintiff for full amount claimed, is a final order or judgment from which appeal lies to Court of Queen's Bench, under s. 315, as amended by 59 V., e. S., s. 2. Brenchley V. McLeod, 20 C. L. T. 21, 12 Man. L. R. 647.

From judgment of stipendiary magistrate, N.W.T. — Irregularity — Value of subject-matter.]—Objection on ground of irregularity in proceedings leading up to appeal cannot be taken on argument of appeal. —In determining the value of subject-matter in dispute, upon which right of appeal is made to depend, the proper course is to look at judgment as to extent that it affects the interest of party prejudiced by it, and seeking to relieve himself from it by appeal.— In action attacking a conveyance as fraudulent against creditors, evidence shewing that there was actual sale from debtor to claimant, and that even if there was any fraudulent inter on part of former, the latter bought bona fide, the conveyance was held valid. Steele v. Ramsay, 1 Terr. L. R. 1.

From judgment of trial Judge — Question of fact—Reversal.]—Under Manitoba Queen's Bench Act, 1805, s. 48, and Rules 638, 640, Full Court in banco is a Judge on questions of fact as well as of law, and must weigh conflicting evidence and draw its own inferences and conclusions, making due allowance for circumstance that it has not seen or heard the witnesses. The Glamibanta, 1 P. D. at p. 287; Coohlan v. Cumberland, [1893] 1 Ch. 704; Smith v. Chadwiek, 9 App. Cas. 187; North British and Mercantile Ins. Co, v. Tourville, 25 S. C. R. 177, followed. In this case the finding of trial Judge was reversed by a Court of three Judges, one of whom dissented. Creiphton v. Pacific Coast Lumber Co., 199 C. L. T. 285, 12 Man. L. R. 546.

8. New Brunswick-Appeal to Supreme Court.

Application to review judgment — Time for applying—Affari(-Notary public —Initiuling—Lackes — Jurisdiction,] — An affidavit taken out of the province by a notary public may be read on an uplication for review under C. S. N. B. 1903, c. 122, s. 6.— Affidavits on review should not be initiuled in any Court, but if initiuled in a Court, the initiuling may be treated as surplusase. —The order for hearing of a review need not be made within thirty days from the date of the certificate of the return. It is sufficient if the application for the order is made within thirty days from the receipt by the applicant of the copy of the proceedings.— The thirty days allowed by s. 6, c. 122, to apply for review of a judgment in a civil cause tried in any inferior Court, after obtaining a copy and minute of the proceedings, does not apply only to a copy obtained under an order of a Judge of the Supreme or County Court, but to any copy applied for and furnished by the trial Justice under the section. Lunt v. Kennedy, 2 E. L. R. 205, 37 N. B. R. 639.

Contradictory evidence — Finding of trial Judge — Documentary evidence — Weight].—Where cause is tried without jury, and Judge finds facts on contradictory evidence, the onus of proving the Judge wrong is on party moving, and, if he fails to satisfy the Court of this, his motion must fail.—In such a case the Appellate Court has same jurisdiction as trial Judge, and where facts found are largely based on written evidence, they should disregard his finding if, in their opinion, it is against weight of evidence. Adams v. Alcroft, 37 N. B. R. 332.

County Court appeal — Interference— Assumed findings of fact—Rejection of evidence — Absence of prejudice.]—On appeal from judgment of County Court, where the Judge has tried cause without a jury and entered a judgment for respondent, and the return does not contin a statement of his findings on facts, it will be assumed by appellate Court that he found the facts in favour of respondent, and judgment will not be disturbed if there is evidence to justify such finding. A judgment will not be reversed on appeal on ground that evidence was improperly rejected if feord shews that party affering evidence could not have been prejudiced by the rejection. Johnson v, Jack; Johnson v, Bank of Nova Scotis, 35 N. B. R. 402.

County Court appeal — Motion to set aside verdict--Grounds-Appeal--Nonsuit.].--On a motion against a verdict in a County Court, it is not necessary to serve a statement of the grounds of the motion and the authorities relied upon.--The Supreme Court, on appeal, may order a nonsuit to be entered, though no leave has been reserved at the trial. Miller v. Gunler, 36 N. B. Reps. 320.

County Court appeal—Right of appeal —Neglect to more for new trial.]—The Court will not refuse to hear appeal because appellant neglected to take out a summons for a new trial in County Court until time had expired for which signing of judgment had been stayed, and did not ask for a further stay or offer any excuse for delay, no term having elapsed. Read v. McGivney, 36 N. P. R. 513.

Entry of verdict against finding-Evidence.1--On appeal, where it appears that, by reason of misdirection or an erroneous application of law, a verdict is wrongfully entered, the Court will not order a verdict to be entered against the finding, though they should be of opinion that it should be so entered on the evidence. Patterson v. Larsen, 37 N. B. R. 28.

Findings of fact-Equity Judge-Review.]-In an equity appeal, where Judge in Equity, in opinion of appellate Court, disregarded or did not give due weight to evidence of winesses taken under commission, the Court may review his findings on facts as well as law. Fairweather v. Lloyd, 36 N. B. R. 548. Grounds for appeal — Costs — New trial.]—It is not a ground for appeal from order for new trial of County Court action because verdict was against weight of evidence, that costs should not have been imposed in granting new trial. Macrae v. Broun, 36 N. B. R. 353.

Matrimonial cause — Adultery—Credibility of submasses—Question for trial Judge.] —In Court of Divorce and Matrimonial Causes the amount of credence to be given to witnesses is entirely for Judge who hears case. Therefore on trial of a libel filed by wife for a divorce a vinculo matrimonii on ground of adultery of husband, when presiding Judge accepted evidence of a single witness to prove adultery, as to which fact she was not corrobornted, though on other matters she was, and entirely rejected the uncontradicted statements of several witnesses called to prove immoni conduct on part of wife —Held, that he had a right so to do, and Court on appeal would not on that account disturb decree. Bell v. Bell, 34 N. B. R. 615.

Motion against verdict — Statutory requirements — Type-written notice.] — The Court refused to hear a motion whefe the applicant had not complied with 60 V. c. 24, s. 366 (N.B.), by printing his notice of motion, which was more than 5 folios in length. A type-written notice does not comply with the statute. Time was given to print the notice. Wilmot v. Macpherson, 36 N. B. Reps, 327.

Notice of appeal-Extension of time-Affidavit.]-An application for enlargement of time for giving notice of motion against a verdict, etc., under C. S. N. B., 1003, c. 111, s. 372, on ground that transcript of stenographic report of trial had not been filed, should be supported by an affidavit shewing the transcript is necessary to enable counsel to prepare notice. McCutcheon v. Darreh, 37 N. B. R. 1.

Order of Judge of Supreme Coart in review from city Coart-Findity.]-An order in review made by a Judge of Supreme Court under C. S. N. B., c. 122, s. 6. is final. Smith v. Kennie, 30 N. B. R. 226, followed. Hallett v. Allen, 38 N. B. R. 349, 4 E. L. R. 184.

Question of fact—Affirmance of judgment—Partnership.]—Judgment of Barker, J. 3 N. B. Eq. R. 68, affirmed, Leighton v. Hale, 2 E. L. R. 136, 37 N. B. R. 545.

Questions of fact — Judge's charge.]— Where disputed questions of fact are left to the jury, and the Judge's charge distincly leaves the matter to them to find for the plaintiff if they believe the welface, and for the defendant if they believe the defendant's evidence, and there is evidence to support a finding either way, the verdict will not be disturbed on appeal. Brenan v. Hopkins, 39 N. B., 238.

arty --- Finsubstane on review proceedings from a judgment of the Small Debts Court of Fredericton, may be made by the attorney or agent of the party reviewing under 45 V. c. 15, s. 1. There is no authority under C. S. N. B. c. 60, or amending Acts, to review the finding of a justice or the jury on a question of fact where the amount involved in the suit does not exceed $40 in debt and $8 in tort. The Judges of the Supreme and County Courts are of co-ordinate jurisdiction in matters of review under c. 60, and orders made within their authority are final. Res v. Wilson, Es p. McGoldrick, 36 N. B. Rens, 339.

Right of appeal—County Court-Decision of Judge.]—Where questions of fact, which have not been passed upon by Judge below, are not involved, appeal will lie directly to Supreme Court from a decision of County Court Judge. Patterson v. Larsen, 36 N. B. R. 4.

Right of appeal.]—A party aggrieved by a decree of a Judge of Probate may appeal therefrom, although he did not appear in the Court below, Re Welch, 36 N. E. R. 628.

Time for appealing. — An order extending the time for appeal made ex porte is not a nullity, and, if not set aside, the Court will hear an appeal taken under it. Re Welch, 26 N. B. R. 628.

Time for appeal—Solicitor's mistake— Death of respondent].—Upon the death of one of several defendants to a suit in the Supreme Court in Equity the plaintiff may continue the suit by applying for administration ad litem or by application to the Equity Court under s, 116 or s. 119 of the Supreme Court in Equity Act. C. S. 1903. C. 112, and therefore where one of several defendants died after judgment of the Supreme Court en bane confirming a decree of the Equity Court dismissing the plaintiff delayed his appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada for eight months thereafter on the ground that no administration had been taken out:—Held, this was no excuss for the delay and the judgment of McLeod, J., refusing to allow the appeal under s. 71 of the Supreme Court Act. R. S. C. 1906, c. 139, was confirmed. Held also, that the mistake of the solicitor as to the procedure on defendant's death even though supported by opinion of counsel, was not a sufficient excuse. Per McLeod, J.;—The plaintiff (appellant) could have filed a suggestion and proceeded under s. 85 of the Supreme Court Act, R. S. C. 1906, c. 139. Harris v. Summer, 39 N. B. R. 456.

Trial without jury-Verdict involving Anding of disputed facts — Assumption by Court.]--Where on trial without a jury Judge makes no distinct finding on certain disputed facts, but orders a verdict to be entered for plaintiff, which involves finding of those facts in plaintiff's favour, the Court, on appeal, will assume they have been so found, if evidence justifies a finding to support verdict. Hampstad Steamship Co. v. Vaughan Electric Co., 38 N. B. R. 418, 4 E. L. R. 644.

9. New Brunswick-Appeal to County Court.

Conviction for wilfully destroying Hne fence—Title to land.)—Jurisdiction of magistrate. R. v. O'Brien, Ex p. Roy. 3 E. L. R. 425.

10. NORTH-WEST TERRITORIES-APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT.

Appeal from conviction—Notice of appeal signed by clerk of advocate for appellant.]—Want of authority—Appeal quashed —Costs. Scott v. Dalphin (N.W.T.), 6 W. L. R. 371.

Costs—Leave to appeal — Time to inserbe.]—Rules 500 and 501 of Judicature Ordinance are independent of each other: Rule 501 does not apply to appeal as to costs; by virtue of Rule 500, appeal as to costs lies irrespective of any limitation contained in Rule 501, (1) without leave, where, by law, the costs are not—and (2) with leave, where, by law, the costs are—left to the discretion of Court or Judge. Where, therefore, grounds of appeal were that Judge had ordered costs to be paid out of a fund, out of which he had no power to order them to be paid :— Held, that leave to appeal was not necessary. Time for inscribing appeal and enlargement of time, discussed. In re Demaurez, 4 Terr. L R. 281.

Criminal Code—Summary trial—Appeal —Jurisdiction.] — Since before 1895 two justices of the peace in the North-West Territories had jurisdiction to try offences under paragraphs (a)-(f) of sec. 783 of the Criminal Code, 1892, and there was no appeal from their decision, the extension in that year of this jurisdiction to two justices in any province, subject to appeal where the trial was had before them by virtue only of the new enabling clause, did not extend the right of appeal to the North-West Territories. The Alberta Act since it continued the law theretofore in force made no change in this respect. R. v. Pisoni, R. v. Taylor, (1906), 6 Terr, L. B. 238.

Criminal law-Appeal from refusal of trial judge to reserve case-Application not made at trial-Discretion of trial Judge. On the trial of the accused before a Judge without a jury his counsel objected that the accused was entitled to be tried by a jury, but the objection was overruled and the trial proceeded, no application being made for a reserved case. The accused was convictand sentenced, and two days afterwards an application was made to the trial Judge to reserve a case for the Court of Appeal. The application was refused. Held, than an appeal from the refusal of the trial Judge to reserve a case on a question of law arising during a criminal prosecution lies only when the application is made at the trial, and although after the trial the Judge might still, in his discretion, reserve a case, yet if he refused, no appeal lay. R. v. Toto (1904), 6 Terr. L. R. 89.

Ground not taken below—Notice of appeal.]—On appeal to Court in banc, counsel for defendants having sought to raise for first time the point that, although there had been a dedication of land in question as a highway, such dedication was made and accepted subject to such obstructions as existed upon it at time of dedication, the Court considering that the point was not covered by any of the grounds stated in defendants' notice of appeal:--Heid, that defendants' were not at liberty to raise the point at this stage. Edmonton v. Brown, 1 Terr. L. R. 454.

Leave to appeal-Powers of Court in banc-New trial-Neglect to give evidence.] -Judicature Ordinance, R. O. 1888, c. 58, s. 435, provides that " no appeal shall lie from 435, provides that "no appeal shall lie from judgment or order of a single Judge or of a Judge of the Court to Court en bane, with-out the special leave of Judge or Court whose judgment or order is in question, unless the title to real estate or some interest therein is affected, or unless matter in controversy on anneal in matters of contract exceeds $500 and in matters of tort exceeds $200 exclusive of costs; or unless matter in question relates to taking of an annual or other rent. customary, or other duty or fee, or a like demand of a general or public nature affecting future rights:"-Held, that, where a trial Judge had not granted leave to appeal in a case in which, by virtue of this section, leave to appeal was necessary, the Court en bane had no jurisdiction to entertain an appeal, or to give leave to appeal, even ; semble, had it appeared that the Judge had said that the applicant might apply to the Court in banc for leave. Semble, where a party fails in his case by reason of his neglecting to give necessary evidence, of which at the time of the trial he had knowledge, he should be allowed a new trial to permit him to supply the evidence, only under special circum-stances. Chalmers v. Fysh, 1 Terr. L. R 434

Notice of appeal—Amendment — New trial.] — An auxendment was allowed to a notice of appeal so as to ask expressly for a new trial, but only on the grounds stated in the notice of appeal. An amendment so as to set up the ground, not stated in the notice, of the improper admission of evidence taken on commission, was refused as it did not appear from the Judge's notes that objection was made at the trial though the commissioner had noted the objection. New trial on ground that the verdict was perverse was refused. Mercer v, Fonsece, 2 Man. L. R. 169, followed. Edmonton v. Thomson, 1 Terr. L. R. 342.

Notice of appeal-Amendment-Special leave.]-Notwithstanding that the case is of such a character as to require special leave to appeal, the Court en bane has power to amend notice of appeal by adding a ground not taken when leave was granted; such an amendment is a matter for exercise of discretion of Court, and such discretion will not in such a case, be exercised without very great precuritons. Western Milling Co. v. Darke, 2 Terr. L. R. 40.

Notice of appeal—Amendment of.)—As a general rule on argument of appeal leave to amend notice of appeal will be given for purpose of correcting errors of dates and other trilling matters and on special terms. Sexsmith v. Murphy. 1 Terr. L. R. 311. Notice of appeal—Time for.]—Rule 460 of the Judieature Ordinance, C. O. 1898, c. 21, providing for two clear days' notice of motion, except by special leave, applies to motions to the Court en banc. An order stopping the registration of a tax sale transfer and Judge's order confirming the sale, as provided for by s. 97 of the Land Titles Act, also acts as an order extending the time for registration of the transfer, as provided for by s. 95 of the Act. An appellant is excused for not having proceeded with the appeal by the fact that the original documents from which the appeal look is to be prepared have remained in the respondent's possession, he having neglected to file them in the Land Titles Office, as directed by the order appealed from. Re Donnelly, 5 Terr, L. R. 270.

Objection to regularity.]—An objection on the ground of irregularity in the proceedings leading up to an anneal, cannot be taken on the argument of the appenl. Steele v. Rammay, 1 Terr. L. R. J. 3 Man, L. R. 205.

Right of appeal—Amount in controversy.]--Plaintiff sucd for $817.85, and defendants with their defence, while denying liability, brought into Court $367 as being sufficient to satisfy plaintiff's claim; the trial Judge found plaintiff neitiled to $543.22 and applied the $367 in Court, leaving, with an adjustment of intrest, a balance due to plaintiff of $182.43:--Held, that amount in controversy exceeded $200, and defendant was entitled to appeal without special leave. McDougall v. McLean, 1 Terr, L. R. 436.

Security for costs of --Grounds for ordering.]--Poverty of appellant--Disposition of property. Dakota Lumber Co. v. Rinderknecht (N.W.T.), 1 W. L. R. 481, 2 W. L. R. 80, 275.

To Court en hane—Preliminary objections.]-Order appealed from not issued--Irregularity - Waiver-Objection not taken on settlement of appeal case-Effect of order for leave to appeal. Bank of Hamilton V. Lealie (N. W. T.), 3 W. L. R. 394.

To single Judge—Appeal from justices' conviction. — The conditions, practice and procedure in respect of appeals from summary convictions made under the laws enacted by the Legislative Assembly are those which that Assembly has prescribed, and an appeal cannot be heard unless all the statutory requirements imposed as conditions of the right of appeal have been compiled with. R, v, McLeod, 4 W, L, R, 124, 4 Terr, L, R, 513, 3 Man, L, R, 305.

Value of subject-matter.].--In determining the value of the subject-matter in dispute, upon which the right of appeal is made to depend, the proper course is to look at the judgment as to the extent that it affects the interest of the party prejudiced by it, and seeking to relieve himself from it by appeal. Macfarlane v. Leclaire, 15 Mon. P. C. 181, 8 Jur, N. S. 267, 10 W. R. 224. followed. Steelev, Ramany, 1 Terr. L. R. 1.

11. NOVA SCOTIA - APPEAL TO SUFREME COURT.

Collection Art—Appeal to County Court —Notice of apprad—Preshibition;] — Under provisions of the Collection Act. R. S. N. S. 1909, ch. 182, s. 32. "notice of appeal must be served upon solicitor for rewondent or upon respondent personally within 10 days of the date of the decision appealed from." No notice was given within 10 days and Judge of County Court subsequently made an order as p. extending the time, Appellant failed to prosecute his appeal within the period of 30 days prescribed by s. 33 as amended by Acts of 1901, ch. 15, and a writ of prohibition was applied for:— Heid, that the Judge had power on proper application to extend time for siving notice of appeal, but that such avoilection should be made within the period of 10 days prescribed by s. 31. Also, that it was not within the power of the Judge to adjourn the matter to a date beyond the thirty days and then make an adjudication, and that the writ of prohibition should go. McLure v. Parker, 30 N. S. R. 413.

County Court appeal—Endings of jury —Necessity for intermediate application.]— Appeal was taken directly to Supreme Court of N. S. from findings of jury in case tried in County Court: —Held, following Reiden v. Freeman, 21 N. S. R. 100, that there should have been an application in first instance to Judge of County Court for a new trial, and the appeal should have been from his decision on that application, and present appeal should be guashed. White v. Hissis, 35 N. S. R. 432.

Grounds of appeal—Fndings of jury.] —Main defence to an action on a bond was that it was materially and fraudulently altered after it was signed. Questions were submitted to jury, answers to which were in plaintif's favour, and were in accordance with weight of evidence:—Held, that findings would not be disturbed except upon clear and necessary grounds, and that, in absence of such grounds. defendant's appeal must be dismissed with costs. Kennedy v. McDonald, 42 N. S. R. 22.

Questions of fact-Findings of trial Judge-Sale of fish-Condition as to quality.] -Where matters in issue between parties, in an action for damages for refusal to accept a "catch" of fish sold by plainiff to defendant, were entirely matters of fact, and evidence was very contradictory, and trial Judge accepted as true the version of plainiff and his witnesses as being more consonant with reason and probabilities of mode of dealing between parties, the Court refused to distarb findings and dismissed defendant's appenl with costs, Rafuse v. Ernst, 42 N. S. R, 173.

Questions of fact. |--Court has power to review findings of trial Judge on questions of fact. McInnes v, Ferguson, 32 N. S. R. 516, followed. McCurdy v, Grant, 32 N. S. R. 520. Reversal of finding of Judge on facts-Trial. -In action to recover balance of $100 sileged to be due on account of two late of land sold by plaintiff to defendiant. evidence satisfied ungivity of Court that whole amount which defendant arreed to ray had been paid either to plaintiff or to her doly authorized agent:--Heid, that the judgment of trial Judge in plaintiff's favour must be reversed. McKinnon v. Petrie, 38 N. S. E. 41

Right of appeal—Decision of Commissioner of Mines—Gaushing appeal—Judgment —Estopped—Mandama:]—Where an appeal from a decision of Commissioner of Mines for N. S., on application for lease of mining land, is quashed by Supreme Court of N. S., on the ground that it was not a decision from which appeal could be asserted, the judgment of Supreme Court is final and bluiding on applicant, and also on Commissioner, even lif he is not a party to it. Quashing of appeal would not necessarily be a determination that a decision was not appealable. If ground had not been stated. In present case the quashing of appeal precluded Commissioner or his successor in office from afterwards contending that the decision was appealable. If Commissioner, after such appeal is quashed, refuses to decide again upon application for a lease, applicant may compel hin to do so by writ of mandamus. Drygdale v, Dominion Com Co., 24 C. L. T. 166, 34 S. C. R. 328.

Right of appeal-Order in Chambers-Discretion of Judge-Refusal to allow crossexamination.]--On application in Chambers to set aside, as false, frivolous, and vexations, defendant's pleadings to action brought against him as acceptor of a bill of exchange discounted by plaintiffs, defendant applied for leave to cross-examine manager of plaintiffs on affidavit upon which the motion was founded:--Held, that the matter was one within discretion of Judge in Chambers and there was no appeal from his refusal to permit the cross-examination. Bank of Montreal v, Bent, 34 N. S. R. 489.

Right of appeal—Order of County Court Judge on appeal from conviction.]—Appeal lies to Supreme Court of N. S. from a County Court judgment or decision in respect to an order, judgment, or conviction of a justice of the pence taken by way of appeal to County Court. R. v. Dominion Coal Co., 2 E. L. R. 267, 41 N. S. R. 137.

Right of appeal—Waiver—Enforcement of judgment.]—' initiff recovered judgment for damages against defendant, taxed costs, and made a demand under threat of issuing an excertion for amount of damages and costs. Defendant paid amount. Subsequently plaintiff appealed from judgment, asked for an increase of damages:—Held, that it was not competent for plaintiff, after obtaining the fruits of the judgment, to assert an appeal. Films v. Keefe, 24 C. L.T. 137.

Amount in controversy less than $1.000 exclusive of costs — A-tion to foreclose mortgage—Redemption—Motion to guash appeal—Judicature Act, ss. 51; 76 (1) (5)--4 Edw. VII. c. 11, s. 2.]—After morigagee had taken foreclosure proceedings, the mortgager desired to redeem.— Divisional Court held, (16 O. W. R. 149, 1 O. W. 796), that the mortgagee was entitled to charge in its accounts the following $325 as compensation for crops put in prior to redemption proceedings, $350 paid to retire vendor's liens on certain fixed machinery, $78.75 insurance and interest on ortain sums:—Held, also, that the mortgage could not charge for the following : $25 for insurance paid without justification, and $124 paid for care of morigaged property.—Plaintiff moved to quash an appeal to Court of Appeal from above judgment:— Held, that where the respondent seeks to inwoke the power of the Court of Appeal under s. 51 of the Judicature Act, the proper practice is to move the Court to quash the appeal at the earliest moment after it has been lodged. Upon the motion coming on to be heard, the Court may direct the motion to stand for argument along with the appeal. But it is equally proper, and some-times more convenient and less expensive to the parties, to dispose of it when brought on pursuant to the notice. And where, before the time for entering the appeal for hearing at the September sittings of the Court had elapsed, i.e., on the 10th August, the re-spondents served notice of motion to quash returnable on the first day of the sittings, the Court heard and granted the motion; Meredith, J.A., dissenting. International the Court nearly and grants. International Wreedith, J.A., dissenting. International Wreeking Co. v. Lobb (1887), 12 P. R. 207, . dlowed. Per Meredith, J.A., that, as the appellant had failed to set his proposed ap-peal down for hearing, there was no appeal down for hearing, there was no appeal to quash; and that, as s. 51 does not provide for a motion to quash, the Court has no power to create a practice providing for such a motion. The appeal was from an order of a Divisional Court, and it was quashed upon the ground that the sum in controversy was less than the sum or value of $1,000, exclusive of costs: Judicature Act, s. 76 (1) (b). And held, per curiam, that the word "costs" in that section means the costs incurred in the litigation; and, although the costs of a the litigation; and, although the costs of a mortcase action stand on a different footing, speaking generally, from the costs of other actions, the costs taxed to the mortganese by the Master, and Included in his report in an action for foreclosure, were to be ex-cluded in ascertaining the amount in con-troversy upon an appeal from an order varying that report. Claim and counterclaim — Form of judgment-Coats—O. J. Act, as. 72, 76 (J) (e), (g).]—Leave to appeal to the Court of Appeal from order of Divisional Court affirming order of a Judge directing judgment to be entered for plaintiff with costs and for defendant on his counterclaim with costs, was granted under s. 76 (1) (e) and (g) of Ont. Judicature Act, where Divisional Court had given leave to appeal from order, so far as it was open to that Court to do so, under s. 72 of same Act, and leave was songht in order to settle questions as to proper form of judgment and as to costs where a defendant proves a set-off to an amount exceeding plaintiffs claim, having pleaded it in form as a counterclaim. Fact-Reversal of trial Judge's finding.] -Upon an appeal from' the findings of a Judge who has tried a case without a jury, the Court appealed to does not and cannot abdicate its rights and its duty to con-sider the evidence. And if it appear from the reasons given by the trial Judge that he has misapprehended the effect of the evidence or failed to consider a material part of it and the evidence which has been believed by him, when fairly read and con-sidered as a whole, leads the Appellate Court to a clear conclusion that the findings of the trial Judge are erroneous, it becomes the plain duty of the Court to reverse the findings. In an action to recover damages for the destruction of property of the plain-tiff by fire alleged to have been started by sparks from a locomotive of the defendants, the trial Judge, MacMahon, J., found in favour of the plaintiffs.—Heid, by a Divi-sional Court, reversing the finding, which was based upon a misapprehension evidence, that the plaintiffs had failed to meet the onus cast upon them by the law to prove that the fire which caused the damage came from the defendants' engine. every case there must be evidence from which it can fairly be inferred, not simply guessed, that the damage was caused by the defendant. Leave to appeal—Grounds—Order setting axie judgment. —Divisional Court having set axide a judgment signed by plaintiffs for default of defence in action on bond, upon two grounds, viz. (1) that a motion for judgment was necessary, and (2) that statement of claim had never been legally served upon defendants, the posting up thereof in the office not being service because of omission to file an affidavit of service of writ before so doing:—Held, that leave to appeal should not be granted unless plaintiffs could make a plausible attack upon both grounds, for if only one were demolished, the other would support the judgment, and leave to appeal is not given merely to settle a point of practice the decision of which would not affect the judgment complained of.—And in this case the service of statement of claim could not be supported, having recard to Rule 574, and it was in the discretion of Court below to give effect to the objection to its regularity, notwithstanding defendants' delay in moving against judgment. Leave to appeal — Special circum-stances — Defamation — Misdirection — Evidence — Damages — Discretion.] — Upon motion by defendant for leave to appeal from order of Divisional Court affirming judgment at trial, upon verdict of jury awarding plain-tiff $100 damages for libel:-Heid, that de-fendant had failed to shew special circumstances. Verdict was small, and jury seemed to have arrived at it upon a charge to which the only exception urged was a reference to a former action, and, if Judge erred in not passing that over, there was nothing to shew that any substantial wrong was occasioned by it. Weight of authority was against the by it. proposition that a defendant in a libel action may set up in mitigation of damages acts and doings of plaintiff arising long after alleged libel, and not having reference to but the matter was to some extent one for exercise of discretion by trial Judge, and leave to appeal ought only to be given in exceptional cases. Leave to appeal — Status of judicial officer.)—Divisional Court reversed order of Judge in Chambers, which stayed proceedings in these actions and dismissed motion for reference to Drainage Referce as an official Referce. Divisional Court decided that Drainage Referce was an official Referee for purposes of Arbitration Act: — Heid, that leave to appeal should be granted on ground that the decision involved the status, jurisdiction, and authority of a judicial officer, and the validity of proceedings which might be taken by him under the order of Divisional Court. Leave to appeal—Tazation of cott— Several causes of action—Judgment,]—Application by defendant for leave to appeal from order of Divisional Court dismissing appeal from order of Judge in Chambers upon appeal from taxation of costs. Action was for slander. Statement of claim øontained 4 paragraphs setting forth the slander in various ways. There was a verdict and judgment with costs for plaintiff on two paragraphs, and same for defendant on other two. Defendant contended that general costs should be apportioned throughout. But taxing officer taxed to plaintiff the general costs of cause, less costs applicable to paragraphs of which he failed, and to defendant costs of sause arising on latter, and his ruling was affirmed —Held, not a case in which leave to appeal should be granted. There is no good reason why a judgment framed to the same result as the former Rule of Court Sparrot v, Hill, S O, B. 9479. Jenkins v, Jackson, (1991) 1 Ch. 80, referred to. Daris v, Hord, 22 C. L. T. 285, 4 O. L. R, 406, 10 O. W. R, 418, 471.

Leave to appeal—Third party notice.] —Leave to appeal from order of Divisional Court, setting aside a third party notice, was refused by a Judge of Court of Appeal in Chambers:—Held, that Divisional Court had not placed a construction of general application upon words "or any other relief over" in Rule 200, but had merely decided their benting upon the facts of this case, which were of a nature not likely to be of common occurrence; there was nothing special in the case beyond fact that Divisional Court of three Judges had differed from the vlew of another Judge of the High Court and of a local Judge; and amount involved was comparatively small.—Moreover, the decision of Divisional Court did not deprive defendsats of benefit of alleged dealings with proposed third parties as a defence to plaintiff" action, and if defence should be successful there would be no occasion for seeking rolief over.—Semble, that even if leave to appeal were granted, it would not be on technical grounds, but only on construction of Rule.

New evidence on appeal.]-Where the order of a Court upon an appeal has not been issued, the appeal is still pending and within the control of the Court, and the Court is at liberty, of its own motion or on ap-plication, to recall the opinion which has been pronounced, and, on a proper case, to admit further evidence for the purpose of the appeal, under Con. Rule 498. which governs the admission of new evidence upon appeal is fenced round with strict limitations. There must be no remissness in adducing all possible evidence at the trial; the new evidence must be practically concludence to admit which would be merely setting oath against oath, evidence ob-tained under suspicious circumstances, or evidence which might merely enable an opponent's witness to be cross-examined more effectively, will not do; as a rule, the evi-dence must be of some fact or document essential to the case, of the existence or authenticity of which there is no reasonable doubt, or no room for serious dispute. After an order had been pronounced by a Divisional an order had been pronounced by a Divisional Court reversing the judgment in the plain-tiff's favour of an Official Referee in an action to enforce a mechanic's iien, but be-fore the order had issued, the plaintiff ap-plied for leave to adduce fresh evidence to show that, by a mistake of his bookkeeper, certain items in respect of materials fur-nished had been charged as extras, whereas in fact the materials had been furnished un-der the contract. The Divisional Cover ch der the contract. The Divisional Court al-lowed the evidence to be given, and, although it had always been in the possession of the plaintiff, there being no suspicion of bad faith, credited it recalled the order profaith, credited it, recalled the order pro-nounced, and substituted an order affirming the judgment of the Referee-the evidence being conclusive upon the question involved in the appeal :--Held, that the discretion of the Court was properly exercised. Order of a Divisional Court, 14 O. W. R. 289, 19 O. L. R. 428, affrmed. Rathbone v. Michael (1910), 15 O. W. R. 639, 20 O. L. R. 503.

No special ground for treating case as exceptional — Outario Rule 603.] — Master refused on motion for judgment under above rule to permit an adjournment to cross-examine plaintif's manager on his affidavit unless defendents filed an affidavit shewing a defence on merits, which they declined to do. Appenls to a Judge in Chambers and a Divisional Court were dismissed. As there were no exceptional circumstances, leave to appenl to Court of Appenl, refused, Dixon v, Hubbard, 13 O. W. R. 920.

No special reasons.] — Application founded on two affidavits was made on behalf of garnishees to Master to set aside an attachlag order. He directed cross-examination of the affants. From this order garnishees appealed unsuccessfully to a Judge in Chambers, a Divisional Court, and now sought leave from a Judge of Court of Appeal to appeal under s. 76 (g) of Judienture Act. Leave refused. Bank of Nova Scotia v. Booth, 13 O. W. R. 209.—The Court of Appeal also refused to entertain a motion for same leave on same material, as applicants had exhaasted their right by applying to Judge in Chambers. Ibid, 13 O. W. R. 294. Security for costs — Application to dispense with — Powerty of applicant— O. J. Act. 8. 76, Rule 826.]— Sec. 76 (c) of O. J. Act, as enacted by 4 Edw. VII. c. 11, s. 2 (O.)—Con. Rule 826 being to same effect provides that, subject to Rules of Court, on appeal from Divisional Court, ..., security, unless otherwise ordered by Court of Appeal, shall be given for costs of appeal. In action for damages under Fatal Injuries Act, the trial Judge, being of opinion that there was no evidence to submit to jury, dismissed action; but directed the jury to assess the damages (which they did at $8,500) in case it should be held on appeal that there was such evidence; and on appeal to Divisional Court trial Judge's finding was affirmed. — An application to a Judge of Court of Appeal. on ground of alleged poverty of appellant, to dispense with or reduce amount of security for costs of appeal to Court of Appeal, was, in the circumstances, refused. Whiteman v, Hamilton Steel 6 I ron Co., 16 0. L. R. 257.

Security on appeal from order for new trial-Stay of trial-Rule 827-Remo-val of stay.]-New trial having been ordered by Divisional Court, plaintiff gave notice of trial, but defendants appealed to Court of Appeal from order directing new trial, and gave security required by Con. Rule 826, which was duly allowed :-Held, the order for new trial was a "judgment or order ap-pealed from," within meaning of Con. Rule pealed from," within meaning of Con. Rule 827 (1), and, security for appeal having been allowed, the execution thereof, by proceeding on a new trial or otherwise, was staved pending appeal, by force of that Rule, such judgment or order not being an accepted case mentioned in the Rule. Rule is not confined to judgment or order directing payment of money, but extends generally to all ap-pealable judgments or orders which are to be "executed" by proceedings to be taken thereunder or in consequence thereof .-- In a proper case stay may be removed and perproper case say may be removed and per-mission given to proceed to trial notwith-standing appeal; but as general rule such permission ought not to be granted; and in this case refused. Uylaki v, Daicson, 10 O. L. R. 683, 6 O. W. R. 738.

Stay of execution removed.]--Plaintif obtained judgment and defendants appealed to Court of Appeal except as to $857.55. Stay of execution was removed as to that sum. Gledhill V. Telegram (1909), 14 O. W. R. 1.

Stay of proceedings—Security.]—Trial Judge dismissed action and directed discharge of a registered caution. Plaintiff's appeal to Pivisional Court was dismissed, and he gave rejuired security on appeal to Court of Appeal. Stay of proceedings granted pending appeal which to be brought on at next sittings of the Court. Thompson v. Skill, 12 O. W. R. 1170.

ii. From Single Judge.

Amount involved less than $1,000,1 --Matter in controversy in present appeal being less than $1000, no tilte to real estate or interest therein being in dispute, nor any question of future rights being involved in the decision, the only question being whether plaintiff was entitled to be paid a share of bounty on oil gained by defendants, and this being purely a pecuniary demand depending upon the proper construction of the lease and the Bounty Act-leave to appeal direct to Court of Appeal refused. Conditional allowance of --Reduction of damages -- Election-Farther appeal.]--After plaintiff's damages had been assessed by jury, trial Judge dismissed action. Plaintiff appealed, and Court of Appeal ordered that, if plaintiff elected to reduce damages assessed by jury, appeal should be allowed with costs, and judgment entered for plaintiff for reduced amount with costs, or otherwise that there should be a new trial:---Held, that plaintiff was entitled to have a clause inserted in order of Court protecting plaintiff in event of appeal by defendant to Supreme Court of Can. against her election to reduce damages. Effect of allowing — Non-appealing party—Costs.]—Action to restrain township and a contractor from constructing a drain authorized by township by-law. Judgment of H. C. J. granted injunction against and ordered costs to be paid by both defendants, and ordered corporation to indemnify contractor if he paid them. Corporation appealed to Court of Appeal, making contractor a respondent: the latter appeared at the hearing of appeal, but did not himself appeal. Appeal was allowed with costs:—Held, that the result of allowing corporation's appeal was that the action should be dismissed as against both defendants, but contractor should have no costs of appeal. Semble, that he should have his costs below against plaintiff. Challoner v. Lobo, 21 C. L. T. 201, 1 O. L. R. 202 serving appeal case, enable appellant, whenever necessary, to obtain further time from Court or a Judge: and that being so, the solicitor requiring further time should, in general, before applying to Court, apply to solicitor for respondent, explaining occasion for it, and latter ought, in every proper case, to grant the request; any other course of conduct only occasions unnecessary and useless costs. And where application for an extension was made to solicitor, and, in opinion of Judge who heard a motion to extend the time, unreasonably refused, an order was made extending time and staying execution, without costs to respondent. Leave to appeal—Case tried with jury.] —On application under s. 73 (a) of 4 Edw. VII. c. 11 (O.) for leave to appeal to Court of Appeal direct from trial Judge and jury in a case of sufficient importance and diffculty, in addition to amount of judgment ($2,500), to justify an appeal, it was objected that the section did not apply to the case of a trial with a jury, but only to trials by a Judge without a jury :—Held, that the plain object of the section was to avoid a double appeal; that it should receive a liberal construction; and that the judgment at or following upon the trial, where the issues of fact are tried by a jury is the "judgment, order, or decision" of the Judge within the meaning of the section; and leave to appeal was granted. Rondall V. Ottase Electric Co. 24 C. L. T. 394 8 O, L. R. 701, 3 O. W. R. 146, 773, 1022, 4 O. W. R. 240, 269, 6 O. W. R. 913.

Upon application by plaintiff for leave to appeal direct to Court of Appeal from judgment pronounced at trial, it was contended by defendant that pending the ilitization moneys had been realized by him which reduced claim below $1,000, but this was disputed by plaintiff—Held, that proper conclusion was that the matter in controversy in appeal exceeded the sum or value of $1,000 exclusive of costs, and therefore there was jurisdiction under 4 Edw. VII. c. 11, s. 76a (O.), to make the order ssked for. Wade v. Elliott, 10 O.

Right of appeal—Order of Judge removing stay of execution — Discretion — Grounds for removal.]—Appeal lies to Court of Appeal from order of a Judge thereof, in Chambers, under Rule S27, directing the execution of judgment appealed from shall not be stayed pending appeal. Such order is not a purely discretionary one; a proper case must be made out for allowing respondent to enforce what has not yet become a final judgment, the appeal being a step in the cause. A Judge in Chambers having ordered the removal of the stay, his order was reversed by the Court, where appeal appear to be prosecuted in good faith and on substantial grounds, and effect of an execution would practically be to close up appellant's business. paid the money in was not entitled, upon abandoning his appeal, to have the money paid out to him, the other appellant desiring and intending to avail himself of the deposit and to proceed with appeal. First appellant's motion for payment out being dismissed with costs to other appellant, and it appearing that by judgment appealed against the first appellant was entitled to be indemnified by other against all amounts payable by first under the judgment, and to re cover from other any amount so paid and his costs of action, &c. :- Held, that the costs of motion should be set off against anything first appellant might already have paid, or might ultimately have to pay, under provisions of judgment referred to, as the result of appeal .- Held, under circumstances of the case, that appeal would be more expensive than usual, and that the security should be increased to $400, but that, apon the true construction of Rule 830, s.ss. 1, 4, S, where security is given by payment into Court, it cannot be inby payment into Court, it cannot be increased to more than $400. Centaur Cycle Co. v. HRI, 22 C. L. T. 253, 24 C. L. T. 200, 1 O. W. R. 220, 377, 401, 639, 2 O. W. R. 1055, 3 O. W. R. 255, 354, 4 O. L. R. 92, 493, 7 O. L. R. 411.

Security on appeal—Money poid into Court--Byment out after purpose answered --Further appeal.]—A party who has paid money into Court as security upon his appeal to Court of Appeal is entitled, after his appeal has been allowed with costs, to take the money out, although his opponent is prosecuting a further appeal to Supreme Court of Canada or to Privy Council. An appeal to Court of Appeal is a step in the cause, but a further appeal is not so. Centaur Cycle Co, v. Hill, 22 G. L. T. 253, 24 C. L. T. 2008, 1 O. W. R. 229, 377, 401, 639. 2 O. W. R. 1025, 3 O. Settlement of book — Appointment — Onus.]—Having regard to Rules 708 et seq., relating to appeals to Court of Appeal, the burden of procuring from "Court appealed from, or a Judge thereof" (Rule 798), an appointment to settle appeal case or book, the parties being unable to agree, is upon appellant. Rule 801 (3) enables the respondent to move in the matter, if so disposed; but it is appellant's duty to enter case with registrar and set down appeal for argument; this he cannot regularly do without depositing appeal books (Rule 812); and before they are deposited they must be settled, Oatman v, Michigan Central Ru. Co., 21 C. L. T. 334, 10 J. R. 636.

Stay of action by statute—No order made—No final judgment.]—Leave to appeal from 13 0. W. R. 1148 refused, there being no "final judgment" yet from which an appeal to Supreme Court would lie. Smith v. London (1909), 14 O. W. R. 148; netion stayed by legislative authority (1909), 14 O. W. R. 1248, 1 O. W. N. 280. See Bardmore v. Toronto (1909), 14 O. W. R. 1282, 1 O. W. N. 278.

Stay of execution—Removal—Rule 827 (2)—Abaence of special circumstances.] — Motion for order to remove stay of execution under Ont. Rule 827 (2) consequent upon defendant having given security for costs of his appeal to Court of Appeal refused, there being no precedent for such an order. No special circumstances. Pringle v. Hutson, 13 O. W. R. 617.

Stay of execution of injunction -Disobedience of injunction - Contempt of Court-Stay upon terms-Con. Rule 827 (1) (d).]-Rule that a party to an action guilty of contempt can take no step, is subject to several exceptions, and one of these is that the party is entitled to prosecute an appeal from the order or judgment which it ic al. leged he has been guilty of disobeying .-- Upon application by defendants to a Judge of Court of Appeal, under Con. Rule 827 (1) (d), for an order staying execution of injunction awarded by the High Court, pend-ing an appeal from that judgment to Court of Appeal, where it is alleged that defendants are in contempt for disobedience of the judgment, but they have not been so adjudged, the Judge will not determine whether a contempt has been committed .- Where defendants were appealing in good faith, execution of injunction was stayed, upon terms, pending disposition of appeal. Copeland-Chatterson Co. v. Business Systems Ltd., 9 O. W. R. 390, 14 O. L. R. 337.

Stay of execution of judgement for partition pending appeal-Security.] --Motion to remove stay. Monro v. Toronto Rux. Co., 1 O. W. R. 25, 316, 813, 2 O. W. R. 207, 3 O. W. R. 14, 290, 4 O. W. R. 392.

Stay of execution pending appeal.)-Continuance of injunction dissolved by judgment appealed from. Klees v. Dominion Coat and Apron Supply Co., 2 O. W. R. 841, 057, 3 O. W. R. 937, 6 O. W. R. 200.

Stay of proceedings — "Further proceedings"—Motion for injunction—Con, Rule 829. [—In an action for a declaration that a partnership existed and for dissolution and account, in which judgment was obtained by plaintiff, and in which an appeal to Court of Appeal was pending, the usual security therefor having been given:—Held, that an application to a High Court Judge for injunction to restrain defendant from dealing with partnership moneys was "a further proceeding . . other than the issue of the judgment or order and taxation of costs thereunder." under Con, Rule 829, which a High Court Judge could not entertain. Embree v. McCurdy (No. 1), 9 O. W. R. 901, 14 O. L. R. 284.

Stay of proceedings—Removal—Security for costs—Ont. Rules 826, 827.)—Upon an appeal to Court of Appeal, upon security c.c.1.—4 for costs being allowed, in general the proceedings ought to be stayed; but if it is made appear in any case that respondent may suffer injustice by his execution being stayed, then the stay may be removed, upon terms which may be just to both parties: Rules 826, 827. Plaintiff recovered a judgment against defendants, a benevolent society incorporated in a foreign country, but having members in Ontario who paid dues and assessments, which were transmitted abroad. Defendants ap-pealed from the judgment to Court of Appeal, and gave security for costs. Upon an appli-cation by plaintiff under Rule 827 to remove the stay of proceedings it was admitted by defendants that they had no assets in Ontario but they said that they were advised that they had good grounds for appeal, and if it should fail, that plaintiff's claim would be paid; and this was not contradicted :- Held, that the dues and assessments of members in Ontario, being voluntary payments, could not be reached by a receiver or by attachment; and there was no prejudice or injustice that plaintiff was likely to suffer by the stay, as he already had security for costs, and the delay would be compensated by interest on the judgment, if the appeal should be unsuccessful, Boyd v. Dominion Cold Storage Co. (1897), 17 P. R. 545, distinguished. Winte-mute v. Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, 19 P. R. 6.

Suspension of injunction pending appeal.]—Taylor V. Township of Collingwood, 3 O. W. R. 368, 553, 6 O. W. R. 261.

Time—Late entry—Refusal of consent-Confirmation — Responsibility for delay — Costs.]—Defendants on 19th May gave notice of appeal to Court of Appeal from judgment delivered on 22nd April, and gave security on 22nd May. Reasons for appeal were not served till 10th Sept., and reasons against appeal not till 13th Oct. The next sittings of Court of Appeal was set for 10th Nov. The appeal case was not prepared in time to enter case on 6th Nov, and plaintiff's solicitor refused to consent to its being entered on 10th for sittings beginning on that day. The case was entered without consent on 17th Nov., and a motion was made to confirm entry:—Held, that plaintiff's solicitor should have consented to proposed entry should be confirmed; and, as both parties were nearly equally blameable for delay, there should be no costs. McLauphlin v. Mayheve, 23 C, L. T. 42, 5 O. L. R. 114, 1 O, W. R. 308, 2 O. W. R. 10, 590.

iii. From Ontario Railway and Municipal Board.

Amount involved.] — In determining whether an appeal will lie to the Court of Appeal, from the decision of the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board, in respect to appeals re assessments, it is the amount of the assessment made by the assessor that must govern, not the amount to which the Board may have reduced the assessment. Coniagas Mines v, Cobalt (1910), 15 O. W. R. 258.

Order for set-off of costa—Finality— Appeal.]—An order of a County Court Judge to set off defendant's costs incurred in the County Court in excess of such costs as would have been incurred in a Division Court against the costs of plaintiff is in its nature final, and therefore appealable under 5. 52 of County Courts Act, R. S. O. c. 55. Baboek Y. Standish, 19 P. R. 105, 20 C. L. T. 329.

Right of appeal—Practice on appeal— Companics—Ontario Winding-up Act—Final Order.]—Section 27 of Ont. Joint Stock Cos. Winding-up Act, R. S. O. 1897, c. 222, contains the code of proceedings on appeal from any order or decision of the Court under that Act, no provision being made in Con, Rules or elsewhere. There is no provision that reasons for and against appeal heard upon the code of the section of send up original papers and have appeal heard upon them. Semble, that an order of a Co. Ct. Judge rescinding an order previously made by him under s. 41 of above Act for dissolution of a company, is a final order, and therefore appealable. If we Eguitable Savings, Loss and Building Association, 22 C. L. 7, 386, 4 O. L. R. 479, 6 O. L. R. 26, 1 O. W, R. 571, 2 O. W. R. 3660

v. From Master's Orders.

Notice of appeal—Time—Pronouscing or entry of judgment.] — Judgment in a mechanics' lien action, tried by local Master, was signed 12th March, but dated 24th Feb., being the day on which Master had signed a memorandum of his findings, a copy of which he on same day sent by mail to solicitors for each of the parties. Memorandum contained no reference to costs of action, but they were disposed of by judgment as signed. There was no arrangement between solicitors and Master, that his findings were to be sent by mail:—Held, that the month within which notice of intention to appeal from the judgment must, by Rule 75%, be given, ran from signing of judgment on 12th March. Wallace v, Bath, 24 C. L. T. 288, 7 O. L. R. 542, 3 O. W. R. 426.

Security on appeal-Extension of time for allowance and setting down appeal-Delay-Merits.]-After judgment was given declaring plaintiff entitled to value of certain bonds, which defendants had failed to deliver over, such value to be determined by a reference to local Master, and after a long interval, without anything having been done under reference, it was transferred to Master in Ordinary, and, after finding of Master, and appeals and cross-appeals therefrom, plaintiff for first time claimed interest on such value from date of breach, and moved to have the judgment amended so as to in-clude such interest. Motion refused, whereupon plaintiff gave notice of appeal to Court of Appeal, but did not furnish necessary security until after time for appealing had elapsed :- Held, that, in the circumstances, the time for allowance of security and setting down of appeal should not be extended. Ray v. Port Arthur, Duluth and Western Rw. Co., Ray v. Middleton, 24 C. L. T.

Time — Cross-appeal—Ont, Rule 769.]— According to the true meaning of Rule 760, each party is precluded from appealing against the report or certificate of a Master unless he serves his notice of appeal within 14 days mentioned in the Rule; and notice of appeal given in proper time by one party does not prevent the report from becoming absolute as regards another party. Constitutional law—Justice of the paces —Stated case |—A case can be stated by a J. P. under R. S. O. c. 91, s. 5, for the opinion of the Court of Appeal, only when the constitutional validity of the statute in question is involved, and not when the decision depends merely upon whether the statute is or is not applicable to defendants :— Held, that appeal would not life from decision of the P. M. of Toronto that the Toronto Rw. Co, were bound by a city by-law passed under authority of Municipal Act, directing them to put vestibules on their cars, the company contending the by-law and Municipal Act did not apply because their line crossed lines of Dominion railways, thus making their undertaking a work for the general advantage of Canada and subject only to Dominion regulations. R. v. Toronto Rv. Co., 19 C. L. T. 386, 26 A. R. 491.

Jurisdiction.]—Court of Appeal for Ontario has no jurisdiction to hear an appeal upon a case stated by a magistrate from a summary conviction under Ont. Summary Convictions Act, for an offence against a provincial statute. Under Part XV. of the Criminal Code, a case may be stated for the opinion of "the Court," but in Ontario "the Court" means the High Court of Justice, ss. 2 (35a), 705 (b). R. v. Henry (1910), 15 O. Abandonment - Reinstatement-Leave to appeal.] - The defendants, after setting down an appeal for hearing by a Divisional Court, served notice abandoning it, and the case was struck out of the list. They afterwards moved to have it restored to the list. -Held, that if the motion could be treated as one for leave to appeal, notwithstand-ing the lapse of time, it would be in-cumbent upon the applicants to shew that prima facie the judgment below was wrong : and there being no error apparent on the face of the judgment, and no specific error having been pointed out, such an application must be refused .- But, semble, the motion could not be so treated .- The judgment below found that the defendants were trespassers and directed a reference as to dam-When the appeal was abandoned the ages. defendants thought the claim of the plain-tiffs would be much smaller than it subsequently appeared to be; and on learning the size of the claim, the defendants wished to renew their appeal .--- Held, no ground for interfering .-- The defendants had not made out any case shewing that any injustice was likely to arise if they were not allowed to appeal, or that they were only asking for what was just. Motion to quash appeal—Acquisition of lands at tax sale—Sale by tender—Resolution of council to accept lower tender— Action by higher tenderer to restrain sale— Insufficient reasons for accepting lower tender.]—Motion to quash appeal by defendant corporation to Divisional Gourt from the judgment of Magee, J., upon action to restrain defendants from proceeding with a sale to defendant Caldwell of certain lots acquired by corporation under Assessment

Act in satisfaction of arrears of taxes Action was dismissed by Street, J., and plaintiff appealed to Divisional Court, which held (5 O. W. R. 310), that plaintiff was entitled to succeed, unless defendant corporation could prove at a further trial good reasons which induced them to sell to defendant Caldwell. Defendant corporation elected to have a further trial, and it took place before Magee, J.—Held, plaintiff not entitled to have his offer accepted nor to prevent corporation from selling for less than amount of his offer, but he was entitled to an injunction to restrain them from closto an injunction to restain them from cos-ing the sale to Caldwell on basis only of the action of the special committee or of the council, 6 O, W. R. 1. Motion to quash above appeal, held, that the mere payment of money as directed by a judgment is not a bar to an appeal from that judgment by party making such payment, (reference to Pierce v. Palmer, 12 P. R. 308), and if the existing injunction was removed and appellants were declared to be at liberty to carry out the sale, there was nothing to support the contention that defendant Caldwell could not purchase the lands in question ; also that there was nothing to prevent his co-defendants from taking steps by appeal to relieve themselves from an onerous judgment which they allege to have been pronounced in error. Phillips v, Belleville, 6 O. W. R. 129, 10 O. L. R. 178.

Motion for new trial.]--There is no appeal to a Divisional Court from a judgment of a County Court on a motion for a new trial made to that Court, in an action tried with a jury. Brown v. Carpenter, 27 O. R. 412, followed. Irvine v. Sparks, 20 C. L. T. 115, 31 O. R. 403.

New evidence.]--Under Rule 498, High Court may entertain an application, in a proper case, to admit new evidence on a County Court append, notwithertancing R. S. O. c. 55, s. 51, s. s. 3, under which such an application must be made, before County Court, and this although the time for applying for a new trial had expired, Butler v. McMicken, 21 C. L. T. 71, 32 O. R. 422.

Order dismissing appeal from taxation of costs—Interlocutory.]—Order made by Judge in a County Court action dismissing an appeal from a ruling as to scale of costs upon taxation of plainiff's costs of an action awarded by judgment, is in its nature interlocatory and not final, within the meaning of 5.22 of County Courts Act, R. 8. O. 1897, c. 55, and no appeal lies therefrom to Divisional Court, Blackey V. Latham, 43 Ch. D. 23, followed. Babcock v. Standish, 19 F. R. 1955, distinguished. In Kruetziger V. Bros, 32 O. R. 418, the question of the right to appeal was not raised or considered. Leonard V. Burroes, 24 C. L. T. 219, 7 O. L. R. 316, 3 O. W. R. 186.

Order dismissing motion to commit— Finality.]—Appeal by plaintiffs from an order of Co. C. Judge dismissing a motion by appellants to commit defendant for refusing to be sworn and examined as a judgment debtor, upon ground that a proper foundation had not been laid for his examination by a return of null abona to a f. Ja., or an allidavit stating that such would be the return :—Held, that no appeal lay, because order appealed against was not in its nature final, but merely interlocutory, within meaning of s. 52 of County Courts Act, R. S. O. c. 55. New Hamburg Manufacturing Co. v. Barden, 21 C. L. T. 377.

Proceedings not certified.] — Held, (Meredith, J., dissenting), that appeal from order in a Connty Court action was not properly before the Court because proceedings were not certified. Lucas v. Holliday, 24 C. L. T. 365, 8 O. L. R. 541, 3 O. W. R. 732.

Right of appeal—Final or interlocutory order—Order striking out part of pleading.]— Order of Co. C. Judge purporting to be made under Con. Rule 261, striking out part of defence as disclosing no reasonable answer, is in its nature final, and appeal from it will lie under s. 52 of County Courts Act, R. S. O. 1897, c. 55. Smith v. Traders Bank, 11 O. L. R. 24, 6 O. W. R. 748.

Right of appeal from -Jury-Order of County Court in term--County Courts Act, s. 5.1, -Under s. 5.1 of County Courts Act, R. 8. 0. 1807 c. 55, where there has been a trial by jury for an action in County Court, and motion had been made to County Court in term for a new trial, and dismissed, no appeal lies from the dismissing order to Divisional Court; but, semble, where the findings of jury are reversed in term, an appeal lies. Booth v. Can. Parific Rue. Co., 8 O. W. R. 800, 13 O. L. R. 91.

Right of appeal — Municipal Drainage Act—County Court Judge — Persona designata.]—Accounts of engineers and surveyors employed by municipalities under Municipal Drainage Act, R. S. O. 1897, c. 220, may be audited by County Court Judge under 3 Edw, VII. c. 22, s. 4, and no appeal will lie to Divisional Court from his certificate, as it is not an affirmative order that can be enforced, there being no direction for payment of what the Judge found to be due the engineer or surveyor by municipality. Clutte, J. (dissenting), held, that County Court Judge acted as a persona designata. from whose decision, as a declaratory judgment, an appeal would lie under s. 2 of said Act, special leave having been given to appeal unler s. 4. Right of appeal. |-New trial p noved for. Smith v. Bloomfield, 2 O. W. 1. 481.

Right of appeal.] — Nonsuit—Negligence—Evidence for jury—New trial, Camp 7. Armstrong Cartage and Warehouse Co., 3 O. W. R. 686.

Right of appeal-Order refusing to vary minutes of judgment-Duty of Judge to certi fy proceedings-Set-off of costs.]-Order of Co. C. Judge in action in County Court dismissing an application to vary minutes under Con. Rule 625 (2) is an interlocutory and not a final order; and no appeal lies from it to High Court. Semble, per Britton, J., in Chrs., that the fact that there may be no appeal from such an order is no reason why the Judge should not certify papers ; question whether or not there is an appeal from such an order is for Court appealed to, and such certificate should as a rule be given upon request; the Judge's duty being ministerial only.—Semble, also, that the setting off of costs (which was the matter in question on motion to vary minutes) is no part of what is ordinarily understood as settling minutes judgment .--- A motion for a mandamus to Judge to certify proceedings was dismissed by Britton, J., and the dismissal was dismissed firmed by the Court. In re Taggert v. Ben-wett, 23 C. L. T. 224, 6 O. L. R. 74, 2 O. W. R. 184, 419, 513.

Right of appeal — Summary order for judgment if money not paid into Court— Order "in its nature final "—County Courts Act, s. 52—Talid defences — Unconditional leave to defend.]—Order made by County (Court Judge upon application by plaintiffs for summary judgment under Rule 603, allowing defendants to defend upon condition of their paying money into Court, and directing that, in default of payment into Court, plaintiffs be at liberty to sign final judgment, is "in its nature final and not merely interlocutory," within meaning of s. 52 of County Courts Act; and an appeal therefore lies from such an order to Divisional Court. Bark of Minnesota v, Page (1887), 14 A. R. 347, followed. Rural Municipality of Morris v. London and Canadian L. and A. Co. (1891), 19 S. C. R. 434, following English decisions, distinguished. Where valid defences are sworn to by defendants in answer to a motion for summary judgment. unconditional leave to defend should be granted. Jacobs v. Booths Distillery Co. (1901), 50 W. R. 49, 85 L. T. R. 202, followed, Order of County Court Judge of Carleton reversed. Castle Co. v. Kouri (1909), 18 O. L. R. 462, 14 O. W. H. 125.

Right of appeal.]—Summary trial of interpleader issue. Vipond v. Griffin, 2 O. W. R. 532.

Setting down — Time — Certificate — Jurisdiction.] — Heid, that until the Judge of a County Court has certified under his hand to the proper officer of the High Court, as provided by ss. 55 and 56 of R. S. O. c. 55, an appeal cannot be act down for hearing: McCarrow v. Metropcli-tan Life Ins. Co., 19 C. L. T. 230; Gilmor v. McPhail, 16 P. R. 151.—After the time limited by the statute for setting down has expired, there is no jurisdiction to hear the appent—If the Judge neglects or refuses to certify under the above-mentioned sections in time to enable the appellant to set down the apeal within the time limited by the statute, his certificate cannot be dispensed with, nor the time enlarged for granting it.—The certificate in time to enable the appeal to be set down under these sections is a condition precedent to the jurisdiction of this Court to hear the appeal, and being such cannot be dispensed with. Reekie v. McNeil, 20 C L. T. 73, 31 O R. 444.

Setting down — Time—Copies of pleadings.]—At the hearing of an appeal from a County Court judgment the plaintiff objected that the original pleadings were not certified by the Judge of the Court below, but only copies of them, and that the appeal was set down for too early a date, it having been set down for too early a date, it having been set down for a sitting of a Divisional Court which began less than thirty days after the decision complained of: see s. 57 of the County Courts Act, R. S. O. c. 55; Rules 735, 795, and s. 55 of the Act.—Held, that it is the Rule, and not the statute, which requires the original pleadings to be certified, and the Court may and does dispense, in a proper case, with the fulfilment of the requirements of the Rules, or permits something to be done nume pro tunc.—Held, also, that the provisions of s. 57 and Rule 795, as to setting down, were designed to prevent an appeal pleng unduly delayed, and are to be read as providing that the satting down is to be for a slitings not later than the first slitings after thirty days from the decision complained of. Lees v. Ottaura and New York R. W. Co., 20 C. L. T. 75, 31 O. II. 567.

Setting down-Time-Judgment-Settlement.]-The County Courts Act, R. S. O. c 55, by s. 57, provides that " the appeal shall be set down for argument at the first sittings of a Divisional Court of the High Court of Justice which commences after the expiration of one month from the judgment, order, or decision complained of."—Held, that the month begins to run from the date of the judicial opinion or decision, oral or written, pronounced or delivered, and the judgment or order founded upon it must be referred to that date .--- If such opinion or decision is not pronounced or delivered in open Court, it cannot be said to be pronounced or delivered until the parties are notified of it .- Quare, whether after a judgment has been settled and entered, the Fawkes v. Judge has power to resettle it. F Sucazie, 20 C L. T. 8, 31 O. R. 256.

Time—Judgment—County Courts Act, s. 57.]—If a judicial opinion or decision, oral or written, is not pronounced or delivered in open Court, it cannot, until the parties are notified of it, be said to be pronounced or delivered within meaning of s. 57 of County Courts Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 55, requiring appeals from County Court to be set down for first sitting of Divisional Court commencing on or after the expiration of one month from judgment, order, or decision complained of.—Dictum of Armour, C.J., in Fawkes v. Steayzie, 31 O. W. R. 256, approved. Allan v. Place, 10 O. W. R. 603, 15 O. L. R. 148. Time for appealing expired—Power to extend time for appealing after — Ontario County Courts Act, 10 Edse, VII. c. 30, 4. 44 (2).1—Plaintiff moved to have time for appealing from a County Court judgment extended, he having failed to serve notice of appeal and to have the appeal set down in time.—Divisional Court held, that they had jurisdiction to grant the order as asked.— Re Molson, Ward v. Stevenson, 21 O. L. R. 239, 1 O. W. N. 1038, followed:—Held, that on the merits a case had been made out for so extending the time. Motion granted on term that appellant should pay the costs of motion to respondent in any event upon final taxation. Hunter v. Patterson (1910), 16 O. W. R. 2083; 2 O. W. N. 61.

Weight of evidence.]-Correcting error. Jackson v. McLaughlin, 2 O. W. R. 159.

iv. From Division Courts.

Certified copy of proceedings—Filing —Notice of appeal—Time—Extension.]—An order refusing a new trial of Divisional Court plaint was made on 25th August; the clerk certified a copy of proceedings on 29th August, and it was filed in H. C. J. on 4th September; notice of appeal was not given for October sittings of Divisional Court, but on 12th October appellant obtained order in Division Court extending time for filing the certified copy of proceedings, and on 17th October obtained and filed another copy, and gave notice to appeal for November sittings :—Held, that the order extending time was inoperative because the certified copy had already been filed; and, the delay in giving notice of appeal not having been accounted for, appeal must be quashed. Heise v. Shanka, 21 C. L. T. 159, 1 O. L. R. 48.

County Court-Right of appeal from— Neae trial.] — Judgment having been pronounced by junior Judge in County Court action a motion by way of appeal from or to set asile such judgment and to enter judgment for defendants, or in alternative for a new trial, was made to senior Judge; and on such appeal the judgment was set aside and judgment rentered for defendants dismissing action:—Held, that an appeal lay to Divisional Court by unsuccessful party to such appeal; and the fact that a new trial in alternative was asked for was immaterial. The sub-sees, of s. 51 of County Courts Act, R. S. 0. 1807 c. 55, applicable, are s.es. 1, 2, and 5, and not s.e. 3. Leishmor, v. Garland, 22 C. L. T. 100, 3 O. L. R. 241, 1 O. W. R. 22.

Filing certified copy of proceedings -Extension of time for. |-Divisional Court has no power to extend time limited by s. 158 of Division Courts Act for filing certified copy of proceedings in Division Court, and has no power, under s.-s. 2 of s. 158 (as added by 4 Edw. VII. c. 12, s. 2), or otherwise, to extend time for setting down appeal until it is seized of the appeal by filing of certified copy, time for filing which may be estended by the Judge in the Division Court. Whaten v. Wattie, 16 O. L. R. 249, 11 O. W. 3, 217.

Notice of grounds - Failure to give-Amendment.]-Where defendants, appealing from judgment of Division Court, procured and filed a certified copy of proceedings within two weeks prescribed by s. 158 of Division Courts Act, and set down appeal to be heard at an unnecessarily early sittings of Divisional Court, but neglected to give plaintiff notice of setting down of appeal and of grounds of it, the Court, upon objection taken by plaintiff when appeal came on for hearing, postponed hearing until next sittings, which defendants were still in time, in order that they might give a proper notice.-Semble, that so soon as certified copy of proceedings is filed, if filed within proper time, and case is set down, if set down within proper time, and for proper Court, the appeal is properly lodged, and other matters are matters done in appellate Court, as to which the Court may have power of amendment or enlargement of time. Smith v. Port Colborne Baptist Church Trustees, 21 C. L. T. 163, 1 O. L. R. 195.

Notice of setting down.]—Giving of notice of setting down for argument and of the appeal and of grounds thereof, required by s. 158 of Division Courts Act, is a condition precedent to right to appeal to Divisional Court from a Division Court, and where this notice has not been given Divisional Court has no jurisdiction to deal with appeal. Bradley Co. V. Wilson Lumber Co., 24 C. L. T. 317, 8 O. L. R. 184, 4 O. W. R. 66.

Notice of setting down.]-Default of appellant-Waiver of cross-appeal. Waller v. Malone, 3 O. W. R. 774.

Right of appeal—Amount in dispute.]— Plainsifi brought action in Division Court for $100,75, amount of promissory note for $04.87 and $25.35 interest, and recovered judgment for $83.90; trial Judge finding against an alleged release set up by defendant, but only allowing $19.13 for interest instead of $35.38 as claimed. A motion for a new trial was refused:—Held, that 'the sum in dispute upon appeal '' under s. 154 of Division Courts Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 60 was $85.90, and, as it did not exceed $100, a motion to guash appeal to High Court was allowed. Petrie v. Machan, 28 O. R. 504, distinguished. Lambert v. Clark, 24 C. L. T, 129, 7 O. L. R. 130, 3 O. W. R. 363.

Right of appeal—Public Schools Act— Division Courts Act—Motion for new trial— Necessity for,1—Action to recover a sum in excess of $200 for balance of teacher's salary was brought against public school trustees in Division Court, as permitted by s. 81 (7) of the Public Schools Act, 1 Edw. VII. c. 39 (0.) Action was dismissed, and plaintiff, in appealing to Divisional Court, failed to follow the procedure prescribed by Division Courts Act:—Held, that "the ordinary right of appeal," mentioned in s. 98 (2) of Public Schools Act, is right of appeal given by Division Courts Act; and plaintiff, not having moved for a new trial in Division Courts Act, R. S. O. 1897, c. 60, could not courts Act, R. S. O. 1897, c. 60, could not maintain her appeal.—Cott v. Halliday, 17 C. L. T. Occ. N. 53, followed. Norton v. Order of County Court Judge — Assignments Act—Jurisdiction—Leave to appeal—Transfer of motion to Judge of Court of Appeal—General words in notice of motion—Coats—Power to ascerd.]—A Judge of the High Court of Justice has no jurisdiction to entertain an appeal or give leave to appeal from an order of a County Court Judge as to the valuing of securities under s. 20 of the Assignments and Preferences Act. R. S. O. 1897. c. 147: but, under Con. Rule 784, he may refer the motion to a Judge of the Court of Appeal, who, under C3 V. c. 17, s. 14 (O.), has jurisdiction to crant leave to appeal in such a case; and held, that to do so was proper in this case, in view of the general words in the notice of motion. "or for such other order as may seem just."— Under Con. Rule 1130 (1) costs may be awarded against a party to any proceeding in the Supreme Court of Judicature for Ontario, even though there be no jurisdiction to entertain the matter. In re Erb (Aaron) No. 1, 12 O. W. R. 108, 16 O. L. R. 594.

Report of referce-Reference of matters in dispute in as action—"In a summary way".--Solicitor's bill.]--Proceedings in an action upon a solicitor's bill were stayed upon a certain agreement being entered into between the parties, whereby it was provided that evidence as to services rendered and disbursements made was to be given to a certain accountant named, and "in case of dispute as to services rendered are to be referred in a summary way to F. E. Marcon, deputy clerk at Windsor, under R. S. O. c. 174, for decision."-Heid, that by APPEAL.

"a summary way," the parties meant that the reference was to be without ceremony or delay, the words "under R. S. O. c. 174" merely introducing the procedure under that Act (the Act respecting solicitors), but not to be construed as providing for an appeal from the report made by the deputy clerk upon such reference. Sale v. Lake Erie & Detroit River Rw. Co., 20 C. L. T. 332, 32 O. R. 159.

15-ONTARIO-APPEAL TO SESSIONS.

Dismissal of complaint — By-law,]— There is no appeal to the Court of General Sessions of the Peace from an order of dismissal of a complaint made against the defendants for an offence against a city bylaw passed under the authority of s. 551 of the Municipal Act, R. S. O. c. 223. R. v. Toronto P. S. Board, 20 C. L. T. 175, 31 O. R. 457.

16. ONTARIO MINING COMMISSIONER - AP-PEAL TO AND FROM.

Against issue of certificate of record -Extending time-Whether such an appeal lies-Policy of Act.]-S. on 2nd Sept. 1909, recorded a mining claim staked out by him on 1st Sept. At this time (though the lands were under the provisions of the Act open to staking) an appeal by another licensee against the cancellation of a former claim had not yet been disposed of. After this appeal had been finally dismissed the Recorder on 20th Dec., granted S. a certificate of record. B subsequently sought to record a new staking and to set aside the certificate of record and have S.'s claim cancelled for lack of discovery and other defects. No fraud or mistake within the meaning of the Act being shown and no evidence of merits or validity of B.'s claim being offered, it was held by the Commissioner that the certificate of record should not be set aside and that extension of time for appealing from the granting of it should be refused, and that the attack upon S.'s claim should be dismissed .- It is not the policy of the Act to encourage attacks upon mining claims after the time allowed for filing disputes against them has elapsed and a certificate of record has been issued .-- Query, whether in the absence of fraud or mistake an appeal under the Act will lie against the granting of a certificate of record. R and Stewart (1910), M. C. Cas. 461. Re Ball

From Commissioner — Failure to set down and lodge certificate within time.]—On motion to quash an appeal by R. to the Divisional Court, held by the Divisional Court, quashing the appeal, that as the appeal had not been set down, and a certificate of setting down lodged with the Recorder within the time limited by s. 151 of the Act (1908), it must be deemed conclusively to be abandoned, and there is no power to extend the time beyond the limit prescribed by the Act. Reekie V. McNeil (1859), S2 O. R. 444, followed. Re Rogers and McFarland (1909), 14 O. W. R. 943, M. C. Cas. 407, 19 O. L. R. 622.

From Commissioner-As to due performance of work.] - Held, by the Court. quashing the appeal, that the decision of the Commissioner as to the due performance of the work was final and not subject to appeal. Re Perkins and Doveling (1909), M. C. Cas. 436, 1 O. W. N. 290.

From Divisional Court — Leve — New trial.]—Held, per Moss, C.J.O., on an appliextion under s. 152 (Act of 1908), for leave to appeal from an order of the Divisional Court granting a new trial, that as the Court had exercised its discretion in granting the new trial and had determined nothing in respect to the final rights of the parties, that discretion should not be interfreed with, though upon the facts it might appear that such an order should not have been made. Re 8mit and Hill (1909), 14 O. W. R. 881, M. C. Cas. 349, 19 O. L. R. 577, 14 O. W. R.

From Recorder—Extending time—Serving substitutionally]—Where notice of appeal from a Recorder is filed within the time allowed the Commissioner has power, if axisfied that it is a proper case for appeal, and that after reasonable efforts an adverse party could not be served, to extend the time for such service and order that the service may be made substitutionally, and this may be done on an exparte application. Re Downey & Muuro (1909), M. C. Cas, 173, 14 O. W. R. 523, 19 O. L. R. 249.

From Recorder—Delay in prosecuting.] —Proceedings under the Act must be prosecuted promptly, and if an appellant is not present with his evidence at the time appointed for hearing and no explanation is given, the appeal must be dismissed. Re MacCosham and Vanzant (1908), M. C. Cas. 277.

From Recorder—Notice of—Party "adversely interested."]—In an appeal from cancellation of a mining claim by the Recorder a subsequent applicant for the same property is a party "ndversely interested" under s. 75 of The Mines Act, 1506, and if not duly served with notice of the appeal the appeal must be dismissed. Re Petrakos (1906), M. C. Cas. 22, 13 O. L. R. 650, 9 O. W. R. 367.

From Recorder—Party adversely intercated.]—In an appeal from cancellation of a mining claim staked out while a working permit application was pending, the working permit applicant is a party "adversely interseted" within the meaning of the Act, and if he is not served with notice of the appeal the appeal must be dismissed. Re Chartrand and Large (1908), M. C. Cas, 240.

From Recorder—Party adversely interented—Extending time for service.]—The Racorder gave his decision in a dispute between R. and McC. on Trth July M. Inter the same day staked out and field application for a mining claim upon the property in dispute. R. field a notice of appeal from the Recorder's decision on 18th July, but did not serve either McC. or M. "—He'd, that McC, and M. were parties." adversely interested," within s. 133 (3) (1008), and that failure to serve them within the time limited by the Act was fatal to the appeal.—Extension of time for service was refused where the appellant failed to shew that it was a proper case for appeal, and that after i ties could (1908), M

From Recorder-Service of notice.]—A post office certificate of registration of a letter to respondent, assumed to contain notice of an appeal from the Recorder, which the respondent denied he received, is not sufficient to establish service of such notice under s. 75 of the Mines Act, 1906. Re Woodward and Carleton (1906), M. C. Cas. 18.

Notifying subsequent stakers of the hearing.] — Where a subsquent claim is staked out and recorded after the Recorder has cancelled a former one the subsequent claimant should be made a party to and notified of the hearing of an appeal from the cancellation. Re Milne and Gamble (1910), M. C. Cas, 249, 1 O. W. N. 545.

Recorder acting ex parte—Decision by Commissioner on merita — Retrial.] — S. had obtained from M, an agreement or option for purchase of 3 mining claims, snd recorded it, and the Recorder noted it on the records of the claims. On failure of S. to pay deposits into the bank as the agreement or option required, M. applied ex parte to the Recorder who, on proof of the default, cancelled the noting on the record of the claims. S. appealed to the Commissioner who, pursuant to appointment, after relusing a request on behalf of the appellant for an adjournment for which no cause was shewn, heard evidence, and finding S. had no longer any right under the agreement or option, dismissed the appeal on the merits. On appeal to the Divisional Court a retrial before the Commissioner was granted on condition that the appellant should pay into Court the instalments in default. Re smith and Millar, 458.

Recorder's refusal to record application with dispute — Procedure.] — Where a claimant, who has filed an application for a mining claim which the Recorder eaters a dispute against the prior application and therein claims to be entitled to the property, an appeal against such refusal is not necessary. Re MacKay and Boyer (1907), M. C. Cas, 83.

Status of appellant.] — An appeal lies from a decision of the Commissioner dismissing a dispute against a recorded mining claim, notwithstanding that the appellant has no right or interest in the property himself (overruling, upon this point, Re Cashman and The Cobalt and James Minea, Lid., M. C. Cas, 70, and Re Musro and Dotency, M. C. Cas, 139); and there appears to be no distinction in this respect between decisions of the Commissioner on appeal from the Recorder and decisions by him in the first instance. Re Smith and Hill (1909), M. C. Cas, 349, 19 O, L. R. 577, 14 O. W. R. SS1.

Time for—Findings of fact.]—M. and L. on 27th Feb., 1907, staked out a mining claim for B. The claim after inspection was cancelled by the Recorder for lack of discovery, entry thereof being made on the record on the evening of 20th August after the office was closed to the public; notice was given next day-the Act requiring it to be given not later than the day after cancellation ; appeal to the Commissioner was filed by B. on 5th September, the Act re-quiring appeal to be taken within 15 days from the record of the decision. The evidence before the Commissioner shewed that M. and L, in staking had used a standing tree cut off as the Act required for their discovery post. it being within 3 feet of a crack or small vein into which they had picked and put some shots on the day of staking, exposing a little iron pyrite; it was claimed that they had also found, and intended the post to apply to, another vein 15 or 20 feet from the which was afterwards opened up and post. found to be more promising. Held, by the Commissioner, that the appeal filed on the 16th day after entry of cancellation was too late and must be dismissed upon that ground, but that on the merits it would also have to be dismissed as the crack near the post was out of the question as a discovery, and he was not satisfied on the evidence that M. and L. had discovered the second vein M, and L, had discovered the second vein when they staked, and that at all events it was not until sinking had been done that anything valuable was disclosed there, the rich silver discovery of the respondent D, who staked the property on 22nd August, having meanwhile intervened. Held, by the Divi-sional Court that the appeal was not too has and that there was a sufficient discovery late and that there was a sufficient discovery and that the appeal should be allowed, Anglin, J., however, holding that the staking was not sufficient and that the appeal should be dismissed upon that ground. Amount appealable £500-No appeal to Privy Council except from highest Court of Appeal in the Province.]-By the Royal Instructions to the Governor of Prince Edward Island, an appeal is given to the Governor and Council, from the decision of the ernor and Council, from the decision of the Supreme Court, in all cases where the amount at issue is of the value of £300, and from the Council of Her Majesty, where the amount at issue is £500. An action hav-ing been commenced, and judgment obtained in the Supreme Court, for £135, an application was made for leave to appeal from such judgment to Her Majesty in Council, withstanding its being below the appealable amount :-- Held, by the Judicial Committee, that there being an intermediate Court of Appeal in the Island, no appeal could be received from the Supreme Court; but their Lordships, under the circumstances, advised the allowance of the appeal to the Governor and Council in the Island. Re Cambridge (1841), C. R. 1 A. C. 145.

Amount in controversy-Damages -Original claim-Abandonment of portion.]-The plaintiff in an action in a Superior Court may at any time abandon a part of his claim, and upon such abandonment the part remainder only is deemed to be in controversy. -On the trial of an action in which the damages were laid at $5,000, a nonsuit was entered, but it was agreed that in case the plaintiff should, on appeal, be held entitled to maintain the action, the damages should be fixed at $1,000. On appeal to a Divi-sional Court, the plaintiff was held so entitled, and a new trial was directed unless the defendants consented to judgment for the $1,000. This the defendants refused to do. and appealed to the Court of Appeal, when the judgment of the Divisional Court was affirmed. An application was then made for leave to appeal to the Privy Council, on the ground that the matter in controversy exceeded $4,000. In answer thereto the plaintiff, by affidavit, stated that he was only claiming $1,000, which he regarded as agreed upon for all purposes, and offered to amend his statement of claim .- Held, that the application must be refused, as the dam-Ages must be deemed to be limited to the $1,000. Preston v. Toronto Rw. Co., 31 O. L. R. 78, 8 O. W. R. 753.

Canadian Supreme and Exchequer Courts Act, 1875, s. 47-Colonid Courts of Admirally Act, 1890, s. 6-Judgment of Supreme Court exercising admirally jurisdiction - Special leave to appeal unnecessary.)-Notwithstanding the provisions of the Canadian Supreme and Exchequer Courts Act, 1875, s. 47, with respect to the finality of the judgments of the Supreme Court, an appeal lies as of right under s. 6 of the Colonial Courts of Admiralty Act, 1880, from a judgment of the Supreme Court of Canada when pronounced in an appeal thereto from a decree of the Colonial Court of Admiralty, constituted in pursuance of and exercising jurisdiction under the said Act. Judgment in "Cape Breton" v. Richelies & Ont. Nav. Co., 36 S. C. R. 504, affirmed. Richelies & Ontario Navigation Co. v. "Cape Breton," [1007] A. C. 112.

Consolidation of actions for purpozes of appeal-Motion for -Forum.]--The Court of Appeal has no jurisdiction to grant a motion for the consolidation of two actions, in view of an appeal to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, after it has rendered judgment in the two actions separately; such a demand can outy be granted by the Judicial Committee. Judgment against non-residents — Time for appealing—Special leave—Not asserted on appeal within 14 days from final decree.]—Upon a petition stating that a party against whom a decree had been pronounced by the Supreme Court of Newfoundland, was at the time resident in Enzland, and had no representative within the Island, or notice of proceedings against him, the Judicial Committee gave leave to appeal upon terms, notwithstanding that he had not asserted an appeal within fourteen days from the final Lecree as required by the Charter of Justice of Newfoundland. Henderson v. Henderson (1843), C. R. 1 A. C. 198.

Judgment directed a reference-Referee insisted on proceeding-Stay of proceeding pending appeal granted.]-In an action for damages, plaintiff was given judgment and a reference to the Official Referee was directed. Defendants appealed to the Privy Council. The Official Referee directed that, notwithstanding the appeal, the refershould be proceeded with. Falconbridge, C.J.K.B., granted an order staying proceedings on the reference, pending the determination of the appeal. Order affirmed by Divisional Court on the ground that the order was within the discretion of the Chief Justice, and the Court could not say that the discretion was wrongly exercised. Sharpe y. Jurisdiction-Judgment - Reference to Court for opinion - Leave to appeal.]-Held, following Union Colliery Co. V. Attornew-General for British Columbia, 27 S. C. R. 637, that the opinion of the Court ren-dered under R. S. M. c. 28, upon a consti-tational question submitted by an order of the Lieutenant-Governor in council, was not a judgment, decree, order, or sentence within the meaning of the Imperial order in coun-cil of the 26th November, 1862, relating to appeals from the Court of Queen's Bench for Manitoba, and that such Court has no jurisdiction to grant an application for leave to appeal to his Majesty in Council under that order from such an opinion.-Held, also, that, although it was shewn that the enforcement of the Liquor Act would deprive the province of a revenue far exceeding £300 per annum, and would prejudicially affect the very large investments of persons en-gaged in the liquor traffic, it could not be said that any questions respecting property or civil rights to the value of £300 were involved in the decision sought to be appealed from. In re The Liquor Act, 21 C. L. T. 416, 13 Man. L. R. 323.

Leave to appeal — Amount in controversy.]—In determining the question of the value of the amount involved, upon which the right to appeal to the Privy Council depends, the Court, on a motion for leave to appeal, will look at the judgment as it affects the parties; and where it appeared from affidavits in support of the motion that the defendants in obeying an injunction would be put to an expense of over £300, they were granted leave to appeal. Centre Star Mining Co. v. Rossland-Kootenay Mining Co., 11 B C. R. 500, 1 W. L R. 313, 336.

Leave to appeal—4.pplication to allow security.]—Where the sole question in two actions was not the validity of an order of the railway committee of the Privy Council of Canada requiring the plaintiffs to build a bridge:—Held, refusing an application to allow the security upon a proposed appeal to His Majesty in His Privy Council from the decision of the Court of Appeal, that an appeal did not lie as of right under R. S. O. 1807, ch. 48, sec. 1. Can. Pac. Rue. Co. v. Toronto (1909), 14 O. W. R. 1065, 1 O. W. N. 180, 19 O. L. E. 6623.

Motion to allow security-Matter in controversy exceeding $4,000-Value. -On a motion by the plaintiffs for the allowance of the security on an appeal from the Court of Appeal to the Privy Council, in an ac-tion brought by the corporation of a city against two electric light companies, to have declared that they had forfeited their rights under certain agreements with the city, under which they held their franchises, the on the ground that they had amalgamated contrary to the terms of such agreements, which action had been dismissed .---Held (Meredith, J.A., dissenting), that the whole matter in controversy at trial (being the destruction, not the acquisition of the defts.' franchise) was whether the co.'s had forfeited their right by an amalgamation, and this clearly did not come within the last branch of s. 1 of R. S. O. 1897, c. 48, and that there was nothing before the Court to shew that such matter was of value to the pltffs. of more than $4,000, or of any sum or value capable of being ascertained or defined. Per Meredith, J.A. —The matter in controversy much exceeded $4,000, and if controverted leave should be given appellants to prove value. Toronto v. Toronto Electric Light Co., Toronto V. Incondescent Light Co., of Toronto, & Toronto Electric Light Co. (1906), 11 O. L. R. 310, 7 O. W. R. 119

Ontario appeal—R. S. O. 1807. c. 48.s. 1—Admission of appeal—Order of Court— Appealable case.]—Under R. S. O. 1997, c.48, s. 1, it is essential that an appeal tothe King in council should be admitte' bythe Court of Appeal. The Court is bound: toexercise its judgment whether any particolar case is appealable or not; and where itappears by its order that it has left thatquestion open, the appeal is incompetent.Gillett & Co. v. Lamsden, [1905] A. C. 601. Practice—Stay of execution—Security.] Where, after judgment on appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada, the losing party proposes to appeal to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council, the Court will order proceedings on such judgment in the Court of original jurisdiction to be stayed on satisfactory security being given for the debt, interest, and costs. Union Interiment Co. v. Wells, 41 8. C. R. 244.

Bight of appeal—Amount in controversy—Patent of invention.]—An action for infringement of a patent of invention, wherein the plaintiff claims an injunction and $15,000 dumages, which he consents in writing to reduce to $25, in order to escape costs of an enguête, is not, whatev: r may be the value of the patent, a cause in which an appeal lies as of right to the Privy Council. Came v. Consolidated Car Heating Co., 4 Que. P. R. $256, 11 Que. K. B. 114.

Right of appeal—From judgment on petition of right.]—An appeal lies to the P. C. from a decision of the Court of Queen's Bench for Que. on a petition of right. R. v. Demers, [1900] A. C. 103. Reversing 7 Que. Q. B. 433.

Right of appeal—Quo warranto proceeding.]—An appeal does not lie to the Privy Council from a judgment of the Court of King's Bench reversing a judgment of the Superior Court and refusing a petition for a quo varranto against a director of a company to prevent him from netting as president. Vipond v, Robert, 9 Que, P. R. 273.

Right of appeal to His Majesty in Gouncil.—An Act of the parliament of Great Britain declared that all laws passed by the legislature of a colony should be valid and binding, within the colony, and directed that the colonial Court of Appeal should be subjected to such appeal as it was previously to the passing of the Act, and also to such further and other provisions as might be made in that behalf by any Act of the colonial legislature:—Held, that, an Act haying heen passed by the colonial legislature, limiting the right of appeal to causes where the sum in dispute was not less than $500 sfelling, a petition for leave to appeal, in a cause where the sum was of less amount, could not be received by the King in council, although there was a special saving, in the colonial Aët, of the rights and prerogatives of the Grown. V. art. 1175 C. P. C. (uvillier v. Ayloin (1852), 1 C. R. A. G. 22, Stuart 527, 2 Knap, 72, 12 Eng. Reprint, 406, 1 R. J. K. Que, 201.

Security — Con. Rule 331.1 — Connolidated Rule S21 requires a bond for $2,000 as security for the prosecution of an append to bis Majesty in his Privy Council: Payment into Court of $1,000 does not satisfy the above Rule, having regard to R. S. O. (1937), c. 48, s. 2. Florence Mining Co. v. Cobalt Lake Mining Co. (1969), 14 O. W. R. 507, 19 O. L. R. 342.

Security-Delay-Extension of time --Record returned. --Where leave to appeal to the Privy Council has been granted by the Court of King's Bench sitting in appeal, from a judgment rendered by the latter tribunal, and a delay having been fixed for putting in security, the delay has expired without security being furnished, and without any application having been made for an extension of the delay before the expiration thereof, and the record has thereupon been transmitted to the Court below, the Court of King's Bench, or a Judge thereof, has ceased to have jurisdiction over the cause, and cannot grant an application, made subsequently, for the extension of the delay for putting in security. Asbeatos and Asbeasic Co. v. William Sciater Co., 21 Occ. N. 251, 3 Que. F. R. 491, 10 Que Q. B. 61.

Security for sppeal.]—The appellant, in pursuance of the Canada Act, 34 Geo. III., c. 2. s. 35, tendered his bond as security for the due prosecution of the appeal. The bond, though without sureties, and binding only on the appellant, was, upon a rule appeal the appellant died, and the same was duly revived against the executors. Application that the executors should give proper and sufficient security, or the appeal stand dismissed, refused—the Judicial Committee being of opinion that the allowance of the security in the Court below precluded the respondents from objecting now to the form of the bond, and that their appearance to the order of revivor prevented the Court imposing terms on the appellant. Semble. the term "proper security." in the Canada Act, 34 Geo. III., c. 2, s. 35, means security with proper sureties, and not merely personal. The Court of Appeals in Upper Canada having refused to order the Court of King's Bench to send up the original papers and documents on the file of the Court, but not part of the Record, their decision was affirmed, the Judicual Committee holding that the Court of Appeals was a Court of Error, and governed by the same rules as prevails in Courts of Error in England. Powell v, Washburn (1828), C. R. 1 A. C. 127.

Stay of proceedings—Motion for.]— A Judge in Chambers of the Supreme Court of Canada will not entertain an application to stay proceedings pending an application for leave to appeal from the judgment of the Court to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. Arbitration award under the Railway Act of Canada.]—An appeal to the Superior Court, under 8, 200 of the Railway Act of Canada (R. S. C., c. 37), from an arbitration award, may be taken by means of an ordinary petition, and without a direct action. Lamarre v. Grand Trunk Rev. Co. (1910), 16 R. de J. 53.

Disposition of appeal — Question of fact — Deference paid to finding of trial Judge—Independent estimate of evidence.]— The rule that Courts of Appeal, in weighing the motives and conclusions upon questions of facts of judgments which come before them for review, should take into consideration the advantage which the Judge of first instance, at the trial, had in seeing and hearing the witnesses, is not an absolute rule, and they may and should, in the case of conflict of testimony, especially where the witnesses appear disinterested, adjudge according to the independent estimate which they form. Montreal Harbour Commissioners v. Montreal Grain Elevating Co., 17 Que. Q. B. 385, 4 E. L. R. 78.

Effect of appeal — Removal of record from Superior Court—Motion to remove exhibits.)—The filing of the inscription in appeal and the giving of security remove the record from the jurisdiction of the Superior Court; a motion to dismiss some exhibits from the record, which had been hield after the enguite and merits of the case, and which had not been referred to in any of the depositions, cannot be then entertained. Page v. Connolly, 10 Que. P. R. 101.

From conviction—Provincial offence— Criminal Code.]—The offence of forcibly and unlawfully passing a turnpike gate without first having paid the legal toll, being an offence under a Provincial law, and concerning a matter under the exclusive authority of the Provincial Legislature, no appeal lies from a conviction by a magistrate to the Court of Queen's Bench, Crown Side, under Art. 879 of the Criminal Code, this article only applying to offences or matters over which the Parliament of Canada has legilative authority (Art, 840, Criminal Code). Lecoms v. Hurtubies, 8 Que. Q. B. 439.

From conviction—Recorder's Court.]— There is no right of appeal to the Court of Queen's Bench, Crown side, from a conviction by the Recorder's Court, Montreal, on a matter which is under the exclusive legilative authority of the Legislature of the Province of Quebec. Section 503 of the Montreal city charter, 62 V. c. 58, does not confer such right of appeal. Superior V. Montreal, 9 Que, Q. B. 138, 3 Can. Cr. Cas. 370. From conviction—Summary trial] — There is no right of appeal to the Court of Queen's Bench, Crown side, on the merits of a case, from the decision of a Judie of the Sessions, or of any other magistrate or functionary mentioned in s. 782–11 (a), Criminal Code, when he has acted under the jurisdiction conferred upon him for the summary trial of certain specified indictable offences; but in the case mentioned in the amendment passed in 1895–188 & 55 V. c. 40) to s. 782 of the Criminal Code, viz., where the defendant is charged with any of the offences mentioned in s.-ss. (a) and (f) of s. 783, and where the offender is tried by two justices of the peace sitting together, there is an appeal from their conviction. R. V. Racine, 9 Que, Q. B. 134.

From decision of Court of Revision.)--There is no appeal to the Court of Queen's Bench from a decision of the Court of Revision for the city of Montreal varying a report of the commissioners for the city in an expropriation matter. Re Montreal & Grand Trunk Rw. Co., 3 Que. P. R. 208.

From interlectory order in municipal election case. Constitutional law — Provincial statute.]—There is no appeal to the Court of Queen's Bench from an interlocutory judgment rendered in a contested municipal election case, under the charter of the city of Montreal, 62 V. c. 58 (Q).—2.— The legislative provision which prohibits such appeal is intra vires of a Provincial Legislature. Clarke v. Jacques, 9 Que. Q. B. 238.

From judgment of Conve of Review —Amount in controversy.]--There is no appeal to the Court of Queen's Bench from a judgment of the Court of first instance, in an action to obtain a release of a judgment for $45.20 with interest and costs, pronounced against the plaintiff in another case, and also to obtain a discharge of the line resulting from the registration of such judgment. Fortier Y, Noel, 3 Que, P. R. 254.

From Recordsr's Court-9 Educ. VII. c, 72.]--There is no right of appeal to the King's Bench from a decision of the Recorder's Court of the City of Montreal in the matters enumerated in section 1 of 9 Edw. VII. c, 72. Montreal Street Rv. Co. and Montreal (1910), 16 R. de J. 431.

From order in Chambers — Tration of costs. —No appeal lies from the decision of a Judge in Chambers upon a petition to review the tratition of a bill of costs. La Valée & Richelieu Ruc. Co. v. Menard, 3 Que. P. R. 133.

Inscription—Incomplete record — Power of Superior Court to set aside.] — The Superior Court has no jurisdiction to grant a motion to set aside an inscription in appeal, upon the ground that the appellant since the inscription has not taken the necessary proceedings to complete the record and bring it before the Court of Appeal, Bayard v. Royal Electric Co. 6 Que, P. 348.

Inscription-Time-Service of notice-Omission of date.]-The delivery of the inscription of an appeal to the registrar and the serving of notice thereof on the opposite party on the last day allowed by law, is a valid inscription of an appeal.—the inscription of an appeal may be notified by a bailing of the Superior Court. The outside of the date of the judgment appealed against in the inscription is not a fatal irregularity, provided that the judgment has been otherwise designated. McAvoy v. Willig, 14 Que K. B. 50.

Insertiption in appeal—Motion to dismiss—Service of the inscription before it is filed in the office of the Court—C. C. P. 1213.]—A copy of the inscription in appeal cannot be served upon the opposite party until the inscription itself has been filed in the office of the Superior Court.—A motion based upon this irregularity will be granted for costs, the appellant having since filed the inscription; all proceedings had before the filing of such inscription are null and of no effect. Gross v. Racicot (1906), 11 Que P. R. 124.

Judgment on a writ of prohibition to forbid the Magistrate's Court determining a motion to set aside a resolution of a municipal connell touching a license certificate, There is an appeal to the Court of King's Bench from the judgment of the Superior Court acting as a Court of Appeal, on the question of a writ of prohibition, to remove from the Magistrate's Court the cognizance of a motion to set aside a resolution of a municipal council regarding licenses. This judgment is not rendered in a matter concerning municipal corporations and municipal officers, but in a matter where the License Act is to be considered. Desormeaus v. Bainville, 18 Que. K. Jurisdiction—Personal condemnation in an action for damages—Damages suffered in the past and probable in the immediate future.]—The defendant condemned in a personal action in the Circuit Court to pay a sum of $90 for damages resulting from the damming of a river, has no right of appeal to the Court of King's Bench to have such judgment modified in such a way as to make it applicable to future as well as to present damages. Lake Megantic Pulp Co. v. Beauregard (101.0), 19 Que. K. B. 281.

Leave to appeal—Criminal cause where magistrate refused to state a case. R. v. Hamelin, 3 E. L R. 270.

Leave to appeal—Custody of children.] —A judgment rofusing to the wife the custody of her children pending an action for separation from bed and board, is one from which leave to appeal will be granted, although such an appeal would appear to be unwise. Lachapelle v. Lacrois, 7 Que. P. R. 307.

Leave to appeal-Demurrer-Interlocutory judgment-Evidence-Pleading.)--When an interlocutory judgment, maintaining an inscription in law, has not the effect of excluding evidence upon any matter pertinently pleaded, leave to appeal will not be granted, as this judgment can, in any event, be reviewed by the Superior Court, even before the final judgment in the cause. Grivouard v. Girouard v. Girouard v. Girouard v. R. 419. Leave to appeal—Interlocutory judgment —Husband and wite—Separation—Reconciliation.]—In an action for separation from bed and board, a judgment declaring that the allgations of reconciliation have been proved, reserving to the parties the right to discuss the consequences of the reconciliation upon the proceeding pending between them, is not an interlocutory judgment from which an appeal can be permitted under art. 46, C. P. Christin v. Lafontoine, 6 Que. P. R. 207.

Leave to appeal-Interlocutory judgment — Waiver of appeal — Compliance with order,]—Even if a judgment granting to a foreign plaintiff an additional delay to file a proper power of attorney comes under any of the conditions stipulated in Art. 46, C. P., leave to appeal shall not be granted when it appears that the plaintiff has complied with part of the order of the Court below, by furnishing security for costs, and has also, one day only after the expiry of the delay, filed a power of attorney, which, however, is insufficient. Can. Absentos Co. v. Glasgoue & Montreal Assentos Co. 5 Que, P. R. 65.

Leave to appeal-Interlocatory order--Exception to form. I--When a plending has been disallowed upon demurrer or exception to the form and there appears to be a reasonable doubt as to the correctness of the judgment, leave to appeal will generally be accorded, almost as a matter of course; but the contrary rule prevails when it is the demurrer or the exception itself which has been disallowed. Ogilivie v. Fraser, 3 Que. P. R. 540.

Leave to appeal-Interlocutory order--Security -- Time for appealing.] -- Where leave to appeal from an interlocutory order has been once allowed, without specification of the delay within which the security in appeal shall be given, there is no specified delay fixed for the bringing of the appeal other than the delay of 6 months. Ferref v. Saultry, 8 Que. P. R. 268.

Leave to appeal—Interlocatory order— Time—Prosecution of appeal.] — Obtaining leave to appeal from an interlocatory judgment of the Superior Court does not, by the inception of such appeal, entitle the party obtaining such leave to the 6 months provided by article 1200, 6 P. C., for an appeal to the Court of King's Bench, and if he does not prosecute such appeal within a reasonable time after obtaining such leave, he will lose the right to make it. Hoffmung v. Porter, 7 L. C. J. 301, followed. Hasburger v. Gutman, 13 Que, K. B. 360.

Leave to appeal — Judgment allowing demurrer in part-Leave to both parties to appeal.]—Where a judgment has sustained in part and dismissed in part a defence in law, and leave to appeal has been granted upon demand of party against whom the defence in law has been partly sustained, leave to appeal will also be granted the party whose defence in law has been partly dismissed. Cantie v. Cantlie (1906), 8 Que P. R. 39.

a marriage void, the defendant pleads want of jurisdiction of the Court before which he has been brought, the Court of King's Bench will grant leave to appeal from a judgment dismissing the declinatory exception. Gober v. Agnew, 8 Que, P. R. 198.

Leave to appeal—Time — Facation.]— The 30 days allowed by article 1211, C. P. C., for moving for leave to appeal from an interfocutory judgment run during the long vacation, and fail under exception 11 of art. 15, C. P. C. Porier v. Montreal (1906), 14 Que, K. B. 481.

Motion to dismiss-Service of the inscription before it is filed in the office of the Court-C. C. P. 1213.]-An inscription in appeal cannot be served upon the opposite party until it has been filed in the office of the Superior Court; otherwise, the inscription may be rejected upon motion. Gagnon v_s Bourgoin (1909), 11 Que. P. R. 123.

Motion to dismiss appeal-Forum.]-A motion to dismiss an appeal on the ground of non-transmission of the record within the time allowed therefor should be made before the Court of King's Bench, the appellate Court, and not before the Superior Court, which is disselsed of the cause by the inscription in appeal and the security. Wright v. Phillips, 4 Que. P. R. 37.

Motion to dismiss appeal — Jurisdiction—Taxes—Amount—C. P. 35, 44,1—The Court of Appeal has no jurisdiction to hear a case in which a municipal corporation claims a privilege for taxes due when the amount of such claim is only $80. Montreal v, Mitchell (1910), 11 Que. P. R. 252.

Municipal matters — Mandanus—Cancellation of a gift made to a municipality— C. P. 43, 992, 1006.]—The Court of King's Bench has jurisdiction to hear a case involving an appeal from a judgment which dismissed a writ of mandamus whereby the plaintiff sought to oblige the mayor of a municipality to sign a resolution adopted by the municipal council authorizing the cancellation of a deed of gift in favour of the municipality and the drawing of a deed ceeding back the lands given to the plaintiff ; the question at issue in the case is not one respecting municipal matters. The Mun. Homes & Invest. Co. v. Legare, 11 Q. P. R. 226, 16 R. de J. 42.

Power of Court to vary judgment mappealed from when affirming it — Dieorce-Custody of children.]—The Court of King's Bench, sitting in anneal, has the right to and should add to the provisions of a judgment which comes before it in appeal, even when affirming it, whatever terms the circumstances may require. Therefore, where a decree for separation of husband and wife comes before the Court which provides for the custody of one only of several children, the Court may, in an affirming judgment, order what it deems necessary in this respect as to the other children. Educard v. Belleau, 16 Que K. B. 341.

Quaere, does an appeal lie to Court of King's Bench from judgment of Superior Court sitting in appeal from an award of arbitration under s. 200 of Dom. Rw. Act? Que., Montreal & Southern Rw. Co. v. Landry, 19 Que. K. B. 82.

Railway Act — Arbitrators' award — Second appeal to the Court of King's Bench —Motion to dismise—C. P. 42; R. S. C. c. 37, s. 209.]—By virtue of Art. 200 of the Railway Act, one appeal only to the Superior Court is permitted from the arbitrators' award. If an appeal has already been heard by the Superior Court, there can be no appeal from that Court to the Court of King's Bench. Valliercs v. Ont. & Que. Ric. Co. (1909), 11 Que. P. R. 245; 19 Que. K. B. 521.

Record — Depositions and documents omitted — Two actions tried together.] — Where two causes have been joined together for putpose of trial, according to terms of Art. 292, C. P. C., and appeal has been launched from judgment rendered in one of them, and record sent up to appealiate Court does not contain all depositions and documents produced in accordance with order for trial of the two actions together, the appeal should not on that account be declared defective, and motion to so decide will be reflexed, if depositions and documents emitted do not refer to appeal and are without importance in regard to the decision of it. Bernard v. Carbonness (1996), Q. R. 15 K, B. 287.

Removal of stay of execution pending appeal-Grounds for-Security.1—The provisional execution of a judgment will only be granted when without it there would be irremediable loss, or when an appeal therefrom is launched without probable cause; especially will it be refused when the security in appeal covers all ordinary and future damages. Carter v. Urguhart, S Que. P. R. 210.

Right of appeal-Bankruptcy and in. solvency-Distribution of proceeds of real estate - Appeal by hypothecary creditor -Status - Acquiescence - Security - Insufficiency - Supplementing-Notice of appeal -Parties-Time.]-A judgment of distribu-tion of the proceeds of the real estate of an insolvent, prepared by the prothonotary in conformity with Art, 879, C. P., as amended by 61 V. c. 47, is, notwithstanding Art. 890, C. P., appealable to the Court of King's Bench.—2. The transferee of an hypothecary creditor whose claim is mentioned in the certificate of hypothecs, has, although such transfer was secured after the sale of the property by the sheriff, a prima facie right of appeal from the judgment of distribution. —3. The fact of the appellant having allowed the sheriff to distribute the moneys in his hands does not constitute an acquiescence in the judgment of distribution .--- 4. If security is given within 5 days from the filing of the inscription in appeal, the appellant may, such security being contested, give additional security to the respondent, and the appeal will not be quashed by reason of the insufficiency of the first security or of the party who appeals from the judgment of dis-tribution of the proceeds of the real estate of an insolvent must give notice of appeal to all parties collocated, and not only to the curator, and the Court will, on motion of the latter to quash the appeal, give the appellant delay in which to serve the Inscription in appeal upon the other parties to the judgment of distribution, or desist from his appeal as regards the collocations in favour of one or more parties. Bouquet v. Henderson, 9 Que P. R. 321.

Right of appeal—Conviction for breach of Provincial Sunday Observance Act.]—See R. v. Ouimet, 14 Can. Crim, Cas, 136.

Right of appeal — Conviction on summary trial-Recorder's Court.]—No appeal lies to the Court of King's Bench, Crown side, from a conviction by a Recorder's Court upon a summary trial under s. 783 of the Criminal Code. R. v. Portugais, 10 Que. K. B. 507.

Right of appeal-Final or interlocutory judgment-Husband and wife-Separation-Construction of will-Reference.] - In an action for separation from bed and board, a judgment holding that a provision in the will of the defendant's father, that the movable and immovable properties bequeathed may not in any manner be liable for the support and maintenance of his wife, does not provide for the exclusion of said properties from the community then on the death of the testator existing between the parties, and ordering the report to be referred back to the practitioner appointed by the Court to take an inventory of the property and assets of the community of property existing between the plaintiff and defendant, and ordering the said practitioner to include therein the properties and immovable effects belonging to the said estate, and revenues thereof derived from the movable property from the time of the testa-tor's death to the time of the dissolution of the community of property, is an interlocutory judgment not falling under the condition imposed by par, 2 of Art. 46 C. P., and may be remedied by a final jorgment. Stewart v. Cairns, 5 Que. P. R. 235, Right of appeal—Final or interlocutory judament—Jurisdiction of Circuit Court.)— Action brought in Circuit Court was removed upon declinatory exception into the Superior Court and dismissed upon merits by latter Court. Upon appeal to Court of Review, that Court declared the action was within the competence of the Circuit Court. In an appeal de plano to Court of King's Bench: — Held, that the judgment of Court of Review sending record back to Circuit Court was a final judgment, from which an appeal de plano would lie. St. Denis v. Benoit (1906), 7 Que P. R. 318.

Right of appeal—From Circuit Court.] —There is no appeal to the Court of King's Bench from the judgment of the Circuit Court of the chel-lieu of a district. Senéeal v. Corportation of de L/He Bizard, 3 Que. P. R. 388.

Right of appeal — Interlocutory judgment.]—In matters in which no appeal lies, such as those mentioned in Arts 43 and 1006, C. P., there is no appeal from an interlocutory judgment any more than from a final judgment. Grier v. David, 4 Que. P. R. 417.

Right of appeal - Interlocutory judgment-Leave to prove new facts - Discretion.]—No appeal lies from an interlocutory judgment by which a Judge, in his discretion, permits or refuses to permit a party to prove by way of supplementary defence or reply material facts arising after the contestation. Dupuis v. Dupuis, 5 Que. P. R. 59.

Right of appeal — Interlocutory judgment — Refusal of interim injunction — Leave.]—Judgment which rejects a petition for an interlocutory injunction, demanded before issue of writ of summons, is an interlocutory judgment from which there may be an appeal de plane without leave of Judge of Court of King's Bench. Wampole v. Lyons (1906), 7 Que, P. R. 339.

Right of appeal — Interlocutory judgment-Removal of cause to another district.] —An appeal lies from an interlocutory judgment maintaining a declaratory exception and remitting the record to the Court of another district. Gosselin v. Belley, 4 Que. P. R. 233.

Right of appeal—Judgment dismissing declinatory exception — Leave to appeal — Time for moving—Computation.]—A motion for leave to appeal will be granted if it is made on the 31st day after the judgment appealed against, if the 30th day was a Sunday or holiday.—Leave will be given to appeal from a judgment dismissing a declinatory exception, such judgment in part ending the cause and determining a unatter which cannot be remedied by the final judgment, viz., the issue and method of trial. Porter v, Cans. Rubber Co. of Montreal, 10 Que. P. R. 197.

Right of appeal-Judgment in distribu-Right of appeal - Judgment in distribu-tion of proceeds of sale by sheriff under war-rant of curator-Status of appellant-As-signee of hypothecary creditor-Security in appeal - Supplementary security after expiration of delay-Parties entitled to notice of inscription-Right of curator to move for rejection of appeal for irregularity-Powers Court.]-A judgment directing distribution by the prothonotary of the proceeds of a sale of immovable property abandoned for the benefit of creditors, made by the sheriff under a warrant of the curator, is subject to appeal under Art. 830, C. P., and is not a judgment in virtue of Art. 879, nor of any of the articles referred to in Art. 890 of the same Code.-2. A party who appears, by a notarial deed of assignment, to have acquired the rights of a creditor named in the registrar's certificate of hypothecs in the case, may institute such an appeal.-3 An appellant who has given security within five days after filing the inscription to appeal, may supplement it by further security, given may supplement it by further security, given after the delay, and both the bonds together, if sufficient, will avail as the security re-quired under Art. 1213. C. P.—A. Notice of an inscription to appeal from a judgment of distribution under Art. 830. C. P., should be served upon all the parties interested in the distribution. When the sum distributed is the proceeds of the sale of nhandoned prometry, the curator of the baselent debarset. property, the curator of the insolvent debtor has a sufficient interest to move for the repaction of the appeal, on the ground that notice thereof has not been served on all parties entitled to it, and the Court may, in such a case, order the appellant to serve the notice accordingly within a prescribed delay. Hull Electric Co. v. Clément, 10 Que, P. R. 172.

Right of appeal—Judgment of Court of Review on concurrent appeal within time limited for appealing—Aris. 1203. 1209. C. P. Q.]—An appeal from a judgment of the Superior Court, rendered on the trial of a cause, will lie to the Court of King's Bench, appeal side. If taken within the time limited by Art. 1209 of the Code of C'ul Procedure of Quebee, notwithstanding flast in the meantime, on an anneal by the opposite party, the Court of Review may have rendered a judgment affirming a judgment appealed from. Chicoutini Pulp Co. v Price, 27 C. L. T. 656, 39 8 C. R. 81.

Right of appeal—Judgment of Court of Review sending action back to add parties— Final judgment.1—A judgment of the Court of Review referring back the record to a Superior Court to allow the plaintiff to bring certain parties before the Court (in this case the heirs in an action for the division of the luberliance) is a final judgment upon which there is an apoeal de plano to the Court of King's Bench. Stevens v. Coleman, 8 Que, P. R. 414.

Right of appeal-Judgment of Superior Court — Municipal matter — Petitions — Action—Motion to quash appeal—Costa.]— No appeal lies to the Court of King's Bench by virtue of the provisions of c. 1 of Title XI., R. S. Q., against a judgment rendered by the Superior Court concerning a municipal matter, although the plaintiff has joined to his petition a writ of summons—The respondent, not having made his motion to quash the appeal matt the hearing on the merits, had no right to his costs of the motional factuus filed at the request of the Court upon such preliminary question. Maymeron V, SI. Laurent, P. Que, P. R. 43.

Right of appeal—Judgment on contextation of claims for privilege for municipal tax under $100 on proceeds of ins-keeper's license —C. P. 44, 830, 881 and 890; 8 Edw. VII. c. 74, s. 2.1 — A judgment rendered by the Court of Review, reversing a judgment of the Superior Court, and dismissing a claim of the City of Montreal to be paid by privilege out of the proceeds of sale of an innkeeper's license, sold by a curator to an estate abandoned in insolvency, a business tax amounting to less than $100, is not susceptible of appeal to the King's Bench, the demand in question not relating to duties or rents or other matters in which the rights in future of the parties may be appealed. Montreal & Chartrand (1910), 16 R. de J. 430.

be taken to the Court of King's Bench by leave of a Judge of the Superior Court. Brayley v. Ress, 9 Que. P. R. 103, 4 E. L. R. 121.

Right of appeal-Lapse of time-Petition of right-Power of Crown to waive delay.]-A petition of right was dismissed by the Superior Court, Quebec, on the 3rd June, 1890 The petitioner some time afterwards applied to the Lieutenant-Governor in council for redress for the grievance complained of in the petition of right, whereupon an order in council was passed on the 8th June, 1899, whereby the Crown purported to waive the petitioner's delay in instituting an appeal from the judgment of the Superior Court and to consent to the petitioner's appealing nunc pro tunc. On such appeal com-ing before the Queen's Bench the Crown took no objection to the jurisdiction, but the Court ex proprio motu, raised the point that it was not competent to entertain the appeal after the expiration of the delays prepeak after the expiration of the delays pre-scribed by law, and dismissed it for want of jurisdiction.—Held, by the Supreme Court of Canada, following Cimon v. The Queen, 23 S. C. R. 64, that it was competent to the Crown to waive the delay, and the Court of Queen's Bench had jurisdiction. Lord v. R., 10 Que. K. B. 97.

Right of appeal — Mandamus—Municipal councillor — Declarations — Right to seat.] — No appeal lies to the Court of Queen's Bench from a judgment of the Superior Court in an action of mandamus, under the provisions of c. 40, s. 3, C. C. P., to compel a municipal corporation to recognise the plaintiff as a duly elected and qualified member of their municipal council and to reinstate him in that position, from which they had removed him without havful cause; and additional conclusions asking for a declaration by the Court of the illegality of the resolution of the council professing to effect the removal, and that the defendant abstain pending the suit from acting under the alleged illegal resolution, do not change the mature of the action or remove it from the conditions and restrictions of c. 40, C. C. P. Lorimier Y, Bédard, JO K, B. 95.

Right of appeal — Mandamus — Secretary-Treasurer of municipality — Tazes.]— No appeal lies to the Court of Queen's Bench from the judgment of a Superior Court granting a mandamus to the secretary-treasurer of a municipal corporation commanding him to receive municipal and school taxes at the time of a municipal election over which he is presiding. In re Mosan & Petitclere, 3 Que. P. R. 345.

Right of sppeal—Municipal matters— Interlocatory judgment, I—Article 1006; C. C. P., which states that no appeal lies to the Court of King's Bench from any final judgment rendered under the provisions of c. 40 in matters relating to municipal corporations and officers, also excludes an appeal from an interlocutory judgment in such matters. Wright v. Tremblay, 12 K. B. 368.

Right of appeal-Municipal matters-Superior Court-Final judgment - Exceptions-Circuit Court.]-There is an appeal from every final judgment of the Superior Court, even in an action to quash a resolution of a municipal council. The only exceptions are those indicated in art. 1006, C. P. C.; in cases of certiorari under art. 1306, C. P. C.; and in cases mentioned in arts. 4178 and 4616, R. S. Q., concerning town corporations, There is no longer an appeal from the Circuit Court of a county town either in municipal matters or others, since the passing of 40 & 50 V. c. 18. Lachance v. Ste Anne de Beaupré, 10 Que. K. B. 223.

Right of appeal-Order of Judge-Revision of taxation.]-No appeal lies to the Court of King's Bench against a decision of a Judge of the Superior Court, in Chambers, reviewing and confirming the taxation by the prothonotary of the costs adjudged in favour of one of the parties. La Valle and Richelies Rue. Co. v. Menard, 11 Que, K. B. 1, 3 Que. P. R. 133.

Right of appeal—Order under Windingup Act—Appeal without leave of Judge of Court below.]—The right of appeal from a judgment can be exercised only under the conditions and in the manner provided in the statute which granits the right. Consequently, as the Winding-up Act, R. S. C. 1906, c. 144, s. 101, declares that there shall be an appeal from orders or decisions made under it, with the leave of a Judge of the Court of first instance, an appeal taken without such leave, or even with that of a Judge of the Court of Appeal, is not competent, and will be quashed or dismissed. Brayley N. Ross, 17 Que, K. B. 152.

Right of appeal — Prohibition — Rejusal, j-An appeal lies to the Court of King's Bench from a decision refusing to grant a writ of prohibition. Gaynor & Green v. Lafontaine, 7 Que. P. R. 240.

Right of appeal—R. S. Q. ss. 4178-4615 — Judgment of Superior or Circuit Coart — Coats where appeal dismissed for want of jurisdiction.]—No appeal lies to the Coart of King's Bench from i judgment of the Superior Coart rendered under the provisions of c. 1 of Ti. X.I., R. S. Q. (ss. 4178 to 4615), "Of Town Corporations." The same rule applies to judgments in parimateria of the Circuit Coart, when that tribunal is substituted for the Superior Coart by the special charter of a town, which makes the statutory provisions mentioned applicable to the town.—When an appeal is dismissed for want of jurisdiction, the only costs awarded are those of a motion. Nichol V, Waterloo, 16 Que, K. B. 500, 8 Que, P. R, 361.

Security—Time—Extension.]—After the expiration of the time fixed by law and the order of a Judge for furnishing security on appeal, a motion to extend the time will not be granted. Laroque v. Rosenthal, 5 Que. P. R. 386.

Status of appellant—Member of estinct corporation — Curator — Creditors—Divers judgmenta—Single appeal.]—The appellant, in his capacity of member of an extinct corporation, duly called on to give his advice, and also as contesting the petition of the respondent, ought to be regarded as a party to the judgments appealed against, and as having an interest in causing them to be reversed.—2. The Judge who has been asked to name a curator to the effects of an extinct corporation can call together the creditors and persons interested without a special prayer to that effect in the petition, seeing that such calling together is a preliminary measure necessary to the nomination of the curator; but proof of the allegations of the petition will be ordered avant de faire droit and before naming the curator.—3. Different judgment rendered in a cause, namely, the judgment naming the curator and interlocutory judgments, may be the subject of a single append. Joynt v. Mulcair, 9 Que, Q. B. 23.

See Macdonald v. Thibaudeau, 8 Que. Q. B. 449.

Stay of proceedings.]—Seeing the production of the draft letters and affidavit in support of petition—not contradicted by affidavit of adverse party—that proceedings in appeal would be suspended and the record ordered to be re-transmitted to Superior Court, to the end that proof could be there made upon the matters alleged in the petition. $B, \dots = eegual V, R, \dots > 16$ R. de J. 42.

Time for appealing — Expiration of-Waiver-Petition of right.]-The provisions of arts. 1020 and 1209. C.C. limiting the time for inscription and prosecuting of appeals to the Court of Queen's Bench, are not conditions precedent to the jurisdiction of the Court to hear the appeal, and they may therefore be waived by the respondent. Cimon v. The Queen, 23 S. C. R. 62 referred to. Art. 1220, C. C., applies in proceedings by petition of right. Lord v. R. (1901), 21 C. L. T. 253, 31 S. C. R. 165.

Time for appealing — Interlocutory judgment—Sale of immovables by sheriff.]— The time for appealing from an interlocutory judgment begins to run from the day of the pronouncing of the judgment, and not from its transmission to the prothonotary. 2. A judgment ordering a sheriff to sell en bloc immovables seized in a final judgment, from which an appeal lies de plano. Connolly v. Stanbridge, 4 Que. P. R. 186, Transmission of record — Motion — Forum.]—A motion to have a record transmitted to the Court of Appeal must be made to the Superior Court, not to the Court of Appeal. Wilson v. Carpentier, S Que. P. R. 157.

20. QUEBEC-APPEAL TO SUPERIOR COURT IN REVIEW.

Amount of deposit--Amount in controversy--Account between prothonolary and advocate.|--When a judgment is rendered 7^{-1} less than $400, in an action brought for 300, with an inscription for review, by the defendant, is sufficient-2. The additional $5, in cases of judgments rendered elsewhere than at Montreal or Quebec, is a matter between the party and the prothonotary who makes up and transmits the record. Certificate of filing petition for review—Leave to serve—Faulty certificate — Powers of amendment.] — A party who omits to serve, with his petition for review of a judgment, the certificate of filing by the prothonotary, may obtain leave to serve and file such certificate. 2. If the certificate of filing by the prothonotary does not indicate the date on which the petition has been deposited, such certificate will be sufficient if the record shews the date and if no prejudice results to the opposite party, the Judge having, by virtue of the provisions of the new Code of Procedure, very large powers of allowing amendments in matters of procedure. Breton v. Chabot, 18 Que. S. C. 154.

Declaring rule nisi absolute — Its sature—Right of appeal therefrom—C. C. P_1 S2, 83, 83, 303.]—A judgment which declares a rule nisi to be absolute is a final judgment. Such judgment can be taken to the Court of Review or to the Court of Appeal. A witness threatened with a rule nisi may contest, it through counsel, without being obliged to first appear in person. Semble, a witness may simply appeal from a judgment which has declared a rule nisi to be absolute, without also being obliged to appeal from the judgment which ordered the rule to issue and the delay to go to appeal only commences from the date of the last judgment. Collins v Can. North. Que. Riv. Co. & Richardson, 11 Que. P. R. 133.

Deposit—Amount—Opposition to seizure —Amount involved in action,)—The amount of the deposit necessary upon an appeal to the Superior Court in Review taken by an opposant who claims certain chattels seized u.der execution, and whose opposition has been dismissed, is fixed by the amount claimed in the action. Judge in Chambers—His jurisdiction— Motion to set avide a judgment, C. P. 70.— A Judge sitting in Chambers has not the power to grant a petition asking for the setting aside of a judgment of the Court which has refused the appeal, because the appeliant failed to file his statement within the time allowed. Owimet v. Fleur (1909), 10 Que, P. R. 325.

Judgments appealable — Judgment refusing leave to appeal. — Judgment refusing leave to appeal does not fail under any of the headings of Art. 52 C. P. and is not appealable. Page v. Génois (1909), 36 Que. S. C. 207.

Jurisdiction—Superior Court sitting in review—Judgment of the Circuit Court dismissing a petition to set aside a valuation rolt.)—No append lies to the Court of Review from a judgment of the Circuit Court dismissing a petition to set aside a valuation rolt. Martel v. South Marston, 37 S. C. Que, p. 289.

Jurisdiction to hear appeal-Security -Dispensing with.]-The deposit required for the purposes of review is not necessary to give jurisdiction to the Court, and the solicitors for the respondent may, by their consent, relieve the appellant from making it. Juring v. St. Francois, 19 Que. S. C. 200.

Leave to appeal—Final or interlocutory order—Precaution.]—When there is serious question whether a judgment is final or interlocutory, an application asking that leave be granted to appeal to the Court of Review will be allowed, because said application is a fair measure of precaution. Teolo v. Cordaco, 0 Que. P. R. 416.

Leave to appeal—Motion for—Time— Vacation.]—The time allowed for making an application for leave to appeal from an interlocatory judgment runs during the long vacation. Poirier v. Montreal, 7 Que, P. R. 278.

Partles to appeal--Defendant en garantie.]--The cause was set down for review by the plaintiff. The defendant moved to set aside the setting down and to remit the cause to the district of Arthabasca, on account of the default of the plaintiff to make the defendant en garantie a party to the appeal, she having appeared and pleaded to the principal demand, which was the subject of the appeal; the principal defendant having also pleaded thereto:--Heid, that the defendant en garantie was not a necessary party. Gastonguay v. Savoy, 3 Que, P. R. 398.

Review by plaintiff of judgment dismissing action—Third party intervening—Notice to—Deposit.|—A plaintiff whose personal action, in which the defendant, while contesting it, has brought in a warrantor who has intervened and also contested the plaintiff's claim, has been dismissed, may properly inscribe in review of the judgment without giving notice to the warrantor, and is not obliged to make more than one deposit. Bray v. Montreal & Gascon, 32 Que. S. C. 115.

Right of appeal—Acting on judgment -Reservation,]—A plaintiff who has abtained a judgment in his favour for par: of his claim, and who has appealed as to the part of his claim in which he has failed, does not lose the right to his appeal by acting upon and executing the part of the judgment which is in his favour, especially when he does so with an express reservation of his appeal. Brook v. Wolff, 31 Que. S. C. 63, 8 Que. P. R. 186.

Right of appeal—Action raising constitutional question — Dismissal for want of notice to Attorney-General—Notice in view of appeal.]—A plaintiff unsuccessful by the judgment of first instance upon a demand founded upon the unconstitutionality of a statute, because he has not given to the Attorney-General the notice required by Art. 114. C. P., cannot appeal from that judgment upon giving the notice aforesaid. Dallaire y. Dery, 31 Que. S. C. 385.

Right of appeal — Circuit Court—Appeal—Amount involved.]—There is no appeal from the Circuit Court of the chief place in a district, even if, in an action between landlord and tenant, it has derreed the cancellation of a lease for more than $100. Palliser v, Consumers' Cordage Co., 7 Que, P. R. 280.

Right of appeal--Death of defendant-Inscription in name of--Nullity--Motion to anend.]--This cause was taken en delibéré sur le mérite on the 10th June, 1899, and final judgment was rendered on the 27th November, 1899. Furing the delibéré the defendant died, and after the judgment his solicitors, in ignorance of his death, inwribed the case for review in the name of the deceased. The plaintiffs solicitors made a motion to set aside the inscription, upon the ground that only the legal representatives of the defendant could make it. The names of the executors of the defendant's will:--Held, reversing the decision of the Court of Review, that the inscription was void, and the motion ∞ amend if could not be granted. Fraser v. Price, 10 Que, K. B, 511.

Right of appeal — Dismissal of petition for homologation of report—Expropriation—Municipal corporation.] — No appeal lies from a decision of Judge of Superior Court rejecting petition of the city of Montreal for homologation of a report of expropriation commissioners, under s. 439 of 62 Viet. c. 58, and, as a consequence, an inscription for review of such a decision will be rejected on motion. Montreal v. Donovan (1900), 27 Que, S. C. 259.

Right of appeal—Existence of appeal to King's Bench.]—The Superior Court sitting in review is not competent to review a judgment against which there is no appeal to the Court of King's Bench. St. Paul v. Latour, 34 Que. S. C. 125. Right of appeal-Final judgment-Dismissal of intervention.]-A judgment of the Superior Court which dismisses an intervention is a final judgment from which an appeal lies to the Court of Review. The word "final" in Art, 52, C. P., borrowed from the English language, and evidently malapropae, corresponds to the word "definitif" applied, in French civil procedure, to appeals from judgments. Rensul v. Pilon, 4 Que. P. R. 65.

Right of appeal—Final judgment—Injunction.lm-A judgment dissolving an injunction issued in an action to set aside a resolution of a municipal council is not a final judgment within the meaning of clause 1 of Art. 52, C. P. C., and not being one of the judgments referred to in clauses 2.3 and 4, is not subject to review by the Court. Perreault v. Lévis, 30 Que. S, C. 123.

Right of appeal-Interlocatory order-Amount in controversy --Statutea, --There is no appeal to the Superior Court in Review from an interlocatory order in a cause in which the amount claimed is not more than 3500, as inscription for review can be made only in the cause enumerated in clause 1 of Art. 44, and clauses 2 and 3 of Art. 52a of the Code of Civil Procedure, as amended by the Quebec statute, 8 Edw. VII. c. 74. Can. Rubber Co. v. Porter, 10 Que. P. R. 184.

Right of appeal — Interlocutory judgment-Dismissal of exception—Objection to appeal-Coats.]—A Judgment dismissing an exception to the form is only an interlocutory judgment, and is not appealable to the Superior Court in Review. 2. If the respondent in review has not complained by motion that the judgment is only interlocutory, but has raised this point only in his factum and his argument, the inscription in review will be set aside with costs only of a motion to set aside. Migneron V, Yon, 4 Que. P. R. 179.

Right of appeal—lnacription for review —Tutor—Judgment.]—Art. 306, C. C., which forbids a tutor to appeal from a judgment without having been authorized to do so by a Judge, upon the advice of a family council, does not apply to an inscription for review, which is only for a re-hearing before the same Court presided over by three Judges. Beeaumont v. Lamonde, 5 Que. P. R. 113.

Right of appeal—Judgment of Circuis Court—Petition to quash assessment roll.] —An appeal will not lie to three Judges of the Superior Court from a judgment rendered by the Circuit Court at the chief town of a district, upon a petition to quash an assessment roll. Noyes v. Coucanseille, 8 Que. P. R 426.

Right of appeal—Judgment of Recorder's Court-Amount-Taxes.] — An appeal lies to the Superior Court sitting in review from a final judgment of a Recorder's Court for an amount exceeding $500, in an action for municipal or school taxes. Montreal v. Meidola de $30, 32 Que. S. C. 257.

Right of appeal-Municipal by-law.]--There is no appeal to the Superior Court in review from a judgment of a Judge of that Court granting a petition for the confirmation of a municipal by-law. St. Paul v. Latour, 9 Que. P. R. 202.

Right of appeal — Order striking out plea-Stated case.] — There is no appeal to the Court of Review from a judgment striking out one of two pleas filed by the defendant on a conjoint statement of the case upder Art. 512, C. P. Grenier v. Connolly, T Que. P. R. 212.

Security—Consent to irregular deposit— Validity of inscription—Solicitor's authority to consent.]—In the case of an inscription for review, if the attorneys of the respondent consent to the deposit required by Art. 1109, C. P., remaining in the hands of the attorney for the appellant, the Court of Review will not, ex mero mota, declare the inscription irregular and void, especially if the Court is of opinion that the judgment of first instance should be affirmed on the merits. Semble, that in a case where the Court of Review was disposed to reverse the judgment below, it would order that proof should be ziven of the authority of the attorney to consent on behalf of his client, *Jutras v. Security—Deposit—Amount of—Amount in controversy.]—An inscription for review in an action to set axide a lease containing a contract for sale, when the value of the immovable in question is more than $400, must be accompanied by a deposit of $75, and the Court will order the party who inscribes to supplement his deposit of $50. Marsolais v. Grenier, 4 Que. P. R. 392.

Security for costs—Amount of.]—Although an action may appear to be in the nature of a possessory action, if the amount claimed is less than $400 it belongs to the second class of the tarif, and a deposit of $500 made with an inscription in review is sufficient. Morins v. Gapa, 7 Que. P. R. 82.

Security for costs—Amount of—Petition of creditor.]—A petition of a creditor of an insolvent to be put in possession of effects belonging to the petitioner which are in the hands of the curator, falls under the head of actions of the second class: and an inscription for review must be accompanied by a deposit of $75, Brothers v. Desmartcau, 6 Que. P. R. 484.

Security for costs—Amount of—Several respondents.]—Where there are several defendants who have appeared and pleaded separately in the Court of first instance, the plaintiff who has failed must with his inscription for review make as many deposits as there are defendants. Acer v. Percy, 24 Que. S. C. 232.

Security for costs-Amount of-Seceral respondents.]--Where several defendants have appeared and pleaded separately, a plainiff, whose action has been dismissed and who is appealing, must make as many deposits upon appeal as there are distinct defences. Acer v. Percy, Q. R. 24 S. C. 232, followed. Germano v. Mussen, 6 Que, P. R. 249.

Security for costs-Deposits-Amount involved.]-The amount in litigation spoken of in art. 1196, C. P., must exceed the amount due under the judgment for principal, and does not include the amount of costs. 2. In the case of an appeal by the defendants to the Court of Review from a judgment for less than $400 in an action brought for a sum greater than $400, the amount in litigation is less than $400, and the deposit necessary is $50. Naunders v. United Factorics, 6 Que, P. R. 34.

Security for costs—Deposit — Tille to land—Amount involved.]—The plaintiff sued to obtain a good tille to a property which he alleged that he had bought from the defendant at the price of $150 and improvements, which he alleged were worth $350—Held, that he must, under art. 1106. C. P., make a deposit of $75 to obtain a review of the judgment dismissing his demand. David v. Chencere, 6 Que, P. R. 24.

Several defendants-Separate defences -Inscription for review and deposit-Consolidation of contestations.]-Where several defendants, such jointly, file, by the same attorney, each one a separate plea, but absolutely identical, after having demanded particniars by one motion made on behalf of all one inscription for review and one deposit are sufficient.-In such a case the different contestations may be joined in one. Hétw v. Humphrey, 8 Que. P. R. 337.

Status of appellant-Provisional guardiam-Leave.]--A provisional guardian has no right to appeal from a judgment dismissing a petition by him, without obtaining the leave of the Court or Judge; and the entry of the appeal without leave will be struck out with costs, on motion. Douker v. Lynn, 3 Que. P. R. 200.

21. QUEBEC - APPEAL TO SUPERIOR COURT (SINGLE JUDGE).

Order in Chambers-Guardian.] - An appeal does not lie to the Superior Court (single Judge sitting at Montreal) from an order of a Judge at Chambers appointing a guardian and a person to watch the conduct of the guardian. Bousquet v. Dauphinais, 2 Que. P. R. 366.

22. QUEBEC-APPEAL TO CIRCUIT COURT.

Judgment of Board of Delegates --Choice of forum for appeal-Time for appeal.]--Where an appeal from a judgment of a hoard of delegates of two counties may be taken either in a district like that of Montreal, in which every juridical day is a term day, or in another district like that of Iberville, in which the terms are fixed by proclamation of the Crown, during certain months of the year, the appellant is absolutely free to take his appeal in either of such two districts. 2. It is the situation of the municipalities in different districts which fixes the jurisdiction of the Circuit Court of one or other of such districts. 3. The time for lodging an appeal under Art. 1070, C. M., is always only a modality of the procedure followed as to time in the district in which the appellant is taking his appeal. 4. To decide the contrary would be to deprive the appellant of his choice between the jurisdiction of the Circuit Court of the district of Montreal and that of the district of Herville. Arbec v, Lussier, 20 Que. 8. C. 543.

Leave to appeal—A fidavit not required -M. C. 636, 1061, 1071.]—It is not necessary to support with an affidavit a petition for leave to appeal to the Circuit Court, under the provisions of Art, 1061, M. C., from the resolutions adopted by a municipal council, according to Art. 746, M. C., for the purpose of inscribing upon the valuation roll the names of certain persons mentioned in the resolutions. Hebert v. St. Michel (1910). 16 R. de J. 523.

Municipal corporations — Board of delegates—Service of writ—Costs.]—An appeal lies to the Circuit Court, under Art. 1062, M. C., from any decision of a board of delegates, at the instance of any party aggrieved thereby, although the right of a petition, under Art. 100, M. C., is only granted to a municipal elector.—2. The respective county corporations are sufficiently served with the writ of appeal by a service of the copy of the writ upon the secretary of the board of delegates.--3. The county corporations are liable for the costs of an appeal from a decision of their board of delegates acting on its own motion. Megantic v. Compton, 16 Que. 8. C. 281.

