Secret profits—Laches.]—M. desired to have the village of Havelock lighted by electricity. He purchased a piece of land with water power for $300. He next interested 4 other persons in the project and they obtained a charter for a company. Then M. sold his property to the company for $5,000, and after some financing each of the five persons forming the company received $1,000 in paid up shares in the company. Later other per-sons became shareholders in the company, and after considerable delay brought action to set aside above transaction as fraudulent and void. At trial Britton, J., held, that M. did not purchase the property in question for any company to be formed, but on his own account; that there was no fraud in selling the property to the company at $5,000, as it was the only property available for the purposes of the company, and under the circumstances it was not an exorbitant price, and dismissed the action, without costs. Divisional Court held, that there was some understanding by which a secret profit was provided for the directors and allowed the appeal with costs as against the defendant directors. except Mathieson, and entered judgment for $1,000 against them severally. As to Mathie-son the action and appeal was dismissed. Hay's Case, In re Canadian Oil Works Corment of Britton, J., 15 O. W. R. 111, re-versed. Bennett y. Havelock (1910), 16 O. W. R. 19, 21 O. L. Telephone company-Sale of assets and franchise-Power of companies-Outstanding contract for use of lines of vendor company -Right of third party to restrain sale.]-By agreement, which was to be in force for 10 years, the Cumberland Telephone Co. and the Central Telephone Co. were to have the use of each other's lines and of any connec-tions either then had or might thereafter acquire over the lines, of any other com-pany. Shortly after the making of the agreement the Central Co. sold their property to the New Brunswick Telephone Co. By their charter the Central Co. had power to amalgamate with any other company, and the Act of incorporation of the New Brunswick Co. empowers them to acquire other tele phone lines. The agreement of sale provided that the Cumberland Co, should have, by virtue of their agreement with the Central Co., the use of so much of the New Brunswick Co.'s lines as were acquired from the Central Co. The Cumberland Co. sought to restrain the sale unless provision were made in the the safe times provision were made in the agreement of safe that they should have the use of the whole system of the New Brunswick Co.:—Held, that the bill should be dismissed.—Held, also, that the safe and purchase being within the powers of the companies, could not be objected to, and, even if it were ultra vires, the plaintiffs had no status entitling them to raise the question .--Semble, that the sale should not have been enjoined, even if the New Brunswick Co. had not assumed the contract of the Central with the Cumberland Co. New Cumberland Tele-phone Co. v. Central Telephone Co., (1906). 2 E. L. R. 101, 3 N. B. Eq. 385.

Transfer of shares before first pay ment made-Breach of duty-Ontario Companies Act-Inquiry into solvency of trans-ferees-Contributories.] On the issue of letters patent under the Ontarlo Companies Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 191, incorporating a company, the directors subscribed for stock, making no provision, however, for the payment, nor making any calls thereon-while applications for stock by others were only accepted on their paying 25 per cent. on subscription and 25 per cent. on allotment. Subsequently, and some time before the company were declared insolvent, the directors, knowing of the insolvent condition, and desiring to get rid of their stock, on which nothing had been paid, employed the promoter of the company to procure persons willing to take the stock. He accordingly procured 5 persons, who he knew were of little or no substance, and as to whom he had carefully abstained from any inquiry, to take all of the directors' stock, except one share each on which they could qualify and make the transfers, informing the transferees that they would become directors, and, as to 4 of them, that they would incur no liability on the stock, as he would arrange for its disposal. The purchasers gave their promis-sory notes for the first 25 per cent., payable in 6 months without interest, before the transfers were made, payable to the company. instead of to the directors, the object being that they should be treated as payment of the 25 per cent, for which the directors were liable :---Held, that the transfers were invalid, as being made contrary to s, 30 of the Act, before all calls had been paid, the liability of the directors for the 25 per cent. being substantially the same as a call; and also in that the directors were guilty of a breach of trust in not exercising their powers in the best interests of the company by taking special care and caution in procuring responsible transferees. The directors were therefore directed to be placed on the list of contributories for this stock. Peterborough Cold Storage Co., 9 O. W. R. 850, 14 O. L. R. 475.

Utra Vires Acts—Do not bind minority.]—The rule that in the management of the affairs of a joint-stock company, the will of the majority of the shareholders, legally ascertained and expressed, should prevail, applies only in matters that are within the scope and powers of its incorporation. Acts that are ultra vires, adopted by the majority of shareholders, at regularly convened meetings, are null and void, and therefore not binding on the minority. An act of a joint stock company that amounts to an implied renunciation of its charter rights, or involves the risk of forfeiture of its franchise, is ultra vires. Such an act is the demise by a manufacturing company. by a tweaty-one years' lense, for a fixed rental, of all its property, "mills, plan and accessories," practically a surrender of its whole business. Amyot v. Dominion Cotton Mills Co. (1910), 38 Que. S. C. 457.

Unauthorized expenditure-Liability of innocent directors.]-The directors of limited company, without authority from the shareholders, passed a resolution providing that, in consideration of a firm, of which two directors were members, carrying on business of a similar character, continuing the same until the company could take it over, the company indemnified it from all loss occasioned thereby. K. and F., two members of the firm, refused their assent to the terms of this resolution and declared their intention, of which the majority of the directors were made aware, to retire from the firm. subsequently wrote to the president and another director reiterating her intention to retire, and declaring that she would not be responsible for any further liability. The company afterwards took over the business of the firm, paying therefor $30,000, and receiving assets worth $12,000, and having eventually gone into liquidation, the liquidator brought an action to recover from the members of the firm the difference. The Court of Appeal (Wade v. Pakenham, 5 O. W. R. 736), held that K and F. were not liable, though their that K and F, were not have, though ther partners were:---Held, reversing that deci-sion, that K. and F, having received the benefit of the money paid by the company, were also liable to repay the loss. Wade v. Kendrick, 26 C. L. T. 124, 37 S. C. R. 32.

Wages-Liobility of director—" Labourer or servant"—Foreman of works, 1—A person engaged to perform manual work, at a daily wage, and who is actually occupied in doing such work, is a "labourer," within the meaning of 2 Edw. VII. c. 15, s. 71 (D.), although, being a workman of superior engacity, he is also intrusted with the supervision of other workmen, and, to that extent, fills the position of a "boss," or foreman. Corporate powers—Price of elevator— Guaranty by railway company.]—A company whose charter provides that it "may acquire, own, lense, and sell real estate." and "build, sell, lense and otherwise deal with elevators; etc., and farther "may issue bonds bearing interest to an anount not exceeding the cose; of any elevator built by it," has the power tor issue such bonds for the price of an elevator bought by it.—A guarantee of bonds issued by a company for the price of an elevator, given by a railway company to which the elevator is leased, and amounting in effect to an undertaking to pay the rent to a trustee for the bond-holders, is valid and binding and may be enforced against such railway company. Royal Trust Co, v. Great Northern Elevator Co, Q. R. 30 S. C. 490.

Trust deed to secure debentures-Pleading—Purchase for value without notice —Onus—Evidence—Affirmative and negative evidence-Weight of evidence.]-The question was as to the validity of a specific security created by a trading company, in the ordinary course of business, as against the floating security created by a previous trust deed secure bonds issued by the company :---Held, that the plea of purchase for value without notice must be proved in its entirety by the party offering it; it is not incumbent on the opposite party to prove notice after the purchase for value is established .- Where a conversation over the telephone was relied on as proof of notice, the evidence of the party asserting that it took place, and giving the substance of it in detail, must prevail over that of the other party who states only that he does not recollect it .-- Judgment of Supreme Court of Nova Scotia in Indian and General Investment Trust Limited v. Union Bank of Halifax, 3 E. L. R. 409, affirmed. Union Bank of Halifax v. Indian and General Investment Trust, 40 S. C. R. 510

Validity of debentures - Powers of provisional directors - By-law-Ratification by shareholders-Preferential lien on personalty of company-Necessity for registration under Bills of Sale Act.]-At a meeting of the provisional directors of a joint stock company incorporated under the Ontario Companies Act, a by-law was passed, under the power conferred by s. 49 of the Act, authorising the directors from time to time to borrow money upon the credit of the company, to issue bonds or debentures of the company for the amounts borrowed, and to pledge the real or personal property, rights and powers, of the company, to secure such bonds or debentures. On the same day a meeting of the shareholders of the company was held, at which all the shareholders were present, when this by-law was confirmed, and all the provisional directors duly elected the directors of the company. This by-law purported to be enacted by the directors (not the provisional directors), and had the seal of the company affixed to it :--Held, that, whether or not the provisional directors had power to pass the by-law (as to which there was a difference of opinion in the Court), it was a valid by-law and sufficient authority for the subsequent issue of debentures by the directors : -Held, also, Garrow, J.A., dissenting, that the debentures issued, though purporting to create a lien or charge upon the property of the company, were not mortgages or conveyances intended to operate as mortgages of goods and chattels of an incorporated company, within the meaning of the Bills of Sale and Chattel Mortgage Act, and were not, therefore, void as against the defendant, the assignce of the company for the benefit of creditors, because not registered under the provisions of that Act. Johnston v. Wade, 17 O. L. R. 372, 11 O. W. R. 598, 12 O. W. R 951.

Action to set aside mortgage and bonds—Froud upon minority shareholders— Receiver — Value of property misapplied.] — Two companies existed in Yarmouth, a gas company, and an electric light company. Attempts were unsuccessfully made to consolidate them. Certain members of the electric light company promoted a new company called the Merchants and Manufacturers Company, which acquired the property and assets of the electric light company. The promoters of the new company afterwards acquired a controlling interest in the gas company, and proceeded to sell out all the property and assets of the Merchants and Manufacturers Company to the gas company, issuing bonds of the gas company secured by mortgage of all their property to pay for it An action was brought by certain of the minority shareholders of the gas company to set aside the mortgage and the bond issue. On the trial, an amendment of the statement of claim was granted, allowing the plaintiffs to amend by inserting a paragraph alleging the action to be brought on behalf of themselves and the other shareholders, not being defendants, and also to make necessary amendments of the statement of claim in conformity with the evidence. The Judge found that the scheme of the promoters of the Merchants and Manufacturers Company, who also constituted a majority of the shareholders of the gas company, was a fraud upon the minority shareholders of the gas company, and an attempt to benefit themselves at the expense of such shareholders : Held, that, as the bonds were in the hands of third parties, who, on taking the bonds were not bound to go beyond the terms of the bonds, the instrument securing them. and the charter of the company, neither the bonds nor the mortgage could be set aside. Held, further, that the plaintiffs were entitled to relief. A reference was ordered to ascer-tain the value of the company's property misapplied, and it was also held that a receiver might be appointed and the company wound The certificates of shares issued to the Merchants and Manufacturers Company were ordered to be delivered up and cancelled. Cann v. International Trust Co., 40 N. S. R. 65.

Chattel mortgage - Construction-Resolution to authorise mortgage by directors-Insolvency-Concurrence of intent to prefer - Presumption against shareholder mort-gagee.]-Held, that s. 98 of the Companies Ordinance relating to the powers of a company to borrow and mortgage, applies only to mortgages and other securities to secure money borrowed, and does not restrict the implied powers of a trading company to give security for existing debts. That the unanimity of the members of the company in authorising a mortgage obviates the necessity for any meeting. Adams v. Bank of Montreal, 8 B. C. R. 314, affirmed, 32 S. C. R. 719. referred to. That the affidavit of bona fides of a chattel mortgage may be sworn before a solicitor acting for the mortgagee. Baker v. Ambrose, [1896] 2 Q. B. 372, not followed. Where there is lacking a knowledge of insolvency and intent to prefer, delay, defeat. hinder or prejudice creditors, on the part of either the mortgagor or the mortgagee, the mortgage not being attacked within 60 days from the date of its execution, is not invalid under the Assignments Act. Hypothee—Promissory noto—Payment by indorer—Absence of protest — Recovery by indorers—Under the Joint Stock Companies Act of the Province of Quebec, directors may contract a hypothee, which will be binding on the company. 2. A director of the company who accepts such hypothec, to secure indorsations made by himself and other directors, cannot afterwards, in good faith, question the legal right of the directors to authorize the granting of such hypothec. 3. Where no proof of a protest or the waiver of protest, is made, the indorser of a promissory note who pays, cannot recover, and he must be held to have paid without any obligation to do so: and the payment must be attributed to his own generosity. 4. Where the person who accepts an hypothec to secure the payment of certain debts, does not bind himself personally, there is no obligation on his part which renders him liable in case the debtor does not pay. Sacaria v. Pagwette, 20 Que, S. C. 314.

Mortgage — Rate of interest—Acceleration clause.]—Bonds of a company dated the 1st July, 1902, provided for payment of the principal in 10 years from date, and that in the meantime interest thereon should be paid at the rate of 10 per cent. Default having been made in payment of interest, the trustee under a morizage given to secure the bonds, made on the 1st Jannary, 1905, a declaration calling in the principal and interest, under an acceleration clause in the mortgage -Held, that interest at the rate provided for, and not at the statutory rate, was payable after the date of the declaration. Eastern Trust Co. v. Cushing Sulphite Fibre Co., 2 E. L. R. 98, 3 N, B. Eq. 392.

Mortgage by company to bank to secure existing debt.]--Plaintif, liquida-tor of the New Ontario Brewing Co., brought action to set aside a mortgage by the company to defendants, on the ground (1) that it was made within three months preceding the commencement of winding-up proceed-ings; (2) that no by-law of the company was passed authorising the mortgage .- Sutherland, J., held (15 O. W. R. 536), 1 O. W. N. 519), that the consideration mentioned in the mortgage was proved to have consisted of an existing debt from the company to the an existing decirroin the company to the bank, and that the bank was endeavouring to get security therefor. Plaintiff was en-titled to succeed under s, 94 of the Windingup Act, but the by-law was not properly ratified, and was without effect for the purpose of making the mortgage valid. Judg-ment for plaintiff as liquidator of the New Ontario Brewing Co., setting aside the mort-gage, and the defendants will execute a discharge of it. Costs to plaintiff.—Court of Appeal held, that the attack upon the mortgage failed and the appeal should be allowed and the action dismissed, but the circumstances were such as to invite enquiry, and costs should not be allowed either party. Hammond v. Bank of Ottawa (1910), 17 O. W. R. 121, 2 O. W. N. 99, 22 O. L. R. 73.

Sale under power—" Proceeding against the company "—Winding-up Act, R. S. C. 1906, c. 144, s. 22.] —A company being in liquidation, the mortgagees went into possession prior to the issue of the winding-up order. On an application to restrain the mortgagees from selling under their security, objection was taken that the attendance of the mortgagees on an application and the approving of the winding-up order was such a taking part in the winding-up as gave the Court jurisdiction to restrain them. This being overruled, the liquidator sought to restrain the mortgagees from selling without the sanction of the Court, on the ground that such sale would be a "proceeding against the company" under s. 22 of the Winding-up Act: -Held, that the mortgagees proceeding rightfully. On 28th April defendant, while intoxicated, signed an application for said shares. On 30th April the provisional directors received the application. Defendant telegraphed same morning revoking application. The Court was not satisfied it was received before meeting of provisional directors. Two provisional directors had not been notified so as to be able to attend directors' meeting:-Held, no meeting, and therefore no allotment of stock to defendant and no subsequent confirmation. Action failed. Formers Bank v. Sunstrum (1909), 14 O. W. R. 288.

Conditional subscription — Allotment —Acceptance—Calle,]—H. asked defendant to subscribe for stock. Both were hard of hearing. H. thought he was authorised to sign defendant's name, whereas defendant said he would subscribe but on certain conditions:—Heid, no contract. Notice of allotment was sent defendant, and within a reasonable time he replied saying he had subscribed conditionally. Having rejected the shares he was not called on to get his name off the register. Action for calls dismissed. Silikker v. Eveans, 7 E. L. R. 560.

Conditions not fulfilled-Representation of agent of company-Materiality-Untruth.] - Action brought by incorporated body to recover $500, the amount of 5 shares of plaintiff's capital stock for which the defendant subscribed on 20th April, 1892. Defendant set up that he was induced to be-come a subscriber for the shares by the representations of plaintiff's agent, that Mr. G. A. Cox and Mr. H. A. Massey had each subscribed or promised to subscribe for $10,000 of stock, upon the condition that subscriptions for $50,000 were obtained on or before 1st January, 1893 ; that defendant's subscription was required in order to assist in making up what was still required of the $50,000, and that his subscription would not be binding unless the $50,000, including the subscription of Messrs, Cox and Massey, were fully subscribed on or before 1st January, 1893. Delegation of authority-Withdrawal of application - By-laws-Number of direc-tors.]-At a general meeting of the shareholders of the plaintiff company, incorporated under the Ontario Companies Act, it was resolved that a board of three directors should be elected to manage the affairs of the company, and three of the five provisional directors were elected as directors. The three directors met and adopted by-laws, one of which provided that the affairs of the company should be managed by a board of five directors, and another provided for the terms upon which stock subscriptions should be received. About ten months later, a document in the form of an agreement to purchase stock was signed by the plaintiff, and the words "accepted by" written at the foot over the signature of one of the three direc tors, who had been elected president and general manager; and at a meeting of the directors a resolution was passed giving to the president full power to deal with the defend-ant's "application." On the following day the president wrote to the defendant notifying him that calls had been made upon the shares subscribed for by him, "which have this day been allotted to you by by-law of this com-nang". pany." Nothing further was done in the way of allotting shares to the defendant, and Dany his name did not appear in the register of shareholders. About two weeks after the receipt of the president's letter, the defead-ant wrote to the company withdrawing and cancelling his application :- Held, in an action for the amount of calls alleged to be due, that the directors had no power to delegate C.C.L.-22 to the president their authority as to the allotment of shares or their authority to accept the offer of the defendant; there was, therefore, no valid allotment, and the withdrawal was effectual.—Semble, that the fact that the by-laws passed by the directors, rovvided for a board of five directors, while a board of only three assumed to manage the affairs of the company, would be a bar to the plaintiff's success in the action. Twin City Oil Co, v. Christie, 18 O. L. R. 324, 13 O. W. R. 756.

Directors allotting themselves shares as fully paid up-Misfeasance-Winding-up Act, R. S. C., 1906, c. 144, s. 123.]-An original subscriber and provisional director of a company who had only paid $25 on account joined with the other provisional directors in passing a resolution, at the organisation meeting of the company in 1902, that the shares of capital stock subscribed for by them should be allotted to them as fully paid up, which was done. In 1904 he transferred his shares, receiving therefor the sum of $125 more than he had paid. In 1906 the shares were forfeited, by resolution of the directors, for non-payment of a call of 100 per cent. made upon them :--Held, in the winding-up proceedings (Meredith, J.A., dissenting as to the measure of damages), that the original subscriber for the shares was liable as for breach of trust under s. 123 of the Windingup Act, R. S. C. 1906 c. 144, in assuming to accept the shares as fully paid up; but the measure of damages was the market value of the shares at the date of the allotment, and the sum of $125 was all that he was liable for in this proceeding. Per Meredith. J.A.: — The measure of damages was the par-value of the shares. Judgment of Teetzel, J., affirmed. In re Manes Tailoring Co., Crawford's Case (1908), 18 O. L. R. 572, 11 O. W. R. 498, 13 O. W. R. 829.

Directors, discretion of, as to purchaser and price of shares.]-At a meeting of the directors of an incorporated company they allotted all the unissued shares, being 40 per cent, of the capital stock, to the secretary of the company at par, he having subscribed for them, and immediately afterwards he disposed of a number of these shares at par to the directors individually. No shares had been sold for three years previously, and in the meantime the company's real estate had greatly increased in value, and the plaintiff had recently purchased a large number of shares, nearly all at a premium, and some at a premium of 150 per cent. Held, that this transaction by the directors was not illegal, as the shares were allotted bona fide to the secretary with intent to further the company's interests and without intent on the part of the directors to profit personally thereby : that the directors were acting within their powers when they exercised their discretion and sold shares at par which might have brought a premium; and that they were not obliged to offer the unissued shares to the shareholders pro rata or put them up at auction before disposing of them to one shareholder at par. Harris v. Sumner (1909). 39 N. B. R. 204.

Failure to organise company—License —Insurance Act.] — To constitute a binding contract to take shares in a company, when such contract is constituted by application and ailotment, there must be an application by the intending shareholder, an allotment by the directors of the company of the shares applied for, and a communication by the directors to the applicant of the fact of the allotment having been made. The subscription for stock amounts to nothing more than an offer, and requires to be completed by an allotment of stock to the subscribers. The company in question here never was organised; it had no business existence; it never had stock to allot; it never had directors; and, therefore, it never could make an allotment:-Held, also, that, as no license was obtained by the company from the Minister of Finance within two years from the passing of the Act incorporating the company, such Act expired and ceased to be in force on the 13th June, 1900, and the company ceased to exist. The Insurance Act. R. S. C. c. 124. s. 24. Hodgins v. O'Hara, 22 C. L. T. 29, 133.

Implied acceptance and allotment.] —A subscription for shares in a joint stock company becomes a contract by acceptance of the subscription and the distribution and allotment of the shares made by the company. Such acceptance and allotment may be implied as well as express. Consequently, the transfer by a company to a third person of a subscription for a specific number of shares, followed by notice to the subscripter, is an acceptance of the subscription and an implied allotment of the shares subscripted for. Man of no means—Outward form to cover real transaction—Double contract — Purchase of patent of invention—Bonus to purchasers of preferred shares—Ont. Co. Act. s. 113, 113].—Defendant company allotted 50,000 shares of $10 each to a man of no means who did not pay for them and was not expected to do so. They were intended to be given as a bonus to purchasers of preferred shares.—At trial Clute, J., held, 15 O. W. R. 105, that the agreement was ultra virks of the company, and the pretended allotment and issue of said shares should be cancelled.—Divisional Court held, that the contract was double and separate; that 10,000 shares were given allottee as purchase price of a patent of invention, and was a valid transaction, but that the allotment of the other 40,000 shares was a "colurable transaction" to enable the company to issue shares at a discount, and was ultra virke. Mining company — Shares—Failure of consideration—Abandonment of enterprise— Promissory notes — Effect of renerods.]— Action on bill of exchange for $3.040.85 drawn by plaintiffs and accepted by defendant. Defendant pleaded an entire failure of consideration, and counterclaimed for $3.000 paid by him to plaintiffs on 17th September, 1880, to take up a promissory note which had been made by him to plaintiffs, upon the ground that the consideration had entirely failed: — Held, plea good defence. Plaintiff argued that the effect of two renewals was to estop the defendant from the defence of want of consideration no amount of renewals will cure the defect, unless some new consideration is introduced, and that a mere compliance with defendant's request to renew does not constitute such consideration:—Held, file defandant entitled to recover back his $3,000 paid on other note, Builion Mining Co. After the incor-poration of the company, notices were sent out to subscribers requiring payment of a first call upon the stock subscribed for by The plaintiffs paid the amount of the them. call, but subsequently-the company having refused to appoint G. as their agent, as agreed by P. at the time the agreement to take shares was signed-claimed a rescission of the contract and a return of the money paid by them :--Held, that the plaintiffs could not recover.—Per Longley, J., that the company were not responsible for representations made prior to the incorporation unless such representations were expressly adopted by the company after incorporation; and that the plaintiffs could not escape liability as share-holders on the ground of the misrepresentations alleged, their remedy in such case being against P. personally, Gourlie v, Chand-ler and Hart Limited, Saunders v, Chandler and Hart Limited, 3 E. subject, nor until a copy certified under the company's seal has been transmitted to the Provincial Secretary and published in the Gazette. By s. 22 it is enacted that the directors may make a by-law for creating and issuing any make a by-law for creating and issuing any part of the capital stock as preferred stock, but no such by-law shall have any force or effect whatever until after it has been unanimously sanctioned by a vote of the shareholders present or represented at a general meeting duly called for considering the same, or unanimously sanctioned in writing by the shareholders, or approved by the Lieutenant-Governor as therein provided. The plaintiffs, at their first general meeting of shareholders, at which all of the existing shareholders, at which an 5 persons named as provisional directors in the letters patent of incorporation, were prethe number of the directors of the company should be 4, and thereupon 4 of the pro-visional directors were elected directors, Another motion was then carried authorising the directors to arrange for terms and conditions of sale of stock, preferred and common, and to allot or dispose of the same on such terms as they deemed best. Thereupon the 4 directors immediately held a meeting, elected officers, and adopted a form of ap-plication for preferred stock. It was then moved and carried "that we offer for sale not more than 1,500 shares of the company to be sold as preferred stock of the company at par value of $10 per share," etc. Imme-diately after this directors' meeting the shareholders' meeting was resumed, all shareholders being present, and the full minutes, resolutions, etc., of the board of directors were presented and confirmed unanimously. Some two months afterwards the first annual general meeting of the company was held, when a motion was carried that the shareholders "approve and confirm the sale by the directors of $3,900 of the preferred capital stock of the company, and hereby authorise the directors to make any further sales of the said preferred capital stock that they may deem necessary in the interests of the company :" - Held, that the preferred shares had not been properly and validly issued, for s. 45 above mentioned, with regard to decreasing the number of directors, had not been complied with and, even if the motion for issue of preferred shares carried at the directors' meeting amounted to a by-law, although in form only a resolution-which was very doubtful-s, 22 required that such a by-law should be passed by the directors first and then confirmed by the shareholders, thus prescribing consideration twice, and by two different bodies, acting in different capacities; and, moreover, the resolution did not create any specific number of shares as preferred shares, as it should have done, but left uncertain not only the amount of preferred stock, but also the amount of com-mon stock :---Held, therefore, in this action, in which the plaintiff sued the defendant upon a note given for the amount due in respect of certain preferred shares alleged to have been allotted to him, that, as there were in fact, under the above circumstances, no such shares to allot, there had been a total failure of consideration for the note, and the action must be dismissed .- Semble, that where an application for shares contains an absolute covenant to pay, notification of withdrawal before allotment is invalid. Mancs Tailoring Co. v. Willson, 9 O. W. R. 209, 14 O. L. R. 89.

Notice of allotment—Contributory.]— Where an applicant had agreed to take shares in a company conditional on his receiving certain moneys which would enable him to pay for them.—Held, that he had the right to withdraw his application, as he did, not having received any formal notice of allotment, by informing the company of his inability, owing to non-receipt of the moneys, to pay for the shares, and that he was not liable as a contributory. Subscribers for shares in the stock of a company who have already paid one call cannot be heard to deny the allot-ment of their shares.-2. The production of a certificate of indebtedness for unpaid calls on stock in a company incorporated by letters patent under the Manitoba Joint Stock Companies Act, R. S. M. 1502, c. 30, made in necordance with s. 53 of the Act, is prima facie evidence of notice of the call as well as of the other matters referred to in that section .--- 3. The presence on the board of directors of such a company of three who were not qualified, by reason of being in arrears in respect of unpaid calls at the time of their election, is not sufficient to invalidate the acts of the board if done by a legal quorum of properly qualified directors. Scadding v. Lorant, 3 H. L. C. 443; Bank of Liverpool v. Bigelow, 12 N. S. R. 236, and Munster v. Cammel Co., 21 Ch. D. 183, followed.—4. Although the Act requires that the election of directors shall be by ballot, an election by unanimous vote without balloting will be valid if no more than the necessary number are nominated. Morden Woollen Mills Co. v. Heckles, 7 W. L. R. 715, 17 Man. L. R. 557.

Principal and agent — Authority of agent—Conditional agreement.]—S. signed a subscription for shares in a company to be formed and a promissory note for the first payment, both of which documents he delivered to the promoter of the company, to which they were transferred after incorporation. In an action for payment of calls, S. swore that the stock was to be given to him in part payment for the goodwill of his business, which the company were to take over. The promoter testified that the shares subscribed for were to be in addition to those to be received for the goodwill:-Held, that, though S. could, before incorporation, constitute the promoter his agent to procure the allotment of shares for him and give his note in payment, yet the possession by the promoter did not relieve the company from the duty of enquiring into the extent of his authority, and, whichever of the two statements at the trial was true the promoter could not bind S. by an unconditional application. Prospectus—Unreasonable delay—Depar-ture—Res judicata.]—On the 28th January, 1899, the defendant and others subscribed for a certain number of shares of the stock of a projected company, the purpose of which was to build an hotel. The prospectus stated that it was intended to apply for a charter forthwith, and to commence building as soon as $40,000 of the stock had been subscribed. and that the buildings were estimated to cost about $45,000, and to be ready for opening at the beginning of the summer season of 1899. The company, however, was not formed, nor was anything done towards getting the hotel ready for occupation by the time mentioned. Prior to the 24th October, 1899, only $28,700 had been subscribed, but additional subscriptions obtained on that date and shortly afterwards brought the total up to $40,150. On the 24th November, 1899, letters patent of incorporation were issued. About the 1st July, 1900, the hotel was com-pleted, and cost about $15,000 more than originally contemplated -Held, that, as the undertaking had not been proceeded with within a reasonable time from its inception, and as the defendant had not at any time after the 1st October, 1899, agreed to be bound by his subscription, or approved of then proceeding with the erection of the hotel, or that it should cost the sum it was afterwards erected for, he could not now be held bound to pay for the shares.—Semble, that a judgment in an undefended action brought by the defendant against the company, declaring that the defendant was not a shareholder, was not a defence to this action, brought by other subscribers to compel the defendant to pay for the shares he had subscribed. Subsequently the defendant cancelled this letter, and refused to sign the stock book. In an action for a first call, instituted by all the underwriters on the stock book, before the incorporation of the company :--Heid, that an action for a first call could not be maintained on the defendant's letter, until the company had been orgalised. In the absence of a special contract on the part of and between the co-adventurers, no legal call can be made prior to the organisation of the corporation, because until then there is no board of directors capable of making a call. Casclais v. Picotte, 18 Que. 8. C. 538.

Winding-up - Contributory.]-R. was not one of the incorporators of this company, nor did he sign the memorandum of agreement which accompanied the application for the charter. He had previously signed a similar memorandum and the liquidator now calimed the latter was an irrevocable appli-cation for shares, and that he should be placed on the list of contributories. R. claimed to have subscribed to the latter memorandum conditionally. This condition not being fulfilled he notified the company that he would not take the shares that he had subscribed for. When allotment was made shares were allotted to all but R., who signed the same agreement as the others, though about a year after this an allotment was made to him of which he had notice. No certificate to min of which he had holder. No certificate ever issued to him, nor did he ever attend a shareholders' meeting but one, and then to protest from being considered a shareholder. -Held, on appeal from a local Master, that R, should not be placed on the list of con-tributories. For a number of years there were not sufficient earnings to pay interest or dividends to either the preferred or common stockholders. Latterly, however, the earnings increased, and a contest arose between the holders of the preferential stock and the holders of the common stock, the latter contending that the former should not be paid interest or dividends for the years during which there were not sufficient earnings for the purpose :--Held, that the holders of the preferential stock are entitled to receive out of the earnings what is called cumulative interest covering the past years in which dividends or interest remained unpaid on the preferential stock before any dividends are paid on the common stock. tor of the com-shares. The company assigned to plaintiff $1,000 due on the said shares by defendant, and plaintiff brought action to recover the same. Defendant set up that he was induced to subscribe for the shares by fraudulent misrepresentations of the agent of the company, and that the assignment to plaintiff was a security only for $1,000 which the company had borrowed from plaintiff, and that the directors had no authority to borrow, therefore, the assignment was invalid. Meredith, C.J.C.P., held, that defendant failed on both grounds, and gave plaintiff judgment with interest and costs. Stephene v. Riddell (1910), 16 O. W. R. 277, 21 O. L. R. 484, 1 O. W. N. 3932.

Voidance of contract-Material alteration in stock-list-Reduction of shares without holder's consent.]-Defendant subscribed for 50 shares in the plaintiff Co., signed the share-list and paid a call. By the Act of Incorporation other calls were to be paid as called for. The company made 6 other calls, but defendant did not pay them. Before making the calls sued for, the number of de-fendant's shares was changed, without his consent, on the share-list from 50 to 25 shares, and the company having brought this action for the amount of the calls, he pleaded setting out the above facts, and contending that by the alteration his contract to become a shareholder was rendered void, and that he thereupon ceased to be a shareholder. The case was, by consent, tried by a Judge without a jury :--Held (Peters, J.), that the verdict must be for the defendant on all the issues raised. Stadacona Ins. Co. v. Hodgson (1882), 2 P. E. I. R. 480.

4. Cancellation.

Deprivation of shares — Remedy — President of company.]—A company which, along with its president, appropriates to itself shares of its capital to the prejudice of a shareholder azainst the injury caused to him. Acer v, Percy, 5 Que, P. R. 401.

Forfeiture for non-payment of call-Promissory note—Non-presentment — Effect of—Bills of Exchange Act, s. 183—Condition -Extension of time-Suspension of debt-Revival on non-payment of note-Covenant under seal to pay call-Effect of parol arrangement-Remedy for illegal forfeiture . Declaration-Damages.] - The plaintiff, in subscribing for 10 shares of the capital stock of the defendants, an incorporated company, covenanted under seal to pay $12.50 per share and "all other calls, if any, as the same may from time to time be made." He paid the $1250 and an additional call of 2½ per cent. and received a stock certificate. The cent., and received a stock certificate. defendants subsequently made a call of 5 per cent, and, in writing to the plantiff requesting him to pay $50 therefor, they offered to take a promissory note for that amount, and enclosed a blank note for the purpose, stating in the letter that the giving of a note simply means an extension. of a note simply meant an extension of time for payment, and that in the event of non-payment the shares would be liable to be forfeited. The plaintiff filled up and signed the note, but made some alterations therein-one being the addition of the words "at the Molsons Bank, market branch." This was accepted by the defendants, but was not presented for payment at the branch indicated, where the plaintiff at all times had a sufficient balance to pay it, and it was not paid. The board of directors thereupon purported to forfeit the plaintiff's shares, and notified the plaintiff of the forfeiture: ----Held, that, giving effect to the notice in accordance with which the note was sent, and consequently to the terms of which the plaintiff must be considered to have agreed. the sole effect of the note was to give time to pay the debt ; and, the debt admittedly not having been paid at the due date of the note, the defendants were within their legal rights in forfeiting the shares .- But, if there were no such condition, the most that could be said was that the note was given for and on account of the debt, and the only effect of non-presentment upon such a note is upon the question of costs (Bills of Exchange Act, s. 183); the note is, quoad the debtor, a pro-mise to pay generally; and the debt, as the note became overdue and was unpaid and unproductive in the hands of the creditor, revived. Dictum of Armour, C.J., in Merchants Bank of Canada v. Henderson, 28 O. R. 360, followed.—Held, also, that a call having been regularly made, an action could have been brought upon the plaintiff's covenant, and payment enforced notwithstanding the parol arrangement .--- Held, also, that the plaintiff would not, in any view, be entitled to damages for the forfeiture of his stock, but at the most to a declaration that the forfeiture was a nullity, which relief had been offered to him and refused. Freeman v. Canadian Guardian Life Insurance Co., 12 O. W. R. 781, 17 O. L. R. 296.

Non-payment - Forfeiture - Abandonment of shares by acquiescence in forfeiture-Recall of abandonment.] - Plaintiffs held shares in defendant company on which 80 shares in detendant company on when be per cent had been paid up. The company made a further call of 2½ per cent, which plain-tiffs failed to pay, the company's prospects being doubtful at that time. Notice was sen plaintiffs that the shares would be declared forfeited if the call was not paid, and later at a meeting of the directors a resolution was passed declaring forfeiture. Some months later plaintiffs offered to pay up the arrears but were informed that the shares had been forfeited. Then action was brought :--Held, that plaintiffs had elected to abandon the shares at a time when the company's pros-pects were doubtful and such election could not be recalled when the company turned out to be in a prosperous condition. Action dismissed with costs .-- Judgments of the Supreme Court of British Columbia, 14 B. R. 285, 11 W. L. R. 220, and Hon. Mr. Justice Clement at trial affirmed, Jones V N. Vancouver Land Co., C. R., [1910] A. C. 1, [1910] A. C. 317, 79 L. J. P. C. 89, 102 L. T. 377.

Shareholders whose shares have been forfeited are not liable to be placed on list of contributories in winding-up proceedings, but may be sued (if the articles of association so provide) for amount unpaid on calls made. In re D, Wade Co. (1909), 2 Alta. L. R. 117, 10 W. L. R. 407.

5. Transfer.

Argeement to take shares in exchange for profit on lands acquired by company-Status of shareholder-Action to establish. Bogle v. Kootenay Valley Co. (Man.), 5 W. L. R. 139.

Certificate—Liten—By-laws.]—A provision in a certificate of ownership of paid up shares issued by a company incorporated by special Act, that "the articles of the company are part and parcel of this contract," is not sufficient to make applicable to a purchaser in good faith of the shares, a by-law of the company purporting to give to the company a lien on all shares held by any shareholder for "any and all amounts that may be owing by the shareshelder or his assigns to the company," and the purchaser is, upon compliance with the necessary formalities, entitled to be registered as transferce. Order of Ferguson, J., 3 O. W. R, 156, affirmed. In re McKain and Canadian Birkbeck Investment and Savings Co., 24 C, L, T, 128, 7 O. L, R, 241, 3 O. W. R. 335.

Certificate-Transfer by indorsement-Right of transferee to registration as shareholder-Share not fully paid-Right of transferee against transferor.]-A promesse d'action issued by a joint stock company, commonly called a stock certificate, does not entitle the holder to a paid-up share. Therefore, one who becomes the purchaser and holder of such a certificate, by indorsement, cannot require the company to inscribe his name in its books as the owner of a paid-up share in its capital stock, unless he delivers to the company a document of title to that effect .--- 2. The vendor of a share in the capi tal of a joint stock company does not fulfil his obligation to deliver by indorsing and handing to the purchaser the certificate for a share issued by the society, and certifying that he holds one of its shares, where he has paid only 40 per cent, of the sum which it A purchaser who suffers prerepresents. judice on this head has a remedy en garantie against the vendor to compel h a to pay the 60 per cent, which remains. Beauchemin v. Richelien Foundry Co., 23 Que, S. C. 261.

Certificates—Binding statement in—Purchasers—Discount.]—A portion of the shares in a joint stock company, purporting on the face of their certificates to be of a certain par value and paid up, were allotted to three promoters. One of them sold part of his allotment at a discount and had them transferred by the company direct to the purchasers, who were not aware that the shares were not really paid up:—Held, in an action by the company, that the purchasers were not liable for the discount on such shares, inasmuch as the company were bound by their statement in the certificates that the shares were "fully paid and non-assessable." Kettle River Mines (Ltd.) v. Bleasdel, 7 B. C. R. 507.

Company's books-Mandamus to enforce transfer-Interlocutory order-Appeal.]-The owner of two shares of stock in the defend-ant company, assigned them to the plaintiff, indorsing the assignment on the certificate. The plaintiff called at the head office and demanded that the necessary transfer should be made on the company's books, and also saw the president; and, after some correspondence, the transfer not having been made, he procured a duplicate assignment of the stock, and placed the matter in the hands of his solicitor, who thereupon wrote the company demanding a transfer, and enclosed one of the duplicate assignments, and stated that he would attend on a named hour, ready to sur-render the certificate, and have the transfer completed, and, on receiving a reply that it could not then be attended to, this action was brought, in which an order for a mandamus was claimed .- An interlocutory order made by a Judge in Chambers directing a mandamus to issue, was, on appeal to a Divisional Court, set aside, and the matter left for decision at the trial. Nelles v. Windsor, Essez and Lake Shore Rapid R. W. Co., 16 O. L. R. 359, 11 O. W. R. 463, 623.

Company by-law-Refusal to register-Mandamus-Ontario Joint Stock Companies Act. 1-Motion for mandamus to compel the Trusts and Guarantee Co., Limited, as transfer agents and registrars of the Imperial Starch Co., Limited, to rectify the register of the Imperial Starch Co., Limited, and to enter and record the transfer of 2 shares of the preference stock of the Imperial Starch Co., Limited, from William M. Leacy to the applicant: - Held, while by s. 28 of the Act the directors may refuse to allow the entry to be made of any transfer of shares of stock in any such book whereof the whole amount has not been paid in, but their power does not extend to fully paid up shares. Order for the transfer of the 2 shares to the applicant. Re Benson and Imperial Starch Co., 5 O. W. R. 591, 10 O. L. R. 22.

Conditional transfer—Action to recover shares.]—Plaintiff, as assignee for benefit of creditors, brought action to recover 705 shares of the capital stock of the Nipissing Mines, Lidd, or, in the alternative, for damages for conversion thereof, and for an account. At the trial Riddell, J., dismissed the action with costs. The Court of Appeal dismissed an appeal therefrom. Barber V. Wills & Kemerer (1909), 15 O. W. R. 200.

Contract—Payment — Security — *Condi*tional safe—Rescission, 1—A contract by the acceptance of a proposal to purchase shares in a joint stock company for a price payable half in bonds and half in preferred stock of a company to be formed, with a covenant that the shares purchased shall be deposited as security for the payment of the bonds, and that as soon as all the shares of the company are so deposited and its real estate is transferred to the new company, a mortgage deed will be executed to secure the payment of the bonds, is a sale subject to a resolutory condition. In the event of the new company acquiring the property of the old one, and mortgrging it to secure the bonds given in payment, the sale becomes complete and effective. In the event of such acquisition not being made, or being rendered impossible then the consideration, viz., bonds secured by mortgage, failing, the sale is ineffective and subject to resolution at the suit of the seller. Angers v. Dominion Textile Co., 30 Oue, S. C. 56, 64 E. L. R. 127.

Delivery-Promissory note-Allotment-Notice - Resolution.] - The defendant pur-chased 50 shares in the plaintiff company, giving his note for $5,000 therefor, payable 10 days after date, signing at the same time an application for the shares. There was some evidence of an arrangement between the defendant and the president of the company that the defendant was to be em ployed as a foreman by the company, and that, if he proved unable to perform the work. the president should take back the shares and refund the money. Apparently there was no formal allotment of the shares by the company, beyond a resolution empowering the president to dispose of the shares, but the president placed the shares and the note in escrow in the bank, the shares to be delivered up on payment of the note :--Held, that upon the signing of the application and the delivery of the note, the defendant be-came the owner of the 50 shares, with power forthwith to validly assign them to any one else, or to have bound himself to do so on the issue of the certificates if the company's articles of association required indorsement of the certificates; and that there was no notice of allotment necessary. Anglo-Ameri-can Lumber Co. v. McLellan, 7 W. L. R. 422, 9 W. L. R. 469, 13 B. C. R. 318.

Directors - Refusal to allow transfer.] -Motion to compet a company to allow a transfer to paintiff of 5 shares of fully paid-up stock. The only question was whether, under the stabilities and by-laws of the company, the directors can be compelled to allow pany, the unsfer to be made upon the books of the company. Δt trial Teetzel, J., (15 O. W. R. 534), held, that while the directors acted in good faith in refusing to allow the transfer to be made, and were honest in the position taken that it was not in the interests of the company to permit the applicant to become a shareholder; yet the Act nowhere authorised a company to refuse to transfer on their books fully puld-up shares, notwithstanding that the company had passed a by law providing that no to affer should be valid until approved by the directors, and that all transfers should be at the discretion of the directors. Court of Appeal on motion for leave to appeal ordered that upon the company undertaking to pay respondent's costs of appeal, as between soli citor and client, in any event of the appeal, it be at liberty to appeal upon the sole question of the power to restrict the transfer of fully paid-up shares in the manner provided by the by-law in question. The costs of appeal to be to respondent in any event. If not accepted, the application to be dismissed with costs. Re Good and Shantz (1970), 16 O. W. R. 30, 21 O. L. R. 153, 1 O. W. N. 508

Evidence of title — Duty of vendor-Defective certificate-Registration.] — When shares in the stock of a company are sold for cash and transfer endorsed purporting to be signed by the holder named therein, who is not the seller, the latter must be taken to affirm that a title which will enable the purchaser to become the legal holder is vested in him by virtue of such certificate and transfer .--- A transfer was signed by the wife of the holder at his direction, but not acted upon until after his death :--Held, that the authority of the wife to deal with the certificate was revoked by the holder's death, and, on a cash sale of the shares, the purchaser who received the certificate and transfer so signed. being unable, under the company's rules, to be registered as holder, had a right of action to recover back the purchase money from the seller .-- The fact that the purchaser endeavoured to have himself registered as holder of the shares was not an acceptance by him of the contract of sale which deprived him of his right of action to have it rescinded. Nor was his action barred by loss of the defective certificate by no fault of his nor of the seller.—Judgment appealed from, 13 B. C. R. 351, 7 W. L. R. 412, reversed. Castleman v. Waghorn, 41 S. C. R. 88.

Illegal consideration-Fraud-Officers of company-Breach of trust.]-With a view to overcoming financial difficulties of a mining Co. and securing control of its property, the manager entered into a secret arrangement with respondent, whereby latter was to acquire the liabilities, obtain judgment thereon, bring the property to sale under execution, and purchase it for a new Co. to be organised, in which respondent was to have a large interest. The manager, who was a creditor of the Co., was to have his debt secured and to receive an allotment of shares in the new Co. proportionate to those held by him in the insolvent Co., and he agreed that he would not reveal this understanding to the other shareholders :--Held, affirming judgment appealed from, Lasell v. Thistle Gold Co. and Hannah (1906), 11 B. C. R. 466, 3 W. L. R. 149, Sedgewick, J., dissenting, that the agreement could not be enforced as the consideration was illegal and a breach of trust by which the other shareholders were de-frauded. Lasell v. Hannah (1906), 26 C. L. T. 384, 37 S. C. R. 324.

Irregularity-Interest of infonts-Remedu -Restitution of benefit.]-Shares of stock in a joint stock company, belonging to a person deceased, and in which stock his minor children, after his death, were entitled to a share, were irregularly transferred to the widow individually, without any authorisation having been obtained for the transfer. The widow, however, used the shares in good fs'.th, and to the best advantage of the minors, in settling debts of the estate, which was virtually insolvent:--Heid, that the children having benefited to the full value of the shares, or more, and having made no offer of restitution of such benefit, had no claim agains pany value Percy Judgment creditor-Action, by against shareholder --- Transfer of shares -- Evidence.]-Judgment creditors of an incorporacted company, being unable to realise any-thing on their judgment, brought against H. as a shareholder, in which they failed, from inability to prove that he was owner of any shares. They then brought action against shares. G., in which evidence was given, not pro-duced in the former case, that the shares once held by G. had been transferred to H., but were not registered in the company's books: -Held, affirming the judgment in 33 N. S. Reps. 77, that the shares were duly transferred to H., though not registered, as it ap-peared that H. had acted for some time as president of and executed documents for the company, and the only way he could have held shares entitling him to do so was by transfer from G. :--Held, also, that, although there appeared to be a failure of justice from the result of the two actions, the inability of the plaintiffs to prove their case against H. in the first could not affect the rights of G, in the subsequent suit. The company in which G, held stock was incorporated in 1886 and empowered to build a certain line of railway. In 1890 an Act was passed auth-orising additional works to be constructed. increasing the capital stock, appointing an entirely different set of directors, and giving the con- any larger powers. One clause repealed all Acts and parts of Acts incon-sistent therewith. G. had transferred his shares before the latter Act came into force. The judgment against the company was re-covered in 1895 :--Held, that G, was never a shareholder of the company against which such indgment was obtained. Hamilton v. Grant, 20 C, L. T. 450, 30 S. C. R. 566. See also Hamilton v. Holmes, 33 N. S. R. 100n.

C. 396, that the writ of mandamas is the remedy open to one who wishes to have entered upon the books of a company a transfer of shares; but the writ should be directed against the company itself, and not against the directors of such company. Upton v. Hutchison, 8 Que. Q. B. 505.

Mandanuus. — Motion by plaintiffs for a mandamus to defendants to record the transfer of 3,000 shares of their capital stock to plaintiffs. Falconbridge, CJK.B., held that, in view of the apparently bona fide contention that the shares in question were not fully paid up, being the subject of an action which might be very soon disposed of, and of the fact that the plaintiffs had abundant notice of such contention, he ought not at present to interfere, either by granting a mandamus in this action or by prerogative writ of mandamus. Motion refused, costs in the cause to defendants. Warren, Gzoueski & Co. v. Peterton Lake Silver Cobalt Mining Co. (1900), 1 O. W. N. 211.

Misrepresentation - Fraud-Action for deceit-Accord and satisfaction-Release.]-G., a director in an industrial company, transferred 290 shares of the capital stock to the president to be sold for him. The president instructed an agent to sell said shares along with some of his own and some belonging to the company. The agent sold 25 shares of G.'s stock to J. G., representing and believing that it was treasury stock, and getting a note for the price in favour of the company. The note was indorsed over to G. Later J. G. discovered that the stock he had bought was not treasury stock, and had some correspondence with the secretary of the com-pany, in which he complained of having been deceived by the agent. Eventually he gave a 4 months' note in renewal of that given for the price of the stock, but when it fell due refused to pay it, the company having in the meantime become insolvent. In an action on the renewal note he filed a counterclaim for damages based on the misrepresentation and deceit. Judgment was given against him on the note and for him on the counterclaim: -Held, that G, was responsible for the fraud practised on the purchaser of his shares by the misrepresentations of the agent who sold them.—Held, also, Girouard and Davies, JJ., dissenting, that the settlement of the claim for the price of the shares by giving the renewal note, and thus obtaining further time for payment, was not a release of the purchaser's right of action for deceit.—Judgment in Gould v. Gillies, 42 N. S. R. 28, 3 E. L. R. 541, affirmed, Gould v. Gillies, 46 S. C. R. 437, 5 E. L. R. 325.

Payment — Disbursements of secretarytreasurer-Oredit in company's books-Sct and Winding-up-Contributory.]—The appellant was secretary-treasurer of the company and the holder of shares upon which 50 per cent, of the value had been paid. On the 6th October, 1905, the balance due upon the shares, $275, was called up by the directors, and was payable on the 10th October. The plaintiff on the 31st December, 1905, entered to his credit in the company's cash-book, for "services rendered." $275, thereby shewing bis shares as having been paid up in full. In fact, the company at that date owed the appellant $271.06, moneys properly disbursed for the company. The appellant acted in good faith. A winding-up order was made on the 31st March, 1906, and it was sought to make the appellant liable as a contributory in respect of the whole balance of $275:—Held, that the disbursements made by the appellant constituted a good payment in fact upon his shares, and the effect was the same as if he had credited the sums from time to time as they were disbursed. It was not necessary to consider the effect of the winding-up order upon the general right of set-off. Re Ottawa Cement Block Co., Macour's Case, 9 O. W., R. 305, 400, 14 O. L. R. 359.

Res judicata.—Representation as applied to res judicata; joint stock company and its shareholders—Petition for and mendamus to order registration of transfer of stock—Shareholders' agreement to not sell their stock— Its effects as regards third partices—Its right arising from contracts with third parties.]-A joint stock company, defendant in a suit of mandamus, to have it forced to register a transfer of some of its stock, purchased by plaintiff, is the representative of its shareholders, and the latters' interest in such suit are identical with its own. It follows that judgment rendered, declaring the mandamus peremptory, is res judicata for the shareholders as for the company. Cross, J., dissent-ing. An agreement between all the shareholders of a joint stock company, whereby their shares were not to be transferred or sold except under certain specified conditions, cannot take the place of a by-law of the company upon the same object, and is without effect towards third parties. The emissary (prete-nom) is an agent for his prin-cipal only. As regards third parties, he is the interested principal and qualified to apply the remedies which arise from the contracts made in his own name.—Cf. Barnard v. Registration - Injunction preventing-Loss of sale-Damages.]-The plaintiff purchased from the defendants 1,000 shares of chased from the defendants 1,000 shares of mining stock, and received from them a cer-tificate for that number of shares, made out in favour of one C_{*} and by him indorsed with a transfer in blank t-Held, that this com-pleted the duty of the defendants as sellers, and it was not increment. and it was not incumbent upon them to see that the plaintiff should become registered as owner of the shares upon the books of the company; but they were under obligation to do nothing to prevent the plaintiff from having the shares registered in his name .-The plaintiff, having contracted to sell the shares at a profit, endeavoured to have himself registered as the owner of 1,000 shares and to obtain two certificates for $500 shares each, which were required by the plaintiff's vendee as a term of his purchase, but was refused registration because of an injunction, obtained by the defendants, restraining the transfer agents of the mining company from registering any transfers of shares standing in the name of C. :-Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to recover from the defendants as damages the difference between the price at which he had contracted to sell the shares and the price which he afterwards obtained when the injunction was dissolved and he was registered as owner of the shares. Resolution of company empowering president to sell-Note given for purchase price-Note and shares placed in bank in escrow pending payment of the note-Allotment.]-The defendant purchased 50 shares of the stock of the plaintiffs, giving his promissory note for $5,000 therefor, payable 10 days after date, signing at the same time an application for the shares. There was some evidence of an arrangement between the defendant and the president of the plaintiffs that the defendant was to be employed as foreman by the plaintiffs, and that, he proved unable to perform the work, the president would take back the shares and refund the money. Apparently there was no formal allotment of the shares by the plaintiffs, beyond a resolution empowering the president to dispose of the shares, but the president placed the shares and the note in escrow in the bank, the shares to be deliv ered up on payment of the note;-Held. affirming the judgment of Hunter, C.J., 13 B. C. R. 318, 7 W. L. R. 422, that upon the signing of the application and the delivery of the note the defendant became the owner of the shares. Anglo-American Lumber Co. v. McLellan, 14 B. C. R. 93, 9 W. L. R. 469.

Subscription - Payment to director-Winding-up-Contributories.] - Certain per-sons assumed to buy shares of a company and received certificates therefor. They signed powers of attorney authorizing an agent of the company "to receive from the vendors a transfer" of shares and to sign an acceptance. No transfers were made, but the powers of attorney were pasted in the transfer book. Several months afterwards a director filled in opposite the names of the appointees transfers of shares as from himself, and procured the agent as their attorney to accept the transfers, for which the agent was paid a commission out of the company's funds: - Held, in winding-up proceedings, that the transfers were invalid and the director was a contributory in respect of the shares which he purported to transfer. The payment of the commission to the agent was bad, and the director was liable to refund Shortly after the incorporation of the it. company, at a meeting of the provisional directors, who were then the only shareholders, a resolution was passed authorising the payment to one of the provisional directors, afterwards a director, of $300 out of capital. for alleged services. It did not appear that any service had been rendered by him. minutes of this meeting were confirmed at a subsequent shareholders' meeting. At the time no profits had been made and nothing paid on account of the stock. No by-law was passed. The payment was subsequently made :--Held, that the director was bound to refund. In re Publishers' Syndicate, Paton's Case, 5 O. L. R. 392, 2 O. W. R. 65.

Transferred by person without anthority-Liability of company to real owner-Rectification of share register-Bouuses and dividenda-Costa.]-John J. S., at time of his death, was owner of 3 shares in Hamilton Jockey Club upon each of which $40 had been paid. These were not then regarded as worth anything, and when probate of his will was applied for by his widow they were not mentioned. After son's death, John S. his father, assumed to sell these shares to C.

The secretary of the club assumed that S. was executor of his son, made the transfer, after it had been approved by the directors. Mrs. S., the executive, said she did not know recover the three shares or the value thereof. —Middleton, J., held, that there was no authorizy wherever in S. to deal with the shares and plaintiff had in no way ratified what he did.—That she was entitled to judgment delaring that she, as executrix of John J. S., was the holder of said shares, and to have the share register of defendants' rectified accordingly.—That she was also entitled to judgment against the defendants for the amount of the bonness and dividends when they were respectively payable, and her costs. 6. Register, Application to have name removed from register of shareholders.]--Plainiff brought action for a declaration that his subscription for 5,000 shares of stock in deleadant mining company was not binding upon him, that he was not a shareholder and for an order compelling dechadants to remove his name from their stock register:---Boyd, C., held (15 O. W. R. 287), that plaintiff signed an agreement to take the shares in the company to be formed and to pay calls thereon. The counterclaim disallowed as the Am. Sceurities Co. was not before the Court, and it might be possible for plaintiff to resist payment of the calls on grounds other than those pleaded on this record. Action dismissed without prejudice to such further action as plaintiff might be advised to take.--Court of Appeal affirmed above judgment. Purve v, Goicganda Queen Mines (1910), 16 O. W. R. 596, 1 O. W. N, 1033.

Registry of shareholders — Power of Court to recitig—Onlario Companies Act, a. 116—Reduction of shares held by consent.]— Applicant moved to have his name removed from the register of shareholders. His name appeared in the letters patent as holder of 100 shares of $10 each. If his name had been removed it would have reduced the number of shareholders below the statutory minimum, —Middleton, J., dismissed the motion with costs.—Divisional Court, by consent, reduced applicant's holdings to one share, Latchford, J., dissenting. Re French & Co. (1910), 17 0. W. R. 1063, 1 O. W. N. 864, 2 O. W. N. 498

9. CONTRACTS.

Action to set aside contract induced by frand — Prescription — Liquidator — Inscription in law. |— An action by the liquidator of an insolvent company to set aside a deed made in frand of creditors must be begun within a year counting from the appointment of the liquidator; if not, it is barred and extinguished and will be rejected on an inscription in law. Hyde v. Ross (1960), 10 Que. P. R. 384.

Cemetery-Rights of owners of lots.]-The petitioner acquired two graves in the cemetery of a company. Subsequently he acquired two other graves. Owners of lots for which they had paid $20 were entitled by law to become shareholders in the cemetery company, and the petitioner had paid more than this amount. But the four graves did not form a complete lot on the plan of the cemetery, there being a fifth grave belonging to another person in the same lot. On a petition for a writ of mandamus to coma petition for a writ of mandamus to com-pel the company to enter his name as a share-holder :--Held, that the price alone did not entitle the petitioner to the privilege of be-coming a shareholder ; the land acquired must form a complete lot. The distinction between a "lot" owner and a "grave" owner, which had a laway hown recommend wince the organic had always been recognised since the organisation of the company, though not set forth in the charter or by-laws, was a reasonable one, and the owner of one or more graves forming only part of a lot, was not entitled to be classed as a shareholder, or to have the graves entered as a lot in the books of the company. Hart v. Mount Royal Cemetery Co., 18 Que. S. C. 515.

Conditional sale-Mortgage bonds and referred stock as price of sale - Non-fulfilment of condition-Action to rescind sale.] -When a projected company is in course of formation to buy up the stocks and take over the business of several existing companies, a sale to the promoters of shares in the stock of one of them, to be paid for by bonds and preferred stock of the new company, such shares to remain in the hands of a third party in trust, until all the shares of the company shall have been so purchased and its real estate conveyed to the new company, when a mortgage deed shall be executed to secure the bonds thereon, is a conditional sale, and, failing the fulfilment of the con-dition, the seller has the right to demand the rescission of the sale. Difficulties in the acquisition of the whole stock and of the real estate of the old company, and the offer of bonds not secured as mentioned in the sale, afford no grounds of defence to the action.—Judgment in Angus v. Dominion Tes-tile Co., 30 Que, S. C. 56, affirmed, Domin-ion Testile Co. v. Angers, 18 Que, K. B. 63. Affirmed, 41 S. C. R. 185, 6 E. L. R. 127.

Loan company-Sale of assets to another company-Ratification by shareholders and assent by Lieutenant-Governor in council-Rights of holder of terminating shares -Substitution of permanent shares-Absence of schedule - Effect of-Creditor or shareholder-Right of withdrawal-Loan Corporations Act.]-The E. loan company, incor-porated under the Loan Corporations Act. R. S. O. 1897 c. 205, were by s. 10 thereof empowered to raise a fund or stock by means shares were in 1901 and 1902 issued by the company to the plaintiff, or had been assigned to him, called "prepaid terminating shares," on each of which he paid $50, and on which he was to receive a semi-annual dividend, not exceeding 6 per cent., out of the profits available therefor, and the balance of the profits after payment of expenses was to be applied on the stock until the maturity value thereof was reached, as stated in the report, the owners of such stock having the right of withdrawal after 3 years by giving 30 days' notice in writing to the company, on the conditions mentioned in the report, The plaintiff was also the holder of dividend-bearing terminating stock certificates fully paid, issued under by-laws of the E. Co., which were by certificates repayable at a date subsequent to the agreement for sale of the assets of the E. Co. In 1903 the Co, entered into an agreement with the E S. Co., incorporated under the same Act, for sale to latter Co. of all its assets, subject to ratification by the shareholders of the respective Cos., which was subsequently procured, the agreement, as required by the Act, being filed with the corporation's registrar, and assented to by Lt.-Gov. in council, and certificate of Atty.-Gen. issued certifying the same, but no schedule of names of shareholders of the E. Co. was attached to agreement, as required by statute. Permanent stock was then issued by the S. Co. in lieu of stock held by shareholders of the E. Co. The plaintiff, on being notified of the meeting of shareholders of the E. Co, wrote protesting against sale, stating that he would withdraw his money from the Co. before the merging took place, and subsequently he again wrote that he positively refused to allow his certificates to be delivered up in exchange for the substituted stock. Two dividend cheques on the new stock were sent and received by plaintiff, one of which he cashed. The plaintiff alleged that the transaction between him and the E. Co. was, in fact, a loan; and he brought an action to have it declared that he was a creditor of the E. Co. and entitled to be repaid the amount so paid by him; and, before commencing the action, he tendered back to the Co, the amount of the cashed dividend cheque together with the unused one :--Held, that, under the circumstances, the sale was valid and binding, and was not affected by the fact that the schedule was not attached to agreement, and that plaintiff was a share-holder in the E. Co. and not a creditor in respect of either class of shares, and was bound by the terms of the agreement of sale. -Judgment of Meredith, J., reversed. Lennon v. Empire Loan and Savings Co. (1906), 12 O. L. R. 560, 8 O. W. R. 162.

Payment for shares — Equivalent for cash—Written contract.]—M. and C. cash agreed to take shares in a joint stock company, paying a portion of the price in cash and receiving receipts for the full amount, the balance to be paid for in future services. The company afterwards failed: — Heid, affirming the judgment of the Court of Appeal, 27 A. R. 308, 20 C. L. T. 300, that, is there was no agreement in writing for the payment of the difference by movely swoth instead of cash, under s. 27 of the Companies Act, M. and C. were liable to pay the balance of the price of the shares to the liquidator of the company. Payment-Transfer of business assets-Debt due partnership - Set-off - Counterclaim-Accord and satisfaction - Liability on subscription for shares- R. S. B. C. c. 44, ss. 50, 51.]-On the formation of a joint stock company to take over a partnership business, each partner received a proportion-ate number of fully paid-up shares, at their par value, in satisfaction of his interest in the partnership assets :--Held, reversing the judgment in 9 B. C. R. 301, Davies, J., dubitante, that the transaction did not amount to payment in cash for shares subscribed by the partners, within the meaning of ss. 50 and 51 of the Companies Act, R. S. B. C. c. 44, and that the debt owing to the shareholders as the price of the partnership business could not be set-off nor counterclaimed by them against their individual liability upon their shares. Fothergill's Case, L. R. 8 Ch. 270, followed. Turner v. Cowan, 24 C. L. T. 115, 34 S. C. R. 160.

President suing for salary -- No bylaw-Resolutions-7 Edw. VII. c. 34, s. 58.] -Plaintiff brought action to recover $525. alleged to be due him for services as presiof defendant company. At trial, Clute, den held, that there had been no compliance with the provisions of the Ontario Com-panies Act, 7 Edw. VII. c. 34, s. 58, and dismissed plaintiff's action. On appeal to the Divisional Court, a further objection was raised to plaintiff's recovery in that there was no by-law nor any contract under seal defining the amount of the plaintiff's remuneration, nothing but a series of resolutions with exception of a general by-law which Clute, J., held to be ultra vires .- Held, that the appeal should be dismissed with costs, Reed Britton, J., dissenting. Beaudry V. (1907), 10 O. W. 622, considered and approved. Mackensie v. Maple Mountain Mining Co. (1909), 14 O. W. R. 1206, 1 O. W. N. 284.

COMPANY.

Promissory note—Authority of secretary —Roard of directors—Resolution. — The secretary of an incorporated company, auhorised by resolution of the board of direction in regard there is no contestation in regard there is no contestation in regard there is no contestarangements with the creditor. Hence, the company cannot set up, in answer to an action for the recovery of the amount of the note, that it was signed without authority. Paquet v, Métabetchouam Pulp Co., 29 Que. 8, C. 535.

Promoters - Scheme of organisation-Managing director - Salary - Adoption by shareholders after incorporation - Ratification.]-A contract between a private person and a joint stock company in process of formation is without effect as regards the company, after its incorporation by the issue of letters patent. Having had no legal existence, it is not capable of ratification. In order that it may take effect, it is necessary that the company acting, after its incorporation, by its board of directors, shall subscribe or bind itself formally in the manner provided by law .--- Therefore, when the promoters of such a company draw up a writing or proposal for the launching of the business, in which it is declared that a certain person will be the managing director, with a specified salary and other advantages, and the shareholders subscribing, have knowledge of this document, and, after the issue of the letters patent and the adoption of by-laws by the provisional directors, a resolution is passed at a general meeting of the shareholders adopting the proposal for incorporating the company, ordering its entry in the books of the company, and the deposit of the original with a notary, such facts do not establish a contract between the person designated as managing director, and the company, in such a way as to give against the com pany a recourse for recovery of arrears of salary. Duquenne v. La Compagnie Générale des Boissons Canadiennes, 31 Que. S. C. 409.

Purchase of assets by individual-Management - Misappropriation.]-An ac-tion in the name of the McAlpine Tobacco Co, on behalf of General McAlpine, the purchaser of the assets of that company, at a time when the company had reached a state when it had become impossible to profitably continue its operations. After some efforts had been made to realise upon the property by tenders it was purchased by McAlpine. The defendant, Consumers' Tobacco Co., was indebted to the McAlpine Tobacco Co. in a large amount.-Teetzel, J., at trial, held, that there was no personal liability against the three defendants for the amount claimed against them and dismissed the action against the individual defendants, but gave judgment against the defendant Consumers' Tobacco Co, for $3,398.04 and costs, On appeal, Divisional Court held, that the three defendants, Fleming, Straith and Pinchin, should account to plaintiff for the money which they wrongfully obtained, and the credits of which they wrongfully received the benefit. Plaintiff's appeal allowed with costs here and below, and the judgment en-tered against the Consumers' Tobacco Co.

varied accordingly. Reference to the Masterin-Ordinary to take accounts. Costs of reference and further directions reserved. Mc-Alpine v. Fleming (1910), 15 O. W. R. 479, 1 O. W. N. 548.

Purchase of assets by individual— Management.] — Defendant, having a con-trolling interest in the Eli Van Allen Co., gave an option to plaintiff Strong on Nov. 30th, 1906, which was taken up and the purchase completed. Defendant acted as manager of the business down to Feb. 7th following, and plaintiffs claim inter alia that defendant while managing the business applied their assets to a considerable amount in paying liabilities of the former company. which plaintiffs were not liable, but which should have been paid by defendant out of his own money; that he drew $5,000 a year when he was entitled to draw $3,000 only, and that he was bound to repay them these differences. At trial Britton, J., gave plaintiff judgment for $2,577.69 with costs, and a declaration that the defendant should pay all the debts of the plaintiff company, existing on 31st August, 1906, which did not appear on the books of the company, as of that date, and all liabilities of said company incurred after 31st August, 1906, and prior to 5th December, 1906, other than ordinary expenses and liabilities of said company for said period. Divisional Court dismissed appeal and cross-appeal with costs, Sir Wm. Meredith, C.J.C.P. (dissenting in part), holding that the judgment should be varied by reducing the amount to which respondents had been found entitled by the sums (specified in his judgment), which in his opinion they were not entitled to recover, and with that variation the appeal should be dismissed without costs. Strong v. Van Allen (1910), 15 O. W. R. 493, 1 O. W. N. 539.

Sale of assets—Distorting shareholder— Injunction.]—The holders of the majority of the shares in the capital stock of a company authorised the selling of the company's property in order to pay debts:—Held, that the sale should not be enjoined at the instance of a dissentient shareholder, Patrick v, Empire Coal and Tranucay Co., 4 E. L. R. 98, 3 N. B. Eq. 571.

Sale of to president—Salary of directors — Injunction to restrain sale rejused.] — Plaintiffs moved for an injunction to restrain defendants, the company, and the directors thereof, from selling out the plant of the company to its president for $650, on the ground that the property was worth much more, and from paying $65 each to the directors for services, on the grounds that such acts were illegal and frauduent:—Held, that the motion should be refused with costs to defendany case that may be made at trial. Kuntz v. Silver Spring Co. (1910), 15 O. W. R. $26

Trading company—Executory contract —Corporate scal—Authority of general manager—Ey-laws)—By letter, signed by their managing director, the defendants, a joint stock trading company, agreed to furnish the plaintiffs malleable iron coupler parts of their manufacture as might be ordered, the letter being subscribed "accepted," by the plaintiffs. No by-law had been passed defining the general powers of the board of directors or the managing director of the defendant company, except as to borrowing for the purpose of the business. The managing director did not consult the board be-fore signing the letter, and there was no formal subsequent approval or disapproval by the board of what had been done. The managing director knew that to carry out the contract a substantial extension of the defendants' plant and premises would be necessary, and the plaintiffs also knew this. But there was no evidence that they knew anything about the defendants' capital or commercial circumstances, or their ability to furnish the additional plant:-Held, affirm-ing the judgment of Falconbridge, C.J.K.B., 7 O. W. R. 436, that, in the absence of bad faith or notice, the plaintiffs were entitled to assume that the managing director was authorised to enter into the agreement, which, when orders were actually given by the plaintiffs, became a binding contract and one to which the board of directors would have had power to bind the company .--- Held, also, that the circumstance that the contract required an increased plant for its full per-formance was not in itself sufficient to render it ultra vires; though it would have been otherwise if such increased plant had been required to carry on a new or different business from that then being carried on by the company. As it was, the supplying such additional plant would fall under the head of "management," and would, therefore, be within the general scope of the directors' authority .-- Held, also, that there was no need of the corporate seal, although the contract was an executory one.-Held, therefore, that the plaintiffs were entitled to recover so far as they had given orders for the couplers under the contract: Meredith, J.A., dissent-ing, so far only. National Malleable Cast-ings Co, v. Smith's Falls Malleable Castings Co., 9 O. W. R. 165, 14 O. L. R. 22.

Transfer of assets — Effect of.] — A transfer of the assets of one joint stock company to another, does not merge the two companies into one. Maple Leaf Rubber Co. v. Brodie, 18 Que, S. C. 352.

10. ACTIONS BY AND AGAINST.

Action against shareholder by judgment creditor-Counterclaim against company struck out by order-Ontario Companies Act, 7 Edw. VII. c. 34, ss. 68, 69-Sheriff returned execution unsatisfied - Con, Rule 251-Action dismissed-Right to bring another action.]-Plaintiff in January, 1909, obtained judgment against the National Mining and Development Co. for $678.08 damages and $22.54 costs, and on obtaining a return of nulla bona from the sheriff who still held the f. fa. in his hands, brought this action against defendant, a shareholder in the company, claiming $500. Defendant filed a defence and counterclaim against the company. Riddell, J., held, that the defendant could not succeed on the counterclaim, but as the fi. fa. has not been returned unsatisfied, action dismissed with costs. The dis-missal not to prevent another action being brought as was done in Barber v. McCuaig, 31 O. R. 593. Counterclaim dismissed with costs as of a motion. Grills v. Farak (1910), 16 O. W. R. 285, 21 O. L. R. 457, 1 O. W. N. 978.

Action by judgment creditor against —Payment of dividend when company insolvent — Preferential payments of defendants' claims against company—Judgment for damages — Companies Ordinances, s. 65. Snow V. Benson (N.W.T.), 2 W. L. R. 350.

Action by liquidators — Sanction of Court-Liability of general manager to account for profits—Trustec—Dominor to account for profits—Trustec—Dominor Winding-up Act, 1906, c. 144, s. 38.]—Action by liquidators against former general manager of company for an account of profits—Held, that, under s. 38 above, an order should have been obtained before action commenced: —Held, further, that defendant, in acquiring certain timber, did not act as trustee for the company. Obtaining same was not within scope of the authorised business of the company, nor was it done secretly. He did not use any of the company's property, nor was the information that to which the company had any right. He did not nequire the property or information by means of his fiduciary position. Action dismissed. Keadal V. Webster, 10 W. L. R. 442.

Action by seaman for wages - Proceedings in Admirally Court-Arrest of vesel-Leave to proceed in Admirally-Irregularity.]--The company which owned the defendant ship was being wound up under the above Act. After winding-up order made but before permanent liquidator appointed, through error a writ of summons in the Admiralty Court was issued without leave of the Supreme Court of British Columbia in which the winding-up proceedings were being taken. The writ was served and the ship seized :--Held, that the plaintiff may proceed with the action. Ice British Columbia Tie and Timber Company; Colan v. The "Ruitler," 10 W. L. R. 370.

Action directed against the chairman of a committee which is not a committee which is not committee which has no corporate existence is not a legal person who may be sued in a court of justice, and an action taken against such committee will be dismissed on exception to the form. Such as the end of the action on the same action in his quality of chairman of the action on exception to the form. Bullwin v. Com., etc., & Prati, 16 R. de J. 228.

Action to compel registration of share certificate—Consideration—Dealingt with agent repudiated by company—Action dismissed.]—Plaintiff brought action for a declaration that he was the holder of 25 fully paid-up shares of the capital stock of defendant company, upon which shares $2.500 had been paid, together with 8025 for prmium, and that defendants should be ordered to register him as a shareholder accordingly. Defendants disputed plaintiff's claim on the ground that plaintiff's alleged rights arose out of his dealings with one Ostrom, no the defendant company—Riddell, 3., held, that that Os in a p plaintif of defe clear t pany h althous that p the con Ostron out co Co. Ieration—Dealingy company—Action upta action for a the holder of 25 which shares $2,500 with $020 for preis should be ordered holder accordingly. tilf's claim on the leged rights arose me Ostrom, not the fell, J., held, that, there was no evidence of anything else, than that Ostrom should in some way put himself in a position to transfer the shares to the plaintift; that while Ostrom was an agent of defendants for some purposes, yet it was clear that he had no power to bind the company by the delivery of the share certificate although signed by first vice-president, and that plaintiff dealt with Ostrom, not with the company, and took at his own peril what Ostrom gave him. Action dismissed without costs. Mackensie v. Monarch Life Ina. Co. (1910), 16 O. W. R. 933, 2 O. W. N.

Appeal — Leave — Order refusing jury trial.]—In winding-up proceedings, leave to appeal is obtainable from a Judge of the Court in regard to "an order or decision," without limitation as to whether it is final or interlocutory. Therefore leave to appeal will be allowed from an order refusing a jury trial in a winding-up proceeding. Tetrault Shoe Co. v. Kent, 10 Que, P. R. 283.

Bonds — Distribution amongst the shareholders—Revendication — Paulian action— C. C. 1032 to 1040.]—Articles 1032 to 1040 C. C., referring to the Paulian action, are not applicable to a case where a company divides amongst its members not only the accumulated profits, but also bonds, without paying its debts. Therefore, an action instituted by the liquidator of the company to revendicate these bonds or the value thereof is not a Paulian action which is barred by statute after one year. Hyde v. Ross (1910), 17 R. L. n. 8, 88.

Collusion of directors - Rights of minority shareholders — Application to set aside judgment—Action.]—At a meeting of directors of the defendant company a resolution was passed that an action brought by the plaintiff, who was president of the company and held a majority of the shares, against the company, should not be defended; that the plaintiff should be allowed to take judgment and that an account rendered to the plaintif by the secretary of the company should be withdrawn and treated as rendered without authority. There was ground for inferring collusion, and a question as to whether the plaintiff was entitled to recover anything in his action against the company :--Held, that the judgment entered against the company was properly set aside, and that the applicant G., the secretary of the company, was properly permitted to defend and plead a counterclaim on behalf of the company. Northwest Transportation Co. v. Beatty, 12 App. Cas. 596, distinguished :-Held, also, as to the remedy in equity, that if the plaintiff's claim was not properly due, and the directors, representing a majority of the shareholders, were acting collusively in allowing judgment to go by default, G. could, on behalf of himself and the others in the minority, maintain set and the others in the minority, maintain an action against the plaintiff and the direc-tors to restrain proceedings on the judgment: -Held, also, that, by virtue of the Judicature Act, R. S. c. 155, s. 18, s. s. 5, G. could have the remedy in the action itself Dimock v. Central Ravedon Mining Co., 36 N. S. Reps. 37 337

Confession of judgment-Signature of manager-Want of authorisation-Invalidity --Motion to strike out.]--A writing sous scing privé signed by the manager and secretary of a company defendant, without a special authorisation of the board of directors, is not sizned by a competent officer, and is not available as a valid confession of judgment, authorising the defendant's attorneys to confess judgment on the company's behalf. A motion by the plaintiff to reject this paper from the record will be granted. Bessette v, Equitable Mutual Fire Ins. Co., 10 Que. P. R. 200.

Contract under seal-Company to transfer shares to screant-Conditional gift or bonus--Evidence-Construction of contract-Rectification, |-Plaintiff brought action for a declaration that he was the beneficial owner of 25 shares of the capital stock of defendant company, under an agreement of service between the company and plaintiff of Oct. 6, 1904, which provided that five shares should be transferred to him annually as a reward for faithful services. - On Feb. 21, 1910, plaintiff was discharged from the service of defendant company, and at that time 25 shares of such capital stock were outstanding in name of defendant Moodie as trustee for plaintiff. Plaintiff claimed and defendants denied that the plaintiff was entitled to the beneficial ownership of these shares .- Court of Appeal, held, that reading the contract as a whole, the proper construction was that plaintiff was entitled only while he was in the employment of the company. Action and appeal dismissed with costs and defendants' counterclaim for rectification of the contract allowed. Gee v. Eagle Knitting Co. (1911), 18 O. W. R. 438, 2 O. W. N. 619.

Deposit of certificates - Bailment -Trust—Detention.]—The plaintiff loan com-pany became the holder of 525 shares in the capital stock of a coal company, and of 50 shares in a steel company, and deposited the certificates for the shares with the defendant trust company for safe-keeping. The defendant trust company executed and delivered to the plaintiff loan company a document under seal by which they hold in their safe de-posit vaults to the order of the loan company any dividends received in respect thereof, and guaranteed to the loan company that the certificates would be kept safely in deposit vaults and delivered upon demand under proper authority. The document also provided for the remuneration of the trust company. The certificates were put into the name of the trust company. It appeared that 375 of the shares had been acquired by the plaintiff loan company under an agreement with the Atlas Loan Co., who had an interest in the prospective profits to be derived from the sale of the shares. While the certificates were in possession of the defendant trust company both loan companies were ordered to be wound up under the Dominion Act, and the defendant trust company were appointed liquidators of the Atlas Loan Co., and the plaintiff trust company liquidators of the plaintiff loan company. After the commencement of the liquidations, the plaintiff trust company, as liquidators, demanded the certificates from the defendant trust company, but the latter refused to deliver them up, and this action was brought for damages for the detention :--Held, that the defendant trust company were merely bailees and not trustees; but, if they were to be regarded as trustees, the failure to hand over the certificates was not such a breach of trust but for which they ought fairly to be excused under 62 V. (2) c. 15, s. 1 (O.); owing to their dual character, they did not act with singleness of purpose, and therefore acted honestly and reasonably; and the direction of the Master in Ordinary, to whom was referred the winding-up of the Atias Loan Co., that the whole 575 shares should be retained by the defendant trust company as liquidators, was made without jurisdiction and did not protect them as trustees. 2. The plaintiffs were entilled to damages for the detention (delivery having been made pending the action), based on estimates of what had been lost by the detention; and the measure of damages was the highest price of the shares represented by the certificates between the demand and the delivery. Elgin Loan and Savings Co, v. National Trust Co., 24 C. L. T. 55, 2 O. W. R. 1159, 7 O. L. R. 1, affirmed in 5 O. W. R. 468, 10 O. L. R. 41.

The defendants received liable. Milne v. Ontario Marble Quarries Limited, 13 O. W. R. 1137.

Goods sold and delivered-Principal and agent.]-Plaintiff, a merchant, carrying on business at St. Ignace, in the District of Kenora, sued defendants, an incorporated company, on an account for goods alleged to have been supplied by him to defendants Nov., 1907, and Jan. and March, 1908, amounting to $555.23. These goods were ordered through one Steele, formerly defendants' manager, but defendants had appointed one McKewan manager in his place in the fall of 1905, and he continued as such down to August, 1907. In August, 1907, the com-pany gave Steele a written option upon its mining property, and directed its employees to turn the same over to him, putting up a notice at the mine that they would not be responsible for any debts incurred in operating same :--Held, that plaintiff must look to Steele, against whom he made out the ac-count, rather than the defendant company. Judgment for defendants, with costs, David-son v. St. Anthony Gold Mining Co. (1910), 15 O. W. R. 446, 1 O. W. N. 525.

Guarantee by compius signed by president-Chaitel mortgage, etc. [-A company sold a branch of their business taking a chaitel mortgage for $5,066.74 as security. By mistake the affidavii of bona fides stated that the mortgage was justly indebted to the company in the sum of $5,000:--Hold, that the mortgage was a valid security for $5,000. Mader v. McKinnon (1822), 21 S. C. R. at p. 652, followed; Midland Loan v. Concienon (1831), 20 O. R. 555, distinguished.

In order that the mortgagor might obtain an advance that the mortgagor might obtain an advance from a bank, the president of the company signed a guarantee in this form, "A. E. The company did not notify the debtors of the assignment of the debts as required by the Judicature Act, s. 58 (5). The mortgagor later assigned the book debts to the bank as collateral security for the advance :--Held, that the bank had taken their assignment without notice of the company's claim and having collected the debts were entitled to retain the proceeds. The mortgagor also gave the bank a document purporting to be a further security, under s. 88 of the Bank Act, covering 220 cases of matches, and the bank took posses-sion of the matches; -Held, that as the matches were covered by the chattel mortgage it was not necessary to consider whether the document claimed by the bank was of any value in view of s. 90 of that Act. Judgment given bank against the company for the amount of the guarantee. Judgment given the company against the bank for conversion of the matches, the bank to have the right to retain the matches on payment to the com-pany the amount of their mortgage. Referpany the amount of their morigage. Refer-ence to the Master in Ordinary to take ac-counts. Costs and further directions to be dealt with after the Master's report. Thomas Ltd. v. Injunction—Action to restrain council from acting as such.] — Interim injunction was applied for by members of lodges to restrain defendants, the Grand Council, from acting as such, it being alleged that certain officials appointed to office in that Council were ineligible, and that various lodges were improperly represented. Middleton. J., held, on appeal, that the statute requires the sanction of the shareholders at a general meeting to a by-law of the directors before payment of the president or any director is permitted, and the statute had not been complied with neither in substance nor form, and the president was liable to return the amount so received. MacKenzie v. Maple Mountain, 15 O. W. R. 728, distinguished. Re Queen City Plate Glass Co. Exastmurés Case (1910), 16 O. W. R. 336, 1 O. W. N. Set.

President suing for salary-By-law-Resolutions-7 Edw. VII. c. 34, s. 88.]--Plaintiff brought action to recover $525, alleged to be due him for services as president of defendant company. At trial Clute, J., held, that there had been no compliance with the provisions of the Ontario Companies Act, 7 Edw. VII. c. 34, s. 88, and dismissed plain-tiff's action. On appeal to Divisional Court, a further objection was raised to plaintiff's recovery in that there was no by-law nor any contract under seal defining the amount of plaintiff's remuneration, nothing but a series of resolutions with exception of a general bylaw which Clute, J., held to be ultra vires. Divisional Court dismissed the appeal with costs, Britton, J., dissenting. Court of Appeal reversed above judgments, finding that a by-law was passed by the company's board of directors providing that the president, among other officers, should receive such remuneration as might by resolution of the board be determined and that by-law had been confirmed by a general meeting of the shareholders, and also a resolution to fix the president's salary at $100 per month :--Held, that there was a literal as well as a substantial compliance with the enactment, and with the terms of the by-law also; that there was no necessity that each contract for such payment necessity that each contract for such payment should be confirmed by the shareholders. W. R. bonds. 1062), held, that the action against the defendants personally should be dismissed; that a reference should be had to ascertain the damages plaintiffs were entitled to recover from the railway company for non-delivery of the stock and bonds.-Local Master made a report and defendants appealed .- Meredith. C.J.C.P. held, that defendants deliberately broke their contract to give plaintiffs the bonds and stock, and had put it out of their power so to do; that defendants' contention that they were entitled to go scott free because the bonds and stock were of no value, could not be entertained; that if such were the case, there should be no objection on the part of the holders of the stock, who now control the company, to transferring to the plaintiffs, out of their holdings, 720 shares, which the plaintiffs had offered to accept; that the Master had placed too high a value on the stocks and bonds, and a fair value on 19th October, 1905, would be 20 cents on the dollar for the stock and 45 cents on the dollar for the bonds. Master's report varied dollar for the bonds. Master's report varied so as to agree with above valuation.—No costs e⁴ nppeal to either party.—Goodall v. Clarke (1910), 16 O. W. R. 820, 21 O. L. Settlement of-Issue of share-Certificate-New action to compel registration of certificate - Consideration - Dealings with agent repudiated by company - Action and appeal dismissed.]-Plaintiff brought action for a declaration that he was the holder of 2" fully paid-up shares of the capital stock defendant company, upon which shares $2,500 had been paid, together with $625 for premium, and that defendants should be ordered to register him as a shareholder accordingly. and to issue five certificates for five shares each in place of the certificate held by plaintiff. Plaintiff alleged that such shares were issued to him in consideration of the settlement of an action brought by him against defendants, in which he claimed to be entitled to a large sum of money. Defendants di-puted plaintiff's claim on the ground that plaintiff's alleged rights arose out of his dealings with one Ostrom, not with the defendant company.-Riddell, J., held, (16 0 W. R. 933, 2 O. Boyd, C, held that the plaintiff's claim did not fall within the terms of the engagement. Action dismissed as against the company without costs. Staunton V. Kerr (1909), 1 O. W. N. 244.

Specific performance.]—Action to compel defendant to assign a trade mark to company as he had covenanted so to do when company purchased his business. Judgment for company with costs. Tilley v. De Forest (N. B. 1910), 9 E. L. R. 28.

Stay of action against company.]-Actions against a joint stock company are necessarily stayed by a winding-up order and any application in reference thereto should be made to the Official Referee. Duke v. Uirey (1909), 14 O. W. R. 932, 1 O. W. N. 151.

Summary conviction - Supp'ying electricity - Registration - Certificate-Penalty-Time for prosecution-Imprisonment-Distress.]-The defendants, who were a body corporate, were summarily convicted under 57 & 58 V. c. 39, s. 35, before two justices of the peace, for supplying electricity to purchasers from the 1st August, 1897, to the 27th October, 1897, without having first obtained from the Department of Inland Revenue or from an officer appointed for the purpose, a certificate of registration. aformation was laid on the 27th October, 1897. The conviction awarded distress but 1897. not imprisonment. See ss. 34, 35 (2), 37 (c).—On the 1st August, 1895, the following regulation was established : every failure to procure a certificate of registration, as required by s. 35, and the pay-ment of the fee established therefor, within thirty days after the first day of July in each year, the contractor shall incur a penalty not exceeding $100 and not less than $50:"-Held, that the regulation of the Governor in Council imposing a penalty for failing to take out a certificate was authorized by s. 37 () of the Act.-2. That the prosecution was commenced in time-there being no reasonable ground for saying that the offence was committed on the 1st July, 1897, and not afterwards. A new offence was committed each day that electricity was supplied without the certificate having been taken out.-3. That the conviction was bad for not awarding imprisonment for want of sufficient distress.-4. That a corporation cannot be convicted summarily. The word " person" in the Summary Convictions Act cannot be held to include a corporation or body corporate, notwithstanding the Interpreta-tion Act, c. 1, s. 7, s. s. 22. Ex p. Wood-stock Electric Light Co., 34 N. B. Reps. 460.

Trespass — Parol denise by, void,]—A corporation denised by parol, for one year, land to F. Defendants entered and turned F. out and retained possession, and the corporation brought an action of trespass against them in its own name, and was non-suited on the ground that F, being tenant in possession the action should have been brought in his name:—Held, on motion to set aside the non-suit, that as a cyporation could only demise under seal the parol demise to F, was void, and the corporation was properly made plaintiff. St. Andrew's College v. Griffs (1852), 1 P. E. I. R. 80.

Unsatisfied excention—Action against directors — Alberta Companies' Ordinance, paty clerk of Court—Proof of return nulla bona.]—Plaintiff, who had judgment against a company, and an execution returned nulla bona, now sued two directors under s. 54 Alberta Companies' Ordinance, 1905. As a miner he was paid by the car:—Held, he was a "labourer" within above section, and that the directors were liable. Plinitiff may sue two directors where there are more if he wishes. An execution signed "H. C. Decton for clerk of Court" is good. While no actual return in this case was made by the sheriff, yet the evidence was sufficient to shew that nothing had been realized under this execution. Crew v, Dallas, 9 W. L. R. 598.

Use of name of plaintiff—Application to stay actions—Meeting of shareholders— Special circumstances. Saskatcheven Land and Homentead Co. v. Leadley, 2 O. W. R. 745, 850, 917, 944, 1075, 1112, 3 O. W. Wages—Liability of director—" Labourer or servant" — Foreman of works.] — The plaintiff, who did manual labour in the works of an insolvent company, but was a superior labourer exercising some supervision over others, was held to be a "labourer or servant" within the meaning of 2 Edw. VII. c. 15, s. 71 (O.), and entitled to succeed in an action against a director of the company to recover the amount of the plaintiff's unpaid judgment against the company for wages. Turner v, Fee. 24 C. L. T. 402. Wages as mineralogist—Appointed by directors—Ontario Companies Act (1907), s. 88.]—Plaintiff brought action to recover $2,500 for personal services as a mineralogist. Defendants denied any knowledge of any contract of hiring or of services rendered and moved for particulars of statement of claim before pleading.—Master in Chambers held (16 O. W. R. 947, 2 O. W. N. 46), that they were entitled to particulars as to the contract of hiring, but that particulars as to services rendered could be had on examination for discovery.—The case came on for trial before Sutherland, J., who held, that at a meeting of directors, 7th Jan., 1909, plaintiff was appointed mineralogist at the head office of defendant company at a salary of $2,500 per year and travelling expenses. Judgment for plaintiff without interest and with costs. MarHett V. Bartlett Mines (1911), 18. O. W. R. 845, 2 O. W. N. 919.

Writ of injunction-Its object-Company, administration of its capital-Exercise of its rights-C. C. P. 957.]-The writ of in-junction is not intended for the past; its object is to prevent the commission of an act, and not to obtain the compensation to which a person may have a right .-- All the moneys received by a company form part of its treasury funds and should be used for the general purposes of the company; no shareholder of the company can demand that the funds of the company, according to whence they are derived, should be put aside and used for the purposes of a certain number of its obligations or contracts .- No shareholder of a company can obtain the issue of an injunction to prevent the company from doing what its charter and its by-laws under the charter authorise it to do. Prefontaine v. Society of Arts of Canada, 11 Que. P. R. 109

11. FOREIGN COMPANIES.

Authority to representatives—Directors — Advocates.]—The authority which a foreign company gives to its advocates or to its representatives ought to be the act of the company itself, or of its directors sitting as a bond of direction and acting for the company, and not that of a majority of the directors acting individually.—2. An authority given by an insurance company to one of its servants, authorising him to inspect the agencies and to sue, does not authorise him to give advocates the authority required by Art, 177, C. P. Kavanagh V. Norteck Union Fire Ins. Co., 4 Que P. R. 229.

Authorisation to advocates—Power of attorney—Form—Date.] — A foreign company may give a general power of attorney to their advocates for all the causes in which they are or may be concerned.—2. A power of attorney signed in the name of such foreign company by the presidents and the secretary before a notary in England, and sealed with the seal of the company, is valid until proof to the contrary, and there is no need to annex to it a resolution of the board of directors of the company authorising the officers to sign and seal such power of attorney.—3. The power of attorney may be subsequer' in date to the institution of the action. Great Northern Rue Co. of Canada V, Furness, Withy & Co., 6 Que, P. R. 404.

Disability to carry on business with ont license - Summary application to set aside writ of summons - Contract made in whole or in part in New Brunswick-Rest. dent agents.]-A writ of summons issued by an unlicensed extra-provincial corporation as the commencement of an action on a contract made in part within New Brunswick contrary to ss. 12 and 18 of the Act " respect ing the imposition of certain taxes on certain incorporated companies and associations. S. N. B. 1903 c. 18, may be set aside on summary application: Per McLeod. J. and Tuck, C.J.; Landry, J., doubting, and Han-ington, J., dissenting.—The plaintilfs, an unlicensed extra-provincial corporation, sold absolutely to the defendants, a corporation within New Brunswick, at Bloomfield, in the State of New Jersey, two car-loads of empire cream separators, to be delivered f. at Sussex and St. John, to be paid for by promissory notes to be given on delivery ; de fendants to have the exclusive right of sale in certain named counties, and undertaking not to sell or handle any other separators in said counties. The defendants advertised in New Brunswick as the sole agents of the separators, with the consent and at the exseparators, with the consent and at the ei-pense of the plaintiffs :--Held, per McLeed, J., and Tuck, C.J., Landry, J., doubting, and Hamington, J., dissenting, that the defend ant: were the resident agents of the plaintiffs in New Brunswick, and the sale was a contract made in part within the province, within the meaning of ss. 12 and 18 of the Act. and no action could be maintained on the notes. Empire Cream Separator Co. v. Maritime Dairy Co., 38 N. B. R. 309, 4 E. L. R. 191

Extra-provincial corporations which have not taken out a license under s. 6, 65 V. c. 24 (Ont.), are forbidden by the legilature to sell their goods in the province, and s. 14 provides that so long as such extraprovincial corporation remains unlicensed it cannot maintain any action in any Court in Ontario. Bessemer Gas Engine Co. v. Milt, 4 O, W. R. 325, 25 C. L. T. 12, 8 O. L. R. 647.

Failure to comply with statute -lontract — Illegality — Ponalty.]—The plane iffls, a company incorporated under the laws of Illinois, and having their head offlee in Chicago in that State, songit to recover damages against the defendant for breach of a contract made at Halifax, Nova Sotia— By R. S. N. S. 1000 c. 127, s. 18, it is provided that every company not incorporated in the province, shall appoint a resident manager or agent, and that such company, before beginning business in the province, shall transmit to the Provincial Secretary a statement under oath giving certain particulars, including the situation of the head offloe, the samount of capital stock authorised, subscribed, and paid up, etc., and every company failing to comply with the provisions of the statute is made liable to a penalty of $10 per day during the continuance of such default:—Heid, that non-compliance with the provisions of the statute did not render invalid contracts entered into by the compary from recovering thereon. American Hotel Supply Co. v. Fairbaneks, 2 E. Judgment against foreign company — Execution—Opposition—Foreign receiver-Losus standi.]—A receiver appointed by an order of the High Court of Justice in England to an insolvent company incorporated in that country, but owning real estate in Quebec, has no status or quality in which he can make an opposition to a seizure of such real estate in execution of a judgment rendered and Canadian Lead Co., 31 Que, S. C. 280.

Juriadiction of Supreme Court of Canada.] — A company was incorporated under the laws of West Virginia, with head office in New York, the main undertaking being to carry on business in Quebec, which it did. About four or five years after it ceased to do business in Quebec, a windingup petition under the Dominion Winding-up Act, was presented to the Superior Court of Quebec:—Held, that the Superior Court had jurisdiction, and the petition could be presented. Scott Y, Hyde, 5 E, L. R. 573.

Non-registration - " Carrying on business "-Companies Act, s. 123-Principal and agent-Contract of agency-Illegality.]-The general rule that persons who enter into dealings forbidden by law must not expect any assistance from the law, is not applicable so as to exonerate an agent from accounting to his principal by reason of past unlawful acts or intentions of the principal colla-teral to the agency. If the money is paid to him in respect of an illegal transaction, he is bound to pay it over, provided that the contract of agency is not itself illegal.—The making of the contract of agency in this case was not a "carrying on business" by an unlicensed extra-provincial company within the meaning of s. 123 of the Companies Act. -Decision of Hunter, C.J., 6 W. L. R. 50. 13 B. C. R. 74, upheld on different grounds. De Laval Separator Co. v. Walworth, 7 W. L. R. 395, 13 P. C. R. 295.

Non-registration — "Carrying on business "-Companies Act, s. 123-Prohibitive evactment-Effect on contract.]--An unlicensed extra-provincial company, carrying on business within the province, sued for a balance due on a contract to deliver building stone, entered into within the province. The defence advanced was that, by reason of s. 123 of the Companies Act, the contract was illegal and void:--Held, on appeal, that, as the act to be done in pursuance of the contract was prohibited by statute, the contract was therefore unenforceable. De Laval Separator Co., w Walworth, 13 B. C. R. 74, 6 W. L. R. 50, overruled, North-Western Construction Co. v, Voung, 7 W. L. R. 397, 13 B. C. R. 297.

Powers of president—Power of attorney.]—The president of an incorporated company may institute and prosecute suits for the corporation, and appoint attorneys ad litem therefor, without express delegation of power or a resolution of the board of directors, and a power of attorney signed by the president of a foreign company, under its seal, is sufficient in law. Standard Trust Co. v. South Shore Rw. Co., 5 Que. P. R. 257.

Provincial corporation — Contract by and between companies—Powers of companies —Making contract beyond limits of Ontario —Seai—Powers of executive committee delegated by directors—License to do business in Ontario—63 V, c. 24—Damages for breach of contract. Kerlin Bros. Co, v. Ontario Pipe Line Co., 11 O. W. E. 797.

Right to bring action.] — A foreign company, though of the class described as "estra-provincial corporations" in the Act, 4 Edw, VII. c. 34, that has not been granted a license to do basiness therein mentioned, is not debarroi, from exercising its rights and applying for redress of its wrongs under the law. The consequence of its failure to comply with the provisions of the statute is confined to the incurring of the penalty therein prescribed. Standard Sanitary Mfg. Co. y, Standard Ideal Co., 37 Que. S. C. 33.

Right of action—Business of company —safe of stock—forcing Companies Ordinance,1—The sale, in Saskatchewan, of the capital stock of a foreign commany not registered in Saskatchewan, is not a transaction in the course of or in connection with the business of the company; and such a company may, therefore, maintain an action in Saskatchewan to recover the price of the stock sold, notwithstanding the provisions of the Foreign Companies Ordinance. Cumdian Co-operative Co., v. Trauniczek, S W. L. R. 550, J Sask, L. R. 143.

Right of action — Want of license — Pleading — Exception to form.]—The fact that a foreign corporation brings an action without having first obtained from the proper authority a license to do business in the province of Quebec must be pleaded by exception to the form, and not by a plea to the merits. Celluloid Industrial Society v. Harbe, 10 Que, P. R. S7.

Shareholders-Enforcement of rights -Jurisdiction-Plain of out of the Province -Inspection of bas's-Proof of foreign stat--Rules of construction - Protection of public. |-- A shareholder in a company incorporated under the laws of a foreign state, but having its principal place of business, offices and works in Nova Scotia, may maintain an action in this province to enforce the performance of duties imposed upon the company in relation to its shareholders. The non-residence of the shareholder is no bar to such action. There is no distinction between a foreign and a domestic corpora-tion in respect to the relief asked in such case, and, notwithstanding the rule not to interfere in matters of internal management, the Court has power to compel the inspection of books in proper cases. Proof of a foreign statute by admission is as effective as proof by an expert in have verba. In the absence of proof to the contrary, it will be assumed that the rules of construction in the foreign state are the same as in this province. There being no individual right of action to enforce compliance with the provisions of statutes of this province intended for the protection of the public, the decree appended from was varied to this extent. Merritt v. Copper Crown Co., 36 N. S. Reps. 383, 22 C. L. T. 239.

12. WINDING UP.

Action against company — Leave of Court.1—An action brought against a company in course of winding-up, without the permission of a Judge, will be dismissed upon exception to the form. Soucy v. Electric Printing Co., 5 Q. P. R. 105.

Action against company — Leave of Court.]—An action brought against a bank in liquidation, without the previous authorisation of the Court, will be dismissed upon exception to the form. Marcotte v. Turcot, 4 Que, P. R. 342.

Action against company — Leave of Court.] — The authorisation of the Court must be obtained before suing a company in liquidation. Barter v. International Steel Co. of Canada, 9 Que. P. R. 205.

Action against company — Leute — Liquidator— Hird party — Worranty,]—A suit based upon a lease made to a company before winding-up order, and afterwards transferred, without authorisation, by the liquidator, must be instituted against the company, and not against the liquidator. Kent v, Les Saurs de la Providence, 72 L. J. P. C. 62, followed.—2. In such a case the liquidator cannot bring in en garantie, in his own name, a third person whom he alleges to be responsible. Stevenson v. McPhail, 9 Que. P. R. 199.

Action against company - Rights of shareholders-Contestation in winding-up Litispendence—Fraud and negligence of offi-cers—Validity of warehouse receipts—Princi-pal and agent—Liability of both.]-By bylaw of a cold storage company, the president vice-president and scorage company, the president, power to sign all negotiable instrupower to sign all negotiable instru-ments. One of the officers of the com-pany, thus expressly authorised, signed and issued fraudulently a number of warehouse receipts previously signed by the other officer of the company, who had to be a party to them. There were no goods in storage to represent these receipts :- Held, that a shareholder of a company, from the day in which it is put in liquidation, must be considered a creditor, on a contestation of a claim made against the company, and he is entitled to demand, by direct action, what he might have demanded on a contestation of a claim against the company. 2. Litispendence cannot be pleaded, to such direct action, on the ground that a contestation of the claim has been filed in the hands of the liquidator. where the contestation was filed subsequent to the institution of the direct action. 3. Whenever the very act of the agent is authorised by the terms of the power, that is to say, whenever, by comparing the act dome by the agreent with the terms or the power intrusted to him, the act is in itself warranted by the terms used, such act is binding on the principal as to all persons dealing in good faith with the agent. The apparent authority is the real one. Consequently, warehouse rceipts of a cold storage company, signed frandulently by one and negligently by another of the company's officers expressly autorised to sign such receipts, are valid as between the company and third persons aging in good faith. 4. The liability of the company being that resulting from an offener, the fact that other persons may be resonaible does not diminish the liability of the company, which is jointly and severally liable with the others responsible for such office. Ward v, Montreal Cold Storage Co., 26 Que. S. C. 310.

Action against by creditor-Author-ised by official referee-Discretion of O. R-Leave to appeal to Court of Appeal-Granted -Grave doubts-Dominion Winding-up Act. 88, 22, 110, 133.]-Sutherland, J., held, that Official Referee under the Dominion Winding-up Act had power, under that Act and also delegated to him by the Court, to make an order granting a creditor leave to bring an action against the liquidators of an insolvent company being wound up.--That the issues raised in the objections to plaintiff's claim were of such a special and important character as to warrant the O.R. in authorising an independent action.-Teet-zel, J., held, that there were grave doubts whether an action lies against a liquidator in the absence of fraud, mala fides or personal misconduct, and granted leave to appeal to the Court of Appeal. Re Raven Lake Portland Cement Co., National Trust Co. v. Trusts & Guarantee Co. (1911), 18 O. W. R. 519, 2 O. W. N. 761, 830.

Action against company in liquidation-Leave of Court-Action begun subout-Dismissal. |--A company in liquidation continues to have a legal existence, and la order to exercise against it rights anterior to the liquidation, the action must be brought against the company itself, and not acainst the liquidator.--By virtue of the Winding-up Act, no action may be begun against a company in liquidation without permission of the Court first obtained; and an action begun without such permission will be dismissed. Leonard v, Oucens (1906), 8 Que, P. R. 3.

Action begun before winding-up order — Leave to proceed—Special circumstances. Titterington v. Distributors Co. (1906), 8 O. W. R. 328.

Action by liquidator — Dismissal — Leave to appeal.] — The liquidator of a company in liquidation, whose action has been dismissed, may with the leave of a Judge, appeal from that judgment to the Court of Review. Montreal Coal and Toreing Co. v. Standard Life Assurance Co., 6 Que, P. R. 243.

Action by liquidator — Motion for leave—Notice to proposed defendant.)—A petition whereby the liquidator of a company asks to be allowed to sue one of the debtor, thereof, need not be served upon the debtor. 7

Action by liquidator-To recover for breach of contract-For sale of goods - In-solvent company in default of payment for previous deliveries.]-Divisional Court held (Riddell, J., dissenting), that the liquidators of an insolvent company having goods bought on credit with instalments unpaid for, have no right to demand future deliveries without paying for them in cash on delivery and also paying the price of the former deliver-ies notwithstanding the fact that the con-tract contained that "each monthly delivery is to be treated as a separate contract. independent of deliveries of other months." -Ex p. Chalmers (1873), L. R. 8 Ch. App. 289, followed.-Judgment of Britton, J., 16 0, W. R. (2)4, 1 O. W. N. 1075, affirmed. Hamilton v. Hamilton Steel Co. (1911), 18 O. W. R. 739, 2 O. W. N. 779, O. L. R.

Action by liquidator-Want of authorisation-Pleading.]-The fact that the liquidator of a company has not been regularly authorised to institute an action, must be pleaded by an exception to the form, and not by a plea to the merits. Engineering Contract Co. v. Midland Rw. Co., 8 Que. P. R. 293.

Action by liquidator in his own name without leave—General authority to take proceedings. Stavert v. Lovett (1906), 1 E. L. R. 233.

Action for calls-Counterclaim for rescission-Leave to proceed refused-Leave to appeal.]-Previous to an order for the winding-up of the company under the Dominion Winding-up Act, an action had been brought by the company against a shareholder for un-paid calls, and the shareholder had delivered a defence and counterclaim praying that his application for shares should be cancelled on the ground of misrepresentation and of false and fraudulent statements in the prospectus: -Held, that the shareholder could have in the winding-up proceedings all the relief that be claimed by his defence and counterclaim; and his application for leave to proceed in the action notwithstanding the winding-up order, was refused, but leave to apply again was reserved. Dictum of Strong, C.J., in In re Hess Manufacturing Co., 23 S. C. R. 644, at pp. 665-6, explained. Leave to appeal from the order of a Judge in Court affirming the dismissal by the referee of the application for leave to proceed, was refused. In re Paken-ham Pork Packing Co., 24 C. L. T. 18, 6 O. L. R. 582, 2 O. W. R. 951, 983, 4 O. W. R.

Action to set aside subscription for shares - Continuation after order.] - If, before a winding-up order, under R. S. C. c. 129, is made, a suit is brought against a company by a shareholder to have his subscription set aside for fraud, he will be authorised on motion to continue his proceedings after the order has been obtained. Johnston v. Ewart Co., 31 Que, S. C. 336,

Action to set aside subscription for shares - Misrepresentation-Power to purchase shares in other companies. |--Plaintiffs sought to set aside their subscriptions for unpaid stock in the Distributors Co., Ltd., on the ground of misrepresentation by the company and defendant Carpenter, against whom they sought damages. The defendant Barber counterclaimed to have both plaintiffs declared liable to be placed on the list of contributories of the company which was being wound up. Plaintiff Foley set up the defence to the counterclaim that his company could not purchase shares in any other company in the absence of a by-law expressly authorising it, and relied upon R. S. M. 1902, c. 30, s. 68:--Held, upon the evidence that the plaintiffs had failed to prove any misrepresentations against the company or defendant Carpenter .- Held, also, that as the Foley Company were given the special power to purchase shares in other companies in their letters patent of incorporation, their vicepresident and manager had acted within his wide general powers of management and his company was bound by his act. Royal Bank v. Turquand (1856), 6 E. & B. 327, followed. Both plaintiffs were placed on the list of contributories, Foley for $7,500, and Montreuil for $1,500, with costs of the counterclaims to be paid by plaintiffs. Foley v. Barber and Montreuil v. Barber (1909), 14 O. W. R. 669, 1 O. W. N. 40.

Court of Appeal affirmed above judgment of Magee, J. Foley V. Barber (1910), 16 O. V. R. 607, 1 O. W. N. 1029.

Agreement between liquidator and claimant—Creditors — Setting aside—Mala fides—Meetings of creditors.]—An arrangement entered into between the liquidator of a company in liquidation and a claimant under s. 61 of R. S. C. c. 129, and authorised by the Court, is binding on the creditors of the company, and others interested; it can only be attacked on the ground of mala fides. The purpose of 62 & 63 V. c. 43, which permits meetings of and consultations of creditors in certain cases, is not to repeal or modify s. 61, but to amplify it. Ward v. Mullin, 14 Que, K. B. 49.

Agreement with company after subscription for shares - Payment othervise than in cash — Manitoba Joint Stock Companies Act, ss. 46, 51, 61—Set-off of debts in winding-up.]—1. After a person has subscribed in the ordinary manner for shares in a company incorporated by letters patent under the Manitoba Joint Stock Companies Act, R. S. M. 1902 c. 30, and they have been allotted to him, it is not competent for the company to release him from his liability to pay for the shares in cash, by entering into an agreement, even under seal, to issue to him fully paid and non-assessable shares in consideration of his covenants to do something in the future.--When such an agreement included, with such covenants, a transfer of assets of doubtful value, but the circumstances surrounding the agreement were such as to make it a fraud upon the company, it was held void, and it was ordered that the subscribers for the shares should be settled upon the list of contributories in the winding-up of the company for the full amount of their shares .-- Elkington's Case, L. C. 1996.1—Held, that a company may be insolvent where none of the conditions in section 3 above exist, that is if the first condition set out in sub-sec. (a) is to be restricted to the meaning given to it in sec. 4. The present company is found to be insolvent as it cannot meet claims against it as they mature. To determine the question of insolvency it must be assumed that the judgment now outstanding will be sustained, although in appeal, when beyond question it will not have sufficient assets to meet its linabilities. On 4th May, J.'s application was accepted by board of directors, and ten shares allotted to him, and notice thereof sent him on 16th May. On the 9th May, J, received a letter from the canvasser to the effect that before getting his letter of withdrawal, the application had been sent in to the head office and J.'s notes had been discounted :- Held, that the canvasser had no authority to receive a notice of withdrawal, and as J. had not brought home to the company knowledge of the receipt of his letter of withdrawal before allotment or at any time, he was entered on the list of contributories. R. applied for fifty shares which were allotted to him, and accepted by his agent. The certificate sent to him was raturned by him for correction. The evidence shewed that, down to a certain date, the directors were misled by their cashier, in whom they had the fullest confidence, but that, after the date referred to, when they became aware that they had been deceived by the cashier, and that he had disobeyed instructions and that the resources of the bank were' seriously involved, they still continued him in his former polition without change: - Held, that the directors, in accepting that position, im-pliedly undertook that they had reasonable skill and ordinary ability for the discharge of the business in which they engaged, but that, in order to hold them accountable for the acts of their officer, gross negligence must be shewn, such negligence being a question of fact to be determined upon the evidence, and that the findings of the trial Judge in relation thereto, founded more or less upon conflict of fact and inferences from the evidence, should not be disturbed .- Held, also, that the directors were not obliged to examine the books of the bank, but that, they became aware of anything reasonably suggesting the need of enquiry, it was their duty to seek for full information and explanation .- Held, also, that, in retaining the cashier in office, after they became aware of his conduct and the manner in which he had involved the resources of the bank, they were guilty of indefensible misconduct, and were personally responsible for all losses sustained as the result of his subsequent acts .-Held, also, that the payment of a dividend. after the directors became aware that the bank was wrecked, and that it could not reasonably hope to continue business, was ultra vires, and that they were personally fiable in relation thereto. Per Russell, J. (concurring), that in view of the evidence of negligence on the part of the directors in the performance of their duties, their personal liability for losses incurred should commence at an earlier date, and that in this connec tion it was not unreasonable to attribute to them knowledge of the statements of the affairs of the bank prepared for the information of shareholders and the general public. Per Longley, J. (also concurring), that the principle which relieves directors from liability where they have relied upon the representations of their officials, is not to be extended to cases where facts are brought to their attention leading them to suspect the integrity, skill and competence of such officials. Bank Act. R. S. C. 1906, c. 29, he is by as 117 and 121 vested with all the powers which directors and solicitor had before his appointment; and after the appointment of a curator, the board of directors have no power to give a solicitor authority to consent to a winding-up order or to anything which may have any effect upon the rights and interests of creditors; and a solicitor has no such authority derivable from his former retainer by the bank; and in this case the consent, admission and waiver of a solicitor, purport-ing to act on behalf of the bank, chough made in good faith, after the appointment of the curator, had no validity .-- An application for the winding-up of a bank was rethe curator objecting to the notice. The Judge might have adjourned the hearing under s. 14 of the Winding-up Act, but as there were other applications pending, he considered that the first applicant who was wholly regular should not be deprived of any advantage to which his adherence to the rules. statutes, and practice, entitled him .- The applicant was ordered to pay costs to the curator, who opposed the application, but not to creditors and others who appeared upon the hearing .- Re McLean & Brodie (1910). 17 O. The acts for which the Referee found them liable were the payments of money returned by them by or on behalf of the bank without any statutory or other authority for such payments. On appeal, Teetzel, J., held, that the powers of the bank, and of the provisional directors acting for it, depended entirely upon the provisions of the Bank Act, and the provisional directors had no power to authorise payment out of the funds of the bank of commissions to persons who obtained subscriptions for shares of the capital stock ; and, in the winding-up of the bank, under the ground of breach of trust or misfeasance to pay to the liquidator the sums which had improperly been paid under their authority. -Provisions of the Bank Act considered, Quare, whether even shareholders' directors would have authority under the Bank Act to pay commissions for obtaining subscriptions for stock .- One of the provisional directors did not authorise or direct to be paid any money for commission, except in one any money for commission, except in one instance, when he, with the others, signed a cheque for $700 "on account of commis-sions;" at most he was aware of other payments being made by his co-directors :--Held, following Young v. Claims of creditors — Delay in presenting—Excuse — Merits—Leave to renew opplication—Statute.]—In the winding-up of a life insurance company, the liquidator's list of claimants was filed in the Master's office on 5th June, 1900, and a proper advertisement was published requiring claims to be delivered to the liquidator on or before the 7th May, 1900. On the 19th April. 1901, the claimant applied to the Master to amend the list of claimants by increasing the amount for which he was enviled to rank:—Held, that the claimant, coming in after the time allowed for filing claims, was bound to shew upon affidavit some prima facie case of merit, and to explain the reasons for his delay in coming in with his claim. The claims of creditors should not be shut out so long as there remains unadministered a portion of the fund applicable for their payment. Even where an application is dismissed for want of an affidavit shewing merits and explaining delay, the dismissal may well be without prejudice to a further application upon proper material; but in this case the rights of the claiman had been entirely cut off by an enactment of the Legislature, to which a retrospective effect had been given, and it would, therefore, he of no assistance to the claimant to permit him to renew his application. Company holding shares as pledges. -When a company has no power under its charter to become owner of bank shares, or to acquire any other title than that of pledgee, such company in winding-up proceedings cannot be treated as an ordinary holder or purchaser of such shares so as to be made subject to the double liability clause in the Bank Act. Where a company having au-thority to borrow money from other companies, or individuals, pledges its own shares as a security for a loan, the company making the loan thereon cannot be made a contributory in the proceedings for the winding up of such borrowing company. Therefore where an insurance company loaned money to a bank, and took as security for such loan transfer of certain shares of the bank. which loan was repaid before the insolvency of the bank, but the shares though re-trans ferred by the insurance company were not accepted in the books of the bank, as required by the Bank Act, the insurance com-pany was held not liable to contribute in the winding-up of the bank in respect of such shares. Dalton, 66 L. T. R. 704, fol-lowed); consequently an agreement filed with the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies subsequent to such date, although the share certificates were not issued until after such filing, cannot be relied on to relieve the shareholder from his liability to pay for the shares in cash, under the Companies Ordinance, s. 43 (x) .- Semble, that the decision of the Judge in settling the list of contributories in winding-up proceedings, is, as to all questions involved, res judicata. - Semble, that the mere fact that a company have liabilities, and have decided that in view of them they are unable to carry on their business, is not proof of "insolvency."-Where no regular meeting of directors was held to proceed to convene the extraordinary meeting of the company to consider a resolution for winding up, but it was shewn that the requisite number of shareholders had joined in the requisition pursuant to s. 118 of the Com-panies Ordinance, among them being all the directors, all of whom subsequently signed an endorsement directing the secretary himself a director-to call the meeting :-Held, that the want of a regular meeting of the directors was a mere irregularity, and did not invalidate the meeting of shareholders subsequently held, in pursuance of notice given by the secretary, at which the winding-up resolution was passed. (6) - Contributories - Shares payable in cash-Time for signing agreement under s. 43-Shares subscribed for by mem-orandum of association, when deemed issued -Time for filing agreement-Granting relief - "Just and equitable" - Special circumstances.]-Shares in the capital stock of the company, registered under the Companies Ordinance, which have been subscribed for by the memorandum of association, are deemed to be issued at the date of the registration of the company. Red Deer Mill and Elevator Co. v. Hall, 1 Alta, L. R. 530, followed.-Red Deer Mill and Elevator Consequently an agreement filed with the Registrar of Joint Stock Companies, subsequent to such date, although the share certificates were not issued until after such filing, cannot be relied on to relieve the shareholder from a liability to pay for the shares in question under the Companies Ordinance, s. 43. The repeal of s. 43 by 7 Edw. c. 5, s. 13, s.-s. 4, has not altered the liability of the shareholder in the above respect so far as the liability existed at the date of the repeal of the section. Section 43, read with 47 of the Companies Ordinance, fixes the liability in such case. The effect of the new sub-section substituted for s.-s. (6) of s. 110 of the Companies Ordinance by 7 Edw, VII. 5. s. 13, s.-s. (6), is to continue the liability to pay in cash, in the absence of a contract of sale or for services or other con-sideration in respect of which such allotment was made, but to permit of the contract being filed subsequent to the issue of the shares, within the time specified. The consideration, however, for which the shares were issued must be a valuable consideration, and must have been something existing at the time and not something subsequently accruing. The provision that "the Court, if satisfied that the omission to file the contract or a sufficient contract was accidental or due to inadvertence, or that for any other reason it is just and equitable to grant relief." has no application where there was no contract at all in existence at the time of the issue of the shares. In any case, before granting relief, the applicant must satisfy the Court that creditors will not be injuriously affected by the order. - Consideration of the circumthe order. Consideration of the effective stances in this case which rendered it not "just and equitable" to grant relief. — Quare, whether it is possible for a subscriber to a memorandum of association to escape liability for payment in cash for the shares subscribed for, and if so, under what consideration. Conditional application for shares.] —Defendant Davis applied for shares on condition that no further calls would be made thereon, and the shares were allotted him or said condition. He gave his cheque in payment, and proxy to vote on said shares, but objection was raised as to his right to vote on the shares, as they had been sold at a very large discount. When defendant was informed of the objection being raised he at once stopped payment of his cheque and informed the president that he would have nothing to do with the shares :-Held, under the circumstances, that defendant's name should be removed from the list of contributories. In re Railway Time Tables Pub. Co., Ex p. Sandys (1889), 42 Ch. D. 98, distinguished. The president having been placed on the list of contributories, for the amount of defendant Davis' cheque, for misfeasance for acquiescing in the stopping of payment of same, it was held that as Davis had the right to stop payment, there was no duty imposed upon the defendant president to endeavour to collect the money to which the company was not entitled, and his name should be removed from the list of contributories. Conditional subscription for shares.] -The project of the establishment of a company for the purpose of carrying on building operations, involved the acquisition of the works of an existing company, and the extension of the business by providing addi-tional capital, buildings and machinery, the holders of stock in the existing company to surrender the same and accept stock in the new concern, the capital stock of which was fixed at $100,000 and the paid up capital at $50,000. A subscription list was opened, and was signed by a number of persons for an amount something less than the paid up capital. A committee of sub-scribers to the new stock was appointed to act with the directors of the company with a view to the immediate commencement of operations and a call of 25 per cent, on the stock was made and was paid by 27 out of 49 subscribers. After certain liabilities had been incurred for machinery, materials, &c., the project was abandoned, and a petition was filed to have the persons who paid the call made upon the stock made contributories in winding-up proceedings :-- Held, refusing the application with costs (1) that the stock subscriptions being conditional upon an arrangement for the union of the two bodies going through as a whole, and the project having fallen through, there was a failure of con-sideration, and there was nothing to prevent the subscribers who paid the call from recovering back the amounts paid by them. (2) The payment of the call, under the circumstances, did not waive the condition. Drysdale, J., dissenting :--Held, that the subscribers by their conduct ratified the action of the committee and were estopped from disputing their liability. In re Victor Wood Works, 43 N. S. Contributory — Application for shares - Withdrawal - Absence of allotment and notice - Notice of call.]-An agent of the company canvassed the respondents to subscribe for shares and took them to the com pany's office, where they signed and handed to the manager an application, not under seal, by which they subscribed for 25 shares of the common stock of the company, at the par value of $100 per share, for which they agreed to pay upon the delivery of the re-gular stock certificate. In the stock ledger of the company, under the names of the respondents and the heading "common stock" of the same date as the application, an entry was made, "allotted bought Dr. 25 shares, amount $2,500, balance 25 shares, Dr. $2,500," On the same day the respondents gave the canvassing agent a cheque for $100 on account of the payment for the shares, but on the following morning they determined to withdraw from the application, and stopped payment of the cheque, which had been already presented and payment refused for want of funds. On the same day they told the agent that they would have nothing many of with the stead thay had applied more to do with the stock they had applied for, but they gave no written or other notice of withdrawal. The company's minute book contained no note or entry nor was any evidence given of any resolution of the directors allotting stock to the respondents or directing notice of allotment to be sent to them, and a formal notice of allotment was not sent. No attempt was made to enforce payment of their cheque, and they received no further communication on the subject of the shares until three months later, when the company's manager sent them notice of a call and demanded payment. There were two subsequent calls, of which notices were also sent to the respondents, and all three were authorised by resolutions of the directors :-Held, that neither of the respondents ever became a shareholder of the company, and that they were therefore properly struck off the list of contributories in a winding-up.-Per Osler, J.A., that there had been no allotment or appropriation of specific shares to the respondents; the entry of their names in the stock ledger was not conclusive; the resolutions authorising the calls dealing with stock which had been already allotted, could not be regarded as equivalent to an allotment; the fact that notices of calls were sent to the respondents amounted to nothing, if the stock had not been already allotted to them by the directors .- Quare, per Osler, J.A., whether notice of a call can be regarded as equivalent to notice of allotment .- Semble, also, per Osler, J.A., that, on the evidence, the respondents, as they had a right to do, withdrew their application, and that this came to the notice of the company on the day after the application was signed, which would be another answer to the liquidator's demand. -Per Meredith, J.A. :- The real question is not whether there was or was not a formal allotment of stock, but is whether there was a concluded bargain for the sale of the shares; the onus of proof of the company's binding acceptance of the offer to buy was upon the liquidator, and that was not clearly proved. Upon the whole evidence it ought to be found that there was no acceptance binding upon the company, at the time of the withdrawal of the offer to buy .- Order of Falconbridge, C. J.K.B., affirmed. Contributory - Bonus shares - Transfer of, before winding-up-Winding-up Act-Director-Breach of Trust-Compensation.] -Held, that a former holder of bonus shares. which he had before winding-up transferred to persons entitled to hold them as fully paid up, is not liable to be placed on the list of contributories in respect to them, unless subjected to such liability by the Act under which the company was created or some Act relating thereto .- Semble, however, that such a shareholder, if a director, commits a breach of trust in being a party to the allotment of the shares as fully paid up, as well as in put-ting them off on his transferees to the prejudice of the company as fully paid-up shares; and such a case is a proper one for an order under s. 83 of the Winding-up Act for contribution by him by way of compensation in respect of such breach of trust. Contributory—Calls—Increase of burden on sharcholders, i—Section 40 of the Windingup Act provides that no calls shall compel payment before maturity thereof, and that the extent of the liability of any contributory shall not be increased by anything in the section contained:—Held, that, under the above section, the liquidator of a company in liquidation cannot, with or it he authorisation of the Court, make calls of such a nature as to make the obligations of the contributory more onerous than provided by the charter incorporating the company. In re Victoria and Montreal Fire Ins. Co. and Brown and Hyde, 26 Que, 8. C. 282.

Contributory — Consideration for shares —Appeal—Reversal of judgments below.]— H, and others, interested as creditors and otherwise in a struggling firm, agreed to purchase the latter's assets and form a company to carry on its business, and they severally subscribed for stock in the proposed company to an amount representing the value of the business after receiving financial aid which they undertook to furnish. A power of attorney was given to one of the parties to purchase the assets, which was done, payment being made by the discount of a note for $2,000 made by H., and indorsed by an-other of the parties. The company having been formed, the assets were transferred, and the note was retired by a note of the com-pany for $4,000, indersed by H., which he afterwards had to pay. H. also, or the com-pavy in Buffalo of which he was manager, advanced money to a considerable amount for the company, which eventually went into liquidation. After the company was formed in pursuance of the original agreement between the parties, stock was issued to each of them as fully paid up according to the amounts for which they respectively sub-scribed, and in the winding-up proceedings they were respectively placed on the list of contributories for the total amount of said stock. The ruling of a referee in this respect was affirmed by a Judge of the High Court (3 O. W. R. 190), and by the Court of Appeal (4 O. W. R. 379, sub nom. Re Baden Machincry Manufacturing Co.) :-Held, reversing the judgment of the Court of Appeal, Davies and Nesbitt, J.J., dissenting, that, as all the proceedings were in good faith, and there was no misrepresentation of material facts, and as H. and S. had paid full value for their shares, the agreement by which they received them as fully paid up was valid, and the order making them contributories should be rescinded :- Held, per Davies and Nesbitt, JJ., that, as H. and S. did not pay cash or its equivalent for any portion of the shares as such, the order should stand :--Held, also, that it is the duty of the Supreme Court, if satisfied that the judgment in appeal is erroneous, to reverse it even when it represents the concurring view of three or any number of successive Courts before whom the case has been heard. Hood v. Eden, 25 C. L. T. 115, 36 S. C. R. 476.

Contributory — Defence — Fraud — Liquidator representing creditors.] — Subscribers for shares in a company, although they may maintain actions against the company to cancel their subscriptions, upon the ground of fraud, have not the same right against the liquidator of the company under a winding-up order, seeking to have them placed upon the list of contributories, for he is then acting not in exercise of the rights of the company, but representing its creditors. Contributory-Preference shares-Common shares—By-law — Directors—Allotment of shares—Delegation—Terms — Ratification -Acceptance-Estoppel.] - Shareholders of the company passed a resolution in favour of creation of preference stock, with a direction to directors to pass a by-law, which directors failed to do :- Held, that sec. 22 of the Ont. Companies Act not having been complied with, there was no valid creation of preference stock, and G., a person who had signed an application for 16 shares of preference stock, could not be held liable as a contri-butory in respect of these shares, there being no acquiescence, delay, or conduct on his part to estop him from alleging and shewing that, at time when he made his application, and thenceforth until the liquidation proceedings, the company were not in a position to give him that for which he applied.—G. also applied in writing for 8 shares of common stock, and undertook to accept same or any less amount, paying therefor $60 per share according to terms named in prospectus. But, in lieu of those terms, it was arranged between G. and an agent of the company that he should give a promissory note at twelve months for the whole amount, which was done. The application was never brought before or dealt with by the directors, but the secretary notified G. that the directors had allotted him the shares in accordance with his application. They had not, however, passed a by-law or otherwise ordained, as required by s. 26; they had merely passed a resolution that "the secretary be instructed to allot all stock as applications are passed in :"-Held, that the directors could not delegate their duty to a subordinate officer, and there never was any valid acceptance of G.'s application, and he was, therefore, not liable as a contributory in respect of the S shares .- Held, also, upon evidence, that, at the time of G.'s application, the company held no shares of common stock which they could validly allot to him .- In case of R., another person charged as a contributory :-Held, that it was covered by decision in G.'s case, the additional circumstances set out in the report making no difference .- In case of H., another person charged as a contribu-tory, the allotment of shares was professed to be made by secretary, and notice thereof was given in same manner, and under same circumstances and authority as in the other cases. But at the time of H.'s application there were shares of common stock which could have been allotted. H. gave his promissory note for the price of shares for which he applied, and afterwards made payments thereon, and he attended meetings of shareholders and moved resolutions thereat. He had no notice, however, until after the liquidation, of any irregularities in the creation of preference stock, and was not aware of the irregularities in connection with the alletment of shares :--Held, that, as there was no contract in fact, both by reason of there being no preferred stock in existence and want of allotment, making payments in ignorance of these facts was not a conclusive act, and attendance and conduct at meeting was not such an active participation in the affairs and business as to debar any question as to the status of an alleged shareholder. If there was any holding of himself out as a shareholder by H., it was not under circumstances which could affect creditors or create any change of position to their prejudice.-Orders of Anglin, J., affirmed. Contributories-Subscription for shares -Contract under seal - Offer - Acceptance - Allotment - Notice.] - Respondent a writing under seal dated 29th July. 1903, subscribed for one share of the company, and agreed to pay $100 for it, 10 per cent, on application, 15 per cent, on allo-ment, 25 per cent, two months thereafter. and balance as directors might deem advis-It was arranged that the company able. should draw upon respondent for amount payable on application. On the next day, and before anything had been done by the company, respondent wrote to the company cancelling his subscription. The company drew on respondent for the 10 per cent, but he refused to accept the draft, and, being pressed by the company by letter of the 16th September, 1906, to accept the draft, again declined to do so. On the 8th September, 1903, a resolution was passed by the directors " that the stock now subscribed be allotted and notice sent to each subscriber that we are drawing on them for their second payment." The company did not draw on the respondent for the second payment, and be was not notified of the allotment, but his name was recorded in the book required by s, 71 of the Ontario Companies Act to be kept by the company as a shareholder holding one share. He was not afterwards it any way treated or dealt with as a shareholder. In a proceeding for the winding-up of the company, it was sought to make him liable as a contributory :- Held, following Nelson Coke and Gas Co. v. Pellatt, 4 O. L. R. 481, that the instrument signed by the respondent was not a mere offer which he could withdraw before acceptance; but that the company never accepted or intended to accept him as a shareholder unless the down payment of 10 per cent, was made, and, after the refusal to make that payment, they made it evident that they had not accepted

Creditors' claims-Breach of contract-Damages.] - On payment of a subscription fee of $10.50 to a publishing company, cer-tificates were issued by the company to the subscribers, guaranteeing to such purchasers the privilege for five years of purchasing all books, magazines, periodicals, and other printed matter, at the prices quoted in the company's catalogue and bulletins, but subject to ordinary trade fluctuations, and undertaking to act for such subscribers as agents for the purchase, at lowest possible prices, of the books, etc., not contained in such cata-logue. The certificates were not transferable and were only available to subscribers for their personal and family use and benefit, Before the expiry of the above period, an order was obtained for the winding-up of the company, whereupon certain subscribers claimed to rank on the assets as creditors in respect of damages alleged to have been sustained by them through the company's failure to supply them with books, etc., during the residue of the term :--Held, that only nominal damages were recoverable, for beyond this the damages were of too speculative or conjectural a nature to be maintained nor could any part of the subscriptions be recovered back on the ground of it being unermed. O. 1897, c. 205, "it shall be lawful for any such corporation to constitute and maintain a reserve fund out of the earnings or other income of the corporation not required for the present liabilities of the corporation." By a by-law of the above named company it was provided that "a reserve fund shall be maintained consisting of the sums already set apart and forming such fund, together with such sums as may be contributed and added thereto, or as the directors shall, from time to time, deduct or retain from the undivided profits, and together with the profits and increase of such sum." An amount equal to 26 per cent. of the amount of the capital stock of the company having been previously set apart as a reserve fund, the shareholders of the company were, in 1901. invited by the directors to make it up to 100 per cent, by contributions to the reserve fund. No further by-law was passed. Many of the shareholders paid to the company sums which were credited to the reserve fund, and upon which they received interest at dividend rates :- Held, that in the windingup of the company the creditors who had so contributed were not entitled to rank as creditors upon the assets of the company in re-

The sheriff's sole was set aside, and M, then abandoned the property to the curator of the estate, and filed a claim as a privileged creditor, for necessary and useful expenses incurred by him in preserving the property for the general benefit of the mass of creditors, including therein charges for moneys paid as premiums on policies of fire insurance effected in his own name during the time he had held possession :--Held, that, in the absence of evidence to shew that such insurance had been so effected otherwise than for his own exclusive interest, he could not be collocated by special privilege on the distribution of the proceeds of the estate for the amounts of the premiums .- When the appeal first came on for hearing upon inscription ex parte, on suggestion by one of the creditors not made a party to the appeal, the Court ordered the postponement of the hearing in order that all interested parties might be notified of the appeal. Distribution of surplus - Shareholders By-laws - Resolutions.] - A municipal sater company, incorporated under the Ontario Joint Stock Companies Act, sold their undertaking and franchise to the municipality, and passed a resolution providing for payment at par value to the shareholders of the stock allotted to them in proportion to the amounts paid on their respective shares and for payment of the liabilities and the costs of winding-up, &c., and directed that the surplus should be distributed amongst the members according to their interest. By bylaw of the company, holders of second preference shares were to be paid dividends at 6 per cent., and for a period of five years were not to participate further in the profits of the company. In case of default in payment of any dividend, the deficiency was to be paid out of the net profits of succeeding years, and no dividend was to be paid on the ordinary stock until such deficiency should be fully paid. Second preference shareholders also had the right, under the bylaw, upon foregoing their secured dividend of 6 per cent., to surrender their shares and receive the par value thereof, or a corresponding number of ordinary shares, in which case they would have the same rights and privileges as the ordinary shareholders; but none of them exercised this option. The by-law also provided that, in the event of the company being wound up, if any surplus of the capital assets of the company was to be returned to shareholders, the holders of second preference shares were to be paid the full amount of their shares and all dividends before the return of the capital of any ordinary shares, " and, subject thereto and to the first preference stock, the holders of the ordinary shares shall be entitled to such surplus of the capital assets :"-Held, that the second preference shareholders were not entitled to share in the surplus assets :--Held. also, that the surplus was divisible among the ordinary shareholders in proportion to the amount of their shares, not to the amounts paid on their shares. C. 1906, c. 144, so far as applicable to the rights of an execution creditor under a writ of execution against the goods of a company placed in the sheriff's hands after the commencement of the winding-up, is not different in effect from s. 66 of the Winding-up Act as it stood in the former Revised Statutes of 1886, and the execution creditor cannot proceed to realise his judgment out of the goods of the company .--Quare, what would be the result in a case where the sheriff had sold the goods and had the proceeds of the sale in his hands when notice of the petition was served ?--- Under the Act as it stood before the last revision the money would have gone to the liquidator but, to obtain that result under the present Act, s.-s. 2 of s. 84 would have to be read into s.-s. 1. 0 U Liquidator—Appointment — Notice,] — The appointment of a liquidator for a company will be set asile if some one interested succeeds in shewing that such appointment has been made without notice to the creditors, contributories, and shareholders of the company. Stimaon v. North-West Cattle Co., 5 Q. P. R. 181.

Liquidator—Appointment of—Notice to creditors and others—Neccessity For_1 —The appointment of a liquidator under the Winding-up Act, R. S. C. e. 129, without a previous notice to the creditors, contributories, shareholders, or members of the company, in the manner and form prescribed by the Court, is null and void. The power given to the Court by s. 11 of 52 V, e. 32, to dispense with notices, etc., does not extend to that required for the appointment of a liquidator under s. 20 of the former Act. Stimson V, North-West Catile Co., 14 Que, K. B. 270.

Liquidator-Bond of-Money received as assignce-Appeal-Finality of certificate.] -After the assignee for the benefit of creditors of an incorporated company had sold part of the assets and received the proceeds, he was appointed liquidator under the Winding-up Act and gave security by a bond which recited all the proceedings and orders, and was conditioned to be void if the liquidator should duly account for what he should receive or become liable to pay as liquidator :--Held, that the funds and property in the hands of the assignce became vested in him as liquidator upon his appointment as such. and that the sureties were responsible for his subsequent misappropriation thereof. The bond provided that the certificate of the Master in Ordinary of the amount for which the liquidator was liable should be sufficient evidence of liability as against the sureties, and should form a valid and binding charge against them :--Held, that the sureties had the right to appeal from the certificate in accordance with the usual practice of the Court. In re Army and Navy Clothing Co. of Toronto, 22 C. L. T. 11, 3 O. L. R. 37.

Liquidator-Claim accruing before winding-up-Bank - Use of name-Amendment.] -Under the Dominion Winding-up Act, 1886. ss. 15 and 31, a company in liquidation retains its corporate powers, including the power to sue, although such powers must be exercised through the liquidator under the authority of the Court. The liquidator must sue in his own name or in that of the company, according to the nature of the action; in his own name where he acts as representative of creditors and contributories; in that of the company to recover either its debts or its property. Where liquidators sued in their own name to recover a debt due to the company :- Held, that the error was one of form, which the Court had power to amend under ss. 516 and 521, C. C. P. The defend-ant having admitted the debt and pleaded setoff, and not having excepted to the form of the action, leave to amend should have been given in the sound exercise of judicial discretion. Liquidator-Partnership-Action against interrogatories.]-A company in liquidation owed $642.74 for business taxes to the corporation of the City of Montreal, who sued the liquidators, G. and C., for recovery of that amount. G. and C. were made parties, not as joint liquidators, but as carrying on business together as liquidators under the firm name of G. & C. Upon default of the liquidators to answer interrogatories, the Superior Court ordered the interrogatories to be taken pro confessis and gave judgment in favour of the plaintiffs. The defendants ap-pealed:—Held, that a liquidator appointed for a company in liquidation possessing only the powers of a judicial sequestrator, has no status to represent in an action the members of the company, who still have the free exercise of their rights, and must sue or defend themselves before the courts. 2. Be-sides, in this case, the joining of the liquidators as members of a partnership of liquidators was irregular and illegal. 3. The service upon the liquidators by serving one of them at their place of business was also irregular and illegal. 4. A partnership of liquidators is a distinct entity; its members are joint liquidators as individuals and not as partners; and therefore the firm cannot be required to answer interrogatories in the name of the company of which they are liqui-dators. 5. The interrogatorics served upon the liquidators could not affect the rights of the members of the company and could not te regarded as proof of default, because the admission which resulted from default of an answer could not be made by the liquidators, and exceeded their powers. City of Mon-treal v. Gagnon, 25 Que, S. C. 178, 6 Que. P. R. 197.

Made after contestation by company -Right of shareholder to attack-Want of jurisdiction-Petition not served-Fraudulent abuse of process-Foreign company-Business in Canada discontinued-Unsatisfied obligations-Liquidation proceedings at domicile of company - Construction of Winding-up Act. |-The general rule that a winding-up order made against a company, after appearance and contestation by it, is conlcusive against the shareholders, does not apply where the ground taken is that the company was not subject to the Winding-up Act, or that the petition for the order had not been served upon it, and was a fraudulent abuse of the process of the Court.—2. The Wind-ing-up Act, R. S. C. 1906 c. 144, applies to a foreign company which has done business in Canada, although the same has been discontinued for a period of five or six years, if there be unsatisfied obligations arising therefrom .--- 3. A foreign company doing business in Canada is subject to the Winding-up Act. and the Superior Court has jurisdiction and power to make a winding-up order against it thereunder, although no liquidation proceedings are taken against it at its domicile; and the correct view is that, in its application, the Act is to be construed, not strictly, but liberally .-- Judgment in In re Great Northern Construction Co., Hyde v. Mechanics' liens-Priority --Jurisdic tion to order - Notice. -The holders of mechanics' liens filed against mineral claims owned by a company, which was subsequently ordered to be wound up, recovered judgment thereon in a County Court on the day on which the winding-up order was made. In the list of creditors made up by the liquidator the lien claimants did not appear as secured creditors, but as judgment creditors. The winding-up order was made on the petition of H., a surveyor, who held the field notes of the survey made by him, and who afterwards proposed that he advance the moneys necessary to obtain Crown grants of the claims, and retain a lien on them until he was paid; the liquidator applied to the Court for leave to accept the proposal, and an order was made, without notice to the lien holders, giving H. a first charge on the claims for his debt and the amount advanced by him: afterwards on H.'s application, an order was made, on notice to the liquidator, but without notice to the liquidator, but withclaims be sold to pay his charge. The liquidator of the last orders, but applied for leave to enforce their security, and that they be declared to have priority over H.: -Held, that he order giving H. priority over the lien-holders was made without jurisdiction, and the lien-holders were not bound by it. Charge on goods on premises—Distress— Liquidator—Assessment when taken to be made-Taxes, when due-Mistake in name of party assessed.] - 1. A liquidator ap pointed to wind up a company under c, 144 of the R. S. C. 1906, is not an assignce for the benefit of creditors within the meaning of s. 382 of the Winnipeg Charter, 1 & 2 Edw. Vii. c. 77, so that there is no priority under that section in favour of the city for the business tax imposed upon the company as against other debts. - 2. Notwithstanding s. 378 of the charter, taxes imposed by the city are not due and payable so as to entitle the city to sue for them until after the preparation of the tax roll. Chamber lain v. Turner, 31 C. P. 460, followed .--- 3 The assessment of the business tax can be deemed to be made only after notice thereof has been given. Devanney v. Dorr, 4 O. R. 206; and if. at that time, the company assessed is no longer in possession of the premises, and the goods, though still on the premises, are in the hands of a purchaser from the liquidator, there is nothing in the charter which preserves to the city the lien on the goods for the taxes created by s. 313, for that section only gives the city a first charge during the occupancy on all goods in the premises for which the occupant has been assessed .--- 4. The statutory right given to the city by s. 369 to distrain for such taxes upon any goods and chattels found on the premises in respect of which the taxes have been levied, although such goods and chattels may be the property and in the posses-sion of any other occupant of the premises, is not equivalent to a lien or charge on the goods for such taxes; and where the liquidator of a company assessed for business tax had, prior to the assessment, given up the occupancy of the premises and sold the goods therein, it was held that the city had no right to be paid the taxes in full out of the funds in the hands of the liquidator, but had the right to rank with other creditors of the company for the same under s. 228 B., added to the charter by the Act of 1907 .--- 5. Taxes imposed before the winding-up of a company has commenced can only rank as ordinary debts, in the absence of statutory lien or charge, but taxes imposed after the commencement of the winding-up must be paid in full, as part of the expenses of the winding-up, if the liquidator has remained in possession and such possession has been "a beneficial occupation ; " In re National Arms Co., 28 Ch. G. and petition for winding-up of the company, and is not bound to value in his petition his security under s. 62; that where a demand is made under s. 6, and time for payment has elansed and demand has not been complied with, and no reason is given why payment is not made, the company must be deemed insolvent within meaning of the Act; that where the Judge has exercised his discretion under s. 19 and refused to regard the request of a majority of the creditors and shareholders opposed to the petition, who did not offer or propose to continue business, but intended to allow the trust mortgage to be foreclosed, it should not be reviewed on appeal .- Per Hanington, J., that the refusal to regard the wishes of all unsecured creditors and the great majority of secured creditors and shareholders was not a reasonable exercise of judicial discretion under s. 19, and the appeal should be allowed on that ground; that petitioner's claim being amply secured. he had no right to pelition and force the com-pany into liquidation. Order for — Discretion to refuse—Absence of assets — Examination of officers — Time for.]—The Court has a discretion to grant or withhold a winding-up order under s, 9 of R. S. C. c. 129. Re Maple Leaf Dairy Co., 2 O. L. R. 590, followed. A company will not be compulsorily wound up at the instance of unsecured creditors, where it is shewn that nothing can be gained by a wining-up, as, for example, where there would not be any assets to pay liquidation expenses. On the hearing of a winding-up petition, which was dismissed, the petitioner did not avail himself of an opportunity to examile the officers of the company:—Held, on appeal, that it was too late then to grant an enquity. Order for - "Just and equitable" -Shareholder's petition-Contributory.] - An order for compulsory winding-up may be made under s. 5 of the Companies Winding-up Act, 1898 (B.C.), notwithstanding the winding-up is opposed by the company. In winding-up proceedings instituted by a shareholder it appeared that shares had been unlawfully issued at a discount and at different percentages of their face value to different purchasers; that the substratum was gone and that the company was unable to carry on business; that there was a question as to the liability of the company to the principal shareholder, who had always been in practical control of the company :--Held, that it was just and equitable that the company should be wound up. S. 1900, c. 128, for the purpose of carrying on mining operations, after operating their property for a time at a loss, disposed of it to another comthe consideration for the transfer being shares in the latter company, Application was made by one of the shareholders for a winding-up order under the provisions of the Companies Winding-up Act, R. S. N. S. 1900, c. 129, s. 5, the grounds being: (1) that the substratum of the company had gone; (2) that it was not possible for the company to carry on the business for which created; and (3) that the sale of their property for shares in another company was illegal and unauthorised. The application was opposed by the company, and it did not appear that either the creditors or the shareholders generally desired a winding-up :---Held, that the Judge to whom the application was made was right, in these circumstances, in refusing an order; also, that before giving effect to the application and taking the matter out of the hands of the directors and of the company, the Judge was right in requiring the shareholder to bring himself within the principle of the cases by shewing, inter alia, that the company were in such a state of solvency that there was a reasonable probability of sufficient assets being left for the shareholders to give him a tangible interest in having the company wound up .- Semble, that the petitioner could winding-up proceedings. Service of complete list—Procedure — Exceptions.]—Every contributory in a winding-up has a right to a complete list of all the contributories; for each one is interested and has a right to require that all the contributories shall be from the first upon the list of contributories, in order that the Court may determine what amount each should be called upon to pay as his contribution. A dilatory exception asking that proceedings be stayed until this list be furnished will be maintained.—An exception to the form demanding the dismissal of the petition of the liquidator, for the same reasons, will be dismissed, because there is no ground for declaring the proceedings vold, but only for amending them. Shares - Application on condition that no further call be made - Acceptance -Allotment—Right to repudiate—Conduct ap-probating contract—Estoppel — Director — Misfeasance-Loss to company.]-Defendant Davis applied for shares on condition that no further calls would be made thereon, and the shares were allotted him on said condition. He gave his cheque in payment, and proxy to vote on said shares, but objection was raised as to his right to vote on the shares, as they had been sold at a very large discount. When defendant was informed of the objection being raised he at once stop ped payment of his cheque and informed the president that he would have nothing to do with the shares :--Held, under the circum-stances, that defendant's name should be removed from the list of contributories. The president having been placed on the list of contributories, for the amount of defendant Davis' cheque, for misfeasance for acquiescing in the stopping of payment of same, it was held that as Davis had the right to stop payment there was no duty imposed upon the defendant president to endeavour to collect the money to which the company was not entitled, and his name Should be removed from the list of contribu-tories, Judgment of Teetzel, J., 13 O. Holgins, Master in Ordinary, heid, that trustee had no right to purchase shares and in doing so had committed a breach of trust, and to give effect to trustee's contention would be to give judicial sanction to a breach of trust. Stay of actions against - Decree of foreclosure — Leave to proceed — Right of mortgagee-Powers of Judge-Discretion of Judge-Review-Leave to appeal - Right to grant-Liquidators-Conduct of sale.]-By s. 16 of the Winding-up Act, R. S. C. 1886 c. 129, proceedings by a mortgagee under a decree of foreclosure of the company's premises are stayed, but the mortgagee has the absolute right to have leave to proceed unless special circumstances make it inequitable for him to do so .- The exercise of discretion in granting or refusing leave by the Judge having charge of the winding-up proceedings may be reviewed on appeal: per Hanington, Barker, and Gregory, JJ .- The power given by s. 13 to order a stay, and the stay provided by s. 16, of any suit or action, does not apply to proceedings under a decree of foreclosure: per Tuck, C.J.—The liquidators have no equity to have the conduct of the sale under foreclosure proceedings, and an order made at their instance by the Judge directing the winding-up proceedings, postponing the sale and directing the referee as to the advertising, and fixing a subsequent date for the sale, is bad : per Tuck, C.J., Hanington, Barker and Gregory, JJ .- The order, though wrong in point of form, was in substance an order for leave to proceed under s. 16, and should not be interfered with on appeal : per McLeod, J .- A Judge other than the Judge directing the winding-up proceed ings may grant leave to appeal from his order, and any Judge has the abstract right to make orders in a winding-up proceeding. but ought not to do so unless specially requested by the Judge in charge, or under exceptional circumstances; per Tuck, C.J., Hanington, Barker, and Gregory, J.J.-No Judge other than the Judge having charge of the winding-up proceedings has authority to make any order in reference thereto, unless such Judge is unable to act ; per McLeod, J .-The appeal from the order of a Judge in charge of winding-up proceedings is to the Court, and the order can not be varied or rescinded by an order of a single Judge, though made in excess of his jurisdiction under the Wind-Act; per Barker, McLeod, and Greing-up gory, JJ .- As the Judge, under the winding up proceedings, had no jurisdiction to make an order interfering with the foreclosure proceedings, an order of another Judge having jurisdiction, staying that order, and giving directions as to foreclosure proceedings, is good: per Tuck, C.J., and Hanington, J. /m re Cushing Sulphite Fibre Co., 38 N. Staying proceedings in another province — Setting aside sale of foreign land —Summary proceedings.]—There is jurisdiction under s. 13 of the Dominion Winding-up Act, R. S. C. c. 129, to restrain proceedings in any action, suit, or proceeding against the company, even in actions or suits beyond the ordinary territorial jurisdiction of the Court; and the enforcing of an execution is a proceeding within this section; and there fore there was jurisdiction for the Court in this province to make an order staying pro ceedings under an execution in the hands of the sheriff of the county of Victoria, in the province of New Brunswick, as had been done in this case. But the sheriff having, notwithstanding, proceeded with the sale under the execution against lands of the com pany, and executed a deed of the same to the purchaser :---Held, that there was no jurisdic tion in the Court under the Winding-up Act to make an order summarily declaring the sale void, such a case not coming within the classes of cases which, under the Act, may be dealt with in a summary manner by a Judge in the winding-up proceedings. Voluntary liquidation - Manitoba Winding-up Act. ss. 19, 23-Liquidator-Dir-Manitoba ection to - Proceeding against directors for fraud-Jurisdiction.]-The company being in Manitoba Winding-up Act, R. S. M. 1902 c. 175, the liquidator applied, under s. 23 of the Act, for a direction as to whether or not he should take proceedings against a number of former directors of the company to cancel certain shares in the stock which they had issued to themselves as fully paid up, but without payment of any kind, and to recover the dividends which, to the extent of over $62,000, they had afterwards paid to them-selves on said shares:-Held, that this was not "a question arising in the matter of the winding-up" for the determination of which an application may be made to the Court under s. 23, and that no order could be made, as the liquidator in such a proceeding is not an officer of the Court or under its control, except to the extent stated in s.-s. (f) of s. 19 of the Act .- The Judge, however, expressed the opinion that it was the liquidator's duty, in the circumstances, to take the suggested proceedings, and that, if he refused, the Court would have jurisdiction, under s.-s. (f)of s. 19, to compel him to do so. Re Great Prairie Investment Co., S W. L. R. 6, 17 Man. L. R. 554.

The intention to name a certain person as liquidator suffi-ciently appears by the mentioning of his name upon the blank forms of power of attorney sent in order that anyone interested may not allege that he is taken by surprise if such person is subsequently appointed liquidator. Winding-up — Mortgage to creditor — Setting aside — Insolvency — Knowledge — "May be set aside"—Presumption—Rebut--A mortgage of land made by an incortal. 1porated company in favour of a creditor within thirty days prior to the beginning of winding-up proceedings was attacked by the Winding up proceedings was attacked by the liquidator as being void under some of the provisions of ss. 68 to 71, inclusive, of the Winding-up Act, R. S. C. c. 129:--Held, notwithstanding the fact that the mortgage was given upon demand of the mortgagee, that the transaction must be avoided under s. 69. the mortgage being a conveyance for consideration respecting real property, by which creditors were injured or obstructed, made by a company unable to meet its engagements : and it was not material under this section whether the mortgagee was or was not ignorant of such inability; but the transaction, being within the thirty days, was avoidable, and should therefore be set aside, that being the effect of the words "may be set aside."—Held, also, that the words of s. 69, "upon such terms as to the protection of such person from actual loss or liability by reason of such contract, as the Court orders," were not applicable to the giving of a mortgage as security for a past debt.—Held, also, that none of the other sections relied on applied so as or the other sections relied on applied 80 as to avoid the mortgare; and, following Law-son v. McGeoch, 22 O. R. 474, 20 A. R. 464, and distinguishing Webster v. Crickmore, 25 A. R. 97, that the presumption referred to in s. T1 is rebuttable. Kirby v. Rathbun Co., 20 C. L. T. 333, 32 O. R. 9.

Winding-up - Taxes and water rates-Claim on estate-Distress.]-The company owned its business premises, subject to a owned us obtainess premises, subject to a mortgage to A., who commenced an action for foreclosure. Upon a winding-up order being made, A. filed his claim, and the liquidators, under s. 62 of the Winding-up Act, with the approval of the Court, consented to his tak ing the property, and also consented to judgment for immediate foreclosure in the action -Subsequently the city corporation filed with the liquidators a claim for arrears of taxes and water rates :--Held, as to the taxes, that the only remedy which the cost poration had was to apply to the Court under s, 16 of the Act for leave to distrain. Upon such an application the Court would have determined whether the circumstances were such as to induce it to grant such leave .-If the distress in this case had been levied before the beginning of the winding-up, the Court would, there being no right of action for the taxes, have preserved to the company the right of distress, on the principle that where there is not a right of action, and therefore no privity between the parties, the distrainor may pursue his only remedy (distress) as if no liquidation existed ; but where a right of action exists, even though there is also a right to distrain, then the creditor is within the Act, and must prove as an or-dinary creditor.—The provisions of the final clause of s.-s. 1 of s. 135 of the Assessment Act with regard to goods in the hands of a liquidator apply only to proceedings under the rates which an owner shall pay, and such rates, if unpaid, are to be alien or charge upon the real estate, but by s. 13 a personal liability to pay the rates is created against the owner. The city corporation, by by-law passed in 1890, fixed the insolvent company's water rates, and had assessed it by name from year to year since :--Held, that a liability to pay was thereby imposed, and this liabi-lity is a sufficient foundation for a valid claim by the corporation to rank on the estate in the hands of the liquidator for the amount of the water rates. The corporation are not bound to prove as secured creditors. notwithstanding their lien upon the property arising under s. 11, because the lien is upon property in which the insolvent company is not interested, having already surrendered it to a prior mortgagee, and the liquidator could not give it up to the claimant as re-quired by 8, 62 of the Winding-up Act. Contract—Life insurance—Revocation by will—Application of foreign law—Lien for premiums.] — A contract of life insurance entered into by a company whose head office is in Ontario, the policy having issued from the head office and providing for payment of the insurance money there, is an Ontario contract, and must be interpreted and carried out in accordance with Ontario law, although the assured lived in Manitoba and made application there to a local agent for the insurance, but an assignment of or dealing with the benefits of the policy made by the assured in Manitoba will be governed by the law of this province relating thereto. The deceased, who was a resident in Manitoba, insured his life with a company whose head office was in Ontario, and by the policy the insurance money was appropriated in favour of his wife, but by his will be absolutely revoked this appropriation and directed that the money should become part of his estate and should be paid to his executor. Section 12 of the Life Assurance, R. S. M. c. S. As arenanced by 62 & 63 V. c. 17, permits such a revocation and new disposition of the insurance money, but the corresponding statutory provision in Ontario (R. S. O. 1897, c. 203; s. 160) forbids it:—Held, that the law of Manitoba must be applied to the determination of the question as to the right of the assured to make such new disposition, and that the insurance money must be paid to the executor as part of the deceased's estate. Toronto General Trust Co. y. Secell, 17 O. R. 442, and Lee v. Adby, 17 Q. B. D. 300. followed: — Held, also, that a will is an instrument in writing within the menning of the Manitoba statute above referred to. Combination—Injury to business—Restraint of trade—Rights of individuals.]— The plaintiff and defendants were members of a corporation known as "The Winnipeg Grain and Produce Exchange," and dealt in grain both on their own account and for others on commission. The defendants and other members of the Exchange, having come to the conclusion that the plaintiff was using his position as a member to assist other dealers not members to carry on dealings in grain with members in violation of the rules of the Exchange as to commission, agreed amongst themselves that they would neither sell to nor buy grain from the plaintiff; and the defendants afterwards carried out this agreement, thereby causing loss and damage to the plaintiff in his business as a grain dealer. The defendants in so combining were not actuated by any malicious feeling to-wards the plaintiff, but solely by the desire to serve the business interests of themselves and the members of the Exchange generally, and in the protection of the market created under the rules of the Exchange. They had not attempted to coerce the plaintiff by violence or threats or to induce him or others to break any contract, nor had they tried to induce others to refrain from dealing with the plaintiff :-- Held, that the acts of the defendants were no more than a lawful exercise of their rights, and that there was no conspiracy to do any illegal act or for any illegal object or to use any means that would be unlawful if used by an individual, and that, in absence of any evidence of malicious or improper motive, the combination and pur-suit of its object did not affect any legal right of plaintiff or operate to do him any legal injury. CONSTITUTIONAL LAW.

Act of province of Canada-Bridge-Dedication to Croue-Right of province of Quebec-B. N. A. Act. s. 109.]-A bridge constructed by a private person in the province of Quebec, before the confederation of the provinces of British North America, by virtue of an Act of the Parliament of the province of Canada, upon condition that at the expiration of 50 years it will belong to the Crown, becomes at the end of the term, in 1885, the property of the province of Quebec, by virtue of s. 100 of the British North America Act. Montreal Light Heat and Power Co. v. Archambault, 16 Que. K. B. 110.

Administration of justice-Inter-provincial jurisdiction - Residence - Foreign judgment.] - No province can pass laws to operate outside its own territory ; and no tribunal established by a province can extend its process beyond the province so as to subpersons or property elsewhere to its decisions; and consequently a judgment obtained in one province by service of process out of the jurisdiction against a domiciled resident of another province, who has not in any way attorned to the jurisdiction, has no extra-territorial validity, even though regu-larly obtained under the procedure of the former province. Aliter, where the rule or judgment in such other province has been obtained upon the non-resident's own application. Deacon v. Chadwick, 21 C. L. T. 204, 1 O. L. R. 346.

Animals Contagious Diseases Act — Powers of Dominion Parliament.]—The Animais Contagious Diseases Act, 1903, is intra vires of the Dominion Parliament. Brooks v. Moore (1906), 13 B. C. R. 91, 4 W. L. R. 110.

1763, the Island of Cape Breton (which had been invaded and taken by the British forces), was ceded by France to the King and Crown of Great Britain. By a proclamation, issued by the King in October, 1763, the Islands of Cape Breton and St. John's were annexed to the Government of Nova Scotia, and the proclamation authorized the Governor to call General Assemblies, in the said Governments respectively, as soon as the circumstances of the colonies would admit. In the year 1784, the Crown, by a commission to the Governor-in-Chief of Nova Scotia, and the Islands of St. John's and Cape Breton, granted a constitution of the Island of Cape Breton, to consist of a Lieutenant-Governor, Council and Assembly, distinct from that of Nova Scotia. The government of the Island continued, however, to be regulated by a Lieutenant-Governor and Council, but no General Assembly was convened, as directed by the commission of 1784. In the year 1820, the Crown, in the commission to the Gover-nor-in-Chief of Nova Scotia, annexed Cape Breton to Nova Scotia. The inhabitants of Breton to Nova Scotia, The inhabitants of Cape Breton petitioned the Crown, complaining of the illegality of the re-annexation by the act of the Crown alone, without their consent, or by an Act of the Imperial Parliament, as contrary to the proclamation of 1763 and the commission of 1784:—Held, by 'the Judical Committee of the Privy Council, that such re-annexation was legal, and that the petitioners were not entitled to a separate constitution under the commission of 1784. In re Cape Breton (1846), C. R. 1 A. C. 275.

Append — Juriediction — Abandonment.] —Where a motion to quash an appent has been refused on the ground that a decision upon a constitutional question is involved, the subsequent abandonment of that question cannot affect the jurisdiction of the Supreme Court of Canada to entertain the appeal. Pharmaccutical Association of Quebec v. Livernois, 21 S. C. R. 43, 21 C. L. T. 8.

Appeal — Jurisdiction — Yukon Territorial Court, J.—The Supreme Court of Canada has jurisdiction to hear appeals from the judgments of the Territorial Court of the Yukon Territory, sitting as the Court of Appeal constituted by the Ordinance of the Governor-in-Council of the 18th of March, in respect to the hearing and decision of disputes affecting mineral lands in the Yukon Territory. The Governor-in-Council has no jurisdiction to take away the right of appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada provided by 62 & 63 Vict, c. 11 of the Statutes of Canada. Hartley v. Matson, 32 S. C. R. 575, 23 C. L. T. 39.

Appeal per saltum — Ontario — Divisional Court judgment.]—Under the provisions of s. 26, s.-s. 3 of the Supreme and Exchequer Courts Act, leave to appeal direct from the final judgment of a Divisional Court of the High Court of Justice for Ontario may be granted in cases where there is a right of appeal to the Court of Appeal for Ontario, and the fact that an important question of constitutional law is involved and that neither party would be satisfied with the judgment of the Court of Appeal, is sufficient ground for granting such leave. Ontario Mining Co. V. Seybold, 31 S. C. R. 125.

Appeal from a summary conviction under the Criminal Code is, in Outario, to be taken to the Court of General Sessions of the Peace sitting without a jury; and Code, s. 881, constituting such Court the absolute judge as well of the facts as of the law in respect of the conviction or decision appealed against, is intra vires of the Dominion Parliament. A statutory provision that the Appellate Court shall try the appeal without a jury is one relating to the procedure and not to the constitution of the Court. R. v. Malloy, 4 Can, Cr. Cas. 116.

Appeal to Supreme Court of Canada —Statute giving right of appeal.)—A motion was made to quash an appeal from the Court of Review, on the ground that the Act 54 & 55 V. c. 25, authorizing such appeals, was ultra vires, s. 101 of the B. N. A. Act only providing for the establishment of a Court of Appeal for the Dominion for the better administration of the laws of Canada, and that the right of appeal was a civil right with which the Parliament of Canada could not interfere:—Held, refusing the motion, that the power to establish a Court of Appeal for the Dominion was not so restricted: that the reference to the "better administration of the laws of Canada " in s. 101 of the B. N. A. Act had regard to the establishment of federal Courts other than a general Court of Appeal; and that 54 & 55 V. c. 25 was intra vires. The appeal was then heard on the merits and dismissed, following the decision in a previous appeal; 30 S. C. R. 598, 21 C. L. T. 5. L'Association St. Jean Baptiste de Montreal V. Brault, 21 C. L. British Columbia Crown Procedure Act, s. 4.—Statutory duty to submit petition of right—Damages for breach—Cause of action—Jury.] — Under the British Columbia Crown Procedure Act, s. 4, it is the duty of the Provincial Secretary to submit to the Lieutenant-Governor a petition left with him as therein directed for that purpose. His definite refusal to do so gave the petitioner a cause of action involving damages which must be submitted to a jury—Judgment in 39 S. C. R. 202, 27 C. L. T. 667, affrmed, judgment in 12 B. C. R. 476, 57 W. L. R. 203 set aside. Fullon v. Norton, C. R., [1908] A. C. 416, 78 L. J. P. C. 29, [1908] A. C. 451, 39 L. T. R. 455, 24 T. L. R. 704.

British Columbia Health Act-Regulations, s. 20-Sale of milk, etc.-Ultra vires, -Field occupied by federal legislation-Dominion Adulteration Act.]-Section 20 of the provincial government regulations governing the sale of milk and the management of dairies, cow sheds, and milk shops, is ultra vires, as being repugnant to the Dominion legislation on the same subject. Rex v. Garvin, 7 W. L. R. 783, 13 B. C. R. 331.

British Columbia Immigration Act, 1908—Ultra virce—Dominion Act, 1907, respecting Ireaty with Japan—Legislative field occupied.] — The provisions of the British Columbia Immigration Act, 1908, are inoperative, in so far as the subjects of the Japanese Empire are concerned, the field being occupied by Dominion legislation. In re Nakane and Okazake, S. W. L. R. 19, 13 B. C. R. 370.

British Columbia Immigration Act, 1908-Ultra vires-Legislative field occupied —Dominion Immigration Act-Costs against Croven.] — Parliament, by the Immigration Act, R. S. C. 1906 c. 93, having provided a complete code dealing with immigration, the British Columbia Immigration Act, 1908, is inoperative. — Costs awarded against the Crown, following Regina v. Little, 6 B, C. R. 221. Rex v. Narain, 7 W. L. R. 781, 8 W. L. R. 700; In re Narain Singh, 13 B. C. R. 477.

British Columbia Liquor License Act - Brever-Dominion license.]-A brewer, although holding a license under the Dominion Inland Revenue Act to carry on business as such, may not sell beer within the province unless he has first obtained a license under the Provincial Liquor License Act. R. v. Neiderstadt (1906), 11 B. C. R. 347, 2 W. L. R. 272. British Columbia Provincial Elections Act — Powers of Provincial Legislature—B, N. A. Act.]—Section 91, s.-s. 25, of the British North America Act reserves to the exclusive jurisdiction of the Dominion Parliament the subject of naturalization that is, the right to determine, how it shall be constituted. The Provincial Legislature has the right to determine, under s. 92, s.-s. I, what privileges as distinguished from necessary consequences, shall be attached to it. Accordingly, the British Columbia Provincial Elections Act (1897, c. 67), s. 8, which provides that no Japanese, whether naturalised or not, shall be entitled to vote, is not altra eircs. Judgment in 21 C. L. 7, 424, 8 B. C. R. 76, reversed. Cunningham v. Tomey Homma, [1903] A. C. 151.

Civil servants — Taxation of.] — The members of the civil service are not subject as such to an additional personal tax of $2 imposed by the corporation of Quebec under 40 Vict. (Q.), c. 52, s. 3. Desjardins v. City of Quebec (1900), 18 Que. S. C. 434.

Coal Mines Regulation Act, B.C. Employment of Chinamen-Rule prohibiting -Naturalization and aliens,]-Rule 34 of s. 82 of the Coal Mines Regulation Act as enacted by the Legislature in 1903, which prohibits Chinamen from employment below ground and also in certain other positions in and around coal mines, is in that respect ultra vires. Union Colliery Co.v. Bryden, [1899] A. C. 550, applied and distinguished from Cunningham v. Tomey Homma, [1903] A. C. 151. Per Irving, J.-The calling of the enactment in question a rule or regulation cannot affect its constitutionality, nor can the enactment derive any greater validity by reason of its insertion in the middle of a rule which in other respects may be intra vires. In re Coal Mines Regulation Act, 24 C. L. T. 342, 10 B. C. R. 408.

Common school fund—Lands in Ontario —Rights of Quebec—Submission of questions in dispute to arbitration—Jurisdiction of arbitrators to entertain certain claims by Quebec.]—Held, that the arbitrators appointed by the provinces of Ontario and Quebec for the ascertainment and determination of the principal of the Common School Fund and the amount for which Ontario was liable had no jurisdiction to entertain claims by Quebec against Ontario in respect of deductions and remissions allowed by Ontario to the purchasers of certain of the common school lands. — Decision of the Supreme Court of Canada (42 Can. 8. C. R. 161), affirmed by P. C. Atty-Gen. for Que. v. Atty-Gen. for Ont. (1910), 30 C. L. T. 825. [1910] A. C. 627.

Concurrent statutes—Legislative powers of Dominion and provinces—Prohibition and regulation of liquor traffic.]—The Temperance Act of 1864, commonly known as the Dunkin Act, has never been repealed and is still in force. Its operation, however, is not incompatible with that of the Quebec License Law, 63 Vict, c. 12 (Que.), and both statutes take effect concurrently. A conviction, therefore, under the latter for selling liquor without a license, in a municipality in which a by-law has been passed under the former, to prohibit the sale of intoxicating liquor, is valid, although the offence is also a breach of, and punishable under the Temperance Act. 1864. Ex p. O'Neill (1905), 28 Que, S. C. 304.

Conflict of laws-Dominion and provincial legislation—Trap-net and justification.] —In an action for damages for taking plaintiff's trap-net, defendant pleaded justification under R. S. C., 1906, c. 45, s. 47 (7), alleging that plaintiff had no license, although previously warned to procure one, and that s. 8 of said chapter provides for issuing of such license, and that in default of obtaining such license, plaintiff's net was liable to confiscation (s. 92). At trial it was contended on behalf of plaintiff that as the net was set in waters (not being a public harbour) which three miles of shore, the land belonging to the province, the Dominion Statute was ultra vires or inapplicable in respect to fisheries in such waters. Held, that the legislation in question was legislation to regulate and protect fisheries for benefit of the general public, and that as the Privy Council in Atty.-Gen. for Can. v. Atty.-Gen. for N. S., [1898] A. C. 712, has expressed opinion that "t is impossible to exclude [from Dominion Parliament] as not within its power the provision imposing a tax by way of license as a condition of the right to fish," the statute under which de-fendant justified was intra vires, and plain-Miller V. tiff's action must be dismissed. Webber (1910), 8 E. L. R. 460.

Conflict of laws-Dominion and provincial legislation.]-Defendant company was incorporated by a special Act of the Dominion Parliament, with powers to supply, sell and dispose of gas and electricity with other powers. Plaintiff company was incorporated by a provincial statute, and were given the exclusive right of supplying electricity with-in a certain radius. The plaintiff company brought action to restrain defendant company from supplying electricity within the certain radius covered by their charter: -Held, that where a field of legislation is within the competence of both the Dominion Parliament and a Provincial Legislature, and both have legislated, in case of conflict, the enactment of the Dominion Parliament shall prevail. Judgment of the Court of King's Bench for Quebec, 16 Que. K. B. 1, 406, and of the Superior Court at Arthabaska, affirmed. 6. the Superior Court and H. & L. Co., C. St. Francesis v. (1996), c. 139, ss. 3, 60-References by Gooernor-General in Council-Opinions and advice-Jurisdiction of Parliament - Independence of Judges-Judicial functions - Constitution of Courts-Administration of the laws of Canada-Provincial legislative jurisdiction.]-Pre Fitzpatrick, C.J., and Davies, Duff and Anglin, JJ.-The provisions of s. 60 of the Supreme Court Act, R. S. C. (1906), c. 139, are within the legislative jurisisdiction al-provincial Light of the Parliament of Canada.-Per Girouard and Idington, JJ.-The provisions of that section assuming to authorise references by the Governor-General in Council to the Judges of the Supreme Court of Canada for their opinions in respect to matters within provincial legislative jurisdiction are ultra vires of the Parliament of Canada; but, if the Governments of the Dominion and of a province unite in the submission of the quesbrownet unite in the submission of the quee-tions so referred, the Judges of the Supreme Court of Canada should entertain the refer-ence.—Pcr Idington, J.—The administration of justice in each province having been as-signed exclusively to it the power of Parliament in regard to the same is limited to creating a Court of Appeal and Courts for the administration of the laws of Canada.— Per Idington, J .--- Parliament has no power to authorise the interrogation of the Supreme Court of Canada except where the question submitted relates to some subject or matter respecting which it is competent for Parliament to legislate and respecting which it has legislated and competently constituted judicial authority in that Court to administer or aid in administering the laws so enacted .---Per Idington, J .-- Quare, as to the constitutionality of adopting a system of interrogations of the judiciary even when the questions are confined to subjects of the kind thus indicated. Contempt committed out of legislature—Power of arrest. —The House of Assembly of the Island of Newfoundland does not possess, as a legal incident, the power of arrest, with a view of adjudication on a contempt committed out of the House; but only such powers as are reasonably necessary for the proper exercise of its functions and duties as a local legislature. Semble, the House of Commons possesses this power only by virtue of ancient usage and prescription; the law et consultude parliamenti. Semble, the Crown, by its prerogative, can create a Legislature Assembly in a settled colony, subordinate to Parliament, but with supreme power within the limits of the colony for the government of its inhabitants; but quare, whether it can bestow upon it an autority, viz., that of commiting for contempt, not incidental to it by law. Copyright—Forcign reprints—Notice to English Commissioners of Customs—Entry at Stationers' Hall — Encyclopadia—Prima facie evidence—Imperial Acts—Agreement— License—Assignment—Registration.] — Section 152 of the Imperial Customs Act. 1876,

39 & 40 Vict. c. 36, requiring notice to be given to the Commissioners of Customs, of copyright and of the date of its expiration, is not in force in this country, notwithstanding the statement to the contrary in the note to table IV. of the appendix to vol. 3 of R. S. O. 1897. That statement is no part of the enactment of the legislature, but is intended merely as a reference, so that the Imperial Copyright Act of 1842, 5 & 6 V. c. 45, is left to its full operation: Garrow and MacLaren, JJ.A., dissenting. Smiles v. Belford, 1 A. R. 436, followed. A certified cop of the entry at Stationers' Hall of an encyclopædia is prima facie evidence of ownership under ss. 18 and 19 of the Act of 1842, and it is not necessary in making a prima facie case to prove the facts whereby such sections are made conditions precedent to the vesting of the copyright in one who is not the author. An agreement in writing whereby the plaintiffs, for value, gave certain other persons the right to print and sell a work at not less than certain fixed prices for the remainder of the term of the copyright, except the last 4 years thereof, and under which the plates used in printing were delivered over, which, with all unsold copies, were to be redelivered on the expiry of the agreement, and in which it was agreed not to announce the publication of another edition before such last mentioned period, expressly reserving the copyright to the plaintiffs :---Held, to be a license, and not an assignment and so not to require registration under s. and so not to require registration under s. 19 of 5 & 6 V. c. 45 (Imp.), Judgment in 5 O. Copyright—Works of fine art—Imperial statute.]—The Imperial Fine Arts Copyright Act, 1862, confers on British subjects and persons resident in British dominions copyright in pictures, drawings and photographs, It extends to the whole of the United Kingdom, but does not extend to any part of the British dominions outside of the United Kingdom. Tuch & Sons v. Priester, 19 Que, B. D. 629, approved. There is nothing in the Canadian Copyright Act, 1875, or in the International Copyright Acts, which conflicts with this view. Judgment in 22 C. County Court Act, Nova Scotia — Amendment, 1991, c. 22, a. 12-Intra vires-Appointment of Judge of another district to fill temporary accancy — Imprisonment — Place of detention—Criminal charge—Lockup—Presumption.]—The Provincial Acts of 1960, c. 22, s. 12, amended the County Court Act by providing that "in case of a vacancy in the office of Judge for any district the Governor in council may designate and appoint the Judge of any other district to act during the whole or any part of such vacancy." Under this provision the Governor in council appointed the Judge of the County Court for district No. 6 to act in district No. 5 during a temporary vacancy in the office of Judge for that district :—Held, following

In re County Courts of British Columbia, 21 S. C. R. 464, that the Act authorizing the appointment was intra vires of the provincial legislature, and that the appointment thereunder was a mere extension of the district for which the Judge who had been duly appointed was authorised to act, and that it was not open to the objection of being an encroachment upon the power of appointment vested in the government of Canada under the provisions of the British North America Act, s. 92, s.-s. 14 .- The defendant. who was confined in the lock-up of the town of Springhill, on a charge of unlawfully stealing or receiving stolen goods, was tried and convicted before the Judge so appointed. under the Criminal Code, s. 161, of the offence of breaking prison. The evidence shewed that the lock-up was situated in the same building with the office of the police magistrate of the town, and had been used for years as a place of detention for persons charged with the commission of criminal offences, and that there was no other place in the town used for such purpose :—Held. that the defendant was a person confined on a criminal charge within the meaning of the Code, tit, L. pt. 1, s. 3 (u), and that, with respect to the place of detention, the maxim omnia præsumuntur rite esse acta applied. and that the regularity of all proceedings necessary to constitute the lock-up a place of confinement in such cases was to be assumed. Rex v. Brown, 41 N. S. R. 293.

Creation of new provinces — Alberta Act — Sakatchewan Act — Ordinances of North-West Territorics continued in force— Independent provincial laws—Bills of Sale Ordinance.]—The Ordinances of the North-West Territories continued in force by the Alberta Act and the Saskatchewan Act, respectively, in each of these provinces, have no different or any more extensive effect than if they were Acts of the legislature of each province respectively. — Consequently the Bills of Sale Ordinance (C. O. c. 43), as a law of one province, is effective only within the limits of that province, and cannot affect the rights or tille of persons to goods in the other province, to any greater extent than if it were actually the law of a forcing state. Customs legislation-Conflict with imperial enactment - Duty upon foreign-built ship - Construction of Statutes - Crown Interest-Tort-Servant of Crown.] - The Parliament of Canada has legislative authority to impose customs duty upon a foreignbuilt ship to be paid upon application by her in Canada for registration as a British ship. 2. The provisions in item 409 of the Customs Tariff Act of 1897, which purports to impose a duty upon a foreign-built skip upon application by her for a Canadian register, is not a clear and unambiguous imposition of the duty, such as would support the right of the Crown to exact the payment of such duty. 3. Interest can only be recovered against the Crown by contract or under statute. 4. In the absence of statutory provision, the Crown is not liable to answer for the wrongful act of its officer or servant, Algoma Central Rw. Co. v. Rex, 22 C. L. T. 85, 7 Ex. C. R. 239.

Deportation of immigrants—Constitutional laws—Dowcer of Dominion Parliament —Alien Labour Act.]—Held, that s. 6 of Dom. statute 60 & 61 V. c. 11, as amended by 1 Edw. VII c. 13, s. 13, is intra vires of Dom. Parliament. The Crown undoubtedly possessed power to expel an alien from the Dom. or to deport him to the country whence he entered it. The above Act. assented to by the Crown, delegated that power to the Dom. Gov., which includes and authorises them to impose such extra-territorial constraint as is necessary to execute the power. Dominion and provincial lands — Military reserve—Title of the Dom.—Transfor by Imperial Government—B. N. A. Act, 1867, ss. 108, 117.].—The land in suit, called Deadman's Island, was de facto a "reserve" by the Gov. of B. C. under par. 3 of the Proclamation of 1850, and according to evidence a military reserve:—Held, that it remained Imperial property at the time of the B. N. A. Act, 1867, and was transferred to the Dom. by special grant dated the 27th March, 1884. It did not, therefore, fall to the colony in virtue of s. 117 of the Act. nor to the Dominion in virtue of s. 108. Dominion civil servants - Judgment debtors - Salaries-Payment of judgments out of, by instalments—Ultra vires—Discre-tion.]—K., M., and W. were officers of the Government of Canada and were in receipt of annual salaries amounting to $1.800, $400 of animal samples anomaly \mathcal{S} , \mathcal{K}_{∞} upon being extan-ined before the Judge of a County Court, was, under 50 V. c. 28, s. 55, ordered to pay the amount of the judgment against him by instalments at the rate of 85 per month. M. and W., being examined before the Judge of another County Court, were, under the same section, ordered to pay the amounts of the judgments against them by instalments at the rate of $5 and $10 per month respectively:-Held, Landry, J., dissenting, that the provisions of 59 V. c. 28, s. 53 (N.B.), au-thorising the Judge or other officer before whom the examination is held, upon it being made to appear to him that the judgment debtor is unable to pay the whole of the debt in one sum, but is able to pay the same by instalments, to make an order that the debtor shall pay the amount of the judgment debt by instalments, in so far as it is sought to apply the same to salary or income derived from office or employment under the Government of Canada, is ultra vires of the Provincial Legislature, and, therefore, that orders against K., M., and W. should be quashed. 2. That in the cases of M. and W., there being no evidence or charge of fraudulent conduct on their part, the circumstances shewed such an improper exercise of discretion on the part of the Judge that the orders made by him should be quashed on that ground as well, Exp, Killam, Exp, McLeod, Exp, Wilkins, 34 N, B, R, 530.

at points within or immediately adjoining the boundary of the city of Toronto, and directed the cosis thereof to be borne in equal proportions by the railway company and the city corporation. In a suit by the railway company, after the execution of works as directed, to recover the apportioned amount from the corporation:--Held, that ss. 187 and 188 were intra circs of the Dominion Legislature by force of the British North America Act, 1807, s. 91, s.-s. 20, and s. 92, s.-s. 10 (a).--Held, also, that, having regard to s. 7, s.-s. 2, of the Interpretation Act, R. S. C. 1886, c. 1, "person" in s. 188 includes a municipality.--Judgment of Court of Appeal in Canadian Pacific Rv. Co. V. City of Toronto, 9 O. W. R. 785, affirmed. City of Toronto v. Exemptions from taxation-Land subsidies of the Canadian Pacific Railway -Extension of the boundaries of Manitoba-Statutes — Contract—Grant in prasenti — Causs of action—Jurisdiction—Waiver.] — The land subsidy of the Canadian Pacific Railway Company authorised by 44 V. c. 1 (D.), is not a grant in prasenti, and, consequently, its hot a grant in progent, and, conse-quently, the period of 20 years of exemption from taxation of such lands provided by clause 16 of the contract for the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railway begins from the date of the actual letters patent of grant from the Crown, after they have been from time to time carned, selected, surveyed, allotted, and accepted by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company. The exemption was from taxation "by the Dominion, or any province hereafter to be established, or any municipal corporation therein :"-Held, that when, in 1881, a portion of the North-West Territories in which this exemption attached was added to Manitoba, the latter was a province "thereafter established," and such added territory continued to be subject to the said exemption from taxation. The limitation in respect of legislation affecting the territory so added to Manitoba, by virtue of the Dominion Act, 44 V. c. 14, upon the terms and conditions assented to by the Manitoba Acts 44 V. (3rd sess.), cc. 1 and 6, are consti-tutional limitations of the powers of the legislature of Manitoba in respect to such added territory, and embrace the previous legislation of the Parliament of Canada relating to the Canadian Pacific Railway and the land subsidy in aid of this construction. Taxation of any kind attempted to be laid upon any part of such land subsidy by the North-West Conncil, the North-West Legislative Assembly, or any municipal or school corporation therein is Dominion taxation within the meaning of clause 16 of the Canadian Pacific Railway contract providing for exemption from taxation. Per Taschereau, C.J.C. :- In the case of the Springdale School District, as the whole cause of action arose in the North-West Territories, the Court of King's Bench for Manitoba had no jurisdiction to entertain the action or to render the judgment appealed from in that case, and such want of jurisdicfrom in that case, and such want of jurisan-tion could not be waived. Judgment in 14 Man. L. R. 382, 23 C. L. T. 159, varied. Rural Municipality of North Cypress v. Canadian Pacific Rw. Co., Rural Municipality of Argyle v. Canadian Pacific Rw. Explosives - Statute - Construction -Ejusdem generis rule - Constitutional law -Petroleum Inspection Act.]-The defendant was convicted for a breach of a city by-law. which enacted that no larger quantity than three barrels of rock oil, coal oil, or other similar oils, nor any larger quantity than one barrel of crude oil, burning fluid, naphtha, benzole, benzine, or "other combustible or dangerous materials," should be kept at any one time in a house or shop in the city, exone time in a noise or shop in the city, ex-cept under certain limitations. The by-law was passed under s.-s. 17 of s. 542 of the Municipal Act, R. S. O. c. 223, such section being headed, "Storing and Transportation of Gunpowder," and providing "for regulaing the keeping and storing of gunpowder and other combustible or dangerous materand other combustible or dangerous inder-ials," and being one of a group of sections under division VI. of the Act, headed, "Pro-tection of Life and Property," sub-division 3 of the said division, which included s. 542. being under the heading "Prevention of Fires:"—Held, that s.s. 17 authorised the passing of the by-law, and that the conviction could be supported thereunder, for that the words "other combustible or dangerous materials" were not limited by the ejusdem generis rule to gunpowder or other similar substances, but would include the substances set out in the by-law; and that such legislation was not superseded by Dominion legislation, for the Petroleum Inspection Act. 1899, 62 & 63 V. c. 27 (D.), dealing with the Subject, was expressly made conformable thereto. Rex v. McGregor, 22 C. called "The International Correspondence School," the object being to give, by correspondence through the mails, instruction to applicants for enrollment as students, the company having representatives throughout the province for procuring such applications. all of which were submitted to the head office for approval, and, if accepted, the certificates of enrollment were sent direct to the students with the lesson and instruction papers, followed at stated intervals by fur-ther instruction and lesson papers, pamphlets, etc., and, when the contract so provided, lesson books in bound form, drawing materials, photographic and other outfits, were lent to the students. The company had an office in Toronto, over which their name was affixed, with a superintendent, cashier, and a number of stenographers, to which all moneys collected in this province were forwarded, and from there remitted to the head office; while the bound lesson books, etc., for convenience of passage through the customs. were sent from the head office to Toronto. and after the payment of the duties were for warded by the postmaster to the students. Salaries were paid by the cashier at Toronto out of the moneys in his hands :--Held, that the Act 63 V. c. 24 (O.), for licensing of extra-provincial corporations, was intra vires the Provincial Legislature, as coming within s. 92, s.-s. 2, of the B. N. A. Act, being a mode of direct taxation within the province, or as relating to the issuing of licenses in order to the raising of a revenue; and that the plaintiffs were carrying on business in Ontario within the meaning of the Act, so as to necessitate their taking out a license, and their omission to do so precluded them from maintaining an action for the recovery of moneys claimed to be due from one of the enrolled students. Extradition—Establishment of federal Court—Provincial Courts — Prohibition— Refusal—Appeal to Court of Kims's Bench.1 —The refusal of a Judge of the Superior Court to grant leave to issue a writ of summons in a demand for prohibition is a judgment from which an appeal lies to the Court of King's Bench.—2. The right of supervision and control of the Superior Court and its Judges given by Art. 50, C. P. C., does not extend to a Federal Court established to administer the extradition laws, and the remedy by Art. 1003, C. P. C., is not open against the latter Court.—3. The Federal Government has power by the constitution to establish a Court presided over by a commissioner appointed for that purpose to administer the extradition laws. Gaynor v. Lafontaine, 14 Que, K. B. 99.

Ferry—Creation and license—Jura regalia —Dominion or province—Public harbour— River improvements.]—The right to create and license a ferry, having been one of the jura regalia or royalties which belonged to the provinces of the Union, so continued after Confederation, as declared by s. 100 of the B. N. A. Act; and therefore the lease of a ferry between the town of Sault Sic. Marie, in the province of Ontario, and the town of Sault Sic. Marie, in the State of Michigan.

granted by the Dominion Government in 1897, was invalid. The exclusive legislative authority over ferries given to the Dominion Parliament by s.-s. 13 of s. 91, does not carry with it any right to grant ferries. Even if the St. Mary's river at the point in question were a public harbour which passed under s. 108 to the Dominion, this would not give the Dominion Government the right to grant an exclusive ferry privilege. But it is not a public harbour; something more is necessary to convert an open river front into a public harbour than the erection along it of four or five wharves projecting beyond the shallows of the shore. The exist-ence of improvements in the river bed in front of the town, being front of the town, belonging to the Dominion Government, afforded no reason for the entire control of the ferry across the river being held to be in the Dominion Govern-The Dominion Parliament or Government. ment have a right to regulate such ferries as the ferry in question, for the purpose of preventing them from interfering with public harbours and river improvements of the Dominion. Perry v. Clergue, 23 C. L. T. 91, 5 O. L. R. 357, 2 O. W. R. 89.

Ferry-Exclusive privilege - North-west Territories Legislative Assembly - Municipal institutions-Property and civil rights-Delegation of powers-License-Tolls-Highway -By-law-Private ferry.]-The Legislative Assembly of the Territories has power to pass an Ordinance providing for the issue of an exclusive license to ferry over a navigable river, and for the imposition of tolls. Such power is conferred upon the Assembly by one, if not both, of the following provisions of the Dominion Order in Council of 26th June, 1893-made under the authority of the North-West Territories Act-which authorises the subject to any legislation by the Parliament of Canada as heretofore or hereafter enacted. (See B. N. A. Act. s. 92, s.-s. 8).-8. Property and civil rights in the Territories-Subject to any legislation of the Parliament of Canada on these subjects. (See B. N. A. Act, s. 92, s.-s. 16.)-The power of the Legislative Assembly to delegate its powers discussed. The question of the extent of the jurisdiction of the Legislative Assembly over surveyed highways, the control of which has been given by Parliament to the Legislative Assembly, discussed. A municipality having by Ordinance been given, with respect to a certai portion of a navigable river, all the powers of the various officers named in the Territorial Ordinance respecting- ferries : -Held, that it was not necessary for the municipality to exercise its powers by by-law; and that an agreement with, and a license to, the licensee, both under the corporate seal of the municipality, were sufficient. The plaintiff held an exclusive license for a ferry. other ferry was operated within the plaintiff's territory by an unincorporated association of persons, which issued tickets to its members to the amount of their respective "shares in the association :--Held, that this latter ferry was not a private ferry, and that the plaintiff's right was thereby infringed. Fisheries Act-Powers of Dominion Parliament-Exclusive rights of fishery over provincial property-Ultra vires-License fees-Illegality-Damages.]-In an action for damages for an alleged invasion of the plaintiff's rights by the defendant (both being licensees under the Fisheries Act, R. S. C. c. 95, s. 4. authorized to use trap nets having leaders of 10 fathoms, for the purpose of taking deep sea fish, other than salmon, in the public waters of St. Margaret's Bay, in the province of Nova Scotia), in setting his net within the distance prohibited by the general fishery regulations of Nova Scotia, under penalty provided by the Act, it was held, following Attorney-General of Canada v. Attorney-General of Ontario, [1898] A. C. 701, that the Act, so far as it empowered the granting of exclusive rights of fishery over provincial property, was ultra vires; and the fact that the plaintiff had a leader of 25 fathoms length attached to his trap, whereas he had only paid license fees in respect to one of 10 fathoms, was not an illegality relevant to the plaintiff's case, and was too remote to prevent recovery of damages. Young v. Harnish, 37 N. S. R. 213.

Foreshore of harbour - British North America Act, 1867, ss. 91, 92, 108-Power of the Dominion to legislate for provincial Crown property-Dominion Act, 44 V. c. 1, 8. 18 (a)-Provincial foreshore.]-Section 108 of the British North America Act, 1867, empowers the Dominion Parliament to legislate for any land, including foreshore, which is proved to form part of a public harbour. Sections 91 and 92, read together, empower the Dominion to dispose of provincial Crown lands, and therefore of a provincial foreshore, for the purposes of the respondents' railway. which is a trans-continental railway connecting several provinces :—Held, that s. 18 (a) of the respondents' incorporating Dominion Act (44 V. c. 1), is not controlled by the Consolidated Railway Act, 1879, and applies to provincial as well as Dominion Crown lands .- Power given thereunder to appropriate the foreshore in question includes a power to obstruct any rights of passage previously existing across it.—Judgment in 11 B. C. R. 289, 1 W. L. R. 299, affirmed. Attorney-General for British Columbia v. Canadian Pacific Rw. Co., [1906] A. C. 204 in the province of Quebec, in 1845, under a franchise granted to him by an Act, 8 Vict. 90, of the late province of Canada, in 1845, on the condition therein expressed that on the expiration of the term of fifty years the works should vest in the Crown as a free bridge for public use, and that Y., or his representatives, should then be compensated therefor by the Crown, provision being also made for ascertaining the value of the works by arbitration and award :---Held, affirming the judgment of the Exchequer Court of Canada, 6 Ex. C. R. 103, that the claim of the suppliants for the value of the works at the time they vested in the Crown on the expiration of the fifty years franchise was a liability of the late province of Canada coming within the operation of the 111th section of the British North America Act, 1867. and thereby imposed on the Dominion ; that there was no lien or right of retention charged upon the property; and that the fact that the liability was not presently payable at the date of the passing of the British North America Act, 1867, was immaterial. The Attorney-General of Canada v. The Attorney-General of Ontario, [1897] A. C. 199, 25 Can. S. C. R. 434, followed.—Held, also, that the arbitration provided for by the third section of the Act, 8 V. c. 90, did not impose the necessity of obtaining an award as a condition precedent, but merely afforded a remedy for the recovery of the value of the works at a time when the parties interested could not have resorted to the present remedy by petition of right, and that the suppliants claim for compensation under the provisions of that Act, 8 V. c. 90, was a proper sub-ject for petition of right within the juris-diction of the Exchequer Court of Canada. Yule v. Regina, 30 S. C. R. 24, 19 C. L. T. 371.

Frandulent entry of horses at exhibitions.]—The Act to Prevent the Fraudulent Entry of Horses at Exhibitions. R. S. O. 1897 c. 254, is within the powers of the Ontario Legislature. A conviction of the defendant for an offence against that Act, with an adjudication of a fine and imprisonment in default of payment, was affirmed. Res v. Horning, 24 C. L. T. 384, 8 O. L. Government railway - Negligence of fellow-servant—Common employment — Lord Campbell's Act—Widow and children—Action -Bar-Damages, |-Art. 1056, C. C., embodies the action previously given by a statute of the province of Canada re-enacting Lord Campbell's Act.-Robinson v. Canadian Pacific Rw. Co., [1892] A. C. 481, distin-guished.—A workman may so contract with his employer as to exonerate the latter from liability for negligence, and such renunciation would be an answer to an action under Lord Campbell's Act.—Griffiths v. Earl Dud-ley, 9 Oue, B. D. 357, followed.—In s. 50 of the Government Railways Act, R. S. C. c. 38, the words "notice, condition, or declarado not include a contract or agreetion " ment by which an employee has renounced his right to claim damages from the Crown for injury from negligence of his fellow-servants .- Vogel v. Grand Trunk Riv. Co., 11 S. C. R. 612, disapproved.-An employee of the Intercolonial Railway became a member of the Intercolonial Railway Relief and As-surance Association, to the funds of which the Government contributed annually $6,000. In consequence of such contribution, a rule of the association provided that the members renounced all claims against the Crown arising from injury or death in the course of their employment. The employee having been killed in the discharge of his duty by negligence of a fellow-servant :-Held, reversing the judgment of the Exchequer Court, 6 Ex. C. R. 276, 19 C. L. T. 202, that the rule of the association was an answer to an action by his widow under Art. 1056, C. C., to re-cover compensation for his death.—The doctrine of common employment does not pre-vail in the province of Quebec. Grenier v. Regina, 19 C. L. T. 378, 30 S. C. R. 42.

Illegal fishing-Three-mile limit-Legislative jurisdiction-Continuous chase-Capture on high seas.]—The Dominion cruiser "Kestrel" sighted the American schooner "North" on the fishing grounds in Quatsino Sound, within the three-mile limit off the coast of British Columbia, having four dories out and evidently engaged in fishing for halibut, contrary to the provisions of R. S. C. c. 94. On being chased by the cruiser, the schooner picked up two of her dories, and stood out to sea. The cruiser kept up a con-tinuous chase (picking up one of the dories on the way), overhauled and seized the schooner on the high seas, some distance outside the Winter Harbour, B.C., where she was pro-perly attached and libelled in the Exchequer Court of Canada. At the time of seizure, freshly caught halibut were lying upon the deck of the schooner, and there were other evidences that she had been recently engaged in fishing :--Held, affirming the judgment of Martin, Loc. J., Rex v. The "North," 11 B. C. R. 473, 2 W. L. R. 74, Girouard, J., dissenting, that the Parliament of Canada, under the provisions of the British North America Act, 1867, has exclusive jurisdiction to legis-late with respect to fisheries within the threemile limit off the coasts of Canada; that the cruiser had the right to immediately pursue the schooner sighted within the three-mile limit beyond that limit on to the high seas for the infraction of a municipal regulation of Canada; and that the seizure there made was justified by the rules of international law. The "North" v. Rex, 26 C. L. T. 380, 37 S. C. R. 385.

Incorporation of railway company by provincial statute—Work for general advantage of Canada — Declaration of, by Dominion statute—Application of provincial Crowen Franchises Regulation Act. J.-The defendants were originally incorporated in 1897 by a Provincial Act. In 1898, by a Dominion Act, their objects were declared to be works for the general advantage of Canada and thereafter to be subject to the legislative authority of the Parliament of Canada and the provisions of the Railway Act:— Held, setting aside an order allowing the Crown Franchises Regulation Act, that the said Act did not apply to the company. Attorney-General for British Columbia v. Vancouver, Victoria, and Eastern Rue. and Masigation Co., 9 B.C. R. 338.

Indian lands-Extinguishment of Indian title-Payment by Dominion - Liability of province-Exchequer Court Act. 8. 32-Dispute between Dominion and province,1 Where a dispute between the Dominion and a where a dispute between the Dominion and a province of Canada, or between two pro-vinces, comes before the Exchequer Court as provided by s. 32 of R. S. C. 1906 c. 140, it should be decided on a rule or principle of law, and not merely on what the Judge of the Court considers fair and just between the parties.—In 1873 a treaty was entered into between the government of Canada and the Salteaux tribe of Ojibeway Indians inhabiting land acquired by the former from the Hudson Bay Co. By that treaty the Salteaux agreed to surrender to the government all their right, title, and interest in and to said lands, and the government agreed to provide reserves, maintain schools, and prohibit the sale of liquor therein, and allow the Indians to hunt and fish, to make a present of $12 for each man, woman, and child in the bands, and pay each Indian $5 per year, and salaries and clothing to each chief and sub-chief; also to furnish farming implements and stock to those cultivating land. At the time the treaty was made, the boundary between Ontario and Manitoba had not been defined. When it finally was determined in 1884, it was found that 30,500 square miles of the territory affected by it was in Ontario, and in 1903 the Dominion government brought before the Exchequer Court a claim to be reimbursed for a proportionate part of the outlay incurred in extinguishing the Indian title. The province disputed liability, and, by counterclaim, asked for an account of the revenues received by the Dominion while ad-ministering the lands in the province under a provisional agreement pending the adjustment of the boundary .- Privy Council held, that the Dominion Government, in concluding the treaty with the Indians, was not acting for, on behalf of, nor as trustee for Ontario, but for the benefit of the whole Canadian nation, and, therefore, was not entitled to any contribution. Indian lands-Surrender - Proprietary right—Power of disposition—B, N. A. Act, 8. 91-Leave to appeal.]-Lands in Ontario surrendered by the Indians by the treaty of 1873, belong in full beneficial interest to the Crown as representing the province, subject only to certain privileges of the Indians reonly to certain privileges of the Indians re-served by the treaty. The Crown can only dispose thereof on the advice of the Min-isters and under the seal of the province. St. Catharines Milling Co. v. The Queen, 14 App. Cas. 46, followed. The Dominion Government having purported, without the consent of the province, to appropriate part of the surrendered lands under its own seal as a reserve for the Indians in accordance with the said treaty :- Held, that this was ultra vires the Dominion, which had, by s. 91 of the Britisl North America Act, exclusive legislative authority over the lands in question, but had no proprietary rights therein. The consent of the province having been subsequently provided for by a statutory agreement between the two governments, the special leave to appeal granted upon the representation of the general public importance of the question involved would probably have been rescinded ia petition to that effect had been made. Judgment in 32 S. C. R. 1, and 32 O. R. 205, affirmed. Ontario Mining Co. v. Seybold, [1903] A. C. 73.

Indians-Treaties with - Contingent annuities - Debts of the province of Canada -Res judicata.] - The award complained of by the province of Quebec determined that certain payments made by the Dominion of Canada in virtue of the Huron and Superior Treaties with the Ojibeway Indians for ar-rears of augmented annuities and interest from 1867 to 1873, and for increased annuities in excess of the fixed annuities with interest paid subsequently should be taken into account and included in the debt of the late province of Canada mentioned in the 12th section of the British North America Act, 1867 :- Held, affirming the decision of the arbitrators, that the question of these contingent annuities had been considered and decided by Her Majesty's Privy Council in the case of The Attorney-General of Canada v. The Attorney-General of Ontario (1897). A. C. 199, and that the payments so made by the Dominion were recoverable from the provinces of Ontario and Quebec conjointly in the same manner as the original annuities. Province of Quebec v. Dominion of Canada Arbitration, In re Indian Claims, 30 S. C. R. 151.

Interest-Rate of-Mortgage - Redemption-British company lending money in Canada-Contract-Application of law of Canada -Tender of mortgage money-Agents in Canada—Bill of exchange.]—In an action to com-pel the defendants, mortgagees in Great Britain, to accept the principal money and interest due on a ten-year mortgage, which had run for six and one-half years, under the provisions of R. S. C. c. 127, s. 7, in which it was contended that that section was ultra vires of the Dominion Parliament, and that the tender was not made to the proper agents -Held, that the section was intra vires of the Dominion Parliament, and it was not restricted in its application to such more gages as are mentioned in s. 3 of the Act. but applies to every mortgage on real estate executed after the 1st July, 1880, where the money secured "is not under the terms of the mortgage payable till a time more than five years after the date of the mortgage." That the words of 8, 25 of R. S. O. 1897 c. 205, are wide enough to apply to morrgages executed prior to the passing of that Act. 3. That the defendants' Imperial Act of incorporation gave them the right to lend money in Canada in the same way as an individual could do, but gave them no higher or other rights. 4. That the loan being made, the property situated, and the mortgage giving the option of payment in Canada, the law of Canada must govern in relation to the contract and its incidents. 5. That the agency of the persons to whom the tender was made was established and that the tender of a bill of exchange was sufficient under the terms of the mortgage. Bradburn v. Edin-burgh Life Assurance Co., 23 C. L. T. 199. 5 O. L. R. 657, 2 O. W. R. 253.

Insurance company-License for British Columbia-Insurance Act of Canada. 1-H. was the authorised agent at Vancouver of an insurance company incorporated in Ontario but which was not registered or licensed under the provisions of any British Columbia statute or of the Insurance Act of Canada. H. was convicted by the police magistrate for Vancouver, under the provisions of the Insurance Act, for carrying on an insurance business without a license :--Held, that the Act is intra vires of the Parliament of Canada, Regina v. Holland, 20 C. L. T. 343, 7 B. C. R. 281.

Jurisdiction of Parliament of Canada on matters exclusively within its legislative powers is of paramount authority, and is not subject to restrictions and formalities imposed by law relating to property and civil rights in the provinces. Veilleux v. Atlantic & Lake Superior Rw. Co. (1910).

1906, schedule "A" (R. S. C. vol. 3, p. 2941), —The effect of 6 & 7 Edw. VII. c. 44 (D.) considered. Independently of the North-West Territories Act. 1905 (4 & 5 Edw, VII. c. 27 (D.). the effect of the Alberta Act was not to repeal the former North-West Territories Act but to prevent lis remaining in force proprio vigore; and (s. 16) to continue in force the law therein contained as a body of law, in the same manner as the common and statute law of England. as it stood on the 15th July, 1870, was introduced into the Territories. Jury Ordinance N. W. T.—North-West Territories Act — Repeal — Restoration.]— The effect of c. 44 of t Edw. VIL. Law Society Act, R. S. M. 1902, c. 95, s. 65-Intra vires-Bargain between solicitor and client-Contract to share fruits of litigation - Champerty and maintenance -Criminal Code, s, 12-Obsolete criminal laws Criminal Code, s, 12–Obsolve criminal laws —Property and civil rights.]—Section 65 of the Law Society Act, R. S. M. 1902, c. 95, which permits a solicitor to contract with any person as to the remuneration to be paid him for services, and to receive a portion of the proceeds of the subject-matter of the action in which he is employed, and to receive remuneration by way of commission on the remineration by way of commission on the amount recovered, etc., is intra vires of the Manitoba legislature. By s. 12 of the Crim-inal Code, R. S. C. 1906 c. 146 (taken from 51 Vict, c. 33, s. 1 (D.), it is declared that the criminal law of England as it existed on the criminal new of England as it existed on the 15th July, 1870, in so far as it is appli-cable to the Province of Manitoba, and so far as not repealed, varied, etc., shall be the criminal law of Manitoba:—Held, that, by this enactment, Parliament did not intend to introduce into the province of Manitoba obsolete criminal laws or any law inapplicable to the then existing conditions of socame to the time existing countries of so-clety in that province; and though main-tenance, including champerty, is still tech-nically an offence, it is not now treated as a crime, and is only invoked for the purpose of raising a defence that an agreement is illegal; and to remove this illegality in a contract and make it enforceable would belong to the legislative authority which has exclusive jurisdiction over property and civil rights. If maintenance and champerty had been declared by Dominion statute to be criminal offences throughout Canada, s. 65 of the Law Society Act would be ultra vires, but, as the legislation stands, they have not been introduced as actual criminal offences applicable to Manitoba. Meloche v. Deguire, 34 S. C. R. 24, Hopkins v. Smith, 1 O. L. R. 659, and Briggs v. Fleutot, 10 B. C. R. 309, do not apply to the condition of the law of Manitoba. Judgment of the County Court of Winnipeg in favour of the plaintiffs, solicitors, in an action to recover a portion of the amount received by the defendant as the fruits of litigation carried on by the plaintiffs for the defendant, pursuant to a contract for payment of half the amount recovered, affirmed. Thomson v. Wishart (1910), 13 W. L. R. 445.

Legislative Assembly - Powers of speaker — Precincts of house — Expulsion from.]—The public have access to the legislative chambers and precincts of the House of Assembly, as a matter of privilege only, under license either tacit or express, which can be revoked whenever necessary in the interest of order and decorum. The power of the Speaker and officers of the House to preserve order may be exercised during the intervals of adjournment between sessions as well as when the House is sitting. A staircase leading from the street entrance up to the corridor of the House is a part of the precincts of the House, and a member of the public who conducts himself thereon so as to interfere with the discharge by members of their public duties may lawfully be removed. Judgment in 36 N. S. R. 211, reversed, and a new trial ordered. Payson v. Hubert, 24 C. L. T. 168, 34 S. C. R. 400.

Legislative Assembly-Power to punish for contempt-Court of record - Limited jurisdiction-Warrant-Seal, 1-A provincial House of Assembly is not a general Court of Record, but only one for the purposes specified in R. S. N. S., 5th ser., c. 30. 2. A warrant under the hand and seal of the Speaker of the Nova Scotia House of Assembly, reciting that T. was by resolution of the House adjudged guilty of a contempt thereof, committed in the face of the House, and was adjudged to be committed to gaol, commanded the Sergeant-at-Arms to convey T. to gaol and the gaoler to receive him :--Held, that the commitment was not under the Act: that the House can only proceed for contempt in the way pointed out by the Act and not by a general warrant, 3. Assuming that the House had the right to punish for a contempt committed in its face while acting as a Court of Record inquiring into a libel, the warrant should shew that the House was sitting as a Court of Record, which it did not shew, Van Sandatt v, Turner, 6 Q. B. 783. followed. If the House was a Court of Record, the warrant was bad because not under seal and not running in the name of Her Majesty. 5. Even if the House had power Majesty. to commit for contempt in excess of that specially conferred by the statute, it could not commit to the common gaol, but only to the custody of an officer of the House. Liabilities of province at Confederation—Special funds — Rate of interest — Trust funds or debt—Award of 1870—B. N. A. Act, 1867, ss. 111, 142. — Among the assets of the province of Ontario at confederation were certain special funds, namely, U. C. Grummar School Fund, U. C. Building Fund, and U. C. Improvement Fund, and the province was a debtor in respect thereto and liable for interest thereon. By s. 111 of the B. N. A. Act, 1867, the Dominion of Canada succeeded to such liability, and paid the province interest at 5 per cent. up to In the award made in 1870 and fin-1904.ally established in 1878, on the arbitration under s. 142 of the Act to adjust the debts and assets of Upper and Lower Canada, it was adjudged that these funds were the property of Ontario. On appeal from the judgment of the Exchequer Court in an action for a declaration as to the rights of the province in respect to these funds: - Held, affirming the judgment, 10 Ex. C. R. 292, Idington, J., dissenting, that though before the award the Dominion was obliged to hold the funds and pay the interest thereon to Ontario, after the award the Dominion had a right to pay over the same with any accrued interest to the pro-vince, and thereafter be free from liability in respect thereof.—Held, also, that until the principal sum was paid over, the Dominion was liable for interest thereon at the rate of 5 per cent. per annum. Liquor Act of Manitoba—Powers of Provincial Legislature.] — The Manitoba Liquor Act of 1900, for the suppression of the liquor traffic in that province, is within the powers of the Provincial Legislature, its subject being and having been dealt with as a matter of a merely local nature in the province, within the meaning of the British North America Act, 1867, s. 92, s.-s. 16, notwithstanding that in its practical working it must interfere with Dominion revenue, and indirectly at least with business operations outside the province. Attorney-General for Ontario v. Attorney-General for the Dominion, (1806] A. C. 348, followed. Judgment in 21 C. L. 7. 212, 13 Man, L. R. 239, reversed. Attorney-General for Manitoba v. Liquor Act of Ontario, 1902—Intra vires—Voting on by electors—Delegation of legislative power—Corrupt practices—Appointment of Judge to conduct trial.]—The subject matter of the Ontario Liquor Act, 1902, is one with regard to which the Legislature is competent to enact a law or laws.

General for the Dominion, [1896] A. 348, General for the Lormiton, [1500] A. ora-and Attorney-General of Manitoba v. Mani-toba License Holders' Association, [1902] A. C. 73 followed. The Legislature, in enacting the Liquor Act, did not exceed, or fail to properly exercise its powers. Legislation which provides a law, but leaves the time and manner of its taking effect to be determined by the vote of the electors, is not a delega tion of legislative power to them. Russell v. The Queen, 7 App. Cas. 829, The Queen v. Burah, 3 App. Cas. 889, and City of Fredericton v. The Queen, 3 S. C. R. 505, followed. By s. 91 (4), providing that the president of the High Court shall designate a County or District Judge to conduct the trial of persons accused of corrupt practices at the taking of the vote under part I., the Legislature did not assume the power of appointing Judges, and did not exceed its powers in providing that a County or District Judge designated should exercise jurisdiction outside of his own county or district; and a Judge 57 and 57 and 57 and 57 and 57 and 57 and 58 and Liquor Act of Ontario, 1902-Referendum - Power of Legislature-Trial of offenders - Constitution of Court-" To conduct the trial —County Judge — Issue of summons—Adjournment for sentence.]—On a motion to quash a conviction for attempting to put a paper other than a ballot paper to put a paper other than a bally bar, contrary authorised by law into a bally to box, contrary to the provisions of s. 191 of the Ontario Election Act and s. 91 of the Liquor Act, 1902:-Held, that the reference by the Legis lature of such a question as that mentioned in s. 2 of the Liquor Act, 1902, to the vote of electors, instead of the Legislature itself deciding it, is unusual, but well within the powers of the Legislature :--Held, also, that the intention of the Legislature under s.-s. 4 of s. 91 was to create a tribunal with authority to try certain specific offences; that the Court so created had power under the words "to conduct the trial" to bring the party charged before the Court, try him for the offence, and sentence him if found guilty; that the County Judge appointed to conduct the trial does not act as a County Judge, but as a Court specially created; that it was intended that he should act out of his own county in holding the actual trial; that he may issue his summonses in his own county or elsewhere; and has power, after finding the accused guilty, to adjourn the Court to a subsequent day for the purpose of passing sentence. Section 191 of R. S. O. 1897 c. 9 is wide enough not only to meet the case of an offending returning officer or deputy re-Rex v, Walsh, 23 C. L. T. 186, 5 O. L. R. 527, 2 O. W. R. 222, 3 O. W. It was contended on behalf of the plaintiff that this section was ultra wires the Provincial Legislature, so far as it related to wholesale licenses: — Held, that the Legislature had power to enact have requiring dealers in intexicating liquors, whether wholesale or retail, to take out licenses, and that this not having been done in the present case, the sale was illegal and the plaintiff could not recover. - Contract - Illegal considera-Lottery tion.]-The Provincial Legislatures have no jurisdiction to permit the operation of lotterles forbidden by the criminal statutes of Can-A contract in connection with a scheme ada. for the operation of a lottery forbidden by the criminal statutes of Canada is unlawful, and cannot be enforced in a court of justice. The illegality which vitiates such a contract cannot be waived or condoned by the conduct or pleas of the party against whom it is asserted, and it is the duty of the Courts, ex mero motu, to notice the nullity of such contracts at any stage of the case and with-out pleadings. Per Girouard, J., dissenting. In Canada, before the Criminal Code, 1892 lotteries were mere offences or contraventions, and not crimes, and consequently the Act of the Quebec Legislature is constitutional. L'Association St. Jean Baptiste de Montreal v. Brault, 21 C. L. T. 5, 30 S. C. R. 598, 4 Can. Cr. Cas. 284.

Magistrates' Courts-Jurisdiction-Delegation of poicers — Poicers of police magistrate — Summary trials — Criminal Code, s. 785.]—By section 785 of the Crimlinal Code, any person charged before a police markitrate in Ontario with an offence which might be tried at the General Sessions of the Peace, may, with his own consent, be tried by the magistrate and sentenced, if convicted, to the same punishment as if tried at the General Sessions. By an amendment in 1900, 63 Vict. c. 46, the provisions of said section were extended to police and stipendiary magistrates of cities and towns in other parts of Canada:-Held, that though there are no Courts of General Sessions except in Ontario, the amending Act is not, therefore, inoperative, but gives to a magistrate in any other province the jurisdiction created for Coct.-26

Ontario by section 785. Though the organisation of Courts of criminal jurisdiction is within the exclusive powers of the Provincial Legislatures, the Parliament of Canada may impose upon existing Courts or individuals the duty of administering the criminal law and its action to that end need not be supplemented by provincial legislation. Act-Constitution of Courts-Ap-pointment of Judges - Property and civil Pointment of suges — Property and composition — rights—Justices of the pace—Conviction — *N. W. T. W. T. Act, R. S. C. c. 50, s. 13, of 11th May, 1877, and 20th June, 1883. — The former order in council gave power to pass Ordinances in relation to: 6. The administration of justice, including the constitution, organisation, and maintenance of Territorial Courts of civil jurisdiction. 7. The imposition of punishment by fine, penalty, or imprisonment for enforcing any Territorial Ordinances. S. Property and civil rights in the Territories, subject to any legislation by the Parliament of Canada on legislation by the Parlament of Carlos and these subjects. The latter order in council contained clauses in the same words. Per Wetmore and McGuire, JJ.: The provision in question of the Masters and Servants Ordinance did not purport to constitute a criminal offence, but was designed to give enlarged rights, and a more effective and speedy remedy with respect to a civil contract : the remedy by imprisonment is a competent exercise of the power to legislate under the above cited paragraphs of the order in council, and paragraph 6 does not exclude in council, and paragraph 6 does not exclude the power of appointing judicial differes. The Dominion Statute 54 & 55 V. c. 22, s. 6, sub-stituting a new section for s. 13 of the N. W. T. Act, R. S. C. c. 50, is more restrictive than the terms of paragraph 6 of the order in council, paragraph 10 of the section read-ing as follows: "10. The administration of instates is the Transictical including the counjustice in the Territories, including the constitution, organisation, and maintenance of Territorial Courts of civil jurisdiction, cluding procedure therein, but not including the power of appointing any judicial officers." Per Richardson, Wetmore, and McGuire, JJ.: The legislature having power to pass the pro-vision in question of the Masters and Servants Ordinance at the time it was passed, the provision did not cease to be valid by reason of the subsequent restriction placed upon the power of the legislature. Gouer v. Jopner, 2 Terr. Act, 1867, ss. 92 and 101.]—The plaintiff quit work on an elevator, it being understood that he should return and finish his contract when the elevator was far enough advanced to allow him to test the When machinery which he had placed in it. the plaintiff's men returned to finish the com-tract they were stopped by the company. Then the plaintiff registered a mechanics' lieu within thirty days from the attempt to finish his contract, but more than thirty days after his last work had been done on the elevator: -Held, upon the evidence, that the lien was registered in time and could be enforced :-Held, upon appeal, that the time limited for registration of liens under R. M. S. 1902, c 110, s. 20, does not commence to run until there has been such completion of the contract as would entitle the contractor to maintain an action for the whole amount due him : -Held, also, that R. S. M. 1902, c. 110, s. 36, which enacted that the judgment of the Court of King's Bench of Manitoba should be final. in suits relating to liens, and no appeal should lie therefrom, is ultra vires; the right of appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada, being a matter within the jurisdiction of the Parliament of Canada under the B. Municipal corporations-By-law regulating hours for closing shops-Sale of intoxicating liquors -- Operation of by-law-Discrimination — Penalty — Statutes — License,]—Provincial legislatures have power by virtue of s. 92 of the British North America Act, to authorize municipalities to make by-laws for the closing at prescribed hours on certain days, or during certain hours, of shops for the sale of intoxicating liquors licensed by the government. — A by-law passed under such authorisation is valid, although it affects only one class of citizens, although it fixes different hours for closing on different days, and although a double penalty may be imposed under it for the same act .--- A license for the sale of liquors, granted by the government, is subject to the statutes and by-laws in force when it is issued, as well as to those which come into force during its continuance; it is in no sense a contract which makes the licensee independent of the statutes and by-laws. Municipal institutions-Provincial legislatures — Powers of — By-law — Street rail-ways — Monopoly — Status of plaintiff.]— Held, affirming the judgment in 15 Que. S. C. 580, that the Provincial Legislatures have sovereign powers within the range of subjects falling within the scope of provincial jurisdiction, including the governance of municipal institutions, and the Courts cannot set aside legislation relating to such matters on the ground that constitutional principles have been violated.-2. A by-law granting an exclusive privilege to a particular company to operate electric tramways for a term of years within a municipality comes within the scope of the authority of a town corporation which has been vested by the legislature with the right to authorise the construction and operation of tramways upon such terms as it shall see fit. Such privilege is not a mono-poly in the strict meaning of the word, and is not forbidden by law .-- 3. The contract in question in this case having been confirmed by 57 V. (Q.) c. 73, the appellants were without interest to contest the validity of the by-law on which it was based. Bell v. Town of Westmount, 9 Que. Q. B. 34.

The by-law in question was passed in July, 1900, under the Shops Regulation Act. R. S. M. 1892 c. 140 (c. 156 of R. S. M. 1902, which came into force on 6th March, 1903.) In March, 1902, the Winnipeg charter being c. 77 of the statutes of that year, came into force, and the new Municipal Act, c. 116 of R. S. M. new anuncipal Act, c. 110 of the c. 1902, contains a clause (2a), providing that the city of Winnipeg is not included in the expression "municipality," when the same occurs in the Act:-Held, without deciding the provide the provide the provide the Act whether the present Shops Regulation Act applies to the city or not, that the joint effect of s. 931 of the Winnipeg charter. and s. 527 of the Municipal Act, and of s.-s. 14 and 16 of the Interpretation Act, R. S. M. 1902 c. 89, is to retain and keep in force the by-law in question :--Held, also, that, as the by-law in question was in strict accordance with the powers conferred by the legislature in the Act under which it was passed. its provisions could not be held to be unreasonthe provisions could not be need to be unreason-able, uncertain, or oppressive, so as to ren-der it invalid or unenforcible. Bryden v, Union Collicy Co., [1890] A. C. 580; Re Boylan, 15 O. R. 13, and Simmons v, Mal-lings, 13 Times L. R. 447, followed:--Held, also, that the provisions of the Shops Regulation Act are intra vires of the provincial legislature, under s. 92 of the British North America Act, 1867, as dealing with a matter of a merely local and private nature in the province, and not interfering with the regulation of trade and commerce, assigned to the Dominion Parliament by s. 91, to as great General production Particular by 8, 94, 10 as great au extent as the legislation in question in Attorney-General for Ontario v. Huron as defined in the treaties of Paris and Ghent: and the British North America Act, in fixing the electoral divisions of the province, recognises the territorial sub-divisions provided for by the statute which is now R S. O. 1897 c. 3, by which the limits of the counties and townships bordering on Lake Huron extend to the boundary of the province ; within the territorial limits of the province, as to the subjects of legislation assigned by the British North America Act to the provinces, the legislative authority of the province is as plenary and as ample as the Imperial Parliament in the plenitude of its power possessed and could bestow ; the regulation of traffic in intoxicating liquors within the limits of the provinces by a license law is assigned by the British North Incense law is assigned by the British North America Act to the provincial legislatures; and therefore the Ontario legislature had authority to enact s. 10 of the Liquor License Act, which provides that no license shall be issued for the sale of liquor nor shall liquor be sold or kept for sale in any room or place on any vessel navigating any of the great lakes, etc. ; notwithstanding the contention that the only jurisdiction over the great lakes is in the Admiralty Courts.-Regina v. Keyn, 13 Cox C. C. 403, and Regina v. Sharp, 5 P. R. 135, distinguished. -The defendant, the master of the steamer "Greyhound," was convicted before a police magistrate having jurisdiction over the whole county of Huron, for that he (the defendant), on Canadian waters adjacent to the harbour of the town of Goderich, in said county of Huron, did "unlawfully allow liquors to be sold" on the steamer "Grey-hound," of the city of Detroit, in the State nound, of the city of Detroit, in the State of Michigan, "without a license therefor by law required:"—Held, upon the evidence, that the vessel, although a foreign vessel, was not when the offence was committed proceeding from one foreign port to another, but was being used for an excursion which went out from the port of Goderich for a few miles and returned to that port, and therefore the rale of international law forbidding interference with persons on board a foreign vessel navigating the high seas or the great lakes was not applicable.—Semble, that where it is plain that the legislature has intended to disregard or interfere with a rule of international law, the Courts are bound to give effect to its enactments :--Held, that the conviction was not invalid merely because the place in the county where the offence was committed was not stated with more particularity than as above recited :--Held, that the conviction disclosed no offence, unlawfully allowing liquor to be sold not being an offence created by the Liquor License Act; but the conviction should be amended so as to make it for an offence under s.-s. 1 of s. 49 of the Act, viz., the selling or bartering of liquors without the license required by law; Meredith, C.J., doubing whether the de-fendant was an "occupant" within the meaning of s. 111, whether the words "house, shop, room, or other place," included a vessel, and whether the offence of selling liquor without a license was of the nature of the offence alleged in the conviction : Criminal Code, s. 889, Rex v. Meikleham (1906), 11 O. Power company-Construction of statute -Legislative jurisdiction - Parliament of Canada - Local works and undertakings -Recital in preamble — Enactment clause — General advantage of Canada — Subject matter-Presumption-Practice - Motion to refer case for further evidence.]-In con-struing an Act of the Parliament of Canada, there is a presumption in law that the jurisdiction has not been exceeded. Where subject matter of legislation by the Parliawithin a province, is obviously beyond the powers of the local legislature, there is no necessity for an enacting clause specially de-claring the works to be for the general adclaring the works to be for the general ad-vantage of Canada or for the advantage of two or more or the provinces.—Semble, per Davies, J. (Idington, J., contra), that a recital in the preamble, to a special private Act enacted by the Parliament of Canada, is Act enacted by the Parliament of Canada, is not such a declaration as that contemplated by s.s. 10 (c) of s. 92 of the British North America Act, 1867, in order to bring the subject matter of the legislation within the jurisdiction of Parliament, Judgments in 6 O, L. Powers of provincial legislature-Criminal offence-Field occupied by Dominion legislation - Jurisdiction -Recorder's Court-Justices of the peace.]-When the Parliament of Canada has declared an act criminal, has laid down the procedure to be followed for punishing the act, and named the tribunal which shall have jurisdiction over it, a provincial legislature has no right to make a statute to punish the same act and to name the tribunal which shall take cognizance of it, as well as the procedure to be followed in order to punish it .--- 2. The Quebec Recorder's Court cannot take cog-nizance of an infraction of the Criminal Code, while the Code itself gives jurisdiction to two justices of the peace. The Crown was not a party to the action, but was represented, the constitutionality of an Act confirming an order in council withdrawing the lands in question from exploration being attacked .- Held, that as G. had not fulfilled the requirements of the Mines Act and the regulations thereunder, and the property having been withdrawn for exploration before his recovery by order in council confirmed by an Act of the legislature, the plaintiffs as assignees of G. have no status to impeach the sale or the letters patent to impeace the sale or the letters parent issued to defendants. — Held, further, that said Act was not ultra vires, Florence Min-ing Co. v. pany so incorporated, but confines its operations within the geographical area of the province creating it. And the possession by the company of a license from the Dominion Government under 51 V. c. 28 (R. S. C. 1906, c. 34, s. 4), authorizing it to do busi-ness throughout Canada, is of no avail for the purpose. -- Girouard, J., expressed no opinion on this question .- An insurance com pany incorporated under the laws of Ontario insured a railway company, a part of whose line ran through the State of Maine. " against loss or damage caused by locomotives to property located in the State of Maine, not in-cluding that of the assured." By a statute in that State the railway company is made liable for injury so caused, and is given an insurable interest in property along its line for which it is so responsible :--Held, affirm ing the judgment of the Court of Appeal, 11 O. L. R. 465, which maintained the judgment at the trial, 9 O. L. R. 493, that the policy did not cover standing timber along the line of railway, which the charter of the insurance company did not permit it to insure.— Πeld , also, Fitzpatrick, C.J.C., and Davies, J., dissenting, that the policy was not on that account of no effect, as there was other property covered by it in which the railway company had an insurable interest; therefore the latter was not entitled to recover back the premiums it had paid, Canadian Pacific Riv. Railways - Consolidated Railway Act. Railways — Consolidates Railway Act, 1879, s. 19, s.-s. 16 (D.) — Prohibited contract — Directors.]—The appellant was a director and the president of the Temiscouata Rw. Company at the time he entered into certain agreements with the contractors for the construction of the road, which agreements gave him an interest in their contracts :---Held, that the provisions of the Consolidated Railway Act, 1879, s. 18, s.-s. 16, are constitu-tional. The Dominion Parliament having the right to legislate on matters concerning railways, it has also the power to legislate on all incidents which may be required to carry out the object it had in view, provided such incidents are essentially and strictly connected with the principal object, and are primarily intended to assist in carrying out such principal object; and the capacity or incapacity of directors is a matter essentially connected with the internal economy of a railway company .--- 2. Where a contract is prohibited by statute, such contract is void, although the statute itself does not state that it is so, and only imposes a penalty on the offender .-- 3. Consequently, where the president of a railway company entered into a secret partnership with the contractors for the construction of the road, no action can be maintained by him against his partners to enforce such contract. Macdonald v. Riordan, 8 Que, Q. B. 555. Affirmed 30 S. C. R. 619.

Railways-Municipal corporations-Construction of highway across railway-Railway Committee of Privy Council. !-- Upon the application of the defendants under s. 14 of the Railway Act of Canada for an order authorising the extension of a street in their city across the tracks of the plaintiffs, the Railway Committee for Canada of the Privy Council ordered and directed that the defendants "may have a temporary crossing, at rail level, for foot passengers only, over the said tracks," upon certain conditions .- Held, that the Provincial Legislature alone had power to confer upon the defendants legal capacity to acquire and make the street in question. It has conferred such capacity .-- 3. In virtue of its power over property and civil rights in the Province, the Provincial Legislature has power to authorise a municipality to acquire and make such a street, and to provide how and upon what terms it may be acquired and made .--- 4. But that power is subject to the supervention of federal legislation respecting works and undertakings such as the railway in question .-- 5. The manner and terms of acquiring and making such street, and also the prevention of the making or acquiring of such a street, are proper subjects of such supervening legislation .--- 6. Such legislation may rightly confer upon any person or body the power to determine what circumstances, and how and upon in what terms, such a street may be ac-quired and made, or to prevent the ac-quiring and making of it altogether, and therefore s. 14 of the Railway Act is not ultra vires.—7. Such legislation, in virtue of its power over such railway corporations, as well as such works and undertakings, may confer power to impose such terms as have in this case been imposed upon the plaintiffs, and to deprive such corporations of any right to compensation for lands so taken or injuriously affected; and has conferred such power on the Railway Committee, under s. 14. in such a case as this; which power has here been exercised to some extent .- 8. Such legislation has not conferred upon the Committee power to give the temporary foot-way in question .--- 9. Nor any authority to delegate its powers .--- 10. The work it directs must be constructed under the supervision of an official appointed for that purpose by the Committee.-11. The railway company may, if they choose, construct the works directed, under such supervision, instead of permitting the municipality to do so. Grand Trunk Riv. Co. v. City of Toronto, 20 C. L. Registration of lis vendens-Imperial Acts in force in Yukon Territory-2 & 3 V. c. 11 (Imp.)-R. S. C. c. 50-Transfer of lend-Fraud-Land Titles Act, 1894-Pleading-Rules of Court - Yukon Ordinances, 1902, c. 17-Rules 113, 115, 117-Estoppel, -The provisions of the Imperial Act. 2 & 3 V. c. 11, in respect to the registration of no-tices of lis pendens and for the protection of bona fide purchasers pendente lite, are of purely local character, and do not extend their application to the Yukon Territory by the introduction of the English law generally as it existed on the 15th July, 1870, under s. 11 of the North-West Territories Act, R. S. C. c, 50. Under the provisions of the Land Titles Act, 1894, s. 126, a bona fide purchaser from the registered owner of land, subject to the operation of that statute, is not bound nor affected by notice of lis pendens which has been improperly filed and noted upon the folio of the register containing the certificate of title as an incumbrance or charge upon the land. The exception as to fraud referred to in s. 126 of the Act means actual fraudulent transactions in which the purchaser had participated, and does not include constructive equitable frauds. Assets Co. v. Mere Roihi, 21 Times L. R. 311, referred to and approved. In an action to set aside a conveyance as made in fraud of creditors, the defendant, desiring to meet the action by setting up that there was no debt due, and, consequently, that no such fraud could exist, must allege these objections in his pleading. In the present case the defendant, having failed to plead such defence, was allowed to amend on terms. Taschereau, C.J.C., dissenting. Syndicat Lyonnais du Klondyke v. McGrade, 25 C. L. T. 126, 36 S. Representation of Provinces in House of Commons-British North Amer-House of Commons—British Approximation America Act, a. 51—Readjustiment of representation —Construction — "Aggregate population of Canada."] — Section 51 of the B. N. A. Act, 1807, directs after each decennial census a readjustment of the representation in the Dominion House of Commons of the four provinces constituted by that Act. It pro-vides as the rule of readjustment that Quevices as the rule of readjustment that Que-bee shall have the fixed number of 55 repre-sentatives, and that each of the other pro-vinces shall have that number which bears the same proportion to its population as 65 bears to that of Quebee. But its s.e. 4 pro-hibits a reduction of the number of the re-presentatives in the case of any results. presentatives in the case of any province, unless the proportion which the number of its population bore to the number of the aggregate population of Canada at the last preceding readjustment is ascertained at the then latest census to have been diminished by one-twentieth part or upwards :--Held, on a case submitted to the Supreme Court of Canada as to whether New Brunswick was protected from reduction of its members, that on the true construction of s.s. 4 the ex-pression " aggregate population of Canada " relates to the whole of Canada as constituted by the Act, and therefore includes, not merely the four provinces constituted by proclama-tion issued under s. 3, but also all the provinces subsequently incorporated and admitted into the Union by order in council under s. 146:—Held, also, with regard to the province of Prince Edward Island, which had under s. 146 been admitted into the Union by order in council directing that it should have six from time to time under the provisions of the Act of 1867, that s.-s. 4, on its true construction, did not protect that number from reduction until an increase thereof had been previously effected. Judgment in In re Representation in House of Commons, 23 C. L. T. 209, 33 S. C. R. 475, 594, affirmed. Attor L ney-General for Prince Edward Island v. Royalties - Dominion Lands Act -Publication of regulations - Renewal of license-Voluntary payment.]-The Dominion Government, by regulations made under the Dominion Lands Act, may validly reserve a royalty on gold produced by a placer mining in the Yukon, though the miner, by his li-cense, has the "exclusive right" to all the gold mines-that is, exclusive only against quartz or hydraulic licenses or owners of surface rights, and not against the Crown. The provision of s. 91 of the Dominion Lands Act as to publication of regulations, means that the regulations do not come into force on publication in the last of four successive weeks in the Gazette, but only on the ex-piration of one week therefrom. Where regulations provided that failure to pay royal-ties would forfeit the claim, and a notice to that effect was posted on the claim and served on the license, payment by the latter under protest was not a voluntary payment. One of the regulations of 1880 was, that "the entry of every holder of a grant for placer mining had to be renewed and his receipt relinquished and replaced every year:-Held, reversing the judgment in 7 Ex. C. R. 414, that the new entry and receipt did not entitle the holder to mine on the terms and conditions in his original grant only, but he was subject to the terms of any regulations made since such grant was issued. The new entry cannot be made and new receipt given until the term of the grant has expired. Therefore, where a grant for one year was issued in December, 1896, and in August, 1897, the renewal license was given to the miner, such renewal only took effect in December, 1897. and was subject to regulations made in September of that year. Regulations in force when a license issued, were shortly after-wards cancelled by new regulations imposing a smaller royalty :—Held, that the new regu-lations were substituted for the others and applied to said license. Rex v. Chappelle, Rex v. Carmack, Rex v. Tweed, 23 C. L. T. 34, 32 S. C. R. 586. Leave to appeal granted by the Judicial Committee, 23 C. L. T. 163.

Seamen's Act-Intra vires-Foreign ship -Harbouring desorters-Conviction-Consent of consular officer.]—The Seamen's Act (R. S. C. c. 74) is not altra vires the Canadian Parliament: and a conviction under s. 104 for harbouring seamen, knowing them to be deserters, changed to serve on a foreign ship, then in a Canadian port, made against a resident of Canada on the information of person also a resident, the party charged or the informant not being in any way connected with the foreign ship, is good. It is not necessary that the prosecutor should obtain the consent of the consultar officer representing the nationality of the ship under s. 120. Rev. Martin, 36 N. B. R. 448.

Service of process out of jurisdiction -Powers of Territorial Legislature-Judica-ture Ordinance-Small Debt Procedure.]-A colony having authority to establish Courts of civil jurisdiction and to provide for procedure therein has also the power necessarily incident thereto of providing for service of process upon defendants residing out, of its jurisdiction. The legislature of the Territories has authority under the powers conferred by the N. W. T. Act to make such provisions. by the N. W. T. Act to make such provisions, Section 32 of Ordinance 5 of 1894 (amend-ing J. O. 1898), relating to small debt pro-cedure, provides: "The summons shall be re-turnable: (c) Where the defendant resides in any place in Canada outside the Terri-tories, or in the United States of America, at the expiration of 20 days from the service thereof; (d) Where the defendant resides in any part of the United Kingdom, at the expiration of 30 days from the service thereof; (e) In any of the above cases it shall not be necessary to obtain an order for ser-vice out of the jurisdiction : "-Held, that neither an order for leave to issue a writ for service out of the jurisdiction, nor an order for leave to serve such a writ, is necessary under this procedure. Nor it is necessary that a proper case for service out of the jurisdiction should be shewn by the statement of claim; but semble, if a defendant served out of the jurisdiction can shew affirmatively that the action is not one in which service out of the jurisdiction would be allowed under the ordinary practice of the Court, he would be entitled to an order setting aside the service. McCarthy v. Brener, 2 Terr. L.

Statute authorising monopoly-Municipal corporation - Resolution - By-lawontracts with electric companies.]-On the 4th April, 1887, the council of the city of H, had, by a simple resolution, permitted the grantors of the appellant company to erect in that city poles for the purpose of electric lighting, under the same restrictions and rules as in the city of O., and under the control of the committee of roads as regards the position of the poles. By virtue of this resolution the grantors placed poles and wires in the city and furnished electric light to the city and citizens. On the 7th May, 1894, by by-law, the city of H. accorded to the grantor of the respondent company for 35 years the exclusive privilege of building and operating an electric railway, and of es-tablishing in the city a system of heating and tablishing in the city a system of natural gas lighting, either by electricity or natural gas or otherwise. It was stipulated that the city granted these exclusive rights in so far as they possessed them and had the right to as they possessed them and had the right to grant them. This by-law was confirmed by statute 58 V. c. 69 (Q.), the Act of incorpor-ation of the respondent company, which enumerated, among the privileges granted, the exclusive right of furnishing and distributing electric light to the city, to its inhabitants and all industries or manufactories which were or should be established there :--Held, that the statute in question, relating to a nurely local undertaking, was within the competence of the legislature, in spite of the fact that it had the effect of excluding for a limited time the competition of rival under-takings. 2. That by the by-law of the 7th May, 1894, the city had not revoked the permission which it had granted by the former resolution, and had not delegated the power of revoking it, and that the respondent company could exercise the powers authorised by the resolution, until revoked by the city. Succession duties—Powers of provincial legislatures — Succession tax upon properly situate outside a province.] — A provincial statute which levies a tax, proportionate to the value of the estate, upon the transmission by succession of property situated outside the province, is unconstitutional and ultra vircs in virtue of par, 2 of s, 92 of B. Sunday closing by-laws regarding music halls, moving picture shows, etc., under penalty of a fine, come within the by-laws authorised by the charter of such municipality by the following clause: "The city council may adopt by-laws upon the following subjects for the good order, peace, security and local government of the city of , and for the prevention and suppression of all nuisances and of every act, matter and thing in the city opposed, contrary or likely to cause a prejudice to good order, peace, security and good morals . . in the interior economy and local government of the said city." Until revoked, this legislative enactment of the former province of Canada is in force.-Dominion Statute respecting Sunday Observance, 6 Edw, VII., c. 27, now R. S. C. 1906, c. 153, did not revoke or affect the foregoing provision and by-laws authorised thereunder, 809 and Trem 375. 487.

Sunday observance.] — Held, that an Act to prevent the Profanation of the Lord's Day, Revised Statutes of Ontario, 1897, c. 246, treated as a whole is ultra vires of the Ontario Legislature.—The Criminal Law in it widest sense is reserved by s. 91, s.-s. 97, of the British North America Act, 1897, for the exclusive authority of the Dominion Parliament and an infraction of the above Act is an offence against criminal law.—It is not the practice of their Lordships to give speculative opinions on hypothetical questions submitted.—The questions must arise in concrete cases and involve private rights. Attorney-General for Ontario v. The Hamilton Street Railway Company, [1903] A. C. 524.

Sunday observance—Powers of provincial legislatures—Poice regulations,] — Section 1 of 62 V. c. 11, whereby the sale of real or personal property or the exercise of any worldly business or work on Sunday is prohibited, is within the authority of the Legislature of New Branswick. Therefore, where G. was convicted under the above was discharged. The fact that the Parliament of Canada can make the doing of such an act on Sunday a erime, and prohibit it under the general criminal law, does not necessarily shew that a local legislature has no jurisdiction to deal with it under its powers to make regulations of a police or municipal nature. A subject matter of legislation, though falling within some of the classes intrusted to the federal Parliament by s. 91 of the British North America Act, may likewise, when looked at from another point of view, come within some of the classes over which, by s. 92 of the same Act, the Provincial Legislatures have exclusive jurisdiction. Ex p. Green, 35 N. B. Reps. 137, 4 Can. Cr. Cas. 182.

Sunday observance—Powers of provincial legislature—Theatres—Prohibition of — Interference with criminal law—Municipal by-law.]—Under the provisions of cl. 16 of a. 92 of the B. N. A. Act, the provincial legtslature had power to enact cl. 5 ot a 123 of the charter of the city of Montreal, 37 V. e. 51, and to confer, as it has done, upon the council the power to pass by-law No. 103 of the cumcil of the city; and such by-law does not exceed the powers conferred upon the council the the statute nor the bylaw has the effect of modifying or abrogating the criminal law. 3. The statute and by-law are limited to the city of Montreal. 4. The limposition of imprisonment provided for by the by-law, under the authority of s. 124 of the statute, is legal. 5. Under the provisions of cl. 5 of the same section, the provincial legislature could, as it has done by s. 123 and 124 of the above statute, delegate to the council of the city of Montreal the power to pass a by-law prohibiting the opening of theatres on Sunday under penalty of imprisonment. 6. The opening of theatres on Sunday is prohibited by the statute, and is a contraven tion of the by-law, McLaughlin v. Recorder's Court of the City of Montreal, 4 Que. P. R. 304.

Sunday observance—Reference to Supreme Court — Legislatice juriadicion.] — The statute 54 & 65 V. e. 25, s. 4, does not empower the Governor-General in council to refer to the Supreme Court of Canada, for hearing and consideration, supposed or hypothetical legislation which the legislature of a province might enact in the future: Sedgewick, J., dissenting.—The said section provides that the Governor in council may refer "important questions of law or fact touching specified subjects," — Held, Sedgewick, J. dissenting, that such "other matter" insurtant support of the subjects specified. Legislation to prohibit on Sunday the performance of work and labour, transaction of business, engangin in sport for gain, or keeping open places of entertainment, is within the jurisdiction of the Parliament of Canada. Attorney-General for Ontorio V. Hamilton Street Re. Co., [1002] A. C. 524, followed. In re Sunday Lauce, 25 C. L. T. 77, 25 S. C. R. 581.

Sunday Observance Act, Quebec — Legislative powers of provincial legislatures —Penalty for offences—Proceedings for recovery—Affidavit — Authority of Attorney-General—Information—Prosecutor a British subject—Conviction.]—The Act of the Quebec legislature, 7 Edw. VIL e. 4.2. "respecting the observance of Sunday," is not a law in a criminal matter, but is within the legislature powers of provincial legislatures, and is constitutional.—2. The authority of the Attorney-General for the province, and the affidavit for qui tam actions, are neither of them required in proceedings for the recovery of the fine imposed by the above statute, in the manner therein provided.—3. A conviction under the statute will not be quashed, because no mention is made, in the information or complaint, that the prosecutor is a British subject, if that fact is proved at the trial. Telegraph companies-Tax on-Application to interprovincial company-Action to recover tax-Parties-Collector of revenue-Attorney-General - Intervention-Appeal -Formal objections not taken below.]-The statute of the legislature of Quebec imposing an annual tax of $2,000 upon every telegraph company having a paid-up capital exceeding 550,000, and maintaining a line of telegraph for the use of the public in the province, is intra vires of the legislature. 2. The appelintra vires of the legislature. lant telegraph company, although incorpor-ated by Parliament and carrying on an interprovincial line of telegraph, that is to say, in all the provinces of Canada, except Bri-tish Columbia and Prince Edward Island, having a paid-up capital exceeding $50,000, must pay this annual tax of $2,000, inasmuch it carries on business in the province of Quebec by reason of its there using a part of its lines for messages from one point to another within the province. 3. An action brought by a collector of revenue in that capacity for the recovery of this tax is to be regarded as brought under the direction of the Attorney-General, who is dominus litis. and therefore the intervention of the Attorney-General to sustain the constitutionality of the statute, is an unnecessary and useless proceeding, for which he could not, under the circumstances, be allowed costs. 4. The Court of Appeal will not take into consideration objections which have regard rather to the form than to the substance, if they have not been taken in the Court below. The scope of the respondents' business contemplated by the Act, and involving its ex-tension beyond the limits of any one province, was within the express exception made by s. 92, s.s. 10 (a), of the British North Amer-ica Act, 1867, from the class of local works and undertakings assigned thereby to provincial legislatures. Accordingly, 43 V. c. 67 was within the exclusive competence of the Dominion Parliament, under s. 91. The Ontario Act, 45 V. c. 71, passed to authorise the exercise of the above powers within the province, subject to the consent of the corporation, was held to be ultra vires; and could not by reason of having been passed on the application of the respondent company be validated as a legislative bargain. Trading stamps — Statute prohibiting trade—Method of trade—Stamps or coupons -Municipal by-law — Ultra vires — Injunction.]-An interlocutory injunction is a most efficacious remedy, and is therefore open to persons interested, to restrain promulgation a municipal by-law, alleged to be ultra vires, which prohibits a certain trade, when such prohibition will cause persons interested a serious wrong or irreparable loss .--- 2. A provincial legislature has no power to pass statute permitting municipalities to prohibit by by-law the exercise of a trade which is not in itself contrary either to good morals or public order.--3. A business consisting in furnishing advertising matter to merchants, who engage themselves in turn to distribute to their customers, upon their cash sales, coupons or stamps giving the right to draw premiums, is not contrary to good morals or public order. A statute passed by provincial legislature which permits municipalities to prohibit such trade is unconstitutional. Wil-der v. Montreal, 26 Que. S. C. 504, affirmed (1906), 14 Que. K. B. 139.

Treaties with Indians—Contingent annuities—B, N, A, At, s, 112—Res judicata.) —The award complained of by the Province of Quebec determined that certain payments made by the Dominion of Canada in virtue of the Huron and Superior Treaties with the Ojibewsy Indians for arrears of a aumoniet annuities and interest from 1867 to 1853, and for increased annuities in excess of the fixed annuities with interest paid subsequently, should be taken into account and included in the debt of the late Province of Canada mentioned in s, 112 of the B, N, A. Act:— Held, that the question of these contingent annuities had been considered and decided in Attorney-General for Canada v. Attorney General for Ontario, [1807] A. territory to the Dominion in 1873 provided that certain lesser reserves in the lands surrendered were to be defined and set apart, and thereafter to be administered and dealt with for the benefit of the Indians. Part of one of these lesser reserves, in Ontario, was in 1886 surrendered to the Oueen under the Indian Act of 1880 in trust to sell upon such terms as the Dominion Government might deem most conducive to the welfare of the Indians; and of this, certain lands were granted by the Dominion Government to the plaintiffs, with the precious metals therein. The defendants asserted title in fee to the same lands under an Ontario patent of 1899. It appeared that in negotiating the treaty of 1873 the Dominion commissioners represented to the Indians that they would be entitled to the benefit of any minerals that might be dis-Heid, that, after the surrender in 1886, tille to the land and to the precious metals therein could be obtained only from the Crown as re-presented by the Province of Ontario. With the royal mines and minerals the Indians had no concern : nor could the Dominion make any valid stipulation with them which could are reading to the them which could any wand supplation with them which could affect the rights of Ontario.—Semble, that a Province is not to be held bound by alleged acts of acquiescence of departmental officers which are not brought home to or authorised by the proper executive or administrative organs of the Provincial Government, and are not manifested by any order in council or other authentic testimony. Waters of navigable rivers-Concession of the right to take and sell the ice of a novigable river.]—Waters of navigable and floatable rivers, when frozen during winter, or in their natural state, are part of the public domain, may be used by every one and are not objects of commerce. Hence, a concession by provincial government of "the right to cut, take and sell ice" from a determinate part of a navigable river, is null and void as not having any object. Dupuis v. St. Jean (1910), 38 One, S. C. 204.

Watercourses — Narigable waters—Cutting ice—Trespass on water lots.]—An ice company in harvesting ice from navigable waters at a distance from the shore may use any reasonable means of conveying it to their ice houses, and for that purpose may cut a channel through private water lots, through which to float the ice—Judgment of the Court of Appeal, 26 Ont. CONTEMPT OF COURT.

Breach of injunction-Deliberate act-Punishment - Imprisonment-Costs. Todd v. Pearlstein, 10 O. W. R. 471.

Breach of injunction-Infringement of design for manufactured article-Similarity --Colourable initation-Company-Sequestration-Relief on terms. Buck Store Co. v. Guelph Foundry Co., 6 O. W. R, 116.

Breach of injunction—Motion to commit—Cost, —Where in a suit for a declaration that the plaintiff and defendant were partners, the defendant, in breach of an interim injunction order, collected debts due the firm, but which, subsequently to the service of a notice of motion for his commitment, he paid to the receiver in the suit, he was ordered to pay the costs of the motion. Burden v. Howard, 24 C. L. T. 242, 2 N. B. Eq. R. 531.

Breach of injunction improvidently granted.]—Where an injunction is erroncously or improvidently granted, although only voidable, while it is in force nothing should be done in contravention of its reasonable import. McLeod v. Noble, 25 O. R. 528. distinguished. Dunn v. Toronto Board of Education, 24 C. L. T. 223, 7 O. L. R. 451, 3 O. W. R. 311, 333.

Committal of defendant for non-production of book—Application for dis-charge—Destruction of book—Purging contempt-Payment of costs.]-A prisoner com-mitted to gaol for contempt of Gourt in not producing a book which he had been ordered to produce cannot purge his contempt by shewing either that the book had been burnt by some other person without his knowledge or connivance, or that he left it in a certain place and was afterwards unable to find or trace it .-- In such circumstances a prisoner should not be released unless he pays all the costs occasioned by his misconduct in connection with the lost book, although an applicatin for release without such payment might be entertained if it were shewn that, by reason of poverty, such costs could not be paid. In rc M., 46 L. J. Ch. 24, followed. Monkman v. Sinnott, 3 Man. L. R. 170, dis-tinguished. Catter v. Osborne, 7 W. L. R. 90, 17 Man, L. R. 248.

Corporation of company, can it be guilty of?—Publishing in a newspaper the judgment condemning in—0, P, 18, 834,]— Corporations are subject to the penalties provided for contempt of Court.—When a prblishing company refuses to obey an order of the Court directing it to publish the judgment condemning it to pay damages for libel, it is in contempt of Court. Garneau v. "La Vigie" Company (1910), 11 Que, P. R. 404.

Disobedience of injunction.-Reasonable efforts to comply, Leahy v. North Sydney, 1 E. L. R. 431.

Disobedience of injunction.] - Plaintiffs applied to commit defendant for disobeying an injunction order directing him not to interfere with the cutting or removal of a certain crop. Defendant had been served with a copy of the interim order and summons to appear, and his counsel was pre-sent when the injunction was continued until the trial :- Held, that Sask, Rule 330 does not apply to a restraining order. Defendant should have been shewn the original order. but this omission will not avail when a copy was served and he had acted thereon. Even if the plaintiffs were dilatory in serving the order continuing the injunction the defend-ant was aware of the restraining clause in the interim injunction. Order for committal. Moose Mountain v. Paradis, 12 W. L. R. 310.-Above order of Wetmore, C.J., was reversed: Newlands, J., disserting and agree-ing with Wetmore, C.J.—Held, per John-stone, J., that where the liberty of the subject is in question, the utmost strictness in procedure is required; and the motion to commit should have been refused, because (1) the affidavit of service of notice of that motion did not state that the defendant was served within the province of Saskatchewan ; (2) the affidavits and other papers used on the motion were not filed until after the hearing of the motion (although no objection was taken); and (3) the copy of the injunction order served on the defendant was endorsed with a notice that, if the defendant neglected to obey the order, he would be sub-ject to "process of execution," instead of "arrest." Per Lamont, J., that the defend-ant was not in contempt because: (1) the injunction order was not served until after the acts complained of were committed, and there was no evidence, and it was not to be inferred that the defendant had notice of it; and (2) the injunction order was confined to the crop raised on the defendant's land in the year 1909, and there was no evidence that the flax removed by the defendant, in alleged disobedience to the order. formed part of the crop raised on the premises in 1909. Moose Mountain Lumber and Hardware Co. v. Paradis (1910), 14 W. L. R. 20, 3 Sask, L. R. 312.

Disobedience of order for interim alimony — Order for payment of money. Galley V. Galley (N.W.T.), 1 W. L. R. 155.

Disobedience of subpoena—Service— Necessity for sheeping original. —To bring a person into contempt for disobedience of a subpena, it must be proved that the original writ was shewn at the time of service, as well as that a copy was delivered to and left with the person. Woods v. Fader, 10 O. L. R. 643, 6 O. W. R. 369.

Habeas corpus — Disobedience — Peace officer—Return.) — A pence officer upon whom a writ of habeas corpus has been served, directing him to produce a prisoner who is in his custody, is not guilty of contempt of Court in neglecting to produce the prisoner, when, in good faith and for reasons which he believes to be valid, he does not do so. 2. A return setting forth all these reasons is sufficient return to such a writ. Greene v. Carpenter, 32 Que. S. C. 104. 817

Hushand and wife — Wife leaving conjugal domicil—Disobedience to judgment.] —A wife who has been ordered by a judgment. to return to the conjugal domicil, and who leaves it after having returned to it, cannot for so doing be imprisoned for contempt of Court. Tessier V, Guay, 23 Que, S. C. 75.

Injunction - Disobedience of - Jurisdiction of Judge in Chambers in vacation-Enforcement of order for contempt-Appeal -Fine and imprisonment-Reduction-Procedure-Affidavits - Discretion.]-A Judge in Chambers may during long vacation assume jurisdiction to proceed upon a rule nisi for disobedience of an injunction.—2. A Judge may proceed to enforce a judgment which he has given, although the unsuccessful party has applied for review or appealed from it, if it is evident that the inscription in review or in appeal is not competent under the circumstances of the case .--- 3. In order that a court of appeal shall reduce the amount of a fine or the term of imprisonment awarded for contempt of Court, it must be shewn that the sentence is so evidently extravagant that a reasonable man could not have pronounced t.—4. When a Judge to whom a motion is made to commit for disobedience to an in-junction decides to proceed upon affidavits instend of ordering a regular trial, he exer-cises a discretion given to him by the law, and his decision cannot be set aside by a Superior Court unless it amounts to a manifest injustice, Rivard v. Grand Mère Electric Co. and Town of Grand Mère, 32 Que, S. C. 10.

Injunction - Disobedience of - Seques-tration-Stay of proceedings-Right of appeal — Jurisdiction of appellate Court — "Criminal matter" — "Execution" and "operation" of judgment—Variance between written reasons and formal order-Reasonable construction-Practice.]-The plaintiffs, by the judgment at this trial of this action, were awarded an injunction restraining the defendants from continuing to make binders and sheets in imitation of the plaintiffs'. for disobedience of which the issue of a writ of sequestration against the property of the defendants for contempt of Court was, on the 28th March, 1907, directed by a Judge, whose order was subsequently affirmed by a Divisional Court. At the time when the order for sequestration was made, an order had been made by a Judge of the Court of Appeal, who, by his reasons in writing, delivered on the 4th March, 1907, directed that "execution of the injunction be stayed" pending the disposition of an appeal by the defendants from the judgment at the trial, but the formal order thereupon merely directed that "the operation of the judgment appealed from" should be stayed:-Held, that the Court had power to entertain the appeal, and that the order directing the issue the writ of sequestration should be set aside, on the ground that it was made at a time when there was a stay of execution of the judgment by virtue of the order of the 4th March, 1907.—Per Moss, C.J.O., and Meredith, J.A.:—The subject matter of the appeal was not a "criminal matter" within the maning of the British North America Act, 1867, s. 91, s.-s. 27, and was not ex-cluded from the operation of the Judicature Act and the Consolidated Rules (see Rule 4), as being matter of "practice or procedure in criminal matters." O'Shea v. OShea, 15 P. D. 59, and Ellis v. The Queen, 22 S. C. R. 7, distinguished. — Judgment of a Divisional Contr. 10 O. W. R. 92, reversed. Copland-Chatterson Co. v. Business Systems Limited, 16 O. L. R. 481, 11 O. W. R. 702.

Jurisdiction over person resident out of Province — Divisional Court held that the Court had no power to bring a person before it from outside the province—Order nisi for committal discharge. Re Place, Copeland-Chatterson Co. v. Business Systems Limited, 7 O. W. R. 56.

Jurisdiction to punish.]--The Superior Court, sitting in the district of Quebec, has jurisdiction over a contempt of Court consisting in injurious writings, addressed to it or to the Judges of whom it is composed, in a newspaper publicated outside of the district (in the present case, at Montreal). Atty-Gen, for Que, V. Fournier, 37 Que, S. C. 68. Affirmed (1910), 19 Que, K. B. 431, 17 Can, Crim, Cas, 108.

Libellous publications pending trial of action for slander-Prejudice-Fair trial-Political controversy.]-Libellous lan guage is not necessarily a contempt of Court; the applicant for committal for contempt must shew that something has been published which either is clearly intended, or at least is cal-culated, to projudice a trial which is pend-ing.—A motion by the defendant in an action for slander to commit for contempt of Court the editor of a newspaper for publishing articles, pending the action and before trial, commenting on the matters in question in the action, was dismissed, and with costs, where it did not appear from the evidence, and it was not fairly to be inferred from the articles, that there would be an interference, or that there was any attempt to interfere, with the ordinary course of justice in the matter of a fair trial-the slanderous words allered having been uttered and the articles published in the course of a contested parliamentary election, and the whole frame of the articles being to separate the legal aspect the articles being to separate the left aspect of the case from the political. The Queen v. Payne, [1896] 1 Q. B. 577, Ex. p. Hooley, 6 Mans, 44, In re New Gold Coast Explora-tion Co., [1901] 1 Ch. 800, and McLeod v. St. Audyn, [1899] A. C. 549, followed. Gueet v. Motion to commit-Order on-Attachment — Apology — Variation of order pro-nounced—Appeal—Criminal matter.] — During the pendency of an action for libel, the defendant called a public meeting at which the subject matter of the action was discussed, and he also published articles in his news-paper commenting upon the libel. The plaintiff made application to punish the defendant for contempt. The Judge who heard the motion filed a memorandum of his reasons for granting it. He subsequently granted an order giving the plaintiff liberty to issue a writ of attachment, and he directed that the defendant should publish an apology in his newspaper. The defendant expealed, and on the appeal it was contended that the Judge had no jurisdiction to make the direction as to the apology; also that the order for the writ should not have departed in its terms Court has no jurisdiction to rehear or alter the order after it has passed, provided it accurately expresses the intention of the Judge: Preston Banking Co. v. Allsup, [1895] 1 Ch. 141. The order as granted ex-Allsup, pressed the intention of the Judge. Besides. the proceeding was criminal, and there was no appeal open to the defendants: O'Shea v. O'Shea, 15 P. D. 59; Ellis v. Regina, 22 Grant v. Grant, 24 C. L. T. 139, S. C. R. 7. 36 N. S. R. 547.

Motion to commit local manager of express company for non-production -Con, Mun. Act. 5.53 (39) -By-late regulating laundries. J--Chatham passed a by-law regulating the licensing of laundries. Certain Chinese moved to quash the by-law, and swore that their profits were very small and that they could not carry on their business under the terms of the by-law. Defendants desired to shew that their profits were large, by the records of the Dominion Express Company, but their local manager refused to produce the books and records of the local manager. Latchford, J., keld (14 O. W. R. 1161, 1 O. W. N. 238), that the evidence sought from the local manager was not matter. ial, nor relevant to the question at issue, that the true test whether the by-law was or was not valid was whether the council passed it in bona fide exercise of powers conferred by Municipal Act, s. 553 (33) and not the profitable or unprofitable nature of the plaintiff's business, and dismissed the motion. Divisional Court affirmed Latchford, J., and dismissed the appeal. Pang Sing v, Chatham (1910), 16 O. W. R. 338, 1 O. W. N. 1003.

Motion to stay appeal by defend-ants in contempt — Disobedience to in-junction—Unincorporated association — Service-Costs.]-On a motion by the plaintiff to stay a pending appeal by the defendants from an order dismissing an application to set aside service of the writ of summons on an individual for the defendant association, on the ground that the association was not an incorporated body or a partnership and could not be served as a body, the plaintiff alleging that the defendants were in contempt for data disobelience of an injunction :--Held, follow-ing Metallie Roofing Co. of Canada v. Local Union No. 30, Amalgamated Sheet Metal Workers' International Asam, 23 C. L. T. 152. 5 O. L. R. 424, that the association was not a body capable of being sued or being served. and so was not capable of being enjoined or of committing a contempt, and that, as the very object of the appeal was to determine whether it could be sued and served with process, it could not be determined whether a contempt had been committed without hearing the appeal :-- Held, also, that the rule is not universal that persons guilty of contempt can take no step in the action; a party, not withstanding his contempt, is entitled to take the necessary steps to defend himself, and, as the defendants here were ordered to appear within ten days on pain of having judgment signed against them, they had the right to shew, if they could, that the service upon them was not permitted by the practice; and the motion was refused under the circumstances without costs. Fry v. Ernest, 9 Jur. N. S. 1151, and Ferguson v. County of Elgin. A. S. 1131, and Pergubor V. County of 2.61m, 15 P. R. 399, followed. Small v. American Federation of Musicians, 23 C. L. T. 188, 5 O. L. R. 456, 2 O. W. R. 26, 33, 99, 278, 310.

Newspaper — Reflections on Judge of Superior Court.]—There is contempt of Court in an article in a newspaper which falsely imputes to a Judge sitting in the Superior Court conduct or words which are of a nature to draw upon him the hatred or contempt of the public. In re Soleil Publication Co., 34 Que. 8, C, 72.

Newspaper comment - Conduct of revising officer, J--The publication of newspaper articles reflecting on the conduct of a revising officer acting under the Election Act in such a way that they might have been made the subject of proceedings for libel, but not in the circumstances calculated to obstruct or interfere with the course of justice or the due administration of the law, does not constitute a contempt of Court punishable by summary proceedings. Skipworth's Clarke, 58 L. J. Q. B. 400, and The Queen v. Payne, [1806] 1 Q. B. 577, followed. In re Bonar, 23 C. L. T. 2651; Res v. Bonnar (No. 2.), 14 Man. L. R. 481.

Newspaper criticism.] - Criticism in the newspaper of judgments and judicial orders is legitimate and beneficial. The right to do so is inherent to the liberty of the press. But it is necessary not to confound this with attacks upon the Judges, couched in injurious language, accompanied by insinuations or direct charges of dishonesty, favoritism or corruption, which have for sole object to discre-dit them by libelling them. Comments upon may constitute a contempt of Court after judgment rendered as well as before the decision is given. Atty.-Gen. for Que. v. Four-nier, 37 Que. S. C. 68. Affirmed (1910), 19 Que. K. B. 431, 17

Can, Crim. Cas. 108,

Order for imprisonment - Appeal -Discretion.]-Where the trial Judge has exercised his discretionary powers in a matter of procedure by ordering that a party who was in contempt of Court for refusing to produce effects unlawfully removed by her, should be imprisoned until the effects should be pro-duced, the Court of King's Bench, or a Judge thereof, will not be disposed to allow an appeal from such exercise of discretion, and Court below was apparently the only prac-K. B. 279, 6 Que, P. R. 418.

Pending criminal proceeding-Information-Contemptuous design.] - The ques is for the sole decision of the Court ; and the fact that the contemnor denies any disrespectful or contemptuous design to reflect on proceedings pending before the Court, will not justify him if such comments appear to the Court to amount to a flagrant contempt. 2. Proceedings are pending in a criminal case from the time the information has been laid and so long as any proceedings can be taken. Where the jury have disagreed and a new trial has been ordered, the cause is pending until ended by a verdict or otherwise. Rex v. Charlier, 12 Que. K. B. 385.

Preliminary inquiry by magistrate-Refusal of witness to answer-Relevancy question-Alteration of document.]-1. Under s. 585 of the Criminal Code a magistrate would not be justified in committing a witness to gaol for refusal to answer a question unless it were in some way relevant to the issue, as that section only applies when the refusal is made "without offering any just excuse," and the form of the warrant of commitment referred to in that section con-tains the words, "now refuses to answer certain questions concerning the premises now put to him." 2. If B, is charged with making an alteration of a document received from A., the question put to A. on his examination as a witness on the trial of B, as to the person from whom he, A., had received this document, would not be material if the document is produced; but, if it cannot be found, proof of its contents would have to be given, and that might involve, as a part ^{be} given, and that might involve, as a part of the claim, information as to the source from which A. had obtained the document, and it could not be held that the question was not in some way material. In re Ayotte, 15 Man. L. R. 156, 1 W. L. R. 79, 9 Can. Crim. Cas. 133.

Publication of newspaper article -Comment on pending election petition-Pre-judice-Petition not prosecuted - Abuse of forms of Court.]-Motion to make absolute an order nisi to commit editor of newspaper for contempt of Court in publishing in the newspaper an article commenting on matters alleged to be in question upon a petition pending against respondent to avoid his election as member for North Renfrew in the Legislative Assembly of Ontario: - Held, such an application should only be granted where it clearly appears that the course of justice has been, or is likely to be, restricted or impaired to the prejudice of the applicant unless summary punishment is inflicted upon the offender. If an article is merely libellous, or if it is even strictly contempt of Court, but not of such a nature as to impede the course of justice, then the applicant must resort to what other remedies, if any, the law gives him, and cannot successfully invoke the summary, and as it has been called, arbithe sommery, and as it has been cance, arei-trary, remedy now sough. The proceedings on both sides were so manifestly a sham, and a user of the forms of the Court for some purpose other than of the real trial of the charges, that contempt of Court is not preties to them. In scena non in fors res agitur. is no concern of a Court of justice. Motion dismissed with costs on these grounds only. Re North Renfrew Provincial Election, Re Macdonald, 4 O. W. R. 244, 9 O. L. R. 79.

Restraint upon administration of justice.]-The offence known as "contempt of Court" results from any act which tends tion of justice, or to expose the Courts or Judges to contempt. Atty-Gen. for Que. v. Fournier, 37 Que. S. C. 68. Affirmed (1910), 19 Que. K. B. 431, 17

Can, Crim. Cas, 108,

Same acts of disobedience to an injunction issued against a corporation, its offleers and servants, may bring about a judg-ment for contempt of Court distinctive as to the one and the others. Beruier v, Que, & Levis Ferry Co., (1910), 39 Que, S. C. 193.

Scandalizing the Court - Attachment for contempt—Nature of proceeding—Court sitting in one district and contempt committed in another-Power to punish inherent in the Court.]-A rule of the Superior Court, issued at the instance of the Attorney-General, calling on a party to shew cause why he should not be attached and punished for contempt of Court by scandalizing the Court, is a proceeding in a matter of a criminal na ture, and an appeal from an order declaring the rule absolute and ordering the imprisonthe rule absolute and ordering the imprison-ment of the party, will lie to the Court of King's Bench, under the provisions of the Criminal Code, if the jurisdiction of the Superior Court to deal with the matter, either relatively, because of the place in which it sits, or absolutely, on the ground that the sub-ject matter is not one of contempt, is put in issue. But the Court of King's Bench, sitting in appeal, if it finds that the Superior Court has jurisdiction from both points of view, will not further inquire into the merits of the order. Per Archambeault, J .- The order declaring the rule absolute is a final judgment of the Superior Court from which an appeal lies to this Court under Art, 43 C. P., as well on the merits as on the question of jurisdiction.—The Superior Court, sitting at Quebec, has jurisdiction to take cognizance of, and adjudicate upon, proceedings for contempt by scandalizing the Court in newspaper articles written and published in Montreal.—The Superior Court has jurisdiction to attach and publish for contempt by comments published in newspapers on judicial proceedings, both before and after disposal of them by final judgment.—The power to punish for contempt is inherent in Courts of Superior original jurisdiction, such as the Superior Court of this province, independently of enactments in the codes and statutes relating to their discipilinary powers.— All writings or publications which tend to pervert or obstruct the ordinary confidence in its due administration, are contempts of Court. Witness at trial — Refusal to produce telegrams—Permission of superior — Public documents-Costs.]-S., a witness, was duly subpoenaed to bring with him certain telegrams which went through the office of which he was agent, which office was to some extent under the control of the federal government. He did not produce the telegrams, and stated in excuse that he had not received permission from C., who was the agent of the government in relation to a government railway, and to whom he had applied for per mission .- On application to commit S. and C. for contempt, the trial Judge decided that these telegrams were not public documents, and considered that both S, and C, were guilty of contempt, but, as their disobedience ap-peared to be primarily due to what they considered their imperative duty, he directed that on payment of the costs of these proceedings for contempt, no attachment should issue. An appeal on behalf of S. and C. was dismissed. McDougall v. Dominion Iron and Steel Co., In re Serois, 40 N. S. R. 333.

Cancellation in part - Construction-Municipal works - Deductions - Deferred payments-Interest - Payments in advance -Rebates-Damages.]-Article 1691, C. C., does not give the owner of works being constructed under a contract at a fixed price the power of cancelling the contract in part and maintaining it as to another part; it must cipality agreed to pay for works by promissory notes, payable in two years without interest, to be delivered to the contractor on the completion of the works, and to bear a date assumed to be the mesne date of con pletion of the works as carried on in detail. The mesne date was settled as 15th December, 1899, and the notes for the balance due were delivered in 1900: - Held, on appeal from 12 Que, K. B. 490, that interest on advance payments made before 15th De-cember, 1899, was payable only from that date; but the interest should be calculated on the basis of the actual amounts of the advance payments made, and not on the basis of the actual cost of the works. Certain of the works were not executed by orders from the municipality, and on this head a reduction was made from the plaintiffs' claim. It appeared that the plaintiffs had, at least tacitly, consented to this diminution, and made no protest in respect thereof :-Held, that, under the circumstances, the plaintiffs could not claim the sum in question as damages under Arts. 1065, 1691. Causes rendering them void — Legal constraint — Ratification, I—Legal constraint such as the threat of a creditor to issue execution against his debtor, is not duress which avoids the contract. Conduct-Injunction-Parol agreement--Statute of Frauds - Part performance-Services - Quantum meruit-New trial.]-Previous to 1891, a verbal agreement was entered into between the plaintiff and the defendant, under which the plaintiff was to be employed in the care and management of the defendant's business, and in return the defendant was to afford the plaintiff support and maintenance during the defendant's lifetime, and at his death was to give to him one-half of a certain island belonging to the defendant. The plaintiff entered upon his duties and continued to perform his side of the agreement until August, 1897, when, by an injunction order, issuing out of the Equity Court, made in a suit which both the plaintiff and the defendant were parties, he was restrained from any longer interfering with the care or management of the defendisland. He accordingly handed over to one B., who was acting under a power of attor-ney from the defendant, all the property of the defendant in his possession, and, treating the conduct of the defendant as equivalent to a rescission of the agreement, in the same month of August brought an action against the defendant for the value of his services during the six years previous to the issuing of the injunction order. The jury found that the defendant had annulled and put an end to the agreement on the 3rd August, 1897, a verdict was found for the plaintiff. In December, 1897, some months after the commencement of the action, the defendant made a deed of the island in question to B. upon certain trusts, the nature of which did not appear in evidence: - Held, that, although neither the obtaining of the injunction order nor the making of the deed to B. was sufficient to sustain the finding of the jury as to the annulment of the agreement, and the plaintiff ought, therefore, in strictness, to be nonsuited, yet, as there was a point of view of the facts which had not been presented to the jury, and under which the plaintiff might be entitled to recover on a quantum meruit, the case should be further investigated, and there should therefore be a new trial: Tuck, C.J., and McLeod, J., dissenting. Frye v. Frye, 34 N. B. R. 569.

Contract not yet excented—Grounds for reacision.]—There is no ground for a demand for the rescission of a contract in course of execution, except when the debtor is actually in default as regards the fulfilment of the obligations which arise from it. Consequently, the probability of his not being able to perform it within the time arreed upon, however strong that may be, and his default in accomplishing what is required by the contract, according to the mode or in the order provided, are not grounds sufficient to C.C.L=-27

Deceit and frand—Evidence—Concur-rent findings of lower Courts — Duly of second Court of Appeal.]—A sale of timber limits to the plaintiff was effected through a broker for a price stated in the deed to be $112.500, but the vendor signed an acknowledgment that the true price, so far as he was concerned, was $75,000. At the time of the execution of the deed a statement was made shewing how the purchase money was to be paid, and the vendor signed an agreement that out of the balance of the $112,500, iz., $46,502.02, the plaintiff was to get $3 500, i.e., the amount of the difference between the true price and that mentioned in the deed. The vendor refused to pay over this $37,500, on the ground that the plaintiff and the broker had conspired together to deceive him as to the actual price to be obtained for the limits, and that the sale was not in fact to the plaintiff for $75,000, but not in fact to the plantin for strates, such to the plantiff's principals, the grantees in the deed, for the full consideration of $112,-500, and that the plantiff and the broker were acting fraudulently and seeking by deceit and artifice to deprive him of the full price at which the sale had been effected In an action to recover the $37,500 from the dor :-- Held, affirming the judgment ties, unless there was very strong evidence to the contrary, and, as there was no such evidence, and the circumstances, as found by the Courts below, tended to shew that the plaintiff was entitled to the money in distions between the parties, the case was one in which a second Court of Appeal would not be justified in disturbing the concurrent find-ings at the trial and of the Court appealed Vellieux v. Misrepresentations - Sale of mining areas - Evidence-Speculative property.] -In an action to set aside a sale of gold bearing areas purchased by the plaintiffs from the defendant, who was joint owner with H., the plaintiffs relied upon evidence shewing that they were induced to make the contract by certain representations as to value contained in a report prepared by H. and handed by the defendant to L., who was acting for the plain-tiffs, as a means of inducing the sale. Evi-dence was given on behalf of the defendant to shew that at the time the report was handed to L., he was given to understand that the defendant could not say anything as to its correctness, and that L. must verify it for himself. The trial Judge decided the action in favour of the defendant, and on appeal the Court en banc was divided, both as to the effect of the evidence and as to the admissibility of evidence taken (under an order) after the judgment of the trial Judge. Leckie v. Stuart, 34 N. S. R. 140.

Mistake — Avoidance — Oral evidence to establish error—Sale of goods—Quality intended.]—A contract taited with error in the substance of its object, or with regard to one of its principal considerations, is void.—2. Oral testimony is admissible to establish error of the two contracting parties as to the substantial quality of the goods sold under a written arreement. Therefore, where the goods sold were thus described in the writing. "2768 barrels, assorted sizes, in the condition that they now are in," oral evidence that the contracting parties understood that they were selling and buying barrels of white oak, and not of red oak, may be given without violation of Art. 1234, C. C. Cohen v. Hanley, 32 Que. S. C. 46.

Non-fulfilment of obligations — Parties both in default.]—In order that the rescission of a contract may, by virtue of Art. 1005 of the Civil Code, be adjudged against a party who has not fulfilled the obligations of it, it is necessary that such rescission should put the parties as they were before the contract, and it will not be adjudged if its effect will be to enrich one party at the expense of the other, 2. If one party has failed to fulfil his obligations as much as the other, he cannot demand against the other the rescission of the contract. Dupuis v. Dupuis, 19 Que. 8, C, 500.

Purchase of business—Action for cancellation.]—Plaintiff sued to cancel an agreement for purchase of a stock-in-trade and to recover a cash deposit on the main ground that Americans had sunggled goods from the store in question into United States:—Heid, that if sunggling had been done it was not known to defendant, but, at any rate, it could not be taken cognizance of by Canadian Courts. The deposit bei z liquidated damages, the vendor is entit! 4 to retain same. Reid v. Diebel (1909), 14 O. W. R. 77.

Purchase of mining shares—Delay in delivery.]—Judgme... in favour of plaintifi affirmed on appenl. The action was for $340, the amount paid for 200 shares of mining stock. The defendant pleaded delay on plaintiff's part, but evidence shewed this delay was not unreasonable. Pleveman v. Jenks, 12 O. W. R. 1083.

Right of some only of a number of joint contractors to rescind-Intoxication.]-Although a person who has been induced to enter into a contract of purchase as one of a partnership or syndicate, proves such fraud or misrepresentation on the part of the vendor that he would, if alone concerned, have been entitled to rescind the contract, yet he is not in a position to do so unless all the members of the partnership or syndicate are seeking such rescission. The only remedy such person could have, unless the other persons interested join, would be by cross-action or counterclaim for damages. Morrison v. Earls, 5 O. business as a ground for rescission of the contract, he having received the property and so dealt with the business as to make restitution impossible. The defendant counterclaimed damages, and from the judgment dismissing his counterclaim there was no appeal :--Held, that O. 57, R. 5 (corresponding with the Eng. O. 868, R. 4), could not be so extended as to enable the Court to make the order that the Judge below should have made :---Held, also, that the counterclaim being an independent action, and not a mere defence to the plaintiff's claim, if the defendant was dissatisfied with the judgment dismissing his counterclaim, it was incumbent upon him to appeal, and, in the absence of such appeal, he could not ask the Court to deal with the counterclaim under the notice of appeal given by the plaintiff, which was confined to issues arising under the defence to the statement of claim. Corbin v. Purcell, 2 E. L. R. 217, 31 N. S. R. 454.

Supply of electricity—Municipal corportaion—Pailare of contractor to perform contract — Remedy — Rescission — Relief against—Extension of time.] — Defendant H. con tracted with plaintiffs to supply electric ligne—Held, that as he has failed to arry out his contract plaintiffs entitled to a rescission as against him.—Held, further, that it should be also rescinced, so far as defendant company is concerned, which claimed to be assignee of the contract. Threats—Apprehension.]—In order that a father may have the right to rescind a contract which he has made, on the ground of threats to his daughter, it is necessary that these threats shall have produced an apprehension in him which is the sole reason of his consenting to execute the contract. The apprehension of his daughter, if he himself did not share it, has no effect upon the contract. Groups V, Vinet, 24 Que, 8, C. 1.

Time for performance—Implication of lew — Undue delay — Notice.]—Where no time is specified between the parties for the carrying out of a contract, the law implies that it should be carried out within a reasonable time, having regard to all the circumstances. If there he an undue delay on the part of either party, the other party has the richt to notify him that unless the contract is carried out within a specified time, such time to be reasonable, the contract will be considered at an end, and where the work to be done requires a considerable time for its commencement. Johnson v, Duan, 11 B. C. B. 372, 20, M. E. 317.

Undue influence—Life insurance—Policy payable to father and brother—Person insured married on death bed—Made policy payable to wife—Alleged agreement by wife to give hospital half—Power of attorney— Undue influence exercised over wife—Transaction set aside—Wife not a free agent.]— Plaintif, widow of Pashal Finn, brought action to recover $500, part of an insurance policy on the life of ther hushand, which plaintiff alleged was paid to defendant Bostford, and by him paid to defendant hospital through power of attorney obtained from plaintiff by undue influence of defendants and others. Defendants said that plaintiff agreed with Finn that, in consideration of his marrying she her and appointing her sole beneficiary. would on his death, pay to the hospital $500, being one-half of the said policy. denied such agreement, and the evidence on the point was most conflicting. At trial the action was dismissed with costs .-- Divisional Court held, that the relations of the parties and the circumstances of the case cast the onus on the defendants of shewing that the transaction was the free act of the plaintiff. That the onus had not been discharged, but, on the contrary, the evidence shewed that an undue advantage was taken of plaintiff's situation. That, unassisted, she was unable to resist the influence of those who, on behalf of the hospital, were exercising pressure upon her. That she was not a free agent, and had not that protection to which she was entitled before parting with her rights. under such circumstances it was the duty of the Court to afford her such protection from set aside, and judgment for plaintiff from set aside, and judgment for planning for the $500, with interest and costs of ac-tion and appent. Finn v. St. Vincent de Paul Hospital (1910), 17 O. W. R. 673, 2 O. W. N. 343, 22 O. L. R. 381.

2. BREACH OF CONTRACT.

Abandonment — Quantum meruit — Amendment, I—The plaintiff arreed to build, for a fixed lump sum, a foundation for a building, the defendant supplying materials on the ground. The plaintiff, owing to nonsupply of lime, abandoned the work, though it was found on the evidence that the defendant had got what he bargained for, with some shortcominas, for which damages would compensate him: — Held, that although the plaintiff was not entided to succeed on his claim under the original special contract, he was entitled to recover on a quantum meruit, and the pleadings were directed to be amended accordingly. Burns v. Ussherwood, 4 Terr. L. R. 389.

Action for damages for non-performance-Failure of plainliff to perform condi-tions-Mutual and dependent covenants.]-Defendant agreed to plough a certain quantity of land in consideration of receiving a portion of the crop to be grown thereon. The plaintiff on his part agreed to provide a granary for the purpose of storing the grain to be grown. Defendant failed to plough the land agreed upon, and plaintiff did not erect the granary. In an action by the plaintiff for damages for failure to plough the land, defendant pleaded that by reason of the plaintiff's failure to provide the granary he had to haul away the grain, and the time occupied in doing so prevented him com-pleting the contract before frost prevented him doing so :-Held, that neither the covenant of the plaintiff to furnish the granary nor that of the defendant to plough went to the whole consideration, and the covenants were not mutual conditions the one precedent to the other, and therefore the failure of the plaintiff to furnish the granary was no defence to the plaintiff's action for damages on the other branch of the contract. See v. Branchflower (1909), 2 Sask. L. R. 20.

Appointment of sequestrator — Cancellation.]—The Court has no power to appoint a sequestrator to carry out the work undertaken by a contractor, nor to authorize the owner to take possession of the works, the remedy of the owner being the cancellation of the contract. Bond for performance — Liquidated damages—What breaches covered by bond.]— Defendants contracted to build and complete a vessel for plaintiff by 1st of August, and agreed to pay £4 10s, for each day the vessel was detained beyond that date. At the same time they executed a bond and warrant of attorney authorising plaintiff to enter judgment against them for £700, conditioned to be void if the vessel was completed in time. The vessel was delayed one hundred and five days, which, at £4 10s. a day, would give £472 10s. Including this £472 10s., the accounts shewed £738 to be due plaintiff, and he entered judgment and issued execution for £700. De fendant moved to set aside the judgment and execution on the grounds that £4 10s, a day was a penalty and not liquidated damages, and secondly that in any case the condition of the bond did not apply to damages beyond. or to breaches not covered by the £4 10s, a day :- Held, Peters, J., that the £4 10s, a day were liquidated damages .- That the condition only applied to the non-delivery of the vessel and not to other damages and breaches, and the levy must be reduced. Lefurgy V. McGregor & McNeill (1868), 1 P. E. I. R.

Cause of action, where arising — Sale of goods—Place of delivery — Superior Court—District.]—In the absence of arreement to the contrary, goods sold should be delivered and the price paid at the domicil of the purchaser. 2. Default of delivery of the goods sold and of payment of the price constitutes a cause of action. 3. An action can only be begun before the Court of the place where the cause of action arose (if such Court is not that of the domicil of the defendant), when all the causes of action arose in the same place. Lipschitz v. Rittner, 4 Que, P. R. 311.

Company—Contract before incorporation —Agent—Causenus—Enidence.] —In the absence of a new agreement made by a company after its incorporation, a contract made before its incorporation by a person purporting to contract for the company is not binding on the company, although the parties afterwards carry out some of the terms of the contract and act on the supposition that it is binding on the company, In e Sully, 33 Ch. D. 16, followed. A person who enters into a contract, expressly as agent for a principal, impliedly warrants his authority and if he has in fact no such authority he may be such under that implied contract, and is bound to make good to the other contracting party what that party has lost or failed to obtain by reason of the nonexistence of the authority. Collen v. Wright, S E. & B. 647, followed. In an action on an oral contract, the evidence as to its terms being contradictory, and shewing that, if each of the parties to the contract gave in evidence a truthful statement of its terms, a misunderstanding between them as to whether a certain important provision (the existence of which was the whole basis of the action) formed part of it, the trial Judge declared himself unable to ascertain the truth, and, applying the principle laid down in Falck v. Williams, [1900] A. C. 176, that it is for the plaintiff in an action for breach of contract to shew that his construction is the right one — dismissed the action. Coit v. Doucing, A Terr, L. R. 404.

Condition not to engage in business.] -Defendants sold their merchant tailoring business to plain¹⁴ff and agreed not to engage in said business within S miles thereof. Later they purchased a general store in same town and sold ready-made clothing for 3 years before plaintiff brought action for damages:-Held, that the defendants were not debarred from selling ready-made goods, and they had done nothing more than was necessary for that sale. Stone v. Doubt (1909), 14 O. W. R. 459.

Condition precedent - Divisible contract.] - The defendants agreed to buy a machine, the agreement being in the form of an order signed by the defendants and adopted and accepted by the plaintiffs, who shipped the machine ordered, and now sued for the price.—It had been a term or condi-tion of the agreement that M., the inventor of the machine, and the filaintiffs' agents for sales of it, should personally inspect the placing of the machine in operation. This M. failed to do, but the plaintiffs sent a competent person to set the machine up, whom, however, the defendants would not allow to do so, inasmuch as M, was not present .- Held, that the plaintiffs, neverthe less, were entitled to judgment for the price of the machine, on the principle that unless the non-performance alleged in breach of a contract goes to the whole root and consideration of it, the part broken is not to be considered as a condition precedent, but as a distinct covenant, for the breach of which the party injured may be compensated in damages. Cowan v. Fisher, 20 C. L. T. 34, 31 O. R. 426, Condition precedent as to sub-letting.—Consent of municipal conneil.—Pleak ing.] — Where a contract with a municipal corporation provides that it shall not be sub-let without the consent of the corporation, it is incumbent on the contractor to obtain such consent before sub-letting, and if he fails to do so he cannot maintain an action against a proposed sub-contractor for not carrying on the portion of the work he agreed to de. In an action against the sub-contractor, the latter pleaded the wunt of assent by the courcil, whereapon the plaintiff replied that the assent was withheid " at the wrongful requesiand instigation of the defendant and in order wrongfully to benefit said defendant and enable him, if possible, to repudiate and alam 3.201

Conspiracy-Fraud-Assessment of damages-Incidental demand.]-Appeal from the ages-Incidental demand, [-Appeal from the judgment of the Court of King's Bench (Trenholme, J., dissenting), affirming the judgment of Archibald, J., in the Superior Court, 28 Que, S. C. 122, which main-tained the plaintiffs' action, without costs, to the extent of a balance found to to the extent of a bainnee lound to be due to them, after deducting damages as-sessed in favour of the defendants upon an incidental demand, which was main-tained with costs, — The action was for the price of medicinal pills, called "red pills," which the plaintiffs had manufactured for the defendants according to a special formula, supplied by the defendants, under a contract with a condition that pills manufactured according to that formula should not be manufactured for or sold to any person other than the defendants. The defendson other influence averaging the derendration of the derendration of the condition of the con-tract, and charged the plaintiffs with hav-ing sold a quantity of similar pills to cer-tain persons who had infringed their trade mark, and with having participated. The Judge maintained the plaintiffs' action in part, without costs, maintaining the incidental demand in respect to damages sustained by loss of profits through the wrongful sale of the pills and for expenses in obtaining evidence as to breach of contract, with costs, but disallowed certain other expenses incurred in the prosecution of the conspirators by the defendants, and he also found that the plaintiffs had not participated in the conspiracy. -The Court of King's Bench affirmed this judgment, and the plaintiffs appealed .- The majority of the Judges of the Supreme Court of Canada were of opinion that the appeal should be dismissed. Davies and - Maclennan, JJ., dissented in respect to the damages allowed on the incidental demand for loss of profits alleged to have been sustained in consequence of the sale of the pills sup-plied in breach of the contract. Covenant-Restraint of trade-Agreement by employee not to engage in similar business for three years-Breach-Injunction-Damages-Costs-Appeal allowed-Action dismised.]-Action by a manufacturing company, carrying on a laundry business as one of their departments, for an injunction and damages on ground that defendant, a former employee of plaintiffs, had entered into a partnership with another ex-employee and was carrying on a rival laundry business, and was canvassing customers of plaintiffs with a view of inducing them to give their work to defendant, and was also trying to induce employees of plaintiffs to leave plaintiffs' employment and enter into defendant's employment, in contravention of an alleged agree ment by defendant that he would not so do .--Mulock, C.J.Ex.D., held, that the custom laundry business entered into by the defendant was no breach of his engagement no to enter into any business of a similar kind to that carried on by the plaintiffs, and dismissed the action.—Divisional Court (17 O. W. R. 917, 2 O. W. N. 442), held, that the defendant having been educated in the im proved methods of business in the plaintiffs laundry and entrusted with their secrets. should not be at liberty to cut into that very profitable part of their business by a competitive laundry in the same city; That the defendant left the employment of the plaintiff on 2nd June, 1910, and should be inhibited for three years from that date from violating the terms of his engagement on an undertaking to keep an account of the Master and paid over to plaintiffs, with costs of action and appeal.-Court of Appeal restored judgment of Mulock, C.J.Ex.D., with costs throughout, Allen Mfg, Co. v. Covenant in restraint of trade — Lease of machinery on terms which prevent use of machines not owned by lessors — Validity of covenents.]—Plaintiffs had practically a monopoly of the manufacture of modern shoemsking machinery in Canada. They refused to sell their machines at all, but leased them out to shoemakers on leases, containing a covenant that the leases would not use the machines so leased in the manufacture of any boots or shoes which were not wholly made by their machines:—Held, that the covenant was not a covenant in restraint of trade. Judgments of the Court of King's Bench, 17 Que, K, R, 435, and of the Superior Court of Quebec set aside. United Shoe Machine Co., v. Ruwet, C. R. [1900] A. C. 148, 78 L. J. P. C. 101, 100 L. T. R. 570.

Covenant not to engage in trade.]--Defendant sold plainiffs his ice and coal business in Hamilton for $10,000, and covenanted not to be interested in or carry on business in opposition to plainiffs within 35 miles during the next ten years. Plaintiffs alleged that defendant had broken that covenant and claimed $10,000 damages. At trial judgment was entered for plaintiffs, and referred the question of damages to the local Master, who assessed them at $5000. Defendant appealed therefrom and Anglin, J., dismissed his appeal, but on appeal to the Divisional Court therefrom the damages were reduced to $22. The Court of Appeal varied the latter judgment and fixed the damages at $500. No costs of any of the appeal's to either party. Case to be heard on further directions and as to costs unless parties agrees otherwise. Judgment of Divisional Court, 12 O. W. R. 726, varied. Dewey v. Dewey (1909), 15 O. W. R. 66.

Damages—Allowances and deductions — Accounts—Interest. Ottowe Electric Co. v. City of Ottawa, 1 O. W. R. 508, 2 O. W. R. 506, 3 O. W. R. 65, 588, 796, 4 O. W. R. 190, 6 C. W. R. 930.

Damages-Costs - Evidence - Discretionary order by Judge at trial-Interference by Court of Appeal.]-The trial Court condemned the defendant to pay $122.50 damages for breach of contract for the sale of goods but, in view of unnecessary expenses caused in consequence of exaggerated demands by the plaintiffs, which were rejected, they were ordered to bear half the costs. On an appeal by the defendant, the Court of King's Bench varied the trial Court judgment by adding $100 exemplary damages to the condemnation and giving full costs against the defendant :-Held, reversing the judgment appealed from that, in the absence of any evidence of bad faith or wilful default on the part of the defendant, there was no justification for the addition of exemplary damages nor for interference with the judgment of the trial Court. Coghlin v. Fonderie de Joliette, 24 C. L. T. 110, 34 S. C. R. 153.

Damages—Future services.]—The plaintiff agreed to give a course of lessons in the cutting work of a tailor to the defendant, who was to pay the plaintiff $100 by payments to be made at intervals during the course. The defendant took several lessons, but refused to continue them.—Held, that the plaintiff could recover from the defendant only the price of the lessons which he had actually given, and not the price of the whole course; his remedy 'in respect of the future lessons being for damages for the defendant's non-performance of his agreement. Dulude v. Jutros, 18 Que, S. C. 327.

Damages-Measure of-Notice of special circumstances - Collateral enterprises-Loss of primary and secondary profits-Costs.] -The plaintiffs sold the defendant a boiler to be used in a mill to be set up in connection with his lumbering operations, and guaranteed its efficiency for that purpose. When delivered it proved inefficient, and, while necessary alterations and repairs were being made, two months elapsed, during which the defendant was deprived of the use of his mill, was obliged to keep a gang of men idle and under expense for wages and board, and, in unsuccessfully aftempting to carry on his operations, temporarily hired another boiler. On being sued for the price of the boiler, defendant counterclaimed for damages, the and, at the trial, was awarded $427.11. being $277.11 for wages, board and expenses incurred in consequence of the failure of the boiler to satisfy the guarantee, and also $150 for damages for the 'loss of the use of the mill.' By the judgment appealed from the first item for wages, etc., was rejected, and the item for "loss of the use of the mill" only allowed :- Held, per Fitzthe mini only anowed — near, per Fitz-patrick, C.J.C., and Davies and Macionan, J.J., Idington, J., contra, that, as the loss of primary profits directly resulting from the breach of the contract only should have been allowed, the item of $150 for loss of anticipated profits should be rejected as being merely secondary, speculative and uncertain; but that the item assessed by the trial Judge in respect of the wages, board, and other expenses should be allowed, as they were direct and immediate results of such breach. —Duff, J., was of the opinion that the appeal should be allowed and the judgment by the trial Judge restored.—The judgment appealed from was reversed with costs, and the judgment at the trial restored to the extent of $277.11, but, in the special circumstances of the case, no costs were allowed in respect of the appeal to the Court below. Corbin y, Thompson, 39 S. C. R. 575.

Damages-Profits-Mode of estimating. -In an action for damages for breach of contract plaintiff gave evidence that he estimated his profit at from 15 to 20 per cent. on the total amount of the contract, or from $75 to $80, but on cross-examination he failed to give any data by which the accuracy of his estimate could be tested, while the person who actually did the work gave evi dence that his profit was about $35 :- Held. that the burden was on the plaintiff to shew grounds which would justify the Court in adopting his estimate, and that, in the absence of such evidence the amount of damages allowed must be reduced from $70, at which it was fixed by the trial Judge, to $35; and that an allowance could not be made for the plaintiff's time, that being one of the elements forming the basis on which the profit is to be calculated, or for material provided for the purpose of carrying out such contract, except in so far as such material was shewn to be useless for any other pur-The measure of damages is the profit pose. which the plaintiff might reasonably look for. Lowe v. Robb Engineering Co., 37 N. S. Reps. 326.

Damages — Quantum — Discretion of Court, 1—When it is shewn that damage must have resulted from a breach of contract, the exact amount of which cannot be ascertained, it is in the discretion of the Court to determine the same equitably as a jury should do. Webster v. International Coment Co. Q. R. 29 S. C. 470.

Damages — Time — Essence of waiver. McRae v. Wilson Co., 1 O. W. R. 380.

Damages-Work and labour - Delay -Loss of tenant-Waiver-Security.]-In action by plaintiff on promissory note given by defendant in part payment of contract price for erection by plaintiff of a vault in building owned by defendant, the defendant counterclaimed damages on account of imperfect condition of vault, and also on account of loss of tenant who had agreed to take a five years' lease of one floor of the building, on condition that the vault was completed by specified date :---Held, that, in order to recover on latter part of counterclaim, defendant must shew that there was a contract by plaintiff to complete vault by specified date, and that plaintiff was so far aware of the agreement between defendant and his proposed tenant that he must be taken to have contracted to bear the loss covered by repudiation of tenancy in consequence of his failure to carry out terms of his contract; and that, in absence of evidence, or of such notification of agreement between defendant and his proposed tenant as to give rise to contract on part of plaintiff to bear loss occasioned by refusal of tenant to take premises on account of noncompletion of vault, defendant could not recover .--- In answer to letter from defendant complaining of delay in commencement of work, and stating that on plaintiff's assur-ance he had promised M., the prospective tenant, that the work would be completed by 1st March, plaintiff took the ground that the contract called for security, and offered to proceed with the work as soon as satisfactory security was given. There was nothing about security in letters containing offer and acceptance, which constituted the contract, but defendant acquiesced, and furnished security asked for :- Held, that while defendant might have refused to give security, and have insisted upon prosecution of the work in ac-cordance with terms of contract, he could not, after assenting to and acting upon plaintiff's requirement, contend that there was any breach of agreement on 1st March. Sanders v. Sutcliffe (1906), 38 N. S. R. 352.

Deceit — Damages — Evidence.]—The non-performance of a contractual obligation, when there is deceit on the part of the debtor, is ground for an action by the creditor for the recovery of all the damages which, whether they might reasonably have been in contemplation at the date of the contract or not, are the direc: and immediate consequence of it.—The difficulty of determining exactly the extent of the injury suffered, and the absence of evidence upon which to fix the amount of damages, are not reasons for not allowing damages to one whose right thereto is established; it is for the Court in such a case to fix the damages. Zurf V. Great Northern Telegraph Co., Q. R. 29 S. C. 460.

Failure of consideration—Repudiation — Noration — Rescission.] — Action for damages for breach of contract. Countercolaim for rescission. Two timber booms were sold to other parties than defendants' — Heid, this was done at defendants' consent, it was not such a breach as would entitle defendants to repudiate. Plaintiffs were willing to deliver to defendants. All circumstances must be considered. Failure did not go to the root of the contract, which was assignable, the personal element being unimportant, Judgment for defendants' counterclaim dismissed. Paterson Timber Jo. v. Canadian Pacific Lumber Co. (B. C.), 10 W. L. R. 449.

Frand and misrepresentation — Sale of two creameries — Representations as to Danages — Measure of,] — Held, that the measure of damages in an action for misrepresentations, in the sale of two creameries to plaintiffs was the difference between the purchase price and their actual value at time of purchase, and that the Master erred in allowing damages for loss sustained by plaintiffs in the operation of the creameries. Lamont v. Wenger (1909), 14 O. W. R. 984, 1 O. W. N. 177, See S. C. 14 O.

Jury trial—Right to—Sums claimed as accessory to a commercial contract—C. P. 421.)—An action claiming a certain amount for salary due, for monies advanced and for salary until the completion of a management contract, is triable by a jury, if these monies have been so advanced incidentally and as accessory to the execution of the management contract as allered by the plaintiff's declaration. Clark v. Clark Automatic Nut-Lock Co, (1908), 10 Que, P. R. 386.

Goods ordered to be "shipped and insured"—Placed on deck where policy did not corer them — Purchaser pol liable for price of goods lost.] — Defendant ordered plaintiff to "insure and ship" him certain goods. Plaintiff insured the goods and shipped them, but they were placed, without his knowledce, on deck where the policy would not cover them and they were lost. Plaintiff brought action for the price of the goods. —Held, that he must shew that he not only shipped but also insured the goods so as to cover them in the part of the ship where they were placed, and, not having done so, there was no insurance and he could not recover. Room v. Large (1870), 1 P. E. I. R. 310.

Liquidated damages or penalty?-*Di*lay in delivering boiler for steamer.]—An action to recover $1,425, alloged to be liquidated damages at $25 per day for 57 days delay in delivering a boiler for a steamer, as per agreement. Defendants claimed that said sum was not liquidated damages but a penalty, and therefore plaintiffs could not recover:-Clute, J., keld the above to be a penalty only and gave plaintiffs judgment with reference to a Local Muster to assess the damages. Divisional Court reversed above judgment and directed judgment to be entered for plaintiffs for amount of their claim, and interest with costs of the trial and appeals. Review of authorities. Pelce Island Nav. Co., V. Doty Engine Works (1911), 18 O. W. R. 509, 2 O. W. N. S90, O. L. R.

Manufacture and sale of chattels— Damages.]—Five days after making a contract with the plaintiffs for the manufacture by them of a large number of shells for electric light lamps, to be delivered monthly for a period of twenty months, the defendants notified the plaintiffs that they would not carry out the contract. The plaintiffs had done nothing towards performing the contract, and had incurred no expense.—Held, that though they were entitled to bring an action at once to recover damages, they should not be allowed as damages the full amount of their expected profit, but that allowance should be made for the many contingencies which might have happened before the general principles and pointing out some of the contingencies, reduced the amount of damages allowed. Mining claim-Agreement for sale-Construction-Enhanced value.]-By an agree-ment in writing, signed by both parties, B. offered to convey his interest in certain mining claims to N, for a price named, with a stipulation that if the claims proved on development to be valuable and a joint stock company was formed by N. or his associates, N. might allot or cause to be allotted to B. such amount of shares as he should deem meet. By a contemporaneous agreement, N promised and agreed that a company should have a reasonable amount of the stock achave a reasonable amount of the active ording to its value. No company was formed by N., and B. brought an action for a declaration that he was entitled to an un-C. L. R. 402, that the dual agreement above mentioned was for a transfer, at a nominal price, in trust to enable N^{*}, to capitalize the properties and form a company to work them, on such terms as to allotting stock to B. as the parties should mutually agree upon; and that on breach of said trust B. was entitled to a reconveyance of his interest in the claims and an account of moneys re-ceived or that should have been received, from the working thereof in the meantime, Briggs v. Newswander, 22 C. L. T. 227, 32 S. C. R. 405.

New trial — Verdict, material questions unensecred — Excessive damages.] — The omission of a jury to answer material questions submitted to them under C. S., 1903, c. 111, s. 163, is a ground for a new trial. In an action for breach of contract the defendant alleged that the contract was conditional and the following question was submitted to the jury: "If such an agreement existed, was it a conditional one?" To which the jury answered: "No satisfactory proof that it was."—Held, that this was not an answer to the question. In an action for breach of contract to supply water power for one year and from year to year as the plaintiff required, it was proved that the water supply was cut off in the middle of the second year, and the plaintiff proved a loss of profit, up to the termination of the second year, amounting to $660. He also reason of the terms of his lease, which rquired that water power—which could be procured only from the city—should be used on the premises, but there was no allegation of special damage in the declaration, and an application at the trial to amend by adding such allegation was refused. Under a direction to find damages up to the termination of the second year, the jury allowed $1,500. —Held, that the damages were excessive and ground for a new trial. Crockett v. Campbellton (1909), 39 N. B. R. 160, 6 E. L. R. 519.