23. SASKATCHEWAN-APPEAL TO SUPREME COURT.

Committal for contempt of Court— Disobedience of injunction.]—Leave to appeal from 12 W. L. R. 310 granted on terms. There is no deliberate defying the order of the Court. This is not an appeal in a criminal cause or matter. Moose Mountain Lumber and Hardware Co. v. Paradis, 12 W. L. R. 424.

Right of appeal to Court en bane from order of Judge-Interlocutory or-der-Leave-Rule 501.] - Defendant, having given notice of an appeal from the judgment pronounced upon the trial of this action. made default in filing the appeal books within the time limited. An application was, therefore, made to a Judge for an order extending the time for filing the appeal books, which was refused. From this order the defendant appealed. On the appeal it was objected that the appeal did not lie, the order appealed from being an interlocutory order, from which no appeal lay without leave, which had not been obtained. The action involved an interest in real estate :-Held, that the fact that an interest in real estate was involved in the action did not give a right of appeal from an order in such action without leave, unless such title or interest was in question in the order appealed from 2. That the order in question in the order appendix from 2. That the order in question, while it might, in effect, finally dispose of the ac-tion as far as the defendants were concerned, was not thereby a final order, but was interlocutory, a final order being one made in an application which, if decided in favour of either party, finally disposes of the action, while this application, if the appellants had succeeded, would have allowed them to proceed with the action. Newkirk v. Stees (1910), 14 W. L. R. 707, 3 Sask. L. R. 208.

Stay of execution pending appeal — Retention in Court of moncy paid in—Special circumstances — Insolvency of respondents.]--The Court will stay execution pending an appeal, or retain in Court moneys paid in which represent the subject-matter of the action, if it is established or seems probable that the party realising or receiving the money would be unable to pay it back should he fail in the appeal. Huggard V. Ont. & Sask L. R. 52.

Stay of proceedings pending appeal —Grounds for—Sufficiency of—Dismissal of previous application — Res judicata.] — Judgment having been given for the plaintiff, the defendant appealed to the Court esbane, and applied for a stay of execution pending the appeal. The application was dismissed, the material being held insufficient. The application was renewed on affdavits by the barrister engaged as coursel for the defendant, setting out the judgment, the appeal, payment into Court of the amount of the judgment, and, in a general way, that he believed injustice would be done if a stay were not ordered, and an affidavit by an agent that he was informed by the defendant's counsel that the defendant. If the plaintif realised the judgment, would, in the event of the appeal being successful, have difficulty in recovering the money.—Held, that, in order to obtain a stay of proceedings pending appeal, special grounds must be shewn, and no such arounds were shewn by the material filed.—2. That the defendant having previously applied for a stay and failed, the matter was now res judicata. Covert v, Janzen, 1 Sask, L. R. 424, 9 W. L. R. 133.

Surrogate Courts Act, 1907, sec. 36 -Forum.] - Appellance, being dissatisfied with an order of the Surrogate Judge, gave notice of appeal therefrom "to a Judge of the Supreme Court of Saskatchewan," and of intention "to move to the presiding Judge in Chambers on." This notice was given on the last day for appealing. On the hearing of appeal it was objected that the appeal was not taken to the proper tribunal, under the Surrogate Courts Act, and on this ob-jection being made an application was made to amend the notice :---Held, that the appeal given by the Surrogate Courts Act is to a Judge of the Supreme Court sitting in Court. and as rules have been promulgated fixing the sittings of Court for each judicial dis-trict, the appeal is to a Judge sitting in Court at such appointed times, and as the notice here evidently contemplated the Judge in Chambers as the tribunal to which the appeal was to be taken, it was irregular, and no action could be taken upon it. 2. That inasmuch as the time for appeal had expired and the right of appeal was gone, no amendment could be made in the notice of appeal. 3. That in any event the subject matter in question did not exceed $200, and there was therefore no right of appeal in any case. Re Independent Order of Foresters (1910), 13 W. L. R. 409, 3 Sask. L. R. 13.

Warrant of prosecution - Abandonment-Motion to dismiss-Practice-Notice of appeal.]-Plaintiffs having given notice of appeal to the Court en banc, neglected to perfect the appeal within the time limited. and the defendant moved to dismiss. It was objected on the authority of Griffin v. Allen, 11 Ch. D. 913, that no costs of the motion should be allowed, as no demand had been made for costs of the appeal:-Held, that Griffin v. Allen, supra, did not lay down the established practice in these matters, but merely indicated the course the Court would pursue in such cases, and no such practice having been established in this Court, the application should be allowed with costs, but the rule in Griffin v. Allen was a very proper one, and in the future the Court would not. in the absence of good cause, allow costs of an application to dismiss for want of prosecution of an appeal, unless the applicant has made a previous demand for costs of the appeal, which has not been complied with. Wessel v. Tudge, 11 W. L. R. 309, 2 Sask, L. R. 231.

Amount in dispute.]—An action was brought by the lessee of lands, the rental of which was $250 per annum, to have the lease cancelled as being simulated:—Heid, that no amount of $2,000 or upwards was in dispute, and the appeal not relating to any title to land or tenements or annual rents within the meaning of s. 29 (b) of R. S. C. c. 135, the Supreme Court had no jurisdiction to hear it. Freehette v. Simoneau, (1910), 20 C. L. T. 433.

Amount in dispute—Assessment—Title to land.]—In proceedings by the city of Montreal to collect the amount assessed on the defendants' land, an opposition to the seizure, alleging that the claim was prescribed, was maintained, and the city sought to appeal to the Supreme Court.—Held, that there was nothing in controversy between the parties but the amount assessed on the defendants' land, and that being less than $2,000, the Court had no jurisdiction to entertain the appeal. Montreal v. Land & Loan Co. (1904), 24 C. L. T. 79, 34 S. C. R. 270

Amount in dispute-Future rights.]-In an action for séparation de corps, the decree granted separation and ordered the husband to pay $1,500 per year alimony. was paid for some years, and the husband having died his widow brought suit to en-force payment from his universal legatees. The Court of King's Bench having reversed the judgment of the Superior Court in her favour, she sought to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada .- Held, that, as she was only entitled to one year's alimony when the suit commenced, the appenl would not lie, notwithstanding the fact that if she had succeeded in the King's Bench she could have executed the judgment for more than $3,000. The amount demanded establishes the right to appeal, and if that is less than $2,000 the appeal will not lie, though more than $2,000 may be recovered .- Held, also, that future rights were not bound by the judgment appealed from by reason of its effect on her right to further payment of the alimentary allowance. Winteler v. Dav-idson (1904), 24 C. L. T. 79, 34 S. C. R. 274.

Amount in dispute-Life pension.]-Action for $62.50, the first monthly instal-ment of a life pension, at the rate of $750 per annum claimed by the plaintiff, for a declaration that he was entitled to such annual pension from the defendants, payable by equal monthly instalments of $62.50 each. during the remainder of his life, and for judgment for such payments during his life. It was shewn that the costs of an annuity equal to the pension claimed would be over $7,000.-Held, following Rodier v. Lapierre, 21 S. C. R. 69, Macdonald v. Galivan, 28 S. 21 S. C. R. 66, macannaia V. Gaucan, 25 S. C. R. 258, La Banque du Peuple V. Trottier, ib, 422, O'Dell V. Gregory, 24 S. C. R. 661, and Tabbot V. Guilmartin, 30 S. C. Amount in dispute-Pleas-Incidental issues.]-Issues raised merely by pleas cannot have the effect of increasing the amount not nove the effect of increasing the amount in controversy so as to give the Supreme Court of Canada jurisdiction to hear an appeal: Grouard J., dub. Standard Life Assurance Co. v. Trudeau (1900), 20 C. I. T. 223, 30 S. C. R. 208.

Amount in dispute - --Reddition de compte-Contestation.]-An action en reddi-tion de compte concluded with a demand for $1.000 The defendant filed an account for 5.000. The defendant men an account for over $$,000, and by his pleas claimed a small balance was due him. The plaintiff replied by contesting several items of the account filed, and, abandoning his former conclusions. claimed whatever should be found due him on the contestation. He recovered 22,200 in the Suprior Court, which the Court of Queen's Bench affirmed. On ap-peal to the Supreme Court of Canada.— Held, that more than $2,000 was in controversy, and the appeal would lie. Motion for approval of security granted with costs. Bell v. Vipond (1901), 21 C. L. T. 328, 31 S. C. R. 175.

Amount in dispute-Retrazit.]-The judgment appealed from condemned the de-fendants to pay \$775.40, the balance re-maining after deducting \$1.524.60 realised maining after beducing states remaining on a sale of property made by consent pen-dente life. The amount demanded was \$2,200.20, so that the plaining's full fact was in fact sustained.—Held, that, as the amount recovered was different from that demanded, and the amount of the original demand exceeded \$2,000, the Supreme Court demand exceeded \$2,000, the Supreme Court of Canada had jurisdiction to entertain an appeal. Amount in dispute-Title to land-Future rights — Extending time.]—L. had given a mortgage to the Standard Loan and Savings Co. as security for a loan, and had received a certain number of the company's All the business of that company shares. was afterwards assigned to the defendants, and L, paid the latter the amount borrowed with interest, and \$460.80 in addition, and asked to have the mortgage discharged. The company refused, asserting that L., as a shareholder in the Standard Co., was liable for its debts, and demanded \$79.20 therefor by way of counterclaim. An action by L. for a declaration that the mortgage was paid and a decimation that the mortgage was paid and for repayment of the \$460.50 was dismissed (3 O. L. R. 191, 22 Occ. N. 60), but on ap-peal the Court of Appeal ordered judgment to be entered for L. for \$47.04 (5 O. L. R. 471, 23 Occ. N. 165, 2 O. W. R. 370). The defendants appealed to the Supreme Court.— Held, that the appeal would not lie; that no Prince, that the appear would not be clear how title to lands or any interest therein was in question; that no future rights were in-volved within the meaning of \mathbf{s} , 1 (d) of ($\mathfrak{B} \otimes \mathfrak{E}$ 1 V. c. 34; and that all that was in dispute was a sum of money less than \$1,000, and therefore not sufficient to give jurisdiction to the Court .- Held, also, that the time for bringing the appeal cannot be extended after the expiration of 60 days from the atter the expiration of 60 days from the pronouncing or entry of the judgment ap-pealed from. Lee v. Can. Mutual Loan de Invest. Co., 24 C. L. T. 47; S. C., sub. nom. Can. Matual Loan de Investment Co. v. Lee, 34 S. C. R. 224.

Bond—Form of.]- In addition to the defects to which attention was drawn in Jamieson v. London and Cauadian L. and A. Co., 18 P. R. 413, and Young v. Tucker, ib., 449, the form of bond given in Cassels' Practice, 2nd ed., p. 220, is also defective in not xetting forth to whom the penalty is payable, and also in not stating that the bond is signed and scaled by the obligors. Liscomb Falls Co. v. Bishop (1904), 24 C. L. T. 186.

Bond—Insufficiency—Time for filing new bond—Extension—Judge of Court below.]— If a security bond given to guarantee the costs of an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada is found insufficient by the rezistrar of that Court, and a delay is granted by him to furnish another bond, a Judge of the Court of King's Bench can enlarge the delays for perfecting the appeal. Armstrong y, Beauchemis, 6 Que, P. R. 128.

Bond — Surety — Wife.] — One of the sureties of the plaintif's bond filed as security for the costs of an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada was the wife of the plaintim—Heid, that the bond was insufficient on that account, but that the time should be extended to enable the plaintiff to file another bond. Messenger V. Bridgetoner (1900), 20 C. L. T. 409.

British Columbia-New trial.]action and counterclaim in the Supreme Court of British Columbia, Judgment was given for the plaintiff upon his claim (which was not in dispute), and the counterclaim was dismissed. The counterclaim was for damages for breach of contract to deliver 37 cars of hay, and the trial Judge held that the letter of acceptance of the plaintiff's offer to sell was conditional, and the parties were never ad idem. On appeal to the full Court this judgment was reversed, and a new trial of the counterclaim ordered. The case was tried anew before a Judge with a jury, and a verdict for the defendants (plaintiffs by conterclaim) was given. The plaintiff moved for leave to appeal per soltum to the Supreme Court if Canada.—Held, that, even if the full Court had, by its judgment directing the new trial, determined the ques-tion as to the existence of an enforceable contract, the plaintiff might still succeed before the full Court, and so it was not a case for granting leave to appeal per saltum. Oppenheimer v. Brackman & Ker Milling Co. (1901), 21 C. L. T. 275.

Concurrent findings of fact.] — The Supreme Court of Canada will not interfere with concurrent finding on questions purely of fact unless satisfied that the corelisions appealed from are clearly wrong. Weller v. McDonald-McMillan Co. (1910), 43 S. C. R. 85.

Consolidating two appeals in one.]--Under s. 73 of the Supreme Court Act and Rules 8 and 14 of the Supreme Court, 1907, an order may be made consolidating two appeals to the Supreme Court of Canada from the judgment of the Court of Anneal for Manitola, upon separate appeals to the Court of Appeal from orders of a single Judge made in the same case, and giving the plaintiff leave to orint one appeal case for the Supreme Court and directing that the judgment of the Court of Appeal upon both such appeals should be taken as one judgment on one appeal for the purpose of the appeal to the Supreme Court. Emperor of Russia v. Proshouriakoff, 18 Man. L. R. 143, 9 W. L. R. 207. See 10 W. Ls R. 1, 42 S. C. R. 226.

Constitutional question — Abandonment.]—Where a motion to quash an appeal has been refused, on the ground that a decision upon a constitutional question is involved, the subsequent abandoment of that question cannot affact the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of Cannda to entertain the appeal. Pharmaceutical Association of Quebec v. Livernois (1901), 21 C. L. T. S. 31 S. C. R. 43.

County Court cass—Removal into High Court—Leave to appeal.]—An action was begun in a County Court to recover damages for injury to land by water from drains. After issue joined the cause was removed into the High Court, a question as to the jurisdiction of the County Court having been raised. All subsequent proceedings were carried on in the High Court, and at the trial a reference was ordered to the Drainage Refere, who held that the plaintiffs had no cause of action. The Court of Appeal reversed this holding, and gave judgment for the plaintiffs: 26 A. R. 162, 19 Occ. N. 133.—Held, that the action was not originally brought in a Superior Court, as required by R. S. C. c. 135, ss. 24 (a) and 28, and there was no jurisdiction to hear the appeal; and it was therefore quashed.— Leave to appeal cannot be granited under 60 & 61 V. c. 34, s. 1 (c), in a case not appealable under R. S. C. c. L55.—Decision of Osler, J.A., allowing the appent to the Suprenne Court, 18 P. R. 440, 19 C. L. T. 213, overruied. Young v, Tucker (1900), 20 C. L. T. 29, 30 S. C. R. 185.

Delays occasioned by the Court -Jurisdiction-Controversy involved-Title to land.]-An action au petitoire was brought by the corporation of the city of Hull against the respondents claiming certain real property which the government of Quebec had sold and granted to the city corporation for the sum of $1.000. The attorney-general for Quebec was permitted to intervene and take up the fait et cause of the plaintiffs, without being formally summoned in warranty. The judgment appealed from was pronounced on the 25th September, 1903. Notices of appeal on behalf of both the plaintid and the intervenant were given on the 3rd November, and notices that securities would be put in on the 10th November, 1903, on which latter date the parties were heard on the applications for leave to appeal and for approval of securities before Wurtele, J., who reserved his decision until one day after the expiration of the sixty days immediately following the date of the judgment appealed from, and on the 25th November, 1903, granted leave for the appeals and approved the securities filed .- Held, that the plaintiffs could not be prejudiced by the delay of the Judge, in deciding upon the application, until after the expiration of the sixty days allowed for bringing the appeals, and, follow-ing Couture v. Bouchard, 21 S. C. R. 281. that the judgment approving of the securities and granting leave for the appeals must be treated as if it had been rendered within the time limited for appealing when the applications were made and taken en délibéré .---Held, also, that, as the controversy between the parties related to a title to real estate, both appeals would lie to the Supreme Court of Canada notwithstanding the fact that the liability of the intervenant might be merely for the reimbursement of a sum less than $2,000. Atty. Gen. for Que. v. Scott (1904), 24 C. L. T. 110, 34 S. C. R. 282. Discretion—A mendulent—Formal judgment.]—The Supreme Court should not interfere with the exercise of discretion by a provincial Court in refusing to amend its formal judgment. Such amendment is not necessary in a mining case, where the mining regulations operate to give the judgment the same effect as it would have if amended. Creese v. Fleischman (1909), 24 C, L. ment from which an appeal lies to the Supreme Court of Canada.—An objection to the jurisdiction of the Court should be taken at the earliest moment. If left until the case comes on for hearing and the appeal is quashed, the respondent may be allowed costs of a motion only.—Hame', Hamel, 20 S. C. R. 17, approved and followed. Griffith y. Haroscod (1900), 20 C. L. T. 270, 30 S. C. R. 315. (See also S. C., 2 Que-P. R. 505.)

Final judgment—Ruling on evidence— Proceedings in equity.]—Where a referee, on a reference under the Vendor and Purchaser Act to settle the title under a written agreement for a lease, rules that evidence might be given to shew what covenants the lease should contain, an appeal does not lie to the Supreme Court of Canada from a judgment affirming such ruling, it not being a final judgment, and the case not coming within the provisions of s. 24 (e) of the Supreme and Exchequer Courts Act. relating to proceedings in equity.—Gwynne, J., dissenting. In re City of Toronto & Con. Pac. Ru. Co. (1900), 20 C. L. T. 200, 30 S. C. R. 337.

Future rights—Nullité de prock-verbal —Reservation of recourse.]—An action en nullité de prock-verbal does not bring future rights in question in such a way as to allow an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada. Questions of procedure should, except in special and extraordinary cases, be left to the Provincial Court. If a judgment dismisses an action en nullité de prock-verbal, for default of the plaintiff to prosecute it, bat reserves the plaintiff secourse, the prescription enacted by Art. 705, C.M., cannot be set up in answer to a subsequent action. Nicolet y, Tousignant, 3 Que, P. R. 257.

Grounds of appeal — New grounds— Collision between ships—Nautical assessors.] —See "Tordenskjold" v. "Euphemia," 41 S. C. R. 154, 6 E. L. R. 90; "Nanna" v. "Mystic," 41 S. C. R. 168, 6 E. L. R. 303.

Interference—Question of procedure.].— See McFarren v. Montreal Park and Island Rw. Co. (1900), 20 C. L. T. 323, 373, 30 S. C. R. 410.

Interference in matter of procedure.]-See Gibson v. Nelson, 35 S. C. R. 181.

Interlocutory indgment — Quebc.]— The Court of King's Bench, or a Judge thereof, has no jurisdiction to grant leave to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada from a judgment of the Court of King's Bench, coufirming an interlocutory judgment of the Superior Court. Desaulniers v. Payette, 12 Que. K. B. 182.

Judgment of Divisional Court.]-Held, per Strong, C.J., and Gwynne, J., that under s. 26, s.-a. 3, of the Supreme and Exchequer Courts Act, leave to appeal direct from a judgment of a Divisional Court of the High Court of Justice for Ontario may be granted in cases where there is no right to appeal to the Court of Appeal.—Giroaard, J., without expressing any opinion, concurred in dismissing an appeal from an order in Chambers granting leave to appeal. Taschereau and Sedgwick, JJ., contra. Farquharaoa v. Imperial Oil Co. (1899), 19 C. L. T. 125, 372, 30 S. C. R. 188.

Jurisdiction—Amount in controversy— Addition of interest to amount of verdict— Stay of execution.)—Toronto Riv. Co. v. Milligan, 42 S. C. R. 238.

Jurisdiction—Doubt as to—Practice.]— Where the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of Canada to entertain an appeal was in doubt, but it was considered that the appeal should be dismissed on the merics, the Court heard and decided the appeal accordingly.— Cf. Bain v. Anderson, 28 S. C. R. 481. Can. Pac. Ruc. Co. v. R., 38 S. C. R. 137.

Jurisdiction.]—In the Province of Quebec the privilege of floating timber down watercourses, in common with others, is not a predial servitude nor does it confer an exclusive right of property in respect of which a possessory action would lie, and, in a case where the only controversy relates to exercise of such a privilege, the Supreme Court of Canda has no jurisdiction to entertain an appeal. Price Bros. v. Tanguay (1900), 42 S. C. R. 133.

Jurisdiction-Matter in controversy -Instatuent of municipal tax.]-In an action instituted in the province of Quebec to recover the sum of $1,133.53, claimed cs an instalment of an amount exceeding $2,000 imposed on the defendant's lands for special taxes, the Supreme Court of Canada has no jurisdiction to entertain an appeal although the judgment complained of may be conclusive in regard to further claims arising under the same by-haw which would exceed the amount mentioned in the statute limiting the jurisdiction of the Court: Dominion Salvage and Wrecking Co. v. Broten, 20 S. C. R. 2003, followed. Outremont v. Joyce (1910), 30 C. L. T. 1039.

Jurisdiction.]-On application for cancellation of a liquor license issued under the Alberta Liquor License Act. a Judge of the Alberta Supreme Court in Chambers granted an originating summons ordering all parties concerned to attend before him in Chambers. and after hearing the parties who appeared in answer to the summons, refused the appli-cation. The Full Court reversed this order and cancelled the license. On appeal by the licensee to Supreme Court of Canada :--Held, that the case came within Can. Pac. Rw. Co. v. Little Seminary (16 S. C. R. 606). consequently the Supreme Court of Canada had no jurisdiction to entertain the appeal. St. Hilaire v. Lambert, 42 S. C. R. 264

Jurisdiction.]--No appeal will lie to the Supreme Court of Canada from an order of committal against a judgment debtor, under Manitoba King's Bench Rule 755, for contempt in refusing to make satisfactory answers on examination for discovery. Bateman v. Svenson (1909), 42 S. C. R. 146, affirming 18 Man. L. R. 493, 10 W. L. R. 361.

Leave to appeal—Appeal per saltum— Winding-up Act — Defective proceedings.)— Leave to appeal per saltum, under s. 28 of the Supreme Court Act, cannot be granted in a case under the Dominion Winding-up Act. An application under s. 76 of that Act, for leave to appeal from a judgment of the Supreme Court of New Brunswick, was refused where the Judge had made no formal order on the petition for a winding-up order, and the proceedings before the full Court were in the nature of a reference rather than of an appeal from his decisio. In re Cushing Sulphite Fibre Co. (1905), 25 C. L. T. 136, 36 S. C. R. 494.

Leave to appeal—Criminal case.]—The Act of the Dominion Parliament respecting appeals from the Court of Appeal for Ontario to the Supreme Court, 60 & 61 V. c. 34, applies only to civil cases. Criminal appeals are still regulated by the provisions of the Griminal Code. Motion by the prisoner for leave to appeal from the judgment of the Court of Appeal (1902), 4 O. L. R. 223, 22 C. L. T. 235, refused. R. v. Rice (1902), 22 C. L. T. 355, 32 S. C. R. 480, 1 O. W. R. 304.

Leave—Family council—Will—Leavey interim enjoyme t—Seduction.] — Although a guardian camy under Art 306, C. C., appeal from a judgment until he has been authorised by the Judge or the prothonotary upon the advice of the family council, nevertheless, when the guardian has had his appeal ratified by the family council after it has been brought, the Court will permit him to produce the authorisation, but he will have to pay the costs of his petition to be allowed to do so. Clement v. Frances, 6 L. N. 325, and Laforce v. Town of Sorci, M. L. R. 6 Q. B. 100, followed. Greenwood v. Dent, 9 Que, Q. B. 11.

Leave to appeal from judgment of Court of Appeal-Doubt as to jurisdiction without leave-Order ex coastela-Remedy under Rule 1 of Supreme Court.]-Application to Court of Appeal for special leave to appeal to Supreme Court of Canada from judgment 12 O. W. R. 431, refused. The case was on the Supreme Court list for hearing when this application was made ex courted. Application should have been made under above Rule 1. Lamont V. Wenger, 13 O. W. R. 1084.

Lave to appeal—Juridicition of Court of Appeal –Supreme Court Act, ss. 48 (e), 69, 71—Extension of time for appealing— Appeal quashed in Supreme Court — Argument on merits.]—The Court of Appeal has jurisdiction, under s. 48 (e) of the Supreme Court Act, R. S. C. 1906 c. 139, to grant special leave to appeal from a judgment of the Court of Appeal to the Supreme Court of Caanda, and at the same time, under s. 71, to extend the time for appealing, even after the sixty days allowed by s. 69 have expired.— The Court (Meredith, J.A., dissenting), refused leave to appeal from the judgment in 16 O. L. R. 380, 11 O. W. R. 748, after the time for appealing had long expired, notwithstanding that an appeal to the Supreme Court of Caanda, launched without leave, had beeu argued in that Court upon the merits before being quashed for want of jurisdiction. Irving v. Grimsby Park Co., 18 O. L. R. 114, 13 O. W. R. 516.

Supreme Court Act-Duty or fee-Interest in Iand-Future rights. Under a by-law of the defendants, an incorporated company, every person desiring to enter the park was required to pay a fee for admission. An action was brought for a declaration as to such fee from the lessee of land in the park: -Heid, that the matter did not relate to the taking of a "customary or other duty or fee" nor to "a like demand of a general or public nature affecting future rights" under s. 48 (d) of the Supreme Court Act, nor was "the title to real estate or nome interest therein" in question under clause (a). There was, therefore, no appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada from the judgment of the Court of Appeal in such action. Grands Park Co. y. Irrison, 41 S. C. R. 35.

Leave to appeal-Jurisdiction of Court of Appeal-Supreme Court Act, ss. 48 (c), 69, 71-Extension of time for appealing-Amount involved - Special circumstances-The Court of Appeal has jurisdiction, under s. 48 (e) of the Supreme Court Act, R. S. C. 1906 c. 139, to grant special leave to appeal from a judgment of the Court of Appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada, and at the same time, under s. 71, to extend the time for appealing even after the sixty days allowed by s. 69 have expired .- The Court (Meredith, J.A., dissenting), refused leave to appeal from the judgment in 17 O. L. R. 530, deeming that there were no special circum-stances which would take this case out of the general rule that litigation involving no more than the sum of $1,000 should cease with the rendering of judgment by the Court of Appeal .- The mere fact of a difference of opinion among the members of the Court is not, in itself, a sufficient reason for treating a case as exceptional. Milligan v. Toronto Riv. Co., 18 O. L. R. 109, 13 O. W. R. 513. See 42 S. C R. 238.

Leave to appeal.]-McLaughlin v. Lake Erie and Detroit River Rw. Co., 1 O. W. R. 206, 428.

Leave to appeal-Matters not of public importance.]-A member of an Order held a benefit certificate entitling him, if he reached the age of seventy years or became entirely disabled, to receive a sum of money based on the membership of the Order. On reaching the age stated, he demanded the amount, and, on the Order refusing to pay, brought an action therefor, the defence to which was, that he had stated his age incorrectly in his application for membership, and violated certain conditions, which, however, the Court held were not set out nor referred to in the certificate. A judgment for the plaintiff at the trial was affirmed by the Court of Appeal, and, the amount recovered being under $1,000, the defendants moved the Supreme Court for the detendants moved the Supreme Court for special leave to appeal under 60 & 61 V. c. 34, s. 1 (e) :-Held, that the questions in-volved not being of public importance, and the judgment of the Court of Appeal (2 O. L. R. 79, 21 Occ. N. 372) appearing to be well founded, the leave would not be granted. Fisher V Hargrov (1902) also, S. 432.

Leave to appeal—Special grounds—Dissenting judgments.]—Leave to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada from the judgment of the Court of Appeal, 13 O. L. R. 569, 8 O. W. R. 517, was refused, the majority of the Court holding that it was not necessary to consider, upon an application for leave, the question whether an appeal would lie without leave, and being of opinion that no special reasons were shewn for granting leave, the circumstance that out of the nine Judges of the Provincial Courts who heard the case two dissentieng, was of opinion that an appeal lay without leave, and therefore the Court of Appeal had no jurisdiction to entertain the application for leave; but that, if there were jurisdiction, the leave should be granted. Lovelt v. Lovell, 9 O. W. R. 227, 13 O. L. R. 587.

Leave to appeal—Special leave—Railway Act. 1903—Order of Board of Railway Commissioners — Jurisdiction.] —Where the Judge entertained doubt as to the jurisdiction of the Board of Railway Commissioners for Canada to make the order complained of, and the questions raised were of public importance, special leave for an appeal was granted, on terms, under the provisions of s. 44 (3) of the Railway Act, 1903. Montreal St. Ruc. Co. v. Montreal Terminal Ruc. Co., 35 S. C. R. 478.

Leave to appeal—Special leave—60 & 61 V, c. 34, s. 1 (D.)]—Special leave to appeal from a judgment of the Court of Appeal for Ontario (60 & 61 V, c. 34, s. 1 (D.)) may be granted in cases involving matters of public interest, important questions of law, construction of imperial or Dominion and provincial authority, or questions of law applicable to the whole Dominion—Grans important questions of law applicable to the whole applicable of the grant distribution of law applicable of the set of the set of the grant questions of law applicable to the whole Dominion—Grans important questions of law, leave will not be granted if the judgment complained of is plainly right. Lake Erie & Detroit River Rw. Co. v. Marsh (1904), 35 S. C. R. 197, 24 C. L. 7. 363.

Leave to appeal. | —Time expired — Application to Judge in Chambers — Subsequent application to Court — Election of forum— Appeal — Discretion. Hamilton v. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co., 2 O. W. R. 155, 806, 3 O. W. R. 851, 4 O. W. R. 299, 416, 5 O. W. R. 162.

Leave to appeal — Time expired — Special circumstances.] — The appellants allowed the delay of 60 days, from date of judgment rendered by the Court of King's Bench, to elapse without applying for leave to appeal to the Supreme Court. Subsequently, they obtained leave to appeal to the Privy Council. They now moved for leave to appeal to the Supreme Court, and offered to desist from its appeal to the Privy Council if the present motion was granted — Held, that the "special circumstances" referred to us s. 42 of the Supreme and Exchequer Courts

Act, are circumstances which would make it unreasonable to impute the failure to act within the prescribed time to the negligence of the party seeking the appeal, e.g., illness, absence, ignorance of the rendering of the judgment, inability owing to poverty to find surveites within the prescribed delay, but not circumstances which did not prevent the application from being made within the proper delay. Montreal v. Montreal St. Ru. Co., 11 Que, K. B. 325.

Limitation of time-Railway Commissioners-Question of jurisdiction-Leave of Judge-Powers of board-Completed railway -Order to provide station-R. S. (1906) c. S., ss. 26, 151, 158-9, 166-7 and 258. |-Except in the case mentioned in Rule 59 three is no limitation of the time within which a Judge of the Supreme Court may grant leave to appeal under sec. 56 (2) of the Railway Act on a question of the jurisdiction of the Board of Railway Commissioners. The Board of Railway Commissioners has power to afford proper accommodation for the traffic on the road. Grand Trank Ruc Co. v. Department of Apriculture (1910), 30 C. La. T. 336, 42 S. C. R. 557, 10 Can. Ry. Cas. 84.

Matter in controversy-dsessment of damages -- Costs.] -- Leave to appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada from the judgment of the Court of Appeal in Lashley v. Goold Bicycle Co., 23 Occ. N. 304, 6 O. L. R. 319, reversing the judgment of Ferguson, J., 22 Occ. N. 372, 4 O. L. R. 350, was sought by the judgment being for $1,000 only, exclusive of the costs, which had accumulated until they exceeded $2,000, and also on the ground that the damages had been assessed by more guess, and were not justified by any rensonable calculation warranted by the circumstances of the case. Leave was refused. Goold Bicycle Co. v. Laishley, 35 S. C. R. 184.

Matter in controversy—Scharation de corps—Money demand.]—In an action by a wife for scharation prayed that the husband be condemned to deliver up to the wife her property, valued at $18,000. The judgment in the action decreed separation and ordered an account as to the property.—held, that no appeal would lie to the Supreme Court from the decree for separation. O'Dell V. Gregory, 24 S. C. R. 601, followed. And the money demand in the declaration, being only incidental to the main cause of action, could not give the Court jurisdiction to entertain the appent. Talbot V. Gwimartin (1900), 20 C. 1., T. 322, 20 S. C. R. 482.

Matter in comiroversy-Tutorship.]--The Supreme Court of Canada has no juriadiction to entertain an appeal from a judgment pronounced in a controversy in respect to the cancellation of the appointment of a tutrix to minor children. Noel v. Chevrefils (1960), 20 C. L. T. 272, 30 S. C. R. 327.

New questions raised on appeal— Jurisdiction of Court below.]—Questions of law appearing upon the record, but not raised APPEAL.

in the Court below, may be relied upon for the first time on an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada, where no evidence in rebuttal could have been brought to affect them had they been taken at the trial. Gray v. Richarison, 2 S. C. R. 431, and Scott v. Phernis Assurance Co., Stu. K. B. 354, followed. An objection that a Judge of the Court below had no jurisdiction to render a judgment from which an appeal is asserted, is not proper ground on which to question the jurisdiction of the appellate Court to entertain the appeal. McKetey v. Le Roi Mining Co. (1003), 23 C. L. 7, 61, 32 S. C. R. 664.

New trial — Alternative relief — Final judgment.]—In an action on a policy of insurance on the life of the plaintiff's husband, the defence bring misrepresentation and concealment of maternal facts, the plaintiff obtained a verdict, though the defendants' counsel contended that there was no case to go to the jury. On appeal to the Court of Appeal the defendants claimed judgment for them or in the alternative a new trial, and a new trial was granted (6 O. L. R. 434, 23 Occ. N. 86, 2 O. W. R. 78, 4 O. W. R. 351). The defendants then appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada to obtain the larger relief:—Held, that the appeal did not lie; that it was not an appeal from the order for a new trial; and that the judgment refusing to dismiss the action was not final. Dillon v. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Assocition (1904), 24 C. L. T. 47; Mutual Reserve Fund Life Asan, v. Dillon, 34 S. C. R. 141.

Notice of appeal and security in appeal.]-Extension of time for giving-Excuse for delay - Discretion - Appeal from order of Judge in Chambers to Conrt of Appeal. Brenner v. Toronto Rue. Co., 11 O. W. R. 55, 441.

Objection first taken on appeal.]— See Regina v. Poirier (1899), 19 C. L. T. 378, 30 S. C. R. 36. Digested under LAND-LORD AND TENANT.

Ontario — Divisional Court — Constitutional question.] — Under s. 23, s.-3, of the Supreme and Exchequer Courts Act, leave to appeal direct from the "final judgment" of a Divisional Court of the High Court of Justice for Ontario may be granted in cases where there is a right of appeal to the Court of Appeal for Ontario; and the fact that an important question of constitutional law is involved, and that neither party would be satisfied with the judgment of the Court of Appeal, is sufficient granding such leave. Ontario Mining Co. v. Seybold, 31 S. C. R. 125.

Ontario-Single Judge of High Court.]-On append by B. and others, whose lands were expropriated by the company, to the High Court from the award of arbitrators appointed to determine the value of their lands, the amount of the award was increased: 21 Occ. N. 208. The company, having no right of appeal to the Court of Appeal, according to a late decision of that Court, In re Birely and Toronto, Hamilton and Buffalo Rev. Co., 25 A. R. 83, 18 Occ. N. 125, applied to a Judge of the Supreme Court of Canada, in Chambers, for leave to appeal direct from the decision of the High Court, under s. 26, s.s. 3, of the Supreme and Exchequer Courts Act. The application was referred by the Judge to the full Court:—Held, that, to give jurisdiction to a Judge to grant leave to appeal per sallum under s. 26, s. s. 3, of the Act, it is essential that there should be a right of appeal to the Court of Appeal, and it not being shewn that there was such a right in this case, the motion should be refused. In re Brennan & Ottawa Electric Rev. Co. (1901), 21 C. L. T. 300, 31 S. C. R. 311.

Order dismissing opposition — Previous non-appendable order for security — Resjudicata — Review.] — An order requiring apposants d fin de charge to furnish security that lands seized, if sold in execution subject to the charge, should realize sufficient to satisfy the claim of the execution creditor, was held to be interiocutory and non-appealnable. 33: S. C. R. 340. Upon default of such security, the opposition was dismissed in the Court below :—Held, on appeal, that the order was the only one which could properly have been made, and that the merits of the former order could not be reviewed. Desaufniers v. Payette, 35 S. C. R. 1.

Order for new trial — Weight of evidence—Discretion—New grounds of appecil.] —The Court below ordered a new trial upon the ground that the verlict was against the weight of evidence:—Held, that this was not an exercise of discretion with which the Supreme Court of Canada would refuse to interfere; and the verdict of the trial was restored. The argument of an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada must be based on the facts and confined to the grounds relied on in the Court below. Judgment in 35 N. S. Reps. 94, sub nom. Confederation Life Assn. v. Borden, 34 S. C. R. 338.

Order on petition for leave to intervens. |--There is no appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada from an order on a petition for leave to intervene in a cause, the proceeding being merely interlocutory in its nature. Hamel v. Hamel, 26 S. C. R. 17. followed. Connolly v. Armstrong, 35 S. C. R. 12.

Petitory action—Order defining boundary line.]—Where, in an action au petitoire and en bornage, the question as to title has been finally settled, a subsequent order defining the manner in which the boundary line between the respective properties shall be established is not appealable to the Supreme Court of Canada. Cully v. Ferdais, 30 S. C. R. 330, followed. Hull v. Scott, 34 S. C. R. 617.

Practice.]—Security for costs — Appealable amount—Interest and costs—Jurisdiction —"Matter in dispute." Labrosse v. Langlois, 6 E. L. R. 111.

Practice on appeal—Cross-appeal—Partice.]—The action was against two defendants jointly, and the plaintiff obtained a verdict at the trial against both. The Court of Appeal confirmed the verdict as to MeN., and dismissed the action as to the other defendants. MeN, appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada, making the other defendants respondents on his appeal: — Heid, that the plaintiff, respondent, was entitled to crossappeal against the respondent defendants, to have th restored C. Printed case-Expense of-Parties.]-Held, that in determining the amount to be paid by the party seeking to use for purposes of an appeal to the Supreme Court the appeal books printed by the opposite party, the fact that the party to pay has paid for the copies of the stenographer's notes used in the Divisional Court is not to be considered. If there were no printed books, he would have to print for the Supreme Court, and in paying for the books alrendy printed he is only paying a different person. The question is how much he should pay in order to get the thirty copies he needs for the Supreme Court. No general scale can be formulated. The thirty books do not represent the whole value of the printer's charge. The books retained by the party printing, or of which he has got the benefit, as well as the bulk of the book and the number actually printed, etc., have to be taken into consideration. The sum of $95 fixed as approximately representing the pro-portion settled in previous cases. Teetzel v. Dominion Construction Co., 18 P. R. 16, followed. Trusts and Guarantee Co. v. Hart, (1901), 21 C. L. T. 494.

Prohibition — Quebec case — R. S. C. (1906), c. 129, ss. 39 and 46.]—No appeal lies to Supreme Court of Can. from judgment of Court of Quebec in any case of proceedings for or upon a writ of prohibition, unless the matter in controversy falls within some of the classes of cases provided for by s. 46 of the Supreme Court Act, R. S. C. (1906), c. 139. Shannon V. Montreal Park & Island Ruc. Co., 28 S. C. R. 374, overruled. Desormecus V. Stc. Therese (1910), 30 C. L. T. 527, 43 S. C. R. 82.

Proposed appeal-Failure to give security-Payment out of money in Court repre-senting subject matter of action.]-Pending an action a sum of money was paid into Court by the defendants, which money represented land, the subject matter of the represented land, the subject matter of the action. The defendants, having been suc-cessful on the trial and on appenl, applied for payment out of the money. The plaintiff had given notice of an appenl to the Supreme Court of Canada, but had not furnished security as required within the time An application for payment out limited. before the time for giving security had expired had previously been refused on account of the appeal. On a renewed application for payment out :--Held, that an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada cannot be considered as brought or entered until security has been furnished, and, as no security had has been furnished, and, as he security had been given, the defendants were entitled to an order for payment out. Huggard v. On-tario and Saskatchewan Land Corporation, 1 Sask. L. R. 495, 9 W. L. R. 432.

Questions of fact.]--Upon issues raised as to matters of fact, the Supreme Court of Canada declined to disturb the concurrent c.c.t.--fi findings of the Courts below, while on a guestion of law reversing the judgment in Q. Questions of fact.]--There is no rule of law or of procedure which prevents the Supreme Court or an intermediate Court of appeal from reversing the decision at the trial on the facts. In an action for the price of a tombstone, the defence was that it was not of the design ordered. The trial Judge dismissed the action, but his judgment was reversed by the Court of Appeal (1 O. W. R. 602); and the Supreme Court of Canada affirmed the reversal. Levis v. Dempater (1966), 22 C. L. T. 179, 33 S. C. R. 2022.

Questions of fact-Concurrent findings of Courts below.]--A judgment hased on concurrent findings of fact in the Courts below ought not to be disturbed on appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada if the evidence be contradictory. D'Avignon v. Jones, 32 S. C. R. 650.

Questions of fact — Final judgment — Right of gapeal-Leave to appeal to Privy Council—Costs.]—In an action by executors aminst the appellant to recover certain sums of money due to their estate, the Judze of the Territorial Court, at the request of the pilainitä, selected one of the items, and adjudicated on the evidence taken that the action in respect thereof. be dismissed: — Heid, that this was, within the meaning of the Yukon Territorial Act, 1890, S. S. a final judgment in respect thereof, notwithstanding that the remaining items in suit were referred, and the costs were reserved. No appeal therefrom to the British Columbia Court lay after the expiration of 20 days. Special leave having been granted to nepeal from a decree of the Supreme Court of Canada on a petition stating that the construction of the said statute was a matter of general public importance, without stating that it had been repealed :—Heid, that, as the omission was immaterial and bona fide, the appellant should not be deprived of his costs. Right of appeal - Amount in controversy-Claim and counterclaim - Leave to appeal.]-The plaintiffs claimed $1,500 damages for delay in delivery of iron. The de-fendants, besides denying the charge of nondelivery in due time, counterclaimed for $1,223 demurrage. At the trial judgment was given for the plaintiffs for $1,000, and the counterclaim was dismissed. Upon ap-peal to the Court of Appeal the judgment was varied by limiting the damages to the fall in the price of iron during a considerably shorter time than that fixed in the Court below, the amount to be ascertained on a reference. Upon a motion by the defendants to allow a bond given by them as security upon an appeal by them to the Supreme Court of Canada, the plaintiffs' counsel stated that the plaintiffs' claim on the reference would be less than $1,000, and contended that no appeal lay :--$1,000, and contended that no appear my:-Held, however, that, as the plaintiff claimed $1,500, and was not limited by the judgment of the Court of Appeal to any particular sum, the matter in controversy on the appeal exceeded the sum of $1,000, so that the appeal exceeded the sum of $$_1,000$, so that the appeal lay :--Held, also, that upon the counterclaim the sum of $$_1,223$ was involved, and that an appeal lay in respect thereof. The Court of Appeal declined to grant, ex courted, leave to appeal to the Supreme Court, the case not being one in which leave, if it were necessary, ought to be granted. Frankel v. Grand Trunk Rw. Right of appeal — Amount in controversy—Interest before action.]—A judgment for $1,000 damages, with interest from a date before action brought, is appealable under 60 & 61 V. c. 34, s. 1 (c). McNevin v. Canadian Railway Accident Ins. Ca., 22 C. L. T. 223, 32 S. C. R. 194.

Right of appeal - Amount in contro-versy-Interest-Costs-Collateral matter.]-An action having been brought against the maker and indorser of a promissory note for $2,000, the makers sued the indorser in warranty, alleging that no consideration was given for the note, and asking that the indorser guarantee them against any judgment obtained in the main action. They also asked that an agreement under which the makers were to become liable for $3,000 be declared null. The two actions were tried together, null. The two actions were tried together, and judgment given for the plaintiff in the action on the note, while the action in war-ranty was dismissed. On appeal from the latter judgment:—Held, that the amount in dispute was $2,000, the value of the note sued on; that the costs of the action in warranty could not be added, and without them the sum of £500 was not in controversy, even if interest and costs in the main action were added; the appeal, therefore, did not lie .--Held, also, that the agreement which the plaintiffs in warranty sought to avoid was only a collateral matter to the issues raised on the appeal, and could not be considered in determining the amount in dispute .- Interest after the commencement of the action, unless specially claimed as damages, cannot be added to the amount claimed in the declaration in determining the amount in controversy for the purpose of giving jurisdiction upon an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada. Labrosse v. Langlois, 41 S. C. R. 43, 6 E. L. R. 111.

judgment.]-In 1905 L. and others purchased from W. his creameries on the faith of a statement purporting to be made up from the books and shewing an output for the years 1904-5 equal to or greater than that of 1903. Having discovered that this statement was untrue, they brought an action for rescission of the contract to purchase and damages for the loss in operating during 1906. The judgment at the trial dismissing the action was affirmed by a Divisional Court. The Court of Appeal, Lamont v. Wenger, 12 O. W. R. 481, 511, reversed the latter judgment, held that rescission could not be ordered, but the only remedy was damages, and ordered a reference to assess the amount. On appeal to the Supreme Court of Can-ada:-Held, Girouard, J., dissenting, that, as it could not be ascertained from the record what the amount in controversy on the appeal was, or whether or not it was within the appeal was, or whether to not it was within the appealable limit, the appeal did not lie.— Held, per Idington, J., that the judgment ap-pealed against was not a final judgment.— Per Girouard, J., dissenting.—It is established by the evidence at the trial, published on the record, and admitted by the respective counsel for the parties, that the amount in dispute exceeds $1,000. The Court, therefore, has jurisdiction to hear the appeal. Wenger v. Lamont, 41 S. C. R. 603.

Right of appeal — Amount in controversy—Retrazit—R. S. C. 1996, c. 139, s. 46 (c.).]—In an action for damages for the death of the plaintiff's husband by the negligence of the defendants, as alleged, she laid the damages at $10,000, but before the trial filed a retraxit reducing her claim to $1,999. At the trial the damages were assessed at $1,333, and judgment for that amount was ordered by the trial Judge to be entered. This was affirmed by the Court of King's Bench, and the defendants appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada: — Held, that under the limitation provided by R. S. O. 1906 c. 139. s. 46 (c.), the appeal did not lie. Montreal Park & Island Rv. Co. v. Labrosse, 40 S. C. R. 96, 5 E. L. R. 101.

Right of appeal — Amount in controversy—Verdict of $1,000—Addition of interest —Supreme Court Act, s. 48.1 — Where the amount of a judgment to be appealed from was $1,000, and $43.05 interest had accrued on such judgment.—Held, that the matter in controversy exceeded the sum or value of $1,000, exclusive of costs, within the meaning of s. 48 of the Supreme Court Act, R. S. C. 1906 c. 133, allowing an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada. Miligan v. Toronto Rue. Co., 17 O. L. R. 370, 12 O. W. R. 1103.

(Afterwards, the Supreme Court of Canada quashed the appeal, on the ground that there was no right of appeal without leave, thus overruling the above decision).

Right of appeal—Annulment of procesverbal—Servitude.]—In a proceeding to set aside resolutions by a municipal corporation giving effect to a proces-verbal, the Court followed Toussignant v. County of Nicolet, 32 S. C. R. 353, and quashed the appeal with costs. Art. 560, C. C., referred to. Leroux v. Ste. Justine de Newton, 37 S. C. Right of appeal—Controverted election —Judgment dismissing petition — Want of prosecution.]—There is no right of appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada from a judgment dismissing a petition against the return of a member of the House of Commons for want of prosecution within six months prescribed by R. S. C. c. 9, s. 32, the Controverted Elections Act. In re Richelieu Dominiton Election, Vanasse v. Bruneau, 22 C. L. T. 193, 32 S. C. R. 118.

Right of appeal-Controverted election -Petition-Lost record-Substituted copy-Judgment on preliminary objections-Discretion of Court below - Jurisdiction.] - The record in the case of a controverted election was produced in the Supreme Court of Canada on an appeal against the judgment on preliminary objections, and, in re-transmission to the Court below, the record was lost. Under the procedure in similar cases in the province where the petition was pending, a record was reconstructed in substitution for the lost record, and, upon verification as to its correctness, the Court below ordered the substituted record to be filed. Thereupon, the respondent in the Court below raised preliminary objections, traversing the correctness of a clause in the substituted petition, which was dismissed by the judgment appealed from :-Held, that, as the judgment appealed from was not one upon a question raised by preliminary objections, nor a judgment upon the merits at the trial, the Supreme Court of Canada had no jurisdiction to entertain the appeal, nor to review the discretion of the Court below in ordering the substituted record to be filed. In re Two Mountains Dominion Election, Ethier v. Legault, 22 C. L. T. 192, 32 S. C. R. 55.

Right of appeal—Controverted election petition — Order fixing time for trial.]—No appeal lies to the Supreme Court of Canada from an order of the Judges assigned to try an election petition fixing the date for such trial. Re Halifax Dominion Election, Roche v. Hetherington, Corney v. Hetherington, 30 S. C. R. 401.

Right of appeal — Constitutional question—No money value involced)——A case in which no money value is in controversy, but in which a judicial declaration is prayed for that under the B. N. A cet the Dominion government has no power to appoint a commissioner for extradition, is one in which an appeal will lie from a judgment of the Court of King's Bench to the Supreme Court of Canada.—Such a judgment is not a judgment in a criminal matter governed by art. 750 of the Criminal Code, but is rendered by the Court in exercise of its civil jurisdiction. Gaynor v. Lafontaine (1906), Q. R. 14 K. B. 335.

Right of appeal-Declinatory exception -Interlocutory judgment - Review of judgment on exception-Practice.] - The action was dismissed in the Superior Court upon declinatory exception. The Court of King's Bench reversed this decision, and remitted the cause for trial on the merits. On motion to quash a further appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada :--Held, that the motion should be granted, on the ground that the objection to the jurisdiction of the Superior Court might be raised on a subsequent appeal from a judgment on the merits.-Per Girouard, J. :- The judgment of the Court of King's Bench was not a final judgment, and consequently no appeal could lie to the Supreme Court of Canada. Wilson v. Shawinigan Carbide Co., 26 C. L. T. 526, 37 S. C. R. 535.

Right of appeal - Demurrer - Final judgment - Jurisdiction,]-The declaration, in an action by a municipality claiming forfeiture of a franchise for non-fulfilment of the obligations imposed in respect thereof, alleged in five counts as many different grounds for such forfeiture. The defendant demurred generally to the declaration and specifically to each count. The demurrer was sustained as to three counts and dismissed as to the other two. On appeal from the decision of the registrar refusing an order to affirm the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court to entertain an appeal from the judgment maintaining the demurrer:-Held, that each count contained a distinct ground on which forfeiture could be granted, and a judgment depriving the municipality of its right to rely on any such ground was a final judgment in respect thereof which could be appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada. Right of appeal - Final judgment.]-The trial of an action to adverse an application for a certificate of improvements for a mineral claim was begun, but before the plaintiff closed his case, an adjournment was granted to permit him to put in proof of the measurement shewing the extent of the encroachment of one mineral claim on the other. During the course of the trial it appeared that the map or plan filed by the plaintiff under s. 37 of the Mineral Act of British Columbia, was not made as a result of a survey, but from measurements taken by the plaintiff's brother. The defendants then urged a dismissal of the action, contending that the map or plan was of no effect, but the trial Judge ordered it to be filed as part of the evidence, and declined to deal with its effect as that state of the action. The defendants appealed from the trial Judge's refusal to dismiss the action, to the full bench of the Supreme Court of British Columbia, and there contended that the action should have been dismissed, and that a postponement should not have been granted, because the plaintiff had not filed with the Mining Recorder a map made as a result of a survey. With this view the majority of the Court agreed, and directed a judgment to be entered dismissing the action and allowing the ap-peal. Held, that under the interpretation of the words "final judgment" in the Supreme and Exchequer Courts Act, s. 24, the judgment appealed from dismissing the action was a final judgment. Paulson v. S. C. 1996 c. 139, s. 41.] —Under the provisions of the Montreal city charter, 62 V, c. 58, s. 484 (Q.), an action was brought by the city corporation in the Recorder's Court to recover taxes on an as-segment of the compared recorder in the sessment of the company's property in the city. Judgment was recovered for $39,691.80, and an appeal to the Superior Court, sitting in review, under the provisions of the Que-bec statute 57 V. c. 49, as amended by 2 Edw. VII. c. 42, was dismissed. On an application by the company to affirm the juris-diction of the Supreme Court of Canada to hear an appeal from the judgment of the Court of Review :---Held, that the Superior Court, when exercising its special appellate jurisdiction in reviewing this case, was not a Court of last resort created under provincial legislation to adjudicate concerning the assessment of property for provincial or municipal purposes, within the meaning of s. 41 of the Supreme Court Act, R. S. C. 1906 c. 139, and, consequently, there could be no jurisdiction to entertain the appeal. Montreal Street Rw. Co. v. Montreal, 41 S. C. R. 427.

Stay of proceedings — Payment of money out of Court. — At the trial the plaintiffs recovered judgment in the High Court against the defendants for damages court against the detendants appendent to be definingly and costs. The defendants appended to the Court of Appeal, paying $200 Into Court as security to the plaintiffs for the costs of such appeal. The append was dismissed with costs. The defendants launched a further appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada, and gave the security required by s. 46 of the Supreme and Exchequer Courts Act, but no other security.-Held, that proceedings to enforce the plaintiffs' judgment in the High Court were not stayed, either by force of s. 48 or otherwise .- But the Court was not bound to pay out immediately to the plaintiffs the sum of $200 paid in by the defend-ants, the judgment of the Court of Appeal being stayed pending the appeal to the Supreme Court, which might determine that the plaintiffs were not entitled to the costs of the Court of Appeal .- And in this case the money ought not to be paid to the plaintiffs, from whom it could never be recovered, and whose solicitors declined to take it upon the usual undertaking, but should remain in Court during the pending appeal. Rombough v. Balch, 20 C. L. T. 106, 19 P. R. 123.

Stay of proceedings—Order cranting new trial. —The defendant appealed to the Supreme Court of Canada from a judgment of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia, sitting en bane, granting a new trial. Security on the appeal having been given and allowed, an application was made to the stay of execution, but the plaintiffs objected to a stay of the trial and of all other proceedings.— Held, that the trial and stay appealed from had jurisdiction to impose such a stay. No such case having been mide out, and the Court not being impressed with the merits of the defence. leave to extend the time was refused to two defendants. In re Manchester Economic Building Society, 24 Ch. D, 488, followed. Smith v. Hunt, 23 C. L. T. 42, 5 O. L. R. 97, 1 O. W. R. 508, 708.

Time for appealing extended.]--Time for appealing to the Supreme Court of Canada from 14 O. W. R. 25, 19 O. L. R. 188, extended. Goodison v. McNab (1909), 15 O. W. R. 128.

Leave to appeal to Supreme Court of Canada, refused, on ground that after the expiration of sixty days from the signing or entry or pronouncing of a judgment of the Court of Canada is without jurisdiction to grant spcial leave to appeal therefrom, and an order of the Court of Appeal extending the sixty days will not enable it to do so. Goodison Thresher Co. MicNab (1910), 30 C. L. T. 338, 42 S. C. R. 694.

Time—Limit—Pronouncing or entry of judgment.]—In determining whether the 60 days within which an appeal to the Supreme Court must be taken, run from the pronouncing or entry of the judgment appealed against, no distinction should be made between common law and equity enses. The time runs from the pronouncing of judgment in all cases, except those in which there is an appeal from the Registrar's switchenet of the minutes, or such settlement is delayed because a substantial question affecting the rights of the parties has not been clearly disposed of by such judgment. Motion for leave to appeal per saltum refused with costs. Robert, 36 S. C. R. 21.

Time expired — Special circumstances— Refusal by Judge — Anneal to full Court. Hamilton v. Mutual Reserve Life Ins. Co., 2 O. W. R. 155, SOG, 3 O. W. R. 851, 4 O. W. R. 209, 446, 5 O. W. R. 162.

Time for appeal — Extension — Grounds.] — Where special grounds were shewn, the defendants were allowed an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada, although the 60 days had expired. and no notice of appeal had been given.—Grounds which are considered insufficient to grant an application to extend the time for appealing. Taylor v. Cummings, 40 N. S. R. 151.

Time for appeal — Extension — Grounds.]—An application to extend the Extension time for appealing from the judgment of the Supreme Court of Nova Scotia, in favour of the plaintiff, to the Supreme Court of Canada. Judgment had been delivered on the 28th March, 1888, and the 60 days expired on the 28th May. The application for extension was made two months after the time for appealing had expired. The extension was asked for on the ground that the parties interested consisted of a number of attaching creditors, living in different parts of the Dominion, and that, owing to this fact, an agreement could not, at an earlier date, be arrived at by all inter-ested :--Held, that the grounds set forth were not sufficient to justify granting such an extension. The time which had elapsed since the judgment was four months, in which the plaintiff had been allowed to enjoy his judgment unchallenged, for the giving notice of appeal should not be considered. In ra Mar v. Chester Economic Build, ing Society, 24 Ch. D. 488, and Collins v. Vestry of Paddington, 5 Q. B. D. 368, referred to. Nelson v. Archibald, 40 N. S. R. 152n.

Time for appeal — Extension — Jurisdiction, — R. S. C. c. 135, s. 42 — Practice.] — The Court refused to entertain a motion to quash the appeal on the ground that it had not been taken within the 60 days limited by the statute, and that an order by a Judge of the Court appealed from, after the expiration of that time, was ultra wires, and could not be permitted under a. 42 of the Supreme and Exchange Courts Act, R. S. C. c. 135. Temiscousta Rie. Co. y. Clair, 38 S. C. R. 230.

Time for appeal — Extension — Leave to appeal—Neccssity for—Powers of Court of Appeal.—Time for allowing appeal extended, and the security approved of and allowed, under s. 71 of the Supreme Court Act. R. S. C. 1906, c. 139, although this might have been done by a single Judge of this Court, since the failure to apply within the proper time, under s. 69, arose from the impression that leave to appeal was necessary, and no Court was sitting during that time to which the application for leave could have been made. Also leave to appeal granted, if necessary, valeat quantum, under s. 48 (c) of the Supreme Court Act. Hamitton Steamboat Co. v. Mackay, 10 O. W. R. 510, 15 O. L. R. 184.

Time for appeal—Extension—Notice of appeal. McLean v. Campbell, 2 E. L. R. 316.

Title to land—Duty—Future rights, Proceedings to restrain the owner of land from constructing a ditch thereon under the Ditches and Watercourses Act to prevent injury to adjoining property, do not involve any question of title to land or any interest therein, within the meaning of 60 & 61 V., c. 34, s. 1 (a), relating to appeals to the Supreme Court of Canada in Ontario cases. The fact that the adjoining land was to be taxed for benefit by construction of the ditch would not authorise an appeal under s.-s. (d), as relating to the taking of a duty or fee, nor as affecting future rights. Waters v. Manigault, 20 C. L. T. 222, 30 S. C. R. 304.

Title to land — Future rights—Quashing.1—An opposition to a writ of possession issued in execution of a judgment allowing a right of way over the opposant's land does not raise a question of title to land nor bind future rights, and in such a case the Supreme Court of Canada has no jurisdiction to entertain an appeal. If the jurisdiction of the court is doubtful, the appeal must be quashed. — Langevin v. Les Commissaires d'Ecole de St. Marc. 18 S. C. R. 559: O'Dell v. Greeory, 24 S. C. R. 661; Riou v. Riou, 23 S. Ultra vires—Action for penaltics—Plea.1. —The Association Pharmaceutique sued L. for $325, penalties for selling drugs without licence. L. pleaded a general denial and that the Pharmacy Act was ultra vires. The action was dismissed below for want of proof of the illegal selling alleged.—Held. Strong. C.J., and Gwynne, J., dissenting, that if the Court should find error in the indgment appealed from, the question of ultra vires pleaded by L. would have to be dealt with, and the case was therefore appealable under s. 29 (a) of the Supreme Court Act, though no appeal would lie if this plea were not on the record. C. c. 50, s. 42, thereby made applicable to the Territorial Court of the Yukon Territory, three Judges of that Court are necessary to constitute a quorum for the hearing of appeals from judgments upon the trial of actions therein? Barrett v. Le Syndicat Lyonnais du Klondyke, 35 S. C. R. 657.

APPEARANCE.

Leave to enter after judgment.] — Judgment had been entered in default of appenrance, and before the return of a summons for an order for the examination of the defendant as a judgment debtor, the defendant entered an appearance by a solicitor, who took out a summons for a stay of proceedings, on the ground that the parties had settled the action :—Held, that the summons must be discharged on the ground that leave to enter an appearance should have been obtained. Chong Man Chook y, Kai Fung, 21 C. L. T. 320, 8 B. C. R. 67.

Limitation of-Submission to judgment --Irregularity.]- The indersement on the writ of summons was for a declaration that certain lands (described), being the lands intended to be devised to the plaintiff by the will of J. P., but erroneously described therein, were freed and discharged from the conditions and obligations to which they were subjected by the will in favour of the defendant, and from all bequests, legacies, and other payments charged therefrom by the will in favour of the defendant, and for damages against the defendant for wrongful refusal to execute a quit-claim deed of the lands when tendered to him for execution. The appearance entered by the defendant was limited to that part of the plaintiff's claim which asked for damages against the defendant and for costs. The appearance defendant and for costs. The appearance also stated as follows: "Without admitting that the plaintiff is entitled to the declara-tions asked for in the writ of summons herein, the defendant will make no objection to the making of the declarations asked for, and the defendant is also willing to execute a quit-claim deed in favour of the plaintiff of the lands devised to the plaintiff by the last will . . . "-Held, that there was no authority in the Rules or in the practice for an appearance limited as was this one, in an action of the character disclosed in the indorsement of the writ of summons. The appearance was set aside and judgment entered for the plaintiff (except as to the claim for damages) with costs. Padget v. Padget, 22 C. L. T. 137, 1 O. W. R. 160.

ARBITRATION AND AWARD.

Accord and satisfaction.]-This was an action to recover the amount of an award. When the defendants first heard that they had been directed to pay $821.53 under the award, they wrote to the plaintiff's solicitor that a shortage amounting to $221.53 had not been taken into account by the arbitrators, and offered to pay $600, which the plaintiff's solicitor accepted. The defendants still neglected to pay same, and plaintiff now sued for full amount of award.--Held, there was an accord and satisfaction for $281.53 and judgment was given plaintiff for $600. Warrell v. Nipissing, 12 O. W. R. 933.

Accounts of Province of Canada – Common school faund and lands-Juriadiction of arbitrators – Deed of submission– Construction, [-By agreement of submission– dated the 10th April, 1843, the provinces of Ontario and Quebec referred to a statutory tribunal the "ascertainment and determination of the amount of the principal of the common school fund and the method of computing " interest thereon, and of the amount for which Ontario was liable. The fund was established by T2 V. c. 200 (C.), and consisted (inter alia) of the proceeds of public lands received by Ontario and paid to the Dominion-----Heid, that a claim by Quebec that Ontario should be debited with uncollected prices of land sold by it, being a claim for wilful neglect and default and in the nature of damages, not suggested in but heterogeneous to the matters actually specified in the submission, was not, on its true construction, included therein. T. 94, and of Street, J. 2 O. L. R. 301, 21 C. L. T. 532, that the submission was not one providing for a reference " to two arbitrators, one to be appointed by each party," within the meaning of the Arbitration Act, R. S. Appointment of third arbitrator -

Parol appointment-Agreement-Re sation -Injunction.] - Certain rights at a casements of the plaintiffs were expropriated by a gas company under an Act enabling the company to make such expropriation and providing for the determination, by arbitration, of the amount of remuneration to be The plaintiffs appointed C, to be one of the arbitrators, and the company appointed B. The plaintiffs claimed a declaration that D., who was alleged to have been agreed upon by C. and B. as the third arbitrator, was not duly appointed, and an in-junction to prevent him from acting, (1) because the appointment of D. was not agreed to by C., (2) because the appoint-ment was not made in writing, and (3) because the appointment, if agreed to by C. in the first instance, was revoked by C. withdrawing his consent thereto before action brought .- Held, that the onus of establishing the grounds relied upon was upon plaintiffs. The question as to whether C. did or did not assent to the appointment of D, was one of fact, and, the finding of the trial Judge on the point being adverse to the plaintiffs, and the weight of evidence being in favour of the finding, there was no reason for setting it aside. In the absence of anything to require the appointment of the third arbitrator to be made in writing the same law would govern as in the appointment of an umpire under a submission, which may be made by parol if no particular mode of appointment be prescribed. D. having been appointed, and having consented to act, his appointment could not be revoked by subsequent dissent of the parties. Kedy v. Davison, 34 N. S. Reps. 233.

Arbitrator — Disqualification.] — An alderman of the city of St. John is disqualified to act on behalf of the city as one of a hoard of arbitrators to determine the value of land expropriated by the city under 61 V. c. 52. In re Abell, 21 C. L. T. 511, 2 N. B. Eq. Reps. 271.

Arbitrator — Fees — Advocate.] — An advocate who accepts the functions of an arbitrator in regard to the expropriation of land is an arbitrator, and not an advocate; his services therefore should be remunerated in the same way as those of any other arbitrator in a similar matter. Provincial Light, Heat and Power Co. v. Valois, 10 Que P. R. 43. Arbitrators functi officio, after award made-Making two awards.]--Not all present when award was made. Kelly v. MacDonald (1877), 2 P. Building contract-Completion of work "All matters in dispute"-Arbitrators-Delegation of duty.]-The action was to recover a balance on a building contract, alleg-ing completion. The defendant denied completion, and counterclaimed against the plaintiff on several grounds. After the record had been entered for trial the parties entered into an agreement to refer to two named arbitrators and a third one to be ap-pointed by the latter "all matters whatso-ever in dispute" between them. The arbitrators thus appointed having made their award in the plaintiff's favour, he moved, under Rules 754-764 of the King's Bench Act, to have the award made a judgment of the Court.—Held, dismissing the motion with costs, that the award was bad on the following grounds :---1. It shewed on its face that the work under the plaintiff's contract had not been completed, so that the plaintiff had not been completely so anything at all in this action. 2. From evidence taken on the hearing of the motion it was clear that the arbitrators had not taken into consideration "all matters whatsoever in dispute," but had failed to deal with a number of such matters which had been brought to their attention. Bowes v. Fernie, 4 My. & Cr. 150. Wilkinson v. Page, 1 Hare 276, and Russell on Arbitration, Sth ed., p. 172, followed. 3. The arbitrators had attempted to delegate to another person (unascertained) their auth-ority to decide whether the sum of $110. part of the amount awarded, should or should not be paid: see Tandy v. Tandy, 9 Dowl. 1044. Blakeston v. Wilson, 23 C. L. T. 27, 14 Man. L. R. 271.

British Columbia Arbitration Act — Setting aside award—Misconduct of arbitrator—Partiality—Evidence — Jurisdiction of majority—Decision in absence of third arbitrator — Judicial discretion.]—A reference under the British Columbia Arbitration Act authorised two out of three arbitrators to make the award. After notice of the final meeting, the third arbitrator failed to attend on account of personal inconvenience and private affairs, but both parties appeared at the time appointed and no objections were raised on account of the absence of the third arbitrator. The award was then made by the other two arbitrators present .-- Held, re versing the judgment in 10 B. C. R. 48, 23 C. L. T. 272, that, under the circumstances, was cast upon the two arbitrators present the jurisdiction to decide whether or not, in the exercise of judicial discretion, the proceedings should be further delayed or the award made by them alone in the absence of the third arbitrator, and it was not inconsistent with natural justice that they should decide upon making the award without reference to the absent arbitrator .- Held, further, that, although the third arbitrator had previously suggested some further audit of certain accounts that had already been examined by the arbitrators, there was nothing in this circumstance to impugn the good faith of the other two arbitrators in deciding that further delay was unnecessary. Where it does not appear that an arbitrator is in such a position with regard to the parties or the matter in dispute as might cast suspicion upon his honour and impartiality, there must be proof of actual impartiality or unfairness in order to justify the setting aside of the award. In re Doberer and Megaw's Arbitration, 24 C. L. T. N. 113, 34 S. C. R. 125.

Clerical error in award - Motion to refer back-Railway Act of Canada.]-Motion for an order referring back to the arbitrators, to enable them to correct a clerical error, an award made under the Dominion Railway Act.—Held, that if the Provincial legislation (R. S. O. 1897, c. 62) applied. the motion was needless, the arbitrators having power (s. 9 (c)) to correct the mistake. If that legislation were not applicable, there was no power to remit the award, nor to correct the error upon this motion. Except under power conferred by statute, or by the parties, the Courts would not correct errors in awards, either directly or through the arbitrators; and the Railway Act of Canada does not authorise the reopening of a reference. Costs—Disposition of — Submission — Powers conferred by—Invalid award.]—An action for trespass to land was brought by M, against H., and an action of ejectment by T. M. H. against M., both actions resulting from a disputed boundary between the lands of the respective partice. By agreement the question of the boundary was referred to arbitration, "including the disposition of costs in the said actions." The arbitrators totalled the costs in the tv-o actions and in their award directed them to be paid in certain proportions.—Held, per Graham, E.J., Longley, J., concurring, Russell, J., dissenting, that the words of the submission in reference to costs meant clearly " party and party costs," and that the arbitrators having undertaken to deal with the costs and expenses of both sides in the two actions.

including costs between solicitor and client, exceeded their powers, and the award was invalid and must be set aside. Messenger v. Hicks, 42 N. S. R. 13, 3 E. L. K. 230.

Defective award.] — Motion to enlarge time. Smith v. Zwicker (1906), 1 E. L. R. 70.

Disqualification of arbitrator - Interest as ratepayer-Certiorari.]- By the Nova Scotia Acts of 1902, c. S0, the corpora-tion of the town of Glace Bay were empowered, for the purpose of obtaining a water supply, to enter upon any lands in the county of Cape Breton, and it was provided that the damages, if any, payable to the owner of such land, should be determined by arbitration. Objection was taken to the award of damages, on the ground that C. F., one of the arbitrators appointed under the Act, was not a disinterested party, he having been as-sessed as a ratepayer in the town --- Held, that if the arbitrators were acting in a judicial capacity, c. 39, R. S., applied, and the fact of one of the arbitrators being a ratepayer afforded no valid objection to the award made by him; that, if the arbitrators were not acting in a judicial capacity, a writ of certiorari would not lie to remove into the Supreme Court any award made by them. R. v. Glace Bay, 24 C. L. T. 140, 36 N. S. Reps. 456.

Expropriation — Compensation.] — Benefit derivable from expropriation that can be set off against damage caused by expropriation, must be such as is "beyond the increased value, common to all lands in the locality"; if the property be a mill-site, with a water power available, it cannot be urged that its only value is given it by the railway, inasmuch as the owner of a rival mill-site in the locality, not touched by the railway, would presumably derive same benefit from it. Que., Montreal & Southern Rue, Co. v. Landry, 19 Que. K. B. 82.

Injunction—Jurisdiction.]— Injunction will not be granted to restrain a party from proceeding with an arbitration, where the result of arbitration will be merely futile and of no injury to party seeking injunction.—An arbitration to determine value of land of plaintiff taken by defendants will not be restrained because a condition precedent to taking of the land may not have been complied with. Duncan v. Campbellton (1906), 26 C. L. T. 466, 3 N. B. Eq. 224.

Land Purchase Act, 1875—Avard — Finality — Uncertainty — Legal tender — Powers of Provincial Legislature under B. N. A. Act—Ultra vires.]—The Commissioners' Court, organized under "The Land Purchase Act, 1875." made an award as follows:— "The sum awarded under see. 26 of the said Act by us, two of the commissioners appointed under the provisions of the said Act, is eighty-one thousand five hundred dollars ($81.500)."—The proprietors moved to set the award aside on the grounds (1) that the exercised under it to ascertain metes and bounds of land to be conveyed by the Public Trustee to the Commissioner of Public Lands; (4) because the money awarded has not been paid into the treasury of the province (it) had been paid in Dominion notes, which were not jegal tender); (5) because it does not appear that the award was made under the terms of "The Land Purchase Act, 1875." Land Purchase Act, 1875 — Setting aside accrd—Accrd made outside of jurisdiction—Commissioners making two avards —Arbitrators functi officio after making an avcord — All arbitrators not present when avcard made.] — In October, 1876, this case was heard in Charlottetown before W., J. and H., Commissioners appointed under the P. E. Island Compulsory "Land Purchase Act, 1875." In November the Commissioners went to Nova Scotia, where an award was, on 29th November, made and signed by all three. On 1st December H. wished to have his name struck off, as he had made a mistake in signing it, and W., the chairman, in the absence of J., allowed it to be done, and the award signed by all three was then destroyed. In March, 1877, W. and J. signed a second award in New Brunswick without again consulting H. and it was not signed in his presence. The defendant McD., applied to have this award set aside on the grounds, among others, (1) that the award having been made outside the province was a nullity; (2) that on executing the first award the Commissioners became functi officio, and any subsequent award made by them was vold; (3) that this award was made without consulting H.; (4) that it was not signed in the presence of all the Commissioners: -Meld, (Palmer, C.J., Peters & Hensley, JJ.), that on the foregoing grounds the award was void and must be set aside. Kelly v. MacDonald (1877), 2 P. Lands taken or injuriously affected-Inclusion of other matters in sub-mission-Appeal - Municipal Act.]-Persons, having appointed arbitrators under Municipal Act in respect to lands taken by municipality in connection with their water-works system, afterwards entered into an agreement under seal defining the scope of arbitration and included a claim for damages for breach of contract and others matters not within Municipal Act. They did not provide in the agreement for an appeal under s. 14 of the Arbitration Act, R. S. O. 1897, c. 62. The arbitrators in their award awarded one sum both for the claim "under the Acts and in respect of matters referred to in said submission."—Held, affirming order of Teetzel, J., that, as the matters not under the Municipal Act could not be dis-tinguished in amount awarded from the questions referred under the Act, the award being one and indivisible, and as the agreement come to by the parties defining the scope of the arbitration did not provide for an appeal under Arbitration Act, no appeal on merits lay, or was possible. Section 45 of the Act does not apply to such an application, but only to applications to set aside awards. An order under s. 13 is necessary, when the reference has been made out of Court. S. O. 1897, c. 62, he having failed to comply with the terms of a previous order of 22nd June, 1904, which required him to find and award as to the ownership of the property in-cluded in an instrument dated 5th January. 1901, and he had not complied with that order by vesting the property in the Lake Superior Power Co, as the owner thereof. Option of one of two alternatives - Failure to declare option - Mise en demeure.]-The party to whom an award gives an option to do one of two things, cannot be presumed to have declared for either alternative by mere lanse of time, and, if he fails to declare his option, he must be put in default, before the other party can seek to enforce the award. Hence, when the option consists in either taking over hardwood logs sunk in a pond, as being of a stated quantity, for a lump sum, or, as soon as the ice is gone from the pond, of fishing them up jointly with the other party, to be sawed, and the output to be divided between them in certain proportions, the standing-by, after the ice is gone, by the party having the op-tion, or his doing nothing during the summer, does not give the other the right to sue mer, does not give the other the right to sue for the lump sum, on the assumption that he has implicitly elected the first alternative. A putting in default, mise en demeure, is at least required, before an action will lie. Ross v. Fletcher, 35 Que. S. C. 113.

Oral submission and award - Validity—Irregularity—Absence of prejudice — Undertaking to pay damages—Consideration Concretating to pay damages—Consideration —Effect of award — Concersion of damages into debt—Small debt procedure — District Court.]—The plaintiff sued in the District Court for $12, the amount of an award, the action being brought under the small debt procedure. The plaintiff found cattle upon procentre. The plaining tound cattle upon his land, doing damage, and impounded them. The caftle in fact belonged to the defend-ant's mother, but it was not shewn that the defendant had not some interest in them; and he, in order to have them released from the pound, signed a written undertaking to pay for the damage done by the cattle on the play for the damage done by the cattle of the plaintiff's land. He also agreed orally to an arbitration, and the damages were as sessed, by an award (not in writing) of 3 men, at $12. The defendant was not present when the 3 men inspected the land, and made their award, nor was he notified : ---Held that the undertaking was signed by the defendant for good consideration; and he was personally responsible to the plaintiff for unascertained damages; that there was an oral submission to arbitration; that the proce-dure under it by the plaintiff and the arbi-trators was irregular, but the defendant was not prejudiced by it, the award being a fair one that the subone; that the submission, not being in writwas not governed by the Arbitration Ordinance ; that the oral submission was valid, and so was the award; that the award and, and so was the award; that the award made the damages a debt, and so within the small debt procedure; and the plaintiff was entitled to judgment. On a reference, fol-lowing a dispute, under the agreement, the arbitrators, being unable to agree, drew_up Two and rendered three separate awards. of the arbitrators agreed in their findings. Morrison, J., came to the conclusion that the agreement of a majority constituted an award, pursuant to s. 10, s.-s. 36 of the Interpretation Act—Held, on appeal, per Ir-ving and Clement, JJ., that s.-s. 36 does not apply to the construction of a document inter partes, as here, but to something done pursuant to statute .- Per Hunter, C.J. :-The arbitrators having acted separatim in making their award, an objection to a find-ing so made is fatal. Remission was refused because after the submission was retered into one of the arbitrators commenced an action against the party who had nominated him to recover an amount arreed to be paid for procuring settlement of the matters in dispute.—Where the instrument of submission names the arbitrators, the Court or Judge has no power to appoint a new arbitrator in lieu of one who has become incompetent. Setting aside award-Action-Pleading -Prayer for general relief-King's Bench Act, Rules 773-775-9 & 10 Wm. III. c. 15 -Jurisdiction.]-When the plaintiff, in answer to the defence of an award covering the amount of his claim, amends his statement of claim by setting up facts which, if true, would entitle him to ask specifically to have would entitle min to ask specifically to have the award set aside, the statement of claim is good on demurrer, if it contains a prayer for general relief, although it does not ask for that specific relief. Dictum of Killam, J., in Rogers v. Commercial Union Assurance Co., 10 Man. L. R. at pp. 675, 676, and notes at p. 625 of Bullen & Leake, 5th ed., followed.—2. The Court has jurisdiction over a code of procedure only for the enforcement of awards, and Rule 774, which reads, "The former practice with respect to awards shall not be abolished, but the same shall only be followed by special leave of the Court or Judge," should be interpreted as if it read. Judge," should be interpreted as in it from "The former practice relating to the enforce-ment of awards," etc. Johannesson v. Gal-braith, 3 W. L. R. 275, 16 Man. L. R. 138.

Setting aside award - Misconduct of arbitrator—Waiver.]—A party to an arbitra-tion does not waive his right to object to an award on the ground of misconduct on the part of an arbitrator by failing to object as soon as he becomes suspicious and before the soon as ne occomes suspicious and before the award is made; he is enfitled to wait until he gets such evidence as will justify him in impeaching the award. Where two out of three arbitrators go on and hold a meeting. and make an award at a time when the third arbitrator cannot attend, it amounts to an exclusion of the third arbitrator, and the award is invalid. A party by attending at such a meeting and not objecting (although he knew of the third arbitrator's inability to attend) does not waive his right to object afterwards. Per Hunter, C.J. - It is not necessary that there should be absolute proof of misconduct before an award will be set aside on that ground; it is enough if there is a reasonable doubt raised in the judicial mind that all was not fair in the conduct of one or more of the arbitrators. In re Doberer and Megaw's Arbitration, 23 C. L. T. 272, 10 B. C. R. 48.

Stated case. — Matter "arising in the course of the reference" — Construction of contract-Recording submission — Discretion—Special qualifications of arbitrators—Questions of laws.] — Arbitrators were appointed under the arbitration clause in an agreement between two companies, whereby inter alia, one agreed to provide the other daily with a certain quantity of cordwood, which the latter agreed to carbonize into charcoal and to deliver to the former to the maximum quantity of 85,000 bashels per month. The arbitration clause provided that in case of any dispute in regard to the meaning or construction of the agreement or of the mutual obligations of the agreement or explicit, intendion, or meaning of the agreement, the same should be determined by arbitration. One of the claims referred to the arbitrators was for damages for short delivery of charcoal, a shortage being claimed whatever the proper construction of the agreement in that regard. On an appli-Cation by one of the parties, under s. 41 of the Arbitration Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 62, for a direction to the arbitrators to state a special case upon which the Court should determine the true construction of the contract as to the amount of charcoal called for per month under it - a matter upon which they had under it — a matter upon which they had reached and announced a conclusion: $-Held_{\rm t}$ that, the claim referred to leaving the proper construction of the agreement onen, this was a question of law "arising in the course of the reference," within the meaning of s. 41, and a special case might properly be directed as to it. 2. That a special case having been directed as to the principal question, it might properly be made to include two other questions in dispute, though, had they been the only questions which the applicants desired to have stated, it would not have been proper to direct a case as to them. 3. A party to a reference is not entitled ex debito justitia to have a special case directed whenever a question of law arises in the course of a reference; it is a matter in the discretion of the Court. 4. There is no general rule that when the arbitrators are specially qualified to decide a question of law, this direction should not be given, at all events where the arbitrators have ruled upon the question. Semble, that different considerations apply to the exercise of the discretion to give leave to revoke a submission (s. 3 of the same Act)-a discretion which is to be exercised only under ex-Cretion which is to be exercised only index ex-ceptional circumstances. In re Rathbun Co. and Standard Chemical Co., 23 C. L. T. 66, 5 O. L. R. 286, 2 O. W. R. 36, 385, 3 O. W. R. 608, 724, 6 O. W. R. 660.

Statement of case by arbitrators-Time-Remitting back award.] - After an award is made it is too late to make an application for an order under s. 1 of the Arbitra-tion Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 62, directing the arbitrators to state a case for the opinion of the Court as to the admissibility and relevancy of evidence, or for the arbitrators to state a case for the opinion of the Court. The only case in which the Court will remit matters referred to an arbitrator for reconsideration under s. 11 are: (1) where the award is bad on the face of it; (2) where there has been misconduct on the part of the arbitrators; (3) where there has been an admitted mistake, and the arbitrator himself asks that the matter may be remitted; and (4) where additional evidence has been discovered after the making of the award. Where arbitrators received and gave effect in their award to certain evidence, and after the making of the award gave a certificate to that effect, and that they were in doubt as to whether they should have received the evidence:-Held, that the case did not come within any of the above four cases, and that an order to remit the matter back to the arbitrators should be refused. In re Grand Trunk Ruc. Co. and Petric, 21 C. L. T. 529, 2 O. L. R. 284.

Statutory arbitrators.]--The provinces of Ontario and Quebec submitted to arbitrators for determination the amount of principal of the Common School Fund to ascertain which they should consider not only the sum held by the Gov. of Canada but also "the amount for which Ontario is liable." In 1896 by award No. 2, the arbitrators determined that moneys remitted to purchasers of school lands unless made in fair and prudent administration, and uncollected purchase money of patfor non-collection, should be deemed moneys for non-conection, should be deemed moneys received by Ont., and in 1890 the amount of liability under these heads was fixed by award No. 4. In 1902 Privy Council held that the arbitrators had no jurisdiction to entertain a claim by Que, to have Ont. de-clared liable for unservers moment of school clared liable for purchase money of school lands yet unpatented allowed to remain uncollected for many years. In making their final award in 1907, the arbitrators refused an application by Que, for inclusion therein of amounts found due from Ont, for remis-sions and non-collections and held that they had exceeded their jurisdiction in determining and exceeded their jurisolution in determining such liability. On appeal from this deter-mination embodied in the final award.—Held, Fitzpatrick, C.J., and Duff, J., expressing no opinion, that the arbitrators had no jurisdiction to determine the liability of Ont, for moneys remitted or not collected. Atty-Gen. for Ont. V. Atty. Gen. for Que. [1903] A. C. 39, followed. Held, also, Fitzpatrick, C.J., and Duff, J., dissenting, that awards Nos. 2 and 4 so far as they determined this liability were absolutely null, and, therefore, not binding on Ont. Quebec v. Ontario (1909), 42 S. C. R. 161.

Stay of action—Partnership—Agreement to rejer—Enforcement,]—Application by defendants to stay proceedings in an action by the personal representatives of a deceased partner to have the survivors account. Under partnership articles a sole arbitrator was appointed in case one of the partners should die before the expiration of the partnership term :—Held, graniting the order to stay proceedings, subject to plaintiffs being permitted at any time upon such material as they deem sufficient, to apply for appointment of a receiver or for an injunction. The right not limited to an application after award was made, reserving, however, a general liberty to apply at any time for the protection of the partnership property and to prevent the improper use or disposition of it pending the settlement of the matters in question. Submission — Scope — Avard exceeding authority—Void in part—Setting aside in entirety.]—Arbitrators, even when they are constituted amiables compositeurs, can only adjudicate upon matters which are left to them in the submission, and according to the manner which is there provided. Therefore, when they are appointed to fix the compensation to be paid for the expropriation for three lots of land, an award by which they fix it for two lots, and order that the owner retain the third upon condition of maintaining thereon a road in perpetuity for the use of the authority expropriating, is vold.—Such an award is indivisible, and cannot be confirmed by one party and annulled by another; it can only be maintained or annulled in its entirety. Judgment in Q. R. 29 S. C. 328 reversed. Quebec Bridge and Ric. Oc. v, Quebec Improvement Co., 16 Que. K. B. 107. Submission—Scope — Award exceeding authority—Foid in part—Setting aside in entirety—Mediators—Expropriation.]—When arbitrators were appointed under deeds of submission to value three expropriated lots of ground and fix the indemnity for damages, it being declared that they should act as mediators (amiables compositeurs), but should be bound to conform to the provisions of s. 161 of the Railway Act, 1905, and the award, in lieu of valuing the third lot, ordered that the expropriators should return it in part and, to be maintained by them in perpetuity, for the benefit of the parties expropriated :— Held, that raivitrators who are also appointed mediators cannot disregard their instructions, and that the error vitated the whole eward. Quebec Bridge and Rev. Co. v. Quebce Improvement Co., 16 Que, K. B. 107, affirmed. Quebec Improvement Co. v. Quebce Bridge and Rev. Co., C. R. (1908) A. C. 212; 1908 A. C. 217; 16 Que, K. B. 353.

Submission — Time for award—Failure of arbitrators to extend—Action — Defence of arbitration pending-Stay of proceedings.] -A submission to arbitration, dated the 4th October, 1904, was under seal, and bound the parties to abide by the award so as it was made on or before the 30th October, 1904, or any subsequent day to which the arbitrators should by writing extend the time. There was no covenant not to take other proceedings. The arbitrators proceeded to consider the matters referred to them and continued the arbitration, with the assent of the parties, for nearly two years, but did not by writing ex-tend the time for the award. The plaintiff brought this action for an account in respect of the matters referred, the arbitration being still uncompleted, and the defendant pleaded the submission and proceedings of the arbitrators as an answer to the action :--Held, that the assent of the parties to the arbitration being proceeded with after the time had expired was equivalent to a parol submission only; s. 3 of the Arbitration Act, which makes submissions of the same effect as an order of the Court, and irrevocable without leave of the Court, applies, by virtue of s. 2 to submissions in writing only; the same is the case with s. 6, which allows an application to stay proceedings; no order extending the time had been made under s. 10; and therefore the arbitration proceedings afforded no answer. Time for making award-Expiry-Arbitrator functus officio-Appointment of new arbitrator - Municipal corporation-Prohibition.]-An arbitrator is functus officio as soon as he has made an award or as soon as the time fixed, whether by consent or otherwise, within which he shall make his award has expired .- Ruthven v. Ruthven, 8 U. C. R. 12, followed.—A previous arbitration to settle the same matter having failed by reason of no award having been made, B. took proceedings under the Winnipeg charter for a fresh arbitration, and applied to have an arbitrator appointed by the County Court Judge to act on behalf of the city, as the city council had failed to make a fresh ap-pointment, relying on the former appointment, which had not been cancelled .- Held, that a new appointment was necessary, and the city corporation were not entitled to an order prohibiting the County Court Judge from proceeding to make it. Bennetto v. Winnipeg, 7 W. L. R. 561, 18 Man. L. R. 100.

Time for making award.]-Last day after lapse.]-Arbitraters, amiables compositeurs, and experts, become functi officio by the lapse of the delay fixed for the performance of their duties. If the period fixed has expired without any report having been made, the submission becomes inoperative, and the Court cannot thereafter grant an extension of the delay, Beaudoin v. Dubrule, 20 Que. 8. C. 575.

Time for making award — Last day falling on Sunday—Judicature Act—Partition—Rights of co-parcener—Statute of Limitations—Adverse possession. Re Mullin & Mullin, 2 O. W. R. 874.

Time for making award-Power to extend-Umpire.]-By the terms of an agreement for submission to arbitration the matters in difference between parties were re-ferred to the award, etc., of M. and B., and in case they disagreed, or failed to make their award before the 1st August then next, then to the award, etc., of such umpire as said arbitrators should nominate and appoint, " so as the said arbitrators or umpire do make and publish his and their award ready to be delivered on or before the 10th day of August next, or on or before any other day to which said arbitrators or umpire shall, by writing indorsed on these presents, enlarge the time for making such award or umpirage :"-Held, per Ritchie, J., and Graham, E.J., that un-der the terms of the agreement, the power of the arbitrators to consider and deal with the questions submitted absolutely terminated on the 1st August, after which date the umpire the 1st August, after which date the infinite was the only person who had authority to make an award :—Held, also, that the arbitrators had no authority to extend the time within which the umpire could make his award, and that, as such time, if not legally extended, expired on the 10th August, and the umpire did not attempt to extend it until the 20th September, the award made by him was irregular and void, and the plaintif could not recover;—Held, also, that the provisions of the Arbitration Act, Acts of 1895 c. 7, s. 2 (e), were not applicable, a contrary intention being expressed in the submission which fixed the date before which the arbitrator was to make his award or extend the time: —Held, also, that the section, if applicable, would not assist the plaintiff, as the umpire did not begin to extend the time until the 20th September, and the authority of the arbitrators had terminated more than a month previously. McDonald, C.J., and Measher, J., contra. Holmes v. Taylor, 33 N. S. R. 415.

Uncertainty of awarā—Demurre.] —Plaintiff's declaration set out an award alone, and to this defendant objected on the ground of its uncertainty, as it directed an annuity to be paid plaintiff out of her claims on the property, without shewing what those claims were or on what property they attached:— Held, (Peters, J.)—That the award was certain.—That an objection to an award on demurrer must appear on its face, or by facts stated in the plen. McIntyre v. McIntyre (1870), 1 P. E. L. R. 307.

Validity of award.]—Reference to three arbitrators—Separate awards—Agreement of two—Arbitration Act—Interpretation Act, s. 10 (36). Re McLeod & Hope, 9 W. L. R. 315.

Value of lands expropriated — Arbirators exceeded terms of submission—Arcard set aside.]—The Quebec Improvement Co, were owners of three lots near the city of Quebec. The Que. Bridge and Rw. Co. required these lots for their purposes. The companies being unable to agree as to the price of the lots, the matter was referred to arbitration, it being declared that the arbitrators should act as mediators (amiable compositeure), but should be bound to conform to the provisions of Art. 161 of the Railway Act, 1902. The arbitrators in lieu of valuing one of the lots in money ordered that part of the lot should be returned and that the Que. Bridge and Rw. Co., should construct a road on their adjoining land and maintain the same in perpetuity for the benefit of the Que. Improvement Co.—Held, that the arbitrators were not bound to dhere strictly to legal formalities and mere irregularities would be excused, but as the arbitrators had exceeded the terms of submission, an error in that respect would vitate their whole award. Judgment of the Court of King's Bench for Quebec, afirmed, judgment of the Superior Court of Quebec, Langelier, J., at trial, discharged. Que. Jmp. Co. v. Que., Bridge & Rue. Co., C. In arriving at the value the arbitrators were not to go behind the entries in the company's book, but might take other matters into consideration, etc. The plaintif desiring to sell his stock in the company, took necessary steps under the agreement to arbitrators awarded the plaintiff $88,400 for his stock, free and clear of every encumbrance thereon.—Sutherland, J. (15 O. W. R. 432, 1 O. W. N. 505), dismissed plaintiff's appeal from above award, with costs.—Divisional Court allowed an appeal therefrom and remitted the award back to the arbitrators with costs here and below. Workmen's Compensation Act-Cate stated by arbitrator -- Reference back --Further case-Jurisdiction of single Judge to refer again to arbitrator.]--On a case stated in an arbitration under the Workmen's Compensation Act. 1902, the Full Court referred the question back to the arbitrator to make definite findings of fact and have the questions of law clearly formulated. Upon the reference back, the case was re-stated to a single Judge, and the Judge to whom the questions were submitted found that they were questions of fact, and referred the matter back to the arbitrator to "proceed with the arbitration:" --Held, on appeal, that there was jurisdiction for such an order; that the arbitrator had not finished his work; and that the would not be functus officio until the award should be made. Armstrong v. St. Eugene Mining Co. 7 W. L. R. 374, 13 H. O. R. $55.

ARCHITECT.

Building house — Interference with lights — Liability — Servitude — Disposal of property by owner.]—The architect employ d by a land owner to design and superintend the construction of a house, on a vacant site not subdivided into building lots for sale, incurs no liability from the fact that an oblique view is given through a window, in the house designed by him, upon a part of the land sold by the owner to a third party, after the inception of the building. In this case, the proximate cause of the servitude is to be found, not in the plan devised by the owner of his property, in a manner to make one portion of it bear the relation of a servient tenement, to that on which the house is built. Saint-Jean v. Strubbe, 27 Que. S. C. 206.

Contract to prepare plans-Work not proceeded with - Commission on estimated cost.]-The plaintiff was engaged by the defendants to prepare plans and specifications for an hotel building to cost not more than $4,000 or $5,000, for which he was to receive a commission of two per cent. on the cost, with one per cent, additional for superin-tendence. Instructions as to size, number of rooms, &c., were given by the defendants. Before the plans were completed changes were made, by additions to the original plan, involving an additional expenditure of $1,500, The plans were approved of by the defendants, when completed, and tenders called for, and the work partly proceeded with. It was then found by the defendants that, owing to an advance in the price of materials, the building would cost much more than they had expected, and the work was stopped :---Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to recover from defendants the stipulated commission of two per cent, on the estimated cost of the building with the additions agreed upon. Hutch-inson v. Conway, 34 N. S. R. 554.

Fees.]-Action for-Counterclaim for negligence-Questions of fact-Appeal. Russell v. McKerchar (Man.), 1 W. L. R. 138.

Fees—Preparation of plans — Contract— Liability—Joint enterprise.]—In an action by architecis to recover from a land-owner fees for preparing plans and specifications for the erection of an apartment house upon the defendant's land:—Held, upon conflicting evidence, that the plans and specifications were prepared by the plaintiffs, at their own risk, as sharers with the defendant and others, in a contemplated enterprise, and that the defendant was not liable to the plaintiffs. Melville v. Stirrett (1910), 14 W. L, R, 557.

Fees—Preparing plans—Value of services —Evidence.]—In an action by architects for fees for preparing plans for a building which was never erected, and the plaintiffs were held, upon the evidence, entitled to recover the amount which they claimed, there being no evidence as to the value of their services, of any weight as opposed to the testimony of the plaintiffs themselves. Smith v. Crump (No. 2), (1910), 14 W. L. R. 207.

Fees—Tariff—Association of architects— Registration.]— An architect, in order to avail himself of the tariff of the Province of Quebec Association of Architects, in support of a claim for services as architect, must establish that he is registered as a member of the association under the Act, 61 V. c. 33 (Q.) Beaulieu v. Lapierre, 26 Que, S. C. 1.

Instructions to prepare plana-Limilation as to cost of huiding — Extraneous conditions-Municipal by-law — Compliance with—Contract—Remuneration for services.] —Where an architect is instructed to prepare plans for a building to cost not more than a certain sum, but which building must also comply with other conditions as to accommodation under a municipal by-law, then, although, in order to comply with such other conditions, the tenders sent in are in excess of the sum mentioned, the architect cannot recover for his services. Wilson v. Ward, 14 B. C. R. 131, 9 W. L. R. 431.

Mistake in estimates—Liability.]—Deeision of Irving, J., 8 B. C. R. 7. holding the defendant, an architect, not liable for loss caused by error in estimates, affirmed by the full Coart. Grant v. Dupont, 8 B. C. R. 223.

Plans—Payment for—Contract—Commission.]—The defendant requested the plaintiff, who was an architect, to prepare plans for a building to cost from $1,500 to $1,800. After inspecting the plans, the defendant objected that the building shewn would not give him aufficient room, and suggested changes, which he was told would increase the cost; he assented, and the plans as finally prepared were for a building which would cost $25,000; the building was never in fact erected:—Held, that the planinff was entitled to be paid a percentage on the latter amount, and that, in the absence of evidence to fix the value independent of the special contract proved by the plaintiff, the sum of $750 (3 per cent, on $25,000) allowed by the trial Judge should not be Absconding debtor.]-Material to support application-Form of affidavit. Bent v. Morine, 2 E. L. R. 107.

Affidavit.]—The affidavit upon which a capias is founded must indicate the place where the debt was contracted, and in the absence of such indication the capias will be quashed on petition. Sheridan v. Pingree, 17 Que. S. C. 310.

Affidavit—Information—Source.]—A rapias issued upon the affidavit of the plainti? alleging the approaching departure of the defendant and the sale of his effects, based upon information given to him, the plaintiff, by a person worthy of credit, will be quashed on petition, if the plaintiff does not indicate the name of the person who has given him such information. Lemieux v. Bussière, 3 Que, P. R. 318.

Affidavit to hold to hall—Residence of parties.]—In an action for false imprisonment of the plaintif it appeared that he was arrested upon a capies issued by a justice of the peace:—Held, that the affidavit upon which the capies was granted was sufficient although it did not state the places of residence of the parties so as to shew jurisdiction. Temperance & General Life Assce. Co. of North America v. Ingraham, 35 N. B. R. 510.

Application for discharge-Onus-Intent to defraud — Former absconding.]his discharge from arrest under a ca. re., did not dispute the existence of the debt. nor that he was about to leave the country without paying or providing for it, but con-tended that he was not about to quit the province with intent to defraud.—The debt province with intent to defraud. The down this was a fraudulent scheme. It was also alleged and denied that the defendant in 1893 absconded from this province to the United States of America. The defendant was a citizen of the United States, and was in Ontario in 1893, and again in 1900, when arrested, for temporary business purposes. It was not shewn that he ever had any property in this province, nor that he took any away with him in 1893, nor that at the time of his arrest he had any in his hands or under his control. The evidence did not shew that he was at the time of the arrest about to leave the province hurriedly, but that he intended to stay till he had finished the business which brought him to the province, and then return to his own country as of course. --Divisional Court held (20 C. L. T. 305, 19 P. R. 207), Ferguson, J., dissenting, that the Court could not, upon this application. try the question whether the defendant did or did not abscond in 1893; that the onus was upon the plaintiff to make out the fraudulent intent in the departure now proposed, by more than mere suspicion ; and that, upon all the facts and merits disclosed, the arrest could not be maintained. Kersterman v. McLellan, 10 P. R. 122, distinguished.— Court of Appeal held, the expected departure from Ontario with intent to defraud is an essential ingredient of the case to be made out by the applicant for an order of arrest, out by the applicant for an order of arrest, but it is a question of fact, and the Judge may infer from the facts and circumstances shewn by the affidavits. The decision of the Judge who grants such an order is subject to review, but the onus of shewing that he was means feats more the method. was wrong rests upon the party who complains of it. Under the circumstances of this case the order was rightly made. The for-mer conduct of the defendant in respect to the same debt was a fact or circumstance to be taken into consideration on the question of intent. The impecunious or insolvent condition of the defendant does not, of itself, minimise or rebut the fraudulent intent.— Above judgment of Divisional Court reversed.—Held, also, that the order of the Court below directing that the bond given by the defendant should be delivered up and the surety therein released, was erroneous; the bond ought to have remanded upon the files of the Court, being a record thereof; and the order ought only to have directed that an exoneretur be entered thereon; therefore the bond should be restored. Beam v. Beatty (1901), 21 C, L, T. 518, 2 O, L, R. 362.

Assaulting police officer — Arrest of suspect-Resisting-Warrant.] — Where the defendant, arrested by a provincial constable, who believed that a robbery had been committed, and that the defendant was one of the persons who committed it, and who, being asked to shew his authority, produced and read a warrant against F. E. and others, for breaking and entering a shop and stealing a quantity of goods therefrom, seeing that his name was not mentioned in the warrant, resisted arrest, and in so doing assaulted a constable, and was tried and convicted for assaulting a police officer in the discharge of his duty, with intent to resist lawful arrest, it was held that the arrest could be justified under the statute, notwithstanding the insufficiency of the warrant. Rex v. Sabeans, 37 N. S. Reps. 223.

Assignment for creditors – Discharge —Schedule – Contestation – Linkel – A debtor imprisoned under civil process who makes an assignment of his property, is not prevented from demanding his discharge, for default of contestation of his schedule within four months after its filing, by the fact that the plaintiff who has caused the imprisonment, having been named provisional guardian in respect of the assignment, has neglected to give notice of his appointment and that in write of the fact that the time for contestatio, of the schedule begins to run regularly only after notice of the appointment of the curator. However, in this case, the Court granted to the plaintiff a delay of eight days to contest the schedule, ordering the discharg of the debtor If the contestation were not (ided within that time, Bury v. Lynch, 17 Qu. S. C. 166, 2 Oue-P. R. 419.

Attachment—Affidavii—Cause of action —Subsequent attaching creditor—Motion to set aside prior attachment — Statun,] — An application by a subsequent attaching creditor to set aside a previous attachment under the Absent or Absconding Debtors Act, on the ground that the affidavit upon which the previous attachment was made did not disclose a cause of action, and was not made by the plaintiff or his arcent. The affidavit was made by the first attaching creditor's solicitor, and set forth that the defendant was indebted for "money lent, for goods sold and delivered, and for board and logzing," stating the amount due under each head —Held, that the affidavit on which the first attachment issued was not made by the plaintiff or his agent, as required by the statute, and the affidavit did not shew any cause of action against the defendant and that the notice of application to set aside the attachment might be amended by adding these grounds of motion ; and the application was granted. Carr, 21 C. L. T. 312.

Attachment — Affidavit — Conclusions of law-Claim for damages,] — Conclusions of law should not be stated in an affidavit. The statement ought to be in such form as to enable perjury to be assigned. An order for arrest may be granted notwithstanding that the claim is for damages. Gladucin v. Guilford, 40 N. S. R. 480.

Attachment—Costs—County Court appeal.] — The Supreme Court will not, as a general rule, grant an attachment to enforce the payment of the costs of an appeal from the judgment of a County Court. The costs should be certified and application made to the Court below. MacPherson v. Samet, 34 N. B. R. 559.

Attachment-Disobedience of order for payment of trust fund into Court-Forum -Judge at Chambers-Collection Act-Time for payment-Proof of non-payment.]-The defendant was ordered by rule of Court to pay into Court the amount of trust funds admitted by him to be in his hands. The defendant disobeyed the order, and an application was made at Chambers under O. 40, R. 4, and O. 42, R. 2, for an order that a writ of attachment be issued against him. The defendant appeared and objected to the granting of the order for the attachment on the following grounds: (1) that a Judge at Chambers has no authority to grant an order for attachment in such a case; (2) that, in view of s. 1 of the Collection Act, a writ of attachment could not issue for the payment of money: (3) that a time must be limited in the order for the payment, and that is was not sufficient to require it to be paid "forthwith :" (4) that it was not sufficiently proved that the money had not been paid in, a certificate of the prothonotary being necessary, as under the English practice :----Held. that there was jurisdiction in Chambers to grant the order in question; that the provision in the Collection Act was not applicable to a case of this kind; that the expression "forthwith" was sufficient; and that the fact that the defendant apand that the fact that the demonstrate period and did not dispute the non-payment, disposed of the fourth objection. A writ of attachment was granted accordingly. Gilbert y. Endcan., 9 Ch., D. 259, distinguished. Loasby v. Egan, 40 N. S. R. 74.

Attachment.] — Disobedience to judgment—Service of judgment—Copy—Non-production of original—Status of plaintis as applicants for attachment — Parting with interest in part if subject matter of action— Judgment attacked by subsequent action. McLeod v. Lauceon, 10 O, W. R. 1003.

Attachment — Practice — Rule 704 — Notice—Material on application — Former equity practice.]—In applying for a writ of attachment against the person for contempt of Court, it is not necessary to shew that the equity practice prior to the coming into force of the Oueen's Bench Act, 1805, requiring that the copy of the order served should be indersed with the memorandum prescribed by former Equity Rule 290 and Schedule N., has been followed, as the words "circumstance" and "manner," used in Rule 704 of the King's Beneth Act, which is the Rule prescribing the present practice, do not extend to the material to be used on applying for such writ of attachment. The Court drew a distinction between the procedure for obtaining the old ex parte writ of attachment and the present practice, under which notice is always necessary before the writ can be obtained. Cotter v. Osborne, 6 W. I., R 609, 17 Man. L. R. 164.

Attachment — Rule nisi — Argument on motion—Absence of witness—Proof— Affdævi:]—A party has the right when a motion is made to obtain an order of attachment against him, to oppose this motion by every means that he could oppose to the enforcement of the order itself. The failure of a witness to appear ought to be set forth in the brief. A motion for a rule nisi against a witness who has thus failed to appear ought to be supported by an affidavit. Beaucage v. Arpin (1909), 10 Que, P. R. 421.

Badl—Reneral—Default — Rearrest.] — Default by a defendant arrested upon expices to renew the bail (a bondsman having died), as directed by the order of the Court, is a good ground for ordering him into the custody of the sheriff. Beliveau v. Boschen, 4 Que. P. R, 62.

Bail bond—Discharge—Exonerctur.] — Application for an order to deliver up the bond, given on the defendants arrest, to be cancelled, the action having been dismissed: —Held, that the order should be for the entry of an exonerctur on the bond, not for the delivery up of the bond, following the old practice (Allison v. Desbrasy, Cochrane 19), there being no specific Rule in the Nova Scotia Judicature Act on the subject. Watson v. Leukton, 23 C. L. T. 336.

Both parties abroad—Attachment will lie against defendant temporarily scithia jurisdiction, but concealing himself.]—Both plaintiffs and defendants were residents of Nova Scotia, where also the debt was contracted. Defendant came to P. E. I. temporarily, and while here plaintiffs caused a bailable writ to issue against him, but he concealed himself to evade arrest, and it was returned non est incentus. Plaintiffs then issued an absent debtor attachment, and summoned Yates as garnishee, he having property of defendant's in his possession. A motion was now made by defendant to quash this attachment, on the ground that both parties being non-residents, and the within the provisions of the Act. Two questions were raised: (1) whether a non-resident could proceed by attachment for a debt not contracted abroad, they did, Poters, J., that the non-resident plaintiff could proceed and that the non-resident defendant was liable. McKean 6 Sutherland V. McKensie (1382), 1 F. E. I. R. 2005. Capias.]—Application for discharge under Nova Scotia Indigent Debtors Act—Mallcious tort, Goscombe v. Laird, 3 E. L. R. 499.

Caplas—Affidavit—Amendment—Time and place of debt.]—The affidavit required for the issuing of the writ of capitas is not a proceeding susceptible of being amended. 2. Such affidavit must mention the time and place where the indebtedness occurred, within the limits of the provinces of Quebec and Ontario, Julien v. Chuna, 5 Que. P. R. 413.

Caplas—Affidavit—Debt.1—A capias will be quashed upon petition if the affidavit does not shew that the debt for which it was sued ont is a personal debt, or if it does not indicate the place at which the debt was created or became exigible. European Importing Co. V. Mallekson, 6 Que. P. R. 255.

Capins—Affdavit—Debt, place of—Judgment.]—It is essential to state in the affidavit for a capias that the debt was contracted or is payable in the provinces of Quebec and Ontario; the mention in the affidavit of the judgment obtained against the defendant will not suffice. Lavoie v. Léveaque, 8 Que, P. R. 275.

Cavins-Affdavit-Debt-Place of payment.]-The affdavit for capies must shew that the debt for which the suit is brought was created or is made payable within the limits of the provinces of Quebec or Ontario, D'Amico v. Galardo, 28 One, S. C. 399, 7 Que, P. R. 234.

Capins — Affidavit — Fraud — Concealment—Sufficiency of allegations.]—An affidavit for a copias containing an allegation that without the benefit of the writ the plaintiff will be deprived of his remedy against the defendant, and in which the concealment imputed to the defendant is that by virtue of a contract with the plaintiff for the making of joists, and when the defendant was insolvent, in obtaining an advance of $1.000 to pay the wages of his workmen, he had hidden and withdrawn that sum with the intention of defrauding the plaintiff, so that the latter was not able to procure delivery to him of the finished product, the workmen refusing to allow it to be taken away, is sufficient to meet the requirements of art. $95, C. P. C. King Brothers Limited v. Blais, 14 Que. K, B. 501.

Capins — Affdavit — "Immediately.")— An affdavit for capina must set forth that the defendant is "immediately" about to leave the provinces of Quebec and Ontario, and a capina issued upon an affdavit merely, stating that the defendant is about to leave the said provinces, will be quashed on petition to that effect. Kidd v. MacKinnon, 5 Que, P. R. 177, 20 Que, S. C. 300.

Capias — Affidarit — Information.] — Where, in an affidarit made to obtain a writ of ca, re, the plaintiff swears that he is informed of the facts upon which he relies to secure the issue of the writ, he must give the name of the person who has furnished him the information, and if he fails to give it the writ of capias will be quashed upon the petition of the defendant, Lemieux v. Bussière, 18 Que, S. C. 499.

into rerved Capins — Affidarit — Insufficiency — Quashing veril, — The insufficiency of the allegations in an affidavit for the issue of a capias is irremediable, because there is no way of amending the affidavit, and the issue of the writ cannot be retroactively validated; therefore, the omission to indicate in the affidavit the place where the debt was contracted is fatal and is ground for quashing the writ. Kerusce v. Kerusce (1906), 8 Que. P. R. 36.

Capins — Affidavit — Insufficient allegations—Absconding — Grounds of belief,]— The allegation in an affidavit for capies that it is probable the defendant is immediately to leave the province of Quebec, is uncertain and insufficient, 2. The affidavit must not only allege the belief of the plaintiff that the defendant is about to leave the province, but also the grounds of his belief. Shuman v. Goodman, 10 Que. P. R. 256.

Capins-Afidavit-Residence of parties-Place where debt contracted.]--When it appears by the affidavit for capias that the plaintiff as well as the defendant resides in the province of Quebec, it is not necessary to allege specially that the debt was contracted within the province. Beauchemin v. St. Pierre, 5 Que. P. R. 484.

Capitas—Affidavit—Sufficiency — Intent— Irregularity—Waiter—Bait] — Statements in affidavit as to debt and intention to leave writ of ca, re, admits by implication his intention to leave it pernamently. By the giving of bail, a defendant arrested waives his right to object to irregularities in the writ. Robertson v. Beers, 7 B, C. R. 76.

Capias—Affidavit of debt—Place of payment.)—An affidavit for a capias is insufficient if it does not allege that the debt has been created or is payable within the limits of the provinces of Quebec and Ontario. Foisy v. Levesque, 9 Que. P. R. 130.

Capitas—Afidavit to hold to bail—Falsity of allegations in—Ansteer setting up new lacts — Inscription in law.] — A special answor setting up new facts will not be permitted on an application to set aside a writ of capital based on the irregularity of the affidavit and the falsity of the allegations contained in it; such an answer will be struck out on an inscription in law. Demers V. Girard, 7 Que, P. R. 134.

Capitas—Affidavit to hold to bail—Insufficiency of.]—A capital issued upon an affidavit which does not state that owing to the secretion charged, the plaintiff will be deprived of his recourse against the defendant, is illegal, and will be quashed on petition. Hochar V. Drimer, 7 Oue, P. R. 156.

Capias-Affidavit to hold to bail-Particulars of damages.]-An affidavit for the issue of a capias in an action for damages should state the time and place where the acts which caused the damage were committed. Gourra v. Gourra, 7 Que. P. R. 157.

Capias-Assignment by debtor-Previous fraudulent acts.]-A debtor who has made an assignment for benefit of creditors cannot be arrested on a capias for fraudulent acts committed before his assignment. Demers v. Meunier, 7 Que. P. R. 274.

Capitas—Bail—Amount—Several survive.] —In a case of capias where the claim is for moneys had and received, the Court is without power to arbitrarily fix for bail an amount other than that claimed in the action, but may order that bail to that amount be given by several survives, each to the extent of an aliquot part of said sum. Sizette v. Boschen, 9 Que. P. R. 390.

Capins — Bail—Money deposit—Order to accept bail—Return of deposit.]—The defendant was arrested on a capias, and the amount indersed for bail and $40 for costs were deposited with the sheriff by a friend, out of her own money, the sheriff giving a receipt as follows: "Received from Ida Isaacson $540 in lieu of bail in the case of Macaulay Bros. & Co. v. Hyman Jacobson:"—Held, that an application for an order that the sheriff accept bail, or in lieu thereof, that the defendant be committed to gaol, and that the deposit be returned, should be refused. Macaulay v. Jacobson, Ex. p. Isaacson, 2 E. L. R. 15, 37 N. B. R. 537.

Capitas-Bail-Relief under Rule 1047--Wairer-Discharge of beil, --Defendant was arrested under order in nature of a ca. re., and was released from custody upon giving bail by deposit of a sum of money with aberifi.--Heid, that he had not thereby waired his right to be relieved under Con. Rule 1047; and, it appearing, upon material filed upon motion under that Rule, that the order for arrest should not have been made, an order was made for return to him of sum deposited. Adams v. Sutherland, Josh v. Sutherland (1906), 10 O. L. R. 645, 6 O. W. R. 434.

Capias—Claim for liquidated damages— Order of Judge—Security—Affidavit — Sufficiency — Filing of documents — Petition to quash verit.]—Where in a capica the claim of the plaintiff is for liquidated damages, it is not necessary to obtain an order of a Judge for the issue of the writ, nor for the fixing of the security; and the want of such orders cannot be set up as a ground for quashing the writ.—2. The failure to file with the affidavit the cheques and notes upon which the action is based cannot be the subject of a contestation as to the sufficiency of the affidavit. Seprey v. Serling, 10 Que, P. R. 52.

Capins — Claim in action — Afidavit-Omissiona.] — Plaintif may bring suit for amount for which a capica has issued, and at same time claim damages, inasmuch as the two demands are not incompatible nor contradictory.—Omission of domivil of deponent and absence of date when and place where the alfidavit was made, are fatal to the capica. Burns V. Lee (1906), 8 Que. P. R. 27.

Capias—Co. Ct.—Irregularity—Summons to set aside—Title of King—Jurisdiction.]— It is not necessary that a summons to set aside a writ in a Co. Ct. for irregularity should state the irregularity, nor is it necessary that grounds should be served with summons.—A writ of capies in a Co. Ct. will not be set aside because the words "and of the British dominions beyond the seas" are omitted from the title of the King.—A Co. Ct. copias will not be set aside because it does not aver in statement of cause of action that it arose within the jurisdiction of the Court. Rogers v. Dunbar (1906), 37 N. B. R. 33.

Capias - Debt - Partnership - Plaintiff claiming fixed sum — Defendant leaving province.] — In an action accompanied by capias ad respondendum, the plaintiff made affidavit, and also alleged in his declaration that the defendant was personally indebted to him in the sum of $100, the plaintiff being entitled to one-fifth of the profits of a partnership, of which he and the defendant were members, which partnership had realized $500 profits, and that the defendant was about to leave the provinces of Quebec and Ontario with the entire sum. On inscription in law: -Held, that by the alleged illegal appropriation of the entire profits and the intended departure therewith, the defendant's possession of the sum of $500 had changed its nature, and that, without the previous institution of an action pro socio a personal indebtedness existed on the part of the defendant to a copartner entitled to a share of the sum illegally appropriated, which was sufficient to justify the issue of a capias under art. 895 C. C. P Ferries v. Vathakos, 25 Que. S. C. 530, 6 Que, P. R. 388.

Captas — Demand of abandonment — Retired trader—Refusal to assign.]—It is not necessary that a person be actually engaged in trade when a demand of abandonment is made upon, him. Even where he has ceased for several years to carry on trade, he is nevertheless subject to a demand of abandonment based on a commercial debt contracted by himself or his firm while he was engaged in trade; and consequently, in such case, under art. S95, C. C. P., he is liable to arrest under capias for refusal to make an abandonment. Carter v. McCarthy, 6 Que, Q. B. 499, followed, and Roy v. Ellis, 7 Que, Q. B. 422, distinguished. Perkins v. Perkins, 22 Que, S. C. 72.

Capias — Demurrer—Exception.]—A demurrer to a capias will not be struck out on exception to the form, the defendant being at liberty to demur instead of proceeding by petition to quash. Todd v, Murray, 3 Que. P. R. 521.

Capias.] — Deposit of costs—Application for repayment, MacAulay v. Jacobson (1906), 2 E. L. R. 15.

Capins — Description of defendant — Change of residence—Stampe.1—In a writ of capias after judgment, it is sufficient to give the same description of the defendant as that contained in the original writ of summons, although the defendant may have meanmons, although the defendant may have meanwhile changed his place of residence; and such a writ is sufficiently stamped, if it bears the stamps required on an alias writ. Edgerton v. Lapierre, 27 Que. S. C. 20, 6 Que. P. R. 434.

Capins—Exception to the form—Claim for salary and commission—Liquidated debt —C. P. 174, 899.]—When a capics is issued for a claim for salary based upon a written contract and for a fixed commission agreed to by the parties, the claim is one for liquidated damages—An exception to the form alleging Capias—Execution in another province.] —When the Superior Court has jurisdiction with respect to the subject matter of the principal action, it can issue a writ of capias for execution in the province of Ontario, because the code of procedure has only reenacted the provisions of the laws of the old province of Canada, of which Ontario formed part. Gravel v. Lizotte, 7 Que. P. R. 201.

Capins—Execution out of prov.]—Capias issued by Superior Ct. of Que. cannot be executed in Ont., and will be annulled on exception to form. Gravel v. Licotte (1906), 7 Que. P. R. 354, 28 Que. S. C. 338.

Capias.]—Fraud upon creditors—Affidavit of debt—Secretion of property—Failure to prove attempt to secrete—Motion to quash capias—Costs. Eliasoph v. David (Que.), 6 E. L. R. 252.

Capias — Gaol — Mileage.]—A sheriff is required to safely keep a person arrested on a capias, and, as there is no common gaol in Vancouver, the sheriff of Vancouver is entitled to lodge a person arrested in his bailiwick in New Westminster gaol and charge mileage therefor. Carson v. Carson, 10 B. C. R. 83.

Capias.]-Intent to quit Ont.-Intent to defraud creditors-Evidence-Discharge from custody-Fleming v. McCutcheon (1906), 8 O. W. R. 368.

Capias.]—Intent to quit Territory—Intent to defraud creditors—Discharge — Bail—Deposit of money—Bond—Practice, Grant v. Rimer (Y.T.) (1906), 3 W. L. R. 506.

Copyins — Judgment debtor — Arrest —Disclosure — Order for discharge.] — The order provided for by 60 V. c. 28, s. 15, is a substitute for the remedy by writ of mandamus, and it will therefore be granted only in cases where mandamus will lie. In discharging or refusing to discharge a debtor who has made a disclosure under 50 V. c. 28, c. 7, the Judge or other officer is acting judicially and not ministerially; therefore the Court refused to make an order under s. 15 commanding the Judge of a County Court to discharge a debtor who has made a disclosure before him. Ex p. Keerson, 35 N. B. Reps. 233.

Capins — Motion for discharge—Time— Art. 922 C. P.:—There is no limitation as to the time within which a defendant may apply to be discharged from an arrest on capitas; the provisions of Art. 922, C. P., as to the application of the Rules governing summary matters, only refers to delays for joining issue on and the trial of a petition. Bellingham v. Kampf, 9 Que, P. R. 328.

Capias — Order sustaining — Failure to serve copy — Habeas corpus — Discharge.]--One who is imprisoned by virtue of an order of a Judge following upon a capias sustained, may obtain his release by a writ of habeas corpus if no copy of the order is served upon him, according to law. Barthos v. Vallée, 10 Que P. R. 296.

Capins—Petition to guah—Deposit—Incidental capias—Declaration — Time.] — A petition to quash a capias, based not upon the grounds mentioned in Art. 919 C. P., but upon formal grounds, is subject to the deposit required with preliminary exceptions. 2. The declaration of an incidental capies must be deposited at the office of the Court within three days after service of the writ. Radford v. Hickey, 5 Que. P. R. 311.

Captas—Satisfaction of debt and coste— Plaintiff proceeding after — Exception to the form.]—When a person arrested on a capias delivers a certain sum in money and goods to the bailiff in satisfaction of the debt and costs, the plaintiff's proceeding on his writ of capias without returning to the defendant the goods delivered to the bailiff, unlawful though it be, is not such an irregularity as can be taken advantage of by an exception to the form. Wilkins v. Marchildon, 7 Que. P. R. 31.

Copins — Security—Legal security in the matter of a capuis—Security provided for in Art. 910 C. P.—Recourse against the security —Couldition precedent to a sentence maintaining the capics.]—The provisional security provided for in Art. 910 C. P. does give the plaintiff recourse to the security only after a sentence of the Court maintaining the ,capica, even though the writ has been issued in a cause after judgment obtained, and to procure the recovery of the debt. Campeau v. Brown (1909), 36 Que. S. C. 284.

Capias—Security money—Payment over— Motion.]—A plaintiff, who has succeeded upon a capies, cannot demand by motion that the deposit made with the sheriff by way of security shall be paid over to him. Rosenberg v. Belankov, 5 Que. P. R. 378.

Capins — Setting aside — Irregularity—Action for malicious prosecution.]—Action for malicious prosecution. The plaintiff was arrested at Yarmouth under a capias issued under the provisions of the Towns Incorporation Act. The capias was set aside by a stipendiary magistrate, and the plaintiff discharged, because the amount of his travelling fees was not indorsed on the writ, as is required when the person summoned or arrested lives out of the county. The plaintiff then brought this action. The plaintiff urged (1) nullity of the capias; (2) that the affidavit was not made bona fide and that it was false in two particulars, viz, because no debt was due, and because there was no ground for the affidavit, the ordinary method of procedure, by summons, being all that was requisite:—Held, that the capias was not void, and that the affidavit was made bona fide. Iricin v. Lauson, 21 C. L. T. 354.

Capias — Simple arrest — Contestation— Trial—Procedure—Merits.]—Where in an action writs of capias and simple arrest have been issued after return of original process, and at eagle the contests action upon merits, and at same time contests writs of arrest, plaintiff must proceed first to trial upon merits, and, after judgment in his favour, set the case down for hearing upon the contestations of capias and arrest. Cazal v. Matha (1906), 28 Que. S. C. 131. Capias — Surety — Action against surety while capias still pending—U, P. 910, 913.] —If, in a capias, the surety binds and obliges himself to pay "le montant du judgment a intercenir juagu'a concurrence de 350, les interces et les frais," he cannot be sued while the capias is still pending, notwithstanding the fact that the plaintiff has already a judgment for the amount for which the capias issued. Guay V. Samson (1910), 11 Que, P. 246.

Capias — Validity — Motion after payment.] —A defendant who, being arrested under a writ of capias, pays the debt and costs in full to avoid detention, cannot, by motion, demand the return of the writ and proceedings thereon, to discuss the validity of the capias or of the plaintiff's claim; his only recourse is by action to recover back the money paid or in damages. Ledue v. Martel, 2 Que. P. R. 556, Capins—Writ of summons — Failure to serve — Expiry—Nulliy—Wairer—Costs.] --A writ of capias is essentially a writ of summons as well as one authorizing an arrest, and the arricles governing the writ of summons, save any special exception made by law, apply to it. Where a writ issued after judgment has not been served within the six months after its issue and no Judge's order extending its life has been made within the six months, the writ becomes non-existent. The absolute nullity of the writ is not a mere irregularity which, under Art. 176, C. P., would be waived by failure to invoke it within the delays prescribed for nulling preliminary exceptions, but where such nullity is not so invoked, costs will not be granted. Demers v, Girard, 7 Que, P. R. 214.

Capias ad satisfaciendum.) — Custody of bail-Discharge-Disclosure of judgment debtor's affairs on examination-Payments to preferred creditors-Indigent debtor, Mc-Dougall V. McKinnon, 9 O. W. R. 689.

Capias after judgment—Delay in excention.1—A writ of capias after judgment is a mode of executing a judgment, and is not affected by Art, 120 C. C. P., but remains valid beyond the delay of 6 months therein mentioned, until executed.—(2) Even if it be a writ of summons, the peremption in the above article is not absolute, and is waived by failure of the defendant to plead it in the manner and within the delay prescribed in the case of irregularities in such writs. Demers v. Girard, 28 Que, S. C. 542, 7 Que, P. R. 347.

Ca. re. — Affdarit — Debt — Identity of plaintiff.]—The affdarits leading to an order for ca re. must shew that there is a debt due from the defendant to the plaintiff. It is not sufficient to shew that there is a debt due from the defendant to one who bears the same name as the plaintiff. A statement in an affidavit that deponent has caused a writ of summons to be issued against defendant, without stating in what action the writ was issued, is not sufficient to shew that plaintiff and deponent are one and the same person. Werkritz v, Russell (No. 2), 9 B. C. R. 79.

for did not intend to leave the province. The Judge directed that the order for arrest be set aside with costs. The plaintiff asked that the costs be set off against the judgment which the plaintiff expected to recover against the defendant. Order for costs to the defendant, but execution therefor stayed for 30 days. Resnick v. Petiis, 24 C. L. T. 238.

Ca. re.-Execution in another province.] -A debtor about to leave the province of Ontario may be arrested there upon a capica, by a bailing of one of the Courts of the province of Quebec. Schmidt v. Carbonneau, 6 Que. P. R. 211.

Ca. re.—Form of verit—Summons to set aside—Appearance—Costs—Terms.] — Heid, on a summons to set aside a writ of ca. re., that it vas bad because it did not state the nature of the cause of action. 2. It is not necessary tor a person arrested under a writ of ca. re., to enter an appearance before applying for his discharge. 3. The defendant having asked for costs, the order for his discharge should provide that no action be brought against the plaintiff or the sheriff by reason of the capias or the arrest. Wehrfritz V. Russell, 22 C. L. 7, 217, 9 B. C. R. 50.

Ca. re.-Irregularity or nullity-Wairer by giving bail.)-After the issue of the writ in an action, a summons was issued initiuled "in the matter of an intended action:"-Held, that it was wrongly initiuled. A Judge has power to direct a summons to be issued and made returnable in a registry other than that where the writ was issued. By the giving of special bail, a defendant arrested on a capias waives his right to object to the writ. Tanaka v. Russell, 22 C. L. T. 128, 9 B. C. R. 24.

Ga. re.—Partnership action.] — There is no ground for the issue of a capital in a partnership action in which a fixed sum is claimed from the defendant, being the plaintiff's share in the profits of the partnership, the whole of which the defendant has appropriated, *Fer*ries v. Vathakos, 6 Que. P. R. 388, 25 Que. S. C. 530.

Ca. re. — Service out of province — Validity.] — The service, in the province of Quebee, according to the permission of a deputy prothonotary, allowing the service to be made in Ontario on any day and at any hour, is valid. Bernard v. Carbonneau, 6 Que, P. R. 194.

Ca. sa. -- Concurrent writ -- Expiry of original-Invalid arrest -- Application for new writ--Concealment of material facta.]--A concurrent writ of ca. sa. should not be issued after the original writ with which it is concurrent has expired by lapse of time under Cou. Rule 874, and a concurrent writ so issued will be set aside as having been improperly issued. The right to make a motion to be discharged from custody upon the merits and upon the ground of concealment by the plaintiff of material facts upon the application founded upon Con. Rule 1047, is confined to the case of an order for arrest made before judgment, and does not extend to a ca. sa. The defendant had been arrested under an invalid concurrent writ of ca. sa., and was in the custody of a sheriff, to the knowledge of the plaintiff's solicitor, who prepared an affidavit entirely suppressing the fact of the arrest, upon which he obtained an order for and issued a new writ of ca, as. Upon an appeal to a Divisional Court from an order of a Judge in Chambers refusing to set aside the latter order and writ, and a motion to be discharged:—Held, that the application should not be treated as an appeal upon new material from the discretion of the Judge who made the order, as such an application, having for its object the setting aside of the order and writ, must upon the authorities have failed: Damer v. Busby, 5 P. R. at p. 389. It was really an application to the undoubted jurisdiction of the Court to set aside, in its discretion, orders which had been made by the wilful concealment or perversion of material facts; and a clear case had been made out and the order and writ should be set aside and the prisoner discharged from custody. Merchants Bark v, Sussez (1962). 22 C. L. T. 387, 4 O. L. R. 524, 1 O. W. R. 572, 584.

Cause of action—Damages for personal injuries]—The works "personal injuries" in Art, 833 (4), C. P., have the same meaning as "personal works" in s. 15 of 12 Y. c. 42 (C.), and in R. S. L. C. 1861, c. 87, s. 24. Anything done in violation of the rights of any one in respect of his person is a personal wrong. So, there is ground for arresting for debt the person who causes a bicycle accident for the damages which he has been adjudged to pay to the person injured, Chouinard v. Raymond, 3 Que, P. R. 184, 18 Que, S. C. 319.

Cause of action — Promissory note — Judgment — Belief — Concealment.]—The plaintiff who alleges, in an afidavit for a capies, that the defendant is personally Indebted to him in a sum greater than $50, for the amount of a promissory note, of which he gives the date and the place of making, and of a judgment rendered upon such note requiring the defendant to pay him the amount of it, is not obliged to say where the Judgment was rendered, the note being the cause of action. 2. The deponent is not obliged to state where the defendant has hidden and withdrawn his effects, if he alleges that the concealment and withdrawal were made with the intention of defrauding this effects, if he swears positively that the concealment and withdrawal have taken place. 4. Nor to sive has the manner the withdrawal and concealment have taken place. 4. 08.

Coercive imprisonment — Judicial surety — Age privilege — Personal notice — Property—Time—Appeal.] — A person who becomes security for costs on an appeal bond is a judicial surety and consequently has no age privilege exempting him from coercive imprisonment: Art. S33, C. C. P. 2. The appentance of the surety, to oppose the issue of a rule misi for coercive imprisonment, is equivalent to "personal notice" under Art. S37, C. C. P. 3. Discussion of the personal and immovable property of the surety, who has made default to pay his bond, is not necessary before the institution of proceedings against him for coercive imprisonment. 4. The creditor is not obliged to wait during the six months allowed for an appeal from a judgment against the surety, before taking proceedings against him for coercive imprisonment. Burland v, Lamoureus, 25 Que. S. C. 95, 6 Que. P. R. 106.

Coercive imprisonment-Jurisdiction— Amount of judgment — Adding coats to.]— The costs cannot be added to the damages adjudged to make the amount up to $50 in order to justify an application for arrest in an action for personal wrongs, Campbell v. Jaslow, 7 Que. P. R. 78.

Coercive imprisonment — Order for-Notice of proceeding on — Petition to set aside order.]—A petition against a judgment will not be entertained, where it is alleged that such judgment was not in fact rendered, if the petitioner has not inscribed en faux against such judgment. 2. No notice to the party is required before putting into execution an order for coercive imprisonment upon a writ or order of the Court in terms of Art. 838, C. P. Clément v. Bilodeau, 6 Que, P. R. 60.

Coercive imprisonment — Pleading — Conclusion of declaration, j—If a plaintiff's claim in its nature is such that it may afford ground for coercive imprisonment in execution of the judgment, conclusions to that effect may be made in the declaration, provided the judgment sought is for a sufficient amount. Meloche v. Lalonde, 6 Que, P. R. 268.

Coercive imprisonment-Proceedings-Irregularity. — Proceedings leading to coercive imprisonment ought to be marked with certainty and full regularity and no rule will be maintained if the proceedings are irregular. Mutual Life Assurance Co. of Canada v. Lionais, 6 Que. P. R. 359.

Coercive imprisonment — When writ may issue.]—A writ of contrainte par corps can only be enforced according to law (Ordinance 1607, Title 34, Art, 11) fifteen days after "signification" of the judgment which orders it; and, at all events, fifteen days after the date of the judgment, Demers v. Payette, 26 Que. S. C. 534.

Committal order—Conditional—Service —Arreat—Terms of discharge—County Court practice—Registrar's minute.]—An order to commit a judgment debtor under s. 193 of the County Courts Act must be absolute, not conditional. Where an order to commit a party is made in his absence, he must be served with a copy of the order before arrest. Orders to commit should be drawn up and should contain the terms on which discharge out of custody may be obtained, as required by Order XIX., r. 13. Where a registrar is present and takes a minute of an order, the minute so taken is conclusive, even though the Judge's recollection of the order is different. Wallace v. Ward, 9 B. C. R. 450.

Commitment in civil matter—Habeas corpus — Jurisdiction — Irregularities — Valuation of gooda—Bailiff—Contrainte par corpa—Costa.]—A person who is restrained of his liberty under a warrant of commitment granted in a civil matter by a Court or Judge having jurisdiction, is not entitled to liberation under a writ of habcas corpus (Art. 1114, C. C. P.), and more particularly where no excess of jurisdiction is shewn. 2. Even if it were assumed that, notwithstanding the terms of Art. 1114, the Court has power to inquire into the regularity of the proceedings, the absence in the rule and commitment of a valuation of the goods, upon payment of which the guardian in default to produce goods would be entitled to be released, cannot be invoked by him as a ground for asking his liberation,—such valuation, under Art, 658, C. C. P., being a right to be exercised by the guardian in default, and not a duty imposed upon the seizing creditor. 3. A baliff of the Superior Court has concurrent jurisdiction with the sheriff, for the execution of a writ for coercive imprisonment. 4. The fact that the writ of contrainte par corps, under which the petitioner for habcas corpus is detained, calls on him to pay, in addition to the debt and taxed costs, the costs of the writ of contrainte and of the arrest and commitment of the petitioner, is not an irregularity. Ex p. Kenotasse, 13 Que, K. B. 185, 6 Que. P. R. 80.

Contrainte par corps — Assignment for benefit of creditors—Necurity to avoid imprisonment — Contestation of schedule— Costs.]—A party against whom a rule nisi has been declared absolute, and who has made an abandonment of his property, is entitled to give security to avoid imprisonment until the contestation which may be made of his bilan has been determined, or, if a contestation is not filed, until the delays for such contestation have expired—2. The costs of the motion for leave to give security shall be paid by the applicant. Rennie v. Mace, 9 Oue, P. R. 165.

Contrainte par corps—Costs—Screice of bill.] — Coercive imprisonment for the amount of a taxed bill of costs will not be ordered, if such bill has not been served upon the party three months at least before the motion for imprisonment is made. Cordasco V. Vendetti, 33 Que, 8, C. 500.

Contrainte par corps — Damages for personal injuries — Screice of judgment — Practice.] — The service upon the defendant of a copy of a judgment ordering him to pay damages for personal injuries is not sufficient to obtain against him contrainte par corps; on default of payment the formalities imposed by Art, 837, C. P., must, besides, be followed, Gregoire v. Migneau, 8 Que. P. R. 335.

Contrainte par corps—Executor—Account.]—Civil imprisonment of a testamentary executor will not be ordered in an action in contestation of his account and to recover the alleged share of the plaintiff in the reliquet of such account. Morris v. Mechan, 6 Que. P. R. 43.

Contrainte par corps—Issue of committal — Time — Service of judgment.] The order of committal necessary for the execution of a judgment making absolute a rule nisi based upon Art. 833, clause 3, C. P., cannot issue before the expiration of 15 days from the service upon the debtor of the judgment. 2. The order of committal cannot issue before the judgment has been served on the debtor and the return of service filed in the office of the Court. Shavel v. Emond. 10 Que. P. R. 129.

Contrainte par corps — Judgment — Action for slander.]—The fact that a defendant, ordered to pay damages for slander, alleges that he is poor and old, and that the Court ought to suspend the judgment, does not suffice to hinder the obtaining of a rule sisi for his imprisonment for default of payment, Bussière v. Cadotte, S Que P. R. 369.

Contraints par corps — Judgment — Moneys collected — Judgial authority.]—To be subject to arrest by virtue of Art. S33, G. P., a person must have had the care of moneys or other effects by virtue of judicial authority, and not otherwise. 2. A secretarytreasurce negaged by the syndles of a parish to raise the amount of a note for the construction of a church is not subject to arrest upon a judgment condemning him to restore moneys received by him in such capacity. Syndics of the Parish of St. Antoine de Longueuil v. Gingrag, 3 Que, P. R. 557.

Contrainte par corps — Judgment debtor — Concedment of property.)—Held, affirming the judgment in 16 Que. S. C. 303, that in the law of the province of Quebec, even since the new Code of Procedure, the capias ad respondendum still exists, and may be issued not only before but after judgment, as a means by which a creditor may arrest his debtor who, in order to defraud and cause the creditor to lose his remedy, conceals and abstracts his (the debtor's) property. 2. Article S07, C. P. C., does not contradict Art, S32. The latter of'y applies to contrainte par corps, while the former refers to a capias, two absolutely different things, Elliott v. Quebec Bank, 9 Que. K. B, 532.

Contrainte par corps — Judgment for debt and costs — Application by judgment creditor—Costs due to solicitors—Application by solicitors—Connent—Art. 555. (C. P.]— A demand for contrainte par corps in execution of a judgment for debt and costs, the latter being by distraction due to the judgment creditor's attorneys, may be made in the name of the judgment creditor, where he is represented by the same attorneys. The part taken by the latter in the proceedings is equivalent to the consent required by Art. 555, C. P. Rennie v. Mace, 33 Que. S. C. 136, 9 Que, P. R. 160.

Contrainte par corps — Motion for-Contestation.]—A motion for contrainte par corps must be contested au fonds, and not by way of motion. Cordasco v. Venditti, 9 Que. P. R. 38.

Contrainte par corps — Release-Assignment of property-Security-Time.]--A debtor in respect of damages adjudged against him for slander, and upon the point of being imprisoned under a writ of contrainte par corps, may obtain a stay of the writ if he makes an assignment of his property, provided that he furnishes security to place himself in the custody of the sheriff whenever he shall be required to do so. But the transfer of the property effected by the contrainte par corps does not permit of his being released before the expiration of the time allowed to creditors to context it. Fréchette v. Prevost, 4 Que, P. R. 404.

Contrainte par corps-Right to-Personal injuries-Accident.] — Injuries caused by a simple accident resulting from the negligence of a person, without any intention on his part to injure, are not personal injuries on account of which coercive imprisonment can be ordered against such person. Chartrand v. Smart, 23 Que, S. C. 304, 5 Que, P. R. 173.

Contrainte par corps-Rule nisi-Particulars.]—A delendant against whom a rule for contrainte par corps is asked has a right to particulars of the sum total claimed by the rule nisi. Barbeau v. Thibault, 9 Que. P. II, 329.

Contrainte par corps—Seizure of goods —Guardian.] — A rule for contrainte par corps cannot be granted against a defendant when effects seized have been taken out of his charge and custody and given over to a guardian for due care and production. Boissonault v, Bouchard, S Que, P, R. 247.

Contraints par corps—Service on defendant's attorney. 1—After judgment against the defendant in an action for libel, the plaintiff made a motion for a rule nisi for contrainte par corps:-Meld, that service of notice of such motion upon the defendant's attorney ad litem, authorized by an order of the Court, was legal and valid. Lumb V. Kellan, 4 Que, P. R. 42.

Contrainte par corps-When claimable -Action for damages-Malice.]--An action for damages against a person who has out of malice closed a tap used for the purpose of supplying his co-tenant with water, is not an action in which the plaintiff can claim contrainte par corps in default of payment of the damages awarded; and a claim for that relief will be struck out upon demurrer. Phaneuf v. Knight, 5 Que. P. R. 70.

Contrainte par corps-Writ-Ezhaustion-Deputy prothonotary.]-A writ or order of the Court or Judge for coercive imprisonment is exhausted by the imprisonment of the debtor, followed by his liberation, and no new arrest or imprisonment can thereafter be executed in virtue of the said writ. 2. A writ or order for coercive imprisonment cannot be issued by a deputy-prothonotary of the Court, and an imprisonment effected in virtue thereof is illegal. Gaudet v. Archambault, 6 Que, P. R. 27.

Costs—Fraudulent scheme.]—The fact of claiming the costs due to the attorney does not render a capias void if the demand includes, besides, a personal debt of more than $50 due to the plaintiff. 2. The attempt of the defendant to conceal his earnings from his creditors by having his partner as a permanent creditor, is not a ground for a capias. Le Comptoir d'Escompte v. Decelles, 3 Que. P. R. 130.

Debtor in close custody—Allowance to —Judgment for—Necessity for service.]—It is not necessary to serve a judgment (under Art. 843, C. P.) requiring the plaintiff to pay an allowance for maintenance to the defendant whom he detains in gaol, by virtue of a capies; and, if the plaintiff does not pay such allowance in the time fixed by the judgment which he says he does not know of, the defendant will be discharged upon petilion, under Art. S46. Parties are conaidered to be present in Court when judgment is rendered upon a demand, however served, and they are held, as a general rule, to have knowledge of it without service. Teasier V. Teasier, 3 Que. P. R. 93.

Discharge — Assignment — Time-Contestation of schedule — Assets — Tavern license.]—A debtor arrested on capias cannot be released, upon making an assignment of his effects, until after the expiration of the four months allowed for contesting his schedule. 2. In this case the period of four months began to run on the day on which notice of the assignment was given to the creditors of the insolvent. 3. A tavern license is part of the assets of the debtor, who should assign it as well as other goods. Pegnuelo v. Bastien, 2 Que. P. R. 455.

Discharge — Terms — Action—Costs— Discretion.1—Where an order to arrest is made upon materials which justify it, although the defendant may be discharged from custody under it upon fresh affadivits, the Judge may, in his discretion, impose terms of bringing no action, and may withhold costs. Sullivan v. Allen (1901), 21 C. L. T. 161, 1 O. L. R. 53.

Disclosure—Breach of promise of marriage—Unliquidated damages — Debt—Assignment—Scenrity—Defendant out on bail —659 V. c. 28 (N.B.)]—Provisions of 59 V. c. 28, s. 7 (N.B.), allowing a debtor to make disclosure of his affairs and authorizing his by Judge's order in action of breach of promise of marriage.—If disclosure reveals a debt due the person making same, a demand for assignment thereof must be made, and an opportunity afforded the applicant for discharge to shew why the same should not be assigned or the nature of the security to be given to him by plaintiff for his protection in event of a failure to recover.—Quare, whether provisions of s. 28 of the Act relating to assignment of debts due defendant as a condition of his discharge have any application in cases where defendant is not in actual custody. R. v. Carleton, Ex p. Akerley, In re Akerley v. Gaines (1906), 37 N. B. R. 13.

Disclosure—Discharge — Transfer with intention to defraud—Question for officer taking examination — Discretion.]—In disclosure proceedings the question whether the debtor has transferred any property intending to defraud the plaintiff, or since his arrest given any preference to any other creditor, are for the officer taking the examination, and the Court will not interfere with his discretion merely because the circumstances of the transfer are suspicious. Res v. Ebbett, Exp. Smith, 38 N. B. R. 559, 5 E. L. R. 8, 337.

Disobedience of decree for payment of money.]-Where the defendant made default in paying to the plaintiff, under the decree of the Court, a sum of money received by the defendant as a donatio mortis causa in favour of the plaintiff, an order was granted for an execution against his body. An order for an execution against the body of a party in default under a decree for payment of money will not be granted where the Court is satisfied that the party in default has no means, and has not made a fraudulent disposition of his property, and his arrest is sought for a vindicitive purpose, or to bring pressure to bear upon his friends to come to his assistance. Thorne v. Perty, 21 C. L. T. 542, 2 N. B. Eq. Reps. 276.

False arrest—English and French jurisprudence compared. Hetu v. Dizville Butter, etc., Assn., 3 E. L. R. 120.

Illegal arrest-Action for-Warrant-Payment under constraint.]-A warrant for taxes alleged to be due to the defendants was issued by the town treasurer and placed in the hands of a constable for collection. The constable went to the plaintiff's place of business to collect the amount, but, it being Saturday night, an arrangement WAR ing Saturday hight, an arrangement was made between the constable and plaintiff that the latter would go up on Monday morning and see about the taxes. The plaintiff went to the treasurer's office and contended that the amount claimed in the warrant had been paid, but, as the treasurer insisted that the amount had not been paid, the plaintiff handed him the amount claimed. It ap-peared that the amount in dispute was due in respect of a property which the plaintiff sold to Y., who agreed to pay the taxes upon it, and paid the same to the treasurer, intimating that it was paid on account of intimating that it was paid on account of the plaintiff's property, but that the tree-surer appropriated the amount in payment of a like amount due by Y., person-ally. The plaintiff brought an action for illegal arrest, and claimed as spe-cial damage, "amount wrongfully extorted from the plaintiff, as set forth in paragraph 4 of the pleading, $8.25." Paragraph 4, referred to, detailed the issue of the war-ment "measure the noise measurement" rant "whereby the plaintiff was unlawfully compelled to pay an illegal demand of the defendants, to wit, the sum of $8.25:"-Held, that, even on the plaintif's own evidence, the action must fail. Walker v. Town of Sydney, 36 N. S. R. 48.

Imprisonment for debt.] — Order of commissioner—Irregularity — Power of Judge in Chambers to set aside. Spidle v. Spidle, 40 N. S. R. 632.

Imprisonment for frand--Insolvent--Right of support in prison.]--A person imprisoned by virtue of Arts. 833 and 834 C. P., has a right to maintenance and support during his imprisonment; an insolvent (In this case) imprisoned for fraud has no such right; in his case the imprisonment is a penalty, not a means of execution. Desbiens v. Descarteau, 8 Que. P. R. 114.

Indeterminate imprisonment — Provincial statute—Intra vires — Execution — Fixed period—Interest of debtor.]—The provision contained in Art. 925, C. P. C., which permits the Court to condemn a debtor who has been released on bail, to an indeterminate imprisonment is conditional. The imprisonment mentioned in Art. 925, C. P. C. is neither a penalty nor a punishment, but simply a means of execution to force the debtor to give up property which he is detaining to the prejudice of his creditors.— The condemnation of the debtor to an imprisonment limited to eight months is not what the law seems to contemplate, but the debtor cannot complain of it, as it is in his ense. Quebec Bank v. Tozer, 17 Que. S. C. 202.

Intent to quit Ontario—Alimony—Desertion of wife—Return to Ontario—Fraudulent intent—Discharge — Terms—Restraint on disposition of property. Southorn v. Southorn, 2 O. W. R. 1189, 3 O. W. R. 51.

Intent to quit Ontario-Creditor.]-It is not sufficient for a creditor analysic for an order for arrest under R. S. O. c. 80, s. 1, tc shew the existence of a debt and that the debtor is about to quit Ontario; he must shew some other fact or circumstance which, coupled with those facts, points to an intent to defraud.-Shaw v. McKenzie, 6 S. C. R. 181, Toothe v. Frederick, 14 P. R. 287, and the opinions of Burton and Maclennan, JJ.A., in Coffey v. Scane, 22 A. R. 293, followed.-The opinions of Hazarty, C.J.O., and Orler, J.A., in Coffey v. Scane, and the case, of Robertson v. Coulton, 9 P. R. 16, dissented from.-McVeain v. Ridler, 17 P. 8, 353, discussed.-Whether or not there is good and probable cause for believing that the intent to defraud exists, is a question of fact.-And where the defendant believed that his wife had no claim against him for alimony:-Held, that he could not be intending to defraud her by leaving Ontario. Intent to quit Ontario-Intent to defraud-Foreigner. Henry v. Ward, 1 O. W. R. 222, 655, 2 O. W. R. 422.

Intent to quit province—Negativing— Order set aside — Appeal — Inference — Effete order—Costs.] — The defendant was ar-rested under an order for arrest granted on the affidavit, of the plaintiffs' solicitor that the annuavit of the plainting solicitor that he had probable causes for believing, and did believe, that the defendant, unless he was arrested, was about to leave the pro-vince. The order for arrest was set aside, and the bond directed to be delivered up to be cancelled by order of a Ludre arb. be cancelled by order of a Judge, who was satisfied, on reading the affidavits produced before him, that the defendant, at the time of his arrest, was not about to leave the province :---Held, that the order was one that the Court on appeal would not inter-fere with. 2. Following Hunt v. Harlow, 1 Old. 709, that a statement of belief that the defendant is about to leave the province being all that is required under the practice to procure an order for arrest, the defendant is entitled to be discharged if he negatives that intention, unless the plaintiff can state facts from which it can be clearly inferred that it was the intention of the defendant to leave, 3. That such an inference was not to be drawn from affidavits merely tending to shew that defendant was keeping out of the way to avoid service of an order for his ex-C.C.L.-8 amination under the Collections Act. 4. That it would be futile to allow the plaintiffs' appeal, as, at the time the order for the defendant's examination under the Collections Act was served, the order for arrest was affete, and the bond cancelled, and no stay of proceedings had been obtained, and the liability of the surveites could not be restored. 5. That while the defendant was entitled to have the plaintiffs' appeal dismissed with costs, the costs must be set off against the plaintiffs' judgment in the action. McLaushlin Carriage Co. v. Fader, 34 N, S. Reps. 534.

Judgment debtor—Application for discharge-Interest in real estate — Growing crops—Tenancy by the curtesy.]—A judgment debtor, having made application to be discharged from custody under an execution issued out of a justice's Court, in the course of his examination disclosed that he and his wife resided upon land of which his wife had the fee, and that there were growing crops upon it created by his habour:—Held, that, as this disclosed an interest in real property that could not be taken under an execution issued out of a justice's Court, the debtor could not be disclorged. The hushand's estate of curtesy exists during the lifetime of the wife. Ex p. Geldert—In re Geldert v. Hoar, 34 N. B. Reps. 612.

Judgment debtor-Unauthorized release not a satisfaction of the judgment. Conrad v. Simpson, 3 E. L. R. 115.

Judgment debtor—Order for committal —Appeal from—Questions of fact—Afidavit —oral evidence.]—The Court will not set aside an order committing a judgment debtor to prison on the ground of his having made a fraudulent disposition of his property whereby the judgment creditor is materially prejudiced in obtaining satisfaction of his judgment, unless it appears that the Judge making the order has taken some manifestly mistaken view of the law or the facts. As such Judge has had the opportunity of hearing the witnesses give their testimony view pore, and of observing their demeanour, his decision on questions of fact must be taken to have the same weight as the verdict of a jury. On an application for a rule nisis to rescind a Judge's order imprisoning a judgment debtor, the applicant cannot shew by affidavit what took place before the Judge to whom the application of the evidence must be produced. special constables of the municipality, does not make the municipal corporation responsible for the consequences of the arrest; the constables in making the arrest acting only in the execution of the functions for which they are employed. Milton v. Municipality of Coté St. Paul, Q. R. 24 S. C. 541.

Malicious arrest—Municipal officers.]— An action for damages for unlawfully entering a man's house and muliciously arresting him, brought against a municipality and its constables, must be preceded by notice of action to the latter. Millon v. Municipality of Coté St. Paul, 6 Q. P. R. 407.

Non-payment of costs-Disclosure -Notice-Signature-Intituling - Service - Debtor's coultable interest in personal property—Order for discharge.]—A person in custody under a writ of attachment issued out of the Supreme Court for contempt in out of the Supreme Court for contempt in not obeying an order to pay costs, is entitled to relief under c. 130 of C. S. N. B. 1903, respecting arrest, imprisonment, and exam-ination of debtors.—A notice of disclosure purporting to be signed by the applicant is sufficient without proof of the signature.— An order for disclarge will not be quashed on the ground that the notice of the appli-cation to disclass and initial in the cation to disclose was not intituled in the cause, or that the proceedings and order were intituled in the wrong cause, if it sufficiently appear in the body of the notice, proceedings, and order, in what proceeding the application and order were made.—Ser-vice of the notice of disclosure on the wife at the husband's place of abode, he then being within the province, is good, and no order perfecting the service is required.—The offi-cer taking the examination has authority to order an equitable interest in personal pro-perty to be held for the benefit of the cre-ditor, and the disclosure of such an interest is no bar to a discharge.—If a debtor makes such a disclosure of his affairs as fulfils the requirements of the Act, a creditor who allows the proceedings to go by default can not object that the disclosure was not a full one. Rex v. Straton, Ex p. Patterson, 37 N. B. R. 376; Larsen v. Patterson, 1 E. L. R. 376.

Not executing deed as ordered by the Court—Defendants evaluation tender of deed — Deed ordered to be deposited with their attorney for execution.]—Defendants evaded service of an order of the Court for the execution of a deed, and also evalded tender of the deed therein mentioned, and the Court ordered the deed to be deposited with their attorney for execution. They did not execute it, and a rule misi for an attachment was granied:—Held, that the rule must be made absolute, but that no attachment issue for 32 days and then only against such defendants as should not, by that time, have executed the deed. Sullivan v. Carr & Ramsays (1864), 1 P. E. I. R. 242.

Order for discharge - Jurisdiction -Facts appearing in order-Disclosure-Certiorari. |---An order of discharge made by a clerk of the peace under 59 V. c. 28, s. (N.B.), which states that the party dis-charged had been in custody in the county of Victoria by virtue of an order of render made by the police magistrate of the district of Andover and Perth Civil Court; that due notice of disclosure had been given; and that the hearing took place at the time and place mentioned in the notice; and is signed by the clerk of the peace for the county of Victoria, is a sufficient statement on the face of the order of the territorial jurisdiction of the officer making the same, and will not be quashed on certiorari. If there is evidence from which the officer making the order for discharge might be satisfied that a full disdischarge might be satisfied that a full dis-closure had been made, the Court will not set aside the order, even though not satisfied that the disclosure is a full one, or of the bona fides of it. R. v. Straton, Ex p. Porter, 36 N. B. R. 388.

Order for imprisonment of debtor-Right of appeal-Certiorari — Debtor direating himself of property-Payment of another debta-Statement of grounds for order-Eeidence given in former proceeding.]—The fact that, by 61 V. c. 28, s. S (N.B.), amending 50 V. c. 28, an appeal to the Supreme Court is given from an order of imprisonment under s. 46, 48, 49, 51, and 53 of the latter Act, does not deprive a party affected by such order of his right to a certiorari, and the Court will grant the writ, if, in their opinion and discretion, the circumstances warrant it. An order for imprisonment made by a County Court Judge on the ground that the debtor, since being arrested and held to bail, has divested himself of the means of paying the debt for which he is sued, is bad if it does not shew on its face the grounds upon which it was issued; its mere payment of a bona fide debt, after he is sued, is not such a divesting of property as will render the debtor liable to imprisonment under the Act; and an order based upon the evidence given in a former proceeding az.inst the debtor, and not re-proved upon the hearing of the application for the order in question, is bad. R. v. Forbes, Ex. p. Dean, 36 N. B.

Order for — Notice to defendant.]—Under Art. 837, C. P. C., an arrest cannot be allowed except upon a special order granted by the Court after notice personally served on the party liable to arrest. Ridgeway v. Duckworth, 18 Que. S. C. 126.

Order of Court of equity—Decree for payment of costs—Satisfaction—Esecution —County Court Judge—Jurisdiction—Discharge.]—An arrest under an execution issued under an order of the Equity Court against the body for enforcement of its decree directing payment of taxed costs on dismissing the plaintiffs' bill, operates as a satisfaction, and an execution issued against the goods of the plaintiffs for the same demand will be set aside: per Hannington, Landry, Barker and Gregory, J., taking no part.—A County Court Judge has no jurisdiction under the Act respecting Arrest, Imprisonment, and Examination of Debtors, C. S. N. B. 1903 c, 130, to discharge persons in custody under such executions. Petropolous v. Williams Co., 3 E. L. R. 370, 38 N. B. R. 146.

Personal injuries—Judgment—Damages —Res judicata—Assignment for creditors.]— The law understands by injury what is said, written, done, or omitted with the design of offending some one in his bonour, and by the word personal it includes trespass even without the design of dishonouring. 2. Arrest cannot be ordered for damages caused to some one in his property ouly. 3. A judgment awarding damages to a person as well for rehabilitation of the molestation to which the defendant has exposed him, as for compensation for the loss of time and disbursements which he had incurred, without making a distinction between these two hends of damsges, attributes no part of the sum awarded to personal injuries; and if it dis o, it would not afford the answer of res judicata to an application for the arrest of the defendant for non-payment of the sum fixed by such judgment 4. A debtor who makes an abandonment of his assets, recular and not contested, is exempt from arrest for a cause arising before the filing of the schedule. Biddard v. Grosboillot, 3 Que, P. R. 372, 18 Que, S. C. 303.

Petition to quash capita.]—The following allegation in plaintiff's arididavit for a writ of capita, based on the ground that defendant is about to leave the country : " If have been so informed by the United States immigration office, where the defendant went to obtain information, before leaving for the United States, the evening of his departure," is too indefinite and cannot justify the issue of a writ of capias. Lazanis v. Maronis, 11 Que. P. R. 23.

Police officer—False arrest.]—A police officer, sued for false arrest, is entitled to the notice of action prescribed by Art. 88, C, P., where he made the arrest under instructions. Lefebre v, Village of Verdun, 6 Que. P. R. 437.

Privilege · - Witness - Order for committal - Habeas corpus - Order under Collection Act - Excessive fees - Remedy.] The applicant was arrested at the y of Halifax, at which place he ided, by the sheriff of the county city resided. resided, by the sherin of the county of Halifax, under an order for his arrest, on the 1th February, 1904, while he was going to his place of business and returning to his home, about three-quarters of an hour after he had left the police court at Halifax, where he had attended to prosecute and give evi-dence as a necessary and material witness for the Crown in a prosecution instituted by himself the previous day for an aggravated assault committed on him on the 6th February, 1904. On a motion to discharge the prisoner from custody, the sheriff to an order in the nature of a habeas corpus, under R. S. N. S. c. 181, "Of securing the Liberty of the Sub-ject," returned the above order for arrest as the cause of the prisoner's detention :--Held, dismissing the application, that, in all the circumstances, and as the Judge's order was of a pullive and quasi-criminal character, the prisoner as a witness was not privileged from arrest under it. 2. That the order was one that could not be impeached under habeas corpus proceedings. 3. That in view of s. 37 of the Collection Act, which makes the judgment of the Judge upon the appeal under the Act final, the prisoner's remedy, if any, was either to tender the amount properly due or to sue for the penalty for taking excessive fees provided by s. 2 of R. S. N. S. c. 185, but that in any event, under s. 40 of the Collection Act, even if the present application lay, as the evidence taken upon the examination showed that there was ground for making this order, the application should be refused. In the Brine, 24 C. L. T. 145.

Privilege-Execution-Inferior Court -Action on limit bond—Assignment by sheriff on same day—Holiday—Sitting of Court.]— The arrest of a person, having privilege by reason of his being an officer of a Superior Court, under an execution issuing out of the City Court of S., is not void, nor does such privilege afford any defence to an action on a limit bond entered into by such officer in order to obtain his discharge. If two things are done upon the same day, it will be assumed that that which ought to have been first done was so done; therefore in an action upon a limit bond by the assignee of the sherif, it was held in the absence of proof to the contrary that, though the assignment and the writ commencing the action were dated upon the same day, the bond was assigned before the writ was issued. The assignment by the sheriff being a mere formality, only going to shew that the assignee was satisfied with the eral and the Lieutenant-Governor as a holiday for a general public thanksgiving was a legal holiday within the meaning of the Act, and that the Court was not bound to sit upon such a day. Dibblee v. Fry, 35 N. B. R. 382

Re-arrest of defendant still in jail on a previous capias.]--Service of a writ of capias and re-arrest of defendant made while defendant is in jail on a previous capias by same plaintiff, which previous capias had been quashed on irregularities, are null and void and will be rejected on exception to the form. Lazanis v. Maronis, 11 Que, P. R. 29.

of money. One of them bore a non-existent address, the other a real address. The latter was delivered, but the former, under the rules of the department, should have been entered in the book kept at the post office for that purpose, and the letter should have been returned by the carrier to post office. There being no entry of this letter in the post office book, after the usual time for making such entry had elapsed, appellant was detained and searched by respondent, a detective, acting under instructions of post office department. The letter not being found on appel-lant, he was released. On the following day the letter was returned to post office.—Held (affirming the judgment in 20 Que. S. C. 549, with a modification of the considerants) that appellant having violated the rules of post office department, by failing to enter the letter bearing a non-existent address in the book provided for that purpose, there was reason-able and probable cause for detaining and searching him, and that his action for damages against respondent, in absence of evi-dence that respondent had made an improper and illegal use of his authority in the manner in which he effected such detention and search, and subsequent release, could not be maintained. 2. A letter is a post letter although directed to a fictitious or non-existent address. Mayer y. Vaughan, 11 Que. K. B. 340: 5 Can. Cr. Cas. 392.

Simple arrest—Motion to quash writ— Impeaching debt.]—By the new code of procedure, on a petition to quash a simple writ of arrest, the existence of the debt may be impeached; one of the essential allegations of the affidavit made on obtaining the writ being the existence of a debt. Quebec Bank v., Halle, 13 Que. K. B. 44.

Second arrest on same warrant.]— The prisoner, who had been arrested under a warrant to serve a sentence of imprisonment for an offence against the Canada Temperance Act, was, upon his own request, suffered to go at large for a time by the officer who had the execution of the warrant. Shortly afterwards he was again arrested upon the same warrant and conveyed to the county goal to serve his term of imprisonment. Upon an application for an order in the nature of a habeas corpus.—Held, by the full Court, that the second arrest upon the same warrant was legal, and that the order should be refused. Ex p. Doherty, 35 N. B. Reps. 43. [But see a subsequent decision in the same case, 20 Occ. N. 20.]

Suing by next friend—Side bar-Attachment.]—Flainliff had been represented in this action by next friend and the action had been dismissed. A side bar had been taken out for payment of costs, which were duly taxed, but next friend refused to pay same. Order absolute for attachment issued against next friend. McGau v. Fish, 6 E. L. R. 373, 39 N. B. R. 1.

Summary conviction — Information— Suspicion.]—A magistrate has no jurisdiction to issue a warrant on an information under the Dom. Summary Convictions Act without examining upon oath the complainant or his witnesses as to the facts upon which the information is based. Ex p. Boyce, 24 N. B. R. 347, and R. v. Mille, Ex p. Coffon, 37 N. B. R. 122, followed. R. v. Carleton, Ex p. Gundy, 37 N. B. R. 389; R. v. Lizotte, 1 E. L. R. 355.

Under warrant of commitment—Eacope—Right to re-arrest under same warrant.]—The prisoner had been arrested at Amherst by one of the police of that town, under a warrant. After his arrest he escaped, and left the town for some weeks. When he returned he was re-arrested under the same warrant:—Heid, that, at the most, the escape in this case was negligence on the part of the officer, and that he did not contemplate a voluntary abandonment of his prisoner, but negligently trusted to the latter's promise to surrender himself under the warrant; therefore, he might be re-arrested. R., 0. Hearon, 21 C. L. T. 355, 5 Can. Cr. Cas. 531.

Warrant of arrest — Grounds-Issue without inquiry — Liability.]—A justice of the pence who issues a warrant of arrest without inquiring into the grounds which the complainant has for suspecting the accused, is responsible to the latter when the complaint is not justified by any serious, reasonable, or plausible ground. ASSAULT.

Action for — Bar—Conviction.]—A defendant charged with having committed an assault with intent to do bodily harm, on being asked by the justice whether he would be tried before him summarily or by a jury, elected to be so tried by him, and pleaded guilty. This was objected to by the prosecutor, when the justice stated that he would first ascertain the extent of the assault. After hearing the evidence he adjudicated upon the case and drew up a conviction imposing on the defendant a fine and costs, which the latter paid i.—Held, that the justice was acting under the special statutory authority for the trial of indictable offences conferred by ss. 785 (c) and 786, under which the defendant is not relieved from civil proceedings for the same assault. Clarke v. Rutherford, 2 O. Le R. 206.

Action for — Justification—Trespass— Ouster—Damages.]—A plaintiff, who knew the rules of an industrial establishment in which persons from outside were not allowed to speak or communicate with the employees, without special permission, cannot recover from the defendant, managor of such establishment, damages for assault and battery, where the manager ordered him to leave the premises, and, upon his refusal to do so, used ordinary force to eject him; and even if the plaintiff should shew that he was seriously injured by such assault, the action will still be dismissed if it is established that in the course of the resistance and altercation the plaintiff assailed the defendant. McKittrick v, Sangater, 3 Que, P. R. 449.

Action for—Particulars.]—The plaintiff sued for damages for an assault and battery on the 9th April, 1903, on the S. S. "Dahome." then being in Demerara; also for an assault and battery on board the "Dahome." then being on the high seas.—Held, that, as the month of April might cover an assault and battery other than that of the 9th, there ought to be particulars in order to prevent surprise at the trial. An assault is such an easy thing to commit that notice of the particular occasion should be given. Watson v. Leukton, 23 C. L. T. 247.

Action for damages — Counterclaim— Trespass to lands — Plea of justification— Payment into Court-Acceptance by plaintiff—Costs—Practice—N. S. Order 20, Rule I (e).]—In an action for damages for assault, defendant appeared, but did not require delivery of statement of claim. It was delivered and then followed defence and counterclaim:—Held, statement of claim rightly delivered, and costs thereof allowed. Benoit v. Delorey, 7 E. L. R. 161.

Boddly injuries — Accident.] — In an action to recover damages for bodly injuries resulting from an accident, the Court has no power to order the plaintiff to submit himself to a physical examination by a surreon, if he refuses to do so. Mousseau v. Montreal, 4 Que. P. R. 38.

Bodily injuries—Assault.]—In an action to recover damages for bodily injuries caused in an assault the Court will order the plaintiff to submit himself to surgical examination. Baster v. Davis, 4 Que. P. R. 153.

Bodily injury — Police officer arresting woman for drankenness—Technical assault— Notice of action—Plea,1—Action for damages against a chief of police for assault. The defendant believing the female plaintiff while on the street was under the influence of liquor, which it was proved she was not, placed his hand on her arm:—Held, this was done with intention of making an arrest for which there was no justification. Small damages allowed as illness in question did not arise from the assault. Her v. Gass, 7 E. L. R. 98.

Cabman and passenger — Action for damages-Excessive fare-Right of cabman to detain and corry arcay passenger's luggage.]—New trial ordered, the verdict being against the weight of the evidence. As to the assault, it was justified and there was no excess. McQuarrie v. Duggan, S. E. L. R. 5.

Civil action — Bar — Previous conviction.]—A summary conviction for assault, followed by execution, is an answer to a civil action for the recovery of damages for injuries caused by the same violence. Hébert v. Hébert, 34 Que. S. C. 370, 15 Can. Cr. Cas. 258.

Civil action to recover damages for injuries caused by-Conviction of defendant for same assault on information laid by peace officer for higher offence — Amendment by magistrate — Consent — Criminal Code, z. 735, I-Action for damages for injuries alleged to have been inflicted upon plaintiff by defendant with intent to do serious bodly harm. At the preliminary hearing, by consent of the Crown, the charge was reduced to one of assault. Plaintiff was not represented by counsel, and not consulted in the matter. Defendant pleaded guilty, was fined. Plaintiff brought this civil action for damages arising from the assault. Defendant denied the injuries:—Held, that the magistrate had no power to reduce the charge, even with consent of Crown counsel; that plaintiff's action for damages was not barred by 3. 734 of the Code by payment of a fine. Judgment for plaintiff. Goodwin v. Hoffman, 10 W. L. R. 613, 15 Can. Cr. Cas. 270.

Damages—Small verdict—Certificate of trial Judge—Review by Court.]—The Court has jurisdicion to review the discretion exercised by a Judge in certifying under 60 V. c. 28. s. 74, that there was good cause for bringing the action in the Supreme Court.—Where an action for assault and battery was brought in the Supreme Court, and the jury found a verdict for the plaintif for only $35, but the trial Judge granted a certificate under the above section, on the ground that the plaintiff's attorney had reasonable grounds for thinking that the tile to land would be brought into question:— Held, that a sufficient case had not been made out to induce the Court to interfere. Cormier V. Broudreau, 36 N. B. R. 6.

Evidence — Words constituting assault. McLeod v. Ward, 40 N. S. R. 630.

Justification—Removed of intruder from legislative building—Authority of Speaker— Licensee — Damages.] — To an action for assault, the defendant pleaded that he was chief messenger of the House of Assembly, and that it was one of his duties as such to preserve order and decorum in the House, and about the precincts and corridors thereof; that the plaintiff was creating a disturbance in the House, etc., and interfered with the members of the House in the discharge of their duties, and that the defendant, having first requested the plaintiff to cense making such disturbance, which the plaintiff refused to do, removed her, using no more force than was necessary; that the House of Assembly, through the Speaker, ordered the defendant to remove the plaintiff. It appeared on the trial that, at the time of the alleged assault, the House was not in ession, and the jury were instructed that the defence that the defendant was an edsent of the alleged assault, the Jours an officer appointed for the purpose of preserving decorum, referred to a disturbance while the House and Committee were in session. The jury found in favour of the plaintiff and assessed the damages at $500.—Heid, per Townshend, J., that the alleged assault having taken place outside the portion of the province building exclusively assigned to and occupied by members during the session, the Speaker had no authority, as such, to inter-fere with the plaintiff, and the justification pleaded by the defendant, that he acted under the orders of the Speaker, would not protect him; that while the damages awarded were high, that was a matter peculiarly for the jury. Per Meagher, J., that no sufficient justification had been established, and the verdict could not be disturbed. Per Graham, E.J., that the plaintiff was only entitled to be, or remain, in and about the corridors, by virtue of some license, express or implied; that questions should have been submitted to the jury as to whether the plaintiff was there bona fide transacting business; whether a reasonable time had not expired; and whether there was not a disturbance constituting an abuse of the license; that either the Speaker or defendant had a right to request the defendant to depart, and had a superior right. which would justify her removal on her re-fusal to go; that evidence of the defendant acting in the preservation of order was proper evidence to be submitted to the jury. Per Mc-Donald, C.J., that the seargeant-at-arms, or any otneer of the House, under the direction of the Speaker, may remove from the House and its precincts, during the session of the legislature, any person who obtrudes himself into the House, or its corridors, or remains there without permission, and in defiance of orders, causing annoyance, discomfort, or interruption to members; that the plaintiff being in the House against the orders of the Speaker, and conducting herself in such a manner as to incommode members in the transaction of public business, her removal was justified. Hubert v. Payson, 36 N. S. Reps. 211. Reversed, 24 C. L. T. 168, 34 S. C. R. 400.

Passenger — Assault on—Duty of con-ductor—Damages—Reduction—New trial.]— The plaintiff, a passenger on a railway train, was assaulted shortly after beginning his trip by an intoxicated fellow-passenger. He complained to the conductor, who promised to get a policeman at the next station, but failed to do so. The assailant having become more quiet, the plaintiff did not anticipate a further attack, but was assaulted a second time, which was also reported to the conductor, who took no action, and a third assault having been made, the plaintiff left the train Ing been made, the plaintin left the train and completed his journey on the following day. In an action against the railway com-pany the plaintiff obtained a verdict for $3,500, which was sustained by the Court of Appeal :—Held, affirming the judgment of the Court of Appeal, 5 O. L. R. 334, 23 Occ. N. 65, that the defendants were liable; that it is the difficult of the conductor on balax jawas the duty of the conductor, on being informed of the first assault, to take precautions to prevent a renewal, and his failure to do so gave the plaintiff a right of action. Pounder v. North Eastern Rw. Co., [1892] 1 Q. B. 385, dissented from :-Held, also, that, as the plaintiff did not anticipate the second assault, the conductor could not be assumed to have foreseen it, and the jury having evidently given damages for that as well as the third, the amount recovered should be reduced to $1,000, and a new trial had if this sum were not accepted. Blain v. Can. Hars Sun were not accepted. Blain V. Can, Pac. Rw. Co., 5 O. L. R. 334, 2 O. W. R. 76, 24 C. L. T. 49; S. C., sub nom. Can. Pac. Rw. Co. v. Blain, 34 S. C. R. 75.

Police constable-Acting virtute officii -Malice-Reasonable and probable cause-Excess of violence-R. S. O. 1897, c. 88.]-The defendant, a police constable of a city, on being directed by the clerk of the market having the superintendence of the market grounds and buildings, and of the persons, horses, and vehicles frequenting it, acting in the supposed performance of, and with a bona fide intention of discharging his duty without any malice, compelled the plaintiff, a driver of a watering cart, to move with his cart from a position he had taken in the market place, in consequence of which a scuffle ensued in which the plaintiff was assaulted and injured. In an action for the assault, the jury found in favour of plaintiff and awarded $300 - Meid, on appeal, that the defendant came within the protection afforded by R. S. O. 1897 c. 88, s. 101, which applies even to officers acting illegally, where they do so in the supposed performance of their duty. 4 O. W. R. 4, 24 C. L. T. 349, their duty. 4 O. W. R. 4, 24 C. L. Police officer — Assaulting. See R, v. Sabeans, 37 N. B. R. 223. Digested under ARREST.

Police officer—Unnecessary violence.]— On appeal, judgment for damages for false arrest and assault was sustained, the Court holding that there was no claim for false arrest, but was for assault, the defendant, a police officer, having struck the plaintif after he was lodged in police station. Defendant went farther than was necessary for any legal purpose and farther than his duty required him. Hehsdoerfer v. Payzant, 9 W. L. R. 202.

Proceedings before magistrate — Summons — Prohibition — Juriadiction.]— Order nisi for writ of prohibition discharged. An information for assault had been laid by D. against P. before magistrate S. Before any evidence taken, S. was served with an order nisi for a writ of prohibition and desisted from any further proceedings. The last mentioned order nisi was discharged, see 6 E. L. R. 274. Subsequently another information was laid before magistrate B., who was requested to act by S. When P. appeared with his counsel, the latter, who was also clerk of the peace, told B. he had no jurisdietion. B. dropped the matter, no evidence having been heard. Then a third information was laid before magistrate R., acting at request of S.:—Heid, that R. had jurisdietion. Ex parte Peck, Re Rhodes, 7 E. L. R. 207.

Provocation — Evidence—Mitigation of damages—Finding of jury—Verdict—Nominal damages—New trial.]—In an action for an assault the jury found the defendant guilty and that the plaintiff had not suffered any damage, and returned a verdict for the defendant. A subsequent application to the Judge of the County Court who had tried the cause to set aside the verdict and grant a new trial, or failing that, to enter a verdict for the plaintiff for nominal damages, was refused.—Heid, on appeal, per Tuck, C.J., Hanington, Landry, and Gregory, J.J., Mc-Leed, J., dissenting, that the Court had no power to set aside the verdict for the defendant and enter a verdict for the plaintiff, and that a new trial will not be granited merely for the purpose of enabling a plaintiff to obtain nominal damages, where no right is affected except a question of costs.—2. That evidence of provocation by words spoken three days before the assault by the plaintiff to the defendant was properly admitted in mitigation of damages. Murphy v. Dundas, 38 N. B. R. 563.

Railway companies are not liable in damages for an assault committed by their foreman upon a labourer caused through illtemper or malice. Roth v. Can. Pac. Rw. Oo., 4 Can. Ry. Cas. 238.

Right of action—Previous conviction— Payment of fine—Common assault—Criminal Code.]-No action of damages for assault lies in favour of the party aggrieved against an assailant who has been convicted under & 864 of the Criminal Code, and has paid the amount of the fine—2. A summary conviction of assault causing bruises is one of common assault, under s. 864, and not of an assault occasioning bodily harm under s. 262. Lawin v. Boyd, 27 Que. S. C. 472, 11 Can. Cr. Cas. 74.

Teacher and pupil — Criminal Code-Punishment-Excess.]-The Criminal Code, 55, authorizes parents, persons in the place of parents, schoolmasters, etc., to use force by way of correction towards any child, etc., under his care, "provided such force is reasonable under the circumstances," but by s. 58, "everyone by law authorized to use force is criminally responsible for any excess. The defendant, a teacher in one of the public schools, was charged before a magistrate with assaulting, beating, and ill-using J. O., one of the pupils under his care, and was ac-quitted on the ground that there was no evidence of malice on his part or of permanent injury to the child :- Held, that the only question properly before the magistrate was whether the punishment was reasonable in whether the purishient was reasonable in the circumstances, or, in other words, whe-ther there was excess :--Held, that there is no warrant in the Code for the test applied in the American case of State v. Pendergrass. 31 Am. Dec. 365, and adopted by the magis-trate, that it is necessary for the prosecutor to prove either that the person inflicting the punishment was actuated by malice or that his act resulted in permanent injury to the child. R. v. Gaul, 24 C. L. T. 135, 36 N. S. R. 504.

Trespass — Assault.] — Defendant purchased farm at sheriff's sale and obtained sheriff's deed. Plaintiff's mother being in possession and plaintiff residing with her, defendant entered with his team to plough. Plaintiff struck defendant and defendant resisted. Plaintiff brought action of trespass for assault. On the trial the Judge told the jury that defendant had no right to enter, plaintiff and her mother being in possession. Verdict for plaintiff .—Held, (Peters, J.), defendant had right to enter. McStain v. Chappel (1880), 2 P. E. I. R. 317.

Trespass-Excess. Morash v. Geldert, 2 E. L. R. 56.

Trespass—Striking horse causing it to run away—Personal injuries sustained—Action for damages — Judgment for plaintiffs with costs. Harris v. Burt, King v. Burt (1903), 2 O. W. R. 474. Affirmed by D. C. 3 O. W. R. 400.

Trespans—Forcible removal of trespanse— —Excess.]—In an action for damages for unlawfully assaulting and beating the plaintiff, the defendant pleaded that at the time the acts complained of were committed the defendant was the owner of and engaged in carrying on a lobster factory, and that the plaintiff entered and created a disturbance, and refused to leave when requested, and that the defendant thereupon removed the plaintiff, using no more force than was necessary i—Heid, that the defendant was justified in using such force as was necessary to effect the removal of the plaintiff from his premises, but as, by his own admission, he did more than this, the plaintiff from this premises, but as, by his own admission, he did more than this, the plaintiff from the defendant's favour must be set aside. Assessor - Qualification - Nullity -Omission.]-A person who is only a usufructuary is not eligible for the office of assessor for a municipality .- However, the fact that one of the assessors has not the necessary qualification is not alone sufficient to make the assessment roll void .-- . The assessment roll will not be annulled because the assessors have omitted to make in it a separate assessment of a piece of ground forming part of a lot estimated on the roll as a whole, especially when the omission has been made upon the demand of the owner of this piece of ground, and no complaint on this subject has been made at the time of the revision of the roll. Sénécal v. Parish of L'He Bizard, Q. R. 17 S. C. 268.

Buildings on mineral lands.]-Plaintiffs were assessed for $37,650 in respect of 300 acres of surface rights in the town of Bruce Mines, and the buildings thereon. No attempt was made to assess any of the machinery or mining plant comprised in any of these buildings nor the mineral rights of plaintiffs in some 500 acres additional in said town. On appeal by plaintiffs to the Ontario Railway and Municipal Board from the local Court of Revision, the Board after a personal inspection of all the properties owned by plaintiffs reduced the assessment to $31,243, as representing their assessable value. Plaintiffs appealed to the Court of Appeal, contending that this sum should be further reduced, because certain buildings upon the lands were what is called in the Assessment Act "mineral lands" used for mining purposes, and therefore should not have been assessed Court of Appeal held that these buildings used for mining purposes were properly assessed under the Ont. Assessment Act, 4 Edw. VII c. 23, and the amount was a pure question of fact. Appeal dismissed. Per Garrow, J.A. The Assessment Act, s. 36 (3), intended that all buildings which add to the value of the land for any purpose are to be assessed. Business assessed by floor space occupied—Edmonton city charter—Power to impose license fee — Double taxation— Method of assessment when more than one business carried on on premises.]-The Edmonton city charter provides (title 32, s, 3, s.-s. 2); "The mode of assessing businesses shall be as follows. The assessors shall fix a rate per square foot of the floor space (irrespective of partitions, elevators, stairways, or other obstructions) of each building or part thereof used for business purposes, and shall, as far as they deem practicable, classify the various businesses, and may fix a different rate for each, and in doing so may place a wholesale business in a class distinct from a retail business of otherwise the same class, and may classify each building or part thereof, according to the class of business carried on therein, and may fix a different rate for different classes of business carried on under the same roof, and for storehouse and warehouse or other like appurtenant building, than that fixed for the principal building, and may fix a different rate for different flats of buildings. Such rate shall not exceed $5 per square foot, except in the case of banks, loan companies, or other financial institutions, in which case such rate shall not exceed $10 per square foot. And the assessor shall submit to the council a statement shewing all the various classifications and ratings which he proposes to apply in the assessment of businesses, and the assessor shall make his assessment in accordance with the directions which the council shall make upon a consideration of such statement. Sub-section 4: "No person who is assessed in respect of any son shall carry on the business of keeper of a feed stable until he shall have procured a license therefor, the fee for which is $25 per annum." The appellants carried on a livery. The appellants carried on a livery, feed, and sale business on premises which comprised 1,500 square feet (after making all deductions provided for by the charter). They were assessed for 1,000 square feet in respect of their livery business, and were not assessed for any other business. The appellants were convicted for conducting a feed stable without a license, contrary to by-law 187 above set out :--Held, that the provisions of title 32, s. 3, s.-s. 4, did not apply to the business of the "feed stable;" that, under s.-s. 2 of the above section, the assessor is authorized to allot a fair proportion of the floor space to each of the several businesses carried on thereon without specifying the different portions so allotted; that the appellants, having been assessed for floor space only in respect of the "livery" business, were liable for the breach of the by-law above mentioned in re-spect of the "feed" stable. Express company-Government contract -Exemption from taxation-Construction of statute, 5 Educ. VII. c. 6.]-The defendant company work the railways owned by the Government and other public utilities pursuant to a legislative contract made in 1898 ; the Government defining the conditions under which the various services are to be performed. The company established an express company as one branch of their business The Government passed an Act, 5 Edw. VII c. 6, annually taxing the express company $2,000. The company claimed exemption from taxation on the ground that by the contract a part of the payment and consideration for which the contractor (Sir R. G. Reid) entered into it, was the right to establish a parcel or package express, and to have the profit free from any tax:—Held, that the defendants carried on the business of an express company within the meaning of the statute and must pay the tax levied. Judgment of the Supreme Court of Newfoundland, af-firmed. Rex v. Reid-Sewfoundland Co., C. R., [1908] A. C. 251.

Express company - Liability to "busi-ness assessment"-Land "occupied or used and mainly for the purpose of its business "-4 Edw. VII. c. 23, s. 10 (0.)]-The plaintiffs, an express company, agreed with a navi-gation company, which carried passengers, mails, and all kinds of freight, and had wharf accommodation in the defendant municipality, that the agent of the navigation company should act as agent of the plaintiffs dur-ing the season of navigation. The plaintiffs paid part of the salary of the agent and his clerk, and used the wharf premises, which were assessed to the navigation company :-Held, that the land was not used by the express company "mainly for the purpose of their business," and that they were not liable to be assessed for a "business assessment" under the provisions of 4 Edw. VII. c. 23, s. 10 (O.) :--Held, also, that the question whether the amount of the assessment was excessive could not be raised in this action, but was for the Court of Revision. Dominion Express Co. v. Town of Niagara, 10 O. W. R. 513, 15 O. L. R. 78.

Express company — Liability of "busi-Judicature Act (O.), s. 81 (2).] — Action to declare a business assessment against plain diffs illegal and void. H., a druggist, acted as telephone agent and also as agent for plaintiffs.—Heid, that the land occupied by the druggist is not "occupied or used mainly for the purpose of its business." Declaration as claimed. Dominion Ex. Co. v. Alliston (1909), 14 O. W. R. 196.

Express company — Provincial tax — Municipal business tax—Illegal assessment— Corporations Taxation Act — Assessment Act.]—Section 3 of the Corporations Taxation Act provides that every express company doing an express business shall pay a tax to the province; and s. 18 provides that, where a company pay the tax, no similar tax shall be imposed or collected by any municipality in the province :--Held, that a business tax imposed by a city corporation in respect of the premises occupied by an express company in the city, under the Assessment Act, 63 & 64 Vict. c. 35, s. 2, was a "similar tax" to that imposed by the province, which had been paid by the express company; and was, therefore, illegal and void .- The Assessment Act and the Corporations Taxation Act having been assented to on the same day, it was intended that s. 18 of the later Act should govern and exclude the tax imposable under the earlier. Dominion Express Co. v. Brandon (1910), 15 W. L. R. 26.

Homestead — Croven.] — The plaintiff's husband, in 1892, became the holder of a homestead claim, part of the Dominion railway belt, and in October. 1897, a Crown grant was issued to the plaintiff at the instance of her husband and herself. The defendants sought to assess the land for taxes from 1892 to 1897:—Held, that where the fee still remains in the Crown, the interest of the holder of a homestead claim is not subject to taxation by a municipality, although the holder personally is. King v. Municipalting of Matagui, 22 Occ. N. 42, 8 B. O. R. 289.

Hotel Heense, — Montreal has the right to be collocated by privilege upon the amount realized from the sale of a hotel license for the amount due for taxes by the insolvent hotel-keeper. Mitchell, in re, Chartrand v. Montreal, 11 Que. P. R. 53 :— Held (reversing above judgment), the privilege granted by the civil Code and the particular provisions contained in its charter, do not give to the city of Montreal, for the payment of taxes due it, any right upon the incorporeal rights or interests of its debtor.— The city of Montreal is therefore beyond its rights in being collocated by privilege for the amount of taxes due by hotel-keeper who has become insolvent upon the price realized from the sale of a retail liquor license. In re Mitchell, Chartrand v. Montreal (1909), 11 Que. P. R. 151, 38 Que. S. C. 11.

Income assessment — Banks—Deduction for outgoings—Method of computing—British Columbia Assessment Act.]-By the Assessment Act, B. C., 1905, c. 2, it is provided that banks shall be taxed upon their actual gross income derived from business transacted with the province, subject to certain deductions which are set out in form 1 of the Act. Form 1 provides, inter alia, a deduction on account of outgoings or necessary expenses incurred and actually paid by the bank in the produc-tion of income. The Bank of Hamilton, operating two branches in British Columbia, were allowed as a deduction of four per cent. on the average of the weekly sums which in the books of the head office were debited to these In ascertaining the profits made branches. by the different branches, the practice of the head office was to charge against each branch this four per cent. The evidence did not shew whether this sum (debited weekly against the branches in the books of the head office) in fact corresponded with the amount of money employed by the bank in their banking business in British Columbia in obtaining income. The charge of four per cent, was made up of two items : three per cent. was charged as representing the interest paid to depositors in Ontario on moneys borrowed from them by the bank, and one per cent. was a charge representing the general expenses of the bank in connection with deposit accounts, including, as appeared from the affidavit of the general manager, a certain allowance made for the loss arising from the fact that a considerable sum of money on which interest was paid by the bank remained unproductive. The principal question argued on the appeal The principal question argued on the appendix was whether these deductions should have been allowed by the Court of Revision:— Held, that, had there been proper evidence before the Court of Revision that the moneys debited by head office to the British Columbia agencies were moneys on which the head office paid depositors in Ontario three per cent., and that these moneys had actually been employed in the British Columbia business, then the three per cent, should have been deducted from the gross income as an outgoing in the production of income, but that there was not sufficient evidence of these facts before the Court of Revision to warrant the allowance of this deduction :---Held, also, that the deduction of one per cent. was rightly not allowed by the Court of Revision, as it not allowed by the Court of Revision, as it included elements which did not properly enter into the computation of the statutory deductions. Income of foreign company-Commercial corporation - Provincial Treasurer -Statement,]-The defendant company manufactured cotton thread in England, but sold its products in Canada, including the province of Quebec. R., a manufacturers' agent, carrying on business at Montreal, represented this company. He had an office at Montreal, with the name of this company and others upon the door. The name of this company also figured in advertisements published by R. The company sent goods to Montreal which R. sold for them on commission. The office expenses were paid by R. and also the expenses relating to the trade in the company's goods, including insurance and advertising. but the sales were for the benefit of the company :-Held, that the company came within the statute imposing taxes on commercial corporations (59 V. c. 15, Q.), and in particular porations (55 v. c. 15, q.), and in particular were subject to the penalty imposed for de-fault in transmitting to the Provincial Trea-surer the statement required by this statute, Lambe v. Detchurst & Son (Ltd.), Q. R. 16 S. C. 326.

Income of foreign insurance company — Investments]—An insurance company, having its head office in Scotland, had ceased to do any new business in Canada, but invested some of its money there, and had an agent in Toronto who collected premiums on the old business and adjusted losses, and also employed a solicitor in Toronto and maintained an advisory board to look after investments, none, however, being made without reference to the home board. Payments of interest on some investments were made to the solicitor and by him deposited to the credit of the company in a Toronto bank, and other payments were remitted by the borrowers by draft direct to the company :—Held, that the money paid into the bank was in the possession of an agent for the owner, a person non-resident within the province, within the meaning of s. 11 of the Assessment Act, and was personal property of an incorporated company, within s. 39, and was therefore assessable. Toronto being "the usual place of business" of the company, within s. 40. City of Kingston v. Canada Life Assurance Co., 19 O. R. 453, distinguished. Phenia Insurance Co. v. City of Kingston, 7 O. R. 343, and Re North of Scotland Mortgage Co., 31 C. P. 552, followed.—But the interest remitted direct to Scotland was not assessable as income or personal property. In re Edinburgh Life Ins. Co., 21 Occ. N. 38.

Income of foreigner-Domicil-Change of-Intention.]-By the St. John City As-sessment Act, 59 V. c. 61, s. 2, "for the purposes of assessment any person having his home or domicil, or carrying on business, or having any office or place of business, or any occupation, employment, or profession, within the city of St. John, shall be deemed an inhabitant and resident of the said city."-J. carried on business in St. John as a brewer, up to 1893, when he sold the brewery to three of his sons, and conveyed his home and furniture to his adult children, in trust for them all. He then went to New York, when he carried on the business of buying and selling stocks and other securities, having offices for such business and living at a hotel, paying for a room in the latter only when occupied. During the next four years he spent about four months in each at St. John, visiting his children and taking recreation. He had no of the directors of the Bank of New Bruns-wick during his yearly visits. He was never personally taxed in New York, and took no part in municipal matters there. Being assessed in 1897 on personal property in St. John, he appealed against the assessment unsuccess-fully, and then applied for a writ of certiowith a view to having it quashed :rari. Held, that, as there had been a long continued actual residence by J. in New York, and as on his appeal against the assessment he had avowed his bona fide intention of making it his home permanently, or at least for an indefinite time, and his determination not to return to St. John to reside, he had acquired a new home or domicil, and that in St. John had been adandoned, within the meaning of the Act. Jones v. City of St. John, 20 Occ. N. 112, 30 S. C. R. 122.

Income of Government officials.] --The income which a person receives as an employé of the Government of the North-West Territories is taxable, by virtue of the Municipal Ordinance, notwithstanding that the General Revenue Fund of the Territories, from which income is paid, is formed in part of a grant from the Dominion Government made "for schools, official assistance, printing, etc." Robson v. Town of Regina, 4 Terr. L. R. 80.

Income of locomotive engineers.]-The earnings of railway locomotive engineers who receive pay according to the number of "income" within the meaning of that term as used in the Assessment Act prior to the Amendment of 1901, and are therefore not liable to taxation. Decision in 9 B. C. R. 60 reversed. In reAssessment Act, 9 B. C. R. 209, P. C. held, that, on the true construction of the British Columbia Assessment Act (R. Income tax-Real estate tax - Assessment not leviable on both real estate and its profits-Profits of business-" Each succeeding peer" meaning of. I—The P. E. Is-land Statute 43rd V., c. 15, authorized an assessment for civil purposes on real pro-perty, income and polls. The Act provided for an assessment, confined to real estate, for a half year in 1880, and then went on to say, "and all further assessments for the year 1881 and subsequent years, upon either real property, incomes or polls, shall be due and payable within ninety days next following the 4th Wednesday in January in each and every succeeding year." An assessment was levied for 1881, and defendant being assessed raised the questions: (1) Whether the could be levied and made payable in 1. (2) Whether the Act authorized the tax 1881. assessing and levying the income tax during the currency of 1881. (3) That the as-sessment was not to be paid yearly in each year, but that 1881 was to be an exception. (4) If the income tax was assessable on all income whether derived from within or without the city. (5) Was the income tax assessable on the profits of business. (6) Was the tax imposed on real estate and also on the derived therefrom :--- Held (Palmer, C.J., Hensley, J., concurring), that the statute authorized taxes to be levied for 1881, and also authorized the assessing and levying of an income tax during the currency of that year .-- That the income tax was assessable on the net income of residents and the profits of business, and in the case of per-sons not engaged in business, on their income derived from within, but not upon that from without the city limits. That the tax was not a double one and was not, therefore, imposed both on real estate and on the profits therefrom. Charlottetown v. Heartz (1882), 2 P. E. I. R. 444.

Interest of lessee from Crown-Local improvements-Sidewalk.]-Under an agreement of the 20th March, 1889, entered into by the Crown, as representing the University of Toronto, and the city of Toronto, confirmed by 32 V. c. 53 (O.), College street in the city of Toronto has become so far a public highway of the city as to make the interest of a lesse from the Crown of land fronting on that street liable to assessment for the due proportion of the cost of the construction, as a local improvement, of a sidewalk in front of the leased land, even though the lease has been made before the agreement. In re Leach and City of Toronto, 22 Occ. N. 406. 4 O. L. R. 614, 1 O. W. R. 661.

Irregularity in assessment—Recovery of taxes paid.]—Where an assessment levied in the ordinary manner has been acquiesced in by the person assessed, and paid without protest, and without any complain being laid before the assessors, or the institution of any appeal provided by law from their decision, an action will not lie for the recevery of the amount, as a void assessment illegally exacted, on the ground that there was an irregularity in the method of fixing the valuation. Bogie v. City of Montreal, Q. R. 16 S. C. 503.

Land and improvements belonging to Dominion Government - Assessment of occupier of - Description - Aspeal-Clauses Act-Court of Revision-Appeal-Action.]-The defendant was the occupier of one of several stores on the ground floor of a building belonging to the Dominion Government, and was assessed under s. 168, s.s. 4 (a), of the Municipal Clauses Act, for traces in respect of land and inprovements. The assessment roll described the property as "parts of lots 1, 605, and 1, 607, block 1; measurement 23 x 66; Government street; land, $12,650; improvements, $920; total, $13,570, ".-Held, that the defendant was an occupant of the land, 2. The assessment was invalid because the lands and improvements were insufficiently described. 3. The Act provides no procedure for such an assessment to the Question of his liability in an action to recover traces. Victoria V, Borces (1902), 22 C. L. 7, 218; SB C. R. 303.

Mining lands — Value as agricultural lands—Buildings—Plant — Wrongful assessment-Illegality-Jurisdiction-Provisions of Assessment Act.] - Mining lands were assessed at their value as agricultural lands under s.-s. 3 of s. 36 of the Assessment Act of 1904. The assessor also assessed the buildings and mining plant as such, and adding the two latter together entered them on the roll as the assessed value of the buildings ;--Held, that that method was an attempt to evade the fair meaning of the Act, and that the assessment of the exempted property, the plant, was illegal. It was not for the asplant, was negatively to the as-sessor in the exercise of his judgment to as-sess the exempted property for taxation at any amount; and the illegality being established the Court had jurisdiction to deal with the matter outside of the machinery provided by the Assessment Act for dealing with Such a complaint. Toll bridge over navigable waters--Liability to assessment-Real property -Easement-Assessment Act - Exemptions-Interest of Crown-Bridge forming part of toll road — Public road or way.]—A toll bridge across the waters of the Bay of Quinté, brage across the waters of the Pay of Quinte, and its approaches, erected by a company in-corporated by 50 & 51 V. c. 97 (D.), and acquired by the plaintiffs, who were incor-ported by 62 & 63 V. c. 95 (D.), was held to be liable to assessment, as regards the part situate in the township of Ameliasburg. as real property, within the meaning of the Ontario Assessment Act, 4 Edw. VII. c. 23. —The effect of the two Dominion statutes referred to is to confer a perpetual right in the nature of an easement to construct and maintain the bridge across the navigable "real property," in s. 2 (7) of the Muni-ment Act, by virtue of s. 2 (8) of the Municipal Act, 1903, include an easement; and the bridge comes within none of ' a exemptions mentioned in the Assessment Act. The interest of the Crown in any property is exempt, but that leaves the interest of any person else not holding for the Crown, or in trust for the Crown, liable under the cen-eral words of the statute; and the plaintiffs were not agents or trustees for the Crown. Section 37 of the Act applies only to a bridge forming part of a toll road, and not to this bridge; nor is this bridge a public road or way, within the meaning of s. 5 (5) of the Way, within the menning of 8, 5 (5) of the Assessment Act. Assessment Act, s. 10 (1) (e)—Departmental store—Question of fact—Decision of Ontario Railway and Municipal Board.] —The Ontario Railway and Municipal Board cancelled the business assessment of the respondents in respect of a retail business, The city of Toronto claimed the business was that of a departmental store. On appeal the Court of Appeal held the question is one of fact, therefore the Court has no jurisdiction to entertain an appeal. Re Knox Assessment, 13 O. W. R. S23, 18 O. L. R. 645.

Hiegal assessment.]--Where an assessment is illegal, the person assessed is not bound to appeal to the Court of Revision, but may successfully raise the question of his liability in an action to recover taxes. City of Victoria v. Boues, 22 Oce, N. 218, 8 B. C. R. 363.

Onus.]—In assessment appeals the onus is upon the appellants who assert that their property is assessed at too high a figure, to prove it affirmatively. Re McDougall and Town of Edmonton, Re Carruthers and Town of Edmonton, 5 Terr. L. R. 465.

Reduction of assessment — Appeal-Resolution of council.] — Every landowner, being a municipal elector, may appeal from the decision of the municipal council reducing the amount of the assessment of lands in the municipality, and that even when he has no right to the land in question and was not present at the meeting of the council at which the assessment of these lands was reduced. The resolution of a municipal council, adopted in the time of the annual revision of the assessment roll, in the month of July previous, the council had by mistake reduced the assessment of a parcel of land, and fixing the amount at which that parcel should have been valued, is illegal. Bastien v. Parisk of St. Vincent de Paul, Q. R. 16 S. C. 561.

Value of lands and buildings — Burden of proof.]—Under ordinary circumstances, it is incumbent upon an appellant who complains that he is assessed too high to shew that the property is not worth the amount for which he is assessed, but where, although this is not shewn, it appears that, under the general scheme of assessment, lands of a particular description are assessed generally at a certain fixed sum per acre, and that the appellant's lands of that description, which are of no greater value either by reason of their situation or otherwise, are assessed at a larger amount, the assessment should be reduced to accord with the general scheme of assessment. A school diatrict assessor assessed certain of the appellants' lands at $800, and the dwelling houses thereon at $2,000:—Held, that the assessment should stand, although the more correct course would have been to assess the whole as "land" and place a single value upon both soil and buildings as "land". The re Canadian Pacific Rue. Co. and MacLeod Public School District. 5 Terr. L. R. 187.

iii. Actions to set aside Assessments.

Charter of a municipal corporation provided that its collection rolls for taxes must be contested within a fixed delay. A ratepayer, who has a special right, under a contract, to refuse payment of the tax, is not bound to act thereon within the delay so fixed. He may stand by until culled upon to pay, and then set up his right, though the time in which to contest the roll has expired. Joyce v. Outremont (1909), Q. R. 18 K. B. 447.

Contestation — Prescription — Interruption—Injunction.]—The contestation of a special assessment roll by a person named therein has not the effect of interrupting prescription as regards other persons subject to such assessment. 2. Even where the party contesting obtains a temporary order enjoining the city against making any collection under the roll attacked, prescription is not interrupted as regards other persons named in the assessment roll, where the making of such order is not objected to by the city, and where no steps are subsequently taken by the city to obtain its rescission. City of Montreal v. Land and Loan Co., Q. R. 23 S. C. 461.

Non-resident ratepayer — Failure to give no ice—Assessment Act, R. S. N. S. c. 73 — Assessment invalid — Certiorari — Costs.]—The Assessment Act, R. S. N. S. c. c. 73, s. 16, provides that the assessors, on the completion of the assessment roll, shall give notice to the parties assessed, by "(b) serving each person. . . not residing . . within the district . . . with a notice in writing shewing the respective amounts at which his real and personal property has been assessed upon such roll." The assessment of property of G. was increased from $1,200 to $85,800, and the assessors, expressly relying upon the provisions in s. 16, s.-s. (2), of the Act, omitted to give G. notice of any kind, thus depriving him of the right of appeal. The assessment was brought up by certiorari —Held, that certiorari would lie. 2. That the words of s.-s. (2) did not take away the right of the party a seed to notice, and that, in the absence of such notice, the assessment was invalid and must be set aside with costs. Per Drysdale, J., that the costs taxed should not include affidavits read on the question of value, such application. In re Gillies Assessment, 42 N. S. R. 44.

Quashing roll—Appeal.—One may proceed by pelition, by virtue of Art. 100, C. M., to demand the quashing of an assessment roll for illegalities making it void. However, where the complaint is orly of the assessment of a part of the properties on the roll, the quashing of the whole roll cannot be asked: in such a case review by way of appeal under Art. 1061 is the remedy. Sénécal v. Parish of L'Ile Bizard, Q. R. 17 S. C. 267.

Recourse of ratepayers complaining of their individual valuations, is by petition to the Circuit Court under provisions of 1 Edw. VII. c. 26, and not by petition under the Town Incorporation Act, as taken in present case. Pereival v. Montreal West, 16 R, de J. 8.

Valuation roll — Illegality — Quashing —Jurisdiction of Judge—Names improperly inserted — Notice — Overcaluation.] — By virtue of s. 4376, R. S. O., a Judre in Chambers has jurisdiction on petition to quash a valuation roll for illegality. 2. The facts that the names of persons who are not owners are inscribed upon a roll as such, or their real value, constitutes an illegality. 3. In such case notice should be given to the persons whose names it is sought to strike off. Truchon v, Town of Chicoutimi, Q. R. 25 S. C. 55.

Valuation roll—Petition to set aside— Parties—Interest.]—Valuators must proceed strictly according to law, and it cannot be said, in answer to a petition to set aside a valuation roll, that they have acted in the exercise of their discretion or according to an established practice. 2. It cannot be alleged that the party who contests a valuation roll is acting in the interest of other persons, unless it is also alleged that the petitioner himself is without any interest whatever. Letich v. Town of Westmount, 5 Q. P. R. 225.

2. CHARGES ON LAND.

City of Halifax charter—Sale of land after assessment—Vendor's personal liability for taxes.] — Under the provisions of the Halifax city charter, s. 303, the annual assessment is to be rated on the owners of real and personal property by an equal dollar rate upon the value of real and personal property within the city. By s. 302, the annual assessment is to be prepared and delivered to the city collector not later than the 15th March in each year. The defendant was the owner of a lot of land which was assessed for the purpose of rates and taxes for the year 1903-1904, and on the 15th March the book of general assessment was delivered to the collector of rates and taxes in the form prescribed by law. Several weeks later the defendant conveyed the lot of land so assessed to a purchaser, who went into possession:—H·dd, that, in addition to the lien on property for taxes, there is also a personal responsibility, and the mere fact of the defendant parting with the liad by conveyance, after it had been duly assessed, could not in any way affect the liability imposed upon the owner when once the property had been properly assessed in his name. Change of ownership — Chattel mortgage—Purchase from mortgagee.] — Goods purchased from the chattel mortgagee thereof are not "claimed . . . by purchase, gift, transfer or assignment" from the mortgagor within the meaning of R. S. O. c. 224, s. 135, s. s. 4, (b), so as to make them liable in the purchaser's hands to distress for taxes due by the mortgagor. Judgment in 31 O. R. 301, 20 Occ. N. 11, affirmed. Horsman v. City of Toronto, 20 Occ. N. 349, 27 A. R. 475.

Jasperson v. Township of Romney, 12 O. W. R. 575, 734.

Defect in assessment—Action for illegal distress — Estoppel — Appeal to Assessment Court—Jurisdiction.]—There was a radical defect in the assessment of the plaintiff's farm under R. S. N. S. 1900 c. 73. The plaintiff appealed to the Assessment Court of Appeal, which reduced the amount of the assessment. The plaintiff subsequently brought an action against the town corporation for taking and selling his horse under warrant for the tax fixed by the Appeal Courti— Held, that, as the Assessment Court had no jurisdiction, the assertion of an appeal to that Court by the plaintiff, and its decision. did not estop him from bringing the action. Cossitt v. Town of Sydney, 40 N. S. R. 454.

Distress for arrears—Ont. Assessment Act, R. 8. O. (1887), c. 193, s. 135—Imperative or directory—Failure to distrain—Enforcing payment in subsequent year.)—The provisions of s. 135 of the Outario Assessment Act, R. S. O. 1887, s. 193, in respect to taxes on the roll being uncollectible, and what the account of the collector in regard to the same shall shew on delivery of the roll to the trensurer, and requiring the collet or to furnish the elerk of the municipality with a copy of the account, are imperative. Taxes on the roll not collected cannot be recovered by distress in a subsequent year, unless such arrears have accrued while the land in respect of which they were imposed was unoccupied, Judgments in 29 A. R. 459, 19 Occ. N. 263, and 30 O. R. 16, 18 Occ. N. 402, affirmed. Caston V. City of Toronto (1900), 20 Occ. N, 321, 30 S. C. R. 390.

Excessive and unreasonable distress -Action for damages—Costs.]—Plaintiff, a tenant under lease expiring 1st June, 1908, failed to pay $250 rent due 31st May, but continued to occupy part of the premises. About the middle of August, collector seized 50 tons flax, for 1907 and 1908 taxes:— Held, that landlord could have distrained for the rent, consequently collector was entitled to do so for 1907 taxes and costs, but not for 1908 taxes, and having regard to value of goods seized, $6145, it was manifest that the quantity distrained was excessive and unwarranted, and plaintiff was entitled to his actual damages. Campbell v. Wallaceburg (1909), 14 O. W. R. 473.

Illegal distress — Action for — Mortgagec's builtf,]—Under s. 125 (a) (1) 3, added to the Assessment Act, R. S. O. 1807, c. 224, by 62 V. (2) c. 27, s. 11, goods which are not in the possession of the person assessed in respect of them cannot be distrained for the taxes assessed against them. Goods which had been mortgaged were when seized in the possession of the mortgaged's builtf, who had taken possession upon default: —Hold, that the bailiff had a right to bring an action for illegal distress. Donahue y, Campbell, 2 O. L. R. 124.

Notice or demand-Removal of goods -Warrant for distress-"Good reason to belicer" — Onus.] — It is essential to the validity of a notice or demand under R. S. O. c. 224, s. 134 (1), that it should, as required by s.-s. (2), contain a schedule specifying the different rates, etc. The question whether the collector has such "good reason to believe" a ratepayer is about to remove his goods as would justify him in obtaining a magistrate's warrant of distress under s. 135 (4) is one for the jury, the onus being upon the collector to prove that he had:— Held, under the circumstances of this case, that he had not, and that the plaintiff was entitled to recover damages for illegal distress. McKinnon v. McTague (1901), 21 Occ. N. 207, 1 O. L. R. 233.

"Owner"-Agent for mortgagees - Conditional purchase.] - The plaintiff agreed with mortgagees in possession of the mortgaged land to purchase it at a sum equal to principal, interest and costs, such purchase to be carried out so soon as the mortgagees should obtain a final order of foreclosure, and in the meantime that he should, as their agent, manage the property :--Held, that the plaintiff, who had not been assessed for the property in question, and against the name the taxes in question had not been charged on the collector's roll, was not an "owner" of the premises within s. 35, s.-s. 3, of the Assessment Act, R. S. O. 1897, c. 224, whereby the collector is authorized to levy unpaid taxes "upon the goods and chattels of the owner of the premises found thereon;" and such taxes could not be levied upon his goods. Lloyd v. Walker (1962), 22 Occ. N. 256, 4 O, L. R. 122, 1 O. W. R. 385.

"Owner"-Agreement for purchase Part performance-Local improvement rates -Distress warrant - Abandonment of distress.]-A purchaser, who has gone into possession and made part payment of the purchase money under an agreement for the sale of land unexecuted by the vendor, which provides for payment by the purchaser of the taxes, rates and assessments rated or charged from the date of the agreement, is an "owner" within s, 135 of the Assessment Act, and is liable for the taxes accruing during his occupancy, although they may have been assessed against a former owner. Local improvement rates grouped with other taxes under the Assessment Act, and included in the collector's roll, are taxes, in a broad sense, and may be collected or realized by uniform statutory process, 2. A warrant of distress specifying two bailments is unobjectionable. 3. Where one bailiff has rightly entered and seized, and had afterwards withdrawn by reason of the misstatements of the ewner, it was held competent for another bailiff to return forthwith and continue the first lawful taking. Sciure of nersonal property for arrears — Public officer — Office of town treasurer filled by a woman—N. S. Town Incorporation Act. a. 112.1 — Plaintiff claimed a horse which had been seized for taxes. She and her brother lived together, he owning the farm, she managing it:—Held, on evidence, that she is not the owner of the horse.—Held, further, under s. 112 above, a woman may perform the duties of town treasurer. A warrant signed "act, town treasurer," for "acting town treasurer," is valid. Hagaryty v. McGrath, 7 E. L. R. 79.

iii. By Action.

Contestation of roll — Limitation of actions-Interruption—Statute1. — The prescription of three years in respect of taxes provided by the Montreal city charter, 52 V. c. 79 (Q.), runs from the date of the deposit of the assessment roll, as finally revised, in the treasurer's office, when the taxes became due and exigible, and the prescription is not suspended or interrupted by a contestation of the assessment roll, even although the contestation may have been filed by the proprietor of the lands assessed. Judement appended from reversed. Girouard and Nesbitt. JJ., dissenting. City of Montreal v. Cantin, 25 Occ. N. 3, 35 S. C. R. 223.

Contestation of roll—Quebec Act, 52 Y. c. 79, ss. 120, 134, 231—Civil Code, Arts. 2227, 2328, 2236 — Construction — Action to recover assessed amounts—Assessment due on filing of the roll.]—Under s. 231 of city of Montreal charter, 1889, 52 Y. c. 79, the amount of assessment becomes due and recoverable on filing of the roll of assessment in office of city transurer. In an action by city to recover after the period of prescription enacted by s. 120, calculated from date of filing, had elapsed, it appeared that respondent's predecessor had been a party to proceedings had for its annulment:—Held, that the period was not interrupted thereby within meaning of Art, 2227 Civil Code, for there had been no acknowledgment of liability. 2. That there had been no imposspiblity to such proceedings. 3. The debt in suit was not dependent on condition within suit was not dependent on condition withthe Act limited the time within which the roll might be annulled, it did not make the value of ling lot force conditional on the roll not being either attacked or annulled. Judgment in 25 Occ, N, 3 55 S. C. R. 223. affirmed. Montreal V. Cantin, [1906] A. C. 241, Q. R. 15 K. B. 103.

Cost of road-work—Personal liability of purchaser.]—A municipal corporation has no right of action to recover the costs of roadwork against the subsequent purchaser of the land assessed, but must first take judgment against the person liable for such work. Township of Roston v. De Lorimier, Q. R. 24 S. C. 57.

Infraction of the charter of the city of Montreel-Quo warranto - C, P, β, β , 1006; 63 V, c, 58, s, 338.1—The recourse permitted by s, 338 of the charter of the city of Montreal which permits the causing to be paid back by an alderman of the taxes he has illecally voted, and to cause him to be disqualified as such, is a special recourse which ought to be enforced by an ordinary civil action appealable to the Court of King's Bench. The final judgment rendered in the Court of first instance in this action is capable of appeal in virtue of common law and of the charter of the city of Montreal. Lapointe v, Larin (1000), 10 Q. P. R, 346. c.c.-9

Means of defence – Illegality of rolls prepared – Means of quashing.)—The taxpayer sued to recover municipal taxes is not at liberty to raise the question of setting aside the tax rolls, which he might have done within the time allowed by the statute, but which has now expired. Cameron v. Westmount, Q. R. 18 K. B. 300.

Ordinary remedy by action is open to municipalities for recovery of taxes, without it being specially given. The expression "when proceedings are taken" used in s. 552 of 52 V. c. 80, refers to a seizure of movables or immovables for levying taxes; and does not apply to the remedy by action. In exercising the latter the corporation cannot demand the addition of 10 per cent. provided by the section. Morgan v. City of Sorel, Q. R. 15 K. B. 247.

Property not been regularly charged -Error in valuation roll-Proof-Nature of the action to recover municipal taxes-M, C. 20, 718, 743, 948, 951.]-1. In an action taken by a municipal corporation to recover taxes claimed to have been imposed upon lot 18 and declaring that it was the intention of the valuators to assess lot 17, defendant's property, the plaintiff will not be permitted. even by the valuators' evidence, to establish such claim; the valuation roll is an essential document and for which the law requires special formalities; there is no law which would authorize the Courts to correct or add to such document by proof of what may have been the intention of the valuators. 2. cording to the provisions of 948 and 951 M. C., the law requires that the taxes be imposed on the property responsible for them. Under the provisions of the same Code, it is not necessary that the name of the pro-prietor or of the occupant or of the subsequent purchaser of such property should appear upon the valuation roll, but it is abso lutely necessary that a particular lot should be charged with a fixed sum for taxes before the occupant can be forced to discharge any such municipal tax. 3. For the pur-poses of description, any lot or part of a poses of description, any lot of part of a lot should, in obedience to the provisions of M. C. C. 718, be described by the number of the cadastre, and this is an essential formality. 4. The action to recover taxes exists in virtue of the law alone and not in virtue of a quasi-contract, and the result is that the occupant of a lot cannot be forced, by a personal action, to pay such taxes unless the lot has been lawfully charged with a determined portion of such taxes. So long as a lot has not been entered upon the roll, it is impossible to tax it, and it is only by means of such roll that the amount of the taxes can be legally deter-Cowansville v. Noyes (1910), 16 R. mined. de J. 376.

Validity of assessment — Special tribunal—Faiture to appeal—Proof of assessment—Pleading—Evidence.]—In an action to recover the amount claimed to be due for rates and taxes, the defendant pleaded among other things that, at the time of the assessments, defendant was not the owner of more than a one-quarter interest in the ship assessed :— Held, following Toron of Westrille v, Munro, 32 N, S, Reps, 311, that the defendant having received notice of the assessment, if he was dissatisfied therewith, should have brought the matter before the assessment appeal Court, established for that purpose by s. 341 of the Halifax city charter, 1891, and, having failed to do so that the assessment was conclusive, and could not be attacked in an action to recover the amount assessed. The only evidence before the Court of the assessment and the rate due thereon was the city collector's certificate of taxes unpaid, and s. 362 of the city charter, which provides that all rates and taxes shall become due on the 31st May in each year, and that it shall be the duty of the city collector, immediately to take proceedings, etc. was no evidence to prove the collector's signature to the certificate, or that he was collector :- Held, that the evidence was wrongly received :--Held, nevertheless, that, as the de-fendant in his defence admitted that he was assessed for the amount claimed, and that the rate alleged to be due on such assessment was correct, it was not necessary for the plaintiffs to prove the assessment or the rate due there-City of Halifax v. Evidence—lasessment roll—Prima facie case — Rebuttal — Outsership of property.] —An assessment roll only proves the status as owner of one whose name is inscribed thereon as such, until the contrary is established. Therefore, one who has paid taxes upon the land, because his name has been inscribed upon the assessment roll as the owner of land, has a right to recover back the taxes paid, if he proves that he was not the owner of it at the time when these taxes were imposed. Couture v. Corporation of St. Etienne de Lauzon, Q. R. 31 S. C. 395.

Mistale-Court of Revision.]--Certain of the plaintiff's lots were by by-haw of the defendant municipality "exempted from payment of taxes." for the year 1899 and other years. The said lots were assessed for taxes for the said year "for school purposes only." Thereafter the plaintiff received from the defendant a statement and demand for payment within 30 days of the taxes on the said lots for the said year, and "in consequence of the said demand" paid the same:--Held, that, assuming the plaintiff was entitled to exemption from traxation for school purposes, this did not amount to such an involuntary payment as would entitle the plaintiff to recover the amount so paid. Effect of decision of Court of Revision discussed. Spring-Rice

Non-resident merchant — Payment of taxes under protect—I Edw. VII. (Que.), c. 44, I—The tax which defendant is permitted, under 1 Edw. VII. (Que.), c. 44, to levy upon non-resident merchants who sell or offer for sale goods in Three Rivers, can only be claimed from outside merchants, and not upon those who have a place of business and their residence therein. A merchant who, for purpose of avoiding seizure of his property, pays such tax under protest, has the right to an action to recover same from the corporation, when, as in present case, the tax was illegally levied. Kiely v. Three Rivers (1910), 16 Que. R. de J. 326.

Payment under constraint-Warrant Illegal arrest-Action for,]-A warrant for taxes alleged to be due to the defendants was issued by the town treasurer and placed in the hands of a constable for collection. constable went to the plaintiff's place of business to collect the amount, but, it being Saturday night, an arrangement was made be tween the constable and plaintiff that the latter would go up on Monday morning and see about the taxes. The plaintiff went to the treasurer's office and contended that the amount claimed in the warrant had been paid, but, as the treasurer insisted that the amount had not been paid, the plaintiff handed him the amount claimed. It appeared that the amount in dispute was due in respect of a property which the plaintiff sold to Y., who agreed to pay the taxes upon it, and paid the same to the treasurer, intimating that it was paid on account of the plaintiff's property. that the treasurer appropriated the amount in payment of a like amount due by Y, person-ally. The plaintiff brought an action for illegal arrest, and claimed as special damage. " amount wrongfully extorted from the plaintiff, as set forth in paragraph 4 of the plead-$8.25." Paragraph 4, referred to, detailed the issue of the warrant " whereby the plaintiff was unlawfully compelled to pay an illegal demand of the defendants, to wit, the sum of $8,25:" — Held, that, even on the plaintiff's own evidence, the action must fail. Walker v. Town of Sydney, 36 N. S. Reps. 48.

Payment under protest-Appeal from assessment-Judgment confirming-Res judicata-Estoppel-Money had and received.]-J., having been assessed in 1896 on personal property as a resident of St. John, N.B., appealed without success to the appeals committee of the common council, and then applied to the Supreme Court of New Brunswick for a writ of certiorari to quash the assessment, which was refused. An ex-ecution having been threatened, he then paid the taxes under protest. In 1897 he was again assessed under the same circumstances, and took the same course, with the excep-tion of appealing to the Supreme Court of Canada from the judgment refusing a cer-tiorari, and that Court held the assessment void and ordered the writ to issue for quashing: 30 S. C. R. 122, 20 Occ. N. 11. J. then brought an action for repayment of the amount paid for the assessment of 1896:-Held, affirming the judgment of the Supreme Court of New Brunswick, 21 Occ. N. that the judgment refusing a certiorari to quash the assessment in 1896 was rcs judicata against J., and he could not recover the amount so paid. Jones v. City of St. John, 21 Occ. N, 401, 31 S. C. R. 320.

4. COURTS OF REVISION.

Street railway — Items — Appeal.]— Although a street railway is operated as a continuous system through all the wards of a city, the portion of the rails, poles, and wires in each ward must be assessed in that ward, and in making the assessment the rails, poles, and wires must be treated as so much dead material, and not as necessary portions of a going concern.-Bridges built and used by a street railway as part of their and used by a select raiway as part of their system are subject to assessment, but must be assessed in the same way as the rails, poles, and wires.—Consumers' Gas Co. v. City of Toronto, 27 S. C. R. 453, In re Bell Telephone Company Assessment, 25 A. R. 351, and In re Toronto Railway Company Assessment, 25 A. R. 135, applied.—Upon an appeal to a board of County Court Judges from the Court of Revision coming on for hearing, the board, at the request of the city corporation, and without any previous notice or assessment or application to the Court of Revision, added to the items of assessable property of a railway company, a certain amount as the value of the portion of the streets of the city "occupied" by the company:—Held, that the board of County Court Judges had no jurisdiction to make this addition, the amendment made by s. 5 of 62 V, c. 27 not then being in force.— Semble, that the railway company were not liable to assessment in respect of the portions of the streets occupied by them. re London Street Railway Assessment, 20 C. 5. EQUALIZATION OF ASSESSMENTS.

Appeal to County Court Judge-Time for jadgment-Imperative enactment, I-The provision in s.-s. 7 of s. 88 of the Assessment Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 224, that the judgment of the County Court Judge on appeal from the equalization by the county council of the assessment of the county shall not be deferred beyond the 1st day of August next after such appeal, is impertive. On equalizing the assessment of the local municipalities of the county of Lambton, the county council added $462,500 to the assessment of Sarnia, as being the "actual values" of said properties over and above their fixed assessments. Sarnia appealed to a board composed of His Honour Judge Snider of the county of Wentworth, His Honour Judge MeWatt, of the county of Lambton, and A. 6. EXEMPTIONS.

Action for taxes—Defence—Assessment —Appeal Court.]—In an action to recover an amount for taxes, defendant disputed her liability on the ground that she was a widow and was exempt by law to the sum of $400, and that such exemption had not been made: —Held, that it was not competent to defendant to raise this defence in an action for the taxes, but that it should have been raised and argued in the Court of Assessment Appeals. Tourn of Westville v, Muuro, 32 N. S. Reps. 511.

Benevolent society—Hall and building rented for public purposes—Basis of valuation for assessment.)—Planitif, a benevolent society, owned a hall, part of which they rented for a show room. The tenant agreed to pay all taxes chargeable against the premises by reason of their use. The lessor agreed, however, to pay regular and ordinary taxes. Assessment was increased after premises were rented —Held, that plainiff must pay taxes on the increased assessment. St. Mary's v, Albee, 6 E. L. R. 582.

Book debts.]—Book debts are assessable in the eity of St. John under s. 121 of 52 V. e. 27 (N.B.), as amended by 63 V. e. 43. Railway bonds secured by mortgage are not exempt under these Acts. Rear v. Sharp, Ex p. Turnbull, 35 N. B. Reps. 477.

Charitable institution — Buildings— "Grounds actually necessary" — Vancouver Incorporation Act. s. 46, s.-s. 3—Court of Revision-Onus - Certiorari.]-Sub-section 3 of s. 46 of the Vancouver Incorporation Act, 1900, provides for the exemption from taxation of the buildings and grounds of any incorporated charitable institution, so long as such buildings and grounds are actually used and occupied by such institution, provided that such grounds shall not exceed in extent the amount actually necessary for the requirements of the institution ; the question as to what amount of land is necessary shall be decided by the Court of Revision, whose decision shall be final.-The assessor assessed the whole of the lands in the city of Vancouver of the St. Paul Hospital, not covered by buildings, belonging to the Sisters of Charity of Providence in British Columbia, an incorporated institution. The Sisters complained to the Court of Revision, and that Court, instead of dealing with the par-ticular exemption by itself, passed a reso-lution exempting all charitable institutions from taxation to the extent of the area occupied by the buildings thereon, and an additional amount of land equal to 25 per cent. of the area occupied by the buildings. The Sisters did not produce evidence to shew the quantity of land required for the purpose of the hospital. Afterwards the Court, acting on their resolution, reduced the assess-ment from $38,250 to $28,585:--Held, that there was no ground for the issue of a cer diorari to remove the decision of the Court of Revision into the Supreme Court. The onus of proving that the conditions mentioned in the sub-section were fulfilled was upon the applicants for the exemption, i.e. the Sisters. Per Martin, J.A. (doubting as to the onus), that, as the Court of Revision had ceased to exist, for the time being, before the application for a certiorari, the writ would be inoperative. Re Sisters of Charity v. Vancouver (1910), 14 W. L. R. 450.

Charitable institutions—Jzemptions— Likeral construction of status. ——Although the general rule is that statutes of exemption should be strictly construed, the rule is not applicable where the work performed is charity, and involves the assumption of a portion of the burden that would otherwise fail upon the public.—Where the purpose of a strature is to exempt educational and charitable institutions from taxation, the statute should not be strictly construed, but should be interpreted in such manner as to exempt all institutions of this nature that can fairly be brought within its language. A portion of the building having been used at intervals for other was assessed at a valuation of DUTDOSCS. $1,000 and the society paid the taxes thereon for some years. Such portion was eventually leased for a term of years to be used for other purposes than those of the society, and the valuation for assessment was increased shall and will well and truly pay or cause to be paid any and all license fees, taxes or other rates or assessments which may be payable to the city of Halifax, or chargeable against the same premises by reason of the manner in which the same are used or occupied by the lessees hereafter, or which are chargeable or levied against any property belonging to the said lessees (the said lessor, however, hereby agreeing to continue to pay as heretofore all the regular and ordinary taxes, water rates and assessments levied upon or with respect to said premises, and the personal property thereon belonging to the lessor)."-The society was obliged to pay the taxes on such increased valuation and brought action to recover amount so paid from lessees :-Held, Fitzpatrick, C.J., and Anglin, J., dis-senting, that the taxes so paid were "regular and ordinary taxes " which lessors had agreed to pay as theretofore and lessees were not Binble therefore interconcerant, St. Mary's, *N. Act of 1891, c. 85, s. 336, the following, amonast other property, is exempted from assessment. "All personal property of military persons racks." etc. — Held, that a private house in the city, under leave to His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the War Department, for the parpose of being used as a place of residence by a military person, for whom there was no suitable accommodation in any barracks in Halifax, was a "government building" within the meaning of the statute, and that personal property contained in such building was exempt from taxation for civic purposes. Railway — Branch lines — Buildings — "Superstructure"—Valuation.] — Clause 16 (relating to exemption from trantion) of the agreement between the Canadian Pacific Railway Company and the Government of Canada, as embodied in 44 V. c. 1, is not applieable to the Crow's Ness Pass Railway, but is applicable only to the main line of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company, and to such branches thereof as the company was suthorized by clause 14 of the agreement to construct from points on the main line, and does not extend to other distinct lines of railway which the company may have been subsequently authorized to construct. Under the Ordinance respecting the Assessment of Railways, C. O. 1808 c. 71, s. 3, the roundhouses, station, or office buildings, section houses, employees' dwellings, freight sheds, and other buildings of like nature belonging to a railway company and situated upon it, are not included in the term "superstructure," but may be assessed separately as personal property under the Municipal Ordinance. Such buildings should not be valued as part of the railway as a going concern, and as having a special value as such, but merely at what they are worth separate and distinct from other portions of the railway. When only two and a half stalls of a roundhouse were situated within the municipality, and the round-house was shewn to be worth $900 a stall the assessment was fixed at $2,250. (p), (as amended by Act of 1902, c. 25), exempts from taxation "the road, rolling stock, bed, track, wharves, station houses, buildings, and plant used exclusively for the purpose of any railway either in course of construction or in operation un-In course of construction or in operation un-der the authority of any Act passed by the legislature of Nova Scotia:"—Held, that this exemption extended to all lines of railway owned, or operated by the plaintiffs. including road bed, right of way, piers, and to be assessed by the defendants, but not to lands which formed no part of the land used exclusively for railway purposes, or which, having been at one time so used, had been abandoned or appropriated to other purposes, or to a steamer used solely for the company's own purposes .-- It could not have been the intention of the legislature, in granting exemption, to permit a general system of railways and connections to be so cut up that certain parts should be liable to taxation while other parts were exempted. Neither is it sufficient to deprive a company of the benefit of exemption that, at the time in ques-tion, only coal mined by the company is carried over one of its extensions, there being provision under the Railway Act to compel it, if necessary, to carry freight for any other person or company. Rallway—Imposition of Tax — Date — Municipal Act.]—Section 2 of R. S. N. S. 1900 c. 73 (Assessment Act) exempted from transition "the road, rolling stock used exclusively for the purpose of any railway, either in course of construction or in operation, exempted under the authority of any Act passed by the Legislature of Nova Scotia." Prior to the passing of this Act the appellants' railway had always been exempt from traxiton, but all former Assessment Acts were renealed by these Revised Statutes, so that it was not "exempted" when the latter came into force. By 2 Edw. VII. c. 25, assented to on the 27th March. 1902, the word "exempted" was struck out of the above clause, and in May, 1902, the appellants were included in the assessment roll for that year for taxation on their railway :

--Held, per Taschereau, C.J., that under the above recited clause the railway was exempt from trantion:--Held, per Davies, Nesbitt, and Killam, J.J., that, if the railway could be traxed under the Assessment Act of 1900, the rate was not authorized until the amending Act of 1902, by which it was exempt, had come into force, and no valid tax was, therefore, imposed. Dominion fron and Steel Co. v. McDonald, 24 Occ. N. 280, 35 S. C. R. 98.

Railway lands-Sale of-Authority to assess-School district.] - Lands vested in the Canadian Pacific Railway Company subto a provision that the same should ject " until they are sold or occupied, be free from taxation for 20 years," were by the company agreed to be sold and conveyed to the appellants as trustees, who were to sell them, accounting for an interest in the proceeds to the company. At the date of the assessment of the lands, the consideration owing by the trustees to the company had been paid :-Held, that the lands had ceased to be exempt from taxation.-Held, also, Wetmore, and McGuire, JJ., dissenting, that, in view of the Ordinances relating to municipalities, and to schools, the lands being situated partly within and partly without the municipality, the school district was authorized to assess, and need not make a demand upon the municipality to do so. Angus v. Calgary School Trustees, 1 Terr. L. R. 111.

Radiway lands—School tures—By-law— Validating statute.]—In 1881 the plaintiffs passed a by-law. No. 148, providing for a bonus to the defendants in consideration of certain works to be undertaken by the defendants, and also providing that the defendants should be forever exempt from all "municipal taxes and rates, levies and assessments, of every nature and kind." In 1885 the Lexislature of Manitoba passed an Act making valid by-law No. 148 of the city of Winnipag, describing it as a by-law for a bonus, but omitting all reference to the exemption clusses:—Held, alli-ming the judgment in 12 Man. L. R. 581, 19 Occ. N. 287, that the statute made valid the whole by-law 148, that relating to exemption from taxes, as well as the portion recited in the Act:—Held, allo, reversing the judgment, that under the bylaw school taxes were included in the exemption from "all municipal taxes." City of Winnipg v. Canadian Pacific Ric, Co., 20 Occ. N. 433, 30 S. C. R. 558.

Railway Ianda—Subidies of the Canadias Pacific Bailmay — Estension of the boundaries of Manitoha—Statutes—Contract —Grant in presenti—Cause of action—Jurdiction—Weiter: —The land subsidy of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company author ised by 44 V. c. 1 (D.), is not a grant in presenti, and, consequently, the period of 20 years of exemption from faxition of such lands provided by clause 16 of the contract for the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway begins from the date of the actual letters patent of grant from the Grown, from time to time, after they have been enrued, selected, surveyed, allotted, and accepted by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. The exemption was from taxation "by the Dominion, or any province hereafter to be established, or any municipal corporation therein;"—Held, that when, in 1881, a portion of the North-West Territories in which this exemption attached was added to Manitoba, the latter was a province "thereafter established," and such added territory continued to be subject to the said exemption from taxation. The limitation in respect of legislation affecting the territory so added to Manitoba, by virtue of the Dominion Act 44 V. c. 14, upon the terms and conditions assented to by the Manitoba Acts, 44 V. (3rd sess.) cc, 1 and 6, are constitutional limitations of the powers of the legislature of Manitoba in respect to such added territory, and embrace the previous legislation of the Parliament of Canada relating to the Canadian Pacific Railway and the land sub-sidy in aid of this construction. Taxation Taxation of any kind attempted to be laid upon any pari of such land subsidy by the North-West Council, the North-West Legislative Assembly, or any municipal or school corpor-ation therein, is Dominion taxation within the meaning of clause 16 of the Canadian Pacific Railway contract providing for ex-emption from taxation. Per Taschereau, C.J.C.:-In the case of the Springdale School District, as the whole cause of action arose in the North-West Territories, the Court of King's Bench for Manitoba had no jurisdiction to entertain the action or to render the judgment appealed from in that case, and judgment appealed from in finit case, and such want of jurisdiction could not be waived. lumber, held licenses to cut timber on Crown lands for 1906 and 1907. They were assessed in 1907 upon their licenses, and upon their lumber camps, and for business tax at the camps, and upon slides and dams. The company were not the owners of any land, nor had they any office or mills in the township wherein they were assessed, nor did they carry on any business therein, but cut timber there, and hauled and floated it to their mills at Bracebridge, where they owned a mill and factory, and which was their chief place of business, and where they were assessed on such factory and mill and also on business:--Held, that timber licenses are not assessable, not being real property within s. 5 of the Assessment Act, 3 Edw. VII. c. 23 (O.), and also because there is nothing to remove the land from the category of property of the Crown exempt from taxation. What the holder of a timber license acquires is a right to convert into personal property, and to thereby acquire a title to himself in, that which until the act of conversion is real property belonging to the Crown-2. Lumber emps are not assessable. They are mere temporary constructions, and are removed from time to time, so that it is quite possible. they may be in one municipality one day and in another the next .--- 3. The company were not assessable for a business tax, under the conditions mentioned, with respect to their camps .- Semble, under s. 10, for a business to be assessable, the land occupied or used for the purpose of the business must be land subject to taxation .--- 4. Slides and dams constructed on streams running through Crown lands out of logs the property of the Crown, and of no value as timber, and used by all persons who have the right to float down logs, are not assessable. Trustees—Income.]—Under s, 46 of the Assessment Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 224, the income derived from property vested in trustees must be regarded for the purpose of assessment as their own income, and is subject to assessment although the trustees have no personal interest in it. Its ultimate destination and mode of expenditure are immaterial, and the obligation of the trustees to pay it to the beneficiaries is not a debt to be set-off against it.—Quare, whether the amendment to the section by 63 V. c. 34, s, 3, affects the question. 7. LOCAL IMPROVEMENTS.

Assessment by wrong name-Mistake in acreage-Directory statute-Time for assessing-Notice-Order in council - Exceptional tax-Powers of Legislature of Territories.]-The defendants were sued by their proper corporate name, but were assessed as "the Hudson's Bay Company:"-Held, that the assessment was not void, no injury being shewn; nor would an error in acreage avoid the assessment. The statute is merely directory on these points. 2. Under s. 17 of c, 17 of the N. W. T. Ordinances of 1899, in a district constituted under s. 14, the assessment may be made at any time of the year; and although the district was only constituted on the 21st July, 1899, under an Ordinance which came into force on the 24th April, 1899, an assessment made on the 24th July, 1899, for the whole year 1899, was valid. 3. The formalities prescribed by s. 3 of c. 73 of the Consolidated Ordinances are unnecessary, except the publication in the Gazette of a notice of the order constituting the district; and a mistake in the number of the district in the publication in the Gazette was not fatal. 4. The district was legally constituted by order in council of the 21st July, 1899; the area was independent of municipalities and villages within its boundaries. 5. The Ordinances respecting public improvements enacted by the Legislative Assembly, under the provisions of which this district was constituted and the assessment complained of made, rendering taxable equally and without exception or discrimination all lands within its limits, do not infringe upon the condition of clause 11 of the Imperial order in council of the 23rd June, 1870, by exceptionally placing a tax upon the lands in question; and from such construction there has been no departure by the Ordinances referred to. McGowan v. Governor and Company of Adventurers of England Trading into Hudson's Bay, 21 Occ. N. 64.

Assessment for drain.]—A special assessment for the construction of a drain, levied and payable in a single amount, overdue, is an "arrear of municipal taxes" within the meaning of Art. 4555, R. S. Q., and is prescribed by three years. Judgment in Q. R. 15 S. C. 417 affirmed. City of St. Heari v, Coursol, Q. R. 9 Q. E. 115.

Flat rate—Authority of dyking commissioners — Drainage, Dyking, and Irrigation Act.]—In assessing certain lands under the provisions of the Drainage, Dyking, and Irrigation Act, the commissioners fixed upon a flat rate, reaching their conclusions from their personal knowledge of the lands, extending over many years, and without making a personal inspection:—Held, that the assessment so made was good. British Columbia Land and Investment Agency Limited v. Featherstone, 13 B. C. R. 190.

Establishment of district-Notice -Error in number—Wrong name—Time for as-sessing—Exceptional tax — Construction of taxing statutes - Conditions subsequent.]-The designation of a local improvement district by an incorrect number, while its name was otherwise correctly stated in the notice in the Gazette constituting the district, did not invalidate the notice. 2. The assessment of the defendants was not invalid by reason of their being assessed under the name of "The Hudson's Bay Company"—a name by which they were commonly designated by themselves and the public. 3. That, though the district in question was not constituted until July, 1899, and the defendants not assessed till August, 1899, they were liable for the whole amount for which they were assessed, the rate of assessment being a fixed rate per acre, irrespective of time, and the assessor being expressly authorized to assess at any time during the year. 4. That the assessment of the defendants under the Ordinances in question is not an exceptional tax upon them within the meaning of the Imperial Order in Council of 23rd June, 1870, inassuch as it was could and uniform through-out the district. The construction of stat-utes generally and of the Ordinances relating to local improvements in particular dising to local improvements in particular dis-cussed. The construction of taxim statutes discussed. The effect of non-fulfilment of statutory conditions subsequent discussed. McGovan v, Governor and Company of Ad-venturers of England Trading into Hudson's Bay, 21 Occ. N. 64, 5 Terr. L. R. 147.

Notice - Dominion lands - Personal liability.1-On the 9th May, 1899, an order in council was passed and published in the Gazette ordering that a certain defined area should be formed into a local improvement district —Held, that as the lands comprised exceeded 72 square miles, the authority for creating it was to be found in s. 14 of c. 17 of the Ordinances of 1899, amending the Local Improvement Ordinance, R. O. c. 73: -Held, that the conditions prescribed by R. O. c. 73, as to municipalities in the district, population, and notice of intention to erect a district, did not apply to districts formed 14 of the Ordinance of 1899. 2 under s. That, although the district was not constituted till May, 1899, the levy of the whole of the taxes for that year was authorized by the Ordinance. 3. That the defendants were properly assessed as occupants of Dominion lands comprised in a lease, and the fact that the lands were not enclosed and that the defendants permitted the stock of other persons to run or graze upon them did not relieve them from liability as occupants. 4. That it is the owners or occupants, and not the lands, that are to be assessed. Crosskill v. Sarnia Ranching Co., 21 Occ. N. 577.

Powers of district council-Resolution — Validity — Money payment—Commu-tation — Day labour—Posting up—Assessment roll-Time for adding names-Imperative or directory enactments.] — The posting required by Local Improvement Ordinance (N. W. T. 1903, 2nd session, c. 24, s. 53) refers to the act of the secretary in depositing the roll on completion in his office (s. ing the foll on completion in his once (s, 51); and the limitation of two months con-tained in s. 53 for additions to the roll is "mandatory" or "imperative" and not merely "directory."—Semble, per Stuart, J., that under the Ordinance the council of - 51 local improvement district may still provide by resolution for commutation of taxes by labour, and fix the rate or credit to be al-lowed.-The council of a local improvement district passed the following resolution: "That the assessment rate be 4 cents per acre, 80 cents to be paid in money and the balance to be worked out by day labour at $1.40 per day of ten hours or $2.80 for a man and team, the overseers to give ratepayers 14 days' notice by mail or 3 days' in person. Any ratepayer failing to appear on the overseer ratepayer failing to appear on the overseers' notice to forfeit his right to work, and shall pay his taxes in money. If ratepayers elect to work part of the assessment, they must notify the secretary-treasurer to that effect and pay 80 cents by the 1st May or forfeit their right to work." By a resolution of the council, it was decided that the councillor for each division be a standing committee to appoint one or more overseers for his division and specify the places to be worked on : -Held, by Stuart, J., that the real effect of this resolution was to impose a rate of 4 cents per acre on all assessable land in the district, but with an option to the ratepayers to make a contract with the district to do work at a certain rate per day, which would be accepted as payment of the tax; but, if the option were not taken up according to the terms of the resolution, the obligation to pay in money would be final. Local Improvement District No. 26 A5 v. Walters, S W. L. R. 176, 1 Alta, L. R. 188.

Sidewalk-General By-law - Irregularities in procedure.]-The defendant corporation provided, by a by-law under s. 667 of the Municipal Act, that every petition for or against the construction of a sidewalk as a local improvement should be left with the clerk of the council, whose duty it should be to examine it, and to report at the next meeting of council whether it was sufficiently signed, what real property would be benefited. and the respective frontages, and the probable lifetime and probable cost of the sidewalk. A petition for the construction of a sidewalk as a local improvement was handed to the clerk, who examined it and came to the conclusion that it was signed by two-thirds of the owners. It was on the same day presented to the council, who resolved that the petition should be granted, and that the clerk should determine forthwith whether the petition was sufficiently signed. The clerk immediately reported that it was sufficiently igned, and his report was received and adopted, but he The did not report as to the other matters. council then proceeded under s. 672 to have Judgment of Falconorlidge, $CJ_{1,2}$ O. W. R. 732, affirmed. Canada Co. v. Town of Mitchell, 24 Occ. N. 210, 7 O. L. R. 482, 3 O. W. R. 478.

Special frontage assessment - Local improvement-Half lots abutting on street-Irregularity-Special Act-Construction.] -The special frontage assessment provided for in the Medicine Hat charter (6 Edw. VII. c. 63), title 34, is governed by the number of lineal feet measured along the front or other abutting portion of the land; and the fact that the abutting lots vary in depth does not render improper assessment by the frontage method proportionate to the benefits received. Consequently, where a lot was divided so that one-half fronted on the street, and the other half on another street :--Held, that each half was liable to the full assessment by the frontage method, but only in respect of improve ments on that street upon which such half lot fronted or "abutted." Brotherton v. City of Medicine Hat, 7 W. L. R. 187, 1 Alta. L. R. 119.

Unenclosed lands under lease from Grown—" Occupant" — Personal liability.] —Where lands are held under lease from the Crown, and, though they are not enclosed or fenced, the lease uses them as pasture for his sheep, the lease is an "occupant" of the lands within the meaning of the Local Improvement Ordinance, C. O. 1898 c. 73, s. 15. Notwithstanding the wording of s. 16, s.-s. 2, and of s. 17, of the said Ordinance, the effect of the provisions of ss. 15, 20, and 23 is to create a personal liability to pay, upon which the occupant may be sued. Crosskill v. 8. SCHOOL TAXES.

Assessment made before commencement of year—Change of ownership—Tages paid under protest — Recovery.]—An assessment made by school trustees towards the close of one year, as an assessment for the next year, is not a compliance with s. 6 of the School Avsessment Ordinance. And where the plaintiff had paid taxes under protest, to prevent the sale of goods seized for alleged arrents: -Held, that, in the circumstances set out in the judgment, he could waive the tort, and recover the amount so paid. Brantz v. White Whale Lake School District, 7 W. L. R. 164, 1 Alta, L. R. 14.

Assessment to be made as of date of completion of roll-Change of ownership-Canadian Pacific Railway Act, 44 Vic. c. 1, * 16-Construction-Stations - "Required and used "-School assessment-Transfer of lands from rural to urban district - Assessment made before transfer-Double taxation Business tax-Excessive valuation.]-Appellants, the Bell Telephone Company, were owners of certain lands when the assessment roll was being made up, but 6 days before its completion these lands became vested in the Crown :--Held, that the roll must be amended by striking out the appellant's name. In s. 16 above "required and used" refers to "all stations and station grounds," as well as to "workshops, buildings, yards, etc." Lands taxed for rural school purposes cannot be taxed during the same year for urban school purposes on these lands becoming annexed to the city. Re City of Regina Assessment, 11 W. L. R. 441.

County school fund-Liability of incorporated towns to contribute-3 Edw. VII. c. 6, s. 7-Special and general statutes-Implied repeal.]-Prior to incorporation of town of D. the inhabitants of the town and their property were liable, under provisions of Education Act, to contribute their proportion of the county school fund, but under provi-sions contained in the Act incorporating the town, is was held exempted from making such contribution, and thereafter received and disbursed the government grant, and also its own rates, without contributing to county fund or receiving any share thereof. Subsequently, by Acts of 1903, c. 6, s. 7, it was enacted as follows: "The clerk of the municipality of every county or district shall annually add to the amount required for county purposes a sam sufficient . . . to yield an amount sam sufficient . . . to yield an amount equal to 35c, for every inhabitant . . . of the municipality, and of all incorporated towns which before incorporation territorially formed part of such county or district. -Then followed provisions for collection and division of the amount between municipality and incorporated towns, in same proportion as the county fund, and a provision, "not-withstanding" the provisions of any statute of Nova Scotia, that every incorporated town should annually, on or before a fixed date, pay to the treasurer of the municipality of the county or district of which it before incorporation territorially formed a part, its proportionate part of said sum :-Held, that the language of this Act referred directly to the Act incorporating towns, including town of D., and its effect was to displace the implication from expressions in the Act of incorporation under which the town had been held exempted from contribution to the county fund. And that the maxim generalia specialibus non derogant was not applicable, the Act incorporating the town being general in its character, while the Act in question was a special one containing special terms and dealing with a special subject, viz., the contribution to be made by incorporated towns to county school fund.—Semble, there is a difference between rendering inoperative implications placed upon expressions contained in an Act and repealing them. Halifas v. Dartmouth, 38 N. S. R. 1. Affirmed by Supreme Court of Canada, Dartmouth v. Halifax (1906), 37 S. C. R. 514.

Debts-Situs - Double domicile-School Ordinance.] - The School Ordinance, C. O. Oranance, 1 — The Senool Oranance, C. O. 1898 c. 75, s. 131, s.-s. 2, interprets "personal estate" and "personal property" as including inter alia "accounts and debts contracted within the district," and s. 132 provides that "All real and personal property situated within the limits of any school district . .. shall be liable to taxation "-subject to certain exceptions and exemptions :- Held (against the objections, (1) that debts have no situs, and therefore cannot be situated anywhere; and (2) if they can have a situs, it is, in the case of a creditor being a person, his domicile; and of a corporation, the place of its head office); that choses in action, including debts, have a situs; that debts contracted within a school district are, for the purposes of taxation, situate within the district, and are assessable by the district notwithstanding that the creditor, if a person, has not his domicile therein, or if a corporation has not its head office situated therein. If the situs of a debt is the domicile of the creditor, a person as well as a corporation may have, if not for all, at all events, for some purposes, more than one domicile, namely: (1) at the head office of the corporation, and at the actual residence of the person; and also (2) where the business of the corporation, or person, is actually carried on; and, therefore, where the Hud-son's Bay Company, whose head office is in London, England, carried on at Battleford an ordinary merchan's business, and Mac-donald, whose actual residence was in Win-nipeg, Manitoba, also did the same, debts contracted to them at the Battleford places of business were, for the purpose of taxation, situated in Battleford. Hudson's Bay Co. v. Battleford School District, Macdonald v. Battleford School District, Macdonald v. Battleford School District, Clinkshill v.

Distress for arrears.) — Defendant, bailiff for school trustee, seized 75 horses, of which 75 belonged to plaintii:—Held, that seizure was regular, and not a nullity, as taxes were due even if all claimed were not. That seizure was made under another warrant at the same time will not make the seizure null or irregular:—Held, further, that seizure was excessive and damages given. Robertson v. Harper, 12 W. Li. R. 5.

Exemption—By-laws — Acts of Legislature.]—Stratford passed by-laws exempting two manufacturing companies from taxation on certain conditions. The Legislature of Ontario passed Acts 62 Vic. e. 22, 63 Vic. c. 98, confirming these by-laws. MacMahon, J.: -Held, 14 O. W. R. 437, following the rule of interpretation of statutes as laid down by Maxwell, Std ed., p. 113: "Legislatures do not intend to make any alterations in the law beyond what it explicitly declares," that the words "to be given exemption from taxation," must be construed as limiting the exemption to such taxes as the municipality had the power of exempting, and the city had no power to exempt the companies from school taxes. Court of Appeal held (Meredith, J.A., dissenting), that the words "to be given exemption from taxation." must be construed as limiting the exemption to such taxes as the municipality had the power of exempting, and the city had no power to exempt the companies from school taxes. Can. Pac. Rw. Co. v. Winnipeg (1900), 308 S. C. R. 558, and R. ex rcl. Harding v. Bennett (1896), 27 O. R. 314, distinguished.—Held, also, that the proper measure of relief is under the circumstances of a declaration applicable to the future only. Judgment of MacMahon, J., 14 O. W. 9. SPECIAL TAXES.

Bonus by-law-Clerk-Collector's roll-Debenturcs, sale of.]-While a by-law of a township corporation provided for the raising by the issue and sale of debentures of a certain sum to be paid by way of bonus to a railway company, and for the levying of an annual rate for the purpose of paying the debentures:-Held, that it was the duty of the township clerk under s. 129 of the Assessment Act, without any further direction or authorization, to insert in the collectors' rolls the amount with which each ratepayer was chargeable under such by-law; and it was not cargenore unor such by-law; and it was not necessary that the amount leviable each year under such by-law should be mentioned in the annual by-law authorizing the levy of the Municipal Act had not the effect of mak-ing it necessary. Clarke v. Toren of Palmer-ston, 6 O. R. 616, distinguished.—2. That the rate could be layid nor itheration the rate could be levied notwithstanding that none of the debentures had been sold.--3. That the failure to collect the rate for the first year after the passing of the by-law did not cause the failure of the whole scheme .- Semble, that if the scheme should fail and nothing be paid to the railway company, the ratepayers could recover their money from the corporation. Bogart v. Township of King, 20 Occ. N. 384, 32 O. R. 135.

Fire insurance company—" Doing business."]—Action to recover $400, being the amount of special tax imposed by the city of Montreal upon fire insurance companies doing business within the city. The defendant company contended that it did not come within the provisions of the by-law in question, since it took no risks in the city, although its chief office was there:—Held, that the issue of a policy in Montreal was the acceptance of a risk in the city, even though the property thereby insured was situated outside the city. City of Montreal v. Union Mutual Fire Ins. Co., 21 Occ. N. 52. Frontage assessment — Local improvement—Half lots abutting on street—Irregularity of assessment—Constitution of special Act incorporating city. Re Brotherton and City of Medicine Hat (Alta.), 7 W. L. R. 187.

Interest.]—In the case of municipal corportations subject to the general enactments concerning towns, arrears of taxes, even special taxes, are subject to a three years' prescription, and the same prescription operates against interrupted when the ratepayer has asked and obtained an extension of time for payment, and does not begin to run, until the expiration of such extension. Lapierre v. Renaud, Q. R. 17, S. C. 273.

Local tax-Insurance company-Agency.] —In an action against an insurance company under the Fire Companies' Aid Amendment Act of 1871, which applies only to Victoria, for taxes due by it as a company issuing policies within the city limits, it was held at the trial, dismissing the action, that the plaintiff had failed to establish agency :--Held, by the full Court, dismissing plaintiff's appeal, that the action was misconceived; that the tax sought to be recovered was not on the company directly, but in respect of a special form of agency described in the statute, and the evidence negatived the existence of such an agency. Douler v, Union Assurance Society, 9 B, C, R 196.

Lottery—Permit—Date of payment—Exorbitancy—Constitutionality.] — The date at which a tax, under the form of a permit, imposed on every person or company carrying on the business of a lottery, ought to be paid, is sufficiently indicated when the by-law imposing it declares that such permit is a tax payable annually within the periods fixed by the city charter, that it will expire on the 1st May after it has been issued, and will be renewed every year upon demand.—2. A tax cannot be called exorbitant when it does not exceed the amount fixed by the charter of the city for the particular thing to which such tax applies.—3. The legislature has power to authorize the imposition of taxes, under the form of permits, to persons or companies carrying on lotteries. Societé des Ecoles Gratuites v. City of Montreal, Q. R. 19 S. C. 148.

Montreal city charter—Construction— "Current year"—Limitation of action—Local improcements — Special tax,]—By s. 120 of the charter of the city of Montreal, 52 V. c. 9 (Q.), the right to recover taxes is prescribed and extinguished by the lapse of "three years, in addition to the current year, to be counted from the time at which such tax, etc., became due." A special assessment for local improvements became due on the 14th March, 1898, and action was brought to recover the same on the 4th February, 1902:—Held, affirming the judgment in Q. R. 15 K. B. 479, Fitzpatrick, C.J.C., and Duff, J., dissenting, that the words "current year" in the section in question, mean the year commencing on the date when the tax became due, and that the time limited for prescription had not expired at the time of the institution of the action. Vanier V. City of Montreal, 39 S. C. R. 151.

Poll tax — Municipality — Non-resident— Civil servant—Recovery back.]—The plaintiff, an employee in the library of the Provincial Legislature in the city of Quebec, sued the city corporation to recover back $26 paid by him at the rate of $2 a year for thirteen years in respect of a capitation tax imposed by virtue of 40 V, c. 52, s. 3. The plaintiff did not live in the city, but performed his daily duties there —Held, that he was not liable to the tax, and was entitled to recover back the amount paid. Desjardins v. City of Quebec, Q. R, 18 S. C. 434.

Special assessment roll — Contestation —Prescription — Interruption — Injunction —Reasission.]—Under the former charter of the city of Montreal (52 V. c. 79), the contestation of a special assessment roll, by a person assessed therein, had not the effect of interrupting prescription as regards other persons subject to such assessment.—2. The fact that the person contesting the roll obtained a temporary order enjoining the city against making any collection under the roll attacked, did not constitute an interruption of prescription as regards other persons assessed by the same roll, where such order was made without objection on the part of the city, and no steps were subsequently taken by the city to obtain the resistion of the order. Judgment in Q. R. 23 S. C. 461 affirmed. City of Montreal V. Land and Loan Co., Q. R. 13 K. B. 74.

10. STATUTE LABOUR.

Assessment Act—Imperative provision— Separate assessment of distinct lots.]—Section 109 of the Assessment Act, which in effect provides that if the assessment is for more than 200 acres the statute labour shall be rated and charged against every separate lot or parcel according to its assessed value, is imperative, and not merely directory. Where, therefore, on an assessment of 600 acres, instead of the amount chargeable against the several lots owned by the plantiff being rated and charged against each lot, a bulk sum was assessed for statute labour and charged against the whole of them, the assessment was held invalid. Assessment rolls—Defective description of land—Validating statute—Authority to Assessment: Commissioner to purchase for municipality—Waiver—Plaintiff as alderman voting for resolution—Absence of notice to owner —Setting aside sale, Russell v. City of Toronto, 90, 00, W, R. 288.

Assessment roll — Indefinite description of land. —In 1906 Toronto sold to defendant for 1901 and 1902 taxes 9 feet of lot 19 on N. side of Lennox St. The land advertised for sale was "part of lots 18 & 19, plan 120, 42 x 53, commencing," etc. Upon the assessment roll for 1901 & 1902 the land was set down as a vacant lot on Bathurst St., "rear for 5, 93 x 50." etc. Neither lot 19 or 18 on N. side Lennox St. had any frontage on and neither lot touched Bathurst St., "rear of the land was made in 1901 & 1902, and, therefore, no taxes were legally imposed for which it could be sold. If the assessment could be treated as one of lots 18 & 19 according to a registered plan, the joining of them in one assessment was improper, and the assessment was, therefore, invalid, and the defect was not cured by s. 172 of the Assessment Act (1904). Christie v. Johnston (1806), 12 Gr. 534, followed. Semble, per Meredith, C.J.C.P., that, as the land was made, and was owned by a person not resident in Ont, who had not required her name to be enter 1 on the assessment roll, it should have been assessed in name of and against defendant, and she, for the purpose of imposing and collecting taxes upon and from the land, was to be deemed owner of it (R. S. O. 1897, c. 224, s. 22); and therefore she was not entilded to become the purchaser at the tax sale, and so deprive owner of part of her land, because the unpaid taxes would have been ingapable by defendant, if the assesson had done his duty. on plan 396, in the city of Toronto, for the arrears of taxes thereon for the years 1893 to 1898, inclusive, were set aside, for the direct breach of s. 176 of the Assessment Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 224, the provisions of which are imperative, by selling in April, 1901, without having either in the preceding January or in January, 1900, which preceded the date of the mayor's warrant, included the two lots in the list of lands liable to sale furnished to the clerk under s. 152; and also because the description of the lands in the assessment rolls from 1893 to 1898 was too vague and indefinite to be a compliance with the Act: see ss. 13, 29, 34.—The assessments being invalid, the defendant was not entitled to a lien under s. 218 for the amount of the purchase money paid by her, but was entitled to a lien for taxes paid by her for the years 1900 to 1906, inclusive, the assessment for those years being sufficient, and interest thereon, but less the rents and profits derived therefrom, subject to a deduction for repairs, improvements, etc.—Fenton v. McWain, 41 U. Invalidity - Onus - Proof of taxes in arrear - Assessor's return - Irregularity-Limitation of actions, — In action brought on the 23rd April, 1902; to set aside a sale of land made on the 7th October, 1898, for arrears of taxes for 1895, 1896, and 1897, and a deed made in November, 1899;—Held, that the onus of proof of the invalidity of the tax title rested on the plaintiffs. Taxes for the whole period of three years next preceding the 1st January, 1898, being due and in arrear and unpaid, and those for the year 1895 having been in arrear for three years next preceding that day, the lot was, by s. 152 of the Assessment Act, R. S. O. 189, c. 224, liable to be sold in 1898 for such arrears. The proceedings leading up to the sale were substantially regular, with one exception, the omission of the clerk of the municipality to furnish the treasurer, as he is required to do by the last clause of s. 153, with a true copy of the list furnished by the latter under s. 152, with the assessor's return, certified to by the clerk under the seal of the corporation .-Quare, whether this requirement of s. 153 was of so essential a character as, conceding that taxes were in arrear, to render a sale invalid if attacked before any statutory limitation upon an action came into operation. Love v. Webster (1895), 26 O. R. 453, distinguished:—Hcld, however, that as in this case the omission worked no injury to the plaintiffs, who had all the notices and delays to which they were entitled, and in respect to whose land all the other conditions essential to a valid tax sale existed, and as the action was brought more than three years after the sale and more than two years after the deed, it should be dismissed. Opposition—Motion to reject—Delay— Substitution — Curator — Parties — City charter—Statement of Treasurer—Effect of.]

A Court which is moved, by virtue of Art. 651 of the new Code of Procedure, to reject an opposition to the sale of realty, ought to reject it if it is convinced that the object is, not to protect the opposing party from an injustice, but to delay the sale without rea-son.-2. If the same party has already made several oppositions which have been rejected. there is a strong presumption that the new opposition has for its object nothing but to delay the sale unjustly.--3. The fact that land advertised for sale by the sheriff is comprised in a substitution, the curator of which has not been made a party, is not a legal reason for opposition to the sale.-4. When the sheriff, having already made a seizure of the land, receives from the treasurer of the city of Montreal a statement prepared in accordance with Arts. 396 to 399 of the new charter, stating that taxes are due to the city, upon the property in question, he ought to announce it for sale; he has no right to content himself with noting the statement as an opposition à fin de conserver .--- 5, A statement prepared by the treasurer of the city of Montreal by virtue of Arts. 396 and 399 of the new charter is equivalent to a judgment for the amount of taxes there set down, and the fact that the valuation roll upon which the taxes appear is contested cannot be invoked in opposition to the sale of the land mentioned in the statement. City of Montreal v. Maudeville, 2 Q. P. R. 377.

Order confirming—Notice.]—An order, under s. 151 of the Municipal Clauses Act Amendment Act of 1898 and amendments of 1899 and 1900, confirming a tax sale, will not be made without notice of the petition for the order being given to the persons whose property is being sold, Re South Vancouver Tax Sale, 9 B. Sale by provincial assessor-Property of municipality—Purchaser — Agent — Fidu-ciary relationship.]—The city of Nelson was incorporated in March, 1897, and in September, 1898, land situated therein was sold by the provincial assessor for taxes for the years 1896 and 1897, levied under the provisions of the Assessment Act :--Held, setting aside the tax deed, that there was no authority to hold the tax sale, as the Assessment Act does not apply to municipalities. In July, 1897, a real estate agent on behalf of the owner negotiated with a prospective purchaser, but the attempted sale fell through, and after that the agent and the owner ceased to have any dealings with each other. In September, 1898, the agent bought the property at a tax sale at a very low figure :--Held, that at the time of the sale the agent was not in a fiduciary relation to the owner. McLeod v. Waterman, 10 B. C. R. 42.

Sale of wrong lot - Reconveyance by urchaser-Recognition of validity of sale-Third parties.]-The sale of anything belonging to another person is radically void; thus the sale of an immovable made in error, for municipal taxes due upon the adjoining immovable, is /oid, and does not purge the hypothecs by which the immovable sold is affected. 2. In this case the reconveyance which the true owner obtains from the purchaser or his assigns is not to be interpreted as a recognition of validity of such a sale; and, even where a sale is recognized as valid by the true owner, such recognition can only be considered as a new sale made by the true owner and not affecting the rights of third parties. Humphreys v. Desjardins, Q. R. 24 S. C. 250.

Invalidity—Tax deed—Recitals—Onus— Prescription—Municipal Code.]—1. Sale of immovables for taxes not assessed upon them, or for an amount in excess of such taxes, is null and void—Recitals in deed of sale, under Arts, 1008 and 1009. M.C., do not a ford a presumption juris et de jure of valid sale, and eridence of its nullity is admissible, e.g., to shew the taxes for which it was made were not due, and that formalities required by law were not complied with—Burden of proof fol legality of sale is upon purchaser when it is challenged or impugned by original owner, or by those claiming under him.—A deed of sale for taxes which is void as started firstly above, is not a title (juste titre) that can avail as a ground for prescription by 10 years, nor does prescription of 2 years of Art, 1015, M.C., apply to it. Cameron v. Lee (1906), 27 Que S. C. 535.

Land Titles Act, 1894 — Confirmation of tax sole—Transfer—Treasurer.]—Though a parchaser at a municipal tax sale does not, within one month after the expiration of the time for redemption, make a demand upon the treasurer for a transfer, nor pay to him the $2 for such transfer, and it is not until long after the expiration of the said month that such demand and payment are made and such transfer executed, the treasurer has authority to execute the transfer to the purchaser. In re Prince Albert Tax Sales, 4 Terr. L. R. 198.

Onus—Proof of calidity of assessment and subsequent proceedings — Easement—Extinction by tax sole—"Privilege."]—The onus of proving a valid sale for taxes is upon the party setting up title under a tax deed; the production of the deed is not enough; further evidence must be given going to the foundation on which the deed rests, in order that the validity of the assessment and all subsequent proceedings may be exhibited. Jones v. Bank of Upper Canada, 13 Gr. 74, and Stevenson v. Traynor, 12 O. R. 804, followed.—The defendant contended that an ensement or right of way enjoyed by the plaintif over ten feet of land sold for taxes was extinguished by the sale in 1803, as being included in the word "privilege" used in the Consolidated Assessment Act, 1892, s. 137, then in force:—Semble, that the law of Onturio does not provide for the taxation of easements; and the title to an easement cannot be extinguished by the sale for taxes of the servient tenement, without notice to the person who uses it and without opportunity for him to exonerate the land by the payment of taxes. Essery v. Bell, 18 O. L. R. 76, 13 O. W. R. 395.

Possessory action,]—The purchaser, at a tax sale for municipal taxes by virtue of Arts, 1000 and 1001, M.C., of part of a lot, and who receives the certificate provided for by Art, 1004, M.C., the situation and boundaries not being fixed, however, does not thereby acquire a possession giving him the right to have recourse to a possessory action. Under these conditions, such action must be dismisse t, reserving recourse, particularly when it is sound impossible, from the proof, to determine, without a preliminary fixing of the boundaries, the location, in one or the other of two municipalities, of the land in dispute, and, consequently, the validity of its sale. It is not necessary to give the notice required by Arts, 961 and 1006, M.C., to purchasers of immovables who have not made known, in ounformity with the provisions of Art, 746, M.C., a change in the ownership, nor to absentees who have not appointed agents as required by Art, 222, M.C. St. Appollinarie v, Roger (1090), 36 Que S. C. 520.

iii. Conduct of Sale.

Adjournment-Collusion at sale-Mandamus to compel treasurer to make searches, and together with the corporation execute a deed under s. 165 of Assessment Act.]-Plaintiff purchased certain lots at an adjourned tax sale held at Sault Ste. Marie, Nov. 7th, The lands not having been redeemed, 1907. plaintiff demanded that the treasurer make searches under s. 165, c. 23, 4 Edw. VII., and send out notices. The treasurer, on instruction from town council, refused to make searches or issue deeds, on ground that sale was irregular, and that there was collusion on part of plaintiff and others attending sale. Plaintiff brought action for mandamus against treasurer to compel him to make searches, and against the town of Sault Ste. Marie to restrain them from exercising any control over the treasurer to prevent him from making searches, and for an order compelling the corporation to issue a tax deed to plain-tiff :--Held, that the corporation and the treasurer both stand in the relation of trustees-First, of the municipality to which the taxes are payable, to see that as much as possible of the taxes are paid, and secondly to see that the owners' interests in the lands sold at the tax sale are not sacrificed; that the defendants were entitled to attack the original tax sale held on Oct. 28th, 1907, and when irregularities in that sale were brought to their attention they were justified in refusing to proceed any further, or to issue tax deeds under the adjourned sale on Nov. 7th, 1907; that the conduct of those present at the adjourned sale in sitting togetuer, bidding in rotation, buying practically the same number of lots and at practically a uniform price, shewed collusion, notwithstanding that it was not proved there was any agreement in express words between the parties-a "mere arrangement or under-standing" being sufficient; that what took place at the adjourned tax sale was of such a character that a deed obtained of these lots could not be supported, and if a deed could ought not to go against the treasurer to compel him to do what is necessary, so that afterwards he could give a deed to the plaintiff. Action dismissed with costs. Quare: Whether under the Act the date of the adjourned sale should be fixed and announced immediately the first parcel of land cannot be sold at the first sale, or whether it it sufficient to fix and announce the date of the adjourned sale at any time before the first sale proceedings are ended. Dawson v. Sault Ste. Marie & Mc-Crea (1909), 15 O. W. R. 230.

iv. Persons Entitled to Buy.

Purchase by municipality—Authority for recet to bid at sale—Jasesment Act, R. S. M. 1902 c. 117, s. 176.)—Under s. 176 of the Assessment Act, R. S. M. 1902, c. 117, which provides that a municipality may bid for lands within its boundaries which are being solid for arrears of taxes and become the purchaser through the mayor or reeve, or any member of the council duly authorized by the council so to bid, it is not sufficient that the council sould authorize the reeve to attend the tax sale on behalf of the municipality; and a purchase by the reevo without express authority to bid is invalid and ineffectual to pass file to the municipality or to a purchaser from it.—None of the currive clauses of the Act avail to support the claim of the purchaser in such a case. Basnatype v. Prichard, 5 W. L. R, 478, 16 Man. L. R. 407.

v. Objection to Validity of Sale.

(a) Validity of Assessment, 287.

(b) Proceedings Irregular or Invalid, 289.

(a) Validity of Assessment.

Description of lots—Block assessment —Plan — Gener — Defects — Curative provisions.]—An assessment of lots as "water lots 436 x 600" is invalid as not identifying them. An assessment of lots en bloc after they have been sub-divided by registered plan, and without shewing the known owner against whom particular parcels are assessable, is invalid as disregarding the essential requirements of R. S. O. c. 224, s. 13. The requirements of R. S. O. c. 224, s. 13. The requirements of the collector, treasure, clerk, and assessor, with reference to the list of lands liable to be sold, were not compled with; and the defects were not cured by s. 208, which the deed is valid if not questioned within two years. The judgment of MacMahon, J. 32 O. R. 274, 21 Occ. N. 30, affirmed for the reasons therein stated, as regards the invalidity of the tax sale in question:—Held, however, that the language of s. 218 of the Assessment Act, R. S. O. C. 224, has no application to cases where the taxes have not been lawfully imposed, or where the taxes for which the land was sold were not in arrear. The grantee of the tax purchaser was, therefore, not entitled to the lien which he claimed in respect of the same alleged to be due for taxes for the years 1890 and 1891, for there was in these years no valid assessment, and therefore no taxes in arrear as to then; but the case as to 1892 and 1893 was on a different footing; for the assessment for those years was a valid one and not affected by the error in the statement as to the depth of the lots, which might be rejected as falaa demonstratio, and the taxes for 1892 and 1893 were, therefore, validly imposed and in arrear at the time of the sale. Judgment below varied. Wildman v. Tait (1901), 21 Occ. N. 465, 20 L. R. 307.