Partnership-Abandonment - Damages -Loss of profits.]-The plaintiff brought an action claiming damages for breach of con-The evidence shewed that, if anytract. thing was due by the defendant, it was not due to the plaintiff individually, but to a partnership of which he was a member, and the profits of which were to be shared equally between the two partners .-Held, that the action, under the circumstances, could not be maintained, even for half of the amount which might be found to be due as damages, the Court not being in a position in such action to determine the respective shares of the partners in a debt due to the partnership.-2. Where contract ors, after part performance of their contract. voluntarily abandon it, without notice to the supplier of material, and when there is no obstacle to the completion thereof, they are not entitled to claim from the latter damages for loss of profits on the part of the contract they failed to carry out. Patent medicine-Agreement to sell False representations as to curative value of medicine by manufacturer-Purchaser relying on-Rescission of contract-Return of moneys paid-Interest.]-Plaintiffs brought action to have a certain contract made by plaintiffs with defendant Kahle for sale by defendant to plaintiffs of a large quantity of a patent medicine called "Ponso," for which plaintiffs were to have the exclusive sale agency in Toronto, Hamilton and Welland. The terms of payment were mentioned in the contract. - Sutherland, J., held (upon the evidence), that certain representations as to the quality of the medicine were made by defendant, which were untrue to the knowledge of defendant, that plaintiff relied upon them, and that they were the basis of contract, and gave plaintiffs judgment, declar-ing contract void, and for return of $1.078.81 paid by platinitiffs, which out interest, but with costs of action. Practising medicine — Damages-Injunction.]—Ify an agreement under seal the defendant sold to the plaintiff a house and the good will of his medical practice for $2,100, and the defendant "bound himself in the sum of $400 to be paid to the (plaintiff), in case the (defendant) shall set up or locate himself in the practice of medicine or surgery within the space of five years from the date hereof within a radius of five miles from the said village." — Held, that there was an implied agreement by the vendor not to resume practice; that the sum of $400 was payable as liquidated damages on the breach of the agreement; and that the purchaser was entitled to that sum or to an injunction, but not to both.—Judgment in 31 O. R. 91, 19 C. L. T. 317, varied. Snider y. Meckelley, 20 C. L. T. 208, 27 A. R. 339.

Practising medicine - Residence-Nonregistration - Consideration - Waiver -Repair.]-The plaintiff, a physician in large practice at S., being about to leave the province temporarily, leased to the defendant. who was also a physician, a part of his house for two years from July then next, at an annual rental. By a covenant in the lease the defendant agreed at the expiration of the lease either to purchase the whole property for a price named, or to forthwith leave S and not reside there, or practise thereat, or within ten miles thereof, for at least three The plaintiff covenanted to repair the vears. roof of the house on or before the said first of July, and not to practise in S. during said two years. Nothing was done towards the repairs up to the 1st July, as had been agreed; in fact the roof was not put in a satisfactory condition until the outumn of 1895, when an entirely new roof was put on. This breach was not wilful on the part of the plaintiff, and the defendant made no com-plaints as to the non-repair during the two parase accupied the repeates. At the time of the making of the agreement, 3rd May, 1894, the plaintiff was not registered under the New Branswick Medical Act, 44 V. c. 19, but he had been registered the previous year and was entitled to be again registered at any time upon the payment of a small fee. It was admitted that except as to the repairs the plaintiff had performed all the covenants entered into by him. At the end of the two years the defendant refused either to pur-Parts the detendant recussed effect to pur-chase or to leave S. and refrain from practis-ing there: -Held, affirming the judgment of the Court below, 1 N. B. Eq. R. 487, that the restraint sought to be enforced was not unreascendale either as to practice or resiunreasonable either as to practice or resi-dence.—2. That the non-registration of the plainiff did not make the agreement bad for want of consideration. — 3. That whatever rights had accrued to the defendant by the breach of the covenant to repair had been waived by his entering into possession of the premises and remaining there during the term without complaint.—4. That the covenant to repair was an independent covenant, and its performance was not a condition precedent to the maintenance of this suit. Ryan $v_i MeNichol, 24 N. B. R. 291.$

Purchase of mining shares-Breach -Action for damages-Measure of-Ascer-tainment as of date contract should have been performed. |-Defendants contracted to buy from plaintiff 1,000,000 shares of mining stock for $150,000, payable in instalments. De-fendants paid the first instalment but refused to carry out any other provisions of the agreement and notified plaintiff to that effect on 1st June, 1907. Plaintiff brought action on 26th June, 1907. Riddell, J., held defendants had broken their contract and referred it to Co.C.J., to enquire and state what damages, if any, plaintiff had sustained by rea-son of said breach, Co.C.J. assessed the damages at $66,106,65 with interest at 5 per cent, from 27th August, 1908.-Clute, J., held, that the Co.C.J. applied the right principle to the assessment of damages in holding that they must be ascertained as of the date at which the contract should have been performed by defendants. Repudiation — Jurisdiction of County Court-British Columbia County Courts Act, ss. 22, 23—Dismissal of counterclaim where action dismissed.)—Action for damages for hreach of contract and for an account. Relation of parties not being fiduciary but purely contractual, this case is not one for an account:—Held, there was no breach of contract, as the acts and words relied on do not shew a clear and unmistakable refusal to be bound by it. There should be an absolute and unequivocal intention of repudiating the contract. The amount of the counterclaim was beyond the jurisdiction of the Court. The action having been dismissed to order as to counterclaim. Defendant may take such steps as he may be advised. Klemmer v. Birmingham, 11 W. L. R. 9.

Restraint of trade--provision for liquidated damages -- Construction as penalty--Defendants sold part of their stock in trade to plaintifs and covenant to sell stock retained to any in the same village, but those in business. For any breach the pennity was $500 liquidated damages. The trial Judge found there were two breaches and gave judgment for $500. On appeal, held, that notwithstanding use of the words "liquidated damages" $500 was a penalty. Judgment for plaintifs for $5 with County Court costs, with an injunction restraining defendant from further breach of agreement. Costs of appeal to be set off. Townshend v. Rumball (1009), 1 O. W. N. 47, 19 O. L. R. 433. Road company—Implied covenant—Corporate seal.]—An agreement signed by the plaintiff and by the superintendent of the defendants' road, but not under seal, and not purporting to be made by the defendants, who were an incorporated road company, was in part as follows:—'I'---the plaintiff —" have this day agreed with " the defendants " to furnish good gravel and deliver the same on the centre of the road bed .

part of the defendants to take from the plaintiff all the gravel they should require for the portion of their road referred to in the writing, as long as he was able and willing to supply it, was not to be implied from the terms of the writing; and the taking of gravel from another person was not a breach of the agreement :- Held, also, per Ferguson, J., that to bind the corporation by an executory contract to purchase from the plaintiff all the gravel required for a portion of their road for an indefinite and protracted period. would require an agreement under their corporate seal. Hill v. Ingersoll and Port Burwell Gravel Road Co., 20 C. L. T. 403, 32 O. R. 194.

Sale and delivery of mining shares —Breach—Specific performance—Diamages— Delay in completion—Reasonable time.]—Action for specific performance for a contract by defendants to deliver mining stock to plaintiff, or for damages. On 14th July defendant is legraphed plaintiff not to send draft until he heard from him:—Held, that plaintiff could not consider this a breach, but that he had a right for a reasonable time to await action by defendant:—Held, he could not wait until 2nd November. 20th August fixed as a reasonable date, and damages estimated as of that date. Sale of business and good-will—Undertaking not to carry on similar business— Meaning of "good-will"—Injunction—Damages-Costs.]-The defendant prior to the 16th November, 1898, was the owner and driver of a stage-coach running daily be-The business consisted. tween two towns. besides the carrying of passengers, in the soliciting, calling for, carrying, and delivering of parcels for reward. The stock comprised horses and vehicle, robes, etc., used in connection with the business.-On the 16th November, 1898, the defendant sold all the stock and good-will of the business to the plaintiff for $300, and agreed not to go into the same business, or a similar business, between the same places, for three years from the 1st December, 1898. - Notwithstanding this agreement and the receipt of the $300, the defendant entered the employment of P & Son, who, on the 1st August, 1899, started an opposition stage-coach on the same route and for the same business and purpose ; and the defendant became the caller, canvasser for business, and driver of such coach :-Held, that the conduct of the defendant was a violation of the terms of his agreement. Discussion as to the meaning of "good-will," and the effect of a sale of the good-will of a business, Greer v. Thody, 20 C. L. T. 43.

Sale of gas pipes and gas lines-Dispute as to what passed under contract. [---Action for damages for value of certain gas pipes and pipe lines purchased by plaintiff from defendants and not delivered. Plaintiff was told the leases were ordinary gas leases, but did not inquire what the exact rights of the defendants were. When he undertook to remove some fixtures the owners of the farms objected and plaintiff submitted. Action dismissed as defendants not at fault. Smith v. Plymouth (1909), 14 O. W. R. 344.

Sale of goods—Waiver.]—The jury found that the defendant had consented to waive the alleged warranty. There was no consideration for this consent, therefore there could be no waiver. The alleged waiver occurred after breach of contract:—Held, that the defendant was entitled to damages on his comterelaim. Davidson V. Reid, 6 E. L. R. 428.

Sale of horse-Representation gree - Warranty - Damages-Evidence.]-In April, 1907, K. sold a stallion to G. for $1,500, for which 3 lien notes were given. each of which stated on its face that it was given for a gray Percheron stallion." One of the notes also contained a clause providing that it should be void if K. failed to provide G. "with the necessary papers (pedigree) to get a pure-bred certificate" before the end of 1907. A bank, as the assignees of K. brought an action on one of the notes, against G., and G. brought an action against K. for damages for breach of warranty and a return of the note sued on by the bank and one of the other notes, the third note having been given up when K. found it impossible to furnish the necessary pedigree :--Held, revers-ing the judgment of Beck, J., 12 W. L. R. 398, that there was no evidence to justify a finding that there was a breach of warranty that the stallion was pure-bred. Imperial Bank v. Georges; Georges v. Kidd (1910). 14 W. D. R. 654.

"300 tons of phosphate, from 60 to 70 per cent.," at $6 per ton, to be shipped f.o.b. cars at a named railway station, whence it was to be conveyed by rail to the works of the defendants. In a large portion of the rock delivered there was a deficiency of seven per cent. of "apatite," which is pure phosphate, but the defendants received and used it at their works. In an action to recover the balance of the contract price:--Held, that the plaintiff must be held to have war-ranted that the rock would contain the percentage of apatite called for by the contract 2. That the defendants, having received and used the rock, were liable for the value of the apatite which it contained, to be ascertained at the station for delivery, and not where is was used; and, there being no evidence of further loss, the damages sustained by the defendants were seven per cent. of the freight paid by them for forwarding the rock by rail to their works, to be deducted from the amount of the plaintiff's claim in the action. Foxton v. Hamilton Steel and Iron Co., 21 C. L. T. 286, 1 O. L. R. 393.

Sale of mining claim-Representations -Good and valid claim-Knowledge of defendant that representations were untrue-Action to recover money paid-Evidence-Contractual relation between parties not es tablished-Action dismissed.]-This was an action by plaintiff, a civil engineer, to recover from defendant, a mining prospector, the sum of $1,100 and interest, paid by plaintiff to defendant for a certain mining claim al-leged to be a good and valid claim, but which plaintiff said defendant well knew at the time of sale was not such a claim, and that defendant knew he had no right to sell said claim, which had been previously staked by another man .- At trial judgment was given in favour of rlaintiff. -- Divisional Court reversed above judgment, and dismissed plain-tiff's action with costs. Blair v. Bruce (1910), 17 O. W. R. 719, 2 O. W. N. 381.

Sale of mining share-Failure of plaintiffs to furnish shares-Counterclaim-Fraud Leave to amend and have new trial in terms-Election-Costs.]-Plaintiffs, a partnership, sued on a contract whereby defendants agreed that they would sell 16,000 shares of mining stock at par value within four months or purchase themselves any shares they could not sell. Defendants pleaded that they were not furnished with the stock, and that in any event they were induced by fraud to enter into the contract, and counterclaimed for $6,000 .- Teetzel, J., at trial, dismissed plaintiffs' action with costs and gave defendants judgment for $6,000, on their counterclaim .- Divisional Court held, that it might be that plaintiffs have a cause of action against the defendants and the Culver Co. for not issuing the stock promised, and if so advised they might amend by adding the company and any others so advised and have a new trial upon the whole In which case defendants to have right CASE to retry their counterclaim and establish fraud if possible. Plaintiffs to elect within 15 days. Unless plaintiffs elect within that time, the main appeal should be dismissed with costs and the appeal on the counterclaim allowed with costs. Neil v. Woodward (1911), 18 O. W. R. 230, 2 O. W. N. 533.

Sale of mining property-Time-Pay ment on certain dates-60 days' grace by letter-Action to cancel the agreement.]-Plaintiff Leckie entered into an agreement with defendant Marshall for sale of certain mining properties for $250,000. Marshall paid down $12,500 and entered into possession, agreeing to pay balance in certain sums at certain times, which if not then paid the agreement was to be void and Marshall was forfeit the deposit paid. One sum of $37,500 under the agreement was to become due on 6th May, 1909, and was not then paid. The plaintiffs had by letter dated 8th May, 1908, given defendants' 60 days' grace on each payment, and the defendants tendered the $37,500 to plaintiffs on the last day of grace. by a notary public. The defendants refused to accept the money and brought action to have agreement cancelled and the deposit forhave agreement cancelled and the appear for fericel; --At the trial MacMahon, J., held, 14 O. W. R. 1071, 1 O. W. N. 222, that read-ing the agreement and the letter together, the defendants had fulfilled their part of the agreement and were entitled to possession so long as they continued to meet their payments, and dismissed the action .- Court of Appeal being equally divided, the appeal was dismissed with costs. Leckie v. Marshe (1910), 16 O. W. R. 481, 1 O. W. N. 899. Marshall

Sale of patterns-Obtained by misrepresentation of agent-Action for breach of contract-Dismissed with costs.] Plaintiffs brought action to recover $348.02 for goods sold and delivered and $150 as liquidated damages for breach of contract. Defendant was a milliner and dealer in fancy goods and agent for sale of paper patterns by B. & Co., business rivals of plaintiffs. Agent of plaintiffs induced defendant to enter into a contract with plaintiffs, defendant believing her contract with B. & Co. expired in August, 1908. As a fact her contract with B. & Co. was in force until August, 1908, and thereafter until terminated by three months' notice in writing.-Latchford, J., held, that plain-tiffs' agent having seen defendant's contract with B. & Co., had knowledge thereof, and had falsely represented to defendant that she was free to enter into a contract with plaintiffs and that defendant had relied upon said misrepresentation. Action dismissed with costs. MeCall v, Hickson (1911), 18 O. W. R. 825, 2 O. W. N. 867.

Sale of private banking business to chartered bank—Bank became insolvent— Action to recover many and contract of sale.]—Defendants moved to cut down plaintiffs' judgment (16 O. W. R. 133, 1 O. W. N. 822) from $250 to $200 per annum on the ground that the average deposits did not amount to $400,000 according to a proviso contained in the contract of sale.—Teeted, J., held, that the circumstances that compelled defendants to give up business at that branch before the time fixed for determining whether they should be relieved under above proviso was a misfortane which defendants must suffer. Telford v. Sovereign Bank (1911), 18 O. W. R. 506, 2 O. W. N. $23

Security by transfer of chattels -Condition-Breach of contract - Remedy-Revendication - Action for damages.] - An agreement by which the maker of a note undertakes, in case it is not paid at maturity, to transfer to the payee, as security, certain specified movables of which he retains the possession in the meantime, does not give the payee the right to revendicate the movables after the note fails due and remains unpaid. The proper remedy in such a case is a personal action for breach of contract. Surard v. Tremblay, 30 Que, 8. C. 423.

Sale of railway. [—An agreement for sale of controlling interest in Can. Atlantic Rw. Co., provided that on default of payments of purchase money, for bonds, on a certain day, the deposit paid thereon should be forfeited as liquidated damages. The bonds were not ready for delivery on appointed day and the purchase money was not paid. In an action by assignce of purchaser i—Heid, that the evidence shewed that purchaser or his assigned was responsible for the non-delivery and non-completion of the contract; that there had been default in payment of the price, and plaintiff could not recover. Action dismissed. Judgments of Contr of Appeal for Ont., 21 O. L. R. 637, 12 O. W. R. 973, and Mabee, J., at trint, H. O. W. R. 151, affrmed. Sprague v. Booth, C. R. [1909] A. C. 263, [1900] A. Supply of electrical energy—Implied contract to take whole supply—Breach—Construction. Ottawa Electric Co. v. Birks, 2 O. W. R. 949.

Supply of gas — "Reservation"—Construction of contract—Damages.]—Held, on appeal, that where an instrument had been reformed by the introduction into it of the "reservation" of gas in question, the defendants should have had determined by the trial Judge the meaning and effect of the reformed instrument, and the nature and extent of damages recoverable under it. If plaintiff had not been damnified that should have been shewn before reference commenced. Method of estimating damages discussed, Judgment appealed from 10 O. W. R. 1017, affirmed. Carroll v. Supply natural gas-To County House of Refuge—By town corporation—Breach of contract—Action for damages — Failure of gas wells—Appeal allowed—Action dismissed -Action by the county of Essex with costs.]to recover $500 damages for an alleged breach of an agreement by defendants to supply the County House of Refuge with natural gas from defendants' natural gas system. fendants pleaded that the agreement related only to their natural gas system as owned and operated at the time the agreement was entered into; and those wells having become exhausted they were under no obligation to supply gas obtained from another source.--Divisional Court held that defendants' construction of the agreement was correct. Appeal allowed and action dismissed with costs. Essex v. Leamington (1911), 18 O. W. R. 692, 2 O. W. N. 751.

Supply slop-food for cattle—Breach – Action for damages—Accounts—Averages— Inferences — Counterclaim — Reference, 1— An action for damages for breach of contract to supply slop-food sufficient for proper nourishment of 1,200 cattle during the period in question.—Boyd, C., held plaintiff entitled to judgment for 8066 in respect of rent, and for $7.500 as damages for failure to supply the amount of slop engaged to be furnished, which resulted in deterioration of the stock in weight and saleable value. Connterclaim dismissed with costs, If either party dissatisfied it may be referred to the Master to take accounts with further evidence. Deam v, Corby Distillery Co. (1911), 18 O. W. R. 681, 2 O. W. N 832.

The defendant, with others, by a writing, covenanted separately with the plaintiffs, the board of directors of the Cheese and Butter Makers' Association of Western Ontario, that if he should at any time thereafter, within the province of Ontario, for the space of three years, violate the stipulations mentioned in the agreement, by directly or indirectly becoming bound as a cheese or butter maker to make good to his employer any sum of money lost to him by reason of the inferior quality of the cheese made by him, except so far as such inferior quality may have been caused by his gross negligence, he should pay the treasurer of the board $200 as liquidated damages, which should become part of the funds of the asociation .- This covenant was entered into for the purpose of preventing cheese makers from making agreements with the owners of cheese factories to become liable for the quality of the product even in the case of its inferiority being due to the character of the milk supplied .- The defendant entered into an agreement in violation of his covenant :--- Held, that the covenant having been entered into with the plaintiffs, they had a status to sue for the breach, without joining the other covenantors, although the agreement was mutually advantageous .----That the evidence did not support the defendant's contention that his signature was obtained by misrepresenting or misreading the document to him, so that he did not understand what he was signing .--- 3. That there was a good consideration for the covenant, in the benefit to the defendant, although no consideration was mentioned in the document .-4. That the agreement was not in restraint of trade.—5. That the $200 mentioned in the agreement was to be regarded not as a penalty but as liquidated damages. Miller v. Thompson, 20 C. L. T. 77.

Transfer of interest in lands-Action to set aside—Fraud — Misrepresentation— Reformation of contract — Terms—Costs.]---Plaintiff brought action to set aside an agreein writing, for the transfer of the ment plaintiff's interest in certain lands to the defendant, on the ground of breach thereof and deceit by defendant 'and for an injunction to restrain defendant from dealing with plaintiff's land and for an account of defendant's dealings. - Sutherland, J., held, that the agreement should be set aside and certain notes delivered up to plaintiff and defendant pay costs .- Divisional Court held, that the agreement should not be set aside except for fraud, and that no fraud had been shewn ; that as both plaintiff and defendant believed that defendant was to assume plaintiff's liability, under the agreement, the instrument should be reformed accordingly, if so desired, and defendant consenting to the reformation, the appeal should be allowed without costs, and action dismissed without costs, otherwise, the appeal should be dis-missed with costs, Stewart v. Dickson (1911), 18 O. W. R. 281, 1 O. W. N. 1038, 2 O. W. N. 614.

Trast-Assessment of damages-Sale of mining areas-Promotion of company-Failure to deliver scenrifics-Principal and agent -Account-Evidence - Salage-Indemnity for necessary capenses-Lackes - Estoppel. -The plaintiffs transferred certain mining areas to the defendant in order that they might be sold, together with other areas, to a company to be incorporated for the purpose of operating the consolidated mining properties, the defendant agreeing to give them a proportionate share of whatever bonds and certificates of stock he might receive for these consolidated properties upon the flotation of the scheme then being promoted by him and other associates. In order to hold some of the areas it became necessary to borrow money, and the lender exacted a bonus in stock and bonds, which the defendant gave him out of those he received for conveyance of the properties to the company. After deducting the ratable contribution towards this bonus, the defendant delivered to the plaintiffs the remainder of the proportion of stock and bonds to which they were entitled, but did not then inform them that such deductions had been made, and they, consequently, made no demand upon him for the balance of their shares and bonds until some time afterwards, when they brought the action to recover the securities or their value :--Held, affirming the judgment appealed from, Fultz v. Corbett, 1 E. L. R. 54, that whether the defendant was to be regarded as a trustee or as the agent of the plaintiffs, he was not entitled, without their consent, to make the deductions, either by way of salvage or to indemnify himself for expenses necessarily in-curred in the preservation of the properties, and that, under the circumstances, the failure to demand the delivery of the remainder of the securities before action did not deprive the plaintiffs of the right to recover .--- If the defendant was to be considered a trustee wrongfully withholding securities which he was bound to deliver, he was liable for damages calculated upon the assumption that they would have been disposed of at the best price obtainable. If, however, he was to be re-garded as a contractor who had failed to deliver the securities according to the terms of his agreement, he was liable for damages his agreement, he was liable for damages based on the solling price of the securities at the time when his obligation to deliver then arcse. Wintering cattle—Terms of contract — Redelivery — Evidence — Corroboration— Damages for detention—Counterclaim. Still V. Watson, 7 W. L. R. 406.

Work and labour—Implied stipulation.] —Where the respondent contracted with the Government to execute for a term of years the printing and binding of certain public documents at stipulated prices, but the Government did not expressly contract to give to the respondent all or any of the said work : —Held, that a stipulation to that effect could not be implied, and that there was no breach of contract by reason of orders for work being vithelid. Regina v. Demers, [1990] A. C. 163.

3. BUILDING CONTRACT.

Action for balance of contract price -Counterclaim-Omission to do part of work -Failure to complete in workmanlike manner -Question of fact-Set-off of costs-Scale of costs. Dodds v. Morrison (N.W.T.), 1 W. L. R. 164.

CONTRACT.

Action for balance of contract price --Satisfaction of architet--Certificate-Refusal of--Fraud and collusion--Construction of contract--Condition precedent--Waiver--Acceptance of work--New contract for extra work--Counterclaim--Delay in completion of building--Loss of profits--Remedying defects --Evidence--Mechanic's lien--Costs. Cyr v. OFIJuna, 7 W. L. R. 452.

Action for contract price—Completion of building — Specification—Acceptance—Occupation.]—Held, that where there is a contract to event a building according to certain specifications for a certain specified sum, such sum is not recoverable until the building is completed according to specification, unless the owner accept the work with knowledge of the defects, or has done something from which a new contract to pay can be inferred. —2. That occupation of a building by the owner who, before entering, has complained of the non-completion according to contract, is not, without other evidence, such an acceptance as will entitle the contractor to recover. Broley v. Mills, 7 W. L. R. 655, 1 Sask. L. R. 20.

Addition to cottage—Defective workmonship — Abstement of price.] — Plaintiff sued before justices of the peace for work done, and materials supplied in connection with the exection of an addition to a cottage. Defendant relied upon certain defects in the manifus manner, was not one going to the essence of the contract, but that defendant was entitled to an abatement of price on account of defects :—Held, also, that if the majistrates had jurisdiction in respect to plainiff's claim, they had jurisdiction to consider how much the price should be abated for defective workmanship. Matimaon V. Hewson, 43 N. S. R. 339, 6 E. L. R. 508.

Architect's certificate — Condition precedent to action—Counterclaim — Defective work—Acceptance—Delay—Waiver. Waugh v. Grayson (N.W.T.), 2 W. L. R. 330.

Architect's certificate - Finality-Action - Condition precedent.] - The written contract between the parties provided that the plaintiffs were to erect and complete a building for defendant according to certain drawings and specifications by a fixed date, and to the satisfaction of an architect named, to be certified by him under his hand forthwith after completion. It also provided for payment on the certificates of the architect of 85 per cent. on the work done from time to time, and that the balance unpaid on the completion of the work should become payable within one month after the architect should have certified. The architect gave two so-called final certificates, the first of which was in part as follows: "I hereby certify that D. Bros, are entitled to $416.36, in full for the above contract and extras, less $4.25. which amount may be held back till the items of work in the following list are done." It proceeded to specify the items covered by the $4.25, and added : " Note .- I consider the guarantee in specification will cover any leak in roof." The contractors had in the specification guaranteed the roof for five years against ordinary wear and tear. Annexed to and forming part of the certificate was a statement shewing that in arriving at the sum of $416.36 a deduction of $50 had been made for bad floor, &c." The second and made for bad noor, &c. The second and last certificate of the architect was as fol-lows: "This is to shew that by certificate given by me on 23rd January, 1900, I certified that D. Bros. were entitled to $416.36. from which the amount of $4.25 was de ducted to cover some small items left undone These have now been attended to, and I therefore certify that D. Bros. are entitled to $416.36 in full of contract and extras :"-Held, that the two certificates should be read together, and being so read they shewed that in respect of the floor and roof the work had not been properly completed, and did not constitute a certificate that the contract work had been completed to the satisfaction of the architect; and such a certificate was a condition precedent to the plaintiff's right to recover. Davidson v. Francis, 22 C. L. T. 328, 14 Man. L. R. 141.

Architect's certificate - Liability of owner — Delay in completion — Penalty clause—Waiver,] — Where, under the terms of a building contract, the work is to be done under the direction and to the satisfaction of the architect, who is given authority to grant a final certificate, and the architect certifies to its completion : — Held, that, in the absence of fraud or collusion, the certificate of the architect is so far binding upon the proprietor that he cannot contend that the work was not done in accordance with the plans and specifications, and it is immaterial whether the proprietor had knowledge of his intention to grant it or that he consented to or forbade its being granted; if the certificate is untrue, the remedy is against the architect. A provision in a building contract that the architect's certificate should not lessen the contractor's total or final liability, was held, as a matter of construction, to apply not to the final certificate, but only to progress certificates. A provision in a building contract for liquidated damages for non-completion within the prescribed time, subject expressly to a further reasonable length of time for delays caused by changes in the plans and specifications, is not discharged by delays caused by such changes. Aliter, if no provision has been made for such extensions. Where the contract gives to the architect authority to settle all disputes, matters about which no dispute had been raised when he gave his final certificate are not concluded As a matter of construction it was thereby. held that the contract gave the architect no authority to grant extensions of time on account of changes in plans, except upon a dispute arising. Where the contractor is to "pay or allow to the proprietor" a certain sum as liquidated damages, it is not necessary that it should be retained from the contract price or fixed by the final certificate. Delay in the completion of the contract caused by the proprietor's neglect to complete work which it was necessary should first be done before the contractor could continue work under the contract, does not operate to discharge the contractor from the penalties unshould less notice of the contractor's work having reached the stare at which the proprietors should do his part of the work had been received by him. Neither the proprietor's enpletion of the work, insuring it, nor making payment on the contract price, after the time for completion, and after actual completion of the work, operates as a waiver of the penalty clause. Though perhaps on the giving of his final certificate the architect became functus offcio, his estimate of the proper allowances to be made was accepted as reasonable and allowed by the Court, in reduction of the penalties payable for delay in completion. McLeod v. Wilson, 2 Terr. L. R. 312.

Architect to superintend building— Absence from the work—Reduction of salary agreed upon.] — An agreement whereby an architect undertakes to prepare the plans and specifications, receive tenders and award the contracts, direct the contractors and superintend the work of erecting two houses, creates a divisible obligation which is capable of being executed by parts. It follows that the absence of the architect from the work during the course of its completion merely gives the proprietor the right to reduce the salary agreed upon in proportion to the damages he has suffered. Judgment in 36 Que S. C. 57, reversed. Mann v. Rudolph, 37 Que S. C. 200.

Assignment of moneys due - Action brought in name of assignor-Assignment of chose in action-Delay in completion of contract-Penalty-Verbal extension of time by architect — Penalty or liquidated damages — Delay caused by act of owner.] — The plaintiff entered into a contract with the defendant to erect a certain building, to be completed within a limited time, and a penalty of $25 per day was stipulated in case the building should not be completed within that time. The building was not completed within the time limited, but it appeared that the delay was due to the failure of the defendant to furnish certain material which he undertook to furnish. The contract provided that the architect might grant an extension, and required him to certify to such extension. The architect verbally extended the time, but did not certify to it. It also ap-peared that the plaintiff had assigned all his interest in the claim sued for to a third party. Judgment having been given for the plaintiff without any deduction for the delay, the defendant appealed :--Held, that, while by the provisions of c. 41 of C. O. 1898 the assignee of a chose in action may bring an action in his own name, yet, as by such Ordinance the right of the assignee to proceed as if the Ordinance had not been passed is expressly reserved, and as the previous practice required the action to be brought by the assignor, the action in this case was by the assignor, the action in this case was properly brought.—2. That the parties hav-ing expressly agreed upon a "penalty" of $25 per day upon default, such sum could not be regarded as liquidated damages or otherwise than as a penalty .--- 3. That, as it appeared that the delay was caused by the default of the defendant, the plaintiff was by such delay exonerated from the penalties and excused from the performance of the Subsequently B took S. into partnership with him. The The work not progressing satisfactorily defendants, under the special terms of the contract, took it over and finished the bridge, S. acting as foreman. Defendants accepted the bridge : -Held, that plaintiffs entitled to an account of what defendants have expended, any balance of the contract price to be paid into Court for the plaintiffs. Changes in work-Delay - Damages-Provisions of contract — Architect — Final certificate—Condition precedent—Collusion— Evidence-Correction of mistake-Waiver-Extras contemplated by contract-Work outside of contract-Distinction - Construction of contract -- Specifications -- Statement-Payment - Estoppel - Substantial performance-Trifling matters uncompleted-Right to final certificate - Judgment directing architect to hold inquiry and issue certificate-Costs.]-In an action to recover the balance of the contract price of a building and ex-tras, the plaintiff, the contractor, alleged that by reason of the making of certain changes mentioned, not included in the contract, was delayed in the construction work under the contract, and suffered damage and incurred expenses thereby : - Held, that the plaintiff was not entitled to damages by reason of the making of changes in the construction work, because he had agreed to make and had stipulated that he should be paid for making the very changes in the construction referred to; and evidence in support of this allegation was rejected .- By the contract, the building was to be erected according to certain plans and specifications prepared by the defendants J. and B., architects, and all payments were to be made upon the written certificates of the architects to the effect that such payments had become due, and it was provided that, before the issue of the final certificate, the contractor should furnish evidence of payment to material-men and workmen. The contractor entered upon the performance of the work, and from time to time received certificates from the architects, the amounts whereof were paid; but a final certificate was refused, and this action was brought to recover payment from the owners and to compel the architects to give a certificate :--Held, that the plaintiff was not entitled to recover without the certificate of the architects, that being a condition precedent to payment, and it not being established that there was collusion between the owners and the architects .---During the course of the work the architects gave the plaintiff a progress certificate for a payment of $6,000. The defendants re-fused to pay it without seeing the architects. It was then discovered that a mistake had been made, and a new certificate was issued in lieu thereof, the amount of which was paid to the plaintiff's agent. It was contended that the architects could not alter a certificate or issue a new one, and that there was, therefore, collusion covering the whole of the transaction :--Held, that, if the architects had not the right to correct a palpable mistake (and, semble, they had the right), the plaintiff had waived the illegality or impropriety by accepting and appropriating the money under the substituted certificate, and by afterwards applying for and obtaining certificates for future payments based upon the substituted certificate.—It was further urged that, if an architect refuses to certify in pursuance of the contract, and the owners remain passive, and by that means retain money which belongs to the contractor, there is evidence of collusion :-- Held, that that would at most be prima facie evidence of collusion, and that the facts in this case completely rebutted any such prima facil presumption.-Clause 3 of the contract pro-vided that "no alterations should be made in the work shewn or described by the drawings and specifications, except upon a written order of the architect, and, when so made, the value of the work added or omitted shall be computed by the architect, and the amonut so a scertained shall be added to or deducted from the contract price." The question arose, what part of the work done was "extra in regard to the contract, and what part was outside of it :-- Held, that work may be performed that is entirely outside of the con-tract, and is not covered by its terms; and in this case having regard to the provisions of clause 3, any work done which was not an alteration in the work shewn or described by the drawings and specifications, would not come within the terms of the contract .- The specifications contained the following provisions; "The contractor shall not deviate from the plans and specifications without the written consent of the architect. No claims for extras will be allowed without the written order of the architect. Should the owner decide to make any alterations in the building in carrying cut the work, such alterations shall in no way invalidate the original contract: "-Held, that these pro-visions did not extend the operation of the contract beyond what was held to be its scope under clause 3 of the contract itself.-The plaintiff furnished a statement of extras, and was paid in accordance therewith, upon certain conditions :-- Held, that the plaintiff was precluded from insisting upon any claim for extras beyond what were set out in that statement .- The evidence shewed that, although some pieces of work of a trifling character were unfinished that ought to have been done under the principal contract, it had been substantially performed. The architects pointed out what had not been done, and the plaintiff did it, but they omitted the substantial performance and the acquiescence of the architects entitled the plaintiff to a final certificate.—Manro v. Butt, S E. & B. 738, followed:—Held, also, that, as against the architects, the plaintiff was eatified to idgement directing them to hold an enquiry and issue a certificate.—Manroey v. Le Renardel, 13 N. S. W. R. (Eq. 7, approved and followed.—Form of judgment and special disposition of costs.—Laterence v. Kern (1910), 14 W. L. R. 337, 3 Sask, L. R. 253.

Completion of work - Satisfaction of architect-Collapse of building - Refusal of contractors to reconstruct and complete-Recovery by owners of moncy expended for that purpose—Damages for delay—Terms of con-tract—Damages for loss of business—Injury to goods in building—Counterclaim—Extra.] -The defendants contracted to erect a build ing for the plaintiffs and to complete it by the 10th January. On the Sth June, three weeks after the defendants had, according to their own story, completed the building, it collapsed, because, as was found, the stone work in the foundation had not been properly done. The contract said that the work was to be done to the satisfaction of the architects, and also that no certificate given or payment made under the contract, except the final certificate or final payment, should be conclusive evidence of the performance of the contract. either wholly or in part, and that no payment should be construed to be an accept ance of defective work or improper materials-Held, that no such direct expression of satisfaction was ever made by the architects as should be held, in the circumstances of the case, to be binding upon the plaintiffs. whose agents they were. The work in fact had not been properly completed, as the actual collapse shewed, and, in such circuit stances, any expression of satisfaction by the architects must, in order to bind the plain tiffs, be clear and unambiguous, and must not be merely inferred from the facts proved -On the Sth June, then, the defendants had not completed the work to the satisfaction of the architects, and, when the building on that day collapsed, they were still bound to take up the work and complete it. A proper notice was given to them, asking them to do so, and they refused. After the necessary time stipulated for in the contract had elapsed. the plaintiffs went on and completed, and were entitled, under the terms of the contract, to recover from the defendants the amounts expended by them in reconstructing the build ing and finishing it according to specifications .- The plaintiffs were also entitled to recover at the rate of $17 a day (fixed by the contract) for the time which elapsed between the 10th January and the date on which they entered into complete use and possession of the building. As the contract did not authorise the plaintiffs to deduct this amount from payments made, their omission to do so did not prevent them from recovering. -- The plaintiffs were not entitled to damages for loss of business owing to the delay after the collapse, there being no definite evidence to sustain a claim therefor --- Nor were they entitled to damages for implements injured in the fall of the building—they entered into possession before completion of the building, at their own risk.—On the defendants' counterclaim they were entitled to credit for such charges as should be found upon a reference to be properly due in respect of extras. Cookshutt Plow Co. v. Alberta Building Co. (1910), 13 W. L. R. 234.

Condition precedent — Performance of work in a "good and workmanilike manner" — Faulty workmanship — Acceptance — Quantum valebat.] — Plaintiff arreed to remodel defendants' house "in a good and workmanilike manner and according to the best skill and art."—Held, that the performance of the work in this manner is a condition precedent, and not having performed the contract is not entitled to be paid. He ennot recover on a quantum valebat, for three is no evidence of a contract to pay on that basis. When the plaintiff claimed he had finished the work he withdrew, leaving defendants in possession. This is not a waiver by defendants. Cole v. Smith, 13 O. W. R. 774.

Conditions - Extras - Certificate of superintendent.] — A contract for the car-penter's work at the defendant's house provided that the contractor should be paid for work and extras, if any, "on certificate of superintendent of work," The contractor died after doing part of the work, and the plaintiff thereupon agreed to deliver at the house "all the material referred to in the late (contractor's) contract, and all the conditions of that contract are to apply." The superintendent of the work was a relative of and indebted in a large sum to the defendant, and the plaintiff did not know this. Dis-putes having arisen, the superintendent of the work gave to the plaintiff under the defendant's instructions a certificate that the plain-tiff had furnished all the material accord-ing to specifications, "except small matters which I will adjust under the terms of the contract :"-Held, that as to the extra material furnished by the plaintiff. the condition as the superintendent's certificate did not apply; and that at all events the certificate in fact given put an end to the contract and relieved the plaintiff from doing anything further under it, so that the non-completion of "small matters" in dispute formed no the defence :---Held, also per Armour, C.J.O., that the relationships, family and financial, of the superintendent to the defendant should have been disclosed to the plaintiff, and that under the circumstances the plaintiff was not bound to obtain a certificate at all. Ludlam v. Wil-son, 21 C. L. T. 554, 2 O. L. R. 549.

Construction — Location — Plans and specifications — Deviation — Engineer — Certificate — Jury-Acceptance of work.] — M. & S. contracted with the defendants for the construction of a half mile track on the Provincial Exhibition grounds at Halifax. Under the verms of the contract, of which certain plans and specifications were made a part, the track was to be located as nearly as possible on the lines shewn on the plan, and the exact location was to be staked out by the engineer or his assistant: —Held, that the word "location" referred only to the C.C.L.-28 horizontal location of the track, and had no reference to the grading or sub-grades.--It was required by the specifications that the track should be finished to the required grades in every particular, and that the decision of the engineer on any matter connected with the grading or lines should be final; also, that no deviation should be allowed from the plans and specifications unless directed by the engineer in writing:—Held, that the construction of the track a foot lower than as shewn in the plans was a deviation, and that the placing of stakes by the engineer or his assistant, assuming it to have been done, was not equivalent to written instructions making a change in the terms of the contract.—2. The height and width of the track, grades, etc., being fixed by the plans and specifications, and the only duty of the engineer being to see that the contractors built accordingly, the finding of the jury that the contractors were misled by stakes placed by the engineer or his assistant, was irrelevant .--- 3. The engineer being the sole judge as to whether the contract was completed to his satisfaction or not, a finding of the jury that it was "practically completed," was irrelevant and must be set aside .--- 4. It was not an acceptance of the work for the defendants to take possession under a provision of the contract enabling them to do so in the event of the contract not being completed within the time specified. Courtney v. Pro-vincial Exhibition Commission, 2 E. L. R. 226, 41 N. S. R. 71.

Contractor who delivers a building erected under a penalty clause, has the right to receiver the balance due on the contract price, after allowance has been mude for the doing over of faulty work and for the damages resulting from the delay in completing the contract. The proprietor will not be permitted to claim, by a cross-demand, by reason of such faulty work, in addition to the cancellation of the contract, complete immunity from the payment of the contract price, including the reimbursement of the amounts paid on account and the tearing down of the work. Farreau v. Rachon (1910), 28 One, S. C. 421.

Deduction for portion of work dispensed with — Waiver of performance. Reid v. McDonald (1906), 1 E. L. R. 171.

Delay—Extras—Penalty—Alterations—Written order of architect—Onus—Disputed items—Appeal.1—A building contract contained a provision that the work should be completed by the contractor by a specified date, with a penalty of $5 a day, as liquidated damages, for each day that the work should remain unfnished after that date. It was agreed, on the part of the defendant, that the contractor should be put in possession of the premises, and should be furnished with the lines and levels, by another fixed date, and that, for every day theirafter, he should be entilled to have two days added to the time for the completion of his contract. It was further agreed that the contractor should have no action for damages, or otherwise, against the defendant by reason of said the premises only, and not to the delay in furnishing lines and levels and that the plain-tiff was entitled to recover for extra work resulting from the latter delay :--- Held, also, that the delay in putting the plaintiff in pos-session of the premises, and in furnishing lines and levels, and delay caused by extra work which he was called upon to do, relieved the plaintiff from the obligation a complete his work by the data can to complete his work by the date agreed, and that the defendant was debarred from en-forcing payment of the penalty. One of the clauses of the contract provided that, if clauses of the contract provided that, it alterations were required in the work, a fair and reasonable valuation of work added or omitted should be made by the architect, and that the sum payable to the plaintiff should be increased or diminished by such amount. provided that, where the amount was not agreed upon, the contractor should proceed with the work on the written order of the architect, and that the amount payable therefor should be fixed as further provided :--Held, that alterations under this clause only required a written order where the architect and contractor differed as to the valuation; that the furnishing of plans by the architect, shewing additional work, was a "written order" within the meaning of the contract that the burden was upon the plaintiff of shewing that work claimed for as extra was ordered by the architect. In determining the amount to which the plaintiff was entitled for extra work the trial Judge had the assistance of an assessor, but the Court, on appeal, were not furnished with the assessor's report, o with the reasons for allowing the plaintiff different items claimed by him :--Held, that the Court could not adopt the views of the trial Judge and the essessor, as to disputed items, in these carcatustances, but must consider the different items and the evidence bearing upon them, and that the amount allowed, being excessive, should be reduced. Munro v. Town of Westville, 36 N. S. R.

Delay caused by other contractors-Failure to notify architect - Time-Extension—Penalty—Liquidated damages — Relief against—Extras—Estoppel.]—The plaintiff's contract bound him to complete a building for the defendant within a specified time, and to pay a penalty of $20 a week in case of delay beyond the time, subject to clauses pro-viding for an extra time allowance in case the plaintiff she ld be obstructed or delayed 'in the prosecu ion or completion of the work by the act, r glect, delay, or default of the owner or the architect or of any other con-tractor on the house, but that " no such allowance shall be made unless a claim therefor is presented in writing to the architect within 36 hours of the occurrence of such delay -Held, that the plaintiff was bound by this last proviso, and was liable for the stipulated penalty, although the delay in completion was entirely owing to causes beyond his control. and a large part of if took place before he commenced his work at all, as he had failed to give notice in writing to the architect of any claim for extra time allowance.—Jones V, St, John's College, L. R. 6 Q. B. 115, followed.—(2) As the trial Judge found that, as a matter of fact, the defendant was not responsible for any part of the time lost, and he suffered from the delay damage to the extent of $20 per week, the case did not come within s.s. (c) of s. 38 of the King's Le..h Act, giving the Court power to relieve against agreements for liquidated damages...-(3) The allowance of $20 per week should be made only from the time named in the contract for the completion up to the 19th January, 1904, and not up to the date of the actual completion, because the defendant orf-red some extra work to be done, which was only commenced on the 19th January, and that estopped him from claiming damages for delay beyond that date...Holme v. Gupp, 3 M, & W. 287, Westrood v. Sceretaru of State for India, 7 L. T. 735, and Dodd v. Chauton, [1897] 1 (2, B. 502, followed, Grey v. Stephens, 4 W. L. R. 201, 16 Man. L. R. 180.

Extra work-Covenant that balance of price and cost of extras shall be subject to architect's certificate - Clause, compromissoire.]-A covenant in a contract for the erection of a building for a stated price. that the architect may order alterations in the course of the work, entailing a proportionate increase or diminution in the price takes the contract out of the operation of Art, 1690 C. C. and renders the restriction therein, as to recourse for extra work, inapplicable .-- A covenant in a contract for the construction of a building according to a plan and specifications, that the balance of the price and of all extras shall be paid by the proprietor to the contractor, on delivery by the latter of a certificate of the architects that the works are completed and that a stated sum is due, as a net balance, and that no account will lie unless such certificate is produced, is in the nature of an agreement of submission to arbitration (clause compromissoire), and of no binding force, as it does not contain the essentials required by Art. 1434 C. P. - Hence, the production of the certificate is not a condition precedent to the right of the contractor to sue for the balance of the price and the cost of the extras, Quinlan v. Redmond (1910), 39 Que. S. C. 145.

Extras—Oral testimony—Tender.] — F. had contracted with L. to build a warehouse and do certain repairs, by an agreement in writing, giving certain details of the work to be done, but unaccompanied by a plan. The contract price was $1,100. F. claimed $32.55 for extras which he maintained were authorised by L., but which L. denied. At the trial \mathbf{F} , offered oral evidence in support of his claim for extras, and L, objected, setting up Art. 1C90:-Held, that Art. 1690 of the Code must be interpreted strictly. (2) When it is a question of a contract unaccompanied by plans and definite specifications, but relating to building and repairing buildings, either erected or to be erected, described in a writing giving certain details of the work to be done, it is not a case for the application of Art. 1690, and oral evidence may be adduced to prove the doing of work outside the contract, and the cost thereof, without the production of any writing authorising them. Oven included in contract for building - Defective construction - Collapse Acceptance-Undertaking or guaranty-Fire caused by collapse-Destruction of building-Measure of damages-Finding of fact of trial Measure of damages—rinding of fact of ridat Judge—Reversal by Appellate Court.]—The defendant contracted with the plaintiff to erect a building, including a bake-oven, for a stated price. The defendant sublet the erection of the oven to M. After the completion of the oven the plaintiff complained that the arch was so constructed as to be in danger falling, but both the defendant and M., after examining the oven, assumed to consider it to be properly constructed. The plaintiff called in an expert, who reported that the oven was in danger of collapsing. The defendant having called upon the plain-tiff to fulfil his part of the contract by giving the to fully an security for the contract by giving a mortgage as security for the contract price, the plaintiff demurred that the oven was not properly constructed. But in March, 1908, the plaintiff agreed to pay the defendant the contract price in manner set out in a letter, still insisting, however, that the oven was imstill insisting, however, that the orderedant properly built; whereon the defendant wrote to the plaintiff that "if what you dread," that is, that the oven would fall down, "happens, why it will be put right." The plaintiff went on using the oven for about six months from its completion, when a fire occurred in the bake-house in which the oven was, injuring the bake-house and the main building adjoining it :--Held, upon the evidence, reversing the finding of Martin, J., the trial Judge, that the fire originated from the collapse of the oven; and the plain-tiff was entitled to recover damages from the defendant .- There was no serious conflict of evidence, and the Court could draw the the rule that, where the evidence is con-flicting, the finding of the trial Judge will not lightly be interfered with .-- Held, also, Irving, J.A., dissenting, that the plaintiff was confined to such damages as the parties had in contemplation, namely, the damages to the oven itself.—Per Irving, J.A., that the plain-tiff was entitled to damages for loss of the use of the building, and the estimated cost of re-building, but not loss of profits. Butt, 8 E. & B. 738; Sumpter v. Hedges, 67 L. J. Q. B. 545; Whitaker v. Dunn, 3 Times L. R. 602, and Forman v. The Liddesdale, 69 L. J. P. 44, 49, followed.—The defendant had paid the plaintiffs $1,400, and this action was for a few dollars of the first payment and for the who of the second and third payments :-- Held, that, although the defendant had at one time intimated his willingness, upon certain conditions, to make the second payment, there was no evidence thereby of waiver and acceptance, because it was not shewn that the intimation was made with knowledge of the breaches:—Held, also, that the right of the plaintiffs to call for any one of the 3 payments was conditional upon the work, so far as completed up to the period specified, being completed according to contract :--Held, upon the evidence, that the plaintiffs were entitled to recover for work done and goods supplied outside of the written contract, at the reque express or implied, of the defendant :-- Held. also, that the defendant's counterclaim for damages, being much more than offset by the difference between the value of the building and what he had paid for it, should not be allowed; the claim for $5 a day for delay in the completion of the building was a claim for a penalty, and the plaintiffs should be re-McDonald v, Simona therefrom. Pretended tender—Estoppel—Quantum meruit—Owner's default — Penalty—Certificate of architect.]—Vhere a tender for the erection of a building is made and accentel, but without the intention on the part of either owner or contractor that the amount stated in the tender should be the contract price, the contractor is entitled to recover on a quantum meruit. The fact that the plaintiff's tender was made for the purpose of deceiving other tenderers did not estop the plaintiff from disputing its bona fides as against the defendant. Failure by the owner to supply material which the contract prvides he shall supply, discharges a penal clause. Where a building contract provides for the certificate of an architect and no architect is appointed the provision is inoperative. Degame v. Chure, 2 Terr, L. R. 200

Proof of work constituting extras claimed by a contractor under a contract with a penalty clause, and according to plans and specifications, may be made by the evidence of proprietor himself.—A writing sizmed by the architect alone, without special authority thereto from the proprietor, is sufficient for the purpose of establishing that the extras were duly authorised. Slating a roof.]-A contractor brought action against executors of Jefferson Stevens for balance alleged to be due for slating a roof for him. Defendants counterclaimed for damages, alleging that the work was not completed within time agreed upon. At trial judgment was given plaintiff for $117 with costs on proper scale and given defendant for $227 on their counterclaim, with costs on County Court scale, one to be set off against the other. The Divisional Court held, that contractor was delayed by the default of the proprietor or his workmen in beginning his work until a date after the termination of the time fixed by the contract. There was in effect a new contract at the contract price, but without revival of the penalty. The de-lay in the after prosecution of the work should not be visited by the imposition of the penalty of so much per day, but should be limited to damages sustained thereby. Holme Hamilton, 33 U. Specific sum—Destruction of building before completion—Quantum meruit.1—The defendant, who had taken a contract for the erection of a dwelling house at $4.050, accepted the plaintiff's tender to do the plumbing and tinsmithing work for $500; but before the completion of the plaintiff's contract, though aftar he had don~ work up to $488; the building was destroyed up fire. The defendant had received two sums of $1,500 on account of his contract, but he denied that any portion of it was for work done by the plaintiff. In an action by the plaintiff to recover the $488 on a guantum meruit:— Heid, that where, as here, the contract Is to do work for a specific sum, and this applies as well to original as to sub-contracts, there can be no recovery until the work is completed, unless the failure to do so is caused by the defendant's fault; and, as the plaintiff admitied the non-completion by suing on a guanium meruit, and there was nothing to shew any fault on the defendant's part, there could be on recovery. Appleby V. Myeers, L. R. 2 C. P. 660, followed. King v. Lore, 22 C. L. T. 107, 3 O. L. R. 224.

Sub-contract—Defective work—Decision of architect—Right of contractor against subcontractor—Counterclaim, Mitchell v. Flodden (Man.), 4 W. L. R. 194.

Sub-contract for plastering building —Contract price—Retention of percentage— Premature action.]—Action to recover the balance of a contract price and extras. This amount was ascertained. According to the contract twenty per cent, was to be paid one month after work was accepted by architects. -Held, that the action which was brought before the expiration of the month, was premature as to the twenty per cent. Duborgel v, Whitham, 13 O. W. R. 934.

Sub-contract-Extras-Changes in work Deductions - Architects' certificates Adjustment of accounts - Evidence.]-The defendants were the contractors for a building, and the plaintiffs sub-contractors for the stone and masonry work. The plaintiffs claimed payment of $66 for extra plastering, not originally provided for: -Held, on the evidence, that, although the plaintiffs did plastering not provided for, more plastering was omitted by the change, and as to this item the plaintiffs failed.—The defendants alleged that $1,480 should be deducted from the plaintiffs' contract price because alterathe plaintiffs' contract price because altera-tions were made in the plans, reducing the height of the wall in stone, and the contract provided that in case of alterations in the works shewn or described by the drawings and specifications, the value of the work added or omitted should be added to or de-ducted from the contract price. The plain-tiffs contended that the $1,480 was conter-balanced by additional work caused by such balanced by additional work caused by such alterations. The plaintiffs were to act under the directions and to the satisfaction of architects, whose decision was to be the final, and all payments were to be made only under the written certificate of the architects -Held, that the certificates of the clerk of the works relied on by the plaintiffs were not certificates of the architects and had no effect; that there had been no adjustment of accounts between the parties at Montreal, as alleged by the plaintiffs; and that the plaintiffs had not made out a case of counterbalancing the $1,480 by additional work; and a nonsuit was granted. Winnipeg Stone Co. v. Senecal (1910), 14 W. L. R. 570.

Substantial completion — Unimportant defects — Waiver of strict performance — Estoppel — Amendment,] — Action to recover balance of contract price for erection of a dwelling-house for the defendant. Objection was made to the plaintiff's right to recover on account of the following defects: 1. The specifications required that the walls should be "beam-filled or built in between the joists on the inside," whereas the plaintiff had only put in one row of bricks above the inner side of the foundation wall between the joists to the floor above, thus leartime and the outer wooden wall of the house.-2. Want of quarter round in the kitchen and bath room.-3. Want of collar ties to the rafters. The defendant had been in occupation of the house for nearly two years without specifically mentioning the 2nd and 3rd defects, to supply which would have cost only about $7, and, when examined for discovery before the trial, had not mentioned them. They were raised for the first time at the trial. He had, however, always objected to the beam-filling as not being in accordance with the specifications, and as causing the freezing of his water pipes, and had often complained about the work as a whole: —Heidt, per Hueyl, C.J.A. and Perdue, J.A., that the manner in which the beam-filling was done sufficiently complied with the contract, and the defendant should be held to have waived the requirements as to the quarter round and collar ties. The plaintiff should be allowed to amend, if necessary, so as to set up such waiver.—Per Richards, J.A.: --- The beam-filling or building-in be-tween the joists above the foundation required by the specification, meant such a building in as would fill up the spaces from the wooden walls to the inner line of the foundation, and, as the plaintiff had refused to do the work in that manner, he should not recover. Forman v. Liddesdale, [1900] A. C. 190, referred to.—Per Phippen, J.A. (expressing no opinion as to the sufficiency of the beam-filling) :- As it was admitted that the plaintiff had not put in the quarter round the phanting and not put in the quarter round or the collar ties, and it was not alleged by the pleadings or shewn by the evidence that the defendant had waived the strict performance of the contract or entered into any new agreement with the plaintiff in re-gard to the work, the plaintiff could not resubstantial completion of the work in all other respects.—Brydon v. Lutes, 9 Man. L. R. 463, and Oldershaw v. Garner, 38 U. C. R. 37, followed .- No amendment of the statement of claim should now be allowed, as none was asked for either at the trial or on the hearing of the appeal, and no evidence was directed to any issue of waiver or estoppel .- The Court being equally divided, the defendant's appeal was dismissed without costs. Davis v. O'Brien, 8 W. L. R. 562, 18 Man. L. R. 79.

Substantial completion of work — Trifting omissions — Mechanics' lices,]—The plaintiffs contracted to "put in a complete job of steam heating" for the sum of $8600. According to the findings of fact, they did the work in a satisfactory manner and within a reasonable time. They had omitted, however, to provide floor and ceiling plates around the pipes. These plates were shewn to cost about 10 cents each and about $4 for all:—Heid, following Lucae v. Gotoin, 3 Bing, N. C. 174, and Shovers v. Carling, 3 Scott 755, that the omission of these plates should be considered as so triffing that the plaintiffs should not thereby be deprived of the whole consideration of a contract substantially completed, and that the plaintiffs were entitled to recover. Adoms v. McGreecy, 6 W. L. R. 188, 17 Mun L. R. 115.

Supply of material—Action for balance of price — Extras — Terms of contract— Failure to comply with — Inferior material— Counterclaim — Acceptance of material — Delay in completion of building. Garson v. Watson (Man.), 5 W. L. R. 534.

Supply of work and materials for building. I-Action on promissory note and account:--Held, that even if it had been agreed that no payment was to be made, but on production of architect's certificate, that had been waived. Gamble v. Arnold, 12 W. L. R. 91. Tearing down building—Penalty clause —Interpretation of the contract—Obligations of the proprietor and of the contractor, C. C. 1071.1—In the case of a contract whereby certain work was to be completed at a fixed date, under a penalty of a sum of money for each day's delay, the proprietor for whom the work is to be done is thereby obliged to put the property at the disposal of the contractor for the purposes of the contract. Failure on the part of the proprietor from the penalty clause but also gives him a remedy in damages for the prejudice he has suffered. Workman v. Chagnon (1910), 16 R. de J. 337, 16 R. L. n. s. 402.

Theatre.1---Plaintiff brought action to recover $15.000 damages, alleged to have been caused plaintiff by reason of actions threatened and liens put upon his property in Hamilton, known as the Grand Opera House, which had been erected by defendants for him, at an agreed price of $25,000, and which liens plaintiff had to pay. At trial Anglin, J., gave judgment for the plaintiff for $8,750 and costs, and the Divisional Court of Appeal reversed above judgments and entered judgment for defendants for $80500 on a counterclaim with costs throughout. Small y. Clafin (1910), 15 O. W, R. 574.

Unambiguous clause, susceptible of bai one application, 1—The proprietor, who, having given the contract for the building of a house, to a contractor who had become insolvent before the completion of the work, agress with a sub-contractor, who up to then had not been paid, that the work under the subcontract should proceed and obliges himself to pay the sub-contractor "in full for his former work and materials," thereby obliges himself to pay the whole amount due the sub-contractor by the principal contractor, the words in question not being ambiguous and not being susceptible of application to other work and materials than these for which, at the time, money was owing. Lefebere v. Treparier, 37 que. S. C. 291.

Warranty of materials and work.— A workman, who contracts to lay a tiled or mosaic floor, for a set price, incurs the limbility of warranty, both of the material supplied and of the work done, provided in Articles 1696 and 1.88 C. C., and is not relieved therefrom by the circumstances that the tiles were selected by the owner and his architect, and the work performed under the supervision of the latter.—A certificate delivered by an architect for a payment on account of the contract price, and the payment thereof pursuant to the terms of the contract, at a time when the inadequate quality of the material and work has not been ascertained, is no ground of estopped against the owner who sets up his rights of warranty, in defence to an action for the balance of the contract price, Reid v, Birks (1910), 39 Oue, 8. Work to be performed to satisfaction of architect-Construction of contract erms of payment—Architect's certificate -Changes in plans-Authority of owner or architect — Extras — Progress certificates— New trial.]—At trial, Clute, J., gave plain-tiffs judgment for $1,470, full amount of their claim for work, alleged to have been done for defendant in building a house and stable in Toronto, and granted a declaration of a lien on defendant's lands for that amount. De fendant's counterclaim dismissed .-- Court of Appeal ordered a new trial, not merely on account of the failure of proof on the part of plaintiffs, but also on account of the re fusal to allow defendant to prove if he could, wherein the contract had not been performed, either according to its terms, or as varied according to its terms. Costs of former appeal to defendant. Costs of the former trial to be dealt with by trial Judge. Smallwood v. Powell (1910), 16 O. W. R. 615, 1 O. W. N. 1025.

4. CONDITIONS.

Consent of third party — Time—Hisdirection.1—Where an acreement is made subject to the consent of a third party, it must be looked upon as a conditional arreement, dependent upon such consent heing given within a reasonable time; in default of which the agreement must be taken not to have become effective:—Held, on the evidence, that, assuming there was evidence of such a conditional agreement, the date at which it was alleged the consent of the hird party was obtained could not, under the eircumstances, be reasonably found by the jury to be within a reasonable time after the making of the agreement; and that therefore the Judge's charge to the effect that there was no evidence of an agreement was not objectionable—at all events, as no substantial wrong or miscarriage of justice was occasioned thereby. Martin v. Reilly, 1 Terr. L. R. 217.

Default—Application of alternative rate of payment.]—A contract between a newspaper proprietor and a customer, for 12.000 lines of advertising to be furnished within a year, based :pon a price of four cents a line for advertising, if the conditions of the contract as to prompt payment. &c., be strictly compiled with by the customer, and of fifteen cents per line in case of failure to comply with such conditions, is an alternative comForum — Acceptance of jurisdiction — Pleading to merits.] — The defendant, by pleading to the merits of the action, accepts the jurisdiction and is not entitled thereafter, by declinatory exception, to invoke, as ousting the jurisdiction of the Court, the condition of the bill of lading, sued on, to the effect that all disputes arising from the bill of lading were to be settled before the Hamburg law Courts. Printed conditions—Party signing in ignorance. [—A party to a contract is not bound by conditions, printed on the back thereof, of which he was ignorant, and to which his attention was not called before he signed the contract, although the contract bears on its face an acknowledgment by the signer that he has had communication of the conditions printed on the back and consents to be bound by them; but also bears on its 'ee the statement that the other party to the contract will not be bound by it until it shall have been accepted by a duly authorised agent and notice in writing by registered letter sent to the signer's address, which was never done. Royal Electric Company v. Dupéré, 17 Que, S. C. 534.

Written promise—Legal obligation.]— Heid, that a written promise by the appellants that, if satisfied with the respondent as a customer, they would favourably consider any application by him to renew a subsisting contract between them on its expiration, does not impose a legal obligation to grant it. Judgment in 8 Que, Q. B. 412. reversed. Montreal Gas Co. v. Vasey, [1900] A. C. 505 on the evidence adduced at the trial, and the plaintiff was entitled to recover notwithstanding his interest in the purchase, and notwithstanding that in his plending he alleged that one C., who was merely a trustee for the syndicate, was the purchaser, it being immaterial who the purchaser was. Frank V. Goodmay (1910), 14 W. L. R. 406.

Money elaim against company—Oral agreement to postpone payment till after sale of treasury stock—Estoppel.] — The plaintiff in consideration of $1 agreed with defendants to wait for payment of his account until sufficient treasury stock sold to pay him. Must he wait a reasonable time for the happening of the contingency before suling?—Held, to be an absolute postponement of his cause of action. Datton v. Selkirk Copper Mines Limited (B.C.), 10 W. L. R. 259.

"Serip"—Payment of money—Failure of consideration — Right to return of money— Agent holding himself out as principal—Liability.] — The plaintiffs paid the defendant $1,550 for Dominion half-breed scrip for 720 acres of land, and received certain documents which were not "scrip." and which did not entitle the plaintiff to obtain scrip from the Government. Neither of the parties knew what "scrip" was. The defendant set up that he was, to the plaintiffs' knowledge, acting merely as the ngent of W.:—Held, on the evidence, that there was a total failure of consideration; that the defendant held himself out as a principal; and that the plain tiffs were entitled to recover from him the $1,550. Sliter v. McCombe (1910), 15 W. L. R. 188.

Seal-Undisclosed principal - Partnership -Amendment.]-P. sold mining areas, and was paid part of the price. The purchaser signed an agreement under seal that he would organise a company to work the areas and give P. stock for the balance at the market H. organised a company, which reprice. ceived a deed of the land and did some work, but finally ceased operations. Only a small part of the stock was sold, and none was given to P., who brought an action against the purchaser H., in which he alleged that the latter was a partner of the purchaser, and that the agreement was signed on behalf of both. The purchaser did not defend the action : - Held, that no action could lie against H. as the agreement under seal was not signed by him, even if it was for his benefit, and a seal was not necessary. The Court refused to interfere with the discretion of the Court below in refusing an amend-ment to the statement of claim. Porter v. Pelton, 23 C. L. T. 213, 33 S. C. R. 449.

6. CONSTRUCTION OF CONTRACT.

Action to recover money paid.] — Plaintiff, defendant's son, brought action against his father to recover money expended in the erection of a dwelling house upon father's farm, it being alleged that the expenditure was made upon faith of a promise by father to give son a deed of the farm upon which the house was built, and that on demand he refused to do so. The evidence tended to rebut the iden that the father undertook to give the son an absolute deed of the farm, the intention being to reserve an interest to his father during his lifetime:-Held, on the evidence, that plaintiff could not recover, as his demand was for something he was not entitled to, but that nevertheless, as defendant intended to and did repudiate any obligation in reference to the matter, plain tiff was entitled to recover the sum expended by him, and defendant's appeal must be dismissed with costs. Morrison, 43 N. S. R. 207, 6 E. L. R. 407.

Advances-Share of profits-Absolute or conditional undertaking-Damages.]-A con-tract between W. and B. recited that W. owned land to be worked as a gravel-pit; that he was about to enter into contracts for supplying sand therefrom ; and that he had requested B. to assist him financially, to which B. had consented on certain conditions; it then provided that "the said W. is to enter into contracts as follows," naming 5 corporations and persons to whom he would supply sand to a large amount at a minimum price per yard; that B. would indorse W.'s note to the extent of $5,000, and have 60 days to declare his option to take a one-fourth interest in the profits from said contracts. or purchase a one-third interest in the property and business; that each party would account to the other for moneys received and expended in connection with the property that if either party wished to sell his interest he would give the other the first choice of purchase; and that "each of the parties hereto agrees to carry out this agreement to the best of his ability according to the true intent and meaning of the same and to do what he can of mutual benefit to the parties hereto." B. endorsed notes as agreed. W. B. endorsed notes as agreed, entered into 2 of the 5 contracts, sold a quantity of sand, and then sold the property. without notice to B., who brought an action claiming his share of the profits that would have been earned if the 5 contracts had been entered into and fully carried out:-Held, Fitzpatrick, C.J., and Maclennan, J., dissenting, that the undertaking by W. to enter into the 5 contracts was absolute, and, having by the sale put it out of his power to perform it, he was liable to B., who was entitled to damages on the basis of the contracts having been carried out .- Held, also, Duff, J., hasitante, that the clause quoted did not modify the rigour of the absolute coven-ant by W. to procure these contracts in any event .- Judgment of the Court of Appeal, 10 event. Agreement to provide aid for person 411-Consideration - Two-thirds interest in action against mining company - Recovery under agreement — Division of proceeds — Share retained for further advances — Action to recover - Costs.]-Plaintiff's action was brought to recover 334 mining shares, or for the recovery from defendant of $3,797.05, and interest, for moneys alleged to have been handed defendant by plaintiff and expended by plaintiff, for which defendant was liable. -An agreement was entered into when plaintiff was ill, it being agreed that defendant would advance plaintiff certain moneys and otherwise provide for plaintiff during "his present illness" in consideration of two-thirds of plaintiff's rights against the Columbus Silver Mining Co. Defendant brought action against said mining company and recovered a considerable amount of capital stock. In settlement with plaintiff, defendant kept out 334 shares for advances made plaintiff, which defendant alleged was not covered by the above agreement.—Latchford, J., held, that the action should be dismissed without costs, except as to the certificate for 334 shares in the Columbus Silver Mining Co., which was to be delivered up to the plaintiff .- Divisional Court, held, that the above judgment should be set aside with costs, and judgment entered for plaintiff, with a reference to the Master at ____, to ascertain what sums of money should have been paid to the plaintiff as reasonable for his care during an illness for the period covered by the claims mentioned in the plaintiff's statement of claim .-- Court of Ap-peal reversed the Divisional Court and restored the judgment of Latchford, J., with

During the exhibition each of the competitors served the public gratuitously with samples of made tea, and the was served by them to the committee in the same way that it was served to the public. The committee having awarded the medal to the plaintiff, a competitor:—Held, that there was consideration for the offer, entitling the plaintiff to the medal. Where the executive of the above society adopted a resolution to award medals to all displays of merit or excellence of goods on exhibition, the awards to be made by regularly appointed judges, and the general manager of the exhibition, who was a vice-president of the executive, and a member of a committee of three to appoint judges, thereupon arranged the above competition, and, with a co-member of the committee to select judges, named the judges for the competition, it was held that the competition must be taken to have been instituted by the society. Peters V. Agricul-tural Society of District 34, 25 C. L. T. 90. 3 N. B. Ec. 127.

Covenant to deliver possession of land-Dominion Lands Act-Assignment or transfer-Mistake-Rectification.]-A covenant contained in an agreement for farming "on shares" to deliver possession of land in which the covenantor has homestead rights only, is not an assignment or transfer within the meaning of the Dominion Lands Act, R. S. C. c. 54, s. 42, as amended by 60 & 61 V. c. 29, s. 5. Rectification of contract for mistake discussed. Spence v. Arnold, 5 Terr. L. R. 176.

Custom of trade-Sale of goods - Delivery.]-The construction of a contract for the sale of goods cannot be affected by the introduction of evidence of local mercantile usage unless the terms of the contract are doubtful or ambiguous. Dufreane v. Fee, 25 C. L. T. 6, 35 S. C. R. 274.

Delivery of goods — Place — "At." meaning of.]—The plaintiff, tendering for a supply of coal for the defendants' water-works, wrote, "I will deliver in bond into Works, whole, 'I will denote in organized the coal shed at pupping station or grounds adjacent thereto where directed by you, one thousand tons,'' etc. The plantiff's tender being accepted, a contract was drawn up by which he assessed to deliver at the coal shed.'' which he agreed to deliver at the coal shed. etc .- The defendants refused to accept or pay for the greater part of the coal furnished by the plaintiff, because it was not delivered to them at the place mentioned in the contract, i.e., it was not put into the shed by the plaintiff, but left at the dock near the pumping station :-- Held, that the portion of the coal in question was not delivered at the place designated by the contract.—Per Boyd, C.—"At" means rather within a place than without; "at" the coal shed means "in" or "in close proximity to" the shed. The cases referred to as to the meaning of the word "at" merely shew its meaning under the circumstances of each case. Such words take their colouring from their circumstances and situation. Divisibility-Completion.] - By a contract to remove spans from a wrecked bridge in the St. Lawrence, the contractors agreed "to remove both spans of the wrecked bridge and put them ashore, for the sum of $25,000. to be paid $5,000 as soon as one span is re moved from the channel, and another $5,000 as soon as one span is put ashore, and the balance as soon as the work is completed. it being understood and agreed that we push the work with all possible despatch, but if we fail to complete work this season we are to have the right to complete it next season :"-Held, reversing the judgment of the Court of Appeal (21st September, 1901). Taschereau and Davies, JJ., dissenting, that the contract was divisible, and the contractors, having removed one span from the channel and put it ashore, were entitled to the two payments of $5,000 each, notwithstanding that the whole work was not completed in the second season. Duration—Contract for five years with option to renew—Suspensive condition—Retroactive operation.]—When a contract is made for a term of five years, with an option in favour of one of the parties to renew it for a further term of five years, such an option has the effect of a suspensive condition, and, when exercised, operates with a retroactive effect, as if the contract had been made at the outset for ten years. Hence, the party who agreed, upon securing it, to make certain payments, out of the returns, to another till is expiration, is bound to do so for the whole period.—Judgment in Brook y, Wolf, 32 Que, S. Electric Highting — letion for price — Statutory regulation — Reading of meter — Duplicate for purchaser—Condition precedent —Waiter.]—The Dominion Acts, 1894, c. 13, s. 13, s., 2, enacts that "Whenever a reading of a meter is taken by the contractors for the purchaser, the contractor shall cause a duplicate of such reading to be left with the purchaser." In an action by the plaintiff company to recover the price of electric lighting and rent of meter:—Held, that the burden was upon the plaintiff to shew compliance which the chall cause a duplicate of the price of electric lighting and rent of meter:—Held, that the burden was not accused by the fact that the person to whom the duplicate reading was required to be delivered might not be able to understand it. 2. That an offer to compromise, made on the part of the defendant, could not in any sense be treated as a waiver of the right conferred by the statute. 3. That the fact of previous bills having been paid could not be taken as dispensing with the requirement of the statute for more than the particular bills paid. Cape Breton Electric Co, v. Implied covenant - Intention of parties.]-The plaintiff contracted with the de-fendant for 330 hours' dredging in the harbour of St. John, with a specific dredge and appliances, and for so much longer as the city might require, on giving notice at the expiration of that period, to be paid for at the rate of $400 per each 11 hours, subject to deductions and allowances agreed upon for time lost. (1) when the dredge was unable to work by reason of injury to the plant or machinery, and (2) where the work could not go on by reason of stormy weather. The water was too deep at high tides for the dredge to work, and there was, therefore, delay caused in this way. Both parties were aware at the time the contract was made that the high tides would interfere with the work, but there was no provision for any deduction or allowance on that account :-Held, that a verdict for the plaintiff, ordered on a construction of the contract that there was an implied covenant that the defendants should pay for the time lost by reason of the high tides, was erroneous, and should be set

Independent covenants-Right of action -Condition precedent - Arbitration - New trial-Costs.]-Where different clauses in an agreement contain independent and collateral covenants, and a breach of a covenant occurs, the party aggrieved is entitled to bring his action without reference to anything contained in any separate covenant, unless that covenant is made a condition precedent by express terms. Scott v. Avery, 5 H. L. C. 847, followed. In an agreement for the sale by the defendant to the plaintiffs of certain timber lands and mills, clause 4 was divided into two paragraphs, the first of which provided that in the event of the quantity of timber on the lands turning out to be short of that represented in a statement attached to the agreement, the defendant would repay to the plaintiffs the just proportion that the amount of shortage bore to the value of the total number of feet of timber estimated in the statement; and the second of which paragraphs provided that if the quantity of timber found was not equal to that represented. there should be an arbitration :-Held, Irving, J.A., dissenting, that the two paragraphs contained independent covenants; and that arbitration was not a condition precedent to a right of action for repayment on account of a right of action for repayment on account of shortage, under the first paragraph. Judg-ment of Morrison, J., reversed. A new trial was directed, and the defendant was or-dered to pay the costs of the abortive trial, he having insisted upon the objection to the right of action which was now dedied account right of action which was now decided against him. Swift v. David (1910), 13 W. L. R. 368

Informal agreement — Parol evidence —Intention of partics—" More or less."]— Where there is an informal agreement, and such agreement is embodied in an informal memorandum in writing, parol evidence may be given to shew what the parties were dealing about. Lease of hall-Insurance.]--In the interpretation of a contract, doubts must be solved in favour of the debtor and against the creditor, and more particularly so when the contract has been prepared by the creditor. Such doubts, however, must be reasonable, not such as to embarrass a person of intelligence as to the real intention of the parties. Applying this principle to the present case, in which the defendant, lessee of a hall to be used as a theatre, was bound to pay "all extra premium of assurance that the company with which the premises now leased Company when when the permeters of the source of the source shall exact over and above the present rates paid by the lessors or any of their tenants under said hall in conse-quence of the nature of any performance or entertainment carried on in said premises," the words "under said hall" could not be extended to include stores on the lower floor which were not under the hall, though extra insurance was paid thereon by the lessor in consequence of the use of the hall as a theatre. Watson v. Sparrow, 16 Que. S. C. 459.

Lease of land or hire of goods— Firstners—Services, I—A contract by which a person grants to another the use of an engine and boiler affixed to land, with, in addition, a place to deposit wood, is a lease of an immovable, even where the contract provides for payment of a lump sum for the use of the engine and boiler and the wages of the son of the lessor, whose services are leased by the same contract to the lessee. Lanoie v, sphrestre, 24 Que, 8. C, 233.

Lease of license-Sale of stone to be extracted from quary-Remedice of landlord] --An agreement by which the owners of a quary give a person the right to extract stone from it during a fixed period, at places to be indicated by them, and in consideration of a sum to be paid according to measurement of the stone, is not a lease of a portion of the quary, but a sale of the stone to be extracted. No relation of landlord and tenant arising out of such an agreement, the remedies specially provided by law to enforce obligations under a lease, do not apply in favour of the parties to it. Hendershot v. Lionais, 27 que, S. C. 292.

Manitoba Grain Act-Storage of wheat to be specially binned-Storage tickets issued -Agents agreeing to specially bin wheat contrary to instructions-Liability of elevator company-Delivery of wheat - Amount to which bailor entitled-Place of delivery.]-Plaintiff delivered a quantity of wheat to defendant's elevators at Saskatoon and Osler, receiving fickets or receipts therefor in the form of storage tickets mentioned in the Manitoba Grain Act. The agent marked the words "specially binned" on these tickets; but it was shewn he had express instructions not to accept any wheat to be spe-cially binned. The amount of wheat shipped from the bins in which plaintiff's wheat was stored was greater than that mentioned in the storage receipts under the Manitoba Grain Act calling for the delivery to him of the "above quantity, grade and kind of wheat" could not claim that the wheat was specially binned under the provisions of the Act, and was entitled only to delivery in accordance with the provisions of the Act when the grain is stored under storage tickets. That the endorsement of the words "specially binned" on the ordinary storage receipt would not give any greater privilege than those to which the plaintiff was entitled under storage tickets. That the contract between the parties being for delivery of the wheat in car lots at any terminal elevator in the district, the delivery of the wheat at Fort William was sufficient compliance with the contract. Casucell v. Western Elevator Co., (1909), 2 Sask. L. R. 153, 10 W. L. R. 52 ants, and "to sell such goods or property" and take such other proceedings as the plaintiffs might deem best for recovering the amount of the payment made under guarantee bonds issued for the defendants, and expenses, etc. The agreements also contained the following: "The undersigned agrees to do and execute any deed or thing that the company may deem to be necessary in order to give the company the rights and powers herein expressed or intended to be given. The agreements were on printed form pre-pared by the plaintiffs:—Held, that the plaintiffs were not entitled, under the agreements, to a lien on any real estate of the defendants for the amount of their claim, and that the words used should not be constructed to include land, the rule of ejusdem generis being applicable in this case. London Guarantee and Accident Co. v. George, 3 W. L. R. 236, 16 Man. L. R. 132.

Mineral rights-Right to possession.]-By an agreement made on the 13th January, 1897, in consideration of $1, the owner of cer tain lands agreed "to lease and hereby does lease (to the plaintiff) the following described premises," mentioning them, and "hereby leases and agrees to give and convey hereby to said (plaintiff) all mineral rights on said premises, the right to quarry stone, and the right to bore for gas, with privilege to erect and bring to said premises all necessary tools, machinery, and conveniences for mining, quarrying, and boring on said premises and to erect buildings thereon for said tools and machinery and for hauling employees, and also to drain said premises and to build necessary railroad thereon. "Said (plaintiff) also agrees if he uses said property under this agreement to take therefrom the amount of 50,000 cords of stone, and to pay therefor the sum of 25 cents per cord per United States specifications. Said (owner) hereby agrees that he will give no other party or corporation any rights on said premises for the above described purposes on or before August 1st, 1897."---" Unless said (plaintiff) utilizes said premises for said purposes on or before August 1st, 1897, this lease shall be null and void."--Heid, that under this agreement the plaintiff was not entitled to exclusive possession of the land, or to quarry all the stone thereon, but only to quarry 50,000 cords. Haven v. Hughes, 20 C. L. T. 55, 27 A. R. 1.

Mines and minerals — Working agreement—Option to purchase — Ownerschip of ore—" Net proceeds,"]—Under an option to purchase a mineral claim, and develop the conditions was that " if any ore is shipped from the property the net proceeds are to be deposited to the credit of the vendors . . . and to be applied in part payment to the vendors." The defendant contended that the words " het proceeds" as used in the option, meant a sum to be arrived at after deducting from gross proceeds the cost of minus, delivery at smelter, and of smeltins. — Held, on facts, that defendant's rights in respect of ore extracted from property were limited to right to ship ore for purposes of conversion, and were subject to condition that proceeds of such conversion should be applied in accordance with terms of agreement above mentioned. Pending payment of purchase price provided for in option, defendant acquired no right of property in ore in situ, and none after extraction from the mninc.—The operation of developing property was, pending payment of purchase price, to be done by defendant for owners of property, and in shipping or dealing with ore, he was to deal with it as a trustee for plaintiffs, and proceeds would be in his hands as such trustee. Grobe v. Doyle (1906), 12 B. C. R. 191, 3 W. L. R. 285.

Municipal works — Specifications — "From" and "to" streets — Plan.]—The words "from" and "to" streets mentioned in specifications for the construction of works undertaken by an agreement in writing, as shewn on a plan annexed to and declared to form part of the construct on the essarily exclusive. When the agreement provided that the works should be constructed " along Notre-Dame street from Berri street to Lacroix street, as shewn on the said plan," these words mean, " as far as the plan shews along Notre-Dame street, but not exceeding the most distant side of Lacroix street." City of Montreel v. Canadian Pacific Rw. Co., 33 S. C. R. 396.

Niagara river power - Dispute as to measuring the amount of electricity.]-The action was on a contract between the Commissioners of Queen Victoria Niagara Falls Park and the defendants, by which the defendants were allowed to take water from the Niagara River to generate and sell electric energy, and to settle disputes as to the proper way of measuring the amount of electricity. Plaintiffs measured the energy on certain days and demanded rates for the intervening time as per that measurement :-- Held (14 O. W R. 853, 1 O. W. N. 127), that this was not the proper mode of computation, but that the amount generated and sold from day to day was the proper mode of computation. On was the proper mode or computation. On application by plaintiffs the matter was re-opened and evidence taken, but above decision was not altered. Action dismissed with costs, Atty.-Gen. for Ont, v. Can, Niagara, Falls Power Co. (1910), 16 O. W. R. 35.

Oil lauds-Forfeiture - Lease or license -Profit à prendre.]-Defendant by written lease gave plaintiff exclusive right to drill on certain oil lands for five years from 16th December, 1903, "this lease to be null and December, 1905, this is if a wear void and no longer binding . . . if a wear void and no longer binding . . . within 6 months, yearly to lessor $50 per year for delay." No 1904 well had been begun by 16th June. when the first 6 months expired. On 8th July, 1904, plaintiff paid defendant $50 by cheque, which defendant cashed on 10th August, 1904, and receipted as "received on account of delay in beginning operations under lease." In August, 1905, plaintiff tendered second yearly payment of $50, which defendant refused, having made another lease to his co-defendant on 25th July, 1905 :- Held, that second payment of $50 was in time, and might have been validly made at any time during second year, which did not terminate until 16th December, 1905 .- The legal effect of instrument in question was more than a license : it conferred a profit à prendre, an incorporeal right to be exercised in land com-prised in it. McIntosh v. Leckie (1906), 13 O. L. R. 54, 8 O. W. R. 490.

Operation and management of theatre -Partnership or hiring-Division of profits Right to dismiss manager.]-Plaintiff and defendants, who were proprietors of two thearres respectively, agreed to close that owned by the plaintiff, he to assume the manage-ment of the other under the terms of an agreement. In a few months the defendants assumed to cancel the agreement and expelled plaintiff from management on the grounds of habitual intoxication :---Held, that the relationship between the parties was that of partners and not that of master and servant, and defendants were restrained from excluding plaintiff from management. Hemming v. Lemarquand, 11 W. L. R. 280.

Option-Refusal.]-A contract stipulating that the first party shall have the hauling of all ore shipped up to 15,000 tons, and not less than 10,000 as required by the second party, does not hind the second party to supply more than 10,000 tons. Haggerty v. Lenora Mount Sicker Copper Mining Co., 22 C. L. T. 106, 9 B. C. R. 6.

Part performance-Settlement of action -Litigious rights-Party in default-Judgment.]-An agreement between the parties to several transactions involving litigation, to do a series of acts, in settlement of their differences, is divisible, and a performance of part of them will be held binding and effective, notwithstanding the failure to perform the whole, more particularly as against the party through whom such failure occurs .---2. A right affirmed by a judgment is, by law, excluded from the class of litigious rights, and is not, therefore, subject to the restraints put upon the sale and alienation of uch rights. Armstrong v. Connolly, 14 Que. K. B. 295.

Party to a contract, involving t alienation of immovable property is estopped from suing for a rescission of it, when it has been carried out in such a way as to render impossible the restoration of the property to its former state .- When an alienation of immovable property involved in a contract, in favour of parties assumed to be the owners of contiguous land, but who are only the lessees thereof, the other party when suing to rescind the contract with a view to recover the property, must include in his actica, the real Harbour Commissioners V. Record Foundry (1909), 38 Que. S. C. 161. (An appeal is now pending bergen now pending before the Court of King's Bench.)

Party who draws up a contract-Meaning of the words "similar stock."]--A written contract should, in case of doubt, be interpreted against the party who has drawn it up. The word "similar," used in a contract of sale of goods, to qualify other goods, is not synonymous with "identical," but means "resembling" or "like" or "of like characteristics." Hence, when the price " identical, of calf trimmings and fleshings, sold by a tanner to a glue manufacturer, is covenanted to be that of "similar stock paid to other tanners," hide trimmings used for the same purpose come within the description. Canadian Glue Co. v. Galibert (1909), Q. R. 36 S. C. 473.

Payment - Condition precedent-Deduction - Arbitration - Independent collateral contract.]-In answer to an action to recover the balance due under an alleged contract. the defendant, by paragraph 6 of his statement of defence, set up that there was a shortage in the assets delivered by the plain-tiff, and that the plaintiff could not sue for the unpaid balance until the deduction from the unpaid balance until the deduction from such balance proper to be made in respect of such contract had been determined by arbi-tration. The defendant's agreement was to pay, not the balance after deduction made, but the whole sum, in specified instalments. Under one paragraph of the agreement, how-ever, the defendant was entitled in certain events to a deduction:—Held, that the pro-vision as to deduction was a collateral har. vision as to deduction was a collateral bargain, and it was for the defendant to put forward his claim thereto which he had not done; the award of arbitrators was not a condition precedent to or part of the plaintiff's cause of action; and paragraph 6 of defence should be struck out. Cuddy v. Cam-eron (1910), 13 W. L. R. 632. Affirmed (1910), 15 W. L. R. 502, B.

Permit to ent hay-Provisions for cancellation of permit if land sold or leased-Subsequent lease of part of land covered by permit.]-The defendant paid for a permit to cut hay in 1908, on a parcel of land, across which was printed the following :--" This permit becomes cancelled by the sale or lease of the land." Subsequently the plaintiff obtained a lease of half the said parcel :--Held, that the defendant's permit gave him an actual interest in the land; that the provision for cancellation should be most strictly construed, and that, as the land had not been leased but only a part of it, the permit was not cancelled and the defendant had a right to the hay cut in that year on the whole of the land, including some that had been cut by the plaintiff under his lease. Decock v. Barrager (1909), 19 Man. R. 34.

Provision for cancellation-Supply of electric light-Condition for terminating scr-vice-Interest in premises ceasing-" Heirs" " Assigns " - Partnership - Rights of administrators.]-The electric company and S. entered into an agreement for the supply of electric lighting in a hotel, for 10 years from the 1st May, 1902, and it was provided that either party might cancel the agreement by notice in writing, if, after the expiration of 5 years, neither S, nor his heirs, executors. administrators, or assigns, should be owner. tenant, or occupier of the hotel, alone or with other persons. The lease to S. extended only until the 1st May, 1907; it gave him no right to a renewal, and he had no other interest in the building. He sold a half interest in the lease to two persons with whom he formed a partnership in the hotel business. which was carried on till 1904, when the partnership terminated by his death, and the defendants were appointed administrators of his intestate estate. The affairs of the partnership were settled between the defendants and the aurivilar partners, who became transferees of the business, exclusive owners of the lease, and sole occupants of the hotel for the unexpired term. They gave notice to the plaintiffs to cancel the arreement on the 1st May, 1907, and, on that date, obtained a new lease of the premises, under which they continued in occupation and possession:--Held, that, after the 1st May, 1907, the new tenants of the hotel were not assigns of S., and consequently, were entitled to cancel the agreement for electric lighting by notice according to the proviso. Judgment in 9 O. W. R. 517, 10 O. W. R. 311, affirmed. Deschenes Electric Co, v. Royal Trust Co., 39 S. C. R. 547.

Public work - Finding of references-Claim of contractor-Repetition-Waiver. The specifications accompanying a call for tenders for the widening and deepening of canals formed a part of the contract subsequently entered into, and provided that no part of the work could be unwatered during the season of navigation, but might be at the close of navigation. The contractor claimed payment for extra work and increased cost by reason of the refusal to unwater during the winter months :---Held, that the contrac tor might be called upon to work under water during the time the canal was closed to navigation, as well as when it was open, and was not entitled to extra payment therefor, espe-cially as no demand was made for unwater-The contractor was entitled to payment ing. The contractor was entitled to payment at a specified rate for removal of earth and at a higher rate for "earth provided, de-livered, and spread in a satisfactory manner to raise towing path where required." He claimed payment at the higher rate for over 200,000 enbic yards, and the resident engineer returned 60,000 as falling under the above remember of the Genermann aller the above ing. provision, and the Government allowed 23,000 yards. The Exchequer Court Judge referred it to the registrar of the Court and two engineers, who reported that the amount al-lowed by the Crown was a sufficient allowance, and their report was confirmed by the Court :- Held, that the Supreme Court would not overrule the judgment of the expert referees. Other clauses of the contract required the contractors to make and repeal their claims in writing within fourteen days after the date of each monthly certificate during the progress of the works, and every month until adjusted or rejected. By the order in council referring the claims of the appellant to the Exchequer Court these clauses were waived "in so far as the repeated submission of claims is required." - Held, that the waiver did not relieve the contractor from making a claim after the first monthly certificate issued subsequent to its having arisen, but only from repeating it after the following certificate. Rallway-Exemption from liability-Consideration-"Property"-Ejusdem generis.] -In consideration of the construction of a siding to their mill premises, the plaintiffs entered into an agreement with the defendants, freeing them from Hability for damages to the "siding, or to buildings, fences, or other property whatsoever" of the plaintiffs " or of any other person." Two horses of the plaintiffs, engaged in hauling a car from one part of the siding to another, were killed by being run down with a car sent on the siding by a flying switch:—Held, that the word "property" in the agreement was not confined to fixtures, buildings, and rolling stock, and that the horses were properly included. East Kootensy Lumber Co., V. *Canadian Pacific Rv. Receipts—Sile or bailment—Future delivery of grain—Agent's authority.]—Plaintiff claimed that he agreed on 20th October, 1907, with defendant's agent, to sell them his 1907 wheat crop at one cent per bushel over market price. He delivered this wheat to their elevators a few days later, and now sued for the price of the wheat:—Held, that the agent had no authority to contract for future delivery, and that on the evidence plaintiff had merely stored his wheat in defendant's elevator. Action dismissed. Sily v, Western Canada Flour Mills Co., 9 W, L. R. 581.

Removal of timber — Injunction—Refusal—Appeal—Merits—Affirmance. Murphy V. Lake Eric and Detroit River Riv. Co., 1 O. W. R. 827, 2 O. W. R. 444.

Reward — Apprehension of murderer— Party entitled to reneard.]—The Government a offered a reward of $500 for the arrest of a murderer. Defendants agreed to pay plaintiff to aid them in effecting the arrest. This he did. Defendant received the reward from the Government. Plaintiff sued for one-third of the amount.—Divisional Court held, that the defendants were liable, they having received the reward on condition that they should arrange with plaintiff.—Judgment of Chadwick, Co.C.J., 6th April, 1909, reversed. Couplin v. Farrell (1910), 17 O. W. R. 127.

Sale of business.] — Plaintiff brought action to recover from defendants $1,500, on a promissory note which represented part of the purchase price of a business bought by defendants. On default of payment plaintiff took possession of the business, and claimed the amount of this note, as well an a previous cash payment of $1,000 was forf-ited. Action dismissed. Judgment of Chapple, Dis. Co. J., afirmed. Parrott v. McLean (1910), 15 O. W. R. 305.

Sale of entile—Substituted agreement— Terms of trade—Usage.]—On the evidence it was found that, by usage among cattle-men in the McLeed District, calves under six months old and unbranded are, in the buying or selling of a herd of cattle by the head, included with the cows with which they are running. Where an agreement related to two classes of things, and one of which alone was subsequently dealt with by a substituted agreement, and a new agreement fealing with the other class was made for the purpose of continuing the first agreement regarding it, the first agreement was properly looked at to interpret the second. Sale of goods-Delivery-Place-" At," meaning of.]-A tender by H. to supply coal to the town of Goderich, pursuant to adver-tisement therefor, contained an offer to de-liver it "into the coal shed at pumping station, or grounds adjacent thereto, where directed by you." (Meaning by a committee of the council.) The tender was accepted. and the contract afterwards signed called for delivery "at the coal shed." A portion of A portion of the coal was delivered, without directions from the committee, from a vessel upon the dock, about 80 feet from the shed, and separated from it by a road :--Held, reversing the judgment of the Court of Appeal (15th November, 1901, unreported), that the coal was not delivered "at the coal shed." as provided by the contract signed by the parties, which was the binding document :--Held, also, that if the contract was to be decided by the terms of the tender, the delivery was not in accordance therewith, the place of delivery not being "at the pumping station or grounds adjacent thereto," (See, also, 20 C. L. T. adjacent thereto." (See, also, 20 C. L. T. 303.) Holmes v. Town of Goderich, 22 C. L. T. 222, 32 S. C. R. 211.

Sale of goods or agency for sale-Promissory note-Consideration.] - When goods are supplied to order by a manufacturer to a dealer for sale to the public, together with forms of promissory notes in favour of the manufacturer to be indorsed by the dealer, the relation between them is in reality that of buyer and seller, not of agent and principal. The dealer cannot, therefore, set up a pies of want of consideration to an action brought against him by the manufacturer, on one of the purchaser's note endorsed by him. Richardson v. Eldridge, 34 Que. S. C. 424.

Sale of homestead and stock-Entire contract-Invalidity as regards homesteal-Conversion.]-The plaintiff signed a written memorandum as follows: "I hereby agree to sell, and make and execute the necessary papers to convey, all my right, title, and in-terest in (describing his homestead, for which he had not been recommended), also (3 horses, a waggon and a plough), and any other implement or chattel of which I am now the owner to (the defendant) for the sum of $480 to be paid as soon as the neces-sary papers are executed." The defendant, The defendant, without the plaintiff's knowledge, took posses-sion of the horses; the plaintiff immediately objected to this. The plaintiff sued for conversion and the defendant counterclaimed for damages for breach of the agreement :---Heid, that the contract was an entire one, and that, according to its terms, the property in the personal property would vest only on a proper conveyance of the land.--(2) That the agreement, being one for the assignment of an unrecommended homestead, was void, and that, although an agreement may be void in part and valid in part, yet this being an entire contract was wholly void. Judgment was therefore given for the plaintiff for dam-ages for conversion of the horses; and the defendant's counterclaim for damages for breach of the agreement was dismissed. Flannaghan v. Healy, 4 Terr. L. R. 391.

Sale of private banking business to chartered bank-Bank became insolvent -Action to recover money under contract of -Action to recover more under contract of sale.]-The plaintiffs, seven surviving mem-bers of the firm of Telford & Co., sued for $250 and interest for each of them, part of the consideration for sale by them of the pri-vate banking business of Telford & Co. to defendants. Defendants denied liability by reason of an alleged prior breach of the agreement of sale by one of the plaintiffs, W. Telford, in taking a position with another bank :---Held, that the evidence shewed that the defendants having become embarrassed their entire business was taken over under agreement with other banks, and in January, 1908, W. M. Telford was notified that at the expiration of three months his services would not be longe, required. On 4th February, 1908, he sent his resignation, informing the general manager that he had received an offer of a position with the Merchants' Bank at Owen Sound. The resignation was accepted. and no objection made to his taking the and no objection midde to his taking the position until the defence in this action. Judgment entered for plaintiffs for $1,750 and interest from the list of June, 1908, and costs, Carpenter V, Crencell (1827), 4 Bing, 409, followed, Tclford V, Sovereign Bank (1910), 16 O. W. Sale of securities — Interpretation of contract — Arts. 1018, 1019, C. C. — Railway — Debtor and creditor — Right of way claims-Legal expenses incurred in settlement.]-The plaintiffs sold the defendants stocks and bonds of the P. and I. R. Co., with an agreement in writing, which contained a clause stipulating as a condition that the vendees might declare the option of paying a further sum of $30,000, in addition to the price cl sale, in consideration of which the vendors agreed to pay all the debts of the P. and I. R. Co., except certain specially mentioned claims, some of which were in respect of settlement for the right of way. final clause of the agreement was as follows "After two years from the date hereof the Montreal Street Railway Company will as sume the obligation of settling any right of way claims which the vendors may not previously have been called upon to settle, and will contribute $5,000 towards the settlement of any such claims which the vendors may be called upon to settle within the said two years. Any part of the said sun, not so expended in said two years or required by the purchasers so to be, shall be paid over to the vendors at the end of the said period, it being understood that the purchasers will not stir up or suggest claims being made." The vendees exercised the option, and paid the $30,000 to the vendors, who reserved their right to any portion of the $5,000 to be contributed towards settlement of the right of way claims which might not be expended during the two years. An unsettled claim for right of way, in dispute at the time of the agreement, was subsequently settled by the vendors within the two years. The question arose as to whether or not this existing claim and legal expenses connected therewith was a debt which the vendors were obliged to discharge in consideration of the extra $30,000 so paid to them, and whether or not the $5,000 was to be contributed only in respect of right of way claims arising after the date of the agreement: - Held, affirming 15

Que, K. B. 77, that the agreement must be construed as being controlled by the provisions of the last clause thereof: that the last clauses was not inconsistent with the previous clauses of the arcrement: and that the vendees were bound to contribute to the payment of such clauss and legal expenses in respect of the right of way to the extent of the $5,000 mentioned in the last clause. Sale of timber-Terms of payment.]-The appellant held rights in unpatented lands and agreed to sell the timber thereon to respondent, one of the conditions as to payment therefor being that, as soon as the Crown grant issued, the respondent should "settle" a judgment against the appellant, which, they both understood, could at that time be pur-chased for $500. On the issue of the grant, about six months afterwards, the judgment creditor refused to accept $500 as full settlement at the latter date, and he took proceedings to enforce execution for the full amount. The execution was opposed on behalf of the The execution was opposed on behalf of the appellant, the respondent becoming surety for the costs and being also made a party to the proceedings.—Held, affirming the judgment in 10 B. C. R. 84, that the agreement to settle the outstanding judgment was not made unconditionally by the respondent, but was limited to settling it for $500, after the issue of the Crown grant for the land :—Held, also, Davies, J., dissenting, that the costs incurred in unsuccessfully onnosing the exeincurred in unsuccessfully opposing the execution of the judgment, upon being paid by the respondent, were properly chargeable against the appellant. O'Brien v. Mackin-tosh, 24 C. L. T. 115, 34 S. C. R. 169.

Sale of wheat-Correspondence by telegraph—Price of wheat — Ascertainment by reference to quotations — Evidence—Trade usage or custom.]-On the 22nd May, 1903, the plaintiffs, grain merchants of Winnipeg, Manitoba, telegraphed to the defendants at Goderich, Ontario: "Referring to my tele-gram we offer subject to immediate reply by telegraph one cargo about eighty thousand bus, part number one hard three over part number two northern one quarter aader New York July c.i.f. Goderich in ten days, terms twenty-five thousand sight draft balance weekly payments as suggested int, and ins, balance Goderich paid by you as before if you wish will fix price to-day's close hard eighty-two cents two northern seventy-eight and three quarters telegraph immediately whether you accept or not can give you more two north-ern than one H." The defendants telegraphed to the plaintiffs on the next day : "We accept half one hard half two northern price fixed date shipment or sooner." Five days later the plaintiffs telegraphed to the defendants: "Probably send Algonquin to-morrow takes about fifty-eight thousand two northern thirtyseven thousand one hard do you want the surplus fifteen thousand two northern one half under July telegraph immediately on receipt." And on the same day the defendants telegraphed to the plaintiffs: "We accept well provide insurance here see to-day's let-ter." The 95,000 bushels of wheat men-tioned were shipped and received by the de-fendants, and, a dispute having arisen as to 890 the price, the plaintiffs withheld the bill of lading for 10,000 bushels of the 95,000, and the defendants having, notwithstanding the absence of the document, taken the 10,000 bushels, the plaintiffs brought this action for conversion thereof, or alternatively for the balance of the price. The defendants maintained that the price was paid in full :--Held, that there was a complete contract for the and of the goods in question, at a price to be fixed, on or before the date of shipment, by reference to New York quotations; and that the words used by the plaintiffs "three one quarter under New York July" had not the effect of importing into the contract a term, in accordance with a custom or trade usage of the wheat market at Winnipeg, of which evidence was given at the trial subject to objection, that the buyer was bound to sell a similar quantity of New York wheat to the original vendor. Services by near relatives — Implied right to remuncration—Presumption.]—The presumption against an implied right to remuneration for services rendered by near relatives arises only when the persons rendering the services, and those to whom they are rendered, are in effect living together as members of the same household, but even where this is not the case the implied right to remuneration may in the case of near relatives be negatived on very slight grounds. The Court held on the facts in this case that the plaintiff, a married woman who left her own home to nurse her sister, was not entitled to remuneration for her services. Mooney v. Grout, 25 C. L. T. 327, 6 O. L. R. 521.

Shares in company-Sale of-Terms of payment-Absence of covenant to pay-De-fault in payments-Refusal of Court to infer failt in payments—refusat of control of high obligations to pay.]—By agreement of 11th August, 1903, between plaintiff and defend-ant, after reciting that plaintiff was owner of 302 fully paid-up shares of common stock in a named company, of par value of $100 each, and his agreement to sell same to defendant, for consideration therein mentioned, and subject to terms thereinafter expressed, it was witnessed that plaintiff had agreed to sell shares to defendant for $18,120, with interest at 6 per cent., viz., on his paying $500 on account, he was to have right of paying balance in manner set out in agreement. Plaintiff was to deposit in a bank the stock certificates, endorsed in blank, to be delivered to defendant, on payment of purchase money in full, and he was to be at liberty to pay into the bank sums of money thereinafter re ferred to, to be held to his credit, and which should fully discharge him in respect of payment of purchase price and interest, and entitle him to delivery of shares ; defendant was to pay plaintiff $500 on account upon deposit of certificates so endorsed; and in considera-tion of premises and of $500 plaintiff cove-

Supply of electric power-Continued existence of property-Condition precedent.] --Where, under the terms of an agreement, the plaintiffs were to supply the defendants with electric current to a specified amount of horse power, to be used by them for operating their machinery, and for use in their business, and for no other purpose, the limitation was held to be for the purpose of confining the use of the power to the defendants' premises, and not to any existing mill thereon, so that the fact of such mill being afterwards destroyed by fire did not dispasse with the defendants' obligation to receive and pay for the power. Telegraph company.]—Agreements between plaintiffs and defendants each contained the following clause: "The relivany company to pass the inspectors, linesmen, and repairers of telegraph company, and their tools and stores for construction and maintenance of said lines and any extensions thereof."— Held, that defendants were not bound to furnish unlimited passes, as demanded by plaintiffs, but only such free transportation as was reasonably necessary in connection with plaintiff's work of construction and maintenance, nor can they succeed in an action for money had and received. Held, further, on defendants' counterclaim, that the latter are entitled to damages because of plaintiffs' failure to maintain telegraph lines in working order, and for breach of covenant to construct and maintair, a wire and sound instruments for defendants' use between two of their stations, but that the plaintiffs are not bound to maintain poles that were erected on defendants' right of way before date of agreements. North American Telegraph Co. v. Bay of Quinte Rev. Co. (1909), 13 O. W. B. 275. Varied, both claim and counterclaim being dismissed. 14 O. W. R. 8.

Telegraph company leased railway company pricate wire-Unauthorized mesages-Must account for same.]—In 1883 the plaintiffs leased the defendants predecessors a special telegraph wire for 27 ½ years, to be used in connection with the management, operation and control of their railway lines then constructed. Later the railway became the property of the defendants, who operated several other businesses, and have extended lines of railways. The defendants used the special wire for all sorts of messages pertaining to their general business and refused to account to the plaintiffs for any of such unauthorised messages :--Held, that the defendants were bound to account to plaintiffs for the messages transmitted by them through the special wire, which did not relate to the management, operation or control of the railway lines existing in 1888. Time - Season - Reckoning-Starting point.]-Though a delay stipulated in a contract to run from a space of time or a period. such as a senson, is generally to be com-puted after or from the end thereof, never-theless the whole purport of the agreement, or proof of circumstances, or both, may shew that the parties intended that the whole period from its initial day should be counted into and form part of the delay, and effect must be given to this intention when it clearly appears .-- Hence, when the seller of rights under location tickets of Crown lots, makes a reservation of the cut of timber thereon, for three years, "a compter de l'automne prochain," and it appears that he Fautomne prochain," and it appears that he could not acquire full ownership of the timber by the required lapse of two years (and have time to manufacture and sell it, the manifest object of the reservation), unless the starting point of the three years were the end of the next ensuing fall, that construction of the words used will be held to be the proper one.-Judgment in 32 Que, S. Traffic agreement.] — Action for recovery of damages for breach of contract to provide cargoes for plaintiffs' steamers, sailing from Quebec to Manchester, at current rates from Montreal. The defence denied the contract as alleged; set up that the defendants had never been placed in default to settle and determine the freight rates obtainable in Montreal; that they were prevented from fulfilling their contract by the destruction of a bridge on their line of railway; that they could not be held responsible for the empty space without having been first put in default to fill the same:— Held, that the defendants were responsible for the difference between the Quebec and Montreal freight rates, but only to the extent of forty per cent, of the enrop of the ship, in accordance with the letter of the 3rd of February, 1905. For this reason 8593.25was deducted from the amount of the judgment. As the appeal failed on the substantial points costs were not allowed. Great Nor. Rev. Co. v. Furness, Withy & Co. (1908), 42 S. C. R. 234, affirming, but slightly reducing the amount of damages allowed in 32 Que. S. C. 121.

Two separate documents construed as one - Agreement to purchase land -Secret arrangement to pay purchaser commission on sales-Consideration-Illegality-Pleading-Ground of appeal not raised at trial-Variation of agreement-Authority of agent -- Ratification-Right to commission under substituted agreement.]—On the 23rd February, 1904, the plaintiff agreed to pur-chase 50,000 acres of land from the defendants, at a fixed price per acre, upon terms specified in a written document. In a letter written by the president of the defendants, on their behalf, to the plaintiff, dated the 24th February, 1904, the defendants promised to pay the plaintiff a commission of 25 cents per acre on each sale as made, as soon as the defendants had received sufficient over and above $1 per acre to pay such com-mission. The plaintiff being in default under his contract, the defendants' agent made an arrangement with the plaintiff, which was embodied in a letter dated the 14th June, 1904, written by the plaintiff to the agent, reducing the plaintiff's purchase to 20,000 acres, the plaintiff releasing his privilege of making selections from certain townships, upon the understanding that the defendants should release him from all obligations as to the other 30,000 acres. The agent also found a purchaser, D., for 10,000 acres of the land, and the plaintiff agreed to accept this, and afterwards sold D. another 10,000 acres. trial Judge found, upon conflicting evidence, that the two documents dated respectively the 23rd and 24th February were signed at the same time and as one transaction :---Held, that this finding should not be interfered with; that there was a consideration to support the promise set out in the document of the 24th February; and that evi-dence of the circumstances in which the documents were executed was properly received to shew that there was in fact only one transaction :--Held, also, that, although the evidence established that the plaintiff in making the purchase was acting for himself and others, and the document of the 24th February disclosed a secret arrangement to enable the plaintiff to obtain something in the nature of a commission without the knowledge of the other persons interested in the purchase, the defendants were not at liberty to maintain this as a ground of appeal, it not having been pleaded or raised at the trial, and no application for leave to amend having been made. And quare, whether, in any case, it was open to the defendand to maintain such a defence as against the plaintiff :—Held, also, that the document of the 14th June, 1904, did not cancel the agreement of the 23rd and 24th February; it was merely a substitution of 20,000 acres for the 50,000 acres, and left the 20,000 acres subject to the terms of the original agreement; and the plaintiff was, therefore, entitled to bis 25 cents per acre commission on the 20,000 acres sold to D; the arrangement made by the defendants' agrent, if beyond his powers, having been rulified by the defendants, as the evidence shewed.—Judgment of Newlands, J., affirmed. Willoughy V. Sask, Valley & Man. Land Co. (1910), 13 W. L. R, 526, 3 Susk, L. R. 130.

Uncertainty — Findings of fact — Append.] — The findings of a trial Judge on questions of fact will not be disturbed unless it appears clearly that such findings are erroneous. In an action on a contract to furnish supplies to be used in floating one of the defendant's stemships, where the evidence was of a contradictory character, the trial Judge, as to certain amounts claimed, found in favour of the defendants, on the ground that if the plaintiff wished to make a contract under which he would be fully paid, whether the services were or were not performed that should have been clearly expressed in his tender and not left in doubt :—Heid, that the decision ought not to be discuried. Barrey v. Allan S. S. Co., 30 N. S. R. 207.

Use of licensed premises—Exclusive occupation—Landlord and tenant—Breach of contract-Damages.]-An agreement between a licensed restaurant keeper and a third person whereby the latter engages, under a penalty, to fulfil the obligation of the former prescribed by the License Act, s. 913, to be able at all times to furnish meals to at least ten persons at one time, implies the right of the third person to use the restaurant for this purpose, but does not give him any right of exclusive occupation; and the relationship of landlord and tenant does not arise from the agreement. Therefore, the arise from the agreement. restaurant keeper has no right to refuse the person with whom he contracts access to the restaurant, and the refusal of the latter to perform his engagement is equivalent to a renunciation of the bargain on his part, and puts an end to it .- One who violates the right of another, while not causing any appreciable injury, is nevertheless liable to exemplary damages. Bourque v. Massé, 28 Que. S. C. 133.

Use of race track—Lcase or license— Forfeiture.]—An agreement under seal between the plaintiff and defendants providing for the use of the defendants race track by the plaintiff under certain conditions and in consideration of certain payments:—Held, upon its true construction, not to be a lease, but a mere license; that the relationship of landlord and tenant did not exist between the parties; and, upon the evidence, that there was a breach of the contract, for which the defendants might properly forfeit, and that the contract was in law properly forfeit and declared void by the defendants. Lyles v. Windsor Fair Grounds and Driving Park Association, 20 C. L. T. 363.

7. ENFORCEMENT OF CONTRACT.

Adoption of illegitimate child-Promise to "make her heir "-Statute of Frauda --Part performance.]--The plaintiff was the illegitimate daughter of D. C. K. The plaintiff's mother and D. C. K. lived together for several years, but finally separated. The mother died in 1807. The plaintiff lived with her grandmother nutil the latter's death. On the 1st April, 1890, the plaintiff wrote to D. C. K. telling him of her mother's death and asking him to write to her. Some time afterwards he wrote to her addressing her as "Dear daughter," signing himself as "Your anxious father. In a posteript he added, "Now I have agreed to become your real solid father as hard and fast as you can wish." A close correspondence followed. which resulted in the plaintiff going to Winnipeg to live with her father; he met her at the station, took her to his house, and they lived together as father and daughter until died suddenly on the 6th June, 1903. After his death a will was found dated the 5th December, 1881, by which he bequeathed all his property to another. So far as known, D. C. K, had not, at the time of his death, any relative existing. The plaintiff swore that her father told her on var swore that all his property would be hers values and the state of the state of the state of the state when he died; that he would make a will to that effect. Friends were called as witnesses, that energy who stated that D. C. K. told them he would make his will in the plaintiff's favour and make her his heir :--Held, specific per-formance will be enforced by the Court of an agreement in writing, though not in formal terms, whereby the father of an illegitimate child offered, if she (plaintiff) would come to him and live with him as his daughter, to keep her and leave all his property by will to her, the agreement having been acted upon by the parties and fully performed on the part of the plaintiff, and the omission to make the promised will being attributable to mere negligence and procrastination, no contrary intention on the part of the father appearing; in spite of the want of mutuality, the complete performance by the plaintiff, sufficient to take the case out of the Statute of Frands. Kinsey v. National Trust Co., 24 C. L. T. 104, 15 Man. L. R. 32.

Assignment of.] — Money paid by defendant for superintending work being done under contract cannot be charged against the contractor doing the work. Where plaintiff had a claim in excess of jurisdiction of County Court, but defendant had a set-off which upon being allowed reduced the amount below the maximum County Court jurisdiction :— Heid, that the County Court had no jurisdiction. Finn v, Gosnell (1909), 14 O. W, R. 850, 1 O. W. N. 117.

Assignment of moneys due—Conflicting evidence—Findings of fact.]—Action to recover certain sums of money under an agreement. Judgment for plaintiff, his evidence being accepted in preference to that of the defendant. Greetham v. Gilroy, 11 W. L. R. 395.

Promise to transfer shares-Consideration-Measure of damages-Interest.]-The plaintiff was superintendent of the blast furnaces of a company of which the defendant was the president. The plaintiff's con-tract of employment was for no definite period, and the employment could be ter-minated upon two months' notice by either party. During the plaintiff's employment the defendant promised him a certain number of the shares of the capital stock of the company if the production of the blast furnaces was increased to a certain number of tons, and he gave the plaintiff a memorandum containing the figures mentioned. The blast furnaces produced the necessary number of tons, and on two occasions the defendant sent the plaintiff certificates for shares " with my compliments." The furnaces continued to produce the requisite number of tons, but the defendant failed to deliver any more shares, and thereupon this action was brought to recover damages for breach of the contract. The shares of the capital stock of the company had gone up in value, and then had gone down between the time when the stock should have been delivered and the date of the trial :- Held, that the stock delivered was not a mere gratuity; that the stock denvered contract for the delivery of the stock, and consideration for the same. It was not a case of assessing the damages at the highest price reached between the date of refusal and the trial, but simply a case in which their market value at the time when the stock should have been delivered should determine the amount of damages. Interest should not be allowed. Means v. Whitney, 24 C. L. T. 93, 237.

Bes judienta—Defendant ordered to complete his contract—Loss of the amount deposited as accurity—C. P. 541; C. C. 1241.] —When the final judgment orders the defendant to complete his contract with the plaintiff within a certain time, under a penalty of losing an amount deposited with the plaintiff, there is res judicato as to the forfeiture of such deposit, if the defendant does not obey the orders of the Court; the defendant ant cannot later on demand a new ruling upon that part of the conclusions respecting such deposit. Brazer v. Elkin (1909), 11 Que. P. R. 292.

Restraint of trade — Sale of goods— Stipulation that vendee shall resell at fixed price — Validity—Interest of vendor—Termination of contract — Injunction.] — An agreement between the manufacturer of an article and the retailer thereof that the latter will sell the article at a fixed price. is not unlawful nor in restraint of trade, nor against the public interest, when the manufacturer has an interest in entering into the agreement by sharing in the profits of sales or otherwise. When no time is specified for the duration of an agreement of this kind, either party may terminate it without the consent of the other. One who seeks an injunction to prevent some one doing something-in this case to prevent freedom of trade in the Wampole preparation --- must prove, as must every plaintiff, an actual and tangible interest in bringing the action, and, as well, that, unless an interlocutory injunction is granted, he will suffer serious and irreparable injury, Wanpole v. Lyons, 25 Que, S. C. 390. See S. C., 14 Que, K. B. 53.

Services—Contract to accept part payment in stock—Failure to deliver—Damages —Specific performance.]—The phintiff contracted with the defendant to do certain work at the rate of $7 a day, whereof $1.50 should be paid in cash, and the balance of $5.50 in stock in a mining company at fifteen cents a share:—Held, that on the defendant's failure to deliver the stock the plaintiff was encuited to damages for breach of contract, and could not be compelled to accept stock. Miller v, Aterill, 24 C. L. 7. 103, 10 B. C. R. 205.

Settlement of actions—Agreement for division of mining property—Enforcement— Further agreement based on original agreement—Formation of joint stock company— Fraud or mistake—Evidence. Crawford v. Lausan Mine Limited, McLeod v. Crawford, 12 O. W. R. 454.

Specific performance.] — Defendant was indebted to plaintiff for $6,500 secured by I. O. U.'s, notes and an assignment of mining shares. Plaintiff agreed to accept $1,500 cash and 20,000 shares of mining stock. The defendant could not deliver the shares :--Held, that the Court could not compel specific performance; that the plaintiff's account was correct and entitled to recover. Reference to Master-in-Ordinary, unless parties agree upon some other reference to determine amount of plaintiff's damage. Goodall v. Clarke (1909), 14 O. W. R. 785, 1 O. W. Undertaking for performance by another—Specific performance—Authentic contract.]—Where A. has contracted with B. that until a third party does a certain act, he, A., will be personally responsible for the fulfilment of the obligation under the contract on the part of such third party-if the latter does not do the thing stipulated, B. has an action against A. to enforce specific performance of obligation, and to compel A. to sign an authentic contract, and to obtain an order from the Court that in the event of A. refusing to sign, the judgment shall avail in lieu of such authentic or notarial contract. Validity - Taking effect at death-Testamentary disposition - Married woman-Absence of authorisation.]-A writing in the following words, "I hereby state that if death should overtake me. I hereby wish and command that she shall have the option on all the Bridge Company stock held by me, paid for or on option of same," does not disclose a perfected agreement or undertaking transmissible to and binding on the legal re presentatives of the writer. It amounts at most to a testamentary disposition, and is therefore subject to revocation by a subse-quent will.—Per Trenholme, J.—Even if such a writing were a valid contract in form, it would be null and void in the present instance, because the obligee, a married woman, was not authorised thereto by her husband or by a Judge. Pattle v. Simpson, 14 Que. K. B. 178.

8. EVIDENCE TO VABY.

Agreement for maintenance - Consideration—Conveyance of property — Evi-dence to vary agreement—Reformation—Detinue-Damages.]-In an action to recover certain personal property which, it was al-leged, the defendant unlawfully detained, the defendant relied upon an agreement, entered into between the plaintiff and him, whereby the plaintiff, in consideration that the de-fendant would provide him with sufficient and comfortable maintenance during his lifetime, agreed to convey to the defendant his real and personal property. The document put in evidence in support of the defence set up contained no reference to personal pro-perty :--Held, that parol evidence could not be introduced to vary the terms of the written document, and that the plaintiff was en titled to judgment; and if, through fraud or mistake, the personal property was omitted from the written agreement, the defendant had his remedy in a proper action to have the agreement reformed. The damages as-sessed for the detention of the personal property being excessive, the Court directed a reference back to the County Court Judge who had tried the action, to make a new assessment. Guiou v. Thibeau, 36 N. S. R. 542.

Sale of land-Possession under written agreement-Timber-Seizure under execution -Bill of sale.]-The plaintiff sold to S. a property containing a quantity of woodland for $8,500, under an agreement in writing by which S. agreed to pay a portion of the purchase money on the execution of the agreement, and the balance in yearly instalments. with interest subject to the condition that if S. failed to pay any of the instalments, with interest, as agreed, the payments made would be forfeited and the plaintiff would be at liberty to resume possession; and subject to the further condition that S. would not cut more than a specified quantity of lumber in any one year. In an action of replevin brought by the plaintiff against the defend-ant sheriff, who had levied upon a quantity of lumber on the premises, under executions issued at the suit of creditors of S., the plaintiff tendered evidence to shew that all lumber cut by S. was to be sold, and the proceeds, after deducting certain disbursements, paid to the plaintiff on account of the purchase money, and that the title to the land and lumber was to remain in the plaintiff until the payments agreed to be made by S. were completed :—Held, that the evidence was not admissible, the effect of it being to vary the written contract :-- Held, further, that a bill of sale of the lumber made by S. to the plaintiff, while writs of execution, of which the plaintiff failed to shew that she had not notice, were in the hands of the sheriff, was void, as made contrary to the provisions of the statute. Blaikie v. McLennan, 33 N. S. R. 558.

Supply of gas-Fixing rate-Oral agreement - Conversations - Evidence, Selkirk Gas and Oil Co. v. Eric Evaporating Co., 8 O. W. R. 667.

9. FORMATION OF CONTRACT.

Acceptance-Purchase of goods-Acceptance by delivery.]-The plaintiff, who had had previous dealings with the defendants. wrote to them on the 5th May, asking them if they were going to buy eucumbers that year, and what they were going to pay for them : adding, "please let me know, as I want to make a contract with some one for them, as I want to put in quite a few this year." The defendants replied : "We are pleased to learn that you are going to do a lot of grow-ing this year, and will be pleased to take all you grow at the same price as last year. We will see you later on and make final ar-rangements." Nothing further occurred until the following August, when the plaintiff sent several loads of cucumbers to the defendants. who accepted them and paid for them, nothing being said at the time of any contract between the parties :---Held, that the defendants' letter was not an offer open to acceptance by the plaintiff, or by the delivery of encumbers to them by the plaintiff, but a statement of their readiness to enter into an agreement with the plaintiff upon terms to be arranged. Carlill v. Carbolic Smoke Ball Co., [1893] 1 Q. B. 256, distinguished. Bas-ton v. Toronto Fruit Vinegar Co., 22 C. L. T. 232, 4 O. L. R. 20, 1 O. W. R. 301.

Acceptance of conditions — Construction of telegram. — Where negotiations have been carried on by correspondence, for the lease of premises, between the owner and the agents of a company, without a final understanding, and the last letter is from the owner, containing new conditions and proposals, a telegram from the agents in these words "Will meet you at store, Saturday 2 p.m. Authority to size lease." is not an acceptance of such conditions and proposals and does not amount to a closing of the contract. Robichon v. Charlton Co. (1910), 39 Quee, S. C. 22.

Agent-Ratification.]-A contract made by an agent is complete before he has advised his principal of it, and before the latter has sent a ratification to the other party to the contract, Hibbard v. Thompson Co., 5 Que. P. R. 372.

Canse of action. where arising—Correspondence—Place of making—Sole of goods —Place of delivery—Superior Court—Dirtrict, I—A contract by correspondence is completed at the place where the neceptance is received, to the kaowledge of the acceptor. 2. An ection for damages on account of the insufficiency and poor quality of goods sold may be begun in the district in which such goods ought to be delivered, inspected, and paid for, Reeves v. McCullock, 4 Que. P. R. 285.

Company—Authority of agent—Ratification.)—On an appeal from a Master defendant claimed he should have been allowed a credit of $1,000, which he alleged plaintiffs' agent had agreed he should get on giving up Ottawa agency of plaintiffs. Making such an arrangement was outside of the scope of this agent's authority, but as Master believed defendant, and as plaintiffs appeared to have ratified what agent did, it was held they were estopped. The report was also varied by allowing interest computed as simple interest and not with rests. McCarthy V. McCarthy, 12 O. W. R. 1123.

Correspondence — Acceptance—Mailing —Post Office Act—Place of payment—Domicil-Delivery of goods sold.]-An offer was made by letter dated and mailed at Quebec, the defendant's acceptance being by letter dated and mailed at Toronto. In a suit upon the contract in the Superior Court at Quebec, the defendant, who was served, substitutionally, opposed a judgment entered against him, by default by petition in revocation of judgby default by perition in revocation of jung-ment first by preliminary objection taking exception to the jurisdiction of the Court over the cause of action, and then, consti-tuting himself incidental plaintiff, making a cross-demand for damages to be set off against the plaintiff's claim :---Held, that, in the Province of Quebec, as in the rest of Canada, in negotiations carried on by correspondence, it is not necessary for the completion of the contract that the letter accepting an offer should have actually reached the party making it, but the mailing in general post office of such letter completes the contract, subject, however, to revocation of the offer by the party making it before receipt by him of such letter of acceptance. Underwood v. Maguire, 6 Que, Q. B. 237, overruled. Article 85 of the Civil Code, as amended by 52 V. c. 48, providing that the indication of a place of payment in any note or writing should be equivalent to election of domicil, at the place so indicated, requires that such place should be actually designated in the contract. Ma-gann v. Auger, 21 C. L. T. 329, 31 S. C. R. 186

Correspondence—Offer and acceptance —Rescission — Breach.]—Defendant wrote plaintiff that he had fifty tons of hay for sale, to be shipped by schooner. This being found impredicable, defendant said he would ship by rail, which plaintiff accepted.—Held, not a rescission but a modification of the existing contract. Judgment for plaintiff. Append dismissed. McGrath v, Black, 6 E. L. R. 501,

Correspondence — Parties in different provinces—Jurisdiction.] — Where the contract upon which the action was based arose out of a proposition made by the defendants at Kineston and sent to the plaintiffs at Montreal by letter, and accepted by the latter, also by letter; —Held, that it was made at Kineston and the Courts of the district of Montreal had no jurisdiction. Beaubien Produce and Milling Co. v. Richardson, 3 Que. P. R. 464.

Correspondence—Place of completion— Acceptance.]—A contract by correspondence is complete at the place whence the acceptance is sent. Ward v. Johnston, 5 Que. P. R. 123.

Correspondence — Place of contract— Parties in different provinces—Breach—Sale of goods—Property in province — Jurisdiction.]—1. A contract by correspondence is not complete until the answer of the person to whom the offer. 2. When the vendor of articles necertained as to kind only, who resides in Ontario, and also by virtue of a contract completed at Montreal, sends from Ontario, the goods sold to the purchaser at Montreal, if the purchaser, who has paid for them in advance, does not find them to be as stipulated for, and refuses them, his action to recover what he has paid and

-Acceptwho had fendants, ing them the costs cannot be begun at Montreal, because the whole cause of action has not arisen there, the fact of the shipping from Outario being a part of the cause of action. 3. Goods shipped to Montreal which the purchaser refuses to accept should be considered as property belonging to the defendants for the purpose of the suit, and to give jurisdiction to the Court at Montreal. Hislop v. Bernatz, 3 Que, P. R. 451.

Correspondence - Proposal and acceptance - Condition - Inspection.]-A correspondence between a customer and a manufacturer, consisting of: (a) an inquiry by the customer whether the manufacturer can supply a stated quantity of his produce; (b)a reply by the manufacturer that he can, at a stated price; (c) a further inquiry from the customer whether the manufacturer can supply, at the price quoted, a lesser but also stated quantity than that of the first inquiry ; and (d) an affirmative reply by the manufacturer: - Held, to constitute a complete contract for the manufacture of the lesser quantity, and to make the manufacturer liable in damages for failure to carry it out. A reference to conditions of inspection of the manufactured article, in correspondence subsequent to the foregoing, affords no ground for pretending that there was no complete contract. Central Vermont Rw. Co. v. Dubé. 35 Que. S. C. 180.

Delivery of lumber—Orders for lumber ber — Acceptance — Correspondence—Evidence—Failure to deliver part — Damages. Watts & Co, v. Mohler, 7 W. L. R. 627.

Formation of company — Oral agreement between corporators before formation -By-laws — Unanimous approval of shareholders—Omission of term in written agreement — Evidence to establish agreement--Statute of Frauds—Pleading—Amendment--Costs, Berkinshaw v. Henderson, 12 O. W. R. 919.

Hiring-Breach-Cause of action, where arising-Contract made outside of province --Jurisdiction, --In an action for damages for breach of an agreement of hiring, the contract itself and its conditions are material facts which must be proved by the plaintiff; therefore, if the contract was made outside of the Province of Quebec, it cannot be said that the whole cause of action arose in the province. Landry v. Hurdman, 5 Que, P. R. 273.

Ignorance of the purpose of agreement - Interest due as damages for nonperformance of contracts.]--Held, the consent required for the formation of a contract cannot be given by one who does not know the purpose of the contract. Hence, the acceptance by a receiving messenger of an express company of merchandise that it carries, does not prove his engagement to comply with the terms printed on the back of the document, which were neither read nor explained to him, especially if he can neither read nor write. The driver is responsible for goods he carries so far as acknowledging their value at their destinations, but he is not responsible for the profits that their owner might have realized on reselling them, if nothing was said when the contract for carrying was made, to cause him to foresee the consequence of his failure to perform it. Art. 1074, C. C. Black v, Can. Express Co. (1909), 36 Que. S. C. 499.

Implied contract—Programment for keep of horse — Proof of oneresthip, 1—The obligation, quasi-contractual, to reimburse money expended upon the chattel of another person (in this case the keep of a horse), arises from the fact of ownership of the chattel, which it is necessary to prove against one from whom reimbursement is sought. Richard v. Stevenson, 28 Que, 8, C. 188.

Intention - Liability for work done-Principal and agent-Notice.1-If a man's words or acts, judged by a reasonable standard, manifest an intention to agree in regard to any matter, that agreement is established and it is immaterial what may be the real but unexpressed state of his mind on the subject .- The defendants, in authorising a Mr. B. to employ a contractor to perform certain repairs to their building, supposed that he was the local agent of their architect. S., to whom they had complained of certain defects in his plans necessitating such repairs, and supposed that S. had recognised his liability for such defects and had author ised B. to have the repairs made. S. had not, however, given any such instructions to B., and B, had in fact ceased to be in S.'s employment some weeks before the defendants arranged with him about the repairs. B. employed the plaintiff, who in good faith did the work without any notice or knowdid the work without my house or know-ledge of what was in the minds of the de-fendants' officers: — Held, that the defen-ants were liable to the plaintiff for the cost of the work, Watson V, Manitoba Free Press Co., 18 Man. L. R. 309, 9 W. L. R. 77.

Negotiation — Incompleteness—Acceptance of offer not proved.]—The defendant telegraphed: "Propose to go in from Alert Bay over to west coast of Island hunt elk; guarantee one month's engagement at least from arrival here; take earliest date you could arrive here; Paget recommends; state terms; wire reply." The plaintiff telegraphed in reply: "Five dollars per day and expenses." Upon which the defendant telegraphed: "All right please start on Friday." but received no reply, and on the same day telegraphed the plaintiff: "Sincerely regret obliged to change plans and therefore will not be able to avail myself of your services. Kindly acknowledge receipt this wire: collect:"—Ided, that there was no contract. The telegram from the plaintiff to the defendant was not an acceptance of the defonant's offer, but was merely a quotation of terms, and could not bind the plaintiff except as to terms, The acceptance of the defonant's offer of an engagement must be expressed and could not be implied.—Hørey v. Faacey, [1803] A. C. 552, followed. Little v. Hanbury, 14 B. C. R. 18, 9 W. L. R. 115

Offer and acceptance — Telegrams — Completion—Mutuality.]—On the 7th December, 1837, the plaintif telegraphed defendant asking for quotations for white and mixed oats delivered at Truro, N.S. On the same day the defendant replied offering white outs for 32c. per bushel, in bulk, and 3445c, in bags, and mixed outs for one-half cent less. On the following day the plaintiff telegraphed the defendant confirming purchase of 20,000 bushels of oats, at 32c. and mixed 3115c. hagged, even four bushels, in my bags." On the same day the defendant replied "Cannot confirm bagged—am asked half cent for bagging—bags extras." Plaintiff replied on the same day. "All right; book order; will have to pay for bagging—Heid (Mengher, J., dubitante) that the defendant by his last telegram, which was thus accepted, kept on foot the offer previously made, and that the telegram constituted an offer by the acceptance of which the parties reached the same terms. Summer v. Cole, 52 N. S. R. T(7); reversed, 30 S. C. R. 370, 20 C. L. 7, 324.

Offer in writing - Acceptance-Concluded agreement-Proviso as to formal con-tract.]-The defendants by advertisement invited tenders for lighting the city buildings for five years. The plaintiffs tendered to supply the necessary light for $945 per annum. The city council by resolution accepted the plaintiffs' tender, and the city clerk on the 18th May wrote to the plaintiffs notifythe 18th May wrote to the plaintiffs notify-ing them thereof, and adding:---The neces-sary contract will be prepared as soon as possible." No formal contract was ever signed by the parties. The plaintiffs supplied the defendants with gas, and sent in quarterly accounts for $236.25, which were paid by the defendants. The plaintiffs' president made inquiries about the formal contract from time to time from the city clerk and the chairman of the finance committee, and this state of things continued for nearly two years, when the plaintiffs wrote to the defendants, submitting that there was no existing contract, because the formal contract had never been executed, and also making certain complaints. They also claimed payment on the basis of a quantum meruit, contending that there was no binding contract: -Held, that by the offer of the plaintiffs and the acceptance of the defendants there was a concluded agreement; that the words at the end of the acceptance did not qualify the acceptance or leave it conditional on the execution of a contract. The conduct of the plaintiffs shewed that they did not so construe it, for they immediately after the acceptance entered upon and performed their part of the agreement without first requiring any formal contract, sent in their accounts for eighteen months on the basis of the contract being in existence, and were paid accordingly. Of-taxes Gas Co. v. City of Ottaxea, 21 C. L. T. 528

Parol evidence—Colleteral verbal contract.]—D, gave instructions in writing to H. respecting the sale of a coal mine on terms mentioned, and agreeing to pay a commission of five per cent. on the selling price, such commission to include all expenses. H. failed to effect a sale.—Held, affirming the judgment in 6 Brit. Col. L. R. 505, that in an action by H. to recover expenses incurred in an endenvour to make a sale, and reasonable remuneration, parol evidence was and sible to shew that the written instructions did not constitute the whole of the terms of the contract, but there had been a collateral oral agreement in respect to the expenses; and that the question as to whether or not there was an oral contract in rddition to what appeared in the written instructions was a question that ough properly to have been submitted to the jury. Dunemuir v. Lovenberg, Harris, and Uo., 20 C. L. T. 273, 30 S. C. R. 334.

Place of making — Cause of action — Jurisfiction,]—An action to recover a sum of money paid to his principal by an agent for the sale of goods on commission, in excess of what is due, cannot be brought at the place in this province where the money so paid was deposited to be transmitted by the bank, if the contract between the parties was not entered into at the same place, but in another province. Hamel v. Stapleton, 5 Que. P. R. 247.

Place of making—Correspondence—Acceptance of offer — Posting letter,] — Although a contract by correspondence is made at place where offer is accepted, the acceptance must be held to result from the deposit in office of letter which contains it. Therefore, an order set: from Montreal to New York, and simply noted by clerk of vendor on its arrival on 21st November, 1901, without any other manifestation of acceptance of it, is not a sale concluded on that day. Borgfield v. La Banque d'Hochelaue (1906), 28 Oue, S. C. 344.

Place of making — Correspondence — Superior Court—Territorial jurisdiction.] — A contract by correspondence is made at the place where the acceptance is sent, by letter or telegram, to the party making the offer. Schmidt Y. Croze, 5 Que, P. R. 361.

Place of making—Purchase of goods— Superior Court — Territorial jurisdiction.]— A contract made by telephone for the purchase of goods to be forwarded by the vendor, at the expense and risk of the purchaser. is not regarded as having been made at the place from which the goods are sent. 2. The receipt by the vendor of letters confirming the purchases made by telephone is not sufficient to give jurisdiction to the Court of the district in which these letters are received and from which the goods bought have been sent. Walker v, Gervais, 5 Que, P. R. 330.

Place of making—Sale of goods—Circuit Court — Territorial jurisdiction.] — Where an order is given to a travelling salesman to have sent by a carrier goods which are at the warehouse of the vendor and are afterwards delivered to the traveller to be forwarded to the purchaser, the contract is made at the place from which the goods are forwarded, and the Court of the district in which that place is situated has jurisdiction in an action for the price of goods so sold and delivered. Gravel v. Gendreau, 5 Que. P. R. 300.

Pollicitation — Offer — Acceptance— Correspondence — Conditions — Disagreement.]—An offer made with a view to a contract, or a pollicitation, does not in itself create a binding obligation. The acceptance of the other party is necessary, especially if the offer has been followed by correspondence respecting the conditions, as to which the parties have disagreed. Vallancourt v. La Sauvegarde, 32 Que. S. C. 516.

grams h Decemdefendant nd mixed the same vhite oats Proof of making—Telegraph—Original message—Destruction—Absence of proof Secondary evidenc—Admissibility of trans-cript received—Mistake—Agency of telegraph company-Failure to prove contract-Sale of goods-Refusal to accept-Non-delivery of part.]-Plaintiffs, dealers in canned fruits in Ontario, wrote to defeudants in British Col umbia a letter quoting prices. Proof of loss of this letter was given, and secondary evidence of its contents received. It concluded with a request to defendants to order by telegraph at expense of plaintiffs. Defendby telegraph at expense of painting. Derena-ants telegraphed an order for specified quan-titles of goods. The message as received by plaintiffs specified "three fifty Lombard plums," and plaintiffs shipped 350 cases of plums, and the other goods specified, with exception of 250 gallons of pears, which they proposed to send later. Defendants refused to accept goods shipped, because they said they had ordered only "fifty Lombard plums" and because the pears were not sent. Defendants alleged that the telegraph company had made a mistake in transmission of message, but the original message as delivered by defendants to company at Vancouver was not proved :---Held, that, assuming the mistake to be proved by proper evidence, de-fendants were not responsible for it, for, even if telegraph company were defendants' agents, the authority of agents was limited to transmission of message in terms in which defendants delivered it; and the document handed to the company for transmission was the original order which must be proved to establish contract. Henkel v. Pape, L. R. 6 Ex. 7. and Kinghorne v. Montreal Tele-graph' Co., 18 U. C. R. 60, followed.-The fact of destruction of message delivered by defendants to telegraph company was not shewn, and, though secondary evidence of contents was given by defendants, it was inadmissible, and there was therefore no evidence that transcript delivered to plaintiffs was incorrect. But the burden of proving contract was upon plaintiffs; and the admission of the transcript in evidence without objection did not render its terms binding upon defendants. It was not evidence of order given by defendants; it was relevant and admissible primary evidence to prove that order had in fact been transmitted and delivered to plaintiffs; but its admission in evidence did not excuse plaintiffs from making proof of order by production of original or by proof of its destruction or loss and secondary evidence of its contents. Moreover, although secondary evidence was given of a portion of contents of plaintiffs' letter quoting prices, plaintiffs had omitted to prove what were prices quoted, and this material element of a contract was lacking :--Held, also, that non-delivery of pears ordered would have justified defendants' rejection of other goods. Flynn v. Kelly (1906) 12 O. L. R. 440, 8 O. W. R. 120.

Purchase of goods-Correspondence-Acceptance-Neue terms.]-On the 2nd October, O. handed the company's purchasing agent the following letter:--"I can offer you thirty cars of timothy hay, at $10.50 per ton, on cars at Chewelah, subject to acceptance in five days delivery within six months. P.S.--I also agree to furnish seven cars of timothy hay at $10 per ton if above offer for 30 cars is accepted." On the 5th October the company mailed to O, an answer as fol-lows :--- "We would now inform you that we will accept your offer on timothy hay as per your letter to us of the second instant. Please ship as soon as possible the order you already have in hand, and also get off the ready have in mand, and also be as our seven cars at $10 as early as possible, as our stock is very low. Try and ship us three or four cars so as to catch the next freight here from Northport. We will advise you further as to the shipment of the 30 cars. Should we not be able to take it all in before your roads break up, we presume you will have no objection to allowing balance to remain over until the farmers can haul it in. Do the best you can to get some empty cars at once, as we must have three or four cars by next freight." This letter was received O. on the 8th October :-- Held, per Mc-Coll, C.J., and Martin, J., that the company's reply was not a complete acceptance. Per Walkem and Irving, JJ., that it was a complete acceptance. Oppenheimer v. Brackman and Ker Milling Co., 9 B. C. R. 343. See 32 S. C. R. 699, 1901, 5 Beel 135.

Reducing to writing-Substantial condition-Onus.] - When 2 persons have agreed that a contract which has been the subject that a contract which has been the subject of interview between them shall be reduced to writing, there is a presumption that they have made reducing to writing a substantial condition of formation of contract, and burden of proof is on the one who asserts the contrary. Dorion v, Bédard (1906), 27 Que. S. C. 193.

Sale of goods — Correspondence — Completion.] — Contract hy correspondence for sale of coal is concluded by offer of seller of a quantity at a given price and acceptance by purchaser, and a statement by latter in leiter of acceptance that he understands "the ton to be 2.240 lbs, and that he would prefer not to have more than 2 cars shipped at a time," is not one of essential terms to which a reply of seller is required to perfect the bargain. Keating v. Dillon (1906), 28 Que, S. C. 323.

Sale of goods—Principal and agent— Rescission.] — Action to recover price of scrap iron sold to defendant. Delivery was to be f. o. b at Megantic. As defendant's agent examined the iron there, defendant held liable and Quebec Court of Review dismissed an appeal. Metallic v. Sapery, 6 E. L. R. 201.

Sale of immovable-Written proposal to buy and acceptance-Substantial identity of both — Departure in acceptance.—Held, when a contract is formed by a written offer and a written acceptance, the acceptance need not repeat the identical words of the offer, but it must be in substance an acceptance of the offer exactly as made. Hence, to a proposal to buy an immovable for a stated price, payable at the owner's option, either cash or on terms, an answer by the letter that he will sell on the terms proposed, but with the added words, " the property to be taken as it is without the property to be taken as it is without any repairs,' the unqualified acceptance required for the formation of the contract of sale. St. Lawrence Investment Co. v. Levesque (1908), 18 Que. K. B. 289.

Sale of ship — Statute of Frands — Memorandum — Acceptance and receipt.]— Damages for breach of contract by defendants to sell and deliver to plaintiff a schooner. One of the defendants said that he had written to C, saying he had an offer of $150 from plaintiff for the schooner. As it did not say the offer was accepted, nor does it admit the contract, nor was there any evidence of acceptance or the receipt of the schooner or any evidence of part payment, there is no note or memorandum as required by the Statute of Frands. Action dismissed. Allen v, Graves, 6 E. L. R. 347, 43 N. S. R. 249.

Sub-contractor - Rights against principal-Promise-Burden of proof-Acceptance of order-Ratification - Bills of Exchange Act-Money had and received.]-Plaintif contracted with F., for the sum of $200, to do the plumbing of a house which F. had contracted to build for the defendant W. E. M. according to specifications which in-cluded plumbing. F. having failed to complete his contract, plaintiff sought to recover the amount due him from W. E. M., whose wife, M. M., was joined as a co-defendant, alleging that, before he undertook the work, he saw M. M., who was acting for W. E. M., in his absence, and that she agreed to pay him the $200 and keep it out of the contract: -Held, that the promise alleged, if made was gratuitous, and not legally binding; that it would take strong evidence as to consideration and as to the intent of the parties, to give the promise an effect which would make the party promising liable to pay plaintiff ; that the burden of proof was on plaintiff, and, the evidence on the point being contradictory and unsatisfactory, the finding of the trial Judge that plaintiff looked to defendants as his paymasters, and did the work for them and not for F., must be set aside .- After the work which plaintiff contracted to do had been completed, F. drew an order on M. M. for the amount to which plaintiff was entitled, which M. M. accepted in these terms : " Accepted by Mrs. Mathe - The trial Judge found that M. M. had no authority to accept so as to bind her husband, but that the latter had ratified his wife's act and was liable on the order .-Held, reversing this finding, that the acceptance, being one which purported to be binding only upon M. M., was incapable of ratifi-cation by the defendant W. E. M. and that the doctrine of ratification was inapplicable. -Held, further, that the document was governed by s. 23 of the Bills of Exchange Act, and that no one could be made liable on it as acceptor who had not signed it as such .--Held, further, that the action for money had and received was inapplicable to the case under consideration, such action lying only where a person has received money under circumstances rendering the receipt of it a re-ceipt by such person to the use of the plain-tiff. Craig v. Matheson, 32 N. S. R. 452.

Telegrams — Completion—Place of contract.]—A contract made by telegraph is not complete until the party who has made the offer has received from the party to whom it was made notification of his acceptance.—2. Such a contract is regarded as made at the place where it has been completed. Beaubien Pro'wce and Milling Co. v. Robertson, 18 Que, S. C. 429.

Want of consensus - Misrepresentation.] - The defendant, negotiating with the plaintiffs' agent for the purchase of a stacker was asked to sign an order for one. agent filled up a form of order, and the defendant said to him: "Now, if there is anything in this order that binds me to keep I won't sign it." To which the agent replied that there was not, that he could take the stacker out and keep it ten days, and if it did not give satisfaction he need not settle for it, but could bring it in and leave it on the agent's platform at B. The defendant then signed the order without reading it, as he was in a hurry to catch a train. By the terms of the order only one day's trial of the machine was allowed, and the buyer, if it did not give satisfaction, was to return it to the plaintiffs at C. There was a printed direction at the top of the order to give the purchaser a duplicate, but none was given to him. On receipt of the machine the defendant tried it. and, not finding it to work satisfactorily, returned it within ten days to the agent at B. At the trial the agent admitted that, at the time the order was signed, he Held, that there was no such consensus ad idem between the parties as is necessary to create a binding contract, and that the verdict of the County Court Judge in favour of the defendant in an action by the plaintiffs for the price of the machine should be sus-107 the price of the machine should be sub-tained, and the plaintiffs' appeal dismissed with costs. Contracts gnaranteed by a third party having for its object to stiffe a criminal prosecution for a conversion of funds and to shield the culprit, are null as based on illegal consideration. Montreal Fire Assince. Co, v. Therrin (1900), 18 Que. K. B. 490.

Dominion Lands Act — Assignment of interest in homestead before patent issued— Invalidity of agreement.] — The defendant made a homestead entry of land, and afterwards, finding cement upon it, made an arreement with the plaintiff to give him a one-half interest in all cement deposits on the land. The plaintiff claimed a declaration that he was the owner of a half interest in the lands, and that the defendant should be ordered to convey to him. The defendant raised the plaintiff was illegal and void, being in contravention of the provisions of the Dominion Lands Act, R. S. C. c. 54. s. 42, as mended by 60 & 61 V. c. 29, s. 5:—Held, that a nonsuit should be entered, without costs. The invalidity of the agreement went

In the present case the point involved was not merely a penalty imposed upon an infringement of some provision of the statute, nor a mere prohibition; the statute says positively that the act in question, viz, every assignment or transfer of homestead rights and every agreement to assign or transfer any homestead right, or any part thereof, after patent obtained, made or entered into before the issue of the patent, "shall be null and void." Cumming v. Cumming, 24 C. L. T. 406.

Gaming contract — Promissory note— Chose in action — Assignment — "Common gaming house"—Hotel —Game of chance in private room—Criminal Code, s. 226—Imperial Statute, 9 Anne e. 14, not in force in Nova Scotia. Robinson v. McNeil, 4 E. L. R. 134.

Graming transaction — Intention.] — A contract, to be a gaming transaction, must be so in the intention of both the parties to it. The intention to gamble of one of them, eren though known to the other, does not alter the nature of the contract. Brosseau v. Bergevin, 27 Que, S. C. 510.

Hiring conveyances — Parliamentary elections — Evidence — Ratification.] — The plaintiff, a livery stable keeper, sued the defendant on an account for horses and rigs furnished by him to the defendant, who was a candidate at an election for a member of the House of Commons of Canada. The evidence shewed that to the knowledge of the plaintiff his account was for horses and rigs furnished by him to the defendant during the time he was a candidate and solely for the purposes of and in connection with the election :- Held, following Luke v. Perry, 12 C. P. 424, that the contract of hiring was an executory one and that it came therefore within the terms of s. 131 of the Dominion Elections Act, which is incorporated with the North-West Territories Representation Act, by 57 & 58 V. c. 15, s. 10, and that the contract was therefore void in law, and the plaintiff could not recover. The plaintiff also sued the defendant on an account for horses and rigs furnished by one P., some of them to the defendant, others to the defendant's wife, and some to both of them, which account P. had assigned to the plaintiff. These horses and rigs were not clearly shewn to have been furnished in connection with the election, though the evidence led to a strong suspicion to that effect :-- Held, that when the defendant seeks to rely upon provisions of the statute to avoid liability upon an executory contract alleged to have referred to or arisen out of an election, nothing should be intended in favour of such a defence, and it must clearly appear that such contract did refer to an election held under the Act. Evidence of ratification discussed. Parslow v. Cochrane, 4 Terr. L. R. 312.

Illegality — Betting on race tracks — Agreement—Incorporated racing association with bookmaker — Criminal Code, ss. 227, 235 — Lawful bookmaking — Peripatetic bookmaker—Booth for payment of beta—Injunction.] — Action to restrain defendants from making a contract with a bookmaker. By the terms of the contract the bookmaker was allowed to carry on his business on defendant's race track if he carried on his betting operations at no fixed spot, but kept moving around. He could pay his bets at a booth. Injunction refused as nothing lilegal in such a contract. Fraser v. Victoria, 11 W. L. R. 499.

Immorality — Bawdy house—Part performance—Locus panitentia—Rescission before execution. Perkins v. Jones (N.W.T.). 1 W. L. R. 41.

Indemnity - Consideration-Withdrawal of criminal charge - Invalidity of agree-ment.]-A charge laid before a magistrate against a person for procuring from the plaintiff, by false pretences, the sum of $10, was, by direction of the magistrate withdrawn, in consideration of an agreement entered into between the plaintiff and the defendants. whereby the plaintiff was to withdraw from a certain syndicate and forfeit the $10 paid. the defendants indemnifying him against all liabilities of the syndicate. Judgment having been recovered against the plaintiff for a liability of the syndicate, he brought an action against the defendants for indemnity :--Held, that the agreement for the withdrawal of the criminal charge was- void and could not be enforced, and that the plaintiff's action was not maintainable. Keir v. Leeman. G. G. B. 308, 9 Q. B. 371, specially considered Morgan v. McFee, 18 O. L. R. 30, 13 O. W. R. 93, 14 Can. Crim. Cas. 308.