Meetings of council and Court of Revision not held in municipality Municipal Act, 1894, s. 15-Unanimous con-sent inferred from absence of objection-Presumption of regularity after great lapse of time-Validating statute-Tax sale by-law-Failure to observe requirements of-Acqui-Parameter Waiver-Publication of notice-Proof of "expenses"-Ex parte order con-firming sale-Effect of-Validity-Remedy of plaintiff-Redemption-Tender.1-In an action to set aside a sale made in 1898 by the municipality of South Vancouver of lands in that municipality for the taxes of the years 1893 to 1897 the plaintiff alleged that there was never a valid assessment or levy during all those years by reason of the fact that the various meetings of the municipal council and of the Court of Revision at which the question of taxes was dealt with were held not within the limits of the municipality but in the city of Vancouver :---Held, that there was no reason in law (apart from statute) why the meetings of the council, whether for ordinary business or as a Court of Revision. should not have been held at any place without the limits of the municipality, and the provision in the Municipal Act of 1892, s. 103. had no relation to this question.—The Sta-tute of 1894, s. 15, provides that "all meetings of the municipal council shall take place within the limits of the municipality, except where the council have unanimously resolved that it would be more convenient to hold such meetings, or some of them, outside of the limits of the municipality ".--Held, that the existence of this unanimity on the part of members of the council might be proved othertion entered in the minutes. No bint of objection from any members of the council or from any one else appeared upon the minutes or otherwise during all these years; and, in these circumstances, the condition mentioned in the Act of 1894 was complied with. After so great a lapse of time, the presumption that the meetings were regularly held was insur-mountable. Meetings of the council sitting as a Court of Revision were in the same position as ordinary meetings :---Held, also, that any illegality such as alleged, if it ex-isted, was cured by statute. Russell,* C. R., [1005] A. C. 455, followed:—Held, also, that there was no substance in any of the objections advanced, such as that public notice of the lands for sale was not given in the manner prescribed, that the notice to the plaintiff was not posted in the proper post office, and that there was no proof of "expenses" incurred, the sale being made to satisfy expenses as well as taxes .- On the 5th April, 1899, an order confirming the sale was made by a Judge of the Supreme Court, upon an application by the municipality ex parte:-Held, that the order was properly made ex parte, under the statute then in force, c. 35 of the British Columbia Statutes force, c. 35 of the British Columbia Statutes of 1898, s. 14.—Re South Vancouver, 9 B. C. R. 572, remarked upon.—Held, also, that, even if the order was invalid, the plaintiff could not in this action take advantage of the invalidity. The plaintiff must, if he desired to put an end to the interest of the tax sale purchaser, pursue the remedy provided by the Statute of 1898, s. 15, namely, tender to the municipality the purchase price paid. That he has not done; and, even if the confirming order was a nullity, he had nothing more than a right of redemption, enforceable only as set out in the statute. Anderson v. Action by plaintiff personally and as trustee for his wife-Irregular notices-Sale "super non domino."]-Under the deeds registered and filed in this cause, the plain-tiff, personally and as trustee for his wife, being vested with the ownership and possession of the property in question in this cause had, as such, the right to institute the pre-sent action.—The sale of the property in question in this cause effected by corporation defendant to the mis-en-cause, is null and void, the notice for sale having been made for taxes, while defendant's claim was in reality for water rates; taxes having been illegally added on the day of the sale, and such sale having been effected "super non domino." without notice nor claim upon plaintiff, as the registered owner of such property, as required by the charter of the city of Hull, 1893, Arts. 345, 349, 350. The making of a contract for the sale of land vested in the corporation is not one of the powers which the council of the city of Winnipeg, under its C.C.L.-10

M. 1902 c. 148, to lands formerly owned by the plaintiff and purchased by them at a tax sale, by reason of the facts that, after the issue of the final certificate of title in 1902, the city assessor assessed the land to the plaintiff, the Court of Revision confirmed the assessment, the usual assessment notice was sent to the plaintiff, and the tax collec-tor sent to him the usual notice and demand for the taxes of that year, as these steps had all been taken by the city officials in accordance with their statutory duties and without and which their examples for the standard values in any special authority or instructions from the city council,— β , Per (lowel), C.J.A.:-A.I. though the city council passed a resolution authorizing a sale of the lands to the plaintiff for a named amount, and the resolution was entered in the minutes, which were after-wards signed by the mayor and city clerk, yet there was no writing signed in such a manner as to be binding under the Statute of Frauds. -4. Per Mathers, J. :--If the defendants had sued the plaintiff for the taxes for 1902, rely-ing on s. 387 of the charter, it would have been a good defence to shew that he was not the owner of the lands at the time of the return of the assessment roll and its final revision, and, therefore, it could not be said that the defendants were asserting two absolutely inconsistent rights. Although, by s. 166 of the Assessment Act, R. S. M. 1892 c. 101, vesting certificates issued by a municipality in its own favour, upon sales of land for taxes bought in for the municipality, are to have the same effect in all re-spects as deeds of sale of land for taxes, and by s. 191 of the same chapter, as re-enacted by 55 V. c. 26, s. 7, a tax deed is made conclusive evidence of the validity of the assessment of the land, the levy of the rate, the sale, and all the other proceedings lead-ing up to the execution of the deed, yet it does not follow that such vesting certificate should have the same effect as evidence as tax deeds would have, and the mere produc-tion and proof of the vesting certificate does not shift the onus from the municipality claiming title under it, of furnishing proof Cambridge title under h., of rationality proof of the validity of the tax sale...Allowedy v. Cambrid, 7 Man. L. R. 506, and Ryan v. Whelan, 20 S. C. R. 65, followed.-2. The provisions of ss. 6 and 7 of 55 V. c. 26, as to the evidential value of a tax sale deed, do not apply to vesting certificates, and leave it open to the former owner to shew, if he can, that there was no legal assessment or levy for the years in respect of which the land was sold for taxes....3. A municipality is estopped from questioning the regularity of its own proceedings relating to a tax sale, or of the assessment upon which the same were founded, as against a purchaser in good faith who has paid the purchase money and ob-tained a deed under the corporate seal of the municipality. Re Laplante and Peterborough, 5 O. R. 634, followed.—4. The assessment of the land in question for the year 1891 was null and void, because : (a) the assessor had not signed the assessment roll, as required not signed the assessment roll, as required by 53 Y. c. 45, s. 42, although he had signed the certificate appended to the roll, as re-quired by 43 of the same chapter; and (b) the land was only described as the "N. The defendants have the right to proceed to sell the plaintiff's lands for taxes so levied. Such a proceeding is not barred by s. 24 above, Royce v. Macdonald, 11 W. L. R. 277. Reversed (1910), 12 W. Municipal Ordinance-Jand Titles Act Transfer Conclusiveness Operation of statute.]-Under ss. 201 and 202 of Municipal Ordinance (C. O. 1838, c. 70), a transfer of land by secretary-treasurer of a municipality, on a sale for taxes, is conclusive after one year, and the sale can only be guestioned on grounds specified in s. 202. Non-compliance with statute -Invalidity-Curative provisions.]-In a sale of land for taxes there was a faiture to distrain, although sufficient goods were on the premises to have paid the taxes; the account furnished by the collector did not, as required by s. 140 of R. S. O. 1887, c. 193, shew the reason why the taxes had not been collected; there as no delivery to the collector by the clerk of the list furnished him by the treasurer, as required by s. 141; no notification, as also required by that section, by the collector to the occupants or owners of the lands of their liability to be sold for taxes; no certificate verified by oath as required by s. 142; nor any list furnished by the clerk to the treasurer the lands which had become occupied or of were incorrectly described, as required by s. 143 :- Held, that the sale was invalid; and the invalidity was not cured by ss. 189, 190, which validate a sale on the expiration of two years from the making of the tax deed. Omission to furnish list of lands to be sold — Limitation sections of Assessment Act — Port Arthur Special Act — Conveyance by owner after sale - Repeal of Act after action brought.]-The omission of the treasurer of the municipality to furnish to the clerk a list of the lands liable to be sold for taxes is a fatal objection to the validity of a sale for taxes, and neither the limitation sections of the Assessment Act, nor the provision of the special Act relating to sales for taxes in Port Arthur, 63 V. c. 86 (O.), are a protection to the tax purchaser. The owners of land sold for taxes conveyed it after the tax sale to the plaintiff, who then brought an action against the tax purchaser to set aside the sale. The statute 32 Hen, VIII, c. 9 was in force when the conveyance was made, and when the action was brought, but was TOpealed before the trial of the action :--Held, that the prohibition of the statute applied, and that the action could not be maintained. Judgment of Ferguson, J., 1 O, W. R. 560, affirmed. Ruttan v. Burk (1904), 24 Occ. N. 85, 7 O. L. R. 56, 3 O. W. R. 167.

Proceeding by municipal corporation — Registered orner — Claimant — Status — Unregistered orner — Claimant — Status — One who, by title registered in registry office immovable is situated, appears to be owner of it, is regarded as being in possession animo domini, within meaning of Art 609, C. P. C., especially when the immovable is wild land upon which no ostensible act of possession has been done. Therefore, where such immovable is sized and sold for taxes charged against it, in a suit by municipal corporation against the pe-son who appears to be owner as mentioned, the decree is valid, and a third person who asserts ownership by virtue of a title preferable to that of the defendant, has no status to intervene and nullify the decree as against plaintiff corporation. Right of ownership of an immovable by virtue of an unregistered title may be ertinguished by sale under a decree. Outremont v. Cabana (1906), Q. R. 14 K. B. 366.

Purchaser at - Liability for taxes of year of sale-Statutes-Amendment.]-Cer-tain lots in the city of Calgary were on the 27th June, 1896, sold for arrears of taxes due thereon for certain years prior to 1896; the sales were duly confirmed by the Court, and on the 10th July, 1897, and 27th June, 1898, the purchaser received certificates of title in due form from the Registrar of Land Titles, and entered into and remained in possession of the lots as owner. The lots were duly assessed for taxes for the year 1896, but no rate was struck until after the sale. The said taxes for 1896 remained unpaid for two years. Section 81 of the Ordinance Incor-porating the city of Calgary provides that the transfer from the treasurer to the purchaser shall vest in the purchaser all the rights of property of the original holder of the land, and purge and disincumber it from all incumbrances of whatever nature other than existing liens of the city and the Crown :---Held, that the lots in question were liable to be sold for taxes for the year 1896, and that, under s, 51 of the same Ordinance, the purchaser was personally liable to the city for the amount of the taxes. Section 81 was amended by Ordinance 1900, c, 39, s, 4, by the addition after the word "Crown" of the words "including all taxes unpaid upon such land at the day of the date of such transfer, and whether imposed before or after the day of the date of the tax sale at which said lands were sold :"-Held, that this amendment did not raise the presumption that the section as it originally stood had not the same meaning ; that the amendment was probably made to remove doubts that may have existed. Application to confirm—Time for redemption—Statutes — Retroactivity—Land Titles Act—Tender.]—Held, that an order permitting redemption by the original owners of land sold for taxes cannot be made under the provisions of s. 2 of c. 12 of the Ordinances of 1900, as amended by s. 1 of c. 9 of 1903, unless it be proved affirmatively by the applicant for redemption, on the hearing of the application for confirmation, that, before the time of the actual hearing of the application, the person entitled to redeem has endeavoured to do so, but by reason of inability to ascertain the amount due has been unable to tender the necessary amount:—Held, also, that the decision of the Supreme Court of Canada in North British Canadian Investment Co. v. Exercise of privilege—Rights of personredeeming—Obligation of purchaser—Reconveyance.] — The privilege of redemption of an immovable sold for taxes by virtue of the statute, 62 Y, c. 58, s. 402 (0.), in the same way as the power of réméré provided under the title "Sale" in the Civil Code, can only be exercised by a reciprocal act of retrocession. Such powers operate as a condition resolutiore, and are exercised, by those who have the right, by a unilateral deed manifesting the intention, the effect of which is to put matters in the same condition as if the sale had not taken place. The parties continue to have their respective rights, excent the legal obligations to which the redemption or réméré is subject. The affidavit of plaintin's agent that the redemption money was tendered on 24th May, 1861, and the rule to redeem was 7th January, 1862. The de-The affidavit of plaintiff's agent states fendant shewed that no money was produced, and no offer was made which would amount to a legal tender. Against the application defendant contended (1) that as plaintiff did not take out his rule until after the expiration of the two years allowed to redeem he was too late, even though the tender had been made in time; (2) that no legal tender having been made the rule must be discharged:--Held, Peters, J., that it was sufficient to satisfy the statute if the tender was made within two years, even though the rule was not taken out until after the two years had elapsed. Although an actual tender is not in all cases necessary, yet here there was no offer which could amount to a legal tender of any amount, and, therefore, the rule must be discharged. Sullivan v. Land Tax Act, 11 V. c. 7, s. 12-Power of Supreme Court-Equity of redemption-Application to redeem - Charges disallowed.]-Application to redeem land sold for non-payment of land-tax. The statute gives an equity of redemption for two years from sale on payment of the purchase money with lawful interest and reasonable expenses, and a fair allowance for improvements. and a fair allowance for improvements. In this case the plaintiff tendered £6, but de-fendant claimed £11 6s, 8d., in which he in-cluded charges for clearing land, attending the sale, attending to register deed, attending to pay land-tax, having land surveyed, The defendant contended that the Suetc. preme Court had no jurisdiction, and that plaintiff must resort to the Court of Chancery :---Held, Peters, J., that the Court had jurisdiction, and that during the two years the purchaser could neither commit waste nor claim remuneration for improvements which a mortgagor in possession could not claim, and, therefore, the charge for clearing land could not be allowed. Also, that in the absence of positive allegations in defendant's affidavit supporting the charges for surveying and attending to register they could not be allowed, and that the charges for attending the sale and to pay land-tax could not be allowed in any case. Sullivan v. Ramsay (1862), 1 P. E. I. R. 209.

DeBlois, S.'s agent, tendered the redemption money to C. subsequent to the latter's conveyance, and in ignorance of it, but it was refused. C. and his brother, in their affidavit, asserted that DeBlois, when making his tender, did not express that he was making it for the plaintiff, and that he did not refer to him as owner of the land, and hence it was insisted the tender was bad. Under the circumstances it was clear that Carr knew that plaintiff was owner:—Held, Peters, J., that the tender was good, and the plaintiff was entitled to redeem notwithstanding the assignment to Ramsays. Sublican v, Carr & Ramsay (1863), 1 P. E. I. H. 228.

Owner and purchaser — Compensation for improvements.]-The owner of land sold for land-tax applied to have the amount of redemption money ascertained, and to compel purchaser on re-payment thereof to reconvey. The purchaser was owner of the dower, and had been in possession, at time of sale, under an agreement to purchase. He submitted an account for £19 3. 2d., made up of £5 13s. 2d, for purchase money, $\pounds 3$ 10s. for ploughing and fencing, and $\pounds 11$ for erecting a house. The Act gives the owner a right to redeem within two years on re-payment of the purchase money with interest and all reasonable expenses, and a fair allowance for improvements. The question arose here as to whether the items for ploughing, fencing and building a house, were such as a purchaser had a right to make, or for which, if made, he was entitled to compensation :-Held, Peters, J., that the purchaser, until the expiration of two years. is only an equitable mortgagee, and as such is allowed for necessary expenditure in keeping the place in repair, but not for other improvements, such as new buildings, except under special circumstances. That there being no necessity shewn for the improvements defendant ought not to be allowed for them. That as owner of the dower defendant was himself bound to pay one-third of the purance of the 1. Bridge over Niagara river between Ontarlo and the United States was built by a bridge company for the passage over it of trains having connecting lines on either side of the rive:—Held, that the rule of valuation to be applied is that provided by s. 43. s.s. 2 (a), of the Assessment Act, 4 Edw. VII. c. 23 (O.), namely, that part of the structure within the province is to be valued as an integral part of the whole, and at its cash value as the same would be appraised upon a sale to another company possessing similar powers, rights and franchises, and subject to similar conditions and burdens, and incorporating the provisions and basis of the Assessment Act, set forth in s. 42, s.s. 8. City of Toronto, 27 S. C. R. 453, that the company's water mains and pipes were assessable as "land." 2. That, however, the form of the assessment did not include the mains and pipes, and that the attempted assessment of them was ineffective, and that the roll could not be amended, in view of the fact that the value of the mains and pipes bad not been made a question in the proceedings. 3. That the fact that the city charter gave power to assess the shares of the company did not prevent the city from exercising the power also given thereby to assess any part of the company's real or personal property. 4. That the fact that the mains and pipes were laid under the authority of an agreement with the city in that behalf did not exempt them from assessment. Calagary Gas and Waterworks Co. v. Deposit — Notice — Time — Revision — Municipal council — Discretion — Interference by Gourt.]—Notice of the deposit of a valuation roll, under Art. 732. M. C. and of its revision by the municipal council, under Art. 736, may be given simultaneously by one and the same document, no interval of time being required to elapse between the two. Municipal councils, in revising valuation rolls, have a discretion, with which the Courts will not interfere by the exercise of their reforming power, except in cases of evident injustice amounting to oppression. Discrimination against non-resi-dents — Petition to County Court Judge — Authority of agent of ratepayer-Time for petition—Objection made to assessors—No-tice—Waiver—Payment of school tax—Certiorari-Grounds.]-In a petition for relief by a non-resident ratepayer under 44 V. c. 9 (N.B.), it is sufficient evidence of authority to warrant the County Court Judge in act-ing, that the person petitioning describes him-self as the agent of the person aggrieved in the matter of the assessment, and swears to the truth of the statements in the petition. The time within which the petition must be presented under the Act does not begin to run until after the assessment complained of has been made up from the corrected list and filed with the county secretary, and then within one month, either from notice of the assessment from the county officer charged with the duty of giving notice, or from the time the person assessed first heard or knew of such assessment. It is no objection to an application under the Act that objection to the valuation of the property was made to the assessors under C. S. c. 100, s. 59, and that the objection might have been further prosecuted before the valuators under s. 68. Where one of the objections under the Act is that the property of residents had been greatly undervalued, the effect of which was to increase the rate of non-residents, it is not necessary that the residents, the valuation of whose property is attacked, should have notice of the application. The right to apply for relief from general county taxes is not waived by payment of the school tax. The petition un-der the Act must contain facts from which it can be collected that the petitioner is aggrieved, or must state the fact. The specific grounds upon which a certiorari is granted must, under Rule 7, Mich., 1899, be stated, and a general statement, i.e., "also all other grounds taken at the hearing in the Court below." is objectionable. S. O. ch. 4376. Such illegality must be of a kind that vitiates the roll, as a whole, and overvaluation in particular cases affords no ground for such a proceed-The party affected, in such a case, has ing. a right of complaint to the town council, on appeal from the decision of the latter to the Circuit Court within a prescribed delay. The remedy by petition to the Superior Court, and that by complaint and appeal to the Circuit Court, are distinct in their purposes, and a party using the former will not be allowed to so amend his petition as to make it include the other. Allegations in a petition to quash setting forth in substance that, in making the valuation roll, the valuators did not give their own estimated value of the property therein, but, at the bidding of the council, over-valued it in order to make the borrowing of money by the corporation more easy, are not demurrable, as they amount to charges of illegality for which, if proved, the roll should be set aside. The oaths of office of valuators need not be in writing. When no substantial wrong is shown, a valuation roll will not be set aside for mere irregularities, such as insufficient notices, irregular adjournments of sessions of the town council, the refusal to examine the valuators at the hearing of a complaint, or mistakes as to valuation in particular cases. When the valuators are two or more in number, they are not bound to jointly visit or inspect the properties they have to value. Percival v. Montreal West (1910), 37 S. C. Section 3 of title 31 of the Strath-cona charter provides that "land shall be assessed at its fair actual value," and con tinues: "In estimating the value, regard shall be had to its situation and the purpose for which it is used, or, if sold by the present owner, it could and would probably be used in the next succeeding 12 months. There was no evidence of any depreciation in value since the syndicate bought; but the evidence shewed that the lands were situated at the outermost point of the city, a mile from the nearest subdivided portion of the city, 2 miles or more from the chief business portion of the city, and having no communication by roads or streets with other parts of the city; that the lands were not at present used for any purpose, and were covered with bush, and, even if sold, would not probably be used for building within the next 12 months: there was no suggestion of any other use, except for farming purposes; and the assessor stated that adjoining farm lands were assessed at \$100 an acre :- Held, that the rates fixed by the County Court Judge was the fair actual value of the property.-Section 3 of title 31 further provides that there shall be no reduction, unless the difference between the value and the assessment be gross, if the assessment bears a fair and just proportion to the assessment other lands in the immediate vicinity :- Held, that this provision had no application, because the difference was gross, and because there was no evidence from which the relathere was no evidence from which the rela-tive values of this and other adjoining lands could be ascertained. Putting two lots on plan in one parcel-Sale of real estate for municipal taxes -Sale of two lots as forming only one-Mode of division on accepting part.]- (1) The union of two lots on plan as forming only one block, on the assessment rolls for municipal purposes, is at most an irregularity that the owner assessable ought to have separated within the time allowed. When that time has expired he is not entitled, without proof of damage, to move to set the assessment aside. On the list taxes remaining unpaid prepared by the secretary-treasurer of the local council and on the copy he transmits to the secretary-treasurer the county, the same as in the list published by the latter for the sale, the whole as provided for in arts. 371, 373, 998 and 999 C. M., these lots ought to be described in the same way as on the assessment rolls as forming only one parcel. After the sale the purchaser on taking less provided for in 1001 C. M., is entitled to a fraction of art. the two lots thus united, forming one parcel. Hence, an offer to pay the amount to re-lease and the costs, providing for the adjudi-cation as to one of the lots, is not a legal release, and the sale of the one the arbitrator chooses, and the certificate given to him, are void. Railway lands-Right of way.]-Held, following Rouse v. Great Western Rw. Co., 15 U. C. R. 168, that the grading of a rail-way could not be assessed, and that in order to ascertain the value of the railway property consisting of the right of way and station houses and yards, a fair test was to take the average value per acre of the tier of lots through which the railway ran, and, after making a reduction from that for the value of buildings and improvements on the farm, to value the railway lands at the same value per acre as the lots through which they passed. Applying this rule, and taking the value of each lot adjoining, it was found that (including the buildings upon them) the lots were assessed at an average value of \$45 per acre. The railway company's lands, valued at this figure, were found to be worth \$5,175, from which a deduction of \$387, being $7\frac{1}{2}$ per cent., was made on account of the average difference in the value of buildings on the adjoining farms. Subtracting this amount from \$5,175 left a balance of \$4.788, at which the assessment of the railway company's lands was fixed. In re Township of Chat-ham and Canadian Pacific Rw. Co., 21 Occ. Where vacant land is shewn to be "bona fide enclosed." as mentioned in s.-a, 1, and used in connection with a residence as a garden, "position and local advantage" are to be considered in addition to an annual rental in fixing the value for assessment purposes, and persons making use of valuable lands for the purposes of a garden, park, etc., should be assessed for it in the same proportion of value as other lands in the vicinity. Vancouver Incorporation Act, 1900, ss. 38, 56—Valuation of improvements — Mode of—Decision of Judge on appeal from Court of Revision-Appeal from.]-No appeal lies from the decision of a Judge on an appeal from the Court of Revision, had un-der s. 56 of the Vancouver Incorporation Act. An objection to an appeal on the ground that the Court has no jurisdiction to hear it is not a preliminary objection within s. 83 of the Supreme Court Act. Although the full Court has no jurisdiction to hear appeals, it has jurisdiction to award costs in dismissing it. Under s. 38 of the Vancouver Incorporation Act, 1900, all ratable property for assessment purposes shall be estimated at its actual cash value, as it would be appraised in payment of a just debt from a solvent debtor.-In estimating the value of an expensive residence built by its owner, it is fair to assume that the owner will not permit his property to be sacrificed, and therefore a valuation approaching to nearly the actual cost is not excessive. Waterworks company-Valuing plant -1 Edw. VII. c. 29, s. 2-Retroactivity -Construction.]- Held, that the statute 1 Edw. VII. c. 9, s. 2, amending the Assess-ment Act by inserting ss, 18a and 18b, is not retroactive, and therefore does not affect the assessment in question, which was made by the assessor and confirmed on appeal to the Court of Revision for the city, before the Act came into force; but doubted, even if the Act is retroactive, whether in any way it affects or changes the principle of assessment governing corporations like the appel-lants. All that it enacts is, that the property shall be valued as a whole, or as an integral part of a whole, instead, as formerly, by wards separately. Thus it leaves untouched and unaltered the law laid down in In re Bell Telephone Company Assessment, 25 A. R. 351, In re London Street Railway Company Assessment, 27 A. R. S3, and In re Queenston Heights Bridge Assessment, 1 O. L. R. 114, that as real property it shall be estimated at its actual cash value, as it would be appraised in payment of a just debt from a solvent debtor. This standard by the Act of last session is now applied to the property in its larger area as extended by the statute, but the standard remains the same :--Held, also, that the evidence of wit-nesses fixing value by wards (when one of the elements of such value is the possibility of a franchise in such ward, distinct from other wards, being obtained at some future time), is too remote to prevent the application of the law as settled by the cases, as also is the chance at some future time of getting a franchise to connect the wards with one another. Wild lands-Valuation-Assessor acting on instructions from superior officers-Ex-emptin-Jurisdiction of Court of Revision.] -In assessing 500,000 acres of wild land, consisting largely of inaccessible mountains and valleys, the assessor acted on instruc-tions received from his superior officers and fixed the value at \$1 per acre for the whole tract. On appeal to the Court of Revision and Appeal, evidence was taken, and an average value of 45 cents per acre was fixed. An appeal was taken to the full Court, on the grounds that the valuation was too high, and that, so far as some of the lands were concerned, they were exempt from taxation under the company's Subsidy Act, and on the argument counsel for the company asked the Court to fix the assessable value of the the court to fix the assessment value of the lands at the specific sum of 847.198.23— Held, per Drake, J., that, as some of the land was of some value and some of it of no value, the fixing of a flat rate was not a compliance with s. 51 of the Assessment Act, 1903, and that the assessment should be set aside with costs. Per Irving, J., that the evidence did not enable the Court to form any opinion as to the value of the land within the meaning of s. 51, and, as the as-sessment was improperly levied at the outset, assement was improperly levied at the outset, the Court should simply declare that there was no proper assessment in respect of which an appeal will lie:-Held, per Drake and Irving, JJ. (Duff, J., dissenting), that by the operation of s. 3 of the amending Act, with respect to all the lands granted to the company, the exemption from taxation con-ferred by s. 7 of the Subsidy Act expired with the expiration of the period of ten years, beginning with the 8th April, 1893, and that therefore the lands claimed to be exempt were assessable. On the 6th April, 1909, the garnishee filed a statement shewing that she was indebted to the defendant in the sum of \$2.652 for purchase money of land, under an agreement made on the 28th October, 1998. but that by an agreement made on the 5th April, 1909 (that is, after service of the parnishee summons), no instalments would be due until the 1st November, 1909, when \$150 and interest would be due and payable. The plaintiff (garnishing creditor) appar-ently accepted that statement, and after the 1st November, 1909, moved for an order that the garnishee pay \$150 into Court :--Held, that the service of the garnishee summons attached the liability of the garnishee to the judgment debtor as it existed on the day of service; and the subsequent agreement could not affect that liability to the prejudice of the attaching creditor: but, at any rate, the garnishee was estopped from setting up, on this application, another state of facts from that disclosed by her filed statement; and that the plaintiff was entitled to judgment Randall v. Lithgow, 12 Q. B. D. 525, fol-lowed. Semble, that the garnishee had the right to deduct from the amounts falling due to the vendor under the agreement such moneys as she had paid out (for taxes and interest) to protect her rights under the agreement, and possibly what she was liable to pay, and the service of the garnishee summons did not affect that right. Beauchamp y. Messer (1910), 13 W. L. R. 404, 3 Sask. L. R. 59.

Annulty—Parent and child—Alimentary allowance—Surrender—Rights of creditor.] —An annuity payable as part of the price of an immovable sold by a father to his son, will not be held to be insaisable under the pretext that it is alimentary. It could not even be stipulated to be such, being constituted a titre oncreus.—2. The proof that the person entitled to a life rent payable by his son has come to live with the latter, and has not since exacted payment, does not establish the extinction by surrender of the obligation to pay it, as against a third person who has attached the amount as payable to the father. Lamoureux v. Blanchard, Q. R. 32 S. C. 150.

Annulty — Payment by son to father where land conveyed to son—Proportion attachable—Date of payment.]— A life rent stipulated for in an onerous contract is subject to the rights of creditors.—Where the father in a deed of bargain and sale to his son has charged the latter with the payment to him of a sum each year, the parties cannot afterwards validly agree that the payment shall be made in kind instead of in money. The son, being served as grarnishee with a saisie-arrift issued by a judgment creditor of the father, will be ordered to pay over to the creditor the amount accrued due in proportion to the total sum payable annually; but payment over need not be made until the time mentioned in the deed. Lamoureux v. Blanchard, S. Q. P. R. 317.

Assignment of fund-Contingency -Ascertainment. Evans v. Clancy, 2 O. W. R. 522.

Assignment of future salary pointments "during pleasure"-The Public Service Act, ss. 12 and 26.]-The salary of a civil servant whose appointment is "during pleasure" accrues from day to day irrespective of when the salary may have been made payable by Order-in-Council, Departmental Regulation, or otherwise. A powerof-attorney authorising the attorney to collet a sum of money does not per se operate as an equitable assignment of the fund, if, however, it appears from all the surrounding circumstances that it was the intention of the parties that the fund should be assigned. an equitable assignment is established. The rule of law that the salaries of public officers cannot be assigned as being contrary to public policy does not extend to the case of a junior clerk. Salary to be earned in the future is assignable, Crouch v. Martin, 2 Vern, 595, 23 E. R. 987, followed, Traders Bank v. McKay (1909), 2 Alta, L. R. 31. Crouch v. Martin, 2

Assignment of moneys earned by machinery-Other machinery used in earning moneys attached-Equitable assignment Assignment of future debts-Practice -Affidavits.] - The defendant purchased certain machinery from the Waterous Engine Works, and, on the purchase, executed a document by which he assigned to the Waterous Engine Works " all moneys owing to or earned by the purchaser (the defendant) for work done either wholly or partly with or by the aid of said machinery, or any part thereof." The plaintiff attached certain moneys earned by the defendant in threshing with a portion of such machinery, and the Waterous Engine Works claimed such moneys under the assignment. It was agreed that the issue should be determined in a summary way upon affidavits :- Held, that the claimant, being really the plaintiff in an issue, was entitled to file affidavits in reply to those filed by the plaintiff in the action. -(2) That the intention of the parties in stating that moneys earned by part of the machinery should be assigned, was not to limit the amount to the part of the moneys that might be earned by the unchinery used $39

Balance in bank — Appropriation by bank to payment of unmatured note, without consent of debtor.]—The plaintiffs commenced this action on the 18th November, 1909, and issued a garnishee summons against a bank, which was served upon the bank on that day. On the 17th November the defendant had a balance to his credit in the bank of $756.20; but the bank held a promissory note of the defendant for $700, maturing on the 13th December; and on that day, the 17th November, the bank charged the note to the defendant's account, allowing a rebate for the days it had to run, and thus, if this was effective, reducing the defendant's balance to $60. This was done without the knowledge or consent of the defendant:—Held, that the garnishee summons effectively attached the whole sum of $756.20. Bower v Foreign and Colonial Gas Co., 22 W, R. 740, followed. McCready v. Alberta Clothing Co. (1910). 13 W. L. R. 680.

Balance of purchase money of business of partnership-Promissory note in favour of wife of one partner-Rights of cre-ditors of firm and of individual partners -Novation-Legal or equitable debt-Fraud-Form of issue-Garnishee proceedings inef-fective.]—A firm composed of A. and B. were indebted to the extent of $500 to an-other firm composed of X. and Y. By mutual arrangement between the two firms, A. one of the partners of X and Y, in payment of the debt from A, and B, to X, and Y, in payment of the debt from A, and B, to X, and Y. D, recovered a judgment against X. for $378, and issued and served a garnishee summons upon A. alone. E. recovered a judgment for $95 against X, and Y, and issued and served a garnishee summons upon A, alone. F. recovered a judgment against X. and Y. for $30.50, and issued and served a garnishee summons upon A. alone. G. recov-ered a judgment against X. and Y., and issued and served a garnishee summons upon A. and B. :-Held, that the garnishee summonses were all ineffective .- (a) Assuming the bona fides of the transaction whereby Mrs. X, became holder of the note, because there was nothing due or accruing due from A. and B., or either of them, to X. and Y., or either of them.—(b) If the transaction in question were alleged to be fraudulent, on duestion were aneged to be traducient, on the ground that under the garnishee issue, as directed, the question of fraud could not be tried (following Hull v. Donohoe, 24 S. C. R. 683):--Held, in any event, that the garnishee summons issued by D. was ineffective, because: (1) a debt owing to a firm cannot be attached in an action against an individual member of a firm; (2) an at-tachment against an individual who is a member of a firm cannot affect a debt owing by the firm; and, for the second reason, the garnishee summonses issued by E. and F. were alike ineffective .- Semble, that but for the debt having by reason of the note ceased to be a debt from A. and B. to X. and Y., the garnishee summons issued by G. would have been effective; and that a garnishee summons can be issued against a farm in the firm name. The effect of a garnishee summons in this respect distinguished from that of an order for attachment of debts under the English practice. Minger v. Anderson, 8 W. L. R. 428, 1 Alta. L. R. 400.

Bank deposit—Attachment for debt of depositor—Claim of true ourcer—Intervention.]—The fact of a person depositing sums of money in his own name in a bank does not take away from the true owner of such sums the right of recovering such sums. The true owner, as the third party, may assert his rights of recovering such sums. The true owner, as a third party, may assert his rights by intervention in a garnishing cause, and have annulled the saise-arrêt of such sums by the garnishing creditor. Stephens v. Higgins, 5 O. P. R. 1.

Commission of agent-Portion attachable—Set-off.)—The defendant was the agent of the garnishees, an insurance company, earning a salary of one dollar a year and a commission which he retained upon premiums which he received for the company, to whom, after making the deduction, he remitted the balance of the premiums. In answer to the garnishing process, the garnishees declared these facts, adding that they owed the defendant nothing. Subsequently, upon an order that they should declare the amount of the commission which the defendant had retained upon premiums collected since the service of the garnishing process, the garnishees declared that the defendant had retained $80.70 for commission, adding, however, that he owed them more than that amount .--- Held, that the act of the agent in retaining the commissions being the act of the company, the latter was to be regarded as having paid the amount of the commissions thus retained, and these payments having been made since the service of the process, the plaintiff was entitled, without contesting the declaration of the garnishees, to demand that they should pay him the amount.—2. But the commission thus kept back by the defendant fell under Art. 599. C. P. C., paragraph II, and the attachment, therefore, extended only to one-fifth of the amount so paid.—3. The garnishees could not set off gaainst such commissions the amount which the defendant owed them, set-off not operating to the prejudice of the garnishing process. Gauthier v. Huot, Q. R. 16 S. C. 242.

Company — Debts of servants to.] — There is nothing to hinder the garnishing in the hands of employees of a defendant company of moneys which the employees personally owe to the company. United Countics Rue. Co. v. Letendre, 3 Q. P. R. 295.

Company—Liability of purchase of assets to indemnify subscriber against calls— Subject to garnishment—Purchase by one company of stock in another—Illegality — Objection not raised at trial—Estoppel.]—1. The purchaser of the assets of a company incorporated under the Manitoha Joint Stock Companies Act, R. S. M. 1902, c. 30, who agrees to assume the liabilities of the company, is bound to indemnify the company against their liability for payment of future calls on shares of stock held by them in a fire insurance company, which were only partly paid up at the time of the sale, although no mention of such liability was made the time, the purchaser being aware thereof; and such liability is attachable at the suit of the fire insurance company under Rules 759 and 761 of the King's Bench Act. for the purpose of realising on a judgment obtained for the amount of unpaid arrears of subsequent calls on the shares.-2. Per Dubuc, C.J.-An objection based on s. 68 of the Joint Stock Companies Act, that no company incorporated under that Act can use any of its funds in the purchase of stock in any other corporation unless expressly authorised by a by-law confirmed at a general meeting, and that there was no evidence of any such by-law having been passed, cannot be given effect to on the hearing of an ap-Proctor v. Parker, 12 Man, L. R. 528, and Hughes v. Chambers, 14 Man, L. R. 163, followed .- Per Perdue, J., dissenting. - Although not raised at the trial, such objection should be given effect to on this appeal. Cases cited distinguished on the ground that here the evidence all went to shew that no such by-law had ever been passed, and if the objection had been raised at the trial the plaintiffs could not have given any evidence to overcome it .- 3. Per Dubuc, C.J., the statute does not prohibit a joint stock company from holding stock in another corporation ; it provides only that its funds shall not be used for such purpose unless expressly authorised by by law confirmed at a general meeting; and, if it were shewn that such shares had been acquired otherwise than by using any of the funds of the company, the holding would be legal .--- 4. Per Perdue, J .--The recovery of the judgment by the plaintiffs against the company did not estop the garnishee from setting up the defence arising out of s. 68 of the Joint Stock Companies Act. Victoria Montreal Fire Ins. Co. v. Strome and Whyte Co., 15 Man, L. R. 645.

Costs due to solicitor-Agreement with client to throw off-Fraud upon creditors. Waller v. Malone, 3 O. R. 774.

Damages for personal injuries — Alimentary claim—Limited attachment.] — Damages awarded as compensation for personal wrongs, bodily injuries, and medical attendance rendered necessary thereby, are in the nature of an alimentary claim, and are not attachable for a debt other: than one which has been created for the purpose of assuring the payment of such damages or the preservation of the plaintiff's right thereto. Lafond v. Marsan, Q. R. 24 S. C. 22, 5 Que. P. R. 232.

Damages for personal injuries — Judgment—Alimentary provision — Attachment before judgment].—The right of a person injured in an accident to recover from the person who caused the accident the damages suffered, is a purely personal right, and cannot be exercised by the ordinary creditors of the person injured. But when the person injured exercises the right the amount of damages or indemnity recovered is not in the nature of an alimentary provision, but becomes part of the property or means of the injured one; and therefore such a sum may be seized or attached by his creditors, and they may proceed by may of attachment even before judgment in the action brought by the person injured. Moleone Bank v. Lionaia, S. D. C. A. 176, followed. Judgment in Q. R. 25 S. C. 188 reversed, and judgment in Q. R. 24 S. C. 282, restored. *Gock*rane v. McShane, Q. R. 13 K. B. 505, 6 Que, P. R. 405.

Deposit in bank—Double attachment— Foreign Court.]—A deposit was made in the branch office in Manitoba of the bank, garnishee, and subsequently, the deposit was paid into Court by the bank, under an order made by the Court in Manitoba, in proceedings taken in that province concerning the estate of the deceased. The same sum having been subsequently attached in the province of Quebec, where the head office of the bank is situated:—Held, that the garnishee was bound to obey the order made in the proceedings in Manitoba, and could not be compelled to pay the money a second time. Harris v. Cordingley, Q. R. 16 S. C. 501.

Deposit made by solicitors with security company—Contract—Garnishment by creditor of solicitors' client,]— Where advocates make an arreement with a security company to furnish security for their client for the purposes of an appeal, in consideration of the deposit of a sum equal to that for which the security is given and the payment of a commission, the company, when discharged from the security, are debtors to the advocates in respect to the sum deposited, by virtue of the contract between them; and therefore the deposit is not attachable in the hands of the company by a creditor of the client-appellant in the cause in which the security was given. Bernard v. Royal Trust Co., Q. R. 16 K. B. 323.

Division Court — Cheque — Payment stopped — Payment into Court — Sale of Goods.]—A vendor of goods, after receiving payment therefor, fraudulently sold them to another purchaser, who bought in good faith, giving in payment his cheque drawn on a bank at T. but cashed at a bank in O. on payment being guaranteed by an indorser. The second purchaser on being served by the first with a garnishee summons issued out of a Division Court, stopped payment of the cheque, and paid the amount into Court. The indorser, meanwhile, paid the bank at O.:—Heid, that he was cnitiled to the money paid into Court. Wider v. Wolf, 22 Occ. N. 293, 4 O. L. R. 451, 1 O. W. B. 481.

Equitable assignment—Disputed facts —Issue. Wilkinson Plough Co. v. Perrin, 2 O. W. R. 541.

Fees of bailiffs—Exemptions—Liability of solicitors,1—The fees of bailiffs are attachable in their entirety, and are not included in the exemptions which are enumerated in Art. 590, C, P. C. In spite of stipulations previously made to the contrary, solicitors are personally liable to the bailiffs they employ for payment of their fees, and that although they have not received payment from their clients. Fees of curator in insolvency.] — The curator appointed for the purpose of liquidating the property of an insolvent is a public functionary, whose fees are, according to the terms of art. 5309, C. P., not garnishable. Snyder v. Gagnon, 3 Que. P. R. 271.

Foreign corporation—Debts due by.]— Moneys payable in a foreign country, by a foreign corporation, for services performed in that country, under a contract made there, are not seizable under a writ of asisie-arreit issued out of a Court of this Province, although the foreign corporation may have a branch office and be served with the process in this Province. Goodhue v. O'Leary, Q. R. 17 S. C. 201.

Gold dust delivered to garnishee in parcel to be handed to judgment debtor—Whether garnishable under Kule of Court. Barnard v. Freeman (Y.T.), 8 W. L. R. 721.

Income from trust fund—Assignment of fund and income.]—An attaching order under 45 V. e. 17 will not lie against the income of a trust fund, unless there are trust moneys actually in the hands of the trustees at the time the order is served; nor will an attaching order operate upon debus of which the judgment debtor has divested himself by assignment, even though the assignment may be void as against creditors under 13 Eliz, e. 5. Exp. Black, 34 N. B. Reps. 638.

Insurance money—Foreign corporation parnishee—" Within the province."] — The judgment debtor was insured under an accident policy in a company incorporated under a Dominion statute, having its head office at Toronto, represented in the province of Prince Edward Island by a local agent, who had authority to soficit applications and forward them to the head office of the company for approval. The insured, having met with an accident, gave the required notice, and furnished the necessary proofs of claim had been received at the head office, a copy of an attaching order was served upon the local agent in Prince Edward Island :—Held, that the insurance company was a foreign corporation within the meaning of s. 30 of 44 V. c. 4, s. (P.E.I.). 2. That the company vas within the province and doing business therein by an authorized agent. 3. That there was an attachable debt due by the company to the judgment debtor within 48 V. c. 4, s. 1. Seaman V. Seaman. 25 Occ. N. 109.

Insurance moneys—Hypothecary creditor—Contingent debl.)—The indemnity due by an insurance company, in case of fire, is a simple debt resulting from a contingent contract, and, except in the case of an assignment of the anticipated indemnity, an hypothecary creditor has no preferential claim upon such indemnity, and therefore the indemnity cannot be attached in the hands of the insurance company. Lerous v. Cholette, 4 Que. P. R. 198.

Insurance moneys — Insurance upon poods exempt from seizure—Opposition.]— The plaintiff, having obtained a judgment against the defendant, issued garnishing process. The garnishees declared that they owed the defendant a certain sum as insurers of goods of the defendant which had been burnt. Upon this declaration they were condemned to pay such sum to the plaintiff. The plaintiff launched an opposition à fin de conserver, by which he asked to be collocated upon this sum because it represented goods which were exempt from seizure. The plaintiff attacked this opposition by a defence in law :—Held, that exemption from seizure is a privilege, and a matter of strict law, and the law has not declared the price of the goods exempt from seizure, still less the fruits of the insurance upon them, the insurance being but an indemnity for their loss .- 2. Even if the defendant had the right to be collocated upon the insurance moneys, he could not be until he had set aside, by means of a tierce opposition, the judgment by which the garnishee was condemned to pay the plaintiff. St. Charles v. Cabana, Q. R. 17 S. C. 233.

Insurance moneys — Insurers — Third party — Policy — Execution.]—By virtue of art. 5604, R. S. Q. a polley of insurance effected on the life of a hushand in favour of his wife is not exigible while it is in force, and money in the hands of the insurer after the maturity of the risk is not garnishable; but as soon as the proceeds of such a polley are in the hands of a third party they are garnishable Thibuadeau v. Warren, Que. R. 17 S. C. 347.

Insurance moneys — Judgment against married woman, payable out of separate estate—Proceeds of insurance on life of husband—Trust for wife. Doull v. Doelle, 4 O. W. R. 525, 5 O. W. R. 238, 253, 413, 6 O. W. R. 39.

Insurance moneys — Proofs of loss— Option to replace destroyed property—Equi-table execution.]—Under Rules 741 and 742 of the Queen's Bench Act, 1895, as amended by 60 V. e. 4, the claim of the assured, under a policy of insurance against loss by fire, which provides that the loss should not be payable until thirty days after the comple-tion of the proofs of loss usually required, cannot be attached by garnishing order before such completion, although the property insuch as been burnt. — Hotelly, M. Metropoli-tan District Rw. Co., 19 Ch. D. 508, and Central Bank v. Ellis, 20 A. R. 364, fol-lowed.—Canada Cotton Co. v. Parmalec, 13 P. R. 308, not followed.—2. The only kind of liability which may be attached under the above Rules is a purely pecuniary one, and must be absolute and not dependent upon a condition which may or may not be fulfilled; and, therefore, where a policy of fire insur-ance contained a condition giving an option to the company to replace the destroyed pro-perty instead of paying the insurance money, if they should so decide within a certain time, a garnishing order would be of no avail, if served before the expiration of that time, as an attachment of the insurance money, since it would not then be certain that any pecuniary liability would ever arise under the policy; Simpson v. Chase, 14 P. R., per Osler, J.A., at p. 286.-3. The provision in the Rules as to claims and demands which could be made available under equitable execution have not the effect of making such a liability subject to attachment thereunder. Lake of the Woods Milling Co. v. Collin, 20 Occ. N. 285, 13 Man. L. R. 154.

Insurance moneys—Quebec law—Credi-tors of former owner—Impeached transfer —Fraud—Insurable interest.]—The lessor of tors of real estate (in Quebec) insured the leased property "in trust," and notified the insurficiary. The lessee his son, was the real bene-ficiary. The lessee paid all the premiums, and, the property having been seized in execution of a judgment against the lessor, the lessee purchased at the sheriff's sale and became owner in fee. He afterwards in-creased the insurance, the insurers acknowledging, in the second policy, the existence of the first in his favour. The property having been destroyed by fire, payment of the amount of the first policy to the lessee was opposed by a judgment creditor of the lessor, and the money attached in the hands of the insurers :--Held, that the lessee, having had an insurable interest when the first policy issued, and being when the loss occurred the only person having such interest, was entitled to payment. Even if the lessor knew that his father was embarrassed at the time he took the lease and when he purchased the property at the sheriff's sale, that would not make the transaction fraudulent as against the father's creditors. A creditor who was a party to the action against the lessor in which the property was sold in execution subject to the lease, and who did not oppose such sale, could not afterwards contest payment of the amount of the policy on the ground of fraud. Langelier y. Charlebois, 24 Occ. N. 74, 34 S. C. R. 1.

Interest of debtor under will-Residuary legatee.]-A primary creditor in a Division Court, by garnishee summons served on the executors, attached the interest of the primary debtor, as residuary legatee. In the estate of a testator who had died within a year of the attachment. A receiver was subsequently in a High Court action appointed to receive his interest. The Judge in the Division Court gave judgment against the garnishee, and an application for a new trial by the garnishee, on the ground that such interest was not attachable, was dismissed, but on an appeal to a Divisional Court:-Held, that the residuary legatee's interest was not such a debt as could be attached; and the garnishees were discharged. Hunsberry v. Kratz, 23 Occ. N. 185, 5 O. L. R. 635, 2 O. W. R. 448.

Interpleader — Jurisdiction — Ontario Rule 920.]—An execution creditor, C., obtained an attaching order attaching moneys in hands of the defendants, the C. P. R. Company. Plaintiffs and defendant T. claimed the moneys, C. abandoning his claim. An issue was directed between the claimants : —Heid, that C., abandoning did not take away the jurisdiction of the District Court, which directed an issue under Rule 920 above. P. had a contract to build houses for defendant company. He wrote the railway company directing them to pay plaintiff certain sums out of the moneys due him on his building contracts with the company:— Heid, this was a good assignment to plaintiffs. P. having fulled to complete his contract it was finished by the company:—Heid, that the company, by so doing, did not appropriate any moneys owing to P., so as to give T., an employee of P., a lien on such moneys. Judgment for plaintiffs. Knight v. Turner & Can. Pac. Rw. Co. (1909), 14 O. W. R. 517.

Judgment against mine-owner-Attachment of funds representing proceeds of ore sold by mine-over-Lien of attaching creditors upon fund under Britisk Columbia Mechanics' Lien Act-Severed ore.- Defendant's superintendent foreman at the mine from which ore sold and delivered was extracted, is not entitled to a lien on the proceeds of the ore. The lien is a charge under above Act upon the mine itself, not on the funds arising from the sale of severed ore. Law v. Mumford, 11 W. L. R. 16.

Judgment in action for debt or liquidated demand — Claim for proceeds of sales by agent-Claim for goods sold and delivered-Rue 384, Stimson v. Hamilton (N.W.T.), 3 W. L. R. 72.

Juror's indemnity.]-Money due to a petit juror for his indemnity, as such, is not garnishable. Brouillard v. Shaud, 4 Que. P. R. 181.

Legacy-Alimentary allowance-Previous alimentary debt.1.-Sums bequenthed by will as alimentary, with a proviso that they are to be insaisissable, cannot be garnisheed for an alimentary debt arising prior to the will. Kelly v. Masson, Q. R. 23 S. C. 97.

Life rent—Reservation by donor of immovables.]—A life rent reserved by the donor of immovable property, in his own favour, and secured by hypothec, does not fall under the provisions of art. 590 (4), C. P.; and is not exempt from seizure by creditors of the donor. Bradford v. Lasnier, Q. R. 24 S. C. 53.

Money awarded as damages—Insaisissabilité—Lauc of exception—Extension.]— Insaisissabilité is a law of exception, because by common law the property of the debtor is the pledge of his creditor, and it is a principle that laws of exception must not be extended. Therefore, a sum awarded as damages, if it does not come under the head of aliments, is attachable in the whole, and Courts should not in such a case attribute to it an immunity which the law does not accord. Dorral v, Corporation of Lévis, Q. R. 33 S. C. 184.

Money of Union – Judgment against members of unincorporated association in representative action – Trust.] – Action against an association. Certain members were authorised by the Court to defend the action on behalf of themselves and all other members:--Held. 1, that the association was not a corporation, individual, partnership, nor a quasi-corporate body. 2. That its members could not be sued by their adopted name. Certain costs were ordered to be paic by defendant members. The plaintiffs sought to garnishee a certain account at the Dom inion Bank, headed "Amalgamated Sheet Metal Workers' Union, No, 30"; –- Held could not be garnisheed, as order that the defendants shall pay money, without more, cannot be enforced against themselves. Metallic Roofing Co. of Canada v. Local Union, No, 30, Amalgamated Sheet Metal Workers' International Association, 1 O. W. R. 573, 644, 2 O. W. R. 183, 206, 819, 844, 5 O. W. R. 95, 709, 6 O. W. R. 41, 283, 5 O. L. R. 424, 9 O. L. R. 171, 10 O. L. R. 108.

Moneys deposited in bank to credit of debtor's wife-A-rrangement with husband.]—The plaintiff sought to attach as a debt due to the plaintiff's debtor, a sum of money deposited in a chartered bank by the debtor's wife in her own name. The evidence shewed that the money, in whole or in part, was obtained from trofits earned in carrying on the business of the husband during his absence, and it appeared that it was received by the wife and deposited in her own name, by arrangement with the husband, for the purpose of protecting it against the creditors of the husband:—Held, in these circumstances, that the amount in question was not a debt due by the wife to the husband, and therefore not attachable under garnishing proceedings by the husband's judgment creditor. St. Charles v. Amdreg, 2 E. L. R. 317, 41 N. S. R. 190.

Moneys due by Crown.]—A sum of money due to a school teacher, as a subsidy payable out of the fund appropriated by the legislature as allowance to institutions and superior schools, being money due by the government of the province, and not money due as to the salary of a public officer, is not seizable in the hands of the government under a writ of attachment by garnishment. Beauchemis v, Fournier, Q. B., 20 S. C. 272.

Moneys due to judgment debtor under mining contract Attachment by judgment creditors — Mechanics' liens — Order directing issue-Liability of garnishees to lien-holders.]-On service of garnishee orders under the Attachment of Debts Act, 1904 (c. 7), the garnishees admitted a debt owing to the judgment debtor, but asked the protection of the Court as against meetanics' lien-holders claiming the fund. Thereupon an order was made directing the garnishee to pay the fund into Court to abide the determination of an issue between the attaching creditors and the lien-holders. In this issue the lien-holders failed, and proceeded upon their liens against the property :- Held, that the garnishees were not estopped from requiring an issue between themselves and the attaching creditors to ascertain what, if anything, was owing by the garnishees to the judgment debtor at the time of the service of the garnishee orders. Power v. Jackson Mines Limited, 13 B. C. R. 202: Gabriele and Power v. Jackson Mines Limited, 6 W. L. R. 324.

Moneys due under mortgage-Instalments falling due after service of garnishee summons-Priorites-Judgment creditors -Transferee of mortgage-Assignee of mortzage for benefit of creditors. Macpherson Fruit Co. v. Hayden (N.W.T.), 2 W. L. R. 427.

Moneys due under written instrument—Form of—Promissory note—Moneys not attachable before maturity.]—An instrument in the following form: "Winniper, June 20th, 1907. Received from A. B, the sum of five hundred dollars advance to be repaid at expiration of 9 months. C. D.," is a negotiable promissory note, and the money payable under it is not attachable by garnishment proceedings before its maturity. Halsted v. Herschmann, 8 W. L. R. 641, 18 Man. L. R. 103.

Moneys paid to clerk of County Court in another action-Not a garnishable debt-Assignment of debt attached --Validity. Ross v. Goodier (Man.), 5 W. L. R. 303, 16 Man. L. R. 534 n.

Moneys paid to clerk of County Court in another action—Other remedies—Charging or receiving order.1—Money paid into a County Court for the benefit of one of the parties to a suit in that Court is not attachable in the hands of the clerk of the Court by garnishee process at the suit of a creditor of such party.—Dolphin v. Langton, 4 C. P. D. 130, followed, in preference to Bland v, Andrews, 45 U. C. R. 431. —Ross v, Goodier, 5 W. L. R. 393, 16 Man. L. R. 534 n., approved.—Quare, whether the money could not be reached by way of charging order or equitable execution as by the appointment of a receiver. Otto v, Connery, 5 W. L. R. 403, 16 Man. L. R. 532.

Moneys payable to contractor for building of school house—Terms of contract —Condition precedent not fulfilled when attaching order served—Saskatchevan Mechanics Lien Ordinauce, s. 20 (3)—Statutory assignment.]—Held, that at the time of service of the garnishee order there was no debt due or accruing due to the primary debtor. Heuvard v. Barrett, 11 W. L. R. 136.

Police constable's pay — Service on treasurer of municipality—Payment to agent —Payment in advance.]— On a motion to make absolute an order attaching all debts due by a municipal corporation to the defendant, a police constable, which was issued on the 27th February, and served on the treasurer of the corporation on the afternoon of the same day, it appeared that the defendant's salary was $900 a year, payable monthly at the end of each month.—Held, that, although the defendant was not a servant of the corporation. the treasurer was the proper person to serve.—Held, also, that the cheque for the defendant's salary for the month of February, which, according to cus

But there was no debt due, as the month's salary was not payable until the end of the month, and there is no law which forbids an employer to pay his servant's wages in advance. Fallis v. Wilson, 9 O. W. R. 418, 13 O. L. R. 505.

Proceeds of exempted chattels.] — The proceeds of chattels exempt from seizure and sale under execution, but voluntarily sold by a debtor, are attachable. Slater v. Rodgers, 2 Terr. L. R. 310.

Purchase money of land—Debitum in prasenti, solvendum in futuro.]—The defendants purchased land from R., and owed him $1.000 on the purchase, for which sum they had given a cheque to a bank manager, to hold at their order until they assertained that R. had a good title to the land. On the 24th March, 1909, the plaintiff, a creditor of P., served on the defendants an order attaching the sum of $1.000 as due from them to R. At this date the cheque was still in the hands of the bank manager, and was subject to the defendants' order, and the sum of $1.000, though due to R. was not yet payable by him:—Held, that the debt was garnishable, and was attached by the service on the 24th March. Gross v. Mihm & Dundog (1910), 15 W. L. E., 172.

Purchase money of land — Deed — Acknostedment — Estoppel — Burden of Proof.]—Where there is an achnowledgment under seal in a transfer of land that the consideration or purchase money has been paid, the vendor cannot, in the absence of fraud, maintain an action at law against the purchaser for such purchase money; he is estopped by his deed. Baker v. Davey, 1 B. & C. 704, and Donohue v. Hull, 24 S. C. R. at p. 689, followed. The vendor may proceed in equity, but in rem, by asserting a lien on the land sold for the purchase money (and as incidental to that relief may have a personal order against the deficiency, if any, as in Senderson v. Burdette, 16 Gr. 119, 18 Gr. 419, and in Shelly v. Shellu. 18 Gr. 495.). But the Court has no power in garnishe proceedings to give effect to such lien, or to order the purchaser to pay over the purchase proceedings to give effect to such lien, or to order the purchase to define out of a garnishing application, that the onus of proving the indebtedness of the garnishe to the judgment debtor was upon the judgment creditor, and he failed to satisfy it. Genge v. Wachter, 20 Occ. N. 158, 4 Terr. L. R. 122.

Purchase money of land — Issue between judgment creditor and claimant — Scope of — Praudulent conveyance — Husband and wife.] — An issue was directed to try the question whether certain moneys in the hands of a garnishee were, at the time of the service of the garnishee summons, the moneys of the plaintiff in the issue, as a creditor of the judgment debtor, as against the deferdant in the issue, the wife of the debtor. — The moneys were the balance of the purchase price of land sold by the judgment debtor's wife to the garnishee:—Held, per Rouleau, J., the trial Judge, 13 Occ. N. 472, that the Court on such an issue could not inquire into the question whether the land, having formerly been that of the judgment debtor, had been fraudulently conveyed to his wife. On appeal to the Court en bane:—Held, reversing the judgment of Rouleau, J., who adhered to his former opinion, that the Court could so inquire. Hull v, Donohoe, 2 Terr. L. K. 52. Reversed and judgment of Rouleau, J., restored, 24 S. C. R. 683, 15 Occ. N. 356.

Rent-To whom due-Heirs of deceased landlord-Executors-Devolution of Estates Act.]-Five plaintiffs, claiming as heirs at law of their father to be owners of a lot of land, brought an action for specific perform-ance, which was dismissed with costs, subsequently taxed at $209.49. After the trial one of the plaintiffs, G. R., died, and probate of his will was granted to a sister and coplaintiff, M. S., and the action was revived in the names of the remaining plaintiffs and M. S. as his executrix, and an appeal against the judgment was also dismissed with costs. It appeared that G. R. owned one-half of the lot, and the father the other half, and that the lot had been leased to a tenant by M. O'R., one of the plaintiffs, as adminis-tratrix of the estate of the father, who died in or before 1896, and M. S., as adminis-tratrix of the estate of G. R. No caution was registered under the Devolution of Estates Act :--Held, that the rent due from the tenant was garnishable for the costs pay able by the plaintiffs. Macaulay v. Rumball. a by the planting, machined V, Rymouth 19 C. P. 284, commented on. McDonald v. Sullivan, 23 Occ. N. 45, 5 O. L. R. 87, 1 O. W. R. 721, 723, 784, 840, 849; Reilly v. McDonald, 1 O. W. Rent — Summons—Declaration—Service —Delays—Holiday exception to the form— C. P. 8, 174, 909, 935, 935, 1—In a case of attachment for rent, if no attachment is made because the defendant has paid the amount due between the issue and the service of the writ, plaintiff is not deprived of his right to have the copy of the declaration served upon the defendant, or deposited in the prothonotary's office, which the three days which follow the service of the writ, (1) In an action in ejectment, if the second day following the service of the writ is a Saturday, the writ may be returned into Court, and the copy of declaration deposited on the following Monday. Lebeuf v, McGlynn (1900), 10 Que. P. R. 380.

Salary—Alimentary dobt-Payment into Court.]—The part of a salary which is not attachable to answer ordinary debts may be attached for an alimentary debt. The garnishee must pay into Court the whole sum owing to the judgment debtor; and in relying on the exemption provided by Art. 559, C. P. C., he excepts the rights of others. Beattie V. Raper, Q. R. 16 S. C. 508.

Salary-Civil servant-Insolvency-Notifaction to other creditors. |-If an employee of the province is insolvent, a creditor garnishing the employee's salary will be allowed to have the other creditors called in and notified to file their claims. Gagnon v. Roscon, 7 Que P. R. 52. 321

Salary—Deposit of portion attachable— Further attachments.]—The deposit of the portion of salary attachable under 3 Edw. VII, c. 57, s. 1, has the effect of preventing further attachments, and this without the debtor requiring to give notice of such deposit to his creditors. Godin v. Flonagan, 7 Que. P. R. 6,

Salary—" Due or accruing due."]—Where the salary of an employce was a fixed amount per month payable at the end of the month:—Heid, that a garnishee summons as no part of the amount was due, that is, recoverable by the employce, till the last day of the month had expired, nor was any part accruing due, inasmuch as the liability of the employer to pay was contingent upon the completion of the month's service by the employee. Main v. McInnie, 4 Terr, L. R. 517.

Salary-Husband working for wife.] -The defendant's wife and her sister were carrying on business in copartnership. The defendant's wife was separated as to property. The defendant was the manager of the firm, but he had no stated salary, his wife being bound by the terms of the partnership agreement to provide a working representative without expense to the firm. On an attachment in garnishment by the plain-tiff, of the value of the husband's services, in the hands of the wife :-- Held, that where no fraud is proved, and a husband voluntarily looks after the affairs of his wife, a marchande publique and separated as to property, without any agreement as to remun-eration, the Court will not hold that the services of the husband must be paid for, and will not fix a sum representing the value of such services, which sum would be subject to attachment for a judgment against the husband. Arnoldi v. Stewart, Q. R. 17 S. C. 252.

Salary—Husband working for wife.] — Held, affirming the judgment in Q. R. 15 S. C. 522, that a husband who works for his wife—in this case the husband had become a bankrupt, and the wife had continued his business, the husband working for the benefit of his wife as he had before done for his own benefit—has no right to any salary, and his creditors cannot, upon attachment of moneys in the hands of his wife, claim the value of his services. St. Pierre v. Toucle, Q. R. 17 S. C. 361.

Salary — Organist.]—The salary of a church organist fails under the operation of Art. 599 (a), C. P. C., and is not garnishable except as to a proportion thereof as indicated in the enactment. Bell v. Larivée, O. R. 16 S. C. 220.

Salary—Police officer—Payment—Apent.] —The salary of a police officer employed by the Board of Police Commissioners for a city was attached by a judgment creditor. Before the service of the attaching order upon the city corporation, a cheque for the salary had been handed by the city treasurer to a police inspector to be handed to the judgment dehor, but had not been handed to the latter. The attaching order was subsequently, and before the cheque reached c.c.L-11 the judgment debtor, served upon the inspector, who was not a party to or named in the order:—Held, upon the evidence, that the inspector was not the agent of the eliy corporation to pay the judgment debtor, but the implied agent of the latter to receive payment for him; and therefore payment had been made when the order was served. It was not the duty of the corporation to stop payment of the cheque, and they did not do so. Colen v. Hale, 3 Quee, B. D. 371, distinguished. Verney v. Guthrie, 20 Occ. N. 313.

Salary—Public officer—Assessor.]—Held, affirming the judgment in Q. R. 15 S. C. 262, that a city assessor is a public officer within the meaning of Art. 590, C. C. P., and his salary is not liable to garnishment. Steucart v. Euard, Q. R. 8 Q. B. 404.

Salary of choirmaster.]--The salary of the choirmaster of a Roman Catholic parish clurch in the province of Quebec is not garnishable. Lefebvre v. Drolet, 8 Que, P. R. 200.

Salary of Court stenographer—Fees for depositions.]—Amounts due to official stenographers for depositions taken in Court are regarded as salary, and are attachable to the extent of one-fifth. Létourneau v. Collin, 4 Que. P. R. 122.

Salary of harbour master — Public officer.] — The harbour master of Montreal, having by virtue of his office to administer a part of the public domain of the Grown, and acting in the general interest of commerce and navigation, must be considered as a public functionary, and his salary is not seizable under execution or attachable. Cochrane v. Möshane, Q. R. 24 S. C. 283.

Salary of municipal officer-Payment in advance-Set-off-Equitable assignment-Service-Costs.]- Upon an application to garnishee the salary of an officer of a municipal corporation, it appeared that by virtue of a by-law his salary was payable monthly, and that the practice of the corporation was to pay all salaries on the first day of the month. The attaching order was served on the 30th April, between ten o'clock in the The judgment debtor, before the service of the order, had been paid in full all his salary for the month of April, under an arrangement between him and the treasurer of the corporation that advances should be made on account of salary and stopped from the debtor's cheque at the end of the month :--Held, that nothing was due to the debtor by the corporation at the time of the service of the attaching order, for there had been actual payment of the salary by the corporation; or, if not payment, an advance by the corporation which they could set-off against a claim for salary; or, if the moneys ad-vanced were to be regarded as misappropriated by the treasurer or the clerk and advanced personally by him to the debtor, there was a good (though verbal) equitable assignwas a good (the salary by the debtor to the treasurer or clerk; and, per the Master in Chambers, a debt in respect of the salary, in any event, would not have accrued due until after the service of the attaching order. Salary of partner.]—Where a garmishee partnership declares that the defendant is a member of the partnership and draws from it a weekly salary, the partnership will not be ordered to deposit any sum in Court, to its prejudice, but the attachment will be declared effective. De Claude v. Hemond, 4 Que. P. R. 71

Salary of police magistrate—Public officer — Appointment and termination on resolution of county council—Public policy. Lee v. Ellis, 8 O. W. R. 396.

Salary of public officer — Provincial Government of Quebec—Deputy registrar — Privilege — Exemption.]— The expression every such registrar in Art. 5650b, S. R. O. (37 Vict. e. XLI.), includes the deputy registrar, and hence the salary of the latter as well as that of the former is not exigible. Garand v. Mancotel (Que.), 6 E. L. R. 180; Guilbert v. Mancotel (Que.), E. L. Salary of public officer — Provincial Government of Quebec — Revenue officer. Guilbert v. Mancotel, 4 E. L. R. 564.

Salary of sheriff—Judgment by default —Opposition.]—The salary of a sheriff is insaisissable; and even where the government has paid several instalments of salary to a garnishing creditor, the sheriff, even when the attachment has been made absolute upon default of his appearance, may, by way of opposition to the judgment, have it set aside. Mongcau v. Arpin, Q. R., 18 S. C. 395.

Salary of teacher—Exemption—Application after death—Crown—Provincial government—Public officer.]—The salary of a teacher (instituteur) being by law exempt from attachment, the exempton subsists in favour of his children in respect of arrears due him at the time of his decease. 2. Money in the hands of the government of the province of Quebec cannot be attached unless in the case of salaries of public officers. Beauchemin V. Fournier, 4 Que. P. R. 138.

Sale of an hypothecary debt made after sale, but before signification of the acte-Conflict of rights of the seising creditor and of the assignee or buyer. — A creditor who causes an hypothecary debt due to his debtor to be seized by writ of attachment, is a third party, within the meaning of Art. 1571 C. C. as regards the buyer or assignee of the debt seized. Property under seizure, whether corporeal or incorporeal, is not assignable or alienable, as regards the seizing creditor, and hence the assignee of a debt before seizure thereof, cannot, after it has been made, perfect his title of signification and become "a subsequent transferce who has conformed to the requirements of Art. 2127 C. C." The words "every conveyance or transfer, whether voluntary or judicial." in Art. 2127

C. C., do not apply to the seizure of debts by writ of attachment. To make them do so would be in direct violation of Art. 1147 C. C. As a consequence of the above rulings, the assignment of a debt which has not been signified to the debtor is of no effect and cannot be set up against a creditor who causes the debt to be seized by writ of attachment. Pinsonnault v. Coursol (1908), Q. R. 18 K. B. 200.

Sum due by municipal corporation for work done under contract—Claims for usages by workmen—Builders' and Workmen's Act, R. S. M., 1992, c. 14—"Contractor"—"Proprietor"—Garmishing creditors—Priority—Interpleader.)—C. had a contract for grading roads for defendant municipality. Plaintiff, a workman, sued for his own wages, and another wage claim assigned to him :—Held, that s. 4 of above Act has made a statutory assignment to the workmen to the amount of their unpaid wages of the moneys payable by defendant to C. Plaintiff must therefore be paid in priority. The municipality is a "proprietor" within the Act. Bryson v, Resper, 10 W. L. R. 317.

Sums due by shareholders on shares -Judgment against company-Claim of liquidator in usinding-up-Priority.].-A creditor who, prior to the granting of a windingup order, has served a garnishee summons on a shareholder, and obtained judgment against the company, is entitled to be paid the amount of his judgment out of moneys due by the shareholders for calls on stock at the time of the service of the garnishee summons, in priority to the elaims of the liquidator in the winding-up proceedings. Cross v. Alberta Brick Co., 1 Alta, L. R. 103.

Wages-Builders' and Workmen's Act-Priority of wages over garnishing and other orders.]—Section 4 of the Brilders' and Workmen's Act, R. S. M. 1902, c. 14, mak-ing a proprietor directly liable for payment of the wages of workmen employed by a contractor doing any work for him, effects what may be termed a statutory assignment to the workmen, to the amount of their un-paid wages, of the moneys payable by the proprietor to the contractor, so that the workmen are entitled to priority over the claims of creditors holding garnishing or other orders against the proprietor in respect such moneys, and such creditors are entitled to be paid out of any balance in the order in which notices of their several claims were given to the proprietor .- In such case it makes no difference that the proprietor has made a payment to the contractor which diminishes the amount available for such other creditors. 2. PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE IN GARNISH-MENT.

Action by judgment debtor against garnfshee-Special pleading. [... In a suit to recover moneys which have been attached, brought by defendant in the attachment against the garnishee, the latter may, instead of proceeding regularly, file a declaration that he submits his rights to the Court, at the same time stating, with documents in support of his statements, the previous proceedings which prevent him from paying what he owes to the plaintiff, namely, the garnishing proceedings pending, a judgment already given requiring him to pay one-fifth to a creditor, and the fact that another ereditor has made a motiva for a declaration that the whole salary of the plaintiff, lise sziglbe. Noel v. Corporation of Pilots for the Harbour of Quebec, 5 Que, P. R. 90.

Affidavit — Information and belief — Grounds.)—The affidavit for attachment en mains tierces, when founded upon information or belief, must state the grounds of suchbelief and the sources of such information, and in the absence of such statement the seizure will be quashed on petition. Duclos V. Beaumier, Q. R. 20 S. C. 237.

Affidavit — Irregularity — Claimant — Judge by consent trying issue summarily— Appeal—County Court.] — The plaintiffs in County Court proceedings issued several garnishes summonses, and subsequently in Supreme Court actions Judgment creditors of the defendants in the County Court actions issued attaching orders against the same garnishees. The judgment creditors in the Supreme Court actions contended that the County Court garnishee summones were nullities, as they were issued on an affidavit which did not comply with the statute, and all the interested parties agreed that the County Judge might decide the matter in a summary way. He held that the County Court plainiffs were entired to the moneys garnished:—Held, on appeal. following Eade v, Winser, 47 L, J. C. P. 584, that the County Judge was in effect an arbitrator; and no appeal lay from his decision. Per Drake, J.--(1) The affidavit leading to a garnishee summons must verify the plaintiffs cause of action, and a garnishee is entitled to question the validity of the proceedings at the hearing. (2) The defect in the affidavit was an irregularity only, and payment into Court by the garnishees was a waiver by them of their right to object. (3) The plaintiff may specify in one affidavit several debts proposed to be garnished. Harris v. Harris, 22 Occ. N. 73, 8 B. C. R. 307.

Affidavit — Insufficiency — Waiver.]— Held, that the affidavit of an advocate, which on its face shewed that he had no personal knowledge of the facts, and which did not contain a positive statement of an indebtedness by the defendant to the plaintiff, is not a sufficient affidavit upon which to issue a garnishee summons so issued was set aside. (2) That a garnishee summons so issued cannot be treated as a mere irregularity so as to be waived under Rule 230 by taking a fresh step. Rumley v. Sazauer (1), 6 Terr. L. R. 63.

Affidavit to obtain garnishing order — Practice — Departure from forms prescribed—(Man.) Rule 760-"Deductions"— "Diacounts"—"Jointy"—"Justly."]— Application to set aside attaching order. The affidavit on which this order had been obtained stated that defendants were "jointly" instead of "justly" indebted after making all "deductions" instead of "discounts " as in the form required. The above Rule says the affidavit may be in the prescribed form or "to the like effect" :--Held, that this will cover "deductions," but not "jointly," although the latter was a typewriter's mistake. Attaching order set aside. Johnson v. Chalmers, 12 W. L. R. 506.

Ante-judgment summons — County Court-Debt or liquidated demand-Affidacit verifying debt.]—An application by the defendant to set aside a garnishee summons (and service) issued before judgment, and for payment out of Court of moneys paid in by the garnishee, was granted. Section 102 of the County Courts Act. R. S. B. C. 1897 c. 52, provides that "a plaintif, at the time of issuing a summons for a debt or liquidated demand or at any time thereafter previous to judgment, upon filing . . . an affidavit verifying the debt . . . may obtain a summons" (i.e., garnishee summons). etc. The summons was issued claiming $2.50 for hire of horse and sleigh, together with $60 damages for the destruction of the sleigh through the defendant 's negligence. The affidavit verifying the debt ran: "My claim gainst the defendant is for the sum of $2.50 for hire of rig hired by the defendant from me on the 14th day of February last, and for the said rig or vehicle." Lindburg v. McPherson, 21 Oce. N. 425, Assignment of debt attached—Claim under assignment—Issue between judgment creditor and claimant — Summary trial — Rule 393—Evidence — Affidavits — Onus— Parties—Sale of machinery—Moneys to be earned by use of part—Proof of use—Equiable assignment — Future earnings—Effectiveness. Lynberg v, Tarbox, 9 W. L. R. 347.

Assignment of debt attached-Saisiearrêt executed before service of notice of assignment — Right to moneys.]—A saisiearreit does not deprive the defendant of the debt attached, but leaves the debt in such a position that it cannot be disposed of to the prejudice of ihe attaching creditor. Therefore, the assignee of a debt, not being assigas regards third persons, except by the service of notice of the assignment upon the debtor, cannot set up his title as against a creditor who has attached the debt in the hands of the debtor before such service. Coursel v. Dubé, Q. R. 33 S. C. 429.

Attaching order before judgment — Nature of plaintiff's claim—Rule 384,—"Dobt or liquidated demand" — Necessaries for defendant's wife.]—Held, that when a husband deserts his wife, or compels her to live apart from him, without properly providing for her, the wife becomes his agent, from necessity, to pledge his credit, and any debtu so contracted by her are "liquidated demands" as against the husband, within the meaning of Rule 384, and garnishment proceedings before judgment may be based thereon, to attach moneys alleged to be due to the husband, the primary debtor. Parkin v, Parkin, T W. Lz, R. 66, I Sask, L. R. 206.

Attaching order before judgment — Nature of claim in principal action—" Debt or liquidated demand "---Action for partnership account---Amount involved---Promptness in proceeding with action where garnishee summons issued. Alexander v. Thompson (Alta.), 8 W. L. R. 659.

Attaching order before judgment — Rule 759—"Claim or demand" — Unascertained damages in tort.]—The words "claim or demand" used in Rule 759 of King's Bench Act. R. S. M. 1902, c. 40, are limited by the following words, "due and owing," and do not extend to a claim in tort for unascertained damages before judgment recovered therefor, so that a plaintiff having only such a claim is not entitled under that Rule to an order attaching moneys due by a third party to the defendant to answer the judgment of the plaintiff to be recovered. Graat v. West, 23 A. R. 533, followed. McIntyre v. Gibson, S W. L. R. 202, 17 Man. L. R. 423.

Attachment before judgment — Affidavit-Agent.]—An affidavit upon which a soisie-arrêt before judgment is granted, made by one who swears that he is the agent of the plainiff, is regular, the word "agent" embracing the words "legal attorney" mentioned in art, 933, C. P. Skinner (William) Manufacturing Co. v. Vineberg, S Q. P. R. 201.

Attachment before judgment — $A_{m-divit}^{m-Requisites}$ of.]—The allegation, "the plaintiff verily believes that unless a writ of attachment before judgment be served upon the garnishee he will lose the amount owing him," in an affidavit for the issue of a writ of attachment before judgment, is sufficient and equivalent to the form of Art. 805, C.C., which says "that the plaintiff will thus be deprived of his recourse against the defendant." The affidavit need not give the reasons of belief and the sources of information of the deponent, unless these relate to withdrawal or concealment by the defendant. Bois v. Fels, 6 Que. P. R. 447, Q. R. 27 S. C. 34.

Attachment before judgment - Discharge by failure of action-Unnecessary motion by garnishez-Costs.]-If a defendant has been discharged by judgment, the licer-soisi is at the same time relieved from the soluce made in his hands; a motion by the litersoisi for a discharge will consequently be dismissed, but without costs, if the plaintif did not appear to contest the same. Holmes v. Woodcorth, 9 Que, P. R. 327.

Attachment before judgment — Grounds for-Intention to guit province.]— A statement made ab irato by a person of affluent means that he will within 24 hours sell all the property he has and go to the States, affords of itself no sufficient ground for proceeding against him by attachment of debts before judgment. Daigle v. Duesault, Q. R. 30 S. C. 215.

Attachment before judgment—Petition to quash—Irregularities — Quality of deponent.)—The defendant's remedy by petition to quash an attachment before judgment is collateral to the regular methods of defence, and must be strictly confined to the grounds permitted by Art, 919, C. P. 2. The petition to quash cannot allege irregularities in the writ and indorsement, default to leave copy of affidavit and declaration or the quality of the deponent, which are properly matters for exception to the form. Canadian Pacific Ruc, Co. y. Frappier, 6 Que. P. R. 186.

Ballig-Offer of security-Refusal.]—A builing who makes a seisure under a saisiearrêt before judgment, cannot refuse to rstore the goods seized to the defendant, if the latter offers good and sufficient surveiles in accordance with Art. 938, C. P., under the pretence that he has no power to appraise the security. Schwartz v. Rameh, 6 Que. P. R. 390.

Contestation—Costs.]—Where a garnishee declares that he is not indebted, the defendant need not delay to take proceedings for the quashing of the writ until the plaintiff has determined whether or not he will contest the declaration; but if he chooses to file a contestation of the attachment instead of moving for his discharge from the seizure as allowed by Art. 688, C. C. P., he will only be allowed the costs of an appearance and a motion. Pallascio v. Champeau, O. R. 17 8, C. 306.

Contestation—Insolvency of defendant— Pleading—Amendment—Costs — Distraction —Scale of costs.]—In a contestation of an attachment by the defendant, it is immaterial to the issue whether the original debtor whose heirs have been condemned by judgment on the principal action, was solvent or not. 2. A paragraph struck out from a pleading upon an inscription in law, will not be reinstated by amendment at the trial. 3. A writ of attachment after judgment cannot be issued for costs without the consent of the attorneys in whose favour distraction of costs was granted. 4. The costs awarded upon a contestation of attachment main a tained as far as costs are concerned, will be governed by the amount of the costs for which attachment was improperly issued. Montreal Land and Mortgage Co. v. Heirs of Mathieu, 6 Que. P. R, 329.

Contestation—Production of books.] — The attaching creditor cannot obtain an order compelling a garnishee, especially when the latter declares that he does not over, to produce books or prepare statements; the creditor's recourse is by way of contestation. Baumar v. Carbonneau, 8 Que. P. R. 333.

Contestation—Undue delay.]—The garnishing creditor will not be allowed to contest, after the delays, the declaration of a garnishee, if he has shewn no diligence in the matter, Meloche v. Lalonde, 7 Que. P. R. 161.

Corporation garnishee—Declaration by attorney—Art. 686, C. P.I—When in answer to an attachment in the hands of a corporation, such corporation makes its declaration by an attorney under a general authorisation, no question under Art. (886, C. P., can be put to such attorney. Brodeur y. MacTavish, 7 Oue, P. R. 235, County Court-Garnishee summons before judgment-Partnership action.] — An application by the defendant to set aside a garnishee summons issued under s. 102 of R. S. B. C. c. 52, which enables a plaintiff at the time of issuing a summons for a debt or liquidated demand, or at any time previous to judgment, upon filing an affidavit, etc., to obtain a garnishee summons. The action was brought to have a partnership dissolvei and for an account and payment:-Heid, that the action was not for a debt or liquidated demand; and the garnishee summons was set aside. Walter v. Rooke, 50 L. J. Q. 470. Howell v. Metropolitan District Rv. Co., 51 L. J. Ch. 158, and Randall v. Lithgov, 53 L. J. Q. B. 518, referred to. Cleognia v. Mc Heather, 22 Oce. N. 309.

Debtor suing garnishoe—Discharge of garnishee.]— The fact that the judgment debtor has, since the decination of the garnishee, brought an action against him does not interrupt the latter's right to be discharged from the attachment if he owes nothing. In re Banque Ville-Marie, 7 Que. P. R. 169, Declaration of garnishee—Admissions —Judgment]—Answers given to interrogatories by a garnishee who declares that he owes the defendant nothing do not form part of his declaration, and do not justify the garnishing creditor in entering the matter for judgment upon such declaration. Laframbasies v. Relland. M. L. R. 2 S. C. 75, and Grant v. Federal Bank of Canada. 29 L. C. J. 323, followed.—In this case the garnishee lawing declared that he owed nothing to the debior, but having added, in answer to interrogatories of the plaintiff, that the debior was in his employment in receipt of a salary of $100 more than his salary during the previous year; that he, the garnishee, had paid nothing to the debtor since service of the attaching arder; and that if the garnishing proceedings were discontinued, the defendant would have ao right to draw anything:—He4d, that the Declaration of garnishee—*Aliment*ary allowance—Married woman—Contestation in forma pauperis—Authorisation.] — The Court may authorise a married woman to contest in forma pauperis the declaration of garnishee, when the latter had declared that he has in his hands moneys due for alimentary allowance. Clermont v. Charest (1900), 7 Que. P. R. 468.

Declaration of garnishee—Conditional celat—Discharge.]—If a garnishee declares That he owes nothing to the judgment debtor, but that there is a contract between them under which the judgment debtor is allowed to take insurance risks for the company of which the garnishee is an agent, the judgment debtor and the garnishee are not entitled upon such declaration to have the attachment proceedings dismissed, as they would be if the garnishee had declared simply that he owed nothing. Quare, is there ground, in the case of a conditional debt, to claim dismissal of the proceedings on the ground that the garnishing creditor has not had it declared that the attachment is binding. Lamothe v. Piche, 5 Que. P. R. 180.

Declaration of garnishee — Contestation—Judgment — Inconclusiveness — Review—Remittal for amendment.]—A judgment which maintains a contestation of the declaration of a garnishee, without condemning him either to produce the property in his possession belonging to the judgment debtor or to pay the sum due or the debt to the judgment creditor, is informal and violates Art. 541, C. P., not being such a judgment as can be executed; and upon inscription in review it will be sent back to the Court of first instance to be amended. Lamoureug v. Fontaine, Q. R. 34 S. C. 1.

Declaration of garnishee — Contextation—Service on attorney—Married woman garnishee—Authorisation.]—When a garnishee he, appeared by attorney, a contextation of his declaration is regularly served upon the attorney.—When the wife, garnishee, is separate as to property, is a public trader, and the matters in dispute are those of his business, she does not require the authorisation of her husband to appear in judicial proceedings. Frank v. Lafrince, 8 Que, P. R. 205.

Declaration of garnishee — Contestation by debtor—Status.]—A debtor has no interest to support a motion for the rejection of the declaration of a garnishee, on the ground that the necessary stamps have not been affixed to it, or that the garnishee has not the status to make such declaration. Montreal Loan and Mortgage Co. v. Mathieu, 7 Que. P. R. 84.

Declaration of garnishee — Contesta-tion of — Claim for damages.] — A garnishee is not obliged to declare hypothetical and possible debts; his declaration is sufficient if it admits debts of which he knows the cause and the amount. 2. Facts which may serve as the basis of an action for damages by a defendant against the garnishee do not jus-tify a contestation of the declaration of the garnishee, when the additional claim of the defendant against the garnishee is not liquidated nor established nor stated in any manner, and when the garnishee cannot be presumed to have known it at the time of his declaration. 3. In this case, the garnishee, being indebted to the defendant in the sum of $100 by virtue of a judgment, was not obliged to declare that, besides such sum, he owed $200 as damages caused to the defendant by the allegations of a certain plea which he alleged to be false; and a contes-tation of the declaration of the garnishee based upon default of declaring something else besides an ascertained debt, was dis-missed upon inscription in law. Germain v. Dussault, 5 Que, P. R. 96.

Declaration of garnishee — Contestation of — Requirements.]—When a ticrs-saisi has declared that he owes nothing, it is not sufficient to allege, in contestation thereof, that it is false; a contestation of a declaration of a tiers-saisi has for its object a different hasis of facts whereon to determine the liability of the garnishee from that furnished by his declaration; it must, if not less than the amount of the alleged indebtedness; it must be as specific as, and proved like, the contents of the declaration in an ordinary suit, and it creates a real cause, in which the tiers-saisi is a defendant. Canadian Congregational Missionary Society v, Larvieve, 4 Que, P. R. 290.

Declaration of garaiance — Cross-caamination—Production of documents — Contestation—Issue.] — When a garaishee declares that he is not indebted to the judgment debtor, although questions may be put to him tending to prove the contrary, he is not to be considered as an ordinary witness, or as a party examined on discovery. The Court will not, therefore, order him to produce accounts, books of account and correspondence. The proper course for the selzing creditor is to contest the declaration and to proceed to trial upon an issue joined. Baumar v. Carbonneou. Q. R. 32 S. C. 219.

Declaration of garnishee — Default — Costa.]— A garnishee in default for a declaration, who desires to make his declaration by virtue of art. 691, cl. 3, C. P., is only obliged to pay disbursements occasioned by his default, and attorney of the plaintiff cannot recover from him any fee. Guilbault v, Dallaire (1906), S Que, P. R. 96.

Declaration of garnishee — Default of judgment—Appeal—Relief on terms.] — A garnishee who has appealed from a judgment against him by default, and whose appeai has been dismissed, may still be relieved from his default to make a declaration upon paying all the costs incurred, including those of the appeal. Saunders v. Boeckh, 5 Que. P. R. 416.

Declaration of garmihee—Expiry of time for contestation—Discharge-Serrice-Costa—Position of judgment debtor.] — A tiera-sais is entitled to be discharged from a saisic-arret on lapse of the delays for contetation of his declaration, even if a discharce of said seizure was put on record by the plaintiff, and which did not include costs, and was not served on said tiera-soisi.—2. A defendant is similarly entitled to be discharged from a saisie-arret, although a discharge was put of record by the plaintiff, but did not include costs, and was served on the defendant on the same day, and between the same hours as the defendant's motion to be relieved from said seizure. Robertson v, Honan, 9 Que, P. R. 282.

Declaration of garalshee — Judgment —Moneys accruing due—Nece declaration.] —In order that an attachment after judgment in the hands of a third party be binding, it must be so declared by judgment; in absence of a contestation of the garaishee's declaration within the legal delays, and of a demand within the same delay to have the seizure declared binding, a writ of attachment is without effect against the garaishee as regards the sums which may eventually become due; and a motion then made to make him declare de novo will be rejected. Decelles y. Lafteu, 5 Que. P. R. 439.

Declaration of granishes — Judgment —Reduction on appeal—Payment of solicitor's costa—Set-off.]—A garnishee, who has declared that he was adjudged to pay to the defendant $100 damages by a judgment from which he has appealed, cannot afterwards, after the amount of the judgment has been reduced by the Court in review to $50, with costs of the hearing and review against the defendant, allege by a subsequent declaration that he has paid his solicitor the $50 allowed to him by the later judgment, which has been garnished before the decision. Pieffer v, Campeau, 5 Oue, P, R. 125.

Declaration of garnishee—Motion for judgment.]—A plaintiff cannot set down a garnishing matter upon motion for judgment exparts upon the declaration does not contain an admission pure and simple that a certain sum is due to the defendant. White V. Sabiston, 3 Que. P. R. 124.

Declaration of garnishee — Place of making.]— The declaration of a garnishee wait of saisie-arrelt was issued, without notice to the garnishing creditor, will on motion therefor be rejected. Duckesne v. Quintai. 7 Que, P. R. 163.

Biosin v, Perroult, Q. R. 25 S. C. 439.

Declaration of garnishee—Statement— Default—Order for payment.]—A garnishee who neglects to produce a statement complementary to his declaration may be ordered to pay just as though he were the primary debtor, White v, Sabiston, 3 Que, P. R. 193.

Declaration of garnishee - Time for contesting-Dismissal of attachment proceedings-Separate orders in favour of judgment debtor and garnishee-Inscription in review -Deposit - Desistment.] - In a summary cause the time for contesting the declaration of a garnishee is two days. 2. A plaintiff who complains of judgments dismissing his proceedings against the defendant and the garnishee, upon two separate motions, must make separate inscriptions in review in respect of each judgment and make a deposit in each case, in default of which his inscription will be set aside. 3. Where an inscription in review has been set aside, the Court of Review has no jurisdiction to adjudicate upon the validity of the desistment: that must be dealt with by the Court of first instance. Lamothe v. Piche, 5 Que. P. R. 164.

Declaration of garnishes—Uncertainty as to amount owing—Motion for judgment.] —Although a seizure may have been declared tenante, the plaintiff is not entitled to inscribe for judgment on the garnishee's declaration when the garnishee states that he owes the defendant rothing, and is not rendy to say what portion of certain moneys in his first declaration stated to have been received from the defendant's attorneys, is returnable to them. Baumar v. Carbonneau, 7 Oue, P. R. 213.

Declaration of garnishee dispensed with-Costs of judgment detor-Discharge of asisie-arritl-If the garnishee has not made a declaration because the plainiff (judgment creditor) has dispensed him from it, the defendant (judgment debtor) has, nevertheless, a right to have the assisterarit discharged with costs against the plainiff. Robertson y, Honan, 9 Que, P. R. 353.

Declaration of garnishees—Contextation—Intervention.]—Where garnishees have declared that they are not aware of having any money belonging to the defendant, the declaration having been contested, and an executor having intervened in the contestation, the garnishese cannot be called on to declare de novo, while the issues are still pending. Brodeur v. McTavish, 8 Que. P. R. 219.

Default of service on debtor—Motion to dismiss.]—A debtor who has been served with attachment process after judgment cannot appear and demand dismissal of the attachment. Fafard v. Marsan, 5 Que. P. R. 482. Denial by garnishees of liability to judgment debtor—Cross examination of affidavits—Refusal to answer to liability of third person—Allegation of identity of third person with debtor. Smith v. O'Dell, 6 O. W. R. 47, 179.

Deposit by garnishee — Amount — Costs.]-The garnishee who fails to deposit a certain sum of money, in accordance with an order served upon him cannot be condemned, in the absence of any mention in the record of other creditors of the judgment debtor, to pay any greater sum than the amount he should have deposited, and the costs of order and of the inscription for judgment against him. Laforce v. Grant, G Que, P. R. 370.

Desistment—Notice—Practice.]--A gatnishee, who receives a notice of desistment from a saisie-arrit before the day of its return, cannot by motion demand an act of desistment and dismissal of the proceeding; if he helieves the desistment to be insufficient, he must appear at the process office and so declare. Montrai Land and Mortagge Co. v. Heirs of Mathieu, 6 Que, P. R. 274.

Desistment — Notice — Withdraval — Costs.]—Where a garnishing creditor desists from the attachment proceedings without mentioning that the attachment was made with costs, and without giving notice of such desistment to the attorneys of the garnishee, a motion by the latter for withdraval of the attachment will be granted with costs. Levy V, Arkbulatof, 5 Que, P. R. 335.

Division Court—Liability of garnishees to primary debtor—Evidence of. McLeod v. Clark (1906), 8 O. W. R. 403.

Extension of time—Garnishees—Ignorance.]—Where on the return of a saisiearrêt attaching salary alleged to be due to the judgment debtor by a railway company, they declared that they had not been able to ascertain whether the debtor was still in their employment, as he had been working at a great distance from their head office, the Court declared the selaure in the hands of the garnishees binding, and adjourned the hearing. Donegan v. Cassidy, 2 J. P. R. 451.

Foreign company garnishees—Exception to form—Service—Allegality.]—The service of a writ of satis-arrit upon a foreign company, garnishees, who have no business office nor agent, is irregular and illegal, and such garnishees have an interest sufficient to apply to set aside service by way of exception to the form, Lachapelle v. Gagné, 8 Que. P. R. 163.

Frand-Issue-Amount in controversy-County Court-Jurisdiction — Residence of garnishee-Receiving order. |---Where it was charged by a judgment creditor that a fraudulent arrangement had been made between the judgment debtor and his employers, the garnishees, whereby a third person had been substituted for the debtor, as the servant of the garnishees, and money paid to such third person, while the debtor continued to do the work :--Held, that the judgment creditor was entitled to have an issue directed, to which the third person should be a party, to determine whether there was at the time of the service of the attaching order any debt due or accruing from the garnishees to the debtor, without bringing home a case of fraud to the persons against whom it was it was sufficient to shew unexcharged ; plained facts and circumstances so unusual as to create a strong suspicion that fraud had been practised :--Held, also, that the Judge of a County Court in which the judgment has been recovered has power, when the amount claimed to be due from the garnishee is so large as not to be within the jurisdiction of the County Court, to make the garnishing summons returnable before himself, even where the garnishee resides in another county :-- Held, also, that an order for a receiver should not be made in respect of a fund which may be reached by garnishing process. Millar v. Thompson, 20 Occ. N. 454, 19 P. R. 294.

Frandulent collusion — Setting aside judgment.]—Aithoub a judgment validating a garnishment constitutes a judicial transfer of the sum garnished, the garnishee (in this case the wife of the defendant), who after service of such judgment, has settled with the attaching creditor by means of an exchange of properties and a dation en paiement, will be ordered—at the suit of a creditor prior to the attaching creditor, and upon proof that the attachment and the judgment were the result of a fraudulent agreement to defraud the creditors of the defendant, with the knowledge of the garnishee and attaching creditor-to deposit in the record office for distribution the sum which she owes to the defendant, and the exchange of properties and the dation en paiement will be set aside. That Rule refers only to motions to set aside for irregularity; and it is doubtful whether it applies to a defect which is more than an irregularity; but, in any event, the purpose of the Rule is simply to give notice to the opposite party, and it is within the terms of Rule 538; and, if no prejudice has been caused by the failure to comply with the Rule, the motion should not be defeated thereby; and in this case there was no suggestion that the plaintiff had been in any way prejudiced by the defendant not having set out the objections in the summons, or that he was unaware of what the mons, or that he was unaware of what the objections were. Anlaby v. Pratorius, 20 Q. B. D. 764, and Saskatchevean Land and Homestead Co. v. Leadlay, 6 Terr, L. R. 198, 82, followed. Per Beck, J.:--In Rule 540 the word "irregularity" is intended to cover such defects as are "more than irregularities "--the Rule is intended to apply to a set of the set. Garnishee summons before judgment --Nature of plaintiff's claim---Rule 384--"Debt or liquidated demand" --Claim for necessaries supplied to defendant's wife and daughter. Parkin v. Parkin (Sask.), 7 W. L. R. 60.

Garnishees — Executors — Pleading — Costs.]—Garnishees, testamentary executors, who declare that the legacy to the debtor is, under a clause in the will, unattachable, will be mulcted in costs if they reply to a dispute note of their declaration in place of submitting themselves to the Court, even if this dispute note accuses them of conspiting with the debtor. 2. A reply by the garnishees to a dispute of their declaration should in all cases be stamped as a pleaddar. Richer v, Arnton, 2 Que, P. R. 560.

Insolvency of debtor—Judgment making garnishment absolute—Attack upon by another creditor.]—After the creditor who has issued a writ of asisie-arrêt has obtained without fraud, a judgment ordering the garnishee to pay him the amount which the garnishee acknowledges he owes the debtor, another creditor of the latter cannot, by tierce-opposition, cause such judgment to be annulled on the ground of the insolvency of the debtor; the allegation of insolvency must be made before the judgment making absolute the asisie-arrêt. Manseau v, Bruyère, O, R. 11 K. B. 16.

Insolvency of debtor—Opposition by other creditors—Knowledge of attaching creditor.]—In order that there may be ground for an opposition à fin de conserver, based upon the insolvency of the debtor, atter judgment has been given upon a writ of saisiearrit, it is necessary that the attaching creditor should have known of the insolvency of the debtor, Dansereau v, Bradshaw, 4 Q. P. R. 198.

Insufficient time allowed after service — Prejudice — Extension — Exception to form.]—Where in an attachment of debts the time allowed to defendant is not prejudiced thereby, he must ask Court for an extension of time, if required, and not proceed by way of exception to form. Martin 7. Höbert (1966), 8 Que, P. R. 42.

Issue in course of action—Service on actendant-absence from jurisdiction.]—An attachment of debts issued in the course of an action is itself an action separate and distinct from the original action, and if, since the commencement of the action, the defendant has left the province, service of the attachment should be made upon him as it would be in an action. Service made upon him at the record office, in accordance with the provisions of Art. 85, C. P. C., is a nullity. Wasby v. Broucn, Q. R. 19 S. C. 424.

Issue of second writ of saisie-arret Costs of first writ-Declaration of garnishees ---Contestation-Exception-Assignment to third person-Exception in law.]-Where a second saisie-arrêt after judgment has been issued and served, before any order of dismissal has been pronounced or any costs adjudged upon the first saisie-arrêt, the defendant cannot demand the dismissal of the second one because the costs of the former have not been paid. The right to the amount or value in the hands of the garnishees can only be debated with the garnishees upon the contestation of their declaration; a defendant cannot set up by way of exception in law the right of a third person, not a party to the cause, in order to have a saisie-arrêt discharged, upon the ground that he has assigned to such third person his right to the amount which the garnishees have declared that they owe, Coulombe v. Lavallée, 8 Que. P. R. 214, Judgment — Irregularity — Questioning.]—A defendant who has not. either by way of appeal or opposition, moved against a judgment which has all the judicial characteristics of a judgment of the Superior Court, but has been recovered against him ex parte, cannot contest garnishing process issued in execution of such judgment by pleading that it is tainted with irregularities and illegalities. United Counties Rue. Co. v. Letendre, Q. R. 9 Q. B. 52, 3 Que. P. R. 205.

Judgment against garnishee-Consent to pay-Rights of other creditors.]-- The service upon the garnishee of an order attaching a debt due to the debtor creates a lien in favour of the garnisher, and this lien becomes absolute between the garnisher and the garnishee after a judgment against the garnishee or by reason of his consent to pay the garnisher as in the case of the transfer of a debt; and the other creditors, even in the event of the insolvency of the debtor, have no right to the fund attached. Lacroix v. McGreevy, 3 Que, P. R. 21, Q. R. 17 8, C. 187.

Judgment against garnishee by default — Garnishea allowed in to defend — Debt of defendant secured by promissory notes current.]—The garnishee applied to set nside a judgment entered against him for default of appearance. As it appeared his letter to the clerk of the Court advising that notes in question were not due for some time had been mislaid by the clerk, he was allowed in to defend on terms. Hunter v. Collins, 11 W. L. R. 85.

Judgment agalast garnishee-Setting aside-Declaration-Time for-Judgment in default-Prothonotary entering - Long vacation.] - A carnishee against whom judgment by default has been improperly entered, may apply to have it set aside. When called upon to make its declaration by a writ which does not state either the day or hour when it should be made, he must be considered as not properly before the Court: no default can be charged against him, and no judgment ean be pronounced against him for default of a declaration. The prothonotary has no jurisdiction to sign judgment against a garnishee who has made default, and the Court itself cannot pronounce such judgment against him during the long vacation. Crapeau v. Tremblan, Q. R. 7 S. C. 99, 156, Judgment by default against garnishee-Irregularity in service - Right of Appeal - Return - Consent.]-A garnishee against whom a judgment has gone by default, without service of process personally or at his domicil, has the right to move against such judgment by way of appeal. 2. A party who garnishees after judgment cannot return his writ of saisie-arrêt after the three days following the day for such return without the consent of all the parties to the cause, and the consent of one of the defendants alone is insufficient. Perrin v. Tate, 5 Que, P. R. 116.

Judgment by default against garnishee — Opening up — Terms — Costs.] —A garnishee against whom judgment has been given by default, and who wishes to open up the judgment, must pay the costs of the motion and of the proof of the disbursements incurred upon his default, and a supplementary fee, if that was necessary. St. Denis v. Goulet, 4 Que. P. R. 318.

Judgment debt — Execution — Stay — Payment into Court.] — The fact that the debt of the plainiff for which he has recovered judgment against the defendant has been attached does not binder him from proceeding to execution of his judgment, and if the defendant desires to escape such execution, he has only to pay the amount into Court, Lamb y, Kellan, 4 Que, P. R. 42.

Judgment in action for debt or Hquidated demand — Claim for proceeds of sales by agent—Goods sold—Rule 384. Stimson V. Hamilton (N.W.T.) 1 W. L. R. 20.

Jurisdiction of County Courts, B.C. -Claim of judgment debtor against garnishee beyond competence of County Court -Prohibition.]-On proceedings under Attachment of Debts Act in County Court to attach debt due on judgment obtained in Supreme Court, an order absolute attaching the debt was made. On an application for writ of prohibition to County Court Judge. prohibiting him frem dealing with Supreme Court judgment:--Held, that where the claim sought to be attached is not one upon which County Court would have jurisdiction to adjudicate in suit brought to enforce it, the machinery of Attachable Debts Act cannot be applied. Belyca v. Williams (1906), 12 B. C. R. 228, 4 W. L. R. 457.

Lacombe Act-Circuit Court-Superior Court.]-Art. 1147a. C. P., prohibits issue of garnishing summons, in a general way, against defendant who has complied with its provisions, and there is no ground for distinguishing between garnishing summonses issued from Circuit Court and those issued from Superior Court. Mace v. Gardner (1906), 8 Que, P. R. 08.

Lacombe Act — Opposition—Art. 11/3a. C. P. C.—Circuit Courts—Superior Court.] —Art. 1147a. C. P. C. (the Lacombe Act), applies only to saisies-arrêts in Circuit Court, and cannot be set up in opposition to a saisie-arrêt in execution of judgment of Superior Court, Larochelle v. Lavoie (1906), Q. R. 27 S. C. 534, Lacombe Act — Wages — Deposit — Superior Court — Circuit Court | — The deposit at the record office of Circuit Court of sworn declaration, and the salary of defendant, renders letter immune from any subsequent attachment of his wages, whether such attachment issue from Circuit Court or from any other Court. Levinoff v. Fournier (1906), 8 Que, P. R. 54.

Lacombe Act — Wages — Deposit — Superior Court—Circuit Court.]—In an attachment of debt before judgment in Superior Court, defendant cannot plead that he comes under Lacombe Act in Circuit Court, and that he regularly deposits the part of his salary which is garpishable: such an allegation will be struck out upon inscription in law. Brunet v. Bastien (1906), 8 Que, P. R. 88.

Money in Court — Order — Nullity.]— An order made by a County Judge that garnished moneys remain in Court to abide the event of a new action to be commenced forthwith (a former suit in respect of the same order) is not a nullity, and if not appealed against is valid. King v. Boultbee, 20 Occ. N. 421, 7 Brit, Col. L. R. 318.

Moneys attached claimed under assignment—Order directing trial of issue— Parties—Mesne assignee—Burden of proof— Plaintiff in issue. Toseo v. Campbell (Y.T.). 8 W, L. R. 719.

Moneys attached paid into Court by garnishees—Claim by assignees of judgment debtors—Judgment creditor setting up defence invocable by garnishees—Invalidity of contract—Foreign Companies Ordinance. Beaver Lumber Co. v. Northern Construction Co. (Sask.). S. W. L. R. 782.

Moneys attached paid into Cont-Creditors' Relief Act-Rights of execution creditors-Payment out to sheriff. I--In a dispute between a number of attaching creditors as to moneys paid into Court by carnishees: -Held, that such moneys should be paid to the sheriff for distribution under the provisions of the Creditors' Relief Act. Word (Robert) & Co. Limited v. Wilson, 7 W. L. R. 37, 13 B. C. R. 273.

Moneys paid into Court by garnishees—Payment out to sheriff for distribution under Creditors' Relief Act-Equality among excention creditors—Garnishing creditors before judgment—Costs. Ward (Robert) & Co. Limited v. Wilson (B.C.). 7 W. Lz R. 37.

Moneys paid to garnishee by debtor — Fraudulent conceynee — Declaration — Contestation—Payment into Court.]—Where a party demands, in a contestation of the declaration of a garnishee, that a deed of sale between the defendant and the garnishee shall be declared fraudul-at and set aside, and that the garnishee shall be ordered to deposit in Court a sum representing the value of the property sold, the Court should not only declare the contestation well grounded.

but, besides, should order that such sum be deposited in Court, and that in default of the garnishee so doing, he shall personally pay such sum. Beaudry v. Fontaine, 9 Que. P. R. 47, 4 E. L. R. 53.

Nature of claim in principal action —"Debt or liquidated demand"—Rule 384 Action between partners—Accounts—Extraordinary remedy—Terms — "Speeding the cause,"]—Where one partner sues another for a specific sum, although an account may be necessary to determine the exact sum due, the action is for "a debt or liquidated demand," within the meaning of Rule 384, and, consequently, a garnishes summons can issue to attach a debt due or accruing due from attind person to the defendant; and, semble, that the same principle would apply to an action for an account, and payment of the amount found due.—Semble, that in all cases where the plaintiff takes advantage of an extraordinary interlocutory remedy, e.g., caveat, injunction, or garnishee summons, he may be put on terms to prosecute the action with special diligence. Alexander v, Thompon, 1 Alta, L. R. 50, 18 W. L, R. 659.

Nature of creditor's claim—Notice to debtor—dimentary debt.]—A creditor desiring to garnish moneys declared insatissables, by proving that his claim is of an alimentary nature, cannot so prove without notice to the debtor as well of the proof to which he intends to make as of the inscription for judgment. Gratton v. McCready, 4 Que. P. R. 155.

Order attaching debts - Powers of deputy district registrar of Supreme Court-Interpretation Act — Attachment of Debts Act, 1904—Amount attached]—In a ac-tion in Supreme Court for account of certain rents and profits, the plaintiff obtained an order attaching all debts, obligations, and liabilities payable or accruing due from garnishee to defendant, to an ver a judgment to be recovered by plaintiff against defendant up to amount of $6,245. Order was made and issued by the deputy district registrar at Vancouver, acting under the provisions of s. 3 of Attachment of Debts Act, 1904. De-fendant applied to Morrison, J., in Cham-bers, to set aside this order, but the sum-mons was dismissed, and defendant appealed : -Held, by the full Court, that as the term "district registrar" is expressly defined by Attachment of Debts Act, 1904, to mean dis-trict registrar of the Supreme Court, therefore district registrars are persona desig-nata, and it was not intended to confer on their deputies the power to make attaching orders; that the provisions of the Interpretation Act do not apply, as a general inter-pretation statute cannot be invoked to control the plain intendment of a special statroi the plain intendment of a special siz-tute.—Per Irving, J., the Attachment of Debts Act, 1904, contemplates the attach-ment of a definite, ascertained amount, and a mortgagor suing for an account of moneys received by a mortgagee in possession cannot make the affidavit required by the sta-tute as to the "actual amount of the debt." Richards v. Wood, 12 B. C. R. 182, Persons in possession of choses in action are not chargeable as garnishee. Heard v. Phillips (1862), 1 P. E. I. R. 219. Petition to quash salide-arret before judgment-Judgment debtor-Parties — Conclusions, 1 — A creditor cannot, by means of a saisie-arrit before judgment, restrain the iters-saisi from paying certain sums to his debtor, made a party to the proceeding as mis-en-cause but against whom no conclusions are taken. 2. A petition to quash the saisie-arrit on the part of the mis-encause is the proper proceeding in such a case. Duckett v. Bagard, 5 Que. P. R. 218.

Priority of attaching creditor—Allegation of insolvency by other creditors— Salary of municipal employee.1—A creditor who has obtained judgment on an attachment after judgment, has the right to make in preference to all other creditors of the debtor, the amount awarded him by this judgment, which operates as an assignment or subrogation in his favour.—An allegation of insolvency ought to be made by such other creditors before such judgment on attachment has been recovered. If they wish to obtain the benefit of Art. 694, and that although the subject matter of the attachment is the sulary of the municipal employee mentioned in paragraphs 10 and 11 of Art, 509, C. P. Mailloux v. Blackburn, Q. R. 27 S. C. 91.

Proof of debt due by garnishee to jndgment debtor — Burden of proof — Goods sold to garnishee—Dobt due for price —Condition — Title of jndgment debtor to goods. Adolph v. Hilton (N.W.P.), 6 W. L. R. 119.

Reduction of amount.]---Where a creditor claiming $3,500 attached a fund of more than $50,000 deposited to the defendants' credit in another cause, a motion to reduce the sum attached to the amount to the creditor's demand, plus an estimated sum for costs, was refused. Copland v. Waterbury, 2 Que. P. R. 384.

Remedy of Crown.]-Order 45 of the English Rules respecting garnishee process is not applicable to a proceeding by information by the Crown. The Grown's remedy is by writ of extent. Regina v. Connolly, 21 Occ. N. 270, 7 Ex. C. R. 32.

Requisites of adsic-arret after judgment-Safary-Declaration of garnishee — Costs.]—If a writ of attachment after judgment does not state the nature and place of the debtor's occupation, it does not constitute a soizure of salary which can be declared tenante, and a motion to that effect will be dismissed.—2. However, if the garnishee by his declaration has set forth the fact that the defendant was in his employ on salary, a motion to have seizure declared blaiding will be dismissed without costs, as the selzing creditor had some reason to be lieve that the seizure was recognized as one of salary. Dronin v. Brunelle, 5 Q. P. R. 371.

Rights as between claimant and plaintiff - Defence open only to garnishee.] The plaintiff attached certain moneys due the defendant, and the garnishees admitted liability and paid the money into Court. The money was claimed by a third party ---Held, that in determining the rights of the plaintiff and claimant to the fund in question, the garnishees having admitted liability. it Saisie-arret-Affidavit for-Information and belief.]-An affidavit in support of a suisie-arret before judgment which is simply based upon the belief of the deponent as to the loss of recourse by the plaintiff, in place of positively affirming such loss as a fact, is insufficient, and the saisic-arrêt will be set aside on petition. Michaud v. Clement, 5 Que, P. R. 25.

Saisie-arret-Non-scruice — Motion to discharge.]—A motion by the defendant for the discharge of a saisie-arrit because it has not been served nor returned, will be dismissed with costs, because the defendant cannot apply for the discharge of a writ which has no existence. Devlin v. Charlebois, 4 Que, P. R. 281.

Salsie-arret — Notice of desistment — Costs.]—If a plaintiff desists from a saisearret and gives notice of his desistment, without mentioning the costs to the defendant and the garnishee, the defendant has a right to demand the dismissal of the asisie-arret by motion, and with costs. Bank of British North America V. Laporte, 5 Que, P. R. 67.

Saisle-arret-Second wort-Exception de litispendance.]. To afford ground for an exception de litispendance against a second saisi-carrêt after judgment, while the first is pending, it must appear that the second writ attached the same debt as the first writ. Leith y. Hail, 4 Que. P. R. 398.

Salide-arret—Time for plca to—Inscription.]—In summary causes a defendant has two days to plead to the salisic-arrêt; if he does not plead within this time, the plaintiff has two days to contest the declaration of the garnishee; after this time, he may, if he does not contest it, inscribe the case for judgment in terms of the declaration. Goldberg V, Griffin, 4 Que. P. R. 376.

Salide-arret-Wages — Occupation of debtor.]—The writ of salieie-arrêt must state the nature and place of the defendant's occupation; these formalities with respect to the scizure of salaries and wages are imperative. Mason v. Armstrong, S Que, P. R. 351.

Salide-arret-Wages — Occupation of defendant-Neglect to state.]—Where in an attempt to garnish wages alleged to be due to a judgment debtor, the writ of saisie-arrêt did not state the occupation of the defendant, as required by Art. 678, C. G. P., the service of such writ was held to be of no effect. De Sièges v. Painchaud, Q. R. 20 S. C. 220.

Salide-arret before jndgment - A fi-down-Arcona of security -Nevlect to file copies of declaration and affadvit-Exercision to form.) - An allegation in the affadavit of a plaintiff applying for a salisi-arret before judgment, that the defendant is indebted to him in the sum of $1.000 for damages cansed to him in his trade or business, sufficiently indicates a personal claim.—2. The fact that the plaintiff has not had the amount of security fixed by the Judge, by means of which the defendant could obtain the discharge of the suisiearriet, has not the effect of rendering the affidavit insufficient.—3. Semble, that the default of the defendant to file, within the time allowed, copies of the declaration and affidavit, should be invoked rather by way of exception to the form than by petition to quash the satisficarrit. Cordasco v. Gualtieri, 10 G. P. R. 100.

Saisie-arret after judgment—Contestation—Inscription.]—It is not by way of motion that judgment is obtained upon a contestation of a saisie-arret after judgment, but by way of inscription, following the rules and delays of summary causes. Beauchemin & Son Co. v. Girouard, 8 Que. P. R. 294.

Salary—Writ of attachment — Requirements of.]— A creditor cannot attach his debtor's salary, wages, or commissions without stating in the writ of attachment the nature and place of the debtor's occupation, and consequently he cannot contest the garnishee's declaration, alleging that commissions have become due to his debtor, if the writ of attachment does not meet the requirements of law regarding seizures of salaries and wages. Sieyes v. Painchaud, 3 Que, P. R. 552.

Salary of civil servant — Motion to declare attachment valid.]—The attachment of the salary of a civil servant is regulated by s. 9 of Art, 599, C. P.; and Art, 697 does not apply thereto. A motion to declare the attachment of a salary binding will be dismissed as useless. Garaud v. Boilcau, 4 Que. P. R, 158.

Service of saisle-arret — Domicil of judgment debtor-Death-Garnishable debt -Proceeds of sheriff's sale-Subsequent resale.]-Art. 135 of the Code of Procedure which authorises service upon the heirs of a person deceased within the previous six months, at the former domicil of deceased. applies to proceedings against the heirs, and not to the service of a saisie-arrêt issued against the deceased himself, on a judgment obtained against him, the fact of his death, at the time of the service of the saisie-arrêt heirs known to the plaintiff.-2. A collocation founded on the first sale of an immovable by the sheriff ceases to have effect when the same immovable is resold at folle-enchire, and a saisie-arrêt in the hands of the sheriff for the amount of such first collocation cannot be maintained. Demers v. Gaudet, Q. R, 23 S. C. 276.

Service of saisie-arret — Effect of-Payment to debtor after service-Payment again to creditor — Declaration—Contestation.]—It is the service of the writ of aaisiearrêt which establishes the claim of the garnishor against the garnishee. 2. From the moment of the regular service of the asisiearrêt, the garnishee is prevented from paying to the judgment debtor, and, if he does so, will be obliged to pay a second time, whether he knew or not of the service being made; that is the consequence of the change made by Art. 679 of the new Code of Procedure in Art. 615 of the old. 3. When a garnishee commences his declaration by denyling that he did owe him and had paid him after the service of the asisie-arrêt, it is not necessary to contest his declaration; the Gourt will order the garnishee to pay again.

Service of summons — Domicil of defendant—Writ—Stamps.]—A wit of satistarrity will be set aside if it has not been served on the defendant at his domicil of election, he having no real domicil in the district in which judgment in the principal action was obtained—A writ is also void if it is insufficiently stamped and if the copies certified by the clerk of the Court have no stamps at all upon them. Durchére v. McAroy, 3 Que, P. R. 235.

Service of summons on garnishee irregularity.] — Vaux issued a summons under the Absent Debtor Act, 20 Geo. III. c. 9, s. 2, which enacts that such summons c. 9, s. 2, which enacts that such summons "being duly served, and return being made thereof, under the hand of the sheriff or his deputy, shall be sufficient in law to bring forward a trial without any other or fur-ther summons." It was against McNutt, as trustee or garnishee of defendant, and was served by the clerk of Vaux's attorney, and there was no return thereof under the sheriff's hand. A similar summons was after-wards served on McNutt by Black, by whom motion was now made to quash the former summons on the ground that it could only be legally served by the sheriff. In reply it was contended: 1st, that the clause in the lock was wavely directory and that the act was contended ist, that the chuse in the service by the clerk was good. 2nd, that supposing it bad, the objection could only be taken by the defendant. Shaw, and not by another attaching creditor, who is no party to the proceedings objected to :--Held, (Paters, J.), that a mere irregularity in the service might be waived by defendant, but the absence of the sheriff's return was a defect which rendered the subsequent pro-ceedings void, and could not be cured by any act or consent of the opposite party .--- 2. That the attaching creditor's judgment giving him a lien on funds in the garnishee's hands placed him in the defendant's shoes quoad those funds, and being, therefore, a privy in interest, he had a right to point out defects in proceedings affecting them. Black v. Shaw, (1862), 1 P. E. I. R. 194.

Set-off between defendant and garnishee.]--A debt due by the defendant to the garnishee which did not become due until after an attachment, cannot be set off against the debt of the garnishee to the defendant, being the debt attached. Hogue v. Ogilvie, 4 Que. P. R. 317.

Shares in company—Validity of service upon company—Place of service.]—Where at the time of the issue and service of the garaishing summons the garanishees (an incorporated company) had property in the province of Quebec, and had there an agent and an office where their principal books were kept:—Held, that service was validly made there for the purpose of declaring that the garaishment of shares of the defendant in the garanishment of shares of the defendant in the garaishee company was valid. Skinner Manufacturing Co, v. Vineberg, 8 Que, P. R. 107.

Solicitor's lien-Costs in Court not having jurisdiction—Distribution of moneys at-tached—Insolvency — Opposition — Third party—Prescription.]—There is no lien for costs incurred by an advocate before a Court which has been declared to have no jurisdiction, notwithstanding the contentions of the parties to the contrary. 2. Art, 673 ap-plies, in the case of the alleged insolvency of the debtor, to all distributions of money which do not represent immovable property and for which he is not accountable by law When a garnishment has been declared binding there is no occasion for a subsequent judgment ordering the garnishee to pay over the moneys attached, the amount, unless there is an allegation of bankruptcy, being distributable according to Art. 697. C. P., and especially so if there is a seizure after a prior judgment. 4. An opposition by a third party is not prescribed, whatever be the date of the judgment attacked, if the third party has had knowledge of it only within a year. Royal Electric Co. v. Palliser, 3 Que. P. R. 340.

Statutes-Effect of headings-Art, 1147a, C. P. C.-General application-Circuit Court -Superior Court.]-Article 1147a, C. P. C. (the Lacombe Act), is a general provision, and notwithstanding the place given it in the Code under the heading "Proceedings before the Circuit Court," it applies to attachments of debts in execution of judgments of the Superior Court Cf. Larochelle v. Lacoie, Q. R. 27 S. C. 534, a decision to the contrary. Levinoff v. Fournier, Q. R. 30 S. C. 416; La Banque de St. Hyacinthe v. Desaulniers, Q. R. 30 S. C. 512; Mace v. Gardner, Q. R. 30 S. C. 520.

Suit by another claimant — Interpleader.]—The person who owes a sum of money which has been attached in his hands cannot be ordered to pay it to another claimant, so long as the attachment subsists; therefore, such debtor may plead to an action by the other claimant the fact of the attachment, and ask the Court to decide to whom it should pay the sum claimed and to order the claimant to pay the costs of the action. Shannon v. North American Life Assurance Co., Q. R. 19 S. C. 321.

Art. 1147a, C. P. C., is a right exclusively attached to his person, and his creditors cannot exercise it for him.—This privilege can only be exercised by a debtor condemned by a judgment of the Circuit Court, and a creditor who has obtained a judgment of the Superior Court may execute garnishing process, event where the debtor has conformed to the provisions of Art. 1147a. Larochelle v. Lavoie, Q. R. 31 S. C. 317.

Trustee process—Insufficient notice of assignment—Chose in action not assignable at law.]-The defendant was sued under the trustee process by C. & C. as a debtor of McD. (an absent debtor), the present plain-tiff. On 11th September, 1849, C. & C. is-sued their attachment against McD. under the Absent Debtor Act, and on the 11th December, 1849, served the summons on the defendant, who on the 12th made a deposition admitting £16 11s. indebtedness to McD., tion admitting 216 118. indebteness to McD., which was put in at Hilary Term, 1850. In July, 1848, McD. assigned all his effects and credits to J. McD. as trustee for certain creditors mentioned in the assignment, which was by deed poll executed by McD. only, neither the trustee nor any of the creditors being privy to it. On 11th December, 1849. this action was commenced by the trustee in McD.'s name against defendant, who was MCD.'s name against defendant, who was also sued under the trustee process by C. & C. C. & C. had recovered judgment in the Absent Debtor suit against MCD, and the defendant had paid the amount due MCD. to the sheriff on an execution issued by C. & C. under their judgment against McD. The defendant had no notice of the assignment when he made his deposition. The first notice of it was given in Court when the defendant's deposition was put in and read. --- It was contended on behalf of the defendant: 1. That he had not sufficient notice of the assignment and having admitted assets was bound to pay the amount to the sheriff under C. & C.'s execution and was therefore discharged from liability to the trustee; 2 That the creditors had not assented to the Init the creators have not assignment, which was therefore void as against C. & C.—Held (Peters, J.), that sufficient notice of the assignment had not been given.—2. That the assignment was not binding as against C. & C.-3. That the subject matter in dispute, being a chose in action, could not be assigned at law. Mo-Donald v. Longworth (1852), 1 P. E. I. R. 49.

Writ of saisle-arret.-Mis-en-cause --Transforce of debtor-Petition to set aside writ.]--The plaintiff, a creditor of the defendant, having judgment against him, issued a saisic-arrit in respect of moneys in the hands of M. et al., also making C. F. B. et al. parties (mis-en-cause). By this writ of saisic-arrit the garnishees and the mis-encause were ordered to appear and declare what property they had in their hands belonging to the defendant and what sum of money they owed him. In a declaration annexed to the writ, but to which the writ did not refer, the plaintiff alleged that C. P. B. had acced collusively with the defendant and as his prite-nom in certain transactions with a sum of money was deposited in the hands of a firm of solicitors, the other garnishees. The claim in the declaration was that the sum they had paid or were to pay by virtue of certain acts of sale really entered into with the defendant but nominally with his son, C. F. B., and that the mis-en-cause should be ordered to appear and declare whether the debt was really due to the defendant or to C. F. B. The latter petitioned for the quashing as to him of the writ of saisie-arriet.—Held, that the plaintiff could not, by means of a writ of saisie-arriet, prevent the payment to the mis-en-cause of the sum which appeared to be due to him on the fact of the acts, but that the plaintiff should have proceeded against the mis-en-cause by way of a direct action to set aside the transaction, or by contesting the declaration of the garnishee.—2. That the mis-en-cause have in the right by petition to demand the quashing of the writ. Duckett v. Bayard, Q. R. 25 S. C. 150.

Fees of—Responsibility of advocates for —Partnership—Registration — Profits.] — Advocates are personally responsible for the fees of balliffs employed by them in connection with the cases which they are conducting before the Courts. Such liability, where a partnership of advocates exists, is joint and not joint and several. 2. A partnership of balliffs does not fall under Arts. 1834 and 1835, C. C., and rezistration of such partnership, not being required or authorized by law, is without effect. Therefore the provisions of Art. 1835, as to disproof of the allegations of the declaration of partnership, do not apply to a declaration of partnership, and by a firm of balliffs so far as their business as balliffs is concerned. 3. Although balliffs cannot act, in the performance of their duties, under a partnership name, they are not precluded from forming a partnership as regards the financial return from their individual work, nor from contracting, as a partnership, for the payment of individual services rendered by one or several of them. Acceptance of goods under agreement to sell and account - Obligation to exercise care-Damages on default-Pleading Amendment - Parties.] - A company in Halifax, of which defendant was president, was engaged in the business of selling gasoline engines and supplies, and, in connec-tion with their business, acted as agents for the Toronto Gas and Gasoline Engine Co. An engine belonging to the latter company had been placed on board a boat belonging to the Halifax company for the purpose of testing it and exhibiting its capacity .-- An agent of the Toronto company was about taking possession of the engine for the purpose of returning it to Toronto, but, after conferring with defendant, agreed to allow it to remain on the boat for a time on the understanding that defendant would endeavour to sell the boat and engine together, in which case the sum of $350 was to go to the Toronto com-pany for the engine and the balance to the pany for the engine and the balance to the Halifax company for the boat. Defendant carried on business as a shipbroker, and the boat, while lying at his wharf, was damaged in a storm, and partly filled with water. De-fendant had insured the boat and made a claim upon the insurance company as for a total loss, which the company declined to recognize, and beyond this he took no steps for the protection of the boat or the engine, both of which were eventually lost, and he gave no notice to the company of the risk to which their property was exposed :--Held, that defendant was not a gratuitous bailee and that when the owners of the engine entrusted their property to defendant's care they had a right to expect that he would hold it with the skill which his profession or occupation implied. and, as he had neglected to use such skill, he was responsible in damages for the consequences .- The action was brought in the name of plaintiff company to whom the To-ronto company has assigned, but it appeared at the trial that the transactions between the parties upon which the action was based occurred prior to the assignment :--Held that the trial Judge had jurisdiction to order an amendment making the Toronto company co-plaintiffs, and that his direction that they be so joined was sufficient, and that the Court on appeal had jurisdiction to amend the order to make it conform to the direction so given, the order having been taken out in a different form, viz. substituting the Toronto company as plaintiff, instead of making it a co-plaintiff as directed. Can. Gas Power Launches v. Crosby (1910), 30 C. L. T. 340, 8 E. L. R. 10.

Agistment of cattle - Contract-Liability for loss — Exception as to disease-Death from disease by mismanagement.]-The plaintiff, who owned 47 head of cattle, made an agreement with the defendant to feed, salt, and winter them for $4.50 per head : the defendant to feed the cattle sufficient good feed to bring them through the winter in good condition, and to deliver them to the plaintiff in the spring of 1904 as soon as there was green pasture sufficient to feed the cattle. The defendant agreed that he would be responsible for the loss of any of the cattle through getting lost or killed or any other way, except dying from ordinary dis-ease. While in the defendant's charge 29 of the cattle died; he housed them in a building so low and small that there was not suffi-cient ventilation. They were so crowded at night that they became overheated; as a result they were chilled when turned out and contracted colds resulting in catarrh, which caused their deaths. The defendant was warned by a veterinary surgeon that the building was not large enough :-- Held, that the exception from liability provided by the agreement, in case of death from ordinary diseases, could not be held to apply to disease resulting directly, as was the case here, from the defendant's own mismanagement. McLena-ghan v. Hood, 25 Occ. N. 19, 1 W. L. R.

Agistment of cattle-Loss of-Reasonable care-Price paid-Custom of locality-Negligence.]--Although one who takes animals to pasture them should give them the care of a "bos pire de famille," the extent of this obligation is, nevertheless, dependent on the price paid for such pasturage, and the custom of the locality. Therefore, it is unreasonable to expect that for a moderate price a man should watch the animals constantly; and if one of them disappears, it is the owner who should bear the loss, at least, unless he c.c.L-12 can prove negligence on the part of the owner of the land. Nadon v. Pesant, Q. R. 26 S. C. 384.

Destruction of goods stored, by fire - Liability of bailed.] — The respondents, butchers, had caused to be slaughtered by the hypellanis, as they were bound to be by the balance of the city of Montreal, eighteen hors, which they had the right to leave in the icehouses of the appellants during the following night and for at least twelve hours without paying for storage. During such hight and while the meat was in the lee-houses, a fire consumed the abattoris, and the respondents' meat was destroyed:--Held, that the storing of such meat was not a necessary storlig.--2. That the appellants having proved that they had used in the care of such meat the diligence of a bon père de famille, and that the fire had occurred by reason of no fault of theirs, they were not responsible for the loss suffered by the respondents.--3. That the appellants were not obliged to prove the origin of the fire. La Compagnie de L'Union des Abattoirs de Montreal v. Leduc, Q. R. 10 K. B. 280.

Fire—Damages—Sale of goods.]—The defendants agreed to making hubs of a special kind, and, in consideration of being allowed to use the tools, to make also a number of the hubs:—Held, that the use of the tools was an unconditional appropriation thereof to the contract, so that the property in them had passed to the plaintif; that while using them the defendants were bailees thereof for hire, and after censing to use them, gratuitous bailees; that the defendants, having neglected to send the tools to the plaintif after repeated requests, were liable to him in damages; but that these damages were nominal only, and that the plaintiff could not, upon the destruction of the tools yo an accidental fire while retained by the defendants, recover from them their value, that destruction not being damage such as might fairly and reasonably be considered as arising from the breach, or in contemplation of the parties. Involuntary bailees-Loss or theft of bank notes - Negligence.] - The plaintiff, wishing to send $1,010 to his brother in Toronto, procured at the office of the defendants an envelope such as they use in for-warding money by express, enclosed bank notes to the amount of $1,010, and mailed the letter and registered it. The letter reached Toronto, but was not delivered, owing to its being defectively addressed. The officials of the dead letter department at Toronto, guided by the printed matter on the outside of the envelope, enclosed the letter in one of their envelopes used for returning such letters, addressed it and sent it by registered mail to the defendants in Winnipeg. In due course it was delivered to the defendants' cashier, who received it in a protected cage or pen in which he performed his duties. After receiving the package, the cashier, in ignorance of its contents, laid it unopened on the chief clerk's desk, which stood open to the public and to all the defendants' officials. The chief clerk was not at his desk when the package cierk was not at ms desk when the package was placed there, and said he never saw it, and there was nothing to shew what became of it afterwards. The defendants Winnipeg office had never before, apparently, received a registered dead letter, or lost a registered letter:-Held (Perdue, J., dissenting), that, under the circumstances, the defendants owed no duty to the plaintiff to take care of the letter, and the plaintiff could not recover. Cosentino v. Dominion Express Co., 3 W. L. R. 391, 4 W. L. R. 498, 16 Man, L. R. 563.

Loan of chattels — Detention after demand for return.] — Defendants borrowed from plaintiffs a rotary saw :— Held, that the saw returned was the one borrowed, but plaintiffs not entitled to rent. As not returned on demand nominal charges allowed. Doubted if counterclaim can be converted into a setoff. Corbin v. Stephen, 6 E. L. R. 555.

Loss of article deposited—Liability of bailee—Value of article—Damages—Remoteness.]—A bailee who, by reason of the loss of the article deposited, is not in a position to restore it, is bound to pay the value to the bailor, but he is not responsible for the loss of profits which the latter might have derived from the article. Therefore, the owner of a drawing left with an engraver to be reproduced in proper form for advertising purposes may recover the value if the article is not returned, but not damages for the loss of profits which might have accrued from the publicity which the distribution of the article ordered would have procured. Piggott, 90. W. R. 234, 10 O. W. R. 715. Negligence.]—Defendants received fresh meat from plaintiffs to be frozen and kept frozen until called for. After a few months the meat was found spoled. Plaintiffs claimed damages alleging negligence:—Heid, that the evidence shewed that the meat was good when received by defendants; that the defendants' warehouse was of first-class modern type, properly constructed for cold storage, had sufficient power and was operated with knowledge to conduct it satisfactorily; that the real cause of the meat spoiling had not been disclosed; that plaintiffs had failed to establish negligence on the pirt of the defendants, and that the action should be dismissed. Charrest v. Manitobe Cold Storage Co. (1908), 17 Man. L. R. 539, affirmed; (1909), 42 S. C. R. 253.

Negligence—Storage—Duty of periodical examination.]—The defendants were keepers of an elevator, and on the 24th April, 1897, for an elevator, and on the zero April, 1957, received from the plaintiff a quantity of corn for storage, and stored it in several large bins. On the 22nd May, 1897, desiring to use one of these bins (No. 49) for another purpose, the defendants removed the corn over into another bin, and in so doing discovered that it had become heated, whereupon, by exposing it to the air, they stayed the process of heating, and the corn recovered. They also notified the plaintiff by telegram of the dis-covery in the bin No. 49, but they did not themselves examine the remainder of the corn to see whether it also was becoming heated, nor did the plaintiff ask them to do so. When on the 3rd June, the corn was run out to be shipped, a quantity of it was found to be in advanced condition of fermentation :-Held, that the defendants had been guilty of negligence, under the above circumstances, and were liable to the plaintif for the loss sustained by him. Dunn v. Prescott Elevator Co., 22 Occ. N. 257, 4 O. L. R. 103, 1 O. W. R. 75, 404.

Particular article—Destruction by fre —Liability.]—The plainiff, a butcher, killed three oxen at the defendants' abattolr, upon the ordinary terms, one of which was, that the meat should be kept by the defendants for at least 24 hours, on ice, afterwards to be delivered to the plainiff on demand. During the 24 hours the defendant's building, containing the plainiff's meat, was destroyed by fire, from an unknown cause :— Heid, that the defendants were not discharged from their obligation to deliver the meat by alleging and proving that the building was destroyed by a fire of which the cause was unknown; it was necessary to shew that it was accidental or caused by eis major and not from any cause for which the defendants could be held responsible. Versailles v. La Compagnie de L'Union des Abattoirs de Montrial, Q. R. 16 S. C. 227.