Intoxicating liquors—Canada Temper-ance Act—Purchase by agent — Refusal of principal to pay.] — The plaintiff agreed. subject to the general control and supervision of the defendant, to act as manager of the defendant's hote!, situate in the city of Mone ton, where the Canada Temperance Act is in force. At the request of the defendant, the plaintiff purchased, in his own name, in the city of St. John, intoxicating liquor, be supplied to the hotel guests and sold at the bar. There was no proof that the ven-dor knew that the Canada Temperance Act was in force in Moncton :- Held, that, hav ing knowledge that the liquor was to be disposed of contrary to law, the plaintiff could not recover from the defendant on her promise, express or implied, to pay or indemnify Wil him against payment for the liquor. Wil-kins v. Wallace, 2 E. L. R. 460, 38 N. B. R. 80.

Lottery-Recovery back of moneys paid -Statute. - The respondent, having obtained from the Lieutenaut-Governor of the Province of Quebec, authorised to that effect by a statute of the legislature, the privilege of carrying on a lottery to assist a work recognised by the legislature, a being a laudable and useful public work, delegated his powers to the appellant, on the condition that the latter should pay him $5,000 per year. The appellant carried on the lottery for two years, realising considerable profits, and during this time paid the respondent $10,000. The carrying on of the lottery having been declared illegal, the appellant sued to recover back the $10,000 withh he had paid to the respondent. Both parties admitted the unconstitutionality of the statute by virtue of which the lottery had been authorised :--Held, that the payment in question having been made voluntarily and not by mistake by the appellant, who had made considerable profits by virtue of his contract with the respondent, the appellant, who alleged the illegality of the contract, could not, the contract having been executed on both sides in good faith, recover the sums which he had so paid. Brault v. L'Association St. Jean Baptiste, 12 Que, K. B. 124. (Cf. 30 S. C. R. 598, 31 S. C. R. 172.)

See Beel 1901-5, col. 136.

Non-recovery back of money paid and cancellation of notes-Impounding of notes.]-The Court will not intervene, at the instance of a party to an illegal contract, to enable him to obtain relief from the exigencies thereof, - W., having been threatened with a criminal prosecution for having sexual intercourse with a young girl under 16 years of age, effected a settlement whereby cash payments were made and promissory notes given by him, On his death, he having in no way repudiated the settlement during his lifetime, his administrator brought an action for the recovery of the money paid and the cancellation of the notes ; -Held, that the action was not maintainable, but the notes having been filed in Court, it was ordered that they, being illegal and void as against public policy, should remain on the files until further order. Wood v. Adams, 10 O. L. R. 631, 6 O. W. R. 407.

Oral agreement-Proof of terms-Right to recover-Subsequent agreement in writing.]-The defendant agreed to pay the plaintiff $150 as wages or compensation for his services on a fishing voyage, and afterwards persuaded him to sign articles for the purpose of inducing other men to join the vessel fendant, but that it was made for another and different purpose .- Per Russell, J .- As the plaintiff made out his case on the oral and valid contract between himself and the defendant, without having to prove any fact shewing fraud or illegality, he must succeed on that contract. For the same reason the defendant must fail in his defence, which could not be made out without exposing an illegal transaction to which he was a party. Smith v. Haughn, 38 N. S. R. 153.

Performance in unlawful place Municipal regulations — By-laws — Music halls — Licensing.] — Cafés-chantants-that is to say, establishments in which intoxicating liquors are sold and in which vocal or instrumental music, or both, are furnished with the object of attracting passers-by -- being prohibited by the by-laws of the city of Montreal, a contract by which the services of a person have been retained to provide music in such a café-chantant is void, because it has for its object a thing prohibited by law, and, therefore, a musician who has been dismissed cannot maintain an action for wrongful dismissal, - 2. By-law No. 236 of the city of Montreal, which imposes a license fee of $50 a year upon museums, halls for concerts, dances, theatrical performances, and other amusements, does not apply to cafés-chantants, or drinking shops where music is given for the purpose of attracting passersby, in such a way as to withdraw them from the prohibition of by-law No. 36 of the same city. Morel v. Morel, 19 Que, S. C. 123.

Prete-nom agreement - Obligations of the mandator - Recourse of third parties against him.]-A prête-nom agreement is not in itself illegal, and third parties have no recourse against the mandator unless he led them to believe that they had contracted with him in spite of the intervention of the préte-nom. L'efebvre v. Massicotte (1910), 38 Que. S. C. 249.

Promissory note - Illegal consideration—Five cases under BILLS OF EXCHANGE AND PROMISSORY NOTES, cols, 492 and 493.

Action involving in-Public morals decent matter - Striking out objectionable causes of action-Judgment-Form of-Dismissal of action-Res judicata-Costs.]-On the trial of an action containing three different causes of action, one of which was an action for moneys had and received, another for damages for assault and false imprisonment, and a third for damages for procuring the plaintin to enter a house of prostitution, the Judge, after reading the plaintiff's examination for discovery, came to the conclusion that the evidence disclosed an illegal contract under which the defendants were to receive a part of the moneys obtained by the plaintiff while engaged in prostitution, and that the action involved the taking of an account in respect thereof, and was of an indecent character and unfit to be dealt with, and he dismissed it out of the Court of his own motion; the formal judgment stating that "this Court does of its own motion and without adjudicating as between the plaintiff and defendants on the matters in dispute between them, order that this action be dismissed out of this Court, with costs:" -Held, that the order dismissing the action would have precluded the plaintiff from again suing in respect of any of the causes of action included in the statement of claim, and that the plaintiff should have been allowed to prove her case in respect to those causes of action against which there was no objection; and that the respondent who supported the judgment on appeal must pay the costs of the appeal. Guilbault v. Brothier, 24 C. L. T. 342, 10 B. C. R. 449.

Sale of club charter-Club license to sell liquor-Evasion of law-Failure of consideration - Declaration of nullity-Costs.] -Letters patent of incorporation of a socalled club and a license to sell liquor issued to it, as such, when in reality an individual alone is interested in the matter, as lessee of the premises, purchaser of the furniture, fixtures and stock, and as sole beneficiary of the profits, the whole as a scheme to evade the law respecting the more expensive license and stricter regulations imposed on tavernkeepers, confer no rights that can be the lawful consideration of a contract. A sale, therefore, of any such pretended rights cannot be enforced, and no action will lie to recover the price thereof. Sale of gas-Gas Inspection Act-Certificate of inspector—Posting up—Testing place — Penalties — Notice — Local inspector,] -(1) Section 34 of the Gas Inspection Act R. S. C. 1906, c. 87, only makes the sale of gas illegal after notice to the undertaker of the location of the testing place prescribed by the Department of Inland Revenue and until the connections specified in that section are made .--- 2. Section 44, requiring the posting up of the certificates of tests made by the inspector, does not become operative till s. 34 has been acted on and a testing place prescribed and notified by the undertaker,— 3. The penalties provided for by ss. 59 and 60 for failure to procure and post up the certificates of tests required by s. 44 and for selling gas before connections have been made with the testing place, etc., are not incurred when s. 44 has not become operative by notification to the undertaker of the prescribing of a testing place .- Per Phippen, J.A .- Sec tions 34 and 44 are both subsidiary to s. 31. which limits the obligations therein imposed to undertakers "in any city, town, or place for which there is an inspector of gas." and the provisions of ss. 31 to 47 inclusive are not applicable to places for which there is no local inspector. Carberry Gas Co. v. Hallett, 8 W. L. R. 119, 17 Man. L. R. 525.

Sale of goods-Supplying liquor for sale in county where Canada Temperance Act in force-Principal and agent-Knowledge of principal. Ross v. Coade, 4 E. L. R. 51.

Sale of liquor-Place of completion-Prohibited sale — Knowledge of vendor.]-The plaintiffs, who carried on business in Glasgow, in Scotland, as whisky distillers, in appointed sales agents at Halifax, N.S., with authority restricted to receiving and transmitting orders; the acceptance of such orders and forwarding of the goods being in the discretion of the plaintiffs' officers in Glasgow. The defendant, who carried on a trade in liquors in Nova Scotia, without the license required by the Liquor License Act, R. S. N. S. 1900, c. 100, placed orders, by written memoranda, with these agents, which orders were transmitted to the plaintiffs at Glasgow. On receipt of the orders, the plaintiffs shipped the whisky thereby ordered o the defendant, through common carriers at Glasgow, to be forwarded to him at the addresses he gave in Nova Scotia, and, after he had received the goods, passed drafts upon him for the price, which he accepted. The drafts were dishonoured at maturity, and, upon being sued for the amount, the defendant pleaded that the contract was void, having been entered into in Nova Scotia with the object of enabling him to make illicit re-sales of the whisky in a locality where the Canada Temperance Act was in force, and in contravention of the provisions of that Act, and of the local License Act prohibit-Act, and of the local License Act promoting such sales on pain of fine and imprisonment: — Held, affirming the judgment appealed from, 37 N. S. R. 482, Idingion, J., dissenting, that the contract was not completed until the acceptance of the orders and delivery of the goods to the defendant at Glasgow, in Scyland, and that the plaintiffs were entitled to recover, as there was no evidence to shew actual knowledge upon their part of any intention to contravene the statutes. Bigelow v. Craigellachie-Gleniver Distillery Co., 26 C. L. T. 186, 37 S. C. R. 55.

Simulation — Nullity — Parties.] — Simulation not being an absolute cause of nullity, a contract tainted with it may be declared void as against the person who invokes it, without bringing before Court the other contracting parties. Desmarsis v, Léceille (1909), 14 Que, K, B, 382.

Statutory prohibition-Penel statut: - Wholesale purchase - Liquor license -Guarantee-Validity of-Porfeiture.] - An agreement guaranteeing payment of the price of intoxicating liquors sold contrary to satutory prohibition is of no effect. The imposition of a penalty for the contravention of a statute avoids a contract entered into against the provisions of the statute. Brown v. Moore, 22 C. L. T. 196, 32 S. C. R. 03.

Threshing wheat - Weights and Measures Act-Burden of proof-Voluntary payment-Appropriation of payments - Appeal -Question of fact.]-The chief part of the plaintiff's claim was for the price of threshing oats and wheat for the defendant, and the defence was that the quantities were ascer tained in a manner prohibited by the Weights and Measures Act, R. S. C. c. 104, and that therefore the plaintiff could not recover. It appeared from the evidence that the oats threshed had been measured by the bag, but it also appeared from a statement rendered to plaintiff by defendant that he had cre-dited the plaintiff with the amount of his account for threshing the oats, and charged the plaintiff with certain items dated prior to any other credit to the plaintiff and amounting to about the same as the price of threshing the oats :--Held, following the rule in Clayton's Case, 1 Mer. 610, that the defendant had appropriated the amount of his charges in settlement of the price of threshing the oats, and, following Hughes v. Chambers, 14 Man. L. R. 163, 22 Occ. N. 333, that he could not now set off such amount against the price of threshing wheat. As to the threshing of the wheat, the bargain was that the defendant was to pay by car measure-ments, if it was clean, if not, then by bag measurement, neither of which modes would be legal under the statute; but the defendant in the statement rendered to the plaintiff had credited him with the threshing of 4,597.20 bushels of wheat at 514 cents per bushel. The defendant gave no evidence, and there was no express testimony that the wheat had been measured by the bag, but the trial Judge held that the proper inference was that the measurement had been by the bag, and he dismissed the plaintiff's claim :--Held, follow ing Hanbury v. Chambers, 10 Man. L. R. 167. 14 Occ. N. 321, that the trial Judge was not bound to draw such inference in a case where it would enable the defendant to evade payment of an honest claim; that, as there was no conflict of testimony, the appellate Judge was free to follow his own views as to the conclusions to be drawn from the evidence that the defence raised should not prevail without strict proof of a violation of the Act; and that there was no such proof in this case. Fox v. Allen, 23 C. L. T. 28, 14 Man. L. R. 358.

Trade combination - Agreement between dealers to maintain prices and prevent competition-Division of profits-Restraint of trade-Common law rights-Criminal Code, sees. 496 (b), 498 (d).]-An agreement be-tween the plaintiff and defendants, both dealers in junk, to prevent competition and to maintain fixed prices to be paid for junk, the tendency of which was to lower the prices of junk purchased from the public, and pos-sibly to increase the prices of junk sold to the consumer, with a further provision for a division of profits, was held, not void at common law as being in restraint of trade.-Collins v. Lack, 4 App. Cas. 674, followed :- And held, not a violation of sec. 496 (b) of the Criminal Code .- Rex v. Gage, 18 Man. L. R. 175. 7 W. L. R. 564, followed :- And held (Richards, J.A., dissenting), that the agreement between the two dealers who practically monopolised the junk trade of Western Canada, was not an agreement to unduly prevent and, was not an agreement to indusp prevent or lessen competition within the meaning of s. 498 (d) of the Code.—Per Howell, C.J.A., and Cameron, J.A., that when Par-liament used the word "unduly" in describing the restraints of trade which thereby became criminal, the intention was not to make contracts unlawful which, at common law, would be enforced in the Courts between parties had the statute not been passed .--Review of the authorities, Judgment of Mathers, C.J.K.B., 14 W. Trade combination-Putting in default -Obligation not to do-Annual penalty-How far exigible-Insolvency-Procedure-Contestation by curator for personal motives -Costs.]-An agreement whereby a liquor dealer undertakes, for a period of nine years, to purchase his liquors and eigarettes from two particular merchants only, is not null as being a contract in restraint of trade .-It creates an obligation not to do (i.e., to not buy elsewhere), and, consequently, the penalty of $500 per annum, the amount agreed upon as liquidated damages, becomes exigible from the date of a breach of the contract and without putting in default.—In the event of the insolvency of the promissor, the creditor cannot claim the penalty for a period longer than from the date of the breach to the date of the abandonment by the promissor of his estate.--The curator of an insolvent estate who contests a judicial proceeding for personal motives and in his own interest should, in case he is unsuccessful, be personally condemned to the costs. Trade union—Combination in restraint of trade—Validity—Public policy—Penalty.] —An agreement by employers, made in anticipation of a strike to be ordered by the union to which their workmen belong, to lock out any of the latter who are members of it, if the strike takes place, is valid, and does not constitute a combination in restraint of trade or of the freedom of contracting. Therefore, a further undertaking of the parties that any one of them who breaks the arreement shall forfeit to trustees a sum of $500, as unliquidated damages, is binding, and an action will lie by the trustees to recover that sum from any defaulting party. Unduly lessening competition-Trade Association-Criminal Code, sec. 520 (d)-"Cheque conditional deposit."]-The Brantford Coal Importers' Association was an or-ganization composed of all the coal dealers in the town of Brantford. They had agreed to sell coal at a fixed price, and for breach of such agreement were to forfeit $1 for each and every ton of coal so sold. Among other contracts put up at auction among the members of the association was one for the public schools of the city, and the defendant was declared the purchaser thereof at $212, and on the 19th June, 1901, he forwarded his cheque to plaintiff for that amount, it being marked "cheque conditional deposit;" the condition being referred to in the letter ac-companying the cheque as follows: "That the contract for the city schools is to be awarded to me, and the same commenced and binding tenders received on the 20th day of rent month. Defendant was awarded the contract and was paid the contract price fixed by the association, but owing to a disagree-ment arising the defendant notified the bank not to pay the cheque. Action brought upon the cheque. Defence: 1. That the cheque was given conditionally. 2. That the Brantford Coal Importers' Association was an orranisation coming within sec. 520 of the Criminal Code, and that the transactions out of which the alleged cause of action arose were illegal, and plaintiff could not recover. On appeal the trial judgment was reversed and defence held good, the Divisional Court finding that there was an agreement by the members of the association to "unduly lessen competition in the sale of coal," and that the association was an illegal one within sec. 520 of the Criminal Code, therefore plaintiff could not recover. Hately v. Elliott, 5 O. W. R. 261, 9 O. L. R. 185

Unlawful consideration-Public policy -Monopoly-Trade combination-Interest-Judicial notice-Laws of another province.] -Action to recover advances with interest under an agreement which defeated the policy of the Government of Ontario seeking the cheap manufacture of binder twine, obtained a monopoly, and increased the price of its production. The defence was the general issue, breach of contract, and an incidental demand of damages for the breach. The judgment appealed from maintained the action and dismissed the incidental demand, giving the plaintiffs interest according to the terms of the contract:-Held, that, under the pro-visions of the Civil Code, the moneys so advanced could be recovered back, but that in-terest before action could not be allowed thereon, as the law merely requires that the parties should be replaced in the positions they respectively occupied before the illegal transactions took place; Taschereau and Usurious transactions—Commission of five per cent, besides interest—Customary allowance for transacting business.]—Where a merehant supplied goods, money, promissory notes, and other commercial instruments to country customers and where accounts, returns and settlements were made from time to time at their convenience with produce from the upper country, transferred by vessels and barges, the Privy Council—Held, that a commission of five per cent, on all advances besides interest, under the circumstances, was not an usurious transaction, but a customary allowance for the trouble and inconvenience of transacting the business. 11. NOVATION.

Acceptance of note of stranger on accennt of debt — Receipt-Lidelity of debton].—Intention to effect noration is not apparent from the fact that the note of a a third party was accepted on account of the debt, where a receipt was given as follows: "Received from J. V. (the debtor) the note of M. S. & Sons for $100 at 30 days, on account of pony and buzz planer." If the parties to a written contract enter orally into a new agreement to be substituted for it, such new agreement to be substituted for it, such new agreement, although, by reason of the Statute of Frauds, it cannot be enforced, will have the effect of discharging and cancelling the written contract.—Goss v. Lord Nugent, 5 B. & Ad. 65; Morgan v. Bain, L. R. 10 C. P. 15, and Ogle v. Lord Vane, L. R. 3 Q. B. 222, followed.—2. In such case neither party can enforce the new agreement or recover damages as for a brench of the written contract.—3. Any money or other consideration, however, that may have been paid or given under the substituted agreement by one of the parties to the other may be recovered back or its value sade for by such party. Liability for benefit received.] - Plaintiff, a traveller for a commercial house prior to 1st September, 1906, con-tinued in their employ until January, 1907, when defendants took over the firm's assets and liabilities as they stood on the 31st August, 1906. Plaintiff continued in the employ of defendants, who filled orders sent in by plaintiff. Defendants sent plaintiff a statement of orders taken by him from 1st September, 1906, including a balance of $65, then due him. When plaintiff quit the employ of defendants they disputed their liability for orders sent in by plaintiff prior to January, 1907 :- Held, that there was a clear novation and substitution of the liability of the old firm by the new. The defendants received the benefit of plaintiff's work, recognised and adopted it by filling his work, recommend and adopted it by mining insorders, and should pay whatever under a preference is found due him. Judgment of Latchford, J., 9th March, 1909, affirmed, McGregor v. Van Allan Co. (1909), 14 O. W. R. 896, 1 O. W. N. 135.

Order to pay money — Sub-contractor — Order on other — Evidence — Hill of archange.1—T, was contractor for building a house and F, sub-contractor for the plumbing work. When F,'s work was done he obtained an order from T. on the owner in the following terms: "Please pay F, the sum of $705, and charge to my account on building. Lucknow street." F, took the order to the owner, who agreed to pay if the architect certified that the work had been performed. F, and T, saw the owner and architect together shortly after, and, on being informed by the latter that the account was proper and there were funds to pay it, the owner told F, that it would b all right and retained the order when F, went away. F, filed no mechanic's lien, but other sub-contractors did the next day, and T, assigned in insolvency. In an action by F, against the owner Held, Davies, J, disserting, that there was a novation of the debt due from the owner to T; that it wan to merely an agreement by the owner to answer to F, for T,'s debt, nor was the order to be treated as a bill of exclandar LS, C, R, 30, 6 E, LR, R.²

13. STATUTE OF FRAUDS.

Absence of writing - Novation.]-M. who had agreed with the defendants and a number of other lumber manufacturers to drive down their logs for them, the defendants' contract being an oral one, arranged with the plaintiff to act for him : the obligation to drive the defendants' logs to continue to a named date, for which the plaintiff was to be paid a specified sum, and if M. did not then arrive and take over the drive, the plaintiff was to continue it and to be paid a specified sum per day for himself and those employed by him. M. did not arrive, and the drive was continued by the plaintiff. Subsequently, M. having some difficulty in paying his men, an oral agreement was en-tered into between M. and the defendants, whereby in consideration of M. assigning over to them the amounts due him by the defendants and other manufacturers, the defendants undertook to continue the drive and to pay the existing as well as the indebtedness thereafter to be incurred, the plaintiff being instructed and agreeing to continue the drive on these terms.—Held, by Robertson, J., that there was a new contract founded on new and substantial consideration, so that the Statute of Frauds did not apply. On appeal to a Divisional Court the judgment was affirmed, on the grounds (1) of novation, or (2), even if M.'s indebtedness still continued, the moneys coming to him having been assigned to the defendants upon their express promise to pay the indebtedness thereout, and the plaintiff having continued the drive on such terms, there was a binding obligation to pay him, and that in either view the Statute of Frauds did not apply. Bailey v. Gillies, 22 C. L. T. 289, 4 O. L. R. 182, 1 O. W. R. 325.

Agreement to give farm at death— Consideration of taking care of deceased— Plaintiffs entered into possession—Equivocal effect of—Statute of Frauds—Part performance of contract—Parol evidence—Admissibility.1—Plaintiffs brought action to enforce an alleged parol agreement between T. Elvin, deceased, and plaintiffs, that if they would come and live at his home and work his c.c.L—S0 farm during his lifetime, he would give the plaintift, Margie Coulter (his nicee), the farm in question. At trial the action was dismissed with costs.—Divisional Court held, that the circumstance of the plaintiffs being in possession of the farm of the deceased was not unequivocally referable to such an agreement as alleged by plaintiffs, and, therefore, was not necessarily evidence of any such contract. In explanation of such possession it was not necessarily evidence of the existence of some other contract than the one entiting plaintiff George Coulter, to possession.—That inasmuch as the possion relied upon was capable of explanation, without reference to the alleged agreement, parol evidence was indmissible to shew the existence of such an agreement, and that the Statute of Frauds was an effectual answer to the plaintiffs' claim, Action and appeal dismissed with costs. Coulter V, N. 678.

Agreement to answer the debt or defailt of another—Defence to action—Stat-ute of Frauds, s. 5—Costs.]—An action by plaintiffs arainst Williscroft, H. F. Murphy and J. E. Murphy, alleged to be trading as the Tobermory Lumber Co., and against said company and J. E. Murphy to recover $4,206.01, balance of price of certain timber sold by plaintiffs to Williscroft and H. F. Murphy. J. E. Murphy was not registered as a partner in Tobermory Lumber Co. Default judgment for $4,206.01 was entered natist in the company, J. E. Williscroft and R. F. Murphy. The issue was between plaintiffs and J. E. Murphy. He paid into Court $942 as in full of plaintiffs' claim against him, but plaintiffs claimed the whole balance of $4,206.01 on the ground that J. E. Murphy agreed to give in payment the joint promissory note in question, and would himself become directly responsible to plaintiffs for the price of the timber. In answer thereto de-fendant pleaded the Statute of Frauds.— Latchford, J., held, that plaintiffs were en-titled to judgment against J. E. Murphy for $940.37, and their costs of action to the date of payment in and to have a charge therefor upon the fund in Court .- That the Statute of Frauds, s. 5, was a complete though dishonourable defence, and the action upon the issues other than those connected with the J. E. Murphy, but in the circumstances without costs. Isle of Coves Hunt Club y. without costs. Isle of Coves Hunt Club v. Williscroft (1911), 18 O. W. R. 344, 2 O. W. N. 558.

the Old French Law, which formerly prevailed in Canada, and was laid down in the Ordonnance de Moulens, passed in the year 1566, and subsequently altered by the Ordonnance of 1667, whereby parol evidence was excluded from the proof of all contrats or matters, exceeding the sum of 100 livres, except in the case of accident, or where there was a commencement in writing; and that the English law, as to the admission of parol evidence in commercial matters, was substituted. A contract entered into by persons in Canada with the Government Commissioner, to supply stone for making a canal, is a commercial matter, and is to be proved by the English law, An agreement entered into by a contractor to share in the profits of the undertaking, although the contract was not capable of being completed within a year, is not such an agreement, as by the Statute of Frauds, 29 Car. II., c. 3, s. 4, is required to be in writing, but may be proved by parol evidence. McKay v. Rutherford (1848), C. R. 1 A. C. 312.

Contract of service — Performance within a year,]—A verbal contract for service, under which the defendant was to receive "$700 a year, to be increased per year until it reached $1.000," is a contract not to be performed within a year, and is within the provisions of the Statute of Frauds. Fairgrieve V. O'Mullin, 40 N. S. R. 215.

Failure to state terms - Nudum pactum-Conditions - Impossibility of performance.]-The plaintiff, having recovered judgment for $542.50 against O'B., issued a garnishee order against the defendant, and an issue having been ordered the trial Judge held that the agreements between O'B, and the defendant, by virtue whereof the alleged indebtedness arose, did not comply with the Statute of Frauds, inasmuch as the parties had omitted to state therein the terms actually agreed upon, and decided the issue in favour of the defendant :-- Held, on appeal, that the promise made by the defendant and now sought to be enforced against him was nudum pactum .--- 2. That O'B. and the defendant in reality came to an agreement in ignorance of the fact that its performance, in view of the conditions it was contingent upon, was impossible. Manley v. Mackin-tosh. 10 B. C. R. 84.

Interest in land - Part performance-Evidence.]-M. leased land to his two sons S. and W., of which 50 acres was to be in the sole tenancy of W. In an action by M. against S. for waste by cutting wood on the 50 acres, the defence set up was that by parol agreement, in consideration of S. conveying 100 acres of his land to W., he was to have a deed of the 50 acres, and having so conveyed to W., he had an equitable title in the latter. M. admitted the agreement, but denied that the land to be conveyed to S. was the 50 acres :- Held, per Nesbitt and Idington, JJ., that the conveyance to W. was a part performance of the parol agreement, and the Statute of Frauds was no an-swer to the defence. The majority of the Court held that, as the possession of the 50 acres was referable to the lease as well as to the parol agreement, part performance was not proved, and affirmed the judgment appealed from in favour of the plaintiff (37 N. S. Reps. 23) on this and other grounds. Meisner v. Meisner, 25 C. L. T. 101, 36 S. C. R. 34.

Master and servant-Employment for an indefinite term-Damages, 1-A sub-contractor to employ a person as a salesman so long as the employer's contract with third persons might remain in force, that contract being terminable at any time, is not within the Statute of Frauds, for the sub-contract may or may not continue for a year. Such a sub-contract does not come within s. 5 of the Master and Servants Act, R. S. O. 1897 c, 157. The employers' contract came to an end by the voluntary dissolution of their firm :-Held, that this voluntary dissolution operated as a wrongful dismissal of the plaintiff under his sub-contract, and that, although the probable duration of the contract and consequently of his sub-contract would have been, apart from the dissolution of partnership, quite uncertain, he was entitled to sub-Santa and not merely nominal damages. Glenn v. Rudd, 22 C. L. T. 113, 3 O. L. R. 422, 1 O. W. R. 116.

Memorandum — Signature—Conflicting evidence.] — Action for damages for breach of a contract for the delivery of four. The writings relied on were: (1) paper signed by plaintiffs and addressed to defendants, to enter order for 2,000 barrels more with delivery as required. (2) The entry made in the contract book of the defendant in these words: "1904, Dec. 30. By 2,000 P. Rose $4,10—cash discount of one per cent." This appeared as one of a series of orders under heading on the page of Nasmith Co., and formed an item of an account which began in the book in 1899. On the fly sheet of the book was stamped the name of defendants with words in red ink above it, "New account, 1st June, 1902:"—Held, that the contract sued on by the plaintiffs was not proved against defendants according to the requirements of the Statute of Frauds. Nasmith Co. v. Alexander Bronen Milling and Elevetor Co., 4 O, W. R. 451, 25 C. L. T. 38, 9 O. L. R. 21.

Oral agreement for use of roadway -Part performance-Evidence - Unsigned draft of agreement.] - Where the defendants' predecessors in title induced and allowed the plaintiff's predecessors in title to remove their house and fence and give up their land for the purpose of improving the entrance to the street in the way they wished, there was sufficient part performance to take an oral agreement for the use of a roadway, though relating to an interest in land, out of the Statute of Frauds; and unsigned drafts of such agreement containing alterations providing for the part maintenance of the way by the plaintiff's predecessors in title, which obligation is entirely disclaimed by the plaintiff, are not admissible in evidence where they were not shewn to the parties to the agreement when giving evidence, and no explana-tion as to them was sought from the parties. Oral agreement to lease—Damages for breach. McNellen v. Torrens, 40 N. S. R. 626.

Oral promise-Payment of debt - Consideration - Assignment of chose in action - Notice.] - S., in consideration of B.'s giving him a confession of judgment and other security for a debt due by B, to S., gave B, an oral promise to pay two promissory notes of B. in favour of A. B. assigned his right of action against S. to the plaintiff, the executrix of A .:- Held, that the promise by S. to pay the notes was an original promise, founded on a new consideration, and was not a promise to pay the debt of another within the Statute of Frauds, and need not be in writing. That the assignment was good under the Supreme Court Act, 1897, s. 150 (N.B.), and the plaintiff might bring an action without notice of the assignment before action brought. Allen v. Shehyn, 35 N. Part performance—Damages for breach —Debtor and creditor — Judgment — Agreement for settlement between partice—Consideration — Promissory note — Subsequent pard agreement — Enforcement—Statute of Frauds.] — Action for specific performance and damages for breach of contract:—Held, that under the evidence the agreement as alleged in the statement of claim, had been made and entered into between the parties, but as agreement not in writing, under Statute of Frauds, action must fail. Payment of a portion of the purchase money cannot be treated as part performance. Gass v. Dickie, 7 E. L. R. 104.

Promise to become answerable for debt of another - Form of action Pleading.]-In an action against the defendants M. and G. for work done and materials provided by the plaintiff for the defendants, at the defendants' request, the evidence shewed that the defendant G. entered into a contract with the defendant M. for the building of a house, and that the defendant M. employed the plaintiff to do the work of painting and glazing. M. failed to make payments to the plaintiff as agreed, and the plaintiff thereupon went to G., who told him to go ahead and he would see him paid :--Held, that, as there was no evidence to shew that the defendant M. was to be discharged, the promise made by the defendant G, was within s. 4 of the Statute of Frauds, and, not having been made in writing, could not be enforced :-Held, that, in view of the form of action, there was no necessity for pleading the statute, and that judgment was rightly given in favour of the defendant G. Promise to convey land on marriage —Specific performance — Statute of Frauds —Intended marriage—Postponement on account of insanity of one of the parties—Part wrformance. Freel v. Royal, 10 O. W. R. 258.

Promise to pay debt of another-Extension of time-Promise not in writing-Liability of debtor continuing-Gauranty-Statute of Frauds-Guarantor a shareholder in company-debtor.]-The plaintiff sought to make the defendant F. liable for the price of goods supplied by the plaintiff to the other defendants, who were a firm composed of the sons of F, and an incorporated company in which his sons were interested and in which F. himself was a shareholder. The plaintiff alleged that F. offered, if the plaintiff would extend the time for the payment of sums due by the firm and the company and make fur-ther advances of goods to F. for the purpose of carrying on the businesses, to pay amounts due to the plaintiff; that the plaintiff accepted the offer, and extended the time, Iff accepted the oner, and extended the time, and advanced goods to \mathbf{F}_i ; and that it was also agreed that, if \mathbf{F} , should fail to pay the plaintiff, the firm and company should re-main liable. There was no writing setting forth any obligation of \mathbf{F}_i ; the plaintiff's model on the compositions. Model case depended on two conversations :-- Held, that, as the original debtors remained liable, it was not a case of novation; if there was It was not a case of novation in there was any contract by F., it was merely an oral one to answer for the present and future debts of another; the fact that F. was a large shareholder in the company did not alter the case; and there was no ground upon which F. could be held liable. Shea v. Lindsay (1910), 15 W. Sale and delivery of mining stock -Evidence-Statute of Frauds-Conflict of testimony.]-Action to compel defendants to deliver certain mining stock. As a conflict of evidence, action dismissed. Trust-Interest in mining areas-Sale by Trust—interest in mining areas—Satic by trustes — Recovery of proceeds of sale — Agreement in verting—Part performance— Acts referable to contract—Evidence.]—M. transferred to C. a portion of an interest in mining areas, which he alleged was held in trust for him by the defendant. In an ac-tion by C. claiming a share in the proceeds of the safe thereof we dead on area to write of the sale thereof, no deed or note in writing of the assignment was produced, as required by s. 4 of the Nova Scotia Statute of Frauds, and there was no evidence that, prior to the assignment, there had been such a conversion of the interest as would take away its character as real estate :--Held, that the subject of the alleged assignment was an interest in lands within the meaning of the Statute of Frauds, and not merely an interest in the proceeds of the sale, as distinguished from an interest in the arrears themselves, and, consequently, that the plainthif could not recover on account of failure to comply with that statute .--- It was shewn that, on settling with interested persons, the defendant had given M. a bond for $500 as his share of what he had received on the sale of the areas :--Held, that, as this act was not unequivocally and in its own nature referable to some dealing with the mining areas alleged to have been the subject of the agreement, it could not have the effect of taking the case out of the operation of the Statute of Frauds. Maddison v. Alder-son, 8 App. Cas. 467, referred to. Judgment appealed from, 41 N. S. R. 110, reversed. McNeil v. Corbett, 39 S. C. R. 608.

Shallow v. Lessard, 14 Que. K. B. 292.

Action for price of work-Plaintiff contracting in partnership name—Failure to register declaration—Effect on contract—Pen-alty—Partnership Act.]—The plaintiff sued the defendant for a balance due on a printing contract. The plaintiff carried on business under the name of the Victoria Printing and Publishing Company, during the term of the contract, until after his action was launched, and in excess of a period of three months, without having complied with the provisions of ss. 74 and 75 of the Partnership Act, which require (s. 74) every person trading alone under a firm or company name implying a plurality of partners, to file a declaration to that effect with the registrar of the County Court of the county in which the business is being conducted, and (s. 75) that such declaration shall contain certain particulars and be filed within three months of the adoption of such firm or company name. The defendant contended that the action was barred by his non-compliance with ss. 75, 75, and 76, and that he therefore could not enforce the contract :---Held, that while the plaintiff came within the wording of the statute, and became liable to the penalty provided for not registering yet the penalty is imposed for something not contemplated by the contract in this case, and he was therefore entitled to recover. Smith v. Finch, 12 B. C. R. 186, 3 W. L. R. 476.

Appliances for work—Use of by contractor—Tacit permission—Injury by defects in—Action against contractor—Relief over against owner-Evidence.] - A contractor who undertakes a work at a fixed price, by the construction of scaffolds necessary for such work, although such scaffolds have been previously erected by the owner for use in other works being executed at the same time, is considered to have contracted with the tacit understanding that he may use the scaffolds, especially if he makes use of them with the knowledge and approval of the owner.-Therefore, if, in consequence of defects in the construction of such scaffolds, an accident happens, the contractor, being sued on account of injuries sustained thereby, has a right to call upon the owner of the scaffolds for relief over.--2. The costs of the scaffolds as compared with the contract price, as well as the uselessness of having scaffolds, are properly the subject of evidence in such an action. Tardivel v. Fabrique de St. Jean Deschaillons, 13 Que, K. B. 9.

Author and publisher — Contract to write like of Wm. Lyon Mackensie — Payment for writing—Refusal to publish — Action to recover menuscript on return of money paid.]—The plaintif, an author, of the defendants, publishers of the city of Toronto, for the recovery of the manuscript of a book entitled "Life of William Lyon Mackenzie," which he alleges was delivered to the defendarts pursuant to a contract between plaintif and defendants, and which was to form one book in the series of books called the "Makers of Canada," and to pay him damages for detention of same and nonpublication of said book. At the trial before Clute J, on June 16, 1900, he directed that the contract in question in the action should be rescluded and that the defendants should deliver to the plaintiff the manuscript, "The Life of William Lyon Mackenzie," in question, upon the plaintiff the manuscript, and ordered the defendants to pay plaintiff costs of acion, Court of Appeal dismissed the defendants, Le Sweur V, Morang (1910), 15 O. W. R. 705, 20 O. L. R. 594.

Authorisation — Performance—Benefit —Implied engagement to pay.]—When work is performed in pursuance of a writing, which is on its face only a simple authorisation to do it, without promise, or engagement, the obligation of the signatory to pay the value thereof, can be deducted from the fact that the work was necessary to him and profitable to the extent of it. Graham v. Corona Hotel Co., 35 Que. S. C. 217.

Bond to be given by contractor to school corporation-Refusal to accept-Compliance with contract-Form of bond-Misnomer of corporation-Irregularity-Objection not taken before action - Implied agreement to let the contractor do the work -Breach-Damages-Loss of profit-Liabilities incurred in preparation for work.]-The plaintiffs entered into a contract with the defendants under the name of "Estevan School Board of Estevan" for the construction by the plaintiffs of a school building for the Estevan School District No. 257, according to plans and specifications incorporated into the contract, which required that the contractor should "give a surety bond equal to the amount of his contract." The contract provided for a bond to be given to the corportation in the sum of $5,000. The plaintiff filed a bond for $5,000, but the obligees were named as "the Estevan School Board of Estevan," while the proper name of the de-fendants was "the Board of Trustees for the Estevan School District No. 257 of the North-West Territories," The bond was not objected to on this ground by the defendants before action; but the defendants insisted that the bond should be that of a bonding company, which the contract did not call for. The plaintiffs did not furnish another bond, but, relying on the one they had furnished. asked to be allowed to proceed with the work. The defendants insisted that another bond should be filed or that the contract should be cancelled. The plaintiffs then brought this action for damages for breach of the con--Held, that, in order to succeed, the tract :plaintiffs must prove that the bond furnished by them was in compliance with the terms of the contract, and that, having furnished the requisite bond, they were prevented from performing the contract by the action of the defendants.--2. That the defendants' objection to the bond because it was not that of a bonding company was untenable...3. That the irregularity of describing the defendants by the name of "the Estevan School Board of Estevan" did not render the bond unenforceable, and did not invalidate it, the name of the obligees in the bond being the same as that of the defendants in the contract, and the objection not having been taken before action. — 4. That, upon the evidence, the plaintiffs were prevented by the action of the defendants from carrying out their contract. Where a contractor enters into a contract with an owner of land to erect for him a building thereon, there is an implied agree-ment on the part of the owner to let the contractor do the work and to enter upon the land for that purpose. The plaintiffs were entitled, by the conduct of the defendants, to treat the contract as at an end except as regards damages for its breach .--- 5. That the plaintiffs were entitled to recover as damages what they had lost by the act of the defendants, i.e., loss of the profit they would have made on the construction of the school-house and loss suffered by incurring liabilities in preparation for its construction.—Judgment of Johnstone, J., 13 W. Building a railway-Non-fulfilment of contract caused death of third party.]-Plain-tiff brought action to recover $5,655.45 balance alleged to be due on a contract to build a railway for defendants. Defendants pleaded that under the agreement it was the duty of plaintiff to fill the narrow places between the rails at frogs, guard rails, and switches with standard wooden blocks, and that, by reason of plaintiff failing so to do, one Clarke had his foot caught in a frog and was run over and killed and the defendants had to pay his legal representatives $5,250. Defendants paid into Court $405.45 as a balance due plain-tiff on their contract.—Boyd, C., held (15 O. W. R. 151), that the action should be dismissed with costs, the money in Court sought to impound it to answer costs.-Court of Appeal reversed above judgment on ground that there was no liability upon plaintiffs to the Can. Pac. Rw. Co. for injury done to that company's servants. Judgment entered for amount of plaintiff's claim with costs. MacDonald v. Walkerton & Lucknow Rw. Co. (1910), 16 O. W. R. 558, 1 O. W. N. 967.

Certificate—Condition precedent — Mechanic's lien.]—The plaintiff agreed with S. to do tunnelling in mineral claims in which S. and McL. were interested, and the agreement was contained in correspondence part of which read: "Till pay you on the completion of each 80 feet of tunnelling. All you need to do is to have McL, to certify that you have done the work." McL did not give a certificate. In na action by the plaintiff to enforce a mechanic's lien:—Held, that the obtaining of the certificate was a condition precedent to the plaintiff's right to recover. Leroy v. Smith, 22 C. L. T. 72, 8 B. C. R. 293.

Condition precedent—Right of action.] —In a contract for the construction of works, it was provided that the works should be fully completed at a certain time and that no money should be payable to the contractors until the whole of the works were completed. In an action by the contractors for the full amount of the contract price, the trial Judge a count for quantum meruit; found that the works were still incomplete at the time of plaintiffs for a portion of the contract price, with nine-tenths of the costs. The defendant alone appealed from this decision, and the judgment was affirmed by the Court of Re-view : --- Held, reversing the judgment appealed from, that, as the whole of the works had not been completed at the time of the institution of the action, the condition pre-cedent to payment had not been accomplished, and the plaintiffs had no right of action under the contract. Whiting v. Blondin, 24 C. L. T. 203, 34 S. C. R. 453.

Construction of sewer-Action upon-Substituted contract-Evidence as to-Failure to prove substituted contract-Action dismissed,]-Plaintiff brought action to recover $421.29 for work done in construction of a sewer in town of Sandwich. At trial the action was dismissed with costs .-- Divisional Court held, that plaintiff had failed to estabtherefore, the action and appeal should be dismissed with costs. Drake v. Cadwell (1910), 17 O. W. R. 539, 2 O. W. N. 282.

Cutting cord wood-Acceptance of part -Effect of-Measurement-Compliance with contract-Special conditions-Knowledge of contractor.]-Action for contract price for cutting wood and for work done for defendants-Held, (1) that plaintiffs were not noti-fied by defendant that the wood was specially required for a four-foot boiler; (2) that even if some of the wood should exceed four feet by a few inches that would not vitiate the contract; (3) that the wood was reasonable cord wood; (4) that defendant's acceptance of part, and his presence while the wood was being cut, binds him to take the balance; (5) that the making of the road was not part of the contract. Judgment for plain-tiffs for the amount claimed. Ester v. Wilson, 11 W. L. R. 407.

Dam and power house built for municipal corporation-Defective work-Dismissal of contractor.]-Action for balance of contract price of work done by plaintiff for de-fendants. Counterclaim for damages for de-lay, defective work, etc. Defendants' en-gineer dismissed plaintiff. Plaintiff held not liable for damages for non-completion within required time. Amount of work done ascer-tained and judgment accordingly. Winger v. Streetsville (1909), 13 O. W. R. 635.
Affirmed, 14 O. W. R. 216.

Damages for delay-Liquidated damages or penalty-Part performance-Useful occupation-Extras-Time. 1-Where damages or a penalty have been stipulated in advance for delay in the completion of a contract for work, the party for whom the work was done is entitled to recover such sum, without being obliged to prove the actual amount of damage suffered,—the object of the clause being to obviate the necessity of determining the amount of the damages by an action at law or expertise .--- 2. A contractor, restricted as to time for the execution of a contract, who undertakes extra work in connection with the same contract, without stipulating sponsibility for the penalty or damages fixed by the contract for delay in the completion of the work .--- 3. Work is not " performed in part," within the meaning of Art, 1076. , where the owner cannot have useful occupation of the portion completed. McDonald v. Hutchins, 12 Que. K. B. 499.

Damages resulting from their nonexecution-Set-off - Contracts with penal clause-Legal warranty-Work done according to owner's plan-Acceptance of the work and its effect upon the warranty.]-Damages resulting from the non-execution of a contract are a set-off against the price agreed upon, operations having to do with one and the same contract being parts of one and the same account of which the final balance determines the obligations and rights of the parties. (Cf. Ottawa Northern & Western Rw. Co. v. Dom. Bridge Co., 14 Que. K. B. 197 .- A contractor under penalty for work connected with his trade or profession guarantees that it will be sufficient for the purpose for which it is to be used, although he may have done such work according to the plan supplied and directions given by the pro-prietor. — Notwithstanding his final acceptance of the work, the proprietor has a remedy which exists during thirty years from the time defects in the work commence to shew themselves .- The contractor who undertakes to do certain repairs to a steamboat is responsible for the damages caused resulting from the non-execution of the work and consisting in: (a) the cost of temporary repairs, including the loss sustained by the delay in effecting them: (b) the loss of profit which the boat would have earned if it had been properly repaired; (c) the cost of the work required to put her in good condition. -The loss resulting from delay in fostering trade cannot be included in the damages, such loss not being immediate and direct. Chateauguay & Beauharnois Nav. Co. v. Ponthriand Co. (1909), 37 Que. S. C. 392. Pending in Review.

Decoration of house.]-The plaintiffs brought action for $2,364.55, balance alleged to be due for work done and materials supplied to defendants in the erection of a house Defendant denied that in St. Catharines. the work was well done and refused to pay : -Held, that the work had been done in ac-cord with what had been contracted for. Dispute as to extent of work-Evidence-Contract prepared by defendants, but not executed.]-In an action to recover payment for excavating work done by the plaintiffs for the defendants, the matter in dispute was as to what work the plaintiffs agreed to do. There was no written contract signed by the parties, but a document was submitted by the defendants to the plaintiffs, which the defendants afterwards repudiated, but which the plaintiffs said contained the true agreement except as to one point. This document was not signed:—Held, nevertheless, that it was evidence, as far as it work, of what the agreement was, and was clearly evidence of the work which the plaintif's had figured on and agreed to do, and the defendants were bound by it; and, upon the footing of this document, and making certain charges and deductions, in accordance with the evidence, the plaintiffs were entiled to recover $8306.15. Dolmer V, Sharpe (1910), 15 W. L. R. 597, Man. L. R.

Drainage work-Municipal corporation -Progress certificate of engineer-Action by contractors to recover moneys due under-Assignment of contract - Recognition by corporation - Non-completion of work by time specified.] - A contract for drainage work stipulated that defendants would not recognize any assignment of the contract. Plaintiff and another firm were the contractors, and shortly after work was commenced, the latter assigned their interest to the plainliff :-- Held, that an assignment of the contract was not prohibited, and defendants were not to be prejudiced by an assignment and need not recognise it. The firm therefore were not necessary parties to this action. There was also an express stipulation as to a time limit for finishing the contract, but the evidence shewed waiver of this by the defendants. Damages recovered against the de-fendants by a third party could not be set off because they arose through fault of defend-ants' engineer, not through plaintiff's fault, Barrett Brothers v. Township of Cornwall, 12 O. W. R. 970.

Drainage work—Tender based on estimates of engineer—Mistake as to mensurements and quantity of work to be done—Contractor declining to proceed unless paid for extra work — Contract held not binding. Township of McKillop v. Pidgeon and Foley, 11 O. W. R. 401.

Drilling a well.]-Plaintiffs drilled a well for water, on a farm owned by defendants, for the purpose of their charity work. Defendants contended that plaintiffs agreed to find water in three or four days, or to get no other pay than board for men and fuel for engine. The jury found this was not a condition and that the agreement was as stated by plaintiffs. Plaintiffs claimed $308 for drilling, and $6 for pipe supplied :-Held. at trial, that the contract was not valid and binding upon defendants, as it was beyond the scope of the authority of Sister Demers, the procurator-general, who had entered into the contract, and it not being in writing, and not under the corporate seal of defendants, the action should be dismissed, without costs. Divisional Court reversed above decision and entered judgment for plaintiff for $308 and costs. Judgment of Britton, J., for $308 and costs. Judgment of Britton, J., 15 O. W. R. 315, reversed. Campbell v. Community General Hospital (1910), 15 O. W. R. 529, 20 O. L. R. 467, 1 O. W. N. 529.

Effect of contract — Findings of trial Judge—Appreciation of evidence—Reversal on appeal.]—In a dispute as to the nature and effect of a contract, the trial Judge, on his view as to the weight of evidence, found the facts in favour of the plaintiff, and gave judgment accordingly. His decision was reversed by a majority of the Court is banco. and the action was dismissed with costs:— Heid, per Idington, Maclennan, and Duff, JJ, reversing the decision of the full Court, that the findings of the trial Judge, who had seen and heard the witnesses, should not have been reversed.—Fitzpatrick, CJ, and Davies, J, considered that the trial Judge had not made his findings as the result of conclusions arrived at by him, having regard to the conduct and appearance of the witnesses in giving their evidence; and, on their view of the conflicting testimony, were of the opinion that the full Court was right in reversing the judgment at the trial, and that the appeal ought to be dismissed.—Judgment in J Alta. L. R. 441, 8 W, L. R. 143, reversed. Hayes V, Doy, 41 S, C. R. 124.

Elevator for building-Destruction by fire before completion-Acceptance by insuring and receipt of insurance money-Interest -Pleading.]—The plaintiffs were prevented from completing their contract to put an elevator into the defendants' building by a fire which destroyed the building and the partly completed elevator. The defendants party completed elevator. The defendants were not in any way responsible for the fire. The second instalment of the contract price was to be paid when the "machine" was in place, but the "machine" had not been put in its place, although its parts had been assembled in the building: — Held, that the plaintiffs could not recover such second intract. Fairchild v. Rustin, 39 S. C. R. 274, and Ross v. Moon, 17 Man. L. R. 24, fol-lowed.—The plaintiffs claimed in the alternative that they were entitled to recover the whole price of the elevator quantum meruit, because the defendants had insured it for its full value, and had collected and received the full amount of the insurance, having included the value of the elevator in their proofs of loss sent in to the insurance companies, and should, therefore, be deemed to have accepted it. It appeared, however, that the defendants had left the placing of the insurance upon their property in the hands of their agent, and had not instructed him to insure the elevator, and were not aware, when their proofs of the loss were made, that the elevator had been so included, and that their total loss was much in excess of the total insurance :--Held, that the defendants, having paid $1,400 on the elevator, had an insurable interest in it and a right to re-ceive the insurance money, and that what they had done in connection with the insurance did not constitute an acceptance of the elevator .-- Interest is not recoverable unless a case for its allowance is made by the statement of claim; but, if such case is made, interest may be allowed under the prayer for general relief, Fenson v. Bulman, 7 W, L. R. 134, 17 Man, L. R. 309.

Evidence — Abandonment of contract— New contract — Quantum meruit—Contract price—Reasonable work.]—In an action to recover the value of work done for the defendant by the plaintiff in getting out ties, under a contract in writing, it was held, upon the evidence, that the plaintiff acquiesced in and agreed to an altered arrangement by which he was to place the ties in a place other than originally agreed upon; that the old contract was abandoned, and nothing more than a new implied contract was created, under which the planitiff would be entitled to receive what his work was reasonably worth; and, that being so, the old contract price was not receasarily to be taken as an unalterable basis of arriving at the value of the work done, but only as one element in arriving at an estimate; and the Court, upon the evidence, determined what it was reasonably worth to place the ties at the place designated in the contract as altered, and gave judgment for the plaintiff for the amount so found.—Judgment of Beek, J., affirmed. *Vanscopoc v. Money advanced to purchase apples - Loss on season's dealings - Acknowledge ment of debit balance-Written promise to " work-off " debt-Refusal to work-Action on acknowledgment.]-Plaintiff, the Canadian representative of certain British commission merchants, brought action to recover $4.-963.25, balance alleged to be due by defendant, on account of advances made by plaintiff for the purchase of apples. Defendant signed an acknowledgment admitting a balance at his debit of $4,153.25. The acknowledgment did not state that the debt was not to be paid by defendant, but only that it was to be discharged by defendant working for the houses represented by plaintiff. Defendant promised "to work with the company next season and until the above debt is worked off."-Held, that that did not amount to a discharge; and in any event the onus would lie on defendant to shew that he was always ready and willing to "work off" the debt. but that he was prevented by some act or default of plaintiff or of his principals; and that onus he had not met. Balance of plaintiff's claim (for which no acknowledgment was given) was not allowed. Judgment for plaintif for $4,153.25, with interest from 7th April, 1908, and costs. Brown v. Motor boat-Failure to complete in time -New trial.]-Defendant contracted with a company for the construction of a motor boat according to certain specifications, the boat to be completed by a certain date. The conwho, with defendant's consent, proceeded with the work. The boat was not completed by date fixed, but defendant superintended inal specifications, and went out in the boat -Held, that defendant was estopped from raising the question as to failure of plaintiff company to deliver boat within time agreed. The contract called for delivery, with the boat, of a 90 lb, galvanised anchor and When boat was ready for delivery chain. cure an anchor of kind called for, and in order to avoid delay, offered to put in a 70 lb. anchor until the other could be had. and to allow defendant a deduction of $50 anchor called for would defeat their rights to sue for the balance due on the contract, but defendant was not justified on that acand that in doing so he relieved plaintiffs from the necessity of going on to completion of contract, and gave them a remedy for breach by defendant, but that, as this could not be accomplished on pleadings before the Court, there must be an amendment, and as there was not before the Court material necessary for assessing damages, there must be a new trial. Sydney Boat & Motor Mfg. Co. v. Gillis, 43 N. S. R. 259.

At the new trial of above action evidence was given to shew that the hull of the boat was not constructed in a workmanlike manner, and that it would require the expenditure of a certain sum to make the seams and planking conform to the terms of the specifications .- Longley, J., held, 7 E. L. R. 75, that such evidence was not receivable, it appearing that after the boat was completed and tendered to defendants, the latter refused to accept delivery, and the boat was suffered to lie for some months exposed to the weather. and that the defects referred to were the result of such exposure and not of any fault in the original construction. Supreme Court N. S. affirmed above judgment, Sydney Boat & Motor Mfg. Co. v. Gillis (1909), 44 N. S. R. 152, 7 E. L. R. 518.

Supreme Court of Canada reversed above judgment and entered judgment for defendant. Judgment not yet reported.—Ed.

Municipal work—Construction of contract — Abandonment — Acceptance of part of work actually done—Payment for value of work—Contract not under seal—Powers of corporation — Receiving benefit of work. Sieling v. Village of Kronau (Sask.), S W. L. R. 552.

Municipal work—Payment to contractora—Provision for minimum rate of reages for workmen—Wages paid at lower rate— Right of municipality to withhold payment of part of contract price—Breach of agreement — Counterclaim — Nominal damages —Coats.]—The plaintiffs, as part of their contract for the performance of certain work for the defendants, a city corporation, agreed to put the workman employed wargs at certain minimum rates fixed by what was known as "the fair warge schedule," but the defendants acreed to pay for the work from time to time, as the work should progress, the amounts certified to be due by the city engineer. "The plaintiffs such for the amount of one of these certificates:—Held, that the defendants could not keep back out of such amount anything by reason of the plaintiffs having failed to pay their workman necording to "the fair warge schedule."—Scould, that the defendants engineer might, on ascertaining the fact, have been justified in withholding the progress estimate, in which event it might have been difficult for the plaintiff to recover without first paying the warges on the basis of the fair warge schedule. — Held, however, that the defendants were entitled to nominal damages on their countrelain for the plaintiffs' brench of contract in nois paying the warges agreed on, with costs incident to the counterclaim. Kelly V. City of Winnipeg, 18 Man. L, R. 208, 9

Music for skating rink-Terms of contract — Refusal to accept service — Dam-ages.]—Defendant offered to supply a band of 10 musicians for 9 performances for $87 per week during the winter season, and, if this accepted, he would take the contract for the summer season on trial. This was accepted by plaintiffs. After playing for a time plaintiffs refused to let defendant play more than three times a week, but he continued to tender services during the balance of the winter season, and kept his 10 musicians on hand, though he could have dismissed them on two weeks' notice. The trial Judge gave damages claimed, and this was affrmed on appeal. Amateur Athletic Association "Le Montagnard " v. Gagnon, 6 E. L. R. 54.

Performance of work within fixed time-Penalty for delay-Delay caused by owner, |--- A person who undertakes by contract to build a bridge for a municipal corporation, to be completed and delivered at a stated date, under a penalty of $5 per diem for delay, is liable only for such delay as occurs through his own fault or negligence, and not for that caused by failure of the corporation to locate, through some proper officer, as agreed, the site of the abutments, or by their altering the work, during performance, and substituting iron railings for Dupuis v. Parish of Laprairie, 28 Que, S. C 196

Plant and materials of contractor to become property of employer-Se-curity for performance of contract-Necessity for registration under Bills of Sale Act -" Complete transfer and delivery "-Termination of contract-Evidence-Claim under bills of sale made by contractor-Articles not provided for works-Kitchen supplies and utensils,] - The plaintiff claimed ownership of certain goods seized by the defendants, and based his title upon two absolute bills of sale made by F. The defendants set up that the property was theirs by virtue of a con-tract between them and F., whereby F. agreed to perform certain works for the defendants, and one of the terms of the contract was that all the plant, materials, etc., provided by F, for the work was to become and until the completion of the work be the property of the defendants for the purpose of the works, but, upon the completion of the work, such plant, materials, etc., as should not have been used and converted, should be delivered up to F. :--Held, that the true inmaterials, etc., were to be retained by the defendants as security for the performance by F. of his contract; and the contract did not come within the Bills of Sale Act so as to require registration .- Since, in the nature of things, it was impossible at the time of the execution of the contract to identify the plant, materials, etc., provided under it, they could not then be articles capable of "com-plete transfer and delivery," and it is only a bill of sale of such articles that the Act requires to be registered,-It was contended that the defendants put an end to the contract, and could, therefore, claim nothing under it; but held, upon the evidence, and the proper construction of the contract, that this contention was not sustained by the facts.—Semble, that the plaintiff's bills of sale were intended as a security and not as evincing an absolute sale, but s. 8 of the Bills of Sale Act in such cases only makes the registration void ; and as to an alleged defect in the affidavits of execution of the bills of sale, as to the residence of F., s. 7 makes a bill of sale void only against the classes of persons therein named, and the classes .- Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to the value of any goods seized by the defendants which had not been provided by F. for the works contracted for: to come within those terms they must have reached the field of F.'s operations, that is, a point beyond which they would be handled by F.'s men only; and the kitchen supplies and utensils were not plant, materials, or things pro-vided for the work. Clanevy v, Grand Trunk Pac. Rw. Co. (1910), 14 W. L. R. 201.

Ploughing land - Breach of contract -Work not properly done-Mortgages given as security for payment for work-Assignment of mortgages-Transfer of mortgaged land - Redemption.] - Action for delivery up and cancellation of certain mortgages made by plaintiff to defendant to secure payment of a sum to be paid by plaintiff to defendant for work to be done by defendant for plaintiff under a contract, and to restrain defendant from transferring mortgages given as security :- Held, that defendant has not done the work in good and workmanlike matter, and plaintiff is entitled to damages. Wheeler v. Dionne, 11 W. L. R. 129.

Plumbing-Contract not established -Quantum meruit-Set-off for defective work - Action for price of work done for and material supplied to defendant.]-Held, on appeal from Official Referee's report, that there was no contract, and that plaintiff be paid as on a quantum meruit with set-off for damages. Putting elevator in bullding--Time for completion--Delay--Extension of time--Novation--Accord and satisfaction--Measure of damages.]--Action for damages for nonperformance of contract to instal an elevator in plaintiff's hotel by 1st November. Some delay took place and on 3rd December defendants gave a written guaranty to pay $15 for each day after the time elevator remains in incomplete running order. It never worked satisfactorily and plaintiff acquiesced in another attempt of defendants to make it satisfactory:--Held, this was not a novation or an accord and satisfaction, that amount paid must be repaid and damages were assessed. Porter v. Parkin Elevator Co., 13 O. W. R. 1055.

Putting furnaces in house — Insufficient heating capacity—Refusal of sub-contractor to put in new furnaces—Derformance by contractor—Action against sub-contractor for damages. Ritchie v. Plaxton (Man.), 5 W. L. R. 414.

Question as to rate of payment-Failure to establish contract by telephone-Payment into Court-Quantum meruit-No costs.] — An action by plaintiff to recover $1,245 for teaming work done for defendants. Plaintiff claimed $5 per day, or 50 cents an hour, while defendants claimed that the price to be paid was $4 or 40 cents an hour, and paid into Court $1,000 as full satisfaction - Falconbridge, C.J.K.B., held, that plaintiffs had failed to satisfy the onus of establishing a contract by telephone to pay $5 a day or 50 cents per hour, or that the rate as to quantum meruit ought to b $5 per day or 50 cents per hour, instead of $4 per day or 40 cents per hour, as contended by defendants. Judgment for plaintiff for $1,000, amount paid into Court, at rate of $4 per day. No costs. Montgomery v. Cockshutt Plough Co, (1911), 18 O. W. R. 905, 2 O. W. N. 924.

Railway construction — Certificate of engineer,]—Where the contract for construction of a railway provided that the work was to be done to the satisfaction of the chief engineer of a railway company, not a parity to such contract, who was to be the sole and final arbitre of all disputes between the parties, the contractors were not bound by such condition, when the person named as arbiter proved to be, in fact, the engineer of the other parity to the contract, while supposed by the contractors to be the engineer of the railway company as described. Judgment in 26 A. R. 133, 10 C. L. T. 131, affirmed. Good v. Toronto. Hamilton and Buffalo Rue, Co., 20 C. L. T. 49, 20 S. C. R. 114.

Rate of payment—" Clear"—Wages— Waiver—Counterclaim — Damages — Reference—Costs, Hunton v. Coleman Co., 10 O. W. R. 610.

Rate of payment — Evidence-Liability -Set-off.] — The defendant, who was a subcontractor under McA., who had a contract with the Transcontinental Railway Commisemployed the plaintiff to do certain work in the construction of a railway. The Commission directed the manner of construction and the class of material to be used, and it also had the right to order substitution for or even different work from that shewn upon the specifications. At the scene of the operasatisfaction the work had to be done before it would receive the approval of the chief engineer of the Commission. The resident engineer instructed the plaintiff to do certain masonry work, and the defendant said he would allow the plaintiff $5.50 a square yard for this. After the plaintiff had done 25 yards, he told the defendant that he could do no more at that price, and the defendant said he would give him what he was getting himself, which was $6, though he did not name that amount. McB. subsequently lowed the defendant $7, and the plaintiff having done the work and received payment at the rate of $6, sued for the extra dollar per square yard :--Held, that the plaintiff could not recover.-The plaintiff also sought to recover for some work done by him, under the instructions of the engineer, which did not appear in the specifications. The defendant said that he assumed no obligation for such work other than to pay to the plaintiff money as he received. In carrying out this and other work, the plaintiff per-formed labour in "rock-borrowing." necessary for the performance of the work ordered by the engineer. No allowance was made for this either to McA. or the defendant :--Held, that no liability was at present established against the defendant; but, if the money should afterwards come into the defendant's hands for this work, he would become liable and as to these items the plaintiff was nonsuited, without prejudice to a subsequent ac-tion.-The plaintiff was held, entitled to judgment in respect of other items, and the de-fendant to a set-off as to part. Nordquist v. fendant to a set-off as to part. Non Peterson (1910), 14 W. L. R. 397.

Religious society - Expulsion of member-False imprisonment-Compensation for services-Statute of Frauds-Public policy-Residence of society-Branch in Ontario-Jurisdiction.]-Action to recover the value of plaintiff's services to a religious society, incorporated in France, having branches in United States, Quebec and Ontario, these appearing to be separate corporations. plaintiff became a member in United States and took vows of poverty, chastity and obedience required of an "aspirant," in which condition the plaintiff remained until dismissed. In 1901 she was transferred to Mount Hope Institute at the city of London, Ontario, where she remained until the following month of June, when, in consequence of great disturbance and destruction of property in the Institute, ascribed to her, she was removed to Longue Pointe Insane Asylum in the province of Quebec, upon certificate of two physicians that she was insane. Here she remained until the following September, when she was declared cured and was discharged. During this time the Mother Superior reported these facts to the society in France, and obtained a release from her yows for the plaintiff, and on being released from the asylum she exeon oning release unfor the asymptotic a notary cuted a release unfor seal, before a notary in the city of Montreal, whereby, in con-sideration of $300, then paid her, she re-leased the society, the Mount Hope Institute and Les Dames Religieuses du Sacre Cœur, and all persons members of the society, from all actions, debts, etc. Shorily after the plaintiff brought this action against the society, the Mount Hope Institute, and Elizabeth Sheridan, claiming wages, damages for wrongful dismissal, false imprisonment and impu-tations of insanity; contending that she was not insane at any time:-Held, in answer to several defences-1. That there was jurisdiction .- 2. That the defence of the Statute of Frauds fails, see McGregor v. McGregor, 21 Q. B. 424.—3. Action dismissed as against the Mount Hope Institute (it being clearly a separate corporation, incorporated by a Canadian statute), on grounds that plaintiff never had any contract with this institute, and for same reason was also dismissed against the Mother Superior of that institute .-- 4. The document executed in Quebec held binding. the plaintiff failing to shew that the defendants had taken any undue advantage of her. Archer v. Society of the Sacred Heart of Jesus, 2 O. W. Repairs — Completion—Acceptance from day to day—Destruction by fric—Incidence of loss]—Che handing over of works completed according to estimate and bargain, within the meaning of Art. 1684, C. C., is to be regarded as having taken place when, consisting in repairs to a house occupied by the owner, it is done under the supervision of the latter, and is accepted by him from day to day, necording to the portion done. Therefore, loss caused by fire immediately after the completion of the work, without other handing over or putting in formal possession, falls upon the owner. Lidstone v. Haycs, 15 Que, K. B. 416.

Repairing steamers - Defective performance-Counterclaim for damages,]-Action for work done on certain small steamers belonging to defendants. Defendants contended that owing to faulty cauking of a tank sufficient water had leaked out so as to cause steamer to sink:--Held, that work had been done in a proper and workmanlike manner. Judgment for plaintiff. McPherson V. Judge, 7 E. L. R. 110.

Sales of Goods Act — Specifications — Manufacturer's description of ensine—'' Quiet running ''—Warranty — Recommendation — Reference to surrounding circumstances — Suitability of engine for purpose—Implied undertaking or scaranty—Operation—'' In operating order,''|—The plaintiffs installed in the defendant's theatre an engine and appliances to operate a lighting and ventilating plant.

and claimed the balance of the price conand entities the balance of the price con-tracted for -Held, that the transaction was not a sale of goods, but a supply of work and materials, and the Sales of Goods Act did not apply --The plaintiffs submitted a writ-ten proposal to the defendant to supply and erect in operating order, on foundations supplied by the defendant, an engine, generator, and switchboard, for a sum mentioned. This proposal embodied specifications for each of these pieces of machinery. The engine speci-fications described an "Ideal" engine and stated that they were submitted by the manu-upon their shewing that the engine was "quiet running"—and this view was con-firmed by reference to the surrounding circumstances, to which reference might properly be made .- Held, also, that there was no collateral warranty or undertaking by the plaintiffs that the machinery should be suitable for the defendant's special purpose-the choice of engine being made on the independent judgment of the defendant's agent, uninfluenced by the plaintiffs; nor should the Court imply an undertaking on the part of the plaintiffs that the engine would operate in a way suitable for the defendant's pur-pose.—Held, also, upon the evidence, that the plaintiffs had erected the engine " in operating plaintiffs had erected the engine "in operating order," and were entitled to recover. Services to be performed after death of party — Executory contract — Action against escutors—Lack of corroboration.]— The plaintiff such the executors of R. for services rendered in taking care of a child of R., after his death. She had been engaged by R. as a nurse to attend him in his last illness, and her evidence was that R., previous to his death, asked her to continue in the house and to look after his wife and child, and deceased had said, "If anything happens, will you promise that you will stop with her?" There was no corroboration of the plaintiff's testimony as to the promises made her by the deceased:—Held, allowing an appeal from the verdict of a County Court in the plaintiff's nour, that the contract as allezed was open to two constructions; (1) that the plaintiff was to stay with Mrs. R. if anything happened to the testator; (2) that she was to take care of the child; and, the plaintiff having contended that R, meant that she was to take care of the child; and the care of it, each may have intended a different thing, and consequently no contract was clearly proved; also, that corroboration of the plaintiff"s evidence was necessary in this case. Simpkin y, Paton, 9 W, L. R. 111, 18 Man, L. R. 132. Services rendered to deceased person —Promise to pay for services, but no rate fixed—Claim against estate—Quantum meruiti —Evidence—Report varied on appeal by reducing amount allowed. Diron v. Garbutt, 10 O. W. R. $38.

Services to deceased person-Quantum meruit-Claim against estate-Burden on executor-Evidence-Credibility of witness.]-The claimant came from the United States at the request of the testatrix, and remained with her for a considerable period of time previous to her death, performing services of an onerous character. There was no relationship between the parties :- Held, that the case was the ordinary one of a request and services performed, for which the claimant was entitled to recover on a quantum meruit. and that the burden was on the executor of the deceased of establishing a sufficient answer .- Held, also, that the mere fact that the claimant expected the property of testatrix to be left to her, and that, under the terms of the will, she was given a share of the residue, in the absence of any understanding or agreement that she was to be remunerated in that way, was no bar to her recovery; and that the omission of the claimant to mention her claim, in the course of an ordinary conversation with the executor, did not constitute a satisfaction of the debt, but would merely go to her credibility as a witness. In re Ansley, 41 N. S. R. 527, 3 E. L. R. 234.

Smelting - Sampling ores - Mine owner's representative-Authority - Ores improperly sampled-Method of estimating values.] -A contract between mine owners and smelter owners provided inter alia that the ores supplied by the former to the latter should be samp d within one week after shipment. The evence shewed that "automatic" or machine sampling had displaced the old mathine sampling had displaced the old method of "grab" or "shovel" sampling and had been in yogue for about twenty -Held, per Hunter, C.J., and Walkem, that the contract was entered into on the footing that the sampling was to be done automatically. Per Drake and Irving, J.J .--The contract permitted any mode of sampling, so long as it was done properly, and the true value of the ore was arrived at. A mine owner's representative at a smelter for the purpose of watching the weighing and sampling of ores, so that the mine owner may be satisfied as to the correctness of hay be satisfied as to the correctness of the weight and sampling, has no authority to consent to a method of sampling not al-lowed by the contract. Where the smelter returns of ore of average character sampled either negligently or in a manner not contemplated by contract, shew a value below the average, the probable value of the ore will be estimated by the Court by taking the average value of a certain number of lots immediately before and after the lots in dispute. Le Roi Mining Co. v. Northport Smelting Co., 24 Occ. N. 32, 10 B. C. R. 138.

Sub-contract — Non-completion of work —Payment — Money had and received — Implied trust — Money spent in completing work—Rent of engine and cars—Payment for —Waieer — Consideration.]—A contracting company had a contract with a railway company to grade and exervate a portion of their line, and subjet to the plaintiff the work be-tween stations 580 and 770. After the work had progressed for a time, the contracting company went into liquidation and aban-doned the contract. At this time the plaintiff had removed 3.000 yards, part of a cut of 4.710 yards, for which had he completed his work, he would have been entitled to 20 cents a yard, but he did not complete his work after his superiors had gone into liquidation, and nothing was paid him for the 3.000 yards. The present defendants entered into a contract with the railway company to do the work originally let to the contracting company, at the same price for that class of work, viz., 23 cents a yard, and, upon their completing the cut of which the 3,000 yards removed by the plaintiff formed part, they were paid by the railway compart, they were paid by the railway com-pany at 23 cents a yard for the whole cut, including the 3,000 yards. The defendants thus received $1.083.30, and, in settling with the plaintiff for other work done by him for them, they charged him with the cost of completing the cut, amounting to $1,182.72, and credited him with the $1,083.30, leaving a balance against him of $90.42, and later with a further sum of $00, as having over-credited him 3 cents a yard on 3,000 yards, his price being 20 cents a yard, and not 23 cents:-Held, that the plaintiff was not en-titled to recover from the defendants $600 for the work done by him as money had and received for him or paid to his use; there was no privity of contract between the plaintiff and the railway company or between the plaintiff and defendants with respect to this particular work ; and the money was not paid upon a trust, either express or implied.— But held, that the plaintiff was entitled to succeed as to the two items of $99.42 and $90; the plaintiff was under no obligation to the defendants to complete the work, and they

the derivations to complete the work, and they could not charge him with their loss in completing it. — The defendants counterclaimed against the plaintiff fors $2,000 for the rent of engine and cars:—Held, on the evidence (INUNG, J.A., dissenting), that the defendants had waived their right to this, and there was consideration in the plaintiff foregoing the right to purchase the engine and cars on the price of which the payments of rent he had actually made would have been applied, had he completed the purchase.—Per INUNG, J.A., that there was no consideration moving from the defendants to the plaintiff or from the plaintiff to the defendants.—Chedwick v, Manning, [1906] A. Supply of machinery-Refusal to perform-Construction of contract - Breach -Damages, Mann Coal Co. v, Pendrith Machinery Co., 11 O. W. R. 412.

Supply of manufactured goods—Impossibility of fulfilment — "Cause beyond control.")—A covenant, in a contract for the supply of manufactured goods, that the manufacturer shall not be liable for damages, "if at any time by fuliare in supply of electric power, the occurrence of a strike, or other cause beyond his control, it becomes impossible for him to fulfil this contract," affords no relief from liability for non-fulfilment, if it appears that the failure of electric power was due to the inefficiency of the manufacturer's own electrical apparatus; nor can the fact that his pond ran dry, whereby he was prevented from using his steam power, be accounted a "cause beyond his control." Morgan v. Lyall, 16 Que. Supply of manufactured lumber — Breach—Damages. Curran v. O'Leary, 5 E. L. R. 80.

Supply of railway material — Pay-ment-Certificate of railway commission's en-gineer-Condition precedent-Interference by commission with engineer-Fraud-Hindering performance of condition-Monthly estimates -Finality-New trial.]-The plaintiff supplied the defendants with railway ties under a written contract, which provided that 90 per cent, of the value of the ties delivered and accepted was to be paid monthly on the written certificate of the engineer, which was to be a condition precedent to the right of the plaintiff to be paid the 90 per cent., or any part thereof; the remaining 10 per cent. any part thereof; the remaining to ber cont-to be retained until the final completion of the whole work to the satisfaction of the engineer, whereupon the engineer was t-give the final certificate accordingly, and such 10 per cent., or the balance payable under the contract, was to be paid within 40 days after the granting of such final certificate, which was also to be a condition precedent to the right of the plainiff to be paid 10 per cent., or any part thereof; and it was declared that the word "engin-eer" should mean the chief engineer for the eer should mean the chief tenders for the time being appointed by the defendants having control of the work of construction of the defendants' line of railway: — Held, that under this contract the certificate was in the nature of a condition precedent, and, while the plaintiff might be said to have agreed to the risk of the natural bias created by the situation, he was entitled to have at the hands of the engineer, the defendants' servant, good faith, and the expression of his own honest opinion. The employer has the right to direct the attention of the certifying official, before he certifies, to alleged defects of performance, and to ask for care and diligence in the discharge of his duty, but he has no right to dictate or impose his own opinion; and any attempt by the amployer to do so, especially if yielded to by the servant, is in the nature of a fraud, or is at all events evidence of fraud which will, if established, relieve the plaintiff from the necessity of obtaining the certificate-no one can take advantage of the non-fulfilment of a condition the performance of which he has himself hindered .- And held, in the circumstances of this case, that there was evidence for the jury that the defendants had prevented their engineer from certifying ; and a nonsuit was set aside and a new trial directed .- Semble, that the monthly estimates certified to by the engineer under the contract were final as to the quantities mentioned in them. Judgment of Falconbridge, C.J.K.B., reversed. Wallace v. Temiskaming and Nor-Petersed, Waldace V. Temskaming dua Nor-thern Ontario Railcoug Commission, 12 O. L. R. 126, 7 O. W. Syndicate land purchase.]-In Novem ber, 1902, plaintiff and defendant F. with a number of others formed a syndicate to acquire options and purchase land with a view to sale .- The transaction was a large involving some 200,000 acres in the N. W. T. Before the land was finally disposed of the syndicate was compelled to pay the owners $60,000.—The agreement between the owners $00,000.— The agreement between plaintiff and F. was verbal, and at time it was made plaintiff paid $200. On 30th March, 1903, defendant F. wrote plaintiff to hold himself in readiness to raise $2,000, "to hold your corner of the deal," and that if they had to call upon him it would be at short notice. Plaintiff took no notice of this letter and made no preparation for se-curing the money. On 14th April, 1903, F. telegraphed plaintiff :-- "Three thousand dollars absolutely necessary to hold your interest in land deal. Will I draw? Wire." To this plaintiff sent no reply.—In 1903 plaintiff learned that the speculation had been successful and that large profits had been made, but it was not until 1907 that this suit was brought :--Held, that in view of the special nature of the transaction, plaintiff's refusal to contribute his share to complete purchase, and his refusal to answer or take any notice of both letter and telegram, justified defendants in acting on assumption and belief that he had entirely abandoned his interest in the purchase .- Held, also, that plaintiff's delay in commencing a suit until long after he knew that a large profit had been made by a resale of the land was, in absence of any satisfac-tory explanation, evidence that his failure to pay the money, and his refusal to answer either letter or telegram, were in fact intended at the time as an abandonment of all interest in the transaction. Theatrical company—Contract of actor —Repertoire—Time, —In a contract whereby an actor is engaged by the manager of a theatre to take all the rôles designed in all the plays which the management deems suitable, a stipulation that he shall be ready to play without delay the "rôles of his repertoire," and all the others with 15 days' time to learn them, does not apply as to the first alternative to all the rôles of all the pieces in his repertoire, but to those only which he knows and is accustomed to play. Therefore, where he mentions in his repertoire the play "La Tosca," and the management orders that that piece shall be produced within S days, assigning to the actor the rôle of Baron Scarpia, he has good ground for asserting that his role in that play is that of the "Marquis Attavanti," and, therefore, to require the delay agreed upon of 15 days. Violation of spirit of agreement-Hire of services-Notice by lessee to lessor-Right of action to have contract cancelled.]-A contract of hire of services should be interpreted by taking into account the object the parties had in view and the circumstances of time and place respecting the execution of it. Hence, the lessor who violates the spirit of the contract cannot pretend that the delinquencies with which he is charged are not expressly mentioned therein .- The lessee of services, who gives notice to the lessor and thus terminates the contract, has, in addition, the right to take an action to have the cancellation of the contract judicially confirmed, more particularly when the lessor persists in executing the contract as if it still subsisted. Ouimet v. Fleury (1909), 19 Que. K. B. 301.

Warranty-Heating of building - Construction-Judge's charge-Condition precedent-Allowance for defects - Admissions-Mistake—Substantial performance — Waiver -Quantum meruit.]-Action to recover the contract price of putting a hot water heating apparatus into a building for the defendant. The contract provided " as the essence " that " the heating of the entire building shall, easily and without forcing the boilers, maintain throughout the building a temperature of not less than 65 degrees Fahrenheit in the most severe cold." The trial Judge charged the jury (inter alia) that the contractors were bound to supply a system which which easily maintain 65 degrees without forcing the boilers; that they were bound to put in a radiating surface to the percentage named in the contract in any event, and if a greater surface was necessary, in order to produce the 65 degrees, they were bound to furnish it; that the maintenance of the 65 degrees was necessary to entitle the plaintiffs to recover; that if the jury found that the system was not capable of maintaining the required temperature, they must find for the defendant, and must not take into consideration the question of the amount which would be required to alter the system to render it capable of giving the required temperature; that the defendant was not bound by an admission in a letter as to the amount due by him, so long as the plaintiffs had not altered their position by reason of the admission, and the defendant was not precluded from shewing that the admission was a mistake. The jury found a verticit for the defendant :— Held, that there had been no misdirection. The questions of the "substantial perform-ance" of a contract and of the waiver of a ance" of a contract and of the waiver of a special contract, and the substitution of a new contract to pay according to a quantum meruit, discussed, Toronto Radiator Mfg. Water power — Construction of dam— Agreement to pay for damages by flooding— —Indemnity—Protective works.] — Owing to the condition of the locality and the character of certain improvements made for the purpose of increasing the water power at Chambly rapids, in the Richelieu river, the parties entered into an agreement respecting the construction of dams and other works at the locus in quo, and it was provided that the company should assume the responsibility and pay for all damages caused by "flooding of land, bridges, or roads, if any, as well as all other damages caused" to the plaintiff "during or by reason of "the constructions; — Held, reversing the judgment appended from, that, under the agreement, the plaintiff could recover only such damages as he might suffer from time to time in consequence of the floods at certain seasons being aggravated by the constructions in the stream, and that, in the special circumstances of the case, the courts below erred in decreting the construction of protective works, innsmuch as the company were entitled to take the risks on payment of indemnity as provided by the contract. Chambly Manufacturing Co, v, Wilet, 24 C. L. T. 204, 34 S. C. R. 502.

Work and labour—Substituted contract —Consideration — Estras,] — The plaintif, who had contracted to supply materials for reseating a church, contended that, under the terms of his contract to furnish, among other things, "pew ends, divisions, seat lining, book racks." for a lump sum, "seat, linder this term, he was only bound to furnish the materials of which the seats were to be constructed. The defendant's contention was that the "lining was intended to go over the old wainscotting."—Held, that to admit the plaintif's contention would be to ignore the actual reading, and to give an unusual and improper meaning to the word "lining" so as to materially vary the terms of the contract, and a promise, if any, to pay for such lining as an extra could not be supported, the performance by a contractor of what be is already bound to do not being a consideration to support such a promise; and quare, whether the settlement in this way of a bona fide dispute between the partiest, as to the meanling of the terms used, would conviltute sufficient contexpendentiation for the aligned promise to pay. Action for—Joint tort-feasors—Res judicate—Remedy over.]—A party sued jointly with another in damages for a tort who is condemned alone, the action being dismissed as to the other, and who pays the plaintiff the amount of the judgment, has an action against his co-defendant to recover the whole or part of the amount so paid, accordingly as it is proved at the trial of such action that the tort was caused solely or in part by such co-defendant. The judgment in the original suit is not chose jugée between the joint tort-feasors, and their liability to one another is not affected by it, nor by the payment made by the one against waom it was rendered. Mills v. Coz, 28 Que. 8. C. 375.

cedure.]-The defendant contracted with P. to cut timber on P.'s land within defined boundaries. The defendant cut timber, but it was shewn that the title to the locus was in the plaintiff, who brought an action of trespass against the defendant. The defend-ant obtained leave to serve P. with a third party notice, and upon application for directions, which was opposed by P. :--Held, that the application should be granted; the rule that wrongdoers cannot have redress or contribution against each other being confined to cases where the person seeking redress must be presumed to have known that he was doing an illegal act. Wier v. Blois, 40 N. S. R. 266.

Co-surveties.]--Defendant, J., was liable as a co-survety for $3,000, plaintiff for $3,000, and E. for $1,000:--Held, that the defendant should contribute three-sevenths of sum which had been paid by plaintiff. The principle of contribution among co-surveties does not rest on contract, but upon principles of equity which may be modified by extent to which each has engaged himself. Ostrander v., darvis, 13 O. W. R. 375.

Co-sureties - Degrees of suretyship.]-The defendant and E. G. were joint makers of a promissory note given to M. for an in-debtedness of E. G. When this note fell due, E. G. and his brother, the plaintiff, signed a renewal note in favour of M., after promising the defendant that they would try to get M. to accept this renewal for the former note and so release the defendant. M., however, was not willing to release the defendant, and insisted on his joining in the new note. The plaintiff paid this when due, and claimed contribution of one-half the amount from the defendant. At the trial in the County Court, the Judge found that E. G. and the plaintiff agreed with the defendant to assume the debt due to M., and gave the note in question in pursuance of such agreement, and that the defendant signed the note as surety that it would be paid by one or other of the G's.; that the defendant was not a co-surety with the plaintiff, and therefore not liable to reimburse him in any amount :-- Held, on appeal, Phippen, J.A., dissenting, that the evidence did not support such finding, and that the defendant was liable as a co-surety.-Whiting v. Burke, L. R. 6 Ch. 345, and Ianson V. Paxton, 22 C. P. 505, followed. Grobb V. Darling, 7 W. L. R. 97, 17 Man. L. R. 211.

Implied obligation-Assignment-Right of action-Vendor and purchaser-Parties-Amendment.1-One G. agreed in writing to purchase certain lands from the plaintiff and paid $200 on account of the purchase money. He afterwards transferred his interest in the lands under the agreement to the defendant, by an assignment indorsed thereon, signed by himself, but not by the defend-ant. The defendant did not make any of the payments remaining due to the plaintiff under the agreement, and G. then assigned to the plaintiff "all and every covenant, agreement, and obligation of the said A. B. Mc-Clelland, of any and every nature and kind whatsoever, whether expressed in the assignment hereinbefore mentioned to the said Mc-Clelland or implied from any or all of the transactions between them, and also all ob-ligations both legal and equitable " of the defendant :-- Held, that, upon the plaintiff adding G. as a party defendant with his consent, for which leave was given, the plaintiff was entitled under the assignment from G. to him to recover from the defendant the amount remaining due under the original amount remaining oue under the original agreement of sale to G. Joint surveilss — Accommodation—Promissory note — Retirement of note — Preaumption as to payment—Relations between surveiles—Set-off.]—Where A., B., C., and D., shareholders in a company, by way of accommodation to the company, become jointly liable for a promissory note, and at maturity it is paid out of the proceeds of a second note signed by A. and B., but not by C. and D., which is ultimately redeemed by the company, no relation of creditor and debtor arises between A. and C., and the former cannot claim to have paid part of C.'s indebtedness. The fact that he holds the note, to which the latter was a party, is no evidence of such relation, especially when the signatures of all the parties to it have been cancelled, and his position of manager of the company makes it likely that he is possessed of the note as such. He cannot, therefore, set up a plen of compensation, founded on the above recited facts, to an action for debt brought against him by C. Lafontaine v. Léveillé, 16 Que, K. B. 515.

Joint tort-feasors-Negligence-Injury by electric wire-Remedy over - Municipal corporation — Electric company — Municipal Act, s. 609 (1).] — The plaintiff recovered judgment against two of the defendants, a town corporation (the appellants) and an electric company, for damages for the death of her husband by contact with a live wire in a street of the town. The appellants carried their fire alarm wires upon the poles of a telephone company. The electric com-pany carried their electric current by means of wires strung upon poles, at a lower level than the fire alarm wires. Through negligence on the part of the appellants the fire alarm wire was allowed to fall and remain upon or across the wires of the electric company, passing beneath. There were no guards between the two sets of wires, and the electric company's wires were either improperly insulated in the first instance, or had become worn, and were negligently left in that condition. The fire alarm wire resting upon the live electric wire, both were melted at the point of contact, and the severed live wire fell to the sidewalk and came in contact with the deceased. It was found that his death was due to separate acts of negligence on the part of the two defendants, the combined effect of which was to bring about the fatal result :---Held, that the appellants were not entitled at common law to contribution or indemnity from the electric company; nor were they so entitled under an agreement whereby the electric company undertook to indemnify and hold the appellants harmless against all damages, actions, etc., by reason of any danger or injury from the company's electrical system, if incurred by or consequent on the negligence of the company .-- Per Moss, C.J.O., that the rule against contribution between wrongdoers has not been qualified to the extent of entitling one who is himself a wilful or negligent wrong-doer to indemnity from another involved with him in causing the injury or wrong in respect of which indgment has gone against them. Merryjudgment has gone against them. Merry-weather v. Nixon (1799), 8 T. R. 186, applied.—Per Meredith, J.A., that s. 609 (1) of the Municipal Act, 3 Edw. VII. c. 19 (O.), did not apply to the claim of the ap-Judgment of Teetzel, J., 11 O. W. R. 501, affirmed. Sutton v. Town of Dundas, 17 O. L. R. 556, 13 O. W. R. 126.

Bill of sale-Estoppel-Misdirection.]-F. claimed to be the owner of a horse that S, had given her for the board of herself and child. S., being indebted to H., left the province, and H. seized the horse as the property of S. under an absconding debtor's warrant. While the horse was in the possession of the sheriff under the warrant, negotiations were had with H. by persons professing to be acting for F., and a bill of sale of the horse was given to H., and the horse was returned to F. The amount secured by the bill of sale not having been paid, H. seized the horse under the bill of sale, and F. brought an action in the Kent County Court against H. for a conversion of the horse. On the trial, the Judge told the jury that the only question was, who was the owner of the horse at the time it was taken, and that the plaintiff was not estopped by the a verdict entered on a finding on this direction, that the direction was right. Debt—Conversion—Small debt procedure —Tort waived—Goods sold—Rule 602.] — A claim for the value of goods converted by the defendant, the plaintiff expressly waiving the tort and suing as for goods sold and delivered, may be sued under the small debt procedure. The plaintiff, in his statement of claim under the small debt procedure, alleged that the defendant had wrongfully taken possession of a horse and converted it to his own use, and expressly waived the tort, and sued for goods sold and delivered, claiming $75, the value of the horse. An application to set aside the writ and service, upon the ground that the claim was not for one debt within the meaning of Rule 602, which brings "all claims and demands for debt whether payable in money or otherwise where when the amount claimed does not exceed $100," within the small debt procedure, was refused. The word "debt" is not restricted to "a sum certain or capable of being reduced to a certainty by calculation," but includes claim for value of goods sold where no price is mentioned. Henry v. O. c. 150.]-One McK., who was in the habit of taking orders from persons desirous of obtaining the plaintiffs' machines, and forwarding the or-ders to the plaintiffs to be filled, but who was not employed by the plaintiffs to sell their machines, by a course of falsehood and forgery obtained a machine from the plaintiffs, which he sold to the defendant, and the price of which he received from the defendant, who believed that he was purchasing from McK. and did not know the plaintiffs in the transaction, while the plaintiffs believed they were selling to the defendant, having received an order for the machine and a promissory note for the price, both pur-porting to be signed by the defendant, whose signature was forged by McK .:- Held, in an action for conversion of the machine, that McK. never had any title thereto, and therefore at common law could pass none to the defendant, and at common law there was no defence; nor was McK. an "agent" of the plaintiffs or "intrusted with the posof the machine, within the meaning session of R. Mining shares-No market value-Measure of damages - Estimate as if trial by jury.]-Defendant sold 20,000 shares of mining stock, having no market value, in breach of contract with plaintiff. Reference was had before Refere to assess damages to be awarded plaintiff for conversion of said shares. Referee fixed the amount at $8,000, or 40 cents per share, the highest price which had been obtained for such shar .s. He also found that defendant had paid plaintiff $5,100, which should be deducted from amount so assessed, and that the balance, $2,900, should bear interest at 5% from 17th March, 1909.—Meredith, C.J.C.P., held, that the above assessment was too high, and reduced the damages to 26 cents per share, the price obtained by defendant for such shares .- Divisional Court held (16 O. W 820, 21 O. L. R. 614, 1 O. W. N. 1131), that the sale was exceptional, and that plaintiff was entitled to damages, but the question should be dealt with as a jury probably would, taking into consideration the fact of a sale at a higher price than that obtained by defendant, and a fair assessment of damages would be to increase the assessment appealed from by $1,500 .- In re Bahia ment appealed from by $1,500,.../n re Bahia & San Francisco Ruc Co. Proof of plaintiff's title—Contract — Statute of Fraudas—Pleading,)—In an action for damages for the conversion of goods, the plaintiff must prove an unquestionable title in himself, and, if it appears that such title successfully urge that such contract is void under the Statute of Frauds, though no such defence is pleaded. It is only when the action is between the parties to the contract which one of them seeks to enforce against the other, that the defendant must plead the Statute of Frauds if he wishes to avail him self of it. Judgment in 32 N. S. R. 459, affirmed. Kent v. Ellis, 21 C. L. T. 153, 31 S. C. R. 110.

Parchase of goods-False pretences of supposed agent of purchaser - Contract-Consensus.]-H. fraudulently represented to the plaintiffs that he was the agent of the defendants sent by them to make a purchase of goods. He was not, in fact, in the defendants' employment; they did not send him to make the purchase, nor did they know he was going to make it; but, on the contrary, after he had so fraudulently obtained the goods, they purchased the goods from him and paid him in full without knowing where he had purchased. The goods were afterwards sold by the defendants in the ordinary course of business :--Held, that the property in the goods did not pass to the defendants, and they were liable to the plaintiffs for conver-sion. Sale by sheriff under execution-Action for conversion-Goods of pertnership -Misdirection-New trial.]-L. and P. each carried on business in Saint John, buying and selling fruit. P. was a licensed auction-To avoid competition between the paroor. ties, it was agreed that P. was to buy all the apples handled by either in the market square, L. to furnish the money when apples were purchased. All commissions on commission sales, and net profits on sales of apples purchased, were to be equally shared. Under this agreement P. purchased the cargo of the schooner C., some 342 barrels. After a part had been sold, the sheriff, under an execution in the suit of R. against P., seized and, without removing any of them, sold 62 At the sale the sheriff, in answer barrels. to a bidder, stated that he was selling P.'s interest only, and would guarantee nothing, and he did not deliver the barrels sold to the purchaser. In an action of trover, brought by L., in the St. John County Court against the sheriff for a conversion of the 62 barrels, the Judge told the jury that if they found that the apples were purchased under the agreement on the joint account of L. and P., there was a conversion, and the verdict should be for the plaintiff :- Held, on appeal, that the direction was wrong, and there must be a new trial. Ritchie v. Law, 37 N. B. R. 36.

Tenauts in common—Removal of chattel to foreign country.]—An action for conversion of his interest in a chattel lies by one tenant in common against his co-tenants in common if the chattel owned in common is destroyed by them, or so dealt with by them as, in effect, to put an end to his rights. In this case the removal of a brick making machine to a foreign country was held sufficient to support the right of action, the plaintiff's power of enforcing his rights in the Courts of this province being thus interfered with. L. R. 54, that there had been a conversion, wes reversed: per Barker, C.J., McLeod, Gregory, and White, J.J., Landry, J., dissenting. Donald v. Fulton, 39 N. B. R. 9, 6 E. L. R. 397.

The plaintiffs also asserted that, if it was the same, it was of very much less value than when converted : -Held, that the defendants were entitled, on motion, to an order permitting them to return the engine in question upon paying the costs of the action to date and of the motion within two weeks, and providing that if thereafter the plaintiffs should proceed to trial and should not recover more than nomthat had should not recover more than hom-imal damages, they should pay the costs sub-sequently incurred. Book-Absence of registration-Pirating -Injunction-Change of title.]-The author of a work not protected by registration as provided by law has no exclusive right of republication; and is not entitled to an injunction to restrain the republication and sale of the work by another without the author's consent, or to recover damages for such republication.—2. The fact that in republishing the work the title was changed to one which was disagreeable to the author and wounded his susceptibilities, does not give him the right to restrain the sale of such republication,-particularly where both the original work and the republication appeared under a pseudonym and it was not proved that the author was known to the public under such pseudonym. Angers v. Leprohon, 22 Que, S. C. 170.

Books - Infringement-Imperial Act-Colonics - Importation of foreign reprints-Assignment of proprietorship-Necessity for registration-Status to maintain action.]-At the time of an author's death he was the owner of and entitled to the copyright in a book for the British Dominions including Canada, and after his death such copyright and ownership was assigned and transferred to the plaintiffs by those upon whom they devolved. The defendants had imported copies of the book from the United States of America and were offering them for sale in Canada :—Hela, that s. 17 of the Imperial Act to amend the Copyright Act, 5 & 6 V. c. 45, prohibiting the importation of foreign reprints by any person, not being the proprietor of the copyright or some person au-thorised by him, is in force in Canada; and the plaintiffs were therefore entitled to prohibit the importation of foreign reprints into Canada .--- 2. But the plaintiffs had no right to maintain this action or proceeding, for, although they were the assignees of the proprietorship and ownership of the book, they had not complied with s. 24 of 5 & 6 V. c. 45 by causing an entry of their proprietorship to be made in the book of registry of the Stationers' Company; the word "proprietor" in s. 24 meaning the person who is the present owner of the work. Drawings-Publication in newspapers-British copyright — "Book" — Contract "Assign"—Foreign author—4 & 5 V. c. 45 (Imp.)-Infringement-Form of judgment-Injunction - Delivery up of copies.]-The plaintiffs claimed copyright in certain cartoon drawings and the accompanying titles and letter-press prepared for the plaintiffs by a celebrated artist, and first published simultaneously in the plaintiffs' newspaper in the United States and in another newspaper in England owned by one H., under agreements between H. and the plaintiffs, to which the artist was also a party. By the agreements H. was acknowledged to be the owner of the British copyright. H. granted a license to the artist to publish the draw-ings in book form in the United Kingdom. Entry was duly made at Stationers' Hall of H.'s ownership of the copyright of his newspaper. Subsequently this copyright was said to have been assigned by H. to H. & Sons, and before this action was brought H. & Sons registered eight copies of the newspaper containing the eight drawings and letterpress in question, and assignments thereof to the plaintiffs. Before this registration the defendants had, without the consent of the plaintiffs or their predecessors, printed in Canada for the purpose of sale a quantity of pictorial post cards, on which were reproduced copies of the eight drawings, taken from books published by the artist under the license mentioned, but not registered at Stationers' Hall. 'The artist was not a British subject, and was not, at the time of the presubject, and was not, at the time of the pre-paration or publication of the material in England, within any part of the British Do-minions. None of the material was protected by a Canadian copyright :--Held, that the effect of the agreements referred to was to vest in the plaintiffs the common law right to copyright in the drawings, and this right was validly transferred to H., who was an "assign" of the artist or author, within the meaning of s. 3 of the Imperial Copyright Act, 4 & 5 V. c. 45; and the English news-paper was a book within the meaning of that section, and H. became entitled thereunder to statutory copyright in the drawings as part of his book, for when drawings form part of a book they come within the provi-sions of that Act, and are protected not only as part of the book but as drawings.— Maple & Co. v. Junior Army and Nacy Stores, 21 Ch. D. 369, and Bradbury v. Hotten, L. R. S Ex. 1, followed:—Held, also, that the evidence sufficiently established the plaintiffs tilte to the copyright by re-assignment:—Held, also, that the present Copyright Act protects the productions of foreign authors wheresoever resident, where there is a first or contemporaneous publication within the Empire—Jeffries v. Boosey, 4 H. L. C. 815, and Routledge v. Low, L. R. 3 H. L. 100, discussed:—Held, therefore, that the plaintiffs were entitled to an injunction, and to delivery up of the infringing copies. — Judgment of Teetzel, J., affirmed. Life Publishing Co. v. Foreign reprints - Notice to English Commissioners of Customs — Entry at Sta-tioners' Hall — Encyclopædia—Prima facie evidence — Imperial Acts — Agreement — License—Assignment—Registration.] — Section 152 of the Imperial Customs Act, 1876, 39 & 40 V. c. 36, requiring notice to be given to the Commissioners of Customs, of copyright and of the date of its expiration, not in force in this country, notwithstanding the statement to the contrary in the note to table iv. of the appendix to vol. 3 of R. S. O. 1897. That statement is no part of the enactment of the legislature, but is intended merely as a reference, so that the Imperial Copyright Act of 1842, 5 & 6 V. c. 45, is left to its full operation; Garrow and Maclaren, J.J.A., dissenting. Smiles v. Belford, 1. A. R. 436, followed. A certified copy of the entry at Stationers' Hall of an encyclopædia is prima facie evidence of ownership under ss. 18 and 19 of the Act of 1842, and it is not necessary in making a prima facie case to prove the facts whereby such sections are made conditions precedent to the vesting of the copyright in one who is not the author. An agreement in writing whereby the plaintiffs, for value, gave certain other persons the right to print and sell a work at not less than certain fixed prices for the remainder of the term of the copyright, except the last 4 years thereof, and under which the plates used in printing were delivered over, which, with all unsold copies, were to be redelivered on the expiry of the agreement, and in which it was agreed not to announce the publication of another edition before such last mentioned period, expressly reserving the copyright to the plaintiffs:-Held, to be a license, and not an assignment and so not to require registration under s. 19 of 5 & 6 V. c. 45 (Imp.) Judgment in 5 O. L. R. 184, 23 C. L. T. 68, 1 O. W. R. 743, I Com. L. R. 417, 2 Com. L. R. 252, 2 O. W. R. 117, affirmed, Black v, Imperial Book Co., 8 O. L. R. 9, 3 O. W. R. 467, affirmed. Literary property-Dictionary-Nomenclature - Infringement - Evidence - Presumption. [-An historical., biographical, and geographical dictionary, containing a selection of articles treating in an original manner subjects taken from the public domain, may be the subject of copyright. It is the same with the nomenclature of such dictionary, it being the result of a work of choice The infringement may be shewn by any kind of evidence, and notably by the resemblance between the two works, but the presumption which results from that is less strong when the works in question are compilations. However, when, besides the resemblance, the animus furandi appears in the author of the second work, the presumption which results from it is evidence of infringement. It matters little that the second work is an improvement upon the first, and contains additional information, the improvements not effacing the wrong. Upon the question of literary property English furisprudence must prevail over French when there is a diverg-ence between the two. Judgments in 22 Que. S. C. 482, and 10 Que. K. B. 255, Com. L. Property in - Right of custody, control, and disposition — Exercise by execu-tor or relative—Remedy for invasion—Delay of railway company in delivering corpse — Damages-Expenses caused by delay-Men-tal anguish-Tort-Negligence.]-The plaintiff, the mother and executrix of a deceased man, shipped his body by the defendants' railway from Revelstoke to Bawlf, and accompanied the body. By a mistake of the defendants' servants, the body was put off the train at Banff, and did not arrive at Bawlf until a day later than it should have arrived, occasioning expense by postpone-ment of the funeral, etc. The plaintiff's luggage was also treated in the same way. and she was put to expense in consequence : - Held, that the proposition, accepted in English law, that there can be no property in a corpse, does not rest upon a sound foundation, and is not sustainable at least as a general proposition. The English decisions rest to a large extent upon ecclesiastical law. which has no application or effect in Alberta. -Review of the decisions .- The true rule is, that, inasmuch as there is a legal right of custody, control, and disposition, the law recognises property in a corpse, but property subject to a trust, and limited in its rights to such exercise as shall be in conformity with the duty out of which the rights arise. Pettigrew v. Pettigrew (1904), 207 Pa. 313 64 L. R. A. 179, approved .- The property in a corpse is subject, on the one hand, to the obligations of proper care and decent burial, and the restraints upon its voluntary or involuntary disposal and use provided by law, or arising out of the fact that the thing in question is a corpse; and, on the other hand, the nature and extent of the right or obligation of the person for the time being claiming property; and the Courts will give appro-priate remedies against interference with the right of custody, possession, and control of a corpse awaiting burial, pre-supposing a right of property therein, subject to the obligations and restrictions indicated :--Held, also, that the action was one of tort, for damages oc-casioned by the defendants' negligence; and the plaintiff was entitled to recover as damages not only the money loss occasioned by the mistake, but compensation for her mental anguish occasioned by the delay and the decomposition of the corpse.—Review of the authorities. An action for the costs of such a letter must be brought by the client, and not by the advocate who wrote it. Davidson v. Drolet, 9 Que, P. R. 372.

Amendment at trial-Counterclaim-Damages-Detention of goods.]-On the trial of an action for damages for the wrongful detention and conversion of the plaintiff's horse, judgment was given in favour of the plaintiff for detention, but the defendant's pleadings were amended to enable him to counterclaim for amounts paid to and on account of the plaintiff, and judgment was given in his favour for this amount with and the costs were offset :---Held, that the plaintiff should not have been made to pay costs of an amendment required by the defendant, and that the defendant should not have been allowed costs of a counterclaim put on the record to enable him to get the benefit of payments not put forward by a claim against the plaintiff.—There was no evidence to warrant the damages awarded to the plaintiff for detention of the horse, but it was held that, in the absence of an ap-peal, the judgment could not be disturbed. Cox v. McLean, 2 E. L. R. 291, 41 N. S. R. 238.

Appeal—"No order as to costs"—Meaning of.] — From an interlocutory order made in the action an appeal was taken. Before the hearing of the appeal, the plaintiff lost his interest in the case by allowing the mineral claim in question to lapse, and so the full Court "struck out the appeal no order as to costs." Subsequently the plaintiff's action was dismissed with costs, and the defendants claimed the costs of the appeal, which the Registrar disallowed on taxation:—Held, following In ver Hodgkinson, [1895] W. N. 85, that the statement "no order as to costs." means that each putty must pay his own costs. So also where the Court refuses to make any order as to costs. McCune v, Botsford, 22 C. L. T. 340, 9 B. C. R. 129. Appeal — Point not raised below.]— Where an appeal is allowed on a point of law not taken at the trial or in the notice of appeal, but open on the pleadings, it is not in strictness successful, and no costs of the appeal will be allowed, but as the appellant should have succeeded at the triat, he will be allowed the costs of it. White Co. v. Sandon Waterworks & Light Co., 10 B. C. R. 361.

Appeal—Practice.]—In interlocutory appeals, when a party is allowed costs, they are payable forthwith. Star Mining and Milling Co. v. White Co., 22 C. L. T. 104, 9 B. C. R. 9.

Appeal—Trifling success.]→A defendant appealed to the Superior Court in review from a judgment against him for the recovery of $115.55, and succeeded in reducing the amount of the judgment, but only by $5:→ Held, that he was entitled to the costs of the appeal against the plaintiff. Gamache v. Déchene, 3 Que, P. R. 329.

Appeal — Two notices of appeal by different parties—Costs of respondent.]—Where an appeal asserted by the assignor and the principal beneficiary from a judgment in favour of the planitif in an action to set aside an assignment under 13 Eliz. c. 5. had been dismissed:—Held, that only one bill of costs should be taxed, though two notices of appeal had been given. Taylor v. McKinnon, 40 N. S. R. 124.

Appeal from award-Five grounds of appeal-Success on one-" Event "-Statutes -Construction.]-Sam Kee, having obtained an award from arbitrators appointed under the Railway Act, 1903 (Dominion), which by reason of s. 162 of the Railway award. Act, 1903, entitled him to the costs of the arbitration, the railway company appealed to the full Court, advancing several distinct grounds of appeal, on all of which with the exception of that relating to the rate of interest allowed by the arbitrators, they failed, the interest being reduced to the statutory rate, from six per cent, to five per cent:--Held, Irving, J., dissenting that the word "event" in s. 100 of the Supreme Court Act, 1904, may be read distributively .-- 2 That s. 162 of the Railway Act, 1903 (Dominion), does not apply to costs of appeals to the full Court from the award of arbitrators, but that such appeal is an independent proceeding, and is therefore governed by a. 100 of the Supreme Court Act. 1904.—3. That the success of the appellant company "issue" arising on the appeal, and not an "event" on which it was taken. Vancouver, Westminster and Yukon Rue. Co. v. Sam Kee, 12 B. C. R. 1; Re Sam Kee, 3 W. L. R. 8, on the question of interest was merely an "issue" arising on the appeal, and not an Appeal on merits where only costs involved, Holmes v. Goderich, 1 O. W. R. 367, 814.

Appeal to Court of Appeal-Parties -Added plaintiff. Murray v. Wurtele, 1 O. W. R. 298, 353.

Appeal to Court of Review-Discretion of trial Judge. 1-The Court of Review (Quebee) will not alter the order as to costs of the Judge of first instance, unless the latter has unde an unreasonable use of the discretion which the law allows him. Re Hurtabiae & Birks, 26 Que. 8, C. 137.

Appeal to full Conrt-Supreme Court Act, 1996, s. 100-" Benert"-Schofg, I-By s. 100 of the Supreme Court Act, 1904, the legislature provided an automatic code for the disposition of the costs of all trials, hearings, and appeals in the Supreme Court, and swept away all discretion save in relation to the specific exception set out in s. 100.--Therefore, in an action relating to the validity of a will, the full Court could not order that the costs of an appeal thereto should be paid out of the estate, but was confined to a strict observance of the section. But, there being two distinct appeals, the Court could and ought to distribute the costs according to the event of each, and, success being divided, to order a set-off. Hopper v. Dusmanier, 12 B. C. R. 18, 3 W. L. R. 35.

Appeal to Privy Council-Costs incurred in Canada—Taxation — Order for — Rules 818, 1255.]—Appeal by plaintiffs from an order of Falconbridge, C.J., upon a peti-tion of defendants, directing that it should be referred to the senior taxing officer to ascertain the amount to which the petitioners were entitled under the terms of the order of the Privy Council of 10th December, 1901. with reference to the costs incurred in Canada in relation to an appeal to the Judicial Committee, and directing plaintiffs to pay to defendants the costs of the petition and reference: - Held, dismissing the appeal with costs, that Rule 1255 (S18a) simply gives effect to R. S. O. 1897, Ch. 48 s. 7, and does not carry the procedure beyond what is therein provided for. It is a rule of procedure and applies, but even without Rule 1255. plaintiffs are entitled under the above Act and Rule 818, to have the costs ascertained "as if the decision had been given in the Court below." Earle v. Burland, 5 O. W. R. 629, 9 O. L. R. 663.

See also 1 O. W. R. 527, 2 O. W. R. 769, 3 O. W. R. 702, 23 C. L. T. 276, 24 C. L. T. 355, 8 O. L. R. 174.

Appeal to Privy Connell — Practice-Esecution-Stay-Set-off of other costs or damages.)—When costs of appeal to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Connell have been awarded by the judgment of that tribunal, they are not subject to the rules of practice of the lower Courts; there is no right of set-off, and no right to modify the direction to pay, which means forthwith after the amount is fixed, unless by application made to the Committee before final judgment is completed.—Rausell v. Russell, [1598] A. C. 307, applied and followed.—The plaintiffs, having been ordered by the Judicial Committee to pay the costs of the defendancs' appeal to that tribunal, were held not entitled to a stay of execution for such costs in the Court below (the High Court), with a view to a set-off of other costs or of damages to be recovered upon a new trill ordered by the Judicial Committee. Metallic Roofing Co. v. Jose, C. R. [1999] A. C. 1, 12 O. W. R. 670, 17 O. L. R. 237.

Application for security.]—On principle and by practice costs of an application for security for costs are made costs in the cause and given to the party finally succeeding in the litization. In an action brought against defendant applied for security on the ground that the relator named was a person against whom costs could not be recovered, and that the proceedings were really brought on behalf of the trustees: —Held, that defendant, as the party finally succeeding, was entitled to costs of the application. Atty-Gen. for N. S. v. Cameron (1998), 43, N. S. R. 49.

Attachment against next friend for non-payment of costs-Rule for-Practice. McGaw v. Fisk, 39 N. B. R. 1, 6 E. L. R. 373.

Attorney's Ices—Discretion.] — The fee to be allowed attorneys upon questions of law submitted to the Court under Art. 500, C. P., is in the discretion of the Court, Pare v. County of Shefford, 24 Que. S. C. 50.

Attorney's fees upon interventions.] -By virtue of par. 13 of Art. 46 of the tarifi, the fees payable upon an intervention are of the class of action represented by the amount claimed by such intervention. Gelinas V. Finkelstein & Lafond (1910), 16 R. de J. 527.

Avarding costs against partly successful plaintiff—Discretion—Excess.] — Semble, that when the plaintiff's claim, consisting of two grounds of action, is maintained as to one and rejected as to the other, a judgment for costs of the contestation against the plaintiff as regards the ground upon which he fails, is in excess of the discretionary power of Courts in the matter of costs. Boursier v. Bergevin, 34 Que, 8. C. 97.

Company - Winding-up - Costs of alleged contributories payable out of assets-Deficiency—Costs of petitioning creditors— Liquidator's costs and compensation — Priority-Abatement.]-On the application of the liquidator of a company directed to be wound up, an order was made by a local Judge directing two persons to be placed on the list of contributories, which was affirmed by a Judge of the High Court and by the Court of Appeal, but was reversed by the Supreme Court of Canada with costs to be paid by the liquidator as well of that Court as of the prior appeals :- Held, that the successful appellants were entitled to their costs out of the assets of the estate in priority to those incurred by the liquidator-the reasonableness of the liquidator's claim forming no element in the matter-but subject to certain costs payable by the liquidator to the petitioning creditors, and to such costs of litigation as were incurred by the liquidator in the realisation of certain assets, as well as a reasonable sum as compensation for his care and trouble in such realisation, payable out of the assets so realised. Re Baden Machinery Co., 12 O. L. R. 634, 8 O. W. R.

Company-Winding-up. Morton Co. v. Ont. Acc. Ins. Co. (1910), 1 O. W. N. 364.

Conclusion of litigation.] — There is no fixed rule in British Columbia that in all cases costs of interlocutory proceedings shall not be payable until the conclusion of the litigation. Jones v. Davenport, 7 B, C, R, 452.

Contestation as to costs—Costs of,]— A party who prays that the costs of an application be borne by another party, who is under no obligation to him, thereby forcing the latter to appear and contest, will be condemned to pay the costs of such contestation. Gingeras v, Boon, 6 Que, P. R. 37.

Conviction-Discharge of prisoner-Order for payment by informant.] -- The defendwas convicted for stealing the property ant of B., and was sentenced to be imprisoned in the city prison of the city of Halifax. An order made by the Judge of a County Court, under N. S. Acts of 1897 c. 32, s. 2, for the defendant's discharge, under a writ of habeas corpus, directed that the informant B. pay to the defendant his costs of the application and order for his discharge. There was nothing to shew that B. was the informant, except a statement to that effect in the affidavit of the defendant, upon which the application for the order was made, which was not borne out by either the conviction or the commitment :---Held, that the order was wrong, and must be set aside. Per Meagher, J., that B, was not bound to appear in answer to the summons for the writ of habeas corpus, and that the fact of his not appearing was not to be regarded as conduct or acquiescence justifying the imposition of costs. Quare, also, whether the Judge had jurisdiction to make the order. Regina v. Bowers, 34 N, S. R. 550.

Conviction — Motion to quash.]—In a motion to quash a conviction, such conviction being in a criminal matter, and not merely for a penalty imposed by or under provincial legislation, no jurisdiction is conferred on the High Court to give costs to the applicant against the prosecutor or magistrate, R_{ex} v, Beamett, 22 C, L, T, 290, 4 O, L, R, 205, 1 O, W, R, 390.

Costs in the cause — Counterclaim — Distributive reading. Kirk v. Kirk, 40 N. S. R. 600.

Costs of amendment — Discretion of Court below.]—The disposition of costs occasioned by the amendment of a clerical error is within the discretion of the Court of first instance, and, unless that discretion is reviewed, it will not be interfered with by the Court of Appeal. Forcier v. Bélanger, 16 Que. K. B. 289.

Costs of plaintiff in principal action —Payment by defondant—Recovery from defendant in nearanty — Taxation—Notice.]— Where a principal defendant, plaintiff in warnanty, has paid the costs of the principal action, he can recover them from the defendant and in warranty, who has been condemned to pay, after these costs have been regularly taxed and notice given to the defendant in warranty by the principal plaintiff. Malo v, Monette, 9 Que, P. R. 315.

Connsel fee Increased — Fiat for — Application to Judge—Pracedure applicable— Frinciples governing.]—No formal summons is necessary on an application for increased connsel fee; merely a letter notifying the other side of intention to apply at a time mutually convenient is sufficient. Applicant should have a certificate from the registrar shewing dates and extent of sittings and the highest fee taxable by the resistrar. These facts should be submitted without any argument. Observations on the reasons which will be taken into consideration. Bryce v. Can. Pac. Rev. Co. (1907), 14 B. C. R. 155.

Counterclaim-Relief obtainable without cross-action-Interlocutory costs - Order of revivor.]-The counterclaim of a defendant, properly so-called, is a claim by the defendant for a relief which cannot be obtained by him in the action; and calling a claim made by the defendant a counterclaim cannot make it one .- The plaintiff claimed a declaration that his interest as a chargee upon land could not be sold under the power in the defendant's mortgage upon such land and, in the alternative, that he was entitled to redeem the defendant. By her pleading in answer the defendant alleged certain facts justifying her right to exercise the power of sale, and "by way of counterclaim" claimed payment of her mortgage, sale or foreclosure, possession, costs, and damages. The action was at the trial dismissed with costs, and the counterclaim was also dismissed with costs, the defendant not desiring a foreclosure, which she was offered :---Held, that the relief claimed by the defendant was obtainable by her in the action brought against her, and was not the subject of a cross-action or counterclaim; and the only costs taxable by the plaintiff against the defendant were such costs as were occasioned to the plaintiff by reason of the claim made by the defendant, treating it as a claim pro perly made in the action and dismissed; and such costs should be set off pro tanto against the defendant's costs of the dismissal of the action. The judgment dismissing the "coun-terclaim" with costs meant that such costs should be taxed as were appropriate to it in its true character.-Semble, that in this Pro-vince the law as to set-off is different from the English law, and here a set-off should not be treated as a counterclaim nor be pleaded as such :---Held, also, that such costs were interlocutory costs within the meaning of Rule 1165; and, if not, that they were costs fall-ing within Rule 1164, and subject to the discretion of the taxing officer in setting them off against the defendant's costs of the action .- Held, also, that costs of an order of revivor obtained by the plaintiff after judg-ment in order to tax his costs should be taxed to him and added to his other costs and set-off against the defendant's costs. Girardot v. Welton, 20 C. L. T. 231, 257, 19 P. R. 162, 201.

Counterclaim—Several issues — Divided success. Hekla v. S. Cunard & Co., 40 N. S. R. 611.

County Court — Appeal.] — Action brought in a County Court to recover $155.98 dise upon a promissory note. Defence, as to $122, payment and set-off; but no defence was set up to the residue of the demand. The Judge found in the defendant's favour on the question of payment and set-off, but refused the defendant the costs of suit, because the balance of $53.98, which the defendant did not deny was due to the plainit iff.—On appeal, the defendant vas allowed his costs of suit in the County Court. Kendail v. Benzon, 20 C. L. T. 408.

County Court—Appeal—Forum.]—This action was brought in a County Court for alleged false imprisonment. The plaintiff made a motion to strike out the defendant's notice of defence, which was granted. The defendant appealed against the order to the Supreme Court, and the appeal was allowed with costs. Subsequently the plaintiff secured a judgment.—This was an application by the defendant for an order to set off his costs of appeal against the plaintiff's judgment:—Held, that the application should be to the County Couft: s. 75 of 60 V. c. 28. Anderson v. Share, 20 C. L. T. 18.

County Court or High Court scale— County Courts Act, s. 23 (1, 8).1—Actions for the recovery of or treepass or injury to land where the value of the land exceeds $200 are not within the jurisdiction of the County Court, therefore costs of such actions should be insed on the High Court scale. Ross v, Vokes (1909), 14 O. W. R. 1142, 1 O. W. N. 261.

Court en banc—Application to fix disbursements—Travelling expenses.]—It is not proper to make a formal application to the Court en banc to fix a counsel fee in a case argued before it. If the marking of the fee is overlooked by the Court, it would be proper for counsel to draw attention, either in open Court or otherwise, to the omission, and, as a matter of courtesy only, to notify counsel on the other side of his intention.—No allowance can be made to counsel for travelling expenses. Hull v. Donohue (No. 2), 2 Terr. L. R. 351.

Criminal Hbel—Depositions not used at trial—Abortive trial.]—The prosecution was for criminal libel, and the defendant, in support of his plea of justification, obtained a commission and had the evidence of certain witnesses out of the jurisdiction taken, for use at the trial. The order granting the commission provided that the costs of the commission be reserved to be dealt with by the trial Judge. The evidence was used at the first trial, and the jury disarred. At the third trial the jury again disarred. At the third trial the defendant was acquitted, but the evidence was not used, owing to the private prosecutor giving evidence and admitting substantially what was stated by the winesses in their depositions before the commissioner:—Held, that, as the commission evidence was not put in by the defendant as part of his case, the defendant should not have the costs of it:—Held, also, that the defendant was not entitled to the costs of the abortive trials. Rex v. Nichol, 22 C. L. T. 75, 8 B. C. R. 276.

Damages—Action for specific performance of contract for sale of land—Sale by defendant to another—Contract by plaintiff to sell to another—Costs recoverable as damages—Quantum of costs—Fufilment of contract after action brought. Hill v. Barueis, 7 W. L. R. 428, Declaration of garnishee—Striking out —Option]—A garnishee having made default in the completion of his declaration, the attaching creditor made a motion to strike out such declaration or to give the garnishee the option of continuing and completing it: —Held, that the costs of such motion should be paid by the garnishee. Garbacht v. Silverman, 4 Que, P. R. 439.

Defamation—Verdict for defendant—Depriving defendant of costs—Discretion—Rule 1130—Good cause. Byers v. Kidd, 8 O. W. R. 759.

Defamation.]—In a slander action the plaintiff recovered $1 damages:—Held, on appeak, that the Libel Act, R. S. M. (1902), c. 97, s. 13, and Man, K. B. Rule 931 (a) are no longer law, and that costs will only be entered on the judgment of the trial Judge or perlaps of the Court. Full costs, as provided by 7 & 8 Ed, VII., c. 12, s. 3, certified to, Shillinglave V, Whiller, 12 W. L. R. 128.

Defence of infancy-Prejudice. Simcon v. Gullivan, 40 N. S. R. 597.

Defence to eriminal charge—Acquittcl—Action gainst prosecutor for costs— Taration by Judge.]—The plaintiff had been criminally prosecuted by the defendant for a libel, and had been acquitted by the verdict of a jury. At the time the verdict was given no demand was made for costs against the prosecutor; and the plaintiff afterwards brought this action to recover the costs of his defence to the criminal proceedings. The Judge who tried this action ordered that the costs in question should be taxed by the Judg who had presided at the criminal trial, came on for hearing :—Held, that the plaincame on for hearing :—Held, that the plaintiff could claim his costs and disbursements against the defendant by an ordinary action, although he had not asked costs at the time the verdict was rendered. 2. That the Judge who had presided at the criminal trial could, even after such trial, tax the costs. Mackay v, Hughes, 19 Que, S. C. 367.

Defendants severing—Liability to plaintiff.]—Reference to a Judge under Rule 801by the District Registrar at Nelson on taxtion of a bill of costs. The defendants separated in their defence, and the judgment was for the plaintiff against all the defendants : —Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to costs against the defendants jointly, and each defendant was liable for the costs of his separate defence, but not liable for any costs occasioned solely by the other. Stumm v. Dison, 32 Q. R. D. 89, followed. Merchants Bank v. Houston, 20 C. L. T. 48, 7 B. C. L. R. 352, Defendants severing — Trustees—One set of costs. Jones v. Jones, 40 N. S. R. 598.

Depositions—Copies—Appeal — Costa in cause.]—Where the costs of transcription of depositions are incurred by reason of an inscription for review or appeal, they must be paid by the party who fails, because they are part of the costs of the cause. Lauzon v. Corporation du Canton de la Minerce, 9 Que. P. R. 151.

Depriving defendant of costs-Discretion-Good cause-Rule 430 (4)-Appeal.]-Plaintiff, a widow, claimed insurance under policies on her late husband's life, in favour of his mother, which by his dying declaration and attempted disposition she was to receive $1,500, and that if these policies were not altered by Mr. A. through illness and reliance on the assurance that his wishes would be carried out, it would be a fraud upon her. The solicitor for the plaintiff wrote Joseph Armstrong, the deceased husband's brother, requesting a settlement. He replied that the policies were always in favour of the mother and refused settlement. Action was menced against mother of her husband. Action was com-After it was discovered that the policies had been Moassigned by mother to her son Joseph. tion was then made under Rule 430 (4) to discontinue action without costs. Motion granted owing to the letters written to the Motion plaintiff's solicitor, which deceived him by lending him to believe the policies were in the mother's name, which was not true. Armstrong v. Armstrong, 4 O. W. R. 223, 301, 25 C. L. T. 74, 9 O. L. R. 14.

Depriving successful party—Conduct —Acquisescnee—Custom,]—In an action for damages for an alleged interference with a fishing berth, judgment was given in favour of the defendant, but he was deprived of costs, it appearing that both the defendant and plaintiff acted throughout as if they thought the fishing berth in controversy was in Lunenburg county; that it had, up to the time of action, been under the charge and control of Lunenburg officers; that the defendant attempted to take it up according to the custom of fishermen followed in that county; that he attended before the fishery officers of that county when they attempted to settle the dispute between himself and the plaintiff, and did not question their jurisdiction; and that the defence that the berth was not in Lamenburg but in Queen's county was not pleaded, nor the objection taken until the trial:—Held, that this was not a case in which the discretion of the trial Judge should be reviewed. Semble, that the parties were bound by the custom assented to by them and the decision of the fisheries officer. Selig v. Nove, 36 N. S. Reps. 09.

Depriving successful party—*Defama-*tion—"Good cause."]—In an action for libel by the publishers of a newspaper against the publishers of another newspaper, arising out of statements as to their respective circulations, the trial Judge found on the facts that the statements made in the defendants' newspaper was not established; but he came to the conclusion that there had been no special damage suffered by the plaintiffs' newspaper in consequence of the statement, and gave judgment dismissing the action without costs : -Held, that under the Rule governing costs in British Columbia, as distinguished from that in force in England, the trial Judge must find good cause for depriving a successful party of his costs; and here there was not such good cause, World Publishing Co. v. Vancouver Publishing Co., 13 B. C. R. 220.

Depriving successful party-Defamation—Verdict for defendant — Discretion.]— In the exercise of his discretion in depriving a successful defendant of his costs, the trial Judge is not obliged to find, under Con. Rule 1130, what would necessarily be " good cause under the English Order 65, Rule 1; at the same time he must not exercise his discretion arbitrarily, but for a reason which reasonably satisfies him that it should be so exer cised .- In an action of slander a successful defendant was disallowed his costs, where the trial Judge was satisfied that the defendant by his conduct had provoked the litigation, and had really made use of the words attributed to him, notwithstanding the finding of the jury to the contrary, and had refused to carry out a proposed settlement which he had at first acceded to, and the jury had intimated that the costs should be equally divided between the parties. Byers v. Kidd, 8 O. W. R. 759, 13 O. L. R. 396.

Depriving successful party.] — Held, varying the decision in 14 Que, S. C. 153, that the consanguinity of the parties, the state of their fortunes (e.g., the poverty of the losing party and wealth of the opposite party), and the good faith of the party who fails, are not sufficient reasons for saving that party from being mulet in costs. Claude, v. Claude, 17 Que, S. C. 130.

Depriving successful party — Nolle prosequi—Powers of trial Judge.]—Where a nolle prosequi had been entered as to certain defendants before trial, and a verdict was afterwards obtained against the remaining defendant, the trial Judge, under s. 373 of the Supreme Court Act, granted a certificate depriving the first mentioned defendants of Depriving snecessful party-43 Eliz. c. 6.—County Courts.).—The statute 43 Eliz. c. 6. authorising a Judge to certify to deprive a plaintiff of costs, is in force in New Brunswick, and is made applicable to County Courts by s. 68 of the County Courts Act, 1897. Warman v. Crystal, 35 N. B. R., 562.

Desistment from action—New action —Partnership — Costs of former action.]— A plaintiff who has desisted from an action against a single defendant, will not be ordered to pay the costs of that action before beginning a new action based upon the same claim against a commercial partnership of which the original defendant was a member, 8.t. Laurent v, Doran, 5 Que, P. N. 449, Discontinuance — Judgment.] — When a party who discontinues does not pay the costs at the time of discontinuance, the opposite party is entitled, upon setting down the cause, to a judgment for costs. Star Iron Uo. v. Barter, 3 Que. P. R. 178.

Discontinuance before appearance— Right of defendant to tax costs incurred by him. McLorg v. Johnston (N.W.P.), 6 W. L. R. 369.

Discretion-Appeal-Canada Temperance Act.]-In an action against a police constable and a Canada Temperance Act inspector for the wrongful seizure and detention of a quantity of intoxicating liquors, the evidence shewed that the liquors were seized upon the premises of S., who had been several times convicted and fined for violations of the Canand Temperance Act. Both the plaintiff and S. swore that the liquors in question were the property of the plaintiff and were not kept for sale. In the absence of any evidence to the contrary, the trial Judge gave judg-ment in favour of the plaintiff for a return of the goods, but deprived him of costs on the ground of doubt as to the truthfulness of the evidence, and suspicion as to the purpose for which the liquor was meant to be used:— Held, Townshend, J., dissenting, that the illegal purpose was relevant, and there was no reason for interfering with the discretion of the Judge. Fraser v. Watters, 2 E. L. R. 374, 41 N. S. R. 201.

Discretion-Appeal to Supreme Court of Nova Scotia.]-In an action brought by the plaintiff against the defendant for the conversion of a two-masted schooner, the "May-flower," the trial Judge found that the property claimed was that of the plaintiff, when taken by the defendant, but he deprived the plaintiff of costs on the ground of fraudulent proceedings in connection with the prosecution of his claim .- It appeared that some time previously the defendant recovered judgment against the plaintiff, and issued execution, under which the property in question was levied upon, and that, at the instance of the plaintiff, an action was brought by his wife to recover the property, alleging it to whe to recover the property, alleging it to be hers. Afterwards, the judgment recov-ered by the defendant against the plaintiff having been set aside, the plaintiff brought this action in his own name:--Held, that the Judge's discretion was properly exercised, and that, on a question of fact, and especially a question of costs, it should not be reviewed. Jonkins V, McAdam, 38 N. S. R. 124.

Dismissal of action—Contestation au fond—No occasion for—Costs of inscription in law. See McDowall v. Wilcock, 16 Que. K. B. 459.

Dismissal of action—Costs of declinatory exception—Bringing in guarantor.]—A plaintiff whose action has been dismissed with costs, "except, however, the costs occasioned by the appeal en guarantic," is nevertheless responsible for the costs of the declinatory exception taken by the principal defendant, whose action en guarantie has also been dismissed, for the purpose of bringing in his suarantor. Robert y. Rocheleau, 4 Que, P. R. 39.

Dismissal of action — Disposition of costs reserved at abortive trial—Conduct of parties. Sheard v. Menge, 9 O. W. R. 45.

Distraction — Advocate — Security — Deposit—Withdraval — Costs of party making deposit.]—An advocate who has obtained distraction of costs in his favour under a judgment of the Court of Review may immediately withdraw the deposit made by the party who has inscribed in review. He has a right to this amount even if the judgment of the Court of Review is reversed by the Court of Appeal. The party who has made such deposit cannot set off against the advocate, who has withdrawn it, certain costs of a seizure which the latter has caused to be made against such party and which the Court of Appeal has specially granted to him. Deliale v. McCrea, 7 Que, P. R. 300.

Divided success. Cairns v. Murray, 1 E. L. R. 93.

Equal by both parties. [--Where a trial had been granted principally on public grounds, the costs were ordered to be borne equally by the parties. Mecham v. Brine (1817), Wakeham's Nifd. Qa. 31.

Event of action—Imperative rule—Discretion—Mitigation—Good cause,]—The rule that the party who fails must pay the costs is imperative, and the Court has no discretionary power to reduce the costs or set them off except for special cause, which must appear in the judgment. Croteau v. Arthabaska Water and Power Co., 31 Que, S. C. 516.

Execution—Party to cause—Consent of advocate — Opposition.] — In order that a party may have execution against the opposite party for his costs, as to which there is a distraction in favour of his advocate, it is necessary that the consent of the advocate should appear by writing upon the fait, the writ of execution, and the proces-verbal of the seizure.—2. If this consent in writing does not appear as above, the party issuing execution, not being a creditor for these costs, cannot seize in his own name, and therefore an opposition to the seizure based upon this default is well founded and will be maintained. Judgment in 22 Que. 8. C. 202, reversed. Martin v. Arthabasca, 23 Que. 8. C. 297. 34

Fisheries Act - Conviction-Penalty-Remission by Minister of Crown-Power to remit costs-Magistrate - Mandamus.]-R. was convicted under s. 18 of the Fisheries Act, as amended by the Act of 1898, and fined $20 and costs. Both fine and costs were remitted under s.-s. 6 of s. 18, which provides that "persons aggrieved by any such conviction may appeal by petition to the Minister of Marine and Fisheries, who may remit penalties and restore forfeitures under this Act." G., the prosecutor, applied to the convicting magistrate for a warrant of distress for the costs, contending that the Minister of Marine and Fisheries had no power to remit the costs. The magistrate refused to issue the warrant, and a mandamus was moved for :-Held, by Tuck, C.J., Han-ington and McLeod, JJ., that the Minister had no power to remit the costs, and it was the duty of the magistrate to issue the warrant of distress for their recovery, and that the mandamus should go :--Per Barker and Gregory, J.J., that, the penalty having been remitted, the magistrate had no power to proceed to collect the costs; or, at all events, his right was so doubtful that the Court, in the exercise of its discretion, should refuse the mandamus. Per Landry, J., that the term "penalties" in the section included costs as well as fine, and the Minister therefore had power to remit the costs. The Court being thus equally divided, the rule for the mandamus dropped. Ex p. Gilbert, 36 N. B. R. 492.

Foreign commission.] —Where a rogatory commission is issued to another province, or to a foreign country, and the parties do not annex intercoratories and cross-interrogatories thereto, but consent that the commission shall be an open one, and that the witnesses shall be examined directly before the commission, such consent does not justify the taxation against the losing party of counsel fees, for attendance before the commission,—the tariff not making any provision for such case. Good cause to refuse costs.]--The fact that jury only allowed plaintiff $400, is not in itself "good cause" within meaning of Rule 170 for Judge to deprive plaintiff of his costs. Potter & McDougall v. Grierson (1900), 10 W. L. R. 610; 2 Alta, L. R. 128.

Grounds-Evidence.]-The plaintiffs sued in trover and definue for certain articles which they claimed as administrators of the estate of G. B. The defendants were husband and wife, the latter being a daughter of G. B. They pleaded that the chattels belonged to them, and, alternatively, belonged to each of them. At the close of the plaintiffs' case the trial Judge dismissed the action as against the female defendant, but refused to give her costs, for three reasons : (1) because she had claimed to own the personal property in the suit: (2) because she did not apply for letters of administration of her father's estate, but allowed the same to remain unrepresented for a long period; (3) because her conduct contributed to the bringing of the action by the plaintiffs, and to allow her costs would be to assist the other defendant in relieving himself of his liability to the plaintiffs for their damages and costs. The female defendant appealed from this decision refusing her costs :--Held, that the action was improperly brought against her, and upon its dismissal she was entitled to costs; that none of the reasons given by the trial Judge were sufficient, upon the facts in evidence, to justify the refusal of costs. Watt v. Logan, 40 N. S. R. 340.

Incidental demand—Review—Review for principal action—Reservation of costs.]—The plaintiff in an incidental action brought to compel the representatives of a deceased party to continue the suit, is entitled, if successful, to a condemnation for costs independently of the result of the principal damand, and adjudication thereof should not be reserved to be made by the final judgment in the case. ject to the disposition of the trial Judge, and under the judgment were not to be taxed to the plaintiff :--Held, also, that "costs in the cause to the successful party" did not mean more than costs in the cause; and, even if it did, the plaintiff was not a successful party. Judgment after third trial—Costs of previous trials—Counsel fee—Order for judgment—Form of.]—On a motion by the plaintiff for an order for judgment on the verdict of the third trial of the action, a question arose as to the right to the costs of the former trials, and also as to the form of the order, the question of damages having been referred to a special referee:—Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to an order for an interlocutory judgment, in the form in Chitty's Forms. 2. That a counsel fee could pot be fixed. The former rule as to costs of the previous trials is not now law. It seems to have been a Rule of Court, Hilary Term, 1853, and there was also an express Rule in 1855, and there was also an express Kule in the C. L. P. Act, 1854. Creen v. Wright, 2 C. P. Paquette v. Pyke, 16 Que. S. C. 403.

Lien-Creditors' action to preserve fund.] -Costs incurred in a creditors' action in preserving for creditors property which had been fraudulently transferred, are a first lien upon the fund recovered, and are allowed as be-tween solicitor and client. Hood v. Tyson, In re Judgments Acts, 9 B. C. R. 233.

Lien-Salvage-Partition-Property made insaisissable.]-The defendant and his mother owned certain immovables in undivided shares. The defendant's undivided portion had been devised to him by his father à titre d'aliments and with a clause making it insaisissable, and burdened with a substi-tution. R., the mother's advocate, brought an action of partition of these immovables against the defendant and the curator of the substitution. By the judgment in that action the lands were divided, and three-fourths of the costs were to be paid by the defendaut. R., to recover his costs against the defendant, had caused to be seized an undivided third of the immovables which by C.C.L.-32

the partition fell to the lot of the defendant. The plaintiffs, the advocates of the defendant. had made opposition to R.'s seizure, alleging that he had been paid and invoking the insaisissabilité clause. R. plended that he had not been paid, and that the clause did not apply to his debt, his services having preserved the property to the opposants. opposition was dismissed, and the undivided third was sold. R. had his costs of the oppo-sition taxed at $125.57, but upon revision the amount was reduced to $54.57. The plaintiffs now sued the defendant for their costs of the opposition which they had made for him and their costs of the motion for the revision of R.'s costs, and obtained judgment for $147.80, under which they caused to be seized the remaining two-thirds of the defendant's portion of the immovables. He made an opposition, invoking the insaisissabilité clause. The plaintiffs pleaded to the opposition that their debt was for costs which they had incurred in good faith to protect the first third from R.'s seizure, which made it an alimentary debt; that it mattered not that the opposition to R.'s seizure had been dismissed; and that their debt was a first charge upon all the alimentary property of the defendant :—Held, that, as R. did not contest the insaiaissabilité clause, but only said that it did not apply to his debt, the opposition to R.'s seizure was of no utility as regards the property seized in this action. any more than as regards that seized by R .: that there was no relation between the claim of the plaintiffs for their costs and the property seized in this action; and, therefore, the claim of the plaintiffs was not alimentary nor was it a charge upon property which was insaisissable. Pouliot v. Michand, 20 Que. S. C. 432.

Mechanics' and Wage-earners' Lien Act-Costs subsequent to judgment.]-Action to enforce liens under the Mechanics' and Wage-earners' Lien Act, R. S. M. 1902 c. 110. At the trial judgment was given in favour of the plaintiffs, declaring that Humphries was entitled to $240.60, and Philp, another plaintiff, to $81.65. The costs of the plaintiffs down to and including the trial, were taxed at $190.16 and inserted in the judgment. The defendant was ordered to pay the above sums; in default the lands to be sold, with a reference to the Master. The lands were sold and the purchase money paid into Court. The plaintiffs then brought in a subsequent bill of costs covering the proceedings subsequent to the judgment, which bill was taxed at $229.30, inclusive of disbursements. the subsequent costs together amounted to $419.16, of which $228.75 was costs other than disbursements, while the total amount the liens enforced amounted to only $322.25. The defendant appealed from the taxation of the plaintiffs' subsequent bill of costs, contending that under the Act the plaintiffs were entitled to costs only to an amount equal to 25 per cent. of the amount of the judgment, besides actual disbursements, and that the amount of costs allowed far exceeded this :--Held, that a plaintiff seeking to enforce a lien may do so by an action in the King's Bench, following the ordinary procedure in actions in that Court. Nothing in the Act ousts the general jurisdiction of the Court to enforce a lien. The plaintiff may, instead of following the ordinary procedure, adopt the summary procedure, in ss. 31, 32. In the present case the judgment was drawn up in a very peculiar manner, an attempt being made to adopt the form of judgment upon a summary trial, although the action was set down and tried in the ordinary manner. The sale was carried out by the manner. The sale was carried out by the Master, and the judgment empowered him to tax and add to the plaintiffs' claims the subsequent costs of the proceedings. Under the terms of the judgment the taxing officer properly allowed the ordinary costs of a sale v. Cleave, 24 C. L. T. 374.

Motion for summary judgment.]—A motion for summary judgment was dismissed, costs to the defendant in the cause, unless otherwise ordered by the trial Judge. At trial, plainiff obtained judgment with costs, the trial Judge refusing to allow the costs of said motion to plainiff, who renewed the application before the Master. The Master having no power to vary his own order, the order stands just as if there had been no reservation. Pringle v, Hutson, 12 O, W, R. 136, 13 O, W, R. 434, 14 O, W, R. 617,

Motion for summary judgment—"In any event."] — A summons for judgment under Order XIV, was discharged with costs, but the question as to whether or not the costs should be payable forthwith was reserved: — Heid, that if the case is not within the Order, or there are circumstances which render it improper to grant the application, or the plaintiff knew the defendant relied on a contention which would entitle him to unconditional leave to defend, the summons will be discharged with costs in any event, but not payable forthwith. Where leave to defend is given, costs, as a general rule, will be in the cause. It is only in oxceptional circumstances that costs will be ordered to be paid forthwith. In Chambers applications, generally, costs are made payable by the unsuccessful party in any event, but not forthwith. Victoria v. Boxes, 21 C. L. T. 151, 8 B. C. R. 15.

Motion for summary judgment. Lawrence v. Smith, 2 O. W. R. 521.

Motion to extend time for filing— The signification of this motion—C. P. A82.1 —The notice of a motion to extend the time to give security for costs made before the expiration of the time fixed by judgment, is sufficient to permit the plaintiff to ask for more time, even though this motion should be made only after the expiration of the time. ALL DECEMPERATE

Musicipal corporation—Expropriation of land.)—The city of London has passed a by-law to acquire a certain lot. The arbitrators appointed awarded $1,500 compensation to those interested therein. The junior county Judge at London ascertained those entitled thereto. On application for payment thus : costs of arbitration to be dealt with by arbitrators, of ascertainment of shares by junior county Judge, the city to pay costs of and incidental to payment out, Re Scott, 12 O. W. R. 1162.

New trial — Contradictory fadings of jurp]—Where it was held that both parties to the action were entitled to a new trial because of the contradictory findings of the jury, and a new trial was ordered, no costs of the appeal or of the application for a new trial were allowed, and the costs of the former trial were allowed, and the costs of the former trial were allowed, and the costs of the former trial were allowed, and the costs of the former 0 N. S. R. 98.

Objection to the jurisdiction of the manner provided by Rules of Practice; an appeal was quashed without costs. Price Bros. v. Tanguay (1000), 42 8. C. R. 133.

Offer of easts to defendant—Rejund —Deposit in Court—New action—Objection that costs of former unpaid.]—Where the costs of a first action which has been discontinued have been offered to the advocates of the defendant, and deposited in Court, upon the refusal of the advocates to accept them, the defendant cannot object to the institution of a second action by alleging that the costs of the first have not been paid. Agnete V. Gober, 8 Que, P. R. 217.

Offer to suffer judgment by default -Time of offer.]-An action for false imprisonment was entered for trial at the Carleton Circuit, which opened on the 24th April, 1900. The trial actually took place on the 24th and 25th April, the first and second days of the Circuit. On the 17th April, seven days before the trial began, and eight before the jury found their verdict. the defendants filed and served an offer and consent to suffer judgment by default, under 60 V. c. 24, S. 185, for the sum of $75, the same amount as the jury gave as damages in their verdict :--Held, that, as the plaintiff, under s. 185, is entitled to ten days to determine whether or not she will accept the offer, if the defendants see fit to delay mak-ing their offer until less than ten days before the trial and verdict, they are not entitled to have advantage as to costs of the provisions of s. 184 and therefore the plaintiff was entitled to costs of the trial. Sharp v. Woodstock School Trustees, 21 C. L. T. 56.

Offer to suffer judgment by default — Time of offer.] — The plaintiff, notwithstanding that she had received notice of an offer to suffer judgment by default within the ten days allowed to her by the statute for its acceptance, carried the cause down to trial and obtained a verdict therein for a sum exactly equal to the amount mentioned in the offer. On a motion to review the taxation of the plaintiff scots:—Held, that the making of the offer in no way operated as a stay of proceedings, and the taking of the cause down to trial by the plaintiff was not equivalent to a rejection thereof; and that she was, therefore, entitled to have the costs of the trial allowed to her on taxation. Quere, (per Tuck, C.J.) =-11 the verdiet had been for a less amount than that for which the offer to suffer judgment have accepted the offer and signed judgment for the larger sum? Sharp v. Woodstock School Trustees, 21 C. L. 7. 56, 35 N. B. R. 243.

Opposite party-Liability of client -Corporation solicitor-Change in by-law.]-By arrangement between the defendants and their solicitor he was to receive a salary of $1,800 a year, for all services, including the costs of any litigation in which the defend-ants should be engaged. The present action against the defendants was dispuissed with costs on the 14th September, 1901, and the defendants brought in their bill for taxation : -Held, following Jarvis v. Great Western The Ca., Ionoving Jarvis V, Oreit Westensor N, Ric, Co., S. C. P. 280, and Stevensor N, City of Kingston, 31 C. P. 333, in preference to Galloway V. Corporation of London, L. R. 4 Eq. 90, and Henderson V, Merthyr Tydfil Urban District Council, [1900] 1 Q. B. 434. that in view of the above agreement with their solicitor, the defendants could not tax their costs against the plaintiffs: --- Held, also, that the rights of the defendants must be governed by the circumstances which existed on the 14th September, 1901; and a bylaw of the defendants subsequently passed aw of the defendance subscheduly passed could not affect those rights. Ottawa Gas Co. v. Ottawa, 22 C. L. T. 408, 4 O. L. R. 656, 1 O. W. R. 647, 697, 2 O. W. R. 579.

Opposition — Seizure — Prior notice of claim.]-The plaintiff caused certain effects belonging to the claimant to be seized. Before the seizure the claimant, who was the son of the defendant and lived at his house, went to the plaintiff and forbade him, in the presence of a witness whom he had brought with him for the purpose, to make a seizure at the house of the defendant, warning the plaintiff that the effects belonged to him (the claimant), and that he would hold the plaintiff responsible for any expense which he should occasion. In his claim or epposition the claimant specially alleged that the plaintiff knew that the effects did not belong to the defendant. The plaintiff did not contest the opposition except as to costs, alleging that he had seized in good faith, and proving that the defendant had asserted that he was the owner of one of the effects seized : - Held, that, in these circumstances, the plaintiff must pay the costs of the opposi-tion. Descheneau v. Grandmont, 2 Que P. R. 419.

Order for, after judgment—Mortgage — Disclaimer — Defence.] — The plaintiff brought an action against the defendant should be ordered to abandon or to pay the debt of the plaintiff, with costs against the defendant personally if he contested the action. The defendant did contest the action : judgment was against him upon his defence : but it only ordered him to abandon or to pay the debt, principal, interest and costs in default of abandoning within the time fixed. p

O. c. 223, a County Court Judge, on a scrutiny of the ballots cast on the voting for a bonus by-law, cannot award costs against the corporation if it be successful in upholding the by-law. Aldborough y. Schmeltz, 32 O. R. 64.

Order of revivor-Reservation till hearing of cause.]-The costs of obtaining a judgment or order requiring a person to revive a cause will be reserved to be disposed of at the hearing on the merits. Lecompte v. Lanctot, 9 Que, P. R. 164.

Parties-Amendment at trial-Apportionment.]-In an action brought in the name of a married woman for damages for various acts of trespass to land, it became necessary to amend by adding the plaintiff's husband as a party, and an order was granted by the trial Judge allowing the amendment, and allowing the plaintiffs to enter final judgment for damages and costs to be taxed. On appeal from the latter part of the order, the order was amended so as to give the defendant the costs of the trial up to the time of the amendment and of the amendment, if any, and the plaintiff the costs of the action not including the costs of trial; costs to be set off. Hart v. Simpson, 39 N. S. R. 105.

Parties - Mis-en-cause.] - The mis-encause, who has no interest in the case, has the right to recover from the plaintiff his costs of appearance and declaration, and the plaintiff who succeeds against the defendant may in turn have them taxed against him. Jacobs v. Hagerman Co., 8 Que. P. R. 281.

Partnership action-Account - Misconduct of partner.]-Where action for an account between partners is made necessary by the misconduct of a partner, he must pay the costs. Plaintiff entitled to costs. Morice v. Hubbard, 10 W. L. R. 705.

Partnership action - Dissolution -Deduction from assets—Indebtedness of plain-tiff to defendants—Set-off. Bockfinger v. Murray (Y.T.), 1 W. L. R. 260.

Partnership action-Joint and several liability of defendants - Commercial case - Pleading-Conclusions.] - The plaintiff sued the defendants, a commercial partnership having a collective name, en reddition de The undertaking of the defendants compte. which was the subject of the action was an absolutely commercial affair. Thus the action was itself of a commercial nature, and it necessarily followed that the liability of the defendants was a joint and several one. Nevertheless, the plaintiff did not claim upon a joint and several liability, and judgment was rendered for the plaintiff without any mention of that liability. Some time afterward the plaintiff's attorney issued in his own name as advocate an execution against the defendants for his costs of the action. and, the defendant partnership having no property of its own, he caused to be seized property of two of the defendants for the total amount of his costs, that is to say, without dividing his costs. Each of these two defendants made opposition to the seizure contending that there was no joint and several liability as to costs, inasmuch as the plaintiff had not alleged such liability, and that it did not exist as regards costs :---Held that in order that there may be joint and several liability among several defendants and claim to this effect, even in commercial causes, where such liability plainly exists, and in spite of the fact that costs are as a and in spite of the fact that costs are as a general rule the accessory of the action, the plaintiff should have alleged a joint and several liability; in default of an allegation and claim to this effect; even in commercial affairs, there is no joint and several liability as to costs between several defendants condemned to payment of such costs by the judgment in the action. Beaubien v. Rioux, 21 Que. S. C. 232, 4 Que. P. R. 214.

Party and party costs-Right of attorney to payment-Payment to garnishing creditor.]-The attorney of the party who has succeeded in the cause with costs has the right to receive all these costs, including the fees for his client's witnesses. - Such costs will be regarded as having been paid to the attorney if they are paid to a creditor of his who has attached them in the hands of the party ordered to pay them. Bégin v. Breton, 35 Que. S. C. 380, Party entitled-Summary disposition of by Master in Chambers-Appeal-Jurisdic-tion of Master-Improper demand-No costs allowed-Stay of action forever-Con. Rules 616, 767-Judicature Act, s. 72.]-Plaintiff brought action to compel defendant to execute a deed of property willed to him. deed had been previously executed but forgoi-ten about by plaintiff. The deed demanded was admittedly improper in that it contained personal covenants on part of defend-Defendant satisfied plaintiff's claim, ant. and plaintiff moved for an order for judgment of costs of action by defendant to plaintiff.—Master in Chambers (16 O. W. R. 945, 2 O. W. N. 47), granted the order asked, but Middleton, J., reversed the order holding that there were circumstances which would indicate that this was the proper result -Divisional Court, held, that had the case gone on for trial, in their opinion it could have been dismissed with costs, therefore plaintiff had no ground of complaint in respect of the disposition of the costs made by above order. Appeal dismissed with costs. Davis v. Winn (1910), 17 O. W. R. 105, 2 O. W. N. 123, 22 O. L. R. 111.