Stable-keeper—Injury to horse—Negligenee—Contract—Estoppel.] —The plaintiff's mare, kept for him in an open stall in the defendant's stable, was kicked by a horse, kept in the adjoining open stall, which had broken his halter shank during the night and got loose. This horse had got loose in the stable on several previous occasions, and on one of such occasions the plaintiff's mare had received a slight injury to one of her legs.

which defendant supposed had been caused by the same borse. In the opinion of the majority of the Court, it was not proved that the horse was a vicious one, or that he had ever broken a halter shank before, or that the shank he broke on that night was not as strong as halter shanks usually are. The plaintiff's mare shortly afterwards died as a result of the kicking :--Held, that the defendant was not liable for the loss; Perdue, J., dissenting. After the first injury, the plaintiff's son, in the absence of his father, asked the defendant to put his father's mare in a box stall. saying that his father on his return would pay the extrc charge. The defendant did so, but, a day or two before the injury, put the mare back into the same open stall without the knowledge of the plaintiff or his son:--Held, that there was no contract binding on the defondant to keep the mare in the box stall; Perdue, J., dissenting. P. 177, 862, 877.]— The authorization given to a curator to an insolvent estate to sue should be obtained from the Court of the district in which the abandonment is made, and the Superior Court of another district in which the suit is azken is without jurisdiction to order the curator to obtain another authorization—2. The insolvency of the curator cannot be a ground justifying the dismissal or the suspension of the suit.—3. The law which authorizes the curator to take suit for the insolvent gives him the quality of representing the mass of the creditors for the purposes of such suit and at the same time makes him the representative of the insolvent; the creditors cannot afterwards take individual suits having the same object as the former one under the pretest that they are exercising the rights of one and the same debtor. Lamarche V, Wilzon (1910), 11 Que. P. R. 347.

Declaration of insolvent — Place of filing—Domicil—Nullity.] — To constitute a valid abandonment of property, the declaration and statement of the debtor must be filed in the office of the Superior Court for the district in which the debtor has his principal place of business or his domicil.—2. If the declaration and statement are filed in any other district than the above, the abandonment is illegal, and all proceedings therein are null and void. In re Rivard, Q. R. 22 S. C. 190.

Demand—Retired trader — Refusal to assign—Arrest—Capias.]—It is not necessary that a person be actually engaged in trade when a demand of abandonment is made upon him. Even where he has ceased for several years to carry on trade, he is Demand of abandonment — Contestation—Pettion — Deposit — Practice—Hearing.]—The contestation of a demand of abandomment is not governed by the rules governing pleadings, but is made by summary petition, which need not be accompanied by a deposit, even If it questions the purisdiction of the Court in the office of which the demand is field. 2. If a debro, by his petition, urges that a delay was granted to him by the creditor demanding abandonment, the adjudication on his petition, and on a motion to reject the same, will be deferred until after proof is made by both parties of their respective allegations. Mussen v, Filion, 5 Que, P. R. 170.

Demand for assignment—Justification —Temporary embarrassment of trader—Failure to meet obligationa—Actual solvency.]— Failure by a trader to meet due bills through a temporary embarrassment, following upon the burning of his premises and pending a settlement with his insurers, when his assets largely exceed his liabilities, is not a cessatior of payments such as to entitle a creditor to make a demand of abandonment of property upon him. Béland v. Colloridi, Q. R. 33 S. C. 210. 9 Que. P. R. 161.

Distribution of insolvent's estate— Landlord's privilege — Statutes — Retroactieity.].—Where insolvent tenants judicially abandoned property for benefit of creditors, and statute law (61 V. c. 46, Q.), at date of abandonment restricted lessor's preference to two years' rent, ranking them as orlinary creditors for bulance, while no such restriction was enacted by law as it stood at date of the leases:—Held, the existing statute applied to all liquidations which arose after its enactment, and governed lessor's privilege unless expressly excepted therefrom. Ross v. Beaudry (1906), Q. R. 14 K. B. 544 (Privy Council).

Fraudulent secretion of assets — Proof of—Discrepancy in statements—Penal provisions of Code.]—1. Proceedings instituted under Art. 885, C. C. P., against a debtor who has made a judicial abandonment, are of a penal nature, and the rules and principles which govern evidence, and its effects in criminal cases, must be applied, and to justify a conviction the guilt of the debtor as to omission to enter property must be established by clear and conclusive evidence...2. A discrepancy between two statements made by the debtor,—one made 31st December, 1900, shewing a surplus of $1,227, and the other, mad-26th July, 1901, shewing a deficit of $1,849, while it raises a pr sumption of mismanagement of his business and of extravagance in his business and of extravagance in his expenses, does not shew conclusively any omission to enter property belonging to him, in the statement filed with his declaration of abandonment, or secretion of any part of his property. Bryce v, Wilks, Q. to pay these costs, and gave to this new creditor a vente à réméré upon the immovables already hypothecated. He was sued by his first creditor upon the hypothec not yet due, and for a declaration that he was insolvent and had impaired the security which he had given:—Held, that, in executing the vente à réméré, he had not made himself insolvent, that he had given to his first creditor, and that what he did did not come within the provisions of Art. 1092, C. C. Danjou v. Vaillancouri, Q. R. 22 S. C. 316.

3. ASSIGNMENT FOR BENEFIT OF CREDITORS.

Account of assets—Concealment—Presumption,1--A debtor waso makes an assignment of his property and deposits his schedale is bound, in case of contestation by a regulitor, to account for the assets by a creditor, to account for the assets which he had in his possession in the year preceding the assignment. His inability to do so is equivalent to proof of the concealment aimed at in Art. 388, C. P. C. Clément v. La Banque Nationale, Q. R. 14 K. B. 493.

Action by assignee to set aside assignment of interest in land made by debtor within sixty days of assignment - Assignments Act, s. 42-Application to subsequent conveyances—Right of assignee for creditors—Trust — Statute of Frauds— Pleading.]-A few days before making a general assignment for the benefit of his creditors to the plaintiff, W. assigned to his wife, one of the defendants, his interest under ar agree ment for sale of land, on which he had paid $200, and had erected on the land a building, the money for which was supplied by his wife, on the understanding that she was to have the property. Three months earlier nave the property. Three months earlier she had entered into an agreement, with the knowledge and consent of W., to transfer this property to S., the other defendant, in con-sideration of a promissory note for $1,200 made by W. and indorsed by her, the pro-perty to be retransferred on payment of the note with interest. At this time all the par-ties considered that the property was hers. Just before the general assignment, when the vendors under the agreement for sale were pressing for payment, W. made the assignment to his wife, who then assigned to the defendant S, who subsequently paid the balance due to the vendors, and obtained title. In an action to set aside the transactions and make the property available for W.'s debts, it was held by the trial Judge that the transactions were bong fide, but should be set aside under s. 42 of the Assignments Act, because the transfer by W. was made within 60 days before the general assignment:— Held, that the provisions of s. 42 are not wide enough to authorize this result; the section is limited to conveyances made by the debtor, and does not apply to any subsequent conveyance; and an assignes' rights are only such as conferred by the statute. The most that could be done, therefore, would be to set aside the assignment by W. to his wife, which had the henchical interest under the agreement for sale, he was not assigning his own interest, but hers; and, the Statute of Frauds not being pleaded and no amendment having been apsked, it was not necessary to consider whether it applied. Judgment of Beck, J., 12 W. L. R. 555, peversed. Smith V. Sugar

Fairchild Co. v. Myrum, 9 W. L. R. 277.

Assignment not made to official assignee.]-Plaintiffs, execution creditors, had caused sheriff to seize certain goods of defendant which were now claimed by M., the as-signee for benefit of creditors of defendant. The sheriff interpleaded: Section 45 of the Alberta Assignments Act provides that "nothing in the last preceding sections shall apply to any assignment made to an official assignee or with the consent of the majority to the provisions of the twenty-second section of this Act, to any other person resident with-in the province," etc., etc. Section 5 pro-vides : "Every assignment for the general benefit of creditors . . . not made to an official assignee nor to some other person resident of the province, with the consent of the proportion of the creditors prescribed by the proportion of the creations prescribed by the forty-fifth section of this Act, shall be absolutely null and void to all intents and purposes:"—Held, that as at time of assign-ment to M. the majority of the creditors had not consented thereto although they had since done so, the assignment was absolutely null and void under s. 5 of the Alberta Assignment Act, and the assignee was barred. The difference between the Ontario and Alberta Acts on this point discussed :--Held, that since the appellants in this case could gain nothing by attacking the assignment, and their objection to it was purely technical, without any substantial merit, they were not entitled to costs either of the appeal or of Enirchild y. the interpleader proceedings. Fairchild v. Myrum, Ex p. Madore, 1 Alta. L. R. 472, 9 W. L. R. 277.

Assignments Act, Manitoba—Fraudulent preference—Sale of stock to person who assumes liability of insolvent to creditor— Notice of insolventy—Discharge.]— A trading firm being indebted to G. in a large amount, and G. being dissatisfied with the payments received and the manner in which the firm carried on its business, but not knowing or having reason to believe that they were unable to meet their liabilities, an arrangement was made and carried out whereby the traders sold their stock in trade to L., and received the price in cash, less the amount G G's claim, which was assumed by L., G. giving time to L. for payment, and releasing the traders. Within sixty days the trading firm made an assignment to the plaintiff under the Assignments Act, R. S. M. 1902, c. 8, for the benefit of creditors generally: --Held. that, as the sale to L, was not impeached, the agreement whereby L, was to pay the insolvent's debt to G. could not be set aside as a fraudulent preference under s. 41 of the Act that the effect of it was the same as if L. had paid the full purchase money to the insolvents. and they had paid G. in full out of it; and so the case came within the saving clause of the Act, s. 44, protecting payments of money ; and that there was no assignment or transfer of anything by the insolvents to G, which could any ming by the insortents to G. which could be declared fraudulent and void under s. 41. Gibbons v. Wilson, 17 A. R. 1, and Johnson v. Hope, 17 A. R. 10, followed Burns v. Wilson, 28 S. C. R. 207, explained :--Held. also, that the transaction attacked could not be held void under s. 45 of the Act, which is limited in its scope to transfers of considerations other than money, such as bills, notes, or goods:—Quare, whether, if the plaintiff had been held entitled to the relief asked for. G. would then have had the right, under s. 46 of the Act, to have restored to him the claim he had previously held against a surety for the insolvents, it being urged that the discharge of the insolvents discharged the surety also. Newton v. Lilly, 3 W. L. R. 537, 16 Man. L. R. 39.

Balance in hands of trustee-Repayment to debtor-Collection of debts-Employment of attorney - Findings of referce Appeal.]-A trustee under a deed of assign ment for the benefit of creditors was ordered to pay the debtor the balance of the estate in his hands, where 18 years had elapsed from the time of the assignment, though but two creditors had executed the deed, it not appearing that other creditors, if there were any, had ever shewn an intention of assenting to the deed, and the Court being of opinion that they would now be precluded from doing so.—A trustee under a deed for the benefit of creditors may employ an attorney to collect debts due the estate.--Where an attorney employed for the purpose by a trustee under an assignment for the benefit of creditors col-lected $211.38 of $1.028.45 book debts due the estate, and it appeared that mostly all of them were for small amounts, many being for less than a dollar, and that one of the reasons for making the assignment was the difficulty experienced by the assignor in collecting even good debts, it was held that the trustee should not be charged with a sum as for debts that he should have got in.—The finding of a referee upon questions of fact depending upon evidence taken viza voce before him will not be disregarded except in case of manifest error, Thibileau v. LeBiane, 2 E. L. R. 422. 3 N. B. Eq. 436.

Declaration of right to rank—Division Court.]—An action for a declaration of the right to rank against an insolvent estate vested in an assignee under the Assignments Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 147, is not within the jurisdiction of a Division Court, In re Bergman v, Armstrong, 23 Occ. N. 14, 4 O. L. R. 717, 1 O. W. R. 799.

Demand—Cesation of payments—Costs.] —The cessation of payments is an essential condition of a demand for an assignment of property for the benefit of creditors. However, if the defendant, by hils default, has occasioned the demand for an assignment, and has not since discharged his obligation, but, on the contrary, has caused considerable expense to the creditor requiring the assignment, the demand for an assignment will be dismissed without costs. Hetu v, Poirier, 4 Que. P. R. 242.

Demand — Contestation — Discovery by Debter, I.—There is no provision of the Code of Civil Procedure whereby a debtor, contesting a demand of assignment made upon him, can be ordered to exhibit and give communication, to a creditor of his books of account, letterhends, or any documents or books of whatsoever nature. Wistar v, Dunham, 5 Oue, P. R. 79.

Demand—Contestation — Time — Order extending.]—The plaintiff having made a demand upon the defendant for an assignment of his property, the latter dil not contest the demand within the time fixed by art. 857, C. P. C. Afterwards, by leave obtained ex parte from a Judge of the Superior Court, he filed a contestation, and the plaintiff asked to have the contestation dismissed as having been filed too late:—Meld, that art. 205, C. P. C., applies to proceedings for the assignment of property, as well as to all other causes, and that the plaintiff, not having appealed from the order allowing the filling of the contestation, could not, by reason of its filling after the time allowed, demand the dismissal of it. Mussen v. Filion, Q. R. 24 S. C. 208.

Demand — Petition to set aside — Affidavit—Notice of presentation.]—There is no need of an affidavit in support of a petition to set aside a demand for an assignment of property, even if the facts relied upon do not appear upon the record. 2. It is not necessary to give notice of the presentation of such petition for a day fixed, a notice of filing it as part of the record being sufficient. Dufrene v, Superior, 5 Que. P. R. 28.

Demand—Service of -Tregularity - Demand based on debt assigned—Proof of.]— A demand for assignment of property served at the residence of the manager of the debtor, will not be dismissed on an exception to the debtor, and that he has not been prejudiced by the irregularity of the service. A demand for assignment based on a debt transferred to the creditor in writing under seal, will be dismissed if the creditor does not prove the writings containing the assignment, which, by themselves, are not evidence against the debtor. A demand of abandonment acquisesced in by the debtor, constitutes a sufficient mise en demeure to cause interest to run on the debt, on which the demand of abandonment was based, from the date of such demand. Laberge v. Brosseou, Q. R. 16 S. C. 430.

Demand ef—Security for debt—Transfer of claims.]—A transfer made by a debtor to his creditor of a right of redemption in land, with the stipulation that the creditor shall exercise such right "si bon luis semble," is not a garantic to the creditor which will prevent him from demanding an assignment of the same debtor to his creditor of an unliquidated claim for renairs and improvements made upon such land is not a payment in full of the creditor's claim, even when he afterwards becomes the owner of the land, but is only a part payment to the extent of the actual proved value of the repairs and improvements; and if, after giving credit for such value, there remains due a larger sum than $200, he still has a right to demand an assignment. Bastien v. Pagnuelo, O. R. 17 S. C. 139.

Demand of—Service — Affidavit.]—It is sufficient to serve on the debtor the demand for an assignment, and to file it at the record office with a claim under onth and the documents justifying it. The service of the claim under onth upon the debtor at the same time as the demand for the assignment is not necessary : Art. 856, C. P. Lamontagne v. Levert, 3 Que, P. R. 272.

Demand of assignment—Place of service — Dregularity — Contestation—Domicile.]—When the report of a bailiff declares that a demand for an assignment for the benefit of creditors has been served on the alleged insolvent at his place of business, the insolvent having no domicile, he cannot in contesting the demand complain of the service as irregular unless he indicates a domicile. Deslongchamps V. Davies Limited, S Que, P. R. 386.

Demand of assignment — Rejusal — Saisic-arriet before judgment — Time.] — A suisic-arriet before judgment based upon the fact that the defendant is a trader, who has stopped payment, and who refuses, although required to do so, to make an assignment of his property for the benefit of his creditors, cannot be issued before the expiration of the second day after the demand for an assignment. Davies Limited v. Deslongchamps, 8 Que, P. R. 387.

Demand of assignment—" Trader "— Art. 853, C. P. C.—Person following trade— Biolor and bailee—" Creditor "—Article deposited.]—One who follows a trade (e.g., leather dressing) consisting in work upon goods belonging to others, and which he does not buy for the purpose of reselling, is not a "trader" (" commercant") within the meaning of cl. 2 of art. 853, C. P. C.; and he is, therefore, not bound to comply with a demand made upon him for an assignment of his property.—The bailor is not the creditor of the baile for the value of the deposit, within the meaning of art. 853, C. P. C.; and therefore, a debt which amounts to $200 only by adding to it a claim for the value of the deposit, gives no right to the bailor to demand an assignment of the property of the bailee. Vermette v. Vermette, Q. R. 30 S. C. 533.

Demand of assignment without other proceedings—Copartnership — Dissolution of firm — Existence for purpose of liquidation—Recours en garantic.]—A demand for an assignment of property made upon a conmercial firm and not followed by the deposit of the declaration and schedule required by art. 859, C. P. C., nor by any subsequent proceeding, does not constitute a state of insolvency so as to cause its dissolution. A commercial firm dissolved by insolvency continues to exist as an entity, and may act as such for the purposes of its liquidation. In both cases the firm sued is in a position to exercise recours en garantic against third persons. Block v. Currier, Q. R. 30 S. C. 37.

Distribution of insolvent's estate-Lien of executions redivers A Asignments Act, 1997, s. 8—Retroactivity—Preference — Executions delivered to sherif — "Bind"—Costas—Payment into Court—Appral—Stay of proceedings.]—Section 8 of the Alberta Assignments Act, 1907, is not retroactive so as to affect the rights of execution creditors whose writes were in the hands of the sheriff for execution prior to the passing of the Act. Delivery of a writ of execution to the sheriff for execution credites a lien or "charge" on the property of the execution debtor in favour of the execution creditor; and seizure, though creating a special property in the sheriff, does not onlarge the lien of the execution creditor. The menning of the word "bind" discussed. Lien of the execution creditor for costs under s. 4. Creditors' Relief Ordinance, discussed. The assets were not sufficient to pay any part of the claims of ordinary creditors, and two members of the firm claimed as exemptions chattels to the value of $500 each (under the Homesteads Act) selected out of the lumber and materials around the factory of the firm :---Held, that by the form of assignment the claimants were precluded from claiming exemption. Trustee's remuneration fixed at 5 per cent. In re Ley. 20 Occ. N. 143, 7 Brit. Col. L. R. 94.

Exemptions-Selection of - Executions Act.]-When a debtor merchant makes an assignment in the form prescribed by the Assessment Act, R. S. S. M. c. 53, s. 43, in the absence of a selection by the debtor; and, if he appropriates and sells only a portion of the property coming under the head leaves to the debtor a sufficient quantity of the same kind of property to reach the pre-scribed value, he will not be liable to an ac-tion for the value or the proceeds of the portion sold. Cloutier v. Georgeson, 20 Occ. Ross v. Creighton, 40 N. S. R. 131.

Form of assignment-Acceptance-Action by assignce.]-A debtor, by indenture dated the 10th July, 1900, mortgaged all his real estate to the defendant; at and before the giving of the mortgage the debtor was, the giving of the morgage the debtor was, and knew himself to be insolvent; he had borrowed heavily and was largely in debt. On the 26th July the debtor made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors generally, to the plaintif, who was a member of a firm who were creditors of the debtor. There was no evidence of acceptance of the benefits of the assignment by any creditor except the plaintiff, or even of communication of it to any other:-Held, that it was not necessary for the purpose that the assignment should be in the language of s. 3 of the Assignments Act, R. S. M. c. 7; the assignee was the proper person to bring an action to set aside the mortgage; he was a creditor and entitled to the benefit of the assignment; this circumstance rendered it irrevocable, Schwartz v. Judgment-Execution - Sheriff-Sale of land, ---Under a writ of fieri facias a sheriff seized the interest of a judgment debtor in certain lands, and advertised the interest for Three days prior to the time fixed for the sale the judgment debtor made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors pursuant to the provisions of R. S. O. 1897, c. 147. The assignce gave notice to the sheriff of the assignment and asked for a statement of the costs incurred to that time. No tender of the costs was made or undertaking given to pay them, and the sheriff proceeded with the sale, and sold the land to the plaintiff. The assignee, notwithstanding the sheriff's sale, assumed to sell the land to, and executed a conveyance in favour of, the defendant's son, who allowed the defendant to remain in possession as his agent :---Held, that the assignment for the benefit of creditors did not stand in the way of the sheriff proceeding to sell under the writ of execution, and that the sale by the assignee was nugatory and void. and the sheriff's vendee entitled to possession of the land. Mortgage by insolvent -- Purchase of mortgaged land by assignce - Ignorance of existence of mortgage-Subsequent action to set aside — Statutory presumption.] — Plain-tiff was assignee in law of the Vandecar estate, and sued in that character to vacate a mortgage to the defendants for $250 made by the insolvent, a few days before the assignment, upon a farm already mortgaged to the Huron and Erie Loan Co. for $3,600. The defence was that the farm was sold by the assignee and purchased on his behalf for $4,200 in March, 1897, and is now vested in him as owner. The learned Judge ruled that such was his legal position, and declined to regard his status as sufficient to justify the maintenance of this action. No doubt, qua owner, he could not attack the prior registered mortgage-qua assignee for creditors he can impeach the mortgage under the statute then in force, 54 V. c. 20, s. 2, s. s. 2 (b). The mortgage for $250 was to secure a bill of costs of the mortgagees; it was made on 15th October, 1896, but it was not registered until 10th February, 1897. The assignment for creditors was executed on 21st October, 1896. The assets were all realized and distributed on a dividend of 7 per cent, about 12th July, 1897. The farm was sold, subject to the first mortgage, on 13th March, 1897, and the conveyance taken, through a nominal pur chaser, to plaintiff in August, 1897. After providing for the first mortgage, there came out of the purchase money a balance of $600. which was paid by plaintiff and distributed among the creditors. Defendants filed their among the creditors. Detendants hied their claim as creditors (but without disclosing the mortgage), in December, 1896, and re-ceived their share of the dividend in June, 1897. It was proved the plaintiff had no till October, 1897, after the state had ho wound up and distributed. Plaintiff took possession of the farm with knowledge of the creditors of the purchase by him, and so remained until disturbed by notice of the exercise of the power of sale in defendant's mortgage on 10th May, 1903, and then this action was begun to invalidate the instrument or to stay proceedings thereon. At trial before Judge (without jury), the action that before Judge (without Jury), the action was dismissed without hearing evidence for the defence, holding that plaintiff could not maintain the action :--Held, on appeal (evidence for the defence being heard), that neither Vandecar nor the defendants entered into the transaction with the knowledge or Intent which would bring it within the mis-chief of the statute, 54 V. c. 20, s. 2, s. s. 2 (b), and that it was extremely doubtful whether Vandecar was at the time insolvent. the appearance of anything extraordinary in the defendants' dealings with their security the detendants dealings with their security being accounted for by the proverbial care-lessness of lawyers in the conduct of their own affairs. Place for making assignment-Judicial district-Domicile-Business carried on in other districts.] — A trader who has stopped payment and has been required to make an assignment of his property, must do it in the district in which he has his domicile of origin and the centre of his affairs; it is of no consequence that he has an interest in an industrial enterprise in one or two different districts, as a member of a partnership, and that he has deposited in the registry of the Superior Court of one of them a declaration under Art, 1834a, C. Sheriff of another district-Validity -Setting aside-Costs of action to set aside deed.]-An assignment to the sheriff of the Superior Court for the district of Quebec by a merchant who lives and carries on business in the district to Three Rivers is absolutely void ; and so are the appointment of a trustee and inspectors and all other proceedings thereunder. Any one concerned can on an application to the Superior Court at Quebec, on producing such assignment, have it declared void ; and it is sufficient to give notice to the trustees and inspectors, without giving notice to the insolvent .-- Such application was allowed with costs to the applicant without saying against whom. The costs of such application are costs incurred in the common interest. and the applicant can claim them " par privilege" from the proceeds of a sale by the sheriff of the lands of the debtor, although such sale was made by virtue of a writ of such safe was made by virtue of a writion \hat{n}_i , \hat{n}_i , issued by another creditor after the cancellation of this assignment.—The pro-thenotary, in preparing his scheme of dis-tribution, ought to consider whether hypothese reported by the registrar are legal; and if it appears by his certificate that a hypothec mentioned in it cannot be a legal charge on the land sold, he should not take it into account.—The plaintiff in an "action paulienne," who has set aside, as a fraud upon creditors, a deed of sale of land made by the debtor, has a good privilege for his costs on the proceedes of the sale of the land; but the prothonomy can only rank him for it, if he claims it by a protest in order to preserve it. The procedure to be followed in a dispute as to the order or ranking of claims is different from that of a dispute of a claim on the merits. Rousseau v. Rivard, Q. R. 26 S. C. 176.

Composition - Payment to creditors as inducement to consent - Recovery back - Set-off.]-Under our law deductions voluntarily made by creditors to their debtors do not leave a natural debt existing, and in this regard there is no difference between deductions agreed to between traders and the like between other persons.—2. A payment made by a debtor to his creditor to induce him to sign a composition is contrary to public policy, and therefore is void as the contract itself, and may be recovered back; and such recovery may be by way of set-off .--- 3. It is too late for the plaintiffs to oppose set-off when the cause has been submitted to the Court on the merits, when the parties have proceeded to trial upon the whole cause, and the Court is in a position to adjudicate at the same time upon the existence of the two debts and to liquidate them by its judgment. There is then nothing in the way of a set-off, and the Judge should order it. Kirouac v. Maltais, Q. R. 18 S. C. 158.

Composition deed—Acceptance by creditor of dividend under—Subsequent action for balance of claim—Proviso as to acceptance by "all the creditors," Shepherd v. Murray, 3 O. W. R. 733.

Compromise—Secret agreement—Bribery -Inspector.] - A commercial firm having made an abandonment of its property for the benefit of its creditors, a secret arrangement was made whereby a particular creditor, without any legal right to preference or priority, was secured an advantage over the other creditors, through the assistance of one of Gentions, through the insolvent estate, to the inspectors of the insolvent estate, to whom was promised a sum of money for his personal use, upon his advising the ac-ceptance of a proposal for the purchase of the estate upon a composition at a rate on the dollar to be paid to the creditors of the estate generally. The preferred creditor was, under the concealed arrangement, to receive an amount greater than the rate of the composition proposed, such additional sum to be paid by a third person who took no direct interest in the estate purchased :-Held, that the agreement was fraudulent and void; that the proposed payment by the third person was as much a fraud upon the general body of the creditors as if it had been promised by the insolvent firm itself; and that the additional sum could not be recovered by the creditor so preferred :--Held, also, that the promise of the payment to the inspector was a bribe, and, for that reason alone, the transaction to induce which it was given should be adjudged corrupt, fraudulent, and void. Brigham v. Banque Jacques Cartier, 20 Occ. N. 371, 30 S. C. R. 429.

Construction of deed — Novation—Reservation of collateral security—Delivering up evidence of debt.]—By deed of composition and discharge, the defendants agreed to accept composition notes in discharge of their claim against the plaintiff, at a rate in the dollar, a special reservation being made as to the securities held for the debt due by the plaintiff. The original debt was to revive in full, on default in payment of any of the composition notes. Upon receiving the composition notes, the defendants surrendered the notes representing the full amount of the claim :-Held, reversing the judgment appended from, that the effect of the agreement, coupled with the reservation made, was that the debtor was to be discharged merely from personal liability on payment of the composition notes, but that the securities were to be still held by the defendants for the purpose of relimbursing themselves, if possible, to the extent of the balance of the original debt:--Held, also, that the surrender of the original notes by the defendants did not extinguish the debts they represented, and, in the circumstances, there was no novation. Beauchamp v, La Banque d'Hochelaga V, Beauchamp, 36 S, C. B, 10

Deed of compromise.]—A statement in a deed of compromise, involving the acknowledgment of a fact, cannot be extracted therefrom, as evidence against a party who signed it, without taking into account the whole purport of the deed, and the circumstance that no further effect was given to it. Lacroix & Nault v. Rousseau (1909), Q. R. 18 K, B. 455.

Settling aside—Mistatement,]—A composition arrangement made with a creditor induced by a misstatement by the debtor to the creditor of the amount of assets and linbilities, will be set aside if repudiated on the discovery of the falsity of the statestatement is not shewn to have been fraudulenity made. Derry V. Peck, 14 App. Cas. 357, applied. Indian Head Wine and Liquor Co, V. Skinner, 23 Occ. N. 73; Plisson V. Skinner, 23 Occ. N. 73; Plisson V.

5. Contestation of Schedule.

Creditors' claims—Contestation—Filing —Subrogation—Exception to form—Tierceopposition.]—The original of a contestation of claim must be filed with the curator, and it is not enough to file a copy.—2. An allegation in such a contestation that the contestant has been subrogated to different creditors of the insolvent cannot be attacked by exception to the form upon the allegation that it is not supported by documents justifying it.— 3. The fact that certain grounds of contestation of a claim really amount to a tierceopposition, while the contestant is not in a position to claim as a tiers-opposant, is also a ground of substance which cannot be discussed upon an exception to the form. Beaudoin v, Lamothe, 5 Que, P. R. 356.

Fraud—Pleading.]—Where an insolvent's schedule is contested for fraud, and the insolvent in his reply to the contestation explains his acts in order to justify them, the contestant will be allowed to rejoin to this reply alleged facts connected with the allegations of his contestation in order to explain and justify them, and these allegations will not be struck out on the ground that they should have formed part of the contestation itself. Bessette v. Ball, 5 Que, P. R. 233.

Summary procedure—Inscription—Notice—Filmg—Service—Time.] — The rules and times for taking the different steps in the matter of the contestation of a schedule are those applicable to summary procedure.—2. An inscription on the merits in every case must first be filed at the office of the Court, and notice must afterwards be given to the opposite party.—3. In a summary matter an inscription upon the merits filed less than three clear days before that fixed for the hearing is illegal and will be set aside upon motion, even when the notice of inscription has been given to the opposite party three days before that fixed for the hearing, such notice being irregular because the inscription had not been filed at the office of the Court at the time that it was served, Dufour v. AmesHolden Co., 6 Que, P. R. 38.

Time — Proof — Exception d la forme— Particulars] — Upon a contestation of the schedule by the curator to an assignment of effects, the insolvent, who awaits the production of exhibits by the curator and the order of the Court before filing his reply to the contestation, and who then files exceptions to the form against vague allegations and motions for particulars, is not delaying the proceedings upon the contestation so as to authorize the Judge, under paragraph 3 of Art. 887, the Judge, under paragraph 5 of Art. Sst., C. P. C., to grant to the curator an extension of time for two months to prove the allega-tions of his contest on.—In this case the Judge having fixed period of six days for Judge having have period of six days for the filing of the roly, the insolvent had a right, in the first tree days of this period, to launch a motion way of exception to the form, and, by period, a motion or particulars, and no valid objection could be made to his not having made these motions within three days from the filing of the contestation .- The contestation of the schedule of an insolvent having a penal character, every allegation should set out the facts on which it is based so as set out the facts on which it is based so as to identify them and give notice to the in-solvent of the acts of which proof will be made against him. Thus, allegations that the insolvent has fraudulently concealed notes to an amount exceeding $10,000, a sum of about $7,000 received by him in divers amounts at his shop, and divers other sums of money, amounting in all to more than $25,000, are too vague, and the Superior Court had good grounds for ordering that the facts should be set out .- Nevertheless, the Superior Court having ordered the curator to set out the facts in support of his allegations of concealment, and having afterwards dismissed the exception to the form of the insolvent with costs against the curator, the insolvent had no ground for complaining of the judgment dismissing his exception to the form, since he had been granted, upon his motion for particulars, all that he could obtain upon his exception to the form. Sylvestre v. Letang, Q. R. 8 Q. B. 385, 2 Que. P. R. 367.

6. CURATORS AND LIQUIDATORS.

Action against insolvent estate— Contestation by curator—Opposition by majority of creditors—Costs—Minority.]—If the majority as to numbers and amount of the caeditors of an insolvent estate are opposed to the contestation of an action by the curator, he will be allowed to appear and contest the same, but on condition that the expenses thereof shall only be imposable on the creditors who are in favour of such contestation. Lawrence v. Chartrand, 9 Que. P. R. 393.

Appeal by curator - Leave-Costs-Creditor-Dividend sheet-Dispute.] - The trustee of an insolvent estate has no right without the leave of the Court, on notice to the inspectors, to appeal from a judgment against him; the Court of Review may reject an appeal for this reason, although not invoked by the opposite party; the trustee who inscribes such an appeal, without the authority of a Judge, must bear the costs thereof, which he is ordered to pay personally; and a creditor, not of the insolvent, but of the trustee as such, has no right to dispute a dividend sheet prepared by the Inter-Slater Shoe Co. v. Marchand, Q. R. 27 S. C. 123.

Appointment — Vacant succession—Notice to persons interceted — Intervention.]— The appointment of a curator to a vacant succession may be demanded by any "person interested." and that expression includes, besides creditors of the estate and specific or universal legates, debtors who may have an interest in discharging their debts, and even persons who wish to bring actions against the estate.—2. It is not necessary, in making such an appointment, to notify any person as opposed in interest, but it is necesary to notify every person interested for any reason, who may have the right to intervene for the purpose of seeing that the curator is regularly appointed and that he gives the necessary security. In re Watson and Trudeau, 6 Que, P. R. 247.

Appointment of curator—Vole to creditorr—Wife of insolvent—Claim for doscr.] —A stipulation for a fixed sum for dower does not render the wife a creditor of her husband, but she becomes a conditional creditor of her husband's estate. Therefore, a wife cannot, on the ground of her dower, be allowed to vote as a creditor upon the appointment of a curator, to properly assigned by the husband. In re Couture and Gaudreau, 6 Que, P. R. 428.

Authorization to defend petition for property of estate.]--The curator of an insolvent estate cannot, without the consent of the creditors or the inspectors, and the authorization of a Judge, reply in writing to a summary petition to recover possession of goods which are in his hands by reason of the assignment. Rotee v. Hyde, 5 Que. P. R. 64.

Bills and notes — Partnership—Insolvency.]—Payments made by the curator of an insolvent estate are virtually payments made by the insolvent himself, and they interrupt prescription. Hochelaga v. Richard, 5 E. L. R. 575.

Beaudry v. Henderson, 9 Que, P. R. 232.

Greditors' claims — Communication to other creditors.1—The enrator to an abandonment of property is bound to communicate to creditors information concerning the claims field by other creditors, and documents accompanying these claims. Williamson v. Sterenson, 5 Que, P. R. 407.

Creditors' claims—Contestation by curator—Second dividend sheet—Contestation— Peilion to set aside judgment — Lis pendens.]—The curator prepared a second dividend sheet collocating the creditors for 17 per cent. In consequence of a judgment of default against a creditor, V., setting aside the collocation which the first dividend sheet had awarded, the curator completely onited to collocate this creditor in his second sheet. At that time the creditor not not more of the judgment upon his collocation on the first sheet. He thereupon contested the second sheet, demanding to be collocated upon it. Afterwards he became aware of the judgment upon the first sheet, and he thereupon presented a petition against that judgment: —Held, that there was no lis pendens by the contestation of the second dividend sheet; that the petition and the contestation of the second sheet were two disinct proceedings. In re Moisan, Q. R. 22 S, C. 423.

Creditors' elaims-Contestation by cur ator-Service-Judgment by default-Void service-Petition to set aside.]-The curator to an abandonment, having made and issued a first dividend sheet in which a creditor, was, with other creditors, collocated for 15 per cent., and having afterwards, with the necessary authorization, contested the collo-cation and the claim of V., must transmit the contestation to the prothonotary at once, and the contestation must be served on the creditors. 2. Such contestation not having been served, a judgment by default agains the creditor maintaining the contestation will be rescinded upon petition. 3. The petition, although intituled "petition for review." if it contains all the material necessary for an ordinary petition, will be considered as such. 4. The enumeration in Art, 1177, C. P., of the cases in which a petition may be presented, is not limitative. 5. If, in place of serving upon the creditor collocated a copy of the contestation, the bailiff, by mistake, serves upon him a copy of the contestation of collocation of another creditor, it is the same as if he had not been served at all. same as if he had not been served at all. 6. Upon motion for leave to contest the re-port of service by the bailiff, a Judge will order preuse arant faire droit; and upon proof of the falsity of such report, it will be set aside. In re Moisan, Q. R. 22 S. C. 429 423.

Creditors' claims — Delay in filing — Distribution.]—A creditor who has not filed a claim with the curator to an abandonment of property, is not on that ground deprived of the right of resorting to the proceeds of the sale of the insolvent's goods for payment, but, if there still remain moneys to be distributed, he may demand payment of hisclaim in preference to other creditors to an amount in proportion to that which has been paid to them, and to be collocated at so much on the dollar with the other creditors for what remains due. In re Brais, Q. R. 22 S. C. 470.

Creditors' claims—Filing with prothonotry—Fee, |—By virtue of Art, 44 of the tariff of prothonotaries, a prothonotary has a right to charge a fee upon a claim sworn to and filed with him, for the purpose of authorizing hed for the nonination of a curator, etc., pursuant to Art, 867, C. P. In re Beaudoin, Q. R. 23 8. C. 179, 5 Que P. R. 291.

Curator ad hoe — Conacil judiciaire — Wish of person interested.]—The Court will not appoint a curator ad hoe to a person under conseil judiciaire, to permit him to litigate interests opposed to those of the conseil judiciaire, when it does not appear that the person has himself expressed a desire to litigate. Meunier v. Meunier, 6 Que. P. R. 201.

Curator of insolvent estate — Payments to privilegad creditors—Collocation— Formalities.]—The curator of an insolvent estate ought not to pay money received from the proceeds of the property of the insolvent, even to a privileged creditor, before all the formalities required by Art. 880, C. P. for the preparation of the memorandum of collocation have been observed. 2. The Court or a Judge should not as a general rule order the curator, although he is subject to the Court's summary jurisdiction, to depart from this Art. 880, C. P. In re Smith and Gagnon, Q. R. 22 S. C. 372.

Deposit made with curator of insolvent estate—Specific purpose—Guaranty —Contract—Employment of clerks by curator—Kight to payment out of estate.]—A contract of deposit gives rise to an obligation on the part of the depositary not to divert the chattel or sum of money deposited from the object for which the deposit is made. Therefore, a denosit with the curator of an insolvent estate made as a guaranty other purpose without the consent of the depositor, and especially the curator cannot dispose of it as if it formed part of the property of the insolvent,—Curators to nasignments of property and to liquidations of companies may engage, and pay out of the property they are administering, employees ful in the interest of the creditors, Dignard V. Chartrand, Q. R. 33 S. C. 147.

Disputing Landlord's Hen.]—The curator to an insolvent estate has a right to attack a privileged claim by shewing that part of what is supposed to be rental goes to the repayment of a loan, and therefore does not constitute a privileged claim. In re Mercier and Pauzé, 3 Que, P. R. 483.

Birks v, Lewis, Q. R. S Q. B. 517, discussed. Demers v, Gagmon Q. R. 17 K. B. 498, Goods in hands of curator—Science by creditor—Saisie-gageric.]—Goods belonging to an insolvent estate and which are legally in possession of the curator to the estate, cnnnot be seized by a creditor of the insolvent. 2. Nor can such goods be seized by a creditor of the insolvent, by a writ of saisie-gageric, even after they have been legally sold by the curator, Forrest v. Letellier, Q. R. 24 S. C. 215.

Insolvent estate — Action by curator— Authorisation — Inspectors.]—A curator to an insolvent estate, who has taken the advice of the inspectors upon the advisability of a suit, and obtained the approval of a minority of them, may, with the approval of a Judge, institute suit on behalf of the estate, Desmarteau v. Steel, 6 Que. P. R. 149.

Insolvent estate—Appointment of curator—Depositions—Signature by attorneys — Sucorn before a J.P.]—At time of appointment of a curator to an insolvent estate, depositions made and signed by firms represented by attorneys are irregular and void ; and so are such depositions when made before a J. P., there being no statute authorising a J. P. to take affidavits. Brossard v. Ouimet (1906), 7 Que. P. R. 471, Insolvent estate—Claim—Contextation— Proof.]— When a creditor files a sworn claim, which is contested by the curator of the insolvent estate, it is for the creditor to prove his claim at the hearing, and the affidavit which he filed with his claim is not sufficient for that purpose. In re Tessier dit Lavigne, 6 Que. P. R. 179.

Insolvent party to action — Substitution of curator—Application for—Wherein made.]—An authorisation to litigate an action in the name of a party who has become insolvent since the institution of the action must be obtained upon petition made in the matter of the insolvent estate, and not in the action in which the curator proposes to litigate in the place of the insolvent, Clark v. Wilder, 5 Que. P. R. 24.

Judgment against-Res judicata as to creditors-Sale of property-Restaurant business-Liquor license-Assignment-Action to set aside.]-In the absence of fraud, the creditors of an insolvent who has made an assignment of property are represented by the curator to the judgment rendered against the latter upon a demand for restitution of the property which has been regularly served upon him.-Third parties are not in a position to oppose a demand to set aside a sale and for restoration of the thing sold, for default in payment of the price contracted for by the vendor of a restaurant business, including therein the license to sell alcoholic drinks; the license, being personal, is not assignable, and cannot be returned to the vendor. An agreement touching the license concerns only the parties to the contract, and is as regards third persons resinter alies acta.—The publicity given to the license, by registration and inscription on the list of the license commissioners, is a measure of policy prescribed by the law in the public interest. The creditors of a license holder do not derive therefrom a guarantee as an additional item in the assets of their debtor. Canadian Breveries Co. v. Gariepp. Q. R. 16 K. B. 44.

Liquidator authorised to bring action to set aside the fraudulent sale of real estate by an insolvent-Execution-Sale of the real estate by the Court-Opposition to protect the liquidator — Re-source of other creditors.]—The liquidator in an assignment of goods authorised to bring suit against the insolvent and the purchaser to set aside a fraudulent transfer of real estate who obtains a decree, conforms to its requirements, may execute it by releasing the real estate and form an opposition keep it to secure to himself the price. creditors of the insolvent are not permitted to object to this price, but must file their objections with the liquidator. Darveau v. Gagné (1909), Q. R. 36 S. C. 289.

Opposition to seizure—Leave.] — The currator to an insolvent estate has a right to oppose the seizure and sale of the insolvent's property seized in execution of a judgement obtained against another person, and may do so without leave of the Judge. Paquette v., Dish. 3 Que, P. R. 480.

Payment of a dividend by assignce in an assignment—Proof of payment.] — The payment of a dividend by an assignce in an assignment, on credit having as collateral bills of order, interrupts the preservition. The proof of this payment may be made without writing signed by the debtor, by producing extracts from the assignce's books, the proceedings which are vouched for in them being judicial and authentic. Att. 1207, C. C. Bank d'Hochelaga v. Richard, Q. R. 18 K. B. 252.

Petition by insolvent for discovery by curator-Sale of assets of estate-Fraud -Claims of creditors not finally settled -Practice.] - The petition of an insolvent praying that the curator of his estate may be ordered to bring into Court all the documents in his possession concerning the alienation of the property of the estate and an inventory of the property and of the moneys realised therefrom, will not be granted where the contested claim of a creditor has not yet been finally decided by a judgment of the Court.— (2) The prayer of the petition against the vendor and purchaser of the assets of the estate, that the money realised from the sale shall not be paid to any one other than the curator, will also be refused, for the same reason .- (3) Where the insolvent accuses these persons of fraud and bad faith in the sale of the assets of the estate, he must proceed by direct action to annul the sale, and not by petition, as in this case. Property of third persons-Revendication-Creditors -Goods sold - Property not passing.]-An assignment of property does not confer upon the curator any right to the possession of property of third persons; the latter may revendicate the property in the curator's hands upon a summary petition presented to a Judge.—The curator does not represent the creditors except in so far as the property of the insolvent is in question; in exercising the rights of a single creditor. for his sole advantage, in regard to property belonging to third persons, he exceeds his powers .--- Immovable effects sold on condition that the property shall not pass to the pur-chaser until after payment of the whole price. may be revendicated by the vendor against the purchaser or the curator appointed in respect of the assignment, if no part of the price has been paid. O'Cain v. Domina, 8 Que. P. R, 172.

Proposed Hquidators— Disqualification of one of them—Director of a bank which is a creditor of the insolecent—R. S. C. c. 134, s. 24,1—It is preferable to name but one person as liquidator, the appointment of joint liquidators frequently causing difficulty and expense in the closing up an insolvent estate. —It is also preferable that the director of a bank which is creditor of the insolvent in a large amount should not be appointed as liquidator to such estate.—When two persons are jointly proposed as liquidators to an insolvent estate, and one becomes unable to act, then the votes given in favour of the other joint liquidator become invalid. Re Dignard et Angers (1910), 11 Que, P. R. 380.

Provisional guardian—Change of.] — The fact that a provisional guardian, appointed by the prothonotary, is a creditor for a sum less than the claim of another creditor is not a sufficient cause for the Court to substitute the other creditor for him. 2. The Court will not order a change of provisional guardian except upon proof of Incompetence or dishonesty. In re Bonhomme, O. R. 22 S. C. 22.

Resignation—Judgment accepting — Jurisdiction of Court—Books of estate.]—If the umconditional resignation of a curator to an insolvent estate has been accepted by the Court, he censes to be subject to the summary jurisdiction of a Judge of the Court from the moment the judgment is rendered accepting such resignation; a petition asking that he be ordered to hand over to the new curator all the books, papers, and documents of the estate will be dismissed. Lamourcus V. Gibson, 9 Que, P. R. 211.

Revendication—Authorisation of Judge.] —No authorisation of a Judge is necessary in order to proceed in an action in revendication against curator of an insolvent estate, and a petition to that effect will be dismissed with costs. In re Decrochers and Aubertin (1906). S Que. P. R. 125.

Transfer of debt — Attack by another creditor — Purchase of claims by—Litigious rights.]—A creditor of an insolvent debtor has no status to maintain that the assignee of another creditor of the same debtor has c.c.L.-13 not given valuable consideration, and that notice of the transfer has not been given to the debtor. 2. Nothing in the law prevents the curntor of an insolvent estate from purchasing from creditors of such estate the claims which they have against it. 3. The plea of "lifgious rishts" can only prevail where the debtor making it offers to reimburse the purchaser the amount he has disbursed. Johnson v. Sharawood, 3 Que. P. R. 473.

7. EXAMINATION OF INSOLVENT OR THIRD PARTY.

Advocate — Cross-camination — Discovery.]—By virtue of Aria. 882 and 883, C. P. C., a creditor of the insolvent, or the curator, with the authorisation of the inspectors, may subprena the debtor to appear before the Judge or the prothenotary, and interrogate him on onth with regard to his schedule and the state of his affairs. The insolvent is not entitled to be represented or assisted by an advocate upon such examination, and at any rate the advocate of the insolvent has no right to cross-examine him; the examination authorised by these Articles being only preliminary information to the creditors or to the curator. In re Riopelle and Kent, 4 Que, P., 180.

Insolvent a party-Right to be present --Cross-examination.]--Under Art. SS3, C. P. C., the insolvent has the right to be represented by counsel at the examination of persons whom the curator deems capable of furnishing information regarding the insolvency ; moreover, such person may be cross-examined on behalf of the insolvent in the manner and form prescribed by Art. 340, C. P., the insolvent being considered a party to the proceedings. Cohen v. Kent, 7 Que. P. R. 26.

Refusal to answer—Contempt of Court.] —An insolvent cannot be imprisoned for contempt of Court because he refuses to answer one question put to him by the curator while under examination. Sare v. Kent, 5 Que. P. R. 94.

Service of appointment—sufficiency of —Motion to commit—Enlargement—Waiver -R, S, O. 1897, c. 197, ss. 34, 35, 37, s. s.1.]—On the examination of an assignor forcreditors under the Act respecting Assignments and Preferences, R. S, O. 1897, c. 147,ss. 34, 35, 37, s. s. 1, it is sufficient to servea copy of the appointment of the special examiner upon the assignor, and it is not necessary to shew him the original appointmentunless sight of it is demanded.—On a motion to commit for failure to attend such anexamination, an adjournment of the motion,at the request of the assignor would submit himself for examination at his own expense, and that, on default, the order shouldgo, is a complete waiver of any such objection to the regularity of service of the appointment. 8. PREFERENCE,

Action to set aside-Preference of assignee-Delay-Fraud-Account.]-- In an equitable action to set aside a deed of assignment containing a preference in favour of the assignee, as fraudulent and void against creditors under the Statute of Elizabeth, the action was not commenced until nearly eight years after the making of the deed, and was not brought to trial until nearly fifteen years after the date of the assignment, no explanation being given of the cause of delay, and the assignce having died in the meantime :---Held, that the Court, in view of the long delay, unexplained, must regard the proceedings with suspicion, and would not lend its aid to the action without some clear and reasonable explanation :--- Held, also, that, under the circumstances stated, the assignee being dead, the assignor would not be heard to say that the transaction, as between him and the assignee, was a fraud, and a scheme to defeat other creditors: - Held, that the plaintiff, not being a party to the deed of assignment, was not entitled to an accounting for what was done under it. Peppet v. McDonald, 38 N. S. R. 540, 1 E. L. R. 82.

Appeal from insolvent Court-Undue preference-Pressure.]- The Commissioner of the Insolvent Court refused an order nisi for the insolvent's discharge on the ground that a bill of sale, to secure a debt already due, given to McL., a creditor, shortly before the act of insolvency, was an undue preference. It appeared that McL, demanded the security and threatened arrest if it was not given, and also held out the hope that he would make insolvent further advances of supplies if the security was given :- Held. (Peters, J.), that to make out undue preference it must appear that the transaction was voluntary, and as in this case it was given under compulsion, the decision of the commissioner refusing the rule nisi was wrong. Bill of sale—Knowledge of insolvency— Onus—Antecedent agreement — Affidavit — Consideration—Amendment.]—A. G. made a bill of sale to his brother, W. G., the alleged consideration being a prior agreement that W. G. should "go good" for amounts owing to two of the creditors of A. G., and a present cash advance of $20.-The evidence shewed that at the time the alleged agreement was made, and at the time the bill of sale was given, A. G. was in insolvent circumstances to the knowledge of W. G., and further that W. G. had not carried out the agreement in the terms alleged :- Held, that the bill of sale was void as against creditors within the terms of the statute, Acts of 1898, c. s. 2, s.-s. 2, and must be set aside .-- Held. the burden was on the defendants of establishing the validity of the bill of sale. and that this could only be done by proving a bong fide antecedent agreement for the security which was given, or a present ad-vance of money on the faith of the security. -Semble, that where a bona fide agreement is established, which has been subsequently carried out in good faith, it will be sustained .--- The evidence shewed that the amount set forth as the consideration for the bill of sale was not due and owing when the affidavit was made, but the point that the affidavit was bad on this account was not taken in the pleadings :--Held, that it was open to the Court, on terms, to amend the pleadings, and to pronounce the judgment which the law and the facts warranted. Mc-Curdy v. Grant, 32 N. S. Reps. 520.

Bill of sale-Levy by sheriff-Action or proceeding--Pressure-Pressumption.] — In an action against a sheriff for the conversion of goods levied upon by him under excutions issued on judgments recovered against R, the plaintiff's title to the goods depended upon a bill of sale from R.—The evidence shewing that R, was an insolvent and the effect of the giving of the bill of sale heinc to give the plaintiffs a preference over the other creditors of R., and the levy made by the defendant inving been made within sixty days from the giving of the bill of sale -Heid, that the levy was "action for the transfer, within the meaning of R. S. N. S. 1990, c. 145, s. 4, and that, under the provisions of s.-s. (2), the bill of sale must be presumed to have been made with intent to give an unjust preference, and to be such preference, whether made voluntarily or under pressure, and that, as against the creditors represented by the defendant, it was utterly vold. Bill of sale — Pressure—Authority of partner,1--A firm composed of three menbers being insolvent and being indebted to the plaintiffs and also to the defendants, one of the members of the firm, under the threat of an action by the defendants, executed a bill of sale of all the firm's assets under which the defendants immediately took possession:—Held, that the bill of sale was not a fraudulent preference, but was given bona fide under pressure, and that the member of the firm who executed it had implied authority to do so, or his partners had ratified his act or were estopped from denying his authority. Bill of sale - Renewal-After-acquired property-Evidence of defendants-Examination under Collection Act-New trial.]- On the trial of an action to set aside a bill of sale, as made by an insolvent with intent to hinder and delay creditors, evidence was given to shew that the bill of sale in question was given in substitution for a bill of sale executed some two years previously, from which a provision as to after-acquired pro-perty was alleged to have been omitted, although it was understood and agreed that such provision should be included. Evidence was given on the other hand to shew that the written memorandum of instructions for the original bill of sale contained no reference to after-acquired property; that neither the solicitor by whom it was drawn nor a witness who was present at the time, and knew of the terms of the negotiations, made any mention of it; and that on an occasion when both the defendants in this action gave evidence before a commissioner under the Collection Act touching the affairs of the defendant by whom the bill of sale was made, no such arrangement was suggested.— The trial Judge having given judgment for the defendants, and the Court being of opinion that the precarious character of the evidence given by the defendants at the trial had not been sufficiently considered, a new trial was ordered with costs .- Semble, as the Collection Act requires the commissioner to file the evidence taken before him, such evidence must be taken in writing, and is the best evidence as to what was said during the inquiry. Farlinger v. Thompson, 37 N. S. R. 513.

Bill of sale—Statutory presumption — Rebuttal—Pressure.]—Section 2 (3) of the Assignments and Preferences Act, c. 141, C. S. N. B. 1905, provides that in a suit brought within 60 days from the making of a transfer of property, to have it set aside, i' shall be presumed that it was made with intent to give the preferred creditor an unjust preference, and to be such, whether made valuntarily or under pressure :— Held, that the presumption is rebuitable, but that evidence of pressure is not admissible for the purpose. Chattel mortgage—Fraudulent scheme.] —On 10th June, 1908. F. gave defendant S., a chattel mortgage to secure certain advances, the wife of F. thereafter carrying on the business, F. acting as her manager. On date of chattel mortgage plaintiff, to whom F. was indebted, had begun an action, and on the 20th July they placed fi. fa.'s in sheriff's hands:—Heid, that solicitor for mortgage and mortgagor should have informed mortgage of the action against F. That F. was insolvent when he gave the chattel mortgage.

was a scheme to defraud the plaintiff, Issue as to ownership of goods was decided in plaintiff's favour. Union Bank v. Schecter, 13 O. W. R. 231, 604.

Chaltel mortgage given by insolvents to creditor—tssionments Act.]—Action by judgment creditor to set aside chattel mortgage made by W. to defendants as preferential, fraudulent, and void. W. knew he was insolvent when chattel mortgage given, so did defendants' agent. Defendants not having rebutied onus on them, mortgage set aside in part. The chattel mortgage was given for W.'s indebtedness to defendants and as a guarantee for rent. The affidavit of bona fides applied only to rent and was held void as regards the debt. Mortgage valid so far as rent concerned. A fraudulent transferee is not entitled to say that the property mortgaged will not more than pay prior encumbrances. The proceeds can be followed though chattel mortgage had been realised on and discharged before action brought. Honsinger v, Kuntz (1969), 14 O.

Chattel mortgage given to bank by insolvent—Action by creditor to set axide later of bank—Status of simple contract creditor—Creditor to maintain action — Saskatchevan Assignments Act, ss. 39 and 48 (b).—The defendant H, was found to have been insolvent at the time he gave the chattel morgage in question to his co-defendants to the knowledge of the latter's manager. Mortgage set aside so far as it purports to secure $500 past indebtedness, but held to be valid as to $250 actual cash advance, although the latter was not taken out by H, until a few days after mortgage given. The plaintiff as a simple contract creditor had a status to maintain the action, Dougles v, Housie, 10 W. L. R. 67, 2 Sask, L. R. 67.

Chattel mortgage given by insolvent to creditor—Absence of knowledge of insolvency—Preference — Validity as against execution creditor.] — Insolvent's manager made a statutory declaration as to the assets and liabilities, 'shewing a surplus of the former. He shid more goods were wanted and agreed if these supplied by defendant a chattel mortgage would be aftern on the stock-in-trade to cover past indebtedness and the advance. Defendant knew nothing of plaintif's claim. Chattel mortgage held valid, Belt V. Robinson, 13 O. W. R. 676.

Chattel mortgage-Insolvency-Assignments Acts. 8, 14-Interploader - Subroadtion.]—In an interpleader issue the plaintiff claimed by virtue of a chattel mortgage from C, the goods seized by the sheriff under the defendants' execution against C. The mortgage was dated the 22nd April, 1900, and was filed on the 18t May, 1900. The sheriff seized on the 10th May, 1900. The sheriff seized on the 10th May, 1900. The sheriff seized on the 10th May, 1900. C, was insolvent at the date of the mortgage; the moneys secured by it were advanced in November, 1908:-Held, that ithe mortgage had the effect of giving the plaintiff a preference over the other creditors of C, within the meaning of s. 41 of the Assignments Act, and the mortgage was therefore void—The interpleader proceeding was a proceeding to impeach or set aside the mortgage.—Cole v. Porteous, 19 A. R. 111, followed.—The plaintiff contended that he was entitled to be subrogated to the rights of R., who held a chattel mortgage upon the same property and whose claim was paid off by C. with the moneys advanced by the plaintiff :— Held, that, as R. was not a party to any agreement that the plaintiff should be subrogated, and the payment made by the plaintiff own, and was not made by mistake, the doetrine of subrogation had no application.— The Queen v. Claim for rent and taxes - Monthly sub-tenancy.] — Plaintiffs rented premises from K, for 5 years. They appointed H. their agent for sale of their clothes. They wanted H. to take over the lease, but as he could not get the necessary security, never did, but went into possession as a sub-tenant :--- Held, as rent was payable monthly, H, was a monthly sub-tenant. The contract with H. was cancelled in August, and in December following he made an assignment for benefit of creditors :-- Held, that plainto whom K, has assigned his rights, could not rank as preferential creditor, under the acceleration clause in the lease, but plaintiffs are liable for the taxes. Semi-Ready v. Tew, 13 O. W. R. 476, 14 O. W. R. 393.

When on contestation of a dividend sheet prepared by curator to abandoned property, by creditor who has the right to be collocated by privilege out of special proceeds or a special fund, it does not appear whether curator has in hands an amount sufficient to cover the claim, the Court will maintain the contestation, nevertheless, and make conditional order accordingly. Re Macpherson and Symonds (1906), Q. Company insolvent-Chattel mortgage with assignment of book debts-Undue pre-ference-Intent-R. S. O. (1897), c. 147. s. 2.]-The Ontario Seed Co, was insolvent to the knowledge of its secretary-treasurer, and was indebted to the Merchants Bank for $8,254.52. The bank held an assignment of the company's book debts. The secretarytreasurer was also liable to the bank as surety to the company on notes to amount of $7,700. The company gave the brother of secretary-treasurer a chattel mortgage and an assignment of the book debts held by the bank, the money raised being paid to the bank in discharge of the company's obligations and of the liability of the secretarytreasurer as surety. The money raised on the mortgage was supplied to the brother by the secretary-treasurer personally :--- Held, that the transaction should be set aside in so much as it gave an unjust preference to the bank, and the secretary-treasurer over the other creditors, to the extent that they were not at the time of the mortgage already protected by the assignment of book accounts held by the bank. Stecher Litho. Co. v. Ont. Seed Co. (1910), 16 O. W. R. 766, 1 O. W. N. 1113.

Composition-Fraud-Bills and notes-Indorsement.]-An insolvent made a compromise with his creditors, borrowing from his wife the money to pay the composition. She borrowed the money from one of his creditors, agreeing to pay a bonus of a large amount, and giving to the creditor for his composition payment and the bonus, her promissory notes indorsed by her husband, with a mortgage on her real estate, and a chattel mortgage on his stock, as collateral security. The creditor signed the composition agree ment, nothing being said about the bonus to the other creditors, who knew, however, that some arrangement had been made with this creditor for the supply of the necessary funds. The insolvent, after carrying on business for some time and incurring further liabilities, made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors:-Held, per Burton, C.J.O., agreeing with the judgment of MacMahon, J., that the transaction with the wife was valid and not a fraud on the composition, and that the creditor was entitled to rank upon the notes as far as this question was concerned.—But the notes in question having been made by the insolvent's wife, payable to the creditor's order, and having been indensed by the insolvent before they were handed to the creditor:—Held, per Curiem, on objection taken in this Court, that the insolvent was not liable as inderser, and that the creditor could not rank on his estatte.—Semble, per Burton, C. J.O., that an objection on either ground to such a claim to rank cannot be taken under s. 9 of the Act by a dissentient creditor for his own benefit against the wishes of the assignor and the majority of the creditors, and an order purporting to be made under this section allowing the dissentient creditor to contest the claim in the assignce's name is invalid. Small v. Henderson, 19 Occ, N. 267, 27 A. R. 492.

Compromise-Secret agreement-Bribery -Inspector.]- A commercial firm having made an abandonment of its property for the benefit of its creditors, a secret arrangement was made whereby a particular creditor, without any legal right to preference or priority, was secured an advantage over the other creditors, through the assistance of one of the inspectors of the insolvent estate, whom was promised a sum of money for his personal use, upon his advising the acceptance of a proposal for the purchase of the estate upon a composition at a rate on the dollar to be paid to the creditors of the estate generally. The preferred creditor was, under the concealed arrangement, to receive an amount greater than the rate of the composition proposed, such additional sum to be paid by a third person who took no direct interest in the estate purchased :--Held, that the agreement was fraudulent and void ; that the proposed payment by the third person as much a fraud upon the general body of the creditors as if it had been promised the insolvent firm itself; and that the additional sum could not be recovered by the creditor so preferred .- Held, also, that the promise of the payment to the inspector was a bribe, and, for that reason alone, the transaction to induce which it was given should be adjudged corrupt, fraudulent, and void. Brigham v. Banque Jacques Cartier, 20 Occ. N 371

Confession of judgment—Pressure — Absence of collusion—Presumption.]— The defendant in consideration of a promise by a trader to pay to the defendant a sum of money on account of indebtedness within a given time or to give security, and believing the trader to be solvent, gave him on credit a further supply of goods. Subsequently the trader, becoming insolvent, announced the fact to his creditors. The defendant thereupon reminded the trader of his promise to him, and urged and induced him to give a confession of judgment for the amount of his indebtedness to the defendant, and to execute an assignment of his book debts to him ; -Held, that the confession of judgment, having been obtained by pressure and without collusion, was not within s. 1 of 58 V. c. 6, and that the assignment of book debts, having been obtained by pressure, was not within 8. 2. The presumption created by s. 2 (a) of the Act does not arise where the sixty days therein mentioned have expired at the date the writ of summons in the suit is sent to the sheriff for service, though the sixty days had not expired at the date of the teste of the writ. Amherst Boot and Shoe C_0 , v. Sheyn, 21 Occ. N. 415, 2 N. B. Eq. Reps. 236.

Confession of judgment—Proof of in-solvency—Notice of knowledge—Statute of Elizabeth—Consideration — Presumption — Onus-Costs.]-In an action to set aside a confession of judgment for the sum of $1.545. given by a father to his son, on the ground that it was a preference within the meaning of the Assignments Act. R. S. N. S. 1900, c. 145, and given to defeat or delay creditors, the evidence shewed that the judgment debtor owned a house and land valued at about $1,300, a piece of land worth about $400, and another piece of land, value not ascertained. He had, besides, personal proin addition to judgment given, were a dis-puted elaim of $200, and a note for $75, not then matured :- Held, that these facts were not sufficient to constitute proof of insolvency, and, further, that the Act requires the party taking judgment by confession should have notice of insolvency at the time, and, while in certain cases this might be inferred, there was no evidence in this case from which such an inference could be drawn .--- Creditor under Statute of Elizabeth. attacking another's judgment, cannot succeed merely by shewing that the judgment was by confession, and in such case no consideration is presumed, but the burden is upon him to shew that no debt was due.--Assuming judgment by confession must be presumed to be without consideration, the party attacking it must still shew that the debtor was subtracting from his assets so much of his property that there was not enough left to pay claims of other creditors .- Appeal allowed with costs, but, as it appeared that there were facts not in evidence, plaintiff was allowed a new trial, costs to be costs in the cause. Debt not dua—Set-off.]—The state of insolvency of a debtor fixes the position of his creditors, and on account of such insolvency no one of them can obtain a preference over the others. 2. One of such creditors, who is at the same time a debtor of his debtor, but whose debt is not yet exisible, cannot, by renouncing the benefit of the term by which the debt to him is not yet due, and by assorting a set-off, acquire such a preference. *Ville-Marie Bank v. with one S. to rebuild the hotel, and he authorized S. to collect the insurance moneys. C. then (26th August) agreed with the defendant that if he would hand over the insurance documents he held to S., the latter would pay the defendant out of the insurance $600 and guarantee payment of the balance due the defendant: pursuant to this agreement the defendant handed over the documents. About detenant handed over the documents. About the 5th September C, decided not to rebuild the hotel, and on that date gave to the defend-ant an assignment of the insurance moneys in S.'s hands, to the extent of $2,200, to secure the defendant, and, as C. stated, to take the place of the original arrangement. This assignment was attacked by C.'s creditors :-Held, that by the dealings that took place between the parties on the 4th August the in-tention was that C, should pledge to the defendant the insurance on the hotel to secure the claim of the latter. The papers handed over were believed by both parties to represent actual insurance, and the transaction was intended to operate as a security in favour of the defendant. It might be regarded either as an equitable mortgage or an equitable assignment. The three transactions of 4th August, 26th August, and 5th September were all connected together; the transaction of the 4th August could not be successfully attacked. and the plaintiffs could not confine their attack to one detail out of several. S. became a trustee of the proceeds in favour of the defendant; that trusteeship arose when the insurance papers were delivered to S. Ferguson v. Bryans, 24 Occ. N. 194.

Extension agreement - Secret advantage - Voluntary payment - Action by assignee-Status.]-S., a trader, in August, 1899, procured the consent in writing of his creditors to payment of his debts then due and maturing, by notes at different dates extending to the following March. V., one of the creditors, insisted on more prompt pay-ment of part of his claim, and took from S. notes, aggregating in amount $708, all payable in September, which S agreed in writing to pay at maturity, and did pay. In Novem-ber, 1899, S. assigned for the benefit of his creditors, when the arrangement between him and V. first became known, and the assignee and other creditors brought an action to re-cover $708 from V. as part of the insolvent Cover avos involves as pair to the mostvent estate: --Held, affirming the judgment of the Court of Appeal, 3 O. Fraudulent preference-Sale of business by insolvent to wife-Knowledge of wife of husband's intention to prefer certain creditors-Repayment of part of purchase money to wife by way of preference.]-An insolvent trader sold out his business to his wife, who was one of his creditors, having means of her own, and who actually raised the money to make the purchase :---Held, that the sale and transfer were valid, notwithstanding that the wife knew of her husband's insolvency and that he intended to prefer certain of his creditors to others by pay ments out of the purchase money. The whole of the purchase money of the business was paid over to the husband, on the understanding, however, that the wife would at one be repaid the amount owing to her, which was done :-- Held, that the transaction must be considered as an advance of the purchase money less the amount owing her, and that as to that amount it was fraudulent and void, and she was a debtor to her husband's estate for the portion of the purchase money thus paid back to her, and must account for the same to her husbands assignee for creditors. Hypothecation to bank of securities —Alberta Assignments Act, 1907 — Preference—Concurrence of intent.]—Action to set aside several transactions between the defendants and A. as coming under ss. 39. 40. 41 and 42 of the above Act:—Held, that as to some of the transactions there was not the required intent on the part of A. to give, and the defendants to accept. a preference over creditors:—Held, that others were had where defendants had induced one partner to endorse a note without any consideration when their insolvent condition must have been known to defendants. Mortgage - Statutory presumption -Rebuttal-Transaction before 1897-Circumstances rebutting intent to prefer-Registry laws-Assignment for creditors-Priorities.] Laws—Assignment for creations—Propriets, —At the revision of the Ontario Statutes in 1807, the words "prima facie" were inserted after the word "presumed," where it occurs in s.ss. 3 and 4 of s. 2 of c. 147, and the doubt whether the presumption was rebuttable was thereby set at rest; but even un-der the language of s.-s. 2 (b) of s. 2 of the Act of 1887, i.e., without the words "prima facie," the presumption was rebuttable; and in the case of a mortgage of land to secure a debt, made on the 15th October, 1896, to the defendants, followed on the 21st October, 1896, by an assignment by the mortgagor to the plaintiff for the benefit of creditors, the defendants were entitled to shew that there was no intent to prefer. Lawson McGeoch, 20 A. R. 464, followed :-Held, also, upon the evidence, that the presumption of intent to prefer was rebutted .- Held. also, that the plaintiff, as assignee for the benefit of creditors, occupied no higher posi-tion than his assignor, and could not be regarded as a subsequent purchaser for valuable consideration, within the meaning of the Registry Act, so as to avail himself of its provisions with regard to the registration of the assignment before the mortgage, Craig v. McKay, 12 O. L. R. 121, 7 O. W. R. 507.

Mortgage by insolvent wife to husband-Preference-Presumption - Rebuttal. McNeil v. Dawson, 1 O. W. R. 24.

Payment in ordinary course of business-Power of attorney. Goulet v. Greening, 1 O. W. R. 550.

Payment of salary—Fraud on creditors — Attachment of salary.] — A contract by which the wife of an insolvent is to receive from a third person for services to be rendered by her hushand a certain salary and a part of the profits of the business of the third person, is vold as being made in fraud of creditors. Accordingly, the creditors of the hushand can seize in execution or attach the salary due under such contract. Orsali v. Aubry, Q. R. 24 S. S. 320.

Pressure—Intent.]—In giving the chattel mortgage impenched in this action it appeared that the dominant motive of the debtor was to make an arrangement for continuing his business, the defendant having induced him to give it by promises of assistance in carrying him along and in arranging with other creditors, although not in any definite way enforceable in a Court of law :—Held, that, under s. 33 of the Assignments Act, R. S. M. ec. 7. as amended by 63 & 64 V. c. 3. s. 1, there must still be the intent on the part of the debtor to prefer the particular creditor, in order to set aside the impeached conveyance; and, while the effect of it may be to place that creditor in a more advantageous posi-tion than other creditors, and the debtor may recognize at the time that such will be the effect, yet if he gave it for some other puror in the hope that he might thus be enabled to avoid insolvency, it cannot be considered that he gave it with intent to give considered that he gave it with intent to give a preference, and the security should stand. Stephens v. McArthur, 19 S. C. R. 446, New Prance and Garrard's Trustee v. Hunting, [1897] 2 Q. B. 19, S. C., sub non, Sharp v. Jackson, [1899] A. C. 419, Laucon v. Mc Geoch, 20 A. R. 464, and Armstrong v. John-son, 32 O. R. 15, followed. Although the amendias Act declares that a prima facie pre-amendias d en invari to prefer it to arise sumption of an intent to prefer is to arise from the effect of such a transaction, this does not justify the Court in looking only to the effect and refusing to attach any weight to the proved facts as to the actual intent. The presumption being only prima facie may be rebuited by evidence :--Held, also, that the Court need not determine whether the preferred creditor was acting bona fide or really anticipated that the other creditors could be arranged with and the business continued, it being only the debtor's mental attitude that should be considered. Codville v. Fraser, 22 Occ. N. 123, 14 Man. L. R. 12.

Pressure - Intent-Notice.]-A debtor mortgaged all his real estate to the defendant. and shortly afterwards made an assignment to the plaintiff for the benefit of his creditors generally. Before the giving of the mortgage he was and knew himself to be insolvent. On the day the mortgage was given the defendant went to the debtor and asked for payment, and the debtor informed him he could make none, and then gave the mortgage. The evidence was contradictory as to whether there was a request for security :--Held, that when the debtor gave the mortgage he was in insolvent circumstances; the execution of it had the effect of giving the defendant a preference over the unsecured creditors; it must e presumed that the mortgage was executed with intent to prefer and that it constituted a preference. Stephens v. McArthur, 19 S. C. R. 446, followed. 2. At and before the execution of the mortgage, the defendant had notice of the insolvency and of the mortgage being made with intent to give him a preference over other creditors and having such effect. Schwartz v. Winkler, 21 Occ. N. 574, 13 Man. L. R. 493.

Pressure — Knowledge of insolvency — Yukon Ordinance. . — The effect of s. 2 of the Yukon Ordinance, c. 2S, Consolidated Ordinances, 1902, is to remove the doctrine of pressure in respect to preferential assignments, and, consequently, all assignments made by persons in insolvent circumstances come within the terms of the Ordinance. In order to render such an assignment vold, there must be knowledge of the insolvency on the part of both parties and concurrence of intention to obtain an unlawful preference over the other creditors. Promise to give security-Presumption -Rebuttal-Payment-Transfer of security -Cheque - Promissory notes-Discount by third person.]-In April, 1898, a mercantile firm obtained from a bank accommodation of about $8,200 for the purpose of buying goods upon promissory notes endorsed for their ac commodation by the defendant, a brother of one of the partners, they promising him to retire the notes out of the proceeds of the sales of the goods. The proceeds were not so applied, to the defendant's knowledge, and the notes were from time to time renewed in full, the defendant indorsing them upon each renewal. He was satisfied by a general promise that they would secure him, but no security was ever definitely mentioned, DOP did he ever press for it. On the 27th May, 1899, the firm sold out their assets for nearly $11,000, their liabilities being about $19,000. Before the sale was carried out the defendant became aware that the firm was insolvent. The purchase money was paid to the firm, $1,000 in eash, $5,000 by a cheque to their order, and the remainder by promissory notes. The firm handed over the cash to the defendant, and indorsed the cheque and some of the notes to him, and he with the cash and the proceeds of the cheque and notes, the latter being at his request indorsed and discounted by a stranger for him, retired all the notes upon which he was liable, and paid, besides, some rent, taxes, and other debts due by the firm. On the 2nd June, 1899, the firm assigned to the plaintiff for the benefit of their creditors :-- Held, that the promise to give the defendant security could only mean that the firm, being unable to pay or secure the notes for fear of bringing on immediate insolvency, would pay or secure them in the future in case their affairs should become desperate, and such a promise was not sufficient to rebut the statutory presump-tion of a preference. The payment of $1,000 in cash to the defendant could not be attacked, and that should be treated as having formed part of the sum of $5,200 paid to retire two of the notes .- The $5,000 cheque transferred to the defendant was not a payment in cash, but was the transfer of a security, and he was liable to repay the proceeds of it, less the portion expended in paying debts, etc., of the firm.-The notes indorsed by the firm, and handed to the defendant for the purpose of procuring the payment of the remaining note which he had indorsed for them, were handed by him to the stranger in pursuance of that purpose, and what the latter did was done for the defendant, and not for the firm, and must be treated as if done by the defendant him-Relf Armstrong v. Johnston, 20 Occ. N. 334, 32 O. R. 15.

Promissory notes — Composition—Costs of action.]—1. Where a creditor, who was also one of the inspectors of the insolvent estate, exacted promissory notes from the insolvent as a condition of his assent to a compromise, such notes were illegal, null and void, as made in fraud of the other creditors, and against public order, and no action could be maintained on the notes by the creditor, or by a prétenom. Brigham v. Banque Jacquee-Cartier, 30 S. C. K. 429, followed.— 2. The Judge at the trial dismissed the action "with costs." The Court of Review declined, under the circumstances, to interfere with the discretion thus exercised. Cartier v. Genser, Q. R. 21 S. C. 139.

Recel-Capias, I-A preferential payment is a "recel" in the sense of the statute, and the allenation of his property, whether reai or personal, by an insolvent debtor, with intent to defraud-which intent may be deduced from circumstances-is also a "recel" which is ground for a capies. Quebec Bank v. Elliott, Q. R. 16 S. C. 393.

Sale of assets-Extinguishment of debt.] -T. and C., doing business under the name & Co., made an assignment for the benefit of creditors, and T. then induced the plaintiffs, creditors, to pay off a chattel mort gage on the stock and a composition of 25 cents on the dollar of unsecured claims, the plaintiffs to receive their own debt in full with interest. The assignce of T. & Co. then transferred all the assets to the plaintiffs, and the arrangement was carried out, the plaintiffs eventually re-conveying the assets to T., taking his promissory notes and a chattel mortgage as security. In an action chattel mortgage as security. against T. & Co. on the original debt :-Held, affirming the judgment in 26 A. R. 295, 19 Occ. N. 211, that the original debt was extinguished, and C. was released from all liability thereunder. Dueber Watch Case Mfg. Co. v. Taggart, 20 Occ. N. 321, 30 S. C. R. 373.

Sale to particular creditor –– Knovledge–Bona fides–Delivery.1–A debtor may in good faith sell to his creditor, subject to a right of redemption, all his chattels, being all the property that he has, if such creditor does not know that the debtor has at the time of sale another creditor, and the latter cannot attack such a sale made pursuant to an agreement anterior to the debt, unless he proces that the purchaser knew that his vendor had other creditors, and therefore was making himself insolvent by this sale. A sale of chattels, subject to a right of redemption, made by an insolvent debtor to his creditor, in good faith, in payment of the debt due, has the effect, even without delivery, of taking the goods out of the patrimony of the vendor, and his other creditors cannot seize them, although there has been no delivery. Beaubien v. Perrault, Q. R. 17 8. C. 410.

Secret agreement - Onus - Voluntary payments-Assignce for creditors-Particular creditors-Privity.]-In an action by certain creditors of an insolvent and by his assignce for the general benefit of creditors to recover from the defendants, who were also creditors of the insolvent, certain sums of money paid by the insolvent to the defendants before the assignment under the terms of an alleged secret agreement :---Held. that the onus of proof was on the plaintiffs. -Held, also, that, the payments not being procured by oppression or extortion on the part of the plaintiffs, but being voluntary. the assignee could not recover. Review of English cases on this point. Nor could the other plaintiffs, not being the whole body of creditors, recover, even when using the name of the assignee as plaintiff, by virtue of an order under R. S. O. c. 147, and no privity such as would give a right of action was established between the creditor plaintiffs and the extension by these insolven ment. 1 32 O. H Transfer by insolvent debtor-Attacking - Time - Division Court proceeding-Collateral inquiry - Pressure-Evidence of.] -A garnishee summons was issued from a Division Court on the 22nd January, 1900, wherein the primary creditor claimed from the primary debtor $200 upon a due bill, and whereby all debts due from an insurance company to the primary debtor were attached. The primary debtor had recovered a judgment against the insurance company on the 7th December, 1899, and had assigned the judgment on the same day to the claimant. No formal notice of the proceedings in the Division Court or of any contest as to his rights was ever given to the claimant, but he appeared in the proceedings on the 6th July 1900, and consented to an adjournment of them, and afterwards appeared again before the Judge, when his rights under the assignment were tried, and judgment was given against him setting aside the assignment as an unjust preference :---Held, on appeal, that the transfer to the claimant was not attacked when the summons was issued, nor until the claimant appeared in the proceedings, and, therefore, it was not attacked within sixty days, and its validity could be supported by proof of pressure in procuring it :--Held, also, Falconbridge, C. J., dissenting, that, as it ap-peared from the evidence both of the primary debtor and the claimant, that the latter had asked the former for security shortly before the security was given, and that the security given was that which was promised, there was pressure inducing the giving of the security, and it should be upheld, notwithstanding that the claimant was merely liable for a debt of the primary debtor which it was expected he should pay, as he did, and notwithstanding that he was not present at the time the assignment was made to him, it having been drawn by his solicitor. Molsons Bank W. Halter, 18 S. C. R. 88, and Stephens v. Mc-Arthur, 19 S. C. R. 446, followed. Murphy v. Colvell, 22 Occ. N. 111, 3 O. L. R. 314, 1 O. W. R. 146.

Transfer of cheque—Deposit with private banker—Application by banker upon overdue note — Absence of pre-arrangement and of intent to prefer.]—On the 5th September, 1904, a merchant, being then insolvent, sold his stock-in-trade at 50 cents on the dollar, and received in payment the purchaser's cheque on the defendants' private bank for $1,172.27, payable to his own order, which he took to that bank, where he had an account, and deposited it to his own credit. The defendants knew that the sale was about to be made, and had lent the purchaser, and knew that the money was to be deposited in their bank by he insolvent, and, in anticipation of this, had charged up against the insolvent's account (without the latter's knowledge) an overdue note for $1,000 and $40 interest thereon. The deposit of the purchaser's cheque with the defendants was attacked by this action (brought within 60 days thereafter) as a preferential transfer of a bill or security to a crefitor, within R. S. O. 1897. c. 147, s. 2:—Held, Street, J., dissenting, that, there being no evidence of any pre-arrangement nor of any intent to prefer, the transaction was not within the scope of the Act, Judgment of Falconbridge, C.J.K.B., affirmed, Robinson v. Metilikray, 12 O. L. R. 91, 7 O. W. R. 438, S O. W. R. 662

Supreme Court of Canada held, that the transaction was a payment to a creditor within the meaning of R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, s. 3, s.-s. 1, which was not, under the circumstances, void as against creditors, Robinson, Little, & Co, v. Scott & Son, 39 S. C. R. 281; Robinson v. McGillivray, 27 C. L. T. 653.

Transfer of goods by insolvent to creditor — Presumption — Rebuttal — Absence of frandulent intent—Actual advance of money—Judgment—Defendant not appearing, Baldacchi v. Spada, 7 O. W. R. 325, 8 O. W. R. 705,

Transfer of goods — Presumption.] — The statutory presumption of the invalidity of a preferential transfer of goods is rebutted by shewing that it was entered into by the transferee in good faith and without knowing, or having reason to believe, that the transferor was insolvent. Dana v. MoLean, 21 Occ. N. 555, 2 O. L. R. 406.

Undue preference.] — The debtor who, within the five weeks previous to his assignment, effected a loan from one of his creditors, who was also his father in-law, in consideration of the transfer of certain immovable property, is bound, to escape the presumption of secretion, to prove that the transmetion was legal. It is not sufficient for him to establish that the money borrowed was paid to his creditors; he must also prove that the transfer does not cover an undues no prejudice to his other creditors. Desmarteau v, Guimont, 19 Que, K. B, 25.

9. MISCELLANEOUS CASES,

Accord and satisfaction.] — Defendants, being insolvent, made an arrangement with their creditors for sale of their assets and distribution of the proceeds among their creditors ratably. The trustee appointed by the creditors wrote the plaintiffs asking them to send in their claim, which was done, and in due course the trustee sent the plaintiffs a cheque for, their share of the amount available, and asked an acknowledgment of the receipt of the same "in full of account," the cheque also being market " in full claim R. A. Copeland & Co." The plaintiffs struck out the words on the cheque, and notified the trust, that they would not accept the amount in full, but retained the cheque. In an action for the balance of the claim, the defendants pleaded acceptiance of the amount plaid in full:—Held, that, in order to establish accord and satisfaction of a debt by a payment of less than the amount due, it must be shewn that such payment was made in pursuance of an agreement for that purpose, or was so accepted by the creditor, and that there was no evidence that the payment in question was so made or accepted. 2. Following Day v. McLea, 22 Q. B. D. 610, that the keeping of a cheque marked "in full" is not conclusive evidence of accord and satisfaction, but it may be shewn that, as a matter of fact, the creditor did not accept the cheque in full. McPherson v. Copeland (1960), 1 Sask, L, R, 519, 9 W, L, R, 623.

Action for debt—Defence—Discharge in barkruptey in England,]—A plea that the defendants were adjudged bankrupt, and a certificate of discharge granted, in England, under the Bankruptey Act, 1883, is a good answer to an action for a debt provable against the defendants in bankruptey, brought in New Brunswick by the subject of a foreign state who had never resided or been domiciled within British Dominions. Nicholson v. Baird, N. B. Eq. Cas. 195, considered. Ford v. Stewart, 35 N. B. Reps. 568.

Agreement in fraud of creditors-Judgment declaring void — Action by one creditor — Benefit of all — Distribution of assets-Collocation of creditors' claims-Con-testation-Status of contestant.]-Judgment declaring void an agreement (in this case a stipulation for dower and other property in favour of wife in a contract of marriage) made in fraud of his creditors by an insolvent, to profit of a person having know-ledge of the insolvency, although rendered in a suit instituted by only one of his credi-tors, is for benefit of all others, who are regarded as being represented by the creditor A creditor collocated for his pro rata suing. share in a report on distribution has an incollocated each for his share in moneys to be distributed, and has, therefore, a status to contest the collocation of a third person upon a claim not well founded in law, such collocation having the effect, by retarding payment of other creditors, of reducing the chances of the contestant to have his own claim paid out of the future-acquired pro-perty of the debtor. Chevalier v. Martel (1906), Q. R. 27 S. C. 356.

Alberta Assignments Act — Retroactivity—Transactions completed before statiste came into force—Assignment for benefit of creditors—Right of action of assignme— Fraud — Mortgage — Land Titles Act — Effect of non-registration — Preference — Knowledge of insolvency—Intent, 1—So far as it affects transactions completed before its coming into force, the Assignments Act is not retrospective; but, semble, that s. 49, so far as it gives a right of action to the assignce, to the exclusion of creditors, is retrospective, but this only applies to transactions " in fraud of creditors, or " in violation of this Act." Hence, where an assignce under the Act brought an action to set aside certain transactions between the assignor and one of his creditors, completed prior to the Act coming into force, on statutory grounds:—Held, that, fraud not having been shewn, the plaintiff's action musifail. A mortgage of land under the Land Titles Act, immediately upon its execution, constitutes an effective security as binding as between the parties as if registered. The success of a creditors' action, attacking a transaction as a preference, would depend on proof of knowledge of the debtors insolvency on the part of both parties, and the concurrence of intention to create an unlawful preference. Horne v, Galt, 1 Alta-L, R. 392.

Alberta Assignments Act - Transfer of property by insolvent to creditor-Substance of transaction-Vendor's lien - Presumption-Waiver.]-Where a transaction is attacked as void under the Assignments Act. 1907, the substantial effect rather than the mere form of the transaction should be considered. This principle applied to the facts in this case. A vendor's lien comes into existence and continues, by operation of law. unless there is an intention on the part of the vendor to the contrary. The presumption is in favour of the lien-and the fact that part of the purchase money is secured by mortgage, and the balance covered by a promissory note, is not conclusive of intention to waive the lien. debt to G., and to procure the latter to release them, M. & Co., from that debt. He paid M. & Co, in cash the difference between the pur chase price of the stock (821/2 cents on the dollar) and the amount of their debt to G .: he also bound himself to G. to pay M. & Co.'s debt to them, and procured from G, and delivered to M. & Co. a release in full of their debt to G. There was thus a complete nova-tion as to the debt due to G. A few days later, and within 60 days after the novation, M. & Co. assigned under the provisions of the Assignments Act, for the benefit of their creditors, to the plaintiff, G, did not know M. & Co. to be insolvent, and entered into the arrangement with L, in good faith :--Held, that it was doubtful whether such a novation could be attacked under the Assignments Act. The contract had been partly performed Le's part, and wholly on that of G. The latter had released M. & Co. absolutely, and in so doing had also released one B. from his covenant which G. held, to pay the liability to G. of a former firm, which M. & Co. had assumed, and $1,200 of which was still unpaid. at the time of the assumption of M. & Co.'s debt by L., and was included in that debt, G. had lost recourse against M. & Co, and the members of that firm. Even if the plaintiff could by this action consent that G., if the novation were set aside, should be at liberty to rank on the estate and receive dividends, the Court could not restore to G, his rights as against the members of the firm of M. & Co., as those had been released in good faith. and it could not restore the claim against B. Newton v. Lilly, 24 Occ. N. 250.

Assignments Act, Manitoba-Action by Creditors-Time - Amendment - Statute of Limitations-Preference - Assignment of insurance moneys.]-The plaintiffs brought ac-tion on the 2nd November, 1903, on "behalf of themselves and all other creditors of C. . . . who are willing to join in and con-tribute towards the payment of the expenses thereof," to set aside, as a fraudulent prefer-ence, an assignment by C. to the defendant, dated the 5th September, 1903. of certain moneys payable under fire insurance policies to secure defendant's claim against C had not assigned under the Assignments Act, R. S. M. 1902, c. S. On the 4th December, 1903, the plaintiffs amended by adding after the words quoted, "and the same is brought for the benefit of the creditors generally of the said debtor :"-Held, that there was no suit brought for the benefit of the creditors generally, or of such as had been injured, delayed, or prejudiced, to impeach the transaction in question, until the amendment of the 4th December was made, which was more than 60 days after the date of the impeached transaction; and that this objection was fatal, notwithstanding the provision in s. 48 (b) that "in case any amendment of the statement of claim be made, the same shall relate back to the commencement of the action for the purpose of the time limited by the 40th section hereof." The right to sue and the relief to be given are created by the The statute and must be construed strictly. amendments referred to in that provision must, in strict construction, be confined to allegations of law or fact upon which the relief is to be founded, and that provision presupposes an action to have been commenced in the form provided within 60 days.

On the merits, also, the findings of fact were that the impeached assignment was not a frandulent preference within the meaning of the Act, as it was only the last of a series of transactions all connected together which should be treated as a whole, and so treated, were not open to attack. Ferguson v. Bryans, 24 Occ, N. 194, 15 Man. Clerical error in balance sheet-Correction-Change of debtor's name.]-The curator to the estate of an insolvent trader has no right or status to ask that a clerical error in the balance sheet be corrected; such error may be corrected at the request of the insolvent, but not of the curator, 2. A petition to be allowed to change the name of a debtor of the insolvent in the bilan is useless, the books and deeds shewing clearly the name of the debtor whom the curator may sue. Costs of proving claim—Assignce acting unreasonably.]—Where proving a creditor's claim required the presence of a witness from abroad, and much time was occupied in proving it before a Judge, still as the assignee has not acted unreasonably and put the creditor to any unnecessary expense, no costs allowed for proving claim. Re Archibald, Woodbury Claimant, 6 E. L. R. 4355.

Creditors of partnership ranking on estate of individual partners, I--Where origin of debt for which plaintiff claimed to rank against the separate estate of a partner is on a contruct entered into with the firm, which also failed and has existing assets, the plaintiffs as such firm creditors cannot rank against separate estate of partner. Frost v, Stoddart, 12 O. W. R. 1133.

Creditor — Inspector—Promissory notes —Fraud.]—A creditor of an insolvent estate was appointed one of the inspectors thereof. A compromise was proposed, but this inspector would only agree to the same upon the insolvent giving him promissory notes in return for his assent to the arrangement. An action was subsequently brought on these notes:—Hield, that the notes were null and void, both because they were made in fraud of the other creditors, and also as being against public order; and that, therefore, no action could be maintained on them, either by the creditor himself or by a préle-nom. Cartier v. Genser, 22 Oce, N, 416.

Debtor of insolvent — Acquisition of claim—Set-off.]—A debtor of an insolvent (not in bankraptey) may acquire the claim of a third person against such insolvent, and, after notice of the assignment of the claim, there may be a set-off between the two claims. Villeneuve v, Matte, Q. R. 11 K, B. 102.

Deficiency of assets-Presumption of withdrawed — Explanation — Absence of fraudulent intent-Reversal of order for committel of insolvent; I.-A state of insolvency occurring in the year which preedes the fillag of his schedule by the insolvent, and for which he does not sufficiently account, does not give rise to a presumption of concendment or withdrawal of assets, when the deficit is explained by the insolvent's ignorance of business, by his want of care, or even by his fault. When the element of fraudulent intention to divert his property is eliminated, there is no ground for applying the provisions of Arts, 885 (3) and 888, C. P. Judgment in Q. R. 33 S. C. 78, reversed. Guimont v, Desmarteau, Q. R. 340 S. C. 508.

Demand for assignment — Particulars of creditor's claim.]—A debtor upon whom a demand has been made for an assignment of property has no right to particulars of the claim of the demanding creditor. Eveleigh V. Bosehen, 9 Que, P. R. 325.

-Procedure - Allegations - Proof Opposition—Acknowledgment—Error of Law.]— It is not necessary that the allegation of the insolvent should be supported by a deposition under conserver, or in an opposition en distribution, should be supported by a deposition under eath, in order to authorize an appeal by creditors; such deposition is required only for the purpose of proving that the sum claimed by the opposant is justly dae. 2. An acknowledgment based upon an error of law may not be invoked against the party who made it. Diceary v. Brodit Pomineille, Q. R. 19 S. C. 563, 4 Que. P. R. 202

Distribution of insolvent's estate Contestation of claims-Interest of unpaid creditor.]-An unpaid creditor has an interest in preventing his debtor's assets from being diverted to pay illegitimate or unlaw-When therefore in distribution of moneys of a debtor by the prothonotary a party making unlawful claim is collocated creditor to whom an amount is allotted in the same report as if such claim had not been made, has nevertheless the right to contest the latter, inasmuch as a reduction in the effect of impairing contestant's chances o payment out of other or future assets debtor, Judgment in Q. English Statute-5 and 6 Vict. c. 122. s. 23, granting freedom from arrest until final examination does not extend to colonies-Certificate of bankruptcy would extend-Affidavit made in England must be authenticated here. -The defendant was arrested here for a deb contracted on P. E. Island. He applied to be discharged under the 23rd section of the English Statute 5 and 6 Vict, c. 122, on the ground that he had been duly declared a bankrupt in England, and had been granted to 20th August next, to finish his examination, and therefore was not liable to arrest until that time had expired. The and endorsement thereon are not properly authenticated so as to prove them to be really documents under the hand of an English Commissioner of bankruptcy. - That admitting the summons and endorsement to be properly authenticated, the 23rd section of the English Statute does not apply to the colonies .- Even if it does, the privilege from arrest is ex-cluded by the Small Debt Act of this Island : -Held (Peters, J.), that the summons and endorsement were not properly authenticated. not being verified by an affidavit made before an officer of this Court.-That though an English "certificate" of bankruptcy would be a bar to an action in this Court, yet the interim protection afforded by the 23rd section of the English Act does not extend to the colonies .- The Small Debt Act does not apply to this case. - v. Irving (1851). 1 P. E. I. R. 38.

Extension agreement — Secret advantage—Voluntary payments.] — The defendants, while ostensibly entering into an extension agreement, took secretly from the debtor notes at short dates for a large portion of their claim in favour of their nominee. These notes the debtor paid, and shortly afterwards made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors, the general extension payments not having been met :—Held, that the other parties to the extension agreement, suing in their own names, and in the name of the assignee, under an order, could not recover back the amount paid. Judgment of Boyd, C., 32 O, R. 216, 20 Occ. N. 437, affirmed; Armour, C.J.O., dissenting. Langley v. Van Allen, 21 Occ. N. 551.

Failure to account for assets.]—When an insolvent trader files a statement of his affairs and is contested, the insolvent is bound to account for assets which were in his possession during the year preceding his insolvency. (Clement v. La Banque Nationale, 14 Que, K. B. 493). It follows that his failure to explain the disappearance of $6,000 from moneys received, over and above his payments, creates a strong presumption, equivalent to the proof of h, of the fraudulent omission mentioned in art. 885, paragraph 1 C. P. Desmarteau v. Guimont, 19 Que, K. B. 25.

Foreign bankruptey a bar to action on debt contracted abroad. Proof of foreign law by oral evidence of professional men. Weatherbie v. Green (1853), 1 P. E. I. R. 97.

Frandulent conveyance. |--- In an action by an execution creditor to have two morigages set aside as fraudulent and void :---Held, that although the debtor was insolvent yet no fraudulent arrangements were established; that the morigages were given for valuable consideration, and there was no fraudulent scheme. Action dismissed. Elusell v. Crate, 15 O. W. R. 201.

Fraudulent mortgage — Intent — Preexisting agreement — Consideration — Insolvency of grantor—Knowledge of grantee —Preference—Action begun within 60 days — Presumption—Costs — Summary remedy. Brown v. Beamish, 5 O. W. R. 722.

Frandulent preference—Bills of saic-Assignment for benefit of creditors—Delay Suit by creditors-Adding assignce as plaintiff.]-A trader, when in insolvent circum-stances, to the knowledge of himself and the defendants, executed to them a bill of sale of his stock in trade, pursuant to an agreement made with them nearly 4 years pre-viously, to give it whenever required, they advancing to him upon the faith of the agree ment a sum of money for use in his business and giving him a line of credit. Shortly after executing the bill of sale, he made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors under c. 141, C. S. N. B. 1903:—Held, in a suit by the assignee, that the giving and filing of the bill of sale having been postponed until the debtor's insolvency in order to prevent the destruction of his credit, the agreement was a fraud upon the other creditors, and that the bill of sale should be set aside :--Held, also, that the delivery of the stock in trade by the trader to the defendsubsequently to the execution of the bill of sale, did not assist their title; s. 2 of c. 141, C. S. N. B. 1903, applying. A preferential transaction falling within the provisions of c. 141, may be impeached at the instance of creditors, where the debtor has not made an assignment. Where, after the commencement of a suit by creditors, to set aside a bill of sale, as constituting a fraudulent preference under c. 141, the grantor made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors, the assignce was added as a plaintiff. Tooke Brothers Limited v. Brock & Patterson Limited, 3 E. L. R. 270, 3 N. B. Eq. 496.

Fraudulent transfer - Proof of insolvency — Statutory presumption — Rebuttal —Application to adduce fresh evidence after close of trial - Powers of trial Judge.] -Where it is alleged that a transaction offends against the Assignment Act, R. S. N. S. c. 145, the fact of insolvency must in all cases be proved by the attacking party, but what has to be shewn is not a state of insolvency, in the strict legal or commercial acceptation of the term, but the debtor's inability to pay his way, and meet his creditors. Evidence which rebuts the presumption referred to in s. 4, s.-s. 2, of the 'Assignments Act, After kind, an application was made to introduce evidence of insolvency :- Held, that to grant such an application would be most objectionable, and, therefore, the application was refused.—Quare, whether it is competent for the trial Judge to grant such an application. Fawcett v. Faulkner, 40 N. S. R. 398.

Fraudulent transfer — Proof of insol-vency—Valuation of assets — Knowledge of transferee --- Statutory presumption --- Rebuttal.]—The expressions "insolvent circum-stances" and "unable to pay his debts in full," are co-extensive terms, and in order to come within their meaning it is not necessary to shew a state of insolvency, in the strict legal and commercial acceptation of the term, but merely to prove the debtor's inability to pay his way, and meet the demands of his creditors, and his want of means to pay them in full out of his existing assets. As to a valuation of the assets of an alleged insolvent, the inquiry should be whether a man of business capacity would value the assets as being sufficient to pay the creditors in full. A transferee's knowledge of the insolvent condition may be implied, if know-ledge is shewn of circumstances from which ordinary men of business would determine that the debtor was unable to meet his lithat the debtor was unable to meet ins in-abilities. An assignment of a judgment of a person in insolvent circumstances was set aside under R. S. N. S. c. 145. s. 4, as an unjust preference, the presumption provided for by the statute not having been rebutted. Hart v. Allen, 40 N. S. R. 352.

Goods in possession of insolvent-Agreement between insolvent and vendor-Construction-Sale or agency for sale-Bills of Sale Art.1-Certain goods were supplied by the defendant to a trading company, and it was arranged between the company and the defendant that the company might sell the whole or any part of the goods to whomsoever they chose, and for such price and on such terms as they might see fit; but they were, whenever a sale was made, to pay in cash to the defendant the price of the article sold, according to a price list which was furnished to them by the defendant when the goods were from time to time delivered to the company. The company had also the right, whether they had made a sale or not, to become the owners of the whole or any part of the goods at the prices named in the list, and they had also the right at any time to return the whole or any of the goods which remained unsold. The company made a statutory assignment to the plaintiff for the benefit of creditors, and the defendant took back the goods :---Held, in an action for return of the goods or damages for their conversion, that the goods were not at the time of the assignment the property of the company, but were in their possession either as bailees or agents of the defendant, with the right, of and when they elected to buy, to become the purchasers of the whole or any part of them at the prices mentioned in the part of them at the process mentioned in the price list. Ex. p. White, L. R. 6 Ch. 297, and S. C. in appeal sub-nom, Fowle v. White, 21 W. R. 465, 29 L. T. N. S. 78, explained and distinguished:—Held, also, that s, 41 of the Bills of Sale and Chattel Mortgage Act. R. S. O. 1897, c. 148, did not apply to this case; it refers to sales or transfers in the nature of sales, by which the possession is nature of sales, by which the possession is to pass presently, but not the property in the merchandise until the agreed price or consideration is paid. Insolvent — Imprisonment for fraud — Right to support in prison.]—Person imprisoned by virtue of Arts, S33 and S34, C. P., has right to maintenance and support during imprisonment; an insolvent (in this case) imprisoned for fruud has no such right, his imprisonment being a penalty, not a means of execution, Desbiens v. Desmartcas (1906), S Q. P. R. 114,

Insolvent Act. 1875—Fraud—Judgment by default.]—B brought this action to recover a debt from the defendants and alleged fraud. Defendants appeared but allowed judgment by default for want of a plea to be entered against them. Their counsel them moved to strike the cause off the docket on the ground that as no trial of the suit for the debt could now take place, the eriminal charge could not be proceeded with—Held. Peters. J., that in face of s. 187 of the Insolvent Act, 1875, the cause could not be struck off. Rourke v. Robertson (1879), 2 P. E. T, R. 285.

Insolvent Debtors Acts, 1851 and 1876-B, N. A. Act-Ultra vires.]-Under 14 V. (1851), c. 2, of P. E. I. Statutes, a debtor confined in jail and unable to support himself there, could apply for relief about pay him a weekly allowance, and when that had been paid for three months he became entitled to his discharge. By 39 V. (1876), c. 9, it was enacted that if on examination an insolvent applicant should be found entitled to weekly allowance, the Judge should make an order for his immediate discharge. Between the dates of the two Acts (in 1873), P. E. I, became a province of the Dominion of Canada, and by the B. N. A. Act, bankruptey and insolvency are assigned to the Dominion Parliament alone, and by the same Act it is enacted that all news in the several provinces should contime in force until altered or repealed by the Parliament of Canada. McCannell, a labourer, applied for relief under both Local Acts. It was contended on argument that the Local Act of 1851 was impliedly repealed by the Domino Insolvent Act of 1875: — Held, (Peters and Hensley, JJ., Palmer, C.J., concurring) that the Local Act of 1876 so far as it gave an applicant an immediate discharge was ultra vires. That the Act of 1851 remained in force for the relief of insolvent labourers. Muan v. Mc-Cannell (1877), 2 P. E. R. 148.

Insolvent estate—Claim of inspector— Meeting of creditors.]—If the inspectors of an insolvent estate are equally divided as to the advisability of contesting a claim of their co-inspector azainst the estate, the Judge will order the curator to call a meeting of the creditors to decide upon the advisability of contesting the claim at the expense of the estate. In re Davees and Walsh, 6 Que, P. R, 85.

Insolvent estate — Contesteion by creditors—Illegal collocation.]—Any creditorhas a sufficient interest to contest Illegal collocations, although it does not at the time appear whether he himself would be collocated in case those chaiming to be creditors should be ruled out. By such a contestation the creditor may allege a series of fraudulent acts calculated to defeat the just chaims of the contestant, and, in particular, the nonexistence of certain claims appearing as discharged by the trustee in the interest of the insolvent, in order to pay him back the amount. In re Malouf and Beaulieu, 7 Q. P. R. 152.

Insolvent state — Creditor's claim — Contestation—Costs—Fund for payment.]— A creditor whose claim is contested is not catilide to an order providing that no part of the moneys which will come to him out of the insolvent estate shall be made to contribute to the costs of the contestation. In re May and Fisk, 6 Que, P. R. 220.

Insolvent estate—Goods taken possession of by guardiam—Claim by stranger— Replevin action — Summary remedy.]— The owner of articles of which the provisional guardian of an insolvent estate has taken possession, as being the property of the insolvent, may replevy them by an action, and is not obliged to claim them by a summary petition to a Judge. Bergeron v. Campeau, Q. R. 25 S. C. 26.

Insolvent estate—Liquidation—Mandate —Assignment—Fraud on creditors.]—An insolvent debtor may employ some one to liquidate his property for the benefit of his creditors. That is a mandate and not an assigment. 2. Even if he makes a voluntary assignment of all his property, it will be declared void only if made in fraud of creditors. Chouinard v, Caron, Q. R. 25 S. C. 254.

Insolvent estate—Sale of timber by insolvent—Rights of workmen — Woodmen's lines — Rights of climants — Duty of arsignee.] — The privilege conferred by Art. 1994e, of the Civil Code, on woodchoppers, for securing the payment of their wages, ceases when the timber passes into the hands of a third person, who has purchased it, obtained

But this privilege is not lost by a sale of the timber cut, if, in fact, there has not been delivery. and the wood remains in the possession of the vendor, and the same is the case when the purchaser has made advances to the vendor, exceeding the amount realized by the subsequent sale of this timber by the assignces in insolvency of the vendor. A contract of sale of such timber entered into before and during the time it is being cut, for which the consideration is advances and past due debts, is not in fraud of the rights of unpaid workmen, for their right in respect of the timber is preserved notwithstanding such sale. In this case, the timber in question had been sold by direction of the Court, by the assignees in insolvency of the lumberman, and the proceeds of the sale paid into Court until the final disposition of the matter, By the judgment of the Superior Court, part of this timber had been declared the exclusive property of the claimants, and part to be subject to the workmen's rights :--Held, that the assignees were not bound to pay over directly to the claimants the proceeds of the sale of that part of the timber belonging to them ; but they ought to make a regular distribution of it by way of an ordinary dividend. In re Hurtubise and Birks, Q. R. 26 S. C. 137.

Insolvent relief.]—An assignment to a creditor by an insolvent person after service of process under pressure does not deprive a prisoner of right to weekly allowance under Insolvent Act. Re McKay (186S), 1 P. E. I. R. 278.

Judgment of distribution.]—An opposition afin de conserver made to the payment of monies in an action between lessor and lessee can be decided by the Court during the long vacation. When insolvency of defendait is alleged in an opposition afin de conserver, this opposition cannot summarily be dismissed on a motion to that effect, before the creditors at large are called and a judgment of distribution made, even if the action is between lessor and lessee and the moneys raised are less than the amount of the judgment. Hull v. McFadden, 11 Que. P. K. 117.

Opposition for payment.]—The Court has no power to summarily dismiss an opposition for payment in which the insolvency of the debtor is alleged and an order is prayed for to call in the creditors, on the ground that the monies levied are insufficient to cover the plaintiff's privileged claims for rent and costs of suit. McFadden v. Hodgton (1910), 37 Que, S. C, 430.

Purchase of estate by wife of insolvent-Agreement with creditor,1-An agreement by the wife, separated as to property, of an insolvent trader, to pay one of his creditors $100, and also to compensate any loss he might sustain by the insolvency, in consideration of his assistance in financing the purchase by her of her husband's banktupt estate, does not come within the prohibition contained in Art, 1301, C. C., where such purchase was carried out, and the wife continued the business in her own name. Carter v. Walker, Q. R. 23 8, C. 123. Refusal to disclose property-Examination-Committal, |--Insolvent debior refusing to answer questions on his examination under the Assignments Act was committed to gaol for nine months. Re Mc-Larty, 12 O. W. R. 1171,

Sale of book debts by curator — Delivery of proofs of debts — Default — Remedy—Costs.]—Sale of debts imports obligation of delivering to purchaser evidences upon which they rest. Consequently, curator of an ansignment of property, who sells debts without guaranty, and at risk of purchaser, is bound to hand over to latter notes of debtors, if there are any, and accounts in detail in case of sales of goods. In default of an action for recovery back or reduction in price paid, as case may be, and eurator will be ordered to pay costs incurred up to time of production of these evidences. Thibaudeau v. Paradis (1906), Q. R. 28 S. C. 475.

Sale of estate by assignee for creditors—Covenant of purchaser to pay creditors —Enforcement—Privity—Trust. Dominion Radiutor Co. v. Bull, 1 O. W. R. 672.

Sale of land by sheriff—Rights of purchaser—4-ction against, by insolvent—Costs —Claim equinat insolvent estate — Preference, —If the purchaser at auction of land sold by the sheriff under insolvency proceedings has been made defendant with the curator to the insolvent estate in an action to set aside the sale, brought by the insolvent, which has been dismissed, he has no right to obtain preferential payment out of the proceeds of the sale of the land of the costs and fees of his solicitors in the action to set aide the sale.—The purchaser at the sale in the above circumstances has no recourse against the saisi for the costs due to his advocates in respect of the action to set aside the sale. Beaudry v. Henderson, 9 Q. P. R. 101.

Secretion.]—The intention to appropriate for oneself the property secreted is not an essential element of the offence of secretion. Desmarteau v. Guimont, 19 Que. K. B. 25.

Separate Hability of partner-Right of creditor of partnership to rank on estate of partner with individual creditors-R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, s. 7-Election.] — A member of a partnership joined with the partnership in making a promissory note for the price of goods supplied to the firm by the plaintiff -Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to rank upon the insolvent estate of the partner. Construction of s. 7 of the Assignments Act, R. S. O. 1897, c. 147. Decision of Mac-Mahon, J., in Frost and Wood Co. v. Stoddart, 12 O. W. R. 1123, observed upon. The partnership, to pursue his remedy against the estate of the partner, the question whether, under the statue, it was necessary to elect, did not arise. Judgment of Mulock, C.JEX.D., 12 O. W. R. 1274, reversed. Gordon v. Matthews, 18 O. L. R. 340, 13 O. W. R. 40.

415 BANKRUPTCY AND INSOLVENCY-BANKS AND BANKING. 416

Court of Appeal affirmed the Divisional Court. Gordon v. Matthews (1909), 14 O. W. R. 873, 1 O. W. N. 103.

Transfer of land and assignment of personal property. — Heid, that debtor company was in insolvent circumstances at the time the transfers attached and that such transfers were intended to defeat, hinder and prejudice their creditors, and were void under the Saskatchewan Assignments Act (1960), c. 25, s. 38, Transfers set aside. Belcher y, Hudsons Limited, 12 W. L. R. 25.

Transfer of property by insolvent to creditor—Withdraval of assets—Art, 885, C. P. — Imprisonment — Defeasance — Rights of third parties.] — A transfer of property by an insolvent debtor to one of his creditors to the prejudice of the others, even if he derives no profit or advantage from it, made in the year immediately preceding the deposit of his schedule, constitutes a withdrawal of assets according to Art, 885, C. P., for which imprisonment may be ordered. 2. A defeasance has no effect or value except between the parties, and is nonexistent as to third persons. It cannot, therefore, be set up as an excuse or justification for acts which affect the rights of third persons. Guimont v. Desmarteau, Q. R. 33 S. C. 78.

Transfer of goods by insolvent to creditor — Fraudulent preference—Security to creditor—Knowledge of insolvency—R. S. O. 1897 c. 147, s. 2, s.-ss. 2, 3.]-G. had assisted S. with loans and also guaranteed his credit at a bank to the extent of $3,000. His own cheque at the bank was refused payment until the indebtedness of S, was settled, and the latter promised to arrange it within a month, which he did by transferring to G, a quantity of goods pledged to another bank, G, paying the amount due thereon. Shortly after, S, sold out his stock in trade and absconded, owing large amounts to foreign creditors and being insolvent. In an action to set aside the transfer of goods . as a fraudulent preference under R. S. O. 1897 c. 147, the manager of the bank which refused G.'s cheque testified at the trial that it was not because the solvency of S, was doubted, but only that he had heard that S. was dealing with another bank, and he wanted the account closed :- Held, Idington and Duff. J.J., dissenting, that under the evidence produced G, had no reason to suppose that S. was insolvent, and he had satis fied the onus placed on him by the statute of shewing that he had not intended to hinder, delay, or defeat creditors.—Judgment of Court of Appeal, 8 O. W. R. 705, affirmed. Baldocchi v. Spada, 27 C. L. T. 485, 38 S. C. R. 577.

Unfortunate Debtors Act (P.E.I.).]-The P. E. I. Unfortunate Debtors Act, 14 V. c. 2. was not impliedly repealed by "The Insolvent Act, 1875." In re Blackburn (1870), 2. P. E. I. R. 281.

BANKS AND BANKING.

Advances-Security-Bank Act-Chattel mortgage - Insolvency - Assignment-Conversion.]-H. held a chattel mortgage (unregistered) on G.'s sawmill, with the machinery and lumber therein, and all lumber which thereafter might be brought upon the premises. G., having an order for a large quantity of lumber from a contractor, applied to the bank for an advance. By agreement to the bank for an advance. By agreement with the bank, G. assigned the contractor's order to his bookkeeper, and agreed to cut logs at a price fixed and deliver them to the bookkeeper at the millside. The latter assigned to the bank all moneys to accrue in respect of the contract, which assignment was spect of the contract, which assignment was agreed to by the contractor, and also assigned to the bank four booms of logs, by numbers, purporting to act under s. 74 of the Bank Act. Two or three days later G. made an assignment for the benefit of creditors, previous to which the logs had arrived at the mill and were mixed with other logs of G. The greater part had been converted into lumber when H, seized them under his chattel mortgreater part and been converted into lumber when H, seized them under his chattel mort-gage:-Mcld, affirming the judgment in 7 B. C. R. 465, that no property in the logs assigned to the bank had passed to G, and H. could not claim them.—Shortly before G's assignment, his bookkeeper transferred to the $800:--Held, that the assignee had been guilty of no acts of conversion, and was not liable to pay the bank the balance due on this mortgage. The mortgage was not given to secure advances, and did not give the bank a first lien. The bank were in the same position as if they had received the mortgage position as if they had received the morigage directly from G, when he was notoriously in-solvent. Merchants Bank of Halifax v. Houston, 21 Occ. N. 401, 31 S. C. R. 361.

Advances — Security—Involidity—Bank Act. s. 76.]—A bank made advances to a lumber operator upon the security of an agreement between him and a trustee that he should sell and deliver a specified quantity of logs to be cut by him, to the trustee, who should have the property therein as from the stump, and who should upon delivery pay for the same by, inter alid, paying the bank the amount of its loans:—Held, that the security was void under s. 76 of the Bank Act, c. 20, R. S. C. Randolph v. Randolph, 4 E. L. R. 17, 3 N. B. Eq. 576.

Advance on securities on call - " / call" not a precedent to payment-Pleadings -Election.]-Plaintiff brought action to recover moneys advanced defendant on certain securities. Defendant was not a British sub-ject and was served out of jurisdiction with notice of writ and statement of claim. Defendant did not enter an appearance, plaintiff moved for judgment :--Held, that if " a call " by plaintiffs were a condition procedent to their right to payment, plaintiffs would not be entitled to judgment, but the Court found that " a call " was not a could found that a can was not a condition and gave plaintifs judgment, the form of which to be adopted to meet the alternative case, made by the pleadings. Defendant given one month in which to elect Imperial Bank v. Holman (1910), 15 O. W. R. 681.

Advance to purchase cattle—Bill of lading.]—A bank in Ontario, under an agreement with a customer, domiciled in Ontario, advanced money to him to enable him to buy cattle in the province which, under the agreement, when purchased, were to be forwarded by rail by him to Montreal, and to be shipped 417 by ster by steamship thence to Liverpool, the bank having no control over the cattle until they reached the vessel, when they were to be received by the steamship for the bank, and the customer's possession and control over them was to end; bills of lading therefor in favour of the bank being then signed. The cattle were purchased and sent to Montreal as agreed on. On arriving at the steamship, and before the bills of lading were made out. a creditor of the customer attached the cattle under a writ of saisic-arret, but the steamship owners, disregarding the writ, signed the bills of lading and conveyed the cattle to their destination. The creditor subsequently re-covered a judgment for the value of the cattle, in the province of Quebec, against the steamship owners, which the latter having paid sought to prove on the estate of the bank in winding-up proceedings, but the claim was disallowed by the Master. On appeal from him it was held, that, apart from the Banking Act, R. S. C. c. 120, by virtue of the agreement between the bank and its customer the possession and a special property in the goods passed to the bank, of which the steamship owners were aware, and having assented thereto upon receipt of the cattle, before any process was served, must be taken to have held the cattle for the bank. The agreement having been made, and the parties to it being domiciled in Ontario, the rights of the parties to it must be determined by the laws of Ontario and not those of Quebec, which, however, were not shewn to be different :---Held, also, that the rights of the parties were entirely governed by the provisions of the Banking Act and following, though not alto-gether approving, Merchants' Bank v. Suter, 24 Gr. 356, that under s. 53, s.-s. 4 of the Act, the bank had, under the agreement and the facts proved, an equitable lien upon the cattle from the time of the making of the agreement, which prevailed over the attachment :- Held, lastly, that the bank "ac-quired" the bills of lading within the meaning of the Banking Act as soon as the cattle were received by the steamship, although it did not at that time actually "hold " the bills. The appeal was therefore dismissed. Re Central Bank-Can. Shipping Case (1891), 30 C. L. T. 281, affirmed 21 O. R. 515.

Agency-Discounting the notes of a mandatary-Abuse of confidence-Circumstances which constitute notice to the bank-Obligations of the latter-Mandator's remedy.]-A bank which does business with an agent or mandatary and discounts notes signed by him as such, cannot be held to inquire into or trouble itself respecting the use made by such agent of the moneys so advanced to him. But a bank discounting the personal notes of a customer, which are endorsed by him as agent for a third party, who is also a customer of the bank, and has a current account therein, and who sees by its books that the principal's money, his account being closed, passes by such operation to the credit of the agent, whose account increases proportionately, is sufficiently advised to make further inquiry. If, without receiving satisfactory explanations, such bank continues to dis-count the notes, it becomes the accomplice of the agent, in his abuse of confidence, and responsible towards the principal, in favour of whom there lies a recourse against the bank to recover the amounts fraudulently converted. Such recourse is, however, subject to the condition contained in the second paragraph of Art, 1048 C. C., and, consequently, it no longer exists when the notes which were negotiated have been cancelled. Gratton v. Hochelaga Bank, 37 Que, S. C. 324.

Amendment of verdict.[—H, had been manager of the bank, and certain losses were made which the bank claimed he was liable to make good. On reference to arbitration an award for $1,718 was found against him. He then brought this action for three quarters salary, and defendants plended the award as a set-off. A verdict for $1,703 was found in plaintiff sfavour. The bank moved to amend the verdict by entering it for the bank for $13, and in support of the motion produced affidavits from all the jurors, stating that what they intended was to find the amount of the award :—Held, (Peters, J.), that the verdict must be amended as moved, without sending the case to another jury. Assignments and preferences-Assignments by insolvent to bank-Advances on security thereof - Bank Act-Bona fides-Knowledge of insolvency-Assignments Act.] -One Broley made a general assignment of all moneys due him to the defendant as security for an advance, and subsequently made a specific assignment of all moneys due to him by a school district. Later, being still indebted to the bank in large sums, he conveyed to the bank a house and lot. A further specific assignment of a debt due by the town of North Brantford to Broley was given at a later date, and within 60 days of this last assignment Broley made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors. Advances were made on the security of all assignments to the bank except that last mentioned. In an action by the assignee to set aside the various assignments and conveyances as being in fraud of creditors :- Held, that the various assignments were valid under the Bank Act, and, even if the advances upon such security were not authorized, Broley could not, having received good consideration, assail the pledge and his creditors occupied no better posi-tion.—2. That, as to all the assignments save the last, the bank acted in perfect good faith and belief in Broley's solvency, and without any intent to defeat, delay, or prejudice any creditor or prefer the bank's claim; and the assignments were, therefore, valid.---3. That, as no advance had been made on the security the last assignment, which was made within 60 days before the assignment for the Within 60 days before the assignment for the benefit of creditors, the assignment was void under the provisions of the Assignments Act. bank, in August, 1907, executed to them as security an assignment of his bills receivable and book debts. It was arranged between the plaintiffs and T, that he should continue to carry on business and collect all moneys and deposit them with the plaintiffs in a current account, against which he was permitted to draw cheques and make payments to his various creditors as he saw fit ; the plaintiffs, however, to be furnished with a monthly statement shewing the details of his accounts statement snewing the details of his accounts receivable; and these were furnished by T. from time to time. The plaintiffs did not notify any of T.'s debtors, neither did they do anything towards perfecting the assignment other than to receive the monthly statements. At the time of this assignment T. owed the defendants, wholesale dealers, a large sum for goods bought, and, continuing to do business after the assignment, he increased his credit account with the defendants, who were not aware of the assignment, T.'s business did not improve, and in November, 1908, the plaintiffs took a further assignment from T. identical in terms with the first. About that time the defendants pressed T. for payment, and T. agreed to pay them, as they were his largest creditors, all the moneys collected by him from his customers. Pursuant to this arrangement, certain moneys and promissory notes were received by the defendants, which the plaintiffs claimed under their assignment. The defendants said that T, told them, after the existence of the assignment had been made known to the defendants, that the plaintiffs knew that he was making payments to them. and that they were receiving payments out of the accounts. The plaintiffs said that they did not hear about the detendance, 1909. In moneys collected until January, 1909. In February, 1909, T. made a general assigndid not hear about the defendants getting the fendants contended that the plaintiffs, in the circumstances, after allowing T. to continue to trade and purchase additional quantities of goods, and to make the representations usually made by a trader to the wholesaler, and especially the representation that the plaintiffs were permitting him to dispose of his moneys as he saw fit, and knew of the arrangement with the defendants and did not object, ought not to be heard to say that T. had not authority to make the payments or the representations :--- Held, as to the moneys collected, that the plaintiffs were not estopped; they had the right to take the assignment; and no duty was thrown upon them to notify the general creditors of the fact, so as to create an estoppel.-The defendants also received, before notice, certain promissory notes from T., and, after notice of the plaintiffs' assignment, they collected upon these notes certain sums :-Held, that the defendants must be considered as equitable assignees of these sums, and the notes and moneys having been reduced into possession before notice of the plaintiffs' claim, the plaintiffs could not recover as to these items. Bank Act, s. 46-Inspection of customer's account—Evidence in action—Company — Manager—Private liabilities—Winding-up -Liquidator-Promissory notes-Considera-tion.]-Section 46 of the Bank Act, 1890 53 V. c. 31 (D.), does not enable a bank to refuse to disclose its transactions with one of its customers, when the propriety of those transactions is in question in a court of law between the bank and another customer who attacks them, and shews good cause for requiring the information he seeks. The com-pany had an account with the bank (claimant), and the manager of the company (who had power to sign notes for the company) had also an account at the same office of the bank. The claim of the bank against the company in winding-up proceedings included a number of promissory notes made by the mandator shewed that notes so made and indorsed had been charged at maturity to the company's account by the direction of the manager, and that renewals of these notes formed part of the bank's claim:-Held, that the liquidator, in examining the agent of the bank for the purpose of shewing that the original consideration for several of the notes included in the bank's claim was an advance to the manager for his own private purposes, and that the agent, knowing these notes to be the private debt of the manager, had, at his request, charged them to the company's ac count, was entitled to refer to the manager's own account with the bank, though the manager was not a party :---Held, also, that there was nothing to prevent the liquidator, who stood in the place of the company, from impeaching the consideration for the notes peaching the consideration for the notes offered in proof by the bank, just as the com-pany itself might have done, but no further. —Held, also, that periodical acknowledgments given by the manager to the bank of the correctness of the company's account could not be set up as a bar to an inquiry into the account, where specific errors in it were charged, to the knowledge of the bank In re Chatham Banner Co., Bank of Mont-real's Claim, 22 Occ. clause in the trust deed was brought to the attention of the bank before the money was advanced, the positive evidence of an officer of the company giving details of what occurred must be preferred to the evidence of the bank manager, who testified that he had no recollection on the subject:—Held, also, that, so long as the money remained under the control of the bank, it was open to the bank to cancel the loan and retain the money, upon discovering that the credit was given under a misapprehension as to the nature of the assignment under the Bank Act, s. 74, could not prejudicially affect the plaintiffs, when it was shewn that the advance was made after notice of the restriction contained in the trust deed. Indian and General Investment Trust Ltd., *v. R. 145, in favour of the plaintiff in an action for damages against a bank for refusing to pay a cheque, affrmed by the full court:—Held, that there was no good cause for depriving the plaintiff of costs, but his costs should be on the scale of the County Courts, the recovery being for $190.97, and interest. Richards v. Bank of British North America, 21 Occ. N. 567, 8 B. C. R. 143, 209.

Bank purchased its own shares in violation of Bank Act, s. 76—Shares transferred and promissory notes taken therefor—Action on notes — Defence illegality— Action dismissed.)—The Sovereign Bank used about $400,000 of its funds in purchasing its own shares and divided them into seven equal blocks, which were held by directors, relatives and friends. Promissory notes were taken for the shares, the bank agreeing to indemnify the makers of the notes against any loss arising from the sale of the stock. Plaintiff, the curntor of the bank, brought action against a director for $33,110 on some of these notes:—Held, that the Bank Act, R. S. C. e. 29, s. 76, prevented the bank from acquiring any title to the shares so purchased; that the bank in transferring said shares to defendant and taking bis notes therefor gave no legal consideration for the notes and the action should be dismissed without costs, seeing the defence was illegality. Staret v, Me-Milan (1910), 16 O. W. R. 125, 21 O. L. R. 245.

Bill of lading—Draft attached—Eramination of goods — Surrender of bill — Conversion—Pleading — Amendment — Costa— Measure of damages.]—The judgment in 4 Terr, L. R. 498 mfirmed on the merits with a variation in form and as to costs:—Held, the majority of the Court, that had the consignees, as in Skepherd V. Harrison, I. R. 5 H. L. 146, sent the bill of exchange, with the bill of lading attached, directly to the defendant, they might have sued for the price on the basis of the defendant's acceptance of the goods, or for damages on the basis of a conversion. In the former case the defendant could have set up the defective quality of the goods in diminution of the price. In the latter case, the measure of damages would have been the value of the goods to the consignors, which would probably be the same as in the former case. The bank, as the holders of the bill of lading, were in no better position than the consignors. Juperial Bank V, Hull, 4 Terr, L. R. 498, 5 Terr, L. R. 313.

Banque du Peuple, which had sufficient funds on hand, the manager of the plaintiffs at Quebee contented himself with having it accepted, intending the next day to have a general settlement with the Banque du Peuple of the cheques of which the two banks were respectively the holders. But the same evening the Banque du Peuple closed its doors, and the cheque was never paid.—Held, that, under these circumstances, the plaintiffs could not recover from the defendants the amount of the cheque. The acceptance of a cheque by the drawee, who has on hand funds belonging to the drawer sufficient to pay the cheque, has the effect of discharging the drawer. It is not necessary to protest a cheque in order to hold the drawer liable for non-payment. Banque Jacques-Cartier V. Corporation de Limoita, Q. R. 17 S. C. 211.

Cheque-Forgery - Endorsement - Liability as between banks for loss of money paid on forged cheque - Bills of Exchange paid on forged cheque — Buts of Exchange Act, R. S. C. 1906 c. 119, 88, 50, 74, 133 (c),]—J., having stolen a genuine cheque on the plaintiff bank for $6, erased the name of payee and the amount, substituted the fictitious name of William Johnson, and raised the amount to $1,000. He then endorsed the name of William Johnson and deposited the cheque to his credit in the defendant bank. The defendants refused to advance more than $25 on the cheque until they should be the state of the should learn that the plaintiffs would pay it. They then stamped the name of their bank on the back of the cheque and put it through the clearing house in the usual way, after which it was paid by the plaintiffs. The defendants then honoured the cheques of the forger for $800 more, shortly after which the forgery was discovered : - Held, that, under the rules of the clearing house and the practice among Winnipeg bankers, the stamping of the name of the defendant bank on the back of the cheque had the legal effect of an endorsement in blank by the defendant bank, and that the defendants were liable to repay the amount of the cheque to the plaintiffs. either by the direct effect of the statute, Bills of Exchange Act, 1890, s. 24, as amended, ss. 38, 55 (c) (now R. 8. Cheque countersigned by representative of bank—Authority of representative—Promise not made in writing—Statute of frauds - Original liability-Bank Act.] -A firm of dealers in fruit, whose account was a number of deners in Fruit, whose account was overdrawn at their bank, applied for further advances, which the bank refused to make unless one D, was employed to look after the business, act as bookkeeper, receive all produce, and countersign cheques given for the D. was so employed, and represented to producers of fruit that it was safe for them to bring their produce to the factory, and that cheques given therefor countersigned by him would be paid by the bank. The plaintiff, relying on these representa-tions, delivered peaches, for which he received the firm's cheque, countersigned by D. The bank, which at the time had liens on the plant and property of the firm, through D. disposed of the whole output of the factory, including the plaintiff's goods, and received the entire profit. On the cheque being presented, the bank refused payment, upon which this action was brought :---Held (Meredith, C.J., dissenting), that the bank had such an interest in the goods delivered by the plaintiff as prevented the application of the 4th section of the Statute of Frauds, and were therefore bound by D.'s promise of representation that they would gay the cheque, though not made in writing. The principle of Switton v, Grey, [1894] 1 Q. B. 285, dis-cussed and applied. (2) That there was evidence to support the finding of the Court below, that there was an original liability on the part of the bank, on which the plaintiff was entitled to recover, on the authority of Lakeman v. Cheque initialed by local manager-Cashed by another bank—First bank refused payment—Right to recover on cheque from first bank-Custom of bankers.]-One Husther, a customer of two banks, presented two cheques, drawn by himself, for $7,950 and $2,050, and asked for the cash from the Dominion Bank, promising to deposit a marked cheque for $10,000 on Merchants Bank. Later in the day Huether presented his chequ for $10,000 on Merchants Bank, with letter " D " placed upon it by manager of Merchants Bank. Dominion Bank paid the two cheques. but the Merchants Bank refused to pay the $10,000 cheque when presented. Both banks suspended their managers, plaintiff being called upon to pay the $10,000 to Dominion Bank, which he did, taking an assignment of the Dominion Bank's rights against Merchants Bank and brought action to recover: -Held, that the action should be dismissed the ground that the placing of the letter "D" on the cheque was only authority of the manager to the ledger keeper to certify to the cheque, and this not having been done, the Merchants Bank was not liable, Scott v. Merchants Bank (1910), 16 O. W. R. 773, 1 O. W. N. 1110.

A son of the station agent havcollection. ing embezzled moneys belonging to plaintiffs and collected for freight, the agent in order to make up these losses endorsed cheques made payable to the company, and received for freight, signing the company's name, per himself as agent, and received proceeds from the defendants. This he employed to make up his son's defalcations :---Held, that defendant should have obtained an authority from the plaintiffs before accepting the agent's endorsations, and therefore was liable to pay dorsations, and therefore was indice to pay plaintiffs the amount of these cheques, which were still plaintiff's property. *Canadian Pacific v. Afterwards N, representing that the insured were dead, and the claims payable under the policies, sent in to the head office claim papers, filling in the names of the claimants and forging their signatures thereto, whereupon cheques for the respective amounts made by the company in favour of the alleged by the company in theorem of the de-claimants, and payable at a branch of the de-fendants' bank, were sent to N., whose duty it was, on the receipt, to see the payees and procure discharges from them. The indorsements of the payees' names were forged by N_a the genuineness of the signatures on most of the cheques being certified to by his attestation. The cheques were presented to and paid by the bank in good faith, to whom or how did not appear, the amounts thereof being charged to the company :---Held, Maclaren, J.A., dissenting, that there was no evidence that the bank were aware that N. had any connection with the transactions out of which the cheques arose, and that they were not entitled to rely on his identification of the payees or attestation of their signatures :---Held, however, that, under the circumstances, the cheques must be regarded as payable to fictitious or non-existent per-sons, and therefore, under s.-s. 3 of s. 7 of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1890, payable to bearer, and that they had the right to pay and charge the company with the

Cheques—Endoysement.]—Action to compel Imperial Bank to pay into Court the proceeds of a cheque in favour of Ross, Me-Rae & Chandler, which had been placed to the credit of a new firm, McRae, Chandler & McNeill, of which plaintiff was not a member. Chandler endorsed the cheque in the name of both the old and new firm, adding his signature each time, and gave bank instructions to place the proceeds to the credit of the new firm. Plaintiff did not question Chandler's right to endorse the cheque, but urged that the bank was not a holder in due course:—Held, that all the requirements of s. 50 of the Bills of Exchange Act had been complied with, that the bank received the cheque in good faith and for value, and that, when it was neotinited, the bank had no notice of any defect in the title of the person negotiating it. Deposit—Decease of depositor—Promissory note—Right to deduct.] —A testator, having a deposit to his credit in a hank at the time of his death, was a debtor to the bank on a note under discount, which had not then matured. After its maturity the bank brought this nettion on the note against his executors. The assets of the testator were insufficient to pay his debts in full. The deposit not having been withdrawn or demanded before the maturity of the note :— Held, that the bank was entitled to deduct from the amount of the promissory note the amount at the credit of the decensed, and to rank on the estate for and receive a dividend on the balance. Outario Bank v, Routhier, 20 Occ. Discount-Assignment of warehouse re-Act, ss. 86, 90—Firm—Subsequent incorpor-ation of company and assignment of business to-Evidence of ownership-Liquidation --Parties-Estoppel.]-Before the 28th November, 1904, a cream and butter business was being carried on by a married woman under the trading name of the Toronto Cream and Butter Company, her husband being the man-ager. On that date, with the view of open-ing an account with the defendants' bank. a letter was written in the trading name stating that a line of credit would be re-quired from $10,000 to $12,000, secured by warehouse receipts on butter, and from $1,000 to $2,000 on the firm's note, to be otherwise secured. In November, 1904, the account was opened and advances made by the bank, and on the 23rd October, 1905, the account was overdrawn to the amount of $10,158.01 and there was an outstanding note of $1,700 due in November. On the 23rd October the manager discounted a promissory note made under the trading name for $6,000 at three under the trading name for so, or at the months and by the same name assigned to the bank as security therefor warehouse re-ceipts of 401 cases of butter, promising also other warehouse receipts to cover the in-debtedness. After placing the $6,000 to the firm's credit, there remained a debt balance of $4,258.01, which was gradually reduced, and, on the 26th December, 1905, when liquidation proceedings were taken, there were outstanding the $6,000 note, a $2,000 note discounted on the 27th October, 1905, and an open debit balance of $200. No attempt was ever made to draw out the $6,000, but the manager of the bank stated that there was no restriction preventing it. 26th September, and the 4th, 10th, and 20th October, while 99 cases had been ware-housed on the 20th and 21st October, although no warehouse receipts had been obtained therefor, and there was nothing to shew they had ever been assigned to the bank. The firm had been incorporated as a company by letters patent, dated the 5th April, 1905, one of the objects being to acquire the business as a going concern; and by an agreement dated the 1st June, 1905, made between the wife and the company, and executed by both parties, all the pro-perty, assets, and goodwill of the business were sold to and transferred to the company, which agreement was confirmed by a resolution of the shareholders, the husband being appointed manager, and the defendants' bank appointed the company's bank. Notwith-standing the incorporation and sale to the company, the business continued to be carried on as theretofore in the trade name, no by-laws being passed, and no stock was ever allotted to the vendor of the business, the bank not being aware of the incorporation and sale until some days after the transfer to them of the warehouse receipts :- Held. that the business was that of the wife and not of the husband and that there was a valid transfer by her to the company of all the firm's assets and business, so as to vest in them the title to the butter, and, though the continuance of the business in the old to the contention that there was no change in the ownership or control of the business, she was estopped from confesting the company's title thereto :- Held, also, that as to the 401 cases, the transaction was supportable, under s. 73 of the Bank Act, 53 V, c. 31 (D.), now s. 86 of R. S. C. 1906, c. 29, as on the evidence there was a present advance and not a mere form to cover a past indebtedness; but that the bank had no claim to the 99 cases.-Meredith, J.A., dissented on the ground that the note was not "negotiated" within the 90th section of the Bank Act, at the time of the acquisition of the warehouse the time of the acquisition of the warehouse receipts :— Held, also, Osler and Garrow, JJ.A., dissenting, that the bank were not entitled to hold the warehouse receipts, under the letter of the 28th November, as not constituting an agreement to furnish security for advances thereafter to be made .-- Ontario Bank v, O'Reilly, 12 O, L. Discount against sales—Goods drawn against, not accepted — Company making draft—Windiag-up order — Right to proceeds—Lquitable lien.]—The S. Co, had an understanding with a bank that they would draw on their customers as goods sold were being forwarded, and these drafts would be discounted by the bank. Under this arrangement a draft was made on M. for certain goods that had been shipped to him at N. M. refused to accept the goods, and the draft was returned dishonource. It was then agreed between the bank and the company that the manager of the company should proceed to N., take possession of the goods for the bank, and endeavour to get M. to accept them. It did not appear what the manager did at N, but he did not induces M to accept the goods, and they remained at the railway station at N, antil an order was made for the winding-up of the S. Co. It was then agreed between the bank and the liquidator of the company that the latter should take possession and dispose of the goods and hold the proceeds subject to the order of the Court:— $Hcld_i$ that the bank had an equitable line and were entitled to the proceeds of the sale. Discount of notes-Excessive rates of interest-Payment by cheques on overdrawn account, afterwards met.]-The plaintiffs, a banking corporation subject to the provisions of the Bank Act, discounted notes made by the defendant, one of their customers, and the detendant, one of their customers, and also allowed him to overfraw his current account. The notes were payable on demand, and purported to bear interest at 20 per cent, per annum. The defendant also agreed to pay interest at that rate on his overdraft; afterwards the rate was reduced to 18 per the plaintiffs cheques to pay interest ac-crued; when the cheques were given, the accounts they were drawn against had al-ready been overdrawn. But each account was at some date after the giving and charg-ing up of such cheques on it changed into a credit balance in the defendant's favour by deposits or by collections made by the plain-tiffs for the defendant's account. Those cheques covered such interest up to the 31st January, 1902 .- The plaintiffs credited them-January, 1902.—The plantitus credited them-selves with interest at 24 and 18 per cent, up to 31st January, 1902, and alleged that it was païd them by the above cheques:— Held, that judgment should be entered for the plantiffs, with a reference to the Mas-ter to take the accounts. The defendant did not recall the cheques or stop payment of them. They were given to the plaintiffs as creditors of the defendant, and not as his bankers. They were in effect directions to the plaintiffs as the defendant's bankers to nay the amounts to themselves as creditors as soon as there should be available funds at his credit with them, as his bankers, to pay them with, and they were in fact paid out of such funds when available; and the defendant could not recover the excess over seven per cent.— From the 31st January, 1902, the plaintiffs could charge the defendant with interest at the rate of five per cent. only, that being the legal rate. Bank of British North America v. Bossuyt, 23 Occ. N. 338.

Failure to pay customer's cheque.] --Plaintiff claimed damages from the bank for alleged wrongful refusal to each plaintiff's cheque upon his deposit account at the office of the bank where the cheque was presented for payment, there being, at the time of presentation, at the credit of his account sufficient funds to meet the amount of the cheque, which was duly drawn and endorsed. The defence was non-presentment. It ap peared that a clerk from the bank which held the cheque presented it at the office of the defendant bank upon which it was drawn, but at the wrong ledger-keeper's wicket, and was directed to present it at another wicket the clerk there who had charge of the ledger containing the drawer's account. was no evidence that this was done, but the bank which held the cheque sent out a telegram stating that the drawer had no account. Forged cheque-Negligence-Responsibility of drawees — Payment-Mistake-In-dorsement-Implied warranty-Principal and agent-Action-Money had and received --Change in position-Laches.]-A cheque for $6, drawn on the plaintiffs, was fraudulently altered by changing the date and the name of the payee and by raising the amount to $1,000. The drawees refused payment for want of identification of the person who presented it. The defendants. without requiring identification, advanced $25 in cash to the forger on the forged cheoue, placed the balance, $975, to his credit in a deposit ac count, indorsed it, and received the count, indersed it, and received the full amount of $1,000 from the drawees. After receipt of this amount, the defendants paid the further sum of $800 to the forger out of the amount so placed to the torger out deposit account. The fraud was discovered a few days later, and, on the defendants' refusal to refund the money thus received, the action was brought to recover it back from the defendants as indorsers or as having received money paid under mistake of fact; -Held, that the drawees of the cheque, although obliged to know the signature of their customer, were not under a similar obligation in regard to the writing in the body of the cheque; that, as the receiving bank had dealt with the drawees as principals and not merely as agents for the collection of the cheque, and had obtained payment thereof as indorsers and holders in due course, they were liable to the drawees, who had, through the negligence of the receiving bank, been deceived in respect to the genuineness of the body of the cheque, and that the drawees were entitled to recover back the money which they had thus paid under a mistake of fact, notwithstanding that, after such payment, the position of the defendants had been changed position of the defendants and money to the by paying over part of the money to the forger. Guarantee by company signed by president.]—A company sold a branch of their business taking a chattel mortgage for $5,006.74 as security. By mistake the affidavit of bona fides stated that the mortgagor was justly indebted to the company in the sum of $5,000:—Held, that the mortgage was a valid security for $5,000. Mader v. McKinnon (1892), 21 S. C. R. at p. 652, followed; Midland Loan v. Courieson (1891), 20. In order that the mortgagor might obtain an advance from a bank, the president of the Co. signed a guarantee in this form, "A. E. Thomas, Lid.," and under that name "A. E. Thomas, Pres."—Held, that the guarantee was binding on the company. The mortgace covered the stock in trade, fixtures and all book debts. The company did not notify the debters of the company did not notify the debtors of the assignment of the debts as required by the Judicature Act, s. 58 (5). The mortgagor later assigned the book debts to the bank as collateral security for the advance :---Held, that the bank had taken their assignment without notice of the company's claim and having collected the debts were entitled to retain the proceeds. The mortgagor also gave the bank a document purporting to be a further security, under s. S8 of the Bank Act, covering 230 cases of matches, and the bank took possession of the matches :--Held, that as the matches were covered by the chattel mortgage it was not necessary to consider whether the document claimed by the bank was of any value in view of s. 90 of that Act. Judgment given bank against the company for the amount of the guarantee. Judgment given the company against the bank for conversion of the matches, the bank to have right to retain the matches on payment to the company the amount of their mortgage. Insolvent bank taken over by another bank-Agreement as to-Validity of agreement-Power of directors to make agreement-Bank Act, ss. 99-111.]-The Bank of Montreal at the request of the Ontario Bank undertook to meet the liabilities of the latter as they fell due, and in order to assist the Bank of Montreal to do so the Ontario Bank agreed to hand over its available commercial assets for that purpose, the Bank of Montreal having full authority to realise upon these assets as it might see fit. The Ontario Bank warranted that the assets handed over were worth $16,249,080.46 and that the notes and word wide the second of the bank did not exceed other liabilities of the bank did not exceed $15,272,271,22. The Ontario Bank agreed to place its office, staff, &c., at the disposal of the Bank of Montreal and to do all in its power to carry out the terms of the agreement. The advances of the Bank of Montreal were to bear interest at the rate of six per cent., and if there were a surplus after payment of the liabilities it was to credit Ontario Bank on the final adjustment of accounts with $150,000 for the indirect benefit received. The principal objection to the validity of the agreement urged was that it was in reality a transaction of sale by the Ontario Bank, and a purchase by the Bank of Montreal, of the assets of the first named bank; that it fell within the provisions of ss. 99 to 111, inclusive, of the Bank Act, and was not legally made or consummated in accordance with those provisions, and was ultra vires. The Official Referee held, that the agreement was binding upon the Ontario Bank and its shareholders. Britton, J., affirmed the Referee in order that an appeal might be taken to the Court of Appeal. The Court of Appeal held, that the transaction was beneficial and advantageous alike to depositors, holders of Interest-Cheques - Payment - Excessive rate.]—The defendant borrowed large sums of money from the plaintiff bank, by way of overdraft and on promissory notes. Having agreed to pay interest, first at 24 per cent. and afterwards at 18 per cent, per annum, the defendant from time to time gave the bank cheques on his current account up to the 31st January, 1902. When such cheques were given, the account had already been overdrawn, but it was afterwards changed into a credit balance in the defendant's favour by deposits or by collections made by the bank for the defendant's account :-- Held, that such cheques should be deemed to have been payment of the interest and that the defendant could not recover back such interest or any part of it, although it was in excess of the 7 per cent. rate which the Bank defendant could be the second sec the Bank Act permits a bank to charge; also, that, under ss. 80 and 81 of the Bank Act, the bank was not entitled to sue for and recover interest accruing after the 31st January, 1902, at 7 per cent. per annum, but could only recover interest at the legal rate of 5 per cent, per nanum from that date on the principal then due. Money given to notary — Failure of bank in which deposited— Loss by whom borne—Kegligence.]—The plaintiff gave the defendant, a notary, 8412, with special instructions to use the same in payment of a hypothecary claim. The defendant used all due diligence to find the domicil of the creditor, but was delayed for a considerable period by the fact that he (the defendant) had not received from his principal the power of altorney which was necessary before he could complete the transaction. In the interval he deposited the money in trust at the branch of the Ville Marie Bank at Chambly. By the time the power of attorney reached the defendant the bank had closed its doors. The plaintiff sucd the defendant to the money was properly deposited in the bank, and was there at the risk of the plaintiff. Tempest v. Bertrand, 21 Occ. N. 131, Q. R. 19 S. C. 365.

On the trial, other returns, made both before and after that in respect to which the indictment was laid, were received in evidence without the jury having been cautioned that they were not to be influenced by such other returns in coming to a conclusion on the main issue respecting the offence charged :- Held, per Townshend, J., and Graham, E.J., that there must be a new trial on this ground.—Per Weatherbe, C.J., and Mengher, J., on the facts, that there was no evidence of guilty knowledge, and that the case should have been withdrawn from the jury .-- Per Rus-J. (who concurred that there was no sell. evidence to warrant a conviction), that there were matters as to which it was open to the jury to draw a conclusion, and that the cause, therefore, was one which could not be withdrawn from them. Promissory note—Action on—Collateral security—Release of, by manager of bankCounterclaim by makers of note for face value of released securities-Liability of bank for act of manager-Form of judgment.]-The plaintiffs, a banking corporation, held the defendants' promissory note for $9,000. As col-lateral security for the payment of the note, the plaint setting for the payment of the local the plaint setting held two promissory notes of C., aggregating the same amount. By a private arrangement between the plaintiffs' manager and C., the manager returned to C, his promissory notes, undertaking with C. to be liable to the plaintiffs for what C. would have to pay. In an action by the plaintiffs upon the defendants' note, the defendants disputed liability upon the ground that the plaintiffs were not in a position to return to them C.'s notes, which were their property and pledged by them as collateral security for the payment of the note sued on. This was set up both as matter of defence and counterclaim :--Held, a good ground for counterclaim. Upon the evidence it must be taken that C.'s notes were, when returned to him, worth their face value, and so the defendants' damages equaled the plaintin's' claim upon the defendants' note, and judgment should go for the plaintiffs for the amount of their claim, and on the counterclaim for the defendants for theirs, the one being set off against the other. The act of the manager was the act of the plaintiffs so far as regarded the defendants, between whom and the bank there existed the relationship of pledgor and pledgee. In the case of documents creating or evidencing rights, the thing pledged must be taken to be both the instrument and the right-not the bare instrument without the right, nor the mere right without the instrument. Promissory note—Indersement for collection—Subsequent indersement—Rights of parties—Cheque by inderser for collection litefusal to honour—Damages.]— A bank to which a promissory note is indersed "for collection," becomes, for that purpose, the agent of the inderser, to whom it is bound to account for the amount collected. The signature of another party, under that of the inderser, does not affect the relative rights and obligations growing out of such restrictive indersement. The bank is bound to pay a cheque drawn for a party only of funds collected by it under the foregoing circumstances, and is liable in damages for refusal to do so. Perreault v. Merchants Bank, Q. B. 27 8, C. 149.

Rate of interest — Agreement to pay more than statutory rate—Bank Act, s. 80.1 —Section 80 of the Bank Act does not prevent a bank from entering into a contract to be paid a higher rate of interest than 7 per cent; and if, under such contract, interest is paid in excess of that rate, it cannot be recovered back. Right of bank to carry on business -Bank Act, R. S. C. 1906, c. 29, ss. 76, 81 -Indemnity - Agreement executed by local manager-Validity of-Lease-Agreement to assign-Obligation to pay rent.]- 'n 1905 the defendants, a firm carrying on a milling business, being heavily indebted to a bank, effected a settlement by which, upon payment of $10,000 and a transfer of all their assets, the partners were to be discharged from all liability. An agreement was enfrom all liability. An agreement was en-tered into between the bank and the partners executed by them, and by the local manager of the bank on behalf of the bank, whereby the firm agreed to pay $10,000 to the bank, to surrender to the bank all the assets, and assign the base of the milling property. The bank, in consideration thereof, assumed payment of certain specified liabilities of the firm, set out in the memorandum attached. 114 which, however, did not specially refer to the accruing rent of the milling property; and agreed to forthwith release the firm, as well as the individual partners, from all liabi-lity. At the same time another agreement was executed between the bank, by the local manager, and one of the partners, by which, for the more convenient liquidation of the assets and the disposal of the business as a going concern, the partner mentioned was to act as manager and continue the business in the firm's name, the bank indemnifying the partnership against all liability incurred while doing so. The release agreed on, containing recitals of the above, was duly executed by the bank under their corporate seal. The mill property was held by the firm under a lease for 10 years, which contained a covenant not to assign without leave. The bank continued the business for a time, and paid the rent for the period of their occupation, but refused to pay the quarter's rent accruing due subsequently. The bank were brought by the defendants as third parties :--Held, that the agreement recited in the release was valid and binding on the bank, who, as equitable assignces of the term, were impliedly bound to indemnify the lessees against the rent subsequently accruing due,-2. That, in view of the powers conferred by s. 81 and other sections of the Bank Act, R. S. C. 1906, c. 29, the carrying on of the business for the purpose of and to the extent provided for by the agreement, was not ultra vires of the bank under s. 76 of the Act. Security—Pledge of grain—Sale without notice—Castomer's receipt — Release—Consideration—Bar to action for account.]—The plainiff obtained from the defendants, a banking corporation, at their Winnipeg office, an advance upon a draft drawn upon a Toronto broker, to which draft were attached six bills of lading for 30,000 bushels of onts shipped to the broker. This was accompanied by a memorandum of hypothecation, signed by the plainiff, which provided that the securities, hypothecated, renewals, substitutions, and the proceeds thereof, were to be held by the defendants as a general and continuing collateral security for the payment of the present and future indebtedness and liability of the plaintiff, and any ultimate unpaid balance thereof, and that the same might be realised by the defendants in such manner as might seem to them advisable, and without notice to the plaintiff, in the event of default. The draft on the Toronto broker not having been paid, and the price of outs having dropped, the defendants, without giving any written notice or otherwise complying with s. S0 of the Bank Act, sold the outs for 364 $_{2}$ cents a bushel. Shortly afterwards the price rose. At the end of the month in which the sale was made, the plaintiff signed the usual customer's receipt, whereby he released the bank from all claims in connection with the charges and credits in the accounts and dealings up to the end of the month:---for a good consideration, and was sufficient to bar the plaintiff's action for an account in respect of the outs, Graves v. Home Bank (1940), 14 W. L. R. 201.

Security for debt-Transfer of business -Operation by bank-Assignment of lease-R. S. C. (1906) c. 29, s. 76, s.-s. 1 (d) and 2 (a), s, 81.]-A bank entered into an agreement with a company heavily in its debt carrying on a milling business, which agreement provided that the company should pay the bank $10,000 and surrender all its assets including an assignment of the lease of its business premises and that the bank should assume payment of its debts and release it from all further liabilities. By a subsequent agreement it was provided that the business of the company should be carried on as before with a view to reducing the debt due to the bank and disposing of it as a going concern as soon as possible, the bank to indemnify against any liabilities incurred while it was s carried on. No assignment of the lease of the business premises to the bank was executed and the lessors having brought action against the company for rent due thereunder. the bank was brought in as a third party by Held, affirming the judgment of the Court of Appeal (17 Ont. App. R. 145), Duff and Anglin, JJ, dissenting, that the bank should be been should be a should be been shoul the agreements to take an assignment of the lease and to carry on the business as a going concern not being illegal as a violation of pro-visions of "The Bank Act."—Appeal dis-missed with costs, Ontario Bank v. Security on goods—Sole by assignor— Bank's right to proceed—53 V, c. 31, s. 7; (D.)]—C., obtaining advances from a bank to enable him to pay for goods to be used in manufacture, assigned such goods to the bank under s. 74 of the Bank Act, 1890. A cargo having arrived, when the bank notified C, that further advances would be refused, he induced the manager, by promise of customers' paper as collateral, to give him the sum necessary to pay for it, and immediately after went to S, who had indorsed for him and was liable on a note for $2,800, and gave him a statement of his affairs and agreed to hand bim the notes he would receive on selling the goods, which he did, and S, collected the notes. The bank suce S, for the amount so collected :— Held, that S, had knowledge, or it would in law be imputed to him, of the bank's calain, and they could recover. Subscription for bank shares—Condition—Oral promise of avent—Bank Act, sa. 57, 38.—Dowers of directors—Times of payment.]—Defendant subscribed in writing for steek in plaintiff bank on strength that plaintiff did, but discontinued it in a few months from lack of business. Defendant sought to set up verbal promise by the great who rook his subscription that the branch would be maintained at 8., but in this was unsuecessful. Taking security for past debt-Transfer of goods-Agreement-Title-Purchaser-Execution against debtor.]-B., being indebted to a bank, gave them a document purporting to be a warehouse receipt, and also a general transfer or bill of sale. The bank took possession of a portion of the goods covered by the documents and removed them, and was proceeding with the removal of others of the goods, when the removal was forbidden by one of B.'s clerks. Two actions of replevin, brought by the bank to recover possession of the remainder of the goods, were compromised by B., who agreed that the bank compromised by B., who agreed that the bank should take the goods and sell them, and credit him with the amount received:—Held, that, notwithstanding any irregularities un-der the Banking Act, the title of the bank was complete under the compromise made be-near the back and B. and the back of the tween the bank and B., and that the plain-tiff, who purchased a portion of the goods from the bank, was entitled to recover against the defendant sheriff, who levied on the goods under an execution against B. :- Held, the goods held by the bank was void under the provisions of the Act, not being for a present advance, but for a past due debt, and that the bank were not entitled to hold such security against the creditors of B., that bank were not obliged to rest their title on the document, and that its defects, if any, would not affect the subsequent transaction by which the bank became the actual purchasers of the goods and dealt with them as Armstrong v. Buchanan, 35 their property. N. S. Reps. 559.

Trust — Hypothecation of securities — Terms of pledge — Duty of pledgec.) — B. sold property to the Syndicat Lyonnais du Klondyke, and took, as security for the price, ties to the bank to secure his present and future indebtedness to the bank. He signed a document authorising the bank to realise on the same in their discretion, to grant extensions and give up securities, accept compositions, grant releases and discharges, and otherwise deal with them as they might see fit without prejudice to B.'s liability. The note not being paid at maturity, the bank sued the Syndicat and B, upon it, and on the covenants in the mortgages, and obtained judgment against both. In the same action, the Syndicat, on counterclaim for damages for deceit, had judgment against B, which was eventually set aside, but, while it existed, the bank made a settlement with the Syndicat and discharged the latter from all liability on the judgment of the bank, on payment of over 820,000 less than the debt. B, was not a party to this settlement, and the bank afterwards refused to give him a statement of his account with the bank. In an action by B, for an account and to have the bank enjoined from further dealings with the securities: —Held, that the power given to the bank to deal with scartifies was to be exercised for the purpose of liquidating B.'s debt, and, as to the surplus, for B.'s benefit; that, the settlement having been made solely of B.'s interests, the bank violated their duty.

ad had not satisfied the onus of shewing aat, had the whole amount of the judgment been recovered from the Syndicat, B. would not have benefited thereby. Judgments in Barrette v. The liquidator cannot, by way of amendment, add the bank as a party in an action which he has begun in his own name. 3. An intervention is not a upon the principal action, and must fail with it when that action is void ab initio. 4. Act of incorporation—By-law—Annual Dues—Liability for—Penalty—Alternative Remedy.] — The defendant took a license as barber pursuant to the terms of the Act of incorporation of the plaintiffs (62 V. c. 90), and paid his annual dues until 1903; but, since then, refused to pay them, contending first, that he was no longer a member of the association, and secondly, that if he was a member, he could only be sued for the penalty of $10 imposed by the by-laws for their infraction:—Held, that he who takes a license as barber, becomes a member of the association by virtue of the Act, and that the adoption of a by-law imposing a penalty is only an additional means of enforcing payment by those in default. In the present case the plaintiff association had the alternative of suing to recover the amount of the fee according to art. 13 of the charter, or of claiming the penalty by virtue of the by-law. Filiation — Paternity — "Preuve Testimoniale" — "Paits Constants"—Admissions by putative father — Denial of allegation of mother—Preponderance of evidence.]—In an inquiry as to the paternity of a natural child, "la preuve testimoniale complementaire" will be admitted, if, in his answers, the defendant, when he is examined as to the facts and circumstances or as a witness, admits facts which raise presumptions or point with sufficient force to render probable the allegation that he has had carnal intercourse with the mother of the child and that he is its father; and in case the facts admitted by the defendant constituted a set or continued success sion of circumstances, which, taken altogether give birth to a very strong suspicion that the defendant had carnal relations with the mother of the child at the date of its conmother of the child at the date of its con-ception, and continuing until nearly up to the time of its birth. The facts thus admitted become, from that moment, "fails constants" satisfying the requirements of art: 232 of the Civil Code, and sufficient for the admission of "preuve testimoniale complémentaire" of "preuve testimoniale complementaire" of the paternity of the defendant. Whether the facts admitted are such or not is a question of fact to be decided by the Court (Demo-lombe, t. 5, No. 235). Articles 241, 232, 233, and 234 of the Civil Code, which change the method of proof in force up to the time the code came into force, in the matter of proof of catomic have not made any changes deof paternity, have not made any change what up to that time was considered as raising presumptions or grave suspicions of a nature to make it probable that sexual relaitions existed between the mother and sup-posed father of the child, and consequently of the paternity attributed to the defendant. Despite the fact that the only "preuse com-plementairg" adduced may be that furnished by the evidence of the mother, plaintiff in the case, esqualité de tutrice to her child, who swears positively that the defendant is the father of her child, notwithstanding that the defendant on his side swears with no less assurance that he has never had sexual inter-course with the plaintiff, yet the undisputed fact of the birth of the child added to the ad-missions of the defendant when heard as a missions of the detendant when hears as a witness, give to the plaintiff's evidence a suf-ficiently preponderating force to justify the judgment in favour of the latter. In the ab-sence of evidence contradicting that of the sence of evidence contracting that of the plaintiff, proof of the identity of the child of which she is the mother and whose fatherhood she attributes to the defendant, established by the testimony of the mother alone, is sufficient. the resumpty of the mother alone, is sufficient, and this notwithstanding the fact that in the certificate of baptism, the child is represented as being of unknown parents ("ne de par-ents incomus"), Rattigan v, Robillard, Q. R. 26 S. C. 222.

Order of affiliation — Corroborative evidence of mother of child.]—An appeal by the reputed father from an order of affiliation made by a magistrate was diamissed. There is no rule of law requiring the evidence of the mother to be corroborated. It is a matter of practical expediency and good sense that one should adopt the mother's evidence zuarkedy. Overseers v. McGillieray, 7 E. L. R. 121.

Proof of paternity — Commencement of proof in verifing—Deposition of mother—Admission of father—Presumption,]—A deposition on oath before a justice of the peace by the mother of an illegitimate child cannot negative the proof in veriing, according to the terms of art, 233, C. C., in an action for the declaration of paternity subsequently begun by the child's tutor, although such deposition has been made part of the record without objection from the opposite part. 2. However, it matters little whether the existence of "the facts thence appearing," which may, in such an action, authorize proof by witnesses (art. 232, C. C.), be demonstrated before or during the enquite; it is enough that such facts be established and proved before the oral evidence is admitted. 3. Acceptance—Account stated—Mistake— Opening account—Pleading—Ancndment.]— Acceptance of a bill of exchange is evidence of an account stated to the amount of the bill. In order to open a second account it is necessary to particularize specific errors in the account. In an action by the drawer of bills of exchange against the accepted the bills under a mistake as to the state of the account. This defende was struck out, with leave to the defendant to amend on terms of filing an affidavit verifying the facts to be set out in the proposed amended defence. The proposed amended defence alleged that when the defendant accepted the bills he did so under the mistaken idea that he was indebted to the plaintiff in the amount thereof; that such mistaken belief was occasioned by the plaintiff having represented to him, by statements of account in writing and by drawing the bills, that he justly owed the plaintiff that amount, whereas, in fact, he was not indebted to him in any amount ; that the defendant had dealt extensively with the plaintiff for over six years; that in course of such dealings plaintiff had, without defendant's knowledge or consent, made many exorbitant and illegal charges, and that if accounts were taken it would be found that the defendant was not indebted to the plain-tiff in any amount. This proposed defence and a counterclaim based on the same allegations, for an account, were held bad; and were not allowed to be filed, and there being, therefore, no defence on file, judgment was given for the plaintiff. Clark v. Hamilton, 5 Terr. L. R. 178.

Accommodation acceptor - Release-Payment by drawer.]-The plaintiff agreed to sell certain cattle to M., on condition that M. would procure some one to accept a draft for the price. The defendant, at the request of M., accepted a draft for the amount, and a second draft given in re-newal of the first, and agreed to accept a third draft in renewal of the second, but afterwards refused to do so at the instance of M., who, in the meantime, had become insolvent. The plaintiff furnished all the money used to retire the second draft with the exception of $10 paid by M. :-Held, that the defendant was not relieved from his liability on the second acceptance by the payment made by the plaintiff, and that the plaintiff was entitled to judgment for the amount of the acceptance, less the $10 paid by M. :--Held, that the case was distinguishable from one where the acceptor accepts for the accommodation of the drawer, who takes up the bill at maturity and negotiates it to someone who sues the acceptor. Wheatley, 34 N. S. Reps. 526. Dill v.

Acceptance—Condition—Notice to holder of bill—Equity affecting negotiability.]—Action on a bill of exchange :—Held, that plaintiff cannot recover as he took the bill with notice of an equity attaching, namely, that if 5 cars were not shipped promptly the bill was to be altered to read "30 days from date of shipment." The acceptance was, therefore, conditional. Goldstein v. Gillis, 10 W, L, R. 109.

Act of commerce — Joint and several judgment.]—A person who signs a negotiable instrument, although not a trader, does an act of commerce, and, if he has contracted along with others, may have a judgment given against him jointly and severally with them. Gauthier V. Drouin, 5 Que. P. R. 63.

Action for money demand—Plea of bill of exchange—Reply that bill not paid— Necessity for deposit of bill.]—Where the defendant pleads that the plaintiff has drawn upon him a bill of exchange for the amount of the claim, the plaintiff may rely that the bill is overdue and unpaid, and this without depositing the bill in Court; the neglect to deposit will only affect the costs. McKee v. Falardeau, 5 Que. P. R. 159.

Action by transferee — Previous action by draver — Notice — Stay of proceedings-Offer to suffer judgment.] — Action by transferee of overdne bill, upon which an action has been already brought by transferor, wherein offer to suffer judgment has been made and accepted, was stayed on application to the equitable jurisdiction of the Court, transferee having knowledge of the pendency of first action.—An application to compel plaintiffs to sign judgment on their acceptance of defendant's offer to suffer judgment in first action was refused. Kennedy Co., v. Vaughan, Standard Bank of Can, v. Vaughan (1906), 37 N. B. R. 112.

Action on-Accepted for accommodation -Evidence as to-Jurisdiction of Co. C. Removal of action into H. C. J. by consent of counsel-Costs on Co. C. scale.]-Plaintiff brought action to recover $525, being the amount paid by plaintiff on a draft drawn on him by defendant and accepted by him and for costs, which plaintiff alleged was for accommodation to defendant and not because of any indebtedness of plaintiff to defendant. At the trial the Co. C. J. for Carleton Co. gave plaintiff judgment for $500 with interest and costs. Defendant appealed to Divisional Court. The Court being of opinion that the Court appealed from had no jurisdiction to entertain the plaintiff's claim, by consent of counsel the action was transferred to the High Court, and the appeal treated as if the County Judge who tried the action had done so at the request of and for a Judge of the High Court :-- Held, that plaintiff had failed to establish his case. Judgment appealed from vacated and judgment entered for defendant dismissing the action with costs on Co, C. scale, Farrow v. McPherson (1910), 16 O. W. R. 1009, 2 O. W. N. 70.

Law of France-Contract-Creditor and debtor-Indemnity.]-By the laws of France. a bill of exchange operates as a real contract between the drawer and drawee, and this contract is of the nature of mandate mandatum solvendæ pecuniæ which takes place, and is contracted, by the acceptance of the bill by the drawee. See Pothier, Contrat de Change, pt. 1, c, 4, act. 3, No. 91, 92, 97. Where, there-fore, a party became surety, upon an agreement for securing certain advances, by future consignments of West India produce, and after such advances, but before any consignments, the party having contracted to make the same accepted bills to the amount of the advances :- Held, that inasmuch as such ac ceptances operated as a pro tempore payment of the sums advanced under the agreement. the surety was discharged. Limitation of actions-Loan to railway company through general manager-Payment of interest-Estoppel.]-In 1893 E. N., one of interest—Estoppel.]—In 1893 E. N., one plaintiff, and mother of her co-plaintiff, at request of F., her brother, who was chief executive officer of defendants' railway, and had management of their financial matters. lent the company $4,000, giving him her cheque therefor, payable to his order, which cheque therefor, payable to his order, which he endorsed over to company, and it was applied to their purposes, but, through some error in bookkeeping, F. was credited with the loan on the company's books. E. N. re-ceived as security for the loan a bill of exchange, drawn, according to company's usual custom, by F., payable to himself, and accepted, under F.'s instructions, by com-accepted, under F.'s instructions, by comaccepted, under F.'s instructions, by com-pany's secretary, which F. endorsed over to E. N. The bill was renewed from time to time, interest being paid by company's cheques, drawn payable to F., and endorsed over to E. N., until 1895, when she, having transferred the bill to her co-plaintiff, the interest thereafter was paid to him. On 31st March, 1899, the amount standing to F.'s credit in company's books, including this loan, was transferred to a firm, of which F. was a member, without the knowledge of plaintiffs. Interest thereafter was paid in same manner as before, but in reality it was paid by F. personally, of which plaintiffs were not aware. Payment of interest continued until 1900. In an action brought in 1905:-Held, that plaintiffs were entitled to recover; the debt was from its inception, and continued to be, that of the company, and not of F., and the company were estopped from contending that payments of interest were not made by them, and that such payments prevented Statute of Limitations from running against plaintiffs .---The principle of the decision in Re Tucker, Tucker v. Tucker, [1894] 3 Ch. 429, applied. Bacon v. Decare, Q. R. 34 S, C. 103, 4 E. L. R. 563.

2. CHEQUES.

Action on — Pleading—Presentment and protest, |—In an action on a cheque payable to order, brought by the indorsee, it is not necessary to allege that the cheque had been presented for payment within a reasonable time at the bank where it was payable, and that payment had been refused, and that the cheque had been protested for non-payment. Ambiguity as to amount—Bearer of cheque—Responsibility—Rights of indoreses —Mistake — Settlement — Remedy.] — A cheque drawn thus, "Pay Y. N. or hearer §2.50, two fifty /100 dollars," signed "E. N." is not an order to pay §2.50. The bearer of the cheque who accepts §2.50 only is not at fault, and incurs no responsibility to the indoresers. The contention that before presenting it he had accepted it from a debtor for the larger of the two sums, which the debtor had himself received from the indoreser, cannot be upheld. An acknowledgment by the dehtor that the bearer had made a mistake, followed by a settlement between them, takes away from the indorser the subsidiary recourse which he might have against the bearer in the name of the debtor by virtue of Art. 1031, C. Cheque payable to order-Forged endorsement—Collection by third party through his bank—Payment over—Liability to refund —Principal and agent—Banks and banking.] -Defendant McE., having a cheque on New York payable to his order, of which he claimed to be owner, endorsed and handed it to the defendant H. to collect and pay amount over to him. H., believing McE. to be owner and entitled to receive the money, handed it to plaintiffs to be collected, telling their manager that he saw McE, endorse it and that he knew him; but when the manager offered to cash it at once if H, would endorse it, he declined, stating he knew nothing of it, and it might not be paid. For purpose of collec-tion H. ϵ med his name as witness to the endorsem ut, writing beneath his signature "without any recourse to me whatever. Plaintiffs collected the money and credited proceeds to H., who accounted for them of McE. The New York bank subsequently demanded the money back, alleging McE.'s endorsement to be a forgery, and plaintiff paid back amount received and brought action against H. and McE. :-Held, that H., having acted honestly, was not liable for deceit; but the facts constituted a contract of warranty by him that he was entitled, as agent for the rightful owner of the cheque, to request plaintiffs to collect it and pay him as such agent when collected, and if the endorsement was forged, he was liable to repay the amount, Collen v. Wwight, S E. & B. "47, followed. Bank of Ottawa v. Harty (1996), 12 O. L. R. 218, 6 O. W. R. 925, 7 O. W. R. 869.

Consideration — Part payment under unenforceable contract—Statute of Frauda.] —A definite oral bargain (good except for the Statute of Frauds) for the sale by the plaintiff to the defendant of an ascertainable and definite parcel of land is a sufficient consideration for a cheque drawn by the defendant upon a bank in favour of the plaintiff for a part of the purchase money; and, the cheque being dishomoured, the plaintiff was held entitled to recover the amount there... from the defendant, the latter not being in possession, and the plaintiff not having made or tendered a conveyance, but being able and willing to perform his contract. Judgment of the 4th Division Court in the county of Waterloo reversed. Kinsie

Countermanding payment - Innocent holder for value without notice-Rights of subsequent holder with notice -Holder in due course.] - The defendant R., having given his cheque for $491.25 to the defendant D., the latter indorsed it to the defendant DeG., who deposited it to her credit in a savings bank, which in its turn accepted it and paid $450 to her, and credited her deposit with the balance. But payment had been countermanded by the maker the day after signing the cheque; and, as a consequence, when, in the ordinary course of business of the bank, and without unreasonable delay, the cheque was presented at the bank on which it was drawn, payment was refused, plaintiff, the teller who had received this cheque on deposit without its being marked

"accepted," contrary to the rules, was held liable for the amount by the savings bank. but the latter handed over the cheque to him, thus subrogating him to its rights with a view to his having recourse against the parties. To this action the makers and the indorsers pleaded that the plaintiff was not a holder in due course, since he became a holder after refusal of payment and after he had notice of it :--Held, that the indorsers could not raise the question whether he was a holder in due course or not, the cheque not being tainted with any illegality. (2) That DeG, was a holder in due course, since sha had become a holder before the cheque could have been presented for payment; and, as a consequence, the savings bank and the plaintiff taking title through her possessed all the rights of a holder in due course against the maker and indorsers. (3) That the maker and prior indorsers must pay the whole amount of the cheque to have a right to it and to be discharged from it; although the savings bank had retained the balance of DeG.'s deposit, that was a personal matter between them. Gauthier v. Reinhardt, Q. R. 26 S. C. 134.

Conversion—Forgery—Findings of trial Judge on conflicting evidence — Joint fortfeasors — Banks, |—Action to recover $600 for alleged conversion of cheque drawn by H, upon defendants, the Imperial Bank, payable to order of plaintiff by the name of "Mrs. B. Cohen," plaintiff on the date of the cheque being the widow of B. Cohen, She elaimed the cheque was stolen from her, and that the endorsement, "B. Cohen," was a forgery. The trial Judge gave judgment for plaintiff. An appeal was dismissed as to defendant the Crown Bank, but allowed as to the Imperial Bank, the latter not being a joint tort-feasor. Crediting customer with amount of cheque - Negotiation-Holder for value Dishonour of cheque — Honouring subs-quent cheques — Bills of Exchange Act, ss. 22, 54, 56, 58, 79, 74, 165.] — The account of M, at the plaintiffs' bank was $409.53 overdrawn. On May 23rd he posted to the plaintiffs from Chicago a cheque of W. & Co. for $1,000, dated May 16th, with instructions to place the amount to his credit, which the plaintiffs did on receipt on May 26th, thus leaving a credit balance in M's favour of $590.47. On the same day the plaintiffs sent this cheque for collection to the clearing house, but it was returned dishonoured on May 27th, W. & Co. having stopped payment on May 23rd. On May 28th certain cheques drawn by M. on his account came in, which the plaintiffs paid and charged up. plaintiffs again twice sent the $1,000 cheque to the clearing house, but it was on each occasion returned unpaid, the plaintiffs on each occasion crediting and debiting M.'s account with the $1,000. The plaintiffs now sued W. with the $1,000. The plaintiffs now sued W. & Co, on the $1,000 cheque. It was admitted that M. had not given consideration for it, and that, if he were holder, he could not re-cover on it:--Held, that the plaintiffs, by crediting M.'s account with $1,000 on receipt of the cheque sued on, became holders for value of the latter. The position of the plaintiffs, with reference to the cheque sued on, became fixed when the latter was negotiated to them, and nothing which took place subse-

Crown-Forgeries by clerk in Government department—Payment by bank — Negligence —Liability to customer—Estoppel — Deposit -LABDINGY TO CURTONICT-EXAUPPET - Deposit of cheques in other banks-Liability over-Mistake, I-A clerk in a department of the Government of Canada, whose duty was to examine and check its accounts with the Bank of Montreal, forged departmental cheques and deposited them to his credit in other banks. The forgeries were not discovered until some months after these cheques had been paid by the drawees to the several other banks, on presentation, and charged against the Receiver-General on the account of the department with the Bank of Montreal None of the cheques were marked with the drawees' acceptance before payment. In the meantime, the accountant of the department, being deceived by false returns of checking by the clerk, acknowledged the correctness of the statements of the account as furnished by the bank where it was kept. In an action by the Crown to recover the amount so paid upon the forged cheques and charged against the Receiver-General:--Held, alliming the judgment appealed from, Rez v. Bank of Montreal, 11 O. L. R. 595, 7 O. W. R. 638, that the Bank of Montreal were liable unless the Crown was estopped from setting up the for crown was estopped from setting up the forgery.—Per Davies, Idington, and Duff, JJ., that estoppel could not be invoked against the Crown.—Per Girouard and Mac-leman, JJ., that apart from the question of the Crown being subject to estoppel, under the circumstances of this case a private person would not have been estopped had his name been forged as drawer of the cheques.--Per Davies and Idington, JJ., that the acknowledgment by the accountant of the department of the correctness of the statements furnished by the bank, being made under a mistake as to the facts, was subject to being re-opened to have the mistake rectified .- The defendants made claims against the other banks, as third parties, as indorsers or as having received money paid by mistake, for the reimbursement of the several amounts for the reimbursement of the several amounts paid to them, respectively. On these third party issues, it was held per Girouard and Maclennan, JJ., that the drawees, having paid the cheques on which the name of their customer was forged, could not recover the amounts thereof from holders in due course. Price v, Neal, 4 Burr, 1355, followed. Per Dueice and Liberton JL that as the third Davies and Idington, JJ., that, as the third party banks relied upon the representation that the cheques were genuine, which was to be implied from their payment on presenta-tion, and subsequently paid out of the funds to their depositor, or on his order, the drawees were estopped and could not recover the amounts so paid from them either as indorsers or as for money paid to them under mistake—In the result, the judgment appealed from was affirmed. Bank of Montreal v. The King, 27 C. L. T. 226, 38 S. C. R. 255.

G, then charged the cheque to the account of D.; but D. had no longer sufficient funds to cover it. G, began this action against L, the drawer of the cheque, claiming the amount of the cheque to the account of D, and having notified him of it, had ceased to be the owner of it, and had no right of action against L, the cheque having become again the property of D.; and the latter only could recover against L. omission or neglect by officers of the Government of duties which the ordinary customer owes to his bank :-Held, that, even if there had been a breach of duty or negligence or omission on the part of the plaintiff, it would not avail the defendant bank, for the Crown is not bound by estoppel nor responsible for the negligence or laches of its servants .-- As to the claim against the third party banks, per Moss, C.J.O. :--Where in the ordinary course of dealing, there comes through one bank to another a cheque purporting to bear the signature of a customer of the latter, which accepts it, the implication is that it was so dealt with in reliance upon knowledge of the customer's signature, and not upon any supposed representation or warranty of its genuineness by the bank representing it.-Per Maclaren, J.A.:-The third party banks were justified in assuming that the defendant bank could best determine whether the signatures were genuine or not, and it was a fair inference that the defendant bank would know from bank usage that the third party banks would rely on such knowledge and take the fact of payment by the defendant bank as were genuine, and would be likely to act upon it. The defendant bank might, thereupon it. The defendant bank might, there-fore, properly be held liable on the ground of estoppel. The third party banks could not be held to have warranted the genuineness of the forged cheques merely by demanding payment of them without indorsing them ; and having placed them to the credit of the forger before presenting them to the defendant bank for payment, they presented them as holders for value.—The effect of receipt from a bank of a pass-book and vouchers, and their retention without comment, by a cus-tomer, considered.—Judgment of Anglin, J., 5 O. W. R. 185, 10 O. L. R. 117, affirmed. Rev v. Bank of Montreal, 11 O. L. R. 595, 7 O. W. R. 638.

Forged indorsements-Fraud of agent insurance company-Payment by bank.] of -N, was the assistant superintendent of a life insurance company, as well as its local agent at one of its branches, having sole control of the business there. A number of applications sent in by him to the head office were, with the exception of some five, on the lives of fictitious persons, and, as to these five, the insurances had subsequently lapsed, of which fact the company were kept in ignorance. Afterwards N., representing that the insured were dead and the claims payable under the policies, sent into the head office claim papers, filling in the names of the fictitious claimants and forging their alleged signatures thereto, whereupon cheques for the respective amounts, made by the com-pany in favour of the alleged claimants and payable at a branch of the defendants' bank, were sent to N., whose duty it was, on the receipt thereof, to see the payees and procure discharges from them. On receipt of these cheques the indorsements of the fictitious payees' names were forged, and the cheques presented to the bank and paid in good faith, the amounts thereof being charged to the company's account :--Held, that the company were affected by what had been done by N. so as to preclude them from disputing the right of the bank to pay the cheques and charge the plaintiffs with the amounts thereof. Incorporated club — Members' cheques payable to club—Authority of secretary to endorse.] — Action to recover amount of cheques sent to former secretary of plantiff, received by him as club moneys and cashed or deposited with the various defendants in fraud of the plaintiffs. Cheques received by the secretary were endorsed "The Toronto Club" or "Pay to the order of the Dominion Bank for the Toronto Club. — Secretary." —Held, that he had power to endorse in this way, and his acts were not between him and the club, conversions. Some of the cheques he cashed or handled so as to have the amounts deposited subject to his control:— Held, that the defendants are not liable as unaware of any breach of trust. Defendants are bona fide holders for value of properly endorsed cheques. Toronto Club v, Imperial Bank, Toronto Club v, Imperial Bank, 1000, 14 O. W, R. 261.

Marking by bank-Fraudulent alteration-Money paid under mistake of fact-Negligence-Notice of dishonour - Reasonable delay.]-A cheque for $5 certified by the respondent bank's stamp was fraudulently altered to $500 and paid by the respondent bank to the appellant bank, holders for value, under a mistake of fact, which was not discovered until the next day. In an action by the respondents to recover back $495 from the appellants :--Held, that the respondents were at liberty to prove, as between themselves and an innocent holder for value, that the cheque had been fraudulently altered after it had been certified, Schofield v. Earl of Londesborough, [1896] A. C. 514. followed .--- 2. No negligence was imputable to the respondents in cashing the cheque without examining the drawer's account and, even if it were, it did not induce the appellants to treat the cheque as good, Kelly v. Solari, 9 M. & W. 54, approved. 3. Notice of forgery was unnecessary, and the cheque for $5 was not dishonoured; and, accordingly, the stringent rule laid down in Cocks v. Masterman, 9 B. & C. 902, 33 R. R. 365, to the effect that notice of dishonour of a bill of exchange must be given on the due date, did not apply. The rule will not be extended to other cases where notice of the mistake is given in reasonable time, and no loss has been occasioned by the delay. Judgment in 21 Occ. N. 400, 31 S. C. R. 344, affirmed, Imperial Bank of Canada v. Bank of Hamilton, [1903] A. C. 49.

ter were members of the board, an unincorporated body :--Held, that the document was a bill of exchange; and, following Owen v. Van Ulster, 10 C. B. 318, that McLean and Potter were personally liable thereon. Brass was the contractor with the board for the erection of a manse. If the contract had even completed, $817.85 would have been owing to him; but the trial Judge found that it had been left uncompleted to the value of $80. This was allowed to be set off against the amount of the plaintiff's claim; and it was contended that the defendants were entitled further to retain 10 per cent. of the contract price for thirty days after the completion of the contract, under the provisions of the Mechanics' Lien Ordinance -Held, that the defendants were not so entitled. McDougall v. McLean, 1 Terr. L. R. 450.

Payment refused - Right of holder against drawee.]-One R. gave the plaintiff in payment of a debt due, a cheque drawn on the defendant bank. Upon presentation payment of the cheque (which was not accepted) was refused, the clerk stating that, as it was for the balance of the sum to R.'s credit, his pass-book must be produced before payment. Within a few days R, became insolvent, and the plaintiff lost pay-ment of his debt. The bank admitted that there were funds of R.'s to meet the cheque when presented, and it was not set up that production of the pass-book when the balance was withdrawn was a custom of the bankers :--- Held, that the plaintiff had no right of action against the defendant for damages incurred by reason of their refusing to pay the unaccepted cheque. Silverstone v. Bank of Hochelaga, 21 Occ. N. 309. [But see Marler v. Molsons Bank (1872), 23 L. C. J. 293.]

Payable to order—Liability of the bank on which it is drawn—Rights of bearer— Handing funds back to bearer—Return in ordinary course of business and not specifying as the proceeds of the cheque.]—A bank on which a cheque to order is drawn and which has accepted it, is bound to pay the amount of it to a legal bearer and is not permitted to set off against him a previous payment which it has made to a third party on an irregular and insufficient endorsement. Vainly it is replied that the latter has returned the funds to the bearer when he has only returned them for so much of a current account which he was owing and not specifically for the proceeds of the cheque. C. P. R. v, Bank d'Hochelaga, Q. R. 18 K. B. 237.

Procurement by misrepresentation.] —Action by endorsee on cheque. Action dismissed, plaintiff having given no value and knowing the defect in the title of him from whom he had received it. Campbell v. National Construction Co., 12 W. L. R. 152.

Stamp Act, 1853, s. 19 (Imp)-Application to British Columbia-Bills of Exchange Act-Company - Cheques,]- Section 19 of the Stamp Act, 1853 (Imperial), which exconcrates bankers from liability if they pay on what purports to be an authorised indorsement, is inapplicable to British Columbia, and hence did not come into force by virtue of the English Law Act. Even if it were brought in force, it was annulled by the repugnant legislation of the Bills of Exchange Act, although not mentioned in the repealing schedule to the Act. The Cana-dian Bills of Exchange Act was intended to modify and alter as well as to codify the law relating to bills of exchange, cheques, and promissory notes. A local manager of an incorporated company, who was authorised only to indorse cheques for deposit with the Bank of British Columbia, indorsed and cashed at the Bank of Montreal cheques payable to the company drawn on the bank : -Held, that the Bank of Montreal were liable to the company for the amount of the cheques so cashed. Hinton Electric Co. v. Bank of Montreal, 23 Occ. N. 292, 9 B. C.

Specific purpose - Payment-Application to other purposes - Notice-Trust.]-The appellants made a cheque for $400 pay-able to the order of the respondents, intending that it should be applied as a deposit on account of a purchase of material which they wished to obtain from the respondents through the intervention of A. They handed the cheque to A, for this spe-cial purpose, and the word "deposit" appeared on the face of the cheque. The re spondents indorsed and used the cheque, and applied the amount on an old claim which they had against A. Another cheque of the appellants, for $100, made payable to the respondents or bearer, was treated in the same manner:-Held, that by using the cheque for $400 payable to their order, the respondents became accountable to the appellants for the amount; they became trustees of the makers of the cheque, with the usual liability attaching to such relation-And the subsequent cheque, although payable to the respondents or bearer, being part of the same transaction, and being used after notice that it had been obtained by faise representations, the respondents should also be accountable therefor. Leipschitz v. Montreal Street Rw, Co., Q. R. 9 Q. B. 518.

Unauthorized acceptance by clerk in bank—Liability of bank—Negligence—Eidrauer—Liability of drauer and endorser— Holder in due course—Overdue cheque—Uinreasonable delay—Cheque cashed by another bank—Bills of Exchange Act.]—Defendants Y, drew a cheque, dated 9th June, 1906, in fuvour of J, on defendant bank. On 15th June Y, stopped payment of the cheque. On 30th October following, R, a clerk in defendant bank, by misrepresentations, got possession of the cheque, and without authority of the defendant bank marked it accepted with the acceptance stamp of defendant bank he cheque. On the following day he censed to be an employee of defendant bank:—Held, that plaintiffs cannot succeed. Northern v. Yuen, 11 W, L, R, 698.

3. PROMISSORY NOTES.

Absence of consent of maker-Mistake as to nature of instrument-Holder for calue-Damages.]-A promissory note being a contract, the consent of the parties to it is of its essence as in other contracts. If a person signs a note wishing to sign and believing that he is signing an order for goods, the note is completely void even in the hands of a holder for value given in good faith. Quare, whether, where one who has so signed a note has done so negligently, he can be sued for damages for quasi-tort by such holder, Jacques Cartier Bank v. Lalonde, Q. R. 20 S. C. 43.

Absence of consideration - Evidence. admissibility of-New trial.]-In an action upon two promissory notes for $3,000 and $4,000 respectively, the defendants set want of consideration and that the plaintiff was not a hong fide holder for value. At the trial the defendants tendered evidence, which was refused, to shew that the notes were given merely as receipts for stock which had been delivered to defendants for sale as agents, that there was no consideration for sale as agents, that there was no consideration for the notes, and that the plaintiff, who was a clerk in the office of his solicitors, had given no value therefor; also that a written agreement for the transfer of the stock made between the payee of the note and another, and acted upon, or had been abandoned :---Held, that whether or not evidence was admissible to shew that the notes were given as receipts, the defendants were entitled to give in evidence all the facts which would tend to establish want of consideration, and this baring been denied them, a new trial was directed. Clarke v. Union Stock Underwrit-ing Co. of Peterborough, 8 O. W. R. 757, 13 Oct. R. 102, 9 O. W. R. 486, 14 O. L. R. Oct. 198

Acceleration — Insolvency — Presentment and notice.]—Where a promissory note becomes payable before maturily by reason of the insolvency of the maker and indorser, presentment and protest against the indorser are nevertheless necessary, and in the absence of protest he is discharged from his obligation. The provisions of the Bills of Exchange Act, respecting presentment, protest, and notice of protest, are applicable to a note becoming due by reason of the insolvency of the parties. La Banque Nationale v, Martel, Q. R. 17 S. C. 97.

Accommodation co-maker — Knowledge of holder—Extension of time without notice—Right to notice of dishonour—Principal and surry—Pailure of creditors to proceed promptly against principal debtor— Failure to give surety notice of default of principal debtor—Evidence of prejudice—Release—New trial.]— In an action by the payee of a promissory note against the two joint makers, it appeared that the defendant D, signed as maker entirely for the accommodation of the defendant K., and without receiving any consideration therefor, and that the plantiff knew at the time of taking the note that D, was an accommodation maker only. The plantiff placed the note with his bankers as collateral security for his indebtedness to them, and the bankers indorsed upon it the words "ex-tended for 9 months." D was not patified of this extension. There was no evidence that of this extension. There was no evidence that the time was extended for K.'s benefit, either by the bankers or the plaintiff, or that K. was ever informed by either of them that he could have 9 months more in which to pay:-Held, that D, was not released by the extension of time without notice to him -Held, also, that D., as an accommo dation maker to the knowledge of the plaintiff, was not entitled under the law merchant or the Bills of Exchange Act to no. chant of the Bills of Exchange Act to no-tice of dishonour.—The note fell due on the 20th October, 1907: the plaintiff took no proceedings against D. or K. until more than 14 months after that date; D. was never notified that the note had not been paid until the 6th October, 1908; at some timethe evidence did not shew when-K, made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors; the evidence did not shew whether the plaintiff proved his claim against the estate or not, or whether D, might not have done so and obtained some benefit if he had known that K. had not paid the note :- Held, that there should be a new trial so as to give D. an opportunity of proving that he was in an opportunity of proving that he was in some way prejudiced by the omission to notify him of K's default—the position be-ing that the plaintiff, the creditor, had failed to proceed promptly against K., the principal debtor, and failed to give D., the surety, notice of K.'s default, and upon these facts, if damage were shewn, D, would be discharged from his liability .- Kalmet v. Kaiser, 13 W. L. R. 94, as to granting a new trial, distinguished,—Judgment of Noel, Co. C.J., reversed, Hough v. Kennedy (1910), 13 W. L. R. 674.

Accountedation endorscement — Collateral security by mortgage.]— Planitif, as assignce, brought action to recover $300 upon a promissory note made by Hannah Boehmer and A. O. Boehmer and endorsed by defendant, dated May 3rd, 1905, payable three months after date. The action was tried twice, through the evidence at first trial being varue, indefinite and unsatisfactory, and nearly, if not quite, as unsatisfactory, and nearly, if not quite, as unsatisfactory on the second trial. At trial judgment was given plaintiff for $000 with interest and costs. The Divisional Court, 14 O. W. R. 549, reversed the trial Judge, holding that the note was an accommodation note, given to partly secure a debt from Hoelmers to Erb for $25,000, and that such debt was paid by Erb to King. Plaintiff's appeal to the Court of Appeal allowed, and judgment of MacMaho, J., 13 O. W. R. 708, at trial restored. Wade v. Lieingston (1910), 15 O. W. R. 224.

Accommodation endorsement — Presumptions and oral testimony.)— When a promissory note, payable to order and discounted by a bank, is taken up, at its maturity, by the payee without protest as against the endorser, and without demand or payment for a period of close on three years, there is thereby created a strong presumption in the maker's favour that the note was given without consideration and to accommodate the payee and proof by oral testimony of such facts is permissible. Accommodation endorser-Action for indemnity against maker-Condition prece-dent - Notice of dishonour.]- The obligation of the endorser of a promissory note is a conditional obligation, the condition being that the note shall be protected and that notice of protest shall be given to him. Therefore, he has no right of action against the maker for indemnity in respect of his obligation, even after the note has fallen due, if it has not been protested and notice of protest given to him. Trottier v. Rivard, Q. R. 23 S. C. 526.

Accommodation endorsers - Co-surcties-Contribution-Order of indorsements.] -The plaintiffs and defendant were both accommodation endorsers of a promissory note. The plaintiff was the payce, but, when the instrument was given to him to endorse, the defendant's name was already on the back of it, and the plaintiff endorsed under the defendant's endorsement. Each testified that his liability was to be secondary to that of the other-not that they so agreed with each the other—not that they so agreed with each other, but that the maker so agreed with each of them respectively:— Held, that, being surfies for the one debt, the rule of equitable contribution applied, and the plaintiff, having paid the debt, was entitled to re-cover only half of it from the defendant. Cover only half of it from the defendant. Macdonald v. Whitfield, 8 App. Cas. 733. discussed. Steacy v. Stayner, 24 Occ. N. 309, 7 O. L. R. 684, 3 O. W. R. 244, 557.

Accommodation endorser-Waiver of notice of protest.]-Action on a promissory note against the defendant Q. as endorser. The defendant pleaded that he was only a The electron in peace data is a solution of a grarantor on the note, and had received none of the proceeds thereof, and that, as he had received no notice of protest, he was dis-charged from all liability. The evidence shewed that when the note fell due Q, had gone to the plaintiff, offered a renewal note, and had asked for time in which to pay :-Held, that this action on the part of Q, was a waiver of protest under the Bills of Ex-change Act. Accommodation maker - Conditional delivery-Bank-Notice to agent.]-In an action brought by the plaintiffs against the defendant M., as endorser of a promissory note made by S., and as joint and several maker with S. of two other promissory notes. the defence chiefly relied on was that the notes were signed by M., and delivered to the plaintiffs' agent under a special agreement, of which the plaintiffs had notice, that they were not to be used until they had been endorsed or signed by certain other parties as co-sureties. The evidence shewed that the defendant S, was largely indebted to the plaintiffs for advances made by the plaintiffs' agent, for which the plaintiffs were anxious to obtain collateral security, and that the notes were taken for that purpose, and not as ordinary discounts; also, that the signature of the defendant M, to the notes was obtained by the plaintiffs' agent, under instruction from the cashier of the bank; also, that, at the time the notes were signed, the plaintiffs' agent was told by M. not to take them unless the other signatures were obtained, and replied, "that is all right;" also, that the notes were signed in the defendant's office, and that no part of the transaction took place in the office of of the transaction took place in the office of the bank:—Held, setting aside the findings of the jury, that the signature of M. was obtained in the course of the business of the agency, and within the scope of the agent's authority, and that his knowledge of the condition upon which the signatures were obtained must be held to be the knowledge of the bank .- Held, also, that if the agent, acting under the authority of the cashier, ap-plied to the defendant M, to sign the notes, and, in order to induce him to do so, agreed to any condition, or did anything to lead M. to believe that they would not be used by the bank until another person had signed them, the bank would be bound, although the conduct of the agent was unauthorised, and knowledge thereof was concealed from their officers. Commercial Bank of Windsor v. Smith, 34 N. S. Reps. 426.

Accommodation maker — Holder for value—Equities—Defects in title — Agree-ment for renewal—Parol evidence—Agreement-Signature-Amendment - Parties.] -The trial Judge found that the promissory to the conditions that: (1) it was not to be used at all except in a certain stated event : (2) it was to be negotiated, if at all, only at a certain named bank; and (3) it was renewable for the stated period, which had not expired at the commencement of the action. He also found that the second and third of these conditions had been broken ; that the plaintiff acquired the note, though for value, after maturity, from one C., the trustee for the benefit of the creditors of K ... and not from a certain bank which, at the time of the arrangement whereby he acquired the note, actually held it as a collateral sethe note, actually held it as a contrast se-curity for an indebtedness of K_{+} — Held, that these conditions were "equities attach-ing to the note," and their breach "defects in the title of the person who negotiated it : that the note was affected by them in the hands of both C, and the plaintiff ; and that therefore the plaintiff could not recover. The nature and effect of an accommodation note discussed. Where a note is subject to an agreement for renewal, if the renewal is not contemplated, except on the happening of an event not within the knowledge of the holder alone, the obligation of offering to renew is on the party entitled to renew. The necessity for such offer and the time within which it must be made discussed. In this case there was a continuing offer to renew, and a continuing refusal to accept a renewal.

The character of the evidence of notice of defects in title discussed. Where it is made to appear that a note, transfer, or other writing is merely an incident in or part of a larger agreement, and there is no writing in which the parties professed to set down all the terms of their agreement, oral evidence of the agreement is admissible. Signature is a conventional mode of declaring a writing to be the record of an agreement; but it is not essential, except where made so by statute. The fact that such a writing is directed to a third party does not prevent its being taken as the record of such an agreement. On the plaintiff's application an amendment was allowed adding the bank, with its consent, as a co-plaintiff, on the terms that the bank stand on the title of the plaintiff. MacArthur v. MacDowall, 1 Terr. L. R. 345.

Accommodation maker—Liability of —Payee pledged note to bank after matur-ity as collateral security—Right of bank to recover amount due bank by payee-Bank trustee for payee for balance of note-Bills of Exchange Act, ss. 54, 70.]-Payee pledged a past due note to bank as collateral security to his indebtedness. Bank sued on note. Certain collateral matters arising between payee and maker of the note were pleaded as a defence .- Boyd, C., held, that the bank held the note for value so far as payee was indebted to the bank, and could recover to the extent of that amount under Bills of Exchange Act, ss. 54 and 70; that there were no equities attaching to the note; that bank was trustee for payee for balance of note. Merchants Bank v. Thompson (1910), 16 O. W. R. 770, 1 O. W. N. 1015.

Accommodation maker-Renewal note obtained by fraud of principal maker - Right to sue on original note - Division Court-Power to amend-Evidence.]- The defendant joined in making a promissory note, as the payees, the plaintiffs, knew, for the accommodation of his co-maker. When it became due, the latter brought a renewal note, purporting to be signed by the defendant, which the payees accepted, and gave up the original note stamped "paid." The primary debtor becoming insolvent and dying, and the plaintiffs failing to get payment of the renewal note out of his estate, they sued the defendant upon it, in a Divisional Court, where there was a trial by jury. The defend-ant swore he never signed the renewal note, but, nevertheless, there was a verdict for the plaintiffs. A new trial was then granted, resulting in a verdict for the defendant. A further new trial then being granted, the Judge at the trial allowed the plaintifs to claim in the alternative upon the original note, as well as claiming upon the renewal note, and to amend their claim accordingly. The jury then returned a verdict for the plaintiffs on the original note. The defendant applied for a new trial, which was refused, and he then appealed to this Court :

-Held, that the Division Court Judge had jurisdiction to amend the plaintiffs' chain as he had done, under Rule 4 of the Divi-sion Courts.—2. That the renewal note being a forgery, so far as the defendant's signature was concerned, and the plaintif's. therefore, having been induced by the primary debtor's fraud to give him up the original note, the plaintiffs retained a right to recover in equity on the original note -3 That a witness was entitled to refer to entries in the books of the primary debtor. made by him or under his direction, to refresh his memory. Defendant offered to give a parcel of land in payment, and C, in company with defendant inspected the land, C, wrote plaintiffs sub mitting the proposition and giving a specific description of certain land. Plaintiffs wrote a solicitor instructing him to prepare a conveyance thereof. The solicitor, finding that there had been a misdescription in the letter to plaintiffs, accepted a conveyance of the land actually shewn by defendant to C .: Held, in an action on the note, that plaintiffs were bound as by an accord and satis-faction and could not recover. Action by payce against endorser— Liability of endorser—fills of Exchange Act — "Negotiated" agreement — Estoppel.) — Plaintiff was payce of two notes. The defendant Crawford endorsed the notes before delivery to plaintiff :—Held, that this endorsement made Crawford liable :—Held, further, that Crawford is estopped as he was a party to an agreement with plaintiff in which he says he was an "endorser" of the original mote, those sued on being renewals thereof and similarly endorsed. Robinson v. Mana (1901), 31 S. C. R. 484, followed; McDonough v. Cook, 13 O. W. R. SOS, 19 O. L. R. 267.

Action for money lent - Proof that note given—Production of note — Proof of loss—Indemnity—Costs.]—Where, in an action of a loan the defendant admits the loan, but alleges that he gave a promissory note for the amount, and this constitutes the sole proof of the loan, it cannot be divided. 2. A person who, on making a loan of money, receives a promissory note for the amount, cannot maintain an action upon the loan without producing and tendering to the debtor the note so given, or in the event of its being lost, without proving the loss, and obtaining an order that its loss shall not be pleaded by the defendant upon plaintiff giving security to the satisfaction of the Court or Judge against the claim of any other person upon the note. 3. Although the defendant is entitled. in the absence of compliance with the above conditions, to ask for the dismissal of an the loan, yet where he has declared his readiness to pay on proof of loss being made, and indemnity given, the Court, in order to avoid further litigation, may treat the case as an action on a lost note, and give judgment for the plaintiff on condition that se curity be given according to law-the defendant's costs in such case to be paid by plain-tiff. Action on — Defence—Accommodation— Withdrawal of election petition—Agreement to waive costs—Illegality. Johnston v. Wood, 4 E. L. R. 316.

Action on-Defence - Agreement-Violation-Condition-Parol Evidence of.1-To the plaintiff's claim against the defendant. as maker of a promissory note for $238.58, the defence was set up that in consideration of the defendant's forbearance to commence proceedings, in the Probate Court, for proof in solemn form of the will of A. C., the plaintiff agreed to advance the defendant, on account of a legacy to which she was entitled, as guardian of her infant children. a sum of money, to be expended in repairs to property of the said children, and that the plaintiff, not having the money required for that purpose, requested the defendant to sign a note for the amount, which note was indorsed by the plaintiff to a firm which had done a portion of the repairs, and that the note was given on the understanding that the plaintiff would pay it when it became due, and would deduct the amount from the amount payable to the defendant, as guardian of her said children; and in answer to the plaintiff's claim on a second note, for the sum of $150, the defendant, on the trial, sought to give evidence to shew that the note, although expressed to be payable on demand, was made subject to a condition that the defendant should not be called upon for payment, unless her children should die before a legacy to which they were entitled under the will of A. C., should become payable :--- Held, that the defendant, having violated her agreement by commencing proceedings in the Probate Court, and having sucseeded in setting the will aside, could not set up the agreement as a defence to the plaintiff's action on the first note; and that the second note being absolute on its face, evidence could not be given to vary its terms, there being no evidence to shew that it was given on a condition, or as an escrow, or only to be treated as a note in a certain event. McNeil v. Cullen, 37 N. S. Reps. 13.

Action on — Defence — Composition and discharge—Payment into Court—Costs.] — The defendant, being in difficulties, procured from all his creditors, among whom were the plinitiffs, a deed of composition and discharge, on the terms that within 60 days he should give them secured promissory notes representing 75 cents on the dollar. Before expiration of the 60 days, the defendant, under pressure from his creditors and by an arrangement with them, sold his entire assets on certain terms, which netted to the creditors 64½ cents on the dollar, payable and paid by the purchaser's promissory notes. All the creditors except the plaintiffs, upon receiving the 64½ cents on the dollar, gave a formal discharge to the defendant. The plaintiffs sued upon the promissory notes for the balance of their original debt, or. alternatively for the difference between 6414 and 75 cents on the dollar. The de-fendant pleaded several defences and paid the amount representing this difference into Court together with costs up to defence. The jury found in answer to certain questions : (1) that the plaintiffs did not receive the 641/2 cents in full of their claim; (2) that they did receive it on account of the 75 cents; and (3) that the 641/2 cents was not paid on account of the original claim :--Held, that the plaintiffs' right of action on the promissory notes was defeated by the agreement for composition and discharge, although its terms had not been fulfilled; and the ac-Effect of tion was dismissed with costs. payment into Court upon form of judgment and disposition of costs, discussed. Howland v. Grant, 2 Terr. L. R. 158, 26 S. C. R. 372.

Action on — Defence — Demand note — Absence of demand—Costs.]—The neglect to demand payment of a promissory note payable on demand, or default of an allegation, in an action to recover the amount of the note, that such demand for payment was made, cannot be the subject of the defence in law, such an action importing a demand of payment.—2. The neglect to demand payment before the institution of the action may at the most permit the defendant to escape the costs of the action upon depositing the amount claimed or due. Judgment for plainiff. The note being made payable to a trustee does not make it the duty of the transferee to investigate the trust. Held, that there was consideration for the note, the shares for which note given having been allotted. Lener v. Daveson, 11 W. L. R. 677.

Action on Defence-Foreign Companies Ordinance-Note in favour of foreign company doing business in contravention of Ordinance-Notice to endorsec.]-The Foreign Companies Ordinance, 1903 (c. 14 of 1903, 1st session), provides (s. 3), that no foreign company having gain for its object, or a part of its object, shall carry on any part of its business in the Territories, unless it is duly registered under the Ordinance, and imposes a penalty for breach of this provision; it further provides (s. 10), that any foreign company required by the Ordinance to become registered shall not while unregistered be capable of maintaining an action or other proceeding in any Court in respect of any contrart made in whole or in part in the Territories, in the course of or in connection with business carried on without registration, contrary to the provision 5 s. 3:--Meld, that an endorsee with notice of a promissory note made to a foreign company in the course of and in connection with business carried on in contravention of the above provisions, could not recover.-The plaintiff was the endorsee of a promissory note made by the defendants in favour of the Sawyer and Massey Co., Ltd., to secure the price of certain threshing ma chinery. The defendants, with other defences set up by the 3rd paragraph of their defence that the note in question was given to an unregistered foreign company engaged in selling machinery for gain within the Territories by resident agents, of which facts the plaintiff had notice when he became the holder of the note, and that they would rely upon the provisions of the Foreign Companies Ordinance. -On argument of the question of law thus raised, the facts above set out were admitted -Held, a good defence in law. Ireland v. Andrews (19), 6 Terr. L. R. 66.

Action on — Defence — Misrepresentation,]—An action on a promissory note made by defendant in favour of plaintiffs, in payment of premium on a policy upon his life, was dismissed upon the ground that plaintiffs' agent misrepresented a material fact to defendant, and thereby induced him to apply for insurance and sign the note. Prudential Life Ins, Co. v. Hardwick (1910), 15 W. L. R. 143.

Action on-Holder in due course-Transfer - Indorsement - Pleading - Bills of Exchange Act - Amendment - Costs.] -Excanded and a summary - Const. The claim of the plaintiff was set ont in the statement of claim as follows: "The plaintiff claims against the defendants for the payment of the sum of $240.84, the amount of a promissory note and interest thereon, dated the 2nd December, 1907, and made by the defendants, payable two years after date, to the order of C. H., at which said promissory note was duly trans-ferred by the said C. H. to the plaintiff, for valuable consideration, before maturity." The evidence at the trial shewed an indorsement and delivery, and that the plaintiff was a holder in due course :--Held, that the plead-ing was insufficient to establish a right of action under the Bills of Exchange Act. The plaintiff was allowed to amend and to allege that the note was duly transferred or indorsed to the plaintiff, and the plaintiff thereby became the holder for value in due course and the plaintiff was allowed to enter judament for the amount of the note, with costs of a default judgment, less the defendants' costs of defence-as it was admitted that they would not have defended had the pleading been properly framed at first, Heon v. Bonnet (1910), 14 W. L. R. 534.

Action on—Liability of maker.—Guarantor.]—Held, that the defendant is the maker of the note in the position of a guarantor. Setchfield v. Evans (1909), 1 O. W. N. 62.

Action on-Lien notes-Construction and operation between original parties-Not equivalent to promissory notes-Leave to annend -Terms-Costs. New Hamburg Manufacturing Co. v. Weisbrod (N.W.T.) (1906), 4 W. L. R. 125.

Action on-Plea that time for payment had been extended-Covenant not to sue-Demurrer. Stevenson v. Koughan, 4 E. L. R. 315.

Action on — Pleading — Admissions — Presentment — Affidavit,] — In an action upon a promissory note, the defendant who admits the amount and date thereof, and his signature as endorser, and denies all the other allegations, is prevented from pleading afterwards a special defence.—2. The plea alleging default of presentment of a note payable on demand must be supported by affidavit; if not it will be struck out on exception to the form, Hauces V, Fulton, 2 Que, P. R. 561.

Action on — Pleading — Consideration — Administrators — Illegal appointment by foreign Court.] — A defendant, sued upon a promissory note, may plead that the note was given without consideration and may set this up as a defence against the holder deriving his title from administrators illegally appointed by a foreign Court. Poirier v. Arnault, 5 Que, P. R. 139.

Action on — Pleading — Declaration— Necessary averments.]—In an action on a promissory note, it is not necessary to allege that the payee endorsed the note, nor how the plaintiff came into possession of the note; provided the declaration is in conformity with the special rule contained in Art 123 C. P. Stern V. Knaupe, 9 Que, P. R. 245.

Action on - Pleading - Demurrer -Endorsement in blank - Holder - Presumption.]-In an action on a promissory note, a declaration in accordance with form 6 of Schedule A (Art, 123, C. C. P.), is sufficient, though there be no averment that the plaintiff is the holder of the note, nor by whom it was endorsed to him, nor that the plaintiff gave value therefor .--- 2. The Court, for the purposes of a demurrer, cannot look at papers filed with the declaration, such as the protest of a promissory note sued on .--- 3. When a promissory note is endorsed by the payee in blank, a person who brings suit thereon and produces the note, is presumed to be the holder in due course, and it is for the defendant to rebut this presumption by making the proof required by s. 30, s.-s. 2, of the Bills of Exchange Act, i.e., that the issue or subsequent negotiation of the note is affected with fraud, duress, or force and fear, or illegality, Ridgeway v. Dansereau, Q. R. 17 S. C. 176.

Action on — Pleading — Irregular protest—Afidavit.1—A plea to an action against the endorser of a promissory note, alleging that notice of protest was not regularly given, should be set out especially the irregularity complained of; and, further, such plea must be supported by afidiavit establishing the facts alleged: Art. 208, C. C. P. Western Loan and Trust Co, v. Ross, Q. R. 12 K. B. 226.

Action on—Price of goods—Exorbitancy —Defence.] — To an action founded on a promissory note the defendant cannot set up a defence going behind the instrument itself; he cannot plead that it was given in payment of goods sold at an exorbitant price. Renaud v. Bongie, Q. R. 16 S. C. 405.

Action on — Purchase of shares — Want of consideration — Inference from facts—Onus,]—Planitiffs brought action to recover $1.380, being the amount of a demand note given by defendant in connection with 10 shares of stock in plaintiff's bank, said to have been allotted to him. The defendant pleaded want of consideration, claiming that no shares were ever allotted to him:—Held, that the evidence shewed that the stock for which the note was given never was and never could have been delivered to defendant, therefore, there was a total failure of consideration for the note. Action dismissed with costs. Judament of Marce, J., at trial and of Divisional Court (1909), 13 O. W. R. 506, set aside. Screerigin Bank v. McInture (1909), 14 O. W. R. 1204, 1 O. W. N. 254.

Action on—Biay—Bringing in endorser en garantic.]—A party becoming holder of note after maturity, is subject to all equities between original parties to note, and defendant sued as maker of note, may, by dilatory exception, have delay to call in warranty the endorser as his garant, to take up his fait efcause. Levinoff v. Richard (1906), 8 Que. P. R. 72.

Action on—Stay—Bringing in prior endorser en garantie.]—The endorser of promissory noise may stay action of holder by dilatory exception in order to bring in in warranty a prior endorser of note. Leclaire v. Auerbach (1906), S Que, P. R. 66.

Agreement not to negotiate-Notice. Murray v. Wurtele, 1 O. W. R. 298, 353.

Agreement to release endorser.] — Plaintiffs sold a wagon to H., for which they took notes endorsed by defendant, and defendant agreed with plaintiffs to deliver up to them the wagon in question, together with another wagon which H, had purchased from plaintiffs and not paid for, both being in his possession, upon being released from liability upon his endorsements. Plaintiffs assented to this, and left the wagons temporarily in defendant's possition. Meld, that the change of defendant's position with respect to the wagons was good consideration for plaintiffs agreement to release him, and that whether defendant's agreement was of any benefit to plaintiffs or not was immaterial. Mengher and Laurence, JJ., dissented. De Wolf v. Richards (1908), 43 N. S. R. 34.

Alteration-Erasure of word "renewal" - Material alteration - "Approval" Holder in due course-" Tenor "-Altera -Alteration not apparent.]—By the proviso to s, 145 of the Bills of Exchange Act, R. S. C. 1906, c. 119, "where a bill has been materially altered, but the alteration is not apparent, and the bill is in the hands of a holder in due course, such holder may avail himself of the bill, as if it had not been altered, and may enforce payment according to its ori-ginal tenor." The defendant gave N, a promissory note intended as a renewal of and to retire a former note for the same amount which N, had discounted at a bank. When the defendant made the note, the word " renewal" was, at his instance, written near the lower left-hand corner. N. erased the word "renewal," the erasure not being apparent without the use of a magnifying glass, and discounted the note with the plaintiffs without taking up the original note which the defendant had to pay. In an ac-tion on the renewal note :--Held, that the alteration not being apparent, and the plaintiffs having taken a note complete and regular on its face in good faith and for value without actual notice, they were "holders in due course" and entitled to recover the amount according to the original tenor, the word "renewal" not forming part of the contract to pay.—Per Falconbridge, C.J.:— The erasure, although not that of a word forming part of the contract, was material. Maxon v, Irvein, 10 O. W. R. 537, 15 O. L, R. 81.

Alteration in date.]—An alteration in the date of a promissory note by the payee, after signature, without the assent of the maker, does not avoid the instrument if it be made for the purpose of correcting a mistake and making the note as it was intended by all parties to be. McLaren v. Miller, 20 Occ. N. 302.

Alteration - Joint and several liability -Principal and surety-Judgment.]-The insertion by the holder of a promissory note signed by several persons, some of whom are sureties for the others, of the words " jointly and severally," before the words " promise to pay," is a material alteration which avoids the note, and the subsequent cancellation of the words by the holder does not do away with the effect of the alteration, even though the makers of the note do not know of the alteration until after the cancellation. A promissory note given to the holder after the alteration and cancellation, in renewal of the original promissory note and in ignorance thereof, cannot be enforced, there being no consideration to support it. Accepting in renewal of a promissory note some of the makers of which are, to the knowledge of the holder, sureties of a promissory note not signed by one surrely, discharges the cosurrelies. A judgment recovered against debtors in their firm name for the amount of the debt is not a bar to the recovery of judgment against them individually upon a promissory note given by them as collateral security for the same debt. Banque Provinciale v. Arnoldi, 21 Occ. N, 582, 2 O. L. R. 624.

Alteration — Material alteration—Asquiescence—Reneval.] — The joint maker of a promissory note is considered to acquiesce, within the meaning of 53 V, c, 33, s. 63, in a material alteration which has been made therein, when, knowing of the alteration, he promises to pay the amount of the note and renews such promise in consideration of an extension of time, Hebert v, Le Banque Nationale, Q, R. 16 K, R. 191.

Colls beral security—Bank—Discharge —Evidence—Commercial matter—Oral textimony—Uppropriation of payments — Endarged note—Onerous debt.]— Promissory note signed in favour of bank as collateral security for payment of cheque accepted by bank is subject to ordinary rules relating to security, and will be held to be paid and discharged by reinbursement to bank of amount of cheque.—The circumstances with regard to signing of note and the subsequent reinbursement being commercial matters, oral evidence thereof is admissible.—The endorsement of note by third persons makes it a "mere onerous" debt of maker, within meaning of Art, 1161, C. C. Accordingly, holder must appropriate to this note, in preference to others signed by maker alone, moneys which he receives for the account of maker. Bangue d'Hochelaga v, Macduff (1906), Q. R. 14 K. R. 300.

Collateral security - Pledge - Subsequent debt - Tacking.] - The plaintif received from the defendants a promissory note at four months, dated the 21st January, 1895, for $450, as collateral security for an advance of $250 to one of the defendants, M. The plaintiff also received from the defendant M. two notes for $125 each, both dated 24th January, 1895, one at three and the other at four months, to cover the $250 advance. On the Sth February, 1895, the plaintiff received from M. another note for $150 at four months, for a new advance. The note at three months became due on the 27th April. 1895, and one of the defendants paid $2 account and gave a renewal note for $100 at four months:-Held, that the sum of $100. represented by the renewal note, only became due after the note for $150, and that the plaintiff was entitled, under the circumstances stated, to the benefit of the second para-graph of Art. 1975, C. C., which says that "if another debt be contracted after the pledging of the thing and become due before that for which the pledge was given, the creditor is not obliged to restore the thing until both debts are paid." Company—Powers of—Indorser.] — The indorser of promissory notes signed by an incorporated company, who allege that the amount has been paid to the indorser and bring him in en garantie in an action upon such notes, cannot plead that the company was not authorized to sign such notes. Ball v. Atlantic and Lake Superior Rw. Co., 3 Que. P. R. 315.

Conditional Endorsement — Principal and agent-Knowledge of agent-Constructive notice—Deccit.] — A promissory note endorsed on the express understanding that it should only be available upon the happening of a certain condition is not binding upon the endorser where the condition has not been fulfilled. Pym v. Campbell, 6 E. & B. 370, followed. The principal is affected by notice to the agent, unless it appears that the agent was actually implicated in a fraud upon the principal, and it is not sufficient for the principal to shew that the agent had an interind deceiving his principal. Kettlewell v. Watson, 21 Ch. D. (855, and Richards v. Watson, 21 Ch. D., (855, not Richards v. Morrison, 22 Occ. N. 1966, 32 S. C. R. 98.

International Harreater Co. of America v. Grant, 4 E. L, R. I.

Consideration — Advances by father to son — Gifth—Expectation of death.] — A promissory note, freely signed by a son, who has had advances from his father, by which he engages, at the request of his father, who was on his death bed and in poor circumstances, and wished to provide for his daughter's future, to pay her (his sister) a sum of money or annuity for a certain number of years, is founded on valuable consideration and ought not to be regarded as a gift made by the father to the daughter during a supposed mortal illness, and, therefore, void as yielded to in consequence of the expected death of the father. Brulé v. Brulé, Q, R. 20 S, C. 77.

Consideration — Alteration.] — The maker of a promissory note who leaves the name of the payee in blank, is presumed to have given the bearer a mandate to insert the name of the person to whom the note is to be paid, and such an addition cannot be considered an alteration to or a change in an important part of the note. The maker of a promissory note is presumed in law to have signed it for value received; and if he alleges, with an affidavit, want of considered such abude the burden of proof is upon him.— Bills of Exchange Act, ss. 20, 63. Gardner Y. Lecker, 16 R. L., n. s., 14.

Consideration—Balance due on judgment —Forbearance—Collection Act — Duress— Dominion civil screant—Solary.]—The plaintiffs recovered judgment against the defendant and obtained an order from a Commissioner of the Court under the Collection Act, after examination, for payment of the debt by instalments. The defendant paid the instalments for a time, as required by the order, and then failing to pay, an order was obtained under the Act for an execution to take the body. The defendant, having been arrested, applied to a Judge of the Court under the Judgment Debtors' Act for his discharge. On the recommendation of the Judge in favour of a settlement the defendant gave the note such on -Held, that the forbear-ance by the plaintiffs in respect to their judgment, and in respect to asking for a remand, constituted good consideration for the making of the note.---At the time of the making of the Commissioner's order the defendant was in the employ of the Dominion Government as inspector of weights and measures, and it was contended that the order was illegal, and that the arrest was invalid and constituted duress, and that the giving of the note under the circumstances was illegal:—Held, that, in the absence of statutory provisions in the province expressly statutory provisions in the province expressivy protecting the salaries of Government officials, it was a question of fact with the Commis-sioner whether or not the making of the order requiring payment by instalments would impair the usefulness to the Crown of the official, and that, as his order, made under the circumstances, was not a nullity, the note was not illegal for duress or other cause. Smith v. Frame, 2 E. L. R. 63, 203, 41 N. S. R. 20.

Consideration—Compromise of claim.]— A promissory note given to plaintiff in connection with a settlement of family differences was held to be given for good consideration. Power, 6, E. L. R. 408.

Consideration-Condition - Finding of trial Judge-Review by Appellate Court.]-Defendant gave promissory note to plaintiff for $100, in part payment of a larger sum which he agreed to pay for transfer of the interest of F. in Bedford Electric Co., upon which plaintiff held an option. At time note was given plaintiff signed agreement in which he undertook to transfer the interest bargained for to defendant upon payment of balance of purchase-money as agreed .-- An action on note was defended, on the ground that it was made subject to condition, alleged to be contained in agreement signed by plaintiff, which had not been fulfilled.—The trial Judge having found as a fact that the condition relied upon was not contained in the agreement when it was signed by plainthe agreement when it was signed by plant tiff, the Court refused to disturb his find-ing:— Held, that, as paintiff at time he agreed to transfer his interest to F., was entitled to receive a portion of the consideration in cash, and, instead, gave defendant time for payment, taking his note for the amount, this constituted good consideration for the note. N. S. R. 525. Soulis v. McNeil (1906), 37

Consideration—Failure of.]—The plaintiff and defendant were joint makers of a note for the defendant's accommodation. The defendant gave the plaintiff the note sued on in consideration of the plaintiff undertaking to pay the joint note. When this action was brought the plaintiff and not been called on to pay nor had he paid the joint note, but after he brought this action and before the trial he had paid it:—Held, that the plaintiff could recover. Raffee v. Shave, 21 Occ. BILLS OF EXCHANGE AND PROMISSORY NOTES.

Consideration - Family arrangement. Defendant secured a deed of a piece of land from his father in consideration of an agreement on his part to provide for the support of his father during the remainder of his life. Defendant failed to carry out his agreement, and plaintiff with other members of the family in the lifetime of the father were about to take proceedings with a view to setting the deed aside, when defendant, in consideration of the proposed proceedings being abandoned, agreed to give plaintiff and other members of the family. each, his promissory note for the sum of $300:-Held, that the claim made by plaintiff being a serious one, there was good consideration to support an action on the note. irrespective of whether plaintiff could have succeeded in the proposed proceedings or not.-Semble, that consideration for the note was afforded by the fact that it was given as part of a family settlement or arrangement. Power v. Power, 412.

Consideration—Fraudulent representations—Transfer of n.teas—Defective title — Notice or knowledge of transferee—Evidence —Notes of similar character taken by defendant—Admissibility — Jury — Misdirection—Intent—Holder in due course—Bills of Exchange Act—Onus — Credibility of witnesses. Olstadt v. Lineham (Alta), 8 W. L. R. 152.

Consideration — Illegality—Bankruptcy —Composition — Holder for value without notice.]—A promissory note exacted by a creditor as a condition of consent to sign a deed of composition between the debtor and his creditors, the note representing the difference between this creditor's claim and the amount of the composition upon it, is void between the parties.—But this validity is only relative, and cannot be set up against one who derives his tile to the note from a holder in due course who is ignorant of the fraud committed, even when the holder of the note has not himself given value and is only a prétenom for the regular holder. Bellemare v. Gray, Q. R. 16 S. C. 531.

Consideration—Illegality—Buying shares on margin—Knowledge of illegality by payee —Compromise and forbacarance to sue—Criminal Code, s. 231.]—Action on a promissory note, a renewal of a former one which had been given as the result of the compromise of a claim. The money was originally lent to buy shares on margin. Action dismissed as plaintiff knew of application of money for an illegal purpose under the above section when he made the loans. The compromise and taking renewal note will not help him. Dean v. McLean, 7 E. L. R. 232.

Consideration — Megality — Gambling transaction—Criminal Code, s. 231.]—Action to recover amount of a promissory note given by defendant to plaintiff for money alleged to have been loaned defendant to pay margins on stock transactions:—Held, that there was no evidence that plaintiff knew the money was for illegal purposes. Judgment for plaintiff on appeal. Dean v. McLean, 7 E, L. R. 557.

Consideration — Illegality — Loan for gambling transactions. Allan v. Robert, 2 E. L. R. 556. Consideration — Inadequacy of —Fraud —Pleading.]—To an action brought to recover the amounts due on three several promissory notes, the defendants pleaded an equitable plea. The Court, being of the oplinion that the facts set up thereby disclosed such an inadequacy of consideration, accompanied by other circumstances, as would justify a jury in finding that there was fraud in the transaction, and that it was unconscionable, gave judgment for the defendants on demurrer. Macpherson v. MeLean, 34 N. B. Reps, 361.

Consideration-Note given for balance of previous judgment-Duress-Note given to avoid imprisonment as judgment debtor-Collection Act-Order for payment against Dominion civil servant. Smith v. Frame (1966), 2 E. I. R. C. 3, 203.

Consideration — Purchase of seed grain —Warranty, implied or express—Breach— Findings of trial Judge, Lawton v. Reid (N. W.T.), 2 W. L. R. 240.

Consideration—Release of claim afterwards found to be of no value, Naugle v. Hirtle (1906), 2 E. L. R. 51.

Consideration—Sole of animals—Defective tille—Affrmance after discovery of defect.)—The defendant bought cattle from the plaintiff, gave her the promissory note sued on for the price, and took and kept the cattle, all parties believing that the plaintiff had an absolute title to them. It was subsequently ascertained that the plaintiff had only a life interest in the cattle. After learning this fact, the defendants paid a year's interest on the notes, and neither returned nor offered to return the cattle :— Held, that the defendants were liable on the notes, as there was no fraud and no total failure of consideration. They were bound to repudiate the transaction at once on learning of the defect in the plaintiff's title, if they wished to object, and must by their conduct be held to have elected, with knowledge of the facts, to affirm their purchases. Primeau v. Mouchelin, Primeau v. Pauld, 15 Man. L. R. 300, 1 W. L. R. 434.

Consideration—Sale of improvements on land and interest in business—Contract— Construction—Homestender's interest.—Fraud and misrepresentation. Ward v. Logan, Logan v. Ward (Alta.), 7 W. L. R. 198.

Consideration — Settlement of Disputed account — Subsequently discovered error in account.] — The defendant was agent of the plaintiff to collect rents and profits of a wharf property. On the termination of the defendant's agency, the plaintiff brought an action for an accounting, which was settled by the defendant agreeing to pay the plaintiff the sum of $376, by paying $125 in cash and giving his note for the balance, and by the plaintiff agreeing to assign to the defendant all debis due in respect to the property during the period covered by the agency. The defendant refused payment of the note given by him on the ground that, before it became due, it was discovered that $100 had been paid the plaintiff on account of one of the .

debts assigned to the defendant, and that the defendant was entitled to credit for this amount on the note:--Held, Graham, E.J., dissenting, that, as the defendant's attorney had knowledge of the error, before the compromise which resulted in the giving of the note was effected, and as by the compromise the plaintiff was prevented from going fully into the accounts, and perhaps establishing a greater liability on the defendant's part, she was entitled to recover the full amount of the note. Consideration — Stock dealings — No actual transactions — Knowledge—Acquiescence—Request to pay. Carpenter v. Pearson, 2 O. W. R. 526, 3 O. W. R. 483.

Contract-Misrepresentations - Use of trade name-Findings of fact.]-To an ac-tion upon a promissory note the substantial defence was misrepresentations by the plaintiff, inducing the contract in respect of which the note was given, as to the use of a trade name :- Held, upon the evidence, that the defendants entered into the nego tiations leading up to the contract with their eyes open, and as to the use of the name took chances and proceeded at their peril. and had got or could get under the contract substantially what they bargained for ; and, having regard to the dealings between the parties as to the note, before and after maturity, the defendants were precluded from disputing payment. The use of the name was not mentioned in the written contract, and the defendants were not induced to enter into the contract by any misrepresen-tation of the plaintiff. Le Page v. Le Page Liquid Fish Clue Oil and Fertilizer Co. (1910), 13 W. L. R. 640.

Default in payment at 3 o'clock on last day of grace-Science under chatted mortgage later on same day-Premature scieure-Measure of damages.]--Held, following Kennedy v. Thomas, [1894] 2 Q. B. 759, 63 L. J. Q. B. 761, that a promissory note does not become due when it is presented for payment and dishonoured on the last day of grace, and the holder thereof cannot take action for the recovery of the amount of such note until the expiration of such day of grace; and a seizure under a chattel mortsame given as collateral security to a promissory note effected after dishonour of the note, but before the complete expiration of the last day of grace, is premature and unlawfuk. -- Held, also, that the measure of damages in an action for unlawful seizure is the value of the goods seized less the amount due to the party making the seizure by virtue of the security under which the seizure was made. Westaway v. Stewart, 8 W. L. R. 907, 1 Sask. L. R. 200.

Default of payment on last day of grace — Scizure under collateral chattel mortgage later on same day — Premature scizure — Eviction — Saskatchevan Rule 233.] — Phintiff having purchased a stock of goods from defendant, gave notes in payment, secured by a chattel mortgage. The notes were indorsed to a bank, the chattel mortgage being left as security. A note matured on the 21st August. The mortgage scized that day, which was the last day of grace — Held, that the seizure was premature, on could it be upheld under the "deen himself safe" clause in the mortgage, as the seizure had not been made on that ground. Judgment for plaintiff. Westaway v, Stewart, 10 W. L. R. 623, 2 Sask, L. R. 178.

Delivery—Consideration—Onus.] — Motion by the plaintiffs for summary judgment under Rule 616 in an action upon a promissoty note. The defendant in his examination for discovery admitted the making of the note, and said that he left it with the officers of the Consolidated Pulp and Paper Company, to be used by them in procuring an advance from the plaintiffs, the payees of the note, for the purposes of the company, and that the note was, instead, deposited with the plaintiffs by the officers of the company as security for past advances. Frand was not alleged.—Notice to the plaintiffs of the terms on which the note was given was not alleged, and the only defence was want of consideration:—Held, that the onus of the defence lay on the defendant, and he had failed to sustain it: Watson v. Russell, 3 B, & S, 34; Bills of Exchange Act. s. 21, s.s. 3. Ontario Bank v. Young, 21 Occ. N. 505, 2 O. L. R. 761.

Demand note—Notice of dishonour.] — It is necessary before action to give notice of dishonour to an indurser of a promissory note payable on demand. Royal Bank of Canada v, Kirk and Rumball, 5 W, L. R. 432, 13 B. C. R. 4.

Demand — Prescription — Payments— Parol evidence—Endorsements on note.]—A promissory note in these terms, "12 janvier, 1806. A demande je promets de payer à..., la somme de ..., d'iei an 15 février sans intérêt, et après le 15 avec intérêt à 6 par cent," is payable on demand from the day of its date. 2. Where a promissory note is payable on demand, prescription runs from the date of the note, and not from the date of demand of payments alleged to have been made by the maker on account of the note, for the purpose of establishing interruption of prescription. 4. Endorsements on a note of payments on account have no effect accinst the maker as recards proof of interruption of prescription. Bachand v. Lalumière, Q. R. 21 S. C. 449.

Deposit receipt—Action on as note — Payable after notice—Demand for immediate payment.)—A writing, signed by defendant, admitting receipt of money, and agreeing to be responsible for same with interest at 7% per annum, upon production of receipt and after 3 months' notice, may be recovered upon a promissory note.—A demand for immediate payment made more than three months before the commencement of the action is sufficient proof of the notice called for by the receipt. Babineau v. LaForest, 37 N. B. R. 156, 37 S. C. R. 521.

Directors of company—Personal liability—Deckeriptice signature.]— A promissory note signed with the name of an incorporated company, followed by the signature of the various persons, with the description "Dir.," or "Mgr.," is the promissory note of the company, and not of the person so signing. Liadaws v. Melrose, 27 L. J. Ex. 326, referred to in Fairchild v., Feryuson, 21 S. C. R. 497, followed. Union Bank v. Cross (1909), 2 Alta, L. R. 3.

Discount by bank - Holder in due course-Fraud or illegality - Evidence -Company-Power to borrow-Endorsement of note to bank-Bills of Exchange Act, ss. 48, 58-Interest post diem.]-In an action upon a promissory note made by the defendants :---Held, upon the evidence, that the plaintiffs were holders in due course, and entitled to recover, the defendants not having shewn, under s. 58 of the Bills of Exchange Act, such evidence of fraud or illegality in connection with the issue or negotiation of the note as to deprive the plaintiffs, who discounted the notes, of their prima facie status as such holders.-The note was en-dorsed to the plaintiffs by an incorporated insurance company, who had no power by their Act of incorporation to borrow :-Held, that they could, nevertheless, by virtue of s. 48 of the Bills of Exchange Act, en dorse over to the plaintiffs any note or bill which might be drawn payable to them, and thereby enable the plaintiffs to enforce payment against the maker or acceptor ; and that, if the company issued shares, whether for cash or on notes, they would be estopped from denying that the shares were legally issued -Per Irving, J.A., that, as the promissory note provided for payment of interest at 7 per cent., the plaintiffs were entitled to interest at that rate after as well as before Merchants Bank v. McLeod maturity, Merchants B (1910), 14 W. L. R. 461.

Discount by payees with bank—Action brought by payees while bank still holders of note--Note taken up by payees pending action—Failure of action—New ground of relief urged in Court of Appenl--Right of payees to compel maker to indemnify them against note--Leave to amend refused. Pure Colour Co. V. O'Sullivan, 10 O. W. R. 313.

Decument in form of note, with memorandum—Given for goods to remain property of payce — Non-negatiable instrument—Assignment by indorsement.]—In an action by an indorse of a document in the form of an ordinary promissory note, but maying on the face of it a memorandum "Given for Suffolk stallion (His Grace). Same to remain the property of J. H. Truman until this note is paid."—Held, that the document was not a promissory note, and that the rights of the parties under it could consequently not be assigned by simple indorsement. Bank of Hamilton v. Gillies, 12 Man, L. R. 4955, and Kirksood v. Smith. [1806] 1 Q. B. 582, applied. Frank v. Gazelle Live Stock Association, 5 W. L. R. 573, 6 Terr. L, R. 392, Document purporting to be note, but with addition of memorandum — Property in goods for which note given not to pass until note paid—Non-negotiable instrument—Indorsement — Invalidity as assignment of agreement—Action by indorsee—Diemissal—Costs. Frank v. Gazelle Live Stock Co. (N. W. P.), 5 W. L. R. 573.

Duress-Verdict of jury.]-In an action against the maker of a promissory note, the local manager of the plaintiff bank, the defence was that he had been coerced by the head manager, under threats of dismissal and criminal prosecution, into signing the note to cover up deficits in customers' accounts in which he had no personal interest. His evidence at the trial to the same effect was denied by the head manager :- Held, that the jury having believed the defendant's ac count and given him a verdict, which the evi dence justified, such verdict ought to stand Judgment of Court of Appeal (16th Octo-ber, 1901, unreported) affirmed. Western Bank v. McGill, 23 Occ. N. 36, 32 S. C. R. 581.

Effect of endorsement-Maker-Proof of signature-Presentment - Notice of dis-honour.]-An endorsement of a negotiated promissory note, even though the endorser really be a surety, admits, prima facie at all events, the ability and signature of all prior parties. In an action by the holder of a promissory note and chattel mortgage against the makers of the mortgage and mak ers and endorser of the note, the plaintiff failed to prove the signature of one of the makers of the note, and the action, as far as the note was concerned, was dismissed as to that maker, although a judgment was recovered on the chattel mortgage. At the trial a defendant, an endorser of the note. although represented by counsel, gave no evidence, and judgment was given against her. She appealed to a Divisional Court, and her appeal was dismissed. She now applied for leave to appeal to the Court of Appeal. The plaintiff gave evidence at the trial that, in payment for "the property" sold, he received a mortgage and the note in question and cash for the balance; that the note was not paid at maturity and was protested after presentment and notice sent. It was con-tended that no one could tell what notice was sent or to whom :--Held, that it should be inferred from the evidence, in the absence of any weakening of it by cross-examination that that presentment was made on the day the note became due, that payment was refused, and that due notice of dishonour was given; and leave to appeal was refused. Wiedeman v. Guittard, 22 Occ. N. 129.

otes.] — C. 1906. ttory conany way ding upon for payg of some -Sometime Commons was held in county of L., defendant, a nephew of one of the candidates, was principally concerned in raising a fund on behalf of his uncle for expenditure in connection with the election. It appears that defendant deemed it prudent to borrow money for such fund. possibly so that if any of it went into illegal channels, there would be no prior connection with, or intent, on the part of the candidate. Defendant instructed a solicitor to apply to plaintiff, who was living in an-other town in the constituency, for a loan of $1,800, offering his promissory note, with name of a third party as endorser, as secur-ity for repayment of loan. Plaintiff advanced the money to defendant's solicitor, receiving the promissory note of defendant. endorsed, as security. Plaintiff knew that the election was to take place within three weeks from the date of the loan, and that defendant was a nephew of one of the candidates; but plaintiff was not an active politician, and denied any knowledge of the purpose for which the loan was to be used at time it was made. He swore that the only atiention he paid to the matter was as to sufficiency of security he was getting for money advanced. When action was brought for non-payment of note, defendant pleaded that the money was advanced by plaintiff to be used illegally in the election :--Held, that as there was no proof that plaintiff at time of loan knew that the money was to be used in connection with the election, nor any evidence from which the Court could infer that plaintiff knew that the borrower in-tended to use it in bribery or corrupt pur-poses, the provisions of R. S. C. 1906, c. 6, s. 270, did not apply to the transaction, the vote was valid and the defendant liable thereon. (Guerin v. Taylor, Q. R. 3 Q. B. 86, and Dean v. McLean, 7 E. L. R. 557, referred to). Endorsement by directors of company before delivery to or endorsement by page -Arad-Liability of directors-Bills of Exchange Act, sees. 2 (g), 56, 131—Holder in due course-Consideration—Powers of company—Estoppel.1—A promissory note was made by the defendant company and endorsed by some of the directors of that comany in their own names, although the note was payable to the plaintiffs, before delivery to or endorsement by them :-Held, that the directors so endorsing were liable to the plaintiffs, under see. 131 of the Bills of Exchange Act.-Robinson v. Mam, 31 S. C. R. 454, and McDonough v. Cook, 19 O. L. R. 257, followed.-Jenkins v. Coomber, 118081 2 Q. B. 108, not followed.- There was puble to address, and the evidence shewed hat the plaintiffs took it in good faith and pursuant to a clear and well understood arthous the defendants, including these endorsers:-Held, that, by the effect of sees. 2 (8) and 50 of the Bills of Exucation and the source of the bills of the succement with the defendants, including these endorsers (1990) and 1900 and 1900 and 1900 and 1900 and succement with the defendants, including these endorsers (1900) and 50 of the Bills of Exconservents (1900) and 50

Endorsement — Forgery—Notice of dishonour—Laches of endorser alleging forgery —Estoppel.]— Notice of dishonour of the note sued on was given on 15th July. Summons issued on 7th October. On 26th November, defendant G. repudinted his signature. The maker of the note, who is said to have forged G.'s signature, was ill on the latter date, and died on 12th December. As plaintiffs have not been prejudiced by G.'s silence even if G. should have informed plaintiffs concer of the forcery, appeal allowed and action dismissed. Shave v. McConnell, 7 E. L., R. 165.

Endorser adding his signature as maker—Immaterial alterations—Implied assent of original maker.]—Defendant F, gave an accommodation note to defendant S, the latter during its currency transferring it to plaintiff. S., at plaintiff's request, instead of endorsing it, placed his name underneath F's, F, saw this signature and made no objection—Heid, that there was no agreement to give time to S, and that the alteration is not such a material one as will release F. Judgment for plaintiff as claimed. Lytell v. Foell, 13 O. W. R. 738.

Endorser-Note payable to another-Absence of endorsement by payee-Liability-Notice of dishonour-Presentment-Waiver - Endorser becoming administrator maker.]--'The defendant A. M. put his name on the back of a promissory note made by M. M. to the order of the plaintiff, which was then delivered to the plaintiff :--Held. that the defendant A. M. was an endorser of the note, liable as such to the payee and entitled to notice of disbonour. M M. died before maturity of the note, and the defendants A. M. and H. were appointed two of his administrators; after their appointment and before maturity, they had a conversation with the plaintiff in respect of the note, and the plaintiff swore that he told them when it would be due, and one of them asked for an extension of time, which was granted. The defendant A. M. swore that the plaintiff told him not to worry, that he would not look to him for payment, but take what-ever the estate was able to pay, and he did not ask for an extension, nor did he hear the defendant H. ask for any. The defendant H, could not remember what took place : -Held, insufficient to prove that the defendant A. M. waived presentment or notice of dishonour. The plaintiff also, before maturity, pursuant to administrators' advertisement for creditors, filed with their solicitor a copy of the note and a statutory declaration that it was unpaid:--Hold, that this is not such a presentment as is required by s. 45 of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1880:--Held, also, that, notwithstanding that the endorser became one of the deceased maker's administrators before maturity of the note, presentment and notice of dishonour were nevertheless necessary. Fraser v. McLood. 2 Terr. L. R. 154.

Endorser — False signature of maker — Holder in due course.]— The endorser for accommodation or for value of a bill or noic cannot set up against the holder in due course that the signature of the maker is false. Choquette v. Leclaire, Q. R. 19 S. C. 521.

Endorser — Recourse.]— Every party to a bill or note has his recourse against every antecedent party. Successive endorsers are liable to each other in the order of the endorsements. The obligation as hetween the parties is several and successive and not joint, whether the endorsements be made for accommodation or for value received, unless there be an agreement aliande different trom that evidenced by the endorsements, McRae v. Lionais, Q. R. 16 S. C. 202.

Endorser—Recourse.]—The first endorser has no recourse against the subsequent endorsers, even when they have endorsed for accommodation, unless it appears by leaf evidence that the last endorsers have assumed a different liability from that which arises according to the ordinary course of law. Falure of consideration—Transferce of note—Holder in due course—Fraud—Interest overdue at time of transfer—Notice of defects in transferor's litle—Bona fides— Stupicious circumstances—Inquiry, I__Where it is admitted or shewn that the maker of a promissory note has been induced to sign it by fraud, the effect of s, 58 of the Bills of Exchange Act is to throw upon an endorsee for value from the payce the burden of proving affirmatively his honesty and good faith in becoming the holder of the note .- It is not sufficient for such a holder to give evidence that he had no knowledge or informa-tion of the fraud, if there is evidence of suspicious circumstances which tend to the belief that he suspected something wrong, but refrained from inquiry, and which throws doubt upon the holder's honesty and good faith. The burden is on the holder to re-move such doubt, and to prove that he had no such supjeion. The more fact that interest is overdue and unpaid on a promissory note is not of itself sufficient to give to the note the character of an overdue note, so long as the principal has not yet matured, but, nevertheless, this fact should put a party negotiating for such note upon inquiry.-Union Investment Co. v. Wells, 39 S. C. R. 625, followed,— Carelessness, negligence, or foolishness in not suspecting something wrong with a bill of exchange or promissory note, and consequent absence of inquiry, are not necessarily inconsistent with good faith, but they do constitute some evidence of bad faith, Nature of circumstances apparent on the face of the note, and from the relations between the parties, which were deemed sus-picious circumstances in this case, discussed, —Jones V. Gordon, 2 App. Cas. 616, com-mented on and followed.—Judgment of Scott, J., 7 W. L. R. 193, 1 Alta. L. R. 1, affirmed, Peters v. Perras, 8 W. L. R. 162, 1 Alta. L. R. 201.

McKinnon, L. R. 4 C. P. 704, and Lewis v. Clay, 77 L. 7, 653, that, not-withstanding the language of ss. 29 and 38 (b) of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1890, the defendants were not liable to the plaintiffs although they were holders in good faith, for value and without notice of any defect or fraud, and had acquired the notes during their currency. Fraud in procuring-Discount -Good faith-Evidence.]-L. and others signed pro-missory notes each for the amount of 10 shares in a company formed to manufacture rotary engines, under an invention of the payee, who fraudulently misrepresented to them the prospects and intentions of such company. At the same time each maker signed an application for 10 shares. The payee and T., the assignce of his patent of invention, induced W, to discount these notes, and received a portion of the proceeds, part being retained by W. in payment of debts due him from these two persons. On the due him from these two persons. On the trial of actions by W. on the notes the evi-dence of T., who had absconded, was taken under commission, and he swore that the form of application signed by the respective defendants had been shewn to W. before the notes were discounted. W. denied this and swore that he had been told that the notes were given in payment of stock held by the payee :--Held, that the evidence of W whom the onus of proof rested, could not be accepted; that the whole testimony and attendant circumstances shewed that W. suspected that the proceeds of the notes helonged to the company; and, having discounted them without enquiry as to the right of the payee and T. to receive these pro-ceeds, he was not in good faith and could ceeds, he was not in good thin and the peal not recover. In payment he made promissory notes payable to the company, and the notes were endorsed to a bank as collateral security for advances made by the bank to the company not yet due or matured. After such endorsement, but prior to the maturity of the indebtedness of the company to the bank, A. notified the bank of the fraud .- Held, that under these facts as stated the bank gave no consideration, was not a holder in due course. and that the maker could successfully plead fraud, as a defence in an action by the bank on the notes.—Currie v. Misa, L. Holder—Equitable sct-off against drawce _Preferential assignment—Pressure—R. O. 1883, c. 49.]—M, to secure a claim of $807 endorsed to the administrators of the estate of E. a promissory note made in M.'s favour by the defendant. At the same time it was arranged that the administrators should hold the balance of the proceeds in trust, first to pay certain other claims against M. and the residue to pay over to him. Subsequently, but before the note became due, M. executed an assignment to the plaintiff of all his interest in the moneys secured by the note, in trust to pay the claims pre-viously arranged for any certain additional claims, amounting to more than sufficient to exhaust the proceeds. The administrators before action endorsed the note to the plaintiff, taking from him an agreement to pro-tect their interest. The defendant claimed to be entitled to deduct from the amount payable by him certain indebtedness of M, to him incurred in some collateral transaction, and on the ground that the assignment was void under R. O. 1888, c. 49, or that it was no more than an assignment of a chose in action, and that the plaintiff took subject to the equilies between the maker and the payee :--Held, that the assignment, having been procured by pressure, was not void; that the administrators at all events were holders in due course, and the plaintiff could rest upon their title; and that there could, therefore, be no set-off against the plaintiff. O'Brien v. Johnston, 3 Terr. L. R. 50.

The vendor's agent afterwards induced the defendants to sign an agreement for the purchase, and promissory notes for the price, on the representation that he would get Lee to put his name also on the notes. The deto put his name also on the notes. fendants then took possession of the horse and used him for one season and part of another, when he died. Shortly after signing the notes, the defendants became aware that Lee had refused to sign the notes. They did not ask then for a return of the notes or do anything to indicate that they did not or do anything to indicate that they did not intend to be bound by them. On the con-trary, they acted from that time as though the syndicate was composed of themselves alone, ignored Lee in the matter, and collected and retained the earnings of the horse for themselves until he died. The vendor discounted the notes with the plaintiffs, who proved that they had no notice or knowledge of any fraud or irregularity in obtainledge of any train or irregularity in locality in the second sec misrepresentation in obtaining their signatures.—Per Dubue, C.J.:—The plaintiffs, be-ing holders for value, without notice of any fraud or irregularity, were entitled to recover against the defendants notwithstanding the Joint and several note—Release of comaker—Reservation of rights — Knowledge and consent — Subsequent deed — Ratification.]—One of the five makers of a joint and several promissory note was absolutely roleased by the holder, by an instrument under seal, from liability upon the note, and there was no reservation of rights against the other makers, but the holder sought to recover upon the construction of the release, and a subsequent instrument under seal, to which the maker who had been released was not a party, that the rights of the holder nau.st the defendant had been effectively preserved.

-Decision of a Divisional Court, 8 O. L. R. 261, 3 O. W. R. 758, reversed.—Per Moss, C.J.O.:—The whole arrangement of which the release formed part was come to and carried out with the knowledge and consent of the defendant, and that knowledge and consent were sufficient to prevent the release of his co-maker operating as a discharge of his liability .- Per Osler, J.A. :- Even if the release did in law operate from the moment of its execution as a discharge of the defendant, there was nothing to prevent the latter, after its execution, from acknowledging and ratifying, by a proper instrument, his continuing liability to pay, just as a surety may do who has been discharged by time given to his principal or by release of a co-surety. Co-contractors and co-debtors stand in these respects in same position as co-sureties. Release of one operates in general as a release of all, but the legal operation of such a release may be restrained by express terms of the instrument, or co-debtors may reaffirm and ratify their liability not-withstanding the release. Bogart v. Robertson (1906), 11 O. L. R. 295, 6 O. W. R. 206

Joint makers - Action against both -Judgment against one - Subsequent action against other - Former action-Amendment -Lapse of time.]-The defendants G. and No were sued jointly as makers of a promis-sory note for $25. The writ of summons, which was issued in January, 1885, was served on the defendant N., and the defendant G. accepted service, N. appeared and pleaded, but, by arrangement, nothing was done in ed, but, by arrangement, nothing was obten in relation to the claim against the defendant G. In November, 1885, N. withdrew his de-fence, and confessed the action, and final judgment was entered against him, on which some payments were made. In 1899 the plaintiff commenced proceedings against the defendant G., who, under an agreement reserving his rights, appeared and pleaded :--Held, that the judgment entered on confession against the defendant N, was an answer to the claim subsequently made against the defendant G. McLeod v. Power, [1898] 2 Ch. 295, followed :--Held, further, that the action having been brought against defendants as joint debtors only, the position of G. in the suit was not affected by the fact that the note in question was a joint and several one, and that the plaintiff, in another suit, might have some claim against G. alone. Per Town-shend, J.- The plaintiff could not succeed without an amendment, and no amendment should be permitted after the lapse of fifteen years. Per Meagher, J., dissenting :- As the reception of the note was not objected to on the trial, or the existence of the judgment against N urged as an answer, a stage had been reached when the form of action was not material : also, that, as either objection, if raised upon the trial, could have been cured by amendment, the fact should be looked at rather than the form, and the defendant G. should not be permitted to succeed on a mere technicality. McDonald v. Gillis, 33 N. S. Reps. 244.

Joint makers—Endorsement.] — When two persons sign a promissory note together, their obligation is joint, not joint and several. The bearer of a note which is indorsed cannot claim thereunder, Dagneau v. Decaire, 8 O. P. R. 141.

Joint makers - Liability. |- The joint Joint makers — Ladouty. — the joint makers of a promissory note drawn up in the form "I promise," etc., are jointly and severally bound under s. 84 of the Bills of Exchange Act. Seth David Congregations of Roumanian Jews v. Backman, Q. R. 31 S. C. 23.

Joint makers-Surety for debt - Collateral security.]-Defendant was the maker of a note, but claimed to be a joint surety for debt of another. The note had been re-newed several times, and the defendant had to pay it. Judgment for plaintiff. A further defence was that plaintiff had promoted an Act of the Legislature by which some collateral stock had become worthless Held, that plaintiff is not responsible for Acts of Parliament. Hobrecker v. Sanders, 6 E. L. R. 567.

Joint obligation - Statute of Limitations-Payments by one maker-Agency-Evidence of-Costs, Harris v. Greenwood, 4 O. W. R. 140, Joint or several liability.]- The obligation of the makers of a promissory note which is not expressed to be the several note of each, is joint only. Noble v. Forgrave, Q. R. 17 S. C. 234.

Judgment against one endorser -Insolvency of another endorser-Acceptance of part of claim and transfer of same-Release from transferce.]-A bank, by their prête-nom H., had recovered judgment against La, the first endorser, and A., the second endorser, of a promissory note. A. having failed, H, filed with the curator of A.'s estate a claim based on this judgment. Shortly afterwards the bank accepted a certain sum from A.'s daughter, by way of composition, and transferred their claim to her, retaining, however, possession of the note. Afterwards, by an agreement between them, she released L. from all claims which she might have against him by virtue of the transfer mentioned :---Held, that the transfer by the bank was of their entire claim under the judgment, that is, its right of recovery against all parties to the note, and not a release by the bank of their rights against the insolvent only; and that the discharge to L. was valid as against the bank and all claiming under them, Langlois v. Harel, Q. R. 13 K. B. 475.

Liability of endorser - Agreement to become liable - Absence of endorsement by payee-Action by payee-Authority of decided cases. Slater v. Laberee, 5 O. W. R. 420, 539, 6 O. W. R. 628, 10 O. L. R. 648.

Liability of endorser - Release of security-Discharge of endorser-Evidence.] -The defendant had endorsed a note made by A. and H. to E., who subsequently made an assignment to the plaintiff for the benefit of creditors. E. having a mortgage to secure past indebtedness of and future advances to A. and H., released this mortgage, which was really valueless, for some stock which turned out to be no good :--Held, that releasing the mortgage did not release defendleasing the mortgage and not release detend-ant. There had been no renewal of the note, nor any giving of time. Wade v. Livingstone, 13 O. W. R. 708.

Lien notes are not promissory notes. Imperial Bank v. Georges; Georges v. Kidd. 12 W. L. R. 398.

Lost note-Action on-Security.] - The payee of a lost promissory note cannot sue upon the note, simply offering to reimburse the maker if the note is found, but he must offer to give security that the maker shall not be troubled on account of the note .-- 2 This rule applies as well to the case of a nonnegotiable note which is probably destroyed. as to that of a negotiable note which is simply lost. Pillow and Hersey Co. v. L'Espérance. Q. R. 22 S. C. 213.

Lost note-Action on-Security-Plead. ing-Striking out-Costs.]-In an action on a promissory note alleged to have been destroyed by error, where the plaintiff declares that he has offered to the defendant and is still ready to give him security against any liability thereon, and the defendant, after denying all the allegations of the action, further pleads want of security, and sets up facts tending to establish that he is not liable, a motion to set aside such defence will be dismissed, but without costs. Rowan v. Ross. 3 Que, P. R. 391.

Lost note-Action on-Striking out plea of loss — Indemnity — Costs. Palmer v. Reilly, 2 E. L. R. 308.

Lost note - Division Court-Ascertainment of amount - Limitation of actions -Absence beyond seas-Interest.]-Action in a Division Court upon a promissory note made in 1882, to recover $167 and interest. The instrument was lost ; secondary evidence of its contents was received, and it was shewn that it had been signed by the defendant :-- Held, that the amount was ascertained by the signature of the defendant so as to give the Division Court jurisdiction up to $200 :- Held, also, that the Statute of Limitations was not a bar to recovery, the defendant shortly after the making of the note having removed to the United States, and having never returned; and the action lay. notwithstanding that he was still abroad :-Held, also, that the plaintiff was entitled to interest from the maturity of the note. Murphy v. Sweeney, 20 Occ. N. 338.

Material alterations - Forgery-Partnership — Mandate — Assent of parties — Liability of endorser — Bills of Exchange Act.]-R, induced H. to become a party to and endorser of a demand note for the pur-pose of raising funds, and agreed to give warehouse receipts as security to the bank on discounting the note. It was arranged that the goods covered by the warehouse receipts were to be held and sold on joint account, each sharing equally in the profits or losses on the transaction. Subsequently R. altered the note, without the knowledge or consent of H., by adding thereto the words " avec intérêt à sept par ceil, par an," and falsely represented to the bank that H held the warehouse receipts as collateral security for his endorsement. A couple of months later H., for the first time, became aware that the goods had never been pur-chased or placed in warehouse, that no warehouse receipt had been assigned to the bank: and did not, until some months later, know Merchants Bank v. Lucas, 18 S. C. R. 704, Cam. Cas. 275, and Brook v. Hook, L. R. 6 Ex. 89, followed. Per Idington, J., the circumstances of the case did not shew that there had of the case did not snew that there had been any assent to the alteration, within the meaning of s. 145 of the Bills of Ex-change Act. Per Maclennan, J., the assent required to bring an altered bill within the required to bring an alored out within the exception provided by 3, 145 of the Bills of Exchange Act, R. S. C. 1996, c. 119, must be given by the party sought to be bound at the time of or before the making of the alteration.—Held, also, Fitzpatrick, C.J.C., and Davies, J., contra, that, in the special circumstances of the case, there was no partnership relation between the parties to the note for the purpose of the transaction in question, and there could be no implied authorisation for the making be no improve automation for the maximum of the alteration in the note, Per Fitzpatrick, C.J.C., the transaction in question was a joint venture or particular partnership for the enterprise in contemplation of the parties, and, consequently, R. had a mandate to make whatever agreement was necessary with the bank to obtain the funds, and to provide for the payment of interest on the advances required to carry out the busi ness. Material alteration - Renewal-Conflict of evidence-Appeal.]-To an action on a promissory note the defendants pleaded that the note sued on was given in renewal of a prior note for a larger amount, and that the original note was rendered void by being materially altered by the addition thereto of a charge for interest, of which alteration the defendants had no knowledge at the time of making the renewal note. There was a con-flict of evidence as to the alteration referred to, but the plaintiff's version was supported by the appearance of the note itself, which appeared, on the face of it, to have been all written at the one time, with the one ink. and in the one handwriting, and bore no evidence of having been altered. The appearance of the note being consistent with the plaintiff's evidence, and hardly reconcilable with that of the defendants, and the trial Judge, after seeing and hearing the witnesses having accepted the plaintiff's version :---Held, that there was no reason for interfering with his decision. Brennan v. Sutherland, 37 N. S. Reps. 370.

Misrepresentation — Counterclaim for damages — Interest on note and counterclaim.]—A promissory note was given for stock. Defendant counterclaimed for damages for the amount he paid for the stock. The only question was as to interest:— Held, if plaintiff is allowed interest on the note, interest must also run on the counterclaim as on the claim. Counterclaim sustained. Gould v, Giller, 7 E. L. R. 11, Motion for judgment against indorser of two promisory notes.]--Held, that the defendant must be allowed to defend where he denied his signature to the larger note and where the smaller one had been made five years before, payable one year after date, as defendant might be able to set up a defence thereto, that time had been given to the maker of the smaller note. Imperial Bank v, Tuckett (1905), 6 O. W. R. 121, 161, followed. Educards v. Stone (1900), 14 O. W. R. 644.

Motion for summary judgment on-Detendant denied signature-Cliving time to maker-Correspondence.]---Motion for judgment on two promissory notes dismissed. As to one note defendant denied his signature, and as to the other he claimed to be an accommodation endorser, and possibly time was given the principal debtor. Even if defendant is disposing of his property that is no ground for giving judgment. Edwards v. Store, 14 O. W. R. 644.

Negotiable instruments — Additional memorandum — Sale of goods—Surplusage. Canadian Bank of Commerce v. Livingston (P. E. L.), 6 E. L. R. 459.

Non-payment at maturity—Endorser —Notice of dishonour—Waiver—Independent promise to pay.]—The defendant was sued as endorser of a promissory note. The offer by defendant to pay it by monthly instalments would amount to dispensation of proof of notice of dishonour, but not as to presentment. New trial ordered to enable plainiff to prove presentment. Murray v. Ayer, 6 E. L., R. 500.

Notice of dishonour-Imperial Bills of Rotice of diskonour-imperial bills of Exchange Act — Time — Mails — Surety — Endorser — Discharge — Compromise — Extending time for payment, — Under the Imperial Bills of Exchange Act, 1882, which provides (s. 49, s.s. 12), that "notice may be given as soon as the bill is dishonoured, be given as soon as the bill is dishonoured. and must be given within a reasonable time thereafter," and further provides that, " in the absence of special circumstances, notice is not deemed to have been given within a reasonable time, unless, where the person giving and the person to receive notice reside in different places, the notice is sent off the day after the dishonour of the bill, if there be a post at a convenient hour on that day: and, if there be no such post on that day then by the next post thereafter : " notice of dishonour of a note payable in London, England, by a person in this province sent the third day after protest, by the first Cana-dian mail from London, is not sufficient where there are mails leaving London for the United States between the date of protest and the leaving of the Canadian mail by which the notice would have sooner reached its destination. An agreement by the holder of past due promissory notes made with the maker, without the knowledge or consent of the endorser, to extend the time for payment to a fixed date, and accept in full satisfaction a compromise if paid at the date fixed, will discharge the endorser, although the compromise was not paid, and it was expressly agreed that in that event the holder's rights against all parties should be preserved. Fleming v. McLeod, 2 E. L. R. 180, 37 N. B. R. 630.

Notice of dishonour -- Presentment --Demand prior to action-Power of attorney. Patriache v. Krammerer, 1 O. W. R. 425.

Notice of dishonour-Sufficiency-Husband and wife-Agency.]-Notice is merely knowledge, and notice to an endorser, who is also agent for another endorser, at once becomes in law the knowledge of the principal, with all its consequences. In an action against husband and wife, endorsers on a promissory note given as one of a series of renewals during some years, under an agree-ment, of which the husband had knowledge, in which the notice of dishonour given was a letter in the words : "I beg to advise you that Mr. T. C. L.'s note for $3.500 in your favour, endorsed by yourself and wife, and held by our estate, was due yesterday. As I have not received renewal, will you kindly see that the same is forwarded with cheque for discount, as there is no surplus on hand:" addressed and sent to the husband only :--Held, on the evidence, that the husband was agent for the wife, and that such letter was a sufficient notice of dishonour to both the husband and wife. Paul v. Joel, 3 H. & N. 455. [61] Weid, J. Udgment of Falconbridge, C. J., 2
 O. L., R. 582, 21 Occ. N. 563, affirmed.

Notice of protest—Attack on—Inscription de faux.]—A notice of protest of a bill or note made by a notary can be attacked only by an inscription en faux. Choquette v. McDonald, Q. R. 19 S. C. 408.

Notice of specific purpose—Collateral security—Bank—Consideration — Holder in due course—"Negotiate," Ontario Bank v. Poole, 1 O. W. R. 20, 832.

Note wanting in material particu-lar.] — Plaintiff made application for a policy of life insurance and signed a bank note (partly filled in), on condition that nothing was to be done with it until plaintiff passed required medical examination, when if successful he would give cheque to take up note. The insurance agent fraudulently filled up note and disposed of it to United Empire Bank for value. United Empire Bank handed note to Dominion Bank for collection, and they presented it to Home Bank (where plaintiff had a deposit account), and Home Bank paid note and charged it against plaintiff's account :--Held, that a document in the form of a promissory note, but wanting in any material particular, is not "delivered in order that it may be converted Inversed in order tink it may be converted into "a note, and payment cannot be en-forced against maker, even by a holder in due course, under s. 32 of the Bills of Ex-change Act. Smith v. Prosser, [1907] 2 K. B. 735, followed. Hubbert v. Home Bank (1910), 15 O. W. R. 277, affirmed 15 O. W. R. 533, 20 O. L. R. 651, 1 O. W. N. 542.

Notes signed in blank—Payce—Party to whom negotiated—Holder in due course— Bills of Exchange Act.]—The payce of a promissory note made in the manner set forth in s. 31 of c. 119, R. S. C. 1906, may, in the same manner as an endorsee, be the party to whom it is negotiated, as well as issued, and a holder in due course, within the meaning of s. 32, and of s. 56. Lilly v. Farrar, Q. R. 17 K. B. 554.

Obtained by frand - Discounted with bank — Holder in due course within s. 56 Bills of Exchange Act — Criminal action against payee — Note taken over by third party—Right to stand in position of bank— Notice of fraud.] - One Fawcett through fraud induced defendants to sign a promissory note for $1,500. He immediately discounted same with Traders Bank. Next day some of the defendants learned of this and had Fawcett arrested on a charge of obtainhas have a reserve of a charge of obtain-lag the bank and take up the note and criminal proceedings were adjourned from time to time and finally dismissed. Fawcett paid the bank $799.25 and later induced plaintiffs to take up the note by paying the balance to the bank, and Fawcett the amount paid the bank less discount charges. Plaintiffs brought action on the note.—Teetzel, J., held (16 O. W. R. 25, 1 O. W. N. 767), that the note was obtained by fraud and was void in the hands of Fawcett; that the Traders Bank was a holder in due course within the meaning of s. 56 of the Bills of Exchange Act; that plaintiffs were holders in due course to the extent of amount paid the bank but not as to the money paid Fawcett, as they had knowledge of the facts --Divisional Court reversed above judgment. holding that the paper sued on never became a note, the signatures thereto having been obtained by fraud. Action dismissed.— Foster v. McKinnon, L. R. 4 C. P. 704, fol-lowed. Graham v. Driver (1910), 17 O. W. R. 60, 2 O. W. N. 131,

Oral agreement contemporaneous with note—Evidence of—Consideration — Contradictory written documents—New trial —Objection to evidence not taken at trial— Discretion of Court, Conley v, Ashley, 1 0 W, R. 704,

Part failure of consideration-Construction of contract-Implied condition-Event happening after maturity of note.]-The plaintiff agreed with the defendant to sell him 14 timber limits which he (plaintiff) had staked, at $1 an acre, the defendant to advance the license fees and to pay the plaintiff in cash and notes for the balance. After the plaintiff had obtained from the Government 12 of the licenses, a question arose as to the meaning of the contract, the defendant in good faith (but wrongfully) believing that the plaintiff was liable to repay him the amount paid the Government for the licenses. On the 27th November, 1907, a new agreement was made, a complete settlement. to the effect that the defendant should forego his claim to be repaid the amount he had paid for the licenses, and that the plaintiff should throw in the two other limits, the licenses for which had not yet been obtained. for the price of the 12 limits. The 12 issued licenses were assigned, and the defendant gave the plaintiff an order for an assignment of the unissued licenses, and the defendant gave the plaintiff cash and promissory notes for the sum agreed upon. On the 28th April. 1908, the Government refused to issue the two additional licenses. In an action upon one of the notes, which fell due in March, 1908.—Held, that the absolute terms of the settlement of the 27th November must be construed as subject to the condition that the Government would issue the necessary licenses; the effect was to leave the parties in the position in which they were on the date of refusal; the right which the plaintif had the adeendant was not entitled to a reduction of two-fourcenths as claimed on the footing of a part failure of consideration.—Taylor v. Geldwell, 3 E. & S. S33, and Chaudler v. Webster, [1904] 1 K. B. 493, followed.— Judgment of Martin, J., affirmed. Topping v. Marling (1910), 13 W. L. R. 310.

Part payment—Action for balance due — Defence of illegality of consideration — Sale of shores on margin—Criminal laue-Code, s. 231.)—Action to recover amount due on a promissory note. As plaintiff knew when he lent the money to defendant that it was to be used to pay deposits for stock bought on margin, the consideration was illegal, and plaintiff cannot recover. Dean v. McLean, T E. L. R. 288.

Partnership - Liability - Evidence-Authority of manager.]-Action against the members of a partnership carrying on busi-"Sixty days after date we promise to pay D. & B. or order $407.29 at the Imperial Bank here; value received:" and signed "W. D. R., Manager, O. T. L. Co.:"-Held, Wetmore, J., dissenting, that evidence of the circumstances surrounding the making and the accepting of the note was admissible for the purpose of shewing who was intended to be liable on the note. That, on the terms of the note and the evidence of the surrounding circumstances in this case, the defendants were liable. The defendants carried on a lumbering business in partnership. R. was their manager at the place of operations. The partnership kept in the vicinity of their mill a boarding-house, at which their workmen boarded, and a store for the sale to them of supplies. R. ordered goods which were used in the boarding-house, the store or the mill :-- Held, that the ordering of the goods was within the scope of R.'s authority, and that the defendants were therefore lin Ferguson v. Fairchild, 1 Terr. L. R. 329. liable.

Payable at particular place — Presentation — Rills of Exchange Act. 8, 183 — Absent Debtor Act. (P.E.L.), 1873 — Nonresident debtors — Jurisdiction,]—Full interpretation given of above section.—Held, that above Absent Debtor Act does not give jurisdiction where debtor is absent only by reason of residence abroad. Sinclair v. Deacon, 7 E. L. R. 222.

Payable on demand—Action to recover on—Defence no consideration—Overdue then transferred—Judgment for amount of note— Interest—Costs.]— Plaintiffs brought action to recover on a promissory note $3,500 and interest. The defence was that the note was made without consideration, negotiated by payee in fraud of defendants, and, being plaintiffs on demand, was overdue when plaintiffs became holders of it.—Meredith,

C.J.C.P., held, that the defence failed, and plaintiffs were entitled to judgment for the amount of note, with interest at five per cent, per annum from its date, and costs. Northern Crown Bank v, International Electric Co. Ltd. (1910), 17 O. W. R. 561, 2 O. W. N. 286, O. L. R.

Payable to order — Rights of an endorser, bearer of the note by having paid $it_{\rm i}$ —The endorser of a note payable to order, who has become the bearer of it by having paid it, has a right to recover payment thereof only as against prior endorsers, guarantors, if any there are, and the maker. Lachance v. Duval (1910), 37 Que. S. C. 475.

Payable to order of unincorporated association—Endorsement by officers—Insufficiency to pass title.1—A trade union lent to the defendant a portion of its funds, taking therefor a promissory note made payable to the union. The president and financial secretary of that organization endorsed it to the plaintifi —Held, that there was no valid endorsement so as to enable the plaintiff to sue. Cooper v. McDonald, 10 W. L. R. 173.

Payment-Accord and satisfaction-Mistake - Principal and agent.]-On being pressed for payment of the amount of a promissory note, the defendant offered to convey a lot of land (which he then shewed to the plaintiffs' agent) to the plaintiffs in satisfaction of the debt. The agent, after inspecting the land, made a report to the plaintiffs, but gave an erroneous description of the property to be conveyed. On being instructed by the plaintiffs to obtain the conveyance, the plaintiffs' solicitor observed the mistake in the description and took the conveyance of the lot which had actually been inspected at the time the offer was made. More than a year after-wards the plaintiffs sued the defendant on the note, and he pleaded accord and satisfaction by conveyance of the land. In their reply the plaintiffs alleged that the property conveyed was not that which had been accepted by them, and at the trial the plaintiffs recovered judgment. On appeal to the full Court the judgment at the trial was reversed and the action dismissed :- Held, affirming the judgment in 9 B. C. R. 257, that the plaintiffs were bound to accept the lot which had been offered to and inspected by their agent in satisfaction of the debt, and could not recover on the promissory note. Pither v. Manley, 23 Occ. N. 64, 32 S. C. R. 651.

Payment—Collateral security — Mortgage of lease—Receipt of rents by creditor—Charging creditor with rents not collected. Barron v, Gilbert, 4 O. W. R. 406.

Payment—Evidence—Oral testimony — Payments applicable to earlier note.]—In an action upon a promissory note, payable to order, the plaintiff may prove by witnesses, the matter being commercial, that payments set up by the defendant, and established by cheques and receipts of a date subsequent to that of the note, have been made in reality to discharge a prior note. Renaud v. Beauchemin, Q. R. 35 S. C. 193.