Defendant pleaded in his statement of defence and counterclaim : (1) denial, (2) payment, (3) over-payment, (4) rent due him." Judgment given on motion upon reference for plaintiff for $288.33 with costs, for defendant for $700 with costs as set-off of judgments and judgment to be entered in favour of one to whom balance ultimately found due :--Held, on appeal, that there ought to have been judgment dismissing action and judgment for defendant for residue of claim :- Held, further, that there had been no exercise of judicial discretion as to costs and costs given to defendant in the Court of Appeal and below. It should make no difference if defendant erroneously shapes his defence on a counterclaim instead of a set-off. Gates v. Seagram (1909), 14 O. W. R. 182, 19 O. L. R. 216.

Setting aside regular judgment by default-Terms-Appeal.]—The defendant was permitted (30 N. S. R. 393), to supple-ment his affidavits and renew an application to set aside a judgment against him in a County Court for default of plea. He thereupon filed an affidavit disclosing a good defence on the merits, and renewed his application, which the plaintiff opposed. The Judge of the County Court, being of the opinion that the plaintiff, in opposing the application, acted unreasonably and oppressively, set aside the judgment with costs to be paid by the plaintiff :--Held, that he erred in doing so; that the order must be so far modified as to give the plaintiff the costs of the judgment, and execution if any, and the defendant the costs only occasioned by the plaintiff opposing the renewed application ; that, the judgment having been regularly entered, the defendant's application was to the indulgence of the Court, and could only be allowed on payment of costs thrown away. Piper v. King's Dyspepsia Cure Co., 20 C L. T. 407, 33 N. S. R. 278.

Settlement of action—Collusion—Depriving plaintiff's solicitor of costs—Chambers order for payment.]—If the defendants make a collusive settlement of a suit with the plaintiff's solicitor and with the object of depriving the latter of his costs, he is entitled, on application to a Judge in Chambers, to an order that the defendants should pay his costs.—Brunsdon v. Allard, 2 E. & E. 19, Price v, Crouch, 60 L. J. Q. B. 767, and Re Margetson and Jones, [1897] 2 Ch. 314, followed. Stewart v. Hall, 8 W, L. R. 479, 17 Man, L. R. 653. Settlement of judgment debt—Agreement—Construction — Solicitor's costs.]—An agreement to accept a specified sum in settlement of a judgment debt and costs, means the insed costs in the suit, and does not include other charges due by the creditor to his solicitors in connection with the debt. Blackwood v, Percival, 14 Que, K. B. 445.

Several defendants-Appeal by one --Quantum of costs.]--If one of two defendants acquiesces in the judgment rendered in favour of the plaintiff by the Superior Court, and the case is taken to appeal by the other defendant, who succeeds in obtaining the dismissal of the action, he can only tax against the plaintiff one-half of the Superior Court costs, plus the costs of judgment, bill and taxation. Marsan V. Guay, S Que. P. R. 162.

Small verdict—Slander.]—Where, in an action of slander, the jury returned a verdict for the plaintiff for $1, the trial Judge refused to deprive the plaintiff of costs, his conduct not having been reprehensible, and the small verdict being explained by the condition of the defendant at the time the words were uttered. Bell v. Wilson, 20 C. L. T., 230, 19 P. R. 167.

Solicitor's letter before action—Costs of—Tender.)—Since the passing of 3 Edw. VII. c. 34, s. 9, the debtor who has received a letter demanding payment from his creditor's attorney, must pay the fee therefor fixed by the tariff, and a tender by him to such creditor of the debt only is not sufficient. Rayer v. Bélanger, 27 Que. S. C. 95, 7 Que. P. R. 97.

Solicitor remnuerated by salary, |--This action and an appeal has been dismissed with costs. The solicitor for defendant city was paid a monthly salary under a by-law :--Held, that defendants were entitled to tax the usual costs against plaintiff and these went into the general revenue of the city. Stephens v. Calgary (1909), 12 W. L. R. 370.

Special case in action to recover succession duty-Costs payable by Croins where unsuccessful.]--In litigation under the Succession Duty Act express power is given to the High Court to deal with the costs thereof; and where, therefore, the trustees of an estate had paid, or were ready to pay, all the duty which could properly be claimed against it, they were held entiled against the Crown to the costs of a special case and an action by the Attorney-General to recover higher duties; but only one set of costs was allowed to the trustees and beneficiaries. Attorney-General V. Toronto General Trusts Corporation, 23 C. L. T. 194, 5 O. L. 807, 1 O. W. R. 807, 2 O. W. R. 271.

of allegations founded on actual facts, resulting in a costly and useless inquiry, is a "special cause" for which the Court may, by the application of Art. 549, C. P., in finding in his favour, refuse to grant him costs. Lauzon V. Corporation du Canton La Minerre, 33 Que. S. C. 214.

COSTS.

Stated case—Rule 372—No provision as to costs — Juriativin, J—There was no provision in the stated case as to costs :— Held, no jurisdiction therefore to give costs. Miller v, Tete (1909), 14 O. W. R. 207, 337. See S. C. 14 O. W. R. 1173, 1 O. W. N. 269, 20 O. L. R. 77.

Success of plaintiffs-Failure on allegations of misconduct. Emerson v. Wright (Man.), 6 W. L. R. 493.

Successful defence — Failure on one ground.]—The fact that a successful defendant has not proved one of the defences which he has alleged, such defence not having increased the costs of the trial. is not a ground for refusing to order payment by the plaintiff of the defendant's costs. Daigle v. Noel, 35 Que. 8. C. 341.

Successful defendant ordered to pay costs-Misconduct - Amendment - Expropriation.]-In an action for compensation for land taken for railway purposes, the defendants appealed from that part of the judgment of the trial Judge which required them to pay costs of the action and trial to the plaintiff, except costs of the order to amend. It appeared that the defendants were at no time liable in the action, either before or after the amendment, but were entitled to have the action dismissed, and, in the ordinary course, with costs :--Held, that the trial Judge, in these circumstances, while he could deprive the defendants of costs, for reasons misconduct set forth in his judgment, of could not make the defendants pay costs to the plaintiff. Sawler v. Chester, 2 E. L. R. 375, 41 N. S. R. 168.

Successful party not liable for costs -Indemnity - Vancouver Island Settlers Rights Act, 1904.]-In a statute declaring certain settlers entitled to mineral rights on their lands, there was a provision that any action attacking such rights should be defended by and at the expense of the Crown. In an action brought by the plaintiffs to test the statute, judgment was given in favour of the defendant. The plaintiffs appealed, and the appeal was dismissed :--Held, as to costs, that the defendant was not in a position to claim any costs against the plaintiffs, as his rights were being asserted by and defended at the expense of the Crown. Esquimalt and Nanaimo Rw. Co. v. Hoggan, 14 B. C. R. 49, 9 W. L. R. 313.

2. SCALE AND QUANTUM OF COSTS.

Action begun in Court of King's Bench-Increase in jurisdiction of County Courts after action begun-Recovery of sum above previous jurisdiction but below new jurisdiction of County Courts-Certificate for King's Bench costs. Rosenberg v. Tymchorak, 9 W. Li, R. 110.

Action brought in H. C. J.-Recovered S110-Quantum of costs-Con, Rule 1132-9 Edw, VII., c. 28 — Set-off, Rule 1132ages for malicious prosecution and slander. He only recovered $110. Boyd. C. held, that costs should be taxed on County Court scale under Con. Rule 1132, as affected by 9 Edw, VII., c. 28, as it was not a case for the Judge to give different directions.-Defendant given right to set-off his costs on H. C. scale. Mofatt v. Link (1910), 16 O. W. R. 984, 20. W. N. 566.

Action brought in H. C. J. to recover $1,000 for defamation—Jury awarded $100—Jurisdiction of County Court-9 Edu. VII., c. 28—Con, Rule 1132—Conduct of defendant—Discretion of trial Judge—Setoff of conta.)—Plaintiff brought action in HI C. J. for $1,000 damages for defamation. He only recovered $100.—Britton, J., keld, that plain tiff's costs should be taxed on County Court scale, under Con. Rule 1132, as affected by 9 Edw. VII. c. 28, but directed that no setoff of costs be allowed defendant. Striker v. Rosebush (1910), 17 O. W. R. 205, 2 O. W. N. 160.

Action for damages — Amount recovered.]—Whatever may be the extent of the damages and the opinion of the Court on this subject, if the latter does not think fit to grant damages to an amount greater than $$, e.g., $5, it cannot then allow costs on a higher scale than accords with the amount of damages; therefore a judgment condemning the defendant to pay the sum of $5 damages and the costs of an action of $00 to $100 and the expense of a stengarapher should be quashed, the Court not being able, in such a case, to order the party to pay more than $5 costs (Art, 550, C, P.). Doweille v. Oucllette, 34 Que, 8, C, 385.

Action for injury to land—Value of land — Easement — Disturbance — Damages under $290 — Juriadiction of County Courts.]—The defendant, in the course of severing his house from that of the plaintiff, which adjoined it, the two houses beins built together as one building, by his negligence damaged the plaintiff's house to the extent of $140, for which he recovered judgment, the property itself being worth over $200:— Held, that the value of the property, and not the amount of the damages sustained, was the factor in determining the question of jurisdiction, and that the action was properly brought in the High Court, and the plaintiff entitled to tax his cosis on the High Court scale. Moffett v. Curmichael, 10 O. W. R. 72, 14 O. L. R. S95.

Action for reduction of alimentary allowance — Art. 551, C. P., 1 — Article 551, C. P., is applicable to actions for reduction or relief from payment of alimentary allowances. In such an action the provisions of Art. 551 are applicable not only to the costs to which the plaintiff would be entitled if he succeeded in the action, but to the costs to which the defendant would be entitled if the action of the plaintiff were dismissed or only in part maintained with costs against the plaintiff. Moreau V. Michaud, 10 Que, P. R. 184.

Action for resiliation of lesse-Annual value — Damages.]—In an action for resiliation of a lease of the annual value of $300, accompanied by a claim for damages to the amount of $1.100, the costs of the plaintiff will be those of the first class, if he succeeds in setting aside the lease, even when the question of damages has not been considered. sued for in a Courty Court is one relating to proceedure and applies to pending Iltigation, so that a plaintiff who has recovered a verdict in a King's Bench action for an Bench costs without getting from the Judge a certificate under Rule 333 of the King's Bench Acst, although the amount of the verdict exceeds the amount that could have been sued for in the Courty Court when the action was commenced.—Todd v. Union Bank, 6 Man. L. R. 457, followed.—In such circumstances, however, such certificate should be given, preventing, also, any set-off of costs by the defendant. Rosenberg v. Tymchorak, 18 Man. L. R. 339, 90 W. L. R. 110.

Action in King's Bench for wrongful seizure of goods-Bailiff-Verdict for $200 damages-Jurisdiction of County Court - Jurisdiction of King's Bench - County Courts Act, s. 43-Discretion of trial Judge - Counterclaim - Promissory note - Assignment of half interest-Validity-Parties — Amendment — Judgment — Interest — Costs—Set-off.]—In an action in the King's Bench against a County Court balliff and an execution creditor for a wrongful seizure and sale of the plaintiff's goods under execution against another, the plaintiff recovered a verdict for $200 damages :-Held, that s. 43 of the County Courts Act, which, with immaterial changes, has been in every County Courts Act since the first (1879), is not affected by the granting to the County Courts of jurisdiction in claims against bailiffs; and the effect is, that an action of this kind, against a bailiff, is one that can be brought in the King's Bench, or that may properly be brought in the King's Bench irrespective of the amount of damages recovered, subject only to the provision as to costs where the damages are less than $10.-In all actions tried by a jury, costs are in the discretion of the trial Judge (Shillinglaw v. Whillier, 18 Man, L. R. 149, 12 W. L. R. 128), and, therefore, irrespective of the County Courts Act, the trial Judge has power to grant or refuse costs to either party as he thinks proper; but in deciding whether the plaintiff in this action should have costs on the King's Bench scale, it was proper to take into consideration the fact that, under s. 43. the action could properly be brought in the King's Bench, irrespective of the amount recovered, so long as that amount exceeded $10, and, in the absence of some good reason to the contrary, to allow the plaintiff costs on the higher scale :-- Held, therefore, that the plaintiff should have costs on the King's Bench scale .- The defendant L., who was the holder of a promissory note made by the plaintiff, after action brought, assigned a half interest therein to his co-de-fendant, the bailiff, and both defendants counterclaimed upon the note. There was no consideration for the assignment, and the plaintiff disputed the legality if it :--Held, that it was not necessary to decide whether the assignment was good, for, if it was not, an amendment should be allowed so as to make the counterclaim by the defendant L. alone; and judgment should be given on the counterclaim for the amount of the note and interest, with costs of pleading it only : the amount of the note, interest, and such costs to be set off pro tanto against the $200 damages and costs of action on the King's Bench scale,—Leave to the defendants to appeal to the Contr of Appeal on the question of the scale of costs. Campbell v. Joyce (1910), 15 W. L. R. 29, affirmed 15 W. L. R. 291.

Action in Supreme Court-Sum recovered within County Court juriadiction—Supreme Court Act, 1904, sec. 100-M, Rule 976-"Fevent".—Discretions.].—The plaintiff sued in the Supreme Court for $2,500, and recovered $100: — Semble, that the action should have been brought in a County Court. —But held, that, having regard to sec. 100 of the Supreme Court Act, 1904, even if modified by M, Rule 976, the trial Judge had no power (the amount recovered being more than $100) to order that the costs should be taxed on the County Court scale; and costs must, therefore, follow the event and be taxed on the Supreme Court scale; fourge Hong & Quong Sang Co, v. Macdonald (1910), 14 W, L. R. 475.

Action of competence of Circuit Court-Plaining forced to proceed in Superior Court.1--Where the plaintiff, in order to establish his claim, has been forced by the opposite party to sue in the Superior Court, he has a right to his costs upon the scale applicable to the costs of an action in the Superior Court, although in fact he is actually a creditor only for a sum within the competence of the Circuit Court. Lafortune v. Marchand, 9 Que, P. R. 36.

Action to quash municipal by-law -Uitra vires-lasue between plaintiff and intervener-Quantum of coats-One set of costs.]-The fees in an action to quash a municipal by-law are the same as those of an action of the third class, even where it is alleged that the by-law is ultra eires.-Where the defendant submits his rights to the Court, and the contest is between the plaintiff and an intervener, the latter, if successful, has a right to full costs upon his intervention as in an ordinary cause, but not to double fees as if there had been two actions between the parties. Paul v. Sorel, 9 Que, P. R. 284.

Action to quash municipal by-law.] Where an action to quash a municipal bylaw, begun before the Superior Court, is dismissed, the attorney of the defendant corporation has a right to the fees appropriate to an action of the third class in the Superior Court. Caliloux v. St. Félix de Valois, 8 Oue, P. R. 33.

Action to set aside resolution of aunicipal corporation.]-When a direct action is taken to set aside a resolution of a municipal corporation, the costs should be taxed as in a contested action of the third class, although the disbursements are those of an action of the fourth class of the Superior Court. Ledoug v. St. Edwidge, 7 Que. P. R. 353.

Amount in controversy — Jurisdiction of County Court—"Good cause" for depriving plaintiffs of full costs. For v. Peters (B.C.), 5 W. L. R. 505. Amount in controversy — Jurisdiction of County Court — Counterclaim.]—Where the defendant in a Supreme Court action counterclaims for an amount beyond the jurisdiction of the County Court, costs on the County Court scale only will not be awarded to a successful plaintiff, even though the action should have been brought in the County Court. Pacific Towing Co, v. Morris, 11 H. C. B. 173.

Amount in controversy-Work done by plaintiff at defendant's expense-Uost of.]--When an action is instituted to compel the defendant to do certain work, and judgment is given ordering that he shall do the work within a specified time, and that, on his default, the plaintiff may do the work at the defendant's expense, the plaintiff's hill of costs should be taxed as in a cause for the amount of the cost of the work ordered to be done. Bassinet v. Collectite, 7 Que, P. R. 27.

Amount involved—Attachment of debts —Witters feet.] — On a contestation of a granishee's declaration, the class of action is fixed by the amount claimed by the contestant.—2. The fact that the contestation seeks to have the seizure declared binding does not change the class of action.—3. Even if the amount claimed by the contestation is below $100$, if the same is tried before the Superior Court, the winning party is entitled to charge stamps and depositions as in a Superior Court case.—4. The debtor, and the manuger of the company garnishee, cannot be clowed for on tratition of costs against the contestant, as witnesses. Sivges V. Painchaud, 6 Que, P. R. 309.

Amount involved — Judgment,]—If an action or an incidental demand is maintained for a certain amount only, with costs, and the judgment declares that the amount granted would have been larger but for the plaintiff's consent, the costs of such action will, nevertheless, in the absence of any adjudication to the contrary, be taxed as in an action for the amount of the condemnation. Collins v, Clare, 6 Que, P. R. 381.

Amount involved — Pension.]—An action to reduce an alimentary pension is classed, as regards the scale of fees, according to the amount of monthly payments of the pension in question, Lavigne v. Pouliot, 6 Que, P. R. 138.

Amount involved — Recendication of policies.]—In an action in revendication for the recovery of insurance policies, where the company appears and elen rapporte d jusfice, costs should be granted according to the face value of the policies as title to the actual value of the policies as title deeds. McDuff v, Metropolitan Life Ins. Co., 6 Que. P. R. 133.

Amount recovered — Ascertainment— Cocreant—Amount due under—Deduction by way of payment or set-off—Jurisdiction of Division Court.]—In an action on a covenant in a deed to pay the plaintiff a specified yearly sum, the amount found to be due the plaintiff was $292.50, from which the trial Judge deducted $60, which the defendant, at the plaintiff's request, had paid to a creditor of the plaintiff, but which was in no way connected with the covenant, thus reducing the amount os $193.50, for which judgment was entered :—Held, that the plaintiff was entilled to costs on the County Court scale, the claim not being within the jurisdiction of a Division Court, as the $69 was allowed to the defendant, not by way of payment, but as a set-off. Outerhout v. For, 10 O. W. R. 157, 247, 14 O. L. R. 590.

Amount recovered—Investigation of accounts involving large sums—Jurisdiction of County Court—Con. Rule 1132 — Set-off. Ross v. Townsend (1910), 1 O. W. N. 457.

"Amount recovered " — Money paid into Court. Johnston v. Hadden (B.C.), 8 W. L. R. 526.

Appeal—Anoant involved—Costs below.] —Where a tutor brings, in his capacity as such, an action for damages, which is dismissed with costs against him personally, appeals, and succeeds in having the personally, the amount in litigation in appeal is the amount of costs which the tutor has been adjudged to pay personally, and not the amount in question in the original action. Garnier y, Armand, 6 Que, P. 45.

Appeal—Amount involved—Costs below.] —When an appeal is taken by the plaintiff from a judgment dismissing his action, which was one of the first class, but ordering the defendant to return him some effects claimed, the class of action is determined by the amount for which the action was brought. Armstrong v, Beauchemin, 6 Que, P. R. 51.

Appen1—Nuisance — Abatement — Penalty.1—An action in which the claim is, that the defendants be ordered immediately to cease allowing evil edours and smoke to issue from their establishment, or in default that the plaintiff shall be allowed to abate the nuisance by employing necessary means for such purpose, and that the defendants be ordered to pay $100 with costs, is similar, as regards costs in the Court of King's Eench, to a proceeding by writ of prerogative, and is consequently a first-class action. 8t, Paul v. Cooke, 6 Que, P. R. 48.

Appeal from judgment of Drainage Referee.] — The costs of an appeal to the Court of Appeal from the decision of the Drainage Referee in a proceeding under the Drainage Act initiated before him should (if awarded to either party) be taxed on the scale applicable to appeals in cases begun in the High Court of Justice. Decision of a Divisional Court, 19 P. R. 188, 20 Occ. N. 329, reversed. Re Metalle & Adelaide & Warnick, Re Colchester North & Gosfield North, 21 C. L. 7, 406, 2 O. L. R. 108.

Appeal under Public Instruction Act.]—In an appeal under Art 482 of the Public Instruction Act, the costs of the advocates must be taxed pursuant to Art, 105 of the tarif of the Superior Court as regards the general fee, and as in an action of the fourth class in the Superior Court as regards the other costs. Guay v. St. Jerome & St. Moniea School Comrs., 5 Que, P. R. 124.

Assantle — Small verdict—Certificate of trial Jadge-Review by Court.)—The Court nas javisdiction to review the discretion exercised by a Judge in certifying under 60 V; c. 28, s. 74, that there was good cause for bringing the action in the Supreme Court, —Where an action for assault and battery was brought in the Supreme Court, and the jury found a verdict for the plaintiff for only $35, but the trial Judge granted a certificate under the above section, on the ground that the plaintiff's attorney had reasonable grounds for thinking that the title to land would be brought into question.— Held, that a sufficient case had not been made out to induce the Court to interfere. Cormier V. Boudreau, 30 N. B. R. 6.

Attachment of debts — Amount attacked.]—The costs on an attachment after judgment must be taxed according to the amount sought to be recovered from the garnishee, and do not follow the costs of the principal action. Latour v. Latour, 5 Que. P. R. 306.

Attachment of debts — Amount attached.)—Where a contestation of the declaration of a garnishee is dismissed, the class of action will be fixed by the amount of the judgment which the contestant could have obtained against the garnishee if the declaration had shewn that the latter was indebted to the judgment debtor, and this although a part of such sum was insaisisable. De Siegeev P. Peinchaud, 5 Que, P. R. 363.

Attachment of debts—Contestation of declaration of garnishee—Amount involved.] —The fee allowed to a garnishing creditor upon a contestation of the declaration of the garnishee, which has been maintained without the garnishee having replied to it, is the fee applicable to an uncontested action, and not that of a contested action, and is regulated by the sum which the garnishee is ordered to pay. Ettenberg v. Kelly, 5 Que, P. R. 428.

Attachment of debts — Saisie-arrêt— Amount claimed.]—A saisie-arrêt is a new cause or proceeding, and the costs of a judgment maintaining the disarowal of the advocate who has issued the saisie-arrêt, are to be determined according to the amount for which the writ of saisie-arrêt has been issued. Lafrance v. Parent, 21 Que, 8. C. 415.

Bankruptcy and insolvency — Privileged claim-Amount σ_{1} — Λ third person who claims by petition a privilege or right of lien upon certain effects of an insolvent, which have come into the hands of the curator, has a right to the fees appropriate to an action for the amount of his lien. Maller v. Bayley and Wright Manufacturing Co., 3 Que. P. R. 152.

Breach of warranty-New trial-Costs of first trial -- First verdict carrying full costs-Second trial carrying one-third costs -Costs of first trial-Costs of second verdict carrying only one-third costs-Costs of both trials to be taxed at only one-third scale-Common Law Procedure Act (P.E.I.), s. 238 -Practice-* Event."] -At first trial plain tiff recovered a verdict for $145. This on append was set aside and on a new trial he obtained a verdict for $45. A verdict of $65 carries full costs less than that one-third costs :--Held, that plaintif is entiled to costs of both trials, but the one-third scale must be applied. McCallum v. International, S E. L. R. 74.

Cancellation of lease-Class of action.] The plaintiff had rented land from the defendant, at an annual rent of $108, payable $9 a month, the lease being for five years, with power to the tenant to terminate it in any year by giving three months' notice. The plaintiff, in the month of August of one of the first years, sued for the cancellation of the lease, and succeeded in obtaining such cancellation with $24 damages, and costs :-Held, that, under these circumstances, the lease being a yearly one as regarded the plaintiff, the class of action, as regarded the costs awarded against the defendant, was that of an action for $81, being the balance of rent for the year which, at the time the action began, still had to run. Chartrand v. Ouimet, 17 Que. S. C. 164, 2 Que. P. R. 418

Certiorari—Order—Fee on.]—The costs of advocates or attorneys in a case of exrtiorari are taxed as in an action of the second class in the Superior Court. 2. No fee is allowed upon a judgment ordering the issue of a certiorari. Areand v. Montreat Harbour Cours., 5 Que, P. R. 410.

Claim and counterclaim—Jury. Coulter v. Sweet, 2 O. W. R. 1.

Class of action—Administrator.] — An action whereby the plaintiff appointed by a foreign tribunal administrator to a decedent estate, seeks to have his quality recognised in this country, against a sequestrator appointed by our Courts to the property situate in this country, will be considered a first class action for taxation purposes, if it appears that the property situated in this country amounts to more than $1,000. Lacoignat Y. Mackoy, 3 Que. P. R. 479.

Class of action—Amount of final judgment—Costs of interlocatory orders.]—According to art. 554, C. P., for the purposes of traxition the class of action is determined by the amount of the final judgment, and it applies to all the proceedings in the cause, including interlocatory judgments. Poirier v. Ouimet, 10 Que, P. 40.

Class of action—Contextation of intervention—Original claim.]—Where, after a satistic-conservatoire, a third party intervenes to claim as his own part of the goods seized, and afterwards obtains possession of such part, upon giving security to the plainiff for his claim, the class of action upon the contestation of the intervention by the plaintiff will be the same or at least not a higher class than that of the original claim of the plainiff. Boulet v. St. John, S Que, P. R. 139.

Class of action—Garnishce—Amount of judgment against.]—When the contestation of the declaration of a garnishee is maintained without hearing, upon default of the garnishee to reply to such contestation, the attorney of the contestant has a right to tax An clu of ni 14 against the garnishee the fee provided by Art, 4 of the Superior Court tariff ; and the class of action is determined by the amount of the judgment rendered against the garnishee, Ettenberg v. Kelly, 19 Que. S. C. 143.

Class of action—Interest.]—The costs on an appeal from a judgment for $200 with interest and costs, which is reversed, the action being dismissed by the Court of Appeal, are costs of an action of the fourth, and not of the third class. Sauriol v. Ulermont, 3 Que. P. R. 477.

Class of action—Partition and sale— Price obtained—Opposition.]—When an immovable has been sold in an action for partition and sale for a price exceeding $4,000, the costs of an opposition à fin de distraines and of the contestation thereof should be taxed as in an action of the first class, with the additional fee of $30 which the tariff gives in actions for more than $4,000. Latour v, Latour, 19 Que. S. C. 159, 3 Que. P. R. 418.

Class of action—Velidity of seizure — Amount in question.]—Upon a contestation as to the validity of a seizure en mains tierces, the class of action depends upon the amount seized, and the taxation of the bill according to the class of the original action will be revised accordingly. Jones v. Moodic, 3 Que, P. R. 354.

Class of action—" False in contest "— Interest and costs.]—Neither interest nor costs can be added to the amount in litization as part of the "value in contest" for the purpose of determining the class of action to regulate the scale of taxation of costs. Barber-Elis Co. v. Burland, 10 Que. K. B. 218.

Class of action—" Value in contest "— Judgment.]—Where the judgment appealed from was against the appellant for a specific amount, and the respondent did not take a cross-appeal, the "value in context," for the purpose of determining the class for taxation of costs, is the amount for which judgment was rendered against the appellant by the Court below. McGarcey v. Dougall, 10 Que. K. B, 217.

Class of action—" Value in contest"— Judgment—Costs.]—In determining the class to which a case belongs for the purpose of taxation of costs, only the amount of the condemnation in the judgment appealed from, irrespective of costs, is to be taken into consideration. Sauriol v. Clermont, 10 Que, K. B, 219.

Class of action — Value in context — Opposition--Dismissal on motion — Absence of appearance—Fee—Scale of.1—Where an opposition is dismissed upon motion, and the plaintiff's attorney has not filed an appearance in writing to the opposition, he is not catilied to a fee de comparuion. 2. The fee upon an opposition dismissed upon motion is that of an action dismissed upon preliminary exception. 3. The class of action to which an opposition belongs is regulated by the value of the effects claimed by the opposition, and, in the absence of other evidence, the amount mentioned in the opposition as representing the value of the effects thereby claimed should be regarded as the true one. Les Curé et Marguilliers de Laprairie v. Proulx, 4 Que. P. R. 33.

Company—Removal of liquidator — Δp peal.)—The fees in appeals on a petition to remove a liquidator appointed to a joint stock company are the fees of a second-class and not of a first-class action. Stimson v. North-West Cattle U., 5 Que, P. R. 239.

Contestation in garnishment—Amount in controversy.]—The fees upon a contestation of the deformation of a garnishee, where it is sought by the garnishment proceedings to avoid a glit of immovables of the value of $800, and to condemn the garnishees each to pay $122, are the fees of an action of the second class. Brunet v. Bergeson, 4 Que, P. R, 419.

Contestation of opposition—Original action.)—The fees insuble upon a contestation of an opposition à fin de'annuler are those appropriate to the original action, where the contestation is made by the plaintiff, by another party, or by a third person. Sun Life Assec, Co. y, Pallier, T, Que, P. R. 455.

Controverted municipal election — Local Improvement Ordinance—Tration— Appeal—Direction as to scale of costs. Re Clark (N.W.T.), 4 W, L. R. 316.

County Court — Appeal to Divisional Court of High Court—Dismissal for want of jurisdiction. Francis v. Huff, 11 O. W. R. 343.

County Courts—Ascertainment of amount —Goods sold.]—In an action for the price of goods sold, in which the plaintiff recovered $230, it was contended that that amount was ascertained by the act of the parties, and therefore within the Jurisdiction of the County Courts, because the goods were sold according to a price list agreed to, and therefore the amount was ascertainable by a simple computation :—Held, not so.—*Thomp*son v. Pearson, 18 P. R. 420, distinguished. Evans v. Chandler, 20 C. L. T. 200, 19 P. R. 160.

County Court - Defence arising after action-Division Court garnishment - Pay-ment into Court.]-On the 5th August, 1899. a creditor of the plaintiff issued a summons out of a Division Court claiming $64 from the plaintiff, and claiming to attach moneys in the hands of the defendant, as garnishee, to answer the plaintiff's debt, and served it on both primary debtor and garnishee on the day of its issue. On the 17th August this action was brought in a County Court to recover $133.40. On the 28th August the garnishee (the defendant in this action) paid $57.50 into the Division Court. On the 6th September judgment was given in the Division Court for the primary creditor against the primary debtor (the plaintiff in this action) for $64, and against the garnishee for $57.50. On the 5th October the plaintiff delivered his statement of claim for the whole $133.40 .- Held, that the service of the summons was no bar to this action; that the defence that the defendant was discharged as tion ainthe the tax to $57.50 by his payment into the Division Court was a defence which did not arise and the payment was under and judgment given in the Division Court, and was consequently a defence arising after action brought; and such payment and judgment could not have relation back to the time of service of the summons; and therefore, it having been adjudged in this action that the plaintiff was entitled to the amount claimed by him, less the $57.50, the action was properly brought in a County Court, and the plaintiff was entitled to costs on the scale of that Court. Pickard v. Tims, 20 C. L. T. 118, 19 P. R. 100.

County Court - Payment into Court-Amount-Acceptance by plaintiff-Order for set-off-Finality-Appeal.]-The plaintiff in an action in a County Court claimed $140. the balance alleged to be due upon the sale of a chattel, and the defendant brought into Court $95 in full of the plaintiff's cause of action, which the plaintiff accepted in The Judge of the County Court thereupon made a summary order allowing the defendant to set off his costs incurred in the County Court in excess of such costs as he would have incurred in a Division Court against the costs of the plaintiff, and to enter judgment and issue execution for the excess, if any, of the costs of the defendant over and above the costs of the plaintiff :---Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to tax his costs of the action according to the County Court scale, irrespective of the amount paid into Court and accepted by him in satisfaction of his claim and the plaintiff being entitled to his costs by the express provi-sion of Rule 425 (which is not qualified by Rule 1130), they were not subject to the discretion of the Ju ge :- Held, also, that the order of the Judge was in its nature final, and therefore appealable under s. 52 of the County Courts Act, R. S. O. c. 55. Babcock v. Standish, 20 C. L. T. 329, 19 P. R.

County Courts-Tender before action-Pagment into Court-Recovery of $20 more than sum paid in ... "Recovered."1 -- The plaintiff claimed $333.19 for cortain cattle sold to the defendant, who plended tender of $300 and payment into Court, and not indebted as to the remainder of the claim. Judgment for the plaintiff was given for $20. The taxing officer's ruling, that the amount recovered by means of the action being only $20, the costs should have been taxed on the scale "over $10 to $25." McLean v. Dore, 7 W. L. R. 365. 13 B. C. R. $292.

County Court action.]--Increased counsel fees allowed in County Court action, under B.C. Rule 559, amount involved being over $500, difficult questions of law being involved. Blundell v. Anglo-Am. Fire Ins. Co. (1900), 12 W. L. R. 164.

County Court jurisdiction-Ascertainment of amount-Set-off. Smith v. Toronto General Hospital Trustees, 6 O. W. R. 999.

County Court jurisdiction—Trespass to land—Amount involved—Title to land.]— Plaintiffs were owners of the remainder in a farm valued at $1,500, and defendant Reece was life tenant thereof, and defendant Payne a purchaser from her of timber on the farm. The action was for an injunction and damages for cutting and removing the timber. The trial Judge found for plaintiffs (1 O, W, R, 516), and assessed the damages at $400 to be paid into Court and paid out to plain-tiffs on death of defendant Reece, who was to have the interest in the meantime. This judgment was varied by a Divisional Court (2 O. W. R. 160, 23 C. L. T. 107, 5 O. L. R. 356), by directing that defendants should at once pay to plaintiffs $180. The defences having raised the question of title to an interest in land of a greater value than $200, and therefore the action would not be maintainable in a County Court by virtue of s.-s. 1 of s. 22 of the Act, therefore plaintiff's costs were taxed on the High Court scale, Whitesell v. Reece, 4 O. W. R. 465, 9 O. L. R. 182.

Criminal Hbel—Criminal Code, s. 855.] —Quare, where costs are taxable under s. 835 of the Criminal Code, on what scale should they be taxed? Nichol v. Pooley, 9 B. C. R. 303.

Demand for assignment—Contestation —Examination for discovery—Fee, I—When a demand of assignment is successfully contested, the costs will be of the class of action of the amount of the debt involved.—An examination on discovery does not justify faxation as in an action settled after inscription for enquête, but does equitably justify a fee similar to the one provided by No. 46 of the old tariff. Imperial Laundry Co. v. Hurtubies, Suce, P. 209.

District Cont-Action beyond jurisdiction of County Court-Discretion of District Judge as to scale of costs-Rules of Court--Application of, I--Where, in an action tried before a District Court Judge, without a jury, there is a recovery for an amount beyond the jurisdiction of the County Courts, the Judge is not compelled, under s, 11 of the District Courts Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 109, read in the light of the Rules of Court applicable thereto, either to withhold costs altogether or to grant a certificate therefor on the High Court scale. If has a discretionary power, and may certify for costs on the County Court scale only. Schaeffer V, Armstrong, 12 O. L. R. 40, 8 O. W. R. 564.

Held, that the debt in this case was not cognizable by a Division Court, the claim being for more thun $100 and not ascertained by the signature of the wife (the principal debtor); that the note signed by the husband could not be treated as an ascertainment, it not having been signed by him as her agent, but on his own behalf; and therefore the costs should be on the scale of the County Court in which the action was brought. Dayidson v, McClelland, 21 C. L. T. 188, 32 O. R. 382.

Division Court jurisdiction—Balance due on contract signed by defendant — Exrinsic evidence.1—In an action in a County Court for §37.56, the balance due on a building contract of §47.5, signed by the defendant, where extrinsic evidence was required to shew performance of the contract by the plaintiff, and for §27.35 upon an open account, as against which the defendant was allowed upon his counterclaim §25 for defective work and material:—Held, that a Division Court would have had no jurisdiction, and that the plaintiff was entitled to his costs on the County Court scale. I re Graham v. Tominson, 12 P. R. 307, and In re Savyer-Massey Co. v. Parkin, 28 O. R. 662, not followed. Kinsey v. Roche, 8 P. R. 515, nproved. McDermid v. McDermid, 15 A. R. 287, tollowed. Kreutziger v. Brox, 21 C. L. T. 139, 32 O. R. 418.

Drainage Act—Reference.] — Section 113 of the Drainage Act, R. S. O. e. 226, providing that the tariff of the County Court shall be the tariff of costs under that Act, applies only to actions which ought properly to have been instituted by notice under s, 93, and not to actions referred under s. 94 which might properly have been brought at common law without reference to the Referee because the Court thinks they may be more conveniently disposed of by him. Mc Culloch v. Caledonia, 20 C. L. T. 95, 19 P. R. 115.

Drainage Act—Reference.]—Where an action is brought to recover damages for injury to property by the construction of drainage works, and the claim is within the scope of s, 93 of the Drainage Act, R. S. O. c. 226, under which proceedings before the Drainage Referee may be taken without bringing an action, and an order is made referring the action to the Referee for trial, the costs should be taxed according to the tariff of the County Courts, under s, 113. Moke v. Osmabruek, 20 C. L. 7, 103, 19 P. R. 117.

Fees of arbitrator—Amount of award.] —The scale of costs of a motion to tax the costs of an arbitrator is determined by the amount of the arbitrator's fees. Provincial Light, Heat & Power Co. v. Lafleur, 10 Que. P. R, 51.

Goods sold—Amount in controversy — Change pendente lite—Appeal for costs.]— The plaintiffs brought an action in a County Court for $175.55, the price of goods sold. The defendants had rejected the goods on the ground that they were not up to sample. After delivery of the statement of claim the c.c.L.=33 plaintiffs sold the goods, and delivered an amended statement of claim, in which they gave the defendants credit for the proceeds of the sale, and proceeded with their action for the balance $77.90. The trial Judge found that the goods were equal to sample, and gave the plaintiffs judgment for $77.90.-As to costs he held that by their amended statement of claim the plaintiffs' cause of action became an entirely new one, and solely one within the jurisdiction of a Division Court, and for this reason they were entitled only to Division Court costs, and the defendants were entitled to set off the excess of their costs incurred in the County Court :-Held, that an appeal lay to a Divisional Court, notwithstanding that costs only were involved, because the judgment appealed from shewed that the trial Judge had proceeded upon a wrong principle .-- Held, also that the plaintiffs, having properly brought their action in the County Court, should not be deprived of their costs of such action by what they had done pendente lite, and were entitled to costs on the County Court scale. Grove v. Bender, 20 C. L. T. 95.

High Court action against several defendants — Judgment against another for $198.15 — Judgment against another for $40.67 without costs—Taxation of costs by taxing officer on High Court scale. — Costs should be on County Court scale. — Planinfi recovered judgment against defendant for $198.15 with costs in a High Court action. The taxing officer allowed costs on High Court scale. A field on county Court scale. A field on county Court scale. — Middleton, J., held, that the appeal should be allowed and the bill be referred back to the taxing officer under C. R. 1132, the action being one within the proper competence of the County Court. Costs of appeal and former taxation to defendants. Jackaon v, Hughes (1910), 16 O. W. R. 916. 2 O. W. N. 15.

Interim injunction—Mcnicipal by-law.] —The fees upon a petition for interlocutory injunction in an action to set aside a municipal by-law, are fees of second, not of firstclass actions, Belail v. Jodoin, 7 Que. P. R. 77.

Interim injunction.]—The costs of an interlocutory injunction will be taxed as in an action of the same class as is the action of which it is incident. Jodoin v. Belail, 7 Que. P. R. 222.

Intervention — Amount in controversy in principal action.]—The class of an intervention which has been dismissed, is determined by the amount in controversy in the principal action, and not by the amount of the claim of the intervener. Gariépy v. Chartrand, 10 Que, P. R. 155. Juggment debtor — Second judgment summons—Motion to set aside—Collection of Debts Ordinance, secs. 11, 13.]—The cosis of a motion upon summons to test the validity of a second summons for the examination of a judgment debtor (2 W, L, R, 216), were held, uxnahe on the seale of costs applicable to any other motion in the original action, and not within the provisions of secs. 11 and 12 of the Ordinance respecting the collection of debts, ch. 6 of 1904. Brouchlee v, Eads (1910), 14 W, L, R, 539.

COSTS.

Jurisdiction of County Court-Ascertainment of amount-action for price of goods-Reduction of claim by trial Judge.1 —In an action in the High Court for $3:40, the hainance of a $700 account for logs sold by the plaintiff to the defendant, $45:50 of which was paid before action, the trial Judge found that the sale was made as contended by the -Heid, on an appeal from the ruling of a taxing officer, that the plaintiff was entitled only to County Court costs, and the defendant ascertained amount, the reduction of it by the trial Judge did not affect the ascertainguished. Jurisdiction of County Court-Title to land--Growing grass — Application for King's Bench-Costs.]—As the title to land was not in question, and the County Court had jurisdiction, plaintiff was refused a fait for King's Bench costs. Fredkin V. Glines, 9 W. L. R. 303. affirmed, 11 W. L. R. 318.

Jurisdiction of Division Court-Account-Balance-Ascertainment-Settled account, Taygart v. Bennett, 2 O. W. R. 184, 419, 513.

Lump sum — Injunction motion.]—The costs of the advocates of the respondent under a judgment dismissing, after hearing a petition for an injunction, were fixed upon application to the Judge at $50. National Typographic Co. v, Dougall, 5 Que, P. R. 162.

Miner's Lien Ordinance—Provisions as to costs—Practice—Discretion—Several lienholders joining in one proceeding.]—Three lien-holders joined in one action which was dismissed. The union of the claims brought the action up to an amount giving the highest scale of costs:—Held, that defendants Motion for particulars — Prothonotary.1—A motion for particulars is an ordinary motion. 2. If an action is discontinued after such a motion, the costs of the defendant's advocate will be those of appearance and motion and not those under art. 7 of the tariff. 3. The fee of the prothonotary is also that of a motion, and not of an exception. Gingram s, Finkly, 5 Que, P. R. 118.

Opposition to sale—Class of action— —Court of King's Bench—Amount in controversy—Involvent estate.]—On an opposition to the sale of personal and real property, the fees, in the Court of King's Beach, will be the same as on the original action, that being the limit of the plainiff's inerest, and consequently the value in contest. —2. On an intervention against a demand of abandonment, has already been made and a curator appointed thereto, the value in contest is the value of the insolvent estate. Henderson V, Harbee, S Que, P, R. 126.

Order as to-Jurisdiction of trial Judge.] —In a Supreme Court action, the trial Judge has no jurisdiction to order costs on the County Court scale on the ground that the action might or should have been brought in the County Court, Russell v. Black, 10 B. C. R. 326.

Overholding tenant—Summary proceeding to eject—Landlords and Tenanis Act, R. S. M. (1902), c. 93, s. 19. —Held, that the costs of such proceedings are taxable on same scale as an action in the King's Bench. Re West Winnipeg Development Co. & Smith (1910), 15. W. L. R. 343. Man. L. R.

Payment into Court—Amount recovered by plaintiff beyond that paid into Court. Johansen v. Elliott, 7 W. L. R. 785.

Payment into Court-Inquiry as to creditors' claims-Certificate for County Court costs-Set-off-Discretion,]-Under 59 V. c. 19, s. 3 (O.), the equitable jurisdiction of the County Courts, which had been taken away by the Law Reform Act of 1868, was restored to that Court, so that it has equitable jurisdiction where the subject matter involved does not exceed $200. An action having been brought to set aside an alleged fraudulent conveyance of certain lands to the defendant, a lis pendens was registered, and by a consent order was vacated on payment of $300 into Court, with a provision that creditors should file their claims. Claims were filed to over $200, adjudicated upon by the Master, and fixed at $189.47, the amount found to be due to the plaintiff being $96.20, for which judgment was given with costs on the lower scale; the Master giving a certificate that his ruling was that the plaintiff was entitled to costs on the County Court scale, without any right of set-off :--- Held, that the Master's order as to costs should not be interfered with. Halliday v. Rutherford, 23 C. L. T. 200.

Payment of money into Court with defence — Acceptance in satisfaction — Amount within jurisdiction of inferior Court —Con, Rules 425, 1133. [133.]—Where money is paid into Court by the defendant with his defence, and taken out by the plaintiff in satisfaction to all the causes of action, the scale of the Court in which the action is brought, even where the amount paid in and accepted is within the competence of an inferior Court.—Construction of Con, Rules 425, 1133. [133.]—Babcock v. Standish, 19 P. R. 1955, and McSheffrey V. Lanagan, 20 L. R. Ir, 528, approved. Order of a Divisional Court affirmed. Stephens v. Toronto R. W. Co, 9 O. W. R. 259, 13 O. L. R. 363.

Petition—Contestation—Counsel fces,]— The fees of an advocate upon a petition under Art. 876, C. P., upon which there has been contestation by writing, inscription, examination, and hearing, are the fees of an advocate in an action of the second class, but there can be no fee at the hearing. Moreau y, Gilinas, 4 Que, P. R. 380.

Petition to appoint sequestrator.]— All the fees on a contested petition to appoint a sequestrator are governed by s. 102 of the tariff, not by s. 122 or 28, and the attorney is entitled to all the fees of a thirdclass action. Chalmers V. Shoe Wire Grip Co., 5 Que, P. R. 73.

Petition to quash municipal by-law Interlocutory injunction - Taxation Items. |-On a motion for the revision of the taxation of the respondent's costs of a motion for an interlocutory injunction incident to a petition to quash a by-law, made by virtue of Art. 4389, R. S. Q., the Court will allow a general fee of $50, and will disallow a fee d'audition; a demand for an injunction grafted on an action of this nature, is itself of the same nature, and the costs thereof ought to be taxed as of the second class; the amount payable to the prothonotary on the answer to an application for an interlocutory injunction is $1, as fixed by art. 24 of the tariff, and not the amount payable on a pleading on the merits; and the Court can not, on a taxation, refuse to allow the fee payable on each affidavit filed in support of the petition or against it. Cameron v. Westmount, 7 Que. P. R. 58.

Petition to set aside injunction order. |--The costs of an advocate upon a petition to set aside a judgment granting an interlocutory injunction before issue of the writ of summons, not being provided for by the tariff, will, under art. 12 of the tariff, be taxed upon the scale applicable to analogous proceedings; and a petition to set aside a judgment in an ordinary case is an analogous proceeding. Ozone Co. v. Magsicotte, 5 Que. P. R. 176.

Quantum — Statute limiting — Construction—Interlocutory application and appeal.]—A motion for an interlim injunction is an interlocutory motion or application, and, although an appeal from an order granting it is taken to the Court of Appeal and there allowed with costs, such costs and all other costs of the action payable by the opposite party are limited to $300, and actual disbursements, by s. 1 of the Act 7 & 8 Edw. VII. c. 12.—Section 2 of the Act only applies to appeals to the Court of Appeal from the final disposition of an action or proceeding in the Court of King's Bench, and therefore does not apply to an appeal from an order granting an interim injunction. Traders Bank v, Wright, 8 W. L. R. 747, 17 Man, L. R. 695.

Record transferred — Dilatory exception—Fee.]—If a record is transmitted to another Court, the defendant's fee will be as on a dilatory exception maintained (art. 25), plus a fee for the transference of the record. Connolly v. McCarron, 8 Que. P. R. 192.

Revendication of insurance policies —Amount involved.]—In an action of revendication of insurance policies, which represented the face value of over $200, the costs should be granted according to the actual value of the titles, not according to the value which the titles represented. Bouchard v. Hetu, 6 Que, P. R. 44.

Scale of costs—Division Court—Appeal to Divisional Court of High Court—Motion to extend time—Jurisdiction—R, S. O. 1897 c. 60, s. 159. Wholen v. Wattie, 12 O. W. R, 155.

Set-off reducing claim to lower scale. Starratt v. Benjamin, 2 E. L. R. 35.

Superior Court — Intervention on appeal.)—The costs of contestation of an intervention on appeal (to the King's Bench) will be taxed according to the tariff of the Superior Court while would apply to such contestation if it were made in the Superior Court. McSally x. Préfontaine, 4 Que. P. R. 125.

Supreme Court—County Court.] — The costs of an action in the Supreme Court, which might have been brought in the County Court, are not necessarily taxable on the County Court scale. Royal Bank v. Harris, 8 B. C. R. 368.

Tariff — Interpretation—Class of action.] —The allowance of costs, being a matter of statutory declaration and not of right, cannot exceed the limits defined by the text of the second class of the tariff must apply to the allowance of costs in an action for the rescission of a winding-up order and appointment of a biguidator to a company, although financial interests may be involved in the suit, which, if they formed the subject of the conclusions of the action, would bring it within the first class for the purposes of taxation. Stimson v. North-West Cattle Co., 12 Que, K, B, 365.

Taxation — set-off.]—Plaintiff recovered judgment in the Supreme Court of Alberta for $372 with District Court costs:—Held, there is no right to the defendant to set-off his costs of S. C. scale, Little v. Whiteley (1909), 12 W. L. R. 211.

Taxation on County Court scale—Appeal dismissed — Con. Rule 1132 does not apply—Motion for leave to appeal—To Divi-slonal Court—Dismissed with costs—Fixed at $10. Holmes v. Bready (1898), 18 P. R. 79, is still good law. McIbargey v. Queen (1911), 18 O. W. R. 763, 2 O. W. N. 781, 916.

Transfer of action-Security for costs -Event - Revision of taxation - Jurisdiction.]-The fee of the defendant's attorney on a declinatory exception which was maintained, the Court ordering the transmission of the record of another district, is that provided for by Art, 7 of the tariff .--- 2. When a motion for security for costs is granted, costs to follow suit, and the record is subsequently transmitted to another district, the costs will follow the final judgment in the case, and not the judgment maintaining the declinatory exception and ordering the transmission of the record .--- 3. Where, in an action brought at Montreal, where the transmission of the record to Quebec was ordered, the prothonotary, at Montreal, taxed the defendant's bills of costs, the Judges of the district of Montreal are competent to revise such taxation, notwithstanding the judgment ordering the transmission of the record, Can, Mutual Loan & I. Co. v. Tanguay, 3 Que. P. R. 436.

Transfer of action.]—Where a cause begun in the Circuit Court is transferred by the Court, of its own motion, to the Superior Court, by virtue of art. 171, C. P., the costs will be on the scale appropriate to the amount in controversy in the action. Item 108 of the tariff has no application, there having been no évocation. Dural v. Moffatt, 3 Que. P. R. 405.

Trespass — Title to land — Pleading— Division Court jurisdiction—Rule 1132—Setoff. Burns v. Hewitt, 10 O. W. R. 757.

Trespass to land-Title - Pleading -Amendment-Terms-Discretion.]-In an action in the High Court for trespass of land. of greater value than $200, the plaintiff alleged his tenancy and occupation; the defendant, in his statement of defence, denied both, and asserted title and right to possession in himself, and also pleaded leave and license. About two weeks before the trial the defendant gave notice of motion for leave to amend by withdrawing his denial of the defendant's tenancy, and occupation, and expressly admitting both, and withdrawing his own claim to right of possession. Leave to so amend was granted at the trial, terms as to costs having been amended until the trial, the plaintiff was obliged to go to trial in the High Court, and was entitled to his costs on the scale of that Court :- Semble, also, that as a matter of discretion under Rule 1130, and perhaps also as a term of allowing the amendment, the same disposition of the costs would be made. Black v. Wheeler, 24 C. L. T. 294, 7 O. L. R. 545, 3 O. W. R. 439.

Trespass to land — Tille — Ferdici for $100 — Jurisdiction of District Court.] — Where an action for damages for flooding and other trespasses to the plaintiff's lands situated in the Parry Sound district was brought in the High Court, and the title to the land was brought in question, and, though no evidence was given as to its value, it could not reasonably be contended that it did not exceed $200, and clause (d) of s.-s. 2 of s, 9 of R. S. O. c. 109, giving jurisdiction to inferior Courts, where the land is under such value, not applying to such dis-trict, and the Judge at the trial having found for the plaintiff and directed judgment to be entered for him for $100 damages, with the costs of the Court having jurisdiction to such amount, without any set-off, the plaintiff was held entitled to tax his costs on the High Court scale. Decision of Anglin, J., 3 O. W. R. 601, affirmed. Neely v. Parry Sound River Improvement Co., 24 C. L. T. 349, 8 O. L. R. 128, 3 O. W. R. 601, 778.

Trespans to land—Value of land—Payment of $1$ into Court — Acceptance by plaintiff.]—In an action for trespanse to land, valued at over $200, in which the plaintiff claimed $1.000 damages, and no question of $1$ into Court, and the plaintiff accepted it: —Held, that the plaintiff was entitled to his costs on the High Court scale. Babcock v. Standish, 19 P. R. 195, followed. Chick v. Toronto Electric Light Co., 12 P. R. 58, and Tobin v. McGillis, ib, 60 n., commented on. McKeltzy v. Chilman, 23 C. L. T. 114, 5 O. L. R. 265, 2 O. W. R. 118, Verdiet less than $400.1—In an action tried by Judge and jury, for damages for breach of contract, where plaintiff claims more than $1,000, costs will follow the event if plaintiff recovers substantial damages, although amount of verdict is less than $400, a sum recoverable in District Court. Potter & McDougall v. Grierson (1906), 10 W. L. R. 610; 2 Alth. L. R. 120.

Will—Class of action—Tariff.]—The tariff of advocates includes in the first class of actions, personal, real, and mixed actions where the amount in controversy exceeds $1,000, and in the second class all actions which do not fall within the first class, and as to which no other provisions are made. An action to declare a will void and to establish an earlier will, although the plaintiff, if successful, would indirectly obtain the right to an estate worth $15,000, falls within the second class. Gaudry v. Dubois, 2 Que. P. R. 403.

Withdrawal of part of claim-Taxation of costs-Witness fees-Foreign witnesses.] - The fact that the plaintiff, in an against the defendants to recover action $1,165.28, being $776.85 for the value of goods which had been intrusted to the defendants to be carried, but had not been delivered by them, and $388.46 damages caused by the default to deliver, has filed a retraxit in the course of the suit for $388.73, because the goods have been delivered to him after the commencement of the action, does not take away the right to have his costs taxed as in an action of the first class .--- 2. The taxation of witnesses subpænaed out of the jurisdiction may be revised even when no objection has been made when such costs were being taxed, if the total amount of the costs, as taxed, exceeds the cost of a commission to examine such witnesses. Rothchild v. Can. Pac. Rw. Co., 21 Que. S. C. 318, 5 Que. P. R. 39.

3. Security for Costs.

Absence from jurisdiction. Wallace v. Bank of Montreal, 1 E. L. R. 232.

Absence from Province—Change of residence.]—The plaintiff was a non-resident of the province. The defendant applied for an order for a stay of proceedings until security for costs should be given. At the return of the summons, on shewing cause, an adidavit of the plaintiff was read in which she stated that she had, after service of the writ of summons, moved into the province, and intended residing in the province until after the termination of her suit.—Htd, that the defendant was not entitled to security for costs. Violette v, Martin, 20 C. L. T. 88.

Absence from Province—Evidence — Burden of proof—Bailiff's return.]—Where a dilatory exception was made by the defendant alleging that the plaintiff had left the province since the institution of the netion, and asking for security for costs before plending, the bailiff's return upon a subpena, to the effect that he was unable to find the plaintiff, and that he had been informed that the plaintiff had left the province, was sufficient, at the hearing of the exception, to throw the burden of proof upon the plaintiff to shew that he was still domiciled in the province. Beemolt Y, Barisky, 3 Que. P. R. 192.

Absent plaintiff — Absence in another province—Return to Ontario—Intention to remain—Evidence — Discretion — Appeal. Gagne V. Can. Pac. Rw. Co., 3 O. W. R. 624.

Absent plaintiff — Acquisition of residence in jurisdiction pendente lite—Temporary or permanent residence. Barry V. Oshatea Canning Co., 3 O. W. R. 190.

Absent plaintiff—Extension of time— Procuration—Want of authentication — Contestation.] — The procuration of power of attorney furnished by plaintiff resident out of the province may be allowed to stand although not properly authentiented, if the right of the defendant to contest the veracity of it be saved.—2. The Court may, for sufficient cause, extend the delay first allowed for the furnishing of security judicatum rolei and of the procuration ad litem. Berthiaume v. Herreboudt, 13 Que, K. B, 159, 6 Que, P. R, 80.

Absent plaintiff — Fixed place of abode —Domicil.]—The plaintiff, an Italian, was engaged at Montreal, in the service of a railway company, until the end of 1904; and, at the time he commenced his action, he worked for this company at Cross Lake, in the province of Ontario. The writ of summors described him as of Montreal; and the place of his domicil or residence before his arrival at Montreal was not shewn. The defendant havinz, by "dilatory exception." demanded security for costs and procuration: -Hcld, that the plaintiff did not reside at Cross Lake, his being in that place not constituting a residence within the meaning of Art, 179, C. P. C. The residence of a party is the place where he usually and ordinarily dwells and has a fixed abode. Cills v. Cordasco, 25 Que. 8. C. 68.

Absent plaintiff—Intention to return.] —The fact that the plaintiff proposes to return to reside in the province of Quebec, while he does not netually reside there, does not withdraw him from the obligation to give security for costs, Marino V. Youngheart, 6 Que, P. R. 335.

Absent plaintiff — One of several,] — Where one of the plaintiffs lives in the United States, he will be ordered to give security for costs. Kirk v. Lamontagne, 6 Que, P. R. 157.

Absent plaintiff—Property in jurisdiction — Burden of proof—Building society— Terminating shares. Daniel v. Birkbeck Loan and Savings Co., 5 O. W. R. 757.

Action against municipal corporation-Non-repair of highway-Personal injuries.]--Article 705 of the Municipal Code, which requires a person who sues a municipal corporation, of which he is not a ratepayer, on account of non-repair of the roads and payements of the municipality, to deposit a sum of $10 with the clerk of the Court at the time of the issue of the writ of summons, as security for costs, applies to actions for damages for injuries caused by non-repair, and not merely to actions for the penalty provided by Art, 7081. Lalonge dit Garcon y, St, Vincent de Paul, 23 Que, S. C. 65.

Action brought by Hquidator in name of company in Hquidation—Liability for costa-Assevis of company—Undertaking of Hquidator, Toronto Cream & Butter Co. v. Crown Bark, 9 O. W. R. 543, 718, 10 O. W. R. 521.

Action by infants resident abroad by next friend—Application refused by trial Judge as being too late—Action dismissed without costs—Appeal to Divisional Court by plaintifis—New motion by defendants for security dismissed on all grounds without costs. Belanger V, Belanger (1911), 18 O. W. R. 842, 2 O. W. N. 895.

Action by infant's tutor—Infant out of the jurisdiction—Tutor within.1—If an infant is living out of the province of Quebec with his tutor to the person, the tutor to the property, although himself resident in the province, must give security for costs of an action in respect of the infant's rights. Cullen v. Daly, 9 Que, P. R. 249.

Action by solicitor. for libel-R. S. O. 1897, c. 68, s. 10-Criminal charge-Barratry-Action not trivial or frivolous. Mackenzie v. Goodfellow, 13 O. W. R. 30.

I.-Intra viras — Criminal Code — 8s, 1131, 1148—11 Educ, VII, c. 12, s. 16, I—On motions by defendants, magistrate and constable, in an action for trespass and false impri-soment for security for costs, it was objected that above Act and Amending Act were ultra vires of Ontarlo Legislature: — Held, no effect could be given to this objection at this stage. Security ordered. Titchmark v. Graham, Titchmark v. McConnell (1909), 14 O. W. R. 277.

On appeal it was held that where a majistrate had jurisdiction over the subject matter and his conviction was set aside on grounds that he had failed to set out certain things in writing, which left the warrant for arrest defective on its face, it was held, that the majistrate was acting within his jurisdiction and was entitled to the protection of R. 8. O, (1897), c. 88, s. 9, and therefore entitled to security for costs. Ibid, 14 O. W. R. 619, 1 O. W. N. 27.

Affirmed 14 O. W. R. 690, 1043, 1 O. W. N. 208

See S. C. (1909), 13 O. W. R. 618, 683.

Additional on appeal.]-Plaintiff having set down an appeal to Divisional Court defendants were granted an order for additional securities for costs for such amount as a taxation may shew to be reasonable and proceedings stayed until such security Stow v. Currie (1910), 15 O. W. R. given. 250.-Plaintiff appealed from above order of Master in Chambers. The appellant's counsel attack the jurisdiction of the Master to make the order, and at all events in respect of past costs :- Held, that the Master had jurisdiction to make the order and that the application was properly made to him. As to the questions whether his discretion was properly exercised, and whether the additional security should be confined to future costs, it was held that the amount of security that may be increased or diminished, and as in this case security has been given to amount to $2,000, that security is for all the costs, past and future, the increase of that amount necessarily makes the security increased applicable to the same costs, and that if the additional security is fixed at $1,000, it is all that the plaintiff should be required to do to entitle him to proceed. The order varied by so providing and by eliminating the stay of proceedings, leaving that to be governed by C. R. 1208. Costs of motion and appeal in the cause. Bentsen v. Taylor, and appear in the cause. Bentsen V. Tajkor, [1889] 2 K. B. 193, and Tanner V. Weiland (1900), 19 P. R. 149, followed. Stow v. Currie (1910), 15 O. W. R. 383, 20 O. L. R. 353.—Motion by the plaintiff for the allow-ance of a bond filed for additional security for costs pursuant to above orders. The Master was of opinion that the condition of the bond was defective, and directed that a new bond should be filed; but, after that direction, the plaintiff elected to pay $1,000 into Court in Hen of giving a bond, and did The only order made was one allowing the plaintiff to remove the bond from the files, and providing that the costs of the motion should be costs to the defendants in the cause, Stow v. Currie (1190), 1 O. W. N.

Additional security to examine defendant for discovery at New York.)--On motion by defendant for additional security for costs, for execution of a commission to examine defendant at New York for discovery, Meld, that plaintiff mast zive further security for bond for $3,600 or pay $1,800 into Court, unless plaintiffs assignors agree to allow the land in question, as between themselves and defendant, to be subject in some way to a lien for defendant's costs, should the action fail. Colonial Development Syndicate v. Mitchell (1960), 14 O. W. R. 667, See S. C. 14 O. W. R. 819, 1 O. W. N. 134.

Admission that defendant without defence—Counterclaim for malicious arrest. Blumensteil v. Edwards, 3 O. W. R. 772, 5 O. W. R. 341, 796.

Affidavit—devote - devote - Relie(1) --Rule 520 provides: "When the plaintiff inan action resides out of the Territories. . and the defendant by affidivit ofhimself or his agent alleges that he has agood defende on the merits to the action, thedefendant shall be entitled to a summons toshew cause why an order should not issuerequiring the plaintiff within three months. . . to give security for the defendant's costs "—Held, that the agentthe someone having personal knowledgeof the facts constituting the defence, andthe allegation of the existence of a good defence must be positive. An affidavit bythe defendant's advocate that he verily believes the defendant to have a good defenceis insufficient on both grounds. Stimpson v.Roos, 5 Terr. L. R. 485.

Affidavit — Information.]—An affidavit in support of a motion for security for costs, in which the deponent does not say that he personally knows that the plaintiff no longer has his domicil in the province of Quebec, but simply that some one has told him so, is insufficient. Affidavit of merits — Belief — Sufficiency.)—On a motion for security for costs it is not necessary that the defendant should swear positively as to the merits. A statement that he believes he has a good defence upon the merits is sufficient. Kerr (O, W.) Co, v. Lowe, 3 W. L. R. 400, 6 Terr, L. R. 361.

Affidavit of merits—Discretion—Crossexamination,1—The practice under Rule 520 of the J. O. (C. O. 1898; c. 21), as to sceurity for costs, differs from the English practice in making it obligatory upon the defendant to file the affidavit of himself or his agent alleging he has a good defence on the merits—Quare, whether it is necessary to set out the grounds of defence. This Rule leaves the graning of the security to the discretion of the Judge under the circumstances of each case. The Judge may order the deponent to be cross-examined upon his affidavit as to the nature of the alleged defence before deciding the motion. Under the circumstances of this case the Judge was held to have exercised a proper discretion in refusing security, Clark v. Hamilton, 21 C. L. T. 323, 5 Terr. L. R. 110.

Appeal to Court of Appeal-Powerty of appellant-Infancy-Divisional Court.]---Sceurity for costs of an appeal to the Court of Appeal was dispensed with, under the power given by Rule 826, where the appellant was an infant suing by her next friend, and unable, by reason of poverty, to give or procure security, the circumstances being that her action had been dismissed by the Judge at the trial, following a reported decision of a Divisional Court, with which the appellant would be met if she appealed to a Divisional Court, which she was at liberty to do without giving security. Fahcy v, Jephcott, 21 C. L. T. 155, 1 O. L. R. 198.

Appeal to Divisional Court. Ontario.] —Rule 825, providing that no security for costs shall be required on a motion or appeal to a Divisional Court, does not preclude a defendant from obtaining an order for security for costs where the plaintiff has taken up his residence abroad after a judgment dismissing his action without costs, from which his appeal to a Divisional Court is pending. Arnold v. Van Tuyl, 20 O. R. 603, distinguished, Tanner v. Weiland, 20 C. L. T. 175, 19 P. R. 149.

Appeal to Divisional Court-Right of unpaid vendor.]-The plaintiff, after a judgment had been pronounced. 14 O. W. R. 328, dismissing his action, took up his residence out of the jurisdiction, and then appealed to the Divisional Court:-Held, that he must give security for costs. Tanner v. Welland (1900), ii) P. R. 149, followed. Heatherly v. Knight (1909), 14 O. W. R. 684.

Appeal to full Court—Delay in applying—British Columbia_Order LVIII., Rule 15A. — Discretion.]. — Defendants appealed to the Full Court.—Held, that it is in the discretion of the Court.whether scendity for costs will be given. Piper v. Burnett, 10 W. L. R. 647.

Appeal to full Court, B.C.] — The amount of security for costs on appeals to the full Court not being fixed by the Rules: —Held, that in ordinary cases it should be $150 in appeals generally, $75 in interlocutory appeals, both Supreme and County Court, and $100 in County Court appeals not interlocutory, Regers v, Reed, 7 B, C, L, R, 79. Appeal to King's Beach-Application of security to further appeal.] — The bond given by a surety for the effective prosecution of an appeal to the Court of King's Bench, and the undertaiking therein to pay the amount of the condemnation which may be ordered if the judgment appealed from be confirmed, applies to a confirmation by the Court to which the surety in such case becomes extinct if the judgment be reversed by the Court of King's Bench, and does not revive if the judgment to the curt of King's Bench be subsequently set aside by a higher Court. Judgment in 19 Que, S. C. 571. affirmed, Guertin v. Mollcur, 21 Que, S. C. 261.

Appeal to Privy Council-Increase in security ordered on account of length of transcript.].—Sum ordered to be deposited for security of respondents' costs, on allowance of an appeal granted ex parte; upon petition of the respondents increased, on account of the length of the transcript of the proceedings in the Court below. Boaucell v. Kilburn (1860). C. R. 3 A. C. 285.

Appeal to Privy Council.]-The appellant, in pursuance of the Canada Act. 34 Geo, III., c. 2, s. 35, tendered his bond as security for the due prosecution of the ap-peal. The bond, though without sureties, and binding only on the appellant, was, upon a rule to shew cause, duly allowed. Pending the appeal the appellant died, and the same was duly revived against the exeuctors. Ap-plication that the executors should give proper and sufficient security, or the appeal stand dismissed, refused-the Judicial Committee being of opinion that the allowance of the security in the Court below precluded the respondents from objecting now to the form of the bond, and that their appearance to the order of revivor prevented the Court imposing terms on the appellant.—Semble, the term "proper security." in the Canada Act, 34 Geo. III., c. 2 s. 35, means security with proper securities, and not merely per-The Court of Appeal in Upper Cansonal. ada having refused to order the Court of King's Bench to send up the original papers and documents on the file of the Court, but not part of the record, their decision was affirmed, the Judicial Committee holding that the Court of Appeal was a Court of Error, and governed by the same rules as prevail in Courts of Error in England. Powell v. Washburn (1838), C. R. 1 A. C. 127.

Appeal to Supreme Court, N.W.T.--Extension of time for moving for security-Special circumstances -- Poverty of appellant, I--The Judicature Ordinance No. 6 of 1883, s. 504, as amended by Ordinance No. 7 of 1895, s. 7, provides that "No security for costs shall be required in applications for mew trials or appeals or motions in the nature of appeals, unless by reason of special circumstances such security is ordered by a Judge upon application to be made within fifteen days from the service of the notice of motion, application, or appeal." The defendants succeeded at the trial. The plaintiff served notice of appeal, and at the expiration of 37 days obtained an es parte order extending the time for filing the appeal

This order was obtained upon an books. affidavit of the plaintiff to the effect that owing to poverty he had been till then unable to procure sufficient means to meet the cost of printing. On the following day the defendants took out a summons to extend the time for applying for security for the costs of appeal, and for an order for security. The defendants' application was founded upon the plaintiff's affidavit, and a further affidavit to the effect that the sheriff was prepared to return "nulla bona" the execution against the plaintiff for the taxed costs of the action :--Held, that, inasmuch as the defendants' delay in applying for an extension of time within which to make their application for security for costs of appeal had not prejudiced the plaintiff, the extension should be granted.-2. That the plaintiff's poverty was a "special circumstance" entitling the defendants to security for the costs of appeal. Morton v. Bank of Montreal, 3 Terr. L. R. 14.

Application—Forum.]—Applications for security for costs of appeal to the full Court should be made to a Judge in Chambers and not to the full Court. Rogers v. Reed, 7 B. C. L. R. 183.

Application for—Onus—Affidevit—Defence on merits.] — On an application for security for costs under Rule 520, the plaintiff, to have the summons discharged, must shew affirmatively that the defendant is not entitled to the order.—Where, therefore, the defendant by his affidavit alleged a good defence to the action on the merits, which the plaintiff sought to rebut by cross-examination, he was held entitled to the order, because his answers, though alleging certain facts not within his personal knowledge, shewed that it was not unreasonable to suppose that the plaintiff's claim might have been satisfied, Griggs V, Grigs 5, Terr, L. R. 501.

Application for—Preliminary exception — Advocate's fee.] — If an application for security for costs is made by may of a sinple motion, instead of by preliminary exception, the advocate's fee will be that of a motion. Tisi v. Cordasco, 27 Que, S. C. 33.

Application for—Service of certificate of deposit, 1— A defendant who files a preliminary exception demanding security for costs and who makes the deposit required by Art. 165 C. P., and Rule of Practice 40. but who does not, at the same time as the notice of motion is served, serve notice on the opposite party of the certificate of the prothonotary setting out the deposit, may be allowed to give this notice to the plaintiff when the latter cannot shew that he has been prejudiced by want of notice. Wayle v. Clunie, 7 Que, P. R. 22.

Application for—Time for moving — Deposit.]—The notice of a motion for security for costs must be given to the opposite party within three days from the entry of the cause. Such motion cannot be heard unless there be served with the notice the certificate of the protonotary to the effect that a deposit of the sum fixed by the rules of practice has been made with the clerk, King v. Pelletier, 27 Que, S. C. 37.

Application for custody of infant —Application out of Ontario—" Proceeding" —Affidavit, Re Giroux, 2 O. W. R. 385.

Application to increase amount . Waiver of objection.] - A respondent by applying to increase the amount of security for costs upon an appeal waives his right to object that the security was not originally furnished in time. Re Oro Fino Mines, 7 B. C. R. 38.

Arrest-Capios after judgment - Commencement of new action.]-A capias issued after judgment is the commencement of a new cause, and a foreign plaintiff who has already given security for costs of the principal action, may be ordered to furnish fresh security for the capias, and will be ordered to pay the costs of a motion for security if he contests it. Edgerton v. Lapierre, 6 Que. P. R. 347.

Assets in jurisdiction involved in present litigation-No real security.]-Defendants moved for increased security for costs, $400 having been paid into Court under pracipe orders made before consolidation. Master in Chambers ordered plaintiff to give additional security for $1,000 within three weeks, proceedings stayed in the meantime. -Middleton, J., affirmed above order. Plain-tiff's assets within the jurisdiction being in-volved in the present litigation would not afford any real securty. Costs in the cause. Duryca v. Kaufman (1910), 16 O. W. R. 913, 2 O. W. N. 23. See S. C. 16 O. W. R. 57, 21 O. L. R. 161.

Assignment by plaintiff for benefit of creditors pendente lite-Re-assignment by assignce to plaintiff.]-After action commenced plaintiff assigned for benefit of his creditor. A statement of claim was sub-sequently delivered but the assignee was not made a party thereto. Defendant then pleaded, but it does not appear he knew of the assignment. The latter now moved to stay or dismiss action or for security for costs. Before motion was heard the assignce re-transferred the judgment on which action was founded and all benefits and advantages to plaintiff .-- Held, that as the action is good on its face it must go to trial. Section 9, c. 147, R. S. O. 1897, does not apply. Law-less v. Crowley, 13 O. W. R. 358.

Companies Act-Special provision for security—Action by company—Delay in apply-ing—Costs of appeal—Supreme Court Act.] -The defendants applied under s. 114 of the Companies Act, for security for the costs of the action, which had been decided in their favour, and also for the costs of the plaintiffs' appeal from that decision. The judgment appealed from was given in February, 1905; in March, 1905, the defendants were aware of the plaintiff's inability to pay the costs of the action unless an appeal re-sulted in their favour. Taxation took place the 27th June, 1906, and the application for security was made on the 30th July, 1906: -Held, on appeal, that the application was made too late, the plaintiffs having in the meantime perfected all necessary steps for taking an appeal :---Held, as to the costs of the appeal, that s, 110 of the Supreme Court Act, which limits the security that may be required for costs of appeal to $200, gov-erned. Star Mining & Milling Co. v. White Co., 12 B. C. R. 355.

Defendant in interpleader - Time for applying.]-Under Order 63, R. 5, a person residing out of the jurisdiction made defendant by an interpleader order, may be ordered to give security for costs.---Where a party has been made defendant by an interpleader order, an application for security for costs may be made after the interpleader order has been granted. Ross v. McDougall, 40 N. S. R. 133.

Defendants out of jurisdiction.]-In this interpleader issue the defendants, the execution creditors, being out of the jurisdiction, were ordered to give security for costs, Gowan v. Kolcheu (1909), 12 W. L. R. 211.

Delay to put in security in appeal when given by a Judge.]-The prothon-otary's certificate establishing want of security on the appeal, and given less than five days after the filing of the inscription in appeal, is premature and cannot have the effect of having the appeal considered as having been abandoned .- A delay for putting in security when granted by a Judge of the Court of Appeal cannot be assimilated with the additional delay granted by a Judge of the Superior Court under the provisions of Art. 1213 C. C. P.; default to furnish security within the prescribed delay cannot be the ground for a motion to dismiss the appeal. Montreal Rolling Mills Co. v. Sambor, 11 Que. P. R. 45..

Deposit in instalments - Additional security.]-Under Art. 227, C. C. P., the Judge is authorised to order the security to meet the costs incurred on a petition in improbation to be deposited in portions from time to time as necessity may arise, and an additional deposit may at any time be or-dered where it appears that the sum already deposited is insufficient, Auclair v. Nadon, 17 Que. S. C. 200.

Deposit in review.]-When the parties have agreed to proceed with the principal action, the action in warranty and an intervention of the warrantor, at the same hearing, and when one judgment has decided all the issues, one deposit is sufficient in Review. Anderson v. Smith (1910), 16 R. de J., 349.

Dilatory exception - Deposit-Certificate-Notice-Amendment.] - A motion for security for costs is a dilatory exception, and cannot be granted unless notice of the prothonotary's certificate attesting that the de-posit required by law has been duly made, has been given to the opposite party .---: The Court cannot remedy such omission by permitting the party moving for security to give notice of the deposit and certificate. Wistar v. Dunham, 4 Que. P. R. 195.

Dilatory exception-Notice of deposit.] When the deposit required to support a dilatory exception is mentioned in the notice of motion given to the opposite party, the procedure is in accordance with the requirements of Art. 165, C. P. Leclair v. May-rand, 8 Que. P. R. 87.

the executors, in the absence of an allegation to the contrary, being considered as resident in the province of Quebec. Hart v. Dubreuil, 17 Que. S. C. 371.

Extension of time for giving, after expiry—Mistake of solicitor.]—An order for security for costs contained the following provision: "That in case default is made in giving security within the time foresuld, this action be dismissed with costs." After the expiry of the time limited, plaintiff's solicitor moved to have the time enlarged, on the ground that it was by reason of a mistake on his part, that security was not given in time:—Held, that notwithstanding the expiry of the time limited in the order, a Judge has jurisdiction to entertain an application on behalf of plaintiff to enlarge the time, to enable him to comply with the order. Ordeng V. Le Blanc, 3N. N. R. 185.

Foreclosure suit.]—It is not a ground for refusing an order for security for costs, where the plaintiff is resident abroad, that the sait is for foreclosure, upon a mortgage. Buchanan v. Harvie, 25 C. L. T. 66, 3 N. B. Eq. 1.

Foreign company—Joint plaintiffs.]— Held, that an extra-provincial company must give security for costs under R. S. B. C. 1807, c. 44, s. 144, notwithstanding it is suing along with a resident of the province and has assets within the province, McClary v. Howland, 20 C. L. T. 396, 7 B. C. L. R. 290.

Rent and all office expenses were paid by the company, which was not licensed or registered in British Columbia.-Held, that the company was a foreign company within the meaning of s. 144 of the Companies Act. and was bound to give security for costs. La Bourgogne, [1899] P. 1, [1899] A. C. 431 considered. Alaska Steamship Co., v. M. caulay, 20 C. L. T. 448, 7 B. C. L. R. 338. Ma-

Foreign corporation—Place of business -C, P, 170, -A company incorporated under the provisions of the law of another province or of a foreign country, where it has its principal place of business, is bound, upon a motion to that effect, to give security for cosis, and this even when the company alleges that it has an office, and in fact has one, in this province. Baynes Carriage Co. v. Faucher (1910), 16 R. L. N. S. 264.

Foreign corporation—"Residence" — 63 V. c. 24 (O.) — In order to shew that a corporation resides in Ontario (within the meaning of Rule 1198), it should anpear that the company is incorporated and has its head and controlling office within the jurisdiction where its business is carried on, and "residence," as contemplated by the practice as to security for costs, is not implied where a foreign corporation has only a constructive residence through agents acting in its business interests and licensed so to do in a comparatively small and transient sort of way, as were the plaintiffs in this action; and the evidence not disclosing sufficient costs. Judgment of a local Master affirmed. Ashland Co. v. Armstrong, 11 O. L. R. 414, 7 O. W. R. 401.

Foreign intervenant: — Whatever may be the purpose for which a foreign intervenant seeks to intervene in a pending suit, he can always be bound to give security for costs and produce a power of attorney. De Martigny v. La Societé Charitable de PAsile de Nuit à Paris, 2 Que, P. R. 334.

Form of bond—Afidarit of justification —Real estet.]—The affidarit of a surety at the foot of his bond need not necessarily be in the first person or divided into paragraphs numbered consecutively. 2. The description of the surety is sufficient if it is contained in the bond preceding the affidarit. 3. A surety judicatum solvi is not obliged to justify upon real estate when the amount of the costs is not considerable. Maheu v. Leelerc, 6 Que, P. R. 225.

Garnishment.]--Where the garnisher resides out of the province, the garnishe is entitled to security for costs of the proceeding against him in respect of the debt attached (which proceeding is an "action" in which the judgment is soughl), and an order will therefore be granised after the garnishes has made his declaration and before it has been contested. General Importation Co. v. Biolodeus, 3 Que, P. R. 180.

Increase—Inadequacy—Rules. Dever v. Fairweather, 1 O. W. R. 389.

Increase — Trial practically concluded. Woodruff v. Eclipse Office Furniture Co. of Ottawa, 35, 114, 2 O. W. R. 35, 114, 691, 4 O. W. R. 165.

Increase in amount - Costs thrown away by postponement of trial-Amendment.] -While the practice as to granting addi tional security for costs has been relaxed in favour of the granting of such security. the plaintiff, however, must not be checked at every stage of the action by security being ordered dollar for dollar for all costs incurred, or which might be incurred, without regard to the conduct of the parties. On the commencement of an action security to the amount of $200 was ordered. After the action had proceeded, $300 further security was ordered; and, on a commission to take evidence being issued, a further sum of $100. On the action coming on for trial the de-fendants were granted leave to amend their pleadings, and, on the plaintiffs stating that they were not ready to proceed on the amended record, the trial was postponed, the costs of the day being made costs in the cause to the successful party. The defendants Infant plaintiff in jurisdiction—Adult plaintiff and next friend out of jurisdiction —Separate claims—Appearance—Pracipe order.]—Action by the father of an infant as next friend and also on his own behalf to recover damages resulting to the father and the infant from an injury to the infant for which it was alleged defendants were liable. The father resided in England, and the infant in Ontario, as shewn by Indorsement on writ of summons. Defendants moved for an order for security for costs. Order granted and in default of security being given it directed that the claim of the father be struck out. Felgale v, Hegler, 4 O. W. R. 439, 5 O. W. R. 91, 9 O. L. R. 315.

Inscription en faux—Amount of deposit—Increase or reduction.]—The Court, after having fixed the amount of a deposit to be made by a party who inscribes en faux cannot increase or reduce such amount, especially when the cause is before the Court upon such inscription. Léveille v. Kauntz, 5 Que, P. R. 101, Inscription for review—Amount of dcposit—Amount involved.]—Where there is a contest between two creditors of an insolvent as to priority, and judgment has been given declaring one claim prior to the other to the extent of less than $400, the deposit to make when inscribing in review of such judgment is $50, although the two claims aggregate more than $4,000. Re Cantuell, 6 Que. P. R. 195. Inscription in review—Deposit—Intervention—U. P. 1196.]—A deposit of $50 with an inscription in review by an intervenant. is sufficient when the amount involved in the intervention is less than $400, and when its object is to have certain effects declared exempt from the attachment for rent placed upon them by the plaintiff, who is the less sor of the leased premises. Gelinas v. Finkelstein & Lafond, 11 Que. P. R. 154.

Insolvency — Absent contextant,]—One who, residing abroad, contexts the schedule of an insolvent is obliged to furnish security for costs and to file a power of attorney. Re Levis & Murray, 3 Que, P. R. 145.

Insolvency of plaintiff-Appeal.]-On an application made by the defendant for security for costs of an appeal by the plaintiff, it appeared that the action had been dismissed with costs, but that no costs had been paid, and that, to an execution issued therefor, return had been made that the plaintiff had no property, within the jurisdiction or elsewhere, to respond the execution. It also appeared that the plaintiff had made an assignment for the general benefit of creditors, and that, on an examination before commissioners, it was shewn that he had no real or personal property, book debts, or assets, that none of his creditors had been paid, and that anything recovered in the action would belong to his creditors :--Held, following the practice laid down in Chitty's Archbold, p. 399, that the case was one in which the plaintiff should be ordered to give security, Shand v. E Co., 33 N. S. R. 241. Shand v. Eastern Canada S. & L.

Intent to leave province—Costs of motion.]—The more fact that the plaintif has stated that he intends to go away to the United States does not justify an order for security for costs; but the costs of a motion for security will be costs in the cause. Smith v. Wiseman, 8 Que. P. R. 283.

Judgment dismissing action for default of Assignment by defendant for benfit of creditors — Admission of claim.]—An order was made for security of costs to be given within three months. During this period the defendant made an assignment for the benefit of his creditors. The plaintiffs filed their claim with the assignee, and understood, apparently wrongly, that the claim was admitted. Judgment was afterwards signed by the defendant dismissing the action for non-compliance with the order for security. On motion by the plaintiffs the judgment was set aside on terms. Macpherson Fruit Co, v. England, 5 Terr. L. R. 388.

Becurity for costs refused in a libel action against a sporting editor. The Master seems to think this a faint parallel of the Eatanswill editorial war. Robinson v. Mills, 13 O. W. R. 606.

Libel action.]—Motion by defendants for security for costs in a libel action:—Held, that on the face of the publication complained of, there was nothing that would suggest a criminal charge. To allege that a bench warrant was applied for to bring plaintiff before a magistrate, but refused, cannot be said to impute a criminal offence to plaintiff. Order for security granted. Titchmark v. The World (1910), 15 O. W. R. 362.

"Libel contained in a newspaper."] —"The defondant was a country correspondent of the St. Thomas Times, and the action was for an alleged libel contained in one of his periodical contributions to the paper. A local Judge having ordered the plaintiff to furnish security for the defendant's costs under R. S. O. c. 68, s. 10, on the ground that the alleged libel was "contained in a newspaper." — Held, on appeal, reversing the order, and following Equa v, Miller, T. C. L. T. 443, that only the editor, publisher, or proprietor of a paper is entitled to security for costs under s. 10, and not a mere correspondent. Neit N. Norman, 21 C. L. T. 243.

Long vacation—Jurisdiction — Opposition.]—The Court has no jurisdiction, in long vacation, to hear a motion for an order requiring security for costs to be given by an opposant à fin de charge. Payette v. Comic Opera Co., 6 Que, P. R. 302.

Merits of defence - Discretion.1-The defendant, who was sued on three bills of exchange, moved for security for costs on an affidavit that he had a good defence to the action on the merits, and that he had overpaid the plaintiff, who resided out of the jurisdiction. The plaintiff did not cross-ex-amine the defendant on this affidavit, but filed affidavits shewing admissions of the indebtedness by the defendant. These affidavits were not answered or explained. The Rule of Court in force in the Territories requires an affidavit of merits :--Held, that the Judge ought not upon an application for security to try out the merits of the defence. but he may, in his discretion, inquire whether the alleged merits are not a mere pretence; and the defendant in this case having disclosed the nature of his merits, the discretion of a Judge in refusing to order security for costs should not be interfered with on appeal. Clark v. Hamilton, 21 C. L. T. 323.

Motion for order dispensing with giving security-Con. Rule 826 - Motion refused.]-Motion for an order dispensing with giving security for costs of an appeal to the Court of Appeal under Con. Rule 826 or reducing the amount of the security to be given, refused, as the matter was left in too much uncertainty to justify a departure from the rule. Costs in the proposed appeal. McCarthy v. McCarthy (1910), 15 O. W. R. 827.

Money paid into Court—Payment out to successful party — Proposed appeal.] — Money paid into the High Court by the plaintiffs as security for the defendants' costs was ordered by the Master in Chambers to be paid out to the defendants after they had, by the judgment of the Court of Appeal (7 O, L. R. 110), been allowed the costs of the action against the plaintiffs, notwithstanding that the plaintiffs proposed to appeal to the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. To retain the money in Court would amount to a stary of execution, and if that were desired, the plaintiffs should apply to the Court of Appeal. Rules 827, S22, considered, and the absence of any Rule corresponding to English Order 58, Rule 16, remarked on. Centaur Cycle Co. v. Hill, 22 C. L. T. 253, 24 C. L. T. 200, 1 O. W. R. 229, 377, 401, 639, 2 O. W. R. 1025, 3 O. W. R. 255, 354, 4 O. L. R. 92, 463, 7 O. L. R. 411, 617.

Motion — Formalities.]—A motion for security for costs is a preliminary exception, and must comply with all the formalities required therefor. Turner v. Fee, 6 Que. P. R. 139.

Motion—Necessary deposit—Certificate— Service.]—The service of a certified copy of the protonotary's certificate of deposit, upon a motion by the defendant for security for costs, is a sufficient compliance with the Code of Procedure in that behalf. Clifton Manufacturing Co x. Montreal Canada Fire Ins. Co., 8 Que. P. R. C.

Motion—Notice — Certificate.]—Upon a motion for security for costs, it is not necessary to zive notice of the certificate of the prothonotary that the deposit required has been made. Wilder v. Wilder, 4 Que. P. R. 433.

Motion—Notice — Certificate—Depasit,] —Upon a motion for security for costs, it is not necessary to give notice of the certificate of the prothonotary that the necessary deposit has been made. Tougain v. Can. Pac. Rw. Co., 4 Que. P. R. 303.

Motion—Notice — Certificate—Deposit.] —Where, in the notice of the presentation of a motion for security for costs, no notice is given of the certificate of the prothonotary that the deposit required by law has been made, the motion will be rejected with costs. Robertson v. Cobban Mfg. Co., 4 Que. P. R. 345.

See Tougain v. Can. Pac. Rw. Co., ib., 284, 303.

Motion — Stamps—Deposit.]—A motion for security for costs is a preliminary exception, and the notice of motion must be stamped as such, and accompanied by the deposit required by law. Williams v. Chicoine, 7 Que, P. R. 411.

Motion — Time—One plaintiff out of juriadiction — Costs of contexted motion.] — A motion for security for costs and production of power of attorney, notice of which has been given for the 1st September, may be presented on the 10th September, that being the first day of the sittings of the Court.— 2. A co-plaintiff out of the jurisdiction is subject to the obligation of furnishing security and producing a power of attorney. Semble, that in such circumstances a plaintiff who contests the demand of security and power of attorney will be adjudged to pay costs. Slater Shoe Co. v. Trudeau 5 Que. P. R. 120. Motion by defendants to set aside default judgment — Defendants out of jurisdiction.]—Defendants moved to set aside a default judgment obtained against them about a year ago. Plaintiff moved for security for costs of first motion. Order made for security, detendants being out of jurisdiction. Marks v. Michigan Sulphite Fiber Co. (1900), 14 O. W. R. S3. See S. C. 14 O. W. R. 567, 1018, 1 O. W. N. 208.

Motion for-Action for libel-Defence to motion-Plainiff has sufficient nessets within province — Not substantiated by evidence — Assets heavily encumbered—Unsatisfied executions in sheriff's hands—Order made to give security—Costs of motion in cause to defendant, Manaell v. Robertson (1010), 17 O. W. R. 609, 2 O. W. N. 337, affirmed 17 O. W. R. 829, 2 O. W. N. 380.

Motion for — Deposit.]—It is not necessary to make a deposit at the office of the Court upon a motion for security for costs. Hylands v. Lenz, 9 Que, P. R. 121.

Motion for—Deposit—Answer to motion —Proof by affidavit.]—A motion for security for costs pendente like cannot be considered as a preliminary plea to the action, and a deposit is not required therewith.—The leave given by the Court to answer in writing to an application for security for costs does not carry with it the consequence that the parties are thereafter to proceed to an "enquête contradictoire;" the Court may decide that the proof is validy made by affidavit. Ferrel v. Saultry, 8 Que. P. R. 268.

Motion for—Deposit—Time.]—The deposit accompanying a motion for security for costs must be made before service of the motion. Coates v. Sovereign Bank, 9 Que. P. R. 120.

Motion for-Necessity for stating that appearance encered-Inspection by Judge of Court records. Fraser & Co. v. Doucad (N. W.P.), 6 W. L. R. 356.

Motion for-Preliminary exception-Deposit-Residence of plaintiff out of jurisdiction-Affidavit-Leave to appeal-Security-Time.]-A motion for security for costs is not in the nature of a preliminary exception, as contemplated in Art. 164, C. C. P. and is therefore not governed by Art. 165, respecting a deposit.—2. An affidavit of the party moving for security that "upon search and inquiry he believes the plaintiff to have taken up his residence outside the province, is sufficient, if uncontradicted, to support the order granting the motion .--- 3. An application for leave to appeal from an interlocutory judgment must be made within thirty days, but no delay is fixed by law within which security in appeal must be given. When the order granting the application does not specify such delay, the remedy of the respondent is to apply, himself, to have it fixed. Ferrel v. Saultry, 16 Que. K. B. 369.

Municipal corporation — Action against.]—The deposit of $10, required by Art. 798, C. M., in an action against a municipal corporation, is only as security for costs, and the obligation to make the deposit is not a condition precedent to bringing the action. Précost v. Ashuntic, 24 Que, S. C. 408.

Municipality — Action against — Deposit.]—In an action for damages against a municipality for injuries from an accident upon a street pavement, by reason of the neglect of the municipality to keep it in repair, the plaintiff, if he is not a ratepayer of the monicipality, nucleopsit in the hands of the clerk of the Court a sum of $10 at the time of the issue of a writ of summons as security for costs. Lalonge v. St. Vincent de Paul, 5 Que, P. R. 26.

Must the survey justify on real estate?—What is an insignificant amount?— C. C. P. 179; C. C. 1939.]—When security for costs is given, the solvency of the survey is estimated only with regard to his real property; and this even when there are two surveties if the other party requires it. The sum of $100 is not a small amount within the meaning of Art. 1939 C. C. Koury v. Can. Pac. Rue. Co., 11 Que. P. R. 105.

Nominal plaintiff — Administrator — Fatal Accidents Act.]—An administrator appointed for the purpose of bringing an action for the benefit of another under s. 3 of the Fatal Accidents Act, R. S. O. c. 106, is not a mere nominal plaintiff bringing such action for the benefit of somebody else, in the sense of the rule which entitles a defendant to security for costs upon shewing that such nominal plaintiff is also insolvent. So held by Meredith, C.J., (dubilante), and by a Divisional Court, in a case where, if the action had been brought in the name of the person beneficially entitled, he would have been required to give security for costs, because out of the jurisdiction, which gave ground for suspecting that the actual plaintiff was put forward for the purpose of enabling the person beneficially interested to escape liability. Nominal plaintiff-Proof of solvency-Onus-Affidavit-Leave to add real plaintiff. Jalbert v. Jensen (Y.T.), 8 W. L. R. 377.

Nominal plaintiff-Proof of want of interest-Inference - Perjury.] - Very clear proof should be given of the lack of substantial interest of the plaintiff in litigation begun by him, before the Court should intercept it at the outset by an order for security for costs. And where, although it was shewn that the plaintiff was without means, it was not established by any legal evidence, but was rather a matter of conjecture and inference, that he was merely a nominal party suing for the benefit of some one outside of the litigation, a motion for security for costs was refused. There may be strong suspicion or even probable inference that the action, if successful, may enure to the benefit of the outsider; but where the contrary is shewn by all the parties to the transaction, the Court hesitates to find perjury for the purpose of ordering security for costs. Pritchard v. Pattison, 21 C. L. T. 80, 1 O. L. R. 37.

Non-compliance with order—Neglect to indorse order with notice under Rule 329 —Notice not applicable. Thomas v. Clark (Y.T.), 1 W. L. R. 512, 2 W. L. R. 126.

Ontario Rule 528-Affidavit in support of motion-Good defence on the merits -Cross-examination on affidavit-Rule 292-Security for costs of cross-examination.] — Upon an application by the defendant for security for the costs of the action, upon the ground that the plaintiff resided out of the jurisdiction, as appeared by the defendant's affidavit and by the indorsement on the writ of summons, the defendant's affidavit further stated, as required by Rule 528, that he had a good defence upon the merits. The plaintiff made no answer by affidavit, but, on the return of the summons, asked that the defendant be cross-examined on his affidavit. Rule 292 provides that "upon any motion, petition, or summons, evidence may be given by affidavit, but the Court or Judge may, on the application of either party, order the attendance for cross-examination of the person making any such affidavit, and may make such interim order or otherwise as appears necessary to meet the justice of the case :"-Held, that the defendant was entitled to his order upon the evidence before the Court, nothing else appearing the plaintiff was also entitled under Rule 292, to cross-examination on the affidavit; but, as he had not placed himself in a position to ask for any indulgence, because he had not answered by affidavit the allegations of the defendant, he should be required to give security for the costs of such examination; and, upon failure to give such security, that the order for security for costs of the action should issue. Murdock v. Patton (1910), 15 W. L. R. 283.

Opposition afin de conserver — Commencement of cause—Foreign corporation— Trustee for persons resident in jurisdiction— Contestants—Practice — Costs of motion.]— An opposition àfin de conserver is a proceeding while commences a cause, and when it is instituted by a corporation who have their head office abroad, they must file a procuration and furnish security for costs in accordance with Art, 177, C. C. P. The capacity in which they act (in this case as trustees for persons residing in the province) around affect this obligation.—Security and procuration may be demanded by motion, as a preliminary matter, by every creditor interested who intends to contest the opposition, but the costs of the motion must follow the event of the cause. Morse v, Levis County Rw, Co., 2S que, S. C. 42.

Opposition to a confirmation of title -C, P, 179, $1-\lambda$ party who is not domiciled in the province of Quebec, files an opposition in an action for confirmation of title, is bound to furnish security judicatum solve to the party seeking such confirmation. Dohan v. Kousseau, 11 Que. P. R. 250.

Order for—Failure to give security in time—Penalty—Diamissal of action—Application after time expired to extend time— Practice.]—An order was made requiring the plaintiffs to give security for costs within three months. The plaintiffs failed to do so, and, after the expiration of the three months, applied for an order extending the time:— Held, having regard to the provisions of Rule 520, that the action was dead and could not be revived; and therefore the application must be refused, with leave to the plaintiffs to bring another action, the cosis of this action and application being first paid. Whitler v, Hancock, 3 Q. B. D. S3, and other like cases, followed. Can. Guarantee de Commercial Agency v. Sutter (1910), 13 W. L. R. 274.

Order for—Time for furnishing—Default —Dismissal of action—Extension of time.]— If an order granting a motion for security for costs does not fix the time within which such security is to be furnished, a second motion for the dismissal of the action on the ground of the default of the plaintiff to obey the order, will not be granted, but the Court will allow further time to the plaintiff to furnish the security required by the first order. Grenier v. Jacques Cartier Pulp 6 Paper Co., 5 Que. P. R. 84.

Other pending action or proceeding for same cause—Costs of former action unpaid—Rule 1198 (c) and (d). Henders v, Parker, 11 O. W. R. 211, 315.

Partnership — Non-resident partner — Power of attorney—Costs of motion.]—In an action by a commercial partnership, a nonresident member will be ordered to give security for costs; but no power of attorney will be required in such case, the resident partner being presumed to have sufficient authority; and the costs of a motion for security for costs which is contested, will go against the contesting party. Broten v. Taylor, 7 Que. P. R. 155.

Payment into Court—Rules 419, 420.] —On motion to set aside pracipe order for security for costs, defendant having paid into Court $133.68, amount mentioned in order was reduced one-half. Michaelsen v, Miller, 13 O. W. R. 422. Penal action—Deposit—C. C. P. 180; 1 Edw. VII. c. 34.1—In a penal action, it is not necessary to make a deposit with the elerk of the Court npon a motion for security for costs. Lamontagne v. Carli Preres, 11 Que. P. R. 82.

Penalties — Consent of Attorney-General —Unsubstantial plaintiff—Common informer, Johnston v. London & Paris Exchange, 2 O. W. R. 468, 492, 501.

Penalty—Qui tam action—Alien Labour Act.)—The action given to "any person who first brings his action," etc., to recover the penaltics imposed by the Alien Labour Act, 60 & 61 V. c. 11, as mended by 1 Edw. VII. c. 13, is a qui tam or popular-action, and the plaintiff may be required under Art. 180, C. C. P., to give the security judicatum solvi. Laurin v. Raymond, 29 Que. 8. C. 101; 7 Que. P. R. 200.

Petition by foreign defendant-Time for moving for security-Appeal on merits.] --Where a petition is presented by a foreign defendant at a time when an appeal upon the merits of the action is pending, the time for moving for security for costs will not be extended on this ground. Baumar v. Bailard, 6 Que. P. R. 62.

Petition by parents for custody of infant-Petitioners out of jurisdiction -Respondents admitting rights of petitioners. Re Pinkney, 1 O. W. R. 694, 715, 2 O. W. R. 141.

Petition of right-Application by Crown -Limited Company-Practice.]-Section 69 of the Companies Act, 1862, 25 & 26 V. (U. K.) c. 89, provides that, where a limited company is plaintiff in any action, any Judge having jurisdiction in the matter may, if it appears by any credible testimony that there is reason to believe that if the defendant be successful in his defence the assets of the company will be sufficient to pay the costs, require sufficient security to be given for such costs, and may stay all proceedings until such security is given. By s. 7 of the English Petition of Right Act, 23 & 24 V. c. 34, it is, among other things, provided that the statutes and practice in force in personal actions between subject and subject sonal actions between subject and subject shall, unless the Court otherwise orders, ex-tend to petitions of right. The practice in the Exchequer Court is in this respect the same as the practice in England. In a proceeding by petition of right in the Exchequer Court application was made for security for costs under the provision first mentioned. There was nothing to shew that it had ever been acted on in a proceeding by petition of right in England :-Held, that the question of the application of the provision first mentioned to such cases was not sufficiently free from doubt to justify the granting of the application. Plaintiff ceasing to reside within jurisdiction—Proceedings after judgment-Preservation.]—A plaintiff who, after obtaining judgment in his favour, ceases to reside within the province of Quebes, and then proceeds to enforce his judgment by garnishment, may be ordered to furnish security for costs, but not a procuration. Lavallée v. Lavallée, 7 Que. P. R. 35.

Plaintiff coming into jurisdiction— Relief—Terms.]—A foreign plaintiff obliged to furnish security for costs may, if he comes to reside in the province of Quebec before the expiration of the time within which he is ordered to furnsh security, be relieved of his obligation on paying the costs of the order and of his motion. Radford v. Brophy. 5 Que. P. R. 256.

Plaintiff leaving jurisdiction—Tempowery absence.]—When in the course of a suit the plaintiff leaves the province of Quebec, security for costs will not be ordered unless a change of residence is clearly established, and proof of mere temporary absence will not suffice. Blood v. McDonald, 5 Que, P. R. 451.

T wintiff out of the jurisdiction—Action on promissory note payable "on demand after date"—Defence — Statute of Limitations — Acknowledgment.] — In an action upon a promissory note payable "on demand after date," made in 1904, the defendant moved for security for costs, the plaintiff being out of the jurisdiction. It was held, 15 W. L. R. 283, that security should be given if, upon examination of the defendant, it could be shewn that any issue was raised which should go to trial:—Held, after examination of the defendant, that such an issue was raised, i.e., upon the defence that the action was barred by the Statute of Limitations, the plaintiff contending that the statutory period did not begin to run until a der and was made, and also that the defendar, had given an acknowledgment in writeig in 1908; that that issue could not be determined upon the motion; and, therefore, that security for costs should be ordered. Plaintiff out of jurisdiction - Company having head office outside of province-Assets within province-Effect of license under Foreign Corporations Act-King's Bench Act, Rule 978.]-1. When a plaintiff company are described in the statement of claim as having their head office out of, and a branch office within, the jurisdiction, the defendant is prima facie entitled, under Rule 973 of the King's Bench Act, to a pracipe order for security for costs.—North-West Timber Co. v. McMillan, 3 Man. L. R. 277, and Ashland Co. v. Armstrong, 11 O. L. R. 414, followed.—2. Such an order should not be set aside by reason of the company having, within the jurisdiction, assets consisting only of some office furniture of small value and premiums of insurance from time to time paid into the branch office for trans-mission to the head office.—3. The obtaining of a license under the Foreign Corporations Act, R. S. M. 1902, c. 28, to carry on a company's business in the province, has not the effect of making it a domestic corporation or giving it a local residence, so as to free it from the necessity of giving security for costs.—Ashland Co. v. Armstrong, supra, followed. Can. Rw. Accident Co. v. Kelly, 5 W. L. R. 412, 16 Man. L. R. 608.

Plaintiff out of jurisdiction—Declinatory exception—Time.]—A detendant sued by a non-resident plaintiff may await the putting in of security for costs before filing a declinatory exception, Hodge v. Beique, 8 Que. P. R. 142.

Plaintiff out of jurisdiction - Delay in applying,]-The action was begun on the 12th February, 1901; statement of claim delivered on the 10th June, 1901; statement of defence on the 20th June, 1901; and the action was set down for trial at a sittings beginning on the 16th September, 1901. The trial was, by consent, adjourned until the winter sittings, the defendants desiring to examine one C, who was present when the plaintiff was injured. On the 25th September, 1901, the plaintiff came from Pittsburgh to Toronto and submitted himself to examination by the defendants for discovery. He then stated that he was living at Pittsburgh. Pennslyvania, that his family were there, and that he did not intend to return. After the injury on account of which the action was brought, the plaintiff was brought to Toronto, in August, 1900, where he fived until August, 1901, when he went to Pittsburgh. After the examination for discovery in September the defendants issued a commission to Montreal to examine C. as a witness, and he was examined thereunder early in December. In C.C.L.-34 the same month the plaintiff examined the defendants for discovery, and gave notice of trial for a sitting beginning on the 6th January, 1902. The defendants launched a motion for security for costs on the 19th December, 1901:- $Heid_4$, that the delay in moving after the information obtained in September, 1901, was not sufficiently explained by the allegation that the defendants were waiting until after the examination of C., in order that they might be able to swear to a defence on the merits. Bertudato v. Fauquier. 22 C. L. T. 34.

Plaintiff out of jurisdiction - Increased security—Appeal to Court of Appeal —Powers of Judge of Court of King's Bench after appeal perfected — Costs of appeal — Costs in Court below for which judgment given—Practice—Order by Court of Appeal.] -The plaintiff, being out of the jurisdiction. gave security in $300 for the defendants! costs of the action. At the trial the action was dismissed, and the defendants entered judgment for their costs, taxed at $789.85. The plaintiff appealed to the Court of Appeal. and perfected his appeal, after which an order was made by a Judge of the Court of King's Bench, requiring the plaintiff to give $700 additional security to the defendants for their costs of the action, and that all proceedings should be in the meantime stayed :--Held, that the Judge had no power to order security for the costs of an appeal to the Court of Appeal, nor to stay proceedings in the Court of Appeal after the case has got into lt .-- 2 That the Judge had no power to order security to be given for the costs of the action in the Court below for which the defendants had secured judgment.---3. The Court of Appeal will itself make an order for security for costs in that Court, and until it is provided by a rule that such matters may be dealt with by a Judge in Chambers, an application should be made in open Court.-Kerfoot v. Yea (1910), 14 W. L. R. 182.

Plaintiff ont of jurisdiction — Residence of corporation — Dominion incorporation—Head office. Delap v. Codd, 2 O. W. R. 790, 849.

Plaintiff out of jurisdiction-Return -Ordinary residence.]-The plaintiff was a British subject, and was always a resident of Ontario until his second marriage in 1896, since when he had been living and working part of the time in the State of Michigan and part of the time in Ontario; he had no prop-erty or means in Ontario; his wife had a home in Michigan, and after his marriage he made that his place of residence so far as possible, and had no other place of residence. When this action was begun in March, 1901, the plaintiff was at his wife's home in Michigan, and his solicitor endorsed that as his place of residence on the writ of summons. In January, 1902, after delivery of state-ments of claim and defence, the defendants obtained under Rule 1199, on precipe, an order for security for costs. The plaintiff and his wife had then come to Ontario for the winter and were boarding at an hotel. The plaintiff stated on affidavit that he had come to reside permanently in Ontario : -Held, that the plaintiff actually resided out of Ontario when the pracipe order was made; but, security not having been given, he might be relieved from that order if he was now actually, and intended to remain, a resident of Ontario. Upon the evidence, however, such was not the case; the plaintiff's place of residence was in Michigan, and was likely so to remain:—Held, also, that if the pravipe order were set aside, an order under Rule 1198 (b) for security for costs, on the ground that the plaintiff's ordinary place of residence was at his wife's home in Michigan, would be properly made. Neebit v, Galma, 22 C. L. T. T.50, 3 O. L. R. 429, 1 O. W. R. 218.

Plaintiff out of jurisdiction—Return — Residence — Bona fides.] — Nothing prevents a person having litigation to pursue in the province of Quebec from becoming bona fide a resident therein during such litigation, though such residence commenced only shortly before the commencement of proceedings, if in good faith, although uncertain as to its continuance. Gober v. Agnew, 8 Que. P. R. 255.

Plaintiff out of juriediction—Temporary recidence in juriediction.]—A plaintiff, whose family lives in the United States, and who has only come to Quebec to begin an action, although he works there from time to time in order to supply his needs, is not a resident in good faith in Quebec, but is there only temporarily for the purposes of his action; and he will be ordered to give security for costs, Chagnon v, Auclair, 8 Que. P. R. 212.

Plaintiff out of jurisdiction—Trust moneys — Assets in hands of defordants — Administrator.] — Security for costs was ordered, where the plaintiff resided out of the jurisdiction, in a suit against an administrator for the payment of a sum of money alleged by the bill to have been received by the intestate as guardian of the plaintiff, it appearing that the intestate's estate was insolvent, and there also being no satisfactory evidence of the alleged indebtedness. Can. Pac. Riv. Co.*, 11 Que, P. R. 112.

Power of attorney-Stay of proceedings posit—Vacation.] — Certificate — Deposit—Vacation.] — Although the defendant may apply to a Judge or the prothonotary, out of term, for a stay of proceedings until security the defendance of the protect of the start of the security -Dilatory exception - Certificate - Desecurity be given, he can only invoke the absence of a power of attorney to obtain a stay of proceedings until its production, by means of a dilatory exception, which can only be urged by a motion presented to the Court .--- 2. Such dilatory exception cannot be presented unless accompanied by a certificate from the prothonotary establishing the deposit in his office of the sum fixed by the rule of practice, and the defendant cannot afterwards apply orally to make such deposit, the making of such deposit not having the effect of making a motion addressed to the Judge or prothonotary a dilatory excep-tion.—3. The Court has no jurisdiction to entertain a motion for security for costs and

COSTS.

Practice — Insufficiency of affidavit — Attempt to read supplementary affidavit.]--Upon a motion for security for costs, an affidavit which is defective in not stating the grounds of the deponent's information and belief cannot be strengthened on the return of the summons by a supplementary affidavit. Kerr V, Suter, 6 Terr, L. R. 255.

Practice order—Rule 987—Application for further security—Practice,1—Taking out a precipe order for security of costs is not a bar to a subsequent application for an order for additional security where it could not be said that the defendant ought to have anticipated the necessity for further security when he first applied.—Standard Trading Co. Y. Seybold, 5 O. L. R. 8, followed.—Charlebois v. Great North-West Central Rev. Co., 9 Man. L. R. 60, distinguished. Moore v. Seott, 5 W. L. R. 147, 16 Man. L. R. 428.

Praceipe order—Waiver,] — Where it is stated in the writ of summons that the plaintiff resides out of the jurisdiction, the defendant may, even after delivering his defence, obtain the usual pracipe order for security for costs. Smerling v. Kennedy, 23 C. L. T. 112, 5 O. L. R. 430, 2 O. W. R. 180.

Pracetyce order for—Motion to set aside —Practice-Rule 988.] — The lanzanze of Rule 988 confines it to a case where a foreign plaintiff, whose claim is such that he might move for judgment under Rule 602, is met with an order for security for costs if he desires to avail himself of his right to move for judgment he may do so, notwithstanding the order for security, unon paying $50 into Court; but he has the right to move to discharge the order for security, withut first complying with it; and that right is not interfered with by Rule 988.—Order of the Refere refusing to set aside a practipe order for security for costs reversed. Copelin V. Cairna (1910), 13 W. L. R. 707.

Preliminary plea—Deposit.]—A motion by which a def-related demands security for costs is, a preliminary plea, and cannot be made without a deposit. 2. Probate Act—Creditor — Security for costs — Staging proceedings.]—Security for costs not ordered in probate proceedings by a creditor, as it might stay proceedings of everyone, and the up settlement of estate for months. Re Priest Estate, 6 E. L. R. 342, 43 N. S. R. 230.

Proceedings against defaulting witmess. 1-A witness against whom a rule uitiis asked for default of appearing, cannot require a bond as security for costs and power of attorney to be given, such a proceeding not being the institution of an action. Re May V, Ischekauca, 7 Que. P. R. 107.

Proceedings under the Workmen's Compensation Act, B.C., pending before arbitrator.]—K. was killed while in defendants' employ. Plaintiff, the administrator, is now in penitentiary on a charge of theft. Both he and the estate are insolvent. The arbitrator is still seised of the matter and has not yet ascertained the compensation, if any, to which plaintiff is entitled. The widow is out of the jurisdiction. On application to a Judge for security for costs: -Heid, that plaintiff is not a nominal plaintiff. Motion dismissed. Application, if made at all, should have been made to the arbitrator at an earlier date. Re Krus & Crows's Neet (1900), 12 W. L. R. 158.

Procuration—Costs of motion.1—The defendant is entitled to the costs of his motion if he asks the production of a power of attorney at the same time as security for costs. The costs follow the event of the action where the defendant asks only security for costs without power of attorney. Steinfeld v. Marguia, 3 Que. P. R. 237.

Precuration — Exception — Costs of motion.]—The defendant has a right to his costs, whatever be the event of the cause, of a motion in the nature of a dilatory exception for security for costs and procuration, under clauses 2 and 7 of Art. 177. C. P. C., where the plaintiff resides out of the jurisdiction. Block v, Carrier, 28 Que, 8. C. 49.

Public officer — Police sergeant — Information.] — Held, that the defendant, a police sergeant, laying an information against a enh-driver for using obscene and grossly insulting language, was an officer or person fulfilling: a public duty and acting in the performance of such public duty, within the meaning of R. S. O. c. 88, s. 1, and was therefore entitled under R. S. O. c. 89 to security for costs of an action brought against him by the cab-driver for falsely and maliciously laying such information. Eaves v. Neebitt, 21 C. L. T. 190, 1 O. L. R. 244.

Public officers — Policemen — Action against—Trespass — Warrant.]—The defendants, police officers, having a warrant to arrest a man, by mistake entered the house of his neighbour, the plaintiff, to execute the warrant, but did not actually arrest the plaintiff, and withdrew on finding their mistake. The plaintiff sued for teepass and assault:--Held, that, as the defendants were acting in good faith under a warrant, and had compled with the requirements of s. 2 of R. S. O. 1807 c. 80, they were entitled under that Act to an order for security for costs, Lewis v. Dalby, 22 C. L. T. 112, 3 O. L. R. 301.

Qui tam action — Foreign plaintiff — Aliens, 1—The obligation to furnish security for the payment of costs in a qui tam action is a formality which is governed by the law of the country in which the demand is made; it will be imposed upon a foreign plaintiff not naturalized who sues a company for an infraction of the law in regard to allets. France, v. Dom. Power Co., S Que, P. R. 304.

Qui tam action—Preliminary exception —Deposit—Chambers motion.]—A motion for security judicatum solvi in a qui tam action is a preliminary exception which must be accompanied by the deposit required by Art. 165, C. P., even since the amendment by 1 Edw. VII, c. 24,—2. The fact that a motion is brought before a Judge in Chambers does not change the nature of it, and if it is not accompanied by a certilicate of the deposit required by law, it will be dismissed. Raymond v. Laroucke, 6 Que, P. R. 39.

Qui tam action — R. S. Q. Art. 30— Amendment—Croven.] — The amendment of Art. 39. R. S. Q., by striking out the words, "as well in the name of the Croven, ex" enacted in 6 Edw. VH. c. 37, s. 1, has not had the effect of taking the actions referred to in the article out of the class of popular or qui tam actions. Hence, notwithstanding the amendment, a defendant in such an action may require that the plaintiff be ordered to give security for costs. Lanouette v, Dupuk, 34 Que, S. C. 13, 9 Que, P. R. 218.

Real Property Act—Petition—Caveator out of Province—Property in Province — Mortgage—Pracipe—Irregularity.]—A caveator proceeding under Real Property Act by way of petition to establish a claim to the land after service of notice at the instance of the applicant for a certificate of title must as a general rule, be treated as the plaintiff in the proceedings, and, if he is resident out of the jurisdiction, must give security for the caveatee's costs. 2. That the caveator's claim in respect of a registered mortgage on the land, upon which he swears there is money owing and unpaid, will not take the case out of the general rule, if the caveatee in good faith disputes that there is anything due or owing on the mortgage. 3. Under such circumstances the ownership of the mortgage within the jurisdiction will not relieve a caveator from the necessity of furnishing other security for costs. Armstrong V. Armstrong, 18 P. R. 55, distinguished. Objection was taken to the regularity of the pracipe, being the first proceeding taken by the caveatee in the matter, for want of the indorsement of his place of residence and description upon it, as required by the prac-tice of the Court :--Held, that under Rule 335 of the King's Bench Act, no effect should be given to the objection, as it was purely he Residence of plaintiffs out of jurisdiction-Affidavit of information and belief --Sufficiency. Balcovski v. Olson (N.W.T.), 3 W. L. R. 367.

Residence out of Ontario -- "Ordin-arily resident."]-Rule 1198 provides that security for costs may be ordered, among other cases, in the following: "(a) where the plaintiff resides out of Ontario; (b) where the plaintiff is ordinarily resident out of Ontario, though he may be temporarily resident within Ontario."-The defendant's affidavit stated that the plaintiff was now residing out of the jurisdiction, and also, that he had no certain place of abode within the jurisdiction; that he had hitherto resided out of the jurisdiction; and at the conclusion of the pending suit intended to reside out of the jurisdiction of the Court. The plaintiff's affidavit stated that he had not for the past year, nor had he now, any fixed or ordinary place of abode either in or out of the Province of Ontario, his occupation requiring that he should be from time to time in England, the Province of Ontario, and the Province of New Brunswick :--Held, that the actual residence abroad was still what prima facie entitled the defendant to security, and the plaintiff could not answer the application by shewing that he had no fixed residence at all .- Denier v. Marks, 18 P. R. 465, 19 C. L. T. 229, overruled. Alleroft v. Morrison, 20 C. L. T. 31, 19 P. R. 59.

Residence out of province—Family in Province—Business out of.]—The plaintiffwas manager of a joint stock company, carrying on husiness in Ontario, with his headoffice at Woodstock. His wife and family resided at Woodstock. He was agent of thecompany at Detroit, but visited his familyonce a fortnight, and sometimes once a month,but not as a rule for longer than a day and Residence out of province — Petition for interlocatory injunction.]—A motion for an interlocatory injunction made by petition before the issue of the writ of summons, is not an action or a suit or a process, and the party making such motion cannot, even if he does not reside in the province of Quebec, be ordered to furnish security for the costs of the petition. Ocone Co. v. Lyons, 5 Que. P. R. 238.

Residence out of province—Plaintiff a judoment creditor of defendant.]—Where plaintiff, a resident out of the jurisdiction, having a judgment in the St. John County Court against the defendant for $67.75, which was defeated by certain conveyances made by the defendant, brought a suit to have the same set aside as fraudulent and void, he was ordered to give security for costs. Gould v. Britt, 23 C. L. T. 231, 2 N. B. Eq. 453.

Residence out of province-Rule 1198 (b).]-A man of about thirty years of age, who had since childhood lived in the United States, came to Toronto in October, 1902, to inspect for his employers, brokers in New York, a branch office in Toronto. He was then instructed by his employers to act as telegraph operator in the Toronto office. These brokers gave up business in a few weeks, and he then was employed as a telegraph operator by their successors. The business of the successors also came to an end within a few weeks, and in connection with that business the plaintiff was accused by the defendant of fraud, and arrested, this action for damages being brought in consequence thereof. He was an unmarried man, and had been in the habit of living with his mother in Kansas City when out of employment, and he stated on cross-examination that he would return to the United States if he could find employment there :--Held, that under these circumstances the defendant was entitled to security for costs of the action. Kavanaugh v. Cassidy, 23 C. L. T. 224, 5 O. L. R. 614. S. C. sub nom. Cavanagh v. Cassidy, 2 O. W. R. 27, 143, 303, 391.

Resident out of jurisdiction—" Ordinarily resident" — Roving plaintiffs. Allman v. Yukon Consolidated Gold Fields Co. (Y.T.), 8 W. L. R. 371.

R. S. O. 1897, c. 89 — Action against constable for arrest of plaintiff—Defence m merits—Affidavit — Insufficiency—Grounds— Beitel—Rule 518—Acent — Solicitor,1—The provisions of R. S. O. 1897 c. 89, requiring plaintiffs in actions against justices of the peace and other officers fulfilling public duties, to give security for costs, in certain circumstances, must be followed with some approach to strictness, the right given being a variation from the usual course of litigation. —The affidavit filed on behalf of the defendant, a constable, in an action brought against him for the arrest of the plaintiff, in support of a motion for an order for security for costs under the Act referred to, did not, in the part indicating the nature of the defence, shew the grounds for the belief of the deponent in the truth of the statement made, as required by Con, Rule 518, where facts are stated not within the knowledge of the deponent; and did not in terms state that the defendant had a good defence on the merits, or set out the facts justifying the conclusion that the defendant had such defence, or that the grounds of action were trivial or frivolous :---Held, that the affida-vit was insufficient; and the motion should be dismissed, but, as it appeared that the defendant acted as an officer of the law, the dismissal should not preclude an application upon better material, on payment of costs .-Held, also, that the solicitor for the defend-ant was an "agent" within the meaning of the statute, and might make the affidavit. Robinson v. Morris, 15 O. L. R. 649, 11 O. W. R. 361, 431, 559.

Saisic-arret after judgment-Plaintiff resident abroad-Continuation of action.)--A plaintiff issuing a saisic-arrêt after judzment is not instituting a new action, but only executing the judgment rendered in his favour; he is not therefore bound to furnish security for costs or to file a procuration, although he resides abroad. Taylor v. Palmisano, 9 Que. P. R. 145.

Saskatchewan Rule 520 — Insolvent plaintiff—Onus—Interest of plaintiff in subject matter—Assignee of claims of others.]— Plaintiff, a creditor of defendant R. and the assignee of 11 other claims against R., brought this action to set aside the transfer of certain properties by the insolvent R. to his co-defendant. Order for security for costs refused, plaintiff having a beneficial interest in subject matter of action. Even if plaintiff insolvent that alone insufficient to require security, but defendant on whom is onus of shewing insolvency has not satisfied same. Walkace v. Reid, 10 W. L. R. 22.

Several defendants—Pracipe orders.]— One of the defendants having obtained on pracipe an order for security for costs, the plaintiffs complied with it by paying $200 into Court, after which another defendant, without notice of the previous order or of the payment into Court thereander, obtained an order on præcipe for security for costs on his own behalf ---Held, that the plaintiffs were entitled to obtain an order providing that the security given by them should stand as security for the costs of all, the defendants, but were not entitled to have the second order for security set as irregular. Sprause Smelling Works v. Stevens, 21 C. L. T. 441, 2 O. L. R. 141.

Several defendants — Separate orders —Practice—Increased security. O'Leary v. Gordon, 7 O. W. R. 726.

upon producing an affidavit stating that, since the institution of the action, the plaintiff has ceased to reside in the Province of Quebec. 2. Such motion will be granted if made within three days after the defendant has been informed of the plaintiff's change of residence. 3. Such motion need not be accompanied by the deposit required by Art. 105, C. P. Vanier v. Hurtubise, 4 Que, P. R. 53.

Time—Notice—Surety—Attorney for;] — If a party required to give security for costs does not furnish it on the day fixed, such party cannot afterwards give it except after a new notice of one clear day to the opposite party. 2. A judicial surety cannot be represented by an attorney for the purpose of giving security. Delisle v. McCrea, 21 Que. 8. C. 419.

Trust company's bond.]--A trust company cannot force a party to accept as security for costs a bond executed by the company for a specific amount, nor force the prolanotary to accept such security. Adworth v. Montreal & Atlantic Rus. Co., 5 Que. P. R. 20.

Workmen's Compensation Act-Proceeding under. I---The object of Rule 34 under the Workmen's Compensation Act (Rules of 1904) is to make the proceedings under the Act subject to the same rules as an action; and where the applicant resides out of the jurisdiction, the respondent is entitled to security for costs. Cisowski v. West Kootenay Power and Light Co., 12 B. C. R. 63, 3 W. L. R. 515.

4. TAXATION OF.

Abandoned appeal—Order.]—The production of the notice of the abandonment of an appeal will be sufficient authority for the taxing officer to tax the respondent's costs of the appeal, and an order is not necessary. Fry v. Botsford, 9 B. C. R. 165.

Acquiescence — Fee on foreign commission—Settlement of action,]—The receipt of a cheque in payment of fees taxed, and the signature to an ack owledgment thereof, do not amount to acquiescence in the taxation when the cheque has not been presented for payment, the advocate having the conduct of the cause not finding the amount of it sufficient, 2. The advocate of one- party who does not join in a foreign commission, neverthelese, has a right to the fee provided by Arr 98 of the tariff, if he has received instructions, examined the documents, etc. 3. A fee upon the hearing is not allowed in a cause declared to have been settled between the parties upon the dag on which it has been called for hearing. Sessenvein v, Pillow Hercey Mfg. Co., 6 Que, P. R. 320.

Action dismissed as regards one plaintiff—Several defendants—Defence in law. |--Where an action brought by two plaintiffs is dismissed, upon defence in law, as to one of them, each of the two defendants is entitled only to half the costs of an action adjudicated after the filing of a plea to the merits. Major v. Paquet, 6 Que, P. R. 210. Action dismissed on declinatory exception-Contexted action-Tarif of costs.] --An action dismissed on declinatory exception in a contested action for the purpose of taxation under the old tariff of advocates' fees, in force at the time of the action. Hodge v, Brigue, 10 Que, P. R. 216.

Action to set aside a contract and involving an amount exceeding $1,000—Incidental conclusions for damages—C. p. 55$. —An action is of the first class when it prays for the setting nside of a contract of an annual consideration exceeding $2,000; the fact that, by incidental conclusions, the plaintiff prayed for damages which have been fixed by the judgment at the sum of $300, does not change the class of such action. Lucenti v. Montreal Brewing Co. (1910), 11 Que. P. R. 300.

Action to set aside a municipal proces-verbal — Intervention — Bill of costs—C, P. 50, 154; M. C. 100; Tariff, Art. 2, par, 2.]—The fees in an action to set aside a municipal by-law; taken under the provisions of Art. 50 C, P. are those of an action of the second class. Idem for the fees in an intervention filed in the same case. Berhier v, Corp. of St. Michel (1910), 11 Que. P. R. 326.

Actions tried together — Separate fees.]—Where several actions for damages have been joined for the purposes of examination and hearing, and judgments have been given for different amounts, it cannot be said that the examination and hearing have been absolutely the same in the different actions, and therefore a separate fee may be allowed in each action. Ritson v. Arnold, 6 Que. P. R. 239.

Actions tried together — Separate free.]—When several issues are united for trial, and there is only one enquite and examination of witnesses, one argument, and one judgment on the several issues, the attorney is not entitled to fees of enquite and argument as if there had been separate trials. Demers v. Sanche, 6 Que. P. R. 241.

Affidavits — Interlocutory motion.] — Where an interlocutory motion is dismissed upon preliminary objections, the taxing officer has a discretion fo disallow to the party opposing it the costs of affidavits filed in answer to it. Whitewood v. Whitewood, 20 C. L. T. 25,1 19 P. R. 188.

Affidavits—Irregular filmg.]—The costs of affidavits for use on a motion in the Weekly Court, fi.ed with the Clerk in Chambers, instead of in the Registrar's office, as required by Rule 102, should nevertheless be taxed, if otherwise taxable, where such affidavits have been before the Court on the motion and are recited in the order made thereon. Sturgeon Falls Electric Light d Power Co. v. Sturgeon Falls, 21 C. L. T. 33. 19 P. R. 286.

Affidavits — Motion for interim injunction.]—In the absence of any objection of the adverse party or of any remark of the Judge as to the number of affidavits filed in support of or against a petition for an in¥., terim injunction, the successful party is entitled to a fee upon each affidavit. Brault v. Lambert, 6 Que. P. R. 402.

Appeal — Objections — Solicitor's slip —Setting axide certificate.]—Notwithstanding the provision of Rule 774 that the taxing officer's certificate of the result of a travation of costs shall be final and conclusive as to all matters not objected to in the manner provided by Rules 1182 and 1183, the certificate may, in a proper case, be set axide in order to allow objections to be carried in, and the certificate re-signed as of a later date; and this was ordered in a case where the solicitor for the party objecting had himself taken out the certificate, intending to appeal from it, but at the moment not remembering that it was necessary to carry in objections in writing, and had promptly applied for relief. In re Furber, [1888] 2 Ch. 538, followed. Order of Magee, J., affirmed. Robinson v. England, 11 O. L. R. 385, 7 O. W. R. 47, 130.

Appeal—Ruling of taxing officer—Costs of interlocatory examinations — Rules 767, 774, 1136, 1267—Right of appeal—Time Extension.]—Semble, that no appeal lies from the decision of the senior taxing officer at Toronto, under Con. Rule 1136, as amended by Con. Rule 1257, as to the allowance of the costs of interlocatory examinations.— Held, that if an appeal lies, it must be either under Con. Rule 774 or 767—probably the laiter—and, under either, notice of appeal must be given within four days and made returnable within ten days after the decision complained of; and notice in this case not having been given in time, an extension should not be granted, having regard to the character of the decision complained of—a ruling against allowing the costs of examining more than one of the plaintiffs for discovery. Mean v. Crittenden, 11 O. L. R. 46, 6 O. W. R. 799.

Appeal from interlocutory orders . Inscription - Factum-Vacations au greffe -Consolidation of actions - Counsel fees.] -Upon an application for revision of the taxation of three bills of costs in three ap-peals from orders declaring sufficient the particulars furnished by the respondents, which orders were reversed on appeal :--Held, that the appellants were entitled to their disbursements and fees relating to the inscription of the appeals, which is as necessary for interlocutory appeals as for those from final judg-ments.-2. That they were entitled also to disbursements and fees in respect of factums, if factums were produced.-3. That they were entitled also to fees for day's time at the record office.-4. Quare, whether, if several causes have been consolidated for the purpose of pleading and factums, there should be several counsel fees or only one. Paquet v. Taché, 2 Que. P. R. 380.

Append to full Court-Costs not specifically anearded—Statute.1.—The costs of an appeal may be taxed to the successful party although not specifically awarded by the judgment. Supreme Court Act (1903-4), s. 20, s. s. 7. Kickbush v. Cawley, 11 B. C. R. 151, I W. L. R. 18.

Appeal to Privy Council - Costs incurred in Canada - Taxation-Rule 1256-Non-retroactivity.] - Rule 1256, providing that when the costs incurred in Canada of an appeal to the Privy Council have been awarded, and have not been taxed by the registrar of the Privy Council, they may be taxed by the senior taxing officer, and the taxation shall be according to the scale of the Privy Council, is not to be construed as applying to a case in which the judgment entitling a party to costs was entered before the Rule was made. The quantum of costs, as well as the right to them, is ascertained at the time of the judgment, and the quantum cannot, without the clearest words, be altered by a subsequent change in the tariff. or by the creation of a tariff which had no existence until after the judgment. Earle v. Burland, 24 C. L. T. 355, 8 O. L. R. 174, 3 O. W. R. 702.

Application of new tariff — Retroactivity.]—Where an action was begun when the old tariff was in force, that tariff regulates the costs of the cause, even where the contestation was after the coming into force of the new tariff. Goold Shapley and Muir Co. v, Gervais, 9 Que, P. R. 290.

Arbitration under Railway Act. 1906 - Construction of "costs" in s. 199 -Owner's costs-Solicitor and client-Tariff -Commencement of arbitration - Items -Fees of arbitrators-Counsel fees-Witness fees-Costs of taxation.]-1. Under s.-s. (5) of s. 2 of the Railway Act, R. S. C. 1906, c. 57, interpreting the word "costs" used in s. 199 of the Act, as including fees, counsel fees, and expenses, the costs of an owner who succeeds in an arbitration under the Railway Act should be taxed as between solicitor and client .-- Malvern Urban District v. Malvern 83 L. T. 326, followed.-2. The tariff of costs prescribed for ordinary litigation may be accepted as a general guide for taxing the costs of such an arbitration; but when, in the opinion of the taxing officer, the fees fixed by that tariff are inadequate compensation for the services necessarily and reasonably rendered, he is not bound by it, and should not follow it .-- 3. For the purposes of the taxation of such costs the arbitration began when the company served notice upon the owner offering an amount which they were willing to pay, and naming their arbitrator; and items for work done even before that date should be allowed if they were for work that would properly be costs of the arbitration if done after that date; for example, fee perusing the order of the Railway Commissioners giving leave to expropriate, and taking instructions.-4. The owner was entitled to tax the fees paid to the arbitrators on taking up the award .- Shewsbury v. Wirral, [1895] 2 Ch. 812, distinguished.-5. Counsel fees allowed by the taxing officer were reduced to $100 per day for first coansel and $75 per day for second counsel.-6. The fees actually paid to expert witnesses should not necessarily be allowed, but only fair and reasonable fees for the time occupied in attending before the arbitrators and of $25 for the argument before the Judge, should be borne by the company. Certificate—Mistake in amount — Error in addition — Correction—Powers of Masser in Chambers — Rules 312, 640, King v. Toronto Ru, Co., 12 O. W. R. 893.

Claim and counterclaim—Method of taxation.]—By the judgment herein plaintiffs were given costs to be taxed and defendants, on their counterclaim, were allowed their costs to be taxed.—Held, that plaintiffs get costs of suit but not counsel fees or witness fees for coutesting the fact found against them. Defendants get counsel fees, witness fees, briefs, pleadings, bills of costs and taxation. No set-off directed in judgment. Keily v. Winnipeg (1909), 12 W. L. R. 49.

Compensation for lands taken for railway - Arbitration -- Claimants severing-Estates under will. Re Murphy and Lindaay, Bobrayeon, and Pontypool Kic. Co., 6 O. W. R. 381.

Conservatory intervention—Leave to contest.] — The original plaintiff, who obtains leave to contest, after inscription exparte, a conservatory intervention, will be ordered to pay the difference between the fees provided by Art. 8, and those provided by Art. 10 of the tariff. Williamson v. Bradshaw, 6 Que. P. R. 385.

Contestation of claim against insolvent estate—Amount to be paid in stamps.] —The amount to be paid in stamps upon the contestation of a claim upon an insolvent estate is the same as that payable according to the amount of the claim in an ordinary action. Re Dadds Co. & Kent, 10 Que. P. R. 219.

Copy of shorthand evidence takes in Master's office — Allowance between party and party-Counsel fees-Subpona-Letters, attendances, and other items. Plenderleith v. Parsons, 10 O. W. R. 357, 658.

Costs of appeal—Dismissal as to one party—Half fees.] — Where an appeal is dismissed upon motion as to one of the parties only, the advocate's fee will be the whole fee fixed by the tariff, and not merely the half of such fee. Ledue v. St. Louis de Gonzague, 5 Que, P. R. 448.

Counsel and solicitor-Construction of statute 1 & 2 Edw, VII., c. 77 (Man.)-Contract with city solicitor engaged on salary -Conflict of laws-Costs in Supreme Court of Canada.]-Section 468 of the charter of the city of Winnipeg (1 & 2 Edw. VII., c. 77), provides that where the city solicitor is engaged at a stated salary, the city corporation have the right, in law suits and proceedings, to recover and collect "lawful costs," in the same manner as if such solicitor were not receiving such salary. The respondents, a city corporation, enacted a by-law appointing their solicitor at an annual salary, and providing that, in addition thereto, he should be entitled, for his own use, to such lawful costs as the corporation might recover in actions and proceedings, except disbursements paid by the city. Upon the traxation of the costs awarded to the respondents on an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada (41 S. C. R. 18):--Held, that the statute and contracts above recited applied to costs awarded on the appeal, and that, on the taxation, the usual fees to counsel and solicitor should be allowed. Hamburg-American Packet Co. v. R., 39 S. C. R. 621, distinguished. Ponton v. Winnipeg, 41 S. C. R. 366.

Connsel fee — Adjournment of hearing of appead-Negatiations for settlement.] — After an appeal was opened, it stood over at the suggestion of the Court in order to give the parties an opportunity to settle; the negotiations for settlement were unsuccessful; and the appeal was ultimately dismissed with costs.—Held, that the successful party was entitled; (1) to a counsel fee (under item 224 of the tariff of costs) on the first day's hearing, and (2) to an allowance for costs of the negotiations for settlement under item 81 of schedule No. 4. Milton v. Surrey, 10 B, C. R. 225.

Counsel fee-Brief - Summary Convictions Act. s. 73 (8)-Jurisdiction of Judge on case stated.]-The defendant was convicted before the stipendiary magistrate for an incorporated town of a vielation of one of the by-laws of the town. The magistrate having stated a case under the Summary Convictions Act, R. S. N. S. 1900, c. 161, s. 73, an order was made by a Judge at Chambers setting aside the conviction and directing the informant to pay the defendant the costs of the application and below, to be taxed. The bill, as taxed by the taxing Master, included a counsel fee of $50 and an allowance of $30 for brief. On appeal to a Judge at Chambers the amount allowed for brief was reduced to $5, and the counsel fee struck out altogether :--Held, Townshend, dissenting, that the defendant was en-J., titled to a counsel fee for the attendance at Chambers, and that $7.50 would be a reasonable amount to allow under the circumstances, the question having been but a trivial one and having occupied but a short time, and that the appeal should be allowed to this extent but without costs.—Quare, whether a Judge at Chambers, exercising jurisdiction under s. 73 (8), upon a stated case, can be regarded as a delegate of the Court, or is sitting under a special authority independently of the Court and as a person designated by the statute to discharge the duties prescribed by it. Rex v. Dimmock, 1 E. L. R. 50, 39 N. S. R. 286.

Connsel fee—Trial or assessment of damages — Interlocutory judgment—Items 152, 153, of tariff of costs.]—In an action for damages for personal injuries, the defendants entered no appearance and filed no statement of defence. Interlocutory judgment was not sizzed, and there was no admission of the liability of the defendants. Notice of assessment was served by the plaintiff by posting it up in the office of the Court. Both the plaintiff and defendants issued commissions and took evidence abroad, and the defendants obtained an order for the examination of the plaintiff by medical practitioners. On the opening of the case at the trial (or assessment) counsel for the defendants admitted that they did not intend to contest liability, and the only matter tried out was the quantum of damages :-Held, that the plaintiff was not limited, in taxing costs against the defendants, to the counsel fee mentioned in item 152 of the tariff as appropriate upon a mere assessment of damages, but was entitled to a counsel fee as upon a trial, as provided in item 153; the assessment referred to in item 152 being that which follows upon an interlocutory judgment.—Semble, per Meredith, C.J.C.P., that the paragraphs which follow items 152 and 153 in the tariff are intended to give the taxing officer a discretion to increase the fee for the brief both for the assessment of damages and for the trial. Hamilton v. Hamilton, Grimsby, and Beamsville Electric Rw. Co., 10 O. W. R. 197, 473, 15 O. L. R. 50.

Counsel fee on postponement of trial —Item 153 of tari7—Allowed by taxing officer —On appeal, Middleton, J., refused to interfere with officer's discretion—No error in principle or misunderstanding being shewn. Outwater v. Mullett, 13 P. B. 500; Commee v. N. A. Ruc Contracting Co., 13 P. R. 433, and Re Ogilvie, [1910) P. 243, followed. Mc-Donald v. Grand Trunk Ruc Co. (1911), 18 O. W. R. 561, 2 O. W. N. 748.

Counsel fee on view before trialnot called-Practice.]-Upon review of taxation of the defendant's costs an affidavit made by one of the counsel at the trial and on the appeal, who was present at the taxation, was allowed to be read to shew what took place before the taxing officer; and, it being therein sworn that the applicant had stated to the taxing officer that a view had been had by counsel before the trial to enable him to properly understand the case, and that the view was necessary, the Judge refused to interfere with the discretion of the taxing officer in allowing a counsel fee for the view .-- Where a party seeks to tax fees for witnesses not called, the onus is on him to shew their relevancy, etc., which he should do by affidavit establishing: (1) that the witnesses were necessary and material; (2) that they were in attendance: (3) what they were brought to depose to; (4) the reason why they were not examined. A general statement that the witnesses were necessary and material, and the course the trial took made it unnecessary to call them, is not sufficient, as it does not enable the taxing officer to form any independent judgment. Eastern Townships Bank v. Vaughan (1910), 14 W. L. R. 456.

Connact fees—Adjournment of trial.]— Except as otherwise specially provided, only one counsel fee can be taxed in an action. Such fee must be taxed on the completion of the action, and cannot be taxed before that event is reached. Where on a motion for a continuance, based upon the absence through illness of the defendant, who was alleged to be a necessary and material witness in his own behalf, the continuance prayed for was granted on payment by the defendant of costs of the day:—Held, that a counsel fee was improperly allowed as part of such costs; and an appeal from an order reviewing the taxation and striking out the item was dismissed. Acadia Loan Corporation v. Wentworth, 37 N. S. R. 316.

Conusel fees—Demand of abandonment —Contestation.]—The fees upon a contestation of a demand of abandonment are those provided by Art. 125 of the tariff. Riou v. Massé, 4 Rev. Leg. N. S. 449, followed. Lynn v. Schloman, 3 Que, P. R. 363.

Conusel fees — Discontinuance—Trial.] —If an action is discontinued with costs before the day fixed for hearing, the plaintiff asking and obtaining a certificate of his discontinuance at the time the cause is called for trial, the defendant has no right to the counsel fee d'enquête fixed by item 32 of the tariff. Lee Chu v. Carpenter, 3 Que. P. R. 70.

Commacl fees—Dismissal of action—Exception — Hearing.1—When an action has been dismissed upon an exception to the form, in respect of which there has been an enquête and hearing, the defendant is entitled to the fees upon an enquête and hearing over and above the fee provided by Art. 7 of the tariff. Lapointe v. St. Onge, 3 Que. P. R. 314.

Counsel fees — Dismissal of action — Exception as to form.]—If an action is dismissed upon exception to the form, the counsel fee allowed to the defendant will be that mentioned in Art. 7 of the Superior Court triff, and not the fee upon a simple motion. Plourde v. Bank of Montreal, 2 Que. P. R. 496.

Connsel fees—Exception to the form, 1— The fees of an advocate upon an exception to the form dismissed are those mentioned in item 23 of the tariff of the Superior Court, and not fees appropriate to a simple motion. Fonderie de Drummondville v. Robillard, 3 Que. P. R. 378.

Counsel fees — Increased fees — Trial of actions—Discretion—Principles governing —Practice in applying to Judge for fat. Bryce v, Can. Pacific Rut. Co. (B.C.), 7 W. L., R. 143.

Connsel fees—Motion to enforce award.] —The counsel fee upon a motion to enter judgment in terms of an award made by arbitrators of the Grain Market Association of Montreal should not be the fee mentioned in Art. 4 of the tariff of the Superior Court as in the case of judgment rendered in a cause after setting down for hearing on the merits, but the fee mentioned in Art. 28 of the tariff, as upon a motion. Ward v. Goodall, 2 Que. P. At. 444.

Counsel fees.]—Motion to review taxation of costs of the plaintiff, the wife, taxed as between solicitor and client, to be paid by the defendant, the husband.—The Registrar allowed retainer and other fees to counsel in addition to the proctor, who also acted as connect:—Held, as the case was not one in which second counsel could be considered as reasonably necessary, that the items should be disallowed. Bell v. Bell, 20 C. L. T. 20. (See Robock v. Peters, 20 C. L. T. 421, 13 Man. L. R. 124.)

Command fees — Petition for revision of volers' list.]—In the case of a petition for the revision of a voters' list which has been granted, the respondent having appeared and cross-examined the petitioner's witnesses, but having neither pleaded in writing nor examined witnesses on his own behalf, the petitioner will not be entitled to a counsel fee as in a contested action, but only to a fee appropriate to a case heard er parte. Larchevisioner v. St. Leonard de Port Maurice. 3 Que. P. R. 202

Connael fees—Preliminary exception.]— In spite of the fact that preliminary exceptions are now made by motion, the fee provided by Art. 7 of the tariff of advocates in the Superior Court for a case in which the action succeeds or is dismissed after a plea other than a plea to the merits, and without enquile, continues in force. Plourde v. Bank of Montred, 17 Que. S. C. 291.

Counsel fees — Review — Motion.] — When an inscription in review is dismissed upon motion, the fee will be that of an action settled before hearing, and not that of a motion only. Renault v. Gagnen, 3 Que. P. R. 259.

Connact fees — Revising pleadings.] — The fee allowed by item 230 of the tariff for settling and revising refers to a party's own pleadings, and not to the pleadings received from the opposite party, and the allowance on receipt of the statement of defence, as "fee to counsel advising thereon," is improper, but, in a special case, a fee may be allowed under item 220. Blair v. British Columbia Express Co., 11 B. C. R. 1-3.

Connact fees—Trial—Class of action—Garantic]— A counsel fee at the hearing will not be allowed upon taxation unless there has in fact been a hearing—2. If an action can garantic is dismissed because the plaintiff in the principal action is in default for not proceeding with his demand, the class of the action en garantic (brought up on review and dismissed by the Superior Court) will be that of the principal demand, and not that of an action for the amount of the costs that the plaintiff en garantic has to pay in consequence of the dismissal of his action. Walker v. La Banque Nationale, 3 Que. P. R. 47.

Counsel fees paid to partner of litigant-Affidavit of payment made by counsel - Disallowing costs of - Brief - Cor-respondence.]-Where counsel fees were paid by a member of a firm of barristers and solicitors, to his partner for the latter's services as counsel in an action in which the former was defendant, under a prior agreement to pay such fees as would be payable to counsel outside the firm :--Held, that such counsel fees should be taxed to the defendant against the plaintiff under a judgment dismissing the action with costs. Aenderson v. Comer, 3 U. C. L. J. O. S. 29, followed Upon the taxation the defendant made an affidavit of payment of fees to his partner, and the latter also made an affidavit, upon which he was cross-examined :---Held, that the defendant was not entitled to tax the costs of or occasioned by the latter affidavit:-Held, also, per Britton, J., that the discretion of the taxing officer in allowing the defendant the costs of briefing correspondence between the parties, should not be interfered with on appeal, although the correspondence was not used at the trial. Johanston V. Ryckman, 24 C. L. T. 221, 7 O. L. R. 511, 1 O. W. R. 720, 2 O. W. R. 1088, 1113, 3 O. W. R. 198.

Counterclaim - Instructions - Brief-Counsel fees - Costs of taxation and appeals, 1-In an action to which the defendant pleaded a counterclaim, the plaintiff was held entitled to the costs of the action, and the defendant to the costs of the counterclaim : -Held, that the defendant, as part of her costs, was entitled to tax a counsel fee, and that the fact that there was no reply to the counterclaim was not material, it being the existence of the defence to the action which determined whether it was a case for a counsel fee or not:—Held, following Atlas Metal Co. v. Miller, [1898] 2 Q. B. 506, that the defendant was not entitled to tax "in-structions to sue," but was entitled to tax "instructions for counterclaim." With re-spect to the amount of "brief" and "counsel fee" taxed, the taxing master's judgment ought not to be disturbed, especially after it had been affirmed by a Judge. The "one-sixth rule" (O. 63, r. 23) is imperative, and there being in this case no reason for departure from it, the appeal of each party should have been and should now be dis-missed with costs. Bauld v. Fraser, 36 N. S. R. 21.

Counterclaim — Witness fees — Counsel fees — Subpænas — Other items. Welwyn Farmers' Elevator Co. v. Byrne (N.W.T.), 3 W. L. R. 365.

Criminal libel — Action — Stay — Criminal Code, ss. 823-5.]—N., after his ac-quittal (at the third trial) on a charge of criminal libel, proceeded to tax his costs as provided by the Criminal Code, and moved before the trial Judge for the costs of some commission evidence used at the first trial. The motion was dismissed (22 C. L. T. 275, 8 B. C. R. 276, Rex v. Nichol), and it was decided that the prosecutors were not liable for the costs of the two abortive trials. As there was no appeal from that order, N. abandoned the taxation, and commenced this action for his costs. The defendants applied for a stay of proceedings :--Held, that the plaintiff should not be allowed to pursue both remedies at once, but, as in the other proceedings there was no appeal, this action should be allowed to proceed, provided that the plaintiff would undertake to abide by such order as might be made at the trial with regard to the costs of the taxation proceedings thrown away, and in the event of the plaintiff ings such undertaking the taxation proceed-ings should be stayed. Nichol v. Pooley, 22 C. L. T. 127, 9 B. C. R. 21, 363.

to allow counsel fees or solicitor's fees in respect of services rendered in such capacities by either of these officers on the taxation of costs awarded in favour of the Crown.— Jarvis v. Great Western Rw. Co., 8 C. P. 280, and The Charlevoix Election Case, Cout. Dig. 388, followed. Humburg-American Packet Co. v. R., 39 S. C. B. 621.

Defendants' costs of action—Items relating to security for costs—Claim and counterclaim—Judgment for defendants on counterclaim. Griffin v. Ruller (N.W.T.), 4 W. L. R. 12.

Defendants severing — Richt of defendants to separate sets of costs—Separate defences delivered by same solicitor—Discretion of taxing officer — Items of bills—Instructions to defend—Attempted examination for discovery—Conduct money — Attendance of solicitors—Third party notice — Witness fees at trial—Alfidavits of defendants. Union Investment Co. v. Pullishy (Alta.), S W. L. R. 530.

Deposition in Circuit Court.] — The costs of a deposition taken, on consent of parties by stenography, cannot be taxed in a Circuit Court. Leucis v. Hudson's Bay Co., 6 Que. P. R. 97.

Depositions taken under foreign commission — Admissibility — Practice — Return of commission — Opening by clerk. Cramer v. Bell (N.W.P.), 6 W. L. R. 382.

Desistment — Fee on hearing—Inscription.]—When the plaintiff desists from his demand after inscription for hearing on the merits, the defendants has no right to the fee upon the hearing allowed by Art. 36 of the tariff. Bigras v. Yau, 6 Que, P. R. 332.

Distribution—Part failure—Jurisdiction of taxing officer—Objection—Waiver. Pugh v. Hogate, 3 O. W. R. 799, 4 O. W. R. 212.

Distribution of costs-Several causes of action-Judgment.]-The judgment in an action for slander provided "that the plaintiff do recover against the defendant in respect of the matters set forth in the 3rd and 5th paragraphs of the statement of claim the sum of $1 and costs to be taxed," and " that the defendant recover from the plaintiff in respect of the matters set forth in the 4th and 6th paragraphs of the statement of claim his costs to be taxed :"-Held, affrming the decision of Meredith, C.J., that the taxing officer rightly taxed under the judgment to the plaintiff the general costs of the cause, except so much of them as were occasioned by the causes of action upon which he failed, and to the defendant only the costs of the issues upon which he succeeded, the Latter being set off. Sparrow v. Hill, 7 Q. B. D. 362, 8 Q. B. D. 479, followed. Davis v. Hurd, 22 C. L. T. 285, 292, 4 O. L. R. 466, 1. O. W. 439. 1 O. W. R. 418, 471.

Documents — Notary.]—The expense of making a copy of a deed which is part of the title of him who produces it cannot be taxed against the opposite party unless the copy has been made for the express purpose of the suit.—The costs of steps taken by a notary in searching for documents to be produced in the cause cannot be taxed. Lavoignat V. Mackay, 17 Que. S. C. 382.

Double fees — Cross-demurrers.]—The defendant answered the action by a demurrer and by a special plea; the plaintiff demurred to the latter; and the parties were heard upon these two issues of law. The demurrer of the defendant was overruled with costs, and the demurrer of the plaintiff was allowed with costs. The prothonotary allowed the plaintiff, a fee upon the demurrer of the defendant and another upon the disintiff's own demurrer, seeing that he had succeded upon the two issues. This was affirmed upon revision. Luncau v. Luncau, 19 Que. S. C. 146.

Evidence — Brief of, used by opposite counsel. Pennington v. Honsinger, 1 O. W. R. 270, 507.

Examination for discovery. Iddington v. Douglas, 2 O. W. R. 734.

Examination for discovery — Ruling of senior taxing officer—Appeal—Time—Extension—Rules 767, 774. Mann v. Crittendem, 6 O. W. R. 799, 11 O. L. R. 46.

Examination of party — Solicitor for party—Fec.]—Where the attorney of the opposant is present at the preliminary examination of the opponent, and cross-examines him, he is allowed on taxation the fee mentioned in Art. 41 of the tariff. Lafontaine v. Senez, S Que. P. R. 320.

Exhibit — Specially obtained document.] —The costs in relation to an exhibit which forms part of the documents of title of the party who files it, should not be included in taxation unless it is stated that such copy has been specially ordered and obtained for the purpose of filing it in the action. Lavoienat Y. Mackay, 5 Que. P. R. 408.

Ex parte cause—Notice of taxation— Necessity for—Execution—Opposition.] — In an ex parte cause in the Circuit Court it is not necessary to have the bill of costs taxed adversely before issuing execution. An opposition based solely upon want of notice of taxation, without any allegation of overcharge, will be dismissed with costs. Poirier V. Girard, 4 Que, P. R. 124.

Fee of commissaire-enqueteur.) — A deputy-probonotary who has been sworn as commissaire-enqueteur and as such has taken the examination of a witness, is entitled to the fee therefor; and it will be allowed on taxation to the party paying it. MacDonald v. Migneron, 3 Que. P. R. 156.

Hiegal bond — Leave to regularize — Costs of adverse party.]—If a judgment permits an appellant to complete a security bond which has been declared illegal, the costs of the respondent comprise the attendance when the security was given, unless the judgment specifies that costs of motion only are granted. Gelinas v. La Campagnie du Magasin du Peuple, 7 Que. P. R. 98. Instructions for affidavit-Affidavit on production-Order-Review.)-The following items were allowed to the plaintiff against the contention of the defendant: 1. Instructions for affidavit of writ of replevin. 2. Two separate affidavits on production by co-plaintiffs, where they resided in different parts of the country. 3. An order postponing trial on the application of the defendant, on terms of payment of costs, taken out by the plaintiff, where the defendant had neglected to take out order. An application by the defendant to have deducted from the bill certain costs of the day, alleged to have been improperly allowed on a previous taxation not appealed from, was not entertained. Allison v. Christie, 2 Terr. L. R. 270.

Interlocutory costs-Two separate matters-Separate bills-Charges for preparing-Taxation before final judgment.] - Where costs have been incurred in respect of two interlocutory matters in an action, a motion for particulars and an inscription in law, it is permissible for the party who has succeeded to draw up two distinct bills of costs bearing the same date and brought in for taxation on the same day .- In such a case charges for drawing the bills and attending upon taxation, as well as disbursements, are allowed in respect of each bill .- It would be otherwise if the taxation of these interlocutory costs were after final judgment, in which case it would be necessary to include the costs in a single bill. Baron v. Benoit, 8 Que. P. R.

Items—Copies of interlocutory orders— Rehearing of motion.]—In the district of Montreal the practice is to put upon the record copies of all the judgments rendered in the course of the puedency of a cause; and the costs of such copies will be taxed. 2. If a motion seeks for a condemnation in a case in which the opposite party has not conformed to an order of the Court, there is ground for presenting anew the motion in the case in which the order has not been executed, and, therefore, to claim a fee for rehearing. Werthemer v. Boulanger, 5 Que. P. R. 203.

Items of bill - Jury trial-Evidence-Discovery - Copy of depositions - Witness fees-Witness not called-Review of taxation.]-If a jury's verdict awards a plaintiff a sum inferior to $400 (in this case, $140), and judgment is rendered according to verdict with costs, such costs include the costs of the jury, of the translation of evidence, and the fees and disbursements, as in an action for the amount awarded, on the various motions and proceedings peculiar to jury trials .-- 2. No fee will be allowed on an examination on discovery which was dispensed with after the issuing of a subpœna.-3. When a party is examined for discovery, the adverse party has no right to charge in his bill of costs, the cost of a copy of such examination .--- 4. The taxation of a witness who has not been heard, made in the absence of the opposite party, will be annulled, when no evidence is adduced to shew the possible usefulness of such witness .- 5. The taxation of witnesses who have been heard, whether it has taken place ex parte or after objections by the adverse party, will not be revised by the Judge. Clough v. Fabre, 9 Que. P. R. 276.

Items of bill—Plea of puis darrein continuance—Interlocutory injunction—Application of new tarif,]—No special fee is allowable on taxation for the filing of a plea puis darrein continuance. — The existing tarif, which contains an express provision on the subject, item 37, must serve as the rule for taxation of the costs of petitions for interlocutory injunctions presented while the old tariff was in force, which left such taxation to the discretion of the Judge. Roy v. Lord, 9 Que. P. R. 314.

Items of bill - Statement of facts -Second trial by jury-Witness fees-Experts -Stenographer-Interpreter.]-At a second trial by jury made necessary by reason of the disagreement of the first jury, no additional fee will be accorded to the plaintiff's attorney for the statement of facts required under Art. 425, C. P.—2. Witnesses (me-chanics) summoned to give expert evidence touching the working of a machine will be taxed at the rate of $4 per day .--- 3. No fee is allowed the stenographer for reading to the jury a deposition taken out of Court.-4. The case having been settled and withdrawn from the jury immediately after the re-assembling of the Court for the afternoon session, the sum of $10 for one day's session taxed in favour of the interpreter from French into English is reduced to $5. Mills v. Royal Institution, 9 Que. P. R. 368.

Judgment for default of defance— Coate of affidavit proving that none served; —In order to constitute the delivery of a pleading, it must be both filed and served; default in either will entitle the party to be proceeded against as upon default in pleading; and consequently upon a taxation of a plaintiff's costs of judgment signed for default of defence, the costs of an affidavit proving that no defence was served will be disallowed, where no defence has been filed. Massey-Harris Co. v. Hutchings, 3 W. L. R. 252, 6 Terr. L. R. 351.

Mortgagee's costs of proceedings under power of sale-R. S. O. 1807, c. 121, s. 30-Proceedings for sale while notice current — Disallowance-Profit costs-Mortgagee's agent not a solicitor. Re McArthur, 12 O. W. R. 177.

Mortgagee's costs of sale proceedings — Juriadiction — Local registrar.] — A local registrar is not one of "the taxing officers of the Supreme Court of Judicature" mentioned in R. S. O. 1897 c. 121, s. 30; and, if he is not also a local Master, has no jurisdiction, under that section, to tax a mortgagee's costs of sale proceedings. Re Drinkwaiter and Kerr, 10 O. W. R. 511, 15 O. L. R. 76.

Mortgagor and mortgagee.]--No appeal lies from the taxation of a mortgagee's costs of proceedings under the power of sale in a mortgage, had under R. S. O. c. 121, s. 30. In re Vanluven and Walker, 20 C. L. T. 388, 19 P. R. 216. 3

Motion to allow proliminary exceptions.]—The fees of the prohonotary and of the attorney upon a motion to allow a preliminary exception (whether in a matter of form, going to the jurisdiction, dilatory, or otherwise), even when such motion is granted and the action dismissed, should be such fees as are taxable upon an ordinary simple motion, according to the class of action : Art. 28 of the turiff of advocates' fees (see Rule of Practice, No. 40). Vezina v. Martin, 2 Que. P. R. 361.

Motion to dismiss action for want of prosecution — Interocutory application — Affidavit — Information and brief — Brief and instructions for brief—Counsel fee, Gibson v. Drennen (N.W.T.), 1 W. L. R. 577.

Motion to review-Limitation to specific objections - Reference of whole bill to taxing officer at Toronto as upon revision-Erroneous practice-General objection to all items-Declaration of Judge's duty to taxing officer.]-Defendants, being dissatisfied with a taxation, delivered, pursuant to Rule 1182, to plaintiff and to the taxing officer, objections in writing to the taxation. Besides specifying as objected to, a large number of items in the bill, giving reason therefor, concluded with the following general complaint: "The defendants also complain that the bill generally is exorbitant, that the allowances as a rule are too large, and that altogether too much has been taxed for folios, attend-ances, etc., etc." The local taxing officer confirmed his previous taxation but did not state his reasons for his so doing. Falconbridge, C.J., in Chambers, referred plaintiff's bill of costs to the senior taxing officer at Toronto to be taxed as upon a revision of taxation and to report. On appeal from this order it was held: A Judge in Chambers, upon an application to him under Rule 774 to review a taxation, has no jurisdiction to delegate the duty which the rule imposes upon him, to a taxing officer at Toronto, or to anyone else. He may take the opinion of that officer as to any and all matters arising upon the application, for his own information, but the parties are entitled to have his opinion, and his alone, in determining the Questions raised by the appeal. Quay . Quay, 11 P. P. 258, overruled. Campbell v. Barker, 2 O. W. R. 504, 5 O. W. R. 372, 9 O. L. R. 291.

New trial—Coats of former trial.)—The plaintiff had obtained a verticit against the defendants, but not being satisfied with the amount had it set aside and a new trial granted on the ground of insufficiency, costs to abide the event. At the second trial he again obtained a verdict, but for a smaller amount. On taxation of costs defendant's counsel contended that he was not liable for the costs of the first trial:—Held (Hensley, J.), that plaintiff having failed to recover a larger amount on the second trial than on the first was not entitled to the costs of the first trial. McGill v. McWade (1873), 1 P. E. I. R 446.

New tariff.] — Plaintiff taxed in 1896, his costs of recovering judgment, and on appeal it was ordered that there should be a new trial and that the costs of the first trial should follow the event. Plaintiff, finally, in 1904, recovered judgment with costs: --Held, that the costs of the first trial were not now taxable under the new tariff, which came in force in 1897, but that the old taxation must stand.—Semble, costs incurred before the new tariff came into force are still taxable under the old tariff. Harris v. Dunsmuir, 9 B. C. R. 317.

Non-payment of costs—Order to pay— Taration of costs—Rule nizi—Correice imprisonment—C. P. 554, 836; Ordinance of 1607, tit. 4, art. 2; tit. 34, art. 10.]—A rule for coercive imprisonment cannot be declared absolute for costs, if bill of costs has not been served upon defendant and taxed against him. —Demand for imprisonment should be preceded by a demand for payment, with notice that fifer expiry of 3 months defendant will be obliged to discharge the condemnation under pain of coercive imprisonment—The new Code of Civil F:ocedure has not changed provisions of the old Code on this subject. Landskrowner V. Corber (1910), 11 Que. P. R. 307.

Notice-Quantum of costs-Intervention -Insolvent estate - Curator.]-It a party, who has received notice that a bill of costs will be taxed, does not attend upon the day fixed in the notice, but merely urges his reasons against the taxation in a letter addressed to the prothonotary, the party who has given the notice, and who has not had his bill taxed at the time fixed, may have it taxed later, at his pleasure, in the absence of his opponent.-2. Upon an inter-vention made by the curator of the insolvent estate of the defendants upon a saisie conservatoire, and where such curator contests, not the claim of the plaintiff, but only his right to the effects seized, the bill of costs of the curator, whose intervention has been maintained, will be taxed pursuant to Art. 60 of the tariff, and not merely as if it was for costs of a petition to set aside the seizure .-Semble, that costs incurred by a curator in litigating a proceeding in the name of an insolvent are payable by the unsuccessful party in such proceeding, and not out of the insolvent estate, except in case of default of the unsuccessful party to pay them. Auger V. Montambault, 5 Que. P. R. 21.

Notice to opposite party—Collateral equities—Duty of taxing officer.]—The taxing officer is bound to tax a bill of costs on production thereof, according to the tariff in force, upon seeing that the opposite party has had notice, and without consideration of any collateral equilies which may exist between the partic. Ress V, Ross, S Que, P. R. 300.

Opposition — A mendment—Fees.] — If, after contestation filed, the opposant is allowed to file an amendment to his opposition, necessitating the filing of a new contestation, the opposant will not be entitled thereby to two fees on contestation and two additional fees, but only to such fee as the Court will allow him, the costs of the ameniment having been reserved. Canada Industrial Co. v. Kensington Land Co., 6 Que. P. R. 237.

Opposition—Dismissal.] — The fee on a motion to dismiss an opposition is that of an ordinary motion and not of a preliminary exception. Giguère v. Payette, 6 Que. P. R. 178.

Opposition—Dismissal.]—The fee of the advocate of an execution creditor who obtains upon motion, the dismissal of an opposition, is the fee appropriate to an opposition dismissed upon preliminary exception. Smith v. Lapointe, 6 Que. P. R. 216.

Partition proceedings — Taxed costs —Special circumstances. McLaughlin v. Mc-Laughlin, 1 O. W. R. 378, 424.

Percenption — Appearance — Attendance on taxtion.]—Where a cause is percompted, after the filing of a preliminary exception, its dismissal with costs against the plaintiff, and payment by the plaintiff of the costs thereof, the defendant has a right only to the costs of appearance; he has no right to a fee for attending upon taxation. Atkinson v. Cadicux, 10 Que, P. R. 100.

Petition—Useless proceedings.]—Upon a petition for payment out of money deposited with the Provincial Treasurer pursuant to Art. 1198, R. S. Q., the fee allowed will be that upon a petition, and the bill of costs will not be taxed as in an action.—Semble, that motions to debar a party from pleading. to set down the cause, and to place the cause en delibère suivant see errements, are unneces sary proceedings upon such a petition. Dauphinais v, Bousquet, 2 Que. P. R. 511.

Petition for revision — Desistment from tasticon.]—A party who has had a bill of costs taxed to him adversely, may, after a petition for revision of the taxation has been presented and taken into consideration, desist from the certificate of taxation obtained by him, upon paying the costs of the petition for revision. Bergeron v. Brunet, 5 Que. P. R. 420.

Preparing for trial—Searches for missing documents — Party and party costs — Tariff.]—In this action a certain contract and certain plans of material importance were lost, and the plaintiffs employed two of their former solicitors to try and find them, which they succeeded in doing, and they were put in evidence at the trial. For these services a sum of $350 was paid to them:—Held, that this expenditure was properly taxable as part of the plaintiffs' party and party costs, though not specially provided for in the tariff. Toronto v, Grand Trunk Rue, Co., 13 O. L. R. 12, 8 O. W. R. 310, 333.

Quashing conviction — Appeal from taxation—Brief and counsel fee in chambers —Mode of preparing bill—Inflating items for taxation. Rex v. Dimmock, 1 E. L. R. 50.

Railway Act — Delegation by Judge — Review of taxation—Principle of taxation— Items—Desistment—Arbitration.]—The usual and convenient course in regard to costs of proceedings under the Railway Act, 51 V. c. 29 (D.), provided for by ss. 154 and 158, is not for the Judge to tax in the first instance, but to relegate the bill of costs to an officer conversant with the practice of taxation to ascertain what has been properly incurred; and his conclusions may be adopted or varied by the Judge. If lands are taken compulsorily the costs should be allowed in larger measure than in ordinary litigation, but in a case of mere desistment, it is enough if the bill is fairly taxed :--Held, with regard to items in dispute upon taxation-1. That a consent to take possession was not part of desistment proceedings, and the costs of it were properly disallowed.-2. That costs of steps taken to appoint a third arbitrator were not costs of the land owner; the appointment was a matter to be arranged by the two arbitrators already named.—3. That "instructions for brief" upon arbitration should be allowed.— 4. That what was actually disbursed in with ness fees to a necessary and material witness as to value should be allowed .--- 5. That the quantum of the counsel fee upon the arbitration was in the discretion of the taxing officer, and should not be interfered with -6. That "instructions to move for costs of arbitration" was properly disallowed by the taxing officer, in the discretion given by item 38 of the tariff of the Supreme Couri of Judicature.--7. That the costs of a formal order for taxation and its incidents, and not mere fiat or direction to tax, should be allowed, the liabillity for costs having been disputed: see 6 O. L. R. 543. Re Oliver & Bay of Quinte Rv. Co., 24 C. L. T. 296, 7 O. L. R. 567, 2 O. W. R. 953, 3 O. W. R. 318

Redemption action - Copy of evidence -Taking mortgage accounts in Master's office-Items.]-The procuring of a copy of evidence taken in the Master's office for use on the argument before the Master may be taxed and allowed in proper cases,—Re Rob-inson, 16 P. R. 423, discussed.—Per Riddel, J.:—The following items in a defendant's bill are taxable in reference to taking of mortgage accounts in the Master's office: (1) attendance by the other party's solicitor on inspection of productions; (2) counsel fee ad-vising on evidence; (3) letter to client to call after service of notice of intention to cross-examine on affidavit; (4) attending and copying entries in books of account produced ; (5) attendance of clients going over accounts and surcharge of plaintiff and considering and advising on; (6) attendance of plaintiff's solicitor going over accounts and discussing and making list of such as can and cannot be agreed upon and admitted; (7) the issue of a new subpœna for witnesses to be examined upon a day subsequent to that for which they were originally subpænaed and brought into the Master's office; (8) attendance by client and advising after arrangement made to proceed with case on a certain day; (9) perusal of accounts and considering and taking instructions for supplemental accounts; (10) counsel fee on reference. Plenderleith v. Parsons, 15 O. L. R. 397, 10 O. W. R. 387, 658.

Registration of indgment — Copy — Appeal.]—Held, on appeal from the taxation of the prothonotary, that the party who obtains judgment has a right to have a copy of it made and to have it registered, and the expense forms part of the costs of the cause and may be recovered from the adverse party, if the judgment, as in this case, is confirmed, or if the opposite party does not appeal. Rehearing — Fee on enquête.]—After a cause has been dismissed at the hearing, and a rehearing has become necessary, the parties are entitled to a fee upon the rehearing, but not to a second fee upon the enquête. Coke y, Arnold, 6 Que, P. R. 238.

Retaxation-Alteration of order, Boak v. Deblois, 1 E. L. R. 109.

Review — Abandoned appeal — Bricks-Counsel feed. — On the 20th May the plaintiffs gave notice of appeal, to come on at the Navember sitting of the full Court, from an order requiring them to give security for the costs of the action. On the 3rd June the appeal was abandoned:—Heid, on a review of taxation, that the respondents were entitled to tax briefs and a counsel fee. Counsel fee under the circumstances fixed at $10. A taxation may be reviewed under Rule 553, as well as under Rule 790. Fry v. Botsford, 22 C. L. 7, 375, 9 B. C. R. 207.

Review — Evidence.] — Held that an application for review of taxation by the taxing officer must be disposed of on the evidence adduced before the taxing officer, and no further evidence in support of the application will be received in review. Martin v. Smith, 1 Sask, L. R. 141.

Review-Irregular proceedings - Insufficient affidavit on production - Several subpanas.]-It is not open to a party on taxation of costs to take objections which could or should have been taken by application to set aside the proceedings, or by way of appeal. On this principle costs were allowed as follows: (1) The costs of an order de bene esse, irregularly obtained, were allowed to the defendant, where no application had been made to set it aside, and the plaintiff's advocate had attended on the examination; (2) the costs of an insufficient affidavit on production, where an application for a better affidavit had been dismissed and no appeal taken; (3) the costs of an order to examine the plaintiff issued ex parte and without notice, where an application to set it aside had been refused, and the grounds of the refusa. were not shewn on the review. A subpœna for each of several witnesses may be allowed where they reside in different parts of the country, and the same original cannot be conveniently produced to them all. Craig v. New Oxley Ranche Co., 2 Terr. L. R. 277.

Review-Items-Consolidated actions.]-Upon review on the part of the plaintiff of the taxation of his costs against the defendant of consolidated actions :--Held, that "in-structions to defend" the action brought against the plaintiff should have been allowed, although the plaintiff was also allowed " instructions to apply to consolidate."-2. That items for preparing and marking as exhibits to the affidavit used upon the application to consolidate of copies of the writs of summons and statement of claim in the two actions should have been allowed .--- 3. That a counsel fee of $5, instead of $2, upon the application to consolidate, should have been allowed, it being an application of an essen-tially special character.-4. That "instructions for the examination for discovery of the plaintiff " should have been allowed to the plaintiff. — lexander v. School Trustees of Gloucester, 11 P. R. 157, followed with hesi-tation.—5. That the plaintiff was not entitled to tax against the defendant the costs of two letters to a sheriff complaining of the insufficiency of a replevin bond, the defendant having replevied the plaintiff's goods .----6. That items for drawing acceptance and attending to obtain an undertaking for the appearance of the defendant for examination for discovery and attending to give acceptance and undertaking for the plaintiff's examination for discovery were properly disallowed, there being no evidence that the work had been done .--- 7. That the item for attending on inspection and admission of documents by the defendant's solicitors was properly disallowed. -8. That items for preparing and marking copies of the pleadings as exhibits to an affidavit made in support of an application to set the case down for trial, were properly disallowed .- 9. That items in regard to a proposed application to vacate the registry of a caveat were properly disallowed. The costs of the application, if made, would not be costs in the cause unless so ordered upon the application. Newstead v. Rowe (1910), 14 W.

Review—Rule acting aside order with costs — Herms properly taxable thereunder— Practice.]—The order taken out simply provided for costs. This means the costs of the order set aside and application therefor. Any other costs should have been especially provided for. Owens v. Upham, 7 E. L. R. 103.

L. R. 681; 3 Sask. L. R. 205.

Revision — Powers of Judge—Witness fees.] — When a final judgment has been rendered in a case, condemning one of the parties to pay the costs, a Judge in Chambers has no power, on a petition to revise the taxation of one of the bills, to strike from it the costs taxed in respect of one of the witnesses, on the ground that his evidence was of no weight or value. Cains v. Leeder, 34 Que. S. C. 308.

Right to tax—Interlocutory costs payable "in any event"—Settlement of action. McDonald v, Crites, 7 O. W. R, 795.

Scale of costs-Possessory action-Witness fees-Review of taxation-Applicant for - Witness - Time - Surveyor's plan -Discretion of prothonotary.]-Possessory actions are second class actions, although the value of the immovable is over $1,000, esspecially when the plaintiff only seeks to be relieved of the disturbance in the enjoyment of his property, which the defendant commits in cutting wood on a part of it .-- 2. The application for the revision of the taxation of witness fees must be made by the witness himself and not by one of the parties, through his attorney; this application must be made before final judgment.—3. The prothonotary has not the discretionary power to strike the costs of a surveyor's plan from the bill, when the Judge who rendered the final judgment did not do so. Lefrancois v. Morel, 10 Que. P. R. 80.

Severing defences — Items — Setting aside judgment—Fi. fa. lands — Examination for discovery.] -- Where an action is brought against two or more defendants, and any defendant separates in his defence, and the judgment is against all the defendants, the law is, that each of them is liable to the plaintiff for all costs taxed by him as properly incurred by him in the maintenance of his action, except as to costs caused to him by so much of the separate defence of any defendant as is and can be a defence for that defendant only as distinguished from the other defendants. The rule in Stumm v. Dimon, 22 Que. B. D. 99, 529, applied to an action on a contract. In an action against two joint makers of a promissory note, who, though they set up substantially the same defence, severed in their defences :-Held, that on the taxation of the plaintiff's costs the following items should be allowed as against both defendants: (1) costs of a concurrent writ of summons against one of the defendants; (2) costs occasioned by the separate defences of each defendant; (3) costs of the examination for discovery of one of the defendants, although, as the other defendant had not been notified of the intention to hold the examination, the depositions were not admissible in evidence against him. Where a judgment by default was set aside, and the defendant was given leave to defend on payment of costs :--Held, that the defendant was liable to pay the costs of a fi. fa. lands issued concurrently with a fi. fa. goods. Lougheed v. Parrish, 4 Terr. L. R. 54.

Several defendants — Appearance by separate solicitors—Severing in defences— Specific items: instructions, perusals, affidavit of disbursements, third party notice, etc .-Examination for discovery-Solicitor's attendance on-Right of party attending for examination to witness fees and mileage where unavoidably detained - Abandonment of examination.]-Where an action brought against several defendants is dismissed with or may have, separate defences are entitled to separate bills of costs if they defend by separate solicitors .--- 2. If two or more appear by the same solicitor, it is within the discretion of the taxing officer to allow or disallow separate defences. Consequently where sixteen defendants were sued as joint and several makers of a promissory note :-Held, that, on party and party taxation of their costs, the taxing officer had not improperly allowed three different sets of costs ; not two separate defences, where two or more defendants had appeared by the same solici-tor.--3. A solicitor appearing for two or more defendants, is entitled to charge for instructions to defend from each defendant; but can only be allowed for one perusal of statement of claim .--- 4. Instructions for pleadings can only be allowed for each separate set of pleadings .-- Where one party takes out an appointment for examination for discovery of the other party, who, having been served with a subporna, is delayed by causes (e.g., snow-blockades or interruption of train service) beyond his control, yet attends and presents himself for examination as soon after as possible, the examining party cannot, by abandoning the examination, escape the liability to pay witness fees and mileage-and, in such circumstances, such fees and mile-age, if not paid, are properly taxable on party and party taxation against the examining party, as costs in the cause.—The soliinstructions and attendance are proper party and party taxation items.—Costs of a third party notice are not taxable as between party and party, in the absence of an express order.—Only one affidavit of disbursements, which may be made by the solicitor, is to be taxed in respect of ench separate bill of costs. Union Investment Co. v. Pullishy, 1 Alta, L. R. 489, S W, L. R. 530.

Several preliminary exceptions filed concurrently.]—If several preliminary exceptions are filed concurrently, and the action is dismissed on one of them, the defondant is not entitled to the costs of the other exceptions, if these have not been urged to judgment.—A motion by plaintiff to have defendant's bill of costs revised accordingly will be granted. Bomborinajs v. Lortie, 11 Que. P. R. 17.

Sheriff's costs of interpleader—litens 76 and 77 of Sask. Tarifi, I—In an interpleader application the sheriff obtained a copy of the claimant's examination. This was disallowed on taxation. Every interpleader application is not a special one. In this case a counsel fee of $2 allowed Cross v. Cross (1909), 12 W. L. R. 433. 3 Sask. L. R. 1.

Solicitor's letter before action.] – A debtor is not obliged to pay the costs of a letter before action received from an advocate. Rioux v. Plaisance, 21 Que. S. C. 57⁴ Lay v. Cantin, 23 Que. S. C. 405

Solicitor's letter before action.] – A debtor who receives a solicitor's letter, cannot, as against the solicitor, or the creditor, be required to pay a fee for such letter. Robson v. Smith, 5 Que. P. R. 252.

Special fee-Allowance by Judge.] — A Judge will not take cognizance of a bill of costs and allow a special fee, until the bill has been taxed by the prothonotary. Campbell v. Montreal St. Rw. Co., 7 Que. P. R. 79.

Stenographer's fees — Evidence on reference—Rule 1143—Consent — Certificate of Master. Murphy v. Corry, 8 O. W. R. 68.

Sums paid witnesses for expense incurred qualifying them to give evidence — Maps and plans—Manitoba Rules, 4, 963, 964,—English Rouity Rule—Manitoba King's Bench Act, s. 39 (S.).]—Action on a promissory note given as part payment for timber limit. Counterclaim for damages for misrepresentations. Judgement for plaintif. Counterclaim dismissed. Plaintif, on inxition, claimed to be paid expenses for experts examining timber limits. Rule 663 above includes "maps or plans," but appeal allowed from taxing officer who had taxed expenses of witness going to and returning from timber limits: —Held, that the successful party in an action cannot have taxed to him, as party and party costs, the expenses incurred in qualifying witnesses to give evidence at the trial.—Sub-section (s) of s. 39 of the King's e exam-'he solientitled) for his 'r party a third 'n party ress orsements, is to be bill of llishy, 1

Supreme Court of Canada - Staying taxation.]-At the trial the plaintiffs' action was dismissed, but the full Court allowed an appeal by the plaintiffs. On appeal the Supreme Court of Canada allowed the appeal of a defendant, W., and ordered the plaintiffs to pay him the costs of that appeal and also all costs in the Court below, except in so far as he was to be regarded as the representative of the mortgagor in an action to realize a mortgage security, which costs were reserved till final decree. By the same judgment the action was dismissed as against W., except in so far as it was considered to be in the nature of a mortgage action for the purpose of enforcing a security :---Held, reversing an order staying the taxation of W.'s costs of appeal to the full Court until final decree, that there was no jurisdiction to make the order staying taxation. The application should have been made to a Judge of the Supreme Court of Canada instend. Merchants Bank v. Houston, 22 C. L. T. 339, 9 B. C. R. 158.

Tariff — Petition — Bankruptcy and insolvency—Hotel license—Declaration,]—The fees upon an uncontexted petition for a declaration that the petitioner is the owner of a hotel license comprised in an assignment of property of a bankrupt, amount to the sum of $$6, in conformity with clause 3 of Art, 76 of the tariff. Monette v. Chartrand, 8 Que, P. R. 416.

Tariff—Provisions of—Circuit Court.] — Where an action is dismissed upon motion for peremption, after the filing of a plea of the merits, Art. 8 of the tariff of fees of advocates in Circuit Court applies to the taxation of the costs, and not Art. 9. Moody V. Lachance, 6 Que. P. R. 99.

Taxation — Divided success — Apportionment — Scale of costs — Set-off — Rule 1132. Murphy v. Murphy, 11 O. W. R. 410, 727.

Taxation of defendants' costs against plaintiff — Defendants' solicitor paid by salary. Liddiard v. Toronto Rw. Co., 9 O. W. R. 508.

Travelling expenses in appeal.]--In an appeal from a judgment rendered in the district of Iberville, an item of $14 elaimed by the attorney of the successful party as his travelling expenses to Montreal, will not be included in the taxed bill of costs, as it appears that the said attorney also practices in Montreal, Marchand & Forman (1910), 16 R. de J. 475. Trial of several actions together— Effect on costs — Witness fees — Party in interest — Bailiff's fees—Search for absent defendant.]—The fact that several actions are tried together does not prevent the advocates from receiving the fees on examination and henring for each of the causes, but only reduces the costs of stenography and witness fees.—2. Witness fees may be allowed for the person declared elected by a judgment sustaining a quo varranto, if he is not otherwise a party to the proceeding. — 3. Where the defendant is designated in the writ of summons as absent, the bailiff will not be allowed on taxation for searches for this defendant. Henry v. Sanderson, 6 Que, P. R. 19).

Triple costs - Justice of the peace -Appeal - Witness fees, 1-The triple costs which the unsuccessful plaintiff is condemned to pay in an action under Art. 2555, R. S. Q., do not include triple costs of review, nor triple witness fees.-2. The Judge has no discretion to exercise under this provision of the law, and when he adjudges that a penal action against a justice of the peace is not well founded, and dismisses it, he must allow triple costs to the defendant .--- 3. Where the judgment of first instance dismisses the action with costs, and the plaintiff appeals to the Court of Review, which simply affirms the judgment with costs, triple costs should not be taxed by the prothonotary .--- 4. But where the judgment of first instance dismisses the action without costs, and the defendant appeals from such judgment and claims triple costs, the Court of Review will grant them to him, and the prothonotary should tax them. Luneau v. Janeau, 3 Que. P. R. 505

"Triple costs"—Meaning of.]—Where an action begun by virtue of Art. 2556 R. S. Q., has been dismissed with costs, the defendant recovers against the plaining triple costs, that is to say, three times the amount of the bill of costs taxed. Luncau v. Luncau, 2 Que. P. R. 454.

Withdrawal of action.] — When a cause inscribed for hearing on the merits is, during the sitting of the Court, withdrawn with costs, by the plaintiff, the defendant has a right to the same fees as if the action had been dismissed (item 9, tariff C. C.). but without fees of the hearing (items 10 court, the defendant having been notified that the action would be thus withdrawn. Gosselie Y, Girouz, 19 Que. S. C. 145, 3 Que. P. R. 370.

Witness fees—Taxation of. See WITNESS FEES.

5. WITNESS FEES.

Advocate—Experts—Parties.] — An advocate duly admitted to practice, but whose name is not upon the roll, has the right, nevertheless, when he is cafied as a witness and his title of advocate ziven to him upon the subpœna, to be considered an advocate, and upon taxation a professional witness fee will be allowed—2. If witnesses sweat that they had in a cause the quality of experts and such dechration is not contradicted, expert witness fees will be taxed.—3. The manager of a company, party to the cause, is to be regarded as an ordinary witness if called as such, and a witness fee will be allowed on taxiton. Canada Industrial Co. v. Kensington Land Co., 3 Que. P. R. 379.

COSTS.

Allowance by trial Judge-Revision --Special expense.1 -- The Court has no power to revise the transition of a witness made in open Court at the trial; counsel must then urge their objection, and, if required, seek the remedies available as to judgments of the Court.-2. If a party wishes to recover special expenses incurred in counection with a suft transition after judgment is not the proper proceeding therefor. Buchan v, Montreal Bridge Co. 5 Que, P. R. 337.

Experts—Damages.]---The plaintiff cannot tax as part of the costs of an action the fees of experts called to prove his clain; witness fees in respect of such experts may be taxed, reserving to the plaintiff the right to claim as part of his damages the fees which he has paid. Crawford v. City of Montred, 19 Que. 8. C. 323.

False affidavit of increase-Tazation Setting axide certificate - Affidavit Information and belief -- Refusal to make affidavit - Compulsory examination.]-The English practice requiring proof of actual payment of winess fees as a condition pre-cedent to their being allowed on taxation of costs, should be followed. Where on an affidavit that witness fees have been actually paid they are allowed on taxation without objection on the ground of falsity of the affidavit, the proper mode of attacking the allowance is by an application by way of motion to the Court, and not by way of review of the taxation. On such an application, an affidavit of information and belief, stating the grounds thereof, is sufficient foundation for a motion to set aside the certificate of taxation and refer it back to the taxing officer to ascertain whether or not at the time of the taxation the witness fees in question had in fact been paid. There is authority under Rule 297 of the Judicature Ordinance (C. O. 1898, c. 21) to order a person who has refused to make an affidavit to attend for examination under oath. Grindle v. Gillman, 4 Terr L. R. 180.

Female witnesses.]—Witness fees may be taxed in respect of women who are witnesses, at the same rates as men. Heraey v. Chapman, 6 Que. P. R. 319.

Parties.]--A witness subpensed but not called by the party who has subpensed him cannot be allowed for on taxation against the opposite party without his consent.--2. A party called as a witness is regarded as an ordinary witness and has the right to tax a fee for himself. Royal Electric Co. v. Dupéré, 19 Que. S. C. 29.

Revision — Commissioner — Foreign commission — Fee charged.] — Taxation of witness fees will be revised on petition to a Judge, if good ground is shewn.—2. There Revision.]—Where it is admitted that a witness complained of the insufficiency of the amount of his taxation, and it is established that he was examined as an expert, he is entitled to have his taxation revised after judgment rendered, and this with costs against the party who subpenead him, although judgment was in favour of such party. Guinea v. Campbell, 22 Que S. C. 282.

Revision — Professional person.]—The taxation of a witness by the prothonolary is subject to revision by the Judge in the same way as the taxation of costa.-2. A professional man (e.g., a member of theBar), not called as an expert witness, isonly entitled to $1 a day and express.Gardner v. Marchildon, 5 Que. P. R. 323:

Taxation—Adjournment.] — Where one party asks the postponement of the trial of the cause because he is not ready to proceed, the opposite party has the right to tax witness fees for himself as an ordinary witness. Gagnon V. Simard, 2 Que, P. R. 365.

Taxation—Briefing cridence — Witnesses not called—Con. Rule 1776.]—In an action for libel the plaintiff, not having pleaded justification, before the trial gave a notice, under Rule 488, of his intention to adduce, in mitigation of damages, evidence of the circumstances under which the libel was published. To meet such evidence the plaintiff had brought a number of witnesses to the trial, but the evidence was not admitted, and the witnesses were not called in reply:—Held, that by implication from Con. Rule 1176, or by analogy to the practice therein prescribed, the cosits of procuring the attendance of these witnesses and the briefing of their evidence, etc., should be allowed on taxation of the plaintiff's costs against the defendant. Ludlow v. Irwin, 12 O. L. R. 43, 7 O. W. R. 730.

Taxation — Foreign witness — Employce of party to action — Party as witness, — $1,000, with $510 for expenses, allowed as witness fees for a Dominion land surveyor, a necessary foreign witness, who came from the Yukon to give evidence at the trial of this action at Sandwich, involving absence from home for 51 days.—The Court refused to allow a similar sum to another witness from the Yukon, who was in the employ of the party litigant calling him; only $630, in: 1

Imployee less. owed as urveyor, me from trial of absence : refused witness mploy of $630, inchaive of expenses, being allowed in his case. —When a party to an action is a necessary and material witness on his own behalf, he is entitled, if the taxing officer is satisfied of such fact, to tax for himself the same witness fees as if he were not a party, but the taxing officer can take no notice of abortive attempts to bring the case to trial. Boyle v. Rothachild, 16 O. L. R. 424, 11 O. W. R. 648.

Taration — Parties — Postponement of trial.) — The law allows the parties to an action to be witnesses, but ordinarily their fees as witnesses cannot be taxed against the opposite party. However, if one of them obtains a postponement of the trial because he is not ready, the other may tax fees for himself as an ordinary witness. Gagnon v. Simard, 16 Que. S. C. 336.

Taxation — Party discretion—Residence abroad.] — The Court has a discretion to allow on taxation of costs witness fees for a party who testifies on his own behalf. However, if the witness lives outside of the province of Quebec, a larger sum will not be taged for witness fees than a foreign commission to examine him would have cost. Kent y, Young, 8 Que, P. R. 235.

Taxation - Party - Manager of company-Notice-Waiver.]-Witness fees cannot be taxed in respect of the manager of a company party to the action unless he is subponned as a witness by the adverse party. ---2. When a witness has not been allowed for at the time of the trial, he should not be afterwards except upon notice to the party calling him and the adverse party, the latter being interested, especially in the case of a witness who comes from abroad, in keeping down the costs which are charged upon him by the result of the taxation .--- 3. A witness who is a party to the action is regarded as having renounced his fees if he does not demand them until after judgment rendered against the opposite party. Vive Camera Co. v. Hogg, 2 Que. P. R. 423.

Taration — Taration equivalent to judgment for witness — Revision.] — The taxation of a witness being equivalent to a judgment on which he is entitled to sue out execution, a Judge in Chambers has no authority to revise or reduce such taxation after final judgment. Jouwin v. Bonhomme, 8 Que. P. R. 349.

Taxation — Witnesses in attendance for several days waiting for trial — Witnesses in attendance but not called—Discretion of taxing officer—Appeal. Campbell v. Menard, 11 O. W. 424.

Taxation of — Counsel fees—Delay at trial. John Abell Co. v. Long. 1 W. L. R. 24.

Taxation of -Effect of -Action for.]--The inxation of a witness fee in a causeis equivalent to a judgment in favour of thewitness, and such judgment may be enforcedagainst the party who has subpermed thewitness. A fresh action does not lie to recover the amount; the witness has simplyto issue an execution. Paradis v. Labbé, 4Que. P. R. 415.

Taxation of --Execution for --Action by witness.]--A witness, whose witness fees have been taxed in an action, has, according to Art. 336, C. P., the right to an execution for the amount taxed against the party who subpensed him, but he has not the right to bring an action for such amount. Paradis v. Labbé, 21 Que, S. C. 211.

Taxation of — Motion to revise.] — The taxation of a witness being, under Art. 326, C. C. P., equivalent to a judgment on which he is entitled to sue out execution, the Court has no authority to revise or reduce such taxation. Lessard v. Meunier, 20 Que. S. C. 337.

Taxation of—Payment—Affidavit of increase — Travelling expenses — Railway passes. Kerr v. Canadian Construction Co., 5 O. W. R. 168.

Taxation of -- Plaintiff coming from abroad to give evidence-Travelling expenses - Subsistence money - Plaintiff remaining after trial.] - Appeal by defendants from taxation by the deputy clerk of the Crown at Hamilton of plaintiff's costs of the action, in respect of the allowance of plaintiff's travelling expenses from England to To-ronto to attend the trial for the purpose of giving evidence on her own behalf and in returning to England, and of the further allowance to her of subsistence money at the rate of $1.25 a day, from 24th September, 1904, to 9th April, 1905, during which time the plaintiff remained in Ontario, so as to be here to give evidence at a new trial, should it be so ordered by the Divisional Court. Appeal allowed as to the travelling expenses of plaintiff in coming from England to give her evidence on her own behalf and of returning to England, and the per diem allowance for the time necessarily occupied in doing so, but not for subsistence money after the trial, as there would have been no difficulty in her returning to Toronto in time for the new trial if one had been ordered. Tattersall v. People's Life Assurance Co., 6 O. W. R. 284, 10 O. L. R. 537. See also 5 O. W. R. 307, 6 O. W. R. 756, 9 O. L. R.

Taxation of — Revision.]—The taxation of a witness constitutes a judgment in his favour which entitles him to execution against either of the parties; it is copied in the bill of costs, but not taxed with it, and cannot be revised on a motion for the taxation of the bill without notice to the witness. Campeau v. Ottave, Fire Ins. Co., 4 Que. P. R. 197, followed. Mogana v. Grand Trank Ruo. Co., 4 Que. P. R. 348, 21 Que. S. C. 72.

when delivered claimed $3,000.—Held, that when an action has been so transferred, the plaintiff can extend his claim beyond the sum he originally claimed in the County Court. Thurston v. Tattersall, 20 C. L. T. 251, 7 B. C. L. R. 160.

Action transferred to Supreme Court —Order—Time of effect—Notice of trial,— An order transferring an action from a County Court to the Supreme Court takes effect as soon as pronounced; and a notice of trial in the Supreme Court, served after the pronouncing of a transferring order but before entry, is regular. Parrot v. Cheales, S. W. L. R. 404, 13 B. C. R. 445.

Attachment of debts-Summons.]-A garnishee summons in a County Court may be issued based on a default summons as well as on an ordinary summons. Jocett v. Watts, 24 C, L. T. 36, 10 B. C. R. 172.

Connty Court Judge — Jurisdiction — Appeal from decision of Court of Revision— Municipal Clauses Act, s. 137 — "County Court Judge having jurisdiction within the municipality"—Judge of another Court acting in absence and at request of regular Judge—Assumption of jurisdiction—Remedy against — Appeal — Prohibition — Costa, Re Slocan & Can. Pac, Rw. Co., 9 W. L. R. 582.

Equitable jurisdiction — Action for rest-Void lease.]—It is part of the equitalle jurisdiction of the Court to enforce pyrment of rent when the lease is void, and when the value of such lease, if valid, would reced $2,500, a Courty Court has no jurisdiction. B. C. Board of Trade Building issoc, r. Tupper, S B. C. R. 291.

Jurisdiction—Discovery — Oral examination.]—A County Court Judge has no jurisdiction to grant an order for an oral examination for discovery except in the case of a failure to answer interrogatories. Roberts v. Fraser, 22 C. L. T. 438, 9 B. C. R. 296.

Jurisdiction — Prohibition — Appeal— Judge acting outside his county — Persona designata—Municipal Clauses Act s. 137.]— The Judge of the County Court mentioned in s. 137 of the Municipal Clauses Act is persona designata, and the authority conferred upon him by said section may not be exercised by the Judge of another County Court acting on his request and in his absence.— The remedy of an aggrieved party in such a case is by application for prohibition, and not by way of appeal. Slocan v. Can. Pac. Ru, Oo., 14 B. C. R. 112, 9 W. L. R. 583.

Practice — Amendment of pleadings — Counterclaim—Withdraval or abandonment to bring action in Supreme Court—Discontinuance — Discretion.]—In a County Court action to recover a balance of moneys due under a mining agreement, the defendant filed a dispute note containing a counterclaim setting up breaches of the covenants and conditions of the agreement, and asking for damages. Subsequently the defendant intimated his desire to amend the dispute note and counterclaim, as he had drawn them harriedly in order to file them for the next sittings of the Court. The plaintiff consented, and stated that, as the dispute note and counterclaim raised new issues which he could not plead as a counterclaim, he wished to amend. The defendant agreed, on condition that he could file an amended defence and counterclaim, but subsequently, on the same day, further intimated that the action ought to be transferred to the Supreme Court, and asked the plaintiff to consent to such transfer. The plaintiff declined, and the defendant forwarded the dispute note, omitting the counterclaim, for which at the same time he issued a writ in the Supreme Court, and sent to the plaintiff a discontinuance of the counterclaim in the County Court. The plaintiff replied that it was on account of the counterclaim that he had amended the plaint and added to the claim a claim for damages. At the trial in the County Court the defendant moved for leave to withdraw the counterclaim, stated he was not prepared to offer any evidence in support of it, and produced the correspondence. The motion was dismissed :- Held, that the trial Judge was wrong in that: (1) there was no counterclaim before him to deal with; (2) that the arrangement arrived at was the ordinary consent to amend pleadings as the solicitor may be advised, and that the essence of such an arrangement is that the parties are to begin de novo; (3) that the defendant had the right, if he choose, to discontinue the counterclaim and select his own forum; (4) that the proper course, in the circumstances, was that each party should withdraw the amended pleadings and that each should be left to his rights as they existed before the pleadings were delivered .- Per Martin, J., (dissenting) :- Since the counterclaim was originally properly on the files, it was incumbent upon the defendant to shew that it had been got rid of either by the method provided by the Rules or by consent. Halpin v. Fowler (No. 1), 5 W. L. R. 222, 12 B. C. R. 441.

Practice—Setting aside judgment—New trial.]—A County Court Judge has no power to grant a new trial merely because he is dissatisfied with the verdict; he is to be guided in granting a new trial by the same principles as the full Court:—Held, on the facts, that there was evidence to support the verdict, and a new trial should not have been granted. Hutching v. B. C. Copper Co., 23 C. L. T. 340, 9 B. C. R. 535.

Right of Crown to choose forum.]— It is a prerogative right of the Crown to bring a suit in a County Court, even though as between subject and subject such Court would not be open by reason of the defendant not residing or the cause of action not residing within the territory of such Court. Rex V, Campbell, S B. C. R. 208.

Stay of proceedings—Mining jurisdiction—Prohibition:] — On an application for prohibition:—Heid, allowing the application, that s, 34 of the County Courts Act, which provides, inter alia, that if in any action of tort the plaintiff shall claim over $250, and the defendant objects to the action being tried in the County Court, and gives certain security, the proceedings in the County Court shall be strued, applies to proceedings in the Territorial jurisdiction-Judgment by default - Application to set aside and for leave to defend-Waiver. |-In a plaint in the County Court of Yale, it appeared that the defendants resided in Vancouver, outside the county of Yale, and the plaintiff's claim was described as being "against the defendants as makers of a promissory note for $179.12 dated 12th March, 1902, payable two months after date." Judgment for the plain-tiff was signed in default of a dispute note, but afterwards the defendants filed a dispute note (what it contained was not shewn), and applied to the Judge to have the judgment set aside and for leave to defend on the merits. On the hearing of the application it appeared that the Court had jurisdiction, as the note sued on was produced on affidavit, and it shewed on its face that it was made and payable within the county of Yale :--Hold, that County Court process should shew jurisdiction on its face, but the defendants, by filing the dispute note, and applying for leave to defend on the merits, had walved their right to object to the jurisdiction. Beaton v. Sjolander, 23 C. L. T. 161, 9 B. C. R. 439.

2. BRITISH COLUMBIA - SMALL DEBTS COURTS.

Jurisdiction — Judgment debtor—Committal — Notice of motion — Solicitor — Waiver, I—A notice by a judgment creditor's solicitor of an application to a magistrate of a Small Debts Court for an order to commit a judgment debtor because of failure to pay instalments ordered to be paid on the return of a judgment summons, is a nullity. —A judgment debtor by appearing pursuant to such notice does not waive his right to object at any stage. Re Wasstock, 9 B. C. R. 433.

Jurisdiction—Order for committal—Action for damages for brack of contract — Prohibition—Objection not taken at trial— Appeal launched but not perfected—Want of jurisdiction not appearing on face of proceedings—Manifestation by affidavil.]—Action for damages for breach of an agreement brought in above Court. Judgment for plaintiff. The defendant launched an appeal but abandoned R. Want of jurisdiction being manifest prohibition must go prohibiling the enforcement of a committal order. Re Simpson v. Widrig (1910), 12 W. L. R. 643, 15 B. C. R. 5.

Jurisdiction of — Debt — Mechanics' liea. I—Appeal to the County Court of Atlin from a decision of a magistrate In a Small Debts Court in favour of the plaintiff in an action to enforce a mechanics' lien, under ss. 26 and 27 of the Mechanics' lien Act.— Held, that an action to enforce a mechanics' lien is not one of debt within the meaning of s. 2 of the Small Debts Act. Appeal allowed, Dillon v. Sinclair, 20 C. L. T. 428, 7 B. C. L. R. 328.

3. BRITISH COLUMBIA-SUPREME COURT.

Full Court-Motion for judgment-Reference by trial Judge.]—At the conclusion of the trial of an action for damages for personal injuries, the trial Judge did not see fit to enter any judgment on the findings of the jury, but left the parties to move the full Court as they might be advised. Both parties accordingly moved the full Court for judgment, the arguments being confined to the question of the liability of the defendant company.—Held, per Walkem, Drake, and Irving, JJ. that the full Court is an appellate Court and has no jurisdiction to hear a motion for judgment on the findings of a jury referred to it by a trial Judge. For Martin, J. dissenting:, that, as the question of jurisdiction was not raised by coursel nor by the Court, the case should be dealt with on its merits, and that judgment should be entered in favour of the defendant company. McKeleep v. Le Rois Mining Co., 22 C. L. T. 42, 8. B. C. R. 208.

Full Conrt—Place of sitting.] — Held, Drake, J., dissenting, that special sittings of the full Court may be held either at Victoria or Vancouver to hear appeals in actions, irrespectively of where the writs of summons were issued. Yale Hotel Co. v. Vancouver, Victoria, & Eastern Rw. & Navigation Co., Grand Forks & Keitte River Rw. Co. v. Vancouver, Victoria & Eastern Rw. & Navigation Co., 9 B. C. R. 66.

Rule nisi to quash conviction — Forum.]—The full Court will not hear a motion for a rule nisi to quash a conviction: the motion should be made to a single Judge. Res v. Tanghe, 24 C. L. T. 198, 10 B. C. R. 297.

Supreme Court of British Columbia has jurisdiction to grant a decree of divorce between persons domiciled in that province, and such jurisdiction may be exercised by a single Judge of that Court. Sharpe V. Sharpe (1877), 1 B. C. R. 25, and Sheppard V. Sheppard (1908), 1 B. C. R. .486, approved. Judgment of Clement, J., reversed. Watte V. Watte, C. R. [1908] A. C. 511.

4. MANITOBA-COUNTY COURTS.

Dispute note — Amendment — Statute of Limitations—New trial—Costs.]—The defondant, having instructed his solicitor to prepare and file a dispute note in a County Court action, setting up the Statute of Limitations and the plea of never indebted, which the solicitor neglected to file in proper time, himself prepared and filed within the time allowed another dispute note, setting up simply the plea of never indebted. At the trial the County Court Judge struck out the dispute note filed too late, refused to allow the other one to be amended, and entered a verdiet for the plaintifi:—Held, that the dispute note filed too late was irregular, and was properly struck out, but that an amedment of the other dispute note, raising the Statute of Limitations, and a new trial, should be allowed, in the circumstances, upon the defendant paying all costs to date in the Court below, except those of issuing and serving the writ, and the costs of the appeal, within 10 days after taxation; otherwise that the appeal should be discussed with costs and the judgment allowed to stand. Lachapelle v. Lemay, 6 W. L. R. 718, 17 Man. L. R. 161.

Jurisdiction—County Courts Act. R. S. M. 1992 c. 38, s. 7.3—Conferring jurisdiction by agreement of parties.]—It is not competent to the parties to a contract to agree to confer jurisdiction upon the County Court of any judicial division other than the one in which, under s. 73 of the County Court Act, R. S. M. 1902 c. 38, any action arising out of a breach of the contract may be brought, and, if such an action is brought in any other County Court, the Judge should refuse to try it on the ground of want of jurisdiction.—Farguharson v. Morgan, [1894] 1 Q. B. 552, followed.—This decision applies only to Courts courts the statute and not to Courts of original jurisdiction or to the rights of parties to agree as to the jurisdiction of such last named Courts. Manitoba Windmill Co. v. Vigier, 18 Man. L. R. 427, 10 W. L. R. 350.

Jurisdiction-County Courts Act, ss. 60 (d), 61 - Injunction-Attachment of debts Fraudulent conveyance - Trustee.] Under the County Courts Act, R. S. M. 1902, c. 38, a County Court has no jurisdic tion to make an order in garnishee proceed-ings attaching and prohibiting the payment over of moneys owing or accruing due from the garnishee to a person other than the primary debtor, upon the allegation that such moneys would, when paid over, be held by such other person in trust for the debtor in consequence of some transaction alleged to be fraudulent and void as against the creditors of the debtor, or to make an order for the trial of an issue to determine whether such moneys were an asset of the debtor or not. Donohue v. Hull, 24 S. C. R. 683, fol-lowed. Adams v. Montgomery, 18 Man. L. R. 22.

Jurisdiction-Title to land-Gravel on highway-Municipal corporations - Costs.] -1. A claim of a municipality for damages for the taking by a railway company of sand and gravel from alleged highways and allowances for roads in the municipality, not in its actual possession or occupation, if disputed, raises a question of the title to a corporeal hereditament within the meaning of s. 59 of the County Courts Act, R. S. M. c. 33, and the jurisdiction of the County Court to adjudicate on such claim is ousted when such a question of title is bona fide raised, notwithstanding the provisions of ss. 615 and 644 of the Municipal Act, R. S. M. c. 100, giving the right of possession of such roads to the municipality and power to pass by-laws for preserving or selling timber, trees, stone, or gravel on any of such roads .--- 2 Under the enactments substituted for s. 315 of the County Courts Act by 59 V. c. 3, s. 2, an appeal to this Court judge on the decision of a County Court Judge on the ques-tion of jurisdiction as well as from all other decisions in actions in which the amount in question is $20 or more. Fair v. McCrow, 31 U. C. R. 599, and Portman v. Patterson, 21 U. C. R. 237, followed,—3. Although the action in the County Court failed for want of jurisdiction, the plaintiff should be ordered to pay the cosis of it under s. 1 of c. 5 of 1 Edw, VII. and also the costs of the appeal. Louise v. Can. Par. Rv. Co., 22 C. L. T. 124, 14 Man. L. R. 124.

Promissory notes — Action on—Failure of plaintiffs to prove presentment—Non-presentment not alleged in dispute note.]—Although a promissory note is payable at a particular place, it is not necessary, in an action upon it in a County Court, to allege presentment at that place in the particulars of claim, or to prove presentment at the trial, unless the defendant has expressly set up non-presentment in his dispute note. Teaque v. Scoular, S. W. L. R. 199, 17 Man. L. R. 593.

Territorial jurisdiction — Judicial districts and divisions—County Courts Act —Order of County Court Judge quashing license — Situation of licensed premises — Liquer License Act (Jan.), s. 19—Certiorari.]—An hotel license was sought for premises in township 12 in Rapid City County Court Judicial Division. This township is not in the Northern Judicial District:— Held, that the Judge of that district has jurisdiction only in that part of the division which lies in his district. He therefore had no jurisdiction to quash above license. Re Somerville (1910), 12 W. L. R. 633.

Transfer of action to King's Bench -Jurisdiction-Order of County Court Judge -Refusal of previous application by King's Bench Judge — Counterclaim-Amount involeed--King's Bench Act. s. 30.]—The jurisdiction to transfer a cause from a County Court to the Court of King's Bench arises only where the defence or counterclaim of the defendant involves matters beyond the jurisdiction of the County Court: King's Bench Act. s. 90. Doll v. Howard, 11 Man. L. R. 21, distinguished. A Judge of the Court of King's Bench having refused to make an order of transfer, a County Court Judge, the cause being in essentially the same condition, should not entertain an application for the same purpose. An action for $227.45 money had and received, with a counterclaim for $485. is within th jurisdiction of the County Court. Order of Locke, Co. C.J., reversed. Emerson v. Forrester (1910), 13 W. L. R. 250.

Application to review judgment— Time for applying—Afidaeii—Notary public —Instituting — Leckes—Jurisation.]—An afidavit taken out of the province by a notary public may be read on an application for review under C. S. N. B. 1903 c. 122, s. 6.— Afidavits on review should not be initiuled in any Court, but if initiuled in a Court, the initiuling may be treated as surplusage.—The order for hearing of a review need not be made within thirty days from the date of the certificate of the return. It is sufficient if the application for the order is made within thirty days from the receipt by the applicant of the copy of the proceedings.—The thirty days allowed by s. 6, c. 122, to apply for review of a judgment in a civil cause tried in any inferior Court, after obtaining a copy and minute of the proceedings, does not apply only to a copy obtained under an order of a Judge of the Supreme or County Court, but to tany copy applied for and furnished by the trial justice under the section. Lunt v, Kennedy, 2 E. L. R. 205, 37 N. B. R. 629.

Fees - Control over, by city council -ing applied to the commissioner of the City Court of Moncton for a summons, was refused unless he first paid the fee for the issuing thereof. Relying upon a recommendation in a report of the finance committee of the city council of the said city, which was received and adopted by the council. G. then moved in Court for a rule nisi calling upon the commissioner to shew cause why a mandamus should not issue to compel him to issue the summons without the fee being paid or tendered in advance. The recommendation was as follows: "Your committee would recommend that hereafter any and all claims within the jurisdiction of said Court may be sued and judgment therein taken without the payment of costs in advance, but that the same be retained out of the first moneys col-lected on the judgment:"—Held, that, as the commissioner was an appointee and servant of the Crown, and in no way responsible to the city or under its direction or control, it could not by resolution create any duty or obligation upon the commissioner to issue the summons without the fee therefor being prepaid .--- 2. That the report and its adoption amounted to nothing more than a recommendation to the commissioner, which he was at liberty to act upon or not according to his discretion. Ex p. Grant. 35 N. B. R. 45.

Judgment of-Estoppel by-Review by County Court-Action against bail - Jurisdiction of Surreme Court-Relief of bail 1-The Supreme Court has jurisdiction to try an action against bail given in a cause originat-ing in an inferior Court, and has power to give such relief to the ball as justice may require. The former practice of the King's Bench in England of refusing to try such actions and of compelling them to be brought in the inferior Court has never been followed in this province.-The judgment of an in-ferior Court is not conclusive as between the parties and their privies upon the question of jurisdiction; therefore, where an action was brought in the Supreme Court against bail given in a cause, which had been commenced and tried in the City Court of Saint John, and the defendant by plea denied the jurisdiction of that Court, and at the trial gave evidence in support of his plea :--Held. that the defendant was not estopped by the judgment of the City Court from offering such proof, and that, as the plaintiff had chosen to rely entirely upon the estoppel, he must fail. The fact that the judgment relied upon by way of estoppel had been affirmed upon review by a County Court Judge made no difference. Jack v. Bonnell, 35 N. B. R.

County Court Judge—Order on Review from City Court_Courtorari,]--If an ordior made by a County Court Judge on Review from a City Court is manifestly wrong, it will be set aside on certiorari, notwithstanding that the Judge had jurisdiction. Res v. Forbes, Ex p. Bramhall, 36 N. B. R. 353.

Jurisdiction—Excessive demand—Deduction.]—The plaintiff in an action in a County Court, where the particulars shew a demand beyond the jurisdiction, may bring the amount within the jurisdiction by proof of payments. Patterson V. Larsen, 37 N. B. R. 28.

Jury-Questions -- Verdict -- Supreme Coart Act. --Section 158 of 00 V. c. 24 (New Brunswick Supreme Coart Act), providing that the Judge, instead of directing the jury to give either a general or special verdict, may submit questions of fact and enter a verdict on the questions answered, applies to the County Coarts. Read V. Mc-Givney, 36 N. B. R. 513.

Jurg—Questions left—Verdict — Duty of Judga, J—Section 158 of the Supreme Court Act, N. B., 60 V, c. 24, authorising the Judge on the trial of a cause to direct the jury to answer questions submitted, and enter a verdict on the answers given, applies to County Courts. When this course is adopted, it is the Judge's duty to enter the verdict for the party in whose favour the questions are answered. Steeves v. Dryden, 35 N. B. R. 555.

Motion to set aside verdict—Grounds — Appeal—Nonsuit.]—On a motion against a verdict in a County Court, it is not necessary to serve a statement of the grounds of the motion and the authorities relied upon.— The Supreme Court, on appeal, may order a nonsuit to be entered, though no leave has been reserved at the trial. Miller v. Gunter, 36 N. B. R. 330.

New trial—Damages—Consent to reduction.]—The power of ordering a new trial, unless the plaintiff consents to a reduction of the damages, is vested in the Judges of the County Courts under s. 68 of the County Courts Act. Vanbuskirk v. Vanuart, 36 N. B. R. 422.

Review from Justice's Court-*Tecri*torial jurisdiction.]—A Judge of a County Court has jurisdiction to hear a case on review from a Justice's Court though the case was tried in a county for which he is not the County Court Judge. Res. v. Wilson, Ex p. Irving, 35 N. B. R. 461, explained and commented upon. Ex p. Graves, 35 N. B. R. 587.

Application to review judgment-Certiorari-Rule nisi-Time - Delay-Affdavit - Jurisdiction - Order for review.]-The Court refused to discharge a rule nisi to quash an order for review removed by certiorari granted in term under the rules of Michaelmas term, 1899, on objection that it did not direct within what time and upon whom the rule and affidavits upon which it was granted should be served; McLeod, J., dissenting :- If an application for review of a judgment in a civil cause tried in an inferior Court be made more than thirty days after judgment, the reviewing Judge may, in the exercise of his discretion, require an explanation of the delay, but such explanation is not essential to jurisdiction to hear the merits; and affidavits explaining the delay may be received at any time during the hearing: per Tuck, C.J., Hanington, Landry, and McLeod, JJ.: Gregory, J., dissenting.-Per Gregory, J., that the reviewing Judge has no jurisdiction to grant the order for hearing unless the delay is explained at the time the application for the order is made, and affidavits can not be received at a later stage to support jurisdiction .- An order for review setting aside a verdict for the plaintiff and directing that unless the plaintiff bring the cause down to another trial within two months, the verdict entered for the plaintiff be reversed, is a proper order and within the power of the reviewing Judge under the statute: per Tuck, C.J., Hanington, Landry, and McLeod, J.J.; Gregory, J., dissenting. Res v. Wilson, Ex p. Burns, 2 E. L. R. 442, 97 N. D. B. 2000 37 N. B. R. 650.

9. NEW BRUNSWICK-PROBATE COURT.

Powers of Judge — Order for sale of land to pay debts—Administration of estate —Accounts — Deficiency of personality—Ascertainment—Appeal—Status of appellant— Order extending time.]—A Judge of Probate is not warranted in granting a license to sell real estate to pay debts, unless he is judicially satisfied by proof, and finds the amount of the personality and the amount of the debts, and thus ascertains what the deficiency is. A hald adjudication that there is a deficiency based on a list of attested accounts, and the evidence of the pelitioner that they were filed against the estatic, is not sufficient. A party aggrieved by a decree of a Judge of Probate may appeal therefrom, although he did not appear in the Court below. An order extending the time for appeal made cx parte is not a nullity, and, if not set aside, the Court will hear an appeal taken under it. Re Welch, 36 N. B. R. C28.

10. NEW BRUNSWICK-SMALL DEBTS COURT.

Review — A fidarit — Agent of party— Amount incolled — Forum for review—Finality of order.]—The affidavit that substantial justice has not been done, made on review proceedings from a judgment of the Small Debts Court of Fredericton, may be made by the attorney or agent of the party reviewing under 45 V. c. 15, s. 1. There is no authority under C. S. N. B. c. 60, or amending Acts, to review the finding of a justice or the jury on a question of fact where the amount involved in the suit does not exceed $40 in debt and 88 in tort. The Judges of the Supreme and County Courts are of co-ordinate jurisdiction in matters of review under c. 60, and orders made within their authority are final. Rex v. Wilson, Ex p. M-Goldrick, 36 N. B. R. 339.

11. NORTH-WEST TERRITORIES - SUPREME COURT.

Admiralty jurisdiction — Marilime lien.] — The Supreme Court of the North-West Territories has concurrent jurisdiction with the Exchequer Court of Canada in Admiralty matters, inasmuch as the Court of Chancery in England had on the 15th July, 1870, concurrent jurisdiction with the Court of Admiralty. Kelly v. Alaska Mining & Trading Co., 4 Terr. L. R. 18.

Certiorari—Where returnable—Motion ta quash conviction—Forum.]—Held, following Regina v. Beemer, 15 O. R. 260, that a single Judge has no jurisdiction to hear and determine a motion to quash a conviction upon a writ of certiorari; and that such writs must be issued from the office of the Registrar and be made returnable before the Court en bane. Regina v. Smith, 1 Terr. L. R. 189. But see now the new section substituted for s. 52 of the N.-W. T. Act, by 54 & 55 V. c. 22, s. 7.

12. NOVA SCOTIA-COUNTY COURTS.

Court of record.]-County Court Judge's Criminal Court is a Court of Record for trial of certain criminal offences, and the Judge thereof for all purposes and proceedings connected therewith and relating thereto, has all the powers of a Court of Record, and a prisoner who elects to be tried before such Court submits himself not to the particular Judge but to the County Court Judge's Criminal Court, which Court does not lose jurisdiction over him until he is tried for the offence for which he is committed .- The mere fact that the Judge of the Court is not present on the day fixed for the trial cannot possibly affect the jurisdiction of the Court. which arises and continues by reason of the prisoner's election to be there tried .- The fixing of a particular day for the trial has nothing to do with giving jurisdiction; it is simply a matter of procedure of a directory character. The fact that the Judge has named a day for the trial, and does not then try the prisoner as intended, in no way prevents or limits his power to fix another day Vents or mains ins power to in a more say on which the trial takes place. The B. N. A. Act, s. 92, s.s. 14; R. S. N. S., c. 157, s. 2, Crim. Code 1892, ss. 753-781; R. S. C., c. 146, Part XVIII., ss. 824, 827. R. v. Steeart, 43 N. S. R. 353, 6 E. L. R. 564, 15 Can. Cr. Cas. 331.

Judge-Substitute — Authority.]-Johnston, Co.J., of District No. I, being unable through illness to attend to his judicial duties, designated Savary, Co.J., of another district, to act in his place and stead, under s. 12 of c. 9 of the Nova Sectia statutes of 1889, which empowers a Judge, when unable to act by reason of illness, etc., to call in and designate any other Gounty Judge, and provides that "such Judge co such same power as the regular Judge of such Court would otherwise have had." Savary, Co.J., heard the application in this case, and reserved his decision. Johnston, Co.J., died, and after his death Savary, Co.J., gave judgment granting the application: -Held, that he had power to do so. In re Gough, 21 C. L. T. 92.

Jurisdiction — Scamari's wages—Statutory remedy.]—Section 52 of c. 74, R. S. C., which enacts that any seaman may sue in a County Court for wages not exceeding $200, does not impair the seaman's common law right of recovery, and does not, by implication, take away the jurisdiction given by the County Court Act.—The statutory remedy is cumulative, not exclusive. Beattie v. Johanneen, 28 N. B. R. 26, distinguished. Eisenhauer v. Ernst. 40 N. S. R. 420.

Transfer of metits-Insufficiency.] — Afildavit of merits-Insufficiency.] — The plaintiff, upon afildavit of his own, made application for the transfer of the cause from a County Court to the Supreme Court. As to the merits he simply stated that he and a good cause of action on the merits, without setting forth the facts upon which he based his action:-Meld, that the requirements of s. 43 of the County Courts Act, R. S. N. S. c. 156, were not complied with, and the application must be dismissed with costs. Sproule v. Ross, 21 C. L. T. 395.

13. NOVA SCOTIA-DIVORCE COURT.

Jurisdiction - Restitution of conjugal rights-Alimony-Court of Appeal-Quorum -Amendment - Powers of provincial legis-lature-Statute.] - The Court for Divorce and Matrimonial Causes in Nova Scotia has jurisdiction in respect to a suit for the restitution of conjugal rights, and can order alimony for the wife pendente lite .-- An amendment altering the quorum of the Court of Appeal, making it unnecessary for the Judge Ordinary to sit as a member, is within the jurisdiction of the provincial legislature .- Such intention is clear from reading the Act, as originally printed (Acts of 1866, e. 13, s. 6), and as reprinted in the appendix to the Revised Statutes (4th series), c. 126, appendix A. King v. King, 37 N. S. R. 204.

14. NOVA SCOTIA-JUSTICES' COURTS.

Summons for service in another county-Travelling expenses of defendant-Certificate of justice-Certiorari.]-A writ of summons issued by a justice of the peace in one county for service in another contained a certificate of the justice "that the money is deposited with me to pay travelling fees of the defendant to the place of trial." On application to a Judge for a writ of certiorari to remove a judgment entered against the defendant in default of appearance, it was held that if this was not a substantial compliance with the statute, the defendant should not have ignored the summons, and the application must be dismissed .-- On appeal the Court was equally divided, and the appeal was dismissed without costs. Re Cameron, 2 E. L. R. 365, 41 N. S. R. 457.

Territorial jurisdiction — Appeal to County Court—Dismissal of action—Remedy —Certiorari.]—In an action to recover a small sum in a magistrate's Court, the defendant appeared and contended that the justice had no jurisdiction, inasmuch as the cause of action arose and the defendant resided and was served in another county than that in which the justice was sitting. Judgment having been given in the plaintiff's fayour, the defendant appealed to a County Court, the Judge of which dismissed the appeal, on the ground that, as the justice had no jurisdiction to try the case, the Judge of the County Court had none to hear the appeal, and that the proper remedy was by certiorari :--- Held, that, as the Judge of the County Court had jurisdiction to take evi-dence to establish the question of jurisdiction. he had jurisdiction to determine that the action ought to have been dismissed, and should have given judgment accordingly. Jurisdiction - Gift - Determination as to-Parties - Evidence-Administration.] In settling an estate in the Probate Court the Judge, at the instance of next of kin of deceased, undertook to dispose of the sum of $1,000 which the administrator-a brother of deceased-contended has been given him by deceased, two years before her death, as a gift for his two sons. Evidence was tendered by the administrator to shew that the money had been invested for the two boys, by paying off a mortgage, and that the fact of the investment had been communicated to the donees :- Held, that the Judge had power to hear and consider evidence at any time before making his final decree, and that he was wrong in refusing to receive the evidence tendered. Per Townshend and Ritchie, JJ., that the Judge went beyond his jurisdiction in dealing with and deciding the question of gift or no gift, where the rights of third parties had intervened who were not before him, and to compel the appearance of whom he had no process; and his decree must be set aside. In re Ralston Estate, 2 Thom. 195, and In re McNutt Estate, 24 N. S. R. 264, distinguished. Per Graham, E.J., and Weatherbe, J., that the administrator's two sons being necessary parties to any litigation to determine whether the amount in controversy belonged to them or not, and the Court of Probate having no jurisdiction over them under the statute relating to that Court, the appeal should be allowed with costs, and the consideration of the accounts adjourned until the ownership of the money was decided in a proper action. Re Wheelock, 33 N. S. R. 357.

Jurisdiction - Order for sale of land to pay deficiencies in legacies-Laches-Statute of Limitations-Executor-Assignce for creditors - Status - " Person interested.]"-Testator, who died in 1872. by his last will directed the residue of his property, consisting of certain real estate enumerated, to be appraised and sold, and the proceeds divided equally between his two daughters, I. and E., and directed that if said property when sold, should not realise the sum of $2,000, the difference should be made up from property devised by a previous clause of the will to his son J. H. R., who was named, with two others, since dead as an executor. Portions of the properties referred to were sold and the proceeds paid over to the daughters, leaving a balance due in each case. In December, 1902, J. H. R. made an assignment, under the provisions of the Assignments Act, to F., and in April, 1903, he applied to the Judge of Probate for a license to sell the real estate devised to himself, and covered by the assignment, for the purpose of paying the legates, I, and E., the balances due them :---Held, per Townshend, J., that it was not competent for the Judge of Probate to make the order applied for, more especially after the rights of third parties had intervened, the executor having power to sell under the terms of the will, and it being open to the legatees, in case of his refusal, to compel him by suit in equity to do so; also that the executor could not be permitted. after the property had passed out of his possession, to set up the rights of the legatees in opposition to his own deed ; that the rights of the legatees would not be affected by any transfer made by him, but the transferee would take the same right which he himself possessed, including the right to set up the Statute of Limitations as a bar to the legatees' right of recovery; also that, as, at the time the application was made, J. H. R. was not a trustee in possession, but had conveyed to F., who was in possession, he was not within the exception in s. 26 of R. S. N. S. c. 167, of the limitation of actions; also that, in the absence of anything in the terms of the will vesting the property in J. H. R. 0.8 a trustee upon an express trust, and there being merely a charge on the share of the estate given to him, and no payment within 20 years, the legatees were barred from resorting to the land in question ; also that the legatees, having allowed a period of 30 years to elapse without taking steps to enforce their claims, were guilty of laches, and must be assumed to have acquiesced in the mode been for the assignee to have commenced suit in the Supreme Court to restrain the sale, but that he was a " person interested within the meaning of the Act, and, as such, entitled to be heard on the application in the Probate Court :- Held, per Russell, J., concurring, that J. H. R. was "a person interested," within the meaning of the statute; that the facts stated shewed the sale applied for to be unnecessary; that there are no words in s. 43 restricting the inquiry as to the necessity for the sale to the circumstances mentioned in s. 42; and that the terms in which the jurisdiction of the Court is defined should not be narrowly construed. Jurisdiction-Recovery of land - Mortages - Injunction - High Court action-Multiplicity.] — The plaintiffs, being mort-gagees of land, issued out of the District Court for the district in which the land was situated a writ of summons indorsed with a claim to "recover possession" of the land, "and for an order that the defendants do forthwith deliver up possession" thereof, de-scribing the land :--Held, that the indorsement was one under Con. Rule 138, and that it was for "the recovery of land situate in the district," within the meaning of R. S. O, 1897 c. 109, s. 9, s. s. 2 (d) — Independent Order of Foresters v. Pegg, 19 P. R. 80, dis-tinguished.—The fact that the plaintiffs had also brought an action in the High Court for a declaration of right in regard to the same land, in which they might have claimed the same relief as in the other action, was not a ground for enjoining the plaintiffs from pro-Coeding in the District Court. Jurisdiction — Title to land—Value of land in question—Trespass confined to small portion. Fortier v. Chenier, 12 O. W. R. 5.

Jurisdiction of Judges — Local Judges of High Court-Vendors and Purchasers Act -Costs.]—Held, that the Judges of the District Courts appointed under the provisions of R. 8. 0. c. 100 are Judges of the High Court for the purposes of their jurisdiction in actions in the High Court, and may be styled "local Judges of the High Court," but that nowhere in any statute or Rule is any power or authority given to such Judges to deal with applications under the Vendors and Purchasers Act, or under the Land Titles Act; and, therefore, in this case the Judge making an order under the Acts had acted without jurisdiction.—An appeal was allowed, but, as the proceedings were taken on the consent of both parties, no costs were awarded. 18. ONTARIO-DIVISION COURTS.

Action against executors de son tort -Ascertainment of amount involved-Jurisdiction-Declaration of representation-Prohibition.]-Motion by defendants for prohibi-tion to a Division Court. The action was brought against defendants as executors de son tort, to recover the amount of $165.97 on an account rendered, and damages against defendants for wrongfully interfering with and selling and otherwise converting the chattels and effects of the deceased :--Held, that the defendants had so intermeddled with the estate of deceased, as to render them liable as executors de son tort, although acting with good intent and at the request of the widow of the deceased. The amount sued for brings the case within the enlarged jurisdiction of the Division Courts under R. S. O. 1897 c. 60, s. 72, and a question arises under s.-s. (d), "Where the amount, or original s.-s. (d), "Where the amount, or original amount of the claim, is ascertained by the signature of the defendant or of the person whom, as executor or administrator, the defendant represents:" - Held, defendants could not represent deceased until they had been declared by the Court to be executors. It is not the intention of the statute that in one and the same proceeding the declaration is to be made which alone could make a defendant liable, and before that point is reached defendant is not to be clothed in advance with the representative character so as to confer jurisdiction on the Court to make the declaration and pronounce the judgment against him. and was ordered to pay $15 a month. Default having occurred, he was again brought before the Judge on a shew cause summons and committed to gaol for twenty days :-Held, that it was to be assumed, in the absence of evidence to the contrary, that there had been a finding on proper evidence of the existence of the conditions justifying the making of an order of committal; and that prohibition would not lie. Judgment of Anglin, J., 3 O. W. R. 725, affirmed. Per Meredith, C.J.—" Ability to pay," in s.-s. 5 of s. 247 of the Division Courts Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 60, covers the case of a dishonest debtor who can by working earn the means to pay the debt, and contumaciously refuses to do anything. Per Anglin, J .- An order for committal is not made as punishment for disobedience of a specific order for payment and in the nature of a committal for contempt, but is granted as a punishment of the fraudulent conduct of the debtor in having fraudulent conduct of the design in backing refused or neglected to pay the judgment debt, though having had the meaus and ability to pay. It is therefore not necessary before a committal order can be made that there should be an order on after-judgment summons and disobedience of that order. The judgment itself is sufficient foundation for the order to commit. Re Kay v. Storry, 24 C. L. T. 313, 8 O. L. R. 45, 3 O. W. R. 784.

Assignments and preferences – Declaration of right to rank.]—An action for a declaration of the right to rank against an insolvent cetate vested in an assignce under the Assignments Act, R. S. Attachment of debts - Interest of debtor under will - Residuary legatee.]-A primary creditor in a Division Court, by garnishee summons served on the executors, attached the interest of the primary debtor, as residuary legatee, in the estate of a testator who had died within a year of the attach-A receiver was subsequently in a ment. High Court action appointed to receive his interest. The Judge in the Division Court gave judgment against the garnishee, and an application for a new trial by the gamishee, on the ground that such interest was not attachable, was dismissed, but on an appeal to a Divisional Court :--Held, that the residuary legatee's interest was not such a debt as could be attached; and the garnishees were discharged. Garnishee resident out of province-" Carrying on business " in province-Person transacting business as agent for another-Garnishee submitting to jurisdiction-Assig-nee of fund garnished intervening-Status of intervener.]-Appeal by primary creditors in a garnishee matter from order and judgment of the presiding Judge determining that the garnishee, R. A. Newman, who resided in Detroit, Michigan, but was alleged to carry on business at Windsor, Ontario, was not subject to be made a party to garnishee proceedings. The garnishee's wife owned in her own right property in the county of Essex, some of which was rented. The garnishee acted as agent for his wife in managing her property, and he employed a soli-citor practising in Windsor to collect rents and superintend repairs, make leases, etc. The garnishee entered into a contract in his own name, with the primary debtor for the building by the latter of a house on the property of the garnishee's wife, upon which $667.09 remained due to the primary debtor. The latter was indebted to a number of persons. The solicitor before mentioned, as solicitor for all these creditors, except one Mc-Kee, took garnishee proceedings under s. 190 of the Division Courts Act, and accepted service for Newman, the garnishee. McKee (a creditor having an equitable assignment of the debt from the primary debtor) intervened and contested the right to take these proceedings, on the ground that Newman neither resided nor carried on business within the jurisdiction of the 7th Division Court. The garnishee by his attorney admitted that he carried on business in the said county, and he voluntarily submitted to the jurisdiction of the Court. He also admitted that he was indebted to the primary debtor in a certain sum, and he was willing to abide by the decision of the Judge of the Court :-- Held, per Britton, J., and Falconbridge, C.J., reversing the trial Judge, that McKee had failed to shew "any just cause why the debt sought to be garnished should not be paid over or applied in or towards the satisfaction of the claim of the primary creditor." Appeal al-lowed with costs. Street, J., dissenting. Nelson v, Lenz, 6 O. W. R. 21, 9 O. L. R. 50.

Jurisdiction-Amount over $100 - Extrinsic evidence - Promissory note - Indorser.]-Motion by plaintiffs for an order in the nature of a mandamus to the junior Judge of a County Court to compel him to try an action in a Division Court. The action was brought against the endorser of a promissory note to recover the amount of the note, which was more than $100 :-- Held (5 O. W. R. 420), that extrinsic evidence would have to be given by plaintiffs to enable them to succeed upon their claim, namely, evidence of dishonour and notice, and that, therefore, the amount sued for (being over $100) was not ascertained by the signature of defendant within the meaning of s, 72 of the Division Courts Act, as amended by 4 Edw. VII. c. 12, 1 (O.). Motion refused. Appeal by plaintiffs on grounds that the amending Act is merely a legislative declaration in favour of the narrower interpretation theretofore placed upon s. 72, and that it was not the intention of the legislature to take away the jurisdiction of the Division Court, unless it was necessary for plaintiffs to give evidence of the kind pointed out in Kreutziger v. -The defendant gave two notes for $75 and $62 respectively on a form which contained an undertaking to give further security, and in the event of default in giving the security that the notes might be treated as due. The plaintiffs demanded further security, and, not receiving any, brought an action on the notes before the time mentioned in them for their maturity had expired :--Held, that, notwithstanding the plaintiff had to prove a breach of the undertaking to give security before he could recover on the notes, the Division Court had jurisdiction to entertain the action. The plaintiffs had no security for their claim :-- Held, that the remedy upon the promissory note in ques tion was not extinguished, and the plaintiffs could sue in a Division Court for the amount of it as a separate cause of action, giving credit for a proportionate part of the dividend paid, without offending against the provisions of s. 79 of the Division Courts Act, R. The plaintiff claimed $212 for wages, and gave credit for payments thereon, suing for a balance of $58. The defendant, by counterclaim, alleged a large account of $744.58, and claimed a balance in his favour of more than $100. The Judge entered a nonsuit after hearing the evidence of one witness, who dis closed the nature of the account:--Held that the Judge at the trial having found that the evidence given shewed that the case was beyond the jurisdiction of a Division Court. and ruled that further evidence should not be given, and the plaintiff having submitted to this and a judgment of non-suit, with costs, having been entered, and the plaintiff having moved to set aside the nonsuit and for a new trial, which motion was refused, an application for a mandamus did not lie. Regina v. Judge of Southampton County Court. 65 L. N. S. 320, distinguished. That the plaintiff had no right of appeal in this case under the Division Courts Act might be a defect of legislation, but it did not enlarge the remedy by mandamus :--Held, also, following Williemson v. Bryans, 12 C. P. 275, that mandamus does not lie where there is nothing pending before the Court below. Re Rateliffe v. Crescent Hill Timber Co., 21 C. L. T. 234, 1 O. L. R. 331.

O. 1897, c. 60, which provides that an action may be brought in a Division Court, notwithstanding that the residence of the defendant is out of the province, applies as well to foreigners as to British subjects. No practice being provided therefor by that Act, by s. 312, the practice of the High Court ander Con, Rules 103 and 312 is to apply. At the hearing the garnishee appeared by his agent, and raised no objection to the jurisdiction. The debtor disputed the creditor's claim, and the jurisdiction, and the Judge on the latter ground refused to proceed :-Held, that the Judge was right. The principle upon which a defendant in an action who is not subject to the jurisdiction confers it by appearing. has no application to a garnishee proceeding under the Division Courts Act. Such a proceeding is a species of execution designed to enable a creditor to reach property of his debtor not exigible in the ordinary way, and from the nature of the thing it is to be expected that it would be confined to cases where the garnishee is resident in Ontario or might be sued therein; and, moreover, the language of the Act clearly confines the right to that class of case. COURTS.

Motion for immediate judgment ---Service with summons - Time-Holidays-Enlargement-Waiver.]-A special summons issued out of a Division Court was served on Friday the 8th November, returnable on the following Tuesday, the 12th, and with it was served a notice of motion for immediate judgment, also returnable on the 12th :--Held, that the notice was properly served, for there is nothing in s. 116 of the Division Courts Act, R. S. O. 1897, c. 60, which requires that, before such notice is given, the time for the filing of a dispute notice should have first expired :--Held, also, that there was two clear days' notice of the motion, for the King's birthday and Sunday, which intervened, would not be excluded. Con. Rule 343, whereby, where the time is less than six days, Sundays and holidays must be excepted, does not apply to Division Courts, and no similar provision is contained in the Division Courts Act or Rules; but, in any event, the objection was cured by an enlargement procured by the defendants on the return day until the next day, which had the effect of giving the defendants two clear days irrespective of such holiday. Quare, whether an order made upon a motion of which two clear days' notice had not been given, would be valid. Re McKay v. Talbot, 22 C. L. T. 115, 3 O. L. R. 256.

New trial—Order for—Jurisdiction—Application for judgment treated as if for new trial—Prohibition. Follett v. Sacco, 11 O. W. R. 377.

New trial — Time for moving.]—Where at the sittings of a Division Court a case was "adjourned for plaintiff on payment of costs within ten days, otherwise judgment for the defendant:"—Held, that the two weeks within which a motion could be made for a new trial (costs not being paid) did not commence to run until the expiration of the ten days, for until then there was no judgment. Thompson v. McRae, 20 C. L. T. 277, 31 O. R. 674.

Order for committal—Previous order for payment—Affidarit, —The plaintiff recovered judgment against the defendant in a Division Court action for a debt contracted before 61 V. c. 15 (O.), and the defendant was at the hearing ordered to pay the amount of the judgment forthwith:—Held, that the Court had jurisdiction under s.-s. 5 of s. 247 of the Division Courts Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 60, upon examination of the defendant on an after-judgment summons, to make an order for her committal without a previous order for payment based upon such an examination and default thereunder. Where it appears that the judgment debtor has been examined before the Judge, his order for committal must, on a motion for prohibition, be treated as a complete adjudication as to that which must be made to appear to warrant the making of an order under s.-s. 5 of s. Semble, that if the affidavit of the 247. plaintiff required by s. 243 to be filed before the issue of the summons were not filed, it would not be open to the defendant, after appearing in obedience to the summons, to raise an objection to the jurisdiction on that ground; and, the defect not appearing on the face of the proceedings, prohibition would not be granted. Re Hawkins v. Batzold, 21 C. L. T. 579, 22 C. L. T. 14, 2 O. L. R. 704.

Order for committal of judgment debtor — Paver to rescind—Division Courts Act. s. 257—Mandamus.]—A Judge of a Division Court has no power, under any of the provisions of the Division Courts Act. or otherwise, to rescind an order made by him, under s. 247 of the Act, committing a judgment debtor to gaol, on the ground that it appeared to the Judge that the debtor had incurred the debt for which judgment had been recovered by means of fraud.—A mandamus to the Judge to har an appliction to rescind was refused. Re Wilson v. Durham, 18 O. L. R. 232, 13 O. W. R. 7c2.

Power to amend-Evidence-Renewal note obtained by fraud of principal makerjoined in making a promissory note, as payees, plaintiffs knew, for accommodation of his co-maker. When it became due, the latter brought a renewal note, purporting to be signed by defendant, which payees accepted, and gave up the original note stamped "paid." Primary debtor becoming insolvent and dying, and plaintiffs failing to get payment of the renewal note out of his estate, they sued defendant upon it, in a Division Court, where there was a trial by jury. Defendant swore he never signed the renewal note, but, nevertheless, there was a verdict for plaintiffs. A new trial was then granted, resulting in a verdict for defend-ant. A further new trial then being granted. the Judge allowed plaintiffs to claim in the alternative upon the original note, as well as claiming upon the renewal note, and to amend their claim accordingly. Jury then returned a verdict for plaintiffs on original note. Defendant applied for a new trial, which was refused, and he then appealed.---Held, that the Division Court Judge had Wirksdietion to amend plaintiffs' claim, under Rule 4 of Division Courts, Matthews v. Marsh, 23 C. L. T. 154, 5 O. L. R. 540, 2 O. W. R. 247.

under a lease, another action was brought for three months' subsequent rent, whereupon the defendant applied for an order in the nature of a certiorari, which was refused, on the ground that though the case might be of importance as affecting cases of a similar nature, that was not of itself sufficient ground for removing the action into the High Court, no dificult questions of law or fact appearing to be involved.—On appeal the judgment was affirmed, the Court holding that the granting of the order was in the discretion of the Division Court in the first action the matter was rea judicata, Re Fraser V, Oberdorjer, 20 C. Right to jnry—Claim—Counterclaim— Amount—Prohibition.]—The plaintiff sued in a Division Court for $14 for rent; and the defendant, besides filing a dispute notice, counterclaimed for $60 damages for tort, and asked for a jury, but the County Court Judge refused to place the case on the list for trial by jury. On an application for prohibition:—Heid, that the filing of the counterclaim did not entitle the defendant to have the plaintiff's claim tried by a jury; but s. 160 of the Division Courts Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 60, did entitle him to that right in respect to his counterclaim; and prohibition as to the latter was directed to issue, subject to the right of the Judge to order that the counterclaim be the subject of an imdependent action under Division Court Rule 198. Re Fraser v. Ham, 24 C. L. T. 233, 7 O. L. R. 440, 3 O. W. R. 447.

School board-Notice of meeting - Terminating contract with school master-Salary.]—The plaintiff was the master of a public school. The contract between him and the school board gave either party the right to terminate it on one month's notice There were eight members of the school board, and at a meeting on the 19th February a resolution was passed instructing the secretary to notify the plaintiff that the contract between him and the board should cease on the 31st March, which he accordingly did. The notice of the meeting given to the members of the board did not state that the matter of determining the plaintiff's contract was to be considered, and some of the members had no knowledge of this fact, nor had the plaintiff any knowledge or notice of the meeting. Only six members of the board at-tended the meeting, of whom four voted in favour of the resolution, and two against it: -Held, that the above resolution and notice to the plaintiff in pursuance of it was not a fair or proper exercise of the power and op-tion to determine the plaintiff's contract contained in it, and the agreement- with the plaintiff was not terminated thereby. The plaintiff brought this action under the above circumstances, claiming a balance of salary, and had recovered judgment for 8132.03:— Held, that the matters of difference between the parties fell within R. S. O, c. 292, s. 77, s.-s. 7, and a Division Court had jurisdiction. Greenless v. Picton Public School Board, 21 C. L. T. 520, 2 O. L. R. 387.

Service of summons—Right of plaintiff to serve—Right of balliff — Mandamus to cierk.] — Plaintiff moved for mandamus to compel a Division Court clerk to deliver the summons and copy to the plaintiff instead of the balliff of the Court, to have it served. Motion refused (6 0, W, R, 146) on grounds that plaintiff had no such right in a Division Court case as is accorded to plaintiffs in the High Court and County Courts. Appeal by plaintiff from above order dismissed with costs. Wilson v, McGinnis, 6 0, W, R, 397, 10 0, L, R, 98.

Territorial jurisdiction—Acceptance of goods—Cause of action—Statute of Frauds— Prohibition.]—In an action for $45, the price of a coat ordered by the defendant in Toronto to be made and sent by the plantifi to him at Belleville by express —Held, that the plaintiff must prove as part or his case an acceptance of the coat at Belleville, and that certain letters written by him at Belleville to the plaintiff at Toronto, while evidence from which acceptance might be inferred, were not the acceptance itself; and, as the plaintiff failed to prove this, the whole cause of action did not arise at Toronto, within the jurisdiction of the Division Court in which the plaint was brought. —Prohibition ordered. Territorial jurisdiction—Cause of action—Elooding land—Erection of dam—Prohibition.]—In a Division Court netion the plaintiff's claim was for damages for injuries caused to his lands, which were situate within the limits of the division in the Court of which his action was entered, by reason of their having been overflowed and his crops damaged by waters alleged to have been unlawfully brought by the defendants to and cast upon his lands. The backing of the water was alleged to have been caused by a dam which the defendants had erected on their own lands, situate beyond the limits of such Court:—Held, that the erection of the dam was part of the cause of action, and therefore the whole cause of action did not arise within the jurisdiction of the Division Court in which the action was brought; and

19. ONTARIO - DIVISIONAL COURT.

Arbitration Act—Divisional Court — Single Judge—Proper forum—Special case— "Opinion',"—" Final decision,"]—A single Judge has no jurisdiction to pronounce the opinion of the Court upon a special case stated by arbitrators pursuant to s. 41 of the Arbitration Act, R. S. O. 1897, c. 62. The effect of cl. (a) of s.s. 1 of s. 67 of the Judicature Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 51, and of Rule 117, is to require that such a case be heard before a Divisional Court, as being a proceeding directed by statute to be taken before the Court and in which the decision of the Court is final. "The opinion of the Court" is a "decision." though not a binding adjudication as to the rights of parties or a decision amounting to a judgment or order; and it is a "final decision" because it is the end of the proceeding and cannot be reviewed by an appellate Court. application under s. 34 of the Surrogate Courts Act to remove a cause from a Surrogate Court into the High Court, the importance of the case and its nature are not to be tried on counter-affidavits; it is enough if it appears from the nature of the contest and the magnitude of the estate that the higher Court should be the forum of trial. Much is left to the discretion of the High Court Judge as to the disposal of each application. -And where the contest was over the will of a widow, whose husband died in 1905, leaving to her an estate valued at over $27,000. which had shrunk at her death in 1907 to $5,850, and the allegation was that she had not been able to protect herself against the undue influence of the chief beneficiaries, her two sous, to whom it was said a large part of her husband's estate had been transferred in her lifetime-an order was made for the removal of the cause into the High Court. Application to remove cause into High Court-Will-undue influence-Want of testameniary capacity — Special circumstances, Re Graham v. Graham, 11 O. W. R. 700.

Grant of administration—Applications in different Courts.]—Where applications for letters of administration to the estate of a deceased person are made in more than one Surrogate Court, preference will be given to that made by the person nearest in the order in which administration is usually granted; and in this case jurisdiction to proceed was conferred on the Surrogate Court in which application was made by the mother of the intestate, against that on behalf of creditors, in another county. Re Tougher, 22 C, L. T. 98, 3 O, L, R. 144.

Guardian—Passing accounts — Interest.] —There is no authority in the Judge of a Surrogate Court to pass the accounts of a guardian of an infant appointed by such Court. Section 18 of 63 V. c. 17 (O.) does not apply, such guardian not being a trustee within the meaning of the section:—Held, also, that, under the circumstances of this case, six per cent. interest was a fair rate to charge the guardian on the moneys in his hands. Murdy v. Barr, 21 C. L. T. 526, 2 O. L. R. 310.

Jurisdiction — 5 Edw, VII. c. 14 (O.) —Passing accounts — Finding of Judge — Rea judicata — Action to recover amounts found due from legatee under will—Retention pending application for leave to appeal from order of Surrogate Court—Successful appeal—Trial judgment—Costs. Union Trust Co. v. Bensley, 12 O. W. R. 336, 1069.

Jurisdiction—Reopening order made on passing executors' accounts—Fraud or mistake—Rule 642 — Persona designata.]—A Surrogate Judge acting as the Surrogate Court has inherent jurisdiction to set aside an order which he has been induced to make by fraud of the applicant; and also to set aside or vary an order which he has made by mistake, though not to correct errors made in the judicial determination by him of any question; thus in this case it was held that he had jurisdiction to vacate an order made by himself upon the taking of executors' accounts and to reopen the accounts and further investigate them without reference to the order made .- The acts of the Surrogate Judge in passing accounts of executors are those of the Court and not of the Judge as persona designata,-Consolidated Rule 642. which substitutes a proceeding by petition for the practice of filing certain kinds of bills abolished by the General Order of 1853, does not apply to a petition to a Surrogate Judge to vacate an order made by him on the passing of executors' accounts, but must be confined to cases in which under the former practice such relief as is mentioned in it could be obtained by one or other of such bills. In re Wilson and Toronto General Trusts Corporation, 8 O. W. R. 677, 13 O. L. R. 82.

Passing accounts — Executors and administrators—Trustee — Creditor's claim — Surrogate Courts Act, R. S. O. 1897 c. 59, s. 72—5 Edue, VII. c. 14 (O.) I—A Surrozate Court Judge on passing the accounts of an executor, administrator, or trustee, under the provisions of s. 72 of the Surrozute Courts Act, as amended by 5 Edw. VII. c. 14 (O.), has no jurisdiction to call upon a creditor of the estate to prove his claim and to adjudicate upon that claim and allow it or har it. If, however, the executor, administrator, or trustee, has in good faith paid the claim of a creditor before bringing in his accounts, the Surrogate Court Judge has jurisdiction to consider the propriety of that payment and to allow or disallow the item in the accounts. — Order of the Surrogate Court of Elgin barring the claim of a creditor set aside as having been unde without jurisdiction. Jurisdiction — Excess.]—When transactions exceed $150 in amount and no balance has been struck and acknowledged, the County Court has no jurisdiction. Dodd y, Gillis (1875), 2 P. E. I. R. 31.

Mandamus - Motion to quash peremptory mandamus.]-O'Neill appeared at Court of Revision, and produced evidence of having paid his poll tax on 4th July, and applied to have his name entered on the voters' list; Alley, Judge of County Court, held that to entitle him to have his name entered, he must shew that he had paid his tax before the 18th June, to bring him within the provisions of the statute which required him to produce evidence that he had paid his tax "for the year immediately preceding the first sitting of the Court," and refused to insert his name in voters' list. Supreme Court granted peremptory mandamus requiring County Court Judge to insert O'Neill's name, Motion to quash mandamus :--- Held. mandamus properly granted. R. v. Alley (1878), 2 P. E. I. R. 263.

23. Quebec Circuit Courts.

Establishment of new Court--Pending proceedings-Opposition.]--Where an action was begun and judgment given in it before the statute of 1853 establishing the new Circuit Court for the district of Montreal, the filing of an opposition to the judgment after that statute should be authorized by a Judge of the New Circuit Court, and not by a Judge of the Superior Court, Kollmeyer v. Donohue, 19 Que. 8, C 65.

Execation to Superior Const.—Pleading.1—An action brought in a Circuit Const. upon promissory notes may be evoked by the plaintiff to the Superior Court when the defendant pleads that those notes were given in part payment of a thing sold by the plaintiff, for over $100, and that the sale is null, the thing sold being defective and valueless. 2, Par. 3 of Art. 1130, C. P., is not limitative, but simply provides for a special case. Tufts v. Dalton, 3 Que, P. R. 523.

Evecation to Superior Court — Practice.]—The Superior Court cannot remit a cause to the Circuit Court merely because the party asking to have it brought up to the Superior Court has not inscribed upon his evocation; the evocation must be unfounded. Barbers' Assoc. of Que, v. Lizotte, 4 Que, P. R. 70, Exclusive jurisdiction — Action for taxes—School taxes.]—In a suit in the Superior Court to recover municipal taxes to an amount exceeding $100, accompanied with a demand for school taxes, a declinatory exception asking the dismissal of that portion of the demand which is for school taxes, on the ground that the Circuit Court has exclusive jurisdiction, will be maintained, notwithstanding Art. 170, C. C. P., it being impossible in such a case to transmit the whole record to the Circuit Court. Dudsneeft v. Que, Central Ric, Co., 19 S. C. R. 116.

Exclusive jurisdiction -Transfer from Superior Court-Amount in question-Landlord and tenant-Repairs - Cancellation of lease-Damages-Costs.]-An action between landlord and tenant in which the tenant demands repairs, or in default the cancellation of the lease, and in either event $12.50 for damages, is of the exclusive competence of the Circuit Court, and the incompetence of the Superior Court being ratione materia, the Court should of its own motion send the cause before the competent tribunal. 2. In this case the action of the plaintiff having been declared ill-founded by the tribunal of first instance, the plaintiff should bear the costs of contestation in the Superior Court as well as the costs of review, although the incompetence of the tribunal was not pleaded. Lafranchise v. Caty, 19 Que. S. C. 185.

Jurisdiction—Action to cancel lease — Remission to Circuit Court.]—An action in which a tenant demands the cancellation of a lease as a rent of $168, and $85 for damages, is of the competence of the Circuit Court, and will be removed to that Court from the Superior Court upon a declinatory exception. Grosbois v. Bienville, 4 Que, P. R. 400.

Jurisdiction - Amount in controversy -Addition of taxed costs-Subsequent costs -Fi, fa, lands-Scizure and sale-Hypothecary creditor.]-The Circuit Court sitting at Montreal cannot prosecute, against immovables, the execution of its judgment for a sum not exceeding $40, and the want of jurisdiction in that respect is absolute and material. 2. The taxed costs of the action allowed by the judgment may be added to the amount recovered so as to make up the sum exceeding $40; but subsequent costs, that is, costs of a fi, fa, goods, or the expense of such a writ, or the expense of an execution on growing crops, or the expense of a return of nulla bona, may not be added. 3. The clerk of the Circuit Court, in such a case, has no authcrity to issue a fi. fa. lands, and such a writ is therefore void. 4. The seizure and sale of the defendant's immovables, in virtue of such a writ, are void. 5. An hypothecary creditor of the execution debtor, who has had no knowledge of the seizure or sale, and who is prejudiced by it, has a right to obtain, by petition, the avoidance of the sale and setting aside of the writ. Masson v. Danserreau, 18 Que. S. C. 141.

Jurisdiction — Cancellation of lease — Damages.]—An action for cancellation of a lease and for $85 damages is of the exclusive competence of the Circuit Court. Yon v. Vallée, 17 Que. S. C. 446, 2 Que. P. R. 562.

Jurisdiction - Single commissioner -Amount in controversy-Date of judgment-Reference to arbitration.]-A judgment of the Court of Commissioners will not be removed upon certiorari upon the ground that the single Commissioner who heard the case rendered the judgment in his own name instead of in that of the Court .-- 2. The Court of Commissioners has jurisdiction to adjudicate upon a demand for division of wood, where the value of the wood does not exceed $25.-3. Neglect to date a judgment is not sufficient to invalidate it, where the date appears elsewhere,---4, The Court of Commissioners can itself, and without exceeding its powers, refer a cause to arbitration. Auger v. Lamoureux, 2 Que. P. R 527.

Jurisdiction of Superior Court - Prohibition.]—There is no such Court as the Circuit Court of the District of . . . ; but there is a Circuit Court for the province of Quebec, of which sittings are held in all the districts and counties by Judges of the Superior Court.—A Judge of the Superior Court, whether sitting in Court or in Chambers, has no power to order the issue of a writ of prohibition to a Judge of the same Court to restrain him, while sitting in the Circuit Court, from proceeding with any suit or action in that Court, Palliser v. Terrebonae Circuit Court, 28 Que, S. C. 66,

Removal of cause from—A mount in controversy—Future rights.]—An action to recover an alimentary pension of $2.25 a week, for 47 weeks, may be removed from the Circuit Court to the Superior Court, the Judement to be rendered in such action being one which will affect the future rights of the parties. Roach v, Duggan, 4 Que, P. R. 289.

T for the recovery of benefits from a charitable association by one of its members may be removed to the Superior Court, such action having an effect on the future rights and interests of the plaintiff, and deciding for the future his status as a member of the association. Gagn v. Victoriaville Society of St. John Baptist, 4 Que. P. K. 382.

Removal of cause from-Jurisdiction of Court - Rescission of lease - Future rights, 1-There may be evocation when a Circuit Court is competent. If it was not competent, there would be no ground for evocation, but for declination. 2. An action by which the plaintiff claims the rescission of a lease, and $99 for damages and rent due, is within the competence of the Circuit Court. 3. Where the lease is of a flour mill, and a saw mill, and the rent is to be paid half out of the products of the mills, and the lease has still three years to run, and it appears in the action that the half of the products which belongs to the defendant for the three years yet to run represents the value of more than $100, the defendant has the right to have the case removed to the Superior Court, inasmuch as his future rights in question are of greater value than $100. Morneau v. Verret, 20 Que, S. C. 399.

Territorial jurisdiction] — A Commissioners' Court sitting at Longueuil cannot take cognizance of a suit begun against a person residing in the city of Montreal, where he is served, the Circuit Court at Montreal having sole jurisdiction in such a case. Lapointe v. Viger, 17 Que. S. C. 376, 3 Que. P. R. 37.

Territorial jurisdiction—Cause of action—Carriers—Transit.]—Where a carrier contracts in Montreal to carry a parcel from Montreal to St. Jerome, the freight to be paid at St. Jerome, and it is alleged that the package has been damaged in transit, the action for damages must be instituted in the district of Montreal, where the cause of action originated, and not in the district of Terrebonne, at St. Jerome, where freight is paid. Petit v. Dominion Express Co., 16 Que. S. C. 434.

Territorial jurisdiction—Cause of action—Promissory note.]—In an action upon a promissory note dated at Montreal, and wade payable at Montreal, although really signed at Quebec, where the defendants have their domicil, the whole cause of action arises in the district where the note is made payable, especially where the arrangement by which the note was given in part payment of an anterior debt was entered into at Montreal. Lievesque v, Roy, 3 Que, P. R. 369.

Territorial jurisdiction—Cause of action—Sale of goods—Exception to jurisdiction —Costs.]—A cause of action for goods sold to the defendant domiciled in the district of Terreboune, by the traveller of the plaintif, authorised by her to receive payment for her goods, less the freight which the defendant pays upon the goods, arises in the district of Terrebonne, and the record should be transmitted upon exception of the jurisdiction of the Circuit Court of the district of Montreal. —2. The fee of the defendant upon an exception to the jurisdiction sustained and transmission of the record ordered, should be that proper to an action dismissed after contestation. Montreal Brewing Co. v. St. Vincent, 2 Que. P. R. 363.

Territorial inriadiction — Defamation —Place where letter received, —An action based upon a letter containing defamatory words sent from the district of Three Rivers to the address of a person living in the district of Arthabaska, where the letter is received and read, may be brought in the latter district. Marcotte v. Thérien, 22 Que. S. C. 315.

Territorial jurisdiction—Place of salc of goods.]—A sale of goods in genere is made at the place where the goods have been weighed, counted, or measured, and an action based on a sale may be begun at the place where such operation has taken place. Gravel v, Durocher, 4 Que P. R. 435.

24. QUEBEC-COURT OF KING'S BENCH.

Quoram of Judges-Judgment – Juriadiction,1-Article 1241 C. P. Q., permits four Judges of the Court of King's Bench, Quebec, to give judgment in a cause heard before five, when the fifth Judge, after hearing the case argued, excused himself as disqualified: Davies and Nesbitt, J.J., contra. Angers V. Mutual Reserve Fund Life Association, 35 S. C. R. 330.

See APPEAL.

25. QUEBEC-INFERIOR COURTS.

Commissioners' Court—Territorial jur-isdiction—Parish—Separation of village.]— A Court of commissioners established in a parish is competent to adjudicate upon causes which arise in a part of the territory subsequently set apart as a town. Bussières v. Bussières, 33 Que. S. C. 292.

District Magistrate's Court is a Court of inferior jurisdiction within the meaning of Art, 1003 C. P. and is subject to the control of the Superior Court. Detormeaux V. St, Therese (1909), 19 Que, K. B. 481.

Jurisdiction — Cesser — Annecation of city—Petition—Recusation against recorder.] —A recorder has no right to himself adjudge and dismiss a petition setting forth grounds of recusation against him.—The plaintiff's action having been instituted after the annexation of the city of Ste. Cunégonde to the city of Montreal, the Recorder's Court of the former city had ceased to exist, and had no jurisdiction over property within the previous limits of the same. Leclair v. Goyette, 8 Que, P. 8, 22.

Jurisdiction — Penalty for offence against municipal by-law.]—See Que. Rw. Light & Power Co. v. Recorder's Court of Quebeo, 41 S. C. R. 145.

Jurisdiction - Salary - Forfeiture -Certiorari.]-The Recorder's Court of the

211. he enof the Suine in ek, lir-

dgone the S9. 80city of Montreal has jurisdiction to entertatin a cause in which salary is claimed, and this although the contract contains clauses providing for forfelture of a certain amount in case of default in execution of the contract. 2. The Superior Court cannot upon certioerri take cognizance of a question of law concerning the retention, as in a case of forfeiture, of a certain part of a salary, the question nuc having been raised before the Recorder's Court. Societ Anonyme des Théatres v. Pouquet, 5 Que. P. R. 248.

Magistrate's Court — Jurialicion — Anaulation of resolution of municipal council—Tavern licenze—Prohibition. —A magistrate's Court has no jurisdiction to annul, on the ground of illegality, a resolution of a municipal council in respect of a tavern license, except in a case in which the council confirms a certificate in violation of the statute 63 V. c. 12; in all other cases the decision of the council is final. Therefore, the judgment of the Court of first instance, refusing a writ of prohibition to a magistrate's Court, was reversed. Ste. Thérése de Blainville v. Cour de Magistrat de Terrebonne et Decormenus, 9 Que, P. R. 408.

Procedure—Commissioner sitting during part of hearing—Married woman defendant— Authorisation.]—Where the husband of a woman separate as to property, helm summoned alone before a Commissioner's Court, appears before that Court and pleads not the want of authorisation, but other grounds of defence, his appearance and plea are equivalent to acts of authorisation of his wife as a party before the Court. 2. A cause which has been completely heard by one Commissioner only, can be adjudged only by him, although a part of the hearing. Rev v. Warren, 25 Que, S. C. 78.

Recorder's Court — Jurialicition—Munipal by-ion—Prosecution—Necessity for notice —Irregular notice—Conviction—Certiorari.] —The by-law of the city of Montreal (No. 318), in respect to plumbers, drahange, etc., is legal and intra circs, being based upon s.s. 56 of 8, 300 of 62 V. c. 58. This by-law does not require that notice of prosecution shall be given to one who violates it; and besides, if notice was necessary and was given irregularly, such irregularity not being in evidence before Recorder's Court, where a conviction under the by-law was made, would not constitute an excess of jurisdiction. O'Brien V. Dupuis, 9 Que, P. R. 439.

Sale of goods — Damages for breach of contract — Compensation — Inscription en droit.] — Mathieu, J., held, that damages which cannot be proved except by a long contradictory enquiry are not to be regarded as clear and liquidated, and a plea opposés en compensation will be dismissed in law. Can. Breveries v. Yasinovsky (1902), 4 Que. P. R. 404.

Sessions of the peace — Jurisdiction— Offence against game laws—Plea of ultra vires—Prohibition.]—A Court of Special Sessions of the Peace has jurisdiction to hear and determine a complaint in respect of an infraction of the Quebec game laws, and the jurisdiction is not ousted by a plea of the defendants that the provincial statute is ultra vires. Prohibition refused. Révillon Bros. v. Pagé, 33 Que, S. C. 259.

26. QUEBEC-SUPERIOR COURT,

Action brought in Circuit Court — Removal to Superior Court—Amount in controversy—Right of appeal.] — There is no ground for removal to the Superior Court in the first instance of actions or suits for amounts of between $100 and $200—in this case the annual payment of a sum of $120 by the defendant to the plaintiff until the marriage of the latter—when these actions may be brought in the Circuit Court with a right of appeal to the Superior Court. Hencoult y, Goulet, 10 Que, P. R. 300.

Case reserved — Verdict of $jury_{i}$] — Held, by Lemieux, J., that the Superior Court in Review has absolute and unrestricted power to judge of the merits of a cause which has been reserved, without regard to the verdict of the jury : Art, 496, C. P. C. Ferguson v, Grand Trunk Rie, Co., 20 Que, 8, C. 54.

Circuit Court-Transfer of action from -Validity of-Inscription.]--When an action is transferred by the Circuit Qourt to the Superior Court under Art. 171, C. P., an inscription for judgment upon the validity of such transfer cannot be had under Art. 1130, C. P., as on an evocation. Westmound School Commissioners v, Mallette, 7 Que. P. R. 43.

Inscription in review—Apped)—Tutors —Authorisation.]—A application for review in an appeal within the meaning of Art. 306, C. C.; and, therefore, an inscription before the Court of Review made by tutors, without the author Join of a Judge or of the prothonotary on the advice of a family council, is illegal and void. Beaumont v. Lamonde, 6 Que. P. R. 6.

Jurisdiction - Action against executor -Domicil of deceased-Place of service.]-An action brought in respect of a succession against a testamentary executor, as such, is of the exclusive competence of the Court of the district where the testator had his domicil at the time of his decease, and cannot be brought in the Court of a district where he chanced to be temporarily at the time of his death. The service on the executor should be made in the district where he has his business office. Article 94, C. P. C., applies to purely personal proceedings as to which the Code contains no special or exceptional provision; the proceedings relating to successions are indicated in Arts. 1362 et seq.; and, therefore, the tribunal of the place of decense and of the place where the property of the succession is situated has, to the exclusion of all others, save in certain cases here inapplicable, jurisdiction over the proceedings. Béchard v. Bernior, 17 Que. S. C. 540.

tion will lie in the Superior Court of this province against an insurance company that has its chief place of business in Ontario, to recover, on a pollcy issued in the province, a loos by itre of property in the United States, but it must be brought in the district where the company has its chief place of business. Buttistice, Traders' Fire Ins. Co., 33 Que-8, C, 411, 9 Que, P. R. 189, 4 E. L. R. 431.

Jurisdiction — Action for negligence — Death of child in another province—Residence of company—Attornment to jurisdiction,]—The father and mother can in their personal names suc the author of their son's death, either under the laws of Manitoba or under the laws of Quebec. The defendants having a place of business in the city of Montreal, having accepted the jurisdiction and pleaded to the merits, the laws of Quebec must be applied when the question involved relates to procedure. Boon v. Can, North. Rw. Co., 7 Que. P. R. 230.

Jurisdiction — Action for rescission of lease—Landlord's lien.]—The Superior Court has jurisdiction to entertain an action by a landlord against a tenant, wherein it is alleged that the tenant has not brought sufficient goods upon the demised premises, and that he has taken away certain goods which were subject to the landlord's lien. Devlin v, Robb, S Que. P. K. 417.

Jurisdiction—Amount in controverse,]— The plaintiff, a member of a club, such the club for a declaration that he was not oblized to pay the club the sum of $25 which the club had imposed upon members for one year only:—Held, that the action was not to be regarded as one for the recovery of $25, and was not within the jurisdiction of the Circuit Court, but was properly brought in the Superior Court. Beaudry v. Club St. Antoine, 2 Que, P. R. 484.

Jurisdiction—Amount in controversy.]— When it may be found necessary to condemn one or the other of the defendants for such a proportion of the sum asked as will exceed $100, and the conclusions are broad enough to justify such a condemnation, the action is properly instituted in the Superior Court. Montreal v, Arnovitch, 7 Que. P. R. 351.

Jurisdiction — Amount involved—Charge on land.]—An action by which an amount less than $100 is chimed, but in which a chim is also made to have certain immovables charged with payment of that sum, and to have the defendant ordered to give up the lands in default of paying the amount, is an action which must be brought in the Superior Court, whatever be the amount chimed, Syndics of Parish of St, Paul y. Suburban Land Co., 6 Que, P. R. 444.

Jurisdiction—Cause of action—Place of hiring—Wrongful dismissal, 1—Where an employee, hired in the province of Ontario to work in the district of Pontiac, alleged that he had been wrongfully discharged in the latter district, and suffered damage from frost bites, etc., while on his way back from the shanties where he had been working, the whole cause of action did not arise in the province of Quebee, Lendry v. Hurdman, 25 Que, S. C. 378.

Jurisdiction—Circuit Court—Amount invalued—Ircaragues of annual settlement.]— A Circuit Court held at the chief town of a district is not connectent to entertain a personal action for $12 for arrearage of an annual settled rent. 2. The Superior Court is connectent to entertain such an action, which may, therefore, originate in a Superior Court. Lebel's, Langlois, 22 Que, S. C. 230.

Jurisdiction — Contract—Sale of goods —Place of making.]—Although offers to purchase goods may be sent by letter or telegram from the province of Ontario, such offers are to be deemed to be made as to the vendor at the place where they are received, and the contract then becomes completed there by their acceptance. Wherefore the Courts of the place of acceptance, which, in this case, was also the place of delivery of the goods, are competent to entertain an action for the recovery of the price of such goods. Timossi v, Palangio, 26 Que S. C. 70.

Jurisdiction — Contract—Where made — Sale of goods by travelling salesman — Mecessity for approval of vendor.] — When goods are sold in the province of Ontario by a commercial traveller, who does not disclose the fact that the sale is subject to the approval of his principal, then the contract of sale is completed there, and no action lies in the district of Montreal, where the principal is living and doing business. Silter V. Hollidey, O que, P. R. 300.

Jurisdiction — Limitations — Stay of czecution—Impossibility of literally obeying judgment.] — The Superior Court being the common law tribunal for suitors, its jurisdiction is not limited except by statute i it has the power and the right to not in a number of cases not provided for by law.—2. A motion for stay of excention of a judgment will be granted where it is physically impossible to do the act ordered by the judgment—in this case to put a roof on a church during the winter senson. Churchwardens of St. Pie de Guire v. Shaucinjan Construction Co., 9 Que, P. R. 153.

Jurisdiction — Motion to declare action not competent—Time—Deposit.]—A motion demanding that it be declared that the Court has no jurisdiction to entertain the action ratione materior, need not be made within the time allowed for preliminary exceptions, nor be necompanied by a certificate stating the deposit in Court of the sum fixed by the rules of practice. Bonin v. Pagé, 9 Que. P R. 177.

Jurisdiction — Objection by defendant —Tribunal to be applied to—Deposit—Dismissal of action.]—A defendant who objects to the jurisdiction of the Court may demand the dismissal of the action before the competent tribunal, if such tribunal exists, He may demand the dismissal of the action upon depositing the amount claimed; but, if he asks for the dismissal of the action without making the deposit, his motion will be declared irregular and dismissed without costs. McKenzie v. Boston & Maine Rw. Co., 9 Que. P. R. 389.

Jurisdiction — Personal action — Amount in controversy—Transfer to Circuit Court.] —Where an action is purely personal, and the amount in controversy is less than $100, the Circuit Court has exclusive jurisdiction; if such an action is brought in the Superior Court, that Court, being absolutely incompetent by reason of the subject matter, will be bound to transfer the action, even mero motu, to the Circuit Court, Coupal y, Beaudoin, 8 Que P, R. 327.

Jurisdiction—Petition to quagh resolutions of municipal council—Liquor License Act—Circuit Court.]—A petition by municipal electors to quash resolutions passed by the municipal council of an incorporated town in regard to a liquor license is of the competence of the Superior Court, and the Circuit Court has no jurisdiction to entertain it, notwithstanding Art. 23 of the Quebec Liquor License Act, as amended by 3 Edw. VII. c. 13, s. 3. Guay v. Mégantie, 9 Que, P. R. 350.

Jurisdiction—Real action—Removal of mill-dam — Damages — Circuit Court.] — An action for $24 damages for injuries caused by a mill-dam, in which the plaintiff asks for a judgment for the removal thereof in default of payment of damages, is a real action, of the exclusive competence of the Superior Court, which cannot be brought in a Circuit Court, Houle v, Ducharme, 8 Que. P. R. 326.

Jurisdiction—Replevin of shares in forcion company—Parties within jurisdiction.]— The Superior Court at Montreal is competent to order a suisie-recendication of shares of the capital stock of a foreign company, when the plaintiff and the defendant, as well as a third person who is detaining the share certificates, are domiciled at Montreal; and the foreign company cannot demand, by declinatory exception, the discharge of the seizure. Kinsela v. Kinsela, 25 Que. S. C. 270, 6 Que. P. R. 137.

Jurisdiction—Rescission of assignment of patent rights — Territory — Domicile — Election, |—The Superior Court sitting at Montreal has jurisdiction to try an action wherein process has been served personally on the defendant within the district, to rescind a contract of assignment of patent rights, on the ground that the patent is vold, although the defendant had elected his domicile at Ottawa when applying for the patent and never had a domicile in the province of Quebec: Patent Act, R. S. C. c. 61, s. 34.— The impeedment of the patent in such a case is made incidentally, and the Court cannot thereby be ousted of its jurisdiction to try the main issue, the rescission of the contract. Judgment in 7 Que. P. R. 330, reversed. Shavinigan Carbide Co., v. Wilson, 15 Oue, K. B. 240, 8 Que. P. R. 1.

Jurisdiction — Reversal of interlocutory judgment—Railway company — Crossings— Damages — Board of Railway Commissioners.]—At the final hearing of a cause, the Court has power to reverse an interlocutory judgment rejecting a declinatory plea, and to dismiss the action for want of jurisdiction.—2. The Superior Court of Quebec hasjurisdiction in actions to compel railway coupanies, within the legislative authority of the Parliament of Canada, to make railway crossings, to pay damages for their neglect to do so, etc., the Railway Act of 1903 having now here taken away such jurisdiction by express words, or necessary implication. Perroult v. Grand Trunk Rw. Co., 14 Que. K. B. 245.

Jurisdiction — Review—Circuit Court— Action en garantic — Principal action — School tazes,1—The Superior Court sitting in review has no jurisdiction over a indzment rendered by the Circuit Court, sitting at Stanstend, in an action of warranty brought by a defendant against whom the principal action is for the recovery of $124 school tazes; and an inscription for review of such a judgment will be struck out on motion. Coaticook School Commissioners v. Conticook Electric & Power Co., 29 Que. S. C. 264.

Jurisdiction — Review of decision of Exchequer Court of Canada—Reference of record to that Court.]—The Superior Court does not possess any superintending, revising, or appellate jurisdiction in respect of the decisions and decrees of the Exchequer Court of Canada, especially when they have been confirmed by the Supreme Court of Canada.—It has no power to refer a record to the Exchequer Court, which is a federal Court. Hodge v, Brigue, 8 One, P. R. 142.

Jurisdiction-Right of habitation-Life interest-Real right-Demand for conversion into money-Circuit Court.]-The right of habitation is a real right, for life or temporary, established for the benefit of an ascertained person, upon land the property in which is another's. One who demands the conversion of the enjoyment of a right of habitation into the payment of a sum of money, and that during his life, exercises a real right; and such demand not being within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Circuit Court, the Superior Court must entertain it in the first instance. Niquette v. Niquette, 10 Oue, P. R. 68.

Jurisdiction—Splitting cause of action— Sale of goods—Parts sold and delivered in different districts.]—Where a part of the goods the price of which is claimed in an action has been sold and delivered in one district, and the remainder in another district, each of the sales gives a separate right of action, and the defendant may be sued in the Court of the place where each of the causes of action arose. Chapman-Dart Co. V. Chevalier, S Que. P. R. 50.

Jurisdiction over foreign defendant —Property in district—Writ of summons— Absence of allegation of such property— Waiver by plea—Examination of defendant —Questions as to property.]—A non-resident defendant may be sued in a district where he owns shares of stock, and against residents of which he has claims, such claims and stocks constituting property in that district within the meaning of Art. 94, C. P., s. 4 .--- 2. Although the plaintiff should regularly, in order to make the jurisdiction of the Court, by reason of the defendant having property in the district, appear on the face of action as instituted, have set forth in the writ of declaration that the defendant had property in the district, yet if the defendant, by his exception, tenders an issue to the plaintiff as to the existence of such pro-perty, by alleging that he does not come under any of the provisions of Art. 94 which would justify the institution of the action before the Court seised therewith, and moreover meets the allegation of the plaintiff's answer, in which it is formally stated that the defendant has property in the district, not by any objection thereto as being made in the answer, but by a denial of its truth, he must be held to have waived any objection based upon the absence of allegation of said fact in the writ or declaration .--- 3. The defendant has no right to object to crossinterrogatories on a commission regatorie, tending to elicit evidence of property of his in the district. McCurry v. Reid, 4 Que. P. R. 261.

Order of judge — Place of making.]— Held, per Blanchet, J., that a notice given to the opposite party of the presentation of a petition to a Judge, elsewhere than at the chief place of the district, and an order made upon such petition, are illegal and void. Connolly v. Stathridge, 4 Que, P. R. 186.

Powers of − Superintending and reforming jurisdiciom-Proceedings before Exchequer Court of Canada. → − The Exchequer Court of Canada is not a Court subject to the superintending and reforming powers of the Superior Court of Quebec. An action in the latter Court to have proceedings had before and judgments rendered by the former Court declared null and void for want of jurisdiction, will not lie. Hodge v. Béique, 33 Que. S. C. 90.

Powers of trial Judge—Reformation and reversal of interlocutory orders.] — See Montreal-Canada Fire Ins. Co. v. Thérien, 34 Oue S. C. 205.

Removal of action from Circuit Coart - Future rights-Amount involced-Right of appeal.]-Even if future rights be involved in an action taken in the Circuit Court for an amount under $100, no evocation of the case to the Superior Court will be allowed if the action has not been instituted in the Circuit Court at the chief place of the district, because the case is then subject to appeal. *Bickford v. Remington-Mar*tin Co., 19 Que, P. R. 354.

Removal of action from Circuit Courte-Future rights.)-Under Art. 55. C. P., an action for $90 begun in the Circuit Court in respect of matters which might affect future rights, cannot be removed to the Superior Court. Roy v. Ferland, 23 Que. S. C. 1, 5 Que. P. R. 188.

Removal of action from Circuit Court — Landlord and tenant — Rental Value.]—A tenant to whose demand his landlord pleads that the rental value of the demised premises is not that alleged in the declaration, cannot have the case removed from the Circuit Court to the Superior Court. Shearer v. Marks, 22 Que. S. C. 472, 5 Que. P. R. 304.

Removal of action from Circuit Court — Motion — Declaration — Future rights.1—There is no ground for removing a cause from the Circuit Court to the Superior Court except in the cases provided for in Art. 49, C. P.—2. When the ground for removal does not appear by the demand, the declaration for removal must allege, and must be accompanied by documents or a deposition establishing prima facie, that the action is removable—3. Removal of a cause is granted only where there are future rights relating to the party who makes the motion for removal. Corporation D' Aqueduc de Richmond v. Johnson, 22 Que. S. C. 65.

Removal of action from Circuit Conrt — Municipal taxes—Appeal—Future rights.]—There is no appeal from a judgment rendered by the Circuit Court in a municipal matter, and, therefore, a defendant, sued for municipal taxes, cannot, even if his defence effect future rights, have the case removed into the Superior Court. Nicolet v. Imperial Oil Co., 5 Que. P. R. 205.

Removal of action from Circuit Court-Nauge of cause.]-A defendant who wishes to have a suit removed into the Superior Court, must do so before filing his defence on the merits. Commissioners of Railways v. Penniston, 5 Que. P. R. 445.

Removal of action from Recorder's Court-Notery-Jeent for sale of land.)--A notary, sued for having acted as agent for the sale of immorables, cannot before the trial demand by rectiorari the removal of the cause from the Recorder's Court of Montreal to the Superior Court, the proof of the agency for the sale of immovables and the nature of the transaction being within the competence of the Recorder's Court, Laliberté v. Montreal, 5 Que, P. R. 305.

Removal of action to — Future rights.] —Where by the judgment sought in an action begun in a Circuit Court the defendant would be compelled to maintain for all time to come, under a hy-law, a road on his property, he has a right to have the action removed into the Superior Court. Parish of St. Martin v. Leblanc, 7 Que. P. R. 367.

Removal of cause into — Action for fine-Practising as advocate.]—A defendant, sued in the Circuit Court by the Bar of Montreal for the recovery of a fine of less then $100 for the illegal exercise of the functions of an advocate, who pleads that he is a member of an association of licensed accountants, and that such association has a triff for legal collections, may have the cause removed to the Superior Court. Bar of Montreal v, Duff. 5 Que. P. R. 125

Removal of cause into — Action for removal—Decision on—Judgment — Inscription.]—A party may proceed to judgment by way of inscription or motion in causes removed into the Superior Court; but if the party wishes to have a decision upon the validity of the removal, it is always necessary to mention it in the inscription or the notice of motion, Roach v, Duggan, 5 Que, P. R. 43.

Removal of cause into—Amount claimed —Mitogrameté — Future rights.] — Where a party claims an amount below $100 for work done to a shed built between his property and that of the owner of adjacent land, the defendant may have the cause removed to the Superior Court, if he alleges that the work has relation to the line of separation between the properties, and that the judgment to be given would affect the future rights of the parties. Perreault v. Chopin, 10 Que, P, R. 102.

Stengeraphers — Appointment—Prothonotary — Interference by Court. 1—The prothonomry of the Superior Court is the person who alone has the choice of stengeraphers to take down the evidence in causes tried before the Superior Court and in apealable causes tried before the Circuit Court, the competence of such stengraphers having been first established by examinations taken before a committee of the Bar named by the district council; and the Court has no jurisdiction to interfere in a matter so purely discretionary, and to order the prothonotary to insert upon his list the name of the stenographer to whom the Bar council has granted a certificate of competence. Perrault v. Twrcotte, 23 Que, 8. C. 436.

Summary action—Principal claim—Addition of subsidiary claim — Jurisdiction — Account — Service — Stay of proceedings — Costs — Motion — Dilatory exception.] —1. Where a principal sum is properly claimed in an action of a summary nature, there may be joined to it the amounts which are only accessories of the principal debt (in this case, the expenses incurred for the registration of a lien for materials) without the action censing to be summary.—2. A copy of the detailed account ought to be served upon the defendant, and no proceedings can be taken before such service.—3. In this case, the costs of a motion only and not those of a dilatory exception were allowed, Légaré v. Tranchemontagne, 10 Que. P. R. 305.

Summary procedure — Action for wages and damages.]—An action for the recovery of wages accompanied by a claim for damages sustained by the plaintiff by the loss of his luggage, which was to have been conveyed by his employers, and for damages sustained by the plaintiff on his return from the delendants' timber limits, may be brought under the summary procedure. Charron v Gillies, 7 Que, P. R. 146.

Territorial jurisdiction—Action against cxceutor—Domicil of testator—Locus of property.]—In an action proper for a Superior Court against an executor en coducité de legs and en reddition de complex, the only Court which has jurisdiction is that of the district in which the domicil of the testator is situated, or that in which his property is situated; the facts that he died in another district and that the process in the COURTS.

Territorial jurisdiction—Action against executor—Place of succession.]—An action against an executor for payment of a legacy and for an account must be begun in the district where the succession was opened and where the property of the deceased is situated. Bélanger v. Paredia, 9 Que, P. R. 371.

Territorial jurisdiction — Action for cancellation of deeds — Miscen-cause—Domicil of parties.]—An action for the cancellation of certain deeds and for an account of the profits made thereunder, in which the inheritor for life is brought in as miscen-cause, that he may be deprived of the possession of the property in question and ordered to furnish security, or to allow the inheritance to be placed in sequestration, is a mixed action, where the inheritor, miscen-cause, is in reality a defendant, and may be launched indifferently in either the district where the defendant or that where the miscen-cause is domiciled. Resther v. Hébert, 7 Que, P. R. S9.

Territorial jurisdiction — Action for moneya advanced to agent.]—An action by a merchant to recover moneys advanced to his commission agent for purchases which were not made, must be brought in the Court of the defendant's domicil, where the contract was completed and the advances made, and where the purchases were to be made. Archambault v. Laroche, 7 Que, P. R. 165.

Territorial jurisdiction — Action for price of goods—Place where order taken by acent—Approval by principal — Completion of contract—Judicial districts.]—If the scope of authority of an arent is limited to the taking of orders subject to his principal's approbation, the contract of sale is complete only at the vendor's domicil; an action for the price of sale of these goods will, therefore, rightfully be taken at such vendor's domicil. Morris v, McDonald, 9 Que. P. R. 67.

Territorial juriadiction — Cause of action — Award — Publication,] — The Superior Court at Montreal cannot entertain an action to enforce an award, although the submission, the hearing, and the pronouncing of the award ware published to the defendants in another district, the whole cause of action in such case not having arisen in the district of Montreal. R. C. Episcopal Corp. of Nicolet v. Paquet, 17 Que, S. C. 447, 3 Que, P. R. 144.

Territorial jurisdiction — Cause of action — Contract — Domicil of defendant.] —The plaintiff sued for damages, alleging that the defendant, who lived in Quebec, had induced him to leave his employment in Montreal to go and work for him in Quebec, and had afterwards refused to employ him in necordance with the terms agreed upon:— Held, that the cause of action did not arise in the district of Montreal, and the defendant must be sued In the district of his domicil. Territorial jurisdiction — Cause of action — Contract — Place of making — Sale of goods—Order taken by agent—Acceptance by wendor.]—When goods are sold through a commercial traveller, whose power as agent of the seller is limited to taking orders from customers subject to the approval of his principal, the contract is only perfected by such approval and acceptance. Hence, when an order is given in Morrisburg, Ontario, and accepted and approved by the seller in Montreal, the contract takes place in the latter city, and an action for recovery of the price from the purchaser will lie there under Art. 94 (5). C. C. P. Morris v. McDonald, 22 Que, S. C. 507.

Territorial jurisdiction — Cause of action—Contract—Sale of goods.]—In an action for the price of goods based upon a sale made by a travelling salesman of the plaintiff, the whole cause of action arises at the place where the sale is made, and not at the domicil of the plaintiff, the merchant who receives the order. Ferronerie du Cauada Cie, v. Delorme, 6 Que, P. R. 215.

Textitorial jurisdiction — Cause of action — Promissory motec.]—An action upon promissory notes dated at Montreal and made payable at Montreal, but really made in the district of Reance, where the defendant has his domicil and where he has been served with process, is not well begun in the district of Montreal, and the record will be transferred upon exception taken to the jurisdiction, to the Court of the district of Beauce. Lapierer v. Beaudoin 3 Que. P. R. 386.

Territorial jurisdiction — Cause of action—Sale of goods—Place of order and delivery—Judicial districts.]—When goods are ordered, whether verbally from an agent or by letter mailed from the district of Ottawa, and delivery of the goods is made there, then the whole cause of action arises in said district, and no action will lie in the district of Quebee, where the seller of the goods is residing and doing business. Amyot v. Bédanger. 9 Que, P. R. 6.

Territorial juriediction—Circuit Court —County of Berthier. — Imount involved— Cause of action—Domicil.]—The chief place of a district of which the county of Berthier forms part by virtue of the statute 61 V. c. 19, is the chief place of the district of Jolieite, and not the chief place of the district of Richelieu, in spite of the concurrent jurisdiction which is attributed by the same statute to the Court of the Richelieu district beld for the county of Berthier; an action for less than $200, the cause of which has arisen in the county of Berthier, and at a time when the defendant had his domicil there, must be instituted in the Circuit Court of the county of Berthier. Comtois v. Michaud, 9 Que, P. R. S7.

Territorial jurisdiction — Contract — Place of making.]—An agreement that one party will make for the other purchases of full during the season which is opening. in consideration of a commission upon the price, to be fixed later, is a contract within the meaning of paragraph 5 of Art. 94, C. P. C. The Court of the district in which the agreement is made is therefore competent to entertain actions arising thereout. Archambault v. Laroche (1906), 14 Que, K. B. 380. See S. C., 7 Que, P. R. 165.

Territorial juriadiction — Contract — Place of making.]—When a commercial raveller makes a sale on condition that it is approved by his employer, and it is so approved, the sale is to be considered as made in the place where the order is taken and not in the place where it is approved. Rock City Tobacco Co. v. Girard, 26 Que. S. C. 453.

Territorial jurisdiction — Contract — Place of making — Agreement for maintenance,]—When a son in consideration of a conveyance to him of certain land by his father and mother has agreed to support them for the remainder of their lives, a suit against him by one who has performed the obligation in his place, ought, supposing it to be well founded, to be brought at the place where such services were rendered. Thioret v, Brunet, 7 Que P. R. 138.

Territorial jurisdiction — Contract — Place of making—Election of domicil.—An action cannot be tried before the Contr of the district where the contract was made, if the parties, in their contract, have elected domicil in another district, and agreed that all suits at haw arising therefrom should be iried in the latter district. St. Laurent Laiteric Co. V. Coté, 6 Que, P. R. 153.

Territorial jurisdiction — Contract — Place of making — Election of domicil.] — Where a promissory note has been made and signed in the district of Three Rivers, and the contract by virtue of which the note was given was also made there, and the contract contains, besides, an electon of domicil in the same district for suits or actions to which it may give rise, an action begun in the district of Montreal will be dismissed upon declinatory exception. Rt. Laurent Laiteric Co. y. Trottier, 7 Que. P. R. 428.

Territorial jurisdiction — Contract — Place of making—Sale of goods by avent— Rafification.]—A contract between the buyer of goods and the travelling salesman of the vendor is complete, for the purposes of territorial jurisdiction, at the time of its making, even though it is subject to the ultimate ratification of the vendor. Silter v. Piusonnauli, 9 Oue, P. R. 235.

Territorial invisition — Contract — Sale of goods—Place of making.] — Action cannot be brought in the Court of the place where the order for goods was recepted, where it appears that the person who necepted on behalf of the defendant has not due authority to do so, and the defendant has repudiated the order, especially if the order did not constitute a complete contract of sale. Superior y, Columbia, Phonograph Co., 7 Que, P. R. 211.

Territorial jurisdiction — Contract of correspondence — Sale of goods—Transfer to proper district.]—A plaintiff complaining that a specific article delivered to him by the defendant, in pursuance of a contract by correspondence, and forwarded to a customer of the plaintiff, does not conform to the order, cannot bring his action in the district of the domicil of the customer, who refused to accept the article .--- 2. In a case where an article sold is refused by the purchaser, who puts it at the disposition of the vendor and claims damages from him. such article does not constitute property so as to give jurisdiction to the Court of the district where it is.-3. Semble, that, whatever may be the jurisdiction of the Courts in the matter of contracts by correspondence, if the defendant demands the transfer of the record from the district where the article in question is, to that from which the order was sent, such transfer will be granted. Forman v. United Electric Co., 4 Que. P. R. 148.

Territorial jurisdiction — Contract of hiring—Place of hiring.]—An action for damages by a day labourer against his employer for wrongful dismissal, loss of salary and time, and suffering, may be begun in the district in which the agent of the employer engaged the plaintiff. Pepin v. Turner Lumber Co., 5 Que. P. R. 178.

Territorial jurisdiction — Domicil of defendant—Locus of subject matter—Reference to competent Court.] — In a real or mixed action, the defendant can only be summoned before the Court of his domicil, or before that of the place where the thing in dispute is situated.—2. A Court that has no jurisdiction ratione persone, on the face of the action, over a defendant who fails to appear, can neither entertain the suit, nor make the order of reference to the competent Court mentioned in Art, 170 C. C. P. Can, General Electric Co. v. Can. Wood Mig. Co., 2D Que S. C. 148.

Territorial jurisdiction — Exception to—Transfer or dismissal,)—A defendant who objects to the jurisdiction of the Court should ask for the transfer of the action to the competent ribunal, if such exists. He may ask for the dismissal of the action, if he deposit the amount claimed, but if he prays for the dismissal of the action without making such deposit, his motion declinatorie will be declared irregular and dismissed with costs. Beauport Brasserie Co.-v. Belisle, 18 Que. S. C. 433.

Territorial jurisdiction — Foreign defendant — Administration of foreign estate —Place of service—Property in jurisdiction.] —A defendant who is a foreigner may be ordered to render an account of the property of an inheritance orizinating in a foreign country, before the Court of the district where process in the action has been served upon him, and wherein it is alleged he has property. Debigaré v. Debigaré, 7 Que, P. R. 179.

Territorial jurisdiction — Judicial districts-Contract-Place of making — Whole "cause of action."]—A debtor who has his domicil in the district of Montreal, where the contract of sale was signed, cannot be sued in the district of Quebec, where the goods are to be delivered and where payment therefor is to be made.—A cause of action is the entire set of facts that gives rise to an enforceable claim; the phrase comprises every fact which, if traversed, the plaintiff must prove in order to obtain judgment. Joly v. Godbout, 9 Que, P. R. 93.

Territorial jurisdiction — Judicial districts — Succession — Domicil — Will,] — A plaintiff, to recover certain annuities left by a testator who died in Montreal, from a defendant who resides and has been served within the district of Montreal, must sue in said district, where the succession devolved and is administered, and not in the district of Quebec, where the will was modified by an Act of the legislature. Bourdon v. Prati, 9 Que, P. R. 128.

Territorial jurisdiction—Libel—Neuspaper—Place of publication—Cause of acction—Neus Code.]—I. The party alleged to be injured by a libellous article may exercise his remedy in damages in the district in which the journal is published, and in which the injury has been caused, because it is in that district that the injury is done, and it is there that the cause of action arises.—2. The new Code, when it says, "where the whole cause of action has arisen," has not changed the law as to these actions with reference to the right of suing the defendant in a districoutside that in which he resides. Chicoutini Puble Co., Y. Delike, 24 Que, S. C. 294.

Territorial jurisdiction—Place of contract—Mandate — Principal and agent,]— A mandatory who sness his principal for indemnity against expenses which he has incurred in the execution of his mandate, may begin his action in the district where the contract of mandate was made.—2. When a person instructs another person to intrust a mandate to a third person, the contract of mandate with the third person is considered to have been made, not at the place where the instructions were given, but at the place where the instructions executed and the mandate intrusted to the agent. McDonald v. Raineille, 24 Ques, 8, C. 133.

Territorial jurisdiction—Place of contract — Promissory notes.] — A plaintiff suing on several promissory notes may bring his action in the district where one of the notes is dated, even when this note is in renewal of a previous note made, like the others sued upon, in a different district, that in which the defendant resides, in payment of the price of goods sold in the latter district. Guertin v. Roy, 6 Que. P. R. 206.

Territorial jurisdiction — Place where cause of action arase-Commercial traveller —Saic of goods.]—A commercial traveller who is supplied with blank forms of bills of sale with his employer's name as seller, is deemed to have full power to sell, and not to be subject to approval, and, as a consequence, his sales are made in the places in which customers sign the bills as purchasers. A subsequent letter by the employer that he accepts 'the order and that it will have his attention,'' is not required and is of no effect as concluding the sale. Hence, the whole cause of action for recovery of the price arises in the district where the bill of sale is signed and pot in that from which the letter is written and the goods are forwarded. Territorial jurisdiction - Place where cause of action arose-Place of residence of plaintiff - Libel - Newspaper - Place of publication.]-An action begun in the district of Quebec for damages alleged to have been caused in that district by the publica-tion (circulation) therein of a newspaper, containing a libellous article alleged to have been written in Chicoutimi and printed and published in the said newspaper in Chicou-timi, by the defendant, as editor of said newspaper, to satisfy the alleged hatred and mal-ice of the proprietor thereof for the plaintiff. will, upon motion declining the jurisdiction of the said Court in the district of Quebec. upon the grounds: (1) that the plaintiff and defendant both reside in Chicoutimi, where process in the action was served, and (2) be-cause "the whole cause of action" alleged in the declaration did not arise in the district of Quebec, be referred to the district of Chicotimi for trial and judgment.—The difference between "right of action" (Art. 34, C. C. P.) and "the whole cause of ac-tion" (Art. 94, C. P.), discussed, Dubuc v. Delisle, 10 Que, P. R. 252, 33 Que, S. C.

Territorial jurisdiction—Pleading — Exception—Reply to—Motion to strike out.] —The fact that the cause of action arose in the district in which the action has been begun should appear in the declaration, and, if that is denied, the plaintiff cannot, in his reply to an exception to the jurisdiction, allege additional facts to support the jurisdiction—Quare, whether a motion to strike out a party of the reply to an exception is subject to the same delay and formalities as of the reply to an exception is subject to the same delays and formalities as preliminary exceptions. Merchants Bank v. Graham, 4 Que, P. R. 55.

Territorial jurisdiction — Promissory note.]—An action on promissory notes dated at one place and made at another, cannot be brought, in the absence of other circumstances giving jurisdiction, in the Court of the district where they were dated. Cardinal v. Picker, 7 Que. P. R. 147.

Territorial jurisdiction — Right of riméré—Situation of Jand,1—An action by which a creditor claims, among other things, to exercise the right of réméré, which his debtor, now deceased, had reserved to himself, may be begun in the district in which the immovable which is subject to the right of réméré, is situated. Boisclair v, Proteau, 5 Que, P. R. S1.

Territorial jurisdiction—Sale of goods —Contract—Place of making — Travelling agent of vendor.]—Where a writing signed by the agent of the vendor contains not only an order or an offer to buy, but is a veritable contract of sale, an action for the price of the goods sold must be begun in the district in which the writing was signed. Watterson V. Beaudry, 10 Que, P. R. 84.

C.C.L.-37

Territorial jurisdiction — Service of writ of summons—Bailiff—Residence of defendants.] — The service apon a defendant in the district of St. Hyacinthe by a bailiff of such district of a writ addressed to one of the bailiffs of the district of St. Francois, is void.—2. The real defendants cannot be taken away from the jurisdiction of the tribunai to which they are amenable by adding a defendant with the sole object of being able to cite the real defendants before another tribunal, Gagnon v. O'Bready, 18 Que. S. C. 283.

Territorial jurisdiction—Succession— Appointment of executor—Judicial districts.] —The petition for the nomination of an exceutor to a succession must be presented in the district where the succession devolved. Ex parts Mignault, 9 Que. P. R. 15.

Territorial jurisdiction — Writ of revendication—Place of issue—Forum for petition to remove curator.] — Where chattels have been revendicated in one district by virtue of a writ issued in another district, a petition to withdraw from the curator appointed to the provisional possession of such chattels must be presented to the Judge of the district in which the writ issued. Hurteau v. Comoly, 10 Que. P. R. 8.

Transfer of action from Circuit Court—Fisture rights—Annual allovance.]— An action for an annual allowance for maintenance, which is for life, affects future rights, and therefore, by virtue of Art. 49, C. P. C., may be removed from a Circuit Court to the Superior Court. Deschamps v. Deckhamps, 2 Que. P. R. 390.

Transfer of action from Circuit Court—Future rights—Calls on shares.]— An action claiming payment of a call on shares in a company may affect future rights within the meaning of Arts. 40 and 1130, C. P., and is therefore, such an action as may be removed from a Circuit Court into the Superior Court, if the fact of subscription for the shares is in dispute; aliter, if the defendant, without denying the fact of the subscription, alleges that he has paid the call, or that it has been remitted, or satisfied by set-off. *Devict-Langlois Milling Co. y. The application should have been made by summons:—Held, that action was within jurisdiction of the Court. As defence not delivered plaintiff may amend without leave under Saskatchewan Rule 170. Desautels v. Hebert, 9 W. L. R. 336.

29. Miscellaneous.

Exchequer Court of Can.—Review of judyment of another Court.]—In exercising, the Exchequer Court will not review a judyment of another Court of competent jurisdiction affecting the railway, but will leave the rights of any person to attack such judyment to the determination of the Court which pronounced the judgment, Royal Trust Co. v. Baie de Chaleurs Rue. Co. (1907), 13 Ex. C. R. 1.

Precedences of justices.] — Where a Judge of a District Court in Canada was removed from that Court to another District Court, and the letters patent appointing him Judge to the latter Court also granted him precedence over the Judges of that Court, whose commissions were of later date than his own:—Held, that such grant of precedence was valid, and that the Judge had a right to rank and take precedence accordingly. In re Bedard (1849), C. R. 1 A. C. 298.

COVENANTS.

In Contracts.-See CONTRACTS.

In Deeds .- See DEED -- VENDOR AND PUR-CHASER.

In Leases.—See LANDLORD AND TENANT. In Mortgages.—See MORTGAGES.

Agreement for farming land — Independent covenants — Breach.] — In an agreement for farming on shares defendant agreed to plough certain land in the full free of charge, plaintiff having agreed to furnish a granary for the crop reaped during the previous summer. In an action for damages for failure to plough the defence was failure to build the granary, thereby causing defendant to lose so much time in drawing the grain to where it could be stored that there was no time to plough before frost set in.— Held, that covenants were independent, and that the building of the granary was not a condition precedent. See v. Branchflower, 10 W. Le. R. 37.

Breach — Dissolution of partnership— Use of firm name—Soliciting customers—Advertisement — Colourable imitation—Injunction.]—On the dissolution of a co-partnership under the name of "M. Bros, & M.," the defendant sold his interest to the plaintiff, including the right to the use of the firm name, and covenanted that the plaintiff should have the right to carry on business under that name, and that he (the defendant) would not interfere with the plaintiff's use of such name. Subsequently the defendant commenced business under the name of "M. Bros. & Co.," and published in an advertisement addressed to his "old customers" as well as to "any new ones who may favour me with their patronage," in which he stated that he had merely sold his interest in the retail store in H., and that he would continue to wholesale pianos, etc., from his warehouse there: — Held, that the name adopted by the defendant was calculated to deceive persons into the belief that they were dealing with the plaintiff; that it was a colourable imitation of the name under which the plaintiff was doing business, and that it was a violation of the contract that the defendant would not in any way interfere with the use of such name by the plaintiff : and that the advertisement contained misrepresentations and concealments, and was calculated to deceive the public into the belief that he represented the business of the old firm; and the plaintiff was entitled to an order restraining the defendant from using the name adopted by him, and from soliciting the old customers of the firm. McDonald v. Miller, 37 N. S. Reps. 46.

Breach—Engaging in business—Carrying on business — Evidence — Onus — Business carried on in name of another, Kerr v. Boueden (N.W.T.), 1 W. L. R. 28.