Payment for mining shares-Shares assigned to bank as cellateral security-Bank transferred shares into name of stranger by mistake - Liability of maker of note.]-Plaintiff bank brought action to recover $17,300 upon two promissory notes given in payment of certain mining shares which were transferred to bank as collateral security for payment of note. Defendant contended that by the bank transferring said shares into name of a stranger by mistake, released him from his obligation to pay the notes and take the stock.-Riddell, J., held, that the dealings with the shares by the bank by mistake did not effect defendant's liability, as plaintiffs were at all times ready, willing and capable of handing over the shares to defendant at any time if he had paid the notes. Payment of note-Evidence-Presumption-Production by maker.]-The production, by the promissor or maker, of a promissory note payable on a given date, without indication upon its face or proof anv aliunde that it remained due after maturity, is prima facie evidence that it was paid and r deemed at or before that time. Payment-Re-issue under new arrangement.]-Action to recover balance due on a promissory note. Plaintiff held a note of defendant's, and also had an open account against him. Plaintiff calling for payment, defendant's wife paid the amount of the note which plaintiff handed in to her. Plaintiff made reductions in open accounts if paid in 30 days. Half an hour after plaintiff called, saying he wanted to change the appropriations, and endorsed a payment on the note, which was handed back to him by the defendant's wife. What is the result of handing back the note by the wife? This question was not answered, but amendments allowed under Yukon Ordinance, s. 117, and judgment given for amount claimed. Vachon v. Lefebvre, 12 W. L. R. 203.

Payment to agent-Authority to collect -Estoppel.]- Actions on promissory notes made by the defendants respectively for the price of certain waggons, endorsed by the payee, before maturity and for valuable consideration, to the plaintiffs.—The only de-fence pleaded was payment to O., the payee, who was, as the defendants alleged, the agent of the plaintiffs to collect the amounts of the notes .- It was admitted that O, was the agent to sell and had sold the waggons, and it was proved that many persons had previously paid O. money, and that the plaintiffs had received money from O. from time to time as it had come into his hands, but it was not shewn that the defendants knew of this last circumstance so as to be led by it to make pay-ments to O. It was proved that O, had not remitted to the plaintiffs the money paid to him by the defendants. In the first case one of the payments relied on consisted in the taking by O, of a lease at the valuation of $20, to be credited on the notes :-Held, that the plaintiffs being the legal holders and having the notes in their possession, in the absence of direct authority to the agent to col lect, or of estoppel, the defendants were liable .- Held, also, that, even if the defendant P. was justified in thinking that O. was authorised to collect money for the plaintiffs, the horse transaction could not be regarded as equivalent to a payment. McLaughlin Carriage Co. v. Pettipas, McLaughlin Carriage Co. v. Haverstock, 20 Occ. N. 137.

Payment to agent-Authority to receive -Notice to maker to pay to principal. Mur-phy v. Canning (N.W.T.), 2 W. L. R. 103.

Place of payment-Place of making -Jurisdiction of Courts of another province-Election of domicil-Statutes.]-Action on promissory notes dated and payable at Montreal in the province of Quebec. Plea to the jurisdiction, the defendant alleging that he was domiciled in Ontario and served there. and that the cause of action did not arise in Quebec because the notes were made signed in Ontario, although dated at Montsigned in Ontario, although dated at Mon-real: — Held, that 63 V. c. 38, does not affect prior elections of domicil made tacitly in a note by virtue of 52 V. c. 48, in force when the notes were made. 2. That the elec-tion of domicil was one of the terms of the contract, and a right could not be affected by a subsequent statute. Merchants Bank of Halifax v. Graham, 3 Que. P. R. 415.

Place of payment - Presentment - 1dorsement in blank - Right of action of payee.]-Held, that when a note is not made payable at any stated place, it is not necessary to allege or prove presentation. That the fact that a promissory note is endorsed in blank by the payee does not preclude such payee from suing thereon if the note is produced from the custody of the payer or his solicitor. Canadian Co-operative Co. v. Trauniczek, S W. L. R. 559, 1 Sask L. R. 143.

ment.]—A power of attorney given by one person to another authorizing the latter to attend to the affairs of the former, does not empower the attorney to endorse a promissory note for the accommodation of the maker thereof, although such note may be a renewal of an accommodation not endorsed by his principal. The holder of promissory note who consents to a renewal thereof is deemed to extend the time, so far as the maker is concerned, for payment, to the time the renewal falls due. An endorser of a promissory note has a right to avail himself of an extension of time given to the maker. Molsons Bank v. Cooke, Q. R. 27 S. C. 130.

Prescription—Notarial note en brevet— Term.]—A promissory note made before a notary en brevet, signed by a farmer, in favour of a person who is not a trader, for money lent, is subject to a prescription of 30 years. Robert v. Charbonneau, Q. R. 22 S. C. 408.

Prescription—Part payment—Proof of— Payment by curaior of insolvent.]—In a commercial matter part payments, amounting to a tacit acknowledgment, having the effect of interrupting prescription, may be proved by witnesses. 2. Article 1235, C. C., line 1, does not apply to a promissory note, the proof of promissory notes and bills of exchange being, by the terms of Art, 2341, subject to the law existing in England in 1849. 3. The payment of dividends by the curator of a person who has made an assignment of bis property, has the same effect as to interrupting prescription as a payment made by the debtor himself. Boulet v. Metayer, Q. H. 23 S. C. 289.

Prescription - Statute of limitations-Acknowledgment - Executor de son tort -Payments by—Bills of Exchange Act—Dom-inion and Provincial legislation.] — A payment or acknowledgment by an executor son tort cannot be relied upon to prevent the Statute of Limitations from operating as a bar, where the action in which it is set up is brought against the lawful personal representative of the deceased. But where the executor de son tort has made payments of interest in respect to a promissory note, with-in six months before the action commenced, and the holder of the note brings action against him to make him answerable to the extent of the goods of the deceased come to his hands, it is not open to the defendant, for the purpose of preventing a payment giving a new start to the Statute of Limitations (which effect it would have if made by the lawful personal representative), to rely on his having been a wrongdoer and not the true representative. As between himself and the plaintiff, as respects payments made by the executor de son tort and their effect, the latter is to be treated as the true representative of the deceased. The Bills of Exchange Act does not deal with the consequences which are to flow from the character which, according to its provisions, is attached to the promise which a bill or note contains, and therefore these consequences fall to be determined according to the law of the province in which the liability is sought to be enforced. Cook v. Dodds, 23 Occ. N. 325, 6 O. L. F. 608, 2 O. W. R. 936, Presentment - Pleading - Waiver -Amendment-Jurisdiction of County Court.] -The plaintiffs inserted the defendant's advertisement in two of their publications for the sums of $10 and $15 respectively. Separate agreements were made in respect to each publication, but the agreements were made at the same time, and the defendant, at the same time that the agreements were at the same time that the agreements were made and signed, gave the plaintiffs his pro-missory note for the sum of $25 payable four months after date at the defendant's office. The plaintiffs' statement of claim contained claims based upon the note and upon the original consideration.—Held, that the claim based upon the original consideration was within the jurisdiction of a County Court. The defence that the note was not presented for payment, and that while it was current, the remedy upon the consideration was suspended, must be pleaded. If the defendant were allowed to amend by pleading such defence, the plaintiffs should also be allowed to amend by alleging that presentment was waived by subsequent promises in writing to pay. Something was to be inferred from the duty of a clerk whose duty it was to make presentments, and who testified that he had done so in the case in question. Sharp v. Power, 33 N. S. Reps. 371.

Presentment, waiver of — Knowledge of default.]—An offer made after its maturity by an endorser of a promissory note to pay the amount of the same will not operate as a waiver of presentment in the absence of evidence that at the time of the offer he knew there had been default in presentment. Ayer y. Murray (1909). 39 N. B. R. 170.

Price of goods sold-Failure of consideration — Contract — Privity — Evidence — Estoppel.] — One K. having previously bought a threshing outfit from the plaintiffs, upon which he still owed them a large amount, made a sale of it to the defendant. As a matter of convenience this sale was carried out by the defendant signing an order for the purchaser and making a note for the price in favour of the plaintiffs. The defendant resisted payment of the note, on the ground that the consideration for it had wholly or partly failed, and, that he had not got all the goods ordered or an engine of the quality ordered, and contended that the documents relied on were conclusive evidence that the sale had been made by the plaintiffs and that they were estopped from denying it :-Held, that the plaintiffs were not estopped from shewing that it was K. who had made the sale, and that, as the evidence estab-lished this, the defendant had no remedy against the plaintiffs for any defects in the threshing outfit, and must pay the amount of the note. Case Threshing Machine Co. v. Wermiger, 5 W. L. R. 339, 17 Man. L. R.

Price of machine—Failure of consideration—Evidence — Corroboration — Infant— Sale of machine to—Retention after majority —Ratification—Amendment—Costs.]—In an action upon three promissory notes made by the defendant, given for the price of a machine purchased by him from the plaintiffs: —Held, upon the evidence, that the defendant had failed to shew absence of consideration, his uncorroborated statement not being

R. 53, that where an infant, having purchased goods, retains them after attaining his majority, without disaffirming within a reasonable time, it will be deemed a ratification.—If a plaintiff only applies at trial to set up ratification, he will be allowed to amend, but, though he recover judgment, no costs will be allowed, following the same case. Great Western Implement Co. v. Grams, 7 W. L. R. 190, 1 Alta. L. R. 11-(Reversed, S W. L. R. 100.)

Price of machinery-Failure to prove signature of one maker-Lien on unpatented land-Transfer to stranger - Payments in arrear-Issue of patent to transferee-Effect on lien.]-In an action against a father and two sons upon promissory notes and liens on land given for the price of machinery said to have been ordered from the plaintiffs by a written order signed by the three, it was held, upon the evidence, that the signature of the father to the documents (being denied) was not proved; and the action was dis-missed as against him.-The plaintiffs also sought to have the defendant Le S, declared a trustee for one of the sons, A. B., who had after signing a document creating a lien upon land in favour of the plaintiffs, transferred his interest in the land to Le S., or to have the transfer and the patent issued to Le S. declared void. A. B. had made a payment of $64 to the Government for the land at the time the lien was registered, and that was all the interest he had in it; when he made the transfer to Le S, he had improved the land to the extent of $100. A. B. made only the first payment on the land; and, when he transferred it to Le S., two other payments were in arrear, and the Government were pressing A. B. for payment. Le S. paid what was due, and the patent was issued in his name :--Held, that the Government must be taken to have dealt with the lien with the intention and result of setting it aside, on the ground that A. B. had, by defaulting, forfeited his interest; and there was no ground upon which the patent could be- set aside. Northwest Thresher Co. v. Bourdin (1910), 15 W. L. R. 181.

Proof of consideration — Liability of makers—Liability of endorsers—Signature on back of note before that of pagee.]—Ariton on a promissory note made by the defendant company and endorsed by the defendant directors:—Held, there was good and valuable consideration for the note sued on. The defenderst are liable, although the plaintif endorsed after the signature of the endorsing defendants. Knechtel v. Ideal, 11 W. L. B. 344.

Proof of making — Renewal—Payment —Holders in due course—Presentment—Evidence-Insufficiency to shew presentment before action-Necessity for-Bills of Exchange Act, s. 183-Powers of company-By-laws-Preliminaries to be observed.]-In an action upon a promissory note it was objected that the evidence did not establish that the note was made by the defendants. The evidence shewed that at the maturity of the note the secretary-treasurer of the defendants went to the office of the payees of the note and gave them a renewal note. Prior to this the payees had negotiated the note to the plaintiffs. The payees took the renewal note, not disclosing the fact that the original had been negotiated, and the defendants gave up the renewal without getting back the original note. The renewal note was subsequently paid :-Held, that the action of the defend ants in giving a renewal of the note at its maturity, and in subsequently paying that note, sufficiently established that the note now sued on was made under the defendants' authority, and that they were liable upon it -Held, also, that the evidence established that the plaintiffs were the holders in due course; they took the note during its currency as security for an advance of money made by them to the payees; and the subsequent action of the payees in fraudulently procuring a renewal note from the defendants could not affect the plaintiffs.—The note was made payable at a bank. At the trial the plaintiffs' agent proved that he presented the note for payment at that bank; but he did not expressly state that it was presented before action :-Held, per Perdue, J.A., that it might reasonably be inferred from the evidence, as the trial Judge did. that the presentment was before action.--Per Cameron, J.A., adopting the dictum of Armour, C.J., in Merchants Bank v. Hender-son, 28 O. R. 360, the opinion of Riddell, J., in Freeman v. Canadian Guardian Life In-surance Co., 17 O. L. R. 296, and the opinion of Fitzgerald, J., in Sinclair v. Deacon, 7 E. L. R. 222, that, as against the makers, presentment was not necessary under the Bills Exchange Act, s. 183 .- Per Richards, J.A., dissenting, that the evidence was insufficient to shew presentment before action ; and, following the opinion of Regbie C.J., in Croft v. Hamlin, 2 B. C. R. 333, of Graham, J., in Warner v. Simon-Kaye, 27 N. S. R. 40, and of wewlands, J., in Jones v. England, 5 W. L. R. 83, that the omission to present before action was fatal to the right to recover .- Per Perdue, J.A., that, although the cover.—refrectude, J.A., that, andous up plaintiffs were shareholders in the paye-company, they were not personally bound by the wrongful action of that company in taking a renewal note after negotining the note in question .- Per Cameron, J.A., that the note was binding upon the defendants, an incorporated company, though not duly made under the by-laws; innocent holders of negotiable securities are not bound to inquire whether certain preliminaries which ought to have been gone through have actually been gone through, Robertson v. North-Western Register Co. (1910), 13 W. L. R. 613.

John, N. B., were protested in London, England, where they were payable. The indorser lived at Richibucto, N.B. Notice of dishonour of the first note was mailed to the endorser at Richibucto, and, at the same time, the protest was sent by the holders to an agent at Halifax, N.S., instructing them to take the necessary steps to obtain payment. The agent, on the same day that he received the protest and instructions, sent, by post, notice of the dishonour to the endorser at Richibucto. As the other notes fell due the holders sent them and the protests, by the first packet, from London to Canada, to the same agent at Halifax, by whom the notices of dishonour were forwarded to the endorser at Richibucto :- Held, Idington and Duff, JJ., dissenting, that the sending of the notice of dishonour of the first note direct from London to Richibucto, with the precaution of also sending it through the agent, was an indication that the holders were not aware of the correct address of the endorser, and the fact that they used the proper address was not conclusive of the proper address was not conclusive of their knowledge, or suf-ficient to compet an inference imputing such knowledge to them. Therefore, the no-tices in respect to the other notes sent through the agent were sufficient.--Per Id-ington and Duff, JJ., dissenting, that the holders had failed to shew that they had adopted the most expeditious mode of having the notices or dishonour given to the endorser .- The maker of the note gave evidence or an offer to the holders to settle his indebtedness, on certain terms and at a time some two or three years later than the maturity of the last note; and that the same was agreed to by the holders. The latter, in their evidence, denied such agreement, and testified that, in all the negotiations, they had informed the maker that they would do nothing whatever in any way to release the endorser :- Held, that the evidence did not shew that there was any agreement by the holders to give time to the maker, and the endorser was not discharged. If the existence of an agreement could be gathered from the evidence, it was without consideration, and the creditor's rights against the sureties were reserved .- Per Idington and Duff. JJ., that a demand note, given in renewal of a time note and accepted by the holders is not a giving of time to the maker by which the endorser is discharged .- Judgment of the Supreme Is discharged.— Judgment of the Supreme Court of New Brunswick, 37 N. B. R. 630, 2 E. L. P. 180 (an'c 35), reversed. Flem-ing v. McLeod, 27 C. L. T. 660, 39 S. C. R. 200

Protest—Wainer—Curator of inselect,1 —The curator appointed upon an abandoument of property under the Code of Procedure has no authority, nore particularly, as in the present case, without leave of a Judge of the Superior Court or the advice of the creditors or inspectors, to waive on behalf of the insolvent protest of a promissory note endorsed by the latter, and a waiver under such circumstances does not blind the endorser. Judgment in Q. R. 22 S. C. 474 atlimed. Denenberg v. Mendelshon, Q. R. 23 S. C. 128.

Protest—Waiver—Curator of insolvent.] —The curator to an abandonment of property has no right to waive protest of a promissory note of which the insolvent is the endorser. Molsons Bank v. Steel, Q. R. 23 S. C. 316, 5 Que, P. R. 84.

Protest — Waiver—Form of pleading.]— The words "I hold myself responsible for the note," written and signed by the endorser upon the face of the note, amount to a waiver of protest; and a declaration alleging this fact is sufficient law. Ranger v. Aumais, 5 Que, P. R. 184.

Purchase of shares—Failure of consideration—Onus,1—On appeal it was held that the promissory note sued on was given for 10 shares of stock in plaintiff's bank at 140. He received six dividend cheques which he endorsed. The inference, therefore, is that defendant knew when giving note, that it was to pay for stock at 140. Sovercign v. McIntyre, 13 O. W. R. 500.

Recovery of money paid—Failure of consideration—Fleading.]— Where a plaintiff, seeking to get back a payment as having been made without consideration, bases his demand upon a promissory note, and his declaration makes it appear that such note is paid, the demand cannot be allowed, because the fact of his being the holder of this note does not give him the right to bring an action for recovery of the money paid. Demers v. Bank of Ottaca, 9 Q. P. R. 107.

Release - Proof by entries in books-Transfer without endorsement - Notice of transfer.]-Where the payee and the maker of a promissory note agree that it should be released, but the note is afterwards transferred by the payee, with other assets, to a company incorporated to take over the business of the payee, the maker may prove the release of the note by entries made in the company's books, with the knowledge and under the direction of the payee, and by corroborative verbal evidence of other officers of the company. 2. When a promissory note is transferred after maturity, not by endorse ment, but by being included in a general transfer of the assets of a business, the person acquiring the note must have notice of the transfer served on the maker before a right of action exists in favour of such transferee. respondents sued on a promissory note signed by the appellant and payable to the order of the respondents, for value received. The respondents admitted that they paid no cash consideration to the appellant for this note, but stated that it was given in part renewal of a previous note for a similar amount, which appellant executed in favour of one S., and which was endorsed and transferred to respondents, with another of like amount, in settlement of the overdrawn account who was their general manager :- Held, 8. that where the connection between the first note, for which valid consideration was renote, for which value consideration was re-ceived, and the notes given in renewal thereof, is clearly established, want of consideration is not a valid defence to an action by the payee against the maker on a renewal note in which the latter acknowledges to have received value. 2. Such connection may be proved, as in this case, by a consecutive and uninterrupted series of dates in the payee's books in regard to the transaction, together with the probability that the payee would not have surrendered a valid note without re-ceiving a valid renewal. 3. Even in the absence of positive proof that the first note was endorsed by S. to the company, the Court may reasonably presume that such was the case from the fact that it was delivered to the company and was in custody of the company's cashier, together with the fact that the note now sued upon was given by appellant for value received and was payable directly to the company. Ross v. Western Loan and Trust Co., Q. R. 11 K. B. 292.

Revendication—Summary procedure.]— An action by which the plaintiff demands that a certain promissory note shall be given up to him or declared void and of no effect, is of a summary nature. Ekenberg v. Mousscau, 3 Que, P. R. 348.

Security for debt-Husband and wife-Parent and child - Undue influence - Lack of independent advice - Conspiracy.]-C., a man without means, and W., a rich money lender, were engaged together in stock speculations, W. advancing money to C. at a high rate of interest in the course of such business. being eventually heavily in the other's debt, it was agreed between them that if C could procure the signatures of his wife and daughter, each of whom had property of her own, as security, W would give him a fur-ther advance of $1,000. Though unwilling at first, the wife and daughter finally signed at first, the wife and daughter finally signed promissory notes in favour of C. for sums aggregating over $7,000, which were de-livered to W. Neither of the makers had independent advice: — Held, reversing the judgment of the Court of Appeal, Adams v. Cox, 2 O. W. R. 93, 3 O. W. R. 32, 4 O. W. R. 15, 5 O. W. R. 419, Taschereau, C.J.C., discenting that though the daughter was 23 dissenting, that, though the daughter was 23 years old, she was still subject to the dominion and influence of her father, and the contract made by her without independent advice was not binding:—Held, also, Tasche-reau, C.J.C., and Killam, J., dissenting, that his wife was not subjected to influence that his whe was not subjected to influence by C, and entitled to independent advice, and she was, therefore, not liable on the note she signed. Per Sedgewick, J, that the evidence produced disclosed that the transaction was a conspiracy between C. and

W. to procure the signatures to the notes, and that the wife of C. was deceived as to his financial position and the purpose for which the notes were required. Therefore the plaintiff could not recover. Cox v. Adams, 25 Occ. N. 25, 35 S. C. R. 893.

Signature by third party after maturity —Agreement not to sue—Release of original makers — Insufficient consideration — Bills of Exchange Act — Alteration.] — Where a promissory note made by two persons in tavour of the plaintiff was, after naturity, signed by the defendant at the plaintiff's request, without any agreement or understanding for extension of time or for forbearance; —Held, following Ryan v. McKerrel, 15.0. R. 400, that the procurement by the plaintiff of the signature of the defendant was not equivalent to an agreement not to sus, and that no change has been made in the law in this respect by the Bills of Exclinage Act—Held, also, that, even if the original makers were released by the execution of the note by the defendant, thus houch as there was no evidence of a desire or request or consent on her part that the other parties to the not eshuld be released. Stack v. Dored, 100, W. R. 633, 15.0. L. R. 331.

Subscription for share in company _Fraud-Note of subscriber transferred to bank-Holders in due course-Hypothecation of securities-Powers of company-By-law-Resolution-Indorsement by secretary-Sufficiency-Negotiation of note.]- The defendant was induced to subscribe for one share of the stock of an incorporated manufacturing company and to give a promissory note for the amount of the par value thereof, by a false and fraudulent representation made The by an agent of the company. note shewed on its face that it was given for a share in the company, and it was indorsed to the order of the plaintiffs, a chartered bank, by an indorsement in the name of the company, with the name of the secretary thereof signed thereto. A by-law was passed by the directors of the company, and confirmed by the shareholders at an annual meeting, authorising the borrowing of money. following the works of s. 49 of R. S. O. 1807, c. 191. It was also resolved by the directors, and confirmed by the shareholders, that an account be opened with the plaintiffs; that all moneys, orders, and other securities belonging to the company and usually deposited in the ordinary course of banking. be deposited in said bank account; that the same might be withdrawn therefrom by cheque, bill, or acceptance in the name of the company, over the names of any two or four specified officers (one being the secre-tary): and that for all purposes connected with the making of deposits in the bank ac-count, the signature of any one of the four should be sufficient. By a memorandum over the seal of the company and the hands of three of the officers, it was agreed that the plaintiffs should hold all the company's securities at any time in the plaintiffs' posses sion as collateral security for present and future indebtedness; and it appeared that the note above referred to, upon which this action was brought, with a large number of others, was delivered to the plaintiffs as a collateral security, accordingly. The secretary was also a director of the company, and indorsed notes, as he indorsed that in question, almost daily, with the knowledge of his co-directors, for a year and a half :---Held, that the by-law was sufficient to authorise the hypothecation of the company's securities to secure the present and future indebtedness of the company to the plaintiffs; that the indorsement over the signature of the secretary was sufficient to pass the property in the note to the plaintiffs; that the plaintiffs were entitled to assume that a share had been properly allotted to the defendant, and that the note represented the debt due by him to the company for such share, and that the company had the right to negotiate it; and (upon the evidence) that the plaintiffs were holders in due course, for value, without notice of the fraud, and were entitled to recover .-- Judgment of Macbeth, Co.C.J., af-C.C.L.-17 Substituted note-Principal and surety -Discharge by giving time-Misdirection-New trial.]-In an action on a joint and several promissory note made by the defendseveral promissory note hade by the detend ants W. and P., the defences chiefly relied on were that W. was surety for P. and was discharged by the giving of time to the principal, and that the note sued on was discharged by the acceptance in substitution thereof of another note made by P. and one D. R. The evidence shewed that W. paid one-half of an original note made by himself and P., and signed the note sued on, on the understanding that payment was to be enforced from P, at maturity. When the note became due P, was not in a position to pay in full, and offered a renewal note to pay in full, and offered a renewal note for the balance due, which the plaintiff agreed to accept, provided P, would furnish another name approved of by the plaintiff. Before the note was made, the plaintiff expressed his willingness to accept the name of C, R., but P. failed to get that name, and sent to the plaintiff, instead, a note signed by himself and D. R. The plaintiff did not return this note, but told P. verbally that he would not accept it :- Held, per Graham, E.J., Townshend, J., concurring, that the retention of the note by the plaintiff was not, under the circumstances, an acceptance; also, as-suming that W. was only a surety for P., it was his duty to see that the obligation of his principal was satisfied; also, that, in the absence of evidence that ought reasonably to satisfy a jury that the note was made by P. and D. R. was accepted by the plaintiff in lieu of the note upon which W. was liable, there was no necessity for sending the case back for a new trial.—Per Russell, J., as-suming that the directions of the trial Judge to the jury were erroneous, there need not be a new trial if a verdict for the defendbe a new trial of a verdict for the defend-ant would be set aside as unreasonable.— Weatherbe, C.J., dissented. Foreign bank - Refusal of payment-Koreign Bank — Refusal of payment— Holder in due course—Liability of endorser— Presentment—Reasonable time—Law of for-eign state—Notice of dishonour—Bills of Ex-change Act, ss. 71 (f), 85.]—A deposit re-ceipt of a bank in the State of Minnesota, dated the 9th February, 1906, in favour of the defendant, acknowledging the deposit of a sum of money, taxable to bie core: "on resum of money, payable to his order "on re-Sum of money, raymote to his order on re-turn of this certificate properly endorsed," was endorsed to the plaintiffs for valuable consideration on the 30th October, 1903, and was sent on the same day to another bank in Minnesota for collection. On the 31st October the latter bank returned the certificate to the plaintiffs, with the notation that the debtor bank had suspended payment. This communication did not reach the plaintiffs till the 2nd November, and on that day they notified the defendant by letter that the certi-ficate had been returned to them unpaid, and asked for reimbursement. There was no evi-dence that this letter ever reached the defendant. After walting 5 days and receiving no answer, the plaintiffs sent the certificate to an agent in Minnesota, who on the 10th November presented it to the debtor bank for payment; payment was refused; the certificate was on that day protested by a notary, and notice of non-payment sent by him to the defendant. This protest, with the certificate attached, was put in evidence at the trial of an action against the defendant upon the receipt. Expert evidence was given to the effect that by the laws of Minnesota the certificate was negotiable and of the same effect as a promissory note payable on demand. There was no evidence as to what would be a reasonable time for presentment : - Held, that, in the absence of evidence, the Court must be governed by the provisions of the law in force in Saskatchewan; that, by s. 71 (f) of the Bills of Exchange Act, was prima facie or the follow of Exchange Act, was prima facic evidence of the protest and notice of dishon-our; and that the presentment was within a reasonable time, having regard to the circum-stances: Bills of Exchange Act, s. 85. The plainiffs were, therefore, entitled to recover. Security National Bank v. Pritt (1910), 14 W. L. R. 216.

Breach-Agreement to exchange land-Infant-Indemnity.] - The plaintiff and an infant owner of land entered into an agreement for the exchange of land, the land of the plaintiff boing subject to a mortgage, the interest upon which to a certain date he agreed to pay, nothing being said in the agree-ment as to payment of the interest after that date. The defendant gave a bond to the plain tiff conditioned to be void if the infant owner. after arriving at the age of twenty-one years, should convey his land to the plaintiff, and should "do and perform all acts, covenants, and agreements to be done and performed by him as in the said agreement mentioned. The infant went into possession of the plaintiffs' land, but, the interest after the named date not having been paid, the land was sold by the mortgagee before the infant attained the age of twenty-one years, and the infant upon attaining that age did not convey his land to the plaintiff :--Held, though the infant was impliedly bound to indemnify the plaintiff against payment of interest after the named date, yet that right of indemnity was not to be enforced until the infant attained his majority, the plaintiff in the meantime being primarily liable to pay the in-terest; and that, not having done so, he was in default and not in a position to complain of the infant's refusal to convey or to en-force the bond :—Held, also, that the implied obligation to indemnify was not an act, covenant, or agreement within the agreement, and, therefore, not within the bond, Learn v. Bagnall, 21 Occ. N. 223, 1 O. L. R. 472.

Breach.—Penalty—Damages — Commencement of action — Subsequent breaches.] — Held, per Tuck, C.J., McLeod and Gregory, JJ, that in an action on a bond conditioned for maintenance, where the breach assigned la refusal to maintain, the plaintiff may recover the whole penalty as damages. In assessing the damages the jury are not limited to those suffered up to the time of the issue of the writ, but they may take into consideration the damages up to the time of the trial, and that there has been a complete breach of the condition. Per Hannington, Landry and Barker, JJ, that judgment may be entered for the penalty upon which subsequent breaches may be assigned under 8 & 9 Wm, IV. c. 11, but damages during the two mencement of the action. Bartheletter v, Mclanson, 35 N. B. Reps. 652.

Condition — Construction—Payment of purchase money — Inability of vendors to make title — Obligers absolved from performance of condition.] — The plaintiffs acquired a right to purchase a tract of 20,000 acress of land for the purpose of establishing a colony, and then entered into an agreement with a number of prospective colonists to sell the lands to them upon certain terms. After this, the defendants, who were some but not all of those who had signed the agreement to purchase from the plaintiffs, executed a bond in the penal sum of $2,500 in favour of the plaintiffs, reciting and incorporating the agreement, the condition being that the obligors should duly and faithfully carry out the terms of the agreement by paying to the plaintiffs a certain sum on a certain date, "on account of the purchase price of the lands . price of the lands . . . it being hereby stipulated and agreed that the "plaintiffs "are to use every possible endeavour to have it being hereby the said lands surveyed and located as early as possible, and that such shall be a sufficient performance of the said agreement upon their part, and that the payment of the said sum of $2,500 provided to be made hereunder shall be made to them as liquidated damages for the services rendered and to be renewed by them in connection with the said agreement, as set out in said agreement and this bond, to and for their own use and benefit :" - Held, notwithstanding the last clause of the condition, that the bond should be construed as one merely given to secure an instalment of purchase-money; that, upon the evidence, the plaintiffs had never acquired any legal or enforceable right to purchase, and therefore had no title; by their default no sum had become payable; and that they had become payable; and that they had thus absolved the defendants from performing the condition, and could not recover upon the bond.-Judgment of Macdonald, J., 11 W. L. R. 583, reversed. Colwell v. Neufeld (1910), 14 W. L. R. 83.

Condition for payment of instalments to obligee for life and after his decease as he might direct—No direction by obligee, Kennedy v. McDonald, 2 E. L. R. 83.

Judicial survety — Declaration — Real property — Vaiuation — Affidavits.] — A surety upon a judicial bond is bound to give a declaration of his real property with his title thereto, when required to do so; but not if a registrar's certificate shewing what real property the survety possesses is filed in the case.—The valuations being not always to be relied upon, the real value may be established by affidavits. Shericood v. Shepard, 8 Que. P. R. 420.

Limit bond-Action on - Defence-Extension of time after breach. See Kelly v. Thompson, 35 N. B. Reps. 718.

Mining company, 1st June, 1905, issmed bonds secured by mortgage, and plaintiff became holder of $10,000 thereof. In May, 1907, defendant company advertised for offers of such bonds for redemption. Plainiff offered hist 82. Defendants redeemed other bonds, but not plaintiff's. Plaintiff brought action claiming breach of trust by defendants as trustees, then amended and asked for specific performance of contract to redeem, or for damages in lieu thereof:--Held, that the defendants had acted honestly and reasonably and ought to be excused for breach of trust if there were one, that the plaintiff could not recover as ceasi gue trust nor on contract, and that, if an appellate Coart should find that plaintiff was entitled to recover on contract, that the market price was 75 at the time of the alleged breach, therefore his damage would be $700, Whicher v. Netional Trust Co. (1900), 14 O. W. R. 888, 1 O. W. N. 130.

Action to settle—Formalities of—Dispensing with—Appointment of surveyor by consent,—In an action for the settlement of a boundary the parties may consent that a surveyor be appointed to fix the boundary without proceeding with the formalities of measurement and preparation of a plan. Lacrois v. Lanctot, 7 Que. P. R. 24.

Action to settle—Original surcey.)—In an action to settle the dividing line between the north and south halves of a lot on a broken front, it was held that the words "The centre of the concession" meant the centre of the particular lot and not the centre of the concession where the lots were not broken. Scriver v. Young (1909), 14 O. W. R. 530, affirmed 15 O. W. R. 27.

Bornage—Extent of—Wall of building.] —1. The right that every land owner has to compel bia neighbour to make bornage does not the less exist when this neighbour has built a house the wall of which forms a fixed and certain limit in the line of division of their lands. It is enough that this wall has been built without the consent of the plaintif, to give him the right to an action en bornage, which the act of another cannot take away. The boundary in such a case ought to be placed on the land of the plaintif, at the distance from the wall required by law, the right to the bornage not extending beyond the limit of his own land, and the neighbour being brought in as a party only to make the proceeding a contentious one. 2. In an action en bornage in which the plaintiff asserts that a building on the adjoining property encreaches upon his own, the defendant can validly set up against claims based upon this assertion, the acquisitive prescription of ten years founded on a conveyance of the property. Brown v. McIntosh and Roy, Q. R. 34, S. C. 464.

Corporate body created by statute to own in trust, improve and manage a harbour bounded by its high-water mark, with a proviso that "it shall be incumbent on it to erect land-marks," and vested with general and vested with general powers to alienate its property, has both implied and express power to contract with owners of land contiguous to the harbour and bounded by the same high-water mark, in-volving the alienation of land on the harbour side and acquisition of land on the other .--- When a statutory enactment declares that land-marks set by a corporate body, to which a harbour is committed for manage ment, shall determine its boundaries, and such land-marks are set, no evidence is admissible to establish a different boundary from that so determined .- A description by boundaries of the property vested for management in a corporate body, in the statute passed for that purpose, does not render every portion of it inalienable without the intervention of the legislature, Montreal Harbour Commissioners v. Record Foundry (1909), 38 Que. S. C. 161.

Description of lands according to plan-Area and extent-Fixing of division line-Title and possession. I-The plain iff in an action en bornage who describes the lands to be subjected to bornage by the numbers which they bear on the calastral plan madfor the registration of real rights, does not thereby recognize the accuracy of such plan mor the area of the lands as given by it. The rights of the parties as to the extent of their lands and the fixing of the division line between their portions are dependent upon their title and possession. Forcier v. Bilanger, Q. R. 16 K. B, 289.

Error-Good faith — Trepass-Cutting timber-Wiful acts.]—The rule that an action will not lie to recover the value of timber cut in trespass, where the boundary has not been settled between contiguous lands, applies to cases of presumed error and good faith, but not to cases of undoubled and inexcusable trespass. Papineau v. Jasmin, 1 Que, R. 30 S. C. 193.

Mistake in survey - Line between quarter sections-Dominion Lands Act, 1879 -Construction - Trespass - Damages Costs.]-There was a dispute between the plaintiff and the defendant as to the boundary between the north-west and south-west quarter sections of a section of land in township 12, range 20 west. The difficulty arose out of a mistake in the original survey made by F., a Dominion Land Surveyor, in 1882. Corner monuments or mounds were placed at the north-west and south-west corners of the section as surveyed, but the distance between these mounds was not 81 chains, as it should have been, but only 72 chains, The survey was made, as was pro per under the Dominion Lands Act, 1879 s. 13 (2), the Act then in force, on the west limit of the road allowance on the west side of the section :--Held, that the parties were entitled to have their rights adjusted and established by that survey, as interpreted by the Act of 1879; that was what both parties obtained from the Crown by their patents; and, having regard to ss. 3, 104, 105, 106, and 107 of that Act, that the section corner mounds placed by F. for the north-west and south-west corners established those points as the section corners ; and that the place fixed, in the circumstances of this case, for the quarter section mound, is a point equi-distant between the two section corner mounds; and, under s. 105 of the Act, that point is to be connected with the opposite original quarter section corner, and such line will be the dividing line between the two western quarters of the section. Section 106 of the Act is intended to have general application as a rule, but, when exceptional circumstances arise of the character existing in this case, the mode prescribed by s. 105 is to be followed.—The plaintiff and d-fendant each alleged that the other had trespassed, and certain trespasses were found against each, and judgment given for the plaintif for $20 and for the defendant for $12, with a special direction as to costs. Rokrke v, Marshall (1910), 13 W. L. R. 198, 3 Sask. L. R. $2.

Survey—Wall built on strip of land in dispute—Honest belief of ownership—R. 8. O. (1837), c. 119, s. 30—Plan—Registration of—Agreement — Declaration of true line— Building not to be disturbed.]—The dispute between the parties was over a strip of land eight feet wide, more or less, along the easterly side of land granted by conveyance registered as V. 6864, and plaintifi brought action for a declaration that a certain agreement in relation there to was void as against julaintifi, and to have it set aside and the registration cancelled on the alleged ground of misrepresentation—Boyd. C., keld, that judgment should be entered for plaintifi, with a declaration that the true line of division between the lots was that laid down on the plan of Newman, filed, part of house that projected for a few inches not to be disurbed by plaintifi. — Divisional Court dismissed an appeal from above judgment with costs. Parent v. Latimer (1910), 17 O. W. R, 308, 2 O. W. N. 210.

Trespass — Line fence — New trial — Onus.]—The plaintiff and defendant were owners of adjoining lots of land, the tille to which was derived from the same original grantor. The plaintiff's lot was described as being bounded on the north by the south line of the defendant's lot. In an action for trespass the plaintiff complained that the defendant, in erecting a new fence, had placed it on a line different from the line of the fence which existed previously, and which was admitted to have been on the true line between the two lots. The question whether the defendant had, as a matter of fact, departed from the old line or not, having been left undetermined:—Held, that there must be a new trial. Per Weatherbe, J. (dissenting), that the burden was upon the plaintiff to prove the south line of the defendant's lot.

Action by stock-broker-Gaming transaction-Contract void.] - The plaintif. . stock-broker, brought an action against the defendant for a balance alleged to be due on account of certain transactions. The defendant pleaded that the alleged contract was illegal, and therefore null and void. The evidence shewed that the corn and cotton which were the subjects of the alleged contract were never delivered, and that there was no intention that they should be delivered :---Held, that the contract sued on was a gaming one, and was therefore pro-hibited by law. Forget v. Ostigny, [1805] A. C. 318, distinguished. 2. That the broker having knowledge of the nature of such contract, had no recourse against his client for moneys advanced in furtherance of such con-tract. 3. That, even if the defendant had recognized his debt and offered his property to cover the same, as alleged by the plaintiff. such acknowledgment was of no effect, as the debt claimed resulted from an illegal con-tract. 4. That, in any event, the responsi-bility of a person speculating in stocks to his broker is limited to his margin, unless he has given contrary instructions. Morris v. Brault, 23 Occ. N. 120, Q. R. 23 S. C. 190.

Buying grain on margin for customer-Gambling transaction-Gaming Act -Illegal contract-Recovery of money deposited with broker-Costs. Donald v. Edwards-Woods Co. (N.W.T.), 4 W. L. R. 128.

Carrying stock on margin—Advances by broker—Sale of shares without notice— Measure of damages.]—Held, on the evidence, that the plaintiffs, having admittedly paid money for the defendant at his request, had the usual right of action at law on the common counts for money paid.—The defendant, not having sought to redeem his shares nor made any tender, of the amount due by him, could not say that the plaintiffs would not have restored his shares, which might have been hought in the market for a lower price than they were sold for and credited to him.—Even if the plaintiffs were wrongdoers or had committed a brench of their contract, the defendant was not entitled in the circumstances of this case to damares greater in amount than the price which the shares realized.—Judgment of a Divisional Court, 9 O. L. R. G31, affirmed. Ames v. Sutherland, 11 O. L. R. 417, 7 O. W. R. 104 Affirmed in Sutherland v. Securities Holding Co., 37 S. C. R. 624.

Contract with customer-Broker sell-Contract with customer-"proker seli-ing on grain exchange-Contract in broker's seli-name-Liability of principal-"Futures"-"Options"-"Margins"-Board rules-In-demnity, I-On the 14th August, 1907. the defendant, who resided in the state of Ne-branka, wrote the following letter to the bilability erain dealers at Winnings. Winnipeg. plaintiffs, grain dealers at Winnipeg, Man.: "Yours of recent date enclosing mar-Man.: "Yours of recent date enclosing mar-ket report rec'd. I shall be north in about four weeks to look after the new crop, and, if you can sell No. 2 outs for 37c. or better, in store Fort William, you had better sell 4,000 bus, for me, and I will be up at Snow-flake then so I can look after the londing of them and I will send the old outs then? them, and I will send the old oats then." The plantiffs, who were also brokers on the Winnipeg Grain Excitance, sold the oats at 384_2 cents on the "Board," without disclosing the name of their principal, for October delivery, becoming personally liable for the performance of the contract according to the rules of the Exchange. Upon the defendant refusing to deliver the oats, the plaintiffs purchased the quantity of onts so sold at an advance in price in order to make the delivery and brought the action to recover the amount of their loss thus sustrined :- Held, reversing the judgment of the Wiedei — Heid, reversing the junglicent of the Court of Appeal in Murphy v. Butler, 18 Man. L. R. 111, 9 W. L. R. 82, that the authority so given did not authorise the plaintiffs to make a sale under the Grain Exchange rules binding upon their principal but no contract binding on the principal outside of these rules had been entered into : and, consequently, that he was not liable to indemnify them for any loss sustained by reason of their contract. Butler v. Murphy & Co., 41 S. C. R. 618.

Contract with customer—Purchase of stock on margin—Implied proviso for retale on default—Rules of Stock Exchange.] —A party who orders a purchase of stock through a broker under the rules of the Stock Exchange, implicitly consents to its resale without notice in case of his failure to maintain the margin agreed upon. Any agreement at variance with the rule must be expressly proved and will not be inferred from conduct in previous transactions. Lagueux v. Bellcau, Q. R. 14 K. B. 219.

Contract with customer-Sale of grain for future delivery - Personal liability of broker-Custom of exchange-Principal and agent.]-The custom on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange, by which brokers trading there. and acting on instructions from customers to sell grain for future delivery, enter into contracts for such sales in their own names without disclosing the names of their customers, thus make themselves personally liable, is reasonable and necessary for the prompt dispatch of business, and, if a customer makes default in carrying out any such contract, and the broker suffers loss in consequence of having to carry it out himself, he is entitled to recover the amount of such loss from his to recover the amount of such loss from his principal.—Robinson v, Mallett, L. R. 7 H. L. 802, distinguished.—Thacker v, Hardy, 4 Q. B. D. 687, Bayley v, Wilkins, 7 C. B. 886, and Scott v, Godfrey, [1901] 2 K. B. 726, followed. Murphy v, Butler, 9 W. L. R. 82, 1. Mar. L. Custom of trade - Joint liability of principal and agent-Performance by agent for principal - Recourse of agent against principal — Evidence — Parol testimony.] — When, by the custom of trade, in a sale made through an agent, the latter is held jointly liable with his principal, for its performance, an action will lie in his favour to recover from his principal whatever he may have expended for that purpose. Hence, a broker, in Montreal, has an action to recover from a customer, together with his commission and charges, an amount expended to fill an order for the sale of stock, in consequence of repudiation by the customer and of his joint liability, as a broker, to the purchaser, by the custom of trade governing stock exchange operations in Montreal. Parol testimony is admissible to prove such custom of trade, as well as the price for which the broker WAS authorised to sell the stock. Pitblado v. Rosenthal (1910), 37 Que. S. C. 433.

Gambling in wheat—No real business transactions—Loss in gambling—Action for loss—Operation in Chicago—Dealings in Ontario — Criminal Code, s. 231 — Refusal of Court to aid recovery. I—Plaintiff brought action to recover from defendant $229.37 alleged to be due him, pursuant to an agreement between them for purchase and sale of wheat on the Chicago wheat market :—Heid. that there were no real business transactions between the parties: that any indicia of reality, such as payment of storage of the grain or payment of interest upon bank loans or brokers' advances, were lacking; that their dealings were merely gambling on the Chicago wheat market and prohibited by Criminal Code, s. 231, and the contract could not be enforced. Action dismissed. Kaufman v. Gibson, (1904] 1 K. B. 598, followed. Trench v. Brinsk (1910), 16 O.

takes place in the ordinary course of business, the broker's sole interest being his commission, he is entitled to recover from the customer the amount of the loss resulting from the operation. 2. The broker's claim is not restricted to the amount of margin in his hands, but, in the absence of any contract to the contrary, includes the entire loss. 3 A contract does not fall under the head of gaming contract merely because it is entered into in furtherance of a speculation. It is a legitimate commercial transaction to buy a commodity, in the expectation that it will rise in value, and with the intention of real-ising a profit by its resale. 4. Where a real contract of purchase has been made and carried out by a broker on behalf of a principal, delivery of the goods to the broker by transfer of warehouse receipts is delivery to the principal, just as much as if it had been made directly to himself. Order to purchase shares—Contract — Payment—Principal and agent, Deslauriers v. Forget, 4 E. L. R. 363.

Partnership — Contract—Denial of by one partner—Counterclaim—Coaks,]-—Plaintiff, a broker, brought action to recover $12,187,540 and for a declaration of his rights against defendants, brokers, under an alleged agreement. Defendant Singleburst denied all knowledge of said agreement and counterclaimed for one-third of $12,188 and for $950.—Fal-onbridge, C.J.K.B., held, that Singleburst had established his defence and counterclaim. Action dismissed as against Singleburst. As defendant Wills had joined hands with plaintiff, plaintiff given judgment against Wills without costs. Kemerer v. Wills & Singleburst (1910), 16 O. W. Even if plaintiff has disposed of some of these shares it would be merely ground for counterclaim. It is not a question of damages between vendor and purchaser, it is the right of the agent to be indemnified by his principal for his outlay. Plaintiff also claimed $5,000 in cash and $5,000 in shares additional on the share part of the purchase money.—Heid, that plaintiff was entitled. Judgment of Mulock, CJ_EX.D., 21st Jannary, 1906, varied. Van Every v. Fortier (1909), 14 O. W. R 1047, 1 O. W. N. 2009.

Solling fee of 5% on shares not wholly paid up-Sale made for amount of calls paid-Commission charged on par value of shares.]—A broker who agrees to sell for a customer shares paid for in part and subject to further calls, and to pay him proceeds of sale, "less 5% selling fee." and who sells the shares for a sum equal to amount paid on them, has the right to chares particularly when the company that issued hem paid that commission to the agents who procured original subscription to them. The bought note delivered by plaintiffs to defendants at the time of purchase contained the following stipulation: "When carrying stocks for clients we reserve the right of pledging the same or raising money upon them in any way convenient to us." The price of stocks purchased at first advanced, and plaintiffs returned defendants' deposit and advanced him an additional $4,000 upon the stock. Afterwards the price fell and stock was sold (without notice to de-fendant) at a loss. Then plaintiffs notified defendant of the loss, and at the same time rendering a bill for balance due them on the ransaction. Then this action was brought: --Held (5 O. W. R. 328, 9 O. L. There was no evidence to shew that the defendant would not have held the stock until the trial. The Court presume that he would have done so, therefore, held:—That the defendant was not entitled to recover any damages for the wrongful sale of the stock by the plaintiffs, as the stock at the time of the trial could have been bought very much below the prices at which it was sold by plaintiffs. Judgment appenled, but dismissed with costs. Amee v. Sutherland, 6 O. W. R. 20.

Shares - Conversion by broker.] - Defendant stock brokers purchased 10 shares on a margin for plaintiff. He paid down $263.75, which left a balance of $1,501.25 due defendants, on shares. The next day defendants pledged said shares with other shares to Bank of Hamilton for $14,400. In an action for damages for conversion of said shares, or for the return of moneys paid defendants as margins upon them, Magee, J., held, at the trial, that when plaintiff entered into the transaction he supposed that he was pledging his money and credit as against the stock, not as against a liability of defendants to make good the stock. Con mee v. Securities Holding Co., 38 S. C. R. 601, followed : That defendants having $63,75 of plaintiff's money in their hands, and plaintiff being liable for $1,501.25 more, plaintiff was entitled to expect that the shares did exist in such a shape that he could get them by paying the $1,501.25; That defendants by pledging plaintiff's shares for $14,400 had converted said shares to their own use and plaintiff was entitled to judgment for all moneys paid after the conversion, plaintiff having paid those moneys under a misapprehension, a mistake of fact arising from defendants' non-disclosure of the Divisional Court conversion of the shares. Divisional Court reversed hove judgment, following Clark v. Bailie, 15 O. W. R. 691. Action dismissed with costs. Judgment of Magee, J., 15 O. W. R. 417, 1 O. W. N. 481, reversed. Hutchinson v. Jaffray & Cassels (1910), 51 O. W. D. 421, Start Science, Scie conversion of the shares. O. W. R. 858.

Shares—Purchase for customer.]—Plaintiffs brought action against defendants, stock brokers, for $8,153.46, and interest, alleged to have been paid by plaintiff to them for certain stocks she had instructed them to buy for her and for their commission thereon, but which she alleged they had not done, or if they had bought the stock that they had converted them to their own use, and she further claimed damazes for misrepresentation, deception and conversion of her said shares. Fefendants denied all charges of wroangdoing. At the trial MacMahon, J., held, that the plaintiff's stocks were not at any time hypothecated for as much as plaintiff was owing defendants thereon plaintiff has suffered no damaze, and dismissed action. customer-Obligation of broker to sell-Several orders included in one contract-Inter-est-Hypothecation of shares by broker.]-Action by brokers against a customer to re-cover moneys paid to keep up margins on shares bought by plaintiffs for defendant, and interest thereon. The contract established by the evidence is that plaintiffs would purchase and carry for defendant 300 shares of Lake Superior Consolidated stock. The de-fence raised two questions of fact. 1st. That fence raised two questions of fact. when he paid $3,000 on 28th April, 1902, he did so for the purpose of investing that amount in the stock mentioned, and if the stock should appreciate he would get the bene fit of it, and if the price went down he would lose his money, and the plaintiffs could protect themselves from loss by selling before the drop was sufficient to use up the $3,000, put in as a ten point margin; and 2nd, that when defendant subsequently paid $1.800 he did so upon the express agreement that this should be in full satisfaction of any claim plaintiffs had in reference to this transaction. Evidence went against defendant upon each contention. The questions of law were (1) As to the right of plaintiffs to hypothecate the stock for advances made to them :--Held, there was the right of hypothecation. (2) Were the shares sold by Chandler & Co. to the plaintiffs in December defendant's shares so that he was entitled to call that a conversion and to compel plain-tiffs to account as of that date? [Reference to Clarkson v. Snider, 10 O. R. 568] :-Held, plaintiffs never parted with the stock so as to prejudice defendant, and ways had such control of a sufficient amout of the stock as would enable them to geliver it to the defendant upon demand and upon payment of balance due by him. Stock was sold without instructions from defendant, as the memorandum of the bought note permitted them to do plaintiffs entitled to what they paid Held. Chandler & Co., but to no profit on that sale (a sale for their own benefit). Plaintiffs apparently paid 1-16, equivalent to $18.75. Cre-dit to defendant of $56.25. A greater rate of interest than the statutory 5 per cent. and that not compounded was not allowed. Otherwise judgment for plaintiff for principal, interest and costs. Ames v. Conmee, 4 O. W. R. 460, 6 O, W. R. 89, 10 O. L. R. 159.

Shares purchased by one broker for another — Delivery at 90 days — Price dropped — Failure of purchaser to accept shares—Sale at a loss—Action for loss— Counterclaim for conversion.]—Plaintiffs alleged that defendants purchased from them, subject to the rules, customs and regulations of the stock exchange of the city of Toronto, 10,000 shares of the Temiskaming Mining Co. at $1.09 per share, total price $10,900. which was to be payable, and which they said defendants agreed to pay in 90 days or sooner, if defendants sooner called for delivery of the shares, and that defendants refused delivery, and plaintiffs, after notice, sold the shares for $8,818,-Defendants alleged that they called upon plaintiffs to deliver the stock, but that they were unable to do so, and counterclaimed for $10,000 damages for conversion of said shares .- Sutherland, J., held, that plaintiffs should be given judgment for $2,082, with interest and costs, being the difference between the contract price for the shares and the price actually obtained for them by plaintiffs. Counterclaim dismissed with costs. Warren, Gzoueski & Co. v. Forst & Co. (1910), 17 O. W. R. 333, 2 O. W. N. 222.

Shares-Purchase for customer on margin - Hypothecation of shares by broker -Fraud and misrepresentation-Damages.]-Plaintiff brought action against defendants, stock brokers, for $8,153.46, alleged to have been paid by plaintiff to them for certain stocks she had instructed them to buy for her and for their commission thereon, but which she alleged they had not done, or if they had bought the stocks, that they had converted them to their own use, and she further claimed damages for misrepresentation, deception and conversion of her said shares. At trial MacMahon, J., dismissed the action with costs. Divisional Court dis-missed plaintiff's appeal with costs. Court of Appeal held, that plaintiff received from defendants all she bargained for, at the time and in the manner in which she was to receive it under her contract, and, having sold and converted to ner own use that which she so received, it was obvious that she could not have any good cause of action. Appeal disnave any good cause of action. Appeal dis-missed with costs. Comme v, Sccuritics Holdir-Co., 38 S. C. R. 601, distinguished. Judgments at trial, 14 O. W. R. 104, and of Divisional Court, 14 O. W. R. 848, affirmed. Clark v, Buillie (1910), 15 O. W. R. 691, 20 O. L. R. 611.

Shares-Purchase on margin-Depreciation-Sale by broker - Notice-Acquies-cence,]-The defendant instructed the plaintiffs' manager at Winnipeg to purchase for him, on a margin of 3 per cent., 100 shares of Erie Railway stock. The plaintiffs, through their agents, bought the shares on the New York Stock Exchange, and the agents thereafter held them subject to the control and order of the plaintiffs. The de-fendant was informed within an hour of the purchase and the price paid. The next day he received the usual advice note of the trans action, in which it was stated that on all marginal business the plaintiffs reserved the right to close transactions when margins are running out, without further notice. Two weeks afterwards the price of the shares began to fall, and the margin became so small that the manager telegraphed the defendant at Gladstone to send $500 additional mar-gin; and later in the same day, the margin being entirely lost, he telegraphed the de-fendant to put up $1,000 further margin. Defendant replied to these telegrams: "Will attend message, down to-morrow." The man ager gave no express notice that he would sell the shares unless the margins demanded were put up, but waited until the delivery of the mail from Gladstone the next morn-ing. Then, not having heard from the defendant, he telegraphed to have the shares sold, which was done at a loss of $1,150 :-Held, that there was an actual purchase of the shares for the defendant, and it was not necessary that the shares should have been actually transferred on the books of the railway company, either to the defendant or to the plaintiffs. 2. There was an actual sale of the shares regularly made on the defendant's account, according to the usages of the stock-broking business. 3. The plaintiffs were entitled, under the terms of the notice sent to the defendant, to sell the shares, without notice to him, when the margin was erhausted, as the defendant, not having objected to these terms, must be taken, sfrer a reasonable time, to have assented to them. VanDusen Harrington Co. v, Morton, 24 Occ. N. 29, 15 Man, L. R. 222.

Stock-Purchase on margin - Pledge of stock by broker-Possession for delivery to purchaser.]-C. instructed A. & Co., brokers. to purchase for him on margin 300 shares of a certain stock, paying them $3,000, leaving a balance of $6,225 according to the market price at the time. A. & Co. instructed bro-kers in Philadelphia to purchase for them 600 shares of stock paying $9,000, nearly half the price, and pledged the whole 600 for the balance. The Philadelphia brokers pledged these shares with other securities to a bank as securities for indebtedness, and later drew on A. & Co, for the balance due thereon, attaching the script to the draft, which was returned unpaid, and 475 of the 600 shares were then sold, and the remaining 125 returned to A. & Co. In an action by the latter to recover from C, the balance due on the advance to purchase the shares. with interest and commission :- Held, reversing the judgment of the Court of Appeal, E. Ames & Co. v. Conmee, 12 O. L. R. 5, which affirmed the judgment in 10 O. 435. L. R. 159. Fitzpatrick, C.J.C., dissenting, that A. & Co. never had the shares for deliv-ery to C. on payment of the amount due by him, and therefore could not recover.—Held, also, that the brokers had no right to bypo thecate the shares with others for a greater sum than was due from C. unless they had an agreement with the pledgee whereby they could be released on payment of that sum that there never was a time when they could appropriate 300 of the shares pledged for delivery to C. on paying what the latter where y to contract the start the interference of the transaction contained this memorandum: "When carrying stocks for clients we reserve the right of pledging the same or raising money upon them in any way convenient to us."—Held, per Davies and Idington, JJ., that this did not justify the brokers in pledging the shares for a sum greater than that due from the customer .-- Per Duff, J. that the shares were purchased before this note was delivered, and it could not alter the character of the authority conferred on the brokers; and that no custom was proved which would modify the common law rights and duties of the brokers and their customer in the transaction. Conmee v. Securities Holding Co., 27 C. L. T. 484, 38 S. C. R. 601.

market consisting in the purchase of shares upon margin are operations permitted by law and cannot be compared to gaming or betting. 2. Stock brokers are not obliged to give notice to their customers that they are about to sell their stocks if they do not furnish margin to cover sudden fluctuations of the market. 3. A demand for margin by telegram does not create, as regards the brokers, the obligation not to sell the stock of the customer where the latter has consented to furbish the margin demanded, and has informed the broker of his consent. *Bellews V. Stockbroking transactions -- " Commercial matters in writing-Notice to produce-Authority to brokers-Stock exchange terms.]-In an action by stockbrokers against their principal to recover the balance of their account in respect of sales and purchases of shares for that a plaintiff was a competent witness under s. 2 of 54 V. c. 45.-2. An admission by the defendant in his deposition that he employed the plaintiffs as his stockbrokers, and that they bought and sold something for him, is a sufficient commencement of proof in writing under Art. 1233 (7) to let in oral evidence of the particulars.- 3. Art. 1233 (6) authorises reception of secondary evidence of bought and sold notes in pos session of the adverse party without a notice to produce ; and an objection thereto not taken at the trial cannot be taken in appeal. -4. The defendant in giving authority to the plaintiffs to do business on the stock exchange must be taken, in the absence of evi dence to the contrary, to have employed them on the terms of the stock exchange, and therefore to have authorised the sale of his shares on failure to supply them with the requisite funds. Contractor for building — Faults of construction—Warranty for ten years—Acceptance by owner-Commencement of period - Superintendence of work by owner -Churchwardens-Defective work-Repair -Deduction of cost from drawback.]-The contractor for the construction of a building from plans and specifications warrants the construction free from fault for a period of construction free from fault for a period of 10 years, notwithstanding the acceptance of the work by the owner. The acceptance has the effect only of fixing the date from which the 10-year period begins to run,--2, Such obligation of warranty exists notwithstand-ing superintendence of the work by the owner. Therefore, superintendence by the curé of work done for the churchwardens for the construction of a church, cannot be set up by the contractor against the claim of the churchwardens founded upon the warranty .-3. Churchwardens who have stipulated for the retention of a percentage upon the contract price, as a guarantee for the execution of the contract, have a remedy by way of compelling the contractor to repair defective competing the contractor to repair detective work, and are authorised upon his default to conform to the judgment, to repair the work themselves at his expense, deducting it from the amount retained in their hands. Churchwardens of the Parish of St. Pie de Guire v. Shawinigan Construction Co., Q. R. 32 S. C. 212.

Encroachment on land of neighbour —Remedy—Damages.]—When a building is erected in good faith upon the land of another, with the knowledge of the owner, the latter cannot revendicate it as belonging to him nor force the person erecting it to take it down. Art. 532, cl. 4, C. C.]—The contramure provided for by cl. 4 of Art. 532, C. C., is only required where the stable is built near a party wall or the wall of the neighbour. Therefore, there is no obligation to make a contramure for a stable built the length of an inside court or at a distance of several feet from a wooden shed or kitchen without a cellar or stone foundation.—This obligation is imposed for the preservation of the wall against which the stable leans and to prevent injury to it. It is not effective when the stable is properly placed and does not threaten danger to the neighbouring wall. Deloy v. Saint-Jean, Q. R. 31 S. C. 97.

Art 532 (4). C. C .- Servitudes-Counterwall.]-An action lies in favour of the owner of a servient tenement against the owner of the dominant one to have it declared that the condition of the former has been aggravated by the latter in the use of the servitude, and for an order upon him to desist from the acts of aggravation complained of. He who builds a stable near a common wall a wall belonging to his neighbour, is OF obliged to make a counter-wall or other works as provided in Art. 532 (4), C. C. 3. The rule of the Article is a fixed one to provide against a cause of probable damage and to preclude the greater number of disputes which would otherwise arise. Relief from the obligation cannot, therefore, be obtained through care, cleanliness, or the avoidance of injury to the neighbour. 4. It is imposed as a protection, not merely to the wall from deterioration, but also to the neighbour from nuisance or injury. 5. Nor does it matter how the neighbouring wall is constructed, whether of masonry or of wooden planks. 6. The obligation also arises in the case of the enlargement of a stable which has existed for many years, during which it has not been Judgment in Q. R. 31 S. C. 97 Defoy v. Saint-Jean, Q. R. 16 K enforced. reversed. B. 432.

Faults of construction—Neglect to repair—Injury from — Liability—Usufructuary — Remainderman — Joint and several liability.]—When injuries are caused by a fault in construction of a building or by neglect to keep the building in repair, the building being subject to a right of usufruct, the usufructuary and the remainderman are jointly responsible, the former because he has the structure, the cause of the trouble, under his care (Art. 1054, C. C.), and the latter as proprietor (1055 C. C.) If the ownersolie according to the terms of Art. 1106, C. C. Laplante v. Saint-Germain, Q. R. 34 S. C. 497.

Grant of usufruct of land while building thereon endures—Gradual replacing of parts.]—Usufruct of land for the period of time that a house built upon it shall "subsist and last," comes to an end when, by works of repair and construction, the house is virtually replaced by another. This substitution may be said to have taken place when several parts of the building, without which it would not exist, have been replaced by new ones. Beaudry V. Chouinière (1906), Q. R. 28 S. C. 1. Negligence — Sale of ruined building— Personal responsibility of vendor.]—Where a ruined building is sold by A. to B., B. engaging himself to remove the materials from the ground, there is no responsibility imposed upon A., under the provisions of Art. 1054 of the Civil Code of Lower Canada, in respect of injuries sustained in consequence of the negligence of B, in the removal of the materials, as A. had no control over the operations of demolition and removal hy B. and his workmen. Judrament in Eastern Tournships Bank v. De Kérangat v. Eastern Tournships Bank, Al S. C. R. 259.

Obligations of architects and con-tractors—Ten years' warranty—Addition to building—Acceptance of work—Payment for —Inspection—Rights of subsequent conners of building.]-The ten years' warranty due by architects and contractors under Arts 1688 and 1696, C. C., applies to additions made to a building after its erection, and extends to the fit and sufficient state of the latter to receive the additions and to the safe and proper adapting of the ones to the other. Hence, a contractor who installs a fire-extinguishing apparatus, or automatic sprinkler, in a store, is liable for damage caused to the stock therein by the bursting caused to the stork there of the was un-skilfully connected, and which becomes dis-jointed through not having been properly braced. 2. The acceptance of the work and payment for the same does not extinguish the obligation of warranty, nor does a clause in the contract that the work shall be inspected and approved and accepted by a third party, which is complied with, nor a further one that no obligation, "other than herein set forth," shall be binding upon the parties. 3. The right to enforce the war-ranty is not personal to the owner with whom the contract is made. If attaches to the work and passes with the same to subsequent owners of the building during the decennial period. McGuire v, Fraser, O. R. 17 K. B. 449. Affirmed, Davies, J., dubi-tante, 40 S. C. R. 577.

Removal — Rights of owner of land — Remedy — Possessory action — Recendication.].—The remedy by way of possessory action is not open for the purpose of removing or demolishing a building, as acainst one who has been in possession of it for several years. A person claiming to be the owner of the soil upon which the building is erected must proceed to assert his claim of right to the property by revendication. Dansereau v. Dansereau, Q. R. 16 K. E. 426.

Taking down and removing—Employment of contractor — Injury to person in course of work — Liability of owner—Art. 1958, C. C.1—The owner of a building who lets a contract for its demolition, or who nells it on the condition that it be removed by the purchaser, has not, within the meaning of Art. 1054, C. C., the "control" of the contractor or purchaser, and is not in any sense his employer or principal, nor his warrantor as regards his servants or the public, in respect of accidents which may occur in the course of the work. *Eastern Townships Bank v. By a mistake of the defendants' servants, the body was put off the train at Banff, and did not arrive at Bawlf until a day later than it should have Bawif until a day later than it should have arrived, occasioning expense by postpone-ment of the funeral, etc. The plaintiff's luggage was also treated in the same way, and she was put to expense in consequence: -Held, that the proposition, accepted in English law, that there can be no property in a corpse, does not rest upon a sound foundation, and is not sustainable at least as a general proposition. The English decisions rest to a large extent upon ecclesiastical law, rest to a large extent upon ecclesinstical law, which has no application or effect in Alberta. --Review of the decisions.--The true rule is, that, inansmuch as there is a legal right of custody, control, and disposition. the law recognises property in a corpse, but property subject to a trust, and limited in its rights to such exercise as shall be in conformity with the duty out of which the rights arise.--Petigreve V. Petifyerev (1904), 207 Pa, 313, 64 L. R. A. 179, approved.--The property in a corpse is subject, on the one hand, to the obligations of proper care and decent burial. obligations of proper care and decent burial, and the restraints upon its voluntary or in-voluntary disposal and use provided by law, or arising out of the fact that the thing in question is a corpse; and, on the other hand, the nature and extent of the right or obliga-tion of the person for the time being claim-ing property; and the Courts will give appro-priate remedies against interference with the right of custody, possession, and control of a corpse awaiting burial, pre-supposing a right of property therein, subject to the obligations and restrictions indicated:—Heid also, that the action was one of tort, for damages oc-casioned by the defendants' negligence; and the plaintiff was entitled to recover as dam-ages not only the money loss occasioned by or arising out of the fact that the thing in ages not only the money loss occasioned by the mistake, but compensation for her mental anguish occasioned by the delay and the decomposition of the corpse.—Review of the authorities. Action by assignee to set aside assignment of interest in land made by debtor within 60 days of assignment-Assignments Act. 8. 42-Application to subsequent conveyances -Right of assignce for creditors-Trust-Statute of Frauds-Pleading.1-A few days before making a general assignment for the benefit of his creditors to the plaintiff, W. assigned to his wife, one of the defendants, his interest under an agreement for sale of land, on which he had paid $200, and had erected on the land a building, the money for which was supplied by his wife, on the understanding that she was to have the prop-Three months earlier she had entered erty. into an agreement with the knowledge and consent of W., to transfer this property to S., the other defendant, in consideration of a promissory note for $1,200 made by W. and endorsed by her, the property to be re-transferred on payment of the note with interest. At this time all the parties considered that the property was hers. Just before the general assignment, when the vendors under the agreement for sale were pressing for payment, W. made the assignment to his wife, who then assigned to the defendant S., who subsequently paid the balance due to the vendors, and obtained title. In an action to set aside the transactions and make the property available for W.'s debts, it was held by the trial Judge that the trans-actions were bona fide, but should be set aside under s. 42 of the Assignments Act, because the transfer by W. was made within wide enough to authorize this result; the section is limited to conveyances made by the debtor, and does not apply to any subsequent conveyance; and an assigne's rights are only such as conferred by the statute. The most that could be done, therefore, would be to set aside the assignment by W, to his wife, which would be of no effect:—Held, also, that, as W, was in effect a trustee for his wife, who had the beneficial interest under the agreement for sale, he was not assigning his own interest, but hers; and, the Statute of Frude not being plended and no amendment having been asked, it was not assessary to consider whether it applied. P. 174.]—In an action to set aside a deed of sale for fraud, the plaintiff will be permitted to conclude generally that the defendant be ordered to return to him moasys received and the land still in his possession, if he is ignorant of what sums of money were received or what parts of the land have been sold.—Plaintiff cannot be held to allege facts of which he is ignorant and whereby it was intended that he should be defrauded. Garand v. Chaput, 11 Que, P. R. 114.

Action to set aside-Judgment creditor -Lapse of execution-Homestead entry -Trustee-Evidence-Costs.]-In an action to set aside a conveyance of lands as a fraud upon creditors, if the action is not brought on behalf of all the creditors of the debtor, the plaintiffs must shew that they have obtained both judgment and execution, and if their executions have elapsed for want of renewal before the commencement of the action, the action will fail. A. D. made a homestead entry on certain lands, but by mistake his homestead duties were performed on adjoining lands. The Government cancelled his entry but agreed to sell the lands to the nominee of A. D. at $1 an acre. In pursuance of this agreement the lands were sold by the Government to one Alloway, as A. D.'s nominee, and Alloway received a patent for the same : --Heid, that Alloway held the lands as trustee for A. D., and that a transfer of the lands from Alloway to the defendant, the wife of A. D., for which the defendant gave no consideration, and which was made at a time when A. D. was, to the knowledge of the de-fendant, in insolvent circumstances, should be set aside as fraudulent and void. A letter written by A. D. to one of the plaintiffs subsequently to the date of the transfer attacked was held to be inadmissible as evidence against the defendant. Costs in case of par-tial success of the plaintiff. McDonald v. Dunlop (No. 2), 2 Terr. L, R. 238.

Action to set aside — Limitation of time—Parties.] — An action to annul acts done by a debtor in fraud of his creditors' rights, must, as regards third persons, be brought within a year from the date when the creditor had knowledge thereof; and all parties to the deed sought to be annulled, must be made parties to the suit. Smith v. Bouffard, Q. R. 25 S. C. 448.

Action to set aside—Parties—Grantor.] —The execution debtor is not a necessary tor a proper party to an action by execution creditors to set aside a conveyance made by him as fraudulent and void as against them, no relief being claimed against him except costs. Participation in frand is not a sufficient ground for adding a party for purpose of rendering bim liable for costs. McDonald V, Dunlop (No. 1), 2 Terr. L. R. 177. Action to set aside—Previous action— Different creditors—Res judicata—Intent to defraud—Evidence—Subsequent conveyance— Purchaser for value — Notice — Purchase money — Equitable relief, Burns v. Action to set aside-Sale of land a réméré-Equity of redemption only left-Contract prejudicing creditors.] - A sale of land à réméré, which leaves the vendor without other means of paying his debts than that of his right to redeem, is a contract which is calculated to prejudice his creditors, the right to redeem being less valuable than the ownership of the land, and therefore may be set aside as a fraud on creditors. The fact that the purchaser furnished the vendor with money to pay some of his creditors, is evidence of the fact that he knew that the vendor had creditors, and acted in fraud of their When it is a question of the credirights. bility of a witness who gave evidence before the trial Judge an appellate Court ought only to set a different value on the evidence of such witness when the manner of the witness furnishes strong reasons for so doing, and in doubtful cases ought to follow the trial Judge. Laflamme v. Fortier, Q. R. 27 S. C. 96.

Action to set aside—Status of creditor: creditor — Prescription.] — Held, reversing the judgment in Q. R. 15 S. C. 577, that the creditor of a person who is himself creditor of a third, who has made a deed in fraud of creditors, may, in his name, as exercising the rights of his debtor, attack the deed and have it set aside: and the prescription against his action runs from the time he knew of the fraudulent conveyance, and not from the date of the judgment in his favour in garnishing proceedings against the fraudulent debtor as garnishee. Charron v. Tourangeous, Q. R. 16 S. C. 480.

Action to set aside—Status of plainiff as creditor of grantor—Judgment establishing liability of grantor—Amount not ascertained — Reference — Receiver – Impeached conveyance made before amount ascertained — Voluntary conveyance — Express intent to defeat plainiff's claim — Assignce for creditors of grantee—Costs out of estate. Action to set aside — Time — Knorledge-Burden of proof.]—On the trial of a contested action pauliana, brought more than a year after the contract impeached was made, but in which the plaintiff allexes that he only obtained knowledge of it within the preceding year, the burden of proof is not on the plaintiff to establish the negative propsition that he did not know of it sooner, beit on the contesting defendant to show affirmatively that he did. Bill to set aside-Injunction-Affidavit Administration - Parties - Pleading -Judgment - Probate Court - Jurisdiction - Delay-Limitation of actions - Demurrer -Costs.]-Under 53 V. c. 4, ss. 23, 24, a bill in an injunction suit need not be sworn to or supported by affidavit. It is only where an injunction is sought before the hearing that the bill must be supported by affidavit. In a suit by simple contract creditors of an intestate to set aside as fraudulent, under 13 Eliz, c. 5, a conveyance testate. On failure to make the administration by the Court of the estate, an administrator of the intestate's estate appointed by the Probate Court is a necessary party to the suit, though there are no personal assets of the intestate. The failure to make the administrator a party to such a suit is not a ground of demurrer but may be taken ad-vantage of under Act 53 V. c. 4, s. 54. In such a suit it is not necessary for the plaintiff to allege that he has obtained or is in course of obtaining a judgment upon his debt. The Court will not in such a suit appoint a person under 54 V. c. 4, s. 89, to represent the estate of the intestate, instead of requiring an administrator of the intestate's estate to be made a party to the suit. The Probate Court has jurisdiction to grant letters of administration where an intestate dies indebted possessed of real, but of no personal, estate. Delay cannot be set up against a creditor seeking to set aside a conveyance of lands as fraudulent under 13 Eliz. c. 5, where the creditor's debt is not barred under the Statute of Limitations at the commencement of the suit. In a suit commenced in 1899 by a creditor to set aside as fraadulent, under 13 Eliz. c. 5, a conveyance of land, the bill stated that the debt arose upon two promissory notes dated respectively in March and April, 1885, payable with interest three and twelve months after date; that the rates "were renewed and carried along from time to time by new or renewal or other notes, but have never been paid, but with interest thereon are still due to the plaintift."—Held, that the allegations were too vague, general, and uncertain to shew a valid and subsisting debt, not barred by the Statute of Limitations at the time of the commencement of the suit, and that the bill was therefore demurrable. Where some of several grounds of demurre were overruled, costs were not allowed to either side. Trikes v, Humphries, 19 Occ. N. 407, 2 N. B. Eq. Reps. 1.

Bona fides of grantee.]—In an action to set aside a conveyance as fraudulent against creditors, the evidence shewing that there was an actual sale from the debtor to the claimant, and that, even if there was any fraudulent intent on the part of the former, the latter bought bona fide, the conveyance was held valid. Steele v. Ramsay, 1 Terr. L. R. 1.

Canceliation of lease for breach of covenants, when involving over $100 rent is within the jurisdiction of the Superior Court even if plaintiff does not ask damages, and such action brought in the Circuit Court may be moved into the Superior Court, even if plaintiff does not sue for $100. Provisions of Art. 1152 C. P. do not apply, subject to rules laid down in Art 49 C. P. Poire v. Lavigne (1990), 38 Que S. C. 19.

Collusion-Immoral consideration-Pleading-Amendment.]-V., a miner and prospec-tor, in 1896 engaged B. as a servant in an hotel kept by him in Revelstoke, on the understanding that the rate of wages would be fixed when he found out what she was worth. And some weeks afterwards he fixed the rate at $50 per month. A few months afterwards V. built a house, and he and B. lived there as man and wife. In November, 1898, V. made an assignment for the benefit of his reditors, having seven days previously con-veyed to B, the house property for an al-leged consideration of $1,200, as representing her wages for two years. She had never asked for wages before October, 1898, and then V. was hopelessly in debt:—Held, in an action to set aside the conveyance, on the ground of its being fraudulent under 13 Eliz. c. 5, that there was collusion between V. and B. to defeat V.'s creditors :--Held, also, that the conveyance was void on the ground that it was based on an immoral consideration; also, that, if necessary, the statement of claim could be amended to conform to the evidence. Holten v. Vandall, 20 Occ. N. 427, 7 Brit. Col. L. R. 331.

Consideration—13 Elis. c. 5,1—In 1801 E. S., a farmer, since deceased, agreed with two of his sons, in consideration of their remaining on the farm and supporting him and their mother, and paying to their two sisters $1,000 each, that the farm and his personal property should be theirs. The farm consisted of adjoining pieces of land, each worth about $3,200. Subsequently the sons paid more than $3,000 in paying off balance of purchase money due on the farm, paid $2,000 to the sisters, and supported the father and mother. On the 19th July, 1859, the father conveyed the farm to the sons for an expressed consideration of $1. At that time he Crown patent obtained by fraud.]-Action to have it declared that the patent for north half of lot 19 in con. B. of tp. of Widdifield, issued to defendant, was procured by fraud, and to have it repealed, cancelled, voided, and declared to be null and void, that defendant has no legal right, title or interest in, and to the said lands, and for a judgment for possession granted to plaintiff. At trial Appeal held, that as the settlement duties had not been performed to knowledge of defendant the patent should be set aside, but it did not follow that defendant should lose the land. The revocation simply put the matter where it stood before patent was issued, and the Crown could be trusted to act with justice toward defendant upon a fresh application. Atty.-Gen. for Ont. v. Devlin (1910), 15 O. W. R. 584.

Declaration-Sale - Exemption-Homestead.]-The defendant Mrs. R. conveyed land to her son without consideration because she thought she might thereby prevent the sale of the land to realize the plaintiff's claim, and both she and her son admitted that fact in this action, and that the property was the mother's and that the son had no interest in it. The plaintiff sought a declaration that the land belonged to the mother and that the son held it only as trustee for her and asked a sale of the land to satisfy the lien of his registered judgment: — Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to the declaration asked for, but not to a sale, as the property was exempt under s. 9 of the Judgments Act, R. S. M. 1902, c. 91, it being the actual residence and home of the judgment debtor, and not worth more than $1.500. Roberts v. Hartley, 14 Man. L. R. 284, 23 Occ. N. 53, and Mer-chants Bank v. McKenzie, 13 Man. L. R. 19, distinguished. Logan v. Rea, 24 Occ. N. 30, 14 Man. L. R. 543.

Deed—Will—Administrators—Action by, to set aside deed of 50 acres of land as fraudulent and void,]—Plaintiffs, administrators of the estate of Malloy, brought action with will annexed, to set aside a deed of 50 acres of land made by said Malloy to one Cook, as being fraudulent and void. The evidence shewed that the deed was prepared at the instance of defendant and excented by Malloy without independent advice, and without the same being fully and properly explained to him, and that Malloy was over 80 years of age and could neither read nor right:—Held, that the transaction was in substance a gift from Malloy to defendant, and having regard to the position of the parties, the aze, condition and helplesness of Malloy, the onus was clearly upon defendant to establish the perfect furness of the transaction, that the donor clearly and perfectly understood what he was doing and realised that by signing the deed he was in effect signing away all his property. That this was not done and plaintiffs are entitled to have the conveyance set aside and the registration thereof cancelled. Trusts a Guarantee Co, V. Cook (1909), 14 O. W. R.

Exchange of lands-Creditors' action to set aside-Judgment against debtor defendant -Subsequent registration of conveyance to him - Vacating registration.]-The defendants A, and B, exchanged lands by contemporaneous conveyances, and the plaintiff, suing on behalf of himself and all other creditors of A., brought action to set aside the conveyance of A.'s lands to B. The trial Judge found that the conveyance of A.'s lands to B. The trail lands to B. was fraudulent and void as against A.'s creditors, and ordered that it should be set aside and the lands revested in A, for the benefit of his creditors, but refused to make any direction as to the lands conveyate by B. to A. The conveyance of the last-mentioned lands was subsequently registered by the plaintiff's solicitor, and it was contended that the plaintiff was also entitled to claim the proceeds of the property thereby conveyed :--Held, that the registra-tion of the deed of B.'s lands to A, should be vacated and the lands revested in B. free and clear of any cloud thereon caused by the registration of the deed, Pringle v. Olshinet. sky, 17 O. L. R. 38, 11 O. W. R. 871.

Exemptions - Lien of registered judgment - Taking proceedings under, while debtor in occupation-County Courts Act-Judgments Act.]-The registration of a certifeate of judgment, under ss. 196 and 197 of the County Courts Act, R. S. M. c. 33, as amended by 55 V. c. 7, s. 5, bluds and charges the land of the judgment debtor, though it may be his actual residence or home, and the creditor may take proceedings to realize whenever the defendant ceases to be entitled to claim the property as his exemption. Front v. Driver, 10 Man. L. R. 319, 15 Occ. N. 169. 2. When a debtor has absolutely followed. conveyed all his interest in the land on which he resides by a conveyance valid and binding on him, even when set aside by the Court as against creditors, the claim that the land is an exemption of his under s. 12 of the Judg-ments Act, R. Under such circumstances, when the debtor has made a con-veyance of his home, which is fraudulent against creditors under 13 Eliz. c. 5, the creditor is entitled to an immediate order for sale of the property to realize the amount of the judgment and costs. Exemptions-Real Property Act-Burden of proof-Concealed fraud - Laches-Limitation of actions.]-The plaintiffs were judgment creditors of the defendant McL., who at the time judgment was recovered was, and had since remained, in insolvent circumstances; and this action was brought to have it declared that two quarter sections of land which were bought after the recovery of the judgment in the name of the defendant McK, were held by her as a bare trustee for McL., or had been fraudulently transferred to her in order to hinder and defeat the creditors of McL. Both parcels of land had formerly belonged to McL., but they had been sold for arrears of taxes in 1886; and subsequently the purchasers, after negotiations carried on by McL. or his solicitor. assigned the tax sale certificates to the defendant McK., a poor girl who lived with McL., her uncle. Tax deeds were issued to her by the municipality, and certificates of title under the Real Property Act were obtained for both parcels in her name. She claimed that she had furnished the money, $125, required to acquire the tax sale certificates, but the evidence in support of this was not satisfactory to the Court, which held that the onus was upon her to establish this fact by clear and convincing proof, and the additional sum, about $125 more, required to complete the purchases and procure the certificates of title, was not provided by her. After the purchase, the charge and management of the lands were left wholly in McL.'s hands, and McL. had never received any rents or exercised any rights of ownership except that she agreed to a suggestion McL.'s son, made to that her cousin, her seven or eight years ago, that she should rent them to him. But no terms were discussed and he had paid her no The evidence also shewed that the rent. defendant McL, had himself cultivated and managed the farms for his own benefit, and had in fact always dealt with the lands as if they were his own, but in his evidence at the trial he stated that he had been working for his son in cultivating the land :--Held that the piaintiffs were entitled to the relief asked for, and that s. 57 of the Real Property Act, R. S. M. c. 133, as amended by 55 V. c. 38, s. 4, does not prevent the granting of the relief, as it provides that a certificate of title is "subject to the right of any person to shew fraud wherein the registered owner has participated or colluded," and the law declares that such a transaction as was held to have been proved is fraudulent under 13 Eliz. c. 5, and Mc.K. participated in it. Barrack v. McCulloch, 3 K. & J. 117; Merchants Bank v, Clark, 18 Gr. 594; Harris v. Rankin, 4 Man. L. R. 129; and Re Massey and Gibson, 7 Man. L. R. 172, followed, 2 The Statute of Limitations could not be set up as a defence, as the fraud was a concealed one, and the plaintiffs, without any want of reasonable diligence, became aware of the facts only about eighteen months be-fore the commencement of the action. 3. That the defendant McL., in view of the evidence given by himself at the trial, was not entitled to claim any part of the lands as exempt from seizure and sale. Merchants' Bank v. McKenzie, 18 Occ. N. 367, 20 Occ. N. 90, 13 Man. L. R. 19.

Foreign assignment of personal property-Conflict of laws-Onus of proof - Garnishment - Equitable execution.] -A share in the annual income of an estate in Ireland payable under will, through the hands of the executors living in New Brunswick, to the beneficiary living and domiciled in Massachusetts, was assigned by the beneficiary by assignment executed in Massachusetts to a trustee in trust, first to maintain the assignor and his family, and, second, to pay his creditors a limited sum. In a suit in New Brunswick to set aside the assignment as fraudulent and void against a judgment creditor of the assignor, under 13 Eliz, c, 5 :- Held, that the validity of the assignment should not be determined by the lex domicilli of the assignor; (2) that, assuming that the validity of the assignment should be determined by the law of Massachusetts, the onus of proving that the assignment was invalid by that law was upon the defendant, and that, in the absence of such proof, it must be assumed that the law of Massachusetts was the same as that of New Brunswick; (3) that, as the money coming into the hands of the executor was liable to attachment under 45 V. c. 17, s. 21, or to equitable execution, the plaintiff was prejudiced by the assignment within 13 Eliz. c. 5. Black v. Moore, 20 Occ. N. 463, 2 N. B. Eq. Reps. 98, Frandulent conveyance — Insolvency of grantor.]—Plaintiff having endorsed the note of the defendant J., received as security a deed of certain property of which the defendant F, now claims to be the owner, alleging his co-defendant was merely a trustee : —Held, that plaintiff's equity must prevail, notwithstanding J, was not in possession when note endorsed. Lovitt v. Succency, 7 E, R, 391.

Fraudulent conveyance of real cestate.]--R. on the eve of absconding, had conveyed two valuable farms to McV, who was his brother-in-law. Attachment was issued by plaintiff against R., and McV, was summoned as agent or trustee for R. McV. claimed the lands as his own. Plaintiff sought to have deeds declared fraudulent and void as against creditors and moved that McV, be declared garnishee. The Court was satisfied that there was fraud:---Held. (Palmer, C.J., Hensley, J., concurring. Peters, J., dissenting), that this Court could not under the present enquiry declare the deeds void. Davies v. Rogerson (1877), 2 P. E. I. R. 161.

Fraudulent transfer of property.]---On February 10th, 1908, plaintiff commenced an action against defendant, and judgment was signed for $764.58 on June 5th. 1908. On May 20th, 1908, defendant conveyed certain real estate to his son in consideration of $400 for work performed by son for defendant father and a mortgage for $500. Defendant was not insolvent at time he made the conveyance. The only creditors he had besides his son were the plaintiff and a solicitor to whom he owed a small amount for professional services rendered in connection with D.'s suit against him :--Held, that the conveyance would not be set aside and the bill must be dismissed, as the evidence shewed that the sale was made bona fide for a valuable consideration with the intent to pass the property, and in such a case it was immaterial whether or not there was an intention to defeat or defraud a creditor. Marriage settlement - Action to set aside-Letter accepting proposal of marriage on condition of property being settled-Bona Ades - Suspicious circumstances.]-On the 31st October, 1906, the plaintiff obtained a verdict for $1,000 damages against the defendant G. H. W. in an action for breach of promise of marriage; there was an appeal, which was dismissed by consent on the 25th January, 1907; judgment was entered for the plaintiff on the 26th January, and execution placed in the sheriff's hands on the 6th February. Early in October, 1906, G. H. W. had proposed marriage to Miss C.; she took time to consider, and on the 16th January, 1907 (never having seen him in the meantime), wrote him a letter in which she alluded to the "trouble" he was in (mean-ing the action), and accepted his proposal on condition that he should settle upon her and her children (if any) $2,500 in money or property. On the 28th January he instructed a solicitor to prepare a marriage settlement, which he did, and this was executed at the solicitor's office, where G. H. W., Miss C., and the trustees named in the instrument, his brother and sister-in-law (whom Miss C. had never seen before and whose home was in a distant province) met, on the following day. The property of G. H. W. included in the settlement was $1,000 in money and an equity in land of the value of $500, being practically the whole of his property. The marriage took place on the same day. In an action against G. H. W., his wife, and the trustees, to declare the settlement fraudulent and void : - Held, that there were circumstances of grave suspicion surrounding the transaction; if the letter were part of a scheme, the fact that G. H. W. was in difficulty, and that the action was in diffi-culty, and that the action was pending against him, and that the effect of making the transfer of the property would be to prevent recovery by the plaintiff upon her judgment, would make the transaction void under the Statute of Elizabeth ; but, the trial Judge having found that there was an honest offer of marriage, that the letter was genuine, and the wife (then Miss C.) honest in her statement of the condition upon which she would accept the offer, the plaintiff could not succeed. Bulmer v. Hunter, L, R. 8 Eq. 46. dis-tinguished. Fallis v. Wilson, 10 O. W. R. 121, 605, 15 O. L. R. 55.

Mortgage—Action to annul registration of exhibits—Motion for filing thereof—C. P. 155, 157.]—In an action for the annulment of the registration of a mortgage, the defendant has the right to move that the plaintiff be ordered to produce a document referred to in the declaration as having been exhibited to the defendant and to which the latter was requested to affx his signature or an authentic copy thereof, in order that he may plead to said action. Auger v. Auger (1900), 10 Que, P. R. 306.

Mortgage by company to bank to secure existing debt. |-Plaintiff, liquida-tor of the New Ontario Brewing Co., brought action to set aside a mortgage by the company to defendants, on the ground: (1) that it was made within three months preceding the commencement of winding-up proceedings; (2) that no by-law of the com-pany was passed authorising the mortgage. Sutherland, J., held (15 O. W. R. 536, 1 O. W. N. 519), that the con-sideration mentioned in the mortgage was proved to have consisted of an existing debt from the company to the bank, and that the bank was endeavouring to get security therefor. Plaintiff was entitled to succeed under s, 94 of the Winding-up Act, the by-law was not properly ratified, and was without effect for the purpose of making the mortgage valid, Judgment for plaintiff as liquidator of the New Ontario Brewing Co., setting aside the mortgage, and the defendants to execute a discharge of it. Costs to plaintiff. Court of Appeal held, that the attack upon the mortgage failed and the appeal should be allowed and the action dismissed, but the circumstances were such as to invite enquiry, and costs should not be allowed either party, Hammond v. Band of Ottawa (1910), 17 O. W. R. 121, 2 O. W. N. 99, 22 O. L. R. 73,

Notes in favour of wife.]—In an action to have it declared that certain notes made to wife were fraudulent and void as against plaintiff, the notes in question having been given wife to bar her supposed dower and for money she had advanced to her husband:—Held, that if a debtor makes a payment, believing in good faith and on reasonable grounds that he is, although in fact he is not, legally bound to make it, such payment is not a fraudulent preference. Plaintiff had judgment against H. Co. and claimed H. Co. was otherwise indebted to him as such assignee. H. Co. moved to have its name struck out as a defendant:—Held, that company was a necessary party. Belcher v. Hudson, 9 W. L. K. 205.

Statute of limitations — Amendment after cause of action barred — Promissory note—Negotiable instrument—13 Eliz. c. 5— County Court judgment—Registration of certificate.]—1. An instrument in the form usually called a lien note is not a negotiable promissory note (Bank of Hamilton v. Gillics, 12 Man. L. R. 495), and the right of action upon it is barred by the Statute of Limitations in 6 years from the due date of it, without adding any days of grace .--- 2. A voluntary conveyance of land cannot he successfully attacked under 13 Eliz. c. 5, on the basis of a debt due at the time of the conveyance, but barred by lapse of time before the commencement of the action attack. Struthers v. Glennie, 14 O. R. 726. followed.-3. A voluntary conveyance of land, if meant to be absolute as between the parties, so that the grantee holds it free of trust for the grantor, leaves no interest to him which can be affected by the registration of certificate of a subsequently recovered County Court judgment against the grantor -A debt of the grantor, though owing at the time of the making of such voluntary conveyance, became afterwards barred by the Statute of Limitations before the creditor sued the grantor upon it. The grantor neglected to plead that statute, and judgment was recovered against him :--Held, that, as against the grantee, such judgment did not relate back to the original debt so as to form the basis for an action under 13 Eliz. c. 5. The grantee, having once gained the right to plead the Statute of Limitations in such last named action, can not be deprived of that right by the act or omission of the grantor. Keddy v. Valuable consideration — Judgment reditor—Tort—Cause of action.]—In 1893 the defendant and his son entered into a parol agreement that the defendant should convey his farm to the son, and that the son should labour upon the farm and support his parents. The farm was not conveyed to the son until the 2nd October, 1895. On the 24th September and on the 10th October. 1895, the defendant spoke words alleged to be defamatory of the plaintiff. Before the date of the conveyance the plaintiff warned the defendant of her intention to bring an action against him for slander. An action was brought for the words spoken on both occasions, and the plaintiff obtained a verdict for $123, which on motion for new trial was reduced to $63, being the amount of damages awarded by the verdict in respect to the defamatory words uttered on the 10th October. At the date of the conveyance the defendant was not in debt. In a suit to set the conveyance aside as fraudulent and void against the plaintiff under 13 Eliz. c. 5:-Held, that the conveyance was not within the statute. Gorman v. Urquhart, 2 N. B. Eq. company, and had borrowed money from the company upon them, but these shares up to the time of the failure of the company in June, 1903, were saleable above par, and considered then and at the time of the loan ample security for the amount of it. On the evidence, no frandulent intent on the part of the grantor could be inferred: -Held, that, although, at the time of action brought to sat were, by reason of it, hindered in recovering their claim, this was not the necessary consequence of the conveyance, within the meaning of R. S. O. 1807, c. 147, and therefore the conveyance could not be set aside. Spiritt V. Willows, 3 DeG & Sm. 203, and Freeman V. Pape, L. R. 5 Ch. 538, specially considered, Elgin Loan and Savings Co. V. mortgage - Subsequent Voluntary transfer to creditor - Pressure-Consideratransfer to creation — Pressure Considera-tion—Priorities—Future support of grantor —Statute of Elizabeth.]—In 1877 C. made a conveyance, by way of mortgage, to H. The conveyance was made without consideration, and in fraud of creditors, and was voidable as against creditors and subsequent purchasers for valuable consideration. In 1896 H., at the request of C., assigned the mori-gage so made to W., who was a creditor of C. and pressing for more , and pressing for payment, - Held ,that the mortgage, although fraudulently made in the first instance, was validated by the assignment to W. for valuable consideration; that the giving of time by W. to C. in connection with the antecedent indebtedness, was sufficient consideration to support the assignment. But the validating of the mortgage would not affect the right to priority of the party claiming under a second mortgage mode by C. pre-viously to the assignment of W. :-Held, also, following McNeil v. McPhee, 31 N. S. Reps. 140, that a deed made by C., the sole consideration for which was the future support of the maker and his wife by the grantee, was not founded upon valid consideration, within the Statute of Elizabeth. Agreement for carriage of goods— Costs of transport — Bills of lading — Non-Costs of transport — Bills of lading — Nondelivery of goods—Damages.] — The appellant had made an agreement with the agent of the respondent company, at a fixed price and under penalty, for the delivery of goods which were to be forwarded from Paris, France. The respondent, having brought a package to Montreal, addressed to the appellant paid $11.84 for disbursements and expenses of conveyance, but did not produce the bills of hading and way bills, which had been sent to him at New York.—Held, that the respondent company could not, arbitrarily and before the delivery, impose on the appellant the payment of this sum, without verification and right of subsequent reimbursement for any overcharge, if there was any, and that the respondent should make to the appellant an indemnity, for damages which the non-delivery had caused him. ing signed by him at the port, which stated "rate of freight as per agreement:"—Held, Margee, J., dissenting, that the Canadian standard and not the American standard of 32 pounds to the bushel was to be applied to the contract. Where, on delivery by vessel of cargo, freight in excess of the amount due was paid as demanded, without protest.— Held, that, nevertheless, such payment was not voluntary, since, if it had not been made, expenses for storage, with possibly demurrage and loss by reason of non-delivery to purchasers, would have been incurred; and the excess paid was recoverable by action. A contract by telegram is made at the place where the telegram of acceptance is sent from. Melady v. Jenkins Steamship Co., 18 O. L. R. 251, 13 O. W. R. 439.

Carriage by water—Liability for loss of goods of passengers—Jewess—Decharation of nature and value—Statutes.]—*The liability of carriers by water in the province of Quebec is governed by the rules laid down in ss. 962 et seq. of c. 113, R. S. C. 1906, which are the reproduction of those in c. S2, R. S. C. 1886, embodied in the Civil Code by s. 6254, R. S. Q. 2. Carriers by water are not liable for the loss of jewels of passengers, the nature and value of which have not been declared to them. Hence, when a passenger by boat from Torono to Montreal, avails herself of a stop-over at Kingston to go ashore, and on her return finds that her cabin had been broken into, and three rings and a bracelet stolen out of a satchel she had left in it, her action to recover the value of the same will be dismissed. Jews N. Carriers-Lost luggage-Contract of carriage — Receipt—Condition limiting liability —Notice—Agents of owner — Alteration of oral contract - Negligence - Damages.] -The defendants were an incorporated com-pany, a main part of whose business was to carry and deliver baggage or luggage for customers to and from railways, steamboats, and other public conveyances. The plaintiff, who was a passenger on a steamer, on his arrival at the wharf in Toronto, handed the steamer check for his trunk to his father-inlaw, R., to have the trunk sent up to R.'s house, R., who was an employee in the customs, handed the check to H., also a customs officer, and asked him to pass the trunk and have it sent up to the house. H. gave D., the defendants' agent on the wharf. the check and twenty-five cents which R. had given him, told him to have the trunk sent up to R.'s house, and walked away. D. then gave the money to S., a soliciting agent of the defendants, and proceeded to take the steamer check off the trunk. H. returned about fifteen minutes after he had left the check and money with D., and asked him for a receipt for the trunk. S. then wrote out the receipt and handed it to H., who looked at but did not read it, nor was his attention called to any terms upon it-he knew, however, that the defendants were in the habit of giving receipts upon taking over baggage for transfer. About an hour and a half thereafter H. handed the check to R., who passed it on to the plaintiff, who did not read it till about ten days afterwards, The receipt was a document which had legibly printed on its face a notice by which the defendants agreed to receive and forward the articles for which the receipt was given, subject to a condition that they should "not be liable for any loss or damage of any trans for over $50°. The receipt was in a form generally used by the defendants in the course of their business, and no proof was given that their agents who did the work of receiving and receipting for baggage had authority to receive it on any other footing. The trunk was lost or stolen; but without negligence on the part of the defend-ants. The defendants tendered to the plaintiff $50 as in full discharge of their liability under their contract, which the plaintiff refused, and brought this action :- Held, Meredith, J.A., dissenting, that the plaintiff was entitled to recover the full value of the trunk and its contents, inasmuch as the defendants. who as common carriers were liable to their customer for the full value of the property entrusted to their care, in the absence of notice, brought home to the customer, that their liability was limited to a certain sum. had failed to discharge the onus which lay upon them to shew that the plaintiff at the time when he made his contract with the defendants, had received notice that their liability was limited, or that the stipulation limiting their liability had been at any time accepted by him as a term of his contract. Harris v. Great Western Rw. Co. (1876), 1 Q. B. D. 515; Henderson v. Stevenson (1875), L. R. 2 H. L. Sc, 470, and other cases bearing on the liability of carriers for loss or damage to luggage, discussed. Per Meredith, J.A., that the question whether the plaintiff had accepted the condition limiting the defendants' liability was one of fact, and the finding of the trial Judge in favour of the defendants should not be reversed unless plainly shewn to be wrong on the evidence. He offered $2 to the purser, asking for a receipt; the purser refused to give a receipt; the plaintiff did not pay the $2, and on attempting to leave the boat at Lewiston he was stopped by the purser, who asked to see his ticket, and upon getting it retained it, and he was taken back to Toronto. The defendants might, by a few words printed upon their ticket, have made their contract with the plaintiff subject to this payment, if the plaintiff fell within the Act, but, in the absence of such a provision, the defendants were alone liable. Jones v. Niagara Navigation Co., 12 O. L. R. 481, S O. W. R. 342.

Damage to goods — Contract limiting liability — Negligence-Fraud-Goods deposited in customs warehouse. Normandin v. National Express Co., 4 E. L. R. 558.

Damage to goods-Successive carriers-Presumption-Company-Admissions of servants.] - The consignee of goods (in this case 200 cases of oranges) transported by has no remedy two successive carriers, against the latter one for the damaged state in which they are delivered unless he establishes neglect or default on his part. The proof that 50 cases out of 200 were damaged at the time they were handed over by the first carrier to the second carrier creates a strong presumption that they were all damaged, and frees the second carrier from responsibility .-Carrier companies are not bound by the admissions and promises of their employees, unless it is proved that the latter had authority to make them. Coté v. Grand Trunk Rw. Co., Q. R. 28 S. C. 529.

Dangers of navigation—Seaworthiness of vessel—Loss of cargo—Right of freight. Scott v. Orillia Export Lumber Co., 7 O. W. R. 857.

-Delivery — Withholding—Abandonment.] —Where a consignor withholds, by error and negligence, the delivery of the goods consigned during one month, the consignee, who has been in the necessity to replace the consignment with other merchandises before the delivery, had the right to abandon the goods to the consignor, and to have the latter condemned to pay him their value and express charges, G. C. Art, 1053. Greenberg v. Am. Ex. Co., 16 R. L. 41.

Demurrage—Eraction of a day.]—In a case of demurrage, a fraction of a day counts for a whole day. Hence, when a vessel is delayed to 10 a.m., on the day following the expiration of the lay days allowed by the charter-party, the owners have a right to claim demurrage for the whole of that day. Trechmann 8.8. Co. v. Hirsch, 37 Que. 8, C. 143.

Express company—Contract to forward perishable goods — Delay in transmission— Gross negligence—Railway company—Agent or servant-Notice of claim for damage to goods-"At this office."] - The defendants undertook to forward a consignment of fish from Selkirk, Manitoba, to Toronto, Ontario, subject to certain conditions expressed in the contract :-- Held, that the defendants' engagement implied that a safe and rapid transit would be furnished for the whole distance, and that contract was broken when the perishable goods were transferred to a freight train at Winnipeg, by which delivery was delayed; and this was negligence for which the defendants were liable as common car-riers.—A special condition that the defendants should not be liable for loss or damage, unless it should be proved to have occurred from the gross negligence of the defendants or their servants, did not avail the defendants, because the railway companies employed by the defendants for the transaction of their business were to be regarded as the defendants' servants, and the negligence was to be accounted gross negligence .--- Another condition was that a claim for loss or damage should be presented to the defendants in writing "at this office :"-Held, that presentation at the head office of the defendants satisfied this requirement. — Judgment of Clute, J., affirmed. James (F. T.) Co, v. Dominion Express Co., 9 O. W. R. 93, 13 O. L. R. 211.

Express company — Liability for damaged goods — Connecting lines—Bill of lading—Clause limiting liability.]—An express company is not responsible for damages to goods intrusted for carriage, when the accident happened on another and connecting line of transfer, and the bill of lading contained a clause by which the company was relieved from any liability if the loss or injury happened at a place beyond its lines or control. Neil v. American Express Co., Q. R. 20 S. C. 253.

Expressman — License — Liability for yoods destroyed by fire.].—An expressman, d'ly licensed under a by-law of the police commissioners of a city, and carrying goods for hire, is a common carrier, and as such liable for the loss of the goods by fire not caused by the act of God, or by the King's enemies, or by the inherent quality of the goods. Cutter y, Letter, 21 Occ. N. 295.

Ferryman — Transportation of animals -Liability.]-1. To render a person liable as a common carrier he must exercise the business of carrying as a public employment, and must undertake to carry goods for all persons indiscriminately, and hold himself out, either expressly or by course of conduct as ready to engage in the transporta-tion of goods for hire as a business, not merely as a casual occupation. Therefore. the owner of a boat propelled by oars and rowed for hire across a river, from time to time, by employees usually occupied in other ways, does not fall within the definition of a common carrier.—2. Where a traveller put his horses upon a ferry boat of the above description, with side-rails only 15 inches high, saw the risk to which his animals were exposed, and kept them under his own charge during the crossing, he is not entitled to recover from the owner of the ferry boat the value of a horse which became frightened, jumped overboard, and was drowned, where the accident occurred through no fault or omission or commission on the part of the carrier or his employees, but from the restless disposition of the horse and the inability of the owner to keep him quiet. Roussel v. Aumais, Q. R. 18 S. C. 474.

Injury to goods — Liability — Negligence — Constract — Owner — Consignor.] —A carrier cannot stipulate that, by reason of the tariff of charges for the transport of goods being reduced, he shall not be responsible for damages which may be caused to the goods carried by the fault of negligence of his servants, but when such a stipulation has been made, the owner of the goods damaged in convegance has to prove that the damage was caused by such fault or negligence. 2. The owner of goods is bound by the contract of carringe signed by the person forwarding them. Draincille v. Canadian Pacific Rv. Coo, Q. R. 22 S. C. 480.

Lost luggage — Contract of carriage— Condition limiting liability—Notice — Agent of owner—Negligence—Inevitable accident— Damages limited to amount specified in notice—Tender before action—Costs. Lamont v. Canadian Transfer Co., 11 O. W. R. 953, 12 O. W. R. 882.

Negligence — Liability—Bill of lading— Contract — Protective conditions—Value of goods not stated—Force majeure. Dominion Express Co. v. Rutenberg, 5 E. L. R. 314.

Negligence in delivery of goods — Loss of sale as advertised — Damages.]— Plaintifi had advertised a sale. Defendants notified plaintiffs of arrival of goods intended to be sold, but by mistake the goods were shipped back:—Held, that as goods had reached point of destination defendants are liable for delay. The terms of bill of lading do not empower delivery at pleasure nor shield them from their own negligence. The damages could have been foreseen. Judgment for plaintiff. Covrian v. Rickelieu and Ontario Navigation Co. (Que.), 6 E. L. R. 229.

Non-delivery and conversion of goods——Termination of transitus—Conditional refusal of consignce to accept—Place of refusal—Setting aside findings of jury— Dispensing with new trial—Con. Rule 615— Judgment.]—Trees consigned by the plaintiffs to one C. at Aylmer, Quebec, were delivered by a railway company, by mistake, at Aylmer, Oncario. The defendants, pursuant to a message received from the railway company. "Ship by express C.'s trees to Aylmer, Quebec," carried the trees as far as Ottawa, and were about to send them on by wagon to Aylmer, Quebec, when C., who was the only person known in the transaction by the defendants, appeared at Ottawa and said to the defendant's agent that he would not accept the trees until he saw one F. There were no further communications between the defendants and C. The defendants held the goods and sought out the consignors and notified them of C.'s refusal—Meld, in an action by the consignors for damages for dom-delivery and conversion of the trees.

that the defendants' contract was not one to deliver the goods to C. at Aylmer and not elsewhere, and his refusal to accept, even if not absolute, was such as dispensed with any further action on the part of the defendants till they had a message from C. that he was ready and willing to receive; and this never having come, the defendants acted reasonably in holding the goods and notifying the consignors, and were not liable for the loss.—The findings of the jury not having supplied material for a final dispesition of the case, the Court, acting under Con. Rule 615, instead of directing a new trial, set aside the findings and gave judgment on the whole case for the defendants, deeming that if the proper questions had been put to the jury new way.—Judgment of the County Court of Wentworth reversed. Smith v. Canadian Express Co., 12 O. L. R. S4, 7 0. W. R. 403.

Not liable for profits.]—The carrier is responsible for the value of the goods carried, at their point of destination, but it is not liable for the profits which their owner might have made by their re-sale, if nothing transpired at the time the contract was entered into to lead the carrier to believe that this would be a consequence of its failure to perform it: Art. 1074 C, C. Black v. Can, Ex. Co., 36 Que. S. C. 490.

Perishable goods—Delay in forwarding —Reasonable care — Liability for loss of goods.]—Action for dumages for loss incurred in forwarding fresh fish:—Held, that there should be a new trial. The trial Jude had refused to ask the jury if defendants were to do the best they could and wherein they had failed. A bald finding of negligence without specifying any act of negligence is unsatisfactory. Matthews v. Can. Ex. Co., S E. L. R. 28.

Privilege and right to retain possession — Indivisibility of the right to relain possession—Obligation to deliver — Condition precedent to the payment of the charges for corriage.]—The right to retain possession of movables is indivisible and attaches, not only to all of several objects, but to each and every one of such objects, but to each and every one of such objects, but to each and every one of such objects, but to each and every one of such objects, but to each and every one of such objects, but to each and the shore household furniture has the right to retain possession of each of the objects, he cannot be forced to deliver the balance until payment in advance is made to him of whatever is due him. ship-Bills of lading-Stipulation against liability for thefts.]-The owner may lawfully stipulate for immunity from liability for thefts committed on board his ship, even by the captain of the crew. When the damage of which the shipper or consignor complains falls apparently within the scope of a stipulation against liability in the bill of lading, the plaintiff must prove some default on the part of the carrier personally to entitle him to recover. Mathys v. Manchester Liners, Q. R. 25 S. C. 426.

Ship - Contract-Breach-Damages.]-In December, 1899, the defendants contracted with the plaintiffs to carry a cargo of hard with the paintums to carry a cargo of mira coal from New Jersey to Halifax in the schooner of the defendants. The schooner sniled with her cargo on the 30th December, 1880, but did not reach Halifax until the 15th March, 1900:--Held, that there was a beneath of the contrast to correr and deliver breach of the contract to carry and deliver the cargo within a reasonable time :--Held, further, that the carrier had notice from the description of the goods that delay in the voyage would diminish their value, and, as there were circumstances which it was reasonable to assume were known to the carrier, from which the object of the plaintiffs in ordering the coal ought to be inferred by the carrier, damages were recoverable for the natural consequences of the failure of that object; that the natural consequence of the breach of this contract was a loss to the plaintiffs through an inevitable fall in the market value of the coal; that therefore the difference in such market value between the time when the coal should have arrived and the time when it actually arrived, was the proper measure of damages.—The Parana, 1 P. Ship — Contract limiting liability — "Wearing apparel," meaning of — Question first raised on appeal.]-The plaintiff was a passenger for Dawson on the defendants' Ine of steamboats, and his ticket contained the proviso: "Baggage liability limited to wearing apparel only. Each ticket is al-lowed 150 lbs, of baggage free, and not ex-ceeding $100 in valuation, and half tickets in like proportion. All exceeding this rate and valuation will be charged for. This company shall not be held accountable for merchandise, notes, bonds, documents, specie, bullion, jewellery or similar valuables, nor stores to be landed under designation of baggage, unless bills of lading are regularly signed, and freight charges paid thereon, and under no circumstances shall this company be held responsible in case of loss of baggage for over $100, unless extra charge has been paid on excess of valuation." He paid $10 excess baggage. Part of the baggage, includ-ing a scalskin jacket, a lady's dress, men's suits, and wolf robes, to the value of $655, was lost. The plainiff sued for the full amount, and the defendants pleaded that their bability ander the constraints which their amount, and the defendants pleaded that their liability under the contract was limited to $100:--Held, by Craig, J., and by the full Court (Irving, J., dissenting), that the de-fendants were liable for more than $100, but under the Carriers' Act for not more than $500.--Held, also, on appeal, that the con-tention that the defendants were not liable for certain articles, nor the wearing appared of the plaintiff himself, was not open to the defendence as that woint was not related to defendants, as that point was not open to the defendants, as that point was not raised in the pleadings nor taken at the trial. Ship-Failure to notify consignee-Liability for damages—Action in name of con-signor.]—Cheese was consigned to the Hochelaga Bank at Montreal, and at the foot of the bills of lading were written the words "Notify James Irvine, Gould Cold Storage, Montreal." Irving was the selling agent for the factory from which the cheese came, and the usual course was (as evidenced by previous transactions) that the cheese was only to be delivered to him by the bank upon payment of the draft attached thereto, and usually drawn upon Irvine payable to the Hochelaga Bank. As the bank thus had very little to do with the matter, the carriers com-menced to regard Irvine as the only person with whom they had to deal. On the occasion in question the carriers did not give any notice to the bank, but stored the cheese according to the instructions of Irvine, who subsequently sold it and absconded with the proceeds of the sale:-Held, that the re-ceipt of the bank or its order for delivery was the only discharge which could terminate the liability of the appellants as carriers, and that the fact that the latter were di-rected on the bills of lading to "notify James Irvine" should have warned them, in any event, against dealing with him as the consignee :- Held, further, that, while a right of action probably did exist in the bank as consignees, it was concurrent with the right of the consignor, since the bank only acted as agents of the shipper to collect his drafts for the price of the cheese, and had neither purchased nor made advances on them. And this common law doctrine is not impaired by 52 V. c. 30, s. 1. Montreal and Cornicall Navigation Co. v. L'Ecuyer, 21 Occ. N. 249.

oneous appreior tribunalshipping receipt relieving the carrier from liability for loss or damage arising out of the "safe keeping and carriage of goods," even though caused by the negligence of the carriers' servants, without the actual fault or privity of the carriers, and restricting claims to the cash value of the goods at the port of shipment, do not apply to cases where the goods have been wrongfully sold or converted by the carriers. A shipping re-ceipt, with terms as above, was for carriage by the defendants' line and other connecting lines, and made the freight payable on delivery of the goods at the point of destina-tion. The defendants had previously made a special contract with the plaintiff, but delivered the receipt to his agent at the point of shipment with a variation of the special terms made with him in respect to all shipments to him as consignee during the ship-ping season of 1899, the variation being shewn by a clause stamped across the re-ceipt, of which the plaintiff had no knowledge. One of the shipments was sold, at an intermediate point on a connecting line, by the company in control, on account of non-payment of freight: --- Held, that the plaintiff's agent at the shipping point had no authority to consent to a variation of the special contract, nor could the carriers vary it without the concurrence of the plaintiff; that the sale amounted to a wrongful con version of the goods by the defendants; and that they were not exempted by the terms of the shipping receipt from liability for their full value. Damages reduced by Supreme Court of Canada, instead of a new trial being ordered. Judgment in 22 Occ. N. 271, 9 B. C. R. 82, reversed. Wilson v. Canadian Development Co., 33 S. C. R. 432.

Trover - Carrier - Liability for loss of article in custody of passenger.] - Ramson had been employed by the promoters of political demonstration to drive Bell others to a reception meeting, but have not been hired by his passengers. He drove them to the meeting, left them there and his engagement being at an end went away. had a plaid with him in the carriage and left it there. The plaid was not marked, and next day Ramsay not knowing to whom it be-longed took it to the person who had employed him to be delivered to the owner, but Bell it never was delivered and was lost. subsequently applied to Ramsay for it, but was received with abusive language. Bell brought an action of trover in the Small Debt Court and recovered judgment, from which Ramsay appealed. For appellant it was contended (1) that he was not a carrier chargeable with the custody of the plaid, having received no hire from Bell, and the plaid not having been placed in his charge. (2) That if an action would lie against him it was not trover:-Held (Hensley, J.), that Ramsay was not chargeable as a common carrier, and, even if he was, the plaid being an article of personal wear, and not given into his custody, and did not come within the description of articles for which he would have been responsible .- That if he was a carrier quoad the plaid, the remedy, no conversion being shewn, was case not trover .--- That appellant was at most a bailee by finding, and as such was not guilty of any culpable negligence. Ramsay v. Bell (1872), 1 P. E. I. R. 417.

Trunk lost by negligence of licensed baggage transfer agent-No contributory negligence by plaintiff-Damages assessed at $188 allowed.]-Plaintiff brought action to recover $180 damages, for loss of a trunk and contents, which she gave defendant to de-liver at Ottawa Union Station. The trunk was taken to the station about 20 minutes before the train left. The trunk was left on a truck, near the door of the baggage room. without checking it. Plaintiff was taken ill and did not take that train. The next morning her brother-in-law enquired about the trunk but could find no trace of it .- Me-Tavish, Co.C.J., held, that defendant was not liable, inasmuch as the trunk was at the station after the departure of the train, which plaintiff had intended taking, and that plaintiff was negligent in either not notifying defendant that she was not able to take the train or not sending for it .-- Divisional Court held, that the trunk was lost solely through the negligence of the defendant. Judgment entered for plaintiff for $180 and costs. Murphy v. Dunlop (1910), 17 O. W. R. 244, 2 O. W. N. 178.

Family burial ground - Land-locked plot-Reservation in deed-Interference with graves-Right of descendants to restrain-Abandonment — Possessory title — Access to plot—Way of necessity.]—Persons having an interest in a plot of ground set apart and used as a family burying ground, in which bodies of relatives are interred, may maintain an action to restrain injury to, or interference with the graves or monuments over them. Moreland v. Richardson, 22 Beav. 596, and 24 Beav. 33, followed. Part of a farm was set apart as a family burial plot in or about the year 1827, and in 1838 parcel of the farm was conveyed to defendant's predecessor in title, "save and except about ¹/₄ of an acre of said lands used as a burying ground." In 1890 one of the family erected on what he supposed to be the plot a monument to two of his ancestors, and surrounded the supposed plot with a hedge: -Held, upon the evidence, affirming judg-ment of Teetzel, J., that there was a burying ground in respect of which the reservation was made in the deed of 1838; that there was not an abandonment; that the hedge planted in 1890 enclosed a portion at any rate of the original plot; that neither defendant nor any of his predecessors in tile had acquired a possessory or other tile to plot; and that plaintiffs had shewn a sufficient interest in or tille to the plot to enable them to maintain the action. The plot being a land-locked piece of ground, re-served out of a grant of surrounding property, there was an implied way of necessity to and from it, limited to purposes for which the plot was expressed to be reserved. Acquiescence in conviction— Bar_1] — The acquiescence of the accused in a conviction made by a justice of the peace, in a matter for summary trial, deprives the accused of his remedy by certiorari, even when moved for within the proper time, Meunier v_i , Beauchamp, 5 Que, P. R, 280.

Application for — Forum—Conviction under Masters' and Servants' Act.]— An order under the Masters and Servants' Act, R. S. M. c. 96, for payment of wages, was made by a justice of the peace.—On a motion for a certiorari the question was raised whether the matter was one of a quasi-criminal nature, or on the Crown side of the Court, which should be brought before the full Court, or one which could be brought before a single Judge .- The Court was not at first disposed to consider that the matter was in any sense a criminal matter, but, in view of such opinions as those expressed in Seaman v. Burley, 75 L. T. 91, Payne v. Wright, 66 L. T. 148, and Ex p. Schoffeld, 64 L. T. 780, was of opinion that the question deserved further argument .--- A matter of this kind in which only a small sum is involved should not be delayed for the time that would be necessary if the motion for a certiorari were argued before the full Court, and it would be best to adjourn the motion into Chambers if the parties were willing; otherwise to dismiss it without prejudice to a motion in Chambers.—By consent the mat-ter was adjourned into Chambers. In re Dupas, 20 Occ. N. 23, 12 Man. L. R. 653.

Assessment - Prescription - Delay of Judge-Jurisdiction - Statutes-Time.] -Where a statute authorising commissioners to assess lands provided that no writ of certiorari to review assessment should be granted after expiration of 6 months from the initiation of commissioners' proceedings: Held, affirming judgment appealed from, In re Trecothic Marsh, 38 N. S. R. 23, Girouard. J., dissenting, that an order for issue of writ of certiorari made after expiration of prescribed time was void, notwithstanding that it was applied for, and judgment on the ap-plication reserved before time had expired.— Per Taschereau, C.J.C. :- Where jurisdiction has been taken away by statute, the maxim actus curiæ neminem gravabit cannot be applied, after expiration of times prescribed. so as to validate an order either by antedating it or entering it nunc pro tunc; in present case the order for certiorari could issue, as the impeachment of proceedings of the inferior tribunal was sought upon the ground of want of jurisdiction, but appellants were not entitled to it on merits.-- Per Girouard, J., dissenting :-- In the circumstances, the order in this case should be treated as having been made on the date when judgment on application was reserved by the Judge. Upon merits the appeal should be allowed, as the commissioners had no be allowed, as the commissioners had no jurisdiction in the absence of proper notice as required by s. 22 of the Marsh Act, R. S. N. S. 1900, c. 66. Dom. Cotton Mills Co. v. Trecothic Marsh Commissioners, In re Trecothic Marsh (1906), 26 C. L. T. 185, 37 S. C. R. 79.

Assessment roll - Return - Default-Proceedings of ministerial character-Superseding writs improvidently issued.]-A writ of certiorari was directed to the road commissioners of district 17 in the municipality of Halifax, to remove the record of the as-sessment roll of said district assessing the inhabitants for road taxes, and the return made to the county treasurer of persons who had made default. A writ was also directed to the stipendiary magistrate for the county to remove the record of a return of defaulters who had not paid or commuted their taxes, and the warrant of distress issued by him thereon. There was a motion to quash or set aside the assessment roll, the warrant of distress, etc. It appeared that the allowance of the writs had not been opposed, and there was no motion to set aside the orders, or to quash the writs or either of them. The amount of the tax was fixed by law, the value of the property by the county assessors, and the rate of assessment by the county council; and the stipendiary magistrate, in issuing his warrant of distress against defaulters, was not called upon to exercise any judicial function :-Held, that the proceedings were of a purely ministerial character, and were not a proper subject for certiorari :--- Held, that, the process having improvidently issued, the Court had power of its own motion to set it aside, and that, in the circumstances appearing, the writs should be superseded and the returns thereto taken off the files of the Court. The affidavits filed shewed an intention to attack the legality of the formation of the district under Acts of 1900, c. 23, and the appointment of the commissioners: — Held, that this could not be done in this form of proceeding. Rex ex rel, Corbin v. Peveril, 36 N. S. Reps. 275.

Canada Temperance Act — Certiorari.] —In an election under the Canada Temperance Act for the city of Charlottetown, electors from the Royalty, which is not included, in the city, took part, but it did not appear that their votes affected the election. Carroll and others having been convicted under that Act before the Stipendiary Magistrate applied for a certiorari to remove the proceedings into this Court on the ground that the Act was not properly in force owing to the above circumstances:—Held (Hensley, J.), that act was properly in force and the certiorari must be refused. R. v. Carroll (1881), 2 P. E. I. R. 430.

Commitment by justice — Sunday — Resisting peace officer.]—A certiorari will not be granted to remove a justice's commitment of an accused person for trial. Semble, that the arrest and commitment of the defendant on a Sunday for resisting a peace officer were legal. Res v. Leahy, Ex p. Garland, 35 N. B. Reps. 500.

Conviction of magistrates — Killing dog—Damance awarded for injury—Criminal Code, as. 537, 1124—Amending irregularity— Rule for certicarii dismissed.]—The magistrate in fining the applicant for killing R.'ss dog, awarded R. $20 for the loss of his dog : —Held, that under above s. 537 the magistrate had no power to award damages, and conviction amended under above s. 1124 by striking out the award as to damages. Re Annic Cook, 7 E, L. R. 541. Costs—Fees of respondents.]— The respondent or the mis-en-cause upon a motion for a certification of the transformation of the transformation upon such a motion a fee upon the hearing will not be taxed. 3. A respondent who does not contest the motion has no right to a fee for appearing. Wing Tee v. Choquet, 6 Que. P. R. 305.

Court for small causes — Absence of commissioner.]—For one of the corumissioners sitting for the summary decision of small causes to concur in the judgment without having heard the evidence is a grave irregularity, and warrants the issue of a writ of certiorari, Caron v. Clement, 2 Que. P. R. 301.

Date of the return — Declaration — Clerical errors—C. C. P. 174, 1298, 1300, 1303.]—If the Judge who allowed the issue of a writ of certiorari has not fixed the day for its return, the prothonotary may do so. —It is not necessary that a declaration be annexed to a writ of certiorari,—The fact that the magistrate, whose decision is attacked, is called a "coroner," instead of a "justice of the peace," is not a fatal error. —The Judge of the Court below, who has been called into the case has no interest whatever in the proceedings, even if he has been served with a copy of the writ of certioror instead of with the original. Lynck v. Me-Mahon, 11 Que, P. R. 116.

Declaration annexed to the writ — Its rejection—C, P. 1294.)—No declaration should be annexed to a writ of certiorar. In any event, any such declaration could not be different from the petition praying for the issue of the writ nor contain further grounds of complaint. Lavoie v. Lanctot é Brousseau, 11 Que, P. R. 184.

Evidence before magistrate.] — The Court upon certiorari cannot inquire into the evidence taken before a magistrate whose conviction is in review. Wing Tee v. Choquette, 5 Que. P. R. 461.

Evecation—Recorder's Court.]— A judzment of the Recorder's Court of the city of Montreal maintaining an action for salary, though the case has been allowed to be evoked to the Circuit Court, will be set aside on a certiorari. Section 485 of the Charter of the City of Montreal which has reference to the Becorder's Court concurrent jurisdic tion with the Circuit Court only applies to matters respecting lessors and lessees. A declaration of evocation from the Recorder's Court to the Circuit Court is not premature by being field before plea; the provisions of C. P. 1130 to the contrary, only having application to evocations from the Circuit to the Superior Court. Ouimet v. Fleury, 11 Que, P. R 41.

Grounds upon which it may be issued—Erroneous interpretation of the cridence by the Court below—*C. Harbour commissioners-Conviction of pilot-Irregularities - Waiver - By-laws-Proof of]-A writ of certiorari may issue to remove the conviction of a pilot by the Montreal Harbour Commissioners for the vio-lation of a by-law.—2. A pilot, by appearing, pleading, and attending the investigation of a complaint against him, is held to waive inregularities of service, etc., before convic-tion, which appear on the face of the record. -3. A copy of the by-laws of the Harbour Commissioners, certified as a true copy under the hand and seal of the secretary, is sufficient, to the extent it covers; but, semble, proof should also be made of approval by the Governor-in-Council and of publication in the Canada Gazette .--- 4. Under the Pilotage Act, R. S. C. c. 80, and the Montreal Harbour Commissioners Act, 57 V. c. 48, the com-missioners are authorised to pass a by-law which will make it an offence for a pilot, who is selected for service with one transatlantic line, to handle more than thirty vessels of that line during the season, or to take service on any vessel of another line, but the by-law in question in the present case merely stating that "no pilot making such agreement shall . . , be entitled to any duty as pilot by turn or in rotation," did not actually prohibit the act mentioned .--- 5. The conviction in this case, as signed, was irregular, inasmuch as it imposed an imprisonment of one month unless the costs of distress and commitment were sooner paid, whereas by the judgment of the pilotage committee the only penalty imposed on the petitioner was that he be fined $20 without costs. Perrault v. Harbour Commissioners of Montreal, Q. R. 17 S. C. 501.

Harbour commissioners—Pilot's license —Appeal.]—A writ of certiorari may issue to remove a sentence or conviction of a pilot by the Montreal Harbour Commissioners. The appeal to the Court of Queen's Bench, Crown side, provided in s. S79 of the Criminal Code of Canada, does not extend to or cover a conviction by the Harbour Commissioners depriving a pilot of his license. Arcand v. Harbour Commissioners of Montreal, Q. R. 17 S. C. 497.

Incomplete return—Motion to correct— Practice. [—To a writ of certiorari to remove a conviction, the magistrate certified that he had sent "the transcript of the proceedings against P. G., whereof in the same writ mention is made with all things touching the same to our Lord the King," etc., and he annexed the certificate, the original proceedings, and the conviction to the writ:—Held, per Barker, McLeod, and Gregory, JJ., Tuck, CJ., and Landry, J., dissenting, that the return was incomplete, as the certificate did not authenticate the proceedings returned to be the original proceedings returned to be the original proceedings returned. through ignorance or error, and with no intention of disobeying the writ, makes an incomplete or improper return, the practice is to move that the proceedings be sent back for correction and not to move for an arttachment for contempt in not obeying the writ. Rex v. Kay, Ex p. Gallagher, 3 E. L. R. 454, 38 N. B. R. 228.

Irregularities-Projudice.]-A certiorari will not be granted on account of irregularities in procedure, if such irregularities have not prevented justice being done. Huot v. Paquette, 3 Que. P. R. 502.

Irregularities in procedure—Injustice —Conviction—Evidence not taken down in writing.]—The remedy by way of certiorari cannot be exercised unless there are grave irregularities of procedure, and there is ground for believing that justice has not been or will not be done.—2. A demand for certiorari because the accused has been convicted upon evidence not taken down in writing, will be refused if it appears that he has not suffered any actual prejudice. Hill v. City of Montreal, 10 Que. P. R. 122.

Jurisdiction—Irregular procedure — Injustice.]— The sole duty of the Superior Court upon a writ of certiorari is to ascertain if the inferior Court has acted within the limits of its jurisdiction, and if in the procedure it has followed the forms and rules indicated by law; and a certiorari will not be sustained, on the ground that the procedure has been irregular, unless the petitioner demonstrates that he has suffered injustice. Carpentier v. Lapointe, 6 Que. P. R. 202.

Jurisdiction of Judge in Chambers Conviction for breach of a municipal byluc. [-A] Judge in Chambers has jurisdiction to order the issue of a writ of certiorari to bring up the record of a conviction for a breach of a municipal by-law, if the application is made when neither the Court of Appeal nor the full Court of King's Bench is sitting. But all further proceedings after the return of these Courts.-Regina v. Beele, 11 Man. L. R. 448, Regina v. Crothcrs, 11 Man. L, R. 567, and In re Dupas, 12 Man. L. R. 654, referred to. Re Hunter, 16 Man. L. R. 489; Rex v. Hunter, 5 W, L. R. 268.

Justice of the Peace-Jurisdiction -Interest—Statute. taking away right—Appeal — Crown—Discretion.]— 1. Certiorari and not appeal is the appropriate remedy to raise the question of want of jurisdiction, e.g., whether proper service has been made and jurisdiction over the person acquired, or whether the justice was disqualified through interest. 2. A statutory provision taking away the right of certiorari does not deprive the Superior Court of its power to issue the writ to quash a proceeding on the ground of want of jurisdiction. 3. When there is a defect in the jurisdiction of justices or inferior Courts, the common law right of certiorari should not be refused merely because a new trial might be had by means of an appeal. 4. Even where an appeal is pending, a certiorari for want of jurisdiction should not be refused unless the question of jurisdiction is being raised on the appeal. 5. A writ of certiorari may be claimed by the Crown as a matter of right on application of the Attorney-General, without the production of any affidavit. 6. Except where applied for on behalf of the Crown, a certiorari is not a writ " of course," and the Court must be satisfied that there is a sufficient ground for issuing it. 7. No more latitude is given the Court for the exercise of its discretion in granting or refusing a certiorari than in respect to other applications which are in the discretion of the Court. Re Ruffles, 35 N. S. Reps, 57.

License commissioners-Inferior tribunal-Jurisidician of Superior Court.]-The Superior Court is competent to grant and adjudicate upon a certiorari issued agalast the license commissioners of Montreal, as an inferior tribunal; a declinatory exception denying the right will be dismissed with costs. Garépy v. License Commissioners of Montreal, 10 Que, P. R. 77.

Motion for-Intituling of proceedings-Crown Rules-Name of informant. Ex p. Harris (N.W.T.), (1906), 4 W. L. R. 530.

Motion for—Intituling of proceedings— Name of informant.1—Proceedings to obtain a writ of certiorari to quash a conviction, where an order quashing it is not asked upon the return of the application for the writ, do not require to shew the name of the informant, as part of the style of cause. Ex p. Harris, 4 W. L. R. 530; Res v. Harris, 6 Terr. L. R. 376.

Motion for-Preliminary objection-Dismissal-Second application.]--Where an application for a writ of certiorari has been dismissed, the Court will not entertain another application for the same purpose, although the first was dismissed on a preliminary objection. Res v. Geiser, 9 B, C. R. 503.

Motion to maintain and quash writ.] —In a matter of certiorari, an inscription alone is sufficient, and a motion made by the petitioner to maintain the certiorari, and another made by the respondent to quash the certiorari, will both be dismissed with costs as useless. Levesque v. Asselin, 6 Que. P. R. 63.

Motion to quash for delay-Necessity for notice to proceed.]- Rule 188 of the Crown Rules (Nova Scotia) directs that in all causes in which there have been no proceedings from one year from the last proceeding had, the party, whether protecutor or defendant, who desires to proceed, shall give one calendar month's notice to the other party of his intention to proceed. The defendant, pursuant to the order of a Judge, removed a conviction made by a magistrate into the Court, and took no further steps in the matter. The informant moved to quash the certiorari on the ground that no steps had been taken by the defendant for upwards of a year:--Held, that the informant must first give one month's notice of intention to proceed. Reg v. McDonald, 23 Occ. N, 17.

Motion to quash for delay-Practice --Costs.]--To an application by the prosecutor to quash a certiforari removing a conviction for delay in proceeding it is not an answer that the defendant had given notice of motion to quash the conviction before the launching of the motion to quash the writ, as long as the delay is unexplained. Costs were given against the defendant. Rex v. McDonald, 23 Occ. N. 95.

Order nisi in Chambers to quash conviction-Motion to make absolute not opposed -- Order absolute granted as of course. R. v. Sweeney and Bourque, Ex. p. Cormier (1996), 2 E. L. R. 161.

Peremption—Time.]—The writ of certiorari is the commencement of the proceeding, and therefore a proceeding upon certiorari cannot be declared barred before the explication of two years from the date of the last step in the proceeding. Allan v. Wer. 3 Que. P. R. 163.

Petition for-Service.]-A petition for a writ of certiforari must be served on the parties interested, and a notice of its presentation must be given to them. Rex v. Warren, Q. R. 25 S. C. 31.

Proceedings before County Court Judge-Assignments and Preferences Act-R. S. O. 1887, c. 147-Certiorari after judgment-Discretion-Motion for leave to appeal. I-A certiorari order may be made by a Judge of the High Court in Chambers to bring up proceedings taken before a County Court Judge, under the Assignments and Preferences Act, R. S. O. 1897, c. 147, and this notwithstanding that a right of appeal by leave of a Judge of the Court of Appeal exists under 63 V, c. 17, s. 14 (O. 1). - Before judgment the right to certiorari is absolute, but after judgment there is a judicial discretion to grant or refuse; and in such a case as the above certiorari should not be granted after judgment until application is first made for leave to appeal. Im re Erb (Aaron) No. 2, 12 O W, R. 118, 16 O. L. R. 597.

Prohibition Act, 1900 — Witness — Principal and agent-Ansacer incriminating employer—Order of dismissal final.)—That the magistrate improperly refused to compel defendant's clerk to answer a question concerning his selling intoxicating liquor at defendant's place of business is no ground for certiorari. Order refused. Re Jenkins, 7 E. L. R. 543.

Prosecution—Diligence — Extension of time.]—There must be continuous diligence throughout the stages of applying for a writ of certiorari, causing it to issue, and proceeding to judgment upon it; and where the delay fixed for the return of the writ is allowed to lapse without any step being taken to obtain a new order, the petitioner cannot afterwards obtain an extension of the delay; and especially where more than two years have lapsed since the expiration of the delay. to establish rates of wharfage for vessels, and to make such rules and regulations as he might think fit. An order under this section provided that any boat or vessel used by any one but the licensed ferryman in ferrying passengers, or landing or taking off the same from the wharf, should pay 1s, for each such passenger, and 2s, 6d, for each time such boat or vessel touched at or landed passen-gers on the wharf, to be paid by the persons owning or working such boat or vessel. A boat of defendant's, used in ferrying without hire, touched several times at the wharf, and passengers embarked in the boat from the wharf. Judgment was recovered by plaintiff in the Mayor's Court, and was now removed by certiorari into the Supreme Court. Defendant contended that under the Act the Governor in Council had power to impose rates, on vessels only, that a boat was not a vessel, and the order was therefore void as to boats, that the Act gave no power to impose a charge of head-money in respect of persons embarking from the wharf in such a boat :- Held, that the Act is one abridging a public right and must be strictly construed. and it did not give power to impose such rates, and that the judgment in the Mayor's Court must be quashed, Bourke v. Murphy (1856), 1 P. E. I. R. 126.

Recognizance—Affidavit of justification —Rule of Court.1—A Rule of Court reguired that no motion to quash a conviction should be entertained unless the defendant were shewn to have entered into and deposited a recognizance in $300 with one or more sufficient surveites, or to have made a deposit of $200. On a motion to make absolate a rule nisi to quash a certain conviction a recognizance had been entered into and deposited, but without an affidavit of justification of the surveites or other evidence of their sufficiency:—Held, following Resina v. Rickardson, I7 O. R. 729, that the Rule of Court had not been counlied with, and therefore the rule must be discharzed.—Bat $200 having been deposited a day or two before the return day of the rule nisi, with a view of complying with the Rule of Court:—Held, that the ends of justice would be served by allowing the applicant to make a new rule nisi in the terms of the one discharzed, and this privilege was accordingly granted. Repina v. Petrie, 1 Terr, L, R. 191.

Recorder's Court—Jurisdiction—Review of judgment.]—Certiorari does not lie to review the decision of the recorder in a case in which he has jurisdiction, and the Superior Court will not upon certiorari inquire whether his judgment is right or wrong. Wolf v. Weir, 4 Que, P. R. 430.

Recorder's Court—Removal of conviction—Remedy by appeal.]—A certiorari will not be granted to remove a conviction or order of a recorder, when there is an appeal to the Court of King's Bench on its criminal side. O'Shaughnessy v. Recorder's Court, 6 Que. P. R. 287.

Recorder's Court — Writ to Recorder personally—Objection.]—A writ of certiorari against a decision of one of the recorders for the city and district of Montreal, may be directed to the recorder personally, and not c.c.L-19 necessarily to the Court, and if objection to its being so directed could be taken at all, it could only be taken by the recorder himself and not by the party in whose favour the judgment complained of was given. Poirier v. Weir, 7 Que. P. R. 69.

Removal of cause from inferior Cont.-Grounds.-Want of jurisdiction.-/rregularity.-Injustice.].-The only duty of a Superior Court, on an application for certiorari, is to determine whether the inferior Court has acted within the limits of its jurisdiction, and whether it has compiled with the practice and principles of law, and it will not be granted upon the latter ground if the applicant does not shew that he has suffered an injustice. Therefore, the application will be dismissed and the conviction of the lower Court sustained when the applicant alleges only that justice has not been done and the decision of the lower Court is erroneous, without alleging any grave irregularity in the proceedings. Carpentier v. Lapointe, Q. R. 25 S. Q. 395.

Removal of conviction—Previous appeal to County Court—Destruction of line fence—Criminal Code, s. 887.1—The right of the Court io grant a certiforari is not taken away by s. 887 of the Criminal Code in the matter of a conviction under the Code for destroying a part of a line fence, made by a justice acting without jurisdiction, by reason that the tile to land was in dispute, from which conviction an appeal was taken to a County Court under s. 879 of the Code, and dismissed, without consideration of the merits, on the ground that the appeal had not been perfected. Rev v. O'Brien, Ex p. Ray, 3 E. L. R. 425.3 8 N. B. R. 100.

Removal of conviction, notwithstanding statute — Jurisdiction,]—Notwithstanding the amendment to s. 7 of the Ontario Summary Convictions Act, by s. 14 of 2 Edw. VII. c. 12, taking away the right to certiorari, a conviction made by a magistrate without jurisdiction may be removed by certiorari; and where the offence for which a conviction is made is found not to come within the statute defining the offence is not within the statute defining the offence of the municipal by-law defining the offence of jurisdiction as warrants the issue of a certiorari. Rex v. 8t, Pierre, 22 Occ. N. 233, 4 O. L. R. 76, 1 O. W. R. 305.

Review of decision of inferior Court — Grounds.]—There is no appeal to the Superior or Circuit Courts by way of certiorari from decisions of Courts of inferior jurisdiction, on the ground of mal jug, or where the Judge of the lower Court has failed to properly appreciate the evidence. Calvert v. Perrulut, Q. R, 26 S. C, 94.

School rates—Judicial act.]—An application to bring up by writ of certiorari the school rate fixed by the trustees of the section, was granted. In re Cape Breton School Section No. 121, 24 Occ. N. 95.

Security — Deposit—Preliminary objections.]—A deposit by the accused with the proper officer of $100 cash, though unaccompanied by any written document, is a sufficient compliance with the requirements of Rule 13 of the Consolidated Rules of Courts, 1895. After a writ of certiorari has issued preliminary objections thereto should be raised promptly and by means of a substantive motion to quash the writ. Regina v. Davidson, 21 Occ. N. 98, 4 Terr. L. R. 425.

Time for issue-Extension.]— A party who has obtained an order for a writ of certiorari, must cause the same to be issued and returned within the delay fixed when his application was granted, and cannot, by motion, obtain leave to issue it afterwards. Joannette v. Buller, 6 Que, P. R. 146.

Transfer by husband to wife-Declaration that transfer void as against creditors -Operation of execution upon lands.]-On —Operation of execution upon tands.)—On the 29th Jaouary, 1896, J. mortgaged hand to his wife to secure $3,750, and on the 23rd March, 1997, he transferred his interest in the land to her. This transfer was made without consideration, and solely at the sug-gestion of J., who said that he told his wife that there was then about $7,000 due on the mortgage, and the property was of about that value. The wife knew nothing of the transaction, and could not remember whether her husband spoke to her about it before he made the transfer. At the date of the transfer J. was indebted to the plaintiffs in a large sum, and was in insolvent circumstances. The plaintiffs, having obtained judgment against J., sought, in an action against him and his wife, a declaration that the transfer was void as against them and J.'s other cre-ditors, and also asked that the transfer should be set aside and the registration thereof vacated :--Held, on the evidence, that, at the date of the transfer, J, believed that the property was worth more than the amount due upon the mortgage, and that his sole object in making the transfer was to put his interest in the property beyond the reach of his creditors and, therefore, the transfer should be declared void as against the plaintiffs; but the plaintiffs were not entitled to a judgment setting the transfer aside or vacating its registration. With the above declaration the plaintiffs would be in a position to proceed to realise under execution upon their judgment, and a purchaser at a sale under the execution would be entitled to be registered as owner, subject to the mortgage to the wife. Union Bank v. Johnson (1910), 13 W. L. R. 519.

Action brought by assignce-trustee— Assignor beneficially interested in proceeds— No right of indemnity against assignor—Assignment champertous—R. S. O. (1897) c. 327.1—It is champerty of the plainest sort to bring an action on an assignment coupled with an agreement that assignee will sue and recover, and out of the proceeds pay costs and then divide balance equally between assignor and assignee; there being no right of indennity against assignor. Colville v. Small (1910), 17 O. W. R. 4, 2 O. W. N. 77, 22 O. L. R. 33. See 16 O. W. R. 908, 2 O. W. N. 12, 22 O. L. R. 4.

Agreement to assist party to action Consideration - Invalidity - Intent.] The plaintiff, who had been a shareholder and secretary of a mining company for a number of years and had charge of its books and an intimate knowledge of its affairs, entered into an agreement in writing with the defendant, the principal shareholder of the company, to give him certain assistance for the purpose of enabling him to win a suit then pending between the defendant and another shareholder in relation to an option upon an adjoining property originally held by the company, but which the defendant had had transferred to himself. In consideration of the proposed assistance, the defendant agreed to pay the plaintiff a sum of money in cash in the event of his winning the suit, and a further sum when a sale of the property was effected. At the time of the agreement the plaintiff had ceased to be a shareholder, and had been paid his salary as secretary, and no interest, either legal or equitable, was shewn to justify his interference in the litigation :--Held, that the contract was illegal on the ground of maintenance, and that the plaintiff could not re-cover, Craig v, Thompson, 42 N. S. R. 150, 4 E. L. R. 383.

Contribution to costs of appeal -Members of family — Agreement to divide lands in question—Succession rights—Lifi-gious rights—Deed—Description.]—The appellants who were desirous of recovering certain property, known as the Dorval Islands. which had formerly belonged to an ancestor, entered into an agreement with the respondents, who were all connected with the same family by relationship or marriage, by which, in consideration of each contributing one-tenth of the cost of taking an appeal to the Supreme Court, they agreed to transfer to each of them one-tenth of what might be recovered in the suit. The appeal was successful, and the present action was brought by the respondents to be declared proprietors of their shares of the island :--Held, that the agreement was not champertous, all the parties contributing to the cost of the appeal having an interest to see the property restored to the family, and either a direct or contingent expectancy of succeeding thereto. To constitute champerty there must be an unlawful interference of a third person to support litigation in a matter which in no way concerns him, for a compensation conway concerns him, for a compensation con-sisting of a share of the amount recovered. 2. Art, 710, C. C., had no application to this case inasmuch as the rights sold by the appellants were not succession rights. 3. Art. 1582, C. Damages for wrongfully maintaining action—Liability — Proof of special damage,]—Upon proof of special damage, an action for unlawful maintenance lies, notwithstanding that the action maintained was unsuccessful :—Held, on the evidence, Hunter, C.J., dissenting, that the plaintiff had suffered no damage. Decision of Duff, J., 3 W. L, R. 303, reversed, Neuescander v. Geigerich, 12 B, C. R, 272.

Deed of land - Contract-Joinder of claims - Partition - Specific performance Litigious rights-Retrait successoral.1-The heirs of M. induced several persons related to them, either by consanguinity or by affinity, to assist them as plaintiffs in the pro-secution of a law suit for the recovery of lands belonging to the succession of an ancestor, and, in consideration of the necessary funds to be furnished by these persons, six of the respondents and the mis-en-cause entered into the agreement sued on by which the plaintiffs conveyed to each of the seven persons giving the assistance one-tenth of whatever might be recovered should they be successful in the law suit. In an action au petitoire et en partage by the parties who furnished such funds, for specific perform-ance of this agreement :—Held, reversing the judgment in Q. R. 12 K. B. 298 (Davies, J., dissenting), that the agreement could not be enforced, as it was tainted with champerty, notwithstanding that the consanguinity or affinity of the persons in whose favour the conveyance had been made, might have entitled them to maintain the suit without remuneration as the price of the assistance :---Held, further, that there could be no objection to the demande au petitoire being joined in the action for specific performance. 2. That the defence of retrait de droits litigieux could not avail in favour of the defendants, as it is an exception which can be set up only by the debtor of the litigious right in question. Powell v. Watters, 28 S. C. R. 133, referred to. 3. That, as the conveyance affected a specific share of an immovable, the exception of retrait successoral could not be set up under Art. 710, C. C. Baxter v. Phil-lips, 23 S. C. R. 317, and Lectere v. Beau-dry, 10 L. C. Jur. 20, referred to. 4. That the laws relating to champerty were intro-duced into Lower Canada by the Quebec Act, 1774, as part of the criminal law of England, and as a law of public order, the principles of which and the reason for which apply as well to the province of Quebec as to England and the other provinces of the Dominion of Canada. Price v. Mercier, 18 S. C. R. 303, referred to. Meloche v. Deguire, 24 Occ. N. 75, 34 S. C. R. 24, Interest in mineral claims—Transfer — Consideration — Prior Ritgation.]— In Briggs v. Neuweander, 32 S. C. R. 405, the plaintiff was held entitled to a conveyance from the defendants of a quarter interest in certain mineral claims. In that action Newswander et al. were only nominal defendants, the real interest in the claims being in F. After the judgment was given, the plaintiff conveyed nine-tenths of his interest to G., the expressed consideration being moneys ad vanced and an undertaking by G, to pay the costs of that action and another brought by Briggs, and by a subsequent deed, which recited the proceedings in the action and the deed of the nine-tenths, he conveyed to G. the remaining one-tenth of his interest, the consideration of that deed being $500 payable by instalments. Briggs afterwards as signed the above mentioned judgment and his interest in the claims to F. In an action by G, against F, for a declaration that he was entitled to the quarter interest:—Held, affirming the judgment in 10 B, C, R. 309, that the transfer to G, of the nine-tenths was champertous, and the Court would not interfere to assist one claiming under a title so acquired:—Held, also, that the transfer of one-tenth was valid, being for good consideration and severable from the remainder of the interest. Giegerich v, Fleutot, 25 Occ. N. 7, 55 S, C, R. 327.

Malicious motive — Cause of action— Costs of unsuccessful defence—Damages.]— A defendant against whom a lawsuit has been successfully prosecuted cannot recover the costs incurred for his defence as damages for the valawful maintenance of the suit by a third party, who has not thereby been guilty of maliciously prosecuting unnecessary lifigation. Bradlaugh v. Newdegate, 11 Que. B. D. 1, distinguished. Giegerich v. Fleutot, 35 S. C. R. 327, referred to. Judgment appealed from, 12 B. C. R. 272, affirmed. Newswander v. Giegerich, 27 C. L. T. 783, 39 S. C. R. 354.

Void agreement - Parties entitled to take advantage of-Res judicata - Estoppel by conduct—Costs.]—The laws of mainten-ance and champerty, as they existed in Eng-land on the 19th November, 1858, are in force in British Columbia, and an agreement for a champertous consideration is absolutely null and void. The defence that an agreement is champertous and therefore void is open to others than those who are parties to the agreement. Per Hunter, C.J., it is not open to a man to stand by and assist another fight the battle for specific property to which he himself claims to be entitled, and, in the event of the latter's defeat, claim to fight the battle over again himself. He is not bound to intervene, and if he does not, he must accept the result so far as concerns the title to the property. At the trial the plaintiffs obtained judgment declaring that the defendant was a trustee of an undivided onequarter interest in two mineral claims; on appeal by the defendant the plaintiff's interest was declared to be only one-fortieth. The Court allowed the defendant the costs of the appeal, but allowed no costs of the trial to either side. Briogs and Giegerich v. Fleutot, 24 Occ. N. 299, 10 B. C. R. 309.

tered orner to an assignee in trust for creditors — Assignments Act — Lien Notes Act—Registry Act.]—The defendant B., havling an equitable lien or charge on his farm land in favour of the plaintiffs for the price of certain machinery, which agreement could not, under s. 4 of the Lien Notes Act, R. S. M. 1902, c. 90. be registered, subsequently executed a deed of assignment to the defendant H. as trustee for creditors. As regards B.'s lands, the wording of the assignment was as follows: "The said debtor according to his estate and interest therein and as fully and effectually as he lawfully can or may . . . by these presents doth hereby grant . . . unto the said trustee . . . all the real estate. lands, tenements.

and hereditaments of the said debtor of or to which he may have any estate, right, title, or interest of any kind or des-cription, with the appurtenances." This assignment was made and duly registered shortly after the commencement of this action : ----Held, that such deed purported to deal only with such estate or interest in the land as the assignor then had, and did not operate or assume to operate so as to convey the land free from the equitable charge or lien previously given to the plaintiffs. Sections and 7 of the Assignments Act. R. S. M. 1902, c. 8, do not help the assignee, as the assignment was not in the words, or to the like effect of the words, given in ss. 6 and 7 the assignee, and does not assume to give the deed any larger effect in the way of passing property than on its face it purports to have. The only interest, therefore, that passed to the assignee, being what was left after the plaintiff's equitable charge should be satis-fied, neither s. 72 of the Registry Act, R. S. M. 1902, c. 150, nor s. 7 of the Lien Notes Act, can have any application, as they only apply to invalidate an unregistered instrument as against a registered instrument that affects the same estate or interest in lands. Canadian Port Huron Co. v. Burnett, 5 W. L. R. 270, 17 Man. L. R. 55.

Document under seal creating charge -Implied covenant to pay debt.]--The defendant executed under seal an instrument creating a charge on land in favour of the plaintiffs, for the price of an enrine bought from them and interest to be paid by specified instalments. The instrument further provided that if notes should be given by the defendant for the several instalments, such notes should not be in satisfaction of the said lien and charge, but the same should continue until payment in full of such notes and any renewals thereof. It contained no covenant or promise to pay the debt:-Held, that a covenant or promise to pay ihe debt could not be implied from the terms of the deed, and that the plaintiffs could not have a personal order for payment of the debt based upon anything contained in it. Waterous Engine Works Co. v. Wilson, 11 Man. L. R. 546.

Absolute transfer - "Defeasance" Oral understanding—Property remaining in grantor's possession — Filing—Renewal.] The defendant, a constable, levied upon goods and chattels in the possession of S. under an execution issued on a judgment recovered against S. by M. At the time of the levy the goods were covered by a bill of sale to the plaintiff to secure $150. The document purported on its face to be an absolute transfer, with a right to immediate possession, but it was referred to in the affidavit as a bill of sale, and the evidence shewed that there was an understanding, not reduced to writing, that S. should get the property back on payment of the amount secured. After the filing of the bill of sale, the property was allowed to remain in the possession of S.:-Held, that the fact of the property re-maining in the possession of the grantor was not a fraud in itself, but a matter for the consideration of the trial Judge, and he having found that the amount named as the consideration was due from the grantor to the grantee, and that the transaction was not tainted with fraud, and the amount of property transferred not being excessive, there was no reason for disturbing his finding. The same principle would apply to the fact that the provision for redemption of the pro585

The oral agreement for the return of the property was not a "defensance" in the sense in which that term is used, and the section of the Act which requires every defensance to which a bill of sale is subject to be filed with it, was not applicable. The bill of sale having been made and filed prior to the passage of the Bills of Sale Act of 1899: --Held, that it was validly filed subject to the special clause as to the filing of a renewal statement, and, the time prescribed for the filing of a renewal statement not having elapsed, that the bill of sale was in no way affected by such provision. Affidavit of bona fides-Execution Fraudulent assignment.]-The Bills of Sale Ordinance makes necessary an affidavit " that the sale is . . . not for the purpose of hold-ing or enabling the bargainee to hold the goods. . . against any creditors of the bargainor."—Held, that the use of the words " the creditors" instead of "any crewords " the creditors " instead of ditors " in the affidavit of bona fides did not invalidate the bill of sale .- The same Ordinance makes necessary an affidavit "of a witness thereto of the due execution thereof." Held, that, as attestation is not made essen-tial to the validity of a bill of sale, it is not necessary to call the attesting witness to prove the execution thereof.—Held, also, on the evidence, that, inasmuch as the trial Judge could reasonably find, as he had, that there was no fraudulent intent on the part of the bargainee, the bill of sale could not be held void as being made with intent to defraud creditors of the bargainor, and that, inasmuch as the trial Judge could reasonably find, as he had, that the bargainee was not in fact a creditor of, but a bona fide purchaser from, the bargainor, the bill of sale could not be held void as being made with intent to give, or as having the effect of giving, a preference to one creditor over another, and that therefore the bill of sale was not void under the Ordinance respect-ing preferential assignments. Emerson v. Bannerman, 1 Terr, L. R. 224 .- Affirmed 19 S. C. R. 1

Ballee—Sherif's liability —Jus tertii,]— Defendant as sheriff under an execution against A. the father of piaintiff seized a horse which plaintiff claimed, and which he also alleged belonged to B. by virtue of a bill of sale to the latter.—On motion for new trial on the ground that the Judge refused to direct the jury that the bill of sale to B. was an answer to the plaintiff's case: —Held, (Peters, J.), that the bill of sale was an answer to the plaintiff's case. Stewart V. Gates (1881), 2 P. E. I, R. 432.

Consideration — Marriage actilement — Past indebtedness—Necessity for truly stating.]—The claimant in an interpleader issue claimed under a bill of sale whereby the goods seized were assigned to her for an expressed consideration, she proved a marriage of this consideration, she proved a marriage settlement, whereby the defendant in the main action, her husband, in consideration of marriage, settled on her the sum of $3,000, and charged this aum on his property, and she alleged that the bill of sale was given in pursuance of this settlement, which settlement was properly made and excented in accordance with the laws of the province of guebec:-Held, that under the provisions of s. 11 of the Bills of Sale Ordinance (c. 43, C. O. 1898), the bill of sale was void as against creditors, inasmuch as the consideration therein was not truly expressed. Sakkatchevan Lumber Co, v. Michaud, 1 Sask, L. R. 412, 8W. L. R. 496.

Crops — Assignment of interest in as security for defendant—Bills of Sale Ordinance — Assignment not filed — Inculidity against execution creditors of assignor—Interpleader.] — Summary trial of an interplender issue. The sheriff had seized the defendant's interest in 500 bushels of grain, defendant as landlord receiving half of the crop. The claimants held an assignment of the lease as security. The claimants were barred, there being no change of possession and the lease not having been registered. Robinson v, Lott, 9 W, L. R. 684, 2 Sask, L. R. 150, reversed, 11 W, L. R. 59, 2 Sask, L. Document having effect of bill of sale—Taking possession under — Necessity for filing — '' Hirer, lessor, or bargainor.'']— Action for a declaration that a transfer of goods from the defendant to his brother, vas void under c, 11 of the Acts of 1898, and ss. 1, 3, and 4 of R. S. N. S., 5th ser, c. 92, because it was not filed. By the docu-ment in question the defendant transferred ment in question the defendant transferred a stock of goods in store to the amount of $1,500, and agreed to pay for the same by paying notes of B. & Co. to the amount $500, and by giving them notes for the balance of $100 each, one payable every six months. The document concluded: "The months. The document concluded : said G. H. to hold the goods in store, and whatever goods may come in after shall be-come the property of the said G. H. until the said G. H.'s claim is paid in full. If I fail to pay any of the above named notes, the said G. H. can take over possession of the business and all stock in the said store at time of me failing to meet or pay above or aforesaid named notes." This document was not filed, and was not accompanied by any affidavit. After G. H. had taken possession of the stock of goods under the power, plaintiffs attached the goods as the property of an absent or absconding debtor, and sought to have the transfer set aside .- Held, that the document in question came within the term "bill of sale," as defined by R. S. N. S. c. 92, s. 10, and should have been filed, and was liable to be defeated for non-filing up to the time that G. H. took possession under it:-Held, also, that G. H. did not come within the category of a "hirer, lessor, or bargainor," within the meaning of s. 3 of c. 92, and that such section had therefore no application. Manchester v. Hills, 34 N. S. Extension of time for registration— R. 8, B. (2, 1897, c, 32, s, 7 (2)—Order— Terms—Intervening rights.] — A company, domiciled in Toronto. Ontario, took a bill of sale on goods in Grand Forks, British Columbia. It was not possible to send the instrument to Toronto and have it returned for filing with the registrar with the affidavit of bona fides within the five days required by s, 7, s.-s. 2, of the Bills of Sale Act, 1905 :— Held, that in the order granting an extension of time for filing the instrument there should be a provision protecting intervening rights. Re Ellis (W. P.) & Co., 7 W. L. R. 371, 13 B. C. R. 271.

Failure to renew — New bill—Previous agreement — Validity—Absence of Fraud — Statute of Frauds — Possession—Affidavit— Commissioner — Solicitor.] — A bill of sale given in connection with the sale of a business held by the vendor for the benefit and protection of the plaintiffs, who had endorsed certain promissory notes given by the vendee in payment of the purchase money, having expired, in consequence of failure to renew it under the provisions of the Act, the plaintiff, in pursuance of an agreement made at the time of the sale, denanded and received a second bill of sale, to secure the amount for which he remained liable in respect of the original endorsements, as well as certain amounts for which he had become liable as There endorser of other promissory notes. being no question of insolvency on the part of the maker at the time the second bill of sale was given, and no fraudulent purpose, and the terms of the agreement being ac-curately set forth: — Held, that there was no pretence for holding the bill of sale void under the Statute of Elizabeth ; that the fact that the plaintiff had taken possession under his bill of sale, and was in possession at the time the sheriff made his levy, was sufficient. in the absence of fraud, to enable the plaintiff to maintain his action; and, following Creighton v. Reid, 27 N. S. Reps. 72, that the affidavit to the bill of sale was not bad because it had been sworn before the solicitor by whom the bill of sale was prepared. Mosher v. O'Brien, 37 N. S. Reps, 286.

Frandulent bill of sale—Conversion of goods by holder of subsequent unregistered lien—Justification.]—In an action for conversion, the plaintifi claimed title under a registered bill of sale which the jury found was made without consideration: and in fraud of creditors, the defendant justified the taking under an unregistered lien note given subsequent to the bill of sale :—Held, that the verdict was properly entered for the defendant. Poitras v. Pelletier, 2 E. L. R. 463, 38 N. B. R. 63.

Hire receipts—Transfer of rights—Conditional sales—Subropation,]—The purchaser of a piano under a hire receipt, by which, on his completing certain payments on account, the property was to pass to him, but in the meanwhile to remain in the vendors, before he had paid the required sum, agreed with his wife that she should purchase his interest and pay the balance due the vendors. There was no bill of sale registered, nor such change of possession as required by the Bills of Saleand Chattel Morigage Act, R. S. O. c. 148.— Held, that the transaction was invalid as against execution creditors, under s. 37 of that Act; and that the transaction was not within s. 41, s.e. 4, which was intended to except only conditional sales of chattels, within R. S. O. c. 149.—Held, however, that the wife was entilled to be subrogated to the rights of the vendors of the piano to the extent of the payments made by her. Eby v. McTavish, 20 Occ. N. 376, 32 O. Sale without change of possession— Absence of fraud—Pledge—Third persons.]— The sale of an immovable thing, not followed by change of possession, but made in good faith and without fraud, even if the purpose be to give the article in pledge to the purchaser, transfers the property to him as well against third persons as between the contracting parties. Bergeron v. Campeau, Q. R. 25 S. C. 26.

Security in form of absolute sale— Bills of Sale Act.]—When the transaction evidenced by an instrument in the form of an absolute bill of sale is in fact the giving of security for an existing debt, the parties cannot evade compliance with ss. 2 and 3 of the Bills of Sale Act. R. S. O. 1897 c. 148, merely by the form of the instrument. If, however, the real transaction is a sale with a right of re-purchase upon certain terms, the vendor can only be required to observe the provisions of s. B. Hope v. Parrott, 24 Occ. N. 206, 7 O. L. R. 496, 2 O. W. R. 248, 3 O. W. R. 499.

Staying sale — Payment into Court — Amount.]—In suit by mortgagor to set asile bill of sale, an interim injunction order to restrain a sale by mortgagee was granted, upon condition of mortgager paying into Court the amount due mortgagee_—The bill of sale was collateral security for promissory notes, some of which had been endorsed over for value:—Held, that the amount to be paid into Court should not be reduced by amount of such notes. Semble, that a judgment creditor of the bargainors (a partnership) had no locus standi to attack the bill on the ground that a member of the firm had no aathority to execute the bill on behalf of the firm:—Held, that he had implied authority, or that his act was ratified, or that his partners were estopped from denying his authority. "Transfer of goods in the ordinary course of business"-Sale of stock en block-Application of Bills of Sale Act.]-The plaintiff bought a stock of goods en bloc, and the defendant attacked the sale, on the ground that it was part of a scheme between the plaintiff and his vendor to defraud certain wholesale houses. A jury found that the transaction was bona fide, but, on motion for judgment, the defendants questioned the validity of the bill of sale to the plaintiff, on a number of grounds, one of the plaintiff's replies to which was that the Bills of Sale Act did not apply, as this was a transfer of goods in the ordinary course of business, excluded from the operation of the Act by s. 2 (R. S. B. C. 1897 c. 32; B. C. stat. 1905 c. 8, s. 3): -Held, that the words "transfer of goods in the ordinary course of business," were wide enough to include the sale of a stock in trade en bloc. Affidavit of bona fides-Jurat-Bills of Sale and Chattel Mortgage Act - "Sworn - Agent - Occupation of mortgage.] - 1. The affidavit of bona fides on a chattel mortgage is sufficient, although it pur-ports to be the joint affidavit of two mortgagees, and the jurat does not shew that they were severally sworn .--- 2. The insertion in the affidavit of a clause reading "that I am the duly authorised agent of the mortgagee," was an apparent mistake, and did not vitiate it, although it was the affidavit of the mortgagees themselves.--3. The fact that it is stated in the jurat that the affidavit has been "sworn," whereas the deponents affirmed, is not a fatal objection, as by the Interpretation Act the expressions "swear" and "sworn" respectively include "affirm solemnly" and "affirmed solemnly."—4. The Bills of Sale and Chattel Mortgage Act, R. Finite of Sine and Onicer Morgagee Act, A. S. After acquired property-Transfer of chattels and business to incorporated com-pany-Seizure and sale of chattels by mortgagees - Conversion - Estoppel -Pleading - Description.] - The plaintiffs in May, 1907. in pursuance of a previous agreement, purchased the business, plant, and stock in trade of L. Bros., subject to their debts and liabilities. One of these was a loan of $4,000 from the defendants secured by a chattel mortgage of all the plant and stock in trade of L. Bros. This chattel mortgage con-L. Bros, tained a provision that it should cover all after-acquired goods and chattels brought upon the premises owned or occupied by the plaintiffs or used in connection with their business during the currency of the mortgage. The plaintiffs had been incorporated as a company prior to the date of the chattel mortgage, and L. Bros. were the principal promoters and became the president and vice-president respectively, being in fact the controlling shareholders, $2,104.64 of the money lent by the defendants to L. Bros. was handed over to the plaintiffs, and by was indiced over to the plantitis, and by them applied towards payment of the debts of L. Bros. The plaintiffs paid on instal-ment of the interest due to the defendants on the $4,000 loan :--Held, that the pro-vision in the chattel mortgage as after-required code was a binding association. acquired goods was as binding upon the plaintiffs as purchasers of the mortgaged property with notice of it as it would be upon the executors or administrators of the mortgagors, and that the defendants had a good valid lien and charge upon all afteracquired goods brought upon the premises in question by the plaintiffs. Mitchell v. Winslow, 2 Story 630, followed, 2, That the plaintiffs were, in the circumstances, estopped from disputing such lien and charge Pickard v. Sears, 6 A. & E. 469, and Free-man v. Cooke, 18 L. J. Ex. 119, followed. And the defendants were entitled to shew in evidence the facts constituting such estoppel. although it had not been pleaded, as an estoppel in pais need not be pleaded to make it obligatory. 3. That the mortgage was not void as to the after-acquired goods because of the generality and vagueness of the description, Lazarus v. Andrade, 5 C. P. D., followed, Imperial Brewers Limited v. Gelin, 18 Man. L. R. 283, 9 W. L. R. 99.

Buildings — Appurtenances of ferry — Remedy—Definioue—Retoppel.]—The defendant gave a chattel mortgage to the plaintiffs on certain buildings, and also a vertain ferry, and "the ferry boat with cables, pulley, and other machinery used therewith."— Held, that definee or replevin would not lie for the buildings, at least where the defendant was in possession of the land on which they stood; nor for the ferry boats or attachments, as they were appurtenant to the ferry, which was an easement arising in respect of land.—(2) That there was no estoppel by the mortgage, in such sense as to make detinue or replevin an appropriate remedy for property of the character in question. Stimson v. Smith, 1 Terr, L. R. 183.

Collateral contract - Rectification of mortgage - Performance of contract - Evidence - Seizure under chattel mortgage Counterclaim for breach of contract.1-The plaintiff sued for damages for wrongful seizure and conversion of horses. The defendant alleged that the horses were seized under a chattel mortgage made by the plaintiff to him, the defendant. The mortgage contained a clause enabling the defendant to seize if he felt insecure. The defendant alleged that at the date of the seizure (14th October. 1908), the payments under the chattel mortgage were overdue, and also that the plaintiff had attempted to sell the horses, and that he (the defendant) felt insecure. The amount of the chattel mortgage was by its terms, to be repaid in two instalments, on the 1st August, 1907, and the 1st February, 1908. The defendant counterclaimed for the balance due under the chattel mortgage, after crediting the proceeds of the sale of the horses, and also for expenses incurred for the plaintiff at his request in defending an action, and also for damages for breach of an agreement whereby the plaintiff agreed to deliver cord-wood to the defendant. tiff alleged that the chattel mortgage was given as security for the wood agreement, under which the plaintiff was to deliver the wood before the 1st April, 1908; that he did deliver large quantities of wood, until, on the 30th January, 1908, the defendant requested him to postpone delivery of the residue until the following winter, and that he (the plaintiff) had always been willing and ready to complete. The plaintiff also asked that the chattel mortgage should be rectified so as to conform to the agreement :---Held, that, even if the mortgage were rectified, the plaintiff would still be in default, as on the 1st April, 1908, he admittedly had not wholly repaid the defendant either in wood or money: and upon the evidence, the plaintiff had not established that the defendant had requested him to delay delivery of the rest of the wood :--Held, also, that, on the evidence, the plaintiff was not entitled to succeed upon his counterclaim .- Both action and counterclaim dismissed with costs. Mayer v. Mackie (1910), 15 W. L. R. 128.

Consideration—Endorement of promisnorm note.]—Under s. 56 of the Bills of Exchange Act, 1890, a person who endorses a promissory note, not endorsed by the payce, is liable as an endorser to the latter. Judgment of the Court of Appeal, 2 O. L. R. 63, 21 Oce. N. 375, on this point reversed. The provisions of the Ontario Bills of Sale Act requiring the consideration of a chattel mortrage to be expressed therein is satisfied when the mortgage recites that the endorsement of a note is the consideration, and then sets out the note. Only the facts need be stated, not their legal effect. Judgment of the Court of Appeal on this point affirmed. Robinson 7, Mann, 22 Oce. N. 2, 31 S. C. R. 484.

Contracts-Setting aside contracts made in fraud of creditors-Prescription-Opposing seizure based on an act of alienation-Lapse of a year without suit brought-Gift disguised under the name of a sale.]-An execution creditor who permits more than a year to pass after the production by his opponent of a bill of sale under which the latter claims to be the owner of the goods seized is no longer entitled to contest the title of his opponent by declaring the invalidity of the bill of sale as made in fraud of creditors. A bill of sale in which the price mentioned is fictitious has the same force as a gift. Ross v. Lefebvre, 1909, Q. R. 36 S. C. 210.

Creditor refusing to accept dobt tendered him and proceeding to realize on security.]--A creditor who, holding collateral security, refuses to accept the amount due him, duly tendered by the debtor, and proceeds to collect or realize on the security, is liable for the damage thereby caused the debtor. Desyroscillers v. Anderson (1909), Q. R. 36 S. C. 234.

Default—Seizure of chattels—Sale—Best price not realised—Liability of mortgage.] —When a mortgage seizes chattels under a chattel mortgage, he must, if he sells the goods, realise the best price that can be obtained; and if he fails to make use of such means as may be necessary to secure such price, he must account to the mortgagor for the full value of the property. Grimes v. Gauthier, 7 W. L. R. 485, 1 Sask, L. R. 54. Description — Reneual — Time.] — Goods were described in a chattel mortgage as follows.—" All and singular the goods, chattels, stock-in-trade, fixtures, and store building of the mortgagors used in or pertaining to their business as general merchants, said stock-in-trade consisting of a full stock of general merchandise, now being in the store of the said mortgagors on," etc. Held, Rouleau, J., dissenting, that the description was sufficient. The mortgage was filed 12th August, 1886, at 4.10 p.m.; a renewal was filed 12th August, 1887, at 11.49 a.m. Held, Rouleau, J., dissenting, that the renewal was filed 12th August, 1887, at 11.49 p.m. Held, Rouleau, J., dissenting, that the renewal was filed within one year from the filing of the mortgage. Quirk v. Thompson, 1 Terr. L. R. 159.

Description — Construction — Ejusdem generis rule.]—Held that the following description in a chattel mortgage, "All office fixtures, lamps, desks, chairs, furniture, stationery, and all goods, chattels and effects now in the store and office of the mortgagors," did not include a safe, the general words being restricted by the preceding words. Goldie v. Taylor, 2 Terr. I. R. 295.

Description — Sufficiency — Cattle — Identification—Situation — License to mortgagor to sell cattle-Contemporaneous agreement-Consideration.]-In a chattel mortgage the property was described as follows :-"All cattle and horses of whatever age and sex branded '3' on the left side and all increase thereof from time to time until the moneys hereby secured are fully paid, to-gether with the '3' brand and the branding irons for said brand, and all right, title, and interest therein and thereto:"-Held, a suffiinterest inertia and thereto. — Atta, it sufficient description. For the purpose of identification, it was not necessary that all the brands borne by each animal should be referred to.—Held, also, that the mention of the locality where the cattle were when the mortgage was made was unnecessary. The mortgage in question contained the following proviso: "Provided always, anything hereinbefore contained to the contrary notwithstanding, that the said mortgagors shall be at liberty at any time to sell bulls and steers. Held, that this power was restricted to sales authorized by a contemporaneous agreement between the mortgagor and mortgagee, viz., of such animals as it might become necessary to sell to pay running expenses. Held, also, upon the evidence, that the consideration was duly expressed in the mortgage. Graveley v. Sprenger, 20 Occ. N. 147.

Endorsement of note—Payment — Setting axis mortgage.]—While the endorsing by a person not a party to a note of his name upon it, before it had been endorsed by the payee, is not an endorsement in the legal sense so as to make that person legally liable to the payee, a chattel mortgage to the intending endorser to secure him against the liability intended to be incurred caanot be set aside by the mortgager's assignee for creditors after the mortgage that paid het note in question. Robinson v. Mann, 21 Occ. N. 375, 2 O. L. R. 63.

Where, therefore, goods then being in a foreign country were comprised in such a mortgage and subsequently removed to the Territories, and there taken by the agent of the mortgage out of the possession of a bona ide purchaser for value without notice to the mortgage, and the latter sued the agent for conversion : — Held, that the plaintiff could not succeed. A distress for rent is unlawful if the tenant is not in possession at the time.--3. A chattel mort-gage will not be held void, under s 12 of he Bills of Sale and Chattel Mortgage Act. the Bills of Sale and Cheven active and the set of bona fides made by an agent stated that he had "a knowledge of all the facts connected with the said mortgage," instead of saying, in the words of the section, that he saying, in the words of the section, that he was "aware of all the circumstances." Emerson v. Bannerman, 19 S. C. R. J. and Rogers v. Carroll, 30 O. R. 328, followed.— 1. and 4. It is no objection to a mortgage on growing crops to secure the price of seed grain supplied, that the grain had not been sold to the mortgagor by the mortgagee himself, but was purchased by him for the mortgagor from a third party. Kirchoffer y. Clement, 11 Man. L. R. 460, followed.—5. Under s. 39 of the Act, it is a fatal objection to a mortgage on growing crops or crops to be grown, if it is taken for anything beyond the price of the seed grain furnished and interest thereon. Meighen v. Armstrong, 16 Man, L. R. 5.

Husband and wife-Creditors-Fraudulent conveyance-Description of goods-Affi-davit-Mistake in recital - After-acquired property.]-F., the husband of the plaintiff, in 1895 gave to C. a chattel mortgage upon a livery stable stock described as eight horses and harnesses now in livery stable owned by F., six waggons in storehouse, four pungs, coach harness, buffaloes, and robes now in said stable, and upon property which might be substituted for or added to such stock. In March, 1896, F., being indebted to the plain-tiff to the extent of $600 and upwards, gave her a chattel mortgage in which the property conveyed was described in almost the same words as in the mortgage to C., but the schedule, after enumerating specifically a number of articles, concluded as follows: "Also all other goods now or hereafter during other goods . . . now or hereafter during the continuance of these presents used in connection with the livery stable and all property hereafter acquired therein. In July, 1896, C. assigned his mortgage to the defendant, but the assignment was silent as to after-acquired property. In September, 1896, F. gave a further chattel mortgage to the defendant, covering all the property he had mortgaged to the plaintiff, and shortly afterwards handed him a delivery order authorizing the defendant to take possession of everything connected with the livery stable busi-ness, which he did. The plaintiff had also given to her husband $100 with which he was given to her a phase of the with which he was to buy her a phase on eredit for $100, which she accepted. This, though not men-tioned in any of the mortgages, was seized by the defendant. The mortgage to the plaintiff was first drawn to secure $500 but before execution it was changed to $600 in every place except the recital, where the word "five" was inadvertently left. In an action for the conversion of the phaeton and all the property conveyed to the plaintiff except such as was covered by the mortgage to C.:-Held, 1. That the mortgage was not invalid by reason of its having been made by the husband directly to the wife. 2. That there was no evidence that it was made to delay or hinder creditors. 3. That it contained a sufficient description of the mortgaged property to satisfy the Bills of Sale Act (1893); and that there was no such untrue statement in the affidavit attached to the mortgage as Printed form - Blanks not filled in -Construction and effect of investment-Seizure of goods-Sale-Conversion-Authority to seize-Quantity seized - Damages-Measure of general damages - Special damage - Pleading - Solicitor's fee for drawing mortgage.] - Lien-notes given by the plaintiff to the defendant G., the agent of the defendant company, for the price of goods sold to the plaintiff, were en-dorsed by G, to the company, and, after they were overdue, the plaintiff executed a document purporting to be a chattel mortgage upon some wheat in shock to secure the amount due upon the notes. The document was a long printed form of chattel mortgage, containing many blanks to be filled in, but only some of the blanks were filled in. namely, those left for the names of the mort-gagor and mortgagee, the consideration for executing the document, $312.98, and the property intended to be mortgaged. The form contained what was intended to be a redemption clause, but the amount to be paid or when it was to be paid was not filled in. Tt appeared from extrinsic evidence that the $312.98 was the amount due upon the notes : -Held, that the instrument was a mortgage to secure $312.98, payable on demand, with interest at 5 per cent.—Held, also, that, upon the evidence, the Court could not interfere with the finding of the trial Judge that the defendants seized the plaintiff's grain under the mortgage; but that the finding that the defendants agreed to allow the plaintiff to market the grain could not be supported .--Held, also, that it was immaterial whether the seizure was legal or illegal; if it was ille-gal, the measure of damages would be the value of the goods selzed, less the interest of the mortgagees therein; if it was legal, the defendants, not having sold the grain at public auction, but by private sale, would be liable to be charged with the highest price obtainable if the defendants had used reasonable and proper care, as prudent persons, to obtain the best price; and the trial Judge having found that they did not use such care, and having charged them with the highest price, the Court would not be justified in in-terfering with his finding; but the defendants were entitled to charge against that the amount due on their mortgage and what they paid out for carriage, etc., but not more than the amount provided for by C. O. ch. 34.-Held, also, that the finding that 506 bushels of wheat were delivered at the elevator, and that the defendants were chargeable therewith, ought not to be disturbed.-Held, also, that the allowance of $75 as "general damages" was unwarranted.-Held, also, that nothing could be allowed for special damage, as, e.g., that the plaintiff's landlord descended upon him for rent, no such damage being specifically alleged in the statement of claim; and quære, whether such damage would not be too remote.-Held, also, that the defendants were not, in the circumstances, entitled to charge the plaintiff with a fee paid to a solicitor for drawing the chattel mortgage; and certain other charges should also be disallowed. — Judgment of Maclean, Dist. Ct. J., 13 W. L. R. 682, varied. Coupland v. Paris Plow Co. (1910), 14 W. L. R. 680.

Registration — Subsequent purchaser — Removal of goods.] — For purposes of registration of deeds the North-West Territories is divided into districts, and it is provided by Ordinance that registration of a chattel mortgage, not followed by transfer of possession, shall only have effect in the district in which it is made. It is also provided that if the mortgaged goods are removed into another district, a certified copy of the mortgage shall be filed in the registry office hereof within three weeks from the time of removal, otherwise the mortgage shall be null and void as against subsequent purchasers. etc.:—Held, reversing the judgment in appeal, that the "subsequent purchaser if the expiration of the 3 weeks from the time of removal, and that, though no copy of the mortgage is filed as provided, it is valid as against a purchase made within such period. Hubbert v. Peterson, 25 Occ. N. 118, 36 S. C. R. 324.

Removal of goods from one province to another -- Non-registration -- Bona fide purchaser for value without notice-Title--Validity of mortgage - Conversion - Detinue - Measure of damages.]-The owner of goods, having executed a chattel mortgage, which was duly recorded in the proper registration district in the province of Saskatchewan, afterwards fraudulently re-moved them to the province of Alberta, where he sold them to a bona fide purchaser for value without notice of the mortgagee ; -Held, that such sale conferred no title to the goods as against the chattel mortgage, the mortgage being good as between the parties, and the Bills of Sale Ordinance, which requires a certified copy of the mortgage to be filed in the registration district to which the goods were removed, being inoperative as a law of the province of Saskatchewan, beyond the boundaries of that province. If the mortgage is good according to the law of the situs of the goods at the time of execution as between the parties, it is good in every other situs to which the goods may be removed, even as against subsequent purchasers and creditors; and if registration is only required by the law of the original situs to protect creditors and subsequent purchasers, this means creditors and subsequent purchasers seeking to enforce their claims within the judicial territory of the original situs; and, consequently, whether registered in either jurisdiction or not, the mortgage, valid between the parties, is valid to all intents and purposes in any foreign (including other provincial) jurisdiction. Semble, that in an action by the mortgagee for a return of the goods and damages for detention, the goods having been returned, the measure of damages is the amount of the interest on the price paid by the defendant for the goods. Jones v. Twohey, 8 W. L. R. 295, 1 Alta. L. R. 267.

Removal of goods to new district-Sale within three weeks-Omission to refile mortgage — Subsequent purchaser.]--Where chattels have been mortgaged in one registration district, a purchaser from the mortgagor within three weeks after their removal to another district requires a good title if the mortgagee omits within the three weeks to refile his mortgagee: Scott, J., dissentiente. Peterson v. Hubbert, 6 Terr. L. R. 114. Reversed in Hubbert v. Peterson, 36 S. C. R. 324.

Renewal—Change of possession—Parent and child—Execution creditor: Goodycar v. Goodycar, 1 O. W. R. 405.

Renewal — Statement — Afidavit — Payments—Principal—Interest.] — The objectiontaken to the validity of a chattel mortgagewas, that the renewals were not sufficient,in the (1) they were not signed by the mortgage, and (2) were not upon their face sufficiently explicit in regard to the paymentsmade. On the back of each statement wasan affidavit, signed by the mortgagee andsworn by him, referring to the statementupon which it was indorsed:—Held, followingBarber v. Maughan, 42 U. C. R. 134, thatthis might be read as part of the statementand being so read shewed the statementto be that of the mortgagee, which wasall that the statute required: R. S. O. 1897c. 148, s. 18. The statement of paymentsmade did not set forth in detail the date and amount of each payment made, but only the total sum paid. It went on to state "that no payments have been made upon the said mortgage;" but it clearly shewed that payment of a certain sum had been made on account of the interest, and no other payments: -Held, that the statute had been sufficiently complied with. Christin v. Christin, 21 Occ. N. 284, 1 O. L. R. 634.

Renewal—Statement of payments — Repetition.) — In an interpleader matter between an execution creditor and a chattel mortagge of the execution debtor, the validity of the renewals of a chattel mortagge was questioned, on the ground that, while the first renewal statement shewed all the payments made during the year and the total amount due, the subscription of the statement hegen with the total amount due in the preceding statement, and did not repeat the payments there set out and credited: — Heid, sufficient. Christian v. Christian, I.O. L. R. 634, followed. Kerr v. Roberts, 17 Occ. N. 337, overruled. Judgment of MaeWatt, Co.J., in the 2nd Division Court, Lambton, 3 O. W. R. 327, affirmed. Rogers v. M. Included in the property mortgaged was a stallion, which a few months after the execution of the mortgage and before any default on the part of the defendant, but without the written consent of M., he exchanged with the plaintiff for a horse belonging to him. After the exchange the plaintiff. having discovered that the stallion was covered by the mortgage, attempted to avoid the transaction, sending the stallion back to the defendant and demanding the return of his own horse, which the defendant retured to deliver :--Held, that, as the mortgage must be taken to contain the whole contract entered into between the defendant and M., the Judge of the Court below was in error in giving any effect to a mere verbal license, which preceded the mortgage and was not in harmony with many of its provisions; and that it was clearly a condition of the mortgage and the intention of the parties thereto, that the defendant should be allowed to sell or exchange the mortgaged property, provided such sale or exchange was in the ordinary course of the defendant's business, and as whether this exchange had been in the ordinary course of the defendant's business or not was a question of fact which had not been passed upon by the Court below, there should be a new trial in order to have that point determined. The mortgage being in default, the defendants seized a large number of horses covered by the mortgage, took them to Calgary, and sold them by public auction. The plaintiff alleged that the defendants had been careless and improvident in their method of handling the horses and in conducting the sale, and asked for damages therefor :--Held, affirming the judgment of Beck, J., 11 W. L. R. 667, that the sale had been fairly conducted as to length of advertisement and otherwise, but that the defendants had been negligent in bringing 360 horses to Calgary, considering their condition, the time of the year, and the road over which they were driven, and that the defendants were also responsible for the death of 3 of the horses at Calgary by their negligence.

-Held, however, that the amount at which the damages were assessed by Beck, J. ($2,800) was excessive. Where a mortgagee is guilty of improvidently and negligently conducting a seizure and sale under the powers contained in his mortgage, the proper measure of damages is the difference between the amount realised at the sale and the fair value of the goods sold at the time and place of scizure. A reference was directed for the assessment of damages upon that basis.— Held, also, affirming the judgment of Beck, J., that the plaintiff should be permitted to surcharge and falsify the accounts of the defendants, it appearing that some important errors were made in calculating the interest chargeable against the plaintiff. The Court should not treat the mortgages or the monthly statements as anything more than stated or settled accounts. The doctrine of estoppel could not be applied against the plaintiff, in respect at least of the monthly statements and acknowledgments, because it was clear that the defendants had in no way altered their position on the faith of the correctness of those statements, or would in any way be prejudiced by the rectification of any errors in calculation of interest. The mortgages being under seal, might operate an estoppel by deed, but that applies only where the action is brought directly on the deed ; and a mortgagor is entitled in any case to shew that the sum mentioned in the mortgage does not represent the exact amount of the money advanced or of the indebtedness secured .-Held, also, that the charging of a rate of interest in excess of that allowed by the Bank Act could, in the circumstances of this case, amount merely to an important error such as would give the plaintiff leave to surcharge and falsify. In the absence of knowledge that an excessive rate was being charged, the plaintiff could not be said to have paid the illegal rate voluntarily. Up to the 31st December, 1904, the date of the first chattel mortgage, the account should be taken at 7 per cent.; but after that date, as the mortgage contained a definite promise to pay 8 per cent., he knew the rate which the defendants were charging him, and for the period between that date and the 28th May, 1907, when the second mortgage was signed, his acquiescence in the charges made in his accounts and pass books must be taken as amounting to voluntary payments. With respect to the rate chargeable after the 28th May, 1907, the rate of 8 per cent, was ille-gal, but it should not be reduced to 5, but only to 7 per cent., the maximum rate allowable .- Held, also, that the effect of the Statute of Limitations is that, in taking the account, the plaintiff must be limited to a period commencing 6 years prior to the issue of the writ of summons.-Held, also, reversing in this respect the judgment of Beck. J., that the plaintiff was entitled to treble damages provided by the Ordinance respecting Distress for Rent and Extra-judicial Seizure, because the defendants retained from the proceeds of the sale, as the costs thereof, sums in excess of those allowed by the Ordinance, The Court will take judicial notice of the limits of the various judicial districts, and the evidence shewed that the animals were within the district of Calgary when seized and also when sold. The defendants made the seizure under the chattel mortgage, though they acted by an agent or buildf. Under s. 3 of the Ordinance the Court or Judge had no discretion to refuse to adjudge the penalty, the facts bringing the case within the statute; and sec. 7, s.s. 2 of the Act of 1907 did not enable the Court to relieve against a penalty or forfeiture imposed by stattute—Held, also, that the plaintiff had not, by the terms of the mortgages, contracted himself out of the Ordinance; he was authorised by such terms to retain only such costs and expenses as the law permits. Sufficiency of description of goods mortgaged — Contemporaneous agreement under seal — Statement of consideration.] - The property covered by chattel mort-gage was described as "all cattle and and horses of whatever age and sex branded 5 on the left side and all increase thereof, together with the said brand and branding irons. The defendant, the mortgagee, had owned a number of cattle some of which were branded "M. S." and others \Box and others "5" with one or both of the other brands. All those branded "5" were sold to the mortgagor: -Held, that the description was sufficient for identification, and that no mention of the locality where the cattle were at the time the mortgage was given was necessary. By a contemporaneous agreement under seal, the mortgagor agreed for three years to give his whole time and attention to looking after the horses and cattle, the mortgagee agreeing to allow the mortgagor to sell sufficient to pay running expenses :--Held, that the agree-ment did not affect the correctness of the statement of consideration, which was stated as $3,000, the purchase price of the cattle. Graveley v. Springer, 3 Terr. L. R. 120.

Time for redemption of goods covered by chattel mortgage extended for three months, on condition that mortgagers pay costs of this motion, $25, $1,000 on 4th December, prox., and $1,000 on 4th January, 1010. If necessary, a new account can be taken and the exact amount ascertained, allowing for storage charges, insurance, etc. Mitchell v. Kowalsky (1909), 14 O. W. R 702, 1 O. W. N. 95.

Transfer of ownership of goods -Possession retained-Rights of creditors -Fraud-Preference - Pressure.] - The defendant, by an agreement in writing, transferred to the opposant, his creditor, the ownership of his furniture, as security for the opposant's claim. The transfer was made subject to a right on the defendant's part to recover the ownership, on paying the amount of his indebtedness, for which he had given the opposant a demand note. By the con-tract transferring the effects, it was agreed that the opposant should have the right to take possession of the effects if the note were not paid, and that the effects should be left in the defendant's possession until he made default. The note had not been paid, but some small payments had been made on account, and judgment had been obtained by the opposant on the note. The effects transferred having been seized in the defendant's possession by the plaintiff, a judgment creditor, the opposant claimed them as his pro-perty, under the transfer :--Held, that where there is no evidence of intention to defraud or of simulation, a debtor from whom his creditor demands security, can, for the purpose of furnishing such security, transfer to the creditor the ownership of movable effects, so as to give the latter, without his taking possession of the movables transferred, a good title thereto as against other creditors of such debtor, including even a creditor anterior to the one whose claim was secured by the transfer. Creed v. Haensel, Q. R. 24 S. C. 178.

Valid agreement to give mortgage— Mortgage aubsequently given—Right to ray on agreement.]—Where an agreement to give a chattel mortgage is duly made and registered under R. S. O. c. 1488, s. 11, and subsequently a mortgage is made and regitred, the giving of such mortgage, whereby the legal estate becomes vested in the mortgagee, does not revest in the debtor the equiable tille which the mortgage had by virtue of the agreement, but it continues to exist as before, and the mortgage is enabled to rely on it where the legal mortgage is ineffectual for any purpose. Deeming, 15 O. R. 201, fol-lowed. A mortgage dated the Sth February, 1907, whereby the time fixed for repayment is the Sth February, 1909, does not extend the liability beyond two years from its date. Where the affidavit of bona fides is made by an officer of an incorporated company, the company is like an individual, bound by the recitals in the mortgage, e.g., recital of an agreement in writing for future advances.-The affidavit of bona fides, where the mortgagee is an incorporated company, may be made by the company's vice-president, who need not be described as agent. Newlands v. Higgins, Re Great West Saddlery Co., 7 W. L. R. 59, 1 Alta. L. R. 18.

Validity - Form-Witness-Affidavit of Execution — Irregularities — Interpleader— Amendment of affidavit.]—The Bills of Sale Ordinance, C. O. 1898, c. 43, s. 7, provides Manance, C. 1905, C. 155, K. 1, provides that "except, etc., a mortgage ... may be made in accordance with form A. . . Form A., in the place intended for the witnesses" signature, has the words, "Add name, ad-dress, and occupation of witness." No form of affidavit of execution is given :-Held, that neither (1) the omission to state the address and occupation of the witness after his signature, nor (2) the omission of the deponent's name and occupation in the body of the affidavit of execution, which was signed by him, nor (3) the omission to state in the jurat a more definite place than "the North-West Territories," rendered the registration of the mortgage invalid. The claimant in interpleader was allowed an adjournment to amend the affidavit supporting his claim. Commercial Bank of Manitoba v. Fehrenbach, 4 Terr. L. R. 335.

Variance in amount in affidavit of bona fides-Guarantee by company signed by president.]-A company sold a branch of their business taking a chattel mortgage for $5,066.74 as security. By mistake the affidavit of bona fides stated that the mortgagor was justly indebted to the company in the sum of $5,000: --- Held, that the mortgage was a valid security for $5,000. Mader McKinnon (1892), 21 S. C. R. at p. 652. followed : Midland Loan v. Cowieson (1891), 20 O. R. 585, distinguished. In order that the mortgagor might obtain an advance from a bank, the president of the company signed a guarantee in this form, "A. E. Thomas, Ltd.," and under that name "A. E. Thomas, Pres.":-Held, that the guarantee was binding on the company. The mortgage covered the stock in trade, fixtures and all book debts. The company did not notify the debtors of the assignment of the debts as required by the Judicature Act, s. 58 (5). The mort-gagor later assigned the book debts to the bank as collateral security for the advance : -Held, that the bank had taken their assignment without notice of the company's claim and having collected the debts were entitled to retain the proceeds. The mortgagor also gave the bank a document purporting to be a further security, under s. 88 of the Bank Act, covering 230 cases of matches, and the bank took possession of the matches i, -Held, that as the matches were covered by the chattel mortgage it was not necessary to consider whether the document claimed by the bank was of any value in view of s, 90 of that Act, Judgment given bank against the company for the amount of the guarantee. Judgment given the company the matches, the bank to have right to retain the matches on payment to the company the amount of their mortgage. Reference to the Master in Ordinary to take accounts. 3, LEASE OF CHATTELS.

Reduction in rent in case the lessee does not use the machines leased-Lessor's remedy.]-In the present case, the judgment rendered on a first action which was taken by the plaintiff against the defendants with the object, even by means of an injunction, of forcing them to use certain machines leased to them by the plaintiff, and to have them ordered to fulfil their obligations as lessees of such machines, the whole in conformity with the leases existing between the parties, and also with the object of recovering damages suffered to that date by reason of the breach on the part of the defendants of their obligations under such leases, cannot be considered as res judicata in so far as the present action is concerned. which was taken subsequently, by the same plaintiff, and wherein is claimed from the same lessees the rent or royalty agreed upon and stipulated in the same leases respecting the said machines .- The following clause is contained in the leases entered into between the plaintiff and defendants: "The ressee guarantees that the rent or royalty herein provided (less all abatements) shall amount in each calendar year ending December 31st. to, at least, fifteen dollars for each calendar month and at the end of each such calendar year, the lessee shall pay to the lessor the amount, if any, by which the rent or royalty paid for said year is less than such guaranteed rent or royalty, provided, however, if, in any such calendar year, the factory of the lessee remains wholly idle for any entire month, then, the amount of rent or royalty guaranteed for that year shall be reduced by one-twelfth for each such month that the factory thus remains wholly idle," - Held, the foregoing clause must be understood to refer to an involuntary and temporary idleness and not to a voluntary and permanent one, in view of the fact that a contrary interpretation would allow the lessees to disregard their obligations under the leases. United Shoe Machinery Co. v. Brunet (1910), 16 R. de J. 467. See report of first action in C. R. [1909] A. C. 148; [1909] A. C. 330; 78 L. J. P. C. 101, 100 L. T. R. 579, 17 Que K. B. 435.

I-D. being financially embarrassed, an arrangement was made by him with the plaintiff, representing his creditors, and the defendants, for a lease of D.'s business premises to the defendants, and an assignment of the rents accruing under the lease to the plaintiff as trustee for D.'s creditors. This arrangement was carried out, and the lease and assignment executed at a meeting at which D., the plaintiff, and the defendants were all present:—Held, that the lease and assignment formed one entire agreement, to which the defendants were parties; and therefore, in an action by the plaintiff for rent due, it was not necessary to shew notice of the assignment to the defendants, in pursuance of the provisions of the statute regarding notice of assignments of choises in action. Lavell v. McDonald (1910), 15 W L, R, 243.

Assignment of — Beneficial interest — ction by assignee—Interest of debtor.]-Action The plaintiffs sued to recover for goods sold by them and P. & Co. and C. & Co., the claims of the latter firms having been assigned to the plaintiffs to avoid bringing two other actions. The defence raised the objec-tion that the claims assigned to the plaintiffs were merely held in trust by them and that the plaintiffs were not beneficially entitled thereto or interested therein, 2. That the plaintiffs, being a corporation under the Joint Stock Companies Act, were not em-powered to become assignees and could not sue for claims other than their own: Held, that under the Assignments Act. R. S. M. c. 7, s. 3, the assignce of debts and choses in action may bring an action thereon in his own name, although they have been transferred only for the purpose of joining a number of claims in one suit, and the assignce has no beneficial interest in them. 2. That the defendant had no interest whatever in the assignments, and was in no way prejudiced by them; he was a mere stranger to the assignments, and not competent to raise the point in question. Stobart v. Forbes. 20 Occ. N. 446.

Assignment of — Consideration — Stifting prosecution.]—An assignment of a chose in action made to the complainant for the purpose of causing the withdrawal of a criminal charge against a relative of the assignor is void, although valuable consideration may be given for a part of the subject of the assignment, Frigon v. Cossette, Q. B. 16 S. C. 340.

Assignment of—Partnership—Authority of partner—Pleading—Objection—Costs.].— The plaintiff sued as assignee of a fira. creditors of the defendant. The transfer was signed by S. M. L., and a copy of it sent to the defendant, The defendant pleaded, denving, among other things, the validity of the transfer. In reply, the plaintiff allezed that S. M. L. was one of the members of the firm and had all the rights and authorization of the firm.—Held, that this reply was good in law, but the matter of it should have been set up in the declaration. The objection of the defendant should have been taken by way of exception to the form, and not by demurrer. The demurrer was disposed of by ordering preuve avant faire droit, reserving costs. Assignment of book debts to creditor-No notice to debtors-Validity of -Cheques - Transfer.]-The plaintiffs were assignees of certain book debts, notice of the assignment of which was not given to the debtors. Subsequently the debts were paid by cheques to the assignor, who was collecting them for the plaintiffs under an arrange-The defendants, who were ment with them. also creditors of the assignor, and who had notice of the assignment, obtained possession of the cheques from a clerk of the assignor: -Held, that the plaintiffs were entitled to recover the amount of the cheques, as absence of notice to the debtors under s.-s. 5 of s. 58 of the Judicature Act could not be taken advantage of by the defendants, after the debtors had paid the agent of the as-signees. Eby-Blain Co. v. Montreal Packing Co., 12 O. W. R. 578, 912, 17 O. L. R. 292.

Assignment of claims of several to one-Action in name of one for payment of all-Addition of parties-Amendment.]—The plaintiff, a contractor in Canada, and two contractors in the United States, had performed some work on a theatre in Canada, for which the owner refused to pay. The American contractors, at the instance of their solicitors, but without the knowledge of the plaintiff, assigned all their claims to him absolutely, with a view of collecting the amounts due in the name of the plaintiff. This was communicated to the plaintiff. This was communicated to the plaintiff, was indemnified against costs and guaranteed payment of his claim:-Held, on objection taken at the trial, that this was not an "absolute assignment" within s. 58, s.s. (5), of the Judicature Act, R. S. O. 1897, c. 51. but leave to amend by adding the American contractors as plaintiffs was granted. Mills V. Swail, 90, W. R. 421, 14 O. L. R. 105.

Assignment of debt-Notice to debtor Right of assignee to sue-Costs.]-The service of a notice of the sale or the assignment of a specialty debt is not an essential condition precedent to the bringing of an action to recover the debt by the assignee against the debtor. The notice which brings to the latter knowledge of the assignment and proof of it (in this case by the filing of it) is sufficient to give the plaintiff a useful possession of the debt as against the debtor at the time of the hearing on the merits. The Court is then in a position to pass upon the merits of the controversy, and may take into consideration the conduct of the parties in adjudicating upon the question of costs. Brunel v. Cloutier, Q. R. 33 S. C. 408.

Litigious rights - Offers-Contract Conditions - Action by contractor before completion of work.] - A defendant may plead at the same time the nullity of the obligation invoked against him and the fact that it constitutes a litigious right. 2. Offers made on condition that the party to whom they are made gives a quittance upon receipt of the sum offered, are legal offers. 3. If in a contract for the performance of work it is stipulated that the contractor will be paid in the course of the work to the extent of 75 per cent, of the value of the work done as certified by the architect charged with the superintendence of the work, and the balance 30 days after completion, such contractor cannot, without having finished the work, sue for such balance, even where he offers to deduct the cost of the work remaining to be done. 4. The smallness of the price paid for an assignment of a debt is a circumstance which raises a presumption that the claim is a litigious one. 5. The litigious character which a claim has at the time of its first transfer remains attached to it if it is again transferred by the first transferee. Crevier v. Evans, Q. R. 21 S. C. 309.

Money order-Indorsement of-Parol assignment - Interpleader.]- The defendant under contract to build for one W., purchased the materials from the plaintiffs, who subsequently got judgment against him, and who garnished the moneys due from W. to the defendant under the contract. Moneys due the contractor were to be paid on the certificate of the architect. Before the gar nishee proceedings the defendant had accepted the following order drawn upon him by a firm to whom he was indebted on a sub-con-tract: "Please pay to Champion & White the sum of $270, and charge the same to my account for plastering Place Block, Has-tings street, W., in full to date :" upon which order the defendant indorsed a memorandum addressed to the architect as follows: " Please pay that order and charge to my account on ontract for Robert Walker block on Hastings street, city :"- Held, in interpleader, that, apart from the order, there was a parol assignment specifically appropriating to the assignces the sum in question of the The assigness the sum in question of the moneys to arise out of the contract. Moneys due from insurance company -Bill of exchange drawn on company-Oral agreement-Notice-Equitable assignment -Moneys payable in futuro.]-M., the owner of a ship, being indebted to the plaintiff, became entitled to receive from an insurance company a sum of money. On being pressed for payment of the debt due to the plaintiff, M. intimated that all he could give was the M. intimated that all he could give was the insurance money on the ship, and, being then in Boston, he gave the plaintiff a draft dated the 6th January, 1883, on the insur-ance company. Notice of this, as being an assignment of the insurance money, was given to the insurance company on the 27th January, 1883. Afterwards M. executed a formal assignment of the policy and of the other property to the defendant B., another creditor. M., at or before the time of giving this assignment, informed B, that he intended the plaintiff to be paid out of the insurance money :- Held, that the whole transaction between the parties-the oral agreement between M. and plaintiff, and the notice of it to the insurance company and to B.-made the case not a case of a mere bill of exchange as an ordinary mercantile transaction, but constituted a valid equitable as-signment, which the bill of exchange was given to effectuate :--- Held, also, that the fact that the insurance money was not payable at the time of this assignment could not affect the right of the assignee. Wolfe v. Hart, 40 N. S. R. 17.

As-Moneys due under a contract signment to secure advances-Equitable as-signment-Notice.]-A firm of contractors having a contract with a town corporation and desiring advances from a bank, assigned "all or any money or moneys due or which may become due from the corporation of the town;" and thereafter the cheques for all moneys coming to the contractors, payable to their order, were handed to the bank. The contractors subsequently executed another in-strument as follows: "We hereby, for and in consideration of advances heretofore made ... assign, transfer, and make over to" (another branch of the same bank) "as a general and continuing collateral security, balance of the account " against the town corporation. It was admitted that the bank knew that there was but one contract upon which the contractors would be entitled to receive money from the town corporation, and that the assignments were simply taken as security for the advances made or to be made to the contractors :---Held, that the assignments to the bank were good equitable assignments, and that no notice of them to the town corporation was necessary. Sovereign Bank v. International Portland Cement Co., 10 O. W. R. 161, 14 O. L. R. 511.

Non-acceptance—Action by assignor.]— A creditor who assignes a debt due him to a creditor of his own, does not thereby lose his right of action against his debtor, so long as his creditor has not accepted the assignment. Legault v. Désaulniers, 5 Que, P. R. 444. Notice—Cause of action.]—Where a debt has been assigned by way of mortgage, but no notice in writing of the assignment has been given to the debtor, the cause of action still remains in the assignor. Okell v. Dickzon, 9 B. C. R. 151.

Notice—Knowledge—Notice of action.]— 1. A sale or transfer of a debt does not invest the transferee or purchaser with a right of action against the debtor, unless the transfer has been signified to him. 2. The necessity for such signification is not removed by proof of the debtor's knowledge of such transfer. 3. Signification of the action is insufficient and does not take the place of the signification to which the debtor is entitled. Maple Leaf Rubber Co. v. Brodie, Q. B. 18 S. C. 352.

Notice—Notary—Notice of action.]—It is not necessary that notice of the transfer of a debt should be given by the instrumentality of a notary. 2. The service upon the debtor of process in an action brought in the name of the assignee, claiming payment of the debt, is a sufficient notice of the transfer. Judgment in Q. R. 11 K. B. 251, reversed, Bank of Toronto v, 8t. Lawreace Fire Ins. Co., Q. R. 12 K. B. 556, (1903) A. C. 59.

Notice-Service-Notary.] -- It is not necessary that service of a notice of a transfer of a debt should be made through the instrumentality of a notary. Bayard v, Drouin, Q. R. 22 S. C. 420.

Notice — Sufficiency — Notarial Act — Debtor—"Third person."] — Under Arts. 1570 and 1571 of the Civil Code of Lower Canada, signification to the debtor of the act of sale of his debt need not be by a notarial act. Quare, whether the debtor is a "third person," within the meaning of the latter article, against whom signification was necessary in order to perfect possession. Murphy v. Bury, 24 S. C. R. 608, doubled. The institution of an action against the debtor is of itself a sufficient signification of the transfer of the debt. Judgment of the Court of King's Hench, Quebec, affirming judgment in Q. R. 21 S. C. 251, reversed. Bank of Toronio v. 84, Lawrence Fire Ins. Co., [1903] A. C. 59.

Notice of transfer of debt-Necessity for-Action-Service of process. 1-A transferee of a debt cannot suc his transferor's debtor for the recovery of the same without first serving a copy of the transfer on the debtor, or, at least, serving a copy thereof on the defendant, with the action. Service of process in the action alone is not sufficient notice of the transfer, and is not a sufficient compliance with the law. Karn (D, W.) C, v. Lough, Q, R, 26 S, C, 64.

Notice to debtor — Judicature Act — Sufficiency of notice.]—II. to whom the defendants owed $184.93, being $124.90 for oak lumber, and $60.13 for basswood lumber, assigned his claim to the plaintif. The only notice which the plaintif gave the defendants of this assignment stated that he had an order from H, for the amount due in respect to a purchase of oak lumber bought by the defendants' agent. At the same time an account of H.'s against the defendants in the matter went to shew that, as above stated, only $124.80 was due for oak lumber, while the balance, $60.13, was for basswood lum-ber. The plaintiff drew on the defendants for the amount, and the defendants refused to accept the draft, on the ground that they had no order from H. to pay the $184.93. Thereupon the present action was brought :--Held, that, though there was sufficient to put the defendants upon inquiry in the notice they received, as to an assignment to the plaintiff of the money due them to H., yet it was not sufficiently clear and express to entitle the plaiatiff to sue, under the section of the Judicature Act relating to assignments of choses in action, being ambiguous enough to justify them in asking the plaintiff whether the assignment covered the oak lumber only, or the basswood as well as the oak, The statute requires the notice to be express notice in writing, and there should be nothing equivocal about it, nothing to put the debtor in doubt whether the whole debt or only a part of it has been assigned. The notice here fell short of this requirement. McMil-lan v. Orillia Export Lumber Co., 23 Occ. N. 244, 6 O, L. R. 126, 2 O, W. R. 529.

Order for payment of money—Equitable assignment — Existence of fund. Kelly v. Wilson, 2 O. W. R. 508.

Order for payment of money-Equitable assignment of fund-Estoppel.] - The defendant had in his hands $1,307.67 belong. The ing to M., being the proceeds of the sale of a mining property. The plaintiff claimed all this money, and presented to the defendant a document which he said was an order for the whole of the fund. There was consideration for the order. The defendant paid the plaintiff $209.67 on the day of the presentation of the order, made an entry in his book of this payment on the order, and gave the plaintiff to understand that the balance of the amount of the order would be paid him on the following Monday. Three days after the entry in his book, he was advised by M. that the plaintiff had an order :--Held, that the document being conditional was not a bill of exchange, and that the transaction constituted an equitable assignment of the fund coming from the mining property, to the extent expressed in the order .-- Doctrine of estoppel applicable. McDonald v. McDonald, 40 N. S. R. 71.

Order for payment of money-Validity as assignment-signment of ansignor-Assignment of undefined partion of future debt Interpleader.]-A signature inserted in such a manner as to govern the whole instrument is a sufficient signature.-2. Under the provisions of C. O. 1898, c. 41, an assignment of an undefined portion of a future debt is valid.-3. As between two claimants under assignments of different dates, where the fund has not been paid over by the stakeholder, that assignment which is first in point of time has priority, notwithstanding that the last assigne has first given notice of the assignment. The sale resulted in a surplus. Before the sale the mortgagor diei —Held, that the writing was not an equitable assignment, but a power of attorney revocable by the grantor's death Ex p. Welch-Chapman v. Gilfillan, 21 Occ.N. 90, 2 N. B. Eq. Reps. 129.

Requirements—Intention,] — To constitute an equitable assignment of a chose in action neither writing nor any particular form of words is required, but any words or acts from which it is to be inferred that there was an intention to pass the beneficial Interest are sufficient. Validity—Assignee not named—Evidence to supply omissions.]—By an informal instrument in writing an insolvent debtor professed to assign all his interest in certain specified property and "all moneys due to me c.c.L.—20a from any source whatever," but did not in the operative part of the instrument name the assignee, who was indicated only by these words at the end of the document: "And I hereby appoint the said G. D. B, my irrevocable attorney . . . to receive any and all moneys owing to me from any source whatever." G. D. B, was the agent of the plaintiffs to whom the insolvent was indekted, and the insolvent sent the assignment to G. D. B, in an unsigned letter in his own handwriting, in which he wrote. "I have made an assignment of everything to you." A debt due to the insolvent having been attached by the defendants, who were also creditors, the plaintiffs claimed the amount under the assignmen to their agent, and an issue was directed:—Held, that the letter could be looked at to aid the assignment, and the assignme me should be read in; and, therefore, the plaintiffs were entitled to the money. Validity-Notice-Bank Act-Statute of Elizabeth-Execution - Interest in partner-ship-Sale-Action-Parties.] - Action by husband and wife to set aside an assignment to a bank by the husband's execution debtor of his share or interest in the asserts and business of a partnership. The assignment was made in February, 1806, as security for a past due debt exceeding the amount of the a part due dont exceeding the about to the assignor's interest in the partnership. The husband recovered judgment against the as-signor in May, 1896, in an action brought before the assignment, and placed execution in the sheriff's hands in July, 1896. Under that execution, the sheriff, without making any actual seizure of the partnership assets, pu ported to sell and convey to the wife in October, 1896, all the undivided share or interest of the assignor exigible under execution in the partnership assets or business. This ac tion was begun in November, 1898:-Held, that the assignment was not invalid under the Bank Act, nor under the Statute of Eli-zabeth, there being no evidence that it was made with intent to delay and defraud the husband in his action against the assignor. Under the law as it stood at the date of the assignment, notice thereof to the assignor's partners was not necessary to its validity, Per Armour, C.J.O.—Debts are not included in the expression "goods, wares, and mer-chandise," as used in the Bank Act. The effect of placing the execution in the sheriff's hands was to bind the goods of the partnership, so that they were liable to be seized, but no seizure of any specific assets having been made, and all the assets of the partbeen made, and all the assets of the part-nership having been sold, realized, and disposed of, the execution creditor lost any benefit which he might have derived from the seizure of specific assets and the sale thereunder of the undivided interest of the execution debtor therein; and nothing passed to the wife by the sale to her. Per Osler, J.A.—The husband was not a proper party. Judgment in 1 O. L. R. 303, 21 Occ. N. 183, affirmed. Rennie v. Quebee Bank, 22 Occ. N. 171, 3 O. L. R. 541, 1 O. W. R. 286.

Anglican church-Incumbent-Church-wardens-Corporation - Temporalities Act, s. 6-Institution-Induction.] - A clerk in holy orders of the Church of England appointed by the Bishop of Montreal under his sign manual to be the incumbent of a parish during the pleasure of the bishop, and therefore removable, is the incumbent within the meaning of s. 6 of the Temporalities Act of the United Church of England and Ireland, in the diocese of Montreal. As such, he is the corporation referred to in the above section .- An incumbent of a parish need not tion.—An inclineat of a parisa need by virtue of his appointment by the bishop of the dio-cese, and neither "institution" nor "induc-tion" is required to invest him with the rights and powers pertaining to it. Incumbent and Churchwardens of St. Edward's Church v. Synod of Montreal, Q. R. 30 S. C. 265, 8 Que, P. R. 178.

Change in doctrine—Secession of mem-bers—Possession of land—Religious Institu-tions Act—Trust.]—Land was conveyed to certain persons in trust for a religious body called the United Brethren in Christ, and a congregation was organized and a church built. Subsequently a division took place in the religious body, and it was held, in Itter v. Howe, 23 A. R. 256, 16 Occ. N. 158, that the party to which the congregation in question adhered were seceders. This congregation continued to use the church, and, some of the original trustees having died, appointed new trustees to act with the survivors, and these trustees refused to give up possession to the representatives of what had been declared to be the true body :-Held, that the trustees must be treated as being trustees for the true body, who were entitled to enforce the trust and to have possession of the church, and that it was not necessary to organize another congregation and appoint new trustees for that congregation and appoint new trustees for that congrega-tion under the Religious Institutions Act,— Judgment in 19 Occ. Expulsion of member - Domestic tribunal-Injunction.]-The plaintiff sought an injunction restraining the trustees of St. Peter's Church, in Berlin, from enforcing a resolution, passed by them, expelling him from membership in the church, on the ground of certain actions of his, not necessary to mention here. No notification was given calling upon the plaintiff to attend the meeting at which the resolution was passed, nor was he made aware in any way of the intention of the trustees to expel him. The plaintiff's civil rights were not affected by the expulsion :----Held, that the Civil Courts would not, after an adjudication by the domestic tribunal depriving the plaintiff of his membership, investigate the legality or regularity of the proceedings, and the action must be dismissed. Pinke v. Bornhold, 24 Occ. N. 395, 8 O. L. R. 575, 4 O. W. R. 257.

Letting pews-Rights of parishioners-Mandanus-Husband and wife — Survivorship.]—The remedy of mandanus to compel churchwardens to let vacant pews in a parish church can only be granted to a member of the congregation or a parishioner who has a special interest therein. The lease of a pew in a church made, in observance of a usage, to a husband and wife during their lives, does not infringe upon any existing law, and is valid. The wife surviving her husband has the enjoyment of it even after a second marringe. Lemay V. Curé and Churchwardens of the Parish of Ste. Croix, Q. R. 29 8, C. 528.

Incumbent and Churchwardens of Parish of St. Educar V, Synod of Diacese of Montreal (Que.), 6 E. L. R. 281. Power to allot free seats—Power to rent peak.]—Under the trusts set out in the schedule to 47 V. c. 88 (O.) and 47 V. c. 146 (D.), the trustees of a Methodist church have no power to allot free seats to particular members of the congregation, although they have the general power possessed by the officers of any place of public worship, to distribute the members of the congregation in a particular manner at any particular service for the purpose of preventing disorder during the service. They have, however, the power to rent pews at a reasonable rent to particiular members, reserving as many free sents where and as may be thought necessary or expedient, Carleton Place Methodist Church Trustees v, Keyes, 22 Occ. N. 50, 3 O, L. R. 105, 1 O, W. R. 10.

Right to pew—Partics—Intervention— Interest. 1—A parishioner and pewholder has no interest entitling him to intervene in an issue between another parishioner asking to be put in possession of a pew, of the one part, and the curé and churchwardens, of the other part, in support of the plaintiff's demand; the interest of the intervener appearing rather to be the same as that of the curé and churchwardens; such an intervention will be dismissed upon demurrer. Bédard y, Monette, 2 Que P, R. 501.

Roman Catholic Episcopal Corporation—Corporation sole — Action by—Plead-ing—Proof of corporate character—Contract -Statutes-Nomination of bishops-Ratification by Crown. |- The denial by the defendant of the legal existence of the plaintiff as a public corporation, obliges the latter to prove his corporate character, but this rule is subject to exception when the action is begun for the purpose of giving effect to a contract made between the defendant and the contract made between the detendant and the corporation, in which the existence of the latter is impliedly admitted. 2. The above rule is applicable to Roman Catholic bishops, constituted public corporations sole by special statutes, as they cannot take upon themselves the quality of public functionaries. 3. The special statutes referred to make the existence of the Episcopal corporations dependent upon the bishops' nomination, as they have a provision, in case of the death of the latter, to continue these corporations in the person of the administrators of the dioceses. 4. In the absence of a statutory provision to that effect, the ratification by the sovereign of the nomination of the bishop is not a condition of the existence of the corporation that he forms. Syndic--Election--Incapacity--Statute --Incapacity arising after election.]--In this case the facts alleged and proved shewed an incapacity at common law, if not by statute, to exercise the office of syndic of a church. 2. It is not necessary that such incapacity should be declared by a statutory provision in order to bring it within Art. 987, C. P. C. which applies to an incapacity arising after the election or nomination of the incumbent, as well as to an incapacity existing at the time of his election. Martel v. Prévost, 6 Que. P. R. 244.

Title of land — Church dispute — Con-struction of trust — Ascertainment of bene-ficiaries—" Greek Catholic Church."]—At a meeting of a congregation of Galicians subscriptions were collected, trustees appointed, and a site chosen on which to build a church. A Uniate priest connected with the See of Rome visited the congregation and held services for a short time; later two orthodox priests, familiar with their dialect, conducted services there, and still later the Roman bishop of the diocese visited the settlement and held services. His Grace assured them that he would do his best to secure for them land on which to erect a church. He applied to the Crown Lands Office and received a grant "in trust for the purpose of the congregation of the Greek Catholic Church at Limestone Lake." He paid the patent fees, but made no declaration of the trust as required by the Crown Lands Office, but there was in that office at the same time a document declaring the names of the trus-tees and the purposes of the trust. Pending the bishop's application, the trustees applied for a permit to cut logs, stating the posi-tion of the church, and that the building they erected was "for the mission of the Greek Orthodox Church and for no other purpose." The permit was granted accord-ingly. A dispute arose between the Roman bishop and the congregation, and finally the bishop assigned the land to the trustees; the trust, however, was left to stand, "for the purposes of the congregation of the Greek Catholic Church ":--Held, upon the evidence, that the purpose for which the land was vested in the trustees was for building a vested in the trustees was for building a Greek Orthodox Church and not a Greek church in communion with the Church of Rome, Judgment of the Supreme Court of Canada, 37 S. C. R. 177, affirmed; judg-ment of the Supreme Court of the North-West Territories, 1 W. L. R. 32, and judg-ment of Scott, J., at trial discharged. Zack-lynski v. Polushie, C. R., [1908] A. C. 23.

Title to land and building-Ambigu ous description of grantee-Declaration of trust in favour of Greek Orthodox Church-Construction—Ascertainment of beneficiaries —Exclusion of Roman Catholic and Uniate Churches.]—Emigrants from Galicia settled in the North-West Territories in 1892, and in 1896 there were thirty Galician families in the neighbourhood of Star, who resolved to provide a place for religious worship and secure the services of a priest. In Galicia the population is divided between Poles and Little Russians, the former being Roman Catholic, the latter Orthodox Greek, who, as a condition of being allowed to use their own liturgy and conduct their services in the old Slavonic language, are compelled to acknowledge the supremacy of the Pope, all else being allowed to remain Greek. There results a composite church known as the Uniate Church, liable in Galicia to taxation by the Pope, in consequence of its enforced union with Rome. The respondents, trustees of the Star congregation, on the 7th December, 1897, obtained from the land office a permit to cut logs for a cnurch on the Government land in suit, "to be used in the erection of a church building for the mission of the Greek Orthodox Church and for no other purpose: "-Held, that this permit being an invitation to the trustees to build a church on the land in suit, the land become, when the permit was acted on, impressed in the hands of the Government with a trust for that purpose, and was dedicated by the Government to the use of the mission of the Greek Orthodox Church, and not of the Roman Catholic or Uniate Church. In an action by the appellants as representative members of the Star congregation for relief as for a breach of trust in consequence of the respondents having, without previous consultation with the congregation, appointed an Orthodox priest, it appeared that, after the permit was granted, the lands in suit had been irregularly granted by the land office to the Roman Catholic bishop of the diocese in which Star was situated, "in trust for the purposes of the congregation of the Greek Catholic Church" at Star, and had been by the bishop assigned to the respondents with the sanction of the land office, but without any alteration in the declaration of trust contained in the grant to the bishop of this contained in the grant to the observation -Held, that the operative trust was that created by the permit, and that there had been no breach thereof. Judgment in Polushie y. Zacklynski, 37 S. C. R. 177, affirmed. Zacklynski v, Polushie, [1908] A. C. 65.

Title to land and building-Ambiguous description of grantee-" Greek Catholic Church" - Evidence-Construction of deed -Reversal of concurrent findings.]-Where Crown lands were granted "in trust for the purposes of the congregation of the Greek Catholic Church at Limestone Lake," N. W. T., and it appeared that this description was ambiguous and might mean either the Greek Orthodox Church or the Greek Church in communion with the Church of Rome, it was 'held, that the construction of the grant should be determined by the facts and circumstances antecedent to and attending the issue of the grant, and that, in view of the evidence adduced, the words did not mean a church united with the Roman Catholic Church and subject to the jurisdiction of the Pope. Judgment in Zacklynski v. Kerchinski, 1 W. L. R. 32, reversed, Taschereau, C.J.C., and Girouard, J., dissenting, on the ground that the concurrent findings of the Courts below upon matters of fact ought not to be disturbed, Polushie v. Zacklynski, 37 S. C. R. 177

Vestry-board — Defence of action — Authorization — Parish meeting — Exception to form.]—A vestry-board cannot defend an action without previous authorization by the parish meeting, and the board must file this authorization with its defence, in default of which the plaintiff may, by exception to the form, obtain the striking out of the defence. Séméal v. Cure and Churchwardens of St. Paul, Q. R. 12 K. B. 142.

Vestry corporation—Defence to action —Authority—Resolution.]—A vestry corporation may file a defence to an action without a resolution authorizing its solicitors to that effect. Sénécal v. Vestry of the Parish of St. Paul, 6 Que, P. R. 462.

CIVIL ENGINEERS, CANADIAN SOCIETY OF.

Statute incorporating-Qualification of Members-Practising - Admission-Manda-mus-Interference by Court.]-The statute incorporating the Canadian Society of Civil Engineers gives the right to become a member to every one who practised as a civil engineer in this province at the time of the passgeneer in this province at the time of the pass-ing of the Act. The plaintiff, claiming to have satisfied this requirement, presented a request for admission containing allegations of fact to satisfy the law, verified by his own of fact to satisfy the law, verified by his own deposition under oath. On the refusal of the society to comply with his request, he prayed that a peremptory writ of mandamus be issued to effect his purpose:—Held, that it was not for the Court to decide whether the plaintiff was qualified as a civil enzineer, or whether he had pursued the studies and possessed the knowledge requisite for a civil engineer hat only whether he had uractised possessed the knowledge requisite for a Gvi engineer, but only whether he had practised as a civil engineer at the time of the passing of the Act. 2. That he who has himself done work requiring the special knowledge of a certain profession is not by reason of that alone deemed to have practised such profession, but the contrary is the case with one who has devoted himself to the practice of a profession for the public and who in fact practices it, though his clientele may be very limited. 3. That the depositions on oath of the plaintiff did not constitute conclusive and irrefutable proof of the facts contained in it, but that it was only a formality to prevent useless applications, and only raised a pre-sumption which might be refuted by evidence to the contrary. Authority to make rules—Expulsion of member—Regularity of admission—Meeting—Tuco-Hirds vote.]—A club for amusement, etc., organized under Arts 5487 et seq. of the R, S Q, by which such association is authorized to make rules and regulations respecting the admission and expulsion of its members, has authority to adopt a rule providing for the expulsion of any member who commits an act "derogatory to the bonour and interests of the club," although no definition be given in the rule of what constitutes such acts. 2. Where a social club has formally passed a resolution expelling a member for of the club, it cannot afterwards, in defonce to the club, it cannot afterwards, in defonce to the dub, it cannot afterwards, in defonce to the dub, it cannot afterwards, in defonce to the acto of expulsion, be allowed to justify such expulsion on the ground that the plaintiff had never been regularly admitted a member. 3. Where the rule of the club provides for the expulsion of any must be voted for by two-thirds of the active members of the club present at the time the resolution is put to the meeting. Learachev v. Le Club de Chasse à Courre Canadien, Q. R. 10 S. C. 470, 4 Que, P. R. 75.

Fish and game club — Election of officers—Statutes—Companies Act — Votingby prozy — Estoppel — President — Meeting.]—When the general Act under which a fish and game club is incorporated provides that, in so far as applicable, the clauses of the Joint Stock Companies Act shall govern associations organized thereunder, s. 10 of the last named Act, which provides that every shareholder may vote by proxy, applies and enables members of the club to vote in that manner at the election of its officers. The president of a club is not estopped from challenging before the Courts the election of one of its officers (the secretary) because he called an informal meeting of the board immediately after the election, at which the officer in question was present, to discuss matters of detail. Sanderson v. Henry, Q. R. 16 K. B. 78.

Injunction — Expulsion of member of association—Right of property—Jurisdiction of Court.]—10 give jurisdiction to Court to interfere by way of injunction to restrain expulsion of a m mber of a club or associa tion, it must appear that he has some right of property therein. The right to use the club or association rooms, property and effects, on payment of a subscription, without any right to participate in assets, if distribution ensued, is merely a personal one. The only remedy in such case, if the expulsion is wrongful or injurious, is by action for damages. Where, therefore, an injunction was granted restraining a hockey association from expelling a member, whereby he would be debarred from playing in a specified game, there being no allegation or proof of his having paid any subscription, or that he had any right of property in the association, injunction was set aside and action therefor dismissed with costs, Rowe v. Hewitt (1906), 12 O. L. R. 13, 7 O. W. R. 543.

Liability for article stolen.]—The plaintiff, who was not a member of the defendant club, went there upon the invitation of a member and put his coat in the cloak room. It was taken away during his absence in another part of the club, and he sued for its value and for money pakl to detectives in attempting to recover it:—Held, that, as the defendants were a club, and did not fall under the provisions of the Civil Code respecting innkeepers, keepers of boarding-houses, and hotel-keepers, under similar circumstances, they were not liable for articles brought upon their premises. Martel v. Military Institute Club, 23 Occ. N. 119.

License re billiard tables-Incorporation under Ontario Companies Act-" Pro-prietary club"-Billiard tables and bowling alley on club premises-Municipal by-law requiring license-" Hire or gain"-" House of public entertainment or resort" - Police magistrate-Case stated under Ontario Summary Convictions Act-Forum - Divisional Court-Scope of case-Admissibility of evidence.]-A club was incorporated by letters patent under the Ontario Companies Act to encourage and promote billiard playing and other athletic and amateur sports, etc. The members were all shareholders in the capital stock of the club, and no person could be-come a member unless he subscribed for and became the holder of a share or shares, and no person other than members were permitted to have the use of the club premises. Premises were leased by the club in the city of Toronto, whereon there were bowling alleys and billiard tables. Fees were paid by the members for games played on the bowling alleys and billiard tables, and such fees went into the funds of the club, and were used for paying the expenses of managing and carrying on the club. By a resolution of the club, the directors were empowered to apply fees paid for games played on the alleys or tables of the club as payment for shares subscribed. A by-law of the police commissioners for the city of Toronto passed pursuant to the powers conferred by the Consolidated Municipal Act, 1903, s. 583, s.-s. 4 (as amended by 8 Edw, VII, c. 48, s. 14) and 10, provided that a license should be taken out by (every person who, for hire or gain, directly or indirectly keeps or has his possession, or on his premises, any in his possession, or on his premises, any billiard table, or who keeps or who has a billiard table in a house or place of public entertainment or resort, and every propri-tary club (as defined by the Consolidated Municipal Act, 1903), which directly or in-directly keeps or has in its possession or on its premises any billiard table; and also (10) by every person who owns or keeps for hire or profit a bowling alley. The club had no license for billiard tables or for a bowling alley :-- Held, that the club was not a 'm proprietary' one, as defined by the amend-ing Act, 8 Edw. VII. c. 48, s. 14: and (Riddell, J., dissenting), that the billiard tables and bowling alley were not kept or in the possession of the club for hire or gain directly or indirectly, nor was the place where the tables were kept a house of public entertainment or resort, within the meaning of the by-law. Life member — By-law exacting further free—Ultra vires.]—The plaintiff was duly elected a life member of the defendant club, and paid $50, the fee demanded by the bylaws. Subsequently, at a meeting of the members of the club, a by-law was adopted that every life member should pay an additional sum of $25 for that year only, and that any life member who failed to do so should be expelled from the club simply by a resolution of the hoard of directors to that effect. The plaintiff contended that the by-haw was ultra vires, and asked that the Court should declare it to be so:—Held, that the by-haw was ultra vires, and sked that the plaintiff was therefore not bound by it, nor could his status be thereby affected. Appeal from examiner's ruling -County Court Judge Preser to extend time - Adjournment - Tro [bition.] - Under the provisions of the section Act, R. S. N. S. 1900, c. 182, s. 32, "notice of appeal must be served upon the section of appeal must be served upon the solicitor of the respondent or upon the respondent personally within 10 for upon the personality within 10 days of the date of the decision appealed from." No notice was given within the 10 days, and the Judge of the County Court subsequently made an order ex parte extending the time. The appellant failed to prosecute his appeal within the period of 30 days prescribed by 8, 33, as amended by Acts of 1901, c. 15, and a writ of prohibition was applied for: -Held, per Townshend, J., Weatherbe, C.J., concurring, that the Judge had power, on proper application, to extend the time for giving notice of appeal, but that such application should be made within the period of 10 days prescribed by s. 31; also, that it was not within the power of the Judge to adjourn the matter to a date beyond the 30 days and then make an adjudication ; and that the writ of prohibition should go. Per Meagher, J. (who concurred that the extension of time should not have been granted), that there was no appeal from the order extending the time, and prohibition would not lie. Judgment—Order for payment by instalments — Default — Arrest — Discharge under Indigent Debtors Act—Re-arrest.] — The defendant was examined under the provisions of the Collection Act and ordered to pay the monthly instalments, a judgment recovered by the plaintif. On default of payment an execution was issued by order of the examiner, and under this execution the defendant was arrested. The defendant was subsequently discharged from custody under the Indigent Debtors Act. The defendant having failed to pay subsequent instalments, the examiner made an order for the issue of another execution for the arrest of the defendant, and the defendant was again arrested:—Held, that the defendant, under the foregoing circumstances, having been discharged from custody, could not be arrested again under a second execution issued on the same judgment. 1. FORMATION.

Amalgamation of companies—Failure to amalgamate — Winding-up — Contributories.1—Twenty-seven parties signed a subscription list for stock in a proposed company. A meeting was called, when a committee was appointed to carry on negotiations. At different committee meetings, directors of the V, company were present and it was finally arranged that the proposed company be amalgamated with the V. company:—Heid, that at the time of the winding-up of the company, the arrangement for an amalgamation had not been carried through. The directors of the latter company and those on the subscription list are not liable as contributories. Payment of instalments did not waive the condition that old shares were to be surrendered and new ones issued. Re Victor Wood Works, Ltd., 7 E. L. R. 55.

Amalgamation of companies — Fiduciary relationship of directors—Recret profits—Accounting—Costs.] — Defendants organised plaintiff company and sold it the assets of two other companies which defendants owned, making a profit of $27,601.76. Plaintiff company brought action to recover the profit from defendants. MacMahon, J., at trial, held (14 O. W. R. 489), that defendants were not required to do more than furnish the directors of plaintiff company with a schedule of the assets, etc., belonging to the two companies proposed to be sold, with prices attached, and dismissed the action. Court of Appeal held, that it was the duty of defendants to place the affairs of the two companies before an independent board C.C...-21 to the extent to which each shared in the

W. N. 914. Amalgamation-Restraint against selling out—Agreement — Forfeiture—Laches— Waiver—Notice,]—In 1889 the city of Toronto entered into similar agreements with the defendant companies by which they authorised these companies to lay down and operate underground wires and appliances for the distribution and supply of electricity, and gave them other privileges in connection with their business. By these agreements the defendants were forbidden to lease to, the detendants were toroldeen to lease to, amalgamate with, or sell out to any other company, without the consent of the plain-tiffs; and if they did so, all rights granted thereby were to cease and determine. In 1896 the Incandescent Co. sold out all their assets and the shareholders transferred their shares to the Electric Light Co. :--Held, that the Toronto Electric Light Co. had not that the foronto Electric Light Co, had not in purchasing failen within the prohibition clause, for to hold to the contrary would be to add the word "buy" to that clause.—Held, also, that what had been done was not an amalgamation of the two companies, inasmuch as the purchase was for cash and for cash only, and the Incandescent Light Co. acquired no interest whatever in the assets and affairs or otherwise of the other company .--- Held, further, that inasmuch as the actions were not commenced till April, 1902, the plaintiffs had by their long delay in bringing suit and also by their conduct after the alleged breach and before the action lost their right to complain. The plaintiffs had by their conduct waived the alleged forfeiture, the evidence clearly shewing that they had knowledge throughout of the facts upon which the right throughout of the facts upon which the that to claim a forfeiture rested, and it was not necessary to prove actual notice. — Held, lastly, that notice to the city engineer was in the circumstances of this case sufficient, although the evidence shewed much more than that, and warranted the conclusion that knowledge of the absorption of the one company by the other was common and general throughout the city and might safely be im-throughout the city and might safely be imputed to the city council as a whole, especially as no civic official had denied such an inference. City of Toronto v. Minister of Railways and Canals v. (ue, Southern Rue, Co. (Hodge & White's Ulaim) (1008), 12 Ex. C. R. 11.

Promoters — Fiduciary relationship.]— Where promoters proposed to acquire property and turn it over to a company to be formed, in exchange for bonds and stock, it was held, that there was no fiduciary relationship existing between the parties, such as partners or agents, and no agreement between the promoters would bind the company to be formed. Kalner v, Baater (1866), L. R. 2 C. P. 174; Natal Land Co. v. Pauline, [1904] A. C. 120, and Bright v, Hutton (1852), 3 H. L. C. 341, followed. Garvin v. Edmondson (1900), 14 O. W. R. 435. Affirmed, 15 O. W. R. 210.

Transfer of property by incorpor-ators—Prior agreement — Payment — Pro-moters—Profit.]—The owner of a patent in April, 1898, induced the defendants to take an interest in it with a view to introducing the patented article into public use. They subsequently decided to form a company. An actual assignment to the defendants was executed in June, 1898, pending the issue of the letters of incorporation, the expense of which the defendants undertook to bear; and by agreement of even date they agreed to sell to the company, when incorporated, the patent and all improvements, in consideration of the company paying them $5,000, and crediting $4,500, in respect to 500 shares subscribed or to be subscribed by them. In August, 1898, after incorporation of the company, an instrument was accordingly executed by the defendants, and the company adopted and confirmed the agreement above mentioned, and the patent was assigned to the company, and the $5,000 paid :--Held, that the defendants were entitled to retain the $5,000 as against the company, as they did not become promoters until after they had become entitled by agreement to interests in the patent, which were afterwards, and before incorporation, actually transferred to them.—Semble, that, even if the defendants had acquired their interests without consideration, that would be of no consequence to the company unless acquired for them, Judgment of Boyd, C., 2 O. W. R. 151, affirmed. Highway Advertising Co. v. Ella, 24 Occ. N. 208, 7 O. L. R. 504, 3 O. W. R. 505.

2. NAME.

Incorporation under Dominion Act-Company with identical name subsequently incorporated under Provincial Act-Fraud-Injunction.] — Where a Dominion trading company are incorporated under a certain and somewhat odd name, the subsequent in-corporation of a provincial company with that identical name is so palpably a fraud upon the public and a wrong to the existing company, that the onus is very strong upon the new company to justify their position.-Interim injunction granted to restrain the defendants until the trial of the action from acting upon their certificate of incorporation. -Semble, that when once a company is incorporated under the Dominion Act, with a particular name, the field is exclusively occupied so far as that identical name is con-cerned.—La Compagnie Hydraulique de St. Francois v. Continental Heat and Light Co., C. R. [1909] A. C. 49, specially referred to. Semi-Ready Ltd. v. Semi-Ready Ltd. (1910). 15 W. L. R. 321. B. C. R.

Name liable to confusion.]--The remedy given by s. 7438 R. S. O. 1909, is open to a joint stock company against a general partnership which has adopted, in its registered declaration, a name liable to cause the confusion provided for in the said section. Hence, a joint stock company, incorporated under the name of "Lamontagne & Limited," is entitled to demand the caucellation of a declaration of a general partnership under the firm name of "Lamontagne & Co," Laing Packing and Provision Co, v. 4. PROSPECTUS.

Advertisement-Ontario Companies Act. ss. 95, 99, 100-Director-Penalty.]-A min-ing company incorporated on the 17th November, 1908, pursuant to the provisions of the Ontario Companies Act, 7 Edw. VII. c. 34, filed a prospectus with the Provincial Secretary on the 27th November, 1908, and subsequently inserted in certain newspapers an advertisement, for which the defendant, one of the directors, was responsible, giving particulars about the organisation of the company, the mining lands owned by the company, and the operations of the company, and stating that shares were for sale at a named price, but not complying in all respects with the requirements of the Act as regards a prospectus, and not filed with the Provincial Secretary:-Held, that the advertisement was a "prospectus" within the meaning of s. 99 of the Act, being an advertisement designed to accomplish the purpose mentioned in s. 95 (1), and that the defendant was liable to the penalty imposed by s. 100,-Semble, that an advertisement merely stating that a company are offering shares for sale, and that a prospectus can be obtained upon application, would be a "prospectus" within the meaning of the Act. Re Rex V, Garvin, 18 O. L. R. 49, 13 O. W. R. 575, 14 Can, Crim. Cas. 283.

False statements - Liability of president.]-In March, 1898, the prospectus of a trading and mining company was published. In it the defendant was named as president, and it contained false assertions, such as the statement that the company was formed by several important men of business in Montreal; that some of them, whose names were given, had consented to act as directors, and that a provisional board of directors had been formed. The defendant had consented to act as president of the company, at a salary of $1,000 a year, he had approved of the prospectus and of contracts made with workmen, and had deposited in the bank, as trustee, sums of money received from the latter as subscriptions to the capital of the company. Certain promoters had engaged the plaintiff and other workmen in the name of the company, had made them subscribe for a certain number of shares in the company and pay half the amount of their subscriptions, and had sent them to Edmonton upon a hiring for two years. The plaintiff, before signing his contract, had seen the de-fendant, and the latter had not warned him as to the false assertions of the prospectus. The workmen were abandoned at Edmonton : -Held, that, under these circumstances, the defendant was liable to the plaintiff for the amount which the latter had paid upon his subscription for shares and the damages which he had suffered by the breach of the contract made with him in the name of the proposed company. Boshamme v. Bickerdike, 17 Que. S. C. 28.

Misrepresentations - Action for money paid for shares — Reserve fund—Capital— Onus.]—Plaintiff sought to recover payments made to defendants and damages on account of statements alleged to be false and fraudulent contained in a prospectus issued by directors of defendants on faith of which plaintiff was induced to subscribe and pay for a number of a new issue of preference shares. One of the principal matters complained of was a statement to the effect that undrawn profits or assets of the company to a large amount had been appropriated to a "reserve fund," whereas, as plaintiff alleged, defendants never had any reserve or sinking fund. Evidence shewed that profits, which were supposed to have been earned, instead of being distributed in dividends, were transferred to an account referred to and known as the "reserve account:"-Held, that the words "reserve fund," as used in the prospectus, did not necessarily mean a reserve fund which was invested, but the important thing was the reserving of amount out of property available for distribution in dividends, and appropriating it in the books of the company to meet contingencies, which was shewn in this case to have been done. And that, even if plaintiff understood the fund to be invested this, in the case of a manufacturing company, would not be a material representation which would influence the conduct of plaintiff in taking shares :---Held, also, it appearing that the directors employed competent managers, upon whom they were dependent for information, and that their auditor used due care in performance of his duties, that directors were not responsible for a representation in regard to cost of materials, affecting the profits, which was not discovered to be mistaken until some time after prospectus had been issued :--Held, also, as to a representation in the prospectus regarding appropriation of profits earned in payment of dividends on common and preferred stock, that the expres-sion "appropriated" did not mean "paid," but that the sum mentioned was appropriated or devoted to a particular purpose and might be payable later .--- The prospectus contained a representation that proceeds of the issue of a representation that proceeds of the listile of stock would be applied, among other things, to replacing "working capital" already ex-pended in erection of a mill, known as "Cowie's mill:" — Held, that the working "working capital" were not a technical ex-remedience there. pression or likely to mislend plaintiff, it being usual to speak of money used in the business of a company, whether borrowed on de-bentures or raised by sale of shares, as "capital:"—Held, also, as to application of moneys to other purposes than those mentioned in the prospectus, that the burden was on plaintiff to shew that directors, at time prospectus was framed, intended that the proceeds of new shares should be so applied, or that, on proper inquiry, they would have learned that the money could not be applied in the way stated, and were reck-less. Kennedy v. Acadia Pulp and Paper Mills Co. (1906), 38 N. S. R. 291. Misrepresentations — Agent—Liability of directors—Rescission of contract to pur-chase shares—Delay in bringing action.]— F. in June, 1903, purchased paid-up shares in the capital stock of an industrial company, on the faith of statements in a prospectus prepared by a broker employed to sell them. In January, 1904, he attended a meeting of shareholders, and from something he heard there suspected that some of the statements were untrue. After investi-gation he demanded back his money from the broker, and wrote to the president and secretary of the company repudiating his purchase. At subsequent meetings of shareholders he repeated such repudiation and demand for repayment, and in December, 1904. brought suit for rescission :- Held, that his delay, from January to December, 1904, in bringing suit, was not a bar, and he was entitled to recover against the company .-Held, also, that he could not recover against the directors who had instructed the broker to sell the shares, as they were not responsible for the misrepresentations in the prospectus .--- Judgment of the Supreme Court of New Brunswick, Farrell v. Portland Rolling Mills Co., 38 N. B. R. 364, 4 E. L. R. 500, affirming the decision at the hearing, 3 N. B. Eq. 508, reversed. Farrell v. Manchester, 40 S. C. R. 339, 5 E. L. R. 293.

Exhibition association-Original capital stock-Sale of stock-Discretion of directors-Confirmation by company - Form of bill.]-At a meeting of the directors of an exhibition association, a large number of shares of the original capital stock of the company were allotted to the secretary of the company at par, he having subscribed for them; and immediately afterwards he disposed of a number of these shares at par to the directors themselves individually, in varying amounts. It was established in evidence that the transaction was for the purpose of retaining control of the company, in order that it might be carried on for the purposes for which it was organised. It was also established that the plaintiff had previously purchased a large number of shares, for many of which he had paid a premium : - Held, that this allotment of shares by the directors was not illegal, as the transaction was bona fide, and not ultra vires of the corporation itself; that the directors were acting within their powers when they exercised their discretion, and in the interest of the whole body of shareholders sold shares at par which might have brought a premium :--Held, that, as no fraud had been shewn, and relief was sought only for the company, the bill should have been filed in the name of the company itself. Harris v. Sumner, 4 N. B. Eq. 58, 5 E. L. R. 161.

Increase of capital stock—Allotment of new shares by directors to themselves at par—Shareholders—Rights of minority—Voting power—Powers of directors—Statutes— Fraud — Injunction — Coats.] — The directors of an electric railway company passed a by-law increasing the capital stock by 2,000 shares, and this was sanctioned by a majority of two-thirds in value of the body of shareholders at a meeting. The first batch of 350 shares the directors ex parte allotted at par to five of themselves, and also allotted the remaining 1,650 to the same five, but after issuing a circular to the body of shareholders, whereby the latter were invited to state whether they desired to increase their holdings, and wherein it was set forth that such shares might be allotted as seemed to the directors desirable and necessary. The plaintiff and other shareholders acting with him made no response except by way of protest. By the company's Act of incorporation, 56 V. c, 95, ss. 13 and 46 (O.), the capital stock could be increased, and certain traffic and other arrangements with other companies could be permitted, only upon approval by two-thirds in value of the share-holders. The directors did not wish or intend to allot the new stock among the shareholders pro rata, but so to deal with the last 1,650 shares, as to appropriate for them-selves enough shares to give them more than a two-thirds majority in value of sharehold ers :---Held, that the minority shareholders were not required to submit to the form of application proposed by the circular; there was no recognition of any right on the part of existing shareholders to claim a pro rata division of the proposed new issue, and at this time, by the appropriation of the 350 shares, the minority had become less than one-third in value of the shareholders; and, therefore, the plaintiff was not precluded from seeking relief in respect of the total issue and allotment of the new stock,—The only statutory direction affecting this company as to the allotment of stock is in the general Railway Act of Ontario, R. S. O. 1897, c. 207 (incorporated with the special Act), s 34 (16) of which enacts that the directors shall make by-laws for the management and disposition of stock, not inconsistent with the laws of the province; but no by-laws ap-Held, that the disposal made by the directors of the new shares was not within the general powers and functions of the directors of such companies; it was a one-sided allot ment of stock, which ignored the just claims of many shareholders, and in effect amounted to a prejudicial encroachment on the voting power of the minority; it was not within the power conferred upon the directors by s. 6 of the Act of incorporation, to exclude any one from subscribing for stock who, in their judgment, would hinder, delay, or prevent the company from proceeding with and completing their undertaking under the provisions of the Act; and, therefore, the allotment should be declared invalid, and the defendants be restrained from voting upon the increased capital shares.-The plaintiff was allowed his general costs, although he had alleged fraud, and had not established it; any costs arising from the charge of fraud were excluded. Martin v. Gibson, 15 O. L. R. 623, 10 O. W. R. 66.

50 V, c. 85 (O.), an Act to further extend the powers of the Consumers' Gas Company of Toronto :--Held, that the defendants were not bound to keep the reserve fund, as an actual separate sum of money, apart from their other property, and invested in the securities mentioned in s. 4, but were at liherty to use it in their business, as they did from year to year, without objection by the plaintiffs' auditors; and were not bound to carry to the credit of the fund its share of the increase in the value of the defendant's property which it had helped to acquire while invested in the business, 2. That charges for decrease in the value of gas mains, for iron gas lamps which became useless, and for gas meters destroyed, were not charges for renewal or repair, but for depreciation and loss, and did not come within s. 6 so as to be chargeable to the plant and buildings renewal fund. 3. That under s. 6 the defendants were entitled to continue to contribute to the plant and renewal fund the five per cent. authorised, even although it should not appear necessary to do so for the pur-poses for which the fund was to be used. These sections were construed in Johnston v. Consumers' Gas Co., 27 O. R. 9, upon a special case, but the decision was re-versed (23 A. R. 566, [1898] A. C. 477).

Abuse of powers—Forfeiture—Informant — Security — Pleading — Irregularity —Exception.]—In a suit by the Attorney-General against a company for a declaration of forfeiture of its corporate rights on account of the abuse of its powers, it is sufficient to give the name of the information and the amount of the security furnished in the petition, to which the information drawn up refers, without recling the facts anew. If there were an irregularity in this respect, it would be the subject of an exception to the form, and not of a demurrer. Archambeault v, Rt. Lawrence Investment Society, 2 Que. P. R. 519.

Appointment of manager-Went of by-law and scal-Services rendered-Salary - Compensation,] — The plaintiff was appointed by the board of provisional directors of a company to be a director, and was also appointed manager hefore the company was organised. In an action for salary or compensation for services rendered had not resulted in any benefit to the company, and that the company had never gone into operation : -Held, that, as he was not appointed by bylaw approved of by the shareholders, and had no contract under seal, he could not recover. Bonus to directors.]—A shareholder in an incorporated company cannot have an unanimous resolution of the shareholders, adopted at a general meeting (at which plaintiff was present and, in answer to a request, replied that he had no objections to offer) for the purpose of bonusing the directors, set aside on the ground that the by-laws of the company fix what is to be done with any surplus funds, without providing for such a case as the one at issue. Gignac v. Gignac, 37 Que 8, C. 174.

By-laws not to be passed without unanimous consent of all shoreholders.] — Plaintiff sought to have it declared that there was an agreement entered into by plaintiff and defendants, on the formation of a company, that no by-laws, resolutions or proceedings of that company should be had or taken without the unanimous consent of all shareholders and directors of the company, and for an injunction restraining defendants from any breach of such agreement. Trial Judge held in favour of plaintiff. Divisional Court reversed the trial Judge. Court of Appeal affirmed the Divisional Court. Berkinshaw V. Henderson (1908), 12 O. W. R. 919; affirmed (1909), 14 O. W. R. S33, 1 O.

Cancellation of letters patent - Action by Attorney-General-Order in Council -Pendente lite-Injunction-Crown-Extrajudicial opinion.] - An action having been brought by the Attorney-General against an incorporated company for a declaration that they were carrying on an illegal business and for forfeiture of their charter, the Attorney-General, while the action was pending, summoned the defendants before him to shew cause why their charter should not be revoked by order in council :--Held, that, whether the right of cancellation of letters patent of incorporation be now only statutory (see R. S. O. 1897, c. 191, s. 99), and merely a power, not a duty, or whether the prerogative right still subsists, the bringing of an action does not clothe the Court with jurisdiction to restrain the exercise of the power. The Court has no jurisdiction, at the suit of a subject, to restrain the Crown or its officers acting as its agents or servants or discharging discretionary functions committed to them by the Sovereign. It is not proper for a Judge to express an extra-judicial opinion as to the mode in which the discretion of the Attorney-General should be exercised. Attorney-General for Ontario v. Toronto Junction Recre-ation Club, 24 Occ. N. 373, 8 O. L. R. 440, 3 O. W. R. 387, 4 O. W. R. 72.

Change in number of directors — Nullity of bylaw.] — The formalities prescribed in the Companies Act, R. S. C. 1906, c. 79, s. 76, for the adoption of a by-law to change the number of directors of a company, must be compiled with under pain of nullity. Hence, a by-law to reduce the number from seven to five, passed at a general annual meeting, without special notice and not published in the Canada Gazette, is null and void.—An election held under such a pretended by-law is also void and confers no right on those elected to act or hold office as directors.—3, An action in the nature of quo vearento proceedings under Art. 987 et seq. C. P., lies to oust those who assume, under colour of such an election, to act as directors of a private company, and may be brought by a shareholder present at the meeting when it took place and not objecting. No acquirescence can cover the nullity above mentioned. Sherker V. Rudner (1910), 39 Que. S. C. 44.

Directors allotting shares to themschers in payment for acrvices—No confirmation by sharcholders—Illegal scheme—Control of company—S. 83, 7 Edue, VII. c. 34.]— Each of four directors claimed to have accounts against a company for services. At a director's meeting they passed resolutions allowing the ac-counts and ordering them to be paid, no director voting in respect of his own account. They then took stock for their accounts and sold certain other stock which was not paid for:—Held, to be an illegal scheme to get control of the company, and the issue of stock was set aside. Thorpe v. Tisadle, 13 O. W. R. 1044.

Directors - Power of.]-The governing body of a trading corporation cannot, in general, use the funds of its community for any purpose other than those purposes for which they were contributed, or authorised to be used. The charter incorporating a company creates a contract between the com-pany and its shareholders, and any act of the directors or company not within its express or implied powers would be a breach of such contract, and therefore ultra vires. The capacities and powers of trading and other companies are limited in degree, according to the purposes of such companies, and the measure of a company's liability in respect of its contracts must be co-extensive with its power to make them. Where any application of the funds of a company to a purpose not within its charter, would be restrained by injunction at the suit of a shareholder, the Court cannot declare such company's funds liable therefor, as such a proceeding would be giving judicial sanction to a breach of trust, or an act ultra vires of the company. S. O. 1897, c. 191 (7 Edw. VII. c. 34, s. 87), by-laws regulating the requirements as to proxies are to be made by directors, and shall have force only until the next annual meeting of the company, and, unless confirmed thereat, shall cease to have force. The shareholders themselves, therefore, have no power to initiate and pass such a by-law at a general meeting ; in the absence of any valid by-law regulating the matter, nothing more is necessary to a proxy than valid execution by the shareholder. Election of president - Meeting-Legality - Quo warranto - Provisional director - Pleading - Shareholders.] - A person who is sued for having usurped a public office is entitled to plead that the meeting at which he was elected was legal and regular. and can set up the illegality of the meeting at which the election relied upon by the plaintiff took place.-2. The fact that a meeting of a company at which an election took place was called by one provisional director only, would not necessarily render such election absolutely and radically null, so as to justify the rejection of a paragraph alleging such election, in answer to a quo war-ranto.—3. If a fact, which appears to be legal and relevant, is set up at great length in a pleading, and the opposite party inscribes in law, not against the parts of allegations containing such useless details. but against the fact itself, which he alleges should not have been pleaded, the useless details will not be struck off on such inscrip tion .--- 4. Where parties sue for usurpation of office, not in any particular quality, but in their own names, and allege in their pleading their quality as shareholders and their interest as such, allegations of the defence denying such quality and interest will not be rejected upon an inscription in law. C. as a matter of fact, had not been appointed editor, nor G. advertising solicitor, the object of the resolution being to appropriate all the funds of the company, and to prevent a stockholder, who owned the greater part of the stock, and had made a claim against the company, being paid.—Held, that the resolution could not be sustained, nor could any

S. M. 1902, c. 30, has, by virtue of s. 41 of the Act, power to make a by-law providing that a lien shall exist upon the shares of any stockholder for any debt or liability to the company; and, if such by-law has been passed, the company may maintain such lien as against an execution creditor of a stockholder whose shares have been seized by the sheriff under execution. - Child v. K. 449, fol-lowed.—The shares in question, which were not fully paid up, stood in the name of the defendant's wife, but the plaintiff on the 1st May, 1907, recovered a judgment against the bigs of the softeness of t defendant, his wife, and the company, declaring that the said shares were the absolute property of the defendant and available under execution in satisfaction of the plaintiff's judgment. At that time a note given to the company for the balance due on the shares was held by the bank in which it had been discounted; but, before the time of the seize ure of the shares by the sheriff, that note had fallen due and had been taken up by the company :---Held, that, at the time of the recovery of the last mentioned judgment, there was no debt due from the defendant or his wife to the company for which the company could then have set up a lien, and they were not estopped by the judgment from setting up the lien as soon as they had taken up the note.—Held, also, that the right to the lien had not been waived or lost by the taking and discounting of a promissory note for the debt for which the lien was chained. Montgomery v. Mitchell, 7 W. L. R. 518, 18 Man. L. R. 37.

Managing director - Appointment by board of directors-Absence of resolution of shareholders — British Columbia Companies Act—Salary of "manager."]—The plaintiff. who was a director of the defendant com-pany, was appointed by himself and his copaus, was appointed by nimself and his co-directors managing director of the company, at a salary fixed by the directors. There was no resolution of the shareholders entitling the plaintiff to remuneration. The company was incorporated under the laws of British Columbia, and there were no by-laws: so that table A. of the Companies Act governed, and by s. 54 of that table, the remuneration of the directors is to be determined by the company in general meeting: but, under s. 55, the directors can appoint a manager and fix his remuneration; and it was contended that, where a manager is apwas contended that, where a manager is ap-pointed by the directors from among their number, he ipso facto ceases to be a director, by virtue of s. 57:--Held, that a director's office is vacated automatically as soon as he accepts a position of emolument under the company; but the plaintiff was not appointed manager, but managing director; and was not entitled to recover from the company the salary fixed by the directors. Eales v. Cumberland Black Lead Mine Co. (1861), 6 U. K. N. 481, distinguished. Judgment of Morrison, J., reversed. Claudet v, Golden Giant Mines (1910), 13 W. L. R. 348.

Managing director-Authority-Ratification - Negligence - Costs - Fraud.] - Plaintiffs in equity, though successful as to part of their claim, were deprived of general costs of suit, on ground that unfounded charges of fraud were made as to the other part, and were ordered to pay costs applicable to the charges of fraud, --The managing director of a company, without authority but with knowledge of all his co-directors except one, erected, at a cost of $17,000, a fuel house for storage of mill wood and a conveyor for the purpose of mov-ing the mill wood from his mill to the company's pulp mill to be used for fuel and pulp. The fuel house and conveyor became of no use to company by reason of the discontinuance of the use of mill wood :-Held, that there was no such gross negligence on the part of the managing director as made him liable for expense of erecting the fuel house and conveyor, Cushing Sulphite Fibre Co. v, Cushing (1906), 37 N. B. R. 313.

Managing director — Powers-Breach of trust — Pleading — Charges of trust — Failure-Costs.] — The defendant promotel the formation of the plaintiff company for the manufacture of pulp, upon the understanding that slab wood from his saw mill should be used as fuel and pulp wood. wers-Breach s of fraudlant promoted company for in the underhis saw mill p wood. The director, and knowledge of all the directors except P., erected, at a cost of about $17,000 to the company, a fuel house and conveyors thereto from his saw mill for the conveyance of mill-wood. The expenditure was necessary if the company were to use mill-wood. The defendant supplied the company with mill-wood under an agreement that it should be paid for on the basis of its relative value to round wood for pulp and coal for fuel. The wood was invoiced by the defendant at $2 per thousand of mill cut, on account of which he paid himself $52,-391.30, leaving a balance due of $10,589.57. The mill-wood was of a poor quality. No practical test was made of its relative value. In the absence of any other than an approxi-mate estimate, the Court held it should be charged at $1.90 per cord for pulp wood and 90 cents per cord for fuel wood, on which basis the defendant had overpaid himself $2,432.92. The defendant resigned his position as managing director at the end of ten months, and the company refused to use mill-wood. The company sought to charge the defendant with the cost of the fuel house and conveyors, which were no longer of use, as an unauthorised and improper expenditure, and made for the defendant's benefit. The defendant had always been willing to have the price of the mill-wood determined by an actual test. Charges of fraud against the defendant were preferred in a number of sec-tions of the bill, which were unsupported at the hearing:—Held, that the defendant should not be charged with the cost of the fuel house and conveyors; that the decree in the plaintiffs' favour for the balance due by the defendant on overpayment should be without costs; and that the defendant should be without costs of the sections of the bill alleging fraud. Cushing Sulphite Co. v. Cushing, 24 Occ. N. 243, 2 N. B. Eq. Reps. 539.

Managing director — Powers of—Promissory notes.] — The defendant company were incorporated by letters patent under the Manitoba Joint Stock Companies Act, R. S. M. c. 25, for the purpose of carrying on a trading business, and the plaintiffs sued as endorsees of three promissory notes given by the managing director of the company in heir name to C. for tea ordered from him, but never delivered. There was no bylaw, resolution, or other act expressly defining the powers or duties of the managing director, but the evidence shewed that the course of business of the company was such that be had frequently given similar promissory notes which had been paid by the company's cheques, without objection on the part of the other directors or the auditors:—Held, that the notes sued on had been made in general accordance with the powers of the managing director, within the meaning of s. 62 of the Act, and were binding on the company. Managing director—Warchouse receipt —Disappearance of goods.]—The failure of an individual director of a warchousing company to inform the holder of a warchouse receipt of the disappearance of the goods covered by such receipt, does not, in the absence of any accusations of fault against the director in respect thereof, give the holder of such receipt a right of action against him. Ontario Bank v, Merchants Bank of Halifaz, 5 Que, P. Meeting of shareholders-Election of directors-Fraudulent haste in opening and cloving — Illegality.] — Meetings of shareholders of societies or joint stock companies called for a fixed time should not be opened in haste as soon as the moment arrives; a reasonable delay should be granted to late comers. Therefore, a meeting called for 12 noon for the election of directors, which is opened by the shareholders present at one minute after 12, and which proceeds to the election and constitution of the board of directors in such a fashion that all is over and the meeting closed at 10 minutes after 12, must be adjudged to have been held and conducted, by reason of such precipitancy, in fraud of the absent shareholders and deelared illegal and void. Powers-Conditional municipal bonus-Acceptance — Hypothec — Authorisation of shareholders — Assignment — Contestation —Reservation.] — The directors of a joint -reservation.] — The directors of a Joint stock company, incorporated under R. S. C. 1906, c. 119, have the power under the "gen-eral powers" clause (s. 35) of the Act, without referring the matter to the shareholders and obtaining their approval, to accept a conditional bonus granted the company in a municipal by-law, and to create a hypothec on the immovable property of the company, in favour of the municipality for a specified sum, as security for the fulfilment of the conditions. Even if the authorisation of the shareholders was required, failure to get it would not defeat the right of the municipality to the security, on the ground of the nullity of the hypothec, but would make it the duty of the company to cure the irregu-larity by giving a valid hypothec instead.----2. The reservation by the assignee, in a deed of assignment of the hypothecated property, of his right to contest the validity of the hypothec, or his repudiation of the claim of the municipality, can in no wise affect the legality of either the claim or the hypothec. Commercial Rubber Co. v. Town of St. Jerome, Q. R. 17 K. B. 274 (J.C.).

Powers of officers-Power of attorney -Scal-Signatures.]-A power of attorney given in the name of the company and under its common seal, by the managing officers of the company, and also signed by the secretary, is valid and is prima facie the act of the company. In re Brook (James A.) Co., 7 Que, P. R. 206.

Provisional directors - Powers-Advances of money to subscribers for shares-Delegation of powers to committees.]-By the Act incorporating the plaintiff company, certain persons were declared provisional directors, who, it was enacted, " may forthwith open stock books, procure subscriptions of stock, make calls on stock subscribed and receive payments thereon, and shall deposit in a chartered bank in Canada all moneys received on account of stock subscribed or otherwise received by them on account of the company, and shall withdraw the same for the purposes only of the company, and may do generally what is necessary to organise the company :"-Held, that the provisional directors had no right to enter into an ar-rangement by which, to induce a person to subscribe for shares, they were to advance out of the funds of the company moneys to enable the intending subscriber to make payments on the shares :- Semble, also, Mere dith, J.A., dissenting, that, in the absence of express provision, the provisional directors had no power to delegate their powers to committees; but, per Meredith, J.A., there was no evidence that they had done so. Monarch Life Insurance Co. v. Brophy, 9 O. W. R. 151, 14 O. L. R. 1.

Provisional directors-Sale of rights. -Nullity-Bartering office of trust-Public policy-Sale of charter.]-A sale to be valid must have a certain, fixed subject, or a subject at least susceptible of being fixed, and which is of commercial value.—2. The per-The persons named in a statute constituting a corporation, as provisional directors, to receive subscriptions for the shares, make allotment of the shares among the subscribers, and proceed to the definite organisation of the company, exercise an office of trust, and do not thereby acquire rights or interests which may be the subject of a sale. A fortior, the sale by one of them of the charter itself is void, and the expression "charter" in an act of sale under seal cannot apply to a part which the provisional director claims as his own.—3. The fact of being declared a provisional director, even if it gives rise to rights or interests susceptible of being determined, does not confer rights of commercial value. -4. A sale which has the effect of substituting a purchaser for one who was named in the statute as designated to fill a position of trust, is contrary to public policy and there-fore void. Vipond v. Robert, Q. R. 17 K. B. 403

Public corporations, created for purposes ancillary to the good government of the country, are governed by the rules of the common law of England in force in Quebec and have impliedly all powers necessary to attain the object of their existence. Purchase and sale of land — Irregularities in proceedings.]—A mining company subject to the provisions of the Ontario Companies Act, R. S. O. 1897, c. 191, and the Ontario Mining Companies Incorporated Act, R. S. O. 1897, c. 197, has power to buy and sell land, and a sale in good faith of all the land owned at the time by the company is not necessarily invalid, for there is nothing to prevent the business of the company being continued by the purchase of other land. Nor can such a sale made in good faith be restrained at the instance of a dissentient minority of shareholders on the ground that irregularities have occurred in the conduct of the proceedings of the company leading up to the sale, or on the ground that the approving majority are also shareholders in a rival company, and are in carrying out the sale furthering the interests of that rival company. Judgment of Street, J., 1 O. 1. R. 655, 21 Occ. N. 291, affirmed. Ritchie v. Vermillion Mining Co., 22 Occ. N. 332, 4 O. L. R. 558, 1 O. W. R. 624.

Purchase of mineral claim by directors of mining company — Rights of shareholders — Fraudulent scheme — Meetings of directors.]-As fiduciary donees of their power, the directors of a company are bound to exercise them bona fide for the purposes for which they were conferred and generally the corporate body to which they owe this duty is entitled, in the case of a breach of it, to invoke the remedial action of the Court .-- A director acting in a certain way, with the primary object of deriving an improper personal advantage, financial or otherwise, cannot save himself by shewing that his action was also of benefit to the company. If the circumstances are such that his actions are equivocal, and open to two constructions, he must, seeing that he is in a fiduciary capacity, be prepared to shew beyond all reasonable doubt the single-mind-edness of his intentions.—The purchase by the directors of a mining company of a mineral claim was set aside on the ground of fraud, upon actions brought by share-holders. Duty of directors as to calling meet-ings. Madden v. Dimond, Rudolph v. Macey. 12 B. C. R. 80, 3 W. L. R. 49, 52.

Residence abroad — Eligibility-Com-panies Act-Refusal of discharged servant to give up books-Collateral enquiry.) — A company were incorporated by letters patent under the Nova Scotia Joint Stock Com-panies Act, R. S. N. S., 5th series, which contained a provision that the majority of directors should, at all times, be persons resident in Nova Scotia. Subsequently the com-pany took advantage of the provisions of the Nova Scotia Companies Act, 1900, and became incorporated under that Act, which did not contain this provision. The defendant, who had been the secretary of the company, was removed from office, and he refused to give up to the company the minute book and stock book of the company, on the ground that a majority of the directors were not resident in Nova Scotia :--Held, that the defendant could not set up the contention that the directors were not eligible or properly elected ; that they were de facto directors, and their eligibility could not be enquired into in this collateral way; and that he must give up the books .-- Quare, whether the provision in question applied to this com-pany in view of s. 118 of the Companies Act. Resolution — 1 Educ, VII. c. 67 (Q.)— Construction—Powers of company—Purchase —Effect of resolution by an insufficient quorum.]—Held, that under the Quebec Act, 1 Edw. VII. c. 67, the appellant company were empowered to acquire and hold for the purpose of their business real or immovable estate not exceeding a specified sum in yearly value in any part of the province except the judicial district of Quebec; and that, acting bona fide, they were the sole judges of what was required for that purpose .- Where a purchase, intra vires of the above Act, had been effected by the company under a resolution of the directors at a meeting on the 17th July, 1901, which authorised the completion thereof, subject to an option of reconveying within a specified time :--Held, that, after the lapse of the specified time, the purchase was absolute, and that the company, which had furnished the vendor with a copy of the resolution as one which had been duly and regularly passed, could not avoid it by shewing that it had been passed by an insufficient quorum .--- Judgments in Q. Returns to Provincial Treasurer Taxation—Default — Penalty — Navigation company — Agents—Pleading—Amendment.] -In an action against two defendants, de scribed as incorporated companies, for the recovery of penalties for non-compliance with the requirements of Art. 1149, R. S. Q., the plaintiff restricted his demand to the penalties for 300 days between two stated periods. The action was dismissed in the first Court. as to the first defendant, on exception to the form based on the ground that no such corporation as that described in the writ existed. The other defendants had not pleaded, and the plaintiff subsequently caused an amended declaration to be served on the attorneys, alleging that the defendant first mentioned was an unincorporated company, and claiming the same amount of penalties for a different period of 300 days, and as to which the pre-scription enacted by Art. 2615, R. S. Q., had accrued at the date of the service of the amended declaration unless prescription had been interrupted by the service in the original been interrupted by the service in the original action : — Held, affirming, but for different reasons, the judgment in Q. R. 22 S. C. 510, that prescribed under Art, 2615 was not in-terrupted by the service of process in the original action inasmuch as the period for which the service many chimad theories more which the penalty was claimed therein, was not the same as the period claimed for in the amended declaration, and, moreover, the latter claim included a period for which the plaintiff had abandoned his claim in the original action. Further, the original ac-tion being brought against the defendant as the agent of an incorporated company, whereas the amended declaration alleged that the defendant was the agent of an unincorporated company, such amendment should not have been allowed, inasmuch as it changed the nature of the demand within the meaning of Art. 522, C. C. P. Lambe v. Donaldson Steamship Line and Navigation Co., 23 Que. S. C. 469.

Rights and powers of shareholders -Will of the majority and recourse of the 654 minority—Sale or letting the privileges and the enterprise of the company—Common ad-vantage—Acts done in the interests of a part of the shareholders only-Competence of the Superior Court to set them aside.]-Outside of the cases specially provided for in the charter or in the statute forming a joint stock company, the will of the majority of the shareholders, legally expressed, concerning the business of the enterprise, ought to prevail as a rule. Nevertheless if the question is as to acts which involve the abandonment of the enterprise, or at least the giving up of its independent operation or a departure from the statute as to the object of the company, such as the granting, or selling or renting for a number of years of the privileges of the company of its establishments, factories, etc., they must be manifestly in the interest of all the shareholders in order that the minority may be bound by the majority. The Superior Court by virtue of its general powers of surveillance and relief (Art. 50 C. P.) is always competent to take cognisance of the complaint of one or several shareholders, of the circumstances of these operations, and to pronounce them null, if they are not for the equal and evident advantage of all, and upright and of perfectly good faith, especially if they appear fraudulently combined in a speculative purpose profitable to a part only, even though it may be the majority of the shareholders. Sale of bonds-Conversion of preferred stock into bonds-Ultra vires-Commissions paid to secretary-Trust-Ratification-Recovery of moneys illegally paid—Mistake of law.]—By a resolution of the directors, the secretary of the company had been author-ised to sell the company's bonds, for which he was to be paid a commission at the rate of 5 per cent. on the amounts received. Subsequently, at a time when they had no authority to do so, the directors converted the preferred stock held by certain shareholders into bonds, and paid the secretary for his services in making the conversion, at the rate of 5 per cent, on the amount of bonds thus disposed of. In an action to recover from the secretary the moneys so received by him as commission:—Held, that, although the secretary had received the commissions under mistake of law, yet, as he must be assumed to have had knowledge of the illegality of the transaction, the moneys could be recovered back by the company.—Subsequently the scheme of conversion was approved of by a resolution of the shareholders, but it did not appear that they had been fully informed as to the arrangement for the payment of a commission to the secretary in that respect, in addition to his regular salary: — Held, that the resolution of the shareholders had not the effect of ratifying the payment of the commissions.