Breach-Injunction-Damages - Waiver -Assignment of covenant.]-The defendant covenanted with the plaintiff that he would not directly or indirectly engage in the drug business in a certain village, or within a radius of ten miles therefrom, during a term of five years, and that he would not open or have part in a third or further drug store during a term of ten years. The plaintiff sold his share in the drug business to the defendant, and actively promoted a part-nership between him and his (the plaintiff's) son which was continued for some months. when the defendant sold out to his son. The plaintiff afterwards acquired the business and sold it to his co-plaintiff, by bill of sale. reciting the covenant, and extended its benefit to the purchaser, and covenanted with him to save him harmless from a breach of the covenant by the defendant. In an action to restrain the defendant from carrying on a third drug store which he had opened :--Held, that for the first five years there were two concurrent severable covenants, and that while the plaintiff might by his conduct have waived a breach of the first, not to enter into business during the five years. he had not waived any breach of the second. not to open or have part in a third store :-Held, also, that the covenant was assignable. and that the right to enforce it did not terminate by reason of the plaintiff having gone out of business; and an injunction was granted restraining the defendant from opening, carrying on, or having part in, a third store for the ten years. Dissolution of partnership - Agreement not to engage in competing business-Breach-Interlocutory injunction.]-A partnership existed between members of the plaintiff company and the defendant for the purpose of carrying on a general tobacco business. Upon the dissolution of this partnership the plaintiff company was incorporated. the business being transferred to it, and the former partners binding themselves not to enter in any other business or to compete with the company. Subsequently defendant withdrew from the company, being paid in stock both for his share in the partnership, for his good will, and for his refraining from competing with the company. The defendant afterwards established a small business almost next door to the plaintiff company's place of business, the new business being carried on in the name of his brother, J. Granda, although the latter was at that time in Spain, and knew nothing about the matter until his return. The plaintiff company applied for an interlocutory injunction restraining the defendant from buying tobacco or otherwise taking part in a business of the new concern :- Held, that the defendant had violated his undertaking by making purchases for J. Granda. Interlocutory injunction granted. Cook v. Brischois, 2 Que. P. R. 162, followed. Granda Hermanos y Ca. v. Granda, 23 C. L. T. 118.

Dissolution of partnership—Continuence of business—Customers—Advertising— Name—Injunction, [—The plainiff and defendant carried on business in the city of Halifax, under the firm name of Miller Bros. & Macdonald. In 1902 the partnership was dissolved by agreement, whereby all the interest of the defendant in the firm business was transferred to the plainiff, "together with the goodwill, firm name," etc., and "including every matter and thing in which the co-partmership money of the said Miller Bros. & Macdonald has been placed or invested." It was also agreed that the defendant should not "carry on business under said name or in any way interfere" with the use of such name by the plaintiff. The defendant subsequently went into business as "Miller Bros. & Co.," and published a circular in the papers advertising the fact "for the benefit of my old customers: "----Held, that defendant was not at liberty to appeal to the customers of the old firm, not to use a name so similar to the one prohibited; and an injunction was granted. Macdonald v, Miller, 23 C. L. T. 209.

Document under seal creating charge-Implied covenant to pay debt.] -The defendant executed under seal an in strument creating a charge on land in favour of the plaintiffs, for the price of an engine bought from them and interest to be paid by specified instalments. The instrument fur-ther provided that if notes should be given by the defendant for the several instalments, such notes should not be in satisfaction of the said lien and charge, but the same should continue until payment in full of such notes and any renewals thereof. It contained no covenant or promise to pay the debt :--Held, that a covenant or promise to pay the debt could not be implied from the terms of the deed, and that the plaintiffs could not have a personal order for payment of the debt Jassed upon anything contained in it. business of nurserymen and fruit sellers. Upon dissolving partnership, the plaintiff continued the fruit branch and the defendant the nursery branch, each agreeing that for ten years he would not engage in the kind of business to be done by the other. The defendant's covenant was that he would not compete with the plaintiff in the fruit busi-ness, provided the plaintiff should "continue for such time to carry on the fruit business;"-Held, that this was to be read as a personal engagement for ten years by the defendant that he would not interfere with the fruit business of the plaintiff, provided that the plaintiff should always during that time continuously carry on as proprietor that business, and the plaintiff had ceased to carry on the fruit business by enter-ing into an incorporated company and transferring to that body his plant, property, and goodwill in the business, although he was a shareholder and acted as manager while the company did business, and, when that ceased, resumed the fruit business on his own account; and therefore he was not entitled to restrain the defendant from engaging in the fruit business during the ten years. Restraint of trade — Termination of particrship—Covenant not to engage or be interested in competing business—Carrying on business as manager for another.]—The plaintiff and defendant were partners in a jewelry business carried on in the town of Port Arthur. The articles of partnership provided that the plaintiff should procure her husband to work in the business and to devote his whole time and attention to it; and the plaintiff covenanted that her husband should not, after the determination of the partnership, "carry on or engage or be interested, directly or indirectly, in any business in the town of Port Arthur which shall compete or interfere with the business." of the defendant. After the dissolution of the partnership, the plaintiff's husband entered into the employment of B, as manager of a jewelry business belonging to B, upon prep.

ises in Port Arthur situate in close proximity to the shop at which the defendant was carrying on the business which had been carried on by the partnership; and the business of B. was, beyond question, one which competed with the business of the defendant:-Held, that what had been done by the plaintiff was a breach of her afreement with the defendant.-Review of the authorities.-Judgment of Mabee, J., S O, W. R. 691, reversed. Anderson v. Ross, 9 O, W. R. 681, 14 O. L. R. 638.

Transfer of land - Restriction as to business—Sale of intoxicating liquors barred — Violation — Injunction — Agreement for sale-Merger in transfer-Transfer not executed by grantor-Acceptance and registration - Estoppel - Voluntary covenant -Specific performance-Restraint of trade-Public policy — Waiver in similar cases — Laches—Interest of plaintiffs in performance.]-The defendant entered into an agreement for sale, whereby he agreed to purchase the premises in question, subject to a restrictive covenant (not to sell intoxicating liquors, etc.). Subsequently he accepted a transfer containing a proviso to the same effect, "under protest," but procured the same to be registered, and a certificate of title to be issued, which contained a reference to this proviso in the transfer :--Held, that, although the transfer was not executed by the transferee, the agreement was not merged in the transfer-and the transferee (and his successors in title with notice) became bound by the covenant in the agreement .--- Held, that the transferee, etc., is estopped from denying the existence and effect of the proviso in the transfer, by the registration and issue of the certificate of title,-Held, on the evidence, that the transfer was not intended to supersede the agreement .--- Hela, that the Court will enforce against the transferee, and his successors in title, with notice, the restrictive proviso in transfer-whether the original agreement contained such a covenant or not .- Held, in the circumstances of this case, that the covenant was not "vol-untary," but part of the consideration for the land.—Held, that the covenant and proviso were not in restraint of trade .-- Held, in the circumstances, that the plaintiff was not precluded from enforcing the covenant by injunction, by reason of the fact that he had allowed other purchasers of lots to disregard it. The rule in such cases discussed. ---Effect of delay in applying for injunction in such case discussed .- Held, that the fact that the plaintiffs did not shew any direct pecuniary damages was no bar to relief by injunction. Motion to remove into High Court proceedings before certain magistrates --Code ss. 576 (b), 1120.]-Prosecutor laid an information before a magistrate that one David Garlow had in his possession a bottle of whisky which was drunk on Indian Reserve, contrary to the provisions of the Indian Act. At the hearing the charge was dismissed and the prosecutor was ordered to pay $14 costs, which he failed to do. About a month later the magistrate issued a warrant for the arrest of said prosecutor and for his imprisonment for 30 days, unless the said costs and further costs were paid. Upon arrest he paid the costs and moved for a writ of certiorari to remove all things pertaining to the order in the High Court. Britton, J ... held, that the rules of the Court had not been complied with as no recognizance had been entered into or filed and no deposit had been made, and dismissed the motion. The Divisional Court held, that, in the case of a presenting, recognizance and notice is not necessary, and ordered that the certiorari should issue.—Judgment of Britton, J., 14 O. W. R. 969, 1 O. W. Allowing dog to run at large in public place.]—A stated case under s. 761 of the Criminal Code is an appeal, and can be entertained by the Supreme Court of Sas-katchewan with respect to a magistrate's conviction under a provincial Act or city by-law, by virtue of s, 15 of the Magistrates Act, 1906, making applicable the provisions of s. 761 of the Code.—*The Queen v. Simp-*son, 2 Can. Crim. Cas. 272, followed.—The defendant was convicted by a magistrate for that he (the defendant), being the owner of a dog, allowed it to run at large in a public place, to wit, Broad street, in the city of Regina, contrary to s. 3 of by-law 467 of the city. It was objected that ss. 2, 3, 4, and 5 of the by-law were inconsistent with each other :---Held, that, in constraint with each the Court should strive to give reasonable effect to the object aimed at, and not subject the by-laws to a scrutiny unreasonably rigid, nor quash a by-law simply because of a want of clearness of expression or a diffisions; by-laws should be supported if pos-sible, and should be benevolently interpreted. -Kruce v. Johnson, [1898] 2 Q. B. at p. 99, followed. — And as s. 3 positively pro-hibited any person allowing his dog to run at large in any public street or place in the city, and no section in the by-law was inconsistent with that positive enactment, s. 3 must be given its full effect.—The evi-dence was that during the evening of the 25th May, 1910, a brown and white pointer dog was found running at large upon Osler and Broad streets, in the city of Regina, wearing round its neck a collar and tag numbered 204. The city officer in charge of the dog register produced the register at the trial, and testified that he had sold all the dog tags for 1910; that he had, on the 19th March, 1910, sold the defendant dog tags numbers 204, 205 and 206; that tag 204 was given the defendant for a male tan and white pointer; that he knew the defendant; and that the defendant in person got the tags and gave the above description of the dog. The defendant offered no evidence :- Held, that the evidence was sufficient to warrant a conviction. — Regina v. Forsyth, 5 Can. Crim. Cas. 479, followed.—It was urged that the by-law was ultra virts and unreasonable because it required licensed dogs to be led by a chain.—Held, that the by-law was within the powers conferred by sec. 184 of the City Act, 1908, and was not unreasonable. R. v. Johnstone (1910), 15 W. L. R. 581, Sask. L. R.

Application for "during the trial"— Criminal Code, s. 101_i (3). —By s. 1014 (3) of the Criminal Code either party may "during the trial" of a prisoner on indiciment apply to have a question which thas arisen reserved for adjudication by the Court of Appeal:—Held, that for the purposes of such provision the trial ends with the verdict, after which no such application can be entertained. Ead v. The King, 40 S. C. R. 272, 5 E. L. R. 345.

Case reserved at instance of Crown-Insanity.]-The defendant was indicted for theft under c. 305 (a) of the Criminal Code. The act of theft was admitted, but it was contended that there was evidence of insanity at the time the act was committed. The trial Judge charged the jury that there was no such evidence, and that the case did not come within s. 736 of the Code. The jury having found the prisoner not guilty, two questions were reserved for the opinion of the Court: (1) Whether there was evidence of insanity as required by s. 736. (2) If not. whether there should be a new trial. The Court was moved to quash the case reserved. on the ground that where there had been an acquittal the Crown could not have a case reserved or an appeal :---Held, that the motion must be dismissed, and the reserved case proceeded with, to ascertain whether there was evidence of insanity sufficient in law for submission to the jury. Communication with jury-Question of fact - Jurisdiction.]-The defendant was indicted and tried for the crime of rape, committed upon the person of a girl a few weeks over the age of fourteen years. The jury found the prisoner guilty, and he was sentenced to imprisonment for the term of Before sentence there was a moone year. tion on behalf of the prisoner to reserve a case, upon affidavits of two of the jurors to the effect that while they were deliberating in their room they called the sheriff in and asked him "whether they could report that there had been sexual connection, but with consent, and recommend the prisoner to mercy," to which the sheriff replied, "no, that they would be obliged to report the defendant guilty or not guilty, and that if they found him guilty with a recommendation to mercy, the Judge would give him a light sentence." This was denied by the sheriff. who swore that all he said in reply to the question asked him was. "Whatever your verdict is, bring it into Court :"-Held, per Townshend, Meagher, and Drysdale, JJ., that, as the case as reserved called upon the Court to first decide the question of fact whether anything was said to the jurors by the sheriff to which objection could be taken, the Court for this reason had no jurisdiction to deal with the question.—Per Graham, E.J., and Russell, J., that the conviction should be quashed. Enforcing conviction after affirmance on appeal—Commitment—Irregularitics—Amendment—Period of imprisonment— Constinuent by clerk of appellate Court — Imprisonment for failure to pay costs.] — The proviso in s. 3, c. 148, R. 8, C. 1906, that no time during which a party convicted is out on ball shall be reckoned as part of the term of imprisonment to which he is sentenced, applies to cases of release on ball in appeal, under s.

750c Cr. C. Hence, when the appealing convict has been out on bail and the conviction has been affirmed, it may be enforced by the appellate Court, although, when originally made, it contained no express direction that it should be suspended by an appeal. Section 1023 Cr. C. A commitment for a time in excess of that order in the conviction, is not bad on that ground, which is merely an irregularity that may be cured by amendment under ss. 1121 and 1124 Cr. C. When a conviction is affirmed and the appellate Court further condemns the convict to pay the costs of appeal, a commitment signed by the clerk of the Court commending the gaoler to detain the convict, during the period ordered in the conviction, and, further, until he shall have paid the costs of appeal, of the distress, of the commitment, and of the conveyance to gaol, is valid. A commitment for the period ordered in the conviction and, further, until certain costs are paid, is wrong as to the latter part, in not specifying the period of detention in default of payment. This, however, is not a ground for quashing the commitment, but an irregularity that may be cured by amendment under ss. 1121 and 1124 Cr. C. R. v. Collette, 19 Que. K. B. 124.

Extension of time for notice of appeal —Order after expiration of time for service of notice—Jurisdiction.] — The power given by s. 1024 of the Criminal Code, R. S. Extradition after conviction in foreign country - Indeterminate sentence-Flight of prisoner when at large on parole after preliminary incarceration-Trivial of-fence.]-The petitioner having been convicted of larceny in Indiana and sentenced to imprisonment, he was paroled a few months afterwards under an engagement whereby he was to work for a named person at a specified service and should report to the State Prison Board during the remainder of his sentence, power being reserved to the Board to order his reincarceration. The petitioner for reincarceration. The petitioner was arrested in Montreal and having been committed to await extradition, was brought up on habcas corpus :--Held, 1. That the prisoner had not undergone the whole of his punishment, and the demand for extradition was for the offence of larceny and not for a mere violation of the parole agreement, which Volution of the parole alreened, which latter would not be an extraditable crime. In re Calberla (1907), 2 K. B. 861, and In re Awera, ib., p. 157, cited, and, 2. That the objection made to the effect that the offence was trivial, might be well founded in cases under the Fugitive Offenders Act of Great Britain, but is not well founded in extradition matters. Grand jury-Bringing in bill in Orange riot cases—Not disqualified—Indictment — Notice to quash—Orange riots—Orangemen on grand jury.]-Defendant was indicted for riot during which the Orange Lodge in Charlottetown had been attacked and damaged. On the grand jury which found the bill against defendant were some Orangemen, though it did not appear that, beyond being members of the association, they had any per-sonal interest in the hall. The case for the Crown was closed when defendant's counsel moved to quash the indictment on the ground that the Orange grand jurors were disqualified to act on the grand jury in a case where the defendant was charged with riot causing damage to property in which Orangemen were interested :--Held, that the Orangemen, as such, were not disqualified to act as grand jurors. R. v. Collins (1878), 2 P. E. I. R. 249.

Grounds — Misapprehension of jurors— Statement by, I—It is no ground for stating a reserved case, after a trial and conviction, that two of the jurors who joined in the verdict of guilty did so under a misapprehension; and, it is contrary to principle to allow the statements of jurors, even under oath, to be used for the purpose of an application for a reserved case. Rex . Mullen, 23 C. L. T. 169, 5 O. L. R. 373, 2 O. W. R. 181.

Insanity—Acquiital of prisoner—Weight of evidence. I—Prisoner was indicated for theft: and was acquitted on the ground of insanity: —Held, following R. v. McIntyre, 31 N. S. R. 422, that the trial Judge cannot reserve a case depending upon the weight of evidence, and that the question reserved, whether there was evidence of insanity as required by s. 736 of the Code, was within the principle decided; that the question of the weight of evidence is entirely for the jury; and that the provision for granting a new trial, where the verdet is against the weight of evidence, cannot be invoked on the part of the Crown. Res v. Phinney (No. 2), 36 N. S. Reps. 288

Leave to appeal from conviction— Refusal of Judge to reserve case—Direction to state case.]--On granting leave to appeal to the Court of Appeal under s. 1015 of the Criminal Code, the Court of Appeal may direct that the Court below shall state a case as if the questions had been reserved. Rex y. Sam Chak (No. 1), 42 N. S. R. 372.

No proper case reserved—Power of magistrate.]—The prisoner, with his own consent, was tried summarily before the stipendiary magistrate for the city of Halifax, under s. 786 of the Criminal Code, and was convicted of the offence of stealing property of the value of less than $10. At the trial, the magistrate, at the request of the prisoner. reserved a question for the opinion of the Court, under s. 742 and following sections of the Code: — Held, that, under 742 and following sections, a reserved case can be stated only by a Court, or a Judge, having jurisdiction in criminal cases, or by a magistrate in proceedings under s. 785 :- Held, that, as s. 785 had no application to the case in question, and the provisions of s. 900 of the Code had, admittedly, not been complied with, there was no proper case before the Court upon which the Court had authority to give an opinion. Regina v. Hawes, 33 N. S. Reps. 389.

Prisoner's right to be tried sum-marily or by jury.]--Motion to discharge prisoner on ground that he was not given an opportunity to elect to be tried by jury on a charge of extorting money by threats. He was tried under s. 452 of the Code by the police magistrate at Sudbury, and an in-terpreter was necessary. The magistrate swore that he told the interpreter to ask defendant whether he would be tried summarily or by the jury, and he understood the interpreter to answer summarily. Prisoner swore that interpreter did not ask him that question :--Held, that no case had been made for the discharge of the prisoner. Motion R. v. Sciarrone (1910), 15 O. W. refused R. 211.

Question of fact—Gaming.]—The Court of King's Bench, sitting as a Court for the hearing of cases reserved by Criminal Courts, has jurisdiction only to pronounce upon a question of law, under facts proved, and mentioned in the seserved case. Consequently, where the question stated in the reserved case was whether the use of a particular apparatus constituted a mixed game of chance and skill, or only a game of skill, and did not submit the question whether, under facts proved, and stated in the reserved case, the game was one which came within the probibition of the Criminal Code, the Court declared that it was without jurisdiction in the matter. Res v. Fortier, 13 Que, K. B, 305.

Question of law - No trial.] - The accused was a letter carrier, and, being suspected of retaining letters containing money, a fictitious one was prepared, which, it was alleged, was afterwards found in his possession. He was arrested, and after a preliminary inquiry was committed for trial At the trial counsel for the accused contended that the charge laid was not founded on the evidence adduced at the preliminary trial, inasmuch as the proof then taken did not shew that the document stolen was a postletter which had been deposited in the post office, within the meaning of the amendment to the Post Office Act, 52 V. c. 20, s. 2, s.-s. 1, or of s. 326 (c) of the Criminal Code. The 1, or of s. 326 (c) of the Criminal Code. The trial did not take place, but the trial Judge reserved the question thus raised for the opinion of the Court :--Held, that a question of law can only be reserved when there has been a trial and conviction. Trial - Refusal of trial Judge to reserve case-Application not made at trial-Discretion of trial Judge.]-On the trial of the accused before a Judge without a jury, his counsel objected that the accused was entitled to be tried by a jury, but the objection was overruled and the trial proceeded, no application being made for a reserved case. The accused was convicted and sentenced, and two days afterwards an application was made to the trial Judge to reserve a case for the Court of Appeal. The application was refused:—Held, that an appeal from the refusal of the trial Judge to reserve a case on a question of law arising during a criminal prosecution lies only when the application is made at the trial; and, although after the trial the Judge might still, in his discretion, reserve a case, yet if he refused, no appeal lay. Rex v. Toto, 6 Terr. L. R. S9.

Trial of accused — Application by accused to maristrate to adjourn trial to enable him to procure counsel and prepare defence—Magistrate's refusal — Conviction — Right of maristrate to impose fine exceeding with costs $100—Case directed to be stated for opinion of Court of Appeal on above points. R. v. Garrett (1910), 16 O. 3. EVIDENCE, Accomplice—Corroboration—Direction to jury—Conviction. Rex v. Reynolds (Sask.), 9 W. L. R. 299.

Admissibility - Confession - Employment of detectives to obtain.]-The prisoner being suspected of having been guilty of the murder of G., but not being under arrest, detectives associated with him, worked themselves into his confidence, and, by representing to him that they were members of an organised gang of criminals engaged in profitable operations, induced him to seek for admission to their ranks. They then intimatd to him that he must satisfy them that he was qualified for such admission by shewing that he had committed some crime of a serious nature, whereupon, according to their evidence, he asserted that he had killed G. as the result of an altercation. The detectives were not peace officers, no charge was then pending against the prisoner, nor did he know that the detectives were such :--Held, that an inducement held out to an accused person in consequence of which he makes a confession must be one having relation to the charge against him, and must be held out by a person in authority, in order to render evidence of the confession inadmissible; that both these grounds of objection were that both these grounds of objection were wanting in this case, and that, therefore, the evidence of the confession was rightly re-ceived. Res. v. Todd, 21 C. L. T. 417, 13 Man. L. R. 364, 4 Can. Cr. Cas. 514.

Admissibility — Conspiracy — Previous acts of accused.]—The accused were charged with having conspired to fraudulently obtain from the Merchants Bank of Halifax various sums of money by certain false pretences. The Crown called as a witness the manager of another bank to prove that at the same period the accused obtained other sums from that bank in the same manner. Counsel for the accused objected to the admission of this evidence as being irrelevant, and as tending to prejudice the minds of the jurors by proving the prisoners to have committed a crime other than that with which they were then charged :-Held, that acts similar to those charged, but committed against other persons, might be proved in order to shew that at the time of the commission of the offence charged the accused knew that they were acting unlawfully. Regina v. McCul-lough and McGillis, 21 C. L. T. 306.

Admissibility — Perjury—Judge's notes of perjured evidence.—Held, that, on the trial of a charge of perjury, the production of a book purporting to contain full notes of the evidence taken by the trial Judge (who was proved to have actually taken notes) in the case in which the perjury was alleged to have been committed, and proved to be in the Judge's handwriting, and to be signed by him, afforded, in view of the N. W. T. Act, R. S. C. e. 50, s. 63) proper and sufficient evidence of the statement in respect of which the perjury was assigned. Regima y. Mills, 11 C. L. T. 28, 1 Terr. L. R. 297

Admission of prisoner - Admissibility-Onus-Statement improperly obtained -Repetition-Prisoner's counsel-Waiver.]-The defendant, while confined in gaol awaiting trial on a charge of murder, was visited by a detective who had been sent by the Provincial Government to inquire into the case, and who, without preliminary warning or caution of any kind, succeeded in obtaining from the defendant an admission that a statement made by her previously was untrue .--Shortly afterward the same admission was made to the prosecuting officer in the pre-sence of the defendant's counsel: - Held, that, in the absence of evidence to rebut the presumption that the second statement was made under the operation of the same influence as the former one, the trial Judge erred in receiving evidence of it, and that the defendant, who had convicted, was entitled to a new trial; also, that the burden of shewing that the influences under which the first statement was made had been dispelled when the second statement was obtained rested upon the Crown; also, that the prisoner's counsel, who was present when the second statement was made, could not assent to or waive anything to the prisoner's prejudice, and that in a case where the prisoner herself could not make a waiver or admission, such waiver or admission could not be made through the agency of her counsel. Rex v. Hope Young, 38 N. S. R. 427, 10 Can. Cr. Cas. 466.

Admissions of prisoner — Admissibility.].—The Court of Appeal held that a prisoner's confession or admission was rightly admitted in evidence even if when it was to some degree influenced by a missitatement of a police officer to whom it was made. Admissions of prisoner—Confession— Constable—Caution, 1—The prisoner was arrested on a charge of stealing S.'s gun, and in answer to questions put to him by a constable, who did not caution him, he made certain statements; he was afterwards charged with the murder of S., and on his trial the Crown sought to put in evidence his answers; —Held, not admissible. Res v. Kay, 11 B. C. R. 157, 9 Can. Cr. Cas. 403.

Answers tending to criminate witness --Claiming privilege.]-The prisoner, being a manager of a branch store for the sale of goods supplied by a factory of his employers. arranged with the checker at the factory to load certain goods on a waggon going to the branch store, without keeping the usual check on them which his employers' system demanded, and had the goods delivered to a customer of his branch :--Held, that he was properly convicted of theft as defined by the Criminal Code. If a witness when called upon to testify does not object to do so upon the ground that his answers may tend to criminate him, his answers are receivable against him (except in the case provided for by s. 5 of the Canada Evidence Act, 1893, as amended by 61 V. c. 53), in any criminal proceedings against him thereafter, but if he does object he is protected. Rex v. Clark, 22 C. L. T. 90, 3 O. L. R. 176, 5 Can. Cr. Cas. 235.

By-law — Copy — Costs—Time for payment—Justice of the Peace.]—A by-law of a town council which is not authenticated in accordance with the provisions of Art, 4380, R. S. Q., cannot be admitted in evidence, and a copy which does not import that the original has been signed by the president and the secretary-treasurer cannot be made the basis of a prosecution. 2. A conviction by a justice of the peace which gives only eight days to a party to pay the costs which he is adjudged to pay, in contravention of Art, 4508, R. S. Q., will be quashed upon appeal to the Superior Court. Tasse v. Beaubien, 4 Que. P. R. 372.

Canada Evidence Act, 1893-Husband and wife-Competency of witness-" Communication "-Statute - Privilege - Directions by legal adviser-Reference to Hansard debates - Method of interpretation.] -Under the provisions of the Canada Evidence Act, 1893, the husband and wife of a person charged with an indictable offence is not only a competent witness for or against the person accused, but may also be compelled to testify; Mills, J., dissenting. Evidence by the wife of a person accused, of acts performed by her under directions of his counsel, sent to her by the accused to give the directions, is not a communication from the husband to his wife in respect of which the Canada Evidence Act forbids her to testify; Mills, J., dissenting. Per Girouard, J., (dissenting). The communications between husband and wife contemplated by the Canada Evidence Act, 1893, may be de verbo, de facto, or de corpore. Sexual intercourse is such a communication, and in the case under appeal neither the evidence by the accused that bloodstains upon his clothing were caused by having such intercourse at a time when his wife was unwell, nor the testimony of his wife in contradiction of such statement as to her condition, ought to have been received. Per-Mills, J. (dissenting) :—Under the provisions of the Canada Evidence Act, 1833, and its amendments, the husband or wife of an accused person is competent as a witness only on behalf of the accused and may not give testimony on the part of the Crown. Per Taschereau, C.J.:—The report of debates in the House of Commons are not appropriate sources of information to assist in the interpretation of language used in a statute. Gosselin V. Rez, 23 C. L. T. 210, 33 S. C. R. 255.

Character of defendant.]—Where defendant offered no evidence of good character. Denton. Co.C.J., discharged the jury and traversed the case to the next sessions, because Crown Attorney asked witness for defence whether accused had been in gaol for a year in a foreign city, holding that it was inadmissible for the Crown to give evidence of a prior conviction unless the defence offered evidence of good character, and that the suggestion implied in the question was likely to prejudice the accused with the jury and a miscarriage of justice result, R. v. Atlua (1910), 16 Can. Cr. Cas. 35.

Confession — Admissibility — Inducement—False statements]. — Evidence of an alleged confession made to a constable, by the prisoner, who was charged with stealing letters from a post office box, was held not admissible, inasmuch as it appeared that the alleged confession was induced by the statements of the constable that "decoy letters have been put in the box" (which was false), "and you must not think they were not watched," and "you may as well tell us, as have it come out in a Court of law." Regina v, MeDonddl, 3 Terr. L. R. 1.

Confession—Admissibility — Inducement -Person in authority-Indian agent-Onus -Privilege.]-If upon a proposal to give evidence of an alleged confession the question is raised whether it was made by the accused to a person in authority, and induced by a promise of favour or by menaces or under terror, the onus is on the Crown to shew affirmatively that it was not so induced .--Regina v. Thompson, [1893] 2 Que. B. 12, followed .--- An Indian agent, an ex officio justice of the peace, under general instructions to advise the Indians of his reserve, who was in fact in the habit of interviewing Indians of the reserve charged with offences with a view to aiding them in their defence, is, guoad the Indians of his reserve, a person in authority. -Quare, whether a confession by an Indian to the Indian agent of the reserve to which the Indian belonged, would not be a privileged communication. Regina v. Charcoal. 3 Terr. L. R. 7.

Confession — Admissibility—Statement to person in authority.] — Several church choir boys were implicated in an alleged assault on a Chinese boy, and a few days later the rector of the church held an inquiry, aud calling the boys separately into the vestry from another room where they were detained in charge of the verger he told them they were to speak the truth and that their state ments were to be used for the purpose of Confession obtained by trick - Admissibility-Prisoner deluded into belief that he was speaking to agent of his counsel -Other persons present unknown to prisoner-Privilege.]-1. Statement made by a prisoner in a cell to a person whom he reasonably supposed to be an agent sent by his counsel to interview him regarding the defence are as much privileged as would be statements made to the counsel himself.—2. Where persons concealed themselves outside the cell in a position to overhear such statements, in pursuance of a scheme previously planned. the interview should be treated as one with several persons who had fraudulently adopted the character of the counsel's representatives, and the cloak of privilege should be applied to what was heard by the listeners without, as well as the one within, the cell. Rex v. Choney, 7 W. L. R. 537, 17 Man. L. R. 467, 13 Can. Cr. Cas. 289.

Corroboration — Forgery,] — The prisoner was charged in the first count with forging the name of a superintendent of the N, W. M. Police to a requisition for transport; and in the second, with uttering the same knowing it to be forged:—Held, that the superintendent was not "a person interested, or supposed to be interested," within the meaning of the Criminal Procedure Act, R, S, C, c. 174, s. 218, and that therefore, his evidence did not require corroboration. Regina v. Farrell, 1 Terr. L, R. 106.

Corroboration—Seduction under promise of marriage — Criminal Code.] — Where a statute requires that evidence shall be corroborated in some material particular, the corroboration required is in some material respect that will fortify and strengthen the credibility of the main witness and justify the evidence being accepted and acted upon .---The prisoner was charged with having seduced and had illicit connection with an unmarried female of previously chaste character under 21 years of age, contrary to s. 182 of the Criminal Code. It was shewn that a couple of months prior to the connection he had told her brother that "he always thought enough of A, to marry her," and about a month before he and she had their photographs taken together. Subsequent to the connection he told her parents "that he always intended to marry A.:"-Held, (Os-ler, J.A., dissenting), sufficient corroboration of the girl's evidence that he had had illicit connection with her under promise of marriage .--- Per Osler, J.A. :-- There was no corroboration as to the illicit connection on the occasion in question; the admissions and conversations sworn to had reference to a later occasion. Even the girl's evidence did not shew seduction and illicit connection, or that the seduction, if any, was under promise of marriage. Rex v. Daun, 12 O. L R. 227, 8 O. W. R. 173.

Compting — Hypothetical testimony— Fraud, I—On a trial for conspiracy to defraud a railway company by fraudulently obtaining information of the secret audits about to be made and furnishing the same to conductors of ears to enable them to be prepared for the andits, proof that information of this nature might be given by one conductor to another pany, was properly excluded, because such evidence would be merely hypothetical, and could not disprove the object of the conspiracy, or throw any doubt on the evidence which had been adduced to shew the object which the parties had in view. Judgment in 12 Que, K, B, 488,

Comment on Judge of failure of accused to testify—Connade Evidence Act, R. S. C. 1906 c. 145, s., 4 (5).]—A statement made by a Judge, in charging the jury in a criminal case, that the evidence of a witness for the Cown is wholly uncontradicted, is not a comment on the failure of a person charged to testify within the meaning of the Canada Evidence Act, R. S. C. 1006 c. 145, s. 4 (5). Res v. Guerin, 18 O. L. R. 425, 14 O. W. R. 5, 14 Can. Cr. Cas. 424.

Depositions at preliminary inquiry— Absence of magistrate, I—Depositions taken at a preliminary inquiry, in the absence of the magistrate before whom the case is proceeding, have no legal value whatever; and therefore the commitment by the magistrate of a prisoner for trial, the bill of indietment founded on his illegal commitment or on the illegal depositions, and the true bill and indietment reported by the grand jury, are null and vold. Ref v. Traynor, 10 Que, Q. B. 63.

Deposition on proliminary hearing— Prisoner not represented by counsel—Death Code, s. 687, provides for cases in which and the conditions under which depositions taken on preliminary examinations can be used on the trial in the event of the deponent's death, and supersedes the common law procedure as to this matter,—Where the accused was not assisted by counsel when the deposition was taken --Heid, that it could not properly be received in evidence against him, and, as there was no other evidence, nothing was to be gained by requiring another trial. Rex v. Snelprove, 1 E. L. R. 107, 30 N. S. R. 400, 12 Can. Cr. Cas. 189.

Depositions on trial of another-Reception of - Consent of counsel-New trial.] -Even if a mistake is made by counsel at a trial, that does not relieve the Judge in a criminal case from the duty to see that proper evidence only is before the jury .- At the trial of a prisoner, the prosecuting counsel put in a letter, addressed to the Crown Attorney, from a counsel who had been retained to act for the prisoner, as follows: " I find that I will be unable to go on with this trial on the 28th December. . . . Would you kindly see the Judge and ask him if he can take it on Saturday the 6th January. . I am quite willing to accept the evi-dence of the family, in particular those who gave evidence at the H. trial, so that it would not be necessary for you to call them." ber. the prisoner then being represented by another counsel, when, in addition to the letter, the depositions of two witnesses taken at the trial of H., who were not members of the family, were put in without the consent of, or objection to on the part of, the prisoner's counsel:—Held, that, even assuming the consent in the letter, which seemed to be a concession for the proposed postponement of the trial to the 6th January, wide enough to authorize the admission of the specified depositions, the depositions of the two witnesses, not members of the family, were improperly received.—Conviction quashed and a new trial granted. Res v, Brooks, 11 O. L, R. 525, 7 O. W. R. 533, 11 Can. Cr. Cas. 188.

Depositions taken according to law in legal form need not be transcribed and authentiented before the accused has been called upon to plead, the latter suffering no prejudice thereby. R. v. Rouleau (1910), 12 Que, P. R. 1.

Depositions taken at preliminary enquiry not sized by the presiding magistrate, are not authenticated, and, consequently, there is no record of any preliminary enquiry in the case, and a commitment based upon such enquiry may be quashed upon motion. R. v. Robert (1910), 12 Que, P. R. 7.

Depositions taken at preliminary inquiry - Incomplete cross-examination -Waiver.]-At a preliminary inquiry before a magistrate on a charge of indecent assault on a female, the latter's depositions were taken, the prisoner being represented by counsel, but before her cross-examination was concluded the proceedings were adjourned to a fixed date on account of her illness. Meanwhile, after consulting the county Crown attorney, the magistrate determined to send the case to Sarnia, and so telegraphed to the prisoner's counsel, asking a reply whether he would come up or not. Counsel replied that if the magistrate intended to send the prisoner to trial at any rate, it would be no use his coming, and accordingly he did not further attend the proceedings. On the day to which adjournment had been made, the magistrate went out to the residence of the witness, and obtained her signature to her depositions as already taken, neither the prisoner nor his counsel being present, and afterwards resumed the inquiry at his own office, the prisoner being present, but not the witness, and on the evidence already taken the prisoner was committed for trial. At the trial the witness was proved to be too ill to attend, and her depositions taken as above were tendered by the Crown and adabove were transfer by the crown of s. 687 of the Criminal Code, the depositions were improperly received in evidence, the prisoner's counsel not ever having had a full opport. tunity of cross-examining the witness, and not having waived that right, as contended by the Crown. Rex v. Trevanne, 22 C. L. T. 385, 4 O. L. R. 475, 1 O. W. R. 587, 6 Can. Cr. Cas. 124.

Foreign language — Translation — Documents—Extracts from registers — Evidence of bad character.]—A conviction for murder will not be set aside because the evidence of witnesses for the prosecution, given in a language of which the defendant was ignorant, was not translated to him, where he was defended by counsel speaking and thoroughly acquainted with the language of the witnesses, and where neither the defendant nor his counsel asked that the evidence be translated. 2. Section 19 of the Canada Evidence Act, 1893, which requires that ten days' notice shall be given to the prisoner before the trial, of the intention to produce certain documents, does not apply to certified extracts from the registers of acts of civil status, which were produced merely to explain the alias of the person killed. Such extracts are admissible without notice. Evidence of bad character or of misconduct of the prisoner, not relevant to the issue before the Court, can only be introduced by the Crown in reply or rebuttal. The admission of such evidence as part of the case for the prosecution, before any evidence of good character has been adduced for the defence, is improper, irregular, and illegal, and con-stitutes sufficient ground for setting aside the conviction. The illegality is not covered by the failure of the prisoner or his counsel to object to the evidence at the time, or by the fact that his counsel cross-examined the witnesses on their statements. 4. Even after evidence of the prisoner's good character has been made by the cross-examination of Crown witnesses, the prosecution is only entitled to prove his general reputation and not particular acts of misconduct. Rex v. Long, 11 Que. K. B. 328, 5 Can, Cr. Cas. 493.

Indictment quashed because agent of prosecutor on the grand jury.] — The defendants were indicted for conspiracy to prevent C. from recovering his rents. W., agent of C., was on the Grand Jury, which found the bill. A motion was made to quash the indictment because of W.'s presence on the Grand Jury, it being urged that his position was such as to prejudice him azainst the accused, and, therefore, to render him incompetent to be on the Grand Jury.—Held. Peters, J., that W. was incompetent, and that the indictment must be quished. R. V., Gorbei (1860), 1 P. E. I. R. 262.

VII., amending the Liquor License Act. R S. See Criminal Code, (1906), s. 19.—1f there be sufficient reason to doubt whether an accused person is unable, on account of insanity, to conduct his defence, the question whether by reason of such insanity he is unfit to take his trial should first be tried. Issue as to sanity of prisoner charged with murder-Evidence of physician-Improper statement after ruling of trial Judge-Effect on jury-Discharge. Rex V. Grobb (Man.), 6 W. L. R. 727.

Joint indictment of husband and wife for murder - Evidence-Admission or confession of wife implicating husband -Admissibility in whole-Caution to jury-No evidence against husband-Counsel representing Attorney-General - Right of reply where prisoners adduce no evidence.]-Two prisoners tried jointly for murder of their infant son. The matron of the gaol gave as evidence the confession of the wife in the police station after being cautioned. Argued, the evidence could not be given at their joint trial as the husband was not there when confession was made. Falconbridge, C.J., admitted the evidence at the trial, but informed the jury it was not evidence against the male prisoner. At the request of the male prisoner the case was reserved for the opinion of the Court of Appeal upon the following questions: 1. Was the alleged statement of the female prisoner to the witness, the gaol matron, properly admitted as evidence, when the prisoners were tried together? 2. No evidence being adduced by either prisoner, had the counsel for the defence the right of reply? Falconbridge, C.J., ruling at trial that the counsel for the Crown, who claimed to be acting on behalf of the Attorney-General, had the right of reply : -Held, as to the first question, that the evidence was properly admitted, and as to the second question, until Parliament sees fit to withdraw the right of reply, the Crown, through its representative, can assert the privilege. And it must be left to counsel, in the judicious exercise of his discretion, to decide whether he will claim it. Rex v. Martin, 5 O. W. R. 317, 9 O. L. R. 218.

Jury de mediatate linguae.]-If the right to a jury de mediatate linguae ever existed in P. E. Island it is abolished by the Island Jury Act. R. v. Thompson & Walsh (1863), 1. P. E. I. R. 226.

Murder — Admission of accused—Tacit avocat elicited by police agent—Improper admission — Misdirection—Jury — Unqualifeed person improperty included—Verdict set aside.]—Evidence that a person accused of nurder remained silent or answered "Absolutely nothing" to a police agent who detained him under arrest and who asked him what he had to say to the affirmation of the wild wo of the victim upon being confronted with him, that it was he (the accused) who had killed her husband, is inadmissible. And, therefore, it is misdirection for the trial Judge to tell the jury that the fact thus proved forms a link in the chain in the evidence of guilt which the jury have to weigh; and a verdict of "guilty" rendered upon such evidence admitted and such direction given to the jury, was set aside...-The swearing in and including in the jury a person assigned by error as a juror, but whose name was not inscribed on the jury panel, and who has not the legal qualification of a juror, is illegal, and a verdict rendered by a jury which includes such person is void, and should be set aside. Rex V. McCrac, 16 Que, K. B. 193.

Musder-Dying declaration - Expectation of death-Threats-Improper admission of evidence-No substantial wrong or miscarriage-Criminal Code, s. 1019.]-Upon the trial of the prisoner for the murder of a foreigner, the evidence shewed that the deceased was found lying on the floor of a bedroom in his house. He was lifted up and laid upon the bed, when it appeared that he had received a wound from a pistol bullet, and it was subsequently shewn that this wound was the cause of his death. A man testified that shortly afterwards he entered the room and asked the deceased, "Who ent you?" to which the deceased answered, "No cut, Jake shoot." The witness then "No cut, dake shoot." The witness then said to the deceased that he would send for a doctor, and the deceased answered, "No doc-tor, Billy, me die !"—Held, that the state-ment of the deceased, "Jake shoot," that the prisoner shot him, as related by the witness, was properly received in evidence as a dying declaration, the words "No doctor, me die," being sufficient to shew that the deceased spoke under a belief without hope that he was about to die from the wound that had been inflicted upon him, and it made no difference that the words incriminating the prisoner preceded the words shewing the expectation of death :--Held, also, that there was no reason for excluding testimony proving quarrels between the deceased and the prisoner and threats made by the latter .- Evidence of threats made by the prisoner in respect of another person was improperly admitted, but, in the circumstances, no substantial wrong or miscarriage of justice was occasioned on the trial by reason of the evidence, and therefore, under s. 1019 of the Criminal Code, which declares that "no conviction, shall be set aside nor any new trial directed, although it appears that some evidence was improperly admitted . . unless, in the opinion of the Court of Appeal, some substantial wrong or miscarriage was thereby occasioned on the trial," the conviction should not be set aside or a new trial directed. Rex v. Sunfield, 10 O. W. R. 1010, 15 O. L. R. 252.

Murder — Statements of decensed—Admissibility—HEs gestar—Subsequent statement —Presence of accused—Judge's charge—Reserved eace—Disacting Judge — AppedI]— Evidence of statements made immediately after an assault of a person, since decensed, under apprehension of further danger and requesting assistance and protection, is admissible as part of the res gesta, even though the person accused of the offence was absent at the time when such statements were made. the occurrence of the assault, but uttered in the presence and hearing of the accused, and under such circumstances that he might reasonably have been expected to have made some explanatory reply or remark in reference to them, are admissible as evidence .--On the trial of an indictment for murder, the evidence was that the deceased had been killed by a gun-shot wound inflicted through the discharge of a gun in the hands of the accused, and the defence was that the gun had been discharged accidentally: Held, that, in view of the character of the defence and the evidence in support of it. there could be no objection to a charge by the trial Judge to the jury that the offence could not be reduced by them from murder to manslaughter, but that their verdict should be either for acquittal or one of guilty of murder .- Two questions were reserved by the trial Judge for the opinion of the Court of Appeal, but he refused to reserve a third question, as to the correctness of his charge, on the ground that no objection to the charge had been taken at the trial. The Court of Appeal took all three questions into consideration, and dismissed the appeal, there being no dissent from the affirmance of the conviction on the first and third questions, but one of the Judges being of opinion that the appeal should be allowed and a new trial ordered upon the second question reserved. On an appeal to the Supreme Court of Canada, the majority of the Court, being of opinion that the appeal should be dismissed, declined to express any opinion as to whether or not an appeal would lie upon questions as to which there had been no dissent in the Court appealed from :--Held, however, per Girouard, J., that the Supreme Court of Canada was precluded from expressing an opinion on points of law as to which there had been no dissent in the Court appealed from, McIntosh v, The Queen, 23 S. Perjury - Indictment-Description of offence - Improper admission of criminating answers before judicial tribunal-Coroner.] -A count alleging perjury before a coroneromitting any reference to the coroner's jurywas held sufficient in view of s. 611, s.-ss. 3 and 4, and s. 723, of the Criminal Code. A new trial was granted on the ground of the reception of evidence of an admission made by the accused in answer to questions put to him as a witness on the inquest before the coroner's jury, it being held that s. 5 of the Canada Evidence Act, 1893, compelled the witness to answer, and protected him against his answers being used in evidence against him in any criminal proceeding thereafter instituted against him other than a prosecution for perjury, in giving such evidence, and this without the necessity for the claim of privilege on the part of the witness. (But see now 61 V. c. 53, s. 1). Regina v. Thomp-son, 2 Terr. L. R. 383.

Perjury in civil action-Depositions-Indictment-Form.]-A person charged with perjury committed in a civil action is entitled to have in evidence those parts of his testimony in the civil action which may be explanatory of the statements in respect of which the perjury is charged. Where the indictment did not follow the statutory form, and hald the charge in an involved manner, but contained the essential averments, it was held sufficient, the unnecessary matter being considered surplusage. Rev V. Coote, 24 C. L. T., 257, 10 B. C. R. 201.

Possession of stolen goods — Reasonable account given,] — A Crown cruse was reserved to determine the question whether, when stolen goods are found in the possession of a prisoner, and he gives to those who find him a reasonable account of how he came by the goods, it is incumbent upon the prosecution at the trial to shew that the prisoner's account is untrue:—Held, that, in the absence of any evidence to shew that such account was in fact given, the Court was not in a position to determine the question reserved. Regina v. McKay, 34 N, S, R. 540, 6 Can. Cr. Cas. 151.

Proof of alibi — Mindirection.]—Where the defence to a criminal charge is an alibi, it is misdirection to tell the jury that the onus is on the prisoner to prove it to their entire satisfaction, and to shew beyond all question or reason that he could not have been present at the commission of the crime. Rex v. Myehralt, 35 N. B. R. 507.

Rape-Complaint-Interval of 7 days-Action for damages.]-On a trial for rape, the fact that the injured person made a complaint, and the particulars or details of the complaint, are admissible as evidence in chief for the prosecution to confirm the testimony of the injured person and disprove consent on her part ; and among the particulars the name of the person whom she accused of the offence may be stated.—2. While the injured person should make her complaint as soon as possible after the commission of the offence. yet no specific time being fixed therefor by law, evidence may be admitted of a complaint made to her mother seven days after the offence; but the jury may and should weigh the interval which elapsed before complaint was made, when considering the probability of its truth .--- 3. Evidence that civil suits for damages based on the commission of a rape have been instituted by the tutor of the in-jured person on her behalf, and by her mother, is properly excluded as irrelevant on the trial for rape, unless it be first proved that the injured person and her mother had stated, or let it be inferred, that the prisoner was innocent of the offence charged, and they had appeared to be desirous of extorting money from him. In such case the fact that civil actions had been instituted would be corroborative evidence. - 4. Evidence of a quarrel or wrangle between the injured person and her mother a week after the alleged offence, and of an assault committed by the daughter upon her mother, was properly excluded. Regina v. Riendeau, 9 Que, Q. B. 147.

Right to re-examine witness.]—The right to re-examine follows upon the exercise of the right to cross-examine, and, even if inadmissible matter be introduced in cross-examination, the right to re-examine remains, and the rule holds good where the witness volunteers the statement. If it be desired to avoid re-examination upon such matter, it must be expunged at the instance of the party cross-examining while it remains as part of the testimony, the right to re-examine upon it also remains. Seduction of girl under 16-Corro-boration - Acquittal-Appeal by Crown -New trial-Criminal Code.]-Section 684 of the Criminal Code, 55 & 56 V. c. 295 (D.), which enacts that a person accused of offences of the nature therein indicated, inter alia of having illicit intercourse with a girl of previously chaste character, is not to be con-victed upon the evidence of one witness unless such evidence is corroborated in some material particular, does not make it necessarily incumbent upon the Crown to adduce testimony of another or other witnesses to the acts charged. It is enough if there be other testimony to facts from which the tribunal trying the case, weighing them in con-nection with the testimony of the one witness, may reasonably conclude that the accused committed the act with which he is charged .- New trial ordered after a case

Several charges-Hearing evidence on second before deciding first-Conviction.]-The prisoners were tried before the County Court Judge on two separate charges of receiving on two separate days, stolen goods knowing them to be stolen, and of housebreaking and stealing on the second of two days. At the close of the case for the Crown on the first charge, on the 23rd December, the Judge found a prima facie case of receiving, and adjourned the case a week to let in evidence for the defence. Meanwhile he proceeded with the trial of the second charge, and remanded the prisoners for sentence. On the 30th December he tried them on the third charge, and acquitted them on it. On the 31st December he sentenced them on the first two charges. The Judge certified that he came to his finding on the first charge before hearing the second, and was not conscious of having been biased on the latter, by the evi-dence given on the first:—Held, that, inas-much as the circumstances of the three charges were altogether different as to time and place, and the only identity was in the persons charged, and in respect to the principal witness-and in view of what the learned Judge stated, and notwithstanding the expediency of not mixing up criminal chargesthe convictions should be upheld. Rex v. Bullock and Stevens, 24 C. L. T. 9, 6 O. L. R. 663, 2 O. W. R. 436, 901.

Signature of accused — Statement at preliminary hearing—Forgery.].—The signature of the accused to his statement at the preliminary hearing may be tendered as evidence against him at his trial for forgery. Rev. Golden, 11 B. C. R. 349, 10 Can. Cr. Cas, 278.

Statements made to constable at time of and after arrest-Admissibility --Inducement.] — The constable, when arresting the accused, said, "I arrest you for assaulting old man McGarvey." and proceeded to handcuff him. Accused asked to be permitted to go to the office to get some money, and inquired. "How much will the fine be?" to which the constable replied that he did not know anything about that. Subsequently the accused asked to have the handcuffs removed, as he had no intention of escaping, to which the constable answered that he was taking no chances, and that be "had not much sympathy with a man who would kick an old man and bite him." Held, that these remarks of the constable were not an inducement to the accused to speak. Rev. Druce, 13 B. C. R. 1, 12 Can. Cr. Cas. 255.

Testimony of accused—Cross-szamination—Previous convictions.) — An accused person, who on his trial for an indictable offence is examined as a witness on his own behaft, is, except so far as he may be shielded by some statutory protection, in the same situation as any other witness as regards liability to and extent of cross-examination, and may be cross-examined as to previous convictions. Res v. D'Aoust, 22 C. L. T. 228, 3 O. L. R. 653, 1 O. W. R. 344, 5 Can. Cr. Cas. 407.

Testimony of accused — Handwriting.] —A prisoner on trial, called as a witness on bis own behalf, cannot be compelled to furnish a specimen of his handwriting. Rex v. Grinder, 11 B. C. R. 370, 10 Can. Cr. Cas. 333.

Testimony of wife of accused.] — A wife on the trial of her husband for an indictable offence is a competent though not a compellable witness for the Crown. Gosselin v. Res. 15 Oue. K. B. 498.

Theft — Second trial—Testimony of jurymon at first trial as to condition of exhibit when, in jury-room—Admissibility.]—An application for leave to appeal from a conviction of the defendants for theft, the trial Judge having refused to state a case, was made to the Court of Appeal. The following were the circumstances. The defendants had been previously tried, and the jury had failed to agree. A purse found in the bedroom of one of the defendants, which, the Crown alleged, was one of the articles stolen by the defendants, was made an exhibit at the first trial, and was taken by the jury into the juryroom when they were considering their verdict. At the second trial two of the men who formed part of the jury at the first trial were called as witnesses for the Crown, and deposed that, when they examined the purse in the jury-room, they observed several barley-ends in it. The Crown alleged that the purse had been stolen from W., and his evidence at both trials was that he had been threshing in the country, and had the purse with him, and that he brought the purse into the city, and it was stolen from him. The defendant in whose room it was found claimed the purse as his own property. The ground of the application for leave to appeal was that the evidence of the two jurymen was impronerly admitted. The Court refused the application. R. v. Roso (1909). 15 W. L. R. 17.

Theft of cattle—Obliteration of brands —Evidence of similar acts—Admiseibility.] —The prisoner was charged with the theft of certain cattle, the brands upon which had been obliterated:—Held, that evidence that the brands upon other cattle had been similarly obliterated, and that the prisoner had in his possession branding irons adapted to causing the obliteration of the character found, was admissible; Rouleau, J., dissentiente. Regina v. Collyns, 3 Terr. L. R. 82.

Trial-Extorting money by accusing a person of an offence-Admissibility of documents as part of res gesta-Sufficient statement of offence.]-On the trial of a charge for extorting money by threatening to ac-cuse of an offence, a letter written to a third party by the person threatened at the time of the threats and at the instigation of the accused, but not read by him, is not admissible in evidence as part of the res gesta or otherwise .- A summons issued by a justice of the peace citing the accused to appear and answer a criminal charge is a "document containing an accusation" within the meaning of s. 406 (c) of the Criminal Code, 1892. -A summons issued as above need not have been issued at the instigation of the informant with the intent aforesaid, but the offence is complete if the summons is used by a a mare, the property of C. D., contrary to the statutes of Canada, s. 512," is sufficient. Rex v. Cornell, 6 Terr. L. R. 101.

Trial — Improper statement of wilness after ruling—Effect on jury—Discharge.]— Although a wilness at a trial before a jury volunteers evidence which the trial Judge has already ruled to be inadmissible and which might have weight with the jury in arriving at a verdict, yet the Judge should not for that reason immediately disclarge the jury and empanel a new jury to try the issue. Reav. Grobb, 6 W. L. R. 727, 17 Man. L. R. 191.

Verdict against evidence — New trial -Jury = Evidence of accused.] — Leave to move before the Court of Appeal for a new trial, upon the ground that the verdict is contrary to the whole of the evidence, will only be granted, under s. 747 of the Criminal Code, when the verdict amounts to a denial of justice; and that cannot be said of a verdict because the jury in rendering it have not taken into account the uncorroborated evidence of the accused of facts tending to shew that he is not guilty; the jury is at liberty to refuse it credence. Rex v. Molleur, 15 Que. K. B. 1.

Wife of prisoner — Indian marriage — English law.]—The North-West Territories Act, R. S. C. c. 50, s. 11, provides that, with some limitations, the laws of England, as the same existed on the 15th July, 1870. should be in force in the Territories in so far as the same are applicable to the Territories :-- Held, that the laws of England relating to the forms and ceremonies of marriage are not applicable to the Territoriescertainly quoad the Indian population, and probably in any case.—On the trial of a prisoner, an Indian, on a criminal charge, the evidence of two Indian women, M. and the evolution of two finality women, M. and K., was tendered for the defence. M. stated "that she was the wife of the prisoner; that he had two wives, and that K. was als other wife; that she, M., was his first wife; that she and the prisoner got married Indian fashion; that he promised to keep her all her life and she promised to stay with him, and that was the way the Indians got married ; that he married the other woman last winter; that he and the other woman lived with each other and that he took her for a wife, and that was all about it :"-Held, that the evidence quoted was sufficient evidence of a legally binding marriage between M. and the prisoner for the purpose of excluding the evidence of M. as being neither a competent oner a compellable witness against the pris-oner on a criminal charge. when so found the Judge has a right to discharge the prisoner. Prisoner discharged. Res. v. Galloway, 11 W. L. R. 673, 2 Alta. L. R. 258, 15 Can. Cr. Cas, 317.

Conviction by County Court Judge— Defendant held pending hearing of reserved case—Court of Appeal not holding session at usual time — Application for discharge.]— Prisoner was found guilty but was not sentenced and was legally remanded until 22nd November, 1900. Some questions of law having been reserved for the Court of Appeal, the appeal was hold its first session. On 12th November, on the return of a habeas corpus, the prisoner's discharge was asked for on the promoter the Statutes of British Columbia and no Judges appointed to sit therein. Conviction of foreigner - Return of valid conviction and warrant of commitment -Right to review evidence - Prisoner not understanding proceedings at trial-Interpreter — Capacity — Question for magistrate— Rights of foreigner on trial.]—Upon a motion to discharge a prisoner, upon the return of a writ of habeas corpus, the proceedings should not be conducted as upon an appeal from the magistrate's findings; the most that can be done is to see if there is evidence upon which the magistrate could pass and find as he did. All questions as to admissibility of evidence, method of conducting examinations, etc., are in the power of the trial tribunal; and such questions cannot be raised upon a motion to discharge .-- In this case the return was good upon its face, shewing a warrant of commitment which recited the conviction of the defendant for unlawfully committing an act of indecency in a public place; and there was ample evidence to support the conviction; but the defendant attempted to shew by affidavits that, not understanding English, he did not know that he was on trial, and did not understand the evidence given. This was contradicted by one who was sworn as an interpreter at the trial, and by a policeman :--Held, that the capacity of the interpreter and all matters connected with the interpretation of the evidence were questions for the magistrate, and his finding could not be attacked in this way .- Semble, that there is no inherent right in any foreigner that the proceedings taken in the Courts of this province shall be made wholly intelligible to him, even though he should be charged with crime. Discharge of prisoner — Condition of not bringing action against magistrate—Inability to impose—Jurisdiction of Divisional Court to remove.]—Where a prisoner is entitled to his discharge, under a writ of habeas corpus, by reason of no offence being disclosed in the material under which he was committed, such discharge cannot be made conditional on no action being brought against the magistrate or other person in respect of the conviction, or mything done thereunder; and a Divisional Court has jurisdiction on appeal to declare that the term of the order of discharge is muzatory. Gaz. 1887, p. 1918, Arts viii and ix, a requisition from that government for surrender of a fugitive is provided for as preliminary to any proceedings for arrest of the fugitive. —Held, that any proceedings taken without such requisition were a nully and the fugitive should be discharged upon Abeas corpus even after committal for extradition by a Judge. Prisoner discharged accordingly, — Re Lazier (1890), 26 A. R. 200, 3 Can. Cr. Cas, 167, distinguished on ground that there is no such provision in the Extradition Treaty with U, S. A. Fugitive Offenders Act. R. S. C. 1906, c. 154, s. 8. - Prisoner charged with embezslement — Arrested on warrant issued in Ireland — Enquiry before Toronto police magistrate — Committal to avacit return — Habeas corpus and certiorari in aid—Application for discharge—Warrant not properly endorsed—In lawful custody.] — Prisoner was arrested in Toronto on a charge of embezzlement, under a warrant issued in Ireland, and, after an enquiry, the Toronto police magistrate committed him to await his return under provisions of the Fugilive Offenders Act, R. S. C. (1906). c. 154. Prisoner moved, on return of a habeas corpus and certiorari in aid, for his discharge, on the ground that the warrant was not endorsed by the Governor-General or by a Judge of the High Court as required by s. 8 of the Act, and that, therefore, the police magistrate had no jurisdiction to enter upon the enquiry mentioned in s. 12, or to commit the prisoner, — Meredith, C.J.C.P. (17 O. W. R. 565, 2 O. W. 271), endorsed the warrant and held, that the application should be refused and the warrant of commitment, granted by the police magistrate, should be confirmed.—Court of Appeal held, that the police magistrate's warrant of commitment, gischarged under the writ of habeas corpus. Imprisonment in default of payment of fine and costs-Tender to deputy keeper of gaol-Reasonable time-Rule of prison as to hour of receipt of fine-Effect of-Discharge of prisoner.]-A warrant of commitment commanded the keeper of a common gaol to receive the defendant into his custody in the common gaol, there to imprison him for 30 days unless the amount of a fine and costs were sooner paid to the keeper. The defendant was apprehended under this warrant and received by the gaoler on the 12th March. His agent, on the 14th March, at 10 minutes before 8 o'clock in the afternoon. tendered the proper amount of the fine and costs to the person in charge, the deputy keeper, who refused to receive the money, on the ground that there was a rule of the gaol that no person would or could be released, on payment of the fine after 5 o'clock in the afternoon, until the next morning :--Held, that there was no power, statutory or common law, to make such a rule, and that the tender having been made at a reasonable time and to the proper person, the prisoner should have been released; and having been improperly detained after the tender, he was entitled to be discharged upon habeas corpus. Rex v. Colahan, 9 O. W. R. 661, 14 O. L. R.

Issue of two writs-Regularity of second-Subsequent arrest - Prisoner allowed out on recognizance-Sentence-Expiry of-" Escape" - Discharge - Protection - Order.]-The prisoner was convicted of an offence on the 17th January and sentenced to 4 months' imprisonment, but, instead of being imprisoned, his recognizance was taken by the magistrate to appear when called upon, and he was allowed to go free. On the 27th March, without any notice, a warrant was issued, and he was arrested and put in gaol. A writ of habeas corpus was granted, and motion for his discharge was made on the 26th April and refused, and papers being on their face regular, but leave was reserved to move for a new writ on the expiry of 4 months from the day of sentence. A new writ was granted on the 25th June, and motion made for his discharge on the 27th :--Held, that there was a right to issue the second writ, the first being premature, and there having been no adjudication upon the matter, Taylor v. Scott, 30 O. R. 475, distinucuished.—Heid, also, that the term of imprisonment having begun on the day of passing sentence, the full terms had expired; that the prisoner when out on his recognizance had not been guilty of an escape; and that he was not "at large . . . without some lawful cause;" and an order was made for his release. — Order for protection of magistrate made on terms. Liquor License Act - Conviction for second offence-Imprisonment-Habcas corpus and certiorari in aid-Right of Court to go behind regular conviction-R. S. O. 1897 c. 83, s. 5-Police magistrate - Territorial jurisdiction-Warrant of commitment-Clerical error - Depositions before magistrate-Absence of proof of previous conviction-Affidavit of magistrate-Defendant not allowed reasonable opportunity to make defence-Discharge,]-On a motion upon habeas corpus for the discharge of a person imprisoned under a conviction regular on its face, the Court will not rehear the case or weigh the evidence or sit in appeal, but will examine the depositions returned upon certiorari granted in aid of the habeas corpus, to see if there is any evidence to sustain the conviction, and, if none is found, will discharge the prisoner; this is required by the lan-guage of R. S. O. 1897 c. 83, s. 5,-2. The police magistrate for the town of Brampton has jurisdiction, at the request of the police magistrate for the township of Toronto, to try a person accused of an offence committed in the township .--- 3. A prisoner will not be discharged because the warrant of commitment returned, by a clerical error bears a date before that of the conviction upon which it is founded .- 4. The conviction of the prisoner returned purported to be for a second offence of selling intoxicating liquor without license, contrary to the Ontario Liquor License Act, and the sentence was 4 months' imprisonment as for a second offence. By s. 99 of the Act the magistrate is required to reduce to writing the evidence of the witnesses. which is to be read over to and signed by them. The depositions returned failed to shew any proof of a previous conviction :-Held, that the magistrate's affidavit that proof of the previous conviction was in fact properly given could not be accepted on the motion for discharge of the prisoner, and no evidence being returned to warrant the conviction for a second offence, which was essential to support the adjudication of imprison ment for 4 months, the prisoner was entitled to his discharge .--- 5. The prisoner was also entitled to his discharge on the ground that he was not allowed fair or reasonable opportunity to make his defence; he was served with a summons to appear the next day after service, to answer the charge; he did so; the information was then amended so as to charge an offence upon a day other than either of those mentioned in the summons and he was refused an adjournment; all of which, as well as other things in the proceedings before the magistrate, was contrar, to natural justice. Conviction-Appeal and certiorari-Concurrent remedy-Criminal Code, ss. 707, 708 -Attendance of justices to give judgment.] -The defendant, on the 15th May, 1908, gave notice of appeal to a County Court from a summary conviction. The conviction was signed by two justices, but on the day fixed for delivering judgment one justice read the conviction, the other not attending. An order for certiorari was taken out and served on the 20th May, and on the 27th May the defendant served a notice of his grounds of appeal :--Held, that under s. 1122 of the Criminal Code certiorari would not be allowed after appeal taken. In re Kelly, 27 N. B. VII. c. 34 - Certiorari-Right taken away-Ontario Summary Convictions Act. s. 7, s.-s. 2-Right of appeal-Liquor License Act. s. 118-Adequate remedy -Jurisaiction of magistrate.]-The right to take the new procedure for the quashing of convictions, etc., substituted by 8 Edw. VII. c. 34 (O.) for certiorari and proceedings founded thereon, must be confined to cases in which, prior to that Act, the defendant would have been entitled to a writ of certiorari; and where the right to certiorari is taken away the new procedure is not applicable .-- A motion made under the new procedure to quash a magistrate's conviction for an offence against the Ontario Liquor License Act was dismissed, except as to one ground, it being considered that the other objections to the conviction were not such as, if substantiated, would oust the jurisdiction of the magistrate, and also that in respect of them the defendant would have an adequate remedy by the appeal given him by s. 118 of the Liquor License Act; and, in these circumstances, the right to certiorari, and therefore the right to move under the new procedure, was taken away by s. 7. s.-s. 2, of the Ontario Summary Convictions Act, as enacted by 2 Edw. VII. c. 12, s. 14, amended by 4 Edw. VII. c. 10, s. 25,—1t cannot be said that, because defects in the proceedings before the magistrate may be cured by the appellate tribunal, therefore an appeal does not afford an adequate remedy. had.]-Prisoner was convicted by two justices of the peace and sentenced to the Central Prison for issuing a false cheque. The offence being indictable is not triable by two justices. They should have only held a preliminary enquiry and sent prisoner to gaol to await trial or bail. When prisoner was taken to Central Prison he moved before Clute, J., for his discharge on the return of a writ of habeas corpus with certiorari in aid .--- Clute, J., quashed the warrant of com-mitment to Central Prison, but instead of discharging him from custody, ordered him to be removed back to Cochrane and brought before the two justices for a preliminary hearing upon the charge, as provided by s. 1120 of the Code, as amended by 7 & 8 Edw. 12.0 of the Code, as anended by 1 & S. Conviction for keeping bawdy house -Criminal Code, ss. 207, 208 - Warrant of commitment-Jurisdiction-Habeas corpus-Amended warrant - Reception on appeal -Form of conviction-Statement of offence.]-The prisoner was convicted before three justices of the peace for being the keeper of a disorderly house, bawdy house, or house of ill-fame, or house for the resort of prostitutes -following the words of s.-s. (j) of s. 207 of the Criminal Code-and was committed to gaol for six months under a warrant signed by two of the justices. She obtained a writ of habeas corpus, and upon the return of it moved for her discharge, which was refused by a Divisional Court. She then appealed to the Court of Appeal, and, after the appeal had been argued and judgment reserved, the justices returned a further warrant of commitment signed by all three justices, which was received by the Court of Appeal. The offence was stated to have been committed in a city, for which there was a police magistrate. The warrant returned to the Court of Appeal was signed by all three justices, under their respective seals, and set forth a conviction by them, all acting in the absence of, and one at the request of, the police magistrate :- Held, that under s. 208 of the Criminal Code, as amended by 57 & 58 V. c. 57, one justice had jurisdiction to adjudicate upon the charge, and by R. S. O. 1897 c. 87, s. 7, had authority to act in the city in the absence of the police magistrate; and if authority be given to one justice it may be executed by any greater number. and the fact that others join in making the conviction does not invalidate the proceeding .- Held, also, that the conviction and commitment, following the language of s.-s. (j)of s. 207 of the Code, properly set out and disclosed the offence: s. 846 (2) of the Code (63 & 64 V. c. 46). Order of a Divi-sional Court affirmed. Res. v. Leconte, 11 O. L. R. 408, 7 O. W. Recping disorderly house—Specification as common gaming or betting housa— Summary trial under Part XVI.]—The defendant was charged before a maristrate fiel "unlawfully keep and maintain a disorderly house, to wit, a common gaming or betting house." The maristrate dealt with the matter summarily under Part XVI. of the Criminal Code, relating to "Summary Trial of Indictable Offences."—The charge was read to the accused, and he was asked whether he was guilty or not guilty, and he pleaded guilty thereto, and he was thereupon convicted and sentenced to be imprised with hard labour for 6 months, and, in addition, to pay a fine of $100. The conviction and warrant of commitment were in the terms of the information. Upon an application for a habeas corpus and a certiorari in aid i— Heid, upon the evidence, that the proceedings were not bad because of the defendant, who was a foreigner, not understanding the nature of the charge and not making his plea with a knowledge of its meaning; the evidence shewed that he understood and was fully advised.-The charge was laid under s. s. 1 of s. 228 of the Criminal Code, as amended by 8 & 9 Edw. VII. c. 9 :- Held. Lamont, J., dissenting, that the information conviction, and commitment were not bad by reason of the offence being double or by reason of the acts which make up the offence being stated in the alternative, Section 854 of the Criminal Code applies to proceedings under Part XVI. ; the word " count " in that section includes a charge reduced to writing by the magistrate and to which the defendant is called upon to plead, as provided by s.-s. 3, of s. 778 of the Code; the charge is a "pleading" within the definition in clause a "pieading" within the definition in clause 16 of s. 2 of the Code, as amended by 6 & 7 Edw, VII. c. 8. Abortion-Attempt to procure-Indictment-" Operate "-Conviction- Crown case reserved-Form of questions submitted.] -The accused had been charged with an offence under s. 303 of the Code, which enacts that "everyone is guilty of an indictable offence , who, with intent to procure the miscarriage of any woman, whether she is or is not with child . . . unlawfully uses on her any instrument or other means whatso-ever with the like intent," the first count charged that the accused, with the intent to procure a miscarriage, etc., did unlawfully use upon the person of the woman an instrument, etc.; the second count charged that with like intent the accused did unlawfully "operate" on the said woman. The evidence submitted by the Crown was directed solely to proof of the fact of the performance of an operation by the use of an instrument, substantially negativing the use of the hand or finger alone for the alleged purpose. The jury, however, were charged-after they had intimated that they were not satisfied that the evidence established the use of an instrument-that the use of the hand or finger might be considered in dealing with the second count. The jury found the accused not guilty on the first count, but guilty on the second count :--Held, that the second count might not unnaturally be regarded as a mere repetition in another form of the gravamen of the first count, and that by the finding of not guilty on that count the whole case against the accused failed, and the finding on the second count, therefore, could not be supported. Conviction quashed. Rex v. Cook (1909), 19 O. L. R. 174, 13 O. W. R. 826, 15 Can. Cr. Cas. 40.

a woman in Vancouver to submit to an operation in Seattle, to procure her miscarriage. —that no act beyond the borders of Canada, unless made so by statute, and to counsel the commission of an act, which if performed in Canada would be a crime in Canada, is not an offence against the laws of Canada. —Held, also, where the Supreme Court of British Columbia had ordered a new trial of the defendant—that the Privy Council would be very slow to interfere, at the instance of the prosecution, with a new trial directed by a Court of Appeal, in favour of an accussed. Judgment of the Supreme Court of British Columbia, granting defendant a new trial, confirmed. Res v. Walkem, C. R. (1908] A. C. 197. See 14 B. C. R. 1, 8 W. L. R. 857, 14 Can. Crim. Cas, 122.

Abortion - Defence - Lawful operation -Evidence in reply of previous criminal act -Unlawful intent-System - Inadmissible evidence-New trial.]-Upon an indictment of the defendants (P., a physician and sur-geon, and T. a boarding-house keeper), for procuring an abortion, the case for the Crown was that the defendants had performed an unlawful operation upon a certain woman, for the purpose of procuring a miscarriage. Of this there was evidence to go to the jury. The defence was then en-tered upon, and the defendant P. swore that the operation was performed for a lawful purpose, and without any criminal intent. He was cross-examined as to whether he had not, some few weeks previously, performed an operation upon a person then in Court. He denied having done so, and all knowledge of having treated her at all. This person and the man whom she had subsequently married were, against objection, called in reply, and gave evidence that P, had been employed to operate and had operated upon her so as to procure a miscarriage. It was contended that this evidence was admissible, as tending to rebut the evidence was admissible, as tending to rebut the evidence of \mathbf{P}_{\cdot} , or in other words to prove the unlawful in-tent:—Held, that the testimony of these witnesses was improperly admitted, there being no evidence of a system which would let in proof of a single prior criminal act as part of it. Rex v. Bond, [1906] 2 K. B. 389, discussed. The conviction of the defendants was set aside, and a new trial was dircetted under s. 1018 (b) and (d) of the Criminal Code. Rex v. Pollard and Tinsley (1999), 19 O. L. R. 96, 14 O. W. R. 399, 15 Can, Crim. Cas. 74.

Abortion—Evidence of accomplice—Corroboration — Verdict of guilty — Judge's charge,]—The accused was tried on a charge of procuring abortion, the only evidence heing that of the woman, who swore that she went to the accused and asked him to perform the operation, she herself being a consenting part thereto. The trial Judge dirceted the jury that they should not convict upon the uncorroborated evidence of the woman, who was particeps criminis. The jury brought in a verdict of guilty, and the Judge, on the application of the accused, reserved a case for the opinion of the Court en bane:—Meld, that the evidence of an accomplice, even though uncorroborated, is legal evidence and sufficient to support a conviction, but the trial Judge should advise the jury not to convict upon such evidence. Rew v. Reynolds, 1 Sask. Advertising medicine intended to prevent conception-Evidence to support conviction-Functions of Judge and jury -Acquittal-New trial. |- The evidence of the Crown, upon an indictment for an offence against s. 179 (c) of the Criminal Code, shewed that the defendant conducted a large business in various proprietary medicines. including a certain emmenagogue or medicine for stimulating or renewing the menstrual flow. This medicine was put up in boxes, in the form of tablets, and sold under the terms of an agreement, duly proved, between the defendant and the manufacturer. A box was produced as made up for the purpose of sale, with a brief printed description of the contents on the outside, across which a warning in red ink and large type was printed, not to use the tablets during pregnancy. Inside the box was a printed sheet or circular giving full directions for the use of the tablets; and a separate advertising circular referring to the tablets and describing their purposes and operation was also proved. In the "directions" there was this statement: "Thousands of married ladies are using these tablets monthly. Ladies who have reaagainst using these tablets." The Judge at the trial directed an acquittal, reserving a case for the Crown upon the question whether the evidence offered would support a conviction. A verdict of not guilty was accordingly returned :--Held, that the jury could have legitimately inferred from the language used that the tablets were thereby represented as a means of preventing concep-tion; and therefore it would have been right to have left the case to the jury ; and a conviction might have been supported. It is for the Judge to determine whether a document is capable of bearing the meaning assigned to it, and for the jury to say whether, under the circumstances, it has that meaning or and the chick the court declined to direct new trial. months. The magistrate imposed a penalty of $100, and in default of payment four months' imprisonment :--Held, that the words of the Act do not each describe a separate offence, but are merely an amplification of language to cover all shades or description of the same kind of offence-that of giving aid to a deserter .- Regina v. Gibson, 29 O. R. 663, distinguished .- At any rate s, 907 of the Code would cure any uncertainty .--- 2. That the penalty must be disposed of under ss. 927 and 928 of the Code, and was properly directed "to be paid and applied according to law."—3. The defendant discharged him under an order from the Lieut .-Gov., but there was no pardon. The ques-tions raised were: (1) Did the Lieut.-Gov.'s order justify the defendant? (2) If not, would an action lie at the suit of a private person, the committal being for a criminal offence? (3) If so, must plaintiff prove the watch was taken by the prisoner, be-fore he could recover:—Held, Peters, J., that the Lieut.-Gov, had no power to discharge the prisoner and that his order would not justify the jailor .- That the action would lie against the jailor—That plaintiff must prove his watch had been taken by the prisoner, and not having done so must be non-Mitchell v, Harvie (1852), 1 P. Altering or erasing names on voters' Hats-Criminal Code, 1892, s. 503-Wilful acts-Dominion Elections Act, 1900, ss. 21, 22, 23, 41-Franchise Act, 1898, s. 10-Polling divisions.]-When a returning officer, appointed to hold a Dominion election for an electoral district in Manitoha, selects one of the Clerk of the Crown in Chancery, pursuant to s. 21 of the Dominion Elections Act, 1900, as the one which he will certify and forward to the deputy returning officer, as required by s. 41, for use at one of the polling subdivisions, that copy so selected becomes a voters' list within the meaning of s. 503 of the Criminal Code, 1892, and it is an offence under that section for the returning officer wilfully to erase names of voters from it, either before or after he certifies it and forwards it to the deputy .-- 2. Such returning officer has no authority, under the Dominion Election Act, 1900, to create the voters lists upon which the election is to be held or under ss. 22 and 23 of the Elections Act. to make a new division of the constituency into polling subdivisions and re-arrange the names of the voters for each, when there are in fact polling divisions already established and used at the last provincial election for the same territory, whether or not such poll-ing divisions had been established in strict accordance with the requirements of the pro-vincial statutes.--3. The returning officer who wilfully makes such erasures from a voters' list cannot escape punishment on the ground that he had to make them in consequence of having made new polling sub-divisions which he had no authority to make .--- 4. The fact that the heading of the list of voters in ques-tion contained the words "Registration District No. 3," instead of " Polling Division No. 3," did not justify the returning officer in believing, if he did believe, that there were no polling divisions, since the territory of No. 3 was accurately described in the same The Court, having held that the trial Judge had erred in withdrawing the case from the jury and directing a verdict of not guilty, ordered a new trial. Under the Code, s. 351, every one is guilty of an indictable offence, and liable to 14 years' imprisonment, who steals anything in or from any railway station, or building, &c. :-Held, that there was but one crime charged, and that the place of detention was a proper place within the meaning of the law; Weit-therbe, J., and Graham, E.J., dissenting, Rex, v. White, 21 C. Assault -- Teacher and pupil-Criminal Code-Punishment-Excess.]-The Criminal Code, s. 55, authorises parents, persons in the place of parents, schoolmasters, etc., to use force by way of correction towards any child, etc., under his care, "provided such force is reasonable under the circumstances," but by s. 58, "everyone by law authorised to use force is criminally responsible for any excess." The defendant, a teacher in one of the public schools, was charged before a magistrate with assaulting, beating, and ill-using J. O., one of the pupils under his care, and was acquitted on the ground that there was no evidence of malice on his part or of permanent injury to the child :--Held, that the only question properly before the magistrate was whether the punishment was reasonable in the circumstances, or, in other words, whether there was excess :--- Held, that there is no warrant in the Code for the test applied in the American case of State v. Pendergrass, 31 Am. Dec. 365, and adopted by the magistrate, that it is necessary for the prosecutor to prove either that the person inflicting the punishment was actuated by malice or that his act resulted in perman-ent injury to the child. Rex v. Gaul, 24 C. L. T. 135, 36 N. S. R. 504.

Assault on peace officer in execution of duty—Attempt to arrest without warrant—Absence of offence justifying arrest. Rex v. Cook (B.C.), 3 W. L. R. 553.

Assaulting police officer — Arrest of suspect-Resisting—Warrant.] — Where the defendant, arrested by a provincial constable, who believed that a robbery had been committed, and that the defendant was one of the persons who committed it, and who, being asked to shew his authority, produced and read a warrant against F. E. and others, for breaking and entering a shop and stealing a quantity of goods therefrom, seeing that his name was not menioned in the warrant, resisted arrest, and in so doing assaulted a constable, and was tried and convicted for aussuiling a police officer in the discharge of his duity, with intent to resist lawful arrest, it was held that the arrest could be justified under the statute, notwithstanding the insufficiency of the warrant. Res v. Sabeans, 37 N. S. R 223.

Attempt to commit rape—Evidence— Identity of accused—Description—Criminal Code, s. 107—Rebuttal—Discretion—Lesser offences—Non-direction—New trial—Substantial wrong or miscurriage—Criminal Code, s. 7,46.]—It is the duty of the Judge on a criminal trial to exclude illegal evidence, and its admission is a ground for a new trial whether objected to or not on the trial.— Whether or not the conditions required by s. 107 of the Criminal Code to justify the admission of rebuttal testimony contradicting a witness who has denied making an alleged statement to a third party at variance with her testimony, have been fulfilled, is a ques-tion for the presiding Judge, and, if his discregory, JJ.: McLeod, J., dissenting.-On the trial of an indictment for an attempt to commit rape, statements of the person assaulted, and of her companion present at the beginning of the assault, made to police officers, some 4 hours after the assault, that they had given a description of the assailant, but not stating what the description was, and evidence of the officers that in consequence of such description they had looked for the assailant, were properly received, although been made to other persons .-- Where the victim of the assault on cross-examination had been asked if she had given a description of her assailant in the presence of her father, and if in consequence of such description, he had not suspected a person other than the prisoner, the Crown was properly allowed to prove by the father what the description was that his daughter had given in his presence: per Tuck, C.J., Hanington, Landry, and Gregory, J.J.; McLeod, J., dissenting,-Fail-ure to point out to the jury on the trial of an indictment to commit rape, the only issue involved being the identity of the prisoner, that on such an indictment the law permits the finding of a lesser offence than the one charged, is not error or non-direction for which a new trial will be granted .--- If material evidence, which may have influenced the jury, is properly admitted, a new trial must be granted, although the Court should there has been no substantial wrong or miscarriage within the meaning of s. 746 of the Code: per McLeod, J.; Tuck, C.J., contra. Rex v. Clarke, 2 E. L. R. 327, 38 N. B. R. 11.

Attempt to dissuade person from giving evidence - Court of Revision -Charge-Motion to quash-Criminal Code, 8. 154-Attempting to obstruct justice]-The prisoner was charged on two counts with (1) having attempted to dissuade a witness, B., by a bribe, from giving evidence before a Court of Revision held in connection with a contested provincial election; (2) with having attempted to obstruct the course of justice by giving to one B. $10 to induce him to abstain from attending such Court of Revision. B, was the person whose vote had been objected to and appealed against :---Held, on a motion to quark the charge, that it being charged that B, was dissuaded as a witness, not as a party, the first charge fell properly within clause (a) of s. 154 of the Criminal Code, 1892; but that the second charge was defective, at all events in omitting to state that B,'s absence from the Court of Revision would lead to a defeat of justice. Attempt to have unlawful carnal knowledge of a child—Reserved cosco-Evidence of child—Corroboration—Code ss. 302, 1003, 1—Defendant was charged under Code s. 302 with having attempted to have unlawful carnal knowledge of a child under the age of 14 years, to wit, of the age of 7 or 8 years. The trial Judge granted a reserve crese as to whether there was sufficient corroboration of the girl's statement fo comply with Code s. 1003 (2): And was the Judge right in holding that there was sufficient evidence to justify finding the defendant guilty? The Court of Appeal answered both questions adversely to defendant and confirmed the conviction. Res v. Borces (1900), 14 O. W. R. 1214, 1 O. W. N. 253, 20 O. L-R. 111.

Bawdy house — Accessory — Lessor.]—A person who leases his house to another to be used for purposes of prostitution, or who leases his house knowing that it is to be so used, make himself, under the provisions of s. 61 (b) of the Criminal Code, a party to and guilty of the offence of keeping a disorderly house, committed by his lessee subsequently to the lease of the premises, although the lessor was not himself the keeper; and he can be prosecuted, tried, convicied, and punished for such offence in the same manner as the actual keeper. Regina v. Roy, 9 Que, Q. B. 312.

Bawdy honse — Frequenting — "Habitual frequenter "—Conviction—Omission of averment of not giving satisfactory account of himself,]—The prisoner was convicted of being on a specified occasion " a frequenter of a house of ill-fame," it not being stated that he was in the "habit of frequenting," under ss. 238, 239 of the Code, or was an "habitnal frequenter," under s, 773 of the Code, and without anything appearing in the conviction to shew that he was asked to give, or failed to give, a satisfactory neceount of himself:—Held, that no offence was discharged on habeas corpus proceedings. Bawdy house - Keeping - Conviction for keeping a disorderly house-Habeas corpus-Statement of offence-Counsel for defendant-Refusal of adjournment to procure -Discretionary power of magistrate-Juris-diction-Criminal Code, ss. 238 (j), 715, 722.]-The defendant was convicted before two justices of the peace for being the keeper of "a disorderly house of prostitution or house for the resort of prostitutes." and was sentenced to six months' imprisonment in gaol. On application being made for her discharge upon a writ of habeas corpus, it appeared by her affidavit, which was not contradicted, that the magistrates had refused to adjourn the trial to enable her to procure counsel, but it did not appear that any injustice was caused by the refusal of the adjournment :--Held, affirming the order of Meredith, C.J.C.P., that the conviction was not in the alternative, specifying two offences, but properly set out one offence under s. 238 (j), of the Criminal Code .- Rex v. Leconte, 11 O. L. R. 408, followed.—Z. The defendant, under s. 715 of the Criminal Code, had the absolute right to the assistance of counsel if she could obtain it, but was not entitled as of right to an adjournment for the purpose of enabling her to do so. was a matter within the discretion of the magistrates under s. 722, and their refusal to adjourn did not affect their jurisdiction so as to enable the defendant to quash the con-Weinback the defendant to quash the con-viction in a habeas corpus proceeding. — Regina v. Breach of Gold & Silver Marking Act — Guaranteeing to wear for specified time.]—Defendant was convicted of a breach of the Gold and Silver Markinz Act, 7-8 Edw, VII, c. 30, s. 16 (b), which enacts that "everyone is guilty of an indictable offence who being a dealer within the meaning of this Act. . . . (b) makes use of any written or printed matter or advertisement or applies any mark to any article of any kind referred to in s. 13 or in s. 14 of this Act or to any part of such article guaranteeing or purporting to guarantee by such matter, advertisement or mark, that the gold or silver on or in such article or such part thereof will wear or last for any specified time." Defendant appealed to Court of Appeal held, that above s.-s. was infra vires of the Dominion Parliament. Conviction confirmed. — La Compagnie Hydraulique de St. Francois v. Burglary — Possession of stolen property — Inference of guit — Lapse of time — Jury — Verdict — Dissent of juror—Reconsideration — Judge's charge — Comment on failure of prisoner to testify.]—The jury in a criminal trial may be sent back for further deliberation when, upon being polled, one of the jurors dissents from the verdict of "guilty" announced by the foreman; and a subsequent unanimous verdict of "guilty" may properly be accepted.—Upon the trial of the prisoner for burglary and burglariously stealing property, the Judge in his charge to the jury remarked that if they did not believe the evidence of a certain witness, they were "brought face to face with the fact that the prisoner is found in possession of a pouch which was stolen . and that he has not given a satisfactory explanation of how he came into possession of it: -Held, that the Judge did not thereby suggest to the jury that the prisoner might have given evidence in his own behalf, or that an inference unfavourable to him might be drawn from the fact that he had not done so.—The burglary was on the 18th or 19th December, 1903, and the prisoner was arof the articles stolen upon his person:---Held, that the Judge could not properly have ruled, in all the circumstances of the case, that the lapse of time was so great as absolutely to repel any presumption that the prisoner was concerned in the burglary ; and that the possession of the article and other circumstances warranted the jury in drawing an inference of guilt. Leave to appeal was refused, and rulings of Street, J., at the trial, were affirmed. Rev v. Burdell, 11 O. L. R. 440, 7 O. W. R. 164.

Carnal knowledge — Girl under 14— Between 14 and 16—Two offences tried together—Second charge withdrawn from jury —Found ouilty on farst charge—Bridence— Admissibility — Corroboration — Child gehibited to jury—Likeness to prioner—Crimtinal Code, ss. 211, 301, 856, 857, 1140.]— Defendant was charged with an offence against s. 201 and a subsequent offence against s. 201 and a subsequent offence against s. 301 and a subsequent offence against s. 301 and the evidence was in the trial Judge withdrew the second charge from the jury. He was convicted of the offence against s. 301, at the trial three was no objection made to the two counts being tried together. The proscentry exhibited her child and alleged it to be the child of defendant. The similarity of the child to defendant was pointed out and offered as evidence. Defendant askel for a stated crase, but the trial Judge refused. Defendant then moved for leave to appeal to Court of Appeal, and for an order directing the trial Judge to state a case.—Court of Appeal held, that defendant had failed to make out a case that would justify the order asked, (1910), 17 O, W. R. 651, 2 O. W. N. 307, O. L. R. , Can Cr Cas.

Carnal knowledge of girl under 14 -Testimony of girl-Knowledge of nature oath-Instruction for purposes of trial.] of -Upon a stated case, the question was whether the complainant, a girl under 14, appeared sufficiently to understand the nature of an oath to justify the magistrate in re-ceiving her testimony. The magistrate stated that on examination of the girl he found that she did understand, and there was nothing in her answers as reported to indicate otherwise. It appeared, also, that she had been attending school, and the handwriting of her signature to the depositions was good : -Held, that the magistrate was right in receiving the girl's evidence under oath, and that the fact that she had been instructed on the subject of the nature and meaning of an oath a few days before the trial, afforded no sufficient ground for holding otherwise. Rex v. Armstrong, 10 O. W. R. 508, 15 O. L. R. 47.

Carnal knowledge of young girl— By prisoner on his oten premises—Knowledge of age of girl—Onus of shewing on Croven— Criminal Code, s 217.] — Court of Append held, that it is necessary for the Crown to prove that the accused knew the girl was under the age of 18 years in order to support a conviction under s. 217 of the Code.—That above section does not make it an offence for the owner of premises to have illicit connection upon his premises with a girl within the prescribed age.—R. v. Karn (1969), 14 O. W. R. 1215, 20 O. L. R. 91, 15 Can. Cr. Cas. 201, distinguished. R. v. Nam Sing (1910), 17 O. W. R. 1043, 2 O. W. N. 493. O. L. R. , Can. Cr. Cas.

Causing injury to persons and properity-Can. Rev. Act. 8, 415, repeated—Code sa. 283, 1014,1—Defendant, an engineer in the employ of the C. P. R. Co., was convicted of negligence in not closing a switch on the railway, contrary to the regulations made by the company, thereby causing injury to person and property. The conviction was made under s. 415 of the Can. Rw. Act, which was repeated. The magistrate reserved, for the opinion of the Court of Appeal, the following among other questions: Should the conviction be allowed to stand under s. 238 of the Code²--Meld, that the conviction should be quested. Rev. V. Orrigon (1909), 14 O. W. R. 1219, 1 O. W. N. 248, 2 O. L. R. 90.

Charging crime—Sufficiency of charge— "Unlawfully did steal."[—The prisoner was summarily tried on the charge that he on a certain day "unlawfully did steal one piece of Oregon pine wood, of the value of $3.40, the property of His Majesty the King." The prisoner having been convicted, a case was reserved as to whether the charge on which he was tried was bad by reason of the omission to charge the offence as having been committed "fraudulently and without colour of right."—Heid, Weatherbe, J., dissenting, that the words "unlawfully did steal," in the charge, meant and included everything necessary to constitute the offence of theft or stealing as defined by s. 305 of the Code, and that the conviction, so far as this question was concerned, was right. Reav v. George, 35 N. S. R. 42.

Circumstantial evidence-Crown case reserved - Nature of weight of evidence -New trial. 1-The defendant was tried and convicted on a charge of theft upon evidence shewing that the prosecutor's money had been stolen ; that the defendant was employed upon the same ship and slept in the same "square;" that the defendant had asked the prosecutor for a loan of money a day or two before and had been refused; that the defendant was seen with money in his possession on the day the prosecutor's was stolen; but no attempt was made to identify the money seen in the defendant's possession with that stolen, nor was it shewn that the defendant knew where the prosecutor kept his money; the defendant, however, made to a third person a faise statement as to the source from which he got the money he had :--Held, Weatherbe, J., dissenting, that there was some evidence to support the conviction.-2. That a question reserved for the Court, "Whether the convicting Judge was justified in drawing from the facts stated a presumption sufficiently strong to justify him in adjudging the defendant guilty," was not a proper question to reserve; such a question could only come before the Court on a motion for a new trial. --3. Per Graham, E.J., that the case was one in which the Court should exercise its power under the Griminal Code, s. 746, to order a new trial. But per Meagher, J., that the remedy by case reserved and that by motion for a new trial were not open to the accused at the same time. Regina v. MacDaffrey, 53 N. S. R. 232.

Coal Mines Regulation Act-Master and servant-Wages-Deduction-Penalty-Company - Conviction - Imprisonment -"Person aggrieved" - Repeal of section of statute-Appeal.]-Under the provisions of the Coal Mines Regulation Act, R. S. N. S. 1900 c. 19, s. 29, "The wages or salary of any employee in a mine shall not be pa. otherwise than in money current in the Dominion of Canada;" and by s. 30, "The owner . . . who contravenes or fails to comply" (with the foregoing provision) 'shall . . . be guilty of an offence against this chapter and liable to a penalty of not less," etc. The defendant company, in making payment to one of their employees of an amount due him for wages, deducted therefrom a small sum on account of indebtedness incurred by him for goods purchased at the company's store :- Held, following Williams v. North Navigation Col-lieries, [1900] A. C. 136, that the defendants were within the provision recited respecting the penalty, and were liable.--A penalty can be enforced against a company under the Summary Convictions Act, and the fact that the form of conviction under the Act provides for imprisonment in default of distress, which would be inapplicable to corporations, does not displace the remedy under the Act .-- A magistrate in making a conviction and distributing the penalty can-not direct the penalty to be paid to "the person aggrieved" when the provision enabling such payment to be directed has been repealed before the information is laid .- An appeal lies to the Supreme Court from the judgment or decision of a Judge of a County Court in respect to orders, judgments, and convictions of justices of the peace taken by way of appeal to the County Court. Rex v. Dominion Coal Co., 2 E. L. R. 267, 41 N. S. R. 137.

Common gaming house.]-The prisoner was lessee of a room to which the public had free access, and in which several people congregated and played a game called "black jack." There was no constant dealer, and the lessee got no benefit. The dealer (who is chosen on commencing by cutting the cards) has an advantage, and as a rule can keep the deal five or six minutes .- The prisoner was convicted, under s. 196 of the Code. of keeping a common gaming-house, and the Court of Criminal Appeal confirmed the conviction, holding that, as the dealer (banker) had an advantage over the other players, game came under the provisions of s. 196. *Regima v. Common gaming house - " Cain " Evidence.]--In order to obtain, under s. 198 of the Criminal Code, a conviction of a person for keeping a disorderly house, to wit, a common gaming-house, as defined by s. 196 (a), the Crown must shew by satisfactory evidence that the person charged is deriving some gain or profit from keeping the house, room, or place, and allowing games of chance to be played therein.—And where it was shewn that the only source of profit to a person in whose room a game of cards was played for money stakes was a small deduction made (with the consent of the players, and not as a matter of right or a condition of any one being admitted to the game) from the total stakes upon the table at various times, for the ostensible purpose of paying for the refreshments provided, and it was not shewn that the total sum derived from such deductions was more than sufficient to pay for the refreshments, the sudge refused to convict. Regina v. Sanders, 20 C. L. T. 213.

Common gaming house - Keeping-Conviction by police magistrate-Summary trial - Excessive fine-Power of Court to amend conviction.]-The defendant was summarily tried before the police magistrate for a city and convicted for that he did unlawfully keep a disorderly house, to wit, a comtury keep a disorderly nouse, to wit, a com-mon gaming house, at (specifying the place) and sentenced to pay a fine of $200 and "costs of the Court," and, in default of payment, to 4 months' imprisonment. The conviction having been removed into the Court of Appeal by certiorari:-Held, that the penalty imposed was beyond the statutory authority of the police magistrate; and that Parliament had not conferred on the Court the power to amend the conviction by lessening the amount of the fine; and the conviction was quashed, but on condition that no action should be brought by or on behalf of the accused in respect of the pro-Densit of the accused in respect of the proceedings—Construction and interpretation of sa. 220, 228, 721, 773, 774, 777, 781, 1124, of the Criminal Code. Comptimes — indictment.] — The defendants were indicted for unlawfully conspiring and arreeing together and with each other to deprive one W, G, of the necessaries of life, to wit, projer medical care and nuring, whereby his death was caused :—Held, that this count did not charge the defendants with a conspiracy to commit any indictable offence known to the law, and should have been quashed.—A second count charged that the defendants did unlawfully conspire and arree together and with each other to effect the cure of W, G, of a sickness endangering life, hy unlawful and inproper means, thereby causing the death of the said W, $G_1:=-Held$, that his count was equally bad, and was properly quashed. *Rex v. Conspiracy — Offence committed in one county and tried in another—Venue—Jurisdiction—Criminal Code, R. S. C. 1906, c. 146, ss. 577, 653.]—On an information laid in the county of York, the accused wave charged with numerous offences against the election law alleged to have been committed in the " county of York, and in the county of Middlesex, and at other places in the pro-vince unknown," None of them resided, nor York, but they were brought into that county solely by process issued under the informa-tion. Before the sitting of the assize Court in the county of York the accused surrendered to the sheriff of the county, and elected to be tried before the County Court Judge.— The grand jury returned a true bill against them. The offence, however, found to be established, and on which they were convicted, was a conspiracy wholly entered into and wholly carried out in the county of Middlesex, with no overt acts outside that county :--Held, on a case reserved, that there county of York, and that the conviction should be quashed notwithstanding, s. 577 of the Criminal Code. the various sub-sections of s. 498 of the Criminal Code it was unnecessary to allege in the charge or prove an unlawful act as the object of the conspiracy. The trial Judge refused to order particulars and tried the twelve counts together :--Held, that this was discretionary on his part, and there is nothing to indicate that his discretion was not properly exercised, or that defendant was in any way prejudiced. A charge of conspiracy with certain named persons and other unknown, or some or one of them, is not too indefinite .- The conviction of this defendant will not be guashed because others are not convicted. As to objection that some of the evidence was inadmissible, there being 1,000 pages of it, the Court held there was evidence on which the judgment could reasonably be supported. Meaning of "unduly to prevent competition" considered. Rex v. Clarke, 9 W. L. R. 243, 1 Alta, L. R. 358, 14 Can. Crim. Cas. 46, 57.

Conspiracy-Restraint of trade-Illegal combination-Criminal Code, ss. 496, 498 -" Unduly prevent or lessen competition" -Public policy—Trial — Numerous counts in indictment — Particulars — Amendment — Conviction - Appeal - Evidence.]-The offences enumerated in s.-ss. (a), (c), and (d) of s. 498 of the Criminal Code are not governed by the definition in s. 496, and it is not necessary where a charge is laid under any of these sub-sections, to allege or prove an "unlawful" act .- It is within the discretion of the trial Judge to order particulars or not, and, where there are several counts, to direct whether they shall be tried together or not.-A charge that the accused "did conspire with certain persons (naming them), and others unknown, or some or one of them. is not too indefinite.-Where there are several counts in a "charge" or indictment for conspiracy, and the accused is convicted on one count only, the conviction will not be quashed merely by reason of the fact that some evidence had been received that would have been inadmissible if the charge or indictment had been confined to the single count under which the conviction was made .-- In any event the appellate Court can review the evidence to determine whether there was evidence on which the judgment can reasonably be supported .--- Discussion of meaning of words " to unduly prevent or lessen competition." and application to the special circumstances.-Semble, per Stuart, J., that, if inadmissible evidence bearing upon the particular count of the indictment under which the conviction is made is improperly received, the conviction would be bad; but, as the appeal under s. 1012 of the Criminal Code is in the nature of a rehearing, the Court, disregarding all such evidence, and looking only at the evidence clearly admissible, may form its own judgment on the guilt or innocence of the prisoner, and affirm or quash the conviction accordingly. Conspiracy - Trade combination -Criminal Code, s. 498-Construction-" Un-due" restraint-Conditions governing grain trade-Grain dealers' associations-By-lows. regulations, and agreements - Restraint of trade-Regulation of prices-Pooling receipts -Commission rule-Evidence-Books of elevator companies-Rejection.]-1. Section 496 of the Criminal Code, R. S. C. 1906 c. 146. must be read along with s. 498, and, notwith-standing the absence of the word "unduly" from s.-s. (b) of s. 498 and its presence in 8.-88. (a), (c), and (d), it is only such combinations as contemplate the doing of unlawful acts that are punishable criminally under s. 498 (b), although they may to a limited extent restrain or injure trade or commerce in relation to a commodity which is a subject of trade of commerce, and the statute condemns only those restraints which are not justified by any personal interests of the combining parties, but are mere malicious restraints unconnected with any of their business relations - Gibbons v. Metcalfe, 15 Man, L. R. 583, Mogul Steamship Co. v. McGregor, [1892] A. C. 25, Hopkins v. Uni-ted States, 171 U. C. R. 594, and United States v. Joint Traffic Association, ib, 568, followed .--- 2. Regulations made by the members of a grain exchange intended, and primarily operating, for the proper carrying on of their trade and for the reasonable benefit of the members, are not a crime or an illegal conspiracy, even though indirectly, to some extent, they do restrain trade .- Swaine v. Wilson, 24 Q. B. D. 252, followed .-- 3. None of the by-laws, rules, and regulations following, adopted and enforced by the members of a grain exchange, although more or less in restraint of trade or commerce in wheat, can be said to be undue restraints so as to render the members punishable under the Code: -(a) A by-law prohibiting the members from charging, on the purchase or selling of grain, less than one cent, per bushel as commission.-(b) A by-law prohibiting members from employing agents to buy grain at points where the volume of business was not sufficient to enable them to pay a salary of $50 per month.—(c) A regulation forbidding members from buying track wheat at country points during the market hours on the Exchange (9.30 a.m. to 1.15 p.m.)-(d) An agreement amongst the elevator companies that, during a portion of each year towards the close of navigation, they would not have more than 5,000 bushels of purchased wheat in any one interior elevator at any one time. -(e) An agreement between elevator companies for the pooling of receipts at certain points where, from a variety of causes, there was more elevator capacity than the trade required, and the companies found it necessary, in order to cut down expenses and avoid raising the elevator charges, to adopt that agreement. - 4. The above mentioned regulations and acts complained of by the Crown, taken in connection with their surrounding conditions, made on the whole for a mere stable market_at the fullest values than if totally unregulated competition had prevailed, and so were for the public good. -5. The trial Judge properly rejected as evidence the books of elevator companies with which the accused did not appear to be connected. Rex v. Gage, 18 Man. L. R. 175, 6 W. L. R. 19, 7 W. L. R. 564.

Conspiracy combination -Criminal Code, s. 520-Evidence-Incorporated companies-Aets preceding incorporation -"Person."]-Held (Osler and Meredith JJ.A., dissenting), that upon an indictment of two incorporated trade associations for conspiracy in restraint of trade under s. 520 of the Criminal Code, the defendants were to be judged and condemned, if condemned at all, upon the acts proved to have been committed by them after incorporation. but in weighing and estimating such acts the Court might look at the immediately or proximately antecedent acts of the individuals now comprising the corporation and directing its operation; and that, in this case, the acts occurring after incorporation were, in view of their history, origin, and apparent purpose, sufficient to support a conviction .--Held, per Garrow, J.A., that it was not a sound objection to the indictment that it would not lie against any corporation except those named in s. 520, nor that there must be at least one natural person as distinct from a corporation indicted as a co-conspirator,--Held, per Meredith, J.A., that the con-viction was bad because there was no evidence of any concluded agreement, legal or illegal. on the part of one of the associations; and also because such association was not within the provisions of s. 520, not being one of the corporations named ; and the word " per-Son " was there used in its ordinary sense, and not as including a company. Res v. Master Plumbers & Steam Fitters Cooper-ative Assoc., 9 O. W. R. 450, 14 O. L. R. 295.

Conspiracy - Trade combination -Preventing or lessening competition — Crim-inal Code, s. 520 (d) — "Unduly"—Conviction — Evidence justifying — Association of traders—Constitution and by-laws—Limitation of time for prosecution-Continuing offence-Appeal from conviction-Cross-appeal by Crown.]-Defendant was president of the Ontario Coal Association, an organisation having as its object the protection of its members against the shipment of coal direct to consumers by producers. Members agreed not to sell coal for less than certain fixed prices, and not to buy nor sell with dealers in coal who sold direct to consumers, or who refused to maintain the prices fixed by the association. A claim for 50 cents per ton might be made against any member who made any irregular sales of coal, and the member was to be expelled from the association on refusal to pay the penalty so fixed. membership list and a non-membership list were published by the association, which was sent to their wholesale friends so they might be on the lookout so as to guard against irregular shipments. There was evidence that coal dealers in Buffalo had refused to sell coal wholesale to non-members of the association in Ontario. Defendant was convicted under s. 520 (d) of the Criminal Code, which enacts that every one is guilty of an indictable offence, etc., who conspires, combines, etc., to undaly prevent or lessen competition in the production, manufacture, purchase, harter, sale, transportation, or supply of any article or commodity which may be a subject of trade or commerce. Defendant appealed to the Court of Appeal in the manner provided by s. 5 of 52 V. c. 41; and the Crown cross-spacelade, seeking a conviction upon the other counts:—Held, (1) defendant was rightly convicted. The plain object of the association was to restrict and confine the sale of coul by retail to its own members, and to prevent anyone else from obtaining it for that purpose from the operators and skippers. (2) The objection that the prosecution was too late, and was barred by s. 930 of the Code failed, as the offence was a continuing one (and if applicable to indictable offences it did not apply):—Held. The cross-appeal of the Crown should be disaissed, as s. 5 of the Act only rupiled to an appeal from a conviction. Rex v. Ellicit, 5 O. W. R. 163, 9 O. L, R. 648.

Conspiracy in restraint of wholesale grocery trade-Not guilty.]-This was a prosecution under s. 498 of the Code for an prosection under s. 458 of the Code for an alleged conspiracy connected with trade and commerce. The indictment charged that de-fendants did unlawfully conspire one with the other and with some 208 named persons, firms and corporations, and with the several officers and members of the Dominion Wholesale Grocers' Guild; (1) to unduly limit the facilities in producing, manufacturing, supplying and dealing in sugar, tobacco, starch, cannel goods, salt and cereals and other articles and commodities, being articles and commodities which are the subject of trade and commerce; (2) and to restrain and injure trade and commerce in relation to such articles and commodities: (3) and to unduly prevent, limit and lessen the manufacture and production of such articles and commodities; (4) and to unreasonably enhance the price of such articles and commodities; (5) and to unduly prevent and lessen competition in the production, manufacture, purchase, barter, sale, and supply of such articles and commodities against the form of the statute in such case made and provided, and against the peace of Our Lord the King.-The evidence shewed that the object of the Guild in seeing the manufacturers was to try to get, if possible, sufficient profit to deliver or market their goods without drawing upon the profits of other portions of their business. There was no evidence of the enhancing of prices, no complaint by any consumer, no complaint by any retail dealer, but rather approbation :- Held, that (1) the defendants did not, nor did any of them intend to violate the law; (2) nor did they or any of them intend to maliciously injure any persons, firms or corporations, nor to compass any restraint of trade unconnected with their own business relations; (3) they were actuated by a bona fide desire to protect their own interests and that of the wholesale grocery trade in general. As far as intention and good faith, or the want of it, are elements in the offence, the evidence was entirely in their favour. Defendants are not, nor is any of them guilty as charged, but it is of the essence of the innocence of defendants that the privileges which they seek to enjoy should be extended to all persons and corportations who are strictly wholesalers, whether they choose to join the Guild or not, R, v. Beckett (1910), 15 O. W. R. 449, 20 O. L. R. 401, 1 O. W. N. 167.

Conspiracy to defraud-Indictment -Overt acts-Name of person defrauded -Preliminary proof-Witness Discrediting.] -In an indictment charging a conspiracy to defraud, it is not necessary to set out overt acts done in pursuance of the illegal agreement or conspiracy, nor is it necessary to name the person defrauded or intended to be defrauded. Before the acts of alleged conspirators can be given in evidence, there ought to be some preliminary proof to shew an acting together, but it is not necessary that a conspiracy should first be proved. A party may not introduce general evidence to impeach the character of his own witness, but he may go on with the proof of the issue, although the consequences of so doing may be to discredit the witness. Rex v. Hutchinson, 11 B. C. R. 24.

Conspiring to defraud by falsely increasing weights - Reserved case - Question of corroboration-Criminal Code, ss. 1014, 1015.]-Prisoner was convicted on a charge of conspiring with one Morden by deceit and falsehood to defraud the Hamilton Steel & Iron Company, by falsely increasing the weight of scrap iron sold to the company. The trial Judge stated a case under ss. 1014, 1015, of the Criminal Code for the opinion of the Court of Appeal. The questions reserved were: (1) Had the Judge power to convict the prisoner on the evidence of an accomplice alone? (2) If not, was there sufficient corroborative evidence?-Held, that the questions should be answered adversely to the detendant and the conviction versely to the decision and the conviction sustained. In re Memoir, [1894] 2 Q B, 415, and R, v. Tate, [1908] 2 K, B, 680, 21 Cog 603, followed, R, v. Warren (1900), 2 Cog 104, 25 T, L, R, 633, not approved. R, v. Beckwick (1856), 8 U, C, C, P, 274, specially referred to, R, v. Frank (1910), 16 O. W. R. 50, 21 O. L. R. 196.

Conversion of chattel by finder .-Pawning-Criminal intent - Question for jury.]-The prisoner was convicted of stealing a watch. The evidence shewed that he found the watch, and a few hours afterwards on the same day pawned it for a small advance. The Judge told the jury that, if the prisoner found the watch, and afterwards disposed of it to his own use, he was guilty of theft; it made no difference whether he discovered the owner or not. He also told them that the raising of a temporary loan on anything found constituted a theft. The following questions were reserved for the opinion of the Court :---1. If the prisoner found the goods and afterwards disposed of them to his own use was he guilty of theft? 2. Does the raising of a temporary loan on anything found constitute theft? In answer the Court said: " Not necessarily as a matter of law. Whether or not the conversion by the finder to his own use of goods found by him is a guilty conversion is a question for the jury, upon consideration of all the circumstances. The direction of the Judge to the jury in this case was equivalent to a direction that as a matter of law the accused was guilty; the finding was therefore rather a finding by the learned Judge than by the jury, and for that reason cannot be upheld." Regina v. Slavin, 21 C. L. T. 54.

Conviction for marder — Refuel of trial Judge to state case for Court of Append — Intoxication of prisoner — Leading questions—Charge to jury—Motion for leave to append.]—Prisoner convicted of murder made application to trial Indee to reserve quesention of prisoner when be committed the deed, and as to alleged leading questions; also as to other matters arising from the charge to the jury. Trial Judge keld, 14 0. W. R. 988, I. O. W. N. 187, that the application should be refused. Prisoner then moved for leave to appeal to the Court of Append —Held, that all the objections relied upon were groundless and the motion must be refused. Rex v. Spinelli (1900), 14 0. W. R. 1257, I 0, W. N. 245.

Conviction for murder-Reserved case -Beidence, I--Prisoner was convicted of nurdering one Sinioff. Motion was made for the discharge of the prisoner on a reserved case by Riddell, J. The questions reserved were: "Was the evidence of statements made by the prisoner at the police station properly admitted?" And, "should there be a new trial because of wrongful admission of the said evidence, or any part thereof?"-Held, that the questions should be answered adthe prisoner and the conviction affirmed. Rex v. Steffof, 14 O. W. R. 1236, 1 O. W. N. 250, 20 O. L. R. 103.

Conviction of minor - Recitals - Religious faith — Place and term of imprison-ment.] — The defendant was convicted before a magistrate for theft, and was sentenced to be imprisoned in the Halifax Industrial School for three years. By the Criminal Code, s. 10, the punishment for such an offence when the accused is under sixteen is imprisonment for not more than three months in the common gaol; but by 53 V. c. 37 34 (D.), any boy, being a Protestant and a minor apparently under sixteen, convicted in Nova Scotia and liable to imprisonment. may be sentenced to be detained in the school for not less than two and not more than five years :---Held, that it was not necessary in the conviction to recite the age of the defendant or the opinion of the magistrate as to his age; the power of determining the apparent age being given exclusively to the magistrate, it should be assumed that he has exercised it: the age of the accused and whether he is or is not a Protestant need not be inquired into on the trial of the offence, but would form a subject of inquiry after conviction and before sentence. Distributing obscene printed matter -Criminal Code, s. 179 (a) -Knowledge of contents-Meaning of "obscene."1-Case re-Prisoner was indicted under s. 179 (a) for distributing obscene printed matter, "To the Public; The Evil Exposed; The Plot against Prince Michael Revealed." The Judge found the offence proved as charged, and reserved the following points for the opinion of the Court of Appeal: 1. Is the printed matter complained of obscene within the meaning of s. 179 (a) of the Criminal Code? 2. Did the prisoner, without lawful excuse, distribute prisoner, without inwith excuse, distribute such obscene printed matter?—Held, affirming the conviction, that the word "obscene," as used in s. 179 (a) means the doing of any indecent act in a public place; s. 179 (b), publicly exhibiting any disgusting object; and s. 180 (c), transmitting by post any letter or circular concerning schemes devised or intended to deceive the public, or for the purpose of obtaining money, under false pretences. This part of the Code strikes indecency, and it is in that sense that the word is used in s. 179. The whole of the printed matter, disgusting as it is, is set forth in United States y. Mabs, 51 Fed. Rep. 41. Rew v. Bearer, 5 O. W. R. 102, 9 O. L. R.

Disturbing public meeting — Municipal decinon—Grainual Cade.] — Article 173 of the Criminal Cade, which declares it an offence to disturb, interrupt, or disquiet any assemblage of persons met for religious worship, or for any moral, social, or benevolent purpose, by profane discourse, by rade or indecent behaviour, or by making a noise, does not apply to a meeting of electors called by one of the candidates during a municipal election. Articles 2946 to 2964, R. S. Q., sufficiently provide for the preservation of order at public meetings other than those mentioned in Art, 173, Criminal Code. Res V. Lavoic, 21 Que, S. C. 128.

Disturbing religious meeting — Conduct amounting to.1.— A person who enters a hull, leased by a religious association or body, while a meeting for relificous morship is being held in it, under the direction of officers of the association, and addressing himself to the association, and addressing himself to the association, as most of them are, that they should not stay where they are, and calls upon them to leave, is guilty of the offence of disturbing a religious meeting under s, 173 Criminal Code. Moore v. Gauthier, 14 Que. K. B. 530.

Embezzlement-Case stated as a proce-Emberziement—Case stated as a proce-dure—Power of Judae to amend—Trial at one time of several charges—Code as, 852, 853, 854, 856, 834, 839, 854, 1—Defendant was brought to trial before the Judge of the County Court for District No. 2, charged with having, between certain dates, while acting as cashier in the freight and express office of the Hulifox and South Wessene Bailway the Halifax and South Western Railway, received various sums of money for which he was bound to account, and pay over, but as to which he unlawfully and fraudulently converted the same to his own use.-Objection was taken on the part of defendant, that each taking constituted a separate offence, and the prosecuting counsel thereupon, by leave of the Judge, amended by substituting separate charges covering the amount specified in the original charge. - Defendant pleaded not guilty to each of said charges, and was tried upon the first charge and found guilty of fraudulently not accounting, but acquitted as to so much of the charge as charges were adjourned until the 27th Nov-ember, when the learned Judge directed the prisoner to be tried at the same time upon the 16th 29th, and 38th charges :-- Held, overruling objections taken on the part of the prisoner that the charge was sufficiently and legally set forth, it being clear that it was the object of the Code, (Code s. 852, s.-ss. 2, 3; s. 853, s.-s. 2; s. 854 and form of this character, and that the count or charge should be svalid provided it was sufficient to indicate to the accused clearly, the offence with which he was charged :-Held, also, that in view of ss. 834, 839, 854 and other sections conferring upon the Judge ample power to amend and to substitute other charges, the trial Judge had power to amend the original charge in the manner above set out :---Held, also, that the rules in the Code regulating procedure under the Speedy Trials Act, so far as applicable, give the procedure in trials before the County Court Judge especially as regards the sufficiency of the charges and the evidence, and in that view the provisions of section 856 and following sections on the subject must govern him :---Held, also, that in the present case, the Judge had full authority to try the whole 63 charges together, and that section 857 merely restricted his power in cases of theft except for special cause when alleged to have been committed within six months. Held, also, that as the charges numbered 16, 28 and 38, shewed on their face that they were in no respect identical with the first charge upon which the prisoner was tried and convicted, but were for the theft of a different sum at a different date, the pleas of autrefois acquit and autrefois convict. which were disallowed by the Judge, could not have in any way availed the prisoner :---Held, also, that the three several charges upon which the prisoner was tried were to be regarded only as separate counts of one general charge, namely, the continuous embeziement of money from the one corporation during a specified period, and that it was therefore competent for the Judge to try the prisoner upon all at the same time, R, v. trans, 43 N, 8, R, 320, 6 E, L, R, 414, 14 Can, Crim, Cas, 171.

Extortion — Accusation — Information.] —The word "accuses" in s. 405 of the Criminal Code, providing for the punishment of any one who, with intent to extori or gain anything from any person, accuses that person or any other person of certain offences, includes the accusing of a person by laying an information under s. 558 of the Code. False pretences - Evidence - Admissibility.]-On an indictment charging the accused with having obtained goods by false pretences from a company named, with intent to defraud, so soon as it has been proved that he did the act charged, evidence of false representations made to persons other than the president and general manager of such company, on other and distinct occasions, is admissible, to shew that the accused, at the time he made the false representations to the president and general manager of the com-pany, on whose information the prosecution was brought, was pursuing a course of similar acts, and to prove guilty knowledge of the falsity of the pretence charged in the indictment and the intention with which, the act charged was done. Rex v. Komiensky, 12 Que, K. B. 463, 7 Can. Cr. Cas. 27.

False pretences — Fraudulent intent — Demand by third person.] — A person who does not otherwise nucke a false representation himself, but who is present when it is made, knows it to be false, and gets part of a sum of money obtained by such false pretence, is guilty of obtaining such sum of money by false pretences. Regina v. Caddea, 20 C. L. T. 185, 4 Terr. L. R. 304.

False pretences -- Fraudulent intent --Demand by third person.]-O'K., in the presence of the prisoner, made a statement to the complainant as to the amount due by her upon an execution, which was false to the knowledge of both O'K. and the prisoner, and was made with the fraudulent intent on the part of both to induce the complainant to act upon it, and by reason of this statement the complainant paid O'K, in the prisoner's presence a sum of money, part of which O'K, gave to the prisoner :---Held, that the statement was a false pretence within the meaning of s. 358 of the Criminal Code, and that the prisoner was liable to conviction for it, although he did not actually make it himself, Regina v. Cadden, 20 C. L. T. 185.

False pretences — Obtaining goods culangfully—scale of hired goods—Nature of offence.]—Where the defendant hired a bicycle of the value of $20, representing that he wished to use it to go to L., for the purposeof visiting his sister, and, instead of returning the bicycle, sold it to C:=-Meld, that evidence which shewed these facts was not sufficient to support a conviction for having "unlawfully, and by false pretences, obtained from L. one bicycle, of the value of $20," the prosecutor not having been induced and not intending to part with his right of property in the goods, but merely with the possession of them, and there being no representation as to a present or past matter of fact. Res V. Nove, 30 N. S. R. 531.

False return-Bank Act -- Indictment.) -In an indictment under the Bank Act. V. c. 31, ss. 85 and 99, for making a wilfully false and deceptive statement in a return, it being sufficient in indictments to charge in substance the offence created by the statute. and clerical errors or faulty grammatical construction not vitiating the indictment, the allegation that the defendant unlawfully made and sent to the Minister of Finance and Receiver-General a monthly report of and concerning the affairs of the bank, adding, by way of paraphrase, to characterize the term "monthly report," the words, "a wilful. false, and deceptive statement of and con cerning the affairs of the said bank," and finally, that such monthly report was made with intent to deceive and mislead,-sufficiently sets forth the ingredients of the of fence: and the indictment was maintained. Regina v. Weir, 8 Que. Q. B. 521.

False swearing - Statutory declaration -No allegation of intention to mislead -Amendment of charge-Authority to make declaration-Withdrawal of election to be tried by jury - Preliminary inquiry on several charges against different defendants - Admissibility of statement of accused made upon oath.]-The defendant was charged for that in a certain statutory declaration he did falsely, wilfully, and corruptly declare to the truth of certain facts, setting them out. Upon objection before plea the charge was amended, on the application of the Crown, by adding an allegation that the defendant was duly authorised to make the declaration, but there was no allegation that it had been made with intent to mislead :--Held, that no allegation of intention to mislead was necessary; that the amendment was properly allowed ; and that the charge was sufficient in point of form :-Held, further, that s. 26 of the Canada Evidence Act, 1893, authorised the making as well as the taking of the declaration .- The defendant pleaded to the charge before amendment, and elected to be tried by a Judge with the intervention of a jury. Upon being called upon to plead to the charge as amended, he sought to alter his election and to be tried by the Judge alone. This was refused :--Held, that the refusal was justified.--The declaration in question had been made by four persons, commencing.

Regina y, Skelton, 3 Terr. L. R. 58.

False trade description.]—The defendants by an advertisement in a newspaper described certain ten-sets as "quadruple plate" stating that the regular price thereof, before making his purchase, inquired, and was $12 a set, but that they would be sold for $6. The purchase, inquired, and was informed, that it was one of the ten-sets advertised, and that the advertisement could be relied upon—Letd, that the use of the words "quadruple plate" in the advertisement was an application of a false trade description, in that such goods could not properly be described as such; and that there was evidence to shew that the advertisement applied to these goods. Regina v. *T. Falsifying bank return—Bank Act. s. 153—Knowledge of folisity—Presumption.]— A local manager of a bank was prosecuted under s. 153 of the Bank Act for signing a false sattement in the government returns)— Heid, that it must appear that the accused knew that he was signing a false statement and the signing does not afford a presumption juris et de jure of wilful intent or guilty knowledge. Forcible entry—Criminal Code, s. 103— Absence of violence, 1—The gist of the offence of "forcible entry," under s. 103 of the Criminal Code, is not the making of such an entry as would consitute merely a trespass, but consists in the entry being accompanied by circumstances of violence or terror likely to cause a breach of the peace or reasonable apprehension thereof; and where it appeared by the evidence that the accused effected an entry into the premises alleged by the compliannis to be in their occupation as tenants, but that such entry was effected without any circumstances of terror or violence which would constitute a forcible entry within the meaning of the Criminal Code. he was acquitted. Forgery - Application for reserved case Absence of juror-Comment by trial Judge -Evidence of other forgeries-New trial-Substantial wrong or miscarriage.]-On the trial of the defendant on an indictment charging him with the forgery of two promissory notes, the defendant having been found guilty, a reserved case was applied for on the following grounds: -(a) Because one of the jurors was absent from the Court room at a time when a witness gave evidence of having seen the defendant at a previous trial write a number of names on a sheet of paper. (b)Because in the course of his address to the jury the trial Judge commented upon the failure of the defendant to produce a witness, S., and said that in the interests of truth and justice he should have done so. (c) Because certain notes other than those set out in the indictment having been received in evidence, for certain purposes, the trial Judge did not tell the jury that these other notes could only be regarded for the purpose of shewing that the notes set out in the indictment were intended by the prisoner to be acted upon as genuine, and that they must The reserved case applied for having been refused and an appeal taken, the Court was equally divided :--Held, per Graham, E.J., Townshend, J., concurring, that a case should be stated for the opinion of the Court. Per Russell, J., Longley, J., concurring, that the points mentioned were within the provisions of s. 746 (f) of the Code, and there having been no substantial wrong or miscarriage which would be ground for a new trial, the appeal should not be allowed. Regima v. Corby, 30 N. Forgery — Conviction by magistrate — Stated case—Evidence — Authority to sign cheque — Denial of, [—Magistrate convicted Walker of forgery. Evidence shewed Walker was son-in-law of Sproule and had on several previous occasions signed Sproule's name to cheques and that Sproule had honoured them. Sproule denied Walker's authority to sign his name. Magistrate reserved for ophiion of the Court of Appeal the question of "Was it competent for me upon the evidence to hold that Walker had no authority to sign Sproule's name?" Court of Appeal answered in the affirmative. R. v. Walker (1910), 15 O. W. R. 525, 1 O. W. N. 908.

Forgery — Corroboration.] — Where a prisoner is charged with forgery, by writing three false signatures, as indorsements, on the back of a promissory note, and each of the parties whose signature is thus made to appear, swears that it is not his and is a forgery, there is the corroborative evidence required by s. 684 of the Criminal Code, to make good a conviction. Code, s. 430, on a charge of having unlawfully and without lawful authority, or excuse, had in his custody and possession two forged bank notes for the payment of $10 each, well knowing them to be forged. One of the witnesses called on behalf of the prosecution, H., testified that the prisoner one day shewed him a bill or note something like those in evidence (proved to have come out of the prisoner's possession) and that he then told the prisoner it was no good. Another witness, P., stated that, the day before the arrest, he had gone shooting with the prisoner, who said he had something to shew him when they got out of the woods, and that that evening he went to the prisoner's house and the he went to the prisoner's noise and the prisoner there gave him two bills. Other evidence established that these bills, which were paid over by P, to G, and M_{n} , were both forgeries:—Held, that there was ample evidence in the dealings between the prisoner and P., and in the conversation between prisoner and H., to prove the prisoner's know-ledge that the documents he was handling were not genuine, and to justify the Judge in finding the prisoner possessed of the guilty knowledge required by s. 430 of the Code. -At the trial evidence was given of a conversation with the prisoner in the presence of the chief of police, in which the prisoner said that he got the bills in question from S., and that he gave them to P .:-- Held, that the onus was upon the prosecution to establish that the statement in question was entirely free and voluntary, and that it was not sufficient for this purpose that the officer should swear to it, but he should have negatived possible inducements by hope or fear which would have made the statement inadmissible. But that the reception of this Judge's decision in reference to the other evidence, the Judge having stated the evidence on which he based his judgment, and dence on which he based his judgment, and that evidence being sufficient.—A verdict by a Judge, in this particular, is different from the verdict of a jury.—At the trial evidence was given in relation to one of the bills in question, shewing it to be a counterfeit or forgery, purporting to be a $10 bill of the Bank of Montreal:-Held, that the document was a "forged note" and was such a document as is contemplated by s. 430 of the Code.—Semble, it might also be a "counterfeit token of value" under s. 430. Rez v. Tutty, 38 N. S. R. 136.

Forgery of note - Code ss. 852, 853. 466-Incomplete document-Indictment aided by verdict.]-Defendant was tried and convicted under an indictment charging him with the forgery of a promissory note. The evidence shewed that defendant signed a fictitious name to a blank form of note and delivered it to a merchant in payment for goods. The blank form bore only the date, and the words $14.00, in the upper left hand corner, and the name of the payee, the amount payable, the period of time for which the note must run, the due date, place of payment, etc.-Held, per Drysdale, J., Longley, J., concurring, that the indictment contained sufficient detail to give the accused reasonable information as to the act to be proved against him and was good under the Code, ss, 852, 853.—Also, that the question whether, in view of the fact that the instrument signed was not a promissory note, the conviction was rightly made, was not open to the prisoner, the trial Judge having in his discretion refused the application made to him after the trial to reserve the point, and the only inrisdiction of the Court to grant leave to appeal and order a case being under s. 1015, which is confined to refusals occurring during the trial .- Also, that the point, even if open, was not well taken, the offence being complete under the Code, s. 466, even though the document in relation to which the offence was charged was incomplete .--- Also, that an indictment charging a crime de fectively is aided by verdict .-- Per Russell, J., that defendant, under the indictment, could not be legally convicted, but that the defect in the charge, being amendable, was cured by verdict .- Per Mengher, J., that inasmuch as the document in relation to which the offence was charged was not a promissory note, there was error and the verdict could not cure it, R. v. Ead (1908), 43 N. S. R. 53.

Fortune telling—Criminal Code, s. 396.] —Deception is an essential element of the offence of "undertaking to tell fortunes" under a, 396 of the Criminal Code; and to render a, 2985 on liable to conviction for that offence there must be evidence upon which it may be reasonably found that the person charged was, in so undertaking, asserting or representing, with the intention that such assertion or representation should be believed, that he had the power to tell fortunes, with the intent in so asserting or representing of deluding and defranding others. In this case the evidence set out in the report was held to be sufficient. Rex v, Marcott, 21 C. L. T. 431, 2 O. L. R. 105.

Frandulent packing—Conviction for— Fruit Marks Act — "Faced or abeen surface.")—The mere having in possession for sale packages of fruit frauduently packed within the meaning of s. 7 of the Fruit Marks Act, 1901, 1 Edw. VII. c. 27 (D)., is an offence thereunder, though no one is imposed on thereby nor any fraud intended. Semble, that the "faced or shewn surface." within the meaning of the section, is not limited to the branded end of the package. Res v. James, 1 O, W, R. 520, 22 C. L. T. 369, 4 O. L. R. 537.

Fraudulent removal and concealment of goods — Indictment — Date of offence-Evidence of similar acts — Judge's charge.]-The accused were convicted by the jury at the trial on a count for concealing certain household goods for the purpose of defrauding the insurance company by which they had been insured, by representing that they had been destroyed by fire, and collecting the insurance money upon them; also on a count which alleged a removal of the goods on or about the 11th September, 1900, for a like fraudulent purpose. Both counts were framed under s. 354 of the Criminal Code. 1892. Evidence was given at the trial shewing the removal of some of the goods in question on the 13th August, 1900, and of others on the 11th September, and in his charge to the jury the trial Judge did not distinguish between the goods removed on 13th August, and those removed on 11th September, but left the case to them in such a way that they could convict on both counts or on either of them as to both sets of goods. In stating a case, the Judge certified that, in his opinion the evidence of the removal of goods on the 13th August materially influenced the verdict of the jury :--Held, that the conviction of the accused on the count for concealment was right and should be affirmed, but that, al-though the evidence of the removal in August was probably admissible for the purpose of shewing a criminal intent in the September removal, yet the conviction for the removal should be set aside, on the ground of misdirection by the Judge in telling the jury that they could convict for the removal in August, as the trial might not have been a fair one. Reg v. Hurst, 22 C. L. T. 68, 13 Man. L. R. 584.

Frandulent sale — Fraudulent conver-sion-Indictment.] — The defendant was in-dicted for theft. The indictment set out that. being intrusted by E. R. H. with a power of attorney, he did fraudulently sell certain bank shares belonging to said E. R. H., and did fraudulently convert the proceeds of the sale to a purpose other than that for which he was intrusted with the power of attorney. After the conviction the defendant moved in arrest of judgment because it was not stated in the indictment that the power of attorney was for the sale, etc., of any property, real or personal, as provided by Art. 309, Criminal Code. The Judge reserved the question for the decision of the Court of Appeal :--Held, 1. That the indictment was sufficient, it not being necessary to describe the whole power of attorney; and, further, the alleged omission was only a part omission, and any defect resulting therefrom was cured by verdict .---- 2. The fraudulent sale and the fraudulent conversion did not constitute two offences, but one specific offence, viz., that of theft. Regina v. Fulton, 10 Que. Q. B. 1.

Frandulent sale of land—Subject to defraud — " Privilege" — Criminal Code, s. 421.)—J. W. as security for a loan, gave defendant a deed absolute in form, which was registered. There was no entry on the registry books shewing that J. W. had an equity of redemption. Defendant, knowing of this equity, granted said land to his boroher, as alleged by the Crown, with intent to defraud J. W. within the meaning of s. 421 of the Code—Court of Appeal held upon a stated case, that the wrong committed by defendant was well within that class of mischief which section 421 of the Code was designed to prevent, but the language of that section failed to include an "equity of redemption" and defendant should be discharged.—Meredith, J.A., suggested that the section would have been more comprehensive if the words "estate, right, title or interest at law or in equity," had been added, R. v. McDevitt (1910), 17 O. W. R. 804, 2 O. W. N. 396, O. L. R. Can. Cr. Cas.

Farions driving.]--Application by defendant for leave to appeal from the conviction of a police magistrate upon the above charge, the magistrate having refused to state a case, dismissed, there being evidence to support the charge. Garabling on Lord's Day — Playing cards for money in private places—Conviction—Motion to quash—C. S. U. C., C. 104, s. 3.1—Defendant was convicted, under C. S. U. C., c. 104, s. 3, for playing cards, for money, in a private place, on the Lord's Day, and fined $20 and costs. On motion to quash conviction.—Teetzel, J., held, that although the Act interfered with a man's freedom in his own house on Sunday, and sought to make people more by Act of Parliament, yet effect must be given to it. Motion dismissed with costs. Rex v, Quick (1910), 17 O. W. R. 250, 17 Can. Cr. Cas, 63.

Game Protection Act (B.C.). s. 14-" Hunt "-License-Pursuit without result-Construction of statute-Territorial jurisdiction of magistrate-Summary Convictions Act -Amendment.]-Section 14 of the British Columbia Game Protection Act, as amended by 9 Edw. There was no evidence that he "hunted" in the sense that he pursued any animal. The only evidence was that the defendant went out with a gun to look for deer but did not find any :-Held, that the word "hunt" in the statute means, to pursue some particular animal, and, the conviction not so stating and there being no evidence to shew such an offence, no offence was alleged or proved; and the conviction should be quashed. - Semble, that certain other objections to the conviction were curable under the provisions of the amendment to the Summary Convictions Act, 62 Vict. c. 69, s. 4 (B.C.) :--Held, also, that there was no evidence to shew that the convicting magistrate had jurisdiction, i.e., that the offence, if any, was committed in the electoral district of Fernie, beyond which his commission did not extend; and on that ground-also the conviction should be quashed .- By s. 103 of the Summary Convictions Act, as amended by the statute of 1899, upon an application to quash a conviction, if there is evidence to support it, it is to be affirmed or not quashed, and may be amended if necessary :---Held, that there was no evidence to support the conviction, and it could not be amended. R. v. Oberlander (1910), 13 W. L. R. 643.

Gaming-Keeping common gaming house - Evidence of offence - Occupant of premises.]-The evidence disclosed that two or three police officers saw several men in a stable sitting around a table, and one of the constables saw dice being thrown and heard somebody say " eleven wins ;" and a constable said that, when the police entered the place, the men tried to get out and scattered the money that was on the table, and that the prisoner was in charge of the money on the The prisoner gave evidence on his table. own behalf, and also called witnesses to shew that the game they were playing was " poker." But the prisoner denied being the keeper of the place, and, unless from the fact sworn to, that the prisoner was in charge of the money for the game, the evidence as to the person who kept the place was as strong against any of the others found there as against him; ss, 196 and 198 of the Code. Goods under seizure-Innkeeper's lien -Abandonment-Tender-Evidence.] - An hotelkceper who locks up the room of a guest containing the latter's luggage and effects, for non-payment of charges for board and lodging, and who notifies the guest thereof, and requires him to leave the hotel on the same day or pay the bill, thereby places the guest's luggage, etc., under "lawful seizure and de-tention," in respect of the landlord's common law lien; and the taking away of such luggage by the guest without the landlord's authority is " theft " under s. 306 of the Criminal Code. (But see now 63 V. c. 46, s. 3, sched.). The landlord does not, by afterwards granting permission to the guest to remove some specified articles, and by allowing him free access to the room for that purpose, abandon such seizure and detention as regards the other effects, and the owner who removes any luggage, as to which the permission does not extend, is guilty of "stealing" the same under s. 306 of the Criminal Code. The fact that the amount in respect of which a lien is claimed is in excess of the amount legally due does not dispense with the necessity of a tender of the amount legally due, nor invalidate the lien. Circumstantial evidence of theft, Regina v. Hollingsworth, 4 Terr. L. R. 168

Having stolen property in possession —Knowledge of accused—Property stolen in foreign country and brought into Canada.]— The full Court of Saskatchewan on Crown case reserved keld, that the conviction must be affirmed, there being sufficient evidence to warrant the jury in concluding that the property had been stolen by the prisoner. Rex v. Duff, 11 W. L. R. 292.

Housebreaking-Breaking and entering Misdirection - New trial.]-The defendant was convicted under s. 410 of the Criminal Code for breaking and entering the dwelling house of D., with intent to commit an assault upon W. The only evidence of the breaking was that, immediately after the accused left the house, a window in the dining room and one in the back porch were found wide open, sufficiently to allow a person to pays through. that when the family retired on the previous night the window in the dining room was entirely closed, and the window in the porch open only a few inches and resting upon a can, and that plants growing below the porch window, which had not been disturbed the previous evening, were broken, as if they had been trodden upon. Apart from this evidence it was left uncertain by which window the accused entered. The trial Judge directed the jury that the lifting of the porch window from where it rested, as well as the lifting of the dining room window, was, under the Code, a "breaking" of the dwelling house:--Held, that the direction as to the lifting of the porch window was erroneous, and that the conviction must be set aside:--Held, that the prisoner should not be discharged, but that there should be a new trial. Rex v. Burna, 36 N. S. R. 257.

Householder permitting defilement-Code s. 217--Exidence, 1--The defendant, a druggist, brought to his store two young women, both over 14 and under 18 years of age, where they were kept or invited to remain until he had carnal connection with one and his clerk with the other. One of them went to the same place a second time and there again had carnal connection with defendant, who paid her therefor on each occasion:--Heid, that defendant had committed the offence intended by s. 217 of the Criminal Code, Res v. Karn (1909), 14 O. W. R. 1215, 1 O. W. N. 247, 20 O. L. R. 91.

Illegal fishing — Fisheries Act — Evi-dence—Complaint—Indefiniteness—Conviction -Distress-Imprisonment.] - Evidence that a person was seen on the river in a canoe between ten and eleven o'clock at night with the appliances commonly used in illegal salmon fishing, is, in the absence of any explanation of the situation and where the charge is not denied on oath, sufficient to justify a conviction for illegal fishing under the Fisheries Act. A complaint charging the accused with having been engaged in illegal fishing in contravention of the Fisheries Act is too indefinite to support a conviction for illegal fishing under the Act. Imprisonment may be adjudged under the Act for default in payment of a penalty imposed without awarding a distress. Rex v. Fraser, Ex p. Dixon, Ex. p. Lennon, 36 N. B. R. 109.

Incest—Attempt to commit—Eridence of child not under oath—Corroboration.] — Defendant was convicted of the offence of attempting to commit incest with his daughter, aged 7 years, upon the evidence of said daughter and another girl ared 4 years. The trial Judge reserved the following questions for the opinion of the Court of Appeal.—I. Was the evidence of said girls admissible?— 2. Was such evidence sufficiently corroborated?—3. Was a statement made by daughter to one Richard Berthiaume, shortly after the attempt, admissible?—4. Did the indictment disclose an indictable offence?—Held, Meredith, J.A., dissenting, that all questions should be answered in the affirmative. Conviction affirmed. R. v. Pailleur (1909), 15 O. W. R. 73, 20 O. L. R. 207, 15 Can. Cr. Cas. 339.

Incest-Evidence - Destroyed letters -Inferences - Misdirection-Substantial miscarringe-New trial. Rex v. Godson, 1 O. W. R. 250.

Incest—Evidence—Proof of relationship.] —On a trial for incest, the only evidence against the accused was that of the child, a girl of 11 years, and of a woman who had known accused and daughter for some seven or eight months. The girl stated that the accused was her father and that for 7 or 8 months the accused and herself had lived together apparently as father and daughter. This evidence was no: rebutted;—Held, that this was not sufficient proof of relationship to justify a conviction. Res v. Smith, 8 W. L. R. 184, 13 B. C. R. 384.

Incest—Proof of relationship.]—On an indictment for incest, proof of the relationship of the accused to his alleged victim must be established according to the rules of the civil law. Regina, v. Garneau, 8 Que. Q. B. 447.

Inciting strike-Master and servant-Mining company — Industrial Disputes In-vestigation Act, 1907—Construction of staternguinon Act, 1201—Construction of au-tute — Excessive provide and ment— Criminal Code, s. 1125—Powers of Court un-der—Costs.] — The Industrial Disputes Inves-tigation Act, 1907, 6 & 7 Edw. VII, c. 20 (D.), provides for a reference, in certain of the second se cases, of disputes between employers and employees to boards of conciliation and in-vestigation; by s. 56 prohibits strikes or lock-outs " prior to or during " such a reference; and by s. 60 declares that "any person who incites . . . any employee to go or continue on strike contrary to the provisions" of the Act shall be guilty of an offence, and liable to a fine. The defendant was convicted under the above s, 60 of un-lawfully inciting the employees of a mining company to go on strike, and adjudged to pay a fine of $500, and in default thereof to be imprisoned for six months. At the time when the alleged offence was committed, neither the mine-owners nor their employees had made application for the appointment of a board under the Act :-- Held, that the prohibition by the statute of strikes or lockouts "prior to or during a reference" of the dispute to a board does not apply only to cases in which one of the parties to the dispute has made application for the appointment of such a board, but makes all strikes and lockouts illegal until there has been such a reference, and the board has made its report thereon. A strike is therefore "con-trary to the provisions of the Act," before as well as after it has been invoked by either the employers or employees, and, as there was evidence to support the conviction, it must be affirmed .- As, however, the penalty of six months' imprisonment, in default of payment of the fine, was in excess of that which the magistrate had power to impose, it was reduced to three months, being the maximum term under Part XV, of the Criminal Code, which, by s. 61 of the Act, governs the procedure for enforcing penalties imposed thereunder; and the conviction was amended ac-cordingly, without costs, Rex v. McGuire, 16 O. L. R. 522, 11 O. W. R. 388.

Indecent act—Criminal Code, s. 177 (b) —Conviction—" Wilfuly," omission of—Habeas corpus—Amended conviction and commitment substituted — Refusal to discharge prisoner—Appeal to full Court, Manitoba. Res v. Barré (Man.), 2 W. L. R. 376.

Indecent act — Information—" Unlawfully "...- Wilfully."]—It is not sufficient, in an information laid under s. 177 of the Criminal Code, to allege the "unlawful" commission of an indecent act; it is essential that the accused be charged with having committed it "wilfully." A commitment based on an information which merely alleges that the act war: committed "unlawfully " will be quashed and the prisoner discharged, Exp. O'Shaughnesy, 13 Que, IT &. 178.

Indecent assault—Evidence—Charge of Judge to jury—Verdict of attempt—Conviction—Statei case.]—Court of Appeal held, that a jury may not find a verdict of attempt to commit an indecent assault, where the evidence, if believed, would prove the offence. R. v. Menary (1911), 18 O. W. R. 373, 2 O. W. N. 807.

Indictment-Criminal Code, s. 431.]-In the crime of uttering a forged instrument, the knowledge by the utterer that the instrument uttered was forged and had been made with intent to defraud is an essential element, and, as every count of an indictment must contain a statement of all the essential ingredients which together constitute the offence charged in it, the omission of such essential averment renders the count null and void, and the defect cannot be corrected by the Court .--- 2. Upon the trial of an indictment for forging an instrument, it is not necessary to prove an intent to defraud any particular person; it is sufficient to allege and prove that the accused did the act charged with an intent to defraud, and when the fraud has been carried out it need not appear on the face of the indictment in what manner and by what means the fraud was consummated. Regina v. Weir, 9 Que. Q. B.

Indictment of corporation - Punishment.]-The defendants, a corporation, were indicted for that they unlawfully neglected without lawful excuse, to take reasonable precautions and to use reasonable care in maintaining a bridge forming part of their railway which was used for hauling coal and carrying passengers, and that on the 17th August, 1898, a locomotive engine and several cars, then being run along said railway and across said bridge, owing to the rotten state of the timbers of the bridge, were precipitated into the valley underneath, thereby causing the death of certain persons. The defendants were found guilty and a fine of $5,000 was inflicted .- Held, per McColl, C.J., and Martin. J., on appeal, affirming the conviction, that such an indictment will lie against a corporation under s. 252 of the Code .- Per Drake and Irving, JJ., that such an indict-ment will not lie against a corporation.— Sections 191, 192, 213, 252, 639, and 713 of the Code considered .- A corporation cannot be indicted for manslaughter, Regina v. Union Colliery Co., 20 C. L. T. 289, 7 B. C. R. 247.

Indictment of corporation -- Punishment.] - The defendant company was indicted, under ss. 213 and 220 of the Criminal Code, 1892, for negligence in maintaining machinery in a condition dangerous to life, resulting in the death of one of its employees. -There was also a count for manslaughter. -Held, that, notwithstanding s.-s. (t) of s. 3 of the Code, by virtue of which ss. 213 and 220 generally apply to corporations as well as individuals, an indictment would not lie against a corporation for manslaughter, and even if a corporation were indicted and convicted of such an offence, there was no provision of law under which any punishment could be imposed.—The punishment for manslaughter being imprisonment for life under s. 236 of the Code, s. 958 did not apply, and a fine could not be imposed in lieu of imprisonment. The general provision of s. 639 that, in case of the conviction of a corporation, the Court "may award such judgment and take such other and subsequent proceedings to enforce the same as are applicable to convictions against corporations. could no: be interpreted so as to affect or modify the positive enactment of s. 236. Regina v. Great West Laundry Co., 20 C. L. T. 217, 13 Man. L. R. 66.

Keeping bawdy house — Criminal Code.]—A female cannot be convicted funlawfully keeping a bawdy house, under s. 198 or s. 783 of the Criminal Code, unless it is shewn that the house or room in question is occupied or resorted to by more than one female for purposes of prostitution. Singleton v. Ellison, [1895] 1 Q. B. 607, followed, Rez v. Young, 22 C. L. T. 211, 14 Man. L. R. 58, 12 Can. Cr. Cas. 109.

Keeping bawdy house-Criminal Code, s. 195-What constitutes offence - Place of resort for prostitutes.] - Crown case re-served. Magistrate found that a certain house was kept by defendant for the purposes of prostitution, but there was not sufficient evidence to shew that any other women resorted thereto for such purposes. The question reserved was whether, in these circumstances, the magistrate was right in convicting defendants under s. 195 of the Criminal Code. or whether he should have applied the ruling in Reg v. Young, 6 Can. Crim. Cas. 42. and acquitted defendant : - Held, Code has not changed the law as to what constitutes the offence of keeping a common bawdy house, and that a woman living by herself in a house cannot be convicted of the offence unless other women than herself resort to it for the purpose of prostitution. Rex v. Mannix, 6 O. W. R. 265, 10 O. L. R. 303, 10 Can. Cr. Cas. 150

Keeping bawdy house - Nature of offence-Evidence-Criminal Code, s. 195.]-1. A woman living by herself in a house. cannot be convicted of keeping a bawdy house therein, unless it is shewn that one or more other women resort to it for purposes of prostitution. Rex v. Young, 14 Man. L. R. 58, and Singleton v. Ellison, [1895] 1 Q. B. 607, followed .--- 2. In order to support a conviction for keeping a bawdy house, it is not sufficient to shew the bad reputation of the house and its inmates and that men resorted to it in the night, but actual proof must be given of some act or acts of prostitution, though definite proof of one may be sufficient. Regina v. St. Clair, 3 Can. Crim. Cas. at p. 557, followed .--- 3. Section 195 of the Criminal Code, 1892, does not change the law, as it was before the Code, as to the essential in gredients of the offence of keeping a bawdy house, and is intended merely to define the nature of the premises within which a bawdy house may be kept, and not to state what acts constitute such keeping. Rex v. Osberg, 15 Man. L. R. 147, 1 W. L. R. 121, 9 Can. Cr. Cas. 180.

-Criminal Code, ss. 227, 228.]-In order to constitute a "place" within the meaning of s. 227 of the Criminal Code, there must be a measure of fixity, localisation, and exclu-sive right of user.-The defendants were two of a number of bookmakers, who, on payment of the usual entrance fee, were admitted, along with the general public, to a fenced enclosure owned and controlled by the Ontario Jockey Club, an incorporated racing association. These bookmakers laid bets from day to day, through their assistants, with members of the general public attending the races. They did not use any desk, stool, umbrella, tent, or booth, or erection of any kind, to mark any place where bets were made, and no part of the general enclosure was especially allocated to them, nor did they occupy a fixed position, but during each race stood as much as possible about the same spot within a radius of from 5 to 10 feet. The betting operations were carried on in the same method as in the case of Rex v. Saunders, 12 O. L. R. 615, 38 S. C. R. 382, except that in that case the bookmakers used a wooden box or booth, moved about on castors from one part of the grounds to another during the progress of the race meeting :--- Held, that the defendants did not occupy a "house, office, room, or other place," within the meaning of s. 227 of the Criminal Code, and were, therefore, not guilty of the offence of keeping "common betting house" under s. of the Code.-Powell v. Kempton Park Race-course Co., [1899] A. C. 143, followed. Rex v. Saunders, 38 S. C. R. 382, distinguished. Rex v. Moylett and Bailey, 10 O. W. R. 803, 15 O. L. R. 348, 13 Can. Cr. Cas, 279.

Keeping common betting house Book-makers in charge of betting booth on racecourse of incorporated association "House, office, room, or other place"-Mov-able structure-Criminal Code, 1892, ss. 197. 198, 204.1-A perambulatory booth used on the racecourse of an incorporated racing associntion for the purpose of making bet's is an "office" or "place" used for betting between persons resorting thereto, as defined in s, 197 of the Criminal Code, 1892 .--- Sub-section 2 of s. 204, which exempts from the provisions of the main section (dealing with the recording or registering of bets, etc.), bets made on the racecourse of an incorporated association, does not apply to the offence of keeping a common betting house; Davies, J., dissenting.—Judgment of the Control Ap-peal. 12 O. Keeping common betting house — Incorporated company—Lease of premises— President.)—The president of an incorporated company, owners of a racecourse, who lease for valuable consideration the privilege of taking and receiving bets in part of the premises, is not, merely by virtue of his office, and without anything more than acquiescence on his part, liable to conviction as a party to the offence of keeping a common betting house under ss. 197 and 198 of the Criminal Code. Keeping common betting place—*Evi*dence of — Conviction — Evaluation the Batting on streets.]—Defendant, a barber, stepped outside his shop and made bets on the street, with the obvious purpose of evalue the statute:—Held, that he was rightly convicted of keeping a common betting place within the meaning of Criminal Code, s. 227. *Rew v. Reeping common gaming house — Riviewase-Confession — Crinical Code, 88, 226, 985.]—Upon the trial of the necused on a charge of unlawfully keeping a common gaming house;—Held, that evidence of a confession made by one of the persons found by the police in the house, implicating the accused, was not receivable as evidence against the accused—2. That, upon the evidence adduced, the case did not come within s, 985 of the Criminal Code, nor within s, 226 (a) or (b); there was no evidence that the place was kept for gain, nor that persons resorted to the house for the purnose of playing, R. v. See Woo (1910), 13 W, L. R. 625.

Keeping common gaming house --Evidence-Money lent-Action for return -Illegal purpose-Gaming-"Poker"-Criminal Code, s. 226—Banker—9 Anne c. 14—5 & 6 Wm. IV. c. 41—12 Geo. II. c. 28.]—Plaintiff defendant and two others played poker for several evenings in the barber shop of an hotel :-- Held, that this did not make the shop a common gaming house under s. 226 above. The plaintiff was the banker and lent the defendant money by giving him chips. The defendant was out $115 at the end of the game, which he promised to pay, but now refused. This was an action for money lent :--Held, that "poker" is not an illegal game under c. 28 above, and therefore the contract to lend money to defendant for that game is not illegal. Judgment for plaintiff for amount claimed. Rose v. Collision (1910), 12 W. L. R. 648, 16 Can. Cr. Cas. 359.

Keeping common gaming house — Evidence).—On the premises of the accused a number of persons unconnected with the premises had been observed playing games involving the use of money, dice, and dominoes, and the accused had stated to the chief of police that he was having a game of fantan at his place, and that he was willing to pay for the privilege, as he was doing well out of it:—Held, sufficient evidence to sustian a conviction for keeping a common gaming house. -Misdirection - Acquittal of defendant Crown case reserved - New trial 1 - The defendant was indicted for keeping a common gaming house, contrary to ss. 196 (a) and 198 of the Criminal Code. The evidence shewed that the defendant was the manager of a cigar shop, in the rear of which was a room to which persons, chiefly customers, commonly resorted for the purpose of playing Out of the stakes on most of " poker." the hands a sum of five cents was withdrawn to cover the expenses of refreshments consumed by the players. No charge was made for the use of the room. The "rake-off " did not more than cover a fair price for the refreshments. The proprietor or manager derived an indirect advantage from the sale of cigars to the players, from 50 to 100 being as well as directly, that by what the defendant allowed to be done in the room mentioned. the profits of his usual business were increased more or less owing to the sale of the goods in which he dealt, and so he might be found to have kept the room for gain, though the gain was confined to the profits on the cigars which he sold to the players. The question of what is a keeping for gain ought not to be embarrassed by the consideration of whether the amount the defendant receives is an actual substantial profit to him over the price of the cigars which he sells and the refreshments which he furnishes to the players. The direction of the Judge at the trial of the jury, upon which the defendant was acquitted, was found to be wrong, upon a case reserved by the Crown, but the Court declined to order a new trial. Rex v. James, 2 O. W. R. 342, 23 C. L. T. 220, 6 O. L. R. 35.

Keeping common gaming house — Jurisdiction of police magistrate-Summary trial without consent — "Divorderly house,"] —The term "disorderly house" in a, 774 of the Criminal Code, includes any house to which persons resort for criminal or immonal purposes, and therefore includes a common gaming house; and a police magistrate has jurisdiction summarily and without consent to try persons accused of keeping a common gaming house. Keeping common gaming honse — Summary trial—Polic magistark-Right of accused to elect to be tried by jury—Criminal Code, ss. 773. 774, J-A. Dolice magistrate has not absolute and summary jurisdiction under ss. 773 and 774 of the Criminal Code to try, without their consent, persons accused of keeping a common gaming house; such persons have the right to elect to be tried by a jury; the words "disorderly house" in s. 773 do not include "common gaming house," but are limited by the words which immediately follow them, "house of ill-fame or howdy house."—The Queen v. France, I Can. Crim. Cas. 32, approved and followed.—

The accused having been illegally tried and convicted before a magistrate, their conviction was quashed, and it was directed that they should be accorded the right of election to be tried by or without a jury, and that they should be tried accordingly. Rew v. Lee Guey, 10 O. W. R. 1009, 15 O. L. R. 235, 13 Can. Cr. Cas. 80.

Keeping disorderly house - Criminal Code - Cumulative or alternative punishments 1-The Court was moved to quash an indictment for keeping and maintaining disorderly house, to wit, a common bawdy house, on the ground that s. 198 of the Code, under which the defendant was indicted, was repealed by s. 207 (j) or s. 783 (f) of the Code, as neither of these could be reconciled with s. 198, as cumulative or alternative punishment for the one offence :--Held, dismissing the motion and affirming the conviction, that 198 was not repealed as contended; s. 207 being a comprehensive section dealing with all classes of vagrants (including, under (j), keepers and inmates of bawdy houses), and s. 783 (f) being pure procedure, and enabling a charge based upon the offence above indicated to be disposed of by a summary trial when a party charged with the offence was brought before a magistrate. Rex v. Sarah Smith, 38 N. S. R. 148, 9 Can. Cr. Cas. 338.

Keeping disorderly or common betting house-Race track of incorporated association-Betting at.]-The defendant was tried before a police magistrate upon a charge of keeping a disorderly or common betting house. found guilty, and convicted. A case was stated by the magistrate after 1 ave granted, in which he reported that it was shewn that a house was kept and used for betting between persons resorting thereto and the keeper; that the accused appeared. and he found him to be the keeper; that the house was owned by a joint stock company. of which the accused was president, and was situated on the race track of an incorporated association ; that there were about thirty persons betting with the accused and his assistants, some on races then in progress in the State of New York, with which there was telegraphic communication, and others on races in progress on the local race track conducted by the company under an agreement with the association :--Held, that the offence was the keeping of a house for the purposes intended in s. 197 of the Code, and that the facts proved brought the accused within its danger, and he was rightly convicted :-Held, also, that s.-s. 2 of s. 204 of the Code stands by itself, and that the exception contained in it is expressly limited to the first part of that section, and it should not be read into s. 197. Rex v. Hanrahan, 22 C. L. T. 228, 3 O. L. R. 659, 1 O. W. R, 346.

Libel — Anonymous letters — Question whether scritten by accused—Evidence=Comparison of handwriting with letters admittedly written by accused—Evidence of experts — Evidence of ilkelil towards person libelled Motice=Judge's charac=-Reference to similarity in style=Misilterction=Evidence improperly admitted—Discharge of accused.]=-On a sinted case, held, that where defendant had been found guilty of publishing a libel, evidence of ill-will towards further of person libelled should not have been admitted, nor should the trial Judge have compared the style of letters written by accused but not to person libelled with the libellous letters, there having been no vidence expert or otherwise on that question. Prisoner discharged. Rev V, Lave (1900), 12 W. L. R. 475.

Libel - Evidence - Innuendo - Extrinsic circumstances - Particulars - Reserved case-Other publications-Newspaper-Preious libels.]-Where an information for defamatory libel, consisting of words inoffensive in themselves, but importing, by ironical expression, a dishonourable imputation, contains, besides a repetition of the words complained of, an allegation of the sense in which they must be understood, the Crown may adduce evidence of extrinsic circumstances which go to shew the meaning to be attached to the words. It is not necessary that these circumstances shall be enumerated in the information, and the accused is sufficiently protected against surprise by the right which he has to demand particulars of the charge. In default of his applying for particulars, his objection to the evidence will not be entertained, and there is no ground for reserving for the Court of Appeal a question as to its legality. -Where the accused, in a prosecution for libel contained in a newspaper, has recourse to the defence, under s. 297 of the Criminal Code, that the publication of the libel was without his knowledge, the Crown may prove the previous publication of other libels of the same sort, by the same editor, in order to fix the responsibility of the accused, result-ing, according to s. 297, from his persistence in maintaining this editor in charge of the newspaper. Rex v. Molleur, 14 Que. K. B. 556

Libel — Immoral conduct of Minister of Crown — Justification — Public interest — Demurrer, Rex v. Crocket, 3 E. L. R. 330.

Libel—Indictment for—Motion to quash.] —A true bill being found against defendant for likel, defendant moved to have same quashed on three several grounds. 1st, that one of the grand jurcors who found the bill was of affinity to defendant in the seventh degree. 2nd, that the names of two persons on the jury were not the same as those contained in the panel annexed to the remire fariag. 3rd, that one of the grand jurors had previously to the finding of the indictment expressed an opinion as to the defendant's guilt, hostile to the defendant, and from illwill: — Held, (Peters, J.), that the first ground alleged was not sufficient to quash an indictment, and that from the evidence before him, the second and third grounds were also insufficient. Rev. V. Lawson (1888), 2 P. E. I. R. 398.

Lottery-Criminal Code. s. 236-Foreign bonds-Prizes - Evidence to justify convic-tion.]-The accused had made sales of cer-tain securities called "Bon Panama," which had originally been issued in Paris, France, in 1889, by the Panama Canal Company, under the authority of the laws of France These bonds promised the repayment of 400 francs in the year 1988, and carried with them the chances of getting prizes, varying in amount from 500,000 francs to 1,000 francs. given to the holders of the lucky numbers by drawings to take place at frequent intervals during the life of the bonds. The accased, in canvassing purchasers of the bonds, held out as an inducement the chance of winning one of these prizes, and the belief that there was such a chance influenced the purchasers in paying the price which they gave for the bonds :--Held, that the accused was rightly convicted of selling lottery tickets contrary to s. 236 of the Criminal Code. Rex v. Picard, 7 W. L. R. 241, 17 Man, L. R. 343.

Lottery-Disposing of property by chance -Device-Verdict.]-Upon a case reserved for the opinion of the Court as to whether the interposition of a condition that the winner of a prize in a lottery should shoot a turkey at fifty yards in five shots, or, if a lady, that she could choose a substitute to shoot for her, would prevent a conviction under s. 205 of the Criminal Code, 1892, it was stated that the evidence shewed that any person could easily shoot a turkey under the circumstances :--Held, that it was a question for the jury whether the making of that condition was intended as requiring a real contest of skill, or merely as a device for covering up a scheme for disposing of the property by lot; that the verdict of guilty involved a finding that it was merely a device: that the evidence set out in the case justified that finding; and that the conviction should be affirmed. Rex v. Johnson, 22 C, L. T. 125, 14 Man. L. R. 27.

Maiming cattle — Criminal Code, s. 510 — Castration of stallion—Mens rea—Mborta Ordinance reageeting stallions and bulls.]— The castration of a stallion running at large contrary to the provisions of the Entire Animals Ordinance is a "maiming" of the stallion within the menning of s. 510 (B. b.) of the Criminal Code. The fact that the owner of the stallion had expressed an intention to castrate it was held to be no justification of the unauthorised cit of the defendant, The interference by the stallion with the defendant's mares, also running at large, was also held to be no justification, the defendant being in such case at best a mere licensee of the land over which the mares grazed: McLean v. Indian Indian secution f goods the real ay was er of an is the question, Did the defendant do what he did honestly believing the act to be necessary for the protection of his property? Proof of actual malice is not necessary under this section, but although the word "maliciously" is not used, legal malice such as would establish that meas rea, without which there can be no criminal intent, must be proven. The fact that the defendant committed the act without any attempt to avail himself of the provisions of the Ordinance relating to impounding stallions, and the evidence adduced not shewing that he honesity believed ihe necessary to protect his property : — Held, that legal malice was sufficiently proven.—Rex v. Kroesing, 2 Alta, R. 275, 10 W. L. R. 646, 16 Can. Cr. Cas, 312.

Malicious injury to property-Summary conviction-Compensation-Amendment -Costs-Penalty-Appeal.]-One of the sections of the Act respecting Malicious Injuries to Property enacted that an offender should on summary conviction be liable to a penalty not exceeding $100 over and above the amount of injury done, or to three months' imprisonment .- A conviction thereunder adjudged the defendant "to forfeit and pay the sum of $5 as a penalty, together with $50 for the amount of injury done as compensa-tion in that behalf:"-Held, that it was not the intention of the section in question that there should be two separate penalties, but that one penalty should be fixed by first ascertaining the amount of damages, and then adding to that amount such sum not exceeding $100 as the justice should deem proper; and that it was therefore beyond the jurisdiction of the justice to award a sum "as compensation."—Held, also, that the words "as compensation in that behalf" could not be struck out as surplusage under the power of amendment given by s. 80 of the Summary Convictions Act, and the $50 be treated as part of the penalty, inasmuch as the effect of such an amendment would be to punish the offender, not according to conviction of the magistrate, but according to the conviction as amended by the Court, which was not the intention of that provision. See Criminal Code, s. 883 .- The conviction also adjudged the payment of a sum for costs which comprised several items, which exceeded the amounts allowed therefor by the tariff fixed by the Summary Convictions Act as amended by 52 V. c. 45. 2, or were not mentioned in the tariff .-Held, that the conviction was therefore bad. and that it could not be amended by striking out the charges improperly made .- The conviction also adjudged, in default of payment, imprisonment for three months .- Held, that 68 of the Summary Convictions Act applied, and that, inasmuch as the penalty imused together with the costs did not exceed $25, two months was the maximum term of imprisonment which could be imposed .--It being contended that the Court had no power on appeal to quash a conviction for defects or errors appearing on the face of the conviction .- Held, that the Court had such power, McLennan v. McKinnon, 1 O. R. 219, on this point, not followed. Regina v. Tebo, elder of the sect "Catholic Christians in Zion" or "Zionites," was indicted for aiding and abetting and counselling in his actions one who neglected to provide two of his young children under six years of age with medical attendance and remedies when sick with diphtheria. Both children died. The prisoner knew that the children had diph theria, and knew that it was a dangerous and contagious disease ; that the ordinary remedies would have prolonged their lives, and in all probability would have resulted in their complete recovery : - Held, that medical attendance and remedies are necessaries within the meaning of ss. 209 and 210 of the Criminal Code, and anyone legally liable to provide such is criminally responsible for neglect to do so. So also at common law, Conscientious belief that it is against the teachings of the Bible and therefore wrong to have recourse to medical attendance and remedies is no excuse. Rex v. Brooks, 22 C. L. Malicionaly killing cattle—Rebutting implied malice—Mens read—Verdict—Refused of Judge to receive.1—On a charge of unhavfully and mulcionsly killing cattle (under R. S. C. c. 43), it appeared that the animal was killed by the prisoners, when it was in a helpless and dying condition, and that the prisoners thought it was an act of mercy to kill it:—Heid, that the killing was not maliclous; that the implication of malice was rebuitable, and had been in fact rebutted, a mens rea on the part of the prisoners being disproved. Fower of trial Judge to refuse a particular verdict considered. Regina v. Mennel, 1 Terr. L, R. 487.

Manitoba Grain Act-Offences against Station agent-Allotting cars to shippers.] -Where a farmer who is not an elevator owner, lessee, or operator, had grain stored in a special bin in a farmer's elevator at a railway station where grain is shipped, and has also grain stored in another elevator at the same point, in common with other grain, for which he holds storage tickets, it is not a violation of the Manitoba Grain Act and amendments for the station agent to refuse to recognise the farmer as an applicant and to recognise his order in the order book for a car or cars to ship out his grain.' 2. Where farmer has made order for cars in the order book at the station, and all applicants for cars who had made order prior to his had each obtained one car, but not sufficient cars to fill the orders, while the farmer had not yet been allotted a car by reason of the shortage, and the agent out of the next cars which arrived refused to award him a car. but awarded them to those who had already received each one car, there was a violation of the Act. 3. Where each of the prior applicants had been supplied with one car at the time when the farmer gave his order, but on the day previous there had been a surplus of cars after each prior applicant had been given one, and such surplus was distributed among them, but their orders still remained unfilled, it was not a violation of the Act for each agent to allot to each of the prior applicants a car from a lot which arrived to be loaded on the day of the farmer's application, and to refuse him one. 4. Manslanghter—dequitid — Subsequent charge of lesser offence—Aurerfois acquit — Criminal Code, s. 951.]—The defendant was charged with the manslanghter of S, and acquitted. It was contended that he could not be subsequently tried on a charge of unlawfully inflicting grievous bodily harm opon S,:—Held, upon construction of s. 951 of the Criminal Code, that the defendant could not, on the original charge, have been convicted of the lesser offence, and therefore the acquittal was not a bar to a prosecution for the lesser offence. Res v. Shea (N.S.), 14 Can, Crim. Cas, 320,

Manslaughten-Endangering human life -Indictment of corporation.]--Under s. 213 of the Criminal Code a corporation may be indicted for omitting, without lawful excuse, to perform the duty of avoiding danger to laman life from anything in its charge or under its control. The fact that the consequence of the omission to perform such duty might have justified an indictment for manslaughter in the case of an individual, is not a ground for quashing the indictment. As s. 213 provides no punishment for the offence, a corporation indicted under it is liable to the common law punishment of a fine. Judgment in 7. B. C. R. 247, 20 C. L. T. 280, stffrmed. Regina v. Manslaughter - Master and servant -Negligence.]-The deceased, a lad of about 15, was engaged by the prisoner as a farmhand, on the terms of receiving for his work his board, lodging, and clothing. He died on the 14th February, after having been in the prisoner's employment about nine months. Death was caused by the gangrenous condition of many parts of his body resulting from frost bites. He was in the habit of wetting his bed, and on this account was made to sleep in the stable, and had slept there for two or three months up to the 10th February. From the 1st to the 10th the weather was excessively cold. The lad's fingers had been badly frozen at least three weeks before his death, and it was found that the prisoner must be taken to have known it for that length of time; nevertheless, he paid no attention to it till the 10th February. During the night of 9th-10th February, the deceased's feet were frozen solid to the ankles; this was discovered by the prisoner, who then took him to the house. It was found that the lad became so frozen, by reason of the earlier frost-bites rendering him unable to attend to himself properly, and his being left without assistance in the stable in excessively cold weather. The prisoner, on bringing the lad to the house, attended to him personally, asked a neighbour for a remedy for frost-bites, drove to a physician, got from him a prescription for frost-bites, but did not disclose to him the serious condition the lad was in. On and after the 10th February, the lad was helpless, and diet on the 14th February. The prisoner had means to procure medical attendance:—Held, that, in view of the are of the decensed, the circumstances of the country. The fact of there being no provision for maintaining poor people, it was the duty of the prisoner, as master, towards the decensed as his servant, to have taken care of him, and that by his omission to do so he was guilty of gross neglizence, to which the had's death was attributable, and that, therefore, the prisoner was guilty of manslaughter. Regins y, Bronen, 1 Terr, L, R. 475.

Manslaughter - Parent's omission to provide necessary medical treatment for child -Legal duty-Lawful excuse-Religious belief-" Necessaries "-Admission of evidence -Judge's charge.]-The word "necessaries" in s. 209 of the Criminal Code, which ensets person unable by reason of detention, age, sickness, insanity, or any other cause, to withdraw himself from such charge, is un-der a legal duty to supply that person with the necessaries of life," includes proper medi-cal aid, assistance, care, and treatment. And, therefore, where the jury found that the prisoner, a Christian Scientist, had without lawful excuse omitted to provide medical treatment for his infant child, under sixteen years of age, when it was reasonable and proper that such treatment should be provided, and that the child died from such neglect:-Held, that the defendant had been guilty of an indictable offence under s. 210 of the Code, which enacts that everyone who as parent, guardian, or head of a family, is under a legal duty to provide necessaries for any child under sixteen, is criminally responsible for omitting without lawful excuse to do so, etc. Remarks upon the Judge's charge as to "authorised" medical aid and upon the admission of evidence of cures believed to have been wrought by Christian Scientists, even as shewing good faith. Manslaughter-Peace officer shooting at fugitive offender-Endeavour to arrest without warrant-Shop-breaking-Criminal Code. ss. 30, 41, 461-Reasonable and probable cause-Question for jury-Charge to jury.] -1. The question whether a peace officer, un der s. 30 of the Criminal Code, on reasonable and probable grounds, believed that an offence for which the offender might be arrested without a warrant had been committed, and whether the officer, on reasonable and probable grounds, believed that a fugitive had committed that offence, is one for the jury and not for the Judge to decide, - 2. If a person, with intent to steal something out of a shop or store, opens a door leading into it by lifting the latch or turning the knob. and then enters the store, although during business hours, for the purpose of carrying out his intention, he may be convicted of shop-breaking under s. 461 of the Code.—3. When a peace officer, pursuing a fugitive whom he had a right to arrest without a warrant, found that the fugitive was, in his opinion, likely to escape for the time being owing to superior speed, it is a question for the jury, on the trial of the officer for man-

Manslaughter — Result of common assoult-Absence of intent, 1—The necused, a boy of 14, rushed at and without legal provocation struck a playmate, who then caught him by the shoulder and fell backwards, the fall dislocating the solial column just at the base of the skull and causing death:--Held, manslaughter; and no defence that the result was not anticipated and would noi ordinarily follow from such a blow. *Rex v. Mischief to mines-Damage to dam in course of construction — Criminal Code, s. 539—"Colour of right."] — The defendant was charged with having, wilfully, mali-ciously and without colour of right, entered on certain creek placer mining claims, and cut a hole in a dam, thereby causing water to be conveyed to one of the claims, to the injury thereof. The charge was laid under s. 510, 520 and 539 of the Criminal Code, "Mischief to Mines." The evidence shewed that the accused entered upon the property and tore out part of the dam, throwing out a box which was meant for a sluice-gate and same stakes supporting the dam. The defendant set up a bona fide colour of right :-Held, following Rez v. Johnson, 7 O. L. R. 525, that colour of right means an honest belief in a state of facts which, if it existed, would be a legal justification or excuse; and, upon the evidence, the defendant was not proceeding upon an honest belief that he had a legal right to do what he did, but -rather upon a hazy belief in a mixed legal and moral right, which would not excuse .- The defendant was found guilty upon the third count in the charge, "damage to the dam in course of construction," under s. 539 of the Code, and sentenced to pay a fine of $10, the costs of the prosecution, and $15 as compensation. R, v. Watier (Yuk. 1910), 15 W. L. R. 427.

Municipal corporation-Market fees-Right to possession.]-The defendant, a mar-ket clerk in the employment of the city of Montreal, had collected divers sums from persons exchanging market stalls, by representing that these sums were due and payable to the city, and none were paid over to stalls for others. No such sums were payable to the city, and none were paid over to the city by the defendant. On conviction of the defendant for theft from the city of Montreal :-- Held, Bossé and Hall, JJ., diss., that the conviction could not be sustained. To constitute the offence of stealing, whether under s. 305, or 319 (a), or 319 (c), of the Criminal Code, there must be a right existing at the time of the taking, either to the ownership or to the possession of the property taken, which right the city of Montreal did not possess in the present case. Murder-Attempt to murder -- Preliminary investigation-Committal on charge other than that preferred-Indictment - Amendment - Proof of criminal intent - Judge's charge-Inference of guilt.]-The magistrate who holds the preliminary investigation on a charge preferred against an accused person, may commit him on any other charge or charges disclosed by the evidence .--- 2 On the trial of a person accused of attempt to murder by shooting, evidence that he had burglar's tools in his possession at the time is admissible, as tending to prove criminal intent .--- 3. An indictment that "A. B. attempted to kill and murder C. D." sufficiently discloses an indictable o Tence, and the Court has the power to allow it to be amended so as to read that "A B, with intent to commit murder, shot at C. D."-4. It is lawful for the Judge, in charging the jury in a trial for an attempt to murder, to instruct them that they may draw an inference as to the prisoner's intent to kill from the circumstances of his being a stranger loitering in a street or park, between 4 and 5 o'clock in the morning, with a loaded revolver and burglar's tools in his possession. Rex v. Mooney, 15 Que. K. B. 57.

Murder — Gircumstantial evidence — Inferences—dury—Misdirection — New trial.] —On a trial for murder, where the evidence is circumstantial, and some of the material facts proved are of such a character that it is possible to draw from them inferences bearing either for or against the defence set up, it is the province of the jury to draw the inferences, and it is misdirection for which a new trial will be granted for the trial Judge to tell the jury that the only inferences that should be drawn are those tending to establish the guilt of the prisoner. Reg v. Colline, 3 E. L. R. 361, 38 N. B. R. 218.

Murder - Constructive offence-Unlawful purpose-Common design-Evidence-Judje's charge-Finding of jury-Verdict-Mistrial.] -The prisoner and two other men were in lawful custody in a cab, when loaded pistois were thrown in by an unknown person, and all three endeavoured to escape by using the pistols. In the stunggle which ensued one of the constables in charge of the three men was shot and killed by one of the prisoners. The trial Judge told the jury that there was no evidence of common design up to the moment the pistols were thrown in, yet if at that moment, before the shot was fired that killed the constable, the three men resolved to escape from lawful custody, each was responsible for the acts of the other. The jury after some consideration asked the Judge to repeat his charge as to the resolution to escape, and he did so in different words. The jury did not agree as to whether the prisoner actually fired the shot which killed the constable, but found the prisoner guilty on what their foreman called the second " count," and their verdict was recorded with their consent as one of "guilty," with a clause added as to their inability to agree H as to whether the prisoner fired the shot :-Held, having regard to the evidence and s. 61 (2) of the Criminal Code, that the offence being murder in the actual perpetrator was murder in the prisoner, even if he were not the actual perpetrator. 2. That there was nothing in the charge nor in the subsequent instructions to the jury, both of which must be read together, of which the prisoner could properly complain. 3. That the finding of the jury was a proper one, and there was no mistrial. Murder - Conviction for - Application for reserved case.]-Application under S and 9 Edw. VII, c. 9, by prisoner convicted of murder, to the trial Judge to reserve a case for the Court of Appeal. No objections had been made to the Judge's charge. It was suggested to prisoner's counsel that he would be heard amicus curiae on an application for a reserved case. Counsel then stated that it was not intended to submit any grounds; but an application would be made for executive clemency. The prisoner was sentenced to be hanged on 13th May, but was reprieved until 17th June. On 15th June an application was made under above statute to reserve a case for the Court of Appeal mainly on the ground that prisoner did not intend to kill his victim and that there had been a misdirection as to definition of murder and manslaughter: -Held, by the trial Judge, upon an application to him to state a case for the consideration of the Court of Appeal, that the jury were properly charged that the prisoner's act could only be for an unlawful object, and Rez v. Greenacre (1837), 8 C. & P. 35, followed. It was not misdirection to charge the jury that, had one blow only been given. the jury might have found a verdict of manslaughter on the ground of provocation. but not where the blows were repeated after there had been time for the prisoner's passion to cool. Application refused. R. v. Blythe (1909), 14 O. W. R. 363, 19 O. L. R. 386. Application was made to trial Judge to grant stated case for argument in Court of Appeal on the question "should Judge at trial specifically instruct the jury to consider the state of intoxication of prisoner and if they thought his state of intoxication was such as to prevent him appreciating the nature and result of his acts they should not convict of murder, but of manslaughter?" :-- Held, that when a Judge sums up to a jury, he must not be taken to be inditing a treatise on the law. Application refused. R. v. Meade

(1909), 1 K. B. 895, followed. R. v. Blythe (1909), 14 O. W. R. 634, 1 O. W. N. 17, 19 O. L. R. 386. On a motion for order directing trial Judge to submit a question as to the state of intoxication of prisoner for the opinion of the Court of Appeal, the question raised was fully argued and counsel agreed that the matter should be left to the Court as if argued on a stated case :- Held, that the conviction should be set aside and a new trial ordered. R. v. Blythe (1909), 14 O. W. R. 688, 1 O. W. N. 33, 19 O. L. R. 386, 15 Can. Crim, Cas. 224.

Murder - Evidence - Dying declaration -Indian woman-Hearsay evidence.] - Before the death of an Indian woman, for whose murder the prisoner was being tried, a statement was obtained from her in the following way. A justice of the peace swore an Indian to interpret the statement the woman was about to make; a constable then asked ques-tions through the interpreter, and a doctor wrote down what the interpreter said the woman's answers were. The doctor and the justice of the peace then signed the statement To some of the questions the woman indicated her answers by nodding her head. At the trial the statement was tendered as a dving declaration, and the doctor, the justice of the peace, and the constable identified the statement; the interpreter deposed that he interpreted truly, but he gave no evidence as to what the woman really did say:-Held, disapproving Regina v. Mitchell, 17 Cox C. C. 503, that the statement was admissible as a dying declaration; also that it had been properly proved. An Indian woman's statement that she thinks she is going to die is a sufficient indication of such a settled hopeless expectation of immediate death as to render the statement admissible as a dying declaration. A dying declaration may be obtained by means of questions and answers, and if it is reduced to writing it is sufficient if the answers only appear in the writing. Rex v. Louie, 23 C. L. T. 274, 10 B. Murder - Evidence of guilt-Continued silence of prisoner-Story in witness box -Inference-Judge's charge-New trial -Evidence in rebuttal-Cumulative testimony.]-The prisoner, who was tried and convicted of murder, although he had ample time and opportunity to tell all he knew concerning the crime both to the authorities and others, maintained a complete silence respecting it, with the exception of some bald assertions of his innocence, until he went upon the witness stand at the trial to give evidence on his own behalf, when he admitted being present at the doing of the deed, but charged it upon one G., a young companion, who was with him, and who, before and at the trial, had alleged the prisoner's guilt. The Judge, in charging the jury, told them that they were entitled to take this con-tinued silence of the prisoner into consideration, and after deciding whether or not such silence proceeded from a consciousness of guilt and a desire to spring a defence upon the Crown, which it might not be able to meet, they might therefrom draw an inference as to his guilt or innocence. He further instructed them that this continued silence of the prisoner was an element that might assist them in determining the amount of credence that ought to be given by the story told by the prisoner in the witness box :- Held, that the charge was correct in both respects; and even if erroneous, as in the opinion of the Court no substantial wrong or miscarriage had been occasioned thereby, such error was cured by proviso (f) of s, 746 of the Code. The witness G., in the original case of the Crown, swore that the murder had been committed about three o'clock in the afternoon, and that he and the prisoner were back in the city about five o'clock. The prisoner swore that the crime was not committed until about five o'clock, and that the clocks were striking six when he and G, were coming back to the city. The Crown, by permission, then called a witness to contradict the prisoner as to the time of G.'s return to the city; and the Judge allowed the prisoner's counsel to put in a witness in reply :---Held, that the evidence so put in by the Crown was contradictory; and further, as it was in the discretion of the Judge in what order he would receive evidence, and as the prisoner had had the opportunity of replying, of which he had taken advantage, that a new trial on the ground that such evidence was cumu-lative should be refused. Marder — Insanity — Uncontrollable impulse—Knowledge of nature of act—Criminal Code, s. 19.1—The prisoner was charged with murdering his wife and two step-daughters. The defence was insanity. Dr. J., called for the defence, gave it as his opinion that the prisoner knew the nature and quaiity of the act, and that it was wrong; but that, "mentally unbalanced as he was, he might be seized with an uncontrollable impulse, and not to be able to restrain himself." —Held, that the defence was not established. Rev V. Creighton, 14 Can. Crim. Cas. 349.

Murder — Judge's charge — Evidence — Misdirection—New trial. Rcx v. Paul, 10 O. W. R. 946.

Marder — Judge's charge — Murder or manslaughter—Benefic of doubt, 1—Where the Judge in a trial for murder concludes his charge thus.—"The verdict of the jury is generally resumed in a few words, in the solemn words of guilty or not guilty." he is not supposed to direct the jury to bring in but one of the two verdicts of guilty or not guilty of murder, if in other parts of his charge he has sufficiently pointed out the distinction between murder and manslaughter, and instructed them as to their duty to fund whether the prisoner acited with or without instruct to kill. Where the Judge considers that no doubt exists, he is not obliged to instruct the jury that the prisoner is entitled to any doubt they may entertain, such a course being more likely to impede than to assist them in the discharge of their duty. Reav. Fooquet, 14 Que, K. B. S7.

Murder-Judge's charge-No direction as to verdict of manslaughter - Necessity for giving where no evidence to reduce offence-Crown case reserved.]-On the trial of the accused for the murder of his step-son, the witnesses for the Crown swore that the accused had pointed a revolver at his wife, and that thereupon the deceased, her son, intervened asking the accused not to shoot, and that the accused thereupon deliberately turned and fir I at the boy, wounding him from which wound he subsequently died. accused swore that there had been no altercation previous to the shooting, that everything had been perfectly amicable, and that he had given the revolver to the deceased to shoot at some dogs, and that when he was handing it back it was accidentally discharged. He denied any provocation whatever, and swore that it was all an accident. The policeman who arrested the ac cused gave evidence as to a statement made by the accused that he had shot the boy. but that "I was so aggravated, I won't say crazy, at the time." This the accused absolutely denied. - The trial Judge charged in effect that there was under the evidence only one of two verdicts the jury could give, either guilty or not guilty of murder, and refused to charge that they might find the accused guilty of manslaughter. taken by the accused to the charge and the refusal of the Judge to charge as to manshaughter, a Crown cuse was reserved for the opinion of the Court en banc:--Held, that, in view of the denial by the accused of any provocation and of his statement that the shooting was purely accidental, the jury could not have found a verdict of man-shaukhter upon the evidence, and therefore the learned trial Judge was right in refusing to direct them as to the reduction of the charge to one of manshaughter. Kex v, Barret, 1 Sask, La R. 273; *S, C., sub nom. Murder — Judge's charge — Withdrawal from consideration of jury of question whether evidence shews merely manslaughter— Crown case reserveed — Criminal Code. Rex v. Burre (Sask), 8 W. L. R. 877.

Murder - Manslaughter - Definitions-Judge's charge—Failure to instruct jury— Failure to object to charge—New trial — Evidence-Rebuttal.]-It is the duty of the Judge in a criminal trial with a jury to define to the jury the crime charged and to explain the difference between it and its cognate offences, if any, Failure to so in-struct the jury is good cause for granting a new trial, and the fact that counsel for the accused took no exception to the Judge's charge is immaterial. 2. After the cases for the Crown and defence were closed, the Crown called a witness in rebuttal, whose evidence changed by a few minutes the exact time of the crime as stated by the Crown's previous witnesses and which tended to weaken the alibi set up by the accused :---Held, that to allow the evidence was entirely in the discretion of the Judge, and there was no legal prejudice to the accused, as he was allowed an opportunity to cross-examine and meet the evidence. Rex v. Wong On and Wong Gow, 24 C. L. T. 384, 10 B. C. R.

Murder-Proof of corpus delicti-Identity-Right to reply by Crown counsel -Judge's charge - Comment upon prisoner's failure to give evidence-New trial.]-On a charge of murder, the death of a human being having been once established, the identity of the deceased, and the fact that his death was caused by the prisoner, may be established by circumstantial evidence, which case the evidence of the identity of the deceased and of the prisoner's having caused his death was sufficient to warrant the prisoner's conviction .- The prosecution was conducted by the Crown prosecutor, having general instructions from the Department of Justice in all criminal cases, and particular instructions in this case :---Held, Wetmore, J., dissentiente, that, although no evidence was given on behalf of the deceased, the Crown prosecutor had the right to reply. Rex v. Martin, 5 O. W. R. 317, followed.-The Crown prosecutor in the course of his address to the jury referred to the fact that the prisoner might have given evidence on his own behalf. and expressed the opinion that "his counsel took the very best and wisest course in not having him go on the stand," adding, "I think it was wise for himself:"—Held, that the prisoner was entitled to a new trial, these remarks constituting an improper comment, by which substantial wrong and injustice was caused. Rex v. King, 6 Terr. L. R. 139, 1 W. L. R. 348.

Murder-Procedure-Reading commission at opening of assizes-Act of provincial legislature dispensing with issue of commissions -Opening address of Crown counsel-Reference to incriminating evidence-Failure of Crown to sustain-Effect on jury-Substantial wrong or miscarriage-Incompetent interpreter-Trial allowed to proceed notwithstanding objection-Reception of evidence at stage when not admissible - Ante mortem statement of deceased-Address of Crown counsel in reply-Right to go beyond what is strictly in reply-Objection not taken at trial -Matter of practice-Right to take before Court of Appeal-Form of Crown case reserved.]-Upon the trial and conviction of the prisoners for the murder of an Indian woman, certain questions of law were re-served by the trial Judge, under s. 1014 of the Criminal Code, for the opinion of the Court of Appeal :-- 1. By a British Columbia Act the issue of commissions of assize is dispensed with. It was conceded that this was intra, vires; but it was contended that the reading of a commission at the opening of the Court was a necessary formality at common law, and was a practice in existence in British Columbia at the time of the Union. and could not be abrogated except by a Dominion statute, being a matter of practice and procedure in criminal cases :--Held, that the practice and procedure must adjust themselves to the conditions which are brought about by the lawful exercise of its authority by the provincial legislature : and therefore, when no commission of assize is necessary, the practice of reading a commission at the opening of an assize must fall by the wayside. - 2. The Attorney-General, in opening the case for the Crown, outlined evidence of the most damaging character against the accused, and pointed to blood-stained clothing of one of them, which had been brought into Court, but failed to prove his statements, the Crown witness whom he intended to call not being competent by reason of her being the wife of the prisoner referred to. The question reserved (or intended to be reserved), in regard to this was, whether it was non-direction or other error in law on the part of the trial Judge to omit to direct the jury that these matters were not in evidence and ought to be wholly disregarded in deciding the guilt or innocence of the accused :--Held, that the production in Court of the clothing, coupled with the declaration that the stains on them were stains of human blood, was calculated to have the most profound effect upon the jury ; and a substantial wrong was done in not withdrawing them and clearly and explicitly warning the jury against being influenced by them; it was not a case of the wrongful admission of evidence, but it could not be treated as much less calculated to do substantial wrong to the accused than would be done by the actual admission of these statements in evidence; and on this ground the conviction should be quashed, and a new trial ordered. -Irving, J.A., dissenting.-Quare, per Mac-donald, C.J.A., whether the omission to direct the jury was a question of law within the meaning of s. 1014 of the Code .- Per Irving, J.A., that the proper inference , was that the jury understood that the statement of the Attorney-General had been made under a misapprehension, and that the fact mentioned to them had been wholly withdrawn from their consideration ; and, as no complaint was made by the prisoners' counsel at the trial, there could not be said to have been a substantial wrong or miscarriage .--- 3. At the trial, much of the testimony being given by Indians, an interpreter was sworn, who interpreted the statements of the witnesses to the Court. The interpreter was objected to by counsel for the prisoners on account of his bad character, and the trial Judge was not satisfied with the manner in which he performed his duties; but there was nothing to shew that the interpreter had dishonestly performed his duties, or had been guilty of misinterpretation of the evidence : - Held, Martin, J.A., dissenting, that no substantial wrong or miscarriage was occasioned by continuing the trial with this interpreter .- Per Martin, J.A., that the interpreter's incompetence rendered the trial an unfair one; and when that incompetence became apparent, the Judge should have stopped the trial; the fitness and capacity of the interpreter were for him alone to pass upon, and not for the jury.--4. A witness, A., when about to leave the box, was noticed by the trial Judge to be muttering; he asked the interpreter what she was saying; and this brought out a statement from the witness respecting something said by the deceased to the witness, tending to incriminate the prisoners, and which at that stage of the trial was not admissible .--Held, that, as the ante-mortem statement of the deceased made to A., which included the matter so improperly brought out, was afterwards admitted, no wrong or miscarriage had resulted therefrom .- 5. Held, that ante-mortem statement was properly admitted in evidence .--- 6. It was objected that the Attorney-General in his address to the jury in reply did not confine himself to matters proper to a reply, but discussed the case just as if he had addressed the jury first :---Held, that no substantial wrong was done to the accused .- Semble, per Macdonald, C.J.A., that, while it is now well established that in a proper case the Court will not refuse to grant a new trial in a case of felony because counsel for the defence did not take the objection at the trial, deliberate withholding of objection to something which might be remedied at the trial ought to be discountenanced; and, where the objection is one having reference to practice and procedure, failure to take it ought, unless in very exceptional circumstances, to be an answer to the objection when afterwards urged. -7. Held, that, looking at certain expressions used by the trial Judge in his charge to the jury, in the light of the whole charge, they were not misdirections. - Per Macdonald, C.J.A., that the case was not properly stated, consisting as it did of statement of facts divided into paragraphs, and no questions based on these facts; the Court was left to in-fer the question of law under each paragraph. R. v. Walker & Chinley (1910), 13 W. L. R. 47.

The trial Judge reserved a case for opinion of Court of Appeal as to his charge to the jury and the admissibility of certain evidence. Court of Appeal held, that the application was a last resort—a forlorn hope—and contained nothing to support it; that there was nothing objectionable in the Judge's charge to the jury nor in the evidence admitted at the trial. R. v. Rossi (1910), S. E. L. R. 505.

Murder-Verdict of "guilty"-Application to trial Judge after death sentence for a reserved case.]-An application on behalf of a prisoner under sentence of death for a reserved case was refused, the grounds of the application being whether or not the trial Judge was right in statements made in his charge and comments on the evidence. Rev. v. Swyrda, 13 O. W. R. 468, 15 Can. Cr. Cas. 138.

Murder-Weight of evidence-Motion for new trial-Circumstantial evidence - Identity.]-The deceased was murdered, according to the only eye-witness (a girl of about 8 years), by a dark man with a fat face. dressed in brown trousers, in the seat of which were two rents. He also had on a black shirt with white stripes, and a dark coat. The prisoner had been seen in the vicinity of the murder, within 1,000 feet of the place, some 20 or 30 minutes previously. His dress corresponded with the shirt, coat, and trousers mentioned, in addition to which he wore a stiff, black hat. A knife, sworn to as having been in the prisoner's possession three days before, was found on the afternoon of the murder, still wet with blood, a few feet from the murdered woman's body. When arrested three days later, the prisoner was without the dark shirt :-- Held, refusing an application for a new trial, that the jury was justified on the evidence in coupling the prisoner with the crime .- In a criminal, as in a civil case, on an application for a new trial on the ground that the verdict is against the weight of evidence, the Court will be governed by a consideration of whether the evidence was such that the jury, viewing the whole of the evidence reasonably, could not properly find a verdict of guilty. - While, under the criminal law, the accused person is not called upon to explain suspicious cir12

Nuisance-Indictment against railway for maintaining — Findings of jury-Guilty on one count-Disagreement on remaining counts -New trial ordered - Application to postpone-Granted on terms and undertakings-Case stated for opinion of Court of Appeal -Sentence deferred.]-Defendants were indicted for common nuisance. The jury gave a verdict of guilty on the count as to overcrowding, but failed to agree on the five other counts, Riddell, J., accepted the ver-dict, discharged the jury, and ordered a new trial on the five other counts, to take place the following Monday, pursuant to powers given him under ss, 858, 960, of the Code. Defendants moved to postpone the trial, based upon an affidavit that it would be impossible to get necessary witnesses and upon the ground of inconvenience .--- Riddell, J., held, that there was nothing to shew that defendants' witnesses would be more available at any time other than the one appointed, but on defendants giving an undertaking to make a careful experiment in good faith with a view to increasing the accommodation by modifying the routes, etc., and an undertaking to open other lines so as to relieve the congestion and to adopt such devices as might prove successful, the further trial would be postponed until the next sittings at Toronto for the trial of criminal cases .--- Defendants moved for a stated case to be argued before the Court of Appeal .--Riddell, J., granted the application, setting out the facts and the law in question involved in the case. Sentence deferred until Court of Appeal gives opinion. R. v. Toronto Rw. Co. (1911), 18 O. W. R. 104, 2 O. W. N. 681, 753.

Nuisance - Indictment of electric railway company-Endangering lives of public -Negligent operation of cars-Want of proper appliances-Fenders-Cars running reversely.] - Case reserved by Chairman of the General Sessions of the Peace for the county of York, upon an indictment and conviction of defendants for a nuisance, consisting in the negligent operation of the cars, without proper appliances, etc., so as to en-danger the lives and safety of His Majesty's subjects, etc. It was alleged that defendants were authorised to operate a street railway on certain streets in the city of Toronto, and in doing so were under a legal duty to take reasonable care and precaution to avoid endangering the lives and safety of the public, but without reasonable excuse neglected to take such precautions and did thereby endanger the lives and safety of the public and thereby committed a common nuisance. was shewn that at one end of a double tracked street that there was used what is called a "Y." and the cars were backed on a single track for about a quarter of a mile. There was no fender, headlight, nor gong used while backing this distance, which made it very confusing to persons crossing the street to tell which way the cars were going. Elizabeth Ward, in attempting to cross the street in the dark, was knocked down and killed by a car backing up this track :--Held, defendants were properly convicted, it being a common nuisance either at common law or under s. 191 and the first part of s. 192 of the Code. Nuisance - Railway-Crossing-Neglect to safeguard-Order of Railway Committee for protection of street crossing against two railways-Charge of failure to comply therewith-Joint indictment - Validity.] - The Railway Committee of the Privy Council of Canada, upon the application of a city, in order to provide protection at a place where a street was crossed by the tracks of two railways, ordered and directed that the two railway companies should, within a specified time, properly plank between their said tracks, and also provide gates and watchmen thereat, and should thereafter maintain and protect the said crossing :--Held, that a joint indictment against the two companies for the failure to place gates and a watchman at the crossing, would not lie; and therefore there was no jurisdiction in the Court of General Sessions of the Peace to try such an indictment, and a conviction made at the Sessions against the two companies was quashed .--- The effect of ss. 165, 221, and 247 of the Criminal Code, and ss. 33, 427, and 431 of the Railway Act, considered. It was necessary therefore for the Crown to shew that rent was due and in arrear. Rex v. Harron, 24 C. L. T. 10, 6 O. L. R. 668, 2 O. W. R. 903.

Obstructing divine service - Indictment-Proof of lawful authority-Ownership of church building.]-1. An indictment, under s. 171 of the Criminal Code, for unlawfully obstructing or preventing a clergy-man or minister, by threats or force, in or from celebrating divine service or otherwise officiating in any church, chapel, &c., is sufficient without allegation that the clergyman or minister obstructed was, at the time of the offence, in lawful charge of the church, chapel, &c. 2. To support a prosecution under that section, however, it must be proved at the trial that the clergyman or minister obstructed was, at the time of the alleged offence, either the lawful incumbent of the church or was holding service with the permission of the lawful authorities of the church. 3. A church building erected by a congregation of one religious body remains the property of those who adhere to that body. although a majority of the congregation afterwards decides to join another or religious body, and assumes to appoint a clergyman or priest to hold services in the church, and those who are opposed to such appointment may lawfully prevent or obstruct the person so appointed from officiating in the church. Obstruction of officer of law-Bailiff --- Executing writ of replevin-County Court -Absence of jurisdiction.]-Section 204 of the County Courts Act, R. S. M. c. 33, does not authorise the issue of a writ of replevin out of the County Court of any County Court division except that in which the goods to be replevied are situate. For the construc-tion of the provision in that section as to the Court out of which the writ is to issue, it is proper to look at the prior enactments of which that section is a revision; and in that light the words "otherwise ordered" should be held to apply only to an order changing the place of trial and not to give power to order the issue of the writ out of the Court for any County Court division other than that in which the goods to be replevied are situate. An order of a County Court Judge for the issue of a writ of replevin out of such other County Court, and the writ issued thereunder, are wholly ultra vires and void. and afford no protection to the officer attempting to execute the writ: and the owner of the goods described in the writ cannot be convicted under s, 144 of the Criminal Code, 1892, for unlawfully obstructing or resisting the officer in the execution of his duty, because he by force prevented the bailiff from taking the goods under the writ. Morse v. James, Willes 122, followed. Parsons v. Lloyd, 2 W. Bl. 845, and Collett v. Fos-ter, 2 H. & N. 360, distinguished. Rez v. Finlay, 21 C. L. T. 419, 13 Man. L. R. 383.

The question of whether the free use of the streets meant all portions of them is academic. Re Betisworth, 11 W. La R. 649.

Offence against eity by-law-Arrest by peace officer without warrant-Action for assault and false imprisonment.]-The defendant was a police constable in a city: without a warrant he arrested the plaintiff for a breach of a by-law of the city, and the plaintiff brought this action for assault and false imprisonment :---Held, that the direction to the jury that the defendant had a right without a warrant to arrest the plaintiff if he found him committing a breach of a city by-law, was erroneous; and a ver-dict for the defendant founded thereon was set aside .-- The power of a constable to make arrests without warrant depends either on the common law or on statute. At common law he may arrest a person whom he finds committing a felony, misdemeanour, or breach of the peace, or whom on reasonable grounds he suspects of having committed a felony; and by the Criminal Code, s. 648, he may arrest any person whom he finds committing a criminal offence. Omission to provide necessaries for wife—Provision by others—Injury to health —Necessity for proof of—Criminal Code.]— Under s. 210, s.-s. (2), of the Criminal Code, which deals with the non-support of a wife by a husband when a legal duty exists on the husband's part to provide necessaries for his wife, the criminal responsibility for the omission to do so only arises when it is proved either that her death has been caused or her life endangered, or her health is permanently injured or likely to be, by such omission. Where, therefore, the husband was convicted on the charge of having "unlawfully omitted, without lawful excuse, to supply his wife and child with the necessaries of life, whereby the health of each of them became, and was and is likely to become permanently injured," and the evidence shewed that the wife and child were living with the wife's mother, who supplied all her needs :-Held, that the charge was not sustained, and the conviction was quashed. Rex v. Wilkes, 12 O. L. R. 264, 7 O. W. R. 854.

Omission to provide necessaries of life — Criminal Code, ss. 209, 210, 211 — Master and servant—Head of family—Medical aid-Permanent injury to health.]-The accused had been placed in charge of a child of 12 under agreement with Dr. Barnardo's Homes. The boy's toes were frozen, and after more than three weeks without medical attendance_it became necessary to amputate them :-Held, that the relation of the accused to the boy was not that of parent, guardian, or head of a family, under s. 209 of the Criminal Code, 1892 .- Held, further, that, in the absence of medical evidence as to its effect, the loss of the toes could not be taken to be, or to be likely to cause permanent injury to health. Regina v. Coventry. 3 Terr. L. R. 95.

Ownership — Evidence-Depositions of witness at preliminary inquiry.]-Hidd, Rou-leau, J., dissenting, upon a Crown case reserved after a conviction for theft, that the production of the steer's hide with the prosecutor's brand and earmarks only upon it, and the evidence of the prosecutor that he had owned and had never parted with the steer from which the hide had come, were sufficient to justify the trial Judge in finding that the steer in question was the property of the prosecutor. (Sec. 63 & 64 V. c. 46, s.

ness at the preliminary inquiry was a corporal in the N. W. M. Police, that he had been sworn in as a member of Strathcona's Horse, that he had left the post at which he had been stationed to join the latter force, and that, in the opinion of the deponent, if he had left the latter force he would have returned to such post, which fact would thereupon have become known to the deponent. was sufficient evidence of the absence of such witness from Canada to justify the admis-sion as evidence at the trial of the deposition of such witness taken at the preliminary inquiry; and that the question was one to be decided by the trial Judge. Regina v. Forsythe, 4 Terr. L. R. 398.

Perjury - Absence of formal record.]-The defendant had been convicted by a police magistrate and sentenced to pay a fine for perjury alleged to have been committed at a former trial before the same magistrate, when the defendant had been acquitted on a charge of theft. On a reserve case the Court of Appeal held that the information was sufficient, that the present conviction was bad because there was no legal evidence of the former trial and the magistrate had no right to import into the present trial anything which had occurred at the previous trial. There is no authority in the Criminal Code to impose a fine on a conviction of perjury. Rex v. Legros, 17 O. L. R. 425, 12 O. W. R. 983, 14 Can. Crim. Cas. 161.

Perjery-Affidavit in pending civil cause -Several charges-Duty to consider affidavit as to whole-Charge not in information-Consent-Literally true statement - Crown case reserved-Form of.]-The defendant was convicted in a County Judge's Criminal Court on several charges of perjury, alleged to have been committed in connection with an affidavit sworn to in a cause pending in the Supreme Court. One of the charges was not contained in the information in the magistrate's Court, but was preferred by the Crown prosecutor, before the Judge of the County Court, without the latter having in any way expressed his consent to the preferring of the charge as required by the Code, s. 773. Another charge was that defendant falsely swore that a sum of money was not received by him, whereas it was received by the firm of which the defendant was a member. There was no allegation that the defendant, knowing that the money had been received, corruptly swore, etc., and the statement as sworn to appeared to have been literally true :- Held, that both convictions were bad, and must be set aside. - Held, also, that the different allegations being contained in the one affidavit, the Judge was wrong in considering each charge separately, without reference to the other allegations in the affidavit, and that he was bound to weigh the statements as a whole in arriving at a conclusion as to the guilt or innocence of the prisoner .--- Held, also, that it was not competent for the Judge to submit a question as to whether there was legal evidence to sustain the conviction, and send up the evidence for review, but that he must state the effect of the evidence to support a certain charge and reserve the question as to its sufficiency in point of law :--Semble, that the charge of perjury should not have been brought during the pendency of the civil action in the Supreme Court. Rex v. Cohn, 36 N. S. R. 240.

Perjury-Attempt to incite-Bail - Recognisance-Jurisdiction of justice of the peace-Criminal Code.]-A defendant charged with offering money to a person to swear that A., B., or C. gave him a certain sum of money to vote for a candidate at an election, was admitted to bail and the recognisances taken by one justice of the peace :---Held, that the offence was not an attempt to commit the crime of subornation of perjury, but something less, being an incitement to give false evidence or particular evidence regardless of its truth or falsehood, and was a misdemeanour at common law, and that the recognisance was properly taken by one justice, who had power to admit the accused to bail at common law, and that s. 601 of the Code did not apply. The common law juris-diction as to crime is still operative notwithstanding the Code, and even in cases provided for by the Code, and even in cases provided for by the Code, unless there is such re-pugnancy as to give prevalence to the later law. Rew V. Cole, 22 C. L. T. 132, 3 O. L. R. 389, 1 O. W. R. 117.

Perjary — Criminal Code, ss. 170, 171 (2) — "Judicial proceeding" — Crass-caumination on afidarit—Absence of registrar.]— Where an order had been made in a proceeding under the Guardian's Appointment Act for cross-examination on an afidavit:—Held, that the judicial proceeding ended when the registrar left the room in which the crossexamination was being held after swearing the witness, leaving the official stenographer to take the cross-examination in shorthand. Reg v. Ralofson, 14 B, C. R. 79, S W. L. R. 197, 14 Can. Crim. Cas. 253.

Perjury — Defendant acquiited — Stated case at instance of Croisn as to authority of acting Grown timber agent to receive oaths —Grown Timber Act, ss. 11, 15 — Public Lands Act, s. 54—Interpretation Act, s. 7 (20).1—Court of Appeal held, that, an actling Crown timber agent, not being a commissioner, notary or justice of the peace, has no authority to administer an oath to a clerk of a lumber company, who signs a return as required by R. 50. 1897, c. 32. R. v. Johnston (1910), 17 O. W. R. 78, 2 O. W. N. 106.

Perjury — Evidence of clerk and stenographer—Proof of proceedings in which offence committed—Record book — Imperfect proof—New trial—Substantial wrong or miscorriage.]—Crown case reserved by the chairman of the General Sessions of the Peace for the County of Brant. The prisoner was convicted for perjury. The only evidence was that of the Clerk of Assize, who swore the prisoner was called as a witness at a certain trial; and that as Clerk of Assize he had sworn the prisoner on said trial, and he produced his record book which he kept as Clerk of Assize, in which he had entered as a witness sworn on said trial the name of the prisoner, whom he identified as a witness who had been sworn by him; and that of the Court stenographer as to the evidence the prisoner had given at the said trial :--Held, the law had simplified the proof in such cases under s. 691 of the Criminal Code, viz., • A certificate containing the substance and effect only of the indictment and trial for any offence, purporting to be signed by the Clerk of the Court or other officer having the custody of the records of the Court whereat the indictment was tried, would be sufficient proof of the crime for which the prisoner was tried. This was absent and the conviction was not according to law, since the crime was not legally proved. The saving clause (s. 746 of the Code that the conviction ought not to be set aside as no wrong or miscarriage had been done in the mistakel, which was invoked by the Crown, did not apply and the conviction was reversed and a new trial granted. Rex v. Drummond, 6 O. W. R. 211, 10 O. L. R. 546.

Perjury — False declaration — Marriage laws—Lawful hindrance—Marriage with infant — Consent of father. Rex v. Moraes (B.C.), 5 W. L. R. 285.

Perjury — Indictment — Intent to de-ceive—Uriminal Code, s. 852 — Lord's Day Act-C. S. U. C. c. 104, s. 3-Perjury in Police Court-Jurisdiction of magistrate — Absence of information—"Judicial proceeding "-Criminal Code, s. 171-Evidence-Re-cord of trial.]-The indictment contained in substance a statement that the accused com-mitted the indictable offence of perjury in a judicial proceeding :--Held, that it complied with the requirements of s. 852 of the Criminal Code, and was not bad because it did not allege that the accused committed perjury with intent to deceive.-2. The statute C. S. with interit to decive.—2. The statute C. S. U. C. c. 104, s. 3, is in force in Ontario. Attorney-General for Ontario v. Hamilton Street Riv. Co., [1903] A. C. 524, followed. —3. The accussed was arrested by a police constable, and brought before a police magis-constable, and brought before a police magistrate, when a charge of gambling with dice on the Lord's day was laid against him. So far as appeared, no information was laid, but the constable had a warrant, which he read to the accused. The latter made no objection to the manner in which he had been brought before the magistrate or in which the charge had been laid; his trial was proceeded with, and in testifying on his own behalf he committed the perjuries for which he was in-dicted :--Held, that the magistrate had jurisdiction, and the accused gave his evidence in a judicial proceeding, within the meaning of s. 171 of the Code.-4. There being no in-formation or other formal record, the charge and the proceedings thereon, so far as material, were proved in the only way in which they were capable of being proved, i.e., by the oral evidence of the magistrate and his clerk, each speaking with the aid of his notes taken at the trial, which was the best evidence possible in the circumstances, and therefore sufficient. Rex v. Drummond, 10 O. L. R. 546, distinguished. Rex v. Yaldon, 12 O. W. R. 384, 17 O. L. R. 179.

perjury at the Court of . . police ma-gistrate, on his trial for theft, by swearing to the effect that he had been authorised, either verbally or by letter, by . . . the Crown timber agent, to take possession of certain poles on the farm of D., and that none of the poles taken by him were the poles cut by D." The charge for theft, as well as that for perjury, came before the same police magistrate, and both were tried by him summarily. On the latter trial when the prisoner was convicted of perjury -no record of the prior trial was produced or proved. The decision of the police magistrate on the charge for perjury, as stated by him, was not based altogether on the evidence, but to a greater or less degree on the expression and demeanour of the witnesses, and especially of the accused on both trials. On a case reserved, submitting questions as to the above for the opinion of the Court :- Held, 1. That the information was sufficient, the offence of perjury being sufficiently charged under s. 174 of the Criminal Code, form 64 being complied with, and all averments declared by s, 682 to be un-necessary, omitted. — 2. That whether the property alleged to be taken was under or above $10, under ss. 772, 778, and ss. 777, 782-3, a formal record of the trial for theft was essential, and should have been produced and proved, and the omission to do so invalidated the conviction .--- 3. That the police magistrate should have been guided by the evidence before him on the trial for perjury, and on that alone .- Meredith, J.A., declined to answer the second question and dissented as to the answer to the third question .- The conviction was quashed and the prisoner discharged. Rex v. Legros, 17 O. L. R. 425, 12 O. W. R. 983.

Perjury — "Judicial proceeding "—Criminal Code, ss. 170, 171 (2). Rex v. Rulofson, 9 W. L. R. 197.

Perjury-Judicial proceeding-De facto tribunal-Jurisdiction.]-An information under R. S. Q. Art. 5551, for trespass upon lands in the county of Huntington, in the district of Beauharnois, was laid, heard, and decided before the recorder of Valleyfield, an ex officio justice of the peace within the whole district, but who did not reside in the county where the offence was charged to have been committed, and was, therefore, without jurisdiction to hear the case, as R. S. Q. Art, 5561, provides that such offences shall be cognizable only by a justice or justices resident within the county where the offence has been committed :—Held, affirming the judgment in 11 Que, K. B. 477, that the hearing of said charge by the recorder, acting as a justice of the peace having power to hear it, was a judicial proceeding within the meaning of s. 145 of the Criminal Code, and that the appellant was rightly convicted for perjury committed by him upon such hearing, notwithstanding that the recorder had no jurisdiction over the subject matter of the complaint. Drew v. Rex, 23 C. L. T. 148, 33 S. C. R. 228.

Perjury—Offence committed on examination for discovery in civil action—Judicial proceeding—Postponement of trial until determination of action.]—The accused, having been charged with perjury committed on his examination for discovery before the registrar in a civil suit, elected to take speedy trial. On his election, his counsel took the objection that perjury could not be assigned on examination for discovery:—Held, that, as every statement made upon onth by the person examined during his extaniantion for discovery, forms part of his evidence at the trial, it is evidence given in a judicial proceeding within the menning of s. 145 of the Crimian Code.—Discretion of Court exercised by refusal to hear charge of perjury while civil proceedings are pending. Res v. Thickens, 12 B, C. R. 223, 4 W. L. R. 454.

Perjury — Reserved case — Evidence — Police Court record.] — A reserved case stated: "I withdrew the case from the jury and discharged the prisoner on the ground that the Crown had failed to produce sufficient evidence by not producing any record of the hearing or the result thereof in the Police Court, where the perjury was alleged to have been committed." The question stated for the consideration of the Court of Appeal was: "Was I right in withdrawing the case from the jury on the above grounds?" —Held, that the question should be answered in the affirmative, Meredild, J.A., dissenting. R. v., Drummond (1905), 10 O. L. R. 546; R. v. Le Gros (1908), 17 O. L. R. 425, and R. v., Dillon (1877), 14 Cox C. C. 4, followed. R. v., Fearnell (1910), 15 O. W. R. 15, 20 O. L. R. 182, 15 Can, Crim. Cas. 283.

Perjury - Statutory declaration - Statutory form not followed-Jurat-Criminal Code, ss. 174, 175, 1002-Want of corroboration. |-The second count charges the accused with committing perjury with the inteat to procure the conviction of B. for an offence punishable with imprisonment for life, under s. 174 above. This charge failed for want of corroboration. The accused had made what was intended to be the ordinary statutory declaration. From this the words "knowing that it is " had been omitted. Then the officer before whom the declaration was made asked declarant "do you declare it 's the accused saying. " I do."-Held. true," that accused not guilty of perjury as a solemn declaration is not made unless declarant reads over to the officer the statutory form or unless the officer reads that form to the declarant, Rex v. Phillips, 9 W. L. R. 634, 14 Can. Crim. Cas. 239.

Perjury before magistrate-Evidence Proof of what occurred before magistrate-Depositions-Oral evidence-Admissibility-Preliminary hearing-Omission of magistrate to sign depositions-Affidavit-Criminal Code, s. 683—Irregularity—Motion to quash indict ment—Sufficiency of depositions to support commitment.]—Upon the trial of the defendant for perjury alleged to have been committed upon a preliminary inquiry before a magistrate into a criminal charge laid by the defendant, parol evidence was admitted to shew what the prisoner had said on oath before the magistrate, although the prisoner's deposition as taken down by the magistrate was already in evidence :-Held, that, where a deposition is regularly taken down in writing, and is available, the writing is the best evidence of what purports to be, viz., the whole evidence of the witness on that occasion. The written deposition must, therefore, be produced, or its non-production pro-perly accounted for. If it be produced and put in evidence, then parol evidence is admissible to prove statements of the witness made on that occasion not appearing in the written deposition.—Regina v, Christopher (1850), 1 Den. C. C. 536, and Regina v. Coll (1899) L. R. 24 Ir. 535, followed.— The depositions taken by the magistrate upon the preliminary inquiry into the charge of perjury preferred against the defendant were taken down in shorthand and certified by the stenographer, but the magistrate omitted to sign them, and there was no affidavit by the stenographer, as required by s. 683 of the Criminal Code :-Held, not a mere irregularity, and not a ground for quashing the indictment :--Held, also, that the deposi-tions supported the commitment for trial. if it were necessary to shew that in a case where the accused was being tried only on where the accused was being tried only on the charge on which he was committed. R. v. Prosiloski (1910), 13 W. L. R. 298, 15 B. C. R. 29, 11 Can. Cr. Cas. 139.

Personation and perjury - Acquittal on indictment for personation at election-Subsequent indictment for perjury in taking oath of identification-Validity of plea of " autrefois acquit "-Right to acquittal at common law-Res judicata-Nemo bis vexari.]—The prisoner was indicted at the as-sizes for having applied for and voted on a ballot in another person's name at a Dominion election, on which charge he was acquitted He was subsequently indicted and convicted for perjury in having, on the same occasion, taken the oath of identity :--Held, that the offences were distinct; the persona-tion being complete under s. 114 of the Dominion Election Act, 1900, when he applied for the ballot; while the perjury, which was an offence under the Criminal Code, was not committed until, on being challenged, he took the false oath; and therefore, a plea of autrefois acquit could not be set up as an answer to the subsequent indictment :-- Held, however, Osler, J.A., and Teetzel, J., dissenting, that he had a good defence at common law-which was reserved to him under s. 7 of the Code-for the identity of the person committing the offence was essential in both indictments, and the acquittal on the first indictment being a inding on that question, it was res judicata, and could not be again raised on the perjury charge. Rex v. Quinn, 11 O. L. R. 242, 6 O. W. R. 1011.

Personation of voter-" Referendum " -Ontario Liquor Act, 1902 - Sentence -Police magistrate-Judicial discretion-Right of appeal-Mandamus-Status of applicant -Informant, Re Denison, Rex v. Case, 6 O. L. R. 104, 2 O. W. R. 152, 512.

Pocket-picking - Evidence.] - The prisoner was summarily tried and convicted of having stolen a pocket book containing evidence shewed that Mrs. D. entered the grounds of an exhibition with a large number of people, and having in her pocket a purse containing the money mentioned; that she stopped in a crowd to watch something that attracted her attention; that there was a commotion in the crowd, during which the prisoner pushed her or was pushed against her; that just as this occurred a police constable saw the prisoner putting his hand in a fold of her dress which he took to be the situation of her pocket; that the purse was shortly afterwards missed, and the prisoner. being arrested after an interval, had upon him money in notes and silver, some of which were of the denominations of the money in Mrs. D.'s purse, but none of which could be identified as having been hers .- Held, that upon such evidence a jury should have been directed to acquit the prisoner. The evidence did not raise more than a mere suspicion against the prisoner and was not sufficient in law to warrant a conviction .--- Conviction quashed. Regina v. Winslow, 20 C. L. T. 24, 12 Man. L. R. 649.

CRIMINAL LAW.

Polygamy-Indian marriage.1 - An Indian who according to the marriage customs of his tribe takes two women at the same time as his wives and cohabits with them, is guilty of an offence under s. 278 of the Criminal Code. Regina v. "Bear's Shin Bone," 4 Terr. L. R. 173.

Possession of counterfeit coin — Guilty knowledge.]—It is essential to prove that the coins offered in evidence of guilty knowledge on an accusation of having counterfeit coins in one's possession, are themselves counterfeit. Regina v. Benham, 8 Que. Q. B. 448.

"Post letter "-Letter handed to postman.]-Within the meaning of 52 V. c. 20, $s_{i}^{2} = (D)$, a letter handed to a postman, in the post office itself, is a letter "confié à la poste" (post letter), and where the post-man steals such letter he may be convicted under s. 326 (c) of the Criminal Code. Rea v. Trépanier, 10 Que. K. B. 222.

Prize-fighting - What constitutes.] The defendants advertised a boxing exhibi-tion, which was held in a public hall, and was accompanied by all the particulars and cir-cumstances of a prize-fight. Complainant submitted that the accused came within the provisions of the statute ; and on behalf of the defendants it was contended that the encounter was merely a scientific boxing parade, and moreover, a sham fight not forbidden by law :-Held, that, as the proof adduced established that the encounter in question was accompanied by all the circumstances and elements which constitute a prize-fight, the defendants committed an infraction of the law, Criminal Code, ss. 92-95, for which they must be found guilty. Steele v. Maber, 19 Que, S. C. 392.

Judge of the Sessions of the Peace for a violation of the Quebec statute respecting the observance of Sunday, 7 Edw. VII. c. 42. and appealed to the Court of King's Bench from his conviction:—Held, that the appeal lay under Part XV. of the Criminal Code, s. 700, combined with s. 16 of the Dominion Lord's Day Act, having the effect of conferring the right of appeal.—2. That the defendant, the owner of a moving picture show, by keeping his premises open on Sunday and charging an admission fee, pursued his business or calling for gain on Sunday in contravention of s. 2 of the Quebec statute. Res v. Owimet (Que.), 14 Can, Crim. Cas. 136.

Rape-Aiding and assisting-Evidence-Right of prosecutrix, but not of companion, to refuse to answer as to specific act of un-chastity-Finding of no substantial wrong or miscarriage.]-On the trial of an indictment for aiding and abetting the commission of rape, the evidence shewed that, prior to the commission of the offence, the prosecutrix and one B, had been together all the evening, and early in the morning were for some time together in a room in an hotel with the door closed and the gas turned out. On leaving the hotel they were met by the prisoner and another man, who attacked B, and caused him to leave, whereupon the offence was committed. The prosecutrix and B. were called as witnesses for the Crown, and on crossexamination were questioned as to what took place in the room, which they refused to an-swer:-Held, that while the prosecutor could properly be asked the question as going to her credit, she was not bound to answer; but that it was different as to B., for not only did it go to his credit, but its effect might be to shew a favourable tendency to the prosecutrix as his mistress, and an un-favourable one to the prisoner who had assisted in taking her away from him; but it appearing that no substantial wrong or miscarriage was occasioned thereby, applying clause (f) of s. 746 of the Criminal Code, a conviction was affirmed. Reg v. Finnessey, 11 O. L. R. 338, 7 O. W. R. 383.

Rape — Attempt to commit—Failure of Crown to shew that prosecutrix not wife of prisoner—Objection—Leave to appeal. Res v. Mullen, 5 O. W. R. 451.

Rape — Criminal Code — Indictment — Negativing exception — Amendment — Objection.]—The defendant was indicted and convicted for rape committed upon the person of V., "a girl under the age of 14 years, to wit, of the age of 8 years." Application was made to the trial Judge on behalf of the prisoner to reserve a case for the opialon of the Court, on the ground that it was not alleged in the indictment that the person upon whom the offence was committed was not the wife of the prisoner. This having been refused: -Held, that the expression in the Code, s. 266, "not being his wife," is an exception, and, if it required to be stated in the indictment and negatived, the defect could have been remedied by the Judge by an amendment under s. 723 (2), and that the defendant's counsel was obliged to take the objection before pleading to the indictment under s. 629, and not having done so it was not open to him to take it subsequently. Rex v. Wright, 39 N. S. R. 103.

Rape - Evidence - Complaint - Elicitation.]--Where the complainant makes a statement to a third person, not in the presence of the accused, it may be given in evidence upon his trial for rape, provided it is shewn to have been made at the first opportunity which reasonably offered itself after the commission of the offence, and has not been elicited by questions of a leading and inducing or intimidating kind, Rew v. Spuzzum, 12 B. C. R. 291, 12 Can. Cr. Cas. 287.

Rape — Evidence — Complaint — Par-ticulars of—Interval — Civil action—Rela-tions with accused after offence.]—1. On a trial for rape, the fact that the injured person made a complaint and the particulars or details of the complaint are admissible as evidence in chief for the prosecutor to confirm the testimony of the injured person and disprove consent on her part; and among the particulars the name of the person whom she accused of the offence may be stated .-- 2. While the injured person should make her complaint as soon as possible after the commission of the offence, yet no specific time for such complaint being fixed by law, evidence may be admitted of a complaint made by her to her mother seven days after the offence; but the jury may and should weigh the interval which elapsed before complaint was made, when considering the probability of its truth. -3. Evidence that civil suits for damages based on the alleged commission of rape, have been instituted by the tutor of the injured person (a minor) on her behalf, and also by her mother, may be excluded as irrelevant on the trial for rape, unless it be first proved that the injured person and her mother had stated, or let it be inferred, that the accused was innocent of the offence charged, and that they had appeared to be desirous of extorting money from him. In such case, the fact that civil actions had been instituted would be corroborative evidence. Judgment in 9 Que, Q. B. 147, confirmed.—4. Evidence that the accused and the injured person were on friendly terms after the commission of the alleged offence, and that she angrily resented the interference of her mother when the latter wished to put an end to such intimacy, should have been admitted, such evidence being important to enable the jury to judge whether or not there was consent on the part Q. B. 147, reversed. Rex v. Riendeau, 10 Que, K. B, 584.

Rape-Evidence of penetration -- Complaint made in answer to questions--Admissibility.]--The accused was tried and convieted of rape, upon the vidence of the complainant and of her husband and another man, to whom she had narrated the circumstances. The evidence of the complainant was to the effect that the accused had put her upon a bed, holding her so that she could not move, had raised her clothes and "entered her." and that she had resisted to the uitermost of her strength. She then went to a neighbour's and had something to est, and in the course of the meal mentioned that the accused had been to her house. The neighbour then asked "if Dunning had been too free with her." and she thereupon narrated the circumstances of the alleged rape. The neighbour then went, after some time, for the husband, and when he came he asked " if Dunning had hurt her." and she then made her complaint. It was objected that there was no sufficient evidence of penetration, and that the complaints were inndmissible as being in answer to questions:--Held, that the evidence of penetration was sufficient to warrant the case being left to the jurg.--2. That the complaints, being made in answer to questions of a leading and suggestive nature, were inndmissible as evidence. Rev v. Dunning, 1 Sask L. R. 201, 7 W. L. R. 857, 14 Can. Cr. Cas. 461.

Rape — Indictment — Admissibility of evidence — Conversation between the complainant and her mother — Reservation of question of admissibility — Appeal from Judge's retual to reserve—8.-s. 3. s. 1014. Criminal Code.]—On trial of prisoner for rape, conversations between complainant and her mother, shortly after committal of offence, admitted as evidence. It is too late, on argument of stated case, to urge that such evidence only goes to shew consistency in complainant's conduct and corroboration of her credibility. Rex v. Cassidy, 7 E. 1. R. 216.

Rape — Indictment for — Jury returned verdict of common assault—Competency of finding—Unchastity of complainant—Denial by complainant—Right of trial Judge to admit evidence of—New trial,—Court of Appeal held, (1) that a jury may find a verdict of common assault on an indictment for rape; (2) that evidence of unchastity of complainant should not have been admitted by the trial Judge. R. v. Muma (1910), 17 O. W. R. 265, 2 O. W. N. 176.

Rape — Joint indictment—Scparate 'rials Canada Evidence Act, 1893, a. β —Applicability to person not on trial — "Person charged"—Right of Judge to comment on his not giving evidence.]—The prisoner and one F. were jointly indicted, and a true bill found against them. It was ordered that the prisoner should be tried separately and apart from F., as to whom the indictment was traversed to another sittings. At the trial of the prisoner the presiding Judge commented on the fact that F, was not called as a witness:—Held, that F, was not called as a witness:—Held, that F, was not called on trial; F, was a competent witness, but his competency did not depend on this Act, and therefore the Judge had the right to comment as he did. Regina v. Payne, L. R. 1 G. C. R. 340, and Regina v. Posselin, 33 S. C. R. 255, commented on. Res v. Blais, 11 O. L. R. 345, 7 O. W. R. 380, 10 Can. Cr Cas. 354.

Rape — Verdict of "guilty" — Judge's charge—Exclusion of consideration of minor offence — Misdirection—New trial.]—If the Judge allows the indictment to go generally to the jury, it is not competent for him to withdraw from their consideration a verdict for any lesser offence which may be included in the indictment. And upon an indictment for rape, where the charge was calculated to lead the jury to believe that if they failed to find the accused guilty of rape they would fall short of their plain duty, and a verdict of "guilty of rape" was returned, a new trial was directed. Rev V. Scherf, S. W. L. R. 219, 13 B. C. R. 407.

Receiving stolen goods — Acquittal of accused on charge of theft—Auterfois acquit -Indictment-Mention of name of thief-Surplusage, 1-A charge of theft does not impliedly include that of receiving stolen goods, An accused who is acquitted of theft remains subject to the accusation of receiving, and cannot, by reason of his acquittal, set up the defence of autrefois acquit .-- 2. Upon a charge against H. G. of receiving a sum of money stolen by J. S., the public prosecutor is not bound first to establish the offence of the thief thus designated. The mention of his name in the indictment for receiving is surplusage, and is no obstacle to the conviction of the receiver by the application of s. 849 of the Criminal Code. Rex v. Groulz. 19 Que, K. B. 118.

Receiving stolen goods — Conviction by justics--Omission of scienter — Habcas corpus-Certiorari-Criminal Code, s. 791— Juriadiction of Supreme Court of Saskatchstolen property. "Knowing same to have been stolen" was omitted from information. He pleaded guilty and was sentenced to imprisonment and fined.—Held, that the conviction was bad; that certiorari should go, and that the Court has jurisdiction. Res v. Leschinski, 9 W. L. R. 602.

Receiving stolen goods — Conviction for—Charge of theft.]—Under s. 713 of the Criminal Code, a conviction for receiving stolen goods cannot be sustained where the charge was housebreaking accompanied with theft. Regina v. Lamoureux, 21 C. L. T. 49, 10 Que, Q. B. 15.

Receiving stolen property - Indictment for - Prior conviction for stealing -Right to inspect information and depositions.]-By s. 11 of R. S. O. 1897 c. 324, " a person affected by any record in any Court in this province, whether it concerns the King or other person, shall be entitled, upon payment of the proper fee, to search and examine the same, and to have an exemplifica-tion and a certified copy thereof made and delivered to him by the proper officer." The applicant was committed for trial at the Sessions upon three charges of receiving cattle stolen from C. and two other persons, knowing them to have been stolen. At the previous Sessions three persons were convicted of having stolen cattle from C., one of whom and two others were also convicted at the same Sessions of having stolen cattle from S. No charge was pending against the applicant of having received cattle stolen from S .:-Held, that in such cases the question is whether the applicant would be affected by the records which he sought to examine, and that, while he might be so affected as regards the cattle stolen from C., and so entitled to the inspection asked for, he was not as regards those stolen from S. C. c. 157, s. 4 (Criminal Code, s. 182), signify means of a promise of marriage." W "by Where therefore the trial Judge directed the jury that the intention of the section was to impose a punishment for the seducing of young women under 21 by men over 21 to whom they were engaged, and the jury ren-dered a special verdict as follows: "The verdict is that the prisoner promised to marry F. S. in June, 1892, with the intention of carrying out his promise, but in November of the same year he seduced her, at the same time renewing his promise of marriage, and in our opinion no other man had connection direction and therefore a mistrial; and a new trial was ordered. Regina v. Walker, 1 Terr, L. R. 482.

Seduction of female ander promise of marriage—Meaning of "previous chaste character"-Sufficiency of promise of marriage.1--The words "previously chaste character" as used in s. 182 of the Criminal Code, 1892, do not mean previous reputation for chastity but mean those acts and that disposition of mind by which the morals of an unmarried woman may be judged; and therefore, when an unmarried woman under the age of twenty-one years, who, previous to the date of the seduction under promise of marriage in respect of which the charge is hid, has had illicit sexual intercourse with the necused, she cannot be said to be of "previously chaste character" unless between the date of such illicit intercourse and the seduction complained of there is evidence of reform and self-rehabilitation in chastity. *Rev V. Seduction of girl under 16-Evidence - Corroboration - Functions of Judge and jury.]-In a prosecution under the Criminal Code, s. 181, for the seduction of a girl under 16, in addition to the evidence of the girl, evidence was given by other witnesses to the following effect :- That the accused and the girl were found in a house alone; that he was then leaving sheep (which were in his charge) unattended and refused to go with the witness to go where the sheep were; that before he was charged with any offence he stated to the witness "that he had been advised if he could get the girl away and marry her, he would escape punishment :"-Held, that the girl was corroborated in some material particulars by evidence implicating the accused, within the intention of the Criminal Code, s. 684.—Semble, that the fact that the accused, in giving evidence on his own behalf, stated that he had first had connection with the girl at a date after she had reached 16, while one of the witnesses for the prosecu-

Whether there is any corroborative restimony is a question for the Judge, but if there is any such testimony, the sufficiency of it, and the weight to be given it, is for the jury, unless of course the corroboration is so slight that it ought not to be left to the jury at all. Regina v. Wyse, 2 Terr. L, R. 103.

Seduction of girl under 16-Offence committed on named date-Election of prisoner to be tried summarily-Amendment to a prior date-Right of-Further election of prisoner.]-A prisoner was indicted before a County Court Judge charged under s. 181 of the Criminal Code, with having on the 9th January, 1905, seduced a girl of or above the age of 14 and under that of 16, of, as alleged, previously chaste character, upon which he elected, under s. 767 of the Code, to be tried summarily, but, on the evidence disclosing a connection with her six days previously at another place, the charge was amended by setting up the offence as having been committed on such prior date; and, without giv-ing the prisoner the right of electing whether or not he would be tried summarily on such amended charge, he was tried thereon and convicted :--Held, that the conviction could not be supported, for the offence could only be supported once, namely, on the first occasion on which the connection took place, so that the date was material to the charge, and while an amendment could be made substituting the prior date, which was in effect preferring a new charge based on a different transaction, the prisoner should have been transaction, the prisoner should have been given the opportunity of electing under s. 767 how he would be tried thereon. Selling beverage in bottle with name of another on it — Unregistered name— Criminal Code, s. 449 (b).]—Defendant, a ginger ale and soda water manufacturer, filled four bottles having another like manufacturer's name permanently affixed thereon, and placed them upon the market for the purpose of sale. Defendant was convicted therefor under Criminal Code, s. 449 (b), which enacts that "Every one is guilty of an indictable offence who, (b) being a manufacturer, dealer, or trader, or a bottler, without the written consent of such person, trades or traffics in any bottle or siphon which has upon it the duly registered trade mark or name of another person, or fills such bottle or siphon with any beverage for the Held, it was not necessary that such name should be registered as a trade mark, the object of the legislation evidently being to prevent, as far as possible, the easy com-mission of a fraud of that kind. In the French version of the Code the words are " la marque de commerce dument enregistrée ou le non d'une autre personne," which more plainly indicate that the words "duly regis-tered" are confined to the trade mark and do not apply to the name: s.-s. 2 of s. 449 supports this construction. Rev v. Irvine, 5 O. W. R. 352, 9 O. L. R. 389.

Solling crude optium for other than medicinal purposes—7.8 Edue, VII. c. 50, s. J—Code, s. 717.]—Where a drug clerk, contrary to instructions, sold crude optium for other than medicinal purposes:—Held, the master could not be convicted of the offence under 7.8 Edux VII. c. 50, s. 1. Defendants having admitted keeping the crude optium for sale to Chinese:—Held, that that was sufficient evidence to support a conviction for keeping crude optium for sale for other than medicinal purposes. Section 717 of the Criminal Code only applies to convictions under Part XV. (Summary Convictions). R. v. A. & N. (1909), 15 O. W. R. 339, 16 Can. Cr. Cas. 381.

Selling intoxicating liquor to railway employees—Offence created by both provincial and Dominion Acts—Information under Ontario Act-Non-applicability to emunder Onder Onder Act-Non-applicability to em-ployees of Dominion railtoxy company--Knowledge by barkeeper of the employees being such.] — Where statutes have been passed by the Dominion Parliament and provincial legislature prohibiting an act, and an information is laid charging as an offence the commission of the prohibited act "contrary to the statute in such case made and provided," such information must be held, in the absence of a specific reference to the particular statute, to have been laid under that statute in which words are used to describe the elements of the offence.—An information charged that the defendant at, etc., did sell, give, or barter spirituous or intoxicating liquors to a conductor and engineer on the Grand Trunk Railway, while actually employed in the course of their duty in connection with the operation of a train; and that such liquor was supplied by the defendant's barkeeper contrary to the form of the statute, following the wording of the Ontario Railway Act, 6 Edw. VII. c. 30 :- Held, that the offence must be deemed to be one under the Ontario Act, and not under s. 414 of the Dominion Railway Act; and as, by s. 3 of the Ontario Act, such Act is restricted to railways within the jurisdiction of the On-tario legislature, and the Grand Trunk Railway is under the jurisdiction of the Dominion Parliament, a magistrate's conviction of the defendant for the alleged offence could not be supported .- Semble, that the fact of the men not being in uniform, and not known to the barkeeper to be railway employees, would not exculpate the defendant. Rex v. Treanor, 18 O. L. R. 194, 12 O. W. R. 1175.

Selling lettery ticket-Criminal Code, ss. 236 (b), 852 - Statement of offence in Charge-Ucceription of in popular language.] --Defendant was tried on a charge of unlawfully selling lottery tickets:--Held, that this is a popular and short way of stating the facts constituting the offence under s. 236 (b) nhove. Defendant convicted. Rex v. Ying Foy, 11 W. L. R. 246.

Selling newspapers containing racing information—Two days after races were run—Conviction by police magistrale— Offence under Criminal Code, s. 235 (f), as amended by 9 & 610 Edue, VII. (D.), c. 10. s. 3—Stated case—Evidence.]—Court of Appeal held, that there was no evidence to support conviction, Conviction quashed and defendant discharged. R. v. Luttrell (1911), 18 O. W. Selling obscene books and pictures -Conviction by magistrate - Admissions-Criminal Code-Habcas corpus-Absence of scienter.] - Application by defendant upon return of habcas corpus for his discharge from custody under a commitment issued pursuant to a conviction of a police magistrate of Toronto for selling obscene books :-Held, (1) that magistrate justified in find-ing that sale took place in Canada, and there being no evidence offered by defendant to the contrary; (2) that the prosecution need not prove that a confession was free and voluntary before evidence thereof admitted; (3) that a confession is sufficient to warrant a conviction; (4) there is nothing to shew that the charge was not reduced to writing; (5) that by looking at the books before the trial the magistrate did not necessarily prejudge the case; (6) that as scienter not alleged in the information, it saying "did contrary to law sell," the conviction is bad unless it be amended, which was done; (7) that the warrant is bad, scienter not having been alleged. Case adjourned to allow a new warrant to warden of Central Prison, prisoner to be detained meantime. Rex v. Graf, 13 O. W. R. 943. Application by defendant upon return of a habeas corpus for his discharge from custody under a commitment pursuant to a conviction by a police magistrate for selling obscene books and pictures :-- Held, that the question where the sale took place was solely for the magistrate. Reg v. Graf, 13 O. W. R. 1133. A proper warrant having been lodged with warden of Central Prison, further argument heard for prisoner's discharge. - Held, that a police magistrate has power to amend a conviction. Since conviction valid, the Judge may allow a formal commitment to be lodged, prisoner being meanwhile detained. Application dis-missed. Rex v. Graf, 13 O. W. R. 1133, 19 O. L. R. 238, 15 Can. Crim. Cas. 193.

Shooting with intent—Justification — Questions for jury—Misdirection.]—The defendant, who was employed as watchman and special constable, was in the act of arresting P. for committing a disturbance, when he received a blow from behind which cut his head. Turning, he saw M. immediately behind him, and, supposing him to be the person by whom the blow was struck, tried to arrest him. M. ran away, followed by the defendant, who had in his hand a small stick. Near the station of which the defendant was in charge, this stick was wrested from him by E. P., who had followed with a number of others, and, in the disturbance which followed, during which, according to the defendant, one of the persons present raised a stick in a menacing manner and threatened to smash his brains out, the defendant drew a revolver, and fired two shots, one of which struck E. P.:-Held, setting aside the conviction of the defendant for shooting with intent to do grievous bodily harm, that it was misdirection on the part of the trial Judge to charge the jury that there was no concerted attack upon the defendant, and no assault at the time the shots were fired, that the assault was over, and that those present were not within striking distance, these being questions for the jury. The assault upon the defendant having been admittedly committed without provocation, the questions for the jury were: (1) whether the defendant had any intention of causing grievous bodily harm, and if not, (2) whether he used any more force than was necessary : -Held, further, that, under the Code, s. 45, defendant being justified if the force used by him was not meant to cause death or grievous bodily harm, or was no more than was necessary for the purposes of selfdefence, and there being evidence which. if believed, would have enabled the jury to find for the defendant, the trial Judge erred in charging the jury that there must be evidence that the defendant could not otherwise preserve himself from death or grievous bodily harm. Rex v. Ritter, 36 N. S. R. 417.

SmuggHug.]--When a person is charged with the offence of participating in smuggling operations, by being on board a boat engaged therein, the onus is on the Crown to prove necused had been "knowinzly concerned" in the prohibited acts, "If he has been knowinzly concerned," contained in the Customs Act, R, S. C. (1900), c. 48, s. 216, is a condition precedent to the completion of the offence, not merely an exemption, exception or proviso, not necessary to be alleged under s. 717 Cr. Code, as amended 1909. Prisoner having pleaded guilty to a charge not alleging that he had been "knowinzly concerned," a warrant of commitment was made out in like terms.--Held, prisoner was entiled to his discharge upon a habeas corpus as the warrant was insufficient. R. v. McDonald, S E. L. R, 489, 16 Can. Cr. Cas. 505.

Statutory offence-Grand Trunk Railway-Act of incorporation-Breach of provisions-Tariff of fares-Third class carriages -Conviction of officer-Offence of company -Criminal Code.]-The defendant, who was second vice-president and general manager of the Grand Trunk Railway Company, was convicted by a police magistrate under s. 138 of the Criminal Code of an offence against s. 3 of 16 V. c. 37 (C.), on the following findings: that the company had not during the year 1906 fixed or issued a tariff of fares or charges, payable by each third class passenger by any train on said railway for each mile travelled; that the company had not during that time permitted a third class passenger to travel by any train on said railway at the fare or charge of one penny currency for Stealing trees - Value - Offence punishable on summary conviction-Jurisdiction of Court of King's Bench-Quashing indictment, 1-The stealing of trees of the value of $25 being declared an indictable offence by s. 336 of the Criminal Code, and the stealing the whole or any part of any tree, etc., of the value of $0.25 at least being declared an offence punishable on summary conviction only, by s. 337, it follows by necessary implication, from the combination of the two sections, that the stealing of trees of the value of $14, is an offence punishable on summary conviction only, and is not an indictable of-fence cognizable by the Court of King's Bench.-2. In the absence of a special enact-ment, the Court of King's Bench has no concurrent jurisdiction to try offences punishable on summary conviction .--- 3. An indictment setting forth an offence which is not indictable will be quashed on motion to that ffect. Rex v. Beauvais, 14 Que. K. B. 498.

Stocks—Broker.]—A broker, who merely acts as such for two parties, one a buyer and the other a seller, without having any pecuniary interest in the transaction beyond his fixed commission, and without any guilty knowledge on his part of the intention of the contracting parties to gamble in stocks or merchandise, is not liable to prosecution under s. 201 (a) and (b) of the Criminal Code of Canada. nor as accessory under s. 61. Reging v. Doved, 17 Que. S. C. 67.

Summary trial - Excessive penalty -Amendment-Discharge-Further detention.] -The defendant was prosecuted for stealing $5 in money, the property of one J. M., contrary to the form of the statute, etc., and the charge was heard and determined in a summary way by a police magistrate :--Held, that the prosecution fell under s. 783 (a) of the Criminal Code, the value of the property being less than $10, and it not being charged that the offence was "stealing from the per-son;" and therefore s. 787 applied, and the magistrate had no power to impose a penalty of imprisonment for longer than six months. -The provisions of the Code respecting amendments to summary convictions do not apply to summary trials; and the provisions of s. 800 do not apply where the same infirmity is found in the conviction as in the commitment. - The conviction and commit-ment were bad for imposing an unauthorised penalty; the defendant was entitled to be discharged upon habeas corpus; and an order should not be made under s. 752 for his further detention. Regima v. Randolph, 20 C. L. T. 439, 32 O. R. 212. Sunday observance — Remedy under a statute and remedy under a municipal bylaw respecting the same offence — Plea of astrefois convict.]—A person condemned to pay a fine by the Recorder's Court, by virtue of a municipal by-law, for having on Sunday kept a theatre open to which an entrance fee was charged, may also be summoned for the same offence, by virtue of the law, whether federal or provincial, respecting the observance of Sunday, and a plea to the second charge of autrefois covict will not be entertained. Theft-Assault-Retaking moncy paid-Direction to jury.] — Where the prisonerneted in the bong fide belief that he had been swindled, and, in the belief that he was entitled to retake the money, committed an assault for that purpose alone, and did retake the money, or a portion of it, in that sole and bong fide belief, the jury, on consideration of the facts, would be justified in acquitting him on a charge of robbery, although it was open to them, on the same facts, to convict for assault. Rez v. Ford & Armstrong, 13 B. C. R. 100.

Theft-Breach of trust-Intent-Conversion.]—A minor intrusted by his tutor with chattel property of which he is part owner, who fraudulently converts it to his own use, with intent to deprive his tutor of it, is guilty of theft. Guillet v. Rex, 14 Que, K. B, 385.

Theft—Conductor of train taking money from passengers and allowing free transportation—Jurisdiction of justices—Conviction— Suspended sentence—Costs. Res v. McLennan (N.W.T.), 2 W. L. R. 227.

Theft-Conversion — Middirection.]—The mere fact of a person converting to his own use goods found by him does not of itself as a matter of law make him guilty of theft. Where, on the trial of a charge of theft, the jury after retiring asked the question: "Does raising a temportry loan on anything found constitute theft?" the Judge answered "Yes".—Held, that the answer was equivalent to a direction that as a matter of law the accused was guilty, and was a misdirection. Theft—Evidence—Onus.] — On a charge of theft of goods from a store, evidence of the finding in the prisoner's house of the goods and of keys fitting the store doors, and of the fact that the goods were in the store exposed for sale at the time of the alleged theft and had not been sold, is sufficient to put the onus upon the prisoner of accounting for his possession. In such circumstances, it is not necessary for the Crown to prove that the goods had not passed from the possession of the owners by some means other than sale. Reav. Theriault, 11 B. C. R. 117.

Theft-False pretences-Count added at trial-Speedy trial-Powers of County Court Judge — Election of accused — Evidence to support conviction.]—The accused was tried by a County Court Judge upon an indictment containing two counts, the first for theft, and the second for obtaining money under false pretences. The accused was committed for trial only on the charge contained in the first count, the charge contained in the in the first count, the charge contained in the second count having been before the commit-ting magistrate but having been withdrawn by the complainant :--Held, that the Judge had the right, under the Criminal Code, as amended in 1909, to add the second count .---Held, also, that the accused had elected to be tried by the Judge on both charges .- Held, also, that there was evidence to support a conviction on the second count-the Judge was justified in drawing the inference that the accused was a party to a transaction which was admittedly fraudulent. R. v. Stickler (1910), 13 W. L. R. 316.

Theft-Grain subject to chattel mortgage -Constrained by mortgager-Special property of mortgage in grain-Mortgage void for uncertainty-Absence of mens rea.]-A chattel mortgage given by defendant covered "entire yield of 25 acres sown to wheat, estimated yield 18 bushels to the acre." Defendant having sold all the wheat was arrested by the mortgagees and charged with theft. Doubted if a mortgagee's rights are "special property" under the Code:-Meld, that mortgagee void for uncertainty and incorrect consideration, and mens rea absent. As mortgagees, therefore no theft. Res v. Ripplinger (Sask.), 9 W. L. R. 605, 14 Can. Crim. Cas. 11.

proceedings for his discharge, he alleged (1) that he did not really elect summary trial, and that if he did he should not have been refused a re-election, such as no account sought, through his connsel, and (2) that he was denied an opportunity for making full answers and defence in being refused a post-structure of the second submesses. Before Clute, J., it was alleged that the original warrant of commitment was defective, but another was substituted for it. Without considering the objections to the first warrant, Clute, J., remanded the prisoner to custody under the substituted warrant.-Court of Appeal held, that that was within his power, following R, y. Richards, et al., 5 A, & E. N. E. 926 :- Held, also, that the evidence shewed that the prisoner did elect summary trial, and that once before he had elected and been tried in a like manner upon another charge, and that it was proved at the trial that the prisoner had no witnesses and so did not need any postponement of trial for that pur-pose:—Held, further, that the prisoner was not entitled to a re-election, and the fact that the words "with hard labour" were stricken out of the conviction had no substantial effect upon his sentence:—Held, lastly, under s. 777 of the Criminal Code, with consent of the accused, the magistrate had jurisdiction and the appeal should be dismissed. R. v. McDonald (1910), 15 O. W. R. 797, 21 O. L. R. 38.

Theft_Juvenile offender - Imprisonment -Warrant of commitment-Defect-Amendment-Discharge.]-The defendant was detained under a warrant of commitment from a magistrate, reciting a conviction of the prisoner before that magistrate, for the offence of fraudulently and without colour of right taking and converting to his own use one stove of the value of $5, the property of one W., with intent to deprive said W. absolutely of the said stove. A return to an order in the nature of a habeas corpus made under R. 8. N. S. c. 181, shewed that the prisoner was detained under a warrant of commitment made the 9th January, 1903, a copy of which was annexed, and that he came into the custody of the keeper of the home, under said warrant, on said last mentioned day, and was detained on said warrant until the 22nd January, 1903, when, being still in custody, the magistrate caused to be delivered to the keeper of the home a certain other warrant of commitment, under which the prisoner had been detained ever since :--Held, ordering the discharge of the prisoner, that the return to the order was bad, because neither it nor the second commitment shewed that the The second commune and the first war-rant, or substitute the second one for it. tory and sent on to the Central Prison and kept there in custody under the warrant of commitment to the Reformatory. On a motion for his discharge on the return of a mo-tion for his discharge on the return of a habcas corpus :-Held, that there had been a miscarriage of legal directions in sending a lad of over 17 years of age to the Reformatory and in sending him on a sentence of two years to the Central Prison.-Held, also, that s. 785 of the Criminal Code is intended to comprehend summary trial "in certain other cases" than those enumerated in s. 783, and that when the offence is charged, and in reality falls under s. 783 (a), it is to be treated as a comparatively petty offence with the extreme limit of incarceration fixed at six months under s. 787 :- Held, also, that, under the circumstances, this was not a case Ger the circumstances, this was not a case for further detention, or the direction of further proceedings under s. 752; and an order for the defendant's discharge was granted. Res v. Theft - Post letter and money-Evidence -Confession - False statements - Person in authority-Decoy letter-" Post letter "-Addresses to jury-Order of-Reply-King's counsel representing Attorney-General.] . Prisoner convicted for stealing a post letter and of theft of money. At the trial the post office inspector was about to testify with respect to a statement or confession made to him by the prisoner, when counsel for prisoner objected, and was allowed to examine the inspector as to the circumstances in which the statement was made. Upon testimony thus elicited counsel for the prisoner con-tended that it was shewn that the statement or confession was not admissible, because it was made as he contended to a person in authority, and was procured by means of threats or inducements, or by false statements made by inspector to the prisoner. The statement was admitted in evidence. Counsel for prisoner also objected that the letter was not a post letter within the mean-ing of the Act 1 Edw VII. c. 19, s. 1, it having been written by the inspector as a decoy. Prisoner called no witnesses and his counsel contended on that ground he had the right of reply. Trial Judge ruled against him and Crown replied :-Held, 1. That there was no evidence that the confession was obtained by means of threats or inducements held out, and evidence was properly admitted .--The letter in question was a post letter within the meaning of the Act .-3. Crown always had the right of reply if its repre-Sentative saw fit to use it. See as to this last point, Rev. v. Martin, 5 O. W. R. 317, 9 O. L. R. 218; Rev. v. Ryan, 5 O. W. R. 125, 9 O. J., R. 137.

Theft-Restitution of stolen goods when prisoner acquitted - Evidence.]-McIntyre was indicted for stealing $95 in bank notes, and acquitted. He applied to have $37 in notes, found on his person when arrested, returned to him, which was resisted on behalf of the prosecutor. The P. E. Island Statute 6 William IV. c. 22, s. 38, enacts that when a prisoner is not convicted the Court may if it sees fit order restitution of the property where it "clearly appears" to have been stolen from the owner. When arrested the prisoner had the money sewed up in his trousers and among the notes was $5 one of the Bank of N. B., a $5 of the Bank of Halifax, and a $5 of the Bank of Montreal, and when asked why he had put the money there he said "to hide it from the police." The prosecutor swore he had carefully counted the money before the rob-bery and that it included a $5 Bank of N. sufficient to identify the notes as the prosecutor's and that the application must be granted. Theft-Special property in railway car-Manitoba Grain Act.]-M. made application in the order book kept at Moosomin station, under s. 58 of the Manitoba Grain Act as amended, which provides that "cars so ordered shall be awarded to applicants according to order in time in which said orders appear on the order book." Section 42 of the Act, as amended by s. 5 of 2 Edw. VII. c. 19, provides (clause 5): "The railway company shall furnish cars to farmers, without undue delay, for the purpose of being loaded at said loading platform." The staton agent intended a special car for M., and told one S. to notify M. He was not notified; and the accused took possession of and loaded the car. He was convicted of theft: -Held, that M. could not insist on any particular car being delivered to him; and he had therefore no special property or interest in the car in question within the intent of clause A, of s.-s, 1 of s. 305 of the Criminal Code. Conviction guashed. Rex v. McElroy, 6 Terr. L. R. 10.

Theft-Summary trial - Jurisdiction of stipendiary magistrate-Plea of guilty-Reducing charge to writing-Warning to prisoner-Form of conviction - Waiver.]-The defendant was charged before the stipendiary magistrate for the city of Halifax with the theft of a number of amalgam plates and copper plates with gold amalgam thereon of the value of $200 or thereabouts, and, the charge having been stated to him in open Court, and he having pleaded guilty, he was thereupon convicted of the offence charged and sentenced to three years' imprisonment in the penitentiary. An order in the nature of a habeas corpus for the defendant's discharge was applied for, on the ground that the magistrate could not proceed with the trial without the preliminary examination required under s. 789 of the Code, and that the requirements of s. 786 were not complied with: - Held, Weatherbe, C.J., dissenting, that the stipendiary magistrate had power to proceed with the trial under s. 785 of the Code, as amended by Acts of 1900, c. 46, without entering upon the preliminary ex-amination under s. 789.-2. That the procedure adopted by the magistrate was sufficiently in accordance with the requirements of the statute to be considered as defective in form only, and, there being a good conviction and one alleging that the defendant had been convicted, the provisions of s. 800 applied .--- 3. That the charge having been read to the defendant in the terms of the information, which was in writing, and the defendant having pleaded guilty, it was not competent for him thereafter to say that he was Theft by an agent-Broker-Purchase of stock-Obtaining money to maintain margin.]-A broker who receives money from a customer to purchase stocks on margin from a firm of correspondents, holds them in his own name and allows them to be sold on his account, but subsequently rearranges with his correspondents to resume business and carry the same stocks, receiving in the meantime remittances from his customer to maintain the margin, without informing him of what has taken place, and who afterwards severs anew his connection with his correspondents, and receives at the same time from his customers instructions to sell the stocks, which would have resulted in a comparatively small loss, instead of doing so, replaces them by purchase of a like quantity of the same kind from another firm, whose subsequent failure causes their total loss, is not guilty of theft by an agent under the Criminal Code, Rex v. Bastien, 15 Que. K. B. 16.

Theft of cattle — Criminal Code, s. 988—Branding — Evidence — New trial,— Case stated at instance of the Crown after the trial and acquittal of accused on a charge of theft:—Held, that there was possession under above section, as sterr in question was in accused's herd, a small compact one, in charge of his son. New trial directed. R. v. Dubois (1906), 12 W. L. R. 500.

Theft of cattle - Criminal Code, s. 889 — Branding — Evidence of possession— Case stated by Judge—Form of 1—The defendant was tried by a Judge, without a jury, upon a charge of stealing a steer, and convicted. The trial Judge reserved for the opinion of the Court the question: "Was there sufficient evidence of possession of the steer by the defendant to throw upon him the burthen of proving that it came lawfully into his possession?" The facts found by into his possession?" the trial Judge and submitted to the Court were: that the steer was the property of the H. ranch company, and was branded with that company's registered brand; that it was afterwards (that is, an undetermined time after being so branded) found with a herd of cattle grazing on the prairie in the vicinity of the defendant's ranch, about 120 miles from the company's ranch; and it was then branded with the defendant's brand and marked with his ear-marks; that it was not shewn that the defendant had ever seen the steer; and that the defendant's brand upon the steer was in such a condition as to indicate that it had been put on within two months:-Held, that this was not sufficient evidence of possession; and therefore the provisions of s. 889 of the Criminal Code had no application; and, the trial Judge's finding being in effect that the Crown's case failed unless that section were applicable, the conviction could not be sustained .- Per Beck, J., that the proper course, in reserving a case for the consideration of the Court, where the question reserved is a point of law, is for the trial Judge himself to find the facts upon which the question of law depends, and, where the question reserved is whether there is any evidence or sufficient evidence to support his finding of a particular fact, to extract from the notes of the evidence the whole of the evidence bearing upon that finding, and in neither case to leave it to the Court of Appeal to ascertain the facts from a perusal of the notes of evidence; Harvey, J. expressly dissenting from this opinion; and the other members of the Court not expressing any opinion. R. v. Dubois (1910), 15 W. L. R. 238.

Theft of fowls — Value under 829 — Prisoner pieaded guilty before County Court Judge's Criminal Court—Sentenced to three years—Reserved case—Criminal Code, ss. 82, 269, 291, 370, 430, 455, 453, 440, 582, 781, 824, 825.1—Prisoner pleaded guilty to theft of fowls. There was no evidence that the value of the fowls was over $20, and the presumption was that the value was much less. The Judge of Lambton County Court Judge's Criminal Court sentenced prisoner to three years' imprisonment. On a reserved case Court of Appenl held, that the Judge had no jurisdiction to impose such a sentence, the maximum penalty for such an offence being a fine or one mouth's imprisonment under s. 370 of the Criminal Code. Prisoner discharged from custoly. R. v. Williams (1910), 16 O. W. R. 344, 21 O. i.e. R. 467, 1 O. W. N. 554.

The Dominion Act, 43 V. c. 25, is not ultra vires .- 2. The information in such case (if any information be necessary) may be taken before the stipendiary magistrate alone. An objection to the information would not be waived by pleading to the charge after objection taken. -3. At the trial in such case the evidence may be taken by a shorthand reporter.—4. A finding of "guilty" will not be set aside upon appeal if there be any evidence to support the verdict .- 5. To the extent of the power conferred upon it, the Dominion Parliament exercises not delegated, but plenary powers of legislation .- Insanity as a defence in criminal cases, discussed. Regina v. Trespass—Damage to property — "Fair and reasonable supposition of right" — Water—Access to shore.]—The honest belief of a person charged with an offence under R. S. O. c. 120, s. 1 (unlawfully trespassing), or the Criminal Code, s. 511 (wilfully committing damage to property), that he had the right to do the act complained of, is not sufficient to protect him; there must be fair and reasonable ground in fact for that belief.

Unlawfully making contracts for sale of stocks-Keeping common gaming house -Stock transactions on margin - Agent for broker-Evidence-Onus - Criminal Code-Aiding and abetting.]-Defendant was con-victed upon charges of unlawfully making contracts purporting to be for the sale of stocks, goods, wares, or merchandise, in re-spect of which no delivery thereof was made or received, without the bona fide intention to make such delivery, with intent to make gain or profit by the rise or fall in price of the stocks, goods, etc., contrary to s. 201 of the Criminal Code, and of being a keeper of a common gaming house contrary to said section. The following were submitted for the opinion of the Court of Appeal-1. Does the evidence given on behalf of the Crown prove an offence against sec. 201 of the Criminal Code, under which the indictment was laid? 2. Does the evidence shew that the contracts charged in the first and second counts of the indictment were made or authorised by defendant; and if the evidence shews that de-fendant had no interest in either of the transactions with which he is charged in said counts except the payment of his commission, which was a fixed amount, and was payable to him whether the price of wheat or of the stock, the subject of such transaction, rose or fell or remained stationary, can the conviction upon such counts or either of them be sustained ?--- 3. Does the evidence shew that the contracts charged in the first and second counts of the indictment were made within the Dominion of Canada and can the conviction upon said counts be sustained? 4. Was We are a subscription of the subscription of the evidence of J. G. Beaty and Clarence W. Cady, received by the County Court Judge, upon the trial of the accused, admissible as evidence, and having been re-ceived should such conviction be sustained? 5. Could defendant properly be convicted of an indictable offence under s.-s. 3 of s. 201 of the Criminal Code? 6, Is defendant liable to a penalty or punishment in respect of an offence under s.-s. 3 of s. 201 of the Criminal Code, by viriue of s. 951 or otherwise, under the Code or under the common law?

The evidence shewed that from the beginning of January, 1904, until the information was laid, some time after 1st March in the same year, defendant was occupying a room or office in the town of Niagara Falls, Ontario, in which he was carrying on a business under the name and style of Harkness & Co. The nature of the business was learned from a circular issued by defendant, a copy of which was put in as evidence. It was headed "Office of Harkness & Co., Brokers, Stocks, Grain, and Provisions." Defendant was not a member of the stock exchange at New York nor Chicago, and he did not deal directly with either of these cities. He claimed to be a branch or agency of a firm of operators was in Pittsburg, Pennsylvania, with a branch in Buffalo, N.Y. Defendant swore that he did not know whether any member of the firm of Richmond & Co. was a member of either of these exchanges. When giving orders the persons who dealt with defendant deposited with him sums of money, never exceeding a margin of 2 per cent, in the case of stocks, or 1 per cent. in the case of grain or provisions, out of which the defendant received a commission from the Buffalo office. Each order was telegraphed to the Buffalo office, and the next day defendant handed to the customer a paper, signed "Harkness & Co., brokers," containing, amongst other containing, amongst other Co., prokers, containing, discover as fol-lows; "Mr. —, You have bought from Richmond & Co., Pittsburg, at the price named in this memorandum, for delivery on demand, subject to the contract and notice and provisions above and herein." In the margin appear the words: "I consent and agree to the contract expressed hereon." But the customer was not required or expected to sign, and apparently never did sign Save this document, there was no delivery, and it was proved that in answer to a question put to him by the Chief of Police. to whom he was explaining the nature of the business, defendant stated that he did not deliver goods or stock—the people did not do business that way. If the stocks, grain, or provisions held by the customer went up in price, he directed defendant to sell out and received back his deposit with the profit. If the price declined below the margin, the customer either put up a further deposit or let his first deposit go and bore the loss. Defendant remitted the amounts he received each day to Richmond & Co., Buffalo, who remitted to him the sums payable to customers on the result of transactions closed out during the day:-Held, with regard to defendant's position, that he is only an agent receiving a commission and is therefore not liable. Upon his own admissions his office is a branch of Richmond & Co.; he was engaged in soliciting. attracting, or inducing persons to deal with Richmond & Co., through him in illegal transactions, and, as the County Court Judge has found, he had a guilty knowledge of the nature of the dealings. There was no purchase shewn on the exchange for or on account of the customer. There was nothing but a contract or agreement with Richmond & Co., to which the defendant was a party, with knowledge of its real nature. The customer and Richmond & Co., through and by the aid of defendant, have committed the offence prohibited by s. 201 (1) (b), and defendant has done acts for the purpose of aiding them to commit the offence and has abetted them in the commission of the offence. At common law one who aided and abetted them in the commission of an offence thereby rendered himself liable as a principal. Then s. 61 of the Criminal Code expressly declares that every one is a party to and guilty of an offence who does or omits an act for the purpose of aiding any person to commit the offence or about any person in commission of the offence. That is to say, by aiding or abetting in the commission of of an offence, he becomes a party to and guilty of the same offence. Thus he becomes a party principal, and there appears to be no reason why he should not be indicted or charged as a principal under the Code. See Regina v. Campbell, 2 Can. Crim. Cas. 357. Upon the evidence it must be held that the contracts charged in the first and second counts of the indictment were made in Canada-according to the holding of the majority of the Judges of the Supreme Court in Pearson v. Carpenter, 35 S. C. R. 380. The conviction of defendant under s.-s. (3) of s. 201 was properly made. By that sub-section it is declared that every office or place of business wherein is carried on the business of making or signing or procuring to be made or signed, or negotiating or bargaining for the making or signing of such contracts of sale or purchase as are prohibited by this section, is a common gaming house, and every one who as principal or agent occupies, uses, manages, or maintains the same, is the keeper of a common gaming house. All the ques-tions should be answered in favour of the Crown, and the conviction should be affirmed. Reg. v. Harkness, 6 O. W. R. 219, 10 O. L. R. 555.

Unlawfully solemnising marriage-R. S. O. 1897, c. 162, s. 2 (1)-Minister of independent congregation - Qualification -Appointment - Ordination - Conviction . Reserved case-Question of fact-Appeal-Jurisdiction.]-Certain persons met and professed to form themselves into an independ-ent church or congregation known as "The First Chinese Christian Church, Toronto," and appointed the defendant, one of their number, the minister of the church. At a subsequent meeting he was ordained by two Congregationalist ministers, not as a Con-gregationalist minister, but as a minister of a new independent church :-- Held, that he was not a minister ordained or appointed according to the rites and ceremonies of the church or denomination to which he belonged, within the meaning of R. S. O. 1897, c. 162, s. 2, s.-s. 1; and, the above facts appearing upon his indictment and trial for solemnising or pretending to solemnise a marriage without lawful authority, contrary to s. 311 of the Criminal Code, there was evidence upon which he could be convicted; and his conviction was affirmed .- Per Moss, C.J.O., that where the Judge at the trial states a case for the opinion of the Court of Appeal, the case comes before that Court as an appeal, within the meaning of s. 1017 of the Code, and the Court has the right to refer to the evidence, even when it is not made a part of the case.—Per Meredith, J.A., that the Court of Appeal had no jurisdiction to entertain the case, the questions reserved for the opinion of the Court being questions of fact. Rew v. Brown, 12 O. W. R. 448, 17 O. L. R. 197, 14 Can. Crim. Cas. 87.

Usury—Conviction under Money Lenders' Act, R. S. C. (1906), c. 122—Scheme to evada Act-Note endorsed—Cashed by an-other party — Charges for endorsement — Evidence — "Money lender"—"Aider and abettor."]-Defendant was Toronto manager of Borrowers Agency, which advertised to negotiate loans on borrower's note, which they would endorse. One Holmes applied to defendant for a loan of $30, and defendant sent a man to examine Holmes' furniture. The next day defendant endorsed a note for Holmes and his wife, taking a chattel mortgage for $30 to secure company's en-dorsement, and a second chattel mortgage for $13.10 to cover charges for endorsement. Defendant then asked Holmes if he knew where he could get the note cashed, and on being informed that he did not, de-fendant directed Holmes to Brenizer's office, where a young woman cashed the note, charging 12% interest, or 90 cents, paying $29.10 ing 12% interest, or so cells, paying savino to Holmes, Crown proved nother similar transaction cashed at same office.—Denton, Co.C.J., held, that defendant was a money lender within the meaning of the Money Lenders' Act, and convicted .- Court of Appeal held, that defendant was not a money lender, but was an aider and abettor, and conviction should stand. - Denton, Co.C.J., thereupon imposed a fine of $500, or three months' imprisonment. The fine was paid. Rex v, Kehr (1910), 17 O. W. R. 213, 2 O. W. N. 133, Can. Crim. Cas.

Usury—Lending money at usurious rates —Conviction—Money Lenders' Act—Scheme to evade Act—Discount at bank—Brokerage — Evidence.] — The defendant, a money lender, was convicted by a magistrate of lending money at a rate of interest greater than that authorised by the Money Lenders' Act, R. S. C. 1906, c. 22. The evidences shewed that the defendant advanced $185 to R, on two promissory notes, at one and two months, for $100 each, the rate of interest thus being apparently 60 per cent. per annum. The defendant, however, explained the charge of $15 by shewing that he discounted the notes with a charged as "brokerage" are of $1350 was charged as "brokerage" ane of $1350 was charged as "brokerage" that the accused was a principal, but a broker or agent. The magistrate found that the accused was a principal, and that the transaction with the batk was merely a shift to avoid the penalties of the Act.— Held, that there was evidence upon which the conviction was affirmed. Rev v. Dubé, 18 O, L. R, 307, 14 O. W. R. 45.

Usnry-Money Lenders' Act-Loan-Rate of interest---'' Money lender''--Practice of lending money at usarious rates-Evidence-Contract-Oral testimony to cxplain.]-The prosecutor, on applying for a lonn of $35, was required by the accused to sign a contract in the form of an assignment of his monthly salary for several months, to commence at a later date, which was not to be acted on or notified to his employer in case he should make the stipulated payments of $2.80 per week for 20 weeks, the first of which was to be made in four days. There was no covenant to make these payments, so that the accused was without remedy in case the prosecutor should die or fail to earn any alary .- At the trial, the entries of the transaction in the books kept by the accused and oral testimony as to its nature were admitted to shew that it was in reality a loan, and not, as the accused contended, a mere purchase of the prosecutor's future salary earnings:-Held, that the oral testimony and entries in the book were admissible to shew the real nature of the transaction, and they sufficiently shewed that it was a loan of money, within the meaning of the Money Lenders' Act, R. S. C. 1906, c. 122, s. 11, and at a rate of interest greater than that authorised by that Act.-Held, however, that, under s. 2 of the Act, the prosecutor should have given evidence to shew that the accused had made a practice of lending money at a higher rate than ten per cent. per annum, and that, as no such evidence had been given. the conviction must be quashed. Rex v. Clegg, 8 W. L. R. 572, 18 Man. L. R. 9, 14 Can. Cr. Cas. 217.

Unary — Money Lenders' Act, R. S. C. (1996), c. 122—Evasion of statute—Evidence —Conviction—Leave to appeal to Court of Appeal refused.)—Defendants were convicted upon a charge of lending money at a greater rate of interest than that authorised by the Money Lenders' Act, R. S. C. (1996), c. 122. Counsel for defendants applied to trial Judge to reserve a case, and were refused. On motion for leave to appeal to the Court of Appeal, held, that there was evidence, to which no objection could be taken, to justify the trial Judge's conclusion. Leave to appeal refused. R. v. Smith & Luther (1910), 16 O. W. R. 542, 10, W. N. 956.

Unry-Money Lenders' Act — Usury — Illegal interest-Agent of money lender — Liability for offence-Mandate.]—An agent acting as manager for a non-resident of Canada, may be convicted under the Money Lenders' Act, R. Usury - Usurious transactions - Commission of five per cent, besides interest-Customary allowance for transacting business,]---Where a merchant supplied goods, money, promissory notes and other commercial instruments to country customers and where accounts, returns and settlements were made from time to time at their convenience with produce from the upper country, transferred by vessels and barges, the Privy Council held, that a commission of five per cent. on all advances besides interest, under the circumstances, was not an usurious transaction, but a customary allowance for the trouble and inconvenience of transacting the business. Pollock v. Bradbury (1853), C. R. 2 A. C. 46.

Vagrancy—By-law — Loitering on street —Validity—Arrest without warrant—R. S. N. cc. 71 and 161—Information—ChargeStipendiary magistrate — Jurisdiction.] — Defendant was arrested by a police constable for loitering on the street and convicited:—Held, on a case stated, (1) that no information necessary: (2) that the charge was under the law not under a by-law; (3) it makes no difference that constable was also paid by a private purty; (4) loitering "about" equals loitering "in." R. v. Sweeney, 8 E. L. R. 16.

Vagrancy - Conviction - Evidence -Criminal Code, s. 207 (1)-Habeas corpus -Discharge.]-The evidence upon which a magistrate's conviction of the defendant under s. 207 (1) of the Criminal Code for vagrancy was based, was, that, though never convicted, he was an associate of pickpockets, and was "known to the police authorities of Montreal as a professional pickpocket." There was no further material evidence against the defendant, though a number of circumstances were shewn which would create suspicion of his honesty. There was no evidence offered by the Crown that he had no means of earning a livelihood; evidence of his being recently employed as an hostler was given on his behalf. He had $40 on his person when arrested :--Held, that, if there was some evidence that the defendant " for the most part supported himself by crime,' there was no evidence to warrant a unding that he had "no peaceable profession or calling to maintain himself by;" and he was discharged upon the return of a habeas cor-Rex v. Collette, 10 O. L. R. 718, 6 O. pus. W. R. 746.

Vagrancy — Conviction — Sentence — Recorder of Montreal—Jurisdiction.] — The Recorder of the city of Montreal, by virtue of s. 493 of 62 V. c. 58, has a right to sentence an idle and disorderly person, who is an habitual drunkard and incorrigible, to imprisonment for six months at least, and a year beyond, but he is not at liberty to add to this punishment the condemnation of hard labour. Gevier's V. Weir, S Que, P. R. 51.

Vagrancy—Means of support—Gambling —Evidence, 1—The accused, when arrested. had on his person $27.20, Evidence was given that he lived by "following the race track," and that his general associates were gamblers and others of the criminal classes : —Held, that, although he might be convicted under s. 238 (b) of the Criminal Code, yet he could not, on the evidence, be convicted of being a loose, idle, disorderly person, with no visible means of support, and that evidence that the money found on his person was obtained by gambling was immaterial to the charge in this case. Res v. Sheehan, 14 B. C. R. 13, 8 W. L. R. 605, 14 Can. Crim, Cas. 119.

Vagrancy — Prostitute — Conviction not stating that accured was asked to give an account of herself—Criminal Code, s. 238 (i)—Conviction following words of statute —Information—Plea of guilty — Waiver of objections — Form of information — Reference to repealed statute—Surplusate. Res v. Harris (Y.T.), 8 W. L. R. 633, 13 Can. Cr. Cas. 393.

Vagrancy—Prostitute not giving satisfactory account of herself—Plea of guilty—Conviction—Request not disclosed — Summary trial — Habeas corpus.] — Defendant was charged with being a common prostitute not giving a satisfactory account of herself, and being a vagrant, Pleading guilty she was convicted. Habeas corpus, held to be the proper remedy on a summons conviction even if conviction bad :—Held, further, that the information did not shew that there had been a demand on her to give a satisfactory account of herself, Pleading guilty was no waiver. Accused discharged. R. v. Lecceque (1871), 30 U. C. R. 509, and R. v. Herris (1908), 13 Can. Cr. Cas. 393, followed. R. v. Pepper, 12 W. L. R. 58, 15 Can. Crim. Cas. 314, 19 Man, R. 200.

Vagrancy — Statutory offence — Necessity for person charged to properly account for herself-Dolke officer—Disclosure of authority.]—A police detective, in plain clothes, questioned the accused as to what she was doing in a certain house. He did not inform her that he was an officer:—He'd, that the officer should have first disclosed his authority, and then expressly asked the accused to give an account of herself. Rez v. Regan, 14 B. C. R. 12, 8 W. L. R. 525, 14 Can. Crim, Cas, 106.

Vagrancy - Summary conviction - Imposition of illegal costs-Amendment-Costs of conveying to gaol-Omission to provide for-Loose, idle, and disorderly person-How charged-Different acts constituting offence.] -The defendant was convicted before two justices of the peace "for that he did use abusive language and was drunk and disorderly on the street, contrary to s. 238 of the Criminal Code," and was ordered to pay a fine of $50 and $16.70 costs, including $5.15 for his own witness fees. The defendant secured a writ of certiorari to quash the conviction on the following grounds, among others: (1) that it condemned the defendant to pay illegal costs; (2) that it did not fix the costs of commitment and conveyance to gaol; and (3), that the conviction was for two offences. On the return of the writ the justices returned an amended conviction as "Did unlawfully cause a disturbfollows: ance in Main street and the store of one Lorimer, the said store being a public place, and did unlawfully loiter on said street and did obstruct passengers by using insulting language, thereby being a vagrant : "-Held, that the justices had no jurisdiction to order the defendant to pay to the prosecutor the costs of the defendant's witnesses, and the conviction was therefore bad, but under s. 754 of the Code the Court has power to amend the conviction and to provide that the defendant is only liable to pay such Costs as he is legally liable to pay under Part XV, of the Code.—2. That it is not necessary to set out the costs of commitment and conveyance to gaol in the conviction .--3. That a person cannot be convicted for being a "loose, idle, or disorderly person or a vagrant" without specifying which of the acts of vagrancy under clauses (a) to (l)have been committed, and each of such clauses creates an offence; and, the defend-ant having been convicted of two of such offences, the conviction was bad.-4. That the fact that one of such offences was not properly described, while the other was, did not prevent the conviction from being bad. Rex v. Code, 1 Sask. L. R. 295, 7 W. L. R. 814.

Violation of Ontario Dentistry Act -Outario Summary Convictions Act - Reserved case for Court of Appeal-No jurisdiction to order.] - Defendant obtained an order directing the deputy police magistrate of Toronto to state a case, for opinion of the Court of Appeal, on the conviction of defendant for violation of the Dentistry Act. R. S. O. c. 178 :- Held, that the conviction was a summary one, under a provincial enactment, and subject to provisions of Ont. Summary Convictions Act, therefore not be ing a case of a trial for an indictable offence, the Court of Appeal had no jurisdiction. The reserved case which the magistrate was required to state should be remitted to him because of such want of jurisdiction. Appeal quashed, R. v. Henry (1910), 15 O. W. R. 621, 20 O. L. R. 494.

Warrant of commitment — Form of.] The warrant of commitment stated that the defendant "did steal a certain wargon," etc. —without alleging the absence of colour of right, and without laying in any person the property in the wargon.—Held, that the warrant contained a sufficiently definite statement of the alleged crime of theft. Regina y. Leet, 20 C. L. T. 46.

Watching and besetting — Criminal Code, s. 523 (f)—Obtaining or communicating information. Rex v. Burns, 2 O. W. R. 1115.

Wilful damage to property - Summary trial-Conviction - Information-Warrant of commitment-Statement of offence-Reference to statute-Criminal Code, ss. 521, 778-" Without legal justification or excuse and without colour of right "-Plea of guilty -Magistrate formulating charge in writing -Punishment-Imprisonment.]-An informa-tion laid under s. 521 of the Criminal Code charged that the accused, on, etc., did unlawfully and wilfully commit damage by breaking four insulators on telegraph poles, the property of the Canadian Pacific Rw contrary to the provisions of the said Co., section, without stating, as required by the section, that the insulators formed part of and were used and employed in and about the electric telegraph line of the railway, or that the damage was done without legal justification or excuse and without colour of right. The magistrate, however, did not try the accused on the information, but, on his electing to be tried summarily, and on the magistrate deciding to try the case, he was required by s. 778 (3) in cases of indictable offences, to formulate the charge in writing, containing all the requirements of s. 521, which he read over to the accused, who pleaded guilty thereto, and on such charge, so formulated and pleaded to, the accused was tried and convicted:—Held, that, the charge being for an indictable offence, it was not essential that the whole subject matter, including matters requiring to be negatived, should be set out in the information, its object being merely to inform the magistrate of the nature of the charge, the accused not being tried and convicted thereon, but on the charge as formulated and read over to bim.—Held, also, that it was immaterial that the warrant of commitment followed the information, for that the keeper of the prisoner or any Court before which the mutter might come up on kabeas corpus would be sufficiently informed of the nature of the offence; but, if not, there being a valid and recular conviction, opportunity would be afforded of allowing a warrant in strict compliance with the conviction to be lodged with the keeper.—Held, also, that the punishment imposed, nine months' imprisonment, was not, in the circums' ances, excessive, Res v. Wilful destruction of fence-" Colour of right " -Conviction-Jurisdiction of magistrate-Rejection of evidence - Unregistered plans.]-The defendant was convicted under s, 507 of the Criminal Code for unlawfully and wilfully destroying or damaging a certain fence upon the land of the complainant. By s. 481 (2), there is no criminal offence under s. 507 unless the act of damage is done without legal justification or excuse, and "without colour of right:" — Held, that "colour of right" means an honest belief in a state of facts which, if it existed, would be a legal justification or excuse. Upon the evidence in this case, there was on the part of the defendant such an honest belief, reasonably entertained, in the existence of a right of way over a lane on the complainant's land, as satisfied the terms of the statute, and rendered the conviction bad for want of jurisdiction :- Held, also, that the convicting magistrate erred in disregarding plans of the locus because they were not registered. Where lots are sold in sections pursuant to a plan of the whole made by or for the owner of the whole, according to which he sells the parts, the plan is good to establish such a Iane among the different sub-owners, whether registered or not. Wounding with intent to disable — Indictment-Proof of lesser offence — Verdict — Actual malice — Criminal Code, ss. 241. 242.]—Upon an indictment for wounding by shooting with intent to disable, under the Criminal Code, s. 241. the jury is properly instructed that if such intent is negatived the accused may still be convicted of the simple offence of wounding under s. 242, if the jury find that the accused pointed a loaded gun at another and fired it, and either knew or ought to have known that it was loaded. A verdict returned upon such indictment of "guilty without malicious intent" is a verdict of guilty of such lesser offence. To constitute the offence of wounding under s. 242, it is not necessary to prove actual malice; it is sufficient that the act was unlawful. As s. 109 of the Code declares that a person who without lawful excuse points at another person any firearm is guilty of an offence, the wounding resulting from the discharge of a firearm so pointed is an unlawful wounding within s. 242. Res v. Slaughenichite, 37 N. S. Reps. 382. Reversed by the Supreme Court of Canada, which held that a verdict of "guilty without malicions intent" is an acquittal. Slaughenwhite v. Res., 35 S. C. R. 607.

7. PRACTICE AND PROCEDURE.

Appent-Leave-Acquittal by magistrate -Application by prosecutor-Periptry-Corroboration, 1—A motion by the prosecutor, under s. 744 of the Criminal Code (as amended by 63 k 64 V. c. 40), for leave to appeal from the defendant of perjury, and refusing to reserve for the opinion of the Court of Appeal the question whether there was corroborative evidence of 'ie prosecutor in any material particular, and whether the maristrate exercised a legal discretion under s. 791 of the Code in declining to adjudicate summarily upon the case, and had jurisdiction to try the defendant, who was a client of the County Crown Attorney, in the absence of counsel for the Crown, was refused, under circumstances and for reasons appearing in the report. Res v. Burns, 21 C. L. T. 202, 1 O. L. R. 339.

Appeal — Leave — Forum.]—Since the passing of 63 & 64 V. c. 46, s. 3, amending s. 744 of the Criminal Code, the accused may apply directly to the Court of Appeal to obtain leave to appeal. Rex v. Trépanier, 10 Que, K. B. 222.

Appeal -- Leave -- Practice -- Oath for Chinamen-Form of-Perjury-Confession-Threat or inducement-Voluntary confession -Judge's ruling-Review.]-The prisoner, a Chinaman, had been convicted of perjury:-Held, that leave to appeal to the Court of Criminal Appeal should not be lightly granted. and the representative of the Crown should be served with a notice of motion setting out the grounds of appeal.-Quare, whether the ruling of a Judge as to the admissibility of a confession is open to review by the Court of Criminal Appeal:-Held, on the facts, that before making his confession the prisoner was duly cautioned, and that the confession was admissible in evidence, although, on an occasion previous to his making it, an. inducement may have been held out to him. When a witness without objection takes an oath in the form ordinarily administered to persons of his race or belief. he is then under a legal obligation to speak the truth and cannot be heard to say that he was not sworu. Perjury may be assigned in respect of statements given in evidence by a Chinaman, who was not a Christian. where the oath was administered to him by the burning of paper and an admonition to him "that he was to tell the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, or his soul Rear v. Lai Ping, 25 C. L. T. 22, 11 B. C. R. 102.

Appeal-Leave-Reserved case-Grounds for granting-Remarks of Judge-Projudice -Juros - Evidence.]-Held, affirming the judgment in 12 Que, K. B. 368, that a verdict cannot be impeached in consequence of an observation made by the Judge presiding at the trial, unless such observation was calculated to influence the jury against the defendant; and, consequently, the fact that the Judge remarked to the defendant's counsel while the jury was being sworn, " if you continue to challenge every man who reads the newspapers, we shall have the most ignorant jurors selected for the trial of this cause," is not a proper ground for granting leave to appeal, such remark having no tendency to appear, such remark marine to centers to influence the jury against the defendant, and being without importance. 2. An observation by the Judge presiding at the trial of a criminal case, in his charge to the jury, to the effect that "about 40 or 50 witnesses had been examined for the purpose of establishing the defendant's good character, and that it was very strange that it should take 40 or 50 witnesses to establish it," is not an irregularity which can constitute a ground for granting leave to appeal, the presiding Judge having the right to express his opinion of the evidence, which, however, may or may not be accepted by the jury. The essential point is that the whole evidence be submitted to the jury, who decide finally as to the innocence or guilt of the accused. 3. An appeal from the verdict to the Court of King's Bench sitting in appeal lies only upon questions of law arising either on the trial or on any of the proceedings preliminary, subsequent, or incidental thereto, or arising out of the direction of the Judge. It follows that in cases such as the following, the right of appeal does not exist, viz., where it is alleged that one of the jurors was prejudiced against the prisoner ; where it is alleged that the verdict was the result of an improper arrangement entered into between the jurors, these being questions of fact; or where it appears that no application was not the trial Judge to re-serve the question for the opinion of the Court of Appeal. Rex v. Carlin, 12 Que. K. B. 483.

Appeal—New trial — Jury — Conflict of testimony—Percerse verdict—Opinion of trial Judge,1—On a charge of theft a new trial was refused although the verdict was conting of opinion that the verdict of guilty was one which reasonable men could properly find. In deciding the question of reasonableness of the verdict the opinion of the trial Judge is entitlet to and ought to receive great weight; but it is not conclusive. Regina v. Brevester (No. 2), 2 Terr. L, R 377.

Appeal from conviction or order of magistrate — Condition precedent-Transmission to Court-Time — Criminal Code, s. 757.]—Section 757 of the Criminal Code is merely directory, and the transmission of the conviction or order of the magistrate to the Court in accordance with the provisions of that section before the time when the appeal may first be heard, is not a condition precedent to the appeal, and it is sufficient if the conviction or order be lodged in Court before the appeal is actually heard. Arrest of accused in foreign country -Forcible return to Canada without extradition proceedings—Right to question on habeas corpus—Remands—Verbal remands—Justice sitting for police magistrate—Jurisdiction.]— The prisoner, who had committed a number of thefts in Canada, and had escaped to the United States, was arrested there on a telegram from Canada, and, as he alleged, was forcibly brought back against his will and without the intervention of extradition proceedings, the Crown, however, alleging that he came back voluntarily. On the 11th November he was brought before a justice of the peace of the city where the offences were committed, for preliminary investigation into the charges. There were then two informa-tions before the justice taken before the police magistrate on the 6th November, on which warrants of arrest had been issued. one being that on which the telegram had been sent directing the prisoner's arrest. Two further informations were taken on the same day before the justice for other alleged thefts. A remand was made to the 13th November, the justice issuing his warrant of remand, under his hand and seal, the warrant reciting the bringing of the prisoner before him as a justice of the peace, acting for, in the absence of, and at the request of, one of the police magistrates for the city, there being two such police magistrates, and on the depositions remands were noted without it being stated by whom. On the 13th November a writ of habeas corpus was issued, to which, by a return, dated the 14th, the gaoler returned, as the only cause of the prisoner's detention, the warrant of remand of the 11th November; but on the 16th November he made a further return of four additional warrants of remand, dated the 13th November, under the hand and seal of the said police magistrate, remanding the prisoner until the 17th November :--Held, that the circumstances under which the prisoner was brought back to Canada could not be inquired into, that being a matter to be raised by the government of the country whose laws were alleged to have been vio-lated, or at the suit of the party injured against the person who had committed the alleged trespass against him .-- Held, also, whether or not the justice had jurisdiction to take the informations or to make the remand, by reason of it not appearing that he was acting in the absence of both police magistrates, and for other reasons, the detention of the prisoner was justifiable, for he was properly before the police magistrate on the 13th on the informations taken before him on the 6th November, and was then duly remanded; and, though the second return was made subsequently to the issue of the writ, it was valid, and could be looked at in support of the prisoner's detention. Arrest on Sunday-Canada Temperance Act-Magistrate taking bail on Sunday and fixing day-Jurisdiction - Escape-Prohibition.]-M. was arrested on Sunday on a warrant issued for an offence against the Canada Temperance Act. When brought before the magistrate he applied to be admitted to bail, and was permitted to make a deposit in lieu of bail. The case was set down for hearing on a week day, and M. was discharged from custody. M. appeared at the time appointed and secured a further adjournment, upon his agreeing to leave the amount of his deposit as bail for his appearance. On the day last mentioned he appeared and objected to the legality of his arrest on Sunday and to the action of the magistrate in taking bail and fixing a day :--Held, that s. 564, s.-s. 3, of the Criminal Code, was made applicable to the case by the Canada Temperance Act, s. 107. and that the warrant could be executed on Sunday .- (2) Per Graham, E.J., Meagher, J., and Russell, J., assuming that the releas-ing on bail and fixing a day for the hearing were illegal, that, the arrest being legal, there was a negligent escape, and nothing to prevent the defendant from being retaken, and that the magistrate had jurisdiction to proceed with the case .- (3) For such a defect as that contended for in the procedure prohibition was not the proper remedy.--Per Townshend, J., that the taking of bail and fixing a day was not illegal, but an act done in connection with the arrest.—Weath-erbe, C.J., dissented. Rex v. McGillivray, 2 E. L. R. 414, 41 N. S. R. 321.

Arrest under warrant-Escape-Right to rearrest under same warrant.].-The prisoner had been arrested at Amherst by one of the police of that town, under a warrant. After his arrest he escaped, and left the town for some weeks. When he returned he was rearrested under the same warrant:-Held, that, at the uost, the escape in this case was negligence on the part of the officer, and that he did not contemplate a voluntary abundonment of his prisoner, but negligently trusted to the latter's promise to surrender himself under the warrant; therefore, he might be re-arrested. Rex v. O'Hearn, 21 C. L. T. 355.

Arrest under warrant—Production of prisoner before magistrate—Commitment in absence of prisoner—Criminal Code—Habeas corpus.]—A commitment to gaol by a magistrate of a woman, arrested under a warrant, made without having her brought before him, upon a verbal unsworn statement that she had shewn signs of insanity, and in order that a medical examination might be had, is illegal.-2. The first duty of a magistrate dealing with a person arrested upon his warrant is to have such person brought before him as soon as practicable, and then make such order as the case requires. The express enact-ment of the Criminal Code (s. 567), must be followed in this respect, although the form of remand in connection with it has no mention of the presence of the prisoner. The failure to conform to the above rule will entitle the prisoner, on petition for habeas corpus, to have the commitment guashed and to be discharged from custody. Ex p. Sarrault, 15 Que, K. B. 3.

Arrest without warrant of person charged with crime committed in another province.]-The police of one pro-vince can arrest without warrant a person charged with having committed a crime in another province only where the crime is one for which the accused could have been arrested without warrant in the province where the crime was committed, or where the accused is escaping fresh pursuit: Criminal Code, ss. 30, 33, 649 .- The coming to British Columbia in September of an officer from Quebec is not a fresh pursuit in respect of a crime said to have been committed on the 1st August .-- The charge was that the accused, in Quebec, received a ring from S., with directions to hand it to a third person, and that, instead, he converted it to his own use :--Held, that the offence charged fell within the definition of ordinary theft in s. 347 of the Code, and not within s. 355; and for ordinary theft an offender cannot be arrested without warrant .- The accused, hav-Ing been arrested without warrant. - Ing accused, hav-ing been arrested without warrant in British Columbia, was discharged upon habeas cor-pus. R. v. Shyffer (1910), 15 W. L. R. 323, B. G. R.

Authenticity of depositions taken during the preliminary enquiry upon an indictment charging attempted murder-Absence of such authenticity-In-dictment rendered null and void-Motion to quash-Art. 683, Criminal Code, R. S. C. 1906.]-When depositions at a preliminary hearing are taken by stenography, according to the provisions of art. 683, par. 2, Criminal Code, R. S. C. 1906, and although it is not necessary that such depositions should be read over to and signed by the witnesses, it is, however, essential that such depositions be signed by the magistrate who presided at the enquiry and be accompanied by an affidavit of the stenographer that it is a true report of the evidence .-- The absence of these essential formalities has the effect of rendering null and void all proceedings had at such preliminary hearing, and an indictment, found by the grand jury and based upon such preliminary proceedings, will be quashed motion made by the accused. upon R. v. Robert, (1910), 16 R. de J. 447.

Ball—Estreat—Sittings of Court — Nonappearance—Notice.]—In a recognizance of bail the expression "the next sittings of a Court of competent criminal jurisdiction." menns the next sittings fixed by the Lieutenant-Governor in council in pursuance of the N. W. T. Act, s. 55. The fact that a special sitting was held in the interval pursuant to the N. W. T. Amendment Act, 1801. s. 12, s.s.4. 2, for the trial of a designated prisoner conlined in galo and awaiting trial, did not affect the obligation of the accused to appear at the next sittings fixed by the Lieutennin-t-Governor. No notice to the bail of intention to estreat or to produce the accused is necessary. Regina v. Schram, 2 U. C. R. 91, and Re Tablot's Bail, 23 O. R. 65, foilowed. In re McArthur's Bail (No. 1), 2 Terr. L. R. 413.

Bail—Murder — Conviction—New trial.] —When a prisoner, charged with wilful murder, has been tried, found guilty, and sentenced to death, but, upon appeal, has obtained a reversal of the conviction on technical grounds, and stands committed for a second trial, the Court of King's Bench, Quebec, will not admit him to bail, especially when the Crown appears to proceed with due dillgence, McCraw v. Rex, 16 Que K. B. 505.

Bail-Right to - Discretion of Judge. -All Superior Courts of criminal jurisdiction, or one of their Judges, and also, in the province of Quebec, a Judge of the Superior Court, have authority to admit to bail persons accused of any crime whatsoever (in-cluding treason and capital offences), but as respects indictable offences which, before the enacting of the Criminal Code, were felonies, it is within their discretion to grant or re-fuse the application for bail. With respect to indictable offences which were formerly misdemeanours, the accused is entitled to be admitted to bail as a matter of right. 2. The propriety of admitting to bail for indictable offences which were formerly classed as felonies should be determined with reference to the accused person's opportunities for escape, and to the probability of his appearing for trial. To determine this point it is proper to consider the nature of the offence charged and its punishment, the strength of the evidence against the accused, his character, means, and standing. Where a serious doubt exists as to his suilt the application for bail should be granted. If, on the evidence, it stands indifferent whether he is guilty or innocent, the rule generally is to admit him to bail, but if his guilt is beyond dispute, the general rule is not to grant the application for bail unless the opportunities to escape do not appear to be possible, and it is consequently almost certain that he will appear for trial. The fact that the application for bail is not opposed either by the Attorney-General or the private prosecutor may also be taken into account by the Court or Judge. Res v. Fortier, 13 Que, K. B. 251, 23 C. L. T. 115.

Comment of Crown counsel on failure to call wife of accused—Conviction quashed—New trial.] — On the trial of the defendant on a charge of shooting with intent to kill, counsel for the Crown commented upon the fact that the defendant's wife, who had been a witness on the preliminary examination before the magistrate, was not called. On a Crown case reserved:—Held, that the comment in question was not justified by the fact that it was made in reply to an explanation offered by counsel for the defendant to account for the omission to call the wife, and that the defendant should not be discharged, but that there should be a new trial Rez v. Hill, 36 N. S. Reps. 240.

Commitment for trial—Jurisdiction of Crown prosecutor—Election—Place of imprisonment—Criminal Code, ss. 825. 826.]— Defendant was charged under s. 303 of the Criminal Code. The preliminary hearing was held and accused was committed to the Prince Albert gaol. En route to Price Albert the accused was held over at Battleford and brough before the prosecution officer there, when she elected for a speedy trial, and was taken to Prince Albert gaol. There was then no Judge resident in the Battleford district. When brought before the Judge at Prince Albert she claimed the right of election, and at her trial at Battleford renewed this application :—Held, that election before Conviction for killing dogs — Complaint laid by wife of owner—Defendant ordered to pay costs to owner instead of to prosecutrix—Amended conviction returned on certiorari. Rex v. Grey, 2 E. L. R. 68.

Costs.]-In a penal condemnation of two or more defendants, a general order as to costs may go against them without specifying the share for which each will be liable. Bernier v. Que. & Levis Ferry Co. (1910), 39 Que. S. C. 193.

Costs — Private prosecutor — Attorney-General—Noile prosequi — Effect.]—Where a noile prosequi has been entered by the Attorney-General, upon an indictment in the name of the King at the instance of a private prosecutor, and the accused is thereupon discharged, judgment is, within the meaning of Art. 833 of the Criminal Code, given for the defendant, and he is entitled to recover costs from the private prosecutor. Rex v. Blackley, 13 Que, K. B. 472.

County Court Judge's Criminal Court—Court of Record — Right to issue writ of habeas corpus to-Certiorari in aid-Refusal to discharge prisoner-Omission to file papers in High Court - Non-return to County Judge's Court-Validity of convic-- A prisoner charged with perjury tion.] elected to be tried without a jury at the County Court Judge's Criminal Court, and was tried there and convicted, the Judge refusing to state a case for the Court of Appeal; but postponing judgment to enable the prisoner to appeal. The Court of Appeal, however, refused leave to do so. The dis-charge of the prisoner was then moved for in the High Court under habeas corpus, and certiorari issued in aid thereof, which was re-fused on the ground that the habeas corpus, etc., had been improvidently issued, that writ a Court of record, and the prisoner was re-manded for sentence, which was pronounced without any objection. Some time afterwards the sentence was objected to for alleged want of jurisdiction in the County Court Judge to pronounce it, because the papers which had been returned to but not filed in the High Court under the certiorari had not been brought back, but were in the hands of one of the High Court officers, and so did not repass to the County Court Judge's Court, a special order of transfer being necessary.—A motion for leave to appeal from the conviction, and for an order requiring the County Court Judge to state a case was, under the circumstances, refused. Rex v. Harrison, 10 O. W. R. 578, 15 O. L. R. 231.

Oriminal information — Libel — Affdarit in reply—Practice,]—Where the libel charges the person libelled with having, by a previous writing, provoked it, the latter by his affidavi, on which he moves for a criminal information, is bound to answer it, otherwise the affidavit is insufficient and the rule will be discharged. R. v. Whelan (1862), 1 P. E. I. R. 220.

Crown documents—Stamps — Warrant for arrest-Want of stamps—Woiver,1—The Crown is not obliged to affix stamps upon its papers and proceedings in Court.—An accused person who has pleaded to the indictiment, has furnished security for his appearance at a future time, and has demanded a speedy trial, cannot complain of the legality of his original arrest because of the want of stamps upon the warrant. Rex v. Rodrigue, 9 Que, P. R. 122.

Dismissal of complaint — Motion to quash.]—An order dismissing a complaint under the Summary Convictions Act may be quashed on certioreri, Rez v. Ritchie, Ex p. Sandall, 37 N. B. R. 2006.

Election by prioner as to trial Power of prosecuting officer to receive-De-positions-Perusal of - Magistrate's Signature.] - Where there is no Judge of the County Court residing in a county, the pro-secuting officer or counsel appointed under the provisions of R. S. 1900 c. 165, s. 1, is empowered to take the election of a prisoner, under the Code, s. 766, to be tried before the Judge of the County Court. The power given to such officers to conduct all criminal busi-ness on behalf of the Crown includes all process necessary to bring the prisoner to trial, and the making of his election is one necessary act in these proceedings. Where all the depositions, or copies thereof, taken against the prisoner, and returned into the Court before the trial, were handed to the prisoner's counsel for perusal :--Held, that it was no cause of complaint that the papers so handed were mixed up with other papers, there being no serious difficulty in understanding those applicable to the particular offence with which the prisoner was charged :-Held, also, that depositions to which the magistrate had affixed his signature were not to be rejected anxed his signature were not to be rejected because such signature was possibly not placed in the most correct place. Quare, whether an indictment found by the grand jury should be quashed because depositions are improperly taken. *Rex v. Extradition-Identity of prisoner-Sur-render to Russia - Treaty - Political char-acter of crime.]-At a village in Russia, one F. shot and killed a watchman, in circumstances which, according to the law of Canada, would make the act murder, F. fled; man of the same name was arrested in Manitoba, and his extradition to Russia to answer a charge of murder was sought :----Held, that the prisoner's identity with F. was sufficiently established by the evidence. -2. That the crime of the accused was not committed in the furtherance of a political object, within the meaning of the Treaty with Russia of the 24th November, 1886 The accused was a member of a political society whose object was to alter the form of government and to do away with private ownership of property-a society by which revolutionary outrages had been perpetrated. In the district where the crime was committed, martial law had been proclaimed, and was in force. F. was in charge of the watch-man on his way to the village administrative office, having been asked to give an account of himself, because he was a stranger in the village, when he shot the officer. The crime would, in Russia, be called a political crime and be tried by a special tribunal. But that did not make it a crime of a political character within the meaning of the Treaty .- Extradition ordered. Re Federenko (No. 1) 1910), 15 W. L. R. 370, 20 Man. L. R. 221.

Grand jury — Constitution of — Indictment.]—A sheriff, when about to summon, pursuant to s. 48 of the Jurors' Act, one of the jurors drafted to serve on a grand jury, ascertained that the juror was demented and did not summon him :—Held, that the grand jury was not legally constituted, and that an indictment found by the jurors who had been summoned must be quashed. A motion to quash such an indictment is not an objection to the constitution of the grand jury within the meaning of s. 656 of the Criminal Code. Res v. Hayes, 23 C. L. T. 342, 9 B. C. R. 574.

Grand jury—Constitution of—Qualification of juror—Prejudice—Motion to quark indictment—Reserved exes.]—An objection to the qualification of an individual member of a grand jury is not an objection to the "constitution" of the grand jury within the meaning of s. 636 of the Criminal Code, and so cannot be raised by motion to quash the indictment. The question as to whether or not a grand juror is prejudiced, is for the Judge of Assize to decide, and his decision cannot be reviewed on a stated case. ICax Y. Huges, 11 B. C. R. 4. See S. C., 23 C. L., T. 342, 9 B. C. R. 574.

Grand jury — Endorsing names of witnesses on indictment—Abortion—Form of indictment.)—The provisions of s. 645 of the Criminal Code, requiring the names of all witnesses examined by the grand jury to be indorsed on the bill of indictment, are directory only, and an omission so to indorse does not invalidate the indictment. An indictment under s. 273 of the Code charging accused "with unlawfully using on her own person . . . with intent thereby to procure a miscarriage" (without stating whose miscarriage) is sufficient. Rex v. Holmes, 22 C. L. T. 437, 9 B. C. R. 294.

Grand jury—Formation and number — True bil—Rejection.]—Where eleven grand jurors answered their names when the roll was first called, but only ten were impanelled and sworn tone having failed to answer on the second calling?, the grand jury was properly formed; and the accused, having suffered no prejudice thereby, cannot, on that ground, move for the rejection of the true bill found against him. Rest v. Fouquet, 14 Que, K. B. 87.
